Crimestoppers Turning To TV For Leads

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

As an A&P employee was depositing money into the Branch Banking and Trust Co. around 11 p.m. one night in October 1982, a man with a sawed-off shotgun gunned him down and made off with the money. The employee died and the money has not been recovered.

Although the Greenville Police Department has been working to solve the crime in the two years since it occurred, recently the case has come to a standstill. But the murderer may yet be caught thanks to a television advertisement.

A re-enactment of the murder-robbery at a Greenville branch of BB&T is being aired on local station WNCT-TV. The purpose of the advertisement is to inform the public about the Crimestoppers program and to jar the public's memory about the crime. The Greenville Police Department and the Pitt-Greenville Crimestoppers say they hope that additional information about this case will be furnished by the public and that the crime will be solved.

Detective Sgt. Doug Jackson of the Greenville Police Department, a full-time employee of Crimestoppers, said that he expects the public to respond to the advertisement with information about the crime.

"In every city that has a Crimestoppers program, calls from the public have resulted in arrests and recovery of stolen property," Jackson said. "This is one of the best programs, in my opinion, that has come along in a while."

Jackson said the Crimestoppers commercial was filmed in February this year. "I contacted Edgar Loessin in the drama department (at East Carolina University) and Roy Hardee at WNCT about making the commercial after I had done research on the crime at the police department," he said. "WNCT sent a crew to film the commercial and the drama department sent actors and costumes. The only thing the police department had to furnish was the sawed-off shotgun that was used in the commercial." The services of WNCT and the drama department were donated, as is the air time for the commercial.

The commercial was shot at the scene of the crime at the same time of night that the murder-robbery occurred. Jackson said that the 60 second commercial took 3 1/2 hours to complete.

"Now we have put the commercial on television hoping that someone will see it and call in with information," Jackson said.

Crimestoppers can pay up to $1,000 for information on any crime and the caller doesn't have to reveal his identity, he said. There is now a total reward of $13,500 for the particular crime re-enacted in the television commercial, he added; in addition to the $1,000 reward offered by Crimestoppers, reward money has been donated by A&P and the governor's office.

"Every time there is a little bit of extra attention given to Crimestoppers, the calls almost double," Jackson said. "The commercial began running late last week, and one call had come in Monday morning."

In addition to the television commercial, Naegele has donated five billboards for use by Crimestoppers throughout this month. The Daily Reflector runs a free advertisement for the organization.

Crimestoppers is a chartered, non-profit organization with a civilian board of directors. All the funds used for rewards or for the organizations programs are contributed by the public. Jackson, the organization's only full-time employee, is assisted by volunteers.

Jackson said that Crimestoppers will continue the advertisements with re-enactments of other serious crimes that take place in Pitt County. The drama department and WNCT have agreed to help with future Crimestoppers commercials.

"We had already decided to do a re-enactment of the murder over in Bethel, but the case was solved," Jackson said.

Crimestoppers can be reached by calling 758-7777 Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Jackson urges anyone with information concerning any crime to contact the organization.

Escapee Search Reaches Oxford

OXFORD, N.C. (AP) — Heavily armed lawmen combed shacks, warehouses and cars today in a residential area about a mile from a convenience store where hours earlier a clerk said one of four fugitive killers had demanded food.

But the search was fruitless, and authorities went to the Oxford Police Station late this morning to map new strategy.

"We're just standing by for another wild goose chase," said Jim Whitehurst, a helicopter pilot with the Virginia State Police.

Whitehurst said a neighborhood woman had reported that a man matching the description of Linwood Briley was lurking nearby. Briley and five other inmates escaped from Virginia's death row last week. Four remain at large.

About 20 officers lay prone around one abandoned dwelling on the outskirts of Oxford near railroad tracks, while helicopters circled overhead. About two hours later, police entered the house and found nothing.

The searchers moved down the street, examining the area and interviewing residents, before heading to the police station unconvinced that the fugitives were anywhere near.

Collin Richardson, 21, said a man matching Briley's description entered the Snack Shack in Oxford about 9:30 p.m. Monday and told him "not to use the phone, that he was hungry and that he wanted some food," said Russ Edmonston, a spokesman for the state Department of Crime Control and Public Safety.

"He was sort of nervous," Richardson said. "But as soon as he came in, he walked over and said he was on the run and that he needed something to eat. He told me, 'Don't use the phone and you'll be okay.' He told me nothing would happen if I didn't bother the phone."

Budget Approved For Housing Units

By SUE HINSON

The Greenville Housing Authority approved a $335,000 budget for operation of University Towers during its regular board meeting Monday night. The budget will now be sent to Housing Authority Trustees for final approval.

Included in the $335,000 are a $30,000 surplus, $194,500 designated for debt service to pay off bonds, and a 5 percent increase totaling $15,000 given to the authority by the Department of Housing and Urban Development to offset an expected 10 percent increase in utilities, Authority Director Joe Laney said.

According to Laney, the 10 percent increase in utilities will add an additional $59 per unit per month which will be picked up by the authority. "Residents will not be responsible for this increase," Laney said.

In additional business, Laney reported that the West Meadowbrook project across the river is 50 percent complete and that the authority expects some of the 40 units to be ready for occupancy by mid to late August. "I don't believe that we'll have any trouble filling the units,"

Voting Is Light

Fewer persons are voting today than did in the May 8 primary, according to spot checks of several polling places shortly after 10 o'clock this morning.

Jim Hix at the No. 1 Fire Station in Greenville reported that the turnout was about 80 percent of that of the May 8 primary — 80 by 10 a.m., when 101 had voted by that hour May 8. "This is good for a runoff," he commented.

Workers at the Fountain and Bell Arthur polling places each reported 54 having voted. An Ayden worker said 202 had voted there, "slow for this time of day." Bethel worker Janet Davis said 120 had voted in Bethel by 10:40 a.m.

"Usually our best turnout is in late afternoon," Nell Gardner in Fountain said, "so it's too early to tell just how good it's going to be."

Pollholders are reminded to phone The Daily Reflector with results as soon as counting is completed. The number is 752-6166.

The Greenville Board of Education wants to hold up consideration of its fiscal 1984-85 operating budget until after it and the Pitt County school board reach a decision on what route they will take on merger.

Bond Plan OK'd

The Greenville City Council passed a resolution authorizing procedures for the sale of net-debt reduction bonds during a special call meeting Monday at City Hall.

The resolution called for the consolidation of bonds issued in April into a single issue of $926,000 to be designated public improvement bonds. The bonds were previously broken into $132,000 in Cemetery Bonds; $80,000, land acquisition bonds; $140,000, library bonds, and $574,000 in street improvement bonds. To accomplish the delay, the board agreed Monday night to seek permission to retrieve its budget proposal — which was presented to the County Commissioners May 15 — and resubmit it later.

A resolution approved by the school board requests that the city schools "be granted an extension on the resubmission of its Fiscal Year 1984-85 budget request and that the deadline for resubmission to be affixed as 15 days following a decision of the two boards of education (city and county) on the alternative(s) identified in the Research Triangle Institute (RTI) Study (merger study) for resolving the critical issues identified in the study."

The resolution, presented to the board by Superintendent Delma Blinson, refers to findings in the study relating to "the critical problems facing public education in Pitt County" which further notes "failure to address these problems could seriously jeopardize the ability of both school systems to maintain quality programs."

Prior to the 8 p.m. school board meeting, members of the board met with Mayor Janice Buck, City Manager Gail Meeks and city council members in an informal workshop discussion period.

School board chairman Jack Wall briefly informed council members of (Please turn to page 10)

Enriching Experiences In U.S. For Exchange Students

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

Exchange students visiting in the Greenville area have had many opportunities to grow and learn about themselves. For some of the teen-agers in the American Cultural Student Exchange, the nine months they have spent in North Carolina allowed them to develop a new skill; some learned about themselves. All the students agreed that their experiences in the United States were rewarding and enriching.

Sports have developed into more than a hobby for Patrik Nillson of Lomma, Sweden. While living with the Elmer Flake family in Farmville, Patrik was able to play football, a sport which was new to him, and his experience has changed his life.

"In Sweden the main sports are soccer, ice hockey, tennis and skiing," Patrik said. "We also play a type of handball played by a team and with a bigger ball and goals. But there is no football in Sweden."

"I knew about football before I came here, but I had never played it," he added. "I tried out as a kicker for the Farmville Central football team and I made it. In the third football game I played in, I kicked a field goal." Patrik said he is a soccer-style kicker and his background playing soccer helped him in football.

The Farmville Central football team advanced to the state semifinals this year. Patrik said he didn't realize football was "so big" here.

Playing football has changed Patrik's life. "I want to go to East Carolina University to play soccer or kick football," he said. "I talked to the coaches about it and have taken a test" to get into the university.

Patrik said that in Sweden he is the secretary of a political organization called the Moderate Youth Organization. The organization has debates and speakers.

"I couldn't have played tennis with a senator's wife in Spain," said Pedro Gener of Madrid, Spain. Sports are an important part of Pedro's life, and he has been able to develop his athletic prowess here in Greenville. He has lived with Dr. and Mrs. William S. Bost and family.

"I played tennis with Mrs. John East," Pedro said. "I played on the tennis team at Rose High." He also played on Rose's soccer team.

"We don't have school teams in Spain," he said. "We have leagues and clubs between the schools, but the sports aren't organized. I played tennis for a club in Spain. Soccer in Spain is like baseball is here; everyone plays it."

Pedro said that playing the sports here helped him make friends and gave him confidence. "I went to soccer practice before I had started school here," he said. "I already knew some people before I went to school."

"In the United States, you have the opportunities to become good at the sport you want to play," he said. "Here you are given opportunities to learn sports and play sports well."

"The opportunity to go to college is better here also," Pedro said. "Here you can get a sports or educational scholarship to college. There aren't such scholarships in Spain."

Arttu Huhtiniemi of Helsinki, Finland, enjoys traveling. His trip to the United States has included several trips to various locations.

"I went to Florida and to the

beach in North Carolina," Arttu said, showing me his tan, which he said is darker than any tan he has ever had.

"I also went to New York City and saw a Broadway play, 'A Chorus Line.' And I went to Washington, D.C. The whole town is a museum. It is full of monuments."

When he gets home, Arttu can't wait to show his friends the walkman he bought while he was here. "They have walkmans in Finland, but they are more expensive and not many people have them," Arttu said. He said that Finnish teen-agers listen to the same music that American teen-agers enjoy.

Mr. and Mrs. Connie Hines of Greenville are Arttu's host family. He said parents here are stricter than those in Finland.

Studying computers at J.H. Rose High School has been an important experience for Didier Uzan of Paris, France.

"I had taken an introduction to computers at my school in Paris," he said, "but I couldn't have taken a course like I had here. The course will change my future because I want to study business and computers at an American college in Paris."

Didier said he had taken five years of English before he came to the United States but because his lessons were held for only two hours a week, it was the equivalent of taking a foreign language for two or three years here. "The first three months I was here it was tough," Didier said.

He mentioned that people in France dress to look like Americans, while Americans attempt to look French.

While in Greenville, Didier lived with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Gantz. He said he was glad he was able to visit a small town in the United States. "By seeing a small town, you see what small towns are like all over the United States," Didier said. "The United States is full of Greenvilles."

He said that teen-agers have more freedom in France than they do here. "Here you have a car and have more opportunities to have freedom, but the teen-agers don't use it."

"I have learned a lot about myself since I have been in the United States," said Magnus Westerberg of

MAGNUS WESTERBERG

Frosom, Sweden. "To leave family and friends and come to a new country where everything is different was a good thing for me. It makes you get used to new things."

"When I go back to Sweden, I will value things there more," he added. "When I return, I will see things I hadn't really noticed and I appreciate them more."

Magnus has lived with the Charles Smith family.

He enjoys American football. He also likes being able to choose the

U.S. Trip Changed Kate Jamieson's Outlook On Life

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

When Kate Jamieson left her home in Nottingham, England, for the United States on a Greenville Rotary Club international exchange scholarship, she had finished her formal schooling. She was planning to go to a technical college and take secretarial courses. She was not looking forward to a career as a secretary, but she had no other choice.

"My trip to the United States has changed my entire outlook on life," Kate said. "I now have more hope for the future."

The 16-year-old blonde has been living with Mr. and Mrs. George Coffman in Greenville during her stay in the United States. Although she had finished her high school courses in England, Kate became a member of the junior class at J.H. Rose High School and continued her education here.

"I finished high school in England in May," Kate said. She noted that the educational system in the United States is completely different than the English system.

"At the age of 13, English students are put into 'streams' according to educational ability," Kate said. "Then at age 15, they take a test which includes all subjects they have taken to decide their educational level." She said that the O level is for the brightest students (only 8-12 percent of all students in England) who will be able to continue their education to the university level; students placed in the CSE level finish their education at age 16 and are only allowed to attend a technical college.

"There is really no future for you if you are placed in CSE," she said. "You don't have to achieve if you are in that level, so students don't try very hard in school."

"Students in England go into the work force without preparation," Kate said. "Only a fortunate few are allowed to go on with their education; they become the elite who run the government and businesses. The rest of the students aren't given the opportunity to achieve academically. A lot of my friends are already trying to find jobs or are working. Some people don't want to have to work; they sign a form and get money every week (like unemployment.)"

Kate said that her experience with education in the United States has been different from that of England.

"School is harder here," Kate said. "There is more homework and students take school much more seriously here than they do in England. Everyone wants to make straight A's here."

She added that there aren't any cheerleaders and bands in England and students wear school uniforms.

A major difference Kate found in American schools is the athletic programs.

