Board Endorses 'Conditional' Consolidation

By MARY SCHULKEN

In a long-awaited position statement on the question of merger of the Greenville and Pitt County schools, the County Board of Education announced today it favors "conditional long-range consolidation" of the two systems.

The conditions of the consolidation include funding for what county officials call "severe and immediate" capital outlay needs in the county system, a 12-member consolidated board of education elected from townships by the county at large and a gradual, phased-in merger of the two systems as capital improvements are completed.

The position statement included no estimate of how much consolidation would cost because, superintendent Eddie West of Pitt County schools said, "it is only fair to the public to provide them with realistic expectations."

"To indicate the total list of capital improvements would cost a certain sum of money today," West said, "and that money be appropriated over a period of years without taking into account inflationary measures would only arouse expectations that all building improvements would be funded when only in fact, there would be enough to do only a lesser number due to inflation."

The county board told Pitt County Commissioners and members of the Greenville Board of Education today at a joint meeting that the county "would consider consolidation of the two systems into one" subject to the following conditions:

- County commissioners provide the revenues for upgrading current county facilities and in doing so eliminate necessary adjustments in attendance lines through a 14-item list of capital improvements.
- The Greenville Township (with adjustments to school district lines) would become a township within the Pitt County schools.

- Consolidation would not take place until dollars are available and the specified capital projects are completed or underway.

- In anticipation of consolidation, attendance lines would be grandfathered for current students and children of families in the Winterville and Belvoir schools until graduation. Beginning in 1985-86, however, students moving into Tucker Estates, West Haven, Club Pines, Belvedere, Lyndale, Cambridge, Pinewood Forest, Yorktown Square and Courtney Square subdivisions would be in the Greenville Township attendance area. In addition, students moving into the area north of secondary road 1908 between North Carolina highways 13 and 43 would attend Greenville Township schools "to reduce further pressure at the Winterville Township Schools." Students moving into the area east of secondary roads 1440 to 1415 to N.C. highway 13 would also attend Greenville Township Schools "to take pressure off of Belvoir School and North Pitt High School."

- The grouping plan currently in use in the Pitt County school would continue to be followed "to assure compliance with the Civil Rights Act of 1964."

- Future current expense and capital outlay funds provided to the consolidated system by the county commissioners would be "equal to, or greater, percentage wise, within the total county budget, than the combined budgets of the two separated school systems."

- The consolidated board would consist of 12 members elected by the county at large as follows: Bethel and Belvoir townships, one member; Arthur, Falkland and Fountain townships, one member; Carolina and Pictolus townships, one member; Chicod, Grimesland and Swift Creek townships, one member; Farmville Township, one member; Winterville Township, one member; Grifton Township, one member; Ayden Township, one member; Greenville Township, four members elected by ward.

- Prior to formal consolidation a committee of eight county board members and four city board members would review and make decisions necessary for consolidation.

- Services of the two systems be jointly planned, shared and reviewed by the consolidation committee and phased in with completion of the requested improvements to county facilities.

A study on school merger in Pitt County done by the Research Triangle Institute for the county commissioners and released in September, 1983, recommended consolidation as the best solution to specific problems within the two systems. Declining enrollment and a lopsided black/white student population in the Greenville schools were identified by the RTI study as the city's major problems.

The county, the study said, has too many students in areas, a large number of temporary teaching stations (mobile units), and a high percentage (65 percent) of buildings that need to be replaced within 10 years. Twenty-four percent of the buildings should be phased out within three years according to the study.

Greenville school board members announced earlier this year they favor merger of the two systems.

County school officials have expressed long-standing concern over the conditions of older facilities within the system and the use of 68 mobile units in the county.

The statement released by the county board today said consolidation "enables the Pitt County Board of Education to meet in a positive manner its responsibility of providing adequate facilities and quality programs to its existing constituents, provides relief from overcrowding in the Pitt County schools while reducing Greenville City enrollment problems."

Position Statement Lists Priority Needs

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

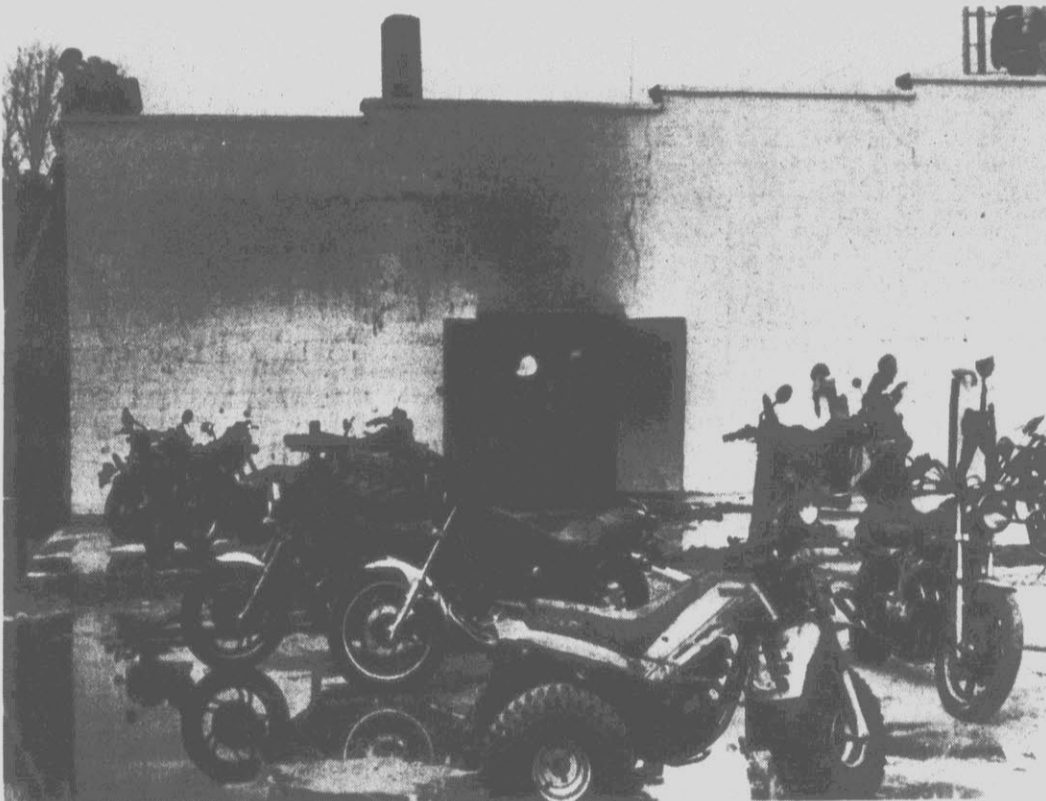

The position statement on school merger released today by the Pitt County Board of Education said the board favors "conditional consolidation" of the two school systems in the county.

The conditions, the largest of which is money for capital improvements in the county system, reflect the board's concern, say county officials, about overcrowding, outmoded facilities and a number of mobile units that have been used in some locations for 15 years.

"The board has historically believed that many county school facilities were in need of substantial improvement, particularly those schools having large numbers of mobile units," superintendent Eddie West of Pitt County school said. "Those 'temporary' teaching facilities have been in use for approximately 15 years and have exceeded their life expectancy."

The 14 capital outlay priority needs that must be "completed or (Please turn to page 8)

MORNING FIRE — Greenville firemen responded at 7:41 a.m. this morning to a fire at the Yamaha of Pitt County Motorcycle Shop on North Greene Street. The Greenville Fire Department dispatched two fire units, two rescue units, and a salvage unit to the scene. At

Rainfall Helpful

Gray skies brought welcome rain to Pitt County Sunday, with rain measurements varying from one-half inch to over an inch across the county.

Greenville Utilities weather station measured .53 inch rain in the 24 hour period from 7 a.m. Sunday to 7 a.m. today. Other areas of the county, including Winterville and Ayden, reported heavier showers. The mercury reached a high of 87 degrees Fahrenheit Sunday and a low of 65 degrees F.

Leroy James, chairman of the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service commented "the rainfall will be worth millions to Pitt County and area farmers. It's just the kind of rainfall we all hoped for, what was needed, a steady, slow rain that doesn't result in a lot of run-off."

James added that even before nightfall "it was possible to tell a difference in the way the crops looked, especially corn and tobacco. This rain will be a big help to those two crops as well as for cucumbers and peanuts.

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

Hotline gets things done. Write and tell us about the problem or issue into which you'd like for Hotline to look. Enclose photostatic copies of any pertinent information. Our address is The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C., 27635. Because of the large numbers received, Hotline cannot answer or publish every item we receive, but we deal with all of those for which we have staff time. Names must be given, but only initials will be published.

FIREWORKS PLEDGES ASKED

The Greenville Jaycees have asked Hotline to appeal for patron pledge sponsors for the Greenville community Fourth of July celebration to be held July 4 with July 6 as a rain date.

The money will be used to finance the fireworks display which climaxes the celebration each year. Donations may be sent to Greenville Jaycees, P.O. Box 258, Greenville. Randy Pellisero and Claye Frank are chairing the event preparations.

WEIGHT EQUIPMENT

The Rose High-Aycock Athletic Foundation has asked Hotline to appeal for the donation of weight-lifting equipment - barbells, weights, benches etc. - to Rose High School.

The school is developing a weight room and needs good used equipment. Donations will be tax-deductible, Coach Bud Phillips said. Anyone who can help is asked to call 752-3169 and leave a message.

Trial Postponed

The trial of Harvey Lee Green Jr. was postponed today due to the illness of Superior Court Judge Thomas S. Watts. The trial will resume Tuesday at 9:30 a.m.

Green pleaded guilty last week to the first degree murders of Sheila Marlene Bland, 17, and John Michael Edmondson, 33, in Young's 1-Hour Cleaners Dec. 19.

Testimony for the defense had begun Friday afternoon after the state rested its case.

Challenge Ruled Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Gary Hart announced today he will not challenge the selection of so-called "tainted delegates" to the 1984 Democratic National Convention and supporters of former Vice President Walter F. Mondale said they would accept major portions of Hart's "democracy package" of changes in future delegate-selection procedures.

Although Hart also reiterated his intention to remain in contention for the presidential nomination, his public decision to forgo any challenge of Mondale delegates represents a major step toward the

Shuttle Flight Scrubbed

By HOWARD BENEDICT

AP Aerospace Writer
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA scrubbed this morning's debut launch of the space shuttle Discovery after a back-up computer "hung up" just half-an-hour before scheduled liftoff. The problem was reminiscent of one which grounded the first shuttle for two days in 1981.

Launch was set back 24 hours — to 8:43 a.m. EDT Tuesday — as NASA engineers worked to swap out the "suitcase-sized" computer. A six-person crew was aboard Discovery when this morning's delay was announced.

Even if the swap-out is successful, weather was problematic and the shuttle forecaster said he was "pessimistic" about conditions for Tuesday.

The backup computer, manufactured and maintained by IBM, would take over flight controls if all four of the shuttle's primary computers failed.

"We have a serious hardware problem," shuttle operations director Thomas Utsman told reporters. Rather than attempt to fix the errant machine, Utsman said a replacement would be cannibalized from sister ship Challenger, which is being readied nearby for a November flight. Discovery brings to three the NASA shuttle fleet.

Today's was the third postponement of a shuttle launch during final countdown, and the first since flight two in November 1981. The first computer and while the launch was not rescheduled, engineers hoped to find a fix that would allow the 12th shuttle liftoff to take place Tuesday morning.

But even if the swap-out is successful, weather could intervene and the shuttle forecaster said he was "pessimistic" about conditions Tuesday.

The backup computer, manufactured and maintained by IBM, would take over flight controls if all four of the shuttle's primary computers failed.

"We have a serious hardware problem," shuttle operations director Thomas Utsman told reporters. Rather than attempt to fix the errant machine, Utsman said a replacement would be cannibalized from sister ship Challenger, which is being readied nearby for a November flight. Discovery brings to three the NASA shuttle fleet.

Today's was the third postponement of a shuttle launch during final countdown, and the first since flight two in November 1981. The first flight — delayed because of debris which threw off the back-up computer — set back Columbia's dramatic maiden voyage for 48 hours.

The second flight, delayed due to malfunctioning hydraulics, was for more than a week.

"When you're sitting there with all your experts, not feeling very comfortable, it's not the time to fly," said Utsman.

Discovery's first countdown progressed smoothly overnight and until the final hour. But when the crew switched data from their four main computers to a backup, launch control noticed first a stray signal, then that the backup was "out of synch" — that is, it did not duplicate the data it received.

"The backup flight system apparently has stopped, hung-up," said launch control spokesman Mark Hess.

Discovery's flight crew, lying on their backs aboard ship for more than two hours before the scrub, included America's second space woman and an industry engineer whose "weightless" manufacturing process will produce test quantities of a mystery drug. A military communications satellite waited in the cargo bay.

Launch director Bob Sieck expressed regrets to commander Henry Hartsfield and told him he appreciated the crew's patience.

"He (Hartsfield) had his emotions ... I'm sure, like all of us, they were there. But he didn't express anything," said Utsman as the crew left the shuttle an hour after scheduled liftoff.

Hartsfield, 50, was pilot aboard Columbia on its fourth flight two years ago. His crew includes five rookies: pilot Michael Coats; mission specialists, Judy Resnik, Steve Hawley and Richard Mullane, and payload specialist Charles Walker.

The trouble cropped up about 30 minutes before launch time and NASA engineers failed to find a solution. With nine minutes before

Final Date

The final planting date for grain sorghum and soybeans insured through the Federal Crop Insurance Corp. is July 5.

"Farmers unable to plant by the final planting date because of adverse weather conditions may sign a 20-day late planting agreement, which permits insurance coverage, but provides for a lower guarantee due to the late planting," according to FCIC district director J.W. Taylor Jr.

