New Leads Provided By Captured Convicts

RICHMOND (AP) — Law enforcement officials say the two most recently captured death row escapees have given them clues to the whereabouts of Linwood E. Briley and James D. Briley.

Of the six inmates who broke out of the maximum-security Mecklenburg Correctional Center May 31, only the two Briley brothers remain at large.

"We possibly have some information there," Robert Pence, agent in charge of the FBI's North Carolina office, said Sunday, two days after escapees Lem D. Tuggle and Willie Leroy Jones were recaptured in Vermont.

"But," he said, "I'm certainly not going to reveal that (information) till we have had a chance to look it over." He added that there had been "no substantial developments" about where the Brileys, who are from Richmond, might be.

Authorities say the Brileys, along with brother Anthony and friend Duncan Meekins, were involved in 11 murders and perhaps as many as 20 during a spree of robberies, rapes and killings in Richmond in 1979.

Virginia State Police Maj. Charles Robinson indicated that Tuggle and Jones had given questioners leads on the Brileys' possible escape route, although he said he was "not at liberty to say at this time" what the leads were.

"We're giving attention to all localities (where) we feel there is a chance the Brileys might be," said Robinson, field supervisor for Virginia's eastern district.

Linwood Briley, 30, was sentenced to death for the murder of a Richmond disc jockey. He was also given four life sentences for first-degree murder, 50 years on another murder charge, a life sentence for robbery, a life sentence for rape, 20 years for robbery and six years for the use of a firearm.

Of the six death row convicts who broke out of Mecklenburg, only Linwood Briley had an execution date set — Aug. 17.

James Briley, 28, received two death sentences on his murder convictions. Five years ago, he shot to death a Richmond couple and their 5-year-old son.

Anthony Briley, who was not involved in the escape, is serving 109 years at the Virginia State Penitentiary for three murder convictions.

The search for the Brileys continued in the border area near Warren County, N.C., where authorities have concentrated their efforts since the escape.

"Everything is in place as it was," Robinson said. "We're still following up all calls we get in, although they have reduced rather sharply."

The search command post in Warrenton, N.C., also was still operating, Pence said.

The North Carolina state police at the command post said there were no sightings and no unusual activity Sunday.

Tuggle, 32, was captured Friday after a gift shop robbery in Woodford, Va. Jones, 25, surrendered to Vermont State Police later that day near the Canadian border.

Virginia will seek to extradite the two from Vermont, state Corrections Department spokesman Wayne Farrar said Sunday.

Tuggle, who has refused to waive his extradition rights, is being held in St. Albans, Vt., while Jones is being held in St. Johnsbury, Vt.

The first two of the six escapees were captured within 24 hours of their breakout.

Earl Clanton Jr., 30, of Petersburg and Derrick L. Peterson, 22, of Hampton were captured in Warrenton, N.C., June 1 and were brought to the State Penitentiary in Richmond.

Authorities are worried the Brileys may be coming home.

"These people are in a class by themselves. They are incredibly, inhumanely mean," said Warren Von Schuch, the Richmond commonwealth's attorney who prosecuted the Brileys. "They are killing machines."

Candidates Are Spending As Much As Law Permits

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the Democrats are spending every dollar they can scrape together in their ferocious battle for the presidential nomination, President Reagan also is paying out as much as the law allows to roll unopposed to the Republican nod for a second term.

The federal spending limit for the nomination campaigns is $20.2 million, and a spokesman for the Reagan campaign said the president will spend every bit of that even though he has no real opposition. Half that amount will be federal matching money.

In fact, on May 8, Reagan amassed the delegates he needs for renomination — a total of 1,018. On that day, four states — Maryland, Indiana, North Carolina and Ohio — held primaries and Reagan won all the GOP delegates to bring his total to 1,032.

On the Democratic side, Walter F. Mondale, Sen. Gary Hart and the Rev. Jesse Jackson are spending as much as they can raise from contributors, federal matching funds and lenders.

Mondale, who managed after the June 5 primaries to push his delegate total over the 1,967 needed for a convention majority, has far outspent his rivals. So far, Mondale has spent $18 million. Hart's spending total is $11 million, while the Rev.

Jesse Jackson has laid out about $4 million.

In the complex world of federal campaign finance laws, there is no reason for Reagan or any other candidate to stop short of spending every dollar the law allows for the period between last Jan. 1 and the day the conventions complete their business of choosing presidential nominees.

The federal limits — the $20.2 million plus $4 million more for fund-raising costs — apply to that period and any of the money that is not spent cannot be saved up for use in the general election campaign.

Each party's nominee will get a check for $40.4 million in federal funds to finance his general election campaign. In addition, the two parties can spend $6.9 million each to help out the nominee.

The $20.2 million budget of the Reagan-Bush committee obviously is directed more toward the fall campaign than at any phantom opposition to the president's renomination.

John Buckley, a spokesman for the committee, said the budget is divided into five segments of about $4 million each. One is for voter registration, another for advertising and the others for establishing and staffing 50 state headquarters, for surrogate travel as well as any political trips by the president, and for national headquarters expenses such as salaries, telephones and polling.

So far, the Reagan campaign has spent about $12 million.

While the election law limits seem pretty straightforward, in practice they often seem made to be evaded if not broken.

The law allows parties to spend unlimited amounts of money for such patriotic purposes as getting people to register to vote, and that doesn't count against the limit for any particular candidate.

The Mondale campaign encouraged formation of delegate committees as vehicles to raise and spend money for candidates trying to win election as Mondale delegates.

Hart and Jackson cried foul and demanded that Mondale give the money back. Finally, in a decision that was prompted more by politics than by principle, the Federal Election Commission ruled that the money was not to be returned.

Tass Issues Complaint

MOSCOW (AP) — The official Soviet news agency Tass today accused American officials of "deliberately firing passions" by falsely charging that a U.S. diplomat was assaulted in Leningrad in April.

Robert Gillette, Moscow correspondent of the Los Angeles Times, said he was summoned to the Soviet Foreign Ministry for a formal complaint about his report on the incident. He had quoted unidentified sources as saying it was officially inspired.

A U.S. vice consul, Ronald Harms, was assaulted by at least two Soviets as he left a Leningrad restaurant April 17. Neither the U.S. Embassy here nor the State Department in Washington made the incident public until Gillette learned of it.

Gillette said a Soviet Foreign Ministry official told him his article "does not correspond to reality and is therefore regarded by us as a lie."

The Tass report did not refer to Gillette or his article. Accounts of the assault were carried by many Western news agencies.

The Soviet official also said the incident was settled in April between Soviet and American authorities, Gillette said. U.S. spokesmen said in May they had protested the incident to Soviet officials in Moscow, Leningrad and Washington.

Gillette said he told the Foreign Ministry he was confident his report was accurate.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said Harms was knocked to the ground and kicked during the incident.

The report by Tass denied this. It said a fight was started by a man Harms met in the Volkhov restaurant and claimed the man previously had been convicted of fraud and embezzlement. The news agency said the man instigated the fight "after too much drinking at the restaurant."

"Harms, who was present during the incident, did not get mixed up in the fight and voiced no complaints to the militia," Tass said.

"On showing his consulate card to a militiaman who came to the scene, Harms quickly retired without making any complaints," it added.

The agency said the man who started the fight had been sentenced to 10 days in jail because of the incident. The man was not identified by Tass.

Tass said the full circumstances as it outlined them had been made known to American officials six weeks ago.

"American officials are deliberately firing passions, awkwardly avoiding honest answers to journalists' questions about details of the 'incident,' which would clarify the true causes of the current rumpus," Tass said.

The U.S. Embassy in Moscow had no immediate comment on the Tass report.

Six Killed

SAVOY, Texas (AP) — A van driven by an intoxicated man crossed into oncoming traffic and collided with a car, killing all six people in the smaller vehicle, troopers said.

Five of the six were killed on impact Sunday night, and the sixth person died as authorities rushed to cut the top off the car, according to a Fannin County sheriff's dispatcher who asked not to be identified.

Life Goes On For Survivors Of Wis. Storm

BARNEVELD, Wis. (AP) — For the survivors of a tornado that devastated this farming town and killed nine people, life goes on. And for some, there is even reason for joy and hope in the midst of tragedy.

Tom and Kathy Mauger, who were tossed waterbed and all from their upstairs bedroom to their lawn when the tornado hit, have a new baby girl.

Mrs. Mauger, 26, gave birth to Danielle on Sunday. The youngster's grandmother, Mrs. Roman Schlimgen, said mother and daughter were both doing fine.

Doug Manteufel has a new bride. He married Tory McGraw of nearby Mount Horeb at St. Bridget's Catholic Church in Ridgeway because all that was left of St. Mary's Church back home was the steps.

The twister early Friday exploded along a broad ridge on which the community of 600 people sits. Some 200 people were injured, and dozens of dwellings, churches, the fire station, a feed mill and most other commercial structures were destroyed.

On Saturday, a flood of volunteer labor came from neighboring communities to help with the cleanup. A deputy sheriff said that after several hundred arrived in town, about 150 more had to be turned away because the scene was getting too congested.

A tuxedo rental company replaced the Manteufel-McGraw wedding party's white tuxedos for free, and Manteufel went to the altar with scratches on his face inflicted by the storm.

Wedding Ceremony Performed Saturday

MRS. LEE

Sherrilyn Dawn Stout was married to Alan Street Lee Saturday in a four o'clock ceremony at the First Christian Church of Robersonville. The Rev. David Cox performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Roy Stout of Lexington, Mo. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown Lee of Robersonville.

Patricia Draper of Myrtle Beach, S.C., and Lillian Clark of Richmond, Va., were maids of honor. Bridesmaids included cousin of the bride, Becke Sims of Lexington, Mo., sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Brooks Buck of Ayden, Mrs. Leslie Hales of Smithfield, Pam Patterson of Charlotte and Lisa Grimes of Cary. The flower girl was cousin of the bride, Erin Stout of Higginsville, Mo.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included brother of the bridegroom, Bob Lee of Ayden, brother of the bride, Randy Stout of Lexington, Mo., Billy Prudent of Richmond, Va., Clay Roberson of Banner Elk, Brian Jackson of Raleigh and Will Harris of Robersonville.

A program of organ music was presented by Put Carter. Denyse Smith sang "The Greatest of These is Love" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride wore her mother's wedding gown. The formal gown was designed with a bodice of ivory satin. The sheer overlay of the fitted bodice was embroidered in flowers forming a scalloped neckline and a pointed waist from which fell the full satin skirt. The overskirt featured a scalloped satin front panel and rows of sheer ruffles draping the back of the dress. She wore a walking veil attached to a Juliet cap trimmed in re-embroidered alencon lace. The bride carried a bouquet of sonja roses, daisies and baby's breath.

The attendants wore formal gown of coral moire taffeta with an underskirt of ivory moire taffeta. The dresses were styled with a ruffled neckline and a fitted bodice which was accented with a self-cummerbund. The full scalloped skirts were trimmed in bows. Each carried a cascade bouquet of coral and ivory.

The mother of the bride wore a street length dress of coral silk chiffon accented with a satin collar and cummerbund. The mother of the bridegroom selected a green dress of silk chiffon featuring a ruffled neckline.

Doris Wilson of Robersonville was mistress of ceremonies.

After a reception at the church, the couple left for a wedding trip in the Caymen Islands.

The bride is a graduate of Meredith College with a B.S. degree in business. The bridegroom graduated from N.C. State University with a B.S. in civil engineering and works for Daniels Construction Co.

The couple will be living in Raleigh.

A wedding breakfast was held at the First Baptist Church of Robersonville Saturday morning given by friends of the couple's parents. An after-rehearsal dinner was held at the Roanoke Country Club in Williamston and was given by the bridegroom's parents. A dance followed at the country club and was given by the bride's parents.

This two-toned cable pullover with scoop neck and three-quarter sleeves is as refreshing as a spring breeze. It is designed to be knit with a nubby cotton yarn in colors mimicking a whitecapped Caribbean sea. The gauge is 5 stitches per inch and directions are for sizes 10 through 18.

