Latham Scholar Named

Martha Brown Rollins of Route 1, Bethel, has been selected as the first winner of the newly-established Latham Scholarship, an endowment that totals $4,000 per recipient.

Miss Rollins is a senior at North Pitt High School and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Rollins. At North Pitt she has been active in the Science Club, Math Club, Spanish Club, National Honor Society and varsity volleyball team. She placed first in the Pitt County Math Contest in algebra I in 1983, attended Governor's School and served as a marshall her junior year. She currently works part time in a laboratory at the East Carolina University Medical School. Miss Rollins plans to attend North Carolina State University in the fall.

The Latham Scholarship was established by Dr. and Mrs. Bryan Latham in early June, 1984, to honor their parents, Walter C. Latham and Daisy Lee Carson Latham of Bethel. It is available to seniors at North Pitt High School from the Bethel, Belvoir, Carolina or Pactolus townships who have a college board score of over 1,000, are ranked in the top 10 percent of the senior class and are single and without children.

Recipients are awarded a $1,000 per year stipend renewable for four years. According to scholarship officials, winners are selected on the basis of academic excellence, leadership potential, evidence of physical fitness, community, church and (Please turn to page 12)

Free World Leaders Set For Major Talks

LONDON (AP) — Leaders of seven major industrialized nations gathered here today for a three-day economic summit where the issues of war in the Persian Gulf and international politics will vie with financial concerns.

President Reagan returned to London Wednesday from commemorations in France of the 40th anniversary of D-Day. Joining him at the summit are Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain and leaders of Japan, France, West Germany, Italy and Canada.

The summit formally starts with a reception in 16th-century St. James's Palace, hosted by Mrs. Thatcher and the Duke of Kent. The heads of state and government then go to a "working dinner" at Mrs. Thatcher's residence at No. 10 Downing St.

Foreign and finance ministers are also participants in the summit, but they were not invited to the dinner hosted by Mrs. Thatcher.

Although the first real business of the meeting begins Friday, with talks at Lancaster House, the working dinners today will set the tone for the 10th such summit. The first was in 1975.

Mrs. Thatcher, who has said she wants a "relaxed and informal" but still "workmanlike" summit, has decreed that political issues will be discussed over meals and economic concerns at formal sessions.

High U.S. interest rates, the woes of debtor nations, trade protectionism and strategies to nurture economic recovery without encouraging inflation will be high on the list of issues for discussion.

Among the subjects which will likely dominate the dinner sessions will be the 45-month-old war between Iraq and Iran, which in recent weeks has broadened to include attacks on oil tankers and other vessels in the Persian Gulf. About 20 percent of the non-Communist world's oil is transported through the gulf, and Japan gets two-third of its oil supplies from that region.

For weeks, the United States and its allies have been in close consultation about the gulf war, in hope that diplomacy can resolve the crisis.

One of Mrs. Thatcher's aides who helped prepare the summit said the leaders will discuss "how to end the Iraq-Iran war, if not how to contain it, and if not how to minimize the damage."

Other political topics will be the frigid state of East-West relations, probably with reports from West Germany's foreign minister, Hans-Dietrich Genscher, who was in Moscow last month, and Sir Geoffrey Howe, Britain's foreign secretary who plans a trip there in July.

No Decision On Runoff

Candidates for the seat from the 6th House District — which includes Bethel and Carolina townships in Pitt County, Hertford County, and portions of Martin and Bertie Counties — are still waiting for a ruling from the State Board of Elections to determine whether there will be a runoff or a new primary election.

L.M. "Mutt" Brinkley of Ahoskie, led the three-way race in the May 8 primary with 3,432 votes, while Joe Parker, an Ahoskie publisher, placed second with 2,973 votes. William D. Harrison of Williamston, finished third with 2,968 votes.

Parker, who placed second in all the counties, called for a runoff with Brinkley. But Harrison, who placed first in the balloting in Pitt and Martin counties, challenged the results of the election.

Third Graders Get On-Site Data In Outdoor Classes

By ANGELA LINGERFELT
Reflector Staff Writer

Third-graders in Greenville schools spent last week dipping elodea from ponds, observing rattlesnakes and copperheads, and learning the differences between laurel oaks and overcup oaks.

These outdoor science classes, held at River Park North, were coordinated by the Triad Enrichment Program and were designed to allow students to learn first-hand about subjects studied in their textbooks.

"Instead of seeing trees in a book, the kids had a chance to see them and touch them," Mary Holt Kitchin, one of the program's coordinators, said.

Before the students from Elmhurst, Sadie Saulter, Third Street and Eastern schools participated in the outdoor program, they were prepared in class for a month.

"The subjects studied at River Park tied in directly with lessons in class which provided background experiences in outdoor science activities," Mary Ruth Spagnolo of the Triad Enrichment Program said.

Preparatory lessons included looking at a small part of a large habitat on the schools' playgrounds, designing habitats and observation of plants and clouds.

Mike Dunn, eastern district naturalist with the N.C. State Parks office, gave a speech to the students about flora and fauna habitats of eastern North Carolina. Dr. Mark Brinson of the East Carolina University Department of Biology told the children about habitats for wildlife.

When the students arrived at the park, they were divided into groups of 10-12 which rotated from station to station.

The first station, taught by parent volunteer Amy Hannan, gave the students insight on food webs. Each student pretended to be a specific animal that he had researched about in an earlier class assignment, then explained to the group what he was and what he ate. Ms. Hannan stressed predator/prey and producer/consumer interactions.

One little boy, who was supposed to be a chicken, thought for a while and quipped, "Chicken eats corn and corn eats ground."

At the next station, taught by Ms. Kitchin, the children learned to identify trees according to their leaves. After finding four different (Please turn to page 12)

Medical-Related Firms Sought

John Chaffee, executive director of the Pitt County Development Commission, recently attended the Medical Devices and In Vitro Diagnostic Manufacturing Conference in New York as a representative of the N.C. Department of Commerce in an effort to attract medical-related industries to establish new manufacturing plants in the state.

"It will be some time before we can accurately judge the full value of our efforts, but we had an opportunity to speak with representatives of at least 70 different firms during the conference," Chaffee said, and "several indicated they had very definite expansion plans" and wanted information on North Carolina.

"We're hopeful the face-to-face contact we had with top-level company officials will give us (Pitt County) an inside track once they initiate their site selection process," Chaffee said.

According to Chaffee, the presence of the East Carolina University School of Medicine, Pitt County Memorial Hospital and a mix of skilled, semi-skilled and unskilled labor available in Pitt County give the county advantages over other areas of the state.

While labor, transportation and utility factors still carry more weight in the site selection process, companies are placing greater emphasis on quality of life factors such as climate, schools and cultural amenities that in the past, Chaffee

Debates To Follow On Algerian Law Governing Women

By JOELLE STOLZ
Associated Press Writer

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Until the law is changed, Algerian wives have no say in the education of their male children after the age of 10.

Conservative opposition to modernizing family law in Algeria has stalled parliamentary debate on radical changes proposed by the government of President Chadli Bendjedid.

The obstruction forced the government to withdraw a proposed new family code which had been under discussion by the National People's Assembly since 1981.

A revised draft, to be debated later this year, is somewhat closer to ancient Islamic custom. Yet, if adopted, it would break with tradition for the first time in allowing women the unrestricted right to own property separately from their husbands, to initiate divorce proceedings, to claim alimony and to claim custody of their children.

Although Algerian women played a substantial role in the eight-year-long war against French colonial rule, the subsequent "socialist revolution" in independent Algeria did not bring true liberation to women in all regions and social levels of the North African Arab nation.

The government has made no serious attempt to abolish male polygamy, tolerated by the French throughout their 130 years of colonial rule. But the new proposals make polygamy more difficult by requiring a judge's approval for each additional marriage, and allowing the first wife to appeal against the decision — or sue for divorce if it is upheld.

Government efforts to abolish or reduce sex discrimination have long been obstructed by the male-dominated and tradition-bound Algerian society.

Algeria is a one-party state, but the ruling National Liberation Front is itself sharply divided on the issue, with a majority of politicians from rural areas objecting to some of the government's proposed reforms.

Under existing family laws, virtually unchanged since the end of French colonial rule, women do not enjoy full property and inheritance rights, have no say in bringing up their male children over the age of 10 and cannot sue for divorce at will.

In the early years following Algeria's 1962 independence, the government brought free public education to all parts of the country — even remote rural areas where the French never maintained a school. But it took many more years to persuade some fathers to allow their daughters to attend school.

In rural areas, where more than 80 percent of adult women remain illiterate, it is still common for a girl to be forced by her family to quit school as soon as she reaches puberty — to avoid her associating freely with boys.

At the same time, the more extreme forms of social discrimination are gradually disappearing from the cities. More and more women are qualifying as lawyers, doctors, teachers and engineers, or find employment in offices, factories and shops. There are two women ministers in Bendjedid's cabinet.

Fewer and fewer women in cities wear the "haik," an Algerian version of the Islamic veil, consisting of a lace-trimmed white cloth tied securely over the lower part of the face. Those who still wear the haik are mostly elderly, and from the poorer classes.

The veil continues to be widely worn by Arab women in rural areas, though it is almost unknown among the country's Berber minority.

In the cities, teen-age girls in tight-fitting blue jeans no longer attract hostile comments from passing men, though Islamic fundamentalists in sermons and pamphlets often thunder against the growing laxity of female dress. Two decades ago, it would have been unthinkable for an Algerian woman to appear in public wearing trousers of any kind.

A recent Algerian film, widely acclaimed in France, has focused new interest on the fate of women in rural Algeria. The film, "Sandstorm" by Mohamed Lakhdar Hamina, throws a harsh light on the customary right of Algerian men to rape their wives with impunity, to repudiate them by pronouncing the ritual formula "go away" three times, to display public evidence of wives' virginity after the wedding night and to beat them savagely for giving birth to a girl.

In the nation's modern capital, Algiers, and in other large cities, such practices are disappearing with the spread of female education. Yet two areas of city life remain barred to women by conventions that not even the most emancipated women dare to defy: the cafes that are the hub of much of Algeria's social life, and the streets after nightfall.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Dear Abby

Her New Beginning Is Also Happy Ending

DEAR ABBY: I want to thank you for some advice I read in your column. A young man about to be married was afraid his divorced mother wouldn't attend his wedding if his father was invited. You advised him to invite both parents, and let each parent accept or decline.

I was in the same predicament, and I followed that advice. Both parents were invited, and both accepted and came with their respective spouses. Abby, it was the first time my parents had set eyes on each other since their divorce 12 years before.

We wanted to make them as comfortable as possible, so at the wedding dinner we seated them at tables on opposite sides of the room. We also placed them at opposite sides of the receiving line. They were more than civil to each other. This was the first time in 12 years our whole family was together!

At first I was afraid to follow your suggestion because I thought for sure if my mother knew my father was going to be there with his second wife, she would refuse to attend. I was wrong. Everybody came, and it turned out to be the most wonderful day of my life. I will never forget it. Thank you!
NO PROBLEMS HERE

DEAR NO PROBLEMS: The advice applies to all family gatherings. Instead of eliminating one person because he or she doesn't get along with a relative, invite everyone, and let those who don't want to attend stay home. You should not be forced to make a choice. Let them make it.

pened to an acquaintance of mine. Her little 2-year-old daughter climbed up on the couch, wrapped the venetian blind cord around her little neck and jumped off the couch. Can you imagine the horror of finding your beloved child hanging by a cord around her neck, blue and virtually lifeless? Fortunately this child survived with minimal damage—if there is such a thing as "minimal damage" after such a terrible ordeal.

Abby, please, please urge all people who have little ones in their care to secure all such cords, and never place a crib or playpen within reach of any such danger.

It is frightening that I was unaware of the danger of the common toilet bowl, until I read Dear Abby. I hope you will print this because there are many people who read you who might not be aware of how dangerous a drapery or window blind cord can be. Thank you, Abby.
STILL LEARNING

CONFIDENTIAL TO M.L.H.: You are not a "terrible" person. Others share your feelings. Clarence Darrow said it this way: "The first half of our lives are ruined by our parents, and the second half by our children."

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

An article I read the other day said there is absolutely no reason to regard the middle years as a period of crisis.

Although your friends are dying, your health is deteriorating, your ambitions are unfulfilled, the decisions made years ago are causing limited current options, you're lonely, depressed and neurotic, there is a bright spot to this period.

Your memory is gone. That IS good news!

Frankly, I was worried. I used to be so good at remembering what's-her-name (you'd think I'd remember the woman who gave birth to me, wouldn't you?), but now everything is a struggle. I used to envy older women who married younger men. After all, a younger man in my life would tell me what I am doing standing in front of the refrigerator with the door open. He would supply missing words to my sentences like Ed Asner, croissant, James Michener and artichoke. Every time I would pause searching for a word and say, "You know" . . . he would.

I tried for awhile to regard the loss of memory as a . . . not bonus, but it means the same thing . . . but the mind was so selective. I couldn't remember to buy salt when I'd been out of it for two solid weeks, but I could recall every rotten thing the kids ever did, book, chapter and verse. I was the only guest on "The Tonight Show" who had to write the name of the book she was promoting on her fingernail. Yet I could remember the phone number in our first apartment.

My husband said my mind was on overload, but that's not true. I purposely cleared it of things I didn't want to remember, like where the fusebox is located, what weight of oil goes into the car, and how I'm supposed to record checks in the checkbook, but it didn't help much.

I think the problem of being blessed with a faltering memory is how to convince everyone else how lucky you are. Somehow they don't see it as a . . . what in the world IS that word that means the same as bonus . . . oh, well. When I don't remember to bring the salad out of the refrigerator until we're eating dessert or I spend half of my life looking for my glasses, all I see is pity in their eyes.

The other day, for example, I went crazy trying to remember the name of Gene Hackman. When I remembered it, I couldn't remember what I wanted with it. Like I told my husband, "I'm going through a very good period of my . . ."

"Life," he said.

Closing The Ranks

The candidate-selecting time is a thing of the past for North Carolina Democrats. The ticket has been decided.

It has been a long and gruelling campaign for winners and losers; and the winners have yet to win election. For most it will be less difficult than winning nomination by the party, and this is why: the primary process serves to establish names and faces in the minds of the electorate, and among the electorate are those who will remember promises and implied promises. That part of the election process has been achieved by Democrat nominees.

