Three Texas Newspapers Say Grand Jury Told LBJ Ordered 1961 Murder

DALLAS (AP) — Convicted swindler Billie Sol Estes told a grand jury that Lyndon B. Johnson ordered the 1961 murder of a federal official who could have tied the late president to Estes' illegal activities, according to anonymous sources quoted by two newspapers today.

Two former Johnson associates denied the charges, and one of them branded Estes a publicity-seeking "pathological liar." A former aide to Johnson's widow said the charges were "scurrilous," and the sources stressed that Estes' secret testimony Tuesday had not been verified by other evidence.

The reports were published in today's editions of the Dallas Morning News and the Dallas Times Herald. The Bryan-College Station Eagle also published a copyright report on parts of Estes' grand jury testimony in today's editions.

The three newspapers all quoted anonymous sources close to the grand jury investigation. Reporting of such testimony is unusual and the newspapers did not explain how they obtained the information.

Estes, testifying under a grant of immunity, said that when Johnson was vice president he met with Estes and other officials before the killing of U.S. Department of Agriculture official Henry M. Marshall, the three newspapers said.

Marshall was shot to death with a 22-caliber rifle on his farm in Franklin, 120 miles south of Dallas, on June 3, 1961. Estes claims Malcolm Wallace, who died in 1971, was responsible, the newspapers said.

Marshall's death stood on official records as a suicide for 23 years until the Robertson County grand jury ruled it a homicide Tuesday after hearing testimony from Estes. The grand jury also said there was no one left alive to indict.

Lady Bird Johnson, the president's widow, could not be reached for comment on the testimony Thursday, the Morning News said in its copyright story.

"All we will say is that Mrs. Johnson does not answer scurrilous attacks and comments such as that," said Liz Carpenter, who served as Mrs. Johnson's press secretary when Johnson was president.

The Times Herald said former aides to Johnson who were contacted Thursday night denied the allegations. Walter Jenkins, once Johnson's top assistant, told the newspaper Johnson met Estes only twice and not in the instances Estes reportedly described in his testimony.

"I just think that Billie Sol Estes is a con man and a pathological liar. He's just looking for publicity," said Robert Hardesty, another Johnson adviser and now president of Southwest Texas State University.

"It's just the word of an admitted con man," one grand juror told The Dallas Times Herald. The three newspapers quoted sources as saying Estes testified that Johnson met with Estes, Wallace and an aide shortly before Marshall's death to discuss fears that Marshall could link Johnson to illegal dealings involving Estes and the USDA.

Estes was eventually convicted of a multi-million dollar fertilizer tank swindle that involved federal agri-

Gets Fine In Burning

RALEIGH — The N.C. Division of Environmental Management has fined a Route 4, Greenville, man $6,000 for unlawful burning in August and September 1983.

The assessment document charges that Louis McDowell Wallace burned approximately 1,500 pounds of lead-sheath copper wire at a site off the Old River Road on the morning of Aug. 31, and on the night of Sept. 26 and the morning of Sept. 27.

Robert F. Helms, director of the N.C. Department of Natural Resources and Community Development's environmental management division, assessed the penalties following an investigation by personnel in the division's Washington regional office.

Wallace, the assessment document alleged, had been warned, by letter in April 1975, against open burning of copper wire.

According to the DEM, such factors as the effect on ambient air quality and public health, the extent and degree of harm caused by the violation, the cost of rectifying the damage and the amount of money saved by the violator by not having made the necessary expenditures to comply with the state open burning regulation are taken into account in assessing civil penalties in such cases.

Wallace has 30 days in which to pay the penalty or appeal the action, according to the DEM.

cultural loans.

Estes told the grand jury that he and Marshall conducted more than 130 illegal cotton allotment transfers with Johnson's knowledge between January 1961 and the time Marshall was killed, the Times Herald and the Eagle quoted their sources as saying.

Estes alleged the illegal transfers were a method Johnson used to pay Estes off in exchange for the financial contributions he made to Johnson's political campaigns, the sources were quoted as saying.

The case, long a subject of intense gossip and rumor in Texas political circles, was reopened after Estes agreed to break his silence at the urging of U.S. Marshal Clint Peoples, 73, who has pursued the case for more than two decades, the Times Herald said.

On Thursday, Estes told the Times Herald his trust of Peoples persuaded him to testify and that he was surprised that there was so much interest in his statement.

"I've gotten over 200 phone calls on this," Estes said. "The only reason that I spoke about all that is my longstanding friendship with Peoples. I don't want to be involved in it."

Phone calls by The Associated Press to the number listed for Estes in Abilene were answered by his son, Billie Sol Estes Jr., who said his father was not available for comment.

Prices Rose 'Modestly' In February

By SALLY JACOBSEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices rose a modest 0.4 percent in February, as a moderation in food price increases gave economists fresh support for their predictions that inflation this year will be in the range of 5 percent.

Food prices rose 0.6 percent, well under the sharp 1.6 percent gain of January, as damage from several months of severe weather began to ease.

Energy prices were also up. Fuel oil prices rose 6.9 percent, their biggest jump in three years, while gasoline costs, off for the fifth straight month, fell 1.5 percent.

But the overall gain in the Consumer Price Index was less than January's 0.6 percent.

At the White House, Martin Feldstein, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, said the February advance is "right in line with the administration's forecast" and provided "further evidence that the economy is not overheating."

Excluding the "volatile" food and energy components, he said, the price report would have shown an "even better 0.3 percent rise."

Reflecting the fresh moderation in food prices, cost increases slowed for such staples as meat, eggs, fruits and vegetables.

Beef and veal prices rose 1.7 percent after a 3.5 percent jump in January. Pork prices edged up 0.4 percent after soaring 5.2 percent. Egg prices advanced 2.2 percent, down dramatically from the 21.3 percent gain in the previous month. Fresh fruit prices rose just 0.3 percent following a sharp 7.8 percent gain in January. Vegetable prices, which shot up 7 percent in the previous month, rose 3.3 percent.

Local telephone service, which posted its sharpest-ever gain in January, 8.5 percent, still rose substantially last month with a gain of 3.0 percent. But the cost of all phone service moderated, rising 1.9 percent, down from the previous month's record 5.2 percent gain.

The increases generally are attributable to regulatory changes accompanying the breakup of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Medical care costs jumped 0.8 percent, up from the 0.7 percent gain of January and above the average monthly increase of 0.5 percent last year. Physicians' fees soared 1.2 percent while hospital room charges rose 0.7 percent.

Street Battles In Beirut Re-Erupt

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Street battles erupted again today in west Beirut as the pro-Libyan militia Mourabitoun fought to regain positions it lost to Druse fighters.

The two leftist militias exchanged rocket-propelled grenades and machine gun fire from rooftops and on the ground in several areas of the capital's predominantly Moslem sector.

Many shops and schools remained closed for a second day after the Mourabitoun, composed of Sunni Moslems, distributed leaflets calling for a strike to protest the Druse crackdown.

The Druse militia of opposition leader Walid Jumblatt's Progressive Socialist Party on Thursday tried to drive the Mourabitoun off the streets, taking over their headquarters and radio station. The Druse blame the Mourabitoun for recent abductions of Christians and a "campaign of lawlessness."

Fighting in the Corniche Mazraa area erupted today at midmorning, and reporters there said it was intense with the Druse using machine gun, automatic weapons and rocket-propelled grenades to root out the Mourabitoun, whose name means "ambushers" in Arabic.

There was no traffic except for a few frightened drivers who sped across the boulevard, fishtailing and sliding on rain slicked streets.

In the Druse enclave west of the thoroughfare, young fighters raced from building to building, trying to advance on Mourabitoun holed up in apartment houses.

The few civilians in the area huddled in stairwells or crouched behind walls for cover. Ambulances with sirens screaming sped toward the Gamal Abdul-Nasser Mosque, which appeared to be a center of the fighting.

The Mourabitoun is the largest militia in the Moslem's National Movement coalition, which was founded in 1976 and is headed by Jumblatt. The Mourabitoun had close links to the Palestine Liberation Organization and lost much of its strength after the Israeli invasion of Lebanon in 1982.

In another development, President Amin Gemayel, in an interview published today, offered to try to reach new security arrangements with Israel to protect its northern border from guerrillas.

Gemayel was quoted as saying his government would seek to increase the United Nations contingent in southern Lebanon to help the Lebanese army re-establish authority over the area after Israel withdrew its troops.

FILM BEING SHOWN AGAIN?

I live in the Grimesland area and am dismayed to learn that I missed the recent showing at G.R. Whitfield School of what everyone said was an excellent film on drugs and alcohol use and abuse among young adults. Is it being shown in this area again any time soon? C.T.

The film titled "Epidemic" will be shown at the Brody Building Auditorium (medical school adjacent to Pitt County Memorial Hospital) Thursday at 7:30 p.m. Young persons 10 or older, parents and other adults are urged to attend, says Nancy O'Brien, a member of the Pitt County Medical Auxiliary which is sponsoring the showing.

A sequel titled "Epidemic II: The Community Fights Back" will be shown at Whitfield School April 19 at 7:30 p.m.

The film is available for loan through the Medical Auxiliary. Call Nancy O'Brien, 756-9129.

PCC Board Sets Up Fellowship Program

A fellowship for staff development honoring W.H. (Bill) Howell, retired dean of fiscal affairs for Pitt Community College, has been established by the PCC Board of Trustees.

The board approved the fund Thursday. Interest from the endowment will be used, college officials said, to fund fellowships for full-time employees of PCC's administrative services division. The purpose of the program, they said, is to encourage employees to pursue staff development activities to increase professional knowledge and skills.

Howell served as dean of fiscal affairs for 21 years.

Board Chairman C.W. Everett Sr. reported in the meeting that the Pitt County Commissioners had authorized the board to draft preliminary facility designs for phase I of its priorities needs. Everett and PCC

President Charles Russell met recently with the County Commissioners regarding the college's facilities needs program. The commissioners requested a report after the preliminary draft was completed, Everett said.

The board approved the following low bids on two college projects: $3,380 to Parker & Allen Construction Co. for site preparation and drainage for a modular unit donated to the college by Burroughs Wellcome, and $4,867 to S&H Mobile Home Movers for moving and setting up the unit.

The chairman of the college's building committee, A.B. Whitley Jr., reported to the board the committee had approved cleaning the front of the White Building and recommended a walkway be constructed beside the street in front of the building.

Scholarship Info

Junior and senior high school students interested in applying for a $1,000 college scholarship should request applications by May 7 from the Educational Communications Scholarship Foundation, 721 North McKinley Road, Lake Forest, Illinois, 60045.

