Nation's Death Row Population Climbs

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A record 1,202 inmates awaited execution in the United States at the end of 1983, and recent statistics show their chances of postponing death are rapidly dwindling.

The Justice Department's Bureau of Justice Statistics reported Sunday that the death row population swelled by 13 percent last year, as 252 people were sentenced to death and 113 were removed from death row.

The 113 included five who were executed, the largest number since executions resumed in 1977. The department said that pace has already increased.

Thus far this year, another nine have been executed, bringing the total executions in the United States by civil and military authorities since 1930 to 4,039.

"This increase in the pace of executions came as many inmates on death row neared the end of a series of appeals and as the courts became increasingly reluctant to sanction a lengthy appeals process in capital punishment cases," the bureau said.

In addition, 1983 marked the second straight year no inmate got off death row because of a Supreme Court ruling that a state capital punishment law was unconstitutional. In one 1983 ruling, the high court made it easier for federal appeals courts to deny stays of execution.

Since 1972, when the Supreme Court first ruled on the constitutionality of the death penalty and voided all existing death sentences, it has ruled on most of the major issues surrounding the death penalty and constitutional challenges to death penalty laws have dropped sharply.

In 1983, Massachusetts became the 38th state to pass a new death penalty law. The rise in the death row population since those new laws went on the books is the sharpest since official death row population records began in 1953.

At the end of 1983 only five states — Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, South Dakota and Vermont — had death penalty laws but no death row inmates.

No one has been under death sentence in civilian federal prisons since 1977. The federal death penalty is considered unenforceable, because it has not been revised to conform to the Supreme Court's 1972 ruling.

Electrocution remained the most common method of execution, permitted in 18 states, but lethal injection was growing in usage. During the year four states —

Arkansas, Montana, North Carolina and Utah — added lethal injection, and Illinois switched from electrocution to injection and Nevada from gas to injection.

As a result, lethal injection was permitted in 13 states at year end, although a number of those states provided an alternate method in case lethal injection is found unconstitutional. Eight states used gas; four used hanging and two used a firing squad.

Tobacco Damage Uncertain

"Uncertain" is the word local agricultural officials are using to describe the fate of tobacco damaged by herbicide-contaminated fertilizer.

"The question farmers are asking is 'will my tobacco grow out of it?'" said Pitt Extension Agent Mitch Smith. "That's the $64,000 question. Maybe it will, maybe it won't. We just don't know."

Around 300 acres of tobacco in Pitt County have been damaged by the herbicide dicamba which, state officials said, was traced to premium brand fertilizers manufactured by the W.R. Grace Co. The herbicide causes the buds or tops of the plant to droop, giving the appearance of a cobra head.

The damage to the local crop ranges from mild to severe, Smith said. "There is a great deal of uncertainty at this point about the crop and about (insurance) settlements (from Grace)," he said. "People want to know if the stunting (of the tobacco plant) will discontinue. Well, we (the extension service) just don't know. Nothing

Diplomat Abducted

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Gunmen abducted Libya's highest-ranking diplomat in Beirut today as he drove home from his embassy, a senior police official said.

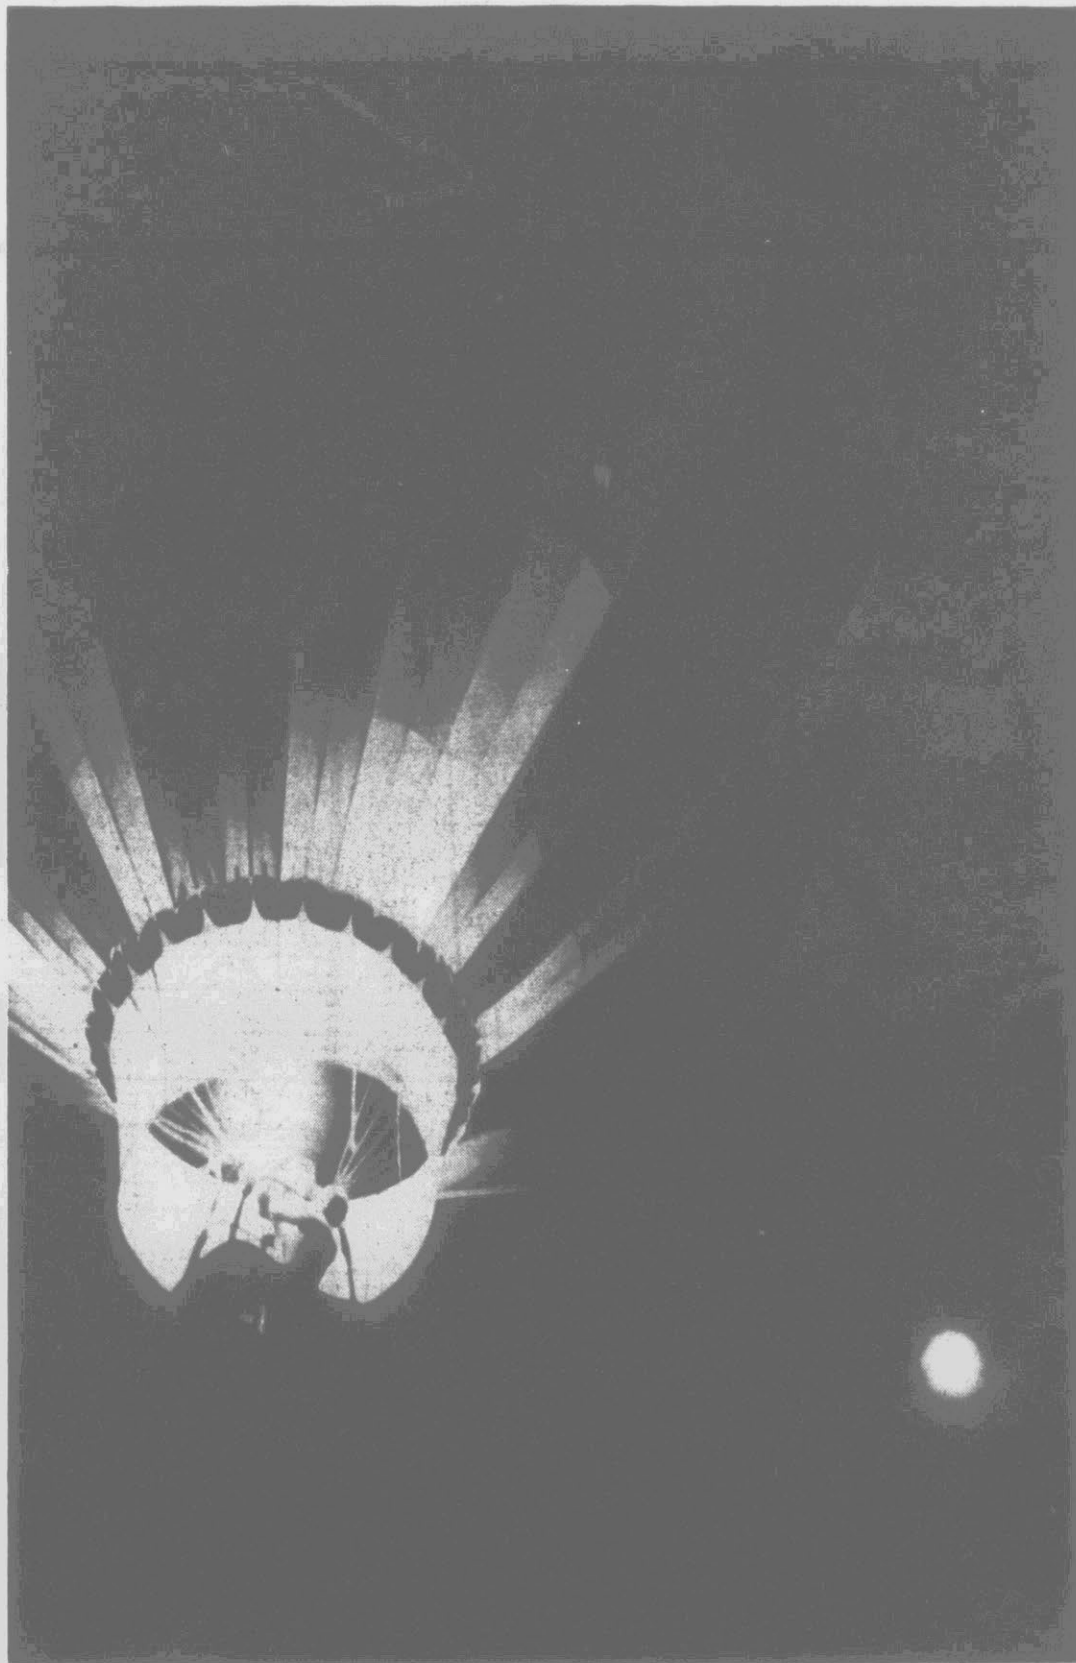

Police Col. Adnan Gudmi said Mohammed Feitouri, charge d'affaires for the Libyan Embassy, was seized by gunmen riding in two cars.

Gudmi said Feitouri was traveling in a car with two bodyguards when the gunmen cut off his car on a road in the suburb of Ouzai. Police had no further details, Gudmi said.

There was no claim of responsibility for Feitouri's kidnapping.

Libya's No. 2 diplomat in Beirut, Mohammed Moghrabi, was kidnapped last month, and was set free in a raid by militiamen of the Shiite Moslem group Amal. Amal refused to say who had held Moghrabi prisoner, and he left Lebanon a few days after being freed.

One Shiite faction, the Sadr Brigades, has called for all Libyan diplomats to leave Beirut. The group is named for Imam Moussa Sadr, a religious leader who disappeared during a visit to Libya in 1978.

Pitt Programs Get $142,500

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County's legislative delegation — House members Ed Warren and Walter Jones Jr. and Sen. Vernon White — secured $142,500 in special project or so-called "pork barrel" funds in the General Assembly's short session which ended Saturday.

The list of projects for which funding was approved includes: $20,000 for the Winterville Recreation Commission; $10,000 each for the Winterville Historical Society, the Grimesland Volunteer Fire Department, the Bethel Arts Council, and town of Farmville recreational facilities; $8,000 for Pitt County volunteer rescue squads, and $6,500 for the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce economic development fund.

Other special project money approved for the county includes: $5,000 each for the East Carolina University Summer Theater, the Winterville, Eastern Pines, Pactolus, Simpson and Stokes Volunteer Fire departments and the Winterville volunteer rescue squad; $4,000 for the Pitt County Senior Citizens Center; $3,000 each for the Pitt County Family Violence Center, Bell Arthur Fire Department equipment and the Greenville Rescue Squad; $2,500 each for the Pitt County Farmers Market and Shepard Memorial Library, and $2,000 each for fire departments at Belvoir and Gardnersville, and Simpson town development.

Projects funded for $1,000 each include: the Pitt County Mental Health Association, Falkland town development, Fountain town development, the ECU Friends of Music, the Farmville Public Library, the Ayden Public Library, the Farmville Arts Council, the Grifton Museum and the Ayden-Grifton Playhouse.

The money for special projects is in addition to major state appropriations such as $14.6 million for a new classroom building at ECU, $1.6 million to complete renovation of Wright Building at the university, $250,000 to purchase property for ECU, $1.8 million for a nuclear magnetic resonance device for the ECU medical school, and $500,000 for capital projects at Pitt Community College.

Warren and Jones said special projects money for Greene County includes: $5,000 for the Greene County economic development fund; $5,000 for the Greene County Rescue Squad; $3,000 for Scuffleton Fire Department equipment; $3,000 for the Greene County Senior Citizens Center, and $1,500 for the Snow Hill Arts and Historic Society.

Bequests Revealed

The estate of the late Helen Achenbach Synder of Greenville, valued at more than $750,000, has been left to schools and churches in Greenville, in her native Pennsylvania and in Oklahoma.

Mrs. Snyder, who died at age 81 on May 23, 1983, lived in Greenville from 1946 until her death last year. She was a counselor at Cotten Hall at ECU until her retirement in 1965.

Under the terms of her will, her estate has been bequeathed to her alma mater, Ursinus College in Collegeville, Pa., to Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church in Greenville, to Salem United Methodist Church of Christ in Allentown, Pa., to East Carolina University for a scholarship fund, and to Oral Roberts University, Tulsa, Okla.

All the bequests are for scholarship funds or memorials.

Mrs. Snyder was active in church, civic and social work in Greenville and was an ardent world traveler.

Georgia Man Gets Third Heart

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A 35-year-old patient was in serious but stable condition as he recovered from having two heart transplants in less than 12 hours at University Hospital.

"The heart is functioning nicely," hospital spokeswoman Norma Patterson said Sunday night.

Fred Davis was taken off the heart-lung machine, which sustained him during the second transplant operation, about 7 a.m. Sunday, said hospital spokeswoman Rebecca Rogers.

The second heart was sewn in place and beating within 30 minutes. But doctors observed him for three hours in the operating room before moving him to an isolation recovery room.

Several patients have undergone two heart transplant operations — and at least one has received three heart transplants. But it's unusual for two such operations to be performed back-to-back.

