Democrats To Choose Governor Nominee

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The climax to an escalating war of words comes Tuesday when North Carolina Democrats choose whether Rufus Edmisten or Eddie Knox will be the party's nominee for governor to face Republican Jim Martin this fall.

Democrats also go to the polls in Tuesday's runoff to pick a nominee for labor commissioner while 9th Congressional District voters select a nominee for Congress to face Republican Alex McMillan in the fall.

Republicans will choose their nominee for lieutenant governor and nominees for 14 state House and Senate races will be decided Tuesday.

In the May 8 statewide primary, voters narrowed the Democratic gubernatorial field from 10 candidates to two — Attorney General Edmisten and former Charlotte Mayor Knox.

Debate shifted from topics such as the future of education to charges of political obligations and personal problems. A lengthy series of forums before the primary was trimmed to television ads, heated news conferences and one debate on public television Friday.

Edmisten is a 10-year incumbent and former legal adviser to retired Sen. Sam Ervin's Watergate Committee. He is concentrating much of his effort on getting out the vote.

Knox is a former Charlotte mayor, a two-term state senator and former head of the Advisory Budget Commission, which writes the state budget. He is spending much of his time wooing support from blacks and women, two groups he said will greatly influence the election.

Edmisten received almost 31 percent of the vote in the May 8 primary and won the endorsement of losing candidates who polled a collective 24 percent — former Commerce Secretary D.M. "Lauch" Faircloth and Insurance Commissioner John Ingram.

Knox won 26 percent of the first primary vote and has the support of losing candidates who got at least 19 percent of the vote, including Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green. He also has won endorsements from several newspapers and groups including the National Organization for Women.

Three recent polls showed the contest ranging from a dead heat to Edmisten leading by 12 percentage points.

Among the issues raised in the campaign are:

— Edmisten's criticism that Knox proposed legislation benefitting utility companies and accepted $2,000 from a Southern Bell political action committee.

— Knox's charges that Edmisten permitted $1 billion in utility rate increases since 1977 and that he accepted money from utility PACs in 1980 and 1981.

— Knox's publicity of Edmisten's 1974 conviction on two counts of willful failure to file state income tax returns for 1972 and 1973.

— Edmisten's charges that Knox is conducting a negative campaign uncharacteristic of a Democrat.

Knox emerged from the primary with constant criticism of Edmisten, a move designed to draw a series of debates on commercial television. Edmisten refused and told reporters he did not wish to respond to each charge by Knox.

"Mr. Edmisten is trying to shield himself from the public because he thinks he's ahead and if he can just hang onto those folks and ride through June 5th he'll have peace forever," Knox said.

Edmisten painted Knox as a messenger of "filth" that was not worthy of the Democratic Party.

"I don't know what kind of desperation would breed such charges," Edmisten said. "When you feel very insecure and behind, you start making ridiculous charges."

The runoff to select the Republican nominee for lieutenant governor pits John Carrington, a wealthy manufacturer of crime-fighting equipment, against Frank Jordan, a little-known retired Army sergeant.

Jordan led the May 8 primary with 40,257 votes or 30.7 percent. Carrington came in second with 35,106 votes or 26.8 percent and former state Rep. Bill Hiatt of Mount Airy was third with 27,600 votes or 21.1 percent.

Carrington, president of the Raleigh-based Sirchie Group, spent about $108,000 on advertising for the runoff.

Jordan, a Richmond County resident, has spent about $20 since the primary. As primary results were tabulated, Jordan acknowledged he may have gotten a boost from extensive advertising by the Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor, state Sen. Bob Jordan.

The Carrington campaign has ignored the Republican Jordan, apparently hoping those who vote June

Vessel Sinks With 28 Aboard

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP) — A three-masted square-rigger with 28 people aboard was blown over by an unusually strong gust of wind, causing it to sink in heavy seas off Bermuda during a tall ships race, a race organizer said today after talking to some of the nine known survivors.

Four empty life rafts and one of the 117-foot Marques' two dinghies were found empty, but a search by sea and air for 18 missing people will continue into Tuesday, said a spokesman for the U.S. Navy. Only one body has been found.

The Marques set out Saturday from Bermuda with 41 other sailing ships from nearly 20 nations in the 1984 Cutty Sark Tall Ships Race to Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Eight of the survivors and the body of one American were returned to Bermuda this morning aboard a three-masted Polish sail training ship that had dropped out of the race to rescue them.

Another American crewman from the sunken ship was picked up by the Canadian naval frigate Assiniboine and flown to Bermuda by helicopter, Canadian Press reported. The news agency said the frigate and four other Canadian vessels were among those searching the area as the weather improved today.

The known survivors were four Americans, four Britons and an Antigua man. The dead American was identified by the U.S. Coast Guard as James S. McAleer, 47, of Quincy, Mass.

Authorities Press Search For Escapees

By MARTHA WAGGONER
Associated Press Writer
PASCHALL, N.C. (AP) — Authorities brought in fresh dog teams and helicopters today as the search for four condemned murderers intensified at daybreak along the Virginia-North Carolina border near Lake Gaston.

Meanwhile, officials said there was confusion over the description of what has been called the most concrete lead — a pickup truck stolen in Warren County several hours after the breakout from Mecklenburg Correctional Center.

In another development, reports that one of the escapees was seen in Rowan County — some 160 miles to the southwest — sent sheriff's patrols out this morning after a concentrated search of a railyard was called off Sunday. The latest search was called off around 10 a.m.

"We've at least got them running," said Max Powell, spokesman for the state Department of Crime Control and Public Safety. "And if we've got them running, I believe we can get them eventually."

Six murderers overpowered guards Thursday night, stole their uniforms and tricked gatekeepers into letting them drive out of the maximum-security prison in rural southern Virginia, only a few miles from Lake Gaston. Derrick Lynn Peterson, 22, and Earl Clanton Jr., 30, were nabbed Friday night as they casually snacked on wine and cheese in a Warrenton coin laundry.

Still at large were Lem Tuggle, Willie Leroy Jones, and brothers Linwood and James Briley.

Searchers converged Sunday on a 1,500-acre area near Paschall, a small border town of 400 people. Guards posted in pairs with shotguns watched through the night along three rural roads, hoping they had cordoned off the area bounded on one side by the sprawling lake that straddles the state line.

An officer at the Paschall command post said this morning that "one or more" of the fugitives was believed to still be in the area.

A nationwide bulletin had been issued for a light blue Ford Ranger truck taken from a business in Afton south of Warrenton early Friday. Officials, saying it was likely the fugitives had taken the truck, mounted an intensive search and said finding it would provide a hot clue as to the escapees' whereabouts.

Russ Edmonston, another public safety department spokesman, said today that authorities might have been given an inaccurate description of the truck. Powell said efforts to get an exact description were continuing.

The main search remained concentrated in Warren County, the town of Warrenton and nearby Paschall, all within a dozen miles south of the Virginia border and about 30 miles from the Mecklenburg Correctional Center. It in-

Late Campaigning

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
Rufus Edmisten greeted his supporters at the Pitt-Greenville Airport late this morning on the eve of the runoff primary that will decide "whether I will carry the Democratic Party banner in the November election."

He was informed when he arrived here that The Daily Reflector had editorially endorsed his opponent. "Newspapers don't vote. People do," he commented.

He said most newspapers of the state which have made an endorsement have favored Eddie Knox. "One in Charlotte had an editorial yesterday that really made me feel good," he said. "They said Eastern North Carolina had enough, that it was time to elect someone who would look out for Charlotte. That's the most blatant kind of regionalism. I'm glad they see me as a man who will work for the whole state, not a certain city or region."

He said Eastern North Carolina hasn't had enough roads, enough money for education, enough assistance with lowering electric bills, enough crime prevention. He promised to work for all of these.

He congratulated his supporters and himself for "the positive campaign we have run over the past year."

"We've just talked about issues, about what makes a difference," he said.

Reagan Eyes Treaty Talks

By SALLY JACOBSEN
Associated Press Writer
DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — President Reagan said today the United States is willing to discuss Soviet requests for a treaty renouncing the use of force in Europe if Moscow agrees to consider other measures intended to reduce the risk of war.

In a speech before the Irish Parliament, Reagan said the United States wants "greater dialogue" with the Kremlin "to guard against miscalculation or misunderstanding in troubled or strategically sensitive areas of the world."

The president's address was the highpoint of his fourth and final day in Ireland. Later, he was to fly to London for talks with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

As he left Dublin for London on the first sunny day of his visit to his ancestral homeland, Reagan told his hosts, "Your warmth has touched our hearts. You have made this traveler feel like one of the family ... And as I leave I feel such a tug. America loves the Irish. I hope the Irish always love America."

Irish President Patrick J. Hillery replied that Ireland takes "immense pride in the fact that a descendant of an Irish emigrant holds the most powerful office on earth."

Five thousand anti-Reagan demonstrators marched through central Dublin to the parliament but were kept 100 yards from the building by hundreds of police. They chanted "Reagan Terrorist," "Reagan Murderer" and "Arrest Ronald Reagan" and gave clenched-fist salutes.

As the president began his speech, three members of parliament — independent Tony Gregory and Thomas MacGiolla and Proinsias De Rossa of the socialist Workers Party — tried to interrupt. They stalked out and joined the protestors after being ruled out of order.

Gregory told the demonstrators the walkout was staged "in solidarity with all the people around the world opposed to U.S. policies. We felt we had to make our protest in the place where we were elected to do it."

Reagan, in a reference to the walkout, commented, "I can't help but say I wonder if there is an awareness by some that there are countries in the world where representatives would not have been able to speak." The audience applauded, and some cried, "Hear, hear."

More than 20 legislators announced in advance they would boycott the speech in protest of U.S. foreign policy.

Voters Set For Balloting

Pitt County voters will be turning out tomorrow to cast their ballots in North Carolina's second primary for state officers, following the first primary elections of May 8.

Six candidates, four Democrats and two Republicans, are on the ballots for the Tuesday second primary.

In the race as Democratic candidate for governor are Rufus Edmisten and H. Edward (Eddie) Knox. Also on the Democratic ticket are two candidates for the office of Commissioner of Labor — Richard W. (Dick) Barnes and John C. Brooks.

The two on the Republican ballot, seeking nomination as candidate for lieutenant governor are Franklin (Frank) Jordan and John H. Carrington.

Polls will open at 6:30 a.m. and close at 7:30 p.m.

"Voting machines will not be used in tomorrow's elections," said Margaret Hardee, supervisor of elections in Pitt County. "We hope by the November elections to have machines in all the precincts," she added.

IN THE STATE

Most Budget Items Appear To Be Safe

RALEIGH (AP) — Most of the $609 million state budget proposals, including pay raises for state workers and improvements in public schools, are expected to be approved Thursday when legislators return for their off-year session.

Some items in the tentative budget adjustment plan probably won't survive because the money isn't expected to be available. Analysts predict $530 million to $580 million will be available to boost spending in the second year of the 1983-85 budget adopted last year.

"Most of the cuts will come from other things," said Senate Majority Leader Kenneth Royall Jr., D-Durham. "If we have to cut, it won't be in the educational field" or in proposed salary increases.

Also expected to gain approval are big construction items for the University of North Carolina system and the state's community colleges.

But two measures to help private colleges and universities face opposition from top officials of the UNC system.

One of the proposals would raise from $950 to $1,050 student grants which private institutions receive under two separate programs. The other measure would give Duke Medical Center $1 million to provide North Carolinians with free cancer diagnoses using its nuclear magnetic resonance equipment.

