School Asbestos Fiber Rumors False

BY MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer
There are no asbestos fibers in ceilings at Ayden Elementary School, say county school officials, according to a report by state officials that found none of the potentially harmful material in an early-week inspection of the tornado-damaged facility. Rumors concerning the presence of asbestos at the school are "totally false," school Superintendent Eddie West told the Pitt County Board of Education at a meeting Tuesday.

Ceilings in the building got a clean bill of health, he reported, by a team of inspectors from the North Carolina Division of School Planning and the North Carolina Department of Natural Resources. The inspectors examined ceiling material thought to contain asbestos and told county officials it was "asbestos-free."

According to Assistant Superintendent Tom Craft, a representative of the Environmental and Air Quality Division of the state Department of Natural Resources conducted an "unauthorized" inspection of the school Saturday and "from a visual observation he felt there was asbestos present" in ceiling fibers.

The representative contacted officials in Raleigh, Craft said, and repair on the damaged building was ordered stopped.

Craft said he was contacted Saturday by Pitt County Fire Marshall Bobby Joyner and Ayden Police Chief Tommy Burney and workmen were removed from the school premises.

Craft said he showed officials a letter from Test and Balance Engineers Inc., an independent consulting firm from Charlotte, that stated an inspection of Ayden Elementary in September 1983 by the firm, found "no friable asbestos in Ayden Elementary." Friable refers to easily crumbled asbestos.

Craft said the NCDNR representative felt that, if there was asbestos in the ceiling, "since the

Helms Sees Area Losses

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., saying he wanted to "make sure everything is coordinated," brought a team of federal officials to Greenville Tuesday to give them a first-hand look at the area's tornado damage and how relief activities are progressing.

Helms and his party arrived by Army helicopter at the local disaster assistance center (DAC), which began operations Tuesday at the Pitt County Office Building, after getting an aerial tour of the stricken areas.

The group had left Fort Bragg earlier Tuesday after visiting the Federal Emergency Management Administration (FEMA) headquarters and made stops at Maxton and Mount Olive disaster centers before flying to Greenville.

Mondale Big N.Y. Winner

NEW YORK (AP) — New York loved Walter Mondale beyond his fondest expectations, and the former vice president — insisting the Democratic presidential race remains "very even" — is moving on to Pennsylvania with a formidable delegate lead over Sen. Gary Hart.

Mondale won a New York primary landslide, with an 18 percentage point cushion. Equally surprising was Hart's margin over the Rev. Jesse Jackson — 1 percentage point.

"We have been successful; we've run a good campaign," said an exuberant Jackson, declaring: "Hands that picked cotton will now pick a president."

Hart said the race was only half over and predicted he would "come on strong" the rest of the way.

"I'm not taking anything for granted," Mondale said. "I would guess in Pennsylvania we're about even."

The candidates did not tarry after the New York votes were counted. All were heading to Pennsylvania to begin campaigning for the 172 delegates at stake in next Tuesday's primary.

Hart salvaged something from the day with a victory in Wisconsin's non-binding presidential preference vote. Capitalizing on support from independents and cross-over Republicans, Hart captured 46 percent of the vote compared to 42 percent for Mondale. Jackson had 10 percent. Wisconsin Democrats will begin selecting delegates in caucuses Saturday.

The rough and tumble New York campaign ended on a bitter note as Hart declared that Mondale "got me down to his level ... He won't do that again."

The Colorado senator attributed his New York defeat to "a full month of very, very negative campaigning by Mr. Mondale ... That can work in the short term. It cannot work in the long term."

Hart's campaign manager, Oliver Henkel, said today on the NBC "Today" show that Mondale is the front-runner. "We're the underdog and that's a position, frankly, that we relish," he said.

Hunt Advises Turning To Disaster Assistance HQ

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

"We're here to help people," assistance director Jim Haddad said this morning. He urged everyone directly affected by the tornado last week to go to the Disaster Assistance Center, located at the Pitt County Office Building, today by 5 p.m.

"All the individual agencies will be in their various offices here after we're gone," he said of the disaster team he heads, "but we're a supermarket — a chance to really find out all under one roof what's available. And there's so much available that people may never hear about if they don't come here and inquire. Everything from grants to provide insurance deductibles for rebuilding homes, to farm loans, to immediate unemployment compensation, to Small Business Administration grants for rebuilding businesses, is available. Just ask."

Gov. Jim Hunt, who visited Simpson and other points in Pitt County Tuesday afternoon and evening, also urged local citizens to avail themselves of services. He advised that the federal services be used first, but assured that the state will help where federal assistance leaves off.

"The federal people," Hunt said, "are more experienced than we are. They deal with a number of disasters all across the country every year. Thank goodness, we in North Carolina don't have that kind of experience with such tragedy. This is the worst disaster North Carolina has had in my lifetime, I believe."

Surveying Simpson, with 90 of 120 homes in the town totally or seriously damaged by the tornado which struck March 25, he thanked Mayor Galloway Thompson and other Simpsonians and Pitt Countians on hand for their work in overcoming the disaster. He told Fire Chief Hyman Boyd that assistance will be given for the rebuilding of the Simpson Fire Station already bulldozed to the ground following its demolition by the tornado.

"I've never seen such an outpouring of caring as there's been following this disaster," he commented. "And I want people to know that they must keep on — that the cleanup and the rebuilding are going to go on for a long, long time and their neighbors are going to need support for a long time."

Haddad estimated that representatives of nearly 200 households had visited the disaster center by 10 a.m. today. He said he believes another 50 to 75 will come in today. He said it's now believed that 193 homes in Pitt County were destroyed; 97 received major damage, and 203 received minor damage.

When the disaster assistance office closes at 5 p.m. today, a phone number will be posted on the door, he said. Verifiers will be back in from time to time to see how the cleanup and rebuilding are going.

The governor also visited the disaster center, as did Sen. Jesse Helms earlier in the day.

VOLUNTEERS INVITED

The Pitt County Memorial Hospital Volunteer Office is appealing for participants in the Pitt County Memorial Hospital Volunteer Program.

The teen-agers who take part will have experiences ranging from transporting patients to and from radiology, escorting new patients from admissions to their rooms, and entertaining children who are hospital patients, Volunteer Director Etsil Mason said. Individual talents and interests will be considered in making assignments.

Most will work between two and four hours a week. To be eligible, a teen must be at least 14 years old by Oct. 15, 1983, and be at least a rising ninth grader. Applications may be picked up at the Volunteer Office at the hospital and must be returned no later than June 1. Interviews will begin April 15. Each applicant must provide recommendations from two of his or her teachers. Every participant must complete the day-long orientation program to be held June 19 beginning at 9 a.m.

Alaska's Hot Springs Spa Offers Warmth

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — Visitors to the winter-frozen north are starting to discover Chena Hot Springs, where they can enjoy a soak in 110 F water while watching the chilly world outside their glass-enclosed shelter.

Chena Hot Springs, 60 miles northeast of Fairbanks, is an out-of-the-way, out-in-the-woods health spa that Alaskans have been using for nearly a century but tourists are just discovering.

In the bitter winters at this formerly run-down resort, when a nearby creek freezes right down to its bed, the resulting miniature glacier must be broken up before it crunches over and wrecks the buildings.

Gardening just doesn't pan out because before the broccoli ever has a chance to reach the table, local moose have used the plot as their very own salad bar.

Daiquiris made from wild blueberries are so tattle-tale that an expert can tell from the tint of a drinker's teeth whether he's had just one — or two, or three.

Garbage is trucked 60 miles away to Fairbanks because if the refuse were to be disposed of here it would draw not flies — but bears.

That highway run to Fairbanks, though, is no problem.

It's less than a two-hour drive over an easy road that seven times crosses the Chena River and passes through an un-settled, un-commercialized sub-Arctic Eden of hills brushed with birch, willows, spruce and — in summer — wildflowers.

"Tourists haven't really found out about us yet," explains Roger COTTING, a Fairbanks architect and partner in Chena Hot Springs.

"Four out of every five guests are still Alaskans. The miners knew about Chena Hot Springs more than 80 years ago. They'd come up here — often via dog sled — for their rheumatism and arthritis."

The springs, he adds, must have been a salve for those sore soles: the water comes out of the ground at a sizzling 156 degrees Fahrenheit.

It's now toned down to a more tolerable 110 F in the soaking pools, and to 90 F in the swimming areas.

"When people get off the ski slopes in winter, or finish on the cross-country trails, it's almost ritualistic that they take to the water," says Cotting. "There's something infinitely hedonistic about soaking and swimming when only a few feet away, outside, it can be snowing up a real blizzard."

When Cotting and his associates acquired Chena Hot Springs about eight years ago, the resort was pretty much down at the heels. In fact, some of the cabins had big holes in the floors where moose had wandered in and stomped around for a while.

But now — $3.5 million later — things are different. There are clean and comfortable accommodations for 160 people, some in the main lodge and others in individual cabins. There are two bars and a restaurant.

Cotting has paid special attention to the decor, going to great lengths to acquire Victorian furniture for both the public areas and the guest rooms.

Sorority Receives Attendance Award

Iota Omega Chapter of Alpha Kappa Sorority received the Clarissa Dillard/Zatella Turner Award at the 31st annual Mid-Atlantic Conference held at the Pavilion Convention Center in Virginia Beach, Va. Thursday and Friday.

The award is in recognition of the highest percentage of members attending from a chapter having less than 25 members.

Local members attending were Ella Harris, Helen Harrell, Elaine Harris, Jennifer King-Congleton, Gloria Hines and Jean Carter, president. The total attendance was 940 women.

The conference theme, "Our Diamond Jubilee Promise: Facets of Dynamic Power," was highlighted by the banquet speaker, Dudley Flood, associate state superintendent of North Carolina Schools.

Angela Barwick Celebrates Birthday

Angela Barwick was honored on her sixth birthday at a party held at her home in Winterville. A Cabbage Patch motif was used in decorating.

Special guests were Cassie Bratton, Christine Peng, Beth Chittuna, Kimberly Mallard, Tana Nelson, Jessica Casey and Sara Jane Sondecked.

The honoree was remembered with gifts.

Seat Belts For School Buses Are Important

DEAR ABBY: Who says that there aren't seat belts in school buses?

Federal law requires seat belts in all school vans and minibuses manufactured after April 1, 1977.

Although seat belts are not mandated for larger school buses, any school district that wishes to equip its larger buses with seat belts is free to do so.

In the Greenburgh School District in New York, seat belts have been on large school buses since 1979. Over 80 percent of the children use their belts. Bus drivers report fewer disciplinary problems. And they haven't had a single incident of a seat belt being used as a weapon.

But most important, many children have for the first time started using seat belts in their family cars. They have learned an important safety habit that is reinforced on the school buses twice a day, 183 days a year.

By the way, the letters you recently published gave your readers the false impression that seat belts on school buses are dangerous. Such arguments were discredited years ago.

books are 10 to 20 times heavier. But most important — seat belts do work, and the school years are the best time to form good habits. How can we expect adults to use seat belts to reduce injuries if we don't teach our children to use them on school buses?

ARNOLD W. SIEGEL, AC-CIDENT RESEARCH AND SAFETY ENGINEER, ENCINO, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: My school board, District 72 of Skokie, Ill., recently voted to install seat belts on the four new buses it will purchase for September 1984. These belts will protect our children during lateral collisions, bus rollovers and sudden stops. We wish to present a consistent message to our children: Buckle up for safety in all motor vehicles!

Teaching At Home Pursued

Well Enough Alone

Mother Earth has so many headaches of its own we can only marvel some of her habitants are combing the heavens for radio signals from galactic civilizations.

The locals may be inviting more trouble than they want.

On the other hand, Heaven help any extraterrestrials so unwary as to be contaminated with Terra's problems!

Harvard's Professor Paul Horowitz has been listening for a year on a very powerful radio telescope that is scanning the heavens for a signal — any kind of signal — from intelligent beings of other worlds. Horowitz believes they do exist, and he is not alone. Logic almost demands it.

The obstacle (and perhaps humanity's blessing) lies in the unimaginable distances involved ... light years. Scores of them; hundreds of them, thousands of them. (We've never stayed awake all night worrying about it.)

The Creator knew what He was doing with the imposition of thus far impassable barriers between his specimens. We can't even get along with each other. Can you imagine the odds against "getting along" with creatures even more foreign than those to be found on our own planet?

Local Talent

Dr. James B. Hemby, Jr. is to be inaugurated as president of Atlantic Christian College on April 14.

Dr. Hemby will be taking the helm of one of the Southeast's finest church-related colleges, one which has played an important role in the education of eastern North Carolina citizens.

Dr. Hemby, himself, illustrates that point. He is an Ayden native who graduated from Atlantic Christian College in 1955. He also holds degrees from Vanderbilt University Divinity School and Texas Christian University. He returned to ACC in 1965.

Dr. Hemby will be assuming an important position in higher education as president of ACC. It is encouraging that a Pitt County youth who went on to higher education at Atlantic Christian College can now become the president of the institution. It tells us that we do, indeed, have talented people in eastern North Carolina.

—John Cunniff—

Taking A Chance

NEW YORK (AP) — Back in the early 1970s a young man from Salt Lake City struck a sensitive nerve in millions of Americans who found themselves strapped and frustrated in the battle to make ends meet.

Mark O. Haroldsen, who earlier had written nothing but a few letters, sat down and typed out a book on how he rose from the ranks of the jobless to make a million dollars in real estate using other people's money.

Readers identified with the author and the simplicity and directness of his message: borrow money, risk it on a house that could be fixed up, sell or rent the house, reinvest the proceeds.

He did more than just write the book, "How To Wake Up The Financial Genius Inside You." He published, advertised and distributed it by mail at $10. He sold 1.35 million copies, and Bantam Books sold another 350,000 in paperback.

Then, having developed a data base of names and addresses of people who wanted to make something of themselves, he produced a magazine, The Financial Freedom Report. This year he hopes circulation will reach 100,000.

Many things followed: formation of The National Institute of Financial Planning, a tax newsletter, another book, "Goals, Guts and Greatness," and seminars, hundreds of them, around the world.

And now another book, "The Courage To Be Rich," just published by G.P. Putnam's Sons, in which, said Haroldsen, "I talk about new discoveries and things that were left out or not emphasized in the other books."

The message, however, is the same, right from the very first paragraph:

"If you, like most people, spend your time worrying about next month's bills and only dream about a life of financial security, Mark Haroldsen has something to say to you: Stop worrying and get rich. All you need is courage."

As it turns out you do need more, but Haroldsen seeks to assure readers that the rest follows. It did for him. Be yourself, do your own thinking, trust your talent, take the plunge.

"Courage is going against the odds, against popular opinion," he says. "It's doing what most people are unwilling to do because of the criticism and flack they know they will receive from family, friends, or even strangers."

These are his keys:

1. Everyone is going to die some day, so you might as well really go for it. Don't be afraid of making a fool of yourself.

2. Guts are not for sale; only you can supply them.

3. Don't be afraid to ask questions even if you think they sound dumb. That's how you learn.

4. Use other people's money. Always, always, always ask the seller to carry the financing on whatever asset you're buying.

5. Seek out and find motivated sellers, people who want to sell something so badly they are desperate.

6. Earn big bucks by purchasing the "yulks." Find property that nobody else wants; that's where the money is.

7. Use the tax laws to cut your taxes to zero.

8. Success in anything is a numbers game: Do it enough times and you will become good at it; do it a bunch more times and you will become famous.

RALEIGH — A group of parents who want the right to educate their children at home is organizing in North Carolina.

"North Carolinians for Home Education" has conducted two meetings, one in Concord, the other in Monroe, and plans other meetings around the state in coming months. The group hopes to have enough public support to persuade the 1985 General Assembly to pass legislation creating a home education program in the state.

The Rev. Terry E. Manahan, pastor of Faith Bible Church near Wingate and the father of two preschool children, is leading the movement. In a telephone interview, he said he has been in contact with 170 North Carolina families who have expressed interest in home education. The families were put in touch with Manahan by a Washington state-based foundation which advocates home education.

Manahan says that 38 states allow home education in some form. In North Carolina, the fight over home education has been waged in the courts. A Dare County couple won their case for home education at the federal district court level but lost that on appeal to the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond. A Harnett County couple won in state Superior Court but lost before the N.C. Court of Appeals and now has their case pending before the N.C. Supreme Court.

The home education advocates would appear to have an uphill battle on their hands. They're currently searching around for a legislator who'll lead their charge and they've got their group members canvassing legislators for support. Two knowledgeable sources on the question, one a supporter and another an opponent of home education, doubt they'll have much luck.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Craig Phillips, an opponent, said home education would have "very little support" in the 1985 General Assembly. "I don't think it will be a major issue," he added.

Tom Strickland of Goldsboro, a lobbyist for the state's Christian schools, supports home education and is the lawyer for the Harnett County parents who have a case before the Supreme Court. But he, too, is not optimistic. "Passage would be very doubtful. The education establishment is really fired up over any little thing, even if one parent wants to educate his child at home."

Strickland recalled the difficulty his schools had in having themselves exempted from state regulation in 1979. At that time, Strickland had the lobbying force of 325 schools behind him. Manahan concedes that home education would never be as popular as Christian schools and that the number of families seeking the right to educate at home probably would not include any more than 3 percent of the population. That's hardly the kind of numbers, Strickland noted, to fight public school opposition.

Manahan doesn't kid himself about this being an easy fight. As does Strickland, he sees the public schools trying to protect their own turf. "The bottom line is: 'Are they afraid that they'll be poor quality education, or are they afraid that they'll lose control?'"

But he argues that home education wouldn't hurt the public schools. If anything, it would hurt private schools, he said. Public schools would continue to get their tax money. Private schools might find that some parents prefer to teach their children at home and not pay tuition.

Strickland said he doubted that the Christian schools would feel threatened by home education. But he said he suspected that a concerted home education drive could hurt the Christian schools indirectly. Such a drive used by the education establishment could re-open the question of Christian school's autonomy and "cause us problems."

Per Capita Returns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Virginia got more back from the federal government on a per capita basis than any other state last year, but North Carolina ranked last in the country in the same category, a Census Bureau study shows.

Virginia received $4,503 for every man, woman and child in the state in fiscal 1983 in grants to state and local governments, salaries and wages, direct payments to individuals, procurement and other programs.

But the state on its southern border — North Carolina — got less than half of that total, $2,114 per capita, the figures released last week by bureau Director John Keane show.

Florida ranked second best in the South and 12th best in the nation with $3,047 per capita. Mississippi was 13th nationally with $2,978 and Tennessee ranked fourth in the region, 21st in the nation, with $2,757.

Alabama was next, 24th nationally, with $2,717. Georgia was 29th with $2,580, and South Carolina ranked 32nd with $2,547.

In overall money received from the federal government, Florida ranked first in the region and fifth in the country, taking in $32.5 billion. Virginia was second in the South, eighth in the nation with $25 billion. Georgia got $14.8 billion, Tennessee $12.9 billion, North Carolina $12.9 billion, Alabama $10.8 billion, South Carolina $8.3 billion and Mississippi $7.7 billion.

Overall, the government provided the states with $696.8 billion, or $2,939 per person.

That broke down to $92.7 billion in grants to state and local governments, $102.6 billion in salaries and wages, $325.9 billion in direct payments to individuals, $158.9 billion for procurement and $16.6 billion in other programs.

