DRESS REHEARSAL — Developing a play is hard work, as any playwright can tell you, but these second and third graders from Elmhurst Elementary did not let expectations of hard work daunt them. With the help of Greenville creative dramatist Steve Myott, the students wrote their own play titled "The Adventures of Laurel and Hardy" which they will present tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the Elmhurst auditorium. According to Myott, the students chose what characters they wanted to be and then developed the story line of the play around those characters. The characters in the play include (left to right) Scott Warren, a soldier; Gavin Flickinger, Laurel, and police officers Brandon Ogburn, Zeb Atkinson and Jay Moye. Myott is shown in the center photo helping "Laurel" with facial expressions. (Reflector Photos by Sue Hinson)

Knox Cites 'Open Road' Path

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

Putting Rufus Edmisten in the governor's mansion would be taking the "low road — the low road of full-time politics," Eddie Knox, Edmisten's opponent in the upcoming June 5 run-off for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, said during a brief visit to Greenville today.

Knox told supporters and members of the media who met him at the Pitt-Greenville Airport at 9:30 a.m. that he was the best candidate because he offered "the open road — the open road of fair and honest leadership." He again called for Edmisten to meet him in a face-to-face debate to discuss allegations of intimidation, tax evasion and tokenism which have surfaced against Edmisten.

Knox based his criticism of Ed-misten on recent "documented" complaints of intimidation of blacks that have surfaced across the state. He pointed in particular to a complaint from Pitt County that was handed on to local Democratic Party leaders by Willie Mae Carney.

Mrs. Carney, a member of the state Democratic committee and co-chairperson of the Pitt County Democratic voter registration campaign, confirmed Knox's claim, saying that she had received several complaints of voter intimidation following the May 8 primary. According to Mrs. Carney, a black lady contacted her shortly after the primary to report that an Edmisten supporter had treated her ungraciously outside a polling center.

"She told me that a person handing out Edmisten cards snatched a Knox card out of her hand, before pushing an Edmisten card on her. We received several other complaints as well. However, none of these have been confirmed.

"I would have been concerned if anyone's representative had done this — Knox's, Edmisten's, Green's, even a local candidate's representative," Mrs. Carney said. "But my biggest fear is that these people we worked so hard to get out will not go out and vote again. This is also the concern of some of our black leaders in this area. Once you can get them out to vote the first time, chances are they will go again, but when something like this happens, we'll never be able to get them out

Iraqis Strike Ships

By The Associated Press

Iraq said its warplanes today attacked and hit two ships southeast of Iran's Kharg Island oil terminal in the Persian Gulf, less than 24 hours after Iraq's president vowed to tighten his blockade of the port.

The official Iraqi news agency quoted a military spokesman as saying two "big" vessels were "accurately and effectively hit," but did not identify the stricken ships.

The Iraqi military spokesman was quoted as saying the attack was "a further affirmation of Iraq's determination to tighten the blockade" which it has imposed around Kharg.

On Wednesday, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein vowed that "the days are near when we will possess weapons capable of demolishing Kharg Island itself" and not just ships loading at the oil terminal, about 125 miles southeast of Iraq.

Salvadoran Jury

Guilty Verdict In Nun Deaths

ZACATECOLUCA, El Salvador (AP) — A jury today convicted five former national guardsmen of killing four American churchwomen, reaching its verdict in the 3½-year-old case after an all-night court session.

The five-member jury deliberated one hour before reaching its verdict. The guardsmen had been taken back to their jail cells and were not in the courtroom when the verdict was read.

The presiding judge, Bernardo Rauda Murcia, told reporters he has 15 days starting Friday to sentence the men, who face up to 30 years in prison. He then presents the sentence to the defense, which can appeal it but cannot appeal the verdict, he said.

The verdict, together with the May 6 election of moderate Jose Napoleon Duarte as president, could help sway the U.S. Congress toward more aid for El Salvador in its 4½-year-old war against leftist guerrillas. Congress has withheld $19 million in military aid pending a verdict.

The defendants each faced three criminal charges — aggravated homicide, aggravated destruction of property, and theft. The final two charges stem from the burning of a van in which the churchwomen were riding when they were abducted.

U.S. Embassy officials were pressing for a trial without recess to make sure the jurors were not subject to any outside pressures, said Michael Posner, executive director of the New York-based Lawyers Committee for International Human Rights, which has represented the victims' families. The judge said this week the jurors will be given two weeks of protection after the trial.

The jury started deliberations at 5 a.m. EDT, after a trial that started Wednesday morning and continued through the night with only short recesses. The jurors had heard eight hours of prepared testimony and seven hours of prosecution and defense arguments.

The jurors sat in straight-backed chairs throughout the long session, listening to pre-trial testimony being read, then to arguments by prosecutors and defense attorneys.

During arguments, prosecutor Leon Romero Cordero waved pictures of the slain women in the defendants' faces.

"How can you kill four women in the prime of their lives?," he asked. "These are the four women that these men killed and they do not have the courage to lift up their heads to see if they recognize them."

Carlos Correa, a U.S. Justice Department lawyer sent here early this year to review the case, told reporters after the verdict that prosecutors did a "good job," and described the defense as "lousy."

All three defense lawyers were appointed by the court.

"From the beginning there has been no one to speak in defense of these men," said Leonardo Lopez Ventura, lawyer for three of the defendants. He said he took over their cases only three months ago and had not met his clients before the trial began on Wednesday.

Carlos Joaquin Contreras Palacios, 27, the only defendant who had confessed to the murders, told reporters Wednesday he was coerced and offered money for his confession. But Judge Bernardo Rauda Murcia said he would not allow the confession to be retracted at the trial.

TV Ad Attacks Helms

Gary Pearce, press secretary to Gov. Jim Hunt before joining Hunt's campaign for the U.S. Senate May 1, said here today that the Hunt-for-Senate campaign has started running a television ad statewide that calls Sen. Jesse Helms to account for the damage he has done to the farmers of North Carolina.

Helms, Pearce said, "likes to say that the farmers of North Carolina cannot afford to lose him in the United States Senate."

"The truth is," Pearce said, "they cannot afford to keep him there." In the four years that Helms has been chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, Pearce said, "5,000 North Carolina farmers have gone out of business... total farm debt has increased by $600 million," and "agricultural exports are down by 22 percent."

Pearce also said that Helms is "the man responsible for the appointment of Dr. C. Everett Koop as surgeon general of the United States. Koop, in a speech in Miami Sunday, said that 'this country's top health goal should be, and I quote, 'a smoke-free society by the year 2000.'" Pearce said.

"In 1981, Sen. Helms successfully pushed for special legislation waiving an age restriction that would have prevented Dr. Koop from becoming surgeon general."

By pushing for the special legislation, Pearce said Helms "put his own personal interests in that issue ahead of the best interests of North Carolina's tobacco farmers."

TILLER HAZARD

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, Sears, Roebuck and Co. and the Roper Corp. are notifying consumers of potential hazards associated with some tillers sold between 1963 and 1980. These tillers have a clutch locking button that allows the tiller to be locked in reverse. There have been more than 20 reports of injuries caused when tillers reportedly backed over users. Sears will inform customers of a modification kit to eliminate the clutch locking mechanisms. Consumers with model numbers beginning with the numbers 917 may call the Roper toll-free hotline number, 1-800-435-5117, to find out if they have one of the tillers and get a free modification kit. They may also get information from the Consumer Product Safety Commission toll-free number, 1-800-638-2772. The Teletypewriter number for the hearing impaired is 1-800-638-8270.

WORKING ON THE RAILROAD — Norfolk & Southern Railroad employees and contract crews are reworking the railroad's main line through Greenville. N&S track supervisor T.M. Freeman said the work is part of "regular maintenance ... set up on a cycle of every eight years. 'We're redoing the whole main line,' according to Freeman, who said the work from Bridgeton to Greenville, which is almost complete, will cost $250,000. "We'll average putting down 1,000 ties to the mile," and "the cost of cross ties to us is $16 each.

From New Bern to Greenville, we've used 60,000 tons of stone," he said. Work on the 14th Street crossing was completed Wednesday, while the crossing at Brownlea Drive was completed Thursday. Work on the Elm Street crossing began today. The schedule for other crossings includes: Berkley Road on May 29, Pitt Street on May 30, Beatty Street on May 31, Watauga Avenue on June 1, Skinner Street on June 4, and Line Avenue on June 5. Rose High School Food Service Class Wins National Second Place

The Food Service Class Periods 2-3 of J.H. Rose High School have been named national second place winners in the 1984 Fleischmann's Yeast Share the Health Contest. The announcement was made by Nabisco Brands, Inc. Elaine R. Tschetter is class teacher.

For entry participants were required to design and implement a community-based project in nutrition education. After determining the nutritional needs of a selected target group, students developed menu plans based on their findings and shared results with members chosen for the study.

In the past selected community groups have included elementary school children, school athletes, the elderly, the overweight and persons on special medical diets.

The contest was open to junior and senior high school home economics and health classes throughout the United States.

The nine winning students developed a nutrition awareness program for a developmental kindergarten class in Greenville. For nine months the students visited the kindergarten class regularly to teach basic nutrition information and simple cooking techniques. In addition the daily food intake of the kindergartners was analyzed and nutritious menus were planned and served to the children.

The winning class will be awarded a check for $1,000 in scholarships. For her participation Mrs. Tschetter has been awarded a two-week trip.

Rules folders for next year's contest can be obtained by writing to: Nabisco Brands Educational Service, Drawer A, Madison Square Station, New York, 10010.

Spring Fest Set For June 2

The third annual Spring Fest will be held June 2 on the Downtown Evans Mall in Greenville from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

It is being sponsored by the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council, Downtown Greenville Association, Greenville Recreation and Parks Department and East Carolina University.

Planned activities include crafts, demonstrations, live music and special activities for children.

Groups interested in having food booths or baked items for sale should contact the Arts Council Office at 757-1785. Further information can also be supplied.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

There's a reason why homemaking has never been taken seriously as a profession.

It has nothing to do with pride, performance, goals or respect. We never made it big because we don't have business cards. We may be the last of the professionals who don't.

I've answered doors where Willy Loman was standing there in the hot sun in a 30-year-old three-piece suit selling vegetable slicers, talcum powder, firewood and storm doors from a pick-up truck and the moment he reached in his pocket and said, "Here's my card," he turned into Lee Iacocca.

Somehow the business card gave him a snoutful of respectability.

I've been given a lot of business cards in my time. They are pressed into my hand at parties, tucked inside programs, and left in my message box at hotels. They all have something in common. They are always edited. The formal name is crossed out and "Bubba" or "Giggles" is written in. The business address is always wrong and has the change inked in over it and the phone number is different. Also, there are instructions as to the time of day it is best to call and another number is listed on the back. Sometimes, there is a high school graduation picture that bears no resemblance to the owner of the card.

The problem, the way I understand it, is that business cards are like oversexed coat hangers and rubber bands stored on doorknobs. Left in a drawer or a suit pocket, business cards multiply faster than the name cards left over from graduation announcements. Everyone is too cheap to throw them away.

A housewife in Wichita, Kans., got sick of everybody else flipping out those little suckers with an authoritative air and instructions to "call if you need something," so she had her own cards printed up. At the top of it was her slogan, "Every Mother Is a Working Mother," and underneath she listed herself as Lynn Groner, Homemaker, Licensed. In the lower lefthand corner were her address and phone number and in the right hand her promise: "Years of experience turning out quality products."

She said the reason a lot of housewives don't have business cards is a small card 3 1/2 by 2 inches isn't room enough to list all of our services.

Lynn may be right. On the other hand, I like to think we're a group too exclusive to go public and too smart to advertise for more work.

If you want something pressed: flushed, cooked, waxed, warmed over, bleached, delivered, hemmed, or picked up, you know where to find me, Sweetie. I'm in the book!

High School Students Get Awards From DAR Chapter

Two high school students were recognized at the fifth anniversary meeting of the Susanna Coutanch Evans Chapter DAR held last week at the home of Mrs. James Briley.

Veveca Pulliam of Greenville, a student at North Pitt, was the winner of the DAR N.C. Society Student Scholarship and Glenn E. Clemmons, also of Greenville and a student at D.H. Conley High school, was awarded the DAR ROTC medal.

Both were winners due to their academic abilities and will attend East Carolina University upon graduation. Melanie Teel of Bethel, a student at North Pitt, will also receive a ROTC medal.

Officers were installed by District Director Mrs. Everett Ballengee. Installed were Mrs. Donald C. McLane Jr., regent; Mrs. Wetzel Smith, vice regent; Mrs. Garland Waters, chaplain; Mrs. Keats Sparrow, recording secretary; Mrs. Dennis Winstead, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Frank Thompson, treasurer; Dr. Mildred Southwick, registrar; Mrs. Lee Williams, historian; and Mrs. D.W. Johnson, librarian.

In June a pig picking will be held for members and husbands. Mrs. Smith is making arrangements for the event.

Named To State Association Offices

Two Greenville women, Peggy Wood and Becky Brown, have been named to state offices in the N.C. Medical Record Association.

Mrs. Wood, a registered record administrator, will serve as a delegate of the group while Mrs. Brown, an accredited record technician, will be chairman of the public relations committee.

Mrs. Wood is chairman of the department of medical record administration at East Carolina University and Mrs. Brown is presently employed as director of medical records at Eastern Carolina Surgical Center.

The state association is made up of 600 medical record professionals.

Marriage Announced

Donna Hart Powell and Tony Lynn Barbre, both of Asheboro, were united in marriage at 2 p.m. May 5 at the First Assembly of God Church in Asheboro.

The Rev. Randall Ross of Asheboro officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph L. Walker of Leland.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Shelby R. Barbre of Asheboro and the late Jimmy Ray Barbre.

After a wedding trip to the North Carolina mountains, the couple will live in Asheboro.

Cooking Is Fun

BARBARA BEAUMONT'S ENGLISH TRIFLE

Custard, recipe follows

- 1 1/2 cups fresh orange sections
- 1 1/2 cups fresh pineapple chunks
- 3 dozen lady fingers
- 1/2 cup (about) raspberry jam
- 1/4 cup cream sherry
- 1 cup heavy cream, whipped
- Toasted slivered almonds
- Candied violets, if desired

Make custard.

In a colander over a bowl, toss together the oranges and pineapple. Drain fruit; set aside.

Split lady fingers; sandwich each pair together with 1/4 teaspoon jam. Brush one side of filled lady fingers with sherry. Reserve 10 filled lady fingers for the top.

Line the bottom and sides of a 3-quart straight-sided glass serving bowl with the remaining filled lady fingers, placing sherry-coated side against glass. Spread 1/2 cup of the custard over bottom layer of lady fingers. Top with 1 cup of the orange and pineapple mixture. Repeat layering with remaining custard and fruit; top with reserved lady fingers. Cover; refrigerate 3 to 4 hours.