To receive an application send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with a note giving name, address, year of graduation and approximate grade point average. Fifty winners will be selected on the basis of academic performance, involvement in extracurricular activities and need for financial aid.

Lecture Speaker

Professional virtues and medical ethics will be discussed Monday at a Perspectives Series lecture sponsored by the East Carolina University School of Medicine's Humanities Program.

William F. May will speak on "The Virtues in a Professional Setting" at 12:30 in the upstairs conference room of the Pitt County Memorial Hospital cafeteria. May is a professor of Christian ethics at the Kennedy Institute of Ethics, Georgetown University.

The lecture will be of particular interest to the health professional, student and other persons interested in medical ethics. It will be open to the public. For more information, call the Humanities Program at 757-2618.

History Competition

More than 200 high schools and junior high school students from 16 area high schools presented papers and projects on historical themes recently at the East Carolina University Department of History sponsored the annual National History Day contest.

Contestants produced a variety of entries for this year's contest including media presentations, performances, project displays and papers. The theme of all presentations was "Family and Community in History."

Support for the contest was provided by the Pitt County Historical Society and the National Endowment for the Humanities. Winners will participate in the state contest slated to be held in Charlotte on April 28.

Bethel Winners

Bethel Elementary School has announced the following winners in its annual science fair:

Eighth grade: first, Melody Bryant; second, Angela Bell and Carol Nicholson; third, Angela Purvis and Gwen Manning; seventh grade: first, Amy Carson; second, Tami Tetterton; third, Kevin Briley; sixth grade: first, Kathy Cyrus; second, Leigh Whitehurst; third, Scott Hobbs; fifth gradconsolidate education programs in the School of Education and university officials are confident that they corrected the problems.

N.C. Department of Public Instruction representatives will also visit the campus on April 19. The State Board of Education last year granted only a two-year provisional accreditation for the School of Education.

Chancellor John Howell said that education programs had been spread throughout the university but now "every education program is the education department's responsibility."

Howell said most faculty members are "enthusiastic" about the changes.

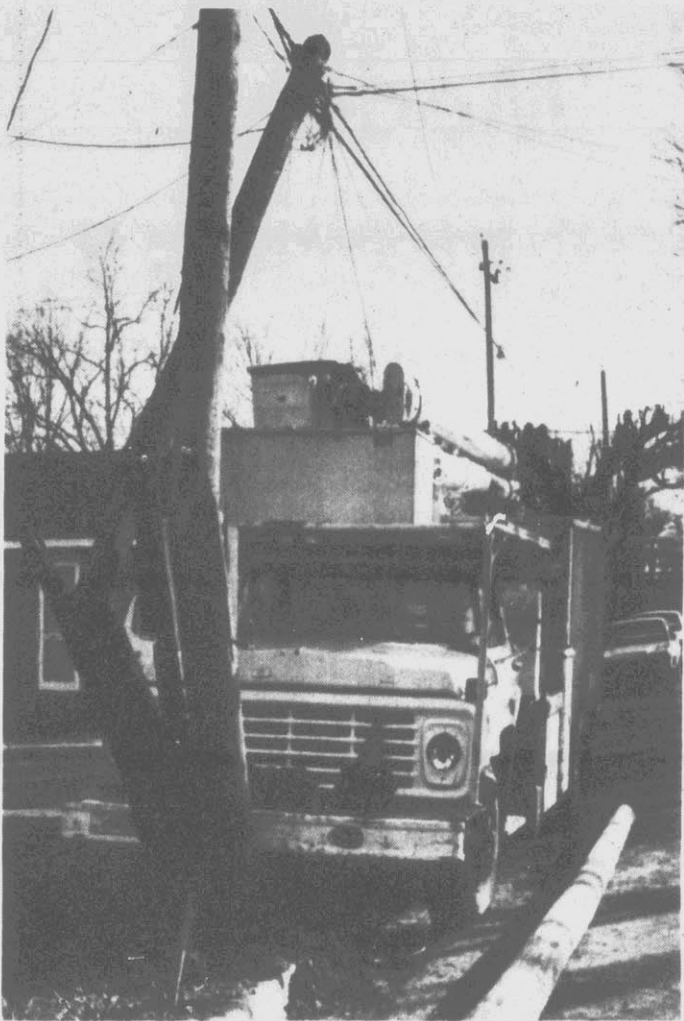

It has taken a good deal of planning and work to correct the deficiencies which the accreditation agencies pointed out last year. Now the real test of what has been done is at hand. Hopefully accreditation of teacher education will be restored. That is essential for East Carolina University which has such a rich heritage in teacher education.

Joan Mondale Logs 100,000 Miles For Husband's Campaign

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Joan of Art, Mrs. Walter F. Mondale, campaigned in 34 states last year, traveling three or four days a week, logging over 100,000 miles. Tuesday, she saw her husband for the first time in a week and she did not arrive empty handed.

On her arm was an overstuffed orange canvas bag, filled with clean socks and shirts.

JOAN MONDALE

Primary day for Joan Mondale began at 6 a.m., shopping for vegetables for the neighborhood cooperative, and it stretched past midnight when she and the former vice president celebrated victory — Illinois and Minnesota — in St. Paul.

For Joan Mondale, the 1984 presidential campaign is "far more intense, more focused," than any other she has weathered — and Joan Mondale has been in politics for more than 20 years.

"The pace is faster. We're going five and six days out of seven instead of three or four," she says. "And the days are longer."

Since January, she has been on the road, appearing for her husband, speaking out on the need for daycare and job training, pay equity, the gender gap.

"We knew this would be a tough race," Mrs. Mondale said in an interview this week. "We just didn't know which of the other seven candidates would be the toughest contender."

Seated in the back seat of a car winding its way through the daffodil-lined parkway to National Airport, she reflected on the primary season.

"We've always had long periods of separation," she said. "When he was attorney general in Minnesota, he was home for dinner only twice a month. Our children have never known anything else. We only dated once a week before we were married." And they had known each other for 13 weeks.

Whatever one's politics, people who know Mrs. Mondale like her. She is a warm, gracious, unpretentious woman, a talented potter whose dedication to the arts over the years has won her the title, "Joan of Art."

Chatting, she is relaxed, easy, quick to chortle over campaign trail gossip, quicker to criticize the Reagan presidency.

"How any intelligent person can vote for Reagan is difficult for me to see," she said. "He is the cause of all this suffering and pain, farmers losing their farms and 2½ million women sinking into poverty."

Yet ask her about rival Gary Hart, whose surprise primary victories sent the Mondale campaign reeling — and she stiffens, offering a stock reply:

"What we say is that it doesn't matter if ideas are old or new, but whether they're right or wrong. Reaganomics was a new idea, but it was wrong and it didn't work. We are proud that our ideas are based on the timeless values of the Democratic party."

Ask her about Jimmy Carter, whom her husband visited the week before in Georgia. Will Mondale ask Carter to campaign for him?

A long silence; then, "I don't know."

She is more relaxed talking about her three children, taking pains to explain a point in one of the many news clippings about Mondale kids on the campaign trail that decorate the family kitchen.

"Both boys are campaigning full time for their father, and Eleanor is campaigning on weekends," she said. "They are terrific."

Ted is 26, a University of Minnesota graduate. William is 22, taking a year off from Brown University, where he is a senior. Eleanor, 24, a St. Lawrence University graduate, is an actress living in Los Angeles, now playing the Yoplait girl in Yoplait yogurt television commercials. "I wish she wore a name tag," her mother says.

For most of the last 17 years the Mondales have lived in an unassuming, white stucco house only a few blocks from the vice president's mansion where they moved during the Carter presidency.

Damage to the Mondale house from pipes bursting during the Christmas freeze has been repaired. The living and dining rooms are newly painted, stark white with white drapes and only a few pieces of simple furniture. There is no bric-a-brac, no clutter, a simple, sunny, elegant interior that highlights paintings and sculpture.

When her husband was vice president, Mrs. Mondale, an art historian, turned their official residence into a gallery of American art, borrowing museum works by such well-known artists as Andy Warhol and Roy Lichtenstein, as well as lesser known ones.

In earlier years, she gave tours at the National Gallery of Art. And in 1972, she published "Politics in Art," an illustrated book for young adults.

When Carter and Mondale were defeated in 1980, Mrs. Mondale

Dear Abby

Age Reflects His Character — Dishonesty

DEAR ABBY: I am a 22-year-old woman engaged to be married, but here is the problem:

When we met, he said he was 37. A few months later he confessed that he was 42. A month ago, when he asked me to marry him, I hesitated because of the 20-year difference in our ages, but I decided to marry him anyway because I really cared for him.

Yesterday I found out his real age: He's 49 — soon to be 50!

What should I do?
WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: The important issue here is not so much his "real" age, as his real character. He's not honest. If he gets to 55, sell.

DEAR ABBY: I am 30 years old. My husband is 34. We've been married for six years. My husband's job requires him to travel occasionally.

A few days after his last trip, he asked me if I had written on the bottoms of his shoes! I said no. After carefully studying the fading writing, I deciphered it to read, "Ed was here and enjoyed every minute of it." I couldn't read the rest of it very well, but made this out: "I'll never forget the fun we had slam dancing at The Mission. Thanks for the memories. Love always, Maurice."

My husband swears up and down that he doesn't know how the writing got there. I maintain that shoes are either on one's feet or in the closet. I also called long-distance to the city where my husband had been, and there is a lounge named The Mission. Also, the writing was on the instep where it would not be apt to wear off like it would if it were written on the ball of the shoe.

What do you think? Should I be suspicious?
SUSPICIOUS

DEAR SUSPICIOUS: You say your husband asked you if you had written on the bottoms of his shoes. Had he been guilty of any wrongdoing, he would not have called your attention to it. Write it off as the work of a practical joker.

DEAR ABBY: After about 1,000 attempts, my wife and I finally quit smoking 20 years ago. Much to my sorrow, I recently discovered that she has been smoking behind my back.

Our four grown children are hopelessly hooked on cigarettes, and when they visit us, the house is blue with smoke. I have asked them repeatedly not to smoke in the house, but my requests have been ignored.

I'm on heart medication, but I've never used that fact as an objection

Determine Old House Value

A charming but dilapidated old house might be tempting if you are in the market for a new home. Just make sure that "buy" is really worth the cost, time and effort it would take to fix it up, says Dr. Glenda Herman, extension housing specialist, North Carolina State University.

Not all houses are worth it. Renovating a very old house which has foundation, roof, framework or mechanical systems to be replaced or rehabilitating a house that doesn't meet health and safety standards often takes longer and costs more than expected," Dr. Herman warns. It may be less costly to build or buy a new house of the same size in the same location.

