ECU May Be In Line For Class Building

Money for a new classroom building at East Carolina University is included in a draft budget for the coming year to be reviewed by the Legislature's Appropriations Committee next week.

The proposed state budget for 1984-1985 — listing increases amounting to $563 million — includes $14.6 million for a general classroom building at ECU, $9 million for an addition to the D.H. Hill Library at N.C. State University, $7.6 million for a new library at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, $3.9 million for a multipurpose university center at Penbroke State University, and $6.2 million for a new classroom building at UNC-Ashville.

C.G. Moore, vice chancellor for business affairs at ECU, said this morning the prospects for receiving the money are "excellent."

"It's in there (the proposed budget). When it's in there, it usually stays. It's a project of the (UNC) Board of Governors," Moore suggested.

Preliminary planning has already been done for the three-story, 167,000-square-foot building, at a cost of $265,000, Moore said.

To be located south of Graham and Rawl buildings, partly on the site of the old steam plant and laundry, it will be the largest classroom building at the school, with 60 classrooms and 180 faculty offices.

Dr. Angelo Volpe, vice chancellor for academic affairs, said present plans call for the new building to house the school of business, the departments of foreign languages, English and business education, and several small units such as the honors program and international studies.

Moore said that if the $14.6 million is approved by the General Assembly this summer, "We should be ready for bids in January or February (1985)." He said construction time would be from 18 months to 24 months.

PCC Awards Diplomas

Spring graduates of Pitt Community College received their diplomas Thursday during commencement exercises held in Wright Auditorium at East Carolina.

Ed Walker, president of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce and speaker for the ceremony, told graduates they must "continue to help the people of this area broaden our economic base."

"In doing so, you will reach the goals of achievement and secure financial stability," Walker said.

"People miss life and what it holds for them because they do not understand what lies inside of them," he told graduates. "Successful people are driven from within." Goal-setting is a must, the speaker emphasized, if achievement is expected.

"Set big goals that demand more than what you have been doing in order that the excitement and the desire to achieve will be constantly part of your lifestyle," Walker said. Quiet time is also important, he added, "to find out who you are, where you are and where you plan to go in life."

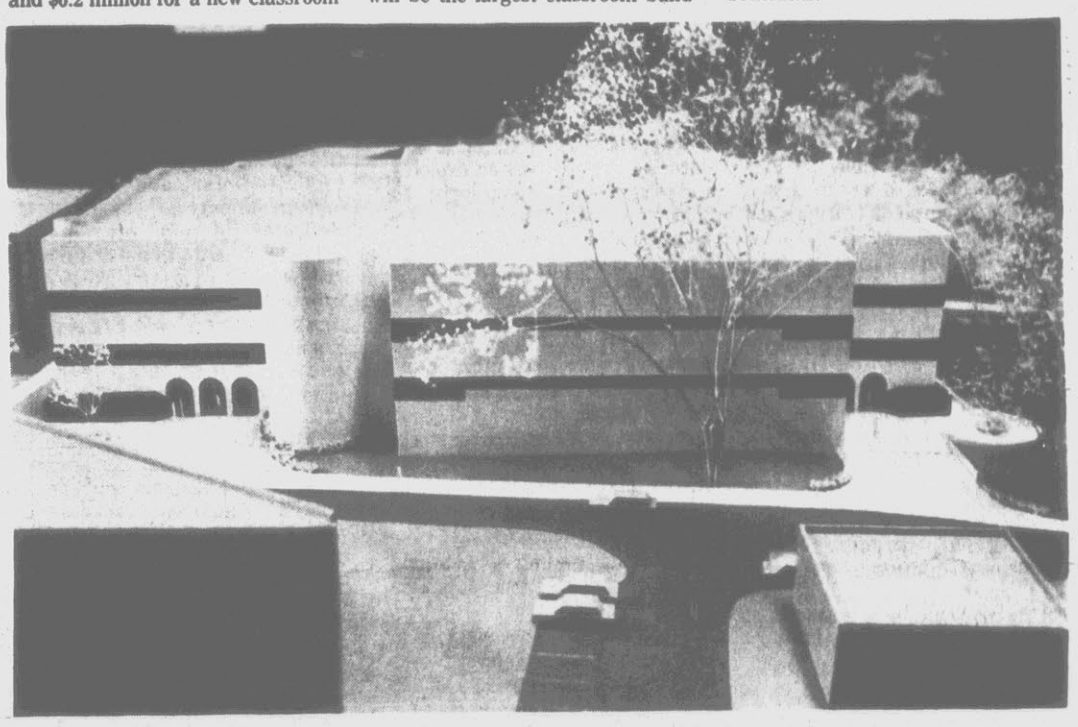

Walker told graduates PCC has "an outstanding history and a bright future."

"We in Pitt County take pride in recognizing the fact and telling it everywhere that PCC is always in the top of community colleges in the state of North Carolina.," he said.

"We (in Pitt County) need your skills, the knowledge and talents you now possess to make our area a better place to live and make a living," Walker added.

Susan Creech, president of the PCC Student Government Association and a graduate of the architectural drafting program, gave the graduates' response to the college. "The faculty and staff, through their leadership, has directed the class toward goals of academic recognition, vocational competency and personal satisfaction," Ms. Creech said.

Diplomas were conferred by Clifton Everett Sr., chairman of the PCC Board of Trustees, and Joe Downing, associate dean of instruction for curricular programs.

Medical Program Launched

The East Carolina University School of Medicine has announced the establishment of the Brody Scholar Program in Medicine, a major new program that will recognize scholastic excellence in medical education.

The program, announced by Dr. William E. Laupus, vice chancellor and dean of the school of medicine, is named for the Brody family of Kinston and Greenville, longtime supporters of the medical school.

The Brody Scholar Program will recognize distinguished academic performance by providing substantial scholarships for five students throughout their four years of study, Laupus said. One student who demostrates superior ability and potential will be named the Brody Scholar and receive a $7,500 a year stipend for four years. In addition four students will be selected as Brody fellows and will each receive $2,000 a year scholarships.

Edmisten Rejects 'Gutter' Tactics

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

Democratic gubernatorial hopeful Rufus Edmisten says there is no room in his campaign for namecalling, adding that he refuses to "get in the gutter and act like an alley cat."

At a rally at the King and Queen North in Greenville Thursday night, Edmisten told supporters the issues in the election are "to eradicate ignorance and give children hope, black and white alike; to give people jobs so they won't have to grovel, and to not forget agricultural interests.

"What the issues are about have nothing to do with namecalling," the candidate added, in reference to statements made by his opponent in next month's runoff primary, former Charlotte Mayor Eddie Knox.

"The only way we can lose this (primary campaign) is by being apathetic," Edmisten said. He urged the crowd of over 1,000 supporters to continue working on getting voters to the polls.

"I can't wait to start fighting Republicans," Edmisten stated.

Insurance Commissioner John Ingram, who trailed in the first Democratic primary, accompanied Edmisten to the rally, pledging his support for the candidate. Bob Ramey represented former gubernatorial candidate Lauch Faircloth, who ran third in the first primary.

"Not only am I for Rufus, my entire family is working for him," said Ingram.

"A lot of desperation statements are being made by the opponent at

Pitt Blood Program Presents Annual Recognition Awards

By ANGELA LINGERFELT
Reflector Staff Writer

Surgeons at Pitt County Memorial Hospital could not accomplish much without readily available blood, Dr. Edward O. Janosko of the Pitt County Medical Society said Thursday at the sixth annual awards and recognition luncheon of the Pitt County Blood Program.

"It is a pleasure to work in a hospital where blood is so readily available. You really don't see people dying anymore from lack of blood — and it's because of groups like this that we have the blood we need," Dr. Janosko said.

Mike Colombo, chairman of the Pitt County Blood Services Committee, said that 94 percent of the committee's goal had been accomplished this year. He added that this figure was up from last year because the goal had been raised 10 percent.

"The blood program is targeted at specific areas such as industry, schools and the general public. We are here to recognize outstanding people in those categories," Colombo said.

Don Bailey of the East Carolina University Blood Committee presented awards to the school's Air Force ROTC and Army ROTC for their efforts at recruiting blood donors.

"At ECU, there is a 15,000-person community and it takes a lot of people to coordinate a blood drive. When it's beach weather or exam time, it's hard to attract students. But both ROTC groups posted signs all over campus and doubled the take of the previous year," Bailey said.

Barry Gaskins, public information director for Pitt County Community Schools, presented an annual award to Farmville Central High School for having the largest number of eligible donors. The award had been earned by D.H. Conley High School since 1979.

"Giving blood in our high schools is one of the most vital character-building things in the schools. Giving blood makes students feel good about themselves," Gaskins said.

The Chicken Trophy, given annually to the school with the lowest number of eligible donors, was presented to all the county high schools except Farmville Central. Gaskins stressed that each school worked hard and that no school was a loser for its blood drive efforts.

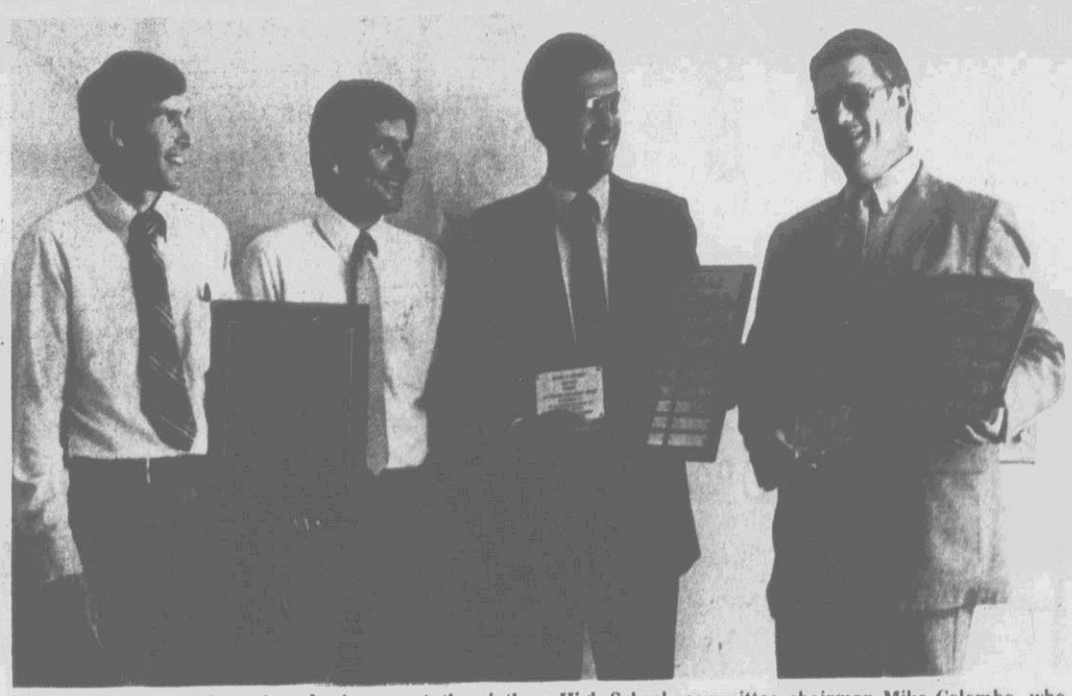

The Ott Alford Award, established in 1981, was presented to Colombo for making the most contributions to the program.

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

Hotline gets things done. Write and tell us about the problem or issue into which you'd like for Hotline to look. Enclose photostatic copies of any pertinent information. Our address is The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C., 27835. Because of the large numbers received, Hotline cannot answer or publish every item we receive, but we deal with all of those for which we have staff time. Names must be given, but only initials will be published.

Sandra Gaskins, Pitt County clerk of court, said there was good response to a recent Hotline appeal for persons to man an information booth in the lobby of the courthouse. More volunteers are needed, however, she said. High school students would be welcomed, as would older adults. To volunteer or learn more about the effort, call Ms. Gaskins at 752-2139, or Tom Haigwood, district attorney, 752-4623.

By JENNIFER JUERGENS
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — When Gertrude Duby Blom, 83, was a child in the canton of Berne, in the Swiss Alps, she played Indians with her friends, and always wanted to be the chief.

One of the friends she used to play with recently wrote to her and pointed out how Gertrude was actually living what the rest of them had only acted out.

Ms. Blom arrived in Mexico in 1940 with other political refugees from Europe. Most of the refugees left. But she stayed. And with a camera she bought for 50 pesos, she began taking pictures of the land and the people of Chiapas, Mexico.

In her 40 years of living in Mexico, Ms. Blom has taken more than 40,000 pictures, some of which can be seen in "Bearing Witness," a book of her photographs published for The Center for Documentary Photography at Duke University. The book was edited by Margaret Sartor and Alex Harris, who is director of the center.

Ms. Blom went on the first expedition sponsored by the government of Mexico to observe the Lacandon Indians.

"I was captivated by the jungle," recalled Ms. Blom, in New York for the opening of an exhibit of her photographs. "It is so beautiful. I went from the Alps to the tropical rain forest," she says, adding that she felt at home right away.

Her work shown here will also be exhibited by the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service around the country, beginning in 1985 and continuing for three years.

Ms. Blom has been particularly attached to the Lacandon Maya in Mexico, a small group of Indians she encountered in the lowland jungles of Chiapas in 1943.

"When I started taking pictures the Lacandones had never seen a camera. They couldn't understand what a picture was. They were isolated. Today they have cameras. They drive. They have shotguns, Swiss knives."

But now, Ms. Blom's main concern is taking pictures of the dying rain forests — which have been steadily depleting since 1960 due to slash and burn farming techniques, ranchers and mahogany loggers, she says — in hopes of educating people on the effects this will have on Indian civilization.

"There were many beautiful landscapes that aren't there anymore," she says. "I want to show the beauty of the past."

She is dedicated to preserving the Indians' habitat as well as preserving the culture of the Chiapas Indians — even their music.

"We made records of highland Indian music and sold them to the Indians for cost."

Ms. Blom, who speaks five languages, has also written numerous articles, some with her husband who died in 1963, about the Indians and their land.

She lives in San Cristobal De Las Casas, Chiapas, and leads a simple life. Up at 5:30 a.m., she spends her day exercising, reading, gardening and riding horses. Some weeks are spent on ecological trips, visiting the Lacandon forest. Her home, called Na Bolom, contains a library, which specializes in Mayan culture, a museum, a chapel, a photographic archive and a bookstore. A large collection of Ms. Blom's photographs are also here.

"This is important because it shows the changes in Chiapas from 1923 to today," Ms. Blom says.

Na Bolom also has a nursery from which trees are distributed to combat deforestation.

"I am totally ecologically oriented now," she explains. "The Indians don't need that much help, and I see the destruction of the rain forest, not only in Mexico but all the countries of the Third World."

The Na Bolom center was created by Ms. Blom and her husband, Frans, who had lived in Mexico since the '20s. He was an explorer, archeologist and anthropologist. Na Bolom, meaning, "The House of The Jaguar," also has room for paying guests to support the activities of the center.

The daughter of a Protestant minister, Ms. Blom grew up in the town of Wimmis, where her father preached. She never had a great love for school, preferring the outdoors, but enjoyed reading the works of Carl May, a popular German novelist. May described the Indians of the Americas, and their fight against instant civilization.

She sees the same thing happening in the rain forest but says she wouldn't think of leaving.

"I couldn't be taken away from nature, I couldn't stand it," she says. "There are moments of despair, but I am a fighter. I believe in what I'm fighting for."

Ms. Blom, who holds a degree in social work, is considered to be not only a photographer, but also an explorer, ecologist, journalist and writer.

She disagrees.

"I am nothing. And a little bit everything."

("Bearing Witness" is published by The University of North Carolina Press.)

Scholarships Given By ADK Chapter

Scholarship presentations highlighted the meeting of Alpha Iota Chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa held Tuesday evening at the Colonial Inn in Farmville.

Evette Alleyne, a senior at North Pitt High School, Stephanie Hoyt, a sophomore at East Carolina University, Amanda Manning, a senior at Rose High School, and Barbara Luce, who is attending the University of South Carolina, received the $200 scholarships.

A pledge service was conducted for Patricia Minges and JoAnne McPherson. An initiation ceremony will be held at the September meeting.

Elizabeth Savage, founder of the chapter, installed the following officers: Lib Avery, president; Sarah Allen, vice president; Mena Lassiter, treasurer; Linda Ferebee, recording secretary; Frances Johnson, corresponding secretary; Ann Davis, historian; Trilby Harris, sergeant-at-arms; and Barbara Finch and Mary Ann Brannon, chaplains.

Mickey West, outgoing president, presented the gavel to Ms. Avery.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

Feelings Are Honest Emotional Responses

DEAR ABBY: My stepdaughter (I'll call her Betty) was recently married in a lovely church wedding. Her mother was escorted to the wedding by a relative.