Florida led the South in grants to state and local governments, $2.8 billion last year. Mississippi was last, $1.1 billion.

Virginia, with its concentration of federal offices in the Washington suburbs, led the South in federal wages and salaries, $7.2 billion in fiscal 1983. Mississippi ranked the lowest, with $961 million.

On a per capita basis, the federal government paid $30.69 to Mississippi for child nutrition programs, tops in the South. Virginia ranked last in that category, $10.63.

South Carolina ranked first in Department of Education compensatory education funds for the disadvantaged, taking in $29.76 per capita. Georgia ranked last, getting just $3.53.

North Carolina was highest in Environmental Protection Agency funds for construction of wastewater treatment facilities, $12.67 per capita. Florida was last with $6.99.

Mississippi ranked first in Medicaid funds ($92.65 per capita). Georgia was the leader in Aid to Families with Dependent Children, $24.38. Alabama ranked first in community development funds ($14.46), while Tennessee was the leader in low-rent public housing funds, $26.99 per capita.

Something Fishy Down Below

I am not one of those taxpayers who is always complaining about the defense budget. I believe the people in the Pentagon know what they're doing, and if they make a billion-dollar mistake here and a billion-dollar mistake there, I think I'm still getting an awful good buy for my dollar.

But every once in a while, even my patience is tested. I lost my cool the other day when a Soviet attack submarine managed to get right underneath the U.S. carrier Kitty Hawk, causing damage to both vessels. It wasn't the cost of the accident that bothered me, but the fact that the carrier didn't know the Russian submarine was there.

"How could this be?" I asked myself quizzically, as I filled out my 1983 tax return. To get an answer I called a friend at the Pentagon and said, "Look, I've been footing the bill for all sorts of fancy anti-submarine doodads for our ships and planes, and I've taken your word for it that an American aircraft carrier is invulnerable from attack at sea. So how could a Russian submarine get underneath one without our captain knowing about it?"

"That's top secret information," he told me.

"Don't give me that," I said. "What happened to all the support ships that I was charged for to protect the flattop?"

"They weren't near the carrier when it happened."

"Why not?" I asked.

"They were out looking for the Russian submarine. You see, we knew there was a sub in the area, but we lost contact with her. Since we didn't know where she was, we decided to take the carrier out of harm's way. Unfortunately, no one knew the submarine was right under the carrier."

"Doesn't the carrier have sonar on board to detect when there is a submarine underneath her?"

"It does and it doesn't. It has airplanes on board that have the ability to spot a submarine underwater."

"So where were the airplanes?"

"They were on the deck of the carrier. It's not the job of a carrier to protect itself. We have cruisers, destroyers and attack submarines with billions of dollars' worth of sensitive equipment to make sure that an enemy sub doesn't get within attacking distance of the carrier."

"But they missed this one."

"It's our belief the Soviet submarine was lost and didn't even know it was underneath the carrier. It proves their equipment doesn't work any better than ours."

"Are your Navy people rethinking the vulnerability of a carrier in wartime after this incident? After all, they cost me $3.5 billion apiece."

"On the contrary, we're going full speed ahead with our carrier

To the editor:

The relatives call from Wisconsin and New York. They have learned about the tornadoes on national TV news. Their anxious question, "Are you all right?" is redundant. That the phone call goes through, that they hear our voices, tells them what they need to know.

But how are we to answer? The tornado disaster has thrown into relief the fact that our identities span beyond the individual lives and possessions, that at some deep level we are not just ourselves but the place that bears us and the community in which we live.

"No," we tell the long distance wires, "we are not all right. Our house may stand, but we have been hit."

program. The only thing we may have to do is ask for more money to build extra ships to protect them. Also we're going to design better anti-submarine helicopters and more sophisticated aircraft to detect the subs."

"How much is that going to cost me?"

"If you have to ask, you can't afford it."

"Look, I went along with you people when you took the U.S.S. New Jersey out of mothballs for $1 billion. You said with its firepower it would become the dreadnought of the seas. When it was stationed off Lebanon the only thing it did was flatten two Druze villages and kill 500 sheep. I don't think I'm getting enough bang for my buck."

"You sound as if you're on THEIR side."

"I'm not on the Soviets' side," I said angrily.

"I'm not talking about the Soviets — I'm talking about the U.S. Air Force. They'd love to whittle down our budget so they could get more land-based airplanes for themselves, and people like you are giving them aid and comfort."

"I don't want to take sides between the Navy and the Air Force, but I have budgeted so many tax dollars to spend on defense, and I don't believe it's too much to ask that when you spend $17 billion to protect one $3.5 billion carrier, that you people know when a Soviet submarine is floating under it."

He sounded hurt. "Nobody's perfect."

OK Loan Application For Farmville

By CAROL TYLER
Reflector Staff Writer

Farmville Commissioners voted Tuesday night to authorize the town administrator to file an application for a Community Development Block Grant which would provide housing rehabilitation, street improvements and water improvements in an area bounded by Humphrey, Williams, Bennett and Main streets.

Plans for a town gymnasium previously included were scrapped, with the money designated for that purpose added to street, water and drainage projects. The total estimated cost would be $750,000.

After some discussion, it was voted to name the new community center Farmville Community Center, denoting the intention for it to serve the whole community.

A public hearing was set for May 1 to consider a zoning amendment relating to the zoning of body repair shops and antique sales or flea markets.

The Farmville Rescue Squad was authorized to retain a 1976 Dodge truck as a spare vehicle and to purchase a hand-held radio, two pagers and two pager chargers. It was noted that the squad is now up to 34 members. The commissioners commended the squad for its service to Farmville-area citizens.

An ordinance was adopted prohibiting the use of barbed wire "or other dangerous fences" inside the corporate limits. It was noted in the ordinance that chain link fences six feet or higher with barbed wire along the top are excluded.

The purchase of a utility trailer for the utilities department from Waller Tractor Co. at a cost of $4,197 was approved.

Shackleford, Gatewood, Woolard and Prescott CPAs of Kinston were awarded a contract for auditing the town's financial records. The cost will be not more than $4,250.

Authorization was given for the filling of a temporary position in the town finance department.

A resolution was adopted supporting congressional action to restore immunity from antitrust lawsuits to cities.

It was voted to deny Alex Allen's request for water-sewer extension to Davis heirs property on U.S. 264. It was pointed out to Allen that at any time he or someone buying or leasing submits a development plan for either piece of property in question, the matter would be reconsidered, following town policy. His request to have the service extended at town expense with no plans under way violates policy, the commissioners indicated.

The retaining of services of the East Carolina University Regional Development Institute to help develop a master recreation plan at a cost not to exceed $2,700 was approved.

It was noted that the town has received an improved fire code rating which will entitle citizens to lower fire insurance costs. It was pointed out that these reductions will have to be requested by each policyholder.

A citizen, Dave Davis, asked that the town appoint a committee to study getting dogs off the streets. The mayor denied his request, saying he knows that a countywide leash law is not being considered at this time.

Accidents Reported

Damages totaling approximately $4,000 occurred in a series of wrecks investigated Tuesday by Greenville police. No personal injuries were reported.

Officers said Michael Sosa of 6432 Kincross Ave., Fayetteville, was charged with a safe movement violation following an accident reported at 8:55 a.m. on Charles Street 350 feet south from Red Banks Road. Police said the accident involved Sosa's car and a vehicle operated by Adrian D. Adams Jr. of 1621 Berkley Road. Damage was estimated at $1,000 to the Sosa vehicle.

Wayne Anthony Mallard III of 103 King George Road was charged with a safe movement violation following a 7:30 p.m. wreck at the intersection of South Charles Street and Red Banks Road. Police said the mishap, which involved vehicles operated by Mallard and Clay Matthew Burnett of East Third Street, Ayden, resulted in damages estimated at $500 to each vehicle.

A vehicle operated by William Allen Taylor Jr. of Route 1, Winterville, sustained damages estimated at $800 when it collided with a utility pole on Memorial Drive 500 feet north from Country Club Drive. The 9:10 p.m. accident resulted in damages to the Greenville Utilities-owned pole of $200.

Police charged Timothy Franklin Bogenn of Route 9, Greenville, with a safe movement violation following a 4:32 p.m. wreck on Arlington Boulevard at the entrance to Greenville Square. The mishap involved vehicles operated by Bogenn and Patricia Diane Byrd of 507 Barnwell St., Thomasville. Damages were estimated at $300 to each vehicle.

A 3:46 p.m. accident on Evans Street 254 feet south from Deck Street involved vehicles operated by Clara Robinson Carr of Route 2, Winterville, and Ernest Marshall of 1001 E. Third St. Damages were set at $400 to the Marshall car and $200 to the Carr vehicle.

Yale University Strike Dropped

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — A strike set for today by Yale University's clerical and technical workers was called off when union members overwhelmingly accepted an interim agreement, union officials said.

Local 34 of the Federation of University Employees voted 906-353 Tuesday to accept a pact that requires workers who do not join the union to pay the equivalent of union dues and preserves the right to strike. But the agreement contained no salary or benefit settlement.

Beirut Police Now Hold Checkpoint At Crossing

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Police regained full control of the only crossing between Beirut's Moslem and Christian sectors today after a two-hour confrontation with Shiite Moslem militiamen.

Fighters from the Amal militia took over the checkpoint at the entrance to Moslem west Beirut after a rumor spread that rival Christian militiamen forced police out of the position on the opposite side of the museum crossing, on the "green line" dividing the city.

Witnesses said the police pulled out of the checkpoint as the Amal members arrived with Kalashnikov rifles shortly after 8 a.m.

At midmorning, high-ranking police officers arrived and negotiated with an Amal official, Hassan Yateem. After a few minutes of talk, the militiamen began to drift away and the police again took up their posts.

The "neutralization" of the museum crossing, announced four days ago, is considered the only significant achievement thus far of the Higher Security-Political Committee working under President Amin Gemayel for the past week. The committee is seeking to defuse tensions on Lebanon's civil war fronts, including the green line.

The state radio carried a report today by the privately owned Central News Agency which said Gemayel plans to visit Damascus next week for talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad. The stations said the talks, if held, would focus on ways to stabilize a cease-fire in Lebanon and on formation of a coalition cabinet to carry out political reforms.

The incident at the museum crossing occurred a few hours before the security committee was to resume deliberations at Gemayel's presidential palace on disengaging combatants along the green line, in the southern suburbs and in the mountaintop town of Souk el-Gharb.

Local newspapers and radio stations said the rival factions have agreed to a disengagement plan requiring a pullback of between 300 to 700 yards on each side of the green line and along frontlines in the capital's southern outskirts.

One sticking point, the reports said, is the army's refusal to pull back from its current lines in Souk el-Gharb, the strategic town that forms the mountain gate to the Gemayel's presidential palace in suburban Baabda and the Defense Ministry in neighboring Yarze.

A rebel leader in Baissour told The Associated Press that 1,000 Druse fighters were ready to attack nearby Souk el-Gharb "with the support of 50 tanks" if peace talks fail to produce a genuine cease-fire. The officer identified himself as Abu Zahra.

In Tel Aviv, the Israeli army announced that Gen. Antoine Lahd would be sworn in today as commander of the Israeli-backed militia founded by the late Maj. Saad Haddad, who died Jan. 14 of cancer.

The appointment of Lahd, 55, a Christian who retired last year from the Lebanese army, was seen as an bid to legitimize the 1,300-member Christian-dominated militia in south Lebanon.

The Israeli military Tuesday emphatically denied a report that Israeli soldiers were killed in an attack in southern Lebanon. The report — apparently carried on the radio station operated in Beirut by the Mourabitoun, a Sunni Moslem militia — was not carried by other Beirut media. The station is not considered reliable.

Minor Injuries In Bus Accident

HIGH POINT (AP) — Five grammar school students were slightly injured on Tuesday morning when their school bus was rear-ended by a truck, authorities said.

The students were treated and released from High Point Memorial Hospital following the 7:50 a.m. accident, High Point police said.

Authorities said the school bus was stopped at an intersection when it was hit by the truck's cherry picker boom.

Work To Restore Benefits

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Social Security Administration officials are working to comply with a federal court order which is expected to affect nearly half of the 15,000 North Carolinians who lost their disability payments.

In an order last Tuesday, Judge James B. McMillan of Charlotte said Social Security must restore disability benefits to two classes of people dropped from the rolls over the past three years.

North Carolinians whose benefits were cut after Oct. 6, 1982, now can ask Social Security to reopen their cases if they have shown no improvement in their medical condition since they began receiving benefits.

McMillan also ruled that Social Security must re-evaluate cases, dating back to Sept. 10, 1981, of people denied benefits because they had no evidence to support claims of pain, diabetes or hypertension.

The order also requires Social Security to publicize the re-opening of those cases and mail notices to all those affected.

McMillan ordered Social Security to advertise immediately in newspapers and post notices at its offices and in county departments of social services inviting people in the two categories to reapply for benefits.

Jim Brown, a public relations spokesman at Social Security's headquarters in Baltimore, said Tuesday that the administration plans will comply with the order until a decision is reached on whether to appeal to a higher court. Any appeal of the order must be filed within 60 days.

Disabled people who feel they fit into the categories can ask that their benefits be restored at local Social Security offices, he said.

Brown said local offices will be sent instructions soon on dealing with the expected rush of people reapplying for benefits.

"This is fantastic," said Donna Montgomery, head of the N.C. Alliance of Social Security Disability Recipients. "We know a lot of people who are not covered by (Gov. Jim) Hunt's moratorium (on benefit cutoffs) whose cases can now be reopened."

In September, Hunt declared a indefinite freeze on disability benefits cutoffs in this state, holding more than 2,000 cases in review until Congress changes the Social Security ty guidelines that began the purge in 1981. But the freeze only affected people who were appealing benefits lost last year. McMillan's order opens the door for a larger group of people to reapply for benefits.

Sentence Is Upset By Court

RALEIGH (AP) — The death sentence of a Burke County man convicted of first degree murder in the shooting death of driver who did not make a turn quickly enough was overturned by the North Carolina Supreme Court.

The court said Tuesday there was not enough evidence to believe that William Dennis Moose's crime was especially heinous and cruel. It said the jury should not have considered that as an aggravating factor when sentencing Moose, and the case was returned to Superior Court for resentencing.

Moose was convicted of first degree murder in the shooting death of Ransom Connelly on March 26, 1982. Moose was reportedly traveling with two friends in a pickup truck, and followed Connelly's car for some distance. There was testimony that Moose honked his horn and bumped the rear of Connelly's car.

Connelly and his passenger, Phillip Kincaid, eventually pulled off the road into a parking lot. Moose was confided of pulling up beside Connelly, pointing a shotgun in the window for about five seconds and shooting Connelly in the head.

Moose said he became irritated when Connelly took too long to turn but he denied pointing a gun at Connelly and said he did not know anyone had been shot until his arrest.

"It seems that although there was a considerable amount of 'wondering' about the intentions of their pursuer... there is no evidence that either Kincaid or Connelly believed that the ultimate result of the pursuit would be death, at least not until the shotgun appeared," wrote Justice Louis Meyer in his opinion.

But Justice Harry Martin, joined by William Copeland and Burley Mitchell, wrote that the murder was racially motivated. Connelly was a 62-year-old black traveling through a white community late at night. Moose is white.

"Just as the hunter stalks his frightened and cornered prey, defendant stalked Connelly for the kill," he said.

The court unanimously rejected Moose's argument that evidence did not support the aggravating factor that he "knowingly created a great risk of death to more than one person by means of a weapon or device which would normally be hazardous to the lives of more than one person."

The court in its ruling defined the aggravating circumstance for the first time.

It said that when a shotgun is fired at close range into the passenger compartment of a car, the risk is death as well as injury. The court said the law focuses on the destructive power of the weapon and Moose used a weapon known for its "widespread destructive power in close places or at close range."

Interest Rates

RALEIGH — Larry W. Godwin of the North Carolina Farmers Home Administration has announced the agency's interest rates for community program loans effective April 1.

He said the interest rate for community facility and water waste loans will increase from 9.50 percent to 9.625 percent, based on the current market yields for municipal obligations.

The intermediate rate for communities of moderately less than average means remains at 7.25 percent, while the rate for lower income communities remains at 5 percent.

Bank Executive

NCNB National Bank has announced the appointment of Edgar W. (Ed) Kirby III as vice president and city executive in Greenville.

Kirby succeeds Larry Mallard, who was earlier named city executive for NCNB's Chapel Hill office.

ED KIRBY

Born in Charlottesville, Va., Kirby received his bachelor's degree from the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg, Va., and earned his master's degree from the University of Virginia. He has attended the Stonier School of Banking.

A Navy veteran, Kirby has been in banking for approximately 14 years. He was Kinston city executive with Bank of North Carolina in 1977-78 and was city executive in Raleigh with BNC from 1979 to 1982. Kirby was senior loan officer with NCNB National Bank before receiving the Greenville appointment.

The new city executive and his wife, Jamie, have two children, Anna, 8, and Will, 5.

Bands Cited

Two Greenville school bands, the Aycock Junior High Symphonic Band and the Greenville Elementary Honors Band, each received a grade of superior recently. The bands won the ratings in the North Carolina State Music Contest Festivals held March 24 at Beddingfield High School in Wilson.

Dottie J. Knight directs the Elementary Band, and Chuck Allen directs the Symphonic Band.

This marks the first time either school had taken a band to a competition. Each participating band performed three numbers as the basis of grading by the adjudicators.

Airline Reports Record Traffic

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A record-number of passengers road Piedmont Airlines in March, a month that saw the airlines break three records, company officials say.

Some 1,202,999 passengers flew on Piedmont last month, a 28.6 percent jump from last March, officials said.

The airline also offered a record capacity of 921.5 million available seat miles, an increase of 25.4 percent from last year, officials said in a news release Tuesday.

An available seat mile represents one seat mile flown one mile.

Scholarship Winner

Ragan Sutton Spain of Winterville, a senior at D.H. Conley High School, has received a presidential scholarship from Campbell University in the amount of $8,800, to be awarded on the basis of $2,200 each year.

RAGAN SUTTON SPAIN

Spain has been active in both school and community activities. For three years he has been a member of the National Honor society, Mu Alpha Theta and the Literary Club. He served for two years on the Student Council Association, four years as a member of the Math Team, and three years on the Quiz Bowl Team.

He has been on the Yearbook staff and has taken part in a number of East Carolina University honors program. Spain attended Governor's School, was chief marshal, and has been active in all four years at Conley in theatrical and choral activities.

A member of Winterville Baptist Church, his church and community involvement includes singing in the church choir and chairman of the church's youth council, and membership in the Greenville Choral Society and the Winterville Ruritan Club.

Benefit Festival

A festival of gourmet selections under the title "Eat Your Art Out," will be presented Friday and Saturday at Carolina East Mall as a benefit affair for the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council. The eat-out will take place from 9 to 4 p.m. on Friday, and again from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Saturday.

Specialties being offered include Southern and international foods ranging from croissants and baked goods to candies, coffee and tea, as well as a selection of green and flowering plants.

Plant Sale

The East Carolina University Biology Club will hold a plant sale Thursday and Friday from 7:30 a.m.-1 p.m. at the biology greenhouse, room S-111, on the ECU campus. Various types of plants will be available for sale to the public.