Just before serving garnish with whipped cream, almonds and, if using, candied violets.

Makes 10 to 12 servings.

CUSTARD

- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 2 cups milk
- 2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
- 1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla

In a 2-quart saucepan stir together the sugar and cornstarch. Gradually stir in the milk until smooth. Whisk in egg yolks. Over medium-low heat, stirring constantly, bring to a boil. Cook until mixture is thickened and boils 1 minute. Off heat, stir in the vanilla.

Turn into a bowl; cover with saran without pressing down on surface. Refrigerate until cool — about 1 hour. Use as directed in Barbara Beaumont's English Trifle.

Makes about 2 1/2 cups.

Doctor Who Needs Space Keeps Woman In Waiting Room

DEAR ABBY: My problem is the man I've been dating exclusively for nearly a year. He's been divorced for nine years and I've been divorced for a year. I'm 37 and he's 40. He is also my doctor. I switched to him about a year ago. He says he "cares for me" and "needs me," but he never says, "I love you." (I tell him I love him constantly.) He has told me that his practice will always come first and he doesn't want to be pushed. His favorite expression is, "I need my space."

We live 50 miles apart, and I always have to drive to his place because he's always busy, his time is so valuable and he's too tired to drive. I am very much in love with him and will take him on his terms and he knows it.

What hurts me more than anything is that he charges me for my visits to his office. He has a thriving practice and doesn't need the money. Why do you suppose he does this? Should I hang in there, Abby? I want to be his wife.

DOCTOR'S SLAVE

DEAR SLAVE: Perhaps he doesn't want his office employees to know that he is seeing you outside of the office.

As for "hanging in there," I think you're about as close to marriage with this man as you're ever going to get.

DEAR ABBY: This letter is for the Arizona parents whose daughters are married to the "hippies."

Count your blessings, folks. I'm married to a man with short hair and no earring. He's very clean-cut, but he's also the biggest skirt chaser in town and one lazy dude around the house.

Why do I stay? The children, of course.

Don't judge by looks—judge by heart.

M.P. IN K.C.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter lives in another state, and we try to visit her as often as possible. She has two children, and we would like to be part of their lives. Our visits are flawed because of our son-in-law. He's very hospitable to us, but he is very short-tempered with our daughter and talks to her in a tone we are not accustomed to. It is not an exaggeration to say that he is verbally abusive.

This is very upsetting to my husband and me. What worries us is that if he talks to her that way when we are there, what does he do when nobody else is around? She has always been very outspoken, but she

Katheryn Lewis To Be Speaker

The Greenville Chapter of Professional Secretaries International will have its dinner meeting Tuesday at Western Sizzlin Steak House on E. 10th Street starting at 6:15 p.m. Katheryn Lewis, director, Rural Education Institute, East Carolina University, will speak.

Area secretaries interested in attending should call Jo Gillin at 757-2814.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

doesn't say anything to him when he talks to her that way. Maybe she is submissive because we are there and she doesn't want to create a scene.

I would like to talk to her about it, but I don't want to upset her any more than she already is. My husband thinks I should speak to our son-in-law, but I don't want to be a typical meddling mother-in-law. What do you suggest?
LOVING PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: Don't speak to your son-in-law. And please resist the temptation to criticize him to your daughter. If she's "upset" and feels verbally abused, it's up to her to handle it. Just let her know that you are always there for her if she needs you, but don't offer any help unless it's asked for.

DEAR ABBY: "Not Curious in Florida" inspired a lot of interesting mail for your column when he asked readers to write in and tell about their experiences having to do with adoptees searching for birth parents. I hope it's not too late to put in my 2 cents.

As an adopted child, all I've ever known about my biological parents was that they were both music majors at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill.

How lovely! Outside of making babies, I do hope they at least learned how to play the piano while they were "fiddling around" at Northwestern.

The parents who adopted me, raised me and loved me are the only parents I've ever known or want to know. Sign me ...

Planning Ahead

We have at times criticized the County Commissioners for their lack of planning in land purchases.

We have no quarrel, however, with the decision to purchase an office building and lot at 216 S. Washington St. for $130,000.

The county is acquiring a 2,170-square-foot building which was constructed in 1955 and remodeled in 1965. It is located on a 6,550-square-foot lot.

It is likely that conducting District and Superior courts will continue to center in the courthouse area, and it can be expected that the court business will grow as the county grows. Thus, the need for additional space is predictable.

The county will have the use of this office building to house county offices. Equally important it will now have a link between the courthouse and the property which it recently purchased on the west side of the block bordered by Greene, Second, Washington and Third streets.

In the immediate future the Greene Street property will serve as parking for jurors and others who come to the courthouse. In the future it could be used for construction of additional courtroom and ancillary space. Either way a connector is needed to the present courthouse.

New Look

We briefly pause to call attention to the Southern Baptist Convention's planned entry into the television field. Its network offering will include all the television staples, but will differ from other church-sponsored efforts in the field in one respect:

They will shun their brethren's appeals for donations.

The Rev. Jimmy Allen, president of the Baptist convention's Radio and Television Commission, says surveys indicate many viewers ignore Christian television because of the requests for donations.

"We just feel our role is to get past that ... on-air fund-raising barrier, if we can", he explains.

Church leaders say they also hope their channel's look is different from other television ministries by being more open to other Christian viewpoints.

The policy statements represent some sort of a landmark in careful preparation for entry into a highly competitive field. We look forward to the product.

Agency's Probing Has No Bounds

WASHINGTON — Lt. Gen. James A. Abrahamson, newly appointed director of President Reagan's "Star Wars" missile defense program, could scarcely believe his eyes April 25 when he read in that morning's Washington Post a news account that reflected the congressional version of a rogue elephant rampaging at will on Capitol Hill.

"How the hell did this ever get into print?" Abrahamson exploded to Maj. Gen. E.R. Heiberg III, his project manager. He referred to a publicly released document by the congressional Office of Technology Assessment (OTA) attacking the Reagan space defense program and containing what the Defense Department defined as security information.

Heiberg's memorandum back to Abrahamson a week later fingered Peter J. Sharfman, manager of the OTA's internal security division, and quoted Sharfman as saying, "Congress does not feel bound" by Pentagon secrecy. That looseness about making available to the Soviet Union new technology in the race for anti-missile space defense has led conservative Republican senators to request an FBI investigation of security breaches.

The overriding issue concerns semi-autonomous organizations, such as the OTA, that have sprouted in the growth of the massive congressional bureaucracy. They sometimes resemble the fabled rogue elephant, spewing out reports without regard for security rules in order to pursue their own policy interests.

The goal here is to bring down the Star Wars program. The OTA was able to run through the Los Alamos and Livermore laboratories for top-secret technology and then issue a report — never specifically authorized by Congress — ridiculing Reagan's missile defense research.

The OTA "Background Paper" by MIT Professor Ashton B. Carter (a former OTA employee) derided Star Wars as "so remote that it should not serve as the basis of public expectation or national policy." The 97-page document also contained what Pentagon officials insist is the most detailed description ever published of the so-called "Excalibur" system for creating an anti-missile defense by harnessing the energy of a nuclear explosion.

The OTA's Sharfman told us the report was security-cleared by the Army, a claim not confirmed by the Army. Gen. Heiberg's May 1 memorandum to Gen. Abrahamson (in answer to "how the hell" such information got into print) contained this explanation of why OTA did not ask for security clearance from the Pentagon's top brass: "When I asked Mr. Sharfman why he had not gone to the Office of the Secretary of Defense for security clearance, he said: 'We ask anyone we please.'"

In a legal sense, Sharfman was correct. Security rules are mainly presidential executive orders and have no legal standing in the Legislative Branch. But in the broader sense, security leaks on Capitol Hill can undermine the national interest.

Sen. James A. McClure, chairman of the Senate Republican Conference, and nearly a dozen other GOP senators have asked FBI Director William Webster to investigate the alleged security breaches in the case. Their May 8 letter charges that Dr. Carter's document includes secret technology about what Sen. Orrin Hatch calls "perhaps the most important weapons program under development in the U.S. today."

OTA, much-praised in the past for some of its research papers, is supposed to be governed by a congressional board. But Sen. Ted Stevens, Senate Republican whip and vice chairman of the OTA Board, said the first he knew of the Carter document was when he read about it in the newspapers. Democratic Rep. Morris Udall, now chairman of the rotating board, told us Carter's paper never had been approved because it was not an official "assessment."

Actually, the study by the MIT professor was cooked up by Sharfman and his OTA colleagues to find out more about the Pentagon program. "We didn't know enough about the subject to discuss it

—Paul O'Connor— Knox Calls On Old Ploy

HICKORY — Is Attorney General Rufus Edmisten afraid to be compared, one on one, with Eddie Knox, his rival for the Democratic nomination for governor?

That's a question Knox is asking as he tours the state these days in preparation for the June 5 runoff. Why else, Knox asks, would Edmisten have turned down the opportunity to debate Knox on television? Why else would Edmisten have stopped attending candidates' forums where the two could debate the issues?

Eddie Knox is using a campaign maneuver that's as old as political debates themselves. At every stop along the political campaign trail, in every interview he gives to the news media, he's saying that Edmisten's refusal to participate in a series of debates is proof positive that Edmisten can't stand up to a vigorous examination of the issues.

Edmisten hasn't cut and run completely. He has agreed to a June 1, prime-time, live, one-hour debate on UNC-TV. But no more. No more debates — he recently refused an offer from Charlotte's WBTV for a one-hour debate. No more candidates' forums.

When Knox appeared before the N.C. Association of Arts Councils meeting here on May 16, he found himself debating Edmisten's wife, Linda, and Sen. Cass Ballenger, R-Catawba, who represented Republican gubernatorial candidate Jim Martin. "I wish that the candidates themselves could be here," Knox said in his opening remarks. Later in the day, in Greensboro, Knox was again alone at a forum on criminal justice matters and again noted Edmisten's absence.

Knox says that forums and debates held before the primary were so crowded with candidates that the voters could not get a good sense of any of the candidates. Now, with only two candidates, Democratic voters have a "golden opportunity,"

Knox says, to get to know the two men.

"It's quite easy to run a 30-second ad saying these are our successes but it is not so easy to stand up and explain your positions," Knox said about Edmisten's apparent plans to spend most of his time raising money for TV ads rather than making a lot of public appearances.

Knox charges that Edmisten's strategy is "to ride out the campaign and win if there isn't some kind of catastrophe." He says that Edmisten thinks a debate "is a risk they don't want to take."

But Edmisten's campaign rejects Knox's argument. "It's obviously untrue," Jerry Mobley, Edmisten campaign spokesman, says, "because we've agreed to debate. We're looking forward to it." About the candidates' forums, "it's not a matter of not wanting to go to them, it's a matter of what we've scheduled and what our priorities are."

"What we are not going to do," Mobley continued, "is let someone who finished five points back in the first primary, who has been saying all sorts of things about our campaign, we're not going to run all over this state to give him an opportunity to shout those accusations."

During the interview, Mobley said Edmisten will not be making a lot of public appearances during the runoff campaign. Instead, he'll hold a lot of private meetings in which he seeks endorsements and raises money.

That may be the kind of strategy that will work for Edmisten. He led the first primary by 50,000 votes and he knows that debates generally help the challenger. But, if Edmisten is successfully depicted as a politician in hiding, he can be hurt as much as if he had given Knox the publicity that comes with a series of debates.

—James Kilpatrick—

Legislation Isn't The Answer

WASHINGTON — A House subcommittee is feeling its way through a series of hearings on a bill to impose tight quotas on imported steel. The steel industry is for the bill. The Reagan administration is against it. With deference to old friends in a beleaguered industry, it has to be said that on this issue the administration is right. This bill isn't the answer to the industry's problems.

The bill (H.R. 5081) is nothing if not straightforward. It would limit steel imports every year for the next five years to 15 percent of estimated domestic consumption. A second major provision would require a complete recycling of the revenues of domestic steel companies into new steel investment.

The industry makes a persuasive case, but not a convincing case, in support of this protectionist legislation. Let me attempt to summarize the industry's side of the issue.

For more than 20 years, the United States has been the world's only free market for steel. Other nations are thus in a position to sell their surplus inventories of steel on the American market at dumped or subsidized prices. This is patently unfair. Our domestic manufacturers cannot compete successfully against the practice. The volume of imported steel has soared from 13.5 percent of domestic consumption in 1975 to 26.2 percent in January and February of this year. These unfair imports are the primary cause of the industry's $6 billion loss over the past two years.

Without the temporary protection provided by H.R. 5081, the domestic industry cannot survive. Given breathing room for a few years, the industry will modernize its plants to a point at which international competition will again be possible. The United States cannot afford to let its steel industry go the way of other major industries. Not only jobs and tax revenues are in jeopardy; the very national security is threatened also.

Against that persuasive case, a few rejoinders need to be voiced. The volume of imports is only one reason, and perhaps not even the principal reason, for the mess the industry is in. Over a period of decades, mossbacked management failed to keep pace with changing technology. Without a thought for some ultimate rainy day, management yielded lush contracts to the steelworkers' union. Labor costs ran up to $27 an hour, counting basic wages and fringe benefits, 90 percent above the average for all industries.

Despite these ruinous costs of labor, representing a third of production costs, some parts of our domestic steel industry are not doing badly. Most of the major producers have diversified in recent years: at Armco, for one example, steel has dropped from 85 percent of the company's assets in 1968 to 36 percent today.

The pending legislation might help the domestic producers in their short-term profits, but the bill would hurt consumers and in the long haul it would weaken the companies also. For five years — perhaps eight, given a presidential renewal — they would be guaranteed 85 percent of the U.S. market. So comfortable a prospect is not likely to galvanize management into greater efficiency or to prompt labor into giveback concessions. During the whole of this period, the industry would be under the smothering mentorship of the federal bureaucracy, watching to see that revenues were ploughed back into modernized plant. It is hard to understand why industry executives would want so intrusive a hand on management decisions.

Statutory import quotas aren't the best answer for steel. They're not the answer for automobiles or textiles, either. Such barriers at home invite new barriers abroad, and heaven knows that American exporters face enough of those now. A better answer lies in fighting unlawful imports under existing law, and in greatly improving the productivity and efficiency of our own mills.

As recently as 1980, domestic plants were selling 4.1 million tons of steel on foreign markets. Last year they sold only 1.2 million tons, and in the first quarter of 1984 they were exporting at an annual rate of only 956,000 tons. Is something wrong with the product? Or with our salesmen? If U.S. producers are crying the blues, maybe it's all the fault of those crafty foreigners. And then again, maybe not.

