County Gets Budget Plan, Says No To City

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners, at a budget session Monday, heard the county manager's annual budget message, then rejected a request by the Greenville Board of Education to withdraw its proposed 1984-85 budget.

Gray, in his written budget message, told the board that his recommendations for the coming fiscal year call for a 4.5 cents per $100 valuation tax rate increase.

Gray said the assessed valuation, on which property taxes are levied, increased only $94.81 million (4.2 percent) this year, from $2.27 billion in 1983 to $2.36 billion in 1984.

The present 54 cents per $100 valuation raised $11.76 million this fiscal year, while the proposed 58.5 cents rate for 1984-85 will raise an estimated $13.0 million in revenue to fund county operations — an increase of $1.23 million, or 10.5 percent — Gray reported.

Gray said other revenue projections include: a $15,000 increase in intangible tax receipts; $1.2 million in revenue from the half-cent local option sales tax ($833,000 for general government operations with the remainder for school capital outlay needs); a $210,000 increase in collections from the 1 cent local option sales tax; a $17,000 increase in revenue from ABC profits; a $309,400 loss in state and federal funds (not including schools); and a 7 percent ($91,200) loss in revenue sharing money.

Gray said recommended expenditures include $791,000 "placed in the budget at a 10 percent salary adjustment reserve for county employees awaiting the consultant's report to be used for an across-the-board cost of living increase and salary adjustment in some of the classifications ....'

In the area of personnel, Gray recommended 18 new positions, including a secretary for the planning department, a drafting technician for the tax supervisor's office, nine deputies for the sheriff's department, two jail deputies, two dispatchers for the communications center, an adult services social worker for the social services department, a nutritionist for the health department, and a maintenance helper for the county's solid waste program.

Gray also recommended the elimination of four positions at the mental health center because of a reduction in federal funds.

Gray said his recommendations for new personnel for the sheriff's department, the jail and communications center are based on recommendations contained in a jail study completed last year by the National Sheriffs' Association, and an NSA management study of the sheriff's department completed this year.

The county manager also told commissioners that his recommended budget includes $107,425 to purchase 27 electronic precinct voting machines.

In the area of education, Gray's budget message said "Pitt Community College's budget recommendation reflects a reasonable operating budget with approximately the

LOST TO FLAMES — Members of the Staton House and Belvoir fire departments extinguish the last flames that destroyed the home of Willie Ray Manning of Lot 45, Homestead Trailer Park Monday afternoon. According to firemen on the scene, Manning, his wife and grandchildren all escaped the flames. No injuries were reported. The home, which was a loss, was valued at $9,000. Cause of the fire had not been determined. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Court Upholds Seniority Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court said today that "last-hired, first-fired" seniority plans may not be scrapped when hard times hit to protect affirmative action programs aimed at giving blacks and women special preferences to make up for past discrimination.

By a 6-3 vote, the justices ruled that the Memphis Fire Department wrongly insulated blacks from possible layoffs or demotions when that Tennessee city was hit by an economic crisis.

Today's ruling, the court's most important affirmative action decision of the 1980s, represents a momentous defeat for civil rights and feminist organizations but a victory for the Reagan administration.

The administration had urged the court to rule that preserving affirmative action programs under such circumstances violates a federal law banning on-the-job discrimination based on race.

Justice Department lawyers and the fire fighters' union had argued that innocent whites were being discriminated against.

But lawyers for the National Organization for Women had told the justices that adhering to seniority plans when laying off workers "disproportionately affects women and minorities in a way that can eviscerate the modest progress made to date in integrating the work force."

Writing for the court, Justice Byron R. White said a court order protecting blacks from layoffs violated Title VII of the federal Civil Rights Act of 1964.

White was joined by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Lewis F. Powell, William H. Rehnquist and Sandra Day O'Connor.

Legal battles over the racial make-up of the Memphis Fire Department date to 1974, when the Ford administration's Justice Department sued the city over alleged racial bias.

Although Memphis officials never admitted any discriminatory purpose in past hiring practices, the city and federal authorities settled the suit with a consent decree providing for interim hiring goals.

Suspect's Warning Limited

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, in a decision that limits the rights of criminal suspects, ruled today that police need not warn the accused of his rights when "prompted by a concern for the public safety."

By a 6-3 vote, the court said New York prosecutors may introduce as evidence a gun seized by police before they told the suspect he had a right to remain silent and was entitled to be represented by a lawyer.

Justice William H. Rehnquist, in his opinion for the court, acknowledged that today's ruling creates an exception to the procedural safeguard of the so-called "Miranda" warning, which requires police to alert a suspect of his rights.

Jobs Mart 'Best In Years'

This year's college graduate is entering a job market which "is 10 times better than it has been in recent years," but is still very competitive, according to East Carolina University's director of Career Planning and Placement Furney James.

Based on past experience, James estimated that 70 to 75 percent of ECU's placement applicants will have jobs by September.

"There are good people out there who won't have jobs by then, but as they keep searching, most of them will eventually find suitable work," he said. Factors such as geographic considerations, relocation, family ties and the like enter the job search process and often make it more difficult, he said.

The market is highly competitive, James said, because of the sheer numbers of new college graduates looking for jobs. He estimated that North Carolina colleges and universities awarded approximately 30,000 baccalaureate degrees this spring.

However, James pointed out that there are positions available for the competitive student. "Jobs are out there — lots of them — and a lot of 1984 college graduates already have found jobs ... quality college graduates will find jobs."

For the first time, James said he is seeing concern among ECU nursing school graduates this year — not about getting jobs, but about getting jobs where they want to live and work.

However, the teaching discipline, secondary mathematics in particular, is still open, according to James. There is also a brisk demand for employees in production of goods and services, and sales and finance.

While there is no sure-fire way to get a job, James suggests that graduates applying for positions "use unique imaginative ways ... ."

"I tell them to take the initiative — don't just respond to an ad — to know something about the firm, or the field, about its product and services and to go after the particular job in a knowledgeable way," he said.

More Power Used

The Ayden Board of Commissioners has passed a $204,000 amendment to the town's 1983-84 budget to compensate for electricity charges that exceeded the budget during the past six months.

Town Manager Don Russell reported at the board's monthly meeting Monday that the town's electric bill in May totaled $160,000. Usage, he said, topped 3 million kilowatts. "This $204,000 in over-budget charges is due primarily to fossil fuel charges and extra kilowatts used in January during the cold," Russell said.

In addition to the budget amendment, board members discussed the purchase of the old Ayden Middle School in an executive session but took no action.

John Roberson of Talbert & Cox was appointed labor standards officer for the town's Community Development Program. Roberson will oversee minimum wage determinations and project compliance with federal standards.

The board accepted a $286,000 bid from a Greensboro construction company for modernization of a portion of the town's Housing Authority units.

MEAL DELIVERERS ASKED

The Pitt County Council on Aging Home-Delivered Meals Program for the Elderly needs volunteers to give an hour of their time 11 a.m. to noon to substitute for people going on vacation in the summer months. Anyone who can help is asked to call JoAnne Goodman at 752-1717.

RONALD McDONALD VOLUNTEERS ASKED

Children's Services of Eastern North Carolina is seeking volunteers to help with the establishment of a Ronald McDonald House in this area. These people will give time assisting families of seriously ill children who will be housed at the Ronald McDonald House adjacent to the hospital while their children are hospitalized. There will be an organizational meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the Pitt County Memorial Hospital Auditorium. Anyone who is interested in participating, but cannot attend tonight's meeting, is asked to call Kathy Brown, 756-7004.

Second Bidders Approved

WINTERVILLE — Winterville aldermen Monday authorized acceptance of alternative bids on some projects in the town's Community Development Block Grant program.

The action came at the request of John Robertson, of Talbert-Cox and Associates, who said that, in some cases, the lowest bidders on paving projects had canceled their proposals for business reasons. The board authorized acceptance of bids by the second lowest bidders.

Robertson also received approval to look into a heater for the home of Elizabeth Cannon.

In other business, developer Bill Clark of Bill Clark Costruction Co. asked the board for water and sewer utilities for 86.87 acres of land on the west side of the Tar Road. After stating to the board he would bear all costs of the installation and additonal sewage pumping stations, Clark said he would like the new devlopment annexed by the town.

Alderman Leland Tucker said that portion of the electricity was provided by Greenville Utilities and he was unsure if the town could get permission from GUC for Winterville to service the area. Clark asked the board if he could get a status report in 30 days after the town had contacted Greenville Utilities. The board approved the motion.

Mayor E.C. Hines asked the board for its decision on the M.F. Hunt apartment project request for about 100 feet of 18-inch drain tile to be installed on Blount Street, at a cost of approximately $600. The board approved the installation and purchase of the tile

Jury Selection

Jury selection continued today in Pitt County Superior Court in the trial of Harvey Lee Greene Jr., charged with murder and armed robbery in the deaths of two people at a Bethel dry cleaning business last December.

Green was arrested less than two weeks after Sheila Marlene Bland, 17, and John Michael Edmondson, 33, were found beaten to death in Young's Cleaners on Dec. 19.

He is charged with beating the two to death with a 27-inch-long pipe and taking $3.50 in pennies from Miss Bland and $20 from Edmondson.

Judge Thomas S. Watts of Elizabeth City is presiding at the trial.

Nearly 300 certified Jazzercise instructors will be part of the 3,000-member Olympic Dance Unit which will perform under the direction of David Wolper, executive producer, and Tommy Walker, director of ceremonies.

Ann Brown Cherry of Kinston is the local Jazzercise instructor and teaches in both Greenville and Kinston.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

Do you remember where you were and what you were doing the day you climbed onto a bathroom scale and it weighed you at what you wanted to weigh?

Most of us do. It's hard to describe the exhilaration of that moment when you look down through your feet and find a number that looks like a golf score instead of a bowling score.

And who among us cannot recall the disappointment when, minutes later, we step on another scale and realize that if that figure is true, we should be an 85-foot redwood.

Oh, sure, a nation can put a man on the moon, but they can't come up with a standardized scale. If men and women in space weren't weightless, we'd have had one 30 years ago.

Frankly, I'm sick of the emotional yo-yo I experience with each and every scale I climb upon. One moment, I'm manic; the next, depressive.

The scales in doctor's offices are the worst. I have never been on one in my life that didn't add eight pounds or so to the weight I know I am. They are regulated before they leave the manufacturer in the doctor's favor to fit his standard prescription to "lose a few pounds and you'll feel better."