Awards Presented

Local winners of the 1984 North Carolina Children's Dental Health Month Contest were presented awards recently at the Pitt County Health Department. Special guest was state Rep. Walter B. Jones Jr.

First place winners were Belvoir and Falkland schools; second place winner was South Greenville School and third place winner was W.H. Robinson School. First place winners shared a $50 prize and a plaque, while the others received trophies.

Receiving certificates of recognition were The Daily Reflector, WNCT-TV, Greenville Cable TV, Dr. Jasper Lewis and Dorothy Hamill and the staff of Wellcome Middle School.

Honors Band

Five students in the Greenville schools have qualified for the Honors Band in North Carolina. Four are from Rose High — Celeste Pickett, flute; Chris Love, trumpet; Bruce Thompson, trombone; and Lewis Roberson, percussion. The fifth to qualify is Cari Smith, clarinet, from Aycock Junior High.

They will take part in the Honors Clinic to be held at North Carolina State University April 27-29. Only the top chairs in each of the six All-District Bands are eligible to audition on the state level.

Stereo Taken

Police are investigating a breaking, entering and larceny reported Sunday night at Thomas Mobile Homes, 1318 N. Memorial Drive, that resulted in the theft of a wall-mounted stereo system.

Officer J.R. Teel Jr. said David Thomas Ward reported the theft of the equipment, valued at $175, from a mobile home on the sales lot. The incident was reported at 6:50 p.m.

Countdown On Schedule For Shuttle Launch

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The countdown began right on schedule today for the 11th space shuttle flight, an important mission in which astronauts for the first time will try to capture and repair a disabled satellite.

"The satellite is up there, all ready for us to go get it," rookie astronaut George Nelson told reporters Tuesday after the five-man crew arrived in Florida for Friday's liftoff.
Nelson has the risky assignment of flying free of the orbiting shuttle Challenger and maneuvering 300 feet with a jet-powered back pack to reach the disabled satellite Solar Max.

He is to dock with the satellite on Sunday and use his jets to stop slight wobbling and spinning motions so it can be brought into the ship's cargo bay, which will serve as an orbiting garage.

There the crew hopes to replace a faulty control system that prevents Solar Max from pointing precisely at the sun to study flares and other solar phenomena.

Success would salvage a payload that cost $77 million to build and launch four years ago. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration estimates it would cost $235 million for a new Solar Max, compared with a $48 million price for the repair job.

Not only would the astronauts restore a useful scientific observatory, but they also would begin the age of orbital repair. NASA has a list of orbiting satellites that are candidates for retrieval, including two communications satellites injected into the wrong orbits on the last shuttle flight in February because their booster rockets failed.

Test conductor Andy Browne began the countdown promptly at 3 a.m. EST today with a "call to stations" that summoned more than 50 engineers and technicians to the control center three miles from the launch pad. Liftoff is set for 8:59 a.m. Friday.

After six days in orbit, Challenger is to land back at Cape Canaveral on April 12.

Commanding the flight is veteran Robert Crippen, making his third shuttle trip. Other crewmen, all rookies, are pilot Dick Scobee and mission specialists James van Hoften and Terry Hart.

Challenger is to rocket into an orbit 305 miles up, highest yet for a shuttle, and Crippen will begin a complex series of maneuvers that will require 11 engine firings to track down Solar Max, which failed 10 months after it was launched in 1980 to study the sun.

The astronauts are to catch up with Solar Max early Sunday, and Crippen will adjust his 17,400 mph speed to fly in formation with the satellite. Then Nelson and van Hoften, in spacesuits, are to move through an airlock into the open cargo bay.

Nelson will don the jet-pack and fly, untethered, at about one-half mile an hour to the satellite. Firing the jet-pack's tiny thrusters, he will match the payload's slow rotation rate of one revolution every six minutes. Cautiously, he will move in and latch onto the satellite by clamping an attachment device to a protruding pin. Again using the jets, he will stop the wobble and the rotation.

Crippen will move Challenger to within 30 feet and Hart, operating the ship's 50-foot crane from inside the cabin, will reach out and snatch the satellite, bringing it into the cargo bay.

The spacewalkers will be outside again two days later to switch out a bad electronics box on one of the satellite's seven experiments. If the repairs work, Hart will use the bionic arm to return Solar Max to its job of watching the sun for scientists.

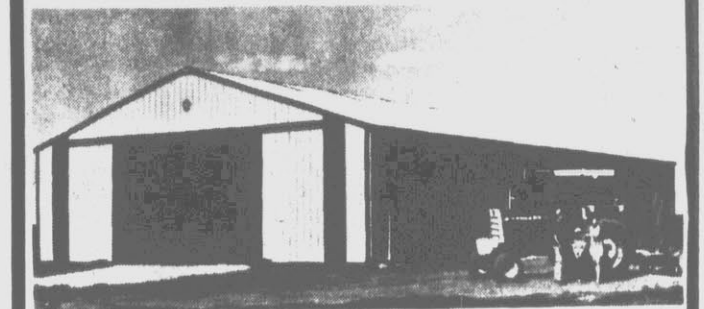

Before Challenger makes its service call on the satellite, Hart on Saturday will use the arm to place in orbit an 11-ton research satellite carrying 57 science, technology and materials experiments which will operate in space for 10 months until another shuttle crew recaptures the payload and returns it to Earth next February.

Activist Chosen For Ambassador

By JUAN MALTES
Associated Press Writer
MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Nora Astorga would be one of the more unusual ambassadors in Washington, if the Reagan administration accepts her. She is a dedicated Sandinista revolutionary who was involved in the killing of Nicaraguan general in her bedroom.
Her father, head of a well-to-do family in the northeastern province of Chontales, was a general in Nicaragua's national guard under Anastasio Somoza Garcia, the first in the Somoza family dynasty that ruled the country for 42 years before being overthrown by the Sandinistas in 1979.

Gen. Reynaldo Perez Vega, the man found slain in her bedroom March 8, 1978, served under the last of the dynasty, Anastasio Somoza Debayle.

Educated in Roman Catholic schools with other wealthy Nicaraguan girls, Ms. Astorga, now 37, graduated from law school at the Jesuit-run University of Central America in Managua. Later, doing charity work with the nuns, she has said, she "became aware of the poverty and injustice" and decided to join the Sandinistas in 1969.

Perez Vega became attracted to the elegant Ms. Astorga, who was then divorced and a legal consultant for a construction firm.

The original plan, Ms. Astorga has said, was to kidnap Perez Vega and exchange him for 59 prisoners, including several prominent Sandinistas. They included Tomas Borge, now interior minister; Daniel Ortega, coordinator of the governing Sandinista junta, and Lenin Cerna, head of state security. She invited Perez Vega to her home in a middle-class residential neighborhood in southeastern Managua.

"Perez Vega, who was considered a womanizer, accepted my invitation but, according to the plan, five friends already were hidden in different rooms," she once told reporters. "When he arrived he wanted to go directly to what he had come for and we went to my room, where I disarmed him. Then my friends came out and tried to dominate him, but he was a strong man and resisted, so they had to kill him."

A week after the slaying, a letter with her signature was published by the anti-Somoza newspaper La Prensa acknowledging her participation in an "operation to bring justice" to the general.

The letter concluded with an appeal to the public to join the "popular insurrection...for the overthrow of the Somoza dynasty which for so many years has kept us oppressed, exploited, abused and jailed, in order to achieve the democratization of our country."

Ms. Astorga went into the mountains of northern Nicaragua where the Sandinistas began to deal strong blows to the national guard. She then was taken secretly to Costa Rica and went to the southern front, where she joined the forces of Sandinista commander Eden Pastora.

Pastora is fighting again in the south, this time leading the Revolutionary Democratic Alliance, one of two rebel groups trying to overthrow the Sandinistas. He broke with them over their close ties to Cuba and the Soviet Union.

Tall and fair-skinned, her dark hair cropped short, Ms. Astorga wears heavy gold chains, rings with expensive stones and, often, sunglasses. She has remarried and has four children. Although she studied in the United States and Italy, her English is not perfect.

Her appointment follows the acceptance by Nicaragua of Harry Bergold as new U.S. ambassador to Managua. Bergold, a career diplomat, was appointed to replace Anthony Quainton, who is expected to leave in the next few days.

Under diplomatic protocol, a country does not assign an ambassador unless the nominee is approved by the host country.

"Nora was named ambassador in Washington for her loyalty, discipline and background as a militant in the Sandinista Front," said a government official who also asked not to be identified.

Some Reagan administration officials reportedly oppose her appointment because of her involvement in the 1978 killing. There has been no response from Washington since her appointment was proposed last month.

Ms. Astorga, replacing Antonio Jarquin, would be the fifth Sandinista ambassador to Washington. She is a lawyer who has held positions in the Sandinista government since the revolution.

For the past year, Ms. Astorga has been deputy minister for administrative affairs at the Foreign Ministry and chief of accounting for the army. She also has headed courts that judged and sentenced more than 4,000 national guardsmen and civilians tied to the Somoza regimes.

The government official said that while Jarquin is trusted, officials believe Ms. Astorga could better represent Sandinista interests in Washington. Two previous Nicaraguan ambassadors have renounced the Sandinistas.

Hunt Endorses Defense, Arms Control Goal

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

Calling national defense "the most fundamental responsibility of the federal government," Gov. Jim Hunt outlined his position on defense and arms control Tuesday night at East Carolina University.

Speaking to a packed house in ECU's Hendrix Theater at Mendenhall Student Center, Hunt, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. senatorial seat now held by Jesse Helms, called for an annual increase of 5 percent to 7 percent in the U.S. defense budget and for nuclear arms reduction negotiations with the Soviet Union.

"Election campaigns should be more than battles between television commercials," Hunt said. "They are a time to debate seriously the future of this country."

"Along with the House of Representatives, the Senate appropriates the funds that pay for America's defense and ... with the House, the Senate shares the awesome responsibility for declaring war," Hunt said. "The American people — and the voters of North Carolina — should apply a rigorous standard to anyone who would serve in the Senate."

In his address, part of a public policy symposium sponsored by the ECU chapter of Phi Kappa Phi, Hunt indicated his support for a number of President Reagan's initiatives, including strategic weapons programs like the MX missile.

"The most important issue facing our world ... is serious, sustained negotiations that reduce the threat of nuclear war," Hunt said. "Arms negotiations are not a sign of weakness. They are a sign of sanity."

"We must reduce the number of Soviet missiles targeted on American cities, towns and military bases, including those in North Carolina."

He said that tough negotiators must be selected to search for ways to prevent nuclear war. He said the number of nuclear warheads and delivery systems must be controlled and then reduced. He added that the United States should negotiate with the Soviet Union "a fair, realistic and long-term nuclear arms control treaty" that can be monitored.

Hunt said the 13 percent increase in defense spending advocated by President Reagan is too much, while the 2 percent to 3 percent supported by some Democrats is not enough.

"Annual increases of 5 to 7 percent will give the planners confidence to plan. They will give managers the predictability to attack inefficiency and waste. And they will give strategists the growth to develop and deploy needed weapons," Hunt said.

In his address, Hunt said he supports strengthening conventional forces and improving their ability to respond through an increased airlift and sealift capability, the creation of light infantry divisions, an expanded 600-ship Navy and a strengthened National Guard and Reserves.

"We must face the reality that for the foreseeable future America's security depends on an effective, credible, capable and technologically advanced nuclear deterrent system," Hunt said. Strategic forces must be modernized, he said, to deter nuclear attack by the Soviet Union or any other power "because they prevent any appearance of weakness that might lead to such an attack."

Hunt said he supports building the MX missile and the B-1 bomber, accelerating the program to develop the Stealth bomber, modernizing the B-52s and constructing the Trident submarine. He also said he supports "maintenance of the nuclear power in Europe by deploying over several years the Pershing IIs and land-based cruise missiles in Europe necessary to offset the Soviet buildup of SS-20s."

Hunt said he supports thorough reform of weapons contracting and procurement process.

"A nut used on the Navy F-18, worth 13 cents, costs the Pentagon $2,043," Hunt said. "We need more direct purchase of spare parts, more competitive bidding fewer cost plus contracts and more second source procurement ...," he said. "Defense contractors, like other contractors in this country, should bring in their jobs on time, at cost and above standard."

Hunt also said the United States must "work very hard to restore the strength and vigor of our NATO alliance." He said NATO remains a vital shield against Soviet aggression for Europe and the U.S.

"For 40 years, this nation and this world have lived under the threat of the Bomb," Hunt said. "For 40 years, the generation that came before kept America strong, kept America free and kept the world safe from destruction. Forty years from now I hope your generation will say the same thing."

Helms Sees...

see the devastation that hit North Carolina," said the North Carolina senator. "We want to make sure that there is as much coordination of federal, state and local government ... as possible."

Joining Helms were Kenneth Cribb, assistant counselor to President Reagan; Marshall J. Parker, associate administrator, Small Business Administration; Charles Shuman, administrator, Farmers Home Administration; Joseph Winkle, assistant director of FEMA, and George Dunlop, chief of staff of the Senate Committee on Agriculture.

Helms emphasized that he was "not trying to get underfoot" at the disaster center and he expressed surprise that the media had received advanced word of his visit.

Inside, Helms and his group chatted briefly with various tornado victims and members of the DAC team, as well as Pitt officials, among them Bobby Joyner, emergency management coordinator, and County Manager Reginald Gray.

"Hang in there," the senator told one victim.

Dunlop said Helms invited the officials in an effort to impress upon them the "extent of the damage, the utter destruction these people have suffered. You can't get a sense of urgency by just telling people about it."

He said the swiftness that local agencies were able to put their relief mechanisms into motion demonstrated preplanning and disaster training was justified. "The plan was already there," he said.

Shuman said FmHA staff members will work with farmers in securing loans and he noted that victims who were unable to visit the disaster center Tuesday or today can still go to the county FmHA office for help. Shuman said, "We have people who will make sure they (farmers) don't go away frustrated."

Parker mentioned that SBA loan applications will be processed immediately and loans should be in place in about three weeks. Although small businessmen and farmers have until May 29 to apply to the agency for assistance, Parker urged those people to "come in as soon as possible."

Helms said he first heard about the tornado damage around 6 a.m. last Thursday and he started making calls to government agencies. "My first call was to the White House," he recalled. Helms said the various agencies have been cooperative in trying to meet the needs of the storm victims.

Gillam Challenges Jones' Ranking

State Rep. John Gillam, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress, today charged that a staff member of U.S. Rep. Walter Jones had "intentionally misrepresented" the congressman by claiming he is the ranking member of the House Agriculture Committee. An aide to Jones refuted that statement.

Jones, also a Democrat, is seeking reelection.

Gillam said in a press release. "A representative of the congressman's office was quoted in The (Greenville) Daily Reflector on Feb. 21 as saying that Jones could elect, should the current chairman resign, to become the chairman of the House Agricultural Committee."

Gillam's statement continued: "That is blatantly false. U.S. Rep. Tom Foley, D-Washington, is the ranking Democratic member on that committee and would, if he chose, become chairman of the House Agriculture Committee should the chairman resign. Frankly, I cannot understand how Jones' staff could be so casual and misinformed about a matter as important as this. They either are intentionally trying to deceive the public or they simply do not know what's going on in Congress."

Jones' office made the statement after Gillam accused Jones of "abandoning the farmers of eastern North Carolina by intentionally and deliberately giving up the chairmanship of the subcommittee on tobacco and peanuts." Gillam said the subcommittee has "much more impact on eastern North Carolina than the minor Merchant Marine Committee that Jones instead chose to chair."

In response to the new charges made by Gillam, Floyd Lupton, Jones' administrative assistant, said today, "Congressman Foley was chairman of the House Agriculture Committee. He elected to resign his position to become the majority Whip of the House, which leaves Congressman Walter Jones now as the ranking member. Congressman Foley does in fact serve on the committee, but Jones is now the ranking member." The Agriculture Committee is chaired by Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Texas.

Lupton was quoted in the March 19 issue of The Daily Reflector as saying, "He (Jones) relinquished his chairmanship of the tobacco subcommittee to become chairman of the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee three years ago. But he continues to be the ranking member of the House subcommittee on Tobacco and Peanuts and the ranking member of the full Agriculture Committee."

"As ranking member of the House Agriculture Committee, he (Jones) could elect, should the current chairman resign, to become the chairman of the House Agriculture Committee," Lupton added. "In such a case, he would have to relinquish chairmanship of the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee."

Gypsy Moth Is Heading South

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Forests in the Northeast will be spared the full fury of the gypsy moth this year, but the caterpillars will continue to eat their way south, officials said.

The moths are expected to do no more damage to northeastern forests in 1984 than they did last year when they defoliated 2.4 million acres of trees, down from 13 million acres in 1981.

But they are spreading south and west at the rate of 10 to 15 miles a year and this year will infest Virginia, Maryland and western Pennsylvania, a U.S. Forest Service specialist said recently.

Shultz Sees Terrorism 'Preventive Action'

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz, defending use of U.S. military force abroad, says the West may need to take "preventive or pre-emptive action" against state-sponsored terrorism.

Shultz said Tuesday that while there are limits to the flexing of America's military muscle, American diplomacy must at times be reinforced by the "prudent ... discreet assertion" of military power.

"We cannot opt out of every contest," Shultz said. "If we do the world's future will be determined by others — most likely by those who are the most brutal, the most unscrupulous and the most hostile to our deeply held principles."

Shultz deplored congressional restrictions on presidential power in the post-Vietnam era as "formulas for abdication." He said the result has been "self-imposed paralysis" in American attempts to stabilize such turbulent regions as the Middle East and Central America.

The secretary of state used a speech before the Trilateral Commission, an active private-sector voice in foreign policy matters, to warn that the threat of international terrorism is mounting and that a passive strategy of security precautions and intelligence gathering "cannot even begin to cope with the problem."

He described state-sponsored terrorism as "a weapon of unconventional war against democratic societies" and said it has become so potent that it raises the question of whether "preventive or pre-emptive action against known terrorist groups" is needed to keep them in check.

"As the threat mounts, and as the involvement of such countries as Iran, Syria, Libya and North Korea has become more and more evident, then it is more and more appropriate that the nations of the West face up to the need for an active defense against terrorism," Shultz said.

Although Shultz has for some months been promising specific recommendations to Congress on ways to combat terrorism, he didn't offer any in his speech.

But he stressed that if the United States is to protect its interests and values and those of its allies against terrorism, "We must be engaged; and our power must be engaged."

Addressing the more general use of American power in the world, Shultz complained of those members of Congress and others whom he said have spun a permanent "web of restrictions" which stymie presidential ability to pursue U.S. security interests in troubled regions.

"As we hear now in the debate over military aid to Central America, those who shrink from engagement can always find an alibi for inaction," he said.

He added that the real question in Central America is not whether the United States believes in military solutions, but whether the United States has "a moral right to try to stop" those who try to impose Marxist solutions by force.

"Anyone who believes that military support for our friends isn't crucial to a just outcome is living in a dream world," he said. "To me, it is highly immoral to let friends who depend on us be subjugated by brute force if we have the capacity to prevent it."

Shultz opened his address by saying that time has proved that the late President John F. Kennedy was wrong in saying that in defending liberty America would "pay any price, bear any burden ... support any friend (and) oppose any foe."

"We know that we are not omnipotent and that we must set priorities," Shultz said. "We must discriminate; we must be prudent and careful ... Not every situation can be solved by American exertion."