At the top of the state ticket are Rufus Edmisten and Bob Jordan. As the flag-bearer in the coming election Edmisten is already making a point of trying to heal any wounds that remain in the wake of a hard-fought run-off for the party's candidate for governor. An olive-branch was extended to Eddie Knox even as Edmisten was celebrating his victory. It was timely as well as proper.

However, as we are often reminded, both Knox and Edmisten were and are Democrats. Their campaign themes were almost identical in terms of policy for the future. Differences were largely on the point of who would best carry out the platform. Voting Democrats (the best kind) narrowly gave the nod to their attorney general.

There is no reason to think Knox cannot support his erstwhile rival; and that's a good thing, too.

North Carolina Republicans have their own ace-in-the-hole with Congressman Jim Martin as their candidate for governor. Somewhere we have read the GOP looks on Martin as the hottest prospect in many years — perhaps even a better candidate than was Jim Holshouser (who won the office in 1973).

Numerically, Democrats enjoy a safe majority, so party unity and getting out the vote will be major factors in November. Edmisten knows it. Knox knows it. Democrats across the state know it. There will be a massive closing of ranks — watch it happen.

Rest Of The Story

Maybe it's time to re-evaluate the term "an escape-proof prison," especially in light of events since the past weekend at the Mecklenburg Correction Center in Boydton, Va.

Six very desperate men, all of them killers and presumed capable of killing again, made good on an escape plan which included "homemade" knives (made in the prison); there was a bomb hoax, which stretches one's imagination how custodians in a maximum security center could believe inmates had access to explosives ... and they amazingly departed in a van which a reporter said "the guards provided."

There has to be more to it than those scraps of information thus far available. Maybe the guards didn't believe in "maximum security" centers.

Legend has it there may have been only one for-sure escape-proof prison in this country; that would be Alcatraz. It housed this country's most dangerous criminals from 1933 until it closed in 1963. There were several attempted escapes, and never a proven one.

The island of Alcatraz was in San Francisco Bay ... more than a mile of cold, rough water separated it from the mainland. The dangerous tides and currents were a deterrent, as were whispers of man-eating sharks in the neighborhood. Too, guards well knew if they did their job there could be no escape.

We are inclined to think there is a big untold story about how the six inmates escaped their Virginia correctional center, and we look forward to the rest of the story.

WASHINGTON — Actor Dan Ackroyd has called it "trash and garbage." Judy Jacklin Belushi has filed suit to block unauthorized publication of photos of her husband. And many of the author's colleagues here are downgrading "the book" in private.

The focus of their criticism is reporter Bob Woodward's latest effort, "Wired: The Short Life and Fast Times of John Belushi" (Simon and Schuster, $17.95), that began serialization in newspapers throughout the nation recently.

Despite its gossipy and occasionally moralistic tone, however, "Wired" is a generally accurate commentary about a large segment of Americans who, like Belushi, are blowing success up their noses. It is a story about making money, yet it is also one of how it's spent by a now affluent generation.

In reading "Wired," one can't help but detect an unhealthy correlation between a sudden rise in personal income and one's troubles. In 1977, at the age of 28, Belushi earned $35,000 for appearing in "Animal House." For his last movie, which was in the works when he died in 1982, he was promised almost $2 million.

During this five-year period, Belushi's addiction increased proportionally. He spent $200 a week during his early days on "Saturday Night Live," and later up to several thousand dollars a week to sustain his hard living.

It was a lifestyle he took to his grave. "On Friday morning, Jan. 8 (1982), John (Belushi) and Bill Wallace (Belushi's body-guard/trainer) took two first-class seats on United Flight No. 5 to Los Angeles," writes Woodward. "They were picked up about 2:30 p.m. by a limousine and taken to the Chateau Marmont, a hotel which looks like a French Norman castle, perched high above Sunset Boulevard in the center of Hollywood. John checked into room 69, rented a maroon Mercedes-Benz 380 SL sports car for $85 a day and drove to On The Rox, where he bought drinks for people who stopped by — six Alabama Slammers, eight shots of Johnnie Walker Black. He ran up a $152 bill and added a $200 tip."

Belushi's personal story has its imitators, if on a less grand scale. The mimickers are thousands of successful young adults who are showing that middle-class drug use may reflect a surfeit of disposable income.

Government statistics suggest that a majority of the 5 million steady cocaine users, who pay up to $100 for a gram, fall within the boundaries of the Baby Boom generation. Most of the 5,000 Americans who sample cocaine for the first time each week are from this generation, too. High school users, like the 12 dismissed this spring from John F. Kennedy's alma mater, Choate, for importing huge quantities of coke, are in the minority.

Jeff Shore, an administrator at a national cocaine hotline at the Fair Oaks Hospital in Summit, N.J., says that the average male caller to his hotline, which receives 1,000 calls a day, spends $550 a week on cocaine. "Though our callers, most of whom are in their late 20s, earn between $25,000 and $50,000 a year, they still complain about how they have no financial control over their lives," Shore told us.

Money magazine editor Landon Y. Jones suggests their generation is given to quick fixes rather than long-term benefits and security.

"For this generation the savings rate has been much lower than that of any previous group," Jones contends. "They'll make choices that will seem very puzzling to older people. Often their definition of what's a necessity and what's a luxury differs radically from their parents'."

Indeed, to many users cocaine is nothing more than a top-grade Scotch, a BMW sports car, a ski trip in Austria — in other words, the kind of expense that otherwise unburdened affluence makes affordable.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Easter Sunday I was among eight people, calling ourselves the Pershing Plowshares, who cut through a fence on the grounds of Martin-Marietta's bomb plant in Orlando, Fla. We went in search of components of the Pershing 2 missile — a first-strike nuclear weapon which the United States is deploying in West Germany despite the tremendous resistance of the European people.

Not more than 10-15 yards from the fence was a sheetmetal warehouse with large block letters on the door stating: "Pershing Kit Area." We opened one kit, removed several components, hammered on them and poured our own blood from baby bottles on them. We left behind photographs of people we love — our children, spouses, friends — all of them destined to nuclear death if the arms race is allowed to continue.

Our act of disarmament lasted about five minutes. We intentionally limited our conversion of the Pershing 2's because we knew that full disarmament can only take place when people change their hearts. We had symbolically enflamed the prophet's command to "beat swords into plowshares."

We then gathered together in prayer and song celebrating the resurrection of Jesus Christ. About 45 minutes later we were discovered by armed security officers. Immediately sensing our non-violence, no guns were drawn. We were left to pray and sing for two more hours before being arrested.

I am being held in the Orange County Jail awaiting trial on charges ranging from conspiracy to destruction of government property. A prison sentence is likely.

Until all people are willing to live in a world without swords, there will always be violence and war. We must base our lives on love, faith in God and trust; until then disarmament is a pipe dream. The Pershing Plowshares are willing to live in a world without nuclear weapons. We hope our actions will enlighten and strengthen others to recognize the signs of the times, that all may resist doom and choose "existence" — choose life.

To the editor:

Seventy-five years ago Clifford Beers wrote to his fiancée, Clara: This day "will be one of our great days. The event of today will shape and hasten the complete realization of our destiny."

Just seven years earlier he had been beaten, kicked, starved and choked at the Connecticut Hospital for the Insane. There he had been stripped of his outer garments, confined to a small, cold room with no bed and no ventilation for weeks. He did not bathe and seldom had enough water or food. Patients were treated this way routinely, he said, for little or no reason.

It was out of this nightmare that his dream was born: to tell the world of the cruelty and subhuman conditions of the Connecticut Hospital and to insure that no person suffering from a mental illness anywhere would ever be subjected to such atrocities again.

He wrote the book, "A Mind That Found Itself," telling the wretched tale of his confinement. But the most important step would be the creation in 1909 of a national organization that would protect the rights of people with a mental illness, educate the public about mental illnesses and promote research into the causes, prevention, treatment and cure of mental disorders — the National Society of Mental Hygiene. This organization was followed by a network of state associations which carried out the policies and direction of the national body as well as establishing and implementing statewide programs and activities.

Clifford Beers died in 1943. His dream lives on through the work of the National Mental Health Association, improved conditions in state mental hospitals, the creation of the National Institute of Mental Health, and the creation of community mental health care centers, as well as some 650 mental health associations all over the United States.

Using What You've Got

The TV network program schedulers are becoming more ingenious with each passing season.

The other day I walked into a TV production center and I saw a man sweeping up all kinds of videotape from the floor. I thought he was a janitor, but he turned out to be a vice president in charge of "Creative Programming."

"Why are you sweeping the floor?" I asked him.

"There are a lot of good shows here," he said. "I'm looking for TV bloopers and gaffes that I can put together for next week's special."

"You mean mistakes people made that were left on the cutting room floor?"

"You got it. The outtakes of the goofs have now become more popular than the shows themselves. The audience loves them and it doesn't cost us a dime. The trouble is that we've used up so many real goofs that we may soon have to start producing fresh ones just for our show."

"You mean you want people to purposely make mistakes when they're doing a straight program so you can use them on your program?"

"That's correct. We sent out a memo to our news departments and production companies to mess up as much as possible so we can use the foulups on our special. And we're now writing into our contracts that a TV performer has to produce three bloopers for every straight spot that can be aired."

"You've really come up with a cheap form of entertainment."

"All the networks have gotten into the act. No one believed there was gold in all the screwups on TV."

He finished sweeping the floor and handed the videotape to an editor. Then he said, "I have to check on whose birthday is coming up so we can do a special honoring the person."

"I notice there have been a lot of shows featuring old-time TV personalities lately."

"It's a big business. You find some star from the Fifties and Sixties and you give a dinner for him and then you invite all his friends to appear for nothing to say funny things about the person, and you can fill up an hour and a half of prime time. The only one we have to pay is the caterer."

"You have to be a creative genius to think of an idea like that."

"That's what we're paid for."

He took me into the TV library where the staff was going through old tapes. "That group over there is working on a 'Best of Comedy' special, that one over there is splicing 'The Most Memorable Plays in Baseball,' and the third group is preparing a show strictly devoted to TV car crashes. There is no end to how many shows are in this library, and if each special costs more than $800 I'll eat my Nielsen printout."

"Holding down costs seems to be the name of the game in TV."

"You use what you've got. I'm not organizing all our soap operas to compete in the TV 'Soap Olympics.'

But our biggest special this year will be a mud wrestling match between the principals of 'Dynasty' and 'Dallas.' If I can arrange it we're talking about a 45 share in the ratings."

"Are you working on any new shows?"

"What do you mean new? The material may be old, but the concepts are original. Anyone can create a brand new show, but it takes imagination to recycle what you've shown already."

We went outside and the vice president started going through the trash can.

"What are you looking for?" I asked him.

"You never can tell what shows are in here, until you hit the bottom of the barrel."

Strength For Today

Anyone who has bought much silver knows that there are two important varieties of it: sterling and plated. Sterling silver is pure, solid silver all the way through. Plated silver has a thin layer of silver over copper or some other metal. After hard use the silver sometimes wears off and the copper shows through. But plated silver is cheaper to make, and so sterling silver costs more.

Human beings come in both plated and solid varieties too. It's generally not hard to identify the plated person. When the first crisis comes up, the first test of character, the first situation demanding sacrifice, the copper is apt to show through pretty quickly.

It takes longer to identify the sterling person. And, like silver, it costs much more to be the sterling person in terms of honesty, integrity, patience, and unselfishness. But in the end, there is no comparison with the cheaper product.

Trip Arranged

The Farmville Community Charity Club is sponsoring a trip to King's Dominion June 16. Cost will be $10 for a roundtrip ticket and the bus will leave from Bennett Memorial Park in Farmville at 6 a.m. For information, call 355-2439.

State Treasurer

Dawn Forbes, an eighth-grade student at Wellcome Middle School, has been elected state secretary of the Career Exploration Clubs of North Carolina.

Dawn Forbes

Miss Forbes is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Forbes of Belvoir. She was elected at the recent state CECNC convention, attended by members of the Wellcome Middle Career Exploration Club and school advisors.

NCSU Dean's List

Slides Shown

A lecture-slide presentation on a trip to Russia was given recently by Nellvena Duncan Eutsler to Alberta Potter's sixth grade students at Wahl-Coates Elementary School. The students also viewed artifacts Mrs. Eutsler collected in Russia — children's books, wooden Matruska dolls, handmade lace and scarves.

Mrs. Eutsler, a retired professor of English at East Carolina University, is conducting research in materials for children in the field of science. She has shared facts about elementary schools in Russia with students and teachers in Greenville.

Orchestra Program

Scholarships to the summer orchestra program for students in Pitt County and Greenville schools have been awarded to 24 students — eight from county schools and 16 from the city. Scholarship recipients are:

- Pitt County — Cindy Edwards and Kathy Dail, A. G. Cox School; Kahamele Yousseff and Ehyan Yousseff, Chicod; Johnny Crisp and Jennie Flake, Farmville Middle; Jackie Hawkins, H. B. Sugg, and Christy Godley, G. R. Whitfield.

- Greenville — Beth Anthony, Laura Barnes, Geoffrey Clayton, Robyn Galloway, Ericka Hill, Dawn Ingram, Christa Osswald, Jesse Wigent, Tani-Shae Adams, Lisa Harper, Scott Hobson, Edwin Manning, Sammy Mullis, Rehelle Pre-witt, Paula Song, and Amy Rayle.

The program, directed by Candace Dixon, is open to all string students in the Greenville-Pitt County area, grades 5-9. The program will be held August 6-17 at Immanuel Baptist Church.

UNC-A Scholarship

Mechio Kornegay of Simpson has been awarded a basketball scholarship and a University Minority Grant in Academics from the University of North Carolina-Asheville.

The daughter of Burnis and Lillian Kornegay of Simpson, she will have virtually all of her college expenses paid through the two scholarships.

Miss Kornegay, a member of the D.H. Conley High School team, will play in the East-West all-star game July 24 in Greensboro.

Program Adopted

Greenville Utilities Commission has implemented a policy to help troubled employees as part of the employee assistance program of the Pitt County Mental Health Center.

