Approve Issuance Greenville Bonds

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Orders authorizing the issuance of nearly $1 million in bonds, including $574,000 for street improvement funding, were adopted Tuesday during a reconvened meeting of the City Council.

The board, which approved the first reading of four separate bond orders earlier this month and then adjourned that meeting, held second readings Monday following a public hearing.

The orders authorize the issuance of $140,000 library bonds, $132,000 cemetery bonds and $80,000 land acquisition bonds, as well as the street bonds which will provide funds for improvements, including reconstruction and resurfacing and the installation of traffic controls, signals and markers.

City Manager Gail Meeks had said the bond order funds will be used for the acquisition of land for an additional cemetery as well as for the purchase of land for another city fire and rescue station. Revenues for the construction of an addition to the Children's Room at Sheppard Memorial Library and for acquisition of land, rights of way, furnishings and equipment relative to the facility are also projected.

The council approved Joyner Drywall as the low bidder ($26,358) for rehabilitation, repairs and improvements on a city-owned structure at 1300 Clark Street and authorized Mayor Janice Buck to execute a contract for the work.

Mrs. Buck was also authorized to execute a contract with the vocational program at Rose High School to provide rehabilitation work on a city-owned structure at 503 W. 13th St.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the submission of an application to the National Park Service for a $45,000 land and water conservation grant. The funds, which would be matched by the city, are targeted toward recreational development of lots set aside in section five of Westhaven subdivision for that purpose and for an outdoor stage for the "Sunday in the Park" entertainment series at the Town Common.

Mrs. Meeks said the funds to match the federal grant have been available for several years under a recreational land acquisition program account.

Council members adopted an amendment of the 1983-84 city budget covering the city's $500 contribution to the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce's "Industry Appreciation Day" activities.

Libyan Killer Said Still Inside Embassy

LONDON (AP) — Witnesses saw someone inside the Libyan Embassy fire at protesters outside, and the gunman — who killed a policewoman — is still in the besieged building, a police commander told an inquest today.

Commander Bill Huckleby, who heads Scotland Yard's anti-terrorist squad, said witnesses reported seeing "smoke and flames coming from the barrel of the gun."

He appeared at an inquest into the death of Constable Yvonne Fletcher, who was shot April 17. Eleven people protesting the regime of Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy were injured in the shooting.

"I believe the person or persons responsible for the shooting are still inside the bureau and every effort is being made to identify this person," Huckleby told the inquest.

Sources close to the investigation said today that Britain plans to expel about 200 Libyans by midnight

Sunday, including as many as 42 believed to be in the embassy. Those to be expelled include as many as 22 accredited diplomats and 20 non-accredited Libyans, plus their families and domestic staff, said the sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified.

Britain broke diplomatic relations with Libya on Sunday and gave the embassy staff a week to leave the country.

The sources also said investigators believe the gun used in the April 17 shooting was a Soviet-made Kalashnikov rifle.

In Washington, Reagan administration sources said the Libyan government had sent orders to its London embassy to fire on the demonstrators several hours before the shooting took place.

The message from Libya was intercepted by the British, but the officials were unable to relay the information in time to avert the violence, the sources said Tuesday night.

British authorities insist the shots came through a first-floor window of the embassy building, in St. James's Square. Libyan officials at first said the embassy had acted in self-defense but later denied that anyone in the embassy had fired shots.

Citing diplomatic privilege, the Libyans have refused to let British investigators inside to try to find the killer.

Three envoys of Khadafy met with British officials today to discuss details on the evacuation of the embassy, which has been ringed by police sharpshooters since the attack.

Huckleby, the first Scotland Yard member to testify on the shooting, said: "Several eyewitnesses said they saw an automatic or semi-automatic firearm being pointed from a first-floor window of the Libyan People's Bureau, with smoke and flames coming from the barrel of the weapon."

Miss Fletcher, who was facing masked demonstrators chanting anti-Khadafy slogans, had her back to the embassy and "was shot in the back by one bullet," he said.

Dr. Iain West, consulting forensic pathologist at St. Thomas's Medical School, said she died from a high-velocity automatic firearm wound in the abdomen. The inquest was adjourned until May 2.

Since the attack, Huckleby said, several hundred people have been questioned, 200 statements taken and 18 people detained.

On Tuesday, British authorities expelled the personal representative of Khadafy from London, arrested another Khadafy lieutenant and detained eight Libyan students at London's Heathrow Airport. One of the students was ordered deported as an "unsatisfactory student" and the other seven were still being questioned, a Home Office spokesman said today.

Also, 15 Libyans arriving at the airport today were detained, the spokesman said.

Violent Price Rioting In Santo Domingo Claims 31

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Troopers set up steel barricades today to seal off a burned and looted business district, and the death toll from two days of rioting over food price increases rose to at least 31.

Police and soldiers used bullets and rifle butts Tuesday in their clashes with the rioters. It was the bloodiest violence since the nation's 1965 civil war.

At least 26 deaths were reported in four cities Tuesday, according to figures from police, hospital officials and witnesses. There were unconfirmed reports of several more deaths, and hundreds were hospitalized around the country.

Five people, including a policeman, were killed Monday when the riots first broke out. Police reported about 300 arrests Monday, but refused to give figures for Tuesday.

Police and military troopers fired on rioters or clubbed them with rifle butts as street violence persisted into the early hours today.

The troopers, armed with automatic weapons and tear gas grenades, used steel barricades to seal off the historic "old city" business section of Santo Domingo where scores of shops and supermarkets had been ravaged by arsonists and looters.

Flames from burning buildings, buses and automobiles lit up the old city in the pre-dawn and periodic bursts of automatic weapons fire echoed in the streets. There was virtually no car traffic.

Authorities Tuesday shut down a radio station in Santo Domingo, the capital, and in Santiago, the Caribbean nation's second largest city 80 miles to the northwest. A Santo Domingo television station also was shut down and a TV commentator was arrested.

No charges were immediately filed against the commentator, but all three stations were accused by the government prosecutor of "alarming" the populace.

Tuesday's death toll included 14 people in Santo Domingo, six in Santiago, five in San Francisco de Macoris, 80 miles north of the capital, and one in San Cristobal, eight miles west of the capital.

Schools were ordered closed, although the heads of the army and navy met with police leaders Tuesday and claimed they were "in control of the situation."

A government spokesman said the situation was "still being analyzed" by President Salvador Jorge Blanco, who had made no public statements since the riots began.

Members of the governing Social Democratic Party met, and party leader Jose Francisco Pena Gomez accused extreme leftist and rightist parties of fomenting the riots. He said his party would match them "blow for blow," but did not elaborate.

Five labor unions called strikes Tuesday. On Monday, businessmen had staged a one-day strike to protest the price increases announced last week by Jorge Blanco as part of terms for a loan from the International Monetary Fund.

Tax Boost Up To Voters: Ingram

John Ingram, a candidate for the Democratic nomination as governor, pledged at a news conference here this afternoon not to increase taxes without a vote of the people in North Carolina during his term of office.

"The major problems facing the households of North Carolina can be cured by letting the working men and women of our state keep more of their paychecks," and "that means they deserve a freeze on state taxes," Ingram said in a statement prepared for the news conference.

"For our working families and small businesses to really recover from the recent recession, North Carolina needs a governor who will fight for a tax freeze which will not be lifted without a vote of the people."

"John Ingram will be that kind of governor," the candidate said. Other gubernatorial candidates have stated they do not believe new taxes are necessary, but Ingram is the first to pledge a total freeze on state taxes if elected.

Ingram, who has served for the past 12 years as the state's elected insurance commissioner outlined three major points of his tax freeze plan: running state government on a balanced budget; achieving goals such as quality education without increasing taxes; and demanding a vote of people on any attempt to raise taxes.

"Taxes are like kudzu... almost impossible to get rid of once you've got it," Ingram suggested. "The voters want to know who will raise taxes and who will fight against tax increases. My record is clear on fighting taxes."

Campbell-Manning Vows Said In Raleigh

RALEIGH — Temple Baptist Church was the setting of the wedding ceremony April 15 at 2 p.m. of Teresa Windham Manning of Greenville and Phillip Marshall Campbell of Raleigh. The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Roger Nix of Raleigh.

A program of wedding music was presented by organist Wayne Rogers and soloist Rick Carter, both of Raleigh. The wedding was directed by Margret Landen of Greenville, great aunt of the bride.

Parents of the couple are Mable Windham of Greenville and the late David Windham and Mr. and Mrs. Marshall W. Campbell of Raleigh.

The bride was escorted by her brother, David Ray Windham Jr. of Greenville. Jan Thomas of Greenville was maid of honor and bridesmaids included Brenda Peaden, aunt of the bride, Ariana Bretnall and Hope Strickland, cousin of the bride, all of Greenville, Ann Hood and Kay Oliver, sister of the bridegroom, both of Raleigh. Sherrie Manning of Greenville, daughter of the bride, was flower girl.

The ring bearer was Walter Y. Peadham II of Greenville, cousin of the bride. Ushers included Greg Williams, Jay Bretnall, Gary Nelms, all of Greenville. Clint Cook of High Point and Hudson Howell of Apex. Wayne Dickerson of Raleigh was best man.

The bride wore a formal gown of white bridal taffeta designed with an open neckline edged in a ruffle of taffeta interspersed with rosebuds to create an off-shoulder effect. The sleeveless gown featured a fitted bodice complemented with floral silk Venise appliques. A circular Southern belle skirt was enhanced by taffeta rosebuds and tiers of wedgewood lace trimmed in satin ribbon, falling into a semi-cathedral train. She wore a halo of silkened flowers with illusion attached. The illusion was enhanced by scalloped edges trimmed in lace. She carried a bouquet of blue and white sweet-heart roses with forget me nots and baby's breath with blue satin streamers.

After the ceremony the mother of the bride entertained at a reception in the church fellowship hall.

The couple will live near Greenville after a wedding trip to Florida.

An after-rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's parents at Mountain Jacks Restaurant in Raleigh. A miscellaneous shower was given for the couple by friends and relatives at Parkers Chapel.

NCFWC To Have State Convention In Raleigh

The North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs, Inc., will hold its 81st annual convention at the Radisson Plaza Hotel in Raleigh May 1-3. The theme will be "Let's Celebrate the Old North State."

The convention will begin May 1 with special luncheons at 11:30 a.m. and the opening business session will feature a concert by the chorus from Boys Home at Lake Waccamaw. The Boys Home has been a project of the federation for many years.

The opening night banquet will feature a keynote address with Thomas W. Lambeth, executive director of the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation, as speaker. Other speakers for the convention are Dr. Ruth D. Anderson, Dr. Ellen Voland of the N.C. Office of Citizens Affairs, and Ann W. Chiple of the N.C. Council on the Status of Women. Mrs. David D. Messenger of Huntington, W. Va., director of juniors for the General Federation, will speak to the junior clubwomen at the May 2 luncheon. A faith breakfast and memorial service May 3 will feature William P. Wilson, M.D., of Duke University Medical Center.

Special recognition will be given to outstanding journalists, new clubs, honorary life members, outstanding general and junior clubwomen. The concluding banquet will feature Juanita M. Bryant, president of the General Federation, who will install the incoming officers. Mrs. J.W. Weathers of Youngsville will be installed as state president.

Guyla Corbett Evans of Tarboro has accepted a temporary assignment at Atlantic Christian College in Wilson. She will serve as acting associate coordinator of the medical technology program.

She has been granted a leave of absence from Nash General Hospital in Rocky Mount where she was special chemistry supervisor. She received a degree in medical technology and a master's degree in education from East Carolina University. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Guy H. Corbett of Ayden.

Mrs. Evans was recently named Young Careerist by the Tarboro Business and Professional Women's Club and will compete in district competition April 30.

Homemaker's Haven

By Evelyn Spangler
Pitt Home Agent

Linen, the most ancient of spun fibers, comes from the stems of the flax plant. It is cool, durable and elegant. Linen has a crisp, fresh appearance and a natural luster. It is exceptionally strong, but has a tendency to wrinkle excessively unless treated for crease resistance.

Before cutting your linen fabric, you should preshrink it according to the method of care you plan to use for the finished garment. Linen is usually dry cleaned, but it can be laundered.

Raveling edges are usually a problem in linen fabrics, so seams need special finishes. The severity of the raveling varies. Use of a bias seam tape (such as Seams Great) alleviates this problem. Sew the tape on before joining pattern pieces. The bound and turned under seam finishes are more time consuming, bulkier and tend to show ridges on the right side of the garment.

Lightweight, light color linens may require a lining to prevent body silhouette shadows. Lining is preferable to underlining for this season's fashion look and fluid silhouette. Flesh-colored linings are especially good for pockets.

Linen should be pressed on the wrong side of the fabric because it has a tendency to show a press shine if pressed from the right side. Press as you sew and use brown paper strips under seam allowances to prevent press marks. Press linen with a hot steam iron applying moisture on the wrong side of the fabric. Press all seams completely dry to avoid puckering. Allow each section to dry on the ironing board before moving on to the next section. (The fabric should be cool to the touch.) If you decide to launder your linen garment, press it with a hot iron while very damp on the wrong side. To eliminate the danger of scorching, use a teflon-coated soleplate attachment.

Fusible interfacings are a great timesaver to the home sewer and, if used as directed, should last the life of the garment. For best results, buy quality fusibles the proper weight of your fashion fabric — lightweight interfacings to use on lightweight fabrics; medium-weight ones for medium to heavy-weight fabrics.

When pressing the fusible to the fabric, first warm the wrong side of the fabric by steam pressing it lightly. Place the interfacing on the fabric with the resin side down. Hold the iron one to two inches above the layers and steam it for about five seconds. (The interfacing may shrink a little — better now than after the garment is finished!) Finish by pressing the layers together with a lot of steam. Never

gherkins
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 cup cider vinegar
1 teaspoon curry powder

Drain pickles, discarding liquid and rinsing off any spices; rinse jar and lid and set them aside. Slice pickles about 1/4-inch thick; pack slices into the jar. In a small saucepan heat sugar, vinegar and curry powder, stirring constantly, until sugar dissolves; pour over pickles in jar. Press a wad of saran over pickles so liquid will cover them. Cover tightly and refrigerate at least 24 hours before serving.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

dark facial hair. Can you give me any information about electrolysis? Is it safe? Is it expensive? What about those electrified tweezers you can buy to do electrolysis on yourself at home?

I'm 26 years old and I've had it with remarks about my mustache.

SUFFERED LONG ENOUGH

DEAR SUFFERED: Don't confuse professional electrolysis with the electrified tweezers now being marketed. The Food and Drug Administration has found them to be no more effective than ordinary household tweezers.

While "do-it-yourself" electrolysis equipment can be purchased by anyone, I would never recommend it. Safe and successful permanent hair removal by electrolysis depends upon the angle of the needle when inserted, and an unsteady hand can cause skin damage that may leave permanent scars.

First, see a dermatologist to determine whether you are a candidate for electrolysis. (Not everyone is.) To learn more about hair removal — both permanent and temporary — write to: The International Guild of Professional Electrologists Inc., Medical Center, 15 Bond Street, Great Neck, N.Y. 11021, and request its booklet. You will be given the names and addresses of skilled electrologists in your area. The booklet is free, but please enclose a long, stamped (20 cents) envelope, as this is a non-profit organization.

DEAR ABBY: A couple of readers had a difference of opinion on how to respond when asked, "How are you?"

One said, "Always say, 'I'm fine,' because nobody really wants to hear about somebody else's aches and pains."

The other said, "Be honest. If something is ailing you, say so."

I know a little old German lady who always answers that question this way: "I'm better than I was, but I'm not so well as I was before I got to be as bad as I am now."

Does this help?

DEAR ESTHER: It helps more than it did, but not as much as it would have helped before.

Reader Provided Trip Down Memory Lane

DEAR ABBY: I can sympathize with the daughter of "Oldie at 32." I, too, at age 11 was not allowed some of the things other girls my age were allowed (i.e. shaving legs, wearing nylons and bras.)

At 11, I was the only girl in my Sunday school class without nylons, so I went to the local Woolworth store and bought a pair. I had no idea how to hold them up (panty hose had not been invented yet), so I went back and bought four garters but didn't know what to do with them. Didn't know about girdles or garter belts either.

Being raised by a father (Mother died when I was 8), I didn't have a bra. Then one day while playing catch in a T-shirt with the boys, I heard some giggles over my bouncing small, but developing breasts. Back to Woolworth's!

When I started seventh grade, the girls wore skirts, not jeans. A boy looked at my hairy legs and said, "I'm gonna get you a razor for Christmas." I could have died! The next day, I borrowed my father's razor and cut my left shin bone so badly I still have a scar.

I also went to a movie with a boy unchaperoned. We went on our bicycles.

Eye makeup? No eyeliner, mascara or eye shadow. I used an eyelash curler and a little eyebrow pencil. But that wasn't until the 10th grade.

Peer pressure can be hard at any age.

Supply of Experts Grows Smaller

Still Reading

To people hooked on reading books it has to be a cultural shock on being informed that a "study group" reports 44 adults out of 100 say they never pick up a book.

It might make one wonder if readership has gone into a decline. After all, non-readers of books are missing the best of verbal imagery, the finest in information sources, the "roots" of the most memorable Hollywood products and their abstinence makes authors poor and publishers go out of business. One might add that while missing some of the best they are also avoiding some of the poorest literature of our day.

Are we then, developing a non-reading civilization?

Not to worry.

There is a wealth of magazines posing multiple choices of subject matter; and their circulation is healthy. Newspapers abound. Mailboxes of people who do not write letters are filled with material addressed to "Occupant," as well as bills.

Our society is made up of busy people who seldom have time for intense reading of books, but squeeze in a newspaper or magazine at odd moments of rest between their labors.

The picture is really not all that bleak.

Caution Needed

U.S. automakers appear heading toward a year of record profits, and that's good for them and for the country.

Chrysler's earnings for the quarter were exceptional; quite a turnaround from the days when the firm was almost bankrupt and had to get federally guaranteed loans and talk their employees into accepting less remuneration for their work.

All members of the Big Three re-tooled, installed robotry, computers, tightened belts. It paid off. But if the sight and smell of all that money goes to the heads of management and workers, their future could see an all too familiar tailspin.

Government intervention in Chrysler's crisis might not be attainable a second time around; critics are still critical. Others are wondering.

Every business, big or small, should prepare for times that are not nearly as good as they appear to be today.

Squandering a lion's share of current profits is not the way to do it.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Who's next in line to succeed Konstantin Chernenko? Can the Soviets count on all their satellites to support tough foreign policy initiatives? Can the Soviet economy compete with U.S. defense spending while also satisfying the needs of Russian consumers?

These are questions U.S. policy-makers have to consider in plotting their moves. The answers depend on expertise, and the supply is growing short.

In the 1965-69 period, 43 American political scientists received doctorates in Soviet studies. The total dropped to 20 in 1975-79. The projected figure for 1980-84, according to the Political Science Association, is 10.

After Sputnik, there was a surge of interest in the Soviet Union. But scholarship, like so many other things, is influenced by fads. Interest in China and other countries grew. There are now more teachers of English in the Soviet Union than there are students of Russian in the United States.

Not only are there fewer Americans training to be specialists on the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe than a decade or two ago, those already in the field are getting older. The average American political scientist is about 35. The average specialist on Soviet affairs is 48.

Where will tomorrow's W. Averell Harrimans and George Kennans come from?

Columbia's Harriman Institute, probably the premier training ground for Soviet specialists in the country, concentrates on quality rather than quantity. It will graduate about a half-dozen this year.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., one of a handful of members of Congress trying to address the problem, says "we must establish a strong base of knowledge about the Soviet Union. The simple fact is that the Soviets are different from us in many ways."

Lugar was one of the sponsors of the Soviet-Eastern European Research and Training Act. It would set aside $5 million in each of the next 10 years for Soviet studies and research travel to the Soviet Union.

The program would be run out of the State Department, but also through the Kennan Institute at the Woodrow Wilson Center here, the private National Council for Soviet and East European Research and the government-aided International Research and Exchanges Board.

The law cleared Congress on the last day of the 1983 session, but the money to run the program still isn't there. The first year's appropriation is in the State Department budget for 1984-85, and could fall victim to spending cuts.

Lugar estimates there are more than 7,500 specialists on American affairs in the Soviet Union, but there are fewer than 200 American enrolled in doctoral programs that deal with the Soviet Union.

"So much of our national debate involves speculation and sometimes wishful thinking about the Soviets and their view of life in general," he said. "We need much more information than that."

Dr. Walter Connor, chairman of Soviet and East European Studies at the U.S. Foreign Service Institute, says one of the big problems here is what he calls "a lack of depth."

Connor, in an interview, explained that "you may have a number of Soviet specialists, but not enough to put a team together on short notice to cover an issue that has arisen."