Public Forum

To the editor:

On May 8 Rufus Edmisten won Martin County with a vote total of 2,299 (43 percent of the vote). The nearest opponent was Lauch Faircloth with 1,161. Several days later a published statistical chart came out in the News and Observer saying that Rufus only got a little over 500 votes. I called the News and Observer and, after two calls, they kindly printed a retraction.

On Sunday, May 20, on the front page of the News and Observer, came out a map of North Carolina showing exactly how each county voted. They were coded blue for Rufus, red for Eddie Knox, and white for others. Martin County only had a small percentage colored blue and the rest was white. Evidently they used the same wrong statistical chart.

It is disheartening to work so hard in Martin County and win, but still lose according to the News and Observer.

To the editor:

I am appalled at the failure of the Pitt County Board of Elections to disqualify Mr. Grooms soon enough for me to have the opportunity to vote for another candidate. It takes audacity to then turn around and callously disregard my vote. Moreover, Rufus Edmisten supports this blatant disregard for the votes of 1,689 residents of Pitt County. Apparently I have no say in the selection of the Board of Elections. However, Mr. Rufus Edmisten certainly will not receive my vote.

Minority Students Given Look At Medical School

A program developed by the East Carolina University School of Medicine's Center for Student Opportunities (CSO) is designed to eliminate the kind of thinking that puts medical school beyond the reach of many minority college students.

During two sessions this spring, the CSO brought in groups of minority students from North Carolina campuses to spend nearly three days getting an on-site "feel" of the medical school environment.

The program, funded with a $4,200 grant from the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation, involved 32 students and six advisers, mostly from the state's predominantly black universities, but also from ECU and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. The students were juniors and seniors majoring in pre-medical studies, with an eye toward careers in health care.

"We were actually trying to reach the students who would be applying to medical school in the next one to two years," Jacqueline Hawkins, CSO coordinator, said.

"Typically, many of these students aspire to a career in medicine, but as the application deadline draws near, their confidence flags," she said. "But we encourage them to continue their interest in medicine and to go through with the application process."

Program participants spent their first afternoon with medical officials learning about admissions requirements and procedures, sources of financial aid and the undergraduate program offered at ECU. The final two days were devoted to first-hand encounters with the medical school experience. The prospective doctors also attended basic science classes with first-year medical students who shared their feelings about medical school with the students during breaks.

The last day, the students spent on rotations through the clinical departments of Emergency Medicine, Pediatrics, Obstetrics/Gynecology, Surgery and Family Medicine. In the company of third- and fourth-year medical students, residents in training and faculty physicians, they witnessed real-life situations encountered by health care professionals every day.

Hawkins said the program will be repeated next spring.

Participants this year included Noretta Arrington, Scotland Neck; James Bond, Windsor; Wilma Case, Goldsboro; Adrian Corlett, Greenville; Renee Roberson, Robersonville; Maria Streeter, Greenville, and Bryan Gooding, Kinston.

Youth Orchestra To Give Concert

ECU News Bureau

The Eastern Youth Orchestra, directed by Lori Lloyd, will perform a spring concert Monday at 8 p.m. in East Carolina University's Fletcher Recital Hall.

The orchestra, composed of 24 string players, will perform arrangements from Bach's "Peasant Cantata," Mozart's "Ceremonial March," Berger's "Short Overture for Strings," and Nelhybel's "Surprise Variations."

Members of the orchestra are selected each year from Greenville and surrounding communities by audition. This year, the orchestra's membership includes upper elementary, junior high and high school students from Aycock Junior High, Wahl-Coates Elementary, South Greenville Elementary, Farmville Middle, St. Peter's and Martin Middle schools.

Orchestra members include Traci Capeletti, Annmarie Carter, Mary Paul Castellow, Lydia Coulter, Stewart Coulter, Andrea Craft, Margaret Ann Creech, Benjamin Davis, Kathryn Ellen, Taylor Evans, Kendra Harris, Josh Hickman, Dawn Ingram, Craig Kirkland, John Lindsay, Jennifer Lucht, Julie Mayberry, Debbie Morrison, Katie Raab, Rachel Raab, John Rose, Scott Thomas, Kathryn Taft and Sarah Yarbrough.

The orchestra is sponsored by the Eastern Carolina Orchestra and Chamber Music Association and the

A.J. Fletcher Foundation.

Also performing at the concert will be the Eastern Honors Quartet, coached by Leonid Zilper of the North Carolina Symphony. The quartet, comprised of Andrea Bath, Mary Paul Castellow, Jennifer Lucht and Amy Moore, will perform a variation of the Beethoven Quartet in A Major, Opus 18, No. 5. The quartet is sponsored by the Eastern Carolina Orchestra and Chamber Music Association.

The program is open to the public on a first-come, first-seated basis. There will be no charge.

Malpractice Trial Under Way

The trial of a civil suit filed against Dr. Jack Wilkerson of Greenville, and Dr. David H. Riddick of Virginia, in July 1980, is being tried in Pitt County Superior Court this week.

The suit, filed by Mildred T. McGrath, a former member of the Greenville City Council, seeks "compensatory damages in excess of $10,000" in connection with the death of her husband, Harold M. McGrath, 63, in October 1979.

The complaint charges that as a result of surgery in January 1974, McGrath was diagnosed as having carcinoma of the pancreas, and that Wilkerson, "along with the consultation of ... Riddick ... each prescribed and directed that" McGrath be given a treatment "commonly known as chemotherapy ... without a biopsy of the pancreas having been done."

Alleging that the drug prescribed "was an improper choice to be administered ... even if the deceased were to have had carcinoma of the pancreas as was improperly diagnosed by the defendants," the complaint continues "that they continued to allow" the chemotherapy treatment to continue when they knew or should have known that the original diagnosis made was in error "in that the mean survival time following the diagnosis of cancer of the pancreas with or without cancer chemotherapy was approximately 11 months."

According to the complaint, surgery was again performed on McGrath "on or about August 23, 1977," and "during said operation said surgeon determined for the first time since ... January 8, 1974 that the deceased did not have carcinoma of the pancreas nor had he ever had such a condition."

Judge James Strickland is presiding over the trial, which is expected to continue into next week.

Police said no charges were made following investigation of a Monday collision at the intersection of Third and Pitt streets involving cars driven by Craig Parker of 1108 Fairfax Ave. and Judy Beth Moulton of 104B Cedar Court. Damage from the collision was estimated at $1,200 to the Parker car and $1,000 to the Moulton auto.

Radio Stolen

Greenville police are investigating a break-in at 1107 W. Fifth St. reported at 11:52 p.m. Wednesday. Officer Lyn White said entrance to the dwelling was gained through a window and a radio, valued at $200, was reported taken.

GCA Graduation

The 5-year-old kindergarten class at Greenville Christian Academy will present the Nicky Chavers musical "I Graduate" at its commencement ceremonies at 7:30 p.m. Friday. The 4-year-old kindergarten class will also present poems, songs and Bible verses learned during the school year. Diplomas will be presented by the Rev. J.M. Bragg, school president, and Gene Lewis, principal.

Missionary Mamie Gorham of Friendship Holiness Church of Falkland will speak at Tabernacle of Faith Revival Center on the Old River Road Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Bloodmobile

The blood drive Wednesday at Burroughs-Wellcome Co. collected 174 pints, according to Red Cross spokeswoman Ruth Taylor. She said 32 people were deferred for various health reasons. Liz Briley, plant nurse, coordinated the drive.

Public Hearing

A public hearing on the 1984-85 Low-Income Energy Assistance Program will be held Friday from 10 a.m. until noon at the Department of Human Resources' eastern regional office, 404 St. Andrews Drive. The hearing is sponsored by the state Department of Human Resources' Division of Social Services. The public may submit written comments or make oral presentations of 10 minutes or less at the hearing. Written comments should be mailed by Wednesday to Mike Haswell, Low-Income Energy Assistance Program, Room 711, 325 North Salisbury St., Raleigh, N.C. 27611.

Special Tax

All persons selling alcoholic beverages at retail should file the required occupational tax return with the U.S. Internal Revenue Service by July 1, a spokesman for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms said today. Robert E. Daugherty, regional director for compliance for the Treasury Department's ATF bureau, said the special tax is filed on Form 11, with the rate based on the type of alcoholic beverages sold. Daugherty said further information on the tax may be obtained by calling the nearest IRS office.

Boat Safety Checks

The U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary designated May 15 through June 15 as Courtesy Marine Examination Month. The examination is a public service boat safety check given free by a qualified Coast Guard Auxiliary examiner.

For more information contact the Greenville Flotilla of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, 756-1511 or 757-3782.

Singer In Town

Gospel singer Linda Mason of Chesapeake, Va., will be in Greenville this weekend for several appearances. She will be on WNCT-TV's "Carolina Today" Friday morning at 7:15.

Friday at 8 p.m. she and Johnny Mathis of Nashville, Tenn., a country gospel singer, will give a concert at the home of Lymon and Jackie Windhom near Farmville. Saturday at 8 p.m. she will appear at This Way Up Coffee House in Greenville. Ms. Mason and Mathis will provide the music during the 10 a.m. service Sunday at Ballard's Community Baptist Church near Ballard's Crossroads. Ms. Mason, a former public school music teacher, has appeared on the Christian Broadcasting Network. She is a pianist and songwriter, as well as a singer. Mathis, a former Pitt County resident, is a country music writer and recorder.

Chernenko Raps U.S. Policies

MOSCOW (AP) — President Konstantin U. Chernenko, in a sharp attack on American policies in the Pacific and Far East, says the United States is trying to turn Japan into an "unsinkable aircraft carrier."

Speaking Wednesday at a banquet to honor North Korean leader Kim Il Sung, Chernenko also called for reunifying North and South Korea, the official Soviet news agency Tass reported.

Chernenko said the Soviet Union wants closer ties with China, but that "hegemonism," along with imperialism, is threatening security in Southeast Asia. Hegemonism is a term typically applied by Moscow to China, which the Soviet Union has accused repeatedly of trying to gain influence over its neighbors.

Kim, 72, arrived in Moscow by train Wednesday for his first official visit to Moscow in 23 years. He began talks with Chernenko at the Kremlin today and is to visit several East European countries after leaving the Soviet Union.

"For the imperialists, the Asian continent is another eastern front of struggle against socialist states," Chernenko said Wednesday. "They in Washington do not conceal their intentions to convert Japan into a kind of their 'unsinkable aircraft carrier.'"

"This is a dangerous game, since Japanese imperialism has on more than one occasion now revealed its expansionist, colonizer essence and has on more than one occasion unleashed war," he said.

Japan, despite pressure from the United States to increase its military outlays more rapidly, has held defense spending to no more than 1 percent of its gross national product since 1976. Its defense budget for 1984 totals about $13 billion — a 6.55 percent increase over 1983.

Chernenko said the United States has built military bases and deployed nuclear weapons in Asia that were targeted against the Soviet Union and other socialist nations in the region.

He said no one should have any doubts that the Soviet Union would defend its security as well as that of its allies.

The White House was trying to build a "Washington-Tokyo-Seoul bloc" in the Pacific, he said. The Soviet president denounced U.S.-directed military exercises involving South Korea, and demanded that U.S. troops be withdrawn from the country.

He said the Kremlin had consistently worked to normalize and improve Soviet-Chinese relations, but "not at the expense of third countries."

The Chinese and Soviets have held talks since October 1982, but have failed to resolve basic differences. China demands as a condition of improved relations that Soviet troops be pulled out of Afghanistan, that the Soviet presence be reduced along the Chinese-Soviet border and Chinese-Mongolian border, and that Moscow drop its support for Vietnam's occupation of Cambodia. In his banquet speech, Kim said North Korea and the Soviet Union had been "jointly struggling for a long time against imperialist aggressions and colonial yoke."

Duarte Satisfied Will Get U.S. Aid

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — President-elect Jose Napoleon Duarte, back from a trip to Washington, says he is optimistic that Congress would approve more military and economic aid for El Salvador.

Duarte, who returned Wednesday from a four-day trip, told reporters at El Salvador Airport, "I am satisfied. We managed to create an awareness among legislators to guide them in the forthcoming votes on economic and military aid to our country."

Duarte, 58, was elected May 6 and is to take office June 1 for a five-year term.

"We have gone to tell the peoples of the world that in El Salvador a healthy and strong democracy has been born," said Duarte, the first elected civilian president since 1930 in El Salvador.

Duarte said he told U.S. officials that "all aid is welcome, but this aid must not have unilateral conditions attached to it because this weakens the capacity of a leader to face the problems of his country."

"I appealed to Democrats and Republicans, conservatives and liberals alike, to understand us, to help us, not to leave us alone, to give us their support so that this democratic government can face up to the country's worst problems," Duarte said.

Duarte said if his country receives aid, Salvadorans "pledge before the whole world to face up to the problems of human rights, respect for men and nations."

Congress is debating further aid to El Salvador as part of a $1.2 billion compromise emergency appropriations bill for various programs, including El Salvador.

The Reagan administration seeks $179 million in additional Salvadoran military aid for this fiscal year.

In a related development, rebel radio stations in El Salvador said Wednesday that leftist guerrillas fought Honduran army troops on Salvadoran territory.

Elsewhere in Central America, Harry E. Bergold Jr., the new U.S. ambassador to Nicaragua, arrived in Managua on Wednesday and acknowledged that relations between the United States and Nicaragua are strained.

Bergold told reporters that "it is no secret that I am arriving at a time when relations are tense."

Bergold, 52, a career diplomat, rejected a suggestion that the United States is pushing a military rather than a negotiated solution to Central America's conflicts, saying that the bulk of American aid to the region is economic and not military.

Bergold replaced Anthony Quinton, who was transferred to Kuwait.

Nicaragua's most serious differences with the United States stem from now-overt U.S. support and training of Nicaraguan rebels seeking to overthrow the leftist government. Cuba, the Soviet Union and other Eastern bloc nations provide much of Nicaragua's armaments and training.

Missile Shipment To Saudis Revived

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, eager to stop Iranian attacks on Persian Gulf oil shipments without direct U.S. intervention, is reviving a plan to send Stinger anti-aircraft missiles to Saudi Arabia.

The Pentagon asked Congress for permission to send 1,200 of the weapons to Saudi Arabia and 1,613 to Jordan earlier this year, but the proposal was withdrawn in March after Israel recoiled at the possibility of Stingers in the hands of its Jordanian neighbors.

Now, with heightened concern that air raids on Persian Gulf oil traffic may continue, the administration plans to ask Congress again "in the near future" to provide just Saudi Arabia with the U.S. missiles, a congressional source said Wednesday.

The purpose is to help Saudi Arabia protect its oil fields and shipping," said the source, who asked that he not be identified. He said the administration informed key legislators of the proposal this week but he would not characterize their reaction.