Betty and I have never been what you would call "close," but there has never been a harsh word between us. I have been married to her father for over a year, and Betty seemed genuinely happy that her daddy found happiness with me because she knew that her parents had lived in a hopelessly bad marriage for years.

After the ceremony, Betty asked the photographer to take some pictures, summoning her mother, father and younger brother to pose with her and her bridegroom. She also rounded up her new in-laws to pose with her and her new husband.

I stood on the sidelines, but was not asked to be in even one picture! Betty must have noticed how hurt I was because she smiled at me and said, "These are family pictures."

Abby, am I not "family?" I am her father's wife. Am I wrong to feel hurt?

HURT

DEAR HURT: Feelings are neither "wrong" nor "right"— they are the honest emotional responses to what happens to us.

In Betty's mind, only blood relatives were "family." It was no reflection on you. She was very insensitive for failing to include you in at least one picture, but she was probably more thoughtless than intentionally cruel.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: For the last six months I have been going with a most loving and wonderful man. I am 20.

He keeps telling me he loves me, but the last few weeks he has been asking me to go to various places with some of his friends—such as to bed. He assures me that he loves me, but when I refuse to go to bed with his friends he says he doesn't understand me.

I told him that the only man I want to go to bed with is him, and I can't understand why he wants to share me with his friends. He said a former girlfriend told him that that was the way to tell if a girl really loved him.

Please help me, Abby. I love him more than anything in the world and I don't want to lose him.

IN LOVE IN SEATTLE

DEAR IN LOVE: Any man who asks you to go to bed with his friends does not love you, regardless of what he says. He's using you. Don't buy his story that a "former girlfriend" told him that that was a way a girl proved her love.

I hate to be the bearer of bad news, but the man is very bad news, and the sooner you dump him, the better.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I just came home from a visit to my new doctor. (My old doctor retired and now I have a young one.) He is the age of my youngest child, yet he called me "Kathy."

When will doctors realize that not all older women appreciate this presumptuous "friendliness"? If I were to correct him, it would put a strain on our relationship, so I keep quiet. The office nurse also calls me "Kathy," which irritates me.

Please print this, Abby. It may get the message across.

CALL ME MRS.

DEAR MRS.: I suggest that you tell the doctor and his nurse that you prefer to be called "Mrs." Why worry about straining a relationship that's already been strained? It might improve it.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Miss Brandt, Mr. Kee Wed In Jarvis Church

The wedding ceremony of Melanie Sue Brandt and James Kelly Kee Jr. was solemnized in the chapel of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church May 12 at 11 a.m. by the Rev. James H. Bailey.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. George H. Brandt of Windsor and Mr. and Mrs. James Kelly Kee Sr. of Belmont.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. The bride wore a formal gown of white silkened organza over peau de soie. The gown was fashioned with open sweetheart neckline outlined in appliques of silk Venise lace beaded with pearls. The fitted bodice featured the silk Venise lace encrusted with pearls and iridescent sequins. The sheer elbow length pouf sleeves were trimmed in a scalloped border of silk Venise lace interspersed with lace florets with a crystal pleated ruffle accented with a pink silk flower at the elbow. Silk Venise lace enhanced the modified natural waistline. The full skirt was edged at the hemline in a scalloped pattern of silk Venise lace featuring insets of tiers of crystal pleated organza accented with pink silk flowers. She wore a pencil edged fingertip illusion veil held in place by a circlet of white silk flowers and Venise lace flortes.

The bride works at Links Clothing Store and the bridegroom is attending East Carolina University.

The honor attendant was Jenny Brandt of Windsor, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids included Cathy Brandt of Rocky Mount, sister-in-law of the bride, and Margo Davis of Harkers Island.

Honorary bridesmaids were Kandi Robbins of Raleigh, Vickie Waters of Kinston, Lana Ford of Rocky Mount and Karen Brame of Greenville.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and the ring bearer was Phillip McClendon of Windsor, nephew of the bride. Ushers were Scott Kee of Belmont, brother of the bridegroom, and Scott Brandt of Rocky Mount, brother of the bride.

Honorary ushers included Paul MacMillan, Greg House, Mark Douglas, Skip Hill, Tom Brown, Larry Talbert and William Sneed, all of Greenville.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Robert Thurber of Greenville. Vocalists were Karen Sneed of Greenville and Tim Dufore of Beaufort.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church.

After a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, S.C., the couple lives in Greenville.

Indian Basket-Making Goes Commercial

By JAMES E. WALTERS
Associated Press Writer

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Sales to the non-Indian public probably will determine how long Southwest Indians continue to weave baskets, says Clara Lee Tanner, an authority on the region's native crafts.

"The miracle of it all is that basketry has survived, for in a vast majority of cases the Southwest Indians no longer use the products of their tribal basket weavers," she said.

Metal pots and pans and glassware have taken their place.

But she personally doesn't look for basket-making to die out.

"Some of the Hopis are getting marvelous prices now — as much as $2,000 for new baskets," she said. "But the Apaches have practically ceased making first-class baskets. The Papagos are producing more than they ever have and other tribes much less or none.

"However, in general, the production now is for commercial sale only, and very little is for use at home."

mMrs. Danner, at 78, speaks from nearly 60 years' experience studying the crafts of the Southwest Indians.

She retired five years ago after 50 years of teaching anthropology at the University of Arizona and her 10th book, "Indian Baskets of the Southwest," has just been published by the University of Arizona Press.

Basket weaving historically has been the craft of women and Mrs. Tanner says she knows of only one man who did it commercially.

Virtually all of the new baskets are home-produced, just as the old ones were, she said in a telephone interview from Tucson.

"The same fundamental elements and units were used by most tribes — squares, rectangles, lines and bands, triangles, diamonds, zigzags and circles," she said.

"But what has been most fascinating to me is that no two designs are the same. There is a superstition that if two baskets are made the same, the ability to make them is taken from you. So there's always something fresh for me to see."

There are three major weaves, she said: plaiting, the simplest, which involves crossing of materials at right angles; wicker, in which the vertical elements cross the horizontal ones, and the coiled technique.

"Undoubtedly the most important is coiling, since most of the baskets have been and still are made this way," she said.

Materials varied by tribe and included cottonwood, willow, squaberry, yucca and devil's claw. Colors depended on what was available naturally.

As a generalization, most collectors feel the old Apache baskets — those of 50, 60, 70 or more years back — are the best. The Chemehuevi also were excellent.

"While a small number of Hopis are involved, within the realm of material, style and design the Hopi work now equals the old Apache. Many are reaching or have reached the point of fine art," she said.

Mrs. Tanner's husband of a half century, John, for four decades operated Desert House Crafts, a Tucson center for fine crafts of the Southwest.

"Basket prices are very low in relation to the time and effort required to make them," he said. "Depending on size, some of the very old ones sell for anywhere from $700 to $14,000 to collectors. But most sell for much less."

Old or new, however, the baskets can dry out, become brittle and crumble if not given proper care, such as making sure they have some moisture but not too much, they agreed.

Mrs. Tanner said one of the more interesting developments over recent years had been Indians teaching their technique to non-Indians.

"One of my non-Indian friends here is quite good," she ssid. "In fact, she makes some of the finest Papago-style baskets I've ever seen."

CHOCOLATE FROSTING
It's the cream cheese variety.
3-ounce package cream cheese, soft
3 tablespoons milk
2½ to 3 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
2 squares (2 ounces) unsweetened chocolate, melted

Gradually beat milk, then sugar, into cream cheese, until blended after each addition. Beat in chocolate until blended. Sandwich together two 8- or 9-inch vanilla or chocolate cake layers with raspberry jam; cover top and sides with the chocolate frosting.

Designing Woman Wins Award

NEW YORK (AP) — A recent graduate of the Fashion Institute of Technology here has captured top honors in an international competition for student designers held in Paris.

Jean Zwiep of Manhattan shared the spotlight with three other designers, from Italy, France and Japan, in the "Concours des Jeunes Createurs de Mode." The competition is sponsored by Air France in conjunction with the French Federation of Couture.

Ms. Zwiep, a native of Holden, Mass., will receive one year's tuition at the Ecole de la Couture Parisienne.

Her winning ensemble consisted of a slim, gray linen skirt; a long, white, hand-knit cotton sweater; and a linen overcoat with white and gray vertical stripes. The ensemble will be displayed at an international design exposition in Japan this spring.

Prior to enrolling at FIT's fashion design program, Ms. Zwiep took degrees at Stanford and Yale. She also worked for several years as an account executive at an advertising agency.

Yale College was founded in 1701 in New Haven, Conn.

Unusual Restraint

All in all, the tobacco manufacturing industry does not appear to be as upset about the new cigarette warning labels as it was when the first such warnings were required for cigarettes.

There were perfunctory arguments on the changes which will partially itemize the possible harmful effects of tobacco rather than the generalized warning that "The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking is Dangerous to Your Health." The present warning hasn't been changed since 1970.

The industry's restraint on commenting about the changes is somewhat surprising; a tremendous contrast with the uproar in 1964 when Congress first required a warning on packages of cigarettes and cigarette advertising.

We perceive in this a shift in perspective during the 20-year span; as well as an awareness that fewer young people are turning to cigarettes and in observing ever fewer acquaintances and co-workers share the smoking habit.

That, coupled with the diversification of major tobacco companies into a broad spectrum of other fields, suggests that long ago the industry read the handwriting on the wall; and found it ominous.

Innuendo Strategy

It's pretty late in the season for rival Democrat gubernatorial candidate warriors Rufus Edmisten and Eddie Knox to abandon personal attacks against one another.

The exchanges, routinely followed by accusations of false allegations, have ranged from non-payment of state taxes to attempted point-making over a divorce, are not becoming for two adults vying for the state's highest office. Too, it belittles the office. North Carolinians get enough of the innuendo strategy and allegations of a political nature which have often been a part of the Senate campaigns.

Personal attacks have no bearing on issues involving the governorship nor candidacy for a party's nomination as its candidate.

Both Edmisten and Knox have decried the practice.

Unfortunately, the strategy is generally planned well in advance and its curtailment is not all that easy once turned loose.

We fear the atmosphere will continue to be plagued by the man-made pollution into the final days of the runoff campaign. A pity.

Boycott Wasn't Unwelcomed

WASHINGTON — Before Moscow announced its boycott of the Olympics, White House deputy chief of staff Michael K. Deaver pressured the CIA and FBI into dropping objections against the Soviet Union's plan to house its athletes on a cruise ship in Long Beach harbor.

Both the Central Intelligence Agency and the Federal Bureau of Investigation feared that KGB agents would use the ship as a platform for spying on the technological heart of the U.S., especially the Silicon Valley. Moscow's intense desire to berth the vessel at Long Beach was viewed by American intelligence as the desire for month-long eavesdropping on electronic secrets.

With backing from the State Department, the security agencies fought hard against giving the Soviets permission but finally bowed to pressure from Deaver. At the time, Deaver was seeking to smooth U.S.-Soviet relations in time for the presidential election campaign. The Soviet boycott, regretted everywhere else, was quietly welcomed in the secret world of counter-intelligence.

Back-bench House Republicans are beginning a drive to name United Nations Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick, who still is a nominal Democrat, as keynoter of the GOP National Convention in Dallas.

Worried about the gender gap, the White House is determined to have a woman keynoter. But the same conservative congressmen who have been harassing Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill fear she will be a moderate — most likely Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole or Sen. Nancy Kassebaum. Their choice is neo-conservative Kirkpatrick.

The last non-party person to keynote a Republican national convention was Gen. Douglas MacArthur in 1952, but he was never a practicing Democrat. In contrast, Ms. Kirkpatrick was a devoted backer of Sen. Hubert Humphrey, served on the platform drafting committee at the 1976 Democratic National Convention and never has switched party registration. "What better time to become a Republican than at Dallas?" asked one House GOP conservative.

Senior House Democrats are privately grumbling that mojority leader Jim Wright's courageous support for President Reagan's program of military aid to El Salvador may have cost him not only a longshot vice presidential bid but even his previously sure elevation to speaker in 1987.

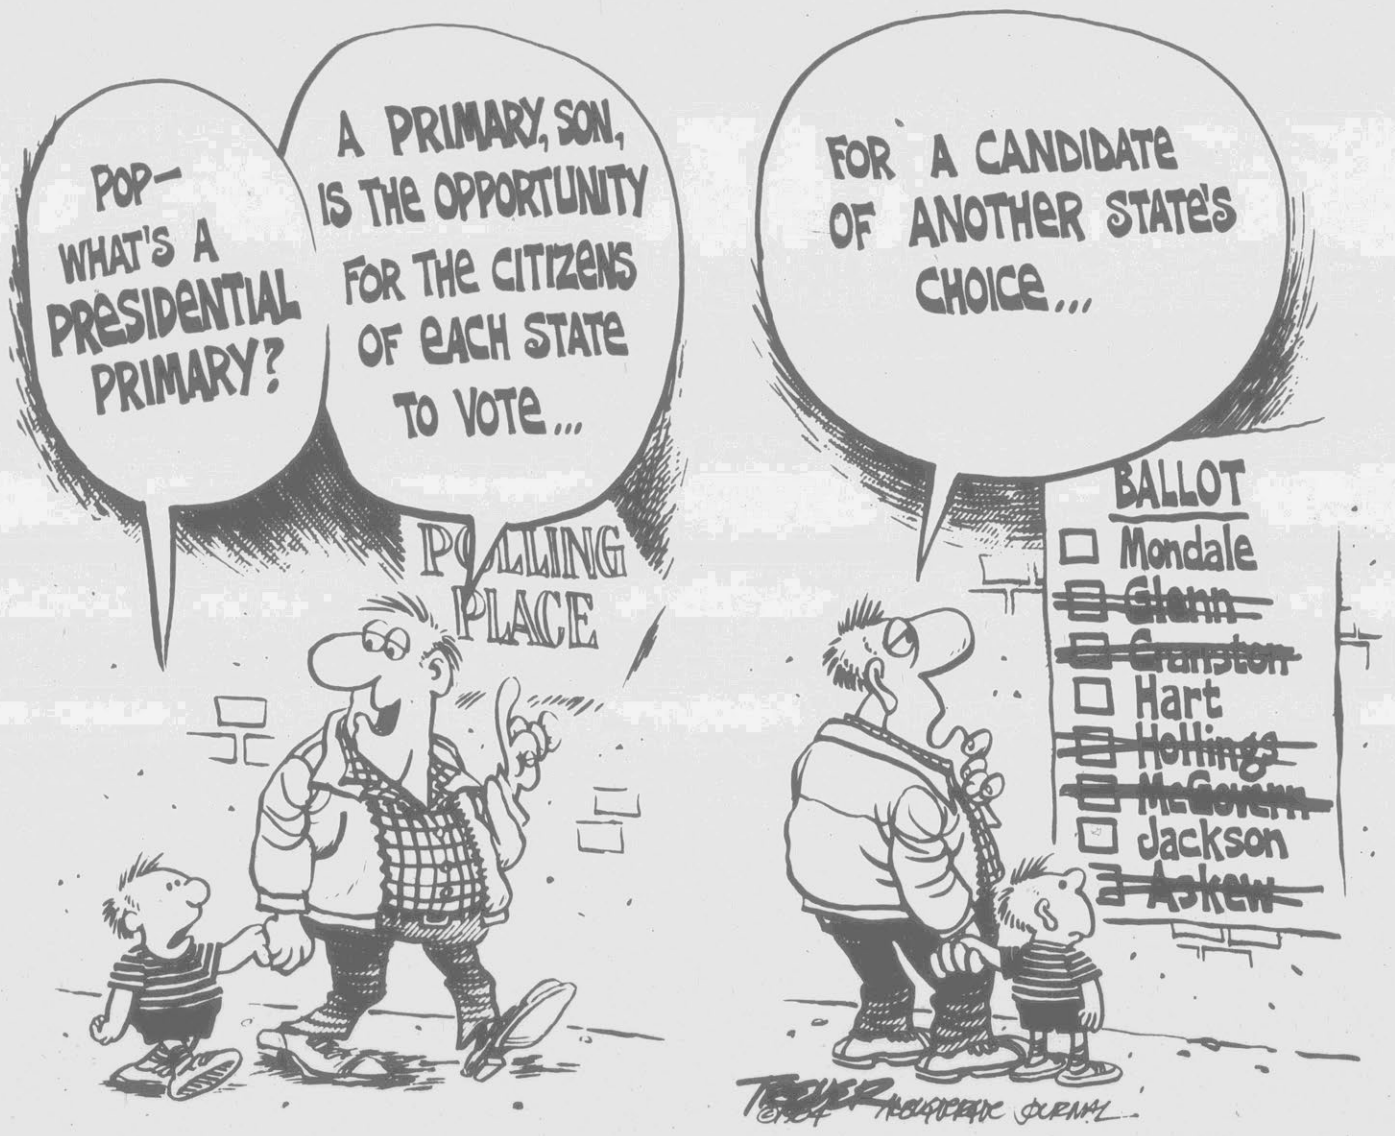

Democrats who had taken for granted that Wright would be the next speaker were incensed when they saw Republicans rising to cheer the mojority leader's eloquent speech in behalf of aid, particularly after Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill had been working the floor against it. Wright attracted only 56 Democratic votes (compared to 200 against), but the aid squeaked through, 212 to 208.