I once tested these scales to see if I could effect any change. I removed my shoes, skirt, handbag, earrings and a large wad of chewing gum from my mouth. That little sucker didn't budge so much as an ounce. Now you explain that!

I went right home from the office only to discover I had lost eight pounds by riding 30 blocks in my car. Does that tell you something?

I think if we really want to get a scale that is universal, we should shop a bit. It's too important to trust to the government. Look what it did to the weights and measures standards on meat scales where thumbs are going for $2.50 a pound.

Frankly, I lean toward a scale in a home I visited in Florida belonging to one Shirley Stilzer. It nestled in a pillow on the floor of her guest bathroom. Years had rusted the bottom out of it and mildew had created beads of condensation inside the dial, making it virtually impossible to read the numbers. On the table beside the scale were a pair of dark prescription glasses.

There wasn't a person who used the bathroom who did not emerge with a smile on their lips and a song in their hearts.

I should like to propose that Shirley Stilzer's scale be named the official Olympic scale and be distributed throughout the world.

Someone has to set the standards. Why not Shirley?

Noteworthy Trek

History is littered with tales of displaced peoples. The combative nature of Man has meant that from the beginning of time one group has sought to conquer another and often whole races have been forced by their conquerers to move.

For no race is this more a part of their heritage than for the American Indian.

This was their land for many centuries until it was finally discovered and colonized by the Europeans. In some cases the Indians attempted to coexist with the new settlers, but it was soon evident that they would have to fight for their land. The tribes either moved westward or they were conquered and subdued. Even then they often faced displacement. Thus it was for the Cherokees of North Carolina.

Some 150 years ago the Cherokees were removed from their homes in western North Carolina and marched to Oklahoma. The 1,200-mile journey is known as the Trail of Tears and some 4,000 are said to have died.

Twenty-five Cherokee youths from Oklahoma left Cherokee, N.C., last week on a symbolic trip which will retrace the march their ancestors took. They were chosen by competition and they will travel through Tennessee, Kentucky, Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas.

It is an event which, if it cannot be experienced, should at least be noted by all of us. The pain and suffering endured by the earliest North Carolinians is indeed a part of our heritage.

Paying Off

Pitt County saw its lowest rate of unemployment since 1978 last month.

Jim Hannon, manager of the Greenville Employment Security Commission office, said the rate fell to 5.8 percent. It was 6.5 percent in March. The rate also compares favorably with the state April rate of 6.3 percent.

The county's workforce is 47,750 and the April rate represents 2,770 unemployed people.

It is indeed encouraging that the employment rate is falling in Pitt County. It tells us that the area has worked out of the recession which engulfed the nation a couple of years ago. It may also tell us that our efforts to create jobs for local people are paying off. If that is so, all of us will be economically better off.

Hunt-Helms Race Takes A Turn

WASHINGTON — The intensely ideological Senate race in North Carolina between conservative Republican Sen. Jesse Helms and liberal Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt has taken a bizarre, non-ideological twist unimaginable short months ago: a contest between them over the support for the state of Israel, with literally millions of campaign dollars at stake.

Although cut from the pro-Israeli cloth that fits most liberal Democrats, Hunt hitherto has not particularly stressed his devotion to Israel. Now, however, he has made significant fund-raising inroads into the American Jewish community by warning that a third term for Helms could produce an anti-Israel chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

That has galvanized Helms. He showed up in the Senate May 16 with a prominent young right-wing Likud member of the Israeli Knesset, Michael Kleiner, and formerly introduced him on the floor. The next day he told the Senate that the U.S. "should never pursue any plan that envisions a separation of the West Bank from Israel." The U.S. Embassy, he said, should be moved from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem. This is a remarkable performance for a senator who two years ago suggested breaking U.S. relations with Israel because of the Lebanese invasion.

This competition tells a little about how politics is conducted in America. The North Carolina race that has mobilized the nation's ideological poles into passionate activity will require massive financing. According to the Federal Election Commission, Helms has raised $6.9 million. The FEC shows Hunt with $3.4 million as of mid-April.

"We calculate that 60 percent of Hunt's money is from the Jewish community," one Helms political aide told us. While agreeing the governor has been "remarkably successful" in getting Jewish money, a Hunt aide responded that the percentage "for sure" is under 50 percent. Whatever the correct percentage, Helms wants to limit that Hunt money flow in a race where the polls show the senator has slowly come from behind to take a small lead.

The Hunt pitch is blunt and hard. "Jesse Helms is raising $14 million to defeat me," the governor writes in one letter mailed to thousands of Jewish and other pro-Israeli voters by the Wisconsin direct-mail firm of A.B. Data Co. "He is building this massive war chest by rallying his supporters on the radical right against things you and I deeply believe in, important things like the security and survival of Israel."

To dramatize the point, the envelopes of these fund-raising letters were stamped in large print: "Caution: the enclosed information is extremely damaging to the state of Israel." What Hunt claims would be truly "damaging" is Chairman Helms of the Foreign Relations Committee, if he wins and Chairman Charles H. Percy is defeated for re-election in Illinois.

Percy is also abhorred in the American Jewish community for anti-Israel viewpoints. Yet Jewish leaders here confide that they may not press the attack to replace Percy with Democratic Rep. Paul Simon, whose pro-Israeli credentials are gilt-edged. The reason: Better the devil you know as Foreign Relations chairman than the one you don't.

That's because of Helms's record. In August 1982, when Israeli troops were invading Beirut, the senator said: "Ultimately ... we've just got to shut down (U.S.-Israeli) relations." In 1979, in a remarkably prescient speech that raised important questions about the Camp David agreement, Helms said that Israel's insistence "upon retaining control" of the West Bank was "the block to a comprehensive settlement" of the Arab-Israeli problem.

Explaining the apparent shift, Helms aides told us that the political situation has changed drastically in the past five years. Moreover, they said, Helms has always opposed the PLO. As for Hunt's charges that he has voted against Israel on no fewer than 25 separate Senate votes, Helms notes that most of the votes were on foreign aid bills that he always opposes.

More ingeniously, Helms is putting the Israeli issue in right-vs.-left terms of American politics and foreign policy. The senator argues that Jewish votes for liberal Democrats in the long run will doom Israel.

Helms followed that strategy during the recent visit by Knesset member Kleiner. After showing his guest around the Senate, Helms put a speech by Kleiner linking U.S. support for Israel to U.S. firmness in Central America into the Congressional Record. To support Israel, Kleiner said, it is essential also to support President Reagan's defense budget and his anti-communist policies around the world.

Such language retains the basic ideological climate of the Helms-Hunt campaign. But ideology was really not at question when these two bitter rivals agreed on all-out support for Israeli West Bank policy, American politicians who take contrary positions are usually described as neither liberal nor conservatives but as losers.

House Strikes A Blow For Prudence

WASHINGTON — The House or Representatives struck a blow for both prudence and frugality recently. In an unexpected rebellion against both President Reagan and the House leadership, members voted 226-173 to kill the fledgling National Endowment for Democracy. It was a nice day's work.

If you haven't heard of the National Endowment for Democracy, do not be embarrassed. Not many others have heard of it either. Let me bring you up to date.

Back in June of 1982, President Reagan was in London addressing the British Parliament. In my partisan view, the president has relatively few really bad ideas, but when he has a really bad idea it is a beaut. He proposed to Parliament that the Western world set up new mechanisms for combating communism in Third and Fourth World nations by actively promoting democracy.

The Western world, and more specifically the United States, already has a dozen such mechanisms at work. In the public sector we call these mechanisms the State Department, the U.S. Information Agency, the Commerce Department, the Peace Corps and the Central Intelligence Agency, among others. We have public and private cultural exchanges; we have international fellowships and scholarships. The Girl Scouts trade young ladies back and forth around the world. We have book fairs; we have international seminars; we send tourists by the millions wherever airplanes fly.

But the opportunity to set up a new and needless federal agency is never to be spurned. Reagan's well-intentioned remark of 1982 materialized in November of 1983 into the National Endowment for Democracy, with a slush fund of $18 million of the taxpayers' money to spread around. In April of 1984, the endowment's board agreed to split the first year's pie in this fashion: $11 million to organized labor, to be spent by the AFL-CIO's Free Trade Union Institute; $1.7 million to organized business, to be spent by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce's Center for International Private Enterprise; $1.5 million to the Democratic Party and $1.5 million to the Republican Party, to be spent through their separate Institutes for International Affairs; and $2.3 million for administration of the endowment's suite of offices on Northwest 15th Street in Washington.

The administration has asked for $31'3 million to fund the endowment in fiscal '85. Last week the item floated to the floor as an infinitesimal part of an omnibus appropriations bill. To the chagrin of the endowment's supporters, the item crashed headlong into a couple of icebergs — Richard Ottinger, a liberal Democrat from New York, and Hank Brown, a conservative Republican from Colorado.

Well, Ottinger and Brown are right on this one. It is a bad business in every way to turn over tax funds to private entities to spend within the vague bounds of a "project application." In a draft report on this outfit, the General Accounting Office already is voicing reservations about the mischief that could be caused abroad by the partisan political activities of the grantees.

Kentucky Takes Lead

RALEIGH — While North Carolina just begins to focus on the problem of missing children, the state of Kentucky is putting into effect what is considered the nation's most comprehensive package of programs to fight the problem.

"There is an enormous problem out there," says Bill Bardenwerper of Louisville, the staff counsel to a citizens group which recommended sweeping changes in Kentucky law. "The only reason nobody knew about it was that they weren't looking ... (but), by the time we got to the General Assembly, there was massive grassroots support for (the bills)."

In 1979, a group of Jefferson County police, social workers and interested citizens began discussing the problem that metropolitan Louisville faced. When the immensity of the problem emerged, a statewide group was formed, held public hearings and presented a package of eight bills to the 1984 assembly. Despite a ticklish partisan political problem — the bills were propsosed by a Republican and the assembly is overwhelmingly Democratic — all eight were combined into one major bill and they passed unanimously.

Bardenwerper says the new law has three major aims. The first is to eliminate police reluctance to help. "A lot of departments would not even accept reports on missing children. There is the sentiment that the child is a runaway or that this is a family problem."

The new Kentucky law, which goes into effect July 15, requires police to take reports of missing children, requires them to enter those reports into a central computer bank on missing children which was also created by this law and requires that the reports go into the FBI's national computer. Police in Kentucky will no longer be allowed to show indifference to a parent who has lost his or her child.