Top UNC officials who asked not to be identified said the student-aid plan would boost the rapidly growing state support of private college costs by, in effect, letting colleges keep unspent funds that should go back into state coffers.

"It's just a clever way of getting the same money without any appropriation," one official said. "It raises questions whether or not public institutions will be allowed to use reversions in the same manner."

House Speaker Liston Ramsey said he was not worried about the proposal.

"That doesn't bother me a whole lot," Ramsey said, adding that spending $1,050 in state money per student at a private institution would save the state about $3,000 per student — the difference between the grant and the per-student cost to the state of running the UNC system.

Under one of the two aid programs, known as the legislative tuition grants program, each North Carolina undergraduate student who attends a private institution full time receives $750 towards his tuition.

The state contractual scholarships program calls for each private institution to get $200 for each full-time, in-state student who attends a UNC school.

Royall said increases in appropriations to the scholarship program — from $1 million in 1972-73 to $4.6 million in 1973-74 — were needed to offset the effects of declining enrollment on private colleges.

"If we don't help them," Royall said, "they're going to get worse. Of course, (the money) goes to North Carolina students."

Locals Stay Calm, Hope Convict Search Ends Soon

By DOROTHY GAST
Associated Press Writer

PASCHALL, N.C. (AP) — Margaret Hunt lounged on her front porch, seemingly unconcerned about the horde of bloodhounds and heavily armed men parading along the gravel road bordering her front yard in search of four escaped murderers.

"I ain't scared, no way," said Mrs. Hunt, 62. "If you believe in God, God's gonna turn that devil the other way."

Searchers combed a 1,500-acre, heavily wooded area near Mrs. Hunt's blue frame house Sunday for two men believed among four Virginia death row inmates who escaped three days earlier.

Reports from witnesses led authorities tentatively to identify one of the men as James Briley, 27, whose 30-year-old brother Linwood Briley was another fugitive. The Briley brothers were part of a gang that allegedly killed 11 people in the 1970s.

Two sets of footprints were found near Paschall.

Six condemned murderers broke out of Mecklenburg Correctional Center in Virginia last Thursday. They drove a prison van to War-

Teachers Facing Computer Training

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Schools are scrambling to buy computers before the teachers are prepared to use the machines, some experts say, and they are afraid school administrators will become frustrated and abandon the machines.

"There are few software packages available, and, worst of all, teachers don't know what to do with the computers when they get the time, which may be only a few hours a week," said Herbert Ginsburg.

N.C. Veterans Recall D-Day

RALEIGH (AP) — M.H. Green says he graduated from high school one day and went into the Navy the next.

It was June 4, 1944, and fear didn't stop him from serving when the Allies landed at Normandy.

The Raleigh man served as a radio operator aboard the destroyed escort U.S.S. Rich, part of the vast invasion fleet.

"We didn't know anything else but obey — it was the way we were brought up," Green said.

Somme American GIs had never left home before. They were trained for battle, but were not always battle ready.

"It was the first action I saw in the war," Ray E. Weatherington of Henderson said. "They had explained the danger to us, but we were scared."

Edward M. Isbell of Raleigh parachuted out of a burning plane with the 507th Parachute Regiment of the Army's 82nd Airborne Division just after 1 a.m. on D-day.

"As we flew over the English Channel, our executive officer let us look out the door of the plane, one by one," Isbell said. "We saw a solid mass of ships, side by side, heading across the water."

"Our captain gave a real good speech several days before the invasion," Isbell continued. "He said 'Look at your friend beside you. One of you probably won't be coming back.'"

Mazon-Murphy of Stanley in Gaston County was a radio operator with the 46th Signal Company in the 3rd Army.

"The first five days we dug four foxholes a day," Murphy said, adding that he saw cruelty on both sides. "They weren't playing any games."

Murphy remembered the town of St. Lo, a German stronghold on the Cherbourg Peninsula.

"It was the first city we took," he said. "We bombed it and re-bombed it, bombed it and re-bombed it till there was nothing left."

Maj. Fred Anderson of Charlotte commanded a decimated company of the 506th Parachute Infantry Regiment at Bastogne.

"I went in there with 150 men and came out with 28. Some had frozen feet," Anderson said. "We didn't sleep in a bed or have a bath for 27 days."

Anderson also recalled the words of Gen. Anthony McAuliffe.

"We were surrounded but McAuliffe just spoke the Airborne mind when he said 'Nuts' to demands for surrender," Anderson said. "Before that, on hearing we were surrounded, one of our guys said, 'Good, now we can attack in any direction we want to.'"

Isbell said he saw a beautiful sight on June 11 when, after making his way to Ste. Mere-Eglise, a convoy of six reconnaissance vehicles rolled past him. That vision was soon shattered, however, when the Germans blew up the trucks.

"A man was thrown from the sixth one, and I ran out to pull him in," he said. That revealed his hiding place to the Germans and Isbell spent the next 11 months in prison camps and in work duty.

Isbell said he approved of World War II but hoped worldwide conflict would never occur again.

"I hate what it does to people and families," he said. "There's no glory in it."

"You could never justify war," Murphy said. "There is a theory of war, but no theory of peace."

Surgery For Soles

DURHAM (AP) — State Sen. R.C. Soles Jr., D-Columbus, was in satisfactory condition on Sunday at Duke University Medical Center after prostate surgery, according to family member.

His mother, Rob Soles of Tabor City, said he was admitted to the hospital last Monday to test for cancer of the prostate. She said he underwent surgery on Friday.

She said there was no cancer and that her son expects to be released in three to five days.

Soles has served four two-year terms in the North Carolina House and four in the state Senate. He won renomination in last month's primary for a fifth term in the Senate.

Panty Hose As Cooking Aid Causes Questions

DEAR ABBY: The catfish cook who uses extra-large panty hose to strain grease from catfish had a very good idea, but using panty hose as a strainer is not original. My husband is a painting contractor, and he uses my old panty hose to strain paint. He says they make much better strainers than the commercial ones sold in paint stores, and they're much cheaper. Pass this along.

FRESNO HOUSEWIFE

DEAR HOUSEWIFE: Thanks for the tip. Please stay tuned for a tip from another California reader:

DEAR ABBY: A reader asked if there was a health hazard in using secondhand panty hose to strain catfish. You assured him there was not, but suggested that if he had a psychological hang-up about it, he should buy some new Fat Fanny Panty Hose.

Abby, are you aware that every ingredient that comes in contact with food must be approved by the Food and Drug Administration? I suspect that all ingredients in Fat Fanny Panty Hose are not FDA approved, so I'd worry more about the toxicity of chemicals used in manufacturing those panty hose than anything else.

Most people are unaware of the importance of FDA approval. For example, someone who needs to replace water pipes in his house may innocently purchase plastic piping not intended for that purpose, and later learn that plastic pipes contain toxic chemicals!

Check out those panty hose, Abby, and let your readers know.

AWARE IN WHITTIER, CALIF.

DEAR AWARE: I contacted H. Glaser & Son Inc., the manufacturer of Fat Fannie (not Fanny) Panty Hose, in Framingham, Mass., and asked if its panty hose were approved by the FDA. I was told, "No, because hosiery is clearly made to wear, not to eat."

So be advised, dear readers, that food strained through panty hose (Fat Fannie or any other kind) may be hazardous to your health. Perhaps all wearing apparel should be approved by the FDA. Ask any clothing retailer: Over the years, he's had to "eat" a lot of merchandise.

DEAR ABBY: I am engaged to marry a man who has been married before. His first marriage ended in what he describes as a "friendly divorce." This is my first marriage. We are planning a double-ring ceremony. His first marriage was a double-ring ceremony, and he sees nothing wrong with using the wedding band (for himself) that he used for his first wedding because he paid for it. After he was divorced he put the ring away, but now he says, "Why buy another ring when I already have one in the drawer?"

Abby, I would like to buy him a new wedding band that is not associated with any other union. He insists it has no "meaning," but I still don't like the idea.

What do you think?

ONE RING TOO MANY

DEAR ONE RING: A new marriage calls for a new wedding ring. Even if his first ring now has no "meaning" for him, your feelings in the matter should be considered.

CONFIDENTIAL TO NORMA IN NOE VALLEY: If you absolutely cannot afford another child, be sure to take precautions on every conceivable occasion.

(Getting married? Send for Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Wedding Vows Said In Outdoor Ceremony

Evelyn Louise Robinson and William T. Call were united in marriage Sunday at 2 p.m. in an outdoor ceremony performed at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. David Morris.

The Rev. Charles Crisp conducted the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of W.A. Robinson of Winterville and the late Rosa Robinson. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. C.B. Call of North Wilkesboro and the late Mr. Call.

Debbie Morris, daughter of the bride, was honor attendant. David Morris, son-in-law of the bride, was best man.

Angie Bullock, niece of the bride, was organist. Rose Bullock, sister of the bride, presided at the register.

A reception was held following the ceremony.

The couple will live in Greenville.

Preserving The Nutrients In Food

PUEBLO, Colo. (UPI) — Rare beef contains more of some B vitamins than well done, and milk exposed to light for long periods loses nutrients.

These and other tips on preserving the nutrients in food are in a new Agriculture Department booklet, "Conserving the Nutritive Values in Foods."

The way you store, prepare and cook certain foods affects their nutritive content.

Fresh vegetables should be trimmed, cut or shredded with a sharp blade to prevent bruising, which destroys vitamins A and C in their tissues.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Fitting Tribute

One need not grope to find reasons for Industry Appreciation Week in Pitt County.

The growth of our industrial base has brought tangible and intangible benefits almost beyond measure to our community.

Most obvious, of course, have been local employment opportunities — thousands of them, adding to Pitt's economic base in terms of benefits to the families involved, the city of Greenville and its surrounding towns, the county, the state of North Carolina and the nation as a whole.

Those things are important.

Equally important are the people those industries have brought into our immediate area.

They have joined wholeheartedly into community life; sharing interests in schools, churches, civic affairs and government. Their participation has enriched the whole fabric — bringing fresh outlooks, talents, energies, enthusiasm and knowledge. They have enriched the lives of all of us, and we hope in some measure they have similarly benefitted.

We take pride in the quality and demonstrated sense of responsibility of our industrial components. Together they represent minimal room for toxic waste productivity, just as they demonstrate concern over possible contamination. Their aura of responsibility may be seen extending to their employees as well as to their communities.

Obviously we are happy with the selectivity manifested by our industry hunters as well as with those firms that chose to settle in our midst.

It is fitting the chamber of commerce provides occasions for expression of appreciation for industries that have become Tar Heels by adoption. The dream of those who instituted our industrial park has already realized things that were only dreams; and the end is not in sight.

Vote Tomorrow

Tomorrow is an election day for North Carolina, and it is one that we as citizens should not ignore.

It is a second primary election which includes both Democratic and Republican tickets. Democrats will be making their final choice for their gubernatorial and commissioner of insurance candidates. Republicans will be choosing a nominee for lieutenant governor.

All these offices are vitally important to North Carolina and that makes voting an essential duty for all of us. It would be easy to pass up voting on Tuesday but, because the ballots are short, it will take only a little time to visit the polls and cast our votes.

If we wish to make the Democratic process work, we will not neglect our right to vote in tomorrow's primary. The decisions we make will be vitally important to North Carolina.

'Bad News' Message

WASHINGTON (AP) — The old political adage is, "Mud sticks." It means bad news affects candidates more than good news.

