EDMISTEN SPEAKS AT SESSION ... The Rev. David S. Hammond, Attorney General Rufus Edmisten, and John H. Edmisten Pushes Education In Talk To Firemen's Group

By LORETTA GRANTHAM
Reflector Staff Writer

"The only thing more expensive than education is ignorance," said Attorney General Rufus Edmisten, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, "because you'll either pay for education now or you'll pay for ignorance later."

Edmisten spoke last night at the 94th annual session of the North Carolina Volunteer Firemen's Association held at Mount Calvary Free Will Baptist Church.

In addition to education, he discussed fire protection services, the victim's compensation bill, voter registration, and unemployment.

He commended the volunteer firemen because he said if the state had to pay for their services, "it would cost an extra $500 million a year." Also, he said he is "very concerned about unlawful burning in North Carolina" because "there is no more difficult crime in the world to solve than arson."

He expressed pride over the fact that since 1976, more than 3,000 police or fire officials have been "trained in arson detection in the state."

He said that he helped pass a bill which exempts volunteer fire departments from OSHA equipment standards because volunteers should not "have to go out and buy terribly expensive equipment to suit some bureaucrat in Washington."

"I think in the area of fire protection," said Edmisten, "that we've had more progress in there than (in) any other area I've had anything to do with since I've been attorney general."

Edmisten said that if he is elected governor, the Fire Commission would "have the same standing and status as the Crime Commission now has."

"I want us to see happen the victim's compensation bill that I've been working on for years," said Edmisten, who wants "to give those people who happen to be the innocent victims of crime some rights too."

He said victims should be paid for injuries and time out of work as well as being "treated correctly in court."

In supporting education, Edmisten said it "is the single most important thing that faces the human race."

Most people who get involved in crime, he said, did not receive "a decent education." He said it costs "almost $20,000 a year" to keep an adult in jail so "a couple of hundred extra dollars a year on a child" makes sense.

He further endorsed "a better wage" for teachers.

Edmisten told the audience that "the power to vote is the greatest power you have." He said, "I had rather have someone go out and vote against me than not vote at all."

Commissioners OK Voting Machines

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners Monday approved the purchase of electronic vote tabulating machines for use in all 24 voting precincts in the county.

A Florida firm, Airmac Technology Systems Inc., was low bidder to supply 27 tabulators and a programmer unit for $88,965. Governmental Data Systems of Charlotte, the only other bidder, submitted a proposal totaling $113,965.

Some 35 counties in North Carolina use Airmac Technology Systems vote tabulators.

The board also awarded contracts Monday for the purchase of office supplies for the coming year to Taff Office Equipment Co. which submitted a low bid of $12,412.

Other bidders included Carolina Office Equipment Co. with a bid totaling $16,045 and Eastern Office Supply with a bid of $13,524.

In other business commissioners: approved the sale of surplus vehicles and other property at auction on July 21 at the county garage; appointed Sammy Carson of Bethel to replace Jack Edwards on the Social Services board; named Mike Gaskins of Grifton to replace Richard McLawhorn on the board of the Certified Development Company; reappointed Margie Hart to a three year term on the planning board for the Town of Ayden; appointed Joseph Butterworth of Bethel to the Mid-East Regional Housing Authority; and appointed Thomas Forrest, Williard Finch, Clifton Brock and Robert Briley Jr. to the Winterville planning board.

Commissioners also approved the county's participation in the federally-sponsored community development tornado relief program which may allow property owners who have been rejected by the Small Business Administration, the Farmers Home Administration and other agencies to secure grants to help rebuild destroyed or damaged homes.

County Manager Reginald Gray reported that the state has approved a grant totaling $118,055 to help with construction of a new building at the mental health center. The state grant, he said, will provide about a third of the estimated cost of the facility.

Pitt County Memorial Hospital Director Jack Richardson reported that 49 new residents have started work at the hospital, bringing the total number of residents at PCMH to 115. Richardson noted that three married couples are included in the staff of residents.

Commissioners were to meet at noon today with the chairmen and superintendents of the county and city school systems to talk about consolidation of the two school units.

The noon meeting was to be followed this afternoon by a budget workshop session.

CUTOFF NOTIFICATION REMISS?

I recently came home from work on a Friday afternoon to find that my electricity had been cut off. A note on my door informed me it had been done by Greenville Utilities because of meter tampering. I called immediately, had someone come out and showed them that I was not a meter tamperer, that damage apparently done my meter was done by the owner of the trailer park in which I live when he was having some construction work done in the area and moved the pole. I was none the worse off for the experience, but I shudder to think what would have happened to the contents of my freezer if I had gone off for the weekend directly from work. I think, even for people believed to be meter tamperers, Greenville Utilities should have the policy of giving ample notice that cutoff is going to occur. J.W.

George Reel of Greenville Utilities said you are absolutely right. You should have been notified in advance of the cutoff. He could not explain why you were not, but said it is GUCO policy to let people know in advance — even suspected meter tamperers. He said he would make it clear to those responsible for performing the cutoffs that it is to be done only if it is ascertained that ample notification has been given.

Board Names 4 To Committee

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Members of the city school board Monday night approved the appointment of four board members to serve on a joint city-county Consolidation Committee to be composed of eight members of the county school board and four from the city board.

The four nominated and approved are Jack Wall, George Williams, Erma Carr and Frank Grooms. "We hope these representatives of our board will be meeting with members appointed by the county by early fall, if not sooner," commented Wilson Rhodes, chairman of the nominating committee for naming the four.

In connection with joint city-county school board consideration of future merger, the city board approved a resolution responding to the June 25 position statement by the county board. In the June statement, the county board noted it "... would consider consolidation of the two school systems into one, subject to ... (a number of specified conditions.)"

The city board's resolution is a general position statement which informs the county board of its endorsement of the county board's position as "a good faith effort toward providing the best and most cost-effective public education system for all of Pitt County." Superintendent Delma Blinson noted, "This is a general statement, with specifics to be gone into at the proper time in the future."

A COUNTY LANDFILL FIRE...is still smoldering today with landfill workers seeking to dig out hot spots and extinguish them. The blaze which began Sunday afternoon was brought under control yesterday. Five county fire departments fought the fire Sunday; four board he had received a telephone call from County Manager Reginald Gray asking that the letter be sent as a confirmation of the verbal request made at the June 25 joint meeting by county commissioner chairman Bob Martin.

U.S. 264 Work Progresses

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Work is progressing on the new U.S. 264 between Greenville and Wilson, according to a written report made by George Harper, a member of the State Board of Transportation, to the Pitt County Board of Commissioners Monday.

Harper said grading, drainage and structures work on a 4.87 mile section of the road from west of SR 1507 in Wilson County to the Greene County line should be completed in August 1985, while similar work on 3.96 miles from east of N.C. 58 at Wilson to west of SR 1507 should be completed in June 1985. Paving of the two sections, estimated to cost 16.2 million, is scheduled for fiscal year 1985, Harper said.

Completion of grading, drainage and structure work on 4.6 miles from the Wilson-Greene County Line to existing U.S. 264, east of SR 1311, should be completed in August 1985, according to Harper, with paving also scheduled for fiscal year 1985, at an estimated cost of $7.9 million.

Harper said while work on some sections of the 9.3 miles from the Farmville East Thoroughfare to the existing five-lane section of SR 1200 at Pitt County Memorial Hospital is underway, completion of the total section is scheduled with paving in fiscal year 1986.

Harper said the Farmville East Thoroughfare, a 3.2 mile section of two-lane road on a four-lane right-of-way is scheduled for completion in November 1984, while the final segment of U.S. 264 between Greenville and Wilson, a 6.7 mile northern loop around Farmville, (Please turn to page 12)

July 4th Events

By ANGELA LINGERFELT
Reflector Staff Writer

Many Independence Day festivities in Greenville are planned for Wednesday and most businesses and offices around town will be closed for the day.

A kayak race sponsored by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department will begin at 10 a.m., followed by a canoe race at 10:30 a.m. Both races will start at the Falkland Wildlife Boat Landing and end at the Town Common. Local parks will be open for the day, while the administrative offices will be closed.

The Greenville Jaycees' 12th annual July 4 celebration will begin at 1 p.m. and continue through fireworks at 9 p.m. Highlighting this year's celebration is a break dancing contest for different age groups at 1:30 p.m.

Another special feature is a hot air balloon exhibition by Iverson McKenzie of Greenville scheduled to begin around 1 p.m. Also beginning at that time is a balloon dart throw, a bake sale, "Let's Go Fishing," and a greasy pole climb. An egg toss contest will begin at 2:15 p.m., while the finals of the break dancing (Please turn to page 12)

MRS. GODLEY

Wedding Vows Said Sunday Afternoon

Tammy Evonne McLawhorn and Bobby Wayne Godley were united in marriage Sunday at 3 p.m. in a double ring ceremony conducted by the Rev. Paul Lanier in the Church of God.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William McLawhorn of Route 1, Greenville, was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Godley of Route 1, Greenville. His brother Billy Godley of Greenville was best man.

Donna McLawhorn of Greenville was the honor attendant for her sister while Judy Drach of Williamston, sister of the bride, and Angela Godley of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids.

Brian Meeks of Greenville was the ring bearer. Ricky Meeks and Melvin Boyd Jr. of Greenville were ushers.

Obei Godley of Greenville presented a program of organ music, Lynn Elks of Bell Arthur sang "If" and "Wedding Song."

The bride wore a formal gown of white organza and alencon lace fashioned with a sweetheart neckline accented with scalloped alencon lace etched with pearls and iridescents. The short puffed sleeves were accented with lace ruffles. The flowing skirt was accented with scalloped schiffli embroidered lace flowers as was the cathedral train.

The honor attendant wore a lilac dress of polyester and cotton voile lined in acetate taffeta. It had a bustle back. She carried purple and white carnations with purple ribbons. The bridesmaids were dressed similar.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall after the ceremony. Cake was served by Evonne Dickerson and punch was poured by Joanne Lewis. Assisting were Karen Griswell, Lina Meeks and Delia Evans.

The couple will live near Greenville after a wedding trip to unannounced points.

The bride graduated from Pitt Community College and works at B's Barbecue. The bridegroom is employed by his grandfather.

A rehearsal party was held in the church fellowship hall Saturday evening.

The wedding was directed by Ms. Dickerson.

Couple Weds On June 22

Doris Davenport Wynne and Dallas Russell Wells were united in marriage June 22 at 8 p.m. in a private ceremony at the home of his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. David A. Moore. The Rev. Nelson Fulford of Bayboro performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a blue ensemble with navy trim of crepe de chine complemented by a corsage of white roses and gypsophila.

After the ceremony, refreshments were served in the dining room. The refreshment table was covered by a cloth with a lace border and centered with Queen Anne lace, pink yarrow, pink snapdragons and eucalyptus in a silver Revere bowl flanked by silver candelabra holding white lighted tapers. Cake was served by Mrs. Moore after it was cut by the bridal couple. Mrs. Fulford poured punch.

The couple will reside at Route 2, Farmville.

The bride is employed by Brody's at Pitt Plaza in Greenville and the bridegroom is employed by Pargas in Farmville.

The mother of the bride, Mrs. W.E. Braxton of Greenville, was remembered with a corsage of yellow daisies.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

It is of no comfort to me whatsoever that NASA has put five years of research and $12 million worth of engineering into a space shuttle toilet that does not work.

If the right stuff has the wrong parts, we're all lost.

What chance do I have with a husband who revealed ours with Play-Doh and then instructed me to "jiggle it after you use it"?

What hope is there for earthlings to have an efficient plumbing system when an astronaut who has a doctorate in civil engineering had toilet malfunctions on 10 out of the last 11 missions?

As far as I'm concerned, plumbing is the key to peace throughout the world. It's the universal language that needs no interpreter, the one ethic that binds us all together, the common denominator that is shared by us all.

Can you possibly imagine the adulation due the nation that finally perfects a system that works?

I once toured the interior of the space shuttle in Houston to see what our future would hold. I found it the closest to primitive camping I want to get. The area where the astronauts live is no bigger than a table at the Lae Vegas dinner show. The food was packaged and contained in boxes on the wall. At night, you were restrained from floating around by hanging in a sack from the wall (we once did that in Michigan), and every time you moved, you bumped your leg on the water tank. My main concern (as with all mothers), however, was the toilet.

"How does it work?" I asked.

"Just like any other toilet, say on the airlines," I was told.

That was not altogether true. Toilets on airlines do not have seatbelts to hold you in, head and foot restraints and look like a death chair. I didn't even want to know who cleaned it and how.

The way it stands now, toilets are programmed to function a five-day week, gurgling, gasping and backing up on Saturdays and Sundays.

They go on overload when there are more than five people in the house.

Bending something under the tank top will make you feel better, but it will accomplish nothing.

I would like to think the United States would lead the world in building a better toilet. As for the moon, we could put a toilet out there tomorrow if we wanted to. But first, we have to find a plumber who works Sundays.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Candy Theft Leaves Sour Taste For Shoplifter

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday I walked out of a local department store when suddenly someone tapped me on the shoulder and said, "I'm with security; please give me the box you have in your purse and follow me."

I followed him back into the store and into the manager's office, where I was questioned for shoplifting a box of candy that cost 78 cents!

Understand, I am not a kid. I am 50 years old, the mother of five children. Should they learn of this, I would never be able to look them in the eye again. There is a hearing scheduled for a week from now. I will probably be fingerprinted, charged with shoplifting and fined about $50.

Why did I do it? I have asked myself that question a thousand times. I wish I could come up with an answer—any answer that would explain my actions. I did not enter that store with any thought of shoplifting. I didn't want the candy; I seldom eat candy. Then why did I take it? I have plenty of money to buy whatever I want. I've never stolen anything before, and I didn't get a particular "thrill" out of taking it.

Thanks for listening, Abby. I haven't been able to talk to anyone about this. I feel so lousy.

GUILTY AS CHARGED

DEAR GUILTY: Legally you are guilty of shoplifting, but there is a strong possibility that you are a "kleptomaniac." Definition: "one who has a persistent, neurotic compulsion to steal—especially without economic motive." It's a condition that can be treated. Get a lawyer and a doctor. And in that order.

DEAR ABBY: Recently, your column told of a woman who broke into her sister-in-law's house by removing the screen and climbing into a back bedroom. (She wanted to put a box of bargain strawberries in the woman's refrigerator.)

I think I can top that. When I arrived home, I found some relatives in my house! They were tee-heeing about having had to remove the sliding door so my sister-in-law could use the bathroom! (My brother is a builder and knew some of the secrets for removing the door.) Abby, there are several service stations within two blocks of my home.

I asked those people how dare they show the entire neighborhood how to break into my house! They just laughed. They thought it was funny.

SEETHING IN THE SUBURBS

DEAR SEETHING: Your relatives should be informed that breaking and entering the home of a relative is no less a crime than breaking and entering the home of a stranger. And punishment for said crime is no laughing matter.

DEAR ABBY: I am dying to unload this. I am sick of hearing about adopted kids wanting to find their "real mothers." I'm not talking about kids who were 5, 10 and 15 years old at the time of their adoption, but children who were only days or weeks old, as I was when I was adopted. I will never understand why anyone would want to meet a woman who never did anything for him but give him away.

The people who adopted these kids are their real parents—it's written on their birth certificates. My so-

Chick Peas Make Good Salad

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Chick peas (also known as garbanzos and ceci) are comparatively inexpensive and such an excellent source of protein they deserve to be served often. Here is what a famous botanist and amateur chef had to say about their use:

"The chick pea is a widely cultivated legume of notable prominence in the excellent cuisine of such areas as the Mediterranean, Asia, and in Mexico and many other parts of Spanish-speaking America. In these countries chick peas appear in a wide array of recipes, from hearty soups and stews to salads. Cooking the dried ones at home usually requires hours and hours—a lengthy time. For the average recipe, canned chick peas are perhaps to be preferred."

I heartily concur in recommending canned chick peas. Here is a simple but unusually savory salad in which they are used.

CHICK PEA AND ARTICHOKE SALAD

- 6-ounce jar marinated artichoke hearts
- 1/4 cup olive oil
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon black pepper
- 1 garlic clove, crushed
- Two 19-ounce cans chick peas, drained
- 1 cup diced tomato
- 1 tablespoon capers
- Lettuce
- 3 hard-cooked eggs, cut into wedges

Drain marinade from artichokes into a medium bowl; reserve artichokes. To marinade add olive oil, lemon juice, black pepper and garlic; whisk well. Add chick peas, tomatoes, capers and reserved artichokes; gently stir together. Let stand at room temperature for 1 hour. Before serving, arrange over lettuce; garnish with hard-cooked eggs. Makes 6 servings.

Time To Enjoy

Ruminating about our Glorious Fourth: We take our blessings pretty much for granted in our own land, but that isn't the case in the rest of the world. The poor, the desperate, the oppressed, the hopeless ... they see sanctuary spelled out on the borders of the United States and risk their very lives in trying to gain entry by whatever means.

In our lifetimes, many millions of new pilgrims have settled in our midst. They are survivors with hope, faith, courage, strength, dreams. We need them, just as they need us.

We should forever remember them and be grateful our torch still shines high over the world, and reflect about our obligation to teach and encourage with personal examples how an ideal and principals were achieved and perpetuated, and the trust we place in the hands of those who will someday take our places.

It is also a fitting day to drop by your church (there might be a flag in evidence); after all, it is known as a House of God, and where else a better place to whisper a heartfelt "thank you." Only a minute or two for gratitude.

John Adams said: "I am apt to believe that it will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival. It ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance, by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires, and illuminations, from one end of this continent to the other, from this time forward and evermore.

