School Supplies Delivered By Pupils From Randolph Co.

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer
"Goodbye! We'll write to you! Thank you so much!" echoed in the circular drive of Grifton Elementary School as the white-and-blue activity bus emblazoned with Liberty School pulled away. Youthful, smiling faces and waving arms filled the windows of the bus as it disappeared in the spring sunshine, beginning, with Highway Patrol escort, its long trip back home. Under the breezeway of the school, Ayden Elementary Principal Stuart Tripp clutched a hefty check and watched while Assistant Principal Page Adkins snapped a photo. They waved, then walked, talking, toward their temporary school facilities to finish — at 4 p.m. — the school day. When 30 eighth-grade students at Liberty School in rural Randolph County were looking for a homeroom project, they thought about the schools in North Carolina that were devastated by the March 28 tornadoes. The more they thought about it, the more they wanted to do something to help one of the schools. They decided to raise money for instructional supplies destroyed by the storm and collect games and other instruction aids to replace ones lost in the disaster. On Wednesday 25 of the students and their homeroom teacher, Tom Sheriff, made the 3½-hour trip from Liberty to Grifton where the displaced students from tornado-damaged Ayden Elementary School are attending classes. Their project came to life as they presented over 30 boxes of games and instructional aids to the children of Ayden Elementary and then handed Tripp a check for $1,100 made out to a school supply distributor in Ayden Elementary. Gillam Seeks To Point Up Differences In Candidacy

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
Saying "I am pointing out specific reasons why the people should vote for John Gillam over Walter Jones," Gillam used a rally in Greenville Wednesday night to stress factors he said "will point up the differences in my campaign" and that of the incumbent in the 1st Congressional District Democratic primary. The Gillam rally, held at the American Legion building in Greenville and hosted by 12 Greenville-area couples, saw a large turnout to meet Gilliam and his wife, Bobbie Snead Gillam. In a relatively brief speech, Gillam told his audience: "We have had a congressman who, after 18 years of service, claims as a major political victory his success in getting a monument to his name through three House committees — the scientifically unproven and economically disastrous jetties at Oregon Inlet." Economy Grows At 'Astonishing Rate' In First Quarter

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The economy grew an astonishing 8.3 percent from January through March, the government reported today, as the pace of the nation's recovery from the recession continued to confound the experts. But economists both in and out of government said they saw no reason for concern that the economy is over-heating and stuck to their predictions that, for all of 1984, the economy will expand in the range of 5 percent. The Commerce Department last month had estimated first-quarter economic growth, after adjusting for inflation, at 7.2 percent, far above the 6 percent predicted by most economists. That preliminary "flash" estimated was based on data from January and February, when business activity as measured by various government indicators was extremely brisk. After a string of reports showing much slower March activity, however, most economists predicted the 7.2 percent estimate would be revised downward, probably to 6 percent to 6.5 percent.

Instead, the department's revision announced today went the other way, raising growth, as measured by the gross national product, to 8.3 percent, compared to 5 percent in the final three months of 1983. But the Reagan administration, seeking to dampen any fears that the economy is growing too fast, sought to play down today's revision. White House spokesman Larry Speakes, flying with President Reagan to the West Coast, said on board Air Force One that, despite the unexpectedly strong first-quarter gain, "We expect a moderation of the GNP growth in the second quarter. ... It's obvious the economy will remain strong with low levels of inflation." Meanwhile, Commerce Under Secretary Sidney L. Jones called the 8.3 percent growth only "a temporary acceleration in the pace of the economic expansion." "I expect the economy to settle back to a slower and more sustainable rate of growth in the second quarter," Jones told reporters at a briefing. He predicted a GNP growth rate of 4 percent in the second quarter and said that the administration saw no reason to (Please turn to Page 14)

Gaskins Wins Annual Award

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
The Pitt Memorial Hospital Foundation's Annual Service Award was presented Wednesday night to County Commissioner Charles P. Gaskins. The award presentation was the climax of the Hospital Foundation's third annual awards benefit dinner held at the Greenville Country Club. Kenneth Dews, foundation treasurer, told the group of Gaskins' background and contributions to the hospital and the Greenville-Pitt County community. He noted that Gaskins has served as a Pitt County commissioner since 1967 and as the commissioners' representative on the hospital board of trustees since 1975. In this capacity, he was instrumental in developing the affiliation agreement between Pitt County and the state of North Carolina which made Pitt County Memorial Hospital a teaching facility for the East Carolina University School of Medicine and made possible the hospital's development as a regional acute-care center. Last year the business office-educational building of the hospital was co-named for Gaskins and longtime hospital board chairman G. Henry Leslie. The award was a surprise for Gaskins, who is running in the May 8 primary for another term as county commissioner. He is opposed in the primary by Frank Grooms, Eaton Corp. executive; Tom Johnson, an East Carolina University professor, and Jim Rouse, a newspaper editor. Previous hospital foundation award winners were present — Ed Waldrop, Dr. Ray Minges and Dr. Fred Haar. Entertainment was provided by the Sweet Adelines harmony singing group, and dinner music by Dr. Charles Bath, pianist, and Joann Bath, violinist.

Patchwork Quilt Presented To Richard And Flora M. Gammon

Several women were wearing white gloves when they attended the annual spring luncheon of the Women of the First Presbyterian Church. They had been involved in a special project — quilting — and the white gloves hid sore, pricked fingers.

"We wanted a project that each woman could take part in. It started as a senior citizens project as part of the outreach and membership care programs of our church. So many young women also got involved. Squares were created at home and the initials of each participant were added in the corner. It was like turning back the pages of time. We were doing something social like our mothers and grandmothers.

"We gathered at the church on Mondays and Wednesdays to quilt; however, most of the women didn't know how, but learned. Three men even quilted. We also shared recipes. We had soup, salads and elegant desserts. And the ministers joined us for lunch," said Nell Webb, president of the women of the church.

The patchwork quilt is made from leftover fabric in a myriad of colors with a bright green border. It was put together by Thelma Flye, chairman of the project.

A second quilt has already been started.

The quilt was presented to Richard and Flora M. Gammon by Mrs. Flye as a surprise. Gammon is pastor of the church.

New officers were elected, including Myrtle Leslie, president; Millie Brown, first vice president; Janice O'Rear, assistant to the first vice president; Elizabeth Deal, second vice president; Mrs. Gammon, secretary; Doris Skinner, treasurer; Lorraine Petrie, historian; Connie Bond, personal faith and family life; Carol Irons, Christian community action; Ann Herrin, ecumenical missions and relations; Shelly Basnight, leadership and resources; Ethel Smith, sanctuary service; Betsy Lewis, social chairman, and Marcy Byrd, housekeeping.

The officers will be installed in September. Becky Young served as president of the nominating committee.

SNACKING AND DIET
COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Snacking has become a part of the diet and people who are nutritionally aware know that snacking provides a viable way to obtain a well-balanced diet, according to Dr. Karen Morgan.

Dr. Morgan, an associate professor of nutrition at the University of Missouri, says people need to reconsider what they think about snacks. Foods can no longer be classified as snack foods and meal foods, she says.

Abby, Too, Knows A Bit Of Nonsense

DEAR ABBY: You're the only person I know who may be able to come up with the correct letters for this bit of nonsense that was popular many years ago:

- ABCD goldfish?
- LMNO goldfish.
- Abby, what comes next?

DRAWING A BLANK

Which is short for: Abbie, see the goldfish? Hell, them are no goldfish. Oh, yes, they are. See them?

DEAR DRAWING: The entire "bit of nonsense" is as follows:

- ABCD goldfish?
- LMNO goldfish.
- QSAR.
- CM?

HOG DOGS

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — More than 19 billion hot dogs are produced in the United States each year, according to John Galardi.

Galardi, of West Coast Wienerschnitzel restaurants, says, "That's an average of 87 hot dogs a year for every man, woman and child."

DEAR ABBY: I am a bright, pretty, college-educated newspaper reporter in love with an older professional man. He's married and his wife is expecting next month. She conceived after I began seeing her husband, which made me doubt his love for me. He promised me that he would leave her and file for divorce as soon as the baby is born, but so far he hasn't even told his wife about me.

He is wonderful to me. He's loving, caring, generous, gentle, understanding and sincere.

Am I as stupid as I think I am? Am I ignoring the obvious? Should I wait until after the baby is born, or get out now?

BAFFLED

DEAR BAFFLED: Yes, you are as stupid as you think you are, if you think the man is sincere. Are you ignoring the obvious? Not any more; I think you are catching on.

Don't wait until the baby is born. Get out now. And stay away from married men. They make lousy husbands.

CONFIDENTIAL TO YOU: Easter is nearly here, and if you plan to surprise a small child with a gift, such as a live rabbit or a baby chick, please consider this: Living creatures need proper care, so unless you are certain that the rabbit or chick will receive the care it needs to survive, please give a stuffed bird or animal instead. Living creatures are not "toys" to be mauled, abused or neglected.

Benefit Bridge Winners Named

Proceeds from the bridge benefit sponsored by the Major Benjamin May Chapter DAR in Farmville will be used for the upkeep of the chapter house.

Score winners during the morning were Lynn Gower, Hazel Fiser, Margaret Morgan, Florence Moye and Leymon Holmes. Hazel Fisher, Reide Eason, Myrtle Tucker, Wilton Duke, Chester Outland, Charlotte Mewborn and Glenda Woodard were evening winners.

Mrs. Johnny Williams and Mrs. Charles Carr were overall chairman. Mrs. Henry Smith and Mrs. Jerry Bailey were chairmen of the food committee.

DEAR ABBY: A reader names Barbara who married a man named Gene McGraw asks, "Just who is Mrs. Gene McGraw?" (She says, "I am not a bisexual, nor do I have two heads.") Then she signs herself, "Mrs. Barbara McGraw."

The name "Mrs. Barbara McGraw" means she married someone named "Barbara."

The title "Ms." is for women who prefer using their own first names; she could call herself "Ms. Barbara McGraw," or she could skip any title completely.

Whatever she decides, the one thing she isn't is "Mrs. Barbara McGraw" — unless she's planning a divorce. Archaic, maybe, but still true.

Truffles—food for the gods

The chocolate "truffle" derives its name from the mushroom like truffle used in fine French cuisine and considered to be a delicacy. Similar in appearance only, the chocolate truffle is made by a complicated process of whipping chocolate, butter and cream at a very high speed and dipping each by hand to produce the ultimate in chocolate confections.

No Victory There

Once again a jury in Greensboro has acquitted a group of present or former Klansmen and Nazis in the 1979 slaying of five Communist demonstrators.

But, as defendant Coleman "Johnny" Pridmore, said: "Two juries have said we are innocent, and I accept their verdict. But there were no winners in Greensboro. Everybody lost — the lives lost on the communist side and the misery we suffered through the trials. It's five years of our lives we'll never be able to recapture."

Most of us have seen films of the shooting, the sticks, the running, the shoving. It is impossible, from the films, to place a blame. The jury twice has said the Klan-Nazi group was not to blame; the second jury went further and said the demonstrators organized by the Communist Workers Party provoked the violence.

One wonders what would have happened if the outcome of the shooting had been reversed, with the Klan-Nazi members mortally wounded? After all, the Greensboro demonstration came only a few days after the CWP had accosted the Klan at China Grove, leaving with a pledge to hold a "Death to the Klan" demonstration.

With framework such as that, how could anyone place blame in the violence that followed? Regardless of how a jury found, the blame was shared ... and is still shared.

As Coleman now says, no one is the winner, but each of us is a loser because such groups as those involved in Greensboro exist.

JA Success

Junior Achievers of Pitt County received honors at an awards banquet Monday night. It was the fifth year that the organization has been in existence in Pitt County.

The program allows teen-agers to work with free enterprise through four companies. Junior Achievers is developed through the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce and local industries and businesses are sponsors.

Free enterprise and individual freedoms exist together in this and other industrialized nations and it has yet to be demonstrated that personal freedoms can, indeed, exist in a society where private enterprise is not free.

Junior Achievers allows young people to gain practical experience in free enterprise and to better understand how it works. Our congratulations to all those who have participated.

Truth At Hand

NEW YORK (AP) — For many employers and their employees, a moment of truth is at hand.

In more and more places where people work for other people, the long-barred door has been unlocked to the inner sanctum where the personnel files are stored.

Nine states — California, Connecticut, Illinois, Maine, Michigan, New Hampshire, Oregon, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin — have enacted laws requiring that workers be allowed to examine their files periodically. Similar provisions are being written into many labor contracts.

And what has happened since the layers of secrecy were peeled away, laying bare every shocking word and number in these dread documents? Well, actually, not very much at all.

At least that's the conclusion reached by Prentice-Hall, publishers of tax and business information, after surveying more than 600 businesses and other institutions where employees are now permitted to inspect their files.