Before investing your money, figure out whether the remodeling is face-lifting on an already structurally sound and comfortable house or basic requiring structural changes, such as tearing out a wall or adding a new room.

became a private citizen for the first time since 1964.

"We weren't used to it," she says. "... It was a good time to reflect, to read and see friends and travel. We didn't have any duties in private life. We didn't have to answer any questions."

to their smoking around me. As a "solution," my wife bought a small air filter gadget, which is about as effective as an eyedropper in a forest fire.

What options can you offer the man of the house?
SMOKED OUT

DEAR SMOKED OUT: Tell your children that you are on heart medication and cannot tolerate smoke in your home. If they ignore your request, show them the door and tell them if they want to see their father, you'll be glad to meet them in the park sometime.

Tour Of Homes Set For April

The 21st annual St. Luke's tour of homes on Hilton Head Island, S.C., is scheduled for April 7-8. The hours are 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday and 1-5:30 p.m. Sunday.

Tour maps, home descriptions and tickets will be available at the church which is located on Pope Avenue at Cordillo Parkway.

The homes selected are all contemporary, showing a variety of architectural types ranging from the large and formal to the casual.

Sponsored by the Episcopal Church Women of St. Luke's, the proceeds will benefit not only the church but also island charities including the Child and Youth Center and Meals on Wheels.

For ticket information write to: Tour of Homes, P.O. Box 5101, Hilton Head Island, S.C. 29938.

Remodeling Should Be Wise Investment

When it comes to buying or selling, the location of a house counts almost as much as the physical structure itself. Buyers know they must evaluate the location before investing, but remodelers should also do so, says Dr. Glenda Herman, extension housing specialist, North Carolina State University.

"A remodeling project often increases your investment in the house and may limit your options on moving," Dr. Herman explains. It is best not to over-improve a home.

Ask yourself the following questions, Dr. Herman recommends:

- Is the house convenient to schools, parks, shopping, church or places of work?
- Is the neighborhood attractive, well-maintained and developing in a positive direction?
- Is the neighborhood free from heavy traffic, dust, dirt, noise, odor and other forms of pollution?
- Is public transportation available nearby?
- Is the neighborhood free from the threat of flooding?
- Do you know if the neighborhood is zoned for residential use only?
- Are there any plans for new businesses, industry or highways in your area?

It would be difficult to get back an investment in a poor location. On the other hand, fixing up a home in a good location may prove to be a wise investment.

Plan Would Equalize Courses

Primary Test

Democrats Walter Mondale and Gary Hart, their race softened only slightly by Mondale victories last week, now face another crucial test in the April 3 primary in New York.

New York, with 252 delegates to be assigned, became a major factor in pre-convention maneuvering this year when the state's primary was shuttled forward from June to April.

Mondale has the edge now, with his victory in Tuesday's Illinois primary giving him what he says is the momentum to go for victory. He now holds a good advantage in committed delegates, with 629 to 357 for Hart. But a Hart victory in New York, where Jesse Jackson could cut into Mondale's strength, would put a braking action on Mondale's drive.

It's a primary where major factors to be considered are race, with Jackson winning the support of most major black leaders, and ethnic loyalties. Mondale has won the endorsement of New York City Mayor Edward Koch, a Jew. Koch sent questionnaires to the three Democratic candidates, then chose Mondale for his support.

The deciding factor could well be Jackson, although he offended the state's large Jewish community by referring to New York City as "Hymietown." His campaign leaders are predicting Jackson will take 20 percent of the vote. Most observers agree that kind of vote for Jackson would hit hardest at Mondale, while strengthening Hart's bid.

Hospital Efficiency

It seems a probability exists that some hospitals will be closed in the next few years.

I. Glenn Wilson, professor and chairman of the social and administrative medicine department at UNC, has told the Legislative Commission on Medical Cost Containment that 25 to 50 hospitals could close due to a mounting oversupply of hospital beds. He anticipates that less efficient hospitals will be affected. Less use of hospitals and different methods of compensating hospitals seem to be having an effect.

Of course, the least efficient should fall by the wayside. It is well to remember, however, that many of these hospitals are not cost efficient because they are small, but being small means they are located in areas which can ill afford to give up the medical care they have.

Perhaps such hospitals must disappear, but we should be working to provide efficient medical care to the people affected, perhaps with transportation service such as helicopters or with visiting medical personnel to handle their health care needs. People should not be penalized for living in sparsely populated areas.

RALEIGH — The North Carolina Constitution guarantees to all citizens of this state the privilege of an education. It is generally held that that guarantee means that all citizens should have the right to an education of equal value. But in North Carolina, education is not equal. While affluent school districts offer a feast of foreign language, science, math and computer courses, poor districts often can't offer more than one foreign language, or anything beyond the most basic high school math and science.

The State Board of Education is responsible for developing public school curricula but it has developed, instead, a curriculum menu. It does not lay out the courses which shall be offered in the public schools but only the courses which can be offered.

A subcommittee of the Education Policy Council wants that changed. It voted earlier this month to instruct the state board to develop a minimum curriculum that would be offered to every child in the state.

Rep. Joe Mavretic, D-Edgecombe, chairman of the council's personnel subcommittee, said the statewide curriculum would bring uniformity to state schools. "Every child would be offered the same minimum opportunity," he said.

The subcommittee wants the state board to audit the courses currently being offered in the public schools and to propose to the General Assembly a standard course of study by Feb. 1, 1985. Craig Phillips, superintendent of public instruction, welcomed the call saying it reflects something which is already state law and that it will "nudge" the state board into action.

The curriculum envisioned by the subcommittee would also include specifications on class size, equipment and facility needs. The board will be asked to propose maximum class sizes for each course. That means the board could be deciding that some subjects can stand to have bigger classes than others. Support personnel, such as reading aides and laboratory assistants, the physical amount of space and the equipment needed for each course is also expected to be detailed in the state board's plan.

Mavretic said the state board need not come forth with a single curriculum for all students. It might prefer to offer several different curricula from which students could choose. The subcommittee included in its proposal a call for a vocational training curriculum. Others could also be developed.

The subcommittee said the curricula should stress the integrated approach to instruction. For example, a history essay should not only be historically accurate, it should be grammatically correct, also.

While the concept of equal educational opportunity is something every legislator would probably stand behind, it will be interesting to see if the legislature will have the political will to bring it about. Any meaningful statewide curriculum would probably create tremendous demands for new facilities and equipment in the poorest school districts. For example, putting computers in every school which doesn't currently have them would cost about $10 million, who knows the cost of putting chemistry, physics, biology and foreign language labs in high schools which do not now have them?

A statewide curriculum may run into political trouble with small school districts. The financial demands of upgrading their coursework might force them into merger with larger systems. And finally there is the question of local control. Would a statewide curriculum prompt charges of heavy-handed rule from Raleigh? You bet it would.

Domenici Faces Election Cutback

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration is so furious with Sen. Pete Domenici, chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, for insisting on deep defense cuts that quiet threats are being made about withholding help for his re-election campaign in New Mexico this year.

"I would think he (Domenici) might appreciate a campaign trip from the president," an angry senior official told us. Domenici's insistence on defense cuts much deeper than the president would tolerate has been holding up Senate agreement on a deficit-reduction package.

In contrast, the administration has worked smoothly on revenue-increasing aspects of the package with another independent-minded Republican with whom it has had troubles in the past: Sen. Robert Dole, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. Dole has cleared nearly all his tax hikes with the Treasury.

President Reagan's senior staff has put out the word to both the White House and the Reagan-Bush campaign committee: don't join the rush to find fault with Sen. Gary Hart.

That's not because the president's men prefer Hart to Mondale as the Democratic nominee. Rather, the view in the West Wing is that there would be no Republican fingerprints on the rising volume of attacks on Hart's character.

Nevertheless, ever since Hart's explosion, his record has been carefully researched by Reaganites — inside and outside the official campaign structure. For instance, the political action committee headed by the Rev. Jerry Falwell (head of the Moral Majority) has been combing through Hart's utterances and background.

Just before Super Tuesday, a conference call among most Southern state Democratic chairmen came right to the edge of a big political decision: unanimous declaration in favor of Walter Mondale's presidential campaign.

The highly confidential proposal was made during a tense moment in the conversation when the nearly one dozen chairmen were bawling and lamenting the onrush of Gary Hart. Original of the call, Georgia chairman and Mondale intimate Bert Lance, was trying to generate optimism, but the mood was deeply pessimistic among the generally pro-Mondale party leaders.

At that point, Texas chairman Robert Slagle proposed the endorsement of Mondale, but quickly withdrew the idea when it failed to attract unanimous backing. A split decision would have hurt Mondale in the only region that has given him a primary election.

An otherwise congenial breakfast session between key GOP House members and Lewis Lehrman, 1982 Republican nominee for governor of New York, turned nasty when he tangled over the budget deficit with a fellow New Yorker, Rep. Barber Conable.

Lehrman was explaining his views on monetary policy to the weekly closed-door breakfast conducted by two private groups of Republican congressmen. Conable, senior Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee who is retiring from Congress this year, was doing a slow burn over Lehrman's explanation of the Federal Reserve Board's responsibility for high interest rates.

Finally, Conable could stand it no longer and demanded to know why Lehrman omitted two little words: budget deficit. The tension was not eased when Lehrman shot back: "I'll leave that to you."

Flexing The U.S. Muscle

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is entering his re-election campaign with a foreign policy that aims at containing the Soviet Union and deterring terrorism — sometimes with the force of U.S. arms.

The will is clearly there — to promote an Arab-Israeli settlement, for instance. The Vietnam syndrome that gripped the country in the 1970s, discouraging U.S. actions abroad, has not taken hold at the White House.

But it still lingers across the land, generating pressure for the withdrawal of the Marines from Beirut after more than 250 of them fell victim to terrorist bombings and sniper attacks and making any sustained U.S. effort anywhere around the globe questionable.

The administration has been willing to extend American power in Central America, the Middle East, or in the Persian Gulf, if oil supplies are threatened by the war between Iran and Iraq.

New U.S. missiles have been deployed in Western Europe, targeted on the Soviet Union. Marines and Rangers swarmed over Grenada to uproot a leftist regime. The fleet goes on patrols in the Caribbean and Mediterranean to demonstrate U.S. resolve. Americans are training Salvadorans and Hondurans, and anti-Sandinista rebels in Nicaragua are getting U.S. aid.

The administration has also made a special point of condemning state-supported terrorism. It linked Syria and Iran to the attack last October on U.S. Marine headquarters near Beirut. Libya also provokes occasional wrath. A few days ago, U.S. reconnaissance planes were sent to Egypt to deter Libya from attacking the Sudan.