Davis received his first heart transplant during a 2½-hour operation Saturday night. But within hours, his blood pressure fell to a dangerously low level, and he was returned immediately to surgery, Ms. Rogers said.

His condition was stabilized in the operating room, but doctors determined the heart was functioning improperly. Davis remained there through the early morning while hospital officials searched for another acceptable heart donor.

The organ for the second transplant was obtained through the East Carolina University procurement agency in Greenville, N.C. The donor was a 27-year-old man who suffered brain damage from a motorcycle accident, Ms. Rogers said.

"Somebody must be looking after him and me," said Dr. G. Lionel Zumbro, a thoracic surgeon and head of the transplant team. He said he was pleased with the second organ.

"It took about 30 minutes to sew the new heart in," he said. "Oh, It looks great."

Davis, whose wife is a soldier at Fort Gordon, was transferred to University Hospital from Eisenhower Medical Center at nearby Fort Gordon for the transplant surgery.

Davis was selected for the transplant operation after doctors determined he was suffering from a condition known as cardiomyopathy, a disease that deteriorates the heart muscle.

Helping Donations

The heart and a kidney of a 27-year-old eastern North Carolina man who suffered brain damage in a motorcycle accident were used this weekend in transplant operations that may help save the lives of a Georgia man and an eastern North Carolina girl, according to Steve Joyner, administrative director of the transplant and procurement program at the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

Fred Davis of Georgia was the recipient of the 27-year-old's heart. The kidney recipient has not been identified.

According to Joyner, a transplant team from the University Hospital in Augusta, Ga., flew to eastern North Carolina to procure the donor heart and then flew back to Augusta to perform surgery on Davis. The transplant and procurement program, a three-year-old affiliate organization of ECU, handled removal and delivery of the kidney.

According to Joyner, the Uniform Anatomical Gift Act allows persons over the age of 18 to make provisions for donation of their organs. If a child or someone who has not signed a donor card dies, the next of kin can elect to donate organs.

POINTELLE LACE...pullover is elegant when knitted with a soft, brushed acrylic yarn.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

For the gal on the go, here's a super sweater to take you anywhere looking your feminine best. The pointelle lace pattern is designed to flatter any outfit. Vary the look with a choice of crew or V-neck in a variety of yarns. Whatever your choice, this is sure to be a favorite sweater for years to come. Easy-to-follow directions are written for small (8-10), medium (12-14) or large (16-18).

While the sweater can be made in a standard knitting worsted type of yarn, it is especially elegant when knitted with a fluffy, cloud-soft brushed acrylic.

To obtain directions for making the Pointelle Pullover, send your request for Leaflet No. KL-0708 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler (The Daily Reflector), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29597.

Or, you may order Kit No. K-0708 by sending a check or money order for $25 to Pat Trexler at the same address. The kit price includes the instruction leaflet, brushed acrylic yarn and all shipping charges.

Please specify your choice of ivory, blue, sandalwood or mauve mist.

Midsummer is traditionally a time of yarn sales in most areas, so this seems an excellent time to talk about making the most of such sales. A little preparation before you shop can reap big rewards.

Most of us find it hard to resist a bargain, but all too often we buy on impulse at a sale only to discover we have brought home unsuitable colors, incorrect quantities or odd dye lots.

Make some notes before you leave home on colors that will blend in with your home decorating scheme or your wardrobe. If you are trying to match a particular garment, you might snip out a little fabric swatch from a seam to be sure you get a good match.

Then sit down with your collection of pattern leaflets and books and jot down yarn types and requirements for appealing designs. Don't forget to take these notes with you so you will know how many skeins you need to complete a project.

Be sure also to give some thought to the type of knitting that most appeals to you. If you like to do intricate pattern stitchery, you are better off with light colors and smooth textures that show off the patterns to a better advantage. On the other hand, if simple, basic stitches are your cup of tea, look for the fancier yarns to create smashing effects.

If you are not a fast or patient knitter, you had better leave the very fine yarns alone and look for the heavier or bulkier ones. With some of the new yarns on the market, you can sometimes find light-weight bulkies.

Often at sales, you will find stacks of yarns that look alike but are actually from different dye lots. You seldom can detect slight shade differences when comparing two skeins, but when the yarn is used in knitting, crocheting or even needlepoint, odd dye lots can show glaring differences in shading.

The odd dye lots are often the best buys, so I suggest you use them in patterns using more than one color. Even simple stripes of two or more colors will allow you to use odd dye lot yarns. A stripe of a different dye lot will not be noticeable when separated by stripes of contrasting color.

These odd dye lots can be real bonanzas for those of you who are addicted to needlepoint on plastic canvas because you seldom need more than a skein or two of knitting yarn for these projects.

So stretch your needlework budget with some smart shopping!

"Pat's Pointers: The Needlepoint Handbook" by Pat Trexler guides the needleworker from the beginner basics through more detailed instructions and projects. This 200-page book also includes sections on counted cross-stitch and aids for the handicapped who wish to participate in needlecraft activities. To order, send $8.95 plus $1 postage and handling to "Pat's Pointers Needlepoint Handbook," in care of this newspaper, 4400 Johnson Drive, Fairway, Kan. 66205. Out Of The Rubble In Beirut Come Memories Of Friendship

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of one of the 269 servicemen who died in the terrorist attack on the BLT Headquarters Building in Beirut last October.

During recent months I, along with other mothers and family members who lost a loved one in that terrible bombing, have become increasingly aware of the need to seek each other out for support and comfort.

Most of the victims were U.S. Marines and sailors, but there were others stationed there and they were like a "family," developing close friendships and a deep sense of loyalty to each other. Many had sent home pictures of themselves and their buddies in Beirut, and we want to share these pictures—their last—with their families, but the faces are nameless.

We are calling upon you, Dear Abby, to make our support group known to those families who want to contact us. Everyone handles grief in his own way, so we will understand if some prefer to remain silent. The fortunate few who miraculously survived that attack are also welcome to join our group.

Please help us by printing our address so we can be contacted. Interested parties should write to: The Beirut Connection, 324 Center St., Moorestown, N.J. 08057.

Thank you, Abby, for helping us to find each other.

JOAN MUFFLER, MOTHER OF LANCE CPL. JOHN F. MUFFLER, AGE 19, PHILADELPHIA

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have an unusual question concerning our children, ages 16 and 17. They both attend high school in this area.

Both children have asked us not to read their yearbooks! They claim that to do so would be an invasion of their privacy. As parents, we believe that yearbooks should be put out for friends and family to enjoy. We've always told our kids never to write anything they may later regret having written.

I have polled adults, and they agree with me. However, the children claim that all their friends feel as they do.

What do you think?
MRS. P. IN DELAWARE

DEAR MRS. P.: I think it's too bad that any child would have something in his yearbook not fit for the eyes of his parents and their friends. But the yearbook belongs to the child, and if he doesn't want to share it with his family, he shouldn't be expected to do so.

DEAR ABBY: I am a social worker on a child abuse hotline. In reading your letters regarding the dangers of toddlers who might strangle on a venetian blind cord or drown in a toilet bowl, I was reminded of two other common hazards that the public needs to be aware of.

The first is couches placed next to windows. We've received numerous referrals of toddlers who had fallen out of windows, sometimes falling several stories onto concrete sidewalks, when the children climbed onto a couch (or chair) placed next to a window and then pushed the screen out.

The second is shaking a small child. An infant's brain does not fill up the skull cavity, so when someone shakes a child vigorously, his brain "bounces" off the walls of the skull. This causes bruising of the brain, swelling, internal bleeding, and more often than one would believe, permanent brain damage and sometimes death.

SAN DIEGO SOCIAL WORKER

DEAR SOCIAL WORKER: Thanks for writing. Only recently has the public been warned that shaking a small child vigorously can cause serious brain damage and even death.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WHAT TO EXPECT IN ALBANY, N.Y.": When a husband retires, his wife can usually expect to see twice as much husband and about half as much income.

SURVIVING A LOSS

Each person will experience many losses in life. There are obvious losses such as the death of a loved one or the break up of a couple or family. Not so obvious losses are things such as illness, loss of job or money, moving or other major changes. Age related losses include such things as puppy love, leaving school, changing jobs, loss of youth, "beauty" has teeth or sexual drive and retirement. Even the period of "not knowing" about the new business deal, the medical test results, the relative "missing in action" or the lovers' quarrel create a doubt which is a form of loss.

Each of these losses, immediate or cumulative, sudden or eventual, obvious or not, creates an emotional wound, an injury to the organism. Along with the obvious feelings of pain, depression and sadness, there are other reactions to loss that are not so obvious, such as:

- feeling helpless, fearful, empty, despairing
- feeling pessimistic, irritable, angry, guilty, restless
- experiencing a loss of concentration
- hope, motivation, energy
- changes in appetite, sleep patterns or sexual drive

Following a loss there are three recognizable stages of recovery. The progression goes from shock, denial to anger, depression and finally to understanding acceptance. The same three phases are apparent no matter how tragic or how seemingly trivial a loss might be. The difference is the length of time it takes to go through the phases and the intensity of emotion felt during each. A major loss might take several years to heal while a minor loss may be fully experienced in as little as ten seconds. Once the three stages of recovery have been experienced the body has healed and we are ready to continue with life.

After a loss you should seek professional advice at once if you feel suicidal, feel you are no longer in control or are "coming apart" have a history of severe emotional disturbances or turn often to alcohol or drugs, are isolated with no one to turn to or repeatedly find yourself in "loss situations." Bottom Line For Miss Universe Pageant — More Was Needed

BY SUSAN POSTLEWAITE
UPI Business Writer

MIAMI (UPI) — Miami put up $300,000 to lure Monday night's Miss Universe pageant and its 80 beauties to Miami, but the bottom line is, it wasn't enough.

"We needed more," said Harold Glasser, president of Miss Universe Inc.

"Based on what Miami gave us, we will probably have a deficit. I don't think we would come back on the same terms," he said.

After failing twice in the last few years to seduce Miss Universe, Miami got it in late April when it pulled out of Calgary, in western Canada, because of contract problems.

The contest was held in Miami Beach, across the bay, from 1960 through 1971.

Glasser brought it to Miami this time after the city agreed to put up $166,000 and the county $100,000.

The Greater Miami Host Committee arranged for businesses to kick in deluxe hotel rooms, villas and limousines, visits to Parrot Jungle, the Seaquarium and other attractions. Monty Trainer, owner of a Coconut Grove fish restaurant and bar, contributed $100,000.

One unexpected cost cropped up when Air Florida filed for bankruptcy last week. Glasser said the pageant may have to absorb the cost of tickets home for 30 contestants on Air Florida's suspended Miami-London flight. The pageant spent about $2,000 bringing over Miss Sri Lanka, who was sent home before the show because she was homesick.

It costs about $3 million to put on Miss Universe, touted as nearly as popular among TV viewers as the Superbowl and the most potentially profitable of three contests put on by Miss Universe Inc., a Paramount Pictures subsidiary of Gulf & Western.

The winner of Monday night's contest gets $175,000 in cash and prizes, including a year in a New York apartment, sports car, boat, diamond watch and clothes for a year.

Procter & Gamble, the pageant's sole advertiser for 25 years, sponsors most of it.

Glasser refused to disclose terms of the P&G contract, but said P&G "is a sponsor who is happy" and gets 14 minutes of advertising time during the two-hour show to promote its soaps, detergents, official pageant antiperspirant (Secret), and cooking products.

The other contests, Miss Teen and Miss USA, (held this year in Lakeland, Fla.) will turn a large enough profit to make up the loss in Miami, said Glasser, an attorney who has run the events for 25 years.

If necessary, Miss Universe Inc. can always sue Calgary.

"Calgary might have to make up the deficit," said Glasser. "We had a contract with them."

For hosting Miss Universe, Miami gets 40 minutes of free TV exposure to a national audience of 70 million, while the contestants visit museums, ride Metrorail, frolic on the beaches and bay and eat at various establishments.

"This is a good buy, plain simple," said Mayor Maurice Ferre. "Forty minutes of prime time watched by 70 million national viewers and 600 million internationally would probably cost us about $10 million."

Besides, Ferre said, "this is an opportunity to show Miami at its best. We've had the opportunity to see Miami at its worse for the last five years."

In comparison, Lakeland, a city of about 60,000, had to put up $800,000 to get the Miss USA pageant in April. Mike Martin, president of Lakeland's Miss USA host committee, said Lakeland feels it got a bargain too.

"The benefit to us is different than the benefit to Miami. This was the biggest thing Lakeland has ever seen. Everyone knows what Miami is and where it is. We were looking for an identity," he said.

Since the national broadcast, which included 45 minutes of video from the Lakeland area, Martin said the city has had some inquiries from industries about locating there.

SAVE ENERGY, $$$

An energy efficient appliance may cost more to purchase, but may pay for itself in the long run. "For example, a 10,000 BTU room air conditioner with an 8.8 EER will use 25 percent less electricity than a 10,000 BTU model with 6.6 EER," says Sandra Dellinger, extension housing specialist, North Carolina State University.