The agreement must be signed by July 15, he said. All acreage planted must be reported by the same dates.

Taylor said the late plant agreement, previously restricted to delays caused only by excessive moisture, has been expanded to include all adverse weather conditions. The insurance is available at specified local agencies.

Helms Dinner

United States Senator Jesse Helms will be honored at a dinner in Wilson on July 6. The event, to be held in the Wilson Moose Lodge, will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets for the event can be obtained by calling Mrs. Angie Bailey, local coordinator, at 243-3425 or by calling Helms for Senate at 876-8522. Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for students.

Three Injured

Christopher Allen Madry of White's Trailer Park was charged with careless and reckless driving following investigation of a 7:31 p.m. collision Sunday on Arlington Boulevard west of the Clifton Drive intersection in which three people were injured.

Police said the Madry car collided with a vehicle driven by Murray Spain of College Court Trailer Park, injuring a passenger in the Madry car, Spain and a passenger in the Spain vehicle.

Damage from the mishap was estimated at $1,000 to the Madry vehicle and $5,000 to the Spain car.

The Pitt County Board of Social Services will meet Tuesday at noon at Archie's Steak House.

City Hall Notes

Guests on the city's radio program, City Hall Notes, during the week of June 25 will be John Ferren, assistant general manager of the Greenville Utilities Commission, and Diane Hankins of the Eastern Office of the North Carolina Division of Archives and History.

Ferren will provide a progress report on construction of the new wastewater treatment plants and Mrs. Hankins will discuss services provided by the state division of Archives and History.

City Hall Notes is aired on WOOW Radio each Tuesday and Thursday at 10:25 a.m.

Conducted Workshop

Kathy K. Sprau, a Greenville management and personal development trainer and consultant, recently conducted a two-day workshop at the Crabtree Sheraton in Raleigh.

The seminar, entitled "Communicating Effectively and Assertively," was the third sponsored by the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill School of Public Health. It is also scheduled for Aug. 28-29 in Charlotte.

Library Workshop

Over 70 librarians and media personnel representing public, school and academic libraries attended the eighth annual summer workshop sponsored by the East Carolina University Library Science Professional Society.

The workshop was coordinated by Emily S. Boyce, chairman of the ECU Department of Library Science. Keynote speaker was Ms. Marsha Riddle, director of volunteer services, Western Carolina Center, Morganton.

Community Schools Schedule Activities

Pitt County Community Schools has announced the following schedule of summer activities:

BASKETBALL CAMP: June 25-29 from 9 a.m.-12 noon at D.H. Conley High School. For junior high school students. Emphasis will be placed on building individual skills and good sportsmanship. Registration is $25. To pre-register call 752-6106.

Family Hopes For Clemency

RALEIGH (AP) — The children of convicted murderer Velma Margie Barfield say there may be valid reasons for appeals, but they're pinning their hopes for keeping their mother out of the death chamber Aug. 31 on clemency from Gov. Jim Hunt.

"Most of our hopes lie with Gov. Hunt," said Ron Burke, Mrs. Barfield's 32-year-old son by her first marriage. "While we feel Jimmy (Little, Mrs. Barfield's attorney) has a valid claim with the U.S. Supreme Court, our hopes are with clemency."

"I'm sure there are other appeals being pursued, but my thoughts now are with the clemency process and what we can do to make that decision," said Kim Norton, 30, Mrs. Barfield's daughter.

Burke, of Charleston, S.C., and Mrs. Norton, of Lumberton, spent two hours with their mother Saturday. It was their first visit since Mrs. Barfield was moved from the Correctional Center for Women to Central Prison's Death Row.

"I feel like she's not happy where she is," said Burke, "but that she's reconciled herself it's going to be that way. I'm not sure she has hopes of getting back to the women's prison."

"My problem is not that she has to go there (Death Row)," Burke said. "I understand she's a Death Row prisoner and that she's not going to get treated nicely all the time."

Farm Scene

By MITCH SMITH
Agricultural Extension Agent

Over the past two weeks tobacco farmers have reported damage due to contamination from dicamba. In order to properly cope with this problem, correct procedures are essential.

Tobacco plants which are contaminated with dicamba have leaves which show a downward curling of the edges and tips of growing leaves resulting in a "cobra head" appearance. Leaves which show extreme symptoms show a downward cupping and also may pucker and have a darker green color than normal leaves.

If a field is suspected to have this problem, observe the buds of older plants. Dicamba will cause the buds to be twisted and the other leaves of the plant will eventually curl. Do not confuse this symptom with K-326 because this variety has a characteristic twisting of the bud.

Expect fields which were fertilized with the 3-9-9 ratio to be worse. Since a lower ratio of fertilizer requires a larger quantity to be used, more is available to be taken up by the plant.

The amount of damage is not expected to be nearly as great as 1979 when picloram was found in tobacco fertilizers. Tobacco is 10 times more sensitive to picloram was found in tobacco fertilizers. Dicamba will not last in the soil for more than two months therefore no changes should be made in plantings of future crops. The contamination would pose no health hazard because the toxicity is comparable with that of table salt.

The amount of damage due to dicamba varies greatly and often is progressive, therefore the determination of the extent of damage is difficult at this point. As to what to do with the tobacco, normal cultural practices should continue until released by Grace or its insurance carrier. In fields where there is a slight amount of tipping on the leaves my opinion is this tobacco will make normal production as the numerous acres that have these symptoms each year.

Once a farmer suspects that he has this problem, he should contact his fertilizer distributor. Saving sales receipts may be helpful but may sometimes be unnecessary. Contact your local county extension for assistance in identification of the problem.

ADF Premiere At Duke

DURHAM — Marleen Pennison, whose choreography has been compared to the stories of Eudora Welty and Tennessee Williams, will premiere a new work commissioned by the American Dance Festival (ADF) as part of its Golden Anniversary season.

Performances of the new work, "Dedans l'Annee de Cinquante-Sept," are to be presented at 8 p.m. on Tuesday and again on Wednesday at Reynolds Theater on the Duke University West Campus.

Tickets are priced at $8.50. For reservations call the box office, 684-4059.

Pennison's new work is based on the devastation caused when Hurricane Audrey struck southwest Louisiana in 1957. The work was made possible by grants to the ADF from AT&T Foundation and the Ford Foundation.

Other works on the program for the two days include "The Routine," which looks at the frustrations and ambitions of a trio of entertainers during the waning days of vaudeville; and "River Road Sweet," an earlier work from 1979.

Ms. Pennison in 1981 was chosen to take part in the ADF's "Emerging Generation of Choreographers" program. She regularly performs in New York City at Dance Theater Workshop, at La Mama E.T.C., and at Marymount Manhattan Theater. She and her company have been presenting her narrative creations to audiences since 1975.

Other dance performance activities in which Ms. Pennison has worked include the choreography for the Bat Parade Halloween Party at the Bronx Zoo, and for a live commercial for the New York Racing Association which was performed around the city on the back of a truck. She currently teaches movement for actors at the Stella Adler Conservatory of Acting.

Wedding Vows Said On Sunday

MRS. GARRIS

Patricia Ann Corbett and Bobby Thaniel Garris Jr. was solemnized Sunday at 4 p.m. in Calvary Baptist Church. The Rev. Bobby G. Thomas officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Cecil E. Corbett of Ayden and Mr. and Mrs. Bobby T. Garris Sr. of Route 4, Greenville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white formal gown of sheer organza and Venise lace designed with a fitted bodice, modified Queen Anne neckline with Venise lace and bridal pearls and full bishop sleeves enhanced with lace motifs closed with lace appliqued cuffs. The A-line skirt flowed into a cathedral train and was adorned with motifs of lace joined to a scalloped bias flounce with a border of lace edged with matching lace. Her waltz length veil of silkened bridal illusion had motifs of schiffli lace and was bordered with lace. It was attached to a Juliet cap of schiffli lace and pearls. She wore a pearl necklace and carried a bouquet of yellow and white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath with lace streamers.

The matron of honor was Janet Suggs, sister of the bride, of Winterville. She wore a yellow sheer bustle back gown with a ruffled front and capelet sleeves. The fabric flower at the back waist connected the flared skirt with a flounced hem.

The bridesmaids were Kim Corbett, sister of the bride, of Winterville and Shirley Futrell of Greenville. They wore dresses designed like the honor attendant's in pink and light blue.

Leann Corbett of Winterville, the bride's niece, was the miniature bride. She was dressed similarly to the bride and carried a similar bouquet. Wayne Suggs, nephew of the bride, also of Winterville, was the miniature bridegroom.

The wedding was directed by Vicy M. McKenney. Marie Corbett, sister-in-law of the bride, presided at the register.

The bride's mother wore a long lavender gown and the bridegroom's mother wore a long gown with pleated skirt and chiffon sleeves.

Ushers were Mitchell Garris, brother of the bridegroom, of Route 4, Greenville, and Wayne Flake, uncle of the bridegroom, of Winterville.

The pianist was Brenda Baker and the soloist was James Wells, cousin of the bride.

A rehearsal party was held at the Winterville Community Building.

The couple will live in Birchwood Sands Estates.

She is employed by Vermilion Vending of Kinston and he works at Tripp's Tire Service of Greenville. The bride graduated from D.H. Conley High School and the bridegroom is a graduate of Calvary Christian Academy.

Little-Whichard Vows Solemnized

The wedding of Kathryn Elaine Whichard and William Edward Little was held at the King and Queen North in Greenville Sunday at 3:30 p.m.

Dr. Harold Dietch officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Kenneth P. Whichard Jr. of Greenville and Ruby S. Whichard, also of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Travis Little Jr. of Farmville, who attended his son as best man.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white taffeta off-shoulder tea length dress. Her colonial bouquet was composed of white roses, orchid daisies and was accented with baby's breath and greenery, with white satin streamers.

Attending the bride was Audrey Allen of Jacksonville. She wore a light orchid satin tea length dress and carried a nosegay of orchid daisies, white snowdrop pom poms and yellow daisies, with white orchid streamers.

John Clark served as organist and Gary Whichard, brother of the bride, was the soloist. The wedding director was Gerty Nichols, aunt of the bridegroom.

The reception was held at the King and Queen North. Cake was cut by Pamela J. Fisher of Greenville and punch was served by Mrs. Barney Barrett III. Gail Crunk of Greenville presided at the guest register.

Mothers of the couple wore corsages of white roses.

After a wedding trip to Nags Head, the couple will live in Northridge, Calif. The bridegroom is employed by Cigna Healthplan Inc. as vice president of the Western Division headquartered in Glendale, Calif.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Reckless Teen-Agers Don't Always Get Second Chance

DEAR ABBY: On May 20, two wonderful 17-year-old boys from our school, both fine athletes, were on their way to a party. They were speeding on an unfamiliar road, missed a turn and were killed in a terrible accident.

I cannot describe the grief that this small town is feeling. It's the first time I've ever seen grown men cry. Both boys who died were to have graduated on May 26.

Almost every year you have run the column titled, "Please, God, I'm Only 17." It's too late for these two boys who died in Caldwell, Ohio, on May 20, but it's not too late for others. Please give it another run.

TRACY IN CALDWELL

DEAR TRACY: Here it is. Let's hope it helps:

PLEASE, GOD, I'M ONLY 17
The day I died was an ordinary school day. How I wish I had taken the bus! But I was too cool for the bus. I remember how I wheeled the car out of Mom. "Special favor," I pleaded. "All the kids drive." When the 2:50 bell rang, I threw all my books in the locker. I was free until 8:40 tomorrow morning! I ran to the parking lot, excited at the thought of driving a car and being my own boss. Free!

It doesn't matter how the accident happened. I was goofing off—going too fast. Taking crazy chances. But I was enjoying my freedom and having fun. The last thing I remember was passing an old lady who seemed to be going awfully slow. I heard a deafening crash and felt a terrible jolt. Glass and steel flew everywhere. My whole body seemed to be turning inside out. I heard myself scream.

Suddenly I awakened; it was very quiet. A police officer was standing over me. Then I saw a doctor. My body was mangled. I was saturated with blood. Pieces of jagged glass were sticking out all over. Strange that I couldn't feel anything.

Hey, don't pull that sheet over my head! I can't be dead. I'm only 17. I've got a date tonight. I'm supposed to grow up and have a wonderful life. I haven't lived yet. I can't be dead.

Later I was placed in a drawer. My folks had to identify me. Why did they have to see me like this? Why did I have to look at Mom's eyes when she faced the most terrible ordeal of her life? Dad suddenly looked like an old man. He told the man in charge, "Yes, he is my son."

The funeral was a weird experience. I saw all my relatives and friends walk toward the casket. They passed by, one by one, and looked at me with the saddest eyes I've ever seen. Some of my buddies were crying. A few of the girls touched my hand and sobbed as they walked away.

Please ... somebody ... wake me up! Get me out of here! I can't bear to see my mom and dad so broken up. My grandparents are so racked with grief they can hardly walk. My brother and sisters are like zombies. They move like robots. In a daze, everybody! No one can believe this. And I can't believe it, either.

Please don't bury me! I'm not dead! I have a lot of living to do! I want to laugh and run again. I want to sing and dance. Please don't put me in the ground. I promise if you give me just one more chance, God, I'll be the most careful driver in the whole world. All I want is one more chance.

Please, God, I'm only 17!

DEAR ABBY: I need some expert advice. I am 20 years old and have been married for nearly three years. (No children, fortunately.) I love my husband most of the time, but he bosses me around, and when I don't do as he says, he gets mad. He has never physically abused me, but he finds ways of getting back at me. I am fed up.

I work 40 hours a week just like he does, and I don't deserve to be treated as if I were his child instead of his wife. When I threaten to leave him, he sweetens up like cotton candy until I'm over my mad spell, then he goes right back to being his old self again.