"The access-to-records policy has cost little, created few problems, and generated almost no strong reactions, either positive or negative," the firm says.

This news comes as a distinct surprise to anyone who expected that opening the files would stir up a hornet's nest of new costs and problems.

"Most offices, insurance firms, educational institutions, retailers and utilities reported the cost of implementation as minimal or nonexistent," Prentice-Hall said. "Just under half the banks and hospitals agreed." Generally, employers put their outlays at somewhere between 10 cents and $1.50 per employee annually.

Among most of the categories of businesses it surveyed, Prentice-Hall said, "a majority of employers said employees appeared indifferent" about the new procedure. "Yet many individual employers reported benefits from the policy."

Some employers did complain a bit, Prentice-Hall said, about the time and trouble involved in arranging for the process. "Only one company said employees had tampered with the files, and a few complained of employees using file information as a basis for grievance and lawsuits," the firm added.

The survey turned up wide variances in the specific records employers permit their employees to see. Nearly all make performance evaluations, salary records and disciplinary reports available, for example, but there is less uniformity on such matters as the results of pre-employment tests.

Some employers require written requests from employees who want to see a file, and some limit inspections to once or twice a year. Others do not impose such restrictions.

RALEIGH — Early last autumn, several supporters of former Charlotte mayor Eddie Knox's gubernatorial bid stood outside his campaign bus and made some predictions. Knox, who at the time stood third or fourth in the polls, would win the Democratic nomination in the first primary, they said. They told a skeptical reporter they'd put money on it. He declined the bet.

Today, Knox sits atop the polls and, in the betting of many Democratic activists, is almost certain to be in a two-way June 5 run-off. Knox, in an interview after a day of campaigning at the party's Jefferson-Jackson Day, said he still hasn't given up the optimism that his supporters exhibited outside that bus. "With the way this thing's catching on, maybe we can shoot up in the last few weeks and win it in the first primary."

That scenario is not widely embraced in party circles. In fact, many observers think Knox's current top standing may be suspect. They ask if the polls don't get distorted by his strong regional support around Charlotte. They ask if his opponents, who are now spending quite heavily on television advertising, aren't themselves perched for a strong run. They ask if he can stand front-runner status and all the attacks which come with that position.

But the story of the Knox campaign is one of slowly building momentum that should peak in the next several weeks. It's been orchestrated by advertising timed to create support just as polls were taken. The polls have then been released to the public to show the momentum.

Knox, 47, is an attorney. He served two terms as mayor, two terms as a state senator and two terms on the Advisory Budget Commission. He is a graduate of N.C. State and of the Wake Forest Law School.

Knox is often criticized for being fuzzy on the issues. But in a lengthy questionnaire of campaign issues, he answered most questions quite forthrightly. He said he does not support a state-operated lottery, nor does he see the need to have a popularly elected Utilities Commission. He said he'd support changes in the Construction Work in Progress law that would give the Utilities Commission more discretion over which costs are allowed to be included in the rate base.

Knox does not support efforts to repeal the constitutional amendment which allows governors to succeed themselves. He adds, however, that he'd been willing to consider support of an amendment calling for a single six- or eight-year term. He does not rule out seeking a second term for himself, although he says he hopes he can complete his program in four years. He says he supports changes in the primary run-off system which require a candidate to get a majority of the vote to be nominated.

On the campaign trail, Knox has had to answer some tough questions about his connections to Jim Bakker's PTL Club. Knox has appeared on the TV show, singing some religious songs. Knox says his connection with PTL is professional. He is their lawyer. He says he's not a member of the club. He adds that he's sung in a number of churches of different denominations.

He's also been asked about gun control legislation which he sponsored during his days in the state Senate. One bill would have required that anyone carrying a handgun away from home or business have a permit to do so. The other would have denied convicted felons the right to own a firearm.

Knox is often compared to Gov. Jim Hunt, a college classmate and long-time political ally of his. Like Hunt, he talks primarily about education and economic growth. Like Hunt, he has a reputation as a political moderate with both liberal and conservative support.

Cutting Off The Funds

WASHINGTON — Let us have three cheers and a tiger for Donald P. Bogard. As president of the Legal Services Corp., he recently struck a solid blow for progress: He cut off the funds for the Western Center on Law and Poverty. Hip, hip, hooray, and hallelujah too.

The story goes back a long way, to the time that a modest program of legal services was operated within the Office of Economic Opportunity. In 1974, Congress created the Legal Services Corp. as an independent agency within the executive branch. The idea was sound. The idea was to help the poor in coping with the law.

The idea remains sound to this day. To provide a lawyer for the poor family about to be wrongfully evicted, to help unsophisticated old people with Social Security procedures and to give the little people of our society a fair shake with the law is an obligation of fairness, decency and right. If the Legal Services Corp. had been content to pursue these humble tasks, it would not have become necessary for Bogard to take the unprecedented action he recently took.

Sad to say, the noble ideal was flouted almost from the begining of the Legal Services Corp. Until the Reagan administration managed to install Bogard, the agency was controlled by a series of legal activists and young lawyers. In Felix Frankfurter's day, such eager beavers were known as happy hot dogs. At the LSC, the activists disdained the grubby business of helping the little old lady who has fallen behind on her rent. To the happy hot dogs of the LSC, little old ladies are a bore.

The activists' idea of proper legal services, to quote from a candid memorandum one of them once prepared, is "aggressive advocacy." Such advocacy included class actions, high-powered lobbying, legislative initiatives and "all the steps necessary to assure the continuation of social benefit and entitlement programs." At the heart of this "aggressive advocacy" are the 22 state and national support centers. What they support is political activism.

Congress sought to prevent the very disaster that has overtaken the original idea. The law flatly prohibits the LSC from "advocating or opposing any ballot measures, initiatives or referendums." The people who were running the Western Center in Englewood, Calif., three years ago took a different view. They were very much opposed to what was known as Proposition Nine, a ballot initiative to reduce California's income tax.

In the course of their successful effort to defeat the proposition, the Western Center employed half a dozen coordinators with experience in political campaigns.

Manifestly, such activities had nothing on earth to do with the rendering of legal advice and services to the poor. Last September, the General Accounting Office investigated the Proposition Nine campaign and concluded that the Western Center had violated the law against political activity. The GAO's finding led to a hearing before an administrative law judge in February. Incredibly, the judge disagreed with GAO's conclusion and recommended that funds for the center not be ended. On April 4, Bogard overruled that recommendation. He found the center guilty of "flagrant defiance of the act," and exercised his power as president of the corporation to cut off the center's $1.2 million funding as of May 1.

My hoorays and hallelujahs may be premature. The happy hot dogs have powerful friends on Capitol Hill.

Reversing The Trend

WASHINGTON — For five weeks last winter, Allan Nairn risked his life collecting interviews from current and former members of El Salvador's internal security forces. The result is not only a gruesome profile of the Salvadoran death squads, but also evidence of an extensive U.S. role in their birth and ongoing activities.

Nairn's story, which appears in the May issue of The Progressive, points out the disingenuousness of Reagan administration criticism of death squad atrocities. It adds insight, moreover, to the recent debate over America's covert war against Nicaragua.

Nairn traces U.S. support for the death squads back to the early 1960s, when, with help from the CIA, the chief Salvadoran paramilitary organization, ORDEN, was born. In interviews, members of the security forces admit receiving training in torture techniques and other advice from the U.S. in violation of the 1974 Foreign Assistance Act, which forbids the U.S. from helping foreign police personnel. (The administration would like to eliminate the restriction.) Nairn learned, in fact, that at least 10 members of the security forces were scheduled to undergo a training course overseen by CIA personnel in the U.S. this spring.

Such intensive cooperation leads one to wonder about recent public denunciations of alleged death squad organizers by Vice President Bush and other American officials. As Nairn says now, the U.S. is only going after the "bad apples," and "sacrificing a few individuals to save the system" it helped create.

Illegal support for foreign police forces also falls in line with an administration given to disregarding the law elsewhere in Central America, as in the mining of Nicaraguan ports.

Recently, the Senate denounced the administration's terrorist efforts as if it had never supported them in the past. Of course, Congress has virtually mothered with taxpayer dollars the Nicaraguan rebels who are doing the administration's dirty work.

That sort of hypocrisy may be evident in our official attitude toward the death squads. If we're providing El Salvador's security forces with the tools to terrorize civilians, how serious can our concern be?

Wasteful Government, GOP style: The Reagan administration is paying $700 million more than it should for energy because of inefficiency, according to House Energy Subcommittee on Conservation and Power. By the end of Reagan's second year, the subcommittee contends, the consumption of oil or its energy equivalent had risen to 310.7 million barrels per year, the highest level since 1975. The increase, it says, "nearly wipes out all the gains of the previous administration."

Public Forum

To the editor:

The Greenville Peace Committee sponsored an information picket at the 10th Street Post Office at noon on April 16, tax day. The purpose was to point out that close to two-thirds of the requested FY-85 federal budget would be eaten up by military expenses, current and incurred in past wars.

The figures require some explanation. During the Vietnam War, President Johnson began masking the proportion of military expenses by including the trust funds in the federal budget. These trust funds — of which Social Security is the largest — are supported by their own taxes. Their budgets have always been in balance and were reported separately until Vietnam costs became embarrassingly high. Presidents since Johnson have continued to find the masking convenient, and comparisons have been made as if the figures before shift were comparable with those after. Our figure corrects the percentages by removing the trust funds.

Most taxpayers favor true defense and willing to pay for it. However, poorly designed, wasteful, and unnecessary weapons bleed the economy and weaken the country.

Strength For Today

A great English preacher once began a sermon with this story: "The other day I was going down the street and saw a drove of pigs follow a man into the slaughter house. I was anxious to know how this was brought about, and I said to the man, 'My friend, how do you induce these pigs to follow you there?' 'Oh, did you not see?' asked the man. 'I had a basket of beans under my arm and I dropped a few as I went along; and so the pigs followed me!'"

"Yes," said the preacher, "and I thought, so it is the devil has a basket of beans under his arm and drops some of them as he moves. What multitudes he induces to follow him to destruction!"

We recall the words of Jesus that the broad and crowded thoroughfares lead to destruction. And the reason is that the devil always has some inducement which causes weak souls to be willing to follow him.

Brazil's Military Regime Orders Emergency Laws

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — The military regime has invoked emergency powers allowing it to ban rallies in the capital, saying militant protesters were coming to intimidate lawmakers debating whether to hold direct presidential elections this year.

The measures invoked Wednesday night by President Gen. Joao Figueiredo, which affect Brasilia and 10 surrounding counties, suspend the right of public assembly. They also allow for detentions and house searches without warrants, government takeover of unions, censorship of radio and television and control of state-run companies.

Brazilians demanding that the government directly elect Figueiredo's successor have rallied recently in huge numbers. A demonstration in Rio de Janeiro last week drew 1 million people; in Sao Paulo as many as 1.3 million marched through the streets Monday evening.

The Federal District, home for about 1.4 million people in and around Brasilia, was quiet Wednesday night. There were no signs of increased police or military patrols.

Figueiredo is due to step down in March. Under the current system, his successor will be chosen by an electoral college controlled by the regime's Social Democratic Party.

On Monday night, Figueiredo proposed to Congress a constitutional amendment calling for direct elections in 1988, two years earlier than previously proposed.

Congress is scheduled to vote next Wednesday on an opposition-sponsored bill calling for direct elections starting this year with the selection of Figueiredo's successor. A large rally in support of the proposed amendment is scheduled Tuesday in Brasilia.

In evoking the emergency measures, Figueiredo referred to a section of the constitution covering a state of siege. The measures are in effect for 60 days.

On Oct. 19, 1983, Figueiredo declared emergency measures in the Federal District, saying "outside forces" were attempting to intimidate legislators during voting on an economic austerity bill. Brazil is plagued by high unemployment and huge international debts.

Regarding the latest application of emergency powers, presidential spokesman Carlos Atala told reporters: "The president is obligated to guarantee the free exercise of the legislative power."

"We had information that that there were movements to stop Congress and inhibit the vote," Atala said.

As for the rally scheduled for Tuesday, Atala said: "We don't know yet if that will be allowed. That will be up to the commander." The army commander of the Federal District is charged with carrying out the measures.

The measures were imposed "to show that the government has control over this special area," said a government source who spoke on condition of anonymity. "The president doesn't care about a million demonstrators in Rio de Janeiro or Sao Paulo, because this is the center of government."

Figueiredo told Congress on Monday that groups bound for the capital were made up of "militants from illegal organizations with ideologies incompatible with our constitutional order."

The military regime, which assumed power in a 1964 coup, reportedly was outraged by Communist flags seen at many of the direct election rallies. The Communist Party is illegal in Brazil but usually tolerated.

The government said that under the measure calling for censorship radio and television would be barred from next week's vote.

