Utility Repairs Carry High Price

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The cost of restoring electric service to Greenville Utilities Commission customers in areas hit by the tornado that tore through Pitt County last week will amount to between $150,000 and $200,000, according to Malcolm Green, superintendent of GUC's electric department.

Green said today that "by dark Saturday, we had everybody's lights on who could take service," although between 300 and 400 customers "couldn't take service because of damage to their own facilities."

In recapping GUC activities following the storm, Green said, "We had about 200 poles either blown down, broke or literally sucked out of the ground and blown away." Of the 30 to 40 poles that were pulled out of the ground, rather than being blown down or broken, Green said some were buried as much as 10 feet deep.

Along with the poles, Green said 65 transformers were downed by the winds and "over 400 home services" were lost.

According to Green, GUC crews went to work immediately following the storm. "Thursday and Friday, we had between 100 and 125 people working in the area," including 80 to 100 GUC employees from the electric, water and sewer, gas and meter departments, two contract crews (10 men), and 23 men from the city of Wilson's electric department.

"So, by dark Friday, we had only about 20 customers still out ... along (N.C.) 43 north of Hollywood Crossroads," and service to them was restored Saturday.

"We gave the guys the day off Sunday ... then put our crews on 10-hour days this week. They are working a lot of cleanup work ... straightening poles. We'll be quite a while picking up transformers, poles, rolling up wire, cleaning up our debris. We are working 50 hours this week to get it done.

"We're also installing a fair amount of temporary services," for those people who are rebuilding or repairing damage, "and some permanent services," for those who have made repairs, Green said.

"Considering the conditions," Green said, GUC crews had no major problems. "Yeah, we had difficulties," but "the biggest problem was with traffic on (N.C.) 43. Traffic got to be a real problem, but that's to be expected."

According to Green, "Everybody was extremely courteous, especially the people who lived in the area."

And Green praised those working security in the area — the Highway Patrol, Sheriff's Department, National Guard and the Department of Corrections' Prison Emergency Response Team members. "Security did a good job keeping people out ... an excellent job."

Green said that while the exact cost of repairing electric service damaged in the storm is still not available, GUC "had over $40,000 worth of material that was destroyed ... transformers, wire, poles ... materials alone."

Massive Effort For Victims Is Underway

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

Grand Ole Opry stars, the Salvation Army, local high school students and the Red Cross all are working together for a common goal ... to help disaster victims in Pitt and surrounding counties.

On the evening of March 28, tornados swept across eastern North Carolina, killing nine people and leaving hundreds of families homeless.

In Pitt County, agencies and individuals are banding together to help the tornado victims with their needs. Funds are also being set up to help with the monetary problems of the victims.

Hank Snow, along with other Grand Ole Opry entertainers and gospel music singers, have donated their time for two benefit concerts to be held Sunday at 4 p.m. and 8 p.m. in Minges Coliseum on the East Carolina University campus. Concert officials said members of the ECU staff and student body will donate labor.

Proceeds from ticket sales will be used to set up a fund to aid the disaster victims. Proceeds will go directly to families stricken by the tornados.

Tickets are $5 per person and are tax deductible, sponsors said. Tickets are available at the ECU Athletic Ticket Office, 757-6500, the ECU Central Ticket Office, 757-6611, and at Minges on the day of the concerts.

"We got up with (Realtor) Jeanette Cox, some of the chamber of commerce people and the university to see if we could do something to go beyond the call of duty, to have a special fund to have money for when something comes up there isn't money for," said Ray Whittington of Fountain of Life Inc.

"No expenses being paid for anybody," Whittington said. "They just wanted to be a part of what is going on."

Whittington said the concert is "giving a lot of people who don't have a whole lot and wanted to do something" a way to help.

A commission made up of local people will monitor the money in the fund to make sure it goes to proper sources, Whittington said.

"We are all grateful enough, those that were spared, that we want to show appreciation and help those who were troubled," Whittington added. "It has blown my mind at the response, not only at the response to the Tornado Benefit Concert, but to the other appeals."

A disaster assistance center, under the direction of the Federal Emergency Management Administration, was held at the Pitt County office buildings earlier this week. Civil Emergency Management Coordinator Bobby Joyner said the center "went real well. We saw everybody that came in. I hope that we saw everybody that needed seeing."

Representatives of agencies able to offer disaster victims services and loans were at the center Tuesday and Wednesday. During the two days, Joyner estimated that 260 people were assisted.

"The people who came in are encouraged to fill out the forms they received and get them back in as quickly as possible," Joyner said. "The quicker the follow-up can be done, the quicker they can get some relief."

Joyner said that a team is visiting the people who applied for emergency housing "to make sure everything was destroyed." After those people have been visited, the amount of emergency housing needed can be determined.

Slowly, the debris is being cleared from the areas hit by the tornado. Trucks and earth-moving vehicles have been loaned and volunteers have donated their time to help clean up.

The curfew and roadblocks at Portertown and Simpson are no longer in effect, but there are Prison Emergency Response Teams

Candidate Edmisten Visits Pitt To Meet Supporters

I'M FOR RUFUS FESTIVITIES ... here Wednesday evening were attended by hundreds. Greeting gubernatorial candidate Rufus Edmisten were three of his Pitt County supporters, John Lautares, Les Garner and Marvin Speight Jr. (Reflector Staff Photo)

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Gubernatorial candidate Rufus Edmisten came to Pitt County Wednesday to greet his supporters at a rally at the Sheraton Hotel. Attorney General Rufus Edmisten was here to tell tornado victims of this area, "Beware of flimflammers."

Interviewed briefly before he greeted hundreds of supporters in a red, white and blue ballooned-and-festooned ballroom at the new hotel, Edmisten said he is running on adrenalin "working just as hard as I can go seven days a week. I have such wonderful supporters all across the state," he said.

"I believe I have the responsibility to do everything I can to win the primary. I haven't done a lot of advertising so far, but I have got out there with the people all I can and I'm going to continue to do that right up to the primary — and beyond, I hope."

After the primary, though, he said he will take about a week off to renew himself. "I'm dying to get into my garden," he said. "It's not going to be as good this year as it usually is. I didn't start my plants from seed like I usually do. But I have got in a few vegetables and flowers and I'm going to work them during my break."

Speaking as attorney general, Edmisten said his office is already getting reports from other areas affected by the March 25 tornadoes of persons offering discounted work for payment in advance.

"Be careful," he advised those needing repair and rebuilding of their homes. "Deal with contractors and building suppliers you know. If you have any question or doubt, call the attorney general's office, 733-7741. Get costs and completion times in writing. Know what materials are being used. Shop around. Don't be too hasty. Report suspicious activity to the attorney general so others can be warned."

Edmisten said he and his supporters have been saddened but empowered by the death of Charlie Smith, an aide who was killed in a plane crash in western North Carolina earlier this year. "Charlie was my constant daily friend. I'd known him for over 25 years. He was a master of making government work for people. I loved him and I miss him. But he had everything about my campaign working so well that it's going right on as he planned it."

He said he perceives Pitt and Greene counties and other areas of the state affected by the tornado as similarly empowered by having to cope with tragedy. "I was in a building in Mount Olive last Wednesday that was that night leveled by a tornado," he said. "I went back the next day to view the place and it was eerie. But there, as here, I have

Two Murderers Executed In Florida And Louisiana

By The Associated Press

A Florida child killer and the murderer of two teen-agers on the Louisiana lover's lane were electrocuted this morning, marking the first time since reinstatement of the death penalty that two executions were carried out on the same day.

In Florida, 30-year-old Arthur F. Goode III was put to death shortly after 7 a.m. at the Florida State Prison near Starke. Goode, who was condemned for the 1976 sex slaying of 9-year-old Florida boy, bragged about his crimes and said Wednesday that he was still eager to molest little boys.

Six hours before, at the Louisiana State Prison in Angola, Elmo Patrick Sonnier, 35, died in the state's electric chair as the fathers of both of his teen-age victims watched with folded arms. One of the fathers granted forgiveness.

The executions were the 17th and 18th since the Supreme Court reinstated the death penalty in 1976. They brought to seven the number of executions that have taken place this year.

In Florida, Goode expressed last-minute remorse and said, "I apologize to my parents," before receiving a 90-second jolt of 2,000 volts. He died at 7:08 a.m., the governor's office said.

Sonnier insisted to the end that his younger brother had committed the Nov. 5, 1977, murders of the sweethearts abducted from a lonely lover's lane. But Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards and five courts, including the U.S. Supreme Court, all rejected last-minute clemency bids.

Sonnier was convicted of pumping three bullets each into Loretta Bourque, 18, and her fiance, David LeBlanc, 16.

This morning, moments before a black hood was slipped over his head, Sonnier looked toward the witness room and directly into the eyes of Lloyd LeBlanc.

"Mr. LeBlanc, I have no hatred in my heart.... I have to ask your forgiveness," he said.

LeBlanc nodded once and said, "Yes." Beside him, the other father, Godfrey Bourque, said softly, "He didn't ask me."

Sonnier had been led to the execution chamber at Angola State Prison by Sister Helen Prejean, a Roman Catholic nun. As he was strapped into the polished oak chair, he looked at her and said, "I love you."

"I love you, too," the nun replied.

Then four alternating jolts of 2,000 volts and 500 volts of electricity passed through his body and he was pronounced dead at 12:15 a.m. CST.

"He was ready (to die)," Sister Helen said as witnesses signed the legal papers. "He told me today how it all happened. He had inadequate counsel. Eddie did it."

Sonnier's brother, Eddie, 27, was convicted of murder and sentenced to death in the slayings, but the sentence was reduced to life in prison when the courts ruled he had only held a flashlight for Elmo. Eddie later testified at his brother's trial that he had pulled the trigger, but the jury did not believe him.

Under Louisiana law, only the actual murderer — not the person who aids and abets the crime — can be executed.

In Florida, Goode appeared grim as he sat in the electric chair. "I'm very upset," he said, and choked up. Despite his boasts about the killing, he said, "I had remorse for the two boys that I murdered. It's difficult for me to show it." Goode had been sentenced to life for a second killing.

When the current came on, his body jolted, his fists clenched, and then his body relaxed. He wore a strap across his mouth and a cap with a screen over his face.

During a prison interview Wednesday, Goode, whose IQ is in the low 60s, said he was "competent for execution" and would kill again if freed.

"I do want my execution carried out. I know that I will never be a free person again. I know I will never be able to have sex with any young boys," he said.

But after meeting with the press Wednesday, Goode "became much more serious. He seemed to be more concerned about his personal situation," the prison priest, the Rev. Joseph Maniangat, said today.

Issue Warrant

AYDEN — Police have issued a warrant for a local woman thought to have made off with tornado relief clothing and money by masquerading as a Salvation Army worker.

Police Chief Thomas D. Burney said Wednesday he had charged a local woman, but said he will not identify her until she is located.

"She portrayed herself as a Salvation Army worker, and we do know she carted things off," said Ayden Mayor Ross S. Persinger. "She stated she was taking it to the poor, to a senior citizens' home in Griston, and to Greenville. But after researching this thing, we know none of it arrived."

"We live in a small community," Persinger said. "It's like everything else. We know each other, we respect each other ... We were just caught by surprise."

American-Born Queen Noor Works For Jordan Development

By EILEEN ALTPowell
Associated Press Writer

AQABA, Jordan (AP) — Queen Noor of Jordan, the former Lisa Halaby of Washington, D.C., says she is disappointed with her native country.

"I feel there is a great lack of understanding of Arab society and the issues facing us in this part of the world," she said in an interview with The Associated Press. American policy in the Middle East, she added, "doesn't reflect the values and principles I learned in the United States as a child."

The queen's comments echoed those of her husband, King Hussein, who in recent weeks has been critical of the United States for providing heavy economic and military assistance to Israel without successfully pressuring the Jewish state to negotiate on the Palestinian issue.

Of particular concern to Jordan is the future of the West Bank of the Jordan River, the Palestinian-populated land taken from Jordan by Israel in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

"We're talking about brothers and sisters here," said Queen Noor, whose adopted nation of 2.8 million people is more than half Palestinian in origin. "We're talking about one family."

Her quest, she said, was for "a responsible and just and principled" American policy "for the good of all in this region who seek to benefit far more from peace than from the continuing dissension."

The queen spoke of Jordan's concerns and her life here from the veranda of the royal family's summer palace, a modern stucco building that overlooks Jordan's Red Sea port of Aqaba to the east and Israel's port city of Eilat to the west.

A light wind off the sea occasionally caught a loose strand of her long, sandy-blonde hair, which she wore swept up into a chignon at the back. She was dressed elegantly but simply in an embroidered pink silk blouse and white pleated skirt. The low-heeled pumps she favors don't completely compensate for the fact that at 5 feet, 7 inches she's a bit taller than the king.

Queen Noor, 32, was one of the first women to graduate from Princeton University and one of the few in 1974 to earn a bachelor's degree in architecture and urban planning.

Her father, Najeeb Halaby, an American of Lebanese descent, is chairman of a New York aeronautical consulting firm and formerly was chairman of Pan American World Airways.

She credited the combination of aviation and architecture for bringing her and King Hussein together.

"I just happened to be here doing some research on aviation training facilities in the Middle East, and I was based in Amman," the Jordanian capital, she recalls. "I met my husband at the airport. I was working and he — you know he loves to fly — was either visiting or observing conditions there."

Hussein, 48, had been married three times before. Two marriages ended in divorce. His third wife, Queen Alia, died in a plane crash in 1977.

The two were married in Amman on June 15, 1978. One of her wedding gifts was her name — Queen Noor al Hussein, which translates to "light of Hussein."

Queen Noor, raised as an Anglican, converted to the Sunni Moslem religion of her husband after their marriage. She speaks Arabic, but is more comfortable in English.

In addition to her ceremonial duties, such as entertaining Britain's Queen Elizabeth II on her state visit to the Hashemite kingdom last month, Queen Noor has tried to also play a role in Jordan's development.

The nation, covering about 56,000 square miles, has little oil but does extract large quantities of phosphate and potash. Extensive irrigation has helped expand agricultural production, though the arid country is heavily dependent on Arab aid to meet much of its domestic needs.

The queen has actively promoted environmental protection and physical fitness programs around the nation. She also has been active in urban and regional planning projects as well as the preservation and restoration of the nation's many historical sites.

In March, she made a two-week lecture tour that took her to Dallas, San Francisco, Washington and Chicago in an effort at "broadening understanding between the two cultures."

The queen considers herself a "working mother" and worries about the limits on time she has with her children: Prince Hamzah, 4; Prince Hashim, 2½; and Princess Iman, 11 months. She often takes the children along when she travels.

Despite the turbulence of the Middle East, Queen Noor says that she doesn't fear for her safety.

"We don't dwell on fear, on the worst possibilities," she said. "We try to concentrate on the maximum we can achieve as individuals and as members of a family for the development of this country."

"And there really is so much to be done that there really isn't a great deal of time to sit back and worry about what's going to happen tomorrow."

Trudy Barber Is Pageant Finalist In Fayetteville

Trudy Barber of Greenville was selected one of the 10 finalists in the Seventeen Cover Search Pageant held Saturday in Fayetteville.

The pageant included appearances by participants in bathing suits, evening gowns, informal wear and also a question session. The finalists will be returning to Fayetteville Saturday for two modeling shows at Tallywood and Crosscreek Malls.

Miss Barber is an "outdoors girl" and lists piano, modeling and swimming as her favorite pastimes. She is a junior at Greenville Christian Academy. After graduation, she would like to attend East Carolina University and then Boulder School in Atlanta, Ga.

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Clyn Barber Jr. of Route 1, Winterville.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

Friend Had A Lot Of Nerve And Pressure

DEAR ABBY: I was recently a bridesmaid at the wedding of a close friend. Instead of buying ready-made bridesmaids' dresses, she insisted they be custom-made.

On the morning of the wedding, the bridesmaids' dresses weren't finished because the seamstress got the flu, so the bride rushed around and found another seamstress who basted the dresses so they would be at least wearable. Needless to say, my dress didn't fit, and I had to walk down the aisle pinned, basted and looking awful!

I had paid $110 in advance for the dress. After the wedding, $50 of my $110 was returned to me because of what happened.

When the bride came back from her honeymoon she called to say I owed her $10 for the seamstress who threw my dress together! Abby, it was the bride's idea to have the dresses custom-made in the first place, so I think she should pay for a second seamstress.

For $110 I could have bought a ready-made dress that fit. I think my friend had a lot of nerve, don't you? What should I do?

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: Give her the $10. Your friend had a lot of nerve, but she also had a lot of pressure on her wedding day.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the young single woman who was harassed by a married man at work. He left flowers on her desk, wrote her mushy notes and kept trying to talk her into dating him after she refused repeatedly.

I recently read an article on sexual harassment at the office. It suggested that the person being harassed write the harasser a letter (keeping a copy), describing the incidents and indicating her refusal to go along with such behavior. It would read something like this:

"Dear (): On Jan. 14, 1984, at 2 p.m., you called me into your office and pulled me on your lap. When I tried to stand up, you said that you liked me there and didn't want me to go. The following week, on Jan. 20, you sent me a dozen roses and asked me to go to dinner with you. When I saw you at work the next day and refused the dinner date, you reminded me that my yearly review was coming up in March. On Feb. 12, you ... (the victim would continue to list dates, incidents and her responses).

"I am not interested in your attentions, and consider them inappropriate for persons working in the same office. I want all such attentions to stop immediately. If they do not, I will have to take more serious action. Sincerely, ()."

The article reported that this approach had worked well for a number of harassed employees, but even if the employee has to go to a supervisor or union representative, the documentation would help her case. Sign me...

NO LONGER HARASSED IN ILLINOIS

DEAR ABBY: Your recent answer to "History Buff" was way off the mark as far as the origin of the expression "His name is mud."

According to Tom Burnam's book, "More Misinformation," the fact is that the expression "His name is mud" dates back to the 1820s and derives from an even older meaning of "mud," according to Eric Partridge — a dull fellow or a fool. Partridge cites an 1823 quotation: "And his name is mud!"

Since Lincoln was shot in 1865, the expression obviously predates Dr. Samuel Mudd, the physician who treated John Wilkes Booth, who broke his leg while trying to escape after shooting Abraham Lincoln.

I hope you see fit to make a correction in your column.

ANOTHER HISTORY BUFF

DEAR BUFF: I had better "see fit," or my name will be mud.

Ronald McDonald House Is League Program Topic

A program and film presentation on the Ronald McDonald House of Greenville was given Monday at the Greenville Service League meeting.

Dr. Steve Engelke, neonatologist with the East Carolina University School of Medicine, and Katherine Vincent, board member, were introduced by Mrs. Charles Wilkerson, program chairman.

The film showed Ronald McDonald Houses at other medical centers. Land off Moye Boulevard near the medical complex has been donated and construction will begin as soon as funds can be raised in Greenville and surrounding counties.

A house here would serve all counties east of I-95 and would provide a place where families can stay while their children are receiving treatment for chronic illnesses at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Brenda Gray, of the Pitt County Mental Health office, spoke to the group and asked for support for a dinner theater they are in presenting in conjunction with their annual state meeting here.

Hospital Gift Shop chairman Mrs. William McConnell announced the league had paid for two Kinetic Leg

Exercisers for the orthopedics department at the hospital.

A new equipment request was presented by Mrs. Robert VanVeld for a Hewitt-Packard 12-bed patient monitoring system for the new cardiac surgery center. The league voted to purchase the unit at a cost of approximately $190,000.

Bloodmobile chairman Mrs. Kelly Barnhill reported on three March visits which netted a total of 329 units with 72 league volunteers giving 211½ hours. Upcoming visits will be April 10-11 at Mendenhall Student Center.