Abby, I know this marriage is never going to work. How can I get out of this marriage without having to face a terrible fight? I know he won't let me go without one. I also hate the idea of being a 20-year-old divorcee.

WIT'S END

DEAR END: If you know your marriage is never going to work, don't invest any more of your life in it. See a lawyer and get out now. You are your own person, you are not his property—so don't let him intimidate you. There are worse things than being a 20-year-old divorcee, and one of them is spending a lifetime in a bad marriage.

(Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Engagement Announced

Elsie Johnson of Greenville announces the engagement of her daughter, Tonya Earnette, to Rodeny Lee Beamon, son of Louise Rouse of Winterville. A July wedding is being planned.

Off The Mark?

Efforts by the Congress to deal with uncontrollable border crossings and the accompanying flood of illegal aliens were something that had to be undertaken. Nobody knows how many "illegals" have found haven in the United States. The estimates run from 3 million to as high as 12 million.

Even so, the accompanying debate has been bitter, and the "remedial" measures offer no real solution.

Employers who found illegal aliens a cheap source of labor opposed deterrents; as did employers who admitted they could not survive without that advantage. (The smart ones, with lawyers, avoided that tactical error and raised other points of argument.)

There was a lot of noise made by congressmen, lacking other resources, who raised cries of racial bias and sought to inflame passions among those who had paid no attention to the question.

The end product in the House would punish employers who "knowingly" hire illegal aliens, and provide "amnesty" to the illegals who had settled in this country before 1982.

This is control?

The question before the House was a simple issue of what was good for their country; and despite the long and bitter arguments that big question was largely ignored.

Now it's up to Senate and House negotiators to achieve a final compromise bill. The track record to date suggests it will be even farther from the mark.

Chilling Prospect

The sudden, unexpected death of a champion thoroughbred race horse whose value runs into the many-millions of dollars shocked not only the world of horse-racing but a large segment of the public at large.

Swale, the colt that won the 1984 Kentucky Derby and the Belmont Stakes, collapsed after a routine Sunday workout. Those who knew him well described the 3-year-old as "the healthiest horse in America."

It may be weeks before findings of the autopsy process are made known; and one of those involved in the study admits sometimes the cause of death is not determined.

We are told the possibilities range from some kind of heart failure, a stroke, or a toxic substance. Fear of the latter continues to lurk in the background if only because of the colt's health record.

Speculation on foul play often surfaces when unexpected death occurs, and in the death of Swale it had to emerge. It is a chilling prospect for all owners and breeders in the world of horse lovers.

—Mike Feinsilber—

Will Illegal Aliens Come Forth?

WASHINGTON (AP) — For years, they've been underground, working, maybe sending their kids to school, but otherwise avoiding all contact with the government.

The government could send them packing.

Now many millions of illegal immigrants living within U.S. borders are invited by bills that have passed both houses of Congress to declare their presence and ask for legalization — the right to remain in this country as permanent residents, and ultimately to apply for citizenship.

Will they? Or will they think they're risking too much?

Suppose you are an illegal immigrant. You came from Mexico, or Guatemala, or Nigeria years ago. You married, settled down, became a parent.

You drove a taxi in Houston for a while. You washed dishes in a restaurant in Chicago. You parked cars in Oklahoma City. You worked as a groundskeeper at a golf course in Los Angeles.

You avoided contact with the authorities. What you least wanted them to know was that you existed. When you got into a fight with your landlord and he called the cops, you disappeared into the night.

When you were sick, you didn't go to the clinic. You paid $45 to get a forged driver's license, $30 for a fake Social Security card.

And now you have the opportunity to emerge from underground.

The bills that passed the Senate last year and the House last week — still several steps from becoming law — foresee the difficulties in asking you to turn yourself over to the authorities.

They provide for church or volunteer groups to serve as a buffer between you and the man from immigration. The volunteers will help you assemble the evidence you'll need to prove you qualify for legalization.

You'll need to prove that you did not acquire a criminal record while in this country, that you're in good health, that you've lived in the United States more or less continuously for four years (under the Senate bill) or two years (under the House bill).

RALEIGH — Turn on the television cameras, and people start acting funny.

That was certainly the case when the first half of the June meeting of the Governor's Crime Commission was taped for later broadcast on the Agency for Public Telecommunications' Open Net program.

The commission usually has free-spirited and contentious debates. Members don't get ugly, but they also don't get bogged down in formalities — things like addressing each other as mister or miss, using complete sentences or waiting for the other guy to finish before carving up his ideas. It is one of the few boards in state government where thinking people actually appear to be thinking and debating while they meet.

But the commission didn't act that way once the cameras starting rolling. Everything got nice and formal and quiet. Instead of any substantive discussion of ideas, the "debate" became a string of generalities, banalities and platitudes. When James Van Camp, the commission chairman from Pinehurst, asked for comments on the commission's role in fighting drug abuse, a representative of the Department of Public Instruction could find nothing more compelling to say than that DPI and Gov. Jim Hunt are "very concerned" about it.

Van Camp usually opens the floor for discussion and then has trouble getting people to shut up. Not so when TV was there. No one wanted to talk and Van Camp found himself prodding the discussion along, in a sense playing TV interviewer a la Ted Koppel.

After the cameras picked up and left, things returned to normal. While Van Camp tried to set a date for the next meeting, for example, three or four members exchanged jokes and catcalls.

Van Camp agreed that the TV cameras had changed the meeting, made it more formal and less lively. Also, he said he and the commission members found themselves giving an unusual amount of background information on the topics of discussion. Commission members knew the background, he said, but the viewers would have been lost without it.

Did viewers benefit from watching the meeting? Undoubtedly they learned more about the state's crime and justice problems than if they'd watched the Dukes of Hazzard. But, on the other hand, they didn't see the real crime commission, either.

Following up on a few legislative matters that were described in earlier columns:

Rep. Joe Mavretic, D-Edgecombe, has filed a bill seeking to change the name of the gross receipts tax utility consumers pay to a state sales tax. As reported here before, that change would mean that North Carolinians could deduct that sales tax from their federal income taxes: They can't deduct the gross receipts tax.

Mavretic had first hoped that the entire 6 percent tax could be called a sales tax. But, after talking with the Internal Revenue Service, he changed his bill to say only half of the 6 percent — 3 percent — was sales tax. The IRS doesn't consider North Carolina's 1.5-cent local option sales tax a general tax. Therefore, it could not be deducted. Still, Mavretic says his change would save state taxpayers up to $10 million a year.

Revenue Secretary Mark Lynch reports that North Carolina is owed $5 million in delinquent taxes by out-of-staters. He's seeking authority to hire bill collectors to go after those tax deadbeats but when his proposal was first detailed in this column, he didn't know how much was owed.

Democrats' 'Openness' Goes Only So Far

WASHINGTON — The Democratic Party displayed its new ideological conformity at recent Platform Committee hearings when a member tried to ask a witness how she could advocate abortion on moral grounds.

The question was ruled out of order, with the delegate informed he had transgressed inviolate grounds.

The moral aspects of abortion caused trouble in drafting the 1976 Democratic platform and continue to stir debate nationwide in 1984. But in today's Democratic Party, "reproductive freedom" — the euphemism for abortion rights — is not only locked into the platform but immunized from challenge.

That is part of the ideological conformity which now freezes the world's oldest political party. While Democrats once accommodated an unruly diversity of views sharply contrasting with Republican homogeneity, their platform is being drafted here within strict liberal parameters. Efforts to invoke the party's strong national security tradition are ridiculed. Serious platform challenges come only from the left.

As a remnant of past openness, the Democrats offered endless opportunities for testimony (in contrast to Republican cancellation, ordered by the White House, of regional hearings). But how much a sham this openness has become was demonstrated when Faye Wattleton testified for the Planned Parenthood Federation of America.

Her testimony troubled one Platform Committee member: Peter L.

Kahn, an Ohio State University economics professor and a delegate from Ohio. He described himself as a supporter of women's rights and "pro-choice" on abortion. Still, he told Ms. Wattleton, he wanted to know how the women's movement morally could justify abortion.

She never had to answer. R.P. Smith, an Oregon delegate, objected. ("I didn't think we should have a debate over personal views of morality," he later told us.) Susan Estrich, a Harvard law professor serving as the Platform Committee's executive director, considered Kahn's question "offensive" and supported Smith. So did Iron Workers President John Lyons, presiding over the committee session.

Lyons ruled the question out of order, adding that Kahn could pursue the matter with Ms. Wattleton privately if he desired. There was a brief exchange between them after the session, but the Ohioan was not satisfied. "I don't understand the women's movement supporting it (abortion)," said Kahn. As for being shut down by the committee process, he said: "I'm disappointed and confused."

That little incident guaranteed no debate, in either Washington or San Francisco, on the pro-abortion plank. The Platform Committee draft for the first time "recognizes reproductive freedom as a fundamental human right" and goes on record against "governmental interference" — that is, barring federal funding for abortions. It was only 1976 when the party's nominee, Jimmy Carter, pledged to fight for just such "interference."

very clear that in the absence of a specific prohibition, the IRS will consider itself remiss if it failed to enforce existing law and go after persons who had not paid their taxes."

The new law will make it illegal to hire undocumented workers. If the undocumented can't become legal, the possibility is strong that a huge population of illegal workers will remain — but this time it will be even more difficult for them to find work.

George Gallup Poll

PRINCETON, N.J. — The weight of opinion among Americans who have heard or read about UNESCO — the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization — is against the United States withdrawing from this world body, as the Reagan Administration has threatened to do.

Of the nearly four in 10 (36 percent) who are aware of UNESCO, 48 percent think the U.S. should not withdraw from this organization, while 34 percent say they favor such a move.

Last December the United States announced its decision to resign when the organization curtails activities the Reagan Administration considers politically objectionable. Great Britain has also said it will review its membership if major changes are not made in UNESCO's operation.

Supporters of continuing U.S. membership in UNESCO, while acknowledging problems, maintain that its programs in the field have generally been valuable and reasonably well managed, and that the United States has more to lose than gain by withdrawing.

Reports indicate that the U.S. stand has already sparked some UNESCO reform efforts, yet the Reagan Administration wants to see more concrete action.

With few exceptions a fairly close division of opinion is found on the question of U.S. withdrawal from UNESCO, with at least a plurality in almost all groups favoring the U.S. retaining its membership. One of the few exceptions is aware Republicans, as shown below:

	Withdraw From UNESCO?
	(Based on aware group)
	Republicans	Democrats	Independents
Should	42%	26%	36%
Should not	36	55	50
No opinion	22	19	14
TOTAL	100	100	100

The findings are based on in-person interviews with 584 persons aware of UNESCO out of a total sample of 1,516 adults, 18 and older, conducted in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period May 18-21.

For results based on the aware sample, one can say with 95 percent confidence that the error attributable to sampling and other random effects could be 5 percentage points in either direction.

Strength For Today

What a world we live in! Mugging, murders and riots in city streets. Nations shaking their fists at other nations. Some areas of the world aflame with revolution and terrorism.

All this is very discouraging, and yet, would we trade the world in which we live today for any former age in world history. Would we like to live in ancient Rome where there was no medical science, precious little freedom, and social and moral conditions which we would not countenance today? Would we have enjoyed the winters of northern Europe in cramped, flimsy houses with no heat? How great must have been the sorrows in centuries past when tyrannical rulers dominated nations and were above any restraint their subjects wanted to impose on them.

So as we look about us let us remember that — relatively speaking — we are better off than at any time in the past, and that with dedication and intelligence can solve our problems.

Gays March In U.S. Cities

By MARY MacVEAN
Associated Press Writer

The 15th anniversary of the riots that ignited the gay rights movement drew thousands of men and women to the streets, from leather-clad lesbians who led San Francisco's parade to marchers who laid a wreath at the "closed doors" of a cathedral in New York.

In parades and rallies across the country Sunday, lesbians and homosexual men celebrated "gay pride" and protested what they said was continued discrimination against them.

New York City's parade drew 20,000 marchers, who demonstrated at the seat of the city's Roman Catholic Church before heading to the site of the now-defunct Stonewall Inn in Greenwich Village, where a police raid on June 18, 1969, sparked three days of riots — the "Stonewall Rebellion" the parades commemorate.

In San Francisco, a squadron of 200 "Dykes on Bikes" wore leather pants, tattoos and roses on their motorcycle handlebars to lead 75,000 to 90,000 people in the 13th annual Gay-Lesbian Freedom Day parade.

Parades also brought out thousands in Chicago, Denver, Minneapolis, Seattle, St. Louis, Columbus, Ohio, Des Moines, Iowa and Hartford, Conn.

Waves of marchers in New York's 15th Gay Pride parade chanted "Shame!" as they paused at St. Patrick's Cathedral to protest Archbishop John J. O'Connor's refusal to sign a pledge that the church will not discriminate on the basis of sexual preference.

"This cathedral is our church, and we, as gay men and lesbians, are people of God," said Michael Olivieri, president of the New York chapter of Dignity.

Two people were allowed through police barriers to place a wreath at the cathedral.

Instead of being welcomed by the church, Olivieri said, "we are met by closed doors, police barricades and a wall of police officers. We are denied our legal and spiritual rights."

Mayor Edward I. Koch said O'Connor's refusal to sign the pledge would cost the church about $76 million in city contracts. The issue is pending in court.

The parade, for the first time, had a permit to allow marchers to pass St. Patrick's, where reviewing stands are constructed for most city parades.

O'Connor said his message for the marchers was: "I love them. I bear them no malice whatever and I hope that they recognize that my responsibility as a bishop is to teach the teachings of the Catholic Church."

While most marchers in New York wore casual clothes, those in San Francisco sported flamboyant attire, including gold lame hula skirts and purple evening gowns for the men and punk hairdos and leather for the women.