Ed Askew serves as administrator and Evonne Boyd is the program coordinator. The program is designed to identify, motivate and refer for assistance employees with personal or medical problems that contribute to declining job performance. Education sessions are offered and employees can request individual participation for themselves. Individual businesses and agencies can contract the Mental Health Center to provide the service for employees. For information, call Lorraine Shinn at the center, 752-7151.

Musical Program

A musical program will be presented at Mills Chapel Free Will Baptist Church tonight at 8 by Sister Shelly Langley.

Sunday Service

An appreciation service will be held at 7 p.m. Sunday at First Timothy Free Will Baptist Church, 1104 Douglas Ave. with Bishop J.N. Gilbert in charge.

Request Approved

Police Capt. D.R. Bullock has announced approval of a request by the Simpson Rural Fire Department Ladies Auxiliary to conduct a door-to-door solicitation through July 15 to raise funds to rebuild the department's building that was destroyed during a tornado.

Chapter President

Kerry Caruso was installed as 1984-85 president of the D.H. Conley Mu Alpha Theta chapter at a recent candlelight induction service.

Other new officers are: vice president, Carla Snow; secretary, Michele Halby; treasurer, Angela Bunn, and parliamentarian, Anita Lloyd.

The organization, which requires a student to maintain an A average in general math classes or a B average in college preparatory math courses, inducted 13 new members. They are Michele Halby, Mary Ellen Lyons, Carl Dunn, Phillip Dickerson, Michael Elks, Chris Haddock, Jean Ringer, Patti Keeter, Roy Lewis, Renee Rice, Sandra Staton and Michelle Waters.

House Entered

Greenville police are investigating a burglary at 809 S. Washington St. which was reported about 12:47 a.m. today.

Officer B.W. Lewis said entrance to the home was gained through a rear window and $20 in cash was taken.

Nigeria Press Faces Restraints

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Two journalists of Nigeria's leading newspaper have gone on trial before a military tribunal on charges of publishing false reports on the new military regime's diplomatic appointments.

Diplomatic correspondent Tunde Thompson and assistant news editor Nduka Irabor of the daily Guardian are the first detainees in a government crackdown on Nigeria's once freewheeling press.

Budworms Threat

Tobacco budworms pose the greatest threat during the May 30-June 17 period, according to Mitch Smith, Pitt extension agent.

"Infestations of 50 percent or more have been reported in Brunswick, Sampson and Lenoir counties," Smith said. "Treatment is recommended when 10 percent of the plants are infested with live worms. Best results are obtained when plants are sprayed when buds are open."

Smith recommended spraying with any of the following: Bactospeine, Bactur, Dipel, Sok-Bt, Stangard and Thuricide.

Hart, Jackson: The Fight Isn't Over Yet

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic Party leaders are pressuring Gary Hart and the Rev. Jesse Jackson to give up the fight for the Democratic presidential nomination, a contest Walter F. Mondale says he already has won.

The issue now, the leaders say, is unifying the party to take on President Reagan in the fall campaign.

But Hart and Jackson say they have come too far to give up before the July nominating convention.

"It is not over," Hart says bluntly. "The bottom line is my self-respect," Jackson declares. "It is clear I am the winner," Mondale says.

The Associated Press delegate count shows Mondale with 1,976.05, just over the 1,967 required for the nomination. Hart has 1,221.75 and Jackson 372.2.

However, party rules that do not bind delegates to vote for the candidate they were elected to support have given Hart and Jackson the impetus to carry their campaigns forward.

All three were in Washington today.

While Mondale rested at his home, Jackson prepared to deliver an evening address to a convention of Operation PUSH, the Chicago-based self-help and civil rights group from which Jackson took a leave of absence last fall to campaign for president.

Hart, buoyed by his 3-1 margin of victory over Mondale among delegates in the California primary on Tuesday, the finale of the primary season, was making the rounds on Capitol Hill today. Aides indicated the Colorado senator would tell Democratic leaders in the House and Senate that he will press his campaign.

Party leaders, allied with Mondale, do not want to hear that.

"I think it's about time we stopped playing games out there," House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said Wednesday. "It's been all over for some time, to be perfectly truthful. I think we ought to unite on one conviction, that's the defeat of Reagan, and stop attacking each other."

O'Neill made clear that he will emphasize party unity at a meeting with Hart today.

He also indicated that he wants Hart and Jackson to know they still have roles to play, but not as contenders for the nomination.

"The part that Hart should play and the part that Jackson should play is in policy and working a platform. If they have new ideas and new thoughts, bring them forward and help unite the party," O'Neill said. "The party needs to be united more than ever and we should stop criticizing each other, and that's what they've been doing and they've been doing it for too long and it's hurting the party."

Other Democrats said it is time for Hart and Jackson to demonstrate their loyalty to the party.

"We need Gary to think about what's in the best interest of the party, first," said Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., a Mondale supporter and chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, a group that aids Democratic candidates for the House of Representatives.

"Reagan ... cannot be beaten with a party that is divided. ... What Reagan wants is for us to keep bickering about who his opponent will be," Coelho said.

But Hart counters such arguments with a prediction that public opinion polls will show him to be a more popular candidate against Reagan in the fall.

"To win this election, there has to be someone at the top of the ticket who can beat Reagan," Hart said Wednesday.

Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., the co-chairwoman of Hart's campaign, said, "Gary Hart is not going to destroy the Democratic Party." She added, "The convention is where you put the party together, any-

And, echoing one of Hart's arguments, she said, "Walter Mondale has not taken a (primary) state west of the Mississippi, and that is death for our party."

In addition, some of those maintaining a publicly neutral stance say they understand Hart's reluctance to end his campaign.

"When you work for two years, 18 hours a day and you still think there's a 3 percent chance of getting the nomination, you have to weigh that against whether you are perceived as a spoiler," said Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., who had considered mounting a presidential campaign this year and is keeping his options open for 1988.

Jackson, meanwhile, is making no claims on the nomination, but he said it is too soon to proclaim Mondale as the winner because the convention delegates "can vote their conscience" under 1984 party rules.

Nonetheless, all three candidates have begun gingerly making conciliatory statements after the sometimes harsh rhetoric of the primary season.

Jackson said he will meet with Hart and Mondale before next month's San Francisco convention to discuss his goals.

"I would hope that during this period Gary Hart and Fritz Mondale and I would meet more than once and do all within our power to relieve the tension at the convention," Jackson said Wednesday.

"I don't think we are that far apart on principle," Hart said. "This is a contest for the leadership of the party."

Mondale said he would call Hart and Jackson "in the next day or so" to discuss how to pull the Democrats together after the battle for the nomination.

Mondale-Hart Ticket Possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gary Hart denies any interest in being No. 2 on a Democratic presidential ticket headed by Walter F. Mondale, but even some of the Colorado senator's allies say the need for party unity may force the pair into becoming running mates.

"If he's (Hart) asked to do it he can't say no" because he then would like the man "who takes down the ticket," said Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., the co-chairwoman of Hart's presidential campaign.

Mondale, who has amassed more delegates than the 1,967 needed to win the Democratic nomination, said Wednesday he would start "very soon" the process of selecting a running mate.

Hart, meanwhile, finished the primary season Tuesday with a strong showing in the California primary after previously demonstrating his strength elsewhere in the West, in New England and in some Southern states.

"Hart's been tested out there," said Rep. Leon E. Panetta, D-Calif., a Mondale supporter.

"If Hart does not go on the ticket, you have these (party) divisions that are present and continue to agitate," Panetta added.

Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., a Mondale supporter and chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, a group that aids Democratic candidates for the House of Representatives, acknowledged, "A lot of the people I'm talking to are saying, 'If we're talking about unity, what about Gary being on the ticket?'"

In Atlanta, Mayor Andrew Young

endorsed the former vice president on Wednesday and called for Hart to join the ticket as Mondale's running mate.

"I think what the people said yesterday (Tuesday) ... was that a Mondale-Hart ticket is very much in order," Young said. "I think a Mondale-Hart ticket with a Jesse Jackson platform will go a long way toward retiring Ronald Reagan."

However, Ms. Schroeder said becoming Mondale's running mate "would be a hard job for Gary."

She said Hart likely would become bored with the mostly ceremonial duties of the vice presidency.

Hart has repeatedly dismissed suggestions that he run as Mondale's vice presidential nominee, although he declines "to completely rule out the possibility."

New Tax Break Gets The Ax

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new tax break for savers is about to be wiped off the books even before it goes into effect — a victim of the battle to reduce the federal deficit.

Negotiators from the House and Senate, who are fashioning the tax increase provisions of a package to cut the deficit by between $150 billion and $180 billion over the next three years, voted Wednesday to repeal a law that would allow savers to exempt up to $450 of interest from taxes each year.

Repeal of that provision, which was enacted in 1981 to encourage savings, would cut the deficit by about $6.9 billion over three years. The House had voted for repeal while the Senate had agreed only to delay the savings incentive three years beyond the scheduled 1985 start. The negotiators agreed without debate to wipe the law off the books.

That was the biggest single tax provision among about $30 billion worth on which agreement was announced a few minutes after the negotiators met for the first time. The figure includes $14 billion worth of tax increases that both the House and Senate had agreed on beforehand, including extending for two years the 3 percent tax on telephone service that is due to expire next year. The other $16 billion or so is from items on which there were only minor disputes.

The hard work is yet to come. The negotiators must settle such issues as whether to allow the 16-cent-a-pack cigarette tax to drop to 8 cents next year, as the Senate voted, or whether to set it at 12 cents after that; whether the tax on liquor, now a maximum $10.50 a gallon, should be raised to $14.25, as the House voted, or $12.50, as under the Senate bill.

The most disputed sections in either bill involve efforts to curb use of tax-exempt bonds for private commercial buildings and to reduce tax benefits available to investors in real estate.

For The Losers, A Day Of Mourning

LA CAMBE, France (AP) — For one group of D-Day veterans, there were no cheers this week. Four decades after the invasion that hastened the downfall of the Third Reich, the men of the Nazi Wehrmacht quietly visited the battlefields and the graves of their dead.

"My friends asked me, 'Why do you want to go to Normandy? It's a celebration for the victors, not for the losers,'" said a 58-year-old former German paratrooper from Bad Kreuznach.

"But we fought here as citizens, too, and I wanted to come back and see these places one more time," the one-time corporal said.

For many Germans, their destination was the tree-shaded war cemetery at La Cambe, between Omaha and Utah beaches, where 21,160 dead Nazi grenadiers, paratroopers, infantrymen, tankers and storm troopers lie.

Roses and lichen wreaths dot the tombs of the men who made up the once-dreaded military machine smashed by the Allies in the last year of the war.

"Hundreds of Germans have been through in the past few days to seek out their relatives or friends," said cemetery superintendent Horst Otto. "Others have decorated the graves marked 'Ein Deutscher Soldat' (Here Lies A German Soldier)."

Allied intelligence said there were 15 German divisions on the western front when American, British and Canadian troops landed on the beaches of Normandy on D-Day — June 6, 1944.

Forty years later, some Germans returned.

Three men in their 60s carrying small German flags watched the re-creation of the U.S. ranger attack on the Pointe du Hoc.

In the seaside hamlet of Englesqueville, the modern German colors flew beside those of France and the United States.

As President Reagan gathered Wednesday with the heads of state from other victorious World War II allies on Utah Beach, the 19-acre cemetery was virtually empty.

One elderly woman moved among the squat, black crosses seeking a name. A man walked between low headstones, scanning the ages of his countrymen who perished in the battle of Normandy.

"There are Hitler Youth stormtroopers in here who were only 17 when they died," said Hermann Layher, 28, of Sinsheim, son of a veteran wounded on the Russian front.

"What is depressing for me as a German is that they fought on to the end, believing in the cause they had been told to believe in, and I think you could say the same thing of the Americans who died here, or anybody else," he added.

The French who lived through the four years of German occupation have mixed memories of the invaders who toiled to turn their coastline into an impregnable Atlantic Wall.

"I think I can speak for many here when I say the Germans were just soldiers, most of them," said Aline Braghetto, 61, a grocer in the village of Grandcamp-Maisy, west of Pointe du Hoc.

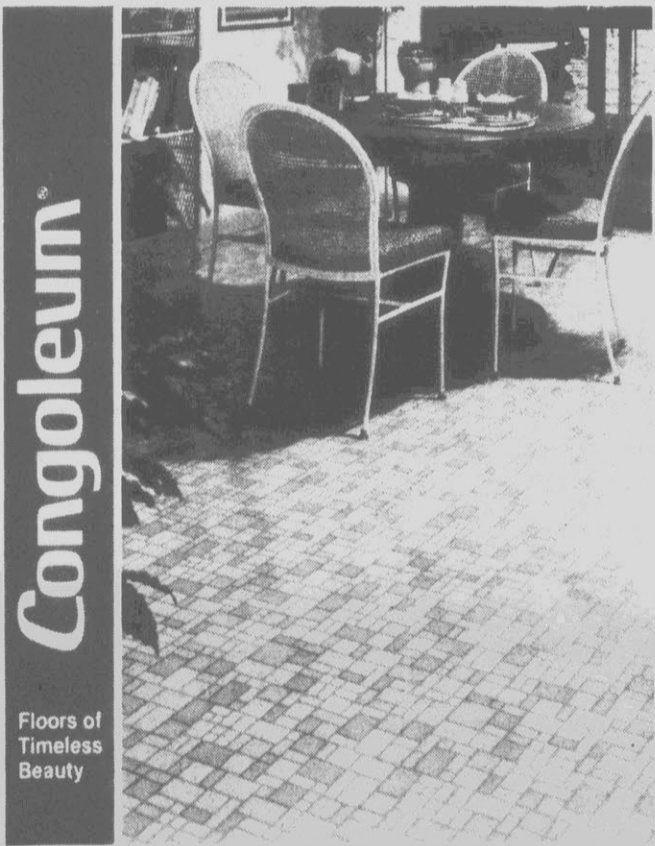

"Like all soldiers, they did what they were told. But I was overjoyed when the Americans arrived."

German participation in the D-Day ceremonies might have been greater had West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl been invited. Both Kohl and President Francois Mitterrand of France denied reports that he had quietly sought an invitation.

They will take part in a World War I commemorative ceremony in Verdun in September.

Elsewhere, Alois Mertes, a senior German Foreign Ministry official, said in an interview with a German newspaper that it could alienate West Germany from its friends in the West "if they created the feeling among Germans that they were a vanquished people."

