Ferraro In By Acclamation

Mondale Promises Tax Increase, Deficit Cuts

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — With Geraldine Ferraro his ticket mate by his party's shouted acclamation, Walter Mondale is running for president on promises to "stop the illegal war in Nicaragua," meet the Soviets once a year, slash the deficit — and raise taxes.

Accepting his party's nomination, Mondale launched his uphill battle for office from the rostrum of a Democratic National Convention that finally achieved unity — over his choice of a woman as vice presidential partner.

Ms. Ferraro's nomination Thursday night was approved by unanimous, long, loud shout.

Even when she said no more than, "My name is Geraldine Ferraro," the 3,934 delegates shouted themselves hoarse.

Democrats gave Mondale the harmony he needed if he is to have a chance against President Reagan. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who four years ago failed to wrest the nomination from incumbent Jimmy Carter and then avoided the nominee's embrace on the podium, delivered a rousing introduction for Mondale.

"By his choice of Geraldine Ferraro," Kennedy said, "Walter Mondale has already done more for this country in one short day than Ronald Reagan has done in four long years."

Then Mondale came out fighting.

He accused President Reagan of keeping his proposals for solving America's problems secret, just as Democrats used to claim Richard Nixon did with his "secret plan to end the war" in Vietnam.

"If this administration has a plan for a better future," said Mondale, "they're keeping it a secret."

He said the next president — whether he or Reagan — will have to raise taxes, an unusual concession. Most politicians shun such talk.

"Taxes will go up, and anyone who says they won't is not telling the truth to the American people," Mondale said. The differences between himself and Reagan, he said, are that he is willing to admit to the tax increase now and he would raise taxes "fairly." He did not say by how much.

A Reagan adviser, Stuart Spencer, said today on the "CBS Morning News" that he didn't know what the president planned to do about taxes.

"Historically, Ronald Reagan fights taxes, he opposes taxes and he's going to keep taxes low," Spencer said. "As for a statement ... like that of Vice President Mondale, I've never heard a politician say he's going to raise taxes in the campaign."

Spencer also said, "The message we get from this convention is that Fritz Mondale has decided that he is going to run as a liberal, take the liberal mandate."

Mondale promised, if elected, to end within 100 days of taking office the United States' covert but well-known involvement in attempts to overthrow the leftist government of Nicaragua. He proposed to meet with the Soviets annually, to cut the deficit by two-thirds, and he said he would like to see the states ratify the Equal Rights Amendment by the end of his first term.

Thus started the fall's campaign. Reagan and George Bush will be renominated next month in Dallas. Bush already has agreed in principle to debates against Ms. Ferraro, and Mondale challenged Reagan to debate him. Reagan has said he is willing to.

"Americans want the truth about the future — not after the election, but now," Mondale said.

Outside the convention hall, police in riot gear arrested 369 demonstrators in various protests around the city. The demonstrators were marching in opposition to 87 arrests earlier Thursday during protests against several large corporations. Most of the arrests were for unlawful assembly.

Today, the Democratic team goes its separate ways, after jointly attending the traditional unity meeting of the party's National Committee.

Some party officials are smarting over Mondale's decision last weekend — quickly reversed — to drop Charles Manatt as national party chairman and with his selection of Georgia banker Bert Lance

Sunbird Airlines Purchased

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Two brothers with Greenville ties have negotiated the purchase of Sunbird Airlines, a commuter airline which serves Greenville from its base of operations at Little Mountain Airport at Denver, N.C.

Roy Hagerty, a 1967 graduate of Rose High School, and his older brother Harry Hagerty Jr., a Washington, D.C. stockbroker, have entered an agreement for the purchase of the commuter airline from Air Transportation Holding Co., which operates Sunbird and Mountain Air Cargo, an air-freight service.

Completion of the purchase of the airline by the corporation formed by the brothers is subject to the approval "by the necessary authorities," Hugh Bingham, executive vice president of the airline, said this morning. He added that Air Transportation will retain 20 percent of the new corporation.

Bingham said Roy Hagerty, Sunbird president since April, will continue in that position.

The Hagertys are sons of Harry E. Hagerty, former Greenville city manager and former chairman of the Greenville Utilities Commission.

Sunbird Airlines began operations as an outgrowth of Mountain Air Cargo in November 1979 with one airplane serving four cities in North Carolina.