The second aim is to help prosecution of sexual abuse cases, a leading cause of runaways. A sexually abused child will often tell his or her story to a social worker but freeze up in court, when facing the accused adult. Now, social workers will videotape those initial interviews and they can be introduced in court. The child will still have to undergo cross examination. Also, anyone convicted of the sexual abuse of a child will be ineligible for probation or a suspended sentence.

The third major aim is to prevent sexual abuse of children. A tax return check-off system will give taxpayers an opportunity to voluntarily fund prevention programs.

Kentucky also plans more public and private school programs on "body safety," and teachers are being taught ways of spotting abused children.

The schools will institute new programs aimed at keeping a closer eye on children. When a child does not report for school, the school will be required to contact a parent immediately. Volunteers are being asked to perform this duty in the hope that an abducted child will be recognized as such immediately. The schools are also being told to develop tighter controls over the movement on and off grounds of both students and adults.

Parents are being asked to fingerprint their children and keep those prints, along with a current photo, in a safe place should they ever be needed to help find a child.

North Carolina's Task Force on Missing Children plans to study the Kentucky program as it develops a set of recommendations for the 1985 General Assembly.

To the editor:

Over the past several months I have had the great pleasure of working with some 517 high school students and teachers from North Carolina who have been in Washington, D.C., to participate in the Close Up Foundation government studies program.

For a full week, each of the participants had the opportunity to question members of Congress, reporters, lobbyists and leading Washington experts and policymakers. Without exception, the students were well prepared, showed genuine enthusiasm andd their behavior was excellent.

The experience for the students is the result of efforts put forth by many people. The schools, their teachers and parents, in fact the entire community, are to be commended. The teachers' and many of the students' participation was possible through fellowships supported by R.J. Reynolds Industries Inc.

I, for one, salute the efforts of the students and teachers of North Carolina.

To the editor:

The Greenville City Planning and Zoning Commission has spent long hours developing a long-range plan to promote and facilitate the orderly development of Greenville. It appears that the arterial routes into Greenville have developed in a haphazard way, not reflecting such efforts of the Planning and Zoning Commission. At this time the city of Greenville has the opportunity to avoid the pitfalls of continued non-aesthetic development so common in other cities.

At one of the near future meetings of the Greenville City Council, council members will give consideration to an important land use zoning decision regarding a parcel on Stantonsburg Road. This decision will influence future development in that area.

The League of Women Voters of Greenville-Pitt County has supported the concept of long-range planning for land use in this area. We support the current Medical Arts zoning of the land under discussion and are opposed to the requested change. The precedent of an exception for this area may make impossible future denials of similar requests. Furthermore, such precedent permits another undesirable strip development to begin. The League of Women Voters is opposed to the requested zoning change.

Strength For Today

Napoleon used to declare that every private carried in his knapsack a marshal's baton. By this he meant that the soldier of lowest rank could rise to a place of command if he could show that he had the ability,

The thing that makes America glorious is the realization that above every other place on earth, people here have a chance to make good. To be sure there are plenty of injustices in our country which need to be corrected, but it is also true that here in this country of ours the humblest rise to high station more often than anywhere else.

Here in America it is up to the individual. Neither rank, wealth, or family background mean anything unless one has in him the stuff to make good. And if he has, there is no rank to which he may not attain. Much more than was the case in Napoleon's army, the marshal's baton is in his knapsack.

Supreme Court Says Illegally Obtained Evidence OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, having chipped away at the "exclusionary rule," now plans a much broader examination of the principle which bans illegally obtained evidence from criminal trials.

The justices are expected to announce by July, and perhaps earlier, whether illegal evidence should be allowed if authorities unwittingly made a technical mistake in uncovering it.

On Monday, they decided that such evidence could be presented to a jury if a judge decided that it was inevitable that police would have discovered the evidence by other legitimate means.

It was the first time the court has relaxed the exclusionary rule and some critics are saying the decision could lead to further weakening of the 70-year-old safeguard against unlawful police conduct.

The decision expected next month will stem from two cases involving mistakes by magistrates who issued search warrants to police.

In one case, the lower court refused to allow as evidence drugs seized in a 1981 Burbank, Calif. narcotics investigation on grounds that the magistrate issued a search warrant without receiving "probable cause" from the police.

The other case surrounds an improperly written warrant approved by a magistrate in the investigation in Boston of a 1979 murder.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger has been criticizing the exclusionary rule for 20 years, denouncing it as a punishment to society and protection to criminals.

In reaction to the decision on Monday, Barry Lynn of the American Civil Liberties Union in Washington said, "Any decision that permits unlawfully obtained evidence to be used in a criminal trial is really an indication to law enforcement officials around the country not to know what the law is and not be too careful in protecting the rights of all Americans."

David Crump of the Legal Foundation of America applauded the decision and said it could foreshadow bigger changes.

"It's one more piece of evidence that the court is moving toward" revision of the exclusionary rule, he said.

However, the ruling merely placed the court's stamp of approval on a practice that most state and federal appeals courts have been using for years.

By a 7-2 vote, the court reinstated the murder conviction of Robert Anthony Williams in the 1968 killing in Iowa of 10-year-old Pamela Powers.

A federal appeals court had thrown out Williams' conviction after ruling that police used illegal tactics in persuading him to lead them to the 10-year-old girl's body.

He was convicted and sentenced to life in prison, but in 1977 the Supreme Court ordered a new trial.

Williams, who has remained imprisoned since his 1968 arrest, was retried and again convicted. At the second trial, unlike the first, prosecutors did not say that Williams had led police to the body. But the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals overturned the second conviction because evidence about the condition of the corpse was allowed.

Monday's Supreme Court decision said testimony about the condition of the body was proper because the corpse "inevitably" would have been found by a search under way when Williams was arrested.

The Supreme Court first fashioned the exclusionary rule in 1914 as a procedural matter for federal courts and in 1961 ruled that suppression of illegally seized evidence is required by the Constitution for state prosecutions as well.

Family Earnings Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The weekly earnings of an estimated 40.3 million American families with one or more breadwinners averaged $488 in the first quarter, up 7.5 percent from $453 during the same period in 1983, the government reports.

Over half of these families contained at least two wage-earners, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said. It added that the average wage and salary earnings of these multi-earner families, at $648, were more than twice those of single-earner families.

The earnings of families maintained by women — $280 a week — continued to be a little more than half the earnings of married-couple families, which averaged $530 a week, the report said.

It said the average weekly earnings for white families totaled $503, compared with $353 for black families and $390 for Hispanic families.

"These differences are much greater than earnings differences for individuals (whites, blacks and Hispanics) because minority families are less likely to have more than one worker (in the household)," the report said.

An estimated 62 percent of the families with a member officially listed as unemployed had someone else in the household working.

The report, based on a survey of 60,000 U.S. households, said that in instances where the husband was unemployed and the wife was the only worker, usual weekly earnings averaged $203. But when the wife was jobless and the husband was the lone breadwinner, the usual weekly earnings averaged $342, it said.

The "usual weekly earnings" of individual full-time wage and salary males averaged between $325 and $400, while the figure for women in this category was $258.

The average weekly earnings of people with full-time jobs rose 5.4 percent in the first quarter, which kept the approximately 72 million people ahead of the 4.5 percent pace of inflation.

The "usual weekly earnings" figure reflects gross data which appeared on workers' paychecks, including overtime, tips, commissions and other compensation, rather than net earnings, or take-home pay.

Worker Freed

SMYRNA, Ga. (AP) — A cold beer was the first request of a 21-year-old construction worker who was buried under tons of dirt for nearly four hours before rescuers uncovered his head, witnesses said.

Chuck Jones was recued Monday after firefighters dug through four feet of dirt. He was taken to Smyrna Hospital, where he was in serious but stable condition with a broken leg, officials said today.

Conviction Upsets Civil Rights Group

CLAXTON, Ga. (AP) — Civil rights leaders are challenging the conviction of a black high school football star in the killing of the mother of his pregnant white girlfriend, charging that race may have played a role in his prosecution.

Michael Moore, 18, was found guilty of murder and sentenced to life in prison June 2, the same day he was to have graduated from Claxton High School, where he was co-president of his senior class. He was convicted of the Feb. 1 killing of Rebecca Futch, 39, who was beaten with an aluminum baseball bat and stabbed.

"Having spoken with Michael, I feel and believe in my own heart that he is innocent of the charges against him, but our overall concern is to see justice done," Earl Shinhoster, NAACP southeastern regional director, said Sunday after a jailhouse meeting with Moore.

Shinhoster said he will seek new evidence in the case, review court records and go over reports from an NAACP committee that observed the trial heard by an all-white jury.

Moore's supporters say that Sheri Futch, 17, had been arguing with her mother over her relationship with Moore, and they have questioned why she was never charged in the case.

Authorities have acknowledged that Miss Futch is a suspect, but say there is not enough evidence to charge her. She has denied any part in the crime.

Moore testified that he and Miss Futch had planned to meet at the victim's home on the day of the murder to tell Mrs. Futch about the pregnancy. Since the slaying, Miss Futch testified, she underwent an abortion.

Far-Out Pioneer Sending Signals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four billion miles from Earth, the unmanned spacecraft Pioneer 10 is still sending back signals whose power is reduced by the vast expanses of space to a few thousand-trillionths of a watt.

One year ago, the spacecraft launched in March 1972 became the first man-made object to travel beyond the solar system.

Satellite Corrected

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Ground controllers have raised the orbit of an errant communications satellite, extending its life and preserving an option for a possible rescue attempt by a space shuttle crew, officials report.

Allan McCaskill of the International Telecommunications Satellite Organization, which owns the the satellite, emphasized Monday that the organization is "not actively considering retrieving it ... The primary purpose in raising the orbit is to give people more opportunity to think about what we might like to do or not do."

An Atlas-Centaur rocket lifted off smoothly Saturday, hurling the Intelsat 5 payload toward a stationary orbit 22,300 miles high to join 15 other satellites operated by Intelsat.

Gasoline Suspected In Acid Rain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nobody knows yet what is causing forests to die in Germany and conifers to slow their growth in the eastern United States, but some scientists are turning their suspicions to an old enemy: leaded gasoline.

"The amount of lead in the soil of our mountaintops is outrageous," said one researcher, Robert Bruck, assistant professor of plant pathology at North Carolina State University in Raleigh.