Although it appears to be one solid color in this black-and-white photograph, one side of the sweater is a pale aqua and the other a frosty white, with the two colors intertwining in the cable. This exciting pattern is sure to bring you compliments galore!

Fashion forecasters are predicting lots of geometric knits for the next few seasons with big blocks of triangles, rectangles, squares and stripes. Perhaps this would be a good time to discuss some tips on designing your own from basic patterns.

When you are working with two or more colors in Scandinavian or Fair Isle sweaters, you usually change color every few stitches and carry the yarn not in use loosely across the back of your work. With large blocks of color, however, you will use a separate skein, ball or bobbin of yarn for each color block. With two colors, you can easily work from skeins or balls; with more colors, bobbins are probably a better choice.

I have seen some interesting sweaters made from squares and triangles knitted separately then joined together, in much the same way as one might work with crocheted motifs. This is a smashing idea if you make very neat seams and enjoy sewing knit pieces together. But most knitters I know would throw up their hands in dismay at the very thought of that much seaming.

An easier method is to draw a picture of your design on graph paper. Buy graph paper with as many squares per inch as possible. Each graph square will represent one

Formerly one of the world's most pristine and unpolluted areas, Mt. Everest, 29,000 feet high in the Himalayas, now has much accumulated garbage, according to GEO Magazine. Things have gotten so bad that a group of Sherpa guides, trekking companies and mountain climbers is planning an expedition to clean up the world's highest mountain. Tens of thousands of non-degradable food containers are found on base camp sites, while empty oxygen cylinders and ice ladders litter the higher slopes.

stitch and each row of squares a row of stitches.

On your graph sheet, draw an outline of your general sweater shape, taking the information from the instructions for a basic sweater. Let's say that you have a knit gauge of 4 stitches and 6 rows per inch. Your directions tell you to cast on 70 stitches.

Draw two vertical lines leaving 70 squares between them. These will represent your side seams. Suppose you are to work 12 inches before shaping the armholes. Six rows times 12 inches equals 72 rows, so make your vertical lines 72 squares high.

Next you are to bind off 6 stitches at each underarm, so draw a horizontal line over 6 squares on each side. Outline any armhole and neckline decreases in a similar manner. If your graph sheet is not long enough, tape two or more sheets together.

When you have finished the sweater front outline, use a pencil to outline the various shapes, geometric or abstract, that you want on the sweater fronts. I use a pencil with a good eraser so I can change my mind until the design is just right.

Finally, color the areas with colored pencils or just write in the colors to be used. Using your graph sheet as your pattern, let your imagination go and send me a photograph if you create an exciting design!

Couple Says Vows Sunday Afternoon

The wedding ceremony of Marcia Lynn Edwards and J. Michael Board, both of Greenville, took place Sunday afternoon at four o'clock in the St. James United Methodist Church.

The bride is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Richard L. Edwards of Rocky Mount. Parents of the bridegroom are Virginia M. Thomas of Hattiesburg, Miss. and the late Paul A. Board.

The Rev. Dewey Tyson officiated at the double ring ceremony, assisted by the father of the bride. A program of wedding music was presented by organist Frances Cain and pianist Carol Smith. Soloist and guitarist Alice Medlin sang "The Wedding Song," "He Has Chosen You For Me" and a wedding prayer she composed.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal white gown of sheerganza and silk Venise lace. The gown was fashioned with a high neckline, a fan-shaped yoke of English embroidery outlined in silk Venise lace and lace capped sleeves. The flowing full skirt bordered with lace flowed into an attached chapel train. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion bordered in lace was attached to a schiffli embroidered lace caplet. She carried a bouquet of white daisies, baby's breath, stephanotis, light blue miniature carnations and heather.

Matron of honor was Cotton Edwards of Rocky Mount, sister-in-law of the bride. Bridesmaids were Marie Board, daughter of the bridegroom, and Parvin Brown, both of Greenville. Each attendant wore a formal gown of powder blue Irish linen. The sun dress-style gown was complemented by a matching jacket with capped sleeves and a ruffled back collar. The waist was tied with a powder blue satin sash. Each attendant carried a cascade bouquet of white daisies, baby's breath and heather.

Flower girls were Sheryl and Kimberly Edwards, nieces of the bride from Rocky Mount. Each flower girl wore a floor length gown of white eyelet lace with capped sleeves and a powder blue satin sash.

Earl W. Deal of Greenville served as best man. Ushers were Greg and Jim Edwards, both brothers of the bride from Rocky Mount, and Wilson Brown of Greenville.

The mother of the bride wore a full length medium blue gown with a phalaenopsis orchid corsage. The mother of the bridegroom wore a full length peach gown with a phalaenopsis orchid corsage.

Martha Lou Moye of Maury directed the wedding. Karrin Morris of Rocky Mount presided at the register.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception held in the church fellowship hall. The wedding cake served by Brenda Dixon of Black Jack, assisted by Zohreh Jafari of Gaithersburg, Md. Punch was poured by Lydia Hayes of Greenville and Missy Williams of Fayetteville. Holly Roberson of Rocky Mount passed out rice and bird seed bags.

A rehearsal dinner was held at the Three Steer Restaurant. A bridesmaids luncheon was given Saturday by Bett Hayes and Lydia Hayes at their home in Greenville. Several parties and showers were given for the bridal couple.

The bride is employed by Eastern Carolina Surgical Center and the bridegroom is employed by the Internal Revenue Service.

Following a wedding trip to the Outer Banks, the couple will reside in Greenville.

Abby Gives Advice For Father's Day Giving

DEAR READERS: Next Sunday (June 17) is Father's Day. Many believe Father's Day was invented by the merchants who saw a way to play on the sentiments of the buying public (after all, almost everybody has a father) and stimulate business. (Look what Mother's Day has done for the florists, greeting card people and retail merchants.)

Regardless of whose idea it was, it's a good one that has taken hold, and continues to bring joy to dear old Dad.

Last year, my Father's Day column brought a surprising number of requests from editors of church bulletins, newsletters and other publications asking permission to reprint it. Many readers wrote to say that they had put my suggestions to use, and found it more appreciated than any gift they had given Dad.

I was encouraged to run it annually, so here it is:

DEAR ABBY: The week before Father's Day, you wrote: "Don't give Dad another tie, shirt or wallet; give him something he will cherish forever—a letter telling him how much he means to you."

Well, I composed a letter on the bus to work that very morning, typed it on my lunch hour and mailed it to my father in a beautiful card that evening. He was actually my stepfather, but he had been more of a father to me than my real father. I knew it would mean a lot to him, especially since he was in the hospital at the time.

He died on July 5, and I'm so glad I wrote that letter. Now I can live with myself, knowing that he knew how I felt about him.

Thank you so very much for making me put my thoughts of love and gratitude on paper. If this letter helps just one person to do what I did, it was worth writing.

CLAUDIA IN SAN PABLO, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: My father wrote to you at least 12 years ago, and you put his letter in your column. You printed it twice on request. My father had it framed, and when we brought him here to live with us, he carried it in his hands for fear it might be damaged or lost.

When he heard his letter had been framed and hung in the chapel of a cemetery, he said, "What a pity it will be seen only by those for whom it is too late. It would accomplish more on the bulletin boards of high schools and colleges."

Abby, he made me promise that after he died I would write to you and ask you to run it again.

He died one week ago at age 72. Please print it once more for my beloved father.

FAITHFUL READER

DEAR READER: The letter that meant so much to your father has been requested more than any other. And here it is:

DEAR ABBY: I am the most heartbroken person on earth. I always found time to go everywhere else but to see my old, gray-haired parents. They sat home alone, loving me just the same.

It is too late now to give them those few hours of happiness I was too selfish and too busy to give, and now when I go to visit their graves and look at the green grass above them, I wonder if God will ever forgive me for the heartaches I must have caused them.

I pray that you will print this, Abby, to tell those who still have their parents to visit them and show their love and respect while there is still time. For it is later than you think.

TOO LATE

DEAR ABBY: To the flight attendant who is beside herself over mothers who breast-feed their babies in flight: In the first place, the sucking and swallowing equalizes the pressure during take-off and landing, preventing the excruciating pain babies sometimes experience in flight. (When they scream, that's the reason.)

Also, to suggest that a mother take her baby into the lavatory to nurse while other passengers wait in line to use the facilities is outrageous.

Abby, that flight attendant has a hang-up. She should hang up her wings!

Expansion Ahead

A number of Pitt County industries plan expansions, which will add jobs for area people and the search is continuing for new and quality industries.

John Chafee, executive director of the Pitt County Development Commission, recently attended the Medical Devices and In Vitro Diagnostic Manufacturing Conference in New York representing the N.C. Department of Commerce hoping to attract medical-related industries to the state.

Chafee cited the medical school and medical complex, a good mix of labor and other county advantages in seeking the location of medical related firms here. Climate, schools and cultural advantages are also seen as attractive to such industries, although labor, transportation and utilities are still prime considerations.

Construction of new water and sewer plants here will vastly improve the availability of these facilities. The county also has good rail freight service and an adequate airport. Construction of U.S. 264 should greatly improve the highway outlook for the county.

Major industry will not rush into Pitt County but we can expect solid expansion of existing industries and the eventual recruitment of new quality industries to contribute to growth in jobs and the local economy.

Safety Pays

Industrial safety records are closely watched by the North Carolina Department of Labor and by industries themselves.

The reason boils down to one basic point: accidents are costly not only to the involved worker but to his family and to the employer.

So there is sound personal and business basis for a policy of teaching and preaching the gospel of personal concern over safety not only in actual practice but in the thinking of individuals. The degree of effort in this direction varies; but it does prevail in workplaces.

Some efforts are more productive than others. In our area as many as 40 businesses, government units and service establishments were honored this month for their records in 1983.

Leading the pack in a program of recognitions and awards was Union Carbide Corp., Battery Products Division, in Greenville. It chalked up a remarkable 19th consecutive year and a total of 1.9 million safe employee hours without a lost-time or disabling injury.

That was no accident.

Our admiration and congratulations go to the Greenville Union Carbide plant, its employees and management, for a truly remarkable record.

Everyone Gets A Degree These Days

WASHINGTON — L. Frank Baum, who wrote "The Wizard of Oz," apparently felt that the American academic tradition of awarding honorary degrees was a joke. In his turn-of-the-century classic, even a scarecrow without a brain was able to get one.

Sixty-five years since Baum's death, the author's point has been lost on an America reared, largely through Hollywood, on Dorothy and the Wicked Witch. Since the first was issued at Harvard in 1682, the annual number of honorary degrees has reached an estimated 5,000, according to The New York Times. That the cause of honor has been well-served by this proliferation, however, is dubious.

Norman Cousins (University of Santa Clara), B.F. Skinner (Colby College) and Shirley Chisholm (MIT) are among the admittedly accomplished recipients of honorary degrees this year. But the list also includes some other, let's say, interesting personalities.

Burgess Meredith, an aging actor whose credits include "Rocky" and the defunct television series "Batman," received an honorary doctorate from Middlebury College. Gavin MacLeod, skipper on ABC's long-running "Love Boat" series, added an honorary degree to his earlier diploma from Ithaca College. New York television meteorologist Frank Field earned one from Queens College in New York. (In Ireland, President Reagan, sponsor of an illegal war against Nicaragua, was named an honorary doctor of laws.)

Katharine Graham and Arthur Ochs Sulzberger, who inherited control of the Washington Post and New York Times, respectively, are two of the media celebrities on this year's list (Ted Koppel, Phil Donahue and Dick Schaap are some of television's lucky honorees). It's also been a good year for astronauts and well-decorated generals.

Academia bestows honorary degrees for a variety of reasons. After recognition of faculty members, perhaps the oldest cause is gratitude to the institution's outside friends. Xavier University, for example, recently honored one Frederick Hauck as a "scientist, entrepreneur, friend of Cincinnati, champion of higher education and a benefactor of Xavier's physics department." At the University of Southern California, financier George T. Scharffenberger became an honorary doctor of human letters; since 1973, he has been a member of USC's board of trustees.