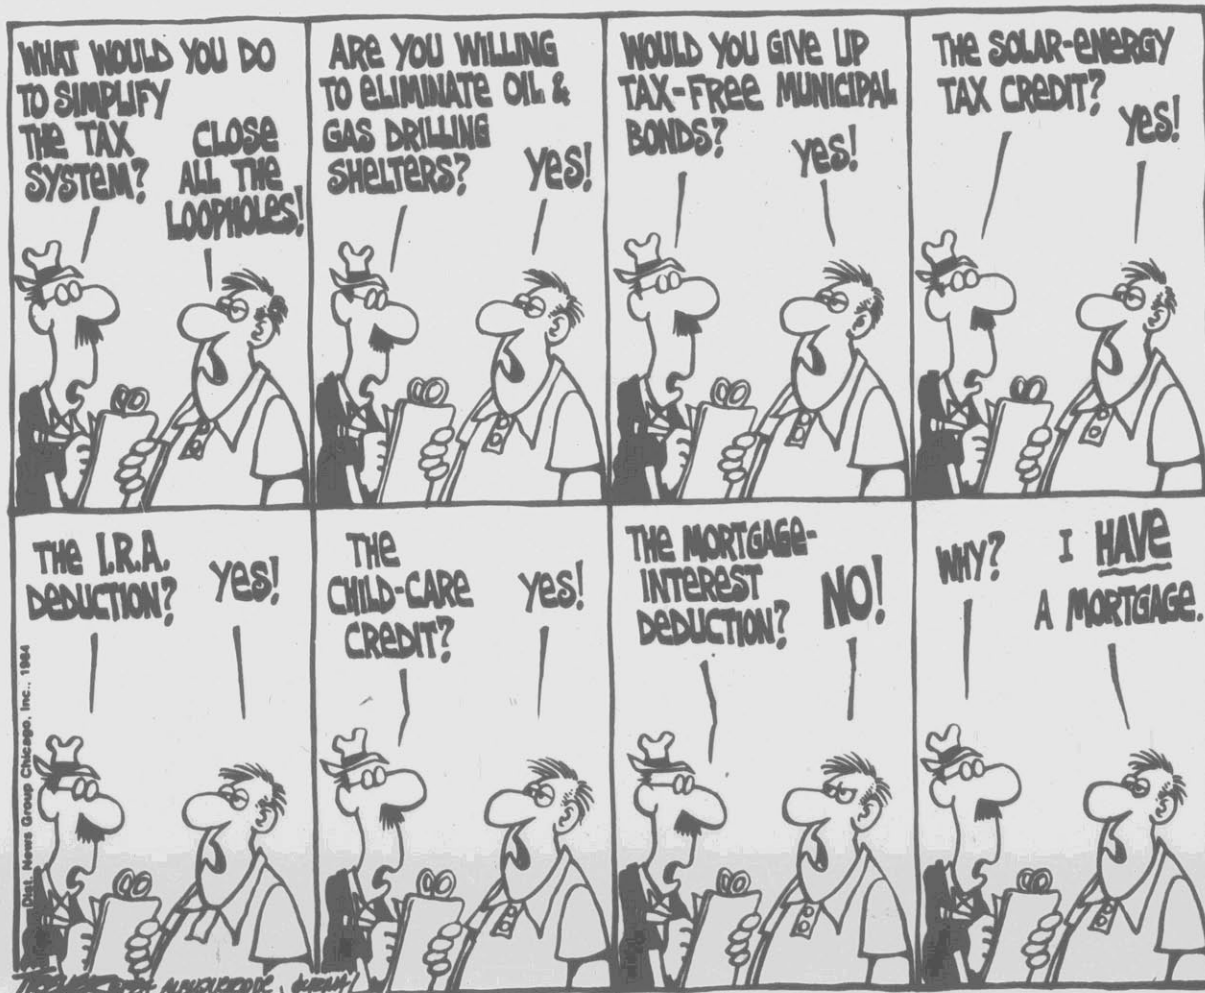

For example, to make a judgment about Soviet succession, or to judge Moscow's response to a development in an East European country.

"Information is elusive," he said.

Jonathan Sanders, assistant director of the Harriman Institute, worries about the need for a new generation of experts. "The Soviet Union is becoming a more complex place," he said. "It takes a great deal of time, training and effort to understand all the complexities and dynamics."

In fact, he said, "it takes longer to train a Soviet scholar than to build a new missile system."

Renewing TV Fellowship With Nixon

A wonderful thing happened to me last week. I turned on the set and got to see Richard Nixon on television again. After it was over I said to my wife, "He looks great. Doesn't he look great?"

"He looked just like the old Nixon," she agreed. "He hasn't changed one bit, except possibly he's mellower."

"He seems to have mellowed," I said. "But every once in awhile when he's talking about the people who gave him the shaft, you got the feeling the old Nixon spark was still there."

My wife took my hand in hers. "You miss him, don't you?"

"Of course I miss him. Who wouldn't miss Nixon? He was the greatest President we ever had. If it wasn't for him you wouldn't be sitting here tonight in your ermine-lined bathrobe, and I wouldn't be wearing Sulka silk pajamas and Gucci slippers."

"Watergate was good to us," my wife sighed.

"It was the best," I said. "Just seeing Nixon on the air brings back so many nostalgic memories."

"Do you think he's sorry?" she asked.

"Sure he's sorry. Didn't you hear him say he was sorry he didn't burn the tapes?"

"I mean sorry about Watergate."

"I'm sure he's sorry. He said it was a dumb thing to do in the first place and then he said it was a dumb thing to try to cover up, and then he said he was sorry the CIA didn't keep the FBI out of the inquiry, and you got the feeling he's very sorry about the people who talked when they should have kept their mouths shut. But he doesn't seem to hold any malice toward those who drove a stake in his heart. Then again Nixon never was a hater."

"I had the feeling he still holds a grudge against the media for driving him from office."

"I didn't get that," I said. "Nixon has been a pragmatic man all his life. If there is one thing he believes, it is that your enemies are always out to get you, so you have to get them first. But as far as carrying grudges, it's just not in the man's nature."

"Will you ever forget the night he told us on television 'I am not crook'?"

"He was the first president in our history who said it. He reassured the country in its darkest hour."

"I wonder why he'd go on television at this time?"

"I suppose he wanted to set the record straight. There were so many illegal things they discussed during the coverup that Nixon wanted the public to know how much of it he personally rejected. What I liked about him tonight is that he said he didn't reject them because they were wrong, but because they wouldn't work."

"You can't be more candid than that," my wife said.

"No one ever accused Nixon of lacking candor. But he has nothing to lose now by personally taking the blame and saying the advice he got from his lawyers was what really did him in."

"I believe him," my wife said. "Why didn't he have better lawyers?"

"They were all on the other side trying to get the goods on him."

"I think it was very moving when he told about his last night in the White House and how he and Henry Kissinger got down on their knees and prayed together."

"It would have been much more fascinating if we knew what Henry was praying for."

Edmisten Prepares TV Run

RALEIGH — During the October 1981 Vance-Aycock Weekend, Charlie Smith stood in the lobby of Asheville's Grove Park Inn talking with reporters. "We've got most of the major leaders committed," Smith said as he argued that Attorney General Rufus Edmisten was destined to be the Democratic gubernatorial nominee in 1984.

Things change greatly in four years. Smith is dead now, the victim of a heart attack after he'd been seriously injured in a campaign airplane crash. Edmisten, who did enjoy a significant lead in the polls early in the race, has now slipped into second position and some people figure he won't even be one of the two finalists in the expected June 5 runoff.

"A lot of people think Edmisten peaked the day he announced this summer," one influential Democrat said privately last fall. That's an assessment many people share. Those who doubt Edmisten will be the next governor say he's got all the support he's ever going to get. North Carolina knows him well after 10 years in office and if the voters haven't decided to vote for him yet, they won't in the near future, either.

Jerry Mobley, Edmisten's campaign spokesman, sees things differently. He says Edmisten stockpiled his resources for the final days of the campaign and that he's primed to break away now. Mobley said Edmisten will be spending more than a half million dollars on TV advertising in the campaign's final weeks. He also notes that the polls which show Edmisten in second were taken at a time when former Charlotte Mayor Eddie Knox was advertising heavily and Edmisten was not advertising at all.

Edmisten, 42, a native of Watagua County, took office in 1974. He previously had spent 10 years in Washington, working for former U.S. Sen. Sam Ervin. Edmisten was Ervin's legal counsel during the Watergate hearings. He is a graduate of UNC and the George Washington University Law School.

Edmisten is considered a political moderate. He is a strong supporter of the death penalty and of crime victim compensation programs. He claims credit for returning $200 million to consumers through the work of his consumer protection office.

Edmisten does not favor a state-run lottery. "Such a drastic revenue proposal is not needed at this time." He also opposes any change in the gubernatorial succession amendment and refuses to rule out a bid for re-election should he be elected governor in 1984. He says the primary runoff system, which requires a candidate to get a majority of the vote, needs change. A lower threshold for a nomination may be fairer to minority candidates, he said.

During the 1977 legislative session, Edmisten tried to deter the General Assembly from creating the Public Staff, the agency which argues the consumers' case before the Utilities Commission. He felt that job was best accomplished by the attorney general's staff. Now he opposes the popular election of utilities commissioners and he says he does not favor any changes in the Construction Work in Progress Law.

Strength For Today

"Be ye all of one mind" (1 Peter 3:8).

But being of one mind does not mean the eradication of all differences in opinion. It means being in harmonious relationship with things and persons about us. The musicians in an orchestra are in harmony with one another but they do not all play the same notes. Each set of instruments carries some part of the musical theme. The beauty of the music comes from the fact that they blend into and support each other.

What then did the Apostle Peter mean when he urged his associates to be of one mind? Undoubtedly he meant a unity of mood and disposition. We can never expect to evolve a creed which will satisfy every Christian on earth. There will always be branches of the Christian church. Church union is not primarily a matter of sameness of belief and uniformity of organization, but — as in an orchestra — a harmony of objective, mood and disposition.

Hart Wins Vermont Caucuses

By KATHERINE SPRINGER
Associated Press Writer
MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — Gary Hart, who trounced his opponents in Vermont's non-binding Democratic presidential primary last month, has won another victory in local caucuses but by a much slimmer margin.

Both Walter Mondale and the Rev. Jesse Jackson improved their showings in the contest for delegates to the state convention, while Hart's support slipped nearly 22 percentage points.

Thirteen of Vermont's 17 delegates to the Democratic National Convention were at stake in the caucuses. But party officials weren't immediately saying how they expected the caucus voting to translate into delegate allocations.

The caucuses were held to select about delegates to the state Democratic convention next month, at which most of the national delegates will actually be chosen.

With 158 of 195 communities reporting, or 81 percent, Hart had 677 local delegates or 49 percent. Mondale had 458 local delegates or 33 percent, and Jackson had 192 local delegates or 14 percent. There were 66 local delegates uncommitted, for 5 percent.

Kathleen Hoyt, who headed the Mondale effort, predicted that the former vice president's strong second-place showing would give him almost as many delegates as Hart.

"I'm feeling a real surge for Mondale coming back," she said. "I'm really pleased. This shows a lot of people who care about Mondale showed up."

Hart's Vermont campaign coordinator, Ken Dean, said he expected Hart would get a majority of the state's delegates to the national convention. But the allocation may be a disappointment to some Hart supporters after his landslide victory in the primary, when he won 71 percent of the vote.

"I think we did pretty well, considering the fact that the caucus system favors traditional Democrats like Mondale," Dean said.

Mondale, who failed to win a single community in the March 6 primary, ran strong in many communities Tuesday night.

Dean said it appeared that many moderate Republicans who voted for Hart in the primary did not show up for the Democratic caucuses to cast their ballots for the Colorado senator.

Vermont has no party registration, and anyone can attend either Democratic or Republican caucuses.

Jackson failed to get the 20 percent he needs to survive past the first ballot at the state convention. Both Hart and Mondale forces planned to ask Jackson delegates at the state convention to support their candidate.

Under national party rules, Vermont's four national delegates not at stake in the caucuses are to go to state party officials and elected state Democrats who will be officially unpledged. Three of those slots go automatically to the state party chairman and vice chairman and to Sen. Patrick Leahy. State party officials said they would have the state convention select the fourth unpledged delegate.

Leahy is backing Mondale, and party vice chairwoman Shirley Schoomer is backing Hart. State chairman Edwin Granai is uncommitted.

Lavish Salaries

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lavish salaries of corporate executives are under attack by a private research group that says top businessmen ought to be paid under the same merit system being urged for classroom teachers.

"Why are the top managers being paid so much more when foreign competition shows how inefficient they have been?" the report issued by the New Democracy Project, a New York research group, said. It said the number of managers getting $1 million salaries jumped from five to at least 38 between 1977 and last year, with 18 topping the $2 million mark.

The group, headed by Mark Green, a former aide to consumer activist Ralph Nader, did list among companies with enlightened executive compensation programs the Allied Corp., H.J. Heinz Corp., Riegel Textile Corp., Nucor Steel Corp., Emery Air Freight, Raytheon Co. and Smith Kline Co.

Seek End To Lame-Duck Leadership

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Two senior senators are proposing that the nation rid itself of lame-duck presidents and members of Congress by drastically cutting the time between their election and inauguration.

Sens. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., and Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., argue that the Constitution's requirement for a several-month interim was based on giving the president-elect ample time to arrive in Washington, but is out of date in the jet age.

"Such delay made sense during the horse-and-buggy days of our Republic," says Mathias. "In the 1980s, with rapid transportation and near-instant communication systems commonplace, any delay beyond two or three weeks seems unjustifiable."

The two senators testified Tuesday before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee on their proposed constitutional amendment to shorten the span. Both are members of the full committee.

They argued that the time gap jeopardizes the nation's well-being, primarily in matters of foreign policy and legislation that may be hastily approved before a new administration takes charge.

"The last time the executive branch was under lame-duck stewardship was in the final days of the Iran crisis, when seemingly neither the president nor the president-elect would act with the full power of the presidency," Mathias told the subcommittee. "I think we would be wise to act now to prevent a recurrence of this distressing situation."

"The term lame-duck is quite appropriate," said Pell. "A lame duck can't fly and a lame duck president or Congress cannot accomplish very much either. They have been deprived of the real authority which rests on the consent of the governed, but they still bear the responsibility for the conduct of the government."

at noon on Jan. 3, following their election, while the terms of office for the president and vice president begin at noon on Jan. 20, following their election.

Dozens Of Ships Trapped By Detroit River Ice Jam

By JAMES REINDL
Associated Press Writer
ABOARD THE MURRAY BAY (AP) — Capt. Kenneth Lowes' voice rose over the clamor of pneumatic paint chippers outside his stateroom as he folded a tattooed arm behind his head, leaned back and surveyed the plight of his ship idled by a spring ice jam.

"No sense in it getting on your nerves," the veteran of 38 years on the Great Lakes said. "Just take it as she comes, you can't do anything about it."

Lowes' ship, the Murray Bay, a 738-foot bulk freighter, sat empty in the Detroit River on Tuesday, one of dozens of ships trapped because of a jam in the St. Clair River.

Since April 6, the 40-mile St. Clair linking Lake Huron with Lake St.

Clair has been choked by thick slush driven into the river by north winds and has frozen to the bottom in places. Lake St. Clair is connected by the Detroit River with Lake Erie, completing the vital channel for Great Lakes shipping.

Shipping companies say the jam is costing them millions of dollars a day, and a steel company said layoffs could result unless normal ship traffic resumes.

Seventy ships waited Tuesday in the Detroit River and Lake Erie as far east as Cleveland to follow Coast Guard cutters up the St. Clair, while 13 more anchored in Lake Huron awaited downbound passage. A Coast Guard spokesman said most of the upbound ships would go first.

"It's the worst imaginable conditions, impacted ice, fog, grounded ships, ships turned crossway in the channel," said Donald Wilson, a river pilot who steers ocean-going ships through the river.

"You get a little bit of wind pressure on the bloody stuff and it's just like running through crazy glue," Lowes said.

Temperatures in March running as much as 15 degrees below normal combined with northeast winds that shoved ice southward are responsible for the jams, said Fred Keyes of the National Weather Service in Ann Arbor, Mich.

"The winds were the unusual thing," said Keyes, who explained that west winds this time of year usually blow the ice into Canada.

Five Coast Guard cutters and a Canadian ice breaker have been busy almost around the clock leading ship convoys through the slushy mess.

A spokesman for the Cleveland-based Lake Carriers Association, which represents about 15 shipping companies, said daily losses are running about $1.7 million because of the delay.

Capt. Joseph Smith, director of fleet operations for Canada Steamship Line, Inc., owner of the Murray Bay, said his company is behind 42 ship days, but he declined to translate that into financial losses.

The Cleveland-based Republic Steel Corp. said Tuesday it may have to cut production and lay off workers if normal traffic does not resume within a week to 10 days.

For the 29 crews members of the Murray Bay their seven-day berth while waiting to continue to Taconite Harbor in Minnesota has been anything but a vacation.

Van Forde, a native of the Caribbean island nation of Barbados, looked down from his stool in the wheelhouse with a sponge in his hand, white paint chips dotting his brown skin.

"Down there (Barbados) I'd be on the beach, here I'm working my neck," he said. "If we'd be on the river I'd be on the wheel, but since we're anchored, I'm keeping the wheelhouse clean."

Open To Extra Waste Facilities

LAURINBURG, N.C. (AP) — SCA Services Inc., considering a hazardous waste treatment facility near Laurinburg, may consider sites near Fayetteville or in Robeson or Bladen counties if an additional plant is needed, officials said Tuesday.

The Boston-based firm has proposed building a treatment facility at the site of the abandoned H.A. Astlett Co. chemical processing plant in Scotland County. The company has an option to buy the former plant and about 40 acres of land adjacent to the Laurinburg-Maxton Airport, halfway between Laurinburg in Scotland County and Maxton in Robeson County.

But Larry Johnson, environmental affairs manager for SCA's southeastern region, said the company earlier looked at sites in Bladen and Robeson counties, as well as "two or three" near Fayetteville before selecting the abandoned Astlett plant as the prime location.

"I would not rule out any of them (the other locations) at this particular time," Johnson said.

Order Setting A New Auction

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — A U.S. bankruptcy court has ordered a new auction for the 4,800-acre Governor's Island, despite a Florida merchant's offer to buy the undeveloped land for $1.96 million.

Joseph M. Eways, 85, of Tampa, has paid $184,000 toward the purchase but has declined to pay the full amount by a mid-April deadline because of unresolved questions about the land, said his attorney, B. Hunt Baxter of New Bern.

The land was offered for auction by a limited partnership of eight people who sought reorganization under bankruptcy laws, Baxter said. U.S. Bankruptcy Judge A. Thomas Small ordered a new auction for May 5 after Eways didn't meet his mid-April deadline.

Wrecks Reported

An estimated $3,450 damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Tuesday afternoon.

Officers said vehicles driven by Martha Elizabeth Midgett of Rodanthe, and Wilton Langley of 1608 Lincoln Drive, collided about 5:30 p.m. at the intersection of Fifth and Greene Streets, causing $2,500 damage to the Midgett car and $100 damage to the Langley truck.

Langley was charged by investigators with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Cars driven by Elene Cox Howell of 105B Emma's Place, and William Brown Taylor of 207 N. Elm St., collided about 4:38 p.m. at the intersection of Tenth and Monroe Streets, causing $500 damage to the Howell car and $350 damage to the Taylor vehicle.

New Office Hours

The Small Business Administration Disaster Appeal Office located at the Pitt County Office Building will be open Wednesdays from 1-5 p.m. beginning May 2, Federal Emergency Management Administration officials announced today.

The office is presently open on Thursday from 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

FEMA officials said Pitt County tornado disaster victims who have not yet applied for SBA disaster loans should return or mail a completed application form to the Greenville office by May 31.

Charges Made

Greenville police arrested two men early Tuesday in connection with a 12:05 a.m. complaint that said several men were breaking into cars on Lewis Street near the Fourth Street intersection.

Officer T.V. Woolard said Thomas David Clanton, 17, of Wilson, was charged with breaking and entering an auto, larceny, and attempted breaking and entering about 12:20 a.m.

Paul Lawrence Bolen, 18, of 127 Robin Road, according to Woolard, was charged with aiding and abetting larceny in connection with the same incident.

Chapter Met

The Alpha Iota chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa met recently at Carolina Country Day School.

Following a business meeting conducted by President Mickey West, organization members made a variety of crafts including Easter baskets that were given to patients on the children's ward at Pitt County Memorial Hospital and wood and cloth stencils that will be sold at the club's fall bazaar.

June Carson gave a report on the State Alpha Delta Kappa Convention held in Charlotte recently. New pledges, JoAnne McPherson and Patricia Minges, were guests at the meeting.

