Six Nations Issue Call For Test Halt

By The Associated Press
 The leaders of six nations claiming independence from both the Soviet Union and the United States issued a joint proposal today to halt the testing, production and deployment of nuclear weapons.
 Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India, President Miguel de la Madrid of Mexico, Prime Minister Olof Palme of Sweden, Premier Andreas Papandreu of Greece, President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania and Argentina President Raul Alfonsin planned to announce the initiative in their respective countries today.
 Alfonsin did not take part in drawing up the declaration but was invited to join as a signer in the final stage.

"We come from different parts of the globe, with differences in religion, culture and political systems. But we are united in the conviction that there must not be another war," a joint statement on the initiative said.

The "Four Continent Initiative" was disclosed in a statement issued in New York by the U.S.-based Parliamentarians for World Order, which describes itself as an international network of politicians working for disarmament and development.

U.S. Offers Saudis Protection

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has sent a personal message to Saudi Arabia's King Fahd offering American protection in the widening Persian Gulf war, but making clear U.S. aircraft would need access to Saudi airfields.
 The most immediate concern are the recent air attacks by warring Iran and Iraq on oil tankers in the Persian Gulf. Reagan has vowed to keep open the gulf sea lanes, through which 20 percent of the industrialized world's oil is transported.
 A U.S. official confirmed Monday that Reagan's letter was being delivered to the Saudi government by Richard Murphy, an assistant secretary of state for Mideast affairs, who was in Riyadh, the Saudi capital, on Monday.

But the official, who insisted on anonymity, said the need for access to Saudi airfields was simply part of contingency planning and didn't indicate that a decision for U.S. involvement was near. The official was familiar with the general thrust of the letter but not the exact wording.
 "The worse-case scenario would be to bring us in," he said the Saudis were being told. "But if they do, we need to plan, so they can publicly defend it with their people and so we can publicly defend it with ours."
 He said the president's letter made clear that the United States would be willing to support Saudi Arabia if it is a victim of aggression.
 There has not been an attack on shipping in the gulf since Iraq claimed its planes hit two ships near Iran on Friday. While encouraged, officials said it was too soon to speculate that the two warring nations had suspended their attacks on shipping.

 Following the attacks by Iranian aircraft on Saudi and other oil tankers in the gulf in recent weeks, Washington has suggested to the gulf nations, especially Saudi Arabia, that it would be willing to consider providing American air cover if they would permit U.S. aircraft to use their airfields.
 The Arab nations didn't agree to American use of the airfields when the subject came up at lower levels, but Reagan's letter to King Fahd raises the issue to the highest level. Washington has been pressing the Saudis to provide access to its military facilities since the Carter administration, but the Saudis, for various reasons, haven't agreed. One reason is that they fear a U.S. military presence in their country could provoke Moslem militants both at home and abroad. Another is Saudi objections to close U.S. ties to Israel.

 U.S. officials emphasized Monday that if the United States did intervene in the gulf, it wouldn't do it alone, but would join with its allies or with other nations in the gulf.
 They said that the Saudi monarchy is being told, however, that if it wants to keep open the possibility that the United States might help protect it from Iran, the Saudis need to plan ahead.

Duarte Says Degrading Conditions Unacceptable For U.S. Assistance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Salvadoran President Jose Napoleon Duarte headed into meetings with key members of Congress today determined to make his case against "degrading" legislative efforts to link U.S. military aid to protection of human rights.
 In a speech Monday night, Duarte said attempts by congressional liberals to impose unilateral conditions "on the people in the name of democracy is to take away part of the freedom for which they are fighting."

 But Duarte's U.S. visit was darkened by new allegations from the London-based Amnesty International that the Salvadoran government is responsible for many of the estimated 40,000 people killed there over the past five years.

After meeting with President Reagan on Monday, Duarte today was scheduled to call first on the House Foreign Affairs Committee, whose Democratic members long have favored strict conditions on military aid to El Salvador.
 In a military assistance vote earlier this month, House members opposed to tying aid to human rights in El Salvador won by a 212-208.
 Since his arrival here Saturday night, Duarte generally has refrained from harsh rhetoric, indicating a conciliatory attitude toward his opponents on both the left and the right in El Salvador and toward his principle foreign enemy, Nicaragua.

 But in his speech Monday night to a joint meeting of the World Affairs Council and the Foreign Policy Association, Duarte suggested he has no patience with the human rights advocates in Congress.

Pilot Escapes U-2 Crash In Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A U.S. Air Force U-2 reconnaissance plane crashed today near Osan Air Base but its pilot ejected safely, the U.S. military reported.
 A statement from headquarters said the aircraft was leaving the base, 30 miles south of Seoul, on a routine mission when the crash occurred.
 The statement did not say how or just where the crash took place, nor did it say how much altitude the plane had gained before crashing.
 The national daily newspaper Dong-a Ilbo in Seoul, quoting unnamed sources, reported that the aircraft crashed due to engine trouble which occurred during takeoff. The paper did not elaborate.
 The pilot was identified as Capt.

David Bonsi, who is a member of the 9th Strategic Reconnaissance Wing, and whose home base is Beale Air Force Base in California. After he ejected, he was reportedly picked up by rescuers who took him to the Osan base hospital. His condition was listed as good.
 Bonsi is temporarily assigned in South Korea for 60 days, a news release from the Osan base said.
 Military officials in Seoul said a board of officers was appointed to investigate the crash.
 The high-flying reconnaissance aircraft normally are used for gathering intelligence information. Those operating in the area of South Korea usually have been reported based on Okinawa.

County To Buy Office Building

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners on Monday approved the purchase of an office building and lot at 216 S. Washington St. for $130,000.

The building, owned by James L. Bullock, is across Washington Street from the Pitt County Courthouse and adjoins a 42,975-square-foot tract fronting on Greene Street that was purchased by the county last July.

The property includes a 21,070-square-foot building, built in 1955 and remodeled in 1965, on a 6,550-square-foot (50 feet by 131 feet) lot.

While there are no plans to develop the Greene Street property in the near future, county officials said that, if needed, the Bullock property could serve as a direct tie between the courthouse and the half-block on Greene Street.

In other business Monday, commissioners appropriated $4,996 to pay for a recently completed management study of the sheriff's department conducted by the National Sheriffs' Association and approved the installation of a base station for the county's fire and rescue communications network in the fire marshal's office in the county office building.

Fire Marshall Bobby Joyner said the radio would serve as a back-up to a radio in the county communications center.

Commissioners also accepted two American flags from Woodmen of the World Camp 218 in Greenville. Helen Randolph, who made the presentation, said the flags are to be flown at the county office building and at the courthouse.

The board also approved a request by the Greenville Jaycees to hold a fireworks display at the Town Commons on July 4.

County Manager Reginald Gray told the board that the county has received $212,096 more in sales tax revenue from the 1 percent local option tax than for the same period last year.

Gray also said the county received $291,807 from the half-cent sales tax for the period from December through February. He said the figure represents $56,572 more in revenue than was collected in the county during the three months.

Genius

This week is Art Week, intended as a tribute to artists and their contributions. One of the greatest artists was Leonardo da Vinci. The "Mona Lisa" is called the most valuable painting in the world. In addition to his drawings and paintings, da Vinci left behind designs for the parachute, horseless carriage, machine gun, airplane, helicopter, submarine, and mass production. The designs were done backward to be read with a mirror.

DO YOU KNOW — In what gallery is the "Mona Lisa" on display?

trumps are no worse than 3-1 and the ace-king will pick up the outstanding pieces.

Let's assume that West plays the ten. You win the king and learn the bad news. How do you continue?

Ruff a spade, cash three top clubs and take the diamond finesse. Ruff the king of spades, cross to the ace of diamonds and ruff a diamond. This is the position:

Now lead the jack of clubs, and West is a dead duck. If he ruffs low, dummy overruffs; if he ruffs high, dummy sheds the diamond and West is end played. He must lead from the Q-8 of trumps into your combined A-9 tenace.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. In a few months, the World Team Olympiad will be held in Seattle, Wash. If you feel you could do as well as many of the players selected to represent their country, try your hand at making six hearts on this hand.

With only four losers, South was just about justified in opening the bidding with two hearts. After receiving a positive response, he tried for a grand slam in case his partner held both missing high trump honors, but settled in six hearts when he learned one was missing.

West leads the jack of spades, and as soon as dummy comes down it is obvious that the slam is safe provided you lose no more than one trump trick. There is a safety play in this situation, and you become a candidate for our team if you spotted it — lead a low trump and, if West plays low, insert dummy's nine. Assuming East wins,

Runoffs Lead To Different Tactics

Primary Ahead

Area voters will make an extra trip to the polls on July 17 to choose party nominees for the N.C. Senate for the 6th and 9th districts.

The special primary was made necessary because of court-ordered redistricting which had the state Legislature working on a plan this year. Because of the time element the primary for the Senate nominees could not be held in May.

At this writing Tom Taft has filed as a Democratic candidate in the 9th District, which includes the southern part of Pitt County. Maynard Waters filed as a Republican.

In the 6th District R.L. (Bob) Martin has filed as a candidate. Martin is currently chairman of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners. His lone opponent so far is Dr. John Costabile, an optometrist of Wilson and Tarboro.

Other candidates may file prior to the Friday noon deadline.

The late shuffling of districts made a difficult situation for potential candidates and for voters. Nevertheless, it is a fact that the special primary will be held, and it should not be confused with the second primary which resulted from the May 8 primary.

Voters should be prepared to study the positions of candidates in the Senate races and to vote on July 17.

Failing The Test

There simply could be no easy "out" for Marine Cpl. Alfred Griffin in his court martial for being absent without leave when his unit was on orders to ship out.

Griffin and his attorney, William Kunstler, argue he was discriminated against because of his religious convictions ... a point they may argue to doomsday but it does not change the fact that part and parcel of the military life is obeying orders; there are no conditions attached to that prerequisite.

Nor, one might add, is anybody in the military service entitled to pick and choose a possible adversary under combat conditions. (Can you imagine a person in uniform deciding he did not want to serve against a foe who might include in its ranks individuals with the same name, or the same faith, the same race, the same color hair? Even the thought is absurd.)