Another objective, ostensibly, is to cement new friendships. The corporate boards of IBM, AT&T, R.J. Reynolds and scores of other companies are well represented on the list of businessmen honored for their contributions to commerce and industry. Numerous politicians, along with the wives of New York's

Bluebirds Returning

The efforts of people concerned with environmental issues do pay off. A good case in point is that of the bluebird, said near extinction a decade ago. Throughout North Carolina, individuals alarmed at the prospect of the disappearance of this lovely songbird got to work. Sharing research, ideas and contributing long hours of efforts to interest and educate the public, these people effectively brought the plight of the bluebird to a wide audience.

This spring, sightings of bluebirds from nearly every eastern North Carolina county have been reported, often in numbers larger than ever before.

With more and more species of wildlife, both flora and fauna in our state critically endangered, it's reassuring to know that for at least one feathered creature the immediate future looks much brighter. It's also reassuring to know that man can do something effective about the world of nature around him.

Preparing For A Search

RALEIGH — When a child disappears, parents and police often respond very slowly. Precious hours are lost while parents "wait to see" if Little Johnny will come home. More precious hours can be lost while police refuse to enter a case.

The N.C. Task Force on Missing Children understands that solving North Carolina's share of a problem that involves an estimated 1.8 million children nationally will come only if root causes are found and eradicated. Children will continue to disappear as long as they are abused, as long as divorced parents have custody fights, as long as sick adults prey on them. But until prevention programs make this a perfect world in which children no longer disappear, there is much more which parents and police can do to find missing children. At its first meeting, the task force began to explore some suggestions.

The first step has to come from parents. Many missing children disappear without their parents ever reporting that fact to police. Others disappear and parents wait hours, days or weeks to tell police. Any successful recovery of a lost child requires that parents tell the police quickly.

The second step must come from police. Many departments won't enter a missing person's case until the person has been missing 24 hours. It's a practical decision. With overworked staffs, police don't need to be chasing around looking for people who just decided to stay out late one night or for kids who decided to play an extra game of ball.

But that 24-hour wait can often be critical. It gives runaways and kidnapers precious time to get away. Witnesses forget details, evidence blows away. The task force is considering a recommendation that all local police units be advised that there is no legal 24-hour waiting period policy in North Carolina and that in cases of missing children, there should be no 24-hour wait. Another suggestion is that police, immediately upon report of a missing child, begin gathering information about the child's whereabouts from friends, family and other relevant persons.

The state's Police Information Network may also be better utilized, the task force heard. When a child is reported missing, the basic facts should be discerned immediately and that information should go right onto the PIN computer, a draft recommendation in state and national computers.

PIN should also be used for transmitting administrative messages about missing children, the task force heard. And, PIN should make an effort to distribute the information it is receiving to police departments statewide. The task force heard that PIN might, for example, establish regularly scheduled times when current information on missing children would be distributed.

A Scriptwriter's Dream

Everybody is in a snarling mood these days in Washington. The latest hassle seems to be over television coverage in the House of Representatives. A group of Republican conservatives were using TV as a method of attacking liberal Democrats when they weren't there. While the House was not in session, the conservatives appeared at the podium and launched into vitriol against the opposition. Since House rules demanded that the cameras stay on the speaker, the C-Span cable viewer had no idea the Democrats being attacked were absent.

This enraged Speaker Tip O'Neill, who ordered the cameras to show that the Republicans were addressing their remarks to an empty House. This, in turn, enraged the conservatives, who thought they had found a new way of getting a lot of free TV time to sock it to their liberal colleagues.

Since congressmen are now in show business, many of them are putting TV scriptwriters on their staff.

I was in Rep. Sadness's office during a "story conference" last week.

The head writer said, "Congressman, the boys think you should attack Rep. Steeple for his stand on wanting to ban handguns in elementary schools."

"Is that Steeple's position on handguns?"

"We don't know and neither does the public, so whatever you say Steeple stands for is what they will believe."

"Suppose Steeple gets up after me to defend himself?"

"You're not going to attack him while Congress is in session. You'll do it after 'legislative hours' while no one is there, but the TV cameras are still rolling."

"Tip O'Neill is wise to us and has ordered the cameras to show an empty House while I'm speaking," Sadness said.

"We think we've solved that problem. For a few bucks we persuade one of the night cleaning people to sit at a desk and scowl the whole time you're questioning Steeple's patriotism. Keep pointing your finger at the cleaner as you accuse him of every dirty commie trick in the book."

"But how can the cleaning man be Steeple?"

"You're never going to say? he is Steeple. But by looking at him with contempt while you're speaking, viewers are just going to assume he is. Nobody knows what Steeple looks like except for a few voters in his district."

"What happens when I'm finished hitting Steeple below the belt? Does the cleaning man come up and respond?"

"He can't answer you if he isn't Steeple. He'd be arrested for impersonating a congressman. But if he slinks out with his head bowed and his broom between his legs, the TV audience will believe everything you said about Steeple was true."

The congressman said, "It's a great idea. I know a cleaning man who looks like an unshaven Attila the Hun. He'd be perfect for the Steeple role. Suppose Tip O'Neill finds out what we've done and he attacks me."

Change

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For nearly two decades, Northern California's Silicon Valley has been perceived as the dominant force in the glamorous high-technology industry.

Now, challenges to that perception are being mounted by Southern California high-tech firms, which comprise a bigger chunk of the industry but suffer from a lower profile because they are so widely dispersed.

"The idea persists that because Southern California is so splintered, it is not a major high-technology center, and that simply isn't true," says Dr. Steven Panzer, a management consultant who last year formed a network of chief executives to build a more cohesive and effective high-tech community in Los Angeles and Orange counties.

"The biggest problem we have had is a sense of isolation," he adds.

In addition, San Diego County's Sorrento Valley, which began as a tiny industrial center a quarter of a century ago, recently has gained a significant foothold in the state's multi-billion-dollar high-tech industry and is undergoing a decade-long expansion designed to quadruple its size.

However, problems quickly arise when someone tries to pin down the size of the industry in the state — let alone by region — because of disputes over what is and isn't high-tech.

The U.S. Census Bureau, California Department of Finance and Bank of America include aircraft and missiles. Others, such as Stan Levy, a senior economist at the Center for Continuing Study of the California Economy in Palo Alto, argue that high-tech properly should be restricted to computers, communications equipment and electrical components and instruments.

The difference is substantial. With aerospace, California's high-tech industry would employ nearly 690,000 people and have sales of about $67 billion a year. Without it, the industry would be only two-thirds as large.

Either way, the Los Angeles-Orange County megalopolis eclipses Silicon Valley.

"This was a real eye-opener," Duane Paul, a vice president and senior economist for Bank of America in Los Angeles, said after compiling regional statistics at the request of The Associated Press. "Normally when people talk about high-tech, the first thing that comes to mind is the Silicon Valley."

What Paul found — using U.S. Census Bureau data that include aerospace — was that slightly more than two-thirds of the high-tech industry in California is centered in Los Angeles and Orange counties. The Silicon Valley, in Santa Clara County south of San Francisco, has about 25 percent, while San Diego County has a little more than seven percent.

Even after omitting aerospace, Los Angeles and Orange counties retain nearly 52 percent of the industry, while Santa Clara has slightly over 41 percent and San Diego County the rest.

But reality sometimes has little to do with perception, and the generally accepted notion of Silicon Valley's dominance is the primary target of Panzer's group — Southern California Technology Executives Network.

Strength For Today

As we ride in commercial aircraft today it is difficult to realize that a hundred years ago authorities maintained that it would be impossible for human beings to travel more than 30 miles an hour.

Science has made tremendous changes in our lifestyles in recent times. But, although standards of living have been raised, life is more in jeopardy now than it ever was before. We have more comforts than mankind ever had in the past, and also greater prospect of death by cruel forms of lethal warfare.

Science and the soul of man are running a race, and so far science is in the lead. Until we learn to put scientific discoveries under the control of spiritual principles we may expect deep trouble.

We shall never breathe easily until the soul takes the lead in the race. The overall picture of the spiritual condition of man is far from reassuring.

IN THE STATE

Lobbyists Seek Imports Relief

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lobbyists from several of North Carolina's main industries have been conducting a high profile campaign to convince President Reagan and Congress that protection from imports is needed.

The trade problem is simple, protectionist proponents say. The larger the number of cheap imports, the smaller the market is for goods produced in the United States. The smaller the market, the larger the number of unemployed workers.

others want to freeze imports at 1983 levels. A freeze, they claim, will give the U.S. textile industry time to reorganize and become competitive with cheaper imports.

Broyhill said last week he would introduce a freeze bill for the textile industry this week, but he was not optimistic on its chances for passage this year.

The solution, however, is not as simple as some would have the public believe, according to the Rep. Stephen L. Neal, D-N.C., the chairman of the House Banking subcommittee on international trade and monetary policy.

Neal said that when the U.S. limits the number of imported items, the government should expect retaliation against the country's goods.

"The main problem is that the value of the dollar has gone up relative to the foreign currencies. That makes our products more expensive on the world market," Neal said in a recent interview. "The only way to correct this imbalance is to get the ($200 billion) federal budget deficit under control. The ideal solution to that would be through budget cuts and revenue enhancements and, until that happens, we have a number of leading industries being adversely affected."

Lobbyists for the tobacco, textile, furniture and shoe industries can cite statistics showing huge increases in goods from foreign competitors. The government, however, has questioned in some instances whether increases have actually harmed the industries.

Many lobbyists say they feel that their chances for protection are enhanced because it is an election year and President Reagan, in an effort to appeal to workers, might be more sympathetic to their requests.

North Carolina is the nation's leading producer of tobacco, textiles and furniture. It has been ranked 13th in the U.S. in the production of shoes, but that ranking could fall after the close of Melville Footwear Manufacturing Co.'s three plants. Those closings put 2,000 people out of work.

Reagan recently signed an executive order to aid the textile industry, but industry leaders and its friends in Congress, including Rep. James T. Broyhill, R-N.C., the co-chairman of the Congressional Textile Caucus, said the president's effort didn't go far enough.

Rather than the stronger enforcement of quotas promised in Reagan's order, Broyhill and the

Onslow Is Booming

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — It has been more than 40 years since Camp Lejeune Marine Corps Base was established, transforming Jacksonville from a rural community to a boom town.

Although figures from the Onslow Economic Development Commission show more than 800 service people leave the military at Camp Lejeune each month, local officials say more military people apparently are staying in the Onslow area.

That could be part of the reason developers keep building, despite high interest rates. The new projects stretch from the inland rural areas to the beaches of Onslow County, allowing the county to rival construction in the state's metropolitan areas.

"It's booming all over the county," said Onslow zoning officer Cary Brigman.

Jacksonville, which ranks 20th in the state in population, ranked 11th in spending on building activity last year.

In Jacksonville, the value of new construction has increased from about $18.3 million in 1981 to $33.6 million last year and is projected to rise to about $40 million in 1984.

And in Onslow County, building permits were issued for 250 new single-family units in March. That's the third-highest amount in the state. Only Mecklenburg County, with 591 units, and Wake County, with 529, were higher.

Jacksonville ranked seventh in the state in that statistic with 42 units and seventh in total value with permits issued for $4.1 million in residential and non-residential construction.

Gary M. Mercer, a Jacksonville real estate agent and past president of the area homebuilders association, said military people who used to move to the West Coast and Washington, D.C., after leaving the service are now settling in Eastern North Carolina.

"A lot of them are finding that a house they pay $75,000 for here, they can't touch for (less than) $200,000 on the West Coast," he said.

And Mercer said Jacksonville's image is changing. "Over the years, Jacksonville is coming out of the camp-city atmosphere," he said. "It's expanding."

Fighting Dam

ASBURY (AP) — John E. Williams wants to build a dam to produce hydroelectric power, but he is distressed by the reaction of officials and residents in Stokes County who say they just don't want it.

The proposed site for the dam is at the crossing of a 70-year-old, one-lane bridge, old Stokes No. 75.

Williams' proposal would create a 6-acre lake upstream of the bridge site.

"We just flat out don't want it," Stokes commissioner William H. Gentry said of the 21-foot-high, 122-foot-wide dam that Williams wants to erect at Joyce Mill Road, a mile south of the Virginia border.