Noting that the original proposal was scuttled mainly because of Jordan's inclusion in the deal, the source said, "With Saudi Arabia that isn't the case."

He said he could not confirm a New York Times report that the revived proposal called for 1,200 shoulder-fired Stingers worth $141 million, but he said the figure sounds like it's in the ballpark.

To sell more than $25 million worth of weapons to a foreign country, the administration must notify Congress, which can then ban the sale if both houses vote against it.

Word of the proposal came the day after Reagan pledged during a nationally televised news conference to consider aid requests from friendly countries in the Persian Gulf region. He also made clear he was searching for solutions that would not require U.S. troops. Chances of such a commitment were "very slight," he said.

Richard W. Murphy, assistant secretary of state for near eastern affairs, met Tuesday in Riyadh with Saudi King Fahd, presumably to explore ways the United States could help.

Attacks leading to substantial damage to shipping in the Persian Gulf have been a recent deadly spinoff of the four-year-old Iraq-Iran war. Iran has made a standing threat to raid Saudi Arabia because the Saudis are aiding Iraq, a fellow Arab country. Iraq has also attacked neutral shipping in an effort to keep countries from filling up with oil at Iran's Persian Gulf ports.

More Troops Face Rioters

BOMBAY, India (AP) — Authorities called in another army battalion today to help police contain a new outbreak of Hindu-Moslem rioting. At least 193 people have been killed since the mob violence began a week ago.

Five army battalions, each with about 1,000 soldiers, have been deployed in riot areas since the weekend and one more battalion arrived in this western Indian port city today, officials said.

Some of the troops were deployed in the outlying northern district of Thane after the bodies of 13 stabbing victims were found there, police said. Looting and arson was reported in the district during the night, but police said the situation was quiet at midday today.

Police officers, who have been granted special powers to shoot lawbreakers on sight, patrolled curfew-bound streets in Bombay and nearby towns.

"Army soldiers are everywhere now to help bring peace. They will remain here as long as it is necessary," said Maj. Gen. Laxman Rawat, chief commander of army troops in western India.

An official at the police control room said 193 bodies have been counted, about half in the textile city of Bhiwandi and the rest in Bombay or its outskirts.

Soldiers were stationed at nine posts in Bombay, India's major commercial center, and 45 miles away in Bhiwandi, where the recent religious violence started May 17.

A mob of 2,000 people, many brandishing swords and other lethal weapons, stormed a police station in the Thane district Wednesday night, and eight of the rioters were killed when police opened fire.

Late Wednesday, suspected Moslem rioters hurled acid-filled light bulbs at a trans-India express train near Bombay, burning at least 47 passengers who were hospitalized.

Police said several homes, a temple, a factory and more than a dozen vehicles were burned in rioting elsewhere Wednesday.

Key Democrats Expressing Support To Run Woman For Vice President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Governors Mario Cuomo of New York and Richard Celeste of Ohio lead a growing number of key Democrats who are endorsing the idea of nominating a woman for vice president.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., has endorsed Rep. Geraldine Ferraro of New York, and Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen says he thinks a woman on the ticket is "a risk worth taking."

And the nation's two largest feminist organizations, the National Organization for Women and the National Women's Political Caucus, are trying to build a coalition to push a woman for the No. 2 spot on the Democratic ticket.

"It's like trying to organize jello," said Joanne Simons, director of political education for the American Nurses Association, a professional and labor association with 185,000 members. "You have to create a climate. You talk to key constituencies to get them interested."

Of more than two-dozen influential

Democrats interviewed, including politicians, labor leaders, lobbyists and feminists, almost all said Ms. Ferraro is the top contender for the nomination.

Cuomo, who comes from Ferraro's Queens district of New York City, said a woman would bring "a certain passion, uniqueness and boldness to the ticket," according to Cuomo's counselor, Timothy Russert.

Celeste, who has endorsed Walter F. Mondale for the presidential nomination, said that by putting a woman on the ticket, Democrats would send a signal to the country that they are prepared to move forward.

Celeste said he will try to convince other party leaders that 1984 is the year Democrats should nominate a woman.

"I believe a woman would be an effective spokesperson for economic issues, which is where we have to defeat Ronald Reagan," Celeste said. "She knows how families are affected by Reagan's economic policies."

At the American Association of University Women, Tricia Smith said her group would support a "qualified woman" for the ticket.

"We would join with other organizations in having a woman as vice president if that woman meets our criteria for the issues we support," said Ms. Smith, the association's acting director of public policy.

Mondale and rival Democratic presidential contender Gary Hart have both said they would consider a woman as a vice presidential running mate. The Rev. Jesse Jackson has promised to put a woman on his ticket if he is nominated.

Judith Goldsmith, president of NOW, said she believes putting a woman on the ticket is the best way to defeat Reagan.

"Whenever you raise a new possibility, there is initial resistance," she said. "We find that is starting to disappear."

Alice Travis, head of the Democratic task force within the National Women's Political Caucus, said the organization has hired a firm to survey all delegates on the issue of a woman as vice president.

She said the caucus will use a computer on the convention floor to keep delegates informed about the issue in changing votes.

A New York Times-CBS poll published last month suggested the net effect of a woman in the second spot would be insignificant but indicated that some segments of the voting population would shift strongly.

Such a candidacy would be likely to attract large numbers of women under 45, Republican women and non-whites of both sexes, but would lose significant numbers of men from the West and suburbs, men between 45 and 64 years of age and men who are independents, according to the polls.

Besides Ms. Ferraro, the women most frequently mentioned for the job include Reps. Patricia Schroeder of Colorado, Mayor Dianne Feinstein of San Francisco, Michigan Lt. Gov. Martha W. Griffiths, Rep. Lindy Boggs of Louisiana, Rep. Barbara Mikulski of Maryland, and Kentucky Gov. Martha Collins.

Democrats Seeking More Funds, Tune In On Reagan

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

The Democratic presidential contenders are taking aim at President Reagan with Walter F. Mondale accusing him of a "remoteness from reality" and Gary Hart saying Reagan has taken the "big spender" label from the Democrats.

Hart and Mondale are skipping across the country raising money and campaigning in states holding the presidential primaries on June 5, their last pre-convention showdown. Hart is in New Jersey today and Mondale is in New Mexico on his way to California.

But they were looking past the concluding primaries Wednesday to hear their attacks on the Republican incumbent.

"Ronald Reagan wants women only behind ironing boards," Hart said in New Mexico. "I think they should be members of the board."

Reagan, Hart added later in South Dakota, "has taken the big spender issue away from the Democrats. This president is responsible for the biggest deficits in history."

Mondale declared that Reagan sees the world through "Rose Garden-colored glasses." He challenged Reagan's assertions in a news conference earlier this week that federal deficits are overestimated and that the world may be safer under his administration.

"He predicted that interest rates are going to go down, when practically everyone in the country ... (is) predicting a substantial increase," Mondale said in Texas.

"If you look at the Middle East, if you look at Central America, if you look at the runaway arms race, it is hard to draw any conclusion but that the world is more dangerous," Mondale said.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, who took Wednesday off, resumes campaigning today in New Jersey.

California and New Jersey are the big prizes on June 5, with 306 and 107 delegates at stake, but also holding contests that day are West Virginia, New Mexico and South Dakota.

Mondale, however, was in none of those states Wednesday. He was looking for money where he's already won delegate contests — Chicago and Dallas.

A $1,000-a-plate dinner in Dallas netted $300,000 and may yield another $100,000 in pledges later, an aide said. Mondale has already spent more than $17 million and faces a $20.2 million pre-convention federal spending limit.

Hart, in Albuquerque, offered his proposals for changes to help women. It was another in a series of speeches aimed at emphasizing his plans for the future while avoiding daily give-and-take with Mondale.

Hart's proposals included a federal program to provide information and more money for child care facilities, ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment, guaranteed equal pay for both sexes, and a "national commitment" to flexible working hours for women with families.

A new Washington Post-ABC News poll shows Reagan running ahead of all the Democratic contenders. The poll, published in today's editions of the Post, said Reagan leads Mondale by 51 percent to 43 percent and leads Hart by 49-45 percent among registered voters. He leads Jackson by 66-25 percent, it said.

The poll was taken between May 16 and May 22 among 1,511 people, of whom 1,178 were registered voters, and it has a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

It also found Reagan does better among men than women, and that Democrats prefer Mondale over Hart as their nominee by 3 to 2. And by 54 percent to 37 percent, registered voters in the poll said it would be a good idea for the Democrats to nominate a woman for vice president.

Hart, who won Idaho's non-binding primary going away Tuesday, was looking to that state today in hopes of converting that victory to delegates.

CELEBRATE HIS REBIRTH WITH

Music in

This Way Up

Opens Saturday, May 26 at 7:00 p.m. for all interested persons to visit.

at 8 o'clock, Linda Mason

....and....

Morning Glory will present a Musical Program

(There will be a $2.00 cover charge at the door.)

What in the world is THIS WAY UP?

THIS WAY UP is a non-denominational ministry that is targeted for high school and college age students as well as young adults in this area.

Where is this place located?

THIS WAY UP is at the corner of 5th and Cotanche in downtown Greenville, in what was formerly the Barrel of Fun building. (For those of you a little older, you will probably remember it as the Frank Savage horse stables.)

What is the purpose of THIS WAY UP?

The purpose in establishing THIS WAY UP is to offer an alternative type of entertainment for young people on weekends that will give them a place to go and socialize and fellowship without having to attend bars and clubs that presently are in existence.

The primary purpose of this ministry will be to preach the Gospel of Jesus Christ and teach the people to obey the commandments that Jesus taught.

Exactly what type schedule during the week will all this take place?

The projected schedule follows:
On Monday night there will be a Bible Study at 7:30-9:00 PM for all young adults interested in attending. This will be a time of praise, prayer and worship along with teachings from the Word of God.

Tuesday nights have been set aside tentatively from 4:00-9:00 specifically for Junior High School students to attend with special entertainment provided, with games.

Wednesday nights will be closed.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights will be open for high school, college students and young adults in this area to come and socialize together. Video games will be offered as well as a snack bar. Live Christian bands will perform at least once a month. Other types of entertainment will include drama, talent shows, movies and sometimes just merely a place to meet.

Will dancing be allowed?

In II Samuel 6:14, the Bible clearly states that David danced before the Lord with all his might....—Yes, dancing will be allowed.

What kind of supervision will be provided?

Adults and college age supervision will be provided during ALL operating hours.

Why did you pick the heart of all that goes on in downtown Greenville instead of maybe somewhere less risky?

Christ commands us to go to where the people need to hear His Word preached the most and to offer people alternatives to what the world has to offer. Can you think of a better place?

Who is leading this, where is the direction coming from?

The directive is from God and the leadership is provided by a board of directors made up of representatives from most all of the area churches. In time we hope to have all the churches represented.

Also committees have been formed and will soon meet to formulate the concrete plans before we open the doors. The committees are: Entertainment/Refreshments; Publicity/Special Events; Education, Evangelism, Outreach; Counselors; Finances, Budget, Fund Raising; Operation, Rules and Program.

Okay. All this sounds good. But something like this takes money. Where is this coming from?

The budget needed to operate for one year is $20,000.00 and is based on all volunteer work. There will be no paid personnel.

Here is how the budget shapes up:

Expenditures:

Rent of Building ($500/month)	$6,000.00
Utilities ($300.00/month)	3,600.00
Entertainment, Literature, Movies, Rentals, Bands	4,500.00
Insurance, Fees, etc.	1,500.00
Building Maintenance and General Contingency	1,500.00
Advertising and Special Events	2,900.00
Total Budget	20,000.00

But you didn't say where the money is coming from. Where is the money coming from?

The budget is proposed to be raised by the area churches, businesses, and individuals who would like to see something like this done. For instance, maybe you could give something. Also the finance committee is working on the possibility of bringing in some concerts that may make enough profit to operate this ministry after the first year or so.

This all really looks good on paper, but honestly, do you really think that it is going to work?

That depends—you see God is going to do His part—the question is will you do your part?

To volunteer your time or your money, send your name, address, phone number and your area church along with your contribution to: THIS WAY UP, Rt. 1, Box 139, Greenville, N.C. 27834

Rearranging The Cabinet

Martin Feldstein's resignation is but the latest of many changes in the people surrounding the President. The first Cabinet consisted of the Attorney General, the Postmaster General, and the Secretaries of War, State, and Treasury. The first recorded Cabinet meeting, with President Washington, took place on February 25, 1793. To date, Franklin Pierce is the only President to keep his Cabinet intact for an entire administration.

DO YOU KNOW — Which Cabinet post is first in line of succession to the Presidency?

WEDNESDAY'S ANSWER — Linnaeus was Swedish.

Farmland Values Show New Decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The value of U.S. farmland is down for the third year in a row, with the largest declines in Iowa and Nebraska, says the Agriculture Department.

As of April 1, the average price was down about 1 percent from a year earlier, the department's Economic Research Service said Wednesday. That compared with value declines of 6 percent in 1983 and a 1 percent drop in 1982, which was the first downturn in U.S. farmland prices since 1954.

North Carolina's farmland, reversing the trend, showed a slight increase, up from $1,297 a year ago to $1,362 as of April 1. Other area prices this year included Virginia, $1,040; Tennessee, $951; South Carolina, $846; Georgia, $801, and Florida, $1,490.

One spokesman said that, according to department records, it was the first time since 1933 — in the depths of the Great Depression — that farm real estate values had declined three consecutive years.

ADVERTISING OF TAX LIENS OF REAL PROPERTY FOR TOWN OF SIMPSON

Under and by virtue of the authority vested in me by Section 105-369 of the North Carolina General Statutes and pursuant to an order of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, I am hereby advertising tax liens for the year 1983 upon the real estate described below. The amount advertised will be increased by interest and cost, and the omission of interest and cost from the amount advertised will not constitute a waiver of the taxing unit's claim for those items. The real estate that is subject to the lien, the name of the person to whom the property is listed for taxes and the principal amount of the taxes are set out below. At the discretion of the taxing unit, and the governing body, the taxes that remain unpaid will be subject to attachment, garnishment, and foreclosure, to satisfy the taxing unit's claim for taxes.

This 10th day of May, 1984.

Attention Winterville Rescue Squad Area Families

Winterville Rescue wishes to thank you for your faithful support over the years. Your generosity provides the funds to help us furnish the service and protection you deserve. Again the Squad must solicit your support for the purchased new rescue truck.

Men will be contacting each family in Winterville Area during the next few weeks. Each family participating with $10.00 or more will receive a beautiful 8x10 family portrait, compliments of the Rescue Squad. Please be advised that Rainbow Productions is not the company we worked with in the past.