So Independence Days were celebrated with the firing of guns and setting off of fireworks with all the other hallmarks of rejoicing and exultation. There was sadness, too. Hundreds of deaths and thousands of injuries were caused each year by the guns and fireworks. We remember the pleadings for a "safe and sane Fourth."

Many cities and states passed laws forbidding the sale of fireworks. North Carolina became one of them.

Now controlled fireworks shows promote the day. It's promoters say the Greenville fireworks display will be the largest in North Carolina, and we see no reason to question it.

Take time to enjoy the show. Independence Day is for celebrating.

Belts Needed

The state of New York will be the first in the nation having a law that requires the use of seat belts in automobiles. As of this writing, all the law requires is the signature of Gov. Mario Cuomo, and since he favored adoption, the outlook is more than merely favorable.

To date, more than 30 countries have mandatory seat belt laws in force ... as do six of Canada's 10 provinces.

Supporters of the New York measure said it would save at least 400 lives annually in the state, as well as a half-billion dollars per year in terms of lower medical costs and fewer work hours lost.

Opponents saw it as an intrusion by the government into the lives of individuals; which it most certainly is! It intrudes into the lives of 400 or so people each year who might otherwise die, and intrudes into the lives of several times that many who might otherwise suffer injuries of traumatic proportions.

It has crossed our minds, too, that the law reinforces the concept that driving a car is not a right, but a privilege.

In time, perhaps other states will follow New York's example. We hope North Carolina will be among them.

Bill Folds Golden Parachutes

WASHINGTON — Have you ever fumed at hearing how well some executives make out when their companies are bought?

If you have, you're not alone. Sen. John Chafee of Rhode Island says there are "plenty" of cases in which executives have girded themselves with contracts guaranteeing hefty severance pay in the event of an actual or threatened merger. Chafee points to former Bendix Chairman William Agee who, after Allied Chemical bought his company in 1982, departed on a "golden parachute" contract worth at least $4 million.

But unlike most Americans, Republican Chafee is in a position to vent his anger. And that he did, by way of an unprecedented addition to the tax bill that House and Senate conferees completed on June 23.

With objection coming only from the Treasury Department, which questioned the jurisdictional implications of the measure, Chafee slipped into the Senate bill a 20 percent excise tax on settlements that are more than double the best pay received by the recipient during the previous five years. The remaining 80 percent would be subject, of course, to income taxes. In addition, a company that rewarded departing executives with 200 percent of their previous pay wouldn't be able to deduct the compensation on its own tax return.

Though the House hadn't even considered a similar provision for its own tax bill, the Chafee idea encountered virtually no opposition when it came up early in conference. At the request of Rep. Fortney (Pete) Stark, D-Calif., who had held House hearings on golden parachutes, the threshold was increased to 300 percent of the recent salary high.

Chafee insists that he's not trying to prevent mergers by discouraging fat severance settlements. "I'm not philosophically opposed to mergers," he told us.

But Chafee, who says he would have liked to subject golden parachutes to a 90 percent excise tax, says that he's determined to end the practice even if the present measure fails. "If this doesn't get them," he said, "we'll try again."

When U.S. students go abroad to study, they rarely venture beyond the industrialized West. That's almost a given. But the Third World-bound total, less than 5 percent, is even worse when one considers that in 1982-83 only two countries — Mexico and Israel — accounted for almost two-thirds of President Reagan couldn't say it out loud at his press conference, but he hinted that one of the problems with having a summit conference with his counterpart in the Soviet Union is that he doesn't know who it is.

Just before the conference he received a briefing from Soviet experts in the CIA and State Department.

"Chernenko is sick," said one expert. "The power is shifting to Andrei Gromyko and Defense Minister Ustinov."

"Then I ought to meet with them," the president said.

"If you do, you will offend Grigori Romanov of the Communist Party in Leningrad, who now seems to be running the KGB. We're not sure if he's with the Chernenko group or against them. But I'd give him a set of cufflinks, just in case."

"Well, how do I make any progress with the Soviets if Chernenko isn't in charge?" the president asked.

"We didn't say he wasn't in charge. He's a wily old goat and has some Young Turks in the Politburo who cannot be ignored because of any of them could be Chernenko's heir apparent."

"Are they hard-liners?"

"Some are and some aren't. Mikhail Gorbachev is one of the favorites for the job if Chernenko dies He's 52, so he'll be around for a long time. I'd also give him cufflinks to play it safe. But do it quietly. If the anti-Chernenko crowd gets wind of it, they'll use it against him if he goes for the leadership."

"How can I remember all these people if I go to a summit? I can't even remember the names of the members in my own Cabinet."

"Here are some photographs taken of Chernenko and the other Soviet leaders at the last May Day parade. We've put their names underneath them so you'll know who is who."

The president studied the photographs. "They all look alike to me."

"Call everyone 'Comrade' and you won't have a problem."

"How can I call a Soviet leader Comrade after what I've said about them?"

"It's like calling someone Mister."

"I don't think it's a good time to propose a summit meeting with the Soviets when we don't know who we're dealing with."

"It couldn't be a better time. Our intelligence indicates if you propose one now they will turn it down flat."

"Why?"

"Because if you meet with Chernenko it will acknowledge that as far as the United States is concerned he is in charge. The anti-Chernenko forces in the Kremlin can't afford this while they're lining up their support to take over the power, once Chernenko is stuck in the Kremlin wall."

"Chernenko must know this. What's to prevent him from accepting my invitation to a summit to put his domestic enemies in their place?"

"The Soviet army will never go for a summit at this time, and from what we can learn they have a lot to say about who meets with Chernenko and who doesn't."

"Then it's your opinion that I should announce at the press conference that I'm willing to meet with Chernenko without a prepared agenda?"

"It will look great in an election year, particularly since there is no chance of it taking place. Our intelligence indicates that if you do this you'll be co-opting one of the major issues the Democrats plan to use against you in the fall. By taking a softer line on the Soviets between now and Election Day you'll stop all the talk that you're intransigent about Soviet-American relations."

"What happens, if in spite of your intelligence, the Soviets agree to go to a summit with no strings attached?"

"Then you have nothing to lose but your cufflinks."

To the editor:
Higher education helps to liberate us. The truly educated man (and I use the term "man" in its generic sense) is a liberally educated man. Please note that I said liberally educated and not necessarily educated in the liberal arts. Unfortunately, higher education in the United States for the past several decades has stressed specialization to a harmful degree. We find history teachers and professors who know nothing about computer language, computer experts who cannot identify George Shultz or Henry Kissinger, engineers who cannot compose a lucid letter, priests who know little about the business world, coaches who confine their speeches before civic clubs to the forthcoming prospects of their teams, medical doctors who lack knowledge of the labor movement, attorneys who have never heard of Hamlet or William Faulkner, and countless college students who know only English and then proceed to butcher their native tongue.

Compare these situations to the multi-educated Leonardo da Vinci, Thomas Jefferson and Winston Churchill. Leonardo was a civil and military engineer. Also, he was a sculptor, musician, painter, botanist, inventor, architect, astronomer, geologist, anatomist and student of aviation. Jefferson was educated to be a lawyer, but he was also an author, architect, scientific farmer, diplomat, politician, inventor, musician and educator. Churchill was trained to be a professional soldier and began his career with the British Army. He went on to become a newspaper correspondent, master of the written word, prolific author, eloquent speaker, naval expert, pilot and statesman.

Can we develop Leonardos, Jeffersons and Churchills among teachers, professors and students? That is unlikely, but we can make drastic improvements in our educational system. We certainly cannot make these improvements if the present trend of overspecialization continues. And if developing a truly educated man at any college or university seems impossible, I think the poet Robert Browning had the best reply:

"Ah, but a man's reach should exceed his grasp, or what's a heaven for?"

Medical Concerns

RALEIGH — Local public hospitals are being squeezed. Health care costs are rising while federal aid to pay for care for the large number of indigent patients is falling. Paying patients, on the other hand, are often able to avoid a stay at the local hospital by having their ailments treated in for-profit clinics or hospitals.

The squeeze has begun to create a drain on local government budgets and, understandably, local officials have begun looking for ways to cut that drain. One solution finding increased acceptance around the country is the sale or lease of the public hospital to a profit-making hospital corporation.

There are 147 non-federal hospitals in North Carolina and of these, 34, or 20 percent, are owned or managed for profit. So far, the trend that converts public hospitals to profit-making ownership or management has not hit hard here. Only three counties have sold or leased their hospitals to profitmaking corporations.

But there are concerns that within the next five years, such sales or leases will become quite common. In 1983, the Legislature slapped a one-year moratorium on any such transactions and in the 1984 short session legislation dealing with regulation of any such transfers was handed.

While the idea of profitmaking hospitals might sound bloodthirsty to some, there are some very good public policy reasons for taking hospitals out of the hands of local governments. There are also some legitimate concerns about such transactions. Between the 1984 and 1984 legislative sessions, a study committee looked into the pros and cons.

First the pros. Private hospital corporations have better access to capital than do local governments. Many hospitals in this state need major capital infusions which the local government just can't meet. Private investors can.

Investor-owned hospitals tend to be better managed. As the committee's report states, they "are in the business of operating hospitals, whereas many others who run hospitals in North Carolina are simply not experts." The presence of a profitmaking hospital often helps competing public hospitals as these better management skills become apparent and are copied.

Profitmaking hospitals can buy in volume and maintain sophisticated inventory controls — steps which can bring down costs.

There is a tax advantage. The profitable hospital pays taxes. The local, money-losing, public hospital eats up tax money.

On the other hand, the sale of a public hospital to a profitmaking group poses some problems. A Blue Cross of North Carolina study says the for-profit hospitals charge their patients higher rates. Rep. Paul Pulley, D-Durham, chairman of the study commission, says the for-profits charge room rates similar to those of non-profit hospitals but charge significantly more for other services.

There are also concerns for the amount of indigent (profit-draining) care which for-profit hospitals will perform. If they won't take care of indigents, the indigents will go to another public hospital and aggravate its financial problems.

The for-profit hospitals might also skim the best paying patients away from the public hospitals. This would also put a drain on the remaining public facilities.

As these pros and cons are weighed, public officials will also be faced with the basic philosophical questions raised by mixing profit and a man's moral and democratic right to health care.

Strength For Today

The word "conscience" comes from two Latin words which mean "with knowledge." Our conscience, therefore, is that inner set of judgments which have grown up in our hearts and which automatically react to every situation, telling us whether we are doing right or wrong.

Some one has said that conscience is the man inside us who talks all night and keeps us awake. He may only mumble and whisper, or he may argue and shriek out in a startling fashion. An offended conscience is the most uncongenial companion one can have, and the fact that we cannot get away from him, even when we sleep, makes his presence all the more discomfiting.

But on the other hand, the foundation of all joy is a clear conscience. It is the viceregent of God in the human heart which can bring comfort and confidence as well as anxiety. When we listen to it and act upon it, it is a friend whose counsel the wise will always follow.

To the editor:
In reply to the letter in your paper June 28 written by the Honorable Mr. William C. Byrd Sr. of Route 3, Greenville, concerning the Greenville City School Budget mentioned in the County Budget article of June 12, I should like to make this reply to Mr. Byrd.

Ever since I can remember, nearly every governmental agency ever heard of has been presenting padded budget requests to those who are responsible for their approval. No doubt, they do this in order not only to have enough for their necessary operation, but to also have enough left over for too much unnecessary operation.

I, for one, am from the town proper of Greenville and, indeed, feel fortunate that we have an able and capable county manager who has for years now been working with county budgets, and is gifted in the art of being able to know the fat from the lean and doesn't mind chopping some of the fat out of the budget.

Wouldn't it be wonderful if all county managers had as much concern for the taxpayer as Mr. Reginald Gray does?

I dearly love the thought of doing as much as we can to help every child to get a better education, but is it really necessary to pay $1,000 for what can be had for $100? A thought to think about. Think about it!

Thank you.

Committee Members Seek Compromise On Bank Bill

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Members of a state House committee are trying to compromise with bankers to give state officials power to monitor bank holding companies as part of an interstate banking bill.

The House Banks and Thrift Institutions Committee was scheduled to meet today to consider a compromise amendment drafted late Monday night by bankers and committee members who reached a stalemate in two earlier meetings.

The bill, already approved in the Senate, would let banks and bank holding companies in 13 Southeastern states and the District of Columbia acquire North Carolina banks if state banks have similar privileges in the other states.

The compromise amendment would require bank holding companies to register with the North Carolina banking commissioner but would not require them to submit reports or undergo examinations that already fall under the jurisdiction of the Federal Reserve Board.

Under the compromise, the commissioner would be allowed to halt bank holding company operations that violate state law, a more limited oversight than originally proposed.

The committee adjourned Friday after introduction of an amendment that would give the state banking commissioner authority to register and examine bank holding companies.

"I think there is a legitimate concern about regulating bank holding companies," said Rep. Charles Evans, D-Dare, committee chairman. "If it (controversy over the amendment) cannot be resolved I intend to present the amendment as is to be voted up or down."

Evans noted that Georgia has a law similar to the amendment and Florida gives its commissioner more limited oversight authority.

"There is some room for minor compromise," said John McNair, vice chairman of Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. He said the bankers would accept registration with the banking commissioner but would not accept further examination by the commissioner.

"It includes the entire amendment as written we would do whatever we could to scrap it (the bill)," McNair said.

John Jordan, lobbyist for the bankers, said he said objected to the original amendment because it is not relevant to interstate banking, it duplicates existing regulations and it interferes with the duties of federal agencies.

Paul Polking, vice president and assistant general counsel for NCNB Corp., questioned the constitutionality of part of the original amendment allowing the commissioner to intervene in bank holding companies or their subsidiaries take actions "detrimental to safety and soundness" of a state or federally chartered bank.

In a related action, the committee quickly approved similar legislation for savings and loans. Industry lobbyist Gordon Allen acknowledged, however, there is no rush to acquire savings and loans across state lines. Allen said only South Carolina has a similar law.

Evans said one reason the savings and loan bill moved so quickly is that the state savings and loan administrator has more authority over acquisitions and mergers than the banking commissioner has over acquisitions.

Prison Wardens Placed On Alert

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The director of the state's Corrections Department says "inferences" have been made that wardens could lose their jobs if additional escapes occur from Virginia's prisons.

The wardens were ordered into a "heightened state of alert" following the escape of eight inmates in less than a month, a Corrections Department spokesman said Monday, one day after Corrections Department Director Robert Landon met with more than 70 prison officials in a 3 1/2-hour closed session at the Virginia Correctional Center for Women in Goochland County.

The meeting was called in the wake of the second escape from a Virginia prison in a month. The latest break occurred Friday at the Virginia State Penitentiary in Richmond, where two convicts ran away while on a work detail outside the wall of the facility. They were recaptured several hours later.

On May 31, six death row inmates escaped from the Mecklenburg Correctional Center in southern Virginia. The last two of those escapees were recaptured three weeks after the escape.

Landon described Sunday's meeting as somber. Representatives of Virginia's 14 major adult prisons, 25 road camps and two work-release centers attended the session, along with Franklin E. White, Virginia's secretary of public safety; John W. Williams, chairman of the corrections board; and board member Carroll E. Lillard.

Landon said the officials discussed problems such as "dead spots" in prison fences, insufficient electronic monitoring equipment and low pay for prison guards. Landon said he would ask Gov. Charles S. Robb to raise salaries for the guards, some of whom earn less than $12,000 yearly.

He also said that the prison system needs improved communication between management and "the soldiers in the trenches."

"There's a great need for better communication. I want a fail-safe communication system," Landon said.

The prison wardens and superintendents are to present written reports on security in their institutions by Friday.

Landon defended the prison system, saying there is no "reign of incompetence." But he said the two escapes had demoralized the department.

"I'm not saying everyone's going around with their heads hanging," said Landon, "but this has been a shock wave."

NAACP To Take Justice Department To Court

PARROTT CANVAS CO., INC.

West End Circle 756-4011

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Sharp attacks on the Reagan administration and the announcement of a lawsuit accusing the Justice Department of civil rights violations marked the opening of the 75th annual convention of the NAACP. Separate appearances were scheduled today by the frontrunner for the Democratic presidential nomination, Walter Mondale, and the Rev. Jesse Jackson, the only black to seek the party's nod this year. The two candidates were to meet privately before they addressed delegates to the meeting of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Herbert H. Henderson, the NAACP's general counsel, said Monday that the civil rights group would file a suit within 60 days to stop the Justice Department "from placing its heavy thumb on the scale of justice in order to tip it in favor of the powerful and the entrenched male, white establishment." Henderson's remarks, on the first day of the convention, were in reference to a recent Supreme Court ruling on a Memphis firefighters case, in which the court upheld the constitutionality of the "last-hired, first-fired" method for layoffs. White firefighters had challenged the city's decision to dismiss them instead of more recently hired minorities during a budget crunch. — Rep. Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, also sharply criticized President Reagan and his administration during a floor address. "Civil rights are under siege and they have been under siege since the beginning of this administration," Rodino told convention delegates. Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., and his wife, Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole, defended the administration. Mrs. Dole, the official stand-in for Reagan at the convention, said she and her husband "share a deep abhorrence for the seeds of hatred sown by those misguided members of our society who would deny others their right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Authority Looks To Rebuilding Year

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Housing Authority will be using the coming fiscal year as a rebuilding period, Director Joe Laney told members of the Authority Monday prior to the board's decision to adopt an operating budget of $1.5 million for 1985.

"Since we took care of most of our modernization and weatherization needs in 1984, we can look forward to a trouble-free year and a chance to rebuild our reserves," Laney explained.

The budget projects an anticipated $50,000 to $100,000 surplus which Laney said is due to a projected increase of 11 percent in operating income and a 13 percent decrease in operating expenses. The increase in operating income will come primarily through statutory changes in rent calculation ordered in past years by Congress. Laney said the Authority has gradually been adjusting rents at its housing developments since Congress approved the adjustments in 1981.

