Mondale Brushes Off Spat As Party 'Rumble'

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Underdog Democrats assembled today in their 39th quadrennial convention, hoping that an intramural squabble would stay buried and gambling that a woman on their ticket might push a popular Republican president into retirement.

Walter F. Mondale, the nominee for sure, headed off an old-fashioned Democratic bloodletting by hastily pulling away from his awkward attempt to reshuffle the party hierarchy and impose his will on the party.

That restored harmony for the moment and Mondale called the uproar the sort of "inevitable rumble" that always occurs when Democrats gather. He predicted "one of the sweetest conventions in the history of the party" that thrives on family fights.

To capitalize on the good feelings generated by Mondale's designation of Geraldine Ferraro as his running mate, the team was coming here today to meet with women delegates — a love-in session for sure — then be welcomed at a mass rally at Market and Powell Streets, where the cable cars clang.

Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado and the Rev. Jesse Jackson, remained Mondale's surviving opponents, but presented no real challenge for the nomination. They planned to take on Mondale over a few issues, but seemed unwilling to tear the party apart in order to prevail.

The two met twice over the weekend, with Jackson saying they were coordinating a challenge to Mondale's platform and Hart saying he's chiefly interested in the adoption of a stay-out-of-Latin America plank that goes further than Mondale wants to go.

With a schedule designed for television viewers east of the Mississippi, the gavel was to bang down at 2 p.m. PDT — early evening in the East — for an opening session of greetings, oratory and song.

Tonight's highlight is the keynote address and the advance word was that Mario Cuomo, governor of New York, planned to punch away at Ronald Reagan's economic and foreign policies, to defend traditional family values and to salute America's ethnic diversity.

Jimmy Carter, who won re-nomination four years ago in a bitterly divided convention only to lose to Reagan, has his moment at the podium in tonight's program.

In addition, welcoming speeches are to come from Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley, Lt. Gov. Leo McCarthy and Sen. Alan Cranston of California, whose hopes last winter to address the convention as its presidential nominee were buried in the primaries.

Martha Layne Collins, the first woman governor of Kentucky, will take over as chairman of convention and deliver an address. Another will come from Mayor Dianne Feinstein of San Francisco.

The delegates will watch a filmed tribute to Harry S. Truman, and a civil rights speech by Coretta Scott King, the widow of Martin Luther King Jr.

Democrats Plan Easier Eligibility For Candidates

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After a primary campaign in which Walter F. Mondale's rivals claimed he had an unfair advantage, the Democratic Party is about to endorse proposals making it easier for lesser-known candidates and members of minorities to compete for the presidential nomination.

One of the first orders of business for the Democratic National Convention opening today is the adoption of the recommendations of its Rules Committee. Those proposals call for a Fairness Commission to write new rules in time for the nominating process of the next presidential election, in 1988.

Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado and the Rev. Jesse L. Jackson say the current rules made it unreasonably difficult for less-well-known candidates to overtake Mondale because of his built-in following as a former vice president. Jackson, the first black to be a major contender for the nomination of either party, said the rules also discriminated against minorities.

The Rules Committee, meeting

June 25-26 in Washington, adopted recommendations setting up the commission and calling for it to examine a set of sweeping changes proposed by Jackson and generally more modest alterations in the rules favored by Hart.

Mondale agreed to the proposal in return for Hart and Jackson abandoning any plans to challenge the rules by which delegates to this year's convention were selected.

Hart and Jackson have been saying that their campaigns, although apparently falling short of the goal of nomination, put about enough pressure on the political establishment to bring about reforms in the nominating process.

Speaking to supporters in Atlanta last week, Hart said, "We have already achieved great progress in changing the rules of this party between '84 and '88 to address not only what I believe were unfairnesses to my candidacy but also to Rev. Jackson's and other people's."

"We are well on our way to re-democratizing this party, considering on the one hand the interests of the party establishment and on the other the need to bring in new people," Hart said. "That balance, I think, will be struck between 1984 and 1988."

The Rules Committee report is expected to be adopted without change.

The commission, which is to have at least 50 members and include members of racial and sexual minorities, will be required to make its report by mid-1986, when the committee recommended that the party hold a mid-term convention.

It will be required to consider rules to require that certain percentages of the delegates be drawn from minority groups.

Area Sees Pleasant Weekend

After starting out with a bang, weather-wise, on Friday, the weekend turned pleasant-but-warm as temperatures settled in the high 80s and humidity soared on Saturday and Sunday.

Partly cloudy skies brought no repeat of Friday's thunderstorm that dumped over an inch of rain on Pitt County and knocked out power to many areas. Only a trace of rain, .06 inch, was recorded by Greenville Utilities Saturday after Friday's downpour.

According to GUC, the mercury reached a high of 87 degrees Fahrenheit Saturday and 88 degrees F. Sunday. Lows both days were in the high 60s.

Variable cloudiness is on tap during the next several days as a weakening cold front tries to advance across the mountains by Tuesday morning and then dissipate across the state.

The National Weather Service forecast scattered showers and thunderstorms in the east tonight and Tuesday. Another cold front is scheduled to arrive by Wednesday, then push southeast across the state by Thursday.

Highs will remain in the low 90s, with nighttime lows in the mid 70s.

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

Hotline gets things done. Write and tell us about the problem or issue into which you'd like for Hotline to look. Enclose photostatic copies of any pertinent information. Our address is The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C., 27835. Because of the large numbers received, Hotline cannot answer or publish every item we receive, but we deal with all of those for which we have staff time. Names must be given, but only initials will be published.

SUPPORT GROUP LIST

The North Carolina Department of Human Resources has asked Hotline to appeal for representatives of all self-help mutual support groups throughout the state to call and be listed on a comprehensive statewide information system about such groups.

It's hoped that the list will provide communication and fast local assistance and area-to-area referral for people all over the state.

"Mutual support groups exist now for almost every human problem and need," Rose Kittrell, program consultant in the Mental Health Office of Prevention said, "and they providing emotional support to individuals having crisis in their lives. We want to know about all in our state so we can better assist individual's in making use of them."

Calls should be made to Janie Hudson toll-free at CARELINE, 800-662-7020.

Knox Coordinator Backs Martin

Monroe Waters, who served as coordinator for the 32 eastern counties of North Carolina during Eddie Knox's campaign for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, today endorsed Jim Martin, Republican candidate for governor.

Waters, a Democrat, said his endorsement is based on his evaluation of the experience, record and integrity of Martin and his Democratic opponent, Attorney General Rufus Edmisten. He said he feels citizens must rise above party politics and Democrat-Republican labels and do what is best for the state.

"I believe Congressman Martin is the candidate who possesses the leadership and integrity to lead North Carolina into the next decade," he said.

"As a Democrat, I know Martin has worked well with the other Democrats," Waters said. "He engineered the reduction in the federal tobacco tax in the House Ways and Means Committee and he helped our own Congressman (Walter B.) Jones obtain approval of the Oregon Inlet Project in a key House committee."

"This endorsement is based on principal. I am making myself available to Congressman Martin to help him any way I can. I look forward to meeting with him tomorrow night at the Moose Lodge in Greenville," Waters said.

"I encourage all Democrats who at this time may be undecided to take a close look at Jim Martin and I encourage those many Democrats who are supporting Jim Martin behind the scenes to come forward and do what is best for our state — elect Jim Martin as governor."

Martin has scheduled a day-long campaign swing through Pitt and Martin counties Tuesday, starting with a social hour at 9:25 a.m. at the Masonic Lodge.

Primary Tuesday

Pitt County voters living in the new state 6th Senate District and in the 6th House District will go to the polls Tuesday to select Democratic nominees for the General Assembly in the November general election.

Joe M. Parker, an Ahoskie publisher, and developer L.M. "Mutt" Brinkley of Ahoskie will face each other in a runoff in the 6th House District, which includes Bethel and Carolina townships in Pitt County.

R.L. "Bob" Martin of Bethel, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, will face John Costabile and Vernon Morton, both of Wilson, and Shelly Willingham of Edgecombe County in the race for the 6th Senate District nomination.

The new Senate district, formed by the General Assembly earlier this year, includes: Arthur, Belvoir, Bethel, Falkland, Farmville and Fountain townships in Pitt County; Robersonville township in Martin County, and parts of Edgecombe and Wilson counties.

The polls will open at 6:30 a.m. and close at 7:30 p.m.

In the event a runoff is needed in the four-way race for the Senate district nomination, a second primary will be held Aug. 14.

TexasGulf Expands Operation

AURORA — TexasGulf Chemical Co. has announced plans for expansion of the phosphate operation at its Lee Creek facility in Beaufort County.

Rann Carpenter, the company's public relations director, said the expansion will add 250,000 tons of 100 percent P205 wet processed phosphoric acid per year to the present capacity of 1,020,000 tons at Lee Creek.

"Basically, the increase will involve improvement of current production processes as well as the addition of some new equipment and facilities," Carpenter explained. "When the expansion is completed in 1986, it will add about 125 employees to our present staff of 1,235 at Lee Creek."

TexasGulf began its phosphate operations in North Carolina in the mid-1960s. At that time, the facility had an initial P205 capacity of 340,000 tons per year. Those operations were expanded in 1974, in 1976 and in 1980 resulting in the current 1 million-plus tons capacity.

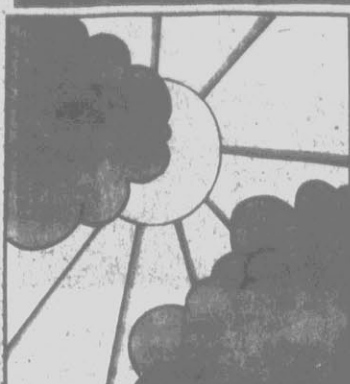

At the Lee Creek operation, TexasGulf produces phosphate rock, phosphoric acids, superphosphoric acids, ammonium phosphates and granular triple super phosphates. It also produces other products at facilities in Kinston and at Weeping Water, Neb. Another product is scheduled to be produced in Saltville, Va.

Loan Guaranteed

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Kohl reportedly has approved a government guarantee for a $340 million bank loan to East Germany.

Welt am Sonntag, a Hamburg newspaper, reported the West German government agreed that the new loan would not necessarily be tied to further improvements by East Germany in human rights. A year ago, the West German government guaranteed a $360 million loan for East Germany in an action widely believed to have spawned moves by East Germany to improve human rights there.

East Germany this year has allowed 31,000 citizens to emigrate to the West, more than in any other year since the Berlin Wall went up in 1961 to separate the Communist and Western sectors of the city.