Rainbow Productions is bonded and licensed in North Carolina. They furnished references that checked out satisfactorily. Their products are guaranteed as is your satisfaction.

Portraits will be made at the Rescue Squad by scheduled appointments. Finished portraits will be delivered within two weeks after photographic date.

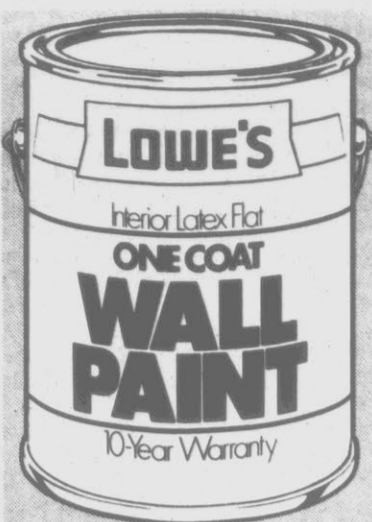

Your cooperation in this project is needed and will be greatly appreciated.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Richter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have a big opportunity today to shake off whatever burdens obsess you and to get into a new frame of mind whereby you can see and understand up-to-date ways of doing things.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) If you expand in career matters, you can have greater benefits coming to you. Cultivate those around you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Pursue whatever is uppermost on your mind and gain your aims with courage and confidence. Stop angling.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make those changes that can lead to greater success and happiness for you. Your intuition can lead you in the right directions.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Gain the assistance of outside contacts so that you have greater benefits in the future.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You get fine ideas that can be most helpful to you and also give you greater knowledge. Contact persons of a different background.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You need a more modern system for handling your affairs so that you get better results, so look for it. Be more alert.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Good day to make new allies with whom you can agree easily and get good results in the days ahead. Drive safely.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A good day to decide just how to be more efficient in daily routines and add more spark to them. Listen to ideas of co-workers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be alert to new and interesting activities that can be just your cup of tea. Plan the weekend well tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make plans for improving home conditions during the week and all can go smoothly. Don't be extravagant.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get into the activities that you feel can help you to produce more and get cooperation of your partners.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study practical affairs better and then you can add to current prosperity. Your newspaper can be of much help to you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be interested in every kind of project and will like to pioneer into new directions, so be sure to teach to finish one job before going into another one. The mentality here is great.

Tight Security Set For Reagan

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Police officials are planning the biggest security operation in Irish history to protect President Reagan during his June 1-4 visit to Ireland.

Several groups have vowed to demonstrate against U.S. foreign and nuclear weapons policy during the visit, and an anti-terrorist task force is monitoring potential troublemakers.

Supt. Noel Anderson, spokesman for the Garda Siochana, Ireland's 11,400-strong national police force, said the security operation will surpass those mounted for the visits of Pope John Paul II in 1980 and John F. Kennedy in 1963.

An Irish security official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said military contingency plans involve "putting army units on standby in the areas the president will visit."

After 15 years of sectarian and political violence in neighboring British-ruled Northern Ireland, which has occasionally spilled over into the Irish Republic, no one is taking any chances during Reagan's visit.

However, sources close to the outlawed Irish Republican Army said the guerrillas are unlikely to attempt any action against Reagan and risk alienating Irish-Americans who are their greatest supporters abroad.

But the sources viewed the maverick Irish National Liberation Army, a Marxist IRA offshoot, as an unpredictable quantity.

A 50-man U.S. Secret Service detail has been combed the ground Reagan will cover, centering on Ashford Castle where Reagan and his wife Nancy will spend two days.

Reagan will be little seen except for visits by helicopter to Galway and Ballyporeen.

"Kennedy and the Pope both went out and met the people," the security source commented. "They were on show nearly all the time. Reagan will hardly be seen in public at all."

The swelling protest campaign is led by Roman Catholic and left-wing groups opposed to Reagan's Central America and nuclear policies.

Another focal point is the trial in the Philippines of a Dublin priest accused of complicity in the assassination of a Philippine mayor last year.

Protest organizers say they will stage round-the-clock vigils outside Ashford Castle, throw a "human ring around Reagan" during a Dublin state banquet June 3 and stage huge demonstrations at Shannon Airport, Galway and Ballyporeen.

But despite the increasingly strident opposition to his visit, the third

U.S. president to come to the Emerald Isle is assured a warm welcome by many of Ireland's 3.4 million people.

Votes Expected On Debt Limits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is warning Congress that Social Security checks for June may bounce unless there is quick action to raise the government's borrowing authority, which is at its $1.49 trillion limit.

"Current projections indicate that Treasury cash balances will be virtually exhausted on May 24," Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said in a letter to congressional leaders. "If Congress does not act, over $9 billion in Social Security checks scheduled to be mailed later this week may not be honored when presented for payment."

The House and Senate both planned to vote today on legislation raising the national debt limit, which is the government's authority to borrow money to meet its obligations.

However, a move in the House to increase the debt limit by $30 billion got caught up in election-year politics on Tuesday and was rejected, 263-150.

The Democratic majority in that chamber withheld its votes for the administration's request to boost the national debt, saying they wanted to see President Reagan's Republican allies line up behind the administration request to boost the borrowing authority.

Only 46 of the 166 Republicans in the House voted for the increase.

Despite the defeat, leaders in the House and Senate indicated they expected the increase to be approved before Congress adjourns this week for a Memorial Day recess.

Congress has granted an increase in the debt limit 21 times in the last decade.

Regan warned that failure to act would jeopardize payments to military and federal retirees and other government obligations, in addition to Social Security benefits.

Regan's letter urged "all members" to support raising the ceiling.

Raising the debt limit does not commit the government to further deficit spending. Instead, it simply allows the government to borrow to pay debts run up previously and cover the interest on those debts.

Old Drug Helps Heart Patients

BOSTON (AP) — A drug used for 20 years to treat Parkinson's disease appears to be more effective and have fewer side effects than digitalis in treating congestive heart failure, researchers said in a study published today.

An estimated 4 million Americans suffer congestive heart failure, which occurs when the heart does not pump strongly enough, causing blood to back up in the veins. Swelling results, and victims may suffer shortness of breath when fluid collects in their lungs.

The drug levodopa strengthened the pumping power of failing hearts by 30 percent, doctors said in a report in the New England Journal of Medicine.

Based on initial testing, Dr. Sol I. Rajfer of the University of Chicago said he believes levodopa could someday replace digitalis.

"It certainly is more potent than digitalis," Rajfer said in an interview. "We believe it's going to have fewer side effects, and it's not as lethal."

Digitalis — derived from the toxic foxglove plant — has been the mainstay in treating heart failure for two centuries. Despite its widespread use, the drug doesn't always work and the dosage needed to relieve symptoms may be close to the amount that causes poisoning.

Some of the 10 heart patients getting levodopa suffered upset stomachs, a side effect the researchers were able to control by carefully regulating the dosages.

"These were patients who on digitalis and diuretics were still doing poorly," Rajfer said. "Some of them were bedridden and short of breath with minimal activity."

But all of the patients in the test group have been able to resume normal lives after receiving levodopa, he said.

GOP Leaders Say Party Undamaged By Papers Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans are expressing confidence they have avoided any political damage from a Democrat-led investigation that failed to determine who leaked Carter administration papers to the 1980 Reagan campaign.

Donning a yellow button that read "Where's the Mole?" House GOP Leader Robert Michel of Illinois joined fellow Republicans on Wednesday in ridiculing the report.

"I very much regret that the chairman of the full committee and the speaker of the House allowed this series of bungling missteps to continue," Michel said of the investigation by the once-obscure House Post Office and Civil Service subcommittee on human resources.

"We have a warm barrel but the smoke has yet to be found," Rep. Donald J. Albosta, D-Mich., the subcommittee's chairman said as the 11-month investigation was closed out.

The subcommittee's 2,400-page report, which was not endorsed by the panel's GOP members, pointed an insinuating finger at William J. Casey, who directed President Reagan's 1980 campaign and now runs the CIA.

Casey had no comment. Neither did Reagan. White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the president retains full confidence in Casey.

Attorney General William French Smith did not sound eager to seek a special prosecutor, as Albosta suggested. "I understand it was issued by the Democratic side of the subcommittee," Smith commented.

Smith already has managed to block, probably until late September, a court hearing on the Justice Department's appeal of a judge's order for a special prosecutor. The issue is unlikely to be settled before election day.

The Albosta subcommittee said the attempt to filch campaign materials from Jimmy Carter's White House was illegal, involving such crimes as the theft and receipt of government documents.

And it said Casey played a major role, citing as evidence minutes of a GOP meeting on Sept. 12, 1980 that said Casey "wants more information from the Carter camp and wants it circulated."

"The subcommittee thus believes that Casey, on Sept. 12, 1980, was calling for the acquisition of information beyond that in the public domain," the report said.

Casey, in a sworn affidavit, said he could not recall making such a statement, but if he did it was only to direct efforts to obtain "more and faster information about Carter's statements and public appearances."

Casey also said that "the campaign management never contemplated, directed or authorized seeking any inside information from the Carter camp."

"The subcommittee has difficulty accepting these statements," the panel said.

BROILERS: The North Carolina broiler stock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 55.00 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pound birds. The market is generally steady to firm and the live supply is moderate for a good demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Thursday was 1,819,000, compared to 1,750,000 last Thursday.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn slightly lower at mostly 3.97-4.09 in East and mostly 4.00-4.10 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans slightly lower at mostly 8.88-9.025 in the east and mostly 8.83-8.93 in the Piedmont; (new crop corn 2.94-3.33; soybeans 6.94-7.25, wheat 3.43-3.60).

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market opened lower today, extending a slide that has sent Wall Street's best-known indicator retreating to its lowest level in more than 13 months.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 39.36 points over the previous five sessions, fell another 1.05 to 1,112.75 in the opening half hour.

About three stocks fell in price for every two that rose in the early going on the New York Stock Exchange.

Interest rate worries persisted on Wall Street with uncertainty on whether the Federal Reserve will make credit scarcer and if Congress will reach agreement on raising the debt limit and cutting the deficit.

Today's early prices included Gulf & Western Industries, up 1/2 at 32 1/4; American Telephone & Telegraph, unchanged at 15 1/4; Exxon, down 1/8 at 41 1/4; Hewlett-Packard, up 1/4 at 37 1/4; Walt Disney Productions, down 1/2 at 65 1/4; and General Motors, down 1/4 at 62 1/4.

On Wednesday, the Dow Jones industrials dropped 2.82 to 1,113.80, its lowest close since April 6, 1983.

Declines outpaced advances by almost 3 to 2 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume slipped to 82.69 million shares from 88.03 million Tuesday.

The NYSE's composite index fell .34 to 82.69. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 1.19 at 201.49.

Flanagan
KINSTON — Mrs. Sara Loftin Flanagan died Tuesday at her home, 1501 E. Washington St., Kinston. Her funeral service will be held Friday at 4:30 p.m. at White Rock Presbyterian Church. Burial will be in the Southview Cemetery, Kinston. She was a retired public school teacher. Surviving her is a brother, Noah W. Loftin of Kinston. A memorial will be held Thursday from 8 to 9 p.m. at White Rock Presbyterian Church. Arrangements are by Flanagan Funeral Home of Greenville.

Hines
WINTERVILLE — Mrs. Edna Adams Hines, 64, of 224 W. Main St., Winterville, died Wednesday. Her funeral service will be conducted at 2 p.m. Friday in the Wilkerson Funeral Home Chapel by the Rev. Ed Taylor and the Rev. Don Ribeiro. Burial will be in the Winterville Cemetery. Mrs. Hines, a native of Pitt County, was reared near Ayden and attended the Ayden Schools. For the past 45 years she had been a resident of Winterville and was a member of the Winterville Free Will Baptist Church and the Silver Screen Council of Pocahontas. Surviving are her husband, E.C. Hines; one daughter, Mrs. Merry H. Smith of Winterville; two sons, Herman Hines of Greenville and Charles Hines of Winterville; two brothers, Jack Adams and J.C. Adams, both of Greenville; one sister, Mrs. Sybil Tanner of Greenville, and seven grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday. The family suggests that anyone desiring to make a memorial contribution consider the Winterville Free Will Baptist Church building fund.

Nicholson
Mrs. Polly Alexander Nicholson, 55, of 3 Yorktown Square, Oakmont Drive, died Wednesday in Pitt County Memorial Hospital. Her funeral service will be conducted Saturday in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel. Burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park. Mrs. Nicholson, a native of Columbia, moved to Greenville from Spartanburg, S.C., in 1978. Prior to moving to Greenville, she was a longtime employee of Associated Surveys Inc. She was a member of Trinity United Methodist Church of Spartanburg. Surviving her are her husband, J. Hubert Nicholson; a brother, Col. James W. Alexander of Scott Air Force Base, Illinois, and two sisters, Mrs. Louise Phelps of Creswell and Mrs. Coralee Evans of Elizabeth City. Viewing will be held from 3 to 4:30 p.m. Friday. The family will receive friends at the funeral home Friday from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. The family requests that flowers be omitted and suggests that those desiring to make memorial contributions consider the Pitt County Cancer Society or the Pitt County Heart Association.

Randolph
TARBORO — A funeral service for Mr. Ben Joe Randolph, 73, will be conducted at 3:30 p.m. Saturday at Few In Member Primitive Baptist Church near Pinetops by Elder Charlie Mack Bullock. Suns Rise To New Heights In Win

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Something funny happened to the Los Angeles Lakers on their way to Boston and Sunday's National Basketball Association championship series opener against the Celtics.

The Phoenix Suns, given up for dead in the Western Conference final, played a suburb game Wednesday night to ambush the Lakers 126-121 and trim Los Angeles' lead in the best-of-seven series to 3-2.

The Lakers still can keep the date Sunday in Boston, but they must win Friday night in Phoenix, where the Suns already have dealt them one defeat in the series. A seventh Suns-Lakers game, if necessary, would be back at the Forum on Sunday afternoon.

"There was no tomorrow for us," said the Suns' Walter Davis, who pumped in 27 points and had 10 assists in Wednesday's upset. "We had a job to do and we just went out and did it."

Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley did not seem particularly disheartened by the loss, saying, "I still feel very confident about this thing. Our team has been down this road before. I feel good about our ability to get the job done, whether it's in Phoenix on Friday or here on Sunday."

The Lakers' Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who scored 28 points, said, "We think we can win on Friday; we put the burden on ourselves, now we have to go out and do the job."

The Suns never trailed, but they did have to offer a rally by the Lakers in the waning moments of the contest. Los Angeles, which went into the final period down 100-87, came roaring back to pull to within 120-119 on James Worthy's layup with 53 seconds remaining.