Three other Marines from Griffin's battalion missed the movement (originally destined for Lebanon but later changed to Grenada). Two of them eventually returned and were duly confined at hard labor and received bad conduct discharges.

The code is nondiscriminatory. Within the ranks of the Marine Corps a special point is made of mutual dependency; presumably the trait is similarly encouraged to a greater or lesser degree in other services. The feeling of being let down by one of their noncommissioned officers must have been pervasive in Griffin's own unit.

He failed the "Semper Paratus" test.

RALEIGH (AP) — As the field of Democratic candidates for governor has narrowed from 10 to two, Rufus Edmisten and Eddie Knox have turned increasingly from the media to the telephone to rally supporters.

Part of the reason is that although 2.1 million Democrats are registered to vote in North Carolina, fewer than 700,000 have cast ballots in recent runoff elections. As the voter turnout drops from the first primary, the importance of campaign organization and get-out-the-vote efforts increases.

The telephone also helps woo supporters of unsuccessful gubernatorial candidates and raise money quickly for a final commercial blitz on television.

"Everybody's tired," said H. Pat

Taylor, the lieutenant governor in 1972 who lost the state's last gubernatorial runoff to Democrat Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles. "It is very difficult to maintain the enthusiasm and interest and the finances can be a serious problem."

"With 6 million people you have about done all the rallies you can and have done all the handshaking you can do. There is less personal contact and more of what you hope will bring out the differences between the two surviving candidates," he said.

When the candidates do travel, they've been stopping in areas where they performed best May 8 and where they can urge voters back to the polls for the June 5 runoff.

Edmisten led the field of Democrats in 72 counties and finished second in 19 other counties. In comparison, Knox finished first in 15 counties and took second-place in 55 counties while Faircloth led in nine counties, Gilmore in three and Green in one.

Many of the counties carried by Knox were in the Piedmont — Cabarrus, Gaston, Mecklenburg, Rowan, Rutherford and Stanly counties. Many of the counties where Knox showed worst were in the northeast.

The counties where Edmisten failed to finish first or second were among the least populous and the most remote, such as Clay County.

Only once in the last three runoffs did the candidate who placed second in the first primary become the party's nominee through the runoff. L. Richardson Preyer led a six-man field of Democrats running for governor in 1964 but former Gov. Dan K. Moore won the runoff after third-place finisher I. Beverly Lake Sr. endorsed him.

There are mixed opinions about the value of endorsements. Losing candidates Jimmy Green and Tom Gilmore have endorsed Knox while John Ingram and D.M. "Lauch" Faircloth are supporting Edmisten.

Taylor lost the runoff despite the endorsements of the third and fourth-place finishers in the 1972 race.

He said he believes few people can influence the vote of their husband or wife, much less a large bloc of voters.

The spotlight of public attention has become more intense with fewer candidates and the two survivors have moved quickly to draw sharp distinctions between themselves. The result has been a series of attacks and responses on campaign tactics and political obligations, each candidate blaming the other for beginning the exchange.

"There is a greater pressure to be articulate, to be more deliberate," said Bill Carl, one of Edmisten's advisers. "What he does is by plan. He must be highly disciplined in appearance."

Taylor said runoff candidates must concentrate on issues with mass appeal — taxes, insurance rates and utility bills. He said that in his race, Bowles repeatedly promised not to raise new taxes.

Bowles said runoffs seem to spark personal attacks. "People are making charges with little or no basis," he said. "Most people are inclined to think there is some truth in it or the newspapers would not publish it."

Bowles said he believes the tactic does help a candidate sometimes because people tend to believe the worst about politicians.

Both Bowles and Taylor are supporting Knox.

Feldstein Leaves Legacy Of Anger

WASHINGTON — When Dr. Martin Feldstein returns triumphant to Harvard, he will leave a legacy of anger, frustration and second thoughts in the White House about naming non-Reaganites to make policy in the Reagan administration.

Feldstein announced his long-scheduled resignation in the style that dominated his tenure as chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers. He neglected the courtesy normally shown a chief executive, using the event to command the news media with direct hits on President Reagan's economic policy.

Such performances have made Feldstein a hero to Reagan critics — in the news media, among liberal Republicans, but most particularly among partisan Democrats getting ready for the 1984 presidential campaign. White House staffers, who in August 1982 rejoiced that they had picked as the president's adviser a prestigious economist free of political or ideological taint, have long tasted regret.

Those regrets were reinforced May 8 when the prime rate vaulted to 12.5 percent. Republican euphoria over Reagan's re-election turned to fear over a tight-money debacle. Cautious White House prodding of the Federal Reserve Board to aim at nurturing the economic recovery, not shutting it off, had failed. Thus, the president's men gathered in near despair to decide what "guidance" to give spokesman Larry Speakes.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan, the loyalist, advised the White House not to scapegoat bankers but instead blame the Fed. Feldstein's alternative "guidance" was to praise his good friend, Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker, for holding down an alleged inflationary upsurge, which is thus far invisible to the naked eye. As usual, Regan's advice prevailed. As usual (but in violation of customary governmental practice), Feldstein publicly voiced his dissent.

However, he went one step further this time. At 8 o'clock the next morning, selected economic reporters summoned to Feldstein's office for coffee heard him disclose long-scheduled plans to leave Washington in July for Harvard's fall semester. The normal courtesy of first exchanging letters with the president was ignored. The White House learned of Feldstein's action through calls from newsmen to presidential aides arriving in their offices at 9 o'clock.

But courtesy's loss was publicity's gain. Feldstein's reiterated praise of the Fed's tight-money policy was not only spread over newspaper front pages across the nation. It poured out over no less than eight national television shows on which he personally appeared.

The notion of the Harvard don scampering around Washington from one TV studio to another contradicts the carefully constructed image of the incorruptible academician who puts truth above political expediency. Actually, Feldstein bungled his key CEA duty of economic forecasting.

While publicly dissenting from administration policy by urging higher taxes, he consistently underestimated growth (3.1 percent for 1983, just half the actual performance) and overestimated unemployment (10.3 percent for the last quarter of 1983, compared to the actual 7.8 percent). Two days after his resignation-publicity coup, the Producer Price Index was announced at 0.0 percent — scarcely validating Feldstein's worries of renewed inflation.

While Feldstein projects himself as a non-political visiting professor, he has succumbed to the old Potomac malady of sudden political wisdom. Lately, he has expressed concern about the administration's vulnerability to the "fairness" issue.

But the potentially most effective Reagan countermeasure on the "fairness" question — doubling the dependents tax exemption — came under Feldstein's fire in a supposedly confidential memo he sent to the president. The memo was quickly leaked, providing ammunition for Democrats when — as is probably — candidate Reagan unveils the doubled exemption as a pro-family device.

The White House brought all this on itself nearly two years ago by picking an economic adviser who was on record against Reagan tax policies. Old Reaganites were fleeing the administration then and new ones were not wanted. Within a year, the senior staff decided Feldstein must go. But opera bouffe bungling last summer, highlighted by Speakes's seemingly intentional mispronunciation of Feldstein's name, interfered. Ronald Reagan never likes to fire anybody and, warning of claimed anti-Semitism, found his excuse for keeping Feldstein on.

So the president must accept much of the blame for Feldstein's legacy, which includes this paradox at a time of maximum economic and political danger for the administration: Don Regan is exposed to charges of vilification for promoting the president's policies; Feldstein, having failed tests of both political loyalty and economic competency, is lionized as the man of courage standing above impending ruin.

A Little Here And There

There are those who, rather than praise it, would see it interred Indian-style, under an enormous mound of soil pushed in by the D-9's which made was for her foundation. It is a turreted battle-wagon of a building, they say, an outsized model of that departed Confederate warship, the Merrimac, an architectural axilla. But when it comes to the Brody Building, I will brook no such disparagement. As sculpture, it evokes the gamut of emotions attendant to meditation upon pet political projects. As symbol, its blocky heights represent the distillation of man's epic struggle against the three elements, in that one can hardly ever find a place to park. As physical plant, it is the incarnation of that estimable institution, the ECU School of Medicine, and as one can verify most weekdays between 8 and 5, the daytime habitat of a certain dreamy will-o-the-wisp doctor of the mind.

What it is mostly, though, and here I speak relatively, is tall. The place is no Sears Tower, and so denizens will not, even during tornadoes, feel her swaying "like a ship at sea," (AP, Chicago, quoting an office worker) but she does necessarily have her elevators, two banks of them.

Again, there are those anachronists who pine for the days when the medical school was horizontal, parceled out among double-wide trailers over the main campus. They're the type who push all the "Up" buttons, then stand on one foot, beating out a nervous clatter with the other, while they ruminate about how much time is wasted over a normal life span waiting for elevators. Inured as they are to the yin and yang of things, every sense plays the martyr to their self-imposed pout.

They will not, for example, see that sign on the opposite wall: "$10,000 Over the Top Rope Battle Royal," as I did the other day, and they will miss it.

Exactly what they missed I cannot disclose, as kids, at least the ones with SAT scores two standard deviations above the mean, also read the newspaper. Also, I don't wish to scoop my forthcoming potboiler, "Ring Rivalry," the peerless pre-wrestling fan's guide, soon to claw its way up to the bestseller ladder.

I will say, though, that from the moment I disembarked from my car outside the auditorium until I drove home (giving thanks to be alive all the way), every nerve fairly hummed with activity, especially the ones enervating my usually strong stomach.

Do you know of that poster promulgated by the American Cancer Society, the one picturing a certain ... uh ... lady mid-puff, and the caption, "Smoking is very glamorous?" Turns out she is a big wrestling fan as well as a smoker. If only her three pack a day habit had compromised her vocal chords, my ears might not still be ringing.

Speaking of bells, the program had not been preceded farther than the second round of a warm-up match between Johnny Savage and an ersatz native American with the sobriquet of Chief Lone Eagle, before my head began to feel as though trapped inside the one called Liberty. Meanwhile, the smokestack beside me had, without the slightest imitation of reciprocated interest, introduced herself as owner/operator of a roadside necromancy parlor and perforce taken my hand in order to read my palm.