In the case of Ronald Reagan, there's been a lot of thought that somehow the adage doesn't stick. He's been called "the Teflon candidate," as a way of saying that events that might pain another incumbent presidential candidate don't seem to hurt Reagan. He sidesteps troubles.

But in the view of political analysts John E. Merriam and Jeffrey J. Hallett, who earn their living tracking political issues, the Teflon label has been oversold. Bad news sticks to Reagan, they say, just as it does to other politicians.

Merriam and Hallett publish a newsletter, Issues Management Letter. They invited reporters to their office a few days ago to share their thinking about how the way issues treated by the newspapers, television and the newsweekly magazines affect the candidates.

Merriam and Hallett see elections as national events in which the people send signals of all sorts to their government.

Even the roughly 50 percent who don't vote are participants. They're sending messages. One is that they are more or less satisfied with the status quo. Another is that they don't think it will make a big difference who is president. As long as a president keeps the country from being attacked many people will feel that their lives are not shaped by the occupant of the Oval Office.

But the 50 percent who do vote — some voting against someone, usually the incumbent, and some voting for someone — the issues do make a difference, in the view of analysts Merriam and Hallett.

They've devised a formula for tracking issues and candidates' fortunes. It assigns negative news coverage four times the importance as positive or neutral news coverage.

Their theory is that the candidate who gets the least bad news coverage immediately before an election is the candidate most likely to win.

As for Ronald Reagan, Merriam and Hallett tracked his standing in the Gallop Poll with bad news. They find Reagan's approval rating slipped when media attention focused on the "fairness issue" in the summer of 1983.

It was the legendary Willie Sutton who, when asked why he robbed banks, said, "That's where the money is."

Willie's reason may no longer be valid. Recently a well-dressed robber walked into the Heritage Bank in Anaheim, Calif., and handed a note to a woman supervisor which read, "Give me all your money or I'll start shooting."

The supervisor indignantly informed the robber that Heritage had no money and had gone bankrupt in March. The man walked out in disgust.

What the newspaper story could not report was what happened when the robber got in his getaway car and drove off.

"So how much did you get?" his partner asked.

"Nothing," was the reply. "They have no money."

"What do you mean they have no money? All banks have money. The Heritage Bank is the largest one in

Unlike 1983, when the public schools were pretty much ignored, it will be a session dedicated to improving the schools and beefing up the pocket-books of teachers.

Two major study groups have compiled recommendations which will be considered in the June session. In many areas, the Education Policy Council, a legislative group, and the N.C. Commission on Education for Economic Growth, Gov. Jim Hunt's group, agree.

The biggest issue will be teacher pay. While the council has not recommended any specific pay increase, both House Speaker Liston Ramsey and Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green have indicated a willingness to be generous this year. Hunt is asking for a 15 percent increase. It is probably safe to assume that a raise of approximately that size will be passed.

On student performance, there is consensus on the general idea that students should be required to reach specific levels of achievement before they can advance. Both the council and the commission want students periodically measured on a basic curriculum which will be formulated by the State Board of Education. Those students who fall behind would immediately be enrolled in remediation programs, the two groups say.

Teachers currently working need more on-the-job training to improve their performance, the groups say. The governor's group recommends an extra $6.2 million to allow teachers to attend seminars and return to school. They also agree that teacher certification standards should be revised to allow professionals in other fields to teach while they pursue their certification.

Both groups recommend career ladders for teachers. As teachers mature in their profession, they would receive added responsibilities, opportunities and salary. New teachers would be counseled and tutored by more experienced colleagues. This is a touchy issue, and there are many different ways such a broad concept could be implemented. Despite general agreement on the need to move in this direction, there could be considerable dissent in the assembly over any specific program.

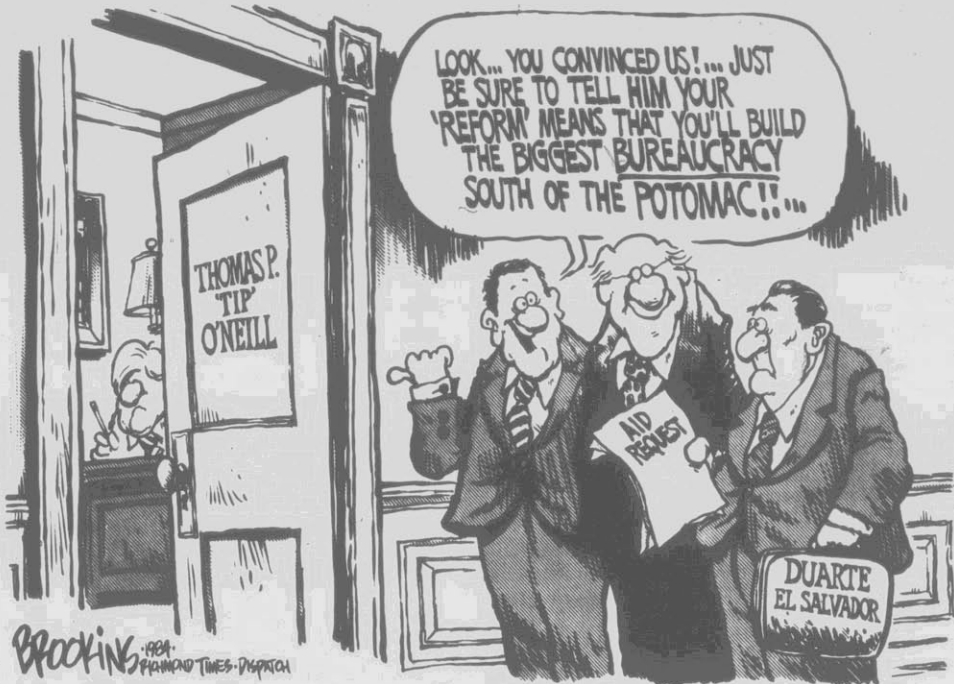

Smaller class sizes are recommended by both groups. The governor's group recommends classes of no more than 26 students anywhere from kindergarten to 12th grade. The council's recommendation is not specific. Both groups also recommend increased allocations for special education and review, on the local and statewide levels, of the amount of time spent on each academic discipline. The latter recommendation could lead to more time spent in science labs, for example.

The two groups propose to increase the amount of money spent on textbooks each year, although they disagree on how much. They also agree that the state should pay for each district to employ a finance officer — an item not supported by the leadership.

Improving the public schools will take many years. The two groups offered dozens of recommendations. In the short session, it is likely that change will come in those areas where there is already agreement.

tech" candidate.

But the senator's real business that day came behind locked doors at the Meadowlands sports complex near here. Sixteen rank-and-file Hart voters were collected to make commercials scheduled to start on Philadelphia and New York television stations after Memorial Day. With or without coaching, some voters delivered much the same message that proved so effective from the mouths of similar Ohio voters: Mondale had his chance with Carter and doesn't deserve another.

That tactic constitutes Hart's best chance to cut through massive voter apathy, and it is a good one in a state where President Carter went 0-for-4 — losing two primaries and two general elections. The mid-May polls showing Mondale variously 7 to 10 percentage points ahead also connote soft support that may not last. Furthermore, Mondale's tentative schedule, spending all this week in California, deeply concerns his managers here.

New Jersey's reputation as an outlaw Democratic state is evidenced by a decade of defeats for labor-backed candidates in key statewide primaries. New Jersey has low unemployment, successful transition from smokestack to high-tech industry and steady gentrification by emigrating New Yorkers. Clearly, this is not Mondale Country.

State Democratic Chairman Jim Maloney has been active in the Hart campaign — particularly in lining up well-known delegate-candidates. Labor's efforts for Mondale do not amount to much. Overall, there is more apparent activity for Hart than Mondale.

New Jersey looks like Ohio did 10 days before primary day. That's why Mondale's managers resolved here to avoid the Ohio mistake: a passive campaign ignoring Gary Hart. But since the two candidates are so close to each other in reciting the orthodox liberal catechism, it wasn't easy finding a way to attack Hart on two big issues that polls show Jersey Democrats care about: toxic waste disposal and the nuclear arms freeze.

Mondale's resulting assault on Hart's environmental and arms control records, while of a piece with similar accusations in Illinois of not supporting civil rights, are politically defective. Superfund's ineffectiveness has not made it a favorite in New Jersey, and Hart is on record proposing much more money for it. Mondale's complaint that Hart favors the Reagan-approved "build down" alternative is a little exotic for all but the most ardent freezers.

Nevertheless, Mondale's strategy is to make Hart look bad, as Hart did upon entering the state Thursday and defending himself on Superfund. Knowing full well that Hart's campaign planners do not want to subject him to Fighting Fritz any more than necessary, the Mondalites cleverly have put Hart in the posture of resisting special New Jersey debate.

Hart's counter-tactic: Quickly respond to Mondale's attacks, then recite his high-tech-candidate-of-the-future (not of the Jimmy Carter past) routine.

Why Not To Rob A Bank

Orange County."

"What are you yelling at me for? They're insolvent. The depositors have been paid off and the Feds are now liquidating the place."

"Why didn't you know that when you decided to pull the heist in the first place?"

"I cased the joint for three days. The reason I picked it was there weren't any guards around. I thought they were just being careless. It turned out there was nothing to guard. I should have been suspicious when nobody bothered to lock the doors at night."

"But how can a bank go busted?"

"I guess they made a lot of bad loans and couldn't collect them. It's going on all over the country. If it's a big bank like Chicago Continental the Feds get nervous and put more money in, so there won't be a run on it. But in this case they decided to let it go out of business. Don't drive so fast. Nobody is chasing us."

"Why should they chase us? We came away dry."

"Don't get sore at me. It isn't my fault the bank screwed up. I wasn't the only one in there that didn't know they were out of money. Three people were trying to get loans, and one lady wanted to know what happened to an electric blanket they promised her when she opened her account."

"Banks should put signs up when they run out of funds. We could have been killed or gotten 20 years for trying to stick up a place that went under because of bad management."

"You just went through red light."

"I always go through red lights after bank robbery."

"But we didn't rob the bank. Technically we have nothing to fear. If they didn't have money it's their fault, not ours. I wouldn't be surprised if they failed to report it. The lady I gave the note to wasn't even frightened. She was just mad I hadn't read the papers."

"You didn't by chance ask her what bank in the neighborhood might have some money in it, did you?"

"She was so rude to me, I just walked out. If she was typical of all the Heritage Bank employees it's no wonder they went belly up."

"So what do we do now?"

"I don't know. I guess we're going to have to read the newspapers more closely and find out which banks are still in business and which ones are in liquidation."

"Do you still have the note you gave her?"

"Yeh, she handed it back to me and told me not to come in again. I assured her she had nothing to worry about on that score. I also told her I was going to pass the word to all my friends about robbing Heritage branches."

"What are you doing now?"

"I'm rewriting the note. I'm going to say, 'If by any chance you have any money in the bank, give it to me or I will start shooting. Otherwise disregard this message.'"

CT&T Turning To Fiber-Optics

Telephone operations have come a long way since 1876 when Alexander Graham Bell obtained his now famous patent on a machine that hadn't even been tested. Yet Bell's telecommunications concepts and those of inventors coming before and after him all came into play in Carolina Telephone's newest innovation—fiber-optics.

By mid-1984, long distance and extended area service calls from Greenville will travel by light through tiny strands of glass as opposed to the current transmission method of sending signals through copper wire encased in large cables. Jim Alford, CT toll planning engineer, said, Carolina Telephone has plans to set up three fiber optic routes between Greenville and Bethel, Greenville and Farmville and Greenville and Kinston.