When Sunbird began commuter service to Pitt-Greenville Airport in August 1980, the airline was serving 10 other cities in North Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia five days each week.

Hunt Lawyer Preparing Suit

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Former state Supreme Court Justice J. Phil Carlton, Gov. Jim Hunt's personal attorney, says he's preparing "appropriate papers for a lawsuit" against a newspaper that published rumors about Hunt's personal life.

The Landmark, a Chapel Hill-based free circulation tabloid, printed an apology and retraction Thursday, but Carlton said it was inadequate.

In its July 5 issue, the Landmark printed an article containing what the publication called rumors that Hunt had a girlfriend in his office and had had a male lover. The article said no attempt had been made to verify the rumors.

Hunt, in a letter to editor Bob Windsor, demanded "a full and fair retraction" of the "defamatory statements."

Windsor apologized to Hunt in a

July 7 news conference and offered Hunt space in his paper to respond, but Hunt declined the offer.

On Thursday, in the first issue since July 5, The Landmark carried a front-page statement saying it "corrects, retracts and apologizes to Jim Hunt ..." The statement included an apology to Hunt's wife and family.

Another story on the page with the retraction said The Landmark might sue Hunt, his U.S. Senate campaign committee, one of his political supporters, a newspaper and a television station "for slander."

Yet another front-page story criticized the governor for mailing the demand for a retraction using a state postage meter. In a small box at the bottom of the page were the words: "Jim Hunt Countdown 164 Days till Retirement."

Carlton said he had not talked with Hunt after seeing Thursday's issue of The Landmark. He said Hunt, who was in San Francisco for the Democratic National Convention, empowered him before leaving to decide whether to file suit.

Carlton said he did not know when or in which court the libel suit would be filed or the amount of damages he would seek.

"You have research to do, you have an investigation to conduct," he said. "I have no timetable."

The statute of limitations requires that libel suits be filed within one year of the date on which the material in question was published.

Windsor could not be reached for comment Thursday. A woman who answered the telephone at The Landmark office said she would ask him to return a call.

An unsigned article inside the paper said The Landmark would "not be held hostage to a threat of a lawsuit...I made a mistake and was man enough to admit it."

IDENTIFY JEWELRY AND BOX

A jewelry box with a large amount of costume jewelry in it has been recovered by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department. It is believed that this box and its contents were stolen in November or December, 1983. The owner is asked to call Ivan Harris, Sheriff Department chief investigator, 752-3312, and describe.

USHERS ASKED

Dawn Bailey, house manager for the East Carolina Summer Theatre, has asked for ushers for the tonight and tomorrow night productions of "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" and next week's "The 1940's Radio Hour." Women are asked to wear dresses and men should wear suits. Ushers are required to be at the theatre by 7 p.m. and will be able to see the plays free of charge. Interested persons should sign up for one night at the Messick Arts Center on the ECU campus.

Rouse Appeals Ruling

Jim Rouse, Democratic candidate for Pitt County commissioner, has appealed his earlier Superior Court contention that Charles P. Gaskins, incumbent county commissioner was illegally elected as the Democratic candidate for the Greenville Township seat on the county commissioners for the Nov. 6 election.

The court has ruled against Rouse, as did the State Board of Elections previously. Rouse's most recent appeal will go to the N.C. Court of Appeals. In the meantime, however, based on a recent law which says that the rulings of the State Board of Elections will be in force until such time as appeals are completed, Gaskins has been certified the duly nominated Democratic candidate for county commissioner. The certification of Gaskins as the primary winner was made July 16. Rouse's appeal is dated July 13, according to a copy in the office of the N.C. attorney general. Jim Wallace, a deputy attorney general, said the certification is in order, as is Rouse's appeal.

For Makeup Artist Candace Carell, Actors, Politicos All In Day's Work

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Senior Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Presidents, kings, first ladies and stars of Broadway, movies and television all have known the magic touch of Candace Carell.

She is a makeup artist on the staff of "The David Letterman Show" (NBC-TV) and also a freelance.

She could tell you about individual problem faces she has made ready for public appearances, but she won't. She will tell you in this presidential year that "all candidates are very conscious of the image they project."

She once "did" the face of Sen. Gary Hart for a television appearance from Washington and found "he needed very little makeup." She hasn't done Jesse Jackson, Walter Mondale or President Reagan.