Homemaker's Haven

When traveling with preschoolers, make some travel rules and stick to them! Some suggestions include:

1. Use quiet voices (yours to!)
 2. Dropped toys may be picked up only at rest areas (or you'll be buckling and un-buckling often).
 3. Have a "quiet time" each day or every two hours for 5 to 10 minutes, so everyone can relax; (after all, the car necessitates a very restrictive and close relationship for everyone).
- Have a few tricks up your sleeve: magic slates, dot-to-dot books, car bingo games, decorative seals, healthful snacks, small pads and pencils, a new small car/doll, small magnetic boards, punch-out books and more wipe-ups.

The exciting and colorful trinkets in souvenir shops and in machines at some rest areas can lead to "I want..." battles between parents and children. To avoid this, give the children an allowance to spend at their discretion. This will help them learn "gone is gone" and that once the allowance is spent, there's nothing left for more treats and treasures.

A small lap tray/bed table is very valuable for travel. The small rim helps keep small toys from falling and provides a defined, flat play space. Drawings, decal gluing, game playing, etc., and all to be done more easily here.

Other ideas to ponder:

- If you have a cassette tape recorder, a tape of the children's and your favorite songs can calm tense times or brighten dull ones.
- Rainboots allow the child to walk, and free you from carrying him/her those inevitable days.
- A child's identification tag with your name and home address can help in case a child is lost.
- Dress the child in bright colors to spot them more easily.
- Take some first aid basics: lip balm, bandages, sting aids (moistened meat tenderizer or baking soda) and insect repellent.
- Know your terrain — don't put crayons in the rear window in hot climates (they melt) — but get water-based markers for such a climate.
- Have a spare blanket, GORP (peanuts, candy-coated chocolate, raisin mixture), plus flares for emergencies.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Chick peas (also known as garbanzos and ceci) are comparatively inexpensive and such an excellent source of protein they deserve to be served often. Here is what a famous botanist and amateur chef had to say about their use:

"The chick pea is a widely cultivated legume of notable prominence in the excellent cuisine of such areas as the Mediterranean, Asia, and in Mexico and many other parts of Spanish-speaking America. In these countries chick peas appear in a wide array of recipes, from hearty soups and stews to salads. Cooking the dried ones at home usually requires hours and hours — a lengthy time. For the average recipe, canned chick peas are perhaps to be preferred."

I heartily concur in recommending canned chick peas. Here is a simple but unusually savory salad in which they are used.

IF BABY'S TEETHING

Many babies begin teething around 6 months. "Your baby's disposition will be affected, because he is uncomfortable and may even have a fever or lose his appetite for a short time," says Dr. Frances Wagner, extension human development specialist, North Carolina State University. Some parents worry about using a teether. Research shows that a teether does not cause thumb sucking later. A baby who is beginning to cut teeth will especially enjoy hard bread crusts and teething biscuits.

Better Method

It has been long in coming, but it is likely now that Pitt County will have electronic vote-tabulating equipment for the November election.

Bids were taken by the commissioners, and Airmac Technology Systems Inc. was low bidder to provide 27 tabulators and a programming unit for $88,965. The bid was the lowest of two submitted. Airmac is not new to North Carolina. Thirty-five counties now use the equipment.

Acceptance of the bid will mean that Pitt County is entering a new era of voter service, one which takes advantage of the electronic technology that is now available. The equipment will accept printed ballots which are marked and fed into the machine by the voter. It counts and tabulates the votes and retains the printed ballot for use in case of malfunction or possible recount.

Use of the new equipment will vastly speed up the tabulating process on election night, and even though that tabulation is unofficial it is the one which allows the public to know who won. Often state races have been decided in the past before any Pitt County totals were included.

Polling officials have served our county well for over 200 years by hand-counting the ballots cast on election days. There is a better method available now, however, and thankfully Pitt County has taken the steps to take advantage of it.

Happy Times

Candidate Walter Mondale's search for a running mate is just one of several available political tactics to keep the pot boiling until convention time. It's smart, on his part, to put on display his party's resources in present and future political "stars" for the electorate.

Too, the process keeps public attention on personalities during the interval of waiting for the big show in San Francisco. Public interest tends to lag during periods of waiting.

So this is a time of relaxed "exposure" for Mr. Mondale. He is in the catbird's seat, paying off political debts, building fences, assessing points that may be scored in sectional, factional and personality strategies. It's the best of all worlds.

There will come a time when the candidate will look back on mid-summer 1984 as the most enjoyable season of his long campaign.

—Maxwell Glen and Cody Shearer—

Squeezing The Funds

WASHINGTON — During the heat of Watergate, then-Sen. Walter Mondale of Minnesota went before the Senate Rules Committee to urge passage of a bill that would provide public funding for presidential candidates.

"The present system almost gives an irresistible incentive to get around the law, and everybody knows it," the would-be presidential contender said. "What we need is a system that will permit public leaders to be honest if they choose to be honest."

Eleven years later, that system exists. But it still has not kept some politicians, including Mondale, from trying to get around the law.

This is the conclusion one draws from an article about Mondale's political finances by two election law experts, Bill Hogan and Alan Green. Writing in this month's Regardie's, a Washington-based business magazine, Hogan and Green unveil the results of five months of research into the ways in which corporations, unions and Mondale's own law firm secretly underwrote the former vice president's political expenses before his formal announcement of candidacy.

Corporations and unions are prohibited by federal law to make contributions from their own treasuries to federal candidates or political committees. Even if a corporate or union PAC gives to a candidate, its gift is limited to $5,000 per election.

Officials of Mondale's PAC, the Committee for the Future of America, used a legal loophole to get around these restrictions by establishing subcommittees subject to state, but not federal, law. By setting up these junior PACs in states that allowed large corporate and union contributions, Mondale's primary committee benefitted from almost $400,000 in otherwise unavailable funds — none of which were reported to the Federal Election Commission.

Meanwhile, Mondale received excessive in-kind contributions from the law firm of Winston & Strawn, his post-White House employer, and President Airways, the charter company that ferried Mondale on many of his political travels in 1981 and 1982. Winston & Strawn underwrote almost $250,000 of Mondale's political expenses when his election committee couldn't afford them, and didn't demand interest upon repayment many months later.

Similarly, in 1982, Mondale's PAC paid only $8,268 of the $53,841 it owed to Presidential Airways, but wasn't charged any interest on the outstanding balance. Federal law requires that credit payments be made "within a commercially reasonable time in the amount of the normal and usual rental charge."

In many instances, Hogan and Green write, the Mondale PAC sought to hide the full nature of its expenditures and financial sources by commingling funds and reporting the minimum necessary under law.

These are practices befitting an

There was a bit of a scandal at "The New Yorker" magazine. It appears one of their writers, Alastair Reid, admitted to a Wall Street Journal reporter that he had created composite characters, rearranged scenes and fabricated dialogue for nonfiction pieces he had written over the past 25 years.

This surprised many people in the journalistic world because the "New Yorker" has the foremost reputation for meticulously checking facts, even those in poems and short stories.

Mr. Reid justified his method of writing nonfiction by saying that when he played with facts he was creating a reality that was more accurate than what actually took place. Bill Shawn, his editor, defended Mr. Reid.

While not wanting to judge the "New Yorker" one way or the other,

I thought the reader might be interested in how this column deals with facts and the standards applied before it gets into print.

My highly paid staff consists of my assistant, Cathy Cray, and an eight-person fact-checking team who work on the floor just below me.

When I write a column it is immediately sent down to the fact-checking office to make sure everything I have said is true.

Last week, for example, I wrote a piece saying that Walter Mondale interviewed me to be his vice president. One of the checkers called Mr. Mondale to verify if it was true. Mr. Mondale, who has interviewed so many people for the job, was afraid to admit he couldn't remember if he had or hadn't. So he told my checker he probably had, and therefore she let the column go through.

On many occasions I have written about private meetings between President Reagan and various members of the White House staff, quoting complete conversations that took place in the Oval office.

Whenever one of the checkers calls me on this I say, "If you don't believe me why don't you call the White House?"

When the checker does call the president's press secretary, he is invariably told, "I have no comment on that," which is just as good as a confirmation as far as Washington is concerned.

The least of my problems has to do with the CIA, which will never confirm or deny a story no matter how wild it is. Therefore, while I insist every fact in a CIA column is true, and since the Agency won't say otherwise, the fact-checkers have no choice but to permit the piece to stand as it is.

The Pentagon, on the other hand, will deny everything I write. Once I had a fight with one of the fact-checkers because I said that the military was buying $7.50 hammers for $495. A red flag immediately went up, and the checker came charging upstairs yelling, "Who are you trying to kid? Nobody is going to pay $495 for a $7.50 hammer." I calmly dialed A. Ernest Fitzgerald at the Pentagon, who not only confirmed it, but gave me a list of other tools that cost the taxpayer millions of dollars more than they were worth. Since then I've never had a problem with my fact-checkers over any story I've written about waste in the military.

Recently I wrote a column about talking to God, who angrily refuted President Reagan's contention that God has been driven out of the public schools. One of the more skeptical checkers said he doubted I had spoken to God. I told him the next time he went to church to ask Him. The checker came back on the Monday morning and apologized. He said, "I read the column to God and he admitted he did talk to you, and was only disappointed you didn't use the full text of His remarks in the article."

The only reason I am pointing out how vigorous were in making sure that all the facts in my column are correct is not to gloat over the "New Yorker" embarrassment, but to assure the reader that everything he or she reads in my column is checked and double-checked before it is disseminated to the public.

If I ever had to resort to fabricating dialogue or playing loose with the truth, I would never be able to look at myself in the mirror in the morning again.

Search For A Leader

RALEIGH (AP) — The joint House-Senate Appropriations Committee is one of the first legislative groups to begin work and among the last to finish, considering spending matters that concern every taxpayer.

That makes the group a very powerful one and its leadership a select number whose power spills over into other areas.

Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake, voluntarily is leaving the Legislature and with it his job as Appropriations Base Budget Committee chairman. Speculation already has begun about a possible successor.

The committee's work is complex so it's likely that House Speaker Liston Ramsey will select a veteran committee member or committee leader.

The committee has two co-chairmen — Adams for the Base Budget Committee that considers operating expenses for state programs and Rep. William Watkins, D-Granville, for the Expansion Budget Committee that considers new spending initiatives.

Watkins is expected to continue next year as chairman of the Expansion Budget Committee.

Each committee has five subcommittees on education, general government, human resources, justice and public safety and natural and economic resources.

Adams refused to speculate last week about who might take his place but noted that three of his co-chairmen probably will be returning next year — Rep. Bobby Etheridge, D-Harnett, Natural and Economic Resources Subcommittee chairman; Rep. R.D. Beard, D-Cumberland, General Government Subcommittee chairman, and Rep. Margaret Tennille, D-Forsyth, Justice and Public Safety Subcommittee chairman.

Etheridge's name is mentioned most often by legislators and lobbyists as a likely choice to succeed Adams. He also was included during the short session in the tight circle of leaders hammering out budget spending initiatives and provisions.

Etheridge is hesitant to speculate who might get Adams' job, but acknowledges that his successor will inherit a great deal of responsibility.

"It's very difficult to speculate because people have got to get elected first," Etheridge said. "I don't think anyone could fill his shoes. Al had so many talents and his contributions were so varied."

Etheridge, 42, is a Lillington businessman. He has served three terms in the House and before that was a Harnett County commissioner for four years. He was chairman of the commissioners for two years.

Experience in handling county finances was a boost in the Appropriations Committee, Etheridge said. But he says he's not sure what kind of experience the group's chairman will need.

"It helps if someone knows about the process but I'm not sure it's mandatory," he said.

Although he says he's not working for the position, Etheridge talks about the job with great interest.

"Anyone, including myself, would be very flattered to be considered," he said. "When you affect the budget you affect a lot of people."

Third Primary Coming

RALEIGH — North Carolina's third primary of 1984 will be held on July 17 and, although voters in only one House and five Senate districts go to the polls, the voting could have major statewide political significance.

Seven seats are at stake in new districts. The U.S. Justice Department reviewed the districts for compliance with the Civil Rights Act but didn't finish in time for either the May 8 or June 5 statewide primaries.

The most interesting race comes in the northeast, in the 2nd District, where lawmakers gerrymandered lines to create a predominantly black district. Still, Sen. J.J. "Monk" Harrington, a wealthy white who is the dean of the Senate after 11 consecutive terms, is considered to have a good chance of winning re-election. Harrington, of Bertie County, faces John B. Moore, a Halifax County minister, and Rob Lewis, a Hertford County lawyer, both blacks.

Harrington, a moderate with some black support, is in line to be elected president pro tem of the Senate if he can make it to the 1985 session. If either of the two blacks can win, they will bring the black membership of the 1985 Senate to at least three — an all-time high.

Another northeastern veteran has a fight on his hands in the 10th

District. Sen. Dal Alford, D-Nash, faces James Ezzell, a former state representative and District Court judge. Alford is seeking his 11th term and observers of that race say it will be very close.