That immediately began Democratic cloakroom conversation about other possibilities to succeed O'Neill after the 1986 election, including majority whip Thomas Foley, Budget Committee chairman James Jones and Energy and Commerce Committee chariman John Dingell. All voted against Salvadoran aid.

Private deals with politically hungry congressmen, especially Democrats with no partisan loyalty to President Reagan, helped pave the way for his eyelash victory in the House's MX vote.

One winner: Rep. Norman Dicks of Washington, homeland of the Boeing Co. Dicks won a surprising change in Navy procurement as a windfall for being a member of the small but crucial Democratic save-the-MX squad.

The Navy had canceled Boeing's contract for the EC-6, a new aircraft to safeguard communications with submarines in wartime, deciding to use an existing plance instead. The EC-6 was reinstated for Dicks, giving him a choice election-year plum.

The Cellular Phone, They Say, Gives You The Edge

What is the most important thing a person needs to succeed in business?

According to the latest advertisments, it's a cellular telephone. The cellular phone will give you the edge over your competitors, because you can keep in contact with your office and your clients at all times. You can confer with your staff while you are on the highway, dictate to your secretary while you're in a traffic jam, and call anyone in the world while you're waiting to be tanked up with gas.

The cellular telephone differs from your ordinary car phone in that you don't need a radio operator. You can dial direct just as you would on your home phone, and people can dial you while you are in your car. Pretty soon the entire country will be ready for cellular phoning. So what's wrong with it?

Every advertisement I've seen for this communications marvel shows the person holding the phone in one hand and the steering wheel in the other.

To my knowledge no instructions are issued with the phone on how to dial a friend and avoid an accident at the same moment.

I'm not saying this will happen every time you make a call, but there are occasions when phoning and driving don't go together.

One is when your mother calls you in the car.

"Harold, where are you?"

"Fifth and Elm, in Bethesda. Why are you calling me now?"

"I was worried about you. I hadn't heard from you in three days."

"I'm sorry, Ma, but ever since I got my cellular phone I've had more business than I can handle. It's given me a tremendous advantage over my opposition."

"So how do you take the orders down?"

"I write them down, Ma, on my clipboard, which is attached to the telephone."

"Tell me, son, if you have one hand holding the phone, and one hand writing down the orders, who's driving the car?"

"I'm driving the car with my elbow."

"You think that is a good idea?"

"I haven't had an accident yet. Listen, I don't want to talk too long because I'm waiting to hear from a guy on his cellular phone. He said he'd call me back about the time I got to Rockville."

"Then you think it's progress with all the crazies on the road to be driving with one hand or an elbow on the steering wheel?"

"Ma, you don't realize how the cellular phone is going to change people's lives. Before, we used to sit in our cars listening to the radio or thinking all sorts of thoughts. Now we don't have to waste that valuable time. Every minute ie precious when you're closing a deal."

"You still didn't answer my question. How do you keep from running into a lamppost when you're driving with one hand, and dialing with the other?"

"Only a mother would ask a question like that. You know I'm a good driver."

"It isn't you I'm worrying about. It's the person who owns one of those phones who can't drive with two hands that could be a menace. Maybe Ralph Nader should look into it and start asking some questions."

"Don't get Ralph Nader into this. If he had his way we businessmen would still be making our calls from pay booths. Look, I have to hang up. I just saw Sam Kaplan on his cellular phone and he's after the same account I am. I've got to call the office and find out what's going on."

"All right, son. But please do your mother a favor."

"Anything, Ma."

"Dial carefully."

Guards Object To Tests

WASHINGTON — Should the 4,000 armed guards at America's nuclear weapons facilities be required to run a mile in eight-and-a-half minutes or less?

The Department of Energy says, "Yes," but the International Guard Union of America answers, "NO!"

Since the level of international terrorism began to increase, more than a decade ago, DOE authorities have worried about the adequacy of the physical and mental condition of its security force. Most U.S. nuclear weapons research facilities employ security guards supplied by private companies. Their conditioning standards have varied with the territory and have not met the highest levels of fitness.

In 1980, DOE hired Professional Management Associates Inc. (PMA) to devise uniform physical and mental fitness regulations for its nuclear security cops. Two years and $504,271 later, PMA recommended that the guards be able to run a mile in 8.30 or less and a 40-yard dash in at least 8.0 seconds.

But in 1983, after DOE implemented the recommendations without public hearings, two guards died during running examinations. The guard union filed suit. The U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Washington state eventually acceded to the union's request for a stay pending the successful passage of the standards through regulatory channels.

On May 14, DOE finally offered its proposals for public consideration. Four hearings are scheduled, with the first slated for May 30 in Oak Ridge, Tenn.

No individual or group has ever attacked a nuclear weapons facility to date, yet such a possibility makes the fitness of our nuclear security cops a high national concern. The safety of nuclear facilities is more important than the skin of a few fat employees.

U.S.-manned and -controlled surveillance aircraft are helping Iraq in its war with Iran, Iraqi president Saddam Hussein told Kuwaiti journalists last week. Hussein said that his armed forces were relying on data supplied by four U.S. AWACS (advanced warning and control system) aircraft on loan to Saudi Arabia. "We have benefited from the AWACS in Iraq," he said.

On a recent visit to China, Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasir Arafat secured a Chinese promise of what he called "material assistance." Middle East diplomats took the phrase to mean military and medical aid.

Speaking at the 116th commencement exercises at Howard University last weekend, ABC News' Max Robinson criticized Washington Post reporter Milton Coleman for revealing the off-the-record remarks that have gotten the Rev. Jesse Jackson into so much trouble. Coleman reported, among other things, that Jackson had used the word "hymie" in reference to Jews. "There are some rules that I follow in journalism," said Robinson, "and one of those rules is that you don't report off-the-record statements."

Fears about women in combat may be unfounded. Researchers at the U.S. Army Human Engineering Laboratory at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., have discovered that women react more quickly than men in stressful situations. Meanwhile, the test results indicated that menstrual stress doesn't undermine a women soldier's efficiency in combat.

Strength For Today

He was the man who rebuilt the walls of Jerusalem in 52 days. He knew how to organize men and material. If occasion had demanded, he probably would have demonstrated his ability as a military leader. He could have ruled any nation of his day — had he been given the opportunity — and he would have done it well.

There is reason to suppose that he could hold the highest political position in modern life and make most of the present occupants look like second-raters.

Once in a while people of this variety put in their appearance. They are born with great gifts. They cannot be held back in any age.

Everything in modern life encourages the Nehemiahs to come forward and take charge of situations. Maybe you know of such a person. Perhaps there is one in your own home — in a cradle.

DGA Holds Fellowship Dinner

The Downtown Greenville Association held its ninth annual dinner for members and guests this week at the Greenville Country Club with 80 people attending the fellowship gathering.

Executive Director Dave Mosier said guests of honor were Mayor Janice Buck, City Manager Gail Meeks and her husband, Public Works Director Mayo Allen and his wife and Mrs. William H. Taft, Sr.

Hosts for the social hour, which preceded the dinner, were Hannah-Dunn Inc. and Planters National Bank. Table arrangements were through the courtesy of Cox Floral Service.

Following dinner a brief program included the introduction of guests, the presentation of a silver bowl to Mrs. William H. Taft Sr., in memory of her husband who was a charter member of the association, the presentation of a silver tray to DGA President Reid Hooper in appreciation for his service as president. Several members were recoginized for their leadership and accomplishments in directing projects for the DGA.

Officers for the operating year just concluded were Hooper; Don Edwards, vice president; Herbert Wilkerson Jr., treasurer, and Mosier, secretary.

Directors were Morris Brody, Ken Brown, I.J. Edwards Jr., Charles A. Forbes, Anne E. Guerrant, Tom Haines, Douglas P. Hill, Helen M. Pope, William H. Taft Jr., John S. Shannonhouse, Herbert W. Wheless and Frank M. Wooten Jr.

the last minute," Ingram said. "They are so twisted and distorted that they are not the truth. The statements are a smokescreen to divert attention from the real issues.'

In an interview, Edmisten says he did not wish to comment on the remarks Knox has made during the campaign. However, an official statement Edmisten said he "dictated himself" was passed out to supporters at the door.

"If the public wants to know the facts, there they are," Edmisten said.

The statement from Edmisten's office, signed by Dick Carlton, addresses a charge made by Knox that Edmisten failed to file income tax returns in North Carolina in 1972-73.

Edmisten's statement reads: "Prior to Rufus' first election as attorney teneral in 1974, during the eleven years that Rufus served as an aide to Senator Sam J. Ervin Jr., Rufus lived in the state of Virginia and paid taxes to the state of Virginia. Rufus, as did many other congressional aides from North Carolina who lived in or around Washington, filed their state income taxes in the state in which they were living, rather than in North Carolina. When Rufus in 1974 was made aware of the fact that even though he was filing and paying all taxes due to the state of Virginia, he should have been filing income tax returns also in the state of North Carolina, he immediately did so for the entire eleven-year period."

The statement adds that Edmisten "has made a careful attempt not to accept any utility PAC (political action committee) money, and in fact has never during his entire campaign for governor accepted any utility PAC money."

The memorandum states that Edmisten has "fought for consumers before the Utilities Commission in more than 180 cases and has repeatedly sided with consumers," and that during Edmisten's 10-year tenure as attorney general, the crime rate in North Carolina "has been significantly below the national average, and also significantly below the average in all other Southern states."

France Phasing Out School Aid

PARIS (AP) — A controversial bill on private schools was automatically adopted by the National Assembly early today after opposition members failed in a bid to censure the Socialist government on the issue.

The bill provides for phasing out government subsidies within eight years to private schools where fewer than half the teachers are government-licensed. It is opposed by the Roman Catholic Church and affiliated organizations which together run more than 90 percent of France's private schools.

The opposition in the assembly was able to muster only 159 of the 246 votes needed to censure the government, which had declared the censure motion to be a vote of confidence.

Under French parliamentary rules, failure of the censure motion — which would have brought down the government had it passed — made a vote on the school bill unnecessary.

Greenville Middle School students participating in the ceremony were Stephen Higdon and Tom Irons. Other local students attending the awards activities were Julie Garrison, Won Kim, Jennifer J. Powell and Dawn Spivey.

The students took the college level Scholastic Aptitude Test as participants in Duke's Talent Identification Program (TIP).

Annual Service

Pitt County American Legion Post No. 39 will hold its annual Memorial Day service at the post home Sunday at 3 p.m.

The service will include a band concert by the E.B. Aycock Junior High School Band and the presentation and lowering of the colors by the D.H. Conley High School JROTC. M/Sgt. Terry Bowles, senior enlisted instructor with the Army ROTC at East Carolina University, will be the guest speaker.

PTO President

Nancy Powell was recently elected president of the G.R. Whitfield PTO for the 1984-85 school year.

Other officers are Dorothy Daniels, vice president; Rhonda Whitehurst, assisting vice president; Carol Hall, secretary; Yvonne Moye, assisting secretary, and Brenda Hawkins, treasurer.

Student D.C. Trip

Seventh and eighth grade students and chaperones from G.R. Whitfield School recently toured Washington, D.C.

The group visited the Washington Zoo, the Washington, Lincoln and Jefferson memorials, the Iwo Jima and Vietnam memorials, Arlington Cemetery, Springfield Mall, Smithsonian Institute, Ford Theater and the Capitol.

PTA Gathering

Ayden Middle School will hold its final PTA meeting of this school year Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Officers for next year will be elected. A band and a choral concert will be held.

Driver Charged

Retha Ann Keys of 603 Griffin St. was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety and driving without a license following investigation of a 6:33 p.m. collision Thursday on Mall Drive.

Officers said the Keys car collided with a vehicle driven by David Lee Taylor Jr. of Winterville, causing $500 damage to the Taylor car and $1,500 damage to the Keys auto.

Stokes Craft Sale

A craft sale and quilt show will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at Stokes Activity Center.

Refreshments and baked goods will also be on sale. For further information call Zula Leggett at 758-1990.

Volunteers Needed

Volunteers are needed to man an information desk in the Pitt County Courthouse from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays, according to Sandra Gaskins, Pitt clerk of Superior Court.

Duties will include greeting the public and directing them to various offices in the courthouse. For further information or to apply call Ms. Gaskins at 752-2139.

Sherman Honored

Milt Sherman of D.H. Conley High School has been honored as an outstanding coach by the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations, school officials have announced.

Sherman has coached wrestling at Conley for nine years and his teams have won eight conference championships, five sectional championships and compiled a regular season record of 113 wins and 18 losses. He also coaches junior varsity football and directs the school's weight training program.

Outer Banks Visit

Fifth graders at A.G. Cox School recently visited North Carolina's Outer Banks as a field trip supplement to classroom studies.

The students saw the Wright Brothers Memorial, Marine Resource Center, the Lost Colony, Jockey's Ridge and the Elizabeth II.

North Pitt Concert

The North Pitt High School Chorus held its spring concert Thursday along with the North Pitt Band and the eighth grade chorus from Wellcome Middle School.

The program featured selections by Palestrine, Bright, McGlohon and others.

Ammonia Helps Yellowing Corn

Farmers noticing a yellowing of early-planted corn should be able to correct the problem by applying anhydrous ammonia, according to Pitt extension agent Mitch Smith.

The yellowing, Smith said, is caused by the above-average rainfall this spring, and must be corrected while the corn is in the four-leaf stage.

"The rate used to correct this mishap would depend on how much anhydrous ammonia has already been applied," Smith said. "For example, if 75 pounds has already been applied, consider adjusting with 100-120 pounds of nitrogen."

The cut-off date for corn planting was May 15, he added. "Farmers who insist on planting corn after this date should select varieties which mature in 110-115 days.

Ferry Strike

LONDON (AP) — Leaders of the seamen's union are planning to halt ferry service for 48 hours starting Wednesday to protest government plans to sell its ferry line Sealink to private owners.

Jim Slater, general secretary of the 28,000-member National Union of Seamen, said that 7,000 men who work on the ferries have been ordered to walk out.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — It took police eight years to track down a "brassy" man charged with stealing a six-room house in the middle of the night because, as one official put it, "sometimes you can't locate a person."

Alfred Thomas Altland, 45, was being held in the Pinellas County Jail today in lieu of $5,000 bond on a 1976 warrant charging him with grand larceny. He was arrested Friday in northern Florida.

The independent trucker, who claimed the house was his, had been listed with the National Crime Information Center, a nationwide listing of wanted people, after the ill-fated housejacking.

Asked why it took so long for police to pick up Altland, Pinellas County Sheriff's spokesman Sgt. John Bocchichio said, "I guess he was not available.

"Sometimes you can't locate a person," he added.

Police had no trouble finding the missing house after the August 1976 incident. They just followed a trail of snagged power lines, broken tree limbs and downed traffic signs to a dead-end street nine blocks away, where the building was abandoned.

"Who steals a house? I think that's kind of brassy that a person could go and steal a house," said George Sherwood, whose Tampa wrecking business had sold the house to Leo Hibner.

Hibner, who used to live in the St. Petersburg area, purchased the weathered frame house in Largo for $500 from Cuyahoga Wrecking Corp. in August 1976, according to sheriff's deputies. The salvage company had bought it from General Telephone Co., which wanted the house moved so it could expand its facilities.

Altland, however, told several people that he had bought the house from the salvage company after putting down a $100 deposit, sheriff's officials said.

When Hibner visited the site on Aug. 16, he said Altland had jacked the house up and was trying to move it. He said Altland left after being told he had no business being there.

The next day, when Hibner returned, the house was gone.

James Swasey, who lives on the dead-end street where the house was abandoned, said the movers gave up their late-night quest after trying in vain to get the structure over a ditch.

"The way they do things in this county, you never know what's going to come down the street," Swasey said. "One day it may be a house. The next day, a B-52 with its wings clipped ... It's ridiculous."

AT&T Long Distance Rates Fall By 6.1 Percent

By NORMAN BLACK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers who rely on the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. to handle their interstate long-distance calls received one of the first tangible benefits of industry competition this morning — an across-the-board reduction in long-distance rates.

Effective at 12:01 a.m. today, AT&T cut its regular long-distance, WATS and international calling rates by a uniform 6.1 percent, complying with a May 10 order of the Federal Communications Commission.