Tree death starts at the tops of mountains, most students agree — and the trees atop mountains concentrate pollutants, not from rain, but from passing clouds, Bruck said in a telephone interview Monday.

Trees on mountaintops act as "combs" to filter out moisture from passing clouds, which then runs down the trunks to the soil. Mount Mitchell in North Carolina, at 6,684 feet the highest in the East, gets 80 inches of rain a year — and another 60 inches of moisture from clouds, Bruck said.

The soil at the top of that mountain contains 350 parts per million of lead. Mountaintops in Germany contain 600 parts per million.

By comparison, "On the street in front of Grand Central Station, you couldn't find 200 parts per million," Bruck said.

As one moves down the face of the mountain, the lead concentration diminishes. Other metals such as cadmium and copper show similar concentration profiles, and all are higher on the western side of the mountain, which faces the oncoming clouds most of the time.

Lead attracts the most attention, Bruck said, "Because it's there in such abundance. I can't prove to you that it is killing the trees, but ... there are good grounds for suspicion."

Almost all the lead in the soil has come from leaded gasoline, still about 40 percent of U.S. gasoline use, Bruck believes. Lead and other metals do not leave the soil, "It just sits there. Suppose there is a threshold effect? This is my hypothesis about what has happened in Germany."

East Cools, But Midwest Gets Twisters

By RON SIRAK
Associated Press Writer

Easterners got a brief break today from a heat wave that has claimed at least 10 lives, while thunderstorms attacked the Midwest with a flurry of tornadoes and heavy rains that wrecked homes and caused flash flooding.

Two people were killed shortly after midnight in South Dakota when a twister ripped a path five miles long and three-fourths of a mile wide in the Rowena and Valley Springs area just east of Sioux Falls.

In Nebraska, several tornadoes late Monday touched down near St. Library, 11 miles north of Grand Island, destroying several buildings, derailing five railroad cars, and leaving the town without power.

"We've got trees down all over and power lines down all over," said a spokeswoman for the Hall County sheriff's department.

Up to 5 inches of rain prompted flood warnings this morning along the Big Sioux River and its tributaries in southeastern South Dakota.

The southern two-thirds of Minnesota and two dozen counties in central and northeast Nebraska were covered by a flood watch.

Two dozen tornadoes touched down Monday in Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa and South Dakota. Thunderstorms packing winds gusting to 90 mph and hail as big as baseballs raked parts of Nebraska.

The Northeast today got a temporary respite from five days of oppressive heat in the mid and upper 90s from Virginia to New England. But forecasters said the mercury will climb back into that range Thursday.

In Baltimore on Monday, the mercury hit 100 degrees at 2 p.m., shattering a mark for the date that was set in 1911. Boston reached a record 98; New York City, Washington, D.C., and Richmond, Va., hit 97; and Atlantic City and Newark, N.J., saw 96.

Marks were also set in Bridgeport, Conn., and Allentown, Pa., where the highs were 93, and in Worcester, Mass., which reached 91.

Four heat-related deaths were reported Monday and three on Sunday in New York City, said Dr. Elliott Gross, the city's chief medical examiner. In Philadelphia, one person died of heat stroke and two of hyperthermia — high body temperature — on Monday, authorities said.

Attack Kills 44 Iranian Civilians

By The Associated Press

Iran declared a day of mourning today for 44 people reported killed and 250 wounded in the southern town of Dezful. Both Iran and Iraq said they would refrain from further attacks on civilians.

The agreement proposed by U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar took effect at 4 a.m. today (8 p.m. Monday EDT). It was the first time during the 45-month-old war that Iran had accepted mediation.

But a high-ranking Iranian official said it wouldn't affect the Islamic republic's determination to carry out its war with Iraq on the battlefield.

Foreign ministers of the six-nation Gulf Coordination Council — Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates, Bahrain, Qatar and Oman — planned to meet in Taif, Saudi Arabia, today to discuss ways to assure a steady supply of oil for world markets in spite of Iraqi and Iranian attacks on Persian Gulf shipping.

The speaker of Iran's Parliament on Monday rejected any peace negotiations with President Saddam Hussein of Iraq. In speech, he said Iraq's Arab supporters expect their ships to be safe in the Persian Gulf as long as Iraq continues to attack oil tankers bound for Iran.

"Our policy is that all ships must pass safely, or those who are in some way a partner in the war and provide help (to Iraq) should not expect to have security," Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency quoted Hashemi Rafsanjani as saying.

Kuwait blamed Iran for a missile attack Sunday on the Kuwaiti tanker Kazima in the southern reaches of the gulf. It was the 42nd ship damaged in the past four months, according to shipping sources in Bahrain.

U.N. Secretary Greeted Coolly

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar received a lukewarm welcome today in Israel, a day after after King Hussein of Jordan endorsed a proposed international peace conference on the Arab-Israeli conflict.

"It would be dishonest of me if I were to disguise the fact that here in Israel there exists a sense of discontent and disillusionment" with the United Nations, Israel's Foreign Ministry director-general, David Kimche, told Perez de Cuellar at Ben Gurion International Airport.

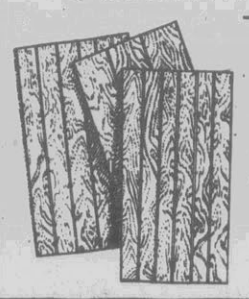

Perez de Cuellar, who planned to meet Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir today, said he hoped to reach "some constructive, positive, just steps in order to improve the present situation for the benefit of your country, the area and the world."

Search For Escapees Spreads Into Canada

PHILIPSBURG, Que. (AP) — Quebec provincial police were to resume their manhunt today after a Canadian minister identified a man he spotted in his backyard Monday as Virginia Death Row escapee Linwood Briley.

The Rev. Keith Eddy said he saw a man identified by police as Briley, 30, while working on his backyard patio after lunch Monday. Eddy's home is about 46 miles from Montreal in the Canadian border town of Philipsburg.

Police believe Briley and his 28-year-old brother James may still be in the area. The Brileys were convicted of killing 10 people during a series of rapes and robberies in the area of Richmond, Va., in the 1970s.

Eddy told reporters the man was trying to hide under a piece of corrugated tin leaning up against his toolshed.

"No more than 30 minutes earlier my daughter Carolyn had come home for lunch and told me people at the customs office where she works were all talking about two escapers.

"I knew it had to be one of them when he moved into the sunshine and I saw that he was black — just like Carolyn had mentioned."

Eddy and his daughter strolled out of their house and reported the sighting to Phillipsburg Fire Chief Hugh Symington, who doubles as the town constable. About 20 Quebec provincial policemen arrived within 10 minutes.

Sgt. Ange-Henri Poulin, a provincial police spokesman in Sherbrooke, said the search around Philipsburg would be resumed today.

Meanwhile Monday, officials closed the Warrenton, N.C., command post where a search for six escaped convicts was directed for more than a week. Officials said there was a "high probability" that the Brileys are no longer in the state.

Police said the Brileys escaped May 31 with four other convicted murderers from Death Row of the Mecklenburg Correctional Center near Boydton, Va.

The six made their escape using a fake bomb. The other four have been recaptured, two in Vermont near the United States-Canada border and two in Warrenton.

Heman Clark, North Carolina's secretary of crime control and public safety, said the State Bureau of Investigation and the Department of Correction will maintain operations in Raleigh, but will also keep a mobile command post in Warrenton. There also will be additional patrolmen on duty 24 hours a day in Warren and neighboring counties.

Budget Action Is Delayed

RALEIGH (AP) — Denying that snags have developed, legislative leaders continued closed-door meetings on proposed changes in the 1984-85 budget, including Gov. Jim Hunt's $300 million education package.

Budget leaders continued working privately Monday and planned a meeting with the heads of budget subcommittee today. Also, the first formal meeting of the Joint Appropriations Committee since the General Assembly convened last week was scheduled tentatively for this afternoon.

Sources said Senate and House leaders apparently were at odds over some fundamental elements in the education plan, including the best way to raise teacher pay and whether reduction of class size or expanding vocational education programs should get higher priority.

Publicly, however, leaders said the only reason the full appropriations panel hadn't met yet was that more time was needed to examine over $600 million worth of requests for more money.

In legislative actin Monday:

The Senate passed 45-0 a resolution honoring the 50th anniversary of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park and former President Franklin D. Roosevelt for helping establish it.

The House and Senate approved a resolution urging the U.S. Olympic Committee to hold the National Sports Festival in North Carolina in 1986 or 1987. The festival, a showcase for athletes hoping to attend the Pan American and Olympic games, gives young people the chance to compete in 33 sports.

Rep. Charles Evans, D-Dare, introduced a bill to let Kitty Hawk regulate its sand dunes to protect the tourist attraction.

Another House bill seeks a joint session of the House and Senate utility committees to review Gov. Jim Hunt's appointee to fill the Utilities Commission seat being vacated by Leigh Hammond.

Five representatives introduced a bill to abolish several executive branch boards, including the N.C. New Horizons Task Force and the N.C. Oil Re-refining Facility Board of Directors.

State Sen. Bill Martin, D-Guilford, and Sen. Wanda Hunt, D-Moore, introduced a resolution urging that women and minorities be appointed to state boards, commissions and councils in proportion to their share of the state population.

Cause Of Leaf Damage Sought

RALEIGH (AP) — An investigation is being conducted to determine if a fertilizer has caused tobacco crop damage in at least three counties, state officials say.

"We're awaiting positive confirmation from the source," said Dr. William K. Collins, who did not name the company that manufactures the fertilizer. "But there is considerable evidence that the source of the contamination is the fertilizer."

Though officials would not identify the fertilizer manufacturer, a spokesman for W.R. Grace & Co., a chemical manufacturing company, has confirmed the complaints are about its product.

Wachovia Home Equity Loans

Borrow from the equity in your home, at affordable rates and payments.

Put the money in your home to work.

If you have a financial need or an opportunity that you cannot conveniently meet with a short-term loan or savings, consider this. It's likely that your home is worth more than you paid for it, and that you have reduced the amount of the original loan. Wachovia offers ways that you can borrow from the equity you've built up.

How Wachovia can make the equity in your home available to you.