I can't imagine what someone sitting ringside must have looked like, perhaps an extra in a Dino DeLaurentis production, but when I finally was able to wrench myself free of the madame to begin working my way across aisle 20 in order to find a drinking fountain to wash down my aspirin, I noticed I wore a generous spattering of stage blood on my Savile Row sportsjacket. I was contemplating how to forward the drycleaning bill to those responsible when a most disreputable looking carpet knight in a mini dashiki and chaps, sporting an Afro-pick in situ, offered me $20. I was loathe to consider what for, but then I saw that he had his pinpoint pupils trained on the tablets in my hand. That's a lot more than I pay for an entire bottle of aspirin at the apothecary, so we sealed the deal with some sort of arcane handshake, facsimiles of which I have seen during celebratory moments at NBA basketball games.

While driving home, I considered returning with more, but I had what I needed to cover the drycleaning. Why be a glutton, for money or punishment, I decided, and I resolved, too, that from now on I will breeze right on by those elevators and take the stairs. I can use the exercise, and besides, it's less aggravation.

Strength For Today

There is an interesting Greek word which stands out particularly in the pages of the New Testament. It is "dunamis," meaning "power." From this we get the English words "dynamo," "dynamite" and "dynamic."

This age surpasses all others in physical power. The same is true in scientific intellectual power. But in philosophy? Have Socrates, Plato and Aristotle been surpassed? In art? What about Michelangelo, Leonardo da Vinci, Rembrandt? In music has anyone surpassed Bach, Beethoven or Wagner?

Materially we must put our trust in the advancement of science. Politically we must at all costs avoid war and corruption. Intellectually our hope is education. But we have come to the place, have we not, where the spiritual must master and control our physical and scientific advances or else these advances will control and master us.

Baptists Starting Own TV Network

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The Southern Baptist Convention will start its own television network offering everything from sports to comedy and news along with religious TV staples, convention officials say.

Surveys indicate that many viewers ignore Christian television because of the requests for donations, says the Rev. Jimmy Allen, president of the Baptist convention's radio and television commission.

"We just feel our role is to get past that ... on-air fund-raising barrier if we can," said Allen. "Hopefully, we can reach past the ghetto of the mind which is simply dedicated to religious television."

Baptist leaders say their denomination's financial clout will allow the American Christian Television service to survive and grow without frequent, fervent solicitations.

They also hope that their channel's look is different from other TV ministries by being more open to other Christian viewpoints.

Two applications for a Charlotte-area station have been filed with the federal communications commission. Others are pending in Greensboro and in the South Carolina cities of Charleston, Columbia and Greenville.

The new service also will be on cable TV in Gastonia, Greensboro, High Point and Lincolnton.

The new channel will mix sports, drama, music, comedy and news with religious TV's staples — worship services and talk shows. Scheduled national programs range from "Country Crossroads," a music and comedy series hosted by comedian Jerry Clower, to a Roman Catholic drama series entitled "Insight."

Local programs will be produced under the direction of local acts boards. Eventually it will offer three hours of local programming Monday through Saturday and five hours on Sunday, Allen said in a telephone interview from Fort Worth, Texas.

Promotions of the new network began Sunday in the nation's 36,000 Southern Baptist congregations.

So far, the Southern Baptist Convention has spent $12 million on the project. The denomination is paying for the network the way it pays for other ministries: with church-based fund drives and contributions through its national cooperative program.

Cooperative program gifts in the most recent calendar year topped $272 million, and total giving at convention churches was almost $3.2 billion.

Many churches also will pay "satellite fees," giving them a vote in their local franchise board. In Charlotte, seven churches have agreed to pay fees.

The approach is "what cable television started out trying to do," Allen said. "They just couldn't find the highly-motivated people in the local community to keep up the hard task of producing television."

replace equipment because none has been bought in the past 10 or 12 years.

West told commissioners "85 percent of the budget is in personnel." He said that of the "712 professional positions" on the county schools' payroll, "57 or 58 are paid locally."

According to West, "We feel like the budget is realistic. What we're talking about is basic education."

"What we have in Greenville and Pitt County are two excellent school systems," Delma Blinson, superintendent of the city system, told commissioners, but "we're faced with another crisis."

Blinson, who told commissioners that while the proposed local budget projects an increase of $964,600 in expenditures in 1984-85 (27.46 percent) over the current year, the school system is asking for $1.13 million more in local tax funds (an increase of 50.24 percent over the present budget) because of projected losses in revenue from other sources (estimated to be more than $295,000) in the coming year.

With 92 percent of the system's budget going for salaries, Blinson said the proposed 1984-85 budget includes $2.69 million for salaries, up 10.4 percent from the $2.32 million this year. Fixed costs, he said are projected at $1.3 million, up 3.8 percent over the present year.

"The heart of the whole presentation ... the most fundamental issue," Blinson said, is the question of equalization of staff between the city and county systems.

He said the requested $462,875 in equalization funds would add "26 more people" in the city system to offset the loss of teachers and other employees that has resulted from a declining enrollment over the past several years.

He suggested that the new employees would allow for staffing the city schools on a comparative level with staffing in the county system.

Blinson explained that the loss of teachers and other employees in the city system has been greater than the loss in students.

Since the 1979-80 school year, Blinson explained, the city system has lost students. But because of the allocation of teaching positions and funds from the state, based on pupil population, the system has lost 48 full-time personnel.

"We've got to spend more money on the schools," Blinson, who will leave the post at the end of the year, said. "We need 700,000 in new money to enable the city to stay equal."

"I'm advocating merger," he said.

ing for these services would bring the city an additional $616,800 per year — $496,800 for garbage service and $120,000 for rescue. However, she added that collection could not begin until Oct. 1 and the yearly intake would drop accordingly. The property tax increase would bring the city $325,868 per year and repealing the blue law would generate an estimated $100,000.

Mayor Pro-tem Ed Carter also expressed favor for implementing all four measures, but said he did not like the idea of having "to raise the people's taxes once again." Taxes were raised 4.5 cents last year.

Mrs. Meeks pointed out, however, that the last tax increase and the proposed increase are not out of line with what has been happening to the economy. "Keeping in mind our new policemen, the rate of inflation and equipment needs, I would say that these tax increases were not out of balance," she said.

Despite some disagreement over what should be done about the blue law, the council agreed that a public hearing would be held in July to hear local opinion before considering rescinding the blue law. Carter, the most ardent supporter of doing away with limitations of Sunday sales, called the blue law "antiquated." Adding, "it is wrong for the council to tell people what they can buy on Sundays ... It's ridiculous that people can buy liquor but they can't buy something like diapers."

Councilman William Hadden objected to doing away with the blue law, but tentatively agreed to the four-point plan as did Councilwoman Judy Greene and Councilman Henry M.W. Aldridge.

Appeal Rejected

RALEIGH — The U.S. Supreme Court has refused without comment to hear arguments aimed at overturning the death sentence of condemned murderer Velma Margie Barfield, the 51-year-old grandmother who could be the first woman executed in North Carolina in 40 years.

Monday's 7-2 decision increases the likelihood that Mrs. Barfield will die this summer and become the second person executed in North Carolina this year, attorneys said.

Mrs. Barfield, the only woman on North Carolina's death row, was convicted in the 1978 poisoning death of her fiance, Stewart Taylor, 56, in St. Paul's. She has confessed that she poisoned several other people including her mother, but was not charged in any of those deaths.

SWAN QUARTER — Two young bald eagles arrived by plane at Matamuskeet National Wildlife Refuge near Swan Quarter during the weekend.

The Maryland-born birds arrived Saturday and will be raised in a cage atop a 30-foot platform for about two months before being released. The procedure encourages birds to return to the area when they mature in about three years to build nests.

WINSTON-SALEM — Ashland Oil Inc. has hired an investment banking company to assist in the possible sale of Integon Corp., Ashland's insurance subsidiary, the company announced Monday.

No discussions with potential buyers have taken place and there is no assurance a sale will be made, Ashland said in a statement issued at its corporate headquarters in Kentucky.

Integon, based in Winston-Salem, markets property and casualty and mortgage guaranty insurance through a network of independent agents in 41 states. It was acquired by Ashland in 1981 and has grown from $7.5 billion to $13.3 billion of ordinary life insurance in force from continuing operations, the statement said.

GRANDFATHER MOUNTAIN — Four young peregrine falcons were taken to their new home on Grandfather Mountain Monday in an attempt to establish a permanent falcon colony in North Carolina.

The young falcons were bred and supplied by the Peregrine Fund, a private non-profit organization affiliated with Cornell University in New York. North Carolina is the first state in the Southeast to try to reintroduce falcons, an endangered species, into the Southern Appalachian Mountains.

Officer Charged

WINSTON-SALEM — The former head of the Winston-Salem Police Department's vice and narcotics squad pleaded guilty Monday to a charge that he embezzled more than $20,000 from a fund used to pay police informants.

Ronald L. Haskins, dismissed from the department earlier this month, said he used the money to pay informants and buy equipment and food for officers.

Wake D.A. Gets Jefferson Marketing Case

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Elections Board, saying it has no authority to act on possible violations of campaign contribution laws by Jefferson Marketing Inc., has turned the matter over to Wake County District Attorney Randolph Riley.

The board unanimously voted to give the case to Riley's office after deliberating for about an hour. Acting board chairman William A. Marsh Jr. said that allegations of campaign contributions irregularities by Jefferson Marketing "pertain to a jurisdiction that transcends the state Board of Elections."

Elections Director Alex Brock also announced Monday that he has turned over complaints about a National Rifle Association mailing to Riley.

Jefferson Marketing does advertising and direct mailing for the National Congressional Club. The club was formed in 1972 to repay the campaign debts of Republican Sen. Jesse Helms but has grown to contribute millions of dollars to conservative candidates across the nation.

Marsh said the board also had reviewed documents given to Brock by Raleigh newspaper publisher Frank Daniels Jr. The documents, which Brock sealed in April, led to the Democrats' allegations about illegal contributions.

The Raleigh Times was given the documents by a source who asked not to be identified. An attorney for Jefferson Marketing later said the documents had been stolen from the company's accounting firm and asked Brock for their return. The board decided to send the documents to Riley.

In a petition filed Monday with the Board of Elections, Democratic Party Chairman David Price, former chairman Russell Walker and Gov. Jim Hunt's U.S. Senate campaign leaders Joe Grimsley and Betty McCain charge that:

— I. Beverly Lake, during his 1980 Republican gubernatorial campaign, incurred a $75,229.39 debt that was forgiven by Jefferson Marketing in 1982 on the transfer of title to the Lake campaign mailing list although the list was valued at less than the debt.