Clearly, the Reagan administration is projecting American might with a vigor unseen since the end of the Vietnam War a decade ago.

But restraint is mixed in with the rhetoric. Despite repeated threats to retaliate for the bombing of Marine headquarters, the United States held its fire. Reagan imposed minor sanctions when the Soviets shot down a South Korean commercial airliner with 61 Americans among the 269 victims.

The realities of a nuclear age probably have a lot to do with limiting the use of force. So does a historical instinct for isolationism, which was reinforced by more than 55,000 American deaths in Vietnam.

Consequently, the administration has banked largely on traditional diplomacy to extend U.S. influence and to promote stability.

It negotiated with the Soviet Union to reduce nuclear weapons, but the talks stalemated.

It tried to line up Israel, Jordan and, indirectly, the Palestine Liberation Organization to negotiate a settlement in the Middle East, but all three parties rejected President Reagan's proposals.

There is virtually no interest in trying to arrange a summit meeting between Reagan and the new Soviet leader, Konstantin Chernenko.

But even without a dramatic U.S.-Soviet summit meeting, Reagan can always stump the country on his record in reducing inflation and stimulating economic recovery.

Strength For Today

Some years ago a large, sun-baked brick was found in certain Babylonian ruins. While the brick was still soft, the royal circle had been stamped upon it, either by the king himself or by one of his officials. But before the brick dried, a stray dog walked across it.

So today, thousands of years after this incident, we see the brick in a museum case, having in one corner the seal of the king and across its surface the tracks of a stray dog.

As the crown of his creation, God made man in his own image. He put upon him the divine imprimatur. But across the lives of all of us are the tracks of stray dogs. Weaknesses laying hold of us through years of indulgence have disfigured our lives. The temper we do not restrain, the uncharitable judgment into which we so easily lapse — these are some of the dog tracks across our natures.

God meant for us to be like Him, but more often we resemble Satan, who plagues the souls of men.

Tax Extensions Are Available

NEW YORK (AP) — With time closing in fast on the April 16 filing deadline, it's rumored that a lot of people haven't got their income-tax acts together yet.

There are countless possible reasons for their plight — illness, other pressing personal matters, or just the ordinary day-to-day preoccupations of making your way in the world.

Maybe the accountant who did your taxes the last five years moved away over the winter. Or maybe you just haven't worked up the ambition to tackle the whole mess yet.

People in this position should be aware that they can get four months of extra time to file by following a relatively simple procedure. And it doesn't matter whether you have a good excuse or a bad excuse. The Internal Revenue Service doesn't even usually ask whether you have any excuse at all.

It does matter, however, that you abide by specified rules and procedures in filing for an automatic extension. If you don't, it could cost you plenty in penalties and interest, over and above your normal tax liability.

To start with, you need to complete IRS Form 4868, and mail it to the IRS service center that handles returns for your place of residence. The addresses of these offices are listed on the back of the form.

The extension is normally granted automatically. In fact, the IRS states that it will send you a notice only if, for some special reason, it denies your request.

It is important to note that, while you can get an extension for filing, you cannot get one for paying the approximate amount of the taxes you expect to owe. If, after withholding and other payments already made, you estimate that you owe additional tax for 1983, a check for the appropriate amount must be enclosed with the extension form.

Should it turn out later that you have underpaid by more than 10 percent of the total ultimately owed, and you cannot show "reasonable cause" for that underpayment, the rules provide for some hefty penalties.

Even if you do show reasonable cause, the IRS will charge you interest on the extra amount owed from the due date of the return to the date it is paid. The interest — currently charged at an annual rate of 11 percent, compounded daily — can add up quickly.

Furthermore, warns the accounting firm of Deloitte Haskins & Sells, "the IRS may deny your application for an automatic extension if it is not properly completed and submitted. If this happens, you must generally file your return within 10 days of the denial date (or by the regular due date, if later)."

For a great number of taxpayers — those who have refunds coming to them — seeking a filing extension is of dubious value at best. There is no place on Form 4868 to claim the refund, and the longer you delay in filing your regular return, the longer the IRS will have the use of the money it owes you as an interest-free loan from you.

A filing extension may, however, be advantageous for people who want extra time to gather money to contribute to an individual retirement account for 1983, or to decide where to invest that money. A filing extension carries with it an extension of the deadline for making the IRA contribution.

Marchers Protested Verdict

By FRED BAYLES
Associated Press Writer

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP) — The convictions of two more Portuguese immigrants in a barroom gang rape drew sobs from defendants and protests from 5,000 marchers, but women's groups hailed the verdicts as offering a "ray of hope" for other rape victims.

Two other men were acquitted Thursday and two had been found guilty earlier in the case, in which a 22-year-old mother of two testified she had been dragged to a tavern pool table, held down and repeatedly raped while a leering crowd cheered "like a baseball game."

The case became a rallying point both for women's rights groups, which decried the abuse detailed by the victim, and the Portuguese community, which alleged authorities were prejudiced against the six defendants, who are all Portuguese immigrants.

On Thursday, John Cordeiro, 24, and Victor Raposo, 23, wept as jurors found them guilty of aggravated rape in the March 6, 1983, attack at Big Dan's tavern in New Bedford. Witnesses testified the two tried to have oral sex with the woman while she was pinned to the pool table.

At the same time, Jose Medeiros, 23, and Vergilio Medeiros, 24, who are not related, embraced their lawyers and were mobbed by friends as they were acquitted. Witnesses testified they kept others from helping the woman and cheered their friends, but did not join in the physical assault.

Cordeiro and Raposo, along with Daniel Silva, 27, and Joseph Vieira, 28, who were found guilty of aggravated rape Saturday in a separate trial, face a maximum penalty of life imprisonment when sentenced sometime next week. They also face possible deportation.

"This is ... justice?" Raposo said bitterly, his tears turning to anger as he was led out of the courtroom. "We're Portuguese immigrants. That's why we were convicted."

Jose Medeiros, his eyes reddened by tears, said his friends' conviction "wasn't fair, it wasn't fair at all."

Virgilio Medeiros said he lost two jobs and went into debt during the year it took to bring the case to trial.

"I'm just so messed up," he said. "In one year they did so much to me."

Two women's groups expressed satisfaction with the verdicts. Priscilla Trudeau, head of the New Bedford Rape Crisis Center, which was formed following the Big Dan's incident, said she thought the convictions "may give future rape victims a ray of hope that the system does work in these cases."

"Our criminal justice system may have some flaws, but basically it's a good one," agreed Darlene Wheeler of the Coalition Against Sexist Violence, which represents 13 community organizations in southeastern Massachusetts.

However, Ms. Wheeler said her group was unhappy with the cross-examination of the woman, who the defense argued was a willing participant and lied to save herself embarrassment. She said the group would make recommendations to the state Legislature about laws to protect rape victims.

Scott Charnas, the victim's attorney, said his client felt justice had been done.

The woman, who along with a prosecutor and five jurors is also Portuguese-American, felt the verdicts "should show everyone that this is not or was not a case of a vendetta against Portuguese people — that Portuguese people who the jury found to be guilty were convicted and Portuguese people who the jury found to be innocent were acquitted."

The case "has never revolved around the issue of Portuguese people," he added. "It revolves around the issue of rapists and rape."

However, 5,000 people who marched later Thursday in New Bedford disagreed. The marchers, mostly Portuguese-Americans, carried candles and wore badges reading "Justica Crucificada," Portuguese for "justice crucified."

A larger rally was called for today in Fall River, 12 miles away, where the trials were moved because of heavy publicity. The case was split into two trials because some defendants gave police statements implicating Silva and Vieira, who witnesses said took turns having sex with the woman.

The six men and six women jurors, who had been heavily shielded from learning the results of the earlier trial, refused to discuss their deliberations. But one woman juror, who refused to give her name, said the panel had not been aware that the two other defendants had been convicted.

Workshops Scheduled

Special workshops focusing on mathematics and science competencies will attract about 300 vocational education teachers from North Carolina high schools to the East Carolina University campus during the 1984-85 school year.

The workshops are part of a project sponsored by the ECU School of Home Economics and funded by N.C. State Board of Education grants totaling $39,398. Drs. Vila Rosenfeld and Lilla Holsey of the home economics education faculty will direct the math and science competency projects.

The first phase of the project, development of vocational education materials designed to strengthen students' basic math and science skills, will be carried out by 25 high school and university level teachers from the mathematics, science and vocational education fields.

Upon completion of recommended materials during the late spring, teacher participants will be selected for workshops in the use of the developed materials. Teachers will be specialists in such vocational education fields as consumer and homemaking education, business and office education, and marketing and distributive education, along with teachers of mathematics and science.

To measure the effectiveness of the materials and teaching procedures, the project will conclude with a statistical evaluation next year. Evaluators will include business personnel, students, parents and teachers.

The N.C. Division of Vocational Education will select the participating teachers for the ECU summer workshops.

Thanksgiving Service

Forbes Court of Calanthean will hold its annual anniversary-thanksgiving service Sunday at 2:30 p.m. at the recreation center on Liberty Street in Ayden.

A gospel singing program will be held Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at St. Luke Free Will Baptist Church in the Hilldale community. The Edwards Sisters and The Golden Jubilee will participate.

Sunday Services

Worship services will be held at 11 a.m. Sunday at the Nazarene Church of Christ. At 7:30 p.m., the worship service will be led by the Rev. E.B. Williams and special guests will attend.

Sunday Service

Bishop Matthew Best will conduct a worship service at 11 a.m. Sunday at Oak Grove Church. The Senior Choir and ushers will serve.

Too Costly, So It May Be Gift

NEW YORK (AP) — A catalog of laboratory items that costs $3.5 million to print so that it may be given away free to some 300,000 scientists and educators around the world celebrates its 80th anniversary this year.

The Fisher Catalog was first published in 1904 and was 400 pages long and illustrated with handmade cuts. One of the items listed was a 60-cent device for measuring the percentage of acetic acid in vinegar.

The current catalog, printed by Fisher Scientific Co., is 1,728 pages long, weighs over six pounds and has 4,595 full-color illustrations of some 80,000 products. These items range from a can of pure dry air, retailing for $5.45, to a clinical chemistry analyzer, which costs $79,900.

Artificial Heart Research Seeks Clearance

By DONNA ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer
SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A year after the death of artificial heart recipient Barney Clark, doctors who once hoped to save thousands of dying patients with the plastic organ are still trying to get their program off the critical list.

Still seeking clearance from various regulatory agencies, the researchers are impatiently waiting to do their second implant.

