Edmisten Wins Democratic Nomination

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County voters helped give Rufus Edmisten the votes he needed to narrowly defeat Eddie Knox for the Democratic nomination as governor in Tuesday's runoff primary.

Local voters also helped give former Greenville resident John Brooks an easy victory over Dick Barnes in the race for the Democratic nomination for commissioner of labor, and chose John Carrington over Frank Jordan as the Republican nominee for lieutenant governor.

According to unofficial totals, Edmisten, who led nine other candidates in the May 8 primary, received 7,172 votes in Pitt County in the runoff Tuesday, while Knox, the second place finisher in May, took 4,837 ballots.

Statewide, with 99.9 percent of the precincts counted, Edmisten, the state's attorney general, had 52 percent of the vote and led in 75 counties, while Knox, former mayor of Charlotte, took 48 percent of the state-wide balloting.

Edmisten led in all Pitt County precincts in the May 8 balloting, but Knox gained support to lead in Greenville 1 (145 to 118), Greenville 3 (217 to 198) and Greenville 4 (304 to 243), in the runoff.

In the race for the nomination as commissioner of labor, Brooks, the incumbent, took 7,939 votes in Pitt County, while Barnes received 2,755 votes.

Statewide, Brooks, who took 46.7 percent of the vote in the three-way race on May 8, had 54.8 percent of the vote

Tuesday with 99.9 percent of the precincts reported. Barnes, a state senator from Forsyth County, had 45.2 percent of the vote.

In the race for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor, Carrington received 263 votes in Pitt County, while Jordan took 139 votes. Jordan, a retired army sergeant, led the four other candidates seeking the GOP nomination in Pitt County and across the state in the May 8 primary.

But with 99.8 percent of the precincts in the state reported, Carrington had 61.2 percent of the votes statewide, to Jordan's 38.8 percent.

Republican Party officials in eastern North Carolina last week urged support for Carrington, saying many people who voted for Frank Jordan apparently confused the GOP candidate with Democrat Bob Jordan in the May 8 primary, because the two candidates had the same last name and sought the same office.

Bob Jordan used television commercials to help him win the Democratic nomination May 8 over former state House Speaker Carl Stewart for the Democratic nomination as lieutenant governor.

Republican Frank Jordan, who sings pebbles for "adoption," campaigned by singing gospel tunes at personal appearances.

Edmisten will face Republican Jim Martin, who represents the 9th Congressional District in the U.S. House of Representatives, in November, while Brooks will face Republican Margaret Plemmons of Forsyth County in the general election.

Mondale Claims Victory

By EVANS WITT
AP Political Writer

Walter F. Mondale stood barely short of the magic majority of convention delegates today, claiming victory in the marathon contest for the Democratic presidential nomination despite Sen. Gary Hart's smashing triumph in the California primary.

"We expect today at noon, he will claim the nomination," said Mondale campaign chairman, Jim Johnson.

To that end the Mondale staff scurried today to flush out national convention delegates now willing to go public with their support of the former vice president and came up with Mayor Andrew Young of Atlanta.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said today that Mondale has won the nomination and that his two rivals should "stop playing games out there" and unite behind him.

O'Neill said Hart has requested a meeting Thursday in Washington and that he will give his unity message directly to the Colorado senator.

"For all practical purposes, it's all over," O'Neill told reporters as he entered the Capitol this morning. "There's no question in my mind that Mondale has it on the first ballot" at the July nominating convention.

O'Neill has been a public supporter of Mondale for some time.

"I feel great," said Mondale, who won resoundingly Tuesday in New Jersey and West Virginia. "We had a wonderful evening."

D-Day Vets Recall Dead

OMAHA BEACH, France (AP) — Heroes of D-Day, carrying memories of comrades slain 40 years ago, returned to the beaches and cliffs of Normandy today, joining presidents and monarchs in commemorating the anniversary of the Allied invasion.

President Reagan stood atop the rocky limestone promontory at Pointe du Hoc to unveil two plaques honoring those who took part in the initial wave of the June 6, 1944, assault by more than 156,000 Allied troops — the first step toward freeing France from Adolf Hitler's German forces.

And he issued a call to "wipe from the face of the earth the terrible weapons man now has in his hands." Recalling the 20 million Soviet citizens who lost their lives in the war, Reagan urged the Soviet Union to show some sign "that they share our desire for love and peace."

Then he flew by helicopter to Omaha Beach, where he met French President Francois Mitterrand, who escaped from a German prisoner of war camp in 1942 and established a Resistance network.

Mitterrand earlier laid a wreath at the monument to the Liberation of France in Bayeux, the city which was the first major point freed by Allied forces.

In the semicircular arena in front of the bas relief figures of French people welcoming the liberators, Mitterrand stood alone while a band played the French "Salute to the Dead." After a minute's silence, the "Marseillaise" rang out.

He later joined Britain's Queen Elizabeth II and her husband Prince Philip at a cemetery in Bayeux, where 2,000 British soldiers are buried.

City May Get More Turnover

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Members of the Greenville Utilities Commission decided Tuesday night to consider increasing the amount of turnover to the city, rather than look at requests by the City Council to take over street lighting and set preferential rates which would sell power to the city and the commission at wholesale.

The council, at a joint meeting with commission members May 15 to discuss the GUC's proposed 1984-85 budget, asked for an additional $500,000 in turnover in 1984-85; that the city receive a turnover from all utilities funds — electric, water, sewer and gas — rather than electric and gas only as has been the case in the past; that the commission establish a municipal electric rate to sell electricity to the city and itself at wholesale cost, and that GUC assume responsibility for municipal street lighting in the city.

City Manager Gail Meeks has told councilmembers and commission members the city would save an estimated $62,000 in the coming year if it could purchase electricity at wholesale, and another $300,000 if GUC would take over the street lighting system.

Mrs. Meeks said if the commission would turn over the additional $500,000 in the coming fiscal year, "we'd (the city) be willing to turn

Session To Focus On Teachers

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Budget adjustment for the state, primarily focusing on appropriations in the field of public education to be made from the state's surplus of $550 million, faces the short session of the General Assembly opening in Raleigh Thursday.

Two local officials, state Sen. Vernon White and state Rep. Ed Warren say they expect the short session to last at least four weeks, possibly six weeks. Rep. Walter B. Jones Jr. could not be reached for comment.

The proposed budget draft presented by Gov. Jim Hunt to the legislators recommends education items totaling $279 million, slightly more than half of the $550 million surplus.

"When we adjourned last July, the understanding at that time was that the short session this year would be centered on the needs of the public education system," White commented.

"One of the proposals is for a pay increase of 17 percent for beginning teachers in the school systems, with proposed increases ranging between 13 and 17 percent for teachers already in the system. I feel these raises are needed to entice better people into teaching," White said. "For the past few years, most of our new teachers have come from the lower 25 percentile of SAT scores."

Salute To Industry

Pitt Seeks 'Clean Industry'

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

When Pitt County Development Commission Executive Director John Chaffee goes industry hunting, he has several criteria in mind. He says he looks for "long-term industries with staying power and growth potential as well as clean industry."

And that is not too much to ask, Chaffee said, because not only do local residents want clean, stable industry, so do manufacturers already located in Pitt.

"The main thing we try to do when courting industry is get the Procter and Gambles, basic industries that is — industries that fit in with our scheme of things. For instance, industry is just as interested in preserving its environment as residents are in protecting theirs. They don't want someone to come in who will upset the balance just as we as residents don't want anyone to come in that will hurt the environment and cause problems," Chaffee explained.

Greenville residents need not worry about the possibility of industry's and home owners' concerns colliding, according to Chaffee, because Pitt has the added bonus of a natural barrier — the Tar River — which serves to divide industry and residential areas. "It just so happened that residential expansion began on the south side of the river and continued growing that way while industry sprung up on the north side," Chaffee explained.

County Test Scores Rise

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County's pre-high school students averaged higher scores and sharper increases in performance levels in 1984 on standard achievement tests than in previous years, Associate Superintendent John McKnight has announced.

The rise in scores is especially significant in grades 7-9, McKnight said. In a report to the Pitt County Board of Education Tuesday, McKnight released both the achievement scores and the Pitt County results of the writing pilot test.

The following is an overview of his report:

•Reading: In 1984 first-graders in the system averaged scores at grade level 2. Third graders scored at grade level 4.2, an increase from the group's score at grade level 3.6

grade as second-graders in 1983. Fifth grade students scored at grade level 6.3, up from a 4.9 reading score for the group in 1983. Seventh-graders scored on an average grade level of eight, up over one grade level from the class's 1983 scores of 6.7. Eighth-graders scored at a grade level of 9.3, up from their 1983 score of grade level eight. Ninth grade students scored at grade level

WRITTEN PERMISSION?

Is it legal for a veterinarian to kill an animal without written permission from the owner? I sent my mother's dog to the vet for a bath and my husband gave permission verbally for the veterinarian to "put him to sleep." This dog was 18 years old, but he was not, in my opinion, ill enough to be killed. My husband says he was talked into it by the doctor. I hold him responsible for allowing himself to be talked into it, but I also hold the doctor responsible for performing this act when he clearly knew he did not have the permission of the real owner.

Helen Jackson of the North Carolina Veterinary Medical Board, with offices in Fayetteville, said, to the best of her knowledge, there is a law requiring written permission for humane killing of animals by a licensed veterinarian. She said most veterinarians do require written permission from the owners of their patients before they will perform euthanasia. This is done, she said, to protect themselves from situations like the one you describe. Often, she said, owners or persons assumed to be owners do either change their minds about the wisdom of euthanasia once it is performed or disagree among themselves about the action.

draperies to temporarily shrink or stretch.

No one dye is fast to everything so a dyer chooses dyes suited to the fiber and end use of a fabric. Some common problems with dyes are bleeding, cracking, migration (running), or chemical changes. Drapery dyes experience chemical changes which can cause tendering of draperies or fume fading. In such cases damage may not be evident until the draperies are cleaned, then slits and holes occur. Even vat dyes, the most colorfast, are susceptible to this.

Pigments are held on the fabric surface with binding agents. The serviceability of these depends on the fabric as well as the method by which it is applied. However stiffening of the fabric, cracking and fading are some problems.

As previously noted humidity affects the length of draperies. Also condensation on windows, contact with rain, etc., will frequently cause drapery fabrics to become water marked. Stains result which sometimes are not noticeable until the general soil has been removed in dry cleaning. In most instances these stains are impossible to remove safely.

Because of the many invisible factors that might affect both the life and appearance of draperies and curtains, the retail store cannot guarantee how long they will last nor can the dry cleaner always determine what the result of the dry cleaning process will be. You the consumer, however, will benefit by remembering the following hints:

1. Know the fiber, weave and finish of a drapery or curtain you select.
2. Examine the quality of construction.
3. If possible, rotate curtains and draperies from sunny windows to an unexposed side of the house; or vary window treatments to equalize the environmental effect.
4. Inform your cleaner of the fiber content in your draperies and curtains.
5. Remember the life expectancy of lined draperies is five years; unlined-four years; sheer fabrics-three years. However, exposure to sunlight and certain atmospheric conditions in the home will substantially shorten their life.
6. Send your draperies and curtains to reliable dry cleaners or laundrers.

Occasionally draperies or curtains, just back from the dry cleaner, are returned in a torn or faded condition. When this happens the customer is likely to conclude that the cleaner has damaged them and should either replace them or make an adjustment. The dry cleaner frequently is not at fault. Draperies or curtains may appear to be in perfect condition when sent for dry cleaning. Actually, they could be so deteriorated that even the moderate agitation necessary to remove soil would cause them to fall into shreds. When this occurs, it is not carelessness or incompetence on the part of the cleaner but rather the result of one or more of the following factors:

Constant exposure to the bright, hot rays of the sun will damage the strength of most fibers. Sometimes this happens after only a few months of use. Indirect sunlight is also damaging but not to as great a degree. Lined draperies naturally resist sun damage better than unlined. However, it is poor economy to line quality drapery fabric with an inferior or incompatible lining which might deteriorate long before the drapery itself. Sun deflectors and shades can also be used to prolong the life of fabric. When just one color of a printed fabric is adversely affected, it is the result of the chemical action of sunlight on certain dyestuffs. Colors most frequently affected are yellow, red and chartreuse. Buying vat or solution dyed fabrics reduces this possibility.

After the soil has been removed, faded or yellow streaks are often in evidence. This is a condition which dry cleaning will not correct. These streaks will be more prevalent in the folds exposed to direct sunlight. Upon inspection, some evidence of fabric weakness is usually found in the faded areas. The description of a fabric as "sunfast" is generally inaccurate as none is completely resistant to sun damage, however the noncellulosic, man-made fibers such as polyester are more resistant to such damage.

Fumes from polluted air, chimneys, furnaces, cooking, smoking, etc. contain certain chemicals which cling to curtains and draperies. When combined with humidity and oxygen in the air a mild acid forms which contributes to the discoloration and deterioration of the fabrics.

Up to 2 percent shrinkage can be expected when the fabric has not been preshrunk in drycleaned draperies, and up to 4 percent in laundered draperies. An adjustable hem which could be let down when needed will solve this problem with natural or cellulosic fibers. Drastic one-time shrinkage is less of a problem with man-made fabrics. However, progressive shrinkage can be a problem and should be taken into consideration. Weave also affects drapery length. For instance loosely woven fabrics are affected by humidity changes. The amount of humidity in the air can cause

A reception followed the ceremony and was held at the church.

The couple will live in Nashville, Tenn., after a wedding trip to Atlantic Beach, N.C.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Her Decision Shows Both Love And Pain

DEAR ABBY: This is in regard to "I Know Who I Am," the 24-year-old adopted person whose letter ends with, "Why should I look up people who gave me away? They had their chance."

Well, I'm 18 years old, and I just relinquished my daughter (she was 3 days old), and I wish more than anything in the world that I could have kept her. The pain I've been through these last few months is indescribable, but I know that giving her up was best for both of us. Now I can finish school and have a choice about my future. And she can be brought up by two mature parents.

I hope one day she will want to meet me. It's not that I want to "steal" her away from her adoptive parents; it's just to let her know how much I loved her those three days.

Many mothers raise children alone and do an excellent job, but in my case I could not have done it alone. I need to finish growing up myself before I can be a responsible parent.

Maybe "I Know Who I Am" will think about that, and one day give her biological parents a chance. They were thinking only of her when they made that decision.

Vows Said In Outdoor Ceremony

Dean R. Butler and James Thomas Wyche were united in marriage Sunday at 3 p.m. in an outdoor wedding performed at the home of the bride's sister, Mr. and Mrs. B.B. Glisson.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony was the Rev. R.S. Pollard. The bride is the daughter of Ann Robinson of Winterville and granddaughter of Clyde Saulter of Farmville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J.I. Wyche of Weldon.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother and escorted by her brother, Michael Robinson. Her matron of honor was Julia Purvis of Bethel. Lawrence Garrett was best man.

The bridesmaid was Lynn Glisson, niece of the bride. Ushers were Steven Butler, son of the bride, Kenneth and C.B. Saulter, uncles of the bride.

The bride wore a street length white dress trimmed in alencon lace. She wore a spray of blue and white baby's breath in her hair and carried a bouquet of blue and white carnations tied with satin lace and blue and white streamers.

A reception followed the ceremony and was given by the bride's mother and sisters. Punch was poured by Dottie Bryan, sister of the bride, and cake was served by Debra Barrington, cousin of the bride.

The bride is employed by Blue Bell in Ayden. The bridegroom is employed by Winn Dixie in Greenville.

The couple will live in Stokes after a wedding trip to unannounced points.

A shower was given by her family and was held at the home of her mother.

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago I became pregnant by a boy I will call Terry. We weren't dating, so it surprised everyone. Terry did stick by me while I was pregnant, then after the baby was born he started dating someone else.

He stops by to see his little girl, but I never got over loving him, so this is kind of hard on me. I have asked him how our chances are for getting back together, but he says he doesn't want to be tied down right now.

This is driving me crazy because I really do love him. Should I keep trying to get him back, or should I give up? He's 18 and I am 19.

Timely Study

It is now June and the calendar, the U.S. Weather Service and the National Hurricane Center tell us the hurricane season is upon us.

Odds are that North Carolina is going to get a major storm this year (the odds mount with every passing year because our state is the second-most hurricane-prone state on the Atlantic coast, and it has been a long time since a bad one hit us).

The last great storm to strike was Donna in the 1960s ... and the Hurricane Center's concern is great enough for them to send a forecaster to meet with state and federal officials to launch a study of a $100,000 comprehensive evacuation plan for the coast.

Past experience and instincts tell us the study is timely.

Of course, the evacuation plan study is for the sake of coastal residents. We who live inland are mostly subject to downed power lines, toppled trees, roof-removals and other inconveniences. On the coast, people are subject to all of those as well as extremely high water (flooding) — and that adds to the loss-of-life risks.

We are told most of the nation's hurricanes take place between the first of August and the end of October — although some do occur in June and some as late as December.

At any rate, it's just as well contingency planning has begun. But to tell the truth, coastal people might feel just a bit more secure if it was launched a month ago. It takes time to study precautionary measures and still more time to put them in place.

Trial By Fire

If you are among those who are part-time viewers-with-alarm, there is one more field for enjoying the habit.

We read there are those in the legal community who are alarmed by what they perceive as a possible glut in the profession of lawyering.

Nationally (we are told) there are 650,000 licensed lawyers — one for every 363 residents. In North Carolina the picture is not so bad, with one active lawyer for every 560 residents. But before cheering, the survey showed it may take years for the average attorney in North Carolina to become established in his (or her) field, and those years of effort are often marked by a difficult survival pattern.

One reasonable explanation for the Tar Heel career handicap comes from Leary Davis, dean of the Campbell University law school in Buies Creek, who noted five counties have 50 percent of the lawyers ... a case of maldistribution.

Be that as it may, there is no easy remedial solution. We, as a society guided by innumerable laws (and more are always in the oven), will always need the expertise and talents of those who know and understand the intricacies of law. Perhaps we should look upon the trial by fire which new lawyers apparently undergo as a natural process assuring survival of the fittest.

Face it. A past, present, or potential client would not have it otherwise.

No Arms Talks For Now

—Barry Schweid—

WASHINGTON (AP) — Weakness and confusion among top Soviet leaders and a desire to drive Ronald Reagan from the White House are major reasons for the breakdown in nuclear arms control talks, says arms control director Kenneth L. Adelman.

In a recent interview, Adelman said the negotiations probably will not be resumed until after the November election — and may never start up again. But while "that's always possible," the 39-year-old U.S. arms control and disarmament director said he was optimistic over the long run.

"I think we are going to go back to the talks eventually, and the Soviets will realize it's in their interest to do so," Adelman said.

In the meantime, he said, the Soviets may want to make progress in two non-nuclear fields — a ban on chemical weapons and reducing NATO and Warsaw Pact ground forces in Central Europe.

The Soviets have proposed a ban on chemical weapons in Europe, while the United States has urged outlawing them worldwide. Currently, the administration is waiting for a reply from Moscow to a U.S. offer to hold bilateral negotiations.

The troops talks resumed last month with an American initiative to get around an argument over the size of Warsaw Pact forces. The Soviets dismissed it, but the negotiations are continuing.

Adelman, former deputy to Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. chief delegate to the United Nations, won confirmation to the arms control post last year after a nasty fight in the Senate. He took over a dispirited agency, but morale appears to have improved.

In a relaxed half-hour talk, Adelman reflected a mixture of optimism and confidence in U.S. strategy and objectives.

He said the Soviets were always unpredictable about arms control. "All you can do," he said, "and what you have an obligation to do, and what we have been successful in doing, is to create the climate for successful negotiations if the Soviets are willing."

Ticking off the reasons for the current stalemate, Adelman began with "the U.S. elections — how they can get Ronald Reagan out of the White House."

But, he said, Americans may be overestimating the importance of U.S. elections as an influence on Soviet behavior.

In fact, he said, "I'm not terribly sure if this was 1985 that it wouldn't be pretty much exactly the same."

Besides, Adelman said, the Soviets did "pretty poorly" in trying to influence the elections last year in West Germany. There the conservative Christian Democrats, who were solidly behind new U.S. missile deployments, defeated the Social Democrats, who were divided over the issue.

By the same token, Adelman said, "the amount of internal dissension, weakness, confusion in the Soviet decision-making structure" is underestimated.

He said it extends beyond arms talks to the withdrawal from the Olympic Games and the cancellation of a top Soviet official's visit to China while he was on the way to the airport. "That's a funny kind of action to take on such a serious matter," Adelman said.

Questions about nuclear weapons dominated the interview, but Adelman was anxious to discuss chemical weapons as well.

"The spread of chemical weapons and the increasing acceptability of their use is on my agenda, near the top, in terms of real, live dangers," Adelman said.

"You can have a situation in 30 years in which you would look back and see that was a big turning point in human history and we did not give it proper attention because we were blinded by the nuclear issues."

Congress Comes Up Lacking

WASHINGTON (AP) — To misquote Henry Higgins, the snooty British chauvinist professor in "My Fair Lady":

Why can't the U.S. Congress be more like the British Parliament?

Often, American tourists are surprised how boring debate can be in the House and Senate.

You can look down from the visitors' galleries and see only one or two bona fide senators out there droning on about some unrecognizable legislation. It's very likely there will be more young pages than senators on the floor.

And chances are the most exhilarating moments might be when the tally clerk so very s-l-o-w-l-y calls the roll of 100 to tick off enough time for a senator to walk over from his office to chat for awhile in an almost empty chamber. At least this diversion gives first-time onlookers an opportunity to view some famous politician answer, "Here!"