The 13 percent or $250,000 decrease in operating expenses is a reflection of the thoroughness of modernization efforts under the 1984 budget, Laney said. "Because we got so much done in 1984, it will not be necessary to do so much in 1985," he said.

The new budget also includes a seven percent increase in administrative costs which will cover a limited merit increase and increasing costs of general administration.

In other business, Sallye Streeter, director of resident affairs, reported only one housing project vacancy during the month of June. She added that the average rent level for June was $108.88 per unit. Rent at Meadowbrook was $102.94, $112.08 at Kearney Park, $105.43 at Moyewood I, $112 at Moyewood II, $105.52 at Hopkins Park and $118.78 at Newtown.

In final 1984 business, the board approved the purchase of $47,230 of office and maintenance equipment.

Daniels Escapes Martin Prison Unit

WILLIAMSTON, N.C. (AP) — A 43-year-old Beaufort County man convicted of offering the county sheriff a bribe escaped Monday from Martin County Prison Unit, a state official said.

Masceo E. Daniels was reported missing during a routine bed check at 6 a.m., said James R. Langley, head of the state Department of Correction's Eastern District.

It was not known how Daniels escaped from the minimum-security facility near Williamston, Langley said. The prison has about 132 inmates.

Daniels, a Pamlico Beach commercial fisherman and grocery operator, was sentenced Dec. 15 to five years in prison after a Beaufort County Superior Court jury convicted him of offering Sheriff Nelson L. Sheppard up to $100,000 to turn his back on drug smuggling in the county.

Prosecution evidence included tapes of secretly recorded conversations in which Daniels offered Sheppard money to "look the other way" on drug smuggling.

Daniels testified he was working as an informant for federal authorities, but federal officials denied that.

Daniels had been at the Martin County unit since March 16.

Eastern Belt Opens Aug. 1

RALEIGH (AP) — The Flue-Cured Tobacco Advisory Committee voted on Monday to begin flue-cured tobacco sales in North Carolina on July 31 — two days earlier than last year.

The July 31 start-up would be for Area B markets, which include Fairmont, Lumberton and other sales outlets along the North Carolina-South Carolina border.

Opening day for Area C, which includes the Eastern Belt, the Sandhills and Fuquay-Varina, is scheduled to be August 1. Area D, which includes the northern end of the Middle Belt, will open August 7, while Area E, including the Old Belt of Virginia and 10 Piedmont markets, will begin August 14.

The committee barred Friday sales in all markets and set July 25 as the first day of sales in Area A, which covers markets in Georgia and Florida.

John H. Cyrus, tobacco affairs director for the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, said the state's tobacco crop looks good.

"I would say our crop ... is probably at the same state it was last year, and generally at this time we had a pretty good outlook for the crop," Cyrus told the committee, which met in Raleigh. "But what happened in July and August (a drought) pulled the rug out from under us."

Farmers are beginning to harvest along the Border Belt, and widespread harvesting will begin there next week, Cyrus said. Scattered harvesting is reported in the Eastern Belt, with the Old Belt expected to begin harvesting in late July, he said.

Barfield Stay Issued

By DENNIS PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer

Convicted murderer Velma Margie Barfield has been moved from Central Prison's Death Row to Women's Correctional Center after a U.S. Supreme Court justice issued a stay of execution in her case.

Don Stephens of the state attorney general's office said he believed the decision by Justice Warren Burger on Monday stemmed from questions about jury selection.

"In the Barfield case, there were several jurors who didn't specifically say they could not, under any circumstances, impose the death penalty," Stephens said. "They were disqualified."

He said in cases where a prospective juror cannot specifically state opposition to the death penalty, the judge must listen to all the answers and rule if the person would be unable to vote for capital punishment. North Carolina law excludes jurors who oppose the death punishment from capital cases.

Prosecutors said the stay, which awaits action by the full court, makes it unlikely the execution will take place this summer. The date had been set for Aug. 31.

"The court is not prepared to let anyone be executed while an issue is still in litigation," he said. "August 31 is out of the question."

Ambassador Says Talks With Shultz 'Useful'

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin met for 90 minutes today with Secretary of State George P. Shultz and said afterward they held a detailed discussion of outstanding issues, including proposed negotiations to ban weapons in space.

Dobrynin told reporters that he was leaving later in the day for Moscow and that the talks with Shultz, held over breakfast at the State Department, were "useful."

"We discussed the present state of Soviet-American relations because I am leaving today for Moscow," he said. "So it was useful to go item-by-item and we discussed, of course, the proposal for the demilitarization of the cosmos." He declined further comment.

It was the fourth known meeting between Shultz and Dobrynin in the last three weeks, including a session last week at which Dobrynin delivered the Soviet proposal to hold talks in Vienna in September aimed at banning weapons in outer space.

Dobrynin also talked at length with President Reagan at a White House barbecue for the diplomatic corps Sunday night.

Despite election-year pressure to accept Moscow's offer to negotiate a ban on space weapons, presidential advisers believe Reagan should insist on adding nuclear arms discussions to the agenda to avoid seeming overly eager.

A high-level administration official conceded that the administration realized it was risking a rebuff by the Soviet Union by proposing resumption of nuclear arms talks.

"You can say to me that you might have known ... that you were running the risk of a turndown by the Soviets. And I would say, 'Absolutely,'" said the official who was interviewed only on condition that he not be identified.

"But that makes the point I'm trying to make to you: just because it would be advantageous from an election standpoint to be able to sit down with the Soviets — looked at purely from domestic politics — that would not be good policy," he said.

After Dobrynin met with Shultz last Friday, Reagan responded later in the day that the United States was interested in discussing resumption of nuclear missile talks first.

In Moscow, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko accused the United States of creating a "cult of terrorism" that threatens world peace, and claimed Washington was blocking negotiations on nuclear arms and space weapons.

On Monday, the Reagan administration said it would agree to talks with the Soviets with no preconditions, but still would raise the nuclear arms issue.

Speaking at a Kremlin lunch for British Foreign Secretary Geoffrey Howe, Gromyko repeated his government's rejection of the U.S. proposal to merge talks on space weapons and a reduction of nuclear missiles, calling it a "stacked deck" against the Soviets.

But Howe endorsed the White House proposal and told Gromyko that the Soviet refusal to resume negotiations on reducing medium- and long-range nuclear missiles was "self-defeating."

U.S.-Soviet negotiations on nuclear weapons were halted late last year as Moscow protested NATO's deployment of new American missiles in Western Europe.

"The one thing I think is important — he should not be seen as begging the Soviets for a meeting," said the White House official.

He did not believe Reagan gave Dobrynin a message to take to Moscow when the two men met and talked at length during a White House barbecue Sunday night.

"I can't say that he gave him (Dobrynin) a message to take back, but they talked at the reception for the diplomatic corps, and I would just imagine that, as he routinely does, he would report on that conversation," said the official, referring to Dobrynin's normal communications with Soviet authorities.

"He (Reagan) has made it clear that he's sincere and reasonable in terms of going anywhere at any time," the official said. "The only thing he said is there are a whole host of things we really ought to at least discuss — maybe we don't negotiate but at least we discuss them — and it shouldn't be limited solely to the one thing that the Soviets are interested in because that's not good policy, putting aside for the moment the politics of it."

This official added, "It's neither good policy nor good politics to be seen as having a meeting — sort of wanting a meeting at all costs. That's really not where the president is. That's not the way he feels about it."

It is this reasoning, a week in a speech to the National Geographic Society.

"In other words, he's not going to go sit down and give something away just because it's important for his re-election effort," he continued. "And I think that's why the (National Geographic) speech had both elements, the 'I'm willing to go talk about all these things' and '...let's not forget we have the problem of human rights we have to consider."

While this official acknowledged there was a split between the conservatives and the pragmatists in the administration about how to handle Soviet policy, he disagreed that that split accounts for the way Reagan often sounds a conciliatory tone toward the Soviets even as he's denouncing them.

Attack On Ship Leaves 2 Dead

By The Associated Press
Two crewmen aboard a Cypriot cargo ship were killed and four were injured when the ship was attacked Sunday near the Iranian port of Bandar Khomeini, a spokesman for the ship's owners said today.

The spokesman did not say who staged the attack on the 13,316-ton Alexandra Dyo, but Iraq has claimed that its forces attacked five ships in that section of the Persian Gulf on Sunday. It has tried to enforce a blockade around Iranian ports as part of its strategy in the 45-month-old Iran-Iraq war.

The Alexandra Dyo, which was carrying a load of Japanese steel products from Mozambique, was badly damaged in the attack, according to Capt. Epaminondas Koumantaros, agent for the vessel's Cypriot owners, Eurotribune Marine Ltd.

Koumantaros said the dead and wounded crewmen were Filipinos. He said the four officers and the rest of the crew were safe in Bander

Khomeini, at the north end of the gulf.

"It isn't yet clear what's happened. The ship appears to have run aground as a result of the attack," he said.

Iraq claimed that its warplanes destroyed five ships Sunday and shot down an Iranian fighter in a dogfight over the area.

One of the targets, according to the South Korean Foreign Ministry, was a South Korean cargo ship, also carrying Japanese steel, that was hit by two Iraqi missiles. South Korea said four crewmen aboard the 10,205-ton Wonjin-ho were injured but that all those aboard were picked up by Iranian rescuers.

The ministry said the ship was hit in the engine room and set ablaze. Iraq has staged frequent attacks on commercial ships in the gulf in an attempt to enforce its blockade of Iranian ports.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today in trendless pre-holiday trading.

The 10:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials stood at 1,130.08, unchanged from Monday's close.

Losers slightly outnumbered gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The markets will be closed Wednesday for Independence Day, and a good many participants in them are expected to take Thursday and Friday off as well.

With the Treasury selling new seven-year notes today, and 20-year bonds on Thursday, broker said fears persisted of further upward pressure on interest rates. Today's early primes included Sears Roebuck, up 1/4 at 31 3/4; International Business Machines, up 1/4 at 106, and American Telephone & Telegraph, unchanged at 17.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average slipped 2.32 to 1,130.08. Declines outpaced advances by about 3 to 2 on the NYSE.

The NHSE's composite index dropped .05 to the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .7 at 199.34.

given by the board to retract the bid for multi-peril insurance granted on June 18 to Buchanan Insurance Association in an amount of $14,002; and to award the contract to Tadlock Insurance Agency, Inc. for an amount of $10,250. The action was necessitated by an administrative error in tabulating the bid offers submitted by four agencies.

A first reading was approved for a policy paper on the subject of separated or divorced parents. The policy is designed to deal with problems faced by the school in instances where one parent attempts to direct the school not to permit the other parent contact or any form of access to school records of a student.

In other actions:

- Approval was given for disposal of one typewriter as surplus property.
- An expression of support was given for the concept of ownership of a building by the N. C. School Boards Association to serve as the association's headquarters, but without any financial commitment from the city school board.
- Authorized an arrangement relative to any profits accrued from publication of the IV-C science materials developed by Wendie Allen and others for curriculum use in the city schools. The materials have been adopted by a number of school systems. The approved arrangement calls for any profits realized to be credited to the Greenville City Schools.

In non-action matters, the board was informed that the ECU School of Nursing plans to continue its assistance to the city schools through its various programs of free services to the schools. During the past school year, the nursing school worked with 425 children in six schools in a broad range of health matters. Board member Martha Coffman noted "this is another fine example of the university, the local schools and the community working together for the benefit of each other. We are grateful for this assistance."

Reporting on the tutorial program to students in the city schools provided by Kappa Leaguers of the Eta Psi chapter of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity at East Carolina University, David Barnhill said, "We are proud of what has been achieved in this program. These fine young men have been in the forefront of those giving time and effort to help a number of students needing special attention. They not only give tutorial services, they are friends who work and play with the boys." Barnhill added that "sororities at ECU are also working with students in tutorial programs." The current Kappa Alpha Psi program centers primarily around 20 boys, mostly at Middle School. The students are ones who have been chosen by guidance counselors as most in need of help in order to keep them from becoming dropouts. A fraternity spokesman has indicated that the group hopes to expand this assistance to students at Rose High in the near future.

In executive session, the school board accepted the resignation of three personnel and approved the election of five personnel.

contest are scheduled for 3 p.m. A watermelon seed-spitting contest will be held at 3:45 p.m., followed by a tricycle race (bring your own) for those aged two to five at 4:30 p.m. A "time for a hot dog" will be at 6 p.m.

Chairmen of this year's celebration are Randy Pelisero and Claye Frank. The rain date is July 6.

Classes at Pitt Community College will be closed for the day, while East Carolina University will follow its normal summer schedule.

The Greenville Post Office, including the ECU branch, will be closed and no mail deliveries will be made except for special and express deliveries.

Sheppard Memorial Library and its branches will be closed, but will resume normal operation hours Thursday at 9 a.m. Joyner Library at ECU will be open.

Other closures in observance of July 4 include city of Greenville offices, Pitt County offices, the Department of Transportation, the Department of Motor Vehicles and most banks. Several local stores are having special sales.

Heavy Damage In Wrecks

An estimated $4,300 damage resulted from four traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Monday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 3:20 p.m. collision at the intersection of Greene and Fourth Streets, involving cars driven by John E. Gough of 1902 E. 14th St., and John David Brewer of Route 5, Greenville.

Damage from the collision was set at $1,500 to the Gough car and $500 to the Brewer auto.

Cars driven by Alice Davis Spain of 402 Highland Ave., and Charles Leroy Durham of Winterville, collided about 4:14 p.m. at the intersection of Greene Street and Airport Road, causing an estimated $900 damage to the Spain car and $700 damage to the Durham vehicle.

Police charged Durham with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety in connection with the mishap.

A 6:07 p.m. collision at the intersection of Second and Reade Streets involved a car driven by

Gooden Fans 12 As Mets Win

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

The fans were cheering every two-strike pitch by Dwight Gooden and the Ks were being posted on the upper deck facade at a rate commensurate with the rookie strikeout artist's latest overpowering performance.

A crowd of 21,923 had come to Shea Stadium hoping to see the 19-year-old right-hander take the major league lead in strikeouts. He didn't disappoint them, fanning 12 in a 4-2 victory Monday night over the Houston Astros to boost his total to 125 and pitch the New York Mets into first place in the National League East.

A large red K was taped to the railing and the drama continued to mount with each succeeding strikeout in what has become known as The K Korner, a spot near the left-field foul pole. It reached its climax when Houston's Jerry Mumphrey fanned for the third time to boost Gooden past Fernando Valenzuela of Los Angeles.

Gooden, in living up to his reputation of being poised far beyond his years, seemed unmoved by all the commotion.

"I don't get caught up in the crowd," said Gooden, who has fanned 10 or more six times. "The first time it happened I wondered what was going on. Now I just have to shut it out."

But the fan reaction is a concern to Mets' Manager Davey Johnson, who said that at times in the past Gooden has tried for a strikeout with a fastball rather than going with the right pitch at the right moment.

"The fans are getting old hat clapping so much," Johnson said.

The fans didn't impress the Astros, but Gooden's effort certainly did.

"Right now, he's one of the best right-handers in the league," said Jose Cruz, who had three of the eight hits off Gooden. Jesse Orosco relieved Gooden with one out in the ninth and picked up his 15th save.

"He's one of the best young pitchers I've ever seen especially when he's throwing 95 miles an hour," Cruz added.

Elsewhere, San Diego tripped Chicago 5-1, Philadelphia blanked Cincinnati 4-0, Montreal edged Atlanta 5-4 and Los Angeles shaded Pittsburgh 5-4. St. Louis and San Francisco were not scheduled.

Gooden, 7-5, tamed the hot-hitting Astros, who had been averaging seven runs over their last 12 games, after a shaky first inning. He allowed a leadoff triple to Bill Doran, Craig Reynolds' RBI grounder and a double to Cruz, who is now 18 for his last 31.

Wally Backman led the New York attack by driving in three runs, but errors contributed to the cause.

The Mets tied it 1-1 in the second inning when Darryl Strawberry tripped off the left-field wall with Cruz missing a catchable ball and scored when Hubie Brooks hit a chopper that shortstop Reynolds tried to short-hop but misplayed for a two-base error.

In the fifth inning, New York scored twice against Mike Scott, 4-6, without hitting the ball out of the infield. Right fielder Terry Puhl misplayed a hit by Ron Gardenhire in the seventh to help the Mets, who lead both Chicago and Philadelphia by three percentage points, score their final run.

Padres 5, Cubs 1

Three Chicago errors aided San Diego, which increased its NL West lead to five games over Atlanta. Dave Dravecky, 5-4, allowed just four hits in six innings, walked one and struck out a career-high seven batters. In his last 37 1-3 innings, the Padre left-hander has allowed only three runs and permitted just 18 hits.

San Diego went ahead 2-1 thanks to a sixth-inning throwing error by loser Rick Reuschel, 4-4, and added three more runs in the seventh with the help of a two-run error by Gary Matthews.

Garry Templeton, who had three hits, led off with a double and George Frazier relieved Reuschel. Pinch hitter Tim Flannery walked and Alan Wiggins dropped down a bunt single to load the bases. Tony Gwynn lashed a single to left to score Templeton, and Flannery and Wiggins came home when the ball eluded Matthews.

Phillies 4, Reds 0

Shane Rawley, making his first start for Philadelphia, pitched two-hit ball over seven innings and Ozzie Virgil and Glenn Wilson hit solo home runs.

Rawley, 1-0, acquired Saturday from the New York Yankees, allowed both hits — singles by Dave Parker and Nick Esasky — in the fifth inning. Al Holland retired all six batters he faced in the final two innings.

Juan Samuel opened the Phillies' first with an infield single, stole second and third and scored when catcher Brad Gulden's throw went into left field. Samuel leads the major leagues with 40 stolen bases.