Reagan Shrugs Off Predictions Of High Interest Rates

LONDON (AP) — President Reagan, beginning a round of meetings with foreign leaders attending the economic summit today, dismissed a prediction by chief White House economic adviser Martin Feldstein that U.S. interest rates will remain high.

"Possibly, he's wrong," Reagan told reporters when asked about Feldstein's testimony comment that short-term interest rates are likely to stay high even if Congress approves a three-year, $140 billion deficit-reduction package.

Feldstein, however, said medium- and long-term interest rates are expected to remain at their present level or to decline if the financial markets see that Congress has made a "significant" commitment to reducing deficits.

Reagan said of U.S. interest rates: "Well, as I have said, they are volatile. There can be fluctuations. But I believe in the long run that they are coming down."

Feldstein, who is leaving as chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers next month amid continuing disputes with other senior administration officials over the effects of budget deficits and high interest rates, made his prediction at a congressional hearing Wednesday.

Reagan is expected to come under pressure from some of the other summit participants — Britain, West Germany, France, Italy, Canada and Japan — who believe those rates are artificially inflating the value of the dollar and endangering the world economic recovery.

Asked whether he was sticking with the prediction he made earlier this year that interest rates would subside over the summer, Reagan said, "Yes."

Reagan also was asked whether he would urge Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., or former Vice President Walter F. Mondale to drop out of the race for the Democratic presidential nomination. "I would not help either one of them with that decision," he replied with a smile.

Reagan also said he did not believe the United States was getting militarily involved in the Persian Gulf. At that point, he cut off questioning, reminding reporters, "The rules are still the same here as they are in that other Rose Garden" at the White House.

On Thursday, the president flew by helicopter to Normandy to join in emotional observances of the 40th anniversary of the D-Day landings. He toured the landing sites of Pointe du Hoc and Omaha Beach, greeting D-Day veterans and their relatives.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes quoted Reagan as saying after the Omaha Beach ceremony, "War is terrible. This must never happen again."

Nancy, Diana Have 'Coffee And Nice Visit'

LONDON (AP) — Nancy Reagan had "coffee and a nice visit" with Princess Diana today at Kensington Palace, a spokeswoman for the first lady said.

Mrs. Reagan, here with the president during the three-day economic summit of key industrialized nations, also saw Prince William, the toddler son of Diana and her husband, Prince Charles.

"The baby is darling," Sheila Tate, the first lady's spokeswoman, quoted Mrs. Reagan as saying.

Mrs. Tate said Mrs. Reagan gave the princess a two-foot-high rocking horse from South Carolina during the 40-minute visit at Kensington Palace, which is the London residence of the royal couple.

The 22-year-old princess is expecting her second child in September. William is nearly 2.

Tonight, while President Reagan formally begins summit talks at a working dinner at 10 Downing St., home of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, Mrs. Reagan was to attend a dinner at Winfield House, the residence of U.S. Ambassador Charles H. Price II.

Iraq Strikes Iranian Towns

By The Associated Press

Iraq said its forces attacked three Iranian towns today to retaliate for Iran's shelling of the southern Iraqi port of Basra and three border towns a day earlier. Iran said 15 people were killed in one of the Iranian towns.

The Iraqi attacks came a day after a Tehran newspaper said Iran had imposed an "exclusion zone" in the Persian Gulf, within which commercial ships will be searched and Iraq-bound vessels seized.

Iraq has declared its own exclusion zone around Iran's main oil terminal on Kharg Island, and Iraqi warplanes have been attacking commercial ships in that zone. Iran — at war with Iraq since September 1980 — has retaliated recently with air raids on vessels in neutral waters to the south.

Baghdad Radio quoted an Iraqi military spokesman as saying the strikes on the Iranian cities of Dezful, Masjid Suleiman and Nahavand were carried out shortly after midnight.

The cities on the 733-mile Iran-Iraq border are out of range of Iraqi artillery, indicating they may have been attacked from the air or by missiles. The Iraqi communique did not specify the means of the attacks.

Tehran radio said 15 people were "martyred" and 257 wounded in the attack on Nahavand. Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency also said 15 people were killed in Nahavand, but reported the number of wounded as 50. It said no details were available on casualties in the other towns.

IRNA said 20 houses and 50 shops were destroyed in Nahavand.

Iraq's official news agency said Iranian forces shelled Basra and the central border towns of Mandali, Khanqin and Zurbatiya on Wednesday. The agency said 21 people were killed and 116 wounded in Basra.

The report, monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus, also said a Greek ship and a tugboat were hit by Iranian fire in the Shatt-al-Arab waterway, which divides Iran and Iraq. There was no independent confirmation.

Before Wednesday's reported shelling, Iran had threatened to bomb or shell 11 Iraqi cities in retaliation for reported Iraqi air raids Tuesday on the Iranian border town of Baneh. IRNA said 325 were killed and 300 wounded in Baneh.

Iraq said it would bomb 15 Iranian cities if Iran carried out its threat.

Rebels Reject Talks

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Leftist rebels said they will stick by their demand for unconditional peace talks to end El Salvador's civil war and mocked the government's request that they lay down their weapons first.

In their first official response to President Jose Napoleon Duarte's inauguration speech last Friday, members of the leftists' political and diplomatic commission said his proposal for peace talks was "most absurd."

In other developments Wednesday, Duarte promised an investigation into the cases of missing and slain Salvadorans and the country's new attorney general pledged to probe the 1980 slaying of San Salvador Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero.

The rebel commission includes members of the Democratic Revolutionary Front, an umbrella group of outlawed leftist parties, and the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, or FMLN, the coalition of five guerrilla groups fighting to oust the government.

"Duarte has established the most absurd and politically least serious condition for dialogue, the laying down of arms by the FMLN," the commission said in a communique issued Wednesday in Costa Rica. "This ignores the fact that we are in war and that the FMLN is a real force that is defeating the army of 40,000 backed by the United States."

Duarte has rejected negotiating a share of power for the rebels "with weapons plunked on the table."

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JUNE 8, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An unusually good day and evening for you to get in touch with those with whom you want to be allied in the future and to let them know of your interest in them.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A good day to find out what is expected of you by others and to come to some fine agreement with them. Take it easy tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A good day to make your environment more charming, also at your place of work, and be happier in it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A good day to get surcease from worry. Your mate should be in a good mood and will go along with your desires.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Get your home spic and span and then entertain interesting persons you like there. Show more consideration.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Be very cooperative today so that you can accomplish a good deal with others, especially co-workers.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Confer with money experts and state your ideas for adding to present assets, and then follow their advice.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are very magnetic and charming today so go after whatever it is you want the most. Take it easy tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Look up individuals who can give you the data you need and show you will assist them, if you get it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are able to make new friends at this time so go about it wisely and then they can be in your life for some time in the future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Concentrate on worldly aims that mean much to you and then quickly go to bigwigs who can give you backing you need.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You can get into new enterprises easily, so be more broad-minded. Contact a new acquaintance about a problem.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Follow your intuition and know how to improve the relationship between you and the one you love. Use more direct methods.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be one who will be interested in all kinds of personalities and will double over backwards to please everyone he likes and will have many friends. One who will have a fine artistic sense and like everything to be neat.

The bidding:

1 ♠ 2 ♣ Pass 2 ♥
2 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass
4 ♠ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Ten of ♥.

At various times during the play of a hand, one opponent is more of a threat than the other. You must do whatever you can to neutralize the danger. Consider this hand.

North did not have quite enough to act voluntarily over West's overall. However, when South could bid a second time despite the fact that both opponents were bidding, North felt that his smattering of high cards and distributional assets merited one raise, and South went on to game.

West led the 10 of hearts, taken by declarer's jack. Since there was no way to avoid club losers other than by ruffing them in dummy, declarer led a low club from hand at the second trick. East overtook his partner's seven and, in an attempt to cut down dummy's ruffing power, shifted to a trump. Declarer correctly rose with the ace, but since he could now ruff only two clubs on the board, he ended up losing two clubs, a heart and a trump.

While the defenders did well, declarer had only himself to blame for his defeat. Obviously, he cannot allow East to gain the lead, because the trump shift through his holding would be deadly. In an attempt to prevent that, at trick two declarer should have led the king of clubs from hand!

West can win the ace, but he cannot shift to a trump without sacrificing his trump trick. No matter how the defenders proceed, declarer will have the time and the entries to ruff three clubs in dummy. Even if East can overruff the fourth club, he will be doing it with his side's natural trump winner, and declarer will lose no more than one trump, one heart and one club.

Stock And Market Reports

By The Associated Press
HOGS: Trend is steady to 50 cents higher at N.C. buying stations. Kinston, Spivey's Corner, Murrefreesboro and Robersonville 50.00; Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Pine Level, Chadbourne, Ayden, Laurinburg and Benson 49.75; Wilson 49.75; Rowland 49.75. Sows: (500 pounds up) Wilson 43.00; Fayetteville 42.00; Whiteville 42.00; Wallace 42.00; Spivey's Corner 43.50, Rowland 43.00.

BROILERS: The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 53.25 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pound birds. Too little percent of few birds offered. The market is unsettled. Live supply is moderate for a light to moderate demand. Average weights desirable to heavy. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Thursday was 1,804,000, compared to 1,792,000 last Thursday.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn slightly higher at 3.87-3.99 in East and 3.95-4.02 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans higher at 8.26-8.32 in the east and mostly 8.26-8.31 in the Piedmont; (new crop corn 2.87-3.27; soybeans 6.89-7.14, wheat 3.26-3.60).

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed lower today, giving up some of Wednesday's gains. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 4.31 to 1,129.53 in the first half hour.

Losers held a slight lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Stock prices advanced late Wednesday on optimistic comments by Chairman Paul Volcker about the outlook for the U.S. economy and progress in dealing with debt problems of developing countries.

But analysts said rising interest rates loomed as a threat to the continuation of the market's recent rally.

Rates rose in the bond and short-term money markets this morning, adding to increases posted Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mesa Offshore Trust led the active list in early trading, unchanged at 2 1/2. A 1.5 million-share block traded at that price.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 8.95 to 1,133.84.

Advances outpaced declines by about 5 to 3 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 83.44 million shares, against 84.84 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose .66 to 89.15. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.23 at 204.13.

civic involvement, school activities and evidence of "moral fitness."

Walter Latham served as principal at North Pitt High School in 1970-74. He previously was principal at Bethel High School and Washington High and Stokes schools. In addition, Latham coached basketball at Bethel High and had county championship teams for 21 years. Under his leadership, Bethel won several district basketball championships and one state title. He is a native of Bath and graduated from Elon College.

Daisy Lee Carson Latham is a native of Bethel. She graduated from Salem College and taught social studies at Bethel High School for over 30 years.

The county school board accepted the scholarship at a recent meeting. Associate Superintendent John McKnight of Pitt County schools called the fund "a significant contribution to the North Pitt area."

"We (North Pitt) are most appreciative of this generous gift from the Latham family," school principal Josh Potter said. "We are proud of the scholarship and feel it will provide a significant incentive (for students) to excel."

The scholarship will be awarded annually.

kinds of oaks, the groups did leaf rubbings and sketches of them.

Ms. Spagnolo, who headed the pond habitat station, taught the children about plants and organisms which live in a pond. Several items were identified using microscopes.

Another station was the park's nature center, where tours were given by Howard Vainwright, park supervisor, and John Fields and Raleigh Bland, park attendants. Subjects discussed there were the habitats of snakes, bees, fish, turtles, birds and other animals found in the park.

And finally, a water cycles station headed by Mimi Reid stressed the idea of water and how it sustains life.

The students, who were at the park from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. for a week, spent only 20 minutes eating lunch and then they were back to work.

"The days were really full and the kids were busy doing something all the time. There were 60 kids out here at any given time, but everything went very smoothly," Ms. Spagnolo said.

The program was arranged so that students from the schools that merge together next year could

"Our next step is the establishment of a permanent medical industry recruitment task force for the purpose of developing a more thorough medical industry report for recruitment purposes and to have knowledgeable people on-call to meet with industry officials," he said.

Card of Thanks

In my bereavement I have found comfort in the thoughtfulness of our friends. The memory of your kindness during the illness and death of my husband, Pete Freeland, will always remain with me. It is during a time like this that we learn how much friends really mean to us.

Kinston Rally Tops Pitt, 12-8

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

When Pitt County starter Doug Coley left the game with an injury in the fifth inning, Kinston responded with a five-run rally and went on to take a 12-8 victory in American Legion baseball Wednesday at Harrington Field.

Coley had given up four runs on eight hits but was spiked on his left hand when he tried to tag Kinston's Paul Jones at first base. Coley struck out three and yielded two walks. But reliever Steve Wall struggled early, giving up eight hits and five runs in the fifth before settling down.

David Mitchell, Bobby Simmons and Joe Long had three hits each for Kinston, with Darnell Thorbs and Eric Wade driving in a pair of runs each with two hits. James Watson, in his first start in the field, had two hits, as did winning pitcher Steve Quinn.

Quinn struck out five but gave up 11 hits and just two earned runs.

Toby Fischer and Eric Woodworth had two hits each for Pitt County, while Coley ripped a two-run homer in the second.

Pitt County took what appeared to be a commanding lead in the second on five unearned runs. Woodworth led off with a double, and Billy Michel drove him in with another double. After Mike Kinley flew out, Jackie Conway tapped back to Quinn. But the young righthander hesitated before drawing Jones off first with a wide throw, putting runners on first and third.

An infield single by Fuqua loaded the bases, but Steve Mills popped up to the catcher for the second out. Roger Moye drove a long fly to left, but the ball popped out of Mitchell's glove allowing three runs to score and Moye to take third. Coley followed with his homer to left before Quinn recorded the third out.

Kinston bounced back with two runs in the third. Mitchell ripped a leadoff single, and Simmons singled to left for runners on first and third with one out. Wade drew a walk to load the bases, and an error on a grounder by Bob Whitley allowed the runs to score.

But in the fifth, Steve Mills threw away the ball after Jones tapped to the shortstop allowing Lang to score. Billy Michel threw to Coley covering first when Jones turned toward second, but Jones spiked Coley on the glove hand opening a cut and forcing Coley to exit.