There are, of course, exceptions — when things can get rather lively. School prayer debate was one rarity. Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., and Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., gave them the ol' what-for.

Nowadays in the House, however, the caliber of parliamentary stand-up rows is coming along nicely as the self-acclaimed "conservative opportunity society" — a band of vociferous Republicans — attacks Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill for "smearing" their reputations.

One O'Neill fan, Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., alludes to them as "crybabies."

Be that as it may, House catfights still can't hold a candle — yet — to the delightful rowdiness of the British House of Commons. English pols can teach U.S. lawmakers ever so much in the fine skill of sniping.

For instance, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher glared stoically as disbelieving opponents slapped their knees in laughter while she recently explained her views on a major coal strike. They cried "rubbish." They wagged fingers at her. They heckled and booed her.

One front bencher got up and told how coal mining families are near ruin.

"Aren't you ashamed of yourself?," he shouted at Mrs. Thatcher. "You are a disgrace to motherhood!"

An American tourist watching in amazement imagined aloud what would happen if President Reagan were subjected to a similar slur from the Democratic leadership.

Then, after Mrs. Thatcher left, Commons rocked all night, sometimes a whisker away from fisticuffs.

It got so bitter that one British official called the debate a "confused, muddled, chaotic and undignified" situation. Now that's theater at its best.

There are other striking differences in the two deliberative bodies.

In London that day, the conservatives all dressed like bankers, while pink shirts and odd ties flashed across the pit on the Labor bench.

In the House, ghastly plaid jackets or scruffy tennis shoes with business suits can be spotted in either party's ranks.

Both the House and Commons have the office of speaker, but to the dismay of Rep. Robert S. Walker, R-Pa., occupants of the lofty perch are not much alike philosophically.

Commons' speaker is neutral. While just a member of Parliament, he allies himself with a particular faction. But once he dons the speaker's robes, he is supposed to take no sides.

That's not exactly the case with the House speaker. You don't even have to scratch the skin of our speaker to find a Democrat.

So complains Walker: "After all, it seems to me that the office of speaker is there to serve us all, that the office of the speaker is not a partisan office. ... But when the speaker decides to engage in name calling, he is calling names on behalf of not only himself but on behalf of the institution."

Frank, the speaker's friend, retorted that Walker is suffering from "a confusion" between the House and Commons.

Nonetheless, there's no confusion about who has scathing insults down to a precise science. British politicians must have thicker skins.

Mondale And Aides Take Different Roads

WASHINGTON — While Walter Mondale was attacking Gary Hart last week for sponsoring in 1980 legislation that would settle the claims of victims of asbestos-related diseases, several of Mondale's top campaign advisers had worked or were still working on behalf of a company that has favored the legislation.

At least one Mondale campaign official, Richard Moe, has represented a leading defendant in the asbestos litigation, the Manville Corp., on separate legislation that would shift the victims' claims from bankruptcy court to federal district court. Manville, which declared bankruptcy in 1982 to protect itself from more than 20,000 asbestos-related lawsuits, contends that the legislation might leave it unable to stay in business, and has opposed the measure. Moe says he has also been involved in discussions with Manville officials on the settlement legislation, which the company has supported, but that he never lobbied on behalf of the bill.

Meanwhile, three part-time Mondale advisers — Anne Wexler, Gail Harrison and Leon Billings — have also served as consultants to Manville. Wexler and Harrison, who are partners in a consulting firm they founded after leaving the Carter White House, have also represented Aetna Life and Casualty Co., one of the insurance firms involved in asbestos litigation. Billings said only that he had "provided advice to the Manville Corp. on a broad range of issues," but that he had not lobbied for the company.

It's believed that some of the these advisers, including Moe, cautioned Mondale against attacking Hart on the asbestos-claims issue. Indeed, as one lawyer involved in the litigation pointed out, the original Hart bill was the product of negotiations involving Congress, business and Mondale's biggest supporter, organized labor.

General Dynamics Corp. may have been the intended beneficiary of the United States' latest arms delivery to Saudi Arabia. As manufacturer of the 400 "Stinger" anti-aircraft missiles and 200 launchers sent last week to the oil kingdom, the St. Louis-based arms maker stood to receive around $40 million. A previously proposed sale of 1,200 Stingers and 400 launchers, withdrawn last winter, would have cost the Saudis $144 million.

But the Stingers will do little to improve Saudi defenses against high-performance attack aircraft, two military analysts told us. The kingdom has already received two-thirds of the 62 F-15s it purchased from the U.S. It's also deployed three types of surface-to-air missiles, the heat-seeking "Red Eye," "Hawk," and French-made

"Shanine." (France has a $4 billion military assistance contract with the Saudi government.)

More importantly, the Stinger employs a shoulder-fired launcher. Despite advanced targeting technology, which enables it to home in on its prey from various angles, the Stinger may prove no match against high-speed aircraft that are capable of countering heat-seeking missiles.

"They (Stingers) are definitely a last line of defense," said an analyst with the Congressional Research Service. "The main effect is that the Iranians and Iraqis will realize that they (the two countries' air forces) won't necessarily be getting a free ride."

Fresh from his victory in El Salvador's recent presidential election, Jose Napoleon Duarte has pledged to both Salvadorans and U.S. government officials his interest in bringing human rights abuse to an end.

Yet, as Raymond Bonner notes in his new book, "Weakness and Deceit: U.S. Policy and El Salvador," Duarte's voiced commitment to human rights has suffered before under pressure from the country's dominant military establishment. Bonner, whose use of U.S. government documents makes his critique "must" reading for Reagan administration officials, notes a State Department cable, issued four weeks after the murder of four American church women, which says, "We do not see him (Duarte) active in pressuring the investigation." During Duarte's term as junta president (1980-1982), military-sponsored death squad activity accelerated.

Jamaican Prime Minister Edward Seaga is making a big push to bring casino gambling to his country. International resort interests reportedly have pledged to create 17,000 construction jobs, not to mention thousands more positions in the service sector. On a recent trip to Jamaica, we found unsurprisingly strong support for casino gambling among the business community. However, though Jamaica is struggling under high unemployment and rigid lending guidelines from the International Monetary Fund, gambling has encountered heated opposition from the country's strong church community.

The Pitt County Board of Health will hold a special meeting Thursday at 7 p.m. in the conference room of the county health department to discuss a request by Lynndale Development Corp. to develop a section of Lynndale subdivision located between Greenville Boulevard and Crown Point Road.

Institutes Set

Nearly 200 managers and assistants of school food service programs will attend in the 1984 series of N.C. School Food Service institutes at East Carolina University this summer.

The series, scheduled for June 12-15, June 26-29 and July 10-13, is a project of the state Department of Public Instruction's Division of Child Nutrition and the ECU School of Home Economics, in cooperation with the ECU Division of Continuing Education.

Scholarship Winner

The Winterville Kiwanis Club has selected Judith (Missy) Whitford of D.H. Conley High School to receive a $500 scholarship. Miss Whitford will attend the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in the fall to major in biology.

GCA Awards

Various awards and scholarships were presented at Greenville Christian Academy's recent graduation ceremony.

Recipients included: Alisha McLawhorn, valedictorian; Denise Robinson, salutatorian; Brian House, Mr. GCA; Denise Robinson, Miss GCA; Kathy Vernelson and Chris Harris, Most Athletic; Tate Corney, Chairman's Award; Alisha McLawhorn, Academic Award; Kathy Vernelson, NCCAA All-State Academic-Athletic Team; Mike Griner, Jimmy Woodard Memorial Scholarship; Tate Corney, Tennessee Temple University Scholarship; Lynn Rouse and Tom Warburton, Campbell University (Scott-Ellis Scholarship); Kathy Vernelson, Atlantic Christian College Scholarship, and Jo Williams, I Dare You Leadership Award.

Closing Schedule

The following schedule has been announced for the closing day of city schools on Thursday. Grades kindergarten through seven will be dismissed at 10:45 a.m., Aycock Junior High, 1:45 p.m., Rose High, 1 p.m., and Agnes Fullilove, 2:30 p.m.

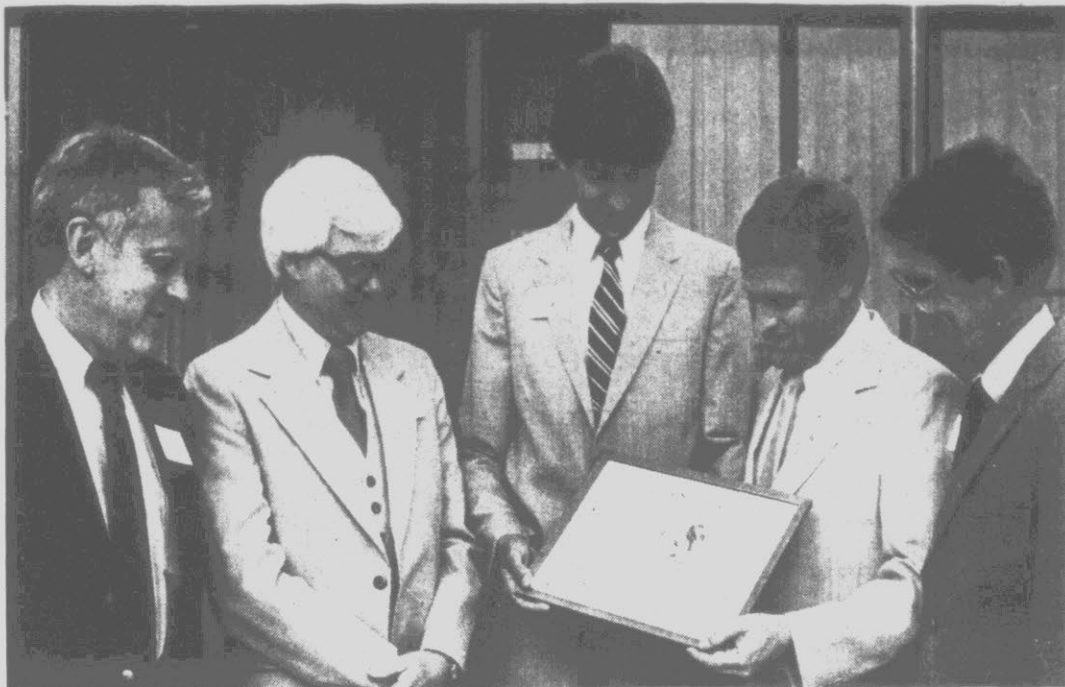

Revival Noted

Irene Gibbs Epps, pastor of Morning Glory Apostolic Faith Holiness Church, is conducting revival services through Friday at Cedar Grove Holiness Church in Chocowinity. Services begin at 7:30 each evening.

Tobacco Bd. Met

The Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade, meeting recently, re-elected W.C. Clark Jr. president for 1984-85. Also re-elected were Fenner Allen, vice president, and J.N. Bryan, secretary, treasurer and supervisor of sales.

The board discussed plans for the upcoming tobacco marketing season during the annual session.

SAFETY AWARD — Union Carbide received a special award from the N. C. Department of Labor at a dinner Tuesday night at the Greenville Sheraton. The company qualified for the Labor Department's one million hour award without a lost-time or disabling injury from April 1981 through December 1983. Pictured at the award presentation are, left to right: Dr. Jon Tingelstad, chairman of the board of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce; Michael Ragland, deputy labor commissioner; John Clintock, assistant plant manager, Union Carbide; Mickey Maxon, chairman of the safety commission at Union Carbide, and Art Wright, chairman, Safety Awards Committee, Procter & Gamble. Deadline Extended

The U.S. Small Business Administration's Atlanta regional office has announced that the filing deadline for applications for physical disaster loans arising from severe storms and tornados beginning on or about March 28, 1984, has been extended to June 15. The filing deadline for economic injury disaster loans remains Dec. 31.

Pitt and Greene counties are among those covered by the disaster declaration.

To obtain an application or further information, contact the SBA disaster office, P.O. Box 10007, Fayetteville, 28303-3564, or call the Atlanta office toll-free 1-800-554-3455.

Request Approved

Police Capt. D.R. Bullock has announced the approval of a request by the East N.C. National Little Miss Pageant to conduct a merchant solicitation through June 15 to sell advertisements for the pageant program book.

Computer Sessions

The Greenville schools' summer computer camp for students in grades kindergarten through six will be held in two one-week sessions —

July 9-13 and July 16-20 at Aycock Junior High School. Tuition for a one-week session is $35. Enrollment will be accepted on a first-come, first-served basis.

Registration deadline is June 18. Students in grades K-3 for the coming year will have the morning session from 9 a.m. to noon. Students who will be in grades 4-6 this fall will have the afternoon session from noon to 2:30 p.m.

For information and registration, contact Mrs. Violet Burch, central school office, 431 W. Fifth St., (752-4192).

Safe Boating

June marks the beginning of boating season and the first week of the month has been designated Safe Boating Week by the National Safe Boating Council.

The local U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary offers a free marine examination to inform boat owners of the legal and safety equipment required on boats. For information contact the Greenville Flotilla of the Coast Guard Auxiliary at 756-1511.

Webb Interviewed

Rufus Raymond Webb of Bell Arthur was interviewed by national television reporters Tuesday morning in Normandy, France, where he and his wife Louise were attending D-Day ceremonies.

Webb, who served in the Navy during World War II, participated in the Normandy invasion. The interview is scheduled to appear tonight on WRAL-Channel 5 news either during the 6 o'clock local broadcast or the 7 o'clock national broadcast.

Academic Honor

Ginny Close, a student at Rose High School, has been named an Academic All-American scholar by the National Secondary Education Council.

To qualify, a student must have maintained a 3.3 or better grade average. Students selected for the honor are also eligible for other Council awards.

Miss Close is the daughter of Mrs. Barbara Close and the late Dr. Frank A. Close.

Freshmen Scholarships Announced

Twenty freshmen at East Carolina University have been awarded ECU Alumni Honor Scholarships for the 1984-85 academic year.

The recipients were selected on the basis of high school achievement, Scholastic Aptitude Test scores and extracurricular activities. The $750 scholarships are funded by ECU alumni and are renewable for up to eight semesters, contingent upon the recipient's grade point average.

Local recipients include: Maryann Gurganus, daughter of Kenneth Gurganus of Williamston and Patricia A. Gurganus of Rocky Mount; Brian Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Hall of 1006 Longshore Dr., Snow Hill; Leo Venters, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen T. Venters of 607 W. Haven Drive, Ayden; Edna McLawhorn, daughter of Julia McLawhorn of 1108 E. 10th St., Greenville, and David C. McLawhorn of Swanquarter; Alana Tinkham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen T. Tinkham, 113 Heritage St., Greenville, and Melanie Robinson, daughter of Janice D. Robinson and Donald M. Robinson, both of Greenville.

Committee Formed

Mayor Janice Buck has announced the formation of a citizens' transportation committee to research and study current and long-range transportation needs for state highways, streets, throughfares, air service and railroads.

Committee members will work with and advise elected officials on the overall transportation needs of the community and eastern North Carolina, she said.

Current members are C.W. Snell Jr., Jerry Powell, Bill Clark, Dick Blake, Kelly Barnhill, Ed Warren, Pete Eure and C.A. Holliday.

Exhibit-Auction

The Greenville Jaycees will sponsor an international art exhibit and auction June 16 at the Greenville Sheraton with all proceeds going to the Boys Club of Pitt County and Boys Home.

Viewing will begin at 7 p.m. and the auction, which is under the direction of Art Guild Galleries of Ronkonkoma, N.Y., will start at 8 p.m.

Chapter Meeting

The Eastern Carolina chapter of the N.C. Kidney Foundation will hold a Dutch treat dinner Thursday at 7 p.m. at the Western Steer Family Steak House. New officers will be elected and the "Volunteer of the Year" will be announced.

Benefit Dinner

The board of directors of the Carol Wilson Caldwell Legal Memorial Scholarship Fund will have a benefit dinner with a show and dance

Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at the Greenville Sheraton.

State Rep. Frank W. Ballance Jr. will be the dinner speaker.

The board will announce the name of the Pitt County native attending law school at North Carolina Central University who will receive this year's scholarship.

For information contact Mildred Council, board member, at 757-1037 or Ernest Brown, president, Pitt County NCCU Alumni chapter, 756-0982.

Texan Dies In Tornado

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — One person was killed early today when a tornado touched down at a ranch in Tom Green County, authorities said.

The tornado, which the National Weather Service said hit at 12:36 a.m. at the Murrey Ranch, caused an undetermined amount of damage, Sheriff's Deputy Laura Harris said. The victim has not been identified, she said.

Peace Justice Charlie Long of San Angelo said the victim, a Hispanic man, was inside a trailer home which was "strewn across the highway" by the twister.

U.S. Government Sued For Trillions

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — A man has filed a federal lawsuit against "the entire white-collar staff" of the United States and other officials in which he seeks $5 trillion and the powers of the government.

"You have continually degraded, lied to and misused the people of the United States. By these violations you have endangered national security," said the six-page, handwritten complaint filed by Gregory C. Marsh of Dayton.

"Sufficient to the charges you will pay $5 trillion to myself and relinquish your powers and authorities to me so that a new and better Constitution and government may be established," the complaint said.

Among those named in the complaint filed Monday were "the entire white-collar staff of (the) U.S. government who took their oath to defend and protect the Constitution"; political parties who ran candidates for federal office; state governments; "all businessmen trading with the enemy"; and "all others violating federal laws."

Ann Tracey, an assistant U.S. attorney for Ohio's southern district, said Tuesday that her office had not been served with a copy of the complaint.

"He has to either serve it personally or mail it," she said. "If he doesn't serve us he just can't win."

10, an increase of one-half grade level from their 1983 of 8.9.

•Language: Fourth-graders scored at grade level 6.3. The same group scored 5.0 as third-graders in 1983, an average increase of over one grade level. Fifth-graders scored at grade level 7.8, up from this group's 1983 score of 6.0. Sixth-graders scored on an 8.3 grade level in language, up from the group's 7.5 score in 1983. Seventh-graders scored at a 9.6 grade level, an increase of over one grade from the group's 1983 level of 8.2. Eighth-graders scored at an 11.2 grade level in language, an increase of almost two grade levels from the group's 9.5 score in 1983. Ninth-grade students scored at grade level 11, a slight increase from their 10.6 scores in 1983.

•Math: Second graders scored at grade level 3.3, an increase of nearly one grade level from the group's 1983 score of 2.4. Fifth-graders scored at grade level 6.5, up from their 1983 score of 5.2. Seventh-graders scored at grade level 8.3, up from their 7.4 score in 1983. Eighth-graders scored at grade level 10, up from 8.4 the previous year. Ninth-grade students also scored at grade level 10, up from the group's 9.4 grade level score the previous year.

•Science: Third-graders scored at grade level five. This group was not tested in 1983. Fourth-graders scored at grade level 6.3, up from the group's 4.8 score in 1983. Sixth-graders scored at grade level 8.2, up from their 1983 score of grade level 6.5. Eighth-graders scored at grade level 10.2. The previous year the group scored at grade level 8.4.

•Social Studies: Fourth-graders scored at grade level 5.6. The previous year as third-graders the group scored at grade level 4.7. Sixth-graders scored at grade level 8.1, up from the group's 1983 score of 6.4. Eighth-graders scored at grade level 10.3, up from their 1983 score of 8.5.

Individual grade level average scores continued to increase, McKnight noted. For example, in reading, eighth-graders scored at grade level 9.3 in 1984. In 1983 eighth-graders averaged grade point 8.9. Ninth-graders scored at grade level 10 in 1984, compared to a 1983 score for ninth-graders of grade level 9.5. This type of increase is consistent throughout the 1984 test results, McKnight said. "Growth is even and sustained across subject areas," he said.

State, regional and local comparisons will be released, said McKnight, when data is available from Raleigh on grades 1-3, 6 and 9.

McKnight also released the Pitt County results of the 1984 writing pilot test. By 1987 all students will be required by the state to pass a competency test in writing prior to graduation. Scoring on the test ranged from a possible high score of 4.0 to 3.5, 3.0, 2.5, 2.0, 1.5, 1.0 to not scorable. Sixth and ninth-graders were tested. The following percentages of students in Pitt County scored in these areas:

•Sixth grade: 4.0, two percent; 3.5, three percent; 3.0, 17 percent; 2.5, 11 percent; 2.0, 40 percent; 1.5, 10 percent; 1.0, 16 percent; not scorable, one percent.

•Ninth grade: 4.0, zero percent; 3.5, one percent; 3.0, three percent; 2.5, four percent; 2.0, 21 percent; 1.5, 17 percent; 1.0, 53 percent; not scorable, one percent.

The following is North Carolina's overall percentage scores:

•Pitt County: 4.0, less than one percent; 3.5, less than one percent; 3.0, 2.8 percent; 2.5, 4.1 percent; 2.0, 21 percent; 1.5, 16 percent; 1.0, 53 percent; not scorable, one percent.

•North Carolina: sixth grade: 4.0, 3.8 percent; 3.5, 4.2 percent; 3.0, 19.9 percent; 2.5, 12.6 percent; 2.0, 38.5 percent; 1.5, 7.4 percent; 1.0, 12.5 percent; ninth grade: 4.0, less than one percent; 3.5, 1.3 percent; 3.0, 4.6 percent; 2.5, 6.5 percent; 2.0, 22.1 percent; 1.5, 17.9 percent; 1.0, 45.2 percent; not scorable, 1.1 percent.

"Strengths and weaknesses are being discussed with each principal," McKnight told board members. "Recommendations for improvement are being made."