Mrs. Horton Rountree answered a call from the Laughinghouse Fund and received three memorials. Mrs. Norwood Whitehurst provided two layettes. Mrs. J.H. Hudson, finance, gave a report.

President Mrs. Frank Layne announced she had accepted a certificate of appreciation from the Department of Patient and Family Services at the hospital and also an award at the hospital volunteers night.

Volunteers were enlisted to work at the Pitt County Red Cross Service Center for disaster victims. The league will sponsor a child at Camp Rainbow and also at the ECU Science Camp for gifted and talented students.

A coffee given by sustaining members in honor of new provisionals will be held April 11 at the home of Mrs. Don White.

No Change Needed

Our internal political wars should end at the water's edge ... not extend into the Middle East ... which is the net result of Sen. Daniel Moynihan's proposed legislation requiring the United States to move its embassy in Israel, and the ambassador's residence, to Jerusalem.

We keep remembering the conduct of foreign affairs lies in the presidential realm and is not the responsibility of the Senate nor the House. We wish the New York senator would remember that point. If he were president, he would not forget.

The matter even became a focus of argument between candidates Walter Mondale and Gary Hart; both trying to impress a segment of the electorate as to who was the greater friend of Israel. (You'd think it was the 51st state.) More to the point is, which candidate is the greater friend to America's interests.

The status of Jerusalem is not a new issue; it was decided a long time ago that the United States considers Jerusalem a holy city and shrine of three major faiths, enjoying a unique international standing, and no action should be taken there without full regard to the city's place in the world community.

Last February, the State Department's Undersecretary for Political Affairs told the Senate Foreign Relations committee that moving the U.S. embassy to Jerusalem would inevitably convey a message that this country accepts an Israeli position, when in fact it has been our longtime policy that the city's status must be resolved through negotiation.

It is self-evident a change in American policy would cost us whatever friendships and credibility we still have in the Arab World and further undermine any credibility in American policies.

We need friendships in the Arab World ... not a united front of more enemies. We have too many of them without creating more.

Frustration

Now comes word that what Agent Orange left, acid rain is getting.

Agent Orange was the potent, sometimes unpredictable herbicide the United States used to defoliate the jungles of Vietnam. Acid rain is the pollution pumped daily into our atmosphere, a pollution that some say is destroying forests around the world.

The Worldwatch Institute, a Washington-based research group, says timber losses could be in the billions of dollars from damage caused by acid rain. The institute reported that at least 9 million acres of forests in Europe, as well as broad areas of woodland in the eastern United States and Canada, have been damaged by air pollutants, including acid rain.

All of this leaves one with that age-old feeling of frustration: when mankind can do so much to make his life better, why can he not find a way of leaving the world as clean as it was when he came into it?

Iran-Iraq Takes New Meaning

WASHINGTON — A shift by Iran away from the target of closing the Persian Gulf's vital oil traffic to a more ominous objective — ideological and political subversion against U.S. interests everywhere — is under overtime study by Reagan administration policy-makers.

Iran's aggression against Iraq is expected to culminate in the next few weeks in the region just north of Iraq's Persian Gulf city of Basra. The Iranian offensive is now perceived as more chilling to American interests than any other single event in the Middle East since World War II.

Swept under the rug the past two years by policy-makers during their long distractions over successive Lebanon disasters, the brutal war of Iran against Iraq has now come in for some ugly second thoughts.

The initial findings of the new study: The Ayatollah Khomeini's principal interest may not be denial of oil to Japan and the West by blockading the Gulf. Instead, the ayatollah bargains on quick anti-U.S. flip-flops by the rich and vulnerable Persian Gulf oil states. His real objective is to run the U.S. out of the Moslem Middle East and extend the reach of his fanatical brand of Islamic fundamentalism to the Mediterranean.

One tentative U.S. decision has been made. If Iran is found to be the source of a new terrorist attack anywhere against the U.S., the reprisal will be immediate and massive. That was not the American response last October to the Iranian-inspired Beirut airport attack that killed more than 200 Marines.

Top-level policy-makers cannot be absolutely certain of the ayatollah's objectives. But the reappraisal, substituting political subversion over blockading the Strait of Hormuz, has its counterpart in Israel. With Defense Minister Moshe Arens taking the lead, Israel's conservative government now realizes that Iran, not Iraq, is the real enemy in the Gulf war. Israel, partly because of earlier American pressure, is no longer secretly arming the ayatollah's men to defeat Iraq.

Bloody experience in dealing with Iranian-style terror in its occupation of Southern Lebanon has opened Israel's eyes to what might ensue if the ayatollah cracks the Iraqi defense line north of Basra and sets up an Islamic republic in Southern Iraq.

Odds are about 50-50 that this will indeed happen, perhaps within the next three weeks. The Reagan administration has reached a strong consensus about what would occur if Iran captures Basra and moves its forces to the Kuwait border: "Pre-emptive accommodation," in the phrase of one official, by a terrified Kuwait government that has already been terrorized by pro-Iranian Shiite fundamentalists. The political accommodation would quickly spread down the Gulf to encompass Saudi Arabia, the important oil sheikdoms and the two Yemens.

Brutal harassment of Americans, not excepting murder, would follow. There are some 70,000 Americans in the key, pro-U.S. Arab state of Saudi Arabia.

Shifting Iran's objective from the military to the political poses a frightening dilemma for the U.S. A military move against Western shipping interests would be visible and tangible, easy to deal with by superior force. An Iranian offensive that is ideological and political, built on military conquest in Iraq, would be intangible and hard to pinpoint.

That explains the tentative decision to employ a massive reprisal force — perferably directly against Iran itself — in case of a new terrorist attack on a U.S. Embassy or Americans anywhere that is clearly directed from Tehran.

Reading Comes Back

READING, Pa. — Travelers who pass by this city on the way to points elsewhere may well think it is just another dirty urban dive waiting to die. But a quick stop and look behind this town's gritty surface reveals a historically rich community that's proudly fighting to rediscover its past.

Indeed, many young professionals who a decade ago left small cities like Reading (pop. 70,000) for the better jobs and fast life of big-city America have learned that they can go home again.

Reading, like many small industrial-manufacturing cities in the Northwest and Midwest, was once a thriving metropolis. At the turn of the century, it boasted 30 iron-based factories manufacturing locomotive engines, plow, nails and rifle barrels for the world. Its railroad company owned more than 500 locomotives and 22,000 cars, making its yards second only to Altoona's in importance to the nation.

Meanwhile, William Luden, of cough drop fame, and Charles Duryea, the automobile manufacturer, had set up shop here. The rich fold of New York and Philadelphia flocked to the 10 resort hotels in Reading's surrounding hills, showing minimal concern that the town had a socialist mayor.

But the Depression and demise of rail transportation were hard on Reading. The city's heavy-industrial base shrank. Building maintenance and new construction declined and the city's physical condition deteriorated as a result.

Today, Reading's population of 70,000 is almost 50,000 below its peak in 1928. "We've been losing about 10,000 residents a decade," said Frank McGough, the local planning department expert. "But we think those projections may be stabilizing."

McGough's comment may turn out to be the understatement of the decade. In our discussions with residents here, we discovered that some of Reading's best and brightest, many in their late 20s and early 30s, were returning from after living in such places as Philadelphia, New York, Paris and Rome. While these Yuppies are returning for varied reasons, they all seem to have a similar theme in their stories: Life in big-city America is too expensive, too impersonal and too competitive.

What many of them have also discovered is that towns like Reading are fast becoming a visual treasure. Thanks in large part to the Federal Reform Tax Act of 1976, which established incentives for private investment in historic preservation, older cities like Reading have been able to restore many of their once majestic buildings.

Approximately 90 percent of this city's buildings were constructed more than 30 years ago, and most built between 1870 and 1910. At least 30 different styles of architecture are represented. A majority of the residences consists of two-and three-story row houses; gables, turrets and stained-glass transoms are almost standard features.

Home-School Forces Ready For Work

RALEIGH — The Rev. Terry Manahan has a fight date set with the "kook factor." Manahan, leader of a group advocating home education in North Carolina, knows that his first job in that drive is to convince the public and the Legislature that proponents of home education aren't a bunch of screwballs who just don't want their children educated.

"We don't advocate the elimination of the public and private schools," Manahan said in an interview. "We don't advocate the shirking of parents' responsibility to assure that our children get a quality education. We just think home education offers the best environment to educate our children."

Discuss home education in the corridors of the Legislative Building and, despite Manahan's pleas to the contrary, the most frequent response you'll hear is something like, "Those people are kooks." Home education, Manahan concedes, is sometimes misperceived as a ruse for NO education. It's seen as a way ignorant parents who don't care about education can help their children follow in their footsteps. But Manahan denies that such people really exist, at least among advocates of home education.

"Those people are mavericks and would not be welcome in our group. I hear that but I've yet to meet a parent like that," he said.

Manahan and his "North Carolinians for Home Education" want the 1985 General Assembly to make home education legal. They don't have a piece of draft legislation yet, but Manahan knows the broad outlines of what they want.

"We recognize the state's concern to see that it has an educated populace," Manahan said. With home education, he says, children will be better educated. He argues that at home a child will have the ideal teacher-student ratio of one to one. Curricula are available for home education that allow parents to teach their children step by step. Parents are better able to motivate their children than are teachers, they can also better discipline them. In the final analysis, he bets that home educated children will be significantly better educated than their school educated friends.

But Manahan also recognizes that home educators must be able to prove themselves. So his group is proposing that any home education bill come with stipulations that parents "must demonstrate that education is taking place in the home." He would have home educated children submitted to the same achievement tests as public school children. Parents would have to keep records of their child's progress and school officials could visit the home to check on the child's progress. A parent could also lose the right to educate at home if the state could prove that education was not taking place.

Jackson The Force

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Enough has happened in the 1984 campaign to make it clear that Jesse Jackson has created a new force in American politics, a black power base truly independent of white leadership or domination.

When Jackson announced he was going to run for president, many people — including a number of blacks — regarded his campaign as an ego trip, a theatrical gesture intended to give the flamboyant minister-social activist more media exposure.

Others, giving Jackson more credit for substance, saw the campaign as a bid for the national black leadership that no individual has been able to claim and hold since the death of Martin Luther King Jr.

In any case, few believed Jackson was going to have a real impact on the Democratic presidential picture beyond a possible "spoiler" effect on Walter Mondale's candidacy. It was theorized that any black votes cast for Jackson could only hurt Mondale and help his white rivals, particularly John Glenn.

So much for the conventional political wisdom.

Mondale is running far ahead in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination, Jackson is humming along in third place and Glenn's 1984 campaign is one of five buried in the graveyard of lost political causes.

Mondale was regarded as the latest of the liberal white Democrats who could inherit the black votes Franklin D. Roosevelt brought into the party. Blacks have been Democrats since FDR, but it has been white liberals who have represented their interests within the party and claimed their votes.

Jackson has drawn more than 20 percent of the vote in seven state primaries and caucuses. In South Carolina and Virginia, he has received more votes than than any other candidate.

Jackson probably has taken some black votes from Mondale in some of the states, but it is likely that he has "created" much of his own support — that he is getting votes from people who simply weren't taking part until he entered the arena.

Jackson's voter registration successes are only part of the picture, his ability to motivate blacks to participate in the entire political process may be even more significant.

But Jackson does not need the mathematical balance of power. His delegates will represent something that the other Democrats have never had to deal with before — a black voting bloc tied to no white political boss or white-led cause — and neither the party nor the candidate it nominates in July can afford to ignore it.

Public Forum

To the editor:
I would like to express my opinion of MTV — the all "music" television station. Music is in quotations because some songs would not qualify as such!

The lyrics of a lot of contemporary music are crude and vulgar. Sexual suggestiveness is now complacently accepted as just part of a "new" lifestyle. Nothing is left to the imagination anymore, due to the video accompanying songs. Some of the videos for "top 10" contemporary songs display horrible scenes depicting death and violence through demonic-looking characters.

With all the beauty and splendor of life and our own natural surroundings, why display such horrendous material for visual aids? Are these the results of some "high" drug related experiences or just warped and deranged minds? Sensationalism misses the mark — disgust and depression are more adequate emotional responses! Is this the kind of entertainment we want available for our children in our own homes?

Strength For Today

Henry David Thoreau, the American author and philosopher, once remarked that the mass of men live lives of quiet desperation.

Is your life one of quiet desperation? If it is a life such as most of us live, then there are periods when we are utterly desperate and know not which way to turn. Our loved ones get sick and we wonder if they will recover. That promotion we hoped for is handed to someone else. Most agonizing of all are the desperate searchings of heart which sincere people so often have because they are conscious that their lives are far below what they should be in achievement and moral quality.

Christian faith does many things for us. It brings peace and order into our lives. It lifts us up after we have fallen. It sets our feet in the right pathway, and above all it takes care of that frantic desperation by which happiness is marred and often destroyed.

Shopping Center Is Damaged

DURHAM (AP) — For the second Wednesday in a row, a storm with tornado force passed through North Carolina, ripping off portions of the roof at a Durham shopping center, smashing windows and jerking up trees.

The Wednesday night storm blew the windows out of the Sears automotive store at Northgate Shopping Mall, scattering some of the merchandise inside. Some cars in the shopping center parking lot were blown over, along with several light poles.

The storm also caused power outages at the mall and some of the surrounding area.

Police said there were some minor injuries, but had no estimate of the number late Wednesday night.

"We have to assume that it was (a tornado) from the damage and the path left," Durham Public Safety Lt. Ricky Beck said in a telephone interview Wednesday night.

A spokesman for the National Weather Service in Raleigh said this morning the storm had not been classified as a tornado, although it had many of the characteristics. He said representatives from the weather service would visit the site today and then make a determination.

Beck said the storm also ripped off the roof of a house and overturned cars, trees and power lines in northern and western Durham.

Dempsey Haskins was shopping for shoes when the storm hit and she said she feared the mall's roof might fall in.

"The whole mall shook and the lights started going on and off," Ms. Haskins said. "That's when I saw things falling. All I thought about was 'God, please take care of me.'"

Dewey Grogan was waiting for a car to be repaired at the mall when the wind started picking up outside.

"I guess it lasted about three minutes, but it seemed like an eternity to me," he said. "I was getting ready to die."

Workers had already begun a cleanup effort Wednesday night, and Beck said 45 Durham public safety officers and 100 emergency personnel were assisting. He said fallen trees blocked several streets and flooding had forced the closing of two other streets.

The storm struck just a week after tornadoes swept through the Tar Heel state, killing 44 people and injuring more than 800 while doing more than $100 million in damage.

Beck said the mall was evacuated because authorities were concerned about other portions of the roof collapsing.

The storm caused extensive damage to the south end of the mall, according to authorities and WDNC radio in Durham.

NO PHONE

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — It is now possible to communicate with someone as much as one-half mile away without having to find a telephone or interrupt activity.

"Voice-activated walkie-talkies enable people to communicate over distances 'hand-free,'" says Bill Smith of General Electric. "Simply by speaking into the microphone attached to the headset a person can talk to another person wearing a similar headset."

Communications Lapse Cited In Naval Surprise

WILHELMSHAVEN, West Germany (AP) — NATO's supreme commander in the Atlantic today said poor communications among Western navies caused the Alliance to be caught unaware by the huge Soviet exercise under way in the North Atlantic.

"The causes of these events do not lie in the technical equipment of available NATO units, rather in equipment deficiencies of fleets not subordinate to NATO," U.S. Adm. Wesley McDonald said at a news conference in this West German naval port on the North Sea.

In Oslo, Norway, meanwhile, the North Norway Defense Command reported today that the Soviet armada appeared to be headed home. The exercise, which began March 28, is the Soviet navy's biggest exercise ever in the North Atlantic.

McDonald said the failure to detect preparations for the Soviet exercise resulted from "communications problems" between NATO navies and Western Alliance fleets. He said they were "technical" and not "personnel" problems, but he did not name the nationality of the fleets or otherwise identify them.

When reporters pressed for elaboration, the news conference was broken off. McDonald was in Wilhelmshaven to watch West German Capt. Klaus Schwabe assume command of NATO's Standing Naval Force Atlantic. He replaces U.S. Capt. Gregory F. Streeter.

The British Broadcasting Corp. today quoted McDonald as saying that NATO intelligence was caught unawares by the Soviet naval exercise. It quoted the admiral as saying that "our information was not as up to date as we'd like."

West German Defense Minister Manfred Woerner, in a speech at today's ceremony, called the Soviet exercise a "power play," but said he did not believe Moscow intended it to lead to a confrontation with the Western Alliance.

In Oslo, a spokesman for the North Norway Defense command said that the fleet's vanguard had steamed past Norway's easternmost borders on an apparent course for its home bases on the Kola peninsula.

"The southern groups (of the fleet) are completely dissolved," said the spokesman, who spoke on condition he not be named. "These ships are spreading, apparently to head for their home ports as well."

Led by the nuclear-powered cruiser Kirov, more than 200 Soviet vessels including as many as 30 major surface ships steamed into the Norwegian Sea for the maneuvers, NATO sources said.

In a news conference Wednesday, President Reagan called the naval exercises "regular and routine maneuvers that usually begin in the spring."

British and Danish intelligence officers said the thrust of the exercise appeared to have been defensive. Denmark monitors Soviet shipping in the Baltic Sea, source of many of the ships in the exercise.

Capt. Sven Albrechtsen of Danish military intelligence said the number of ships in the "defending group" totaled as many as those in the two "aggressor groups" combined.

He said a relatively minor Warsaw Pact amphibious exercise in the northeastern corner of Poland's Gulf of Danzig appeared to have ended with a landing Wednesday.

He said the exercise included 10-20 landing ships and smaller hovercraft, with no more than 2,000 soldiers. Troops from Poland and East Germany were reported in those maneuvers with the Soviets.

Student A Prisoner Of Armed Hitchhiker

BRADLEY, W.Va. (AP) — A Bradley college student says he followed an armed hitchhiker's instructions precisely, trying not to "make a dumb mistake" as he drove the man to South Carolina, and that the abductor thanked him for the ride before releasing him unharmed.

"I had a lot of time to think on the way down about my fiancée, about the guys at school," said Greg Alderman, 23, a senior at Appalachian Bible College in Bradley. "The more I considered dying and getting shot, the more I realized I might make a dumb mistake and try to escape."

Alderman said he was released in Columbia, S.C., about five hours after he picked up the hitchhiker just miles from the college.

State Trooper J.O. Cole said authorities are searching for a white male about 30 years old, 6 feet tall with light eyes and medium-length hair.

"The man had a pronounced northern accent, so we're possibly looking for someone traveling the main route south from the northern states," Cole said.

Cole said West Virginia authorities are working with the Richland County, S.C., sheriff's department on the case.

"We're running down everything we can," he said.

Alderman said he was returning to school after visiting his fiancée in Hurricane, about 80 miles away, when he picked up the gunman about 10:30 p.m. Saturday.

"I thought I'd stop," Alderman said. "He looked pretty frantic, like he needed a ride. ... Before the car came to a stop, he was in."

"He told me to look straight ahead and stuck a gun in my shoulder. He threatened to use the gun if I didn't do what he said."

Alderman said he tried to talk to the man at first.

"But he wouldn't say anything," Alderman said. "He wouldn't even tell me to shut up. He was big on one-word sentences: 'Left.' 'Right.' 'Move.' I figured I'd better try not to irritate the guy."

Alderman said he stopped for gas outside Charlotte, N.C., at a 24-hour self-service station and convenience store but had no chance to escape.

When they arrived in Columbia, "he seemed to know where to go," Alderman said. They stopped at a public phone about 5 a.m., and Alderman was instructed to open the hood and lean over the engine while the stranger made a hurried phone call.

Then the man had Alderman drive a few miles and pull to the side of the interstate.

"He told me that I'd better hope his friend comes and gets him," Alderman said.