Davis then hit a jumper, Bob McAdoo sank one of his own for Los Angeles, then Maurice Lucas — firing with one second left on the shot clock — made a 20-footer to give the Suns a 124-121 pad. McAdoo's three-point attempt missed, and the Suns' Kyle Macy made a pair of free throws to finish the scoring. "We've got some momentum going home," said Davis. "This was a real confidence builder for us."

Macy, who had 20 points and 12 assists, said, "We're not out of the hole yet, but we have them on our court now."

All five Phoenix starters scored 20 points or more. Larry Nance had 25, Maurice Lucas 23 and James Edwards 20 for the Suns, who hit 60.7 percent of their floor shots to the Lakers' 53.1 percent. Nance also had a game-high 13 rebounds.

Magic Johnson had 26 points and 13 assists for the Lakers, who had won all seven of their previous playoff games at home this year. Reserves James Worthy and Bob McAdoo added 23 points and 19 points for Los Angeles.

MacLeod seemed to take a certain amount of pride in proving those wrong who had said the Suns, behind 3-1 going into the game, were finished.

"Everybody was saying we didn't have a chance, but we didn't believe it," the Phoenix coach said. "We learned a lot of things about the Lakers in the earlier games. We decided the only way we could beat them was with a supreme effort. I thought we got that."

Nance, apparently considering the tide to have turned in the Suns' favor, remarked, "We can't be too confident; we still have two more to win."

Miami AD Doubts Reasons; Emory Said Among Prospects

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — Apparently, Coach Howard Schnellenberger intends to leave the national champion Miami Hurricanes because he doesn't feel his program can continue to operate successfully under current budget guidelines, but Athletic Director Sam Jankovich disagrees.

Jankovich said Wednesday that despite Schnellenberger's reservations about the future, UM has earmarked $2 million more for football in 1984 than it did a year ago and that the school's budget is competitive with those of other private schools across the nation.

"I'm not saying we have as much money as Stanford, but on the other hand I think it's competitive with Notre Dame, Vanderbilt and a lot of other schools," the athletic director said, adding that a number of "improvements" also have been made, including hiking the salaries of assistant coaches.

"I feel the improvements this year were necessary," he added, "and while I definitely believe the program has been underfunded I think we've made necessary steps to make it up."

Jankovich geared up for a national search for a new coach Wednesday after Schnellenberger informed him he is "99 percent sure" he will accept a lucrative offer to join the Washington Redskins of the United States Football League.

(East Carolina head coach Ed Emory was one of those mentioned as a possible successor to Schnellenberger, among others.)

Jankovich said he was also told that even if Schnellenberger rejects a reported five-year, $3 million deal with the USFL club that the 1984 season would be his last at the Coral Gables school.

"But I really think the reason he's saying that is that he's quite certain that he won't be here at all," Jankovich said.

The athletic director expressed hopes of filling the vacancy within two weeks.

"I feel that we have an awful lot of people who are in a very unreasonable position in this situation," he told the Associated Press, "and I'd like to bring it to a head as soon as we possibly can."

Schnellenberger, who took over a struggling program in 1979 and led the Hurricanes to the national championship last season, has said he hopes to make a definitive decision on the Feds' offer by the weekend.

Jankovich said the coach told him that he is almost certain that owner Sherwood Weiser will move the USFL club to Miami and if that happens, he will sign on as part-owner, general manager and coach of the struggling professional team which owns a 2-11 record this season.

Schnellenberger left his office at mid-morning and was unavailable for comment.

The coach reportedly is unhappy about several developments in the Miami program in the past year, including budgetary guidelines established by school President Edward Foote.

Jankovich confirmed that the Board of Trustees had voted to drop an $800,000 subsidy for athletic scholarships; that Foote was withholding from the athletic department $1 million that the team earned from an Orange Bowl appearance, and that some payments on Schnellenberger's personal-services contract had been late.

The athletic director, however, suggested none of those should have played a major role in Schnellenberger's decision.

He said the $800,000 subsidy was dropped for 1984 because of commitments the university has already received for national television exposure next fall, and because of the extra revenue that'll be generated by an appearance in the Kickoff Classic at the Meadowlands on Aug. 27.

Irwin Plans No Early Visits

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — His mind, Hale Irwin says, is more important than his game when he seeks a third U.S. Open golf title in three weeks.

So Irwin plans no early visits to play Winged Foot, site of this year's Open June 14-17 and the course where he won his first Open in 1974.

"I don't like to go into places too early. I got ready at the Masters too early one year. By Thursday, I was peaking down," said Irwin, the defending champion in the Memorial Tournament that began today.

"I didn't go into Winged Foot ahead of time in 1974," he said. "I know right now what I will have to do in the Open there — drive the ball in the fairway and put my second shot on the green."

"For me, being psychologically fresh is more important. My game will respond. (Ben) Hogan hit thousands and thousands of balls. He hit more in one day than I do in a month."

"You have to find your own formula. I don't care if it works for Seve (Ballesteros), Jack (Nicklaus), whoever. You have to please yourself first."

Irwin, 38, a former University of Colorado football star, has been hampered by a groin injury he suffered in the Honda Classic in March.

"I can't seem to shake it. I've been to a couple of doctors. It's bothering me on my long shots. I've paid more attention to my long game. Consequently, my short game has suffered," he said.

Lady Rams Ousted, 6-1

HAVELOCK — Coastal Conference runner-up Havelock moved into the third round of the State 3A/4A softball playoffs with a 6-1 victory over Eastern Carolina Conference champ Greene Central yesterday.

Havelock got all it needed in the second inning when it scored twice. Genendra reached on a single and Luzadder followed with a home run for the 2-0 lead.

The Lady Rams of Havelock went on to added one in the fourth and three in the sixth. Greene Central's Lady Rams were held scoreless until the final inning when they finally squeezed over a run.

Greene Central had its chances, leaving eight runners on base in the first three innings. In the first two, Greene Central loaded the bases with one out and failed to score.

Greene got only two hits, while Luzadder led the Havelock hitting with three.

The loss winds up the year for Greene Central, now 19-4. Havelock advances to the third round to face the winner of the East Bladen-North Lenoir game.

ECAC Asks Shot Clock

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N.C. (AP) — The Eastern College Athletic Conference Southern Division athletic directors, upon recommendation from its eight basketball coaches, will petition the NCAA rules committee for the use of a 45-second clock for all 1984-85 conference basketball games.

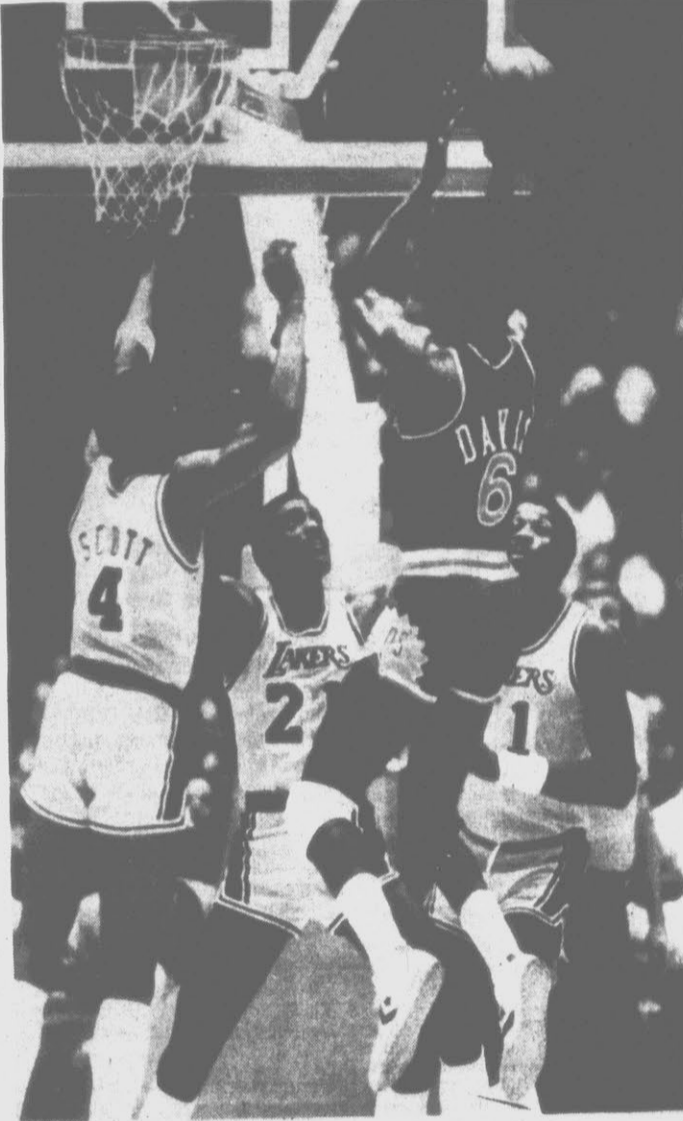

The use of the shot clock was one of the items approved during the league's spring meeting, hosted by one of its newest members, North Carolina-Wilmington.

The athletic directors also confirmed that the 1985 post-season basketball tournament will be held March 7-9 at The College of William & Mary in Williamsburg Va.

The coaches for the eight schools, Richmond, James Madison, William & Mary, George Mason, Navy, East Carolina, and new members American and UNC-W, turned down the use of the three-point shot.

A baseball format was also approved which would pit each conference team, except Navy, against each other three times next season. This will lead to a post-season tournament to decide the automatic post-season NCAA baseball bid.

"We feel these meetings have been our most productive ever," said league president Dean Ehlers, athletic director of James Madison. "With our expansion to eight teams, the ECAC-South has its strongest structure ever."

Fernando Ends Phillie Win Streak

By HERSHEL NISSENSON

AP Sports Writer
Fernando's fadeaway was working to perfection and it sent Philadelphia's 10-game winning streak fading into oblivion.

Fernando Valenzuela's famed screwball, which hadn't puzzled many batters this season, was back in business Wednesday night. The left-hander checked the Phillies on three singles, walked six and struck out a career high 15 in hurling the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 1-0 victory. For good measure, Valenzuela also drove in the only run with a fifth-inning grounder in outfielding Steve Carlton.

It was the most strikeouts by a Dodger pitcher since Sandy Koufax fanned 16 Phillies in 1966.

"It was a tough game to lose, but you have to give him credit. He was awesome," Phillies Manager Paul Owens said of Valenzuela.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Chicago Cubs downed the Atlanta Braves 3-1, the San Diego Padres edged the Montreal Expos 2-1 on Kevin McReynolds' 11th-inning homer, the Houston Astros blanked the St. Louis Cardinals 4-0, the Pittsburgh Pirates trimmed the Cincinnati Reds 7-2 and the San Francisco-New York game was rained out.

Valenzuela, 4-5, had lost his last three games but handcrafted the Phillies with an outstanding screwball and a sneaky fastball.

"He had them looking for the screwball and busted in on them with the fastball," said Manager Tom Lasorda. "It was very effective."

The Dodgers scored in the fifth inning on a one-out double by Mike Scioscia, a wild pitch and Valenzuela's infield out. Left fielder Glenn Wilson misplayed Scioscia's hit and the routine liner sailed over his head.

"Glenn turned the wrong way on the double and it sliced away from him," said Owens. "But if not for the wild pitch we might still be playing."

Valenzuela walked Mike Schmidt and Sixto Lezcano with one out in the ninth, bringing Lasorda to the mound.

"I asked him how he felt," said Lasorda. "He told me okay, so I said, 'Okay, go out and get them with everything you have.'"

Valenzuela then nailed down the victory by retiring Wilson on a pop fly and Len Matuszek on a fly ball.

Steve Trout and Lee Smith combined on a five-hitter and Gary Matthews belted a solo homer to lead Chicago to its fourth straight victory. Trout limited Atlanta to three hits and struck out five before leaving for a pinch hitter in the seventh. Smith gave up two hits, including a solo homer by Bob Horner in the eighth.

Matthews' homer, his third, came with one out in the sixth and was the first hit off loser Craig

Boston Turns Sights Toward West

BOSTON (AP) — They swept through the East, then conquered the Midwest. Now the empire builders of the National Basketball Association are casting their greedy eyes westward for the final battle. "We've won half the nation," said Cedric Maxwell. "The Los Angeles-Boston matchup will be a Civil War series. . . . It might cut the country in half." It won't be any kind of series if the Lakers can't survive their current skirmish with the outmanned but determined Phoenix Suns.

About 3½ hours after the Celtics finished off the Milwaukee Bucks, 115-108, Wednesday night to win their Eastern Conference final, 4-1, the Lakers lost to the Suns, 126-121. That battle shifts to Phoenix Friday for the sixth game of the best-of-seven confrontation for the Western Conference crown.

If Phoenix wins, the Lakers would play host for the decisive seventh game Sunday. If Los Angeles wins, the Celtics would be home, where they have won their last 15 games and nine straight in the playoffs, on Sunday to open the series that could bring them their 15th NBA title.

Boston, which beat Washington and New York in its first two series, took a big stride closer to that unprecedented accomplishment with balanced scoring, dominant rebounding, strong inside play by its guards and a 13-point run that was enough to blunt a Bucks' comeback. They were the ingredients for a victory over the team that shocked the Celtics by beating them 4-0 in last year's conference semifinals.

Guards Gerald Henderson and Dennis Johnson scored five of Boston's first six baskets on layups. "They double teamed our big guys and opened the lane for me and DJ (Johnson) to go up the middle," said Henderson, who scored 19 points.

"We were able to penetrate because it was a fast-moving game and we were moving the ball well," said Johnson, who added 17 points and nine rebounds.

It was a game of surges by both teams. Milwaukee took its first lead, 35-34 after one period, by scoring seven consecutive points. The Bucks increased the run to 12-2, making the score 40-36. But Boston followed with a 12-0 explosion to go ahead for good, 48-40.

The Bucks countered with an 8-2 rally, followed by a 12-4 Boston stretch that put the Celtics on top at halftime, 62-52. The biggest surge was yet to come.

With the lead down to 70-63, Johnson started a dazzling 13-0 outburst in a span of 2:18 with two free throws. It featured a crowd-pleasing pass under the basket from Maxwell to center Robert Parish for a dunk and a three-point field goal by Larry Bird, who led Boston in scoring for the 11th consecutive game, with 21 points. "There's not a lot of strategy you can employ after the kind of run the Celtics put together in the third period," said Milwaukee's Junior Bridgeman. "You just hope to make a shot or two to stem the tide and quiet the crowd."

The Bucks had the lead down to eight for most of the fourth quarter, then slashed it to five, 113-108, on baskets by Marques Johnson, who led the team with 24 points, and Sidney Moncrief, with 40 and 38 seconds left, respectively. But after Dennis Johnson sank a layup with 17 seconds to go, Kevin McHale blocked two shots to seal Milwaukee's doom.