McKnight said continued use of the Pitt County Writing Curriculum will be emphasized as well as in-service training for teachers on writing instruction.

Many northern industrial centers have not had buffer zones and, as a result, both residents and manufacturers have suffered, Chaffee said. "Northern industry and residents have had several conflicts over instances where manufacturing plants and peoples' homes have come too close with the end result being a drop in property values which minimizes resale value for everyone concerned. Therefore, the more protected industry and residential areas are, the more value they retain."

Chaffee said the Development Commission is in the business of actively seeking out manufacturers and introducing them to Pitt County. The commission provides information to any industry that might want to locate in the area as well. In addition, he said the commission is now compiling a list of manufacturers that have multiple locations in North Carolina.

"This type of industry, with two, three or four plants already in the state, are the ones we want to talk to. They're already sold on North Carolina so all we have to do is sell them on Pitt County," Chaffee said.

At this time, industry represented in Pitt County includes metal working, textiles, tobacco, apparel and chemical operations. "To my knowledge, none of these create any hazardous waste — no radiation, no PCBs," he added.

Chaffee said the commission is now looking into food processing, transportation equipment, electronic, and metal device industries to even further diversify the county's industrial base.

Industry accounts for 25 percent of county employment and is only second to government. East Carolina University and Pitt County Memorial Hospital account for approximately 4,600 positions in the area workforce.

Alcohol By Crews Banned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acknowledging that the railroad industry has failed to curb alcohol and drug use by train operators, the government announced regulations today prohibiting the use of alcohol by train crews and giving railroads added authority to ferret out problem drinkers.

Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole said in testimony prepared for a Senate subcommittee that "rules alone will not be sufficient" to curb alcohol abuse in the rail industry.

But she said the regulations would provide the industry with new tools to find and curtail problem drinkers.

Mrs. Dole said that between 1975 and 1983 alcohol was involved in 45 rail accidents resulting in 34 deaths and $28 million in property damage.

The new rules, which must still undergo a comment period before they go into effect, would:

- Prohibit train crews from reporting to work under the influence of alcohol or drugs and make illegal drinking while on duty.

- Give authority to railroads to test employees if alcohol or drug use is suspected.

- Require a drug and alcohol screening program, including urine tests, before employment to a train operating position.

Similar federal regulations have been in place for airline crews since the infancy of aviation.

Teen Mom Graduates

MARION CENTER, Pa. (AP) — A teen-ager expelled from the National Honor Society after she gave birth to a child out of wedlock says that although she's graduated from high school with honors, she'll have to look for a job before thinking about college.

"I'm looking forward to the future," Arlene Pfeiffer said Tuesday, night after graduating 17th among 154 seniors at Marion Center Area High School.

Miss Pfeiffer, 18, whose daughter, Jessica, was born Aug. 15, said she plans to live with her family while she looks for a job near Marion Center, a rural Indiana County community about 70 miles northeast of Pittsburgh.

In January, the Marion Center Area School Board upheld a faculty council decision to dismiss her from the National Honor Society.

School Superintendent John Mallino said at the time that Miss Pfeiffer was dismissed because "the quality of leadership and character, and I emphasize character, has not been maintained."

Miss Pfeiffer filed a federal suit against the board soon after its decision. The case still is pending.

"I've been through a lot, but it has still been an enjoyable year with my friends and some of my teachers. It just doesn't seem like it's finally coming to an end. Now I can spend more time with Jessica — at least until I can find a job," she said as relatives gathered at her home for cake and ice cream.

Bee Swarm Fouls N.Y. Intersection

NEW YORK (AP) — An amateur beekeeper rounded up some 15,000 bees after they swarmed onto a car in a busy intersection on Manhattan's Lower East Side, police said. No injuries were reported.

The incident Tuesday began when an unidentified driver from New Jersey heard a strange noise under his car as he drove across the Williamsburg Bridge from Brooklyn into Manhattan.

Once in Manhattan, he got out of his car, saw the bees and called police, who notified Israel Cohen, a lawyer who works in Manhattan and keeps bees in the back yard of his home in Kensington, N.Y.

"When we first got there, the whole fender was covered with them," police Officer Larry Olivetti said.

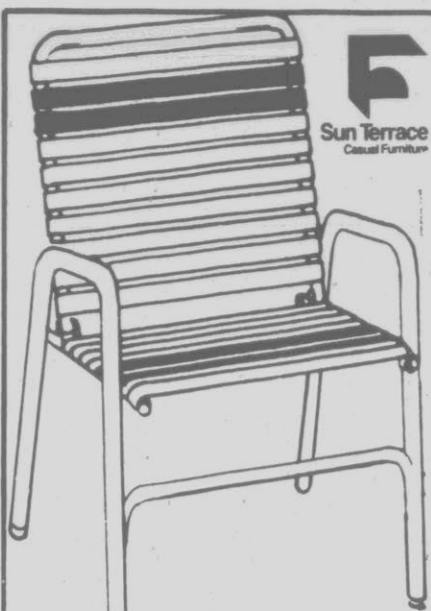

Police moved the car out of traffic into an empty lot. Cohen then brushed the bees out of the car's tire cavity, put them in a box and a plastic bag and transferred them into the trunk of his car. Cohen estimated the number of bees at about 15,000.

It was not clear where the swarm originated or how it got under the car.

"When they're swarming, they're gentle, because they're loaded down with honey," said Cohen's daughter, Ellen. "If you knock the queen into the box, the rest will follow."

Ms. Cohen, a law clerk in her father's firm, said many swarms occur in May and June, when hives become overcrowded and the bee colonies divide to search for new homes.

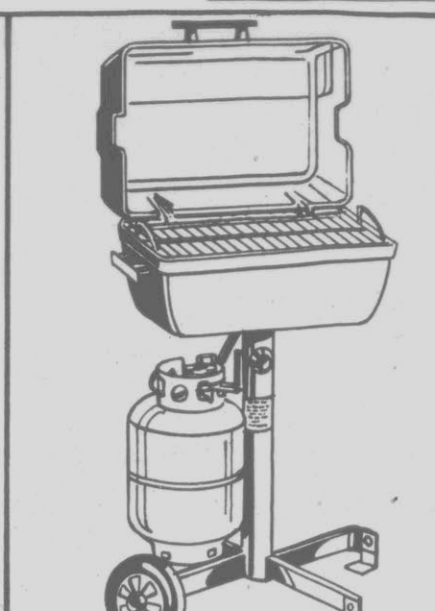

"This is a big week for swarming," said Ms. Cohen, who said she accompanied her father to the site but stayed safely in the car for 20 minutes while he took care of the bee business.

Seven-State Search Launched For Radical Fugitives

WESTFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Saying "we've been sitting back too long," authorities have launched a seven-state hunt for 11 radical fugitives from two underground groups blamed for a 10-year string of bank robberies, bombings and police killings.

More than 80 state and federal agents fanned out across rural New England, upstate New York and northern New Jersey on Tuesday in a weeklong effort to flush out the 11 fugitives, some of whom have eluded authorities since the early 1970s.

New York State Police Col. Thomas Constantine called the groups "some of the most dangerous ... we've ever come up against."

The officers are hunting five members of an offshoot of the Sam Melville-Jonathan Jackson Unit. The group claimed responsibility for the bombings of six government buildings in the Boston area and Eastchester, N.Y., during the late 1970s, and authorities say it was also responsible for a series of bank robberies in central New York, Vermont and Maine and the murder of a New Jersey state trooper.

Investigators are also seeking clues to the whereabouts of six people linked to the Weather Underground and Black Panthers and sought in connection with the 1981 holdup of a Brink's truck in Nanuet, N.Y., said James Greenleaf, special agent in charge of the FBI's Boston office.

A Brink's guard and two police officers were shot to death in the heist.

"We've been sitting back too long. Now is the time to take some action," Greenleaf said at a news conference Tuesday.

Armed with photographs and details about the groups' behavior, officers will canvass bank tellers, school officials, health professionals, rental agents and storekeepers, using a computer at the Westfield barracks to store and analyze data, Greenleaf said.

"We are hoping to get positive information from this to provide us leads," he said. Police from Massachusetts, New York, Connecticut, Vermont, New Hampshire, Maine and New Jersey are taking part.

Although they had no clues to the fugitives' whereabouts, except that they have preferred to live in rural areas, authorities hoped to generate enough publicity to force a shipout, said Col. Clinton Pagano of the New Jersey State Police.

"They can't lead a peaceful life and have a radical calling without somewhere in between making a mistake," he said.

Among those sought were Raymond Luc Levasseur, 37, formerly of Sanford, Maine, described by authorities as a group leader; Thomas William Manning, 37, formerly of Boston, and his wife, Carol, 28; Richard C. Williams, 36, formerly of Beverly; and Jaan Karl Laaman, 36, formerly of Boston and Somerville.

Investigators believe they belong to the Statewide Corrections Alliance for Reform, an offshoot of the Sam Melville-Jonathan Jackson Unit. The group was named after Melville, who was killed in the Attica, N.Y., prison riot in 1972, and Jackson, who killed a Marin County, Calif., judge in 1970.

Senate Takes Up Anti-Terrorist Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The prime Senate sponsor of anti-terrorist legislation being pushed by the Reagan administration says it needs "further polish," while an opponent calls it "a throwback to the McCarthy era."

Sponsor Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala., said Tuesday the legislation needs work but is necessary to fill holes in the nation's legal arsenal against international terrorists.

But Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said a measure touted as the linchpin of the four-bill package is unconstitutional and would "trample on our human rights."

Two Justice Department lawyers explained the legislation before the Senate Judiciary subcommittee on security and terrorism, headed by Denton.

Virtually all the controversy was over a bill allowing the secretary of state officially to list international terrorist groups or countries. Americans providing active support to groups or countries or countries on the list could be prosecuted.

The bill would prohibit any defendant from challenging, as part of his defense, the government's inclusion of a particular group or nation.

That language angered Metzenbaum, who several times cited it as an example of the bill's constitutional problems.

"It's a throwback to the McCarthy era," he said, referring to the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy's hunt for communists in government through unsupported accusations and bullying of witnesses in an era of the early 1950s that many historians say saw many violations of civil liberties.

"If Joseph McCarthy were secretary of state, you could have all the standards in the world and it wouldn't be very meaningful. We must not make an effort to stop terrorism in an un-American way that tramples on our human rights."

Denton repeatedly assured Metzenbaum, "The chairman has no interest in trampling on the Bill of Rights."

Denton said the bill "may need some further polish," pointing out that it contains no requirement that the secretary of state consult with Congress before making his designations.

"We have no problem with consulting with Congress," said Mark Richard, a deputy attorney general.

Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, another supporter, said the bill lacks criteria for the secretary to use when designating the terrorist groups.

Automakers Hit Six-Month Sales Peak In May

By The Associated Press
 U.S. automakers shifted into high gear in May, posting their best sales showing for the month in six years, but on Wall Street the stock market slipped into reverse and ended a string of four straight advances. Sales of American-made cars rose 22.6 percent last month compared with a year ago, the automakers reported Tuesday. Among the Big Three domestic auto producers, General Motors Corp. sales were up 25.4 percent for the month, Ford Motor Co.'s were up 25 percent and Chrysler Corp.'s, which do not include its hot-selling minivans, were up 8.1 percent. The seasonally adjusted annual rate for U.S.-made cars in May was 8.6 million, meaning that many cars would be sold in a year under May's sales rate. U.S. carmakers have not done that well since selling 9.1 million cars in 1978. U.S.-made car sales totaled 6.7 million last year. Import sales shot up, too. The import share of the total U.S. car market rose from 19.5 percent in April to 23.3 percent in May. Dealers of Japanese models nearly ran out of cars in March and April as Japan reached its voluntary quota limit. But their stocks were replenished in May, a month after new, higher quotas took effect. On Wall Street, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 6.68 to 1,124.89 in sluggish trading. Declines led advances 3 to 2 on the New York Stock Exchange. The decline Tuesday cut off a four-day rally that had boosted the Dow 30.33. The strong auto sales in May reflected better employment and the availability of credit, said David Bloom, an automotive industry analyst for First Boston Corp. in New York. "When you look at the recent gains in employment and the fact that credit is available, they're going to sell more cars," Bloom said. Right now, the availability of credit is more important than interest rates, Bloom added. In May, 1,046,576 cars were sold in the United States compared with 836,496 in May 1983. That broke down to 803,273 for U.S. carmakers, 22.6 percent better on a daily sales rate basis than 630,044 sold the year before. For importers, sales were 243,303 in May, which worked out to a 24.6

Agency Tightens Dial-A-Porn Rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Dial-a-porn" telephone services may accept only credit card payment and some must confine services to night hours to keep children off the line, the Federal Communications Commission says. In its ruling, the FCC rejected Tuesday other suggested means of preventing youngsters from using the services, saying they would "involve substantial costs." They included user codes, blocked access from pay phones and advertising restrictions. The services offer callers live and recorded messages in which "dial-a-porn" employees use suggestive language or pretend to be having sexual relations. Under the FCC ruling, live services may remain available at all hours but customers must pay with credit cards. Starting July 12, however, tape-recorded messages must be confined to the hours between 9 p.m. and 8 a.m., "when parents are most likely to be in a position to supervise their children's activities." "While some minors do possess credit cards obtained for them by their parents, parental supervision in the use of the card should bar access by underage callers," the FCC said. The American Civil Liberties Union, which had argued parental control of the telephone was the only proper way to keep youngsters from using the services, responded to the ruling by calling it impractical. "Young people can take a credit card wherever they find it and use it," Alan Reitman, ACLU associate executive director, said. "And the question of restricting service to night hours is not practical. Young people don't go to bed at 9 p.m."

to restrict access to individuals under 18 years of age." The ruling came after the commission in December asked for public suggestions on how to enforce the new law, which declares illegal any commercial phone service available to minors that provides obscene language. Bliley introduced the measure after the FCC refused to ban a service started in February 1983 as a promotional gimmick by the sex magazine High Society. Customers call a "Dial-it" circuit in New York City and hear tapes of women pretending to be engaging in sexual acts. Within two months of its request for public comment, the FCC had received 25,000 letters, many from irate parents demanding a ban on the services. A Mishawaka, Ind., couple told the FCC they were "dismayed to see charges on our phone bill to the 'Dial-a-porn' number."

Rep. Thomas J. Bliley, R-Va., sponsor of a new law to curtail the services, issued a statement saying the FCC regulations failed to go far enough. "The regulations are unacceptable as written," Bliley said. "They don't fulfill the intent of the law, which is percent improvement on the basis of daily selling rate than 206,452 sold last year. In other economic developments Tuesday: —Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said that another round of world trade talks should begin in a year or two. He said in London that the United States wants a statement on the talks in the communique issued at the end of this week's seven-nation economic summit there. But other countries argue that the work of the last trade session, the Tokyo Round, should be completed before any additional discussions are put in place. —Commercial banks raised more than $2.3 billion in long-term capital in the first quarter, the eighth consecutive three-month period that the financing volume exceeded $1 billion, Irving Trust Co. said. Larger banks, with more than $5 billion in assets, again dominated the market. In the same period a year ago, the banks raised $3.8 billion. —The Illinois Senate Finance Committee voted 6-4 for a measure sought by Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust to change state law and allow an out-of-state bank to bid for the troubled institution.

Mondale Expects Rivals To Follow Party's Line

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Walter F. Mondale plays his politics by the book and, with his delegate majority at hand, he expects his two rivals for the Democratic presidential nomination will do the same. So it was music to his ears to hear the Rev. Jesse Jackson renew his call for party unity.

But Sen. Gary Hart and Jackson are a couple of unconventional politicians who may refuse to behave as Mondale would like.

Strong victories in the eastern states of New Jersey and West Virginia on Tuesday enabled Mondale to make a cautious claim on the nomination even before the results were certain in the other three states that held Democratic presidential primaries.

Characteristic of this cautious politician, he refused to stand up and simply say, "I won," or "the nomination is mine."

He let himself go a little bit when he appeared before several hundred supporters in his home state and said, "Marathons are long and hard, but every one of them has a finish line and a winner. Well, this is it and here I am."

That was as far as the former vice president was willing to go and he went to bed saying, "We're on our way, but I want to see the results from California."

He wanted the last votes of the marathon contest to be counted before he would stand up today, around noon Central time, and claim victory.

Mondale's was a by-the-book campaign and he caught a lot of heat for his approach. He built a strong organization, he was a strong factor in setting the party rules for the contest, and he courted the interest groups — labor, women, minorities — who make up the traditional Democratic coalition.

He also proved that when the going got tough, he was a tough politician. When it looked like Hart had him on the ropes, Mondale fought back ferociously and grabbed the initiative away from the Colorado senator.

In the closing weeks of the campaign for delegates, a major prize was the support of those who were uncommitted or had been elected pledged to candidates no longer in the race.

It quickly became clear that despite Hart's claims that he would woo many of those delegates away from the front-runner, the Mondale organization had that field nearly to itself.

"They let us win a primary 200 to nothing," said Tom Donilon, chief delegate hunter for the Mondale campaign, referring to the battle for the unpledged.

Donilon and campaign chairman James Johnson will be intensifying their efforts today to build Mondale's delegate lead, and they will be helped by the fact Mondale appears likely to surge past the 1,967 needed for a convention majority when all the delegates in California are counted.

As the results poured in from the five primary states Tuesday night, Jackson said that he was "not altogether convinced" that Mondale had the nomination secured, but he renewed his call for the three candidates to sit down and talk about unifying the Democratic Party and concentrating on defeating President Reagan in November.

Jackson said he wanted "a minimum amount of confrontation" at the San Francisco nominating convention.

Hart said "of course" he would stay in the race.

"Our work has just begun," Hart supporters at a Los Angeles hotel. "On to San Francisco."

No doubt the three candidates will talk about unity, but whether they can achieve it, remains an open question. Hart is known to feel mistreated by Mondale, and Jackson has some strong demands to make, ranging from changes in party rules, elimination of runoff primaries, and policy questions including the defense budget and the Middle East.

Mondale said their long battle was a strengthening experience, and he speculated that unity might be achievable "after two good nights sleep. We haven't had that for a long time."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, fluctuating around Tuesday's closing levels.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 3.56 to 1,128.45 in the first half hour.

But losers slightly outnumbered gainers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said many traders believed that the market reached at least an interim bottom in late May when the Dow Jones industrial average hit a 15-month low at around the 1,100 level.

But they said doubts persisted about whether the market was ready to launch a lasting rally. For that the occur, many observers maintain, further declines in interest rates are probably necessary.

Rates were mixed in the credit markets this morning.

Today's early prices included Burroughs, up 1/4 at 50 1/2; Champion International, up 1/8 at 19 1/2, and National Medical Enterprises, down 1/4 at 21 1/2.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 6.68 to 1,124.89.

Declines outpaced advances by about 3 to 2 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume slowed to 84.84 million shares from 96.74 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index fell .36 to 88.49. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index lost 26 to 202.90.

Public Hearings Set In Farmville

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Farmville Commissioners have set public hearings for their July 3 meeting on the town budget and on Alert Cable TV's request for rate increases.

The Alert company, which supplies cable television service for Farmville-area residents, has given notice that it would like to raise its base rate from $7.50 to $9, effective July 1.

A public hearing was also set for July 3 to consider a zoning change request of Linwood Tyson. He has asked that 912 S. Main St. be rezoned from R-5 residential to neighborhood business.

The board agreed to look at requests by the A.C. Monk Co. for voluntary annexation of its plant properties in June 1985, and its warehouse properties in June 1990, and by Florence Styers for the as-soon-as-possible voluntary annexation of a tract on Turnage Road in the Marlboro Forest Subdivision being considered as an apartments site.

June 18 was set as the date for a dinner meeting with an Electricities representative. An agreement on load management of electrical power will be discussed.

A resolution to sell 7,000 pounds of copper wire was adopted. This wire was removed from the Fountain electrical circuit recently and is no longer needed by the town.

A budget amendment of $184,521 was adopted to cover the increased cost of electrical power to the town.

Another budget amendment covered the cost of services by McDavid Associates for plans for the routing and design of a sewer line from the Middle Swamp outfall sewer to the proposed apartment project known as First Palmetto near Marlboro. The amount was $6,151.25.

Approval was given for an additional monthly facility charge of $33.33 to the town of Fountain to cover the cost of an automatic circuit breaker that would enable utilities workers to cut off electrical service to the town when repairs and emergencies arise.

Contracts were awarded to McDavid Associates for three different services related to the Community Development Block Grant. These are $19,200 for administration of $375,558 of excess funds; $28,542 for engineering services (street improvements, water mains, drainage) and $4,880 for parking lot drainage improvements.

Town Administrator Frank Bradham was sworn in as alternate commissioner on the N.C. Eastern Municipal Power Agency and was named as a liaison to the May Museum Board.

The low bid of Rental Uniform Service of Portsmouth, Va., was approved. The company will supply uniforms for town employees, mainly those in the utilities and public works departments.

It was decided not to offer health insurance for retired town employees.

needed, such as in the area of school facilities. It's a matter of priorities, and I feel over the years we have been dragging our feet on help to public schools.

"I do think it important to mention that salaries for school personnel are not our only concern. A critical issue we will address is that of decrease in class sizes, especially in grades 4-6. Hopefully, we can find funds to get the ratio down to 26 students per class in these grades, which will cost about $31 million."

White said another consideration is that of salary increases of 10 percent for all state employees "which will include non-certified personnel in the public schools."

White, who has worked with the state budget for the past three legislative sessions, is vice chairman of the Appropriations Committee.

