Closing Arguments Presented As Green Trial Nears End

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

The state began its closing arguments to the jury this morning in the sentencing phase of the Harvey Lee Green Jr. murder trial in Pitt County Superior Court.

The defense rested its case Tuesday after several family members testified that they loved Green despite his admission of killing two people in a Bethel dry cleaners.

Green pleaded guilty to the first degree murders of Sheila Marlene Bland, 17, and John Michael Edmondson, 33, in Young's 1-Hour Cleaners in Bethel Dec. 19. The two were beaten to death with a pipe.

The jury of seven women and five men must decide whether Green will receive the death penalty or life imprisonment for the murders.

On Tuesday Green's mother and step-father, both preachers in Pamlico County, and Green's aunt, brother and sister testified that they cared about Green even though he admitted to the two murders.

Family members stated that there was not enough room for Green and his brother Bobby to live with their mother, so they went to Bethel to live with their father in a home with no heat and not enough food.

Theodore Richardson, Green's step-father since 1978, said Green lived with him and his mother from the time of their marriage until Green entered the Army in 1979. He testified that Green had a "certain resentment in the beginning" to his step-father, but that the resentment "was easily overcome" and he had no problems with Green.

"He wasn't a violent child," Richardson said. "He was just a typical young boy growing up."

With the jury out of the courtroom, Richardson addressed the families of the victims and said, "I want to say how much in my heart I feel sorry for their loss ... My wife and I got down on our knees and asked God to give them the strength to endure ... I don't condone any type of violence. I don't condone killing of any kind. When it comes to Harvey, I have also compassion for him."

GUC Turns Down Winterville Bid

Members of the Greenville Utilities Commission Tuesday night turned down a request by the town of Winterville to give up service to an 87-acre planned housing development west of Secondary Road 1700 at Winterville.

Town Manager Elwood Nobles said Winterville has been asked to extend water and sewer service to the property, which he said will include about 200 customers in single and multifamily units. He also said developer Bill Clark has asked that the area be annexed by the town.

Nobles told the GUC board that since Winterville will supply water and sewer for the project, and since the development is only 300 feet from the present Winterville town limits, the town would like to provide electric service to the area.

Nobles acknowledged that a 1982 agreement between the town and the Utilities Commission designates the west side of the Tar Road (SR 1700) as a GUC service area, and that the GUC already provides service to the area.

The town of Winterville has purchased its electric power from Greenville for resale to Winterville retail customers since the early 1920s. The town's service area is bounded on the west by N.C. 11, on the north by SR 1130 (the Jones Road), on the east by the Tar Road, and on the south by SR 1713 (the Ellis Road).

Castro Meets With Jackson, Frees 22 American Prisoners

By BETTY ANNE WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

HAVANA (AP) — Cuban President Fidel Castro announced today the release of 22 Americans from prisons here after meeting for more than eight hours with Democratic presidential contender Jesse L. Jackson.

Jackson and Castro began their talks in mid-afternoon Tuesday and continued on past midnight.

At a 12:20 a.m. EDT joint news conference, Jackson said the 22 Americans represent most of the U.S. citizens held in Cuban jails. He said they would accompany him when he returns to the United States on Thursday after a visit to Nicaragua.

The head of the U.S. interest section in Havana, John Ferch, told reporters earlier that 29 Americans are imprisoned in Cuba.

Castro said those being freed represented every American held in Cuba except those imprisoned for hijackings.

Castro also agreed to permit the departure of Andres Vargas Gomez, identified by Cuban authorities as a CIA operative. He is a former prisoner who was let out of jail in an amnesty in the late 1970s but detained in Cuba.

The names of those to be released were not immediately available.

Asked if he were troubled because many of those being freed were alleged to be involved in narcotics trafficking, Jackson said that "the real point is to bring American citizens back."

"Whatever their case may be, they should be subjected to a judicial process," he said. "I should not make the judgment and the press should not hold a trial."

Asked about Central America, Castro told the news conference through an interpreter that there are no Cuban troops in Nicaragua or elsewhere in the region.

"We have no troops to withdraw from Nicaragua and no troops in Nicaragua," Castro said. He said that the Cubans scattered across the hemisphere are civilian advisers, doctors and teachers.

Castro said he favored a suggestion from Jackson that the United States and Cuba exchange ambassadors if the Reagan administration is willing. That would require re-establishing formal diplomatic relations broken in 1961.

Cancer Detection Test Set

BOSTON (AP) — Within a year, a highly accurate new blood test should be available to diagnose liver cancer and provide the first major advance against one of the world's deadliest cancers, researchers say.

Doctors believe the test will allow them to spot the disease early enough to remove the cancer and ensure many victims a lengthy survival.

Until now, liver cancer, or hepatocellular carcinoma, has been almost always fatal to the estimated 250,000 people around the world who get it each year.

Though rare in the United States, the disease is common in many places, especially Africa and the Far East.

"It is a very, very simple, straightforward test to perform," said Dr. Jack R. Wands of Massachusetts General Hospital, who developed the test with researchers from the Institute Gustave Roussy in Paris.

The test also represents one of the first practical uses of monoclonal antibodies, a product of the new field of genetic engineering that experts hope will someday simplify the diagnosis of many illnesses.

Reagan Cites Continuing Efforts With Soviet Union

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, trying to ease concern about the deep chill in U.S.-Soviet relations, is drawing attention to areas where Washington and Moscow are still doing business despite the suspension of nuclear arms control talks.

Reagan, in a speech today to participants in a conference on U.S.-Soviet exchanges, planned to focus on areas where talks are continuing, such as scientific and cultural agreements, consular pacts and perhaps efforts to upgrade the Washington-Moscow hotline, according to a White House official who declined to be identified.

Reagan has been under fire from Democrats and Republicans alike to step up contacts with the Soviet Union, and Democrats in particular have complained that Reagan has not done enough to get nuclear arms control talks going again. The issue promises to be a major campaign theme of the Democrats in the presidential election season.

The White House official said Reagan's talk was not motivated by a desire to win political points with voters, but added, "There may be a fallout for the president if people do get a better picture of his efforts."

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan would not announce any new initiatives.

Ever since the beginning of the election year, starting with a Jan. 16 speech at the White House, Reagan has softened the once-harsh tone he used in talking about the Soviet Union but has tried to keep pressure on Moscow to resume arms talks.

Speakes said Tuesday that Reagan is concerned about the stalemate in arms negotiations "and wants to make it plain to the Soviets and to the American people what he has done in the area of arms control and in the area of (other) discussions with the Soviets."

He said Reagan was "perplexed" that people say "why doesn't the U.S. do this or that or make a new move." Speakes added that Reagan feels critics are "demonstrating in the wrong country, you're asking the questions to the wrong people."

With his scaled-down rhetoric, Reagan is trying to "demonstrate to the Soviets that we mean them no harm," Speakes said.

Reagan once denounced the Soviet Union as an "evil empire" and said its leaders lie and cheat. Asked if Reagan had changed his view, Speakes said, "That's a good question but I don't have an answer for it ... When you get an opportunity, you ask him."

On the eve of Reagan's address, the head of the Environmental Protection Agency, William D. Ruckelshaus, announced the United States and Soviet Union have agreed to revive a long dormant scientific exchange program on the environment.

Teen-Ager 'Guilty' Of Soliciting

Raymond Andrew Johnson, 18, of 112 N. Church St., Winterville, was found guilty in District Court Tuesday of soliciting to commit a felony (an unnatural sex act).

Johnson was arrested by Greenville police on May 11 on charges of soliciting to commit an unnatural sex act, loitering and carrying a concealed weapon, in connection with an incident that occurred on Dickinson Avenue.

Judge James Ragan found Johnson guilty of the soliciting charge, and not guilty of loitering. Johnson pleaded no contest to carrying a concealed weapon.

Ragan delayed sentencing Johnson until this afternoon.

Johnson was one of four persons arrested in separate incidents May 11 and May 12 on soliciting charges following an undercover operation headed by the police department's special investigations unit.

The others, including William Evans, 24, of 112 N. Church St., Winterville; Ronnie Jerome Callahan, 26, of 310 Paige Drive, and Joey Wayne Fulford, 19, of Sharpsburg, are scheduled to be tried July 19.

Shuttle Damage

Related story on page 10

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Space shuttle Discovery suffered only minor fire damage during Tuesday's aborted launch and a NASA official said today the ship's maiden launch might be rescheduled in 10 to 14 days.

The damage was caused by a small gas fire that erupted at the base of the shuttle when a computer commanded its three main engines to shut down just four seconds before Discovery was to lift off with a crew of five men and a woman.

An inspection of the engine area early today "revealed very little damage," NASA reported. Officials said an area about 25-foot-square on a shuttle body flap was scorched and there were minor paint burns on several components. There was no apparent damage to thermal protection tiles, the engine heat shields or the engine nozzles.

Double Ring Vows Take Place

Vicki Lamarr High and William Frank Malvaso were married in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. Bishop Danny Wait conducted the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Horace H. High of Ayden and Mrs. Marjorie A. Malvaso of Winterville and the late Frank F. Malvaso.

Sandra Wait of Farmville was pianist for the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride was escorted by her father. She wore a formal gown of satin peau overlaid with silk organza. The dress was fashioned with an empire bodice overlaid with a sheer yoke. The full length sleeves and stand-up collar of lace were appliqued with seed pearls. The gathered skirt was bordered with lace and pearls and featured a detachable cathedral train of silk organza. The three tiered cathedral veil was of silk illusion attached to a Camelot headpiece of lace and pearls. Her gown was fashioned and made by her aunt, LaRue Williamson of Wilson. She carried a bouquet of white silk miniature carnations, pink rosebuds and baby's breath with white satin and lace streamers.

The honor attendant was Deborah E. Garrett of Ayden, sister of the bride. Michelle Malvaso of Winterville, sister of the bridegroom, and Patricia Easterling of Greenville were bridesmaids.

The best man was Kevin McKinzie of Havelock. Ushers were Richard Rankin of Jacksonville, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Glenn Lancaster of Pikeville, cousin of the bride.

The honor attendant wore a plantation style formal gown of sheer silk organza print accented with a lace spread. Her bouquet was of pink long-stemmed mums and baby's breath tied with satin and lace streamers.

The bridesmaids wore lilac formal gowns of lustrous polyester knit overlaid with chiffon. Their bouquets were of purple long-stemmed mums and baby's breath tied with satin and lace streamers.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Assisting were LaRue Williamson of Wilson, aunt of the bride, and Sve Carraway, cousin of the bride of Elm City.

The refreshment table was decorated with white silk rosebuds, mums, gladioli, lavender phlox and pink baby's breath.

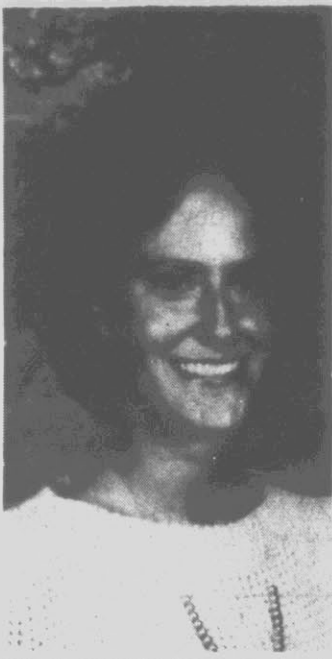

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip.

The bride is employed by Farm Fresh and Great Expectations of Greenville. The bridegroom is employed by Carolina Insulation Co. of Greenville. The bride and bridegroom attended D.H. Conley High School and she graduated from Barbizon School of Modeling.

Billie Johnston of Ayden directed the wedding. Gaylene Rankin, sister of the bridegroom, presided at the guest register. Rachael and Rebecca Rankin of Jacksonville, nieces of the bridegroom, distributed rice bags.

Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lancaster of Pikeville, uncle and aunt of the bride.

An after-rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's mother at her home in Winterville.

CAROL ANN MEEKS...is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Durward Meeks of Jacksonville, who announce her engagement to George Shepard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Shepard of Jacksonville. The wedding is planned for July 21.

Mother Of Twins Is Confused By 'Identical'

DEAR ABBY: I am confused about something. I recently gave birth to twins—a boy and a girl. In public, we attract a lot of attention. People ask a lot of questions, especially these two: "Are they boys or girls?" and "Are they identical?"

Even after I tell people the twins are a boy and a girl, I am asked if they're identical.

Abby, obviously, if one is a boy and the other is a girl, they are not identical, but so many people ask, I am beginning to wonder if boy-girl twins can be identical.

Please clear this up for me.

MOTHER OF TWINS

DEAR MOTHER: There are two types of twins—identical and fraternal. Identical twins are the result of one egg that divided into two identical halves.

Fraternal twins are the result of two separate eggs (fertilized at the same time). Boy-girl twins are always fraternal, but not all same-sex twins are identical.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I'm hoping you can help me with. I am 13 years old. I was going out with this guy I'll call Paul, then last November we broke up and he started going with this girl I'll call Julie.

I kept going over to Paul's house anyway, and when I did we would make love. He told me that he had never made love to Julie, that he really loved me and wanted me to be his lover, but he couldn't break up with Julie because he didn't want to hurt her. I guess he didn't care how much he hurt me.

Today I found out that all the time he was having sex with me, he was having sex with Julie, too. I still care for him a lot and just can't deal with the fact that he lied to me. What should I do?

BAD EXPERIENCE

DEAR BAD EXPERIENCE: What you should do is forget him. He used you. No experience is "bad" if you learned something from it. Thank God you didn't get pregnant—or contract a venereal disease.

Consider the pain of this humiliating experience as "tuition" in the school of experience, and promise to save yourself for a worthwhile man who cares about you.

DEAR ABBY: My 21-year-old daughter is getting married in September. She wants her father to walk her down the aisle, but here's the problem.

Three years ago my husband left me for another woman. After we separated, they lived together for two years, and after our divorce was final, they married.

My ex refuses to walk his daughter down the aisle unless he can bring his wife to the wedding. My daughter says if that woman comes to her wedding it will spoil her wedding day.

It would be awkward for me, too, because everybody knows the part she played in our divorce, and there would be a lot of gawking and talking that would take away from the full attention every bride expects on her wedding day. Her father will pay for the wedding, but only if he can walk her down the aisle.

We are at an impasse. What should we do?

UPSET MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: You and your daughter should have the kind of wedding you can afford—even if it's only a few of your nearest and dearest. And tell your ex you will miss him.

(Getting married? Send for Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Transplants Expensive

Organ transplants are becoming more common, but the cost still is high, says the Health Insurance Association of America. The going rate for a heart transplant is about $70,000, including surgery, doctor and hospital fees. A kidney transplant is in the $60,000 range and the newly developed liver transplant procedure might cost up to $100,000.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

I read household hints for the same reason I read cookbooks. It's a guilt fix for those days when I get up feeling good about myself.

Read a hint a couple of days ago that really did it for me. It said, "For a more relaxing day at the beach, choose matching swimsuits for your children so they will be easier to spot in a crowd."

Since when is a day at the beach with kids . . . a day at the beach? And why would anyone assume you went there to be with your own children and they with you?

All of my kids were born with an "orphans' wish." They wanted everyone to believe they lived alone in a Stephen King house near the school, taking care of themselves doing whatever they liked without benefit of any type of supervision. Every month a mysterious check would arrive to take care of their needs. They were destined to go through life alone, unloved, ignored and envied. To have suggested we even arrive at the beach at the same time or on the same day would have thrown them into a panic.

I remember a woman in our neighborhood once who had six children . . . four girls and two boys. The entire family dressed alike. They wore floral chintzes in the summer and striped corduroys in the winter. They always looked like the Von Trapp family in concert and created a stir wherever they went. Maybe this is significant, but no one ever knew their names. They were the Leech tribe or the Leech gang.

For years I used them as a threat. If my kids didn't shape up, I was going to make us matching vests and hats and join us together with Velcro. They never knew I didn't know how to thread the sewing machine, so for years it worked.

I never thought about the Leeches much until one day, about a year after we moved, I saw one on the school playground. "Hello," I said, "You're . . . one of the Leech tribe." She said, "My name is Phyllis." "And is this what we're wearing today? It's lovely." She looked at me sadly and said, "I match the shower curtains too." Maybe I did something right by taking my kids to the beach dressed a la carte. And when anyone asked, "Which children are yours?" I said, "Guess."

While they were guessing, it bought time for me to figure out which ones were mine.

Feats That Spur

In this year of the Olympics it must be an ego-blow to youngsters on reading about a senior who accomplishes a physical feat that rightfully belongs in the realm of Youth — note the capitalized “Y”.

Among the more recent achievements in that category is the 100-mile run over a roller-coaster trail of paths, roads and highways in the Shenandoah Valley. The doer, one Vince Foote (in his 50th year), finished the Old Dominion 100 in 23 hours, 38 minutes — enduring 95-degree heat — all for a silver belt buckle and personal satisfaction.

The recent run was the third attempt by the director of Product Design at N.C. State University; and we do not think for a moment that dread over joining the over-the-hill gang had any influence on his effort.

His example inspires all who have passed the half-century mark to feel that “there, but for the lack of direction toward that end, go I!”

Truth to tell, we prefer reading about it than enduring agonies of such heroics. Many men and women of the 50-and-over crowd have their own private and less sensational laurel wreaths to win; and feats of all the Vince Footes spur them onward and upward.

Age Limits

Last year when North Carolina raised its legal beer and wine drinking age to 19, The Reflector peered down the road and ventured a guess that an age-21 limit would be the next target.

It's approaching even sooner than we expected.

Legislation before the Congress gives states not yet barring alcoholic beverages to all under age 21 two years to raise the ban to a uniform 21. (Twenty-three states already have a minimum drinking age of 21 for all alcoholic beverages.)

There are teeth in the measure. Do it, or face the loss of highway funds.

Sponsors have two big factors working for them: the traffic accident toll attributed to drinking drivers (a disproportionate share of them being under 21 years old); and an unspoken sense of urgency to accomplish something beyond their accustomed fare of what has largely become “routine” obligations.

They learned in the test of wills over a national highway speed limit of 55 mph that funds-withholding was a mighty lever. It was easy to apply it again.

(Of course, the 55 mph limit is pretty much of an idle gesture, now. Anyone tooling along at 55 on the highways these days is apt to get run over.)

It is quite likely, too, the under-21 drinkers may at first find old water holes dried up; in time they will find other sources.

As it now stands, the higher minimum age limit was overwhelmingly approved by the House. It has strong support in the Senate, but “supporters” include a considerable number of senators who have a flood of possible amendments in the wings, which may become roadblocks.

Good laws and bad laws face similar risks. One may complain about the “system”, but it's still the best available.

Prison Population Growing Again

—Paul O'Connor—

RALEIGH — North Carolina's speedy trials law is a mess that is being undermined by both defense and prosecution attorneys.

That's the verdict of a superior court judge who chairs the Courts Committee of the Governor's Crime Commission. Judge Robert Collier of Iredell County says that as many as 50 percent of the state's criminal trials are being conducted outside of the state mandated 120 day speedy trial period.

“Our speedy trial law is a well motivated goal,” Collier recently told the commission. “But with the amendments added by the legislature, it now has some loopholes that allow a smart district attorney or a clever defense attorney to virtually delay any case as long as they want.”

The Speedy Trial Act is one of two cornerstones in Gov. Jim Hunt's crime agenda. It is Hunt's philosophy that punishment for crime ought to be “swift and sure.” So, Hunt proposed speedy trials — within 120 days of arrest — to make sure punishment came swiftly. To assure that it was “sure,” Hunt successfully pushed the Fair Sentencing Act, which carries presumptive sentences for each crime, through the legislature.