But for television appearances she did the First Family daughters of Maureen Reagan and Patti Davis.

She has seen the bare faces of former President Jimmy Carter and his family, the Kennedys (she flew to Hyannisport, Mass., to make up members of the wedding of one of the daughters), the Rockefellers, former first lady Betty Ford ("Just a little help around the eyes and mouth. She's a very sweet woman"), Bob Dylan, Shelley Winters, Lauren Bacall ("That's a splendid face"), and King Hussein of Jordan.

The Jordanian ruler was on a televised news show and she found him "very gracious." The only problem — "When you're dealing with heads of state, you're working under Secret Service scrutiny."

Miss Carell said that she's found men are increasingly vain. "I believe all the bronzers of makeup are a factor. Women are vain too but they're accustomed to their faces."

Miss Carell, a striking silver blond, said that most of the time, makeup for the camera is little more than using "various bases to highlight. But I've dealt with baldness, liver spots and scars."

She has done faces for such Broadway productions as "Jesus Christ Superstar" and one of her pets is "Cats."

"I designed 22 faces for the regular cast plus six understudies," she said. "The makeup is so elaborate, sometimes six and seven layers, that at first it would take an hour to put on, then worry about removing. I used plain Pond's cold cream."

She also designed the makeup for the musical company now in Washington and will repeat for the cast of another company to open in Los Angeles in the fall.

The makeup artist originally planned a career on the concert stage as a pianist. A native of Ft. Lee, N.J., she studied at the Juilliard School of Music in Manhattan and became interested in makeup while participating in opera theater there.

She turned professional after the three years of apprenticeship required by the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees union.

Most people look to makeup to let them be themselves, she said. They don't want a lot of gook.

Good health plays a major role in skin care, she said. Look to the weather also. In fall and winter, your skin gets drier, so you need a moisturizer. In summer, for most skins the rule is less makeup and some tan instead. "Find your good points," she said. "Everyone has them. Then work from there."

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

Restaurant Manager Used Poor Judgement

DEAR ABBY: Recently while eating at a restaurant I have always favored, about halfway through my dinner I found a long hair in my food.

I called the waitress, showed it to her, and removed it in her presence. By that time I had lost my appetite. She said she wouldn't charge me for the meal, which cost $5.50. A few minutes later she returned to say her boss said she could take off only $2.75 because I'd already eaten half the meal!

Not wanting to cause a fuss, I accepted the $2.75 discount and let it go at that.

I think it was tacky of the restaurant to credit me with only half the meal because I'd eaten half of it, don't you?

How do you think the restaurant should have handled it? Also, how should I have handled it?

EX-CUSTOMER

DEAR EX: I think the boss used poor judgment. He saved $2.75 but lost a customer. You should have been given a complimentary meal. They blew it. You handled it properly.

crime to have been married before.) And to ask your parents and family not to mention it would also be wrong.

DEAR ABBY: This is regarding the animal lover who wrote to say that wherever she went, animals—and even wild birds—seemed to sense her love for them and instinctively came to her.

I don't doubt her story, but how do you explain this? I would never abuse an animal, but I don't particularly care for them. However, wherever I go, they seem magnetically drawn to me.

For example, I went to a friend's home for a barbecue supper recently. There were about 50 people there, but my friend's dog, with no encouragement from me, followed me around all evening. I ignored him but I couldn't get rid of him.

Another time I was a guest in the home of a man who had a cat. The cat kept rubbing against my ankle, so I picked it up and placed it on the lap of a woman I know is a great cat lover. No sooner had I sat down, when the cat jumped off her lap and came running back to me.

I've also heard that animals "know" who likes them and who doesn't. How do you account for this?

CALIFORNIA MAGNET

DEAR MAGNET: Animals, I'm told, are endowed with a "sixth sense" that enables them to distinguish between dangerous and life-threatening situations and safe and non-threatening ones.

Apparently, you project an aura of love, kindness and security. Animals sensing this are drawn to you instinctively. Even though you don't particularly like animals and your magnetism is meant for people, these animals assumed that it included them.

So humankind, rejoice! The old saying "You can't fool all of the people all of the time" doesn't hold true for animals.

Certain ... Things

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

Giving directions is a national pastime in this country. Some people do it better than others.

Invariably, I get the ones who use the compass for orientation. Everything is either East, West, North or South.