According to Alford, the hair-thin glass fibers transmit bits of information traveling at speeds measured in millionths of a second over a pulsating light beam. These beams can carry hundreds, even thousands, of simultaneous voice conversations on a single pair of glass fibers.

"Not only can the glass fibers carry far more information than conventional copper cable," he said, "they require far less maintenance and are the most cost-effective means of expanding our network facilities to meet the communications needs of growing eastern Carolina."

Alford said technology today requires repeaters along the roadside about every mile to continue transmitting telephone signals. With fiber optics, the shorter routes, including the Greenville, Bethel and Greenville, Farmville routes, will require no repeaters. The Greenville-Kinston route, which is 33 miles long, will require just one repeater.

He noted that the fiber-optic systems are compatible with the new digital technology that will bring enhanced communications services, such as data transmission facilities, into customers' homes and businesses.

Initially, the Greenville-Bethel fiber-optic route will have the capacity to carry 672 simultaneous conversations on one pair of glass fibers. The Greenville-Farmville route, which will also serve Snow Hill and Fountain, will have the capacity to carry 1,344 simultaneous conversations on one fiber pair. Both systems also have a backup fiber pair to take over an continue transmission should a problem develop. Both systems can also be expanded to carry up to 2,688 simultaneous conversations.

The Greenville-Kinston route will initially carry 1,344 simultaneous conversations, with a planned expansion to 2,688 conversations. Between 1986 and 1987, this route will be extended through Kinston to serve New Bern. This system will employ 10 fibers; four dedicated for the Greenville-Kinston route and six for the future Greenville-New Bern route.

Scale insects are often difficult to see on ornamentals but they are responsible for a great deal of damage on many shrubs throughout the world. Scale insects cause poor growth, low vigor, off-colors and occasionally death of individual limbs or entire plants. The homeowner may be aware of the damage that is occurring but not the cause of it.

Scale insects are for the most part small and inconspicuous. They possess sucking mouthparts and extract sap from the plant. They excrete a sticky substance called honey dew which coats leaves and allows a fungus to grow within. It is called "sooty mold," a particularly descriptive name for the condition. Sooty mold does not appreciably damage a plant, but the loss of sap and nutrients from the feeding of scale insects certainly might.

Scale insects have a waxy covering which protects them from environmental hazards, predators and insecticides. Scales do have a period of time in their life cycle that make them relatively easy to control. The immature stages of scales are deposited beneath the waxy body of the adult female. Some scales lay eggs, other species have live young. The nymph, or immature scale, is mobile and crawls from beneath the adult and moves to tender areas of the plant, inserts its threadlike mouthparts and begins to extract sap from the plant.

The crawlers are easy to control with one or two thorough sprays of malathion or cygon. On camellias and some other plants the crawler stage is present between May 15 and June 15 usually. The crawlers can also be detected by placing a clear plastic bag over a scale-infested limb in a shady place and looking to see if the flat, six-legged yellowish nymphs are trapped within the bag.

Also, dormant oil sprays can be used during the dormant season, December-February. In addition, pruning the most severely affected branches may help reduce scale insect problems. But in most cases two applications to all parts of the plant should be done 10 days to two weeks apart when crawlers are present.

Protein Vaccine Developed

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) — A protein that can be used to produce a vaccine against malaria has been discovered here by a Scottish research team, according to the Scottish Development Agency.

The newly-found protein causes a strong immune response in humans, making it a strong candidate for a vaccine, the agency said. The researchers claim such a vaccine could protect both against mosquito-injected parasites and the human blood forms of the parasite during its life cycle in the body.

Clinical testing is expected to begin within 18 months, according to scientists at Edinburgh University's biology department.

In The Area

Charges Brought

Mark Kevin Cahoon, 23, of Route 1, Swan Quarter, was arrested by Greenville police about 4 a.m. Sunday, at the intersection of Fourth and Hickory Streets.

Sgt. D.D. Heinz said Cahoon was charged with possession of marijuana, possession of drug paraphernalia, driving while impaired and carrying a concealed weapon, after his car was stopped for a traffic check.

Television Stolen

Officer W.R. McLawhorn said Greenville police are investigating a first degree burglary at 500 Elizabeth St., reported at 10:30 a.m. Sunday.

McLawhorn said thieves entered the home while the occupants were asleep and took a television set valued at $450.

Vandalism Reported

Greenville police are investigating 10 cases of vandalism reported Sunday, in which windows in vehicles were broken by shots from an air rifle or pistol.

Officers said the incidents were reported between 7:30 a.m. and 7:51 p.m. The vehicles involved were parked on Tucker Drive, Berkshire Road, South Warren Street, Avon Lane, Ronda Drive, Fantasia Drive, Greenville Boulevard, Sherwood Drive, East Third Street, and Granville Drive.

Thefts Reported

A series of thefts from cars parked at Quail Ridge and Windy Ridge condominiums Saturday are under investigation by Greenville police.

Officer W.C. Widener said reports received between 5:42 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. showed four vehicles at Quail Ridge had been entered.

He said a wallet and a portfolio containing real estate contracts were taken from one car, while a cooler valued at $25, was taken from another vehicle.

Seven cassette tapes and a pair of work boots were taken from a third vehicle, while a pair of prescription sunglasses and a pair of regular prescription glasses were stolen from the fourth car.

Officer K.R. Evans said a pair of sunglasses was taken from one car at Windy Ridge, while several cassette tapes was taken from another car.

The thefts at Windy Ridge were reported at 10:09 a.m. and 11:54 a.m.

Purses Taken

Police are investigating the theft of purses from two cars in downtown Greenville early Saturday.

Officer J.G. Bridges said a purse containing $20 in cash was taken from a car parked in a lot on Washington Street after thieves broke a window to gain entrance.

Bridges said the theft was reported at 1:13 a.m. by Annette Snipes of Holly Street.

Officer C.M. Credle said pocket-books owned by Mary Bledsoe of Green Mill Run Apartments and Elaine Marie Long of 952 Shady Lane, were taken from a car parked in a lot at the intersection of Fourth and Reade Streets after a window was broken to gain entrance to the car.

That incident, Credle said, was reported at 1:50 a.m.

Hardee President

Roy Hardee, news director of WNCT-TV in Greenville, was named president of the Radio Television News Directors Association of the Carolina at a meeting in Asheville recently.

Hardee, a native of Greenville, was a member of the association's board of directors and had previously served as president.

WNCT-TV was also given an award of excellence at the meeting for its three-part investigative series "Saving, Selling and Salvation: A Look At Television Ministers."

Quilters To Meet

The Greenville Quilters Guild will meet Tuesday at noon for a covered dish luncheon in the Greenville Recreation Building, Fourth and Greene streets.

A "Quilt In" will take place Saturday in New Bern. Area quilters will attend. For more information, call Lucy Sumerell at the recreation center, 752-4137, ext. 250.

Group To Meet

A covered dish supper and talk for people interested in the formation of a wholistic health organization will be held Tuesday in the basement meeting room of the First Presbyterian Church.

Supper will begin at 6 p.m., followed by a talk by Dr. David Baughan on "The New Science." There will be a charge of $1.75 for each person bringing a dish; a $3.75 charge for anyone not bringing food.

Guests Announced

Guests on the City of Greenville radio program, "City Hall Notes," during the week of June 4 will be Susanne Long, children's librarian at Sheppard Memorial Library, and Mayo Allen, director of the public works department.

Mrs. Long will discuss the summer reading club and Allen will talk about the 1984-85 budget for the Public Works Department.

"City Hall Notes" is aired on WOOW Radio each Tuesday and Thursday at 10:25 a.m.

Task Force Meet

The Greenville Planning and Zoning Task Force will meet Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. in the third floor conference room of the Community Building located at the corner of Fourth and Greene streets.

Essay Winner

The Mental Health Association in Pitt County conducted an essay contest for grades 6-8 in the county and city schools during May, Mental Health Month.

The winning essay was that of Wendy McLawhorn, a sixth grader at Bethel Elementary School. She and her class were awarded cash prizes. Her topic was "Friends Are Good Medicine." The essay in its entirety has been submitted as a letter to the editor to appear in Tuesday's Daily Reflector Public Forum column.

Black Alumni Meet

The Black Alumni Chapter of East Carolina University will meet at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Dr. Dennis Chestnut, 1801 E. Fifth St.

Chapter activities being planned for ECU's 1984 Homecoming Weekend will be discussed. All black ECU graduates invited to attend.

Further information is available from chapter member Thomas V. Lee, 756-8046.

Curfew Extended To Control Sikh Violence

AMRITSAR, India (AP) — Army troops sealed the borders of Punjab state, enforced a travel ban and extended a curfew today in an attempt to control Sikh violence.

At least 47 people have been killed and more than 70 injured since Friday in Sikh violence in the northern state. At least 350 people have been killed in the past three months and 600 in three years.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government sent tens of thousands of army troops to Punjab on Sunday to clamp down on Sikh terrorists, who have engaged in widespread killing, arson and looting.

All travel by road and rail was banned, and Indian President Zail Singh, who is a Sikh, declared a two-month blackout on news coverage within Punjab of Sikh-Hindu violence and military operations there.

Harchand Singh Longowal, president of the Sikhs' Akali Dal Party, said Sunday that the party would not call off an announced blockade of grain shipments from the state despite an appeal from Mrs. Gandhi that it be canceled.

But there were no reports of a blockade on Sunday. Longowal said party leaders would meet today to discuss the army's deployment of troops and Mrs. Gandhi's request.

It was unclear how the government-imposed travel ban affected grain shipments from Punjab, India's breadbasket.

A 36-hour curfew was among the restrictions imposed Sunday. But authorities today extended the curfew an additional 12 hours, to end at 9 p.m. Tuesday.

On Sunday, the state government suspended indefinitely all train service in Punjab. Trains originating from the northernmost Kashmir state were to be allowed to pass through Punjab without passengers and under armed escort.

Indian Airlines said it will bypass Amritsar and Chandigarh on its daily flights to Kashmir.

There has been no official martial law declaration, but S.S. Bagga, commander of the paramilitary Border Security Forces in the city of Jullundur, 200 miles north of the national capital of New Delhi, said martial law was in force.

Lt. Gen. R.S. Dayal, newly appointed army commander and security adviser in Punjab, said details on the deployment of army and paramilitary forces would remain secret.

The Sikhs, who are a majority in the northern state of Punjab, are agitating for religious, political and economic concessions from the government. The government says hundreds of armed extremists have taken refuge at the Golden Temple, the Sikhs' holiest shrine, in the holy Sikh city of Amritsar.

SPACE MAINTAINERS

If a child's front tooth is knocked out by accident, under the right circumstances and time-frame, it might be able to be replanted successfully. However, if the knocked-out tooth is a baby tooth, due to fall out soon, the dentist may do nothing. A missing back tooth, however, whether lost by accident or extraction, needs a space maintainer to prevent other teeth from drifting into the space. An overcrowded space would prevent the permanent tooth from coming in properly.

There are a number of devices available depending on the situation. The most common types involve putting a metal band over the tooth on either side of the space, taking an impression, and then joining the bands by attaching a metal bar to each. The bands are cemented to the teeth, and the bar prevents the teeth from drifting toward each other.

It is just as important that the space maintainer be removed at the proper time (when the permanent tooth comes in) or there will be new problems. Therefore, it is important to have your child see the dentist regularly, especially if he or she has a space maintainer.

Equine Program Added At MCC

WILLIAMSTON — A new offering, an Equine Technology Program, has been added to the curriculum at Martin Community College (MCC) near Williamston. Bob Weston heads the new program.