“The whole speedy trials law is based on the premise that the defendant is entitled to trial within 120 days,” Collier said in an interview. “But he doesn't want that. If he has a weak case, his defense attorney will do as much as he can to delay the trial.”

There are plenty of ways to delay a trial under the current law, Collier said. For example, one provision says a trial can be delayed if a critical witness can't appear on the day of the trial. A smart defense attorney “can always find someone who won't be available” if he doesn't want the case going to trial, Collier said.

Many times it is to the advantage of a defense attorney to delay a trial. If he knows his client is guilty, he'll want to delay the inevitable, Collier said. Maybe he'll get lucky and something will happen that undermines the prosecution's case. Maybe a prosecution witness will leave town, die or just forget what he or she saw. Maybe some evidence will get lost. Maybe the district attorney will lose the next election and his successor will offer a better deal on a plea bargain.

It can also be to the advantage of the district attorney to seek a delay, he said. Many have caseloads that are well backed up. They just don't have the time to try all the contested cases within 120 days. So they schedule a case for a session of court and they don't get to it. Then they ask the judge for a waiver of the speedy trial provision because the case couldn't be reached during that term of court.

Prosecutors have also been accused of holding back on a case in the hope of trying a particular case in front of a judge who may be a bit more partial to the state than is the judge who is currently in town.

There are also some good reasons why trials get delayed. For example, the state's crime labs are overworked and often can't return evidence to prosecution and defense on time.

Collier says he wants the legislature to tighten up some of the law's loopholes and promises to have some specific recommendations rise out of his committee in time for the 1985 General Assembly.

“It's a little bit of a sham on the public to say that we have a speedy trials law in this state when you have very few cases being tried within 120 days,” he said.

Question Of The Political Arch

WASHINGTON — The Washington Post speculated the other morning that Charles Percy might be defeated in his bid for re-election to the Senate from Illinois. At the same time, Jesse Helms might win re-election from North Carolina. In that event, said the Post, “that would leave archconservative Helms in line to be chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.”

Where does the Post get this “arch” business? And why is it that only conservatives are ever “arch”? Have you seen an “ultraliberal” in the papers lately?

It is high time, I submit, to get these classifications fairly codified. Otherwise it might be said — which heaven forbid! — that writers for The Washington Post were making subjective judgments. It might even be alleged, though we should dismiss the horrid thought out of hand, that the Post occasionally is biased in its news columns. Everyone knows this is not so.

To abolish these base and unwarranted conjectures, I hereby propose Kilpatrick's System for the Determination of the Political Arch. The System, it will be seen, is based upon empirical data. I am not quite sure what is meant by empirical, but empirical data are recognized universally as the very best data one can buy.

This is the System. Every year members of Congress are rated by four respectable organizations. On the liberal side are the AFL-CIO and Americans for Democratic Action.

On the conservative side are the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and Americans for Constitutional Action. These ratings are published shortly after the end of each calendar year. Each rating has a possible maximum score of 100.

To determine a conservative's rating, we take his combined scores from the U.S. Chamber and the ACA, and we subtract them from his combined scores from the ADA and the AFL-CIO. The liberal ratings are achieved in the opposite way. For 1982, the most recent figures at hand, the System produces these findings for the Senate:

The 10 most conservative members, entitled to be fairly identified as archconservatives, are Helms of North Carolina, 182; East of North Carolina, 172; Mattingly of Georgia and Lugar of Indiana, tied for third at 163; Nickles of Oklahoma, 156; Hatch of Utah and Thurmond of South Carolina, tied for sixth at 155; Armstrong of Colorado, 153; Symms of Idaho, 152; and Denton of Alabama, 146.

The 10 most liberal members, entitled to the accolades that go with a designation of ultraliberal, are Cranston of California, 174; Dodd of Connecticut and Tsongas of Massachusetts, tied for second at 169; Metzenbaum of Ohio, 165; Kennedy of Massachusetts, 150; Eagleton of Missouri and Levin of Michigan, tied for sixth at 148; Moynihan of New York, 144; Sarbanes of Maryland, 143; and Pell of Rhode Island, 139.

Gentlemen, take your bows.

Once the simplicity and the accuracy of the System are recognized, we may expect the wire services and newspapers to adapt their abbreviations accordingly. We may expect to see references routinely to Helms, AC-N.C., and to Hart, L-Colo. Surely it is more informative to write of Dodd, UL-Conn., than of Dodd, D-Conn.

Every spring, as the preceding year's ratings are assembled, we may imagine the excitement and suspense as designations change. In 1982 Bill Bradley of New Jersey barely missed making ultraliberal. His conservative colleague, Dan Quayle of Indiana, was only one point away from arch.

Strength For Today

The caterpillar — a rather revolting type of worm — winds itself up in a cocoon, and later emerges as a butterfly. Could anyone believe as he looks at the caterpillar that anything but a miracle could transform this worm into a butterfly with gossamer wings made glorious with indescribable color?

And in fact it is a miracle which causes this to happen, just as life in general is a miracle. Two small cells coming together carry with them the father and mother heritage going back into the recesses of endless time. Trees appear to die and all living things on the landscape also, yet in the spring a beauty suddenly appears which could never by any stretch of the imagination be foreseen.

Miracle. Miracle. All about us is miracle. But perhaps the most miraculous aspect of this process is that humankind, alone of all the creatures of the earth, recognizes this process for what it is and worships the source of it.

Instead Of Layoffs, Change Your Thinking

PECOS, Texas (AP) — When the Duval Corp., a sulfur producer near this west Texas city, was faced with laying off 20 percent of its labor force or reducing its workweek by the same amount, it chose to do neither.

Instead, the company opted to change the way people think.

“We ended up not laying off a soul and saving over $3 million,” said Robert Semrad, plant manager. “And it wasn't hard to do at all.”

Under a “resources management” program adopted in late 1982, the Pennzoil Co. subsidiary gave employees the opportunity to develop and implement projects that reduce costs and increase productivity, Semrad said.

“What we're really trying to do is change the way we manage, and it has given people here more freedom and responsibility to do their jobs,” Semrad said. The effort, he said, has changed the way people think.

“It's kind of odd that we've gotten so far away from the basic principles of management,” said Semrad. “People haven't changed, management has, and we're changing it again here — back to letting people think for themselves.”

Duval's new management is simple: Employees evaluate their jobs, develop ways to make them easier and less costly, and then implement their ideas. No longer are supervisors enforcers of rules. “They're facilitators and coordinators,” said Semrad.

The program's efficiencies permitted the company to avoid both layoffs and a shorter workweek in 1983, and it has boosted employee morale while saving the company millions of dollars, Semrad said.

Classroom instruction and a nine-week course are part of the training. So far, 90 percent of the 430 employees have completed or expressed interest in the training, said Don Marshall, purchasing agent and a resources management administrator.

“We felt like this was going to be a good effort when we started, but it sure has surpassed anything we thought of,” he said.

Employees' projects have ranged from turning off lights that are not needed to developing new methods for monitoring wells, Marshall said.

“The projects have run the whole gamut. One was so simple — we moved a diesel tank closer to the area where it was needed. That saved us about 20 minutes each time we refueled,” he said.

“It sounds like a little thing, but every bit counts and when you put them all together, it's a great savings. It's also a good way to have employees feel they're contributing something to their company.”

“We ask them for their ideas and then we say ‘OK, act on it,’” he said.

Employee James Moyers said the program has been a big help to the company. “Employees feel they're getting more involved and have a say in how to change things,” he explained.

“After all, we're the people working most closely to the general operation of the plant. Management doesn't see these little problems, we do,” he said.

For managers, the program “teaches the boss that he can't do it alone — that he can do it better if he enlists the help of his employee,” Semrad said, adding:

“It may take awhile for a supervisor to see that he can shine in the light of his employees as well as through his own activities, but once that's realized, everything's a go. It really teaches us to deal with people in a non-adversive manner.”

Duval's plant, 39 miles northwest of here, produces about 4,000 tons of sulfur daily and sits atop the largest sulfur mine in the Western world.

Marshall said employees first are asked for project ideas during training sessions, but “can continue to come up with things after they've completed training.” Some have three or four recommendations to their credit, he said.

Chuck McGee, a Duval field instrument foreman, believes the program should be adopted by other organizations, in both private and public sectors.

Prisoner Exchange

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syria and Israel have agreed to exchange war prisoners, Syria's official news agency reported today. The exchange reportedly will include more than 290 Syrian prisoners. Syria holds six Israeli prisoners, but the number of Israelis to be freed was not disclosed. The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv today declined to comment on the reported exchange. The news agency SANA said the swap would take place Thursday near the southern Syrian frontline town of Kuneitra, provincial capital of the occupied Golan Heights which Israel annexed in December 1981. The area is a buffer zone controlled by the United Nations. The agency said an exchange agreement was worked out by negotiators from the International Committee of the Red Cross during several months of bargaining. About 290 Syrian prisoners taken in the 1982 Lebanon war will be freed and an undisclosed number of bodies returned, SANA said. Twenty-one Syrian civilians also will be exchanged, the agency said. Among them are 13 Golan Heights residents held by the Israelis for alleged guerrilla activities, SANA said. Syria holds at least three Israeli soldiers taken prisoner since the 1982 Israeli invasion of Lebanon. Israel has said five other Israeli troops were missing and unaccounted for. In addition, three employees of Israel's liaison office in Lebanon have been held by Syria since they were captured May 1 north of Beirut, the Lebanese capital. Last November, Israel released more than 4,500 Palestinians and Lebanese in exchange for Palestinian groups' setting free six Israeli soldiers. Syria has had troops in northern and eastern Lebanon since the 1975-1976 Lebanese civil war. Israel has occupied southern Lebanon since June 1982.

Watercolors By Hitler Will Get First Public Showing

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — Watercolors attributed to a "very modest Sunday painter" named Adolf Hitler will be shown for the first time, along with masterpieces plundered from Italy during the Nazi era, in a major exhibition opening this month.

The paintings by the Nazi leader were obtained by Rodolfo Siviero, a secretive Italian government art sleuth, who was responsible for the recovery of the 141 masterpieces. The works include a marble fragment by Michelangelo and paintings by Rubens, Memling, Tintoretto and Botticelli.

City art officials and Siviero's sister, Imelde, said it was the wish of the detective, a native of Florence who died last year at 71, that the works be shown together. "My brother wanted a permanent museum for the city of Florence of the works he recovered from the Nazis, but he also wanted to show the poor art work which that Nazi scoundrel himself produced," said Miss Siviero. "They certainly are not works of art, rather a curiosity," Florence's commissioner of culture, Giorgio Morales, said in an interview with The Associated Press. Twenty watercolors signed "A. Hitler" will be shown, but officials said only 18 have been authenticated by two Munich experts hired to evaluate the works. The paintings, most of them measuring about 8 inches by 10 inches, depict street scenes in Vienna and Munich, including, for example, the Hofbrauhaus beer hall in the Bavarian city.

They are believed to date from 1910 to 1914, when Hitler was in his 20s and eked out a living in the two cities by copying and selling picture postcards. Pina Ragionieri, a museum curator who is in charge of press relations for the exhibit, said the Hitler works were also probably copied from postcards. "They clearly show he was a very modest Sunday painter," she said. Just how Siviero obtained them is in keeping with the mystery that surrounded his career, which began as an undercover agent for Italian intelligence while he was studying art as a young man on a scholarship in Berlin. Ms. Ragionieri said Siviero got them "directly or indirectly" from the wife of Martin Borman, a member of Hitler's inner circle, in the predominantly German-speaking city of Merano in northern Italy in 1947. Siviero's sister denied that version but refused to disclose their origin. "I am fed up with all this buildup about Hitler's works, when interest should be centered on the real masterpieces recovered by my brother," she said. Most of the works being shown were taken openly or smuggled out of Italy during the period of Hitler's alliance with Italy's Fascist dictator Benito Mussolini and later during the Nazi occupation of the country.

Iraq Planes Hit 2 Ships

By The Associated Press Iraq said its warplanes attacked and hit two large ships today south of the Iran's Persian Gulf oil terminal at Kharg Island. The military communique read on Baghdad radio described the ships as "very large naval targets" but provided no details on their identity. There was no immediate confirmation of the attack from other sources. The communique said the attacking jets returned safely after scoring "direct and effective hits on the targets." It was the first reported attack on gulf shipping since Sunday, when Iraq said it attacked four naval targets south of Kharg Island. Only one ship was confirmed to have been hit — the Greek-registered supertanker Alexander the Great.

City Amends Animal Control Ordinance

The Greenville City Council has recently adopted an ordinance amending the city's animal control regulations, declaring certain acts by dogs, cats and other animals to be public nuisances. Under the law, animals which frequently howl, bark, fight and make other disturbing noises will be considered public nuisances and their owners may be cited by an animal control officer for these violations. Citable nuisances include dogs who chase, snap at or attack pedestrians, bicyclists or vehicles. If the officer has reasonable cause to believe a particular dog or cat overturns a garbage container or damages gardens, flowers or other property, the owner may be issued a civil citation and the animal may be impounded. Violations of the laws will subject animal owners to a civil penalty of $15 for each occurrence. If a violator fails to pay the penalty within five days, a complaint may be filed by the Greenville Police Department and a warrant may be issued for the owner's arrest. For more information call the city Animal Control Department at 752-3342.

Democrats To Study Changes Proposed By Hart, Jackson

WASHINGTON (AP) — There apparently will be no fight over presidential nominating rules at the Democratic National Convention next month, but a commission will be named to study sometimes conflicting changes proposed by Sen. Gary Hart and the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

Both Hart and Jackson supporters said they were pleased with the agreement struck with backers of former vice president Walter F. Mondale in Rules Committee meetings that ended Tuesday, calling for creation of a "Fairness Commission" to review delegate selection procedures.

"These are strong recommendations and we think the commission will take them very seriously," said Carol Casey, a committee member from Vermont who proposed the so-called "democracy package" of reforms on Hart's behalf. "We think we have set the direction for the future."

Arnold Pinckney, Jackson's campaign manager, said, "We feel we have accomplished what we came here for" by the adoption of Jackson's proposal for a commission to set up rules assuring "full participation in the party" by blacks and other minorities.

Hart's recommendations and Jackson's conflict at several points.

The Jackson proposal calls for the commission to "examine the effect of threshold requirements and instituting the standard of one person, one vote," saying that "any threshold applied to the selection of delegates from congressional districts may discriminate against presidential candidates with a minority racial or ethnic base of voters."

The Hart proposal says a state may provide that candidates who do not receive a specified level of support shall not be awarded delegates, but says these thresholds may not exceed 15 percent. Rules now permit variable thresholds of up to 25 percent.

Jackson calls for the commission to consider eliminating the caucus system as a means of selecting delegates, saying that some caucus states employ "arbitrary and discriminatory procedural requirements" that are barriers to participation.

Hart does not discuss eliminating caucuses but says they should be held in convenient locations and that participants be required only to be eligible voters who have publicly declared and recorded their preference for the Democratic party.

Jackson wants elimination of the appointment of party and elected officials as unpledged delegates, a practice that he and Hart say gives an unfair advantage to front-runners. Hart suggests reducing the number of such delegates, not eliminating them.

Donald Fowler of South Carolina, vice chairman of the Rules Committee, said the 50-member commission will include substantial representation from among Mondale, Hart and Jackson supporters.

Republicans Say 44 Percent Of Delegates Will Be Women

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan-Bush '84 campaign says that 44 percent of the delegates to this summer's Republican National Convention will be women, up sharply from four years ago.

With the GOP worried about a gender gap at the ballot box, President Reagan and other top Republican office-holders have gone out of their way to prod state Republican conventions to balance their delegations voluntarily between the sexes.

Their counterparts in the Democratic Party mandate an equal division of delegate seats between men and women.

At the 1980 Republican convention in Detroit, 29 percent of the delegates were women, according to a survey conducted by the National Federation of Republican Women.

Betty Rendel, president of the 160,000-member National Federation of Republican Women and a delegate to every GOP convention since 1968, said 44 percent would mark "a great improvement."

She recalled that GOP convention delegates back in 1972 had turned aside a proposal to use quotas "and said, 'We'll do it ourselves.' '72 was not good, '76 was not good, '80 was not good and '84 is maybe not going to be perfect, but it sure is going to be a whale of a lot better."

So far, Republicans have elected 1,938 of the 2,235 delegates to this year's convention in Dallas, which runs from Aug. 20 to 23.

Sharon Griffith, a delegate specialist at the Republican National Committee, said that in 35 states and the District of Columbia that have completed their delegation selection, 898 men and 649 women have been chosen. That is a 58-42 split.

John Buckley, deputy press secretary for the Reagan-Bush re-election drive, said it expects women to hold 44 percent of all seats when the final delegates are chosen.

"We as a party do not believe in quotas the way the Democratic Party does. We believe in voluntarily trying to equalize the number of women and men," said Buckley.

He said President Reagan and GOP chief Frank Fahrenkopf had asked state party leaders to increase the number of women delegates, and Sen. Charles Percy in Illinois, Malcolm Wallop in Wyoming and Richard Lugar in Indiana as well as Arizona's Republican congressmen had given up their own seats so women could be chosen.

Mrs. Rendel just returned from a GOP convention in her home state of Indiana, where she was formerly a state vice chairwoman. "We came out with 46.3 percent women in Indiana. That's a far cry better than we were in 1980, when it was 17 percent," she said.

Noting that one man told her he was always a GOP delegate, she said, "This was the time we had to tough up and say to them, 'It's someone else's turn.'"

Four years ago, one of the most controversial actions at the GOP convention was the party's reversal of its traditional support for the Equal Rights Amendment. Polls have consistently shown that Reagan has less support among women than men.

Ms. Griffith, the national committee's delegate specialist, said Georgia is sending 17 women delegates to the convention and only 13 men. Texas will have 55 women and 54 men, and Ohio 45 women and 44 men.

"Pennsylvania is probably the most lopsided state," she said. Its delegation includes 87 men and only 11 women. Men outnumber women 22-11 in North Carolina's delegation and 23-13 in South Carolina.

GOP rules encourage states to achieve an equal balance, as well as to encourage participation by minorities, youth, ethnic heritage groups and senior citizens.

The Democrats have state-by-state affirmative action goals for their delegations.

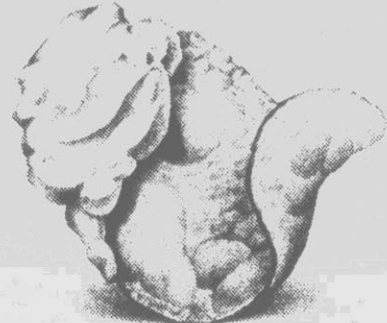

It is not yet known how many minority delegates will be in Dallas.

How To Dip Into Fresh Ingredients,

SMOTHERED IN FRESH SOUR CREAM,

WITHOUT LEAVING YOUR CHIP IN THE DIP

Here's how our BREAKSTONE'S GOURMET DIPS end up with a taste that's easy to love and a texture that's easy to dip. We start with real, creamy, fresh, natural sour cream. Next we add special ingredients that make each of our five gourmet dips so special. Mounds of mushrooms and green herbs; or toasted onion bits; or crunchy bacon and onion; or a spicy blend of Jalapeno pepper and natural Cheddar cheese; or for sea-food lovers, real Chesapeake Clams (and lots of them).

Then each is blended to be smooth and creamy, not too thick—not too thin.

So, if you've got gourmet tastes, sink your chips into our delicious dips. The only thing that'll crack is the smile on your face.