"Students play softball and football in physical education classes here," she said. "In England, physical education classes include track and field, tennis, swim, gymnastics and rounders." She said that rounders is "a bit like softball. It is played with a smaller ball and bat and four posts instead of bases."

Dear Pat: Your recent column on the use of wool vs. synthetic yarn brought back memories. In 1962 I learned to crochet Granny squares. My afghan took months to complete but I enjoyed it and was inspired to learn to knit a sweater.

I chose instructions for a simple sweater and went to a yarn shop to purchase yarn and needles. When I told the shop owner about making my afghan with synthetic yarn she said, "Oh no — it will fall apart!" I was heartsick. All that work!

I bought wool for my sweater. After 22 years, the sweater is long gone and the afghan, which has had regular use, has been washed and dried by machine many times and is still in excellent condition. (I never bought yarn from that shop again.)

I kept on knitting, however, and later got my husband interested in knitting, too. Together we have made between 25 and 30 Aran pattern sweaters for family members, other relatives and friends. The first few were of natural Irish wool, but then we received requests for synthetic knits because of the ease of laundering.

Then I got the urge to try colored yarns instead of the usual off-white, even though many told me it just wasn't the thing to do. My first mauve Aran sweater received compliments at every wearing and after six years, I'm still proud to wear it. Since that first break with tradition, I have knitted sweaters in a soft gray-blue, gold, dark brown, boysenberry and pumpkin orange. We use synthetic sport weight and size 6 needles.

My husband is a stickler for gauge, but he doesn't make sample swatches. Instead, he starts every sweater with a sleeve. He can work out the gauge and still have a sleeve partly done. Since he is an experienced knitter, he can pretty well judge what size needle he needs before he starts, but when he is a little off, the correction can be made on the sleeve without being noticeable and with no wasted effort.

We knit pattern stitch sweaters in three different sizes for different people. We find it difficult to refer back to the instructions frequently for each particular size. So, before beginning a project, we write out the pattern instructions for the size we are doing row by row on a sheet of paper with a separate sheet for back, front and sleeves.

It is much easier and faster than referring over and over to the book of instructions. We staple the sheets together and reserve them for future use with that size. We hope these hints are useful as we have found yours in the past. — Myrtis Struthers, Kirkland, Wash.

Many, many thanks for your warm, enthusiastic and ever-so-helpful letter, Myrtis!

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I have a serious problem. I am a 20-year-old woman who is in love with two men—a father and his son.

I met them both at the same time and was immediately attracted to the father. He is 40. He was attracted to me, too, and we had sex together the very first night I met him. He told me he was living with a lady, so if we were to be lovers he would have to be very careful. We would arrange to meet for a few hours at his son's apartment. The son is 21 and goes to college.

Well, one afternoon while waiting for the father (who never did show up), I became involved (sex) with the son, who had more to offer (sexwise) than his father, so that's how I became confused between the two of them.

The son says he loves me, and so does the father. I love them both. What should I do?

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: The "confusion" you feel is a valuable warning signal. You need counseling to learn the difference between sex and love.

It appears that not only are you using the father and son, they are also using you. Forget them both. They are double trouble.

U.S. Trip Changed...

The sports teams in England practice twice a week on their lunch hour and have meets after school, Kate said. Boys teams include rugby, cricket, tennis, swimming and track and field. Girls sporting teams consist of tennis, netball, rounders, gymnastics and field hockey.

In England, Kate was on all of her school's girls teams except field hockey. At Rose, she was on the diving team and was awarded a varsity letter for her participation.

Because of the educational opportunities available in the United States, Kate has realized that her interests in athletics can develop into a career. Her family is moving to Connecticut in a few months, and Kate said she will take advantage of this move by finishing high school and attending college to major in physical education. She said that she

KATE JAMIESON

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a landscaper, and right now he's working on a job that has a lot of apartments. I always ask him what his day was like, and he always has some interesting stories to tell me.

For the last two weeks he's been talking about this nice-looking red-haired lady who tells him what a great tree trimmer he is. Yesterday he told me that she came out with her flatiron in one hand, a roll of electrical tape in the other and helplessly asked, "Is this what you call electrical tape?" Of course he fixed her iron during his break, and she gave him a cold beer for his help.

He said the men at work asked him if he had something going with the redhead. (Then he laughed.) He failed to tell me whether he fixed her iron inside her apartment or out.

Maybe I'm too touchy, but I don't feel comfortable when my husband's co-workers ask him if he has something going. Should I worry?

STAY-AT-HOME WIFE

DEAR WIFE: No. Your husband sounds like an accommodating fellow who makes friends easily. Don't worry. It's the husband who comes home with no stories to tell, never meets anybody and nothing ever happens to that I'd worry about.

could not have majored in physical education if she was living in England.

"I have mixed emotions about leaving England; I will miss my home and my friends," Kate said. "But I know that things will be better for me here."

Kate said that some of the things she will miss about England include fish and chips and the milkman delivering milk.

"Cars are bigger here and houses are more spread out," she said. "In England, the houses are close together and are always two-story. There are more one-story houses here."

"There are more fast food restaurants here," she added, "and people eat more here."

She said that in England there are specialty shops instead of large grocery stores. "You go to a little shop to buy your meat and another little shop to buy fish and a separate shop for bread," Kate said. "Service is more personalized."

Another difference between England and the United States is clothing. "People dress more conservatively here," Kate said. "People dress wilder in England. They have spiked hair that is different colors and they dress to be original. It is like a competition to see who can wear the wildest clothes. Everyone here wears the same style. In England you try to make your own style."

Television and the telephone are also different. "There are four channels to television at home and no Showtime or MTV (Music Television)," Kate said. "Another difference is that there is no charge for long distance telephone calls in England. You pay the same price whether you make a local call or a long distance call."

Teen-agers in England have places where they gather for entertainment. "In England, you have to be 18 to drink alcohol, but you can go to bars and drink soft drinks when you are 16," Kate said. "In Nottingham, we have a youth club where teen-agers get together and talk and listen to music. We also go to video bars which have a dance floor and a disc jockey who plays music." She said it is expensive to go to the movies in England.

Kate said that she has had several new experiences while visiting in the United States. She learned to drive a car here; a driver's license can be obtained at the age of 17. She also has learned to water ski.

Because of her Rotary exchange experience, Kate believes that her life has been changed — for the better.

"I have learned that you can do anything you want to here," Kate said. "You have more opportunities to become what you want to be."

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

Every time I go through a small town in Arizona, I think of the old Henny Youngman joke. "My brother-in-law is a real loser. He opened up a tall man's shop in Tokyo."

The reason this joke comes to mind is that this is the smallest town I have ever seen in my entire life. How small is it? It's too small for a REDUCE SPEED sign. It has to rent a town drunk. You could carpet the downtown area for $29.95. It has two buildings. One is a gas station-general store. The other is — brace yourself — a Doggie Boutique.

I swear it. There are never any cars parked in front of it, but the window is always attractive with plush canine beds, jeweled collars, little sweaters and one Christmas on the door there was a wreath decorated with dog bones.

As I drive through the countryside dotted with ranches, pickup trucks and open range, I somehow don't see this as the Rodeo Drive for dogs.

It's not the first time I have been consumed with curiosity over how a small business opened in a small town in the first place. How many people in a community of 500 could support a shop called "Trashy Underwear"? Why is there a long stretch of dirt road in a rural community with a small sign that says, "Computer Center: 500 Yards"?

We lived in a town once where you had to drive 18 miles to get a quart of milk, get your laundry done or a prescription filled, but if you wanted a karate school, you could walk there.

These small storefronts seem as ludicrous as opening up a birth control center in a retirement community. Yet, they're the stuff that keeps Charles Kuralt in oil for his gas guzzler.

Are these shops the ultimate dream of a woman whose children are grown and who for the first time has a chance to open a bath shop with designer seats? Are they the compromise of a man who dreamed of fishing four days a week and cleaning jewelry on the other three? Or is it a stubborn desire to challenge those who would beat a path to a better mousetrap?

I can't help but admire the pioneer spirit that converts a feed store into an aerobics studio or leases a space in a bar for a health food store.

It's that rare quality that I confronted a few weeks ago when we dropped by a remote diner in the middle of nowhere. There were five tables and a small counter with four stools. The grill was unattended but hot dogs twirled around on a spit. There was a dog asleep under one of the chairs. The place was empty. As I started to take a seat, a woman approached with a couple of menus in her hand and pointed to a sign: "PLEASE WAIT TO BE SEATED BY HOSTESS."

People Do Care

When one speaks of summer jobs for young people, they are also speaking in terms of continuing education.

Certainly, the money is important to them; but they are also learning a lot about the values of work, the disciplines and habits of employment; possibly, too, they are shaping ambitions and envisioning the training and education they will require to attain career fields to which they aspire.

The office of the Greenville Employment Security Commission observes job opportunities are available, and a number of Pitt County employers are displaying an interest in using the summer jobs program, or a most supportive view of providing employment for the youngsters.

Ernest Conner, of the ESC, took special note that some employers, while unable to provide jobs, responded to letters the ESC sent out, indicating that they supported the program.

Conner said many young people have already been accepted for jobs, and as schools close for the summer he anticipated more work will become available.

Opportunities for the economically disadvantaged youngsters exist through a federally funded program at the Martin County Community Action office in Greenville.

It is obvious that people do care. We are sure many employers and potential employers share memories of their own teen-years when a summer job was their basic ambition on which so many other dreams depended ... and, we suspect, that summer job was harder to find in those days than at present.

Forward Looking

There are hundreds ... no, thousands ... of Pitt Countians contributing blood; and (pardon the expression) they are a drop in the bucket compared to numbers of qualified but non-participants in the life-saving program.

The annual recognition of outstanding individuals and organizations who support the blood program was recently held. A lot of attention was rightfully given the 15,000-person university community for its continuing support. That large segment of Pitt's population represents a truly great resource in meeting area needs. Blood is one of them.

Dr. Edward Janosko of the Pitt County Medical Society noted that at least locally "you really don't see people dying any more from lack of blood" because it is so readily available.

Actually, a small part of the available supply is used in research which looks far beyond immediate needs of our sick and injured. So the future shares in our involvement.

Our high schools are another good example of a forward-looking program. They are a "training ground" for a lot of tomorrows. The experience of giving blood among the young, does something for their spirit of a responsible role in the world that awaits them. Having learned first hand the near-painless process and an awareness of just how important their contribution really is, they take pride in the blood-donor role and chances are good they will return.

We have seen some of them ... repeating old jokes about the Dracula syndrome ... but at the same time standing inches taller with their new basis for self-esteem.

We add our own thanks and appreciation for contributors to the blood program. One never knows but what it could be a life-saver for one who is near and dear. It must not be allowed to lapse.

Rules Changes Set Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When Gov. James Hunt of North Carolina finished work on the Democratic National Convention delegate rules last year, party officials proudly declared that the selection process had been perfected at last.

As 1984 delegate selection ends today, it looks like the declarations were premature and that the Democrats, like political Ancient Mariners, are doomed to sail forever on a sea of ever-changing rules.

The obvious first order of business for the next Democratic rules revision commission will be the so-called "thresholds" that determine the level of support a candidate for the presidential nomination must have to win delegates in primaries and at caucuses.

This issue involves basic questions of fairness and political pragmatism, and the party simply has been unable since the early 1970s to reconcile the two.

The Democrats decided long ago to outlaw what were called "winner take all" contests — the candidate that gets the most votes gets all the delegates — in the nomination process. (They succeeded in banning this practice in statewide contests, but it still exists on a congressional district level, as in today's California primary.)

Carrying the idea of "proportional representation" further, the Democrats tried to write rules that gave candidates the same percentage of delegates as they got votes in the primaries or caucuses.

But it became clear that a pure form of proportional representation was impractical.

First, a large field of candidates competing for a small number of delegates might produce a result that required chopping delegates, or at least their votes, into fractions. The Democrats don't like doing that.

Second, the rules writers thought there should be some minimum support a candidate needed to show so that major contenders could be separated from what are politely called "fringe" or "splinter" candidates.

So a series of percentages were worked out to act as thresholds.

Those whose vote fell below the cutoff got no delegates in that contest. Over the years, the cutoffs have ranged from 10 percent to 20 percent, which was the threshold this year.

Jesse Jackson started complaining about the 20 percent early and has kept up his running objection to it. At first, little attention was paid to his complaints, but now he has won enough delegates and enough political respect to make an issue of the threshold question at the San Francisco convention next month.

It is a good bet that the convention will take some action to instruct those who write the 1988 rules to lower the threshold for the next election. Even Democrats who back the 20 percent cutoff hope that giving Jackson a victory on this issue will help keep him in the party and behind the presidential candidate.

It also is a good bet that nothing will be done about the 1984 threshold to give Jackson more delegates in the states where he got less than 20 percent of the vote.

The issue of fairness cuts both ways in this case. Jackson might well have been unfairly denied delegates this year, but to change the rules after the race has been run would be manifestly unfair to the rest of the runners.

In addition, the contest for the nomination is close enough that neither leader can afford to give up delegates to Jackson. That is the pragmatic side of the question, and will be the one that settles it.

The Fuss About Weapons

WASHINGTON — The event passed with almost no attention in the news, but it deserves your notice anyhow: On May 10, for the first time since the memory of man runneth not to the contrary, a legislative decision was taken that made a measure of common sense on gun control.