Weston comes to MCC from Ohio, where he was a director of a similar program at a branch of Ohio State University. He holds bachelor and masters degree in animal sciences and horse nutrition, and has also run a horse farm.

The basic objectives of the new program is to provide a work force for the horse industry and to meet the needs of area students in the horse field.

The program will encompass overall health, shoeing, breeding and the business aspects of the horse business.

A two year associate in applied science degree will be offered to students who complete the entire equine curriculum. A six-month certificate will also be available.

HELPING ALCOHOLIC FRIENDS

Since alcoholism affects 1 out of every 10 persons, most of us know at least one person in trouble with drinking. Yet whenever we see a close friend drinking too much, most of us just say nothing hoping the problem will go away. Remember alcoholism is a terminal illness which, when left untreated, can end in insanity or death. Perhaps part of the problem is that alcoholism is viewed with a moralistic attitude. Emotionally people find it hard to accept that it is America's third most serious health problem. If you have the problem of not knowing what to say to a friend who "drinks too much", here are a few basic suggestions which may help.

1. Don't be moralistic or judgemental. Alcoholism is a treatable disease. It is a problem of health- not lack of willpower or immoral behavior.
2. Don't argue. When you confront another person about drinking usually they will become defensive.
3. Be willing to let your friend know exactly why you are concerned. Point out specific inappropriate behavior, the drunk driving, the lost job or the job in jeopardy, angry friends or whatever else leads you to believe your friend needs help with a drinking problem.

4. Let them know you really care. If your friendship is real, your concern will be appreciated.
5. Supply your friend with concrete ideas on how and where to get help. The Mental Health Center can help you obtain information on alcoholism.
6. Don't give up. Keep confronting your friend again and again. Sometimes it takes months of concern to get a friend to take that first extremely difficult step toward help.
7. You may not want to be around your friend when they are drinking. Tell them so, and don't let them in if they have been drinking.
8. Don't bail them out of trouble or jail. It's their problem and they must face it and handle it themselves.

Have the courage to confront a friend or loved one, or even yourself. Perhaps you may be the catalyst for seeking help, and saving a life. For more information on alcoholism call 752-7151.

Exhausted Candidates Ask For Support

By EVANS WITT
AP Political Writer

The Democratic presidential candidates dashed coast-to-coast today in a frenzy of last-minute campaigning at the end of a long and increasingly bitter presidential primary struggle that was mirrored in a final debate.

From Newark to Albuquerque to Los Angeles, Walter F. Mondale, Gary Hart and the Rev. Jesse Jackson appealed for support in the climactic five primaries on Super Tuesday II that could decide the Democratic presidential nomination.

Front-runner Mondale planned to touch down in four of the primary states in an exhausting cross-country race today, while Hart concentrated on New Jersey and Jackson on California. Of the five final primary states, only South Dakota would not get a candidate visit today.

Mondale is looking for enough delegates Tuesday to put him over the 1,967 majority needed for the nomination, while Hart is bidding for a couple of big concluding victories to deny Mondale's claim to be the leader of the party in November against Ronald Reagan. With a total of 486 delegates, Tuesday's five primaries provide plenty of delegate fodder.

The three candidates started the final primary sprint in Los Angeles Sunday night by trading verbal punches in a debate that saw Hart and Mondale accuse each other of personal attacks.

"If anything has hurt, it has been a campaign of distortion and distraction," Hart said of the former vice president's attacks.

Hart called Mondale's now-terminated use of delegate committees "a cloud over this process. It has to be resolved before the convention."

Mondale retorted, "Once again we see Gary Hart trying to raise a charge he knows is without substance.... Gary Hart is leading a charge here that suggests illegality and criminal behavior. I think he ought to take that back."

"I have never been personal and I don't intend to be personal," Mondale added. "But the American people have right to know what we're for and then they have a right to see the differences. That is what the debate is all about."

Jackson mildly ridiculed Hart's charges, saying "Gary took his last best shot at Mondale" and telling the Colorado senator, "You know you're too tough to be hurt" by Mondale's attacks.

After the NBC-sponsored debate, Mondale and Hart took red-eye flights to the East Coast.

Mondale's schedule was arduous, with plans to start the day with two appearances in New Jersey and stops in Charleston, W. Va.; Albuquerque, N.M.; Burbank, Calif.; and San Francisco.

Hart flew to Washington to attend his son's high school graduation today before heading to New Jersey for four events.

Mondale holds a big lead in delegates going into Super Tuesday II, close enough that a string of victories could push him over the 1,967 needed to win the nomination at the Democratic National Convention in San Francisco in July.

Mondale is the choice of 1,691.05 delegates, while Hart has 982.75. Jackson is backed by 331.2, while 328 named someone else or are uncommitted.

California will send the biggest state delegation to the convention and will allocate 306 of its 345 delegates in the voting Tuesday.

New Jersey will choose 107 of its delegates in the primary; West Virginia, 35; New Mexico, 23; and South Dakota, 15.

Hart is the favorite in both New Mexico and South Dakota, but both states use straightforward proportional representation, which assures Mondale of winning at least some delegates.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JUNE 5, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You find that the morning brings the chance to see your goals in a broad sense, but the afternoon and evening find some surprising conditions arising that keep you from continuing.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Morning is fine for creativity but you may have trouble with details. Await a better time to get a co-worker to do what you wish.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You understand how to solve a home affair early but cannot do so until later because of interruptions.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get your ideas across to allies in the morning, but later do not let family matters upset you so that you can do nothing.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Find the best way to add to your present holdings and then later get the OK from experts. Be more careful in driving.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You are inspired in the morning but later have to handle practical affairs and you cannot put new ideas across. Save money.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) See what you can do to get rid of restrictions that annoy you; then put some new course in action that works to your benefit.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get the aid of friends for gaining personal goals in the morning; then get rid of annoyances that vex you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Find new methods that will increase your efficiency. Don't bother any higher-up with small details.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You want to start a new enterprise, so follow your intuition. Later you may have to double back and complete unfinished business.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make sure you understand new methods before you start on some new venture otherwise you could lose your shirt.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) State your aims to a generous partner and you get fine backing in the morning and later handle the small details.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Everything goes smoothly at work in the morning, but after lunch don't be petty with a partner.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have every capability of understanding the idealistic thoughts or ideas behind any enterprise and will keep them in the subconscious for use upon reaching maturity and can turn them into practical assets.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

BROILERS: The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 55.00 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pound birds. The final weighted average is 54.86 cents f.o.b. dock or equivalent. The market is generally steady and the live supply is moderate for a moderate demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Monday was 1,822,000, compared to 979,000 last Monday.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn slightly lower at 3.88-4.00 in East and 4.00-4.09 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans sharply lower at 8.21-8.31 in the east and mostly 8.26-8.31 in the Piedmont; (new crop corn 2.93-3.21; soybeans 6.86-7.13, wheat 3.29-3.60).

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market swept ahead in active trading today, picking up where it left off in Friday's strong rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 9.38 to 1,133.73 in the first half hour.

Gainers took a 4-1 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said traders' enthusiasm stemmed largely from a belief that interest rates had reached a peak after their long climb this year.

Those hopes were based on evidence that the pace of economic expansion was slowing, which would presumably lead to a slackening of business borrowing.

A monthly survey of corporate purchasing executives, the results of which were released over the weekend, found some slowing in orders, production and other gauges of economic activity.

"It appears the economy is taking a breather at a relatively high level," said Robert Bretz, chairman of the survey committee of the National Association of Purchasing Managers.

Today's early prices included Sears Roebuck, up 1/4 at 30 3/4; General Motors, up 1/2 at 64 3/4, and Baker International, up 1/4 at 20 1/2.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average jumped 19.50 to 1,124.35, for its biggest gain since it rose 26.17 on April 12. For the week, the average posted a net advance of 17.25 points.

Advances outpaced declines by more than 3 to 1 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 96.04 million shares, against 81.89 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index gained 1.44 to 88.15. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 2.27 at 200.90.

5 will know the difference between Frank Jordan and Bob Jordan.

State Sen. Richard Barnes, D-Forsyth, hopes to defeat an incumbent Council of State member — Labor Commissioner John Brooks.

The Democrats seeking the nomination for labor commissioner have focused debate more on style than political philosophy. The winner will face Republican candidate Margaret Plemmons of Forsyth County in the fall.

Brooks, who is serving his second term, placed first May 8 with 358,651 votes or 46.7 percent of the vote. Barnes received 295,286 votes or 39.7 percent and Don Wiseman of Cary finished third with 96,803 votes or 13.6 percent.

Wiseman, the state AFL-CIO and the N.C. Association of Educators have endorsed Barnes, charging that Brooks' management style does not contribute to the successful operation of the Labor Department.

Brooks responds that he has been an effective commissioner and that criticisms of him are based on his refusal to "knuckle under" to special interest demands.

In the 9th Congressional District, Mecklenburg County Commissioner Susan Green faces Charlotte attorney and former Davidson College basketball player D.G. Martin. The winner will face Republican Alex McMillan in the fall in North Carolina's only congressional district without an incumbent seeking reelection.

If Mrs. Green is elected, she would be the first woman to represent the state in Congress since Jane Pratt served several months in 1946.

The district has had a Republican congressman for 32 years although registration is 2-to-1 Democratic.

tensified as authorities stopped to inspect a freight train in Henderson, using bloodhounds and German shepherd dogs which respond to voice commands, and surveillance by helicopters and airplanes.

The German shepherds were used at night in thick woods because they respond to voice commands and can travel in areas men can't easily traverse in the dark, said Russ Edmonston, also of the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety.

Meanwhile, about 6,000 fliers were distributed with descriptions of the fugitives and announcing a $10,000 reward offered for information leading to the arrest of each inmate by Virginia Gov. Charles Robb.

Law enforcement officials also began conducting door-to-door inquiries in a 20-mile area around Warrenton, and a flurry of sightings gave officials reason for some optimism.

Powell said the door-to-door interviews produced a number of leads, including a witness who "gave a positive I.D." when shown photos of the four convicts.

One resident's description of a man matched that of James Briley, 27, Powell said. Two sets of footprints were discovered, Edmonston said.

Residents appeared calm in the face of the possibility of four killers loose in their area of their small farming community.

"I ain't scared, no way," said Margaret Hunt, 62, who sat leisurely on her front porch beside the road. "God's gonna turn that devil the other way."

Officers and dogs were dispatched to a rural house about 3 1/2 miles south of Warrenton after the residents reported seeing a strange man, but the trail ended in a swamp and no one was found.

John Rawlings, 53, who lives with his 79-year-old mother about 3 1/2 miles southwest of Warrenton, said he saw a man crossing the dirt road running past his house around 9 p.m. Saturday. However, Rawlings owns neither a telephone nor car so couldn't report the sighting until a patrol car drove by Sunday morning, he said.

"I said 'Hey!' but he (the stranger) didn't stop," said Rawlings, adding he immediately assumed the man was one of the escapees. Authorities had searched several areas south of Warrenton on Saturday after sightings of a lone stranger were reported.

The Rawlingses, who own no firearms, said they spent an uneasy night behind securely locked doors in their home, about a mile from N.C. 401, which leads to Warrenton.

Campaign Launched

The City of Greenville and the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce kicked-off a two-week campaign Friday called "Greenville Has It All" to help build pride in the city.