Turnout in these three districts should be pretty good. The racial aspects of the 2nd District contest have piqued public interest. A cocktails referendum in Nash and Edgecombe counties should help turnout in the 10th. But in three other districts, low turnout is almost certain.

Three seats are being contested in the 14th District of Harnett, Lee and most of Wake counties. Former Assistant Secretary of Administration J.K. Sherron is trying to take one of the seats now held by Sens. Wilma Woodard and Joe Johnson, D-Wake, or Sen. Bill Staton, D-Lee. Woodard and Johnson appear safe. Sherron, of Raleigh, is running a strong campaign and could knock Staton out of the Senate. That would again leave Lee and Harnett without a local boy in the Senate. (The one House race is a runoff in a newly formed single-member Raleigh district.)

Sen. Jim Speed, D-Franklin, must face three challengers in the 11th district and there are four newcomers in the race to take a seat from the newly constituted 6th District that includes parts of Wilson, Pitt and Edgecombe counties.

In these contests, turnout could be very low. Johnson said maybe as low as 10 percent. Staton said more like 20 percent. "Right now, the people don't even know there's going to be another election. Turnout all depends on how the media treats it," Johnson said. Staton said many people just won't be able to get to the polls. Farmers will be needed in the fields. Many people will be on vacation.

Harrington and Alford both complained about timing. With the primaries coming after the short session, both were in Raleigh while their opponents were campaigning at home.

The seniority of northeastern North Carolina's traditionally potent Senate delegation already has been undermined significantly. Sen. Julian Allsbrook, D-Halifax, died in May. Sens. Vernon White, D-Pitt, and Mel Daniels, D-Pasquotank, are retiring. If Alford and Harrington lose, the region will be without a single veteran in the Senate, a development which would almost certainly reduce the region's Senate clout in 1985.

There are even more primaries to come this year. A House district still has not been drawn and runoffs are likely in several of these Senate races.

Public Forum

To the editor:

The trial of Harvey Lee Green is over, but I don't think this terrible occurrence will ever be over for those of us who knew either victim. I'm sure I cannot begin to imagine the pain and suffering of both families. My heart goes out to them.

I was a classmate of John Michael Edmondson. He was that intelligent and most talented young man whom we all knew would make his mark on this world. Anything that he would have wanted to achieve, he most certainly could have. His love of and dedication to music was a tremendous inspiration to many people.

Sheila Bland was a North Pitt High School student only 17 years old. I have spoken with several students at North Pitt and other people who knew her. Every word that I have heard has been more than complimentary of this very special young lady.

I know that God's will and ways are beyond my understanding, but I can't help but wonder why tragedies like this have to happen. Do I dare ask why? Do I dare question the will of God? A fellow employee that I have talked with about this gave me the best answer I have had. She said, "Linda, the Good Lord only picks the prettiest flowers..."

I think the Good Lord picked two of the prettiest flowers he will ever have.

Golden Fleece Goes To FCIC

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire today awarded his Golden Fleece of the Month Award to the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation for spending $11.9 million on an advertising program that congressional investigators said produced negligible results.

"The purpose of this lavish expenditure of millions of taxpayer dollars was to increase awareness of the federal crop insurance program and persuade farmers that it is a good investment," Proxmire said. "But farmers ended up knowing no more about his program after the ad campaign than they did before."

Proxmire said a General Accounting Office study of the corporation's fiscal year 1983 advertising program said it "had a negligible effect on producer awareness of the program." Proxmire said the $11.9 million covered fiscal year 1981 through 1983.

"To add insult to injury, the FCIC is also spending an additional $1.6 million on this ad campaign in crop year 1984," the Wisconsin Democrat said.

J.W. Ellis, director of congressional and public affairs for the FCIC, said the agency is phasing down its advertising program, conducting it in cooperation with private companies which sell the insurance, and concentrating on presentations such as slide shows.

"We realize that what was once a good idea didn't turn out to be such a good idea," Miss Ellis said. "It was very good and very effective advertising. The trouble is that we had a hard time getting people to read it."

According to the GAO, the FCIC advertising program included "direct mailings to millions of producers of crops covered by the farmers disaster program and to FCIC policyholders; national and local news releases; feature stories in national magazines, including most state publications, backed by a radio campaign; publication of several brochures; and formal training programs for independent agents, insurance company officials, and FCIC employees."

Feldstein Leaving Post With Reputation Intact

WASHINGTON (AP) — Martin Feldstein, ending a rocky two years as President Reagan's chief economist, returns to his post at Harvard University with his reputation intact, if not enhanced, say private economists.

Feldstein, who has been at odds with some in the administration over the budget deficit and other economic issues, leaves his job Tuesday as chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers.

Private economists interviewed, some of whom held the position in the past, generally give him high marks for his work.

A few, though, say his outspokenness hurt his effectiveness in an administration thought to prize teamwork.

Herbert Stein, who held the chairmanship of the economics council in 1972-74, says, "He's one of the best qualified people who ever held the office."

Thomas Thomson, chief economist at San Francisco's Crocker National Bank, asserts, "He will be considered one of the best chairmen, (but) certainly not one of the most influential."

Adds David Wyss, economist at the consulting firm of Data Resources Inc., in Lexington, Mass., "He's hasn't done his reputation as an economist any harm. He has enhanced his reputation."

Feldstein, a conservative economist, was a Harvard professor and president of the National Bureau of Economic Research in Cambridge, Mass., before being tapped in August 1982 for the government position.

At the White House today, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said he had no word on a successor to Feldstein, but added, "I am sure it (the job) will be filled in due course."

Speakes refused to say when the job would be filled, or even if it would be filled before the November election, but said he believed the administration was gathering names of prospective successors.

Snow Leopard Has Three Cubs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A rare snow leopard has given birth to three cubs, each weighing less than 1½ pounds, Columbus Zoo officials announced.

The cubs born Sunday have a 75 percent chance of survival, said zoo Director Jack Hanna. The only other snow leopard born at the zoo died shortly after birth, he said.

The cubs should grow to 55 pounds at maturity, said Dusty Lombardi, head keeper of the children's zoo.

Snow leopards, which are light brown with dark spots, are native to the Tibetan Himalayas.

Hunters have decimated the leopard population, and only about 1,500 are estimated to remain in the wild.

Farm Scene

By LEROY JAMES
County Extension Chairman

A bill that would require lenders to forgive up to 20 percent of a financially troubled farmer's debt has been introduced in Congress.

The growing agricultural credit could bankrupt between 10-15 percent of the nation's producers over the next two years if something is not done to reverse the current trend.

Economists say that adverse weather and financial conditions have combined to create a paradoxical situation in farming.

"Farm income is expected to hit near record levels for the second consecutive year," said George D. Irwin, associate deputy governor and chief economist of the Farm Credit Administration. Irwin, whose agency oversees the production credit associations and federal land banks in the United States, said farmers are not fully sharing in the country's surprisingly strong economic growth.

The first three years of the 1980s saw reductions in exports, profits and land values. Farmers who had borrowed heavily to expand operations now face severe liquidity problems.

One sign of the economic times, according to observers, is the recent disclosure that U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block has had to put up collateral for a series of farm loans that previously were unsecured.

Adverse weather conditions put many producers into financial difficulty for the first time in the late 1970s and early 1980s. Others over-expanded during the same time frame because they expected inflation to continue to push up land values. But a decision by the Federal Reserve Board of October 1979 caused the money supply to contract severely and forced interest rates to climb through the ceiling. The purpose of the move was to bring inflation under control. The cost of one of the farmer's most precious commodities — money — nearly doubled overnight, creating losses out of what had been profitable situations in many cases.

As drought in 1980 and 1983 and low farm prices in 1981 and 1982 have forced more growers out of business, the result has been a compounding of problems for remaining producers.

For Blacks On Fall Voting

Jackson Says Will Send Signal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson says he'll send a signal to black voters after the Democratic National Convention to guide them on whether they should vote in the presidential election this fall, the Washington Post reported today.

"I'll play a trumpet with a clear sound to signal where we (black voters) are relative to presidential politics," Jackson said in an interview with the newspaper.

The Post said Jackson predicted his followers would heed his advice even if it meant indirectly helping President Reagan's re-election effort by not voting in the presidential race.

"During the course of this campaign my constituency has been more loyal to me than any other candidate's voters and I judge they will continue to be loyal," Jackson added.

Jackson said his signal would be based on whether he thinks he has been treated fairly by the Democratic Party and its convention has dealt with issues affecting blacks, the newspaper said.

Jackson was elaborating on remarks in a speech Saturday night in Kansas City, Mo., when he urged blacks to await his signal after the convention, which opens next week in San Francisco.

In the speech to the African Methodist Episcopal Church conference, Jackson said: "The Democrats will tell you, if you don't vote (for the Democrat) Reagan will get you ... Stand still, don't make any panicky decisions. Just stand still and take your signal. If you voted for me in January, February, March, April, May and June, just wait for my signal in July, August, September and October."

Jackson's remarks came less than a week after the black civil rights leader and candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination held a conciliatory meeting with the apparent nominee, Walter F. Mondale.

Jackson said white Democrats need his "enthusiastic" support to win in the general election.

Roller Coaster Stalls on Loops

WILDWOOD, N.J. (AP) — Twenty-eight thrill seekers were left suspended 50 feet above ground for several hours after a roller coaster stalled between two loops, but no injuries were reported, officials said.

Dispatcher Harry Tweed said Sunday that police erected six-tiered scaffolding at the Mariner's Landing Amusement Pier in this island resort and "are bringing them down one at a time."

The newly installed "Sea Serpent" stalled at about 8:50 p.m., leaving some of the riders hanging, a witness said.

"They are more or less sideways going over the loop," said Judy Buck of Cape May. "If they didn't have a seatbelt on they could easily fall down."

Elderly Leading Return To Cities

WASHINGTON (AP) — If Americans on the move continue to follow the patterns set by senior citizens — as they did in the 1960s and 1970s — a return to the cities may be approaching.

The elderly, who were in the vanguard of the movement from cities to small towns in recent years, have reversed that trend, a new study of Census Bureau figures shows.

"If older migrants are the pioneers that predict general patterns ... then migration researchers should be cautioned to fasten their seat belts," reports Charles F. Longino of the Center for Social Research in Aging at the University of Miami.

While the general pattern of movement in America had been from small towns to cities since the last century, that trend was reversed during the 1970s, with the elderly leading the way.

Indeed, the pattern of movement back to the countryside began in the late 1960s for the elderly, reports Longino in a paper prepared for the September edition of The Journal of Gerontology.

Between 1965 and 1970, 22 percent of people aged 60 and over who moved across state lines moved from cities to small towns or the countryside, while only 15.2 percent of such movers went from country to city.

That reversed the historical pattern, and Census studies have shown that in subsequent years the migration flow of Americans in general began to follow a similar city-to-country pattern.

That movement led to the widely discussed "rural renaissance" as growth of major cities stagnated and smaller communities swelled with new residents.

But between 1975 and 1980, the elderly reversed themselves again, restoring the traditional country to city pattern of migration, according to the study done by Longino and three colleagues.

During that five-year period, 22 percent of the interstate movers over age 60 went from country to city, while only 16 percent went the other way, they reported.

"This finding is surprising in light of what appeared to be a major reversal of a long-standing migration trend," they wrote.

"You need to watch where the old folks are going because they aren't tied down by jobs and things. You can get some handle on national trends by keeping an eye on them," Longino said in a telephone interview.

"They are, once again for the second decade, leading the way," he said, citing a recent Census Bureau population estimate that indicates cities grew faster than rural areas between 1980 and 1982, "an apparent reversal of the pattern of ... growth found in 1970."

If the new pattern continues, the city to country movement of the 1970s will turn out to have been a temporary phenomenon and the elderly will, once again, "have been the weather vane predicting general population movements, the forerunners," Longino said.

The reversal of trends occurred primarily among people moving from one state to another. For those moving within the same state there was less variation.

Rescuers Credited With Extra Effort

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — Passengers and federal officials credited an "extraordinary" rescue effort by hundreds of volunteers with preventing the loss of even more lives after an Amtrak train derailed, killing five people and injuring 137 others.

The 18 hours of digging, lifting, cutting, sweating and waiting was "a textbook example of how it should be done," said Donald Hamlin, who helped direct the efforts that followed the worst Amtrak accident in 13 years.

"It was trial under fire for all of us," said Hamlin, 52, a founder of the Essex Rescue Squad. "We practice disaster drills twice a year. But this is not the sort of thing you think is ever going to happen."

CIA Reported Using Airlines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Central Intelligence Agency is using small private airlines to fly military supplies for anti-Sandinista rebels in Nicaragua, sometimes falsifying flight plans to hide the activity, according to a CBS News report.

In a report based on information from unidentified sources, the network said Sunday night that the CIA is using air freight companies in Florida, Delaware and Arizona to secretly ship guns, airplane parts and personnel to Central America.

It said on April 9, 1983, Southern Air Transport of Miami, Fla., carried 22 tons of small arms to a Honduran military base on a propeller-driven Hercules transport plane with a special crew.