Appraised Value of Your Home		Maximum Loan Amount Basis		Balance on First Mortgage		Amount Available for a Home Equity Loan
$150,000	× 75%* =	$112,500	–	$75,000	=	$37,500
$100,000	× 75% =	$ 75,000	–	$50,000	=	$25,000
$ 50,000	× 75% =	$ 37,500	–	$25,000	=	$12,500

*Typical percentage of appraised home value that can be used to secure a loan with approved credit. Amounts shown are for illustrative purposes only. For specific details on how a Home Equity Loan can fit your situation, see a Personal Banker℠.

For major borrowing needs.

A Wachovia Home Equity Loan is an excellent way to borrow for major expenditures such as home improvements, education, or retirement property.

A new option: Equity BankLine.

In addition to the traditional Home Equity installment loans, Wachovia now offers Equity BankLine, which gives you a line of credit of $10,000 or more based on the equity you have in your home. It's pre-arranged, so you can access it any time simply by writing a special check.

Your interest rate is based on Wachovia's Prime Rate plus 2% and may vary monthly. For example, during the month of June, 1984 the Annual Percentage Rate (APR) for Equity BankLine is 14.5%. And under current North Carolina law your rate cannot exceed 15% APR.

While there are no loan origination fees (or "points") charged for Equity BankLine, the borrower pays mortgage loan closing expenses at the time the line is established and at every 10-year anniversary.

Equity BankLine is a convenient and economical way of turning the equity you have in your home into cash you can use wherever and whenever you want, without having to reapply for a loan.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market opened lower today, extending Monday's sharp retreat, as interest rate worries persisted on Wall Street.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which tumbled 15.64 points Monday, was off another 4.30 points at 1,111.31 in the opening half hour.

Nearly two stocks fell in price for every one that rose in the early tally on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts say traders are wary because interest rates are at the highest levels since 1982, and chances are viewed as slim for any substantial relief.

But analysts say that with three-month Treasury bills, a virtually risk-free investment, yielding about 10 percent, there is little incentive to buy stocks.

Today's early prices included American Telephone & Telegraph, unchanged at 15¼; LTV, up ⅛ at 13¼; Schlumberger, down ¾ at 48¼; Alcan Aluminum, down ⅛ at 28⅜; and Coleman, unchanged at 29½.

On Monday, declines outpaced advances by almost 3 to 1 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 69.05 million shares, against 67.84 million Friday.

The NYSE's composite index dropped 1.10 to 88.23. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 2.15 at 201.51.

Budget ...

same amount for capital outlay as was first approved this year ($74,262)," although Gray said, "the new library building was funded in 1983-84 with fund balances in the amount of $2,180,590."

The "'lions share" of the increase in the total Pitt County school budget, Gray said, is going to provide a 15 percent salary increase for teachers and a 10 percent salary increase for classified personnel, and to provide for new employees and $10,000 "for preparation for Southern Association recertification programs."

Capital outlay for the county schools, Gray said, "is the same appropriation as last year, plus their share of the half-cent sales tax."

For the Greenville city school system, "I have recommended a reasonable current expense budget, allowing for the 15 percent salary increase for teachers and 10 percent for classified personnel," the budget message reported.

However, Gray said, "I can not recommend" the $462,875 requested by the city Board of Education in "what they call 'equalization program funds'" because "the RTI (Research Triangle Institute) study states we have two good school systems and the test scores in Greenville have increased just like they have in the county.

"Another factor is that they (the city school board) have elected to spend their funds in other ways rather than employ teachers and aids."

For the city schools "to expect a 50.24 percent increase in revenue from the county (which the school board requested in the proposed 1984-85 budget) is so unrealistic it doesn't deserve further comment," Gray suggested.

"In summary, a total increase for the Pitt County and Greenville city schools for both current expense and capital outlay included in my recommendations amounts to $1,882,253.78 or a 23 percent increase; therefore, I think I have been very generous with the schools and have provided them with sufficient funds for an excellent school system."

The board, which has reviewed requests from the various departments and agencies funded by the county in several workshop sessions, and set guidelines for the county manager to follow, will begin studying Gray's recommendations at a Wednesday afternoon budget session.

Commissioners agreed to reject the city school board's request to withdraw its proposed budget and submit another budget at a later time, after they were told there is no statutory authority for the withdrawal of the budget request.

The city school board, as rquired by law, submitted its proposed 1984-85 budget to the county manager on May 15. Commissioners then met with school board members and school administrators to review the requests on May 21.

On June 6, the school board met and adopted a resolution which requested "the prerogative of withdrawing the budget request made ... on or about May 15," and that the board "be granted an extension on the resubmission of its FY 84-85 budget request and that the deadline for resubmission to be affixed as 15 days following a decision of the two boards of education on the alternative(s) identified in the RTI study for resolving the critical issues identified in said study."

Gray told commissioners that the opinion of the attorney general's office, and the opinion of the county's attorney, W.H. Watson, is that there is no statutory authority for withdrawing the request.

In a written opinion given to the board, Watson said since there is no statutory authority for the withdrawal of the budget request, "I recommend ... proceed forthwith toward the adoption of a budget ordinance as required by law," by July 1.

'Rubber Band' Boosts Gunslingers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Maulers' misery stretched through another game thanks to what San Antonio quarterback Rick Neuheisel calls his team's "rubber band" defense.

"The defense has probably been the mainstream of our team the entire year," San Antonio quarterback Rick Neuheisel said after throwing a pair of touchdown passes in the Gunslingers' 21-3 victory over the Maulers on Monday night.

"They're called the Rubber Band defense because they bend but they don't break," he said.

Pittsburgh had the ball inside the San Antonio 20-yard line six times, including four times in the second quarter. But the Maulers managed only Eric Schubert's 27-yard field goal in losing for the tenth time in their last 11 games.

"We didn't make a break for ourselves tonight, and we didn't get a break," said Pittsburgh Coach Ellis Rainsberger.

Gunslinger defenders, who had not given up more than 94 yards to a single opposing runner, yielded 123 yards to Walter Holman, who ran for injured Heisman Trophy winner Mike Rozier.

"They looked rather porous at times, but then when it got down to where it counted, they shut them down," said San Antonio Coach Gil Steinke.

"(We) played a lot of pretty games this year, but lost. And then we play as sloppy as we did and we win," he said. "I'm just glad that we won."

San Antonio's record is now 6-10 after the team started its inaugural USFL season 1-6. The Maulers fell to 3-13.

"Tonight we took a giant step backwards," said Pittsburgh quarterback Tom Rozantz.

Jerry Gordon took a few steps toward the sidelines while defensive back Mark Harper was covering him in the endzone, and twice that made a difference for San Antonio. Gordon caught both of Neuheisel's scoring passes.

"Both of them were pretty much the same thing. I just said run for the back flag, I'm going to throw it there and it'll be waiting for you," he said.

"Rick threw both of them perfectly. It's virtually impossible for a defensive back to stop it when it's thrown right," said Gordon, who had his finest USFL game. He caught five passes for 81 yards.

Neuheisel hit Gordon on a 21-yard scoring pass play to give the Gunslingers a 14-3 lead in the second quarter. Gordon pulled in his second touchdown pass on a 12-yard play early in the fourth quarter.

The Gunslingers went ahead to stay on the first series of the game.

Mark Rush took a reverse handoff on the opening kickoff and returned the ball 55 yards to the Maulers' 45-yard line.

San Antonio scored six plays later on Marcus Bonner's 1-yard touchdown dive to take the lead 7-0.

Eric Schubert kicked his field goal to make it 7-3 after quarterback Tom Rozantz found Jackie Flowers on a 51-yard pass play that put the Maulers on the Gunslingers' 13-yard line.

Holman helped move Pittsburgh 58 yards on the next series, gaining 47 yards on eight carries. But the Gunslingers held at their 13-yard line, where Greg Fields batted down a field goal attempt by Schubert.

Schubert also came up short on a 54-yard field goal attempt that had been set up by Ron Freeman's interception in the closing seconds of the first half.

The Gunslingers choked a Pittsburgh threat late in the fourth quarter when they sacked backup quarterback Glenn Carano and recovered his fumble deep in San Antonio territory.

Labonte Evens NASCAR Total

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Terry Labonte has caught up with Darrell Waltrip, as both drivers are tied for the lead of the NASCAR Winston Cup Grand National points standings with one race left in the first half of the 30-race season.

Labonte and Waltrip each have amassed 2,067 points in the first 14 races. Thirty points behind is third-place Dale Earnhardt, the 1980 Winston Cup champion, with 2037 points after Sunday's Van Scoy Diamond Mines 500 at Pocono International Raceway in Pennsylvania.

Ricky Rudd is fourth with 1,977 points, while Bill Elliot is fifth with 1,974.

Defending Winston Cup champion Bobby Allison is sixth with 1,890. Rounding out the top 10 are Harry Gant, 1,889; Neil Bonnett, 1,850; seven-time Winston Cup champion Richard Petty, 1,835; and Ron Bouchard, 1,792.

Allison holds first place in money winnings with $327,730, Waltrip is second with $314,685 and Cale Yarborough, who won the Van Scoy Diamond Mines 500, is third at $273,640.

Overton Ties Pending Mark

CYPRESS GARDENS, Fla. — Kristi Overton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Parker Overton of Greenville, tied her pending national record in tricks and took the overall title at the Seniors All-America Water Skiing championships at Cypress Gardens, Fla., this past weekend.

Skiing in the women's open division, the 14-year-old collected 6,560 points in winning the tricks division, tying her pending national mark set two weeks ago. She also finished second in jumping and third in the slalom to give her the overall title in the event.

Farmville Grid Meeting Set

FARMVILLE — All prospective varsity and junior varsity football players at Farmville Central are requested to meet at the school on Wednesday.

Coach Dixon Sauls, who will take over the Farmville Central program next fall, has requested all prospective players to meet with him at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the school cafeteria.

Pitt Pounds Wayne

GOLDSBORO — Eric Woodworth rapped his third home run in the last two games and drove in four runs to help lead Pitt County's American Legion baseball team to a 16-7 romp over Wayne County last night.

The win was the fifth in seven starts for Post 39, and kept them in the battle for the top spot in the league standings.

Doug Coley hurled the win, going eight innings before Mike Kinley came on in relief for the final inning. Coley scattered six hits, walked four and struck out nine in claiming the victory. He also homered and collected a couple of runs batted in — including the game winner on a freak play.