Democrats ...

feuding that Democrats are accustomed to, the Republican incumbency loomed formidable. Most public opinion polls show the Republican ticket would win handily if the election were held today.

But Mondale said his choice of a running mate will give the ticket a running start. He told interviewers the Republicans, unsure how to campaign against Ms. Ferraro without offending women voters, are shaken.

Said Mondale, in an interview on Cable News Network: "One of the things I've enjoyed is to watch how the White House has reacted to Geraldine Ferraro's selection as (candidate for) vice president. I think we've made them a little nervous."

Nonetheless, an Associated Press survey found that only 52 percent of 2,400 Democratic convention delegates reached by phone July 6-11 thought that Mondale would carry their states; most said the state of the economy would be the decisive factor.

For the moment, pessimism was set aside while more than 150,000 working people in this strong labor town marched behind a "Reagan Out in '84" banner Sunday and sang the praises of Mondale-Ferraro. In their footsteps, 50,000 male and women homosexuals followed, without a bit of tension.

The visible support for the ticket and goodwill in the streets stood in sharp contrast to the street brawl between anti-Vietnam war dissidents in the party and police at the 1968 Chicago convention.

Attempting to hold together these unaccustomed signs of unity, Mondale retreated from his attempt to shake up the party hierarchy by firing National Chairman Charles T. Manatt.

When word leaked that Mondale had discussed turning the key post over to Bert Lance, the Georgia banker and Jimmy Carter intimate, the labor leaders, who have long disliked Lance, were offended, as were Manatt's fellow Californians and blacks, who were not consulted.

Canadian Tornado Kills 1, Hurts 27

PEMBROKE, Ontario (AP) — A tornado whipped up 100-mile-per hour winds as it touched down in parts of Ontario and Quebec, killing one person, injuring at least 27, leveling rural homes, and knocking out power in several towns and villages.

The tornado raced over 62 miles of mostly unpopulated areas of eastern Ontario and western Quebec, as it headed northeast Sunday.

One person died in the Quebec village of Blue Sea Lake, 46 miles northeast of here, where the wind and rain storm damaged 15 homes, Quebec Provincial Police said.

About 100 people in the village of 500 began working today to clear away the rubble at the site of the tornado's most serious damage.

Sixteen people were sent to the hospital in nearby Maniwaki, but most were quickly treated and released.

The dead victim's identity was being withheld pending notification of relatives.

Eleven people with cuts and broken bones were brought nine miles south to Pembroke's two hospitals from Nickabeau, Quebec, where the tornado had struck earlier Sunday. Damage estimates were not available in Nickabeau, a village of about 200 people, where the tornado destroyed six houses and lifted the roof off a Roman Catholic church. Large trees were dropped in the middle of many of the village's roads and rescue attempts were hampered by heavy rain.

Bertha Nephin, 50, was making sandwiches for a farewell party in the church basement when the tornado struck. A hundred people had been expected for the party an hour later.

"When the storm started, I was all by myself. Then the roof left the church in a big breeze of wind," she said. "I ran to one door and I couldn't get out. I ran to a second and I couldn't get out."

"I don't remember what happened next, but the next thing I remember ... the roof of the church had been lifted off and was lying beside the foundation of the building."

Busy Signal Makes Dad Furious With Son, Family

DEAR ABBY: You be the judge. Junior, our married son, and his wife have a habit of taking their telephone off the hook whenever they feel like it. When the phone is off the hook, the caller gets a busy signal and has to call again.

Well, the other evening my husband tried to phone our son, and he got a busy signal for two hours straight. He became furious, got into his car and drove to Junior's house. (It's about three miles.) When he got there, he found Junior, his wife and their kids just sitting in the backyard, doing nothing. Junior had taken the phone off the hook because they didn't want to be disturbed during dinner, and nobody thought to put it back on!

My husband took our son apart for his "selfishness" and "lack of consideration" for us, his parents, saying we should be able to reach him by phone when we want to. Junior apologized, but didn't promise to discontinue the practice of taking the phone off the hook.

What do you think about this situation? Is Dad out of line to complain?

MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Yes. A person installs a telephone for his own convenience—not for the convenience of others. If my memory serves me well, it was the late Supreme Court Justice Brandeis who said, "One of the most cherished of all rights is the right to be left alone."

Of course, if parents are elderly or in poor health, one would hope that their children would keep their telephone line "open" in case of an emergency.

DEAR ABBY: I just read "A Parent's Prayer" in your column and feel the need to comment.

What's with all this, "Dear God, make me ...; Dear God, help me ...; Dear God, guide me ...," and all such other weak-kneed whining?

How about, "Dear Mother, haul up your bootstraps, buckle on your armor and call on all the common sense, guts and love you were born with and raise your children yourself?"

MRS. J.G.L., MEDINA, OHIO

DEAR MRS. L.: I think you missed the point. "A Parent's Prayer" was a mother's plea for the patience, strength and wisdom to raise a child. All mothers know that raising a child is a do-it-yourself project.

DEAR ABBY: Please contact your experts on the best way for women to remove body hair in order to wear those new swimsuits.

SUSAN IN BROOKLYN

DEAR SUSAN: There is no "best" way for all women. Electrolysis for permanent hair removal is costly, and takes a long time because each hair is removed (by needle) individually. (Some hairs grow back and must be removed again.) Waxing is popular but not without pain. Depilatories are popular, but because they contain strong chemicals, they must be used with care in certain areas.

Shaving is another option, but many complain that it encourages regrowth, and they get a 5 o'clock shadow before 6 p.m.

Then there's "Baby Touch," a simple, mitten-like buffer that's easy to use and has been a long-time favorite of women of all ages.

CONFIDENTIAL TO THE LONELIEST WARRIOR IN CALIFORNIA: There is a child abuse law in California that makes it mandatory for anyone, including a psychotherapist, to report any knowledge of child molestation to the police.

DEAR ABBY: I should have realized I had chosen the wrong man when we went shopping for an engagement ring and he said to the clerk, "Show her the cheapest ring you have."

We had no honeymoon because he thinks honeymoons are a waste of money. He has never given me a birthday or anniversary gift. He's never complimented me on my appearance, cooking or anything else.

He says I shouldn't waste money on clothes or beauty shops because I'm only a housewife and don't need to look nice. I gave up outside employment four years ago to become a full-time mother.

Major decisions that should have been made jointly, such as selecting a house, he made alone, without consideration for my taste or opinion.

Because of the way he treats me, I no longer have any sexual interest in him. He was always very selfish in that respect anyway.

After eight years of this so-called "marriage," I am sick of being a doormat. I've begged him to see a marriage counselor, but he refuses, saying, "If you don't like things the way they are, we should just split up."

I would do just that, but being a single mother with two young children to support would be a terrible burden. I might add, he is from a foreign country where wives are expected to do as they're told and shut up.

What do you advise?

STUCK IN CHICAGO

DEAR STUCK: You have two choices: You can spend the rest of your life in a loveless marriage with a selfish man who treats you like a doormat, or you can give this ultimatum: "Either make an honest effort to improve our marriage with counseling, or it's all over."

There are worse fates than being a single mother with two young children to support. And one of them is continuing as you are.

Time Will Tell

From time to time it is brought to our attention that public opinion as determined by pollsters on topics such as life, death, taxes and politics varies from our own convictions.

A recent example: a Media General-Associated Press Poll found 73 percent of a sampling of 1,243 adults interviewed across the country said presidential campaigns are just too long. Only 5 percent were not sure; 22 percent disagreed. Put us with that 22 percent.

Taking the long view, a presidential campaign may be said to begin one day after a new incumbent is sworn in. Public awareness may be shaping up as an incumbent begins his fourth year.

The candidacy takes time, talent and money; physical and mental endurance. New loyalties must be built to go with old loyalties, and finally there is the building of an army of constituents reaching far beyond the boundaries of home and extending into most of the 50 states. That kind of thing takes an incredible amount of money and appearances and public speaking. The final year is a killer.

Remember? There were eight of the foremost Democrat Party aspirants who moved into the homestretch in 1984 and only three could complete the course. Each of the eight starters was intelligent, sharp of mind and nimble of tongue. Man for man their strengths were unique and outstanding in the political world. They all had "the right stuff," but in the quest, only one could be a finalist.

The ordeal of a long and difficult campaign for nomination could also be regarded as a period of honing, of training — such as athletes undergo.

The news media and the public, with their short attention span, are understandably ground down by tedious repetition and unending hype. Instead of admiring the tenacity, endurance and instincts of candidates they turn into querulous and hyper-critical nags.

At the same time, they want a president they can count on to cope with what often prove to be periods of strain and crises in a multitude of fields; each highly complicated and many of which involve degrees of peril.

In most cases our presidents have had the kind of preparation that enabled them (and us) to survive.

Hope Endures

Disaster always seems lurking around the corner for tobacco farmers.

This time it's Granville wilt. A Pitt County extension agent says you can count on seeing the bacterial disease "in just about every field in the county".

Growers who identify Granville wilt in their fields this year can do nothing to alleviate the problem except improve drainage, says the agent. The ominous note is that the bacteria winters in the soil of a field and unless steps are taken to control the disease it can be expected next year, too.

The wilt is only one of the potential disasters that are ever-present.

There is always the uncertainty of the weather (ideal growing conditions are more often a surprise than a habit).

And it has been a long time since (a) farm machinery prices were within easy reach; (b) labor costs were within range of expected marketing prices; (c) credit was as easy to find as farmers had hoped; (d) and when was the last time there was dancing in the streets over crop receipts?

There's something new on the scene: herbicide-contaminated fertilizer has been added to the list of what can happen. Tobacco farmers have seen it all.

Still, when the 1984 crop is harvested and marketed the spirit of hope will endure. There will be tobacco in the fields at this time next year, too.

Gaining 'Access' Is The Answer

Nathan the Innocent was a good citizen who knew nothing about the American Political System. All he wanted to do was get someone to stop a chemical plant from dumping toxic wastes in his cow pasture. He wrote to the EPA, his congressman, his senator and the president of the United States.

EPA replied they would look into the matter some day.

His congressman wrote that if he was re-elected he would stop the dumping.

His senator said he would forward his letter to the EPA.

And the president thanked Nathan for supporting his policy in Central America.

"Why don't you go to Washington yourself, Nathan?" his wife pleaded. "Then they will listen to you."

Nathan the Innocent bought a ticket on "People Express" and flew to Washington. He put on a suit and tie and went to the Environmental Protection Agency. The receptionist told him everyone was in an important meeting and suggested he come back in three months.