"You use the stereotypes and turn it around and use it as a demonstration of pride," said Konstantin Berlandt, president of the Freedom Day board of directors, who wore a two-piece blue sequined dress and plastic high heels.

The parade, with the theme "Unity and More in '84," included a man in a nun's habit, lesbian doctors, the Gay American Indian Association and a cable car carrying members of the National Association for Gay and Lesbian Gerontology.

The Freedom Day parade, which drew its peak crowd of 150,000 four years ago, was bolstered this year by Gov. George Deukmejian's veto in March of a gay rights bill, an increase in the number of cases of acquired immune deficiency syndrome and the proposal to close San Francisco's gay bathhouses, Berlandt said.

In Denver, 2,000 people turned out for a rally and parade. Among them was Shirley Wallace of Fort Collins.

Mrs. Wallace, who two years ago took part in a hunger strike to push for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment in Illinois, came to the rally with her husband and gay children.

Parents of homosexuals, she said, should remember that if their children "were fine, decent people before, they certainly still are."

In some cities, including New York, groups of anti-homosexual protesters also turned out. In Columbus, police said verbal clashes broke out as 4,000 marchers were met by representatives of several fundamentalist groups.

In Chicago, former Mayor Jane Byrne joined more than 30,000 marchers, while 1,000 people gathered in Minneapolis.

Prime Rate Rises Again

NEW YORK (AP) — Leading banks in Chicago and New York today raised their prime lending rate by one-half of a percentage point to 13 percent, its highest level since October 1982.

The move, the fourth rise in four months, was led by First National Bank of Chicago, the nation's eighth-largest bank, and quickly followed by No. 2 Citibank and No. 6 Chemical Bank, both in New York.

The prime rate is the base upon which banks compute interest charges on short-term business loans. Big companies often borrow at below the prime rate, but small businesses typically are charged more.

Consumer loans and home mortgage rates are not tied directly to the prime rate, but changes in the prime often reflect interest rate trends that affect other borrowing charges as well.

Today's jump in the prime was the first since May 8, when the banking industry adopted a 12.5 percent prime. The prime rate started climbing in March, when it increased to 11.5 percent from 11 percent and was raised to 12 percent in April.

The move in the prime rate had been expected as the cost of funds for banks has been rising steadily since late April and business borrowing has continued to expand.

Revocations Draw Criticism

RALEIGH (AP) — Automatic license revocations and rules waiving testimony by Breathalyzer operators are among provisions of the Safe Roads Act being criticized on constitutional grounds.

Raleigh attorney William B. "Bud" Crumpler says the high conviction rate for drunk drivers under the law is obscuring some legal shortcuts.

"People should not rejoice about the conviction rate when the means used to get that rate erode the constitutional protections," he said. "I think it's extremely dangerous to make it too easy to get a conviction."

"I've got no problem with cracking down on drunk driving. But we can protect people on the highways without making a mockery of the Bill of Rights."

Crumpler has challenged the constitutionality of parts of the law in several cases, and in at least five instances a trial judge has agreed with his arguments.

"What bothers me is the attitude that the ends justify the means," he said. "Traffic safety does not justify diminishing the constitutional protections we have."

Among the most widely criticized provisions is one allowing automatic revocation of a driver's license for 10 days when the driver registers a blood alcohol level of 0.10 or more. Critics say the defendant is entitled to a hearing before being penalized.

Another section drawing fire allows an affidavit that shows the results of a breath test to prove intoxication. Critics say the breath test operator should be required to testify and face cross-examination, as required under the old law.

Wake County District Attorney J. Randolph Riley says defense tactics are forcing prosecutors to get convictions "with one hand tied behind our backs."

In Wake County, about 73 percent of the DWI cases in the first six months of the law have not come to trial, according to the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety. In Mecklenburg County, the backlog also is about 73 percent.

"I think it's quite unfortunate we have the backlog we do," Riley said. "My attitude is justice delayed is justice denied."

He attributed the backlog to defense attorneys who request postponements as a trial strategy.

"A case not tried is a case not lost from the point of view of a defense attorney," Riley said.

In May, Attorney General Rufus Edmisten filed suit against seven District Court judges who had ruled parts of the law unconstitutional. The suit also includes defendants in 15 cases that led to the rulings.

Edmisten said the suit, which is scheduled for a hearing Monday, is aimed at getting a legal review of the judges' ruling.

In the first six months after the law went into effect, about 93 percent of people arrested statewide who registered a 0.10 or higher blood-alcohol level were found guilty in court, according to statistics from the state Department of Crime Control and Public Safety.

Christian Educators Voice Support For School Paddling

By The Associated Press

The Bible demands corporal punishment and Christian schools should be granted the religious freedom to paddle children, according to Christian officials upset at a recent child-abuse conviction involving paddling.

"Those who accept the Bible literally as the word of God believe that corporal punishment for children is required," said Dr. Edward E. Ulrich of Lake Waccamaw, executive director of the N.C. Association of Christian Schools.

The issue of paddling students came under new scrutiny last week when Dwight Ausley, a teacher and assistant principal at Raleigh Christian Academy, was found guilty of misdemeanor child abuse in Wake County District Court.

Ausley had administered five licks with a paddle to a student who had not finished his homework. The child's parents said bruises from the paddling lasted for three weeks.

The case is being appealed.

"Anyone who reads Proverbs and agrees with the Judeo-Christian system sees that corporal punishment is definitely Scriptural," said Gerald J. Stiles, principal of the high school at Wake Christian Academy. "It's something done out of love, not anger, and done in a corrective way."

"The spanking a child gets in school would be to make him aware of what he's done rather than to inflict a great deal of suffering," said the Rev. Kent Kelly, president of the Christian Schools of North Carolina. "The only mistake is to be too severe in the use of the rod, not the use of the rod itself."

"There are a number of verses in the Bible which deal with it," said Kelly. "Parents are told to spank their children. The real child abuse is letting a child grow up thinking you can do anything you want to."

Sanford Lady To Get Money

RALEIGH (AP) — A Sanford woman who sued the state for denying her a $5,000 reward for information leading to a murder conviction says Gov. Jim Hunt acknowledged his staff made a mistake and told her she would get the money.

"He apologized repeatedly for the way his staff acted," Carol T. Albright said Sunday. "He told me his staff had erred and that he was totally unaware of it until he read it in this morning's paper."

Hunt said he will ask the Council of State to pay Mrs. Albright the reward.

Mrs. Albright had filed suit for breach of contract against Hunt after she was denied the reward in the Aug. 28, 1981, murder of Mavis Jewel Thorne of Broadway in Harnett County.

Mrs. Albright, who was raped and beaten almost a year later, gave detailed information to Sanford Police and the Harnett County Sheriff's Department that led to Steven Eugene Martin's arrest in her kidnapping and rape.

Three days after his arrest, Martin also confessed to murdering Mrs. Thorne. He was convicted of both crimes and was given two life sentences.

Mrs. Albright claimed the reward offered in Mrs. Thorne's killing, but the state refused to pay her. Mrs. Albright's attorney, J. Douglas Moretz, said two letters written to Jack Cozort, Hunt's legal advisor, went unanswered.

Brent Hackney, Hunt's press secretary, said Sunday that "the governor was very angry because we had not informed him about it."

In addition to Hunt, Mrs. Albright has sued the Eaton Corp., where Mrs. Thorne worked. Eaton has declined to pay her a $10,000 reward it offered for information in Mrs. Thorne's death.

Allen N. Hirth, counsel for Eaton Corp., said in a telephone interview from Eaton's corporate headquarters in Cleveland that the company was only trying to do what is appropriate under North Carolina law.

"The information was such it happened to be coincidental that it was the same assailant (in both cases)," Hirth said.

Cozort had earlier said rejecting Mrs. Albright's request for the reward was a "decision of the Governor's Office."

STRESS MANAGEMENT

Stress is pressure from the outside that can make us feel tense inside. Some stress is unavoidable. As a part of daily life, stress affects everyone. Certain kinds are actually helpful to keep you on your toes. But, if you allow it to build up, too much stress can produce tensions serious enough to interfere with your normal daily activities.

One of the main causes of stress is change, especially sudden or disagreeable change. Excess tension caused by such things as personal loss, illness, injury, job changes, money problems, family changes, or retirement can result in anxiety and depression. To keep tensions within reasonable limits before they lead to trouble there are several things you can do:

1. Get regular check-ups from your doctor.
2. When tensions build up, discuss the problem with a close friend or with the people involved.
3. Exercise regularly to help you let off steam and work out stress.

4. Plan your work to use time and energy more efficiently.
5. Take a break, a change of pace gives you a new outlook on problems.
6. Learn to relax, a few minutes of peace and quiet every day makes a big difference.
7. Be realistic, if you expect too much of yourself you can get tense if things don't work out. Set practical goals and expect to be successful.
8. Whenever possible, plan to avoid too many big changes coming at the same time.

If stress and its effects do get out of hand, it's not a sign of weakness or self-indulgence to get professional advice. Confidential help is available at the Mental Health Center for anyone with fees based on individual income. Call 752-7151.

Cotton Making A Comeback

EDENTON (AP) — The eradication of the boll weevil and better prices have helped bring cotton back to North Carolina, although it remains a long way behind tobacco in popularity with farmers.

"Acre for acre, cotton can't beat tobacco," said J. Clarence Leary of Edenton, who has 65 acres of cotton. "But it beats the heck out of corn and soybeans."

North Carolina farmers have planted at least 91,000 acres of cotton this year — the most in 10 years, according to the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service. Many use cotton in rotation with another cash crop, peanuts.

An average yield for an acre of cotton is from 500 to 600 pounds, said Clyde D. Peedin, agricultural extension agent for Halifax County, Halifax, with 19,500 acres planted this year, is the largest cotton-producing county in the state.

In 1926, cotton was grown on 1.8 million acres of North Carolina, but the boll weevil nearly swept the fields clean, paving the way for Tobacco Road.

North Carolina farmers grow barely 1 percent of the nation's cotton now, but Leary said the crop grows well without irrigation and transportation costs are low because of the high concentration of textile mills in the South.

Farmers say the federal Boll Weevil Eradication Program, begun in 1977, has virtually wiped out the insect in North Carolina and South Carolina.

"We saw our last boll weevil in 1978," Leary said. He and 11 other farmers in Chowan County were the first cotton growers in North Carolina and South Carolina to participate in the eradication program.

Meanwhile, the price of cotton has climbed from an average 61.4 cents per pound in 1982 to 70.6 cents last year. And the Carolinas Cotton Growers Association reports that some contracts for this year's cotton have set prices at 80 cents a pound in light of increasing demand from textile mills.

High Rates Curb Buying

By The Associated Press

Rising interest rates on home loans have depressed the home-buying market in the past two months, but experts say they don't expect the slump to rival one that struck in 1979.

George W. Hayworth, senior vice president with Wachovia Mortgage Co. of Winston-Salem, said he attended a meeting Wednesday of the advisory board of the Federal National Mortgage Association in Atlanta, where mortgage bankers, savings and loan officials, realtors and builders all said rates are slowing the housing market.

"The consensus was that applications are off ... as much as 15 percent to 20 percent," he said. "Builders said they have seen a significant turnaround in traffic looking at models."

Views On Dental Health

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S.P.A
COSMETIC CONTOURING

Dentistry has several techniques it can use to improve the appearance of the teeth. One of these, cosmetic contouring, is one of the most dramatic yet simplest and least expensive ways of improving a smile. It involves the re-shaping of teeth to make them more esthetically appealing.

A patient, for example, may have long pointed canines (eye teeth) that distort the smile. By simply rounding off the pointed edges, the smile becomes balanced and normal. The chewing edges of a woman's teeth may wear down and become jagged and square. Smoothing and rounding them will restore the softness and femininity to her smile.

Before restorations are designed, it is important for the dentist to get an overview of the mouth. Teeth that are extruded or crowded should be cosmetically contoured and the crowns then shaped to conform to a more esthetic environment.

Shaping a crown properly is paramount to a pleasing appearance. The shape is what the eye notices first. If the patient has a corresponding natural tooth, duplicating that shape gives the best results.

Political Rivals Becoming Allies Again

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

NORTH OAKS, Minn. (AP) — Walter F. Mondale and Edward M. Kennedy, friends who became political rivals, are becoming allies once again with the Massachusetts senator ready to endorse Mondale for president.

Kennedy flew to Minnesota Sunday evening for what a Mondale aide called "an informal conversation among friends."

They planned to appear together today at a rally in the Minnesota State Capitol where Kennedy was expected to end his neutral stance and give his support to Mondale for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Kennedy spent the night at Mondale's home outside St. Paul.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, meanwhile, was in Panama City on the third day of his Latin America trip and was meeting today with El Salvador President Jose Napoleon Duarte.

Jackson met Sunday with Salvadoran guerrilla leaders who offered to begin cease-fire talks immediately with the Salvadoran government. But there apparently was no immediate positive response from Duarte, who has demanded that the guerrillas put down their arms as a condition for such talks.

The Democratic Party's Rules Committee was convening in Washington today, with the other presidential hopeful, Gary Hart, still saying he hasn't decided whether to challenge some of the Mondale delegates he has labeled "tainted" because they were chosen with the help of money from political action committees.

Maxine Isaacs, press secretary to Mondale, said that Mondale invited Kennedy about 10 days ago "to come out here and talk about the convention and the general election campaign."

She said "we assume he (Kennedy) will play a major role" at the Democratic National Convention next month in San Francisco.

But she declined to discuss what that role might be, particularly if Kennedy might deliver the speech offering Mondale for the presidential nomination.

The other major speaking role at the convention, the keynoter, already has been filled by Gov. Mario Cuomo of New York.

She said that both Mondale and Kennedy "consider themselves good friends."