Watson singled off Wall, and Quinn beat out a bunt for a single to load the bases. Mitchell drove in one run with a base hit, and Thorbs followed with a two-run single. Another run crossed on Simmons' single, and Wade collected two RBI with a base hit up the middle but was thrown out attempting to take second. Lang ripped a single to left before Whitley popped out to end the inning.

Pitt County added its final run with the aid of an unusual play in the bottom of the fifth, as Michel led off with a walk. After four pitches to Kinley, the scoreboard indicated — erroneously — that the count was three balls, two strikes. When the next pitch was a ball, Kinley trotted to first and Michel to second.

But the count was actually 2-2 before the pitch, so Kinley had to return to the plate. Michel remained on second with what is ruled an uncontested stolen base. Kinley grounded out to second allowing Michel to take third, and Conway drove in the runner with a sacrifice to trim the margin to 9-8.

But three errors by Pitt County helped Kinston seal the victory with three more runs in the sixth.

"Our errors really hurt us tonight," Pitt Coach Bruce Rhodes said. "If Doug had stayed in all night, we might have went on through (and won). Injuries are killing us; (Paul) Hill is out with a foot injury."

The loss dropped Pitt County with

Celts Win, Even Series

THE DAILY REFLECTOR

THURSDAY AFTERNOON, JUNE 7, 1984

The Face-Off

Los Angeles Lakers' Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Boston Celtics' Larry Bird face off the for the stare-down Wednesday night after Bird fouled Jabbar during second half action. The Celtics went on to defeat the Lakers in overtime, 129-125, to even their best-of-seven series at two games each. (AP Laserphoto)

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — "It's turning into the series everyone said it was going to be," said Los Angeles Lakers Coach Pat Riley.

The National Basketball Association title showdown between historic rivals Los Angeles and Boston, which briefly appeared in danger of being dominated by the Lakers, is "turning out" to be well-played, spirited, aggressive — and close.

The Celtics, written off by some after a 33-point loss Sunday that gave Los Angeles a 2-1 edge in the best-of-seven series, stormed back to tie the playoffs with a dramatic 129-125 overtime victory Wednesday night at the Lakers' Forum.

"I think it just shows the character of our team," said the Celtics' Larry Bird, whose 29 points included a 15-foot fallaway jumper that snapped a 123-123 tie with 16 seconds left in overtime.

"No matter how far down we are, until we lose that fourth game, we're still in it," said Bird, who also had a game-high 21 rebounds.

After Bird's basket, which he fired in over the Lakers' Magic Johnson, James Worthy of Los Angeles was fouled and made one of two free throws. The Celtics' Dennis Johnson retaliated by sinking two free throws to put Boston up 127-124 with 10 seconds remaining.

M.L. Carr then clinched the victory, the Celtics' second overtime win of the series, by stealing Worthy's inbound pass and dunking the ball to make it 129-124 with seven seconds left.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led the Lakers with 32 points, but he fouled out with 16 seconds left in regulation. Despite the fact that Worthy pumped in 10 of his 30 points in the five-minute overtime, the absence of Abdul-Jabbar gave Boston an edge.

"It was a very happy time for me when Kareem fouled out," said Boston Coach K.C. Jones. "But then when I saw what Worthy was doing in overtime, I regretted that Kareem was out."

Five consecutive points by the Celtics in the final 39 seconds of regulation forced the overtime. A three-point play by Boston center Robert Parish, who had 25 points, and then two free throws by Bird with 16 seconds left knotted the game at 113.

Jones praised the play of Dennis Johnson, who was coming off two poor games. Johnson scored eight of his 22 points in overtime Wednesday.

"D.J. had a game that helped pull us out of this thing," said Jones, whose club faces the Lakers in Game 5 Friday night in Boston. "The way they (the Laker defenders) were all over Larry, it made it difficult for him to get shots and D.J. took up the slack."

The Celtics appeared to lure the Lakers, who prefer to fast break and play finesse basketball, into their more physical style of play.

Heated words were exchanged on a couple of occasions, including once between the usually mild-mannered Abdul-Jabbar and Bird, and a scuffle broke out during the third quarter after Boston's Kevin McHale and Gerald Henderson both sailed into Los Angeles' Kurt Rambis as he was driving for a layin.

"Boston's whole strategy was to throw us off our game by turning it in a rough-and-tumble contest," said Worthy. "At times that's exactly what they did and it affected our concentration."

And it also led to a lot of fouls, including the six by Abdul-Jabbar, who rarely fouls out of games.

"We just came out more aggressive," said Bird. "We weren't really looking for a fight. Some tempers flared, but it wasn't that bad."

Of the exchange with Abdul-Jabbar, which came after Bird had fouled the Laker center, Bird said: "The elbows he was throwing were coming pretty close. I caught an elbow once before and wound up in the hospital, and I wasn't going to let him get away with it."

Most of the players on both sides downplayed the roughness, including Rambis, who crashed to the floor when McHale and Henderson sandwiched him.

"It was a good, aggressive play," said the Laker forward. "I'd have done the same to them."

Boston trailed 68-58 at halftime, and Jones seemed to be worried that the Lakers, who've lost in seven previous series finals with the Celtics, were going to end that dominance. Asked what he told his club at the break, Jones smiled and joked: "Call in the hounds and put out the fire, the hunt's over."

Lloyd Easily Advances To Finals

PARIS (AP) — Defending champion Chris Evert Lloyd needed only 39 minutes today to crush fellow American Camille Benjamin 6-0, 6-0 and move into the final of the women's singles at the French Open tennis championships.

Lloyd next will meet the winner of today's second semifinal, which sent top-seeded Martina Navratilova against Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia.

However, that match was delayed when, within minutes of the end of the Lloyd-Benjamin match, rain returned to Roland Garros and held up the start of play.

The Czechoslovakian-born Navratilova, now a U.S. citizen who makes her home in Dallas, was just two matches away from becoming the fifth player in history to capture the Grand Slam — consecutive victories at Wimbledon and the U.S., Australian and French Opens. But Mandlikova, the No. 3 seed, is the only player to have beaten her this year, and all tickets were sold days ago for the intriguing Center Court encounter.

Benjamin, who was unseeded and making her first appearance on Center Court at Roland Garros Stadium, was completely overawed by the occasion and won only 16 points in the entire match.

"I did not do anything right. It couldn't have been much worse," said the 17-year-old from Bakersfield, Calif., who had failed to get past the first round in her previous six tournaments.

The 5-foot-9 high schooler never found the inspiration that took her through to the semifinals, knocking out No. 6 seed Zina Garrison of Houston en route.

Forehand or backhand, drop shot or volley, almost all her shots were either netted or overhit, and all

Lloyd had to do to win the points was to stay back and return the ball.

The first set took just 19 minutes; the second, one minute longer. Only when she had lost the first 11 games did Benjamin look like making a fight of it.

She won the first two points when Lloyd served for the match, but then made four glaring errors, threw her arms up in despair and walked dejectedly off the court as the crowd clapped sympathetically.

Lloyd's victory put her into the final here for the seventh time in 11 years. She now has won 51 matches at Roland Garros, an all-time record.

"I looked over at Camille late in the second set and could see she was frustrated," Lloyd said. "But she should not be too disappointed. I played very well in the first set and she did great to reach the semis."

If she wins the final, Lloyd will set another record. Currently, she has five French singles titles, the same number as Margaret Court Smith.

Asked whether she would have preferred a tougher match in preparation for Saturday's final, Lloyd replied: "No, it was not disconcerting at all. I have already had three three-set matches and I believe they have helped my preparation."

"But if I'd had another one today, it would have put doubts in my mind about my form."

In the men's singles, Ivan Lendl, the stony-faced Czech with the powerful serve, is one step away from his fifth appearance in the final of a Grand Slam tournament. Yet, for all his success elsewhere on the worldwide circuit and the millions of dollars he's made, Lendl has been unable to collect any of the four major titles — making him one of the sport's biggest enigmas.

The tall, 24-year-old right-hander moved into the semifinals of the French Open Wednesday with a hard-fought victory over Andres Gomez of Ecuador.

The men took today off, allowing Lendl to contemplate his next opponent, Sweden's Mats Wilander.

The women's final is scheduled for Saturday and will be televised nationally on a tape-delay basis by NBC.

The men's semifinals will be played Friday. NBC will show the men's final live on Sunday.

In the other men's singles semifinal, John McEnroe, the No. 1 seed who has not lost a match this year, will meet No. 3 Jimmy Connors in a battle of American left-handers.

"We've beaten each other on everything in the past," Connors said of McEnroe. "We haven't played a major tournament on clay for a long time. My chances are as good as his."

McEnroe, who has knocked off two highly regarded clay court specialists in his last two matches, said getting past Connors won't be easy.

"Jimmy returns serve so well that I can't count on that weapon to attack him," the 25-year-old New Yorker said.

Lendl's match with Wilander on Friday is a repeat of their fourth-round meeting two years ago when the Czech, who had lost in the final the previous year, was the big favorite.

Wilander, then an up-and-coming Swede with nothing to lose, stunned his opponent and the Center Court crowd by winning in five sets. He went on to become the youngest-ever French Open men's champion at the age of 17.

"I have an advantage over two years ago," Lendl said after his quarterfinal victory over Gomez. "Then, I had not heard or seen him before and he gave me a surprise I didn't like."

"But now I know Mats and I know his game. He didn't miss many balls then, and if he does the same on Friday, I'll be ready for him."

Babe Ruth League

Coca-Cola 11
Pepsi-Cola 10

Coca-Cola jumped out into a big lead and then held off Pepsi-Cola to claim an 11-10 Babe Ruth League victory last night.

Pepsi picked up two runs in the top of the first, but Coke came back to score three in its half of the frame. Pepsi then countered that with three of their own in the top of the second. Coke then rallied for six in the bottom of the inning for a 9-5 lead.

In the third, Coke got what proved to be the difference, scoring twice. Keith Anderson walked and stole up. Pickle Garris reached on a fielder's choice and moved up on an out. Greg Hallow reached on an error, scoring both runners.

Pepsi rallied for one in the sixth and four in the seventh, but fell one short of catching up.

Garris and David Daniels each had two hits for Coke, while Tom Moye had three to lead Pepsi.

Brown & Wood 16
Everett's 5

Chris Coble banged out three hits, one of them a double, in leading Brown & Wood to a 16-5 Babe Ruth League victory over Everett's Pest Control last night.

B&W pushed ahead with three runs in the top of the first, but they put it on ice with five in the third.

Robbie McDonald led off the third, reaching on an error as did Mike Wooten. Chris Meeks doubled to drive both in. Coble singled in Meeks and Chris Throckmorton reached on an error. Lloyd May also reached on an error, scoring Coble. Chuck Doak reached on another misplay, letting Throckmorton score for an 8-0 lead.

Brown & Wood added seven more in the fourth and one more in the fifth. Everett's scored two in the third and one in the fourth and two more in the fifth.

Wooten and Meeks each added two hits to the B&W total, while no one had more than one hit for Everett's.

Little League

Kiwanis 6
Union Carbide 5

The Kiwanis pushed over a run in the fifth inning to squeeze past Union Carbide, 6-5, yesterday in North State Little League play.

Union Carbide took the lead with one in the first and then added three more in the second. The Kiwanis rallied for five in the top of the third, however, for a 5-4 lead. Union Carbide tied it up in the bottom of the frame.

But pitcher Pat Joyner shut them down the rest of the way, and his teammates came up with the winning run in the fifth.

Tommy Payne led off the frame, reaching on an error. Two wild pitches moved him to third, and he scored on a base hit by Jason Bizzaro.

Jamie Hale and Bizzaro each had two hits to lead the Kiwanis hitting. Joyner allowed but two hits by Union Carbide.

True Value 14
Exchange 3

Gamal Hunter slammed a three-run homer in the second inning as True Value Hardware rolled up a 14-3 Tar Heel Little League victory over the Exchange yesterday.

Exchange took the initial lead with one in the bottom of the first, a homer by Maurice Battle. Hunter's homer provided True Value with a 3-1 lead in the second.

In the top of the third, True Value moved ahead for good, scoring twice. Clarence Hammonds was hit by a pitch and moved up on a wild pitch and a passed ball. Ken Sawyer doubled him in and took third on a wild pitch. He scored on Hunter's single.

True Value added seven in the fifth and two in the sixth for its total. Exchange added two more in the bottom of the third.

Sawyer and Hunter each had two hits to lead True Value, while no one had more than one for Exchange, which got only three off the combined pitching of Graig Willoughby and Sawyer.

Pitt Co. Babe Ruth

Wint. Ruritan 9
Grifton 5

WINTERVILLE — Winterville Ruritan scored twice in the fifth inning to break a 5-5 tie and gain a 9-5 victory over Grifton in Pitt County Babe Ruth League play last night.

Tim O'Shea led off with fifth with a walk and Kervin Vines walked. A passed ball advanced them and Amzie Hoffner's single scored O'Shea for a 6-5 lead. Winterville added another in the frame and two in the sixth for the final margin.

Hoffner hurled the win, with Mitchell Phillips getting a save. O'Shea led the Winterville hitting with two, while Cole had three for Grifton.

S. Pitt Little League

Red & White 9
Chicod Hornets 7

CHICOD — Grifton's Red & White eased to a 9-7 victory over the Chicod Hornets last night in the Southern Pitt Little League.

Scott Fussell hurled the win. Paul Walker had three hits to lead Grifton, while Robert Overstreet and Scott Chauncey each had two, and each of them had a homer also.

Mac Nicholson, Daniel Beacham, Anthony Dixon and Nikki Adams each had two hits, while Nicholson, Beacham and Earnest Harrington each homered for Chicod.

Loftin Takes Putting Win

Jake Loftin captured the Wednesday Night Pro Tournament at Putt-Putt Golf and Games last night.