If the decision ever materializes into law, we will still be miles away from the effective control of concealable handguns, but for the record: Thank you, Senate Judiciary Committee. And thank you, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

This is what happened: Sen. James A. McClure of Idaho had introduced a bill (S. 914) to ease restrictions on the interstate sale not only of rifles and shotguns, but also of handguns. The general idea was to assist the sportsman who might find himself in a state far from home. Under present law, with some exceptions, it is a crime for a gun dealer to sell a firearm to an out-of-state customer. The present law strikes many of us as stupid as to long guns but prudent as to handguns.

Senator Kennedy came up with a sensible amendment. To everyone's amazement, because sensible proposals are a rarity in this field of law, his amendment was accepted. The Kennedy amendment will not affect McClure's ease-up provision on long guns, but it will preserve the ban on interstate sale of handguns having barrels of 3 inches or less — the so-called "snubbies" or "Saturday night specials." Thus, if the bill passes both houses, it will benefit the sportsman who sees a beautiful shotgun he simply cannot live without — and the bill will not make the intolerable proliferation of handguns any more intolerable than it is right now.

The committee's vote to accept Kennedy's amendment marks the first time to my knowledge that a congressional body ever has accepted a key distinction. In the world of firearms, there are handguns — and then, again, there are handguns. The marksman's revolver is a work of the gunmaker's art; it is a precision instrument, used for tournament target shooting or, in the hands of a crack shot, for shooting small game. Another kind of handgun — the kind of handgun that concerns Kennedy and millions of the rest of us — is a very different matter. This is the snub-nosed weapon used by the drug-crazed punk to murder filling station attendants and night clerks at drive-in restaurants.

The National Rifle Association lately has been running a series of advertisements intended to improve the NRA's image. The ads feature men and women members of the NRA who manifestly are intelligent, attractive citizens. They shoot for sport. They are the kind of people you would like to know. I hope the ads help the association, for I believe it has been unfairly maligned in the past.

Over the years, as editor and columnist, I have steadfastly opposed bills that would require the registration of firearms; such proposals are futile. I have opposed any regulation at all of shotguns and rifles; these weapons figure in only a tiny fraction of all homicides. I have actively supported the NRA's effort to enact laws that impose additional mandatory sentences for use of a firearm in the commission of a felony.

But given the appalling record of murder by handgun in the United States, I am convinced we must keep trying to draft a federal law that will at least make a start. The purpose should be to curb the manufacture, importation, sale and distribution of concealable handguns and ammunition for them. The Senate committee's bill won't get us to all these aims, but it merits support as a step in the right direction.

'Train Is On The Tracks'

RALEIGH — "The train is on the tracks." That's one of the most familiar statements you'll hear at the Legislative Building. It means that the legislative leadership has chosen a course and, therefore, the legislative lambs better jump on board or risk the consequences.

This year, a big teacher pay raise and some other improvements for the public schools are already on the tracks, waiting for legislators to come to Raleigh and make it official.

That does not mean, however, that the assembly will reconvene Thursday, pass an education package, and be gone by sundown. The two major study groups which spend the past year formulating recommendations for this year have several important areas of disagreement and major political battles could be fought on those grounds.

Gov. Jim Hunt's views are represented by a report from the N.C. Commission on Education for Economic Growth. A legislative study was conducted by the Education Policy Council. It cannot be presumed that the council's recommendations, because they originated with legislators, will be passed by the Legislature. Hunt still has considerable clout in the assembly, as do some of the people who sat on his commission.

The most significant disagreement comes in the governance of public education. The Legislature's council recommends sweeping changes which would require a vote of the governor currently appoints 11 of the 13 members of the state board and the superintendent is elected by popular vote.) "We are satisfied that the present governance can and does work," says Betty Owen, Hunt's education advisor.

Another disagreement comes in the area of improving teacher preparation programs at the state's public and private colleges. Hunt's group recommends a study by the state board which would determine those programs "which just don't cut it," in Mrs. Owen's terms. Those programs would be discontinued under Hunt's plan. The council prefers, instead, that the state board present the assembly with a plan to promote a "more vigorous course of study" in these programs. The council's recommendations would seek to keep all programs open, improving the weakest.

Vocational education programs receive their primary funding from the federal government and most of the rest from local governments. The council recommends that the state begin paying the local government share. That would cost $36 million next year. Hunt's commission disagrees saying vocational education needs to be reviewed in a larger review of basic curricula in North Carolina. Therefore, the commission recommends holding off on this expenditure.

The two groups agree that added funds are needed for high school textbooks but Hunt wants $1.7 million less than the council. Hunt wants $10.7 million for elementary textbooks which the council doesn't recommend spending.

The two groups disagree on the need for an independent personnel commission for school employees. Hunt got such a commission created in 1980.

Strength For Today

Do you have a regular program of reading? You should. Probably never before in history have so many good books been published as during the present time. Of course, some of today's output of books is trash, but on the whole the serious writing is of a superior order. Everyone can benefit from picking out a particular field such as history, science, or general literature and keeping abreast of current writing.

Of course, one can read too much. Some people substitute reading for thinking. Others read only books that have entertainment value. Reading may also deepen a tendency to selfishness — getting one's nose in a book and paying no attention to anybody who may be around.

But reading is a great blessing if we make it so, and it is easier to make it a liability. One hour's reading a day carried on for 30 years will make anybody outstanding among his fellows.

American Association of Orthodontists

People with orthodontic problems usually consult an orthodontist concerning their need for orthodontic treatment. As a dental specialist, an orthodontist has elected to limit his or her practice to a specific area of dentistry. An orthodontist has completed two or more years of continuous training beyond dental school in an advanced orthodontic program approved by the American Dental Association.

The family dentist is eminently qualified to handle the preventive measures and many of the treatment procedures needed for good dental health. While many problems in dentistry do not require a specialist, most dentists refer their patients with orthodontic needs to a specialist.

For those seeking orthodontic treatment, competent care will prove the most beneficial and least expensive in the long run. The best dental health program results when the patient's dentist and the orthodontist work together to achieve a long-term, healthful condition in the mouth. The quality of orthodontic treatment is enhanced when conducted by a qualified orthodontist.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: In the midst of all of the potential fusing and ado over details today and tonight, using self control to rise about petty things and using your own cleverness and resourcefulness is best.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get busy at your regular work and don't run off on any tangents which could later be regretted. Try not to argue with fellow workers.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A friend may act strangely today so let your sense of humor come out instead of arguing. Don't try to change your mate's ways.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You want to change things around at home but this is not a propitious time for such. Not a good day to invite others into your home.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Study correspondence so that you can answer it intelligently. Gain more information from the right sources.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Put in economy measures today since you are apt to let your generous nature go too far for your own good. Improve your property.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Any personal ideas should be muted when around sensitive people who could be irked by them. Drive carefully.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be diplomatic in getting out of restrictive matters that are impeding your progress. Be content to let things ride now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are tempted to go after some wish in a very forceful manner, but this would only gain you enemies.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get your career work scheduled in such a way that you will not get so nervous about doing it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You want to give up on some enterprise and start over again, but it is better to iron out the kinks in it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study what promises you have made and try to keep them as well as you can. Double-check the advice you get from a business expert.

PICES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Find some wise way of getting partners to cooperate with you, but be gentle in your approach. Not a good day to sign any contracts.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will work hard at any project and see to it that every detail is correct, so be sure to give courses at school that will also stress the idealistic concept of enterprises so that endeavors become most worthwhile and profitable.

Uncle Sam Offers Dog 'Rewarding Career'

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Uncle Sam, who used to want you, now wants your dog. And he's offering good money for pooches who qualify for "a rewarding career" in the military.

The Defense Department's Dog Center is trying to recruit 600 animals this year to help guard military bases and even President Reagan against possible terrorist attack, and for other security duties.

A Navy information bulletin describes it as "a rewarding career for eligible canines in the military working dog program."

The Navy bulletin said the dogs are needed "because of the high incidence of terrorist activities and the government's war on drugs."

Officials at the center, located at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, said in response to questions that they don't know how many dogs already are on duty. After training, they are sent to military bases and federal agencies worldwide.

The center hopes that dog owners will be willing to donate their pets.

However, the Navy bulletin said, the owners can receive up to $400 if their dogs are accepted.

"Dogs accepted into the program are trained in a variety of duties such as protection of the president, the detection of explosives and narcotics, and patrolling federal installations," the Navy information bulletin said.

The center is looking for breeds of German shepherds, Rottweilers and Bouvier des Flandres.

The dogs do not have to be registered purebreds, the bulletin said, "but they must show predominant characteristics of their breed."

Both males and females are acceptable.

The center has laid down some specific requirements.

Dog recruits must be between 1 and 3 years old, at least 22 inches tall at the shoulders, and weigh a minimum of 55 pounds.

"To qualify, canine recruits must pass certain psychological and physical tests, including their reaction to the sound of gunfire, a natural ability for aggressive behavior and a thorough physical examination by a veterinarian," the Navy bulletin said.

Asked why Dobermans were not included among the sought-after breeds, a specialist at the center said, "We had a program for Dobermans but they didn't pan out."

The specialists said Dobermans "have a tendency not to adapt to climatic changes."

Shuttle Ready For Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A test firing of space shuttle Discovery's main engines confirmed the ship is sound, and sources said NASA will set June 22 as the launch date for its maiden flight.

The space agency said Monday that only a few minor problems cropped up during the test and that it would announce a date today. The sources who disclosed it asked not to be identified.

For a time Monday, the examination of the test data from Saturday's firing left some doubt about selecting a firm launch day. But after hours of analysis, NASA said none of the problems during the 19-second ignition was serious enough to affect the schedule.

Among the problems were some doubtful readings on a control system that operates latches on several devices in the cargo bay, including the doors and the 50-foot robot arm; slow operation of a backup actuator on one of the smaller engines used in orbit, and some vibration damage to 12 thermal tiles in the engine area.

NASA spokesman Rocky Raab said post-firing tests of the control system did not duplicate the problem. To provide time for extra testing, the launch team delayed loading Discovery's cargo from today until Wednesday. Once the cargo is in place, it would be difficult to get at the control system if replacement is necessary.

The cargo includes a communications satellite for the Navy and a panel of solar cells that astronaut Judy Resnik, America's second space woman, is to unveil to a length of 105 feet in a test of a device that might one day draw energy from the sun to provide power for permanent space stations.

Discovery, joining Columbia and Challenger in the nation's shuttle fleet, is to orbit the globe for a week with a crew of six.

Fugitive Arrested

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The manager of a high-tech company, described as "just your average employee," has been arrested as a fugitive who escaped 12 years ago from the prison where he was serving a life term for a mutilation murder, authorities said.

Walter Lee Parman, who was on the FBI's Ten Most Wanted List, was arrested Monday in Sunnyvale, Calif., where he had been working under the name "Mike Noble" at the Shugart Corp., according to U.S. Marshal Glen E. Robinson.

Parman, 51, a manager of shipping and receiving, was believed to be armed and dangerous, but he gave no resistance and was unarmed at the time of arrest, Robinson said.

He was arraigned before U.S. Magistrate F. Steele Langford, who ordered him removed to the District of Columbia as soon as possible.

He escaped in 1972 from Lorton Reformatory, a northern Virginia prison in the Washington, D.C. system, and had been the object of an intensive search ever since, Robinson said.

Parman, who once claimed he and the State Department employee he was convicted of butchering were involved in secret government undercover work, was described Monday as a "very good employee" by an official of Shugart. Parman had worked at the company since 1977.

After serving more than six years of his sentence for the 1965 murder, Parman — who adamantly had maintained his innocence — vanished on the night of Sept. 25, 1972, while he was being escorted from Lorton to George Washington University.

He purportedly was to address a group on the subject of criminal justice, but no group was waiting on the campus to hear him.

Officials speculated later that his elaborate getaway scheme involved a forged letter that appeared to extend him an invitation to speak. Although bitter and moody after his conviction, he had been regarded at Lorton as a model prisoner.

Although all the clues that ultimately led two deputy U.S. marshals to Parman on Monday were not immediately known, it appeared that responsibilities connected with his managerial role at Shugart may have betrayed him.

Iraqi Jets Bomb Celebration

By The Associated Press

Iraqi jets bombed an Iranian celebration today, killing more than 300 people and wounding hundreds of others, Iran's official agency said.

The Islamic Republic News Agency and Tehran Radio said Iraqi warplanes raided the Kurdistan town of Baneh during a celebration to commemorate a 1963 uprising against the Shah of Iran which led to the exile of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. Khomeini overthrew the shah in 1979 and remains the highest authority in Iran.

The radio, monitored in London, indicated a march was taking place in Baneh when Iraq subjected the people "to its American and Soviet bombs and martyred more than 300 of our defenseless Muslim Kurdish brothers and sisters in that town at 10:30 (a.m.) today."

IRNA said hundreds of people also were wounded in the attack on Baneh, which is about 300 miles west of Tehran and very close to the border of northern Iraq. The city was used as a staging area for Iranian attacks on Iraq last year.

Iraqi news media did not mention the reported attack. There was no independent confirmation that an attack had taken place.

Meanwhile, the Saudi Arabian Defense Ministry reported that its jet fighters, alerted by U.S.-supplied early-warning surveillance planes, shot down an unidentified warplane in a brief dogfight over the Persian Gulf at 12:33 p.m. today.

The ministry did not identify the plane, but sources in eastern Saudi Arabia said by telephone that it was believed to be an Iranian jet. The sources spoke on condition of anonymity.

Iranian warplanes last month attacked three oil tankers near Saudi Arabia's eastern coast.

Arab diplomatic sources in Bahrain, Kuwait and elsewhere along the Persian Gulf expressed concern that an Iranian offensive could be imminent and said as many as 400,000 Iranian troops were poised along the border.