While the flight plan filed with federal civil aviation authorities listed the destination as the Honduran capital, Tegucigalpa, the plane actually went to an army base at Palmerola, the network said. It said it had obtained "secret instructions" given to the plane's pilot.

CIA spokesman Dale Peterson said, "It's not our policy to comment on such allegations."

And The Washington Post, in today's editions, quoted Karna Small, a spokesman for the National Security Council, as saying "we are knocking down the story that we are now using Southern Air to do anything because the funding is gone. We are out of money to support those programs. That is why we are asking Congress for money."

Protestors Block Way To Airport

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Jetliners landed at Beirut's international airport today for the first time since warfare forced its closure five months ago, but all roads leading to the facility were blocked by protesters.

Relatives of civil war kidnap victims barricaded roads to the airport with burning tires and also blocked all crossings between the capital's Moslem and Christian sectors.

A strike was called in mostly Moslem west Beirut in solidarity with the protesters — most of them women with photographs of missing persons pinned on their clothes.

Armed men, believed to be militiamen, were seen telling shopkeepers to lower their shutters and turning school buses away from schools. Only pharmacies, restaurants and bakeries were allowed to stay open.

The army, which assumed control of greater Beirut in an operation designed to end the reign of warring militias, made no effort to stop the disorders or lift the blockades.

At the airport, the first Boeing 707 belonging to Middle East Airlines, Lebanon's national carrier, circled over the city three times before landing at 5:30 a.m. The plane, carrying no passengers, flew in from Damascus.

Soon the rest of the airline's fleet began to stream home from Egypt and Cyprus. Shortly after noon, the first loaded plane landed with 102 passengers from Jidda, Saudi Arabia. The state radio said the army was making arrangements to transport the passengers safely to the city.

The airport was closed Feb. 6 during fighting in which Moslem and Druse militiamen drove the army out of west Beirut and the southern suburbs.

The reopening of the airport and seaport, as well as of crossings between sectors of the divided capital, are key elements in a Syrian-mediated security plan approved by the Lebanese Cabinet, which includes the country's primary militia chiefs.

Middle East Airlines, which had announced a schedule of eight flights to Europe and Middle East destinations would begin today, said the schedule was "frozen" pending the outcome of government efforts to lift the road blockade.

Families of people kidnapped by various militias threatened to continue their blockades until all captives were released.

Greece Says U.S. Mixing In Its Domestic Affairs

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A government spokesman said today that Greece will have to review all of its relations with the United States if America continues efforts "to intervene in our country's domestic policies."

"Greece conducts policies that serve our country's national interests and isn't going to yield to direct or indirect pressures from a country that over-arms Turkey, thus increasing the threat against Greece and Cyprus," said spokesman Dimitri Maroudas.

His remarks came a day after a U.S. Embassy spokesman said that plans for Greece to buy a squadron of American-made F-5 jet fighters from Norway had been dropped. A squadron would normally include about two dozen planes.

A Greek newspaper, which reported the sales freeze last week, attributed the action to U.S. irritation with policies of the Socialist Greek government. Both the Washington Post and New York Times today said the planes might be sold to Turkey — the arch-rival of Greece.

"Greek-American relations will have to be reviewed in their entirety if the United States continues its attempts to intervene in our country's domestic policies," Maroudas said.

He was referring to last month's criticism by U.S. State Department officials who claimed Greece had released a Jordanian suspected of involvement in a plot to blow up international jetliners using suitcase bombs.

Greece asked the CIA officer who allegedly raided an Athens apartment in connection with the case to leave the country.

Greece claims that Turkey, a fellow member of NATO, is a bigger threat to Greek security than the Warsaw Pact countries to the north. It also accuses the United States of favoring Turkey over Greece in the long-running disputes over Cyprus and the Aegean Sea.

The U.S. Embassy spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said it would be "simplistic" to link cancellation of the F-5 deal with an American protest of Greek actions.

A conservative Athens daily, Messimvri, reported last week that the United States had frozen sales of second-hand U.S. military aircraft to Greece because of anti-American attitudes.

State Department spokeswoman Joanne Reams in Washington refused comment Sunday on the report.

The New York Times and The Washington Post reported today that the F-5 jets probably be sold to Turkey. Both quoted officials as saying the sale was blocked because of the Greek government's handling of terrorist incidents.

Messimvri said Greece's Washington ambassador, George Papoulias, was summoned to the State Department on June 26 to hear complaints.

It said they ranged from unhappiness with Greece's refusal to condemn the Soviet downing of a South Korean jetliner last September to Premier Andreas Papandreou's opposition to deployment of new NATO missiles in Europe and his description of the United States as the "mecca of imperialism," the newspaper said.

Tallest Visitor

TOKYO (AP) — Muhammad Alam Channa of Pakistan, reputed to be the world's tallest man, traveled to Tokyo as the guest of a company publishing a Japanese edition of the Guinness Book of Records, Kyodo news service reported.

The 28-year-old Channa is 8 feet, 2 1/2 inches tall and weighs 458 pounds, Kyodo said.

Channa was quoted as saying Sunday, "It is a great honor that I am the tallest man in the world, but I have many inconveniences in daily life."

Turner May Call Canadian Election

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister John Turner, back after a quick trans-Atlantic trip to consult Queen Elizabeth II, appears ready to call national elections for late summer to test his new government's strength.

Turner took office June 30, replacing as prime minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, the Liberal Party leader who dominated Canadian politics for 16 years. Turner scheduled a news conference for this afternoon, at which he was expected to announce he was dissolving Parliament and naming Sept. 4 as election day.

The greatest obstacle to a summer election was the long-planned royal tour July 14-27 of the Canadian provinces of New Brunswick, Ontario and Manitoba. The queen's policy is to make no public appearances during election campaigns in the countries where she is sovereign, including Canada.

Upon his return to Ottawa Sunday evening, Turner refused to comment on a report quoting Canadian officials as saying the queen had agreed to postpone her tour.

Turner was under pressure from Liberal Party organizers and senior Cabinet ministers to call an early election.

The Liberals have trailed the opposition Progressive Conservatives in public opinion polls for most of the past three years, sometimes by more than 20 points.

But after the Trudeau quit, the Liberals pulled even. A Gallup Poll, taken after Turner won the party leadership three weeks ago, puts the Liberals ahead 48 percent to 37 percent, with the socialist New Democratic Party getting 11 percent.

The Conservatives' leader, Brian Mulroney, says his party will "catch up."

Under Canadian law, an election on Sept. 4 could be called no later than July 15. Pushing the vote toward the fall would conflict with a visit by Pope John Paul II.

Turner flew to London on Friday, had lunch with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher on Saturday, then dined with the queen and her husband, Prince Philip. He stayed overnight at Windsor Castle before returning to Ottawa on Sunday.

The prime minister's willingness to cross the Atlantic twice in three days to confer briefly with Queen Elizabeth illustrates the sensitivity of the issue in Canadian politics. Some Liberal organizers have been concerned that putting off the royal tour could cost votes among Canadian monarchists.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market opened slightly lower today following its setback last week.

Aerospace, mining and energy issues were among the early losers, while several retail and financial stocks moved ahead.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial, off nearly 2 points Friday, slipped another 0.11 to 1,122.46 in today's opening halfhour.

Declines jumped out to a slim lead over advances on the New York Stock Exchange.

Stocks remain under pressure from the prospect that interest rates will move up in the weeks ahead, many brokers say.

The expectations of higher rates are underpinned by the strong economy, highlighted by last week's report of a drop in civilian unemployment in June to 7.1 percent from 7.5 percent in May.

There are fears the strong expansion will force the Federal Reserve, which wants to avoid higher inflation, to tighten the availability of credit. Such a move would push rates higher.

Meanwhile, there is speculation the Fed is about to raise its discount rate — that charged on loans to financial institutions. The rate has been 9 percent since April.

On the NYSE today, F.W. Woolworth rose 1/4 to 33 3/4, Texaco edged 1/2 to 33 1/2 and Bank America edged up to 16 1/4.

On Friday, the Dow Jones industrial average slipped 1.99 to 1,122.57, bringing its loss for the week to 9.83 points.

Losers led gainers 5 to 3 on the NYSE, whose composite index dropped 0.27 to 87.90.

Big Board volume totaled 65.85 million shares, against 66.10 million in the previous session.

Infestation

JERUSALEM (AP) — A mosquito infestation in Gulf of Aqaba port cities has brought Israel and Jordan into direct contact despite the state of war that has existed between them since 1948, a government official and an Israeli newspaper report.

The Haaretz Newspaper said mosquitoes plaguing the twin cities of Eilat and Aqaba on either side of the Israel-Jordan border were among local problems being discussed by low-level Israeli and Jordanian officials.

Gillam Says Someone Trying 'Drive A Wedge'

State Rep. John Gillam has charged that someone or some group "is trying to drive a wedge" between his supporters and candidates who won nominations to offices in the recent Democratic primaries.

Gillam, who has represented Pitt County's Bethel and Carolina townships in the General Assembly, lost in his bid to win the Democratic nomination for the 1st Congressional District seat to incumbent Walter Jones.

Gillam said a woman identifying herself as Frances Knox, wife of Eddie Knox who lost in his bid for the nomination as governor, contacted his wife last week to ask if she wanted to join in an endorsement of Republican Sen. Jesse Helms.

Helms faces Gov. Jim Hunt in his bid for reelection to the U.S. Senate.

Gillam said it was suggested that in return for an endorsement of Helms, he would receive help in retiring a campaign debt of some $300,000.

In addition, Gillam said several members of his campaign staff have been offered campaign jobs by persons identifying themselves as representatives of Republican candidates.

"My family, my friends and I are not for sale," Gillam said. "Certainly I am going to ask my supporters to help me retire my campaign debt. But my family and friends are not for sale."

State's Crime Rate Dropping

RALEIGH (AP) — The crime rate in North Carolina dropped by 7.5 percent in 1983, the largest overall decrease in the rate in 10 years, Attorney General Rufus Edmisten said today.

The report shows an overall drop of 7.6 percent in the rate of violent crimes and a 7.5 percent drop in the rate of property crimes.

Of the seven crimes included in the index, reported rapes increased 0.4 percent, with decreases reported in murder, armed robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny and car theft.

The index indicated that 676 crimes were committed every 24 hours during 1983, including one murder, four rapes, 13 robberies, 48 aggravated assaults, 192 burglaries, 391 larcenies and 27 motor vehicle thefts.

The state's murder rate dropped 11.2 percent; aggravated assaults, 8.3 percent; robberies, 6.7 percent; motor vehicle thefts, 9.4 percent; burglaries, 8.8 percent; and larcenies, 6.7 percent.

Edmisten said the arson rate, which was not included in the index of reported crimes, dropped 10.7 percent in 1983.

"Last year's drop is a notable trend that shows what we can do when we work at it," Edmisten said at a news conference. "The steady decline in our crime rate over the last four years is gratifying."

"These statistics clearly indicate that the extensive efforts of law enforcement and the active support of citizens involved in crime-fighting programs is paying off," he said. "If we continue to combine our energies, North Carolina's crime climate in the eighties will be an exemplary standard for the nation."

Edmisten said there were many factors in the crime rate decrease, including tougher laws, the Fair Sentencing Act, better training and pay for law enforcement officers, the Community Watch program and programs aimed at keeping career criminals off the streets.

The decrease in the crime rate, he said, was larger than in any other state.

like this has ever happened before, and we'll just have to wait and see."

Growers are still being advised to treat the damaged tobacco like a normal crop, Smith said, unless told to do otherwise by an insurance adjuster. "Just continue normal cultural practices on the tobacco, that's what we're saying," he said.

Farmers are also asking about potential health hazards the presence of dicamba on tobacco could present, Smith said. "The fact is, it (dicamba) offers none whatsoever," he said. "The herbicide is labeled for use on food crops and corn, wheat and sorghum is frequently treated with it."

The Food and Drug Administration allows meat to be sold that contains two-tenths parts per million of dicamba, Smith said. Tobacco, he noted, is so sensitive to the drug that "just a few parts per billion will kill it."

"Therefore it would be impossible to have tobacco marketed that contains harmful levels of toxicity — it would simply kill itself in the field," he said.

Currently no firm proposal has been made by Grace concerning adjustments to farmers whose crops are damaged. Visits were made to several area farms in June by insurance adjusters representing Grace, and second visits to examine the crop in the topping stage have begun.

Some area farmers are not happy with the initial offers from the company. They say they should be reimbursed for the entire crop, because companies will not buy the damaged leaf because of possible health hazards. Agriculture officials say, however, there is no scientific evidence to back up their claim.

Charges Changed In Pipe Bombing

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Federal charges against a former mental patient suspected of planting pipe bombs in four Midwestern states have been dropped, replaced by state charges that place the burden of proof for any insanity defense on the accused, officials said today.

Earl Steven Karr, 24, was indicted last month by a federal grand jury in Minneapolis on 21 counts of possession, transport and manufacture of explosives. The charges came after bombs were found in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Illinois in late May. One person was injured in a blast. Karr himself was hurt in a blast in Iowa.