That came in the fifth inning with the score tied at 3-3. Jackie Conway had opened the inning with a bunt single and Toby Fischer also reached on a bunt single. Coley followed, hitting the ball into centerfield for an apparent single.

But somehow, Coley got hit with the bat and fell down at the plate, lying there in pain. Conway hustled in from second base, but the Wayne centerfielder, Anthony Jernigan relayed the ball back to shortstop Jensen Evans, who noticed Coley still down at the plate, and relayed it on to first baseman John Thomas for the freak put-out. Fischer advanced to second on the play.

Coley, fortunately, was able to continue, however. Last week, in his regular pitching turn, he was spiked making a tag at first base and missed the rest of the game.

Pitt took a brief lead in the first inning with a run. Wtih two away, Coley homered to right field for a 1-0 lead.

Wayne County rallied, however, scoring three times in the bottom of the first. Evans reached on an error and Stan Mozingo homered to right — the opposite field. Jernigan singled and stole second, scoring on John Thomas' single.

Pitt came back with a run in the second. Roger Moye walked and stole second, moving on to third when the ball was thrown away. He scored on a sacrifice bunt by Traye Fuqua.

Then, in the third, Pitt tied it up with another run. That came on a solo blast by Woodworth, clearing the fence over 400 feet away.

After Coley's freak out in the fifth, Pitt went on to add three more for a 7-3 lead. Woodworth singled, driving in Fischer and Moye got a hit. Fuqua also singled, loading the bases. Daniel Keel singled in both Woodworth and Moye, ending the scoring in the inning.

Wayne rallied for a pair in the bottom of the frame, while Pitt scored once in the top of the sixth. Wayne rallied for two more in the bottom of the inning to cut it to 8-7, but that was as close as Post 11 was to come.

Pitt picked up four more in the seventh, and finished up with four in the ninth to wrap up the runaway.

Conway led the Pitt hitting with four, while Woodworth had three and Fischer and Fuqua each had two. Wayne County's hitting was led by Thomas who had two.

Pitt travels to Snow Hill on Wednesday night for its next outing.

Godley Rips Four In 12-9 Snow Hill Win

WILSON — Billy Goldey went 4-6 with a pair of doubles to lead Snow Hill to a 12-9 victory over Wilson in American Legion baseball action Monday.

Rick Radford had four hits for Snow Hill, while Randy Daniels, Anthony Russo, Todd Grant and Joey Steppe added two each.

David Allen and Rusty Dail paced Wilson with three hits, and Tommy Braswell and Steve Stanley had two each.

Wilson took the lead with three runs in the bottom of the first, as Allen and Dail singled and William Chapman walked to load the bases. Woody Mercer was hit by a pitch to force in one run, and Stanley ripped a two-run single.

Snow Hill trimmed the margin to 3-2 in the top of the second. Jerry Butler and Joey Steppe singled, and both runners advanced on a wild pitch. Radford collected a pair of RBI with a single for Snow Hill.

Snow Hill took control with six runs in the third, but it took two runs in the sixth to put the game out of reach. Godley singled, and after one out, Butler reached first on an error. Steppe doubled in Godley, and Radford later singled in Butler for the victory.

Wilson scored two more in the eighth, but Snow Hill added an insurance run in the ninth.

Snow Hill improved its record to 6-2 on the season and hosts Rocky Mount tonight.

Tarkanian Says NCAA Trying To Drive Him Out

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The attorney for Jerry Tarkanian says he will introduce testimony that NCAA investigators vowed they would drive the Nevada-Las Vegas coach out of college basketball.

Sam Lionel made such a statement Monday as the feud between the governing body for college sports and the successful coach moved to a state court.

Lionel said the NCAA "ignored every precept of due process" when it sought a two-year suspension of Tarkanian in 1977.

"The NCAA established a terrible precedent of trying the case and then bringing him in to defend himself," Lionel said.

The attorney also said that NCAA investigative procedures were so vague that Tarkanian could not adequately defend himself against charges of recruiting violations lodged against the Las Vegas school in 1977.

UNVL's basketball program was placed on probation in 1977 for two years by the NCAA, which ordered the school to suspend Tarkanian for that period of time.

But Tarkanian obtained a permanent injunction preventing the school from suspending him, and the case has languished in legal limbo until it was revived earlier this year.

The trial will re-establish whether the coach was given due process in the suspension order.

NCAA attorney Jim McLarney of Kansas City defended the association's investigative procedures and said Tarkanian was given a fair hearing.

McLarney said that in 1977, UNLV was accused of 80 violations dating back to 1971. Many of the alleged violations occurred before Tarkanian came to UNLV from Long Beach State in 1973. The university was eventually cited for 38 violations.

In an opening statement, McLarney said Tarkanian had plenty of opportunity to defend himself.

"UNLV had longer hearings, deliberations and sessions than any other school in NCAA history," McLarney said.

Lionel charged that no transcripts were kept of any proceedings involving the university and only some tapes of marginal quality were available for Tarkanian to sift through in seeking out his accusers.

"The NCAA is a private organization formed with the idea of helping its members," McLarney replied. "For enforcement to work, there must be a high degree of confidentiality and that's why there are no transcripts.

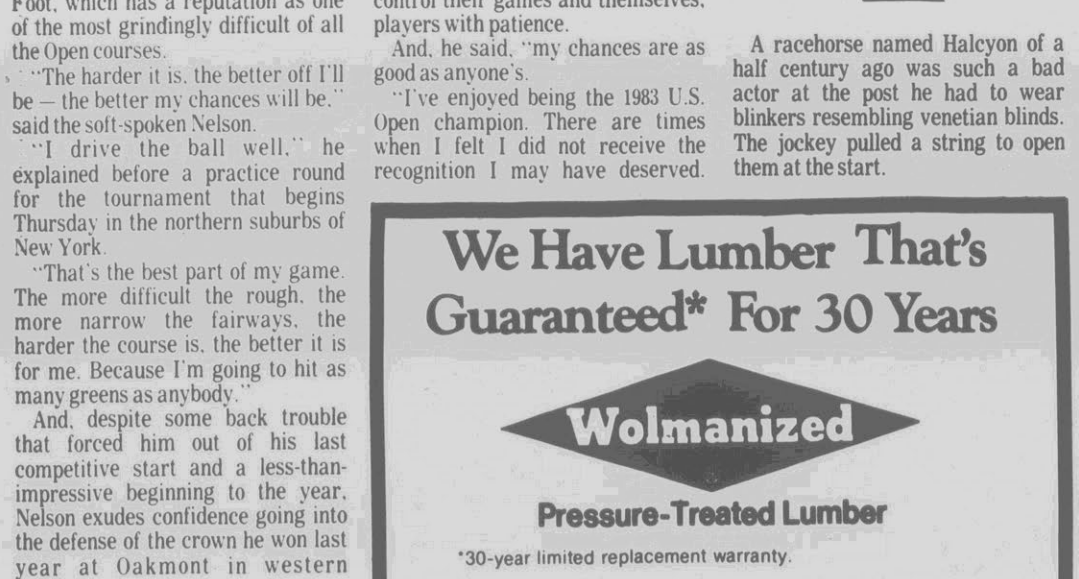

"The burden, if we followed the normal rules of law, would be too great for a voluntary organization."

Tarkanian paced the halls during an afternoon break, then took the stand late in the afternoon.

Defending Champ Nelson Making No Complaints

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (AP) — At the U.S. Open, there are the inevitable complaints and grumbling about deep, difficult rough, narrow fairways, extremely fast greens.

But you will hear no grousing from Larry Nelson, who defends his title this week in the 84th American national championship at Winged Foot, which has a reputation as one of the most grindingly difficult of all the Open courses.

"The harder it is, the better off I'll be — the better my chances will be," said the soft-spoken Nelson.

"I drive the ball well," he explained before a practice round for the tournament that begins Thursday in the northern suburbs of New York.

"That's the best part of my game. The more difficult the rough, the more narrow the fairways, the harder the course is, the better it is for me. Because I'm going to hit as many greens as anybody."

And, despite some back trouble that forced him out of his last competitive start and a less-than-impressive beginning to the year, Nelson exudes confidence going into the defense of the crown he won last year at Oakmont in western Pennsylvania.

"I had a rotten start," said Nelson, whose quiet nature hides a fiercely competitive attitude.

"But," he said, "I'm playing better now than I was at this time last year.

"My game very definitely is coming around," said Nelson, whose best performance of the season came in a last-round run at Ben Crenshaw in the Masters.

"I'm driving it well.

"My putting seems to be better.

"I played well at times in Muirfield (at the Memorial tournament). And it was important, if I am to play well in the Open, that I play well somewhere before the Open."

And there's an addition to his arsenal.

"For the first time in my life, I've learned how to chip the ball," he said. "I've never been a good chipper. Now I've learned."

Muscle spasms in his back — something of a chronic problem — forced him to withdraw after only nine holes at the Kemper Open, scheduled as his last pre-Open tuneup.

He shrugged it off.

"It's happened before. The back is fine now," he said.

Nelson, who took the PGA title in 1981, said the usually-difficult conditions at the Open would tend to favor veteran players, players who can control their games and themselves, players with patience.

And, he said, "my chances are as good as anyone's.

"I've enjoyed being the 1983 U.S. Open champion. There are times when I felt I did not receive the recognition I may have deserved. But that is something else.

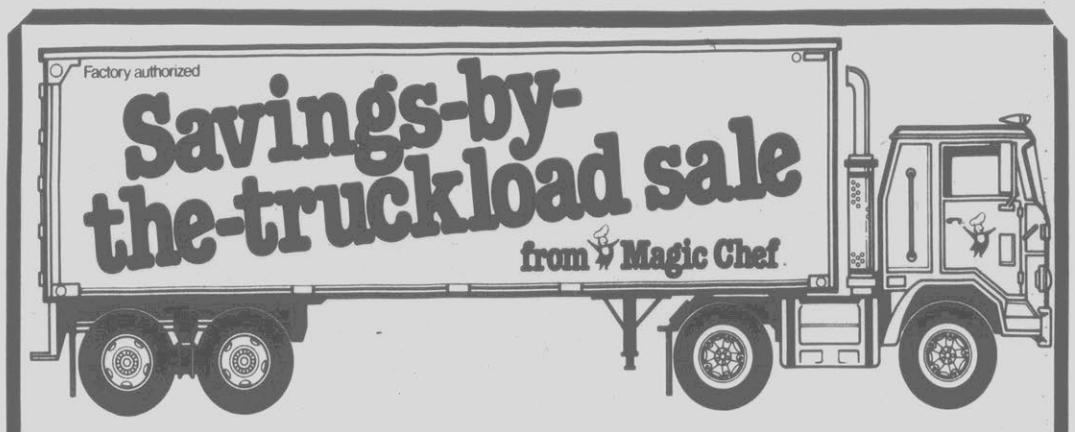

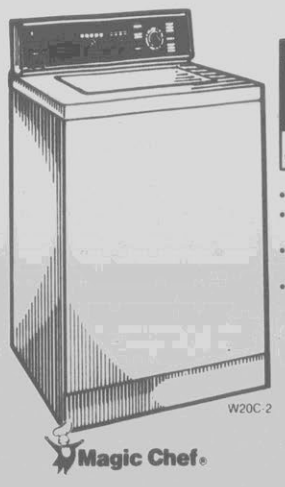

"I've enjoyed it. There's only one thing I'd like more than being the 1983 Open champion.