"If we don't get the approval in this country, we'll do it abroad," says the heart's inventor, Dr. Robert Jarvik. "The United States is not going to be the leader in this thing if it sits back and has regulatory mechanisms that take a year between cases."

He believes at least 50,000 people a year could benefit from the artificial heart, but says researchers must perform many implants before they can properly evaluate the device. Once that happens, Jarvik said, the mechanical heart could be available for clinical use at several hospitals within a few years.

Clark, 62, a retired dentist from suburban Seattle, died a year ago Friday after 112 days at the University of Utah Medical Center as the first recipient of a permanent artificial heart.

He had suffered from a degenerative, incurable heart disease called cardiomyopathy and was considered a poor candidate for a heart transplant. After Clark's operation, he grittily insisted the implant was worth it, but he was never able to exchange his hospital room for the quiet life of writing and playing with his grandchildren he had sought.

Instead, his sojourn on the heart was a minefield of repeated surgeries, seizures, severe nosebleeds, pneumonia, emphysema and kidney problems.

The heart's steady, air-driven beats could do nothing to prevent the failure of Clark's other organs and circulatory system that eventually killed him.

Nonetheless, researchers were elated by the heart's performance and predicted that more implants soon would follow. But their request to perform the next operation on a patient with less advanced heart disease has bogged down.

Implant surgeon Dr. William DeVries fumed as the university's federally mandated Institutional Review Board deliberated nine months before deciding Jan. 10 to approve a second implant.

Then the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, after considering DeVries' proposal three weeks longer than the 30 days called for in federal guidelines, last week declined to approve it without more information.

"We're very sure we will get approval in the United States," Jarvik said, because none of the FDA's questions involve fundamental issues. But he said the reviewers have been "very, very slow. There's no reason that it has to be so slow."

The FDA questions could delay a second implant an additional two months or more, said Dr. Richard Lee, coordinator of the heart team and acting dean of the school's College of Medicine.

Lee said the FDA's concerns focus on use of a stronger heart valve, experiments with a portable drive unit and on Clark's medical records. The agency also made suggestions about the patient consent form and had questions about how the IRB reached its decision.

DeVries, who angrily criticized the IRB for taking so long "while patients were dying," has declined comment on the FDA delay.

Dr. Lyle Joyce, who assisted DeVries in replacing the failing ventricles of Clark's natural heart with the Jarvik-7 in a seven-hour operation Dec. 2, 1982, said he is "very optimistic" about the future.

Still, Joyce said, "It's a shame we have gone a whole year now ... It's almost disrespectful to him (Clark) that we haven't done any more implants."

After receiving IRB approval, DeVries began evaluating potential recipients, but now has stopped until the FDA decides.

"The nature of (heart) disease is such that patients don't have very much time. It's quite discouraging when ... they die," Lee said.

DeVries is still conducting training for the heart team and has trained other surgeons in case Joyce, who has moved to Minneapolis, is unavailable.

Clark's widow, Una Loy, says she's "a little disappointed" that the FDA hasn't yet approved a second implant. "I'm dedicated to the artificial heart. I'm very eager to see the program go forward," she said. "It was through no fault of the artificial heart that my husband passed away."

Since Clark's death, the heart has been criticized by researchers who say other scientific advances will make it unnecessary. They also question the practicality of its bulky drive system — although doctors hope to test a portable system in the next implant — and wonder if Clark's implant can be termed a success.

"Nobody would regard Barney's situation as a triumph," Lee said. "I don't think it was a real human achievement. But it's a 206 sal achievement."

The researchers say the university review board's decision to authorize only one more implant, at least for now, places an unfair burden on them and the artificial heart.

If a second patient dies during or shortly after the implant, Joyce said, "it's going to make it a little bit tougher (for the program) to survive."

But he added, "I think it's going to take more than even two or three failures to kill the interest."

Scholarships To Local Winners

CAROLYN PEARSALL

RENA METEYE

Two area high school seniors have been named winners in the National Achievement Scholarship Program for Outstanding Negro Students. Carolyn Pearsall of D.H. Conley High School and Rena Meteye of J.H. Rose High School will receive scholarships.

Miss Pearsall of Route 1, Box 714, Greenville, is the winner of a four-year corporate-sponsored achievement scholarship from Procter and Gamble Corp. At Conley she is active in the National Honor Society, Quiz Bowl Team, Future Business Leaders of America and the Literary Club. She is president of Bi Phy Chem, senior class sergeant-at-arms and participated in all-state band. Her career field is chemistry/medicine.

Corporate-sponsored scholarships are renewable for four years and may total $4,000.

Miss Meteye of 402 Moyewood Drive, Greenville, is the winner of a $1,000 National Achievement Scholarship sponsored by Weyerhaeuser Co. At Rose she received the Woodmen of the World History award, a plaque for American History Proficiency, a trophy in math and placed first-place in the Nu Alpha Fraternity Talent Hunt. She attended the East Carolina University Summer Music Camp and received the Daughters of the American Revolution Good Citizen Award and a Dupont Scholarship.

Achievement Awards are non-renewable. A nominee's academic performance and school recommendation are considered in the selection.

Community Club

The Hillsdale Community Club will meet at the home of Betty Stevenson on Route 4, Greenville, Saturday at 4 p.m.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Ruff and Ready Volunteer Firemen will sell fish and chicken dinners Saturday at 1804-A Conley St. For delivery, call 757-3943.

Omission

An article published Wednesday about a luncheon by the Eastern North Carolina Regional Association of Black Social Workers omitted the site of the luncheon, which will be held from noon to 2 p.m. at the Western Steer restaurant on 10th Street.

The luncheon is in observance of Social Work Month and in support of efforts by the Coalition for Progressive Legislation to develop a legislative lobbying staff.

For reservations or further information call 758-5847, 757-1037 or 757-0549.

Governor's Awards

The Pitt County Wildlife Club and one of its members, Bivian B. Drum of Greenville, were to be presented governor's awards in recognition of their conservation efforts today at the North Carolina Wildlife Federation's annual awards ceremony.

*Drum helped set up the Pitt County Wildlife Club more than 25 years ago and has held every club office.

The Wildlife Club itself, along with the Wake County Wildlife Club, were being recognized as Conservation Organizations of the Year at the awards ceremony. John Williams, president of the Pitt club, said his organization was cited for 19 different projects.

Business Meeting

Nu Alpha Chapter of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity Inc., Greenville area, will hold a business meeting at 7 p.m. Saturday at the home of F.R. Sanders Jr. The meeting is open to all area members.

LOT OF LUMBER

FORT BRAGG, Calif. (AP) — If all the lumber in an average house were placed end to end, it would stretch two miles, according to Georgia-Pacific, a forest products company.

The firm says the typical single-family home requires about 10,000 board feet of lumber. A board foot is the measuring unit of lumber surfaces, equivalent to a one-inch board 12 inches wide and 12 inches long.

SCHOLARSHIP FUNDS DONATION ... Dr. Charles Schwartz, center, dean of the ECU School of Music, accepts a check for $5,400 from Nelson Crisp, newly elected president of the Greenville-based Friends of the ECU School of Music. At right is ECU Chancellor John Howell, who hosted a reception for the Friends Thursday evening. In its two years of existence, the Friends have raised a total of $15,000 for music scholarship awards. (ECU News Bureau Photo by Leslie Todd)

Scholarship Sum Is Given Music School

A donation of $5,400 in scholarship funds and election of new board officers of The Friends of the School of Music, East Carolina University, highlighted the annual business meeting and reception held Thursday evening at the home of Chancellor and Mrs. John M. Howell.

The contribution to scholarship funds was presented to Charles F. Schwartz, dean of the school of music, by Mrs. Nelson Crisp, newly elected president of the organization.

"This gift reflects the organization's efforts this year to emphasize its commitment to continued excellence in the ECU School of Music by raising scholarship funds for talented young musicians," Mrs. Crisp said.

The primary fund-raising event of

The Friends is the annual scholarship gala, which was held this year in January at the Greenville Country Club and featured a performance by the ECU Symphony Orchestra.

Newly elected officers of The Friends, who will serve two-year terms, are: Mrs. Nelson Crisp, president; Carolyn Ipock, programs; Larry Talbert, membership; Mary Ruth Hardy, social events, and Robert Hause, adviser.

Members continuing to serve on the board are Cheryl Taft, publicity; Mrs. Jon Shaw, corresponding secretary; Peggy Shuping, recording secretary; Franceine Rees, newsletter, and advisers Gladys Howell, Dr. Charles E. Stevens and Marilyn Lucht.

Four outgoing officers were recognized for their service to the organization. They were Reid Hooper, president; Camille Gaylord, membership; Candace Dixon, programs, and Herbert Carter, adviser. The four will continue to serve in an adjunct advisory capacity.

Music for Thursday evening's annual meeting and reception was provided by the ECU Chamber Singers and Collegium, under the direction of Dr. Charles W. Moore and Geraldine Laudati.

Set Hearing On Contract Role

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A hearing to review plans to contract out the nautical chartmaking and navigational data-gathering duties of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration will be held April 5, according to Rep. Walter Jones, a Democrat from North Carolina's 1st District.

According to Jones, chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, a 1983 study commissioned by the U.S. Commerce Department, NOAA's parent agency, recommended eliminating the nautical charts branch of NOAA and using private contractors to perform its functions.

Jones said the Coast Guard and Navigation Subcommittee will look at the reliability and efficiency of the NOAA operation; to what extent higher quality service might be obtained by contracting; the availability of qualified private competitors, and whether or not these services should be considered inherently governmental in nature.

If the NOAA operation is contracted out, 140 employees of the nautical cartography branch, and 500 employees each at the Atlantic and Pacific Marine Centers, located in Norfolk, Va., and Seattle, Wash., would lose their jobs.

The hearing will be held beginning at 1 p.m. in room 1334 of the Longworth House Office Building.

A Citizens's Suggestion Box has been placed in the lobby of City Hall. Your ideas and requests will help the City provide the best quality public service.

Driverless Accidents

Greenville police said two collisions involving driverless vehicles Thursday resulted in an estimated $4,300 property damage.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted about 3:34 p.m. when a truck owned by the Greenville Utilities Commission rolled from a parked position in the 100 block of South Summit Street, crossed First Street, then collided with a parked car and a utility pole about 127 feet north of the First Street intersection.

Police placed damage to the parked car, owned by Beverly Ann Barnhill of 101 North Summit St., at $1,500 and set damage to the utility pole at $500. Damage to the truck was estimated at $300.