Of the 113 inmates who left death row during the year, 60 had their sentences overturned but their convictions upheld; 28 had their sentences and their convictions overturned; 11 had their sentences commuted; five were executed; five died of natural causes; three died by suicide and one was killed trying to escape.

The median time spent on death row was two years and four months, but nearly 30 percent of the inmates had been there at least four years.

Death row prisoners ranged in age from 17 to 82, but the median age was 31.

Stars, Wranglers To Battle For Title

Preparation, Opportunity Provide Arizona 'Luck'

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — All week long, Arizona Wranglers Coach George Allen carried a palm-sized, white-and-green pin in his right pocket which simply said, "Luck: When preparation meets opportunity."

Saturday night, Allen said his club "was as prepared as ever and took advantage of every opportunity" to defeat the Los Angeles Express 35-23 here and gain a berth in the United States Football League title game July 15 in Tampa, Fla.

As winners of the Western Conference championship, Arizona will meet the Eastern Conference champ Philadelphia Stars, who beat the Birmingham Stallions 20-10 Sunday.

"We don't care who we play in Tampa. We're just happy to get there," said Allen, whose Wranglers are 0-3 against the Stars. "We worked hard all week getting ready for this one with LA because it was a championship game. Now we go on to the big one and we deserve it."

"We out-toughed LA. We were in better shape than they were. We had conditioning, good execution and the belief that we could do it," added Allen. "LA talked all week about how hot it would have been here if we played in the afternoon instead of at night. But if this game had been played at the time it was originally scheduled to be played, it wouldn't have been a contest. We still would have won."

The game's starting time was switched from 12:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. MST to avoid the mid-afternoon heat. However, the temperature was 100 degrees at kickoff with 29 percent humidity.

Wranglers running back Tim Spencer, who scored three touchdowns, said "our conditioning really came through in the fourth quarter. We were definitely pumped up for this one."

Arizona scored 21 fourth-quarter points, taking the lead for good on Kevin Long's 1-yard touchdown run 40 seconds into the final period to cap a 10-play, 80-yard drive.

Spencer, who rushed for 94 yards on 18 carries, caught a 5-yard touchdown pass from Greg Landry with 9:14 remaining for a 28-17 lead. Spencer had scored twice in the first half on short runs.

Mack Boatner's 5-yard touchdown run sealed Arizona's win with 2:55 left.

Express quarterback Steve Young, harried all night by a heavy Wranglers pass rush, fired a 20-yard scoring strike to David Hersey with 1:20 to go.

Young, the heralded rookie with the $40 million contract, completed just seven of 23 passes for 126 yards with two interceptions.

"It's my job to do the things to make things happen. I'm the catalyst of this team and I didn't do it," Young said. "It's my fault. I didn't make the plays I usually make."

"I've got a long ways to go as a quarterback. I think they took advantage of some of the rookie things I've been doing," added Young. "But they did some things I've never seen before, like playing a seven-man zone. This is the only team I've ever faced that can rush four guys and hold seven back and still cover all the lanes. They didn't allow me to do the things I've been doing all year."

Express Coach John Hadl said "in the first quarter, we were physical and controlled the line of scrimmage and moved the ball on them. But you got to play 60 minutes and not 30. They just whipped us in the second half."

Down 7-3 after the first quarter, Los Angeles went ahead 17-7 on two touchdown runs by Kevin Nelson — an 11-yarder 49 seconds into the second period and a 1-yard plunge 6:52 later.

After a botched fake punt, Spencer's 6-yard run 1:21 before halftime cut Arizona's deficit to three. The Wranglers took over possession at the Express' 34-yard line when Los Angeles punter Jeff Partridge threw an incomplete pass on fourth down.

"We've done it in the past and it worked," Hadl said. "They out-smarted us. We audibilized and they audibilized. Give them credit. I'll take the blame."

Tony Zendejas opened the scoring for the Express with a 25-yard field goal 4:06 into the game before a crowd of 33,188 at 70,021-seat Sun Devil Stadium.

Spencer's 4-yard run with 4:29 left in the first quarter put Arizona up 7-3. The touchdown was set up by safety Luther Bradley's interception and 9-yard return to the Los Angeles 36.

Stars Shine In Victory

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Linebacker George Cooper, who recovered a fumble to set up the Philadelphia Stars' first touchdown, said he was not at his best. But he promised he would be next week.

Cooper's fumble recovery put the Birmingham Stallions in a hole early as the Stars captured a 20-10 United States Football League playoff victory best Sunday. That earned them a return trip to the USFL championship game, which they lost last year 24-22 to Michigan. Next Sunday, Philadelphia opposes Arizona in Tampa, Fla., for the 1984 title.

"This wasn't my best game. I want my best game to be next week," Cooper said.

"I don't care who we're playing next week. I'm just glad we have the opportunity to play," added Stars Coach Jim Mora, whose team's two playoff triumphs raised its record to 18-2.

Mora praised his team's defense, which has given up an average of just 12 points a game, as the key to the victory over the Stallions. Birmingham quarterback Cliff Stoudt, playing with a bruised shoulder, was sacked six times, a Stars' record, and intercepted three times.

The Stars also took advantage of two Birmingham fumbles as they roared to a 20-0 halftime lead on two Kelvin Bryant touchdowns and two David Trout field goals. The Stallions did not score until the fourth quarter, and crossed midfield only once before halftime.

"We wanted to get on them early because they are not a real good team in coming back," said Bryant, who finished with 152 yards on 28 carries. He had 141 yards in the first half, when the Stars outgained the Stallions 272-72, and scored on two short runs.

The first touchdown came after Cooper recovered Ron Frederick's fumbled punt return at the Stallions' 42-yard line, setting up Bryant's 2-yard run and a 7-0 lead with 6:22 left in the first quarter.

Bryant almost scored another touchdown after Antonio Gibson recovered a fumble by the Stallions' Joe Cribbs at the Stars' 40. Bryant ran 54 yards, dropped the ball and picked it up, then lost it again and Birmingham's Mike Perko recovered it for a touchback in the end zone.

Russo Signs With Pirates

Anthony Russo, a former Eastern Wayne High School standout currently playing with Snow Hill's American Legion squad, has signed a grant to play baseball at East Carolina University.

Russo is the fourth signee by new Pirate head Coach Gary Overton.

"He fills a hole at third base," Overton said referring to the loss of David Wells. "He can hit with power and should add some punch to the lineup."

Russo (5-8, 175) was the team Most Valuable Player in his senior year at Eastern Wayne. He batted .500 and had two homers.

Eastern Wayne went to the Eastern 3-A finals Russo's junior year, as he batted .384. Steve Sides, a rising sophomore and a starter at second base for the Pirates, was a member of the 1983 Eastern Wayne infield.

For Snow Hill this summer, he batted .386, ripped three homers and played in the league's all-star game. Last summer, he hit .380 with three homers.

McEnroe Retains Crown

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Two weeks of high quality tennis, idyllic summer weather and record crowds — the 1984 Wimbledon championships had just about everything.

"We have had all the ingredients of a vintage Wimbledon," said Buzzer Hadingham, chairman of the All England club, as the championships drew to a close.

"Relationships between players and officials have been very much more relaxed, and we shall remember for a long time the gathering of some of the greatest lady champions ever, who joined us to celebrate 100 years of ladies at Wimbledon."

On the second Monday of the tournament, 17 former champions took part in a glittering Center Court parade to mark the women's centenary.

Many stayed on for the rest of the fortnight and saw Martina Navratilova beat Chris Evert Lloyd in a high-class women's final on Saturday to capture her fifth singles crown, and third in a row.

For the first time ever, all the No. 1 seeds won the five major competitions.

John McEnroe took just 80 minutes Sunday to demolish fellow American Jimmy Connors 6-1, 6-1, 6-2 in one of the most one-sided men's singles finals in many years. Later, Britain's John Lloyd and Australia's Wendy Turnbull retained their mixed doubles crown.

On Saturday, McEnroe and Peter Fleming won their fourth men's doubles title, while Navratilova and Pam Shriver took the women's doubles.

The best display of the tournament was reserved for the very last singles match on Center Court. McEnroe, his game peaking for the ultimate test, destroyed Connors in Sunday's men's final with an awesome display of shotmaking that gave the 25-year-old New Yorker his third Wimbledon crown.

He was the first American to retain the title since Don Budge in 1938 and brought the following tribute from Britain's Fred Perry, himself a former three-time champion: "I consider him to be the complete tennis player. He has shots no other player has and is very fast around the court."

McEnroe said he played one of the greatest matches of his career and he hoped people would remember him for his tennis ability, rather than his notorious on-court antics.

At his post-match news conference, he said he hoped for four or five more shots at the title but said the sport was continually producing new champions.

"Tennis is improving all the time and the players are getting better," he said. "I don't think there's a whole lot of guys (in the past) who could have beaten me today. But in 20 years' time, there's obviously going to be a player who plays better than I do now."

"I've gone through rivalries with (Bjorn) Borg and (Ivan) Lendl. Hopefully I can have one with a couple of other players. That will mean I've been around for a time," he said.

There were the occasional on-court tantrums, but fewer than usual and McEnroe was on his best behavior throughout the tournament.

"It would be surprising if tempers did not flare once in while when the world's greatest tennis players meet in the world's greatest tournament," said Hadingham, "but everyone is agreed that these have been happy championships."

Attendance figures for the 13-day tournament were an all-time record of 391,673, more than 30,000 more than last year.

"The record crowds have justified our policy of always doing our best to ... improve facilities," said Hadingham who expressed his "delight at the brilliant tennis of Martina Navratilova, Chris Evert Lloyd, John McEnroe and Jimmy Connors."

LaRussa Looking Ahead In West

By The Associated Press
Chicago White Sox Manager Tony LaRussa gets angry when asked to compare 1984 with 1983, but he certainly wouldn't mind if it turned out the same way.

Anyway, the comparisons seem to be increasingly in evidence and even LaRussa, a licensed attorney in Florida, would be hard-pressed to prove otherwise.

Exhibit A: After 84 games last year, the White Sox were 44-40, 1 1/2 games out in the American League West and starting a 58-24 tear that saw them romp to the division flag by a record 20-game margin.

Exhibit B: After 84 games this season, Chicago is on top with a 44-40 record, one game ahead of Minnesota and California. And the White Sox are hot. Sunday's 9-8 victory over the Cleveland Indians gave them a seven-game winning streak, longest of the season.

Any objections, counselor?
"Anybody who talks about last year gets fined. I'm posting the sign. This is 1984," LaRussa said. "We're not setting any schedules for ourselves, not when we play 162 games. We'd prefer to get off to a fast start every season but it hasn't worked out that way."

In other AL games, Texas outlasted Detroit 9-7, Seattle stopped Toronto 7-1, Minnesota edged New York 4-3 in 10 innings, California blanked Boston 4-0 after dropping the double-header opener 3-2 in 10 innings, Oakland downed Milwaukee 4-1 and Kansas City trimmed Baltimore 6-1.

Despite two-run homers by Vance Law and Rudy Law, the White Sox trailed Cleveland 6-5 in the bottom of the eighth inning. But pinch-hitter Jerry Hairston tied the game with a leadoff home run off Steve Farr and Harold Baines slammed a three-run blast off Mike Jeffcoat following singles by Julio Cruz and Scott Fletcher. Andre Thornton hit a pair of solo shots and Chris Bando also homered for Cleveland.

Rangers 9, Tigers 7
Texas built a seven-run lead and survived costly errors by second baseman Wayne Tolleson and shortstop Curt Wilkerson as Bobby Jones, Donnie Scott and Buddy Bell drove in two runs apiece. Winner Frank Tanana went six innings, giving up six runs on six hits, but was hurt by four unearned runs in the sixth capped by Howard Johnson's three-run homer. Loser Doug Bair, making his first start after 24 relief appearances, was knocked out in the third when Texas scored five times for a 7-0 bulge.

Despite the setback, which was their sixth in the last eight games and gave them a 22-22 record since their torrid 35-5 start, the Tigers remained seven games in front of second-place Toronto in the AL East.

"The way we've played in the last 44, there's no way in the world we'll win if we keep playing like this," Anderson said. "We probably should have lost all four games here. We definitely need some rest."

Mariners 7, Blue Jays 1
Jim Beattie, pitching with just two days' rest, tamed Toronto on three hits in a six-inning stint and Ken Phelps and Barry Bonnell each drove in two runs. Beattie was raked for seven hits and seven runs in 1-1/3 innings Thursday night and also failed to last two innings in an early-season start against the Blue Jays.

The Mariners broke a 1-1 tie with four runs in the fifth inning as they snapped the five-game winning streak of Toronto's Jim Gott. With two out and the bases loaded following an intentional walk to Alvin Davis, Phelps doubled two runs across. Al Cowens was walked intentionally to reload the bases and Bonnell followed with a two-run single.

Twins 4, Yankees 3

Darrell Brown missed a bunt sign but his 10th-inning single with the bases loaded drove in the winning run against New York relief ace Dave Righetti. Kirby Puckett led off the 10th with a single and was forced at second on Mickey Hatcher's bunt. But Hatcher went to third on Kent Hrbek's single and Dave Engle was walked intentionally to load the bases. Brown then slapped the first pitch just over Meacham's glove for his game-winning hit, snapping a tie that existed since the seventh when New York's Oscar Gamble hit a two-run homer. Ron Davis was the winner with 2-1/3 innings of scoreless relief.