UNC Board Studying Secret Ballot Move

WILMINGTON (AP) — A University of North Carolina Board of Governors committee is studying a proposal that would elect the board chairman by secret written ballot instead of by voice vote in an open meeting.

Board member R. Phillip Haire of Sylva presented the plan at a Friday meeting, noting the board's code "does not provide a specific procedure for the nomination and election of officers to the board and ... this motion is offered for use during the election of officers at the July 1984 meeting for the term August 1984 to July 1986."

Under state law, the board is required to select from its membership a chairman, vice chairman and secretary during each even-numbered year to serve two-year terms. The method of election is not specified.

John R. Jordan Jr., of Raleigh, the current chairman whose term expires July 1, would be ineligible for nomination to the top post.

During the board meeting, questions were raised about whether the new election procedure would violate the state's open meetings law. The proposal was sent for study to the board's governance committee, which Haire said would seek an advisory opinion from the attorney general's office.

In other business, the board adopted a revised faculty consulting policy designed to protect its 16 institutions against conflicts of interest.

IF A FILLING FALLS OUT

Every dentist I've ever met would like his patient's fillings to last forever. However, while a good many restorations do sustain for the life of the tooth, no filling ever becomes an organic, integral part of it. Thus none CAN be guaranteed to last indefinitely.

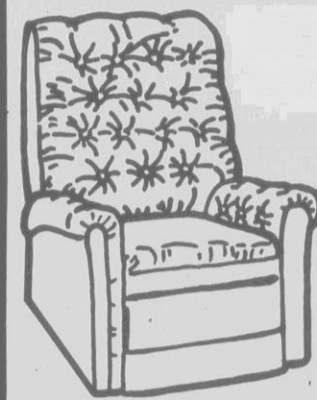

Even a filling placed with the best of intentions and preparation can fail for a variety of reasons. If there is not enough of an undercut in the remaining tooth structure, the filling can fall out. Occasionally a part of the tooth around the filling will break, loosening the lock.

and the filling will fall out. If decay somehow recurs, the filling may become surrounded by decay, loosen and fall out. It should also be noted that, the larger the filling, the greater the risk of fracture from chewing forces.

What can you do when a filling does fall out? First, rinse your mouth carefully with lukewarm water to make sure the cavity is clean. If there is discomfort, a drop of oil of cloves on a piece of cotton will lessen it. See your dentist as soon as possible and have the filling replaced.

Nursing Home Death Probed

SAVOY, Texas (AP) — State health officials are investigating how cleaning fluid was mistaken for cranberry juice and served to five nursing home patients, including an elderly woman who drank two glasses, authorities said.

Dorie Emerson, 83, died after she was fed two glasses of an industrial-strength cleaning solvent with dinner Friday at the Savoy Nursing Home in Savoy, about 65 miles northeast of Dallas, officials said.

A second woman, Emma Zuver, 57, was reported in satisfactory condition Sunday at a Denison hospital with second-degree burns to her mouth and throat. She was fed two glasses of the cleaning fluid, family members told the Dallas Morning News.

Three other patients who drank the cleaning fluid had no side effects and were not hospitalized, said nursing home administrator Joan Pierce, who called the incident a "freak accident."

Ms. Pierce said remodeling in the kitchen had been "chaotic" and that cranberry juice may have been mixed up with chemicals used by a painting crew.

She refused to identify the liquid, but said it was "non-toxic, non-corrosive, non-flammable cleaning solution."

However, a Texoma Medical Center nursing supervisor told the News that the liquid was corrosive and that Mrs. Zuver suffered burns in her throat from drinking it.

"We're watching her throat. She drank a caustic material, so we're watching for burns throughout," said the nursing supervisor, who was not identified.

Investigators believe the incident was accidental, said Fannin County Chief Deputy Sheriff Jack Robinson, who was to meet today with nursing home officials and investigators from the state Department of Health.

"What we're talking about is probably negligence on an employee's part," he said. "We don't know if what they served was toxic or not. You have to understand that these are elderly people."

The Dallas County medical examiner's office completed an autopsy on Mrs. Emerson on Sunday, but authorities said it could be several weeks to determine the exact cause of her death.

Specifications and bid information may be obtained from the Community Development Office at City Hall, Monday through Friday, 8:00 A.M., to 5:00 P.M. For more information, please call Jesse Ebron, Rehabilitation Officer, at 752-4137, ext. 236.

There are no bargains in health coverage. Some plans are just better than others.

Common sense and past experience will tell you that, if your health plan is sound, its cost will be fair.

Well then, how sound is it?

How appropriate is the coverage and how accurately does it anticipate your needs?

You know what it costs. But what is it worth?

High-value coverage vs. bargain rates.

The single most important determinant of your plan's value will be the information used to construct it.

For example, annual utilization estimates for a specific group in a specific locale should not be based on gross regional or even state averages, but on actual local data.

How much will your coverage cost 12 months from now?

And even within communities, careful distinctions should be drawn between facilities, physicians, and support services such as labs.

That's why we maintain the most comprehensive database of its kind in North Carolina.

It's the basic resource that enables us to help our subscribers choose their options so wisely.

And their deductibles.

And their risk-levels.

And it also makes all the difference between paying lip-service to cost-containment and actually helping our subscribers adopt workable strategies.

Cost-containment made practical.

For example, since an average hospital day in North Carolina now costs about $418, every group should do what it can to control its need for hospitalization.

But given the specific composition of your group, how and to what extent would reduced hospital stays be possible?

And given the specific cost of health care in your community, what would be your options for containing those costs?

We can help you answer those questions with a precision that simply isn't possible for anyone else.

How we save $185 million a year.

Precision, as a matter of fact, might be our most distinguishing characteristic.

You'll find it in the way we review claims to verify their validity.

And coordinate benefits to prevent overpayments.

And monitor changes in health-care costs, so we can question claims that appear unusual or excessive.

Out of each dollar received in fees, we spend less than 6¢ to cover all our expenses. The rest is used to benefit our subscribers.

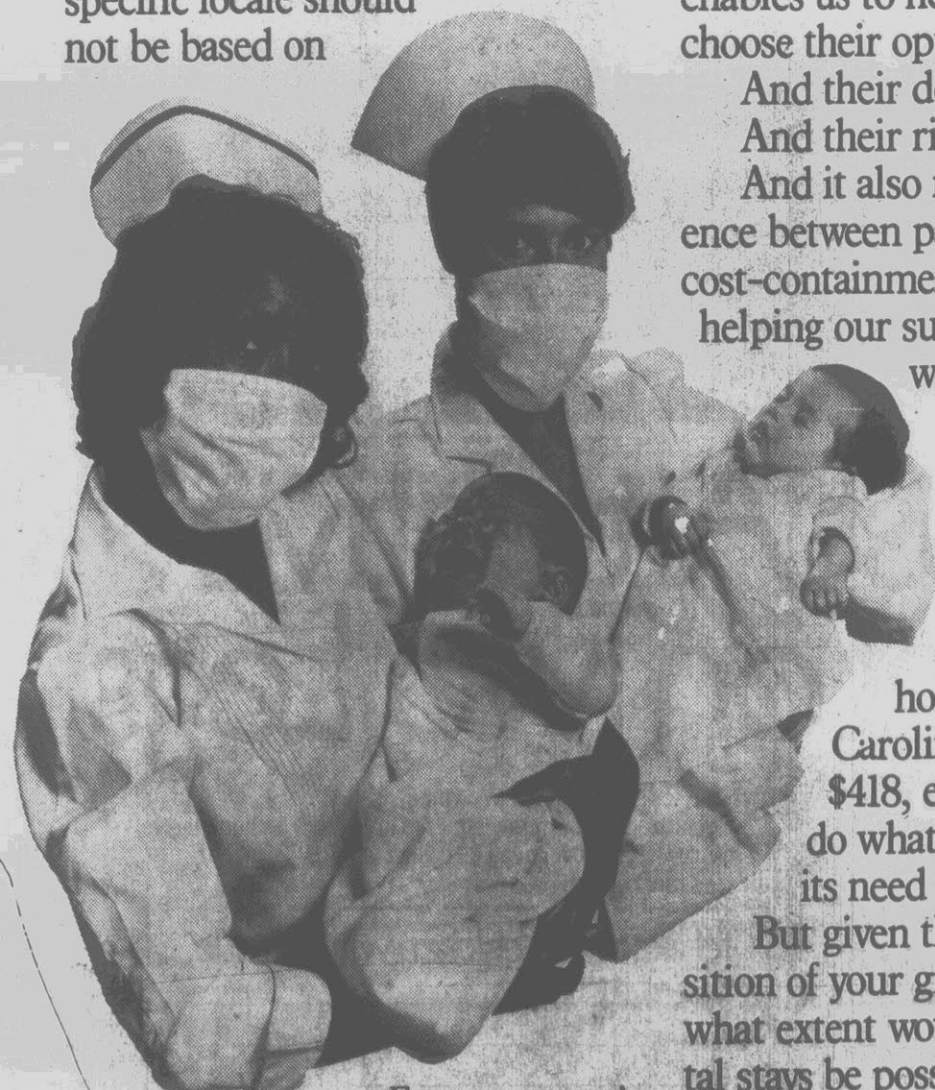

The result is high-value coverage that saves more money than any bargain-rate ever could.

Last year those savings came to more than $185 million. To learn how your group can share in them, just call our nearest office.

Or write to Cost Containment, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina, Box 2291, Durham, NC 27702.

The better you understand health coverage the more you'll prefer ours.

From an actuary's viewpoint, having a baby in Thomasville is not necessarily the same thing as having a baby in Greenville.

Mental Health Perspectives

Group Psychotherapy
by Jay Ritzer, Adult Services

One of the types of therapy used by the adult services area of the Mental Health Center is group psychotherapy. This technique involves clients and co-therapists working together to change interpersonal behavior. Under the guidance of two psychologists, as co-leaders, the group meets weekly for approximately 75-90 minutes. The group is "open-ended", accepting new referrals and will continue as long as there is an interest.

Referrals to the group must be "screened" by one of the co-leaders to determine if the group is appropriate for them. This screening allows the client to discuss the goals they expect to obtain with the help of the group. The adult psychotherapy group is usually limited to 7 or 8 individuals. Any client being considered for group psychotherapy should feel their problem primarily involves their relationships with other people - family, friends or fellow workers. The client should be committed to changing their behavior - such as a shy person wanting to increase social contacts and reduce feelings of isolation. The client needs to be receptive to feedback from the other group members. The effects of the group, changes in behavior, and efforts to change should be reported to the group. The client should also show a willingness to help others by being supportive in the group setting.

Group psychotherapy is a dynamic, constructive and beneficial process which can be used to work on a variety of interpersonal problems. If you want more information on this topic, call 752-7151.

The Most Attractive Investment on Two Legs

Quality makes ours the preferred bird by far with consumers in the Northeast. Grocers tell us that Perdue chickens practically walk out of the meat case.

That consumer demand along with Perdue's liberal producer contract arrangements make a Perdue poultry house a most attractive investment for you.

On the average, Perdue poultry houses bring in a greater percentage return than other crops. (Exact return depends on individual loan arrangements.)

At the same time, a Perdue house generates a substantial positive cash flow, so your net worth can continue to increase.

Plus, building a Perdue poultry house makes you eligible for a 10-percent investment tax credit, which can be carried backward three years or forward 15 years. That means 10 percent of the construction cost can be subtracted directly from the federal income taxes you owe.

More attractive farm investments are scarce as hen's teeth. So return the coupon, or call us collect at (919)795-4151, and let's talk chicken.

N.C. Couple Expecting Test-Tube Triplets

MOORESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Margaret Lyerly describes it as being on a freeway and taking the bypass. Her husband Chris, compares it to taking an aspirin.

The Iredell County couple see themselves only as the beneficiary of medical science. With God's help, the miracle was up to them.

The Lyerlys are expecting triplets, the first multiple-birth, test-tube babies that will be born in North Carolina, said Kathy Bartlett, spokeswoman for North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill. The hospital houses the clinic where in vitro fertilization occurred.