"They got back in the game. They executed well. We made some careless errors," Henderson said. "We played pretty well down the stretch. We hit the shots when we had to."

The Celtics also got the rebounds all night long, holding a 53-36 advantage in that department. With 24 offensive rebounds to 22 defensive rebounds for Milwaukee, Boston even got back more of its missed shots.

"The Celtics killed us on the offensive boards," said Moncrief. "You can't beat a team when they control the offensive boards."

Boston worked hard to keep the Bucks from getting close to their own backboard.

"We tried to keep them from penetrating," said Celtics Coach K.C. Jones. "They have a lot of people who can take it to the hoop, and, in Milwaukee, they got a lot of shots inside, and (Wednesday night) we tried to take away their inside game."

Boston won the first two games at home and the third in Milwaukee before losing on the road Monday night, 122-113.

"Our downfall in this series was losing that first game at home," said Mike Dunleavy, who had 21 points for the Bucks. "We had a commanding lead but the Celtics came out and fought hard in that one. They could have quit at that point and waited for the next game since they had won both games at home. . . . But they didn't. That's the sign of a real great team."

"Coming into the series, I think we all felt that Boston was the better team but that didn't deter our confidence," said Marques Johnson, who was slowed by a sore knee. "We fought and scrapped, but they had the game under control."

Besides Bird, Henderson and Johnson, the Celtics got outstanding play from Maxwell, with 19 points and seven rebounds, Parish, with 17 points and 11 rebounds, and McHale, with 15 points and seven rebounds.

Alton Lister came off the bench to score 17 for Milwaukee, which also got 15 from Moncrief.

With the Bucks out of the way, Boston is looking ahead, somewhat prematurely, to the Lakers.

"The teams are evenly balanced," said Maxwell. "An injury could be the difference in a game or the series."

If the Lakers make it that far.

Yarborough Has Tentative Hold On Pole Position

HARRISBURG (AP) — Cale Yarborough says he wishes qualifying for Sunday's World 600 stock car race had begun around noon Wednesday instead of at 4 p.m. so that all drivers would have had to endure the same heated conditions he did.

"I'd like to see the sun come out and be 100 degrees tomorrow, but it won't," Yarborough said Wednesday after driving his Chevrolet an average of 160.184 mph on four hot, humid laps. "My biggest gripe is that we should have started at noon or 1 p.m."

The 44-year-old from Timmonsville, S.C., held the lead as qualifying resumed today for the $339,427 Grand National race, but he said drivers running in the morning had an advantage and could displace him.

"If it's pretty weather in the morning — and it looks like a cold front is coming through — they could definitely be faster," said Yarborough, the fastest of 15 drivers who ran before rain postponed qualifying on Charlotte Motor Speedway's 1.5-mile tri-oval.

The rest of the 52 entrants were to compete for the top 15 positions — and the $36,000 pole award — beginning at 10 a.m. today.

Those who don't make the top 15 will compete Thursday and Friday for the rest of the 40-car field in time trials based on the faster of two laps.

In second place Wednesday was Bobby Allison's Buick with an average speed of 160.107 mph, followed by Joe Ruttman's Chevrolet at 159.650 mph, Dale Earnhardt's Chevrolet at 159.586 mph and Tim Richmond's Pontiac at 159.583 mph.

Elliott Forbes-Robinson, the 10th driver out, failed to finish when he crashed into the wall on turn No. 2. He was not injured.

Buddy Baker, a three-time World 600 winner considered the favorite to win the pole, said he wished his qualifying runs were earlier today. He's about halfway down the list of the 37 who still haven't qualified.

"But the car in practice has been as fast or faster than any car in the field," he said.

Richard Petty, who is seeking his 200th career victory Sunday, said his position today is even worse — 11th from the bottom.

"I'll be qualifying at about 12 (noon), when nobody will be running good," he said. "In situations like this, it's not fair for everyone."

Yarborough's speed during the first lap was 162.079 mph. "I used my tires up that first lap," he said. "The track was awful slick."

Yarborough has never won a World 600, but he holds the four-lap qualifying speed record for the event — 165.194 mph on May 21, 1980.

In five starts, Yarborough has won the two biggest events so far this season — the Daytona 500 and Winston Cup. He has 79 career Winston Cup victories and over $4.1 million in winnings.

The first and only 15 drivers attempting to qualify Wednesday for Sunday's $539,427 World 600 NASCAR Grand National stock car race with driver, make of car and average speed during four laps. Rain delayed the time trials, so no positions will be assured until all 52 entrants complete qualifying runs scheduled to resume Thursday morning.

David Daniels banged out four hits, one of them a two-run homer to help lift Coca-Cola to a 14-1 victory over Wachovia Bank in the Babe Ruth League last night.

Jeff Mahoney hurtled the win for Coke, scattering five hits.

Coke got all it needed in the first inning, scoring twice. Mahoney walked and Daniels followed with his homer for a 2-0 lead.

Coke added one in the second, then broke the game open with nine runs in the third frame. Single runs scored in the fourth and fifth for the 14-run total.

The lone Wachovia run came over in the second inning.

In addition to Daniels' four hits, Tony Evans added two for Coke. Scott Davis had two hits to lead the Wachovia hitting.

Tigers Stretch Road String To 16

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer,
The only record concerning Lance Parrish and his Detroit Tigers teammates is the win in the standings. The way the club is going, it's headed for the kind of records athletes only dream about... and pennants are made of.

a 4-2 triumph over California in which Parrish broke a 2-2 tie with a two-run homer in the seventh inning. The win tied the 1912 Washington Senators' American League record and is one short of the major league standard, set by the 1917 New York Giants.

Detroit, which is unbeaten on the road and leads second-place Toronto by eight games, can equal that achievement with a win in Anaheim tonight.

"I guess there's some significance to the record but we haven't really had time to think about it," said Parrish, who followed Barbaro Garbey's infield single with his sixth homer of the season and first since April 16. It came off reliever Frank Lacorte, 0-2, to give Detroit its eighth consecutive overall triumph.

"We've won so many games, every time we turn around we have a chance to tie a record. Later in the season, when we take it all in, it might mean more than now. We're all in the heat of the game."

Manager Sparky Anderson is hoping this team will make him famous.

"The only chance I'll have to get to the Hall of Fame is with these guys," said Anderson. "But maybe tomorrow, we'll lose, you never know."

"They are doing everything right. You can't beat that," said California's Rod Carew.

Dan Petry, 7-1, needed two innings of relief from Willie Hernandez, who earned his seventh save.

Doug DeCinces had a two-run homer for California.

Elsewhere, it was Kansas City 1, Chicago 0; New York 3, Seattle 0; Toronto 4, Minnesota 1; Baltimore 9, Oakland 5; Cleveland 5, Boston 4 and Texas 6, Milwaukee 1.

Royals 1, White Sox 0
In a classic pitching duel, Kansas City's Bud Black got the support of an unearned run in the first inning and preserved the lead. Chicago shortstop Scott Fletcher misplayed a routine grounder by Hal McRae and Frank White followed with an RBI single for the game's only run.

Black gave up six hits and struck out a career-high nine.

Britt Burns of the visiting White Sox threw a three-hitter.

"I just had it going tonight," said Black, 5-3, who did not allow a fly ball to the outfield. "I threw some breaking balls when they were looking for something else and vice-versa. I was really seeing the catcher's glove tonight. In the middle innings, that's the best I ever saw it. Every pitch I threw, I felt I could hit the glove."

"It was meant for him tonight, not me," said Burns. "I've won a few 1-0 games, so what the heck."

Yankees 3, Mariners 0
Rookie left-hander Dennis Rasmussen fired a two-hitter and struck out 10 through eight innings, then Dave Righetti finished up for his fifth save. In his American League debut, Rasmussen walked three and gave up one-out doubles to Dave Henderson in the fifth and seventh innings.

Rasmussen, 25, had been traded from the Yankees to San Diego in 1983. He returned to the Yankees in March in a trade for Graig Nettles.

Visiting New York scored on Butch Wynegar's sacrifice fly and a two-run homer by Don Baylor.

"I did feel good out there. My breaking pitch I was getting over and they were chasing it because I was throwing it for a strike," said Rasmussen.

Blue Jays 4, Twins 1
Jim Clancy, Jimmy Key and Dennis Lamp combined to pitch Toronto to its first "comfortable" victory in eight days. But it wasn't all that comfortable because Lamp surrendered a pair of hits and a walk to load the bases in the ninth.

"I made the correct pitches, but they just hit the ball out of the reach of some of the guys," said Lamp, who ended the suspense by inducing Kirby Puckett to ground out to second. "You have to keep the same approach and keep trying for that grounder that'll get you out of the inning."

George Bell had a solo home run for the Jays, who have won six of their last seven — all by one run.

Orioles 9, A's 5
Baltimore was issued nine walks, slashed out nine singles and a double off six Oakland pitchers and negated three A's homers, including Dave Kingman's major league-leading 13th of the year.

"It wasn't a picture-pretty game," said rookie pitcher Bill Swaggerty of the visiting Orioles. "The game didn't have any kind of rhythm to it, no continuity. But I'll take it. We needed the win to get rolling."

Indians 5, Red Sox 4
Cleveland rallied for three runs in the eighth inning on a walk and four straight singles in a game delayed at the outset 78 minutes by rain.

"We needed this one badly, and we got it against one of the best relievers (Bob Stanley) in baseball," Manager Pat Corrales said.

Rangers 6, Brewers 1
Frank Tanana threw his third three complete game in a row and has allowed only two earned runs in the last 27 innings. He retired 13 Brewers in a row until Robin Yount opened the ninth with a single and eventually scored on Ben Oglivie's RBI single.

Buddy Bell homered and Pete O'Brien knocked in three runs with three hits for host Texas.

"I struggled early in the year," Tanana said, "but I'm starting to get a lot of confidence and my arm feels great. It feels good to pitch well against a tough hitting team like the Brewers."

Maulers Have New Coach

PITTSBURGH (AP) - The Pittsburgh Maulers have had more coaches than victories this season, but veteran National Football League assistant Hank Bullough has no intentions of being a loser in his first head coaching job.

Bullough, nicknamed the "Doctor of Defense" and the innovator of the widely copied 3-4 defense, was named Wednesday as the Maulers' coach after spending 26 years in football as an assistant.

Hunt To Propose 10 Percent Pay Hike For State

RALEIGH (AP) — Encouraged by a rebound in the economy, Gov. Jim Hunt says he will ask the General Assembly to give state employees a 10 percent pay raise when it convenes in June.

Hunt said the raise would partially compensate the workers for a salary freeze during the recession. "Now that the state's economy has turned around, it is time those employees were repaid," Hunt said.

The raise is part of a seven-point package that would cost $160.9 million from the General Fund and $29.3 million from the Highway Fund.

"North Carolina's state employees have made a tremendous sacrifice over the past three years," Hunt said in a prepared statement. "The pay freeze they have endured helped the state continue to provide a high level of services during one of the darkest recessions of this century."

"This package should be one of the highest priorities of next month's short session," Hunt said, adding that he was confident it would be approved.

The General Assembly is scheduled to convene June 7.

Hunt told Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green and House Speaker Liston Ramsey in a letter that the state can anticipate revenue growth of 14 percent in the current fiscal year compared to an average increase of 6.9 percent for the past three fiscal years.

He said that should provide money for the salary increase and reinstatement of merit pay beginning July 1, 1985. In his letter, Hunt noted that legislators decided to freeze salaries in 1981-82, when about 10 percent of the state's workforce was unemployed.

Hunt said there also should be money for a 10 percent cost-of-living increase for retired employees, immediate salary adjustments for workers in reclassified positions, an additional pay step for state workers in 1984-85 and improvement of state employees' retirement formula that amounts to a 2 percent increase in retirement pay.

N.C. Campaign '84

Knox Highways

WILMINGTON (AP) — During a campaign swing, Democratic gubernatorial candidate Eddie Knox pledged support for the completion of road systems to eastern North Carolina, received a new endorsement and threw more verbal jabs against opponent Rufus Edmisten.

At a news conference Wednesday, Knox renewed his pledge to seek funding for Interstate 40 to the coast during his first four years in office — a pledge that also has been made by Edmisten.

"I am here to address the special needs of eastern North Carolina," he said. "Everywhere I go in the east I meet people who feel that this area of the state has been left out on roads and economic development."

"Our ports are an integral aspect of economic development, but they continue to suffer from an absence of roads," he said.

Knox said he realized some farmers in the east were against I-40 because it would cut across their land, but said that opposition could be overcome.

"That's always a problem," he said. "I understand the farmers' fears of being uprooted. We've got to listen to them and show them that there will be benefits in this for everyone."

Knox displayed a map showing present and planned industrial expansion in the state and pointed out that most of the growth centers around the Piedmont and its network of interstate highways.

The southeastern corner of North Carolina, Knox said, showed "not much short-term potential" for industrial growth due in part to the lack of a highway system.

The former Charlotte mayor also pointed to his record in recruiting industry and traveling overseas to talk with foreign investors.

"My opponent has not only been inactive in industrial recruitment, he's never worked in the private sector," Knox said.

Knox also proposed setting up an eastern governor's office similar to one in Asheville that serves western counties. He said the eastern office would give residents and local officials a chance to meet with him and staff members who would concentrate on economic development and other problems.

He accused Edmisten of trying to "wait in the shadows and ride out June 5" rather than present his record to the voters. Knox said a new series of ads questioning Edmisten's record weren't meant as personal attacks.

"This is not an attack, it's an issue of fact," he said. "I didn't make his (Edmisten's) record. He apparently cannot accept the fact that we're putting out his record because we're concerned that people don't know the real Rufus Edmisten."

The latest commercials leading to the June 5 runoff criticize Edmisten for accepting utility political action committee money in 1981 and 1980. Edmisten says he got the money before he began running for governor.

The ads also say, "Rufus cheated on his taxes," referring to Edmisten's conviction in 1974 on two counts of willful failure to file North Carolina income tax returns for 1972 and 1973, when he was a U.S. Senate aide in Washington.

Edmisten Key Issues

ASHEVILLE (AP) — As the fight for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination enters the late rounds, Attorney General Rufus Edmisten says rival Eddie Knox knows he's behind and is swinging wildly in a desperate attempt to land a knockout punch.

But Edmisten says he'll dodge the former Charlotte mayor's roundhouses and jab away at what Edmisten calls the key issues — jobs, education, crime, the environment and the needy.

During a campaign swing Wednesday through western North Carolina, Edmisten repeatedly blamed Knox for the war of words between their camps that Edmisten warned could enhance Republican candidate U.S. Rep. Jim Martin's chances in the fall. Martin faces the winner of the June 5 Knox-Edmisten runoff.