Another car soon came and flashed its lights. Alderman was told to extinguish his.

Astronaut's Plane Had A Flame-Out

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — One of the five shuttle astronauts had a close call today when one of his jet engines flamed out as he was taking off for a training flight to prepare him for flying into space Friday.

Astronaut James van Hoften had just started his takeoff roll when one of the two engines quit and he aborted the flight. NASA spokesman Steve Nesbitt reported. Van Hoften was uninjured, but Nesbitt said that had the flameout occurred seconds later, there could have been a dangerous situation.

Meanwhile, the countdown was progressing smoothly for Friday's 8:58 a.m. EST launch of Challenger on a six-day flight during which it will make the first service call on a disabled satellite.

The trouble occurred as astronauts van Hoften and Terry Hart were about to take off on proficiency flights in T-38 jet planes from a Cape Canaveral runway. "One of the engines on van Hoften's T-38 flamed out," Nesbitt said. "This was early in the takeoff roll, and he had not gotten to high speed."

Asked if the astronaut was in danger, Nesbitt replied:

"Certainly you wouldn't want it to happen farther down the runway. You certainly would like to have full power for takeoff. If you have one engine go out, you don't want it to happen late in the roll."

"This occurred early and wasn't a particularly dangerous situation," he said. "It could have been worse if it had happened farther down the line."

NASA spokesman Ken Senstad said everything was "going well on the launch pad; there were only a couple minor technical problems overnight." Forecasters predicted excellent weather for the launch of the 11th shuttle mission, the fifth for Challenger.

Commander Robert Crippen and pilot Dick Scobee were up before dawn today, making practice touchdowns in a Grumman Gulfstream jet on the Cape Canaveral runway where Challenger is to return to Earth on Thursday after the six-day journey.

The other crewman is mission specialist George Nelson. Crippen is a veteran, the first astronaut assigned to three shuttle trips. The other four are space rookies.

While the U.S. crew got ready, India's first spaceman and two Soviet colleagues successfully docked a Soyuz spacecraft with the orbiting Salyut 7 space station Wednesday, joining three cosmonauts who boarded the station Feb. 9.

When Challenger rockets into orbit, there will be a record 11 men in space, breaking the record of eight set in February when five Americans and three Soviets were aloft at the same time.

The shuttle will soar into its highest orbit yet, 305 miles, so the crew can rendezvous Sunday with a satellite named Solar Max, which failed 10 months after it was sent into orbit in 1980 to study mysteries of the sun.

Powered by a jet-pack like that tested during the February shuttle mission, Nelson will fly untethered 300 feet to the wobbly, slowly-spinning satellite. With a clamp-like device he will dock with the payload and stop its motions so it can be captured by the shuttle's 50-foot crane and brought into the cargo bay for repairs.

In the bay, Nelson and van Hoften are to replace a faulty control system and electronics box. If the fixes work, the satellite will be returned to orbit. Otherwise Solar Max will be brought to Earth for repair.

Success would salvage a science observatory that cost $77 million to build and launch four years ago. NASA said it would cost $235 million to replace at today's prices. The agency estimates the price tag for the shuttle repair job at $48 million.

Massive Effort...

(PERT) stationed in the area for security and to direct traffic, according to Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson. He said traffic was being stopped occasionally to allow trucks to haul away debris. Several hundred students from D.H. Conley have been helping pick up debris, Tyson said.

Guards have been removed from roads leading to the tornado-damaged Pines area of Ayden, police officials said today.

Wooden roadblocks remain, police said, to "discourage unnecessary traffic" in the cleanup area.

Town utility officials were unavailable this morning to report on the restoration of power to the area.

Donations of food, clothing and household items have been pouring in to local agencies for distribution to the tornado victims.

No more clothing is being accepted by the Salvation Army, according to Mrs. Betty Davis. Household things and cash contributions are needed, she said.

Wednesday, 43 households were assisted by the Salvation Army, Mrs. Davis said.

"These families made requests and were given checks for expenses and household things," Mrs. Davis said. "More and more people each day are finding places to live, and we are helping them pay rent and some of the utilities."

"Things have been mighty slow today," said Ruth Taylor, executive director of the Pitt County Red Cross. The Red Cross disaster center has been set up at Faith Pentecostal Holiness Church on 14th Street extension.

"We have only seen 180 families at the church so far," Mrs. Taylor said. "We are giving them disbursing orders for them to go and buy clothing to help them get started. We can also help them with one month's rent when they get a place to stay and help them with furniture."

Mrs. Taylor said Red Cross caseworkers question applicants extensively to determine their needs and to follow Red Cross guidelines.

The center is open weekdays and Saturday from 9-7 and Sunday from 1-7 for as long as the victims need help. Rachael Hardee at the New Greenville Warehouse on the Pachtolus Highway said donations are still coming in and victims are coming to get items they need. Food, linens and household items are still needed at the warehouse.

The warehouse will be open from 9 a.m.-6 p.m. during the week and on Saturday from 9 a.m.-noon. The warehouse will be closed Sunday. "I don't know how much longer we will keep the warehouse open," Mrs. Hardee said. "I can't put a date on it. We will be open until we satisfy (the tornado victims') needs."

U. S. Office Aids Women Around The World

By JOAN MOWER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — In Columbia, a businesswoman who wanted to expand her bicycle shop got a small loan backed indirectly by the U.S. government.
In Medford, Mass., 24 professional women from Third World countries spent six weeks learning marketing techniques. And in Kenya, an American sociology professor worked with rural women to help them learn about solar dryers that will enable a cooperative to sell vegetables.
The projects had their roots in a 1973 amendment to the U.S. Foreign Assistance Act that says the United States should administer projects which "tend to integrate women into the national economies of developing countries, thus improving their status and assisting the total development."
As political scientist Irene Tinker wrote in a book called "Women In Washington," supporters of the amendment argued American aid programs often ignored women and there were few usable statistics about women in the Third World.

Yet, women, half the world's population, perform up to 80 percent of the agricultural work in many countries, often play an active role in business and are usually responsible for their children's education.
The amendment, sponsored by Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., encountered little opposition in Congress, partly because it didn't cost anything and lawmakers were pressured by women's groups to support it.
In response, the Agency for International Development set up a women's section under the administrator's office. In 1978, the office was given a small amount of money to run a grants program.
Today, AID's 10-person Women In Development office performs several functions, including handing out small grants designed to help Third World women, collecting data and building up a network of American women in the development field. In a broad sense, the office tries to promote U.S. women in development while also assisting women overseas.
"It's an enormous task," said

Jane Knowles, an assistant director of international programs at the University of Wisconsin at Madison, Wis.
Despite its intentions, the office is hampered by its relatively tiny budget, about $2.5 million a year. It does, however, work in conjunction with other AID departments to come up with larger grants.
"With only two million dollars, it's impossible to do anything very big," said Ellen Fenoglio, who deals with women's issues at the Southeast Consortium for International Development, an organization of academic groups that receives AID grants.
Since the Reagan administration took office, the Women in Development office has slashed money for domestic programs, preferring to spend dollars where they have an impact abroad, said Ms. Fenoglio.
She said Sarah Tinsley, the director of the office, "started saying 'what can we do in the field?'"
Ms. Tinsley, a former congressional staffer, said the office has shifted focus somewhat, in part because of the evolution of the women's movement.
"Our emphasis has shifted toward looking at the bigger — trying to get women involved in larger projects" rather than focusing on women-only programs, she said.
"We try to make sure the women's position is adequately represented in all AID programs," said Ms. Tinsley.
At every AID mission, for example, someone is responsible for making sure that the overall strategy looks at what role women play in the country.
Ms. Tinker, the political scientist, says one of the problems facing the office is that it is viewed as an affirmative action program.
"This is not affirmative action," says Ms. Tinsley.
Although the AID women's office is relatively obscure, Ms. Fenoglio said "it has really done a lot" in emphasizing the role of women in developing countries and bringing together Americans in the field.
And Ms. Knowles said, "Within their constraints, they have done a very effective job. They're grossly understaffed and underfunded. But they've been creative with what they have."

Ms. Knowles is president of the Association for Women in Development, which last October held its first conference, attended by 850 people.
"This group probably would never have gotten together if it hadn't been for the (Women in Development) office," said Ms. Fenoglio.

Paycheck-Delay Due To Budget

CLEVELAND (AP) — The City Council will meet Friday to again consider the mayor's $231 million budget proposal, but paychecks for 3,300 city workers — including members of the council — were already delayed for the week.
Council President George L. Forbes put off a vote on the budget Wednesday because there weren't enough supporters for passage. Council members missed their payday on Tuesday, and paychecks will be delayed for 549 city workers today and 2,741 on Friday.

Mayor George Voinovich's budget is in violation of a state law requiring cities to approve a balanced budget by April 1.

Lay Shootings To Family Fuss

CHANTILLY, Va. (AP) — A domestic dispute probably sparked the fatal shootings of a Korean immigrant family of four in an apparent murder-suicide, police said.
Howard G. Kim, 48, apparently shot his wife, Helen, 40, and their two sons, John, 7, and David, 5, with a rifle and then shot himself in the head, Fairfax County police spokesman Philip Lively said Wednesday.

The shootings occurred between 9 p.m. and midnight Tuesday, he said. Police discovered the bodies early Wednesday in the house which the family rented in this Washington suburb.

Reagan Criticizes Congress Policy Debates

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is taking on Congress by sharply criticizing its debate over the use of U.S. troops in Lebanon.

In a prime-time nationally televised news conference Wednesday, Reagan also announced that he will propose a total global ban on development, production and stockpiling of chemical weapons, but, until that is achieved, will push for their resumed U.S. production.

Reagan said the United States has lost some credibility, as a result of the debate over the handling of the U.S. troops in Lebanon.

He said that Congress "must take a responsibility," and that all that the "raging" debate can do "is stimulate the terrorists and urge them on to further attacks because they see a possibility of success in getting the force out which is keeping them from having their way."

Referring to congressional criticism of his decision to put troops at the Beirut International Airport and keep them there after 241 were killed in a bomb attack, Reagan said:

"I just don't think that a committee of 535 individuals, no matter how well intentioned, can offer what is needed in actions of this kind or where there is a necessity."

Last month, the Marines were withdrawn from the airport to ships offshore, and on Friday Reagan quietly announced the redeployment of the fleet away from the Lebanese coast.

During the news conference, Reagan took issue with a Congressional Budget Office criticism that his budget and tax cuts have hurt poorest families the most and helped the richest, saying that such criticism "not only wouldn't be fair, but I don't think it's true."

On the subject of ethics in the administration, the president said "I reject the use of the word 'sleaze,' and I don't think it fits any situation that we have here." Democrats have used the term "the sleaze factor" to describe questions of integrity they have raised.

Democratic presidential candidates Walter Mondale and Gary Hart have accused Reagan of ignoring violations of ethical standards in his official family.

"I believe the halls of government are as sacred as our temples of worship and nothing but the highest integrity is required of those who serve in government," the president said. "But at the same time, I also respect very much something that is very typically American and that is you are innocent until proven guilty."

"We're having an awful lot, and have for the past several years, of guilt by accusation," he said.

With the nomination of White House counselor Edwin Meese III to be attorney general stalled in the Senate while a special prosecutor investigates allegations involving his personal finances, Reagan said, without mentioning Meese:

"I will be the first to remove anyone in the administration that does not have the highest integrity and I adhere to that. At the same time, however, I'm not going to take any action that is based on accusation without proof."

Reagan's chemical weapons announcement said that Vice President George Bush will go to Geneva, Switzerland, in two weeks with the new proposal intended to break the deadlock in a 40-nation United Nations negotiation on a treaty banning development, production and stockpiling of the weapons.

He said the United States was preparing "bold and sound" means of verifying compliance with a treaty.

Asked what he would say if accused of "talking peace but preparing for war," Reagan said:

"I don't think the accusation would stand up. We haven't produced any such weapons for 15 years. The Soviet Union has a massive arsenal and is ahead of us in many areas having to do with chemical warfare."

"They (the Soviets) must know that the alternative to banning them is to then face the fact that we are going to build a deterrent."

On Central America, Reagan was asked about the mining of Nicaragua ports by CIA-supported opponents of the Sandinista government.

He replied that as long as Nicaragua "is exporting revolution to El Salvador ... we're going to try and inconvenience that government of Nicaragua until they quit that kind of action."

The news conference was Reagan's 23rd since taking office. While Democratic presidential candidates have campaigned actively around the country, Reagan has used the podium in the White House and before conventions in Washington to focus on what he sees as the successes of his administration.

Today, however, he was flying to New York to speak to businessmen and parents of children in Roman Catholic schools, visit a day care center, and meet with local Jewish leaders.

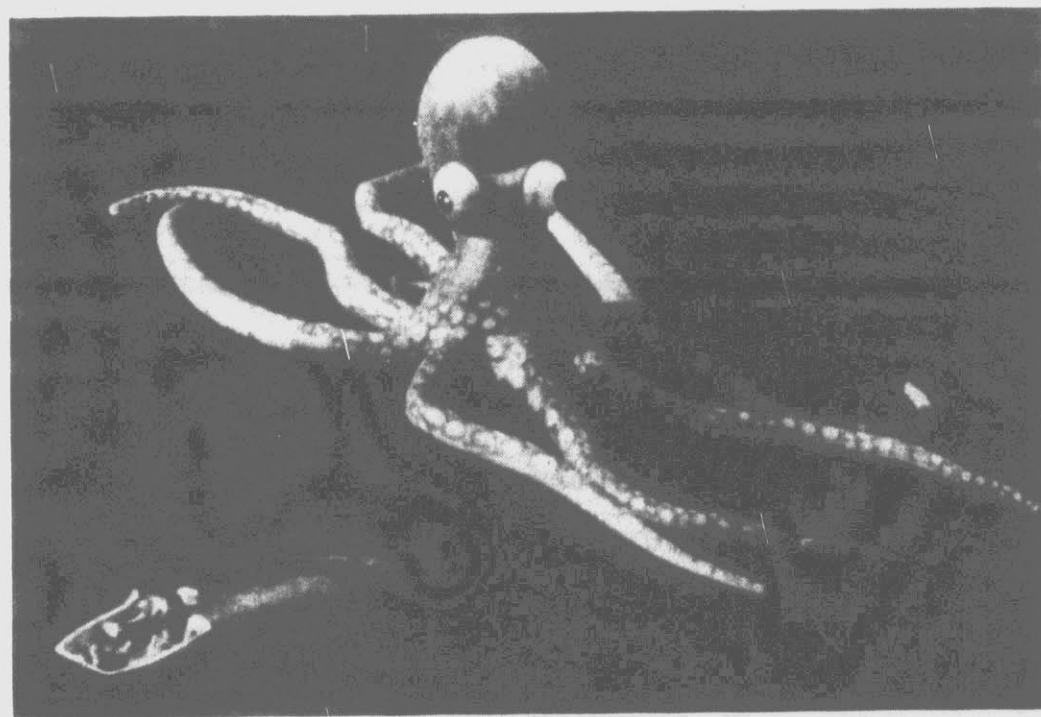

The president changed the backdrop for his news conference by moving the podium to the side of the East Room opposite the area normally used.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the shift was made simply "for a change." However, by leaving the room through a sliding door behind the podium, Reagan did not have to walk down an aisle between reporters who could call out more questions.

"Our people just got tired of seeing me in the old set," said

Reagan, the former actor, just before departing. Moments after he walked out into the red-carpeted cross-hall of the state floor, two U.S. Marines slid the doors closed.

Create Fakes In April 1 Edition

PIKEVILLE, Ky. (AP) — What do a 6-foot, 250-pound squash and local space shuttle astronaut Bill Francis have in common?

They're both fakes, perpetrated by the Troublesome Creek Times in its April Fool's edition.

Well, Francis exists, but he's actually the Knott County extension agent, and the closest he's likely to ever get to the shuttle is his TV set.

"We only lie to people once a year, deliberately," said Times publisher Ron Daley, explaining a front-page story about Francis' supposed selection for a space-shuttle flight.

Readers who turned to page 2 found continuations of the stories under a large "April Fool!" headline.

This year's spoof was the fourth annual one for the Hindman weekly paper, but Daley said some people were suckered nonetheless.

Francis helped the story's credibility by being photographed in a white protective suit used for spraying insecticides, Daley said.

U.S. Vetoes Resolution On Mining Of Ports

HIGH WATER ABOUNDS — In most areas of eastern North Carolina, farmers are being delayed with spring plowing and planting due to greater than normal rainfall in recent weeks. Water levels remain high in rivers, creeks and in flood plain areas. Here, the lane running along White's ponds in Greenville has become a watery path all the way to Tar River. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

By O.C. DOELLING
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States cast the only dissenting vote in the 15-nation Security Council as it vetoed a Nicaraguan resolution condemning the mining of Nicaragua's main ports.

Nicaraguan Ambassador Javier Chamorro Mora said the veto Wednesday was Washington's "clear reply" that it had no intention of stopping the mining and the "dirty, undeclared war" by U.S.-backed rebels against Nicaragua.

Thirteen of the council's 15 members supported the resolution — four more than needed to adopt it, barring a veto. Britain abstained.

The United States was not named in the resolution, but Nicaragua and its supporters accuse the Reagan administration of waging covert and undeclared war against Nicaragua through the use of "mercenaries."

The United States arms and trains Nicaraguan rebels based in Honduras who are fighting Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government. These rebels, and others operating from Costa Rica, claim to have mined all the principal ports in the Central American country.

In the past month, mines at Corinto, Nicaragua's largest port, have damaged six ships and injured 10 people who were aboard. Five Soviet seamen were wounded when their tanker hit a mine at another Pacific port, Puerto Sandino.

U.S. delegate Jose S. Sorzano, deputy to U.S. Ambassador Jeane J. Kirkpatrick, said in vetoing the Nicaraguan resolution that it was "seriously flawed," unfair, and not in the interest of peace in Central America.

The Cuban-born Sorzano declared, "Nicaragua comes to the council, seeking not peace but the right of repression at home and aggression at home with impunity. The United States will not acquiesce in such a resolution."

Nicaragua brought to the council last Friday its complaint that a U.S. "strategy of terror" was aimed at toppling the government. It blamed the mining on the United States and called it a prelude to a military blockade.

Sorzano said the resolution was flawed because it did not account for "the continued violation...of El Salvador's sovereignty and territorial integrity by Nicaragua's continuing shipment of arms to Salvadoran guerrillas. Surely the international community has an interest in these."

British Ambassador Sir John

Thomson said in explaining his abstention that Britain deplored the mining, but the resolution lacked balance and avoided the broader problems of Central America.

Nicaragua agreed to a series of amendments before the vote to win as broad support as it could from council members.

The final version of the resolution condemned and called for "an immediate end to the mining of the main ports of Nicaragua, which has caused the loss of Nicaraguan lives and injuries to nationals of other countries as well as material damage, serious disruption to its economy and the hampering of free navigation and commerce, thereby violating international law."

It affirmed "the right of free navigation" and supported the Central American peace initiative of the Contadora Group — Panama, Mexico, Colombia and Venezuela.

Voting for the resolution were the Netherlands, France, the Soviet Union, China, the Ukraine, Egypt, India, Malta, Peru, Pakistan, Upper Volta, Zimbabwe and Nicaragua.

The five permanent council members, each with veto power, are the United States, the Soviet Union, China, Britain and France.

Avers Disrespect Aids Democracy

DEERFIELD, Mass. (AP) — The radical '60s met the conservative '80s when Abbie Hoffman spoke to an audience of prep-school students and summed up his theory for saving democracy: Don't trust authority.

"Disrespect for authority, not respect for authority, ensures that democracy will be around for years and years to come," said Hoffman, 48, in an address to 250 students at Deerfield Academy.

"Get involved," Hoffman urged the students Tuesday night. "If you turn away once you know what's right, then you're already dead."