Warren, who expressed similar opinions to White's about the session dealing principally with public education, said "I hope to work at finding more funds for the community college system. Pitt Community College should be high on the priority list as it is one of the few in the state still growing. The proposal for community college funds calls for $8,195,000 at this time. If it that cannot be increased during this session, I expect and hope to see an increase in this area in the 1985 session."

Two budget items for facility construction mentioned by Warren are those of $14,635,000 for a classroom building at East Carolina University, and $5.4 million for nuclear magnetic resonance equipment at the ECU School of Medicine and at Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill. "Another budget proposal is for $585,719 for a development phase at the ECU School of Medicine," Warren commented. "This is to add faculty, staff and to increase the number of residents that can be served."

Both Warren and White expressed confidence that funding for the classroom building at ECU is "in the over the $200,000 in water and sewer funds from the half-cent local option sales tax to the commission.

Two days later, on May 17, Utilities Commission members approved an additional $500,000 in turnover to the city on a quarterly basis as receipts from the half-cent sales tax are received. The additional turnover will bring the total turnover in 1984-85 to $2.01 million.

In addition to the turnover, paid directly to the city, the city will receive another $1.12 million from GUC customers in 1984-85 in the form of franchise tax revenue on electric and gas sales.

A 6 percent franchise tax is paid to the N.C. Department of Revenue by GUC's wholesale suppliers of electric power and gas. The Revenue Department, in turn, distributes half the revenue to the city, with the other half being retained by the state.

On Tuesday, GUC member Buddy Zinome said, "In my view, all of the things have to be considered together. What it means is more money going to the city."

"I think the real issue is turnover, no matter how you look at it," commission member Andy Warren said. "We need to get that issue resolved so both sides of the street (GUC and the city) can make plans."

"All it is is turnover to the city," Bill Taft, another commission member, said of the city's request for wholesale rates and GUC control of street lighting. "Are we going to have a half-a-dozen ways of turning over to the city? I just think it's a bad policy to get into."

"Somebody is going to have to pick up the slack," Commissioner Richard Powell said, if the GUC increases the turnover to the city.

"Let's just have one turnover," commission member Fred Robbins said.

"If the bottom line on this is turnover, let's handle this in the simplest way possible," Zinome suggested.

"I would reject the city's request on wholesale cost of power and street lighting," Powell said, but he suggested that the city receive a turnover from all funds, including water and sewer, of 6 percent of equity (on which the present turnover formula for electric and gas funds is based).

"The numbering system on our side of the street goes on up," Mrs. Meeks said. "It doesn't stop at 6 percent."

Asked if an increase in turnover, rather than a takeover of street lights and a special electric rate would satisfy the council, Mrs. Meeks, who is a voting member of the commission, said, "We'd have to discuss that with the City Council."

"That's right," Councilman Stuart Shinn, the council's non-voting representative to the Utilities Commission, said. "What Gail (Meeks) said is right. We reserve judgment." Commission members then agreed to study the question of turnover this fall, after a new electric rate cost of service study is completed.

Johnson Is New Miami Coach

New Hurricane Coach

Jimmy Johnson smiles while answering a question Tuesday at a press conference after he was named football coach at the University of Miami. He will replace Howard Schnellenberger who coached the team to the NCAA championship in 1983. Johnson leaves Oklahoma State University. (AP Laserphoto)

MIAMI (AP) — Calling it "an exciting time for me, the university and the football players on the field," Jimmy Johnson began his tenure as the new head coach of the national champion Miami Hurricanes.

Johnson on Tuesday succeeded Howard Schnellenberger, who resigned two weeks ago to become head coach and general manager of the Miami-bound Washington Federals of the United States Football League.

"The great academic institution here gives us the chance to be the best, and that's why we wanted to come here," said Johnson, who spent the past five years as the head coach at Oklahoma State University.

The 40-year-old coach said he didn't plan many changes in his first year at Miami.

"You don't change something unless it's broken, and it's obviously not broken," Johnson said.

The Hurricanes were ranked No. 1 in the nation last year after defeating Nebraska 31-30 in the Orange Bowl.

"All I hope to do is have some input and maybe I could add something and maybe I can make it just a little better," he said.

"I want to make the transition between Coach Schnellenberger and me as easy as possible. I plead with everyone to be patient, to work with me and to approach things with a positive attitude," said Johnson, who added that he plans to keep the current Miami staff intact if possible.

Johnson was in a similar situation in 1977 when he joined the University of Pittsburgh coaching staff just after the Panthers won the national championship.

Johnson conceded that he had signed a contract in January with Oklahoma State. The contract, worth $60,000 in base salary and perks of nearly $40,000, contained no penalty clauses if he left the school.

The Hurricanes signed Johnson to a $1 million, five-year contract.

Sam Jankovich, the Hurricanes' athletic director, said he "began to settle on Johnson after conversations with football notables such as Gil Brandt of the Dallas Cowboys, Bo Schembechler of Michigan and Penn State's Joe Paterno."

Johnson's name surfaced again and again, Jankovich said.

Jankovich interviewed Johnson last weekend at the College Football Association meeting in Dallas. When he returned to Miami, he called a meeting of the remaining staff and told them he would be hiring from the outside.

A native of Port Arthur, Texas, Johnson was an All-Southwest Conference guard at Arkansas, where he captained the 1964 team. He was assistant head coach at Pittsburgh before accepting the Oklahoma State head coaching job. He also served as an assistant coach at Louisiana Tech, Wichita State, Iowa State, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

He was named Big Eight Coach of the Year in 1979 and led the Cowboys to the Independence Bowl in 1981 and the Bluebonnet Bowl last year.

His five-year record of 30-25-2 included 10 losses to Nebraska and Oklahoma, and the 1983 team's 8-4 record included four losses by less than 12 points.

Tom Olivadotti, Miami's defensive coordinator, had been recommended for the job by Schnellenberger, who said a coach brought in from the outside wouldn't have time to adjust before the Hurricanes' rugged early schedule. Miami opens with road games against Auburn, Florida, Michigan and Purdue.

Overton Named Baseball Coach At East Carolina

Gary Overton, assistant coach at East Carolina for the past eight years, was named today as the new head baseball coach for the Pirates.

Dr. Ken Karr, athletic director, made the announcement just before noon today, replacing Hal Baird, who resigned last week to become head coach at Auburn University.

A 1973 graduate of East Carolina, Overton has long been associated with the Pirate program. As an undergraduate, he served for four years as team manager, and then as a graduate assistant prior to being named as assistant in his own right in 1977 under Monte Little, along with Baird. Four years ago, when Little resigned and Baird moved up to the head coaching position, Overton became the number one assistant.

Overton's appointment follows tradition at East Carolina in moving the assistant coach up when a vacancy occurs. Every new coaching appointment — after the initial — has been an assistant with the exception of Jack Boone. Overton is only the seventh coach in the 34-year baseball history at East Carolina.

"I'm certainly happy for the opportunity and I'm looking forward to the challenge," Overton said. "I think at this time, it's our goal to continue the strong tradition we've had here over the years. I feel honored I can follow some of the great coaches who have been here, especially a man like Hal Baird."

Overton served his apprenticeship under Earl Smith, Jim Mallory, George Williams, Little and Baird. "He's had the opportunity to see and hear a lot and take it all in and discard what he doesn't like," Baird said last week in recommending ECU hire Overton for the position.

A native of Ahoskie, Overton played baseball, basketball, football and golf at Ahoskie High School before coming to ECU. He was all-conference and all-East in baseball and all-East and all-State in golf. The 32-year-old Overton is single.

Overton coached the 1979 American Legion team for Pitt County, winning both league and area championships.

East Carolina posted a 34-13 record this past season, advancing to the NCAA regionals, finishing third in the six-team South I Regional.

Overton will be seeking a new assistant coach, and that appointment will come sometime this summer.

The Pirate athletic staff is still incomplete in its head coaching positions, with a soccer and women's basketball coach still to be named.

Snow Hill Wins In 16th Inning

ROCKY MOUNT — Snow Hill's Mike Warren tripped coming around third base in the ninth inning last night and Post 92 played for it by having to play seven more innings before finally defeating Rocky Mount, 4-3, last night in American Legion baseball.

Snow Hill, down 2-0 in the first inning, battled back and tied the score in the top of the ninth at 3-3, but Warren trying to score from second on Billy Godley's single, tripped and fell rounding third, and had to scramble back. The inning ended one batter later and Rocky Mount and Snow Hill played until the 16th before it was finally decided.

Rocky Mount took the lead in the first, scoring twice. Danny Isbell singled and stole second, scoring on a single by John Adams. Hank Jones later singled to score Adams for the 2-0 lead.

Snow Hill came back with one in the second. Jerry Butler walked and advanced on a wild pitch. Kevin Langston singled to drive him in.

Rocky Mount added a third run in the third. Isbell walked and Adams singled. Paul Blackmond walked, loading them up, and Isbell scored when Jones grounded into a double play.

It remained 3-1 until the eighth when Snow Hill finally pulled within one. With two away, Butler singled and stole second. He scored on Joey Stepp's single.

Then, in the ninth, Snow Hill tied it up. With one away, Nat Norris walked and Warren did too. Todd Grant also walked, loading them up. Godley followed with a two-out single, scoring Norris with the tying run.

The two then battled through six more scoreless innings before Snow Hill broke it with one in the top of the 16th. With one away, Godley singled and scored when Butler tripled.

Butler and Norris led the Snow Hill hitting with three each, while Godley, Stepp and Billy Braswell each had two. Rocky Mount was led by Jones with three and Isbell with two.

The victory boosts the Snow Hill record to 5-2 while Rocky Mount dips to 2-3. Snow Hill is idle until Monday when it travels to Wilson.

Dixon Sauls Named New Farmville Central Coach

FARMVILLE — Dixon Sauls, who coached Ayden-Grifton High School into the state playoffs two of the last three years, has been named as the new head football coach at Farmville Central.

He replaces Gilbert Carroll, who resigned earlier this spring to accept a similar position at Fayetteville's Cape Fear High School.

For Sauls, it will be something of a homecoming. A native of Farmville, he was a four-sport athlete for Farmville High School, playing football, basketball, baseball and golf while a prepster.

Sauls' naming at Farmville Central — and his resignation at Ayden-Grifton — means that all five of the schools in Pitt County will have new football coaches next fall.

North Pitt has named former Lakewood head coach Larry Bolger to replace B.T. Chappell, while D.H. Conley has hired former SouthWest Edgemore aide Donnie Bunn as its new coach, replacing Gerald Garner.

Still to come in the naming of a new coach at Rose High School, to replace Ronald Vincent, and the naming of a replacement for Sauls at Ayden-Grifton. A-G principal William Wiggins said that he has begun receiving applications for the position, but had not yet begun interviews.

Sauls was named to all-conference teams in both football and basketball while in high school, and served as captain of the football, basketball and baseball teams. He was a quarterback on the football team, a guard in basketball and a pitcher and a catcher in baseball.

Sauls graduated from the University of North Carolina in 1970 with a bachelor's degree in economics and received his masters' from East Carolina in 1976 in health and physical education.

He began his teaching career in the early 70's at Farmville in elementary and junior high, and aided in coaching from 1974-76 in junior varsity football and varsity basketball at Farmville Central.

In 1976, he was named to the Ayden-Grifton staff as junior varsity football coach, becoming head coach the following year. He has also served as junior varsity basketball coach for five years.

Sauls' football teams shared league titles in 1981 and 1982. In the first year, the Chargers advanced to the Eastern finals, before bowing to eventual state champion Burlington Williams. The following year, his team lost out in the second round of the playoffs to Bertie, which became the state runner-up.

Sauls' head coaching record is 48-27, and his Charger teams never finished below third place in the standings. His overall all-level record is 72-31.

Sauls is married to the former Kathryn Finklea of Virginia Beach, Va., and they have one daughter, Lindsay Chapman, 18 months.

"I have mixed emotions about the change," Sauls said. "I spent eight years building a sound program at Ayden-Grifton, but I'm looking forward to the future and I'm excited about the challenge of building a program in Farmville, as well as working in the community in which I live. I feel like we'll have a few more numbers, and a chance to coordinate a program from midget league on up."

"We will try to be consistent and competitive and play basic, sound football. We will try to have a class program in every way, from facilities to players to staff," Sauls said.

Both Ayden-Grifton and Farmville Central are current members of the 3-A Eastern Carolina Conference, but both are scheduled to become 2-A teams under the proposed realignment in 1985.

Aikens, Toronto Gain On Tigers

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer
Toronto is hanging in there, and so is troubled Blue Jays slugger Willie Aikens.

The Blue Jays used 11 hits, including home runs by Aikens, Lloyd Moseby, Ernie Whitt and Alfredo Griffin, to beat the Detroit Tigers 8-4 Tuesday night. The victory moved Toronto back within 4 1/2 games of the Tigers in the American League West.

The homer was the first of the season for Aikens, who didn't join the Blue Jays until May 16 after sitting out a drug suspension, and it was only his sixth hit in 36 at-bats.

"I've struggled, but I know what I'm capable of," said Aikens, who missed spring training. "I'm really happy to be with this team. Tonight was the first time I've really hit the ball hard in a game. I know homers will come."

Toronto scored six of its runs in the fourth inning during which Aikens, Whitt and Griffin hit their homers.

Elsewhere in the AL, Milwaukee upended Baltimore 8-3. California defeated Chicago 6-1. Oakland beat Cleveland 4-2 in 10 innings, Boston edged New York 5-4. Kansas City defeated Seattle 4-3 and Texas beat Minnesota 2-1.

Aikens, who was with the Royals at the time of his drug problems and was subsequently traded to Toronto, said he had tried to put his tribulations behind him.

"It's really hard for me to go hitless up there night after night, but I don't hold any bitterness," he said. "It wouldn't help."

Brewers 8, Orioles 3
Jamie Cocanower pitched seven shutout innings, and Rick Manning, Jim Gantner and Roy Howell each drove in two runs as Milwaukee broke a Baltimore jinx by ending the Orioles three-game winning streak.

The victory broke a four-game Brewers losing streak and a string of eight straight losses at Baltimore. Cocanower, 5-5, took a three-hitter into the eighth, then allowed three runs on a two-run single by Cal Ripken Jr., and an RBI hit by Eddie Murray. Rollie Fingers finished up for Cocanower, who began the season 0-4.

The Indians tied the score 2-2 in the sixth inning with the help of two slump-ridden players, Hal McRae

The Brewers scored five of their runs in the second inning, Manning's two-run homer capping the uprising. Howell homered in the seventh.

Angels 6, White Sox 1
Geoff Zahn, making his first appearance in 16 games because of a pulled groin muscle, checked Chicago on four hits through eight innings, and the Angels won for the first time in their past 11 games with the White Sox.

Gary Pettis scored three runs for the Angels, and Juan Beniquez scored twice in and had two RBIs. The only damage against Zahn came in the second when Ron Kittle singled and Dave Stegman followed with a triple. Zahn then retired 11 in a row.

A's 4, Indians 2
Dwayne Murphy hit a two-run homer with one out in the 10th inning as Oakland handed Cleveland its sixth straight loss. Rickey Henderson, who had driven in Oakland's other two runs, singled off Mike Jeffcoat before Murphy hit his game-winning homer, No. 9 on the season.

The Indians tied the score 2-2 in the sixth inning with the help of two slump-ridden players, Hal McRae and Steve Balboni, to ending the Mariners' four-game winning streak. McRae, who had been 0-for-11, started the inning with an infield hit and went to second on a throwing error by shortstop Spike Owen. Motley then doubled home McRae, and Balboni, who was 0-for-12, singled to score Motley.

Red Sox 5, Yankees 4
Jim Rice and Tony Armas had two RBIs each, and Rice broke a 4-4 tie with a sacrifice fly in the sixth inning as the Red Sox held off a 16-hit New York attack. The Yankees stranded 15 runners in the game against four Boston pitchers. Mark Clear, 4-0, got the win with two innings of relief, and Bob Stanley pitched the final 3 1/3 innings for his 10th save.

Rice broke the tie, giving Boston its sixth victory in seven games, after Wade Boggs singled and went to third when Yankee second baseman Willie Randolph let Dwight Evans' grounder get through his legs for an error.

Dave Winfield had five of the Yankees' hits.

Royals 4, Mariners 3
Darryl Motley's double broke a 2-2 tie, and Kansas City scored twice in the sixth inning with the help of two slump-ridden players, Hal McRae and Steve Balboni, to ending the Mariners' four-game winning streak.

McRae, who had been 0-for-11, started the inning with an infield hit and went to second on a throwing error by shortstop Spike Owen. Motley then doubled home McRae, and Balboni, who was 0-for-12, singled to score Motley.

Andujar Survives Fight; Tosses Win Over Phillies

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

It was a real knock-down, drag-out fight between the St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia Phillies, and by the time it was over Joaquin Andujar had his 10th victory and Paul Owens had enough of Andujar.

"Joaquin isn't lily-white in this league, let's face it," the Philadelphia manager said after watching a pitch by the St. Louis right-hander deck his own Ozzie Virgil Tuesday night in a 5-3 loss to the Cardinals. "He almost took his head off the first time up. He (Virgil) was still mad later."

The Phillies' catcher charged the mound and threw a punch at Andujar after the delivery sailed under his chin. Both benches cleared during the incident, but most of the action involved teammates attempting to restrain both Virgil and the Cardinal hurler.

The altercation in the top of sixth inning seemed to spark the Cardinals, who came up with three runs in the bottom half to take command.

In the other National League games, it was New York 3, Pittsburgh 0; Chicago 3, Montreal 2; San Diego 3, Houston 0; Los Angeles 2, Cincinnati 1 and Atlanta 8, San Francisco 3.

St. Louis, held to four hits and one run through five innings, erupted against Philadelphia right-hander Charles Hudson, 6-4. George Hendrick singled home one run and scored the winning run two outs later on a Philadelphia error, giving the Cards a 4-3 lead. The rally by the Cardinals followed a two-run burst by the Phillies in the top of the inning.

Andujar, while improving his record to 10-4 as the league's first 10-game winner, was later ejected as well when he threw a pitch too close to Juan Samuel to start the Philadelphia seventh. The Cardinals followed with three relief pitchers, including Bruce Sutter, who gained his 13th save.

"You can always look back, but Charlie was throwing good," Owens said of Hudson. "He just got the ball up. We took a run away from ourselves and gave them one. That's the difference right there."

Mets 3, Pirates 0
Walt Terrell scattered eight hits and stroked a pair of hits himself while Keith Hernandez drove in two runs as New York beat Pittsburgh.

Terrell, 4-5, broke a four-game losing streak by twice pitching himself out of jams. He struck out four and walked three in recording his first victory since April 29.

The Mets broke a scoreless tie in the fifth inning on Mike Fitzgerald's sacrifice fly off loser Jose DeLeon, 3-3. They added a run in the sixth on an error by second baseman Johnny Ray and made it 3-0 in the eighth on Hernandez's RBI double.

"I don't think I dazzled them," Terrell said. "They hit the ball hard, but I just threw it over the plate trying to get them to hit it to somebody and they did. I was glad to see the (four) double plays, because I need double plays. I need to get them out any way I can."

Cubs 3, Expos 2
Chuck Rainey combined with two relievers on a five-hitter and Chicago struck for three second-inning runs with the help of a pair of Montreal errors to beat the Expos.

Mel Hall opened the second with a walk against Bryn Smith, 5-5, and scored when Richie Hebner doubled.

Jody Davis sent Hebner to third with a single before Larry Bowa hit a bouncer to the mound. Smith's throw for the forceout at second went into center field for an error, allowing Hebner to score and Bowa to take second. One out later, Bob Dernier bounced to second baseman Bryan Little, who made a throwing error to first, sending Davis home for a 3-0 Chicago lead.

Rainey, 4-4, had a 3-1 lead, but left after giving up one-out singles to Tim Wallach and Terry Francona in the seventh. Tim Stoddard yielded an RBI single to Pete Rose before getting out of the inning. Lee Smith finished the game for his 10th save.

Smith Gets Top Cage Pay In N.C.

GREENSBORO (AP) — North Carolina head basketball coach Dean Smith is the highest paid basketball coach in the Atlantic Coast Conference, according to a survey by a Greensboro newspaper.

Smith was paid $75,000 in fiscal 1982-83 and $81,000 in 1983-84, according to a survey by the Greensboro News & Record. Smith has been a coach at North Carolina for the last 23 years.

The survey also showed that Tar Heel football coach Dick Crum is the conference's highest paid football coach with a salary of $60,000 in 1982-83 and $66,000 in 1983-84.

North Carolina State basketball coach Jim Valvano was second to Smith at $53,000 for fiscal 1982-83 but received a raise of almost $12,000 after the Wolfpack won the NCAA title in 1983.

Wake Forest and Duke declined to disclose individual salary information, but the survey indicated that their head coaches are believed to be paid slightly less than Smith and Valvano.

The lowest salary among basketball coaches in North Carolina was East Carolina's Charlie Harrison at $30,000. North Carolina A&T coach Don Corbett, who has taken his team to three straight NCAA tournaments, makes $32,876.

A&T Athletic Director Orby Moss said that a raise is in the works for Corbett, pending state approval.

Among football coaches, Tom Reed of N.C. State is just behind Crum. Reed made $58,000 in fiscal 1982-83 and $60,000 in 1983-84.

The survey revealed that East Carolina coach Ed Emory benefitted the most from a successful seasons in 1982 and 1983. Emory's salary was $35,000 last year but after the Pirates went 8-3, he received a $15,000 raise.