Knox "is saying, 'I'm way behind and I'll win at any price,'" said Edmisten in a news conference at the Hickory Municipal Airport. "If that's what it takes to be elected governor, I don't want to be elected governor."

Knox unleashed a new wave of attacks on Edmisten earlier Wednesday. In a Raleigh news conference, he said his campaign would air hard-hitting advertisements designed to force Edmisten to debate.

Knox, who received the endorsement of the North Carolina chapter of the National Organization for Women, also said Edmisten had an intolerable record of failure to appoint enough women and blacks to important jobs in the state Justice Department.

Edmisten said his record on both blacks and women was excellent. And he said the debate planned for June 1, which will be aired statewide on public television, would be sufficient.

"We've debated and debated for months, and I really think the public is sick of it," he said. "Everything that possibly could have been said has been said."

He vowed that the lone pre-runoff debate would be free of the gutter politics that he said pervaded the Knox campaign.

"I'm really disappointed that the campaign has sunk to the level that it has," Edmisten said in an interview. "I really don't think Mr. Knox means what he is saying. He's just reading from documents someone has given him. He ought to stop it."

Edmisten has spent much of his time since finishing first in the May 8 primary seeking support from vanquished opponents and exhorting supporters to get voters to the polls for the runoff. He struck a similar theme Wednesday, urging his team "not to sit on your laurels or anything else for any length of time during the next two weeks."

"If we don't work hard we will lose and there's no excuse for losing," he said at a $6 per plate motel luncheon between Hickory and Conover. "I will not let you down. Don't you let me down."

Before the luncheon, Edmisten took handshaking forays into a Hickory bank, the Catawba County Council for the Arts, the headquarters of a steak restaurant chain, a newspaper office and law enforcement agencies.

UNC Dedicates Cancer Center

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — One of the most up-to-date biomedical facilities in the country was dedicated Wednesday at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill — a $9.4 million cancer research center.

The 35,000-square-foot facility has been named the Lineberger Cancer Research Center in honor of members of the Lineberger family of Belmont in Gaston County, longtime contributors to higher education and health care in the state.

The facility houses more than 80 faculty members who work in 15 departments.

In a news conference before the dedication, Dr. Joseph S. Pagano, center director, said the building provided a core complex for faculty and staff previously scattered across the medical complex at N.C. Memorial Hospital.

"It gives us kind of an extra efficiency," Pagano said. "The building is a visible emblem of the priority the university attaches to cancer research."

The National Cancer Institute provided a $1.6 million grant to help build the facility. Private donations provided another $4 million and $3.8 million was provided by the university.

The center studies cancer cell biology, drug development, tumor virology, cancer immunology and chemical carcinogenesis and does research on herpes simplex virus and acquired immune deficiency syndrome, or AIDS.

Tobacco Imports Exceed Exports

RALEIGH (AP) — A monopoly on U.S. tobacco production which began nearly 50 years ago is coming to an end as the nation has begun importing more tobacco than it exports, a state tobacco official says.

John Cyrus, tobacco affairs chief for the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, said the amount of imports has been increasing yearly. In 1983, for the first time, the nation imported more tobacco than it exported, U.S. Department of Agriculture figures show. Imports rose 30 percent last year, to 239,178 tons, while exports fell 8 percent to 237,888 tons. Tobacco imports are becoming more attractive to companies because they're cheaper and the quality has improved in recent years, Cyrus said.

Cyrus said the monopoly started about 1934 and has been geared to limit production and keep prices high. North Carolina, one of the largest producers of tobacco in the nation, has been facing increasing foreign competition.

Brazil is one of North Carolina's main competitors in the production of flue-cured tobacco, Cyrus said. In 1982, the average price of U.S. tobacco was $1.77 per pound. Brazilian leaf sold for 48 cents a pound.

Last year Brazil produced about 506 million pounds of tobacco, Cyrus said. North Carolina farmers produced 561 million pounds. Other major competitors in world tobacco trade are Canada, India, South Korea, the Philippines, Thailand, Zimbabwe, Malawi and Italy.

If North Carolina farmers are to compete, he said, changes are needed in the tobacco program. "Control over the product to keep the prices high has led to stockpiling," Cyrus said.

The controls include the 38-year-old tobacco stabilization program, which is a cooperative that guarantees farmers a set price for their tobacco. If buyers don't bid at least $1 above the support price, the tobacco is stockpiled to be sold later.

About 195 million pounds went into stabilization in 1983. The co-op has 760 million pounds of tobacco dating back to 1976, said Richard Llewellyn, sales coordinator of the federal Flue-Cured Tobacco Stabilization Program.

The 1984 North Carolina crop may be smaller than last year's because of an 11 percent reduction in the federal quota. About two-thirds of the 814 million pounds of tobacco sold in the United States last year was produced in North Carolina.

"Imports have had as much bearing in reducing quotas as has the drop-off in consumer demand," Cyrus said. "Restrictions on imports could have a considerable beneficial impact on farmers. It's possible it could level off the cuts in quotas that we've had since 1975."

Six Men Charged In Rape

BEAUFORT, N.C. (AP) — Six Carteret County men have been charged with rape and sexual assault of a 14-year-old girl who told sheriff's deputies she had known them "since she was a baby."

Deputy Frank Galizia said three of the men were accused of raping the girl Monday night in a van while three other men held her. The incident took place in an isolated area called Mandy Farms near Morehead City, Galizia said.

Arrested Tuesday were Dwight Williams, 30; Eric Oliver, 22; Victor Sutton, 29; Dean Sutton, 21; Charles Holland, 21; and Lorenzo Daughtry, 26; all from an area west of Morehead City.

Each was charged with first-degree rape and sexual assault of a minor younger than 16. All were being held Wednesday without bond pending a preliminary hearing in Carteret County District Court.

The Sutton and Oliver were identified as first cousins of the girl, Galizia said.

Galizia said the girl told investigators that the men picked her up at a night spot in Morehead City.

"The girl thought they were going to take her home," Galizia said. "Instead, they took her to a desolate area. ... She said she attempted to escape but was caught and dragged back to the van."

Wood Products Plant Canceled

CARTHAGE, N.C. (AP) — Weyerhaeuser officials have called off plans to build a $50-million wood-products plant in northwest Moore County after G.A. Pfeleiderer, a West German firm, pulled out of the joint venture.

Keith Hundley, a spokesman for Weyerhaeuser in New Bern, said Wednesday night that the entire project has been ended.

"We were only doing preliminary studies in Moore County," Hundley said. "And when the joint venture with the German firm didn't work out, the project was called off."

Hundley said no new partners will be sought to replace the West German firm.

Moore County Manager Roy Lowe on Wednesday afternoon was aware of the dissolved partnership but said, "We don't know what our next move is, or if Weyerhaeuser has any further plans for Moore County."

Pfeleiderer was to supply the technology for the plant, which was to produce high-quality particleboard for the furniture industry, a new product to be called "Microboard."

Company plans had called for employing about 120 people at the plant, which was expected to produce about 120 million square feet of particle board annually.

Offshore Area May Get Historical Site Designation

WILMINGTON (AP) — A stretch of southeastern North Carolina coastline, littered with Civil War wrecks, may be nominated as the first underwater national historical district, a state archeologist says.

The underwater archaeology unit of the N.C. Department of Cultural Resources is examining historical data on more than 50 vessels lost in the Union blockade of Wilmington from 1861-65, according to Richard W. Lawrence, the head of the unit.

The area being considered stretches from Topsail Inlet in Pender County to the South Carolina border.

Lawrence said the department may nominate the area for the National Register of Historic Places this summer.

Inclusion on the register would give recognition to the historic significance of the coastal waters, Lawrence said. It also could help protect the wrecks and might encourage funding for exploration of the vessels, he said.

The designation would prevent developing within an area that might harm a shipwreck, such as dredging a channel.

Lawrence said the shipwrecks along the southern North Carolina coast are more accessible than the wrecks off the Outer Banks because many ran aground in shallow water. He said the wrecks in the area under consideration are mostly from the Civil War and are better preserved than those on the Outer Banks.

The shipwrecks include Confederate blockade runners and Union ships attempting to block Southern ports.

NBC's 'High School USA' Is Stuff For Grade School

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The supporting cast for "High School USA" on NBC reads like the list of answers to a TV trivia quiz.

It's almost worth an hour Saturday night to see what time has done to Rick and Harriet Nelson ("Ozzie and Harriet"), Barbara Billingsley, Jerry Mathers and Ken Osmond ("Leave it to Beaver"), Dick York ("Bewitched"), Paul Peterson ("The Donna Reed Show") and Burt Ward and Julie Newmar ("Batman").

All but Rick Nelson appear fleetingly in this silly film about School Pride Week at Excelsior Union High. Rick has a larger role, playing Mr. Kinney, the principal, whose troubles transcend havoc in the halls: "You're a boring man," says Mrs. Crosley, his secretary (Mrs. Nelson, Rick's mom in real life). "Cute, but boring."

That's a problem, because Kinney has his eye on Miss Franklin, Excelsior's new, 26-year-old, blond and unattached guidance counselor (Melody Anderson).

So does Jay Jay Manners (Ben Marley), who is thrilled when Miss Franklin is assigned to head the float committee for the Pride Week parade. Jay Jay, who faces two more years of school and four years of detention, has decided to challenge Beau Middleton and his Good Life Club in the float competition.

Beau (Tegan West), who's hired a designer to help with his float, isn't concerned about Jay Jay and his gang of auto-shop misfits. "That Jay Jay," cautions his girlfriend, Anne Marie (Crystal Bernard), "he's rude and crude, but he's just resourceful enough to come up with something good."

But Jay Jay is so involved in his pursuit of Miss Franklin that he leaves the float to his grotesque crew. They throw together a "Vietnam flashback with the Eiffel Tower on a nude beach." When the resulting monstrosity rolls out of control and crashes into a park bench, Jay Jay is crestfallen.

"Look at the float," he wails. "It's ruined. It's just a pile of junk." "It hasn't been scratched," Dirty Curt (Jonathan Gries) responds. "That's the way we built it."

Ultimately, the parade goes on, and you can guess who wins the trophy.

York, who played Elizabeth Montgomery's husband for five years on "Bewitched," plays the superintendent, whose wife (Miss Billingsley) somehow ends up on the Auto Shop Club float.

Mathers, appearing no less woebegone in "High School USA" than he frequently did as Theodore "Beaver" Cleaver, is the auto-shop teacher, who complains, with his only line, "I hate this job." Osmond (Eddie Haskell on "Leave it to Beaver") apparently teaches one class — detention hall.

Film Wins Cannes Award

PARIS (AP) — "Paris, Texas," a movie about an amnesiac's struggle to remember his wife and child, received the Golden Palm award at the 37th annual Cannes Film Festival.

German director Wim Wenders, 38, accepted the award, a small gold sculpture in the shape of a palm, at the conclusion of the festival Wednesday.

The movie, set in a small Texas town, starred Harry Dean Stanton and Nastassia Kinski.

A 10-member jury named Britain's Helen Mirren best actress for her role in Pat O'Connor's Northern Ireland film "Cal."

Francesco Rabal and Alfredo Landa, who played the leading roles in Spanish director Mario Camus' "The Holy Innocents," shared the prize for best actor.

Two U.S. films were entered, but neither won a prize.

John Huston, 77, director of "Under the Volcano," received a special award for his "life's work and his extraordinary contribution to the film industry."

The Special Grand Prix was given to "Intimate Diary," filmed by Hungarian director Marta Metzarus.

Bertrand Tavernier of France was named the best director for "A Sunday in the Country."

American director James Jamrusch received the Golden Camera award for "Stranger Than Paradise."

American actors Faye Dunaway and Tony Curtis and Italy's Giusetta Masina assisted Bogarde during the 25-minute award ceremony that capped 12 days of screenings in the unseasonably rainswept Riviera resort.

Reynolds Goes Back To Work

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Burt Reynolds has returned to work on a new movie with Clint Eastwood after suffering a painful bout with a kidney stone, a spokesman said.

"He's still a little sore, but he's feeling an awful lot better," David Gershenson said Wednesday. "It appears he's passed the stone."

Reynolds, who was stricken Saturday in his Fort Lauderdale, Fla., hotel room, returned to work Tuesday on the Burbank set of the movie "Civv Heat," Gershenson said.

Mason Considers Films As 'Mush'

Says LONDON (AP) — James Mason, the debonair British actor with more than 50 years in the business, says the bulk of modern films are "mush."

"People are getting used to soap operas and that is all they are getting all the time. I feel quite depressed about it all," Mason said Wednesday at London's Heathrow Airport before traveling to his villa in Switzerland.

Mason, 75, who has starred in dozens of plays and movies including "Lolita," "The Verdict" and "The Boys From Brazil" since his professional debut in 1931, said he has played in five new films and TV shows in Britain this year.

"They're all very good," he said. "I just wish I could say the same about everything else around at the moment."

of his longest and strongest suit, and basic technique is to hold up one round even though you have a double stopper. East continues with a spade, won by the king. Since West is the danger hand, you should attack his entry first. The only way for West to gain the lead is with the king of hearts, so it might seem that you should cross to the table with the ace of diamonds and take the heart finesse. If it loses and West continues with a spade, you can take the club finesse with impunity and in due course you will come to nine tricks — two spades, two hearts, two diamonds and three clubs.

However, when he wins the king of hearts, West can shift the attack to diamonds, and they can defeat the contract as the cards lie. Obviously declarer can't use the ace of clubs as an entry to the board for the heart finesse, because West might have the king of clubs.

The solution to declarer's dilemma is to lead the queen of hearts from hand at trick three. West wins the king, but he can do declarer no harm. Declarer wins any return and loses the club finesse to East, but he has nine tricks regardless of what the defenders do.

West leads the fourth-best

Heiress Declared Dead

CHICAGO (AP) — A ruling declaring vanished candy heiress Helen Vorhees Brach legally dead has opened the way to settling her $30 million estate...

Most of the estate will go to the Helen Brach Foundation, an animal welfare organization. Mrs. Brach was fond of dogs and had two of her pets entombed with her parents and husband.

Police have found no trace of Mrs. Brach, widow of candy company owner Frank V. Brach, after her departure from a Minnesota clinic on Feb. 17, 1977...

Attorneys for the estate, seeking to reduce taxes, had sought to have the heiress declared dead as of February 1984. Illinois law requires that a person be missing for seven years before the declaration is made.

That date had been proposed by Mrs. Brach's brother, retired railroad worker George Vorhees. The ruling means Vorhees stands to collect $300,000 in interest on a $500,000 trust fund left to him by his 65-year-old sister.

The third wife of the president of the E.J. Brach and Sons Candy Co., Mrs. Brach lived quietly on her seven-acre estate in suburban Glenview after her husband's death in 1970.