Many of the students' questions concerned Hoffman's days as a radical on the run.

"The FBI started a file on me as a radical subversive in 1962," said Hoffman.

20-Mile Chase After A Holdup

BUTNER, N.C. (AP) — Two Florida men who led authorities on a 20-mile chase have been charged with robbing a Granville County convenience store at gunpoint, police say.

Nicholas Louis Diaco, 24, of Melbourne, Fla., and Robert Steven Linscott, 23, of Dade Co., Fla., have both been charged with armed robbery and assault with a deadly weapon, authorities said Wednesday.

The men were in the Granville County jail Wednesday under $110,000 bond each, police said.

The two men allegedly led police on a chase Tuesday night that ended in Wake County when their truck wrecked near Raleigh, allowing authorities to arrest them without further incident, according to Chief L.E. Kornegay of Butner Public Safety Department.

Kornegay said that no one was injured in the armed robbery, which occurred about 11:45 p.m.

During the chase, the men shot at law officers at least three times, said Kornegay. Some 10 to 15 patrol cars participated in the chase.

Linscott, the driver of the truck, was treated at Rex Hospital in Raleigh for a mouth injury he received when the truck hit a ditch bank after crossing through an intersection.

No Candidates, Elected Anyhow

FOUNTAIN CITY, Wis. (AP) — No one campaigned and no names were on the ballot, but that didn't stop voters in Fountain City from choosing a mayor and two city council members.

Write-in candidates had a field day Tuesday as voters swept Mayor James R. Scholmeier back into office, despite the fact he wanted to retire after serving for 14 years.

Scholmeier made the mistake of telling City Clerk Carol Skroch before the election: "If I get written in, I guess I'll have to take it again."

Scholmeier collected 182 write-in votes on the otherwise blank ballot.

In Ward 1, Ed Schabacker had phoned a few people to say he might be interested in the job of alderman, Ms. Skroch said.

Alderman Schabacker received 57 votes and defeated write-in candidate Connie Strand, who garnered 43.

In Ward 2, Alderwoman Loretta Roberg had not filed nomination papers but was re-elected anyway by 40 write-in votes.

Help Is Available For Post-Tornado Stress

By GEORGETTE HEDRICK
ECU Medical Writer

The tremendous community support available to victims of the recent tornado will greatly reduce adverse reactions commonly experienced by survivors of such a life threatening event, according to Dr. James L. Mathis of East Carolina University.

But Mathis says it may be weeks or even months before some victims of the destruction feel the full emotional effects of the damaging wind that killed relatives and friends and claimed homes and possessions.

The department of psychiatric medicine at the ECU School of Medicine has volunteered to offer free counseling during the coming months to individuals or groups involved in the disaster, said Mathis, chairman of the department.

The psychiatric faculty is also available to speak to local civic organizations or volunteer agencies in the region.

Arrangements for speakers or counseling may be made by calling 757-2660 at the School of Medicine.

"The overwhelming social support shown by communities is now playing an important role in the victims' adjustment to the loss of loved ones and possessions," said Mathis.

"Victims are being offered help from people they know, not strangers. They are able to work through their grief and start rebuilding their lives surrounded by a local network of generous individuals and organizations," Mathis said.

He said emotional support, in addition to the financial and material contributions being offered, helps assure victims that their situation is not hopeless, although they may feel temporarily helpless.

That helpless feeling is to be expected, Mathis said, as the initial shock and disbelief at the power of the wind is replaced by a sense of total vulnerability. Families who had considered themselves safe and secure now realize they do not have complete control of their personal safety and homes.

And those feelings are not limited to just victims of the wind's power. Mathis said families not affected by the disaster also experience a "survivor reaction" of shock mixed with relief that creates its own anxiety.

Post-traumatic stress reaction is the term health professionals use to describe the symptoms experienced by victims and observers of a sudden, life-threatening event. Continuing tension and nervousness is commonly felt, said Mathis, and sleep disturbances, including nightmares, may occur.

A startle reaction to loud noises is also common, and Mathis noted that because the sound of a tornado as similar to a freight train, victims and observers may be particularly jumpy when they hear a train. They may also experience anxiety during a thunderstorm.

A victim may also show anger and irritability over minor problems and experience difficulty in making decisions, such as choosing the color of a new car or replacing a small personal item lost in the storm.

Others may react to the crisis by withdrawing from friends, family and community support, an avoidance technique some individuals use to escape from reality and hide their fears.

The additional stress may also aggravate high blood pressure, peptic ulcers and other disorders in both victims and observers, Mathis said.

Mathis emphasized that many symptoms associated with post traumatic stress reaction may be delayed for an indefinite period. Victims and observers are now involved in the practical tasks of cleaning up the debris, replacing possessions, arranging temporary accommodations and making permanent housing decisions.

But once a daily routine is re-established for a family, the sense of loss and change may trigger emotions that were repressed or never fully expressed, Mathis said.

"It is important for those affected by the tornado to express their feelings and discuss their experience with others," he said. "Victims must talk about their feelings and share grief for lost friends and relatives and destroyed homes. It's the best way to get over the experience."

Communicating feelings and fears is particularly helpful for children, said Dr. Lesley T. Mega, a child psychiatrist on the medical school's faculty. She said sensitive children who are aware of the destruction have reactions similar to an adult.

"Parents and teachers should encourage children to talk about the tornado and the effects it had," Dr. Mega said. "Children especially need assurance that it is not a normal occurrence. If they don't want to talk about it or appear upset, the subject should be postponed until another time when the child is more receptive.

"Children may show their stress and insecurity through their behavior — refusing to sleep alone, not wanting to go to school or do homework, or avoiding playtime and friends," she said. "Children, like adults, may feel an emotional guilt because they were spared while a friend may have lost everything."

Dr. Mega said children should be told about volunteer efforts to assist victims and how their family is helping. Children should be included, she said, in contributing toys, food and clothes.

Dr. Mega and Mathis agree that stress reactions to the tornado may be diminished because it was a disaster that lacked a culprit, a person to blame. Mathis said victims usually show more anxiety if they can attribute their misfortunes to another person, as in the case of a car accident or theft. A tornado, however, is viewed by most individuals as an act of God or nature.

Ironically, media attention focused on victims and observers have played a significant role in reducing stress, Mathis said. Being interviewed on television and posing for newspaper pictures have given them an additional outlet for their grief and loss, he said.

His Smurf Fad Unreal

KINGS MILLS, Ohio (AP) — Twenty-six years after he created the Smurfs cartoon characters, Belgian writer-artist Pierre "Peyo" Culliford still can't get over how big the little blue creatures have become.

In fact, Culliford said he isn't quite certain why children took so readily to the Smurfs, the characters which several years ago used an animated television show as a springboard for wildly successful spinoffs in the toy and sculpted figurine markets.

Culliford, 55, who speaks French but little English, was interviewed through an interpreter Tuesday as he visited the Kings Island amusement park near Cincinnati. Kings Island and other U.S. parks created by Cincinnati-based Taft Broadcasting Co. are licensed to use the Smurfs to decorate park attractions.

Culliford, who lives in Brussels, said he works 60 to 70 hours a week on Smurfs creations or on approving their use for various purposes.

"It's a total passion," Jack Rouse, who served as interpreter, said for Culliford. "He wants to keep drawing, for his children and his grandchildren and the child in him."

The Smurfs resulted from Culliford's need to create imaginary, non-human characters in a children's book he was writing about two adventurous characters in the Middle Ages named Johann and Pee Witt.

But the Smurfs generated such a reception from children that Culliford changed direction.

Mayor Points To An Extra Burden

WILLIAMSTON — "Absolutely and utterly ridiculous," is the expression Williamston Mayor Robert Cowan used to voice his opinion on the lack of a transportation system to take prisoners from Martin County to the new Bertie-Martin County Jail located near Windsor.

Cowan said the situation places an excessive burden on the Williamston Police Department and adds to the cost of taxpayers — who now, Cowan said, bear extra costs and lesser protection due to the lack of a system to take arrested persons to jail.

A report by Police Chief James D. Thompson shows that 21 prisoners have been transported by town police to Windsor since March 2, involving about 600 miles in travel and about 25 manhours of time.

Cowan has recommended that the town board wait until the county's mid-month meeting to see if definite action is taken, and if not, that the town board meet and take stringent action on the problem.

Reply To Allied Air Protests

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union is making more frequent military use of air corridors leading into West Berlin but dismisses allied protests about the flights as unjustified, State Department officials report.

The protests were made by the United States, Britain and France who together with the Soviet Union administer access to Berlin.

A senior State Department official made clear Wednesday that the three Western nations do not believe increased Soviet use of the air corridors poses any immediate threat to the safety of aircraft or represents a new political squeeze play on the former German capital.

Rather, the official said it is "a case of 'too many planes in too little air space.'"

He made clear, however, that the Soviet flights — while clearly legal — are an annoying interference with normal flight patterns to and from Berlin.

And he said that the three nations believe the situation bears close watch because of the divided city's sensitive political situation and because of such historic incidents as the 1948 Berlin blockade.

The United States presses the Soviets on such issues "whenever we see things getting a little out of kilter," he said.

"We protest, and if the protests don't work we protest again," said the official who briefed reporters on condition he not be identified by name.

"In this case they have said our protests were unjustified, that we have nothing to worry about, that they are perfectly within their rights," he said.

He emphasized that while the United States was concerned enough to complain to the Soviets it does not see the recent request for use of the air corridors as any form of "harassment or interference with flights or conflicts in the air with the Soviets."

He denied reports that Soviet aircraft have "buzzed" western commercial or military aircraft near Berlin. But he said pilots often have reported "sightings" of Soviet or East German fighter aircraft.

The official made clear the United States acknowledges that Soviet rights to reserve airspace on the approaches to Berlin dates to 1946 and the four-power agreement on administering the divided city.

"It's not a new pattern," he said. "It's been going on for years and years."

"What has changed is the frequency ..." he said. "It's a much, much more increased frequency."

"We do question the extent of their reservations and the often short notice they are giving us," he said.

"They now want to use air space which we think is too generous for their needs and not generous enough for our needs," he said. "We want them to give us enough notice so as not to hinder our own air operations."

John Hughes, the State Department's chief spokesman, said earlier Wednesday that the three Western powers normally have granted Soviet requests to fly across the air corridors in support of Soviet military exercises on the ground in order to avoid "the slightest possibility ... of planes crashing into one another."

"The three allied governments have made known their dissatisfaction with these requests to the Soviets in the Berlin Air Safety Control Center and the allies are pursuing the matter with Soviet authorities," Hughes said.

The State Department briefer said Soviet requests for air space near Berlin generally increase in the spring, coinciding with Soviet military exercises on training grounds located under the flight paths into the city.

Western planes generally circle and land from a different direction to avoid these exercises on request from Soviet officers, the official said.

Pan American, British Airways and Air France make several scheduled daily flights from West German cities to West Berlin, which is surrounded by East German territory.

Appointed Chief District Judge

RALEIGH (AP) — Judge Joseph R. John of Greensboro has been appointed as the Chief District Court Judge of the 18th Judicial District, court officials announced.

John replaces Judge Robert L. Cecil, who recently resigned the position. The appointment is effective April 9.

John received his law degree from the University of North Carolina School of Law in Chapel Hill in 1971.

Growers Keep Eye On Temperatures

By DENNIS PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer

From now until Easter, peach growers in the Sandhills will be keeping an eye on the thermometer, watching for a sudden cold snap that could mean their third straight year of disaster.

"Peach growers never feel too good until about the 15th (of April)," said Bill Reece, Montgomery County Agricultural Extension Service chairman. "They won't really feel good until after Easter."

Last year a freeze April 19 and April 20 destroyed virtually the entire Sandhills peach crop. The year before that, an April freeze wiped out a large percentage of the crop.

"We've had two years of essentially no income," Reece said. "Not many businesses can survive that. Some of our growers are diversified to some extent, but the whole agricultural area is tight right now."

Temperatures that fell near or below zero on Christmas eve have already hurt some growers, Reece said.

"Everybody in the county is affected by it in one way or another," Reece said, "but then there are materials brought in from outside the county and produced outside the county. Those people feel it, too."

"I've never seen two years back-to-back like the last two," said grower Pratt Gallimore of Ellerbe. "You can't really prepare for it."

Gallimore, who has 300 acres of young and old trees, said other growers are "trying to hang on just like I am."

Watts Auman, a West End grower, said fruit growers have a hard time dropping out of the orchard business or switching to other crops.

"The tree is already there. The capital investment is already there," he said. "It's difficult to drop out. You have the expense of removing the trees and converting to some other crop like soybeans or corn."

"You feel like you have to hang in there," he said. "That's just about the way it is with peaches."

Auman and Gallimore said even a good season this year would not make up for the financial losses of the last two years or have any noticeable effect on prices.

"I don't anticipate the previous years affecting prices this year," Auman said. "We hope people will have a hunger for them. We sell our peaches locally, and don't ship outside the area."

"A good crop would help local trade, but your chain stores and so on will get overloaded from other places," Gallimore said.

A big factor in North Carolina peach prices, Reece said, will be the size of the crop in South Carolina.

"If South Carolina has a big crop, it will affect our prices," Reece said. "That's the way it's always been because of their volume. And it depends on whether a lot of the harvest comes together or is spread out like it should be."

"From the blooms (which have dropped off the trees now), we appear to have a fairly good spread on the crop," he said. "That means South Carolina's late peaches will be competing with our early ones."

Wants Synfuels Prexy Resign

WASHINGTON (AP) — The resignation of Tulsa banker Victor M. Thompson Jr. as president and a director of the U.S. Synthetic Fuels Corp. is being demanded by House Energy Committee Chairman John Dingell, who says Thompson was "either incompetent or ethically unsuited" for the $135,000-a-year federal post.

Thompson, who has held the job a month, said on Tuesday he does not intend to resign.

Dingell's charges stem from Securities and Exchange Commission reports that Utica Bankshares Corp. violated federal security laws. Thompson, who was chairman and chief executive officer of Utica until taking the synfuels presidency, has denied any wrongdoing.

"There is some tree loss in our area because of (the Christmas cold snap)," Reece said. "It's hard to tell the extent of the damage now, but some growers are experiencing right much tree loss. A sudden drop in temperature really hurts them."

In the last good season, three years ago, peaches amounted to about a $4.5 million industry in Montgomery County, Reece said. But the last two years have brought little money into the county.

Hopeful For An East-West Pact

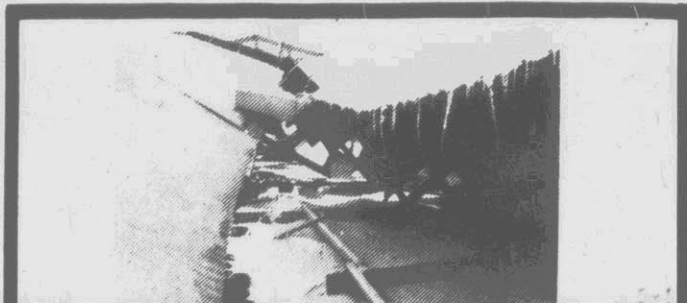

WASHINGTON (AP) — After the first round of talks in the Stockholm conference on security in Europe, Ambassador James Goodby is expressing guarded optimism about long-range prospects for an East-West agreement to reduce the risk of war in Europe.

The talks drew delegates from all NATO countries, the Warsaw Pact and eight neutral countries. The second round begins May 8 and run for nine weeks.

Asked when he expected an agreement, Goodby said after briefing President Reagan that he expected "something emerging" by the November 1986, meeting in Vienna of the Helsinki Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe. "I think there's a good chance over the long run," he added.

DEATH BY HUNGER
ROME (AP) — A U.N. report said Wednesday the food shortage in southern Africa is worsening and that in Mozambique "death due to starvation has reached an extraordinary magnitude".

Notes Greenville Is A Safer Place

Police Chief Ted Holmes has reported that statistics released by the state Department of Justice indicate that crime dropped 12.64 percent in Greenville from the level of 1982.

Holmes said 2,681 offenses were reported here during 1983, compared to 3,069 a year earlier. He said most categories of reported crime demonstrated a decrease, including robbery, which was down 42.5 percent, simple assault, down 38 percent, motor vehicle theft, down 34.2 percent, and burglary, which fell 17.1 percent.

"On a per capita basis, the reduction in crime was even more significant," said Holmes, "dropping from a rate of 10 crimes per 1,000 population in 1982 to 8.6 crimes per 1,000 population in 1983."

The chief said that at the same time reported crime decreased, the effectiveness of local police to solve crime improved. He said during 1983, 20.7 percent of reported crimes were cleared, an improvement of 4 percent from the 16.7 percent clearance rate reported by the state for 1982.

According to Holmes, 21 robberies of commercial businesses, gas stations and convenience stores were reported here during 1983, as compared to 30 in 1982. He said 322 commercial burglaries and 387 residential burglaries were reported during the year, down from 406 and 449, respectively, a year earlier.

Aggravated assault incidents increased here 11 percent during the year, from 106 to 118, while arson cases rose 11 to 15, an increase of 36 percent.

Statewide figures showed an overall 7 percent reduction in reported crime.

In addition to crediting the "outstanding efforts" of police department personnel, Holmes said increased citizen participation in neighborhood watch programs, the mobile crime watch and the crimestoppers program contributed to making Greenville a safer place.

N.C. FBLA Honors To Nine Pitt Students

Nine Pitt County students have won statewide recognition at the 30th annual State Future Business Leaders of America Conference.

Winning first, second or third-place state honors were the following students:

•D.H. Conley: Ragan Spain, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Spain of Winterville, Mr. FBLA; Jeff Taft, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Taft, state parliamentarian; Lori Dennis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Dennis of Ayden, third place in Miss FBLA; Carolyn Pearsall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Pearsall, Wanda Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Smith, and Terri Spencer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Spencer, first place entrepreneurship team. The D.H. Conley FBLA Chapter also won a Gold Seal Award. Twenty-one students from Conley attended the conference. Winners will participate in national and regional competitions later this year. The chapter is advised by Mary Thompson.

•Farmville Central: Pam Strickland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Strickland, state historian; Michelle Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E.R. Allen, Who's Who in North Carolina FBLA. The Farmville Central Chapter, which was organized in 1950, received recognition for 34 years of membership. In addition, it placed second in the Joyce Keller Local Chapter Annual Business Report event and received a Gold Seal Award.

•Ayden-Grifton: Melissa Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rose of Grifton, second place in clerk-typing I.

The theme of the state conference was "Getting Involved — Today for Tomorrow."

Memorial Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Park Service has proposed banning most demonstrations and distribution of literature near the Vietnam Veterans Memorial to reduce noise and other distractions to visitors there.

Major veterans groups closely associated with the black granite memorial are applauding the proposal, which would double the current restricted area for demonstrations and set the legal boundary for loudspeakers almost 200 feet from the memorial site. Current regulations allow demonstrations to be held as close as 50 feet from the memorial wall.

"It has been the experience of the National Park Service that (demonstrations and the sale and distribution of literature) occurring so close to the memorial substantially interfere with visitors' ability to contemplate the memorial and its meaning in a quiet, peaceful setting," said the Park Service proposal, published in the Federal Register this week.

A spokesman for the American Civil Liberties Union, which has previously opposed rules barring protesters from federal structures, said that although the ACLU had not seen the proposal Wednesday, "In general, we think that those kinds of restrictions should be limited to the narrowest possible restriction to maintain a place of meditation and respect."

The spokesman, lawyer Art Spitzer, said the ACLU has not decided how it will respond formally to the proposal.

Last summer, thousands of anti-and pro-Reagan protesters gathered on opposite sides of the memorial during a demonstration. Fears of violence or damage to the wall drew a sizable police contingent. Dozens of uniformed Vietnam veterans also came to guard the memorial that bears the names of 57,939 men and women killed in Southeast Asia.