A congressman from the government party, Navarro Vieira Filho, met with Figueiredo earlier

Wednesday and said the president told him "a direct election now would mean handing over power to the most radical elements of the left."

However, Vice President Aureliano Chaves, a declared candidate to succeed Figueiredo, said Wednesday he opposed the emergency measures.

Analyzes Extent Of Eye Injuries

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — When an object strikes and compresses the eye, serious injury can result.

Using a fluid-filled spherical membrane to model the eyeball for impact studies, Larry A. Taber, an assistant professor of mechanical engineering at the University of Rochester, recently analyzed deformation of the eyeball in terms of nonlinear membrane mechanics.

According to Taber, the membrane representing the tough outer covering of the eyeball carried the brunt of the load during deformation, but did not perforate or rupture until the deflection approached 80 percent of the eyeball radius.

U.S. Treasury Loans Pose Risks

By JIM DRINKARD
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — What do a Kansas wheat farmer, Chrysler Corp. and the government of Romania have in common? They all borrow at the same bank — the United States Treasury.

Lending has become an enormous government business. Until the recession came along two years ago it had been for a decade the fastest-growing segment of federal finances.

The annual amount of new loans of all kinds, both direct loans and those guaranteed by the government, has risen 273 percent since 1970.

According to the Congressional Budget Office, the amount of government loan exposure — both direct and guaranteed — reached $587 billion last year. That's $150 billion more than the outstanding loan portfolios of Citibank, BankAmerica Corp., Chase Manhattan, the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund combined.

By the end of the decade, that figure will approach $1 trillion. There are now 424 federal loan and loan guarantee programs that include: loans to farmers, loan guarantees to foreign countries anxious to buy their crops, loans to rural power companies, mortgage loans to veterans, loans to students for tuition, loans to allies to buy weapons and loans to third-world countries to buy U.S. machinery.

Uncle Sam's popularity as a lender stems from his generosity. While the government is paying roughly 10 percent interest on money it borrows, it often charges loan recipients substantially lower rates. Rural electric cooperatives deemed "hardship cases," for example, get loans at 2 percent interest. Direct student loans are made at 5 percent. Military loans to Egypt and Israel are routinely forgiven.

Because many of the programs are "off-budget," their true costs are less than obvious. "Off-budget" means the costs are not reflected in the numbers used to tally the deficit. But the costs of all the lending, including interest rate subsidies, ultimately are paid by U.S. taxpayers.

The programs continue to swell despite the stated antipathy of the Reagan administration and efforts by some in Congress to cut the growing national debt.

"The creative applicants for federal assistance have just moved down the street to the lending window," says Rep. Ed Bethune, R-Ark., who has been fighting to include lending costs in the budget so the effects of legislation to increase loan giveaways become more clear.

"A federal lending program is nearly as good as a federal spending program," says Bethune. "In fact, it's just as good if you don't pay it back."

As loan programs are set up, management and collection often are neglected. Student loan programs have been the most infamous, with default rates at hundreds of universities exceeding 25 percent. Small Business Administration loans fall past due or are liquidated at a similar rate.

"Off-budget loan programs have been popular with members of both the executive branch and the Congress because these programs have provided ways to be generous to constituents without appearing to be extravagant," states a study of federal credit by the Center for the Study of American Business at Washington University in St. Louis.

Many of the programs, begun years ago to meet specific needs, have developed lives of their own even though the need for them has decreased or disappeared. The Rural Electrification Administration still offers discount loans to utility cooperatives which have become more suburban than rural, for example.

Others are used to help address imbalances in trade between countries or to rescue nations, at least temporarily, from serious debt problems. The Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation on March 16 reported it had made good on $431 million in guaranteed loans from U.S. banks over the previous year because of non-payment of interest by Peru, Morocco, Brazil and Romania.

Such payments usually are followed by negotiations with debtor nations to set up generous, long-term repayment schedules which sometimes include grace periods of several years in which no interest is due.

More than half of all credit in the market now is sopped up by federal direct or guaranteed borrowing. "Those who have the strongest lobbies in Congress are getting the credit subsidies," says Bethune.

Edwin L. Dale, spokesman for Reagan's Office of Management and Budget, says that efforts to rein in the growth of credit have been less than successful, and blames much of the failure on Congress. But he says there has evolved on Capitol Hill "a consciousness of the problem that didn't exist before. The practical results ... have been limited, but the consciousness is there."

Bethune agrees, to a point. "I can remember clearly members standing up on the floor and saying, 'This is a loan guarantee. It doesn't cost anything' ... People are wising up to that now, but not enough to stop this rapid increase."

The difficult choices, the same kinds of dilemmas Congress now faces on direct spending and taxes, still lie ahead in the credit arena, says Bethune.

The kind of overreaching and mismanagement seen so far in credit programs "is creating a fertile field, where one day something's going to pop," says the congressman. "The credit issue will be in the forefront, and everyone will be aghast that this has been going on since the mid 1970s and Congress has not dealt with it."

Reagan Begins First Leg Of A Trip To China

By R. GREGORY NOKES
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan began the first leg of his 11,000 mile journey to China today, leaving the White House after shaking hands with the deputy chief of mission at the Chinese Embassy, Hu Dingyi.

A group of perhaps 100 school children, as well as a few Chinese officials, were on hand on the South Lawn to watch the president and his aides board the presidential helicopter, Marine One, for the short trip to Andrews Air Force Base in suburban Maryland.

Reagan was escorted to the helicopter by Vice President George Bush. The president saluted the Marine guard stationed at the helicopter's steps, waved to the crowd, and left for his first stop — a Tacoma, Wash., timber conglomerate that is helping the Chinese replant their depleted forests.

Reagan planned to visit a log export facility operated by the Weyerhaeuser Co. and to address trade industry representatives at the Weyerhaeuser headquarters.

The White House said the president was visiting Weyerhaeuser because it exports wood products to China and is helping China with a reforestation project.

Many of China's forests were devastated in the mid-1960s when they were randomly consumed for firewood to help fuel China's backyard steel mills during Mao Tse-tung's disastrous effort to industrialize China overnight.

Reagan will not actually arrive in China until a week from today.

From Tacoma, he planned to go to his ranch near Santa Barbara for three days of rest and further preparation for the trip.

He will go to Hawaii on Sunday for an additional two days of rest and trip preparation. He will go to Guam, a U.S. possession, on Tuesday for an overnight stay. He will arrive in Peking on Thursday, April 26 and remain in China until May 1.

Reagan already has been extensively briefed by China experts both in and out of government and has even viewed films of President Nixon's 1972 trip to China.

Aides say that Reagan will follow a program for regulating his diet and sleep in order to counteract the effects of jet lag on the trip.

By spreading out the travel, the 73-year-old president will have several days to adjust to the 13-hour time difference between Washington and Peking.

It will be Reagan's first visit to a communist nation, and the first by an American president to China since relations were normalized in 1979. Two other presidents visited before formal relations were established, Nixon in 1972 and Gerald R. Ford in 1975.

Reagan has seven hours of meetings scheduled with Chinese leaders, including Deng Xiaoping, over three days. He will visit the Great Wall and also spend a day in Xian in central China where he will view the spectacular life-size terra-cotta soldiers and horses, dating from about 200 years before Christ, which were discovered in underground vaults in 1974.

Reagan also will visit Shanghai, where he will tour a commune, now called a township, and a factory supported by a U.S. manufacturer.

After departing Shanghai on May 1, he will go to Fairbanks, Alaska, where he will meet with Pope John Paul II on May 2, before returning to Washington later that day, a Wednesday.

Secretary of State George P.

Shultz told reporters Wednesday that the aim of Reagan's visit to China is to underscore the U.S. commitment to a "stable, enduring and comprehensive" relationship with the world's most populous nation.

Shultz said it is still possible that Reagan and the Chinese leaders would sign a nuclear power agreement that would clear the way for the Chinese to purchase U.S. nuclear equipment and expertise.

While the Chinese have expressed strong interest in purchasing nuclear power technology from the United States, they have balked at a U.S. requirement that they formally agree that the spent nuclear fuel, which could be used in weapons, is not reprocessed or sold to another nation.

Shultz also said Reagan would do nothing in China to weaken U.S. ties to Taiwan, although he said the Chinese are expected to raise anew their objections to U.S. relations with Taiwan.

Reagan said earlier in the week that the United States will "not turn our back on old friends in order to, let's say, strengthen or make new friends...."

"The problem between the People's Republic and the people on Taiwan is one for the Chinese to settle between themselves," he said. "We will do nothing to intervene, we will do nothing to pressure one side or the other."

A Disease Reappears

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three crippling and disfiguring diseases once considered conquered are making a comeback in West and Central Africa and parts of Indonesia, health authorities say.

Specialists told a news conference Wednesday that programs that were successful decades ago against diseases, caused by bacteria called treponemes, must be reinstated.

Dr. Donald R. Hopkins of the federal Centers for Disease Control said there are no good figures that tell how many people worldwide have the treponeme diseases. He said a conservative estimate of the victims worldwide would be 1 million to 2 million.

The principle varieties concerning health officials are yaws, endemic (non-venereal) syphilis and pinta. They are mainly caught through skin contact.

Dr. John C. Cutler of the University of Pittsburgh said the cost of finding, diagnosing and treating a victim with one inoculation of long-acting penicillin is about $2.

"We are not talking about big money — $4 million to $8 million," Cutler said. "The 'problem is getting the money to the right place and getting the resolve to do it.'"

Three decades ago, hundreds of millions of people living in or near the tropics suffered from such diseases. Mass treatment campaigns by the World Health Organization and the United Nations from 1952 to 1969 had dramatic success.

The campaigns, however, brought about a false sense of security that slowed or stopped the fight against the diseases in parts of Africa and Indonesia, the doctors said. The said the ailments are still on the wane, though, in much of the developing world.

Mondale Wins Missouri

By JIM WILLIS
Associated Press Writer
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Walter F. Mondale's smooth campaign organization sparked by labor officials and veteran Democrats is getting credit for what the former vice president calls his "solid win" in Missouri's caucuses.

Sen. Gary Hart's press secretary, Kathy Bushkin, dismissed the results of Wednesday's caucuses, telling reporters in Ohio, it was "all labor." Mondale pointed to veteran Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., as a key factor in rolling up the victory.

Eagleton commanded an army of Mondale backers ranging from congressmen to obscure precinct workers with long experience in turning out caucus voters. At numerous meetings, labor's role was obvious.

"The fact the hall is full of labor people indicates labor is taking a strong stand for Mondale," caucus Chairman Thomas Fagan declared at a meeting in St. Charles County that was flooded with union members from General Motors and McDonnell Douglas, the giant aerospace contractor.

With partial results from St. Louis and Kansas City and 55 of 114 counties fully tabulated, state party officials estimated Mondale could win 53 national convention delegates, Hart 12 and the Rev. Jesse Jackson five, while five more could not be determined immediately.

Delegates to state and local meetings, elected at the caucuses, will determine the breakdown of 75 of Missouri's 86-member contingent at the national convention in July in San Francisco. The rest will be selected from among party leaders.

Based on the partial count, Democratic Party figures showed Mondale winning 157 local delegates to 61 for Hart, eight for Jackson and eight uncommitted. Party officials counted local delegates elected, not the raw vote for the candidates.

Jackson refused to characterize the early returns. "It's just too early," he said. "Our vote is urban and young and new. Those votes have not yet been counted. I suspect all of our numbers will rise."

The excitement generated by the 1984 Democratic presidential primary in Missouri brought out far more Democrats than in 1980, state Democratic Executive Director John Weller said. He said tentative figures showed a turnout of at least 40,000, compared to 10,000 four years ago.

Mondale praised Eagleton as a "dear friend" who stood by him "from the moment of defeat in 1980," when he and former President Jimmy Carter were swept from office.

"Missouri was the opening of the second half of the presidential primary campaign and with his big win here, Mondale is safely on course to the nomination," Eagleton told reporters. He said the "size and scope" of the victory were greater than he had expected.

Gene Boesch, a Hart spokesman, said the defeat was no surprise. He said that despite Mondale's popularity with labor and party officials, he would not be able to carry the state against Reagan in November.

Boesch cited a statewide poll released Wednesday that showed Hart would win against Reagan in Missouri, if the election were held today, while Mondale would lose.

"The poll indicated clearly Gary Hart is a winner and at some point in this process state legislators, congressmen and the other party leaders are going to see Mondale can't carry Missouri," Boesch said.

Besides Eagleton, top Democrats backing Mondale include Reps. Ike Skelton, Richard Gephardt and Robert Young, St. Louis Mayor Vincent Schoemehl and Missouri House Speaker Bob Griffin.

Fewer Bogus Bill Arrests In N.C.

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE (AP) — Few people have dared to print or pass counterfeit bills in North Carolina since a major case last year sent more than 20 people to jail, U.S. Secret Service officials say.