For years they were liberal allies in the Senate. Kennedy was elected to the Senate at age 30 in 1962; Mondale was appointed to succeed Hubert H. Humphrey in 1965 when Humphrey became vice president.

But their friendship was strained during the 1980 campaign when Kennedy challenged President Carter for the Democratic nomination.

Mondale was Carter's vice president and drew the assignment of doing most of the direct campaigning against the Massachusetts senator while the president stayed close to the White House.

At one point, Kennedy accused Mondale of questioning his patriotism when the vice president attacked the senator for refusing to support Carter's decision to embargo grain shipments to the Soviet Union.

Kennedy persisted in his campaign into the convention even though Carter had accumulated a substantial majority of the delegates in the primaries and caucuses.

After his loss to Ronald Reagan, Carter placed part of the blame on Kennedy.

But this year, Kennedy apparently was unwilling to offer any support to Hart's attempt to continue his fight for the nomination in the face of Mondale's delegate majority going into the convention.

Before Kennedy's arrival on Sunday, Mondale met with Judy Goldsmith, president of the National Organization for Women, and Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Texas.

Ms. Goldsmith gave Mondale what Ms. Isaacs called "a very strong case about why she thought a woman would be an advantage" as a vice presidential nominee.

In other developments, Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., said she sees a floor fight at the convention next month if Mondale doesn't choose either Hart or a woman for a running mate. She is co-chairman of Hart's campaign.

"I'm hoping we can get a resolution up on the floor saying we want a woman," she said on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation" program. "If that doesn't happen and we end up with (Texas Sen.) Lloyd Bentsen, I think we've got to seriously consider a floor fight because I really think the time has come."

Hart, in Washington, told reporters Sunday that he was interested in discussing with Mrs. Schroeder her recent suggestion that he should consider announcing a woman as his choice for a running mate on a Hart ticket before the convention.

"I haven't had a chance to talk to her," Hart said. "It's an interesting idea It's something I'll want to discuss with her."

Death Toll Now Three In Tragedy

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A 65-year-old man injured when a speeding car crashed into a food giveaway line outside a church died early today, raising the death toll to three, authorities said.

Police said an additional charge of homicide by vehicle probably would be filed against the driver of the car, Sammie Bates, 33, of Philadelphia.

The Philadelphia Inquirer reported today that Bates' driver's license was suspended 2½ years ago because of a medical problem involving seizures.

Bates was arraigned Saturday on two counts each of homicide by vehicle and involuntary manslaughter, and 63 counts of recklessly endangering another person and simple and aggravated assault.

Abron suffered internal injuries, said police officer Gilbert Marshall.

The Inquirer, citing information from an unidentified police source, said investigators believe Bates had a seizure moments before his car struck the line of people outside the New Psalmist Baptist Church in north Philadelphia on Saturday. His license had not been reinstated since the suspension, the paper said.

A 63-year-old man and a 5-year-old girl died Saturday. Twenty-three people were injured, and 12 of them, including two whose legs were severed, remained hospitalized this morning, local hospitals said. One of the injured was in critical condition.

Bates' 1975 Buick veered down a narrow street, over the curb and along the church wall, sending bodies flying and pinning three people beneath the car. He was not injured.

An alcohol test proved Bates was not intoxicated, said Officer Alfred Heston of the police Accident Investigation Division.

Results of tests on blood and urine samples were expected today, said Heston, who was heading the investigation. He also said police had ruled out mechanical problems as the cause of the accident.

Thirteen people, including two who suffered severed legs, remained hospitalized today in local hospitals said. Two of the injured were in critical condition.

About 150 worshippers at the New Psalmist Baptist Church, where the accident occurred, offered a prayer Sunday for the victims.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks were mixed through morning trading today after several banks raised their prime lending rates to 13 percent from 12 1/2 percent.

Telephone and oil-service issues advanced, but steel, mining, chemical and drug stocks retreated.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 44.17 points last week, slipped 1.10 to 1,129.97 after two hours today.

Gainers and losers were nearly even on the New York Stock Exchange, whose composite index lost 0.20 to 88.86.

Big Board volume totaled 33.56 million shares at noon EDT, against 42.81 million at that hour Friday.

First National Bank of Chicago initiated the increase in the prime, or base, lending charge. It was followed by Citibank and Chemical Bank in New York.

A higher prime had been expected by some credit analysts because of recent increases in other interest rates, which raised the banks' cost of obtaining funds for lending.

But the stock market was seen receiving a possible boost from House-Senate conferees, who on Saturday shortened the capital-gains holding period for stocks and bonds — to six months from one year — as part of a broad tax bill to raise $50 billion in revenue.

The bill still requires full House and Senate approval and President Reagan's signature.

On the NYSE, RCA's $3.65 preferred stock was up 1/8 to 30 3/8; a 1.87 million-share block traded at 30.

Sony rose 1/8 to 14 3/8, Tandy dropped 1 1/8 to 27 3/8 and Walt Disney skidded 3 1/2 to 46 3/8.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell 0.21 to 201.80.

party unity Mondale and other party leaders have been urging. In a letter to Democratic National Chairman Charles Manatt, which was made public as the Democratic Convention Rules Committee opened meetings here, Hart said a challenge to the "tainted delegates" could substantially alter the delegate strength of candidates at the convention.

"Yet it would surely, whether successful or not, splinter Democrats at this critical juncture," he said. "Therefore, for the good of our party and our chances this fall, my campaign will make no challenge before the credentials committee or at the convention to these delegates."

Hart said he would "continue positively to seek the nomination of our party."

"I have always believe my prospects for the nomination rested on issues and leadership, not procedures and challenges," he said.

Mondale claims enough delegates to assure him the presidential nomination, but Hart has argued that some of these delegates are tainted because they were elected with the aid of political action committee money funneled through delegate committees set up by the Mondale campaign in various states.

"We are looking at the democracy package and will probably support a good deal of it," Mondale spokesman Don Foley told reporters as the Rules Committee opened meetings.

Other Mondale aides said an agreement expected to be announced later in the day would call for appointment of a commission to study the procedures for selection of Democratic presidential nominees in future elections.

Aides said the agreement would also call for a mid-term party convention in 1986 and would reduce threshold requirements for qualifying candidates.

Foley indicated talks were continuing on the issue of unpledged delegates.

"They seek to lower the number of unpledged delegates," he said. "Our position is that the super delegates (elected officials who serve as delegates to the convention) are an essential part of putting together a winning combination."

"We might reach an accomodation on what proportion they will play to the whole," he said.

Hart's conciliatory remarks came as Sen. Edward M. Kennedy endorsed Mondale's candidacy in Minnesota and Mondale aides there announced that Mondale and Hart will meet Tuesday in New York.

underway," before consolidation occurs, according to the county board's position, are the following:

- Construction of a new elementary school in the D.H. Conley attendance area on the old county home property site. This would eliminate mobile units at A.G. Cox and W.H. Robinson schools, the statement said.
- Construction of an addition to D.H. Conley to eliminate mobile units and renovation of the facility for energy efficiency.
- Construction of an addition to Belvoir School to eliminate mobile units and provide for growth and renovation of the facility for energy efficiency.
- Construction of an addition to North Pitt to provide a band room and an agricultural building. This would also eliminate mobile units at the school.
- Renovations to A.G. Cox School to provide for "modernization and energy conservation."
- Construction of an addition to Sam Bundy School to eliminate mobile units, provide a kindergarten wing, a multi-purpose room and increase energy efficiency.

- Renovate and install energy conservation measures at H.B. Sugg School.
- Construction of a classroom addition at Farmville Central High School to eliminate mobile units.
- Construction of a vocational wing at G.R. Whitfield and renovation of facility for energy efficiency.
- Expansion of the Grifton School library and construction of two classrooms to eliminate existing wooden classrooms.
- Construction of an addition to Ayden Elementary that would house a multi-purpose room and eliminate trailers.
- Construction of a new Stokes School on the former Stokes-Pactolus school site to eliminate mobile units.
- Renovations to older portions of Bethel School for a vocational wing and energy efficiency.
- Capital outlay needs identified for schools within the Greenville Township.

scheduled launch, the countdown did not pick up and Hess announced, "We will scrub for the day."

Sieck decided to postpone the effort "because of a lack of confidence that the problem could be resolved in the 43 minute period available" for launching today, Hess said.

He added: "It appeared it would be a race against the clock. Everybody agreed we would rather wait and fly with a good machine."

During their week in space, the Discovery crew will snap thousands of Earth photos with a mapping camera and erect a 10-story-tall solar sail to test a device that may one day convert the sun's rays to electricity to power space stations or shuttle missions.

The mission's most anxious moment, once spaceborne, comes the day after launch with attempted deployment of a military communications satellite.

The release follows three incidents in which satellites deployed by shuttle crews were propelled into worthless orbits after their attached rockets failed. Another failure could prompt customers to shift their payloads to expendable rockets like the Ariane used by the European Space Agency.

Walker is not an astronaut. His employer, McDonnell Douglas Corp., is paying NASA $80,000 for the expense of training him for the trip.

He is to operate a machine that separates biological materials in an electric field to produce a drug, identified by McDonnell Douglas only as a hormone extracted from protein.

Speculation has centered on urokinase, which dissolves blood clots, and interferon, which helps the body resist viral infections.

James Rose, director of space processing operations for McDonnell Douglas, said Sunday it was not interferon. He merely smiled when reporters asked about urokinase and said, "What about Beta cells?" — which could produce a drug to benefit diabetics.

But Beta cells are living cells, and Rose had said earlier that living cells are not the raw material of the experiment on this flight.

Discovery, which will join Columbia and Challenger in the shuttle fleet, is to return to Earth at Edwards Air Force Base in the California desert.

Man Arrested In Plane Theft

Richard Jones Guy, 21, of 14 Lake Glenwood, was arrested by Greenville police Sunday morning after he took an airplane from the Pitt-Greenville Airport, flew around the city for about two hours, then had to be talked down.

Officer K.A. Bedell said Guy, an airport employee, did not have a pilot's license and had never flown alone before. A flight instructor talked Guy, who made at least three passes at the airport before landing.

According to the officer, airport manager James G. Turcott reported the unauthorized use of the plane at 7:08 a.m. The Cessna 152II, valued at $10,000, was owned by TAVCO Inc., an aircraft school at Pitt-Greenville.

Generals, Bandits Top First-Round Opponents

By The Associated Press
Neither the New Jersey Generals nor the Tampa Bay Bandits would mind an encore that would enable them to open the United States Football League playoffs precisely the way they closed the regular season.

But neither team is about to be lulled into a false sense of security despite victories Sunday over next weekend's first-round opponents. New Jersey snapped a 14-game Philadelphia winning streak and beat the Stars for the second time this season while Tampa Bay upset the Birmingham Stallions.

"I would rather be 2-0 against them going into the game than have them be 2-0 against us," quarterback Brian Sipe said after New Jersey's 16-10 victory at Philadelphia, where the teams meet again Saturday in an Eastern Conference playoff game.

The Washington Federals, headed for Miami next season, closed out their stay in the capital Sunday with a 20-17 upset of New Orleans. San Antonio blanked Oklahoma 23-0 on Sunday night.

Jacksonville routed Pittsburgh 26-2 on Friday night.
Memphis, 7-10, visits Houston,

12-5, tonight in the final regular-season game of the year.

Generals 16, Stars 10
Sipe threw a 50-yard pass to running back Herschel Walker to give New Jersey, 14-4, a 16-7 lead. Roger Ruzek kicked three field goals for the Generals. Kelvin Bryant, benched in the first half for tardiness at a team meeting, scored on a two-yard run and David Trout kicked a 39-yard field goal in the fourth quarter for Philadelphia, 16-2.

Bandits 17, Stallions 16
Walton Carter saved the victory for Tampa Bay, 14-4, by blocking a conversion attempt after Birmingham's Bobby Lane hit Robin Earl on a 39-yard touchdown pass midway through the fourth period. Jimmy Jordan replaced John Reaves at quarterback and threw a six-yard touchdown pass to Willie Gillespie to give Tampa Bay a 14-10 lead before Zenon Andrusyshyn kicked a 29-yard field goal.

Joe Cribbs, who finished the season with 1,976 yards rushing and receiving, scored the first touchdown on a 14-yard run for Birmingham, 14-4, which won the Southern Division crown because of a better record in Eastern Conference play.

Panthers 20, Blitz 17
John Williams ran for 161 yards and two touchdowns and Novo Bovic kicked two field goals as Michigan, 10-8, edged the Blitz, 5-13, at Chicago. Ron Reeves passed for Chicago's only touchdown and also passed for a two-point conversion. Kevin Seibel kicked three field goals for the Blitz.

Federals 20, Breakers 17
Mike Hohensee threw two touchdown passes and Curtis Bledsoe scored on a two-yard run as Washington snapped a five-game losing streak to finish 3-15. Johnny Walton led New Orleans, 8-10, with a pair of scoring tosses, one a 73-yard flea-flicker to Frank Lockett.

A crowd of 6,386 looked on at RFK Stadium while 7,494 ticket buyers stayed away.

Kinston Rallies By Pitt County, 9-5

KINSTON — Whit Whitley singled in a pair of runs in the bottom of the fourth to lift Kinston to a 9-5 victory over Pitt County Saturday in American Legion baseball.

Whitley drove in three runs for Kinston with two hits, while David Mitchell and Jerry Waters had three hits each.

Chris Barnette went the distance on the mound for Kinston, scattering nine hits and five walks.

Doug Coley suffered the loss on the mound for Pitt County, which lost its share of the league lead with an 11-3 record.

Coley went 3-3 at the plate for Pitt, with Jackie Conway 2-4 and Eric Woodworth 2-5.