Senate OKs Drinking Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 21-year-old national drinking age bill is headed back to the House, where quick action could help it become law in time to give the nation a symbolic warning about drunken driving before the Fourth of July weekend.

The measure, which passed the Senate 81-16 Tuesday night, would not take effect for two years. But Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., said it could send an immediate message that the nation is cracking down on drunken drivers.

"It would be symbolic if, before we have a big roaring holiday, we have this in everybody's mind," she told a post-vote news conference.

The House also passed a "minimum 21" bill June 7, but must now decide whether to accept a Senate-added incentive program for states that enact automatic jail terms and fines for convicted drunken drivers.

Rep. James J. Howard, D-N.J., the bill's chief House sponsor, said he would have to study the Senate version before recommending a position to the House.

But he added, "The chances are very good that we will have a 21 year old minimum drinking age pass the House again before the July 4 break" — which begins Friday.

President Reagan said he supports the bill even though he normally doesn't like the federal government telling states what to do.

He said the measure would combat the "national tragedy" of highway deaths, caused in part by young people who cross state lines to buy liquor they cannot get in their own states.

Both the House and Senate bills would withhold badly needed highway construction money for states refusing to enact a minimum drinking age of 21.

Sen. Frank R. Lautenberg, D-N.J., the chief Senate sponsor, said the penalty period would begin Oct. 1, 1986, and last for two years. A state would lose 5 percent of its allocation the first year of the penalty period and 10 percent the second year.

However, any state raising its drinking age within the two years would have its money returned, while states not acting in that time period would never regain the funds.

Lautenberg estimated the cost would be $260 million the first year and $520 million the second year if all 27 states currently without a minimum age of 21 failed to act.

The incentive part of the program would fatten a state's treasury with additional highway safety money if the state enacted automatic punishments, a computerized traffic records system and laws against drivers under the influence of drugs.

The non-profit National Safety Council said 23 states have set the age at 21 for purchasing all alcoholic beverages. Nine states plus the District of Columbia have an age 21 minimum for some alcoholic drinks.

State Officials Say Age For Drinking Will Rise

By The Associated Press
If Congress passes legislation linking federal highway construction funds to a drinking age of 21, North Carolina will have to raise its drinking age on beer and wine to avoid losing the money, state officials say.

William Roberson, secretary of the state Department of Transportation, said the Senate's intent in passing the bill Tuesday was to fight drunken driving.

"I think the federal government thinks this will get drunken drivers off the road ... (but) this is a matter for the General Assembly to decide," he added.

Roberson said North Carolina receives about $291 million a year in federal aid and could lose from $15 million to $30 million each year.

"I don't think most states can afford to lose the money," said state Highway Administrator Billy Rose on Tuesday night.

"Speaking as a transportation official, I would have to say that although I personally support the concept of a higher drinking age, I don't think it's proper to penalize an ongoing program because the state decided not to enact it," Rose said, adding that there are better ways to get drunken drivers off the roads.

"From my point of view, the appropriate solution is enforcement of the laws we have already on the books," Rose said.

The Senate voted Tuesday night to withhold highway construction funds from states that refuse to enact a minimum drinking age of 21. The measure passed by an 81-16 margin, with North Carolina's two Republican Senators, Jesse Helms and John East, voting for it.

Neither Helms nor East could be reached for comment by telephone. Gov. Jim Hunt was out of town and could not be reached for comment, a spokeswoman for the governor said.

In North Carolina, the legal drinking age for wine and beer is 19 and for liquor it is 21.

NASA Seeks Reason For Failure

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Attention focused on a 10-inch-long fuel valve as NASA officials tried to determine why a computer cut off discovery's engines just four and a half seconds before liftoff, delaying the newest space shuttle's maiden voyage indefinitely.

Only one of three engines fired Tuesday before a sensor indicated a faulty fuel valve and shut down all three in a lightning fast sequence that left the six astronauts strapped atop 500,000 gallons of volatile fuel, ready to escape down a 1,200-foot escape wire.

Repairs were to continue today on the shuttle that was water-damaged when fire broke out under Discovery's solid booster rockets, equipment that was damaged as the shuttle shook and strained against its hold-down bolts and other launch pad systems.

NASA officials also planned to examine a 10-inch-long by 5-inch-round valve that controls the flow of fuel into the combustion chamber of engine No. 3, the first in the firing sequence, and to discuss another flight date.

The officials said after the dangerous launch pad abort — the second in as many days — that there is no chance the flight can be reset before next week, and that it may be two or three weeks before another try can be made.

There was not another shuttle flight scheduled until Aug. 29, again with Discovery, and a delay was not expected to have an impact on the timing of future missions.

The astronauts — five men and a woman — were given leave to do as they please until next week.

Discovery had started its main engine firing sequence seven seconds before liftoff, to give the powerplants time to reach full power while the shuttle's main computer monitored their operation.

The three engines fire in sequence, igniting 120 milliseconds apart. The computer sensed a faulty valve in No. 3 and swiftly sent the cutoff signal.

Only No. 2 ignited, and that only for three seconds. No. 3 did not build up sufficient pressure, possibly because of the valve, and No. 1 never had a chance to receive an ignition command.

For the six astronauts, the shut-down was a moment of potential danger. Their spaceship was strapped to tanks holding a half-million gallons of fuel and a small fire flared at the base of the shuttle, 147 feet below.

A deluge of water, triggered automatically, quickly extinguished the flames and launch controllers examined fuel tank gauges to make sure levels did not threaten an explosion.

Infant Found On Doorstep

WILLINGBORO, N.J. (AP) — The Smallwoods raised 13 youngsters, including 10 foster children, and they may have found No. 14 — an abandoned boy wrapped in a towel, tucked in a paper bag and propped against their front door.

A note in the bag was addressed to a couple in a community about 50 miles away who had placed an advertisement in a newspaper seeking to adopt a child, but they knew nothing of the infant, said police Capt. Richard Van Sciver.

"That couple does not want to adopt a baby, but the Smallwoods are not sure."

"I would love to keep it," said Clara Smallwood, adding she was not sure whether she will apply to the state to adopt the baby.

John Smallwood found the infant when he left the house Tuesday morning. He brought the bag inside, saw it move and tore it open before discovering the baby, surrounded by its umbilical cord and placenta.

"Whoever left (the baby) knew we have children," said Mrs. Smallwood.

Staff Tells FCC Drop Used Car Sale Rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission staff has recommended that the commission scrap a proposed rule requiring used-car dealers to disclose known defects in their cars to potential buyers.

In recommendations prepared for a July 10 FTC meeting, the staff argued it is more important to specify who will pay for repairs if a used car does develop problems after purchase, and called for an even more prominent disclosure than contemplated of whether the car carries a warranty.

Clarence Ditlow, director of the Washington-based Center for Auto Safety, called the recommendation a "complete sellout of the consumer."

Jack McCarthy, executive vice president of the National Association of Automobile Dealers, which has fought against the defect disclosure rule, said dealers "can live with" the rest of the rule package but will propose some changes in wording of the warranty sticker.

Auto dealers have for eight years fought various commission attempts to regulate their sales, the most recent skirmishes coming over what is called the "known defects rule."

Sales of used autos are the greatest source of FTC consumer complaints, and the commission has seen the disclosure rule as a way to crack down on unscrupulous dealers.

The staff now recommends changing the contemplated window sticker slightly, requiring either the phrase "as is — no warranty" or "limited warranty" in letters three-eighths of an inch high and eliminating the blank space for listing defects.

About half of the 17 million used cars sold each year — roughly twice the number of new cars — are sold "as is," without a warranty.

To act against dealers under the proposed disclosure rule, the commission would have to show that the dealer knew of a defect — and that would be extremely difficult, said another staff member, Christopher Brewster.

Hefty Pay Increases Proposed

RALEIGH (AP) — The next governor would get a 54 percent pay raise and passengers could ride the train from Raleigh to Charlotte under proposed guidelines for spending the 1984-85 state budget.

The 143 pages of guidelines are before the House-Senate Appropriations Committee, which was scheduled to meet to discuss possible amendments to the bill today.

Also included in the bill are Highway Fund appropriations of $699 million for current operations and $12 million for capital improvements. In the transportation money is $500,000 for a one-year trial run of the passenger train.

Under the proposed schedule, the train would leave Henderson at 4:26 p.m. and stop in Raleigh, Durham, Burlington, Greensboro, High Point, Salisbury and Kannapolis before arriving in Charlotte at 9:40 p.m.

It would leave Charlotte at 8:45 a.m. and arrive in Henderson at 1:35 p.m. and eventually in Washington D.C. at 6 p.m.

If it is profitable, Amtrak has agreed to incorporate the route into its national rail system and eliminate the need for additional state funding.

Amtrak estimates that more than 100,000 riders would use the train each year, an average of 174 passengers on board for each mile the train travels.

The one-year trial, which could start as soon as October, has been endorsed by Gov. Jim Hunt and the state Board of Transportation.

"It's really a one-year operations experiment only," said Rep. William Watkins, D-Granville, chairman of the Appropriations Expansion Budget Committee.

The bill includes some hefty salary increases for state officials, many of them the combined result of two years of increments. Lawmakers cannot increase their own pay, so salary improvements affect the 1985 General Assembly.

The next governor will get almost 54 percent more money than Hunt, most of the increase approved in the 1983 session. The annual pay would jump from the present $60,768 to $93,516.

The next House speaker will get an almost 81 percent pay raise as his salary jumps from $13,860 to $25,044. His expense account would jump from $4,140 a year to $9,240, a 123 percent increase.

Rep. Liston Ramsey, D-Madison, is expected to be elected to an unprecedented third term as speaker.

Legislators in the 1985 session will get a 21 percent increase when their salary jumps from $6,936 a year to $8,400 and annual expense allowances go from $2,064 to $2,508, also 21 percent.

Legislators have argued that they're two years behind other state employees in getting their raises.

The bill would create different salaries for the Senate president pro tempore, House speaker pro tempore, the minority leader in the House and Senate and the Senate majority leader.

The bill also would give the same salary to all Council of State members, including the lieutenant governor, and appointed department heads. The annual salary would be $55,368.

In addition, the guidelines call for: — The granting of in-state tuition to military personnel attending state universities and colleges. Watkins said 41 other states have enacted such legislation and "it is no longer a matter of policy, it is a matter of reciprocity."

— The granting of higher pay raises to Superior Court clerks in the smaller counties, who will get a 40 percent pay raise. Watkins explained that the salary gap between clerks in small and large counties was too great and this was a step to remedy the problem.

— The movement of state law enforcement officers into the state employees retirement plan while local officers remain in the Law Enforcement Officers Retirement Plan.

Delay Tactic Stalls Intangibles Tax Bill

RALEIGH (AP) — A proposal to phase out the intangibles tax has stalled in a state House committee, and the bill's powerful Senate sponsor is hinting that House bills will suffer the same fate unless the situation changes.

With legislative leaders predicting that the summer session will end this weekend, the House Finance Committee failed Tuesday to consider the intangibles tax bill sponsored by Senate President Pro Tem Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg.

Lawing, who chairs the Senate Rules Committee, delayed action on several House bills before his panel Tuesday and complained angrily about the House committee's treatment of his bill.

While denying that his actions amounted to retaliation, Lawing said in an interview that "I'm not above it, if push comes to shove. I understand how the game's played."

House Speaker Liston Ramsey responded, "I don't think the House committee chairmen will get involved in these childish, high-pressure activities. ... They're trying to consider the bills on their merits."

The Senate approved last week Lawing's bill to phase out the intangibles tax over five years and reimburse cities and counties, which get most of the money, for their losses.

The intangibles tax is a levy of 10 cents per $100 on savings accounts containing over $1,000 and 25 cents per $100 on stocks and bonds. The inventory tax is a property tax on inventory held by manufacturers, retailers and other businesses that also benefits local governments.

Critics have long complained that both taxes hamper industrial recruitment and discourage wealthy retirees from settling in North Carolina, thus depriving the state of jobs and money. Supporters of the taxes say repealing them would benefit the rich and put a greater burden on the poor.

Lawing said he had talked with Rep. Dwight Quinn, D-Cabarrus, chairman of the committee, Tuesday morning. Quinn told him the panel would consider the tax bill Thursday, Lawing said. "But I thought we might be getting out of here (adjourning) Friday or Saturday," he said.

Rep. Jeff Enloe, D-Macon, complained on the House floor Tuesday that the Senate Rules Committee was delaying action on two House bills.

Ramsey said the inaction was "childlike ... but a serious problem."

"That's no way to run a ship, boat ... or anything, especially a legislative body," said Ramsey in an interview.

Quinn refused to say whether his committee would consider Lawing's bill Thursday. "We haven't set the agenda yet," he said, declining further comment.

While refusing to speculate on the bill's fate, Ramsey criticized it, saying the plan to reimburse local governments with state funds would help larger, urban counties at the expense of rural counties such as Madison, where he resides.

Deputy, Inmate Killed In Wreck

YANCEYVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Authorities say a sheriff's deputy and the prisoner he was transporting from North Carolina to Virginia were killed when the deputy's car hit a tractor-trailer head-on.

The accident occurred Tuesday afternoon while Henry County Sheriff's Department Investigator George M. Brown and Charlie Lee Gram were traveling on North Carolina 86 toward Danville, according to police. Both men were thrown from the car, police said.

The truck driver suffered a laceration on the head and was taken to Danville Memorial Hospital, the Caswell County Sheriff's Department reported.

Brown was taking Gram from Roanoke Rapids, N.C., to Henry County after arresting him on a charge of breaking and entering, authorities said.

Brown served Gram with a warrant Tuesday and took him into custody after he waived his extradition rights.

Oilman's Heirs To Plan Strategy

By The Associated Press
The heirs of Caldwell County native Pelham Humphries are planning a July 21 meeting in their attempt to win an oil fortune stemming from Texas land Humphries once owned.

Brown Perego of Gray, Tenn., president of the Pelham Humphries Organization, has called the meeting without saying what it will be about, said Alda Hite Dixon of Greensboro, one of the heirs.

She said Perego went to Texas last month and apparently has been negotiating with oil company attorneys.

Humphries died in a Texas boarding house shooting in the 1830s. His land, which was given him by the government of Mexico that year, later became the Spindletop oil field. Since oil was found on the property, the Humphries heirs, now estimated at 10,000, have been trying to get a share of the oil money.

Hearing Set For Phosphorus Bill

RALEIGH (AP) — The fate of a bill limiting the amount of phosphorus in detergents was uncertain after a state Senate committee scheduled a public hearing for Saturday, the day some legislative leaders want to end the summer session.

Senate Special Ways and Means Committee Chairman Bob Swain, D-Buncombe, said Tuesday he had received several requests for a public hearing and felt compelled to heed them because he didn't want to be accused of railroading the bill.

Meanwhile, an interstate banking bill that breezed through the state Senate found the going rough in the House Banks and Thrift Institutions Committee.

The bill would allow regional, reciprocal banking in the Southeast. It would permit bank holding companies in the region to acquire North Carolina banks if North Carolina banks have the same rights in the other Southeastern states.

The phosphorus bill's sponsor, Rep. Charles Evans, D-Dare, said he didn't oppose a public hearing but said the bill had been recommended by three study commissions. He said he was unsure how the hearing would affect the bill's chances of passing.

"There is a great deal of momentum for issues dealing with clean water," Evans said. "I think Sen. Swain realizes that."

Department of Natural Resources and Community Development Secretary Jim Summers acknowledged it was part of opponents' strategy to delay the bill.

"The entire matter at this point rests on timing," Summers said. "The leadership in both the House and Senate obviously are trying to complete their work this week."

Sam Johnson, lobbyist for the Soap and Detergent Association, said he was grateful for more time to talk with senators.

"The longer time we have to work the better opportunity we have to tell our story," Johnson said. "The longer we have to work, the closer we get to adjournment."

The bill would limit the amount of phosphorus by weight to 0.05 percent of the detergent. That's significantly lower than most detergents, which now have about 6 percent or 7 percent phosphorus.

Supporters believe the limit is one way to reduce the amount of phosphorus in rivers and lakes, where the nutrient contributes to the growth of algae.

Opponents say the limit will cost consumers, forcing them to sacrifice with few resulting improvements in water quality.

Sen. Vernon White, D-Pitt, wrote Swain requesting a public hearing at which homemakers, industry representatives and scientists could present evidence about the effects of phosphorous limits.

Swain said he would do his best to get the bill considered this session but said, "I cannot ignore the request of a man like Sen. White or former Sen. Bob Morgan (who is lobbying against the bill). It would be an insult to either of them and be against protocol."

Mother Gets Prison Term For Murder

BOLIVIA, N.C. (AP) — A 27-year-old New Hanover County woman who pleaded guilty to second-degree murder in the death of her 2-year-old son has been sentenced to 10 years in prison in Brunswick County Superior Court.

Arnita Hall Griffin had said she threw her son, Travis, to the floor in anger on Dec. 6, 1983. The youngster died Jan. 7 of a fractured skull and hemorrhaging, autopsy reports said.

According to police reports, Ms. Griffin said she threw her son to the floor three times after he spit out some food. When she realized he was hurt, she called a social worker, who took him to a doctor.

Ms. Griffin was charged with first-degree murder the day her son died. She pleaded innocent at her arraignment hearing in March. Two weeks later, however, she pleaded guilty to second-degree murder.

Brunswick County Superior Court Judge Robert Farmer recommended work release for Ms. Griffin, gave her credit for the five months she has spent in jail since she was charged and ordered her to undergo counseling, showed no emotion when Farmer announced his decision.

CP&L Rate Request Challenged

RALEIGH (AP) — The Public Staff of the state Utilities Commission has raised 27 issues in asking that Carolina Power & Light Co.'s proposed $151 million rate increase be reduced to $620,000.

CP&L's request, filed last February, would increase consumer bills by 12.52 percent. For a residential customer using 1,000 kilowatt hours per month, the proposed increase would be $9.30 per month.

The Public Staff, in pre-filed testimony released Tuesday, said CP&L's request for a 16.5 percent return to stockholders should be denied in favor of a return of 14.95 percent. The staff also recommended rejecting the Raleigh-based utility's request for additional money for construction work in progress, saying the present level of CWIP is sufficient.

The Public Staff also said CP&L is seeking to collect $31,391,000 more than it needs to cover fuel expenditures.

Finally, the staff said the $166,000,000 sought for abandoning CP&L's Shearon Harris Nuclear Plant No. 2 unit should be spread over 15 years instead of 10 years as the utility requested. That would save another $16 million.

Norris L. Edge, CP&L vice president for rates and services, said he was "puzzled" by the recommendation of the Public Staff.

"If accepted in its entirety, the recommendation would have us sell electricity below our full costs," Edge said in a prepared statement. "Certainly, this is not in the public interest."

Edge said the increase proposed by CP&L is required if the utility is to "meet our obligation to our customers."

Scientists Study Trees

RALEIGH (AP) — Fourteen scientists were scheduled to arrive in the state today to try to determine what is causing trees to die in the Eastern U.S. and Central Europe, officials said.

Nine German scientists and five U.S. scientists hope to propose strategies to pinpoint the cause of ailing forests before they leave Saturday, officials said in a new release.

The group is scheduled to travel on Thursday to Mount Mitchell, where red spruce trees are dying, said Elliott Cowling, head of the National Atmospheric Deposition Program at North Carolina State University.

While the decline in forests is limited primarily to red spruce at higher elevations in the U.S., species of trees growing under many conditions are dying in Europe, officials said.

In general, scientists believe the problem is related to air pollutants, but the exact cause is not known.