"Since last fall, it's dropped way off," said William J. Williamson, agent in charge of Secret Service operations in the state. "It really had some deterrent value."

Bills from the case began turning up at the World's Fair in Knoxville, Tenn., in the summer of 1983, he said. Other bills were passed in the western third of North Carolina.

Last spring, agents found the press in Wilkes County. Seven people involved in the printing operation were indicted. All pleaded guilty but one, who was later found guilty. In addition, at least 15 others — "mostly small-time note-passers meeting in bars" — have been arrested and charged with passing the bills. Nearly all received active sentences, and "some of them got substantial time," said Williamson.

"We've closed the case down here," he said. "A few note still turn up now and then."

During the year that ended Sept. 1982, the Secret Service seized $134,455 in uncirculated counterfeit money and $98,365 in counterfeit bills that had been passed. Last fiscal year, the numbers were up to $520,300 uncirculated and down to $81,074 circulated, said Williamson.

"But now it's very slow," he said, adding that he did not have exact figures for the year to date. "We had the usual increase around the holidays and people traveling the interstate highways on the way to Florida passing bills — some innocent persons, others not."

Another reason for the drop is that one major counterfeiter from Virginia who had been passing bills in North Carolina was arrested, Williamson said.

"Counterfeiting is not a crime of passion — it's planned and well financed," he said.

But like a crime of passion, it's hard to predict.

"When times are tough there's a little more, but it's not a true indicator," he said.

During the year that ended Sept. 30, 1983, North Carolina's 32 investigators arrested 52 people for passing or printing counterfeit money.

Williamson said most passers are caught in the act by cashiers at stores, banks or bars. Many will "play the innocent role," but searches often reveal they are carrying several bills with the same serial number, he said.

Other bill passers are caught while being investigated for other crimes, such as drug sales or even traffic violations, he said.

Huge Throngs Cancel Break-Dance Contest

CLEVELAND (AP) — About 5,000 youths who were turned away from a canceled break-dancing contest because sponsors "underestimated the popularity" of the event danced in the street instead, tying up traffic for three hours, authorities said.

Nine people were arrested on disorderly conduct charges and six suffered minor injuries Wednesday as would-be break-dancers tried to push into the Stouffer's Inn on the Public Square.

Several windows were reported broken, but there was no other damage reported, authorities said.

Radio station WZAK-FM had announced that the first 2,000 people showing up would be admitted free to the contest, which was to have been judged by members of the Cleveland Ballet and other celebrities.

"A lot of people were crowded around the building and there were a lot of fights going on," said one young man, Carl Robinson. "When the doors opened up, everybody started pushing, trying to file in."

When it became apparent that the crowd was too large to handle, the contest was called off about 3:45 p.m. and police began clearing the area.

Downtown traffic and pedestrian movement nearly came to a halt during the evening rush hour as youngsters clogged main thoroughfares by dancing in the streets for about three hours.

"We felt it was difficult to control, so we decided with WZAK to cancel the dance," said Robert Swenson, hotel assistant general manager. "We were afraid for their safety."

Lee Zapis, director of operations for WZAK, said, "We knew it was going to be successful, but we just underestimated the popularity of the event."

The contest was tentatively rescheduled for May 13, and the station was considering another location that would accommodate a larger crowd, Zapis said.

"The kids came down for a good time and they were disappointed," said police Capt. Robert Cavell, who staffed a command post in a room on Stouffer's 11th floor overlooking the square. "By and large they were acting responsibly."

Linda Elmore of Cleveland was among hundreds of rush-hour commuters who were delayed up to an hour when buses became stuck in traffic. "This is a big inconvenience," she said.

Hunt Endorses Detergent Ban

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt and another legislative study committee on Wednesday both came out in favor of a proposed statewide ban on phosphate detergents.

Hunt said he supported the idea when questioned by a Chapel Hill High School student. Previously, the governor had remained silent on the proposed Clean Detergent Act despite the active support of his secretary for natural resources and community development.

Hunt was at the high school for a humanities festival.

"He was close to a decision for a week," said R. Brent Hackney, a Hunt spokesman.

But Hackney said the governor would stick to his plans to let others lobby for the act in the upcoming legislative session while Hunt concentrated on an education package.

The second endorsement Wednesday came from the joint Haw River and Jordan Reservoir Legislative Study Committee as part of a report to the Legislature that its members approved unanimously.

mentary's name.
Pitt school officials say Ayden lost much of its instructional material when the storm damaged the facility. Most were soaked by rain and scattered by the devastating winds.
Liberty students also donated one ton of food and clothes to the Salvation Army in Ayden Elementary's name.

The students said they considered themselves "adoptors" of Ayden Elementary. "Well, we just wanted to do something that would help and this seemed like the thing," said one of the Liberty students. "We wanted a project that would be worthwhile and we all agreed this would be."
Sheriff agreed. "They (the students) really did it themselves. It was their idea and their project."

"They came to me wanting to raise money for a tornado-stricken student population," Sheriff. "I got in touch with the state Department (of Public Instruction) and they in turn put me in touch with the central office here (in Pitt County) who put me in touch with Ayden Elementary."

The students raised money by asking for it, Sheriff said, and by special projects such as bake sales. When they collected $1,000, they contacted a school supplier with the check. The school supplier was so impressed with the project it added $100 to the amount.

Liberty students also benefitted from the effort, Sheriff explained. Ayden Elementary students that live in the path of the tornado were interviewed by Liberty students about what the storm was like and how they felt when it passed near their homes. These interviews were videotaped and will be shown to science classes at Liberty as projects depicting what a tornado is like.

The interviews were not the only benefit for Liberty, students agreed. "Throughout the whole project it brought us together as a group," said one.

"It's something that we'd want other schools to do if we lost our school and all our supplies. We hope they'd 'adopt' us, too," said another. "It was fun," said a third. "The whole project was a lot of fun."

Phone Outage Due Malfunction

A telephone outage Wednesday afternoon in the Greenville area was caused by malfunctioning equipment, according to Dick Flye, manager of the local office of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph.

The outage, which disrupted telephone service to all areas of Greenville, occurred at 4 p.m., during the peak load time of the day. The malfunctioning equipment caused the lines at the CT&T office to jam so that calls could not be placed on any of the lines serving Greenville, Flye said. The problem was corrected in 45 minutes and service was restored.

Mission Service

A Home Mission service will be held at Sweet Hope Missionary Baptist Church Friday at 7:30 p.m. Bishop W.H. Mitchell will be the speaker. It was incorrectly announced earlier that this service would be held Saturday.

Service Sunday

An Easter sunrise service will be held at Wells Chapel Church of God in Christ Sunday at 5:30 a.m. The church is located on the corner of W. Fifth and Hudson streets.

Gemayel Goes To Syria For Talks

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — With his country taking new steps to end its nine-year civil war, Lebanese President Amin Gemayel met here today with his Syrian counterpart, Hafez Assad, to discuss political changes that would accompany a truce.

In Lebanon, 200 white-helmeted truce observers deployed in 50 posts along Beirut's "green line," in the southern suburbs and around the mountaintop town of Souk el-Gharb to monitor a new cease-fire called Wednesday night, a military spokesman said. Some were seen ducking rifle fire as they took up their posts.

The disengagement effort had been planned to coincide with the Gemayel-Assad meeting. Leaders of Christian, Druse and Shiite Moslem militias all pledged today to adhere to the plan and called on their forces to observe the cease-fire.

Gemayel's visit to Damascus was his second in as many months in his continuing effort to gain a lasting cease-fire in Lebanon and reconcile the warring factions into a government of national unity.

Lebanese and Syrian sources said Gemayel and Assad would discuss a blueprint prepared by Gemayel suggesting constitutional reforms to give Lebanon's Moslem community a greater share of power in the government that has been dominated by Christians for 40 years.

Assad backed the Druse and Shiite militias in civil warfare against the Lebanese army and rightist Christian irregulars. But he took a mediator's posture after Gemayel bowed to his demand and scrapped Lebanon's troop withdrawal pact with Israel on March 5.

As the two leaders met, Syrian Vice President Abdul-Halim Khaddam spoke separately with Lebanese Foreign Minister Elie Salem.

A Lebanese security committee representing the nation's principal warring factions declared the new cease-fire Wednesday night, but shell blasts echoed through the capital even as the truce announcement was read to the nation over radio and television.

One thunderous explosion shook Moslem west Beirut about 10 minutes after the cease-fire deadline, and ambulance sirens wailed in the streets.

Less than an hour before the truce went into effect, unknown assailants fired a grenade from a rifle at the west Beirut home of Druse leader Walid Jumblatt, blasting a hole in the wall of the home and breaking several windows, police and Druse officials said.

Jumblatt was not home at the time and no one was injured.

Preparations were to continue through the day for the disengagement along the "green line" separating Christian east Beirut from the mostly Moslem west, and the Shiite Moslem southern suburbs and Souk el-Gharb.

Lebanese Army Col. Jean Nassif said the observers deployed today were Lebanese but that French observers would join them within the next two days.

By sundown today, the observers were expected to be positioned and their communication system with the command center tested.

Happy Easter!

U.S. Customs Seeks Aid In Drug Smuggling

By DAVID GOELLER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the U.S. Customs Service, saying narcotics smuggling has reached the "crisis stage," is trying to recruit airlines and ocean shippers for the Reagan administration's war on drugs.

Customs Commissioner William von Raab invited industry officials to a meeting Wednesday at which he urged them to keep better passenger and cargo records and train employees to spot and turn in possible smugglers.

"We're at a crisis stage," he said. "The amounts (of drugs) are great. We have to do something..."

"You, the common carriers, are a critical part of our war against drug smugglers," von Raab said. "In the same way that Customs is the foot soldier, you have the potential to be the long-range artillery, the big guns."

He estimated that at least 45,000 pounds of cocaine is smuggled into the United States each year on commercial planes and ships.

"When it is finally cut and sold on the street, this cocaine which arrives... on your ships and planes will be worth $7.5 billion," von Raab said.

He said that 1,800 pounds of cocaine had been seized since March 1 in a program of intensified Customs searches of passengers and cargo arriving from Colombia at Miami airport.

Customs Service statistics show that more narcotics are entering the United States now than when the administration's crackdown began in earnest in 1982.

The agency estimates that 125,000 pounds of cocaine will reach the streets of America this year, up from 96,800 pounds two years ago. For marijuana, officials estimated that smugglers will bring in 30.6 million pounds in 1984, 2 million more than in 1982.

An estimated 9,100 pounds of heroin will be smuggled into the United States this year, compared to 8,800 pounds in 1982, according to Customs. Officials said that only hashish smuggling would decline, from 660,000 pounds in 1982 to 300,000 pounds this year.

These increases come at a time when the administration is asking Congress to cut the Customs Service budget in fiscal 1985 by about 7 percent and nearly 1,000 employees.

The meeting with industry officials focused on cocaine, which arrives chiefly from Colombia, Peru and Bolivia. Von Raab termed cocaine "a very serious problem."

He presented industry officials with a list of proposals he said he hoped they would voluntarily adopt to help federal agencies combat smugglers.

One of the proposals would require passengers purchasing tickets with cash to present identification. Another would have carrier employees trained in spotting and informing on customers who fit drug-smuggler "profiles" developed by the federal government.

Richard Lally, security director for the Air Transport Association, said these two proposals raise "severe operational problems... and legal ramifications" for airlines.

Lally said airlines would cooperate where possible, "consistent with the industry's first responsibility of operating safe, reliable and efficient air transportation systems."

"The airlines will cooperate with Customs... and other responsible law enforcement agencies in this effort, as they have over the years," Lally said. "It must be recognized, however, that the airlines do not possess police powers and cannot perform law enforcement functions."

Too few percent of the loads offered have been confirmed. The market is weak and the live supply is moderate for a light to very light demand. Average weights desirable to heavy. NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks were broadly lower through morning trading today, although some issues were narrowing their losses.

Stock prices came under pressure from news that the economy expanded at a brisk pace in the first quarter, renewing Wall Street's fears of higher interest rates and renewed inflation.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 8.06 on Wednesday, lost another 3.56 to 1,152.95 after two hours of trading today. The measure had been off 4 1/2 points early in the session, however.

Losers held a 7-4 lead over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange, whose composite index fell 0.23 to 90.60.

Big Board volume totaled 32.21 million shares at noon EST, compared with 39.96 million at that hour Wednesday.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell 0.03 to 208.08.

Gilliam, a native of Bertie County and member of a peanut-raising family, touched on the farm issue when he said: "We have had a congressman who has abandoned the farmers of eastern North Carolina by introducing and supporting legislation that would seriously stifle the export of agricultural bulk commodities ... a congressman who has introduced 21 pieces of legislation in Congress during the last term. All but three were designed to aid the special interests of the shipping industry. Not one article of legislation has Walter Jones introduced that would help the people of Greenville, or Pitt County, or our important education center of East Carolina University."