— Much of Lake's debt was incurred after it became apparent to Jefferson Marketing that Lake would be unable to repay the money.

— William Cobey, the 1980 Republican nominee for lieutenant governor, incurred a debt of $21,339 to Jefferson Marketing and the company erased the debt with a similar transfer of titles to a campaign contribution list.

— Cobey owes the Bedford Printing Co. $43,865.07.

Immunization Law Is Upheld

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A 6-year-old Henderson County girl must be immunized before she can enter first grade in the fall, a district court judge has ruled.

District Court Judge Zoro Guice Monday also handed Dean Davis, 41, the child's father, a one-year suspended sentence because he refused to have his daughter immunized as required by state law.

But Davis and his wife Lili, 34, vowed Monday to appeal the decision to Henderson County Superior Court. They say immunizing their daughter, Circle Kee Davis, would violate their personal religious beliefs.

"I feel like my religious rights have been trampled on," Davis said.

The Davises, who have maintained the body is temple and shouldn't be "injected with foreign things," said they will have to pray further about whether to keep their daughter out of school.

Guice upheld an ruling by the North Carolina Department of Human Resources Division of Health Services, which earlier denied the request because the objections were based on scientific and not religious data.

The court also noted that some of the Davises' other seven children have been inoculated.

BB&T. It's More Than A Bank. It's An Attitude.

Is it going too far to suggest that, in today's complex financial world, your bank's attitude could possibly make a difference? We don't think so.

In fact, at BB&T, we think attitude is all-important. We don't mean a superficial cheerfulness, a smile worn like a suit and as easily removed.

Attitude, for us, goes much deeper than that. It takes in the ability, and even more important, the willingness to commit our talents to meet your future goals as well as your current needs.

It rests on the integrity of a company that still believes it is driven by the needs of its customers, rather than its own corporate objectives. A company that realizes that the quality of its service is inseparable from the attitude of its people.

Come discover what a difference the right attitude makes. At BB&T, it's the very thing that makes us more than a bank.

State Board Upholds Gaskins Victory

The State Board of Elections today unanimously upheld last week's action by the Pitt County Board of Elections which gives incumbent Charles Gaskins the majority in the balloting for the Greenville Township seat on the County Board of Commissioners in the May 8 Primary.

The following statement was issued this morning by Alex Brock, State Board of Elections executive director: "The Pitt County Board of Elections, having adhered to the opinion issued by the state board's counsel and this board, having expressed unanimous concurrence with the opinion, it is hereby ordered that the protests and appeals submitted in the matter relating to the office of county commissioner, District No. 1, are hereby dismissed and the decision by the Pitt County Board of Elections is affirmed."

Members of the state board voting were unanimous in their decision. Member Robert Browning of Pitt County abstained.

Gaskins, with 7,422 votes, led the race, followed by Jim Rouse who received 4,190 votes and Tom Johnson, with 2,256 votes. Frank Grooms, who received 1,689 votes, was disqualified on the day of the primary because he was not a resident of Greenville township.

Rouse then asked the Board of Elections to call a runoff, while Johnson asked for a new election between the three eligible candidates. Both cited the fact that Grooms was an ineligible candidate.

Last week, the elections board, following a hearing, delayed certification of a winner in the race, but agreed to support a ruling that would declare Gaskins the winner.

The local board's action was based on an opinion from the N.C. Attorney General that said since Grooms was ineligible, votes cast for him should not be counted in figuring the majority.

With Grooms' votes discounted, Gaskins holds a clear majority. If votes cast for Grooms were included in figuring the majority, Rouse would be eligible for a runoff.

In either case, Johnson would still be in third place.

Justices Say Firms Face Bias Finding

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled unanimously today that law firms, and perhaps other professional partnerships, may be found guilty of unlawful sex bias for refusing to name a woman as a partner.

In a 9-0 ruling in a case watched closely by women's rights groups, the court said Elizabeth Anderson Hishon is entitled to a trial in her sex discrimination lawsuit against the Atlanta law firm of former Attorney General Griffin B. Bell.

Ms. Hishon "is entitled to her day in court to prove her allegations," said Chief Justice Warren E. Burger for the court.

The court rejected arguments by the firm of King & Spalding that a federal law banning sex discrimination in employment should not apply to partnership decisions. The firm argued that elevating someone to partner is changing the individual's status from "employee" to "employer."

Burger said that under the federal anti-bias law, known as Title VII of the 1964 Civil Rights Act, promotion to partnership is a "benefit" of employment that cannot be denied on a discriminatory basis.

The court also rejected the law firm's claim that it is free under the Constitution's protection of freedom of association to choose whomever it wants for partners.

The law firm "has not shown how its ability (to function efficiently) would be inhibited by a requirement that it consider (Ms. Hishon) for partnership on her merits."

A Christmas-toy store at Sunshine Garden Center was damaged by fire Monday afternoon. Owners Eddie and Linda Harrington estimated the fire, smoke and water damage at $27,000, including about $12,000 in damage to the contents of the wood frame building. County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner said the fire apparently started in the restroom area adjacent to the toy store. The cause had not been determined. Winterville, Eastern Pines and Red Oak firemen fought the blaze. Winterville fireman Darwin Paramore was treated at Pitt County Memorial Hospital and released after being overcome by heat and smoke. (Reflector Photo By Tommy Forrest)

Schools Seek $9.4 Million

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners Monday afternoon, in another of a series of budget workshop sessions, heard requests from the county and city school systems amounting to $9.39 million in local current expense money for the coming fiscal year.

The county schools' request for $5.99 million in local funds for current expenses represents a 9.15 percent increase over the $5.19 million received this year, while the $3.4 million requested by the Greenville city schools for 1984-85 represents a 50.24 percent increase over the $2.26 million funded by the county this year.

In addition to the requests for current expense funds, the city schools asked for $309,933 in capital outlay money (the same as was budgeted this year), while the county system asked for $535,481 ($395,429 this year) as well as $375,000 as its share of the local 1/2 cent sales tax revenue.

In presenting the county schools' requests, Superintendent Eddie West said the proposed budget includes funds for a 15 percent pay hike for teachers and a 10 percent increase for other school employees, as well as "things needed to maintain Southern Association (of Colleges and Secondary Schools) accreditation."

"All 20 schools are up for reaccreditation," he noted. "Any new positions in the budget (which includes a request for a new librarian, two guidance counselors, and additional clerical assistance) are to maintain Southern Association accreditation."

"The only new item in the budget," the superintendent continued, "is band equipment." He said the $40,000 included in the 1984-85 request is to begin a three-year lease purchase program to

Board Postpones Officers' Election

By ANGELA LINGERFELT
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Board of Education decided Monday night to postpone the election of officers from its annual June meeting to its action meeting in July so new members will have a chance to become familiar with the board before casting their ballots.

Under the old policy, the June meeting was designated as the annual meeting in which officers are elected, activities of the past year are reviewed and orientation is provided for new members.

At that time, new members voted for the chairman and vice chairman, the same night they were sworn in. Several members of the board voiced concern that this was not fair because "you have to vote on people you don't even know yet."

The revised policy will affect new members Martha Coffman and Francis Mebane.

In other business: *Ann Harrison reported on pupil personnel services, including the dental health program and the school system's psychologist, social worker and guidance counselors.

She said that, based on a recently conducted survey, 10 to 15 percent of children in the city schools in kindergarten through seventh grades are obese. The main reason for this, she stated, is lack of exercise.

*Charles Ross, the system's director of education, reported that, based on unofficial returns, children in kindergarten through ninth grades scored better this year on the California Achievement Test.

"Every test score in every area is above the national norm in the city schools. And the longer the students have been in the city schools, the better their scores seem to be," he said.

The test was a part of the N.C. Annual Testing Program conducted in March.

*Tom Vandiford represented Burroughs Wellcome to receive a plaque from the board for a series of science films that were donated by the company to the Greenville schools.

*The board accepted a rebid from Miller & Davis for the proposed J.H. Rose High School weight-training facility. The previous low bidder had made an arithmetic error and could not honor his bid of $28,000. Miller &

Council Eyes Revenue Hikes

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

After a bit of wrangling and opinion-swapping at a Monday workshop session, members of the Greenville City Council tentatively agreed on four ways to raise the $900,000 needed for capital improvements and to offset an anticipated shortfall in the city's 1984-85 budget.

The city originally needed an additional $1.4 million, but that amount was cut last week when the Greenville Utilities Commission agreed to turn over $500,000 from its sewer capital reserve fund to the city.

Fund-raising measures agreed to tentatively by all but one of the council members include initiating rescue and refuse collection fees, upping property taxes by four cents (or a 7 percent increase) and repealing the blue law, which forbids the sale of certain items on Sundays.

Councilman Louis Clark said he would "like to go on record as opposing the creation of garbage collection and rescue fees." Instead, Clark said he favored getting the needed revenue entirely through a property tax increase.

Councilman Stuart Shinn, who said he was in favor of using all four measures to raise the $900,000, said that most counties and cities already charge for rescue and refuse pick up and that charging $50-$60 per rescue call, $3 a month for garbage service and $12 a month per container pick up would not be out of the ordinary. Mayor Janice Buck pointed out that most insurance companies would cover the cost of rescue calls.

City Manager Gail Meeks was instructed to write a proposal on the two measures and present and negotiate the proposals with all agencies concerned.

According to Mrs. Meeks, charge (Please turn to page 7)

Grifton Child Receives Bone Marrow Transplant

SEATTLE (AP) — A two-week wait will now begin for the family of a 6-year-old Grifton, N.C., boy to see if a bone-marrow transplant he received from his father will be accepted, the child's mother says.

Stephen Adam Potter, who suffers from a cancer called myelofibrosis, received the transplant Monday. He was resting comfortably Monday night at Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center in Seattle, said his mother, JoAnne Potter.

The transplant operation went without complications, she said, with marrow drawn from the hip of her husband and Adam's father, Harold Potter Jr.

"That was the most difficult part today," said Mrs. Potter. "Then they just put it in an I-V (intravenous) bag, just like you're getting a blood transfusion, and gave it to Adam."