The group visited Camels Hump Mountain in Vermont on Monday and White Face Mountain in New York on Tuesday, Cowling said.

Research Vessel Joins State Fleet

RALEIGH (AP) — A new $180,000 44-foot fisheries research vessel will begin working the North Carolina coast this week, officials said.

The Carolina Coast will join the state Division of Marine Fisheries fleet and will be based in Morehead City. The vessel will work mainly the Pamlico and the Albemarle sounds and their major tributaries.

The vessel will be used for, among other things, catching shrimp and fish for tagging and for long-term general assessment of finfish and crabs in the Pamlico and Albemarle sounds.

Robert Guthrie of Harkers Island will be the captain of the vessel.

Award For Park

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — Roy H. Park, founder and president of Park Communication Inc., has been chosen by the American Academy of Achievement as one of the 1984 "Giants of Accomplishment."

He is scheduled to receive the Golden Plate award at the 23rd annual Salute to Excellence weekend in Minneapolis July 5-7.

Park joins other distinguished citizens from North Carolina such as former Sen. Sam Ervin, former Supreme Court Justice Susie Sharp, University of North Carolina basketball coach Dean Smith and David Murdock, owner of Cannon Mills.

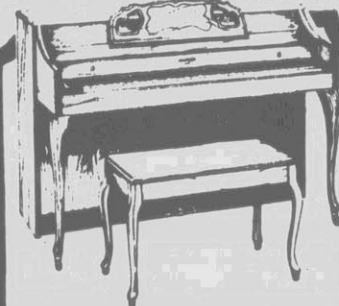

Park owns 21 daily, weekly and free distribution newspapers in North Carolina and a total of 77 throughout the nation.

Recall Denied

NEW YORK (AP) — A judge has ruled that reputed mobster Joseph Bonanno does not have the right to approve the cover of a paperback edition of his autobiography, and refused to order the recall of the books.

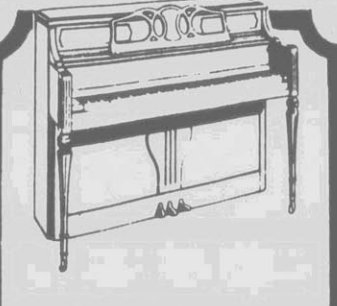

Bonanno, 79, sued publisher Simon & Schuster for $13 million, claiming the cover of "Man of Honor" made him look like "a cheap gangster." The suit is pending.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks opened slightly lower today after suffering a broad decline in the previous session.

Auto, computer and financial issues were among the early declines, while several telephone stocks moved ahead.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off nearly 8 points Tuesday, recovered 1.88 to 1,124.67 in today's opening half-hour.

But losers jumped out to a 3-2 lead over gainers among all the New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Stocks continue to be hobbled by the high level of interest rates relative to inflation, and pessimism about the outlook for rates grew when major banks raised their prime lending rates earlier this week, to 13 percent from 12 1/2 percent, analysts said.

There are hopes economic growth will taper off and relieve the upward pressure on rates, but recent government indicators show economic expansion remains brisk.

Given that outlook, some investors also are electing to take profits following the market's strong advance last week, brokers said.

Today, General Motors fell 1/8 TO 34 1/2, Ford Motor lost 1/8 to 35 3/8, Pacific Telesis gained 1/8 to 54 3/8 and U.S. West rose 1/4 to 59.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrial average fell 7.73 to 1,122.79.

Declines led advances 2 to 1 on the NYSE, whose composite index lost 0.66 to 88.15.

Big Board volume totaled 82.60 million shares, against 72.85 million in the previous session.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell 1.58 to 200.22.

Green ...

Green's mother, Mary Green Richardson, said her divorce from Green's father had a "great effect" on the defendant. "It hurt him and he withdrew," she said. "He wouldn't talk about it. He was close to his father and he felt like I was taking his father away from him ... When we separated, it destroyed his security."

Mrs. Richardson related that Green had trouble making friends and was often lonely. She told of the drowning death of Green's stepbrother; she said Green "cried at the funeral, but he wouldn't let you see him cry."

She also testified that Green sent a $75 check home each month while he was in the military. She said that when he was young, Green done farm work and had contributed half of his earnings for household expenses.

Green's mother testified that her son was not happy living with his father in Bethel, and that "when he got a job, he and Bobby were going to move out."

Glenda Faye Green, Green's 22-year-old sister, testified, "Harvey was the oldest and always tried to take care of us. He was a great brother."

Green's brother Bobby, 19, lived with Green in December 1983. He testified that he "couldn't recall" where Green was at 6 p.m. Dec. 19. He said that when he returned from his girlfriend's house at 11 p.m. that night, Green was at home watching television and he did not notice anything unusual about Green's behavior.

He also testified that a cap pistol, which "was black and looked like the gun 'Magnum P.I.' uses," was left there by their cousin and that he had not seen the gun since before Thanksgiving.

This morning, District Attorney Tom Haigwood recounted much of the testimony presented in the sentencing trial, and told the jury, "I guess it's easy to say he (Green) had a rough childhood."

But Haigwood asked, "Does that mean he was justified to go out and kill two innocent human beings?"

"What manner of man is this who would rape, murder and steal from his daddy?"

Discussing Green's statement made to investigators, Haigwood said "This is a man who says in one breath 'I had to rob this place cause I had written checks on my daddy'" but in the next breath says he "purchased a beer, a pack of cigarettes and gambled away the rest of the $20" he took from Edmondson.

"Is this what the life of Edmondson and Sheila Bland was worth?" Haigwood asked.

Feminists Threating Walkout

WASHINGTON (AP) — Major female supporters of Walter F. Mondale, fearing that Gary Hart might be chosen as the Democratic vice presidential nominee, will meet with Mondale in a "full-court press" to get a woman on the ticket, sources said today.

The supporters, including several congresswomen and National Organization for Women President Judy Goldsmith, plan to warn Mondale that failure to pick a woman could result in women walking out of the Democratic National Convention in San Francisco.

"They want to tell him the reality of what could happen at the convention — a walkout or a floor fight," said a source involved in the talks who refused to be quoted by name.

The women, who have endorsed Mondale publicly, say they see increasing evidence that Mondale might choose Hart as his running mate, a decision they would find unappealing.

"The decision has been made to go for broke" on pushing Mondale to select a woman, said one source.

"This is the full-court press against Hart," said another source who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

"The issue is that these are women who have endorsed Mondale and are committed to him and think it is critical that a woman be on the ticket," said a third source.

In his search for a running mate, Mondale has interviewed Mayor Dianne Feinstein of San Francisco for the No. 2 spot and has scheduled a meeting next week with Rep. Geraldine Ferraro of New York.

The meeting between Mondale and his women supporters was to take place either today or Thursday, the sources said.

Legion Hopes Dimmed, 15-10

PINETOPS — Donnie Bobbitt banged out three hits, one of them a homer, as Rocky Mount wrecked Pitt County's American Legion baseball title hopes last night, 15-10.

The game, played at SouthWest Edgecombe High School's field, left Pitt with four losses and just two games left to play. Wayne County, also with just two left, has lost but two contests, and could sew it up tonight with a win over Pitt in Greenville.

The only hopes Pitt now has is to beat Wayne tonight in their 8 p.m. meeting at Harrington Field, then to beat Snow Hill on Thursday while Edenton — in last place — upsets

Wayne the same night. That would produce a tie for the title, but Pitt would take top seeding — having beaten Wayne in all three of their meetings.

The odds, however, would definitely be against Post 39's chances. Ironically, Wayne's only two losses have come at the hands of Pitt County.

Pitt took a brief lead in the first inning, scoring three times. Jackie Conway reached on an error and Toby Fischer followed with a single. An error on the play moved him to second and scored Conway. Eric Woodworth singled in Fischer and Mike Kinley walked. Traye Fuqua followed with a single, scoring Woodworth.

But Rocky Mount came back with five runs, taking the lead for good, in the bottom of the first. Todd Goins opened with a walk and Danny Isbell doubled. An error on the relay let Goins score and moved Isbell to third, and he scored on John Adams' ground out.

With two away, Hank Jones singled and Bobbitt got a hit. Todd Bissette singled to load the bases and Mike Morris doubled in all three runners for a 5-3 edge.

Rocky Mount added two more in the second. With two away, Jones singled and Bobbitt followed with a home run upping the lead to 7-3.

Another run scored in the third for Post 58, before Pitt finally got going again in the fourth, scoring once. Doug Coley reached on a bunt single and Woodworth walked. Billy Michel reached on a fielder's choice and Mike Kinley sacrificed Coley over to cut it to 8-4.

But in the bottom of the fourth, Rocky Mount added three more to sew it up. Carl Blackmond led off with a double and was sacrificed up. He scored on Bobbitt's sacrifice fly. Bissette reached on an error on his bunt attempt and moved all the way to third on the play. He scored on a double by Morris, who then scored when Eddie Naylor doubled.

Rocky Mount added two more in the fifth and two in the eighth. Pitt, attempting to struggle back, got two in the fifth, one in the seventh and three in the tenth.

Court Rules Against NCAA In Suit Over TV Control

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, in a decision that could change the television viewing habits of millions of Americans, today broke the National Collegiate Athletic Association's exclusive grip on televised college football games.

By a 7-2 vote, the court freed individual colleges to make their own television deals.

It ruled that the NCAA's contracts with ABC, CBS and Turner Broadcasting, worth hundreds of millions of dollars, violate federal antitrust law.

The ruling appears to invalidate this year's NCAA contracts with the three networks.

But further lower court hearings are required to work out the details of the NCAA's curtailed power.

Justice John Paul Stevens, in his opinion for the court, said:

"The anti-competitive consequences of (the NCAA) arrangement are apparent. Individual competitors lose their freedom to compete. Price (for TV rights) is higher and output (measured by games televised) lower than they would otherwise be, and both are unresponsive to consumer preference."

Two of the nation's perennial football powers, the universities of Oklahoma and Georgia, successfully challenged the NCAA's power.

They claimed they could make more money if they could negotiate their own TV contracts. They said the result would be more televised games, particularly in regional coverage and on cable networks, including Turner Broadcasting.

Lawyers for the two schools pointed to the unregulated system of televising college basketball games that has meant a wider selection for viewers on weekday nights as well as weekends.

The Reagan administration joined in urging the Supreme Court to rule that the NCAA's exclusive arrangements violate antitrust restrictions.

The latest NCAA television contracts were worth $281 million and covered a four-year period extending through the 1985 season. The NCAA instituted the present system of rights in 1951.

In 1983, Justice Byron R. White temporarily suspended lower court rulings that the NCAA contracts violated antitrust law and thus salvaged the NCAA's $74.3 million in contracts last season.

That suspension expired with today's ruling.

White, a former All-America football player at the University of Colorado and a National Football League star, dissented from today's ruling.

White said the exclusive television rights package "reflects the NCAA's fundamental policy of preserving amateurism and integrating athletics and education." He was joined by Justice William H. Rehnquist.

But Stevens said the NCAA's "critical role in the maintenance of a revered tradition of amateurism in college sports" is not enhanced by the exclusive TV contracts.

"Rules that restrict output are hardly consistent with this role," he said. "By curtailing output and blunting the ability of member institutions to respond to consumer preference, the NCAA has restricted rather than enhanced the place of intercollegiate athletics in the nation's life."

Today's ruling does not limit the NCAA's power to regulate intercollegiate athletics in matters other than access to television.

NFL Won't Raid CFL

TORONTO (AP) — The Canadian Football League has been assured its players will not be approached to sign future contracts with National Football League clubs, and the United States Football League is ready to take advantage of the situation.

At a meeting Friday in New York, CFL commissioner Doug Mitchell and his NFL counterpart, Pete Rozelle, agreed to continue to honor an unwritten agreement prohibiting interleague tampering.

"It was nothing formal, just an understanding," Mitchell said Tuesday.

The agreement is a relief to CFL officials who have to contend with the United States Football League's practice of permitting its clubs to sign future contracts with CFL players.

However, Richard Bennett, a Washington-based agent for several players in all three leagues, says the agreement may not be legal.

"It would appear to violate anti-trust legislation," Bennett said. "The NFL signs USFL players to future contracts."

"The USFL signs NFL and CFL players to future contracts," he added. "So how can this distinction be made? It's bizarre."

Pete Hadhazy, operations director of the USFL, said the clubs in his league are willing to take advantage of the agreement.

Angels Escape From 1-Run Loss

By BEN WALKER
AP Sports Writer

In a pinch, the California Angels got a perfect pitch from Bruce Kison and a perfect throw from catcher Bob Boone.

The Angels, on the brink of another agonizing one-run loss, escaped major trouble in the 11th inning Tuesday night and then reversed their fortunes when Rod Carew singled home Gary Pettis in the top of the 14th for a 3-2 victory over the Texas Rangers.

After three straight losses, and five one-run defeats in their last nine games, the visiting Angels seemed headed in that direction again when the Rangers loaded the bases with one out in the bottom of the 11th.

Kison ran the count to 3-2 on pinch hitter Marv Foley and then struck him out.

"We were just looking for a strike," Boone said. "He threw a pretty good sinker. You just can't beat Bruce at all in that situation."

Boone then ended the threat by picking off pinch runner Alan Bannister from third base.

With one out in the 14th, Pettis walked on four pitches from Odell Jones, 1-3, and then stole his 30th base of the season. Carew sliced Jones' next pitch into right for the game-winning hit, which evened Kison's record at 1-1.

"We've been in a few ballgames like this and got beat in the late innings," said a smiling Pettis.

In other AL games, Detroit got by New York 9-7 in 10 innings, Milwaukee clipped Toronto 6-3, Boston beat Baltimore 5-2, Minnesota ripped Cleveland 8-3, Seattle halted Chicago 5-0, and Oakland swept a double-header from Kansas City, 8-4 and 6-1.

California's victory kept the Angels atop the tight AL West, one game ahead of the Twins. Only five games separate the top of the division from the bottom, where Texas and Kansas City currently reside.

"We've been getting the opportunities and having the right men hitting, and nothing's been happening," said California Manager John McNamara. "We've lost one-run ballgames because our big people haven't been hitting."

The Angels tied the game with two outs in the ninth. An error by shortstop Curtis Wilkerson allowed Jerry Narron to reach second, and he scored on Pettis' single off Charlie Hough, who was trying to win his sixth straight start.

Hough went 11 innings, allowing 11 hits and tying a career-high with nine strikeouts.

Tigers 9, Yankees 7

Lance Parrish drilled a two-out, two-run homer in the top of 10th inning at Yankee Stadium as Detroit opened up a 10-game lead over second-place Toronto in the AL East.

The Tigers, who took a 4-0 lead in the second inning, trailed 7-4 going into the eighth. But an error by third baseman Roy Smalley opened the gates to three unearned runs — two scoring on Alan Trammell's single and the other on Darrell Evans' pinch-single.

In the 10th, Trammell singled with one out off Clay Christiansen, 2-3. Trammell was then thrown out trying to steal, but Evans walked and Parrish followed with his 14th home run of the season.

Brewers 6, Blue Jays 3

Robin Yount homered and drove in three runs as Milwaukee, which swept a double-header from Toronto on Monday, sent the Blue Jays to their fourth straight loss.

Yount's sixth homer, a two-run shot, gave the host Brewers a 6-2 lead in the fifth inning.

Milwaukee scored four runs, helped by a pair of Toronto errors, in the bottom of the first after George Bell singled home two runs for the Blue Jays in the top of the first.

Don Sutton, 5-7, got the victory and Rollie Fingers recorded the final three outs for his 14th save. Luis Leal, 8-2, took the loss.

Red Sox 5, Orioles 2

Rookie Al Nipper and the Red Sox were in command in Baltimore.

Nipper, 1-2, held the Orioles hitless until Rich Dauer doubled with one out in the sixth. Nipper went 6 1-3 innings, allowing two runs on four hits, and Bob Stanley got his 13th save.

Mike Boddicker, 9-6, was not sharp for Baltimore. He did not retire any of the three men he faced in the third inning, and by the time he left all nine Boston batters had gotten a hit.

Bill Buckner got the 1,999th hit of his career, an RBI single in the fourth.

Mariners 5, White Sox 0

Mark Langston avenged a recent loss to Chicago and LaMarr Hoyt by pitching a five-hitter and striking out nine.

Langston, 5-6, had lost a 5-4 decision to Hoyt on June 20 in Seattle.

The visiting Mariners jumped ahead in the first inning when Ken Phelps hit his 10th home run and Al Chambers followed with his first. The two homers off Hoyt, 7-7, landed just a few feet apart in the right-center field stands.

Dave Henderson smacked a solo home run in the ninth to cap the scoring.

Twins 8, Indians 3

Kirby Puckett continued to be a successful leadoff man for Minnesota despite not drawing many walks.

Shop-Eze Foodland rallied for four runs in the final two innings and held off a rally by First State Bank for a 10-7 victory in the Prep League tournament last night.
The loss eliminated First State Bank from the double elimination tournament, while Shop-Eze goes on to meet Garriss-Evans in the losers' bracket finals on Thursday at 5:30 p.m.
Shop-Eze jumped out to a 5-0 lead in the first inning, but the Bankers rallied for one in the second and three more in the third. Shop-Eze scored twice in the fourth to up the lead to 7-4.
Then, in the fifth, Shop-Eze added two more to wrap it up. Todd Taylor walked with one away and was sacrificed to second. Paul Powers reached on an error, scoring Taylor. Darren Bullock then singled in Powers for a 9-4 lead.
Shop-Eze added two in the sixth, while First State got one in the sixth and two in the seventh.
Bullock and Malcolm Wilson each had two hits for Shop-Eze, while one had more than one for the Bankers.

Hendrix & Dail.....12

Garris-Evans.....2

Wesley Jackson drove in seven runs as regular season champ Hendrix & Dail rolled to a 12-2 win over Garris-Evans in the winners' bracket of the Prep League's post-season tournament.

Hendrix & Dail now moves into the finals of the tournament, to be played on Saturday at 11 a.m. They will face the winner of Thursday's losers' bracket game between Shop-Eze Foodland and Garris-Evans. Should a second game be needed to decide the title, it would be played Monday at 5:30 p.m.
Hendrix & Dail got all it needed in the first inning, scoring three times. Andy Everett singled and Julius Smith got a hit. Darrell Moore walked, leading the bases. Jackson followed with a triple driving in all three runners.
H&D went on to add one in the second, one in the third, four in the fifth and three in the sixth. Garris-Evans got one each in the fourth and sixth innings.
Smith added two hits along with Jackson for H&D, while no one had more than one hit for Garris-Evans, which got only two off Moore's pitching.

Puckett went 4-for-5, including a double, scored three runs and drove in another to pace the Twins in Cleveland.

Puckett has walked just three times in 173 at-bats since being recalled from the minors on May 7. But the 23-year-old center fielder is hitting .335.

Kent Hrbek added three hits as the Twins got 14 hits off five Cleveland pitchers.

Frank Viola, 7-7, went 7 2-3 innings for the victory. He allowed solo home runs to Andre Thornton, No. 14, and Carmen Castillo, his sixth, in the eighth inning. Ron Davis picked up his 14th save.

Smith Criticizes Proposed Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Carolina basketball coach Dean Smith criticized a proposed law to penalize colleges for taking away athletic scholarships before graduation, saying the NCAA should police college sports.

"The universities are supposed to lead," Smith told the Senate Labor and Human Resources subcommittee Tuesday.

Sports commentator Howard Cosell agreed, saying, "I question whether the federal government should get into this."

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said he was thinking of sponsoring a bill that would penalize colleges if those schools took away an athlete's scholarship before the player was graduated.