They're weird people who believe the sun ALWAYS comes up in the East and sets in the west with no room for debate. As children, they were the Scouts who read the moss on the trees and wanted a sextant for Christmas.

To me, East is always off my right hand and West is always to my left. North is wherever I am facing and South is back where I can't see it without turning around.

I have never liked the people who give me directions and add, "Trust me." They're the ones who direct you to go over a bridge that was washed out last week or down a dirt road with signs that read, "DEAD END," "DO NOT ENTER," "TURN BACK," "UNLAWFUL TO GO BEYOND THIS POINT," "NUCLEAR TESTING."

And who among us has not been at the mercy of an enthusiastic direction-giver who ends with, "You can't miss it." They're the people who tell you more than anyone has a right to know. Like, "Turn right at the construction site on one corner, a pizza parlor on the other that used to be a car wash, a dog boutique on the left side of the traffic light and a bar on the fourth corner with lights that flash '50 Girls 50,' 'FISH FRY EVERY FRI. All you can eat.' Then go 3.5 miles and hang a right, turn left and go .8 of a mile to three tall elms that when silhouetted look like a side view of Jacques Cousteau ... his special on the Amazon is not to be missed ... anyway, keep going until you see this dog curled by the side of the road. I think it's a basset ... female, spayed. She's always asleep ... and there behind the phone booth is a road and you can see the house from there. You can't miss it!"

The map makers are the worst. They too rely on the position of the sun to get your bearings. I not only do not know which direction to turn a map to get to the starting point, I once told my husband as the sun baked his left arm banging out of the car window, "Don't worry. On the way back, you can get your other arm tan."

Our house happens to be tricky to get to. We used to give directions. We always ended up walking down to the main road and throwing our bodies in front of their headlights. We don't give directions anymore. We tell them, "Get a cab, agree on a set price and live with the fact you can miss it. If you get lost ... don't call, we'll try it again sometime."

Mondale Collects His Investment

Using Restraint

American motorists have until 1990 before a federal Transportation Department order requiring automatic occupant restraints in all new cars is slated to go into effect.

Reduced to the basics, it goes like this:

Auto manufacturers have been told that within just over two years they will have to put passive restraints into at least 10 percent of their fleet, and the number of cars affected will increase each year thereafter until all cars come under the regulation.

(We have heard one estimate that air bags — the preferred restraint — could raise the cost of automobiles up to $500.)

There is one chancy escape hatch.

If the manufacturers and public want to avoid the new restraints, a certain number of states must pass laws requiring motorists to use seat belts already in cars. If that sounds easy, think again.

Only New York has a mandatory seat belt-use law in place. At least another 16 states would have to pass such laws within five years. The question has been argued for years in several states without success. The air bag debate has been going on since 1969.

There will be court tests of the Transportation Department order; and, presuming it survives that hurdle, legislatures get their turn. Legislatures traditionally do not like to be hurried.

Insurance industry sources think the federal standard will prevail.

All this, and more, could have been avoided if the motoring public had paid more than lip service to the value of seat belts.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — As Walter F. Mondale said, he's paid his Democratic dues. At long last, he is collecting on the investment.

He accepted his hard-won presidential nomination Thursday night in the grand finale of the Democratic National Convention, a loyal soldier of the liberal establishment, now in command.

"I come to you today because I've paid my dues," Mondale told a caucus of black delegates on Wednesday. "I've paid my dues."

But an early campaign strategy built around long service, past favors and old loyalties almost proved his undoing, for it left him vulnerable in a party that was changing all around him.

Sen. Gary Hart spotted the opening, and seized the opportunity. He battled Mondale to the end, taunted him to the eve of the nomination. "The nomination of this party is not a gold watch to be given out for faithful service," Hart said.

In his front-running days, the cautious man from Minnesota didn't see it coming. He campaigned at first as though he not only had earned the nomination but as though he already had it. He acted as though his seven challengers were an inconvenience, not real threats.

The Democratic trenches were not for him; he was the front-runner by far, and he would spend the primary election season campaigning against the real target — President Reagan.

He'd been the logical, leading Democrat since Sen. Edward M. Kennedy took himself off the list of prospects on Dec. 1, 1982. Mondale methodically collected endorsements from governors, senators, House members, mayors. The AFL-CIO endorsed him for the nomination.