That was the good news. On the minus side for some customers, that same FCC order allowed AT&T to begin charging a 50-cent fee for long-distance directory assistance calls after the first two such calls each month. And business customers with more than one phone line will have to start paying a monthly "access fee" to their local phone company.

All of the changes stem from a new rate structure the FCC gradually is introducing to reflect the fact that AT&T is now facing strong competition for long-distance traffic. While the company still handles slightly more than 90 percent of all interstate long-distance calls, competitors like MCI Communications and GTE-Sprint are growing rapidly at AT&T's expense.

The FCC says that competition, combined with the Jan. 1 breakup of the Bell System, is forcing it to scrap a decades-old system under which AT&T's long-distance customers paid extra to help hold down local phone rates. The commission says it believes local phone customers should bear the full cost of operating their local phone network.

The new monthly access fee to be paid by business customers starting today is one result of that new policy. Depending on what state the business is located in, the fee will range up to $6 per month per line and will be paid directly to the local phone company. Nationwide, those business access fees are expected to generate roughly $1 billion over the next year for local phone companies, reducing the pressure on long-distance rates.

The rate cuts were also made possible because the FCC is gradually forcing AT&T's competitors to pay the same fees as AT&T for local switching connections. The competitors will have to start paying higher connection fees to local phone companies today, although they will still enjoy a discount compared to AT&T until the local companies can provide them the same quality hook-ups.

This morning's rate reduction is expected to save long-distance callers almost $1.8 billion over the next year. The savings for individual customers will depend entirely on how many long-distance calls a consumer places each month. On a monthly long-distance bill of $20, however, the 6.1 percent reduction would produce a savings of $1.22.

In a related matter, the FCC was expected to issue a ruling later today clarifying the level of fees that AT&T and its competitors must pay local phone companies for connections used for business private lines.

A private line is a special long-distance phone circuit used exclusively by a single business customer to link two or more offices in different areas. The FCC is expected to establish an interim fee schedule until it can complete work on a new rate schedule next month.

Interest Slows Home Sales

By The Associated Press

Home resales were up in April to the highest level in almost four years, a real estate trade group says, but its chief economist says rising mortgage interest rates may dampen further increases this year.

Meanwhile, worries about interest rates and concern about the banking system sent stock prices to a 15-month low.

More than four stocks fell for each one that rose Thursday on the New York Stock Exchange, and the Dow Jones industrial average tumbled 10.37 points to 1,103.43, its lowest close since Feb. 23, 1983.

Bank stocks were particularly hard hit. Stocks of a dozen banks hit 52-week lows Thursday as investors, nervous from the problems besetting Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust, sold off their shares.

Manufacturers Hanover Trust of New York, the nation's fourth-largest bank, led the bank declines as its stock plunged $3.37½ a share to close at $27.62½. Some of the rumors specifically mentioned Manufacturers, but the company denied it had any financial difficulties.

The National Association of Realtors said the sale of existing single-family homes rose 1.7 percent in April to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.07 million units.

It was the the second consecutive month the annual sales pace has been above the 3 million mark and the highest rate since October 1980, the trade group said.

The sales pace was 63.3 percent above the recession low of 1.88 million units recorded in August 1982.

But Jack Carlson, chief economist for the National Association of realtors, said that higher mortgage rates should dampen further increases this year.

"Most of the growth the home resale market will experience in 1984 already has occurred," he said.

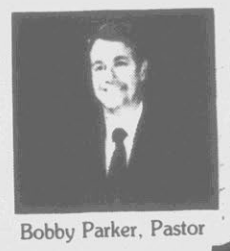

The recent increases in mortgage interest rates dampened increases in the prices of the homes, Carlson said. The April median — or midpoint — sales price for an existing single-family home was $72,600, a slight 0.6 percent increase over the $72,200 level in March.

4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Seven of ♣.

At a suit contract, count your losers. That usually tells you whether or not you can afford to draw trumps. Consider this hand.

The auction was straightforward. Since North's two no trump response did not deny a four-card heart suit, South introduced his second suit. North took preference, confirming three-card support, and South chose the spade game because of his unbalanced hand.

West led a top-of-nothing club, and when the queen was covered by the king, declarer was in danger of losing a trump, a club and three hearts. Declarer had the spots for a double finesse in hearts to avoid one loser, and another would be prevented if the suit broke 3-3. However, the odds favored a 4-2 division, so declarer might have to ruff a heart in dummy.

Declarer won the first trick with the ace, then led a low heart to the ten, which lost to the jack. East cashed the jack of clubs and continued the suit for declarer to ruff.

Now declarer cashed the king and ace of trumps, then led the queen of hearts. West ducked, the queen won and declarer continued with a heart to the ace. East showed out but it made no difference whether he could ruff the trick or not. The rest was easy. Declarer crossed back to hand with the king of diamonds and ruffed his fourth heart with dummy's last trump. West still had the master trump, but that is only the third trick for the defense — one trump, one heart and one club.

Note declarer's play in the heart suit. The two finesses will hold the losers in the suit to one whenever West holds one of the two missing honors — a 3-to-1 chance — compared to the even money bet of leading a heart to the queen.

Puncture Marks Found On Kennedy

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Apparent needle marks found on the body of David Kennedy, who died of a lethal drug mixture, indicate that he "probably tried to cover his tracks" by injecting drugs into his groin area, a medical examiner says.

Kennedy, 28, died of "combined drug intoxication" after taking a tranquilizer, a powerful painkiller and cocaine, said an autopsy report released Thursday on a judge's order.

The report also said the son of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy died accidentally.

No needle or puncture wounds were found in the body's "upper extremities," the report said, but two "very small purple puncta" were found in the inguinal area, at the juncture of the leg and torso. Puncta are described in a medical dictionary as the plural of punctum, "an extremely small spot, or point ... an extremely small area, or point of projection."

"Those are apparently needle puncture wounds, and as there is no history of previous medical care, it adds some credence to the injection of drugs," said Dr. Ronald Wright, the Broward County medical examiner. "Him not being a diabetic, it rather excludes ordinary medicine."

Rivals Say Mondale Is Using Trickery

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

Walter F. Mondale is spoiling for more debates and accusing Gary Hart of being afraid to meet him one-on-one, while the Colorado senator says his Democratic rival is using "cheap political tricks" and the Rev. Jesse Jackson accuses him of campaign gimmickry.

Mondale stepped up his level of attack on the debate question Thursday, first calling on his opponents to debate him separately — one on one — and then accusing Hart of fearing such a confrontation because he has lost primaries in other states where they debated.

"I'll debate Gary Hart any time I can get my hands on him, under any circumstances," Mondale said in California.

The three contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination are already scheduled to debate June 3 in California, two days before conclusive primaries there and in New Jersey and three other states.

As the candidates debated from afar, Mondale picked up nine more delegates in Ohio and three more in Delaware with the selection of state party leaders for unpledged delegate slots.

In Idaho, where Hart won a non-binding primary Tuesday, he was repeating his victory Thursday night in the contest that counted — first round caucuses where 18 convention delegates were at stake.

With Mondale pressing the idea of another debate in New Jersey, Hart and Jackson each said they were willing to debate but ruled out Mondale's call for one-on-one sessions with him.

"All his campaign has to do is call my office" to set up a debate, Hart said.

But Hart added, "I'm not going to debate debates or get involved in that kind of juvenile political conduct."

Jackson, campaigning in New Jersey, rejected the offer for individual debates and called it a "campaign gimmick." He noted that all three candidates agreed earlier that they would hold only joint debates.

"I can only assume he has read some polls ... and wants to give the impression of being anxious to talk, which in my judgment is not the case," Jackson said of Mondale.

Hart and Jackson have both said their respective campaign schedules prevent them from accepting the original invitation from New York television station WNET, which covers most of the New Jersey audience, for a weekend debate.

Instead, the station plans to have one-hour live telephone call-in shows with each of the candidates Saturday, Sunday and Monday nights.

But Mondale has been seeking to make a New Jersey debate a major issue in the remaining days before the June 5 round of Democratic presidential primaries in California, New Jersey, New Mexico, South Dakota and West Virginia.

On the opposite coast from New Jersey, Mondale pressed the issue: "What is it about New Jersey that makes Gary Hart reluctant to be in a debate in that state?"

Then answering his own question, Mondale said: "In the debates we've had, almost all of them, the results of those debates have led to my victory. I think that's what's bothering Gary Hart."

And he seized upon a remark Hart made — "I love danger" — while on a raft trip down an Oregon river several weeks ago.

"Gary Hart said he loves danger," Mondale said. "That may be true, but he sure doesn't like face to face debates."

Hart called Mondale's attacks on him "an outrage" and made out of "blind ambition" to win the nomination.

"It's just cheap political tricks," Hart said, claiming "misrepresentations" by Mondale of his record on the environment, arms control and civil rights.

"He knows these charges aren't true," Hart said in an interview. "He knows I've got a solid environmental record. He knows I've got a very good arms control record. He's just trying to win the election."

Robert Beckel, Mondale's national campaign manager, said at a news conference in Newark, "These are the issues we're raising. That's not negative campaigning. That's what people want to hear. In fact, (Hart's) rhetoric has been a lot sharper."

The delegate changes left the nomination race like this: Mondale has 1,649.05 delegates; Hart has 977.75; and Jackson has 307.2. It takes 1,967 to claim the nomination.

The selections in Ohio and Delaware were to fill remaining unpledged slots that automatically go to state party and elected officials. In Ohio, the result is that although Hart won the primary there, he will have only 80 delegates to Mondale's 79.

Parties Unclear Over Full Effect Of FEC Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican Party officials predict a Federal Election Commission ruling will force their Democratic counterparts to count the cost of ads attacking President Reagan against party spending limits for the fall elections.

But Joseph A. Reiser Jr., a lawyer for the Democratic National Committee, said there are "some uncertainties and unclarities" in the FEC ruling that will take time to unravel.

The Republican National Committee, irked by Democratic ads accusing top Reagan officials of ethical breaches, asked the FEC last month for a ruling on whether running similar ads this summer against the Democrats would count against the party's $6.9 million spending ceiling for the fall presidential election.

The FEC, in a 4-2 ruling, said the spending ceiling would apply, even if the ads were run before the GOP formally nominates its candidate in August.

E. Mark Braden, the Republican National Committee's chief counsel, said the ruling "basically means those ads they've already run and paid for have to count against their coordinated expenditures limit."

Braden said he expected the Democrats to amend their spending reports to include the costs of the ads, which he speculated were at least $100,000. "If they don't amend the report, it would be a knowing and willful violation of criminal law," he said.

But Reiser, the DNC lawyer, said he was "neither pleased nor displeased" by the ruling, which "will take some time to study."

He noted that some of the FEC commissioners, in a lengthy discussion barely audible to the public at the meeting, had distinguished between a situation in which a candidate was assured his party's nomination and one in which the contest was still undecided.

The FEC ruling stated, "Where a candidate appears assured of a party's presidential nomination, the general election campaign, at least from the political party's perspective, may begin prior to the formal nomination."

Rep. Tony Coelho of California, chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, and Democratic National Committee Chairman Charles T. Manatt unveiled the anti-Reagan ads in March. They have already aired in some places, but they were intended primarily for state Democratic parties to use later this year at their option and expense.

Lawyers for both the DNC and Coelho's group, which raises funds and provides strategical help to Democratic candidates, had written the FEC sharply criticizing a draft of the ruling and arguing that the spending limits should not apply before a party's nominating convention.

Coelho's committee also argued it should be free to run ads depicting Reagan as the symbol of the other party.

National Debt Goes Up Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is preparing to sign legislation that would allow the government to borrow another $30 billion, which would raise the national debt to $1,520,000,000,000.

Before adjourning for a Memorial Day recess on Thursday, Congress passed the administration-requested measure which, in effect, boosts the government's authority to borrow to meet its obligations. Reagan was set to affix his signature today.

Treasury Department officials said the previous debt limit of $1.49 trillion had been reached and the increased borrowing authority was necessary to keep government checks from bouncing.

The debt limit now has more than doubled since July 31, 1978, when the borrowing ceiling was pegged at $752 billion, and more than quintupled since the middle of 1962, when the limit was $300 billion.

The government's borrowing authority in this century has ranged from a low of $7 billion, in 1919. Actual debt reached a low of $1.2 billion in 1916.

Meanwhile, the latest increase is expected to meet government borrowing demands only through June, making another hike necessary at the end of next month.

By a 211-198 vote, the House approved increasing the debt limit to $1.52 trillion.

The Senate, by voice vote, passed a slightly different version. The House approved the Senate version on a voice vote and the measure was sent to the White House.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, said Treasury Department officials estimated that before the congressional action, the government had only $9.6 billion in cash and credit authority combined — enough to cover federal obligations for just three days.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan had warned congressional leaders on Wednesday that without an increase in borrowing authority before the Memorial Day recess, $9 billion worth of Social Security checks being dropped into the mail, as well as other government checks, might bounce.

Raising the borrowing authority does not commit the government to spend more money. It simply allows the Treasury Department to borrow money to pay bills already run up by Congress and the president.

But legislators, nonetheless, use legislation raising the debt limit as an opportunity to demonstrate their fiscal responsibility.

Some will vote all year to spend money for pet projects, and then vote against a higher debt limit to pay for the mandated spending.

In the initial House vote on Thursday, 69 Republicans and 142 Democrats agreed to the administration's request for the increase while 90 Republicans and 108 Democrats voted against it.

On Tuesday, when the first attempt to pass the $30 billion extension failed by a 263-150 vote, only 46 GOP members voted yes. Some Democratic leaders had said the measure would not pass the Democrat-controlled House until Republican leaders could guarantee close to a majority of their troops would support the Republican president on the issue.

"Now that we have done the spending, we have to do the borrowing to pay for it," Rep. Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., told colleagues during brief debate before Thursday's vote.

Poland Rejects Union Demands

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's Communist authorities have rejected new demands by government-sanctioned unions for a greater voice in wage and price policy.

Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski, in a speech to union members, urged "self-sacrifice" in the face of projected 16 percent price rises this year and said even legitimate demands must be set aside, the state-run press reported.

Alfred Miodowicz, chairman of the Steelworkers Federation, responded: "The present unions will not allow themselves to be sacrificed.... We are united in this."

The official unions, which claim 4 million members, have criticized government economic policies but say they recognize the "leading role" of the Communist Party.Leaders of Solidarity, the banned independent union, have declared a boycott of the new unions, claiming they are powerless to safeguard workers' rights.

The government declared martial law and suppressed Solidarity in December 1981. It allowed new, less powerful unions to form in January 1983, and nominally lifted martial law last July.

Service Scheduled

Eldress Millie Ann Williams and the choir, ushers and congregation of Sweet Hope Free Will Baptist Church will have the service at Sweet Hope Free Will Baptist Church at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

Youth Day Set

St. Matthew Free Will Baptist Church will have a youth day service Sunday at 11 a.m. with Elder David Daniels, the No. 2 choir and the junior ushers. Eldress Marie Grimes will preach at 7:30 p.m., with music provided by The Last Generation.

A covered dish supper will be served.

Zion Hill Services

Quarterly meeting services will begin at 7:30 p.m. today at Zion Hill Free Will Baptist Church with Live Oak Church in charge.

Saturday at 7:30 p.m. Holy Communion will be held with Eldress Mary Phillips and Cherry Lane young adult choir in charge. Worship services will be held at 11 a.m. Sunday with the Rev. Blake Phillips and Zion Hill choir and ushers in charge. At 2:30 p.m. Sunday the Rev. C.R. Parker and St. James Church of Farmville will be the guests.

Hard Hats Bid Bye To Furnance

DUQUESNE, Pa. (AP) — Wearing black arm bands, humming "Taps" and fighting back tears, grizzled steelworkers toiled their final shift at Dorothy Six, an award-winning blast furnace whose fires fell victim to the industry's hard times.

"I saw Dorothy being built when I was a kid. She was special to us. She was our bread and butter. It's something you hate to see die. She was part of the family," said Joe Procacina, 43, a steelworker for 17 years.

"There were a lot of guys with tears in their eyes. It's a dead, empty feeling. It's sad. The place is like a graveyard," said Procacina, a maintenance man with a wife and three children but no job.

U.S. Steel Corp., which lost $1.2 billion last year, shut down Dorothy Six on Thursday as part of a nationwide retrenchment announced Dec. 27. The closing and other cutbacks mean the loss of 1,150 jobs at the Duquense Works in the ailing Monongahela River Valley east of Pittsburgh.

Until today, Dorothy Six was the biggest and most productive furnace in the valley, boasting a 29-foot hearth. For 21 years, its caldron brewed ore, coke and limestone to cook liquid iron processed into mighty steel.

Just last year, the furnace won a U.S. Steel "Ironmaster Award" by beating pre-set production goals. Workers were rewarded with jackets, patches, citations — after receiving their pink slips.