Lecture Speaker

The decision to forgo life-sustaining treatment in certain medical cases will be the subject of the next Perspectives lecture sponsored by the East Carolina University School of Medicine's Humanities Program.

Dr. Joanne Lynn, a faculty member at George Washington University School of Medicine in Washington, D.C., will present her lecture "Deciding to Forego Life Sustaining Treatment: A Discussion of the President's Commission Report." The lecture will be held Monday in the upstairs conference room of the Pitt County Memorial Hospital cafeteria.

The lecture will be open to the public. For information call 757-2618.

Selling Course

Pitt Community College will sponsor a short course in practical selling techniques May 7 and May 9 from 7-9:30 p.m. in Humber Building, room 209, on campus.

Greenville Banks, manager of Belk Tyler Co. in Greenville, will be the instructor. Cost is $10. To preregister, call 756-3130, ext. 266.

Literary Festival

The North Pitt High School English Department sponsored its annual literary festival last week with a variety of activities. The theme was "Dreams Deferred."

Members of the drama department presented skits from Lorraine Hansberry's "A Raisin in the Sun" and Thornton Wilder's "Our Town." Several classes viewed "Great Expectations," a film based on a book by Charles Dickens, and "Jane Eyre," a film based on the work of Charlotte Bronte. Other films shown were "Our Town" and "A Raisin in the Sun."

Dr. Erwin Hester, Betty Webb and Dr. Norman Rosenfeld, members of the faculty at East Carolina University, spoke to classes on novels that they have studied this year. Mrs. John Howell visited juniors enrolled in American literature classes and discussed the celebration of America's 400th birthday.

Members of the art department and the Literary Club made posters and banners which were displayed throughout the school. The media center displayed pictures of authors and novels spotlighted throughout the week. The final event was a field trip to Manteo, where students toured the Elizabethan Gardens and viewed Elizabeth II.

Radio Guest Named

City Manager Gail Meeks has announced that Jerry Cox, city personnel director, will be the guest on the "City Hall Notes" radio program this week.

Cox will discuss government work and the differences and similarities it shares with private employers.

The program will be aired Thursday at 10:25 a.m. on WOOW Radio.

Class Speaker

Mary Chapin of Century 21 recently spoke to an eighth grade career exploration class at A.G. Cox School, where she explained the training requirements and job duties of a real estate agent.

Math Contest

A total of 19 students from Ayden-Grifton High School competed in the recent East Carolina University Regional Math Contest, which was divided into algebra I, geometry, algebra II and comprehensive subjects.

Three Ayden-Grifton students scored in the top 5 percent of the competition and will enter the state contest. They were Reggia Barrow, sophomore; Melissa Rose, freshman, and Mike Shafer, freshman. Shafer also received a fourth place overall award in the algebra I division.

Of the schools participating in the contest, Ayden-Grifton ranked sixth in geometry, sixth in algebra II, 17th in algebra I and 27th in the advanced math division. The school's overall rank was ninth.

Debbie Stokes, chairman of the math department, was the team's coach.

Performance Set

NORMAN, OKLA. — Anne Petrie of Greenville, a doctoral student in voice at the University of Oklahoma, will perform in Monetverdi's opera, "Orfeo," in a production to be given in two places. The first is April 28 in a modern church in Texas; the second performance will be in a movie palace in Oklahoma on April 29.

Ms. Petrie, daughter of Edward and Lorraine G. Petrie of Greenville, is a graduate of Rose High School and received both the bachelor of music and master of music degrees from the University of Illinois, Urbana.

Requests Approved

Police Capt. D.R. Bullock has announced the approval of two requests for solicitation permits in Greenville.

Permits were requested by St. Peter's Catholic Church to conduct a merchant solicitation through May 5 to obtain prizes for "Las Vegas Night," and by the Greenville Host Lions Club to conduct the annual broom sale May through July to raise funds to aid blind citizens of North Carolina.

Regatta Set

NAGS HEAD — The Kitty Hawk Open Boardsailing Regatta will be held on two days, Saturday and Sunday. The event will take place at the Kitty Hawk Sports Sailing Site located at milepost 16 in Nags Head.

Several types of windsurfing events will occur during the two days, including Open Class Division I triangle races, long distance races, and surfsailing events.

Soviets Back Off After A Protest

By ANDREW ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Foreign Ministry made a slight retreat after Britain's ambassador protested an article in the Communist Party newspaper blaming Britain for the shooting at the Libyan Embassy in London.

Kornienko told the ambassador the article "not necessarily represent the view of the Soviet government, nor was its appearance approved by the Central Committee," the spokesman said. In keeping with embassy policy, he asked that his name not be used.

Pravda, the official newspaper of the Communist Party Central Committee, is closely controlled by the party. It is used to reflect party policy, publish party decisions and serve as a medium for party leaders to address the public.

Articles in Pravda are taken by Western diplomats and journalists to reflect party thinking at the highest levels.

Soviet press reports about the shootings April 17 at Libya's London Embassy have been sketchy and unfavorable toward Britain.

A British policewoman was killed and 11 Libyan protesters demonstrating outside the embassy were wounded. The mission has been under siege by British police since the shooting, and on Sunday, Britain broke diplomatic relations with Libya.

LANDSLIDE
MOSCOW (AP) — A huge landslide smashed into a major railroad line in southern Russia, burying the tracks and damaging a bridge, forcing passengers on 80 trains to finish their journeys by bus, the newspaper Izvestia reported Tuesday.

None of the Soviet reports has mentioned that British officials and witnesses say the gunfire came from inside the embassy.

Tuesday's Pravda article said "gunfire was unexpectedly started outside" the mission. "The official authorities of Britain blamed the incident on the staff of the Libyan Embassy and staged a siege of it."

The Pravda story was in keeping with Libyan accounts of the incident.

For the most part, the Soviets have quoted Libyan news reports, a technique often used to avoid making a direct statement on a particular issue.

Tuesday night, for example, the official news agency Tass quoted Libya's JANA news agency as saying Britain broke diplomatic ties with Tripoli "under overt pressure by the Reagan administration."

"vicious anti-Libyan campaign, flouting all generally recognized international standards and laws."

But the Pravda article was a direct comment on the affair, and the British Embassy spokesman said Sutherland raised the issue during a meeting with Kornienko.

400th Anniversary Events On TV

RALEIGH — When Gov. Jim Hunt leads 200 North Carolinians to England for ceremonies on April 27 honoring America's 400th Anniversary, the folks back home will be able to join in, too, thanks to a cooperative effort of the N.C. Association of Broadcasters and WRAL-TV.

will originate a live broadcast on Friday of the ceremony in which Hunt will place a commemorative plaque on the Plymouth waterfront. The ceremony will feature horse-drawn carriages, special music, uniformed escorts, the lord mayor of Plymouth and other dignitaries. It is scheduled to begin at 7 a.m. EST and will last 30 minutes.

The "lost colony" of 1587, will travel to the N.C. Museum of History in Raleigh in early 1985, then to the New York Public Library.

Candy-Tampering Inquiry Requested

WINTERVILLE — Law enforcement authorities have been unable to determine whether a pin found in a candy bar purchased at a Winterville convenience store was placed there before or after the candy was packaged and have requested that the federal Food and Drug Administration investigate the possibility of tampering.

Winterville Police Chief Keith Knox said today his department has asked the FDA to investigate an incident involving a straight pin that was found in a Snickers bar purchased Monday at an East Cooper Street convenience store.

The candy bar was purchased by a Winterville woman, Knox said, for her 12-year-old son. When the youth bit into the bar, Knox reported, "he felt something in it and there was the straight pin."

"The incident was reported to us and we have the candy bar," Knox said. "So far we have not been able to tell whether it (the pin) was placed in there before or after the candy was packaged." Knox said after examining the candy wrapper he was unable to find evidence that the pin was placed there after packaging. "The pin had a little teardrop head which would have left a hole in the wrapper," Knox said. "We can find no place where the wrapper is torn. We even removed the price tag to examine behind it but there was no tear."

Knox cautioned parents to check candy carefully before giving it to children. "Anybody purchasing candy should be careful and check it," he said. "Especially here at Easter when there's so much candy around."

Knox said those purchasing candy should first check to see if the seal on the wrapper has been broken. Next, he said, look for small holes in the wrapper. If any evidence of tampering is found, report the incident to the local law enforcement agency.

"We were very lucky with this incident (with the pin) because the boy was not injured in any way," Knox said. "The pin was located in the caramel in the center of the bar."

"Everybody will have to take more precautions," Knox said. "Just take time and look it (candy) over good."

Services Expanded

The services of Martin County Community Action Inc. are now available in Pitt and Beaufort counties.

As a public non-profit service organization, MCCA's primary goal is to help eligible applicants become self-sustaining. In order to do this, MCCA implements a number of self-help programs. The programs are as follows:

- Head Start, a comprehensive child development program for 3 and 4 year olds from income eligible homes, provides immunizations, medical, dental, nutrition and physical care and guidance as well as a productive learning environment.
- Job Placement provides counseling for unemployed, underemployed or low-skilled individuals. Contacts with potential employers are made on the client's behalf. Participants are also counseled on how to get and keep a job.
- Housing Information helps families find standard living quarters by either arranging for a new home to be built, by renting a suitable apartment or house or by bringing the present dwelling up to standard.
- Financial Counseling offers eligible people information on how to manage and live on their present incomes.

Those needing assistance or more information about MCCA, may contact the following offices.

- Central Office: Ray Street, Williamston.
- Pitt County Office: 620 S. Pitt St., 758-3575.
- Beaufort County Office: 104 Oakland Building, Washington, 946-0016.

Through a special arrangement made through the N.C. Association of Broadcasters, WRAL-TV will provide a live feed of its coverage to the television stations that are members of the association. Taped coverage will be provided of other special events during the tour of England.

The events are being carried out under the auspices of America's 400th Anniversary Committee, the arm of the N.C. Department of Cultural Resources charged with coordinating statewide celebrations of the 400th Anniversary of the Roanoke Voyages of 1584-1587. These voyages, sponsored by Sir Walter Raleigh, marked the first English attempts to settle the New World.

Events in England begin Friday, anniversary of the departure of the first of the Roanoke Voyages from Plymouth, a port used by many of the early explorers. The ceremony at the waterfront is the main event for that day.

On Saturday, the harbor at Plymouth will be the scene of yacht races staged by the Royal Western Yacht Club in honor of the 400th Anniversary. That evening, Buckland Abbey, home of Sir Francis Drake, will host a "Raleigh dinner" in honor of the celebrations.

Exeter Cathedral in the west England city of Exeter near Plymouth will be the site of a memorial service honoring the Roanoke Voyages on Sunday at 11:15 British time.

On Monday, the British Library in London will host a ceremonial opening of a special exhibition of Elizabethan art and documents which opens to the general public Tuesday. Sara Hodgkins, secretary of Cultural Resources, and Lindsay C. Warren Jr., chairman of America's 400th Anniversary Committee, will open the exhibition during the preview, scheduled for 6 p.m. British time. The exhibition, which will include the famous artwork by John White, governor of

Match Pizarro's Bones And Skull

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — More than 400 years after his death, scientists have matched the skull with the bones of Spanish explorer Francisco Pizarro, who was killed by disgruntled followers in Peru in 1541.

Robert Benfer, an anthropologist at the University of Missouri-Columbia, was asked by the Peruvian Institute of Culture to examine bones workers had uncovered while cleaning a crypt in Lima in 1977.

The workers had found a lead box containing a skull identified as that of Pizarro, who conquered the Inca empire in the early 1530s. There was also another box that contained remains from several skeletons, but the institute was unable to precisely match the skull with the correct bones.

Last month, the office of Chancellor Barbara Uehling issued a $4,000 grant to Benfer and William Maples, a forensic specialist from the University of Florida Museum, to conduct the study.

Pizarro was slain by a sword that was thrust under his neck and into his skull. Benfer and Maples matched cuts in the skull bones with deep gouges in some of the bones to determine which were from Pizarro's skeleton, Benfer said. Metal from a sword also was found in the bones by exposing the relics to radiation from the university's nuclear reactor.

"On a fresh bone a sharp knife will leave a very distinct slice," Benfer said. "Maples was able to prove it was Pizarro without a doubt. It is a very important historical find, especially for the people of Europe and Peru."

The bones and a replica of the sword used to kill Pizarro are on display in the university Museum of Anthropology this week.

After his death, Pizarro's skeleton remained in a cathedral in Lima, but in 1746 an earthquake destroyed the building, which was reconstructed on the same site in 1778.

Since 1891, a mummified body has been on display there and was incorrectly believed to have been Pizarro's body.

Ask Improving On Past Efforts

RALEIGH (AP) — Several groups have urged the Coastal Resources Commission's new Water Quality Task Force to improve on past efforts to address environmental impacts of peat mining and large-scale land clearing in the Coastal Plain.

"This thing has passed from commission to commission," said Todd L. Miller, president of the N.C. Coastal Federation. "There have been a number of task forces. Nothing ever seems to be done."

The task force, during its first meeting Tuesday, said it would consider what can be done about such problems as fresh-water runoff, which fishermen argue is depleting catches by harming marine animals that depend on salt water.

SECOND THOUGHTS
SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The Foreign Ministry has dropped its plan to name its fourth-ranking official as ambassador to Washington after objections arose over his past ties with a magazine that published anti-Semitic articles.

Report $4.5 Millions In Local Construction

Construction activity in Greenville during January picked up from December as building permits valued at $4,536,472 were issued, compared with $3,765,071 for the year-ending period, said state Labor Commissioner John Brooks.

Greenville seventh among 44 cities of more than 10,000 population in permit values. Greenville was one of nine cities to top the $4 million mark, according to Brooks.

The Greenville figure included $2,385,600 for 60 single-family dwellings, $92,750 for five multifamily units, $599,688 for 14 non-residential structures and $1,458,434 for 42 additions and alterations. Brooks said 121 units were authorized in Greenville during the month.

Pitt County issued permits amounting to $5,560,625 in January, including Greenville's construction total. The Pitt figure included $3,224,979 for 82 single family units, $268,445 for 11 multifamily units, $606,921 for 15 nonresidential structures and $1,460,280 for 45 additions and alterations.

Statewide, the 44 reporting cities authorized 3,354 new units during January, up 10.1 percent from 3,047 reported in December and 30.6 percent from last January's 2,568 units.

Estimated value of the units, at $136,694,544, was up 28.1 percent from December's $106,745,669 and 38.2 percent from $98,905,092 last January.

Brooks said the average construction cost for a single-family home during January was $38,654, down 13.7 percent from $44,806 in December and 11.6 percent less than last January's $43,726.

January building permits in several eastern towns included: Elizabeth City, $168,750; Goldsboro, $1,046,000; Jacksonville, $2,372,850; New Bern, $2,095,792; Roanoke Rapids, $254,520; Rocky Mount, $2,691,919; Tarboro, $1,457,000, and Wilson, $1,011,798.

Says Errors By The Attorneys

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Sentencing forms used in about one out of every five driving-while-impaired cases in Cumberland County District Court are prepared by defense attorneys instead of by clerks or judges, according to a Superior Court clerk.

Clerk George T. Griffin revealed that practice in response to a District Court judge's comments last week that mistakes on some sentencing forms are a "result of clerical error."

Griffin denied the mistakes were made by clerks on Tuesday and charged that judges and some attorneys are responsible for the errors.

"I'm not about to let my clerks take the blame for those," he said. "Attorneys are filling out five out of every 25 forms. We had one that had everything perfect except for one major thing — he had the wrong defendant's name on the form."

Griffin said he does not believe attorneys should be filling the forms out but does not believe he can interfere.

Customs Seize Jetliner After Finding Cocaine

MIAMI (AP) — Customs officials who briefly seized an Eastern Airlines jumbo jet after finding cocaine on board say they hope the airline's agreement to check its flights more closely for smuggled drugs will prompt other carriers to do the same.

Angry Eastern officials said they doubted whether the U.S. Customs Service had the power to seize the jet, but federal agents said the agency would make "maximum use" of its legal authority to prevent smuggling. Last week, the head of the Customs Service called on airlines and ocean shippers to join the war on drug smuggling.

Agents seized the L-1011 jet at Miami International Airport on Tuesday after its arrival from Lima, Peru, and a search turned up 3 pounds of cocaine in a cargo hold under the cockpit, said Dennis Murphy, a customs spokesman in Washington.

It was the 22nd drug seizure from an Eastern jetliner since November, all from flights originating in Colombia or Peru, said Kitty Pryor, a Customs Service spokeswoman in Miami.

Agents released the 298-seat passenger craft about four hours after seizing it, after customs and airline officials reached a "landmark agreement" outlining ways to improve drug policing on commercial carriers, Murphy said.

"Following the seizure of the aircraft, Commissioner of Customs William von Raab was called by senior Eastern officials, including Eastern's president, Frank Borman," according to a statement read by Murphy. "The discussions resulted in a landmark agreement between Eastern Airlines and the Customs Service."

Murphy said the accord was "a big plus for customs."

"The fact is that for years, we have cooperated with everybody," said airline spokesman Richard McGraw, adding that "Eastern was livid" at the seizure of the $20 million aircraft.

"Because we were livid about what some bureaucrat at the customs did... does not diminish our willingness to cooperate," he said late Tuesday in a telephone interview from New York, where Eastern is holding its annual shareholders meeting.

McGraw challenged the Customs Service's contention that it was within the agency's legal rights to seize the aircraft.

"In order for them to seize, they must have made an assumption that Eastern was a consenting party" to the unlawful importation of cocaine, according to federal law, McGraw said. If that assumption was made, McGraw said, it was "absolutely and totally ludicrous."

McGraw said Eastern had not yet decided what, if any, action the airline would take in response to the seizure.

No one has been arrested in connection with any of the 22 seizures on Eastern planes, which usually involved cocaine found in the jets' lavatory, customs officials said.

Last Wednesday, von Raab urged airlines and ocean shippers to keep better passenger and cargo records and train employees to spot and report possible smugglers. He estimated that at least 45,000 pounds of cocaine, with a street value of $7.5 billion, are smuggled into the United States each year on commercial planes and ships.

One of his proposals called for airline passengers purchasing tickets with cash to present identification. Another would have carrier employees trained to identify and report customers who fit drug-smuggler "profiles" developed by the federal government.

Richard Lally, security director for the Air Transport Association, said at the time, however, that the proposals raised "severe operational problems... and legal ramifications" for airlines.

The agreement with Eastern, as described by Murphy, calls for:

—Customs officials to train Eastern employees to identify "unusual circumstances which might indicate that a particular shipment needs further scrutiny by customs."

—Eastern employees to search their planes prior to departure from certain unnamed countries.

—Customs officers and Eastern security personnel to conduct "joint security surveys at domestic and foreign locations to identify ways in which Eastern can better secure its cargo, warehouses and aircraft."

—Eastern to implement "a number of measures to improve employee screening and security."

Von Raab warned that customs would continue making "maximum use of its legal authority" and applauded Eastern's decision to comply.

CHICAGO (AP) — A 37-year-old man who sprayed eight people with gunfire, killing his wife, their two children and a bystander before police shot him, had been fired the previous day and could be heard "pacing nervously" that night, police and a neighbor said.

Two of the four survivors of Charles Hunt's rampage Tuesday remained hospitalized today. In addition, a police sergeant who was wounded in the foot was treated at a hospital and released, and a fourth person refused treatment.

Police said a family dispute apparently touched off the shootings, which began in Hunt's 23rd-floor apartment in a high-rise building on Chicago's South Side.

After killing his wife, Betty, 37, son Charles Jr., 16, and daughter Linda, 15, Hunt rushed from the apartment carrying an automatic pistol, a .38-caliber revolver and about 80 rounds of ammunition, said police Cmdr. James Delaney.

At the 18th-floor elevator, Hunt killed Gloria Carney, 39, with three shots to the head, then went to the building's lobby and shot at "everyone he encountered," Delaney said. In the parking lot, witnesses said, he appeared to be reloading the pistol when police caught him in a hail of gunfire.

Hunt had lost his job Monday at a suburban Northbrook security company, Midwest Multifamily Inc., for unknown reasons, Delaney said. Company officials did not return repeated telephone calls Tuesday.

Diane Barr, who lives in the apartment next to the Hunts, said Hunt "terrified me" as he frequently stalked sullenly through the hallway. She said she heard him "pacing nervously" through his apartment Monday night.

"This doesn't surprise me at all. I knew the man was very strange," she said.

But at Dunbar High School, Principal Richard Stephenson said Hunt's two children were "were very, very courteous, which reflected a strong home background. Linda was in the top 8 percent of her class and Charles was in the top half of his class."

The son had played trombone and belonged to the All-City Jazz band, said instructor Willie Naylor. The youth had not mentioned problems at home, and his father often accompanied him to concerts, Naylor said.