Padres 3, Astros 0
Right-hander Andy Hawkins fired a three-hitter as San Diego blanked Houston for a second consecutive shutout over the Astros.

Hawkins, 4-2, walked four and struck out three as he won for the first time since April 28 and pitched the first complete-game shutout for a Padre pitcher this year. Monday night's 3-0 victory was a combined effort.

The Padres extended their streak to five games and notched their ninth victory in the last 11. For the punchless Astros, the whitewash ran their scoreless streak to 20 consecutive innings.

The Padres got a pair of runs off Vern Ruhle, 0-4, in the third, as Tim Flannery hit a solo homer and Steve Garvey extended his hitting streak to 12 games with an RBI double. Kevin McReynolds gave the Padres a 3-0 lead when he belted his 10th homer leading off the sixth inning.

Dodgers 2, Reds 1
Alejandro Pena hurled a four-hitter and survived a shaky defense in pitching Los Angeles over Cincinnati, ending the Dodgers' three-game losing streak.

Pena, 6-2, struck out a career-high nine and walked one in lowering his earned run average to 2.13.

The Dodgers won despite committing six errors, three by second baseman Steve Sax, two of which were on poor throws.

After Cincinnati took a 1-0 lead with an unearned run in the third inning on the first of Sax's errors, Los Angeles went on top in the fifth on an RBI triple by Pedro Guerrero and pop fly single by Mike Scioscia.

Braves 8, Giants 3
Gerald Perry belted four hits, including his first home run of the season, to lead Atlanta over San Francisco for the Braves' seventh straight victory.

The Braves totaled 12 hits off four San Francisco pitchers, starting with Mike Krukow, 3-6, as the Giants went down to a fifth straight defeat.

Perry had an RBI single in the first and scored on a single by Chris Chambliss. In the third, when the Braves erupted for five runs, Perry had a single and scored when rookie Brad Komminsk belted his first major league homer, a three-run shot.

Perry homered with one out in the fourth for Atlanta's eighth run and singled in the sixth.

Connors Maintains Desire To Win

PARIS (AP) — Jimmy Connors is getting older, yet even after more than 100 tournament victories, the incentive to win is still there. "They've really thrown the kids at the old man these past few days," joked Connors, 31, after his straight-set victory over Sweden's Henrik Sundstrom in the French Open tennis championships Tuesday.

Since his second-round victory over Britain's John Lloyd, Connors has played and beaten two teenagers and the 20-year-old Sundstrom on his way to the semifinals, where he will meet top-seeded John McEnroe on Friday.

McEnroe advanced with a 6-3, 6-4, 6-4 victory over fifth-seeded Jimmy Arias.

Ueberroth: Games Will Be Pure Sport

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although he said he is actively trying to convince Cuba to reconsider its decision to stay away from the 1984 Olympics, the chief organizer of the Games says there will be greater "purity of sport" without the boycotting Soviet bloc countries.

Peter V. Ueberroth met Tuesday night with Democratic presidential candidate Jesse Jackson, who has said he will try to persuade Cuba to reverse its decision to join the boycott.

"There might be the possibility in the future of his (Jackson) visiting in Cuba or getting a chance to talk to leadership there," Ueberroth said of Jackson. "I would encourage and try and be helpful in any way . . . that could cause some athletes to have a chance to come to the Games that are now shut out."

Ueberroth said he also would like to speak with the Cuban leader.

"I'm going to . . . try to find the opportunity of speaking with Fidel Castro to try and encourage every nation to reconsider their decision.

"Even though we've been turned down, we will fight to the last day" to get the Soviet Union countries to come to Los Angeles, Ueberroth said before meeting with Jackson in Los Angeles.

Ueberroth also said the boycott would not hurt the games, instead adding "diversity."

The other semifinal pairing was decided today when defending champion Yannick Noah of France met Sweden's Mats Wilander and Andres Gomez of Ecuador played second-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia.

The women's semifinals, which will be played Thursday, were set after Tuesday's play with No. 1 seed Martina Navratilova ousted No. 8 Kathy Horvath 6-4, 6-2; No. 2 Chris Evert Lloyd staved off No. 15 Carling Bassett of Canada 4-6, 6-1, 6-0; No. 3 Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia stopped 16-year-old amateur Melissa Brown of Scarsdale, N.Y., 6-1, 6-4; and Camille Benjamin of Bakersfield, Calif., upset No. 13 Lisa Bonder of

Edmisten Offers Winning Hand Of Friendship

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — The campaign organization built by Rufus Edmisten during his 10 years as state attorney general performed flawlessly Tuesday as it helped him defeat former Charlotte Mayor Eddie Knox for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Meanwhile, Raleigh businessman John Carrington easily defeated Rockingham County native Frank Jordan for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor; Democratic incumbent John Brooks edged out state Sen. Richard Barnes for the nomination for labor commissioner; and Charlotte attorney D.G. Martin won the Democratic nomination to Congress from the 9th District.

Voters in 14 legislative districts also elected nominees for state House and Senate races this fall.

"We did it," Edmisten told about 300 supporters gathered at a Raleigh hotel to watch election returns.

Edmisten, who said he expected a tight race, immediately moved to "extend the hand of friendship" to Knox and his supporters. Many Democrats said before the runoff that they feared the party would be unable to heal wounds opened by the heated two-man race.

With 2,350 of 2,352 precincts or 99.9 percent reporting, Edmisten had 352,108 votes or almost 52 percent compared to 326,442 votes or 48 percent for Knox in unofficial returns.

The runoff drew more than 678,000 voters to the polls, a larger number than expected by either candidate or state Elections Director Alex Brock.

Edmisten now will face Republican nominee Jim Martin, a six-term congressman from the 9th District near Charlotte, in the Nov. 6 election.

Edmisten and Knox led a field of 10 candidates in the May 8 primary but were unable to win more than 50 percent of the vote to avoid a runoff. In the first primary, Edmisten got almost 31 percent compared to 26 percent for Knox.

"Life has its ups and downs," Knox said. "I went through the entire campaign and not one time did I ever compromise my principles. I believe we worked as hard as we possibly could. I'm not offering any excuses."

Edmisten led in 75 counties, many of them rural areas in the East and West. Knox led in several urban counties — Mecklenburg, Wake, Durham and Guilford — and in the extreme Northeastern counties of Currituck, Camden, Pasquotank, Gates, Hertford, Chowan and Washington.

The results were as close as eight or nine votes in counties like Madison and Swain.

In the Republican primary for lieutenant governor, Carrington brushed aside Jordan and set his sights on the Democratic nominee, state Sen. Bob Jordan of Mount Gilead, and the fall election. There has not been a Republican lieutenant governor this century.

Carrington is the millionaire president of a Raleigh company that manufactures law enforcement equipment.

"I'd like to say that before this evening, there were two Jordans," said Carrington, referring the last name shared by Republican and Democratic candidates for lieutenant governor. "Now Frank is gone and after the general election Bob will be gone, and the only Jordan left will be the (B. Everett Jordan) lake."

With 2,349 or 99.8 percent of 2,352 precincts reporting unofficial returns, Carrington had 20,934 votes or 61.2 percent. Jordan, a retired Army sergeant and small businessman from Richmond County, had 13,248 votes or 38.8 percent.

Carrington took a majority of the vote in 77 counties and won big in all the heavily-populated urban areas.

Things were the other way around in the first primary, when Jordan led a field of five candidates with almost 31 percent. Carrington had almost 27 percent.

Labor Commissioner Brooks, who finished ahead in the first primary, overcame sharp runoff campaign attacks to win the Democratic Party's nomination to seek a third term.

Brooks faces another Forsyth County opponent, Republican Margaret Plemmons, in the November general election.

"We ran on our record," said Brooks. "We have 14 offices and divisions that are outstanding and known across the state and nationwide. I think that's what the people of North Carolina realize."

With 2,350 or 99.9 percent of 2,352 precincts reporting unofficial returns, Brooks had 315,158 votes or 54.8 percent. Barnes had 259,771 votes or 45.2 percent.

Brooks ran his campaign without the help of the state AFL-CIO, which backed him when he first ran for labor commissioner. Brooks said he lost the group's endorsement because he refused to "knuckle under" to its demands.

In the 9th District congressional race, Martin turned back a challenge from Mecklenburg County Commissioner Susan Green. Martin's victory crushed Mrs. Green's hopes of becoming the state's first female representative in 38 years.

With all of the district's 161 precincts reporting, unofficial results showed Martin with 38,395 votes or 55 percent compared to 31,319 votes or 45 percent for Mrs. Green.

"We ran a very clean and open media campaign that persuaded the people the kind of leadership I had to offer was attractive," Martin said in a telephone interview.

Martin will face Republican nominee Alex McMillan, a former supermarket chain executive, in November. The men are seeking to replace Congressman Jim Martin, who is running for governor. It is the only district in the state where there is no incumbent running.

One legislative incumbent — four-term Rep. Gus Economos, D-Mecklenburg — was defeated Tuesday as voters selected party nominees in 14 state House and Senate districts.

Among the incumbents winning nomination were Senate President Pro-Tem Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg.

Voters in two-thirds of the state's 100 counties chose legislative nominees May 8 but court challenges to redistricting plans enacted in 1981 forced voters in the other counties, most of them large urban areas, to wait until Tuesday to vote.

Unofficial results showed Economos received 2,448 votes compared to 3,026 for John McLaughlin, his Democratic opponent in the 54th House District.

Lawing easily defeated Bill Brawley for the Democratic nomination in the 34th Senate District. Lawing is a four-term senator and the first person to serve three terms as president pro-tem. He also served three terms in the state House.

In unofficial results, Lawing got 8,434 votes compared to 3,767 for Brawley.

Hunt For Escapees Turning Up Dead Ends But Will Continue

WARRENTON, N.C. (AP) — Virginia and North Carolina officials have vowed to continue the hunt for four escaped death-row inmates as long as leads come in.

"Unfortunately, most of these reports are leading to dead ends, but as long as they keep coming in we're all right," said Heman Clark, secretary of the N.C. Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, after exhaustive searches Tuesday.

"All the officers are very stimulated about this. They're not discouraged."

North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt has ordered that "everything possible" be done to catch the escapees, regardless of cost, Clark added.

Virginia Gov. Charles Robb said Tuesday night, "Every reasonable action that can be taken is being taken. But there is no information that leads us to believe that any one of the cases will be closed in imminent fashion. It's very frustrating."

Russ Edmonston, spokesman for the state Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, said authorities hoped color photographs of the fugitives would spark more leads. They also continued to search for a pickup truck believed stolen by fugitives the night of the escape.

"We would really like to find that truck," he said. "The last thing anybody heard about it, it was stolen the night (they) escaped."

Convicted murderers Derick Lynn Peterson and Earl Clanton Jr., caught Friday night in a Warrenton coin laundry, were expected to return to Virginia this week after waiving extradition Tuesday.

The other four — brothers James and Linwood Briley, Lem Tuggle Jr. and Willie Leroy Jones — remain at large. Hundreds of searchers from both states have pursued leads 130 miles east of the original search area in Portsmouth, Va., and as far west as Spencer, 160 miles from Warrenton.

Meanwhile, Robb said late Tuesday that a "departure from established procedures" was responsible for Thursday's "incredible" escape.

Robb, after a briefing by Virginia police investigators, said there was no evidence that inadequate procedures training played a role in the escape.

Cherokees Trace 'Trail Of Tears'

CLEVELAND, Tenn. (AP) — About 25 Cherokee youngsters retracing the "Trail of Tears" their ancestors took nearly 150 years ago to Oklahoma will stop at Red Clay State Historical Area on Saturday.

Riding bicycles, the high school and college-age youths plan to retrace the trail from North Carolina through Tennessee, Kentucky, Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas.

In 1838, an estimated 17,000 Cherokees were forced from their ancestral homelands in north Georgia, Tennessee and North Carolina and escorted by federal troops to sites in Oklahoma. More than 4,000 died along the way.

In 1983, 24 Oklahomans retraced the western portion of the Trail of Tears, covering more than 1,000 miles in four states.

This year's march, sponsored by the Cherokee Nation Education Department and expected to cost about $25,000, is recognized as one of the special activities to mark the 50th anniversary of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park.

Red Clay, a 275-acre park east of Chattanooga, was the last site where Cherokee tribal councils were held to discuss efforts to block the removal project in court. Earlier this year, the Eastern Band of Cherokees based in North Carolina and the Cherokee Nation of Oklahoma held their first joint council since the Trail of Tears at Red Clay.

Atlanta Airport Is 'Busiest'

ATLANTA (AP) — On May 4, 2,066 airplanes landed or took off from Hartsfield Atlanta International Airport, the most ever for the airport apparently on its way to becoming the world's busiest.

Statistics released this week by the Federal Aviation Administration show Hartsfield surpassed Chicago's O'Hare as the world's busiest commercial airport in 1983. O'Hare, however, retained its long-held title as the busiest overall.

"As far as I know, this is the first time Hartsfield has exceeded O'Hare in air carrier operations for a whole year," said Mike Powderly, manager of the air traffic control tower at Hartsfield. Powderly was manager of the O'Hare tower before coming to Atlanta.

Statistics compiled by the FAA show that in calendar 1983, Hartsfield had 486,210 operations — or takeoffs and landings — by regular scheduled commercial airliners. O'Hare had 481,123.

But in itinerant operations — "everything but the buses" — O'Hare had 652,245 operations to Hartsfield's 597,406. Itinerant operations include general aviation, military and air express flights, Powderly said.

But even in that category, Hartsfield is gaining: for the 12 months ended May 31, the airport's total traffic count was 642,257.

In addition to having the busiest day, May was also the busiest month in Hartsfield history, with 56,349 operations.

Powderly said he expects traffic at Hartsfield to continue growing because airlines are expanding.

But Powderly said traffic growth could lead to congestion and delays as the airport already operates near capacity at peak traffic periods on a typical day.

In air carrier operations, Denver's Stapleton Airport was a distant third in 1983 for 322,275. Dallas-Fort Worth was fourth with 317,076.

Flames Destroy Area In Wilson Business District

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — A fire that sent out a "plume of smoke" roared through a downtown city block, injuring three firefighters and destroying a several buildings, officials said.

The fire broke out around 6 p.m. Tuesday, according to Carolyn Gurney, communications clerk with the Wilson Police Department. Officials said the blaze was under control at 9:30 p.m., but that the burned buildings appeared to be a total loss.

"Probably a quarter to a half" of the block was destroyed, said Capt. O.H. Page. "It's right in the immediate downtown area, about a block away from the center of town."

"We don't have any estimate of the damages, but it's probably going to be extensive," Page said. "Some of them were gutted and some had a lot of smoke damage."

Officials said one firefighter suffered a head injury, another injured his leg and a third suffered smoke inhalation. All three were treated at Wilson Memorial Hospital and released. A few other firefighters were treated at the scene for smoke inhalation.

A fire department dispatcher said an automotive parts warehouse, an army surplus store, a bakery, a pawn shop and a pool room were burned. Firefighters concentrated on keeping flames from reaching other buildings nearby, including a tobacco warehouse.

"The fire was blowing the tin right off the (automotive parts) warehouse roof," said Bert Hamm, owner of Kicks Unlimited karate studio. "I was in class with the kids, and we smelled smoke and went outside and saw the fire."

Hamm said he reported the fire shortly before 6 p.m. after some students smelled smoke during class.

"My building was saved because the fire couldn't jump across the alley to my building because it was shorter than the others," Hamm said.

Hal Tarleton, managing editor of the Wilson Daily Times, said the fire appeared to have started in Batten's Auto Supply Storage, although officials had not determined a cause.

The building, which dates back to 1903, was gutted.

"The fire created a high plume of very black smoke," Tarleton said. "There were apparently oil and other chemicals in Batten's. There was not a real strong chemical smell, but you could feel the heat from a long way off. It was a very hot fire and it was ripping through those buildings fast."

More than 85 Wilson city and volunteer firefighters battled the flames while more than 300 spectators stood behind police barricades to watch the blaze.

Tarleton said there were at least six fire engines and five pumpers on the scene. All 14 police officers on duty were dispatched to the scene, Ms. Gurney said.

BRACKETED BY STRONG CHIMNEYS — A deteriorating house in Beaufort County leans a little more each year. The upper portion of the frame house at the peak of the roof has slipped several feet from the grip of the two solid chimneys at each end of the house. Eventually, storm, time or the hand of man will loosen the hold of the chimneys and cause the building to collapse. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

TV Crew Tricks Man Out Of House

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A gunman who said he was being spied on by a religious television program and stations that carried it killed a TV station sales manager and took his secretary hostage before he was tricked into surrendering, police said.

Ronnell Laverne Jackson was charged with murder and kidnapping after William Norbert Rismiller, general sales manager of WJTM-TV, was shot to death and his secretary, Michelle Holland, was held hostage for 6½ hours Tuesday, police said. Jackson was to be arraigned today.

Jackson, 32, said he thought "The 700 Club" and stations carrying the evangelistic program were spying on him through his TV set, police said.

Ms. Holland, 32, was released unharmed after officials at WXII-TV, which also carries the program, faked a TV broadcast saying the surveillance would stop, police said.

Rismiller, 48, was fatally wounded with a 9-mm automatic pistol when he intervened in an argument between Jackson and Ms. Holland in which Jackson had complained about the show, police said.

After forcing Ms. Holland to drive him to his home, Jackson asked station personnel to interrupt programming so he could make a statement.

Reynard A. Corley, general manager of WXII, said he agreed to send a fake broadcast, which was transmitted only to Jackson's neighborhood, in order to save a life.

"My main concern was a human life," he said. "It went flawlessly."

On the tape, reporter Susan Bruce read a false statement admitting that the station had spied on Jackson. She then apologized and said the station would stop its spying.

Jackson then demanded "that WXII explain the technology they use to spy on him" through his television set, said Lt. Jerry K. Raker.

But police convinced Jackson to live up to his agreement to let Ms. Holland go, Raker said.

Members of the police's Special Enforcement Team, dressed in black fatigues and carrying automatic rifles, surrounded the house during the standoff.

As police officers took their positions, Jackson's 12-year-old son, Michael, and his great-aunt, Theo Wingate, the only other people in the house, came out and were led away by police.

At one point, Jackson fired a shot out one of his windows to show "he meant business," said Raker. No one was hit by the shot.

Jackson did not know when he surrendered that Rismiller had died at Baptist Hospital, Raker said.

Jerry 'Iceman' Butler
"It's Nice To Be Back In Greenville"

Return Performance In Greenville

On-Stage Coolness Belies True Warmth Of Jerry 'Iceman' Butler

On stage, the tall singer projected the image of "The Iceman." He wore a white suit and held himself erectly as he smoothly belted out his popular song, "I'm Just Thinking About Cooling Out."

He appeared suave and sophisticated. But backstage at the King and Queen North, Jerry Butler was relaxed and warm — not at all an "Iceman."

The nickname started as a joke, the singer said in an interview, and has turned into an image. "There was a disc jockey in Philadelphia named George Woods who promoted the Uptown Theater there. All the big names of the day, Jackie Wilson, James Brown, had nicknames," Butler said. "He said I needed a moniker so people would remember me. He started calling me, 'Mr. Cool,' and then changed to 'The Iceman,' which stuck over the years. I even recorded an album entitled, 'The Iceman Cometh.'"

Butler has been singing rhythm and blues music 26 years, music that warms your heart like "Mr. Dream Merchant." "Only the Strong Survive" and "Moody Woman." Since the late 1950s, he has had eight gold records, and has sold more than 30 million records in his career. He has also been nominated for three Grammy Awards in the categories of rhythm and blues vocalist, rhythm and blues album and rhythm and blues song.

"As Bill Cosby says, 'I started out as a child,'" Butler said. "I began recording when I was 18 years old with (the rhythm and blues group) The Impressions. Curtis Mayfield and I grew up together and sang spirituals in his grandmother's church. When The Impressions came to Chicago, Curtis and I joined the group as replacements. 'For Your Precious Love,' which was an international hit, was the first song I ever recorded; I co-wrote the song with Curtis."

Butler said that the current beach music phenomenon sweeping the East Coast has helped his audience expand.

"This circuit of dates through here probably would not be possible if beach music wasn't so popular," he said.

"Beach music is popular from Washington, D.C., to Florida on the southeast seaboard," he commented. "There are a lot of people in other parts of the country who don't understand it but know about it."

"The phenomenon means that the music made during that period was lasting music. I only hope for beach music all the best and that it continues for years to come.

"The organization of (the beach music circuit) and the way everyone has gotten involved in it is impressive," Butler said. "Rolling Stone and Esquire magazines have done articles about it."

"Beach music includes oldies as well as contemporary music. It is just music. That's what's most important about it from an artistic standpoint."

"Because I was involved with this type of music in the early days when it started happening, I'm a part of it. But I really don't know what to think of it."

"I attended the Beach Music Awards (in Myrtle Beach, S.C.) last year to perform and ended up being named Beach Music Entertainer of the Year."

Butler said that it is gratifying to win an award, but that awards are not the most important aspect of recording songs.

"Winning an award is always nice, but as I heard someone say during this year's award show, winning is not as important as being nominated. What makes you feel good is having people think enough of your music to nominate it as being the best in a certain category for the entire year."

He added that he was pleased to be nominated for three Grammy awards, but that his public is what is most important.

"The biggest moment in my life was when I had the occasion to replace (jazz musician) Miles Davis at an outdoor theater in Chicago, a classical theater where the symphony plays," Butler said. "The audience was disappointed that Miles was not there, so they were already hostile. But 15 minutes after the show started, they began clapping their hands and stomping their feet and then we had something in common."