Dog Dies, Fortune Now Goes To Auburn

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — The death of Musketeer, the last of 150 stray dogs who shared a multimillion-dollar inheritance from the estate of a Quaker Oil heiress, frees a $12 million fortune for Auburn University's veterinary school, college officials said.

The dog, believed to have been 18 to 20 years old, died over the weekend in a Jupiter, Fla., kennel. It was the last of 150 pets owned by Eleanor Ritchey at the time of her death in 1968.

She willed her estate to Auburn's veterinary school, but stipulated that the fortune first be used to care for her pets for 20 years or until their deaths, whichever came first.

Miss Ritchey developed an interest in Auburn through her veterinarian, Dr. Ivan Fredrickson, whose son went to the school.

Frederickson said Monday that he last saw Musketeer, a black mixed-breed, about 10 days ago.

"He looked like he might go at anytime," he said.

University trustees learned Monday that Musketeer had died of old age.

"We ought to declare a school holiday," said R.C. "Red" Bamberg, the trustees' vice chairman.

Miss Ritchey's original endowment of $4.3 million has grown to $12 million since her death and accumulated an estimated $900,000 in interest in 1983 alone.

Auburn has been receiving interest on the money since a 1973 court settlement with relatives who had challenged the will.

The interest has been used to build the Scott-Ritchey Research Center at the university, according to Frank Hoerlien, head of the veterinary school. The first two phases of the complex cost $3.3 million and are to be completed this year.

The center will specialize in finding cures for diseases in pets, primarily dogs, and is one of only two facilities "of this magnitude" in the nation, Hoerlien said. The other is at Cornell University in New York.

The school will continue to use only the interest on the $12 million principal, Hoerlien said.

"This (the dog's death) won't change anything except that we'll be getting a little bit more money," Hoerlien said. "It would be foolish to use the principal when we have an ongoing program."

Miss Ritchey's dogs lived on the family ranch in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., until 1981 when the land was sold for a golf course. The nine dogs surviving at that time were moved to the Jupiter kennel.

WINDING DOWN — Democrat Walter Mondale stoops to tie a shoe lace after campaigning in Jersey City, N.J., on Monday. Mondale and other candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination are winding down their primary campaign with voting in five states today. (AP Laserphoto)

Mondale Aims For Victory In Final Primary Voting

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

Democratic presidential rivals are campaigning to the last possible moment in a five-state wrap-up to their grueling primary season, with Walter F. Mondale straining to grasp the elusive nomination that Gary Hart and Jesse Jackson seek to deny him.

Mondale and Hart each predicted victory in California and New Jersey, the biggest of the states holding primaries today with 486 delegates at stake. Jackson had scant hopes of winning any of the five, but pushed hardest in California to increase his delegate strength at the Democratic National Convention in July.

"Let's put it away tomorrow," the front-running Mondale exhorted supporters in West Virginia on Monday on a 5,620-mile coast-to-coast campaign odyssey that also included stops in New Jersey, New Mexico and California.

Mondale's polls showed him ahead in New Jersey, and a late California survey had him leading there, as well. The fifth state, South Dakota, drew scant attention from Hart and none at all from Mondale.

Hart countered that both big states were going to be replays of the New Hampshire primary that he won.

"We're going to win in New Jersey and we're going to win in California," he said. But he added that no matter what the outcome, "This contest is going to the convention."

Hart brushed aside suggestions by some that his continuing candidacy is hurting the Democrats and helping President Reagan.

"Those are the same experts who said I had no chance to become a serious candidate, that my candidacy was over in March," he retorted.

Hart's campaign manager has said the Colorado senator must win either New Jersey or California to keep his longshot hopes alive. Other aides have said privately that he must win both.

Jackson began airing his first television and radio commercials of a low-budget campaign. He viewed them himself in California, and quipped, "I'm going to vote for the guy."

All three men arranged primary day campaign stops today, even as the voters cast their ballots.

Mondale was in California for a morning appearance before heading for his home state of Minnesota to await the results.

Hart was in New Jersey, with stops also set in California, while Jackson decided to spend the day in California.

After converting 45 delegates from the uncommitted ranks Monday, Mondale had 1,736.05 delegates in the Associated Press count, compared with 983.75 for Hart and 332.2 for Jackson.

It takes 1,967 delegates to win the nomination. Under new party rules, none of the delegates is required to vote for the candidate he was elected to support. That will force Mondale — whether or not he attains a majority of the delegates this week — to work to keep his people in line until the convention.

Hart — hoping for a convention turnaround — was aiming to defeat Mondale in California and New Jersey, and raise questions about the front-runner's strength as a candidate despite his overwhelming delegate advantage.

Hart also attempted to establish expectations that would be very difficult for Mondale to meet.

Cat-Killing Dog To Die

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — Like many of his canine colleagues, Lucky is not fond of felines, his owner says. Now complaints from neighbors that the 90-pound mutt has killed more than 50 cats have landed Lucky on doggy death row.

"I can't believe it," Aleetra Morrow, Lucky's owner, said Monday after the death sentence was imposed by Cabell County Circuit Judge L.D. Egnor. "He doesn't bother people. He just doesn't like cats. And he kills them."

Lucky, doing time in a dog pound in Kentucky, will get to appeal his case Friday.

The half German shepherd and half husky has a record as long as his tail with the Huntington-Cabell-Wayne Animal Control Shelter, including a petition against him signed by 27 neighbors, said shelter director Pat Thomas.

The events leading to the sentence began in a lower court when a neighbor filed suit against the dog's owners, Ms. Morrow and her sister. But Magistrate John Ray Rice removed himself from the case because he said he knew too much about it from previous suits.

Ms. Thomas then suggested that the neighbors go to Egnor with their thick file of complaints against the dog and photos of Lucky walking the streets.

Before issuing judgment, Egnor heard evidence from six people who said Lucky had been hunting and killing neighborhood cats for years.

"The dog has caused enormous grief in the neighborhood," Dan Flannery testified. "It has killed, we figure, over 50 cats."

But Ms. Morrow says the extent of Lucky's crimes may be exaggerated.

"Not unless somebody's got an awful lot of cats around here," she said. "I've never seen that many cats around here. There are other dogs in the neighborhood killing cats. Not just my dog."

The shelter has picked up Lucky several times, but each time his owners paid for his release, Ms. Thomas said.

"We can't get anywhere near the dog now," she said. "It knows us so well it takes off in the opposite direction."

Egnor ordered Lucky destroyed based on a section of the state code dealing with vicious dogs.

New Children's Unit Funded

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a national missing children's center set to open June 13, Congress is moving ahead with legislation to finance it for the next five years.

Legislation to establish a National Center for Missing and Exploited Children sailed through the House on Monday and went to the Senate.

It was included in a bill, passed by voice vote, that would finance juvenile delinquency prevention programs through the 1989 fiscal year at the currently authorized level of $200 million annually.

The measure included $10 million for the missing children's center in fiscal 1985, an amount that gradually would increase to $12.3 million in fiscal 1989.

The Reagan administration already has approved $3.3 million to operate the center for two years. A toll-free telephone hotline operated through the center will begin next month.

Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., a prime sponsor of the legislation, said between 20,000 and 50,000 cases of missing children each year go unsolved and some 4,000 bodies of children who were missing are discovered annually.

In 1982, Congress passed legislation permitting use of the FBI's central crime computer to help in the search for missing children. Simon referred to that legislation as "Phase I" and termed the current measure "Phase II" of the government's effort to combat the problem.

Jay Howell, the center's director, said the facility will be a central contact point for parents of missing children and people who believe they have spotted such youngsters.

Howell said the center already is preparing:

- Information packets for parents, families and law enforcement agencies on techniques of looking for missing children.
- A directory of citizen self-help groups.
- Training programs for criminal justice personnel on ways to interview exploited and abused children as witnesses in court cases.

—Programs for families, schools and communities, so they could learn to teach children to protect themselves.

The center is a non-profit organization that has signed a contract with the Justice Department. It is staffed by employees jointly selected by the department and the center. Howell formerly was general counsel of a Senate investigations subcommittee that conducted hearings into the problems of missing and exploited children.

Howell said the legislation would enable the center to begin research and demonstration projects and other activities that could not be financed under the current arrangement.

He said anyone seeking to give or obtain information on missing children can write the center at 1835 K St. N.W., Suite 700, Washington, D.C. 20006. He said the toll-free number would be announced in several weeks.

Ford Trucks Face Recall

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. says it has recalled 945 current-model pickup trucks to replace drive shafts that are nearly 2 inches too short.

The recall was not safety-related, because the defect would not cause the drive shaft to fall off, Ford officials said Monday. However, the problem could cause leakage from rear rubber grease seals and could make the drive shaft develop a noisy wobble.

The recall involves the rear half of drive shafts on 1984 F-150 light trucks, 762 of them sold in the United States and 183 sold in Canada. The parts will be replaced at no cost to owners.

The short shafts "were discovered by an hourly employee at our assembly plant in Kansas City," company spokesman Warren LeBaron said.

Following that report, short shafts were found at several other plants before they were installed on vehicles, LeBaron said.

GM Expanding Military Role

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. says it hopes to expand its role as a military supplier by creating a segment that will develop products as the need is identified.

The Military Vehicles Operation will be based at GM's Technical Center in Warren, Mich., with additional operations at the Allison Gas Turbine Division in Indianapolis and at the Delco Systems Operation in Santa Barbara, Calif., the company said in a statement Monday.

"With our new operation, as specific programs develop and require increased effort, resources will be redirected accordingly," said David S. Potter, vice president of GM's Power Products and Defense Operations Group. "This will allow GM to establish a sustained long-term reputation in the overall military vehicle business."

General Motors currently makes a commercial utility cargo vehicle for the U.S. Army. Its contract calls for delivery of more than 53,000 trucks over three years, with options for the Army to double the amount.

Market's Workers, Shoppers Help Woman Being Mugged

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — When supermarket workers saw an elderly woman knocked to the ground outside by a purse-snatcher, they got on the loudspeaker. Clerks joined shoppers, and before it was over a dozen citizens chased down and captured two suspects, police said.

Marjorie McCarty, who is in her 70s, was grateful for the crowd's help.

"They were fantastic," she said. "Unbelievable," added her husband, H.M. McCarty.

"When the suspects started to flee, there was a chase and, apparently, everybody and their brother got into it," said Sgt. Thomas A. Gavin of the Sunday incident.

Mrs. McCarty was taken to a hospital, treated for scrapes and bruises, then released.

Two persons held captive by the crowd were arrested and charged with strong-armed robbery. Lester James Mathis, 18, was being held in the Pinellas County Jail under $5,000 bond. The second suspect, a juvenile, was taken to a juvenile detention center.

Mrs. McCarty said she paused at the entrance to Albertsons supermarket to stand clear of a man she thought was jogging. Instead, she said, the "jogger" pushed himself against her, knocked her down, grabbed her white purse and fled.

"That guy came but of nowhere," said her husband, who was getting out of the driver's side of their car when he saw his wife sprawled on the pavement and a man running with her purse. "I took a few steps after him, but then I said, 'The heck with the purse, I better see how she is.'"

Witnesses said the man who took the handbag climbed into the passenger side of a blue Fiat, driven by another man.

"When I got outside there were already about seven or eight people from the store and a gray car chasing a blue Fiat," said Michael Mott, 20, who used to work as a stockboy. Mott joined them, pursuing the car to a dead-end street, where one suspect got out and tried to run, he said.

"The man in the car tried to get away, but we knocked him down," Mott said. "We backed him up against the wall and started walking him back toward the store."

At one point, the suspect broke and ran, then hid in the back seat of a car near a convenience store. The crowd pursued him and surrounded the vehicle until police arrived.

Meanwhile, the man with the purse had returned to the Fiat and tried to drive away, police said.

"He hit the curb and blew two tires, then he was airborne before he landed in the trees," said Doug Hadden, another of the posse. Then, Hadden said, "he just sat in the car."

Scientists Reproduce Fragments Of Genes

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The reproduction of gene fragments from a long-extinct member of the horse family offers the possibility for a new tool to study the evolutionary links between extinct animals and living ones, a scientist said.

Pieces of genes, the basic units of heredity, were extracted from a zebra-like animal that became extinct a century ago, said Dr. Allan Wilson, a professor of biochemistry at the University of California.

The gene fragments came from a scrap of dried muscle found on a preserved skin of the African quagga, an extinct member of the horse family, Wilson said Monday. He said the skin had been preserved with salt, which helps preserve the genetic material, DNA.

Only a tiny fragment of the genetic DNA material was discovered, and most of the material that would be needed to recreate a cell was not recovered, he said.

Thus, the possibility of bringing ancient species "back to life" is extremely remote, Wilson said.

There have been indications that the DNA of 40,000-year-old mammoths may have survived frozen in the ice of Siberia, he said. But he said the latest work is the first to confirm that DNA fragments could survive a hundred years.

"It wasn't known to be able to survive that long," he said. "And then, that it's in sufficiently good shape that you can clone it."

Wilson and his colleagues have developed ways to find evolutionary links between living species based on the similarity of their proteins and on the sequences of chemical bases that make up their genes.

The research was recently reported by Russell Higuchi, a post-doctoral scientist in Wilson's lab, at the annual meeting of the American Society of Biological Chemists in St. Louis.