Investigators said an estimated $2,000 damage resulted to a car owned by William Kirk Smith of Richlands, following a 7:16 p.m. collision in a Village Green Apartments driveway off Heath Street.

Officers said Smith's car, left with its motor running and in gear, and the emergency brake set, rolled from a parked position and collided with a tree, causing an estimated $2,000 damage to the vehicle.

FOCUS

War's Cost

Voters in El Salvador go to the polls this weekend to choose a president. For many years Civil War has torn apart that New Hampshire-sized country. Since 1979, more than 30,000 people have been killed. Three-fourths of those were civilians. A once vital economy has shrunk 25 percent in the past 4 years. Per capita income is now $657 dollars, lowest since the 1960s. El Salvador has suffered more than $600 million dollars in war damage.

DO YOU KNOW - What is the capital of El Salvador?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER - The short-tailed shrew is the only mammal with a poisonous bite.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed lower today as traders warily studied the interest-rate outlook.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 5.23 to 1,150.65 by noontime.

Losers held a 7-5 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Walt Disney Productions rose 7/8 to 62 3/4 in active trading. The stock had been the subject of takeover speculation.

No other issues among the volume leaders showed more than fractional price changes.

The NYSE's composite index dropped .25 to 90.05. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .98 at 209.00.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 36.84 million shares at noontime, against 40.04 million at the same point Thursday.

Overtun Ruling On Deadly Force

BOSTON (AP) — In the first higher court test of the state's 1981 "deadly force" law, the Appeal's Court has ruled that a person in his house has no obligation to retreat from an intruder before attacking. The unanimous ruling by the three-judge panel overturned the manslaughter conviction of John J. Gregory who killed an intruder in his bedroom. Gregory, 22 at the time of the Jan. 20, 1983 conviction, has spent more than a year in jail. Prosecutors could appeal to the state Supreme Court, file for a retrial or drop the charges.

BACK TO STUDIES
SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The government today released 14 student activists from prison and suspended their sentence so they could be readmitted to their universities, the Justice Ministry announced.

Hoosiers Eliminate Carolina, 72-68

By The Associated Press
The Indiana Hoosiers, unranked and an underdog, once again found a Knight in shining armor. And that

Winning Form

Indiana's Steve Alford (12) drives past Matt Doherty (44) and Kenny Smith (30) of North Carolina Thursday during first half action of the NCAA East Regional semifinals at the Omni in Atlanta. The unranked Hoosiers knocked off the top-ranked Tar Heels 72-68. (AP Laserphoto) was enough to pierce the title dreams of No. 1 North Carolina.

Freshman Steve Alford scored 27 points as Indiana, playing the tough man-to-man defense synonymous with Coach Bobby Knight, eliminated the Tar Heels 72-68 Thursday night in an NCAA East Regional semifinal game in Atlanta.

Indiana led 59-47 with 5:36 remaining before missing four straight front ends of one-and-one free-throw opportunities. North Carolina took advantage and pulled within two before Alford took over and sunk six foul shots and Mike Gioni added two more with five seconds left to preserve the victory.

"Our free throw shooting is usually a key to our winning," Alford said. "I think tomorrow we'll be working on it."

The triumph sends Indiana, 22-8, into the East final Saturday against unranked Virginia, which surprised No. 18 Syracuse 63-55 in the opening semifinal game. The winner advances to the Final Four in Seattle.

In the Midwest Regional semifinals Thursday night in Lexington, Ky., sixth-ranked Illinois stopped No. 11 Maryland 72-70 and then No. 3 Kentucky downed Louisville 72-67. Illinois and Kentucky play Saturday for the Midwest crown.

The Midwest and West Regionals are tonight. In the Midwest matchups in St. Louis, fifth-ranked Houston, 29-4, takes on No. 16 Memphis State, 26-6, and then No. 4 DePaul, 27-2, plays No. 19 Wake Forest, 22-8.

In the West games in Los Angeles, Dayton, 20-10, goes against No. 15 Washington, 24-6, while second-ranked Georgetown, 30-3, tangles with No. 13 Nevada-Las Vegas, 29-5.

"I think that as is often the case when things get tight, the big lead was crucial to our win," said Knight, whose team was meeting North Carolina for the first time since beating the Tar Heels in the 1981 NCAA championship game.

"The pressure really gets tough when you start missing free throws down the stretch," he said.

North Carolina, which finished at 28-3, offered no excuses.

"We just had trouble getting things going on offense and they made their shots," said All-American Sam Perkins, who led North Carolina with 26 points.

Said the Tar Heels' other All-American, Michael Jordan, who scored just 13 before fouling out with 1:11 left: "Things just didn't seem to go our way."

And North Carolina Coach Dean Smith said his team did not understate the unranked Hoosiers.

"We have been ranked No. 1 all season and we have smart players who get ready for every game and don't take teams lightly," he said.

The results in the Midwest produced a rematch of an early-season game that saw Kentucky edge Illinois 56-54 on a last-second shot.

Kentucky, playing on its home court, avenged an overtime loss to Louisville in last year's NCAA tournament by pulling away from the Cardinals in the second half.

Guards Jim Master and Dicky Beal scored 15 points apiece for the winning Wildcats, 28-3, while 6-foot-11 forward Melvin Turpin had 14.

Louisville, 24-11, used a scrappy full-court press and took advantage of 12 Kentucky turnovers in taking a 36-32 lead at halftime.

But Kentucky roared back to go ahead 61-53 with 4:36 left to play before Milt Wagner, who had 22, scored four points to key an 8-2 spurt that pulled Louisville within 63-61 with three minutes left.

From there, Master made three of four foul shots and Winston Bennett made two free throws and tipped in Master's only miss.

Lancaster Gordon scored 25 points for Louisville, including 11 straight in the first half.

"We played as well as we can play and we got beat by a good team," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum, whose team was routed by 21 points by Kentucky in Lexington early this season. "But you never know on a neutral floor."

Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall downplayed the fact that the game was played at Rupp Arena.

"That didn't make a difference," Hall said. "Look at the way Louisville played."

Illinois, like Kentucky, fell behind in the first half, opened a lead in the second half and then held on to defeat Maryland.

The 26-4 Illini, the Big Ten champion, trailed by nine points in the first half and 32-30 at intermission before coming back to take an 11-point lead with just 4:33 left in the game. Then Adrian Branch, who led Maryland with 19 points, helped pull the Terrapins within four points with 1:12 left. Maryland scored the game's final basket with one second left.

Hardison's Homer Lifts ECU

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Greg Hardison slapped a two-run home run in the bottom of the sixth inning to rally East Carolina to a 7-5 victory over Ohio University and a sweep of the Bobcats in a doubleheader.

East Carolina romped to a 10-2 win in the opener, behind four-hit pitching by Mike Christopher.

"I was really proud of the way they battled back," Coach Hal Baird said. "They got a little down when they were down 5-0, but they kept their heads up and battled back."

Baird said that he expected the second game to be tougher than the first. "Mike did a good job out there, but in the second game, we were pretty far down in our order, so I wasn't sure what would happen. But the kids showed a lot of poise out there."

"We needed one like this, to be down and fight back and win. We've been in this position before and it's good to know that they know now they can come back on someone."

The first game was put to rest in the second inning when the Pirates broke a 1-1 tie and scored four more runs in chasing starter Pat Rose. ECU took the lead in the first on a sacrifice fly by Winfred Johnson, driving in Steve Sides who had led off with a single. He moved up on a hit batsman and an error.

Ohio tied it up with a homer by Jeff Doles, leading off the top of the second.

ECU then broke it open in the second. Mike Sullivan singled and

Payne Resigns UNCC Position

CHARLOTTE (AP) — North Carolina-Charlotte women's basketball coach Ann Payne resigned Thursday to spend more time with her husband, who is also a collegiate coach, school officials say.

Payne led the 49ers to a 14-13 record in 1982-83 and 21-8 last season with a roster that included nine freshmen and only three returnees. Her eight-year career coaching record is 142-81.

"I have had a tremendous challenge and an exciting opportunity at UNCC and I have enjoyed the process and success we've made over the last two years," Payne said.

"With the Division I and conference expansion and scheduling coming up, I just feel that it would require too much time to maintain and continue the direction we were moving in," she said.

"I had a personal decision and this job was taking too much out of me and my husband," she said. Her husband, Eddie, is head basketball coach at Belmont Abbey.

The 49ers, under the guidance of Payne, made the transition in 1982 from the now defunct Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women to the NCAA Division I.

Only three players have played for an NCAA championship basketball team one season and for the NBA champ the next. They are Bill Russell, Henry Bibby and Magic Johnson.

mound was relayed home, but far overthrown, back into the screen. That allowed both Sullivan and Williams to score. Hardison then singled to drive in Shank and courtesy runner Ricky Nichols for a 5-1 lead.

The Bobcats picked up one in the third. Mark Echstenkamper singled, moving up on a hit by Keith Vrotsos and a walk to Mark Adams. He then scored on a sacrifice fly by Pat Blackburn.

The Pirates picked up four in the fourth. Sides walked, moved up on a single by Hardison and scored on a sacrifice fly by Todd Evans.

Williams provided run number seven in the fifth, hitting a homer to right center. The final three came in the sixth. Evans singled and Chris Bradberry walked as did David Wells. Sullivan singled in Evans. Williams hit a sacrifice fly to bring in Bradberry and a wild pitch brought Wells home.

Johnson, who opened the game at first left in the second after suffering a bruised ankle when he fouled a ball off his leg. He sat out the second game, and Baird said he was hopeful that he would be ready to play on Friday.

Shank led the ECU hitting with three, while Hardison, Evans and Sullivan each had two. No one had more than one for Ohio.

In the second game, it looked like Ohio might be going to get some revenge. The contest was scoreless until the fourth when Ohio scored twice. Rob Livchak walked and Mike Jaworski's sacrifice bunt was thrown away at first. Todd Nuzum singled in Livchak and after another sacrifice, Brian Luce grounded out, scoring Jaworski.

Three more crossed in the fifth, chasing both starter Bob Davidson and reliever Chubby Butler. With one down, Chris Tenoglia and Blackburn both got hits. Butler came on to walk Livchak, and Tom Webb, next on the mound, walked Jaworski, scoring Tenoglia. Webb wild pitched in courtesy runner Brian Ritter, and a hit by Echstenkamper scored Livchak for a 5-0 lead.

Then came the first of two Pirate

Rampants Blast Havelock, 20-5

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

Rose lefthander Mike Kinley struck out 12 Havelock batters and Billy Michel ripped a three-run homer as the Rampants demolished the Rams 20-5 Thursday in high school baseball action at Guy Smith Stadium.