Nathan then went to see his congressman and was turned over to a summer intern who didn't know what toxic waste was because he was majoring in Chinese literature.

He then went to see his senator. The receptionist said the senator was out of town but gave him ten campaign bumper stickers which she suggested he distribute to his friends.

Finally, Nathan went to the White House. He asked to see the president to discuss his cow pasture. Since he wasn't violent they took Nathan in an unmarked car to St. Elizabeth's Hospital for observation.

He was placed in a locked hospital room with a Washington lobbyist who was suffering from deep depression. It seemed a bill he worked on to make the MX launching pad into tax shelters had failed to pass.

Nathan told his story to the lobbyist who said, "You are really an innocent. You can't come to Washington and just speak to anyone here. What you need is Access."

"What is Access?"

"Access is the grease that opens doors in Washington."

"How do I get this Access?" Nathan wanted to know.

"You make political contributions to the people who can help you. You can donate directly to your congressman, your senator or the president, and indirectly by joining 'clubs' that have been set up to get around how much you can give the candidates. The more you donate the more Access you will have."

"Doesn't that get expensive?" Nathan asked.

"Good government doesn't come cheap."

A few days later the psychiatrists decided, although Nathan was neurotic about toxic wastes, he wasn't a danger to the community.

He went back to his motel and wrote out checks to his congressman, senator, the president, and elubs such as "Citizens for a Better America," "The Fund for Honest Elections," "Americans for the Little Guy," and the "President's Golden Circle."

In two days he found all doors were open to him and everyone listened sympathetically to his problems and said they would get on it right away. He was even invited to the White House to watch the president issue a new EPA postage stamp, with Anne Burford Gorsuch's picture on it.

Nathan the Innocent came home in triumph and told his wife, "The chemical company will never be allowed to dump toxic wastes in the cow pasture again."

"Good," said his wife.

"The bad news is I had to sell the farm to stop them."

"Why?" she asked.

"It was the only way I could raise the money to get any Access."

Mondale Picked Fight Over Peanuts

—Walter Mears—

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — It isn't easy for the inevitable winner to create a no-win situation, but Walter F. Mondale managed. Heading for his greatest political triumph, he wound up playing the loser to the Democratic Party bureaucracy.

So when the Democratic National Convention opens today, ready to nominate Mondale for the White House, the gavel will be firmly in the grip of Charles T. Manatt. Mondale tried to make him a lame duck by firing him effective on Friday, but he didn't make it stick.

Mondale and his lieutenants called the Manatt episode a typical convention rumbling, and a minor diversion. Maybe so, but it also was clumsy, unnecessary and silly.

It took the edge off Mondale's newfound image as the decisive political leader who dared defy tradition to put a woman, Rep. Geraldine Ferraro, on the Democratic ticket. And it recalled the arguments of his primary election challengers, who tried to cast Mondale as a candidate too beholden to interest groups, too easily pushed in one direction or another.

A national political convention has only one real prize to bestow, and that is nomination for the White House. That is what Mondale has sought so long, and that is what he will have on Wednesday night. Mondale has the delegates, and his interest right now is in a convention of celebration, harmony and unity.

It makes no sense to pick fights on the small stuff. But Mondale did.

Ironically, Mondale almost certainly could have dispatched Manatt and installed his own chairman right after the convention, if he'd followed the traditional timetable. The choice of a chairman is a prerogative of presidential nominees. The national committee meets on Friday, the morning after the convention, to hear from the nominee and do his bidding.

There would have been some grumbling if he had fired Manatt then, but it wouldn't have made much difference.

But Mondale made his move in advance. "I wanted to get on with our work," was his only explanation. He said he advised Manatt on Thursday.

Word spread through the convention hotels on Friday night that Manatt was on the way out and that Mondale wanted Bert Lance, the Georgia state chairman and Jimmy Carter associate, to become national chairman. Bob Beckel, Mondale's campaign manager, said that idea drew "a mixed reaction," which is something of an understatement. Mondale backed away when it drew protests from some of his closest allies.

Lance is, after all, a real, live reminder of the Carter link, and Carter lost the last election. Mondale often points to his experience in government and his term as vice president, but he doesn't go out of his way to remind voters whose vice president he was.

Furthermore, Lance left the Carter administration under a cloud because of his banking practices in private life. Mondale has campaigned against what he calls "the sleaze factor" in the Reagan administration. Some Democrats said that to make Lance the party chairman would give Republicans a ready comeback. Mondale said not.

Nevertheless, he stopped short of making Lance party chairman and made him general chairman of the presidential campaign instead. He said he would replace Manatt with somebody else. "It's time for new leadership," Mondale said.

But Manatt had a constituency of his own — the party professionals and state Democratic leaders just then assembling for the convention. He'd been answering their phone calls, doing their favors, and they hadn't forgotten. One of them said his ouster was obscene; another suggested there must be a Reagan mole in the Mondale campaign.

After a day of that, Mondale changed his mind and decided that Manatt could stick around after all. James Johnson, the campaign chairman, met with Manatt and Lance, then announced that Mondale had changed his mind.

He explained, lamely, that this would help in fund-raising and improve coordination. The latter may be particularly important in an organization that now will have a party chairman the nominee didn't want; a general chairman he does want; a campaign chairman; a campaign manager; and an old Mondale associate, Michael Berman, as director of the Democratic committee.

The episode soon will be forgotten; it may take longer to draw up the organizational chart.

Strength For Today

The law against murder is based on the general principle that since a man cannot confer life, he has no right to take it away. Man is made in the image of God. The murder outrages that image when he commits his ruthless act. God is the Almighty Sovereign, and He alone may terminate life. He plans human life and terminates it in accordance with His divine ordering of all things. If man steps in and terminates life at some earlier time, he defies God and puts himself in open rebellion against Him.

Murder is the worst of all sins, and the state has always regarded it as such. Steal a man's possessions and you deprive him only of the things with which life is garnished. But when once a life is taken away, man's God-given opportunity is destroyed.

For these reasons, murder and suicide constitute the complete and utter flouting of God's will.

Cheating May Be A Tool

WASHINGTON — When a blue-ribbon panel informed President Reagan last November of Soviet arms control treaty violations, it put the seven months since then in ominous perspective by suggesting the Kremlin was testing how much cheating the Americans would swallow.

One unintended partial answer to the degree of U.S. tolerance is that 275-page document still under lock and key as "secret." It has been kept from Congress by the White House and may never be delivered to Capitol Hill. That is ominous since the report by the president's General Advisory Committee on Arms Control (GAC) goes far beyond any routine new charge of massive cheating to suggest "peculiar properties" in the Kremlin's political and military rationale for its violations.

The rationale is foreboding for the future in a world in which nuclear weapons may be decisive. One of the chilling "peculiar properties" is that Soviet cheating is partly designed to "test ... U.S. political processes" on arms control.

Under the heading, "Further Significance of Recent Soviet Breaches" of treaties, the GAC report suggests that cheating may in part be a Soviet tool to register levels of American anger or acquiescence over Soviet non-compliance. "What they may be probing for," one official told us, "is the true level of American toleration for their cheating."

That tolerance level has been high by any fair accounting. For example, when the Soviets were discovered to be developing a new heavy SS-19 ICBM at the very time they were about to sign the first SALT agreement — which ruled out new "heavy" ICBMs — the U.S. only complained. The report hints that Soviet discovery of American tolerance for its cheating is irresistible inducement for Moscow to become even bolder.

Given the high standing of its authors (including former defense secretary Donald Rumsfeld), the GAC report is badly wanted by both houses of Congress. The final version of the defense authorization bill is likely to demand submission of the document to Capitol Hill within 60 days.

The White House rejected efforts to use the GAC report in a closed-door session the Senate held last month to discuss latest U.S. intelligence on Soviet anti-satellite technology. If unveiled at that session, it could have stimulated a harsh new anti-Soviet diatribe and undermined efforts of Reagan's political operatives to arrange new U.S.-Soviet arms talks and thereby buttress Reagan's man-of-peace image before Nov. 6.

But the GAC report never made it up to the Senate that day. White House legal aides ruled it out even for a secret Senate session because of "executive privilege." That was an answer of sorts to the Soviet test.

Besides such probing for American tolerance, another rationale for persistent Soviet refusal to abide by either the letter or the spirit of its nuclear and other military agreements, according to the report, is "to test ... U.S. intelligence capabilities." Development of the SS-19 was discovered by extraordinarily successful satellite-based bugging of the late Soviet president Leonid Brezhnev's limousine. The Kremlin quickly uncovered this U.S. breakthrough when Washington complained that the SS-19 looked like a violation of SALT.

The GAC report makes a strong case that Soviet decisions to engage in widespread SALT II violations seem to have been "initiated at about the time" the never-ratified treaty was signed in 1979. Moreover, the U.S. should have known from the start. Encryption of test data on new missiles, a violation of SALT II, is described by the GAC report as "done in a fashion which should have at least caused U.S. suspicion."

Authors of the GAC report paint an even gloomier view of the future. They claim that "the expanding Soviet national concealment and deception program may have been a preparation or a cover for more extensive violations taking place now or in the future." The clear aim: cheat to win.

That raises a profound question of Reagan administration policy on the current lull in anti-satellite warfare talks at Vienna with the Russians. U.S. specialists argue there is no way to verify an anti-satellite warfare ban. Concealment of tests is an easy as concealment of new data from missile testing: by encryption.

Thus for the immediate future, the shrouded GAC report warns congressional liberals and Reagan's political aides demanding anti-satellite arms talks. For the more distant future, it maps a twisted, rutted roadway in U.S. efforts to steer the "arms control process" from intentional, provocative Soviet violations into true limitation of the nuclear menace.

The Last of the Old Order

Russia's last Czar, Nicholas II, and his family were executed by the Bolsheviks on this day in 1918. In its final years, the royal family seemed to be out of touch with the growing misery of the Russian people. Czarina Alexandra, a granddaughter of England's Queen Victoria, came under the sway of the mysterious and dissolute Rasputin. She thought he could cure her son's hemophilia. Rasputin was murdered just a few months before the 1917 Revolution.

Hot weather with high temperatures and high humidity continues to affect livestock in eastern North Carolina. Hot weather reduces swine performance more than cold weather, resulting in significant economic loss to the swine producer. This occurs because swine buildings in much of our area are designed for cold weather. Hot weather does not usually result in death loss but it can cause conception problems and subtle reductions in feed intake that result in significant drops in production.