Erma Davis, a dance instructor at Dunbar, said Linda Hunt reported her father was becoming "exceptionally strict" with her. Police identified those wounded in Tuesday's shootings as Londa McDaniel, 29, who had been in the lobby; Anthony Smith, 16, who was slightly injured by flying glass when Hunt shot at him through a glass partition; building employee Robert Gholar, 31, who was shot outside the high rise; and police Sgt. Oleon Hennings, who was wounded in the foot during a chase through the parking lot.

Ms. McDaniel underwent surgery Tuesday afternoon at Michael Reese Hospital and was in fair condition early today, said spokeswoman Sally Benjamin. Gholar remained hospitalized there in fair condition, she said.

Hennings was treated at a local hospital and released, and Smith refused treatment, authorities said.

Hunt was placed under a one-year court supervision after a robbery conviction in 1964, police said. He was arrested twice in the 1970s on weapons charges but not convicted, Delaney said.

Soviets Advised 'Read' Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department says the Soviet Union should stop attacking U.S. arms control proposals before examining them and negotiate at the bargaining table instead of in the press.

Department deputy spokesman Alan Romberg said the administration hopes the Soviets will reply seriously to proposals by the U.S. last week to eliminate chemical weapons and reduce troop levels in Europe.

Shortly after the chemical weapons proposal was unveiled Wednesday, the Soviet news agency Novosti said the verification provisions were "intended to torpedo the possibility of an agreement." Soon after the troop reduction plan was offered, Pravda called it unfair.

A Second Star To Ex-Captive

FORT HOOD, Texas (AP) — James L. Dozier, the Army brigadier general held prisoner 42 days by Italian terrorists in 1982, has been awarded a second star.

Dozier was promoted to major general Tuesday, and the 3rd Corps and Fort Hood deputy commander said it is "an exciting time to be in the Army."

"When you combine the best soldiers I've seen in my 34 years of service with the superb equipment we're now getting, you can't help but get excited," said the 53-year-old officer.

Dozier was kidnapped while serving as deputy chief of staff for the Allied Land Forces in southern Europe. He was freed Jan. 28, 1982, when Italian police stormed a Red Brigades apartment.

For Argentina: Who Bears Responsibility?

EDITOR'S NOTE — The coming of democracy to Argentina was hailed by human rights advocates. But the tragedy of Argentina's years of repression raises troubling questions there and elsewhere in Latin America. Here is a report.

By CHARLES J. HANLEY
Associated Press Writer
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — All of South America, continent of the "disappeared," is watching the black scenes unfolding here in Argentina.

Every day in a downtown Buenos Aires office, mothers without hope trudge in to recount their children's disappearances. In outlying cemeteries, bones of nameless dead are unearthed. In prisoners' docks, stern-faced generals sit accused.

Over the past decade, years of military control in much of the region, 90,000 Latin Americans have been seized and disappeared, presumably killed for political reasons, human rights groups report.

It is as though the entire Mexican army vanished, or the population of Bloomington, Ind.

The toll was heavy — up to 30,000 people — here in Argentina, where a military government waged "dirty war" against leftist guerrillas and caught many non-combatants in the ragnet of nighttime abductions, torture and secret death.

When Argentina's new, democratically elected government took over last December, President Raul Alfonsin dismantled the "repressive apparatus" and ordered nine top generals and admirals put on trial for alleged excesses. Argentines and human rights defenders around the world cheered.

But Argentina's tragedy raises troubling uncertainties and ambiguities about Latin America's past and future.

For one thing, it could actually slow the trend toward democracy in other countries. Military rulers fearful of popular retribution may cling to power longer.

Chilean democratic activists say this is one factor stiffening Gen. Augusto Pinochet's determination to cling to the presidency in that country, where at least 3,000 people were killed after the 1973 military takeover.

In Brazil, prominent leftist Leonel

Brizola, who spent 15 years in forced exile under the Brazilian military regime, said in an interview that once full democracy returns to his country, "it would not be expedient to dig these things up." He was alluding to hundreds of disappearances blamed on right-wing "death squads" allegedly linked to Brazilian security forces.

The problem is not confined to Latin America's right-wing regimes. Since 1981, at least 138 people have been seized and disappeared in leftist-led Nicaragua, human rights activists there report. In Cuba, such disappearances are not reported, but as many as 1,000 political prisoners are held.

Here in Argentina, questions unsettle a society: How deep does the guilt go? What about the low-ranking men who did the killing? How much responsibility does the nation as a whole bear?

Vice Adm. Carlos Castro Madero was part of the military government. As nuclear energy chief, he had no direct hand in the "anti-subversive" campaign, but he says Argentines should be grateful for what the generals, captains and corporals did.

"There was a time when we didn't know what the fate of our country would be," the now-retired admiral, somber and ramrod-erect in the quiet of his living room, told a reporter. "I'm very thankful for what was done by the people fighting the guerrillas, because now we can enjoy democracy."

But other Argentines are enraged that only a handful of military men face charges — and are being tried before military, not civilian courts.

"We want civilian judges. Soldiers can't judge soldiers," said Claudia San Martin, 54, wagging a finger in the quiet of the bustling Plaza de Mayo.

Mrs. San Martin is one of the white-kerchiefed "Mothers of the Plaza de Mayo," a group that for seven years has rallied in Buenos Aires' central square to demand answers about their relatives' disappearances.

The Argentine agony will sharpen in June, when a special investigative commission issues its final report. Later, the country's highest military court is expected to pass verdict on the nine top officers, all former government leaders.

The conflict's roots go back to the early 1970s, when two leftist groups — the Montoneros and the People's Revolutionary Army — opened an underground offensive of assassination and kidnapping against the Argentine establishment, eventually taking a reported 1,400 or more lives, mostly police and soldiers.

Seizing power in 1976, the military escalated its counter-offensive. The military government reported killing hundreds of subversives in gun battles. At the same time armed men in unmarked automobiles were picking up "suspects" at workplaces and in nighttime raids on homes.

The military herded these detainees into clandestine jails, where they were interrogated, tortured by beating, electric shock, near-cessive three-man military juntas — to stand trial for alleged human rights abuses. A half-dozen other former top officials were indicted in separate cases of abduction and presumed murder.

A special, non-judicial commission was established, headed by author Ernesto Sabato, to investigate all disappearances. Commission lawyers say 10,000 cases are documented, and as many as 20,000 others may not yet have been reported. Every day, relatives file in to the commission's offices to put statements in the record.

But many who fought for retribution say Alfonsin has stopped short — fearful of pushing the Argentine military too hard.

By leaving the cases to military justice, Alfonsin all but guarantees lighter sentences, the critics say. And the Congress has adopted a law granting immunity to soldiers who committed crimes while following orders, unless the orders were "atrocious or aberrant."

Because of this, the Sabato commission's report may have "no consequence," says one critic, congressman Augusto Conte, whose 21-year-old son "disappeared" eight years ago.

"You could have had a more frontal attack on the military without fearing their reaction, because the military is so disgraced," he said.

Interior Minister Antonio Troccoli, in an interview, protested that the government must abide by the Argentine military justice code, which stipulates military trials in such cases.

"We will respect it," he said, "with the provision that the final judgment is made before a civilian court." A federal appeals court will review the military judges' findings.

On newsstands, in theaters, in parliamentary debates, a breeze of freedom cuts through the oppressive mugginess of Buenos Aires these days. But, again and again, Argentines are reminded of darker times, and of their national trial.

Some are reminded by thoughts of loved ones killed by the left.

"They died defending ideals. We have democracy today because of them," said sociologist Luis Maria Paiva, speaking of his brother, an army captain, and others slain by the guerrillas.

Paiva angrily flipped through pictures of the leftists' mutilated victims. "Look! They weren't dissidents. They were sowers of death! Now the assassins have been turned into heroes."

Other Argentines are reminded when they drive past the tree-shaded Naval Mechanics School on the Buenos Aires riverfront, identified as a torture center under military rule.

"I have been to Auschwitz and Dachau," said Sabato commission member Magdalena Ruiz Guinazu, a broadcast journalist, "but I never expected to see such horrible things in my own country."

In another South American capital, a U.S. diplomat with first-hand knowledge of the Argentine situation shook his head as he discussed the disappearances and secret "executions" that take place across Latin America.

"No one has found a way to fight this kind of subversion 'cleanly.' Innocents are going to be killed," he said.

Argentines like Mrs. Ruiz Guinazu reject this.

"The military called it a war," she said. "But how did they work? They used the same methods as the terrorists. If you fight for legality, you must fight with the law in your hand."

No 'Haven' In Tornado

NEW YORK (UPI) — Automobiles, like mobile homes, make poor havens in the tornado season, April through June.

"A twister's winds can approach 200 miles an hour. Your car can't," says the insurance industry's annual warning issued just before the peak season for such storms.

Usually there is little warning between the time a tornado is sighted and the moment it strikes an area, says the Insurance Information Institute's newsletter, Consumer News.

Twisters can strike any time, anywhere, but are most apt to hit the Central, Midwestern and Southwestern states.

Texas led all others during the five-year period 1978-1983, with 1,011 twisters, followed by Florida, Oklahoma, Iowa, Kansas and Arkansas.

Nationally, 5,265 tornadoes caused 287 deaths during the same period.

What is the most protected spot when a tornado is imminent?

At home, your basement or the center of the house, experts say. The lowest floor — in a small room — or under the staircase are preferred, or under heavy furniture such as a bed or table.

At work, an interior hallway on the lowest floor of an office building — below ground, if possible. Stay clear of windows and glass walls.

At school, stay away from windows and take shelter either in a designated area or interior hallways. Parents should not go out in the storm to pick up their children at school.

To obtain a free tornado safety leaflet, call the institute's toll-free number, (800) 211-4954.

Unlikely Future In Home Banking

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Is home banking in your future? Will you use your personal computer to transfer funds electronically?

"Probably not," says Professor George J. Benston of the University of Rochester's Graduate School of Management.

"Unless you have a very large volume of transactions," says Benston, "using a home computer, which usually costs over $2,000, becomes a way of moving money around at odd hours at a very high price.

"If you made money by shifting funds from one account to another, it might pay to bank by home computer. But to stay competitive, deregulated banks are going to offer comparable interest rates. When regulations are removed, they can offer a single, interest-bearing account from which most people won't want to transfer funds."

Hart And Mondale Pitching For N.C. Votes

By The Associated Press
Democratic presidential hopeful Gary Hart will make a return appearance in North Carolina today, and Democratic front-runner Walter Mondale will also be making a pitch for votes in the upcoming May 8 primary.

Hart, who visited the state last week, will tour the Research Triangle Park and will not be available for questioning by reporters.

Mondale will spend most of this afternoon in North Carolina, and his visit also will be confined to the Triangle area, said campaign spokesman David Nelsen.

The former vice president is expected to arrive at Raleigh-Durham Airport around 12:45 p.m. and make a brief speech at the Microelectronics Center of North Carolina at the Research Triangle Park.

Later, Mondale will answer questions from representatives of several North Carolina television stations. The news conference will be filmed in the studios of WRAL-TV in Raleigh.

In other political news, Gov. Jim Hunt has updated his campaign contribution and spending report to indicate that he has raised almost $2 million in his campaign for the U.S. Senate.

The report to the Federal Election Commission covers contributions and expenditures up to April 18 and is the last report due before the May 8 primary.

Hunt hopes to challenge Republican Sen. Jesse Helms' bid for a third term in the Nov. 6 general election. Helms' report was not yet completed but is not due until Thursday.

Hunt's latest FEC report shows contributions of $326,973.53 during the April 1-18 period and expenditures of $225,381.83. That brings his fundraising to date to $1,997,305.23 and spending to $1,749,228.74. The campaign has $1,115,960.86 left in cash and debts of $62,123.72. So far Hunt has received $169,252.59 from political action committees and $3,350 from political party committees. The rest of the money has come from individuals.

Many of the large contributors in the last report were from out of state. They include $250 from violinist Isaac Stern, and an additional $300 from actor Ed Asner.

Democratic gubernatorial candidate D.M. "Lauch" Faircloth Tuesday proposed a change in utility bills that he said would save North Carolina consumers $10 million a year.

Faircloth's proposal would allow consumers who itemize their tax returns to deduct the sales tax portion of their utility bills from federal income taxes. The tax is presently paid by utility companies on gross receipts and passed on to customers as part of the overall bills.

"There will be no increases to the consumer and no loss of state taxes," he said. "Instead, the federal government will have less to spend in Washington, D.C."

Faircloth will do some old-fashioned whistle-stop campaigning Saturday on a scheduled train ride from Aberdeen to Seven Lakes on the Aberdeen-Briarpatch Railroad.

Elsewhere in the governor's race, Democrats John Ingram and Eddie Knox continued an argument begun during a televised debate Monday when Knox said Ingram hadn't hired and promoted as many women as he'd claimed.

The State Insurance Department issued a statement Tuesday quoting Chris Sovel, deputy insurance commissioner, as saying Knox had cited "deceptive and untrue figures" when saying that only three women held professional positions in the insurance commissioner's office.

Actually, "there are 23 women in administrative, professional, technical and supervisory positions, all of whom ... Commissioner Ingram has hired and promoted ..." said Ms. Sovel. She said the figures to which Knox referred considered a woman as a professional "only if she has a college degree."

Wes Ives, Knox's state campaign coordinator, said Knox referred to figures supplied by the state Office of State Personnel that listed the number of women holding jobs in particular classifications.

In an interview with The Durham Sun Tuesday, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor Sen. Robert Jordan said the state's second highest elected official can be the most important educational advocate in the state.

"Personally, I think the lieutenant governor can be more important and effective in education than any other person in the state, including the governor," Jordan said.

"He has appointive power in the Senate and also works with the governor's office and serves on the state Board of Education," he said.

"If I win, the (May 8 Democratic) primary, I'm going to go to our party's candidate for governor and tell him I want to be a part of putting together the educational package," Jordan said.

In the 9th Congressional District race, Republican candidate Alex McMillan Tuesday charged his primary opponent Carl "Buddy" Horn with being a "fair-weather friend" of President Reagan on defense and arms control issues.

"I am challenging Buddy Horn to come out of the closet and let us know where he stands on arms control and tell us why he is abandoning the president on this vital issue," said McMillan at a press conference beside the World War I doughboy statue on the Charlotte City Hall front lawn.

McMillan said he is the only Republican candidate endorsing President Reagan's proposal for a mutual nuclear arms freeze, and a "build-down" proposal.

Japan's Munitions Backlog Said Poor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supplies of ammunition in the Japanese armed forces are so low as to be "absolutely disastrous," according to a high Pentagon official.

The United States, which by treaty provides military protection for Japan, has been trying to get that country to make a greater contribution to its own defense.

"The ability to conduct warfare, if necessary, over a long period of time is a very strong part of deterrence," said Richard L. Armitage, assistant U.S. secretary for international security during an interview. "The situation in Japan as regards to sustainability is absolutely disastrous. In some categories of munitions, they have two or three days supply on hand. That's not a very credible deterrent at all."

He called this situation the major weak point of the Japanese forces. He said ammunition supplies for ground units "range from three days to a week, where two to three months is considered to be prudent." The Japanese navy and air force are similarly short of torpedoes and missiles, he added.

"Nobody I know of wishes that Japan will have to fight," Armitage said, "but if you can't fight you can't deter, and deterrence is extremely important for a country of Japan's size."

Armitage played down the much-debated question of whether Japan should spend more or less than 1 percent of its total annual production on the military. He recalled that in the 1950s Japan spent almost 2 percent.

"If Japan can meet its defense goals spending less than 1 percent of GNP (gross national product), we will be satisfied," he said. "If defense spending is greater than 1 percent, yet the Self-Defense Forces are not capable, then we will hope for improvements."

The United States spends more than 6 percent of its production on defense. Western sources estimate that the Soviet Union spends 8.4 percent to 15 percent.

Armitage said that Japan contributes over a billion dollars a year to the support of U.S. forces there — more than $21,000 for each of the 45,000 U.S. personnel stationed on its soil.

"This is the most generous host nation support arrangement the U.S. enjoys anywhere," he said.

The interview appeared in the April issue of "Japan Economic Survey," a monthly published in Washington by the Japan Economic Institute. The institute is supported by the Japanese Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Armitage spoke with the publication's editor, Michael W. Chinworth.

The same issue carried an article by Tetsuya Kataoka, a professor from Tsukuba University in Japan who is a fellow at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars in Washington.

Kataoka said there is "an oppressive air of cynicism" in Japan about defense.

"Nobody gives a hoot about Japan's defense, at least for now," he added.

Blames Faith In The Easter Bunny

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Convicted Watergate burglar G. Gordon Liddy says the problem with most Americans is that they have a "deep and abiding belief in the Easter Bunny."

"There's something different about us — different from people of Europe, Africa, Asia," Liddy told about 800 people gathered Monday night at Bradley University to hear him.

"The vast majority of our fellow citizens live lives of illusion," he said. "Either they are unable at all to comprehend the real world or, if they can, they tend to turn away from it and shun the harsher aspects of it."

On Watergate, Liddy said he regrets only that the break-in failed, saying that "any success is brilliant and any failure is stupid."

Liddy served 4½ years in prison for his Watergate crimes.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — DULL BIRDWATCHER'S SUPERB FIND WAS A FEATHER IN HIS CAP.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: T equals O

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

An exhibition of fossils tracing man's evolution recently opened at New York's American Museum of Natural History. An arthritic spine in a fossil skeleton once led scientists to believe that Neanderthal man stood in a half-crouch. Items as small and delicate as one-celled bacteria and entire spiderwebs have been found preserved as fossils. Ninety-nine percent of all forms of life that have existed on Earth are now extinct.

When you first learn the art of finessing, you tend to take every finesse in sight. After you master it, you look for ways to avoid unnecessary finesses.

North's three diamonds was a transfer to hearts, and four diamonds was a cue-bid. South decided that, if North could show interest in slam, his hand was worth six hearts because of its fine fit and controls, despite the fact that, in terms of point count, it was a minimum two no trump opener.

West led a low club and, when dummy, came down, it seemed that declarer would need a winning diamond finesse to land his slam. However, he soon showed that, with correct technique, the diamond position was immaterial to the success of the contract.

Declarer won the club lead in hand, drew two rounds of trumps ending on the table, then successfully finessed the queen of spades. With the king of spades marked in the East hand, declarer could now claim his contract.

He cashed the king of clubs and ruffed a club in dummy. He returned to his hand with the ace of spades and ruffed his last club. Now he led the jack of spades from the board and, when East covered with the king, declarer discarded a diamond instead of ruffing.

East was saddled with the lead and a choice of losing options. A diamond return would be into dummy's ace-queen, and a spade return would allow declarer to sluff his remaining diamond while ruffing on the table. No matter what East did, the slam was assured.

Argument Ties Up Summer Jobs Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of dollars earmarked for summer jobs for young people are stalled on Capitol Hill while the House and Senate decide what to do about President Reagan's request for aid to Central America.

The Senate already has passed legislation to make sure major cities get at least 90 percent of what they received in summer jobs last year, when the annual program was increased by $100 million.

That measure, sponsored by Sen. Alan J. Dixon, D-Ill., however, was attached to a bill to furnish $150 million in emergency food aid to Africa.

But a number of other features were added to the African aid bill, including a controversial $62.7 million in military and economic assistance for El Salvador and $21 million for anti-government forces in Nicaragua.

The bill now heads for a House-Senate conference committee, which thus far has scheduled no meetings. The Democratic-controlled House is at odds with the Senate, where Republicans have a majority, over the Central American aid. The House version contained only the food assistance for Africa.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Tex., said Tuesday, however, that the conference committee still could meet as early as next week. He predicted the measure will pass before the May 6 presidential runoff election in El Salvador.

Wright said, however, he sees no support among House Democrats for more aid to the Nicaraguan rebels.

In Chicago, where the summer program starts May 1, Mayor Harold Washington said that unless the legislation passes, the city will get 47 percent less money than it did last year and be forced to cut 16,000 jobs.

Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, quoted Cleveland Mayor George Voinovich in Senate debate as saying 3,500 part-time summer jobs are riding on the bill.

Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y.,

estimated that failure of the measure would cost New York 12,000 such jobs.

Meanwhile, Rep. Jamie L. Whitten, D-Miss., chairman of the House

Appropriations Committee, has introduced a version of the bill that provides food aid for Africa and summer jobs money but omits Central American assistance.

Residue Limits Now Permanent

RALEIGH (AP) — Limits on EDB residues in foods adopted temporarily in February have been made permanent, the North Carolina Board of Agriculture announced.

The board said Tuesday that no grain product sold in the state may contain more than 900 parts per billion of the pesticide. The ceilings are 150 ppb for ready-to-cook foods and 30 ppb for ready-to-eat foods.