Mrs. Lyerly's Fallopian tubes were blocked. Even after an expensive operation, they closed again. The test-tube or in vitro process of fertilizing the woman's egg with the man's sperm outside the womb represented the bypass Mrs. Lyerly talks about.

Now, the clinical aspect of becoming pregnant has passed. Mrs. Lyerly is like any other woman five months pregnant and expecting triplets.

"Three's fine with us," Lyerly says, smiling.

Chris and Margaret Lyerly have put behind them six years of not being pregnant. While nothing went right for them during that period, they've beaten all the odds in the in vitro process. They were just hoping to have a child. Triplets are a bonus.

"We asked for this, and you take what you get," Mrs. Lyerly says.

To people who might accuse the couple of having taken God out of the process of becoming pregnant, Mrs. Lyerly says who else but God decided what embryos were to be fertilized. Medical science isn't performing the miracle, just facilitating it, Mrs. Lyerly says.

As news of Mrs. Lyerly's pregnancy has spread, the couple have opened up their home to newspaper reporters and television cameras. They expect more of the same when the babies are born. Due date is Oct. 20. They're hoping to at least make it into September, their anniversary month.

"Somebody's going to hear about it that needs to hear about it," says Mrs. Lyerly, who knows better than anyone that one out of five couples experiences fertility problems.

When the couple decided to try having a family, they initially did not worry about their difficulty in conceiving. Doctors told them to keep trying. Each time they returned to the doctors, they seemed to eliminate one more thing as the reason for Mrs. Lyerly's not becoming pregnant.

Finally, they determined her Fallopian tubes were blocked, meaning her eggs could not get down to the uterus to be fertilized. In the fall of 1980, they were referred to a Philadelphia surgeon for a major, two-part, abdominal operation to open up the tubes. Up to seven years after the surgery, a woman can become pregnant, but an X-ray showed Mrs. Lyerly's tubes to be closed again within a year.

"That's when we started saying, 'What can we do now,'" Mrs. Lyerly says.

Adoption was an option. And by then, they had heard about a test-tube clinic in Norfolk, Va.

Dr. Edwin Fulghum of Statesville knew about a new in vitro clinic at N.C. Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill and made some calls on behalf of the couple. After months of screening — the clinic doesn't want any couple to spend money on the process if it knows it won't work for them — the Lyerlys qualified. They also ranked in priority.

"If you've tried everything already, you get higher in priority," Mrs. Lyerly says.

For seven straight days, Mrs. Lyerly commuted to Chapel Hill, arriving at the clinic at 8 a.m. for her blood sample. "Everything peaked exactly for me," Mrs. Lyerly says.

She was given the protein hormone, HCG, causing a woman to ovulate 38 hours after receiving it. What Mrs. Lyerly called a simple "belly-button operation" followed in which five healthy eggs were retrieved and monitored for four hours before being fertilized by sperm from Chris.

The five eggs were fertilized in a Pyrex dish. The next 48 hours are the most crucial. If the sperm and eggs cleave, an embryo is formed.

"You just wait during that 48 hours, and you wait for that telephone call," Mrs. Lyerly says.

The call was nothing but good news. Four embryos had been formed, meaning Mrs. Lyerly had about a 40 percent chance of becoming pregnant.

She returned one more time to Chapel Hill for the eggs to be implanted in her uterus.

In 10 days, the clinic performed a pregnancy test that showed positive for Mrs. Lyerly. Still, a second test after 14 days was needed. This one was particularly positive and the first indication that multiple babies may be involved.

As with every pregnancy, the in vitro clinic, headed by Dr. Luther Talbert, celebrated. The clinic has had one test-tube birth to date. Needless to say, the Lyerlys and their families were ecstatic.

"We knew all about not being pregnant — being pregnant is new," Lyerly says.

For 12 weeks, Mrs. Lyerly continued taking progesterone shots. The first ultrasound tests showed three embryonic sacs, but Fulghum could detect only two heartbeats. The Lyerlys figured they were having twins. Fulghum calculated that one sac may have twisted to appear as two. Two weeks ago, Fulghum's next ultrasound revealed a surprise — triplets.

The couple already have names chosen, but are one behind in the number of baby items they have been buying or receiving. They bought two matching oak cribs on sale, for example. Now they're having trouble finding a third.

Mrs. Lyerly is an assistant quality control manager at the Burlington Industries plant in Mooresville. Chris, 32, is a contractor for Oak Tree Builders of Mooresville. The couple plan to go to the Chapel Hill hospital by helicopter.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed lower today, weighed down by interest-rate worries.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 4.59 to 1,126.66 in the first half hour.

Losers took a 6-5 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Interest rates were mostly higher in the bond and short-term money markets this morning. Analysts said there were widespread expectations that the Federal Reserve would follow a relatively restrictive credit policy in the months ahead, trying to counter fears of a revival of inflation.

With interest rates at their present levels, many observers say, investors have little incentive to take the risks involved in buying stocks when they can get generous returns on fixed-income securities such as Treasury bills.

Today's early prices included General Motors, down 1/4 at 65; American Telephone & Telegraph, down 1/4 at 15, and Tandy, off 1/8 at 27 1/2.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average slipped 1.19 to 1,131.25, finishing the week with a net gain of 6.90 points.

Advances slightly outpaced declines on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 67.84 million shares, against 82.12 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose .16 to 89.33. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .09 at 203.66.

Spies On Tour To Skip Crowd

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Spies gotta travel, too, so CBS' "Scarecrow and Mrs. King" are heading for Europe this summer.

The comedy-adventure, like a number of other shows, is getting out of town during the Summer Olympics. Other shows leaving town to avoid Olympics congestion include "Simon & Simon," "Knots Landing," "Paper Dolls," "Benson," "Remington Steele" and "Knight Rider." All of the Aaron Spelling shows will shut down production during the games.

"Scarecrow" will start production on June 18 in Salzburg, Austria. Then the crew is off to Munich, Germany, and the picturesque town of Tegernsee in the Bavarian Alps.

The show then moves to England, where it will film in and around the historic 10,000-acre Hatfield House on the outskirts of London. Various sites around London will also be used.

"Scarecrow," which stars Kate Jackson and Bruce Boxleitner, will film five episodes abroad.

Murder Charge

Greenville police have charged Percy Lofton, 66, of 107 Oakdale Road, with murder in connection with the shooting death of his daughter, Elma Staton, also of 107 Oakdale Road, early Sunday morning.

Detective C.E. Weatherington said Lofton shot his daughter two times with a pistol about 6:28 a.m. in the living room of their dwelling.

Lofton, who left the home following the shooting, was taken into custody a short distance away on Greenville Boulevard about 6:42 a.m., Weatherington said.

than law, Mondale tried to defuse the fuss by asking the committees to disband and said he would voluntarily return contributions that were from political action committees. At the outset of his campaign, the former vice president said he would refuse contributions from PACs. But the delegate committees accepted PAC money.

The delegate committees were semi-independent of the Mondale campaign. Under the law they were allowed some contact.

But groups like the National Conservative Political Action Committee and the Fund for a Conservative Majority are so-called multi-candidate independent expenditure committees and are required by law to maintain strict independence from the people they support.

The Federal Election Commission has been fighting a losing battle in court to try to block the two conservative groups from spending millions of dollars this fall advocating the re-election of the president. The FEC maintains that the groups should be limited to $1,000 each.

NCPAC has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in Senate races, most of the money on advertising

Lakers Even Series With 119-108 Win

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley never had any doubt that Kareem Abdul-Jabbar would play.

Abdul-Jabbar, suffering from another excruciating migraine headache, was listed as questionable for the Game 6 of the NBA Championship Series Sunday after missing the pre-game warmup and a team meeting.

But he was there when the game began, scoring 30 points, nine in the closing minutes, as the Lakers made up an 11-point deficit and beat the Boston Celtics 119-108 to force a deciding seventh game Tuesday night.

"I had no doubt that he would play," said Riley. "If two trucks ran over his head, he'd be out there. He was an inspiration."

Abdul-Jabbar said the headache cleared an hour before the game. The 37-year-old center scored 31 points in the series opener after overcoming another migraine.

"I'm going to try to order another migraine for Kareem on Tuesday," said Riley.

He also said he had "hired 5,000 people to pray for rain" in Boston, remembering the stifling 97-degree heat in Boston Garden Friday night when the Celtics won 121-103 and took a 3-2 lead in the series.

The heat which has been baking Boston since Thursday is expected to break tonight and temperatures in the mid-80s are forecast for Tuesday.

The Boston arena relies on ceiling fans instead of air conditioning.

While Abdul-Jabbar, the league's oldest player, led the way, the Lakers got a big effort from rookie Byron Scott, at 23, their youngest player.

Scott provided some spark off the bench after the Lakers were trailing 84-73 with five minutes left in the third quarter. His outside shooting, a couple of key steals and two assists seemed to ignite Los Angeles, which then went on to outscore the Celtics 36-21 in the final period.

Scott, a rookie acquired from the San Diego Clippers in the controversial trade involving Norm Nixon, had spent most of the series on the bench but Riley said he called on him in this instance because he is the team's best outside shooter.

Abdul-Jabbar said Scott had played the "game of his life."

So, it is back to Boston where the Celtics have won twice in three final series games there.

Riley, worrying about the heat there, said that the Lakers' medical staff was going to figure out what the players could do to minimize its effects on the players, including giving them nutrients.

"We're going to go back there, play with all those championship banners hanging down, and see who's the better team," Riley said, smiling.

Boston Coach K.C. Jones, whose Celtics let the Lakers off the hook with the fourth-quarter letdown, said he expects the seventh game "to be a bang-up, knockdown game."

"Both teams will be primed and ready and we are both playoff veterans," he said.

"This is a typical Lakers-Celtics series. It has been going on for years."

He should hope it's typical, since the Celtics hold a 7-0 edge over the Lakers in past NBA championship series.

Larry Bird led the Celtics' scoring in the sixth game with 28 points, and also had 14 rebounds and eight assists.

Gerald Henderson added 22 points and Dennis Johnson 20, but down the stretch, both were missing the outside shots they'd been able to make earlier in the game.

Michael Cooper had 23 points for Los Angeles. Earvin "Magic" Johnson 21, and James Worthy 20. Scott finished with 11 points in 17 minutes.

Magic Johnson also had 10 assists to give him 80 for the six games, bettering the old NBA title series mark (for any number of games) of 73 set by Walt Frazier of the New York Knicks in 1970.

Lendl Rallies By McEnroe For First Grand Slam Title

PARIS (AP) — Ivan Lendl, the consummate "money player," had just broken into the select circle of those men and women who had won a Grand Slam tennis tournament.

And the stony-nerved, steely-eyed Czechoslovakian was in what for him passed as an expansive mood after beating America's John McEnroe 3-6, 2-6, 6-4, 7-5, 7-5 in the final of the men's singles at the French Open.

"It's great," he said. "I'll finally be able to answer some different questions."

The question that had been haunting the 24-year-old Lendl, among the top three players in the world for the last four years, was why he had been unable to win a Grand Slam tournament. He even became known as something of a "choke artist" — runner-up at last year's Australian to Sweden's Mats Wilander, runner-up at the last two U.S. Opens, both to Jimmy Connors, and runner-up here in 1981 to Bjorn Borg of Sweden.

But when money, rather than prestige, was on the line, Lendl's shots were too. In 1982, he won a single-season record $2,028,650.

But there was a peculiar price to be paid for going for the big money, and Lendl himself admitted that he burned himself out a bit and was in less than top form when the big tournaments rolled around.

But this year he acknowledged that his status as one of the world's best players would not be assured until he won one of the big events. He cut back his schedule and came into this tournament fresher than usual.

McEnroe was superb in taking the first two sets. But he tired under Lendl's relentless hard-stroking game. Lendl's legs were still strong at the end, and that was the difference.

Local Bowlers Take Second

NIAGARA FALLS — The Saints and Sinners of Greenville took second place in the National Ladies Scratch Tournament completed this weekend at the Thunder Bowl Center in Niagara Falls.