Larger swine — animals in gestation, farrowing, breeding and finishing phases of production — begin to feel the effects of heat stress at about 70 degrees Fahrenheit. If temperatures remain above 85 degrees F. for more than a short period of time substantial losses in performance and reproductive efficiency can result unless some type of cooling relief is provided.

Ventilation cooling systems, water cooling systems and evaporative cooling systems are primarily used for cooling swine in confinement buildings. Ventilation cooling requires rapid air movement over the animal by means of air circulation using fans. Water cooling requires wetting the animal's skin and allowing moisture to evaporate. This is usually done by a sprinkler system operated by thermostat-controlled timers that wet the animal and then allow it to dry. Drip cooling is another means of cooling by water that is practiced on sows in farrowing stalls. Evaporative coolers use the heat of water vaporization to cool ventilation air. The incoming ventilation air is passed through a moist pad where heat in the air evaporates moisture in the air. This raises the relative humidity while lowering the temperature of the air. This kind of cooler is more effective in dry western states but can provide relief from heat stress in our area.

Whatever method of cooling swine producers use it is imperative that swine are kept in an optimum environment at this time of year to insure optimum gains and keep reproductive problems low. For more information about cooling systems for swine, contact the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office at 752-2934.

Police Cleared in Solidarity Beating

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A court today acquitted two policemen charged in the beating death of a 19-year-old Solidarity supporter. Two ambulance drivers were convicted of negligence in the case.

As the verdicts of the three-man judicial panel were announced, the boy's father and several family friends walked out of the packed courtroom in protest.

The beating death of Grzegorz Przemyski after he was picked up by police for disorderly conduct May 12, 1983, sparked public anger against methods police have used to crush Solidarity, which was suppressed under martial law. His funeral drew an estimated 20,000 mourners in a peaceful protest against police brutality.

Przemyski's father refused to comment as he left the courtroom. The boy's mother, Barbara Sadowska, a backer of the outlawed trade union, did not attend the reading of the verdict after having sat through most of the trial.

"She didn't come today because she knew what it would look like," said a close friend of Mrs. Sadowska who asked not to be identified by name. "I think she was right to stay away from it."

The trial, which received extensive media coverage in Poland, featured testimony from more than 70 witnesses and more than 10 medical and psychiatric experts since it began May 31.

Airlines Set New Passenger Levels

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's airlines carried a record 318 million passengers in 1983, an 8 percent increase over the previous year, and the industry posted its best safety record since the start of the jet age, the Air Transport Association says.

Scheduled airlines also broke records for air cargo, U.S. mail carried and "revenue passenger miles" — the number of paying passengers per mile, the Washington-based trade group said in its annual report.

By the number of paying passengers flown per mile, these are the nation's largest airlines, the ATA said: 1. United Airlines, Chicago, 43 billion revenue-passenger miles; 2. Eastern Airlines, Miami, 37 billion RPMs; Delta Air Lines, Atlanta, 36.8 billion; 4. American Airlines, Dallas-Fort Worth, 31.4; 5. Trans World Airlines, New York, 18.6; 6. Republic Airlines, Minneapolis, 17.7; 7. USAir, Washington D.C., 16.2; 8. Pan American World Airways, New York, 14.1; 9. Northwest Airlines, Minneapolis, 12.7, and 10. Piedmont Aviation, Winston-Salem, N.C., 11.7.

The airlines showed an operating profit of $310 million on revenue of $39 billion, after three years of losses that neared $1.5 billion, the ATA said in the report today.

However, because of high interest payments on their heavily mortgaged fleets, the airlines combined had a net, bottom-line loss of $188.1 million in 1983, down from 1982's disastrous net loss of $915.8 million.

The difference between operating and net results is that the former is operating expenses subtracted from ticket revenue. The net results include payments for taxes and interest on money borrowed to finance multimillion-dollar jetliners.

"Based on results during the early months of 1984, the operating profit this year could reach or exceed $1 billion," said ATA Chairman Paul Ignatius, "but net profits, affected by rising costs including increased interest expenses, will be far below that figure and far below the 5 percent net profit margin of U.S. industry."

In 1983 the profit margin — revenue minus all costs and payments — was 0.8 percent.

N.Y. Health Care Strike Expanding

NEW YORK (AP) — A health care workers' union already on strike at 27 hospitals and three nursing homes decided early today to strike 11 more nursing homes, bringing the number of patients affected to 22,000.

A federal mediator said the union, District 1199, broke off negotiations after the Association of Voluntary Nursing Homes rejected its offer to extend the strike deadline until Friday in exchange for employees receiving alternate weekends off.

The association had requested a two-week extension of the deadline with no conditions.

Both the union and the association have said they consider a nursing home strike more dangerous to patient welfare than a hospital strike because a higher percentage of people require round-the-clock care.

Association President Mitchell Waife said the nursing homes had not lined up temporary replacements for the estimated 4,800 newly striking workers, ranging from dishwashers and room cleaners to social workers and radiology technicians.

Instead, they will rely on administrators, volunteers and patients' relatives to do the work, he said.

The job action began Friday, when 30,000 members of the union struck 27 private hospitals and three nursing homes represented by a different management group, the League of Voluntary Hospitals. Mediator Basil Paterson reported no new talks and no progress in settling that walkout.

The state Health Department said it would have inspectors at all the struck nursing homes today, as it has had at the struck hospitals.

"They know we expect them to provide the same quality care," said Peter Slocum, a department spokesman. "How they do it is up to them, but they know we will be watching."

Slocum said Friday's strike affected about 17,000 patients and he expected another 5,000 to be affected at the newly struck nursing homes.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠J6 ♥K ♦AKJ98 ♣AKQJ10

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♦ Pass Pass 1 ♥

3 ♣ Pass 4 ♦ Pass

What action do you take?

A.—It is true that you could make slam if partner has as little as five diamonds and the ace of spades. However, chances of partner holding that hand are slight — he could have cue-bid three spades before raising diamonds. Indeed, it is quite possible that you have three fast losers. Nevertheless, we would gamble out five diamonds. Opponents have been known not to cash three fast tricks when they hold them, and they might have only two.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠A ♥A9852 ♦K1063 ♣Q85

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North

1 ♣ 1 ♥ Pass 1 NT

Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—While your unbalanced hand suggests a suit contract would be preferable to no trump, we still suggest you pass. Partner has shown little interest in spades and, should you bid two diamonds and should he pass that, the opponents could come to life and locate a fit in the master suit. Pass.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠AQ63 ♥KQ93 ♦A10 ♣982

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

3 ♣ 3 ♦ 5 ♣ ?

What do you bid now?

A.—This is not a question of whether or not you can make six diamonds — a small slam must be laydown and the grand should depend only on whether partner has a singleton club or a void. Rather, this is an exercise in tactics — at what level will the opponents allow you to buy the contract to close out the rubber? We suggest you bid only five diamonds and, if the opponents compete again, take the push to slam. That way they might think you are stretching and let you play the hand.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠9 ♥AKQ10952 ♦953 ♣83

Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one club. What do you bid now?

A.—Your hand rates to take seven tricks and, according to the Rule of Two and Three at this vulnerability, that is enough for a preemptive jump to four hearts. This vigorous preemptive action might prevent the opponents from locating a spade fit, or from reaching a slam in one of their suits.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠K85 ♥AJ543 ♦962 ♣72

Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?

A.—You don't have quite enough to force to game — you need an invitational sequence. Start by using the Stayman convention. If partner responds to your two club inquiry with two hearts, raise to three hearts; if he bids two diamonds, bid two hearts; and if he shows a spade suit by bidding two spades, bid two no trump. The latter two bids show a hand of 8-9 points with either a four- or five-card heart suit, depending on whether you introduce your suit freely.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠KQ83 ♥A8 ♦AK83 ♣952

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 NT Pass 2 ♣ Pass

2 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—You could barge into slam and perhaps suffer the indignity of having the opponents start by cashing two club tricks. Or you could approach slam more accurately by first bidding three diamonds. That is forcing. When you later support spades, partner will realize that you were cue-bidding in support of his suit. Now he will be able to judge the potential of the hand without getting your side overboard.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed higher today amid some hope for relief from high interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 3.54 to 1,113.41 in the first half hour.

Gainers took a 7-5 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Long-term interest rates declined substantially in the credit markets last week, aided by signs that inflation remained subdued.

Rates were mixed in the credit markets this morning, with the Federal Reserve's policy-setting Open Market Committee scheduled to meet today and Tuesday.

There had been talk that the committee might take some actions to tighten credit. However, in recent days a growing number of analysts have argued that it is more likely to make no significant change in its policies.

In the stock market, International Business Machines was actively traded, up 1/2 at 105 3/4. Late last week the company reported a 20.8 percent increase in second-quarter earnings.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 5.30 to 1,109.87, cutting its loss for the week to 12.70 points.

Gainers outpaced losers by about 7 to 5 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 75.48 million shares, against 86.05 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index gained .44 to 87.08. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .60 at 193.52.

Pipeline Destroyed

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Anti-Marxist rebels in Angola say they blew up an oil pipeline in a northern province, killing 22 people. Angola's official news agency said 10 people, all in one family, were killed.

The UNITA rebel movement also called on foreign companies operating in Angola to pressure the government for a withdrawal of the estimated 25,000-30,000 Cuban troops stationed in the country.

UNITA, whose full name is National Union for the Total Independence of Angola, has fought the government of President Jose Eduardo Dos Santos since losing out in a 1976 civil war to his Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola-Workers Party. The African nation is a former Portuguese colony.

Streets Flood

By The Associated Press

Flooding and mudslides blocked roads in the southern Piedmont and western sandhills where a summer storm dumped up to 6 inches of rain Sunday night, forcing some motorists to abandon vehicles in waist-high water, the National Weather Service said.

Numerous streets were flood in Concord and around Mount Pleasant. Rainfall measuring 4 to 5 inches was recorded throughout Cabarrus County. The waters had receded this morning, officials said.

Nuclear Nations Strengthen Bans

NEW YORK (AP) — Western countries that supply nuclear technology have decided to strengthen controls on nuclear exports to prevent the spread of the capability to build nuclear weapons. The New York Times reported today.

The countries met for three days last week in Luxembourg, at the initiative of the Reagan administration, the newspaper said. Administration officials said the suppliers agreed they had to expand safeguards on existing nuclear plants, press more suppliers to tighten sales, and control the transfer of nuclear components.