Those were boom times, on paper. It was all over but the voting. Then the bust, for the voters did not follow his script, and suddenly the front-runner was a loser. Sen. Gary Hart trounced Mondale in the New Hampshire presidential primary on Feb. 26.

The front-runner strategy no longer fit. Mondale would have to earn the right to campaign against Reagan by confronting his Democratic rivals head-on. He said he had erred by not doing so in the first place.

The comeback was slow, agonizing and expensive. Narrow primary election victories that would have been a disaster for the old Mondale were good enough for the new Mondale.

Ironically, the big labor endorsement that had seemed such a boon became a problem as Mondale's opponents cast him as a candidate too beholden to too many interest groups.

But Mondale managed, where front-runners before had fallen not only from the lead but from the field. The classic case was that of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie in 1972. Muskie, rated far ahead of the field, took some early setbacks and dropped from contention. No candidate before had started so high, fallen so fast, and recovered as Mondale did.

"It wasn't easy," Mondale said Wednesday. "It was tough."

It left scars, for all the pledges of unity sounded by Hart and Jesse Jackson.

Scream

Archie Bunker was sitting in his home in Astoria, Long Island, when he saw the news on television that Mondale had chosen Geraldine Ferraro as his running mate. He let out a scream and Edith came rushing in from the kitchen.

"What is it, Archie?" Edith asked.

"That meathead Mondale has put our Congresswoman Geraldine Ferraro on his ticket as V.P."

"Isn't that nice," Edith said. "You would say that. She's one of your people."

"I'm not Italian, Archie. I don't mean Eytalian. I got nothing against Eytalians. I mean one of your people — a woman."

"It's about time," Edith said. "What does a dame know about running the United States of America?"

"What does a man know about it?"

"The vice presidency of the United States has always been reserved for a male. The founding fathers of the Constitution wanted it that way."

"There is nothing in the Constitution that says a woman can't be vice president."

"That's because at the time it was written no one in his right mind could imagine a meathead presidential candidate choosing one. But I'll bet you if you took a poll of the great men who signed the Declaration of Independence, they would have said 'No women vice presidents or we give the country back to England.'"

Edith replied, "Mrs. Ferraro is a very smart lady. I rang doorbells for her when she was campaigning for congresswoman."

"You pushed one doorbell too many, and now look what we've got. A mother of three who could be a heartbeats away from the presidency."

Edith was losing her temper. "We represent more than half the vote and we belong in the seat of power."

"That's the way your people always think. I knew we was in serious trouble when them women liberators was allowed to march in the street without the cops shooting tear gas at them."

"I wish you'd stop referring to women as my people," Edith said.

"All right. I'll call them by their right name — dingbats."

"Archie, you have no right to call a woman vice presidential candidate a dingbat."

"Why not? It's a free country, isn't it? Well, I'll say one thing. Since Mrs. Ferraro represents Astoria and Jackson Heights, she at least knows something about the Third World."

"That's not very funny, Archie. You should be proud that someone from our own district is running for vice president of the United States. Whether she wins or loses she's broken the mold once and for all."

Gloria, Archie's daughter, came rushing in breathlessly. "Mommy, did you hear the news? Mondale chose a woman right here from Queens."

Archie said, "Another dingbat. They're all coming out of the woodwork."

"What's the matter with Daddy?" Gloria said to Edith.

"He's upset because Mondale chose one of our people as his running mate."

"One of our people?" Gloria said. "Are we related to Mrs. Ferraro?"

"No, your father is referring to our sex."

"I can't believe it, Daddy. You're living in the stone age."

"Edith is taking my remarks out of context. I got nothing against a woman running a country as long as she stays in India."

What It's All About

WASHINGTON — At the opening of San Francisco's Moscone Center in 1981, a local mime troupe almost spoiled the inaugural festivities by portraying Mayor Dianne Feinstein and other local Democratic politicians as pawns of the city's business community.

Though their intended targets seemed unshaken, the mimes had directed a still unanswered question at the Democratic Party: What did it represent? Three years later, as the Democrats gathered in the Moscone Center for their national convention, the question has gained an ironic twist.

That is because the Moscone Center rests in the heart of what was once San Francisco's working man's quarter. For nearly a quarter-century, the so-called "South of Market" area was a Democratic neighborhood populated mostly by single men who lived in residential hotels and worked at nearby docks, warehouses and factories.