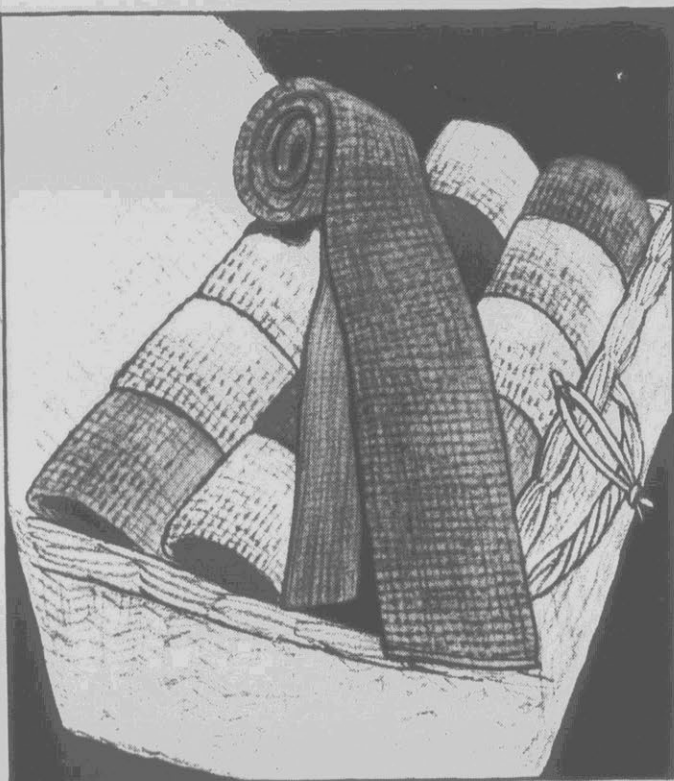

Loftin carded rounds of 30, 31 and 29 for a 54-hole total of 90, 18 strokes under par.

Eric Nelson finished second with rounds of 32, 33, 32 — 97.

The next pro tournament will be held Sunday at 6 p.m.

Teachers Could Step Up Pay, Duties

State Plans Career Ladder

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Department of Public Instruction has proposed a career development plan that would give teachers five steps to success while allowing them to earn more money and responsibility.

The plan, proposed Wednesday, is partly dependent upon the General Assembly's approval of a 15 percent salary increase for teachers during the short session which begins today. If approved, the plan would be tested in 16 school districts in the 1985-86 and 1986-87 school years. A vote is slated for September by the state school board.

New teachers would spend at least two years in each of the first two steps on the ladder and at least three years in each of the next two steps before advancing to the final step.

Advancement to each step would mean a 10 percent salary increase, and pay for teachers within a step could increase 5 percent every three years, depending upon the teacher's performance and professional growth, according to the proposal.

A teacher could earn an additional 5 percent boost by earning a master's degree.

Under the plan, a starting teacher would receive $15,710, compared with the current starting salary of $13,660.

The steps include:

— At least three evaluations from a team that includes the school principal or his or her designee, a supervising or "mentor" teacher in the appropriate teaching field and one or more professional teacher educators during the first two years of teaching. The team also would help the teacher prepare a program for his or her professional growth.

— A probationary step for which a teacher would need a "continuing certificate" and would earn a starting salary of $17,220. The teacher would have to pass satisfactory performance evaluations, complete the professional growth program and receive a recommendation from the support team.

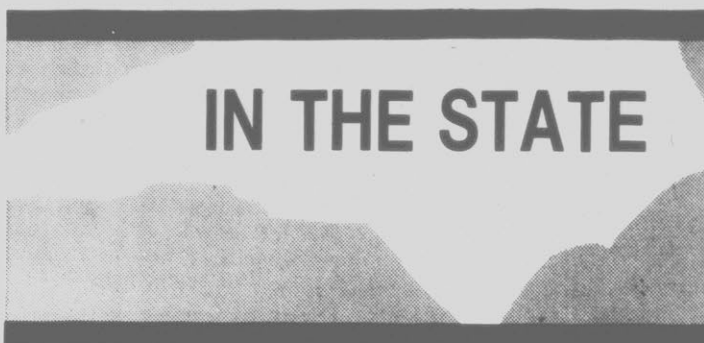

— Career Status I — A teacher would be recommended for this step after the two-year probationary period. The starting salary would be $18,810. After reaching the step, the teacher would have to earn at least six continuing education credits over a three-year period. In addition to the 10 percent raise for reaching the step, a teacher could receive a 5 percent raise every third year with continued satisfactory performance. Additional responsibilities in areas of continuing training for teachers and planning assistance could be added.

— Career Status II — To reach this step, teachers would need the recommendation of a school- and system-wide review panels and earn better-than-satisfactory performance evaluations. The starting salary for the step would be $20,630 for 10 months employment or $22,693 for 11 months employment. He or she would have to earn six continuing education credits and accumulate 15 continuing credits.

— Career Status III — A master's degree is necessary for this step as well as an evaluation of "exceptional" performance during his or her three years in the previous step. The salary is $22,670 for 10 months employment and $27,204 for 12 months employment. Again, the teacher would have to be recommended by a school- and system-wide panel.

noise of an engine. Hundreds of such secluded coves make the waterway of coastal Carolina an ideal place to leave behind the rush and noise of today's motorized world. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Court Upholds Brutality Case

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A federal appeals court upheld the brutality convictions of two North Carolina prison guards who the court said used "heavy-handed" tactics such as water hoses, billy clubs and tear gas against an inmate.

"The prison guards' heavy-handed use of water hoses, billy clubs and tear gas against Slakan unquestionably crossed the line separating necessary force from brutality," the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said Wednesday in upholding the convictions of Guard Lt. Michael Walters and J. M. Barefoot.

The three-member panel used strong language to uphold unanimously the convictions of two guards and three prison administrators on charges of depriving inmate Charles J. Slakan of his rights.

The administrators were Director of Prisons Ralph Edwards, Central Prison Warden Sam Garrison and Secretary of Corrections Amos Reed.

The U.S. District Court had ordered the defendants to pay $500 each in compensatory damages and sums ranging from $1,000 to $10,000 each in punitive damages, for a total award to Slakan of $32,500.

Edmisten, Martin Prep For Campaigns

RALEIGH (AP) — While gubernatorial candidate Rufus Edmisten turns his post-runoff attention to mending Democratic Party fences, Republican Jim Martin is laboring to become as familiar to Tar Heel tobacco farmers as to his colleagues in Congress.

Edmisten's victory over Eddie Knox in Tuesday's runoff left only two of the original 12 candidates in the running for North Carolina's top elected post. While both Edmisten and Martin are regarded as formidable and popular, neither is without potentially damaging weaknesses.

The fight for the Democratic nomination was bitter, opening wounds that party leaders have worried might be beyond healing. Martin will seek to exploit such rifts, needing massive Democratic defections in a state where Democrats outnumber Republicans 3-to-1.

Martin faces traditional Democratic dominance of state politics with a lack of experience in seeking a statewide office. While popular in the 9th District, he will have to build name recognition to compensate for Edmisten's superior grassroots organization cultivated over 10 years as state attorney general. Edmisten, a Watauga County native, worked as a staff attorney for former U.S. Sen. Sam Ervin Jr. and first received recognition as counsel to Ervin's Watergate Committee. He succeeded Robert Morgan as attorney general in 1974, when Morgan resigned to run for U.S. Senate. Edmisten has been re-elected twice.

Search For Escapees Stalls

WARRENTON, N.C. (AP) — After a week of chasing dead-end leads, law enforcement officers meet today to reassess their search for four Virginia death row escapees.

"We haven't had any positive identifications," said Maj. Gene Young of the North Carolina Highway Patrol. "We need a streak of luck."

Law enforcement officers combed areas as far apart as 60 miles following reports of sightings Wednesday and one search continued through the night.

"I don't know why we haven't gotten them; it's possible they're not there," said Robert Pence, who heads FBI operations in North Carolina.

"We're in a lull right now," acknowledged Russ Edmonston, spokesman for the North Carolina Department of Crime Control and Public Safety. "We do hope they don't do anything violent."

Authorities searched woods 12 miles north of Roxboro near Hyco Reservoir for fugitive Linwood Briley, and Col. Jack Cardwell, executive officer of N.C. Highway Patrol said the search of Lake Hyco was the only active search overnight.

The inmates still at large are Briley, 30; his brother, James, 27; Lem Davis Tuggle Jr., 32, and Willie Leroy Jones, 30.

"We're very confident there's a person attempting to evade apprehension there, but there's nothing to tie it to these four," he said at a news briefing in Warrenton late Wednesday night.

Dozens of officers started combing the area on foot around 7:30 p.m. while three helicopters and two planes circled the area. At 8 p.m., about 15 officers reached the shore of the reservoir without finding anyone.

Meanwhile about 60 miles east, lawmen showed an Arcola woman pictures of the death-row inmates only minutes before the woman said a convict tried to pry open the door of her home.

The woman said the struggle at the door of her trailer began just minutes after lawmen traveling door-to-door gave her flyers showing the escapees.

"By the time they were out of sight, he was knocking on the door," she said. "My friend saw him through the window. She said it looked like Willie Jones."

Acting on the woman's call to police, about 75 officers surrounded a four-square-mile area around her home in southeastern Warren County early Wednesday evening. But the search was called off around 8:30 p.m. after several teams of bloodhounds failed to find a scent.

The 38-year-old woman was afraid to give her name, but said she struggled to keep the door bolted against the would-be intruder.

"He was pulling one way and I was pulling the other," she said. "He said, 'Let me in.' I told my girlfriend to go get the gun. I'm sure that's what made him leave."

The ongoing searches were typical of the on-again-off-again activity since six inmates escaped from Mecklenburg Correctional Center in Boydton, Va., a week ago in the biggest death-row breakout in U.S. history.

Derick Lynn Peterson, 22, and Earl Clanton Jr., 30, were captured the following day in a Warrenton coin-operated laundry, some 50 miles from Hyco Reservoir.

Pence said the FBI was checking a number of out-of-state leads from its Charlotte office. Also, authorities investigated a theft of clothes and food from a mobile home near Chase City, Va., 30 miles north of the state line and came up empty.

GRADUATES — The Jeffers family of Burlington had four daughters graduate on the same night from Burlington Cummings High School. The parents, Nina and Truman Jeffers, center, stand between their daughters — triplets and a younger sister. (AP Laserphoto)

RALEIGH (AP) — The National Tobacco Advisory Committee for Tobacco Inspection Services voted 10-1 Wednesday to recommend the number of flue-cured tobacco graders and buyers be reduced from 66 sets to 60.

Committee members in favor of the reduction said it would increase competition among buying companies. The recommendation, which suggests no change in sales of 80 million pounds of leaf a week, must be approved by the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture to take effect.

"Since we are selling less tobacco due to quota reductions, some companies are not staffing as many markets as they used to," said Garrett Strickland of Mount Olive. "I think we need to do all we can to make these markets as strong as possible by not stretching the buyers too thin."

Floyd Worley of Nichols, S.C., representing South Carolina growers, cast the only dissenting vote.

Auction Reduction Proposed

Preyer Elected To Head Center

DURHAM (AP) — Former U.S. Rep. L. Richardson Preyer of Greensboro has been elected president of The Private Adjudication Center Inc., a new dispute resolution center affiliated with Duke University Law School.

The non-profit center, the first of its kind in the Southeast, is expected to begin operation July 1, said Law School Dean Paul D. Carrington.

"One of the center's principal purposes is to provide an alternative means of resolving disputes which will be efficient, yet faithful to the law," he said.

Judges are being consulted frequently as they consider adopting a rule providing for mandatory, non-binding arbitration of some civil cases involving monetary claims, Carrington said.

State Industry Search Improves

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina is off to its best start since 1980 in recruiting industry, with $975.8 million of announced investments in the first five months of 1984, Gov. Jim Hunt announced Wednesday.

"Commerce Department officials tell me they never have seen such intensive interest by companies to locate in our state," Hunt said in a prepared statement.

In the first five months of 1983, investment totaled $717 million, Hunt said.

Grant Approved

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt and state Superintendent of Public Instruction Craig Phillips announced Wednesday that a $100,000 grant from the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation had been approved to fight dropouts.

The grant, part of a three-year, $500,000 project approved by the foundation, will focus on students diagnosed as high-risk potential dropouts. Three pilot sites will be identified and will become models for the entire state in dropout prevention, officials said.

Firm Sues N.C. Klan

RALEIGH (AP) — A $1 million class-action lawsuit has been filed against the Carolina Knights of the Ku Klux Klan by an Alabama public interest law firm and a Raleigh attorney, acting on behalf of a black Moore County prison guard.

The suit accuses the Klan group and its members of violating the civil rights of blacks in North Carolina through armed harassment, intimidation and threats.

It was filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court in Raleigh by the Southern Poverty Law Center and attorney M. Travis Payne for Bobby L. Person, a black guard at Moore County Correctional Center.

The suit asked that the Carolina Knights be prevented from training and maintaining paramilitary groups. It said members of the groups have conducted cross-burnings, vandalized property and intimidated black students when patrolling public schools.

Glenn Miller of Angier, leader of the statewide Klan group, is named as a defendant in the suit, along with three members of the Sanford Klan "den": Jerry Michael Lewis, Gregory Short and his wife, Joan, all of Moore County. The suit says the three Klan members harassed three Moore County blacks.

Also named in the suit are "unknown defendants" — other members of the Klan group that have participated in the alleged harassment.

Miller called the suit "hilarious" and a lot of "vague, ambiguous gobbledygop" in a telephone interview from his Angier home. "We break no laws," he said.

According to the suit, the harassment started after Person filed a formal complaint with the N.C. State Personnel Commission. Person's complaint alleged that white prison officers had discriminated against him during promotions at the Moore prison unit.

TV Networks Join In Program To Get Viewers To Read More

By LEE MITGANG
AP Education Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Besides reading, writing and arithmetic, it seems some schools are teaching a new "basic" — TV viewing.

Take School District 27 in the New York City borough of Queens. In the weeks before CBS broadcast its miniseries "George Washington" last April, 6,000 youngsters prepared to watch it by studying the television script — "as a piece of literature," said the network.

Almost a million such scripts were sent, usually free of charge, to elementary and secondary school educators, according to the network.

The idea isn't new. For years, networks and many educators have promoted the notion that television is part of most youngsters' day-to-day lives — so why not use the tube to foster reading?

All three networks have reading projects. It's become commonplace for CBS, NBC and ABC to send schools program guides, recommended readings and other suggested classroom activities to accompany programs of special interest.

Networks will continue that practice next season. ABC's director of community relations, Jane Paley, said likely candidates on her network included "North and South," a series on the Civil War based on a history by John Jakes, a special on teen-age suicide, and "Poland," a miniseries based on James Michener's popular novel.