The meeting was the first of the 15 members of the London Suppliers Club since 1977, the Times said. The paper quoted administration officials as saying the meeting was kept secret because the participants did not want it to appear as if they were dictating terms to nuclear exporters.

The Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, East Germany and Poland, all members of the club, which first met in 1974, were not invited.

Of the original members of the club, 11 attended the Luxembourg meeting, which began Wednesday and ended Friday.

Joining the United States were Belgium, Canada, France, West Germany, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, Sweden, Switzerland and Great Britain, the Times said.

In September 1977, the club issued a set of guidelines for nuclear transfers and a list of equipment, technology and material to be governed with care.

According to Reagan administration officials the latest meeting was deemed necessary because some new problems have developed worldwide, the Times said.

Among the issues discussed at the meeting was that new countries such as Brazil and China have become nuclear suppliers.

Countries with a potential for nuclear weapons have been able to sidestep existing guidelines and the lists of sensitive technology by buying component weapon-grade technology, which is harder to track, the newspaper said.

Poles Hint Some Amnesty Planned

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The leadership of a semi-official political organization today called for a "broad amnesty" for political prisoners to mark the 40th anniversary of Communist rule in Poland, the official news agency PAP reported.

The presidium of the National Council of the Patriotic Movement for National Rebirth said it favored "creating an opportunity to return to normal life for all those people who got involved in activity incompatible with the interests of the socialist state," the group's general-secretary said.

The social and political group, which has strong ties to the government, was created after the December 1981 imposition of martial law.

Its statement was seen as an indication that authorities were prepared to grant some form of amnesty in connection with Sunday's national holiday marking the 40th anniversary of the proclamation of Communist rule.

"The presidium... puts a proposal before all members of the National Council to address a motion to the Sejm (parliament) concerning a broad amnesty toward those people who committed political crimes and offenses," said Marian Orzechowski, the council's general-secretary.

Orzechowski is also a deputy Politburo member of the ruling Communist Party.

"The amnesty would mark the 40th anniversary of the socialist fatherland," Orzechowski said. "We are convinced that such a decision will serve the effective building of a national agreement."

There are more than 600 political prisoners in Polish jails, according to official government figures. Today's statement did not indicate how many of the political prisoners should be included in the amnesty.

U.S. Warns New Zealand Over Port Visits

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — The United States has warned that it will break defense ties with New Zealand if the new Labor government follows through on threats to ban port visits by American warships, top officials said today.

Washington has made it clear privately that the ANZUS defense pact of Australia, New Zealand and the United States will be discarded if the new government moves against American defense interests, according to high-placed sources who declined to be identified further.

U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz said during a break in the first day of the annual ANZUS defense summit, "We hope to continue in partnership with the new government."

The Labor Party swept into power in general elections Saturday on a platform that included a pledge to prohibit visits by U.S. nuclear-powered ships or by conventional warships carrying nuclear weapons.

Such visits are allowed under the 33-year-old ANZUS treaty, but the Labor Party has said it will bar all U.S. warships if Washington maintains its policy of refusing to say which ships have nuclear weapons. The new government also has pledged to make other as-yet-unspecified revisions in the treaty.

New Zealand is represented at the ANZUS talks by the outgoing conservative government of Prime Minister Robert Muldoon, which was defeated Saturday after nine years of power but is to remain in office for about two more weeks. It supports full defense ties with the United States.

Prime Minister-elect David Lange made an unannounced 400-mile flight from Auckland to Wellington to meet with Shultz on Sunday. The two men said they would meet Tuesday in hopes of avoiding a confrontation on the warships' issue.

Adm. William J. Crowe, commander of U.S. Navy forces in the Pacific, told representatives of the three nations today that the Soviet Union's military strength has expanded markedly in the Pacific in the past year.

Crowe reported increases in Soviet warships and backfire bombers in the area and said Soviet forces were extending further southward into the Pacific.

Shultz also stressed the American view of a growing Soviet threat that ANZUS must help counter.

"Soviet naval activity in the Pacific supported by the growing Soviet air and naval presence on the Pacific rim continues to increase, probing for weak or vulnerable areas into which it can expand," he said.

State Department officials said the warship issue — the major foreign policy component of the Labor Party's campaign — did not come up during the first of the two days of talks.

But worried U.S. representatives are making strong efforts to keep New Zealand as an ally, the State Department officials indicated.

The Evening Post newspaper said today that New Zealand officials fear Washington would react strongly if the new government carries through on its promise to ban visits by nuclear-armed or nuclear-powered U.S. ships.</

Stars Redeemed In USFL Title Win

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — It was a night for redemption and the Philadelphia Stars, a team driven all year long by a two-point loss in the United States Football League's inaugural championship game, would not be denied.

Chuck Fusina came to pass, Kelvin Bryant came to run and above all, Coach Jim Mora's club came to play defense, shutting down the Arizona Wranglers 23-3 to win the USFL's second title game before a Tampa Stadium crowd of 52,662.

"There's no doubt we are the best team in the USFL," Mora said after the Stars hiked their record to 19-2 and 35-6 over two years. "There was no denying this team."

Philadelphia, a 24-22 loser to Michigan in the first USFL championship game in Denver last July, dominated from the Wranglers from start to finish, although a trio of turnovers threatened to spoil the club's mission.

Fusina completed his first 10 passes as the Stars built a 13-3 halftime lead and Bryant, the league's most valuable player in 1983 and second leading rusher in 1984, ran for 115 yards on 29 carries to pace an offensive attack that featured a USFL playoff-record 59 rushing plays.

Philadelphia controlled the ball for 43 minutes, 19 seconds to Arizona's 16:41 and the Stars outgained the Wranglers 414 yards to 119.

"Our goal after losing to Michigan last year was not just to get to Tampa, but to win this game tonight," Mora said. "Our attitude all season was that we would not be denied."

The loss was the Wranglers' second to the Eastern Conference champions this season and fourth in two seasons, though two came as the Chicago Blitz before franchise moved to Arizona after the 1983 campaign.

The script for the first three contests saw Philadelphia rallying from large second-half deficits to win, but there would be none of that Sunday night.

Bryan Thomas' 4-yard touchdown run 7:50 into the game helped the Stars to a 7-0 lead and Fusina's 1-yard sneak seven minutes later made it 13-0.

The first of three Philadelphia turnovers — Ken Dunek's fumble early in the second quarter — set up Frank Corral's 37-yard field goal, but Arizona couldn't capitalize on the other two miscues.

Bryant, playing with a jammed toe, fumbled at the Wranglers goal line to end an 84-yard drive just before halftime and Ed Smith intercepted a Fusina pass and returned it 37 yards to to halt another march that had traveled 68 yards in the third quarter.

"We had opportunities to get back in the game after a couple of turnovers, but we didn't take advantage of them," said Arizona Coach George Allen. "We didn't play as well as I thought we would, so Philadelphia deserves to win the championship."

Fusina, voted the game's most valuable player, eluded the Wranglers' vaunted pass rush all night, finishing with 12 completions in 17 attempts for 158 yards. More importantly, Arizona failed to sack him.

"They didn't put any pressure on me at all," Fusina said. "After the first two possessions (leading to TDs), I knew our offensive line was playing exceptionally well and that Arizona would have a hard time winning.

"Any team we played tonight would have been hard pressed to stop us," the league's top-rated quarterback added.

Philadelphia's "Doghouse Defense," meanwhile, took the spotlight from Allen's contingent that ranked No. 1 overall during the 18-game regular season.

The Stars were first against the run, though, and Sunday night held Tim Spencer and Kevin Long — both 1,000-yard runners the past two years — to 33 and 29 yards, respectively.

"Our defense was awesome tonight as it has been for the last two years," Mora said. "One key was that we got out in front, didn't do anything fancy and played solid defense."

"We had opportunities in the first half when we did not score," the Philadelphia coach added. "I was a little worried at halftime, but they got down to business and did the job."

Shutout in the second and third quarters, the Stars used the Wranglers' only turnover to set up a touchdown that put them comfortably ahead, 20-3, with 9:55 left in the fourth quarter.

Don Fielder sacked Arizona quarterback Greg Landry at the Wranglers' 11-yard line, forcing a fumble recovered by Philadelphia's Buddy Moor.

Seven plays later, Bryant crashed into the end zone from the 1. David Trout, who earlier missed a 27-yard field goal, completed Philadelphia's scoring with a 39-yarder 4:34 later.

Fusina Returns As Hero

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Chuck Fusina left Tampa two years ago as a quarterback who didn't quite measure up. He returned as a hero.

The 6-foot-1, 195-pound Fusina was named Most Valuable Player of the United States Football League championship game after leading the Philadelphia Stars to a 23-3 romp Sunday night over the Arizona Wranglers.

He completed his first 10 passes for 123 yards in the first half and finished with 12 of 17 for 158 yards, and one touchdown run.

Tampa was the place where Fusina had spent three seasons on the bench as a backup for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers of the National Football League before he was traded, his confidence shaken, in 1982.

Signing with the USFL, he said Sunday night, was "the best move I ever made."

Fusina was runner-up in the balloting for the Heisman Trophy in 1978, and came close to winning two national championship games — the Sugar Bowl as quarterback for Penn State in 1979, and the first USFL championship as quarterback for the Stars in 1983.

They said he didn't look like a winner, but he was one. And Sunday night, he was determined to show them.

"I lost in the Sugar Bowl by one yard and I lost the USFL championship last year by two points. Maybe the third time's a charm," Fusina said.

"I was used to this field (in Tampa), and it was fun playing in front of these people. A lot of people called me during the week and wished me good luck.

"I went to my old favorite restaurants in town, and I felt like I was on the home team, really."

McEnroe Leads Sweep

ATLANTA (AP) — Most of the suspense ended in the early going, but John McEnroe managed to keep everyone's attention on and off the court in the United States' 5-0 Davis Cup tennis victory over Argentina.

The start of Sunday's competition was delayed 51 minutes while doctors examined McEnroe and Argentine star Jose-Luis Clerc. Davis Cup officials announced that McEnroe had tendinitis in his right lateral hamstring and Clerc had a slightly torn abdominal muscle, but that both would play.

McEnroe said later that he had planned to sit out Sunday with the injury, allowing Jimmy Arias to substitute. He said he changed his mind when he heard about Clerc. He said the Argentine faked the injury.

"I said, 'I'll play if he'll play,'" McEnroe said.

Clerc then lost to Jimmy Connors 6-3, 6-2, and McEnroe beat 19-year-old Martin Jaite 6-3, 6-4. Both matches were shortened to best-of-three sets because the contest had been decided when the Americans took a 3-0 lead Saturday.