Pitt County took the lead with three runs in the first, as Conway opened with a single. Coley singled, and Woodworth reached first on a fielder's choice. An error on a grounder by Billy Michel allowed Coley to score, and Woodworth later scored on a wild pitch. Michel crossed the plate on a single by Roger Moyer.

But Kinston battled back with a pair of runs in the bottom of the frame. Mitchell reached first on an error, and Lin Hartsell moved him to third on a fielder's choice. A single by Lane plated Mitchell, and Chris Avery drove in Hartsell with a bases-loaded sacrifice fly.

Pitt County added two more in the second, with Daniel Keel receiving a base on balls to open the frame. Coley ripped an RBI-double after two out, and Woodworth doubled in Coley for a 5-2 edge.

Kinston knotted the score in the third, as Whitley, Mitchell and Waters each singled in a run.

Whitley's two-run single in the fourth came after two outs, and Kinston put the game out of reach with a run in the fifth and another in the seventh.

Sunday's game against Wayne County was rained out and will be made up Wednesday.

Stones Soars Into Picture

LOS ANGELES (AP) — High jumper Dwight Stones, dwelling in the shadows of his sport in recent times, soared back into prominence, and a couple of America's premier runners wound up second best as the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials drew to a dramatic close.

Stones, an ebullient 30-year-old who admits he relishes the limelight, capped a well-planned comeback when he cleared an American record 7 feet, 8 inches in the high jump final Sunday night at the Los Angeles Coliseum.

Meanwhile, Mary Decker and Steve Scott, who've dominated the U.S. men's and women's 1,500 meters, each failed to win their events.

Unheralded Ruty Wysocki, with a time of 4 minutes, 00.18 seconds, handed Decker her first defeat in four years, and Jim Spivey overtook Scott to win the men's final in 3:36.43.

During a busy finish to the eight-day trials at the site of the upcoming Olympic track and field competition, Carol Lewis won the women's long jump at 22-7/4 to join her brother, Carl, on the U.S. squad; Doug Padilla took the men's 5,000 meters in 13:26.34; and Leslie Deniz won the women's discus with a throw of 202-7.

Stones, the two-time Olympic bronze medalist, had brazenly predicted he would better the American mark of 7-7 3/4, set by Tyke Peacock last year, and, after requiring just one attempt at each of the lower heights, he cleared the record height on his second try.

"I had been doing my underground routine," said Stones, who has competed infrequently recently. "And when I went 7-7 (in a high-jump competition he organized at nearby Ambassador College prior to the start of the Trials), I knew I was ready."

"When I came out here, I wanted to have that look on my face that the other guys would know they were jumping for the other two spots on the team ... I think I still have that old killer instinct."

Stones added that he did precisely as he had planned, commenting, "I didn't want to miss at any of the lower heights; I didn't want my friends and family who were in the stands to be biting their nails wondering whether I was going to make the team or not."

Stones, who missed three times after having the bar raised to 7-9 1/4, hadn't improved his personal best in the past eight years before he hit the American record jump. He said he particularly wanted to do well because, although he plans to compete some after the Games, "This is it for me."

Doug Nordquist, a distant cousin of Stones and a Washington State graduate, came up with his best effort ever to finish second at 7-7, while Milt Goode got the third and final Olympic berth with a height of 7-5 3/4. Peacock, who suffered a slight foot injury during an early jump, cleared just 7-3.

Decker, hardly downcast at her runner-up finish (4:00.04), said it was actually to her benefit. She was considering running in both the 3,000 — which she'd already won at the Trials — and the 1,500 in the Olympics, but the grueling task of six races in five days and the setback made her decide to settle on one of the events.

"I think I'd be more confused if I had won," said Decker, who swept two gold medals at the World Championships last year and hadn't lost a race since Tatyana Kazankina of the Soviet Union beat her in world-record time in the 1,500 in 1980. "I have decided that winning one Olympic gold medal would be much more valuable to me than winning two silvers."

"I'll decide after a couple of more races which one I'm going to run. I know I can run a much faster 1,500 when I don't have so many races during the week. If I'd felt good, I honestly don't think I would have come in second."

Wysocki, who had finished second in the 800 final on Tuesday, said she could hardly believe she'd beaten Decker.

Wolcott Wins CF Triathlon

NEW BERN — Scott Wolcott of Greenville won the overall championship of the Second Annual Cystic Fibrosis Triathlon sponsored by the New Bern Parks and Recreation Department Saturday.

Wolcott finished the course with a time of 2:01.38, while Lance Timmons was sixth at 2:09.40.

The race started at the Holiday Inn in New Bern and ended at the Moose Lodge in Grantsboro. It included a one-mile swim across the Neuse River, 22-mile bike ride and six-mile run.

Bob Morrison finished 39th overall in 2:27.21, while Bob Fox was 48th in 2:28.51 and William Clark 50th at 2:29.19.

Of the 110 entries in the race, there were 15 women and seven teams.

Twins Stun Chisox In Metrodome

By The Associated Press
The Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome in Minnesota, known as a home-run house of horrors for pitchers, quickly turned into a temple of doom for Chicago White Sox right fielder Harold Baines.

Chicago cruised into the ninth inning Sunday with a 2-0 lead before the roof fell in. First, Dave Engle led off with a single, just the Twins' fifth hit off Richard Dotson. With one out, Tom Brunansky singled.

Tim Teufel then broke his bat while hitting a sinking line drive to right that he thought "looked like a bloop single."

Baines charged the ball, but watched as it hit in front of him, hopped off the artificial turf and over his head. By the time center fielder Rudy Law tracked the ball down, Teufel had crossed the plate with a three-run, inside-the-park homer for a 3-2 victory.

"I'm hitting first base running as fast as I could," Teufel recalled as he narrated the game-winning play. "Baines is coming in and Rudy Law was far away. I had no idea where the ball was, so I just kept running as hard as I could and the third-base coach (Tom Kelly) kept waving me on."

Baines had little to say. "The ball just bounced over my head," he said.

In other American League games, Detroit crunched Milwaukee 7-1, Boston beat Toronto 5-3 in 10 innings, Kansas City nipped California 3-2, Oakland downed Texas 4-2, Cleveland blanked Seattle 5-0 and New York at Baltimore was rained out.

Teufel, who plays second base for the Twins, said he's seen other weird things happen at the Metrodome.

"The ball bounces hard on this turf. You have to keep the turf in mind here because of the funny way the ball will bounce," he said. "This place can eat you up, bouncing over your head just when you think you can reach it."

Chicago Manager Tony LaRussa disclaimed the notion that Baines could have stayed back and safely played the ball on one bounce.

"You're damned if you do and damned if you don't," LaRussa said.

Dotson, 9-4, took the hard-luck loss while Ken Schrom, who allowed six hits in the first three innings but gave up just one more the rest of the way, won his first game of the season in three decisions.

Tigers 7, Brewers 1

Jack Morris had missed two starts because of a hyper-extended right elbow. But he made a stylish return and convinced Milwaukee Manager Rene Lachemann that he is a natural.

Morris allowed only one hit over six innings in becoming the major leagues' first 12-game winner. The victory for Morris, 12-3, was the 100th of his career.

Ed Romero's single with one out in the sixth was Milwaukee's only hit off Morris. The Brewers got two hits off Aurelio Lopez, who went the final three innings for his ninth save.

"When he has everything together, he might be the best pitcher in the league," Lachemann said.

Lance Parrish and Ruppert Jones homered for Detroit. Jones' three-run homer over the right-field roof at Tiger Stadium capped a six-run sixth inning.

Red Sox 5, Blue Jays 3

Toronto's Dave Stieb took a nifty three-hitter and 3-0 lead into the bottom of the ninth inning at Fenway Park before the gremlins arrived.

With one out, Mike Easler and Bill Buckner singled. With two outs, pinch hitter Rick Miller walked and pinch hitter Reid Nichols banged a three-run double off the wall in left, tying the score.

Dwight Evans led off the Boston 10th with a single against reliever Dennis Lamp. With one out, Evans stole second and took third on a passed ball. Tony Armas then won it by drilling a 3-2 pitch for his 19th home run of the season.

Willie Upshaw had a homer, No. 13, and an RBI single for the Blue Jays.

Indians 5, Mariners 0
Bert Blyleven, coming back against all odds, showed he still can pitch — and field, too. The right-hander tossed a two-hitter in Seattle and set a major-league record for putouts in a game with six.

Blyleven, who underwent major elbow surgery in 1982 and has been nagged by injuries since, did not allow a hit until Jim Presley singled with one out in the fifth. Presley had been recalled from Class AAA Salt Lake City on Saturday night. Jack Perconte's infield single in the eighth was Seattle's only other hit.

Blyleven, 6-3, got all six of his putouts at first base after taking throws from first baseman Pat Tabler. No other Cleveland infielder had an assist.

Andre Thornton hit home run No. 13 for the Indians and drove in three runs.

A's 4, Rangers 2

Rickey Henderson and Joe Morgan, normally known for their footloose exploits, starred for the A's by swinging home-run bats.

Morgan smacked a solo homer in the first inning. It was his fifth of the season but more notably, the 265th of his career as a second baseman. That pushed Morgan past Rogers Hornsby into the top spot on the all-time list for home runs by a second baseman.

Two solo home runs by Pete

O'Brien lifted Texas into a 2-2 tie going in the bottom of the ninth in Oakland.

But Jim Essian singled with one out, and after Garry Hancock hit into a forceout, Henderson homered off Dave Tobik.

Royals 3, Angels 2
Dane Iorg lifted a sacrifice fly in the ninth-inning to break a 2-2 tie as the Royals were host-busters in California.

Bud Black, 8-5, held the Angels to four hits through eight innings and Dan Quisenberry pitched the ninth for his 19th save.

Steve Balboni, who homered twice against the Angels in a victory Saturday night, hit a solo home run for Kansas City in the fourth.

Sutcliffe Enjoying Chicago

By The Associated Press

Not only is Rick Sutcliffe happy to be back in the National League, he's thrilled to be pitching in meaningful games now that summer has rolled in.

Sutcliffe was acquired from Cleveland by the Chicago Cubs on June 13 and the 1979 NL Rookie of the Year has won two straight starts for his new team. His latest victory came Sunday on a five-hit, 14-strikeout, 5-0 gem against the St. Louis Cardinals.

Sutcliffe claimed the motivation of a pennant race — even at this early date — has helped him since joining the Cubs, who are a half-game behind first-place New York in the NL East.

"It was by far the most important game I've pitched in three years. This game meant something," said Sutcliffe, who was 17-11 for the Indians last season and is 4-5 this year. "I had fun in Cleveland but the season would start in March and end in June, when you were 20 games out."

"I started well last year and was 11-3. But after the All-Star break, we were 25 games out and it's hard to motivate yourself."

Sutcliffe also wasn't healthy when this season began.

"I had root canal work done a year ago but it wasn't done correctly," said Sutcliffe. "They had to do it over again this spring and when they opened it up, it literally exploded. There was blood all over the place and I was in a dentist's chair for four days."

Sutcliffe lost 17 pounds.

"It was a trying time and took over a month," said Sutcliffe. "It was like spring training all over again. The club was 20 games out and I was throwing only 80 miles an hour. Somebody in the Cubs organization must have seen something."

The 14 strikeouts were a career-high for Sutcliffe and gave the host Cubs a sweep of a three-game series.

"I finished fifth in the (American) league last year and fourth the year before (in strikeouts)," Sutcliffe noted after he collected his first shutout since pitching a seven-hitter against the Yankees a year ago. "I haven't seen a lot of these guys for a while. After I learn the hitters and start working on my own, that's when I'll get in trouble."

Jody Davis blasted a two-run homer to support Sutcliffe.

Elsewhere in the NL, it was Montreal 5, New York 3; Philadelphia 4, Pittsburgh 2; Los Angeles 5, Atlanta 2; San Diego 8, Cincinnati 3 in 13 innings, and, in a night game, Houston belted San Francisco 8-3.

Expos 5, Mets 3

Tim Wallach knocked in four runs, including three with a home run, and Bryn Smith registered his first victory since May 15.

The host Mets remained in first place in the National League East by just .004 percentage points over the Phillies.

"Sometimes, I have a tendency to run out there and try to hit the ball before I even get to the plate," Wallach said. "Today, I really wasn't thinking about anything. I just wanted to swing hard and hit the ball hard."

Phillies 4, Pirates 2

Von Hayes was thinking the same as Wallach when he hit the Phillies' fourth pinch-hit homer of the season. Ozzie Virgil also had a two-run shot and Steve Carlton continued his mastery over the host Pirates, beating them for the 12th time in his last 13 decisions against them. The Pirates haven't beaten Carlton, 38-22 lifetime versus Pittsburgh, since Sept. 11, 1982.

Loftin-Ipock Win Tourney

The team of Jake Loftin and Bobby Ipock fired a 54-hole total of 83, 25-under par.

Their total included a fabled round 27 to claim the victory. Lavern Mayo and Johnny Carrow finished second with a three-round total of 86.

"I was just up there trying to hit a line drive, get something started," Hayes said of his second pinch homer of the season. "I didn't expect it that quick. The ball just jumped. When I pinch hit, I'm ready to go up there and hit the ball hard."

Padres 8, Reds 3

Steve Garvey's sacrifice fly snapped a 3-3 tie and Tim Flannery's bases-loaded triple capped a five-run 13th for visiting San Diego.

Reds reliever Tom Hume, 3-7, came on in the 13th and walked pinch hitter Bobby Brown. Alan Wiggins singled, sending Brown to third, and took second on the throw to third. After an intentional walk to Tony Gwynn loaded the bases, Garvey drove in his second run of the game with a sacrifice fly to left.

Luis Salazar drew a bases-loaded walk from Hume and Flannery then hit his triple into the right-field corner to clear the bases and knock out Hume.