GUERRILLA ATTACK BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Members of a leftist guerrilla group that has agreed to observe a truce starting next month overran the police station in a western town, killing one officer and wounding three, the army said.

CONLEY FBLA WINNERS ... Members of the D.H. Nebraska Halts Video Lottery

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Video lottery machines — computerized devices with displays resembling poker games or slot machines — have been declared illegal in the state, but those already located in nine towns may continue operating until Jan. 1.

Proponents of the law, which took effect Tuesday when the legislation was signed by Gov. Bob Kerrey, contended that the machines would prey upon the finances of low- and moderate-income people and promote crime.

Opponents argued that the state should allow the gambling, then tax it, providing more revenues.

'Voluntary' Banking Program Dissatisfies

By DAVID GOELLER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Key members of Congress are unhappy with federal regulators' voluntary plan to shorten the "float" time a financial institution takes to show a customer's account has received a deposit.

"This is bureaucratic pabulum and doesn't change anything," says House Banking Committee Chairman Fernand St Germain, D-R.I.

He made the comment Wednesday as bank and savings and loan regulators urged Congress not to enact legislation, pending in the House and Senate, that would set time limits for the crediting of deposits.

But St Germain and Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., said they expected action this year to attack the problem of the "float" — the time between when a customer deposits a check and when the customer can draw upon these funds.

"Congress can no longer rely on banks and their regulators to take meaningful action in this area," said D'Amato, a Senate Banking Committee member who vowed to "do everything possible" in the Senate.

St Germain said his committee has received numerous complaints from citizens, including one from a woman who said her bank told her it would take 10 days for a $1,212 Internal Revenue Service refund check to be credited to her account.

"I'm at a loss to know how an institution can be so brash," St Germain said. "The examples go on and on. They are outrageous. Clearly, customers are being denied, in many cases, their rightful interest on deposits while the banks profit on the extended float. ...

The voluntary program calls on financial institutions to review their float policies and "consider reducing the delay periods to the extent possible, consistent with prudent business practices."

It also urges them disclose their float policies to depositors and to "refrain from imposing unnecessary delays on all checks," particularly Social Security and other government checks.

The program was announced last month by the Federal Reserve Board, Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., Federal Home Loan Bank Board and the comptroller of the currency.

D'Amato, testifying before the House Banking financial institutions subcommittee, said that "customers ... have charged that banks are playing a 'float game' with their funds, earning hundreds of millions of dollars in interest on their customers' funds while unjustifiably restricting the use of those funds by their rightful owners."

He said that when institutions are slow to credit deposits, customers sometimes unintentionally write checks that bounce and are slapped with "exorbitant penalty fees" of $10 or more.

Preston Martin, vice chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, said that in 1981-82 each bad check cost banks 36 cents to process, including monetary losses.

He said that while the board agrees with the objectives of the pending legislation, Congress should give the voluntary program a chance to work.

"We believe that the current efforts supported by the financial industry are well-suited to solving the problem of delayed (deposit) availability," Martin testified.

"This cooperative effort between the industry and the Federal Reserve will provide greater benefits to depositors and will result in a more competitive and efficient payments mechanism," he said.

Martin and other regulators told the subcommittee that financial institutions delay crediting deposits until a check has cleared in order to protect themselves against forged or bouncing checks.

Martin said that 99 percent of the 40 billion checks issued in the United States each year are cleared within one or two business days. He said that only 1 percent of them involve fraud or insufficient funds.

"All of these returns do not actually result in a loss since in most instances the institution is able to recover the funds from its depositor," Martin said.

C.T. Conover, the comptroller of the currency, said that legislating a time schedule for crediting deposits to accounts is not "necessary or warranted."

"In fact, such action could be detrimental to consumers," Conover said. "This could mean higher fees, indirect means of minimizing or screening of depositors or other offsetting losses."

Notice Of Public Hearing
Relative To Application By The Town Of Grifton, N.C. For Funding Under The Housing And Community Development Act Of 1974, Amended 1981.

Notice is hereby given that the Grifton Board of Commissioners will conduct a public hearing on April 16, 1984 at 10:00 A.M. in the Town Hall, Grifton, relative to the intention of the Town to apply for funding under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act. The Town of Grifton intends to submit an application for a grant of up to $750,000 in community revitalization funds to improve substandard housing, water, sewer, and streets for an area located within the Town of Grifton. The project area includes dwellings located along Main, Gordon, Pitt, and Water Streets.

The following is a tentative list of proposed activities and an estimated budget based on initial surveys of the project area. The final application will be reviewed at the public hearing.

Activity	Funds
1. Rehabilitation
2. Demolition & Clearance of Dilapidated Structures	436,500
3. Relocation Assistance	6,400
4. Water & Sewer	27,000
5. Paving & Drainage	110,000
6. Administration	87,000
	83,100
Total	750,000

The purpose of the public hearing is to obtain the views and comments of the citizens of Grifton with regard to the community development application by the Town of Grifton.

All citizens are requested and encouraged to attend the public hearing and make comments and suggestions.

If additional information is needed, please contact the town clerk office.

Unemployment In Wake Of Storms

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — More than 350 North Carolinians have filed for federal unemployment benefits because of jobs lost in last week's string of deadly tornadoes.

State Employment Security Commission officials said Wednesday they don't know how many people will be eligible for the federal disaster job benefits and expect many more claims to be filed.

McKenzie said he already has seen an increase in requests from construction companies for skilled workers.

"On the flip side, I'm sure there will be unemployed people going to work now because of the construction," he said. Whether the gains will offset the job losses remains to be seen.

Unlike state unemployment benefits, federal disaster benefits are available for people unable to work because of injuries. The benefits also are available for self-employed workers.

Officials will begin processing the claims will begin Monday, and some people should get benefits early next week, said Al McKenzie, manager of the Cumberland County Employment Security office in Fayetteville.

This week is the first that workers are eligible for the federal disaster benefits. Employees who temporarily lost work last week because of power outages don't qualify for the federal disaster assistance and aren't expected to qualify for state unemployment benefits, said Jim Knight, employment security disaster coordinator.

The federal program guarantees that those eligible will get a minimum of $108 a week in federal and state money, Knight said. People who can document high salaries before the storm can qualify for up to $166 a week under the state unemployment security program, he said.

Officials in the Cape Fear area said no major area industries were hit by the tornadoes.

"Because the storm avoided major industrial centers," McKenzie said, we're really fortunate, looking at it from an economic standpoint, at least in the Cape Fear Region."

Knight said the largest area employer wiped out by the storm was Boren Brick Co., west of Roseboro. Elizabeth Grant, manager of Sampson County's ESC office, said Boren and Salemburg's Laurel Lakes Gardens & Nursery — also destroyed — together employ less than 100 people.

Some employment security officials said the storm may actually help the labor market in weeks ahead with a construction boom predicted as people rebuild.

Says System Is Near Breakdown

DURHAM (AP) — The federal deposit insurance system that protects savers from bank failures is creaking with old age and "headed for a bureaucratic breakdown," according to an Ohio State University banking professor.

"I want to emphasize that I am not predicting a crisis for deposit institution customers," Edward J. Kane told a Duke University audience on Wednesday.

"Congress has already passed a joint resolution putting the full faith and credit of the federal government behind insurance agency guarantees," he said.

The resolution doesn't indicate how the government's obligation is to be met, which means a sudden nationwide run on banks and savings and loans in financial trouble "would cause wild bureaucratic scrambling," Kane said.

The federal deposit insurance system, adopted in the 1930s, guarantees savings accounts up to $100,000.

WITH IBM PC AT THE OFFICE AND PCjr AT YOUR HOUSE, YOU CAN TAKE WORK HOME ON YOUR LITTLE FINGER.

Many business people already know about the IBM® Personal Computer family. Many are now hearing about its new member, the IBM PCjr. And some have already discovered how PC and PCjr can work together.

Children can learn new ways of learning, and make short work of homework. Adults can keep track of household expenses, write letters, file tax data, plug into information networks. And everyone can enjoy challenging new cartridge games.

user memory is about $1300. An expandable 64KB cassette cartridge model is about $700. (Prices apply at IBM Product Centers. Prices may vary at other stores.)

TAKE ONE HOME TODAY

For a demonstration, visit an authorized IBM PCjr dealer or an IBM Product Center. Check the listing below for a convenient location.

THE JOY OF PERSONAL COMMUTING

PCjr bears a strong resemblance to the rest of the family. If you know how to operate PC or PC/XT, you can operate PCjr easily. If you have programs for PC or PC/XT, you'll find many of them will run on PCjr.

Now, much of what you start at the office, you can finish at home, and vice versa.

THE BRIGHT LITTLE FAMILY ADDITION THAT CAN GROW UP FAST

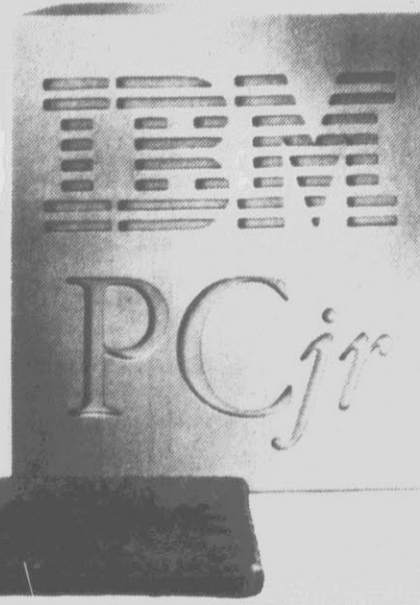

PCjr is a powerful tool for modern times. With easy-to-follow new IBM Personal Computer programs, and with options like a printer and an internal modem for telecommunications, it can handle a great variety of jobs.

IBM designed PCjr with lots of bright ideas to make computing easier. The "Freeboard" — a keyboard that doesn't need a connecting cord — is easy to get comfortable with.

Built-in picture instructions can help the first-time user get started. Diskette-drive systems include a program that allows users to explore computer fundamentals at their own pace. And to get PCjr up and running from the very first day, a sample diskette with eleven useful mini-programs is also included.

Poultry

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 54.00 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pound birds. Too few percent to report a preliminary weighted average. The market is about steady and the live supply is moderate for a moderate demand. Average weights desirable to occasionally heavy. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Thursday was 1,783,000, compared to 1,545,000 last Thursday.

Grain

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — No. 2 yellow shelled corn higher at 3.95 to 4.06 in the East and 3.95 to 4.04 in the Piedmont. No. 1 soybeans higher at 8.14 to 8.28 in the East and 8.08 to 8.13 in the Piedmont. Wheat 3.77 to 3.92. New crop — corn 2.96 to 3.32. New crop — soybeans 7.10 to 7.27. New crop — wheat 3.17 to 3.53.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, struggling to reverse a five-session decline.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 26.06 in the last five trading days, rose 1.46 to 1,150.02 by noon today.

But losers held a 6-5 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the market's drop over the past week had apparently brought stock prices to levels that attracted increased buying interest.

They also said investors remained uneasy over the recent rise of interest rates. Many banks across the country today raised their prime lending rates from 11 1/2 to 12 percent.

However, Donald Regan, secretary of the Treasury, said he expected rates to reach a peak soon and to decline slightly by the end of the year.

Cooper Laboratories gained 3/8 to 15 1/2 in active trading. The company agreed to sell its Oral-B Laboratories subsidiary to Gillette Co.

RCA rose 1/8 to 34 3/8 following word of the company's decision to discontinue its loss-plagued videodisk player business.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks slipped .10 to 90.61. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .22 at 208.22.

Volume on the Big Board came to 39.74 million shares at noontime, against 40.63 million at the same point Wednesday.

Doctors Believe Cancer Stopped

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A teen-age girl who underwent court-ordered cancer treatments despite her father's religious objections is undergoing more tests, but doctors believe they have stopped the disease from spreading from her leg to other parts of her body.

The tumor on the left leg of Pamela Hamilton, 13, has shrunk to one-third of its size and now contains little of the life-threatening cancer, officials said Wednesday.

Miss Hamilton has returned to East Tennessee Children's Hospital for tests and eight days of chemotherapy, spokeswoman Pat Kelly said.

Chemotherapy began last September after her father, fundamentalist preacher Larry Hamilton, lost a court battle to prevent treatment of his daughter because of his religion objections.

Woman Killed In Accident

RALEIGH (AP) — Police say a Wake County woman was killed when she was run over by her car at least three times in what witnesses described as "an invisible driver making the car go around and around."

Margaret L. Ellington, 35, of Wake Forest died in the emergency room of the Wake Medical Center from injuries received in Wednesday's early-morning accident, authorities said.

Raleigh Police Officer Archie L. Long said it was "the worse accident I've ever investigated. It was pitiful."

Long said Mrs. Ellington drove her 1970 Ford into the driveway shortly before 7 a.m. to pick up her grandmother's newspaper and deliver it to her in the hospital.

But when Mrs. Ellington opened the door and reached out to get the paper, the car started going backward, Long said. He said it was not known if Mrs. Ellington had put the car in reverse or had accidentally knocked it into reverse when she leaned out.

Long said Mrs. Ellington apparently struggled to get back into the car as it continued moving down the driveway. The car then entered the street and Mrs. Ellington's head apparently hit the pavement at least once, Long said.

"She was probably trying to lean up and couldn't get her hands on the steering wheel," he said.

Mrs. Ellington, an assistant to the office manager at Little River Corp. of Wake Forest, then fell out of the car when it struck a utility pole. The car, its wheels cut hard to the right, then repeatedly ran over Mrs. Ellington, Long said.

Long said it had not been determined whether the accelerator was stuck.

The car came to rest against a utility pole, and Mrs. Ellington, who was unconscious, lay between the road and the shoulder.

'Maybe' Killed By An Intruder

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A "star witness" killed before he could testify against a woman accused of trying to hire a hit man may have been fatally shot when he surprised a burglar, police say.

"Maybe a burglary, maybe not," police Sgt. Jim Calvert said Wednesday, a day after the body of police informant Robert L. Gonzales was discovered in his sister's home. Gonzales, 59, had been shot five times in the head and chest, police said.

He was expected to testify against Kathleen Burke Freudenmann, who is charged with criminal solicitation to commit capital murder. Prosecutors say she offered Gonzales $12,000 to kill her husband, Bernard, although the slaying was never carried out.

Benefit Shows

Country music singer Hank Snow, along with his three-piece band, singer Charlie Walker and other country and gospel music entertainers, will present two performances in Greenville Sunday to raise funds for the victims of the recent tornado.

Both concerts are scheduled to be given in Minges Coliseum at East Carolina University. The tentative times announced are 4 p.m. for the first concert, and 8 p.m. for the second.

A donation fee of $5 per person is expected to raise $75,000 for the benefit fund. Snow and the other performers are donating their time without charge, according to Greenville television evangelist Jim Whittington, one of a group of concerned citizens who have headed efforts to organize the concerts.

The concerts are being sponsored jointly by the citizens group and by East Carolina University.

Braves Top Phillies

It was the classic confrontation, power against power. And this time, power pitching stopped power hitting.

The Philadelphia Phillies trailed Atlanta by four runs when they loaded the bases with two out in the eighth inning against tiring starter Craig McMurtry. With slugging Mike Schmidt stepping to the plate, the signal went to the bullpen and out came hard-throwing Steve Bedrosian.

"That's it, the premier situation," Bedrosian said after fanning Schmidt and preserving the Braves' 4-0 six-hit victory Wednesday night. "I had to prove to myself I could do the job. It's a confidence builder facing a power hitter like that and getting him on sliders. It doesn't matter who the batter is in that situation, I just go at 'em and throw hard. He's a good hitter. If he gets hold of it, it's going to go."

In the only other National League game, the Houston Astros trimmed the Montreal Expos 8-2 and the New York Mets shaded the Cincinnati Reds 2-0.

Claudell Washington and Chris Chambliss belted leadoff home runs in the first and second innings as the Braves beat John Denny, the NL's 1983 Cy Young Award winner, for the first time.

Denny, who had won seven previous decisions against Atlanta, went seven innings, allowing all five Atlanta hits while striking out seven. He yielded two more runs in the sixth. Washington doubled, was sacrificed to third and scored on Gerald Perry's bloop single. Chambliss drove in the second run of the inning with a sacrifice fly.

"That was a good shot in the arm for our pitching staff," Chambliss said. "We know we can win anyway, but sometimes you need to win just to prove it."

It marked the first time there had been two consecutive shutouts in Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium — the Phillies won 5-0 Tuesday night — since the Braves blanked the Chicago Cubs twice in succession in April of 1982.

Astros 8, Expos 2
Consecutive triples by Terry Puhl and Dickie Thon produced three runs in the sixth inning as Houston erased a 2-1 deficit. Alan Ashby singled for the fourth hit off Bill Gullickson and Houston pitcher Nolan Ryan reached base on the Montreal pitcher's fielding error to

Golfer Yancey Appearing Here

PGA Tournament player Bert Yancey will present golf clinics at two Pitt County country clubs and will be the featured speaker at a program presented by the Mental Health Association in Pitt County on Wednesday, April 11.

Yancey will hold clinics at the Greenville Country Club, from 9:30 until 11 a.m., and at the Ayden Country Club, from 4:30 until 6 p.m. In addition, he will make a presentation on "Manic Depression" at the Jaycee Park Building in Greenville from 12 noon to 1 p.m.

A respected and successful golf professional, Yancey is personally committed to educating others about mental health, speaking at meetings and special events throughout the country. He knows about what he speaks, having suffered from manic depression.

In 15 years on the PGA tour, Yancey won eight tournaments and nearly $700,000. Then in the mid-'70's, it became increasingly apparent that something was wrong. After one particular disturbing episode and a stay in the hospital, Yancey learned that manic-depressive illness had been causing his erratic behavior.

Recovery wasn't easy — it never is. But with regular medical treatment, medication and perseverance, his illness was brought under control. After many months in hospitals, Bert today leads a normal life, making contributions to his profession, his community and to society at large.

The clinics he will host are free and open to the public. For further information, contact the Mental Health Association office at 752-7448.

Smith, Strickland Lead Prep AP All-State Team

By RICK SCOPPE

Associated Press Writer
Chapel Hill's Ranzino Smith and North Surry's Kevin Strickland — both of whom are headed for the Atlantic Coast Conference — top The Associated Press High School All-State Basketball Team announced today.

Smith, who will play for North Carolina next season, and Strickland, who has verbally committed to Duke, received 16 votes each from a panel of North Carolina sportswriters.

Joining the duo on the first team are Keith Pryor of Edneyville, Charles Shackelford of Kinston and Eric English of Hillsborough Orange.

Heading up the girls' first team are Gastonia Ashbrook's Deanna Tate and North Iredell's Amy Cartner. Monique Pompili of Fayetteville Reid Ross, Lori Phillips of Southeast Guilford and Terry Roach of Rockingham.

Smith, a 6-foot senior, averaged 30.4 points per game and hit 68 percent from the field while also pulling down five rebounds an outing.

Strickland, a 6-5 senior, averaged 26.2 points and 14 rebounds a contest while also connecting on 67 percent of his field goals.

Pryor, a 6-6 senior, had a 29.7 scoring average this season and averaged 13 rebounds a game. He also scored 20 or more points in all of his team's 28 games to help lead Edneyville to the 1-A state title and a 26-3 mark.

Two juniors — Shackelford and English — complete the first team.

Shackelford, who at 6-9 is the tallest player on the team, averaged 17.9 points a game — the only player on the first team to average under 20 points this season.

The 6-1 English averaged 21.7 points, 7.9 assists and 5.3 rebounds per outing.

Four of the five players named to the girls' first team averaged better than 20 points a contest this season, with only Pompili under that at 14.7 points per game.