Chernenko Says 'No' To Arms Talks

MOSCOW (AP) — President Konstantin U. Chernenko says Soviet negotiators will not return to arms control talks with the United States as long as NATO continues to deploy U.S. cruise and Pershing 2 missiles in Western Europe. Chernenko reiterated the Soviet position Monday at a Kremlin dinner, and did not mention President Reagan's offer earlier in the day to "stop or even reverse" the deployment of 572 nuclear-tipped missiles by NATO as part of an arms control pact with Moscow. Reagan, in a speech in Dublin, Ireland, declared that "America is prepared for peace." He said he would consider a recent Soviet proposal to renounce the use of force in Europe if Moscow would consider Western plans to reduce the chance of war on the continent. A commentator for the Soviet news agency Novosti dismissed the Reagan speech as merely repeating positions already rejected by Moscow. The commentary was distributed to Western reporters in the Soviet capital.

The official Soviet news agency Tass also announced Monday that President Francois Mitterand of France will visit the Soviet Union during the second half of June. In Paris, the presidential palace confirmed the visit, but neither the French nor Soviet governments gave a specific date.

France is not militarily part of NATO. But Mitterand has been a strong supporter of the development of new U.S. missiles in Western Europe and the topic is almost certain to be discussed.

During his speech at the dinner for visiting Romanian leader Nicolae Ceausescu, Chernenko made clear that the Kremlin is unwilling to return unconditionally to the talks on limiting nuclear arms in Europe. Soviet delegates walked out of the talks last November.

"Sometimes it is said, Wouldn't it be better to ignore the American missiles in Western Europe and sit down at the negotiating table? This appears to sound all right. But still one cannot accept such a position," Chernenko said.

While the North Atlantic Treaty Organization continues its missile deployments, Chernenko said, "it would be at least imprudent" for the Soviet Union and its East European allies to reduce their arms.

Moscow has repeatedly asserted that a balance of power existed in nuclear arms in Europe and that the NATO deployments changed this. NATO argues that it began deploying new U.S. medium-range nuclear missiles only in response to a Soviet buildup of SS-20 weapons in the late 1970s.

Chernenko repeated the Soviet stand that the way to create "proper conditions" for the talks is to remove the new American missiles.

"It is necessary to remove the direct threat to peace that originated with the appearance of American missiles on European soil," he said.

Commenting on Reagan's offer to halt or reduce new NATO missiles in Europe, Vladimir Alexeev, a Novosti writer on U.S.-Soviet relations, said: "Reagan has again showed himself to be a master of speaking much, but saying little."

"In essence he said nothing that was new or that which could be interpreted as meaning that the United States was ready to reconsider its intransigent stand on the Euromissile issue, which has disrupted the Soviet-American negotiations in Geneva," Alexeev said.

Earlier, Chernenko and Ceausescu, on a one-day visit to Moscow, urged NATO to withdraw its new American missiles as the "real road" to limiting nuclear arms.

Arrest Warrant Issued

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — An international arrest warrant has been issued for a man who entered Costa Rica on a stolen passport, claimed he was a Danish journalist and went to a Nicaraguan rebel news conference where a bomb exploded.

Francisco Ruiz, spokesman for the Judiciary Investigations Office, said late Monday a man who used a passport issued to Per Anker Hansen was a suspect in the case. He said an arrest warrant "has been issued worldwide," but gave no further details.

The bomb exploded during a news conference Wednesday by Nicaraguan rebel leader Eden Pastora of the Revolutionary Democratic Alliance at La Penca, Nicaragua, just across the San Juan River from Costa Rica.

The blast killed American journalist Linda Frazier of Portland, Ore., a reporter for the English-language Tico Times in San Jose; cameraman Oscar Quiroz of television channel 6 in San Jose, and a woman rebel.

Earlier, sources in the alliance, known as ARDE, said three other rebels also were killed, but ARDE spokesman Orion Pastora said Monday the total number of deaths was three.

The man who identified himself as Hansen was last seen Thursday as he prepared to leave the Gran Via Hotel in San Jose.

Danish Consul Palle Paaby said the man was using a stolen passport belonging to a Per Anker Hansen who lives in Copenhagen and lost the document in 1980.

"It is absolutely certain the man here was traveling on a stolen passport from a person who had the name he (the man) was using here," Paaby said. "We do not know who he is."

Israeli Diplomat Shot

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — An Israeli diplomat was shot at from a speeding car in a Cairo suburb and wounded in the hand and shoulder, an Israeli Embassy spokesman said today.

The spokesman, Isaac Bar-Moshe, identified the diplomat as Zvi Kedar, an administrative attache, and said he was ambushed late Monday night.

It was the first attack on an Israeli diplomat in Egypt since the signing of the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty in March 1979. The two countries established diplomatic relations in February 1980.

Bar-Moshe said Kedar was shot at after he stepped from his car outside his home at the southern suburb of Maadi.

"The shots came from a speeding car," Bar-Moshe said. "Apparently there was more than one person in the car. It was an ambush."

He said Kedar was wounded in his left hand, suffering bone fractures, and had to be operated on. The operation was successful, he said.

A bullet also grazed his left shoulder, causing a "superficial wound," he said.

Opening lead: Six of ♠.

Some tricks you simply have to lose. But on occasion you can determine when to lose them — to your profit.

We like the way North handled the bidding. Since he had shown slam interest with his four spade cue-bid, there was no need for him to do more than confirm diamond support at the five-level. With a dead minimum opening, South was not inclined to venture further.

West led his top spade, and declarer was not all that thrilled with his contract. East surely had the ace of hearts for his vulnerable three-level bid, so there was a distinct danger of losing two heart tricks and a club.

If East held three clubs, he could be end played in that suit and forced to lead a heart from the ace. But since he held the long spades, it was more likely that West would have any club length. However, there were two roads to success. Can you spot them?

The straightforward way is to duck the opening lead. East wins the king, but he can do no damage. Assume he returns a spade. Declarer discards a club, draws trumps, cashes the king-ace of clubs and establishes the suit with a ruff. He can get back to dummy with a trump to discard his losing hearts on the long clubs. To prevent an overtrick, East must cash the ace of hearts at trick two.

Declarer traveled another path. He won the ace of spades, drew trumps and cashed the king-ace of clubs. Now he led the eight of spades off the board and, when East covered with the nine, declarer discarded his losing club. East was straddled with the lead and had a choice of losing exits. A spade would present declarer with a ruff-suff and a heart would set up the table's king as the fulfilling trick.

Wachovia BankLineSM

The prime-based line of credit up to $25,000 or more that's as easy to use as writing a check.

It's prearranged.
Use it anytime, for any reason.

With Wachovia BankLine you can have a personal line of credit from $2,500 to $25,000 or more at rates based on Wachovia's Prime Rate.* When you want to borrow money, you don't have to make a trip to the bank; you simply write a BankLine check. Your BankLine account costs you nothing to open, and there are no annual fees.

Rates based on the prime.

A Wachovia BankLine account lets you enjoy preferred interest rates based on Wachovia's Prime Rate. So BankLine can be a less expensive way to borrow. And your rate is determined by your credit line, not by the amount you borrow. Here's how it works.

YOUR CREDIT LINE:	YOUR INTEREST RATE:
$10,000 or over	Prime + 1%
$ 5,000 to $9,999	Prime + 1½%
$ 2,500 to $4,999	Prime + 2½%

Your rate may vary monthly with economic conditions. If the Prime Rate goes down, so does your interest rate. But no matter how high the Prime Rate should go, under present North Carolina law the maximum Annual Percentage Rate (APR) you will be charged is 18%. The minimum rate is 8% APR.

Ask a Personal BankerSM.

A Wachovia Personal Banker can help you decide if BankLine is right for you. Call or stop by any Wachovia office this week and ask about BankLine. It's a better way to borrow.

Wachovia

Wachovia is creating better ways to borrow.

*"Prime Rate" refers to that interest rate set by the Bank from time to time as an interest rate basis for commercial and consumer borrowings. The Prime Rate is one of several interest rate bases used by the Bank. The Bank lends at interest rates above and below the Prime Rate.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks were mostly lower through morning trading today, although the market was narrowing its losses.

Energy and chemical issues paced the declines, along with steel, retail, mining and financial stocks.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 30.33 over the past four sessions, was off 4.74 at 1,126.83 after two hours of trading today. But it had been down more than 8 points shortly after the opening bell.

Losers led gainers 7 to 5 on the New York Stock Exchange, whose composite index lost 0.32 to 88.53.

Big Board volume slowed to 36.98 million shares at noon EDT, against 48.29 million at that hour Monday.

The market, after falling to a 15-month low, advanced over the four previous sessions amid suggestions that stocks had become too "oversold" and were due for a rebound.

A stronger bond market also bolstered equities. Bond prices rose last week in response to indications the economic expansion is slowing, which would reduce the upward pressure on interest rates.

But today bond prices opened lower, and stocks followed suit.

Commissioners Endorse Road Extension For PCC's Campus

By STUART SAVAGE

 The Pitt County Board of Commissioners Monday approved the purchase of a new solid waste container truck and endorsed a resolution by trustees of Pitt Community College asking the state's Department of Transportation to extend two secondary roads through the PCC campus.

The board approved the purchase of the truck, designed to carry the county's 40-cubic-yard solid waste containers from container sites to the landfill, from F&D Motors, at a cost of $58,962.

 recent developments on the merger proposal, specifically the joint meeting last week with the Pitt County school board and County Commissioners. At that meeting, the county board announced it wanted more time, a few weeks, before making a decision on whether or not to go the merger route. The county board wants to contact members of school advisory boards to get updated opinions on the merger issue.

Wall told city officials that if merger is approved, the most critical problems for the city schools can be resolved. If a merger is not approved, then action must be taken to look at alternatives — principally those of co-terminous boundaries for the city limits-school district, and a re-allocation of the pro-rata system to provide additional personnel for the city schools.

Blinson explained that a formula of adding up the total number of personnel in both systems, and dividing that number on the ratio of 71-29 (the percentages of total students in both systems — 71 percent in the county, 29 percent in the city), would result in an increased number of personnel for the city school system.

After discussions were presented, Mayor Buck and council members expressed support for efforts to resolve the dilemma faced by the city schools, recalling statements made by commissioners at a joint meeting held a year ago.

"County Commissioners have expressed a desire to see that we have the same quality education in both schools," Mrs. Buck commented. "I feel it is a matter of trust, that the county school board members and the County Commissioners will make the right decisions for all concerned. Personally, I feel optimistic about the right solutions being made at an early date."

Budget Amendment No. 2 to the federal budget fund for an increase of $63,871 was approved. Blinson explained this is additional money allocated for the current fiscal year for items in the Chapter I Project. Board members approved carrying this amount over to the 1984-85 federal budget — permissible under federal regulations. The $63,871 brings to $1,049,462 the total federal fund allocations to the city schools for the current fiscal year.

Approval was given for the administration to submit the annual application for vocational education in state/federal funding. The vocational programs remain unchanged except for the inclusion of one additional program — principles of technology. The new program will be offered to juniors and seniors and deals with 13 concepts of force in engine systems — mechanical, fluid, electrical and thermal.

In a report to the board on the status of Agnes Fullilove School, Blinson noted there is a general misconception that operation of the program there entails an annual expenditure of many thousands of dollars. An operation expenditure sheet shows that services, utilities and maintenance at the school amounted to a total of $20,664 through May 15. "This report is simply to let you know the true picture of the operating expenditures," Blinson commented. "Whether we decide to close the school for other reasons is an entirely different story."

School board member Sue Zadeits asked that a recommendation for social studies be reconsidered. No agreement at administrative levels has been reached on the proposal that the government course at the 8th or 9th grade level be considered sufficient to meet graduation requirement, and that the government course at Rose High be used as an elective. Mrs. Zadeits says she feels the senior high government course is very important, that students in the lower grades are not ready to fully appreciate the value of a course in government studies.

Emory Says 'No' To Miami Post

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
An unknown fan in Burlington may have been the first to know, but Ed Emory made it official yesterday.

Saying he and his East Carolina football program were both flattered by the honor accorded it, Emory, the head football coach, announced yesterday that he had asked that his name be withdrawn as a candidate for the top job at the University of Miami.

Emory had been interviewed as a prospective candidate for the job left by Howard Schnellenberger when he resigned just over a week ago to take over the head coaching position with the Washington Redskins of the USFL, effective at the end of the current season.

Emory was contacted by Miami athletic director Sam Jankovich a week ago Friday, just after Schnellenberger announced his resignation. Emory flew to Miami on Saturday and met with Jankovich for several hours, discussing the football situation at the reigning national championship school.

Twice since then, Emory said Miami officials, Jankovich and an aide, had contacted him.

Emory said he actually informed Jankovich of his withdrawal late last week, but withheld public announcement of it until Monday afternoon. He held his press conference at the ECU strength center, where those players who are in summer school were working out.

"I told my players that when I made any decision, they would be the first to know of it, and that's why I've waited until now, when they would all be together," Emory said. "I wanted to do it earlier, but I had commitments (with the Pirate Club) that kept me out of town until today."

Emory added that he felt that Miami's considering him as a candidate for the head coaching position was a compliment to the East Carolina program.

"I was never offered the job," he pointed out. "I was called and talked with them on three different occasions. At another time and place, I might have pursued it."

In a prepared statement, Emory said that an "intense burning desire" had been developed by the East Carolina players and that is was his desire to stay at East Carolina, "to join forces with the players, administration, supporters, Pirate Club members, and all friends to meet the great opportunities of today and tomorrow."

"The ECU football team is a dynamic, thriving, successful organization that refuses to recognize any limit to our chances of success. We will not put limitations on our program expectations."