Dodgers 5, Braves 2

Los Angeles won its fourth in a row after a seven-game slide and is 6-1 with Atlanta this year. The visiting Dodgers slammed four homers, beginning with a two-run shot in the first inning by Franklin Stubbs and a solo homer one out later by Pedro Guerrero.

Mike Marshall, who along with Greg Brock also hit a home run, wondered why the Dodgers have been so masterful against the Braves this season and last.

"I don't know if we try harder or what," he said. "We just seem to have some confidence, but, except

Hills Capture Mixed Doubles

John and Myra Hill defeated Howard and Nancy Powell 7-5, 6-4 Saturday to capture the Lipton Iced Tea Mixed Doubles Tournament championship.

The Hills advance to the sectionals at North Ridge Racquet Club in Raleigh in July.

INTO COMPUTERS

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) — Golfer Tom Watson, who sometimes clicks off shots with computer accuracy, admits he now is interested in home computers.

"I want to learn more about them for several reasons," he said. "For one thing my daughter, Meg, not yet five years old, is starting to use one. When I found out that they were using computers in pre-school classes, I figured it was time for me to learn also."

for these three games, they have been a good ball club."

Added Atlanta's Glenn Hubbard: "We could win the pennant, but in the papers here, it would still say, 'Yeah, but you didn't beat the Dodgers.'"

Astros 8, Giants 3

Snow Hill Downs Wilson On Error

WILSON — Randy Daniels drew a base on balls and later scored on a two-out, bases-loaded pickoff attempt in the top of the 10th inning to give Snow Hill 5-4 victory over Wilson Sunday in American Legion baseball.

Billy Godley and Anthony Russo went 3-6 and both had a pair of doubles for Snow Hill. Rick Radford and Kevin Langston added two hits.

Tommy Boswell led Wilson with a 3-5 performance at the plate.

Wilson led 4-1 after four innings, but Snow Hill trimmed the margin with two runs in the seventh. Radford singled and moved to second on a sacrifice by Langston. Norris singled to put runners on first and third, and Russo drove in both runs with a double.

Snow Hill tied the score with another run in the eighth, as Radford walked and later scored when Daniels reached on an error.

The win improved Snow Hill, which hosts Kinston Thursday, to 9-8 on the season.

Snow Hill pounded Edenton 19-5 Saturday, as Norris ripped a leadoff single off pitcher Rusty Holliday.

Holliday was hit in the eye, suffering a broken cheek bone and shattering a contact lens.

Norris finished the game with a 3-5 performance at the plate, while Jerry Butler, Joey Stepe and Adrian Smith had two each. Smith went the distance on the mound.

Chicod.....3

WINTERVILLE — Scott Bond ripped an RBI-triple in the second to lead Winterville Ruritan to a 9-3 victory over Chicod Saturday in Pitt County Babe Ruth League action.

Bond led Winterville at the plate with a 3-3 performance and struck out 10 on the mound. Carl McLawhorn went 2-2 for Winterville.

Shane Adams led Chicod with three hits, and Mike Mills added two.

Andy Hoffner reached first on a fielder's choice before Bond's game-winning RBI.

Winterville, now 8-2, hosts Farmville tonight.

Kite Wins Atlanta Classic

ATLANTA (AP) — Tom Kite says he'll leave the rating of golfers to others — the fans and the media. "I'm an awfully good player, but I'm certainly not ready to put myself in the great category," Kite said Sunday after claiming the $72,000 first prize in the $400,000 Georgia-Pacific Atlanta Golf Classic. "I don't know that I'm a better player today than I was three days ago," Kite said after accomplishing one of his goals — winning two titles in the same season. A winner of the Doral-Eastern Open earlier in the year, he became only the third two-time winner of the season with Sunday's victory. "Believe me, it's a nice situation," Kite said after his closing 67 that left him with a 19-under-par 269 total on the 7,018-yard, par 72 Atlanta Country Club course. "It's sometime I felt I should have done for the last two or three years. It seems like I struggle and struggle and finally win one. Hopefully this won't be the last one this year."

Rinker Takes Boston Five

DANVERS, Mass. (AP) — Laurie Rinker broke a double barrier in winning the $225,000 LPGA Boston Five Classic.

It was her first win on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, and she's the first member of her professional golfing family to win a major tournament.

"It is a big barrier to break. I've been close a few times, but hopefully this will be the first of many. It's very important to me to know I can play as well as I did on the first two days," said Rinker, who survived a double bogey and three bogeys on the back nine of the wind-swept Radisson-Ferncroft Country Club course.

"I struggled on the back nine, but after 14 (the double bogey) I was not real pleased with myself. I kind of got myself together and played the last four in one over. Which is not bad in these conditions. The wind dried the greens and the course played really tough."

Larry and Lee Rinker play on the Professional Golf Association tour, but Sunday it was 21-year-old Laurie who got all the honors, not to mention a $33,750 first-prize check.

On the women's tour for less than two years, Laurie Rinker acted like it was old hat to beat her brothers. But she said she had trouble with her composure in the late stages of the tournament.

She had beaten the 6,006-yard course for an 11-under par over the first two days but soared to nine over on the final two rounds. She still finished as the only par-breaker in the field of 72.

Laurie led all four days of the $225,000 tournament. She finished with a 65-68-76-77—286 total for a three-stroke margin on runners-up Ayako Okamoto, and Jackie Bertsch.

Rinker boosted her 1984 earnings to $77,159 and her career total to $113,504.

THE SARGE WINS PANAMA CITY (AP) — Orville Moody, the newest member of the Senior PGA Tour, got an immediate dividend.

Moody, who recently turned 50, the age when you become a senior golfer, won the $125,000 Viceroy Senior Panama Open here earlier this year.

It was the first victory of any kind for the "Old Sarge" since the 1977 International Caribbean Open.

Moody, who had served a lengthy hitch as a U.S. Army sergeant, started the golf world in 1969 when he came out of virtual obscurity to win the U.S. Open.

Overstreet's Death Adds Another Miami Tragedy

WINONA, Texas (AP) — Miami Dolphins players and coaches reacted with shock to the news that running back David Overstreet died in an auto crash, the third tragic death on the National Football League team in the past four years.

Overstreet, a running back preparing for his second season with the Dolphins, was killed here Sunday when his car went out of control, crashed into gasoline pumps at a service station and exploded.

The vehicle burst into flames, instantly killing Overstreet, according to state Trooper Joe Abernathy. No other injuries were reported.

The 25-year-old Texas native apparently fell asleep while passing through here on the way to his nearby hometown of Big Sandy at about 6 a.m. CDT. He is survived by his wife, Johnnie, and two children.

Overstreet is the third Dolphin to die in the off-season in the past four years. Linebacker Rusty Chambers died in auto accident in 1981, and linebacker Larry Gordon suffered a heart attack while jogging last summer. Gordon died one year ago Monday.

"I can't remember any team having three losses like this in three years. The only thing that we can do is continue on and do the best we can and feel sorry for the family of the players," said Dolphins Coach Don Shula.

"You can't feel sorry for yourself and your football team in a case like this because of the great loss to the family of the player," Shula said.

Defending champion Calvin Peete had a 73-282, Masters winner Ben Crenshaw a 72-284 and U.S. Open champion Fuzzy Zoeller 69-285.

Kite had seven birdies and two bogeys on the final day, one when he three-putted the 15th green. "It was a nice solid round, the kind you need the last day," Kite said.

First round leader Mike Donald and Tim Simpson tied for third place at 275 and five others were deadlocked at 277 — Bobby Wadkins, Jay Haas, Mike Sullivan, Jim Colbert and Scott Simpson.

Halfway leader Tommy Valentine was 73-278 and tied with two others, including last week's U.S. Open runnerup Greg Norman, who had a 68 Sunday.

'Jessie' Illustrates How Ideas Can Get Sidetracked

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — ABC's new fall series, "Jessie," starring Lindsay Wagner as a police psychiatrist, was going to be different. It was NOT going to be another hour of shooting galleries and demolition derbies.
But in the introductory credits on the very first show, while the theme song is still playing, four police cars come flying through the air.
How did "Jessie" get sidetracked? It starts with ABC. The network that caters to younger viewers wanted a police-psychiatrist series, but then turned it into another cop-chase-crash show by requiring at least one action sequence in each 15-minute segment.
Richard St. Johns, one of the show's executive producers, said

ABC's action quota is a unique demand.
"They bought a police show with a psychiatrist, and that's the rub, that's why their requirements were so specific," said St. Johns. "Psychiatrists don't normally get involved in a lot of action, and ABC was concerned we'd be too cerebral."
The directive changed the tone and thrust of the series, said the program's co-executive producer, Eric Bercovici.
"They have given us a difficult puzzle to solve dramatically," he said. "The action sequences can't come out of the blue. They have to be incorporated into each story. That's what we're wrestling with."
In the first episode, Dr. Jessie Hayden (Miss Wagner) walks unarmed into a violent hostage situation, rides in the shotgun seat during a high-speed car chase and is attacked by a knife-wielding rapist. Sound familiar?

It does to Bill Cosby, who is returning to prime-time TV this fall in a family comedy on NBC because he's concerned that the medium has become dangerous to his family's health.
Said Cosby: "If I see one more car go sideways, go two blocks and run through a building and a man drops to his knees (with a .357 Magnum) and a hooker talks to a black pimp and then the end of the story comes ..."
"We have about six television sets," added Cosby, "so it's less expensive to do a TV series than throw them all out."
Even producer Aaron Spelling, who has seven series, including "The Love Boat," "T.J. Hooker" and "Dynasty" on ABC, said he wouldn't make two of his former shows, the violent "S.W.A.T." and "Strike Force," today.

"I'm stunned by how many action-adventure shows are on," he said. "I want to make shows that my kids (ages 5 and 10) can watch."
Lewis H. Erlicht, president of ABC Entertainment, said ABC's requirement of four action segments only applies to "Jessie" because of its more pedestrian concept.

Without the required action, he said the show "would be intellectual and not as commercial as it should be."
Action doesn't have to be only high-flying cars, he said. It could also be character confrontation and tense dramatic scenes, such as the hostage situation.

"You can't just have an hour of people talking to prove a point," Erlicht said. "It has nothing to do with being too cerebral; it has to do with pacing."

World's Fair Lacking Crowds

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The dreams of giant crowds and jolly profits that preceded this world's fair are being jolted at every turn by the unexpected.
Who would have thought the lively, colorful fair that opened May 12 would six weeks later be only a dim tourist draw but a solid hometown hit, selling 125,000 season passes?
Petr Spurney, president of Louisiana World Exposition Inc., said that of the average 42,000 people who show up each day, 30 percent hold season passes.
This is glum news for the 103 concessionaires, especially those dealing in souvenirs and other items aimed squarely at tourists. Hometown folks don't buy hometown souvenirs.
It is another example of the letdown in pre-fair great expectations. Spurney's anticipated "money machine" seems to be eating money, not churning it out.
Looking back, it seems strange that so few people challenged the glowing projections outlined by promoters of the 23-nation fair.
Talk was of 12 million to 14 million fairgoers over the six-month period, of full hotels, of some concessionaires grossing $1 million or so by the Nov. 11 shutdown.
Restaurateurs fretted over visions of regular customers, pushed out by tourists, going elsewhere and not returning when the fair ended. What happened? A lot of regulars are eating at the fair.

Huge traffic jams seemed a certainty as hordes of fairgoers drove into the city, heading for the once rundown warehouse district converted into an 82-acre showplace beside the Mississippi River.

The reality is that streets near the fairground have been less congested than they were when 5,000 hardhats were building the fair.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: M equals O
The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a good day to make whatever long-time plans you have to gain progress toward solving unfinished business or where you need logical answers for practical problems.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't make any changes in agreements with others and use only accurate and proven systems. Be with some trusted friend in the evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Stating to a partner what is expected of him or her for some time in the future is wise. Don't expect any speedy results though.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study financial papers that concern projects you are working on. Don't fret over one interest that is not working.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Get into the entertainments you have found satisfactory in the past, and plan for the future. Handle work admirably.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Make those confidential arrangements that will help to improve the situation at home. Have a quite, romantic talk with someone.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Talks with associates in outside activities can get fine results, provided everyone is direct with the other.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Put aside all that daydreaming and stick to the practical. Don't permit a family tie to spoil some plan that is vital to you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You can have discussions with newcomers for the days ahead that can prove very successful. Take things in stride.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make sure you follow directives from higher-ups and gain the support you need at this time as well as their OK.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A determined friend could have some suggestions to make that will be very helpful to you, so listen carefully.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You can improve your good name now by being conservative and refusing to go along with any way-out modern ideas.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You are inspired now and can gain fondest wishes you have had for some time. A bigwig thinks he can impose his will over yours.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be capable of making plans far into the future and will persevere to carry through with them to the finish. Teach not to take any risks and avoid severe losses, and to make sure that bills are paid as quickly as possible.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Sponsor Eyes Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House sponsor of the Simpson-Mazzoli immigration legislation says he thinks the bill's "guest worker" provision will be changed when the measure goes to a Senate-House conference committee.

Rep. Romano Mazzoli, D-Ky., said the agricultural worker language added to the bill on the House floor is the major difference from the Senate version, which lacks any provision for temporarily admitting such aliens to the United States.

"That is going to be a measure in stark controversy," Mazzoli said. "When the conference committee comes in, that particular amendment ... very likely will be changed."

Mazzoli made the comments Sunday during a joint appearance with Sen. Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo., on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press."

Both lawmakers predicted the House and Senate will resolve their differences and enact a compromise bill before the November elections.

But Simpson warned that the measure could be in trouble if too many opponents of the proposal are named to the conference committee.

"We can get it through conference if we get an honest conference committee," said Simpson, adding that he was especially wary if the House conferees included foes from the Education and Labor Committee chaired by Rep. Carl Perkins, D-Ky.