But he asked, rhetorically, whether one should conclude "that there are no situations where a discreet assertion of power is needed or appropriate?"

"Unlikely," Shultz declared.

Shultz added that part of the "ugly residue" of America's experience in the Vietnam War is "the notion in some quarters that America is the guilty party, that the use of our power is a source of evil and that therefore the main task of foreign policy is to restrain America's freedom to act."

One of the outgrowths of that war was the passage of the congressional War Powers Act and Shultz renewed his complaint that it has hamstrung the president and undermined diplomacy by setting arbitrary 60-day deadlines for using U.S. forces "that practically invite an adversary to wait us out."

Shultz said that while Congress has the right and duty to debate presidential foreign policy initiatives, "micro-management by a committee of 535 independent-minded individuals is a grossly inefficient and ineffective way to run any important enterprise."

"Surely there can be accountability without paralysis," Shultz said.

House Schedules Deficit Remedy Debate

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives is looking at "everything but the kitchen sink" as it starts searching for a plan that will shrink enormous federal budget deficits.

Nearly 14 hours of scheduled debate was beginning today in the House, where up to eight different blueprints were being submitted for consideration.

Sponsors, ranging from conservative Republicans to liberal Democrats, were offering various combinations of tax increases and curbs on military and domestic spending as part of the election-year scramble in Congress to do something about the red ink.

The budget smorgasbord being laid out was reminiscent of the 1982 election-year menu that was presented to the House. That time, rebellious legislators voted down budget plan after budget plan — nine in all — before settling on a Republican package.

This year, Democratic leaders think their plan will prevail.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., appeared confident that a three-year, $182 billion plan he was seeking would pass. "We're doing good on the votes," O'Neill said Tuesday.

Rep. Trent Lott, R-Miss., the assistant House GOP leader, said that by making certain concessions in drafting their package, Democrats had "bought off enough people" to gain passage for it.

House Republican leaders are responding to the Democratic package with a nearly $205 billion plan that is a modified version of the $150 billion package Reagan worked out with senior Republican senators last month.

Democrats, seeking to curb the growth in military spending recommended by the president, would reduce such spending by $95.6 billion over the next three years. The Republican plan would cut that spending by about $40 billion over the same period.

Republicans, seeking to curb the growth in federal entitlement programs — those providing benefits for which recipients are entitled by law such as Medicare — would trim such spending by about $23 billion over the next three years. The Democratic plan contemplates reductions of about $10 billion.

Both plans call for about $48 billion in higher taxes.

In addition, the GOP plan calls for deeper cuts than the Democratic plan in annual domestic appropriations and a variety of savings from improved government efficiency.

Other plans are being offered by the Congressional Black Caucus, the Democratic Study Group — a liberal legislative research organization of House Democrats, a group of conservative Democrats, a group of conservative Republicans and others.

Even the original budget that the president sent to Congress earlier this year could be debated, if anyone chooses to do so. But that appeared unlikely.

"It's not going to be offered," Lott said.

"Everything but the kitchen sink" is being considered, O'Neill said.

In the Senate, meanwhile, Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., still hopes to begin work this week on the $150 billion package that he and other GOP leaders worked out with Reagan.

However, the plan faces numerous obstacles.

Democrats are protesting a procedural shortcut Baker wants to use to consider the plan. And several conservative Republicans are pressing for more spending cuts, especially by implementing the recommendations of the so-called Grace commission the president appointed to uncover waste and inefficiency in government.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said he will be zeroing in on the $48 billion tax bill that forms the core of the GOP deficit-reduction plan. He said the tax bill contains lots of unwarranted giveaways to special interests.

In a letter Tuesday to Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the Finance Committee, Metzenbaum cautioned that unless the panel deletes the money losers, "you may be certain ... I will address myself in the most vigorous terms to each and every one when the measure reaches the Senate floor."

Any action taken this year will be better than Congress' record last year, when it mandated a three-year, $85 billion package of deficit reductions for itself. By the time the House and Senate adjourned for the year, the House had passed a $10.3 billion package of minor spending cuts and the Senate had done nothing.

Ironies Abound As Poles Carry On

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The pervasive symbol of the cross in this Communist-ruled nation is now at the heart of a bitter church-state confrontation. Yet it is but one of numerous ironies which strike the visitor to Poland.

These contrasts can be grim or amusing, tender or terrifying. Or as discordant as hearing impassioned Chopin polonaises played back-to-back on the radio with American country-western tunes.

In the Baltic seaport of Gdansk, there is large parking lot near the shipyards where Solidarity was born. On days targeted for demonstrations by the outlawed union's underground, the lot fills with ZOMO riot police in full gear, trucks mounted with water cannon and police vans.

Above all this hangs a billboard with a message in English from the state-run travel bureau: "Welcome to Poland."

The visitor takes note. Poles carry on, steeped in their changing society, their culture, their Roman Catholic faith.

"Let me give you a timely example," a grandfather offers, turning to the nation's ongoing "war of the crosses" over the state-ordered removal of crucifixes from Communist classrooms.

"My neighbor's boy has become deeply involved in this crucifix crusade," explained the pensioner, who asked that his name not be used.

The risk is not small, he notes. The boy could be expelled from school, questioned by police, detained or even arrested.

And he's not even Catholic. "My neighbor is one of the few Jews left in Poland," the man said. "The cross means nothing to the boy, but he says he must stick up for his friends and join the protests anyway."

Another irony presents itself at Czestochowa, home of Poland's holiest icon, the Black Madonna.

Pilgrims who flock there lay military decorations and Solidarity badges at the feet of the madonna along with more traditional offerings, such as family jewels.

In Warsaw, shoppers are enticed by windows full of exquisite crystal, handsome leather goods and jewelry.

But shortages of everyday commodities can make buying a roll of toilet paper or bottle of shampoo as difficult as a quest for the Holy Grail.

The weary shopper can drown such frustrations easily enough.

Vodka comes in every flavor imaginable: lemon, rowan berry, white pepper (said to be good for the digestion) and bison grass (so named because the blade of grass floating in it is highly favored by grazing bison).

But sobering up can prove a challenge. Coffee is rationed and the cold shower may soon be, unless the current drought ends.

Recently, one visitor to Warsaw saw scores of people, shivering in the raw wind, huddled in a line that snaked down one street, around a corner and up the next block.

Passersby wondered what scarce commodity had suddenly materialized — meat, fruit, shoes. All were possibilities.

But on this bone-chilling evening, 73 people waited to buy ice cream cones and later clutched them with relish in mittened hands.

In Krakow, legend attempts to solve the riddle of the medieval city's most visible contrast: the mismatching spires of St. Mary's Church in the ancient marketplace.

According to lore, rival brothers set out to build the best spire, but the contest came to a bloody end midway through when one brother stabbed the other to death. The slain brother's spire is said to have miraculously grown to tower over that of his murderous sibling.

Contemporary Krakow has another dilemma. Having survived centuries of invasions, fires and earthquakes, the city's historical landmarks are now succumbing to the ravages of a modern nemesis — pollution from nearby factories.

Approved Liquor Sales In Rain

MARION, N.C. (AP) — Voters in the western North Carolina town of Marion on Tuesday approved the sale of beer, wine and liquor by a narrow margin, despite steady rains that threatened to keep some from the polls.

Election officials said that unofficial results showed that the sale of wine was approved 845 to 824 while the sale of beer was approved by an 851-821 margin. The sale of liquor was approved by an 855-826, according to unofficial returns.

Election officials said 1,681 of 2,708 eligible voters went to the polls Tuesday, about 200 more than voted in a 1981 referendum in which beer sales were defeated by six votes but wine sales approved by three votes.

Church vans ferrying voters to the polls Tuesday had signs painted on the sides reading "No booze," "I want a sober Dad" and "Vote No, No, No," officials said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, who regularly strains the clubby atmosphere of the Senate by blocking special tax benefits favored by colleagues, is zinging in on a Finance Committee bill aimed at reducing the federal deficit.

There's a lot of good in that 1,000-page bill, Metzenbaum says, but there also are lots of unwarranted giveaways to special interests. In a letter Tuesday to Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the committee, Metzenbaum cautioned that unless the panel deletes the money losers, "you may be certain ... I will address myself in the most vigorous terms to each and every one when the measure reaches the Senate floor."

Republican leaders are eager for the Senate to pass the bill, which would raise taxes by about $48 billion by Sept. 30, 1987. The measure is the heart of a plan by Reagan and GOP senators to cut the deficit by about $150 billion during that period.

Even before seeing a copy of the bill, Metzenbaum wrote Dole, he and his staff have found more than 30 minor provisions tacked on for the benefit of a relative handful of people or companies.

Among those special beneficiaries, Metzenbaum said, are heirs of Texas billionaire H.L. Hunt; the oil industry; the nuclear power industry; American Motors Corp.; automobile leasing companies; strip mine operators; the MacArthur Foundation; Allis-Chalmers, the equipment manufacturer, and U.S. companies that borrow abroad.

Also on Metzenbaum's hit list are a few tax breaks with broader appeal, including liberalization of Individual Retirement Accounts; special tax relief aimed at luring businesses into inner cities and other depressed areas, and a broader tax exemption for employers' gifts to workers.

Over the past several years, Metzenbaum has almost singlehandedly blocked numerous limited-interest tax breaks by threatening to talk against them for as long as it takes. Since most major tax bills reach the Senate floor just before a recess or adjournment, the threat usually does the trick.

In Metzenbaum's favor now: the deficit-reduction bill probably will be the last major item of business before the weeklong Easter break.

The bill includes one special-interest provision proposed by Metzenbaum, but it's not one that any senator will want to challenge in retaliation. It would provide tax relief to a woman who earns $14,000 a year who got into trouble with the Internal Revenue Service when she won a custom-built home for her wheelchair-bound son.

Alimony is deductible by the ex-spouse who pays it, and taxable to the recipient, if it is in the form of "periodic payments" under a court order or a written agreement accompanying a divorce.

A divorced woman wrote the IRS asking whether she would have to pay taxes on the rental value of a house that her ex-husband bought for her as part of the divorce settlement. In a new ruling released this week, the IRS had good news for the woman and bad news for her former husband.

A lower-level IRS official, relying on a 1947 court ruling, had held that the value of the house was taxable to the woman. But this case was different, officials in the national office said, because it did not involve the home in which the couple had lived together, but a new home bought for the woman by the man.

Although she had use of the house for life, it was owned by the man. Since there was no transfer of interest in the property, IRS said, the value was not alimony.

Sales taxes, which economists say fall hardest on low-income people, continue the main source of revenue for the states. A new compilation by the Tax Foundation showed sales taxes brought the states $50.3 billion in 1982, or just over 30 percent of all taxes collected. All the states except Alaska, Delaware, Montana, New Hampshire and Oregon have sales taxes.

Individual income taxes raised 28.1 percent of state collections; corporate income taxes, 8.6 percent.

Jennifer P. and Irving Hollingshead Jr. of Boyertown, Pa., members of the Society of Friends, withheld $8,500 of their taxes in 1980 and 1981 and put that money into an escrow account. They agreed to turn over the sum to the government only if it went for something other than the military.

That was not good enough for the IRS, which long has held that people don't have a right to pick and choose which parts of government they support. Now, the Tax Court has upheld the IRS and, furthering its campaign against tax protesters, imposed $1,500 in additional penalties on the couple.

Home Ec Students At ECU Are Honored

ECU News Bureau
Twenty-two students in the East Carolina University School of Home Economics were recognized at the school's recent annual spring convocation here.

The honorees included scholarship and award recipients and nominees for campus-wide recognition.

Featured speaker at the event was Dr. Sheron Sumner, assistant professor in the UNC-Greensboro School of Home Economics and an ECU alumna.

Dr. Sumner is a native of Robersonville. She is currently vice president of the American Home Economics Association and national vice president of the Omicron Nu honor society. Last year, she was selected "Home Economist of the Year" in a statewide competition.

The ceremony also featured recognition of faculty members Linda Snyder, Vicki Berger, Marilyn Steele and Jane Teleki, selected as the home economics schools' "best advisors." Dr. Eugenia Zallen, dean of the school, was presented a silver bowl in appreciation of her service.

Dr. Lilla Halsey received a Dean's Award for her contribution as supervisor of home economics graduate assistants. Dr. Zallen also recognized the entire home economics faculty for its combined efforts in total revision of curricula, development of graduate policies, revision of the school's code and preparation of a self-study document for 10-year accreditation of the school.

Nancy Cargile of Greenville was recognized as one of the home economics school's three nominees for the ECU Alumni Award. She is majoring in child development and family relations.

'Solid Results' Fighting Drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government says it has achieved "solid results" in its new approach to combatting illegal drugs — the penetration since last summer of 535 drug gangs, leading to the indictment of 1,841 top leaders and major drug suppliers and distributors, money launderers and financiers.

The summary was given in the annual report sent to Congress by the Organized Drug Enforcement Task Force Program, which was created by President Reagan in October 1982 but did not begin operations until last summer.

Attorney General William French Smith said that each case means the penetration of an entire drug organization, "not simply individual cases against random, low-level offenders."

Smith said the fact that major drug figures, not just the street peddlers, are being indicted is reflected in a statistical breakdown of defendants. He said 33 percent were top leaders, 29 percent mid-level leaders, 28 percent major suppliers and distributors, 4 percent major financiers and 4 percent major money launderers.

Rule 'Unduly Tried' 2nd Time In Killing

By DENNIS PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Court of Appeals dismissed charges and freed a man after ruling that he was unduly tried a second time for second-degree murder.

The decision came Tuesday for Andrew Lynn Jones, who was convicted July 27, 1983, in Wake County Superior Court in the shooting death of David Lee Height after two earlier mistrials.

Jones contended the first mistrial granted by Superior Court Judge Samuel Britt was premature and violated his protection against being tried on the same charge twice.

Britt declared the mistrial after the jury had deliberated for about five hours and had returned to ask several questions about first-degree murder, second-degree murder and malice. Jones objected to the mistrial and continued his objection through the two trials that followed.

The appeals court ruled that a mistrial could have been declared in the case, but that more time should have been given for deliberation before making the mistrial decision.

The appeals court also ordered a new trial for Raynard Blackwell of Roxboro, who was convicted by a Person County jury of possession and sale of marijuana.

Blackwell was arrested after undercover officer Rick Barney approached him about buying drugs and opening a pool hall in Roxboro. Defense attorneys had contended Barney entrapped Blackwell by holding out the possibility of employment in a new pool hall.

The court ruled the judge in the case should have granted Blackwell's request that jurors be instructed about entrapment.

The second-degree murder and assault convictions of Chick Lonzo Bennett, who was found guilty in Forsyth County Superior Court in the shooting deaths of his wife and daughter, was upheld by the appeals court Tuesday.

Bennett testified he was afraid of his daughter, Clissie B. Gaddy, and shot her after an argument in 1981. He testified his wife, Maggie Lee Bennett, was accidentally shot in the incident and Carol Bennett, another daughter was accidentally wounded.

He received 13 years on each of the murder convictions and two years on the assault conviction because the trial judge found mitigating factors in his favor.

Some Baffled By Changing Names

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — It's OK to change history, but sometimes it helps to post signs explaining where the past went — especially if it's a street.

That's what the Berkeley City Council found out after it renamed Grove Street to Martin Luther King Jr. Way last fall in honor of the slain civil rights leader.

"We had a truck cruising all over town trying to find Grove Street," said Peter Rich, who was awaiting a delivery to his bicycle shop.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market opened mixed today, interrupting a four-day slide brought on by a renewed bout of interest rate worries.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 25.86 points over the previous four sessions, nudged up .32 to 1,149.08 in the opening half hour today.

But more stocks fell in price than rose in the early going on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts say the stock market has been struggling because of concern about rising interest rates, which pose a threat to a sustained economic expansion and which make returns more attractive on bonds than stocks.

The federal funds rate, the interest on interbank loans, has climbed close to 11 percent, raising fears of another increase in the prime lending rate. Last month, banks boosted the prime rate to 11.5 percent from the 11 percent level that had prevailed since August 1983.

Meanwhile, the Conference Board reports its measure of business leaders' confidence in the economy fell in the first quarter of 1984, the third consecutive quarterly decline. But the business-financed study group said business confidence still remains at a relatively high level.

In early trading today, nine of the 15 most active issues on the NYSE were unchanged. American Telephone & Telegraph slipped 1/8 to 15 1/2. Superior Oil rose 1/8 to 41 3/4. Santa Fe Southern Pacific fell 1/8 to 24 3/4, and General Motors gained 1/8 to 63 3/4.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrials dropped 4.40 to 1,148.76.

Declines outpaced advances by about 5 to 3 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume came to 87.98 million shares, against 85.68 million Monday.

The NYSE's composite index fell 24 to 90.79. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 1.65 at 209.23.

Warehouse, giving out clothing, food and furniture to verified tornado victims. The goods have come from everywhere, volunteer operation director Rachael Hardee said — Pitt County, Washington, D.C., Cincinnati, Ohio, Greensboro, Winston-Salem, Southern Pines, Virginia. She said furniture, kitchen appliances, bed linens, towels and foods are needed more than wearing apparel. "We really believe we have enough clothes," she said. She emphasized that more volunteers will be needed as some of those now helping have to return to their jobs.

The local Salvation Army reported it is giving out food, medication, household goods, emergency housing, utility payments, rent deposits and first month's rents. Mrs. Ronald Davis said tar paper and plastic to protect houses being repaired is being sought, as are volunteers to help put up this protection.

Greenville grocer Charles Overton reported that the Gwaltney Meat Co. this morning delivered more than $5,000 worth of cold cuts, bacon, sausage and other meats to the Eastern Pines Fire Station. The firemen have agreed to refrigerate and distribute the meats to people from throughout the disaster area who need it.

Overton said a number of other food companies have also promised to send free food in. He said it, too, will be delivered to Eastern Pines, with the understanding that anyone directly affected by the disaster is eligible to receive a portion of it.

Volcanoes Add Golfing Hazard

VOLCANO, Hawaii (AP) — Like most courses, the Volcano Golf and Country Club has its share of creeks and sand traps — but the hazards that can really add strokes to your game are the lava flows and bottomless crevasse.

Molten rock from Mauna Loa and Kilauea volcanoes hasn't actually reached the course, but the furious mountains do add a spectacular background to a quite round of golf.

"It adds color," said Bill Hayashi, superintendent of the course located between the two volcanoes on the island of Hawaii. "Where else could you play golf and watch an erupting volcano?"

Club policy probably would not grant a free lift from lava flows were they to creep onto the course, Hayashi said.

"It's the earthquakes I find distracting," Hayashi said. On Nov. 16, a quake measuring 6.7 on the Richter scale of ground measurement rocked the island, opening a 20-foot-long, foot-wide crack on the 18th hole, with no apparent bottom, Hayashi said. The crack is marked by small flags.

"You drop a shot in there, and that's a lost ball," he said.

Would Require A D-U-I Uniform

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A lawmaker angry over a proposal to do away with mandatory imprisonment for drunken drivers wants to require those convicted of driving under the influence of alcohol to wear uniforms branded "D-U-I."

The Tennessee House Judiciary Committee approved the measure Tuesday as an amendment to a bill that would give judges the alternative of requiring community service instead of jail time for drunken drivers.