The Phillies made it 2-0 in the second on Virgil's 12th home run of the season and added another run in the sixth.

Wilson opened the seventh by hitting the first pitch from Tom Hume, 3-8, over the left-field wall for his sixth home run.

Expos 5, Braves 4

Andre Dawson's double highlighted a four-run sixth inning that made a winner of David Palmer. Miguel Dilone, batting for Palmer, 3-3, singled for the first of four straight hits off Atlanta's Pascual Perez, 8-3, who had retired 14 of the previous 15 batters and held a 2-1 lead.

Tim Raines, who had homered on the second pitch of the game, followed with a single and then Pete Rose singled to drive in Dilone. Raines scored the go-ahead run on Dawson's double, Rose came home on a wild pitch and Gary Carter drove in the final run of the inning with a sacrifice fly.

The Braves had tied the game 1-1 in the fourth and went ahead an inning later on Claudell Washington's 10th homer.

Atlanta threatened to tie the game in the ninth, but Dale Murphy, who had singled off Jeff Reardon, was cut down by Carter trying to steal third. Then Reardon got his 12th save by retiring Gerald Perry to end the game.

Dodgers 5, Pirates 4

Pedro Guerrero had two hits and drove in two runs, and rookie Franklin Stubbs added three hits for Los Angeles, which extended Pittsburgh's losing streak to seven games. The Dodgers sent nine men to the plate and scored four runs in the fourth inning to overcome a 2-0 Pirate lead.

Steve Sax doubled home Dave Anderson against Larry McWilliams, 4-7, then Guerrero hit a ground-rule double to score Bill Russell and winner Alejandro Pena, who had two hits. Candy Maldonado doubled to center to score Guerrero and give the Dodgers a 4-2 lead.

Stubbs tripled in the seventh and scored on Anderson's sacrifice fly.

Pena, 9-4, scattered eight hits in 7 1-3 innings before giving way to Tom Niedenfuer, who earned his 10th save.

Dale Berra had three hits and two RBI for the Pirates.

EC Inks Two For Baseball

Pitcher David Mabe of East Surry High School and catcher-outfielder Jay McGraw of North Mecklenburg have signed to play baseball at East Carolina University, according to new head Coach Gary Overton.

Mabe, a lefthander from Pilot Mountain, was named All-State three years and compiled an ERA of 0.48 in four years. He finished with a record of 48-12, including a 14-4 senior mark with 209 strikeouts in 114 innings. Mabe had a .465 batting average in his final season and was chosen All-Northwest 3-A Conference each of his four seasons.

McGraw hit .400 and was tabbed All-Southwestern 4-A Conference as a junior and senior. He was named All-State in his final year and hit nine homers.

"They fill our most needed positions," Overton said. "These two spots were the targets of our recruiting efforts."

"(Mabe's) a good curveball pitcher, and McGraw's a power hitter with good speed."

Heros Of Yesteryear As Glorious As Ever

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harmon Killebrew's home run trot is now a waddle, Sandy Koufax's fastball no longer rises, and Hank Aaron's latest home run was a broken-bat special.

But for baseball-starved fans in the nation's capital the heros of yesteryear were as glorious as ever as the National League defeated the American League 9-4 in the 3rd annual Cracker Jack Old Timers Baseball Classic Monday night.

"I've never hit a broken-bat home run before," said Aaron, who blasted a record 755 during his career with the Milwaukee and Atlanta Braves. But his first-inning shot was the first of four homers by the National League, and gave the senior circuit a 2-0 lead they never relinquished.

Johnny Bench, Tom Haller and Billy Williams also homered for the National League, which captured the game for the second year in a row.

Bench, the game's youngest participant at 36, was thrilled to be playing in his first old timers' game.

"All these guys were heroes to me. I hope they ask me back, I would like to catch a Warren Spahn or Sandy Koufax," he said. "I think I still have a few good years left in me."

The American League also relied on the long ball, as Killebrew, a new member of Baseball's Hall of Fame, and former Oriole catcher Andy Etchebarren hit solo shots in the bottom of the second inning.

Killebrew put the AL on the board as he greeted Koufax, the former Dodger great, with a towering home run to center field.

"It felt pretty good to hit one out," said Killebrew, who started his major league career with the original Washington Senators in 1954. But, he added, "It seems a lot longer going around the bases than I remembered."

Koufax, who then gave up a second homer to Etchebarren, retired the side, striking out both Mickey Vernon and Jerry Coleman, although he relied on an off-speed curve rather than his once-renowned fastball.

The five-inning game, which now serves to both open and close Washington's baseball season, attracted a crowd of 29,698 fans despite a steady rain.

The National League put the game away in the third with a five-run outburst. Haller, a vice president with the San Francisco Giants, had the big blow, a three-run home run off former Washington Senator Camilo Pascual.

Rain delayed the start of the game but did nothing to dampen the spirits of the fans or the participants as they reminisced a bygone era.

The biggest cheer of the evening was reserved for Joe DiMaggio, the Yankee Clipper. The former New York center fielder, as is his custom, did not play, but nonetheless received a standing ovation from the nostalgic fans.

Wilson New SID Aide

Rob Wilson, former graduate assistant at Florida State University, has been named assistant sports information director at East Carolina University.

Wilson's duties at ECU include publicity and information for all non-revenue sports, management of the student assistant staff and assisting with the overall operation of football and men's basketball.

Wilson, a native of Valparaiso, Fla., earned a bachelor of arts degree in communication and worked for six months as a student assistant in the sports information office at FSU. He also served as a correspondent for the St. Petersburg Times during the 1983 football season and is a member of the Florida Public Relations Association.

Wilson also attended the University of Mississippi and was a wide receiver on the 1979 football squad. He received an associate of arts degree in medical science from Okaloosa-Walton Junior College in Niceville, Fla.

Balboni's Homers Pace Royals

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Steve "Bye Bye" Balboni is bidding farewell to baseballs with increasing regularity and the Kansas City Royals are saying hello to a pennant race.

The 27-year-old first baseman, who earned his nickname with some prodigious clouts in six years as a minor league slugging sensation in the New York Yankees' organization, homered in each game Monday night as the Royals swept a double-header from the Cleveland Indians 9-3, 4-3 and stretched their winning streak to five games.

"Earlier in the year, if I got a good pitch to hit, I'd hit a single," said Balboni, who has seven homers in his last 11 games after hitting only five in his first 48. "Now, if I get a good pitch to hit and I hit it, I know it's going to be a home run."

The sweep lifted the Royals past Seattle into fifth place in the American League West, five games behind pace-setting California. In other A-L games, Chicago trimmed Detroit 7-1, Texas edged New York 7-6, California downed Toronto 6-3, Minnesota defeated Baltimore 6-4, Oakland outlasted Boston 9-6 in 11 innings and Milwaukee took two from Seattle, 3-2 and 6-4.

Balboni slammed a two-run homer and a single in KC's opening-game triumph and added a single, double and homer in a 3-for-3 nightcap. George Brett also hit a two-run homer in the first game while Larry Gura scattered seven hits. Brett doubled home what proved to be the winning run in the ninth inning of the second game following Pat Sheridan's single.

Asked if he was surprised that the Royals are contending despite a 36-40 record, Manager Dick Howser said: "Not really, but it irritates me a little to read about how inferior the West is. Sure, the East is better, but that's because of Detroit and Toronto, primarily."

In the AL East, the Royals would be 18 games out. But they have never been farther than 6½ games out in the West.

"I feel we've been in the pennant race the whole time, whether we've been last or fourth," said relief ace Dan Quisenberry, who posted his 22nd save in the nightcap despite yielding a ninth-inning homer to Jerry Willard.

"Everybody's been jockeying. But through our best and worst times (they lost 13 of 18 games before the current winning streak), we've been in the pennant race. We've never been buried."

White Sox 7, Tigers 1

Harold Baines and Ron Kittle slammed two-run homers and Floyd Bannister checked Detroit on five hits as Chicago defeated the Tigers for the first time in seven tries. Baines blasted his 13th homer off Dave Rozema in the first inning after Scott Fletcher singled, and Kittle hit his 19th, a tremendous shot onto the roof in left-center, in the fourth after Baines singled and was forced at second.

"I've never hit one farther, unless maybe it was at the driving range," said Kittle, whose drive was his second roof shot of the season and sailed over the 374-foot mark on the roof, which is 74 feet high. It was the 27th ball in the history of Comiskey Park hit on or over the roof and Kittle did it twice as a rookie last season. He also threw a runner out at the plate in the sixth inning.

Rangers 7, Yankees 6

Billy Sample's tie-breaking two-run double in the fifth inning capped Texas' comeback from a 5-0 deficit while Dickie Noles, acquired from the Chicago Cubs on Sunday, picked up the win in his AL debut by allowing an unearned run and two hits in 4-1/3 innings of relief.

Gary Ward had a two-run triple for Texas, which tied the score on Pete O'Brien's fifth-inning single. Home runs by Steve Kemp and Dave Winfield helped the Yankees to their 5-0 lead after 2½ innings, but they blew a chance to put the game away with some unbelievable baserunning, a symbol of their futility this season.

The first seven batters to face Texas starter Danny Darwin produced, in order, five singles, Kemp's homer and a double. The sum total? Three runs.

After singles by Willie Randolph, Butch Wynegar and Don Mattingly made it 1-0, Wynegar was thrown out trying to score on Don Baylor's single. The runners advanced on the throw home and Winfield followed with an infield hit that scored Mattingly, but Baylor was somehow trapped off second and Winfield was caught stealing for the third out.

Angels 6, Blue Jays 3

Mike Brown hit a pair of solo homers and Fred Lynn added a two-run blast as Mike Witt won his third straight decision. Witt allowed eight hits before being relieved by Don Aase with two out in the ninth. Lynn hit a two-run homer off Jim Clancy in the first inning, while Brown connected off Clancy in the third and Dennis Lamp in the ninth.

Twins 6, Orioles 4

Kent Hrbek and Mickey Hatcher homered and John Butcher scattered 10 hits in beating Baltimore for the third time in three meetings this season. Butcher allowed three runs in the first three innings and then blanked the Orioles until the ninth.

Hrbek, who homered in the second inning and singled and scored the go-ahead run in the sixth, has 14 hits and eight RBIs in his last seven games. The Twins erased a 3-2 deficit with two runs in the sixth off Scott McGregor on singles by Darrell Brown, Hrbek and Gary Gaetti, plus Tim Teufel's grounder. Hatcher added a two-run homer in the seventh.

Athletics 9, Red Sox 6

Mike Heath led off the 11th inning with a double and scored the first of three Oakland runs on Tony Phillips' sacrifice plus a throwing error by Boston third baseman Wade Boggs. Dwayne Murphy singled home two insurance runs in the inning, while Mike Davis and Dave Kingman hit two-run homers for Oakland. Bill Caudill, who is 8-1 to go with 16 saves, blanked Boston on two hits over three innings after the Red Sox tied the score on consecutive eighth-inning homers by Tony Armas and Mike Easler off Keith Atherton.

Brewers 3-6, Mariners 2-4

Ben Oglivie got two game-winning RBIs with a sacrifice fly in the fourth inning of the opener and an eighth-inning home run in the nightcap. Milwaukee's Rick Manning homered in the opener and Rollie Fingers recorded a save in each game. Oglivie's homer came off Salome Barojas to lead off the eighth and the Brewers added an insurance run on a walk and singles by Dion James and Ed Romero.

Seattle led 4-0 in the nightcap on Bill Nahorodny's two-run homer, Al Cowens' RBI double and Jim Presley's run-scoring grounder. Milwaukee tied the game in the fifth off Dave Geisel, just back from the minors and making his first appearance of the season. Bill Schroeder, Romero and Jim Gantner hit successive singles to load the bases, Robin Yount drilled a two-run single and Ted Simmons ripped a two-run double.

Umps Work In Mufti

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The umpires weren't wearing their familiar blue uniforms for the first game of a double-header between Seattle and Milwaukee on Monday.

The umpires were wearing Milwaukee Brewers caps and "Lach's Legion" T-shirts, which refer to Brewers Manager Rene Lachemann.

Home plate umpire Jim McKeon was wearing blue jeans, Larry Young at third wore blue slacks, Tim McClelland at first base wore gray jogging pants and Dan Morrison at second was wearing a pair of Brewers' pinstripe pants.

The umpires' uniforms had not arrived on a flight from Kansas City in time for the first game. The equipment finally did arrive during the opener and the crew worked the second game in their full uniforms.

Little League Tourney

The 1984 Little League championship playoff series will get underway Thursday at Elm Street Park and Guy Smith Field.

Three games will be played on Thursday at each field, with two at each on Friday. The championships will be played Saturday at Guy Smith, with the two winners advancing into the best-of-three series for the City Championship starting Monday.

The North State League will hold its tournament at Elm Street, with regular season champion Sportsworld (16-2) receiving a bye in the first round. Number four Union Carbide (9-9) and number five Kiwanis (7-11) will meet at 2 p.m. Thursday for the right to face Sportsworld on Friday at 4 p.m.

Thursday at 4 p.m., the number three Optimists (10-8) meet number six Lions (4-14), while number two Coca-Cola (15-3) takes on number seven Jaycees (3-15) at 6 p.m. The two winners play on Friday at 6 p.m.

The championship game between Friday's victors takes place Saturday at 2 p.m.

The Tar Heel League's first two rounds will be played at Guy Smith. Number one seeded True Value

Hardware (17-1) has a first round bye. Number four Wellcome (7-11) takes on First Federal (5-13), the fifth seed, at 2 p.m. Thursday. The winner meets True Value Friday at 4 p.m.

In the other bracket, number three Exchange (12-6), takes on number six Moose (5-13) at 4 p.m., while number two Carroll & Associates (13-5) meets number seven Pepsi-Cola (4-14) at 6 p.m. The two survivors meet Friday at 6 p.m.

The championship will be played Saturday at 4 p.m. at Elm Street Park.

The City Championship games, each at 6 p.m., will be played Monday, Tuesday and, if needed, on Wednesday.

WINTERVILLE — Winterville Kash & Karry got only three hits, all singles, but made them pay off in gaining a 7-2 victory over Winterville Ruritan in the Pitt County Babe Ruth League last night.

Todd Miller hurled the win, allowing the Ruritans only three hits also. He struck out 11 and walked just four.

The win boosted Kash & Karry to 10-4 on the year, while the Ruritans fall to 10-3.

Pitt Co. Babe Ruth

Chicod.....12
Grifton.....3

HOLLYWOOD — Benjy Beacham threw a five-hitter and Mike Mills went 3-4 at the plate to lead Chicod to a 12-3 victory over Grifton Monday in Pitt County Babe Ruth League baseball action.

Frank Mills led Grifton with two hits.

Grifton took a 2-1 lead in the first inning, but Chicod plated two runs after filling the bases with no outs to take control. Eugene Buck ripped a leadoff single, while Kevin Smith and Steve Haddock drew walks to fill the bases. A fielder's choice by Mike Mills nailed Buck at the plate, and Gray Mills walked to force in Smith. A fielder's choice by Beacham drove in Haddock for a 3-2 Chicod lead.

Chicod finished the season with a 9-5 record, while Grifton is 7-6 and hosts Simpson tonight in its finale.

Connors Tops Mayotte, Avoids Retirement Talk

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Jimmy Connors is asked the same question at almost every major tournament these days — when will you retire?

"As long as I'm playing like I'm playing, I don't see why I can't go on another year or two," said Connors after an impressive four-set victory Monday over fellow American Tim Mayotte in the fourth round of the men's singles at Wimbledon.

"But then again, if I lose my interest, I'd sooner get out."

Like the rest of the men left in the singles tournament, Connors was enjoying a day off today as the women took to the show courts of the All-England Club.

Chris Evert Lloyd was first up on Centre Court in a delayed fourth round match against Claudia Kohde-Kilsch of West Germany, to be followed by a quarter-final clash between No. 10 seed Jo Durie — the last British hope in the competition — and the No. 3 seed from Czechoslovakia, Hana Mandlikova.

In two other quarter-finals, both on court No. 1, defending champion Martina Navratilova was to play Manuela Maleeva of Bulgaria before Pam Shriver's match against Kathy Jordan, an all-American affair between two big serve and volleyers.

Connors, 31, seeded No. 3, disposed of Mayotte 6-7 (4-7), 6-2, 6-0, 6-2. With over 100 tournament victories behind him, Connors is playing in his 14th Wimbledon.

Asked whether the spark of enthusiasm was as bright today as in the past, he replied emphatically: "It has never left. I think that's what keeps my game alive and is why I've had such good success the last two years."

"My desire and my game and the way I play is always the same. Probably the only thing that's different is that I enjoy the game a lot more now. I'm a little older, I've won most everything that I've gotten in there to do and a lot of the pressure is off me and on the young guys."

"I go out and try to hit good returns, good volleys and have a good time."

But having a good time is not all the two-time Wimbledon champion is interested in.

"It doesn't mean I'm finished winning. I feel I have as good a chance as ever to win the tournament. (Otherwise) I wouldn't be here," he said.

"But also, I'm not afraid to step down and let somebody else come in and take my place. I don't feel like I'm going to hang around until I'm 38 or 40 and come to Wimbledon just to play: I was and still am too used to getting to the finals, winning the championships. For me, just to stick around would be no fun."

Despite his enjoyment of the game, Connors stressed that tennis is not as dominant in his life as in the past.

"My goals are a little bit different than they used to be. I still enjoy going in and trying to win every time I play — but I don't play as much and I will play less and less. My goal now is to go out and play the best I can, every time, still. And if I can do that, I'm a success."

He was asked whether, like so many other players, he had planned on writing a book about his career.