Saints and Sinners, consisting of Mary Wade, Gaye Neal, Yvonne Pearce, Susan Puryear and Sandy Hardison, finished with a total of 2,704, while the winning team from California tallied 2,723 in the scratch competition.

Saints and Sinners pocketed $2,300 with its performance. Wade and Neal bowl with Julienne's Florist in the Tuesday night Hillcrest Ladies League, while Pearce, Puryear and Hardison are on the Thorpe Music unit.

The tournament featured 9,074 teams from across the nation and was held from April 5 through June 9.

Edwards Fires Two-Hitter

Woodworth Leads Pitt

EDENTON — Eric Woodworth drove in six runs with a pair of homers while Darryl Edwards struck out 16 and threw a two-hitter as Pitt County pounded Edenton 12-0 Sunday in American Legion baseball action.

Woodworth stole a pair of bases and lofted a sacrifice fly to lead Pitt. Traye Fuqua ripped a two-run homer in the first to cap a seven-run rally.

Daniel Keel blasted a solo homer in the top of the eighth to close the Pitt County offense. Keel, Mike Kinley, Doug Coley and Jackie Conway had two hits each.

In contrast, Edenton managed singles by Doug White in the third and another by Richard Thatch in the sixth as Edwards posted the victory on the mound.

After Conway reached first on a throwing error to open the game, Toby Fischer walked. An error on a grounder by Coley allowed Conway to score from second with the eventual winning run.

Woodworth swatted the 3-1 pitch over the fence to boost the margin to 4-0. Kinley singled after one out, and Fuqua followed with another homer. Keel drew a base on balls and scored on a single by Conway.

After leaving the bases loaded in the fourth, Pitt County erupted for two more runs in the fifth. Conway singled after one out and went to third on a single by Fischer. A single by Coley drove in Conway and moved Fischer to third, and Woodworth's sacrifice fly plated the second run of the frame.

Coley singled to open the seventh, and Woodworth followed with his second homer of the day to put Pitt County ahead 11-0. Keel blasted a leadoff homer in the eighth to end the Pitt barrage.

Pitt County travels to Wayne County tonight and visits Snow Hill Wednesday.

Tigers Sweep O's, Return To Form

By The Associated Press

The Detroit Tigers are looking more like themselves these days ... and the Baltimore Orioles are looking like anything but the defending world champions.

"Because of the minor slump we went through, this reassures everybody and pumps everybody's confidence up," Detroit catcher Lance Parrish said after the Tigers crushed the Orioles 10-4 and 8-0 in a double-header Sunday to take three of four games in their weekend series.

Sunday's sweep, coupled with a 5-3 loss by second-place Toronto to New York, boosted Detroit's lead in the American League East to seven games over the Blue Jays and 11 over third-place Baltimore. Just four days earlier, Detroit led the Blue Jays by just 3 1/2 games.

Before Sunday, the Tigers had lost nine of 15 games, but they had 26 hits and benefited from sloppy Baltimore base running and defense.

"It was very disappointing to lose, especially the way we did," said Baltimore Manager Joe Altobelli. Asked if it was his worst day with the club, Altobelli said: "If it isn't, it has to be one of them."

In other American League action, Cleveland beat Seattle 3-1 in the opener of a double-header before losing the nightcap 4-3; Boston nipped Milwaukee 5-4; Minnesota walloped Chicago 12-5; California blanked Kansas City 2-0, and Texas turned back Oakland 3-1.

Kirk Gibson and Alan Trammell drove in four runs each and Lou Whitaker fell one short of the major league record by scoring five runs in the Tigers' first-game victory.

Dan Petry hurled a three-hitter and Howard Johnson drove in two runs in the second game. Petry struck out four and walked one while dealing the Orioles their first shutout of the season.

The Tigers benefited from five Baltimore errors leading to seven unearned runs in the double-header which was played before a crowd of 51,764, the fifth largest regular-season turnout in Orioles' history.

"We're excited, but we realize there's a long way to go," Trammell said. "No pennant has ever been won in June, and never will be."

Yankees 5, Blue Jays 3

Oscar Gamble and Don Mattingly each hit two-run homers, with Gamble's blast snapping a 3-3 tie in the sixth inning, as the Yankees downed Toronto and completed a three-game sweep of the Blue Jays in New York.

Clay Christiansen pitched four innings of four-hit scoreless relief to gain his second victory in four decisions. Three more relievers finished up, with Dave Righetti gaining his seventh save.

Gamble, making his first start in the outfield since May 23, belted a 1-2 pitch off Doyle Alexander for his fourth homer this season. Mattingly's ninth home run, and second in as many games, had tied the score 3-3 in the third inning.

Indians 3-3, Mariners 1-4

Carmen Castillo homered and Bert Blyleven pitched 2 2/3 scoreless innings in his first regular-season relief appearance since 1972 as the Indians beat Seattle in the first game in Cleveland.

Blyleven, reactivated Saturday after being on the disabled list with a broken foot since May 23, took over for Neal Heaton in making his first relief appearance after 271 consecutive American League starts. The AL record for consecutive starts without a relief appearance is 272 by New York's Mel Stottlemyre.

Ken Phelps slugged a solo home run, his eighth of the season, to break a 3-3 tie in the eighth inning as the Mariners snapped a six-game losing streak in the second game.

"It was a fastball out over the plate," Phelps said of the gopher ball thrown by Ernie Camacho. "I hit against him in spring training and he was throwing a little harder."

Red Sox 5, Brewers 4
Rick Miller's pinch-hit triple drove in Bill Buckner from second base with the tie-breaking run with two out in bottom of the eighth inning, lifting Boston over Milwaukee.

Buckner began the eighth with a single off Rick Waits, 0-2, the third Milwaukee pitcher. After Rich Gedman moved Buckner to second with a sacrifice, Moose Haas relieved Waits. One out later, Miller followed with a triple, his seventh hit in 22 pinch-hit appearances.

Rookie Al Nipper pitched the first five innings for Boston, allowing four runs. He was replaced by Rich Gale, who allowed just three hits the rest of the way in earning the victory in his first appearance of the year.

Twins 12, White Sox 5

Tom Brunansky's three-run homer in the first inning and a seven-run outburst in the fourth carried rookie Ed Hodge and Minnesota over Chicago. The victory snapped Chicago's four-game winning string and ended the Twins' seven-game road losing streak.

Brunansky hit the homer, his seventh of the year, off loser Britt Burns, 2-6, with two outs after Tim Teufel walked and Dave Engle singled.

Mickey Hatcher started the Minnesota fourth with a double and closed the scoring with a two-run single. In between, Tim Laudner singled in one run and Dave Meier and Engle each singled in two. Hatcher also singled home a run in the eighth.

Hodge, 3-2, was working on a one-hitter in the fifth when Vance Law hit his first of two homers. Hodge was knocked out in a four-run seventh.

Angels 2, Royals 0

Geoff Zahn blanked Kansas City on six hits and Mike Brown and Brian Downing hit run-scoring singles to lead visiting California over the Royals.

Zahn, 7-3, won his second straight game after missing two starts because of a groin injury. He has allowed only one earned run in his last 26 innings.

Kansas City rookie Mark Gubicza, 3-5, took the loss despite giving up only five hits in eight innings.

"I've been fortunate because I wasn't really 100 per cent when I came back," said Zahn. "I've got to keep working, I need endurance. After three days of rain and with a wet field I was afraid of what it would be like out there but I felt pretty good. It wasn't as bad as it has been here."

Rangers 3, A's 1

Larry Parrish blasted two home runs and Pete O'Brien added a solo shot, leading Texas over Oakland 3-1.

Charlie Hough struck out seven and walked four while improving his record to 6-6. Oakland starter Bill Krueger, 4-2, who allowed four hits and walked seven in six innings, suffered the loss.

Parrish's first homer of the night broke a scoreless tie with one out in the bottom of the sixth inning. Two pitches later, O'Brien collected his 35th RBI of the season with his fourth homer to give the Rangers a 2-0 lead.

After Oakland scored in the seventh inning on Tony Phillips' RBI-single, Parrish hit his ninth homer of the year in the eighth for an insurance run.

Astros 'Borrow' 7-4 Win After Clubhouse Burglary

By The Associated Press

The Houston Astros haven't been doing much with their bats this season — and this day was no different.

While the song suggests that people leave their hearts in San Francisco, the Astros left most of their bats there — along with many gloves, shoes and some bubble gum, too — after they were stolen from the Houston clubhouse in an overnight burglary.

Undaunted, the Astros borrowed what they needed from the San Francisco Giants on Sunday and then went out and beat them 7-4.

"They cleaned me out — five bats, four pairs of spikes, all my batting gloves, even knee pads," said Ray Knight, who went 3-for-3 to pace Houston's 12-hit attack.

"Losing the gloves hurts the most," he said. "I had two that I loved. They were perfect. I'd pay $1,000 to get one of them back."

Knight used a bat he got from Joel Youngblood of the Giants.

Said Youngblood: "We've been real good friends for a long time. Ray loaned me a bat last year and I hit five homers with it. I guess whatever goes around, comes around."

In other NL games, Los Angeles shaded Atlanta 3-2, Chicago blanked St. Louis 2-0, San Diego rallied past Cincinnati 7-5, Montreal nipped New York 3-2 and Pittsburgh beat Philadelphia 12-6 in 12 innings.

Terry Puhl, who delivered two sacrifice flies for the Astros, also used one of Youngblood's bats.

"Shoot, I had to use Denny Walling's glove, Kevin Bass' spikes and Joel Youngblood's bat," Puhl said. "I felt a little shaky in right field without my own glove."

The Astros broke the game open early, scoring five times in the first inning. A three-run homer by Jose Cruz keyed the uprising against Jeff Robinson.

Steve Nicosia provided a highlight for the Giants by going 3-for-3, giving him eight straight hits over three games. The NL record is 10 straight hits, accomplished nine times, the last by Woodrow W. Williams of Cincinnati in 1943. The major-league record is 12, set by Mike Higgins of Boston in 1938 and tied by Walt Dropo of Detroit in 1952.

Nicosia saw little to cheer about, though.

"After Houston scored five runs in the first, there was no enthusiasm at all in our dugout, no life," he said. "It shouldn't be like that."

Dodgers 3, Braves 2

Ken Landreaux homered for the third straight day — all helping fuel Los Angeles victories over visiting Atlanta — while Alejandro Pena and five relievers stopped the Braves.

Pena drove in the game's first run with a bases-loaded groundout. Landreaux hit his fifth home run of the season in the fourth.

Each team scored in the fifth before Atlanta loaded the bases in the sixth. But rookie reliever Rich Rodas, making his first appearance of the season, got Chris Chambliss to ground out to end that threat.

In the eighth, the Braves again loaded the bases but Carlos Diaz induced pinch-hitter Bob Watson to ground out to finish the inning.

Pena, 7-2, was the winner and Craig McMurtry, 5-7, took the loss.

Pirates 12, Phillies 6

The two teams battled four hours in 98-degree heat in Philadelphia before the Pittsburgh scored seven times in the top of the 12th inning to end its six-game losing streak.

Jim Kern, recently signed by the Phillies and making his first appearance since April 1983 after arm problems, pitched the entire 12th and was shelled.

Marvell Wynne singled home the first two runs of the inning and then Lee Lacy lined an inside-the-park homer. It was his fourth home run of the season for Lacy and the third inside-the-parker of his career.

The Phillies, who scored once in the bottom of the 12th, had tied the game in the ninth against Kent Tekulve when Juan Samuel doubled and Garry Maddox followed with his fourth home run of the season and third in three days.

Padres 7, Reds 5

Cincinnati scored five runs in the top of the first inning before the Padres mounted their comeback.

Graig Nettles hit two homers and drove in four runs for host San Diego, while Bobby Brown and Tony Gwynn added solo shots.

Gwynn's home run tied it in the fifth. Brown followed with a triple and Nettles delivered a sacrifice fly to put the Padres ahead.

Padres starter Andy Hawkins retired just one batter and was knocked out when Reds starter Tom Hume singled home the fifth run of the first inning.