But Cosell said that rather than having the federal government regulate college athletics, "it's time for sports to be treated like all other businesses."

NCAA president John L. Toner told the panel that his organization should handle the situation.

"I firmly believe that this is not an issue with which the Congress should become involved," Toner said. "Any six NCAA member institutions may place a legislative proposal before the NCAA" convention if they are unhappy about rules governing eligibility or scholarships.

Toner also said it was unfair to use sports "as a whipping post for whatever deficiencies may be perceived in the nation's system of secondary and higher education."

Earlier, Kevin Ross, a Chicago-area athlete, told the panel he was recruited to play basketball for Creighton University even though he was illiterate. Cosell later recounted other incidents in which academically unqualified athletes were lured to colleges.

During his playing career, Ross said, he took courses such as theory of basketball and theory of tennis.

When he was injured during his junior year, "the college was no longer interested in me," Ross said and he became so depressed he considered suicide.

But when he returned to Chicago, he enrolled in a program run by Marva Collins, who has become well known for her teaching programs.

Ross said he was proud that he can now read and said he plans to seek a college degree.

"The first step in cleaning up the mess should be outlawing booster clubs," Cosell said, because they include alumni who "represent a juvenile imbecility that's frightening."

Dr. Harry Edwards, a University of California sociologist, said money is the root of the problem.

He said 16 college football bowl games made $35 million last year and that each of the 52 teams in last year's NCAA college basketball tournament got at least $120,000.

"Indications are that the quest more than ever is not so much to provide education opportunities or to build character as to win," Edwards said.

A's 8-6, Royals 4-1

Oakland, which absorbed a team-record 16-0 loss in Kansas City on Monday, reversed its fortunes quickly.

Curt Young, recalled from the minors four days earlier, allowed just two hits over 6 2-3 innings as the A's won the nightcap. He retired the first 12 Royals before Hal McRae singled off the left-hander's leg to lead off the fifth.

Gross Turns In Top Performance

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

A lack of starting pitchers was hardly a concern of the Philadelphia Phillies when they began defense of their National League crown with the presence of four-time Cy Young Award winner Steve Carlton and last year's recipient John Denny.

But with Carlton having a so-so season and Denny on the shelf, it was time for somebody with a strong arm to pick up the slack. Out of the bullpen came Kevin Gross, whose biggest problem was strength — too much of it to be accurate. He was constantly overthrowing.

"I realized I had to take time with my delivery and be smooth and the ball would pop," Gross said Tuesday night after hurling seven strong innings in a 3-0 victory over New York that moved the Phillies into a virtual tie with the upstart Mets for the lead in the NL East. "Tonight I did all that. I really felt good out there."

"I'm not trying to pitch as good as he does," Gross said of Denny, who made his last start May 24 before being placed on the disabled list with an inflamed nerve in his right elbow. Denny was 4-3 with a 1.68 earned run average. Gross is now 4-2 with a 2.61 ERA and a burning desire to remain in the starting rotation.

"I pitch where they think they need me, but I want to be a starter," he said.

Philadelphia Manager Paul Owens can understand that, but would like to have Denny back and Gross in either role.

"I miss him (Gross) in the bullpen," said Owens, whose team moved to within three percentage points of the Mets. "Unfortunately I can't have him both places."

In other games, Jason Thompson hit four home runs for Pittsburgh in a double-header split with Chicago which saw Pittsburgh win the opener 9-0 and lose the nightcap 9-8. San Diego blanked Los Angeles 5-0, Houston whipped Atlanta 10-3, St. Louis tripped Montreal 6-3 and Cincinnati beat San Francisco 4-2.

Gross scattered six hits, struck out five and walked two. Al Holland worked the final two innings, striking out three for his 17th save.

"I could have gone longer," said Gross. "There is no doubt in my mind I was just as strong and had lost nothing off my fastball," he said.

Mike Schmidt's 16th home run and Juan Samuel's fifth provided more than enough offense against Walt Terrell, 5-7.

Pirates 9-8, Cubs 0-9

Thompson hit four of eight home runs on a windswept afternoon at Wrigley Field which also featured a first-game shutout by his teammate Rick Rhoden. Chicago hung on to win the second game despite two homers by Thompson and two by Pittsburgh's Doug Frobel.

Rejection A Surprise

LISBON (AP) — The rejection by the Angolans of their invitation to the 1984 Summer Olympic Games in Los Angeles came as a surprise, much like their original acceptance.

The announcement of the withdrawal, released Tuesday by ANGOP, the Angola news agency, consisted of a two-paragraph dispatch quoting an unidentified state official in Luanda, the Angolan capital.

It did not give a reason for Angola's pullout nor did it say that the Angolans were joining the Soviet-led boycott.

The Angolans, who have never won an Olympic medal, were not expected to accept an Olympic invitation at all after the Soviet Union announced its withdrawal May 8 and thirteen nations joined the boycott. The Soviets and Angolans maintain close political ties.

Angola did meet the deadline for acceptance, but its withdrawal Tuesday made it the 18th nation to decline participation in the Games.

ANGOP did not indicate that the Angolan decision was politically influenced, but the news agency's reports normally reflect the government's position on both internal and foreign affairs.

The Soviets backed Angolan President Jose Eduardo dos Santos in a 1975 civil war, and have since sent Angola approximately $2 billion in economic and military aid. Angola does not have diplomatic relations with the United States.

Radio Moscow, reporting the withdrawal in English, did not offer reasons for the decision but said that "earlier, similar decisions were taken by the Olympic committees of many socialist and other countries because the United States authorities are turning the Games into an arena of political confrontation."

This year's Olympics still includes more countries than ever before, as 141 nations are currently planning to take part.

"The wind helped and I made good contact," Thompson said of an 18-mph breeze. "With the wind blowing out I have to be level-headed and not try to kill the ball."

Rhoden's four-hit, seven-strikeout effort on the heels of Monday's four-hit, 3-0 shutout by Jose DeLeon marked the first time the Cubs had been blanked in consecutive games at Wrigley Field since Bob Gibson and Tracy Stallard of St. Louis did it in 1965.

Thompson, who has eight homers this season, led off a five-run third inning with a blast off Dennis Eckersley, 1-5, and hit his sixth of the season in the sixth inning of the opener. Johnny Ray had three hits, including a run-scoring double in the second inning and a two-run triple in the third.

Rhoden, 6-5, had three of Pittsburgh's 15 hits as he notched his first shutout and first complete game of the season.

The run-starved Cubs struck in the first inning of the nightcap with a six-run outburst against Larry McWilliams, 4-6. Gary Woods' two-run homer, his second, highlighted the assault, which included one of Jody Davis' four hits. Keith Moreland's sixth homer made it 6-1 in the third inning.

Rich Bordi, 3-1, was the winner. Lee Smith struggled for his 15th save after halting a Pirate rally in the seventh inning, giving up two runs on four hits in 2-3 innings.

Padres 5, Dodgers 0

Ed Whitson and Goose Gossage combined on a six-hitter and were backed by a 14-hit attack as San Diego won for the fourth straight time to increase its lead in the West to five games over Atlanta. The lead is the largest in San Diego's 16-year history. No previous Padre team had led the division after April 27.

Whitson, 8-4, walked two and struck out three in earning his sixth win in his last seven decisions.

The Padres, who banged out 19 hits in a 9-4 victory over Los Angeles on Monday night, made it 33 for the two games. Garry Templeton, whose second-inning single was the game-winner, had four hits. Steve Garvey and Carmelo Martinez had three apiece.

Astros 10, Braves 5

A two-run homer by Jerry Mumphrey and Jose Cruz' two-run triple keyed a 12-hit Houston attack and Joe Niekro, 7-7, won his fifth straight decision. Mumphrey's fourth homer of the year came on the first pitch after Cruz had singled to start the Houston sixth against Atlanta's Rick Camp, 3-1, who had taken a two-hit shutout into the inning.

Cruz, who had three hits, belted his triple to right-center in the seventh off reliever Pete Falcone. Niekro had singled and Denny Walling, who later added a three-run homer, his first, had walked off Camp.

The Braves took a 1-0 lead in the third when Camp, facing a drawn-in infield expecting a bunt, lined a single to score Brad Komminsk.

Cardinals 6, Expos 3

George Hendrick continued his clutch hitting with his 10th game-winning RBI, a two-run single that keyed a four-run St. Louis first inning.

Right-hander John Stuper, 3-5, gave up seven hits and just one earned run over 5 2/3 innings. Bruce Sutter picked up his league-leading 18th save.

David Palmer, 2-3, was the loser.

Only one of the Montreal runs was earned. Pete Rose and Andre Dawson had three hits apiece for the Expos.

Reds 4, Giants 2

Mario Soto, 8-1, tossed a seven-hitter for his seven straight victory with five no-decisions along the way.

He had a four-hit shutout until the ninth inning when Bob Brenly hit a two-run homer, his eighth, for San Francisco following a single by Dusty Baker.

Dave Parker had a run-scoring single in the sixth inning and the Reds added three unearned runs in the eighth after Giants left-hander Atlee Hammaker held them scoreless through five innings. It was the first appearance for Hammaker since Sept. 11, 1983 after undergoing surgery to repair a slight tear in his rotator cuff.

Frank Williams, 5-1, the first of three Giant relievers, absorbed the loss.

Soviets Cite Indian Case As 'Unjust'

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union, annoyed by the barrage of Western protests about its treatment of dissident Andrei Sakharov, is waging a similar campaign over an American Indian imprisoned for murder in the United States.

Hailing American Indian Movement leader Leonard Peltier, 39, as a "freedom-loving man" jailed unjustly, the official Soviet press has run stories almost daily for weeks calling his case an example of American human rights abuse.

Peltier is serving two life sentences for murdering two FBI agents during a 1975 shootout on the Oglala Sioux Indian reservation at Pine Ridge, S.D.

Soviet officials have answered all inquiries about Sakharov with the argument that confinement of the Nobel Peace Prize winner in the closed city of Gorky is an internal matter.

Sakharov has never been convicted of a crime.

But he and Peltier have both staged hunger strikes to protest their treatment by the authorities of their respective countries.

The Soviets accused U.S. authorities of attempting the "deliberate physical destruction" of Peltier when he began a hunger strike in the Federal Correctional Center in Marion, Ill. last April 10.

The almost daily bulletins on Peltier's hunger strike continued for weeks after his fast ended May 22.

The Soviet campaign culminated this week in a letter to President Reagan from four Soviet Nobel laureates who used language and arguments paralleling protests on Sakharov's behalf. They accused U.S. authorities of jailing Peltier on "trumped-up charges" intended to "decapitate the American Indian movement."

The press campaign appears to be an effort to rebuke Western leaders for trying to intercede on Sakharov's behalf and to make a countermove by portraying those protests as hypocritical.

For domestic audiences, the campaign seems aimed at deflecting attention from Sakharov and portraying the West as a place where dissenters are imprisoned unjustly — a charge often leveled against the Soviet Union.

City Honors Liberator

CHERBOURG, France (AP) — Three weeks ago and 50 miles away on the Normandy D-Day beaches, presidents, kings and queens gathered to honor the soldiers who helped liberate France from Nazi occupation 40 years ago.

On Tuesday, in Cherbourg's Place de la Republique, were the city's mayor, a group of veterans and Bill Finley's three sisters.

Sgt. William F. Finley was, in the best sense, an ordinary hero, a Decatur, Ill., boy who joined up at age 17, dashed under fire across Cherbourg's main square and liberated the City Hall on June 26, 1944.

Less than 10 months later, at age 20, he died of wounds in Germany.

Cherbourg's present mayor, Jean-Pierre Godefroy, is of a generation to whom the war is a dim childhood memory. Yet he said with pride and determination at Tuesday's ceremony: "Our city will always remember those who gave their lives for our freedom."

As Cherbourg thought about what it should do to mark the 40th anniversary of France's liberation from the Nazis, they realized that Finley could be the symbol of the freedom, that through him, the city could thank all those who fought valiantly and died almost unknown to history.

Finley might have remained one of those unknown hero's except for the good memory of Paul Ingouf, a city historian and journalist, who had talked with the American and noted his name, almost correctly, during the days of liberation.

The Decatur Herald and Review carried a story on Cherbourg's search for Finley.

"Until we saw that" article, said Finley's sister, Majorie Lockard, "we had known nothing of what Billy did here."

Mrs. Lockard, from Lexington, Ky., came to the ceremony in front of Cherbourg City Hall. She joined Finley's two other sisters, Jackie Neff and Betty Sims from Decatur, in the brilliant, hot sunshine. Forty years ago, it was drizzling as Finley dashed across the square under German machine gun fire.

On Tuesday, the French Navy Band played rousing airs, and there was a color guard from Finley's regiment, the 39th Infantry. Behind French and U.S. flags there was a plaque in his honor.

The sergeant's sisters were ushered past the color guard and up the four steps to the porch of the modest building and gently, the mayor helped them pull back the flags. There was his name, Sgt. William F. Finley, and they cried silently.

Trudeau To Receive Peace Prize

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pierre Elliott Trudeau, who steps down Saturday as Canada's prime minister, is the 1984 winner of the Albert Einstein peace prize.

Trudeau wound up his career with a worldwide campaign to ease East-West tensions and revive U.S.-Soviet arms control negotiations. Announcing his selection, Norman Cousins cited his "unprecedented efforts to break the political impasse on arms control."

Cousins is head of the Einstein foundation's selection board. The award carries a $50,000 prize and will be presented to Trudeau here in November.

The Canadian visited 17 countries and spoke to more than 50 government leaders during his four-month "peace mission." He met with President Reagan, Soviet leader Konstantin Chernenko and British, French and Chinese heads of government, but failed to break the impasse.

Trudeau was "most honored and pleased" with his selection, the Canadian embassy said in a statement. The prime minister emphasized that all Canadians who supported his peace initiatives were being honored, the statement said.

D'Aubisson Visit Set In Mystery

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Salvadoran rightist leader Roberto d'Aubisson due to arrive here today, just whom he planned to meet with was something of a mystery.

D'Aubisson was coming at the invitation of his chief American political backer, Sen. Jesse Helms, who has been trying to arrange a reception in his honor with Senate Foreign Relations Committee members.

But as of late Tuesday, Senate sources said no invitations had been sent out. There also was some doubt as to how many members would attend such a gathering, given recent reports linking d'Aubisson to an alleged assassination plot against U.S. Ambassador Thomas Pickering.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said the committee as a whole planned no official reception. Although there was no polling of the membership, a "clear majority" would oppose any such gathering, they said.

An aide to Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., said Monday no invitations for a d'Aubisson reception have been sent but the senator intends to boycott if she receives one.

Kassebaum, a committee member, has called the threats against Pickering "outrageous."

There were no known plans for d'Aubisson to meet with administration officials. D'Aubisson's travel plans were not disclosed and the Salvadoran Embassy here said it knew nothing about his schedule. Attempts to obtain information from Helms' office Tuesday were unsuccessful.

State Department officials said privately that they had no knowledge of d'Aubisson's Washington schedule and added that he had not requested a meeting with anyone from State.

Rare Books Sell For $1.4 Million

NEW YORK (AP) — A collection of rare Hebrew books and manuscripts, some of which survived Nazi Germany, brought $1.45 million at auction after a legal maneuver failed to prevent the sale until it could be proven the books were not obtained illegally.

The controversy was not evident at Sotheby's auction house Tuesday night as buyers bid vigorously by raising hands, eyebrows or numbered paddles.

"There was obviously no sign of animosity in the crowd," said auctioneer David Redden.

Both the state attorney general's office and the city Department of Consumer Affairs tried to delay the auction when Jewish groups argued that more than 30 of the volumes in the 60-item sale came from a Rabbinical seminary in Berlin closed by the Nazis in 1942 and could not have passed voluntarily into private ownership.

But state Supreme Court Justice Jawn Sandifer refused to block the sale saying he was "not convinced" the origin of the documents was in question.

George Snyder, Judaica expert at Sotheby's, said the prices were "extraordinary." Most items were sold well above the estimated prices printed in the sale catalog.

The highest price, $176,000, was paid by a New York dealer for an illustrated manuscript of scriptural explanation created in Vienna by the scribe and artist Aron Wolf of Gewitsch in 1730.

Sotheby's had refused to disclose the names of the consignors, citing a policy of confidentiality.

Toxic Shock Still Around But Falling

ATLANTA (AP) — It has been four years since the national Centers for Disease Control warned of toxic shock syndrome, a rare disease that was killing women who used tampons.

Today, more than 2,500 reported cases and 110 deaths later, the number of cases is falling and research is progressing toward a vaccine. But researchers say the disease is occurring in people other than tampon-using women, and it "has not gone away."

The latest available figures from investigators at the CDC, the government's Atlanta-based health agency, show only 29 confirmed cases of TSS in the first 16 weeks of this year. In all of 1983, 306 cases were reported.

Those 306 cases represented a continuing drop from 400 in 1982, 583 in 1981 and 886 in 1980.

Although only nine deaths were reported between Jan. 1, 1983 and April 16, 1984, researchers at the CDC cautioned that the reporting of deaths lags behind the reporting of cases — in some cases, "years slower" — and that the disease is still killing victims.

"But it's difficult to know whether much of the reporting itself has fallen off, now that it's no longer a 'newsworthy' topic," said Dr. Art Reingold, a researcher with the CDC's special pathogens division.

According to Dr. Laura Markowitz, another CDC toxic shock researcher, the low case total so far this year could be deceiving — "a delay in reporting" as state health departments take their time in sending case reports to Atlanta.

TSS, first identified by researchers in 1978, is characterized by high fever, nausea and a rapid drop in blood pressure.

House OKs Bias Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Buoyed by an overwhelming House vote, civil rights forces are predicting victory in the Senate for their bill to overturn the Supreme Court decision limiting federal penalties for sex bias and other discrimination.

The bill's supporters say the measure, opposed by conservatives and the Reagan administration, reaffirms longstanding congressional intent that federal money should be cut off to all parts of an institution that discriminates on the basis of sex, race, age or physical handicap.

"The radical right will be isolated," predicts Ralph Neas, executive director of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, a coalition of 165 organizations.

He made the comment Tuesday night after the House voted 375-32 for legislation that would overturn the Supreme Court's controversial Grove City College ruling last February.

In a decision hailed by the administration, the court said that if a segment of an institution was discriminating, federal assistance should be denied only to that part, not the entire institution.

Reps. Paul Simon, D-Ill., and Don Edwards, D-Calif., the bill's floor managers, said that although the measure faces problems in the Senate, the size of the House vote should boost its chances.

Bypass Method Helping Infants

WASHINGTON (AP) — Newborns who otherwise would die of respiratory problems can be saved with a new lung bypass technique that supplies oxygen to the body while allowing the organs to rest and heal, doctors say.

The first successful use of the method in the Washington area was announced Tuesday by doctors at Children's Hospital National Medical Center. The said hundreds of babies nationwide should benefit as the "artificial placenta" technique enters wider use.

Dr. Billie L. Short, the neonatologist who heads the project at the center, said Extra Corporeal Membrane Oxygenation, or ECMO, duplicates the exchange between oxygen and carbon dioxide performed by the placenta before birth.

An infant's blood is drawn through a tube or catheter into the ECMO machine, which adds oxygen and takes out carbon dioxide. It is then returned to the body through another tube.

Doctors said about 1,000 infants nationwide each year have severe conditions that make them candidates for the new therapy. They said the technique should increase survival chances for 20 percent to 80 percent.