"Yes, but I'm not finished yet," he replied. "I would hate to write a book and then five years later write another one. Plus, once I write it, it's gonna be a good one."

In the quarter-finals on Wednesday, Connors will meet Paul Anacone of East Hampton, N.Y., who Monday upset Johan Kriek 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.

Other fourth round men's results included John McEnroe's 6-3, 6-3, 6-1 victory over Bill Scanlon. Ivan Lendl's hard-fought 4-6, 6-4, 6-4, 5-7, 7-5 win over Scott Davis and a five-set defeat of No. 15 seed Vitas Gerulaitis by John Sadri of Charlotte, N.C., in a match that took 3 hours and 15 minutes. Sadri won 6-3, 7-5, 6-7, 4-6, 6-3.

Gerulaitis and Kriek were two of four men's seeds to tumble out of the championships to unseeded players. Kevin Curran lost in four sets to Pat Cash of Australia and Jimmy Arias went down in straight sets to Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia.

Cash next will play sixth-seeded Andres Gomez of Ecuador and Smid will play Lendl.

On the women's side, defending champion Navratilova took the opening set 6-0 against Elizabeth Sayers of Australia who then withdrew with a stomach injury.

Carina Karlsson, a little known Swedish player, added to her collection of surprising victories by defeating 15th seeded Andrea Temesvari of Hungary 6-4, 7-5.

Mandlikova reached the last eight at the expense of her compatriot Helena Sukova, Durie edged West Germany's Steffi Graf 9-7 in the third set, Jordan beat Wendy Turnbull, Shriver downed Barbara Potter and Maleeva ousted Anne Hobbs of Britain.

Ellis Not Satisfied With Sot For Firecracker 400

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Tommy Ellis was one of seven drivers who shattered Cale Yarborough's year-old Firecracker 400 qualifying record, but the NASCAR rookie suggested his speed of 196.782 mph was really nothing to write home about.

Nevertheless, the run around the 2.5-mile high banked course at Daytona International Speedway Monday earned Ellis the No. 7 starting position in the annual July 4 race set for 10 a.m. EDT Wednesday.

"I'm really disappointed. That's the same we had run in practice, and I really thought it would be faster," Ellis said. "We should have been in the top three. The crew did a good job and the motor man did a good job, but I guess the driver let them down."

Yarborough, as he has done six times before, paced qualifying for the $387,300 event that's expected to attract a crowd of 70,000 and President Reagan.

The 44-year-old driver circled the Daytona trioval layout in 45.058 seconds in a Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS to win the pole and establish a Firecracker record of 199.743 mph.

The mark, however, was well off his track record of 201.848 mph set during qualifying for the Daytona 500 in February.

"That's quicker than I expected," the Timmonsville, N.C. driver said. "I didn't think we were going quite that fast."

Waddell Wilson, Yarborough's crew chief, had hoped the four-time Firecracker winner — Yarborough claimed top honors in 1967, 1968, 1976 and 1981 — could break 200 mph.

"If the barometer had been up a little and the temperature down some, we might have gone a little quicker," Wilson said. "But that was the only way we were going to do that."

Dale Earnhardt, the second fastest qualifier on the day with a clocking of 197.676 mph in a Monte Carlo, said the 86-degree heat also affected his car's performance.

Runnerup to Yarborough in the Daytona 500, Earnhardt drew the 2nd position in the qualifying order, meaning the temperature had climbed by the time he got on the track.

Yarborough, by comparison, was the fifth driver to make his qualifying run.

"I felt we had a pretty good shot at sitting on the pole," Earnhardt said. "It warmed up some for us, and that

Here is the lineup for Wednesday's Firecracker 400 Grand National Stock Car Race with type of car and qualifying speed in miles per hour. The final 20 spots in 40-car field will be filled Tuesday:

1. Cale Yarborough, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 199.743
2. Dale Earnhardt, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 197.676
3. Bill Elliott, Ford Thunderbird, 197.668
4. Terry Labont, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 197.542
5. David Pearson, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 197.062
6. Richard Petty, Pontiac Grand Prix, 196.962
7. Tommy Ellis, Chevrolet Monte Carlo, 196.782
8. Buddy Baker, Ford Thunderbird, 196.438
9. Benny Parsons, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 196.108
10. Bobby Allison, Buick Regal, 196.040
11. Lake Speed, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 195.835
12. Darrell Waltrip, Chevrolet Monte Carlo, 195.725
13. Harry Gant, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 195.705
14. Rusty Wallace, Pontiac Grand Prix, 195.452
15. Phil Parsons, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 195.287
16. Kyle Petty, Ford Thunderbird, 195.185
17. Jody Ridsley, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 195.135
18. Joe Ruttman, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 195.126
19. Neil Bonnett, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 194.729
20. Clark Dwyer, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 194.641 didn't help. It'll be the same type of conditions on Wednesday, but I think we'll run well."

Bill Elliott, driving a Ford Thunderbird, turned in the third-best time of the day — 45.531 seconds — for a speed of 197.668 mph. "It's a little better than I expected, but Cale's going to be a tough little guy to outrun," he said.

Terry Labonte (197.542) and David Pearson (197.062) rounded out the top five, followed by Richard Petty (196.962) and Ellis.

Mondale Seeking Unity, Meets Jackson

By EVANS WITT
AP Political Writer
NORTH OAKS, Minn. (AP) — Working to put into place the final parts of the puzzle of a united Democratic Party and a peaceful national convention, Walter F. Mondale still has two major pieces missing — one labeled "The Rev. Jesse Jackson" and the other "Vice President."

Mondale was going to work today on one of the elements, meeting with Jackson in Kansas City, Mo., for what he hopes is a unity session like the one with rival Sen. Gary Hart in New York.

Lottery Timely For Poor Couple

BALTIMORE (AP) — After subsisting on Social Security disability benefits and food stamps, Dolores M. Dawson is thrilled to be the winner of a $1.9 million state lottery jackpot.

But she says it would be better if she and her husband had their health back.

The 53-year-old Baltimore resident suffers from bone deterioration due to a 1981 fall and a 1983 automobile accident.

She and her 45-year-old husband James have been living on $256 monthly Social Security disability benefits and $108 a month in food stamps that he receives because he had to quit his work as a saw operator after a heart attack 3½ years ago.

"We had each other, and I guess that's what kept us going," Mrs. Dawson said Monday.

Mrs. Dawson's future changed Saturday when the six numbers drawn in Maryland's weekly Lotto game matched the ones she had played — 1, 8, 9, 17, 20 and 29.

"I don't think we stopped crying and shaking inside. We got very little sleep because we can't believe it's real," she said.

When she called lottery officials Monday to claim her prize, she learned she would receive the entire $1.9 million jackpot because no one else had predicted all six numbers correctly.

Lottery spokesman Carlton Dotson said Mrs. Dawson will receive $95,733.71 a year for 20 years before income taxes are deducted. The state automatically withholds 20 percent for federal income taxes.

Mrs. Dawson said she plans to buy a custom van for her husband, a special bed that will raise her husband's legs to cope with blood clots, and a waterfront home for herself because she loves fishing.

"It will be pretty much the same as the meeting I had with Gary Hart," Mondale said Monday. "There is no agenda; we're just going to have a discussion."

The probable Democratic nominee spent Monday working on selecting a running mate. He interviewed Rep. Geraldine Ferraro, the New York Democrat at the top of many lists for the job.

Mondale pronounced her "qualified" and a "truly impressive" leader after a three-hour meeting at his home.

Ms. Ferraro said she wanted the job to help defeat Ronald Reagan in the fall, but that she wouldn't be part of an effort at the Democratic National Convention in San Francisco two weeks from now to challenge his choice if that choice is a man.

Both Mondale and Jackson were scheduled to address the annual convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People after their noontime meeting in private.

A new CBS-New York Times poll released Monday showed Mondale trailing President Reagan by 15 percentage points, 50 percent to 35 percent.

Moreover, the poll showed him trailing Reagan among women as well as among men. Among women, the poll said Reagan led 45-37; among men, Reagan led 55-32.

The latest sample of 1,600 people has a margin of error plus or minus 3 percentage points. A Gallup poll released Saturday showed Reagan with a 19 point lead, 56-37.

Jackson headed to today's meeting with Mondale after sending mixed signals of conciliation and confrontation. Jackson told reporters Monday that he expected "a congenial meeting" because he and Mondale have a long-standing relationship of mutual respect.

"But beyond the personal rapport, there must be signs of accommodation for the legitimate interest of the rainbow coalition," Jackson said.

Jackson said Monday he plans to go to southern Africa, will seek a visa for white-minority ruled South Africa, and also will visit the Soviet Union later this year.

Mondale has been under increasing pressure from female supporters and other feminists to name a woman as his running mate, with Ms. Ferraro the choice of many of those women. But Mondale shrugged it off, including pressure from the National Organization for Women, after his meeting with the congresswoman from Queens.

"Dealing with pressure is basically what a public leader does.... That's politics," Mondale said. "But it is not going to change my commitment to pick the best possible person. That's exactly what I'm going to do."

He did, however, have high praise for Ms. Ferraro.

"It is well known that I respect Geraldine Ferraro as one of the truly impressive leaders of the Democratic Party today, and she has demonstrated that across the board," he said. "I regard Gerry Ferraro as being qualified and clearly in contention for the nomination for vice president."

Ms. Ferraro, 48, the mother of three who was accompanied to the meeting by her husband John Zaccaro, said afterward that she wants the job.

"I want to be part of a team that will change the future, to make it one that I can say to my kids, 'Hey, we're working for what's best for America and for your children,'" Ms. Ferraro said.

Arriving back in New York Monday night, she assessed her odds as 50-50 for being named to the ticket. "I think he is honestly, sincerely considering me," she said.

Ms. Ferraro tried to shut the door Monday on any suggestion she would be part of a move at the convention to deny Mondale his choice for the No. 2 spot — if that choice were a man.

"I would not in any way allow my name to be put in nomination as a challenge to the candidate that the vice president picks," she told reporters.

Last week Ferraro did not rule out the possibility of such a draft if feminists made good on their talk of challenging the choice of a man by nominating a woman at the San Francisco convention.

Mondale said he was not too worried about a challenge from the floor.

"It is my expectation that the quality of the choice I make for vice president will be sufficiently persuasive that the delegates will accept it. I'm convinced that will be the case," he said.

In addition to Ms. Ferraro, Mondale has already interviewed San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein and will interview Kentucky Gov. Martha Layne Collins on Friday.

He will interview San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros on Wednesday. He has already interviewed Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley and Philadelphia Mayor Wilson Goode.

Police Upset At Inquirer's Cover

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Members of the city's Fraternal Order of Police say they will demonstrate tonight outside the Philadelphia Inquirer's offices to protest the newspaper's "desecration" of a police badge on the cover of Sunday's Inquirer Magazine.

"We want a public apology from The Inquirer for what they've done," FOP president Robert S. Hurst said at a news conference Monday. "And we want to tell the people of Philadelphia that they have every reason to be confident in the police force, despite what that cover suggests."

The cover, which showed a police badge with a dollar sign where the officer's number would be, illustrated the first of a four-part series about police corruption.

Hurst said he was not saying the story was inaccurate. "We are ashamed of these officers who have tarnished the badge," he said. But he said his complaint was with the degrading of the police symbol of "honor, integrity, trust and authority."

"The subjects of The Inquirer's story are no longer behind the badge," Hurst said. "They have been indicted, tried and convicted almost two years ago. But the cover effectively indicts our badge, the badge itself, and with it, every man and woman who wears it."

David Boldt, editor of the Inquirer Magazine, said the article dealt with "corrupt police officers who have been tried and convicted for extorting bribes and related crimes...."

"In the context of the story, the badge with the dollar sign was an appropriate symbol for the crimes those officers were accused of. We did not desecrate the police badge. The officers who committed those crimes did that."

New Border Agents

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP) — Bolstered by a $50 million budget increase, the Immigration and Naturalization Service is recruiting 850 new Border Patrol agents, the regional INS commissioner says.

The added agents will be used to cope with increased numbers of persons sneaking across the border.

"We have an apprehension of an illegal alien every 73 seconds," INS Western Regional Commissioner Harold Ezell said Monday.

Route Approved

An AMTRAK passenger train has been scheduled to run daily from Charlotte to Raleigh, Richmond and New York.

The State Legislature last week approved this segment of the proposed track, according to Bill Cobb, elected 4 years ago as chairman of AMTRAK Task Force of Greenville Chamber of Commerce and former president of the Carolina Association of Passenger Train Advocates (CAPTA) which covers N.C. and S.C.

Cobb said, "While I was with the Chamber, we were working to get a train running from Memphis through Asheville, Raleigh and Greenville to Norfolk. We were unable to get the full track, but last Friday the State Legislature approved funding and scheduling of a segment of this run."

Cobb said a passenger train will leave Charlotte each day at 8:45 a.m., pass through Raleigh at 12:36 p.m. and arrive in Richmond at 3 p.m., Washington, D.C. at 6 p.m. and New York at 10:08 p.m. A train will also leave Raleigh at 5:25 p.m. and arrive in Charlotte at 9:40 p.m. daily.

Registration Open

Kindergarten students for the 1984-85 school year should be registered before school opens in September. Those who have not registered their child in kindergarten, or who have recently moved in to the Pactolus School District, should come by the office of the Pactolus Elementary School, Route 5, Box 337, to register. To enter kindergarten, the child must be five years old before midnight, Oct. 16, 1984. To register a child, a birth certificate and immunization record will be needed. The office will be open throughout the summer from 8 a.m.-4 p.m.

Man Shot By Police

MONROE (AP) — A Monroe man was shot and killed by police Monday after he allegedly fired a shotgun at the officers.

At the time of the confrontation between police and Floyd Bruce Barrett, 30, Barrett's mother was in a magistrate's office trying to get him committed to a mental institute.

The commitment papers were issued minutes after he was shot. His mother, Julia Evans, of Rt. 1, Wingate, had complained Barrett had been chasing her and two other women with a car.

Public Safety Capt. Bobby Kilgore said Barrett was shot three times, youth attending the North Carolina 4-H Electric Congress July 9-11 at Western Carolina University.

Bass was selected to attend based on his achievement in 4-H electric projects, according to Dale Panero, Pitt 4-H agent.

The conference will feature demonstrations, project reports and exhibits. State and district winners in 4-H electric projects will be named.

Leadership Awards

Michael Connor and Pauline Rice of Ayden-Grifton High School have been awarded the national "I Dare You" Leadership Award.

The award, according to Ayden-Grifton principal Bill Wiggins, recognizes "excellence in character, well-balanced personal development and leadership potential."

Connor is the son of Mrs. Mildred Connor of Grifton and is a rising senior at Ayden-Grifton. He is a member of the Ayden-Grifton Task Force and participates in the band and jazz ensemble.

Miss Rice is the daughter of Mrs. Ruby Rice of Ayden and is also a rising senior. She is a member of the band and math team.

Camp Is Held

ARAPAHOE — Camp Rainbow '84, a three-day camp for children who have cancer and their siblings, provided more than 40 Eastern North Carolina youngsters an opportunity to take part in a variety of outdoor camp activities.

The camp, from June 13-15 at Camp Don-Lee, was sponsored for the third year in a row by the Department of Pediatrics of the East Carolina University School of Medicine and the Department of Therapeutic Recreation at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Although the cost of attending Camp Rainbow for three days was $120, all the campers were able to go at no expense to their parents. Funds were raised through the N.C. Chapter of the American Cancer Society, civic and church groups, and individuals throughout Eastern North Carolina.

The Gray family will hold a reunion meeting Thursday at 7 p.m. at the Simpson community building.

Students Go To Spain

Nine members of Spanish language classes at Farmville Central High School participated in a school-sponsored trip to Spain and France June 21-30.

The group spent four days in Spain — mostly Madrid, Toledo and Segovia — then took a night train to Paris, where they stayed four days. Among the sights they saw were the Spanish royal palace in Madrid, El Escorial palace, monastery and library built by Philip II; the home of the Spanish painter El Greco; the Cathedral of Toledo where El Greco's painting "The Burial of Count of Orgaz" is housed, a town market, a Roman aqueduct, and Alcazar Castle, inspiration for Cinderella's Castle at Disneyworld. In Paris they saw, among other things, the Louvre Art Museum and the Palace of Versailles, and climbed to the top of the Eiffel Tower.

Susan Farrior, Sarah Beth Fulford, Kelly Hobgood, Jenny Joyner, Charles Ledbetter, Scott Martin, Tommy Mayo, Vanessa Smith, and Rebecca Waters were the students taking part. Accompanying them were their Spanish teacher, Jinette Hathaway, her husband, Bill Hathaway, Sarah Ferriss and Ann Ferriss.

Group At Convention

Delegates Dennison D. Garrett, Willie Mae Carney and Pervis Cohen are attending the 75th annual convention of the NAACP in Kansas City to represent the Pitt County branches. The convention began yesterday and will continue through Saturday.

Attend Convention

Dr. Donald Ensley, state chairman for minority affairs for the State Democratic Party, and his wife, Ramona Ensley, will attend the National Democratic Convention in San Francisco July 16-19.

Dr. Ensley was elected at the state convention as an unpledged alternate. An associate professor at East Carolina University, he serves on the Democratic Pitt County Committee as a state party official.

Vehicles In Collision

Police said an estimated $4,500 damage resulted from a 10:47 p.m. collision Sunday on Fifth Street, 50 feet west of the Vance Street intersection.

Drivers of the cars involved were identified as Thomas Wilton Bowers of Route 1, Bethel, and Charles Ray Grice of 1220B Battle St.

Damage from the mishap was set at $3,000 to the Bowers car and $1,500 to the Grice vehicle.

'Evening At Pops' Starts 15th Season With Concert

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Arthur Fiedler set the style four decades before television made the Boston Pops a summertime habit for millions of Americans. Today, although the maestro is gone, his spirit lingers.