In other action, the board announced that production of a number of agricultural products will be governed by federal standards instead of state standards in order to cut "red tape."

The board said Tuesday that its Food and Drug Inspection Division had converted state regulations to federal standards. The rules involve smoked fish, imitation milk products, soft drink plants, retail and wholesale bakeries and home processors or acidified foods.

How Tar Heels Voted In The House, Senate

By Roll Call Report
 WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes immediately before the Easter recess.

HOUSE
NICARAGUA — The House approved, 288 for and 111 against, a non-binding resolution (HCR 290) condemning U.S. involvement in the mining of Nicaraguan harbors. Both chambers now have verbally opposed the CIA-supervised mining operation, but neither has taken the more difficult step of attempting to stop it by cutting off funds.

Supporter Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., said that while he favors American-backed military actions targeted only at Nicaragua, he opposes "activities such as the mining of the ports of Nicaragua which are likely to wreak physical harm against the ships of friendly and allied nations."

Opponent Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., said colleagues who support the resolution "are condemning the United States of America and our fight for democracy and freedom in Central America."

Members voting yes were denouncing the CIA-directed mining of Nicaraguan territorial waters.

North Carolina members of the House of Representatives voting yes were Tim Valentine, D-2; Charles Whitley, D-3; Ike Andrews, D-4; Stephen Neal, D-5; Charles Britt, D-6; Charles Rose, D-7; W.G. Hefner, D-8; James Martin, R-9; James Broyhill, R-10, and James Clarke, D-11.

Representative Walter Jones, D-1, did not vote.

CUTS — By a vote of 261 for and 152 against, the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill (HR 5394) to lower federal spending by $3.9 billion over three years. The measure curbs the growth rate of veteran's pensions and home loans, and of pensions for federal civilian and military workers who retire early. Also, it tightens disbursement rules for Farmers Home Administration disaster loans and for certain welfare outlays.

The bill puts in place another element of the House budget resolution, or master plan, that calls for reducing deficits by $182 billion over three years beginning in fiscal 1985. The $182 billion in spending cuts and tax hikes would trim less than one-third of the $600 billion in new red ink anticipated over the three years.

Some $910 million in Medicare cuts were knocked out of this bill, on a non-record vote, under heavy lobbying by the American Medical Association. Along with its cuts, the bill increased spending for poor women and children under Medicaid, a feature that caused many lawmakers to vote against the measure.

Members voting yes favored the deficit-reduction bill.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were Valentine, Whitley, Ike Andrews, Neal, Britt, Rose, Hefner and Clarke.

Those voting no were James Martin and Broyhill.

Walter Jones did not vote.

CHILDREN — The House rejected, 140 for and 262 against, an amendment to deny federal food aid to certain day-care centers. The vote occurred during debate on a bill extending the school lunch program as well as nutrition programs for low-income infants and poor women who are pregnant or nursing. The bill (HR 4091) awaited final passage.

The amendment dealt with the percentage of poor children a day-care center must have enrolled to become eligible for federal food for all of its enrollees. It sought to retain strict percentage requirements that have resulted in many day-care centers being denied federal food.

Sponsor John Erlenborn, R-Ill., said federal food assistance to children should be awarded strictly on the basis of need and not as an overall subsidy for day-care centers.

Opponent Dale Kildee, D-Mich., said using federal food money to keep day-care centers in operation "is a tremendous investment in encouraging (parents) to work."

Members voting no wanted to liberalize rules under which day-care centers get federal food.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were James Martin and Broyhill.

Those voting no were Valentine, Whitley, Ike Andrews, Neal, Britt, Rose, Hefner and Clarke.

Walter Jones did not vote.

SENATE REVENUE — By a vote of 76 for and five against, the Senate passed and sent to conference with the House a revenue bill (HR 2163) to reduce the federal deficit by $62 billion between fiscal 1985-87. The bill is part of a congressional budget blueprint aimed at cutting up to $182 billion from the $600 billion in additional deficits projected over the three years.

The bill raises levies on liquor, telephone calls and diesel fuel, and hikes Medicare premiums. But it gets most of its $47 billion in new tax revenue by cracking down on abusive tax shelters and tightening rules governing certain stock, bond and real estate transactions engaged in by corporations and high-income investors. It inflicts spending cuts of $14.7 billion, mostly in Medicare and Medicaid outlays.

Senators voting yes favored the $62 billion revenue package.

North Carolina senators John East, R, and Jesse Helms, R, both voted yes.

WINE VS. LIQUOR — By a vote of 62 for and 32 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to include a tax hike on wine in the $62 billion revenue bill (above). As later passed, the bill omitted any wine increase.

The bill is to raise $1.34 billion over three years by increasing the excise tax on distilled spirits by $2 per proof-gallon, from $10.50 to $12.50. The amendment sought to shift half of the $1.34 billion to the wine industry, by hiking the federal wine levy from 17 cents to 37 cents per gallon.

Alan Cranston, R-Calif., who voted to table the amendment, called it "unfair, exorbitant and discriminatory" to more than double the excise tax on wine.

Wendell Ford, D-Ky., said "the additional cost of wine would be minuscule, four cents a bottle, less than one cent per glass of wine."

Senators voting yes wanted to block an increase in the wine tax. East and Helms both voted yes.

corporations historically have used to minimize their liability.

Robert Dole, R-Kans., who voted to kill the amendment, said a better way to address the problem was the provision in HR 2163 that further limited the access of banks, oil companies and other industries to certain shelters.

Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, who sponsored the amendment, asked: "What kind of absurdity is that when corporations ... are failing to pay or contribute their share to the tax burden of the people of this country?"

Senators voting yes opposed the amendment's provisions for a minimum corporate tax.

East and Helms both voted yes.

AUTO SAFETY — The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration's auto safety information line gets about 200,000 calls a year, but about a half-dozen callers got an added bonus yesterday when Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole picked up the phone. The toll-free Hotline service provides recall information and other data on motor vehicles. (AP Laserphoto)

CORPORATE TAXES — By a vote of 62 for and 30 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to make it more difficult for corporations to legally avoid paying federal income taxes. The vote occurred during debate on HR 2163 (above).

The amendment would have required corporations to pay taxes at a rate of at least 15 percent on profits in excess of $50,000. It was identical to a 1982 Reagan Administration proposal that Congress rejected. It sought to replace current law, which counters corporate tax-avoidance not by setting a minimum tax but by tightening eight major shelters that

Anniversary Not Soon Forgotten

BELLEVUE, Neb. (AP) — Mayor Joe Baldwin had no intention of letting John Rice's 30th anniversary as city attorney pass unnoticed. And it's unlikely that anyone who witnessed the unusual tribute will be able to forget it.

The scene unfolded at a city council meeting Monday night when John Reding, public works director in this Omaha suburb, asked that consideration of lawnmower purchases be moved higher on the agenda.

What was the rush, Baldwin asked. Did Reding plan to mow some lawns that night?

Reding replied cryptically that he needed the lawnmowers in a hurry.

One word led to another, and before long before the two men were shouting at each other. Baldwin said Reding had no authority for moving the request up the agenda.

They turned to Rice for his expert legal opinion.

"I don't want any part of this," Rice said.

"How long have you been city attorney, 15 years?" Baldwin asked, implying that the learned counselor should have been ready with advice.

Oh, somewhat longer, Rice replied. At the point, Baldwin and Reding dropped their rehearsed argument and, noting that it was in fact 30 years that Rice had been serving the community, presented him a plaque, a cake and a copy of "Robert's Rules of Order."

Left The Dishes Glued To Table

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — Two customers used their own special dressing on a couple of dishes when they stopped at The Drumstick cafe for a late-night snack, according to a police report.

Margaret Prudente, an employee at the cafe, told police that two men got up from their table after eating at about 2 a.m. Tuesday, paid their bill and made a rather hasty exit, the report said.

Ms. Prudente said she went to clear the table, only to find that the dishes had been glued to the table, it said.

Damage was estimated at $100 and police received only a vague description of the two men, Ms. Lewis said.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market opened mixed today after posting a modest advance in the previous session.

The general market's upturn Tuesday came after blue-chip issues rallied strongly late in the session.

But the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped back today, losing 2.10 to 1,160.80 after the opening 30 minutes of trading.

Losers and gainers were about even among overall New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The strong gains by the blue chips on Tuesday probably reflected buying by large institutional investors that temporarily had excess cash positions, brokers said.

The broader market's lagging strength reflected continued uncertainty on Wall Street as to the economy's outlook, and whether a slowdown in economic expansion will result in a decline in interest rates, analysts said.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 13.40 to 1,162.90.

But advances led declines losers only 8 to 7 on the NYSE, whose composite index rose 0.62 to 90.8%. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 0.36 to 207.54.

Embassy....

Three envoys of Khadafy, sent at Britain's request, met early today with Foreign Office Undersecretary Sir John Leahy to lay the groundwork for the embassy's evacuation, a Foreign Office spokesman said. The order to vacate the building could mean the killer will escape prosecution.

Leading the Libyan delegation in London was Col. Abdul Rahman Shaabi, a police intelligence expert and a minister for external security. The other two officials were identified as Nasir Ashur and Ahmed Said.

The envoys are expected to visit the sealed-off embassy, in an 18th century building on elegant St. James's Square.

Police on Tuesday rolled up vans and patrol cars near the embassy, apparently to transport the Libyans when they come out.

Anti-terrorist detectives from Scotland Yard today questioned Matooq Muhammed Matooq, one of Khadafy's trusted revolutionaries. Matooq was arrested in west London Tuesday.

He was part of a committee of four "revolutionary students" who seized control of the embassy on Feb. 18, apparently on Khadafy's orders, because the diplomats were said to have not been taking a tough enough anti-Western line.

Anti-Khadafy Libyan exiles here said the committee's main mission was to coordinate attacks on dissidents in Britain. Police have linked a bombing at Heathrow on Friday night to anti-Khadafy bombings in London March 10.

British authorities expelled the leader of the four-man committee, Ghadir Baghdadi, 34, Tuesday, charging his presence here was "not conducive to the public good."

The third committee member was deported Monday, and the fourth returned to Tripoli a week before the siege began.

Eight Libyans, described as students, were detained at Heathrow Airport on Tuesday after they flew in from Tripoli, Libya's capital, and Belgrade, Yugoslavia.

According to intelligence sources, London's The Daily Mirror reported, there are two dozen Beretta sub-machine guns with silencers and Spanish Starr handguns in a "huge arsenal" in the Libyan embassy.

Disclose Another Loan To Gambia

WASHINGTON (AP) — The International Monetary Fund has announced a $13.6 million loan for the African republic of Gambia.

Gambia already owes the fund about $28 million. The fund said that the nation had made progress while it was drawing on an earlier loan but ran into drought-aggravated problems after that amount was exhausted.

To obtain the new loan, Gambia devalued its currency, raised prices to farmers and put a limit on its foreign borrowing. The announcement came the same day riots broke out in the Dominican Republic against price increases critics blamed on government efforts to obtain a similar loan.

Obituaries

The family will receive friends from 8-9 p.m. today at the funeral home.

Two Injured In Rural Fire

FALKLAND — Two persons were injured in a fire which destroyed the home of Catherine Barnes near Falkland this morning shortly after 10 a.m.

Robert Farmer said he was working in a garden behind the house when he saw flames coming from the rear of the wood frame structure. He said he rushed to the house and pulled two children, a boy and a girl, out a window. The Falkland Rescue Squad took Mrs. Barnes and the children to Pitt County Memorial Hospital. No report on their condition was available at press time.

Located between Falkland and Dupree's Crossroads on Highway 222 west, the house was owned by Jay Taylor of Farmville. Falkland Fire Chief William E. Proctor said the house and everything in it were lost, that virtually the entire house was fully involved in fire before firemen arrived.

Falkland, Fountain, Belvoir, and Sharp Point fire departments fought the blaze, the county fire marshal's office reported.

Packhouse Hit By Fire

A packhouse and farm equipment shelter near Black Jack burned yesterday, doing an estimated $40,000 damage.

The Pitt County Fire Marshal's office said the property, located at the intersection of rural paved road 1984 and rural paved road 1785, is listed as belonging to the Zena Mills heirs. Black Jack Fire Department, assisted by the Grimesland Fire Department, fought the blaze. Hay and other items were stored in the packhouse and a haybaler and two tractors were stored under the shelter, the report said.

Pirate Errors Aid Wesleyan Victory

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

A pair of errors by East Carolina University aided a six-hit, seven-run rally in the seventh as the Battlin' Bishops of North Carolina Wesleyan pounded the Pirates 9-5 in Tuesday baseball action at Harrington Field.

The victory increases the NCAA Division III Bishops to 29-8, while the Pirates dropped to 25-10 on the season. ECU hosts Atlantic Christian College tonight at 6 p.m. in a twinbill that was originally scheduled to be played in Wilson.

Pirate starter Jim Peterson, now 7-2, yielded 13 of Wesleyan's 15 hits before Mike Christopher came on with two out in the seventh. ECU swatted six hits off Bishop starter Carl Payne and added three more off ninth-inning reliever Maxie Coker.

Greg Hardison and Mike Williams each went 2-4 at the plate for ECU, but Richard Beupre and John Haggerty tagged the Pirate pitchers for three hits each in five at bats.

Danny Tomko added the crushing blow with a three-run homer to cap the seventh.

"We just made far, far too many mistakes to win against a good club like North Carolina Wesleyan," ECU Coach Hal Baird said. "They threw a good college-type pitcher; if anyone had told me before the game that we'd score five runs today, I'd of said we'd win."

East Carolina trailed 2-0 after four innings, but Williams ripped a solo homer to open the fifth and the Pirates added three more in the sixth to take the lead.

Wesleyan used the Pirates' errors in the seventh to its advantage, as the second broke up a double-play and allowed the Bishops' third run to score. After one out, Ronnie Shorter reached first on an error by Hardison at shortstop. Beupre singled, and Steve Durelli laced a single to center to drive in Shorter and move Beupre to second.

A single by Coates loaded the bases, and Charlie Simpson drove in

THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Beupre. Then came the most costly error of the game, as Glen Mattocks tapped back to the mound, and Peterson looked to second and hesitated before throwing home for the second out. Catcher Jim Riley's relay throw to first attempting the double-play sailed into right field, allowing Coates to score.

Simpson scored on a single by Haggerty, and Tomko followed with his three-run blast off Christopher.

"It all happened so quickly, we didn't have a chance to warm up a new pitcher," Baird said. "Once we did make a mistake, they started hitting the ball. We've had four or five innings like that this year. Peterson wasn't sure where to throw on the play, and then Riley had to rush his throw to first on what would have been a routine play."

Ironically, it was an error by Peterson that kept the Bishops alive in the fourth after Haggerty singled and stole second after one out. When Tomko tapped back to the mound, Peterson heaved the ball to the ECU bullpen allowing Haggerty to score the game's first run. A single to right by Paul Prisco drove in Tomko.

Riley opened the sixth with a base on balls for the Pirates, and Hardison beat out a bunt for a single. When David Wells attempted to sacrifice the runners with a bunt, Nichols beat the throw to third to load the bases. A fielder's choice by Todd Evans drove in the Pirates' first run, and Winfred Johnson ripped a shot to the fence in left-center for a two-run double.

ECU's other run came in the ninth, as Mike Williams opened with a double off Coker, and scored on a single by Mike Sullivan. Mark Shank singled after one out and a balk advanced the runners to second and third, but Coker settled down to retire the side.

"They've got a good club, second or third in the nation in Division III," Baird said. "Peterson in the last three or four games he's pitched hasn't been that sharp. But we got a lead and made defensive mistakes to give it away. We've had a good season with a young ballclub, but by now you expect to be beyond making those types of mistakes."

Batters Knuckle Under Against Niekro

By HERSCHEL NISSENON
AP Sports Writer

Ancient Phil Niekro may be knuckling a little less these days, but rival batters are knuckling under more than ever.

The oldest player in the majors — he was 45 on April 1 — and the oldest ever to perform for the New York Yankees, Niekro did something Tuesday which he failed to accomplish in 19 National League seasons. He is 4-0 for the first time in his career following an eight-hit, eight-strikeout 4-0 blanking of the Kansas City Royals.

"At my age, I've forgotten what young is," said Niekro, whose 44th career shutout also was his 27th triumph. "I have to keep myself in great shape. So far, I've done what my body has told me to do. I sleep when I have to, eat when I have to and work when I have to."

His work includes mixing a fastball, sinker and slider with his famed knuckleball and he owns a 0.98 earned run average and a string of 21 1-3 scoreless innings to go with his unbeaten record.

Elsewhere in the American League, California belted four home runs — three in a row in the fourth inning — and outslugged Boston 8-7, Baltimore whipped Chicago 8-3, Detroit swept a double-header from Minnesota 6-5 and 4-3, Seattle downed Toronto 4-2 and Milwaukee edged Oakland 3-2. The Texas-Cleveland game was rained out.

Niekro, who was released by Atlanta after last season, feels that some of his difficulties with the Braves — he was 1-14 prior to April 25 over the last seven years — stemmed from relying too much on the knuckleball.

"I got hurt a couple of games with my fastball for home runs and they didn't want me throwing fastballs after that," he said. "They kind of took that pitch away from me. They thought I could win only with knuckleballs. I'm going to keep mixing it up until they start hitting me."

The Yankees snapped a 25-inning scoreless drought with two unearned runs in the second off Bud Black on Butch Wynegar's bases-loaded single. Don Baylor added an RBI single in the fifth and Don Mattingly homered in the sixth.

Angels 8, Red Sox 7

California got solo homers from four veterans — Reggie Jackson, Brian Downing, Bobby Grich and Doug DeCinces — and Jackson doubled in the ninth and scored the winning run on a single by Bob Boone, another old-timer. Jackson, Downing and Grich hit consecutive homers off Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd in the fourth, the 52nd time in AL history the feat was accomplished, while Boone collected four hits and Rod Carew three in the Angels' 16-hit assault. That offset Boston slugger Jim Rice's first hitting spree of the season — a single, double and triple and four RBIs.

Orioles 8, White Sox 3

Eddie Murray's two-run homer, a solo shot by Cal Ripken Jr. and Scott McGregor's nine-hit pitching helped world champion Baltimore win for only the fifth time in 17 games this season. Vance Law and Ron Kittle homered for the White Sox, who led 2-0 after four innings.

But John Lowenstein opened the Orioles' fifth with a walk and Ken Singleton singled for the first hit off Richard Dotson. Rick Dempsey doubled to score Lowenstein. John Shelby opened the sixth with a single and Murray's homer put the Orioles in front. Ripken hit his seventh homer in the eighth, tying Oakland's Dave Kingman for the major-league lead, and Ripken and Murray added RBI singles in the ninth.

Tigers 6-4, Twins 5-3

Lou Whitaker's two-out single capped a three-run ninth inning in the opener as the Tigers rallied to make a winner of Jack Morris, 4-0, who scattered seven hits. In the nightcap, Lance Parrish belted a three-run homer in the fifth inning to erase a 3-1 deficit and give the red-hot Tigers a five-game winning streak and a 14-1 record.

The Twins had gone ahead with two runs in the top of the fifth. They loaded the bases on a walk. Tim Teufel's single and an error and Kent Hrbek drove in a pair of runs with an apparent single which became a fielder's choice because Darrell Brown was called out when the Tigers appealed that he missed second base while racing from first to third.

Morris described Detroit's hero-a-game start as "the kind of thing Baltimore and teams that have won have done in the past. I don't know how to explain it, but maybe it's our year. I didn't have my best stuff, but the guys went out and pulled my game out for me, then won the second game, too. We're supposed to be a bunch of grown men, and we were jumping around like kids. This is exciting!"

Mariners 4, Blue Jays 2

Al Cowens, who singled home Seattle's first run in a two-run sixth inning, broke a 2-2 tie with an RBI single in the eighth and eventually scored on Darnell Coles' grounder. Dave Beard, the third Seattle pitcher, earned the victory with 2-2-3 innings of hitless relief after Toronto tied the game in the bottom of the sixth on Lloyd Moseby's two-run homer. Moseby has 12 RBIs in his last five games.

Brewers 3, Athletics 2

Oakland's Lary Sorensen came close to working out of a bases-loaded jam in the seventh when Charlie Moore lined back to the mound and Ben Oglivie, who homered in the second inning for Milwaukee's first run, was doubled off third. But Rick Manning then hit a drive to the gap in left-center to drive in the tying and winning runs. The A's had gone in front 2-1 with a run in the top of the seventh on Donnie Hill's infield hit, Tony Phillips' double and Rickey Henderson's single.

76ers Are Not Dead Quite Yet

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Philadelphia 76ers, refusing to believe their premature obituary, are not only going home breathing — but breathing fire.