Bumper stickers carrying the slogan "Greenville Has It All" have been mailed to all Greenville Council Chamber of Commerce members and have been placed in various locations throughout the city for the public to pick up. Stickers are available at the Chamber of Commerce, City Hall, local banks, restaurants and key shopping areas. In addition, five outdoor advertising displays have been donated by the Naegele Sign Co. and a two-week salute to Greenville beginning Monday on WNCT-TV, Channel 9, will be aired.

Mayor Buck and Chamber Chairman Jon Tingelstad have asked that "all citizens participate in this campaign by displaying a bumper sticker and telling their friends the true story that 'Greenville Has It All.'" surviving crew members by telephone, Sir Rae McKaig, head of the British Sail Training Association that organized the race, told a news conference that the unusually strong gust of wind hit the Marques as it traveled through 19-foot waves at 7 knots. Winds were 28 to 30 knots, gusting to 40, he said.

The boat sank at 8:04 a.m. Sunday, about 24 minutes after a distress call had been relayed to Bermuda by two Polish entries in the race, McKaig said.

A Coast Guard spokesman in New York, Johnny Ludlow, said his agency was notified by Bermuda authorities at 6:55 a.m. that the ship was awash and sinking.

Mark Litchfield, co-owner of the British-registered bark, told reporters he had a similar experience on the Marques three years ago while racing in the Mediterranean Sea. He said that one side rail was submerged in the waves when the ship was hit by a strong blast of wind, but it righted itself.

A Navy spokesman said that normal estimates for survival in high seas with the water temperature at 70 degrees is 25 to 30 hours.

McKaig said one of the life rafts was found overturned, and the other had never inflated.

Judge Rules In Lawsuit

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge today threw out a lawsuit against the federal government by thousands of Vietnam veterans who claim they were injured by the herbicide Agent Orange.

U.S. District Judge Jack B. Weinstein, who last month prodded the veterans into a $180 million settlement with seven chemical companies, said the courts determined more than two years ago that the law bars such claims by the veterans against Washington.

East Carolina Accepted By CFA

DALLAS — East Carolina University was accepted to the College Football Association Sunday along with the University of Louisville and the University of Cincinnati.

The vote of the 60-member group, comprised of the country's top football independents and major conference's except the Big Ten and the Pacific-10, was held at the CFA's annual meeting in Dallas. A two-thirds vote was required for acceptance, and all three applications were accepted without opposition.

"We are elated," said Dr. Ken Karr, ECU director of athletics. "This is another milestone for East Carolina University in moving the football program into the upper echelon. We are very excited."

"This is an important step for East Carolina in our attempt to become one of the nation's top football programs."

The addition of the Pirates, Louisville and Cincinnati pushes the CFA's membership to 63.

Gene Corrigan of Notre Dame is ready to tell the Big Ten and Pac-10 conferences the television ball is back in their court.

"The next step will be for me to call them and say, 'OK, what do you guys think?'" Corrigan said Sunday at the conclusion of the three-day convention of the College Football Association.

Corrigan's message to the two powerful and prestigious football leagues — non-members of the CFA — will be this: The 63 CFA schools agree in principle on the joint national television marketing plan for 1984 that was worked out by a committee from all three organizations. Now what do your people think?

Corrigan was named chairman of the joint group, which calls itself the Football Television Planning Committee, and met more than four times to hammer out a tentative plan to include all major college football conferences and independents. Also on the committee are Wayne Duke, Commissioner of the Big Ten, and Tom Hansen, executive director of the Pac-10.

The response of the Big Ten and Pac-10 not need to be immediate. Nothing definite can be decided until the U.S. Supreme Court acts. And more meetings of college administrators are scheduled this week in Kansas City and at the end of this month in Chicago.

Besides admitting East Carolina, Cincinnati and Louisville to their organization, the CFA delegates spent most of the weekend puzzling over the volatile television situation.

The Supreme Court could rule any day on an antitrust suit brought by Oklahoma and Georgia. If two lower court rulings are upheld, the NCAA's contracts with ABC and CBS would be voided and the NCAA's long-held control of football television rights dissolved.

Presumably, every school and conference would then be free to make any television deals it wants, which everybody agrees could be disastrous.

"If we scatter, we might never get together again," said Corrigan, who was named chairman of the FTFC. "The key is for everybody to think about what it's going to be like if we don't get together. If that happens, it's really going to be chaotic."

Corrigan said he would try to get in touch with the other two leagues immediately.

"I'll call them Monday if at all possible," he said at a news conference Sunday. "I'll tell them that nobody here had any great problem with our plan, other than geographical considerations."

The CFA schools also gave tentative approval to a similarly worded CFA "safety net" plan to be used if no accommodation is reached with the Pac-10 and Big Ten.

Both plans would let ABC and CBS retain their telecast rights to college football this season. No school will make a final commitment until after the Supreme Court's ruling.

Whatever agreement is eventually worked out, many feel, cannot help but give promotional or recruiting advantages to some schools or leagues.

The only essential difference between the CFA and FTFC plans and the NCAA approach is an open period after 7 p.m. for schools and conferences to sell their games independently.

The period from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. on Saturday would be reserved for national network telecasts. The nighttime open period could be a disadvantage for many independents and conferences like the Big Eight and Big Ten where few stadiums have lights.

"The climate will also be a problem with some people," said Corrigan. "For example, it's one thing to ask people in the Sun Belt to come to a stadium at night in late November to watch a football game, and it's quite another to ask people to do that in South Bend, Indiana."

Orioles Win Two In Weekend Series

By BEN WALKER
AP Sports Writer

After being blown out in the opener of a three-game weekend showdown in the Motor City, the Baltimore Orioles did the next best thing — they settled down to mow down the Detroit Tigers twice, including a nip-and-tuck 2-1 victory in the rubber game.

"The thing you have to admire about Baltimore is that they're probably the best at leaving yesterday behind," Detroit catcher Lance Parrish said Sunday. "That's why they won the World Series. They don't dwell on their defeats. I hope we can learn from that."

It looked like the high-flying Tigers would be doing all the teaching after they scorched the Orioles 14-2 Friday night in the first game of the year between the American League East rivals.

But Baltimore won 5-0 Saturday behind Storm Davis' shutout and then took the Tigers again Sunday as Mike Flanagan tossed a seven-hitter.

The weekend series, which drew 121,722 fans, the best weekend in Tiger Stadium since 1980, left the Orioles in third place, 9½ games in back of Detroit. The two teams play four times in Baltimore next weekend.

Toronto, which got shelled 15-2 by New York Sunday, is 4½ games behind the Tigers. In other AL games, California clipped Cleveland 7-4, Kansas City beat Minnesota 5-2, Boston downed Milwaukee 6-3, Chicago nipped Oakland 3-2 and Seattle routed Texas 10-4.

"We've been reading about the Tigers," said Flanagan, 4-4. "They've always had good hitters. It was a case of two good teams going head-to-head. We got the breaks today."

Baltimore scored twice in the sixth on Cal Ripken's sacrifice fly and two walks by Milt Wilcox, 6-3, the first to Wayne Gross that loaded the bases and a second to John Lowenstein on four pitches to force in a run.

The Tigers scored in seventh on Tom Brooks' two-out home run, his first of the season.

"This isn't what we wanted," Parrish said. "But Toronto lost, too."

Angels 7, Indians 4

Mike Brown's two-run homer capped a four-run seventh-inning that carried California in Cleveland.

Brown's second homer of the season gave the Angels their fifth win in six games. Cleveland lost its ninth game in 10 starts despite two solo home runs and an RBI single by Andre Thornton.

Thornton, who has nine homers this season, was robbed of another one in the fifth inning when left fielder Juan Beniquez reached above the fence to grab his long drive.

The Indians hurt themselves with two outfield errors that accounted for two runs.

California's Rod Carew doubled in the third inning to move into 25th place on the all-time hit list with 2,877.

Yankees 15, Blue Jays 2

New York was trailing 1-0 through three innings before things broke loose in Toronto.

In the fourth inning, Oscar Gamble smacked a two-run homer, his third, and Steve Kemp followed with his second home run and Toby Harrah then followed with his first. The outburst finished off Jim Clancy, 4-5.

By the time the game ended, Kemp had driven in five runs, including a three-run double, and Dave Winfield had singled five times in six at-bats. Kemp is 13 for his last 18.

In all, the Yankees pounded three Blue Jay pitchers for 18 hits.

Phil Niekro, 8-3, went seven innings for the victory.

Royals 5, Twins 2

Kansas City scored all of its runs on home runs in the Metrodome.

George Brett hit his third homer in three days, and his fourth this season, to give the Royals a 2-0 lead in the first.

Darryl Motley hit a two-run shot to lead off the second and added a solo blast in the fourth.

Kansas City's homers came off Frank Viola, 4-6, who pitched a complete game and allowed just three hits besides the home runs while striking out eight.

Red Sox 6, Brewers 3

Tony Armas hit a solo homer during Boston's three-run eighth inning and added a two-run shot in the ninth as the Red Sox completed a three-game sweep in Milwaukee.

Armas went 4-for-5, including a double, and scored three runs. His leadoff homer in the eighth tied the score 2-2. He now has 13 home runs this season.

Milwaukee starter Moose Haas left the game in the fourth inning with a slightly pulled right hamstring after fielding a grounder and throwing to the plate.

White Sox 3, A's 2

Ron Kittle, who earlier in the game hit his 11th home run and is known mostly for his slugging, raced home from third base on a grounder in the bottom of the ninth inning to win it in Chicago.

With one out in the ninth, Kittle drew a walk from Jeff Jones, 0-1. Kittle then broke for second and made it to third as pinch hitter Mike Squires hit a ball that trickled off second baseman Davey Lopes' glove for a single.

Then, with the Oakland infield in, Julio Cruz hit a grounder to Lopes and Kittle headed home. Lopes' throw to the plate sailed wide for an error as Kittle scored.

Kittle hit a solo homer in the fourth to give the White Sox a 2-1 lead.

Wayne County Tops Snow Hill

SNOW HILL — Stan Mozingo ripped a solo homer in the top of the seventh and Wayne County held off Snow Hill for a 12-10 victory Sunday in American Legion Baseball action.

Snow Hill plated three runs in the bottom of the ninth and left the bases loaded. Joey Steppe, Adrian Smith, Michael Warren, Nat Norris and Anthony Russo singled for Snow Hill in the ninth before Wayne County closed the door.

Don Pate led Wayne with three hits in four trips to the plate, while Lynn Thomas and Sean Sullivan had two hits each.

Smith, Russo and Todd Grant had two hits each for Snow Hill.

Snow Hill, now 4-1 on the season, plays at Pitt County tonight at Harrington Field.

Norman Storms To Kemper Open Title

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Australia's Greg Norman has let his fellow pros know in no uncertain terms that he is a force to be reckoned with on the U.S. golf Tour.

And, after winning the Kemper Open on Sunday, he has his sights set on the U.S. Open at Winged Foot in Mamaroneck, N.Y., in two weeks.

"I'm telling them that I'm out here," the 29-year-old Norman said, elated at his five-stroke margin over Mike O'Meara. "I'm a confidence player and when I get confidence, no one in the world can beat me."

Norman, who has won 31 tournaments around the world, led from the start as he took his first U.S. title with a closing round of 73 and a 280 total.

The victory at the par 72, 7,173-yard Congressional Country Club course was worth $72,000 and brought Norman's winnings to $114,425 in 10 events this year, officially his first on the U.S. Tour.

O'Meara took sole possession of second place with a birdie on the last hole after the runnerup position had been held or shared by seven players during the day. He picked up $43,200.

Six players — Mike Reid, Jim Thorpe, Hal Sutton, Mike Donald, Gil Morgan and Scott Hoch, each won $17,100 for sharing third place with a 1-under-par 287.