"The Pops still presents itself with what I call a wide keyboard," said William Cosel, producer of public television's "Evening at Pops" series, which begins its 15th season Wednesday night with the orchestra's annual, live Fourth of July concert. "It's an orchestra that can do just about anything."

"Arthur always used to say, 'You've got to give the people what they want,'" Cosel said, "and that meant a mix of music — popular, light classic, movie and theater — as well as a variety of guest performers."

"And John Williams," he said, "has continued to do that." Williams, an accomplished pianist who is better known as the composer of music for the movies "Star Wars," "Superman" and "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," took over after Fiedler died in 1979.

But Williams resigned this spring, and a July 8 concert in Symphony Hall will be his last with the Pops. Other new programs in the public TV series were taped previously.

It was Fiedler who first assembled the orchestra outdoors for the July 4th show, in 1929, and the concert on the Charles River Esplanade is a tradition that Williams has maintained. As in Fiedler's day, the concert still ends with cannons, fireworks and Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture."

The Independence Day program, performed before an audience of perhaps a quarter-million, will include selections from John Philip Sousa, Johannes Brahms and Leroy Anderson.

Less than a week later, "Evening at Pops" takes a regular Monday-night timeslot for the first of a dozen weekly performances from Symphony Hall in Boston. The July 9 program features singer Sarah Vaughan and trumpet player Wynton Marsalis.

"There have been a number of changes at Symphony Hall since Arthur's death," Cosel said, "and most of them have to do with putting the Pops on television." "John was determined to improve the production in whatever way we could with sound and light," he said, "and I think that has enhanced the program for those who cannot be physically present in the hall."

Williams, an Emmy- and Oscar-winner for his TV and movie music (his most recent Academy Award, for best original score for a motion picture, was in 1983, for "E.T."), insists that "Evening at Pops" be as close to technical perfection as possible, Cosel said.

"Fiedler's tradition was more turn-of-the-century concertizing," he said. "He had no idea of the incredible technological backup required to do the show. The big difference is that John raised all of our sights to making everything sound and look better."

Fiedler, for instance, insisted on a new program every night, Cosel said, while Williams prefers less variety in favor of more accomplished work.

"The Pops (under Fiedler) never was geared to giving that kind of attention to detail and rehearsal," Cosel said. "It's not always easily perceived, but I think the orchestra sounds greatly improved."

Williams probably would not dress as Elvis Presley for a show featuring the late rock star's music, as Fiedler once did, Cosel said, or stride on stage in a raccoon coat to perform tunes from the '20s. "John would not do that," Cosel said. "It would not appeal to him."

The Boston Pops still plays in the "party" atmosphere created by Fiedler, Cosel said.

"You go to a concert, there's a moment of hush, and out comes the conductor," the producer said. "That means the audience is supposed to sit still through the program."

"Fiedler didn't do it that way," he continued. "He chose to start with a loud march, as if to say, 'Don't get uptight, folks.' He allowed an informality to a Pops concert, and that tradition continues."

In addition to the Esplanade concert, the upcoming season includes five new shows, featuring The Manhattan Transfer vocal quartet on July 16, opera singer Jessye Norman on Aug. 13, a program of Fiedler's greatest hits on Aug. 20 and singer Tony Bennett on Aug. 27.

Son Leads Orchestra Into Its 50th Year

By DAVID McCORMICK
Associated Press Writer
EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — The Russ Morgan Orchestra isn't a big band anymore, and gone are the grand old hotel ballrooms where thousands once danced to it while others listened in on live radio.

But to Jack Morgan, that doesn't matter. He is keeping his late father's "Music in the Morgan Manner" alive.

"There aren't many bands doing this sort of thing anymore," said Morgan in an interview during a recent engagement here. "I think we're the last of our kind still working on a constant basis, and every day that passes we become rarer."

The orchestra's music today is the same that Russ Morgan developed in 1935 for the ballroom dancing so popular then. It was the type of smooth orchestral sound that soon evolved into swing and left the big bands divided between two styles — swing bands such as Glenn Miller's, and sweet bands like Sammy Kaye's.

Morgan, a trombonist who left jazz for the sweet camp, was best known for his "You're Nobody 'Til Somebody Loves You," and had big hits throughout the 1940s despite the increasing prevalence of swing.

He maintained the sound until his death in 1969. His son also has resisted any inclination to jazz it up and make it contemporary.

"We're probably the most authentic to the original sound of any of the hotel-society bands still around," Morgan said. "A lot of the other bands have gone in different directions and aren't the same."

Morgan grew up constantly listening to his father's music. He joined the orchestra when he was 17.

"I came up through the ranks knowing all the arrangements," he said. "I know how they're supposed to sound, and I insist that that's how they're going to sound."

Keeping a constantly changing group of young musicians true to a musical style from 50 years ago requires tight discipline, and Morgan said he is known for that. His musicians must not smoke or drink on stage, must stand up and sit down on cue, and even their solos are written out note for note by Morgan.

Democrats Dealt Endorsement Setback

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — The state Democratic Party's "unity campaign" suffered a setback as the wife and brother of defeated gubernatorial hopeful Eddie Knox joined forces with Republican Sen. Jesse Helms.

Frances Knox and Charlie Knox announced their support for Helms in an airplane tour of the state Monday. They sharply criticized Helms' foe and Knox's former college friend, Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt.

"I've concluded that I can no longer support Jim Hunt," Mrs. Knox said. "I am tired of hearing politicians who stand one way on a subject one day, and another way the next day on (the same) subject."

Hunt's campaign called on Nash County Sheriff Frank Brown, a Knox supporter in the gubernatorial primary, to attend a Raleigh news conference today and give his backing to Hunt, said Hunt spokesman Will Marshall.

Democratic officials downplayed the significance of the Knoxes' move, saying most rank-and-file supporters of the former Charlotte mayor would remain loyal to the party. But they acknowledged that the defection stung.

"Well, I'm very disappointed," said Hunt in an interview with WBTV of Charlotte. "I had appointed Eddie Knox to one of the most important positions in state government — chairman of the Advisory Budget Commission. I did everything I could to give him opportunities to serve this state well and I think he did that."

"All I can say is, it's very surprising and very disappointing," said state Democratic Chairman David Price. "I don't want to minimize the impact of it, but I don't want to maximize it either."

"I think that people will make up their own minds. ... You expect people to realize that the party is bigger than any one person who might have been disappointed in a primary."

Hunt and Knox have been political allies since the late 1950s, when Knox succeeded Hunt as student body president at North Carolina State University.

Little if any animosity between the two was evident during the primary campaign. Hunt declared himself neutral in the governor's race, and Knox said he wasn't soliciting Hunt's help.

Mrs. Knox, however, said she and Hunt had longstanding "personal" differences. She accused him of having "two sets of standards" regarding political activity by state employees. Some workers were granted leaves of absence to work for Hunt, but the same privilege wasn't extended to state employees who wanted to back Knox, Mrs. Knox said.

"Over the past 11 years, I have been a very strong watcher of Jim Hunt," said Mrs. Knox at the Raleigh-Durham Airport. "I've seen him go from a very caring, concerned individual to a masterful politician."

Attorney General Rufus Edmisten defeated Knox for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination last month in a runoff election.

At a rally last week, Knox declined to endorse Edmisten, saying his supporters could make up their own minds. Many politicians interpreted the statement as giving tacit support to GOP candidate Jim Martin.

Mrs. Knox said Monday that her husband supported the entire Democratic ticket. But she said he had encouraged her to speak her mind, "even ... if it means swimming against the tide."

She said she had spoken with many Democrats who shared her feelings, and Helms said the Knoxes' support would have a "tremendous impact" on the Senate race.

Charlie Knox, a Charlotte attorney who managed his brother's campaign, said he sometimes disagrees with Helms. But "I do know where he stands on the issues," whereas Hunt "is not that courageous or decisive," Knox said.

Helms, who called the Knoxes "two of the nicest folks you ever saw," strongly denied that he had agreed to help retire Eddie Knox's campaign debt in exchange for their support.

"It has not been mentioned," said Helms. "I can't speculate on it."

Charlie Knox said the Knox camp had solicited no financial assistance from Helms, but added, "We're not going to turn down legitimate contributions from anybody."

Helms credited Steve Walsh, a Charlotte lawyer and Helms supporter, with bringing about the alliance. Walsh said he realized after Knox's defeat that "there was something in common between the two men. I encouraged the two parties to get together."

Walsh said he also supports

Martin for governor and would encourage Knox supporters to do so. Mrs. Knox said she hadn't decided whether to back Martin or Edmisten.

Carolinas Residents Support Nuclear Ban, Newspaper Poll Says

CHARLOTTE (AP) — For the third straight year, a majority of North Carolina and South Carolina residents say they would support a nuclear weapons ban if other countries would agree to ban them, The Charlotte Observer Carolinas Poll indicates.

The Observer reported Tuesday that 74 percent of 1,203 people surveyed by telephone said they would support a U.S. nuclear weapons freeze if other countries participate.

But 76 percent of those surveyed June 7-15 said they would not support a unilateral U.S. nuclear weapons freeze.

In 1982, 78 percent supported a worldwide freeze, and 73 percent supported such a freeze in 1983.

"I just don't understand why they say they just want to keep on making nuclear weapons," said Hazel Brooks, 69, of Gaston County. "They're not going to do anything but just tear the whole world all the pieces."

She supported a weapons freeze with or without the participation of other countries. But John D. Stevens, 86, of Catawba County said he the Soviets could not be trusted to freeze their nuclear arsenal.

"There isn't but one thing that communism respects, and that's power," Stevens said. He said the U.S. should continue producing nuclear weapons even if other countries stop.

Reward Delayed

RALEIGH (AP) — A half-dozen new claims to a reward for a murder suspect has delayed payment to Carol T. Albright, a Sanford woman who was promised the reward by Gov. Jim Hunt last month.

"The governor continues to believe that Mrs. Albright has presented a very compelling case," said Brent Hackney, the governor's press secretary. "Until and unless this new information convinces him otherwise, he will continue to hold that point of view."

Hunt telephoned Mrs. Albright late in June to tell her he would recommend that she receive $5,000 for helping convict Steven Eugene Martin. Mrs. Albright had identified Martin as the man who raped her and later investigation led to the murder charge.

Hackney said the new claims must be investigated and that the reward recommendation, scheduled originally for today, may be delayed until the Aug. 7 meeting of the Council of State.

Mrs. Albright said Monday she did not want to comment on Hunt's decision.

"It's a surprise to me," she said.

Spending Varies

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Spending for each student in North Carolina's public schools varies by as much as 60 percent, the N.C. Center for Public Policy Research says.

Lanier Fonvielle wrote in the center's quarterly magazine that the disparities between school systems are caused by differences in local supplements.

She also said the foundation of state support has been diluted in the last 10 years.

Ms. Fonvielle said local per-pupil spending in 1983 ranged from a high of $978 in the Chapel Hill-Carrboro City Schools to a low of $188 in Hoke County schools. In 1982, total per-pupil spending ranged from $1,614 in Randolph County schools to $2,578 in the Durham city system, a difference of 60 percent.

Ms. Fonvielle said the disparity leads to differences in course offerings.

LOWEST DOWN CITY SUES — Calipatria, a tiny desert community in California known as the "lowest down city in the Western Hemisphere" because it is 185 feet below sea level, had its civic pride sorely wounded when someone burglarized the police department last February. Injuries Possible

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — Break dancers can injure themselves if they're too young or haven't warmed up properly, a doctor warns.

Dr. Rodger Kelley of the Fullerton Community Hospital said injuries occur when new break dancers twist arms, legs, shoulders and necks in unnatural ways that places extra pressure on the body.

"The danger in entering into any strenuous form of exercise ... is from doing complex movements too soon, before the muscles and ligaments have a chance to stretch and before the muscles and bones are strong enough to support the dancing exercise," Kelley said.

Two weeks ago, an accountant in Chicago broke his neck doing a headspin and now is a quadriplegic, while numerous break dancers end up in a hospital emergency room.

The new dance craze has been adopted by children, teen-agers and adults across the country. But Kelley said inexperienced, young breakers can damage their skeletal system before it's fully developed.

"There are young children who have growth centers in their bones, which allow them to grow," Kelley said. "If there is undue pressure, twisting, placed on those bones, quite obviously you can have some damage, even to the bone structure."

He said it's very important that dancers warm up before break dancing.

Stretching calf and lower leg muscles and ankles gently will cut down on injuries, Kelley said. He added that moving isolated body parts independently is effective.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JULY 4, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Early day confusion about the ideas which you should try to put across now is soon replaced by a resourcefulness and an ability to get into the various practical tasks that you have at hand.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Avoid that individual whose ideas are different to your own so that you don't have trouble and get into interesting tasks ahead of you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Search for any errors in your books of record in the morning, and then be charming with the one you love.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) An associate may criticize in the morning, but don't let this bother you. Do whatever will please your family the most.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Look to your friends for any help you may need and don't bother co-workers, and later have a happy time with pals.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Concentrate on work tasks and you get much done, so forget whatever has to do with pleasure. Your mate could be disappointing.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Avoid family trouble and get that plan worked out that means much to you. Also plan some trip that is interesting. Be happy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't get excited over some message in the morning, and quietly organize your future success. Don't fly off the handle.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Not a good morning to handle some financial affairs of importance but study your position with partners and better it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Not a good day to have a talk with one in power, and be sure to use right methods for handling your work.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A private anxiety can deter you from going through with more important affairs, if you permit. Be happy together.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get busy at practical affairs and don't permit friends to take up too much of your valuable time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If you show a higher-up that you cannot waste time with gossip, etc. you will be able to get along much better with partners.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be able to make a plan and carry through with it in a most exacting way, but needs to be taught to first study the motives behind such a plan and be sure of what he or she is doing. Then the life can become very successful.

Acid Rain Threatens Florida Lakes

By MARTIN MARRIS
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Acid rain could kill the fish in at least 2,600 of Florida's lakes over the next two decades if industrial smokestacks keep dumping pollutants into the air, scientists warn.

"I was stunned when I realized how bad it was," said researcher Paul Hansen. "We'd always known that Florida was receiving acid rain, but we didn't know it was this bad."

Acid rain poses a "clear and present threat" to the environment not just in the nation's old industrial heartland but also increasingly in the South, the National Clean Air Coalition and the Friends of the Earth Foundation reported recently.

"No longer can the South afford to believe that acid rain is only a Northeastern problem," the environmental groups said in a study.

Last January, the U.S. Geological Survey also reported an increased acidity in both rain and surface water in the South; at the same time, it said the acid rain problem seemed to have stabilized in the Northeast.

But the leader of a utilities' research consortium plays down the scientists' warnings. William McCollam Jr., president of the Edison Electric Institute, accused the coalition of "selective use of information" and of practicing "the politics of fear."

What Shakespeare called "the gentle rain from heaven" is becoming a deadly chemical cocktail whose most poisonous component is sulfur dioxide, according to some environmentalists.

Scientists believe that acid rain forms when sulfur dioxide and nitrogen oxides are emitted into the atmosphere during the burning of fossil fuels such as coal. The fumes mix with water vapor in the air and return to earth as acid rain, dew, snow, sleet or even dry particles.

The Department of Environmental Regulation estimates that the state's industries send 1.1 million tons of sulfur dioxide into the air each year, including 800,000 tons from fuels burned to generate electricity.

The report by the two environmental groups noted that the South produced nearly one-third of the nation's sulfur dioxide emissions and predicted an increase unless a clean-up program was begun.

Scientists agree with the utilities that it's impossible to tell whether acid rain has yet harmed wildlife in Florida's 7,712 lakes. Some 2,600 lakes are already so acidic that they are "extremely sensitive" to acid rain, according to a University of Florida study. An additional 2,000 are considered "highly sensitive," the next notch down the scale.

When lakes register a high level of acidity, most fish eggs and young fish do not develop properly and thus don't live to adulthood. Many fish eggs become sterile.

"It's not clear as yet whether Florida fish are going belly up because of acid rain," said Dr. Alex Green, a University of Florida professor who has studied the problem.

Although many statistics have been gathered showing how much acid rain is falling on the state, only one field study has been done on the lakes themselves.

A recent study of the 20 Trail Ridge lakes in north-central Florida by Dr. Patrick Brezonick of the University of Minnesota showed that the acidity of 15 lakes had increased since the mid-1970s.

But although many Florida lakes with high acidity also are devoid of fish, scientists say it's hard to tell whether pollution is to blame. And there are still plenty of lakes that team with fish.

"That's why scientists have trouble convincing the public that there's a problem," said Hansen, a consultant for the Izaak Walton League environmental watchdog group. "If you don't have dead fish, people don't see the problem."

Acidity in lakes increases slowly, according to Hansen and other researchers, until it reaches a level lethal to wildlife.

"It's what we call the 'death curve,'" Green said. "At first, you don't notice anything, but then it goes very quickly."

The average acidity of rainfall in northern Florida is now as high as levels in some areas of the Northeast, Canada and Western Europe.

One example is Lake McCloud in northern Florida, between Gainesville and Palatka. It's surrounded by longleaf pines and live oaks filled with colorful pileated woodpeckers, but it has almost no fish.

The reason, said UF's Dr. John Baxter, is that the water has about the same acidity as an orange.

Hansen and Green said that widespread fish kills could occur within 20 years unless something is done soon to control toxic emissions, but admit they aren't yet positive about that because of insufficient research.

"There is no direct evidence of any environmental damage in the state of Florida from acid rain," said Ron Spinka, a spokesman for the Florida Electric Power Coordinating Group.

The Tampa-based trade association, which represents 37 of the state's 55 electric utilities, has spent $3.1 million on acid rain research since 1980.