It will be two weeks before doctors take a biopsy of the transplanted bone marrow to get an indication of whether it will "take," said Mrs. Potter.

"They will know a little something then," she said, but added that whether the operation is a success may not be known for months. Adam was diagnosed with the disease in March.

The transplant of bone marrow was preceded by radiation treatment to kill the cancerous cells, which are scarring Adam's bone marrow. The treatment also kills healthy cells.

Mrs. Potter said most of the family arrived in Seattle April 24 and are prepared to stay until September. The Potter's 10-year-old daughter, Leslee, remains in school in North Carolina and will join the

Dear Abby

Should Executor Follow His Brother's Will?

DEAR ABBY: This is another one of those "I can't believe I'm writing this" letters. My twin brother died recently following a long illness. (He was 59.) Three years ago he had a will drawn up specifying that his estate be divided equally among our two sisters and me. He appointed me executor of his will, and I accepted. Last year he added a codicil to his will eliminating one of our sisters.

During our first meeting with the probate lawyer, he suggested that "some families" get together and mutually decide to alter or ignore the deceased's wishes and/or codicils. My two sisters are now using that statement to force me (by legal means, if necessary) to ignore my twin's codicil and abide by the original will.

Abby, I promised to carry out my brother's wishes, which he made very clear to me. Now I'm being asked by my family, "Am I a brother, or am I 'Mr. Executor'?"

No one in our family is "needy." Should I carry out my twin's wishes? Or must I yield to the wishes of my family?

TORN IN NEW YORK

DEAR TORN: As the executor of your brother's will, you are not only morally obligated to carry out his wishes, you are legally responsible for doing so. And for a lawyer to suggest that you do otherwise is both unprofessional and dishonorable.

DEAR ABBY: I'm in jail for rape. I am 25 years old and have been in jail for eight months waiting to go to the Western State Mental Hospital where I will be put through a sex offender's program. I'm told the program will take anywhere from three to seven years to complete.

Well, I don't feel like giving up that much of my life for a first offense.

If I get five years in prison, I could be out on parole in 18 months. My lawyer tells me if I take the mental hospital treatment, I will find out why I did the rape so I won't do it again. I would like to know why I did it, but I don't want to spend three to seven years to find out.

If I go to prison I will be out sooner, but I'll have a prison record for the rest of my life. So what should I do?

LOST IN OLYMPIA, WASH.

DEAR LOST: If you have a choice, go to the mental hospital. You need the treatment. What good will it do you to be out on the street in 18 months if you risk committing the same crime? It's not fair to society to turn you loose, and it's not fair to you. A second offense could put you in prison for a much longer stretch.

DEAR ABBY: I'm having a problem with a neighbor. She pops in to visit several times a week at noon and 2:30, when she knows I am watching my favorite "soaps." She has very little to do and could visit so many other hours that I am inclined to believe it's deliberate.

She never shuts up. It's difficult for me to hear the TV, which spoils the program for me. The last time that happened, I turned up the volume and she scoffed, "How can you watch that cheap stuff?" (I pretended I didn't hear her.)

What should I do? I don't want her for an enemy because she has a vicious tongue.

IRRITATED IN SUN CITY

DEAR IRRITATED: The next time she pops in and pops off while you're watching your soaps, ask her to please come back another time. And if you lose the friendship of an inconsiderate neighbor with a vicious tongue, consider yourself lucky.

East-West: Mrs. Elizabeth Roque and Mrs. Barbara Wright, first with 579 percent; Mrs. Effie Williams and Mrs. David Stevens, second; tied for third were Mr. and Mrs. Jeff McAllister with Mrs. W.R. Harris and Mrs. J.M. Horton.

At Wits End

A mother wanted to know how baby clothes manufacturers arrive at a size.

She said her six-month-old is wearing an 18-month dress. At one month, she wore a six-month size and at four months, a 12-month label. She will go into toddler sizes before she can sit up.

Of course I know why the sizes run large. Manufacturers aren't fools. They print what buyers want to read.

Every mother wants to believe her child is big for his or her age. How many years have we heard mothers brag about the size of a baby at birth, the size of his shoes in the first grade, and how he banged his head on the doorframe in grade school, and how they had to let the sleeves out of his graduation gown to accommodate his muscles.

Somewhat, it reflects on her ability to produce a superior, healthy, human being. Big has always been better. I once heard an adoptive parent say, "We requested a boy ... and we don't mean one who plays the glockenspiel in the band. We want a football player."

Secretly, I wished the agency gave her a baby who had to wear shoulder pads to keep his bathing suit up!

After years of dressing our kids in advanced sizes, a metamorphosis occurs in the 25th or 26th year ... especially in a woman. The sizes start to go the other way.

It's reversed vanity. Smaller becomes better. Size 16 becomes size 14. Size 10 becomes an 8 and size 6 becomes baby clothes again.

It's one of the reasons why metric fouled out in this country. It wasn't because we didn't want to realign our thinking and buy our beverages by the liter and our canned goods by the gram, it was because no one wanted to buy a size 48 dress or a pair of shoes marked size 16.

Don't misunderstand me, I am totally committed to honesty in government, the press, and truth in advertising. I firmly believe that I not only have the right to know the truth, but a duty. Except where sizes are concerned.

The more larceny involved the better. Tell me anything. Promise me a pair of slacks in size 8 when they look like a tent at the fairgrounds. Let my foot slide into a size 5 that could hold five campers and all their fishing gear. And if a bathing suit could slipcover Rhode Island and is marked, "Size 3 Junior/Petite/Toddler," so be it.

Sometimes, I think we know too much in this country for our own good.

Mondale Steps Up Attack On Hart's Policies

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

Walter F. Mondale is predicting victory in the California and New Jersey presidential primaries as he goes on the attack against Gary Hart, challenging his Democratic rival's commitment to arms control and the environment.

"I'm getting tired of just giving this, 'I hope to do well' answer," Mondale said Monday. "I really believe I'm going to win. It feels very good."

The Democratic presidential hopefuls were ignoring today's Idaho primary, which is strictly a "beauty contest" with no delegates at stake; 18 delegates will be decided Thursday in caucuses.

In New Jersey, Mondale extended a challenge to Hart and the Rev.

Jesse Jackson to debate this weekend.

Hart, campaigning for the women's vote in California, shied away from the debate challenge. His press secretary, Kathy Bushkin, said his schedule wouldn't allow it.

Jackson, seeking votes in West Virginia coal country before returning to Washington Monday night, said of the debate, "If it's do-able, I'd like to do it."

The three hopefuls already are scheduled to debate a final time in California June 3. That is two days before the climactic primaries there, in New Jersey and in three other states, where Mondale hopes to win enough delegates to put him within striking distance of the nomination.

While it's often the trailing candidate who wants to debate, Mon-dale's campaign depicted the challenge for a New Jersey debate as part of Mondale's new optimism.

"We think the debates are very helpful," said Mondale campaign manager Bob Beckel, noting that Mondale won in Illinois, New York, Pennsylvania and Texas after debates.

Campaigning in New Jersey, Mondale attacked Hart frequently and accused him of playing "hooky" while the "superfund" bill was passed by Congress in 1980 to clean up hazardous waste dumps.

Hart supports a 10-fold increase in the superfund account, but Mondale said the Colorado senator missed committee hearings, committee drafting sessions and the Senate floor vote on the original bill.

"The debate will give Gary Hart a chance to explain why he played hooky from the superfund fight to clean up toxic wastes," Mondale said, visiting a New Jersey toxic dump where barrels bobbed among poisonous wastes.

He also questioned Hart's commitment to the proposed nuclear weapons freeze with the Soviet Union. "Gary Hart's record on the freeze in my opinion is very suspect," Mondale said.

Hart was in Colorado today for a high school commencement address at Grand Junction before heading to New Mexico, one of the states holding primaries June 5.

In Los Angeles Monday, Hart toured a day-care center and accused President Reagan of "putting women and children last" among his national priorities.

Hart said there are 44 million working women in the country and 11 million children without adequate day care.

"That is a prescription for very serious problems in our society," Hart said.

The California Field Poll taken earlier this month showed Hart falling behind Mondale 41 percent to 39 percent among likely voters. But among women in that group, the poll showed Mondale leading 44 percent to 34 percent.

"His record is good and he speaks out on women's issues," Ms. Bushkin said of Hart. "Mondale came in early and attacked and I think the poll reflects that."

Hart campaign officials say the senator will not attack Mondale as part of his strategy of casting himself as the "high road" candidate in California and will not respond directly to attacks by Mondale.

Jackson planned a meeting today with Democratic National Committee chairman Charles T. Manatt to again seek a larger share of the delegates. Jackson contends because of party rules he hasn't received delegates commensurate with the popular vote he has drawn in primaries, and he escalated his criticism of Manatt for not obtaining more delegates for him.

"My patience is growing thin with the ineffective chairman of the Democratic National Committee who has failed to bring about changes necessary for justice ...," Jackson said.

In Charleston, W.Va., Monday night, Jackson ended a two-day tour of the state by urging the unemployed to demand a job as compensation for exploitation of the state's mineral wealth.

"There is great wealth in the hills of West Virginia and the people should share in that wealth," Jackson told a crowd of 2,500 to 3,000 people at the Municipal Auditorium. "You deserve jobs, safe and decent jobs."

Jackson said coal mine operators "rape" the land, take the profits for themselves and leave the workers with black lung disease and laboring in unsafe conditions.

British Expel Two Czech Diplomats

LONDON (AP) — The British Foreign Office said in London today it has expelled two Czechoslovak diplomats from London for "activities incompatible to their status," the customary diplomatic phrase for spying.

In Brussels, the Belgian Justice Ministry said Monday that two Soviet spies had been arrested for trying to obtain secret NATO documents and would be expelled immediately. The ministry also said the activities of a Soviet diplomat were being investigated in connection with the case.

A British Foreign Office spokesman said the expulsion of Vice Consul Bohumir Seda and embassy clerk Jan Malasek was ordered on May 3. No official announcement was made at that time.

The spokesman, who in accordance with British practice declined to be named, said Czechoslovak Ambassador Miroslav Houstecky was summoned to the Foreign Office and told the two men would be given two weeks to leave Britain.

No details of their alleged offense were released. Both worked at the Czechoslovak Embassy in west London, a few doors from the Soviet Embassy.