Hoch and Sutton both had chances to be alone in third place and win $27,200, but each bogeyed the final hole.

Even-par shooters, and winners of $9,600, were Curtis Strange, Hale Irwin, Ralph Landrum, Peter Jacobsen, Scott Simpson and John Mahaffey.

Norman, who now lives at Bay Hill in Orlando, Fla., called the Kemper victory "more of a thrill than any one I've won around the world."

"It means more to me psychologically, confidence in my game," he said. "I was saying to my caddy as I walked down the 17th fairway that they won't be able to stop me from winning here as much as I did overseas."

He said the victory lifted a heavy burden from his back.

"It was a big barrier for me to get up and win here in the States," said Norman, whose biggest victories were in the 1980 Australian Open and the 1980 and 1983 World Match Play. "I tried too hard to win too quickly. You just can't do that in golf. You

Connors Advances After Slow Start

PARIS (AP) — Third-seeded Jimmy Connors of the United States overcame some first-set jitters today and went on to crush Emilio Sanchez of Spain 6-4, 6-1, 6-1 to move into the quarterfinals of the French Open tennis championships.

With the victory, Connors next will play Sweden's Henrik Sundstrom, the No. 9 seed.

In other matches today, second-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia attempted to join tournament favorite John McEnroe in the final eight. Lendl, seeking his first Grand Slam title, played No. 11 Anders Jarryd of Sweden.

In quarterfinal women's matches today, top-seeded Martina Navratilova took on No. 8 Kathy Horvath and third-seeded Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia played 16-year-old amateur Melissa Brown of Scarsdale, N.Y.

Connors, having trouble finding his rhythm and missing the lines, fell behind the 19-year-old Sanchez 3-0 in the opening set.

But after Sanchez held serve to take a 4-1 lead, Connors pulled himself together, playing virtually error-free tennis and winning the next 10 games.

Sanchez, ranked 87th in the world on the Atari-ATP computer, had trouble with his first serve all day. The 31-year-old Connors served well, however, and repeatedly caught the Spaniard flatfooted or going the wrong way on hard-hit cross-court winners.

"Like my last match, I'd never played him before, and it took me a while to get used to his game," Connors said.

"I played very well today after the first four games, as good on clay as I ever have. He's (Sanchez) a good player."

Asked if he was aware that

Sanchez was being coached from the stands — which led to a warning against the Spaniard — Connors said: "They can give all the coaching they want, but once the guy is on the court, he's got to do all the hitting himself."

"I still have a lot of road to cover (in the tournament). But I'm still in there."

Like Connors, McEnroe is still in the hunt, attempting to become the first American since 1955 to master the slow red clay courts of Roland Garros Stadium and win this Grand Slam stop on Volvo Grand Prix. And McEnroe considers this tournament as important as the U.S. Open and Wimbledon.

"Right now, I'd rather win this one than any other," said the 25-year-old New Yorker, who has never gotten beyond the quarterfinals in the men's singles here. "I'm playing well and feel confident I have as good a chance as anyone."

McEnroe moved into the quarterfinals with a 6-4, 7-6, 3-6, 6-3 victory Sunday over clay court specialist Jose Higuera of Spain and now will play fellow American Jimmy Arias, who is seeded fifth.

Higuera, who was seeded 12th in this $1.8-million tournament, had no doubts about McEnroe's chances.

"If he is playing with confidence, he can win on any surface," the Spaniard said of McEnroe. "He is certainly good enough. He just stays back a little longer and waits for the right ball to come in."

McEnroe's victory over Higuera, twice a semifinalist here, was the biggest test yet of his ability to adapt to soft European clay. He had his problems, especially on his serve, and had to survive two 45-minute stoppages for rain at crucial stages in the match.

But, in the end, he passed the test efficiently and now moves on to meet another clay court expert in Arias, who won both the Italian Open and the U.S. Clay Court Championships last year. Arias reached the quarters by downing Brian Gottfried 6-4, 2-6, 6-4, 1-6, 6-2.

Despite his efforts to win here, McEnroe is at odds with the Parisian public and press photographers.

"People boo for the sake of booing when they don't really know what's going on," McEnroe said. "The photographers show a lack of respect for me."

"People just deliberately try to provoke me, it's quite amazing," he said.

While McEnroe was not due on court again until Tuesday,

Navratilova made a quick turnaround.

Fowler, Kelly Lead Gamblers

By The Associated Press

For the record, Todd Fowler and Jim Kelly work well as a team. If there are any doubts, just ask the Denver Gold.

Kelly fired two touchdown passes Sunday to tie the all-time professional football mark of 36 in a season, and Fowler ran up a record of his own, rushing for 208 yards, as the Houston Gamblers whipped the Denver Gold 36-20 in United States Football League action.

Fowler, a tight end in college, was converted to running back by the Gamblers in the pre-season, but his primary duties were expected to be as a blocker. With his fourth 100-plus-yard game, he's proved to be more than that.

"My offensive line knocked out some big holes in the defense, and all the credit should go to them," said Fowler, who eclipsed the previous USFL single-game standard of 200 yards set by teammate Sam Harrell earlier this year. Harrell is on injured reserve with a leg injury.

"What a worker he is," added Fowler's coach Jack Pardee. "He does a heck of a job blocking for Jim Kelly and carrying the football. I didn't realize he had that many yards."

In other games Sunday, Tampa Bay routed New Jersey 40-14 to clinch at least a wild-card playoff berth, Arizona kept its post-season hopes alive with a 38-28 victory over Birmingham, and Los Angeles rallied to defeat Washington 35-21.

In games played Friday night,

Memphis edged New Orleans 20-17, while Michigan eked out a 23-17 overtime victory over San Antonio.

On Saturday night, Vagas Ferguson ran one yard for a touchdown late in the first quarter and Larry Canada added a 14-yard scoring run in the final minutes of the game as the Chicago Blitz beat Oklahoma 14-0, the Outlaws seventh straight setback.

In the only other game Saturday, quarterback Fred Besana set a USFL record of 19 consecutive completions to lead Oakland to its sixth straight victory, a 17-12 triumph over the Jacksonville Bulls, and keep the Invaders' playoff hopes alive.

Besana completed his first 17 passes of the game which, coupled with two from the previous week, established the new league mark — one shy of the National Football League record set in 1983 by Cincinnati Bengals quarterback Kenny Anderson.

The Pittsburgh Maulers visit their cross-state rivals, the Philadelphia Stars, tonight.

Kelly completed 20 of 31 passes for 216 yards and two TDs — an 18-yard strike to Ricky Sanders just before the half, and a 23-yard scoring toss to Scott McGhee early in the fourth quarter to tie the record.

Wranglers 38, Stallions 28
Veteran quarterback Greg Landry passed for three touchdowns and Tim Spencer ran for two, including an 81-yard scamper, as the Wranglers piled up 416 yards in offense and remained in the hunt for a playoff spot.

"I felt like we had to do it or die and then they'd bury us in a ditch," said Coach George Allen. "If we win the final three games, we will go to the playoffs."

"This was unquestionably our biggest win," added Allen. "We came in here 10-point underdogs and beat them in their own backyard by 10 points. We showed a lot of character, toughness and guts, and that's what life is all about."

Cliff Stoudt tossed three touchdown passes for Birmingham. Bandits 40, Generals 14

Injured wide receiver Willie Gillespie, who played sparingly the past two weeks, overcame soreness in his ankles and the haunting memory of a childhood friend who died last week to help Tampa Bay claim at least a wild-card berth in the playoffs.

Gillespie only planned to hold on kicks against the Generals, but when starting wide receiver Eric Truvillion hurt an ankle, Gillespie was pressed into service and responded by catching four passes for 80 yards and two touchdowns.

Express 35, Federals 21

Kevin Mack ran for 141 yards, including a 71-yard jaunt late in the game, as Los Angeles rebounded from an 11-point deficit to move over the .500 mark for the first time in 10 weeks and tie Denver for first place in the Pacific Division.

Mike Hohensee hurled two TD passes for the Federals, whose 2-13 record is the worst in the league.

Labonte Cruises To Budweiser 500 Win

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Turn nine at Riverside International Raceway, where Terry Labonte once slammed into the wall in a violent crash, didn't scare him during the Budweiser 400, the young stock car driver said.

"I just shut my eyes when I went into that turn," Labonte said, laughing Sunday after he'd won the Budweiser 400 NASCAR race at Riverside.

"On the other hand, it would have been hard to shut my eyes every time, since I had to go around there 95 times," added Labonte, who suffered facial injuries and a number of fractures in the 1982 accident at Riverside.

Labonte, a 27-year-old driver who'd won just two NASCAR races previously, took the lead for good after a quick pit stop on the 73rd lap, finishing the 95-lap event a comfortable 9.4 seconds in front of Benny Parsons, who was filling in for Neil Bonnett.

Bobby Allison, the leader at three different stages of the race, finished third.

Labonte, who'd won the pole position in his Chevrolet, took the lead for keeps when his pit crew got him in and out in 29 seconds, as Allison, who pitted at the same time, was in nearly five seconds longer and dropped to second.

"I think my pit crew was the difference in the race," said Labonte.

Tim Richmond made a run at Labonte later, moving up right behind the frontrunner.

Pepsi erupted for six runs in the bottom of the first, then held off the Moose for a 14-8 victory in Little League baseball action Sunday.

Brian Moore, Eric Huber and Richey Grimsley went 2-3 for Pepsi, while Will Makenzie and Shonete Moye went 2-4.

Calvin Reddick had three hits for Moose, and Chris Christopher added a pair.

Pepsi added three more in the second, one in the third and four in the fifth for the victory.
- Moose plated a lone run in the fourth, then added five in the fifth and two in the sixth.

Exchange.....9

First Federal.....4

Grant Harmon slapped three hits and Maurice Battle added two as Exchange defeated First Federal 9-4 Sunday in Little League baseball.

Harmon and Battle also combined for the victory on the mound, allowing just six hits.

Michael Cox and Drew Johnson had two hits each for First Federal.

Exchange led 5-1 after three innings, then added a pair in the fourth and two more in the sixth. First Federal plated three runs in the bottom of the sixth.

Coca-Cola.....5

Optimist.....0

Derrick Clark fired a one-hitter and Coca-Cola needed five hits to take a 5-0 victory over the Optimist Sunday in North State Little League baseball action.

Derrick Clark was the only batter in the game with two hits, while Heath Clark got the only Optimist single in the sixth.

David O'Neal, Walter Gatlin and Derrick Hines scored in the bottom of the first to give Coke the only runs it needed. Coca-Cola added two more in the third.

Union Carbide.....16

Jaycees.....6

Jonathan Powers ripped a homer, but Union Carbide used 10 hits and 15 walks to take a 16-6 victory over the Jaycees Sunday in North State Little League baseball action.

William Gibbs went the distance on the mound for Union Carbide, scattering three hits.

Andre Hopkins went 3-5, Abram

Long 2-3 and Rusty Edmundson 2-5 to lead Union Carbide. Rodney Williams paced the Jaycees with two hits in three at bats.

Union Carbide scored twice in the first inning, then broke the game with five in the third — capped by Powers blast.

Babe Ruth

Wachovia.....12

Pepsi.....2

Dallas McPherson fired a two hitter and Lee Eakes had two hits to lead Wachovia to a 12-2 win over Pepsi Sunday in Babe Ruth League baseball.

After scoring once in the opening frame, Wachovia added five more in the second to put the game out of reach. Wachovia managed just five hits but took advantage of walks and wild pitches to score its runs.