Emory thanked Jankovich for the honor accorded him in considering him as a candidate, saying Miami has a great program. "But with all the positive incentives here at ECU — the membership in CFA (College Football Association), the Pirate Club drive, and the commitment of the administration to excellence, I have asked that my name be removed as a candidate."

Emory said his only concern now is the fact that the Pirates play at Florida State in 88 days.

Emory said also that it was great to be able to have an opportunity to compare a program like Miami's with East Carolina's. "You just don't know how close we are to having a program that could win the national championship."

The coach, who will enter his fifth season this fall, said that East Carolina's being voted into the CFA this Sunday had no bearing on his decision. "I decided to withdraw last week, and I didn't hear about the CFA vote until Sunday afternoon at a Pirate Club meeting in D.C."

"That (CFA membership) is something we've been praying and hoping for some time. I called more than 50 coaches and athletic directors over the past week for their feelings on this, and it just confirms that good things can happen. It makes me feel very, very good. It's the most important thing that's happened in a long, long time."

Emory added that while he feels Miami job is a good one, that it does have problems. Miami plays Auburn in just 80 days in the annual Kickoff Classic in New Jersey. Five days later, it plays Florida, and seven days after that, Michigan.

And, Emory laughed and pointed out that an unknown fan in Burlington probably was the first to know that he was not leaving.

"We (Ed and wife Nancy) stopped at an outlet in Burlington last week and I bought three purple jackets for the kids. As we were checking out, some one came up and said that if I weren't buying orange and green, I must be staying at East Carolina. I told him he was the first to know."

Pitt Rallies For 10-8 Win

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Both coaches admitted afterwards that they had made the classic mistake: they had gone with their pitchers too long.

For Pitt County, it meant that Post 39 had to scramble to come back from a 6-1 deficit after just two innings. For Snow Hill, it meant the ball game as Pitt rallied for a 10-8 win in the American Legion contest played last night at Harrington Field.

Pitt opened with Mike Kinley on the mound and he was battered for six hits and six runs in an inning and two-thirds. "This was the first time Kinley's pitched in about a month," Coach Bruce Rhodes said. "He needed the work to get ready for the rest of the season and the playoffs. He'll have another day and he'll come back and do okay."

Paul Hill came in in relief to get the win although he was taken out in the bottom of the eighth for a pinch hitter. Hill, in just over six innings of work, gave up four hits and two runs. Doug Coley came on in the ninth to strike out three of the four batters he faced. One reached on an infield single as Coley earned a save.

Meanwhile, across the field, Snow Hill coach Jim Fulghum brought on Billy Godley for Rusty Murphy in the fifth inning after Murphy walked the leadoff batter. Snow Hill built its lead to 8-5 behind Godley, only to see three runs — two of them unearned — score in the seventh, and the final two come in the eighth.

"We went too far with Godley," Fulghum said. "We should have changed pitchers earlier. Billy has just finished with high school ball and we really didn't want to pitch him at all this week."

Fulghum moaned over his team's inability to deliver the killing blow. "We had the chance to bury them early and let them get away. Six errors didn't help much. Things like that come back to haunt you."

He also noted that the team has not yet been able to practice since the Farnville players joined the team after finishing their season.

Rhodes talked of teamwork and companionship on the team.

"Everybody has got to pull together. When we do we win."

Snow Hill jumped on Kinley early as leadoff batter Nat Norris hit a 3-2 pitch out of the park in left for a homer and a 1-0 lead. Mike Warren followed with a walk and Anthony Russo singled him to third. A passed ball allowed Warren to score.

Pitt rallied for one in its half of the first. Roger Moyer opened with a single to right and was sacrificed up. He scored when Eric Woodworth reached on a two-base error.

Snow Hill came back with four in the second for a 6-1 lead. Kevin Langston walked and Murphy reached on an error on his attempted sacrifice bunt. Norris followed with a single that loaded them up and a wild pitch let Langston score. Anthony Russo singled in Murphy and Todd Grant tripled when his fly to center was lost in the sky, scoring both Norris and Russo.

Pitt then began its long comeback trail. In the third, Pitt scored twice. Toby Fischer singled and scored on a triple by Doug Coley. Billy Michel sacrifice fly scored Coley.

Another pair scored in the fourth, cutting the lead to 6-5. Marc Nover reached on an error as did Moyer on his attempted sacrifice. Both were sacrificed up, and with two away, Woodworth singled to score both runners.

Snow Hill padded its lead with two in the sixth for an 8-5 edge. Norris got his third hit of the night, a bunt single and Warren singled to left. Both moved up on a wild pitch and scored when Joey Steepe's single to right fell in.

Pitt rallied to tie it in the seventh. Kinley walked and Traye Fuqua reached on an error on his sacrifice bunt. Hill also laid down a sacrifice bunt but it was perfect and no play could be made on him. Godley, however, threw wildly to third to attempt to get Kinley, and when the ball got past the third baseman, Kinley scooted home. Moyer followed with a single to center, scoring both Fuqua and Hill to knot it at 8-8.

Pitt then scored the winning runs in the eighth. Woodworth opened with a single up the middle and was sacrificed up. Kinley walked and a long fly moved Woodworth to third. Kinley also moved up on a passed ball. Jackie Conway stepped in as a pinch-hitter and promptly hit the ball into right for a two-run single.

Moyer, Coley and Woodworth each had two hits to lead Pitt, while Norris had three and Russo and Godley each had two for Snow Hill.

Pitt climbs to 3-1 with the win, while Snow Hill drops to 4-2. Snow Hill travels to Rocky Mount tonight, while Pitt returns to action on Wednesday, hosting Kinston at 8 p.m. at Harrington.

Okla. State Coach Said Miami Bound

DALLAS (AP) — Jimmy Johnson, the architect of Oklahoma State University's football resurgence, was expected in Miami and appeared on the verge of accepting the job as head football coach at the University of Miami, which won the 1983 national championship.

"I'm going to look it over. I'm definitely a candidate," Johnson told the Associated Press by phone Monday night from his home in Stillwater, Okla.

He was scheduled to meet today with Dr. Edward Foote, president of the university, and athletic director Sam Jankovich, to discuss the position as successor to Howard Schnellenberger, who announced late last month that he was becoming general manager and head coach of the Washington Redskins of the United States Football League, who plan to move to Miami for the 1985 season.

Johnson returned to Stillwater on Monday afternoon from Dallas, where he met with Jankovich over the weekend during the College Football Association meetings and where he had been scheduled to play in the American Football Coaches Association's annual golf tournament. He informed Dr. Lawrence Boger, president of Oklahoma State, and athletic director Myron Roderick of the Miami interview.

Meanwhile, in today's editions, the Orlando Sentinel quoted an unnamed member of the Oklahoma State athletic department as saying:

"Myron Roderick emerged from a meeting with Coach Johnson and said: 'I don't think we can talk him out of it. His mind is made up. He's gone.'

Roderick later denied having said that.

"It's not accurate. I did not make it (the statement)." Roderick told the Miami News. "He didn't tell me anything like that at all."

Strawberry Ends Homer Slump

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer
Darryl Strawberry hadn't hit a home run in more than a month and, what was even more troubling, he'd seen his batting average plummet more than 60 points. "I've been frustrated with myself more than anything," said Strawberry, the New York Mets' National League Rookie of the Year in 1983.

Monday night, Strawberry broke out of the slump with three hits in three at-bats, his first homer since April 28, three RBI and two runs in the Mets' 4-2 victory at Pittsburgh.

The three hits brought his batting average up to .294. A month ago, he was hitting .362. Strawberry now has six homers.

The home run slump "didn't really bother me," Strawberry said. "I know when I get in a groove, they'll come."

But, he said, "When you find yourself in a situation where you're struggling the way I've been struggling the last month, you want to get your confidence back up."

The Mets, who had lost three in a row, also got three innings of scoreless relief help from their bullpen combo of Doug Sisk and Jesse Orosco. Sisk came in for Ron Darling, 4-3, with runners on first and second and none out in the seventh. He worked out of that jam, and Orosco retired the final nine without a hit for his ninth save.

"That's quite a bullpen combination they come at you with," Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner said.

Darling gave up a pair of fifth-inning runs on consecutive RBI singles by Lee Mazzilli and Bill Madlock.

In the rest of the National League, Cincinnati beat Los Angeles 3-1, St. Louis edged Philadelphia 4-3 in 11 innings, San Diego shut out Houston

3-0 and Atlanta beat San Francisco 2-1.

Reds 3, Dodgers 1

Three Cincinnati pitchers — starter Frank Pastore, Tom Hume and Bob Owchinko — limited Los Angeles to three hits, and Dave Parker's eighth-inning single broke a 1-1 tie as the Reds ended a five-game losing streak. The loss was the third straight for the Dodgers.

Pastore, 3-4, yielded all three Los Angeles hits in 7 2-3 innings. Hume and Owchinko, normally a starter, split the final 1 1-3 innings without giving up a hit. The Dodgers score their only run in support of Fernando Valenzuela, 5-6, on Ken Landreux's seventh-inning double.

Pastore left with two out in the eighth when he was hit in the right arm by a line drive off the bat of Steve Sax. He was not seriously injured.

Cardinals 4, Phillies 3

Ken Oberkfell drove in the second straight game, snapping a 3-3 tie in the 11th inning with a single off Al Holland, 4-3. Any Van Slyke started the winning St. Louis rally when he singled and moved to second on Ozzie Smith's sacrifice bunt.

Bruce Sutter, 2-3, pitched three scoreless innings for the victory.

The Cards led 3-1 until Philadelphia scored twice in the seventh on Greg Gross' sacrifice fly and an RBI single by Juan Samuel. George Hendrick had driven in two of St. Louis' runs in the third inning off Steve Carlton.

Padres 3, Astros 0

Ed Whitson and Dave Dravecky combined on a four-hitter, striking out six Astros apiece, as San Diego extended its winning streak to four games, matching its longest of the season. Whitson gave up three of the Houston hits in 6 1-3 innings. Dravecky came on with runners at second and third and struck out Jose Cruz and Jerry Mumphrey to get out of the jam.

Steve Garvey had four hits, extending his hitting streak to 11 games, and drove in the Padres' first run with a single in the first inning.

Whitson retired the first nine men he faced and allowed just one hit through four innings.

Braves 2, Giants 1

Bruce Benedict scored one run and drove in the other, backing Rick Mahler to his fourth straight victory in helping Atlanta to its sixth in a row.

Mahler, 4-1, pitched 8 2-3 innings, scattering seven hits. He lost his shutout bid with one out in the eighth when Chili Davis homered. Steve Bedrosian got the final out for the Braves to earn his eighth save.

Benedict tripled and scored on a bunt single by Randy Johnson in the third, and he drove in a run in the fourth with a bases-loaded sacrifice fly.

Mark Davis, 2-6, worked eight innings and yielded only five hits for the Giants, who have lost four in a row.

Seattle Mariners' designated hitter Ken Phelps slides into home plate as Kansas City Royals catcher Don Slaught tries to recover the dropped ball. The sixth inning play Monday evening occurred when Frank White

Bergman Powers Tigers' Win

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

After fouling off eight pitches, Dave Bergman finally straightened one out — and it went straight into the upper right field stands at Tiger Stadium.

"I was scuffling a little bit, but this team battles, that's why I'm so proud to play over here," Bergman said after his three-run homer with two out in the 10th inning gave the Detroit Tigers a dramatic 6-3 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

The victory in the opener of an important four-game series improved the Tigers' major league-leading record to 39-11 and increased their lead over the second-place Blue Jays to 5 1/2 games in the American League East.

"I guess the pitch was only about 10 inches off the ground, but I saw it and I just happened to hit it right on the button," said Bergman. "I've known Roy Lee Jackson a long time.

He's a tough competitor. He threw some good pitches, I want to tell you. As far as I'm concerned, it was a battle and I just happened to win it."

In other AL action, it was Oakland 7, Cleveland 3; Baltimore 6, Milwaukee 2; Minnesota 6, Texas 2; New York 8, Boston 3; Chicago 6, California 4, and Seattle 7, Kansas City 1.

Bergman's blast made a winner of Aurelio Lopez, 5-0, the third Tiger pitcher, and capped a game of long ball.

A solo homer by Willie Upshaw in the second inning and a two-run shot by George Bell in the sixth had given the Blue Jays a 3-0 lead. But the Tigers came back to tie it on Howard Johnson's three-run shot in the seventh.

Then Lance Parrish started the Tiger 10th with a single off Jimmy Key, 2-3. Parrish took second on a sacrifice bunt by Darrell Evans and Jackson came on for Toronto. The Blue Jays' ace reliever got Rusty Kuntz on a grounder to the mound, but walked Chet Lemon to set the stage for Bergman.

"Bergman did a good job battling," Toronto Manager Bobby Cox said. "Roy Lee did a good job pitching. That's all that needs to be said about this one."

A's 7, Indians 3

Bruce Bochte doubled and homered and Carney Lansford rapped three singles to spark Oakland over Cleveland.

Winner Bill Krueger, 4-1, gave up six hits over the first seven innings before Mike Warren and Bill Caudill finished, with the latter notching his 12th save.

Neal Heaton, 3-5, yielded six runs in 3 2-3 innings to take the loss, the Indians' fifth straight and 10th in their last 11 games.

Once he got a 6-2 lead, Krueger started to "challenge the hitters with my fastball. Once you get a lead, you have to go out there and let the defense work for you. Tonight we turned three double plays and that was a big help."

Orioles 6, Brewers 2

Cal Ripken Jr. and Eddie Murray hit consecutive home runs in the second inning and Mike Boddicker pitched a four-hitter as Baltimore stopped Milwaukee.