"This arm band symbolizes the death of a blast furnace, the death of the plant, the death of my job. It's a shame," said Bob Macey, 35. On his final shift, the 16-year veteran played "Taps" over the plant's public address system as his colleagues hummed along.

"My great-grandfather, my grandfather and my father worked in there. That's four generations. It's like losing everything, like losing your family tree," said Macey, the contents of his work locker packed into two paper bags he carried home to McKeesport. "I cried a little bit. I didn't think I would. It's just a hunk of steel."

The furnace got its name from Dorothy Worthington, the wife of a former U.S. Steel chairman. In earlier and less enlightened times, steelworkers gave female names to blast furnaces because they were thought to be unpredictable and temperamental.

Up to the end, Dorothy remained a sentimental benefactress to maintenance man Paul Budai, whose wife gave birth to a son the day the furnace went cold.

"If it was a girl, we were going to name it Dorothy after the furnace," said Budai, who invested 17 of his 35 years in the mill. "It's going to be rough. This is the first time in my life I've ever been laid off."

After being flushed of a final load of iron and slag, Dorothy was filled with gravel to keep a brick lining from falling out. The furnace's unneeded tenders then quietly cleaned out their lockers.

Muscled men filed past the time clock for the last time and shook hands with cohorts they may never see again. Many planned to attend a wake today at a local bar, where a cake shaped like a blast furnace will feature this epitaph in icing: "Goodbye Dorothy, We'll Miss You."

Duquesne will still employ 800 workers at a bar mill and at smaller electrical furnaces processing steel made at another U.S. Steel plant across the river. At its World War II production peak, the mill had 32 open hearths and employed 9,000 workers.

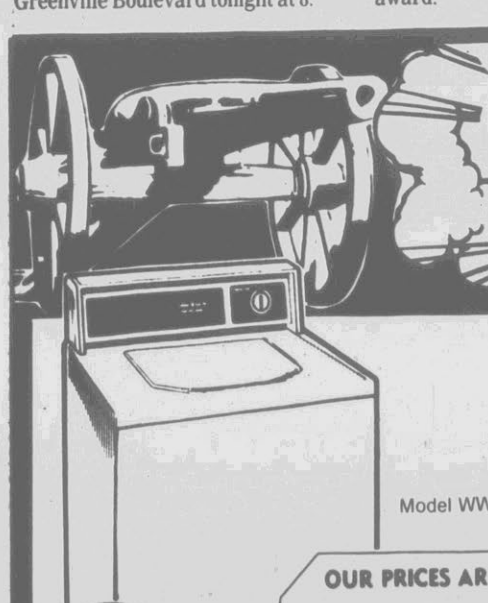

EPA Says Benzene Controls Needed

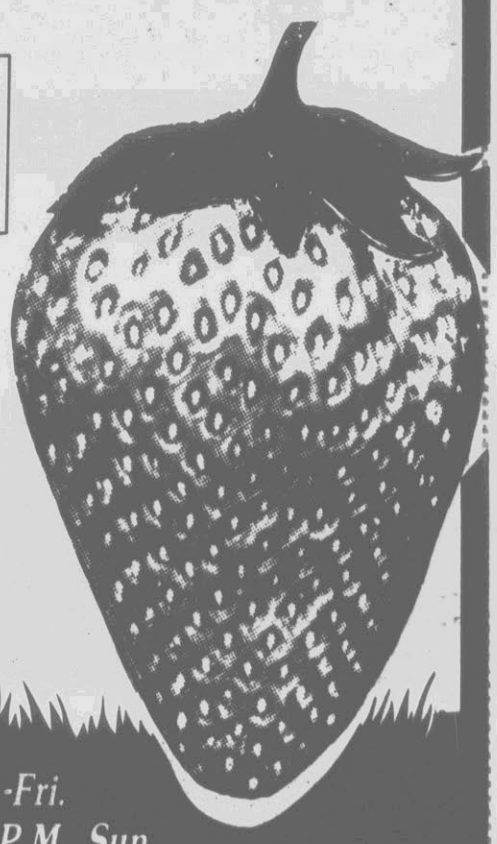

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency, using a complicated analysis, has decided that new controls on benzene are worth the expense for two industrial sources of the leukemia-causing chemical but not for three other sources.

The EPA based its decision on the first major application of the mathematics of risk analysis, outlined in preliminary form last December and made final Thursday. Environmenalists oppose the analysis, saying it fails to protect the public as required by Congress.

"There are issues of principle about cost-benefit analysis and risk assessment that come up here. We cannot let this go by," said David Doniger, an attorney for the Natural Resources Defense Council who said he would probably sue over Thursday's decisions.

Presbyterians Now Fusing Structure And Leadership

By GEORGE CORNELL
Associated Press Writer

United in law and commitment but still fractured in operations, the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) is moving to get its working parts together, and its leadership.

A special drama was shaping up over choosing the denomination's top administrative authority, now shared by two men, but to be combined in one person, possibly a woman.

Decisions on that and other consolidation processes are due May 29-June 6 in Phoenix, Ariz., at the church's governing assembly, the first since Southern and Northern branches were legislatively reunited a year ago.

Since then, the 3.2-million-member denomination has been running partly with a double set of departments, although under guidance of a single council for interim policy-making.

"We are at a moment of malleability," says the current assembly moderator, the Rev. J. Randolph Taylor of Charlotte, N.C., adding that church institutions rarely have such opportunities for thorough-going reform.

While some of the dual arrangements are to continue until completion of a new mission design a year hence, various meshing steps are to be determined at the assembly, including election of the main, long-term executive.

For the last year, that position, called stated clerk, has been jointly shared by the Rev. James Andrews of Atlanta, who held the job in the former Presbyterian Church U.S. (southern), and William P. Thompson of New York, who held it in the former United Presbyterian Church.

Andrews is bowing out of the race, but Thompson, a one-time Wichita, Kan., lawyer who had been chief executive of the former mostly northern denomination for a decade, has expressed willingness to take the post in the nationally reunited church.

So has the Rev. Flynn V. Long Jr. of Atlanta, the associate stated clerk in the former southern branch. Both are expected to be nominated from the floor, pitting an ex-southern executive against the ex-northern executive for the new church's top, long-term administrative post.

Stock And Market Reports

By The Associated Press

BROILERS: The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 55 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2½ to 3 pound birds. Seventy-four percent of the loads offered have been confirmed with a preliminary weighted average of 55.30 cents f.o.b. dock or equivalent. The market is fully steady and the live supply is moderate for a moderate to mostly good demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Friday was 1,995,000, compared to 1,973,000 last Friday.

HENS: Market steady. Supply moderate. Demand very light. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday slaughter was 16 cents.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn slightly lower at 3.96-4.08 in East and 4.00-4.10 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans slightly lower at 8.82-9.00 in the east and mostly 8.83-8.90 in the Piedmont; new crop corn 2.97-3.34; soybeans 7.04-7.29, wheat 3.49-3.65.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, bidding to halt its recent slide.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 49.73 points in the last six sessions, recovered 1.99 to 1,105.42 in the first half hour today.

But losers outnumbered gain- ers by almost 2 to 1 in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said some traders evidently viewed 1,100 in the Dow Jones industrial average as a "support level" from which the market might launch at least a short-term rally.

A White House spokesman said today that the Treasury had informed President Reagan that rumors of trouble at New York's Manufacturers Hanover Trust and some other banks were unfounded.

In any case, analysts said they believed the chances of any forceful rebound in the market were small today with some market participants getting an early start on the long Memorial Day weekend.

Among today's early volume leaders, International Business Machines rose ¼ to 107; Eastman Kodak gained ⅛ to 64; American Telephone was unchanged at 15½, and Exxon lost ⅛ to 39⅞.

On Thursday, the Dow Jones industrials fell 10.37 points to 1,103.43, its lowest close since Feb. 23, 1983.

With more than 1,300 stocks falling in price, declines outpaced advances by better than 4-1 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume rose to 99.04 million shares from 82.69 million Wednesday.

The NYSE's composite index fell 1.14 to 86.95. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 3.53 at 197.96.

Program Guest

Dr. Wayne Edwards of East Carolina University, an Olympic official for team handball, will be the guest on "ECU Concepts" Sunday at 8 a.m. on WOOW Radio.

Edwards, director of intramural-recreational services at ECU and recently named to the administrative staff of the Olympic games, will discuss team handball in the Olympics as well as the program at ECU. Last year there were 55 intramural teams playing the sport at ECU.

"ECU Concepts" is produced by the university. The 15-minute program is hosted by James Rees of the department of drama and speech.

Jury Rejects Cartoon Defense

NEW YORK (AP) — A teen-ager faces up to a year in prison after a jury convicted him of reckless driving despite his lawyer's novel use of a computer-produced "cartoon" that tried to show the youth's fatal accident was caused by a missing manhole cover.

Michael McHugh, 18, had been charged with four counts of vehicular homicide, a more serious offense, in his March 1983 collision with a stone wall which killed four passengers. McHugh, who was convicted Thursday, will be sentenced in June.

The 6½-minute cartoon, among the first computer graphics ever accepted as trial evidence, assumed that McHugh's car was traveling at 45 mph, while authorities maintained the true speed was 80 mph.

Toddlers Pose New Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — After years of declining enrollments the nation's elementary schools are facing a rising tide of students, a new government study reveals.

The number of Americans under age 5 climbed to 17.8 million as of last July, up from 16.3 million in 1980 and the most in that age bracket in 15 years, the Census Bureau reported in a study released Thursday.

This sharp growth reverses a long-term trend of declining births as members of the huge post-war Baby Boom generation have families of their own, reported Louisa Miller, author of the report.

"This is the largest population under 5 since the 17.9 million recorded in 1968," Ms. Miller wrote.

The increase is almost entirely due to the rise in the number of women in their prime childbearing years, Ms. Miller pointed out, as the total fertility rate has changed very little since 1975.

Because the baby boom generation is so large it can produce an increase in births without increasing the rate per 1,000 women. The rate has remained at about 70 births per 1,000 women between 18 and 44 years old.

Many population experts refer to the current increase in births as an echo of the baby boom. Lower birth totals in the past few years have resulted from the smaller number of potential parents born during the Depression and World War II.

In the near future, Ms. Miller said, the 5-to-13 age group, which has been declining in recent years, will stabilize and then begin to grow as those under 5 today enter school.

The 5-to-13 group dropped 3.3 percent between 1980 and 1983, falling from 31.1 million to 30.1 million, she said.

A 10 percent decline was reported in the 14-to-17 age population with the advancement of the last of the baby boom generation into adulthood. This age group dropped from 16.2 million to 14.6 million in the same period.

The maturing of Americans born from 1946 through the early 1960s has also begun to affect the ranks of young adults. There was a small decline in the number of persons aged 18 to 24 between 1980 and 1983. The group fell from 30.3 million to 30.1 million.

This "signals a major departure from the enormous growth in the 18-to-24 age group experienced in the 1960s and 1970s," Ms. Miller wrote, and "the decline will become more significant in the years to come ..."

The population aged 25 to 34 grew significantly during the 1980-83, she said, from 37.3 million to 40.3 million. Those aged 35 to 44 increased from 25.7 million to 29.5 million.

In contrast, the number of Americans aged 45 to 54 dropped slightly, from 22.8 million to 22.3 million, reflecting the small number of births during the Great Depression of the 1930s.

The number aged 55 to 64 grew from 21.7 million to 22.2 million. Ms. Miller said this group will stabilize and then decline in coming years as Depression-era children grow older.

The Census Bureau said the number of elderly Americans continues to increase, with those aged 65 to 74 rising from 15.5 million to 16.3 million. The population aged 75 to 84 increased from 7.7 million to 8.5 million, and those over 85 rose from 2.2 million to 2.5 million.

Reconsider

PARIS (AP) — Thirty-three of UNESCO's member nations have called on the United States to reconsider its decision to quit the U.N. organization and have formed a committee to improve operations.

The executive board, by a 33-6 vote, approved a resolution asking the United States to reconsider "as soon as possible" its decision to withdraw from the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization by the end of 1984.

Pope Says Films More Offensive

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II says young moviegoers are being exposed to an increasing amount of pornography and other offensive material.

"Young people and even children are being subjected to the offensive conniving of models of life and behavior which are the polar opposites of the Christian concept of life," the pope told a Catholic motion picture group Thursday.

"The phenomenon of increasing pornography cannot but worry every human being who has in his heart the safeguarding of the dignity of the person and the moral formation of the young generations," he said.

The pontiff spoke to representatives of the Catholic Association of Movie Operators, the group responsible for showing films under the supervision of Italy's Catholic parishes.

ECU Rallies, Tops South Alabama

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — QUESTION: When is a base running "error" not a mistake?

ANSWER: When it gave the Pirates of East Carolina University a 5-4 win over top-seeded University of South Alabama in the opening game of the NCAA South Regional Baseball Tournament Thursday at Seminole Stadium on the campus of Florida State University.

Greg Hardison rounded third base and scored the winning run on Winfred Johnson's fourth hit of the game despite ECU Coach Gary Overton's attempt to get Hardison to stop at third.

"Winfred told me going into the dugout (in the top of the ninth) that if I got on base, he'd get me in," Hardison said. "I saw Coach 'O' all the way, but there was no way I was going to stop," he added with a sly grin. "I don't know if I could have stopped."

"When we get back to Greenville, I'm gonna kill him," Overton quipped. "For right now, I'll take it."

Pirate head coach Hal Baird was, naturally, pleased with the result.

"I wanted him to go all the way," Baird said, then joked, "Then if he was out at home, I could yell at Gary."

Johnson's 4-5 performance at the plate included a pair of ECU records — career home runs and single season total RBI — and insured the Pirates of playing Friday at 4 p.m. against Florida State. Johnson also tied Butch Davis for the ECU season total base mark with 105.

Johnson topped the season RBI mark of 39 set by Sonny Wooten in 1977, finishing the day with 41. His 27th homer of the year passed the record held by Davis, but Johnson's mark is in just two seasons compared to a four-year career.

"After yesterday and the first days we were down here, nobody really knew who we were," Johnson said. "We felt like we deserved to be here. In the last few games, I hadn't really been swinging at strikes. I was swinging the bat much better today."

Bob Davidson relieved Robbie McClanahan, who faced one batter in the eighth after starter Jim Peterson was lifted with no outs. McClanahan struck out the only batter he faced for the only ECU strikeout, but the Pirates gave up just one base on balls.

One of the keys to the victory was keeping Jaguar leadoff hitter Lance Johnson off the bases. Johnson batted .348 and drew 50 walks during the season, but he sparks South Alabama with 81 stolen bases out of 94 attempts. The Jaguars stole 236 bases in 306 tries in 1984 but managed just three steals against ECU.

Pete Coachman led South Alabama with three hits, one run and a pair of stolen bases. Coachman stole 52 out 65 attempts during the year with a team-leading .426 batting average.

"Sure it hurt us that Lance didn't get on base," Coachman said. "Usually, he gets on base, steals second and I bring him around to score; that's automatic most of the time.

"It's going to be tough to come back, but we've been there before."

But Johnson lined a solo homer over the same spot in the top of the fourth to trim the margin to 2-1.

The Jaguars spread the lead to two again in the fifth, as Darius Hammac singled, moved to second on a sacrifice by Robert Franklin and scored on a two-out single by Coachman.

Johnson singled with one out in the sixth, went to second when Mike Williams reached first on an error and crossed the plate on a two-out single by Mike Sullivan.

The Pirates took the lead with a pair of runs in the seventh — including a run the Jaguars "threw away." Hardison doubled with one out, and scored on a single by Todd Evans. Johnson's third hit moved Evans to third and USA reliever Warren Hughes caught Johnson off first. But Hughes hesitated before throwing, and his toss sailed up the line in foul territory, allowing Evans to score for a 4-3 ECU edge.

Coachman opened the bottom of the eighth with a single, moved to second on a passed ball, then scored on a single by Vince Pierce to knot the score at 4-4.

But in the ninth, Hardison reached first on an error and took second on a sacrifice by David Wells. First year South Alabama coach Steve Kittrell decided to intentionally walk Evans to set up a double play with Johnson at the plate. Johnson's game winning rbi set the first time a Baird-coached ECU team has won its regional opener.

"We didn't execute that every well," Kittrell said. "But that's just one of those things in baseball."

• • •

The second game of the tourney was delayed almost three hours by a late afternoon rain, but Miami rallied in the bottom of the ninth to take a 6-5 victory over the Florida Gators.

Pinchhitter Calvin James singled up the middle with one out in the ninth and Julio Solis followed with a single to the same spot. A base on balls by Tom Sacco loaded the bases and Doug Shields ripped a shot off the shortstop to drive in the winning run.

Florida State bowed to Stetson, 10-7, in the nightcap to set up East Carolina's game at 4 p.m. this afternoon. South Alabama and Florida play at 12 in the losers' bracket, and Miami plays Stetson at 8 p.m.