However, Pompili, a 5-10 senior, also pulled down 11.3 rebounds a game to help lead Reid Ross to the state 4-A title and a 27-3.

Tate, a 5-8 senior, averaged 22 points and four rebounds a contest while Cartner, a 5-11 senior who's also No. 1 in her high school class academically, averaged 21.9 points and 10.4 rebounds a contest.

Cartner was instrumental in North Iredell's winning the state 3-A crown and finishing the season 28-2.

Roach, a 5-6 senior, averaged 22.7 points along with five rebounds and assists a game while hitting 53 percent of her field goals. Phillips, a 6-0 senior, averaged 21.2 points and 8.4 rebounds a game while connecting on 55 percent of her shots from the floor.

The boys' second team is made up of Harry Burrus of Mattamuskeet, Derrick Johnson of New Bern, Terry Whisnant of Cherryville, Rod Cousin of Graham and Mike Marion of Mount Airy.

Debbie Allen of Roxboro Person heads up the girls' second team. Also on the team are Angela Hunter of Southeast Halifax, Dilly Baldwin of Harnett Central, Tracy Vann of Fayetteville Pine Forest and Jill Goldberg of Raleigh Broughton.

Righetti Does Job For Yankees

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

You've got to hand it to Dave Righetti. The New York Yankees did — and the result was a neat relief performance by the one-time starter.

"Righetti did a heck of a job, especially for the first time," said

Tacy Given New Pact

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Wake Forest basketball coach Carl Tacy has had his contract extended for an undisclosed length of time, according to Athletic Director Gene Hooks.

Terms of the extension were not released.

"I am delighted to be able to make this announcement," Hooks said in a news release Wednesday.

The Demon Deacons finished the season with a school-record 23 victories and advanced to the finals of the Mid-East Regional.

"I honestly feel that our team was the best prepared squad in the NCAA tournament," Hooks said.

Tacy has posted a 207-135 record in his 12 years at Wake Forest, a 60.6 winning percentage. Tacy is also the second winningest coach in Wake Forest history.

Tacy, who was head coach at Marshall in 1972, has an overall record of 230-139.

Yankee right-hander Phil Niekro after Righetti saved a 4-3 victory for him over the Kansas City Royals on Wednesday night. "He got me out of a jam, an that's how you win ballgames."

Righetti, a hard-throwing left-hander whose move to the bullpen this year is one of the most watched experiments in the American League, pitched out of a bases-loaded jam in the seventh inning and retired the last seven batters to preserve the Yankee victory.

"He looks quicker when he follows that slow stuff that Niekro throws," said Kansas City's Hal McRae. "But he's going to be effective no matter who comes before him if he keeps pitching like he did tonight. He had awfully good stuff."

In other AL action, the Boston Red Sox edged the California Angels 2-1; the Oakland A's defeated the Milwaukee Brewers 4-3 and the Seattle Mariners tripped the Toronto Blue Jays 3-2 in 10 innings. The Chicago-Baltimore contest was rained out.

Niekro, a 45-year-old knuckleballer, scattered nine hits in his AL debut. Niekro, who came to the Yankees from Atlanta as a free agent, took a 4-2 lead into the seventh but got in trouble when Pat Sheridan and McRae hit one-out singles. Righetti struck out Steve Balboni but gave up an RBI single to Frank White before ending the inning on a groundout by Butch Davis.

Kansas City starter Paul Splitteroff gave up two runs in the second on a triple by Toby Harrah, a double by Butch Wynegar and Tim Foli's RBI single. Onix Concepcion's RBI double and a run-scoring single by McRae tied it for the Royals in the third. Then the Yankees chased Splitteroff in the fourth with doubles by Dave Winfield and Harrah and Wynegar's RBI single.

"I felt good," said Niekro, who won 268 games in the National League. "The first one is over," he

Jag Golfers Top Bruins

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central took an easy victory in a rain-shortened golf match over Wilson Beddingfield yesterday.

The Jaguars and Bruins were forced to halt their match after only nine holes because of rain, with Farmville taking a 152 to 163 victory.

Scott Lewis led Farmville with a 35, while Barryl Baker had a 38. Vincent Lee carded a 39 and Mel Williams had a 40.

Harry Tyson led Beddingfield with a 38, while Joey Exum had a 40, Mike Galloway had 42 and Tony Bass had 43.

Farmville is now 3-0 on the year and travels to Northern Nash on Thursday.

said of his American League debut. "Now I can get that off my mind."

Red Sox 2, Angels 1

Mike Easler's two-run homer in the top of the ninth inning carried Boston over California.

With California up 1-0 on Fred Lynn's fifth-inning homer, Wade Boggs led off the ninth with a single off reliever Luis Sanchez. After Jim Rice lined out to right field, Easler walloped his first homer of the season, over the center field fence.

Mark Clear, who relieved Bob Ojeda after the southpaw had held the Angels to six hits in seven innings, picked up the win. Sanchez, 0-1, came on with one out in the eighth after California starter Mike Witt had blanked Boston on four hits.

A's 4, Brewers 3

Dave Lopes doubled home a run in the sixth inning and Carney Lansford followed with an RBI single for Oakland, who came from

Two Bowlers Roll Top Games

Earl Sermons and George Cox both came within one strike of a perfect game while bowling in the Men's City League and Hillcrest Lanes last night.

Sermons, bowling for the Hustlers, missed a strike in the seventh frame, picked up his spare and then finished the game with strikes for a total of 11. He finished with a 279 total.

George Cox, bowling for the Tarheel II, also picked up 11 strikes, then got a spare and a split in the tenth frame. He finished with a 282 total.

behind a second straight game and beat Milwaukee.

Lansford had three hits, including the game-winner, and Ray Burris pitched six innings of strong relief before giving way to Bill Caudill in the eighth. The loser was Mike Caldwell, the Brewers' left-hander who was staked to an early 3-0 lead.

"I'm waiting in the wings," said Lopes, who is scheduled to play a reserve role this season. "My job is to keep pressure on my teammates, let them know that if they're not hitting, someone is there ready to take over for them."

Net Tourney Starts Friday

The Greenville Open Tennis Tournament, sponsored by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department, begins Friday at 9 a.m.

Over 75 persons from all over eastern North Carolina will be participating in the tournament, including the state's #1 ranked player, Allen Farfour.

There will also be ten other ranked players in the tournament.

Events include men's and women's singles, men's 35, 45, 55 and over singles and men's doubles.

The tournament is sanctioned by the United States Tennis Association, the Southern Tennis Association and the North Carolina Tennis Association.

Play will extend through Sunday afternoon, with the final scheduled for 12 noon Sunday.

Admission is free and all matches will be played at the River Birch Tennis Center.

Mariners 3, Blue Jays 2

Phil Bradley singled home Spike Owen from second base in the 10th inning to lift Seattle over Toronto.

Owen opened the 10th with a walk off reliever Dennis Lamp and was sacrificed to second by Jack Perconte. Lamp then intentionally walked Barry Bonnell and Bradley, who scored the game-tying run as a pinch runner for Gorman Thomas in the bottom of the ninth, lined a single to right.

start the Astros' four-run rally in the sixth.

Puhl tripled for two runs and Thon followed with an RBI triple and then scored the fourth run of the inning on Jose Cruz's sacrifice fly. The Astros wrapped it up with three runs in the eighth on Jerry Mumphrey's two-run double and an RBI single by Ray Knight.

Ryan allowed five hits in seven innings while striking out six. Vern Ruhle blanked the Expos on two hits over the final two innings as the Astros, 1-1, made certain that there would be no repeat of last year's disastrous 0-9 start.

"I'm just glad to get the first victory," said Manager Bob Lillis. "When we went ahead, I felt good about it."

Mets 2, Reds 0
Rookie Ron Darling held Cincinnati to a pair of hits in six innings and Junior Ortiz and Keith Hernandez drove in runs. Darling, 1-3 in five major-league starts at the end of last season, walked six before giving way to Doug Sisk in the seventh as the Mets won their first game for rookie Manager Dave Johnson. Sisk allowed one hit over the final three innings.

Hubie Brooks led off the second inning with a soft single to center against Bruce Berenyi, took second on a groundout and scored on a single by Ortiz. Wally Backman opened the third inning with a soft double that skipped away from diving center fielder Eddie Milner. He scored on Hernandez's double.

The crowd of 3,921 was the smallest in the 15-year history of Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium.

"I was a little nervous because of the (71-minute) delay (at the start)," Darling said. "I didn't know if it would start at 7:30, 8:30 or whenever. I was a little wild (he walked six). The best pitch I had all night was my fastball. I threw it the majority of the time."

GGO Set To Open

GREENSBORO (AP) — Craig Stadler has two big factors going for him this week in the $400,000 Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament.

"I'm playing well, better than I have in a while, and I'm playing a golf course where I've had success before," Stadler said before teeing off today in the first round of a chase for a $72,000 first prize.

The course in question is the 6,984-yard Forest Oaks layout. He won there in 1980 and was a runnerup last season.

"You always feel good about going back to a course where you've won before," he said. "You remember some of your good shots, and you just have positive feelings about it."

Stadler, the 1981 Masters champ, won four tournaments and took leading money-winning honors in 1982. From that high point, however, he failed to take a title last year.

That non-winning string, however, could be nearing an end.

"You can never say you're going to go out and win a particular tournament. There are too many things involved.

"But I have a good feeling about things now," said Stadler, a strong, third-place finisher last Sunday.

"I'm hitting more good shots. I'm starting to play pretty well. I'm getting a little more confidence.

"I expect to play well. And when you expect to play well, you often do."

Although a number of leading players are, as usual, skipping

Greensboro to concentrate on practice for next week's Masters, the 144-man field contains such top performers as Ray Floyd, defending titleholder Lanny Wadkins, and Fred Couples, who took the money-winning lead last Sunday with his victory in the important Tournament Players Championship.

Other leading players include Ben Crenshaw, Fuzzy Zoeller, Cal Peete, Andy Bean, two-time Greensboro winner Danny Edwards and 1984 tournament winners Tom Purtzer, Jack Renner and David Edwards.

Leading the foreign field are Bernhard Langer of West Germany, Nick Faldo of England and Tommy Nakajima of Japan.

ESPN will provide national television coverage of portions of the final round.

Lopez After Hall Win

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Nancy Lopez has won the tournament before, but a victory in this year's $400,000 Nabisco Dinah Shore would have special significance for her.

Another victory in a major tournament, coupled with a win in any other event, would give her enough victories to qualify for the LPGA Hall of Fame.

Lopez's previous victory in the Dinah Shore, one of her 28 titles, came before it was designated a major tournament last year.

"I want to be No. 1 again and I want to make the Hall of Fame," Lopez, explaining her golfing goals, said heading into today's opening round of the Dinah Shore.

"And one of my biggest ambitions is to win the Vare Trophy for the lowest scoring average of the year," added Lopez, who set the LPGA record of 71.2 shots per round back in 1979.

She said her short-range goals might be influenced by how well she does in this tournament and the J&B Scotch Pro-Am next week in Las Vegas, Nev. Should one of the women golfers win both tournaments, she would receive a $1 million bonus.

"My goal if I win this week and next would be to take the rest of the year off," Lopez said with a grin.

Lopez, who is married to first baseman Ray Knight of the Houston Astros and has a 4-month-old daughter, recently won the LPGA event at Costa Mesa, Calif., after returning to the tour in January.

Asked if she would definitely play for three more years to meet another criteria for the LPGA Hall of Fame, 10 consecutive years on the tour, Lopez smiled and replied: "Oh, I'll be playing longer than that because Ray won't let me quit."

She said she spent the past few weeks in Florida to be with her husband during spring training.

"I've been playing well since my last tournament and I got to practice a lot in the wind in Florida while I was with Ray," said Lopez. "If the wind comes up here, I'll do all right."

The Dinah Shore is played over the par-72, 6,265-yard Mission Hills Country Club course. Golfers generally post low scores when the conditions are good, but gusty winds that frequently kick up in this desert area can send scores soaring.

Also in the chase for the $55,000 winner's prize are Amy Alcott, the defending champion; JoAnne Carner; Jan Stephenson; and Beth Daniel and Kathy Whitworth, who finished in a tie for second, two strokes back of Alcott, last year.

The 72-hole tournament concludes Sunday.

Rose Girls In Win Over Fike

Rose High School's girls won three of the last four events and held off Wilson Fike yesterday in a Big East Conference track meet.

The Rampettes finished the afternoon with 71½ points while Fike finished with 60½.

Rose took an early lead in the meet but Fike came back and made it close before the Rampettes took three of the final four events, including one of the relays. Rose also finished one-two in the 3,200-meter run for a big boost.

Rose is now 6-0 on the year and plays host to Northeastern and Beddingfield on Monday.

Dawkins Leads Nets

By The Associated Press

Darryl Dawkins and New Jersey Nets victories go hand in hand. Well, maybe wrist in wrist.

The 6-foot-11 center, who missed two games with a sprained wrist, returned Wednesday night and scored 24 points, including a 10-foot turnaround jump shot with nine seconds left that gave New Jersey a 112-111 victory over the Indiana Pacers.

Dawkins injured his right wrist Saturday night against the Boston Celtics and missed the rest of that game and Tuesday night's contest with the Milwaukee Bucks. The Nets lost both.

"I had to play tonight," he said. "I really felt I let my teammates down by not playing last night."

In other National Basketball Association games, the Atlanta Hawks topped the Washington Bullets 99-92 and the Kansas City Kings beat the San Diego Clippers 121-116.

New Jersey's victory at the Meadowlands in East Rutherford put its record at 41-35. The Nets are now four games behind the New York Knicks, Detroit Pistons and Milwaukee Bucks in the race for the home-court advantage in the NBA playoffs, which start in two weeks.

Entering the final minute, New Jersey trailed 111-107. But Albert King hit a driving jumper with 46 seconds left and then Dawkins hit one of two foul shots with 26 seconds left.

For a while it appeared as if that missed foul shot might be the difference. But Indiana's Herb Williams fumbled the in-bounds pass, and New Jersey got the ball for Dawkins' winning shot.

"Darryl just buried that last shot," said Nets Coach Stan Albeck. "I had my doubts whether he would be able to play, but he responded much better than I ever anticipated."

Dawkins' 24 were high for New Jersey. Otis Birdsong had 23, Micheal Ray Richardson 15 and King 14.

Clark Kellogg led Indiana with 26 and Steve Stipanovich had 24.

Hawks 99, Bullets 92

Dominique Wilkins and Eddie Johnson led a 10-0 streak in the final five minutes as the Hawks broke an 80-80 deadlock.

The loss broke Washington's three-game winning streak and gave Atlanta a 2 1/2-game lead over the Bullets in the fight to determine which team will finish seventh and which eighth in the Eastern Conference playoff lineup.

"We made a lot of big shots and defensive plays and we got after them on the boards," Wilkins said, but that wasn't what Washington Coach Gene Shue considered the turning point.

"We made a lot of careless errors tonight," Shue said. "We had our chances to win the game, but couldn't take advantage of them."

Wilkins led the Hawks with 27 points, Johnson had 22 and Dan Roundfield scored 20. Ten of Johnson's points came in the final quarter.

Ricky Sobers led Washington with 25 and Jeff Ruland had 20.

Kings 121, Clippers 116

Eddie Johnson scored 33 points, including six in the final 2:02 as Kansas City stayed in the thick of the race for a Western Conference playoff spot.

Johnson's 15-foot jumper snapped a 111-111 tie and put the Kings ahead to stay. Then he hit a 12-foot jumper with 52 seconds left to give Kansas City a five-point lead.

The victory moved Kansas City,

36-41, into a tie with Phoenix for seventh and eighth in the overall Western Conference standings, 2 1/2 games ahead of Golden State and San Antonio. Eight teams qualify for the playoffs.

Johnson's 33 was high for the Kings and Reggie Theus and Mark Oberlander added 22 and 21 points.

Derek Smith led a balanced San Diego attack with 21 points. Terry Cummings added 20 points and pulled down 13 rebounds and Norm Nixon had 19 points and 15 assists for the losers.

Sloan Gets New Contract

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Florida basketball coach Norman Sloan's contract has been extended through the 1987-88 season, athletic director Bill Carr announced Wednesday.

Sloan, who returned to Florida as head coach in 1980 after being head coach at North Carolina State, had one year remaining on his current contract before this three-year extension. No financial details were disclosed.

His 1983-84 team jumped from 10th in the Southeastern Conference the previous season to third.

AFTER THE NBA

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Wayne Embry, a vice president of the Milwaukee Bucks and a successful businessman, constantly stresses the preparation for a new career after basketball when he talks with the players.

"You can develop tunnel vision when you are a pro basketball player," he said. "I tell our players that you can play in the NBA until you're 30 or 35 and then you have 35 more years to do something else. They have to understand that there's life after basketball."

Charlie Two Shoes Marvels At Life In U.S.

By JOY TOPPIN

Associated Press Writer
TALLMADGE, Ohio (AP) — Charlie Two Shoes, who slept on a stone and mud-brick bed in China, has been startled by microwave cooking, color television and pet dogs in his 11-month stay in the United States.

In China, he explains, dogs are either watchdogs or food.

Charlie Two Shoes is the nickname of a 50-year-old Chinese farmer who almost 40 years ago was informally adopted by U.S. Marines stationed near his village. The Marines couldn't pronounce Cui Zhxi, the real name of the 12-year-old boy who peddled peanuts and fresh eggs.

Cui arrived for a visit in the United States last May 10. He has been staying with Roy and Jean Sibit in Tallmadge, just east of Akron in northeastern Ohio. In 1947 and 1948, Cui slept in a Marine bunk next to Sibit's.

"I wouldn't believe that Roy would have a dog in the house," Cui said, pointing to Buffy, a small spaniel with a bow on one ear. "He never told me he had a dog."

"The first time I saw it, I didn't ask. I just thought, 'Oh, Roy, well, maybe it was different.' But then I went to other houses and I saw every house has a dog, as a pet."

When Cui first arrived at the Sibit home, he was fascinated by the microwave oven, the refrigerator and the color television, Mrs. Sibit said.

In his seaport village of Quindao in northern China, the 400 families share 20 black-and-white television sets. "There is not even one color TV," Cui said.

His family of five sleeps on a pad over a bed made of stone and bricks, which allow heat from the house chimney to circulate through the bed.

"You couldn't imagine how desolate it must be there," said Mrs. Sibit, 45. "Charlie said he has two light bulbs in his house. They have a limit of 40 watts total, so Charlie has two 20-watt light bulbs."

Mrs. Sibit said Cui still is in awe of the family car, a 1982 computerized, air-conditioned Cadillac. People in China usually travel by bicycle, Cui said, adding, "Americans have more cars than we have bicycles in China."

Mrs. Sibit said Cui is always eager to help around the house and that "he saves everything — paper bags and rubber bands." Sibit, 55, an international plant contact for the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., explained that in China, people must "use everything until it is no more."

Mrs. Sibit also said Cui was surprised the first time he saw her make a decision.

"He said, 'Oh, let's tell Roy.' I said, 'We don't have to tell Roy, the decision-making can be my choice.' He thought I have to answer to Roy like he answers to the government."

Cui came to the United States on a six-month visa, which was extended for six months last November. He considers his trip to be a miracle through "faith, hope and love."

"I lived all my life through faith. I never gave up my faith in God," said Cui, who became a Roman Catholic during his time with the Marines. "But all these things had to be concealed in my heart."

He said he had to keep his religion, knowledge of English and past association with the Marines a secret, even from his wife, under former Chinese governments.

The last of the Marines left China in 1949, two months before Communist forces arrived in their takeover of the Chinese mainland. The Marines promised Cui they would send for him.

Cui memorized the addresses of three Marines. After diplomatic relations between Washington and Peking were restored in 1979, Cui wrote to one of them.