Boddicker, 7-4, won for the seventh time in his last eight starts. He retired 18 straight batters at one point and the only runs he gave up came on a two-out homer by Cecil Cooper with Dion James on second via a double in the ninth.

The Orioles gave Boddicker all the support he needed in a five-run second inning highlighted by Ripken's three-run homer and Murray's solo shot.

Yankees 8, Red Sox 3

Don Baylor smashed the first inside-the-park homer of his 13 year-career and broke a 3-3 tie in the seventh inning with a two-run single as New York defeated Boston, snapping a five-game winning streak for the Red Sox.

Baylor socked his tie-breaking single in off reliever Steve Crawford after the Yankees loaded the bases off loser Bob Ojeda, 5-5. Dave Winfield then extended his consecutive-game hitting streak to 12 with a two-run triple and Steve Kemp finished the five-run inning with a run-scoring single.

Ron Guidry, 4-4, completed his fourth of 13th starts, allowing 10 hits while walking none and striking out a season-high 10 batters.

White Sox 6, Angels 4

Rudy Law rapped three hits, including a two-run homer, and Ron Kittle hit a solo homer to lead Chicago over California.

LaMarr Hoyt, 5-5, was the winner with last-inning relief help from Al Jenes, who gained his third save.

Another misplay let Rose score.

Local Drug Program Hurts

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
Baseball's substance abuse casualty last week was David Green, the talented first baseman-outfielder of the St. Louis Cardinals, who is undergoing rehabilitation for his problem with alcohol.

He is the latest in a sadly continuing box score of major leaguers whose extra-curricular activities have been something less than wholesome. And while Green deals with his private demons, the Major League Players Association and the Player Relations Committee continue to ruminate over a meaningful drug program for the game. The two sides almost had a deal a couple of weeks ago and in fact, the players announced overwhelming endorsement of it. But the owners pulled back from a vote at the last minute. "As we approached the vote for ratification, it appeared the clubs were divided and if it passed, it would only pass by one or two votes and possibly not pass at all," Lee MacPhail, president of the Player Relations Committee, said. "We felt we needed a more unified position. So we pulled the meeting down."

They were asked what they thought about the requirement for mandatory urinalysis testing, which management seems intent on including in the drug program. "A whole lot of things have to be cleared up," Porter said. "What happens to a guy if the tests are positive? Too many things have been unsaid to say if that kind of testing would be right or wrong. To many questions are still unanswered."

But the two sides remain divided over the issue. When management informed the Players Association that the ratification meeting had been postponed, Fehr said, "We told them we have an agreement and they have an obligation to submit it."

Stars Daily Maulers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — For three quarters, it looked as if the Pittsburgh Maulers would accomplish what no other United States Football League team has done this season, beat the Philadelphia Stars at home.

But the Stars fought back in the fourth quarter Monday night to beat the Maulers 23-17 for their 12th straight United States Football League victory. They improved to 14-1 for the season, dropping the Maulers to 3-12 and moving within one game of the Atlantic Division title.

"No, there is no satisfaction in playing them that close and not winning," said Pittsburgh Coach Ellis Rainsberger. "It is disheartening. It's a compliment to our team the way we didn't give up."

On a 31-yard field goal by David Trout with 6:32 left in the game. Then the momentum turned. Rookie cornerback Garcia Lane raced to the Maulers' 6-yard line on a 49-yard punt return, setting up a 5-yard touchdown pass from Chuck Fusina to Willie Collier with 3:50 left. Fusina found Collier again for the two-point conversion to make it 23-17.

"It really felt good to make a big play because I knew we needed a good play," said Lane.

"The last time we played Pittsburgh (when the Stars won 25-10) I had good success returning punts. The coaches and I felt that I might have a good return night because he's (Pittsburgh's Larry Swider) a good punter. A punt returner can do better sometimes if he knows there's a good punter out there."

But the Maulers weren't finished. With 43 seconds left, they were at the Stars' 6-yard line after a 32-yard pass from Rozantz to Greg Anderson. Rozantz' pass to Flowers fell incomplete, then he threw to Johnnie Dirden for a 2-yard gain.

Enter Sam Mills, the 5-foot-9 linebacker who leads the Stars' Doghouse Defense.

"I just came through and rammed my head into his (Dirden's) ribs, and the ball came spitting out," Mills said. "We (the defense) knew it was in our hands."

"I was trying to make a step into the end zone when somebody came from left field," Dirden said. "I didn't see him and (he) popped the ball right through my chest."

Pete Kugler recovered the ball for the Stars, ending the Mauler threat. Philadelphia led 12-10 at halftime on two Trout field goals, a 33-yarder and a 40-yarder, and a 1-yard touchdown run by Kelvin Bryant.

Pittsburgh scored its first TD on a 1-yard run by Mike Rozier, who left the game at the end of the third quarter with an ankle injury. Eric Schubert added a 56-yard field goal just before halftime for the Maulers.

Bryant finished with 84 yards rushing on 23 attempts, surpassing the 1,000-yard mark, with 1,076, for the second straight year.

Clinic Sponsored For National Tennis Week

In conjunction with National Tennis Week June 23-30, the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department will be sponsoring two sessions of the Dennis Van der Meer Match Play Drill Clinics. These clinics are taught by Ludovit "Louie" Cap who is a world-traveled tennis instructor. Cap began his tennis career as a member of the Czech Davis Cup team and later joined the Van der Meer Tennis University teaching staff. Since then he has traveled with Van der Meer on teaching tours including visits to Japan, South America, the Middle East, Canada and Europe. Since the establishment of these clinics, Cap has settled at Hilton Head Island, S.C. where he directs tennis clinics and summer camps, while his wife, Helma, managed a pro shop and assists with the clinics. During the off-season they travel on national tours conducting various clinics. The Caps are both certified national testers for the Professional Tennis Registry of the U.S., an organization of more than 2,200 tennis teaching pros worldwide. A session for adults will be held

June 28 and a youth session June 29 at the River Birch Tennis Center. Both sessions will last for six hours, and registration is limited to 20 individuals. Individuals should have at least intermediate tennis skills. The local qualifying tournament for the Lipton Ice Tea Mixed Doubles will be held June 23-24 of Tennis Week. The winners of this tournament will advance to one of 128 sectional events around the country, with the winning team advancing to one of 32 regional sites. The regional winners move on to the national finals. The River Birch Tennis Center will also be the site for the North Carolina Junior Team Regional Playoffs June 30, and the winning team will advance to the state playoffs July 14. BIG WINNERS — The Statler Brothers accept one of their four awards Monday night at the 18th annual Music City News Country Awards show at the Grand Ole Opry House in Nashville, Tenn. The group led the awards show, out-polling Alabama four awards to two. (AP Laserphoto)

Statlers Take Home Four Awards In Country Music

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Statler Brothers, country music veterans, say they found no special satisfaction in upstaging younger rival Alabama by taking home four Music City News awards.

"We don't look at it as competition," said Don Reid of the Statler Brothers. "We've been fortunate enough to be around a while, and we're proud of Alabama. But we don't look for competition."

The Statlers, a quartet which has been together for more than 20 years, were honored Monday night for best comedy act, top vocal group, single of the year for "Elizabeth" and No. 1 television special for "Another Evening With The Statler Brothers — Heroes, Legends and Friends."

Alabama, a four-piece pop-country band which has dominated country music awards for three years, won two awards: band of the year and album of the year for the million-selling "The Closer You Get."

"There was a time when we won a whole lot less than the Statlers. I'm proud for them," said Alabama guitarist-fiddler Jeff Cook.

The winners were chosen by subscribers to The Music City News, a monthly country music publication in Nashville. The 18th annual awards presentation was broadcast live from the Grand Ole Opry House on syndicated television to half the country and will be shown later on other stations.

The Statlers, who have won more than 300 awards during their career, were hosts of the show along with Larry Gatlin and Sylvia.

Janie Fricke was voted top female vocalist over veterans Barbara Mandrell and Loretta Lynn and rising stars Reba McEntire and Charly McClain.

Lee Greenwood was named male vocalist of the year over George Jones, Conway Twitty, Ricky Skaggs and Don Williams.

"A whole lot of dreams have come true for me," Miss Fricke said in her acceptance speech. "With a lot of hard work and believing in yourself, just about any dream can come true."

"It's funny how your eyes get real bright when you got tears in them," said Greenwood, who dedicated the award to his grandmother, who encouraged him to choose music over baseball.

Ernest Tubb, the 70-year-old "Texas Troubadour," won the "Living Legend Award" for contributions to country music for at least 25 years. Tubb, who has emphysema, is credited with popularizing the honky-tonk style of country music that developed in Texas in the 1940s.

The award was accepted by his daughter, Karen.

"Hee Haw," which has been on the air for 15 years, won awards as top country music television show and No. 1 gospel act for its quartet of Roy Clark, Buck Owens, Grandpa Jones and Kenny Price.

Other winners were Skaggs, top bluegrass act; Kenny Rogers and Dolly Parton, top duet; and Ronny Robbins, star of tomorrow. Robbins is the son of the late country music star Marty Robbins, who died in December 1982.

It was the second of three annual country music awards shows. The Academy of Country Music show was in May in Los Angeles, and the Country Music Association awards are announced in Nashville in October.

The show was one of the first events in Nashville's annual Fan Fair — a week of country music concerts, exhibits and activities. About 20,000 fans were expected to register for the festivities.

Jacksons May Miss Signing

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Superstar Michael Jackson and his brothers have waited so long to sign a contract for Rupp Arena that a planned June 22 concert kicking off their summer tour is probably impossible, an arena official says.

Time has just about run out for arranging mail-order ticket sales and advertising for June 22, said Bill Pickett, an official with Lexington Center, where the arena is located.

"The following weekend is still possible," he added.

Jackson's mother, Katherine, announced two weeks ago that the six brothers would open their tour June 22 in Lexington. But Rupp Arena operations director Bill Humphrey said the arena still had no contract Monday afternoon.

No other tour dates have been announced.

Jackson fans from across the nation have besieged the Rupp Arena switchboard with ticket requests, but Humphrey said no tickets could be sold until a contract is signed.

Mencken's Club May Be Revived

BALTIMORE (AP) — Plans are afoot to revive the "Saturday Night Club." H.L. Mencken's impromptu beer and musical entertainment sessions, when the rowhouse where the writer spent most of his life opens to the public.

The three-story west Baltimore house is scheduled to open June 15 as a museum and entertainment and reception center.

Mencken is "probably getting a good chuckle in his grave" over the plans, said Jeanne Fetting, who directed the project.

Henry Louis Mencken, born in 1880, moved to the house with his family at age 3 and lived there most of his life. He died in 1956.

British Singer Ending Career

LONDON (AP) — With a farewell sung in Italian to an audience that included Prince Charles, British opera star Sir Geraint Evans ended his 36-year career.

The Welsh miner's son stood Monday night at the Royal Opera House chorus sang the Welsh national anthem, with Charles, Prince of Wales, leading those who joined in from the audience.

The 62-year-old baritone, who had pledged to retire this year "while my voice is still in good shape," chose Donizetti's opera "L'elisir d'amore" for his farewell. He played a peddler of quack love potions.

From a stage strewn with flowers and paper streamers, Evans faced curtain call after curtain call.

Navy Sends New Carrier To Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. aircraft carrier America is heading for the Indian Ocean to take over for the carrier Kitty Hawk, which has been patrolling approaches to the Persian Gulf, Defense Department sources say.

Both carriers and escorting warships probably will be in the north Arabian Sea at the same time for several days within two weeks, the source said Monday, speaking on condition that they would not be identified.

While there is no plan to keep the doubled U.S. force on hand for long, the Pentagon officials said, that could be changed by a serious deterioration in the Persian Gulf, where oil tankers have been attacked in a spillover from the Iran-Iraq war.

The America and four other Navy ships are passing through the Suez Canal and will travel through the Red Sea to the Indian Ocean, the sources said.

Meanwhile, Pentagon sources confirmed that oil tankers chartered to haul fuel for the Navy are being escorted by Navy frigates and destroyers after they enter the Persian Gulf.

The sources said, however, that the Pentagon has not established a new policy of escorting tankers operating in the gulf. Navy warships permanently assigned to patrol the southern gulf monitor the movements of the chartered tankers, the officials said.

The tankers do not operate near the combat zone of the Iran-Iraq war, where planes of the two warring nations have attacked commercial ships, the officials said.

The chartered tankers, the officials said, deliver oil from the gulf port of Bahrain to the U.S. carrier battle group in the Arabian Sea and Navy bases in the Philippines, the Indian Ocean and Japan.

The Baltimore Sun, meanwhile, reported in Tuesday editions that the four U.S. AWACS radar planes stationed in Saudi Arabia will be replaced with newer models that have the capability of detecting slow-moving planes and ships.

The newspaper, which quoted unidentified Reagan administration sources, reported that the newer AWACS would be sent amid concern that Iran might send a small plane or helicopter to fly a kamikaze-style mission against an oil installation.

The New York Times reported in Tuesday editions that a congressional report has questioned whether the shoulder-fired Stinger missiles sent to Saudi Arabia last week would be effective in defending gulf shipping.

The Congressional Research Service, a nonpartisan division of the Library of Congress, completed the study last week after the administration announced the Stingers had been delivered to the Saudis, the Times said.

Navy Scuttles Plan To Sink Nuclear Subs

By The Associated Press

The U.S. Navy, under pressure from environmentalists, has decided against disposing decommissioned nuclear powered submarines in the ocean off the coast of North Carolina, officials say.

Navy officials said the nuclear reactors of the submarines will be buried instead.