Novelist Jack London, a native of "South of Market," took note of the neighborhood and the line between the haves and have-nots in his story, "South of the Slot."

"North of the Slot were the theaters, hotels and shopping districts, the banks and the staid, respectable business houses," he wrote. "South of the Slot were the factories, slums, laundries, machine shops, boiler workers, and the abodes of the working class."

"South of Market Street" remained true to Jack London's portrait until the early 1970s, when the city's powerful business interests fulfilled a 15-year dream by clearing the area of its 4,000 residents and 700-plus businesses to make way for Moscone Center and other related developments.

While local politicians sought to portray "South of Market" residents as mere transients, city surveyors revealed that those transients were, in fact, quite sedentary. More than half of them had lived in the same neighborhood for at least six years, and a third had lived there for 10 years.

More than a decade's worth of court battles enabled a neighborhood organization, Tenants and Owners in Opposition to Redevelopment (TOOR), to secure housing for a third of its residents. But legal victories did not protect the other two-thirds, nor save "South of Market's" advantages. The residents, after all, had lost their old community and were forced to pay higher rents at new residences.

"The Transformation of San Francisco" is the subject and title of a new book by Chester Hartman, a Harvard-educated city planner. What Hartman describes is how San Francisco's businessmen and Democratic politicians cooperated in altering a neighborhood and how its residents fought back. The book is important because what happened to "South of Market" has happened to districts in other cities.

"The sense of scale is breaking down, along with the disappearance of sunlight and replacement of breezes with winds downtown," writes Hartman. "Diversity is disappearing; niches where idiosyncratic residential and commercial life can flourish are becoming hard to find; segregation by neighborhoods, classes, and races is increasing. There is a pervasive sense that much of what is good in San Francisco is on its way out."

Too often, Hartman reports in his book, Democratic party officials in San Francisco did not stand on behalf of the public interest against the demands of local business. Historically, what has distinguished the Democratic Party from the Republican Party has been the Democrats' commitment to compensate those in any way injured by special interests.

In recent years, however, the Democrats have tarnished their reputation by advocating economic policies that often mirror those of the Republicans. The 1984 Democratic party platform, for example, bemoans the plight of displaced citizens but also demands new industrial development in urban areas. It doesn't say what should be done to care for the displaced.

Similarly, Mayor Feinstein's views of housing policy illustrate how big-city Democrats have edged closer to the likes of Ronald Reagan. Feinstein contends that developers will build rental housing even without regulations that would force them to. The mayor doesn't mention, however, that new housing is offered at astronomical rates or that the high demand for housing has prevented the flow of older units to poorer families.

While Mondale-and-Ferraro supporters celebrate their "historic ticket" this week, they'd do well to remember the non-rich of San Francisco and elsewhere who are fast becoming part of a permanent underclass in America. They are, after all, what the Democratic Party used to be all about.

Strength For Today

How do you live — successfully, or significantly?

There is a difference. The man who makes a million dollars is financially successful; but is his achievement significant? The woman who climbs to the top of the social ladder is a success in that particular variety of endeavor, but is her accomplishment significant? The candidate who wins an election, the general who wins a war, the prize fighter who knocks out his opponent, are all successful; but of what significance is their success?

What makes an accomplishment significant? The religious person would say that an achievement is significant when it glorifies God, enriches the life of the doer, and makes others happy. A socially minded person would say that even without these elements, an act is significant if it makes the world a better place to live in.

There is a thrill to success, but often nothing more. But when we live significantly, the payoff is real happiness.

Helpful Model

Childfind has reached the state of Washington. (Childfind Inc. is that information clearing house based in New York that assists in the locating of missing children.)

The Washington participation is noteworthy for a number of reasons, but the most important may be that its program cost only $21,000 to train employees and create new forms. Photographing and fingerprinting of children as well as recording physical characteristics are done at state driver's license offices and five mobile offices ... a system that might be a model for others.

A Childfind spokesman offers an important tip for concerned parents: keep recent photographs and information about physical characteristics such as scars, birthmarks, height and weight, hair and eye color. He says that data is more important than fingerprints.

On the other hand, the same source believes "hundreds" of unidentified children are buried each year in the United States. That estimate has no supportive statistics because no studies or surveys have been undertaken. Every coroner in the country would have to be contacted.