Planters Bank.....20

Coca-Cola.....7

Tim Clark fired a four-hitter and Planters Bank pounded out 15 hits to take a 20-7 win over Coca-Cola Sunday in Babe Ruth League baseball action.

Timmie Gilliam went 3-3 and Clark 3-4 to lead Planters at the plate. Eric Jarman and Donald Perkins went 2-3, while Jason Galloway and Greg Jones went 2-4.

Gilliam singled in a pair of runs in the first as Planters plated four runs to take command. Two more in the second were followed by 10 in the third.

'Real Thing' and 'La Cage' Big Tony Winners

By MARY CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "La Cage aux folles" and "The Real Thing" dominated the 38th annual Tony awards for the best of the 1983-84 Broadway season, but the biggest applause went to a notable omission from the honor roll — Dustin Hoffman.

"La Cage," about two male lovers who run a nightclub on the French Riviera, won six Tonys, including best musical Sunday night. While "The Real Thing" took five Tonys in drama categories, including best director for Mike Nichols.

George Hearn won best actor in a musical for "La Cage." Jerry Herman, who wrote words and music, won best score. Arthur Laurents won best director. Author Harvey Fierstein won best book and Theoni V. Aldredge won best costume design.

"Sunday in the Park with George," the Stephen Sondheim musical which had been considered the main competition for "La Cage," got only two awards.

Three of the actors from "The Real Thing" won their categories: Jeremy Irons, who finds real love with his second wife, and Glenn Close, the second wife, were named best actor and actress in a play. Christine Baranski, the first wife, won as best featured actress in a play.

Hoffman, star of "Death of a Salesman," received a standing ovation when he appeared on stage to present the best play award to author Tom Stoppard for "The Real Thing."

Hoffman's revival of the Arthur Miller play was nominated only in the best reproduction category, which it won.

In his acceptance speech, Irons spoke of "extraordinary performances I've seen on Broadway, both those nominated and unominated." Later, he said that he was referring to the lack of a nomination for Hoffman, which, along with the omissions of co-stars Kate Reid and John Malkovich and "Salesman's" director and technical staff, had upset many in the theater community.

When "Death of a Salesman" was cited as best reproduction, no one appeared to accept the award. Presenter Tony Randall explained that one producer, Robert Whitehead, was in Australia and the other, Roger L. Stevens, sent word that he was "preoccupied in Washington."

But Hoffman, who appeared wearing a tuxedo and his Willy

Loman hat, was enthusiastically applauded by the black-tie crowd.

Miss Close spoke of a $50 bet she lost with "Real Thing" property man Earl Kirby, who thought she'd win. Miss Baranski said she'll consider her Tony "a souvenir of a fertile time in my life" — she and her husband, actor Matthew Cowles, expect their first baby in September.

Chita Rivera, nominated for "The Rink," won as best actress in a musical, besting Liza Minnelli, who plays her daughter. It was Miss Rivera's fifth Tony nomination since starting on Broadway as a principal dancer in "Call Me Madam," and her first Tony award.

Hinton Battle of "The Tap Dance Kid" said he would put his new Tony as featured actor in a musical next to his Tony in the same category for "Sophisticated Ladies." Dances in "Tap Dance Kid" also won for choreographer Danny Daniels.

Lila Kedrova, making her Broadway debut in "Zorba" with Anthony Quinn, in the same role which won her an Oscar for the movie "Zorba the Greek," said she was as excited as she seemed to be when accepting the award for best featured actress in a musical. "Also I hadn't eaten," she said.

The Tony awards, named for Antoinette Perry of the American Theater Wing during World War II, were handed out in the Gershwin Theater and televised on CBS. Nominations are made by a 12-member panel, and 670 theater professionals and journalists vote.

Joe Mantegna, playing a smooth real-estate salesman in "Glengarry Glen Ross," won the Tony as best featured actor in a play. The play, by David Mamet, won the Pulitzer Prize this year.

Tony Straiges won for best scenery and Richard Nelson won for lighting design for "Sunday in the Park with George."

Special Tony awards went to the Old Globe Theater in San Diego;

Peter Feller, who has built 1,300 Broadway and road productions; and Peter Brook's "La Tragedie de Carmen," the opera "Carmen" re-worked, for outstanding achievement in musical theater. A 14-karat statuette went to Joseph Papp, producer of "A Chorus Line," Broadway's longest-running show.

The new Brooks Atkinson Award, named for the late New York Times critic, went to Al Hirschfeld, who has been drawing theater cartoons for the Times for 60 years.

Executive producer Alexander H. Cohen told the audience that a Broadway theater will be named for Ethel Merman next year.

'M-A-S-H' Products

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The popularity of the old "M-A-S-H" series apparently has not waned despite its absence from television. New "M-A-S-H" merchandise — bathing suits, towels and jeans — will hit the market this summer.

"Tushes of all different sizes are going to be covered with camouflage bikinis," said Chuck Ashman, who heads product licensing for 20th Century Fox, the makers of "M-A-S-H."

The new "M-A-S-H" products will be released through such stores as Sears, K-Mart and J.C. Penney and in specialty shops.

Ashman said more than 500 "M-A-S-H" products have been introduced since the first season of the series. They include everything from games to sleeping bags to beer. Last year about $10 million worth of products were sold, he said.

'Fling' Choice For ABC Movie

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Patti Massman and Pamela Beck wanted to write movies, so they wrote a novel that they are now translating into a screenplay.

Actually, the book, "Fling," was written first as a screenplay.

"A friend read the script and said: 'Gee, this would make a great novel. You could get into the psychology of the characters,'" said Miss Massman. "We never dreamed it would take us three years to do, and Pamela would have two babies during the course of writing the book."

The plot underwent so many changes that it was quite a different story from the original script by the time the book was published by M. Evans Co.

Aaron Spelling Productions bought the television film rights and hired the two women to write the screenplay for an ABC movie next season.

TOWN OF BETHEL
ADVERTISEMENT OF TAX LIENS
ON REAL PROPERTY
Under and by virtue of the authority vested in me by Section 105-369 of the North Carolina General Statutes and pursuant to an order of the Board of Commissioners of the Town of Bethel, dated April 3, 1984, I am advertising tax liens for the year 1983 upon the real estate described below. The amount advertised will be increased by interest and costs, and the omission of interest and costs from the amount advertised will not constitute a waiver of the taxing unit's claim for those items. The name of the person to whom the property is listed for taxes, and the principal amount of the taxes are set out below. If the taxes remain unpaid, the lien will be foreclosed by the taxing unit and the property sold to satisfy the taxing unit's claim for taxes.

Memorial Day Memories Linger For Stokes Co. Residents

DANBURY, N.C. (AP) — People in Stokes County are trying to get on with their lives, despite the memories of the tragedies that struck Memorial Day weekend.

"It was a shock to everybody," said Donna Baker, a dispatcher with the Stokes County Sheriff's Department. "I believe I've seen enough death."

A popular North Stokes High School teacher was killed May 29 in a traffic accident. The next day, a 15-year-old Danbury boy shot and killed his father, apparently after an argument.

A young Lawsonville couple died Sunday in a house trailer fire that apparently was started by lightning. And on Monday, a 16-year-old King girl drowned in a flash flood that swept her car off a road not far from her home.

Hundreds of people lined up Wednesday at Slate Funeral Home in King to pay their last respects to the family of Tammy Kay Sauvageau. Tammy's older brother, Allen, who graduates from South Stokes High School this week, appeared to be holding up well.

"I heard him tell some friends that he was doing pretty good at first, but that when he finally let go, it really tore him up," said Candy Hobert, 19, of Walnut Cove.

Fred Musten had been an auto mechanics instructor at North Stokes High School in Lawsonville for 14 years. Teachers and students have prepared for the end of the school year in a subdued manner.

"We're coming to the end of the school, and the work and responsibilities of that have helped ease the pain to some degree," said Eugene Lyons, the school's principal. "There's so much to do, we're pulling together."

Lyons last saw Musten, 54, at a going away party Friday afternoon. Lyons, the school's only principal, is retiring after 20 years in the post. Musten died in an accident en route to Winston-Salem after Lyons' going away party.

On Sunday, Lyons learned of the deaths of his former students, Rickey and Lisa Williams. Williams had rescued the couple's year-old daughter, April, from their burning home before rushing back to try to save his wife. The Williamses had met at North Stokes High School.

The recent tragedies have drawn the school together, said Lyons. "We've developed a closeness, a bond. The teachers and pupils are much closer than previously."

In addition to the deaths in Stokes County, tobacco crops were lost in the flash flooding Monday. And many homeowners learned last week that flood damage to their homes isn't covered by insurance.

"For anybody with a two- or three-or four-thousand-dollar-loss, it's going to be tough," said Robert E. Marziano, mayor of King. "But people up here are tough. They will tighten their belts and go on."

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♥A8742 ♦A6 ♠AK9873
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ 1 ♦ 2 ♥ 2 ♦
What do you bid now?
A.—If you were to bid what you think you can make, we would suggest you bounce into seven hearts. However, that is not the problem here — you must try to buy the contract. If you leap to any slam, it is almost certain the opponents, who are not vulnerable, will sacrifice — and the price rates to be very cheap indeed. Therefore, we suggest you make a tactical underbid of four hearts. Should the opponents save at the four-level, bid five hearts, and continue raising hearts in the hope that the opponents, at some point, will feel that they have pushed you to too high a level and let you play the hand.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠6 ♥AJ1085 ♦AJ53 ♣Q102
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Dble 2 ♥ Pass
What action do you take?
A.—Again, this is not so much a question as what your side can make, but what the opponents' potential is. What has happened to the spade suit? If you pass tamely, West will double again and the opponents will find their spade fit at the two-level. You can make life difficult for West by rebidding three hearts now.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AQJ643 ♥K1093 ♦8 ♣Q7
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 NT Pass
What do you bid now?
A.—Usually, with this type of 6-4 distribution you bid your higher-ranking, six-card suit first and then your lower-ranking, four-card suit. However, when your long suit is a major, there are other considerations. The rule we adopt and recommend highly is to rebid the six-card major suit with minimum opening bid, but to show a secondary four-card suit on hands that are better than minimum.

Q.4—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠QJ108 ♥K6 ♦843 ♣9872
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♦ Pass 1 NT Pass
2 ♥ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
3 ♦ Pass 4 ♦ Pass
Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—This is the time to forget about the point count. East-West have staggered into game with nothing to spare in the way of high cards. While you have only 6 HCP, you are a heavy favorite to take at least three tricks on defense. The cards are not lying well for your opponents. Capitalize on it with a double.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠954 ♥AK1062 ♦5 ♣KQ83
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ 2 ♦* 3 ♦ 3 ♦
4 ♦ Pass 4 ♥ 4 ♦
5 ♥ 5 ♦ Pass Pass
*Preemptive
What action do you take?
A.—Partner's pass is forcing, so you must not pass. Partner surely has a singleton spade at most, and two aces for his strong bidding. Since your hands fit exceptionally well, 12 tricks should not prove too difficult. Bid six hearts.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠8 ♥107632 ♦J632 ♣AK8
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♦ 3 ♥* 4 ♦ ?
*Preemptive
What action do you take?
A.—Certainly you are prepared to sacrifice at five hearts. However, you should prepare for the possibility that the opponents will bid on in spades, and that partner will be on lead. Since a heart lead is likely to prove futile at best, bid five clubs to tell partner what you want led — you can convert to hearts if the opponents double.