Godley's Pitching, Sacrifice Provide Jaguars With 1-0 Win

KINSTON — Farmville Central's Billy Godley dazzled North Lenoir with a four-hit shutout and the Jaguars advanced into the third round of the State 3-A baseball playoffs last night with a 1-0 victory.

Godley, who went the distance for Farmville Central, struck out five and walked just one along the way. He also added a double and drove in the lone run of the game.

That came in the first inning as the Jaguars took a 1-0 lead that was to stand the rest of the way. Nat Norris led off, reaching on a base hit. Randy Daniels followed with a double, moving Norris to third. Godley then hit a sacrifice fly to center, scoring Norris.

There was no more scoring.

Farmville Central played a man in scoring position several other times, but failed to collect the necessary hits to get them in. North Lenoir got a man to third — technically — but he got no further. That came in the first when a baserunner stole both second and third, but was tagged out at the latter base after oversliding the bag. They also got one other runner to second, but failed to collect again.

"I'm really proud of the boys," Coach Bill Davis said. "They've really done well to come this far. Billy Godley did a tremendous job on pitching, mixing his pitches real well. And our defense did a great job too. Our defense is going to have to carry us if we expect to keep playing."

The next game for the Jaguars will come next week. Farmville will play the winner of tonight's Roanoke Rapids-Northwest Halifax game. The Jaguars will be the host team for the game, but it is likely to be played away from Farmville since the Jags have no lights on their field and a night game is preferred from a financial standpoint.

Daniels led the Farmville hitting in the game with three hits, while Hugh Moore had two. No one had more than one for North Lenoir.

Penn State, ECU To Play

East Carolina University, in another step to upgrade its football program, has signed a two-year agreement with Penn State, Director of Athletics Dr. Ken Karr announced Friday.

The Pirates and the Nittany Lions will meet Sept. 21, 1985 and Sept. 27, 1986, with both games being played in Penn State's Beaver Stadium.

"We are very excited about being able to add another of the country's major independents," Karr said. "We want to let the world know we want to schedule the major independents of the northeast.

"This is another step in trying to schedule the best teams in college football," Karr said.

East Carolina replaces Minnesota on Penn State's 1985 and 1986 schedules after the Gophers and Nittany Lions could not reach a financial agreement.

The addition of Penn State gives the Pirates a 1985 schedule that include3 defending national champion Miami, Auburn, LSU, South Carolina and North Carolina State along with Penn State.

The announcement of the Penn State agreement is ECU's third major schedule addition this month. Earlier in May, East Carolina added Auburn (two years) and LSU (one year).

The Pirates' 1984 schedule includes games with Florida State, Pittsburgh, South Carolina, Tulsa and North Carolina State.

Gant, Others Ask For Changes

HARRISBURG (AP) — Harry Gant, Benny Parsons and Darrell Waltrip won three of the top four positions for Sunday's $539,427 World 600 NASCAR Grand National race at Charlotte Motor Speedway, but they all say qualifying should be changed.

Gant, who propelled his Chevrolet an average of 162.496 mph over four laps on the 1.5-mile tri-oval Thursday to claim the $36,000 pole award, said qualifying would be fairer if it were based on only two laps and didn't take as long.

"We got to get so everybody runs at one time," he said, noting that those who ran in the afternoon heat were at a disadvantage.

Parson, who finished in the second position Chevrolet with a four-lap average of 162.245 mph, agreed that there should be changes in qualifying.

"I thought the luck of the draw kept us from winning the pole last fall (in the Miller 500) and it could have hurt us this time around, too," he said. "Something really needs to be done about qualifying."

Parsons had qualified second in the Miller race too, just missing the $34,000 pole award in that Charlotte Motor Speedway event. He suggested that drivers "qualify for qualifying," so that the fastest cars could pick their times to qualify.

Jody Ridley's Chevrolet was third at 161.918 mph, followed by Waltrip's Chevrolet at 161.912 mph.

"Four laps don't prove that much more than two — except for who can hold his breath the best," Waltrip said.

Speedway president and general manager H.A. "Humpy Wheeler was emphatic in his disagreement.

"Four laps is much more of a test of drivers and mechanics," Wheeler said. "Anyone can hold his breath for two laps."

In fact, Wheeler said, he would prefer to see qualifying run for six laps or 10 miles. "That would be a real test," he said. "There's too many tricky things you can do in two laps."

Wheeler downplayed the argument that drivers making qualifying runs in the cool morning hours would have an advantage over others running later "it all evens out in the long run."

"The cars are much closer in this race than in any race in the history of NASCAR since 1949," he said. "I don't think being in the first two rows make a damn bit of difference."

The 52 original entrants had drawn numbers to determine their order in time trials for the first 15 of 40 positions in Sunday's race. Only 15 were able to run Wednesday before a rainstorm.

Gant was the eighth driver to run time trials Thursday, and the 25 drivers running after him couldn't better his time.

The 44-year-old racer from Taylorsville said he was lucky to stay on top because the stay-dry that had been put on the track after the previous car spilled oil ruined his concentration.

But Gant, who has three Winston Cup victories and about $1.4 million in winnings in 141 races, said he's optimistic about the race.

"I think we'll do better Sunday than we did in qualifying," he said.

Rose Sports Awards Given

By WOODY PEELE

Roswell Streeter and Doris Richardson were honored as Rose High School's top athletes last night at the annual All-Sports Banquet held at the school.

Streeter, who played football, basketball and ran track for the Rampants this year, was named the winner of the Dixon Cup as the Outstanding Senior Male Athlete at the school. In addition, Streeter was also named as the Most Valuable Player in football, and the Most Outstanding Track Athlete in track.

Richardson, who played basketball and ran track, was the winner of the H.L. Hodges Trophy as the Outstanding Senior Female Athlete. She also was named as the Most Valuable Player in girls' basketball.

The other major trophy of the night went to Mack Walston, named as the winner of the Kiwanis Cup for Senior Sportsmanship. Walston was also picked as the winner of the Most Valuable Player award in basketball.

There was only one other double winner on the night as William Waugh received the Steelman Award as the Most Valuable Athlete in track, and was also named as the Outstanding Field athlete in that sport.

Awards were presented in each of the 17 varsity and three junior varsity sports with the exception of varsity baseball. The Rampants are still involved in the state playoffs, facing Garner tonight in the second round at Garner.

Waugh and Streeter are also still involved in the state track championships, competing today in Raleigh in the shot put and high jump, respectively.

Little League

Carroll & Assoc.....8
Moose.....7

Toure Claiborne scored on a wild pitch in the bottom of the sixth inning to give Carroll & Associates an 8-7 victory over the Moose in the Tar Heel Little League yesterday.

The Moose captured the initial lead in the first inning with a run and added two more in the third on a homer by Chris Christopher. Carroll & Associates got their first run in the third, but the Moose matched that in the fourth for a 4-1 lead.

But Carroll & Associates rallied in the bottom of the fourth, scoring six times for a 7-4 lead. Joel Daughtry hit a three-run homer to highlight the frame.

The Moose came back with three in the top of the sixth for a 7-7 tie, but C&A pushed over the winning run in the bottom of the box.

Claiborne reached on a single with one away and Chris Holland walked. Both moved up on a wild pitch and another allowed Claiborne to score the game-winning run.

Daughtry had three hits and Travis Williams and Claiborne each had two for C&A. The Moose were led by Christopher with four hits.

Optimists.....6
Lions.....2

The Optimists pushed over three in the third inning and went on record a 6-2 win over the Lions in the North State Little League yesterday.

The Optimists took the lead with a run in the first, but put the game out of reach with the third inning outburst.

Steve Nobles singled in the third with one away and Heath Clark followed with a hit. Terrance Smith followed with another base hit — a double, driving in Neobles. Rod Whitley reached on an error, bringing in Clark, and when Whitley was thrown out trying to steal, Smith scored for a 4-0 lead.

The Optimists scored two more in the sixth while both of the Lion runs crossed in the fifth.

Nobles and Clark each had two hits to lead the Optimsts while no one had more than one hit for the Lions.

Senior Babe Ruth

Wint. Machine.....4
Ayden-Grifton.....1

LITTLEFIELD — Winterville Machine Works gained a 4-1 Senior Babe Ruth League victory over Ayden-Grifton last night.

Mike Elks tossed a three-hitter at Ayden-Grifton, allowing only one walk.

Junior Hubor led the Winterville hitting with three, one of them a double. Leo Venters had two hits to pace the Ayden-Grifton hitting.

Winterville is now 1-0 while Ayden-Grifton is 1-1. Winterville travels to Tarboro tonight.

S. Pitt Little League

Chicod Hornets.....11
Bethel Bombers.....2

CHICOD — The Chicod Hornets romped to an 11-2 victory over the Bethel Bombers in the Southern Pitt Little League last night.

Eric Bradley hurled the win for Chicod while Eric Swinson had two hits, one of them a home run. Daniel Beacham also had a homer for Chicod.

Bethel's hitting was led by T. Leggett, who homered.

Pitt Co. Babe Ruth

Chicod.....6
Wint. Kash & Karry.....5

HOLLYWOOD — Hosting Chicod gained a 6-5 Pitt County Babe Ruth League baseball victory over Winterville Kash & Karry last night.

Shane Adams got the victory in the game and also helped the Chicod hitting with two. Michael Mills and Benjy Beacham also added two hits. Bronswell Patrick, Todd Miller, Mark LeBlanc and Paul Hollingsworth each picked up two hits for Winterville.

Both teams are now 1-1 on the year.

Prep League

Hendrix & Dail.....8
Shop-Eze.....5

Hendrix & Dail gained an 8-5 Prep League victory over Shop-Eze Foodland last night in the Greenville Prep League.

Details of the game were not made available.

Carolina Wins, ASU Defeated

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP) — New Orleans edged Appalachian State 1-0 in the opening game of the South II NCAA Regional baseball tournament Thursday, which included eight scoreless innings before New Orleans eked out the winning run for the victory.

Pat Cummings hit the winning single in the ninth that brought Scott Raziano across home plate in the New Orleans eleventh-hour winning effort.

Top seeded North Carolina pulled ahead in the fifth to outscore Eastern Kentucky 4-2 in an afternoon contest, while host Mississippi State dropped a 4-1 game to South Carolina in the nightcap of the double elimination tournament.

Eastern Kentucky plays Appalachian State at noon today, Mississippi State meets New Orleans at 4 p.m. and South Carolina meets North Carolina at 8 p.m.

Raziano opened the ninth inning with a walk and advanced to second when Mark Higgins also walked. Raziano moved to third on a wild pitch by Mountaineer relief pitcher Kevin Simmons, then scored on the hit by Cummings.

New Orleans managed to escape in the 7th inning when Appalachian State loaded the bases with no outs but failed to score.

Wally Whitehurst went the distance for the Privateers, improving his record to 14-3 while recording seven strikouts and no walks. Pete Hardee, now 12-1, was pulled after he walked Higgins in the ninth. He had nine strikeouts and five walks.

New Orleans Coach Ron Maestri praised his team's defensive effort and said the players were aware of Hardee's abilities going into the game.

"We turned the double plays today when we had to," Maestri said. "We have improved on defense at the end of the season."

The New Orleans Coach also praised his winning pitcher, saying Whitehurst "showed what he is capable of doing, what he has done all season."

Coach Jim Morris of Appalachian State said his team had played a good game and it was "a shame somebody had to lose a game like this. It was a great game. It had good defense and good pitching."

He said the Mountaineers were unable to generate an offense and "our bunting game killed us."

North Carolina, down 2-1 in the fifth, came up with two runs without the benefit of a hit, to beat Eastern Kentucky 4-2.

Eastern Kentucky's Brad Evans, 9-3, took the loss, while North Carolina's Roger Williams, 10-2, was the winning pitcher. Williams, a Greenville native, stared for Rose High School in his prep days.

Williams was followed by two relief pitchers, Bob Mulligan , who got his fifth save of the season, and Tim Kirk, who only pitched to one batter after relieving Williams.

Eastern Kentucky took the lead in the top of the first inning, on a two-run homer by Clay Elswick, which marked Elswick's 16th homer of the year.

North Carolina came back in the bottom of the second to cut the lead to 2-1. After one out, Devy Bell singled, then Scott Johnson was hit by a pitch. After two outs, Paul Will singled in a run for the 2-1 deficit.

Eastern Kentucky Coach Jim Ward said his team was "surprised that North Carolina scored the way they did, because going into the game, we were going to make them earn everything. The two walks and the misplayed fly ball in the fifth inning allowed them to take the lead (3-2)."

But he bemoaned helping North Carolina win.

"When we allowed them to go ahead, it changed the complexion of the game. They started bunting and stealing bases successfully, and we made a few mental mistakes after that, that allowed them to take charge."

North Carolina coach Mike Roberts said he thought his team played "a typical opening aame," based on good pitching.

"It seems that pit hers have an advantage in an opening game, more than hitters. Maybe it is because they are uptight."

Roberts said "Eastern Kentucky's pitcher did a good job keeping us off stride and I think we were really fortunate to win."

North Carolina improves to 44-11, while Eastern Kentucky falls to 29-18.

Observers Say Crops Look Good

RALEIGH (AP) — The dry spell of the past two weeks has thrown a scare into some North Carolina farmers, but some agriculture officials say it is too early to be worried about drought.

"Last year, if you remember, it did about the same thing," said Chris Ingram, associate agriculture extension agent in Guilford County. "It rained in the spring and when it quit, it quit. That's what people had been kind of afraid of."

But James L. Olsen, director of the N.C. Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, said it isn't time to worry yet.

"If we have normal conditions, we'll have a good crop.... I've never seen the small grains (oats, wheat, barley, rye) look in better than they do now," Olsen said. "There's no reason to believe we're going to have that same type of situation" as last year.

Curtis Tarleton, director of the division of marketing for the N.C. Department of Agriculture, said in the past few days he had heard fears that the summer drought was getting an early start.

"Everything in the ground in the way of seeds could use a good rain," Tarleton said. "The need is statewide."

"We need some rain," said Rockingham County agriculture extention chairman Frank Green. "But it doesn't need to stay wet too long."

Marines Say Thanks To Ohio School Students

By JOHN NOLAN
Associated Press Writer

SARDINIA, Ohio (AP) — Five U.S. servicemen whose spirits were lifted while in Beirut, Lebanon, by Christmas cards from an Ohio third-grade class made a long trip by truck to visit the students at their school.

The students cheered and saluted as the four Marines and one Navy corpsman, weary from an overnight drive from Camp Lejeune, N.C., arrived Thursday at Sardinia Elementary School.

The 18 third-graders, accompanied by teacher Sondra Stratton, lined up next to a small tree adorned with yellow ribbons on the school's front lawn.

Miss Stratton, who helped arrange the soldiers' visit and is boarding them at her home for their weekend visit, beamed as her students gave a Marine cheer: "One, two, three. Woof, yes sir!"

The servicemen planned a weekend of activities with the students, including a visit this morning to the Cincinnati Zoo. They also scheduled a reception for the servicemen, the youngsters and their parents Friday night at the school in this rural, southwest Ohio town.

The visitors were Navy Corpsman Ivey Deal of Atlanta; Marine Lance Cpl. Gregory Covington, of Alton, Ill.; and Marine Cpls. David Johnson of Ulster, Pa.; Rick Richter of Orlando, Fla.; and Dave Eldridge of Shelton, Conn.

Deal said the Beirut soldiers wrote back to the class after receiving the package of Christmas cards. The correspondence has continued, with the students sending little gifts and the Marines responding by mailing photographs of themselves and bumper stickers which read, "Have you hugged a Beirut vet today?"

"We went crazy, getting the packages," Deal told reporters. "All the cards were really nice. It was a bad day, and the cards got there at the right time."

The relationship between the servicemen and the youngsters began last fall after Miss Stratton told her class why the Marines had been sent to Lebanon and Grenada. When she told them the Marines might not be home to see their families for Christmas, the young students sent Christmas cards.

Miss Stratton said that when the Marines' response letters arrived in mid-December, her class was excited and she was touched.

"They were very excited," she said. "It took me a long while to read the letters to them, several hours, because when I got them I just went down the hall and cried."

After being ordered back to Camp Lejeune from Lebanon, the servicemen coordinated with Miss Stratton to plan their Ohio visit.

"They're in a pickup truck, and several of them stayed in the back of the truck," Miss Stratton said. "They were soaking wet when they got here this morning."

She and the students began writing to President Reagan, beginning last December, to ask him to help clear the way for the Marines' visit. Miss Stratton said she finally heard from a White House aide Thursday and told him the trip already had been arranged and the Marines already had arrived.