Clerc left town without attending a postmatch press conference. During his match, a pain killer was sprayed on his midsection.

McEnroe had harsh words for Clerc on the court in a doubles match Saturday. The two argued at the net over McEnroe's accusation that the Argentines were trying to hit the American players, although McEnroe said after that match that "it's all water under the bridge."

McEnroe, who won his third Wimbledon title on July 8, said he was tired throughout the three-day Davis Cup contest.

His serve was erratic Sunday. He produced 10 aces in as many service games, but had three double-faults in the only service game he lost to Jaite.

By that time, however, the Argentine — who was substituting for the injured Guillermo Vilas — had been broken twice as McEnroe swept the first four games of the match while winning 16 of 20 points.

McEnroe broke Jaite again in the third game of the second set, jumping on short shots from the Argentine to seize the net.

Clerc was plagued by ground stroke errors Sunday, especially on his backhand.

Bases-Loaded Error Gives Wayne Win

GOLDSBORO — An error on a base-loaded squeeze play capped a two-run rally as Wayne County downed Pitt County 4-3 Sunday in the opening game of the Area I American Legion baseball championship series.

Do Yol Lim had two hits for Wayne County, which managed just five against the Pitt County pitching duo of Billy Michel and Paul Hill.

Michel led Pitt County with two hits including a towering homer in the eighth.

Glenn Fortner struck out 12 in eight innings and gave up four hits before Paul Summerlin came on in the ninth to record the win.

Anthony Jernigan walked to led off the bottom of the ninth, and John Thoms reached first on a fielder's choice. Lim loaded the bases with a bunt single, and Hill hit Sean Sullivan with a pitch to force in a run and even the score 3-3. Thoms was out at the plate on a squeeze attempt by Brad Reaves, but Wayne County repeated the strategy after the out. Hill fielded Bert Mileski's bunt but dropped the ball attempting to make the throw to the plate to allow the winning run to score.

Doug Coley reached first on a walk after two outs, moved to second on a passed ball and scored on a single by Michel as Pitt County got on the board in the top of the first.

Wayne County answered in the second as Lim singled and later scored on a single by Mileski.

Toby Fischer opened the sixth with a double for Pitt County, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on a single by Coley for a 2-1 edge.

Jansen Evans walked, went to second when Stan Mazingo was hit by a pitch, took third on a sacrifice, and stole home when Pitt catcher Roger Moye thought time out had been called, as Wayne evened the score again in the bottom of the frame.

Michel's blast came after two out in the eighth to put Pitt County ahead 3-2 going into the final inning.

The series resumes tonight at Harrington Field with left hander Darryl Edwards expected to start for Pitt County.

Stacy Takes Open Crown As Alcott, Jones Stumble

PEABODY, Mass. (AP) — Hollis Stacy was relegated to the status of spectator at the final hole of the U.S. Women's Open golf championship, and as such watched co-leaders Amy Alcott and Rosie Jones fall by the wayside.

Stacy stood at the 18th green of the steamy Salem Country Club pondering a possible playoff, but wound up winning the prestigious event for the third time in her career. And the victory she said was "written in the stars" moved the 30-year-old player from Hilton Head, S.C., a step closer to U.S. Golf Association immortality.

Stacy rallied from five strokes back Sunday by firing a three-under par 69, matching the tournament record with a 72-hole score of 290, two over regulation, on the sun-baked 6,285-yard layout.

In victory, she joined elite USGA company, such as Bobby Jones, JoAnne Carner and Jack Nicklaus.

Jones won nine USGA championships, four Opens and five Amateurs. Carner, who tied for 20th here, has eight USGA titles — five Amateurs, two Opens and one Girls' Junior.

Stacy pulled into a tie with Nicklaus with six USGA championships. Nicklaus won two national amateur championships before winning four Opens. Stacy captured three USGA Girls' Junior crowns before winning the 1977 and '78 Opens as a pro. This time she did it by making up five shots on the final 14 holes.

Stacy felt destined to win because she was born in 1954, the year the late Babe Didrikson Zaharias, suffering from cancer, set a USGA record in winning here by 12 strokes.

"Winning where Babe won is something special," Stacy said. "She was one of the greatest athletes in the world and won the year I was born. I think that was a lucky charm. It was written in the stars."

Stacy didn't depend entirely on the stars, however. A dramatic comeback in the final six holes put her in position to win her first tournament of the year and 16th of her 11-year stay on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

15-Year Old Babe Ruth

Greenville.....7
Martin County.....5

PINETOPS — Axel Smith threw a five-hitter to lead the Greenville All-Stars to a 7-5 victory over Martin County Sunday in the District Babe Ruth League Tournament.

Martin County led 2-0 going into the sixth inning, but Greenville rallied with six runs in the bottom of the frame.

Eric Jarman walked, Greg Jones singled, and Smith reached on an error to fill the bases. Tom Moye doubled in Jarman and Jones, and Travis King singled in Smith and Moye. After Billy Carr walked Scott Davis singled in King and Carr.

Greenville, the lone team left in the winner's bracket, will play Tuesday at 6 p.m. the survivor of tonight's games between Pitt County, Nash County and Martin County.

Greenville's Babe Ruth League All-Stars pushed over four runs in the top of the tenth inning and bested Nash County, 8-4, in district tournament play Saturday night.

Earlier in the afternoon, Nash County nipped Pitt County, 1-0, to send Pitt into the losers' bracket of the double elimination tournament, and a later game Saturday night against Greene County.

Nash took the lead in the first inning, scoring twice, but Greenville tied it up with two in the second. Greg Jones and Jason Galloway both walked and scored on a hit by Scott Davis.

Greenville took the lead in the fourth, scoring twice. Travis King reached on an error and Davis doubled him in. Axel Smith also reached on an error, allowing Davis to score for a 4-2 lead.

Nash County came back in the bottom of the fourth to score two to knot it at 4-4, and it stayed that way until the tenth.

In the top of the tenth, Galloway walked and Jeff Mahoney came on to run for him, stealing second. Davis reached on an error and another error on the play let Mahoney score. Terry Warren doubled in Davis and Eric Jarman singled to score Davis. Smith followed with a triple scoring Jarman with the final run.

Jarman went the distance on the mound for Greenville, striking out 14 and allowing only four hits.

Jarman, Jones and Scott Davis had two hits each.

Pitt County.....14

PINETOPS — Benjie Beechum ripped five hits to a lead a 20-hit barrage as Pitt County topped Washington 14-9 Sunday in the District Babe Ruth League All-Star Tournament.

Brian Joyner, Shane Adams, Scott Bond and Reggie Dail had three hits each for Pitt County, which plays Nash County tonight at 6 p.m. The winner of the that game faces Martin County at 8 p.m. for the right to play Greenville Tuesday for the Championship.

Aaron Freeman singled and scored on a double by Joyner in the second. Adams singled in Joyner. Beechum and Bond singled, and Todd Miller drove in Beechum with a fielder's choice. Dail singled in Bond and Miller to put Pitt County ahead to stay.

Pitt County downed Greene County 8-3 in the opening game Sunday, as Todd Miller fired a three hitter to earn the victory on the mound.

Adams ripped four hits, while Joyner, Freeman and Amzie Hoffman had two each for Pitt County.

Pitt took the lead with four runs in the first. Wesley McLawhorn walked, Hoffman singled and Joyner singled in McLawhorn for the game-winning RBI. Adams singled in Hoffman, and Tommy Wright doubled in a pair of runs to cap the rally.

Coastal Plain North.....12
Coastal Plain South.....4

Mickey Knox went 4-4 with a three-run homer in the third and Jesse Ward added a three-run blast as Coastal Plain North crushed Coastal Plain South 12-4 in the 16-year old Babe Ruth League All-Star tournament Sunday.

Ramone Mason added two hits to the 13-hit effort by the North, while pitchers Troy Raynor and Jeff Lungsford allowed just six hits.

After the South took the lead with a run in the top of the first, the North evened the score as Ward walked and scored with the help of a passed ball and a wild pitch.

Ward put the North in control with a homer in the second for the game-winning RBI.

Knox' homer in the third put the North ahead 7-1, as the South managed a lone run in the fifth and two in the sixth.

The two teams play Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. to determine the championship.

Brian Barnes led Roanoke Rapids with three hits, while Ed Tant, Benji Arthur, Brian Edwards and Todd Lockamon had two each.

Scott Getsinger paced Coastal Plain North with two hits.

Coastal held a 4-0 lead after two innings, but Garris didn't give up a hit in the final five to record the victory.

Dickie Cherry and Duane Whittenburg paced the South with two hits each, while Robin Wells had the lone North hit in the fourth.

The South took control with four runs in the top of the first, as Bobby Buie and Battle Emory drew walks with the bases loaded. An error on a grounder by Huber allowed two more runs to cross the plate.

South added another run in the second as Chris Via singled in Hardee.

Hardee and Whittenburg earned an RBI each for bases-loaded walks in the third, and Buie drove in a run with a fielder's choice.

Coastal Plain South plays Roanoke Rapids tonight at 6 p.m. Roanoke Rapids can claim the title with a win, but there will be another game at 8 p.m. if the South takes the opener.

Lopez Closes Out Tiger Win

By The Associated Press

With the kind of standout relief pitching the Detroit Tigers are getting these days, Dave Rozema doesn't worry about finishing a game.

"Once I get through five innings with a lead, I think about Aurelio and I start to feel pretty safe," says Rozema.

His reference, of course, is to Aurelio Lopez, whose tough relief work Sunday helped the Tigers beat the Minnesota Twins 6-2. Lopez gave up but one single and struck out five in 3 2/3 innings to nail down the Detroit victory.

On Saturday night, Doug Bair and Willie Hernandez retired 19 of 20 batters in relief to help the Tigers win 6-5 in 12 innings. Combined with Lopez's effort Sunday, Tiger relievers retired 28 of the last 30 batters in the two games.

"Aurelio was hot," Rozema said. "He's got that super sinker to set them up, then he throws the smoke."

Yankees 4, Royals 1
Ray Fontenot scattered eight hits over 6 1/3 innings and Dave Winfield and Omar Moreno each drove in two runs as New York defeated Kansas City and completed a five-game sweep of the Royals.

Fontenot, 3-5, allowed only one run while striking out three and walking one. Jay Howell pitched 2 2/3 innings to register his third save.

Orioles 6, White Sox 4

Cal Ripken Jr., Eddie Murray and Wayne Gross hit homers to account for five Baltimore runs as the Orioles defeated Chicago behind the combined eight-hit pitching of Dennis Martinez and two relievers.