"And that's being the 1984 Open champion."

A racehorse named Halcyon of a half century ago was such a bad actor at the post he had to wear blinkers resembling venetian blinds. The jockey pulled a string to open them at the start.

NBA Series All Down To One Game

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics have played 104 games this season. The Los Angeles Lakers have played 102. None of that counts anymore.

The National Basketball Association season that began more than seven months ago in mid-fall ends tonight in a late-spring heat wave with the only game that matters.

"One game. We play all year to get here," says Los Angeles' Michael Cooper. "So throw the ball up and let's go for it."

Boston, which never has lost a seventh game of a championship series in six appearances, is host for the winner-take-all finale against Los Angeles, which never has won a seventh game of a championship series in four attempts.

Some Celtics didn't think there'd even be a seventh game.

"We really felt we could finish it today," said Boston's Larry Bird after the Lakers stayed alive by winning Sunday's sixth game, 119-108, in Los Angeles to even the series, 3-3.

"I thought I'd be playing blackjack tonight in Vegas," Celtics' forward Cedric Maxwell said after the loss. "I had all the arrangements made."

The Lakers spoiled those plans.

Tonight, they'll try to become only the fifth team to win an NBA championship series after trailing 3-2 and only the second finalist to knock off Boston, which is 14-1 in title rounds, including 7-0 against the Lakers.

"Everything is there to be had," said Laker Coach Pat Riley. "We have a chance to do something that no one else has done — win a world championship in Boston.

"We're going to win this one for Red Auerbach," Riley said of the Celtic president and general manager.

Throughout the series, Los Angeles has relied on missed Celtic shots and its own defensive rebounds to fuel its devastating fastbreak. Boston has done well when it has shot accurately from outside and dominated the offensive boards.

The Celtics, who had the NBA's best regular-season record, have been nearly unbeatable at home. They are 44-9 this season, including 11-1 in the playoffs, on the famed parquet floor beneath the NBA record of 14 championship banners. They are 2-1 here in this final series.

However, nine of the last 11 NBA crowns have been won on the road, including the 1980 title by the Lakers over Philadelphia and the 1981 championship by the Celtics over Houston.

The Lakers, who had the NBA's second-best record this year, won their eighth title, second most in the league, in 1982. But they were swept in four consecutive games by the 76ers in last year's finals.

"We could play in Nome, Alaska," Cooper said. "We could play in the Sahara Desert. It doesn't matter. No matter if it's raining or snowing. It may have been a factor in Game 5, but that kind of stuff isn't a factor in a Game 7."

In high humidity and a courtside temperature of 97 degrees, the Celtics burned the Lakers, 121-103, last Friday night for their second consecutive victory and a 3-2 series lead.

The National Weather Service said the outdoor temperature at gametime tonight, scheduled for 9 p.m. EDT, is expected to be 77 degrees, about 10 degrees less than Friday's tipoff reading. And the humidity should be lower.

"The heat will have no effect," said Los Angeles' James Worthy. "The crowd won't be an advantage. It's what we play for all year. We'll be ready."

Despite the oppressive conditions, the fifth game was Bird's best of the series. He hit 15 of 20 field-goal attempts, grabbed 17 rebounds and scored 34 points, the most by any player in a single game during the series.

But in Game 6, Boston turned away from its most potent weapon in its time of need. Although he scored 26 points, Bird took only 11 shots, his lowest total in 22 playoff games.

"My own teammates just wouldn't give me the ball," he said. "I just wanted the ball in my hands . . . especially when the 11-point lead was going down. I just didn't get the ball enough. I knew I had my game in control.

"Their defense wasn't doing any better today than any other time in the series," added Bird, who averaged 19.5 field-goal attempts per game during the regular season. "I didn't get the ball nearly enough to make things happen. I will in the seventh game."

The Celtics led 84-73 with 4:58 left in the third quarter Sunday. Los Angeles took advantage of poor Boston shooting and rallied in front, but Boston tied the game 93-93 midway through the fourth period. Then, a three-point basket by Byron Scott gave the Lakers the lead for good.

Boston made just 15 field goals in the second half, only five of them in the final 17 minutes.

"I'm not surprised there's going to be a seventh game," said Bird. "I'm just surprised at how it happened."

Injuries could play a role in the deciding contest. Scott Wedman, who scored the winning basket with 14 seconds left in overtime of Boston's 124-121 victory in Game 2, has missed the last two games with a hairline fracture of the leg and is out of tonight's game.

Los Angeles' Bob McAdoo, an excellent outside shooter, has an acute strain of the right achilles tendon and is considered doubtful. Earvin "Magic" Johnson, the Lakers' floor general, is limping slightly with a sore knee.

"Can't worry about it now," he said. "Just gotta gut it out."

So it comes down to a single game in an NBA season of more than one thousand games.

Players on both teams are speaking with optimism.

"We'll make them wish they never took that plane flight to Boston," said Celtic M.L. Carr.

"We feel confident we can go into Boston and win," said Earvin Johnson.

CHICOD — The Chicod Hornets rolled up a 14-8 victory over MacKenzie Security in the Southern Pitt Little League last night.

Eric Swinson hurled the victory and also contributed three hits to the Chicod attack. Ashley Summerlin also had three hits, two of them doubles, while Daniel Beacham had two hits.

MacKenzie was led by Brosham Thompson and Johnny Williams, each with two.

Little League

Jaycees.....11
Lions.....10

Carlester Crumpler hit a three-run homer, but it was a two-run single by Ike Jones that let the Jaycees nip the Lions; 11-10, in the North State Little League yesterday.

The game was played under protest by the Lions over an inserted player in the Jaycee lineup after the top of the fourth inning.

The Jaycees pushed over two in the first, but the Lions matched that in the second and took the lead with one inthe third. Thge Jaycees tied it again with one in the third. The Lions then scored five times int he top of the fourth to move back out, with the Jaycees scoring three on Crumpler's homer in the bottom of the inning. The Lions added two more in the sixth for a 10-6 lead.

But in the bottom of the sixth, the Lions rallied for five to win it. Chris Warren opened with a single and Camilla Brown got a hit. Cliff Ferrell singled and an error let Warren score. Jonathan West walked to load them up and Rodney Williams singled in Brown. A wild pitch let Ferrell score and Jones then singled in both West and Williams with the tying and game-winning runs.

Crumpler had three hits, while Warren and Ferrell each had two. Mike Harris, Matt Aldridge, Robin Joyner and Kirk Welch each had two hits for the Lions.

Carroll & Assoc.....16
First Federal.....1

Michael Sutton tossed a four-hitter at First Federal as Carroll & Associates romped to a 16-1 victory in the Tar Heel Little League.

One of those hits was a homer by Drew Johnson, which accounted for the only First Federal run.

Carroll got all it needed in the first innning, scoring two times. Marvin Gay walked and Travis Williams reached on an error. With one away, Toure Claiborne singled in Gay, but Williams was thrown out trying to advance to third. Walks to Chad Adams, Mitchell Brown and Hank Thompson forced in Claiborne with the second run.

C&A added three in the second, one in the third, and ten in the fourth.

Claiborne led the C&A hitting with three, while Joel Daughtry and Adams each had two. No one had more than one for First Federal.

Babe Ruth League

Everett's.....10
Pepsi-Cola.....7

Everett's Pest Control scored five times in the third inning then held off Pepsi-Cola to take a 10-7 victory last night in the Babe Ruth League.

Everett's pushed over three run sin the first for the initial lead. They added one in the second before Pepsi came up with its first two in the top of the third.

In the bottom of the third, Everett's put it away with five runs. Jay Surles reached on an error and moved up on a pased ball. Axel Smith walked and Tim West reached on an error, loading them up. Neil Everette tripled, driving in all three runners, and Carlos Harris singled him in. Harris moved up on an out and scored when Roosevelt Taft singled.

Everett's added one more in the fourth, while Pepsi scored four in the seventh.

Smith led the Everett hitting with two, while Tom Moye and Tracy Johnson each had three for Pepsi.

Planters Bank.....15
Brown & Wood.....0

Eric Jarman tossed a one-hitter as Planters Bank romped to a 15-0 victory over Brown & Wood last night in Babe Ruth League action.

Jarman gave up the only hit in the first inning to Mike Wooten. He struck out seven and walked three.

Planters got all it needed in the first inning, scoring once. Jarman led off with a double and move up on a wild pitch. Tim Clark walked and Tom Taylor's ground out scored Jarman.

Planters picked up one more in the second, one in the third, then got six each in the fifth and sixth.

Morris Johnson had three hits to lead Planters, while Jarman and Greg Jones each added two.

AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — Arnold Palmer knows he is not the same golfer today that he was a couple of decades ago, when his dramatic, charismatic style thrust the sport into the public's consciousness.

"I suppose my game is not what it was 10 or 15 or 20 years ago," he said Monday. "My reactions are not as fast. Mostly it's mental, concentration."

Palmer offered an example — one that probably cost him a berth in this week's U.S. Open, which begins Thursday at Winged Foot in Mamaroneck, N.Y.

Forced to qualify for the tournament in which he had played every year since 1952, Palmer came up short, shooting a 2-over-par 146 at the Sharon Golf Club in Sharon, Ohio, last Tuesday.

"The last nine holes, I came apart at the seams," Palmer said. "My game is not as good as it once was. Some days, it's just as good. Sometimes, it's better. If any part of my golf game has deteriorated, it's been my short game. I three-putted two greens in a row and I went from qualifying to out of it."