The Marines then lobbied for visas for Cui, his wife, Hxu Jimmie, 46, and their children, Yin Whee, 21, Yin Tao, 13, and Yin Chao, 11.

The Chinese government approved passports for all five, but the U.S. government would issue a visa only to Cui.

Sibit said U.S. officials were insisting the family members prove they would have a compelling reason to return to China after coming here. He said Cui's wife planned soon to travel about 1,000 miles by train to the American embassy in Peking to try to convince officials the family did not intend to stay in the United States.

While Cui waits to hear about his family, he speaks about China at schools, churches and club meetings. He watches television news and writes letters to his Chinese friends and relatives about the United States.

"I wish to bring more understanding," Cui said quietly. "Really, I don't think so much about other things. All I want is to bring people closer together, so people have more understanding."

"The Chinese people believe the United States is a very well-developed country. They also believe the American people did never do any harm to China. They never saw Americans kill any Chinese people or do any damage. So still, the people always have this kind of true idea, that Americans are not as bad as the government told us in the past."

But he added: "It's hard for the Chinese people to comprehend my relationship with the United States. To them, it's just unbelievable. I have to explain to them that American people are real friendly and so are we."

"All our people, our emotions, our aspirations, our hearts, are all the same. What we're looking for is more of a relationship and maybe we can reach the goal of working together for peace."

Commend Green Education Role

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Board of Education has approved a resolution commending Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green for his work on behalf of public schools.

The resolution introduced by Betty Speir Wednesday praised Green for his dedication to public schools, his efforts to improve classroom instruction and his interest in teacher welfare.

The board also commended the Gov. Jim Hunt's Commission on Education for Economic Growth and endorsed the commission's recommendations for improving schools.

The commission recommendations include increasing teacher pay, using a career ladder for teachers and changes in curriculum.

Green, who proposed the resolution, said he was opposed to merit pay for teachers, but believed the report deserved the board's endorsement. He said he wanted to see how the commission proposed the career ladder approach for teachers in its final report.

The board also named Phillip R. Dail, a chemistry and physics teacher at Garner Senior High School, as the state Teacher of the Year.

Guilty Plea To Taking Kickbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eugene B. Dalton, postmaster of Baldwin, Ga., and former president of the National League of Postmasters, has pleaded guilty to taking nearly $50,000 in kickbacks for printing services and the purchase and renovation of the league's headquarters in Alexandria, Va.

The 53-year-old Dalton has also pleaded guilty in federal court to illegally transporting a $10,000 cashier's check across state lines and conspiracy to defraud by failing to report the kickbacks on his federal income-tax return. He faces a maximum penalty of 15 years imprisonment and $20,000 in fines on the charges. Sentencing has been set for May 17.

The league is a private non-profit organization of 22,000 members that handles labor negotiations between the Postal Service and the nation's postmasters. Dalton served as league president from 1971 to 1974 and again from 1976 to 1982.

Urges Parents Pay Legal Fees

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is asking an appeals court to refuse to pay the legal fees of the parents of a handicapped infant who successfully battled the Justice Department's effort to get the baby's medical records.

The Rehabilitation Act of 1973 allows federal courts discretion to have the government pay attorney fees of any party which prevails in suits brought by the government under the act. The parents are seeking $25,368.

The Justice Department lost in both U.S. District Court and the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York in its attempt to obtain the medical records under section 504 of the act. The government claimed it needed the records to determine if the hospital and parents had illegally discriminated against a handicapped individual when they decided against surgery for the infant.

Churchill Cabinet War Rooms To Be Opened

By ROBERT GLASS
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — The underground bunker where Sir Winston Churchill and his top aides directed much of World War II is about to become London's newest tourist attraction.

After a two-year, $2 million refurbishing, Churchill's Cabinet War Rooms will open to the public Friday. The complex is expected to attract up to 250,000 visitors a year.

The labyrinth of conference rooms, map rooms, bedrooms and long, narrow corridors lies 10 feet below ground in the basement of a government office building at the end of King Charles Street, about a block from 10 Downing Street, the official residence of prime ministers.

Built beneath a three-foot slab of reinforced concrete, the rooms protected Churchill, his War Cabinet and military chiefs of staff from German bombing raids. It was from here that Churchill broadcast some of his famous wartime speeches and presided over one-tenth of the Cabinet meetings held during the war.

Using contemporary photographs, historians at the Imperial War Museum, custodians of the complex, painstakingly restored 19 rooms for public viewing. In the process, they revealed some secrets.

For example, Churchill had a special cubicle for making trans-Atlantic calls to President Franklin D. Roosevelt. A clock on the wall shows Washington and London time, and a half-burned candle stands beside the black hot-line telephone.

The room was so secret that Churchill had it disguised as a bathroom, with an engaged vacant sign on the door.

"The whole place is a bit of a curiosity," curator Jon Wenzel said in an interview during a press preview. "It is a good reflection of how Britain fought the war, entering unprepared and making the most of what was available."

Wartime chairs, desks, wall fans, telephones and typewriters have been put back where they were left, giving the rooms the appearance of having been occupied only minutes ago.

Ink pots, teacups and other items found in the bunker — including Churchill's .45-caliber pistol, chrome-plated helmet and chamber pot — are on display.

A weather sign that always said "windy" during air raids hangs from one wall. Hundreds of documents, many of them yellowing with age, are stacked on desks and tables.

"All the documents were found here," said Judith Donald, an assistant to the curator. "There was a vast amount of paperwork down here."

One document was a mock secret memo sent by the 20 secretaries and typists who worked in the bunker. Dated May 9, 1942, it was an urgent request for large quantities of "silk stockings, chocolates and cosmetics" and suggests using "U.S. resources" to get them. Another memo indicates an officer was successful in obtaining the items on a trip to Washington.

Throughout the basement, clocks are frozen at one minute before 5 o'clock and calendars are turned to Oct. 15, 1940 — the time of one of 100 War Cabinet meetings held in the bunker between the outbreak of war with Germany in 1939 and the Japanese surrender in 1945.

In the Cabinet Room, tables covered in green baize are arranged to seat 25 people. Churchill sat in a large wooden chair in front of a map of the world, and other ministers sat in tubular metal chairs with green upholstery.

Behind the prime minister's chair is a sand-filled fire bucket for his cigar butts.

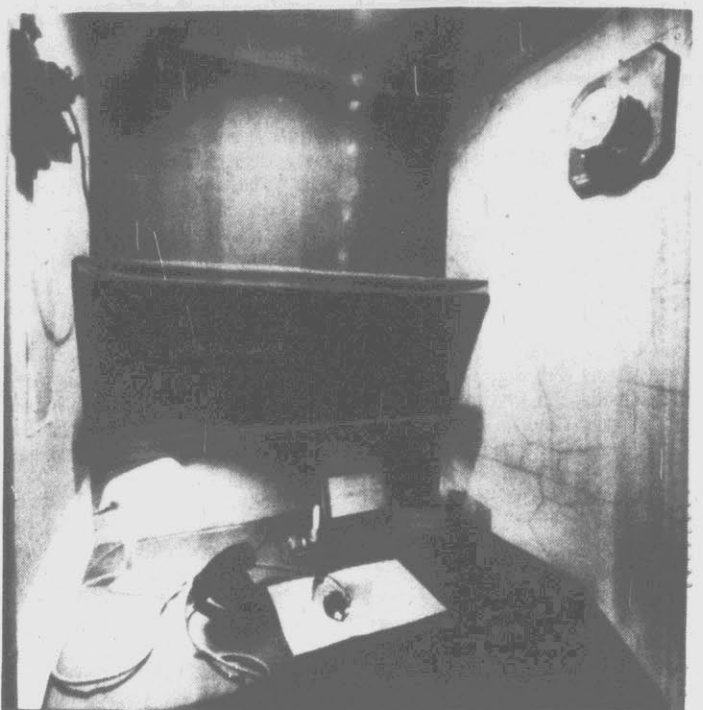

In Churchill's bedroom-study, there is a narrow bed where he took naps and the desk from which he made his broadcasts. A brass ashtray and cigar humidifier stand on a small table. Churchill and his wife, Clementine, had a separate suite of rooms on the ground floor of the building, and the prime minister seldom spent the entire night underground.

"We know for sure he spent three nights down here," Wenzel said. "But he didn't like sleeping downstairs. What he liked to do was go up onto the roof and watch the German bombs."

Admission to the Cabinet War Rooms is $2.90 for adults and $1.45 for children.

Tumors: Malignant and Benign

The words "malignant" or "benign," when used to refer to a tumor, spell despair or jubilation to patients and their families. Even the word "tumor" can produce enormous anxiety, most of it based on confusion.

All growths or tumors of any kind anywhere in the body are classified as malignant (cancerous) or benign (non-cancerous).

A benign growth is one that is not harmful, remains confined to a limited area, and does not invade neighboring or distant tissues of the body. The benign tumor is usually surrounded by an enveloping capsule. Occasionally a benign tumor can degenerate into a malignant one and change its cellular characteristics. It is for this reason that even benign tumors are kept under observation by the doctor.

In some instances a benign tumor may grow to such a size that it compresses a vital organ. For example, a large benign fibroid of the uterus may make pressure on the bladder and cause urinary symptoms.

Surgery for a benign tumor is not urgent unless it impinges on some vital organ.

Malignant tumors are invasive and tend to destroy neighboring tissues. Cells from a malignant tumor can also be transported to a distant part of the body through the blood stream. The cancer cells can thus establish another focus in another organ far removed from its original site. When a malignant tumor extends itself to another area, the process is known as metastasis.

Both malignant and benign tumors have a vast sub-classification indicating the specific tissue in the body that is involved. For example, among benign tumors, "neuroma" is a tumor composed of nerve cells. "Lipoma" is composed of fatty tissue. "Myoma" is a tumor of the muscle tissue. "Osteoma" is a tumor of the bone.

Malignant tumors also have subdivisions, depending on the tissue structure that is involved and the particular nature of the cells of which they are composed.

Specialists in tumor surveillance (pathologists) can determine by microscopic study (biopsy) if a tumor is benign or malignant.

Oncologists are specialists who treat cancers with highly selected chemicals. Chemotherapy (drug therapy) is used extensively today.

The decision of whether a patient with a malignant tumor should have surgery, chemotherapy or radiation depends on the coordinated efforts of all the specialists involved in the problem.

The surgeon, the doctor, the pathologist, the oncologist and the radiologist call on their vast experience to determine the exact method by which each patient should be treated. There is not always unanimity of opinion. When the doctors involved disagree, they may seek confirmatory opinions. Often they will send a specimen of tissue to a particular person somewhere in the United States who has a special interest in that particular tumor.

"Exxon motor oil is standard equipment in this car."

"There's one thing that always goes wherever I go, and that's Exxon motor oil. Why, since I bought this car back in 1971, I've gone 153,000 miles. And you can take my word for it, Exxon Extra has been with me every mile." A lot of people have been satisfied with the results they get from Exxon motor oil. Economically priced Exxon Extra is a high-quality 10W-30 multi-grade motor oil. It now contains special friction modifiers that save gas, compared to non-gas-saving motor oils.

And you can find the same gas-saving technology in two other Exxon motor oils. Super-premium Uniflo 10W-40 and XD-3 SAE 30 grade. XD-3 is a heavy-duty motor oil specially suited for diesel as well as gasoline engines. Given the choice of Exxon's three oils, you can get the gas-saving qualities you want in the motor oil you need.

Volunteers Needed

Volunteer helpers are needed for the Spring Shad Run scheduled for April 15 in Grifton, according to run chairman Dr. Nancy James.

Volunteers will point directions along the race course, help at the finish line and registration and set up the mile markers. Free Spring Shad Run T-shirts will be given to each volunteer.

Helpers are needed from 1:30-4:30 p.m., said Dr. James. To volunteer call 757-4466 during the day or 524-4356 anytime.

Safety Awards

Electric systems in Greenville, Farmville and Winterville were among 20 municipal electric systems in the state honored last week for outstanding safety records in 1983.

The awards were sponsored by Electricities of North Carolina, in an effort to encourage safe working habits and provide recognition for those cities achieving excellent safety records. Electricities is composed of 64 municipalities in the state which own their own electric system.

Break-In Reported

Greenville police are investigating a break-in at 1402B Chestnut St., which was reported at 1:16 a.m. Wednesday. Officer J.C. Mulford said $200 in cash and a television set valued at $100 were reported taken.

Collisions

An estimated $3,050 damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Wednesday.

Officers said cars driven by Joseph Warren Brickhouse of Ayden and Maria Jones McDaniel of Route 1, Winterville, collided about 5:18 p.m. on Memorial Drive, 20 feet north of the Club Pines Drive intersection, causing $600 damage to the Brickhouse car and $1,200 damage to the McDaniel vehicle.

A 2:40 p.m. collision at the intersection of Myrtle Avenue and Spruce Street involved cars driven by Shelton Brooks Wooten of 11 Ford St. and David Earl Brown of Route 3, Greenville.

Police, who charged Brown with failing to yield the right of way, estimated damage at $500 to the Wooten car and $750 to the Brown auto.

Convicted

Greenville resident Patrick O'Neill has been sentenced in a District of Columbia court to four hours a day of community service for six months following his conviction of "depredation of government property."

O'Neill was accused of bloodying the walls of the Pentagon during a Feast of the Innocents peace demonstration in late December. He has a choice of where to carry out his sentence.

Revival Scheduled

Revival services will be held daily at 7:30 p.m. April 9-13 at Highways and Hedges Revival Center in Seven Pines.

The speaker will be Evangelist Walter Byrum from Bell Arthur.

Carraway Retiring

Gov. Jim Hunt has named Polly W. Brewer of Charlotte to replace E.R. "Pete" Carraway of Greenville as chairman of the State Personnel Commission.

Carraway is retiring as chairman of the commission, which establishes policies and rules, including a compensation plan setting a minimum, maximum and intermediate pay rate, for all state employees as well as a recruitment program.

Mrs. Brewer is assistant vice president and branch manager of Wachovia Bank's Sugar Creek office in Charlotte.

Tax Assistance

Larry Harrison, local revenue officer for the state Department of Revenue, said personnel to assist in filing state income and intangibles tax returns will be available on Monday of each week through April 16.

Harrison said assistance is available at the office, located at the State Employees Credit Union, 300 W. First St., Mondays between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. He has asked that taxpayers bring the pre-addressed forms mailed from Raleigh.

Taxpayers filing their own returns should mail those which indicate a refund to the revenue department, P.O. Box R, Raleigh, 27634, said Harrison. Other completed returns should be mailed to the department's P.O. Box 25000 address in Raleigh, 27640.

Clarinet Recital

Robin E. Alexander of Monroe, a student of Dr. George Knight, will give his senior clarinet recital at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall on the East Carolina University campus. The recital is free and open to the public.

Alexander will be accompanied by Dr. Rosemary Fischer, piano, and assisted by Jonathan Frank, French horn, and Susan Kay, clarinet.

For his program, he has chosen three works — an andante and allegro by H. Gagnebin; Handel's "Sonata in D Major;" and Poulenc's "Sonata for Clarinet and Piano."

Represent County

Two Pitt County teachers have been selected to represent the county in the North Carolina Awards Program for Outstanding Mathematics and Science Teachers.

Rae Nobles, a math teacher from D.H. Conley, and Lauren Oppenheimer, a science and math teacher at A.G. Cox, will participate in the regional competition.

Adelines Cited

The Eastern Carolina Chapter of Sweet Adelines, under the direction of Carolyn Ipock, received the Novice Chorus Award in regional competition recently in Baltimore.

A plaque representing the award is given each year to the chorus competing for the first time and scoring the highest point total in this category. Sixteen quartets competed Friday, while 21 choruses representing chapters from Maryland, Virginia, Tennessee, North Carolina and South Carolina vied for the championship on Saturday.

The local group meets every Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Memorial Baptist Church on Greenville Boulevard.

Approved Request

Police Capt. D.R. Bullock has announced approval of a request by the Greenville-Martinborough Lions Club to sell tickets to a drawing through April 17 in order to raise funds for the White Cane project.

Speaks To Class

Emily Edwards spoke to second- and third-graders at Falkland Elementary School recently about conservation.

Her presentation included a review of the area's natural resources and a discussion of how these resources are affected by pollution and how they can be conserved.

The project was sponsored by the Greenville Garden Club.

Prisoner Transfer Problems Talked

WILLIAMSTON — Solutions to the ongoing problem of transporting prisoners from Martin County to the new two-county jail near Windsor serving both Martin and Bertie counties were reported in the making at the April meeting of the Martin County Commissioners. Although no specific solutions were detailed, Martin County Manager Donnie Pittman said Sheriff Willie Rogers was in the process of working out some type of system to provide transportation for persons arrested in Martin County. Considerable public concern has been expressed in past weeks over the fact that law enforcement officials, who are now transporting persons they arrest, must be away from their duty areas for the period of time required to make the round trip. This situation has also created stress on the part of enforcement personnel. On one agenda item, a verbal commitment was given by commissioners to provide $10,246 in matching funds for various programs supported through the Martin County Community Based Alternatives Task Force. The task

U.S. Senate Near El Salvador Aid Approval

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is about ready to approve $61.7 million in emergency military aid for El Salvador after a tumultuous debate in which Democrats accused President Reagan of spoiling for a fight in his zeal to stem communism in Central America.

"I believe that the day after he is re-elected, if he is re-elected, we will see American troops fighting in Latin America," Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., said Wednesday in arguing for an amendment to bar sending troops to El Salvador for combat without congressional approval.

The amendment lost 59-36, with Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., calling Central America "the last place in the world we have a chance to prove we are anything but a paper tiger."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., proposing to trim the bill of $21 million for the support of anti-leftist rebels in Nicaragua, said Reagan "is spoiling for a fight against Nicaragua, and Congress should have the courage to stop him now."

Kennedy's amendment failed 61-30 after Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., read a letter from Reagan pledging that the United States does not "seek to destabilize or overthrow the government of Nicaragua."

In the closest roll call vote yet in the Senate's week-long debate on Central American policy, the lawmakers turned down 47-43 a move by Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., to prevent use of any of the $21 million for "sabotage or terrorism."

Ten Democrats sided with most of the Senate's Republican majority in voting to kill the amendment that would have barred the president from sending U.S. armed forces into El Salvador or Salvadoran air space for combat unless Congress had declared war or enacted a specific authorization. Five Republicans joined 31 Democrats in supporting it.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said he offered the proposal because of his "clear conviction that we are going to reach the point of having American combat forces in El Salvador within a year."

Biden offered to "bet a month's salary" that U.S. troops would be in combat in El Salvador within a year.

The Reagan administration has said it has no plans to send fighting troops to Central America, but has resisted restrictions by Congress on the president's power as commander-in-chief to order troops into action.

Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., opposing Leahy's amendment, said, "If we are concerned about shedding American blood, then what we must do is give the people of El Salvador who want democracy the means to defend themselves without American troops, which they are not asking."

Reagan's letter to Baker was hastily dispatched after Democrats raised questions about a March 29 New York Times interview in which Reagan said the administration had "made it plain to Nicaragua ... that this (support of the rebels) would stop when they keep their promise and restore the democratic rule and have elections."

The administration maintains that its support of the rebels is designed to stem the flow of Soviet and Cuban arms through Nicaragua to the rebels in El Salvador and other leftist factions in Central America. Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., said the Times interview cast doubt on this by suggesting that if elections were not held the government would be changed in some other way.

Reagan, in his letter, said the United States is "trying among other things to bring the Sandinistas (the government of Nicaragua) into peaceful negotiations" for a regional peace settlement in Central America.

Reagan also defended the administration's Nicaragua policy in his televised news conference Wednesday night.

"The present government of Nicaragua is exporting revolution to El Salvador, its neighbors, and is helping, supporting, arming and training guerrillas that are trying to overthrow elected governments," the president said. "As long as they do that we are going to try to inconvenience that government of Nicaragua until they quit that kind of action."