"We're a team on a mission, a mission worthy of our talent," said Julius Erving after the 76ers beat New Jersey 110-102 Tuesday night to tie their National Basketball Association playoff series at 2-2. "We've got to go for it. Nothing is going to stop us."

At one time down 0-2 in the best-of-five series and all but counted out, the 76ers have come roaring back with two solid efforts to force a fifth game. The 76ers can bounce the Nets out of the playoffs in Game 5 in Philadelphia Thursday night and keep alive hopes of becoming the first team in 15 years to repeat as NBA champions.

In other first-round action, Boston defeated Washington 99-96, Atlanta trimmed Milwaukee 100-97, Utah beat Denver 129-124, Portland bounced Phoenix 113-110 and Dallas whipped Seattle 107-96. In tonight's only playoff game, Detroit plays at New York.

Erving and Moses Malone scored 22 points apiece, and Malone dominated the backboards with 15 rebounds to lead the 76ers.

The 76ers held an 18-point lead four times in the game, the last at 95-77 on Malone's tap-in with 7:55 to play. That was enough to hold off a furious rally at the end by the Nets.

Albert King led New Jersey with 20 points, while Buck Williams had 16 points and 18 rebounds.

"If there is a driver's seat, I'd say we're in it," noted Erving. "We didn't come back from 2-0 to go back to Philadelphia and cough it up. They had success in Philadelphia. But they're not going to win in Philadelphia. You can mail in the stats."

Celtics 99, Washington 96
Larry Bird and Dennis Johnson combined for 19 points in the fourth quarter as Boston defeated Washington to win their series 3-1.

The Celtics stayed ahead after substitutes Quinn Buckner and Kevin McHale sparked a 15-point string late in the second quarter to give Boston a 46-34 advantage.

Jeff Ruland scored 30 points for Washington, which closed to within 70-65 at the end of three quarters but could get no closer until Jeff Malone scored the final basket just before the buzzer.

"We limited their halfcourt offense and kept the ball out of (Jeff) Ruland's hands," Boston Coach K.C. Jones said of the strategy which launched Boston's game-breaking streak and blanketed Washington for six minutes. "We had to do something because they had been walking the ball upcourt."

Hawks 100, Bucks 97
Dominique Wilkins gave Atlanta the lead on an 18-footer with 47 seconds remaining and Doc Rivers drilled two free throws with two seconds left as the Hawks trimmed Milwaukee to tie their series at 2-2.

The Bucks had an opportunity to take the lead after Wilkins' basket, but Dan Roundfield blocked Bob Lanier's shot with eight seconds remaining.

Wilkins and Rivers each scored 19 points for Atlanta and Johnny Davis had 17. Junior Bridgeman tallied 20 for the Bucks.

"We can't hang our heads,"

Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson said. "We've just got to go home and play another solid game."

Jazz 129, Nuggets 124
Darrell Griffith scored 10 of his 26 points in the fourth quarter to spark a Utah rally that carried the Jazz over Denver, tying their series at 2-2.

Utah's Adrian Dantley, the NBA's scoring champion, tossed in a game-high 39 points, but was held scoreless over the final five minutes of the game, when the Jazz took control.

Neither team led by more than six points in the tightly contested, physical game that featured numerous free throws. Dantley scored 16 of Utah's first 22 points to help the Jazz to a first-quarter advantage, but Denver battled back on the strength of 13 points from English in the second quarter to produce a 71-71 halftime tie.

Dan Issel scored 32 points for Denver, and Kiki Vandeweghe finished with 28.

Blaizers 113, Suns 110
Calvin Natt scored 11 of his game-high 30 points in the fourth period as Portland beat Phoenix to even their series at two victories each. The score was tied at 87 with 11:14 remaining in the game when Natt's jumper put the Trail Blazers ahead to stay.

"Tonight, there was no tomorrow," Natt said. "It's a cliché, but that's the way it really was. Every shot was important, so if you had a chance to take one, you had to take it. I was looking for my shot most of the night and I felt good taking them."

Walter Davis finished with 29 points for Phoenix while Maurice Lucas had 23.

Mavericks 107, SuperSonics 96
Mark Aguirre scored 29 points and Jay Vincent added 21 to lead Dallas over the Seattle and even their series at two triumphs apiece.

The Mavericks, who averaged 91.3 points in their first three playoff games against Seattle, led 49-43 at halftime and then put on a surge in the third quarter for a 79-65 advantage after three periods.

Dallas, breaking a string of 10 consecutive road losses to the Sonics, got 20 points from Rolando Blackman. Aguirre and Vincent each pulled down 11 rebounds.

Greene Central Wins Tourney

SNOW HILL — Greene Central captured the championship of its own invitational softball tournament yesterday, but they had to struggle through 12 innings to overcome Havelock just to reach the finals.

The Lady Rams topped Havelock, 11-8, in 12 innings in the opening game of the day, completing the second round of the rain-delayed tournament. Then, in the finals, they whipped Northern Nash, 10-3, to win the championship.

Plymouth defeated North Pitt to win seventh place in the eight-team field, while Southern Wayne nipped D.H. Conley, 7-5, for fifth. Havelock edged North Lenoir, 4-3 in another 12 inning contest for third place.

The Lady Rams had to battle for 12 innings to get to the finals. Havelock jumped in front early, scoring twice in the first inning and five times in the second for a 7-0 lead. But the Rams battled back and scored six times in the fourth, three of those on a homer by Sharon Dawson. They knotted it at 7-7 with one in the fifth.

Both teams scored single runs in the 11th inning, and then Greene Central took Havelock's spirit with three runs in the top of the 12th and that won it.

Sharon Croom had three hits to lead the Ram hitting, while Dalen Herring, Angie Wilkes, Dawson and Jenny Hardison each had two. No one had more than one hit for Havelock.

In the championship game, the Lady Rams pushed over three in the first inning, but Northern Nash scored two in the second and one in the third to tie it up.

But Greene Central got three in the fourth and four more in the seventh to win it going away.

Denise Warren had a three-run homer in the seventh, while Dawson cracked a solo shot in the frame.

Melody Bowen and Stephanie Streeter each had two hits for the Lady Rams, while no one had more than one for Northern.

Southern Wayne used three home runs to power its way past Conley in the game for fifth place. The Saintes saw Conley score two in the top of the first, then came up with two homers to take a 3-2 lead. Kim Blackman and Gwen Sheard banged out the round-trippers.

Conley went back ahead with two in the third, but Southern came up with one to tie it at 4-4. Then, in the fourth, Sheard hit another homer in a two-run inning to give Southern a 6-4 lead. Both teams added single runs in the sixth, as Conley never caught up again.

Sheard led the Southern hitting with three. Trellany Boyd and Karen Barrett each had two hits for Conley, with Barrett hitting a solo homer in the sixth.

Details of the North Pitt-Plymouth game were not available.

Bullets, Tigers Play For Title

JAMESVILLE — The finale of the Jamesville Invitational Baseball Tournament will feature the host team and a strong Williamston club tonight, while Ahoskie and Washington battle for the consolation bracket title.

In games yesterday, Washington nipped Bear Grass, 8-7; Ahoskie ran past Creswell, 10-4; Williamston socked defending champion St. Francis of Buffalo, N.Y., and Jamesville rolled over Plymouth, 8-0.

In the opening game, Washington took an early lead, scoring two in the first and four in the third. A seventh run crossed in the fourth inning. But Bear Grass rallied in the top of the sixth for three and added four more in the seventh to tie it at 7-7.

The Pam Pack, however, came up with one in the bottom of the seventh to win it. Duane Whittenburg reached on an error and both Sam Stephenson and Joey Ange walked, loading the bases. John High followed with a single, scoring Whittenburg with the game-winning run.

Whittenburg and Stephenson led the Washington hitting with two each, while Lawrence Watson had three hits for Bear Grass.

In the third game, Williamston scored twice in the top of the first and saw St. Francis come back with one in its half of the frame.

But the Tigers then pushed over three in the second for a 5-1 lead that the New Yorkers could not overcome. Kevin Lee doubled and Tommy Wynn singled him in. James Ward and Les Keel both walked, loading the bases and Glen Hardison reached on an error, allowing both Wynn and Ward to score.

The Tigers added one in the third, one in the fifth and two in the seventh. St. Francis' other run came in the fourth.

Wynn, who hurled the win, also led the hitting with three, while Keel added two. No one for St. Francis had more than one hit.

Jamesville had little trouble in gaining the finals of the tournament, crushing Plymouth. The Bullets got all they needed in the third, scoring five times.

Earl Bowen opened the third with a single and Matthew Moore reached on a fielder's choice that failed to get anyone. Rusty Holliday brought both of them in with a double and he scored on Terry Perry's triple. Kevin Perry followed with another triple, scoring Terry, and Whit Brown reached on an error, allowing Kevin to score with the fifth run.

Jamesville got one more in the fifth and two in the sixth for its eight-run total.

Kevin Perry led the Jamesville hitting with three, including his triple and a double. Bowen added two hits.

Today's finale matches Jamesville and Williamston in the championship game, while Washington and Ahoskie play for the consolation (fifth place) title. There are no games for seventh or third place.

Rams Fall To Fike By 2-1

WILSON — Wilson Fike High School scored twice in the second inning, and that was enough as the Golden Demons nipped Greene Central, 2-1, in the consolation bracket of the Wilson Optimist Baseball Tournament yesterday.

The loss sends the Rams into the game for seventh place in the tournament today.

Greene Central's only run came over in the first inning. Michael Warren walked and moved up on a sacrifice. When he attempted to take third base on the play, and error allowed him to go on to home for the 1-0 lead.

Fike, however, came up with two in the second inning to move ahead. David Allen singled and Brooks Bissett got a hit. Jimmy Page reached on a fielder's choice that failed to get Allen at home, and Pat Marshall walked, loading the bases. Brian Barnes then grounded out, scoring Bissett with what proved to be the winning run.

No one on either team had more than one hit.

Greene Central drops to 6-8-2 with the loss.

Soviets Near Decision On Summer Olympics

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) - The Soviet Union appeared closer to competing in the Summer Games in Los Angeles after a meeting here with Olympic officials and American representatives.

"I'm very happy with the results of the meetings," Juan Antonio Samaranch, president of the International Olympic Committee (IOC), said Tuesday. "We may say that the black clouds in the Olympic sky have vanished or will very soon disappear."

Samaranch had called the session in response to request by the Soviets, who had cast doubt on their participation in the Games and charged the United States had violated the Olympic Charter. But after Tuesday's meetings, the Soviets promised that they would attend the Games if the Los Angeles organizers "uphold the Olympic Charter."

Peter Ueberroth, president of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee and the chief U.S. representative at the talks, refused to characterize the meeting as a "breakthrough" guaranteeing Soviet attendance. But he said he would guarantee that the LAOOC would comply with the Charter.

"There has been some progress, but this is not a breakthrough," Ueberroth emphasized after a meeting with Marat Gramov, chief of the Soviet Olympic Committee.

Meanwhile, Soviet leader Constantine Chernenko offered to invite IOC officials to Moscow to discuss the Games, diplomatic sources said.

Italian Foreign Minister Giulio Andreotti, in Moscow for a three-day visit, asked Chernenko Tuesday about plans for Soviet participation, the sources said.

Chernenko offered no concrete assurances that the Soviet Union would attend, but he said he hoped his country would be able to participate in the games.

The sources said Chernenko offered to meet with the officials only if they would be empowered to make decisions that the U.S. Olympic Committee would be required to carry out.

A U.S.-Soviet joint communique issued in Lausanne said: "The Soviet Union's National Olympic Committee declares that Soviet athletes have the firm intention of participating in the Games in Los Angeles at the 23rd Olympiad under the condition that the Olympic Charter is enforced. The Los Angeles Committee gave its assurances in declarations that the Olympic Charter would be entirely respected."

Gramov, however, would not say definitely that the Soviets would attend the Games.

"A step forward has been made, by getting rid of some impediments which had been accumulating recently," he said. "I'm satisfied with the assurances given by Mr. Ueberroth. But a number of questions still have to be discussed. I'm sure that with further close contact with the LAOOC, the problems will be solved."

The Soviets repeatedly have said they do not intend to boycott the Olympics as the U.S. did in 1980 at Moscow in protest of the Soviet Union's military intervention in Afghanistan. But they have not fully ruled out withholding their athletes over alleged U.S. violations of the Charter.

Among the elements apparently agreed upon during Tuesday's meeting were allowing the Soviets and other nations to submit lists of participants to the LAOOC instead of U.S. embassies and consulates, a move that should meet Soviet complaints that its athletes needed visas despite contrary stipulations in the Olympic Charter.

The U.S. embassy in Moscow has denied that it intended to require visas for Soviet athletes and team officials.

In addition to complaints about preparations for the Olympics, the Soviets also have charged that President Reagan was using the Games for election year politics, and said that Los Angeles was too polluted, too dangerous and too expensive a venue for the Games.

Dawkins Wants A Final Berth

DURHAM (AP) - There's one thing that would make Johnny Dawkins even happier than being among the final 20 players left in the running for a spot on the U.S. Olympic team.

That's making the final 12.

"I'm going to be in top shape when I go up there and I'm going to hope for the best," Dawkins said. "Right now I'm very happy to be in the position I'm in - but I'll be even happier if I'm one of the 12 guys to make the Olympic team."

Even though Dawkins was coming off a fine 1984 season with Duke University, he said he believed he was a long-shot. Seventy-two players were invited to the tryout, and teammate Mark Alarie and Wake Forest's Anthony Teachey were among the Atlantic Coast Conference players to make the first cut.

"I knew when I went up to Bloomington, Ind., where coach Bobby Knight will decide who to keep. Now Dawkins, and North Carolina's Sam Perkins and Michael Jordan are the only ACC representatives left."

Knight, head coach at Indiana, said Dawkins surprised him.

"I think Dawkins played much more under control than I've seen him play," said Knight. "I thought

Computer Watches Employees

By CAROL BOWERS
Associated Press Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — The next time you call an airline for a reservation or a magazine company for a subscription, there may be a third party monitoring your call: a computer.

It's not what you and the operator say to each other that matters to the computer, it's how long you chat.

In a growing number of service industries, phone calls are monitored by computer to gauge employee efficiency, and some workers resent it.

A telephone operator in Baltimore with 16 years experience was fired recently because computerized records indicated her speed didn't meet the "Average Work Time" standard established by her employer, AT&T Communications, a subsidiary of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Operator Maevon Garrett said AT&T officials told her "my quality of work was good ... but I overextended myself to customers and stayed on the phone too long."

Mrs. Garrett was later reinstated, with only a two-week suspension on her record, following a protest by the Communications Workers of America.

Computerized tracking of job performance continues, and not just in the phone company, which pioneered the concept.

"We have time standards for reservation agents," said Trans World Airline spokesman David Venz. "We have certain time standards in which we essentially expect agents to make a sale or conclude a call."

"We know what the average conversation time is for whatever activity you are doing," said Jacqueline Mutnansky, operations manager for the phone banks in Chicago that take magazine subscription orders for Time Inc.

She said Time's Telephone Marketing Response Center has a standard "call time" for each type of call.

"You should have processed a specific number of calls and averaged a certain phone conversation time," Ms. Mutnansky said.

Officials at TWA and at the U.S. Postal Service said employees are not fired or transferred for working too slowly, but a bad Average Work Time report can lead to retraining.

"We look at it as just a way to see who needs further training," Venz said. "We feel it's a perfectly accepted practice. It's just looked on as a good tool to make employees more productive."

Some employees don't consider it a good tool at all.

Average Work Time is "a hated concept nationally ... It hits a real raw nerve," said Jeffery Miller, a national spokesman in Washington for the CWA, which represents telephone operators.

The phone company's evaluation procedure is an example of "how the computer can turn workers into a production line type," Miller said. He said it causes operators "to try to get rid of a customer real quickly — for instance those who stutter or can't speak English."

Eleanor Street, a union official who recently retired after 38 years as a telephone operator, said operators don't feel a sense of achievement in serving customers when the length of each call is timed.

"Just imagine working under that pressure five days a week ... Imagine what this does to your soul," said Mrs. Street. "What it does to customers is that they have become merely voices, someone to get rid of as soon as you possibly can."

Mrs. Street, who remains president of CWA Local 2110 despite her retirement, said, "I was told when I was trained you take care of quality, you take care of accuracy, and quantity and speed will take care of itself."

Charles Thornton, assistant vice president at AT&T Communications, said operators' wages and training make up the most expensive part of providing service.

The company's "first and foremost objective is providing high quality service," Thornton said, but it's also "very important to make sure our costs are low, and we are fair to the ratepayers."

At the Postal Service in Washington, spokeswoman Jeanne O'Neill said letter carriers are inspected annually by supervisors who accompany them to see whether "enough time has been allocated to deliver the mail."

Ms. O'Neill said the Postal Service also hires outside companies to conduct studies on how long certain sorting procedures should take.

"Letter sorting machine operators ... are required to key in one piece of mail per second. And of course we're very careful to check their error rate," Ms. O'Neill said.

The president of Local 202 of the National Alliance of Postal and Federal Employees Union in Baltimore said he felt sorting one piece of mail per second was "too much."

Greensboro Joins 'Best Places To Live' List

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three of the five best places to live in the United States are in North Carolina and the two others are in Tennessee, according to a statistical survey by a New York geographer.

The study published Tuesday by Robert M. Pierce of the State University of New York at Cortland called Greensboro, N.C., the best place to live, based on factors ranging from the weather to the crime rate.

Fresno, in Pierce's native state of California, was rated the worst place to live in the United States.

"This is off the map of reality," Fresno Mayor Daniel Whitehurst commented. "I'm sure more people here think we are in the top 10 than think we're in the bottom 0."

Besides Greensboro, other cities in Pierce's top five were Knoxville, Tenn.; Asheville, N.C.; Nashville, Tenn., and Raleigh, N.C.

Joining Fresno in the bottom five were Lawrence, Mass.; Fitchburg, Mass.; Lawton, Okla., and Stockton, Calif.

Pierce presented his study to the annual meeting of the Association of American Geographers in Washington. It lists what he calls the 25 best and worst cities in the nation.

The conclusions differed markedly from those in a 1981 book, "Places Rated Almanac," that ranked 277 cities across the nation. For example, Atlanta was first in that volume but merits only 10th, according to Pierce.

Pierce attributed the differences to the earlier book's giving equal weight to all factors. The arts were considered as important as crime.

"It is highly unlikely that many Americans evaluate the importance of these two quantities as being equal," Pierce said.

Factors considered by Pierce included climate, crime, economics, housing, education, health care, recreation, transportation and the arts.

Pierce multiplied the value for the local economy by nine, that of the weather by seven and so on, with the arts ranking last.

Using this weighted ranking, New York dropped from 26 to 156; Topeka, Kan., from 104 to 223, and Springfield, Mass., from 136 to 249.

Longview, Texas, climbed from 229 to 94, Pascagoula, Miss., rose from 205 to 71 and Florence, Ala., climbed from 147 to 27.

While Pierce's study listed those rating changes as examples, his detailed tables provided only the 25 best and 25 worst cities by his reckoning.

Rounding out the 25 best were: 6. Charleston, W.Va.; 7. Wheeling, W.Va.; 8. Evansville, Ind.; 9. Anaheim, Calif.; 10. Atlanta; 11. San Jose, Calif.; 12. Galveston, Texas; 13. Portland, Ore.; 14. Louisville, Ky.; 15. Seattle; 16. Lexington, Ky.; 17. Eugene, Ore.; 18. Fort Wayne, Ind.; 19. Washington; 20. Huntington, W.Va.; 21. New Brunswick, N.J.; 22. Pittsburgh; 23. Salem, Ore.; 24. Utica, N.Y.; 25. Johnstown, Pa.

The balance of his 25 worst were: 6. Pine Bluff, Ark.; 7. Texarkana, Texas; 8. Rockford, Ill.; 9. Lowell, Mass.; 10. Paterson, N.J.; 11. Great Falls, Mont.; 12. Bakersfield, Calif.; 13. Jackson, Mich.; 14. Macon, Ga.; 15. St. Joseph, Mo.; 16. Lewiston, Maine; 17. Bristol, Conn.; 18. New Britain, Conn.; 19. Gary, Ind.; 20. Meriden, Conn.; 21. Waterbury, Conn.; 22. Peoria, Ill.; 23. Kankakee, Ill.; 24. Corpus Christi, Texas; 25. Pittsfield, Mass.

The Fresno Bee newspaper checked some of the statistics for Cortland, N.Y., where Pierce teaches. The town gets an average of almost 40 inches of rain a year, four times Fresno's average; 67 inches of snow compared with none in Fresno, and summer humidity around 80 percent compared with Fresno's average of 20 percent, the paper said.

High Hope Is Dashed

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — State lawmaker Sharon Spencer had some good news for the people of Charleston, unfortunately for her it wasn't the people who live in this Charleston.