Palmer, 54, said his concentration had been broken on the 12th hole at Sharon when a contact lens slipped in his eye. "I three-putted No. 13," he said.

So, instead of spending the week at Winged Foot, he will attend to "some work I needed to do," play a practice round at Birmingham, Ala., preparing for next month's PGA tournament, and then head home to Latrobe, Pa. He'll watch the windup of the Open on television. "If it gets hot," he said, "I might go swimming."

Palmer, one of the game's alltime greats, did not question the United States Golf Association requirement that he qualify for this tournament.

"I qualified before," he said. "I have no objection, no disagreement with the USGA. I think if you can't play, you shouldn't play. I missed. I had every opportunity to make it."

Palmer was in town to be honored Monday night by the All American Collegiate Golf Foundation as its Man of the Year in Golf.

Demand For Youth Movies Creates New Type Of Star

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The apparently insatiable demand for youth movies has created a new breed of star — tough but vulnerable, handsome but not overly so, WASPish and most of all, young.

Their ranks include Tom Cruise, Sean Penn, Matt Dillon, Nicholas Gage — and Tom Hanks.

"Splash" did it for Hanks, 27, but passable as a college freshman. He played the produce dealer who was willing to turn amphibian out of love for the mermaid, Daryl Hannah. Since the film has already sold more than $62 million worth of tickets, Hanks' career is hot.

This month Hanks is starring in the 20th Century Fox release, "Bachelor Party." He plays Rick Gassko, a swinging bachelor about to sacrifice his freedom at the altar.

"It's about the bachelor-party tradition that the bridegroom must have one night of hookers, debauchery and wantonness," he said. "A quaint custom, but I think that civilization has progressed beyond that.

"The movie gets kinda wild, but at least I get to keep my clothes on. I was more naked in 'Splash.'"

Tom Hanks seems to enjoy a better chance than most of his colleagues of surviving the youth-movie vogue.

He was born in Oakland, Calif., which he admitted has been called "Cleveland East" and "Jersey by the Bay."

"Oakland is easy to knock, but it was a great place to grow up in — integrated, culturally diverse yet mobile," he said.

Instead of going to movies, Hanks became addicted to the theater, and he could find plenty in San Francisco and Berkeley. On a scholarship to California State University in Sacramento, he impressed visiting director Vincent Dowling, who invited him to join the Great Lakes Shakespeare Festival in Cleveland.

"Along with a couple of friends, I got on Interstate 80 in Oakland and off Interstate 80 in Cleveland," he recalled. "The first thing I did was a tour of 'Taming of the Shrew,' which got me into Actors Equity. For three years I had the experience of being in a rotating repertory company, playing support in everything from 'Othello' and 'Hamlet' to 'King John' and 'The Cherry Orchard.'

"The best part was Proteus in 'Two Gentlemen From Verona.' He was a jerk, but I was onstage during most of the play. After three years I had enough on my resume to try to New York."

With a wife and child to support, Hanks suffered cold New York winters, surviving on unemployment payments between acting jobs. He made one low-budget film, "He Knows You're Alone," then landed a TV series, "Bosom Buddies." That led to "Splash."

Now Hanks has back-to-back roles: a concert violinist in "The Man With One Black Shoe"; a Peace Corpsman in "The Volunteer."

"Comedy is a good gig; it never goes out of style," he said. "My idols are Jack Lemmon and Jimmy Stewart, who have had careers that cover a long, wide range. At the same time Lemmon was making sex comedies like 'Under the Yum Yum Tree,' he also made 'The Apartment' and 'Days of Wine and Roses.' The roles were diverse but his personality never changed.

"It's different for a film actor today," Hanks said. "Usually you make one picture a year or one every 18 months. It's hard to build a career on that basis."

Tiny Actor Gets Suit Settlement

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Herve Villechaize has reached an out-of-court settlement with Hustler magazine in a $3 million defamation lawsuit he filed over a cartoon story depicting his "Fantasy Island" character as a sex-crazed deviant, an attorney says.

Alan Isaacman, the magazine's attorney, said Monday that Hustler will print a statement in its September issue noting that the February 1980 cartoon was not intended as an attack on the 3-foot-11-inch actor.

Villechaize, who played Tattoo in the TV series from 1978 to 1983, will receive no money from Hustler, Isaacman said.

"Our defense throughout this entire case has been that the story was not about Mr. Villechaize personally, that it was meant as a parody of the television show," Isaacman said.

The Hustler cartoon portrayed the actor "in a context of perversity and as a sexual deviant ... engaged in acts of homosexuality, bestiality and sodomy," the suit alleged.

Critics Hard On Son Of Artist

NEW YORK (AP) — Portrait artist Jamie Wyeth says being the son of artist Andrew Wyeth has one major disadvantage: The critics are too hard on him.

"There is a certain baggage that comes with the name. When I had my first show, the critics' dynastic resentment almost totally distracted them from my work," the younger Wyeth said in interview in the July issue of House & Garden magazine.

"Perhaps if I had made a more radical break with my father's style, they would have approved more. But frankly, all that stuff — constant comparisions, publicity, imitators and detractors — either stays outside your studio door, or it cripples you."

Jamie Wyeth told the magazine he was trained by his father, much as Andrew Wyeth was trained by his father, illustrator N.C. Wyeth.

'Indiana Jones' Falls In Box Office Rating

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Ghostbusters" and "Gremlins" scared "Indiana Jones" and "Star Trek III" away from the head of the pack at theater box offices last weekend.

Columbia's "Ghostbusters," featuring Dan Aykroyd and Bill Murray, grossed $13.6 million on its first weekend in release. "Gremlins," the Warner Bros. tale of cute but nasty little creatures, did $12.5 million worth of business at the ticket counters.

Paramount's "Indiana Jones" fell to third at $12 million and last week's No. 1 film, "Star Trek III," dropped all the way to fourth with a weekend gross of $9.6 million.

"Beat Street," another break-dancing picture, grossed $5.2 million for Orion over its debut weekend, and Tri-Star's "The Natural," brought in $2.4 million in its fifth week.

Here are the top seven grossing films last weekend, with producer, number of weeks in release, weekend gross and total gross.

1. "Ghostbusters" Columbia, first week, $13.6 million.
2. "Gremlins" Warner Bros., first week, $12.5 million.
3. "Indiana Jones" Paramount, three weeks, $12 million, $88.7 million.
4. "Star Trek III" Paramount, two weeks, $9.6 million, $34.8 million.
5. "Beat Street" Orion, first week, $5.2 million, $5.2 million.
6. "The Natural" Tri-Star, five weeks, $2.4 million, $30.1 million.
7. "Romancing the Stone" Fox, 11 weeks, $1.5 million, $59.8 million.

Program Set On Disasters

WASHINGTON, N.C. — WITN-TV will present "Weather Alert: Downeast Disaster," hosted by the station's weatherman, Jack Roper, and reporter Chris Fitzsiman at at 9:30 p.m. Wednesday on channel 7.

The documentary examines the technology and personnel necessary to forecast hurricanes and severe weather patterns accurately. It will look back at area weather devastations over the past 30 years — beginning with this year's March 28 tornado. Emphasis will be on the need to prepare ahead for such disasters including evacuation procedure planning.

A survivor of 1954's Hurricane Hazel will describe how he survived the storm, considered to be the most destructive ever to strike the North Carolina cost.

FOCUS

Flights of Fancy

On June 12, 1979, pilot Bryan Allen pedaled the "Gossamer Albatross" in the first human-powered flight across the English Channel. The 21-mile flight lasted 2 hours, 49 minutes. A new human-powered aircraft, the Monarch, was recently first to fly a 1,500-meter triangular course in under 3 minutes. In 1933, "Chick" Reinhart launched a paper airplane on a 1¼-mile flight from a 10th-story New York City office.

DO YOU KNOW — Where did the Wright brothers successfully test their first airplane?

5 NT	Pass	6 ◇	Pass
7 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Nine of ♣.

The way to handle a particular suit combination could vary, depending on communication between declarer's hand and dummy. This example is typical.

After South opened with a demand bid, North correctly set the suit immediately rather than bid one of his four-card suits. South launched into Blackwood and boldly went to a grand slam as soon as he established that his partner held an ace and a king. He chose to play the suit slam in case he needed a club ruff for his 13th trick.

West led a club. Declarer won in hand and laid down the king of trumps. When West failed to follow, declarer had no way to pick up the jack of trumps, so he ended up down one.

South knew enough to make the correct play had there been only one entry to the table. Then, playing the king of trumps before crossing to the ace would allow him to pick up the suit if it split 4-1 — that break is more likely than 5-0.

As the cards lie, however, declarer has a heart entry to the board as well as the ace of spades. Now correct technique in the trump suit is to cross to the ace at trick two. If both defenders follow, declarer continues with a trump to the king. If trumps are 3-2, declarer can claim; if West shows out, declarer can get back to dummy with a high heart to take a finesse for the jack of trumps.

On the actual hand, West shows out on the first spade. Declarer wins and takes a trump finesse, then crosses back to the board in hearts to take a second trump [illegible]. Now his grand s[illegible] assured.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. For a copy, send $1.75 to "Goren-Four Deal," care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to Newspaperbooks.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JUNE 13, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's full moon brings much activity and whatever requires that you be alive, alert, aware and active to what is going on about you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have fascinating new ideas that should be put in operation quickly so that you can become more successful in the future.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Your money matters can improve commensurate with the intelligence with which you handle them. Be clever.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make those new arrangements with associates and you make progress more speedily. Be happy.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Go after the data you need at the right sources and get it so that your plans can be worked out rightly.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Listen to what logical persons have to suggest so that you can gain your personal desires more easily.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Show higher-ups that you are doing your best and map out a diagram if necessary. Stop talking so much; act!

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get in touch with those persons who can help you with some plans you are working on. Don't be so concerned with home and kin.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make those arrangements with kin that will be satisfactory to all concerned. Then entertain friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A good day to improve relationships with associates and also competitors.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Converse with those who understand your job and get good suggestions for improving it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A good day to plan amusements for the days ahead, so contact good friends. Try not to lose your temper.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study your home responsibilities and then you know how to handle them intelligently. Try not to get irritated.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be one who is good at times of emergency so be encouraging in this, since your progeny is very resourceful and quick to act. One who will be able to get ideas across to others speedily.