Cubs 2, Cardinals 0

Chicago's Chuck Rainey and Joaquin Andujar of the Cardinals hooked up in a scoreless duel through seven innings in St. Louis.

Then, in the Chicago eighth, Jody Davis singled with one out and went to third on Larry Bowa's double. Pinch-hitter Jay Johnstone was intentionally walked and Andujar got Bob Dernier on a popup. But he hit Ray Sandberg with the next pitch, forcing in a run.

Leon Durham stole home in the ninth with the bases loaded, two outs and relief pitcher Lee Smith batting. It was the first steal of home against St. Louis since Montreal's Andre Dawson did it in August 1977.

Rainey, 5-4, went seven innings and Smith the last two for his 11th save. They combined on a five-hitter while Andujar, 10-5, allowed just six hits.

Expos 3, Mets 2

Tim Raines and Jim Wohlford singled home first-inning runs as Montreal went on to end New York's six-game winning streak.

The visiting Mets scored in the ninth on Ron Hodges' sacrifice fly. Jeff Reardon, the fifth Expo pitcher, got his ninth save.

Montreal averted its first sweep at home in a four-game series in four years.

Park Marking 50th Anniversary

GREAT SMOKY MOUNTAINS NATIONAL PARK (AP) — The Great Smoky Mountains National Park drew almost 9 million visitors last year, more than any other national park.

This year, the park should draw even more visitors.

The Great Smoky Mountains National Park is celebrating its 50th anniversary, and Friday will mark an anniversary ceremony at Newfound Gap to be attended by U.S. Secretary of the Interior William Clark, Gov. Jim Hunt and Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander.

But the ceremony will be especially meaningful to people like Robert and Ruth Whipple of Brandenton, Fla., who came to the park when it opened and have been coming back ever since.

"We've traveled a lot," Whipple said, resting on a fence in the Cades Cove area in Tennessee. "And we've never encountered anything comparable to the quiet beauty, the water and trees, of the Smokies. There's a great, superabundance of nature here than anywhere.

"A tragedy in this country is, while we were so concerned with industrial growth, we overlooked nature. Well, we spotted it 50 years ago, and we've been enjoying it ever since."

In 1934, the Whipples found a half-million-acre wilderness on the border of North Carolina and Tennessee. The park was — and is — unlike any other, partly because it sprang into existence unlike any other.

Previously, the country's national parks had been made out of government-owned land in the West. The Great Smoky Mountains National Park was created through the buying of privately held tracts of land.

Much of the money to buy the land came from individual contributions. The largest was a $5 million gift from John D. Rockefeller Jr.

The park has 880 miles of hiking trails, compared with only 125 miles of roads. "So you can see where the emphasis lies," said Pam Boaze, a park employee.

And it is that backcountry that remains the park's premier attraction, despite the visitor centers and the convenient campgrounds. Attractions of the park include self-guiding nature trails, waterfalls, fishing, horseback riding and quiet walkways.

The sign at the start of one such walkway explains its purpose: "A short walk of about ¼-mile on this path will take you away from the sights, sounds and smells of your everyday world. You will be sampling one of the last great wildlands areas in the East.

Officials Fret Over State's Hunger Woes

RALEIGH (AP) — Though participation in the food stamp program has declined, the number of people who live below the poverty line has risen, giving some officials cause for worry about a growing hunger problem.

"We do know that North Carolina has a hunger problem that is more serious than in the last few years, that it's associated with adverse health problems and that it ought not to be ignored," Dr. J. Larry Brown of Harvard School of Public Health said at a public hearing Friday.

Brown, who chairs the Physician Task Force on Hunger in America, and a team of physicians this week toured North Carolina's welfare offices, rural shanty towns, and depressing migrant camps.

Statistics show the number of families living below the poverty line rose 42 percent from 1981 to 1983 in North Carolina, while participation in the food stamp program declined. Food stamp participation has fallen from 66 percent of those in poverty in 1981 to 40 percent of them today, but there's been a "dramatic increase" in emergency aid requests in some counties.

Durham County Social Services Director Dan Hudgins said his agency has seen the requests grow from 611 in 1982 to 1,240 in 1983. He said many people have an exaggerated image of food stamp fraud.

"I'm not saying there's no recipient fraud, but it's blown out of all proportion," Hudgins said.

TO ALL TELEPHONE COMPANY SUBSCRIBERS NOTICE OF HEARING

DOCKET NO. P-100, SUB 69

BEFORE THE NORTH CAROLINA UTILITIES COMMISSION

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the North Carolina Utilities Commission has instituted an investigation into the rates, charges and regulations applicable within North Carolina for long distance directory assistance, WATS, interexchange private line and foreign exchange (FX) services. This action results from the filing of an application by Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company for a rate adjustment. In said application, Southern Bell proposes changes in rates, charges and regulations which, if approved in whole or in part for Southern Bell, would affect the rates for long distance services of other telephone companies in North Carolina.

The Commission is of the opinion that a public hearing is necessary to consider the reasonableness of the proposed rate changes and the effect such changes would have on the subscribers of each of the telephone companies under its jurisdiction. Accordingly, the Commission has assigned this matter in Docket No. P-100, Sub 69; has instituted an investigation into said rate proposals; has made all telephone companies under its jurisdiction parties to the investigation and has set the matter for hearing. The Commission's investigation will determine if changes should be made in the present North Carolina rates for these services and, if so, the rates should be made applicable to all telephone companies under the Commission's jurisdiction.

LONG DISTANCE DIRECTORY ASSISTANCE CHARGE

The present and proposed rates are shown below. The charges apply for each request made to directory assistance for the telephone number of a subscriber who is located outside the requester's local calling area:

Present	Proposed
$.20	$.50

WIDE AREA TELECOMMUNICATIONS SERVICE

Increases in non-recurring installation charges for WATS and 800 service arrangements were proposed in Southern Bell's application. Other charges in WATS service and rates may be considered by the Commission in this proceeding as a result of the divestiture of the Bell system.

INTEREXCHANGE PRIVATE LINE AND FOREIGN EXCHANGE SERVICES

Many of the monthly rates and non-recurring charges applicable to interexchange private line service, Dataphone Digital Service, Telpak (Series 5000) and foreign exchange service are proposed to be increased. Certain Series 1000 channels and all intraLATA Telpak Services are proposed to be continued only for existing customers. Existing Telpak Services would be continued for a period of two years after which time these arrangements would be withdrawn entirely. Telpak Services which include both intraLATA and interLATA channels are proposed to be frozen at present capacities and other restrictions on the use of the services are also proposed.

FURTHER DETAILS

The details of the changes in rates, charges and regulations for toll directory assistance service, WATS (non-recurring charges), interexchange private lines and foreign exchange service are available at telephone company business offices or at the North Carolina Utilities Commission, Dobbs Building, 430 North Salisbury Street, Raleigh, North Carolina, where a copy of Southern Bell's application is available for public review. The Commission will consider additional or alternative rate proposals, including adjustments in interLATA rates and regulations, which were not included in the original application and may order rate increases or decreases which differ from those proposed by the Company. Upon request, the Commission will place copies of the application and prefiled testimony in centrally-located public libraries. The material may be copied without prohibition at the library.

The Utilities Commission has suspended the proposed rate adjustments, has set the application for investigation and hearing and has required each regulated telephone company in North Carolina to comply with all provisions of law and Commission rules in connection with the proposed adjustments.

The hearing on the matter has been scheduled to begin Tuesday, July 10, 1984, in the Commission Hearing Room, Dobbs Building, 430 North Salisbury Street, Raleigh, North Carolina, at 10:00 a.m., and will continue through July 13, 1984, as necessary. On these dates, the Commission will hear the testimony and cross-examination of witnesses for all telephone companies, the Public Staff, intervenors and public witnesses.

The Commission requires that each company inform its customers of the following procedures by which comments regarding the rate application can be made part of the record of the case upon which the Commission must base its decision. Persons desiring to intervene in the matter as formal parties of record should file a motion under North Carolina Utilities Commission Rules R1-6 and R1-19 ten days prior to the hearing. The testimony of intervenors shall be filed on or before June 28, 1984. Other persons desiring to present testimony for the record should appear at the public hearing. Persons desiring to send written statements to the Commission should submit their statements prior to the hearing and should include any information which those persons wish to be considered by the Commission in its investigation of the matter. The contents of letters and petitions will be received in the official file as statements of position. Specific facts, however, will be considered on the basis of testimony presented at the public hearing. Interventions or statements should be addressed to the Chief Clerk, North Carolina Utilities Commission, P. O. Box 991, Raleigh, North Carolina 27602.

The Public Staff of the Utilities Commission through the Executive Director is authorized by statute to represent the using and consuming public in proceedings before the Commission. Statements to the Executive Director should be addressed to:

Robert P. Gruber

Report Blames Bulgarian Secret Service

NEW YORK (AP) — An Italian prosecutor has concluded that the Bulgarian secret service recruited Mehmet Ali Agca to shoot Pope John Paul II, in hopes that the pontiff's death would fragment the independent labor movement in Poland, according to a published report.

A secret 78-page report by Italian State Prosecutor Antonio Albano, which seeks the indictments of three Bulgarians and six Turks, concludes that the assassination attempt was arranged by members of Turkish mob and neo-Nazi groups as well as by Bulgarian agents, The New York Times reported Sunday.

Although Agca was promised more than $400,000 and arrangements were made for him to escape afterward, he was captured and never received the money. In 1982 he began to cooperate with Italian authorities, apparently feeling abandoned, said the report, quoted in an article by author and journalist Claire Sterling.

NBC News also obtained a copy of the report and in a May 25 broadcast said that the attempt on the pope's life was arranged by Bulgarians who feared the spread of the Solidarity labor movement to other Eastern Bloc nations. Mrs. Sterling's article included extensive details from Albano's report, which was based on 25,000 pages of documents gathered during an Italian judge's investigation.

Bulgaria has denied any involvement in the shooting, contending such reports are part of a Western plot to discredit the communist nation.

In Rome, Albano could not immediately be reached for comment today. The Associated Press made two telephone calls to his office but was told he was not in.

"Mrs. Sterling is an American correspondent whose work has appeared in The New York Times Magazine and other publications. She is the author of a book, 'The Time of the Assassins,' published in January, which summed up her theory that Bulgaria, and ultimately the Soviet Union, were behind the May 13, 1981, shooting in Saint Peter's Square.

Albano's report noted the "social convulsions" caused by the rise of Solidarity and said Poland's "ideological collapse" was due in large part to the nation's deep religious faith, sustained by the elevation of the first Polish pope.

The prosecutor did not address the question of Soviet involvement. His report called Agca "the material executor of a broader conspiracy" and said, "In some secret place, where every secret is wrapped in another secret, some political figure of great power" took note of the rise of Solidarity and "mindful of the needs of the Eastern block, decided it was necessary to kill Pope Wojtyla."

As outlined by Mrs. Sterling, the report traced Agca's history from his association with members of the Turkish Mafia and the Grey Wolves, a nationalist neo-Nazi group, to a July 1980 meeting with a Bulgarian secret service agent. The meeting was set up by Bekir Celenk, a Turkish Mafia leader, and attended by Oral Celik, a leader of the Grey Wolves, the article said.

The Bulgarian secret service agreed to pay roughly $1.25 million to Agca and members of the Grey Wolves to organize and execute the plan, the article said.

The report also followed Agca's trail through Europe before the assassination attempt, a journey apparently designed to cover his tracks, and detailed his meetings with various Bulgarian officials in Rome.

Celik was to set off "panic bombs" in Saint Peter's Square after the shooting to help Agca escape, but instead fled and has not been seen since. The report concluded that he escaped in a sealed truck that supposedly contained diplomatic cargo from the Bulgarian Embassy, the article said.

Agca is serving a life term in an Italian jail for the shooting. Albano's report is to remain secret until the judge issues his own report and rules on whether there will be a trial of the Bulgarians and Turks whose indictments are sought.