Ripken connected for his 18th homer off Richard Dotson, 11-5, in the first inning after John Shelby beat out a bunt single. Two pitches later, Murray clubbed his 19th.

Dotson, who had won four of five previous decisions, issued a two-out walk to John Lowenstein in the fifth and Gross followed with his 12th homer of the season and the 100th of his career.

Blue Jays 6, A's 3

Cliff Johnson walloped a pair of home runs, including a two-run shot in a five-run sixth, to power Toronto over Oakland.

Damaso Garcia led off the sixth with a homer, his third of the year, off Oakland starter Curt Young, 2-1. Lloyd Moseby was hit by a pitch and George Bell followed with a triple to score Moseby and knock Young out of the game.

Reliever Keith Atherton then gave up a two-run homer to Johnson, his seventh, for a 4-0 Toronto lead. One out later, Willie Upshaw hit his first home run in 21 games and 14th of the year to cap the rally.

Johnson hit his second homer of the game to start the eighth off Oakland's Chris Codiroli.

Major league leader Dave Kingman hit his 25th homer for Oakland.

Angels 7, Brewers 6

Bob Boone scored the winning run in the ninth by knocking the ball loose from catcher Bill Schroeder's glove to boost California over Milwaukee.

Boone had led off with a pinch single off Bob McClure, 2-5, and was sacrificed to second. After Gary Pettis was walked intentionally, pinch-hitter Juan Beniquez singled and Boone, who initially had stopped at third, was forced to go home when Pettis over-ran second and was caught in a rundown. Shortstop Robin Yount's throw to Schroeder was ahead of Boone, but Boone's forearm loosened the ball and he came in to score.

The Brewers rallied for four runs in the eighth to tie the score 6-6. Ted Simmons' three-run homer, his third, made it 6-5 and knocked out Angel starter Tommy John. Schroeder's fourth homer off Sanchez tied the score.

Red Sox 11, Mariners 3

Rich Gedman drove in four runs and Mike Easler had three RBI and four hits to power Boston past Seattle.

Gedman unloaded a two-run double off Seattle starter Jim Beattie, 9-9, to key a four-run Boston fourth inning. He belted a two-run homer, his 10th of the season, to cap a five-run seventh.

Easler belted a two-run homer in the fifth, his 19th this season and his third in the past four games. Easler also had an RBI double in the seventh.

Al Nipper, 3-3, pitched the first eight innings for the victory.

Indians 5, Rangers 4

Chris Bando led off the 11th inning with a tie-breaking home run to boost Cleveland over Texas.

The homer, Bando's fifth of the season, came on the first pitch in the inning from loser Odell Jones, 1-4. Before giving up the home run, Jones had pitched three scoreless innings after relieving in the eighth inning.

Reliever Ernie Camacho, 4-7, got the victory, working three innings for the Indians.

Ashby's 16th-Inning Single Gives Houston 3-2 Victory

By The Associated Press

The Houston Astros had plenty of chances to score. Finally, in the 16th inning, they did and they won.

Alan Ashby's one-out single drove in Jose Cruz from second base Sunday night, giving the Astros a 3-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies in 16 innings.

"I thought we would play until midnight," said winning pitcher Frank DiPino, 3-5, who worked one inning as Houston's fifth hurler. "We put a lot of guys on base, but we couldn't score any runs."

The Astros left 20 runners on base while receiving seven intentional walks, a major league record for an extra-inning game.

Braves 8, Mets 3

Claudell Washington drove in three runs with a homer, a double and a ground ball that broke a 3-3 tie in the seventh inning as the Braves snapped an eight-game Mets winning streak and cut their lead in the division to one-half game over the Cubs.

The only drawback to Washington's day was that he was hitting in the No. 3 spot in the order instead of his accustomed leadoff spot.

"I'd much rather be hitting in the first spot," Washington said. "As long as I keep having days like today, I guess I'll be there (third)."

"Claudell might have gotten over a plateau," Manager Joe Torre said. "He'll continue to bat third for a while."

Cubs 4, Dodgers 1

Dennis Eckersley and Lee Smith

combined on a seven-hitter, and Ryne Sandberg homered in Chicago's four-run seventh inning against Los Angeles, which has lost four of its last five. Eckersley yielded five hits in seven innings and struck out seven. Sandberg has 13 homers.

Franklin Stubbs' three-base error in center field also contributed to the Cubs' big inning against Fernando Valenzuela, 8-10. Eckersley is 3-5.

Pirates 9, Giants 3

Bill Madlock had five hits and Doug Frobel rapped a two-run homer that capped a six-run fifth inning as the Pirates won their sixth straight. John Tudor, 5-7, broke a five-game losing streak with a three-hitter. The victory was Tudor's first since June 3 when he beat Montreal 4-0.

Padres 6, Cardinals 1

Dave Dravecky, making his fourth start after 32 relief appearances, pitched a six-hitter, and San Diego scored five runs in the fourth inning to beat St. Louis. Alan Wiggins singled home two runs in the inning.

Dravecky, 7-4, didn't allow a run until the eighth when Lonnie Smith doubled, went to third on a fly ball and scored on a sacrifice fly by Tito Landrum.

San Diego sent nine batters to the plate in the fourth, during which St. Louis committed three errors, two by first baseman David Green on the same play.

Carmelo Martinez homered off Cardinals right-hander Kurt Kepshire, 1-1, in the third inning.

Reds 3, Expos 2

Jay Tibbs made his major league debut by pitching 7 2/3 innings of four-hit ball and got help from Ted Power to beat Montreal, ending an eight-game Cincinnati losing streak. Tibbs took a two-hitter into the eighth when Montreal scored on a single by Tim Raines, a passed ball, a grounder and Andre Dawson's single.

Tibbs, who was recalled from the minors on July 12, also gave up a seventh-inning homer to Mike Stenhouse.

has to be a change."

The most basic problem for the USFL is the decline — from 6.2 last year to 5.6 — in the ratings of the Sunday afternoon game of the week televised by ABC. As a result, the network refused to give the league more than the $15 million in rights fees for next year specified in the option of the contract signed two years ago.

Coupled with that is a reception in major markets ranging from frigid to lukewarm as people continued old habits of watching baseball or playing golf or tennis in the spring. The franchise in Chicago failed outright, Washington was sold and moved to Miami for next season, and the Los Angeles Express, laden with college stars signed by free-spending owner J. William Oldenburg, drew yawns — only 8,000 fans showed up at the 90,000-seat Coliseum for a playoff game that eventually went three overtimes.

Discussing change with USFL people usually means one of two things:

—A shift to a fall schedule, head-on against the National Football League. Between the lines, USFL people concede, is eventual merger — Eddie Einhorn, who picked up the pieces of Chicago's failed Blitz and is a proponent of the fall route, has made it no secret that he bought into the USFL so he could eventually get an NFL franchise.

—Play in the spring, with more midweek night games and fewer Sunday afternoon games, particularly when the weather gets warm and people head outdoors instead of sitting at home before a TV set.

"I'm unusual, I believe in playing by the rules," says Philadelphia owner Miles Tannebaum, one of the backers of spring football. "I played by the rules and built a good team and I think the league should go by

That doesn't mean the USFL won't sign a Herschel Walker here, a Mike Rozier there, a Cris Collinsworth somewhere else. But USFL owners now talk more about imposing team salary caps during negotiations with the league's new players' union and the word for the week about money was "prudent."

So when Ronnie Lott, star cornerback of the San Francisco 49ers, showed up here to offer himself to the USFL in hopes of playing off the USFL against the 49ers, there were few cries of "Hallelujah, another star!"

"These salaries are killing us," moaned Philadelphia General Manager Carl Peterson, architect of the league's most successful team, who said of Lott: "they're trading him around like a piece of meat."

Added Tannenbaum, whose team combines key high-priced players like Kelvin Bryant and Pete Kugler with a nucleus of journeymen and didn't choose Tech or Virginia since I was at a Virginia school. So I figured if I was going to State that maybe I should be in a North Carolina high school."

Despite the move, rumors began circulating about a car and there was talk of academic difficulties. Fueling the talk was the fact that North Carolina didn't join in the recruiting battle for Washburn's services.

There have been disciplinary problems, but officials at Hickory, Fork Union and Laurinburg say the problems are minor.

There are generally thought to be three camps within the league: pro-spring, pro-fall, and the fence-sitters, waiting for the two studies commissioned by the league to determine the most economically rewarding time to play.

Donald Trump, owner of the New Jersey Generals and the most vocal advocate of a fall schedule, says the breakdown is 12-6 for the fall, but others say it's more like 5-5-8, with the largest group the one on the fence.

Change for the USFL also means less spending, back to the policy of selective signings rather than all-out war. Oldenburg, the man with the freest wallet, will probably be gone — his financial empire is reportedly under question by a federal grand jury and the Express is openly seeking buyers.

In fact, it is the USFL people — while conceding they started the spiral — who are now complaining about spending by the NFL, which has signed a half-dozen USFL players, none of them stars, for what the new league considers exorbitant salaries. That has also led the USFL to threaten a lawsuit to keep those players out of NFL camps this summer — their USFL contracts don't expire until Nov. 30.

What will come of all this?

The best guess is a switch to fall, if not in 1985, then by 1986 or 1987 after it's determined whether to sit out a year or play two consecutive seasons. Even the holdouts for spring football aren't total diehards.

"If I see a study that tells me I can make more money switching to the fall," says Tannenbaum, "I'll be the first one to switch."

Cable Networks Will Provide Full Coverage Of Convention

By FRED ROTHENBERG

AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Even before the opening of the Democratic National Convention, debate began on the non-political issue of gavel-to-gavel television coverage, which can be seen only on cable TV's Cable News Network and C-SPAN.

"We're not an entertainment network that only spends part of its program time on news," said Bob Funnad, political director of the Cable News Network. "We're a full-time news service, and this is a major news event. ... We'll show events unfolding live, instead of recapping them at the end of the day."

"Our basic theory is that the procedural stuff is not that interesting, and that's the stuff we won't be carrying live," said Joan Richman, a CBS vice president and executive producer for the network's political coverage.

Four years ago, CNN was just one month old when it took its cameras to the Republican Convention in Detroit. Planning was minimal, and CNN's anchor booth wasn't even enclosed by glass. No matter how cogent CNN's patter was, it couldn't be heard whenever the Republicans struck up their band.