The Rampants jumped on Havelock starting pitcher Danny Clark for five runs, as he exited in the first inning without recording an out. Catcher Eric Woodworth singled in a pair of runs in that rally, but later injured his throwing hand on a foul tip behind the plate.

Kinley scattered six hits by the Rams, with two of Havelock's runs coming on a homer by Tom Mullins in the third. Kinley struck out six of the last seven batters he faced and improved his record to 2-1 on the season, while the Rampants are now 2-1-1.

"I felt like Mike was really throwing the ball well," Rose Coach Ronald Vincent said. "I think he got a little rattled when Eric got hurt and had to leave the game. They picked up a couple of runs off him then, but he got better as the game went on.

"Our hitting was pretty solid, but we got some breaks when we needed them."

Michel finished the day with a pair of hits in five trips to the plate and four runs batted in, while reserve catcher Les Turner went 2-3. Mullins was the only Havelock player with two hits.

Four errors and three walks helped the Rampants score their seven runs in the first, as Rose sent 11 batters to the plate. After a double by Michel drove in the fourth run, Richard Carter took over on the mound for the Rams.

Carter mastered the Rampants in the first meeting between the two teams, which remains the only loss of the year for Rose. But Kinley opened the second with a walk, and Woodworth reached first safely after striking out on a passed ball.

Carter struck out Michel and David Jester, and appeared to be out of the inning unblemished. But Battle Emory ripped a two-run single to ignite another Rose rally. Emory scored on an error in left field on a shot by Tony Taylor, and a two-run single by Marc Nover ended Carter's term on the mound.

Kevin Johnson fared little better when he entered for the Rams, as he retired Traye Fuqua on a grounder to end the second with Rose ahead 12-0.

After Mullins' two-out homer in the top of the third, Carter doubled and later stole third. Eric Storm drew a base on balls and stole second, and Jeff Peay singled in two more runs for Havelock.

Kinley drew another walk to open the third, and Turner followed with a single before Michel's home run blast. An error and a wild pitch allowed Jester and Emory to score two more runs for the Rampants in the third, as they raced out to a 17-4 margin.

The Rampants added their last three runs in the fifth after two outs. Doyle Kirkland, who came in when Nover was injured in the third, singled and scored on a base hit by Ward. Turner drove in Larke Weatherington and Ward for the other two Rampant runs.

"I hope we can continue to hit the ball like that," Vincent said. "I was glad we could get a chance to see some of our younger players in game situations."

Rose hosts Eastern Wayne and Greene Central in a doubleheader Saturday beginning at 1 p.m.

Chargers Storm By Cougars, 16-4

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton ripped 18 hits including a solo homer by Roger Moyer, and Doug Coley struck out nine and scattered three hits as the Chargers pounded SouthWest Edgecombe 16-4 Thursday in their Eastern Carolina 3-A baseball opener.

Coley improved his record to 1-1 with the win and helped himself with a pair of hits for two RBI. Shannon Peede went 3-4 at the plate with a pair of doubles and three RBI, while Terry Garrett knocked in four runs with three hits in five trips to the plate.

Gene Johnson finished the day with three hits including two doubles, with Jackie Conway batting 3-4.

"We got a lot of hits, and they had a lot of breakdowns in the field," A-G Coach Bob Murphrey said. "Things were just going right for us. I was glad to see us start hitting the ball, even if it wasn't the strongest pitching we'll face."

The Chargers got on the board first in the opening frame, as Wesley Hardee reached on an error and scored on a double by Peede. Peede later scored on a misplayed fly ball by Moyer.

A-G added two more in the second. Conway reached on an error, stole second and scored on a single by Hardee. A wild pitch allowed Hardee to advance, and he scored on a single Peede.

In the third, Conway singled, stole second and crossed home on a single by Garrett.

But the Chargers put the game out of reach with two more in the fourth. Moyer led off with a homer, Johnson and Conway singled, and Garrett drove in Johnson with a base hit for a 7-2 Charger lead.

SouthWest posted a pair of wins in the fifth, but Ayden-Grifton came back with five in the bottom of the frame. Hardee reached first on an error, went to second on a passed ball and scored on a single by Coley. Johnson doubled, and Coley scored on an error on a fielder's choice by Andy Swanson. Johnson scored on a single by Conway, and after the runners advanced on a wild pitch, Garrett singled home Swanson and Conway.

Three consecutive doubles helped the Chargers post their final four runs of the day in the sixth.

Ayden-Grifton, now 4-2 on the season, hosts C.B. Aycock Tuesday.

BEAR GRASS — Bear Grass rallied for six runs in the bottom of the sixth inning and took a 10-6 baseball victory over Mattamuskeet in a Tobacco Belt contest yesterday.

The Lakers had taken a 4-0 lead in the top of the first, but the Bears came up with two each in the first and fifth to finally tie it up.

Then, in the sixth, the Bears pushed over six to win it. Billy Fulford singled and Lawrence Watson doubled. A double by Dave Cratt scored both of them. James Lilly singled and Jay Whitley's hit brought both of them home. Larry Shepard walked and Brian Coletrain brought both of them in with a single.

Mattamuskeet rallied for two in the seventh, but fell short.

Watson led the Bear hitting with three, two of them doubles, while Cratt had two hits, both of them doubles. Morgan O'Neal had two hits for Mattamuskeet.

The Bears travel to Bath on Tuesday.

JAMESVILLE — Rusty Holiday hurled a three-hitter at Belhaven yesterday as the Jamesville Bullets took a 9-1 Tobacco Belt baseball victory.

The Bullets took advantage of control problems by Belhaven pitchers to score eight runs in the third inning. Richie Ange, Terry Perry, Kevin Perry, Holiday, Whit Brown and Truman Groover all walked, forcing in three runs. Earl Bowen's grounder got Brown at third but scored Holiday. Matthew Moore scored on a single by Moore but scored Groover. An error also let Bowen score. Ange walked and Terry Perry reached on an error, scoring Hardison. A double steal scored Ange with the eighth run of the frame.

Jamesville added one in the fifth while Belhaven's only run crossed in the sixth.

The Bullets were led by Moore, who had two hits.

Jamesville is now 4-0 in the league and 4-1 overall. The Bullets travel to Columbia on Tuesday.

Ethics In Spotlight

NEW YORK (AP) — "Inside Story," public TV's watchdog on the media, asks a question tonight that is difficult, if not impossible, to answer in general terms:

Was Rita Jensen, a reporter for the Stamford (Conn.) Advocate whose roommate was revealed as underground revolutionary Kathy Boudin, obligated to write about her personal life when Ms. Boudin's identity became known?

Ms. Jensen was fired when she refused to write a first-person account of the three years she and her two daughters lived with Ms. Boudin, for most of the time unaware of her background. Her editors asserted the reporter allowed inaccurate information about her former roommate to appear in the paper.

"The Curious Predicament of Rita Jensen" examines the issue with sensitivity and concern for Ms. Jensen's dilemma. In the end, Dick Oliver, assistant to the editor of The New York Daily News, and Susan Brownmiller, an author and a former reporter for The Village Voice, argue the point to no clear conclusion.

Hodding Carter, chief correspondent for the weekly program, said the story was important, "but I don't think it was one that Rita Jensen owed the public, or should have been required to write — at least, not in the heat of the moment."

"The thing I struggled with for two years," Ms. Jensen said, "is how can you do the right thing and have it turn out so badly?"

Ms. Boudin, meantime, is on trial on charges stemming from a holdup and shootout involving a Brink's armored car. And Ms. Jensen has sued the Advocate for libel and wrongful dismissal.

NOW 36 — Composer Andrew Lloyd Webber celebrated his 36th birthday by launching his latest musical, "Starlight Express", and getting married for the second time. Webber wrote the music for "Jesus Christ Superstar", "Cats", "Evita" and "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Coat". (AP Laserphoto)

Borrowed From A Simple Premise

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer

"People Are Funny," beginning Saturday night on NBC, looks like a cross between Art Linkletter's venerable audience-participation show of the same name and Allen Funt's long-running "Candid Camera."

It's based on a simple premise borrowed from both of the aforementioned TV classics: many people are fairly gullible. Like the original, the new NBC show challenges "contestants" to perform certain stunts with unsuspecting outsiders, and like "Candid Camera," the hidden lens is a prominent prop.

The show is just silly enough to provoke a chuckle now and then, particularly if you like Flip Wilson. Maybe ONLY if you like Flip Wilson.

Wilson attempts to identify 100 show business personalities in the half-hour program. The first star he finds is a fellow he identifies as Mr. T, who's out shopping with Baby T and Mama T. Later, he "finds" Sylvester Stallone, Marlon Brando, Laverne & Shirley, the Andrews Sisters — Patty, Laverne & Shirley.

The original "People Are Funny," first broadcast on radio in 1942, was a television fixture on NBC off and on from 1954 through the spring of 1961.

Linkletter's gentle talent was in getting people to laugh at themselves and the goofy, sometimes slightly embarrassing predicaments cooked up for contestants chosen from the studio audience.

"Candid Camera" was less sensitive; "victims" never were aware they were on camera — until after they had been fooled and frequently humiliated. Somehow, Funt got his unwitting participants to laugh at themselves, too.

In one segment Saturday, a contestant dressed in protective clothing orders pizza delivered to his office — a radiation lab. His challenge: to get the delivery boy to stay in the room for three minutes, despite a flashing red light and siren that seem to threaten imminent danger.

Then there is the ubiquitous man-in-the-street interview: "Who would you least like to see naked?" (Ronald Reagan, twice; Henry Kissinger; Ed Asner; Shelley Winters.) And, "Should the United States withdraw its troops from Provolone?" ("Didn't we already?")

The secret is to affirm the title, "People Are Funny," rather than suggest "People Are Stupid." In that respect, so far, so good.

Divorced After 34 Nagging Years

LONDON (AP) — A security officer who says his nagging wife even monitored the amount of lemonade he drank has been granted a divorce after 34 years of marriage.

Judge Elizabeth Appleby ruled Thursday that Percy Adams had experienced a "particular amount of bother" that was more than he reasonably could be expected to bear.

According to the judge, Gwendoline Adams' careful record-keeping of family grocery purchases and gripes about her husband's snacking also contributed to his high blood pressure.

Thrives On 'Conspiracies'

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer
BUTNER, N.C. (AP) — Larry Flynt rolls into the prison visiting room on a hospital bed, his blondish-red hair awry, his paralyzed legs encased in protective pads, his beard scruffy, his eyes wary.

But when the Hustler skin-magazine publisher begins talking about his conspiracy theories, his eyes light up almost as if he's trying to be outrageous for the sheer fun of it.