Lawmakers began considering the community service alternative when local jails complained of overcrowding from drunken drivers. But Rep. Bob King, who sponsored the amendment, said his constituents feel that "embarrassment" should be part of the penalty.

Beddingfield Error Saves Rose, 6-5

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Down by 5-4 with two outs in the seventh inning, the Rose High School Rampants were praying for a miracle. There sat Van Alston on second base after beating out an infield hit and stealing second.

And Mark Nover had just hit a routine grounder to third. It was all over.

Well, not quite. Instead, Wilson Beddingfield first baseman Shane Baker missed the throw and the ball sailed all the way to the fence. By the time it was put back in play, Alston had easily crossed home with the tying run and Nover was sliding into third base.

Toby Fischer, who had started the Rose scoring in the first inning with a two-run homer, followed the three-base error with a single through the middle and Nover walked home with the game-winning run.

Thus, Rose's miracle finish gave them a 6-5 win and a perfect 3-0 Big East Conference record. For Beddingfield, it was a horrible ending to an otherwise fine day, dropping the Bruins to 2-1 in the league.

"We'd been waiting for a break," Coach Ronald Vincent said. "I really didn't think they were going to give us one."

It was fitting, however, since Rose allowed the Bruins to score three unearned runs on three errors.

"I feel very fortunate to win," Vincent continued. "We made a lot of mistakes in the field. Beddingfield did a good job keeping the pressure on us. I'm proud of our guys. They could have cashed it in, but they stayed in there and battled. It was a good victory for us in the final analysis, and it should help us because Beddingfield is a good club."

Mike Kinley started the game for Rose, but despite going all but the final out in the game, didn't figure in the decision. Kinley didn't pitch that bad, striking out seven, walking seven and scattering six hits. Of the five runs he allowed only two were earned.

However, it was two almost identical errors by Kinley that helped the Bruins score those three unearned runs. Twice he turned after picking up grounders to the mound to throw out a runner at second and missed the base.

Billy Michel came on in the seventh inning to get the final out — and became the pitcher of record when Rose rallied, gaining his third win against no losses.

Beddingfield struck first, getting a run in the first. Tommy Boswell led off with a walk and was sacrificed up. Ken Lucas also walked and with two away, Woody Mercer slapped a single to center, scoring Boswell.

But Rose came quickly back with two in the bottom of the inning. Nover opened with a single to center and Fischer sent a line-drive down the left field line out of the park just fair for his first-ever homer. "I never hit a home run in any league," Fischer said back in the dugout, "In Little League or any league."

The lead didn't stand long, however, as Beddingfield tied it up with one in the second. With two away, Joe Hill walked and Boswell singled. Tim Ballance got a hit to right, scoring Hill.

Rose moved back ahead on another homer in the bottom of the frame as Van Alston drove it out of the park in left center. It was the second straight homer in as many at-bats for Alston, who banged one out against Rocky Mount last week.

But again, the Bruins rallied, scoring two in the third. Baker singled and with one away, Russell Best singled. Seth Tyson grounded back to the mound, and Kinley elected to go to third, throwing it into center. That let Baker score and moved Best to third. He scored from there on Greg Hill's sacrifice fly to center.

The Bruins picked up another for a 5-3 lead in the fourth. Boswell led off with a fly to center and Tony Taylor dropped it when he collided with right fielder Mike Walsh. Ballance laid down a sacrifice bunt to the mound and again Kinley went to second, throwing it away once more, letting Boswell race all the way home.

Kinley kept the Bruins off base after that until the seventh when he gave up an infield hit, a fielder's choice and a walk. Michel came on to walk the next batter, loading the bases with two away, then got the next man on a grounder to first.

Rose cut the lead to 5-3 with one in the fourth. Eric Woodworth led off with a single and courtesy runner Mike Smith stole second, scoring on a two-out single by David Jester.

But in the fifth and sixth, Rose was unable to get anything going, sending it down to the final inning.

With one down, Alston hit a slow roller down to third and beat out the throw. He stole second and took third on an infield out.

That brought on Nover, whose grounder to third made it look like it was all over. But the catch at first was muffed and Alston scored with Nover racing all the way to third.

He scored easily on Fischer's single.

Fischer and Alston led the Rose hitting with two each, while Baker had two hits for Beddingfield.

The Rampants are now 6-2-1 overall while Beddingfield falls to 3-6.

Rose plays host to Kinston on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Guy Smith Stadium.

Oakland Rally Gives Fingers Loss In Return To Milwaukee

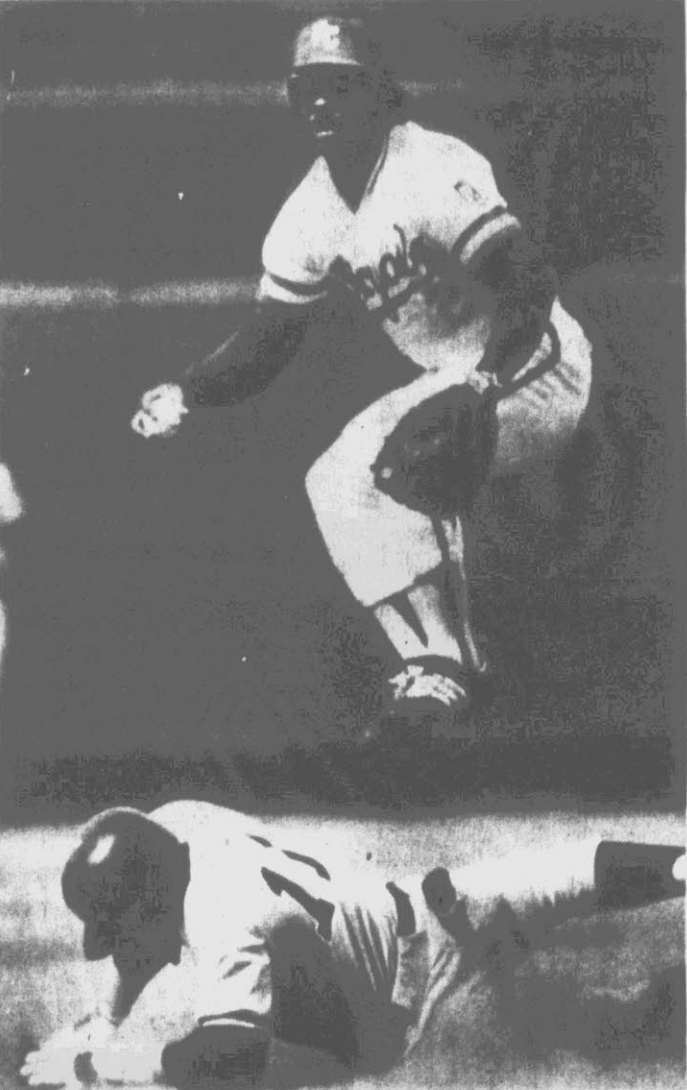

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Rollie Fingers' return after more than a year on the disabled list was worth waiting for... as far as the Oakland Athletics were concerned. Unfortunately, Fingers pitches for the Milwaukee Brewers.

"You mean I waited a year-and-a-half to look at that kind of expletive-deleted?" Fingers said after facing three batters, yielding three singles and watching them score to cap a four-run ninth-inning rally that gave the Oakland A's a 6-5 victory Tuesday night over the Brewers and saddle Fingers with the loss.

The 37-year-old Fingers, baseball's all-time leader with 301 saves, missed the entire 1983 season with arm trouble and was making his first appearance since Sept. 2, 1982.

Quarterback, Fullback Still Trouble For Young Pirates

East Carolina University's Pirates have reached the half-way point in their spring football drills and Coach Ed Emory still sees the basic problems he saw prior to the start of practice.

"We are still trying to find a quarterback, depth at fullback and depth at tight end, offensively," Emory said. "And defensively, we still have big problems with our tackles and ends."

"I am real concerned as to how far we can go in the next few days and get ready to open with competition like Florida State. We haven't been very competitive on Saturdays with our defense against our offense. We have lots of growing up to do."

The battle at quarterback involves four players: Ron Jones, freshman from Portsmouth, Va.; Robbie Bartlett, junior college transfer from California; Darrell Speed, sophomore from Sanford; and Tony Kyser, junior from Maryland.

"Jones and Bartlett are alternating one and two right now," said Emory. "Speed was very much in it, but he's not in contact work now due to a broken left wrist and this is causing some problems. Kyser has been hurt too, with a shoulder problem."

The offense has looked strong in the running game behind veteran tailbacks Tony Baker (Jr., High Point) and Jimmy Walder (Sr., Greensboro).

"While I feel good with our running game, I don't with our passing game," added Emory. "Between rookie quarterbacks and our top receivers not in spring ball, it is very difficult to evaluate our passing game."

Henry Williams (Sr., Tunica, Miss.) and Chris McLawhorn (So., Greenville) are both running track this spring. Split end Stefan Adams (Sr., High Point) is out with a broken wrist, while flanker Ricky Nichols (Sr., Chesapeake, Va.) is playing baseball.

However, as a result of these four out of practice, the coaching staff does feel that some good depth is being developed at the receiver positions.

The offensive line has been a problem, as four possible starters are sidelined with injuries: tackles Tim Dumas (So., McLeansville), Jeff Autry (So., Covington, Ga.) and Greg Sokolohorsky (Jr., Garnerville, N.Y.), and guard Ricky Hilburn (Jr., Chadbourne).

At the same time, several other offensive linemen are considered to be having a very good spring practice. Among those are center Tim Mitchell (Sr., Lancaster, Pa.), guard Norman Quick (Sr., Laurinburg), tackle Brad Henson (Sr., Athens, Ga.), guard/tackle Richie Autry (So., Covington, Ga.), guard/tackle Petey Davis (Fr., Laurinburg), guard Paul Hoggard (Sr., Windsor), and snapper/center Stuart Ward (Jr., Greenville).

While the offense has looked impressive at times in scrimmages, the defense is trying to find a way to shore up some holes from graduation losses.

"We have four redshirt freshmen running one and two at defense ends right now," Emory said. "Plus, our tackles are basically freshmen. We are very much still looking for starters.

"Walkon Curtis Sturyk (So., Beaufort) has looked real good at tackle for us. He may well find a place to play."

Chris Santa Cruz (Sr., Lillina, Ala.) continues to play well at noseguard, while Medrick Rainbow (Fr., Conway, S.C.), has shown good signs.

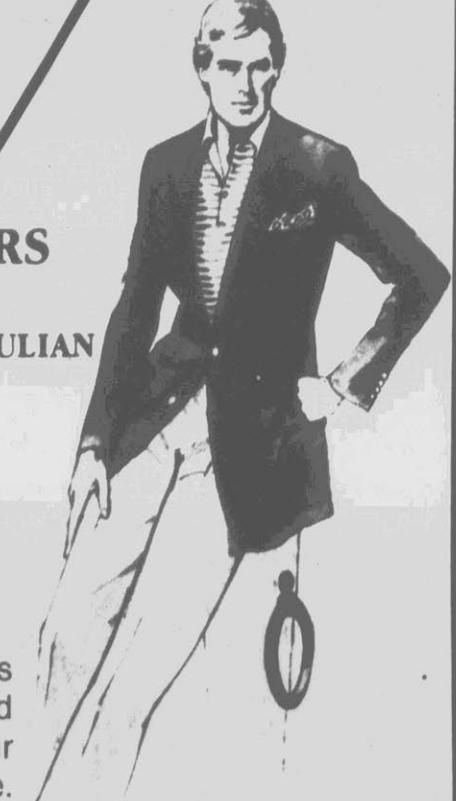

Linebacker was expected to be a strong position in terms of depth, but with Ronald Raid (Sr., Farmville), and Larry Berry (So., New Bern) both out with injuries, there is some concern now at linebacker.

And, likewise, secondary play is hurting some with injuries keeping key players sidelined. This was also expected to be a strong depth area; But right now, both strong safeties are out for perhaps all spring. They are Gary London (So., Hampton, Va.) and Ed Varnes (Jr., Lake Butler, Fla.). Cornerback Rally Caparas (Sr., Charleston, S.C.) is also out for the spring.

The Pirates will conclude spring drills on April 14 with the Purple-Gold scrimmage at 4 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium, while the 20th ranked Pirates in the final Associated Press poll of 1983, will open the 1984 season September 1 at Florida State.

Norris, Godley Pace Jaguar Win

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer
FARMVILLE — Nat Norris struck out 10 and narrowly missed a no-hitter, while Billy Godley ripped a three-run homer to cap a four RBI performance as the Jaguars of Farmville Central continued their unbeaten string with a 4-0 shutout over North Pitt Tuesday in Eastern Carolina 3-A baseball action.

An infield single by Lee Eakes in the top of the seventh ended Norris' bid for a hitless effort. Godley knocked the ball down in the middle of the infield, but was unable to make the throw to first. After a fielder's choice advanced Eakes, Norris struck out the side for his third win in as many decisions. Norris starred at the plate, as well, rapping a pair of hits and scoring twice. Godley drove in all four runs with two hits in four at bats but injured his right ankle rounding third base in the first inning. He remained in the lineup and is scheduled to pitch Friday when Farmville travels to Ayden-Grifton. "Nat pitched real well most of the game," Jaguars Coach Bill Davis said. "It wasn't a very well played game overall, though. "Bill had a real good game at the bat for us. When he turned (his ankle), I wasn't sure he'd be able to stay in the game. But he said it had happened before, and he was pretty much able to walk it off." Norris opened the game with a single and stole second. A fielder's choice by Randy Daniels moved Norris to third, and he scored on Godley's single. North Pitt pitcher John Hobbs settled down to get out of the inning, and retired the side in order in the second. But in the third, Norris beat out an infield single and Daniels walked before Godley laced the ball over the left field fence. "Except for the home run, it was a one-run ballgame," Panthers Coach Doug Warren said. "We had our chances on offense, but we haven't been hitting the ball well. I'm not discouraged; when you take a group of young kids like we've got and you're able to stick with a good varsity squad like Farmville, that's not bad."

The Panthers stranded six runners on base, as Norris walked three and two more reached first on errors. North Pitt slipped to 0-6 overall and 0-3 against Eastern Carolina Conference opposition, while the Jaguars are now 6-0-1 overall and 3-0 in the league.

Wilmington Christian Academy shut out Greenville Christian Academy yesterday, taking an 11-0 baseball victory.

Mills opened the game with a single and, after two outs, stole second. Chris Via ripped a ground rule double to drive in Mills, and Calvin Phillips doubled in Via.

Tim Reagan hurled the win, allowing GCA only three hits on the afternoon. The visiting Wilmington team got all it needed in the second inning scoring one run. Scott Lewis singled and Steve Kennedy got a hit. Reagan drew a walk to load the bases and another walk, to Don Manley forced in Lewis for a 1-0 lead.

The Vikes added another run in the fifth. Mills reached first on an error and Todd Cochran sacrificed him to second. But when Mills rounded second, the first baseman fired the ball to the left field fence allowing Mills to score.

Wilmington went on to add two in the third, two more in the fourth and six in the fifth. Jim Nobles led the Wilmington hitting with three, while Jerry Blake and Reagan each had two. Darrin O'Brien had two hits to lead GCA's attack.

In the sixth, Adams singled with two outs. Richie Overton reached first on an error, and Mills singled Adams for the final run.

CHOCOWINITY — Bath High School got two home runs from D.R. Alligood and that helped power the Pirates to an 8-2 baseball victory over Chocowinity in a Tobacco Belt Conference matchup yesterday.

Holliday walked the second batter in the first inning to erase his bid for a perfect game, but went on to strike out nine in recording the hitless victory.

Bath scored a run in the top of the first, but Chocowinity matched that in their half of the frame. But the Pirates took the lead for good in the fourth scoring twice. Richard Harding reached on an error and Alligood slapped the first of his homers for a 3-1 lead.

Matthew Moore posted an unblemished 4-4 at the plate for Jamesville, while Earl Bowen went 2-2. Catcher Terry Perry went 2-3, and Whit Brown 2-4 for the Bullets.

Then, after the Pirates scored two in the sixth, they added three more in the seventh. Alligood provided the power for two of those runs with his second homer. Chocowinity's other run came in the bottom of the fourth.

Jamesville jumped on Hatteras for three runs in the top of the first. Moore singled, and Kevin Perry reached first on a fielder's choice. Holliday ripped a sacrifice fly to score Moore, and Terry Perry doubled in Kevin Perry. A double by Brown drove in Terry Perry.

Alligood finished with three hits, while Shawn Hardy led the Indians with two. Now 2-5 in league play, the Indians fall to 3-6 overall. They host Bear Grass on Thursday. Bath.....100 202 3-8 8 0

SNOW HILL — Roger Moyer ripped a three-run homer and pitcher Doug Coley struck out 10 as the Ayden-Grifton Chargers downed Greene Central 6-4 in Eastern Carolina Conference baseball action Tuesday.

Jamesville improved its overall record to 7-1 with a 6-0 league mark

Coley walked just three and gave up five hits in recording the win. "He gave up only one earned run," A-G Coach Bob Murphrey said. "We hit the ball better. But still with the weather and breaks, our timing is a little off. We're still not playing as good as I think we can."

Jackie Conway went 2-4 at the plate, while Eddie Brown went 2-3. Cotton Joyner led the Rams with a

Both teams scored singled runs in the first inning and Roanoke took a 2-1 lead in the second. Williamston went ahead with two in the fourth, but Roanoke tied it up with one in the bottom of the frame. Both scored single runs again in the sixth.

In the ninth, Glen Hardison reached on a bloop single and was sacrificed up. Keith Perry was intentionally walked, and both moved up on an infield out, making two away. Les Keel was also intentionally walked, loading the bases, but setting up a force at any base. Unfortunately for Roanoke, the percentages backfired as Jack Mobley walked, bringing in the winning run. Mike Leggett led the Williamston hitting with two, while James Walters had three, and Stacy Wallace and Greg Casper each had two for Roanoke.

WASHINGTON — Washington High School held off a Tarboro rally in the final inning, gaining a 5-3 Northeastern Conference baseball victory yesterday.

Washington took the lead in the fourth inning when Duane Whittenburg doubled to drive in John Modlin for a 1-0 lead.

Then, in the fifth, the Pam Pack added four more runs. Modlin doubled to drive in two of those, highlighting the inning. Tarboro then rallied scoring three times before the Pam Pack finally put out the fire as the Vikings left the bases loaded.

Steve Oden led the Washington hitting with two hits, while George Whitehurst had two for Tarboro. Now 4-0 in the conference and 5-0 overall, the Pam Pack is scheduled to host Bertie today. Tarboro.....000 000 3-3 4 0

Church Resigns Soccer Post

East Carolina University soccer coach Robbie Church has announced his resignation effective the end of May. Church has coached soccer at ECU for the past two seasons. Church, who is completing work on a master's degree from the University of South Carolina, is leaving his position at ECU to pursue other career interests. Named as interim coach is Steve Brody, who served this past year as assistant coach to Church. Brody will work as interim until such time as a head coach is appointed. Brody, who played soccer at East Carolina and graduated in 1983, is originally from Edison, N.J., and also holds a master's degree from ECU. Church, a Greensboro native and graduate of Pfeiffer College, guided the 1982 Pirate team to a 7-10 record, tying the school mark for most wins in a single season. He finishes his two year career with ECU with a 10-26 record.