Ms. Spencer, a Democratic delegate to the state legislature, said Friday that she had learned from "a key official" at United Airlines that the carrier would resume service to Charleston after a six-year absence. She said the announcement would come later.

Well, the word came "later." But Ms. Spencer missed the mark by several hundred miles.

United spokesman Chuck Novak said the airline would begin service to Charleston, S.C., June 1.

"We're not starting service in Charleston, West Virginia," Novak said. "West Virginia is one of four states we do not serve."

A "very disappointed" Ms. Spencer speculated that the airline changed plans at the last minute, or that it intends to resume service here later this year.

"I hope for the people's sake that these are their plans," she said.

'A-Team' At Top Of Rating List

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Viewers shut off their television sets last week and those who stayed tuned switched networks, giving ABC the top spot for the week ended April 22 and propelling NBC's "The A-Team" to the head of the Top 10.

CBS, which a week earlier sewed up the season title, tumbled to the third position. All three networks lost viewers with the end of the 1983-84 season April 15. In the season's last week, an estimated 40 million households tuned in to the networks. But that dropped about 11 percent, to 36 million households, in the week that ended April 22.

The second highest-rated show of the week was the final chapter of NBC's Easter week miniseries "Jesus of Nazareth." Despite its third-place finish, CBS had four shows in the Top 10 and ABC and NBC had three each.

ABC won with a network average of 14.6 in the A.C. Nielsen Co. survey and NBC was second with 14.1. Third-place CBS had 13.9. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute 14.6 percent of the TV homes were tuned to ABC.

The ratings for ABC and CBS were the lowest since last summer and show the decline in viewership that comes at the end of the season. Last week CBS and ABC tied with 17.5.

CBS' highest-rated show was "Simon & Simon," which was third.

Three situation comedies showed up in the Top 10 after a near shutout during the season. ABC's "Three's Company" placed fourth, the ABC spring tryout series "Shaping Up" was fifth, and NBC's "The Facts of Life" was seventh. The previous week "Shaping Up" made its debut in 35th place.

A rerun of the CBS movie "Murder in Coweta County," in which Andy Griffith and Johnny Cash were adversaries, was sixth. CBS' "Magnum, P.I." was eighth and CBS' "60 Minutes" and the ABC movie "Norma Rae" tied for ninth. The CBS movie "John Paul II," starring Albert Finney as the pope, was 58th.

At the bottom of the ratings was NBC's "Father Murphy." The bottom five shows were: CBS' "AFI Salute to Lillian Gish," CBS' "The Whiz Kids," the CBS special "A Fine Romance," NBC Reports: "Assault on Big Brother: Regulating the Regulators," and NBC's "Father Murphy."

CBS did keep its lead among the evening news shows, with NBC second and ABC third. The ratings: CBS 11.8, NBC 10.4 and ABC 9.7.

A BIG, BIG SURPRISE — Shirley MaLaure, who recently won an Academy Award for her role in "Terms of Endearment", gets another big boost from "Targa", an elephant from the Ringling Bros. & Barnum and Bailey Circus, in New York Tuesday night. The elephant was a surprise on the occasion of Shirley's 50th birthday, and was brought to the outside of the theater where MaLaure is starring in "Shirley MaLaure on Broadway". (AP Laserphoto)

Say Ailment Not Life-Threatening

HOUSTON (AP) — French actress Leslie Caron, hospitalized since she collapsed backstage before a matinee performance of "On Your Toes," is suffering a debilitating, but not life-threatening, ailment, says a spokeswoman for the national touring company.

Ms. Caron, 52, was admitted to St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital on Sunday. Hospital officials refused to release information about Ms. Caron's condition at the request of her family.

However, Marilyn Levine, a representative for the national tour in New York, said Tuesday that doctors were still trying to diagnose the problem.

"She was weak and losing weight," Ms. Levine said.

Ms. Caron's ailment is "not life-threatening, but it's debilitating and dehydrating," she said. "If you've been to Europe or Mexico and gotten sick, you know what it's like. Sometimes it's the water you drink."

Ms. Caron performed Saturday night but fainted backstage before Sunday's matinee performance.

To People Who Love Bad Movies, A Wide Choice

By JONI BALTER
SEATTLE (UPI) — There are people who pig out on film fiascos.

"They want bad, they get bad," said Fred Hopkins, co-entrepreneur of the Backtrack Cinema Society, which specializes in terrible movies.

"The worse the movies are, the better," he said. "Our biggest hit was 'Plan Nine from Outer Space.' That is the worst movie ever made. It was totally inept and it was our best hit ever."

Some cinema fans in Seattle — a city with a nationally recognized nose for discovering good films — have lost the scent.

They have joined movie devotees around the nation in attending showings of films listed in the book "Golden Turkey Awards," which catalogued the worst movies ever made.

Inspired by the book, movie buffs and critics have put together their own lists of the most incompetent performances both before and behind the camera.

In the process, a new category of cult classics has emerged — such film fiascos as "Attack of the Killer Tomatoes," and similarly titled movies featuring attacks by crab monsters, giant leeches and mushroom people. Other tributes to cinematic ineptitude include "The Astro-Zombies," "Bela Lugosi Meets a Brooklyn Gorilla" and "Exorcist II: The Heretic."

"We're trying to get people interested in the worst movies of all time, because the bad movies are so bad there's a trace of genius in them," Hopkins said.

So far so good. Backtrack, a society of two, finds audiences are growing — and not just at the original "trash dinner theater" at a Capitol Hill restaurant where atrocious films are shown once a month.

Audiences also are increasing for bad musicals at a tavern series showing such classics as "Get Yourself a College Girl," featuring the Dave Clark Five, Nancy Sinatra and Chad Everett.

"The beauty of watching a really bad movie is that you get the feeling you could make one yourself," Hopkins said.

"We really felt Seattle wasn't being served in terms of junky trashy films," he said, explaining how the idea for awful movies started two years ago. "Camp is in."

He said a lot of New Wavers frequent films such as "Invasion of the Bee Girls" and "Glen or Glenda," described as a 1950 docu-fantasy about transvestites.

The idea for showing strikingly lame films doesn't do much for Ruth Hayler of the Seven Gables Theaters, a Seattle chain that has helped earn the city's reputation for discovering top quality art and foreign films.

"My feeling is there are enough horrible movies that people try to

Boy Dies Of Injuries In Skylight 'Fall'

RALEIGH (AP) — A fourth-grader, who apparently jumped through a skylight on a roof garden of the Legislative Building, fell three stories into a courtyard, and died from injuries sustained in the fall about an hour later.

Nathan Shoe of China Grove was celebrating his 10th birthday Tuesday and he and a friend were playing on the terraced roof when the accident occurred. Officials say Nathan was touring state government buildings on a family outing.

J. Michael Minshew, chief of security at the Legislative Building, said preliminary investigations indicated that Nathan was jumping from one domed-shaped skylight to another in the garden.

The rooftop garden is one of four open to the public. The skylight was one of 25 housed in a raised garden bed of red azaleas and small trees. No signs warn visitors to stay off the 20-inch-high bed.

Nathan fell silently 40 feet to the polished concrete and stone floor in a first-floor lobby, said Dot Barber, an administrative assistant to House Speaker Ligon Ramsey, D-Madison.

"We heard this loud noise, just glass breaking," she said. "I looked up and saw a person falling."

Ms. Barber, who said the boy was lying in a pool of blood, summoned help at about 10:30 a.m. Anne Shoe, Nathan's mother and a kindergarten teacher at St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Mooresville, cradled her son until an ambulance arrived, Ms. Barber said.

He was taken to Wake County Medical Center, where he died at 11:36 a.m.

"Intensive efforts were made to save him, but life was pretty much gone by the time he got here," said Dr. Laurin Kaasa, Wake County medical examiner, who performed an autopsy and listed cause of death as "massive head injuries."

Mrs. Shoe, Nathan's grandmother, Marie Shoe, and brother Dwight "were right inside, sitting down" in a third-floor lobby area as Nathan and his friend played on the terrace, Mrs. Shoe said.

"There were no barriers. It didn't occur to us. We didn't dream that they'd go off the concrete (walk)," she said.

It was the first such accident in the building's 21-year history, said George Hall, head of legislative services. The garden "is not in a pedestrian area," he said, adding that any changes in public access would come from the Legislative Services Commission, a body of lawmakers who review legislative operations.

Senate President Pro Tem Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, co-chairman of the commission, said he would instruct Hall to close the area to the public "until we decide what we're going to do."

Nathan was in the fourth grade at Knollwood Elementary School in China Grove, where his family moved last year from Davidson.

Optimism At High Point

By TOM MINEHART Associated Press Writer

When about 41,000 furniture buyers and others converge on High Point Thursday for the Southern Furniture Market, they'll find many of the 1,300 manufacturers there generally optimistic about the industry.

"We expect 1984 shipments will be up another 15 to 17 percent over 1983," said Doug Brackett, executive director of the Southern Furniture Manufacturers Association. "But that will just get us back to prerecession levels."

Brackett said total shipments for 1984 were expected to reach $13.4 billion, compared to $11.4 billion for 1983.

The market, which begins Thursday and runs through May 4, is held in April and October. Market officials say each market attracts an average of 40,750 retail furniture buyers, factory executives, manufacturers' sales representatives, interior designers, reporters and others from all 50 states and more than 50 foreign countries.

Brackett said upholstered furniture was selling very well and wood furniture "reasonably well."

"Why" is one of the $64,000 questions," he said. "My theory is that you can replace a few upholstered pieces with a smaller total investment, but you don't change one (wood) dresser, you change a whole bedroom."

Wood furniture shipments were up 15.6 percent from 1982 to 1984, and upholstery shipments rose 20.4 percent.

"But keep in mind that 1982 was absolutely the pits," Brackett said. He said he also expected wood furniture sales to improve this year.

Another trend this year is the growth of contemporary styling — furniture with cleaner, straighter lines and "fewer geegaws" than traditional furniture, he said. A related trend is the growing use of polyester finishes, which provide a high-gloss, colored surface.

Brackett said he didn't think the recent rise in interest rates would affect continued growth in furniture sales.

"People's mind-set right now is that they're in a buying mood," he said. "If their mood is that they're not going to buy, you can give money away and it wouldn't make any difference."

'Ocean Venture' Exercise Underway

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — An airlift to Puerto Rico, planned to include 32,000 personnel from every U.S. military service, began Tuesday, officials said, as part of an exercise dubbed "Ocean Venture '84."

The 26th Marine Amphibious Unit from Camp Lejeune left the port at Morehead City Tuesday afternoon to take part in the maneuvers.

The exercise, the largest joint military exercise ever conducted in the Caribbean basin, was designed to show that the United States can protect its interests in the area, officials said.

Stevedores See Poor Future In Their Work

KENNY CULBRETH, a longshoreman for four decades on the docks of south Philadelphia, waits to help hand out the day's jobs at the Union Hiring Hall. (AP Laserphoto)

By ROBERT W. THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — During four decades of working on the docks of south Philadelphia, longshoreman

Kenny Culbreth has handled whatever cargo has come his way, from the benign to the hazardous.

In the 1960s, "we worked poison gas and mustard gas and asbestos by the millions of tons, boxcar loads," he says. He's seen skin peeling from the arms of co-workers who unloaded containers of acid.

"Longshoremen do the hardest labor in this country. We unload every commodity that's imported and exported. Ship to rail, we handle it," says Culbreth, a stocky man with graying hair. "Whether you use brain or brawn, you get it to move."

Culbreth still accepts the physical risks and rigors of an occupation that has put food in the mouths of his seven children.

But these days, he isn't sure he would recommend that a young man looking for a line of work follow his footsteps.

Culbreth is afraid he and his fellow stevedores are the dinosaurs of the blue-collar world, being driven to the brink of extinction by increasing automation on the waterfront and by shippers more concerned with "union busting" than paying a man an honest wage for an honest day's work.

He has a right to be concerned, because there just isn't as much work to go around as there used to be, and there are more people who are unemployed and looking for whatever work they can find.

The stickiest issue in contract negotiations during the February strike by International Longshoremen's Association members in North Atlantic ports was the guaranteed annual income program that dockworkers have enjoyed since the inception of containerized cargo.

Under their previous contract, Philadelphia area longshoremen who had worked enough hours to qualify for the program were guaranteed that they'd be paid for at least 1,900 hours per year, even if they worked fewer hours.

The three-year contract ratified by the ILA locals Feb. 16 reduced the number of guaranteed hours to 1,500 — the equivalent of 37½ forty-hour weeks.

However, to qualify for that guaranteed annual income, anyone starting out on the docks after Oct. 1, 1983, must work at least 700 hours a year for five successive years. Union members in good standing before Oct. 1 don't have to work a minimum number of hours for the guaranteed income.

Working the minimum number of hours to become "qualified," or eligible for guaranteed income, has become increasingly difficult in recent years, mostly because of a reduction in the amount of freight coming into Philadelphia that requires ILA labor.

Philadelphia, because of its many oil refineries, handles a large number of bulk cargo vessels, whose contents can be unloaded with a minimum of manpower.

But longshoremen say what has really hurt them most is the advent of containerized cargo vessels. Containers from those ships can be lifted by cranes onto waiting truckbeds, reducing the time needed to unload at docksides.

Until the current contract expires, union members won't have to concern themselves with "making their hours." But after the three years is up, some longshoremen worry that under a future contract they may have trouble working the minimum number of hours to remain qualified.

Gesturing toward dozens of men waiting for work inside a crowded hiring center in south Philadelphia, Culbreth says he could be "in the same boat as these people are in."

At each ILA local's hiring center, between 7 and 8 each morning, foremen fill out crews for the various projects that need to be done. First they'll choose from among the "qualified" union members, and then, if they need more workers, the foremen will pick from among the non-union people there.

In past years, Culbreth says, getting work on the waterfront wasn't much of a problem.

"The average man down here who was qualified to work would make 2,300, 2,400, 2,600 hours per year. That's less five weeks vacation. That's working five, six days a week.

"You see here?" he asked, pointing to non-union men anxiously milling about, waiting for work. "It used to be there wouldn't be nobody here, when we had the work."

"These are newcomers, don't even belong to the local, trying to get work. They come from all walks of life," said Culbreth.

Culbreth said he feels shippers have been diverting cargoes away from Philadelphia to other ports in an attempt to "bust" the strong unions here.

Whether those shippers bring the work back to Philadelphia will determine whether he and his co-workers live comfortably or scrape by, he says.

"Would I advise anybody to come be a longshoreman? If the work picks up, yes. If it doesn't, no," Culbreth said.

Confusion Over Gall Bladder

My father has had two attacks of gall bladder disease. The X-rays that were taken did not show any stones. I was told that if these attacks continue, an operation will be necessary. I am confused because I thought that gall bladder operations are always done to take out stones. — Mr. N.T.O., South Dakota.

Dear Mr. O.:

You are in a state of confusion about the relationship between stones, gall bladder disease, and surgery.

Cholecystitis, or an inflammation or infection of the gall bladder, is most frequently related to small or large stones that lie in the gall bladder or in the ducts that carry bile from the liver to the gall bladder. These stones may also obstruct the free passage of bile from the gall bladder into the upper part of the intestines where it is used for the digestion of fatty foods.

When the bile is dammed back, the gall bladder becomes distended and the lining becomes thickened, swollen, and inflamed.

Now this very same process can occur in the absence of stones.

Bacterial infection and sluggish movement of bile can produce the same painful symptoms as those caused by stones.

The outstanding symptom of gall bladder disease, with or without a stone, is sudden acute pain in the right upper part of the abdomen. One of the characteristics of this pain is that it shoots, or radiates, to the right side of the back underneath the shoulder blade.

When these symptoms are present, X-rays are made of the gall bladder using special dyes. Even in the absence of stones, the gall bladder may fail to show the free passage of this dye because of existing inflammation. Sonogram studies can now reveal a great deal of information about the condition of the gall bladder.

Conservative treatment with antibiotics and pain relievers can control the acute episodes of this painful condition. Sometimes rigid diets that avoid fatty foods can be helpful in avoiding some of the repeated attacks of gall bladder disease.

When medical treatment fails to alleviate the symptoms, surgery, even in the absence of stones in the gall bladder, is often the safest and the most rewarding form of treatment.

***

My son is planning to marry his second cousin. Can this closeness be harmful to their children? — Mrs. D.W., Indiana.

Dear Mrs. W.:

A reliable statistical study showed that 95 percent of all children born of a first cousin marriage were perfectly normal.

The chances of abnormality occurring in a second cousin marriage are distinctly less. Nevertheless, it would be psychologically important to seek the advice of one of the superspecialists in genetics. For with special new blood studies and careful evaluation of the family history they can, with a relative degree of accuracy, speculate about the possibilities of birth defects in such situations.

Seeking such an opinion is extremely valuable and is as important as premarital examinations of the two wedding partners.

Advisers See Results In Salvadoran Medics

By CARL MANNING
Associated Press Writer
SAN MIGUEL, El Salvador (AP) — U.S. Army advisers training medics for the Salvadoran armed forces believe they are making progress in their efforts to see fewer soldiers die needlessly.

Combat medics were almost unknown to the average Salvadoran army company before the U.S. Army began a crash program last May to train soldiers in the basics of saving lives.

"We are beginning to see the results," said one U.S. adviser at the army garrison in this city about 85 miles east of the capital. He and other members of the medical team agreed to be interviewed on condition that, for security reasons, they not be identified.

"There are more of them who are brought in alive and more of them who are surviving," said one Western observer familiar with the team's work. He, too, spoke on condition of anonymity for security reasons.

Before the team started training medics, one of every three Salvadoran soldiers wounded in action against leftist guerrillas later died. The comparable wartime statistic in the U.S. military was one of eight.

The U.S. medical advisers say that in the past, it was not unknown for a Salvadoran soldier to bleed to death on the battlefield simply because no one knew how to apply a tourniquet. Basic equipment, such as bandages, has been distributed since their arrival.

The Salvadoran army established a medical battalion at the first of the year and the goal is to have a medic for each of the 150-man companies in the 40,000-member armed forces.

One U.S. trainer said a recent rebel attack on the San Miguel garrison showed the soldiers training here could perform well under fire.

"They went out there, picked up the wounded and took them to the aid station and helped in treating. They were doing what they had been taught in the classroom," he said.

The adviser said at first the medics were looked down upon by other soldiers because they weren't fighters, and in some cases local commanders forced them to fight as well as treat the wounded.

That attitude is beginning to change because the medics are volunteers from the ranks of battle veterans, and the soldiers fighting the war are seeing the positive results that a medic can bring to a company.

A Salvadoran Defense Ministry spokesman, Lt. Col. Ricardo Cienfuegos, agreed the medic training program has helped reduce battle casualties, but added there is room for improvement.

"It will help more if we can get more equipment. That is the major problem. We don't have enough helicopters for evacuations," he said.

The army has only 20 helicopters capable of airlifting the wounded, and they are used primarily for carrying troops, supplies and other tactical operations.

None is set aside specifically for medical evacuations. U.S. advisers have asked for such helicopters, and when President Reagan recently allocated $32 million in emergency aid for the Salvadoran army, it included funds for medical supplies and four helicopters for medical evacuations.

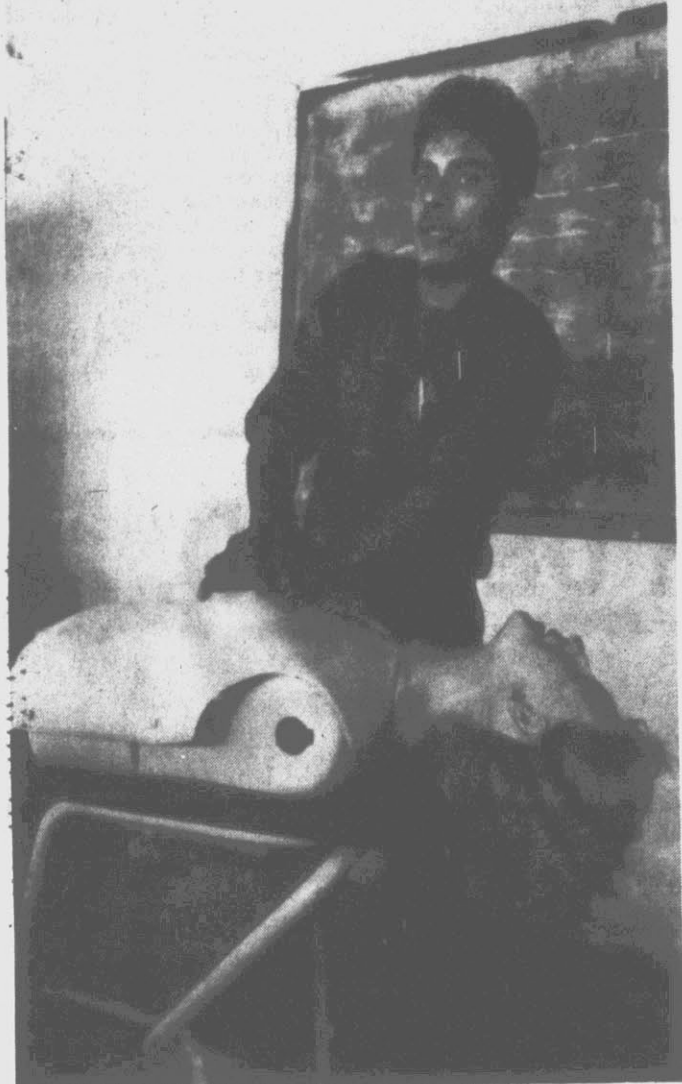

At the garrison here, soldiers undergo an intense five-week program to learn the basics of anatomy, treatment of wounds and basic hygiene. In the United States, Army medics go through a 12-week training program.