"Ten years later, I went to a Boy's Club function with my wife to receive an award for community work she had done. A lady came up to me and said, 'I know you.' She said that years ago she had gone to see a trumpet player named Miles Davis and he had disappointed her by not showing up. She said that she had really enjoyed my show and that the night was one of the best nights of her life. It's a great feeling to take an audience that wasn't my audience and have them enjoy the show enough to remember it 10 years later."

Butler said his career continues to progress after 26 years.

"Heaven only knows what's in the future for me," he said. "Nat Cole once said to me, 'Never put yourself out of business, let the people put you out.'"

"Right now I am between record companies," he said. "I recently tried with my own label and was some successful. I am in the process of negotiating with several major companies, and before the year is up, we will be in the studio trying to get some new products out."

Butler's audience in Greenville, on May 30, came to hear the songs he made popular in the past 26 years, though. The people who were gathered at the King and Queen North were of all ages and races. Some of them could remember back to when Butler used to perform in this area.

"It's nice to be back in Greenville," Butler said before the concert. "I recall that the first time I came here the town was built around East Carolina College. This town has surely grown."

Then "The Iceman" went on stage and began to sing "What's the Use of Breaking Up?" in his warm and mellow tones. Despite his cool image on stage, the audience could tell from the first note that he is not a cold person.

Over-50 Doesn't Mean You're Out

By GENE SCHROEDER
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A company is known by the people it keeps, and a growing number are keeping their mature and experienced employees rather than sending them to early retirement, says a consultant on aging.

Another favorable sign, adds Meredith Gardner, is that the advertising industry is finally waking up to the fact that most of the nation's buying power is controlled by the over-50 generation.

Miss Gardner is executive director of Too Young to Retire, a national project of the Public Forum Association, a non-profit educational organization.

"I believe Madison Avenue is going to change its pro-youth outlook as it begins to realize there is an exploding mature marketplace," Miss Gardner said in an interview. "Advertisers have been very slow to change because they have gone with a proven commodity — the so-called youth market.

"But per capita, the 55-to-64 age group is the most affluent in the country. Older people do buy TV sets, they do buy cars, they do buy liquor, they do travel. Actually, people over 50 have 55 percent of the nation's disposable income."

"This is double that of Madison Avenue's favorite 18- to 34-year-old group."

Some companies already have recognized the buying power of the mature generation and are producing products aimed specifically at that population segment. Miss Gardner pointed out. "There are new types of jeans, new cosmetic lines, new hair colors for those over 50, for example," she said.

Population projections indicate that as the "baby boom" generation moves into the 50-plus group, there will be a shortage of young Americans in the workforce, Miss Gardner says.

Many companies are beginning to realize this, and are adopting strategic planning for the future, such as calling back former employees from retirement to fill the expected openings or retraining older workers to handle new tasks.

Miss Gardner, a former retirement consultant, says the major goal of her project is to change the outdated images and stereotypes that have plagued the elderly for generations.

"As a consultant to many of the Fortune 500 corporations for some years," she says, "I have had ample opportunity to research stereotyping and document its impact on people."

"The myths and misconceptions are endless, such as that older people are dependent on others. They don't want to work. Older people are inflexible and set in their ways. Older people can't and don't want to learn. Older people are preoccupied with thoughts of death. Older people are incapable of developing new relationships. Older people don't care about or don't get enough sex."

"These are all myths. Clearly, some older people are guilty of these accusations. I know many 25-year-olds who are just as guilty."

But, Miss Gardner says, if older people can't learn, why are some companies rehiring their retired employees, retraining many of them, and using them as consultants, often at higher salaries?

"This is just the ripple of a trend that shows signs of becoming a great wave," she adds.

One of the major projects Miss

Gardner has undertaken to help change the image of the over-50 generation is a television series she will host in which celebrities, specialists and news media people discuss controversial questions on the subject of aging.

Targeted for release this fall, the show has lined up such participants as actress-businesswoman Polly Bergen, singer-actress Kitty Carlisle Hart and Coy Ekland, retired chairman of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, which has made its TV studio available for the initial productions.

Homeowner Takes 'House' With Her

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Whenever Carole Edmunds goes on vacation, she takes her house with her. Ms. Edmunds, a software development engineer for Honeywell Aerospace and Defense's Tampa Operations, lives on a 38-foot sloop that is moored at Clearwater Beach.

Her boat has all the conveniences of a regular house. She holds a Coast Guard captain's license for 70-ton, oceangoing vessels and she has learned how to repair the boat's two-cylinder auxiliary diesel engine. On occasion she takes people out on charter trips.

Her first trip in her boat, which she bought in 1979, not only was the longest she has taken so far, it also proved to be a grueling initiation. It was her first open-water sailing experience and the Gulf of Mexico was stormy as she and a crew of three sailed from Slidell, La. Winds up to 55 miles an hour forced her to put into Gulfport, Miss., for two days.

As a daughter of a Navy man she was never discouraged by her rough experience on the sea, she says.

Sunday In Park Begins

Greenville's annual summertime entertainment, Sunday in the Park, opens Sunday with a concert performance by the Marine Band from Cherry Point Air Marine Station beginning at 7 p.m.

The annual summer Sunday programs, free and open to the public, are held on the grassy slope east of Reade Street between Third and Fourth streets.

Sunday in the Park is funded by the city of Greenville under the auspices of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department, with Stuart Aronson coordinating the seven programs.

In addition to the Marine Band opening concert, Aronson has announced headliners for the six additional Sunday shows. These are:

- June 17 — Barry Shank and the Wind Ensemble.
- June 24 — The Rutabaga Brothers and the Lemon Sisters.
- July 1 — The Eastern Symphonette, conducted by Robert Hause.
- July 8 — The Too Wet To Plough String Band and the Swift Creek Cloggers.
- July 15 — A special program celebrating America's 400th Anniversary, with historical events through the centuries depicted in music.
- July 22 — The Monitors, a jazz band that has performed in the Sunday in the Park programs every summer since its inception.

NBC Sets Pace For Ratings Tie

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — For the first time in nearly four months, NBC, with superhit "The A-Team" in the vanguard, captured the lion's share of the Top 10 for the week ended June 3 and tied ABC for first place in the Nielsen ratings.

NBC won eight places in the Top 10 as it made a big comeback from the week before, when it was third and had only two shows in the top rank. ABC was first the previous week and CBS was second. This week CBS fell to third place.

The first-place tie was a rare visit to the heights for NBC. Its last time in first place (in fact, its only time during the just-ended season) was the week ended Feb. 12.

ABC had two shows in the Top 10 and CBS had none. CBS' highest-rated show was "60 Minutes," in a tie for 12th place. The last time CBS was shut out of the Top 10 was the week ended May 30, 1982.

Besides top-rated "The A-Team," second place went to NBC's "Double Trouble." The comedy's sudden surge in the ratings was a surprise. Last week it was in 47th place.

Other shows in the Top 10: the ABC movie "Concorde: Airport '79," third; NBC's "St. Elsewhere" and "Riptide," tied for fourth; NBC's "Cheers," sixth; NBC's "Facts of Life," seventh; NBC's "Night Court," eighth; ABC's "20-20," ninth; and NBC's "Remington Steele," 10th.

Bob Hope's 81st birthday celebration on NBC from the World's Fair in New Orleans was 14th.

NBC and ABC tied with a network average of 13.4 in the A.C. Nielsen Co. survey. CBS was third with 11.5. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute, 13.4 percent of the TV homes were tuned to NBC and ABC.

It's possible that NBC might have had a clear claim on first place if it had not telecast the Democratic presidential debate on Sunday. The program was not included in the Nielsen figures because it was not sponsored. It pre-empted "Father Murphy," perennially in last place, but even the scant help from a last-place rating would have put NBC ahead by a fraction.

For the week ended June 3, here are the five lowest shows in descending order: the NBC movie "Saturn III," NBC's "The Master," NBC Reports on the 8th Air Force in World War II, CBS' "The Whiz Kids" and ABC's "The Olympic Trials."

There was no doubting ABC's claim to first place in the May sweeps. ABC had undisputed victories in both the Nielsen and Arbitron surveys. The Nielsen ratings for May 3-30: ABC 14.9, CBS

13.5, NBC 13.3. The Arbitron ratings for May 2-29: ABC 15.2, CBS 13.5, NBC 13.3.

The sweeps, which occur three times a year, are a monthlong period during which Nielsen and Arbitron sample the ratings of every television station in the country to determine local advertising rates. While the networks are not directly involved, they do beef up their programming to increase ratings for their affiliate stations.

Here are the 20 top programs for the week ended June 3:

1. "The A-Team," NBC, a rating of 19.3 or 16.1 million households.
2. "Double Trouble," NBC, 18.0 or 15.0 million.
3. Movie—"Concorde: Airport '79," ABC, 17.8 or 14.9 million.
4. "St. Elsewhere," NBC, 17.0 or 14.2 million.
5. Tie—"Riptide," NBC, 17.0 or 14.2 million.
6. "Cheers," NBC, 16.8 or 14.0 million.
7. "Facts of Life," NBC, 16.6 or 13.9 million.
8. "Night Court," NBC, 16.4 or 13.7 million.
9. "20-20," ABC, 16.2 or 13.6 million.
10. "Remington Steele," NBC, 16.1 or 13.5 million.
11. "Hill Street Blues," NBC, 16.0 or 13.4 million.
12. "60 Minutes," CBS, 15.9 or 13.3 million.
12. Tie-Movie—"The Villain," NBC, 15.9 or 13.3 million.
14. Bob Hope Birthday Salute, NBC, 15.6 or 13.0 million.
15. "TV Bloopers & Practical Jokes," NBC, 15.4 or 12.9 million.
15. Tie-Movie—"Orca," ABC, 15.4 or 12.9 million.
17. "Magnum, P.I.," CBS, 15.1 or 12.6 million.
18. Movie—"Prince of the City," Part I, ABC, 15.0 or 12.5 million.
19. "Cagney & Lacey," CBS, 14.3 or 11.9 million.
20. "The Fall Guy," ABC, 14.2 or 11.8 million.

Donna Reed Signs To Be 'Miss Ellie'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Miss Ellie, the Ewing clan matriarch on TV's "Dallas," returns to Texas from a trip to Greece next season, she'll be played by a different actress — Donna Reed.

Miss Reed, star of her own series in the 1960s, was signed for the CBS soap opera on Monday, after Barbara Bel Geddes announced she would not return in the role for a seventh season, said Lary Youngsteadt, a spokesman for Lorimar Productions.

Miss Reed, 63, will begin work "around the seventh episode," he said. Miss Bel Geddes cited personal reasons for leaving the show, the highest-rated regular prime-time series last season. She suffered a heart attack a year ago and underwent quadruple bypass surgery.

Miss Reed won an Oscar in 1953 as best supporting actress for her role in "From Here to Eternity." For eight years, beginning in 1958, she was the star of "The Donna Reed Show" on ABC.

By MIKE SILVERMAN
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — One hundred years ago, legend has it, playwright William S. Gilbert was pacing his study floor, unable to think of a plot for a new operetta, when a Japanese executioner's sword fell from the wall.

As fast as you can say "The Flowers That Bloom in the Spring," Gilbert had his inspiration — a Japanese setting for a comic tale of a reluctant executioner, his pretty young ward, and her minstrel-suitor, who just happens to be the emperor's son in disguise.

Set to some of Sir Arthur Sullivan's most tuneful and bubbling music, "The Mikado" opened in London in 1885 to rave reviews, ran two years, and has become the team's most enduring work.

You'll see why, if you watch the production that's coming to public television Wednesday night as part of Britain's "Compleat Gilbert and Sullivan" series.

It's a straightforward, no-nonsense production that transports the viewer to a whimsical world where the executioner maintains "a little list" of candidates for beheading and the emperor diligently seeks "to make the punishment fit the crime."

That world has little to do with the real Japan, but it has a lot to do with Gilbert's gift for gently poking fun at bureaucracy and ideals of justice. "The Mikado" may not have the satiric bite of "Patience," which makes fun of Oscar Wilde's pretensions, or the political humor of "Iolanthe," which mocks the House of Lords, but it also seems less dated than either of them.

Perhaps its universal appeal explains why "The Mikado" has so often been adapted, updated and generally messed with. There has been a jazz "Mikado," a swing "Mikado" and the late producer Mike Todd's "Hot Mikado."

A recent production by the young director Peter Sellars at Chicago's Lyric Opera even moved the action to post-World War II Japan with noblemen dressed in business suits and the Mikado driving onstage in a Toyota automobile.

The TV production is, wisely, a traditional one. And the cast is excellent — especially Clive Revill, the British comedian who plays Ko-Ko, the Lord High Executioner.

Revill, who starred on Broadway as Fagan in the original production of the musical "Oliver," is one comic who can really sing and act. He captures just the right mix of sweetness and pomposity to win our sympathy at the same time we're glad he loses the fair Yum-Yum to the handsome Nanki-Poo.

Nearly his match is Anne Collins as Katisha, the emperor's daughter-in-law. One of those bossy, middle-aged spinsters who always cause trouble in G&S operettas, she takes herself utterly seriously, all the while being made to appear thoroughly foolish. When Ko-Ko woos her with "Tit-Willow," a mournful song about the suicide of a lovesick bird, her expression changes subtly from annoyance to skepticism and finally to tender submission.

Kate Flowers and John Stewart make an attractive pair of young lovers, and Stafford Dean, a noted bass on the English opera stage, is properly supercilious as Pooh-Bah, the Lord High Everything Else.

The one disappointment is "guest star" William Conrad, the corpulent actor known to TV audiences as the detectives Cannon and Nero Wolfe, who is here making his Gilbert and Sullivan debut as the title character.

His softspoken, unemotional style proves ill-suited to the grandiose Mikado, who should dominate the stage instead of shuffling around on it. And Conrad omits the blood-curdling laugh that traditionally punctuates the famous song in which he rattles off various social offenses and the punishment he prescribes for each.

Jacksons Delaying Details On Concert

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The blinking marquee outside Rupp Arena says it all: "Believe It! No Michael Jackson Info. Please Don't Call."

In the two weeks since Katherine Jackson announced that her six sons would kick off their much-anticipated summer concert tour in Lexington, at least three dozen people a day have telephoned the arena office wanting tickets and information, officials say.

But the people at Rupp Arena can't tell the callers anything, even though they talk daily with representatives of Michael Jackson and his five brothers — Tito, Randy, Marlon, Jermaine and Jackie — about the tour expected to attract 2.5 million fans. Rupp made a contract offer weeks ago, but the brothers haven't signed.

"We've just quit speculating," Bill Pickett, the arena's vice president of operations, said Tuesday. "It has not been accepted. We have discussed it generally, but we've gotten nothing in writing back. We have no deposit and no information on tickets or any other items."

But people call, teen-agers talk and parents grill employees of local record stores and radio stations. Everyone wants to beat the rush and be the first to know how to get tickets, and fans from as far away as Los Angeles hope to attend the Jacksons' opening performance.

"A lot of people come in here real crazed about it," said record store clerk Debbie Elery. "Everybody's waiting. Nobody knows what's going to happen."

There are no tickets yet. In fact, Pickett said this week that the concert will have to be pushed back a week or so from the June 22 date Mrs. Jackson announced last month.

Trade publications have hinted that the tour is in trouble, and rumors abound in Lexington that the Kentucky stop will be eliminated. But spokeswoman Beverly Paige in New York insisted, "The tour is going on."

Rupp Arena operations manager Bill Humphrey said he had been told the brothers have completed three dress rehearsals.

Ms. Paige announced Tuesday that Stadium Management Corp. of Foxboro, Mass., will co-promote the tour. Stadium Management is headed by Charles Sullivan, executive vice president of the New England Patriots.

"What they're doing is working out all the other dates so that, when they announce it, they'll announce everything together," said Bill Cherry, an organizer with Don King Productions in New York, which is presenting the tour.

Dancer Alive

NEW YORK (AP) — Alfonso Ribeiro, the 12-year-old star of Broadway's "The Tap Dance Kid," continues to kick his heels on stage contrary to rumors that he was killed in a dancing accident.

For three weeks, a rumor has persisted that the child star died of a snapped neck while doing a breakdancing scene for a Pepsi-Cola commercial with superstar Michael Jackson.

We put our foot down about apartments being within walking distance.

Wedgewood Arms apartments are within walking distance of three shopping centers, a nursery school, a junior high school, doctors and dentists' offices and an athletic center. As if that wasn't enough, three major traffic arteries, 264 Bypass, Arlington Blvd., and Charles St. are close enough to be seen and not heard.
 Fact is, no apartments in town can legitimately claim to be more convenient to more things than Wedgewood Arms. And, that's not all. Because Wedgewood Arms is not only convenient, it's different in other ways, too.
 Take the floorplans, they're different from anything you've ever seen. And when you add in high energy efficiency, tennis courts, swimming pool, and the neighborhood "feeling" that these apartments will give you - well, you'll just have to see for yourself.
 Call us for an appointment today 756-0987
 Near the intersection of Arlington Blvd. & Red Bank Rd.

Adman Takes Task Of Convincing French Not To Drink

By BRENDAN MURPHY
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — Daniel Robert, one of France's most successful advertising executives, knew he faced a tall order when French public health authorities asked him how to convince his countrymen to cut back on their drinking.
It's too early yet to say whether he's been successful. But the catchy phrase on which his anti-alcoholism campaign is based has become widespread in France as "Where's the beef?" was recently in the United States.
"One drink. OK," goes the ad. "Three drinks, hello trouble." The moderation-preaching slogan is being impressed upon the French population through thousands of repetitions on TV and in movie theaters across the nation.

The catchy phrase "Bonjour les degats" ("hello trouble") has become an all-purpose one-liner in the media. On the third anniversary of the Socialists' 1981 arrival in power, for example, the far-right political scandal sheet Minute ran the front-page headline: "Bonjour les degats."
Robert himself knew he was getting through when he overheard someone at a party say, "It's getting so I can't drink wine at home without my kids yelling, 'Bonjour les degats.'" Even so, he has a way to go. The time when French farmers and working men measured the day in wine glasses and empty bottles has passed, and the French are drinking 25 percent less than they did in 1960.

But by its own estimate France remains first in the world for the production and consumption of alcohol — a dubious honor that the current Socialist administration would soon relinquish.
Pierre Mendes-France, the late French premier who ended France's war in Indochina in the 1950s, is still remembered for his unsuccessful campaign to promote milk as an alternative to wine and make it the official drink of the French army.

"This is the first time the government has decided to launch a campaign for moderation in drinking," said Robert, director of the Robert et Partners agency. "Traditionally, French governments avoided the issue so as not to disturb the electorate."
But the statistics could not be ignored. A 1981 study found that one in 15 deaths in France could be attributed to alcohol, for a total of 39,000 annually. These included 14,000 cases of cirrhosis of the liver and 5,000 highway fatalities.

Officials say the average adult Frenchman is drinking less wine — about 35 gallons a year in 1980 compared to 42 gallons a year in 1970 — but is consuming more beer and hard liquor. Drinking is also on the rise among the young.
"This is the number one health problem in France," said Dr. Jean-Martin Cohen-Solal, head of the Committee for Health Education, the public health advisory body within the French Ministry of Health that hired Robert.
Cohen-Solal explained that French drinking habits of consuming in small amounts, but continuously, mask the problem. "The Frenchman is rarely drunk," he said, "but he is frequently on the threshold of intoxication."

In cafes, social institutions in France, it is common to see workers on their mid-morning breaks having a "ballon" of wine or a "demi" of beer. French businessmen face social pressures to order wine at lunches with clients and associates.
Most Frenchmen don't recognize or admit the problem in their own lives. When asked to define "normal" consumption, most cited the amount they themselves drank. The widespread attitude, said Cohen-Solal, is: "The other guy drinks too much, not me."

World's Top Chefs Cook For Critic

NEW YORK (AP) — Fifteen of the world's most renowned chefs raised $200,000 for the March of Dimes by cooking an elaborate 11-course dinner to honor Craig Claiborne, food editor for The New York Times.
The fund-raiser was organized by Pierre Franey, French chef and author of the Times syndicated column "The 60-Minute Gourmet," who ran from table to table urging the 40 guests to "eat your food!"
"Pierre's having a heart attack," joked March of Dimes administrator Diane Holuk.
Franey said he chose the chefs from among "friends of Craig, great chefs and great friends he has written about over the last 30 years."

in New Orleans on Saturday and they were flew here for you," Franey told the dinner guests in his fractured English. "However, I did not strangled them."
The diners paid $500 apiece for the privilege of savoring mussel soup by Andre Soltner of 'Lutece,' Peking duck by David Keh of 'Auntie Yuan,' crab tartlets, sushi, soused Mexican pork, mixed green salad, bleu cheese and what Franey called "an orgy of chocolate" — including a mousse confection by Michel Fitoussi called "The Bermuda Triangle" and peanut butter and jelly-stuffed bonbons by Nouvelle Cuisine specialist Barry Wine of "The Quilted Giraffe."

They washed it down with Laurent Perrier Grand Siecle Champagne 1975, a 1981 Meursault white burgundy, a 1979 Chateau Belair St. Emilion and finished it off with a Veuve Roth Framboise Single Cask Unblended Cognac, 1964 vintage.
The revelry was followed by a somber moment created by Beverly Sills, the soprano who, in addition to her duties as director of the New York City Opera, is the mother of two children with birth defects and chairwoman of the March of Dimes.