Gilliam said if voters elect him, "You will have a congressman who believes a strong educational system and an innovative economic development program are essential for eastern North Carolina."

"That's why I have called for the creation of an economic development council of the 21 counties of the 1st Congressional District, a volunteer council, the first of its kind, to define job problems by county and region, to identify local and regional resources ... to attract small, clean industry to eastern North Carolina."

"There is no reason," Gilliam added, "why Piedmont North Carolina should continue to receive 62 percent of industrial capital development investment in North Carolina! We need a strong voice and aggressive leadership to make certain we get our fair share."

Other factors touched on by Gilliam included the "crisis in education ... (with a need for) ... progress for education with federal assistance to local schools ... assistance for basic skills training and for advanced training in mathematics, science and computer technology."

Referring to Jones' age, Gilliam concluded "age is not the issue. Ability is the issue. The issue is vision and leadership and energy and the future of eastern North Carolina."

Mrs. Gilliam remarked that, for her, the campaign "is very exciting, a chance to meet many people. Of course it means being on the go from sunrise to sundown, of not eating at all one day, of eating eight or nine times the next day, but I'm thoroughly enjoying it."

change its estimate of 5 percent real GNP growth over 1983. In 1984, real GNP grew 3.4 percent for the year.

The department said real GNP increased $31.8 billion in the first quarter, due mainly to large increases in personal consumption spending and business inventory investment.

About half the increase in business inventory investment came from an $8.7 billion jump in farm inventories, due primarily to the receipt of crops by farmers under the federal government's payment-in-kind subsidy program.

The overall January-March surge of 8.3 percent was the strongest showing since a 9.7 percent increase in GNP during the April-June period last year as the recovery from the 1981-82 recession was beginning to pick up steam. That increase was followed by a 7.6 percent gain in the third quarter and 5 percent jump in the fourth quarter.

Inflation also picked up somewhat in this year's first quarter, with prices as measured by the GNP fixed-weighted index gaining 4.7 percent, compared to 4.2 percent in the fourth quarter.

Say Arctic Haze Not U.S.-Made

WASHINGTON (AP) — A reddish-brown haze that appears over the Arctic every November and disappears in April comes mostly from Europe and the Soviet Union, a University of Rhode Island researcher says.

"Although we don't yet know the exact region of origin in the Soviet Union, the likeliest possibility is the industrialized southern Urals," Prof. Kenneth A. Rahn said in the May issue of Natural History magazine.

U.S. weather reconnaissance flights over the Alaskan Arctic that began in the 1940s discovered the haze, which is difficult to see from the ground. Interest was renewed with the 1976 discovery of desert dust from eastern Asia in the air of Point Barrow, Alaska.

Johnson's Homers Pace Pirates

THE DAILY REFLECTOR

THURSDAY AFTERNOON, APRIL 19, 1984

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Winfred Johnson is going to make a run at it — the East Carolina home record — and it seems fairly certain that before the sophomore pitcher-first baseman-designated hitter is through, he'll have it.
Last night, Johnson pitched and batted his way to an 8-6 victory over UNC-Wilmington, slamming three homers along with the way. The total brings his season total to 12 — four short of the season record of 16 held by Bobby Supel.

And those 12 added to the 11 he hit as a freshman, up his career total to 23, just three short of the career record of 26 held by Butch Davis — now of the Kansas City Royals.

"It's hard to envision a player who can do as many things to help a club as Winfred does," Coach Hal Baird said after Johnson drove in half of the eight-run total himself. "You can be comfortable with him at the plate and confident with him on the mound. If that's not what you look for in an all-American player, then I don't know what it takes."

Johnson, in recording his seventh win against two losses, went the distance, but saw things get shaky for him in the closing innings. He had a shutout until the sixth, but then saw the Seahawks rally to make things close — just as they did in the 9-7 ECU victory the night before in Wilmington.

"Winfred pitched a better game than the score scores. We kicked a few around behind him, and they are a very good hitting baseball club, too.

"We were a little sluggish too. I think maybe we took some things for granted despite the fact that I warned them about that. Wilmington is not the type club you can sit back on. But the kids are playing hard and I can't fault them for that. They're just making too many mistakes."

Johnson kept the Seahawks at bay until the sixth, allowing only four baserunners before that inning. Greg Hardison made an outstanding defensive play in the first, robbing Ken Jones of a hit to deep short with an out-target throw to first.

Meanwhile, the Pirates were jumping on the Seahawks for an early 6-0 lead.

It started in the first inning. Hardison reached on an infield hit, beating out a grounder to deep short. He moved up on an infield out and with two away, Johnson stepped up to nail the ball out of the park in right field — Homer Number One. It was 2-0 at that point.

Johnson stepped back in in the fourth inning, leading off the frame, and nailed it again, this time to straightaway center — Homer Number Two. That made it 3-0, but the Pirates weren't through for the inning.

Mike Williams followed by beating out an infield hit and he stole second. Chris Bradberry's single to center scored Williams, and Bradberry stole up, scoring on Mark Shank's single to left.

That made it 5-0. Johnson came back to the plate in the fifth with two away. This time he tossed it out of the park in right again — Homer Number Three.

All that work may have tended to tire out the righthander, for he gave up two runs in the top of the sixth. First, Gary Hall led off with a homer to right. With one away, Ken Jones walked and Bernie Harris came on to run for him, moving to second on a single by Bobby Bryant. Chuck Jones followed with a single, scoring Harris.

The Seahawks trimmed the lead to 6-4 with two in the seventh. With one down, Mitch Wells reached on an error. Hall singled to left and moved up on the throw in. Both scored when Ken Jones reached on a second error in the inning. Johnson, by the way, accounted for all three outs in the inning on strikeouts.

The Pirates padded the lead to 8-4 with two in the bottom of the seventh — and as it turned out they were needed. David Wells and Todd Evans led off with singles and that brought Johnson to the plate once more — this time drawing a walk. Williams reached when his fly to right was dropped, scoring Wells, and Evans scored on Chris Bradberry's fluke pop behind second that fell in when the shortstop and second baseman ran into each other. However, courtesy runner Ricky Nichols was forced at third on the play.

Wilmington rallied for two in the ninth, trimming the lead to the final 8-6. Bobby Reynolds reached on an infield hit and Ken Jones singled. Both moved up on a passed ball and Reynolds scored on a sacrifice fly by Johnny Slaughter. Chuck Jones then doubled to score Ken Jones.

Johnson and Hardison led the Pirates with three hits each, while Evans and Shank each had two. Chuck Jones had three for UNC while Hall, Reynolds, and Buddy Walters each had two.

The win boosted the ECU record to 24-8 and gave them their seventh straight win. UNCW falls to 20-23.

The Pirates are again home tonight at 7 p.m. at Harrington Field, hosting Virginia Commonwealth.

Two Days Left For Some To Impress Bobby Knight

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Time is growing short for some of the 72 hopefuls seeking to wear the red-white-and-blue of the U.S. Olympic basketball team this summer.

Saturday, Coach Bob Knight will be telling about 40 of the nation's top amateur performers thanks for trying, you're just not what we are looking for.

That leaves them with just today and Friday to make a good enough impression to stay around for Saturday and Sunday's doubleheaders at Indiana University's Assembly Hall. Those games will determine the 16 or so players Knight will invite back for the final pre-Olympic training before the squad is cut to 12 for the Olympics.

From here on in, Knight will be checking on how the candidates — including All-Americans Patrick Ewing of Georgetown, Michael Jordan of North Carolina and Wayman Tisdale of Oklahoma — fill the team role he wants in his quest for the gold medal at the Summer Games.

"What we'll do tomorrow and Friday will be more involved with team play," Knight said Wednesday at the daily news conference he's holding during the trials.

"What we're simply trying to do is set up a means through which we can evaluate not just how players play, but the things that they can do to fit in with the way that we're going to play."

That process has included shifting personnel from one unit to another each day.

"As we make up lists from day to day we try and move them around to see that kids play against everybody in their particular position at least a couple of times while they're here," Knight explained.

The selection process and training (Please Turn To Page 16)

Jackson Finds A New Month

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Reggie Jackson is back in a familiar role, only now it's "Mr. April" instead of "Mr. October."

Once known as "Mr. October" because of his record-making World Series exploits with the New York Yankees, Jackson is hitting the ball with old-time ferocity these days.

Wednesday night, the rejuvenated California slugger hit a two-run homer and figured in a couple of other rallies to help the Angels beat the Minnesota Twins 9-2.

"It's a combination of mental and physical things," Jackson said of his current power surge which includes an American League-leading 15 runs batted in and four home runs which tie him with Oakland's Dave Kingman for the league lead.

Last year, Jackson hit only 14 home runs with 49 RBI and was thought to be near the end of his baseball career.

"There are certain things you've got to do physically, but there's always someone out there who will yell .194 (Jackson's batting average last year)," Jackson said. "The difference this year is that I'm concentrating better and working a lot harder at the plate. It just feels good to contribute, even hitting .240. I've been productive with runners on base."

In other AL action, the undefeated

Detroit Tigers won their ninth game with a 4-3, 10-inning victory over Kansas City, Toronto whipped Baltimore 7-1, Seattle edged Oakland 5-4, New York turned back Cleveland 5-0 and Texas tripped Boston 4-3.

Jackson knocked in a run for the Angels with a groundout in a four-run first inning before his homer in the third off Larry Pashnick, who had relieved Al Williams, 1-2, with two out in the first. Pashnick allowed an RBI double to Brian Downing in the fifth, after Jackson had doubled.

Geoff Zahn and Doug Corbett combined on an eight-hitter for the Angels. Zahn, 2-0, earned the victory without a strikeout, walking just one. Zahn gave up a leadoff home run to Darrell Brown in the first, Brown's first major league homer, and allowed just five other hits in his eight innings of work.

Tigers 4, Royals 3
Alan Trammell scored the winning run from third when Kansas City second baseman Frank White bobbled Larry Herndon's two-out grounder in the 10th inning, lifting Detroit over the Royals.

The Tigers' 9-0 start, the best in the club's 84-year history, is two shy of the AL record set in 1981 when the Oakland A's won 11 without a defeat. The Atlanta Braves' 13-0 start in 1982 set the major league record.

Willie Hernandez came on to pitch the 10th in relief of starter Jack Morris and retired the side in order to earn his first AL victory. Trailing 3-0, the Royals tied the game in the eighth on Jorge Orta's three-run homer that shattered Morris' streak of 28 1-3 consecutive innings without allowing an earned run.

Blue Jays 7, Orioles 1
Dave Collins drove in three runs with a double and a two-run single and Dave Stieb and Dennis Lamp combined to check Baltimore on five hits, leading Toronto over the struggling Orioles.

Stieb, 2-0, lost his shutout bid when pinch-hitter Joe Nolan hit his first homer of the season in the Baltimore eighth, then left in favor of Lamp in the ninth.

Jim Palmer, 0-2, who gave up five runs in five innings, was tagged with the loss, the ninth in 11 starts for the defending World Champions.

"Nothing seems to be going right for us," said Baltimore Manager Joe Altobelli. "Nothing seems to be going right for us. Our defense and hitting is off. You just can't cry about it, though, and hang your head. You've got to come out tomorrow and try to win one game at a time."

Mariners 5, A's 4
Rookie Al Davis' two-out double, his third of the game, scored Jack Perconte from first base in the ninth to boost Seattle over Oakland.

With one out, Perconte singled off Bill Atherton, 0-1, and one out later, Davis doubled off reliever Bill Caudill for his fourth RBI of the game.

Mariners reliever Paul Mirabella, 1-0, who escaped a bases-loaded jam in the ninth, picked up the victory.

"We can't figure out a way to pitch him," Oakland Manager Steve Boros said of Davis. "We pitch him in and we pitch him out. He sends hits in every direction. He's hot."

Yankees 5, Indians 0
Phil Niekro and Jose Rijo combined on a five-hitter as New York blanked Cleveland in a game played in sub-freezing temperatures.

Niekro, the veteran knuckleballer who signed a free agent contract with New York, yielded five hits while striking out six and walking two over the first six innings. Niekro, 3-0, with a 1.45 earned run average in his three starts this season, moved to 23rd place on the all-time list of major league victories with 271, surpassing Hall-of-Famer Burleigh Grimes.

Rijo held Cleveland hitless, striking out five over the final three innings to notch his first major league save.

Rangers 4, Red Sox 3
Ned Yost keyed a three-run fourth inning with a two-run single and Texas went on to beat Boston and hand the Red Sox their sixth loss in a row.

Right-hander Danny Darwin settled down after a shaky start and earned the victory in his first decision of the year. Darwin allowed nine hits, just two after the second inning, and struck out seven without walking a batter in eight innings of work. Dave Tobik pitched the ninth for his first save.