Spinka and Hansen both said that the estimated $4 billion to $9 billion cost of filtering out pollutants generated by utilities in Florida would add about $1 to the average monthly home electric bill.

Stuntman Has Own School In Hill Country

BANDERA, Texas (AP) — Leaping off five-story scaffolds, dodging explosions and falling off horses are just part of the daily routine for Dean Dawson.

The 35-year-old cowboy has been a stuntman for 18 years and now has his own stunt school in Bandera, a haven in the Texas Hill Country for dude ranch enthusiasts.

Dawson just graduated a class of six students who paid $2,000 apiece for six weeks of instruction. He taught the class how to fall off horses, how to be dragged by a pickup truck, how to have a knock-down, drag-out fight and how to jump off platforms — all without getting injured.

"A stuntman has got to be smart," Dawson said. "You can't work if you're hurt. That's the big difference between a stuntman and a daredevil."

Daredevils, he said, will perform death-defying stunts, but often get severely hurt.

Dawson, who has been in at least a half-dozen movies and more television shows, has had his share of injuries. He has lost teeth, had his head split and was grazed when a blank misfired.

But Dawson said he didn't have the luxury of a stunt school to teach him the ropes of the business. Most of what he knows he picked up from his uncle Rudy Robbins, a longtime double for John Wayne and James Arness of "Gunsmoke" fame.

In all the years he has taught stuntwork, Dawson said he has had no serious injuries.

"I train my boys not to be afraid of stunts but to be wary of them," he said. "Your life is on the line all the time."

Dawson said he is very selective about the students admitted to his school. For his last class, he had 200 applicants, but only six were accepted.

"I like for the boys to be about six-feet tall and weigh from 160 to 170 pounds. And they have to be good athletes," he said.

With the film industry growing in Texas, Dawson says he is convinced his graduates will find plenty of work.

Being a stuntman can be lucrative for someone who can get enough work. Falling off a horse can bring in $350, while being dragged by a pickup truck can earn a stuntman $10 per foot.

At least one graduate, Max Konz, 21, of San Antonio, already has had a paying job. Konz said he wanted to stuntwork because of the excitement.

"It's not your everyday 9-to-5 job," he said.

Dawson said he likes to keep classes small so he can give students the personal attention they need to learn stuntwork. Once he has them trained, the students do shows with Dawson in which they combine dialogue with stunts of all kinds.

The summer blockbuster movie "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom" was "one of the best stunt shows I've ever seen," Dawson said.

He defends the violence implicit in stuntwork, saying that kind of fast action is what the American public wants.

"They want heroes. They're begging for heroes," he said. "The only way to be one is to fight it out with the bad guys."

Crewmen Rescued

WASHINGTON (AP) — Navy rescuers plucked 21 crewmen from a Kuwaiti ship that foundered in the Arabian Sea after its cargo of 750 water buffalo shifted to one side of the hold and it began taking on water, the Washington Post reported in today's editions.

The Friday rescue came after a Navy task force around the aircraft carrier USS America in the northern Arabian Sea picked up a distress signal from the Hamad Al Kulaib, a livestock transport ship.

The vessel was carrying water buffalo from Bombay, India, to Kuwait when a "heavy roll caused the animals to shift suddenly," according to the Post's account of an official Navy report on the incident.

With the ship tilted at 35 degrees, the crew could not move the animals back into balance in the hold and the engine room flooded, knocking out the ship's pumps.

The guided-missile destroyer USS William V. Pratt and the combat supply vessel USS San Jose responded, and two large helicopters from the San Jose finally used a hoist to rescue the crewmen from the sinking ship's tilted deck.

The water buffalo were presumed lost at sea.

Chicken Thief?

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A man was arrested while casing the same fried chicken restaurant he is suspected of robbing five times since being released from prison in May, police said.

Investigators said an employee notified police when he saw Earl Bullock, 36, lurking outside a Church's Fried Chicken restaurant in the Midcity area about 3:30 p.m. Sunday.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — WHY DID GREASY AUTO MECHANIC ALWAYS COME THROUGH IN THE CLUTCH?

Today's Cryptoquip clue: K equals M

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

The fledgling "Goren Bridge Letter" scored a minor coup when its second issue beat the leading bridge magazines with its report on the Trials to select the U.S. team for the 1984 World Bridge Olympiad. The team led by Malcolm Brachman of Dallas won the right to represent the U.S. after a hard-fought battle that was decided only in the last quarter.

Here is one of the hands from the "Goren Bridge Letter" report. In the one room, the Brachman team had been content to play in game. In other room, their opponents reached slam via the sequence shown above. East-West were using an artificial club system, so the two club opening bid was natural and not forcing. South felt his hand was too good simply to overcall, and North's hand became stronger as the bidding progressed.

Against six spades West led a club and declarer ruffed in dummy. He drew four rounds of trumps as West stuffed clubs, then ran the queen of hearts to East's king. East shifted to a diamond.

Declarer rose with the ace and led a heart to the ace. When East failed to follow, declarer had little recourse but to try the diamond finesse. Down one.

There is an alternative line that would have worked. Declarer should win both high diamonds and then lead out his remaining trumps. As the cards lie, West will not be able to keep his guards in both red suits — he will be squeezed out of a heart or the queen of diamonds. However, if nothing good develops, declarer can then finesse the nine of hearts, for East's probable distribution is 4-1-2-6. By adopting this line declarer succeeds whenever the squeeze operates, or the queen of diamonds drops, or if West has the 10 of hearts.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge," will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. Psychologist Says U.S. Needs Homegrown Sayings

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The home-grown sayings that parents use to give advice to their children may be considered banal by many sophisticated adults. But those sayings and the conventional wisdom they impart are needed right now in American society, believes Dr. W.R. Coulson, a psychology professor at United States International University here. "In this age of sophistication the advantage is to the people who aren't afraid to be commonplace," Coulson explains. He has made a habit of collecting sayings from students in his classes on the USIU campus as well as from other sources, and he says the sayings make it possible for people to connect across generational barriers.

Coulson recalls that he first became interested in sayings — which he refers to by the Spanish name "dichos" — when his mother would copy them down and post them on the bulletin board in her kitchen.

In his classroom, he's been able to collect dichos from all over the world because students come to USIU from nearly 80 countries. But he's also collected quite a few from the American students who make up half of his classes.

Coulson says adults who have been reared on sayings tell him that "when they are in trouble and can't reason their way out of it, they recollect a saying and the saying is a useful crutch to get them through a difficult time."

Dichos evoke feelings and capture experiences such as poetry goes, Coulson says, and he believes they also bring consolation.

Coulson cites the example of one dicho he learned at a seminar for salesmen: "Every adversity carries the seed of opportunity."

"Adversities come when you are not expecting them and they tend to throw you," he says. "You don't know what to make of them until you remember that they are gifts. I can remember that an adversity is a gift because I have this saying which I first stuck in my wallet and have now committed to memory."

Dichos help us to make what Coulson calls focus shifts. "A focus shift can be useful when something is troubling you because you are not seeing through it to what it means, but you are instead stumped by the immediacy of it and it overwhelms you."

The saying helps you "look through the problem to the opportunity that lies behind it," he adds.

Here are some of the sayings Coulson has gathered, many of which are from other countries:

"For someone who pays attention and understands, you don't need many words to explain" (Mexican).

"A person who does not look back at his past will never reach his destination" (Filipino).

"Better run than fight badly" (Swedish).

"Hurry, hurry has no blessing" (Kenyan).

"Nothing scratches your own skin like your own fingernails" (Mid-Eastern).

"Drop by drop, a lake is created" (Turkish).

"A parrot is green anywhere" (Mexican).

"Men are like steel, of little use when they lose their temper" (American).

"Don't say hello before you have crossed the creek" (Swedish).

"The gun, the horse and the woman — you don't lend" (Mexican).

"It's not my business to think of me" (Hungarian).

"When a beautiful woman smiles, some man's purse weeps" (Italian).

And Coulson especially prizes these three which he found in his grandmother's elementary school autograph book, dated 1893:

"True friends are like diamonds, precious but rare; false ones like autumn leaves, found everywhere."

"Hearts like doors will open with ease for very, very little 'keys.' And don't forget that two of these are 'Thank you, Sir' and 'If you please.'"

"Friendship is a knot tied by angels' hands."

"The domestic philosophy of dichos sums up a great deal in very few words," Coulson points out, adding that their value is in the way they "knit the generations together and remind us to lean on one another's wisdom for support."

All At Sea

On this day in 1898, John Slocum became the first one-man crew to circumnavigate the globe. The ocean has always been the scene of human adventure. As early as 40,000 B.C., aborigines crossed the 43-mile Torres Strait from New Guinea to Australia. In 1973, Maurice and Maralyn Bailey survived a 118-day ordeal in an inflatable dinghy in the Pacific. The first to sail to North America was probably the Viking Bjarni Herjulfsson in 986, but he did not land.

Everyone Wants A Festival

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — It used to be easy for the travel writers in the Arkansas Parks and Tourism Department to tick off the upcoming festivals. Not any more.

"All of a sudden, everybody, even the smallest towns are wanting to have a festival," travel writer Kerry Kraus said in a recent telephone interview.

There's the old reliables — the Bradley County Pink Tomato Festival in Warren, the Peach Festival in Johnson County, the Grape Festival in Tontitown, the Turkey Trot Festival in Yellville and War Eagle Fair at War Eagle Mills.

Now, there's Toad Suck Daze in Conway, the Watermelon Festival in Hope, the Brickfest in Malvern, the Mosquito Fest in Stuttgart and Ding Dong Days in Dumas.

The festivals mean camaraderie for the people, civic pride for the towns and tourist dollars for the state.

Charles McLemore, director of research for the parks department, said a 1980 study done by the University of Arkansas of the War Eagle Fair showed an overall economic impact of $5 million in the area. The average expenditure was $167.80.

The department sometimes conducts surveys on state highways. McLemore said 1 to 2 percent of those questioned mention arts and crafts fairs as part of the reason for the trip.

Street Gang Violence Is On Increase

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — Brawls and racism are increasing among West German youth gangs who call themselves "Warriors," "Atomic Dukes" and "Playboys" and model themselves after American gangs.

High unemployment, teen-age rebelliousness and friction between Germans and foreign youths in the inner cities are factors in the upsurge of clashes, police say.

Clad in blue or khaki nylon "flight jackets," jeans and tennis shoes, 15- to 18-year-old members of 30 Frankfurt street gangs patrol their turf by motorcycle or on foot, ready to take on rival gang members or commit petty theft.

"The problem is spreading. I hope it won't get worse but I'm afraid it will," said Ulrich Paul Thiele, one of six members of a special Frankfurt police commission formed last September to try to stave off rumbles.

Recently, an estimated 250 members of rival street gangs battled each other beneath an autobahn bridge in Frankfurt with baseball bats, bicycle chains, billy clubs, knives and pistols that fire tear gas.

Police arrested 70 youths, including three girls, after 100 officers with dogs were called in to quell the clash.

Soon after, 25 members of a suburban gang went on a rampage in central Frankfurt, beating up and kicking four men "because we wanted to cause trouble," one gang member told police.

"Sure, we have a lot of run-ins with police," said a 16-year-old gang member who calls himself Patty.

"We pick pockets. We fight. Sometimes we break traffic laws on our motorcycles," said the member of a gang calling itself the "Bornheim Nussies," after the pub they frequent in a northwest section of town.

Most of the gangs are made up of 10 to 30 youths from the same neighborhood who band together for companionship and to defend their turf.

"It's not really an organized thing — we all grew up together, our parents live in the same neighborhood and we've been friends for a long time," said Patty.

But international movements like the "punks" and "skinheads" are also gaining adherents in West Germany, according to Thiele, who has regular contact with gang members.

Some 40 Frankfurt youths belong to the "Skinheads," a rightist, racist and violent group that originated in England. Members wear close-cropped hair, leather jackets and metal-tipped boots.

Six call themselves "Nazi-skins" and are members of the banned neo-Nazi group "Action Front National Socialists-National Activists," Thiele said.

An undercurrent of racism runs through all the gangs, even though their ranks often include Italians, Yugoslavs and Turks in addition to Germans.

Thiele said many youth gangs patterned themselves after American gangs such as those portrayed in the film "Warriors," a violent story about street gangs in an American city.

Thiele said the youth gangs were attracting more members, and he fears violence and petty crime will increase as it has in Hamburg, where youth gangs have existed for decades.

"Right now a lot of them are still in school, but in two years when they're out of school and unemployed it'll be a lot worse," he said.

Sect Gathering

RAJNEESHPURAM, Ore. (AP) — Guarded by security officials toting automatic weapons, an estimated 15,000 followers of Indian guru Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh gathered to meditate, hike, swim, gamble and sunbathe in the nude at the sect's third annual World Celebration.

The guru led an hourlong meditation in the central Oregon city's 2.2-acre temple last weekend as armed guards stood nearby. Sect spokeswoman Ma Prem Isabel said security has been beefed up after a room in the Hotel Rajneesh in Portland was bombed last year.

For $500 each, participants at the event — which ends Friday — get three vegetarian meals a day and stay in a four-person tent on a plywood platform.

Giraffe Shot

DUDLEY, England (AP) — A giraffe that survived a 100-foot tumble down a hillside and then escaped from a temporary enclosure was shot when it ran onto a road, endangering traffic fire officials reported.

They said the animal fell down the steep slope when part of the fence around its compound at the Dudley Zoo in central England collapsed. Firemen with ropes and slings worked for hours to get the giraffe back on its feet and dug steps so the animal could climb back up the hill.

But the frightened giraffe then broke out of a hastily constructed enclosure and began running down a nearby road.

Marketing Expert Trying To Turn Around World Fair

By BILL CRIDER
Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Louisiana world's fair, a critical success with a box-office problem, seems destined to go down as a legendary loser of money unless a hotshot trouble-shooter from Mississippi can turn it around.

George Williams, the new vice president of marketing, took a fresh view of things when he arrived June 7 and got out his advertising charts and ballpoint pens.

Williams looked over this $350 million exposition, an unexpected hit in its hometown, and decided it was designed to appeal to the "region" rather than the world.

"I don't know whether it was designed for world-wide or not," he said.

Unwittingly or not, this remark surely pierced the ego of Petr Spurney, the free-wheeling promoter who heads the fair.

Spurney, who hews to the Slavic form in Petr, has found criticism common lately. He has even become the butt of jokes about faltering fair attendance. What can one expect of a man who can't even spell his own name, critics gibe. On a regional outlook, and because he didn't have funds to do otherwise, the first advertising splash set up by Williams focused on an area within a few hundred miles of New Orleans.

The overriding priority: boost the 42,000 average daily attendance to at least 52,000 for the next 140 days.

Even at that level, Louisiana's Legislative Fiscal Office auditors figure the fair stands to lose around $67 million by Nov. 11, closing day.

The figure is staggering, but the red ink has not stained the day-to-day operations of the fair, a colorful conglomeration of pavilions and entertainment spread over 82 acres on the Mississippi River waterfront.

There is a lot for Williams to sell — from the whimsical Wonderwall to daily jazz, chicken gumbo, synchronized swimming, 3-D movies, Peruvian mummies, the space shuttle Enterprise, and even pizza on a stick.

A true believer in advertising, Williams said an advertising budget of $40 million would have put the fair over on a national scale and brought in the daily crowd of 75,000 needed for fiscal health.

Instead, he said, his predecessor, Jeffrey Stack, had to make do with about $6 million, an inadequate amount when aimed at population centers like New York City, Chicago and California.

When the fair was just a few months away it was clear that, outside the immediate area, people did not even know there was going to be a 1984 world's fair.

Stack, fated to be fired as the scapegoat of the fair, worried aloud about the anonymous exposition in the weeks before the advertising drive began in March and peaked in April. The fair opened May 12.

"A lot of people ask, including my mother who lives in New York, 'Why don't I ever hear anything about the fair?'" Stack told a luncheon in December. But, until the day he was fired a little more than two weeks after opening day, Stack continued to maintain that everything would go well.

By contrast, Williams, a husky 44-year-old, had a handle on the fair from the start. He used it to extract an extra $3.8 million from the Mississippi Legislature for promotion of tourism in fiscal '84 — but smartly avoided tying his program too close to the fair.

As a result, a few days after Stack's firing, Williams was brought in.

"I am on leave of absence from the state without pay for not longer than Dec. 31," said Williams, who lives in Jackson. "I have the option of going back to my old job without having any break in tenure, service of jeopardizing any benefits I have accrued over 16 years with the state."

Even so, he is not a man to leap in heedlessly. First he checked to make sure that, as the new person on the block, he wouldn't find the old-hand executives slamming doors in his face.

"I also had to make sure that I had minimum risk to my own reputation," he said. "I could have sat in Mississippi and gone through this fair and come out a hero, without any risk whatever, because the Mississippi program has been all positive."

"I had to be sure I had a satisfactory exit procedure that didn't create any ill feelings in Mississippi and among the people I worked with so long."

Now living in temporary quarters in the French Quarter, Williams arrives at the fair office early, leaves late — stepping out now and then onto the midway to talk to people and have a cold drink.

"I am confident it can be done," he says. "I know this market."

Volunteer Work Gets Recognition

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — For many retirees, volunteer work is its own reward. But a "Second Wind Hall of Fame" offers further recognition.

"We give awards to a very wide variety of types of volunteers," said the Rev. Charles V. Covell, president of the award organization with headquarters in Hendersonville, 100 miles west of Charlotte.

Recipients, who must be age 60 or over, are nominated by church groups, crafts organizations, chambers of commerce, women's clubs, garden clubs, Little Theater groups, historical societies and service clubs such as Lions or Rotary Club.

"It's not for anything done before retirement," said Covell, 75, who received his Second Wind award for his work with the local mental health association.