"You can't question my credibility, I'm sorry to say," she said with tears in her eyes.
"There are times when you put your arm around a friend and say 'I know exactly how you feel.' Well, unless you've had a child with birth defects, you can't know how it feels. It's a desolate feeling."
"The danger can affect anyone in this room — it's a very democratic disease," Ms. Sills said. "I hope the day will come when every baby is born perfectly beautiful, and beautifully perfect."

Claiborne, who looked dazed, said "I kept a plastic smile on my face and my mouth shut" while the revered but temperamental cooks decided between themselves who would make the main course.

"All I can say is, it was a once-in-a-lifetime experience," he said, adding in a whisper: "And I mean NEVER again."

The honor fell to Jean Banchet, owner of Le Francois restaurant of Wheeling, Ill., who made pigeon stuffed with foie gras and truffles in puff pastry for the crowd at Manhattan's Tavern on the Green.

"These squabs were alive on Saturday. They were raised outside Chicago and we strangled them to keep in the blood, so they'd be nice and juicy," Franey told the guests.

Then George Perrier made the puff pastry at his restaurant, Le Bec Fin, in Philadelphia, and we put the whole thing together today in New York."

Highest praise of the evening went to a spicy shrimp creole cooked to order by Paul Prudhomme of K-Paul's restaurant in Louisiana, a Cajun chef whose cuisine was popularized in syndicated columns by Claiborne and Franey.
"Paul's men caught these shrimps

Women Will Eat For Pay

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Ten women will be paid $800 each to live in seclusion for a month and gorge themselves with twice as much food as they normally eat.

The gluttony is part of a study to determine whether overeating affects women in the same way as men, said Gilbert Forbes, a professor of pediatrics at the University of Rochester Medical Center.

One thing is fairly certain, he said: "We expect them to gain weight."

The women will be allowed out a few hours a day as long as they promise not to eat or drink anything, Forbes said.

The rest of the time they will undergo daily tests of their blood, hormones, urine, metabolic rate and weight while eating nutritionally balanced — and oversized — meals.

"We'll try to arrange their diet so it's palatable to them. We won't feed them just asparagus or anchovies," Forbes said.

If they can't eat the entire meal at one sitting, they will be allowed to eat extra meals, he said.

Men have been found to gain an average of a pound for every 3,600 excess calories they eat, although there is a wide variation among individuals, Forbes said his study, to be conducted over the next year, is the first rigorously controlled experiment on women.

Only three volunteers have been selected, and recruiting has not been easy, Forbes said. Many women were unwilling to put on weight, despite the promise of help to lose it after the experiment, he said. Moreover, the volunteers must live at the medical center.

"We can't let them live at home. We have to have them under observation. They can't be off some place having a Coca-Cola or something," Forbes said.

Volunteers have to be 15 to 40 years old and of roughly average weight, without any major weight fluctuations in the last year, Forbes said.

40th Anniversary Of The Landings In France

"People of Western Europe: A landing was made this morning on the coast of France by troops of the Allied Expeditionary Force. This landing is part of the concerted United Nations plan for the liberation of Europe...I call upon all who love freedom to stand with us now. Together we shall achieve victory." — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower

This now famous broadcast ended months of silence and preparation for the greatest amphibious assault in history. Operation Overlord. Under Eisenhower's command, millions of men, thousands of ships and tens of thousands of tanks and vehicles were formed into what Eisenhower called "a great human spring, coiled for the moment when its energy should be released and it would vault the English channel."

The site planned for the invasion was one of the most closely guarded secrets of World War II. Hitler believed the Allies would invade France at Calais, a location closer to England and more convenient in many ways. Eisenhower, on the other hand, chose the beaches at Normandy for the invasion.

Landpower, Key To Peace

Weather became the critical factor when selecting the date of the invasion. The seas had to be calm enough for the large transport ships, the tides high enough for the landing craft, and the moon bright enough for the paratroopers who were to be dropped behind enemy lines. Few days in June 1944 afforded those ideal conditions, and when foul weather precluded the 5th, Eisenhower selected the sixth, a day now known to millions as "the longest day."

The invasion force was composed of soldiers from the United States, Canada, France, Poland and Great Britain. The landing area on the French coast was divided into five zones named Omaha, Utah, Gold, Juno and Sword. While the Allies landed in the latter three zones, the First U.S. Army under Gen. Omar Bradley landed on Omaha and Utah.

As the landing craft began approaching the beaches, Allied air forces created a massive air umbrella formed by thousands of fighters and medium range bombers. Battleships and cruisers kept up a steady bombardment as frogmen swam through the surf to blow up obstacles and clear a patch for the assault boats.

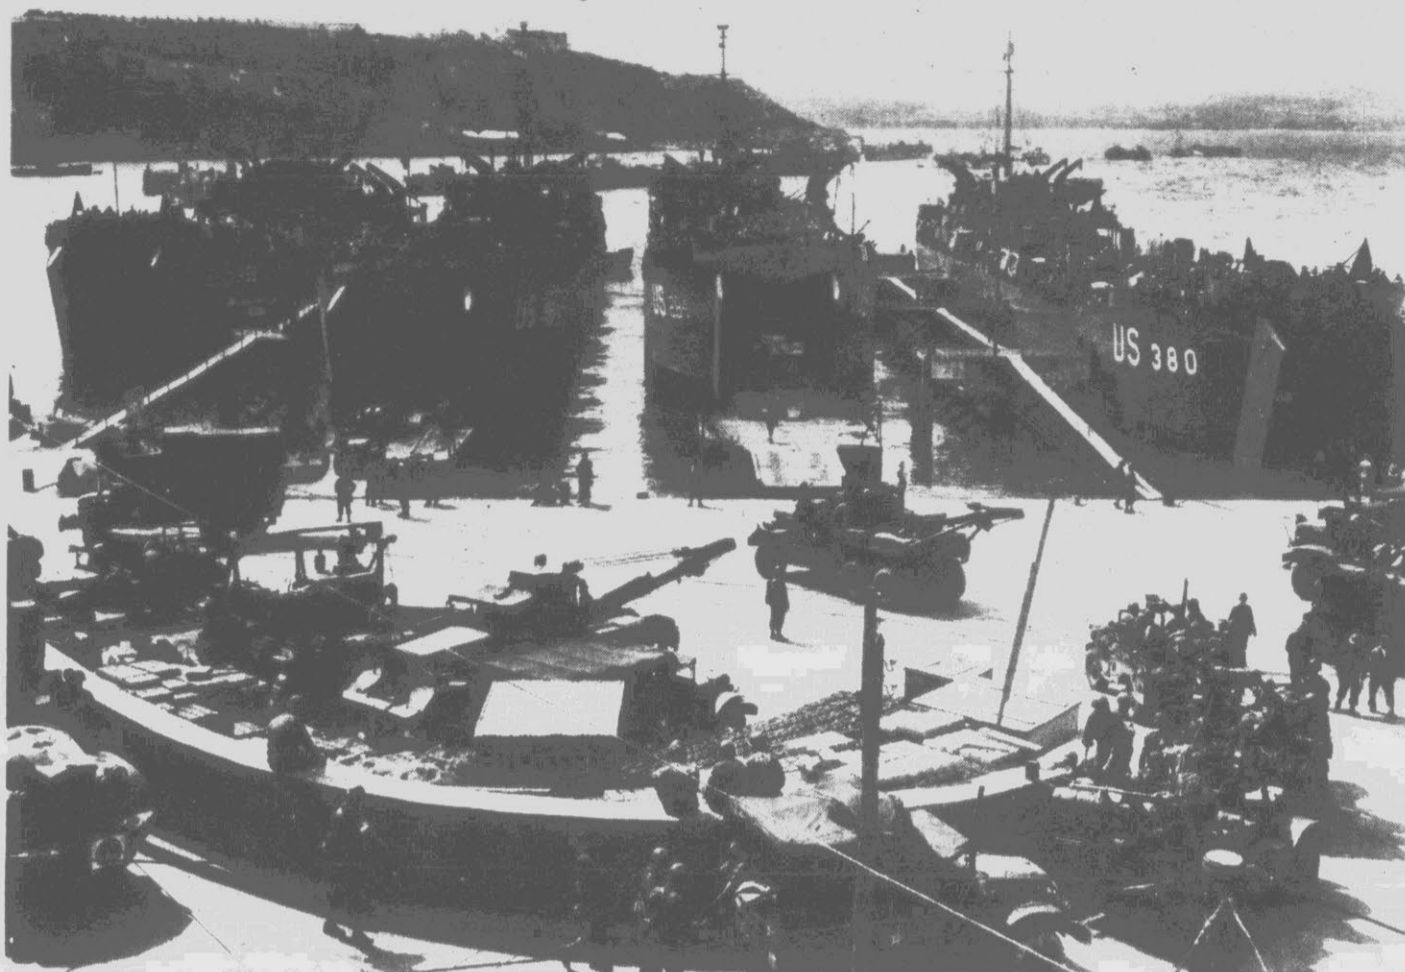

Landpower, Key To Victory

Now, as one historian has put it, "it was up to the foot soldier with the handgun who can neither sail away nor fly away." Those soldiers hitting the beach were met by withering fire from the crack German 352d Infantry Division. The first assault wave was pinned down and successive waves of soldiers were being bunched up with nowhere to go. Offshore, Gen. Bradley listened gravely to the reports from the Army's First Infantry Division and contemplated withdrawing the attack.

At that point, however, the American fighting man again proved himself up to the task. One by one, enemy positions were knocked out until Bradley received the words he had been hoping to hear: "Troops formerly pinned down on beaches Easy Red, Easy Green, Red Fox advancing up heights behind beaches." The soldiers had gained the beachhead; the liberation of Europe had begun.

When Gen. Eisenhower met the day before D-Day with the soldiers being sent into battle, he told them, "I have full confidence in your courage, devotion to duty and skill in battle." Today's soldier is still recognized for those same qualities of courage, devotion to duty and skill in battle. As on the beaches of Normandy, it is the foot soldier, with the help of support troops of the Total Army, who is the key to victory. As with the soldiers of 40 years ago whose memory we honor this year, today's soldier remains strong in battle, compassionate in victory and vigilant in peace.

Painter Captures Dogfights

By JEFF BARNARD
Associated Press Writer
ASHLAND, Ore. (AP) — For Bill Phillips, there's nothing like a sweaty-palmed flight in an F-15 jet fighter to help him capture on canvas the feeling of a dogfight.

"Some people tell me they feel they can walk into one of my pictures and fall 35,000 feet," said Phillips.

Phillips, 38, is one of a small group of painters who specialize in aircraft.

"There's probably only 10 aviation artists in the country," Phillips said in the small studio in the back of his home on a quiet residential street.

One closet is filled with aviation magazines and books used as references for his paintings. A shelf is covered with plastic models of military aircraft.

A British flight suit, a U.S. Navy flight jacket and a U.S. Army Air Corps silk scarf hang on one wall. Plaques from fighter groups with whom he has flown dot other walls.

On one easel is a painting depicting a British Spitfire Mk-1 and a German Messerschmitt Bf-109 in a head-on pass over the white cliffs of Dover, England.

On another easel is another view of the same dogfight. In this one, two Spitfires are on the tail of a wounded Heinkel III and the Messerschmitt is closing in from the foreground.

The Messerschmitt is sketched on paper so Phillips can move it around, experimenting with angles, sizes and positions before painting it in.

"I like to be able to tell a story and let the guy looking at it finish it," said Phillips. "If you set up a perfect angle or somebody is flaming out, the story is over. I like it when a group of fighter pilots sitting around having a few beers can look at the angles in this and say who screwed up and how it's going to turn out."

One of the paintings will be chosen as the basis of a limited run of prints that will be signed by British and German aces of World War II.

His original paintings sell for between $1,500 and $20,000, with those signed by pilots fetching the higher figure.

Right now, paintings of World War II aircraft are the big sellers.

"People in the top executive positions now are people who flew missions in World War II," said Phillips. "The trauma of death is faded into the past. What these people are doing when they buy these things is reliving some of the most exciting moments of their lives."

"As the Vietnam-era fighter pilot gets older, there will be a market for that," he added.

Although his painting of Col. Jimmy Doolittle's bombing raid on Tokyo during World War II — signed by surviving members of the squadron — was displayed in the Smithsonian Institution, Phillips considers himself an illustrator rather than an artist.

"An illustrator makes money and an artist makes philosophy," said Phillips, who is largely self-taught in the techniques he uses to produce a photographic realism with oil paints.

His father was the late character actor William "Bill" Phillips, who, coincidentally, appeared as a pilot in the film "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo."

Mindful of the difficulties of making a living from art, his parents wanted him to be a lawyer.

Instead, while working as an Ashland firefighter, Phillips sold four paintings of World War I fighter planes and saw the direction his life would take.

What keeps him going is the love of flight.

Though not a licensed pilot himself, Phillips has had about 30 chances to fly in jet fighters, sometimes taking the controls himself.

"If you can feel the sensation of flight, feel the G-forces, you're getting all the sensations, not just the two-dimensional visual sensations you get from a photograph," Phillips said.

His most exciting flight came in 1978, when he rode in the back seat of an F-15 trainer at the Red Flag operation at Nellis Air Force Base, Nev.

"It's very intense," said Phillips. "There's a lot of sweaty palms."

"You are maneuvering at very high speeds from 45,000 to 100 feet. You are enclosed in a cockpit. You are strapped to an airplane. You can see outside this bubble canopy and feel the sensation of going inverted at 45,000 feet. You can see the other airplane. From photographs, books, or magazines, you are seeing somebody else's impression."

Yesterday's Cryptoquip - NEARSIGHTED DISHWASHER'S BIG DILEMMA AT WORK: BROKEN GLASSES?

Today's Cryptoquip clue: Y equals F

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Berlin Wall Offers View Of Hitler's Bunker

BERLIN (AP) — East German authorities have unintentionally provided a glimpse into the Nazi past by altering the Berlin Wall to reveal the grassy hill, partially hidden for 16 years, where Adolf Hitler's bunker lies.

Hitler and his long-time mistress, Eva Braun, committed suicide together in the bunker April 30, 1945, to escape capture by the Soviet army in the final days of the war.

Joseph Goebbels, Hitler's propaganda minister, took his life in the bunker shortly afterward.

The hill was almost blocked from view by part of the Berlin Wall, erected by Communist authorities in 1961.

The wall actually has two parts — a solid barrier directly on the dividing line between East and West Berlin, and a thinner but equally high fence 600 to 900 feet inside East Berlin. Watchtowers, tank traps, fences and border guards on patrol make the area between the walls a no-man's-land.

Recently, East German work crews began to put up a third wall in the no-man's-land near the famous Brandenburg Gate, a Berlin landmark. They also began dismantling a section of the inner wall which hid all but the top of the bunker hill.

At the time, West German officials expressed concern that East Berlin was strengthening border fortifications.

But the East German Foreign Ministry denied that the additional wall was part of the border, saying the work was being done in line with "building projects" in East Berlin.

East German officials have declined to say what they plan to build in an area that once was Germany's main government district. But this reluctance to comment may have a lot to do with the area's Nazi past.

The bunker was built during World War II in the courtyard of the so-called old Reich Chancellery.

Classroom Follows Children To Hospital

NEW YORK (AP) — The schoolroom, one of two on the fifth floor in the Hospital for Special Surgery here, is crowded, although there are only seven children in it — because these students come to school on stretchers, in wheelchairs or on crutches.

The hospital school, PS 401, is run by the Board of Education of the City of New York. It is primarily for children who are hospitalized at least 10 school days, although young patients who stay for a shorter time can also attend classes. School-age patients from other cities may attend the school, too.

The class is in constant, but almost imperceptible, motion as the youngsters come and go for X-rays, lab tests, bone scans or to the operating room, reminders that they are, after all, hospital patients.

In one corner, 6-year-old Robert watches "Sesame Street" on the TV. Every so often, he reaches out to pat the stuffed doll on his pillow.

Elaine, 13, recovering from surgery to correct curvature of the spine, lies on her stomach studying decimals.

Robert, 16, has had hip surgery. Wearing a Dallas Cowboy shirt with his name on the back, he maneuvers his wheelchair adroitly and settles down to work assigned by his regular teacher.

Pamela, 14, in a pink T-shirt, is typing answers to history homework when she is called for a bone scan of her elbow.

Joel, 16, and a high school senior, is typing in a computer program. He plans to be a journalist and loves "to play around with computers."

The younger students use their robot, 2XL, with "Speak and Read" tapes.

In a corner of one schoolroom, there is a complete kitchen in which students learn to prepare meals. The two teachers here, Carol Tyler and Michael Goldstein, have a special license to teach disabled children but there is no license for the other roles they play — parent, nurse, psychologist. They are alert to everything that goes on even as they work with students on a one-to-one basis.

Freddy, 13, has cerebral palsy and his speech is impaired but they understand what he tries to say.

Kevin, 10, who must keep both legs in casts for 10-12 weeks, is depressed and he starts to shift restlessly, but Goldstein reminds him that when his casts are removed, he will walk normally.

Goldstein says he will sympathize with the children up to a point, "but then I have to persuade them to keep up with their schoolwork." And so he insists that Kevin sit up in his wheelchair and resume studying.

Geography here, fractions there, graphs, science — the teachers, whom the children call by their first names, move from student to student answering or asking questions and giving assignments from the kindergarten level through high school. When called upon to teach a subject with which they are not familiar, they ask for backup from a specialist who is sent over by the Board of Education.

Children are encouraged to bring their own books, but the hospital schoolroom has floor-to-ceiling shelves crammed with books on every subject the children might study, and Mrs. Tyler and Goldstein keep in touch with the children's regular teachers. Sometimes, films, records or radio lessons supplement the schoolwork. Whenever the youngsters remain in the hospital for extended periods, they must take the same tests other children are given and they, too, receive report cards.

"There are few discipline problems here because the students vary in age so there is no peer pressure to incite mischief," says Mrs. Tyler, adding "but don't get the idea that these youngsters are little angels. They're emotionally as normal as any group of kids so there is always someone who tries to grab a greater share of attention, and just one uncooperative child can disrupt the entire group."

"There is no such thing as an average day," says Goldstein. "We can have anywhere from five to 15 pupils, not counting the three or four we teach at bedside. Bedside teaching isn't hard to do because the children can call us on the telephone with questions or to let us know they're ready for another assignment."

School hours are from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m., with 90 minutes for lunch and a short nap. It's during this break that the teachers catch up with the huge amount of paper work required to keep track of students who might stay in the hospital from one week to four, and whose records must be sent to the Board of Education and to social workers who make certain the schoolwork is being done.

Korean Tunnel Is Relic Of Nation's Split Life

DEMILITARIZED ZONE, Korea (AP) — Two hundred forty feet below the surface at one of the most heavily fortified areas in the world, two armed sentries stand on 24-hour guard.

One mans an M-60 machine gun, the other stands by a three-foot thick concrete wall. Both pack .45 automatic pistols and are watched by closed circuit television cameras.

The soldiers guard a tunnel, wide enough for three soldiers to run through abreast, that passes under the tense Demilitarized Zone dividing North and South Korea.

The South Korean Army says it discovered the "Tunnel of Aggression," dug by their Communist enemies north of the 38th parallel, in June 1978. It was the third such tunnel the South Koreans say they uncovered, and it stands as a reminder to the uneasy armistice between the two sides today.

South Korea claims the tunnels reveal North Korea's intention to reunify the Korean Peninsula by force. The North denies digging them, claiming they are South Korean propaganda.

Korea has been divided since the end of World War II, and the DMZ was established with the signing of the armistice, that ended the 1950-1953 Korean War.

The DMZ is a desolate, barren strip of land 156 miles long and 2.5 miles wide.

The discovery of the third tunnel stemmed from the 1974 defection of Kim Pu Song, a North Korean engineer who said he had conducted tunnel surveying in the area since 1972.

Based on information supplied by Kim, South Korean authorities believe there may be as many as seven more tunnels beneath the DMZ, according to 1st Lt. Ryoo Koo-hyun of the South Korean army.

He said in an interview that it took four years to find the third tunnel because the search was basically hit or miss.

The U.N. Command Tunnel Neutralization Team had to bore through solid granite to reach the tunnel, which extends 435 yards into South Korean territory.

Its dank, chilly interior has been sealed off just south of the Military Demarcation Line by two concrete walls and an area laced with barbed wire and Claymore mines.

"The North Koreans accused us of building this tunnel, then they said it was a coal mine built by the Japanese," Ryoo said. "They even painted the granite walls black."

The tunnel, now a popular spot for family outings and school field trips, is beneath a low, hilly area dotted with poplars and pines just 26 miles north of Seoul and 2.5 miles from Panmunjom, the truce village in the DMZ where North and South delegations meet periodically for generally fruitless talks.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JUNE 7, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning is fine for using your best discretion to get your surroundings organized on a very sensible basis, after which you find it necessary to use more care in dealing with other persons.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You are able to get tasks handled more efficiently in the morning. Make sure you double-check terms with others.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan early for whatever can bring you the feeling that you are doing well, but later you find work stifling, so take it easy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle any problems at home, but later don't go out and spend lots of money foolishly. Work on that particular talent you possess.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Get busy on routines and they are soon done. Later use much tact at home. Do nothing to jeopardize your good name.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Study and arrange your monetary matters in the morning, and then handle communication problems with utmost care.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Morning is best time to get good results in intimate matters and later you can handle practical problems easily but carefully.