"It's frustrating, no question about it," Boston Manager Ralph Houk said after the Red Sox' eighth loss in 11 games. "We're trying to figure why we're not hitting, but so far there are no answers."

Two Days...

routine has impressed Hank Iba and Pete Newell, who between them have coached three United States teams to victory in past Olympics.

"I don't think we've ever had a better process in developing and selecting an Olympic team than we have now," said Newell, coach of the 1960 team.

Iba, who coached Olympic teams in 1964, 1968 and 1972, added, "The organization of the trials here is about the best I've ever (been) around and these people are well-organized, they've got a great group of coaches here working, a fine group of athletes, and I'm sure the selection committee will come on later and do a good job in giving to you the best Olympic team."

Knight, Newell and Iba spoke at a mid-day news conference after Knight and his staff guided 72 invitees through the second day of the trials — which include morning and afternoon practice sessions and night scrimmage games.

"This is an outstanding crop," said Newell about the Olympic hopefuls. "The junior crop on the college level is maybe as good a crop of one-class players as I've ever since 1960, maybe as good as 1960."

That 1960 team included Oscar Robertson and Jerry West, who later went on to greatness in the National Basketball Association.

Newell pointed out that such standouts as John Havlicek, Lenny Wilkens and Tom Meschery didn't make that team and they were "outstanding, great players."

The juniors Newell was talking about include Ewing, the 7-foot center who led Georgetown to this year's NCAA championship and Jordan, the College Player of the Year.

Ewing returned to practice Wednesday after sitting out much of Tuesday's scrimmage game while his sore knees were packed in ice.

Wayman Tisdale, Oklahoma's 6-10 All-American sophomore, was expected back today after missing Wednesday's workouts because of an aggravated Achilles heel.

Steve Black, La Salle guard, missed Tuesday and Wednesday action with a sprained big toe, and Santa Clara's 7-2 Nick Vanos suffered a thigh bruise Tuesday.

Knight said that injuries wouldn't necessarily rule a player off the Olympic team now, pointing out that guard Leon Wood of Fullerton State made the Pan American team last year despite missing those trials because of an ankle injury.

"It would depend on what he's done and what the people involved in the selection process think," Knight said.

Knight, a hard taskmaster while winning two NCAA championships and producing a 398-143 (.736) career mark in 19 years of college coaching, has been impressed with the work of the Olympic hopefuls.

"These players have really worked hard," Knight said. "There are a lot of players out there playing to make the team."

Knight praised the group for being "awfully good in generalities in trying to do those simple things that we have set up as guidelines for them."

Grievance Is Filed

ATLANTA (AP) — Representatives for Atlanta Braves pitcher Pascual Perez and the Major League Players Association filed a grievance Wednesday night against Perez' suspension from baseball until May 16. The Atlanta Contitution reported.

Perez, convicted of cocaine possession charges in the Dominican Republic, received a suspension Tuesday from baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

"Exxon motor oil is standard equipment in this car."

"There's one thing that always goes wherever I go, and that's Exxon motor oil. Why, since I bought this car back in 1971, I've gone 153,000 miles. And you can take my word for it, Exxon Extra has been with me every mile!"
A lot of people have been satisfied with the results they get from Exxon motor oil. Economically priced Exxon Extra is a high-quality 10W/30 multi-grade motor oil. It now contains special friction modifiers that save gas, compared to non-gas-saving motor oils.

And you can find the same gas-saving technology in two other Exxon motor oils. Super-premium Uniflo 10W/40 and XD-3, SAE 30 grade. XD-3 is a heavy-duty motor oil specially suited for diesel as well as gasoline engines.
Given the choice of Exxon's three oils, you can get the gas-saving qualities you want in the motor oil you need.

Harrell Has Broken Leg

HOUSTON (AP) — A broken leg will keep Houston Gamblers running back Sam Harrell, the United States Football League's leading rusher, from playing for four to six weeks, a physician said.

Gamblers orthopedic surgeon Dr. Eddie Matsu said Tuesday that X rays showed Harrell, a former East Carolina player, has several cracks below his knee.

Harrell said he received the injury during a play late in Monday's 35-27 Houston victory at Oakland.

"I stopped to go forward but from behind, my leg felt like it got stuck and I heard a pop. I just went down in pain," Harrell said.

Harrell picked up 154 yards rushing and scored two touchdowns in the Monday game, giving him a league-leading 642 yards rushing and 13 touchdowns.

"We'll miss Sam in terms of yardage and points," General Manager Gene Burrough said.

Reserve running back Todd Fowler is expected to replace Harrell in the Gamblers starting backfield, Burrough said.

Knepper Proves Self

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Bob Knepper had a lot to prove to himself, and he made believers of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I did a lot of thinking in the off-season, but I didn't feel I had to prove anything to anyone but myself," the Houston Astros pitcher said Wednesday after hurling his second straight complete game, a 3-0 victory over the Dodgers. "You can't go through life trying to prove things to other people. I just had to learn to stay within myself and not let outside things bother me."

Last season, Knepper had a 6-13 record and reportedly was on the trading block early this year. But on Wednesday, he tossed a four-hitter, striking out five and retiring 11 batters in a row in one stretch.

In other National League games Wednesday, Pittsburgh defeated Philadelphia 6-3, Atlanta edged Cincinnati 5-4 in 10 innings, New York nipped Montreal 5-4 and St. Louis and Chicago split a doubleheader, St. Louis taking the opener 5-0 and the Cubs winning the nightcap 6-1.

"That's the best game I've ever seen Knepper pitch," Los Angeles Manager Tommy Lasorda said.

Knepper's teammates agreed.

"It's got to make him feel well, and if he pitches well, it's going to do a lot to help this club," said first baseman Ray Knight, whose two-run double drove in two Houston runs in the sixth inning.

Jose Cruz drove in the Astros' first run with a sacrifice fly in the first inning and made two fine running catches in left field, victimizing Mike Marshall in the fourth and seventh innings.

"Those were great catches by Cruz," Lasorda said. "I don't think they demoralized the team, but they were two very fine catches."

Pirates 6, Phillies 3

Tony Pena slammed a two-run homer and Bill Madlock drove in two runs with a pair of hits to power Pittsburgh over Philadelphia. The victory snapped a Pirates' six-game losing streak.

Pena's homer, his third of the season and second in as many games, followed a Jason Thompson single and staked winning pitcher John Candelaria to a 5-3 lead in the third inning.

Garry Maddox homered for the losers before a crowd of 2,752, one of the five smallest since Three Rivers Stadium opened in 1970.

Braves 5, Reds 10

Outfielder Dale Murphy bowled into Cincinnati catcher Dann Bilardello, knocking the ball loose to score Atlanta's winning run in the 10th inning.

Murphy was on second base with two out when Jerry Royster grounded a soft single to left field that set up the home-plate collision.

Walker arrived at home the same time Murphy did. The collision knocked it loose from Bilardello's glove, sending the Braves to only their fourth victory in 12 games.

Claudell Washington slammed two homers to drive in four runs in the first two innings for Atlanta.

Mets 5, Expos 4

A two-out, bases-loaded double in the ninth inning by Wally Backman lifted New York to a 5-4 victory over Montreal and snapped a three-game Mets losing string.

Darryl Strawberry led off the inning with a single and, after two were out, stole second before reliever Jeff Reardon walked John Gibbons and pinch-hitter Ron Hodges to load the bases. Backman then hit a soft liner into the left field corner off Gary Lewis, scoring Strawberry and Gibbons.

Hubie Brooks homered for the Mets, while Tim Lincecum slammed a home run for Montreal.

Cardinals 5-1, Cubs 0-6

Bill Buckner and Jody Davis delivered key hits in a four-run sixth inning to lead Chicago to victory in the second game and give the Cubs a split of their doubleheader with St. Louis.

Joaquin Andujar checked the Cubs on five hits and David Green drove in three runs with a single and a two-run homer.

New Scholarship Fund For Minorities Begun

ECU News Bureau
A new scholarship fund for minority students at East Carolina University was introduced and three scholarships were awarded during ceremonies at the first ECU Black Scholarship and Fund-Raising Benefit held recently at the American Legion Post.

The Ledonia S. Wright Memorial Scholarship Fund was established with a $2,000 gift presented to Angelo Volpe, ECU vice chancellor for academic affairs. The fund honors the late Ledonia Wright, an ECU faculty member and active supporter of minority students prior to her death in 1976.

Scholarships were awarded to Willis Privott and Madge Barnes, both second-year medical students, and Belinda Atkinson, a nursing major.

The benefit was sponsored by the ECU Organization of Black Faculty and Staff, the ECU Black Alumni Chapter, and citizens of the Pitt-Greenville black community.

Entertainment for the evening included music and dance by local artists and featured an original score written and performed by Dr. Edward Bonnemere of New York, assisted by Beaufort County Community College visiting artist Mario Hunter, a clarinetist.

A reception followed the entertainment and scholarship presentations.

Need More Than New President: Jackson

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Democratic Presidential candidate Jesse Jackson lashed out at violence abroad and at home during a campaign swing through North Carolina.

The Rev. Jackson returned Wednesday to Greensboro and his old college community to illustrate progress in his battle for social change and called for justice for all people.

Jackson said it was with "tragedy, hurt and pain" that he heard of the acquittal this week of Nazis and Ku Klux Klansmen charged with civil rights violations in the shooting deaths of five anti-Klan demonstrators.

"For those people to be murdered as they were murdered in cold blood in the daylight threatens everybody in a free society," he told reporters after landing at Greensboro Regional Airport.

"We cannot rest until we are afforded equal protection under the law. Never should our race, our sex, our religion or our politics be used as punitive measures against our basic civil rights."

Jackson then went to his alma mater, North Carolina A&T State University, where a crowd of students greeted him with cheers of "Welcome home, Jesse."

At Jackson's side was a 69-year-old white retired police captain, William Jackson, who arrested Jesse Jackson on the steps of a church several hundred yards from campus during a Sunday demonstration in the 1960s.

Jesse Jackson said it was on that day "I resolved to spend the rest of my life fighting for social change and social justice."

Jackson said he respected the police captain then and said his appearance Wednesday "represents the change and transition that come when people work out a common agenda."

In a speech in Winston-Salem later in the day to more than 2,600 supporters, Jackson said the U.S. needs more than a new president to remove an "evil spirit" that has treated some Americans unfairly.

"Our nation needs more than a new president," Jackson said at a rally at the Winston-Salem convention center. "It needs a new direction. It needs a new power."

Jackson told the crowd of 3,500 that the country needs to train young people to do good rather than kill.

"Don't train our youths to kill and be killed," Jackson said. Youths are being killed overseas in international skirmishes and in American cities like Greensboro and New York, he said.

Jackson said eight million more people are in poverty than when President Reagan took office. He said school breakfast and lunch programs, food stamps, job training and prenatal care for poor mothers have been cut back.

He said that the cutbacks affect all people and that he believed those "locked-out" Americans will turn to him.

"We as a nation must look at the danger and look at the peril and come together, for our survival is at stake," he said.

He said there are many other problems the next president must deal with, including the loss of textile jobs in states like North Carolina, the production of hazardous wastes and the failure to provide women equal protection under the law.

In North Carolina, he said, leaders must deal with problems such as the second runoff system, gerrymandering, annexation and at-large election systems that undercut the right to vote.

"Don't despair, vote for me," Jackson said. "Leaders must have a mission, leaders must have a way out."

Jackson told voters to look at his record and compare it with his foes — Gary Hart and Walter Mondale.

"These men are advocates. I'm a man of action," he said.

Jackson said his candidacy represents "a great chance for North Carolina to put the nation on a new course, to organize a new coalition this year." He said he had a chance to win, citing his strong showings in Virginia and South Carolina.

Jackson also appeared briefly at Bennett College in Greensboro and at a Democratic caucus on Social Security disabilities before attending a night rally in Winston-Salem.

Jackson told the audience at the caucus, many of whom were wheelchair bound, that they were bona fide members of the rainbow coalition.

"You fit in this crusade," he said, referring to his appeal to blacks, Hispanics, Indians, the poor, the elderly and other groups.

He said American life is not a blanket, but a "quilt made up of many colors and sizes, and bound by a common thread. Everybody fits somewhere. Everybody is someone."

Jackson reminded the audience that America's most "socially sensitive" president, Franklin Roosevelt, was handicapped. He urged them to act as Roosevelt did, and run for office.

"Your time has come," Jackson said, urging the group to demonstrate their demands.

Blinking Light

Insured Rescue

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Asheville Police Officer Pat Hefner says a blinking light over an apartment door led him to the rescue of an elderly woman overcome by smoke in her burning home.

Hefner noticed the light on his first pass through an apartment complex early Wednesday morning, and on the second pass of the building saw smoke billowing from the door of the apartment.