In the only immediate reaction in Italy, the deputy chairman of the Liberal Party said on the basis of the New York Times report that the Italian government should take diplomatic initiatives possibly as far as breaking diplomatic relations with Bulgaria. The small, conservative Liberal Party is a member of the five-party government coalition.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦AK97 ♥83 ♦K76 ♣K1095

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass

2 ♦ Pass 3 ♦ Pass

What action do you take?

A.—There are those who will argue that South has a minimum opening bid and, therefore, should pass. But that doesn't take into account that all his values are prime and that he has useful intermediates. Since aces and kings are undervalued in the point count system, we would go to game unhesitatingly.

only a moderate hand with some tolerance for clubs.

Nonetheless, you do possess excellent defensive plusses.

Double. This is cooperative.

Partner shouldn't sit unless he also has good defensive values.

And if the distribution is unkind, your double will not be catastrophic — two diamonds doubled and made is still short of game.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦Q64 ♥K985 ♦10963 ♣A8

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♦ Pass 2 ♦ Pass

Pass Dble ?

What action do you take?

A.—You have as much as the law will allow for your simple raise, and your defensive values are excellent. You must advise partner that you have a maximum raise, and the way to do so is to redouble. Unless your opponents have a club fit, they could be in big trouble.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♦8 ♥AJ987 ♦AKQ8 ♣K102

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♥ 1 ♦ Pass 2 ♦ ?

What action do you take?

A.—Partner does not rate to have much, but your hand is too strong to allow the opponents to buy the hand at the two-level. Since you have support for all the other suits, you should double. As partner has not yet bid, this double is for takeout.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦K1092 ♦A9863 ♣AQ72

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North

1 ♦ Pass Pass 1 ♥

Pass 1 NT Pass 2 ♥

Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Bear in mind that partner, who has made only a balancing overcall, could be quite weak. Certainly, he has, with his rebid, shown little more than a long, probably broken, heart suit. When faced with a misfit, get out of the auction as quickly as you can — you may already be one round too late!

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♦K985 ♥A87 ♦A10653 ♣6

The bidding has proceeded:

Pass Pass 1 ♦ Dble

Rdble 2 ♦ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—While partner's action is preemptive, it looks as if your hands fit well. Also, there is no guarantee that you can defeat any game contract the opponents might undertake. All things considered, we suggest you continue the preempt by raising to three spades. That could easily prevent the opponents from finding their heart fit, or the proper level of a club contract.

Q.6—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

In 1983 weeds reduced soybean yields an average of three-four bushels per acre in North Carolina. These yield reductions occurred due to competition for soil nutrients, sunlight and space in row. One cocklebur plant per 10 feet of row simply takes up a lot of row space and therefore reduces soybean yields.

Many growers over the years have done an excellent job controlling weeds on many fields, thus minimizing the yield reductions. However, many fields or parts of fields were not harvested in 1983 due to weed infestation.

Other than dry weather, weeds contributed most to poor soybean yields last year.

One effective control procedure for sicklepod, Florida beggarweed and other broadleaf weeds in soybeans has been the use of either Lexone or Sencor applied after planting but before crop emergence.

This treatment relies on rain or irrigation to activate the herbicides before weed emergence. For this reason, it is not always successful. It still remains, however, as one of the most effective treatments for many of these broadleaf weeds.

Practice good disease, insect and nematode control. If pests are not controlled stand reduction, stunting or defoliation may occur, resulting in a less competitive crop.

Morning Shows Vie For Stars

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — You have to get up very early to beat the networks' morning news-and-information shows as they wage a never-ending war to book the newsmaking stars of the day and smash each other into breakfast bits.

How fierce is the competition among ABC's top-rated "Good Morning America," NBC's No. 2 "Today" and the "CBS Morning News"?

"It's incredibly cutthroat," said executive producer Steve Friedman on "Today." "It's a good thing that on some stories the newsmaker sets the rules, otherwise we'd just kill each other."

The network news rivalry is liveliest at sunrise because these shows are two hours long and contain spontaneous interviews, as compared to the half-hour, taped format of the evening newscasts.

Part of the rivalry revolves around lining up newsmakers and personalities. When a major story breaks, the shows — all with the same formats, all on at the same time — all respond in the same way.

"We immediately pick up the phone, and we book a guest and the bird," said John O'Regan, senior producer on the "CBS Morning News."

The "bird" is industry jargon for the communications satellites, which have revolutionized TV news by making live reporting possible from anywhere in the world.

"If you have the satellite, you have bargaining chips for scheduling the interview," said Friedman. "You hardly ever get world leaders exclusively anymore, but you still always want to get them first."

One recent exception was NBC's exclusive interview April 19 with Col. Moammar Khadafy, the day after gunfire from the Libyan embassy in London killed a British police officer. All three shows requested an interview with the Libyan leader.

But NBC got the only contact because of the interceding efforts of a Middle East lobbyist, Helen Hage of Washington, who was on retainer with "Today." CBS officials claimed Miss Hage also offered a Khadafy interview to them for $5,000. CBS said it refused the offer.

CBS didn't have the interview, but it used the "Today" tape, without crediting NBC. Friedman called it stealing. Later, CBS apologized, saying it was accidental.

This is an example of how those accidents can happen:

The day Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was assassinated, ABC had control of the only satellite path out of Cairo and began feeding exclusive pictures back to the United States. The footage, beamed down from the satellite, could be seen in the control rooms of all three networks. Before long, it was on NBC.

"They looked like pictures from Egyptian TV. How was I to know?" Marty Ryan, a producer at "Today" explained. He was grinning when he said that. "If there's only one way out, the pictures become pool pictures."

Another time, Tom Brokaw, then the host of "Today," was in Rome. He had just finished a live interview with a priest when an ABC producer jerked the priest out of his chair so he could get a live report on the air. "Brokaw would have hit him if our producer hadn't stepped in," said Friedman.

Despite the intense competition, cooperation is often the rule, particularly since most leaders want exposure on all networks. Such was the case when President Ferdinand Marcos hopped from show to show after the Philippine elections last month. "Marcos doesn't know 'GMA' is No. 1," said Ryan. "He doesn't know ratings."

"The Marcos situation was routine," O'Regan said. "We all put in bids to him, and we took turns."

If a newsmaker gives one show a hard time, the network has ways to retaliate. Iran's late foreign minister, Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, became so irritated by NBC's technical difficulties that he walked out of the Iranian studio in a huff. "When the satellite finally came up, we shot the empty chair," said Friedman.

A few newsmakers play favorites.

Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger had a contract with ABC that mandated he appear on ABC before considering the other networks. "Henry is an easy booking," said Steve Lewis, a producer at ABC's "Nightline." "The hard part is that he's always late."

As the only network news show in its late-night time period, "Nightline" doesn't have much competition for guests. You wouldn't expect Marcos to swap one-liners with Johnny Carson on the "Tonight" show. "Nightline's" problem, though, is that while it's 11:30 p.m. in Washington, people are still sleeping in Europe and the Middle East.

Lewis said he better understood the problems experienced by his early morning colleagues' after the Soviets shot down a South Korean airliner last year. CBS and NBC scheduled news specials in the "Nightline" time slot, and the networks fought for the same guests.

Earlier that day, the "CBS Morning News" had the easiest time filing reports from Japan on the downed airliner. CBS, which had the only satellite channel booked from Tokyo to the United States, kept open a live feed to its correspondent, Gordon Joseloff, from 6:30 to noon, when the shows go off the air on the West Coast.

"We wouldn't let anybody else join," said Bob Epstein, senior producer for overnight production for the "CBS Morning News." "It was a live, breaking news story, and we wouldn't give it up."

In many cases, though, the networks share satellite time and expense for their reports and interviews. "If we have the satellite and they have the guest, we'll make a deal," said Ryan. "We know that on some days we win, but then the next day the shoe could be on the other foot."

"There is honor among thieves. If not, we'll have chaos among the ruins."

ANNUAL BENEFIT CONCERT — The fifth annual WVSP Benefit Concert will be held at the Attic on Wednesday, beginning at 9:30 p.m. Lightpin' Wells, shown above, and his band will be among featured attractions which will also include the Lemon Sisters and Rutabaga Brothers, and PBS. All proceeds will go to WVSP, a public service radio station in Warrenton which covers northeastern North Carolina.

Varied Schedule For Fall TV

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There's this new show about a talking car, named Mr. Model T, who says funny things like "Ooga! Ooga!" and gets into lots of scrapes and works on the side as a private eye with a handsome but mysterious model named Pierce Arrow.

We're only kidding, folks, but that gives you some idea of what the fall television season holds in store.

ABC's got a show called "Streethawk" about a motorcycle that goes 400 miles an hour. This crime-fighting machine is almost as smart as "Airwolf," although it doesn't hover as well, except when it hits a bump at top speed.

Television is a medium of illusion, and the biggest one of all is that each year's new crop of shows seems to be worse than what has gone before.

It would be hard to equal some of the clinkers of the past, although this past year, "Mama Malone" came close.

So, the new shows from ABC, CBS and NBC probably are no better, and no worse, than anything seen before. Indeed, a lot of them resemble shows seen before.

NBC's "Highway to Heaven," about a probationary angel trying to win his wings by performing good deeds on Earth, has a familiar ring. The difference, and it's a critical difference, is Michael Landon. If anybody can make sentiment and schmaltz palatable, it's Landon.

"Hot Pursuit," also NBC's, is a variation of "The Fugitive." Here, a husband and wife are on the lam, from the cops and a would-be assassin. The wife is a test car driver. Natch, for all those chases.

There's an abundance of detective shows, most of them with cute twists:

—Lynda Carter and Loni Anderson take over the detective agency left to them by their late husband (for one of the two, ex-husband) in NBC's "Partners in Crime."

—Jon-Erik Hexum and Jennifer O'Neill pose as fashion photographer and model to put out fires in the world's hot spots in CBS' "Cover Up."

—NBC's "Hunter" is about "a pair of unorthodox undercover detectives ... trying to stay out of hot water at headquarters." At last, something different.

ABC continues to find variations on "The Love Boat" and "Fantasy Island" theme. "Paper Dolls" is about the "fast-paced, dazzling world of fashion." All that's gold is in "Glitter," the magazine (and show) that tells all. There's also

Attacks Hurt Shipping

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — The attacks on oil tankers in the Persian Gulf are a heavy blow to a shipping industry already hurting financially from declining oil exports and the end of the 1970s construction boom, industry sources say.

Trading and shipping sources, who refused to be identified for business reasons, said gulf shipping is about 20 percent below normal for this time of year.

Two major reasons are cited: the reluctance of tankers to sail to dangerous areas in the northern gulf and a decline in demand for construction materials and other goods elsewhere.

"As far as cargo vessels are concerned, there's very little difference now," said one shipping source.

"For tankers and bulk carriers, it's another story. There has been a considerable reduction," the source continued. "The decline is by no means due entirely to the war, OPEC production ceilings and the decline in economic activity generally have also been factors."

Oil ministers of the Gulf Cooperation Council states — Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Bahrain, the United Arab Emirates, Qatar and Oman — met Sunday in the Saudi city of Taif over the oil-shipping crisis. Arab diplomatic sources said they were seeking a long-term strategy to keep oil flowing despite the 45-month-old Iran-Iraq war.

Attacks on tankers by Iran and Iraq have forced daily oil exports down from about 8 million barrels last month to about 5 million at the end of May and early June, industry sources said.

And oil exports already were below past years due to production ceilings imposed by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to offset the effects of an oil glut in the industrial world.

Meanwhile, oil-rich Arab states have cut back development projects as the flow of petrodollars slowed from the peak in the mid-1970s.

In the United Arab Emirates, which boasts the highest living standard in the world, the gross national product declined 13.5 percent in 1983, due mostly to a 25 percent drop in oil revenues.

"The decline in economic activity throughout the gulf has been felt by the shipping industry," said an industry source.

FOCUS

First Congresswomen

The first U.S. congresswoman, Jeanette Rankin, was born on this day in 1880. The Montana representative fought for women's suffrage, children's rights and, above all, peace. In 1917 she voted against entry into World War I, saying, "I want to stand by my country, but I cannot vote for war." Ms. Rankin won a second term in 1940. She cast the only House vote against U.S. entry into World War II.