NBC will distribute guides on 1984-85 specials including "The Burning Bed," a TV movie on battered women, and a program based on Ernest Hemingway's "The Sun Also Rises."

CBS has also offered classroom scripts for less exalted shows, said Joanne Brokaw, vice president of educational and community services. Scripts of an episode of the comedy series "Alice" dealing with the handicapped were distributed in both English and Spanish.

CBS and ABC have also collaborated with the Library of Congress' Center for the Book to promote book reading on the air. In CBS's 5-year-old "Read More About It" program, stars of prime-time specials promote further reading.

Since September, ABC has used an animated, well-read cat named Cap'n O.G. Readmore in promotional spots. Says O.G. in one:

"Television's lots of fun As everybody knows. You have your favorite characters You have your favorite shows. But there are also other shows That aren't hard to find. Just read a book and turn on The TV in your mind!"

These efforts have won praise from many educators.

Marvin Aaron, superintendent of Queens District 27, said his schools had built lessons around TV scripts of recent programs: "Cooke and Peary: Race to the Pole," "The White House" and "License to Kill," along with "George Washington." After the Washington series, "anything written on George Washington in the school and local libraries was eaten up by our kids," said Aaron.

Bernice Cullinan, president of the International Reading Association, an organization based in Newark, Del., that represents reading teachers, said using TV to stimulate reading was "realistic," given TV's hold on youngsters.

"If the content of a TV program is books, that leads to books being read," she said.

Said Betty Hudson, NBC vice president of corporate relations: "We want to be involved in fighting the prejudice against TV, that it is not an enemy of the mind. I personally think you can use anything on the air to teach vocabulary, history, reading or culture."

Still, granting that network reading programs are a sincere effort to promote reading in youthful audiences, the nagging reality is that American youngsters and teens average from 24 to 27 hours a week of TV viewing.

So when a medium sometimes accused of abetting glassy-eyed illiteracy suddenly invites itself into classrooms, it may be time to examine motives.

NOW Honors Streisand

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Barbra Streisand, whose movie "Yentl" was passed over in this year's Oscar balloting, was named the National Organization for Women's 1984 Woman of Courage for her 15-year effort to bring the movie to the screen.

In a ceremony Wednesday night at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel, NOW said Miss Streisand, 42, "demonstrated unique and unusual courage in the face of nearly insurmountable odds." Miss Streisand starred and sang in, co-wrote, directed and produced the film.

At the ceremony, Miss Streisand said she completed the movie, about a 19th-century Jewish woman who disguised herself as a man to get a religious education, to show "that nothing's impossible, that we as women have a right and an obligation to become all that we are, all that we imagine."

Actress Jane Fonda and former California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. were among about 650 people who attended the awards ceremony.

Past winners have included former first lady Betty Ford and actor Alan Alda.

 Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP

RPLXLVCWRPHC'G CWJYKQMV JWMFWK
 WYLFX PQG UCWIX CHJWQMHT FM-ILUFGHT.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip - COWARDLY OFFICER ALWAYS NEEDS VACATION AT FAVORITE RETREAT.
 Today's Cryptoquip clue: L equals O

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FOCUS

City Within A City
 President Reagan joins other world leaders today in London for an Economic Summit. London's financial district is in a part of Central London called the City. Surprisingly, the City of London is only 1 square mile and has only about 5,000 residents! Nevertheless, nearly half a million people work there. The Bank of England, the London Stock Exchange and Lloyd's insurance company are located in this section.

DO YOU KNOW - What famous cathedral towers over the City of London?

WEDNESDAY'S ANSWER - The word "blitzkrieg" described Hitler's use of sudden and repeated attacks during World War II.

AWARD ... Kirk Dominick, second from right, receives the Sir Thomas J. Lipton Sportsmanship Award from Ed Stanley, president of the Boys Club of Pitt County board of directors. With the two are Kirk's parents, Robert Dominick and Mrs. Nancy Dominick Colville.

Dominick Wins Boys Club Award

Kirk Dominick, a member of the Boys Club of Pitt County, is the recipient of the Sir Thomas J. Lipton Sportsmanship Award. Kirk, a junior at Rose High School, recently received the award which is based on achievements in sportsmanship, leadership, physical fitness, competitiveness, perseverance, participation, and teamwork.

This marks the first time a Pitt County youth has received this award, named after one of the club sponsors, the founder of the Lipton Tea Company.

Kirk has been a member of the Boys Club of Pitt County for the past two years. At Rose, he is a member of the Spanish Club and Key Club. This summer he will spend a week at Wake Forest University leaning about state government as a delegate to Boys State.

He is the son of Mrs. Nancy Dominick Colville of Greenville and Robert B. Dominick of Anniston, Alabama.

Waters Pledges Conservative Stance

Maynard Waters, a Republican candidate for the 9th District seat in the North Carolina Senate, told supporters here Tuesday night that "I want to continue the conservative tradition of this district" in the state Senate.

Waters, a Washington resident, is unopposed for the Republican nomination in the July 17 primary.

"I believe in the equality of all citizens, including the unborn," Waters said, and "I am opposed to the Equal Rights Amendment... (and) am concerned about the hidden agenda of those of the far left who support it."

Waters said as a senator, "I would oppose this and any other legislation that undermines the family and our traditional values."

As for the economy, Waters said "this region is not getting its fair share of state resources and attention. Free enterprise, less government and higher productivity are the keys to our economic and unemployment problems.

"High morals, excellence and high productivity run parallel. That is what I wish to represent" in the Senate, he said.

The Daves House is the Tryon Palace Gift Shop.

The West Wing contains 19th century carriages.

The Poultry House, to the rear of the West Wing, provides Rest Rooms for your comfort.

Tryon Palace Gardens

You may enjoy just touring the gardens for a complete walking tour, ask for detailed map.

1. Stanly House Garden - These gardens are typical town house gardens of the late 18th century.
2. Caraway Garden - This parterre garden of small geometrically-shaped beds is centered with an Italian well-head.

3. Jones House Garden - Raised, brick-bordered beds around a brick patio and border flower beds along a picket fence.

4. Armillary Sphere - The Sphere was an object used in the study of astronomy.

5. Poultry House & Yard - Ten foot pickets are used to enclose the poultry yard. The chickens are English game chickens (Silver Duckwing). The English lead pump (ca. 1740) has all working parts exposed.

6. Dovecote - The circular dovecote furnished meat for the table.

7. Work Gardens - Many plants used throughout the gardens are propagated here.

8. Green Garden - All of the plants within this garden, with the exception of the blooms of the Crepe Myrtle, are green.

9. Maude Moore Latham Memorial Garden - This garden honors the restoration donor. The garden is of English design, a type with which Governor Tryon would have been familiar in England.

10. Hawk's Alee - Honoring the Palace architect.

11. Pleached Alee - Two rows of yaupon trained over a frame with branches interwoven form the Alee. Popular in the gardens of the 18th century.

13. Christopher Neale - The tombstone of Christopher Neale was being used as a doorstep when discovered in 1980 and placed here. Neal was a member of the North Carolina Assembly session approving the construction of the original Tryon Palace.

14. Flag Poles - The flag poles resembling ship's masts were a type used in England 200 years ago.

15. Cannon - This cannon is an 18-pounder, a sea cannon dating back to the late 17th or early 18th century.

16. Wilderness - The Wilderness areas represent the transition from the formal Baroque-Rococo design to a more naturalized design of the latter 18th century.

17. Monument - Architectural monuments were often features of English gardens. Here a Grecian Temple,

Once... Upon A Time

The tides of world history have lapped the banks of the Trent and Neuse Rivers at New Bern.

Because of New Bern's key location during the Civil War, World War II minesweeper construction on the New Bern waterfront and the close proximity of the Cherry Point Marine Corps air station and Camp LeJeune at Jacksonville, the lives of many local residents have been changed by international affairs.

But once upon a time, New Bern was the vortex. The storm center from which arose waves that changed world history.

From this tiny 18th century village (the largest town in North Carolina, population 650), named the royal capital of the province of North Carolina, marched the troops under Governor Tryon to put down rebellion at Alamance Creek. It has been called the first battle of the revolution. The ill-winds of this military suppression were carried by Whig newspapers throughout the colonies. Here was held the first provincial congress, meeting in defiance of the King's orders.

Hunter adds character, scene to drama 'The Rising Splendor'

A new drama concept by Kermit Hunter, author of the outdoor dramas Unto These Hills and Horn In The West, is unfolding at Tryon Palace, New Bern. This drama, called The Rising Splendor, is a series of short dramatic scenes the audience follows from room to room in the restoration of the 18th century royal governor's residence and colonial capital.

The concept is unique in that the audience is treated as guests of the governor and is privy to the personal lives and thoughts of his retainers and friends on June 28, 1771, two days in advance of Governor Tryon's departure from North Carolina to become the governor of the New York colony.

The time is just one month after Tryon, with troops from Eastern North Carolina, put down an insurrection at Alamance Creek, often called the first battle of the American Revolution.

There is nostalgia...one of Tryon's

"A new dimension has been added to the Tryon Palace Restoration" --

Lorraine Hale in

great triumphs was the completion of the grand capitol and home known as "Tryon's Palace". Leaving was not easy.

There are revolutionary thoughts with expressions of dissent for the English Parliament's treatment of the colonies and there is humor as we peek inside the daily lives of the residents and their staff. There is even a love affair going on.

There is something else unique. When commissioned, Kermit Hunter agreed each year to write a new scene. Besides the changing of the staging, there are new and different lines and a new and different character based on history.

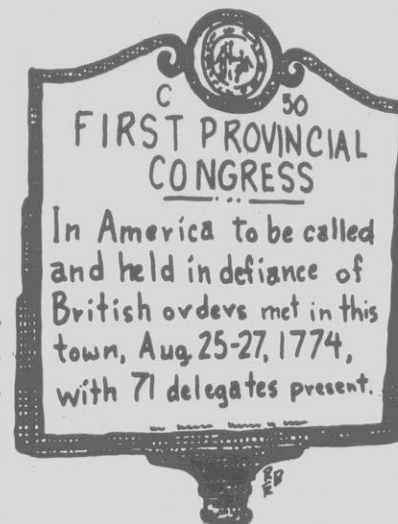

Added this year is the character of Hannah D., a cook, played by Michelle Sermon of New Bern. Hannah is a young, black woman with a thing or two to say about life at Tryon Palace.

All of the scenes are short. The entire drama requires the same length of time that the regular hosted tours of the Palace require. The tours, by Museum Guides, are interspersed with the drama tours throughout the day so that the Palace visitor can select a drama or museum guided tour as she or he prefers.

The drama tours are scheduled daily except Sunday and Wednesday, May 28 through August 18. They start at 10 and 11 a.m., 12 noon, and 1:30, 2:30 and 3:30 p.m.

On Sundays and Wednesdays, all tours are given by the regular museum guides.

Tryon Palace is open Monday through Saturday, 9:30 to 4; Sundays, 1:30 to 4. Last tour of the day is at 4 p.m.

And it was from the New Bern district that troops under Colonel Caswell marched south to save Wilmington from the Tory led Highland regiment, foiling the English parliament at Moore's Creek.

Washington's troops at Valley Forge were supplied through the New Bern port and in 1791 President Washington visited New Bern to express his appreciation.

Besides the beauty of the gardens, the majesty of the restored Tryon Palace, the antiquity of the old brick homes, these are the things the New Bern story is all about...the birth of a nation.

Elizabeth Midyette, New Bern, winds up the weight that in its slow fall turns the pulley and rope leading to the 200-year-old spit in front of the fireplace. It works.

There are three main cooking stations in the kitchen wing of the Tryon Palace.

A beehive oven between the coppers and fireplace cooked breads, cakes and cookies.

The main fireplace with its hanging racks, warming trays, and swivel arms provides cooking heat in many degrees and for many purposes.

18th century kitchen conveniences demonstrated by Palace hostesses

Anna Gilliken, framed by kitchen scales, shovels loaves of bread into the beehive oven beside the fireplace.

An 18th century room deodorizer made of rabbit tobacco and ginger sticks hangs from the ceiling beams along with other spices grown in the kitchen garden.

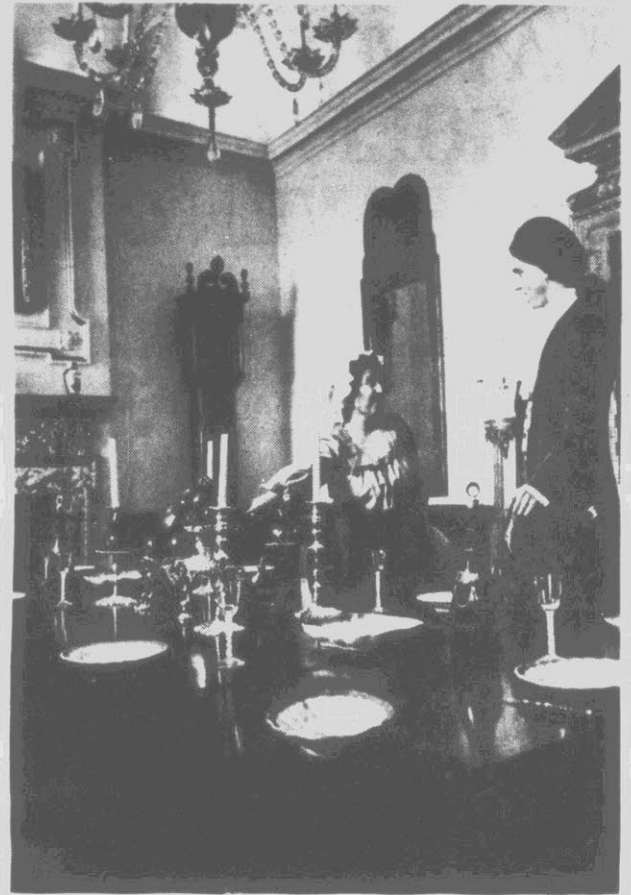

Linda Weller places a pan in a warming alcove of the fireplace. The rope that turns the wheel on the English spit, and irons and racks are in the foreground.

William Tryon, the royal governor, relaxes with his pipe as he and John Hawks, the Palace architect, reminisce about their two month voyage to the new world. Tryon is played by Robert Ruffin of Matthew, Va. and Hawks is played by Jeff Hargett, Concord, N.C. Both are ECU students.