"We are dealing the kids straight off the farm who have no concept about how the human body works. We are giving them a skill and telling them it is something that will make their life better because they won't have to go back to that little farm," one U.S. trainer said.

They are selected by company commanders and nearly all of them have had battle experience, even though the average age is 16 to 17. To qualify for the course, they must have a sixth-grade education.

Diet Aims At City's Residents

By MARLENE AIG
Associated Press Writer
NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP) — Move over Beverly Hills, Southampton and Scarsdale. Here comes the New Rochelle diet.

But unlike those other well-publicized fitness plans, the New Rochelle version is aimed strictly at city residents, or rather, at their spreading waistlines.

Since Valentine's Day, more than 1,000 New Rochelle residents, as well as the police and fire departments, have agreed to weigh in and exercise their way to fitness — backed by each other and viewed regularly on local cable television. Although the plan has shown disappointing results so far, officials remain enthusiastic.

"We want to see our city fit," says Mayor Leonard Paduano, who said the Westchester County suburban community of 72,000 people believes "in good living and good eating."

"The idea for a city diet began two years ago, when the New Rochelle Hospital Medical Center took a survey about nutrition.

"People knew what they should be doing, but weren't doing it," says Frank Hall, a spokesman for the medical center. "So we decided to try to do something."

Aided by the city's health department, "Stay Well, New Rochelle," was born and publicized thoroughly by volunteer groups and the news media.

"We designed the program to be readily available and appealing," says Sylvia Schur, the program food consultant. "We designed it to be used by a variety of people, to give them choices. We based it on the recommendations of the National Institutes of Health. It reduces salt and builds on fiber and more complex carbohydrates."

Darlene Barber, 43, says she's one of those people who has tried every diet around, "from grapefruit to 500 calories a day and pray to God you don't die."

But the thing about staying well in New Rochelle, she said, is that the community is backing you up as well as "and watching you weigh in on TV." That's one incentive to lose or at least look thinner between the regular weigh-ins, she said.

Although the program does not guarantee instant weight loss, officials emphasize, it offers "wellness," which has attracted residents from ages 14 to 86.

Weight is only one of the items involved in the program. Exercises to increase the efficiency of how the body burns calories are integral to the program.

"It's done a lot for our seniors," Paduano says. "Some of them never realized they could continue to be fit. And continue to be concerned about good eating."

Participants are given the classic calories lists and menus, and are asked to attend regular exercise classes or to do them on their own.

But the numbers have officials a little down. Only 15 percent of the 800 who signed up in February and say they are regular participants have returned for weigh-ins, with a total weight loss of only 228 pounds.

Statistics for those who joined the program during April weren't available.

"People may be embarrassed because they haven't lost enough," says Keith Barnes, coordinator of the program for the city.

So the city is busy following up through phone calls trying to find out just how successful the program really is — and to let people know it's OK if goals aren't immediately met.

"It may be harder for some than others," says Paduano, who attributes his trimness to good eating, walking stairs and long walks with his dog, Niko. "We initiated the program to change habits. And that may take some time."

Recognition As Big Consumers

NEW YORK (UPI) — The elderly, once America's forgotten people, are fast gaining recognition as the important consumers they are, says a direct response advertising agency executive.

Carl Bloom, president of Bloom & Gelb, Inc., says older people account for 53 percent of disposable income in the United States today.

"For years, marketers thought older people only bought rocking chairs, when in fact they were buying trips around the world," Bloom said.

"With 11 percent of the nation's population now over age 65, the business community is beginning to take notice of mature people and how they spend their money."

One of his clients, the American Association of Retired Persons, has 15 million members.

"The clout this 'forgotten' market carries cannot be ignored," Bloom said, but marketers have to learn not to be condescending in their selling approach.

To Revive Ancestor Guidebook

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — An old English institution is nearing resurrection, courtesy of Harold Brooks-Baker, an American from Baltimore.

Within two years he plans to bring out a new edition of Burke's Peerage, the 3,000-page handbook to the British aristocracy that had rivaled the authoritative Debrett's, an even older institution. Brooks-Baker knows both publications from the inside: he was managing director of Debrett's and is now the publishing director of a consortium to rescue Burke's.

"Burke's was last published in 1970 and the company was semi-dormant," Brooks-Baker, a former journalist, said in an interview at his London club.

"We want to preserve it as an English institution and create a market that allows the book to be maintained."

Burke's, first published in 1824, is more revealing and anecdotal than Debrett's, which goes back to 1769.

"Debrett's is mainly a directory of information, while Burke's specialized in the histories of the leading families and gossip about them, their mistresses and their estates, and very accurately," the American said.

Brooks-Baker, 50, said he was a foreign correspondent for a Washington, D.C., weekly publication, The American Observer, now part of a scholastic magazine group. He stayed on in England to expand his hobby of family research and reference, he added.

"Everyone has ancestors and there is nothing more important than reference books," he said. "I'm a lazy man and a great one for short cuts, like Dr. Johnson."

It was Samuel Johnson, lexicographer, author, critic and wit, who said in 1775: "Knowledge is of two kinds. We know a subject ourselves or we know where we can find information upon it."

Reference books on the aristocracy and gentry are expensive to produce and the market is limited, but Brooks-Baker sees room for expansion.

He said Burke's itself won't make money, but franchising its name will, through the sale of certain products "which are loved by the aristocracy."

He also has ideas about reproducing materials like wallpaper that have been used in great houses in England and on the Continent, so that a family in Paris, Dallas or Palm Springs can have everything one could find in a room in some noble's palace or an aristocrat's house.

Funds to help relaunch Burke's are coming from an associated ancestor research program, which dug out the family trees of Presidents Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan.

"It's not very lucrative but it's steady," Brooks-Baker said of the research program. "Even during the recession there was no falling-off. We charge $450, and for that you get as much research as we can provide, nine generations or four or five, depending on how much your family moved around."

His chief researcher is Hugh Peskett, an Englishman who documented the Carter and Reagan ancestors. Peskett works in London and Winchester, 66 miles to the southwest, because of the valuable old archives of that city which was England's capital in Anglo-Saxon times and a center of learning.

Brooks-Baker himself works in a cubby-hole of a London office near Piccadilly at Hay Hill, a sloping little street where a party headed by the then-Prince of Wales, later King George IV, was once waylaid by highway thieves and could muster only half-a-crown (about 50 cents) among them.

"Genealogy in Europe is better organized than in any other place in the world," Brooks-Baker said.

"That's because there was a large and intelligent middle class in England for centuries, whereas elsewhere it was a 19th century phenomenon. And with the middle class comes rather good documentation of what people were doing, which you don't get with the working class."

He hopes to produce one day a new type of people directory — of those who have homes in several countries.

"There's a whole race of people, not the jet set, who have homes for business and pleasure in England, France, Italy, the United States and South America, who don't see themselves as being of narrow nationality but really cosmopolitan," he said.

"It's not a new thing. Paris has some 3,000 Americans of money, who have lived there for generations. They developed in the time of Jennie Jerome, Winston Churchill's American mother.

"A directory of them would run to some 50,000 names, accounting for a quarter of a million people. I've on it, already."

'Bootleg' Tapes Big In Turkey

By EMEL ANIL
 Associated Press Writer
 ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — U.S. Information Agency officials, fearing endless requests for a chance to view "The Day After," urged Turkish guests at a recent private screening, "Please don't tell anyone how you got to see this movie."

They needn't have bothered. More than a dozen "video clubs" were already offering their customers a bootleg videotape of the nuclear war movie.

In this fashion Turkish video buffs have seen such recent hits as "Return of the Jedi," "E.T.," "Sophie's Choice" and "Gandhi" soon after release — years before they normally would have.

The video business, dealing mainly in feature films and cartoons for children, is booming in Turkey.

And in most cases, both the tapes and the machines have entered the country illegally. Thousands of videotapes circulating in Turkey are pirated, dealers confess.

In this nation of 47.7 million people, there are an estimated 1 million home video recorders, according to ODVI, the first and largest video distribution company in Turkey, and others in the business. In comparison, there are over 9 million machines in the United States, or about 1 for every 25 people.

Video sets can even be seen in some village coffeehouses in remote parts of the country where domestic movies and belly dancer shows are in high demand.

Turks took to video because the one-channel state-run television has few good programs. Three times a week there is a movie show that usually features a black and white relic from the 1950s. Locally produced shows are few and severely censored. Most programming is in black and white.

Foreign movies reach Turkey two to four years after their release in Europe and the United States. They too undergo censorship.

In the past two years, 2,000 video clubs have mushroomed throughout the country. These lend cassettes for a fee of 300 Turkish lira, or the equivalent of $1, per day.

In the major urban centers of Istanbul and Ankara, every affluent neighborhood has at least one video cassette dealer who will also help with repairs in equipment and make a copy of a cherished tape for $8 if the customer provides the empty cassette.

Baran Sarol, owner of ODVI, contends there is a video-piracy underground operating out of the Western capitals of London, Paris and Brussels.

These groups tape the latest movies, he said, and Turks living or traveling abroad carry them to their homeland.

Foreign television shows appear to be another source for videotapes. Some tapes distributed in Turkey include the commercials of the foreign show. Others have subtitles in Arabic, Dutch, German or French.

Turkish officials occasionally raid the video shops. ODVI has been raided and investigated dozens of times, Sarol says. But for lack of any legislation on the newfangled business, police in the past were unable to impose any sanctions.

Last November a new copyright law embracing the video business went into effect. The law calls for prison terms ranging from one month to three years for copyright violations, and all video cassettes must have special markings to show that the distributor has the copyright.

ODVI is hoping the new law will bring the video business under some kind of control. The company has signed copyright agreements with the British Broadcast Corp. and another British distributor, the Rank Corp. ODVI has plans for similar agreements with at least half a dozen more foreign distributors, making it tough competition for the free-lancing pirates working out of neighborhood corner shops.

Last month, the government of Premier Turgut Ozal allowed the importation of video recorders and cassettes as part of an import liberalization program. Some Turkish companies have started manufacturing video sets and tapes locally under foreign license. Most of them produce the Sony Betamax cassettes that are popular here.

The easier availability of the equipment will further boost the demand for movie tapes, most dealers believe.

Said a high-level official who refused the use of his name: "Turks are expert at getting around official regulations. As long as there is a high demand and good profits to be made, tapes will keep coming, with or without copyright."

Theoretically, the video cassettes must also pass through the censor to enter the country. But the cassettes are so small, so easy to declare untaped and so abundant that effective official control has so far proven impossible.

Under the circumstances, the authorities have opted for a general ban and sent a list of forbidden video films to all dealers last August.

Tourists Targeted By Egypt

By DALIA BALIGH
Associated Press Writer
CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Egypt, once a cultural playground for the wealthy, is trying to change its image by offering not only its ancient monuments but beaches and recreational facilities to tourists from all over the world.

But, whereas drawing visitors to the Giza pyramids, Abu Simbel temples and King Tut's tomb was easy, the Egyptian government is facing problems competing with other, better established and well known seaside resorts.

"Egypt no longer attracts only the rich elite of the world. Now there is mass tourism, all kinds of people, not just cultural tourism — more and more young people," Mohammed Nassim, chairman of the Egyptian General Authority for the Promotion of Tourism, told The Associated Press.

"Egypt has enormous capabilities. It offers beaches, desert, recreational sports, plus the ancient Egyptian monuments," he said. "We are now working on providing these services."

Egypt has a mild climate year round and extensive though largely undeveloped beaches on the Red and Mediterranean seas. But officials admit the beach areas often lack sufficient fresh water, electricity and transport facilities, and the prices charged by the few existing hotels and services are often higher than similar services in other Mediterranean countries.

High airfare, hotel and services prices during 1983 hampered the publicity campaign. One French diplomat said decreasing numbers of French tourists were visiting Egypt because one week here costs the same as two weeks in Spain or Italy.

Tourism plays an important role in Egypt's economy as the country's third-ranking source of foreign currency, bringing in between $1.6 billion and $1.7 billion annually. Official figures show that while there was a 6 percent increase in the number of tourists in 1983 to 1.1 million, foreign visitors stayed fewer days and spent some $60 million less than in 1982.

Nassim listed the increased prices of services and the security situation in the Middle East as reasons for the loss.

Private tourist agencies agree with the government's analysis but doubt any serious measures will be taken to improve the situation. One tour guide, who declined to be identified, said that tourists "associated" the civil strife in Lebanon and the Iraq-Iran war with Egypt.

"For some European or American who has never visited the area, it is not easy to convince them that Egypt is stable and safe," the guide said. "That and increased prices will not reflect well on the number of tourists coming to Egypt."

Politics and higher prices also have sharply affected the number of Arab visitors, who once accounted for more than half of Egypt's tourists.

Arabs traditionally visited Egypt to escape their hot desert homes and strict Islamic laws which prohibit alcohol and nightclubs. However, Egypt's peace with Israel and the subsequent boycott by 17 Arab states has led to a decline of about 3 percent in the number of Arabs visiting here each year.

Peace overtures with Israel which began in 1977 led to a rush in Western tourism investment in Egypt. Some of the projects backfired.

Dozens of tourist agencies opened, and several first class hotels were begun in the early 1980s. But the decrease in tourism plus the sudden increase in the number of hotels left many of them struggling with 50-60 percent capacity, too small for big profits.

Both government and travel agency officials agree that what is needed now are more second class hotels for the new breed of tourists they hope to attract.

A Tropical Fruit That People Hate

NEW YORK (UPI) — Durian is a tropical fruit people love to hate.

Its creamy whitish flesh is suggestive of almonds, sherry, custard and ice cream, but its smell has been described as a mixture of old cheese, onions and turpentine, says an article in the April issue of Geo magazine.

The fruit is banned from many public places in Singapore, Malaysia, Thailand and Indonesia because of its offensive odor, which the article says clings to clothes and even walls of rooms.

A typical durian anecdote tells of a Chinese businessman who was evicted from a luxury hotel in Kuala Lumpur when he began eating a durian he had sneaked in. The odor was picked up by a room ventilator and spread throughout the hotel, which had to be evacuated until it could be deodorized.

Losing His Big Ranch In Jungles

By MONTE HAYES
 Associated Press Writer

TRUJILLO, Honduras (AP) — American businessman Temistocles Ramirez de Arellano won his battle against jaguars, deadly snakes and the jungle that begins at the edge of this isolated Caribbean coastal town.

But he's losing his fight against the U.S. Army and the Honduran government.

Ramirez, a native of Puerto Rico who attended high school and college in St. Louis, came here nearly a quarter of a century ago looking for adventure and a place where he could be his own man.

He carved a 14,000-acre ranch from the jungles and built the largest meat and shrimp packing business in this part of the country.

Then, in June 1983, the U.S. Army moved onto a section of his ranch and began construction of a camp to train Salvadoran troops to fight leftist guerrillas. U.S. Army officers later said the Honduran military had told them it was government land.

In November, as part of joint E.S.-Honduran maneuvers, U.S. warships anchored near his wharf and 2,000 Marines made an amphibious landing. They set up tents around his buildings. Officers demanded the keys to his gates. Tanks rolled over his property.

Ramirez supports President Reagan's policy of increased economic and military aid for Central America, and he believes, like Reagan, that foreign investment can raise the region's standard of living.

"I just want to get back my land, get back my business," Ramirez said as he drove a pickup truck over his ranch, pointing with pride to his prize breeding stock and talking of the challenges of ranchlife in the tropics.

"The bottom line is that the guy is a pioneer. He busted his rear end. We have a lot of sympathy for him," said a U.S. Embassy official who asked not to be identified. "But there's a war on. Twenty years ago nobody planned to be helping the Salvadorans train in Honduras."

Ramirez sued in U.S. District Court in Washington to keep the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers from trespassing. The judge refused to hear the case because it involved "national defense and national security."

In December, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington, in a 2-1 decision, also ruled against him. In a dissenting opinion, Judge Malcolm Wilkey said the ruling "ignores the nation's historic commitment of protecting private citizens' rights against military excesses."

His lawyers are considering filing for review, but Ramirez knows his chances are fading fast.

"You see, we did something you're not supposed to do. We talked back to the Honduran government," Ramirez said.

A few days before he lost his legal appeal, Honduras' military-dominated civilian government issued a decree announcing the beginning of expropriation of his whole property.

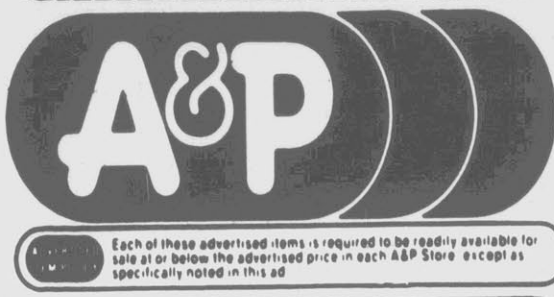

That includes his 14,000 acres, the dock for his seven shrimp boats, a large building containing his slaughtering and packing plant, bunkhouses for 50 cowhands, housing for 14 company executives, his home and other buildings.

The Honduran military has plans for building a large air, naval and army base on Ramirez's property. U.S. Ambassador John D. Negroponte said recently the United States was discussing providing aid for the project.

"I'm no military strategist. But I can see why they chose my land," Ramirez said. "It's cleared. It has electricity, water and good roads. It's near an airport and the deepest and best harbor in Central America. And it's in a very isolated part of the country where they can control people coming in and out."

Conservative In Shirt Colors

NEW YORK (UPI) — Men are still basically conservative in their choice of shirt colors, says manufacturer-retailer Mortimer Levitt.

White is still the favorite color, followed by blue and cream.

"This preference has not changed much since The Custom Shop, Shirtmakers was established in 1937," said its founder-owner.

Levitt said striped shirts are almost tied for third place because of renewed interest in the London fashion scene.

The company makes nearly 1 million shirts a year for its 57 stores throughout the United States and has a total of 350 shirtings in a wide variety of solids, stripes, checks and plaids.

Levitt said the traditional pointed collar remains the most popular, followed by the button down, which is almost a uniform at Ivy League colleges.

UP TO $1,000 INSTANT CREDIT!
CHOOSE FROM TWO PLANS.

Apply Today For A Lowe's Credit Card!

The Convenient Card For Your Home Improvement.

Just present your Visa, American Express or MasterCard, and you may qualify for up to $1,000 instant credit on a new Lowe's Card. (Even without these cards, your application will be processed with a minimum delay.) Ask a Lowe's salesperson for complete details.

The Lowe's Low Payment Credit Plan!

Finance Major Purchases Of Up To $5,000.

Our Low Payment Plan offers you an easier way to make those major home improvements and larger purchases. It's designed to let you finance purchases of $250 to $5,000 for up to five years at competitive rates. The result is a very low monthly payment that fits comfortably into your family budget and brings important home additions, from a new refrigerator to a new roof, within easy reach. Just look for the above symbol on selected items in our ads. And, where space is available, we'll also provide the specific credit details on selected items, to give you an idea of the relative size of monthly payments and Annual Percentage Rates. Low Payment Credit Terms are outlined below. So apply today. You may qualify for up to $1,000 instant credit when you present your Visa, American Express, MasterCard, Sears or Lowe's card!

*Lowe's Low Payment Credit Terms: Your credit must be satisfactory. Our cash price does not include sales tax. The monthly payment price may be slightly lower, depending upon state law. The monthly payment price includes sales tax of 4%. If sales tax differs in your area, the monthly payment will vary slightly. Credit Life and Disability Insurance is available upon request. Delivery charges are excluded.

In addition to the above, we also honor MasterCard, Visa and American Express.

AN ADVERTISING SUPPLEMENT
NC Edition: #4294

R STAMPING OUT IGNORANCE IS HALF THE FIGHT IN THE WAR ON DRUG ABUSE!

The only thing sadder than drug abuse among children is ignorance about drugs and drug abuse among parents.

Eckerd pharmacists, with their knowledge and specialized training, can answer parents' questions about drug abuse.