Now, with a service reaching one-third of the nation's TV homes, CNN is a real alternative, whether the networks are in or out of convention coverage.

C-SPAN, the public affairs network that normally trains its cameras on the daily workings of Congress, will combine non-stop coverage of the convention hall proceedings with reports on how the local San Francisco media are reporting the day's major events.

"We're interested in trying to fill in the blanks, providing the backbone of the coverage," said C-SPAN president Brian Lamb.

The networks, all of which went with the full convention treatment four years ago, have scaled down their coverage for 1984. CBS and NBC have always done gavel-to-gavel coverage. ABC had abbreviated coverage in 1968, 1972 and 1976.

The networks now believe that only by limiting live coverage to prime time can the wheat be separated from the chaff.

"The conventions have operated with the same four-day schedules, with the same events as 40 years ago," said Ms. Richman. "The real heart of the process — picking a nominee with the primaries — has changed very radically."

The networks will have their cameras whirring for the earlier nuts-and-bolts activities, taping them for later showing or cutting into other programs when events warrant. Ms. Richman said CBS' convention budget has been pared from its 1980 level, but she won't say by how much.

NBC's John Chancellor, who was co-anchor with David Brinkley in 1980 and now will be providing analysis, said viewers never needed wall-to-wall coverage. "With videotape, they won't miss anything," he said.

Anchor Dan Rather, who will usher in the post-Walter Cronkite convention era for CBS, agreed, even though, on principle, he still advocates more comprehensive coverage as "part of the dance of democracy."

Celebration Cost State $13 Million

RALEIGH (AP) — Celebrating the anniversary of the first English voyages to America, the state has spent more than $13 million to spruce up what 400 years of post-settlement civilization has done to the old colony.

"What happened over the past few years is that the rest of North Carolina got a chance to see the area," said Marc Basnight of Manteo, a former Board of Transportation member who helped push road improvements in the town. "It was worth it to North Carolina. We didn't need the 400th but it helped North Carolina."

The spending was sparked by last weekend's celebration of the 400th anniversary of the landing of the first English explorers to Roanoke Island in 1584.

North Carolina hurried paving, landscaping and other improvements to the coastal area around the island so it would be ready when England's Princess Anne arrived Friday.

New additions to the landscape included more than $170,000 worth of trees, a $675,000 bridge and new paving for the streets of Manteo, the town lying north on Roanoke Island. Highway Administrator Billy Rose, of the state transportation department, said most of the money would have been spent in rural eastern North Carolina, though not as quickly.

Most of the money came from Rose's department at the urging of Basnight, who is running for North Carolina Senate.

The centerpiece for the 400th anniversary is a $1.4 million historic site and visitors' center on Ice Plant Island across from the Manteo waterfront. The Department of Cultural Resources is responsible for the center's construction and operation, said Chancy Kapp, a department spokesman.

To provide access to the site, the transportation department built 400-foot, $675,000 bridge, recently named after Basnight's mother, Cora Mae Daniels Basnight.

The department's total costs for construction and other items came to $1,043,000, said Don Morton, a roadway design engineer. The costs included $158,000 to dredge a channel around the island. The bridge blocked passage to boats on the

IN THE STATE

Manteo side, so a new channel around the other side of Ice Plant Island had to be created, he said.

Other improvements include:

- Building a $2 million welcome center in Kitty Hawk, which is under construction, and sprucing up a highway rest area in Manteo.

- Spending about $1.2 million for street repaving, sidewalks and guttering in Manteo.

- Repaving and widening a 15-mile stretch of U.S. 158 between Kitty Hawk and Whalebone, at a cost of $6 million. The project got a boost from the 400th anniversary, which continues through 1987, marking the birth of Virginia Dare, the first English child born in the New World.

- Widening another section of U.S. 158 near Nags Head also got a 400th push, and $951,000, from the highway department.

- Deploying three highway maintenance crews to grade road shoulders and ditches for a more aesthetic entrance to Manteo, between Croatan and Manteo sounds. The grading cost about $200,000, after which the state planted $170,000 in crape myrtles and oaks.

Not included in those costs was dredging an abandoned channel in Shallowbag Bay, near the Manteo harbor. The $500,000 dredging project could occur this fall, said John Norris of the N.C. Department of Natural Resources and Community Development.

The dredging is needed to get the Elizabeth II out of Manteo harbor. The ship, modeled after a 16th century merchant vessel, was built for the 400th anniversary with more than $700,000 in private donations.

The ship needs 8 feet of water, however, and parts of the channel are only 6 feet deep. So it can't sail to other coastal locations to celebrate the English arrival unless the channel out of Manteo Harbor is dredged.

Jim Hunt May Get Convention Notice

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt may be in the spotlight of the Democratic National Convention this week as a drafter of a controversial delegate-selection plan and challenger to Republican Sen. Jesse Helms.

California Lt. Gov. Leo McCarthy and his wife, Jackie, are hosting a $500-a-person cruise around the San Francisco Bay to build Hunt's campaign war chest. Actor Hal Linden will be the special guest on the yacht.

There also is a Los Angeles luncheon at Jimmy's Restaurant on behalf of Hunt as the convention ends.

Hunt campaign co-chairman Gary Pearce said Hunt is not planning to take a "real active" role at the convention.

"I don't know if he'll be speaking," Pearce said. "He will not be nominating or seconding (a nomination)."

But David Price, state Democratic Party chairman, said there are a number of speaking roles Hunt could fill.

"Gov. Hunt will be sought out because of the Senate race and his leadership on key issues," Price said, citing the commission that drafted convention rules and Hunt's efforts nationally to improve education.

Hunt is challenging Helms' bid for a third term in a race some have called the most important outside of the presidential race.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford says he has walked a tightrope as Duke University president not to get too involved in politics.

But without his consent and before it was known that Walter Mondale changed his mind again on Sunday, some North Carolina delegates to the Democratic National convention prematurely promoted Sanford for the party's national committee chairman.

"I am careful to be active as a citizen not as president of Duke," Sanford said, adding that it would be "utterly impossible" for him to accept the job while he still has one year before retiring as Duke's president.

"To be a political participant wouldn't do," he said. "I wouldn't do it if I were free."

On the eve of the opening of the party's national convention and in a quick turn of events, Democratic National Committee Chairman Charles Manatt originally ousted from his post by Mondale, was reinstated to quell an outburst of opposition.

Delegates supporting Sanford had admitted their last-minute suggestion could get lost in a flurry of politics.

North Carolina delegates promoting Sanford for the job included Wallace Hyde, a member of the Mondale campaign's national board of directors, Bill Belk of Charlotte, national president of the Young Democrats Club, and Betty Speir of Bethel, state Democratic Party vice chairman.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A majority of North Carolina's delegates to the Democratic National Convention is white-collar workers, but nearly half are women and almost one-third are black.

"In recent years we have had a vigorous affirmative action effort," said David Price, state Democratic Party chairman. "We have surpassed our goals in terms of minority representation (this year)."

An Associated Press survey shows that, of the 88 delegates, 28 are black. The group includes Charlotte Mayor Harvey Gantt, LaVonia Allison of Durham, who helped lead the Rev. Jesse Jackson's presidential campaign in the state, and former Raleigh Mayor Clarence Lightner.

All 16 Jackson delegates are black but there also are 10 Mondale delegates who are black, one Hart delegate, and Gantt is uncommitted.

More than one-half of the delegates have white-collar jobs including attorneys, funeral home directors, store owners, cable television executives, ministers and nurses.

The delegates have a variety of occupations but most of them work in offices or schools.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — On the even of the Democratic National Convention, North Carolina's delegates turned their attention to political parties — the kind where public officials sip wine and sample the local fare.

But they were not alone.

The San Francisco Convention '84 Host Committee sponsored 57 receptions Sunday night, one for each state or territory attending the convention.

North Carolinians could stroll across the street from their downtown hotel to an art gallery where a guitarist played, wine flowed and modern French art was the backdrop.

A group of Gary Hart supporters left early for a party on a larger scale — a concert for Hart featuring singer Carole King.

Delegates including Betty Speir of Bethel, state party vice chairman, mingled with the media, too. Mrs. Speir said she got a pleasant surprise after the Time Inc. cocktail party when she hopped in one of the increasingly scarce taxis to share a ride with Mike Farrell of the television series "M.A.S.H."

LAKE JUNALUSKA, N.C. (AP) — Two North Carolina clergymen are among the 21 candidates for bishop already nominated by annual conferences of United Methodists or recommended by caucuses in the Southeastern Jurisdiction.

On Tuesday, 576 voting delegates from Southeastern states will meet in a nine-state sessions at the Methodist assembly ground, Lake Junaluska.

The delegates will consider the Rev. Ernest A. Fitzgerald of Greensboro and the Rev. Joseph P. Bethea of Raleigh. Both are considered strong contenders.

Fitzgerald is pastor of West Market Street United Methodist Church, Bethea, administrative assistant to the bishop of the North Carolina Conference, could become the first black bishop elected by the Southeastern Jurisdiction.

Among the six bishops retiring are Bishop L. Scott Allen of Charlotte, who presides over the Western North Carolina Conference, and Bishop William R. Cannon of Raleigh, who presides over the state's eastern half, the North Carolina Conference.

Balloting will begin at 2 p.m. Tuesday and continue until all six are elected. Any active Methodist clergyman who is an ordained elder is eligible. No formal nomination or endorsement is necessary.

New bishops are not assigned to the district from which they were elected.

Couple Exchanges Vows Aboard Ship

WILMINGTON (AP) — Regina Hilton says she wanted to marry Rick Christian on a ship because she's different.

Miss Hilton and Christian, both of Kingsport, Tenn., were married Saturday afternoon aboard the USS North Carolina.

At first, Miss Hilton said, the couple wanted to be married on a cruise ship, but it turned out to be too complicated.

"At first I thought the captain could marry us," she said. But she learned that is just a myth.

So she said they settled on a battleship and the USS North Carolina was the nearest one.

At 4 p.m., the couple and a few relatives stood on the bow, beneath the forward turret of three 16-inch guns. Frank Conlon, director of the battleship memorial, escorted the bride while her sister's husband, Marine Sgt. Chris Blair sang, accompanied by a tape player.

The Rev. John A. Phillips, associate minister of First Baptist Church in Wilmington, officiated. The couple exchanged wedding vows while a curious crowd of tourists looked on, some from as far away as France and Japan, some snapping photographs.

They finished the short ceremony as a gathering thunderstorm rumbled to the west and set off for a honeymoon in Myrtle Beach, S.C.