Asked why no announcement was made when the expulsions were ordered, the spokesman said: "We decide such matters in the light of the factors involved and we have removed a threat to our security in the way we judge best."

Before the May 3 incident, the most recent expulsion of an East European official from Britain for alleged spying was Sept. 29, when the Foreign Office ordered Soviet trade mission official Vasilij V. Ionov to leave the country.

The largest expulsion of Eastern bloc officials from Britain for alleged spying was in 1971 when 105 Soviet officials, including 45 diplomats, were ordered to leave.

The Belgian Justice Ministry did not identify the Soviet diplomat or the two alleged spies, but said the two suspects tried to obtain "highly classified" NATO papers and were arrested over the weekend.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization has its headquarters in Belgium. There was no immediate comment by NATO officials on the ministry report.

The two arrests brought to eight the number of Soviets accused of spying and ordered to leave Belgium over the past 21 months. Four Romanians also were expelled last year.

NATO moved its headquarters from France to Belgium in 1967, and since then at least 27 Soviets have been expelled for spying, with most of the cases involving NATO secrets.

Several Belgians and citizens of other NATO member countries working at the alliance's headquarters also have been arrested for spying for the Soviet bloc.

Riot Toll Continues To Climb

BOMBAY, India (AP) — Army troops patrolled curfew-bound slums today, trying to control Hindu-Moslem rioting that has killed at least 125 people in Bombay and outlying areas in a six-day span.

Police spokesman P.M. Sawant said four people were killed during the night in the latest round of mob violence.

The United News of India reported that at least seven people were stabbed to death today at a religious shrine in Thane, on Bombay's northern outskirts. The agency did not say whether the shrine was a Hindu temple or a Moslem mosque.

Sawant said he had heard reports of violence in Thane but could not immediately confirm the stabbing incident.

Police described the situation this afternoon in Bombay, India's most important commercial center, as "quite tense."

Scattered incidents of arson and stone throwing were reported this morning and police said they received reports of two firing incidents. They gave no details.

The riots were believed to be the worst Hindu-Moslem conflicts in India in 14 years. The violence was the first major religious rioting ever in Bombay, a city of 8.5 million known for its tolerance.

The police spokesman said the death toll since rioting began last Thursday included 34 in Bombay, 25 in suburban communities and 66 in Bhiwandi, a textile center 35 miles northeast of Bombay.

At least 465 people were injured and 2,702 others, 1,425 of them in Bombay, were arrested, the spokesman said.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi toured riot-ravaged parts of Bombay and Bhiwandi on Monday, and appealed for an end to feuding between Hindus and Moslems.

"It is important this country holds together," the 66-year-old prime minister said. "The first thing is to restore calm and remove fear and suspicion."

The violence was triggered by alleged insults to Moslems by the Hindu militant organization Shiv Sena, or God's Army. Its leader reportedly made derogatory statements about the prophet Mohammed and warned against the Moslem "danger."

The violence began in Bhiwandi and quickly spread to Bombay and its outlying regions.

Downtrodden Bucks Stay Alive

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Chalk one up for Knute Rockne. Dale Carnegie and the old college try.

The Milwaukee Bucks, downtrodden on Saturday, came back to life Monday night to beat the Boston Celtics 122-113 in their National Basketball Association playoff for the Eastern Conference championship.

Given little chance of averting a four-game sweep by the red-hot Celtics, the Bucks picked themselves back up Monday night with that intangible some call pride.

"It was a pride game for us," said Bucks' reserve center Paul Mokeski. "We were down 0-3 and everyone was counting us out."

Now the best-of-seven series shifts to Boston for Game 5 on Wednesday.

"We're a proud team and we're a good team. I don't think anybody ever said we were better than Boston," said Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson. "But we're able to compete with them. It's just hard to beat a good team four times in a row."

"Nellie really prepared his guys," said Celtics' forward M.L. Carr. "He said his team wouldn't die and they didn't die. That's the pride factor. We all have a lot of respect for Nellie as a coach and also his team."

While the Bucks didn't die, they nearly took a fatal nosedive in the fourth period. As in Saturday's game, which the Boston won 109-100, the Celtics made a fast-closing charge behind the shooting of Larry Bird.

Boston, trailing 90-77 after three quarters, trimmed the deficit to 96-92 on Bird's jumper with 8:15 to go. After the teams traded baskets, Bucks' reserve guard Paul Pressey scored on a dunk off an alley-oop from center Bob Lanier and came back with a rebound basket for a 102-94 advantage with 6:16 to go.

The Celtics later cut the margin to 104-100 on Bird's layup at 5:06, but Milwaukee countered with a dunk and two free throws by Mokeski and two free throws from Pressey for a 110-100 lead one minute later.

Boston could get no closer than 117-111 on forward Cedric Maxwell's tip-in with 50 seconds remaining.

"I expected Boston to make a run," Nelson said. "We just handled it and I was glad about that."

Bird was practically unstoppable in the fourth quarter, scoring 17 of his game-high 32 points.

"He just presents a lot of problems," said Bucks' guard Junior Bridgeman, who had the chore of guarding the 6-foot-9 forward. "When he gets hot, there's not a whole lot I can do. If he's going to beat you, you have to let him beat you from the outside. You just have to hope that he cools off."

Bird, who also had 10 rebounds and eight assists, said, "We dug ourselves too big of a hole and we couldn't get out of it. We still ran our break, rebounded and played aggressive."

Milwaukee took charge in the second period, going on an 18-4 run to open up a 54-39 lead with 3:02 left in the half. It was the hole the Celtics couldn't escape.

Boston Coach K.C. Jones was especially critical of the officiating around the basket.

"I didn't like the way our guys were being held," said Jones, who was assessed a technical at halftime for voicing his opinion. "Lanier is a beautiful player. One of the greatest I've ever seen. One of the great centers to come along . . . a great outside shot . . . a great hook . . . smarts for the game . . . and a leader."

"But then, he can hold with the best. He can push out of the way. It's amazing to me that it goes on and when we touch someone, we're assessed a foul for it."

Boston was called for 34 fouls, with five each going to Maxwell and center Robert Parish. The Bucks were assessed 28 personals.

Pressey led the Bucks with 22 points, followed by Bridgeman with 20, Lanier and guard Mike Dunleavy with 15 apiece, forward Marques Johnson and guard Sidney Moncrief 14 apiece and Mokeski with 12.

Johnson didn't play the final 18 minutes after bruising his left knee in a collision with Maxwell.

Milwaukee shot a series-high 52.9 percent from the field, hitting 45 of 85 shots. The Celtics, meanwhile, had a series-low 44.1 percent on 41 of 93.

Maxwell and guard Gerald Henderson contributed 18 points apiece for Boston, and guard Dennis Johnson had 12.

The Bucks now face the task of trying to become the first team in NBA history to win a series after trailing 3-0.

Extra Seats For Race

HARRISBURG, N.C. (AP) — Charlotte Motor Speedway officials are bringing in extra seats in expectation of 150,000 fans who may come to see if the king can add another jewel to his crown.

Richard Petty's 199th NASCAR victory Sunday at the Budweiser 500 in Dover, Del., opened the way for fans to begin pouring into the World 600 Sunday to see if the Level Cross, N.C. driver can get No. 200.

"I felt like what's his name, (Peter) Ueberroth, the head of the Olympic Committee, would if he found out the Russians were coming," said H.A. "Humpy" Wheeler, speedway president. "It adds that charge, that electric charge, that makes a big event doubly exciting."

Wheeler said people who might not otherwise buy tickets for the World 600 will do so to see Petty attempt to get his 200th victory.

Ed Clark, the speedway's director of public relations, said that because of Petty's quest, the track would add 3,000 to 5,000 bleacher seats for Sunday's race.

Petty won the National 500 at Charlotte last October, but was fined after an inspection following the race revealed he had used an oversized engine and illegal tires.

Even without the suspense of a possible Petty victory, the World 600 is big business for Cabarrus and Mecklenburg counties.

The Greater Charlotte Chamber of Commerce estimates revenues generated by the race will reach $34 million. The chamber estimates each fan will spend $96.94 a day on a hotel room, restaurants, tickets and entertainment.

"One game at a time, realizing that our backs are to the wall," Bridgeman said of the Bucks' approach to the playoffs. "Not looking ahead to anything, just approaching each game by being glad we have the opportunity to play the game."

DiPino Hangs On In Longest Relief To Save Ryan's Victory

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Frank DiPino would be the first to agree that Nolan Ryan's night ended too early.

The Astro hurlers combined to strike out 14 batters as the Astros beat the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 in the National League's only game Monday night.

Ryan, 5-2, fanned seven in five innings before he was forced to depart with a blister on his right index finger.

The blister "just popped up" after one warm-up pitch prior to the sixth inning, Ryan said.

"It never bothered me until then," Ryan said. "I felt like I was throwing well."

Ryan's misfortune forced Houston Manager Bob Lillis to go to his bullpen with a three-run lead to protect.

But after the Cardinals loaded the bases against Vern Ruhle on a walk and two singles, Lillis summoned DiPino, his relief ace.

Tito Landrum greeted DiPino with a pinch-hit single to drive in two runs. But the left-hander settled down and got the last two outs, the last coming on the first of his seven strikeouts.

DiPino stayed in the rest of the way to earn his sixth save. It was his longest relief stint of the season.

"I don't like to use Frank that long because it burns him out," Lillis said.

DiPino said he felt like he was about to run out of steam when Ken Oberkfell drove a pitch to deep right field to lead off the eighth.

But Terry Puhl came up with a spectacular catch to prevent an extra-base hit.

"That play cost us the game," St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog said later.

DiPino said he's not used to pitching that many innings.

"This was my first time out in the humidity," he said. "I know it keeps you loose, but it takes a lot out of you. I feel it in every part of my body."

The Astros jumped on Bob Forsch, 0-4, for two runs on four hits in the first inning.

Puhl led off with a single and scored on Craig Reynold's triple down the right field line.

Jose Cruz followed with a triple of his own, but he was cut down trying to extend it into an inside-the-park home run on a fine relay throw by Ozzie Smith.

Ryan drove in what turned out to be the game-winning run in the second.

Catcher Mark Bailey got the first of his three hits and Bill Doran followed with a walk. Ryan then faked a bunt and chopped a single through the box.