Baker urged the Senate to complete work on the appropriation bill today, sending it to the House. Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., indicated he was prepared to send it to a conference committee, but Appropriations Committee sources questioned whether it could clear Congress before the Easter recess begins April 13.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, meanwhile, continued efforts at a compromise on conditions for future aid to Central America.

When the committee met on Wednesday, Sens. Charles Mathias, R-Md., and Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., offered conflicting proposals.

Mathias would condition all Central American aid on passage of an annual congressional resolution, to be signed by the president, certifying progress in human rights and other reforms. Dodd would reduce military aid to the region, capping aid to El Salvador at $50 million in the current fiscal year and $75 million in the next, and require a congressional and presidential finding that specific reforms had actually been accomplished. Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., committee chairman, asked Mathias and Dodd to get together and seek common ground.

DOT Wins Court's Bridge Route Ruling

BEAUFORT, N.C. (AP) — A Superior Court judge denied a motion by the town of Morehead to block construction of a four-lane high-rise replacement bridge to Atlantic Beach that the state wants to build.

Judge James R. Strickland said Wednesday that cities cannot use their control over streets to block state highway construction projects.

Morehead had filed a lawsuit against the state Department of Transportation over the bridge. The Morehead City Council members want the bridge built to Bogue Banks at a location farther west, leaving the present bridge intact.

City manager David Harris said city attorney Nelson W. Taylor filed a notice of appeal after Strickland's ruling.

"The board will probably meet by next Tuesday, when its regular meeting is scheduled, to discuss the specific direction we want to take," Harris said. "No meeting has been called yet that I'm aware of."

Transportation Secretary W.R. Roberson Jr. said the ruling paves the way for the board to receive bids on the replacement bridge July 24. Construction of the bridge will take two years, he said.

Roberson said the state agrees with city officials that a third bridge is needed to the Bogue Banks, and said a contract has already been awarded to find a feasible site for the third bridge.

"Despite the favorable ruling, we think this is still an extremely important matter for the Legislature to examine this summer," Roberson said. "The potential effect of a negative ruling would have been to tie the hands of the state Transportation Board on highway projects within any municipality across the state. We really need to have this issue clarified once and for all by the Legislature."

"Of course, we are very disappointed for we feel we have a good case, and we do plan to take it all the way to the Supreme Court," said Morehead City Mayor Bud Dixon.

Would Reassign Emergency Net

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saying they don't have the money or staff to operate the Emergency Broadcast System, top Federal Communications Commission officials are pushing to move it to the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

The civil defense coordinating group, known as FEMA, has fared better in recent budget decisions than the communications commission.

The Emergency Broadcast System, established in 1964, has been used extensively during local emergencies. However, its main purpose is to provide the president a means to address the public on short notice.

STORES INDEPENDENTLY OWNED AND OPERATED

Actresses Come Into Their Own

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — After 15 years of lackluster races, Academy Award voters have a wealth of female performances from which to choose the best actress of 1983, and as one of the contenders, Shirley MacLaine, puts it, "It's about time."

Although some actresses might argue the point, the list of this year's candidates before the National Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences for Monday's awards shows a trend of better roles for women:

Jane Alexander as a valiant mother caring for her family after a nuclear holocaust in "Testament"; Miss MacLaine as a wildly erratic mother and Debra Winger as a daughter who can match her in willfulness in "Terms of Endearment"; Julie Walters as a beautician with a fiery desire for learning in "Educating Rita"; and Meryl Streep as a swinging Oklahoman who finds a cause in "Silkwood."

The year brought other memorable female roles: Barbra Streisand, who masqueraded as a man to win an education in "Yentl"; Bonnie Bedelia, the single-minded race driver in "Heart Like a Wheel"; Mary Steenburgen, the novelist who braves the Florida backwaters in "Cross Creek"; Tess Harper, the compassionate wife in "Tender Mercies"; war correspondent Joanna Cassidy in "Under Fire"; and Anne Bancroft, Polish stage star in "To Be or Not To Be."

At the recent luncheon for Oscar nominees, a few guests were asked to comment on the trend. Miss MacLaine observed: "It's about time. Both men and women are more aware of the complexities of relationships between women and scripts are being written about such themes. And 'Terms of Endearment' proves that they can be big box-office."

Debra Winger said wryly: "Women are smarter than men, and they're learning to catch up in the film industry. The only way to do it is to watch out for yourself."

Amy Irving, supporting nominee for "Yentl," disagreed: "If there are more roles for women, I'm not seeing them. I'll continue working on the stage until they come along."

"I don't really believe in trends, and I'm not sure this one is valid," said producer Richard Zanuck ("The Sting," "Jaws"). "The trouble is that there are only two or three women stars who mean anything at the box office."

The latest listing of box-office stars bears out Zanuck's comment. Quigley Publications, which has polled theater operators for 50 years, listed no actresses among the top 10 moneymakers of 1983. Such recent Oscar winners as Jane Fonda, Katharine Hepburn, Diane Keaton and Jill Clayburgh didn't even appear in films last year.

No one is predicting a return to the 1930s' "women's pictures" in which Joan Crawford, Bette Davis, Greta Garbo, Norma Shearer and others delighted the matinee crowd. But

Cocaine Arrest For Stacy Keach

LONDON (AP) — Actor Stacy Keach, who plays a private eye in the television series "Mickey Spillane's Mike Hammer," has been released on bail after spending a night in a London jail on a charge of importing cocaine, authorities say.

Keach, 42, arrested at Heathrow Airport on Tuesday, was released Wednesday after paying a cash bail of $100,000.

The actor, filming a television mini-series in Provence, France, based on Judith Krantz's book "Mistral's Daughter," had flown to London for one day to rework soundtracks for the Mike Hammer series, according to his London agents, Rogers and Cowan.

He was charged with importing $7,500 worth of cocaine. His secretary, Deborah Steele, 40, faces a similar charge, and both were ordered to return to court next month.

Liz Disavows An Asian Wedding

NARITA, Japan (AP) — Actress Elizabeth Taylor arrived in Japan with her fiancé, Mexican lawyer Victor Luna, but the actress said she isn't planning to tie the knot for the eighth time in the Orient.

On their arrival in Tokyo on Wednesday, Miss Taylor, 52, said the couple had flown in from Los Angeles for a vacation, nothing else.

Luna, 57, told The Associated Press that he fell in love with Ms. Taylor immediately after meeting her 18 months ago in Los Angeles.

"She's wonderful," he said. As for rumors that they'll be getting married soon, he responded with a quick "I don't know."

The couple plan to stay in Japan about a week before going to Bangkok, Thailand.

BAN IS LIFTED
ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Martial law authorities have lifted a 10-week ban on the publication of a weekly cultural magazine put out by prominent left-wing intellectuals, the Anatolia news agency reports.

Yesterday's Cryptquip — RASPY OLD AUTO ENTHUSIAST IS CRANKY AND ALL CHOKED UP.

Today's Cryptquip clue: C equals O

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, APRIL 6, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Being rebellious and breaking promises would get you nowhere fast, especially since later you are able to put your ideas to good use and get the support to make your dreams come true.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) If you don't run off on some tangent, you find that good things can happen. Show that you have a good head on your shoulders.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't change your mind about some investment in the morning. Take time for some social pleasure in the evening.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Forget that errant wish in the morning. Show your true devotion for your mate. This brings about greater happiness in the days ahead.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Don't force another to do what you wish in the morning. Later you can be with good friends. The evening can be happy.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Avoid that argument between a good friend and an attachment, and find an easier way of gaining your personal aims.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You feel like making drastic changes both at home and in business, but this would not be wise. Stick to your regular duties.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Forget that unnecessary errand, and concentrate on how to improve your regular set-up. Show associates you want to get along famously with them now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Forget financial worries and listen to what an expert has to tell you concerning ways to make greater progress.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Find some way of gaining more self control, and then make the changes that you deem wise. Plan a necessary trip to solve a problem.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You want to turn against work ahead of you but soon change your mind and become very efficient. Use the right words.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Some private anxiety could deter you from making plans for entertainment you like if you permit. Work out affairs sensibly.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan what should be done so that you can gain that feeling of well being you desire. Don't give anyone cause for criticism.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be one who will view everything clearly and reasonably and will analyze all sides of any situation before coming to a decision. Teach to finish one project before going on to another. A lover of sports here.

Opening lead: King of ♠.

They tell all sorts of stories about what happens to players who trump their partner's aces. But like all maxims, there are many times when it is right to ignore the old bromides.

This hand comes from a team match played many years ago. The bidding at the two tables was identical. Note that North did not have enough strength to introduce his club suit, and had to settle for a raise of his partner's suit.

The defense started the same way at the two tables — West led the king of hearts and continued with the ace. At one table East shuffled a club and West continued with a third heart. Declarer ruffed in dummy, drew trumps and then ran five clubs when the ten came down in three rounds. He ended up with an overtrick.

At the other table, East saw that he could not over-ruff the table. He also realized that dummy's club suit was a threat — even if West held the king, it was finessable.

If the contract was to be defeated, the defenders would have to take four tricks quickly. It seemed that the diamond suit offered the best chance for the defense, so at trick two East committed a "heinous crime" — he ruffed his partner's ace. He shifted to the queen of diamonds and two tricks in that suit forced declarer to concede one down.

Perhaps we should change the maxim to read: "Do not ruff your partner's ace unless you have a good reason to do so." And pay no attention to other bridge adages if you have a sound reason to disregard the advice offered.

How do you choose the best opening lead? Charles Goren has the answer. For a copy of "Winning Opening Leads," send $1.85 to "Goren-Leads," care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to Newspaperbooks.

Found Navy Has Avid Learners

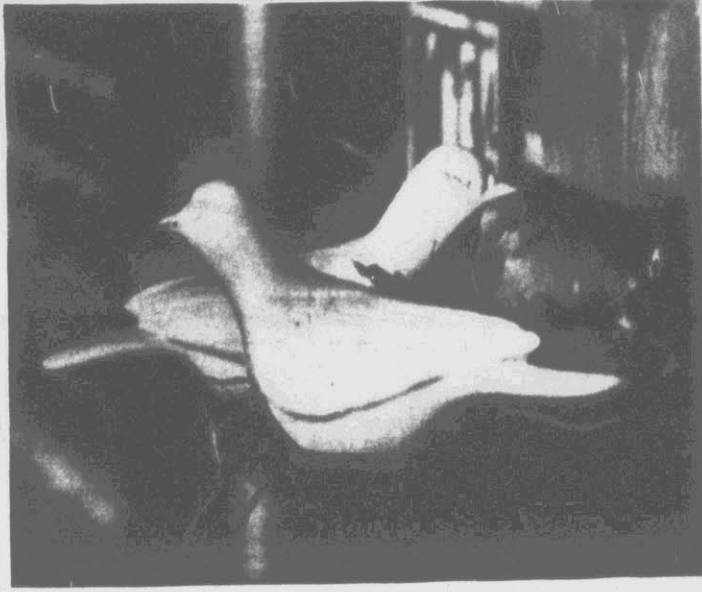

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — Any sailor worth his salt can identify with poet John Masefield's line, "I must go down to the seas again... But William Howard Cohen's job is to immerse American seamen in an ocean of learning. Cohen, a poet, has just returned from the Mediterranean, where he was an instructor in the Navy's Program for Afloat College Education aboard the aircraft carrier USS Eisenhower. "This program is the hottest thing going right now in higher education," said Cohen, who first went to sea in 1982 aboard the USS Forrestal. "I have never taught students with such a hunger of knowledge. It is so strong you can almost taste it."

Wants People To Think Unthinkable

By SCOTT M. BUSHNELL
Associated Press Writer
NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Paul Bracken wants the unthinkable to be thought about. He wants Americans to examine what alternatives are available to U.S. political and military leaders in the event of a nuclear confrontation with the Soviet Union.

Bracken, a young Ph.D. teaching at the Yale School of Organization and Management, has written a sobering book on the subject, "The Command and Control of Nuclear Forces."

He is neither a "cold warrior" nor a disciple of a disarmament. Rather, he is a man with a message: the evolving technology surrounding nuclear weapons has pushed the control of the weapons to the limit.

Bracken starkly explains in his book how the sophisticated computerized warning systems and weaponry offsets the normal checks and balances found in the chain of command.

While intelligence gathering was a slow, meditative process in the pre-nuclear age, today's military must weigh vast amounts of information in a short period of time in order to compensate for weapons that can be delivered in a matter of minutes, he writes.

In peacetime, there are political checks and balances that can ward off unwanted escalation, Bracken writes. But a crisis situation, where response time is critical, probably won't afford sufficient time to weigh incoming information.

This problem poses another dilemma: the peril of launching an attack on the basis of an incomplete — and perhaps erroneous — warning.

The book, Bracken said in an interview, evolved from his interest in the governance and control of military institutions. After graduating from Columbia with an engineering degree, Bracken went to work for a defense contractor in Roslyn, Va., and then worked for the late Herman Kahn at the Hudson Institute.

The defense contract work enabled him to gain an understanding of the basics, such as how weapons work, Bracken said.

It was from Kahn that Bracken developed his belief in the similarity between the current situation and the pre-World War I period.

"In World War I, the national leaders lacked the understanding of what their military decisions would cause," he said. The creation and mobilizing of forces early in 1914 proved to be uncontrollable by the political leaders.

"It is similar today," said Bracken, who advocates a larger role for the academic community in defense policies.

'Morning After' Skills Diminished

NEW YORK (UPI) — Swedish researchers say driving ability may be diminished by as much as 20 percent the morning after drinking — even if there's no longer any alcohol in the driver's blood and the driver doesn't feel hung over.

A report on the Swedish study in the April issue of McCall's magazine says participants were first asked to maneuver a driving course while sober. They then consumed enough alcohol to become legally drunk.

After eight hours of sleep, breakfast and a test determining their blood alcohol level had returned to zero, they drove the same course again "with a marked decline in ability," the article says.

"The test also showed that people who said they felt fine when they woke up had just as much trouble controlling the car as people who felt awful," the magazine article says.

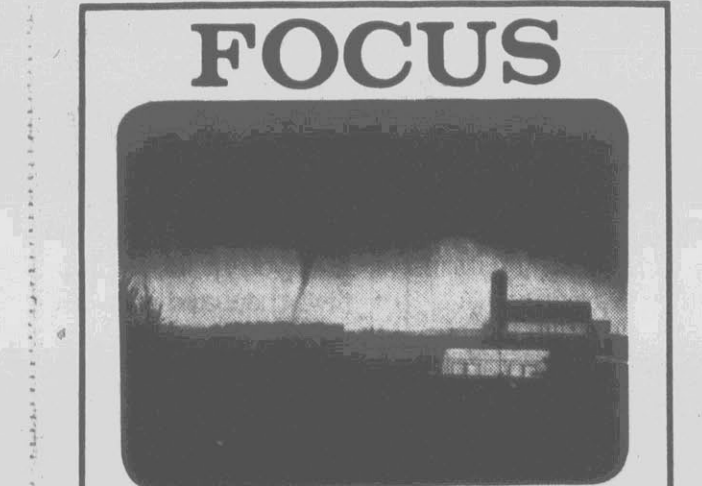

The researchers suggest waiting at least 3 hours before driving on the morning after a drinking bout.

Believes States Should Take Over

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's time for the states to take over family planning programs from the federal government, says Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret Heckler.

"It is appropriate to shift administrative responsibility from the federal government to the states, thus permitting them the maximum flexibility in tailoring family planning efforts to their citizens' needs," she told a House Energy and Commerce subcommittee.

She said that for the current fiscal year, $132.8 million is available for family planning services for estimated 3.7 million persons. About $3.1 million will be used to train personnel and $530,000 to develop and make family planning information and educational materials available to all desiring them.

Eye On The Sky

April marks the beginning of tornado season for much of the nation. An average of 140 tornadoes occurs every year in the U.S. But in the spring of 1974, a record 90 struck a region extending from Ohio to Georgia. Tornadoes and other weather hazards cost the U.S. $11.6 billion in property damage and more than 1,000 lives annually. In 1755, Benjamin Franklin chased a small tornado on horseback, cracking his whip in an attempt to dissipate it.

DO YOU KNOW — Which nation has the greatest number of tornadoes annually?

WEDNESDAY'S ANSWER — Spain was the last NATO member to join.

Watt Book Said A Story Of Pain

WATT INTERVIEW — Former Interior Secretary James Watt poses with his wife Leilani in Washington recently. Mrs. Watt has written a book entitled "Caught in the Conflict: My life with James Watt". In it Mrs. Watt writes that she got so upset at snide remarks made about her husband that she tried to avoid being recognized in public and refused to use charge cards listed in his name. Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Coming soon: a love story about former Interior Secretary James G. Watt.

In the author's own words: "A story of the privilege and pain."

It is written by Leilani Watt, who has been married to Watt for 26 years.

Titled "Caught in Conflict: My Life with James Watt," the book is published by Harvest House and will be available to the public in mid-April. "It will help many marriages," Mrs. Watt said.

"I think of our relationship in Washington as exemplary of love because love sacrifices," Mrs. Watt said in an interview. "I didn't just think of myself. If I did, I would have said, 'Let's go home.'"

Sitting in her husband's office in downtown Washington, Mrs. Watt said the couple's experiences in Washington made their marriage closer than it had been.

"When you've been through this much together, it either draws you apart or pulls you together," she said. "It has cemented our life."

In her book, Mrs. Watt wrote that she became so upset by critical remarks about her husband that she tried to avoid being recognized in public and refused to use charge cards listed in his name.

"I had stopped using charge cards with my husband's name imprinted, to avoid comments by sales clerks on the horrors of James Watt," she wrote. "I didn't need that. Did my name always have to be linked with his controversies? I felt guilty when I avoided being recognized in order to escape snide remarks."

She said also that she was angry at first lady Nancy Reagan and deputy White House chief of staff Michael Deaver for opposing her husband in the Beach Boys controversy, and lay awake at night rehearsing speeches to them.

"For Mike Deaver, I had scathing words," she wrote. "... Tumbling behind it came a more gentle speech for Nancy Reagan.... Woman-to-woman, I needed at least to have Mrs. Reagan understand, to believe the best of James."

She said she never delivered the speeches in response to the protests her husband aroused by not inviting the Beach Boys, a soft rock band, to perform at Fourth of July festivities on the Mall in 1983. Watt said rock groups attracted "the wrong element."

"I hate conflict — mine or anyone else's," she wrote. "These speeches are futile. They're not going to change this national whoop against James."

Mrs. Watt also described how a muscle disorder called McArdle's Syndrome, affected her marriage and her interest in her husband's work.

"I was miserably aware that James was frustrated with our relationship," she wrote of a period in the mid-1970s. "For two years, I had not been able to give him any of the comfort or pleasure that he might reasonably expect from his wife, for I had been almost an invalid."

Her husband, she wrote "had tried valiantly to be tender and understanding of my condition. ... But I was not a companion. I didn't even know what he was doing in his work. And I didn't really care."

Mrs. Watt wrote that after a doctor began treating her, she was able to accompany Watt on business trips and social occasions.

In a chapter called "Reading Through Tears," she described a phone call with her son Eric, 22, who read her poetry to calm his mother's nerves and quoted the Bible to cheer her up.

"When he hung up, I returned to my rocking chair, remembering the truth that God honors a broken heart turned to him," she wrote.

Mrs. Watt, a devout fundamentalist Christian, wrote that she decided to become an "intercessor," a person who devotes a large portion of each day to prayer. She said she spent most of every morning praying for her husband.

"These times of prayer helped knit me to my husband spiritually and emotionally," she wrote. "Not only did he appreciate my prayer for him, but when he realized my commitment to God to pray for him, he did everything possible to protect that time."