"I was in doubt," Brown said after coach Tom Kelly flashed the squeeze sign. "We've been changing signs so much lately and I figured when in doubt, swing the bat."

"I hope Brown goes to church tonight," said Manager Billy Gardner. "If he didn't get the base hit we would have still been out there. I would have missed my flight (home for the All-Star break) and he would have been in trouble."

Red Sox 3-0, Angels 2-4

Reggie Jackson belted a three-run homer and Tommy John pitched an eight-hitter for his first shutout since 1982 as California ended a five-game losing streak in the nightcap. The Red Sox, who had a five-game winning streak snapped in the second game, took the opener 3-2 on Mike Easler's tie-breaking bases-loaded single with one out in the 10th inning.

Jackson's fifth-inning blast off Roger Clemens was his 14th homer of the season and 492nd of his career, leaving him one behind Lou Gehrig, who stands 13th on the all-time list.

In the opener, Jackie Gutierrez started the Boston 10th with a single off Luis Sanchez and moved to second when Dwight Evans was hit by a pitch. Jim Rice singled, but Gutierrez fell after rounding third and was an easy out. However, Evans reached third and Rice second and, after Tony Armas was walked intentionally, Geoff Zahn relieved Sanchez and Easler singled on a 2-1 pitch.

Athletics 4, Brewers 1
Mike Heath drove in three runs with a single and homer and Dwayne Murphy also homered while Lary Sorensen and Bill Caudill checked Milwaukee on nine hits. After losing the opener of the series, the A's took the last four games.

Murphy opened the fourth with his homer off Chuck Porter, tying the score. Singles by Joe Morgan and Bruce Bochte preceded Heath's two-run double. Heath homered off Rollie Fingers in the ninth.

Royals 6, Orioles 1
Bud Black allowed three hits while Don Slaught and U.L. Washington each hit his first home run of the season. Slaught tripled in the second inning and scored on a wild pitch by Dennis Martinez. Pat Sheridan singled in the third, stole second and scored on a single by George Brett. Kansas City wrapped it up with four runs in the ninth off Tippy Martinez on Slaught's three-run homer and Washington's solo shot. Baltimore's run came on a fourth-inning homer by Cal Ripken Jr.

Mets Complete Five-Game Sweep

By The Associated Press
The National League prepared for its annual midseason break with the annual feelings of exhilaration, optimism and escape.

Definitely falling into the first category were the New York Mets. The NL East leaders completed a five-game sweep of the Cincinnati Reds Sunday with a 7-3 decision as Danny Heep and Darryl Strawberry each drove in a pair of runs.

"We're on a high now," said Mets center fielder Mookie Wilson, after doubling, tripling, scoring two runs and driving in another. "Any higher and we'd be dangerous."

The Mets, who have won nine of 10, have their best halfway record, 47-34, since 1972. The five-game sweep was their first since 1970. They have never been in first place at the All-Star break, not even in their pennant years of 1969 and 1973.

"We've had an outstanding first half," said Mets Manager Dave Johnson. "As far as I'm concerned, we don't need the three days off, especially with a win streak such as this."

"Everything has fallen into place a little sooner than I expected," continued Johnson. "I told the team in spring training that we had the talent, and it was just a question of getting established. I have to admit that the pitching has really developed quicker than I thought possible."

Bruce Berenyi, acquired from the Reds on June 15, and Jesse Orosco combined on a six-hitter. Berenyi, 6-9, gave up three unearned runs, struck out 10 and walked four in 7 2/3 innings. He said showed the Reds a new Bruce Berenyi.

"I know I caught a lot of guys by surprise," Berenyi said. "I could tell by the looks on their faces. They were baffled. I threw a lot of change-ups, and I really had them off stride. I didn't do that much in Cincinnati. I threw mostly hard sliders and fastballs. I never had the confidence to use by change-up before."

"But I'm not afraid here. I get a positive feeling here. And it's making me into a better pitcher. I really feel like I'm a good pitcher now. And pitching for a first-place club even makes it more worthwhile. There's a reason for me to be out there."

Dave Parker hit a three-run homer in the eighth inning to break up Berenyi's shutout attempt.

Elsewhere in the NL, Montreal defeated Houston 8-5, Chicago beat San Francisco 6-3, Philadelphia blanked Atlanta 7-0, St. Louis took an 8-6 12-inning decision from Los Angeles, and Pittsburgh edged Philadelphia 4-3. Expos 8, Astros 5

Home runs by Tim Wallach and Gary Carter and Pete Rose's two-run single highlighted a seven-run second inning as the host Expos battered Nolan Ryan, 7-4.

The Expos nevertheless enter the All-Star break below .500 for the first time since 1978.

"It's not out of reach for us," said Expos Manager Bill Virdon. "But I think we'll need to win 49 or 50 of our next 78 games."

Cubs 6, Giants 3

Rick Sutcliffe won his fourth game since joining the Cubs three weeks ago and Gary Woods added a two-run homer at Candlestick Park, which will host the All-Star Game Tuesday.

Gary Matthews broke a 2-2 tie when his single drove home Ryne Sandberg in the third inning. Woods connected for his third homer of the season in the fourth to send Chicago ahead 5-2.

Sutcliffe is grateful for the turnaround in his fortunes this season.

"I couldn't be happier about what's happened to me. Not many guys can make a 25-game leap in one night," said Sutcliffe, who was traded from seventh-place

Cleveland.

Phillies 7, Braves 0

Making a new start as a starter this season, Jerry Koosman gave the credit to Philadelphia pitching coach Claude Osteen for the 32nd shutout of his career, a four-hit, no-walk effort.

Osteen worked extensively during spring training on Koosman's deteriorated pitching mechanics and timing. Osteen said he felt Koosman acquired a lot of those bad habits as a reliever.

"He wasn't used to relieving and developed some bad things," the coach said. "He's now throwing a consistent fastball. He has a good curve and hard slider, and with his knowledge of pitching, you got a

Watson Lands 'Great White' For 1984 Western Open Title

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — For the second week in a row, it was a classic match-up: a powerful, rampaging young player taking on an acknowledged master of the game.

This time, Tom Watson won, harpooning the "Great White Shark," with a smoking putter.

"I enjoyed the challenge," Watson said after his dramatic, three-hole sudden death playoff victory over Australian Greg Norman Sunday in the Western Open Golf Tournament.

Watson, however, was quick to point out that his victory did nothing to diminish the credentials of the man who has rung up a series of two victories, two playoff losses (the other was in the U.S. Open) and a 10th place finish in his last five starts.

"In the last six weeks, Norman has played the best golf in the world," Watson said.

But on this windy day at the Butler National Golf Club course, it was Watson who romped off with the $72,000 first prize. He secured it with some remarkable scrambling over the last nine holes and a 25-foot, wide-breaking birdie putt found the cup on the third hole of a sudden death playoff.

"I made everything I looked at," said the delighted Watson, who did not make a bogey over the last 18 holes of regulation play, but had to one-putt seven times for pars.

"I had a great feeling with the putter. It was one of those days when I could see the line very, very well. The putter was the key weapon."

Peterson Battles Pressure For Victory In Toledo

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Lauri Peterson's playing partner provided the psychological pressure. And Peterson responded, overcoming the accompanying physical foe to finish first.

Peterson, playing against Nancy Lopez, her closest challenger, Sunday captured the inaugural $175,000 LPGA Jamie Farr Toledo Classic, but it wasn't easy.

"My legs felt numb midway through the round," Peterson said. "It was the pressure. When you have Nancy on your tail, you can't relax. You don't know how tough a job it is."

The physical problems came from her own swing. "I lost a little rhythm," said Peterson, who pocketed $26,250. "I started overswinging and let everything slide to the right. I was lucky I got it back in the groove."

The 24-year-old Peterson, twice a winner in the last 10 months, shot a 1-over-par 73 Sunday for a 10-under total of 278, good enough to beat Lopez by two shots at Glengarry Country Club.

Lopez, denied a bid for her 29th career triumph, closed with a par-72 for a 280 total and took home $17,750. "I found myself pressing. I hit some bad shots. That's what cost me. I was trying to guide the ball, to get it so close to the hole. You can't do that," she said.

It was the first time Lopez had faced Peterson, and she came away impressed.

"She's a fighter on the golf course," Lopez said. "She always fights back. She had pretty good control of what was happening. She was making the putts when she had to — when the pressure was on at the end."

The biggest putt of all was Peterson's six-foot birdie stroke at 14. It broke a tie and cooled off the charge of Lopez, who was six strokes behind after four holes on the pleasant, sunny day.

"That's when I got my swing back," Peterson said of No. 14.

"I was ready to win," she said. "I had the killer instinct. I don't have that very often. I'm too nice of a person."

Any hopes Lopez harbored of a playoff vanished at 18 when her approach shot caught a bunker, and she bogeyed the 327-yard hole.

Marshman reached first on an error and later scored on a wild pitch in the top of the first, but Greenville evened the score with a run in the second.

Newell slapped a leadoff single in the fourth and Lee Boone followed with another single. A fielder's choice by Kris Walters scored Newell, and Ronald Bess drove in Boone with another fielder's choice to put Nash County ahead to stay.

Louganis Cruises Through Trials, Kimball Joins Father

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Dick Kimball, Michigan's veteran diving coach, received his Father's Day present three weeks late — seeing his son join him for the trip to Los Angeles as a member of the United States Olympic diving team.

"We couldn't have probably picked a better team if we had handpicked it," said Kimball, who will coach the team along with his longtime rival Ron O'Brien. "It's a really outstanding team and they've done the job over the past few years and they're going to be great in LA."

The team was completed Sunday as world champion Greg Louganis scored 12 perfect marks of 10 on the way to finishing first in the men's platform competition as the four days of trials at the Indiana University Natatorium concluded. Louganis, seeking to be the first male diver to sweep the two diving events in an Olympics, scored 659.16 points.

Kimball, who defeated Louganis in April for his sixth national indoor platform championship, was a distant second at 619.80 — about 40 points ahead of third place Dan Watson.

"Naturally I have to be a proud father today as well as a coach. I'm so excited. I was handling things real well until Bruce came up and gave me a hug before the meet and said, 'This one's for you Dad.' and that kind of got me," said the elder Kimball, who has now had three of his divers earn the right to represent the United States on each of the last four Olympic teams.

"Dick Kimball came up to me for the first time ever," said O'Brien. "We've been competing against each other as athletes and then as coaches for 30 years almost and he said, 'I'm nervous.'"

O'Brien was also impressed with the seven divers, including Louganis, who placed first in both platform and springboard competition here.

"I think it (the team) has got to be one of our strongest in the modern era since we've had to deal with the Soviet Union and the East Germany and the People's Republic of China," he said. "You can't compare diving today to diving back even in the early '50s, late '40s or back in the '30s because the competition wasn't the same."

"This team's going to be extremely strong. Our goal and our job right now as a coaching staff is to get them out of the doldrums after this meet is over, which will happen, and get them focused back on the Games in LA and to keep them in a state of tunnel vision so they don't get too distracted."

Louganis, 24, led Kimball by about 11 points after having trouble on the ninth of his 10 dives.

"I kept thinking to myself, I've got to put it together," said Louganis, who won a silver medal on the platform at 16 in the 1976 Olympics and finished first in both events at the 1980 Trials, but missed going to the Moscow Olympics because of the United States boycott.

The star of O'Brien's team from Mission Viejo, Calif., responded with a dive that gave him three 10s and four 9s. The reverse 3 1/2 somersault tuck — the most difficult in his program — was worth 95.88 points.

"A lot was going through my mind at that point," he said in reference to the missed dive in the ninth round, including the fact that his final dive was the same one that cost him his 27th national championship when he missed it in April.

"I just wanted to go up there and go out like a champ," said Louganis, who had 29 perfect scores in his four days of competition.

Kimball, 21, was satisfied with a performance that brought him five 10s, a 9.5 and a 9 for his ninth dive — a 2 1/2 somersault tuck that was worth 80.19 points.

"I wasn't worried about defeating Greg here," said Kimball. "The important thing was to make the United States team and that's what I've done."

A few years ago thoughts about his son making the Olympic team didn't seem important to the elder Kimball. He just wanted his son to live.

The younger Kimball survived a near-fatal auto accident in October 1981 to win a bronze medal in the 1982 world championships.

"When he became well enough to think about diving, I was just pleased he had survived," said the proud father, who also coaches his son in college. "He said that if he began diving, he just didn't want to be an average diver and I'd have to say he's met that goal."

"This (making the team) means a lot to me," said the younger Kimball. "It hit me before the meet. I saw no reason why I couldn't go out and do 10 good dives today. He (his father) spent his whole life preparing me for this moment. I felt I owed it to him."

Loftin-Taft Win Event

Jake Loftin and Jeff Taft fired a three-round total of 71, 37-under par, to win the Sunday Night Best Ball Tournament at Putt-Putt Golf and Games.