"It didn't look like it was going to hold up for a while," Ryan said.

Tim West scored in the top of the eighth inning and allowed Everett's Pest Control to take a 7-6 victory over Planters Bank last night in Babe Ruth League play.

Planters took the lead in the bottom of the second, scoring twice, while Everett's broke the scoring ice in the fourth with one run. Everett's then scored four runs in the fifth to take a 5-2 edge. Axel Smith cracked a three-run homer to highlight the inning.

Planters came back with one in the bottom of the fifth and then scored three times in the sixth to push back into the lead, 6-5. Everett's came up with one in the seventh to tie it.

West led off the seventh with a single and stole second. He scored on a base hit by Joel Pierce, and Everett's then held off Planters in the bottom of the inning to claim the 7-6 win.

Jason Lee and Jay Surles led the Everett's hitting with two each, while Jimmie Gillahan and Tom Taylor each had two hits for Planters.

Bland opened the second with a single, and White followed with his homer. Exchange went on to score five runs in the inning and added four more in the third.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market opened lower again today after slumping to a 13-month low in the previous session.

Auto, retail, telephone and oil issues were numerous among the early losers.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which suffered its third straight decline on Monday, lost another 4.29 to 1,121.02 after 30 minutes of trading to-day.

Declines jumped out to a 2-1 lead over advances on the New York Stock Exchange.

The market's retreat was ascribed to investor concerns about the escalating tensions in the Persian Gulf, and to the recent rescue operation of Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co. in Chicago, the nation's seventh-largest bank.

The interest-rate fears that have haunted the stock market for the past few months also continue to depress prices, analysts said.

Meanwhile, consumer prices rose 0.5 percent in April, the Labor Department said today. Retail inflation is up 5.1 percent so far this year — on target with economists' expectations.

Superior Oil, up 1/8 to 42, topped the NYSE's early active list. Mobil fell 1/4 to 28 3/4, Standard of California gained 1/8 to 37 1/2 and Exxon lost 1/8 to 42 1/4.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 8.48 to 1,125.31, its lowest close since it stood at 1,124.71 on April 8, 1983.

Declines outpaced advances by more than 2 to 1 on the NYSE, whose composite index fell 0.58 to 88.98.

Big Board volume came to 73.38 million shares, against 81.27 million in the previous session.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 1.05 at 204.42.

Consumer Costs Up In April

WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher household utility and heating bills helped push consumer prices up 0.5 percent in April, the government said today.

Food prices held steady, despite the sharpest one-month fresh vegetable price decline in a decade, while gasoline prices posted their second straight monthly gain.

Despite the new surge in the overall calculation — more than double the gain of March — consumer prices this year have risen 5.1 percent, calculated annually.

That is right on target with analysts' predictions that inflation for the full year will be in the range of 5 percent.

In its report for April, the Labor Department said overall housing costs rose 0.6 percent, largely the product of higher prices for residential telephone and electric service and for home heating.

Analysts also calculated that, apart from utility bills, both renters and homeowners saw their expenses rise.

As for food prices, the department said the cost of food bought at grocery stores fell 0.2 percent, the second monthly decline in a row. But prices for meals eaten outside the home rose an offsetting 0.2 percent.

The 0.4 percent gasoline price hike was less than half the 1.0 percent advance of March. Prices were still 12 percent below their peak of March 1981.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department said that factory orders for "big ticket" durable goods — those expected to last at least three years — plummeted 6.4 percent in April, the first decline since last July and the biggest drop in four years.

The durable goods report was in line with economists' predictions that the pace of the economic recovery would slow during the April-June quarter from the 8.8 percent gain posted in the year's first quarter.

In all, April's increase in the Consumer Price Index was well ahead of March's seasonally adjusted 0.2 percent advance.

The April gain was in line, however, with the average 0.4 percent gain posted in the index since early 1983. Prices rose 0.6 percent in January and 0.4 percent in February.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said in a written statement that the April price report shows "inflation remains at a generally low level."

family in June after school has been dismissed, Mrs. Potter said.

The family has been living in an apartment administered by the Hutchinson Center hospital, recognized as a leading cancer center in the United States.

Mrs. Potter said the cost of the transplant operation has been estimated at $150,000, "but that's not counting the expense we will incur while we are here."

She said the family was getting community support, and help from her husband's workplace, the Du Pont plant in Kinston.

"There have been several things done back home that are helping us financially," she said.

Kinley, Michel Lead Rampants

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

LAURINBURG — Mike Kinley blasted a three-run homer and Billy Michel picked up his 11th straight victory as Rose High School topped Scotland County, 7-3, last night in the first round of the State 4-A Baseball Playoffs.

The Rampants now advance into the second round, facing Garner, a 7-4 winner over Pinecrest. That game has been tentatively scheduled for Friday night at Garner.

Kinley's homer started a five-run rally in the fourth inning that erased a 1-0 deficit and Scotland County never caught up again.

For a while, however, it began to look like the Rampants might be in trouble. Through the first three innings, Rose failed to put a man on base and hit only one ball out of the infield.

Scotland, meanwhile, failed to score after loading the bases in the second on an error, an infield hit and a hit batsman. But the Scots took the lead on a solo homer by Mike Jorgenson in the third. The blast, over the fence in right, staked Scotland to a 1-0 lead that held only briefly.

The homer, however, could easily have been a two-run affair, but Marc Nover came up with the defensive play of the game on the previous batter Doug Edwards. Edwards hit sharply over second base, but Nover made a diving catch of the ball just inches off the ground to rob the batter of a hit.

Then, in the fourth, Traye Fuqua led off with a walk and Toby Fischer reached when his grounder was errored.

Kinley followed with his poke over the fence in right and Rose suddenly had a 3-1 lead.

"Kinley's homer was the thing that rally sparked us," Coach Ronald Vincent said later. "You could see the way things picked up suddenly in the dugout. The spirit was there and never let up the rest of the way."

"I'm very, very proud of the way these kids played in a tough situation to come into. Michel made some super pitches in tight situations. You could really see him coming after them at the end," Vincent added.

"And I've got to be pleased with the way the infield played too. Nover made an excellent play on that ball and Traye came up with a couple of good plays too."

Vincent's assessment of the effect of Kinley's homer was right on the nose — and it showed as the Rampants banged out three straight doubles after that to score two more runs.

Michel followed with the first of those, making the fifth straight game he's had an extra base hit.

Mike Smith followed with another to left, driving in courtesy runner David Jester. Smith took third on a wild pitch and Van Alston doubled to center, scoring Smith and chasing starting pitcher Todd Howard.

Perhaps the oddest play of the game followed. Alston, after moving up to third on a wild pitch by reliever Eric Barkley, was cut down after Steve Wall struck out. Catcher Paul Currie, however, lost the handle on the ball and Wall raced for first, reaching safely as Currie caught Alston off the bag at third.

Scotland rallied for a second run in the bottom of the fourth. Currie was hit by a pitch to open the frame and Mike Sellars came on to run for him. Dieter Bennett walked and when a pickoff attempt at first bounced away, Sellars scooted down to third. After Michel fanned the next two batters, he then gave up a single to right by Pat Davis, scoring Sellars with the second Scots run.

Rose came immediately back in the top of the fifth with a countering run. Fischer singled with one away, and when the ball got past the Scot right fielder, Fischer dashed all the way to third. He then scored on a wild pitch for a 6-2 lead.

Scotland's final run came in the sixth. With two away, Rodney Patterson doubled and scored on a single by Davis to center. On the play, the diving centerfielder Mike Smith just missed making the catch. Michel walked the next two to load the bases, but got the next man for the final out.

Ironically, Scotland left the bases loaded in the second, fourth and sixth innings — but failed to leave a man on base in the first, third, fifth and the seventh.

Rose again countered Scotland's third run with a seventh run in the top of the seventh. Fuqua led off with a single to left and moved another base on an error on the play. He took third on a sacrifice by Fischer and scored on another wild pitch.

Kinley finished the game with two hits — the only player for Rose with more than one, while Davis had two of the five Scotland County hits.

The Scots, who have now completed their season, are 17-7 now, while Rose, continuing on, is 17-6-1.

ECU Opens South Region Play With South Alabama

From Staff and Wire Reports

East Carolina University will meet South Alabama Thursday at noon in the opening game of the South Regional of the NCAA baseball tournament at Tallahassee, Fla.

South Alabama is seeded first in the region, while the Pirates, champions of the ECAC-South, are sixth. Other teams in the South Regional are SEC champ Florida, independent Stetson, Metro champion Florida State and Miami, the 1982 national champions.

"It's going to be if not the toughest (region), one of the top two," ECU Coach Hal Baird said. "It's a strong field, but there's no easy game. Those four Florida schools alone would make it a good field."

Baird said he would probably start freshman right hander Jim Peterson against South Alabama, while Winfred Johnson will be on the mound for the second game.

"Basically, we'll go with the same guys we used at the ECAC-South tournament," Baird said. "We don't have enough detail in our scouting report of South Alabama right now to make a definite decision, but I'd have to say we'll probably open with Peterson."

"We're a young team, so I'm sure we'll have our share of butterflies. But once the first pitch is thrown, I think we'll settle down. They're pretty loose right now."

Pairings for first-round regional action of the 38th annual NCAA Division I Baseball Championship and the final three at-large teams were announced Monday by the NCAA.

Added to the at-large field by the NCAA Division I Baseball Committee were San Diego State, 63-21; Stetson, Fla., 45-11; and Miami, Fla., 43-25.

Maine was awarded the Northeast regional by winning the ECAC No. 1 automatic berth over the weekend. Other automatic berths decided over the weekend were Hawaii of the Western Athletic Conference; Michigan, Big Ten; Oklahoma City, Midwestern City; and Washington State, Pac-10 North.

The committee also named the top five seeded teams in the tournament. They are Arizona State, Cal State-Fullerton, North Carolina, Oklahoma State and Texas. The top five teams may not be assigned to the same regional.

Godley Pitches, Powers Jags Over Conley, 4-0

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Billy Godley threw a five-hitter and cracked a two-run homer in the first to lead Farmville Central to a 4-0 shutout over D.H. Conley Monday in the first round of the state 3-A high school baseball tournament.