Six other American League teams also got their seasons under way Tuesday. Kansas City downed New York 4-2, Detroit whipped Minnesota 8-1 and Cleveland shelled Texas 9-1. Fingers came on after Oakland's Davey Lopes opened the bottom of the ninth with a home run off Chuck Porter. Singles by Mike Heath (a bloop), pinch hitter Garry Hancock and Rickey Henderson loaded the bases. "It couldn't get any worse, only better, but I felt great," Fingers said. "Everything I threw went exactly where I wanted to throw it. Heath hit a forkball and shattered his bat, Hancock hit a pitch about a half-foot off the ground and Henderson hit a slider away from him by reaching way out. Bang! — the bases are loaded and there was nothing I could do about that."

North Pitt Girls Top Farmville

FARMVILLE — North Pitt erased a six-run deficit to rally past Farmville Central 10-7 in Eastern Carolina 3-A Conference softball action Tuesday.

Annette Wilkins finished the day with three hits in as many trips to lead the Pant-HERS, while Frances Woods went 2-4 with a leadoff homer in the sixth. Wilkins started the game on the mound, but Melody Harrington came on in the second to record the victory.

Debra Joyner went 3-3 for Farmville Central, and Kim Smith finished at 2-3.

The Lady Jaguars held a 6-0 lead after three innings. Joy Peardon drove in Smith and Joyner plated two more runs with a single in the second. Pam Foreman and Diane Bullock walked in the third, and after a Pam Ellis fielder's choice, Smith singled in Foreman and Hope Moore tripled in Ellis and Smith.

But North Pitt battled back with five runs in the fifth. Woods and Wilkins singled, and Regina Moore reached first on an error to score Woods. Dee Dee Hines tripled in three runs, and Alice Pittman singled in Hines.

After Woods opened the sixth with her homer, a pair of errors after two outs allowed the Pant-HERS to take control. Wilkins singled and Regina Moore reached first on a fielder's choice. Alexis Scott reached first on an error and Ayers slapped a fielder's choice. Deloris Pittman singled in a pair of runs, and Hines singled in two more for a 10-6 North Pitt edge.

Farmville Central plated a lone run in the bottom of the sixth but was unable to rally by the Pant-HERS.

North Pitt improved its conference record to 1-3 on the season with an overall mark of 2-5, while Farmville Central stands at 1-6 overall and 0-3 in the league. The Lady Jags travel to Ayden-Grifton Friday, while the Pant-HERS remain idle until they visit SouthWest Edgecombe Tuesday.

Rose High School's girls' softball team dropped its third straight Big East Conference game yesterday, bowing to Wilson Beddingfield, 11-6.

Beddingfield took the lead with four runs in the top of the second, and added a fifth in the third. Rose came up with three in the bottom of the third, but could never get back into the game.

The Lady Bruins added two each in the fifth, sixth and seventh. Rose scored its final three in the seventh.

Niansa Outlaw and Vickie Parrott each had two hits for Rose, while Joanne Green and Casey Drewery each had two. Bullock had two hits to lead Beddingfield, while Lee and Johnson each had two.

Rose falls to 1-6 overall and 0-3 in the league. Beddingfield is 2-1 in conference action.

ROBERSONVILLE — Williamston High School's girls' softball team remained unbeaten yesterday, claiming a 6-2 victory over Roanoke in a Northeastern Conference game.

Roanoke scored two runs in the first inning to take the lead, but Williamston got its scoring started in the top of the second as J.C. Lilly hit a solo homer.

The Lady Tigers then came up with five in the fourth inning to move ahead, 6-2, and that lead stood.

No one on either team had more than one hit.

Roanoke is now 4-3 and travels to Roanoke Rapids on Friday. Williamston, 6-0 overall and 5-0 in league play, is slated to host Plymouth today.

CAPE HATTERAS — Kim Hale ripped a pair of triples and a double to lead Jamesville to a 7-2 victory over Cape Hatteras Tuesday in high school softball action.

Robin Manning went the distance on the mound for the Lady Bullets, allowing just one hit.

Robin Gardner drove in four runs with a pair of hits for Jamesville, while Kim Phelps, Senita Rodgers and Cindy Getchell went 2-4.

Jamesville opened the game with a pair of runs in the first, as Hale tripled in Kathy Williams and scored on a single by Gardner.

Hatteras knotted the score in the bottom half of the inning, but Jamesville took the lead again in the second. Byron grounded into a fielder's choice, but Sherry Lilley scored on the play to give the Bullets a 3-2 lead.

Hale tripled to open the third, and Gardner's grounder allowed Hale to score.

Williams singled to open the seventh, and Brown reached on an error. Gardner singled in Williams and Brown, and Rodgers followed with an RBI single.

Jamesville, which improved its overall mark to 6-0 with a Tobacco Belt record of 5-0, hosts Matamuskeet Friday. Cape Hatteras slipped to 1-2 with the loss.

ECU May Have Two Olympians

One former Pirate athlete is hoping, while a current Pirate is assured of becoming the first East Carolina University athletes to compete in the Olympic games this summer in Los Angeles.

Sam Jones, former Lady Pirate basketball player, is thought to be set; while Chema Larranaga, current member of the Pirate swim team, has been named to this year's Olympics.

Jones is 99 percent assured of being a member of this year's U.S. women's team handball club, while Larranaga will be a member of the men's swim team representing his home country of Peru.

"What Sam has done in the last two years is truly remarkable," Wayne Edwards, ECU's Intramural Department Director, said. Edwards is a member of the Board of Directors of the U.S. Handball teams. "Sam had never touched a handball or been on the court until the spring of 1982. I encouraged Sam to try out for the National Sports Festival in May of '82 to try and make the South team.

"She not only tried out and made the South team, but word of her great play, athletic ability and possible help on a higher level, led to Sam being invited to Lake Placid in June and she became a member of the United States National Team."

The story goes on like a dream-come-true for Sam, as she spent two weeks in Europe, participated in Sports Festival III in Indianapolis, went back to Europe in August of 1982 and then back to Lake Placid in January of 1983. Yet more travel came afterwards in Europe and Iceland.

Sam is due to report to Los Angeles this week for final tryouts and exhibition games with an announcement expected around the tenth on whether she has made the U.S. Olympic team.

"Whether Sam makes the team or not, and I see no way she cannot make it," Edwards said, "she will still travel to Japan and Korea in early summer. If she's on the Olympic team, then it's back to Los Angeles the end of July for training and the games.

"After the summer ends, Sam plans to return to East Carolina and complete her degree work. And perhaps even more exciting, is that Sam hopes to continue playing and training in team handball and try for the Olympics in 1988 in Seoul.

"We are all very proud of Sam and what she has done and the way she has represented East Carolina University," Edwards added. "Now, we wish her the best in hopefully representing the entire United States."

Swimmer Larranaga transferred to East Carolina this year from Daytona Beach Community College where he qualified last year for the NCAA National Championships and was a finalist for swimmer of the year.

A distance swimmer in freestyle events, Larranaga competed in the 1982 World Games in Guayaquil, Ecuador, and has swam fast enough times to qualify for his country's Olympic team this summer.

Olympic competition is not really new to Larranaga, as he represented Peru as the best long distance swimmer in the 1980 Olympic Games in Moscow.

"We are certainly very happy and proud of Chema," said swim coach Rick Kobe. "This is a tremendous honor for Chema personally, but also indicates the quality of swimmers we have in our program at East Carolina University."

While final confirmation must still come for Jones, it would appear almost certain that Pirate fans will watch two of their own in Olympic uniforms this summer — one for the United States and one for Peru.

Familiar Faces Spark Phils, 5-0

By BEN WALKER
AP Sports Writer

The defending National League champion Philadelphia Phillies, sporting a revamped lineup, once again relied on a couple of familiar faces on a rainy night in Georgia.

Mike Schmidt smacked a first-inning homer and Steve Carlton pitched seven strong innings as the Phillies — minus Pete Rose, Joe Morgan and Gary Matthews, among others — opened defense of their crown Tuesday night with a 5-0 triumph over the Atlanta Braves.

"That's the first time I've ever hit a home run my first at-bat in a season," smiled Schmidt after his solo blast over the center field fence.

Carlton allowed just two singles before Bill Campbell, acquired in March from the Chicago Cubs, pitched the final two innings, yielding two more hits.

"When you shut this club out, you're doing something," gushed Phillies Manager Paul Owens. "I thought it was outstanding."

In other NL openers Tuesday, Rose-paced Montreal topped Houston 4-2. St. Louis clubbed Los Angeles 11-7. Chicago downed San Francisco 5-3 and San Diego beat Pittsburgh 5-1.

Schmidt blasted a 1-0 pitch from Len Barker to get the Phillies rolling. The slugging third baseman said he approached the game with "a lot of anxiety" because he had never faced Barker.

"The home run set the key for the game," Owens said. "There was no doubt from the moment he hit it."

Atlanta Manager Joe Torre was full of praise for Carlton, who is trying to rebound from a 15-16 record in 1983, his first losing season in 10 years.

"Carlton was the game," Torre said. "I don't think we did anything to lose the game. Carlton won the game. It surprised me he had that much control this early."

The 39-year-old left-hander walked one and struck out six, raising his all-time leading strikeout total to 3,715 while winning his 301st career game.

Owens said he took out Carlton because "all we want out of our starters right now is a good seven innings. I think he threw in the 80s (pitches), and that's enough now."

Philadelphia scored twice in the fifth on Len Matuszek's RBI single and a throwing error by right fielder Claudell Washington before adding runs in the sixth, on a double by Bo Diaz, and in the eighth on a sacrifice fly by Garry Maddox.

Expos 4, Astros 2

Pete Rose went 2-for-5 in his Montreal debut while Andre Dawson sliced a run-scoring triple and Miguel Dilone added a two-run single as the Expos scored three times in the eighth inning to snap a 1-1 tie.

Rose, who signed with the Montreal after being released by Philadelphia, now has 3,992 career hits, 199 behind Ty Cobb's record 4,191. The 42-year-old first baseman is trying to atone for a .245 mark in 1983, the lowest average of his major-league career.

Tim Raines led off the eighth with a single against Houston starter and loser Joe Niekro. Dawson then followed with his triple down the right-field line.

Dilone's bases-loaded hit came after Niekro walked Gary Carter and reliever Bill Dawley intentionally walked pinch hitter Derral Thomas.

Charlie Lea went seven innings for the victory while Jeff Reardon recorded the final five outs for the save at the Astrodome.

Cardinals 11, Dodgers 7

Darrell Porter and Willie McGee each had three hits, including a home run, as St. Louis raked Fernando Valenzuela and Los Angeles for 17 hits.

The Cardinals, who had hitting woes during spring training, pounded Valenzuela for six runs on eight hits in his three-plus innings.

Porter belted a solo homer in the second and contributed an RBI triple during a five-run fourth. McGee's two-run homer came in the eighth.

Reliever Danny Cox pitched four scoreless innings for the victory and Bruce Sutter blanked Los Angeles with three hitless innings for a save.

Terry Whitfield, returning to the major leagues after playing three years in Japan, drilled a three-run homer for Los Angeles while Mike Marshall drove in three runs with a double and two singles.

The loss came before a crowd of 50,503 at Dodger Stadium.

Cubs 5, Giants 3

Keith Moreland and Ron Cey each homered as Chicago, with a new look under new Manager Jim Frey, sent host San Francisco to its fifth consecutive opening-day loss.

The Cubs got 12 hits, including two doubles and a single by Larry Bowa and a two-run double by Jody Davis. Chicago left fielder Gary Matthews, acquired from Philadelphia in March, batted third and went 1-for-3 while scoring a run. Center fielder Bob Dernier, part of the Matthews trade, batted leadoff and was 1-for-4.

Dick Ruthven gave up two runs on nine hits in 7 1-3 innings before Lee Smith came in for the save. Mark Davis took the loss.

Al Oliver, traded by Montreal to the Giants in the off-season, had two hits, scored a run and drove in another as 52,700 watched at Candlestick Park.

Padres 5, Pirates 1

Young sluggers Carmelo Martinez and Kevin McReynolds bashed home runs while San Diego got a quick dividend from its $10-million relief pitcher, Rich Gossage.

Padres starter Eric Show allowed three hits — all to Marvell Wynne — in seven innings before Gossage took over. The reliever, signed as a free agent after leaving the New York Yankees, finished up and did not allow a hit.

Consecutive doubles by Alan Wiggins and Tony Gwynn helped the host Padres take a 2-1 lead in the bottom of the first, and McReynolds homered in the second.

Martinez added a two-run homer in the sixth off Pittsburgh starter and loser Rick Rhoden.

ECAC-South To Expand With UNC-W, American

The ECAC-South will be expanding to eight schools with the beginning of the 1984-85 school year, as the University of North Carolina at Wilmington and Washington, D.C.'s, American University enter the league.

Current members are East Carolina, William & Mary, Richmond, James Madison, the U.S. Naval Academy, and George Mason.

Formed originally for men's basketball competition only, the ECAC-South expanded into various non-revenue sports for championships in 1983-84, and will expand once again next fall for more championships.

"We are becoming a conference in the true sense of the word and not just a basketball league," said Dean Ehlers, president of the ECAC-South and director of athletics at James Madison University. "There is now excitement to make this a full conference in all aspects. We will employ a promotions director with the intent of trying to arrange a television contract, and we will discuss adoption of additional conference rules and regulations."

Next year, the Pirates are scheduled to host the golf championship April 19-22.

The key for teams participating in the ECAC-South is the automatic bid into the NCAA Basketball championship. This year, the University of Richmond won the league's tournament, advanced through the first two games and finally felt to Indiana, the club that topped number one seed North Carolina.

"Richmond represented our league extremely well, I thought," said Pirate Director of Athletics Dr. Ken Karr. "James Madison has done well in past years. We are very pleased with our progress over the years in basketball, and now, we eagerly await a new era for our conference. We really have something strong to build upon with the addition of UNC-Wilmington and American University to our league and the addition of our championships for other sports."

Aycock Roars By Williamston

WILLIAMSTON — E.B. Aycock Junior High School romped to a 17-0 baseball victory over Williamston Junior High yesterday.

Tom Moye hurled the win, striking out 13 opposing hitters.

Moye, Robbie McDonald, Axel Smith and Jeff Mahoney each had two hits for Aycock. Jimmy Gillihan had a grand-slam homer and McDonald had a three-run blast, both coming in a ten-run fourth inning.

Aycock is now 2-0 and travels to New Bern on Thursday to face McDonald Junior High.

Championships will be staged in men's sports for basketball, golf, tennis, cross-country, soccer and outdoor track and field in 1984-85. Women's sports that will have championships are basketball, cross-country, volleyball and tennis.

A baseball championship is held, but it is in conjunction with the overall Eastern College Athletic Conference body.

The first women's basketball championship was held this year, that at East Carolina University, and was won by the Lady Pirates.

Compton Added To Commission

East Carolina University Sports Medicine Director Rod Compton has been appointed to the State Superintendent's Sports Medicine Advisory Commission for public education.

The purpose of the commission is to provide direction of the sports medicine program in its efforts to prevent deaths and disabling injuries to students participating in school sport activities in North Carolina public schools.

The appointment was made by Dr. A. Craig Phillips, State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Compton has been director of the Pirate Sports Medicine Division for 14 years.

Rose Jayvees Down Bruins

STANTONSBURG — Rose High School's junior varsity baseball team remained unbeaten in Big East Conference play yesterday, defeating Wilson Beddiefield, 8-1.

Tyrone Jones hurled the victory, allowing only two hits to the Baby Bruins.

Eric Jarman led the Rampant Cub hitting with three; while Dwight Smith and Jones each had two hits. Now 3-0, Rose plays at Kinston Thursday.

Reports 200 Soviet Warships In Maneuvers

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — A NATO official says more than 200 Soviet naval vessels, led by the nuclear-powered battle cruiser Kirov and including an estimated 20 submarines, are taking part in what may be the biggest Soviet seaborne exercise ever.

He said the maneuvers in the North Atlantic and the Norwegian Sea were intended to demonstrate the Soviets' ability "to protect the homeland."

The NATO naval source in London said Tuesday night that the exercise included battle groups from two Soviet fleets and surpassed any previous show of Soviet naval strength in the Atlantic.

But he said it was believed to be "primarily of a defensive nature." A main object of the games, expected to end next week, is to test Soviet anti-submarine capabilities, he added.

The source, who asked not to be named, said the maneuvers involved ships from the Soviets' "Red Banner" Northern and Baltic fleets. At least 25 major surface warships, led by the 22,000-ton Kirov, are at sea from Norway's North Cape to the Faroe Islands north of Scotland, the source said. They are supported by amphibious warfare ships, auxiliary supply vessels and submarines.

U.S. officials said Tuesday the exercises involved at least 100 warships.

A "significant" number of Soviet warplanes, including the new strategic Tupolev bomber codenamed "Blackjack" by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, are involved, the NATO source reported.

British naval intelligence sources, who asked not to be identified, said the exercise is designed to test defenses around the Kola peninsula adjoining Norway's border with the Soviet Union and the big naval base at Murmansk and to test the Kremlin's command control of far-flung naval operations.

The United States is carrying out exercises called Global Shield '84 coincidental to the Soviet exercises, Marine Maj. Jim Pisciotano, a Pentagon spokesman, said Tuesday night. But he said these war games by the Strategic Air Command had been planned for several months. Other Defense Department officials stressed that the U.S. exercises have no connection to the Soviet sea maneuvers.

The U.S. exercise calls for the air force to launch two intercontinental ballistic missiles, scramble its B-52 bombers, fire an air-launched cruise missile and drop dummy bombs. Pisciotano said. At the same time, key military officers and government officials will speed to alternate command posts where they can ride out a mock attack.

The Soviet sea exercise follows a major buildup in Soviet naval power. The Atlantic maneuvers coincided with other Soviet and Warsaw Pact exercises in the Baltic, the Mediterranean, the Indian Ocean and the Caribbean.

The NATO source said the Soviets may have timed the Atlantic exercise for when they reckoned most NATO warships would be in port — after a major Western naval exercise, Teamwork 84, had just been held to demonstrate NATO's ability to counter Soviet incursions into the Atlantic.

British officials said Western intelligence and NATO's surveillance network monitored the Soviet war games since they apparently began last Wednesday. They said British, U.S., Dutch, West German, Norwegian and Danish reconnaissance planes and ships are watching the Soviet fleets.

Officials denied the maneuvers caught Western allies napping.

Sources said the ships were under surveillance almost from the moment they left port. What seems to have come as a surprise was the speed with which the Soviets got their fleets to sea.

NATO defense ministers meeting in Turkey are being briefed on reports from NATO spy planes and warships on the Soviet exercise.