He radioed the station, then went to the apartment and pushed open the door.

"The smoke hit me in the face," he said. "I couldn't see much of the blaze because the smoke was so heavy. But I did see an elderly lady lying on the floor."

"Then, stupid me," he said, "I just went in there and dragged her out to the sidewalk. I had to go in there and get her. It's really part of the job — to serve and protect, and I was serving and protecting."

Katheline Farkas, 62, was taken to Memorial Mission Hospital for observation. She had regained consciousness after being pulled from the smoke-filled room.

Asheville fire officials said the fire was caused by a lit cigarette on a mattress.

Navies Testing New Ships

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet navy is testing the "Caspian Monster," a Buck Rogers-style surface skimmer designed to whisk assault battalions on their way to surprise attacks, a Jane's yearbook reported today.

Also being developed by the Soviets are hovercraft warships to build a high-speed fleet by the year 2000, said Jane's, which publishes authoritative source books on military systems.

Ray McLeavy, editor of Jane's Surface Skimmers, said the U.S. Navy is moving towards its own version of the "Monster," which cruises over water at heights of between 11 to 46 feet.

The craft, with speeds of up to 345 mph, or 300 knots, would radically alter the rapid deployment concept and allow commanders to swiftly land large numbers of assault troops with battle tanks and full support almost anywhere in the world within days.

In the West, the name of the strange-looking craft, a jet-powered fuselage with stubby wings, is a mouthful — power-augmented-ram wing-in-ground effect machine or PAR-WIG. The Soviets call it an Ekranoplan, but it has gained the nickname "Caspian Monster" because it is being tested on the Caspian Sea.

The Americans see PAR-WIG as "a possible alternative to the C-5A heavy transport aircraft" that airlifts the Rapid Deployment Force, McLeavy said.

He said PAR-WIG would have a greater range and be able to carry a heavier payload than the C-5 Galaxy, the biggest military plane in service in the world.

McLeavy noted: "From bases on the U.S. east and west coasts, these craft could reach almost any coastline in the world in three or four days."

He added: "Had a squadron of PAR-WIGS been available at the time of the Falkland Islands campaign, reinforcement from the United Kingdom could have reached the islands in almost the same number of hours as it took days for the slow-moving conventional ships to complete the voyage."

It took British ships sent to recapture the South Atlantic islands from Argentina in 1982 three weeks to make the 8,000-mile trip.

The Soviet navy's "Caspian Monster" has eight turbine engines mounted on stub wings plus two booster jets on the tail.

At take-off, the thrust from the eight forward engines is deflected downwards to create a cushion of pressure under the wings. Once airborne, the exhausts are directed above the wings' upper surfaces to create additional lift.

McLeavy estimated the "Monster" can carry a 94-ton payload. "On this basis, early claims it can carry 900 or more fully armed troops are probably correct," he said.

The architect of the Soviet's rapidly expanding fleet and the navy's commander, Adm. Sergei Gorskov, noted recently: "Compared with surface effect ships (large hovercraft), ram-wing vessels will have greater speed, expend less energy and hence, other things being equal, be capable of greater range of operations."

Nevertheless, the Soviets, who have been experimenting with PAR-WIGs for a quarter-century, and the Americans are pressing ahead with hovercraft designs, McLeavy said.

"A large number of future large surface effect ships will be warships designed for speeds of 40 to 80 knots (46 to 92 mph)," he said.

McLeavy estimated the Soviets have up to 10,000 hovercraft, mainly in Siberia on oil and gas projects and as all-weather freighters that can function even when the northern ports are iced in.

"In the Soviet Union," he said, "there is a growing realization that hovercraft are more versatile and viable than was first imagined."

The Soviet navy has 270-ton amphibious hovercraft assault ships that can carry up to four tanks and a company of commandos, Jane's reported.

The U.S. Navy is aiming to develop 92-mph frigates weighing as much as 13,000 tons, it noted.

McLeavy said the U.S. Navy's "enthusiasm for multi-thousand-ton surface effect ships has been revived" by the success of the 200-ton

Bell Halter SES-200, a corvette-sized anti-submarine hunter.

Other hovercraft warships are being developed by France, the Netherlands, China and South Korea, Jane's added.

Raids Criticized By State Dept.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department has condemned "in the strongest possible terms" recent Vietnamese raids against heavily populated settlements along the Thai-Cambodian border.

The attacks "highlight the threat to Thailand's security posed by Vietnam's occupation of Cambodia," department spokesman John Hughes said.

The statement came four days after President Reagan announced the sale of 40 more U.S. tanks to Thailand.

Big Auto Profits Bode Well For The Industry

By JAMES REINDL
Associated Press Writer
HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. (AP) — Chrysler Corp.'s record $705.8 million profit in the first quarter of 1984 bodes well for the auto industry and probably whets the appetites of union workers, an industry analyst said.

"This will be certainly a record year," Arvid Jouppi, a Detroit-based independent auto analyst, said Wednesday after the company announced its earnings.

"And immediately it's going to create an extremely difficult negotiating problem for the companies, who are thinking more in terms of hold the line than to accede to the Bieber declaration that we want to make up in 1984 and more," Jouppi said, referring to the stated demands of United Auto Workers union President Owen Bieber.

Jouppi said Chrysler's performance was a good sign for the industry and predicted auto profits would top $9 billion this year.

UAW contracts with Ford Motor Co. and General Motors Corp. expire on Sept. 14, and the union has said it expects to be repaid for concessions made during the industry's recent slump.

But Chrysler Chairman Lee Iacocca said he is not concerned about negotiations with the UAW, which made concessions to help Chrysler avert bankruptcy in 1979.

UAW contracts with Chrysler expire in the fall of 1985, along with the union's pact with American Motors Corp.

"I'm not going to worry about labor until the fall of 1985," Iacocca said during a news conference at Chrysler headquarters. "So that's not a cloud on my horizon; the economy is, labor is not."

Iacocca said the company earned more in the first quarter than it had in any year in history. The No. 3 domestic automaker earned $701 million in all of 1983, only its second profitable year since 1979.

The 60-year-old company lost $1.7 billion in 1982 after an infusion of federally guaranteed loans, which the company repaid last year.

"We know what we're doing, and don't anybody report that $706 million was a flash in the pan. It took five years of bleeding," Iacocca said.

Several auto industry analysts said Wednesday that Chrysler was earning at capacity levels, meaning it was producing as many vehicles as possible and selling them.

"I think it's about as good as it can be," said David Healy, an analyst with the New York investment house of Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. "They produced just about every vehicle they could at capacity, the prices were good and the product mix was good."

"Everything was going this time," Jouppi said, citing consumer demand for high-priced, option-loaded vehicles and lower interest rates as additional stimuli for auto sales.

The first-quarter earnings were equivalent to $5.64 per share and compared with $172.1 million, or $1.97 per share, earned in the same quarter a year ago, Chrysler said.

The quarterly earnings included tax credits carried forward from previous unprofitable years, the company said in a statement.

The company said its first-quarter performance was based on a 58 percent increase in sales from $3.1 billion in the 1983 period to a record $4.9 billion.

Chrysler's previous sales record was $4.1 billion in the second quarter of 1976 and its best quarterly profit had been $310.3 million in the second quarter last year. Productivity has increased from 10.2 vehicles per employee in 1982 to 15.8 last year and 19.3 vehicles per employee in the first quarter, Iacocca said.

Jobs Open To Seniors

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP) — College seniors this spring are getting 30 percent more job offers from business recruiters than their counterparts did last year, as the economy continues improving, a national survey shows.

The College Placement Council Inc. which represents career placement offices across the nation, revealed its findings after surveying 162 colleges nationwide.

"That doesn't necessarily mean the number of jobs is up 30 percent," CPC spokeswoman Linda Pengilly said. "But it does indicate the economy's recovery is finally affecting recruiting."

The survey, conducted by the Bethlehem-based firm from September 1983 to March 1984, showed that recruiters' interview schedules were full and starting salary offers were generally stable, Ms. Pengilly said.

The starting salary offers for petroleum engineers averaged $30,336, a drop of 1.6 percent from 1983, she said. But chemical engineers could expect about $27,276, a 2 percent increase, and accounting majors averaged $19,464, a 3.67 percent gain. "With inflation under control, not all employers are feeling pressure to increase starting salaries," Ms. Pengilly said. "And some companies have just pulled out of lean times and can't afford to. Employers seem to be back in control of salaries."

"After scraping to find jobs last year, many students have come into this year's market with more modest expectations," she said.

At Lehigh University in Bethlehem, placement officials concurred with the survey's findings.

Larry Sechney, Lehigh's assistant director of career planning and placement services, said the number of employers holding campus interviews was up 10 percent in the fall of 1983 from the previous fall.

As of Sunday, he said, 222 of Lehigh's 1,000 seniors had reported 412 job offers to the placement office. The figures represent 29 percent more students reporting 36 more job offers than was indicated at mid-April last year, he said.

"The figures are looking to be rather significant," Sechney said. "We're seeing an upswing."

Lively Jaycee Debate Before Supreme Court

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Jaycees should be allowed to remain a males-only organization so women won't be able to take control of it, an attorney for the group has indicated to the Supreme Court.

Jaycees lawyer Carl Hall Jr., of Tulsa, Okla., told the court that members of private organizations have a right to associate with whom they choose.

He then responded affirmatively when Justice Thurgood Marshall asked: "Aren't you just afraid that women will take over?"

The court held a lively one-hour debate Wednesday over sex discrimination and private groups' freedom of association.

It is expected to announce a decision by July on whether states may force the Jaycees — and perhaps other men-only groups — to admit women as full members.

Wednesday's argument featured some sharp questioning of Hall by Justice Sandra Day O'Connor.

She asked whether women seeking membership in the Jaycees are in a similar position to blacks, in an earlier day, who wanted the freedom to eat at the restaurant of their choice.

Hall said "sharing a plate of food in a restaurant" does not involve the right of free association.

Mrs. O'Connor snapped, "Don't you think the same arguments were made" in behalf of segregated public facilities?

Hall contended that the Jaycees "is simply not a business," but rather a private club that should be immune from the Minnesota anti-discrimination law.

The U.S. Jaycees, with about 300,000 members in 7,000 chapters, was founded as the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce in 1920.

It restricts full membership to men ages 18 to 35, allowing women only to be associate members who may not vote in Jaycees elections or hold office.

Carolyn Gigstad of the U.S. Jaycee Women, an auxiliary of the main organization, said in a telephone interview, "We believe that the best way to make positive and progressive change for women is within the structure of a women's organization."

"We feel like we're equal if not better," she said. "But don't print that because I'll get in trouble."

The Jaycees' restrictive membership policy has survived numerous constitutional lawsuits by feminist groups.

But in the mid-1970's, Jaycees chapters in Minnesota admitted women as full members. As a result, the national organization in Tulsa revoked the charter of the St. Paul chapter. Other local Minnesota chapters reverted to a male-only policy.

By barring women the Minnesota chapters violated a state law prohibiting a "public accommodation" from discriminating on the basis of sex.

After a federal appeals court ruled last June that the Jaycees, under the Constitution's right of free association, may exclude women, state officials sought Supreme Court review.

During Wednesday's hearing, some justices expressed doubts that forcing the Jaycees to admit women would jeopardize the group's free-expression rights.

Justice William H. Rehnquist said there is no evidence the organization has taken positions on national issues that would be changed if women were admitted.

"It doesn't make sense to require the Jaycees to take such positions to show how anti-women they are," said Hall, the Jaycees lawyer. "I think we have a constitutional right to have an organization that supports men's interests."

He added that a fundamental Jaycees goal is to train young men for leadership "for the betterment of society."

When Hall said "young men are developed by running projects. They learn by doing," Mrs. O'Connor interjected, "and women would benefit exactly the same way."

Richard L. Varco, a special assistant attorney general for Minnesota, argued that the state was not trying to regulate "content-based speech" by forcing the Jaycees to admit women.

The organization holds divergent views that are not closely identified with the gender of its members, Varco said. Members are not subject to any "political litmus test," he added.

The Jaycees have fought off lawsuits in Alaska and the District of Columbia aimed at forcing the admission of women. Other court cases are pending in California and Massachusetts, and state administrative proceedings are under way in Iowa and Pennsylvania.

Women's rights organizations said what is at stake in the controversy is access for women to "the network of business contacts and opportunities that the Jaycees offers."

Small Company Thinks Big

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pierre Cossette Productions is a small television shop in every area except one — its optimistic vision.

Pierre Cossette is chairman and chief cheerleader of his production company, which employs 11 full-time staffers and is best known in TV circles for launching the syndicated series "Sha Na Na" and producing for CBS each year the Grammy and People's Choice awards broadcasts.

This is a mom-and-pop operation that stocks its cookie jar with ideas. This past season, most of them didn't get network nibbles.