Brevard Center Offers Classics With A Bang

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer

Culture-seekers who come to Brevard Music Center for a quiet, cool weekend of classical music may get more than they bargained for — live gunpowder explosions to accompany Wellington's Victory by Beethoven.

"We've done 1812 Overture with real cannons, but this year we're trying to simulate cannons with black powder loads in 55-gallon drums," center spokesman Don Nickson said of the July 1 performance. "The audience will be surrounded by explosions, choruses and brass ensembles. It's a salute to our 48th year and the Fourth of July."

The center began in 1935 as a music camp for young musicians and has evolved into a summer music festival on the order of Michigan's Interlochen festival. This year's stars include pianist Leonard Pennario, violinist Ruggiero Ricci and flutist Eugenia Zukerman.

"Education is still the bottom line," said Nickson, adding that many of the center's 340 students will be in the center's premier orchestra — one of four full orchestras — when it performs "Wellington's Victory."

The season, featuring 50 different concert events, runs from June 29 through Aug. 12, and the big-name stars appear on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays. The festival takes place in the Blue Ridge Mountains around Brevard, about half an hour's drive south of Asheville.

Brevard's Opera Workshop will perform six works: Don Giovanni on June 30, The Beggar's Opera on July 6, Faust on July 13, Annie Get Your Gun on July 27, Madame Butterfly on Aug. 3 and Die Fledermaus on Aug. 11. Students, guest artists and "artist-faculty" participate in each production.

Nickson said the center has just finished building a $250,000, 6,000-square-foot addition to the backstage of its 1,647-seat auditorium.

"The old way was to build sets completely away from the auditorium, truck them in, set them up and truck them out again," he said. "This way we can just roll the sets back and forth. It's really going to profit the production of Don Giovanni with all its big statues."

About 90 "artist-faculty" from orchestras and colleges around the nation will be at the center this summer, teaching and playing in the orchestra or other ensembles.

Although they will play the first parts and the students play the second parts in the center's primary symphony, the roles are reversed in its second ensemble, the Transylvania Symphony.

"So you've got the concertmaster of the Wichita Symphony turning pages for a student in college," said Nickson.

Meanwhile, Brevard Music Center is looking forward to its 50th anniversary. Nickson said the celebration includes an award-winning television documentary called "Dreams Can Come True" that features interviews with Brevard alumni in orchestra and opera halls around the country.

'Cagney & Lacey' Surges To Top Of Weekly Ratings

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The female sleuths "Cagney & Lacey" found the clue for a first-place victory for themselves in the Nielsen ratings, helping CBS to carry the ratings with seven shows in the Top 10.

It was a sweet victory for "Cagney & Lacey," which CBS canceled last year because of poor ratings then returned to the air this past March because of the public clamor.

This was the show's first time in first place since its return, although it was first last year in reruns after its cancellation. "Cagney & Lacey" stars Sharon Gless and Tyne Daly as New York City detectives.

The victory Tuesday was the third in as many weeks for CBS, although that first week was a tie for first with NBC. CBS had slumped in the ratings after winning the past regular season, which ended in April, but the network seems to have regained its stride.

CBS had seven shows in the Top 10, which increased to 11 because of a tie for tenth place. NBC, in second place, had four entries. Third-place ABC had none.

NBC and CBS tied for second place in the Top 10. NBC's entry was the opening chapter of the two-part miniseries "Rage of Angels" and CBS' was "One Day at a Time."

Other shows in the Top 10: CBS' "Simon & Simon," fourth; CBS' "Alice," fifth; CBS' "Trapper John, M.D.," sixth; NBC's "Hill Street Blues," seventh; NBC's "The A-Team," eighth; NBC's "Riptide," ninth; and CBS' "60 Minutes" and "The Jeffersons," tied for 10th.

CBS won the week ended June 24 with a network average of 12.5 in the A.C. Nielsen Co. survey. NBC was second with 11.9 and ABC was third with 11.4. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute 12.5 percent of the TV homes were tuned to CBS.

The NBC special "He Makes Me Feel Like Dancin'" was the lowest-rated show of the week. The five shows at the bottom in descending order were: NBC's "The Master," the NBC special "Mr. Success," ABC's "Olympic Trials," CBS' "Mama Malone" and NBC's "He Makes Me Feel Like Dancin'."

CBS maintained its firm grasp on first place among the evening news shows. NBC was second and ABC was third. The ratings: CBS 10.2, NBC 9.3, ABC 8.3.

Here are the week's 20 top programs:

1. "Cagney & Lacey," CBS, a rating of 19.2 or 16.0 million households.
2. Miniseries-"Rage of Angels," Part I, NBC, 17.2 or 14.4 million.
2. Tie-"One Day at a Time," CBS, 17.2 or 14.4 million.
4. "Simon & Simon," CBS, 16.9 or 14.1 million.
5. "Alice," CBS, 16.5 or 13.8 million.
6. "Trapper John, M.D.," CBS, 16.3 or 13.6 million.
7. "Hill Street Blues," NBC, 15.8 or 13.2 million.
8. "The A-Team," NBC, 15.6 or 13.0 million.

Former ECU Coed Raises Own Horses

By ANGELA LINGERFELT
Reflector Staff Writer

East Carolina University graduate Debbie Downs used to be "terrified of horses," but now she and her husband own a ranchful of them in Jackson Hole, Wyoming.

Mrs. Downs, who lived in Raleigh until she went to college, graduated from ECU in 1966, majoring in education. In 1981, she and her husband, Earl, along with their three children, moved west to raise horses.

"We live in the northwest corner of Wyoming, which is very mountainous. Our ranch is in a mountain valley that is green and very beautiful. There, we raise horses for pleasure riding," she said.

Mrs. Downs said Jackson Hole is a tourist center in the summer and a ski resort in the winter. Other popular activities there are big game hunting, trout fishing, camping and backpacking.

"We enjoy camping on horseback so much that we traveled 80 miles on a camping trip one time. I can usually ride about 15 miles a day before getting sore and tired," Mrs. Downs commented.

DEBBIE DOWNS

Camping on horseback is not easy, she said. It requires getting up at 6 in the morning to feed and brush the horses before packing supplies on them. The horses also have to be sprayed for bugs, she said, because horse flies are a problem in that mountainous region of Wyoming.

"All the preparations take about five hours, not including getting our own personal camping gear together. And if someone is going with us, we have to pack the horses for our guests," she said.

Once the horses are ready, she explained, they are taken in a horse trailer to the starting point of the trip. She said their summer camping trips never require the use of lanterns because night doesn't fall there until 10 p.m.

The Downs, who own 15 horses, including two race horses, stay very busy with chores around the ranch, especially in the summer. She said the horses must be fed and groomed every day, which takes a lot of time.

Mrs. Downs was in Greenville for a visit with her uncle, Carl Knott.

Body Needs Cooling After Heavy Exercise

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Although it has been assumed that strenuous exercise can cause sudden death, some physicians are now saying that the real hazard is not the exercise but a failure to cool down gradually after the activity.

Immediately after exercise, they say, body hormones that speed up the pulse, constrict blood vessels, and cause a rise in blood pressure are suddenly released in much higher levels than normal — apparently in an effort to restore the blood pressure to the peak reached when exercising.

But instead of regulating blood pressure, these hormones can cause fatal irregularities in the pulse. To avoid the flood of hormones that follows an abrupt halt to exercise, the physicians recommend a slow cooling-down period afterward.

Family Problems

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A recent survey of business and industrial counselors found that family problems are the main counseling issue they face.

Rodney C. Brown, an industrial counselor at R.J. Reynolds Industries, says that two-career marriages and single-parent households have increased the amount of family stress that employees complain about on the job.

Stereo TV

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — More and more television sets are being introduced with stereo sound capabilities.

RCA says 18 of its 54 new color TV models are designed to receive stereo sound broadcasts. Stereo sound broadcasts are scheduled to begin in 1985 or sooner.

TAKING A BOW ... Cast members of the 1983 production of "Blackbeard: Knight of the Black Flag" are shown taking a bow after a performance. The outdoor drama at Bath opens Thursday evening for performances each Thursday, Friday and Saturday evening through Sept. 1.

'Blackbeard' Opens Thursday

BATH — "Blackbeard: Knight of the Black Flag" opens its eighth season at 8:45 p.m. Thursday in the amphitheater at Bath.

Gregory Watkins of Greenville will repeat from last season his portrayal of the pirate captain. Joseph Bailey of Washington is again cast as Blackbeard's companion, Caesar. Bailey has the distinction of being the sole member of the cast to have been in every production since the drama's inception.

Kathleen Holmes, an actress recruited from Ohio University, is making her outdoor drama debut in the role of Mary Ormand, the Bath lass who marries Blackbeard.

Local performers in this year's cast include Leigh Messner, who plays Anne Bonney and doubles as the drama's choreographer; Christopher Watson, repeating his role of Nathaniel; and Vandy Behr, a student at D.H. Conley who recently starred in Conley's production of "Fiddler on the Roof." Two young lads, Jamie Hale, a student at Wahl-Coates school, and Jeffrey Roper of Williamston are alternating in the role of Ned Jr., Blackbeard's young son.

Another new cast member this year is Joey Pollock of Ayden, who will be this season's Governor Spotswood. Pollock is a veteran of numerous performances with the Ayden Theater Workshop and Greenville's Playwright Fund productions.

Other area persons appearing in this season's cast include David Werdal, Jimmy Lamb, Bevell Searey and Bill Dawson.

Tickets for "Blackbeard" can be purchased at the box office before 8 p.m. or can be reserved by calling 923-6931. Performances are scheduled each Thursday, Friday and Saturday evening through Sept. 1.

Hearing Loss

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Hearing loss worsens with age, but estimates of the extent and severity of the problem vary greatly.

In a recent study of 100 elderly hospital patients, Dr. Larry E. Dalzell and Diane Puccia of the University of Rochester discovered only 19 had normal hearing in at least one ear and 53 suffered moderate to severe hearing loss. Despite the findings, only six of the 100 patients had proper hearing aids on admission.

Captain Leaving

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Keeshan, who for nearly 30 years entertained children as kind-hearted "Captain Kangaroo," will close the curtain on the award-winning program in December.

Keeshan will continue on CBS with a new show, "Storybreak," starting in January, the network said Tuesday. "Storybreak," a Saturday afternoon series, will try to motivate children to read by presenting original adaptations of literature.

Greenwich Mean Time Is 100 Years Old

GREENWICH, England (AP) — The time we keep is celebrating its 100th birthday.

The guardians of Greenwich Mean Time, which has ruled the world's clocks since October 1884, moved out of their grimy Thames-side suburb of London years ago in favor of a castle in the Sussex countryside.

But they left behind an observatory, some ancient astronomical instruments and a brass strip set in the paving, marking longitude zero, the meridian from which the world measures its time zones.

Since the British love tradition, every day at five minutes to 1 p.m. a large ball is raised on a pole and dropped on the stroke of one. The 19th century contraption on the roof of the observatory, which once signalled the exact time to watching Thames navigators, now amuses tourists.

The observatory of John Flamsteed, a frail genius of astronomy, has become a museum and a shrine, where science's pilgrim can reflect on those Renaissance men who searched the skies for creation's blueprint.

Greenwich Mean Time has been the global standard since October 1884, when the international community adopted it at a conference in Washington. The centenary is being celebrated throughout 1984, with special outdoor events planned for Tuesday, because the weather is expected to be better than in October.

Also on Tuesday, Greenwich Postmaster Bill Lime will fly aboard a Concorde jetliner to hand-deliver a message to the town of Greenwich, Conn., a New York City suburb named after the British borough.

The origins of the Greenwich observatory date to the 17th century, when navigators had established latitudes but had failed to work out the longitudes which would give them a cross-reference for charting their course. In 1675 King Charles II ordered an observatory built where a solution could be found.

Charles charged his Royal Observatory, Flamsteed, with "rectifying the tables of the motions of the heavens, and the places of the fixed stars, so as to find the much-desired longitude of places, for the perfecting (of) the art of navigation."

Flamsteed had taught himself astronomy as a youth, when he was chronically ill. He worked closely with Sir Isaac Newton, but fell out with him, accusing the great man of pressuring him to publish incomplete work. When his work was published, he had it burned, claiming it was unfaithful to the original.

Flamsteed died in poverty, overshadowed by Newton. But he laid the foundation for achieving King Charles' objective.

"Of Meridians and Parallels man has made a net and this net thrown upon the heavens and now they are his own," the poet John Donne wrote.

But long after the poet's death, scientists were still groping with those elusive meridians. Nations might agree on longitudes, but each insisted on its own meridian.

Before electricity enabled the timekeepers to distribute exact readings around the country, Greenwich sent emissaries to London clockmakers to give them the right time. But most places outside London continued to set their own pace. Thus the town of Swindon stayed nine minutes off GMT, while Oxford's town clock had one hand for GMT and another for Oxford time.

Only in the mid-19th century, when British Railways decreed a uniform timetable on all its routes, did Britain adopt a standard time.

By 1883, 65 percent of world shipping was following Greenwich Mean Time, so the United States adopted it formally as its standard.

The following year, 25 nations met in Washington and accepted GMT with only two countries opposed.

The French, annoyed that little Greenwich had beaten Paris for the title, abstained and opted for "Paris Mean Time plus 9 minutes, 21 seconds," which coincides with Greenwich Mean Time. They did not officially adopt GMT until 1978.

"There's still a bit of a needle there," says Professor Stuart Malin, the observatory's chief astronomer. "We and our French colleagues are the best of friends, but we get in our digs at each other about it."

Today, only Saudi Arabia eschews GMT, preferring the Moslem system of keeping time by the moon and the sun.

The observatory moved to a castle in the Sussex countryside in 1958, preferring clear skies to Greenwich's sooty air. It has six atomic clocks that measure time according to the oscillation of an atom of cesium, and GMT is the average of their readings.

The atomic clocks lose no more than a second every 4,000 years and enable ships to measure distance by radio waves.

The six beeps broadcast by the British Broadcasting Corporation to radio sets throughout the world are still the most reliable for setting your watch, whether it's midnight in Moscow or daybreak in Hawaii.

The atomic clocks have measured time to one hundred-trillionth of a second, or 0.0000000000001 seconds. Timekeeping has become so accurate that every year or so the BBC broadcasts an extra beep to compensate for glitches in Earth's rotation.

Furniture Mart Gears Up for Fall

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer

The Southern Furniture Market Center is gearing up for the fall market with one — and possibly two — new floors on the six-story Design Center expected to be completed by opening day Oct. 18.

"Original plans called for one, but we think we have two in position," said Robert P. Gruenberg, general manager of the center. "We'll have to have a little luck from up above and Mother Nature."

Eventually, five new levels will add 240,000 square feet to the Design Center for a total of 570,000 square feet.

The Design Center is one of five buildings at the 2.3 million-square-foot Southern Furniture Market Center, which comprises more than half the showroom space of the Southern Furniture Market. The rest of the market takes place in showrooms throughout the Piedmont.

More than a third of the 1,300 exhibitors at the April and October markets show their latest furniture creations at the center, and the proportion is growing.

Recently, many manufacturers along "Furniture Road" — Interstates 85 and 40 between Burlington and Lenoir — have been moving their showrooms to High Point. These include Bernhardt, Century, Beechcraft and Hickory-Frye.

"There's been about 22 who have moved since last October's market or will have moved by October 1984," said Gruenberg. "I would say this represents a substantial chunk of those planning to move."

"The bottom line is that they've come to the conclusion that this is where the action is," he said, adding that buyers have "cast their ballot" by concentrating mainly on High Point showrooms.

"That's going to be a problem unless there's more hotel space," said Doug Kerr, executive director of the American Society of Furniture Designers. "There seems to be enough showroom space because in the last year or so . . . several new complexes (have been) developed."

Gruenberg declined to release attendance figures for the April market, but he did say total buyer attendance was up 5.2 percent and U.S. retail store attendance was up 7.9 percent from April 1983.

"I don't expect anything but a good market (in October)," Gruenberg said. "It's too far ahead of market to make any firm predictions, but retail sales are still strong."

4 WAYS TO SAY "CHARGE IT"

Man Lives Dream, Gets Boat

DELRAY BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Clarke Taylor decided when he was a youngster in Anderson, Ind., that he would one day own a boat to enjoy. And he knew then exactly what it would be.

Fifty years later, he has his first boat — just as he always dreamed — docked behind his home on the Intracoastal Waterway here.

But Taylor's vessel, "Joe Jr.," has little semblance to the yachts and sailboats parked on this affluent channel.

That's because his is probably the only 50-ton tugboat that's being used as a pleasure craft in South Florida.

"At least no one runs over you in this boat," he says laughingly as a small yacht passes by, its occupants waving and pointing to the tug.

Taylor reaches for a lever in the wheelhouse to respond with a couple of short blasts on the ship's horn that reverberate across the waterway.

It was last year, Taylor recalls, that he decided to fulfill his childhood dream of owning a tugboat.

"When I was a kid, my family would take me twice a year to visit relatives along the Ohio River about 200 miles away. That's where I first saw tugboats. They're something to take a shine to."

His search ended in New Orleans where he found "Joe Jr.," about to be retired from years of pulling fuel barges on the Mississippi River.

The 50-foot ship was built in 1957 at Houma, La., and is powered by a V8 diesel engine. Its beam is almost 15 feet and it draws 6½ feet of water.

While most yacht owners are particularly proud of some electronic or luxurious fixture aboard their crafts, Taylor's pride and joy is "Joe Jr.'s" power.

"It has a 48-inch propeller and a 300-horsepower engine with a 5-to-1 reduction gear. That gives it 1,500 horsepower! It's a water-going bulldozer."

Another advantage of having a tug, explains Taylor, is the cruise range it provides.

"Joe Jr." carries 2,500 gallons of fuel and averages one mile per gallon. "That gives me 2,500 miles," he adds proudly. "And I carry 5,000 gallons of water."

Push it isn't.

Forward on the main deck under the wheelhouse is the galley with enough essentials to fix a meal at sea.

Directly behind that is a full bathroom, but on this vessel that doesn't mean fancy soap dishes, glassed-in shower stall or hidden pipes. It means a steel deck, plain commode, sizable sink and a walk-in shower.

American Presence Increasingly Seen, Felt In El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The influence of the United States is clearly visible wherever one goes in this country, from the soldiers in U.S. uniforms battling leftist guerrillas to hamburger stands with golden arches.

At the forefront is the U.S. Embassy, referred to by some sardonic Salvadorans simply as the "Casa Presidencial" — the presidential house. The embassy, once housed in a colonial structure, now covers a city block and resembles a high-walled fortress with armed guards at every gate.

While the embassy denies it is calling the shots for the government, U.S. officials concede the American government exerts influence — and sometimes diplomatic pressure — to get what it wants.

"We are not here to run the Salvadoran government, but we do try to help where we can. We serve as a catalyst, sometimes a cattle prod," said one U.S. official who spoke on condition he not be identified.

The influence recently was spotlighted by the case of five former national guardsmen convicted of the 1980 murders of four American churchwomen. It was U.S. Embassy officials and FBI agents who put together the physical evidence and subsequently identified those tried for the murders.

There is a widespread belief in El Salvador that the case would never have gone to trial without constant pressure from the United States, including Congress withholding $19 million in military aid this year until the case was resolved.

Vice President George Bush visited here last December and reportedly presented a list of military officers linked to rightist death squads who had to be sent out of the country or relieved of their duties.

"At our urging, some of the people were reassigned out of the country. We wanted to be as firm about this as we can," the U.S. official said.

But the American influence can be found in ways not connected to politics. U.S. culture has been as pervasive here for many years as it is throughout the Central American region, where flights to Miami are almost as common as inter-city bus service.