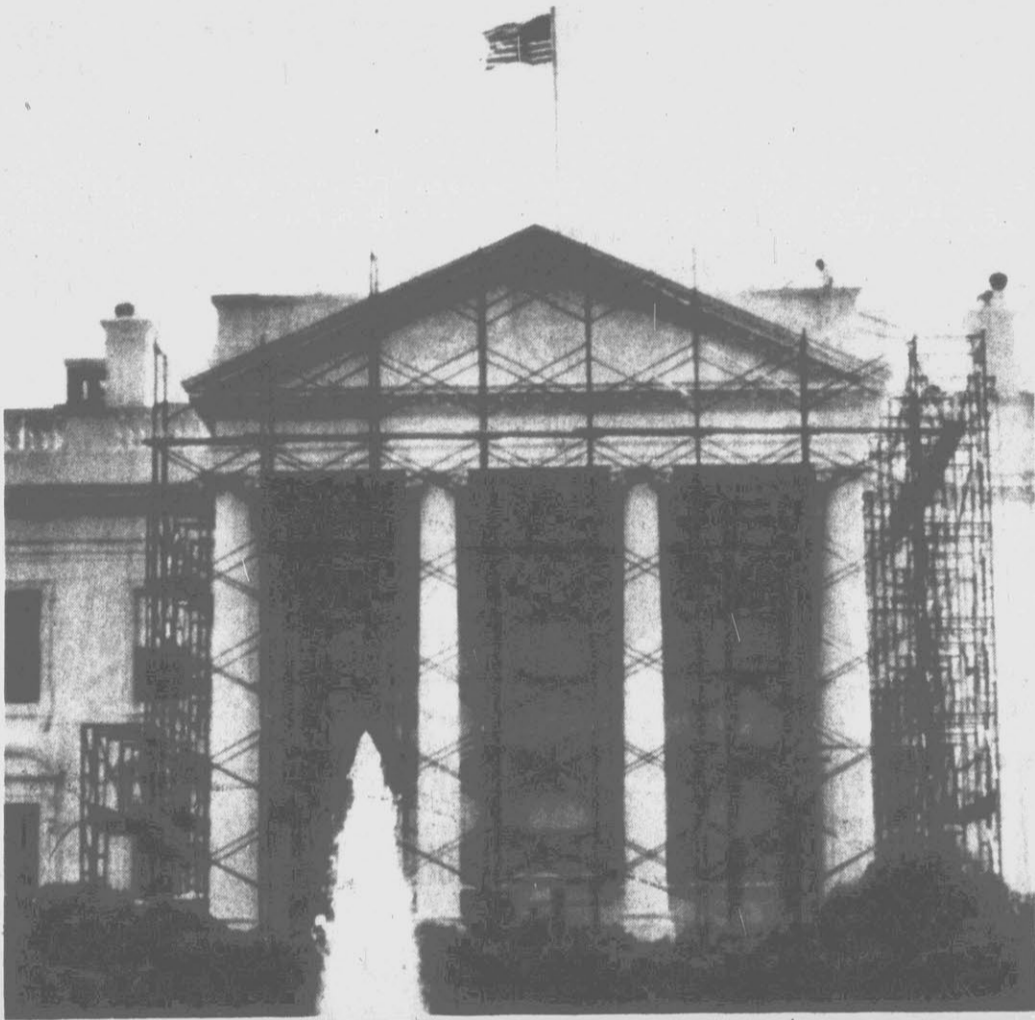

NATO planners have been concerned over the recent buildup in the Soviet submarine force.

Construction of new Soviet aircraft carriers and missile cruisers also have given the Kremlin the naval muscle to widen their operations on a global scale. And Western intelligence sources noted there has been major upgrading in the Kremlin's control, command and communications systems for directing world-wide naval operations by its four battle fleets.

The sources said the Soviet maneuvers fit in with Moscow's long-term strategy for using its burgeoning naval strength to project an aggressive foreign policy.

Downturn Seen For Recruiting

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite optimistic statements from Pentagon leaders, military manpower chiefs are warning of "clear signs of a downturn" in recruiting and looming trouble maintaining a quality volunteer armed force.

Senior personnel officers have raised the warning signals while Defense Department civilian leaders boast of successes by all services in meeting recruiting and re-enlistment goals.

There have been three straight bountiful recruiting years, with 1983 hailed by the Pentagon as the best ever. And the successes have continued into early 1984, according to Pentagon reports.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger has set the tone for the civilian leadership in the Pentagon in hailing these successes without indicating any difficulties ahead.

As recently as last week, Weinberger said in a speech to the American Security Council, a defense-oriented organization, that "our biggest success story is our people."

"Retention and recruiting successes are coming at a time when the economy is improving, a time when skeptics said young Americans would turn their backs on the military," Weinberger said.

But earlier in March, the personnel chiefs of the Army, Navy and Air Force all were demonstrating concern in reports to Congress and all mentioned improvement in the economy and a drop in unemployment as major factors in this concern.

"Though 1983 recruiting achievement was the best of any year since the end of the draft for all Army components, we must heed warning signals," Lt. Gen. Robert Elton, Army deputy chief of staff for personnel, testified before Congress.

"There are clear signs of a downturn and we are concerned about them. Our nation's economy continues to mend, the unemployment rate continues to drop, and young Americans have other options," Elton said.

He said that "the trend is downward in our key measure," the number of male high-school graduate recruits who score high in entrance examinations. Elton provided no specific figures.

Vice Adm. William P. Lawrence, deputy chief of naval operations for manpower, said that "competition from the civilian sector for recruits with high education levels and training potential is increasing."

Lawrence said projections for this year indicate a drop of about 12 percent in recruiting of high school diploma graduates and a decline of 6 percent in recruits from what he called the "upper mental group."

"All the indicators associated with more difficult recruiting conditions are appearing," Lawrence said.

"The youth labor pool is decreasing. The unemployment rate is declining. Military pay is not keeping pace with wage growth in the private sector," he said.

Air Force Lt. Gen. Kenneth Peek Jr., deputy chief of staff for manpower, predicted that 1985 "will signal a change from the trends of recent years."

Like his counterparts in the Army and Navy, Peek spoke of "falling unemployment rates, the improving economy and a declining youth cohort group (as) the major reasons for our concern."

The "youth cohort group" refers to a phenomenon that military manpower officials have worried about for years — a drop in the total number of young men of military age in the U.S. population.

The military manpower chiefs all urged Congress to keep in force enlistment and re-enlistment bonuses and to shield recruiting budgets, including funds for advertising, from cutbacks.

Burning Homes At Greater Rate

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — New statistics from an insurance company indicate homeowners are burning their homes at an increasing rate, despite an overall downturn in arson.

Figures recently released by Aetna Life & Casualty show a 2 percent drop in 1983 in arson in general but a 6 percent increase in arsons in single-family homes, compared with 1982.

Arsons-for-profit — fires company officials believe were set by homeowners themselves — rose 20 percent in 1983, destroying about $11 million worth of property.

At the same time, the director of the company's arson and fraud unit said, there was a 12 percent decline in arsons in commercial buildings Aetna insures, and a 25 percent drop in arson-for-profit.

John S. Barracato attributed the continued growth in homeowner arson to owners' inability to recover quickly from the latest economic slump.

CONCERT TONIGHT — The East Carolina University School of Music Flute Ensemble will be in concert at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall at ECU. The concert, one of the university's events of the Eastern Carolina Arts Festival, is free and open to the public. Kelly Via, bottom row, right, will direct the concert.

CBS Continues Hold On To Nielsen Lead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — CBS held on to the top spot in the Nielsen ratings for the week ended April 1 despite giving its big gun, "Dallas," a rest and yielding the number-one show honors to ABC's "Dynasty."

The two nighttime soap operas have been locked in a struggle for first place, with first one taking the lead, then the other. But "Dallas" sat out the week to make way for another visit from Dorothy and the denizens from "The Wizard of Oz."

"Dynasty," however, was the only ABC entry in the Top 10, accounting for its overall second-place finish behind CBS. Third-place NBC had two shows in the Top 10.

The seesaw battle for first place began with the week ended March 11, when "Dallas" was first and "Dynasty" was second. The following week they switched positions (it was the first win of the season for "Dynasty"). Last week "Dallas" was again first and "Dynasty" was second.

This week "Dallas" and "Falcon Crest" were pre-empted for the annual presentation of "The Wizard of Oz." It was the 25th time on network television for the 1939 classic, which stars Judy Garland as Dorothy. Seventeen of those times have been on CBS and eight on NBC.

CBS won the week with a network average of 17.4 in the A.C. Nielsen Co. survey. ABC was second with 16.0 and NBC was third with 14.0. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute, 17.4 percent of the TV homes were tuned to CBS.

CBS kept its season-to-date lead. The ratings: CBS 18.1, ABC 17.2, NBC 15.0.

CBS won seven places in the Top 10. NBC won two, including a ninth-place tie (with "Oz") for "Flight 90: Disaster on the Potomac," a movie recreating the crash of an Air Florida jet into the Potomac River in Washington, D.C., on Jan. 13, 1982. First-place "Dynasty" was ABC's only entry.

The new CBS comedy, "Kate & Allie," which made its debut the previous week in fourth place, stayed in the Top 10 in eighth place. It's the first time a half-hour comedy has been in the Top 10 since the premiere of "AfterMASH" at the beginning of the fall season.

"Cagney & Lacey," the police show making a return to CBS, slipped out of the Top 10 to 12th place.

Once again the lowest-rated show of the week was NBC's "First Camera."

Seeing Double In TV Show

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "Double Trouble," NBC's new comedy about identical teen-age twins, isn't twice as good or twice as bad as other youth-oriented programs. It's somewhere between, alternating between sweet and silly but, most of the time, attaining an appealing cuteness.

The new series, debuting tonight and getting an eight-episode trial for possible inclusion in NBC's fall schedule, is never boorish or insulting like some other sitcoms.

"Double Trouble" has the same zesty cheerfulness that commercials strive for, so it shouldn't be surprising that the show's 22-year-old stars, Liz and Jean Sagal, have appeared in TV ads for Doublemint gum.

Allison Foster (Liz Sagal) is the A student with the angelic demeanor, while Kate Foster (Jean Sagal) is the more devilish cut-up. She's never really evil, just irresponsible and selfish.

women who become roommates. Separating NBC's Kate and Allie will be harder. Allison wears a ponytail and doesn't change clothes tonight, which make it easier to keep the twins sorted.

Actually, they haven't always looked so identical. The sisters, who are professional dancers, were cast in "Grease 2," but got the parts individually in separate casting calls — one in Los Angeles, one in New York.

In the first episode, Allison is doing a debt paper on Saturday night. Kate, of course, thinks Saturday is for dates and Sunday is for cramming. "Sunday is for pro-freading," counters Allison.

The all-sugar, all-spice split personalities harken back to "The Patty Duke Show" of 20 years ago. In that series, Miss Duke played both the bubble-gum chewing American teen-ager Patty Lane and her prim and proper Scottish cousin, Cathy. At critical moments, they would switch personalities.

Similarly, the sisters' different style and attitude will be the core of "Double Trouble," so you can expect many lines like this: "One of us is definitely adopted," says Kate. They also will do a lot of role-switching.

It's all light-hearted stuff. The problems don't seem destined to get too heavy, sticking more to pranks and youthful hijinks. Don't expect any episodes about abortion.

It's odd that this is a 9:30 p.m. EST show. It would seem better suited for 8 or 8:30. Perhaps, the rationale is that "Facts of Life," NBC's highest-rated comedy, which is on at 9 on Wednesdays, comes from the same studio — Embassy — and might be an effective springboard for "Double Trouble."

Tonight, Kate has just flunked her written exam for a driver's license. She won't study the manual because it's "boring." She gets in a bind when she needs transportation to a concert by the rock group Police, but her sister is doing homework, her boyfriend is working and her recently widowed father is on a date.

Since it's already been made clear that Kate can drive (she just can't read the signs so well), the predictable plot is on its way, with Kate taking her dad's car and Allison's license, getting into a minor mishap and assuming her sister's identity.

The twins' father, Art, is not as foolish as some TV dads, nor will he remind anybody of the wise Robert Young in "Father Knows Best." Donnelly Rhodes plays the part with his eyebrows in a constant state of excitement. His return to dating will be a continuing thread.

Audiences not hooked on ABC's competing constant state of sexual arousal on "Dynasty" will likely find "Double Trouble" affable and amusing. The twins' dad, for example, wouldn't be the first representative of the older generation to confuse the name of a rock group. He called The Police The Cops.

But the humor is never sophisticated, in the manner of CBS's terrific new comedy, "Kate & Allie," starring Susan Saint James and Jane Curtin as two divorced

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — ARE THE DIMPLED BUT-CHEER'S SIDEBURNS CALLED MUTTON CHOPS?
 Today's Cryptoquip clue: J equals A

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Some Questions Won't Go Away In U.S. Hunt For Southeast Asia's MIA

By TIM AHERN
 Associated Press Writer
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Moments after Col. Robert Anderson's F-4 jet fighter was hit Oct. 6, 1972, the Air Force pilot bailed out into the dense North Vietnamese jungle, where he landed safely and radioed for help.
 Anderson, of Battle Creek, Mich., told would-be rescuers that he was in good shape and could not see any enemy troops. That was the last time Anderson was heard from.
 His fate is part of one of the questions that won't go away more than a decade after the end of America's longest and most divisive war: what happened to Anderson and 2,489 other men and women who are still unaccounted for in the Southeast Asian conflict?
 In many ways, Anderson is typical of the Vietnam missing in action. He was an airman — 80 percent of the names on the list are aviators — and the U.S. government has no clues to his whereabouts since his last radio transmission.

Nearly half the people on the list are known to be dead, and most of the others are believed to have perished. Still, however, questions persist as the government tries to close the books on the last of the 2.6 million people who took part in the war.
 President Reagan has pledged that an accounting is the "highest national priority," and the Defense Intelligence Agency says it checks out all reports of sightings of possible American prisoners.
 Eleven years after the American ground combat role ended on March 29, 1973, one of the recurring questions is whether any American captives are still being held. In 1973, 591 American prisoners of war returned to a joyful homecoming.
 The official Pentagon position is that "although we have thus far been unable to prove that Americans are still detained against their will, the information available to us precludes ruling out that possibility."

Privately, Pentagon officials say they think there may be a few Americans being held captive. No one has any hard evidence, and these officials say they are going only on hunches.
 While the Vietnam list of 2,490 names may seem long, it's far smaller than the lists of missing in action from the two major preceding wars. There still are 8,800 men unaccounted for from the Korean War and 78,000 missing from World War II.
 A number of possible explanations have been advanced in the cases of airmen whose planes crashed.
 Many probably were unable to bail out and perished in wreckage which was never found. Others may have died on the ground but their bodies were never recovered. Some injured pilots may have wandered off into the jungle and died without their bodies being found, or they may have been captured.
 From 1965 to 1973, fighters and bombers operated virtually around the clock from bases in Southeast Asia and from four aircraft carriers that operated in the South China Sea.
 American pilots flew more than 1.8 million missions, and giant B-52 bombers accounted for an additional 117,794 flights. Helicopters, widely used in warfare for the first time, made 11.8 million sorties.
 Many of those flights encountered fierce ground fire and more than 3,000 planes and 4,000 helicopters were shot down.
 Although many of the pilots were recovered, hundreds of others were lost when their crippled planes crashed into the sea. They are considered unaccounted for, even though there are no hopes they have survived.
 Hundreds of other planes and helicopters crashed in the dense jungles, where ground cover was so thick that it hid wreckage unless rescuers were literally standing on it. Even then, it was often difficult to spot.
 The Pentagon says it knows for sure that about 1,200 of the missing were killed. In those instances, planes were seen to crash and burn or plunge into the sea, or a man was seen disappearing when hit by an artillery round or rocket.
 These men are listed as unaccounted for, however, because there is no physical evidence — such as an identifiable body part like a fingerprint — to support claims by witnesses and rule out the possibility, however slight, that the Americans escaped harm.
 Pentagon officials say they believe the communist governments of Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia have far more information than has been disclosed about what happened to the missing men.

 These officials say the North Vietnamese kept lengthy, detailed records and published large amounts of information on specific airplane downings during the war.
 The Pentagon scoffs at assertions by the Vietnamese that they have turned over all the information they have on the MIAs. Vietnam produces small amounts of information on a regular basis, U.S. officials note, particularly after American pressure is increased.
 Why would the Vietnamese withhold information? No one knows for sure, but Pentagon officials note that in the first years after the war ended, Hanoi publicly linked recovery of missing Americans with fulfillment of a clause in the 1973 peace agreement that calls for U.S. aid in rebuilding Vietnam.
 Last month, Vietnam told a high-level U.S. delegation to Hanoi that it would treat the MIA question apart from any other issue.
 This raised public hopes for a speedier resolution of some MIA cases.

led a diamond to the ace. When West dropped the queen, the hand was over. Declarer's play catered to all diamond divisions. It is obvious how the play would proceed if the suit divided 3-2 or if either defender had a singleton honor. But what if the suit broke 4-1 or 5-0, with a defender having both missing honors?
 Declarer continues with a low diamond to the jack. No matter which defender has diamond length, declarer will always come to a second trick in the suit. Try it.

Have you been running into double trouble? Let Charles Goren help you find your way through the maze of DOUBLES for penalties and for takeout. How you play a particular card combination varies according to how many tricks you need to get from the suit. On this hand, the diamond suit is the key. How would you tackle the suit?
 The auction was straightforward. South showed a balanced hand of no more than 15 points, and North saw no point in showing his diamond support—why try for an eleven-trick contract when a perfectly acceptable no trump game was available?
 Now let's go back to the question we posed at the end of the opening paragraph. If declarer needs three tricks in diamonds, he must guess which opponent is shorter in the suit. If he elects to play West for the shortness, the right play is to lead a low diamond toward the jack and, if West goes up with an honor, then to cross to the table and finesse the ten of diamonds. If declarer thinks that East is short in diamonds, he should start the suit from the board and finesse the ten on the first round.
 On this hand, however, declarer has eight fast tricks. Therefore, he needs to develop only one extra diamond trick for his contract. In addition, the enemy has started a suit in which he has three stoppers, so he has plenty of time in which to develop a second diamond trick.
 If the suit splits 3-2, it makes no difference how declarer goes about his job. What if the break is 4-1, or even 5-0?
 At the table, declarer won the heart lead in dummy and Trend In Births Is Down For U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — As America's "Baby Boom" generation ages the number of births in the country is declining and there may be little prospect of reversing that trend, a new government study indicates.
 Both weddings and divorces also are on the decline — the first drop in nearly a decade in marriages — the National Center for Health Statistics reported.
 But the nation's death rate in 1983 was about the same as the year before, although infant deaths declined, the center added.
 The provisional vital statistics report for 1983 showed a 2 percent drop in births to 3,614,000.
 A major reason for the decline in births is that the population in the child-bearing years is beginning to age, the report said. With the post-war Baby Boom generation getting older, there was a decline in the number of women aged 15 to 25 last year, and that group accounts for half of all births, the report said.
 In addition there has been a general decline in the nation's fertility rate, the report said. It fell to 65.4 live births per 1,000 women aged 15 to 44, down 4 percent from 1982.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 5, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: After an early morning upset, you will be able to handle whatever arises in a resourceful manner, especially if you do so with more than usual charm and cleverness.
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) If you don't argue over money with partners, you find that later you can discuss matters between you objectively.
TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) An associate can give you trouble in the morning, but later you can work out a monetary matter well and forget it.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Forget that worry about some job in the morning, and later you can go after what you most want and get it.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Steer clear of a demanding new acquaintance in the morning, and later you can plan a new campaign of action.
LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Avoid an irate higher-up and be with the persons you like. Make sure your car is in good running order.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Forget making some drastic and costly changes, and get into your duties with vim and vigor. Don't be afraid to ask for a favor.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't carp over a debt, but put some new ideas to work that can bring you added income quickly. Learn from new contacts.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Avoid a partner who is irate. Be with your mate for a delightful day and evening. Show that you are practical.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Steer clear of a disturbed co-worker, and then talk over with clever friends how you want the relationships to trend.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get busy at duties ahead of you. Don't spend money on pleasure. Make your home life more charming by changing your attitude.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get into some form of recreation in the outdoors that can relieve the tensions you are under. Express some talent you have.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get home affairs nicely handled, and don't go flying off on some tangent. Bring out that Piscean charm and make others happy.
IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be a little slower than others, but upon reaching the teens, this changes, and the reasoning power gets stronger. He or she will be good at debates and sizing up situations quickly and accurately.