Once there are five recipients in a community, they can form a chapter. Some 500 retirees from as far away as California and Florida have received the award.

The organization making the nomination pays $16 for a certificate showing a sprinter and the retiree's name in calligraphy, Covell said in a telephone interview.

The award is presented in a surprise ceremony in the retiree's hometown, and newspaper clips of the event are sent back to the national headquarters. These clips are kept in a glass case in the Hendersonville public library, and a visitor may view them by asking the librarian for a key.

The certificate reads: "Because of a long and useful life, continuing production beyond retirement, while others pause to rest, this dedicated person caught a second wind and began a new career of service to mankind. May God give this servant the strength to continue constructive work, radiant with courage and an inspiration to all."

The organization was inspired by Phil Kelly, who offered informal Second Wind awards in the Hendersonville newspaper column he wrote after he retired from advertising in 1962. In 1971, he and four friends met at lunch and decided to found the Second Wind Hall of Fame. The Hendersonville chapter is called the Kelly Chapter in his honor.

"Volunteerism helps people stay young," said Covell, who retired as an Episcopal minister but still takes to the pulpit as a substitute preacher. "It gives you a reason to get out of bed."

Reagan Favored

NEW YORK (AP) — Given a choice among Ronald Reagan, Walter Mondale, Gary Hart and the Rev. Jesse Jackson, the nation's top military officers overwhelmingly favor keeping the incumbent in the White House, a magazine poll shows.

In a poll conducted last week by the Gallup Organization for Newsweek magazine, 97 percent of the 257 generals and admirals surveyed had a favorable opinion of Reagan while only 20 percent liked Mondale. Hart and Jackson fare slightly better, winning favorable ratings of 25 percent and 24 percent respectively.

A slight majority of the brass — 51 percent — felt the likelihood of nuclear war had decreased over the last four years, while 95 percent said the nation's defenses had become stronger over the same period.

Town Avoids All City Taxes

OZONA, Texas (AP) — This small West Texas town — the only community in Delaware-size Crockett County — may lack the amenities big Texas cities offer, but that doesn't faze Ozona residents, who say it's what their town doesn't offer that makes it unique. "We've always said we're the biggest little town in the world and that's because we're the cheapest place for taxes in the state," said County Judge A.O. Fields. "The big advantage to living in Ozona is taxwise."

Since its founding nearly a century ago, Ozona has chosen not to incorporate though it is the sole community in the seventh largest county in the state.

By not incorporating, the 4,100 residents of Ozona avoid paying city taxes — a savings that "you often can't believe," Fields said.

"The county does everything, so we only have to pay county taxes. There is no duplication of services and that keeps the tax rate way down," he said.

Currently, the county tax rate stands at 55.6 cents per $100, according to Crockett County Auditor Dick Kirby.

Baptists Start TV Network

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Southern Baptists have taken to the airwaves with an ambitious television network that leaders say will finally open the nation's living rooms to mainstream Christians.

The non-commercial network, named the American Christian Television System, or ACTS, is the first of its kind attempted by a major denomination.

ACTS is trying to amass a network of cable channels and full-and low-power educational stations to broadcast its 16 hours of family-oriented programming, which will include relatively little sermonizing, promoters say.

"This is one option out of the many options on the TV set," said the Rev. Jimmy Allen, president of the Southern Baptist Convention's Radio and Television Commission. "We call it a channel that you can trust."

ACTS is one of two satellite networks Southern Baptists inaugurated this spring.

The second, the Baptist Telecommunications Network, broadcasts training programs to local churches, state conventions and other Baptist agencies. ACTS, on the other hand, is aimed at a general audience.

Allen, a former San Antonio pastor, says mainstream Christians have been under-represented on television, where religious programming has been dominated by charismatics — a group that believes God gives followers spiritual gifts such as healing powers and the ability to speak in tongues.

"We plan to cover the nation and provide a vehicle for mainstream Christians to get into all the homes in the country," Allen said.

The centerpiece of ACTS' programming is a talk show Allen leads entitled "Life Today." One of Allen's first guests was one of his most famous fellow Baptists — Jimmy Carter.

On the program, the former president revealed details of his private negotiations with Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping for the return of Western missionaries to China.

Other programs include documentaries, advice shows, dramas, musical variety shows and children's entertainment — 75 percent secular and 35 percent religious in content, and much of it produced by other denominations.

"We'll have quality programming," Allen said. "It will reflect without apology the Christian perspective. But a lot of non-Christians watch that type of programming."

Baptist leaders say the network's success depends on its acceptance by people of all religious persuasions.

"I think it will be an attractive alternative to the 'hypered' charismatic programming that is now on the air," said ACTS' Texas coordinator, Ken Coffee. "They (charismatics) represent 5 percent of religious America; the other 95 percent are left out."

Programs so far have been produced by Methodists, Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Disciples of Christ, Catholics and Lutherans.

"We're trying to make this a network for all the major denominations," said ACTS spokesman Greg Warner.

But ACTS is still a long way from its goal of reaching 7.5 million homes by this fall. So far, the Baptists have signed up only 75 cable systems and two low-power television stations — in Tyler, Texas, and Anchorage, Alaska — for a total of about 1.5 million homes.

Despite the new network's ecumenical appeal, many cable systems are balking at adding an ACTS channel. They say they already offer enough religious programming and don't have room for the Baptist network.

"I've personally found a little more resistance from cable managers than I anticipated, because they feel like they've saturated their system with religion already," Coffee said.

"Our response to that is that they don't have a religious channel that appeals to the audience that we're trying to appeal to, the larger audience in the religious community. ... But to many cable managers religion is religion. We've got a selling job ahead of us."

Cable systems already have three full-time religious networks, all charismatic, to choose among — the Christian Broadcasting Network, PTL, The Inspirational Network and the Trinity Broadcasting Network. CBN, by far the largest, has 23 million cable subscribers.

But ACTS officials say they still think their goals are attainable.

ACTS "is going to take off real quickly now that we're on the air and they (cable executives) can see us," Warner said. "I'd say we're pretty much on schedule."

Four new low-power stations are under construction, in Brownwood, Texas; Honolulu; Flagstaff, Ariz.; and Paragould, Ark. Two of those will be on the air in October.

Full-power stations are under construction in three other cities — San Francisco, Houston and Greenville, N.C., Warner said.

'Main Street' Project Helps Small Cities

By GUY DARST
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — In 50 years, says Anice Reed, "Urban renewal never touched our small Texas cities except decay."

But today, 20 of those dusty, deteriorating Texas communities are staging a comeback spurred by renovation of the gingerbread Victorian storefronts, hotels and houses that lined their business districts a century ago.

"It's magic. It sells," said Mrs. Reed, a state employee in Austin who directs the Texas restoration of the curlicues, metal building fronts and stained glass of another era.

As America moves back to small towns, an unlikely combination of agencies is trying to rebuild their Main Streets — the Agriculture Department and the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

The Main Street Project is low-profile and low budget. There haven't been any colorful spreads in fancy mass-circulation magazines, as there have been for the Faneuil Hall marketplace development in Boston, the waterfront in Baltimore or Ghiardelli Square in San Francisco. But it is quietly working in 100 small cities in 10 states.

And word is spreading. A conference is scheduled later this summer at Cornell University, 1,500 local officials applied for 100 available slots. To meet the overflow, the government and the national trust are producing a closed-circuit television conference due for release in September that is designed to explain the program.

Three eastern North Carolina cities — Tarboro, Wilson and Washington — are participating in the Main Street project.

The national trust, a private organization, started the project from its Chicago office with three Midwestern cities in 1980. The Agriculture Department got into the act with the passage of legislation that year setting up the office of rural policy development.

The key to each project is a full-time "Main Street Manager," paid by the town. He or she gets the major players — local government, banks, store owners, and other businessmen — into a single group.

Then the manager gathers data such as parking surveys, recruits new businesses, rides herd on renovation projects, recruits tenants, organizes promotions and persuades lenders to offer low-interest loans.

"Burnout is a problem," said Mrs. Reed, whose job it is to recruit the managers. "I warn them it'll be 16-hour days, and ask them to stay for three years."

Another important factor is the emphasis on restoring the visual environment of another era. "There's something about these buildings that catches the imagination," said Mrs. Reed.

Many towns, she said, ordered pressed metal facades during the 1880-1910 period from the St. Louis firm of Mesker Brothers. They were shipped by rail to south Texas, put up and enjoyed until the 1930s, when, caught in the Depression, their owners stopped painting them.

Harry Gold, owner of Gold's Department Store in Georgetown, Texas, took down his metal front in 1960. "At the time, I was following the trend," he says. He wishes now that he hadn't. He's just restored the companion metal front, complete with cast-iron columns and front stoops, on the building he owns next door.

All but three of the 30-odd downtown commercial buildings in Georgetown have undergone the Main Street treatment. "It's a magic wand," Gold said, attracting much new shopping traffic.

Gold has seen business renewal efforts falter before. The difference this time, he said, was the architect provided by Mrs. Reed. "Without (him), it's like buying a Rolls-Royce and not lubricating it," he said.

Main Street managers across the country have purposely based their economic recoveries on service industries instead of the kind of manufacturing core that is dwindling in the Northeast.

"A lot of people have been looking for the factory to come down from Detroit. We're telling them that's not going to happen," said Kelly Winkler, an Agriculture Department staffer who works on the Main Street program.

"What's happening is the economy is moving more and more to services. And small businesses are the ones generating the jobs. ... In a town of 1,200 people 10 or 12 jobs will just drive the economy forward."

But, cautioned Peter Hawley, a national trust staffer, "you don't want to turn downtown into a string of boutiques. The hardware store should stay and serve the neighborhood. ... You need a good visual sense of what you want to achieve. Maybe you should reject another candle store."

Yet candle stores do pop up — along with bakeries, sandwich shops, bookstores, children's wear stores, telephone stores, computer stores, antique stores and pie shops, Mrs. Reed said.

In many cases, those new services are supported by a growing population. The 1980 Census showed that more than 57 million people moved to rural areas in the last decade.

A lot of those newcomers, said Ms. Winkler, are "professional people, lawyers, doctors, professors."

It's too early to tell yet whether the Main Street renovations are a total success, but the future looks promising.

Backers of the program measure success by new investment. In two years, Mrs. Reed said, 14 cities generated $43 million in new projects and 533 new jobs.

The national staff said its figures showed a total investment of $127 million in 30 towns, 920 new businesses started and 300 businesses closed.

Artist Puts Any Scene On Glass

BAY VILLAGE, Ohio (AP) — Thanks to Carl Goeller, Hal Linden can still see his old "Barney Miller" squad room right in his own home.

For the actor's birthday, Goeller created a scaled-down stained glass version of the squad room, complete with desks, phones, chairs, jail cell, water cooler, blackboard, the five show regulars and a birthday cake to commemorate the occasion.

"I cut white wire into 1,000 tiny cigarette butts to litter the squad room floor," recalls the 54-year-old former greeting card writer. "The finished piece was approximately 18 inches long by 18 inches high by 10 inches wide and featured Harris, Levitt, Dietrich and Wojo toasting Barney."

Goeller makes stained glass mice and men for a living; he's the creator of Glass Cartoons, whimsical 3-D stained glass and lead caricatures fashioned into humorous settings.

Although he has more than 100 stock items ranging from a frustrated golfer breaking a club over his knee to an "industrious" executive perusing "Playboy," special orders have been his most challenging and memorable assignments.

The "Barney Miller" scene was only the beginning. Other unusual creations include a complete English tack shop, replicas of the Indy 500, an art gallery opening, a local bakery, a deli, an auto mechanic's garage and an office suite for a diamond industry executive, using real diamonds.

To celebrate musician Paul Anka's hit single, "You're Having My Baby," the artist took a humorous look at the creative process. "I had Anka composing at a piano, trying to come up with a new hit," Goeller says. "Scattered around the piano were efforts such as 'You're Having Our Second Baby,' 'Our Third Baby ... How Nice,' and 'My Gawd ... Pregnant Again?'"

Carl and Kay Goeller operate their business from their home basement studio that resembles a year-round Santa's Workshop. Family members work like elves gathering materials from drawers full of tiny phones, sewing machines, typewriters, tennis rackets, baseball bats, books, hats and even false teeth.

"My wife and I travel the country visiting doll house miniature shows and flea markets," Goeller says. "Eventually we plan to deal direct with Hong Kong, Taiwan, etc., so we can get miniatures made to order. But right now, sleuthing for the tiny accessories is half the fun."

The fun began in 1972 when Mrs. Goeller, an accomplished stained glass artist, tired of not seeing her husband because of conflicting schedules, suggested he take up a hobby they could share. Today that hobby is a booming business.

"It's a lot of work, but being together with my wife and family makes it all worthwhile," Goeller comments. "We've created quite a family affair. Everyone from my married son and daughter to my 8-year-old granddaughter is involved."

California Spruces For Summer Games

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Company's coming from around the world this summer, and inner-city kids, suburban mothers and corporate executives are sprucing up this proud Olympic city with everything from freeway murals to patched-up, prostitution-free sidewalks.

"It's that part of us human beings that says, 'Hey, let's dress up and look good,'" said Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee official John Bevilacqua.

The LAOOC, corporations, private citizens and public agencies have joined forces to polish Southern California's image before an estimated 650,000 visitors attend the July 28-Aug. 12 Summer Games.

"I'm an American and a Los Angeleno and I want the city to be beautiful for the Olympics," said Carolyn Moore, an insurance company supervisor who plans to spend four Saturdays helping clean the downtown area. "I'm proud that the games are here."

Spread across five counties, the effort includes new construction at universities, new flowers in the suburbs, new murals along the freeways and a crackdown on prostitution.

Los Angeles police Cmdr. William Booth said vice raids were part of "an ongoing effort for a long time." But, he acknowledged, "pimps and panderers (are) trying to get a foothold in the city because of the Olympics."

In Long Beach, site of several Olympic events, Lt. David Dusinebury said prostitution-related arrests were "almost three times the average."

"We are aware there will be people visiting from all over the world," he said. "We want to make the city as safe as we possibly can and as presentable."

More permanent than the police efforts are construction construction and cleanup projects in Los Angeles suburbs and neighborhoods.

In Monterey Park, a field hockey site, residents are "painting fire hydrants, cleaning curbs and planting flowers," said Mayor Lily Chen. "We're involving Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, the Boys Club and schools. It's something that will be lasting."

New signs at the city limits say Monterey Park is "The Olympic City With a Heart." "These are regular street signs that we put up," said the mayor. Like other public officials she is wary of spending public funds just for the Olympics. "Even without the Olympics we have to put these signs up."

The LAOOC is paying for $1 million in decorations to give a "festive federalism" feel to main traffic arteries in the city.

"By mid-July we'll have over 10,000 banners going up in over 70 communities," said LAOOC official Lynda Shateen. The committee is also distributing 1.5 million bumper stickers, 800,000 small flags and 600,000 buttons that say "Welcome" in 16 languages.

Dotted throughout Southern California are building projects completed in time for the Olympics but not done expressly for the Summer Games.

Los Angeles International Airport recently finished improvements totaling $700 million, including a new international terminal.

"We didn't do that specifically for the Olympics, but we did hurry it up," said Los Angeles International Airport spokesman Lee Nichols. Without the Olympics the modernization project would "have taken two years more."

From 250,000 to 300,000 Olympic visitors are expected to pass through the airport.

The Los Angeles Bureau of Street Maintenance has patched streets at 37 "venue areas" around the city. Bureau director Ed Langley said additional work on more than 15 miles of streets was part of a two-year program.

Sidewalks around the venues also were fixed. Norman Giard, chief inspector of the street use division of the maintenance bureau, told a newspaper the repairs were a favor to the LAOOC but, of course, would also benefit the city.

"If somebody falls off a broken sidewalk while watching the marathon, they'll sue us, not the LAOOC," he said. Six hundred inner-city youths were hired to bag debris and repaint graffiti-scarred walls in neighborhoods around Exposition Park, home of the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum and the Sports Arena, the sites of the boxing and track and field competition and the opening and closing ceremonies. More than 1,200 youths applied.

In recent months, motorists have watched 10 larger-than-life murals created along the freeways. The murals "are meant to be seen at 55 mph, meant to be seen in the fast lane," said Robert J. Fitzpatrick, director of the Olympic Arts Festival, which financed the murals. Some drivers are themselves part of the Olympic effort. More than 15,500 Californians have bought $100

Olympic commemorative license plates. State officials say they hope to sell 50,000 pairs of the red, white and blue reflectorized plates.

Colleges and universities serving as competition sites have been able to afford extensive campus improvements, much of it paid by the LAOOC or Olympic corporate sponsors.

UCLA, site of gymnastics events and one Olympic village, has spent more than $4.8 million on construction related to the Olympics. Improvements include a widened roadway, a new office building and dormitory renovations.

An additional $24.5 million has gone toward long-planned projects for facilities that will be used by the athletes, including renovation of the student union, new tennis and recreation centers, and repairs to the swimming pool and to Bruin Walk, a major campus artery.

Across town at the University of Southern California, site of the swimming competition and the Games' other major village, $7.5 million in Olympic money has built a new cafeteria, swimming and diving pools, a running track and a weight room.

Trade Agreement
HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — Fourteen impoverished African nations have started their version of a "common market" in a bid to loosen trade ties with the West and boost business among themselves.

Prime Minister Robert Mugabe of Zimbabwe, host to the third summit of the eastern and southern African states' Preferential Trade Area Conference, unveiled the club's plans last weekend.

Joining Mugabe were presidents Arap Moi of Kenya, Siad Barre of Somalia, Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia and Milton Obote of Uganda. Other nations represented were Burundi, the Comoros Islands, Djibouti, Ethiopia, Lesotho, Malawi, Mauritius, Rwanda and Swaziland.