On television, Wonder Woman chases the bad guys, while the radio broadcasts the latest in American music and movies show U.S. films with Spanish subtitles.

In U.S.-style supermarkets, bottles of Kentucky bourbon vie for shelf space with Coca-Cola and potato chips. At shopping centers, those with enough money can buy American designer jeans, T-shirts, jogging shoes and disco records.

There are the McDonalds, although the smiling clown has been replaced by a shotgun-toting guard at the front door. In luxury hotels with swimming pools and saunas, English-speaking employees greet visitors in the lobby.

Over the years, scores of U.S. businesses have operated in El Salvador, mainly because of an available labor force and low wages. However, the 4½-year civil war by leftist rebels trying to topple the U.S.-backed government has taken its toll.

Before 1979, there were at least 70 U.S. manufacturing subsidiaries or sales divisions. Now about half that number remain, including Citibank, Xerox, Kimberly-Clark and Texas Instruments, the largest single employer with an estimated 2,400 workers.

According to the American Chamber of Commerce office, investments in equipment and plant by U.S. companies has dropped from $150 million to $50 million since the war began.

Since 1981, U.S. involvement in propping up the government and beefing up the armed forces has steadily increased to total more than $1 billion — and President Reagan is asking Congress for more.

For instance, just about everything connected with the Salvadoran armed forces is from the United States, except for the soldiers.

The soldier is trained by U.S. Army advisers, wears U.S.-made uniforms, carries a U.S.-made M-16 rifle, is transported to battle in U.S.-furnished helicopters or trucks and is treated by U.S.-trained medics.

One area of particular controversy involving U.S. influence has been the land reform program which was enacted in 1980 and took some of the largest estates and converted them into peasant cooperatives. Two U.S. labor advisers were gunned down in January 1981, along with the Salvadoran head of the land reform institute.

INTRODUCING COOKIES So Moist And Chewy, THEY SIMPLY CAN'T BE TOPPED. WELL, ALMOST.

Buy any of our ALMOST HOME™ Iced Cookies and you'll be skating on very thick ice.

In the very best tradition of homemade cookies our ALMOST HOME varieties are far too full of fine ingredients. Like your Mom, not only do we insist on the best but we blend in a little more of everything, too. So it is with our ice toppings. Thick. And very creamy. A little lumpy and decidedly irregular in shape. So they even look homemade.

Three ALMOST HOME Iced Cookies top off our range of fifteen moist and chewy varieties.

Iced Oatmeal. Iced Applesauce Raisin or Peanut Butter Fudge are our three iced offerings. Aside from the problem of choosing your favorite variety you then have the difficulty of convincing yourself they're not homemade. Life should be full of such problems.

WE CALL THEM ALMOST HOME™

Today's Cryptoquip clue: G equals E

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Sale Of Gold Coins Didn't Pan Out

By DAVID GOELLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — It sounded like a great idea in 1978 when gold fever was infecting speculators and people were worrying about inflation: dip into the U.S. government vault, mint medallions and make a killing for the taxpayers.

An eager market, the thinking went, would not only be buying the world's prime metal but would prize the American Arts series coins with portraits of author Mark Twain, artist Grant Wood, jazzman Louis Armstrong, poet Robert Frost and actress Helen Hayes.

But today, four years after the price of gold peaked and began diving, the U.S. Mint has shelved its heavily promoted campaign to turn its gold pieces into the American version of South Africa's Kruggerand and Canada's Maple Leaf.

"It just hasn't worked," says Francis Frere, the mint's assistant director of marketing. "They're not selling. We've made a strong effort, but it's not working. It was a major campaign."

In 1980, when gold hit a high of $850 an ounce in world bullion markets, the mint began selling the commemorative medallions and was able to market about 440,000 ounces worth made from gold carried on the U.S. books at $42.22 an ounce.

But sales, made primarily through post offices, nosedived to 128,000 ounces in 1981 and were languishing in 1982 when the mint decided to stir interest in the half-ounce and ounce coins by turning marketing over to bullion professionals.

In a contract that drew criticism from a key House member, the New York firm of J. Aron and Co. agreed to sell the medallions in a deal that called for the firm to buy 3 million ounces of the coins at 2 percent over current gold market prices.

J. Aron's campaign began in April 1983, utilizing its contacts in the precious metals business and bolstered by a $4 million advertising blitz with TV spiels by Bob Hope, Johnny Cash, former U.S. Treasurer Angela Buchanan and Donna Pope, director of the mint.

The company had until September 1985 to unload the 3 million ounces, but early this month the contract was canceled after J. Aron bought 1 million ounces but managed to sell only about 150,000 ounces, according to a spokesman for the firm.

"We expected to see a response to the 3 million ounces and hoped to go back (to the mint) for more," the spokesman said. "We felt this piece would reach many new gold buyers. But there was no incentive to buy at this time. The market was either flat or decreasing."

When the contract was aborted, gold was selling for $393 an ounce in world markets. The one-ounce U.S. medallion was priced at $399, the same as the Kruggerand and the Maple Leaf, which unlike the medallions are legal tender that can be spent in their respective nations.

Eric Trujillo, manager of precious metals for Ruesch International Monetary Services in Washington, said the medallions were difficult to sell for several reasons.

"The timing was bad for the U.S. to get into the gold market; it's been going down," he said. "The buying frenzy isn't there. Because of the worldwide acceptance of the Kruggerand and the Maple Leaf, commemorative medallions seem to have lost interest in the last several years."

The J. Aron spokesman and Frere say the company stood willing to fulfil the contract. But Frere said that doing this would not meet the mandate of the 1978 legislation that created the medallion program.

"The legislative intent was to sell to individuals, not (sell) major quantities of gold to the bullion market," Frere said.

He said the mint intends to try again to interest the public in the medallions, but "we haven't developed any plans yet."

Second Spouse More Likely To See Abuse

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spouse abuse is more likely to occur in remarriages than in first marriages, according to research by sociologist Debra Kalmuss of The Catholic University of America here, who collaborated on a study with Judith Seltzer of Johns Hopkins University.

Their research also shows that people who have been divorced and remarried are more likely to have witnessed violence between their own parents than married adults who have never been divorced.

Ms. Kalmuss, a research associate at CUA's National Catholic Family Center, says she was surprised that the presence of children from a previous marriage made no difference in the level of spouse abuse.

The researchers expected to find the level of spouse abuse lowest in marriages that are the first for both partners, medium in families with no children from previous marriages, and highest in families with children from previous marriages.

Contrary to their expectations, the level of spouse abuse between remarried couples was the same whether or not they had children from previous marriages living in the home, she says. "Frankly, I'm baffled by the results."

The results were unexpected, she notes, because sociological literature shows that the rules regulating relationships are often unclear in families with children from previous marriages, which produces stress for family members. Stress is one of the causes of spouse abuse.

"There are many conflicting ties in relationships between stepparents and children, siblings and half-siblings, and several sets of grandparents that can cause problems," Ms. Kalmuss explains.

Ms. Kalmuss emphasizes that most divorced people have probably never abused anyone or been victims of violence. Her research centers on remarriage after divorce, not widowhood.

"We thought spouse abuse more likely in remarried couples, because violence is one reason why people divorce," she says. "The cause of violence in the first marriage, we conjectured, was either something about the first marriage or something the husband and wife had brought into their first marriage — most likely family mistreatment observed in childhood that could create a model to be enacted in marriage."

"We found that previously divorced people, in fact, are more likely to have observed violence between their parents. The results verified the notion that people are more likely to have entered first marriages with a model for abuse which carried into subsequent marriages."

Economic Downturn Affects Gulf Jobs

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer
DUBAI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of Indians, Pakistanis, Filipinos and other Third World citizens streamed into the United Arab Emirates and other Persian Gulf countries during the oil boom of the 1970s, in some cases swamping the small native populations.

Now an economic downturn is forcing thousands of workers from developing countries to leave and worsening the lot of many who stay.

In the U.A.E., the number of foreign workers and their families is estimated by some to outnumber the U.A.E.'s 1.3 million citizens by 900,000.

But with a 15 percent decline last year in the gross national product of the U.A.E., and similar declines throughout the gulf, many of the workers are going home. And the U.A.E. and others, concerned that the influx might rob the countries of their Arab character and deprive their own people of jobs, are taking steps to curb the stream of immigrant labor.

"We must thank them (foreigners) for their contribution in the building up of our countries," said Abdullah al-Quweiz, assistant secretary general of economic affairs for the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council.

"Since most of the infrastructure projects in the region are nearing completion, a large percentage of foreign workers will be sent home," he said.

So far the economic downturn and restrictive measures have had little impact on the estimated 28,000 Britons, 4,500 Americans and other Western nationals in the U.A.E., who generally hold managerial or technical positions.

Instead the impact is felt among the estimated 250,000 Indians, 200,000 Pakistanis and tens of thousands of other Asians or Africans, most of whom are unskilled.

"The foreign work force is declining at a rate of about 20 percent," said Qazi Badir Ahmed, labor attaché of the Pakistani consulate. "About 20 percent of the Pakistanis are unskilled, and another 20 percent semi-skilled. For them, there is no work, no jobs anymore."

Sanjoy, a young Indian taxi driver who came here 13 years ago as a construction laborer, agreed.

"When I first came here with my uncle, I could quit my job in the morning and find another in the afternoon," he said. "Now, it's no good. There is no construction. I would go home, but there's no work for me there either."

As a sign of the decline, Asian schools in the U.A.E. reported a sharp drop in enrollment since December; even more pupils departed with their parents in May. One school for Indian children is laying off half its teachers because of the drop in enrollment.

Those who remain complain of a wide range of social problems, stemming in part from problems adjusting to a conservative Arab culture.

Local newspapers have recently reported the arrest of several non-Moslem Indians and Sri Lankans for violating rules against eating and drinking in public during daylight in the holy month of Ramadan.

Workers earning less than $1,000 a month are forbidden to bring their families into the country. Local newspapers frequently have reported rapes and other sexual attacks by single foreigners against local and foreign women.

"It's very bad here if you have no wife because the local people don't want you to have anything to do with their women," a hotel bellboy from Mauritius said.

Foreign workers, particularly unskilled Asians, complain about a February 1983 regulation that effectively bars them from changing jobs under threat of deportation.

All foreigners, including Westerners, who enter the U.A.E. for work must be "sponsored" by a U.A.E. national, normally the employer who recruits them for work abroad.

The regulation requires foreigners who change sponsors to leave the country for six months. Although those who have influential connections sometimes circumvent the regulation, the rule prevents many workers from seeking better-paying jobs once they arrive.

A diplomat from an Asian country, who refused to be quoted by name or embassy, said the regulation is sometimes abused by corrupt sponsors who demand kickbacks or who renege on promises of high pay once the worker enters the country.

"They tell them they will make 1,000 dirhams (about $300 dollars) and when they get here, it's 600 (about $170)," he said.

Although the law allows workers to sue sponsors for breaches of agreement, many of the unskilled Asians would prefer not to risk legal entanglements that might end in deportation.

"Nobody wants to make troubles for his sponsor," said a Pakistani taxi driver. "It's a problem if you win, but if you lose, you might be out."

Despite the problems, Western diplomats, Emirates officials and workers themselves feel there will always be a place for foreign labor, partially because of the small native population of the U.A.E., Qatar and other small Arab gulf states.

"Our native population is so small that someone has to do the work," said one Emirates official, who declined to be identified. "If we need the skills and the people are willing to work and not make troubles, then they are welcome."

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JUNE 28, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until noon there can be a considerable amount of confusion if you allow yourself to get upset by surrounding conditions. It is best that you pause and look directly at whatever faces you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Communications have been puzzling you, but you can understand them very nicely this morning. Don't believe gossip.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study monetary affairs well, and don't trust others so much; then make out reports, statements, etc.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You may be befuddled about your true aims unless you think more clearly. Your longings need more self-expression.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Give that personal matter time to right itself since you are not certain just how to handle it.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You are worried about how best to handle personal aims, so talk them over with advisor you usually rely upon.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get your work done efficiently and conscientiously before you get together with a friend for completing some mutual project.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Some new idea needs further study before it can be workable; then complete some outside situation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) First study your bills for the sake of accuracy, and then pay them all off. You have to try a new tack where your mate is concerned.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't misjudge a partner or you get into trouble. Be sure to keep promises you have made.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be careful at work since co-workers could be in an irritable mood and try to start some trouble.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Put more oomph into that talent you possess and make it work like a charm. Be happy tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get advice from home that will assist you to improve relationships with others during the day; later you can enjoy amusements you like.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she can easily find the blind spot in an argument and work on that to gain own viewpoints; be sure to add debating to any college course. He or she may be nervous in early life but will later be poised and calm.

No Water

GREENSBORO (AP) — Water makes the area around pipes, sinks and faucets a favorite gathering place for cockroaches and other household pests.

Spectracide, a maker of insect control products, says insects need water to survive, so denying them access to water is an important part of controlling or preventing insect problems in the home.

It recommends mopping up spills and wet spots immediately, repairing leaky plumbing and drying all dishes and pots and pans after washing.

The Big Chill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A refrigerator operates all day, every day — which makes the appliance one of the biggest users of energy in the home, reports an electric company.

For the greatest energy efficiency, it recommends keeping the appliance well-stocked, but with enough room for air to circulate around the food. The freezer, however, should be packed full, by filling the empty space with bags of ice if necessary.

Tax Suspended

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — The government suspended a new tax package after 200,000 workers threatened to walk off their jobs in protest.

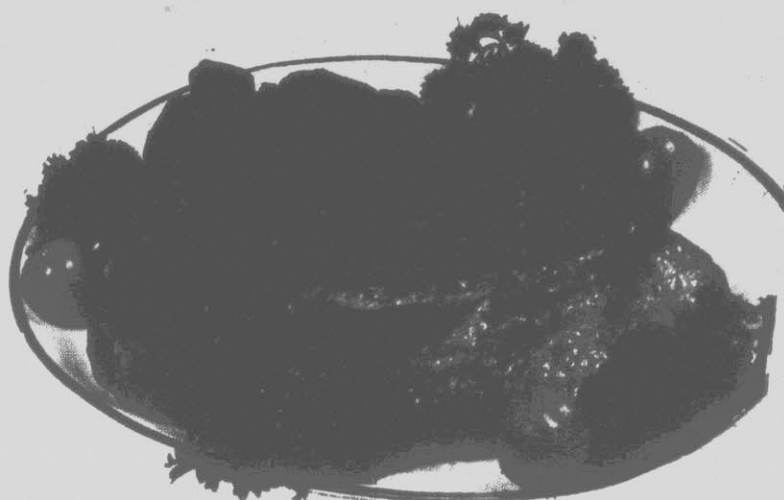

President Roberto Suazo Cordova went on nationwide radio two hours before the Honduran Labor Federation general strike was to begin, to announce that the tax law, pushed through under pressure from the International Monetary Fund, would be changed.

Standard & Poor Predicts Will Cost More To Bring Home Bacon

NEW YORK (AP) — Consumers will find beer a bargain and can look forward to a summer without soaring gasoline prices, but they will find it costs more to bring home the bacon, Standard & Poor's Corp. predicts.

S&P, a private business and financial information company, predicted prices in general would rise only modestly and said inflation will not have as much of an impact on living standards in the second half of 1984 as rising interest rates.

In its midyear survey of consumer living costs, S&P said it expected consumer prices would rise about 5.25 percent for all of 1984, up slightly from the 5 percent annual rate it projected for the first six months of the year.

For the first five months of 1984, consumer prices rose at an annual rate of 4.6 percent, the Labor Department reported Friday.

The forecast is higher than the 3.8 percent rise in all of 1983, which was the lowest increase in prices since the 3.4 percent inflation rate of both 1971 and 1972 — when government wage and price controls were in effect. But it is below the 8.5 percent average inflation rate of the past five years.

"While some increase in inflation is likely in the second half, such a development would hardly be surprising or worrisome at this stage of an economic expansion," said David Blitzer, chief economist at S&P. "Indeed, the modest nature of the expected rise in prices is particularly encouraging in light of the strong economy and falling unemployment."

Meanwhile, Blitzer predicted the prime lending rate, the base banks use in computing interest charges on short-term business loans, would reach 13.5 percent at the end of the year, up from the current 12.5 percent level.

Rising interest rates, he said, would "have a much more profound effect on living standards than would moderate price increases."

"The good news is that higher interest rates would likely mean higher earnings from savings. The bad news is that people who want to buy on credit will find it increasingly difficult to do so," Blitzer said.

Analysts at S&P said beverages, gasoline and natural gas will represent the best values in the next six months, with prices holding at or below present levels. They projected slight increases in prices for apparel and new cars and said the largest gains would come from food, housing and electricity.

Richard Bogacki, a food industry analyst, said rising meat prices would be a major contributor to pushing food prices up from a current annual rate of 4 percent to a 5 percent increase for all of 1984.

He said a decline in hog supplies would prop up prices of pork, ham and bacon. Beef prices also will rise, but not as sharply as pork, he said.

While prices of domestic beer rose by 3 percent to 4 percent early in the year, recent price cutting by many popular-priced brands is likely to give much of that increase back, Bogacki said.

Surplus supplies of gasoline and natural gas, meantime, are expected to hold prices at or below current levels, barring a major disruption of oil supplies from the Persian Gulf, S&P said.

It predicted clothing prices would rise about 2 percent in the next six months following a similar advance in the first half of the year, that housing costs would keep pace with inflation, that electric bills would rise between 6 percent and 8 percent this year and that increases in new car prices might be held below the 5.1 percent rise of the 12-month period that ended in April.

Causeway Will Link Gulf Area

AL-KHOBAR, Saudi Arabia (AP) — If you stand on the Arabian Gulf's sandy coastline here, you can see mounds of earth growing in the pale green waters just a few hundred feet offshore.

For residents of this eastern province Saudi city of 100,000, the curious bumps on the horizon are the first tangible evidence that work is progressing on the 15.6-mile causeway that will eventually link Saudi Arabia with its tiny island-state ally, Bahrain, by early 1986.

Since the cornerstone for the project was dedicated 18 months ago by Saudi King Fahd and Bahrain Emir Sheik Isa bin Salman-al-Khalifa, the direction of the work has been from Bahrain toward the Saudi mainland.

Until a few months ago, the only activity in the Gulf visible to Saudi residents has been the churning of "dhow" ferries shuttling tourists between the two countries, and an occasional leaping porpoise.

The eastern mound now discernible in the distance is one of seven sand-and-rock embankments to be linked by five boxgirder bridges in the project, all designed to support a four-lane roadway.

Saudi Arabia's government is footing the entire estimated $1.2-billion cost of the project, including the causeway — to be the largest of its kind in the Middle East and Europe — and link-up roadways on either shore.

Although the official completion deadline is Jan. 16, 1986, the contractor is pushing hard to finish the work by Bahrain's National Day celebration in December 1985.

Once opened, the causeway is designed to accommodate up to 3,000 cars per hour. Cars will be able to make the drive in about 20 minutes, compared with two hours now required to travel across the Gulf to Bahrain by "dhow," Arab lateen-rigged vessels popular with Bahrain-bound Saudi tourists.

The dhow trip, though not plush by any standard, costs less than $15 one way. Bahrain is also now accessible by airplane, but the 10-minute jet hop is one of the most expensive per-kilometer in the world.

The awaited opening of the causeway poses some interesting questions. For one thing, alcohol is banned in strictly Islamic Saudi Arabia, but it is allowed in Bahrain. So Saudi officials will need to formulate a system to cope with Saudi residents — the wide majority of abusers will undoubtedly be expatriates — who decide to drive back to the kingdom after imbibing at one of Bahrain's hotel bars.