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — A Belgian doctor and nurse-midwife have been freed by rebel forces in Chad who took them prisoner more than two months ago, the Belgian Foreign Ministry reports.

A Third 'Porky' Film On Horizon

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Twentieth Century-Fox will produce the third installment of the successful "Porky's" movie saga with "Porky's Revenge," directed by James Komack. The studio was inspired to make a second sequel to the grungy teen sex series on the strength of the success of the first two films. "Porky's," released in 1982, and "Porky's — The Next Day," released last year, have jointly earned a worldwide box-office gross of more than $200 million.
 The new film will begin production later this year for distribution in theaters at Easter 1985, in time to capture the spring break crowd from the nation's high schools and colleges.

The Alliance

The North Atlantic Treaty was signed by delegates from twelve nations 35 years ago today. 16 nations now belong to NATO, each very different from the other. The largest — Canada — covers 3.8 million square miles. The smallest is Luxembourg at 1,000. More than 15 languages are spoken in NATO countries. Most populous is the U.S., with more than 230 million people. Only slightly more than 230,000 people inhabit the least populous member — Iceland.

Defer Battle On Surcharge

By DAVID GOELLER

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate leaders have agreed to postpone until after the 1984 elections a congressional fight over whether credit-card users will have to pay more than cash customers.

The agreement calls for enactment of a House-passed compromise bill that would extend until May 31, 1985, the law that has forbidden businesses from adding surcharges to credit purchases. The law expired Feb. 27, but there have been only isolated reports of merchants adding extra charges to the bills of credit customers.

The extension bill passed 355-34 by the House on Tuesday in the face of a mass appeal by American Express for its 8 million U.S. cardholders to write Congress protesting against surcharges.

The bill calls upon the Federal Trade Commission and the Government Accounting Office, the investigative wing of Congress, to study the extra fees.

A recent study by the Federal Reserve Board concluded that because a merchant must give a percentage of each credit sale to the card company, cash and credit customers are paying higher prices for goods and services.

Critical of this finding is the chairman of the House Banking consumer subcommittee, Rep. Frank Annunzio. The Illinois Democrat, who favors a permanent ban on surcharges, predicts the new study will prove his contention that extra fees will mean higher prices for many people and lower prices for none.

In the Senate, which last month passed a bill authorizing surcharges of up to 5 percent, Banking Committee Chairman Jake Garn, R-

Utah, feels differently.

"We still feel any study will prove that cash is cheaper than credit," said a Garn spokesman who asked to remain anonymous.

"We have agreed to the House bill," the spokesman said. He added that Garn believes his committee "will follow his lead."

The spokesman said he had no idea when the Senate committee would act on the bill. "If it is slowed, it won't be because he has any anxiety over the compromise," he said. "It will be because of other work."

The spokesman said election-year politics was involved in the decision to put off a showdown on the surcharge issue until next year.

"We've had the feeling all along the House felt this very volatile political issue was something they would like to deal with after the election," he said. "This accomplishes that."

During the House debate, Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., argued that the federal government should not dictate merchandising and pricing mechanisms to the private sector.

"Let's experiment with surcharges being allowed and then we'll have some real information," Frank said.

Annunzio said another temporary extension of the ban would recognize "the reality that we live in a credit card economy" where seven out of 10 households regularly use plastic money.

"It is not the rich who are credit card beneficiaries," Annunzio said. "It is the men and women who work for a living."

He argued that credit cards are a "life-support system" for Americans facing unexpected but necessary expenditures.

Torture Said To Be Commonplace

By MAUREEN JOHNSON

Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Amnesty International said today that at least a third of the world's nations torture or otherwise abuse prisoners in ways ranging from "routine" beatings to killing and mutilation.

The London-based human rights organization, winner of the 1977 Nobel Peace Prize, issued in a 263-page report titled "Torture in the Eighties." It listed series abuses in 66 countries and referred briefly to problems in 32 other countries.

Overall, Amnesty said, the prevalence of torture merited the same worldwide condemnation which the World War II Nazi extermination camps had aroused.

"Revulsion at the extermination camps of the World War II led to a convention outlawing genocide for all time. Today's torture chambers demand a similar international response — a convention to enforce the prohibition of torture," the report said.

The review, which covered 1980 to mid-1983, was the beginning of what Amnesty said would be a long-term campaign to expose and end "torture as a tool of state policy."

Among examples of cruelty it cited were pain-inducing drugs given to Soviet dissidents held in psychiatric clinics and, in Iran's Evin prison, forcing small children to watch their mothers being tortured.

The report noted specialized torture methods used in Syria and Chile and "routinely" administered beatings, electrical and acid torture in many Latin American and African police cells.

A section on right-wing Guatemala said "few of many thousands abducted" during the 1978-82 regime of President Romeo Lucas Garcia had survived.

A few Western nations were singled out. Spain persistently tortured or otherwise abused prisoners — mainly Basque separatists, the report said.

While torture was not common in Italy, allegations had increased of suspected Red Brigades terrorists being mistreated, it said.

The United States was among 32 nations referred to briefly. Amnesty said it had made "several inquiries" about guards said to have beaten or kicked prisoners or sprayed tear gas into their faces at state penal institutions.

There also were reports from the United States of police beating suspects, it added, noting that in "some cases" victims were paid damages and officials were fined or jailed.

Amnesty press spokesman Mark Grantham said it would not be right to identify any of the U.S. institutions since "in all cases officials replied and said the complaints were under investigation."

Amnesty did not try to pinpoint the worst offenders in its world listings.

Its report was timed partly to draw attention to a proposed new U.N. anti-torture convention.

"Torture can be stopped," the report declared. "What is lacking is the political will of governments to stop torturing people."

Testing Ground Beneath Alamo

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Engineers planned to set up a well-drilling rig in front of the Alamo to test whether underground streams are causing the historic mission to crumble.

The inside and outside surfaces of the building, which survived Mexican general Santa Anna's wrath 148 years ago, are deteriorating, says an official for the engineering firm doing the study. The rig to explore the problem was to be set up today.

Charles Reid of Dabney Byrn & Associates said the crumbling poses no immediate threat to the Alamo since the walls are 3 feet thick.

Find Lost FDR Text

HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP) — President Franklin D. Roosevelt's "Day of Infamy" speech, missing since he delivered it to a joint session of Congress, has been discovered by an archivist thumbing through a pile of Senate documents.

The reading copy of the speech had been missing since Dec. 8, 1941 — the day after the Japanese bombing of Pearl Harbor. Roosevelt read from it as he asked Congress for a declaration of war against Japan, saying Dec. 7 was "a date which will live in infamy."

William Emerson, director of the Franklin Delano Roosevelt Library here, said that "in the flurry of excitement it was probably left on the podium."

But, he added, "A joint session of Congress, which is required for a declaration of war, is held in the House chamber — not the Senate. So it's an even deeper mystery as to how it got in the Senate papers."

Emerson said the archivist, Susan Cooper, was looking through the papers in Washington last month while putting together an exhibit to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the National Archives. While perusing them, she found the Roosevelt speech.

"It was pure serendipity," Emerson said.

He said he is certain the copy is authentic because Roosevelt was in the habit of signing his reading copies to indicate he had looked over the speech, and often entered the date and time.

Emerson called the discovery of the long-lost speech "sentimental rather than substantive."

"It's not going to change the historic record," he said. "We know what the speech was. We have it on tape and in movies."

But he said the reading copy will enhance the nation's collection of Roosevelt's papers.

Emerson said the speech probably will go on display in the National Archives Building in Washington, although he claimed it for the FDR museum on the grounds of his family home overlooking the Hudson River.

All of the presidential libraries are part of the National Archives.

Emerson said that for years the speech was believed to be in the possession of FDR's eldest son, James. But James Roosevelt recently said he had no memory of what had happened to the speech.

How Tar Heels Voted In The House, Senate

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes March 22-28.

HOUSE
VETO — By a vote of 309 for and 81 against, the House overrode President Reagan's veto of a bill (S684) authorizing $180 million over five years for water research projects conducted at land-grant institutions in each state.

This followed a similar Senate vote and enacted the legislation, which the president had denounced as an inappropriate federal activity. Four of Reagan's 23 vetoes have not been overridden. The bill extends a Great Society program launched in 1964.

Supporter Jim Moody, D-Wis., said "these monies are rather minor relative to the vast benefits which accrue from the water research institutes and their programs."

Opponent Henry Hyde, R-Ill., said "there is an element of hypocrisy, not to say intellectual dishonesty, in continuing to complain about the deficit and refusing to support the president in this veto."

Members voting yes wanted to override the president's veto.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were Walter Jones, D-1; Ike Andrews, D-4; Stephen Neal, D-5; Charles Britt, D-6; Charles Rose, D-7; W.G. Hefner, D-8; James Martin, R-9; James Broyhill, R-10; and James Clarke, D-11.

No North Carolina member voted no.

Not voting were Tim Valentine, D-2; and Charles Whitley, D-3.

loans, and spends more on sending surplus commodities abroad and providing credit guarantees to farm exporters.

Supporter David Boren, D-Okla., said "we simply must act now if we are to prevent a collapse in the agricultural sector."

Opponent Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., said "we must end these overblown price support programs (and) stop paying taxpayers' money for idle farmland and useless crops."

Senators voting yes supported the farm bill.

North Carolina senators John East, R, and Jesse Helms, R, both voted yes.

COMPENSATE — By a vote of 61 for and 34 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to compensate farmers who lost grain when the elevator storing it went bankrupt. Farmers in that predicament were to have received a payment-in-kind loan from government stocks, repayable over ten years. The amendment was offered to HR 4072 (above).

Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who voted to kill the amendment, said it was wrong "to create a whole new government program to assist a relatively small group of persons," particularly when other federal programs are available to ease their plight.

David Pryor, D-Ark., said the amendment would "bring some equity to the lives of some 3,600 farmers across the country" who lost stored grain as a result of elevators going bankrupt.

Senators voting no wanted special compensation for farmers harmed by elevator bankruptcies.

North Carolina senators John East, R, and Jesse Helms, R, both voted yes.

U.S. And Canada Settle Old Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States and Canada have formally settled their most protracted border dispute by agreeing to a treaty hailed as a model for settling other differences between the two nations.

The treaty settles a 42-year-old argument over the Skagit River Valley between British Columbia and the state of Washington. The 80-year pact staves off proposed U.S. flooding of Canadian lands in exchange for a Canadian guarantee of extra electrical power to Seattle.

The price of the power was calculated to match the estimated cost of a now-abandoned project to raise the height of High Ross Dam to get more hydro-electric power, said officials of the U.S.-Canada International Joint Commission, which negotiated the agreement.

"The signing is evidence of our ability to work together to resolve seemingly insoluble trans-boundary environmental problems," said Canadian External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen.

England Biggest Investor In 18th Century Colony

By EDITH M. LEDERER
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Some all-American institutions, such as McDonald's hamburgers, Standard Oil Co. of Ohio and Travelodge motels, have a decidedly English accent these days.

Since Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservative government abolished currency controls in October 1979, British investment overseas has flourished and business executives see no end in sight with the American economy booming.

British industrial, banking and portfolio investments in the United States are valued at more than $115 billion, according to a compilation of 1980-1982 figures from the U.S. government, the Bank of England and London stockbrokers.

The British are now the leading major investors in U.S. corporations, according to 1982 figures compiled by the U.S. Commerce Department.

"Sounds like we're trying to get the colonies back," said Peter Warman, financial director of the British Car Auction group, which has invested $45 million in the United States since 1981 and become the second largest American auto auction chain.

"At the moment there is a tremendous interest of companies to invest in the United States," said Walter Goldsmith, chairman of the Institute of Directors, which represents top executives of major British corporations. "We are seeing a revolution in this country toward management being outward looking."

Rocco Forte, chief executive of Trusthouse Forte, which solely or jointly owns or franchises the 546-unit Travelodge chain and is expanding into luxury motels and exclusive hotels, said bigger British companies have to look overseas to expand.

"The United States is an unashamed capitalist system. The creation of wealth is not frowned upon. You go into the United States and everything is possible. In this country, in the past, people who made money were frowned on and even hounded and persecuted," he said.

"Mrs. Thatcher has changed the attitude toward business and I'm now very bullish on Britain ... But on an international scale in the hotel market, the United States is very important. It's a growing economy and one wants to be in it for that reason," said Forte, whose American operations made $17.9 million profit in 1983.

Rival hoteliers Grand Metropolitan have also expanded into the U.S. market, buying the Intercontinental hotel chain from Pan American World Airways in 1981 for $500 million.

In the food industry, England's Northern Foods bought Keystone Foods of Philadelphia in 1982 for $60 million and became the biggest manufacturer of McDonald's hamburgers. Bluebird Inc., its first American venture, claims to be the largest producer of cooked, canned and smoked hams in the United States.

Hanson Trust got into the U.S. market 10 years ago and runs a $1.64 billion operation producing everything from shoes to fish meal, lace and Ball Park frankfurters. Its Volume Services group will be providing all the eats and drinks at the Summer Olympics in Los Angeles.

The British have hardly missed an industry. They're in mining, oil, chemicals, metals, machinery, textiles, lumber, paper, finance, insurance, real estate, agriculture, fishing and construction.

The U.S. Commerce Department's latest figures estimate British banking assets in the United States were estimated at $28.28 billion in 1980, the last year for which it had figures, and all other industries at $68.4 billion dollars in 1981.

On portfolio investments, estimates for 1982 by the Bank of England and brokers Phillips and Drew put investments made by unit trusts at $1.72 billion, by investment trusts at $4.75 billion and by pension funds at $12.15 billion. Unit trusts are roughly equivalent to U.S. mutual funds, and investment trusts are those in which investors hold shares in the fixed capital of a company.

The British are ranked first in their amount of direct investment in U.S. corporations, according to 1982 figures of the U.S. Commerce Department. Using the standard of investors who acquired at least 10 percent of an American company's value, the department said direct foreign investment in U.S. corporations totaled $101.8 billion, with the United Kingdom accounting for $23.3 billion, followed by the Netherlands at $21.4 billion and Canada at $9.8 billion.

State-owned British Petroleum probably has the biggest investment in the United States — a 53 percent interest in Sohio valued at about $8 billion plus about $2 billion mainly in oil exploration territory and mineral rights.

"We're in there because the States is the biggest energy market in the world ... and one of the healthiest and most prosperous," said BP spokesman Peter Smedley.

Not every British investment across the Atlantic has been profitable.

Less than three years ago, London's Midland Bank paid $798 million for a 57 percent stake in California's Crocker Bank, America's 12th largest bank. Today, the investment is valued at $330 million.

Procter & Gamble began as a small candle and soap company more than 140 years ago. It grew in the candle business and then into the soap and cleaning products business. It moved into household paper products, coffee, food, and industrial products. The Greenville facility produces incontinence briefs, and maxi sanitary napkins and is Procter & Gamble's first of two North Carolina plants.

The Greenville plant began construction in 1975. The site is located on 100 acres north of the City of Greenville. 14 acres are under roof.

The plant cost approximately $125 million. The Carolina/Greenville area plant was completed last year. This included over $10 million paid at the Greenville Plant for purchases of goods and services. Approximately 500 plant employees are currently employed.

Thank you to them for being a good friend in our community. We are offering the following sale items all of the Procter & Gamble brands. Thanks again P&G!

Furor On Standard Sentences

By MIKE McQUEEN
 Associated Press Writer
 TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Six months after Florida instituted new sentencing rules to standardize punishment for felons, prosecutors have blasted the system as "justice by computer" and some judges are ignoring the guidelines to impose tougher penalties.

Supporters argue that the rules, in which judges "score" crimes to determine no-parole jail terms, reflect the actual time served under the old parole system.

But some judges say the ironclad sentences, which are generally shorter, take away an important part of the judicial system — deciding punishment that should be molded to fit the facts of each individual case.

"I guess the Department of Corrections has to reconcile it. I can't," Circuit Judge J. Rogers Padgett of Tampa said in February when he disregarded the 12- to 17-year sentence spelled out in the rules and sentenced Linwood Crane to life in prison for drowning a teen-age girl.

Prosecutor Michael Benito had asked Padgett to ignore the guidelines for second-degree murder, which he blasted as "a mockery of our criminal justice system."

Florida is one of 15 states with strict sentencing guidelines, according to the National Center for State Courts in Williamsburg, Va. The guidelines, which went into effect Oct. 1, were inspired in part by a federal court order requiring Florida to ease prison overcrowding by the middle of next year. The state's prison population is fast approaching the 29,058-inmate capacity.

Under the rules, parole was eliminated for convicts sent to state prison. The only way they can gain early release is to earn time off for good behavior.

The rules assign a number to each offense and the judge must base a sentence on the "score" accumulated by a defendant. Judges must follow the rules or provide good reasons why they didn't.

In 85 percent of the 4,500 sentences reported from Oct. 1 through March 15 to the Florida Sentencing Guidelines Commission, judges have played by the rules.

But in 6 percent of the cases judges have handed down lighter sentences, and in 9 percent tougher sentences.

In August, nine chief prosecutors complained to the state Supreme Court, which approved the new rules, that the guidelines were "justice by computer." Since then, judges have complained that they cannot impose longer — or shorter — sentences based on the nature of the crime.

—On Dec. 22, Circuit Judge A.C. Soud of Jacksonville complained in court that he was forced to sentence an arsonist to 22 years in prison instead of the previous maximum of 135 years, even though the man had confessed to setting a rooming house fire that killed seven people.

"As a judge and as a citizen, I've got my own personal regret," Soud said after sending Larry Bana to prison for seven counts of manslaughter and one count of first-degree arson.

—A circuit judge in Titusville said last year that the guidelines forced him to sentence a 20-year-old man to 12 years in prison for strangling a 17-year-old girl.

Ricky Ray Jordan had pleaded guilty to second-degree murder, and under the old guidelines would have received a minimum term of 30 years, said Circuit Judge Gil Goshorn.

"This is a case where the guidelines broke down," the judge said.

But supporters of the rules say the new, shorter sentences reflect the true punishment Florida prisoners have been receiving all along. Criminals laughed at the old system because they knew that with parole the full term would never be served, backers say.

May Try Another Space 'Salvage'

WASHINGTON (AP) — NASA, which will try to retrieve and repair one of its own satellites in space next Sunday, may also go after a wayward Indonesian satellite next year.

Aviation Week and Space Technology said the mission is being considered for an October flight. David Garrett, a National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman, said the effort is technically feasible.

The Indonesian satellite, placed into low orbit by the space shuttle in February, failed to climb to its duty station 22,300 miles above the equator, apparently through the failure of an attached rocket stage.

The 11th space shuttle mission, set for launch Friday, is dedicated to refurbishing the Solar Maximum satellite, which failed after nine months of operation in 1980 because of four fuses blown in its attitude control.