"When you get into a conference committee with Carl Perkins, you may end up not having any furniture left in your office," the senator said. "He's awesome. I don't want to have him in there. He's never been in favor of it anyway."

Asked if he thought a compromise could be steered through Congress by November, Mazzoli replied, "I think we can."

He noted that the Senate and House versions of the bill contain language providing for amnesty for some illegal aliens and monetary sanctions against employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens.

He said he sees the differences between the two chambers on these key points as "very well adjustable."

Simpson, who warned that the president would veto any bill that costs too much to implement, said that Senate conferees would go to the bargaining table with open minds.

Wallenda Ends Wire Sit

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — High-wire artist Steve Wallenda has his feet back on the ground after spending nearly four days in the air to raise money for a heart transplant for someone he's never met.

Wallenda, of the world-famed Flying Wallendas, came down from a high wire at 5 p.m. Sunday. He had been 40 feet in the air since 11 a.m. Thursday, trying to raise funds for Joel Aronson, a man who needs nearly $100,000 for a transplant.

Wallenda said he did not know how much money was pledged during the marathon high-wire act, but first day pledges alone topped $17,000, he said.

Aronson had been turned down for a transplant by his insurance company, although on Friday, the company agreed to pay for most of the transplant. Wallenda said any excess money would go to other persons who need transplants in the future.

With the exception of a few trips earthward to sign autographs, Wallenda spent 78 hours in the air on the premises of an amusement park known as Rawhide. Every night except Saturday, when he slept on a small platform, he ate and slept on the wire, something he says isn't as hard as it first appears.

"It's quite easy. You sleep lightly. Well, I say it's quite 'easy,' but I wouldn't recommend anybody trying it," he said.

General Custer

A war party of Sioux Indians defeated General George Armstrong Custer and the Seventh Cavalry near the Little Big Horn River on this day in 1876. The battle, known as Custer's Last Stand, lasted less than half an hour. The only survivor on Custer's side was a horse named Comanche. For years after the battle, the buckskin horse—saddled but riderless—appeared at cavalry parades to commemorate the fighters in Custer's command.

DO YOU KNOW—In what state did Custer's Last Stand take place?

FRIDAY'S ANSWER—Charles Lindbergh's plane was "The Spirit of St. Louis."

Terminally Ill Girl Receives Shopping Trip

NEW YORK (AP)—A teen-ager suffering from bone cancer says she was overwhelmed during a shopping spree at Saks Fifth Avenue, during which she "got so many things I can't even remember."

Barbara Montalvo's shopping trip and a weekend stay at the Waldorf Astoria hotel were sponsored by the Marty Lyons Foundation, set up by New York Jets tackle Marty Lyons. The foundation grants wishes to terminally ill young people.

"Everything I got is designer, even the perfume," said Miss Montalvo, 19, of Brentwood on Long Island, who said she had never been to Saks or the Waldorf.

The Saks employees "didn't show us the price tags. They treated us like royalty. They were great to us. I think even they had a nice time," she said.

Foundation spokesman Bill Luftig said Miss Montalvo's wish was unique. Ninety percent of the children in the program have opted for a trip to Disney World in Florida.

Miss Montalvo said she was told by the foundation that she had $400 to spend in the swank department store, but when she arrived Saturday, "They told us, 'This is your day and we'll take care of everything.'"

A limousine whisked Miss Montalvo and her parents, Wilfred and Barbara, and sisters Pamela, 22, and Doreen, 21, from the Waldorf to Saks, where they were escorted to a private showroom.

"It's where all the soap opera stars get their clothes," Miss Montalvo said.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠J98 ♥K3 ♦A652 ♣8763

Partner opens the bidding with three hearts and the next hand passes. What action do you take?

A.—We know you do not have the values for any bid, but you also do not have much defense. The opponents almost surely can make a game, so you should raise to four hearts. If the opponents' strength is almost evenly divided, you might even steal the hand undoubled—both East and West might give you credit for some of the strength that his partner holds.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠J1062 ♥Q3 ♦8652 ♣964

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1 ♠ Pass Pass 2 ♠ 3 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Take a good look at your hand. By passing at your first turn, you announced to the world that you could have a complete bust. In fact, you have excellent support for partner's first-bid suit and a key honor in his second suit. The least you can do is jump to four spades.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠954 ♥AKQ982 ♦73 ♣63

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ Pass 1 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—This is a good time to throw the point-count book out of the window. Also, forget about the desirability of playing in an eight-card major fit. You have a balanced hand that rates to produce six tricks for partner. Bid three no trump. Your hand should play as well at no trump as at hearts, and your chances for nine tricks are surely better than for 10

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠8 ♥J87632 ♦743 ♣852

The bidding has proceeded: West North East South 2 NT Dble Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—We don't know what your partner is up to, but neither do you. Certainly, he doesn't want you to bid—all doubles of no trump opening bids are basically for penalties. Pass and see what happens. Partner probably has a long, strong suit he can set up with an entry or two in the side suits.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠J98 ♥K10 ♦K6 ♣KQ7642

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East Pass Pass 1 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

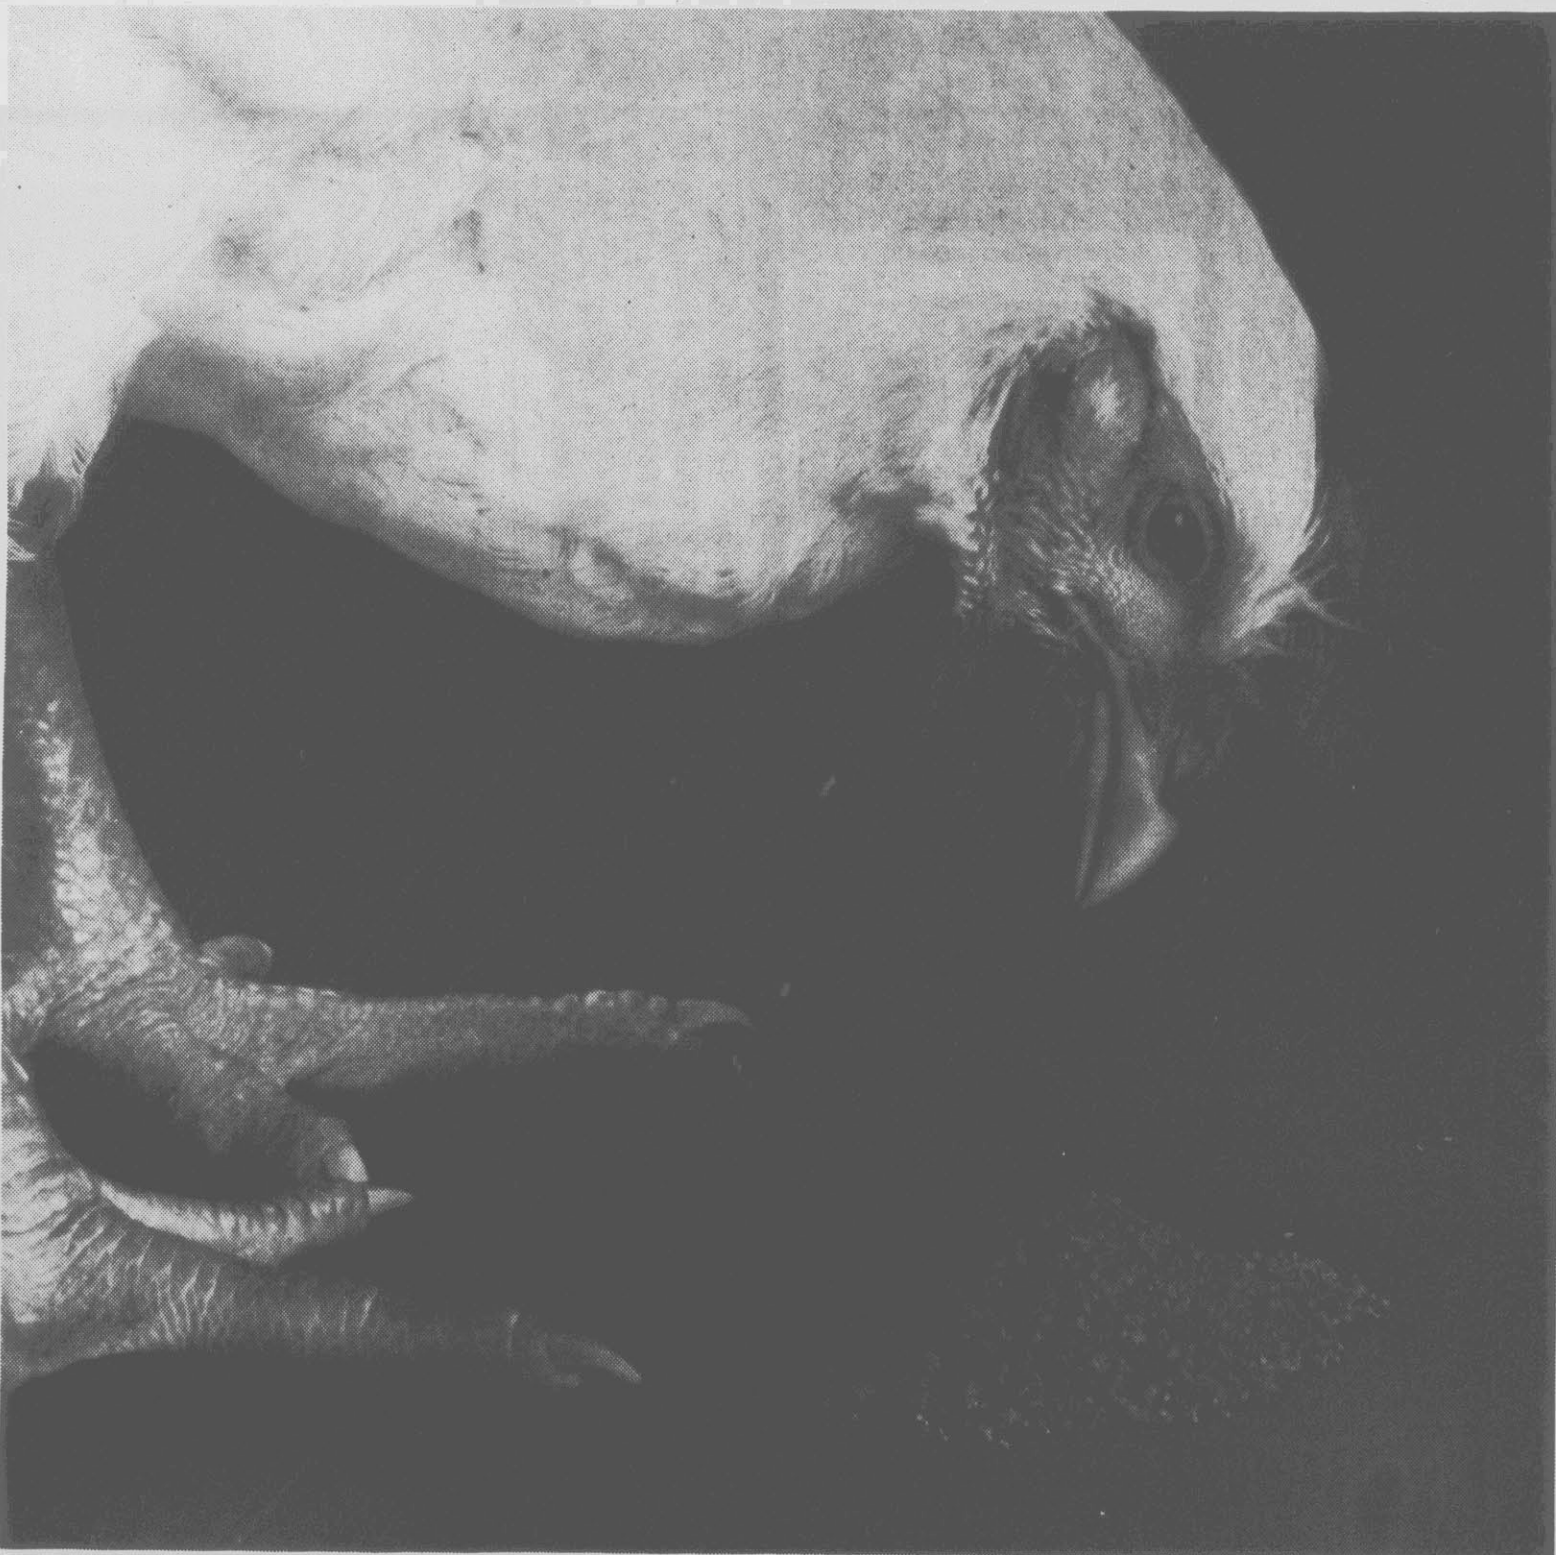

A.—Your hand is close to an opening bid—indeed, had your suit been a major we would have suggested that you open the bidding. Now, your fit with partner's suit makes your hand rich in playing tricks. With stoppers in two of the unbid suits and a partial stopper in the third, we suggest you jump to three no trump.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠QJ653 ♥A85 ♦K83 ♣JJ

Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?

A.—Your hand is not quite strong enough for a jump to three spades, but it has too many high cards and lacks the distributal features for four spades.

You Don't Have to Start from Scratch

Starting your own business doesn't have to take years of saving up capital. If you have some land—even just 10 or 15 acres—you may already have what it takes to grow with Perdue.

Your equity may let you borrow up to 100 percent of the cost of building a Perdue poultry house. Then operating the house will generate enough money to repay the loan and interest and still leave you an attractive income after each flock.

Most farm investments, like machinery, depreciate in value and offer lower returns. But a Perdue house keeps on being a valuable money maker.

Find out more about making good money with a little land. Return the coupon, or call us collect at (919) 795-4151, and let's talk chicken.