One solution would be for Bahrain to declare itself "dry" before the causeway opens for business, but there has been no official move reported in that direction.

There is also the potential quandary of driving eligibility: women are prohibited from driving motor vehicles in Saudi Arabia but Bahraini women are free to drive in their own country.

Another question is how the causeway will affect trade. The hotel sector in both countries will obviously benefit from increased back-and-forth traffic afforded by the Gulf roadway.

Bishops Say Sterilization Plan Violates Human Rights

By FENTON WHEELER
Associated Press Writer
BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Roman Catholic bishops have accused a private family planning organization in Colombia of violating human rights by sterilizing more than 350,000 people.

The statements have sparked a government investigation and revived religious arguments in a nation with one of Latin America's most effective programs of population control.

Faced with newspaper headlines such as "Collective Castration" and with accusations that the state is aiding "massive sterilization," the government of President Belisario Betancur has denied the charges.

But Health Minister Jaime Arias has named a citizens committee to begin an investigation early in July.

Cardinal Alfonso Lopez, the archbishop of Medellin, Colombia's second city, said July 2 in a speech at a Lions Club convention that "in one weekend alone the state sterilized 70 women and applied vasectomies to 40 men" in what he called "a work of total castration."

Lopez, a power in the church hierarchy of a nation 90 per cent

Catholic, said in his speech that sterilization is "an attack on the liberty and dignity of the individual." He has since called for a national debate on birth control programs.

The planned parenthood organization PROFAMILIA, a household word for many of the 2 million Colombian couples practicing birth control, took issue with the cardinal's remarks.

"In the first place, they have confused castration with sterilization, and there is a big difference between the two," said Miguel Trias, director of PROFAMILIA.

"In the second place, the allegations are ridiculous. I don't want an argument with the church. I would have thought the situation would have generalized enough in our 20 years of service here to avoid more arguing," he said.

PROFAMILIA claims to be the most active private planned parenthood body in the world and says through its work Colombia's annual population growth rate has declined from 3.4 to 1.9 percent in 20 years. It is the lowest rate in Latin American except for Costa Rica where the government supplies funds for birth control.

"We are busier than the Shanghai (China) maternal center," says spokesman Bernardo Escobar, explaining that nobody who undergoes sterilization in any of the organization's 28 clinics does so against their will.

The cardinal's attack was joined by Bishop Alonso Arteaga of Ipiales, who said he had proof PROFAMILIA forced peasant men and women in his diocese near the Ecuadorian border to undergo sterilization.

The bishop said he had been denouncing such practices for more than a year and they were still going on. He said some of those undergoing the surgery had died.

There has been no formal statement from the church in Colombia accusing the government of financing PROFAMILIA programs. But Lopez, in a letter to the health minister, said he believes the government was financing sterilizations — an accusation denied by the health minister.

Colombian law says the nation's 28 million people have a right to know about contraceptive methods and that sterilization surgery may be performed by the Health Ministry if a woman's life is in danger.

PROFAMILIA is financed 50 per cent by private domestic contributions and 50 per cent by aid from abroad from such organizations as the International Planned Parenthood Federation of London, the Japanese Organization of International Cooperation in Family planning and the United Nations Fund on Population Activities, Escobar said. PROFAMILIA says it gets no money from the Colombian government.

Since 1965, the organization says it has performed more than 350,000 sterilizations, all but 10,000 of them on women. The average cost for women is the equivalent of $7, the organization says. Vasectomies average $4. Women must be more than 25 years of age or have more than three children to be eligible.

Maria Angelica Pulido de Garces, appears typical of the women seeking sterilization at the Bogota Clinic.

"I have 10 children," she says. "That's enough. Why should I bring more hungry children into the world?" End Adv Pms Tues June 26 and thereafter

OFFER LIMITED TO ONE COUPON PER PURCHASE

ENTER THE $200,000 MARCH OF DIMES SWEEPSTAKES

2 WAYS TO WIN A ONE WEEK LUXURY VACATION TO BERMUDA OR ACAPULCO!

We're American Airlines. Serving more than 100 exciting destinations.

Princess Hotels, quite simply the best places to stay in the best places to visit.

OFFICIAL RULES—NO PURCHASE NECESSARY
There are two sweepstakes, and two ways to enter:

METHOD #1 WATCH AND WIN

1. Retain the "Watch And Win" certificate on this page, and watch the March of Dimes Telethon that will be broadcast on many TV stations starting Saturday evening, June 30. (Check your local listing for time and station.) During the 21 hour Telethon, qualifying numbers will be flashed on the screen. If the number on the screen matches the number on the "Watch And Win" certificate, you are eligible to enter the "Watch And Win" sweepstakes to win one of the 26 prizes. You may also obtain a list of qualifying numbers by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: March of Dimes TV Numbers, P.O. Box 5500, Wyoming, MN 55092. Requests must be received by July 15, 1984. (Washington residents need not include return postage.) One request per envelope.

2. If you have a matching number, complete the "Watch And Win" certificate and mail it to: March of Dimes TV Sweepstakes, P.O. Box 2375, Wyoming, MN 55092. Entries must be received by August 15, 1984 to be eligible.

METHOD #2 MATCH AND WIN

1. Retain the "Match And Win" certificate on this page. During the week of June 24, 1984, participating retail stores across the country will publish a list of March of Dimes "Match And Win" numbers in their weekly ads and/or post the "Match And Win" numbers in their stores. If the number on your "Match And Win" certificate matches any of those numbers, you are eligible to enter the "Match And Win" sweepstakes to win one of the 27 prizes. You can also obtain a list of qualifying numbers by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: March of Dimes Retail Store Numbers, P.O. Box 5784, Wyoming, MN 55092. Requests must be received by July 15, 1984. (Washington residents need not include return postage.) One request per envelope.

2. If you have a matching number, complete the "Match And Win" certificate and mail it to: March of Dimes Sweepstakes, P.O. Box 2425, Wyoming, MN 55092. Entries must be received by August 15, 1984 to be eligible.

GENERAL RULES

1. Two sweepstakes drawings will be conducted to determine winners in the two sweepstakes.

2. The odds of winning will be determined by the number of eligible entries received.

3. The sweepstakes are open to residents of the United States except employees and their families of John Blair Marketing, Advo-System, the March of Dimes, UNI Marketing, Inc., participating brands, their retailers and their agencies, and manufacturers and carriers of sweepstakes material. Void wherever prohibited or restricted by law. All Federal, State and local laws apply. Only one prize to a family, organization or household.

4. All prizes will be awarded, and are non-transferable. Minors who are chosen as winners must be accompanied by parent or legal guardian.

5. Sweepstakes certificates are void, and will be rejected by the judging organization, if they are tampered with, forged, mutilated, illegible, or contain any irregularities. The decisions of the judging organization are final.

6. Errors in reprinting "Match And Win" numbers by participating retail stores are not the responsibility of the sponsor, and those entries will be judged as invalid.

7. We are not responsible for lost, late, or misdirected mail. Taxes are the sole responsibility of the winners.

8. Each prize is valued at $3,800, and includes a trip for 2 to Acapulco or Bermuda, with accommodations at a Princess Hotel. Air transportation will be coach seats on American Airlines only from the city nearest the winners' city of residence served by American Airlines. Cost of transportation to those American Airlines cities will be at the winners' expense. The judging organization reserves the right to restrict the choice of destination should American Airlines, in its sole judgement, determine that the number of flight connections required to get to a particular location are excessive, or if American Airlines discontinues service to either location prior to prize winners' travel dates. Each trip is for 7 days and 6 nights, and includes two meals daily. Once travel dates have been mutually agreed upon, they may not be changed without explicit approval of both American Airlines and Princess Hotels. Air travel and hotel accommodations are booked on a space available basis, and some blackout dates may apply. No stopovers allowed. Any overnight lodging en route, if necessary, as well as incidental expenses, will be at the winners' expense. Hotel vouchers and airline tickets are non-refundable, non-transferable, and not redeemable for cash. Retail value of trips based on farthest departure point and maximum hotel rates. The total of 53 trips valued at $3,800 each is $201,400.

9. Winners may be required to execute an Affidavit of Eligibility and Release within 30 days of notification. In the event of non-compliance within this time period, alternate winners will be selected. In addition, once winners have been confirmed they must select destination and travel dates and request tickets/reservations within 90 days, or prize will be forfeited and alternate winners will be chosen. Prizes must be taken by October 1, 1985. By entry into the sweepstakes, winners consent to the full commercial use of their name and photographs without compensation.

10. For a list of winners, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: March of Dimes Winners List, P.O. Box 5530, Wyoming, MN 55092.

CARNATION WILL GIVE A DIME TO THE MARCH OF DIMES FOR EACH COUPON REDEEMED BY JULY 21, 1984 UP TO $200,000.

How They Voted

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes June 14-20.

HOUSE

IMMIGRATION — By a vote of 216 for and 211 against, the House passed and sent to conference with the Senate a landmark bill (HR 1510) that is the first overhaul of federal immigration law in 32 years.

The measure seeks to curb the influx of illegal aliens into the U.S. primarily by setting fines for western growers and others who knowingly hire undocumented workers. Also, it grants amnesty under certain conditions to millions of illegals who have lived in the U.S. since the beginning of 1982, and it creates a new "guest worker" program to supply growers of perishable crops with temporary foreign labor on short notice.

Under the amnesty section, newly legalized aliens must wait five years before becoming eligible for federal medical and income-support programs. The legislation is expected to cost between $6 billion and $13 billion to administer over its first four years.

Supporter Hamilton Fish, R-N.Y., said "immigration in our country is literally out of control. Reform is clearly called for."

Opponent Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., said "let us not step backward by inviting discrimination against Hispanics, recreating the bracero-like temporary worker program, and burdening employers with enforcement... responsibilities."

Members voting yes favored the immigration bill.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were Tim Valentine, D-2; Charles Whitley, D-3; Ike Andrews, D-4; Stephen Neal, D-5; Charles Britt, D-6; Charles Rose, D-7; W.G. Hefner, D-8; James Martin, R-9; James Broyhill, R-10, and James Clarke, D-11.

Walter B. Jones, D-1, voted no.

STUDY — The House adopted, 247 for and 170 against, an amendment requiring that illegal aliens receiving temporary resident status under the amnesty section of the immigration bill (above) make an attempt to learn rudimentary English and educate themselves about American history and citizenship. Also, they must place their children in schools and demonstrate they are free of a criminal record and unlikely to become a ward of the state.

Sponsor Jim Wright, D-Tex., said "language is the thread... that ties us all together."

Opponent Edward Roybal, D-Calif., called it "most unfair" to require immigrants who may be illiterate in their native tongue to learn English.

Members voting yes favored the amendment.

Area representatives voting yes were Whitley, Ike Andrews, Neal, Britt, Rose, Hefner, James Martin, Broyhill and Clarke.

Voting no were Walter Jones and Valentine.

AMNESTY — By a vote of 195 for and 233 against, the House rejected an amendment to eliminate the section of the immigration bill that legalizes the residency of millions of undocumented aliens now living in the U.S. The amnesty would be granted to illegals who have lived continuously in the U.S. since Jan. 1, 1982 and are attempting to meet certain assimilation requirements such as learning English.

Bill McCollum, R-Fla., who sponsored the amendment, said the amnesty section rewards lawbreakers and is "a great slap in the face" of those people around the world now standing in line to legally emigrate to America.

Opponent Robert Dellums, D-Calif., said amnesty was imperative because "we cannot, practically or morally, embark on a massive and expensive effort to deport millions of people."

Members voting no favored the amnesty section.

Area representatives voting yes were Walter Jones, Valentine, Whitley, Ike Andrews, Neal, Rose, Hefner, James Martin, Broyhill.

Court Upholds Disclosure Rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today reinstated a law that allows the government to disclose "trade secrets" about new insecticides sold in the United States.

The court ruled, 8-0, that the government is using the information to benefit the public and therefore is not violating the constitutional rights of companies that developed the information.

However, the court said companies which are forced to give the government such data may be entitled to compensation. Such claims are to be settled in a lower court, the Supreme Court said.

Monsanto Corp. challenged the law, claiming it should not be forced to disclose test data that would help its competitors.

North Carolina members voting no were Britt and Clarke.

SENATE

COMBAT — By a vote of 63 for and 31 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to prevent President Reagan from sending U.S. troops into combat in El Salvador or Nicaragua without prior approval of Congress. This occurred during debate on the fiscal 1985 defense authorization bill (S 2723).

The amendment went beyond the War Powers Act, under which a president can deploy combat forces for up to 90 days before securing congressional approval of the action.

Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., who voted to kill the amendment, said, "Congress should not tie the president's hands" because the Constitution makes the president commander-in-chief.

Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., who sponsored the amendment, said that under the Constitution "the war-making powers are divided between the president and the Congress of the United States."

Senators voting no favored prior congressional approval of any U.S. combat action in El Salvador or Nicaragua.

North Carolina senators John East, R, and Jesse Helms, R, both voted yes.

MX — By a vote of 49 for and 48 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to sidetrack and possibly kill development of the MX missile. Vice President Bush cast the deciding vote.

The amendment, offered to the $297 billion 1985 defense spending bill (above), sought to block further MX production until completion of a study of whether the MX should be replaced with the smaller, more mobile Midgetman missile as the nation's next-generation intercontinental ballistic missile.

This vote preserved $2.6 billion earmarked for production of 21 additional MX missiles in 1985. President Reagan had requested 40. The House version of the bill funds only 15 copies, and withholds that money for several months to see if the Soviets will resume arms-control talks.

Senators voting yes favored continued development of the MX missile.

East and Helms both voted yes.

EUROPE — By a vote of 55 for and 41 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to begin pulling U.S. troops out of Western Europe unless NATO countries contribute more to their own defense. This victory for the White House occurred during debate on the fiscal 1985 military authorization bill (S 2723), which later was sent to conference with the House.

Under the amendment, U.S. troop levels in Europe, set at 326,000 in the

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.

Wednesday, June 27, 1984 37

bill, would be progressively reduced if NATO failed to meet certain self-defense tests. For example, withdrawals of at least 30,000 GIs per year would be triggered if Western European nations continued to shirk a pledge to hike defense spending by 3 percent annually.

Senators voting no wanted to force NATO members to spend more on their own defense.

East and Helms both voted yes.

Despite a loss on today's hand, the team led by Malcolm Brachman of Dallas defeated the squad of Edgar Kaplan of New York to earn the right to represent the U.S. in the 7th World Team Olympiad, to play in Seattle, Wash., this October.

The contract in both rooms was four hearts. For the Kaplan team, North was the declarer and East led the queen of spades. Declarer won on the board and led a diamond to the jack and ace. He won the spade return in hand, cashed the king of diamonds and ruffed a diamond. He led a spade and ruffed low when West opted to sluff his last diamond. Declarer cashed the king of trumps, ruffed a diamond high as West sluffed a club, and then cashed the ace of clubs. When declarer now exited with a club, West had to ruff his partner's trick and lead a trump away from his 10 into dummy's A-Q-9. So declarer made the rest of the tricks for an overtrick.

In the other room, South won the opening spade lead, cashed the ace of clubs and led another club. East won the king and returned a low club. Declarer sluffed a diamond as West ruffed. West returned a diamond to his partner's ace, and when East continued with a fourth round of clubs, declarer's goose was cooked. Since he could not afford to ruff low, he ruffed with the jack. But now West's 10 of hearts was promoted to the setting trick.

The Kaplan team gained 11 International Match Points on the hand to keep within a few points of Brachman at the halfway stage of the match.

How do you choose the best opening leads? Charles Goren has the answer. For a copy of "Winning Opening Leads," send $1.85 to "Goren-Leads," care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to Newspaperbooks.

Suit Challenges Reagan Readings

CHICAGO (AP) — Three Dixon businessmen and RCA Records return to court July 6 after a judge gave them more time to settle a dispute over the re-release of Bible readings made 30 years ago by Dixon native President Reagan.

U.S. District Judge Stanley J. Roszkowski delayed a decision on whether the businessmen may sell the album, "Ronald Reagan Reads Stories from the Old Testament."

RCA Records, a division of RCA Corp., sued the businessmen, contending a contract gives it exclusive rights to market the album. The defendants argue RCA's copyright expired in 1980.

Creche Allowed

NEW YORK (AP) — The village of Scarsdale must permit a creche in a public park at Christmas, a federal appeals court has ruled, saying the display does not violate the separation of church and state.

The 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals overturned a ruling that banned the creche last year. But it said there should be a larger sign stating the creche was privately maintained.

The creche was moved to private property in 1981 after village trustees denied use of the park. It was not set up the last two years.

Extradition

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A judge says he's waiting for a decision from Gov. James Blanchard before acting on the extradition of an Alabama killer seeking asylum in Michigan.

Berrien County District Judge Leo Cook said that Blanchard's legal adviser has urged John C. Chance's lawyer to challenge the constitutionality of Chance's prosecution before the governor decides whether to accept the Alabama extradition warrant.

Chance, 30, fled from Alabama in March and was arrested in Michigan in April.

Chance and his brother were sentenced to life in prison for the death of a storekeeper during a robbery. The Chances claim their cousin did the killing.

The brother was granted asylum in Michigan three years ago by then-Gov. William Milliken.

Food & Drug Store Coupons

1. Check all the food & drug store ads in your Greenville newspaper and in your mail this week.
2. Clip all item and price coupons you want from those ads.
3. Bring all the coupons to Kroger Sav-on regardless whose ad the coupons are from.

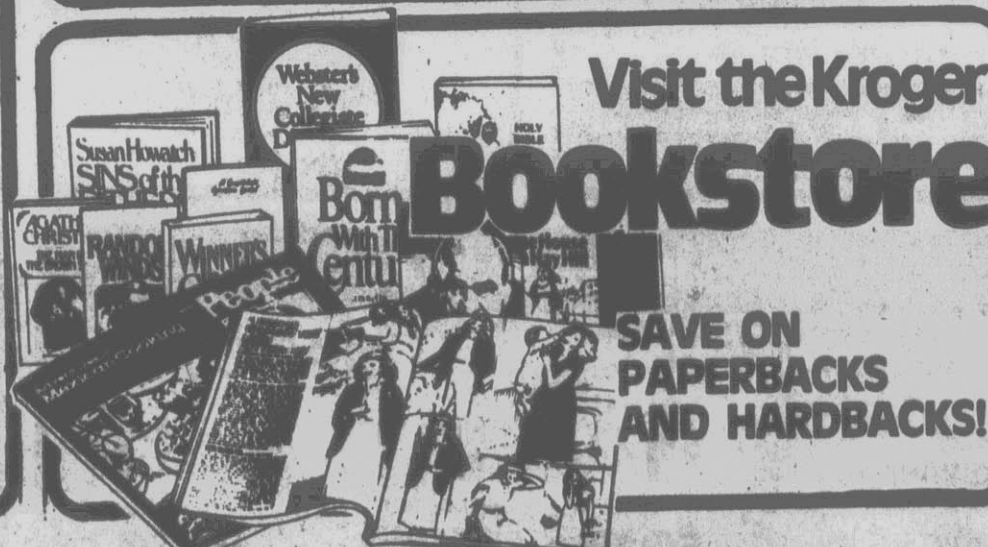

• We ask that you meet all requirements as stated in each ad or coupon: ie. Limit one with $10 or more purchase, etc.
• If we don't have the brands named in your coupons we will substitute the most comparable brands available.
• We reserve the right to limit quantities.
• We will continue to redeem manufacturers coupons at face value.