"We have ideas, but we don't have 20 good ideas," said Cossette. "But we'll keep plugging away. In this business, if you can develop one good idea out of 10, you're going to be successful."

Cossette managed to get more than 40 hours of his programs on the air in the 1983-84 season, not including the 100 half-hour episodes of "Sha Na Na" that still can be seen in some markets. (The big money for producers is in syndication and reruns.)

Some of Cossette's broadcasts this past season included his annual award shows, reruns of the network TV movies "Alcatraz," "The Promise of Love," and "The New Adventures of Heidi," reruns of the syndicated "Glen Campbell Music Show" and a Jerry Lee Lewis special for cable TV.

"For an independent producer, we had a good year," said Cossette, who also makes money from his music-publishing business and concerts. "We're a small production house in a business where there are no medium production companies. The next level of independents are large ones: Lorimar ("Dallas," "Falcon Crest") and MTM ("Hill Street Blues," "The Duck Factory.")

"One problem we don't have is cash flow," he added. "This is a low-overhead company." (It doesn't hurt that Cossette owns the company's office building.) He cites his company's gross revenues at $20 million last year, and jokes that his net was "75 or 80 dollars."

Last summer, Cossette was his usual enthusiastic self in describing the 20 or so TV projects that were on the front burner. The fact that none was picked up won't deter the irrepressible Cossette from pitching an additional two dozen next season.

Recently, Cossette offered a case-by-case post-mortem of his 1983-84 projects:

"Boxcar Willie." Last summer, Cossette envisioned a cable program "about America's favorite hobo. I see Boxcar Willie as the Arthur Godfrey of cable. He'll go all over the country, singing and talking with people."

"We made the pilot and it went into the toilet," Cossette said in retrospect. "It was an idea that missed. We never took it anywhere to sell. We lost between $40,000 and $50,000 on it."

"Rambling Willie," a true story about an old harness horse whose winnings go to a church. "It failed to sell to all three networks as a movie of the week, but we're still trying," Cossette said.

"Horse Patrol," which Cossette called a "CHiPs" on horseback. "We couldn't sell it. It never made it to pilot."

"Family of the Year," a weekly series chronicling America's most exemplary families. "Procter & Gamble liked it, but the networks considered it too soft," Cossette said. "It looks weak, but I'm considering syndication. Cable can't afford a show like this."

"Policeman of the Year." "It went the same route as 'Family of the Year,'" Cossette said.

A Kris Kristofferson special for Showtime. "Kris didn't want to do it."

"The John Madden Show." The idea was to have the former pro-football coach and current CBS Sports commentator as host of a variety show. "We couldn't get Madden to sit still long enough to commit him."

"Eavesdropping," an afternoon talk show about women, with Jill St. John as hostess. "It never got off the ground," Cossette said.

"McQueen." Cossette bought the rights to the biography of Steve McQueen for a possible TV movie, but he dropped the project when McQueen's widow said she didn't want it done.

"Bobby's Girls," about a divorced woman and her two daughters who are financially supported by a dog, famous for his TV commercials. "We've never had a network sitcom, and we still don't," said Cossette. "We talked to Paramount and NBC, but we couldn't put it together."

"Zapata & Murphy," a sitcom about two 11-year-old street hustlers, one Mexican and one American who go to school together and have a business together. "The networks didn't like the concept, so we dropped it."

Hundreds At Wake For Slain

NEW YORK (AP) — They came by the dozen, the curious and the bereaved, to stand over 10 white caskets in a wreath-decorated funeral parlor and pay final respects to eight children and two women who were gunned down on Palm Sunday.

Some clapped and some cried at Wednesday's wake for the victims, who were fatally shot while watching television in their Brooklyn home a few blocks away. Detectives, meanwhile, continued to investigate the crime they say may have been drug-related.

Sources in the investigation told the New York Daily News that Enrique Bermudez, a 40-year-old drug dealer and father of two of the victims, had been a police informer following his arrest in 1974.

According to the source, who was not identified, the slayings were drug-related but tied to "a much older incident" and not any recent events.

Hundreds of people jammed into Juan's Funeral Home, where the caskets were laid out in a neat oval. In each casket was a bronze cross with rosary beads and a bronze plaque with the victim's name and date of death — April 15, 1984.

Olga Bermudez approached the casket containing the body of her niece, Betsy Bermudez. "Angel mine, angel mine," she said, crying and placing her hand on the girl's temple.

Investigators said they were trying to determine whether the killings were a form of retaliation against Bermudez, 34, Olga's brother and the father of Betsy and one other young victim. He was convicted in 1974 of selling cocaine, and police speculated the crime could have been revenge for a drug deal gone bad.

Bermudez attended the wake, standing and weeping beside the casket of Virginia Lopez, the woman with whom he was living, and the 6-month-old fetus she was carrying when she was killed.

"I really have nothing to say. I don't want to talk to police," Bermudez, who was questioned by authorities, told the Daily News. "I don't want to talk to them because I know nothing."

Carmen Lesser, another sister of Bermudez, said the claim that he may have been the reason for the murders "does not serve our brother."

To merit such punishment, she said, Bermudez would "have to be a heavy drug dealer. You have to look at his house. He has nothing."

She said the shootings were a case of mistaken identity and that the intended victims were prior residents of the first-floor apartment. She said the family living on the second floor told her one of the previous occupants had come upstairs and threatened to kill them.

Milk sugar and foil wrappers, both described by police as drug paraphernalia, were found in the home. But police Sgt. Peter Sweeney denied a report that traces of cocaine were found.

Many of those at Wednesday's wake appeared to be there out of curiosity. People lined up behind police barricades across from the funeral home and charged across the street with a cheer when told they would be allowed inside.

"Most of these people just want to see the people who died," explained Lisa Lopez, 15, who said she knew Maria Isabel, a 10-year-old victim.

 Today's Cryptoquip clue: S equals R

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

As declarer, it is wise to assume that the players to your left and right are trying their best to defeat you. (Those of you who claim that the player opposite you is also in on the act should find another game.) So if one of them suddenly turns round and tries to help you, you might want to ask yourself why this change of heart.

Four spades was a perfectly normal contract. Since South had no intention of playing anywhere else, the jump to game was a textbook bid.

West led the ace of diamonds and continued with a low diamond. East ruffed and dutifully returned a club to his partner's ace to complete the defensive book. Now West shifted to a heart.

Delighted to find himself in dummy, declarer wasted no time in taking the trump finesse. West gratefully won the singleton king for down one, and was quite content to concede the rest of the tricks to declarer.

South was rather naive to think that the trump finesse was going to work. If East did indeed have the king of trumps, West could have insured the contract's defeat by simply continuing with a

Going Dutch
 The Netherlands formally recognized the new United States republic on this day in 1782. That nation was the second to grant diplomatic recognition to the U.S. and we have maintained continuously peaceful relations with it longer than with any other nation. More than two-fifths of the Netherlands was once covered by water. Rotterdam is the world's largest seaport, handling more cargo yearly than any other.

Halt Unfinished Nuclear Plant

By The Associated Press
 Protesters said they would continue to fight California's Diablo Canyon nuclear plant even as workers prepared today to activate its first giant reactor, but money problems halted all construction at the equally controversial Seabrook plant in New Hampshire.

A spokesman for the utility with the largest share in the twin-reactor Seabrook project said it was uncertain if the shutdown could keep Public Service Co. of New Hampshire from bankruptcy.

In San Francisco, cheers went up at a shareholders meeting at Pacific Gas & Electric Co., owner of the $5.9 billion Diablo plant, as word arrived Wednesday that a federal appeals court in Washington had rejected opponents' latest bid to block the long-delayed start-up.

better," said PG&E chairman Frederick W. Mielke Jr.

Diablo Canyon, site of 482 arrests since January, received a low-power license 2 1/2 years ago, but that was suspended two months later when design flaws were discovered. Last week the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, citing modifications and improvements, voted to let the utility bring the 1,084-megawatt Unit 1 reactor up to 5 percent of capacity.

PG&E spokesman George Sarkisian said Wednesday that crews had started preparing the plant to "go critical within the next few days" as control rods are lifted gradually to start a nuclear chain reaction from the 16-foot-long rods of uranium fuel in the reactor's core.

In New Hampshire, Public Service Co. announced it had laid off all but 1,000 of 6,200 workers at Seabrook, scene of numerous protests.

The utility, which is managing construction for several New England power companies, estimated the shutdown would save $750,000 a day. In the meantime, the company will continue to look for financing.

The shutdown "doesn't eliminate our need to reach an agreement with our credit bankers," spokesman Nicholas Ashooh said.

"We are still working to avoid filing for protection, but I couldn't characterize how close we are or are not to that event," Ashooh said.

Seabrook's estimated cost has risen from the original $850 million in 1968 to a newly projected $6.9 billion for both reactors — down from a $9 billion estimate announced March 1.

Construction manager William Derrickson, hired March 1 after finishing a Florida reactor in record time, said his new $6.9 billion estimate depended on an "aggressive" construction schedule and a "substantial reduction" in non-manual labor costs.

But the fate of Unit 2 remains "uncertain at best," Derrickson said. Work on it has been virtually stopped since last September, and the owners voted in March to cancel it but to help Public Service of New Hampshire recover a $300 million investment in the unit.

In California, Mielke said Diablo Canyon's Unit 1 might go to full power by early summer by "if all goes smoothly."

Outside the Diablo Canyon plant, located about halfway between Los Angeles and San Francisco near San Luis Obispo, protesters continued a round-the-clock vigil in the rain.

One woman was charged Wednesday with trespassing, bringing the arrests since the vigil began in January to 482, according to San Luis Obispo County Sheriff's Sgt. Leon Cole.

"Many people will continue to work to make sure Diablo never goes past low power," said Pam Metcalf of the Abalone Alliance, a coalition of anti-nuclear groups.

The final barrier to the Diablo start-up was cleared Wednesday when three judges of the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington rejected a request by a group called Mothers for Peace for another delay.

Work on Diablo Canyon, initially expected to cost $1 billion, began in 1969, but four years later an offshore earthquake fault was discovered 3 miles away. In 1975, when the plant was originally expected to have begun operations, the NRC ordered it redesigned to withstand greater stress.

The operating license was approved in 1981, but was suspended two months later when officials discovered that design drawings for the seismic supports for the plants two reactors had been reversed.

For the New Hampshire utility, the big question was when the construction might resume on Seabrook. Derrickson, asked if the laid-off workers were told when they might return, replied, "They were not, because we don't know."

Call For Action On Child Support

By F. ALAN BOYCE
 Associated Press Writer
 CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Though some fathers with dependent children face serious financial obligation, a panel of experts say the fathers are often in better shape than before a divorce and could often afford to pay more in child support.

Addressing a University of North Carolina symposium, Ron Haskins, associate director of the Bush Institute for Child and Family Policy, said some fathers face "serious financial obligations" or have formed second families. He added that others avoid payments out of bitterness toward their wives or because of problems visiting their children.

Despite the problems faced by absent fathers, Haskins said, "Following divorce, fathers are better off financially than they were before divorce, while mothers and children are far worse off."

Haskins said preliminary studies at the center indicate fathers could pay more than courts generally award. He said court awards tend to vary by state and need to be replaced with independent agencies to make them more equitable.

"Too many children with a living absent father are poor," said Haskins. "Any system based on monthly checks from fathers is destined for failure."

Haskins cited U.S. Bureau of Census reports showing that of four million mothers due child support in 1981, 47 percent received the full amount, 25 percent got partial payment and 28 percent received nothing. Of $9.9 billion in support due that year, $6.1 billion was actually paid, he said.

The average amount paid in 1981 was $1,510, while average payments due came to $2,460.

Haskins and John Akins, an economist at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, said some absent fathers could probably afford as much as $5,000 in payments.

"There's a lot of money out there that could reasonably be collected and given to children who need help," Akins said.

The panelists said federal legislation unanimously passed by the House may help bolster child support laws. The bill would provide more financial incentives to states for collecting child support from middle and upper income fathers. Now such incentives go mostly to collections from low-income families who receive Aid to Families With Dependent Children.

The law would also require states to take money from the paychecks of absent fathers who are behind on payments and would encourage voluntary withholding in all child support cases.

Akins said in 1981, six million families had children eligible for child support. He said 50 percent of children with a female head of household lived in poverty, and 57 percent of all children in poverty came from father-absent homes.

Find Generation Gap is Closing

NEW YORK (UPI) — The generation gap between teenagers and their parents has closed, a new study suggests. Research conducted by Seventeen magazine found more than eight out of 10 teens said they agreed with their parents on politics and religion. Fifty-nine percent of the readers who responded to a questionnaire said they basically agreed with their parents about moral issues such as sex, and 70 percent said their parents agreed with their plans for the future.