Eric Nelson and Ray Taft placed second with a total of 79.

Loftin and Jeff Taft combined rounds of 23, 24 and 24 to win the tourney.

Knight Finds Combination

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — U.S. Olympic basketball Coach Bobby Knight found a winning combination to start the second half of his team's exhibition game with a squad of National Basketball Association stars.

"I think we were able, at least in this game, to find a combination that worked very well for us in starting the second half. I thought our play in the second half was very good," Knight said after the Olympians trounced the NBA team 92-79.

Knight's first-half starters — Patrick Ewing, Vern Fleming, Michael Jordan, Sam Perkins and Wayne Tisdale — were not able to stop the stars, who built up leads of as much as six points before settling for a 43-42 halftime advantage.

In the second half, Knight replaced Ewing and Tisdale in the starting lineup with Alvin Robertson and Chris Mullin, and the winning combination was born.

"We had tried to set it up so we started with the lineup that we thought would be a good one for us, and then we changed it around and came back with a considerably altered lineup to start the second half because we were looking for a lineup to do specific things — maintain defensive pressure, get movement offensively and not get hurt on the boards," Knight said.

"The second half team was more geared to movement. They were able to get the ball into position against the zone," he said.

NBA Coach Don Nelson of the Milwaukee Bucks said he tried to change defenses after every free throw to confuse the Olympians, but admitted that the second-half players figured out his scheme.

"I thought it confused them early but then they caught on, which was a learning process for them," he said.

Dylan Audience Sets Off Rioting

SLANE, Ireland (AP) — About 100 rock- and bottle-throwing youths who gathered for a Bob Dylan concert smashed windows, set cars on fire and drove police back into their headquarters before baton-wielding reinforcements dispersed the mob.

Police said 18 people were injured, and a police spokesman in Dublin, 35 miles south, said four people were arrested.

A police spokesman said the Sunday day rampage apparently began when a village pub refused to serve drinks to some of the fans.

Youths smashed shop windows, set three cars on fire and fought with several local police officers, who barricaded themselves in their police station, which the crowd pelted with beer bottles and stones, officers said.

The police radioed for help, and 200 officers from seven nearby towns arrived, charging the crowd with batons to break up the disturbance. Police said all of the injuries occurred during the charge, but none appeared to be serious.

Authorities reported the body of a youth about 18 years old was recovered from the Boyne River. They said he apparently tried to swim across the river that runs beside the open-air concert site beside Slane Castle.

The concert before 40,000 people went on as scheduled without further incident, a police spokesman said.

'Chips' Star Meets Real Trooper

RAWLINS, Wyo. (AP) — Larry Wilcox, the 1965 Rawlins High School graduate who made good as Officer John Baker on the television series "CHIPS," met a real highway patrolman on a recent trip home.

Wyoming Highway Patrol Trooper Don Sherrod "was very pleasant when he gave me the ticket" for speeding, Wilcox said.

Wilcox said he found the first few years of celebrity fun, "but the materialism wore off quickly and I discovered that money is not the true measure of success."

Coming from a town of about 12,000 in Wyoming "gives one a good foundation and keeps you aware of who you are," he said, adding he enjoys returning to Wyoming "because of nature."

Wilcox and his fiancée, Marlene Harmon, visited his 90-year-old grandmother on her ranch north of Rawlins and his brother, Randy, who is serving a term at the State Penitentiary for a 1982 arson. Wilcox said he still believes his brother innocent.

Work Begins On Film About Defector

LONDON (AP) — Ballet great Mikhail Baryshnikov and Ingrid Bergman's daughter, model Isabella Rossellini, begin work this month on a dance film about a Soviet defector back on home soil after a 10-year absence.

"The film is not a reflection of my life and situation," said Baryshnikov, artistic director of New York's American Ballet Theatre, who defected to the United States in 1974. "For years, I always got the same script — Russian ballet star defects to the West.

"With this one, I got excited. I said, '... Let's try it.'" In the $10 million Columbia Pictures movie, "White Nights," Miss Rossellini, 31, plays a Soviet interpreter married to an expatriate American dancer — played by three-time Tony Award nominee Gregory Hines — living in the Soviet Union.

400th Anniversary To Begin Friday

By The Associated Press
Officials in Manteo and Chapel Hill are putting the finishing touches on plans to entertain Great Britain's Princess Anne as part of America's 400th Anniversary.

North Carolina's official celebration of the anniversary of the first English explorers to settle here begins Friday and will culminate Aug. 18, 1987 — the 400th anniversary of the birth of Virginia Dare, the first child of English parents born in the New World.

Princess Anne will unveil a historic marker in Manteo on Friday, but on Thursday she will be entertained by Gov. Jim Hunt and his wife, Carolyn, at the Morehead House in Chapel Hill.

Betsy Pritchett, Princess Anne's unofficial hostess in Chapel Hill, said china has been taken out of storage, linens have been changed and mantels have been dusted.

Princess Anne's secretary made an inspection recently and passed the quarters as fit for royalty.

"They thought it was exquisite," said Marla Cramer, executive assistant to Mrs. Hunt. "They truly were very, very impressed."

The princess likes orange pekoe tea for breakfast, but she doesn't like celery or food prepared with wine. "Other than this, she is pretty easy to please," Mrs. Pritchett said.

The princess will arrive at Raleigh-Durham Airport Thursday at 4:20 p.m. and will go directly to Morehead House. She will be joined by British Consul General Trevor Getty, British ambassador to the United States Sir Oliver Wright, a lady-in-waiting, a private secretary, a hairdresser, a dresser and a security officer.

Thursday night, the Hunts will give a small dinner party for the princess in the Morehead Building's state dining room.

Friday at 9:30 a.m., Princess Anne will commission as a state historic site the Elizabeth II, a 16th-century-style sailing ship built for the celebration. A similar ship brought Sir Walter Raleigh to Roanoke Island in 1584.

TIP OF THE HAT — Adan Estrada of Los Angeles tips his hat proudly after presenting a framed picture to Princess Anne of Great Britain during her visit to Para Los Ninos, Los Angeles' skid row "child and family center," on Sunday. The princess will be in Chapel Hill Thursday evening for a dinner hosted by Gov. and Mrs. Jim Hunt, and will be in Manteo Friday for a ceremony launching the America's 400th Anniversary celebration. Hospital Stays Are Shorter RALEIGH (AP) — Medicare patients in North Carolina appear to be spending less time in the hospital since changes in the health program took effect last fall, but health care is not suffering, state officials say.

"The length of stay has gone down considerably," said J. Harold Bennington, director of financial services for the N.C. Hospital Association. "And a lot of that is attributed to the new Medicare system."

Bennington said the average patient's stay had declined by 1.7 to 2.2 days since the changes took effect, but he said that doesn't necessarily mean patients receive less care.

"It becomes a judgmental factor when you discuss quality of care," Bennington said. "No two people will achieve the same degree of wellness no matter how long they stay in the hospital."

Medicare, faced with rising costs, stopped paying the actual hospital costs for patients and set fixed fees for 467 different ailments. Hospitals that charge more than the fixed rate lose money on their Medicare patients.

Health authorities in North Carolina said hospitals in the state are not releasing patients before they are ready to be discharged, although they admitted there was pressure to do so.

"I don't see it as a problem here," said Craig Souza, executive vice president of the N.C. Health Care Facilities Association. "I agree that the hospitals are under some pressure to discharge Medicare patients earlier. Releasing them too early potentially could happen, but I don't see it in North Carolina."

Electrocuted

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A 25-year-old Duke Power Co. lineman from Stanly County apparently was electrocuted Sunday when he touched a downed 7,200-volt power line he was repairing, authorities said.

William B. Magill of Midland, a Duke employee since 1978, was pronounced dead at Charlotte Memorial Hospital at 2:40 a.m., about an hour after the incident occurred, authorities said.

Mondale Victory Draws Priority

By MARTHA WAGGONER
Associated Press Writer

It's more important that Walter Mondale defeat Ronald Reagan in the fall than that he name a woman as his running mate, the president of the 500,000-member National Federation of Democratic Women says.

Angie Elkins of Durham said last week that her primary goal is to make sure Reagan is defeated in the fall. If Reagan is re-elected, he could make as many as four appointments to the U.S. Supreme Court, meaning "every single woman in this country is going to be pushed back so far that they will never be able to recoup from it," Mrs. Elkins said.

A united Democratic Party that includes the support of women is essential if Reagan is to be defeated, she said.

"If women are going to survive, they come up with more than one issue and think of ways to defeat Ronald Reagan instead of defeating themselves," Mrs. Elkins said.

Mrs. Elkins said she supported naming a woman to the vice presidential spot. But she said it was important that Mondale be allowed to choose his own running mate.

"If we don't allow him to choose, we're in essence saying that we don't think he's qualified to make decisions as president of the United States," Mrs. Elkins said in a telephone interview.

She said she strongly opposed the threats of some women's groups to nominate vice presidential candidates from the floor or to walk out of the Democratic convention if a woman isn't nominated.

"The only thing it's going to do is hurt the candidate," she said.

Mrs. Elkins said she didn't agree with Mondale on everything and has let his staff know that during meetings of the 25-member National Rules Committee of the Democratic convention, of which Mrs. Elkins is a member.

"I find that his overall staff, those that are basically calling the shots, are mostly men," she said. "And in most of the states, it's mostly men calling the shots and North Carolina is a perfect example. There's no evidence of women being in any leadership positions at all."

She said she wanted Mondale to "wake up and realize that the women's vote is what's going to determine the election this fall and get this message down to the states."

It's just as important that women be named to top campaign positions, such as cabinet secretaries and to judicial spots as it is to get a female vice president who could end up only as a token, she said.

If Mondale is forced to name a woman as vice president, he "could regulate that woman to absolutely zero," she said. And if he did that, it would "push women back so far they might not ever be able to get a woman on the ticket," she said.

Sanford Heads New Development

DURHAM (AP) — Duke president Terry Sanford says he will be chairman of the company that plans to build an industrial, commercial and residential development in northern Durham County.

Sanford also said that the company will announce the purchase of the three farms — Snow Hill, Stagville and Fairtoosh — that will provide most of the land for the new development. He said Clay Hamner will be president of the development firm and Terry Sanford Jr. will be vice president and secretary.

Sanford's plans to serve as chairman of the development company were included in a statement on his plans for retirement. He will retire as the Duke president next July.

Ruling May Not Affect N.C. Clubs

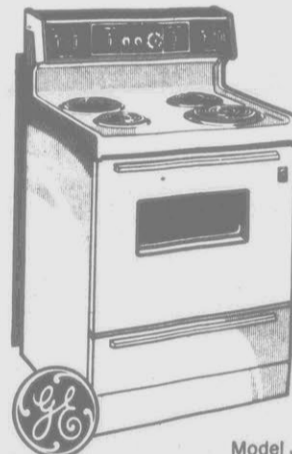

RALEIGH (AP) — All-male organizations in North Carolina likely won't come under last week's U.S. Supreme Court ruling about admitting women because the state has no public accommodations law, a state administration official says.

James W. Bowden, executive director of the N.C. Human Relations Council in the state Administration Department, said the court ruling applied to Minnesota's law banning discrimination in places of public accommodation on the basis of race or sex.

The court ruled 7-0 that the accommodations law may be applied to the Jaycees without interfering with the members' First Amendment right to associated with people of their choice.

"I think that if the Supreme Court were ruling under the law passed in Minnesota, then (the decision) would not be applicable for the state of North Carolina, inasmuch as there are no (similar) laws that the state of North Carolina has passed," Bowden said.

FOCUS

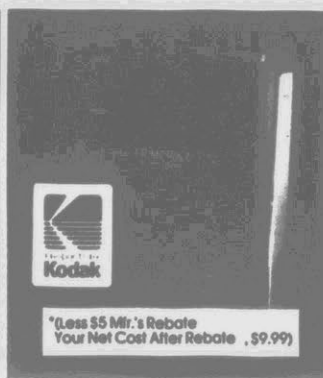

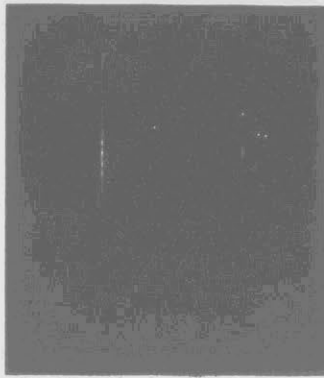

"Little Flower"

"As incorruptible as the sun," according to Harry Truman, Fiorello H. LaGuardia was New York City's gallant mayor for twelve years. While fighting corruption and advocating reforms, he rarely passed up a chance to give the voters a good show. He once played grocer in order to demonstrate the New Deal's Food Stamp plan. On this day in 1945, in the midst of a newspaper strike, LaGuardia took to the airwaves to read comics to the voters and their children.

DO YOU KNOW — What famous big-city political "machine" did LaGuardia defeat in 1933?

FRIDAY'S ANSWER — The constellation Ursa Major is supposed to resemble a bear.