Farmville Central advances to meet North Lenoir in the second round. North Lenoir, the Coastal Conference runner-up, defeated Eastern Carolina champion C.B. Aycock last night to advance.

Godley struck out six Conley batters and didn't give up a walk until the seventh, when he walked two before a strikeout and a pop fly ended the game. Godley improved his record to 9-1 on the season.

Randy Daniels had a pair of hits and scored twice for Farmville, while Steve Mills had two hits for Conley.

Darrell Edwards pitched six innings for the Vikings, striking out 10 but giving up six hits and six walks.

"I coached (Edwards) last summer in American Legion ball, so I knew he was a terrific pitcher," Farmville Coach Bill Davis said. "In the last game of the season, everybody was a down a little. I was glad to see Billy get that hit in the first; that was a big key. It seemed to lift us out of that slump."

After Nat Norris led off with a pop fly, Daniels singled to right before Godley blasted a fast ball over the fence in left. Edwards struck out the next two batters to get out of the inning.

But Conley managed just two base runners in the first four innings, as only singles by Chris Via and Steve Mills penetrated the Jaguar outfield.

Meanwhile, Farmville plated another run in the top of the third, as Daniels singled, went to second on a walk to Godley and scored on a single by Taylor Walston. Again Edwards pitched out of further trouble with a pair of strikeouts.

The Jaguars closed the scoring with a run in the fifth. Walston drew a base on balls, Greg May singled and Brian Huber reached first on an infield error to allow Walston to score.

Conley finally got a runner in scoring position in the sixth, as Steve Mills and Todd Cochran opened with singles. Mills was tagged out on a fielder's choice by Fred Bryant, and Bryant was later out at second on a fielder's choice by Via, moving Cochran to third with two out. But Godley struck out Calvin Phillips to close the inning.

Edwards walked Godley and Walston to open the seventh, and Paul Hill came on in relief. Hill struck out May, and catcher Fred Bryant gunned down Godley attempting to steal third on the play. Hugh Moore struck out to end the inning.

In the bottom of the frame, Godley walked Lee Hardee, struck out Mike Elks and walked Randy Mills. A passed ball moved the runners to second and third, but Godley recorded his sixth strikeout and got Steve Mills to pop out to end the game.

"It's nice to be here," Conley Coach Alan Wilson said. "This team's come a long way. Really, a lot of people didn't expect us to be here; this is the first team from Conley to win the (Coastal 3-A) championship."

"We got behind early, and we knew we're not a good hitting team. Darrell wasn't as sharp the last 2-3 games as he was in some early ones, but he's done a good job for us this year. We're a young team, so we hope to be back (in the tournament) next year."

Farmville needed just six hits to score its runs, but the pitcher for the second round will not be decided until the day of the game.

"Right now I'd have to say it'll be Robert Evans," Davis said. "We'll see how Billy's arm feels before we play again and then make a decision."

"(Evans is) just a freshman, but we used him as a spot reliever during the season and he developed pretty well. We just have to take it one day at a time."

U.S. Debt Limit To Go Even Higher

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is taking a break from grappling with ways to trim future budget deficits and is moving this week toward raising the $1.49 trillion national debt limit so the government can borrow still more money.

The House was set today to consider legislation requested by the Reagan administration that would raise the debt limit, which is the government's authority to borrow money. The Senate was taking up the issue today or Wednesday.

Treasury Department officials have predicted the current debt ceiling will be reached Thursday.

Pending in the Democrat-controlled House is a measure that would raise the debt limit by only $30 billion — enough to meet the government's borrowing needs until June 15.

That would make another increase necessary just before Democrats head off to their presidential nominating convention in July in San Francisco, where budget deficits are expected to be a prime topic. Democrats claim the deficits have been run up by President Reagan's economic policies.

Pending in the Republican-controlled Senate is a measure to increase the debt limit by nearly $263 billion to $1.753 trillion, enough to meet the government's demand for credit for another year.

U.S. Showing Little Concern For Soviet Subs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet announcement that more Soviet nuclear missile-carrying submarines will be patrolling off U.S. coastlines was greeted with little concern by U.S. officials, chiefly because the subs have been there for several months.

"There's essentially no change in the strategic situation," said a statement issued Monday at both the White House and the State Department.

The Soviets have added one sub to the two normally stationed off the Pacific Coast and another one to the three that patrol international waters off the U.S. Atlantic seaboard, Pentagon officials said.

The additional subs were first spotted in February and at the time Gen. John W. Vessey Jr., chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said in a letter, "it is not a cause for alarm."

New TV System Lets Viewer Be Boss

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
PORT WASHINGTON, N.Y. (AP) — Television of the future could change viewing from a passive activity to one in which a living-room viewer sits in the director's chair and decides what goes into newscasts, and which camera should pick up the action during a football game.

real video game," said Michael Freeman, the inventor of ACTV, a new TV system unveiled here Monday. It allows subscribers to change program content to fit their needs and interests.

This new form of interactive TV would require permission and cooperation from the programs' broadcasters, who would have to make special versions of their shows available.

All that's needed is an ACTV "Smart Box," a microprocessor that attaches to a cable-TV unit, and a remote control activator. ACTV Inc. president Lionel Schaeen said the system would cost subscribers under $10 a month. He said ACTV would test with a cable system by early 1985 and be available to the public by the middle of that year or early in 1986.

A sample newscast, demonstrated

Monday, could be manipulated so that it could begin with sports, have no sports or have an expanded sports report. The viewer could also choose individual news stories to watch, or be old-fashioned and see the program in its broadcast-originated form.

"It only works on a pre-recorded newscast," said Schaeen. "Say if you wanted a more elaborate story on Lebanon and the show had done a longer version, then you would have the option to see it."

Freeman compared it to a magazine, in which readers choose articles from the table of contents.

"It is highly unlikely that we'll participate in something like this," said Ramona Dunn, a spokeswoman for the "CBS Evening News." "A service of this sort would challenge the integrity of the broadcast."

If ACTV does get cooperation from broadcasters, ACTV viewers could also radically alter the way they look at live sports events. Schaeen gave the example of a televised golf match, where the actual director has access to several different camera shots simultaneously.

Instead of focusing on the tournament from the network angle, ACTV viewers, using a menu of available camera positions, could direct their own telecast. "You could watch the holes you wanted to watch or follow particular foursomes around the whole course," Schaeen said.

For football games, viewers could concentrate on "line play, live action or the cheerleaders," Freeman said.

ACTV's executives said network news executives and sports programmers might allow broadcast altering if they could be convinced that active participation at home would increase ratings.

Commercials can't be excised, but, if the Magic Box has the viewer's age and sex, advertisements can be targeted to him or her. In a demonstration Monday, a male over 30 punched up a program and was later rewarded with a shirt ad.

Other programming capabilities of APTV include: a home audience participation game show; a music show, in which viewers decide when to focus the cameras on the lead singer, musicians and disco dancers, and a kid's show, in which children can steer a video fire truck and affect the story line.

There's also a workout show, without Jane Fonda. With the press of a button, ACTV viewers can tailor their video exercises to their neediest parts.

Remember the days when TV used to only exercise the eyes?

Rogers Sells Home

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Country crooner Kenny Rogers, whose million sellers include "The Gambler," has hauled in a pretty hefty pot, totaling more than $20 million.

Rogers has sold his 11-acre estate here to Denver oilman and movie mogul Marvin Davis for $20,250,000 — a record for a California home, a realtor said Monday.

Davis, chief of 20th Century Fox, becomes at least the third person to pay top dollar for the 25,000-square foot French neoclassical-style mansion and grounds known as The Knoll.

Real estate agent Bruce Nelson, who handled the sale, said escrow closed last Wednesday.

Agent Elaine Young, who also specializes in high-priced properties, said the previous record was the $14 million Rogers paid Italian film producer Dino De Laurentiis for the same property several years ago. Rogers reportedly spent some $5 million remodeling the estate.

De Laurentiis paid $2 million to buy the estate nine years ago, and "at the time, that was the most anyone had ever paid for a home," said Ms. Young, who handled that sale.

"Now every other shack goes for $2 million," Ms. Young said.

'Saturday Night' Returns

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Saturday Night Live," NBC's popular comedy series, will return for a 10th season and the network will introduce a weekly news series to compete with CBS' popular "60 Minutes."

"I think we have successfully lived up to the challenge of presenting a comedy-variety program that works consistently well for 90 minutes," Dick Ebersol, executive producer of "Saturday Night Live," told NBC affiliates Monday.

An 11-part weekly news series, "Summer Sunday, USA," will be broadcast Sundays from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m., beginning July 1, said Lawrence K. Grossman, president of NBC News. The program will feature some of the network's best-known correspondents, he said.

The show "will feature provocative interviews, reporters' stories and a probing look at the week ahead, at politics, at whatever is uppermost on our viewers' minds," Grossman said.

Roger Mudd will anchor two programs on the national political conventions and will provide reports on Democratic and Republican party tickets, Grossman said.

"Saturday Night Live" premiered October 11, 1975, and concluded its ninth season May 12.

The series, broadcast live from New York, brought such comics as Chevy Chase and the late John Belushi to national attention.

Last season, "Saturday Night Live" featured hosts including New York Mayor Ed Koch, former NBC news correspondent Edwin Newman and Betty Thomas of NBC-TV's "Hill Street Blues."

O'Toole Performs In Shaw Classic

LONDON (AP) — Peter O'Toole has taken to the stage as Professor Higgins in the George Bernard Shaw classic "Pygmalion," and the critics seem to agree that, by George, he's got it.

John Peter wrote in The Sunday Times that the Irish-born O'Toole gives "a performance which looks beleaguered but which is actually superbly timed; connoisseurs of acting will observe him with awe as he negotiates his way around people, objects and manners like a giant panic-stricken grasshopper."

The Observer's Michael Ratcliffe described O'Toole, 51, as "a star performer who knows precisely what he is at."

The version of the 1914 Shaw play later made into the musical "My Fair Lady" opened last week at the Shaftesbury Theater in London's West End and will run until July 7.

Michael Billington wrote in The Guardian that the production "is an enjoyable comic Cinderella with a knockdown star performance."

The Sunday Telegraph's Rosemary Say wrote, "the star quality of Mr. O'Toole's performance is most apparent."