THANKS, KIDS — U.S. Marine Lance Cpl. Gregory Covington of Alton, Ill., who is based at Camp Lejeune, N.C., gets a hug from one of the third grade students at Sardinia Elementary School in Sardinia, Ohio., Thursday. He and four other servicemen drove from North Carolina to Sardinia to thank the students for writing them last fall while they were stationed in Lebanon. (AP Laserphoto)

Panel Suggests Coastal Changes

WILMINGTON (AP) — Developers along the coast will have to pave a 20-foot wide path around certain types of multifamily buildings if the state approves recommendations from an ad hoc committee.

The proposed change in state building codes is intended to make room for fire trucks to get to all sides of the buildings, according to S.D. "Sky" Conklin, a committee member and New Hanover County inspections director.

The paved area would be required around multifamily dwellings that have wood frames or wooden interior walls and floors, Conklin said. The regulation would apply only to buildings longer than 150 feet in areas designated by the Coastal Resources Commission as ocean hazard or coastal hazard, as well as areas within the 120 mph wind zone.

Conklin expects the proposal to draw more opposition than any of the committee's other recommended changes in building codes for coastal areas because it increases the setbacks around buildings, decreasing the space that can be taken up by a building. It is a more controversial issue along the coast where many lots are as narrow as 50 feet.

The recommendation must be approved by the N.C. Building Code Council before it becomes effective. Public hearings on all the committee's recommendations will be held June 6, 7 and 8 at Carolina Beach, Morehead City and Kill Devil Hills, respectively.

The committee also recommended that the state require sprinkler systems and fire-resistant shingles on the buildings, and that codes be changed to make residential buildings better able to withstand high winds.

Hunt Aide Says Fund-Raising Crosses Country

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

A spokesman for Gov. Jim Hunt says the campaign is attempting to raise money from all sections of the country in order to stay competitive with incumbent Sen. Jesse Helms and bring his record to the people.

Hunt campaign spokesman Will Marshall was answering charges state GOP chairman Dave Flaherty lodged Thursday. Flaherty referred to a Committee to Defeat Jesse Helms which was formed in Massachusetts, and said that was further evidence that Hunt's support was coming from "the far left."

Marshall said Helms will raise $14 million or more for his campaign and "try to hide his Senate record from the people of North Carolina so we will do all we can to stay competitive in this race and make sure Senator Helms' record is brought to light."

Members of the committee for Hunt, who is challenging Helms' bid for a third term, include Gov. Mike Dukakis, Sen. Paul Tsongas and Rep. Barney Frank.

"The make-up of the committee is further evidence that Jim Hunt's support is coming from the far left of the political spectrum and he's trying to hide these people from the people of North Carolina," Flaherty said at a news conference. "I do not believe patriotic, conservative North Carolinians approve of these type of people."

Marshall refused to characterize the philosophies of the committee and described Flaherty's comments as "nasty" and "negative."

The committee was scheduled to hold a fundraiser for Hunt Thursday night. Marshall said the Hunt committee did not feel it necessary to give details of its fundraisers until Helms began giving similar details.

At another Republican news conference, GOP candidate for attorney general C. Allen Foster criticized his Democratic opponent for refusing to debate.

Foster said a debate would be a good chance for Lacy Thornburg to demonstrate his skills as an attorney.

"His case has been called and he isn't here to argue it," Foster said.

But Thornburg said Foster has refused three previous opportunities to debate. He called on Foster to "get with the folks and let them know where he stands."

Foster, a Greensboro attorney, said if elected he would vigorously prosecute state employees for campaigning on government time and would work to open state jobs to workers of both parties.

Charges continued to fly in the governor's race Thursday as Democrats Eddie Knox and Rufus Edmisten argued about who is responsible for shifting the campaign from issues to personal attacks.

At a Raleigh news conference, Edmisten criticized Knox for making "very violent, negative statements against me."

"I really abhor that kind of campaigning," Edmisten said. "It's time the people rose up and said we're tired of that kind of personal, violent filth being hurled at a good candidate who believes in decency and honesty."

Knox repeated his charges that Edmisten was responsible for a barrage of anonymous literature against the former Charlotte mayor in the final days before the May 8 primary. He said Edmisten has not told the truth in his campaign ads.

"He says he's fighting for you but he's not telling you that he's losing," Knox said, referring partly to utility rates that have risen despite Edmisten advertising that he's fought the rate requests.

Meanwhile, Wake District Attorney J. Randolph Riley said he would make a decision on whether to prosecute the National Rifle Association on charges of violating political campaign disclosure laws.

"It would be a manifest injustice to wait," Riley said. "I am not going to sit on it."

Riley told the North Carolina State Bar, which regulates ethical conduct of attorneys, that he had questions about the intent of a state campaign law and about a possible conflict of interest that could arise because two of his assistants were NRA members.

At issue are mailings by the NRA's Institute for Legislative Action in opposition to the gubernatorial candidacy of former Charlotte Mayor Eddie Knox, who faces Attorney General Rufus Edmisten in the runoff.

During the Democratic primary campaign, the NRA sent letters to its 58,000 members in North Carolina, saying Knox had advocated handgun control while a state senator in 1974.

DUI Package Gets Support

RALEIGH (AP) — A new study shows that more people are pleading guilty under North Carolina's Safe Roads Act, and more law enforcement officials feel they are getting support from the judicial system under the law.

The study, which was presented to the Governor's Crime Commission Thursday, also showed that the number of law enforcement officers who felt penalties were adequate had more than doubled since the new law took effect.

John Lacey, of the University of North Carolina Highway Safety Research Center said the study showed the number of arrests for drinking and driving offenses was down by 26 to 35 percent on a month-to-month basis since the law became effective. The largest decrease was for November 1983, when 6,141 arrests were made compared to 9,150 in November 1982.

The report also showed conviction rates rose from 80 percent in January-September 1983 to 94 percent for the last three months of the year.

Lacey also said that tougher sentences for drunken drivers have increased the burden on court clerks and jails.

"Pretty soon jails will be overburdened on weekends" as a result of letting offenders serve time on weekends, Lacey said.

ASCS Extends Assistance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers in 14 North Carolina counties whose fields were damaged by tornadoes in late March will receive an additional $300,000 in aid, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said Thursday.

"This additional assistance will enable farmers who suffered damage in the April tornadoes to clean their fields and return to normal operations as quickly as possible," said Helms, who is chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservtion Service provides such aid through its Emergency Conservation Program. The program shares with farmers and ranchers the cost of rehabilitating farmland damaged by natural disasters.

The counties that will receive the assistance are Bertie, Cumberland, Duplin, Gates, Green, Hertford, Lenior, Nash, Perquimins, Pitt, Robeson, Sampson, Scotland and Wayne.

On April 5, 1984 the service granted the first $300,000 to these counties to provide assistance in restoring damaged farmland. Those funds were not sufficent to fully restore damaged farms, Helms said in a news release.

Thursday's announcement means the funds will be available to continue the cleanup and recovery operations in the affected counties.

Helms said farmers needing such assistance to restore damaged farmland should contact their local ASCS office.

All Counties Approved For Aid

RALEIGH (AP) — Farmers in all 100 North Carolina counties who suffer from drought or other weather-related disasters are now eligible for emergency loans through the FmHA Farm Loan Program, says Larry W. Godwin, State Director of Farmers Home Administration.

These new adjustments are the result of the recently inacted Emergency Agricultural Credit Act of 1984, which expanded application filing deadlines and made all counties contiguous to designated disaster counties eligible for the loans.

Farmers who are unable to get credit elsewhere, may apply for the reduced-interest loans to cover up to 80 percent of their losses up to $500,000. The loans carry a 5 percent interest rate for the first $100,000 and 8 percent interest for anything over $100,000.

Death Sentences

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — A military court sentenced 13 convicted leftist terrorists to death and 14 others to life in prison, the semi-official Anatolia news agency reports.

The dispatch Monday said 80 defendants received prison terms ranging from one to 26 years and 79 others were acquitted.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — THE BRIGHT, CIVIC-MINDED DENTIST MADE THE VILLAGE'S BRIDGE.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: Y equals U

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Legislators Get Budget Calling For Pay Raises

RALEIGH (AP) — State employees and public schools will receive a large slice of the money pie if a tentative $563 million budget increase is approved by the General Assembly.

Top legislative leaders in a briefing Thursday got their first look at the draft budget, which includes a 15 percent raise for teachers and educators and a 10 percent raise for other state employees. The proposed budget, to be reviewed by the Legislature's Appropriations Committee, also includes $352.3 million to be spend for public schools and higher education.

House Speaker Liston B. Ramsey, D-Madison, said in an interview that he expected most of the draft plan to be approved by lawmakers when the General Assembly convenes June 7 for its short budget session.

"Most of that stuff will be funded in my opinion," Ramsey said.

The tenative budget also includes a special $4 million "water budget" to protect the state's water supplies. That includes more than $3 million to hire 18 biologists to study ways to prevent algae growth in state waterways.

The general government budget also included $150,000 to erect a memorial to veterans of the Vietnam War on the grounds of the state Capitol. Gov. Jim Hunt said Thursday he would include the amount in his budget request toward the $300,000 cost of the momument, with the rest to be raised privately.

Hunt is not expected to recommend his budget until after the short session of the Legislature convenes.

The draft budget reviewed Thursday was prepared by the legislative staff under the direction of legislative leaders, who've been conferring in recent weeks with the staff and administration budget officials.

Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake, chairman of the House Base Budget Appropriations Committee, said the draft reflects "the things that should be brought first to the attention of the Appropriations Committee."

He aid the draft had not been "given any priority by the leadership, but it's something to start with."

State budget leaders declined Thursday to speculate on how much money may be available for legislators to spend at the short session.

Among the items in the draft budget were:

— $279 million for public schools, including $197 million for pay raises for teachers and other public school employees.

— $150.8 million for pay raises for all state employees ot covered by the pay increase for public school employees.

— $49 million for the University of North Carolina System.

— $24.2 million for the North Carolina Department of Community Colleges.

— $22.6 million for health and welfare, including $6.6 million to provide funds in the Medicaid program to increase the state's share of spending for long-term care for nursing homes and rest homes.

Car Costs Decline

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The cost of owning and operating an American-made car in the Southeastern United States in 1984 decreased $105 from last year because of lower "fixed and variable" costs, the Carolina Motor Club says.

Auto-related costs in the southeast are also down $60 over the national average. Yearly costs, based on driving 15,000 miles per year, costs $3,390 in the southeast and $3,450 nationally, the club said.

Fixed costs are generally once-a-year costs and cover insurance, licenses, registration fees and taxes, depreciation and finance charges. Variable costs are directly linked to the number of miles driven, covering gas, oil, tires and routine maintenance.

Ownership and operating costs, according to the club, are lowest in the southeast and highest in the New England states, where they are estimated to be $150 per year more than in the southeast.

School Teacher Charged With Assault

ASHEVILLE (AP) — An elementary school teacher has been charged with assault on a student in a paddling incident and suspended without pay while school authorities conduct an investigatation.

Janet Lamb of in Fairview was arrested Tuesday on a charge of assaulting a child under 12 years of age. She is free under $300 unsecured bond as Buncombe County school authorities investigate the incident.

According to a warrant for her arrest sworn out by a parent of the 9-year-old boy involved, the child received between 18 and 24 strikes with a wooden paddle, "resulting in severe bruising" to his buttocks.

"The child came home from school complaining of pains and the parents called the principal," said Bill Candler of the Buncombe County Sheriff's Department.

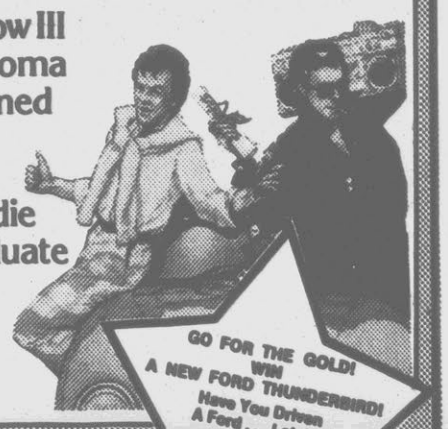

After a meeting with the superintendent, the parents took the child to Memorial Mission Hospital, where he was treated and released. The sheriff's department was notified shortly afterwards, Candler said.

The child said he was paddled because he had not finished his work, Candler said.

Stella Stevens Featured In NBC Sunday Night Film

NEW YORK (AP) — "No Man's Land," NBC's Sunday night movie about a female sheriff in the bad, old West, tries to have it both ways. It takes a feminist position, although a superficial one, by putting Stella Stevens in the role of authority, then panders by dipping her neckline lower than her badge.

In most westerns, the women are stuck on the homestead or end up in need of rescue. At least Nellie Wilder (Miss Stevens) isn't a helpless damsel in distress.

But it becomes abundantly clear that the role-reversal story is a mere gimmick. The film really is as feminist in substance as "Charlie's Angels" and as clever in its humor as Saturday morning cartoons.

Since there are so few westerns around anymore, the thought was that this film might conjure some nostalgia and light-hearted whimsy. But "No Man's Land" is not even an interesting failure.

The theme song says, "It takes a woman's touch in no man's land," and Nellie does prefer gentle persuasion over gunslinging to bring to justice the bank-robbing killer Clay Allison (Mark Alaimo). But one of her biggest concerns is that her corset is too tight.

For the filmmakers, that seems to be an important special effect because it accentuates Miss Stevens' chest for two hours. Now Miss Stevens, a Barbara Eden lookalike, certainly is in good shape, but, for most viewers, a movie needs something more.

Nellie has inherited her sheriff's badge from her late husband. She's not having any success keeping the peace, not for lack of trying, but because she's totally outmanned. Her male deputy (Frank Bonner) is a cowardly chowderhead who isn't too proud to hide behind her skirts when danger arrives.

Town leader Will Blackfield (Robert Webber) is concerned about Nellie's welfare but doesn't do anything to help her. He wants her to quit her career and marry him.

"I am sheriff," she says determinedly. You can almost hear Helen Reddy singing "I Am Woman" in the background.

Nellie had been married three times, but little is known about her past, except that one husband was a magician, one a gambler and the other sheriff. She's also very defensive about her former career, in the "legitimate theater."

"I never played a dimeshow in my life," she protests.

Each marriage produced a daughter with a distinctly different personality, but all seemed to be influenced by their daddy: one's a gambler (Terri Garber), one's a magician (Donna Dixon) and one's a tomboy (Melissa Michaelsen). They make up Nellie's only posse in chasing down the desperado.

The pursuit of Allison is the main action line, punctuated by a lot of off-target gunplay. It's all cap-gun violence: many rounds are spent, but only one bad hombre gets grazed.

There's also a laughable plot twist that has John Rhys-Davies playing footsie with the outlaw in order to raise money to build a submarine in support of Irish revolutionaries in Britain.

The best characterization is longtime character actor John Quade as a menacing, big-as-a-barn bartender who won't serve women. In the movie's one funny scene, he tries to scramble over the bar the way a cowboy would throw himself on a horse.

El Salvador Reassigns Pair Linked To Deaths

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Two top rightist military commanders are being assigned to duties abroad, in an apparent gesture of conciliation toward President-elect Jose Napoleon Duarte.

Both officers have been linked in published reports to El Salvador's rightist death-squads, which human rights groups blame for most of the 43,000 civilian deaths since the civil war began in 1979.

The two have denied the accusations.

A military communique Thursday said Col. Nicolas Carranza, director of the Treasury Police, will be defense attache in West Germany and Col. Mario Denis Moran is going to the U.S. Defense College in Washington.

The Treasury Police is the security agency most often accused by watchdog groups of human rights violations.

Carranza and Moran, an army commander in La Paz province, are members of a group of rightist officers that, military sources say, the new administration wants to remove from active service.

One source, who spoke on condition he not be named, said the changes, "more than anything, came because of pressure from the United States." He said Defense Minister Carlos Eugenio Vides Casanova also ordered the changes as a conciliatory move toward Duarte.

Moran's military jurisdiction included Zacatecoluca, a town southeast of the capital, where five former national guardsmen were convicted Thursday of murdering four American churchwomen Dec. 2, 1980.

The U.S. Embassy in a statement said "the successful prosecution of these murderers shows that the Salvadoran criminal justice system can be made to work."

A jury of five ended the 20-hour trial at dawn, convicting the defendants of aggravated homicide, aggravated destruction of property and theft. The homicide charge carries a maximum sentence of 30 years in prison.

Judge Bernardo Rauda Murcia has 15 days to pass sentence. The sentence can be appealed, but not the verdict. The death penalty was abolished last year.

In Washington, an independent report released Thursday said Salvadoran national guard commanders tried to conceal the involvement of guard personnel in the churchwomen's murders.

The report said the coverup unraveled five months after the murders when U.S. Embassy officials in San Salvador identified the killers through their own investigation.

The report, prepared by retired U.S. District Judge Harold Tyler, was completed in December and released after Thursday's verdict.