The recommendation is contained in a final environmental impact statement released Monday, said Lt. Ken Anderson of the Navy's Office of Information Southeast in Atlanta.

"The final statement identifies land burial at federal waste disposal sites as the preferred option over sea disposal or temporary storage," said Anderson.

Sea disposal was discussed in a draft environmental statement issued in December 1982. But it was met with stiff resistance in public hearings held in Raleigh in 1983. Two of the proposed Atlantic Ocean sites were about 200 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras and a third was off the California coast.

Rep. Walter Jones, D-N.C., chairman of the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, said concerns raised in a series of hearings on the matter and about 500 letters to the Navy "played a pivotal role in the decision."

In a memo to Jones, Navy officials also cited changes in federal regulations governing ocean disposal which included a requirement that any dumping be approved by Congress.

Land disposal calls for reactor plants to be removed and buried in federally approved sites in South Carolina or Washington state.

Job Corps Bus Overturns

CHEROKEE, N.C. (AP) — Ten people were treated for minor injuries and released from local hospitals after a bus from Oconaluftee Job Corps Center rolled down an embankment on Soco Mountain Monday, officials said.

Eddie Cucumber, investigating officer for Cherokee Police Department, said the bus apparently lost its brakes, traveled without brakes about two miles on U.S. 19 and hit a rock embankment head-on at Rough Branch. The bus spun, hit a guardrail and flipped, he said.

Delmar Robinson, director of the center, said the group was on an orientation trip when the accident occurred.

Robinson said the driver, Maurice Biggs, did a good job of controlling the bus, and no other vehicles were involved.

Robinson said the men, all aged 18 to 20, had come to the Cherokee center Wednesday for vocational training and education. He said he believed the 1983 International bus was a total loss.

Civil Libertarians Critics Of Court Ruling On Juveniles

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civil libertarians say the Supreme Court has established a dangerous precedent in ruling that juveniles accused of crimes may be put behind bars pending trial if a judge decides they might commit crimes while awaiting a court hearing.

They predicted Monday's 6-3 ruling reinstating a New York pretrial detention law for juveniles will add fuel to the drive to impose similar laws for adults.

"Preventive detention is a dangerous concept to unleash in any society," said Burt Neuborne of the American Civil Liberties Union in New York City.

Neuborne said the decision means many youngsters accused of relatively minor offenses will be jailed — ironically, only to be freed on probation after they are convicted.

Ross Briggs, a lawyer affiliated with the National Juvenile Law Center in St. Louis, said, "Political conservatives now are going to be encouraged to seek preventive detention for adults as well."

A proposal backed by the Reagan administration to allow preventive detention of adults accused of some federal crimes has passed the Senate but is bottled up in the House.

The Supreme Court, in its first extensive examination of the controversy over preventive detention, upheld a concept already in use for juveniles in all 50 states and the District of Columbia.

The New York law "serves the legitimate state objective, held in common with every state in the country, of protecting both the juvenile and society from the hazards of pretrial crime," said Justice William H. Rehnquist for the court.

While the ruling does not apply to preventive detention for adults, supporters of that idea may be cheered by the court's reasoning.

Rehnquist said, "From a legal point of view there is nothing inherently unattainable about a prediction of future criminal conduct."

He said the high court, in the past, has rejected claims by some sociologists that it is impossible to predict violent, criminal or anti-social behavior.

But the ACLU's Neuborne said, "You can never know who will commit crimes. You end up locking up a large number on hunches."

The American Bar Association also was critical of the decision. Alaire Rieffel, who specializes in criminal justice matters, said the ABA supports preventive detention "only when based on clear criteria" lacking in the New York law.

The justices overturned a 1982 ruling by the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that New York's detention law is a form of punishment before any determination is made as to guilt.

The New York law, applying to youngsters aged 7 to 16, requires a family court judge to determine whether there is a "serious risk" that a juvenile arrested for any offense will commit a crime before he or she is due to appear in court for a hearing.

If so, the judge may order the juvenile held in custody, pending a hearing, for three days for less serious crimes and for up to 17 days for more serious offenses.

Ironically, youths accused of the most serious crimes — murder, for example — are taken out of the juvenile court system in New York and thus generally may not be held without bail before trial.

In all states, someone accused of a crime may be held without bail only if a judge decides the individual is likely to flee from prosecution.

In 1982, the Supreme Court left intact a District of Columbia law that permits some adults accused of dangerous crimes to be held without bail. But that case set no high court precedent, and the constitutionality of such preventive detention for adults is still an open question.

In support of pretrial detention for juveniles, law enforcement officials say that young people account for a big share of crime in America.

Theft Probe Fails To Jail Police Men

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Almost 2 1/2 years after two policemen were caught burglarizing a video store, none of the other 10 officers they implicated in an on-duty theft ring has been jailed, in part because of questions about the motives of the testifying officers.

The 12 officers either resigned or were fired from their jobs in the Hollywood Division. But of the seven who faced criminal charges, three avoided trials through plea bargains and the rest were acquitted or had charges dismissed — the last on Monday.

Prosecutors had trouble convincing jurors that the officers who agreed to testify against their colleagues weren't just trying to help themselves, police officials and attorneys in the case said.

"You have a great many people who weren't convicted," said lawyer David Ogden, who represents Bradford Fisher, one of the former officers who agreed to testify for the prosecution.

"That doesn't mean those people were innocent. It means there wasn't enough evidence to convict them."

The officers who cooperated with prosecutors just "wanted to deliver as many cops as they could to save their butts," said John Polakovic, a lawyer for one officer charged.

The scandal began Dec. 7, 1981, when Officers Ronald Venegas and Jack Myers were observed hauling cassettes from a video store from which investigators had put in a fake burglary call.

The investigation uncovered evidence of on-duty police burglaries at more than 100 Hollywood video stores, police said.

According to investigators, the officers sometimes answered legitimate burglar alarms and plundered stores before the owner arrived, while other times they would trigger an alarm themselves.

Criminal charges were filed against seven of the 12 officers the Department's Internal Affairs Division linked to the on-duty burglaries. The two officers who testified in exchange for leniency still face imprisonment in plea-bargain agreements. Another officer who agreed to testify has died, and charges against four other officers either were dismissed or resulted in acquittal.

Two counts of burglary and one count of receiving stolen property were dismissed Monday in Superior Court against the last of the seven, James Wallace, 33.

Deputy District Attorney Jay Lipman said he requested the dismissal because the case against Wallace — who was acquitted of another burglary charge in November — was "the weakest of all."

"Our judicial system is amazing isn't it?" Capt. Al Fried, who headed the police department's internal investigation, who said he was disappointed that not a single officer has been imprisoned.

"The 'not guilty's are just a reflection of what happens in the courts all the time' when prosecution witnesses aren't believed, Fried said.

Nevertheless, he added, "It was more important to the people of Los Angeles and this police department to get every dirty officer out of that division that to necessarily send them to the penitentiary."

LETTING THE WORLD KNOW — Some unknown spray-can paint author used the side of a Dempsey Dumpster at Pamlico Beach to let everybody know he or she didn't want to be asked again "when J. goes back to work." Still unanswered, however, are the questions: who is J. and what does J think about being publicized in big letters on a Dempsey Dumpster in a very public place? (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Singing Group Hurt In Wreck

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — The members of the Chuck Wagon Gang, a nationally known gospel quartet celebrating its 50th anniversary, were in stable condition Monday after their car skidded off the road and was hit by another vehicle, officials said.

Ruth Ellen Yates, daughter of the group's founder, suffered the most serious injuries in Sunday's crash, said LaWayne Satterfield of Image P.R. in Nashville, Tenn. Mrs. Yates was in intensive care with a broken jaw, cracked ribs and a broken pelvic bone, he said.

Also hospitalized were Roy Carter, Pat McKeehan and Tricia Neighbors, a hospital spokesman said. McKeehan said all of the members had broken bones and needed stitches.

Ms. Neighbors, the driver, was charged with exceeding a safe speed, said R.E. Taylor of the state Highway Patrol. He estimated her car was doing 65 mph in a 55 zone.

"The driver stated she swerved to miss a large box in the road," Taylor said.

The quartet's 1978 Cadillac skidded off the right side of the road, back across the pavement and was hit on its side by a car driven by James H. Drew III of Augusta, Ga., Taylor said.

Drew was also listed in stable condition at Randolph Hospital, officials said.

The Fort Worth, Texas, group was scheduled for a performance at the Pleasant Grove Church in Bennett.

The group's single "Sing Me A Going Home Song," was No. 75 on the country music charts last week.

FEC Says Club Files 'Faulty'

By The Associated Press
The computerized bookkeeping system utilized by the National Congressional Club violates the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, but no charges will be filed against the organization, according to a federal agency.

The Federal Election Commission said in documents released Monday that of the almost $10 million received in contributions by the club during 1981-82, the club failed to return only $8,890 from three individuals who had surpassed the legal contribution limit.

Under federal election law, a person may contribute no more than $5,000 in a single year to a political action committee.

The FEC, in a letter to the club, warned that although the money had been refunded, "immediate steps should be taken to ensure this activity does not occur in the future."

The FEC said that the club's computerized bookkeeping system fails to spot illegal contributions in a timely fashion. However, the FEC said it had ended the probe because the money was refunded and because the amount was "small in comparison to the huge volume of contributions received by the (club)."

Mike Holt, an assistant executive director of the club, said Monday that some changes have been made in the bookkeeping system "to make it more responsive."

Added Holt, "Considering the vast volume of contributions we receive, I think the fact that the FEC could find only three in excess of the legal limit is pretty good, actually."

The FEC voted 4-2 in executive session April 24 not to pursue the probe, although the agency had voted 4-0 on Dec. 9, 1983 to conduct the investigation.

IN THE STATE

Eden 9th Graders Lead Test Scores

By The Associated Press
The Eden city schools were at the top of the class in the state's writing test for ninth graders, but Durham and Weldon city school districts failed, posting the highest percentage of ninth-graders with the lowest possible score.

The Eden city schools had the highest percentage of students who earned the top score on the writing test with 6.1 percent, according to a report by the Department of Public Instruction. The report will be presented to the state Board of Education Wednesday.

But Durham and Weldon's city schools had 63.4 percent of their students post the lowest score possible in overall quality on the test.

The writing test, administered in January for the first time, was taken by 90,241 ninth-graders and 88,490 sixth-graders. Ninth graders were tested on persuasive writing and sixth graders were testing on descriptive writing.

The report concluded that most of North Carolina's sixth- and ninth-graders who took the writing test landed on the bottom half of the score scale and failed to meet "the high standards" established for the test.

A. Craig Phillips, state superintendent for public instruction, declined to comment on the test results.

The report stated that many students "were not sufficiently ware of the purposes or techniques of descriptive and persuasive writing. As evidence of this, students had difficulty in reading and understanding exactly the writing task required of them and writing consistently on the task."

But across the state, a majority of sixth- and ninth-grade students did show a reasonable command of the English language on a separate part of the test, the report said.

Cleveland Hammonds, superintendent of Durham city schools, said students in the system were taught the mechanics of writing, such as grammar, but the instruction did not focus on different types of writing like descriptive or persuasive writing.

"If youngsters are not familiar with that kind of writing, you have the problem of interpretation (of the test assignment) and having had enough practice," he said.

The Chapel Hill-Carboro system had the highest percentage of sixth-graders who received the highest score at 16 percent. The Perquimans County schools had the highest percentage of students receiving the lowest score at 28.4 percent.

Former Clerk Faces Charge

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A Wayne County grand jury has indicted former clerk of court Shelton Jordan on charges of embezzlement, misallocation of state funds and corruptive behavior.

The charges stem from a State Bureau of Investigation probe into the handling of funds by the clerk's office. As a result of the investigation, Jordan resigned in April.

The investigation followed a field audit by the administrative office of the courts which was prompted by concerns expressed by a member of the clerk's staff.

The indictments charge Jordan with embezzling $50,908 between December 1982 through February 1984. No other charges were filed, although the state prosecutor, Don Stephens, said in a statement two weeks ago that two members of the clerk's staff had "impeded" the investigation by being less than candid with SBI agents.

State To Pass Up Dix Space

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt announced Monday that the state no longer plans to move minimum security prisoners into Dorothea Dix Hospital, reversing an earlier decision.

"There is no longer as much of a pressing need to add additional cells to serve our inmate population," Hunt said in a prepared statement, which noted that the prison population has dropped since 1983 and now stands 150 below capacity.

Last October, Hunt said the state was planning to move 500 inmates into seven transformed buildings on Dix's west campus.

Hunt said Monday he is now "convinced that the west campus should be used for offices for state agencies that now rent space in the Raleigh area, including the Department of Correction."

He estimated that could save the state about $500,000 a year in rent.

it can

Somebody said that it couldn't be done, but he with a chuckle replied, that "maybe it couldn't" but he would be one who wouldn't say so till he tried. So he buckled right in with the trace of a grin on his face. If he worried, he hid it. He started to sing as he tackled the thing that couldn't be done, and he did it. Somebody scoffed: "Oh, you'll never do that, at least no one ever has done it." But he took off his coat and took off his hat and the first thing he knew he'd begun it. With the lift of a chin and a bit of a grin, if any doubt rose he forbid it:

he started to sing as he tackled the thing that couldn't be done, and he did it. There are thousands to tell you it cannot be done; there are thousands to prophesy failure; there are thousands to point out to you, one by one, the dangers that wait to assail you, but just buckle right in with a bit of a grin, then take off your coat and go to it. Just start in to sing as you tackle the thing that cannot be done, and you'll do it.