"Why is everybody afraid of Larry Flynt?" he said during an interview at the federal prison in Butner. "They know I know the truth."

Flynt is serving a 15-month sentence for contempt of court because he yelled obscenities at a Los Angeles judge during a hearing connected with the cocaine trafficking trial of automaker John Z. De Lorean. He's paralyzed from the waist down from a 1978 shooting he says Georgia politicians ordered because he knew too much.

During a short interview, Flynt spoke in a gruff stage whisper and said:

— That President Reagan was shot in March 1981 by a CIA agent using Hollywood "paint bullets" in an attempt to whip up more opposition to handguns and more support for the death penalty.

— That Reagan "sabotaged" President Carter's attempt to get the American hostages out of Iran.

— That one of the triggermen in Kennedy's assassination has been given a new identity under the federal witness protection program.

— That he, Flynt, threatened on March 14 to kill President Reagan with a "transfusion of AIDS" because it's the only way he can get a court date.

— That he would use that court appearance to screen videotapes he says show slain model Vicki Morgan having sex with Reagan administration officials.

— That if he isn't invited to the Senate confirmation hearings for attorney general nominee Edwin Meese, he would order his press secretary to screen the tapes "on the Senate steps."

— That he has videotapes "that would get De Lorean off the hook."

"In all my 10 years of publishing, I've never lost a libel suit — not one," says Flynt. "If I'm telling all these lies and I've been declared competent (by psychiatrists at Butner), why doesn't somebody sue me?"

Flynt says he is running for president "because I'm wealthy, I'm white, I'm pornographic, and like Reagan I've been shot for what I believe in."

But he says news organizations don't take his campaign or his conspiracy charges seriously because editors either think he is crazy or they are controlled by the CIA.

"You don't build the kind of empire I've built by being a nut," he says, adding that his publishing business is worth "a couple hundred million anyway."

"The world has become bizarre," says Flynt. "It's just one big trick. Every politician in Washington is filthy. And I've got moles all over Capitol Hill because I believe in checkbook journalism. And man, when they give something to me I write it down... You ought to come look through my safe sometime."

Flynt's brother, Jimmy, has filed a petition in a California state court, contending that the publisher is so mentally ill that he is losing his fortune.

"I've left everything I own to the American atheist centers ... that's why my brother's trying to take over," Flynt says. "But since I've been declared competent, nobody can prevent it. And I own 100 percent of my stock, I have no partners..."

Flynt says he wants to leave his fortune to the atheist activists "because I want to further the cause of atheism and free thought in the world. ... As far as I'm concerned, (atheist leader) Madelyn Murray O'Hair is God."

Several years ago, Flynt said he had become a Christian after meeting with evangelist Ruth Carter Stapleton, President Carter's sister.

"The only person I've ever worshipped was my mother. And my best friend was Ruth Carter Stapleton. They're both dead," he says.

Ruth taught me one thing — she taught me to believe in myself," he says. "I think God is within all of us. I'm expounding the same philosophy that Plato and Socrates did, and that is: 'know thyself' is the primary prerequisite for knowing God."

Cherbourg Is Hunting Liberator Bill Tinley

By PAUL TREUTHARDT
Associated Press Writer
CHERBOURG, France (AP) — In the late evening light of June 26, 1944, under fire from a German machine gun, an American soldier raced across an open square to a pillar on the steps of Cherbourg City Hall.

With his covering fire, the three other men from his 39th Infantry Regiment patrol dashed across the square, and together they liberated the city's administrative offices after 1,758 days of German occupation.

In this 40th anniversary year, the city fathers will unveil a tablet beside the pillar, making Bill Tinley's action the symbol of the city's liberation by U.S. forces.

There is just one problem. They can't find Tinley.

The soldier's unit left the city the day after the heroic act, and local authorities now are unable to locate him. His name is known because Raymond Lefevre, then city archivist, spoke with Tinley before he left Cherbourg.

Lefevre's records showed Tinley was a member of the 2nd or 3rd battalion, 39th Infantry Regiment of the 9th Division. The regiment, commanded by Col. Harry G. Flint, landed at Utah Beach on June 11, five days after D-day.

But the records contain no further information nor any photo of Tinley.

The Cherbourg authorities asked local journalist and war historian Paul Ingouf to try to find Tinley, but inquiries to Washington were fruitless. Tinley's military records apparently were among those destroyed in a fire about 10 years ago.

ESTATE DISPUTE
NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The Delhi High Court, acting on an appeal from Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's estranged daughter-in-law, has stayed a lower court order granting Mrs. Gandhi one-third of her deceased son's estate.

Ingouf's newspaper, La Presse de la Manche, has special links to the Americans' heroism. Calling itself La Presse Cherbourgeoise, it was the first newspaper to appear in liberated France. And the first European editions of the U.S. Army newspaper Stars and Stripes were printed on its presses.

The plaque to Tinley will be unveiled at City Hall on June 26, with Gen. J. Lawton Collins, commander of the 7th Army Corps which liberated the whole area, expected to be present. Collins was made an honorary citizen of Cherbourg shortly after the war.

Ingouf said the plaque probably will read: "Bill Tinley reached this spot at 2007 hours on June 26, 1944, and Cherbourg regained its freedom."

But where is Tinley now? Cherbourg wants to know.

DISTRICT COURT DIVISION STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA COUNTY OF PITT ANNIE H. SMITH vs. O. C. SMITH, JR.

NOTICE OF SERVICE OF PROCESS BY PUBLICATION

TO: O. C. SMITH, JR.
 TAKE NOTICE that a pleading seeking relief against you has been filed in the above entitled action. The nature of the relief being asked by the plaintiff is the dissolution of the bonds of matrimony between yourself and plaintiff, and the dissolution of any claims for distribution of marital property.
 You are required to make defense to this pleading not later than April 30, 1984, said date being forty (40) days from the date of the first publication of this notice. Upon your failure to make defense, the party seeking service against you will apply to the court for the relief sought. You are further to take notice that plaintiff will seek this relief on May 14, 1984, at 9:30 a.m. in the District Courtroom of the Pitt County Courthouse.
 This is the 14 day of March, 1984.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MARCH 24, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A very good day to get in touch with those who can aid you in making your vocational interests operate on a more secure structure. Look to romantic aspects of your life.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can go ahead with whatever you left undone in the bustling business world at this time, and get the aid of an expert.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have to deal with those at a distance either by telephone, mail or in person. Increase your income considerably.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle those business matters for which you have little time during work days. Do some practical task for a loved one.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) If you are more cooperative and less emotional with your associates now, you get far better results than usual. A fine day for impressing the influential.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Get your environment beautified with the aid of allies. Strive for more comfort as well.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Go out with persons you like for amusements that are not too expensive, and have a good day. Walk and drive carefully.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Read your newspaper well, and find new ways of making your home more functional and less expensive to maintain.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be very practical in talks with partners. Consult those who understand your position. Keep active.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A good day to get busy making repairs around the house, and you can handle yourself easily. Stay within your budget.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You are fine at organizing and practical in your outlook, so go after what means the most to you. Make a good impression.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get right down to practical affairs, and put aside big ideas for the time being. Be more practical with your closest tie.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have an opportunity to be with practical and clever friends. Go along with them for greater advancement. Have a good time.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be one who will do well in any kind of executive work, so be sure that the education is slanted along lines of big business and administration in order to make the most of such natural talent. Teach to respect others.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

The bidding:

North East South West
Pass Pass 1 ♦ Pass
3 ♦ Pass 6 ♦ Pass
Pass Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♥.

Cats and finesse have something in common. There is more than one way to skin them. Consider this hand.

The bidding was short and to the point. Once North had showed a hand that was just below opening bid strength, South knew where he wanted to play the hand. He wasted no time getting there.

West led the jack of hearts, and declarer devised a reasonable plan. He won in hand and drew trumps in two rounds, ending in dummy. Then he tried the club finesse. That failed and a heart came back, won on the table.

Now declarer tried his next line - a 3-3 club break. Had that materialized, declarer would have been able to discard one of dummy's diamonds on his fourth club, and the slam would have been home.

Unfortunately, clubs were 4-2. However, declarer was not yet done. He crossed to the board with a trump and tried a diamond finesse. Alas, that also failed - down one.

All in all, declarer adopted a line that stood about an 85 percent chance of success. But he could have done even better.

Declarer should ignore the club finesse - if East has the king, declarer can do as well by leading clubs up to his hand twice without finessing. He should win the king of hearts, cash the ace of clubs and cross to the ace of hearts. After ruffing a heart high, declarer should draw two rounds of trumps, ending on the table, and then lead a club toward his hand. If East produces the king, the slam is safe. If East plays low, declarer inserts the queen. Should that win, declarer returns to dummy and leads another club toward his hand.

As the cards lie, the queen of clubs loses to the king, but declarer scores his slam because of his extra chance. West is out of clubs, and he must either lead a diamond into declarer's tenace or else yield a ruff-a-sluff by returning a heart.

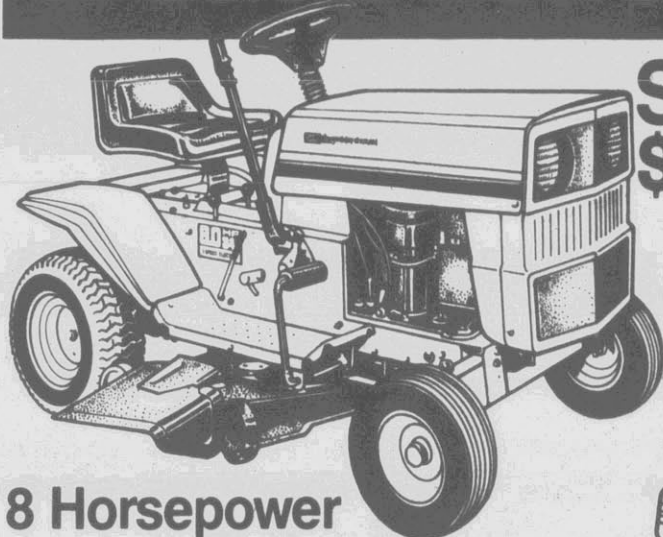

LITTLE KNOWN DISEASE
NEW YORK (AP) - More than 77 percent of American women know nothing about osteoporosis even though the degenerative bone condition affects 5 million women in the nation, according to a recent study by R. H. Bruskin Associates.

Osteoporosis is the progressive thinning and weakening of the skeleton which is often characterized by height loss, hip fractures and spinal compression fractures which may result in "dowager's hump."

According to the National Institute of Health, the disease affects 1 out of 4 women after menopause and is associated with some 200,000 hip fractures that occur annually.