Soviets Execute 'War Criminal'

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The Foreign Ministry says a 70-year-old Soviet-born citizen of Belgium was executed in the Soviet Union last month for alleged war crimes.

The ministry said it was informed that an appeal for mercy had been rejected and Yermak Lukianoff had been executed sometime in mid-May.

Lukianoff moved to Belgium in 1944 and became a naturalized citizen in 1967. He went to the Soviet Union the next year as a tourist and was arrested immediately for alleged war crimes.

After learning of the execution, Belgian Foreign Minister Leo Tindemans summoned the Soviet ambassador and handed him a protest. The ministry said Belgium regretted the "uncompromising attitude" of Soviet authorities in light of Lukianoff's age and the 15 years he spent in jail before being tried.

Museum Features Illusions

CHICAGO (AP) — At a small museum west of Chicago's Loop, a fragile apple of green glass hangs in front of a black glass plate, tempting violation of the age-old museum rule: "Look, but don't touch!"

The glass sculpture can't be broken, though, because it isn't really there. The apple seemingly hanging before the viewer's nose is an illusion cast by a hologram — specifically a new second-generation reflection hologram by English physicist Nicholas J. Phillips.

In reflection holography, the image appears to emerge from the surface of the plate and float before the viewer.

On the same wall hangs another of Phillips' holograms, a still-life of a computer circuit board, a measuring tape and a magnifying glass. Although only a holographic image, the glass retains its magnifying properties. As the viewer's vantage point changes, various details of the board and tape move "behind" the glass and become enlarged.

The works are part of the permanent collection of the Museum of the Fine Arts Research & Holographic Center, devoted exclusively to the new three-dimensional art form.

Other works in the collection include transmission holograms by Sweden's Hans Bjelkhagen, who has trapped women's faces three-dimensionally within his plates with a laser pulse far shorter than one-millionth of a second. The viewer seems to be looking through a window at an actual woman.

There are moving holograms, too, although their technique is less highly perfected. To create them, motion picture footage is holographically transferred to cylindrical diffraction gratings.

When the transparent gratings revolve on their pedestals, the viewer outside sees ghostly three-dimensional images moving within the cylinders. Phantom children wave and beckon; Dracula bares his fangs; a train emerges from a tunnel; a model blows a kiss and winks; columnist Mike Royko poses rigidly, then breaks into a grin.

There are problems with the moving holograms. Their color is untrue and there is sometimes distortion in the motions.

That's fine by Center Executive Director Loren Billings, who doubles as museum tour guide on quiet afternoons.

"Holography is where photography was 140 years ago," she says. "It's an art of the future."

She explains that holography was discovered accidentally in 1948 by Dr. Dennis Gabor of London, but had to wait until the 1960 development of the laser to become practical.

It is not photography, Ms. Billings points out. In photography, light waves darken molecules in various portions of an emulsion to create an image. In holography, interference patterns created in a beam of coherent — usually laser-generated — light impart their information to each molecule of the emulsion, turning each one into a tiny, but complete, image of the recorded object.

If one of Phillips' or Bjelkhagen's lovely and costly plates were shattered, each fragment would contain the whole image captured in the larger original.

The museum is an extension of a school of holography, where students are trained on the expensive equipment and in the painstaking techniques required by the new art. It's also a center where professional photographers expand the frontiers of holography.

Center Research Director John Hoffman, Ms. Billings says, has created a holographic image with an illusory depth of 30 feet — but that's still just the beginning.

She points to the least impressive-looking exhibit in the museum, what appears to be a torn scrap of ordinary photographic film.

That item, Ms. Billings explains, is a fragment of 77-millimeter film from the world's first holographic motion picture. It was produced in the Soviet Union, she says. By a process still not fully understood in the West, it was projected on a specially designed screen in a totally new type of theater.

Soviet Diplomat Urges Cooperation

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — Soviet Ambassador Vladimir Semyonov has called for increased cooperation between West German businessmen and the Soviet Union.

Semyonov, speaking to a group of businessmen and trade officials, said, "Businesses in the Federal Republic of Germany should be more active in seeking out possibilities for cooperation."

He said the Soviet economy will seek trade partners in high-technology areas currently dominated by the Japanese and French, and urged West German businesses to devote more resources to those areas.

Semyonov said trade between West Germany and the Soviet Union last year amounted to $8.7 billion — 1 1/2 times the volume between the Soviet Union and the United States and Japan combined.

Honduras Offers U.S. Military Strategic Base

By MONTE HAYES
Associated Press Writer
TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — During the past year the U.S. armed forces have expanded their presence in this strategically located Central American nation and now have the capability to move swiftly through the region in the event of a military emergency.

President Reagan has denied repeatedly that he plans to "Americanize" the civil war in neighboring El Salvador by sending U.S. troops to fight leftist guerrillas there.

But Americans based in Honduras now fly reconnaissance missions over El Salvador and man radar sites that scan Nicaraguan airspace and waters for aircraft and vessels believed to be carrying supplies to the Salvadoran rebels.

The Reagan administration has chosen this mountainous, sparsely populated nation, wedged between El Salvador and Marxist-led Nicaragua, to draw the line against the spread of leftist revolution in Central America.

Equally important, its pro-American, civilian-elected government has been acceptable to congressmen who must approve military funding.

Since U.S. forces began a series of military maneuvers here in early 1983, they have built or expanded seven airstrips at key locations around the country that would permit rapid deployment of troops from bases in the United States.

They also have operated two radar installations. One of them, at Tiger Island in the Gulf of Fonseca, was used from August 1983 until recently for short-range surveillance of the gulf, which U.S. officials believe is used by Nicaragua to funnel supplies to Salvadoran rebels. Air Force personnel also man a long-range early warning radar system on a mountain southeast of the capitol of Tegucigalpa.

Near Puerto Castilla, an isolated port on the Caribbean coast, 150 Green Berets are training Salvadoran and Honduran troops in counterinsurgency tactics.

The existence of the airstrips and the maneuvers, involving airborne assaults, "demonstrate that the United States can get here in a short time and project considerable military power," said a U.S. official, who spoke on condition he not be identified.

In the latest indication of U.S. military objectives in the region, the Reagan administration said last month that it is seeking congressional approval to spend $4.4 million to build ammunition and fuel depots at two airstrips here.

A Defense Department report said the depots are needed to supply U.S. warplanes in the event of a military emergency in Central America.

Until the report was released, the administration had insisted that the military construction projects in Honduras were designed only for periodic deployment of U.S. forces for training exercises.

The report also said the administration plans to keep sending army intelligence flights from a base in Honduras and continue military training exercises through 1988.

The number of American troops in Honduras peaked last November at more than 5,000 during the six-month Big Pine II maneuvers. Those exercises ended in February, but at least 1,700 American troops stayed on at Palmerola air base, site of the U.S. task force headquarters 50 miles northwest of the capital.

U.S. Bases

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — The United States has built or upgraded seven military airstrips, put up two radar installations and carried out joint exercises in Honduras involving as many as 5,000 American troops since early 1983.

U.S.-built installations in this Central American nation, viewed by the Reagan administration as a centerpiece in its strategy to contain leftist revolution in the region, include:

PALMEROLA AIR BASE — This Honduran base is headquarters for the U.S. joint task force command in charge of American troops taking part in maneuvers. The base has a U.S. military field hospital and is home to the 300-man 224th Intelligence Battalion, which conducts reconnaissance flights over El Salvador. The Reagan administration plans to build ammunition and fuel depots at Palmerola.

EL AGUACATE — Located in a remote valley in thinly populated mountains, the El Aguacate military base is reportedly used by CIA-backed Nicaraguan rebels as a home base for planes that supply their fighters inside Nicaragua.

SAN LORENZO — Army engineers built a 3,000-foot dirt runway capable of accommodating C-130 transport planes and 13 miles of tank traps in the nearby Choluteca area. U.S. defense experts believe any invasion from Nicaragua would be directed through this part of southern Honduras.

Plans call for construction of a 35,000-square-foot warehouse as well as ammunition and fuel depots.

TRUJILLO — U.S. Navy Seabees extended the paved runway at this remote Caribbean coastal town to enable large military transport planes to land. The site is close to a Green Beret training center for Salvadoran and Honduran troops. The Reagan administration has asked for $45 million over fiscal 1984-1985 to expand the center.

PUERTO CASTILLA — The U.S. Southern Command in Panama has proposed spending $160 million to establish a joint U.S.-Honduran naval and air base here.

CUCUYAGUA — Army engineers built a 3,000-foot airfield for use in Granadero I, the latest war games. Cucuyagua is located 25 miles north of El Salvador's Chalatenango province, a longtime rebel stronghold.

JAMAISTRAN — Another 3,000-foot airstrip was built here for the latest maneuvers. Jamaistran is situated less than 20 miles from the Nicaraguan border area where U.S.-funded Nicaraguan rebels are most active.

PUERTO LEMPIRA — U.S. military engineers improved the existing runway during Big Pine I maneuvers in February 1983.

LA CEIBA — The Reagan administration wants to spend $8 million to upgrade the existing runway at this Caribbean banana port, build a parallel runway for U.S. warplanes and install a 30,000-gallon fuel depot.

LA MESA — No U.S. construction has been carried out at this Honduran air base near San Pedro Sula, the country's industrial center. But U.S. military transport planes use the airfield during maneuvers.

CERRO LA MOLE — Air Force personnel man a long-range early warning radar system on this mountain southeast of Tegucigalpa.

TIGER ISLAND — Until recently, U.S. Marines had operated short-range surveillance radar on this island in the Gulf of Fonseca, which is shared by El Salvador, Honduras and Nicaragua. U.S. officials believe Nicaragua uses the gulf to funnel supplies to Salvadoran rebels.

Doctors Protest Italian Measures

ROME (AP) — More than 150,000 doctors in state-run hospitals walked off their jobs in a day-long nationwide strike this week to protest government measures which they said demeaned the medical profession.
 Reports to the Health Ministry indicated nearly all doctors in state-run hospitals joined the strike, and skeleton crews staffed emergency wards.
 Surgeons called off non-urgent operations.
 Unions representing the doctors called the strike, demanding that the government "once again recognize the medical role at the center of national health service."
 They demanded that the government restrict the number of medical students, contending that more than 50,000 doctors are unemployed or underemployed because of a rapid rise in the number of young doctors. The unions said Italy produces 15,000 new doctors every year.

Try the moistest, chewiest, most perfectly baked cookies the world has ever tasted... well, almost.

Of course nothing can beat Mom's homemade cookies. But we've come as close as can be. In fact, we've borrowed a few recipes from her. Just like Mom.

The variety. We have 15 delicious ones. From chocolate chips to fruit sticks to sandwich cookies and more.

Try ALMOST HOME™ cookies. You might think that they're the best cookies you've ever had. But don't tell that to Mom.

We call them Almost Home because that's the way they taste.

we're over-generous with our ingredients. Remember how she always put extra chips in her chocolate chip cookies? And more than enough nuts in her fudge brownies? And the moist and chewy texture? Well, you can find the same things in all of our cookies.

There's one thing we did improve on, though.

How They Voted

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes immediately before and after the Memorial Day recess.

HOUSE

DEBT — The House passed, 211 for and 198 against, and sent to the president a bill (HR 5692) raising the national debt ceiling by $30 billion, to $1.52 trillion. A $2.7 trillion debt may be reached within six years in the absence of major budget-cutting, the Congressional Budget Office estimates.

The House vote gave the Treasury authority to borrow to pay its bills until late June, when Congress will have to further raise the limit. Senators shied away from a record vote when they approved the $30 billion increase.

Supporter Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., said lawmakers had no choice but "to approve the borrowing to pay for the spending we have all voted for."

Opponent William Dannemeyer, R-Calif., said "the people of this country do not want us to increase the debt."

Members voting yes favored a higher debt ceiling. North Carolina representatives voting yes were Walter Jones, D-1; Charles Whitley, D-3; Ike Andrews, D-4; Charles Rose, D-7; W.G. Hefner, D-8; James Martin, R-9; James Broyhill, R-10, and James Clarke, D-11.

Voting no were Tim Valentine, D-2, and Stephen Neal, D-5.

NICARAGUA — By a vote of 241 for and 177 against, the House adopted an amendment to block further military aid this year for the CIA-directed rebels, or contras, who are fighting Nicaragua's Sandinista government. This occurred during debate on an appropriations measure (HJ Res 492) that later was sent to conference with the Senate, which favors President Reagan's request for $21 million in additional fiscal 1984 "covert aid" for the contras.

Supporter Jim Wright, D-Tex., said U.S. dislike of the Marxist Nicaraguan government "does not give us a right to start a war ... to mine their harbors in contravention of international law."

Opponent Robert Michel, R-Ill., said cutting off the aid affects "the entire world" because "our allies will perceive us as weakening in resolve in the fight against the Moscow-Havana-Managua axis."

Members voting yes wanted to end the CIA's guerilla war against Nicaragua.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were Walter Jones, Valentine, Whitley, Ike Andrews, Neal, Britt, Rose, Hefner and Clarke.

Voting no was Broyhill. James Martin did not vote.

WASTE — The House adopted, 324 for and 75 against, an amendment making it difficult for defense contractors to charge taxpayers exorbitant prices for spare military parts and other hardware items. In part, it would give any manufacturer, not just those on "qualified suppliers" lists, a chance to sell parts to the Pentagon.

Supporters recalled well-publicized recent instances of the Pentagon paying $430 for a hammer and $847,000 for a basic tool kit. The amendment was attached to the fiscal 1985 military authorization bill (HR 5167).

Sponsor Berkeley Bedell, D-Iowa, said "we cannot sit idly by and let this waste of taxpayers' money continue."

Opponent Jack Brooks, D-Tex., said "qualified suppliers" lists should be retained "to insure that the (Pentagon) receives thoroughly tested and proven products..."

Members voting yes wanted to cut waste by injecting more price competition into Pentagon procurement.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were Walter Jones, Valentine, Whitley, Ike Andrews, Neal, Britt, Rose, Hefner, James Martin, Broyhill and Clarke.

Voting no: None. Not voting: None.

CIVIL — By a vote of 87 for and 301 against, the House rejected an amendment to prevent spending for civil defense programs that are designed to help the remaining American population cope with a nuclear attack. The amendment to HR 5167 (above) had no effect on civil defense spending unrelated to nuclear war.

Sponsor Richard Ottinger, D-N.Y., called it "dangerous and misguided" for the Administration to implement a civil defense policy that assumes nuclear war is survivable.

Opponent Ken Kramer, R-Colo., noted that the Soviet government has an elaborate program for protecting its citizens from nuclear attack. He said that for the U.S. to appear unprepared might invite a Soviet first strike.

Members voting yes were opposed to civil defense programs based on the calculation that a functional U.S. society would survive a nuclear war.

North Carolina representative Clarke voted yes.

Voting no were Walter Jones, Valentine, Whitley, Ike Andrews, Neal, Britt, Rose, Hefner, James Martin, and Broyhill.

Not voting: None.

SENATE

WILKINSON — By a vote of 36 for and 54 against, the Senate defeated a motion to return the nomination of J. Harvie Wilkinson III to the Judiciary Committee for further scrutiny of his qualifications to become a Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals judge.

Wilkinson, a 39-year-old University of Virginia law professor, has participated only once in a courtroom preceding, for the purpose of filing a motion, according to Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H. The nominee's supporters noted his background as Justice Department attorney and clerk to Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. Senators voting yes consider Wilkinson too inexperienced to become a federal circuit judge and want further hearings on his qualifications. Both John East and Jesse Helms voted no.

FOCUS

D-Day Decoy

The Allied invasion of Normandy on June 6, 1944 — D-Day — succeeded in part because of a huge practical joke. To cover up their plans, the Allies set up a "pretend" military base across the English Channel from Calais, France, NOT Normandy. They let the Germans "intercept" messages saying the invasion would be in July, NOT June. The real attack caught the Germans off guard, giving the Allies an advantage.

DO YOU KNOW — What German word, meaning "lightning war", described Hitler's use of sudden and repeated attacks?

TUESDAY'S ANSWER — The largest tropical rain forest is in South America.

Hong Kong Says Wants Autonomy

HONG KONG (AP) — Many of Hong Kong's residents say they want a chance to govern themselves before China takes over in 1997.

Hong Kong is a British colony and its government is in the hands of a crown-appointed governor who presides over Executive and Legislative Councils, which also are appointed.

But some local leaders say that turning power over to the locals in a representative form of government would prove to Peking that the people here are capable of running their own affairs and, they hope, minimize Communist China's administrative role and any changes it might plan for Hong Kong's capitalistic system.

"If we cannot establish democracy in Hong Kong during this 13-year transitional period, there would be no basis for our future government beyond 1997," Dr. Ding Lik-kiu, chairman of the Christian Industrial Committee, said in an interview. Ding's committee helps promote workers' welfare here.

China has promised that Hong Kong, which has been under British colonial rule since 1842, will be allowed to retain its existing capitalistic lifestyle for at least 50 years beyond 1997, the year Britain's lease on Hong Kong's New Territories expires. Hong Kong Island and Kowloon, ceded by China to Britain in the last century, would be returned to Chinese sovereignty.

Peking has said Hong Kong will become an autonomous territory of China and a mini-constitution will be drafted to permit local residents to run the territory.

But many among the 5.5 million residents fear that Peking may not keep its word should there be another political upheaval on the mainland similar to those that have swept China periodically since the Communists came to power in 1949.

Civic leaders and other groups say that for Hong Kong to survive it needs a democratic form of government that will preserve the prosperity and stability that have made the colony the world's third largest financial center. They also question whether a capitalistic society can function under Communist rule.

"The future Hong Kong government must be a democratic and elected government, truly representative of and accountable to the people of Hong Kong," said a recent statement issued by a group of young intellectuals and professionals known as the Hong Kong Observer. "There will be no place for an appointment system after 1997 because Peking would be the only party who could appoint."

Once the people of Hong Kong prove they can govern themselves, then "there is a good chance for the territory to become a really autonomous region" as proposed by China, says Dr. Jao Yu-ching, a political scientist at the University of Hong Kong.

Adding to local jitters is the secrecy that Chinese and British negotiators have maintained in talks begun 20 months ago for an agreement on Hong Kong's future.

Hong Kong is not represented in the talks because China contends the population, 98 percent Chinese, is its responsibility.

Britain and China have said Hong Kong residents will have a chance to comment on the agreement before it is formally approved. But many here fear it might be too late then and they should take their own action now.

In one such move, unofficial members of the law-making Legislative Council and policy-making Executive Council traveled to London in early May to lobby for a residual British presence here after China's takeover. They also seek to have the British government allow Hong Kong residents who hold Hong Kong-British passports to emigrate to Britain after 1997.

Political scientist Jao described the London trip as "successful in reflecting fears and concerns of certain sections of the people here" but said "it failed to mention the most important thing — democratization."

There are no elected members on either council. The Executive Council has six official and 11 unofficial members while the Legislative Council consists of 18 officials and 29 unofficials. The officials are heads of various colonial government departments. The unofficial members, mostly successful businessmen, industrialists and professionals, are appointed by the government.

Baptists Cite Family Change

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Southern Baptist specialists say churches had better begin accepting single-parent families as OK because by 1990 nearly half of all households in the United States will be maintained by one parent or one person.

Research by Paul C. Glick, an Arizona State University sociologist and former demographer for the U.S. Census Bureau, was cited, indicating dramatic increases in the 1980s of households headed by singles and single parents.

The fates have all the worst of it. Not only do we rail against them when they treat us unkindly, but we often take them to task when we ourselves are the culprits.

South had a minimum opening bid and showed it by passing East's intervention in the auction. North described his game-going hand with a cue-bid, and his side duly arrived at four hearts. Note that West could have made life more difficult for his opponents had he raised the overcall, and that a sacrifice of four spades would fare well if declarer guesses the club position.

West led a spade and declarer was soon down. He won the ace, drew trumps in three rounds and tried to run diamonds. When that suit broke 4-2, declarer started on clubs. But the defenders led a spade each time they won a club trick, and declarer could muster only nine tricks. He complained about his luck when actually the hand had behaved very kindly.

This situation crops up frequently. Drawing three rounds of trumps is just one too many! Correct technique after winning the ace of spades is to take just two top trumps in hand, leaving the king in dummy. If one opponent shows out, declarer will have to draw the remaining trumps and fall back on an even diamond distribution. But when both follow, the hand is cold if diamonds are no worse than 4-2.

Declarer abandons trumps in favor of cashing the king-ace of diamonds. He then ruffs a diamond high, crosses back to the board with the king of hearts, and then takes two discards on the diamonds. True, this gives up a possible overtrick, but the contract is secure.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. For a copy, send $1.75 to "Goren-Four Deal," care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07048. Make checks payable to Newspaperbooks.

Czechs Expel British Officials

LONDON (AP) — The Foreign Office says Czechoslovakia has ordered the expulsion of two British Embassy officials in Prague, a month after Britain expelled two Czechoslovak diplomats.

A Foreign Office statement said Czechoslovakia's deputy foreign minister, Jaromir Johanes, ordered the two men out for "activities incompatible with their mission" — diplomatic language for spying. They were given two weeks to leave.

The Foreign Office identified the two as Desmond Lauder, assistant cultural attache, and Edward Brown, a member of the embassy's administrative staff.

"The expulsions are unjustified and clearly in retaliation for the British expulsion of two Czechs last month," the statement said.

On May 22, Britain announced it had expelled two Czechoslovak Embassy officials earlier in the month for "activities incompatible with their status." Czechoslovakia said Britain's "insolent action" was part of a U.S.-orchestrated campaign against the Soviet bloc.