It said circumstances of the crime indicate the five guardsmen acted alone but said it was "quite possible" that Vides Casanova, then head of the national guard, "was aware of, and for a time, acquiesced in the cover-up."

Maryknoll nuns Ita Ford, 40, and Maura Clarke, 49, both of New York, and Ursuline sister Dorothy Kazel, 41, and layworker Jean Donovan, 27, both of Cleveland, were found shot to death and buried in a shallow grave Dec. 4, 1980.

It was the first major conviction for a human rights abuse in El Salvador. Other cases were aborted or allowed to drag, sometimes because those administering justice feared reprisal.

U.S.-trained marshals provided security at the trial and will protect the five jurors for the next two weeks.

"I just hope it's going to be the first of many, not just a showcase to get more military aid," Sister Helene O'Sullivan, director the Maryknoll Office of Social Causes, said after the verdict.

She and Michael Posner, director of the New York Lawyers Committee for International Human rights, said they will seek an investigation into the possible involvement of higher-ups.

Duarte, 58, a moderate Christian Democrat, takes office June 1 for a five-year term. He is El Salvador's first elected civilian president in 54 years.

Carranza has had differences with Duarte since Duarte headed a civilian-military junta in 1980-82 and Carranza was deputy defense minister.

Moran was linked in pre-trial testimony with the 1981 murders of American land reform advisers Michael P. Hammer, 42, of Potomac, Md., and Mark Pearlman, 36, of Seattle, and Rodolfo Viera, head of the Salvadoran land reform agency.

Moran's bodyguard and another national guardsmen who confessed to the murders testified to Moran's involvement. Moran denied this in his own testimony.

Lt. Col. Aristides Marquez, another rightist, was forced out of the country in January when his name appeared on a list of officers presumed linked to death squads which Vice President George Bush gave to interim President Alvaro Magana during a visit, sources said.

In Honduras, thousands of U.S., Salvadoran and Honduran troops continued land exercises they started Wednesday, part of a series of maneuvers in the area conducted by the United States during the past 18 months to apply pressure on leftist-led Nicaragua.

Congress Delays Action On Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Final congressional action on emergency military aid for El Salvador is being put off until next month, giving the White House time to try and overcome House rejection of aid for Nicaraguan rebels.

The Democrat-controlled House approved the administration-backed Salvadoran aid proposal by a vote of 267-154 on Thursday, but coupled it with a ban on any more spending in this fiscal year for the Nicaraguan guerrillas.

At the White House, deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said the administration wanted both the $62 million in aid for El Salvador and the $21 million approved earlier by the Republican-controlled Senate for support of the anti-Sandinista rebels in Nicaragua.

Faced with the impasse, Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., announced that the Senate would take no action until after returning June 4 from its Memorial Day recess.

Speakes said the White House would "not accept any legislation" containing a clause terminating funds for the rebels, either immediately or over a wind-down period.

While the House bill would not terminate the program, it would bar the administration from seeking funds in a later supplemental appropriation for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30.

"From the White House's standpoint, it does tie their hands at this point," said a Senate Republican source, who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

The White House is expected to spend the recess lobbying both House and Senate members in an attempt to arrive at a compromise close to the Senate figure.

It will be an uphill battle in the House, where 24 Republicans joined 217 Democrats in voting against CIA funds for the Nicaraguan rebels, known in Spanish as contras. Voting against the spending ban were 132 Republicans and 45 Democrats.

Democratic members of the House Intelligence Committee led the attack on the undercover aid program, with Chairman Edward J. Boland, D-Mass., calling upon his House colleagues to "end this senseless war."

President Reagan argues that undercover aid to the contras is needed to prevent the Nicaraguan regime from funneling Soviet and Cuban arms to Marxist revolutionaries elsewhere in Central America.

Senate Panel Cuts MX Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Armed Services Committee has approved a Pentagon spending bill which almost halves President Reagan's MX missile program but gives him the overall military spending total he sought.

The fiscal 1985 measure sent to the Senate floor Thursday would authorize the Pentagon to spend about $299 billion in the fiscal year starting Oct. 1, the fourth year of a five-year Reagan plan to "rearm America."

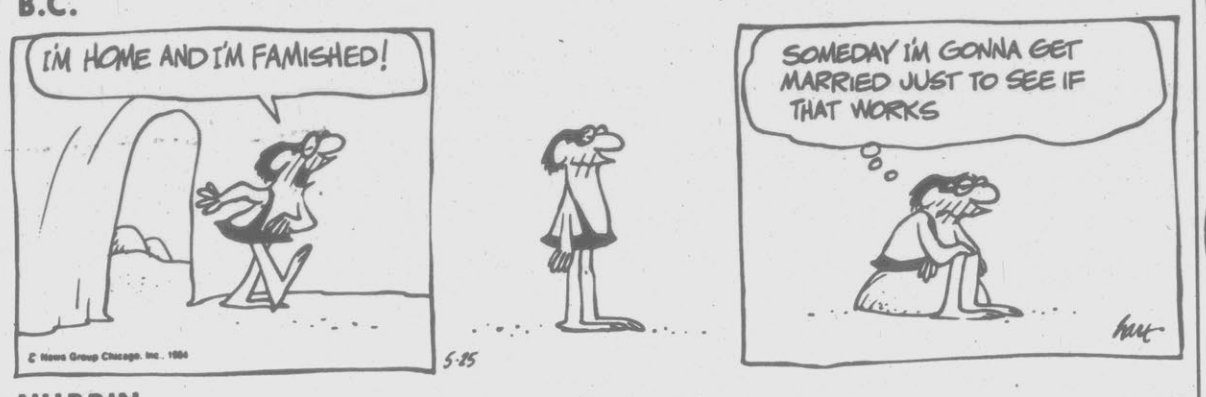

That would be an after-inflation increase of about 7.5 percent, far less than the 13.1 percent hike Reagan originally sought, but in line with the amount approved by the president during negotiations with Senate Republicans, who control that chamber but who are worried about rising federal deficits.

Meanwhile, the Democrat-controlled House continued work Thursday on its version of the bill, extending its virtual ban on U.S. combat forces in El Salvador and Nicaragua to the rest of Central America.

HONOR GUARD — A military honor guard carries the casket of an Unknown Soldier of Vietnam Thursday at Alameda Naval Air Station in California. The unknown soldier will be honored in California before being flown to Washington for burial on Memorial Day beside the other unknown soldiers at Arlington National Cemetery. (AP Laserphoto)

Viet Unknown Soldier Honored

FAIRFIELD, Calif. (AP) — After a night on public display, the flag-draped casket of an unidentified Vietnam serviceman was bound for Washington today for interment in the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

The doors of the Travis Air Force Base chapel were closed to the public at 4 a.m. today as preparations were made to send the remains to Washington aboard a C-141 transport plane.

On Thursday, about 200 dignitaries and mourners turned out to honor the unknown serviceman as the remains, guarded by a Marine, were carried in the bow of the USS Brewton to Alameda Naval Air Station.

The remains have been in U.S. custody for 10 years. During the decade, the government has tried to identify the remains, which would be one of 2,500 casualties still listed as missing in action. The Vietnam War death toll was 57,939.

In 1982, officials at an armed services identification laboratory in Hawaii announced the remains of four bodies could meet criteria for designation as an unknown soldier, said Connie Smith, chief of media relations for the 6th Army.

Since then, two bodies were identified and returned to survivors while a possibility of identification of a third surfaced, she said.

The remains of the fourth soldier, who cannot be identified, will be interred at Arlington National Cemetery in the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, which also holds the bodies of unidentified soldiers who died in World Wars I and II and in Korea, she said.

"In Vietnam, only one set of remains meets the legal criteria," Ms. Smith said, adding that the location of the soldier when he was killed is deliberately withheld "because this is to represent all those killed."

Some families of war dead, veterans, military brass and local dignitaries attended the silent pierside transfer of the casket from the vessel, which began its journey in Hawaii.

"This is quite a distinction to those who served over there. It shows the war is being recognized as one of our major conflicts," Navy journalist Bill Winter said.

China To Station Troops In Colony

PEKING (AP) — China will station troops in Hong Kong after regaining sovereignty over the British colony in 1997, the Foreign Ministry quoted top Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping as saying today.

The remarks, which contradicted a Chinese official's earlier statement that Peking would not base troops in Hong Kong, had an immediate impact in the capitalist port city. Within an hour, the Hong Kong stock market index slumped 30 points, before rising slightly.

Deng, according to an official statement issued by the Foreign Ministry, said, "After restoring the exercise of sovereignty over Hong Kong, China will dispatch its troops to be stationed there."

Radio and television stations in Hong Kong quoted Deng as saying China plans to send between 3,000 and 5,000 troops to Hong Hong after Britain's lease of most of the territory expires.

His remarks contradicted a May 21 statement by Geng Viao, vice secretary-general of the National People's Congress, that Chinese troops would not be stationed in Hong Kong. Geng, a former defense minister, said local residents would have responsibility for defense.

The Foreign Ministry version of Deng's statement did not give any figures but went further than a report earlier today by the official Xinhua news agency.

Xinhua quoted Deng as saying Peking had the right to station troops in Hong Kong after resuming ownership.

Asked about the discrepancy, Foreign Ministry spokesmen said they could not elaborate.

At the British Embassy in Peking, officials said they would have no comment until they clarified the new statements.

Deng's comment was the first time he has spelled out China's military intentions in Hong Kong after 1997.

Deng's comment was the first time he has spelled out China's military intentions in Hong Kong after 1997.

Previously, in talks with visitors and other hints, the Chinese had indicated Peking would control Hong Kong's defense and foreign affairs while granting the territory autonomy in other spheres.

The Xinhua version quoted Deng as telling political delegates from Hong Kong and Macau: "How can Hong Kong be described as Chinese territory if we don't have the right to station troops there?"

"This is a symbol of safeguarding the territory of the People's Republic of China, as well as a symbol of safeguarding our state sovereignty," Xinhua quoted Deng as saying.

Britain currently provide a 9,000-strong garrison defending Hong Kong, with the colony contributing 75 percent of the cost for the force.

In his annual report opening the current National People's Congress session on May 15, Premier Zhao Ziyang said Hong Kong's existing social and economic systems will remain unchanged for 50 years after 1997, and laws currently in force will remain basically unchanged.

The Xinhua report said Deng also spoke of ways to handle problems during the 13-year transition period before the Chinese takeover, but the agency gave no details.

Theater Director Faces Sex Charges

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The former director of a nationally acclaimed children's theater sat quietly without entering a plea through his arraignment on charges of sexually abusing three male students.

Hennepin County District Judge Charles A. Porter scheduled a probable cause hearing July 18 for John Clark Donahue, who resigned from the Children's Theater Co. & School after his arrest April 18. Donahue remained free on $150,000 bail.

Donahue's lawyer said no plea was necessary until a court finds probable cause to try him on charges of molesting three students between 1981 and 1983. Four other staff members were suspended or took leaves of absence after Donahue's arrest.

Start Your Engines

This weekend marks the 74th running of the Indianapolis 500 race. The first "500" was run on May 30, 1911. The most successful driver has been 4-time winner Anthony (A.J.) Foyt, Jr. In 1966, only 6 out of a field of 33 cars finished the race. Nearly half the field was involved in a crash during the first lap. Janet Guthrie, the first woman to drive in the Indy 500, drove in the 1978 race with a broken wrist. She finished eighth.

DO YOU KNOW — Who won last year's Indy 500?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Secretary of State is the first Cabinet post in line of succession.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you can make grandiose plans early in the day, so stick to proven methods, while later your judgment is excellent and you can do anything connected with reason.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can handle that problem with a partner best by doing nothing about it and it soon resolves itself.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Your work should go very well provided you do not let that bossy individual interfere with it. Be alert.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You find it hard to decide which pleasures to delve into during the morning, but later the right outlets present themselves.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Don't enter into any arguments between kin and an official, but show more interest in what partners are doing.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You have some good ideas for daily use, but a higher-up does not approve, so put aside for awhile. Don't neglect shopping.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You find it difficult to decide which of two money interests you want to get into early, but later you make the right decision.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A hasty associate could spoil your plans for the day, so waste little time with him or her and then carry through with your own ideas.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Confer with experts and get advice you need concerning important matters, and forget unnecessary work.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Forget that friend who wants to take you out for fun and get fine creative work done.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Some public matter should be discussed with kin before you handle it, but don't take action as yet.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Not a good day to get in touch with those at a distance, so concentrate on those who are near.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Use your judgment in monetary matters and don't seek advice from one in business as yet. Be happier in the evening.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be interested in conditions that cause tensions and arguments between others and want to get involved in them, so teach to mind own business and be safe. Give as fine an education as you can afford..

Forest Clearing May Kill 750,000 Species

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The rapid clearing of the world's tropical forests could cause the extinction of 750,000 species — about one-sixth of all the forms of plants and creatures on Earth — during the next generation, a botanist predicts.

Since many of these living things have never been cataloged or even named, said Peter H. Raven, "we're losing them without even knowing they exist."

Raven, director of the Missouri Botanical Garden in St. Louis, offered his projections Thursday at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The projections are based, in part, on a United Nations study three years ago that found that 1.1 percent of the world's tropical forests are being cleared each year.

Most of these rain forests are cut or burned to make room for farming. After a few years of agriculture, the soil is worn out, so the land is abandoned and more forest is cut. Other tropical woodlands are razed for their timber or to open land for cattle ranching.

Scientists estimate that there are 4 million to 5 million separate species of plants, animals and insects throughout the world, Raven said. About 3 million of these live in the tropical forests, where they are highly vulnerable to changes in their surroundings.

"Many tropical organisms are very narrow in their geographical ranges, highly specific in their ecological requirements, seek out unusual foods, conceal themselves in unique situations or mate only at highly specific times in particular places," he said.

More than half the tropical inhabitants live only in lowland forests, said Raven, and in most areas these forests will be substantially changed or completely gone within about the next 20 years.

Only the forests of the Congo basin and the western Brazilian Amazon are likely to escape widespread clearing over the next generation. These places are home to about half of all the tropical species.

Raven projects that about half of the remaining species that live elsewhere in the tropical forests will be wiped out forever.

"All of the species in the tropics are in danger of extinction," he said. "About a quarter are in danger of extinction in the next 20 to 30 years. That's half of those not in the Congo or Amazon forest, which are not being developed as fast.

"It's reasonable to assume that half of those not protected will become extinct," he added. "They simply can't last under those conditions."

Even though land cleared for farming grows over again after it's abandoned, Raven said, it is continually recut for firewood and probably never returns to its former depth and diversity.

He said the effects of human encroachment have been well documented in the Hawaiian Islands. When Europeans landed there two centuries ago, the islands had 43 species of land birds. Now 15 are extinct, 19 are threatened or endangered, and only nine still flourish.

Solar Satellite Checks On Flares

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The sun-watching satellite Solar Max was repaired just in time to get in on "some unprecedented activity" on the star, including one of the six largest solar flares ever recorded, a NASA scientist says.

Solar Max was launched in 1980 to coincide with the start of maximum activity on the sun, a cycle that repeats every 11 years. But it failed in orbit nine months later when fuses blew in the control system, preventing it from pointing accurately at its target.

By chance, 12 days after space shuttle astronauts retrieved Solar Max, repaired it and returned it to space in April, an unusual period of solar activity began. So engineers on the ground stopped checking out the payload to let it take a look.

"We are getting some unprecedented activity on the sun," Brian Woodgate, NASA's project scientist, said Thursday. "This is a unique occurrence that we don't expect to last."

Woodgate said some of the flare bursts observed by Solar Max since the repair job surpassed in intensity anything seen by the satellite and other space- and ground-based instruments during the last period of maximum solar activity in 1980.

An April 24 flare is the largest recorded since 1978 and "among the half-dozen largest flares ever observed," he said.

Woodgate and other space agency officials discussed the renewed satellite at a news conference at NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md. Reporters here monitored the conference.

Astronauts on the 11th shuttle mission in April grabbed the satellite with Challenger's 50-foot mechanical arm and brought it into the cargo bay, where two crew members replaced the faulty control system and an electronics box on one of the seven scientific instruments. They then returned it to space, where it has been working fine ever since.

Twelve days after it returned to service, Solar Max began observing the increased activity on the sun. Within days it detected three major solar flares erupting in the direction of Earth, prompting the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration to issue a geometric storm alert warning of possible disruptions of communications and electrical transmissions.

Solar flares are huge explosions on the surface of the sun that send electrical shock waves throughout the solar system.

Power Outage

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan and his wife, Nancy, had to walk down nine flights of darkened stairs after a power failure knocked out an elevator at the exclusive Watergate complex.

The Reagans were the guests of honor Thursday night at a dinner party given by Clare Booth Luce and were just finishing desert in her ninth floor apartment when the lights went out in part of the hotel and apartment complex.

The Reagans were escorted down the stairs by hotel employees and Secret Service carrying battery-powered lights.