Polly Partridge, a maid, played by Debbie Bristol of New Bern and the schoolmaster Tomlinson, played by Michael Pitts, Burlington, discuss an apple centerpiece in the Palace dining room.

THE CAST, from left to right: Polly Partridge, The Rev. Reed (Ben Haskin, New Bern), Mary Cornell (Linda Woolard, Washington), Isaac Edwards, Tryon's secretary (John Poole, New Bern), John Hawks, architect and builder, the Tryon's 10 year-old daughter little Margaret (played by both Jennifer Borowicz and Laurie Johnson, both of New Bern), Margaret wake Tryon, the governor's wife (Mary Kate Cunningham, Greenville, N.C.), schoolmaster Tomlinson and Samuel Cornell, New Bern businessman who loaned funds to build the Palace, equip the troops and survey the Cherokee border (Loren Mott, Havelock).

A NEW CHARACTER, this year is Hannah D. played by Michelle Sermon of New Bern. Hannah's side comments on the Palace residents and their friends adds a humorous insight into life as lived at the Palace.

PLAY THE RIVERSIDE GOLF COURSES OF CRAVEN COUNTY

Pack everything. Your golf shoes, your fishing rod, tennis racquet, walking shoes, casual and dressy attire, there's something for everyone.

One of the most unusual features of Craven County golf courses is that all are within walking distance of a marina. There's plenty of boating and swimming and it's a perfect base for side trips to the beaches of Carteret and Onslow Counties, just 45 minutes away.

GOLF COURSES:

Fairfield Harbour - 18 holes beside the Neuse River. 6,500 yards, par 72 championship course. Home of the Pepsi Pride Pro-Am Golf Tournament. Manicured greens with water winding throughout the course and abundant traps to try your skill. Driving range. Green fees accepted by making prior appointments. Call 638-8011, Broad Creek Road off NC 55, 5 miles East of New Bern. Phil Buzzelli, pro.

River Bend Plantation & Country Club - 18 holes, 6,500 yards, par 71. Features driving range, putting green, Bermuda grass, beside Trent River. Located six miles South of New Bern, Highway 17. Open to public. Call 638-2819. Dennis Sullivan, pro.

Carolina Pines Golf & Country Club - Par 72, 6,955 yards, beside the Neuse River. Begins and ends with a par 3 over water, Bermuda grass. Public invited. Driving range, putting green. Located 10 miles East of New Bern off Highway 70. Call 447-7121. Tom Johnson, pro.

Minnesott Beach Golf & Country Club - 18 holes, par 72. Course rated 68.5. Located beside the Neuse River in Pamlico County between Arapahoe and Minnesott. No sand traps, four holes play over water. Call 249-0813. Terry Bobbin, pro.

Quaker Neck Golf & Country Club - 18 holes, 70 par course, like playing the highlands of Scotland. Rolling hills, friendly local people. 12 miles South of New Bern at Pollocksville. Turn West on Highway 58. Bermuda greens, driving range. Call 224-5736. Arden C. Smith, pro.

TENNIS AND SWIMMING:

Harbour Town Racquet Club - Out of town guests may for a fee play and swim at this resort quality facility, six miles South of New Bern at River Bend. Six soft, clay courts, tournament ready, junior olympic swimming pool with lifeguards. Private marina and launching ramp next door. Call 633-2914. Al Mack, pro.

Fairfield Harbour - a selection of hard courts scattered throughout this resort property. Two swimming pools. Guests of property owners or Fairfield tour guests may use all facilities. Call 638-8011 for details. Private marina facilities.

There are numerous public tennis facilities available. Call the Chamber of Commerce, 637-3111.

FISHING, BOATING AND SAILING:

There are more than a dozen marinas within short driving distance of New Bern. There are boats for rent from skiffs to 40 foot sailboats. Boating trips can be arranged to sail Pamlico Sound.

Overnight guests should visit Oriental, the sailing capital of North Carolina. This quaint, almost New England style fishing village has several marinas, excellent restaurants and is a nice side-trip. Follow Highway NC 55 East from New Bern.

HISTORIC WALKING TOUR:

A taped walking tour of the historic district of New Bern is available from the Chamber of Commerce Visitor Information Center, 211 Broad Street, New Bern. Call 637-3111. Your trip to New Bern will be more enjoyable if you start at the Chamber of Commerce where brochure racks can better acquaint you with the opportunities for an adventurous and historic vacation.

Experience New Bern

By Lynn Brisson

Founded in 1710 by Swiss immigrant, Baron Christopher von Graffenreid, New Bern became a thriving seaport which left posterity a legacy rich with history. As such, present day New Bern offers an array of experiences to capture the interest and stimulate the imagination.

New Bern's history is preserved in many ways. The Firemen's Museum, founded by the two oldest continuously operating fire companies in the United States, exhibits antique fire engines, fire equipment (both U.S. and Swiss), historic flags, maps and pictures. Tim Conner is there to answer any questions and conduct a tour. The Firemen's Museum is located behind the fire station on Broad Street.

Another way to enjoy New Bern's past is through a taped walking tour in the historic districts. This tour, provided by the Chamber of Commerce, can be completed in an hour and a half. Although the tour is self-conducted, the tape explains the detailed background of the featured buildings.

Walking tours can also be made simply with the aid of a map, also found at the Chamber of Commerce. The maps, as well as placques on several buildings, briefly explain the history involved.

Pollock Street, named for the largest landowner in the area (by 1722 the Pollock family owned all of the land of present day New Bern), bisects the city north to south starting at the Neuse River.

Dotting the historic segment of the street are various shops. These shops range from The Leaves, a tobacco shop, to gift shops, which carry items such as colonial cookbooks, 18th century paperdolls, houseware and more. Other shops feature pictures, arts and crafts from local and commercial craftsmen, unique stationary, wine and cheese, gourmet cookware, New Bern memorabilia and imported Swiss chocolate.

A recent but culturally active addition to New Bern is the Craven Arts Council and Gallery, informally known as the Bank of the Arts. Located on Middle Street, the Bank of the Arts regularly features art in its many forms through artists, lectures, concerts, etc.

Currently papermaker Betty Harris' work entitled "Instruments" is displayed at the Bank of the Arts. This exhibit runs through June 6. Viewing hours are weekdays, 10 a.m. - 4 p.m.

From June 7 - July 3, tapestry artist Martha Matthews will be featured and in August the emphasis will be on Indian Heritage.

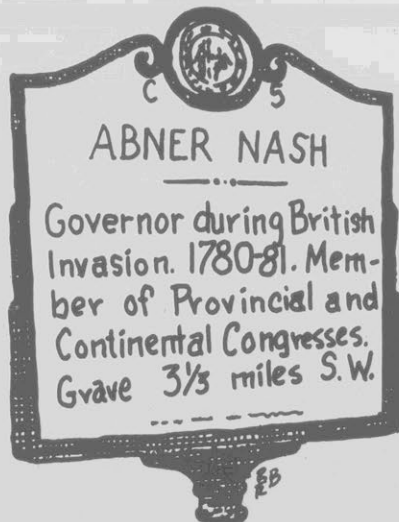

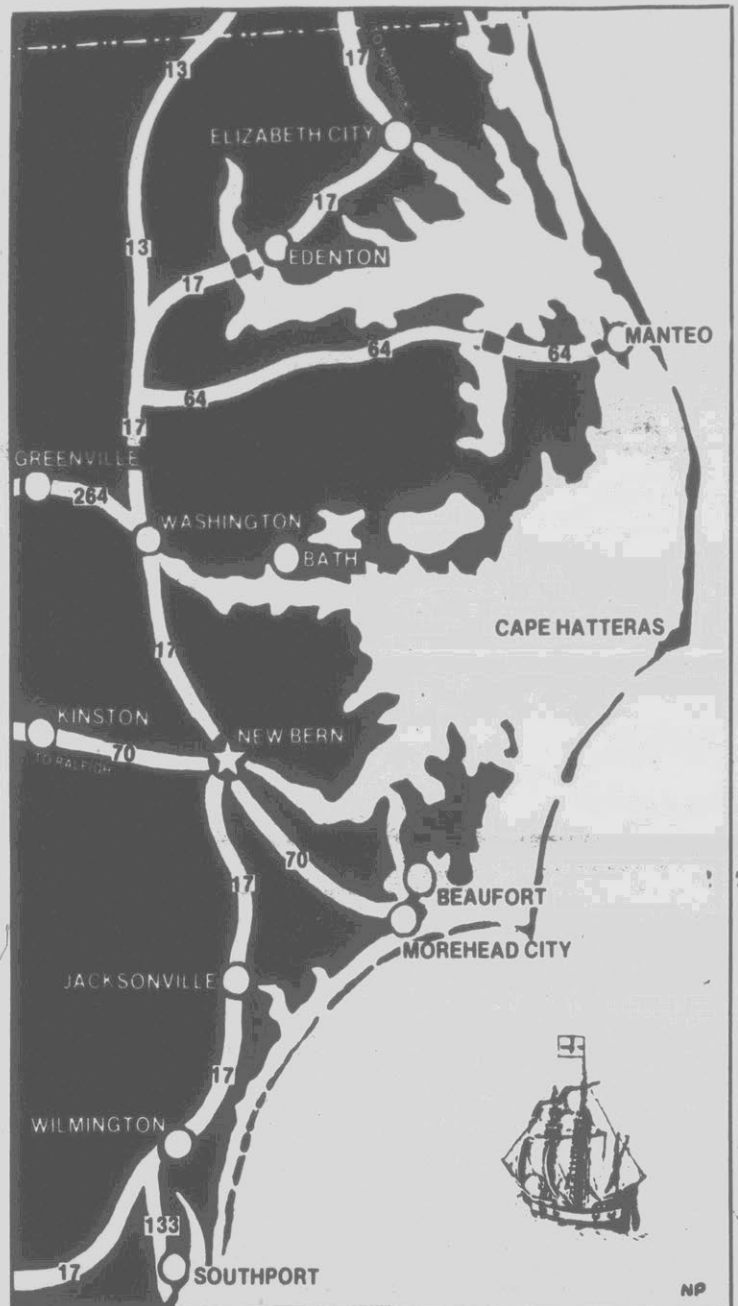

"Annie" will be presented on June 7-9 and June 14-16 at the Saax Bradbury Playhouse on Pollock Street by the New Bern Civic Theater.

Then beginning June 15, "Same Time Next Year," a two-act comedy, will be held in the Cabaret room of The Harvey Mansion, a 1798 Federal style brick structure built by ship owner and merchant, John Harvey. Today The Harvey Mansion offers a continental menu and periodically scheduled entertainment.

Dining in the area can be delightful, no matter one's preference. In addition to The Harvey Mansion, the Henderson House offers lunch with an 18th century flavor. The Federal Alley Tavern features a variety from quiches to prime rib and local seafood, Finnegan's specializes in sandwiches and Mexican delicacies, Dante's offers Italian cuisine and Fred and Claire's offers specialty casseroles. These are just a few of the many fine restaurants in the area. Others feature barbeque, subs, steaks, seafood and buffets.

Within New Bern are several motels, but if a passport into the past is sought, the Kings Arms Inn offers the ticket. Established in a house built around 1847-48 and boasting the "Finest Accommodations in Newberne," the Inn offers late 18th century style accommodations complete with fireplace and continental breakfast.

The face of New Bern is constantly changing and one upcoming change is the opening of the city's first Farmers Market, which will operate Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays from 7 a.m. until the produce is sold. The market will be a selling locale beginning the first week in June for local fruit and vegetable growers.

Over 140 entries listed in the National Register of Historic Places are from New Bern. These include houses built in the 18th and 19th centuries, the New Bern Academy (first public school in North Carolina), churches, the Masonic Lodge (the organization with which Presidents Washington and Monroe met on visits to New Bern) and many more.

One house of special interest is the Charles Slover House on Johnson Street. In addition to being the headquarters for Civil War General, Ambrose Burnside, it was also the home of C.D. Bradham, inventor of "Brad's Drink", now known worldwide as Pepsi Cola.

The Land of Colonial Adventure

When you think of adventure your thoughts turn to the exotic lands of India and Africa, but in the 16th, 17th and 18th centuries the land of English adventure was Eastern North Carolina - with its bays that held pirates, its raids by angry Tuscarora war parties, Spanish attacks on the mainland and the mystery of the disappearance of the English settlement at Manteo.

This year, 1984, the 400th anniversary of English America, is a good year to discover and to learn about America from its starting places.

If you have a boat you can sail the same waters where Blackbeard lay in wait for plunder. You can walk the trails explorer John Lawson described before he was burned to death by Indians who stuck lightwood splinters in his body and set him afire while alive. You can walk the grounds where the first English settlers walked and visit where the first child of English descent, Virginia Dare, was born. You can see old forts, climb to the top of lighthouses that have guarded these perilous coasts for a century or you can make your own drama tour, learning in a more delightful way about almost forgotten places in history. These drama tours will carry you right from the first settlement described in words and music by playwright Paul Green at Manteo to New Bern where Kermit Hunter's interpretative drama series walks you right back into a day just prior to the American Revolution.

If you like learning your history and having a good time, here's the schedule:

May 28 to August 18, New Bern - interpretative drama, "The Rising Splendor" at Tryon Palace. Set in June, 1771.

June 1 to September 3, Wilmington - sound and light spectacular with outdoor drama telling the story of the World War II battleship, North Carolina.

June 2 & 3; July 28, 29 and Sept. 22, 23, Morehead City - Fort Macon State Park reenactment of Civil War life at this fort overlooking the inlet.

June 15 to Sept. 1, Manteo - The Lost Colony, the first and longest running outdoor drama, tells about the first English settlement in America.

June 28 to Sept. 1, Bath - outdoor drama, "Blackbeard: Knight of the Black Flag" deals with an old resident of Bath - Edward Teach, the most famous of the 18th century pirates.

June 29 & 30, Beaufort - Old Homes Tour. July 1 to mid-August, Halifax - "First for Freedom", outdoor drama about the Revolution.

July 6 to August 19, Kenansville - "The Liberty Cart" outdoor drama.

July 13, 14 & 15, Roanoke Island - Celebration beginning of the 400th Anniversary of America.

Y'all come.