Warning Creates Surprise

A specially underlined and notated copy of Zibigniew Brzezinski's remarkable warning about surprise nuclear attack published in the July 10 Wall Street Journal was prepared that morning for President Reagan by White House national security aides.

Brzezinski is frequently consulted by high Reagan administration national security officials and occasionally visits the White House itself. He wrote that "strategic defense" against surprise attack is overdue. That is exactly what Reagan has been pressing for in his "Star Wars" proposals.

Brzezinski's role as President Carter's national security adviser, and his strong policy differences with former Vice President Walter F. Mondale, give his words unique importance in the Reagan-Mondale political debate over war and peace.

Up to the very moment that Walter F. Mondale picked Rep. Geraldine Ferraro for vice president, Sen. Gary Hart and his inner circle thought he was the leading contender.

"We never led them on," one Mondale insider told us. Nevertheless, the feeling within the Hart camp was that the primary election runner-up was the leading contender to be running mate — a perception shared by many Mondale supporters, especially in the labor movement.

A footnote: Pollster Pat Caddell, a Hart strategist who had boosted the senator for vice president, warned early on of potentially serious Democratic losses in Congress if Mondale put a woman on the ticket.

Joan Growe, Minnesota's secretary of state and the endorsed Democratic Farmer Labor Party nominee against Republican Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, dropped a candid if impolitic remark last week by questioning the strength of Walter F. Mondale's coattails, even in his home state.

Asked whether Mondale's name at the top of the ballot would help her defeat Boschwitz, Ms. Growe quickly explained that "Fritz doesn't excite many people" and "never has." She doubted that she would get much help from his "coattails," she told a small group of newsmen at breakfast July 11.

Ms. Growe, Mondale's longtime friend and ally, must beat state Treasurer Robert W. Mattson in the Sept. 11 primary before she can test her thesis that the Democratic presidential nominee won't be much use to her against Boschwitz.

Sen. Dale Bumpers explained to friends his hesitation about considering the vice presidential nomination in terms of his fears that the Mondale-led ticket could not carry his own state of Arkansas.

Bumpers worried that President Reagan may carry the state even with an Arkansan on the ticket. Such an outcome could seriously impair Bumpers' political future.

A footnote: The only Arkansan ever nominated on a national ticket was Sen. Joe Robinson, the Senate Democratic leader who was Al Smith's running mate in the Republican landslide year of 1928. Although Smith lost much of the South, Robinson enabled him to carry Arkansas — something Bumpers feared he might not be able to do for Walter Mondale.

Two Sentenced In Metal Sale

ATLANTA (AP) — Two sales executives have been sentenced to 10 years in prison for selling the Pentagon second-rate metal plate, some of which wound up in the new armor on the battleship USS New Jersey.

U.S. District Judge Marvin Shoob rejected pleas Thursday for leniency for Jerald R. Hedden, 37, and Russell D. Roper, 39, both of Marietta.

"I consider this type of activity on the same level as sabotage," Shoob said.

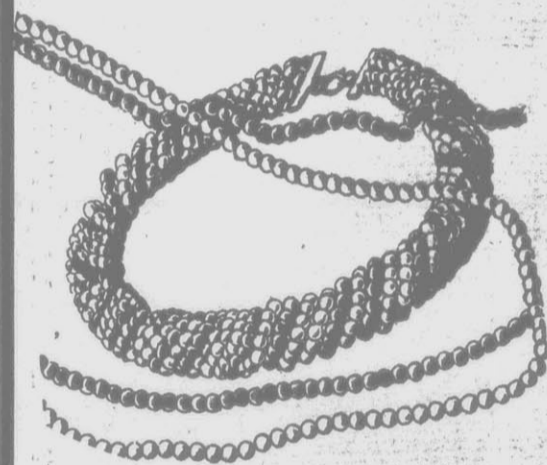

Hedden and Roper, former employees of the Marietta-based Metal Service Center Inc. of Georgia, were charged with shipping falsely marked sheet metal and fraudulent invoices to various Defense Department agencies, telling the agencies the metal was of a higher quality than it really was.

In May, the two pleaded guilty in an arrangement with prosecutors, agreeing to accept 10-year sentences. The maximum sentence for each could have been 25 years.

County Runs Corn Liquor Still For Fuel

By DENNIS PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer

For years, white lightning was considered the recreational beverage of the mountains, but the Watauga County Transportation Authority is proving that 180-proof alcohol has broader uses.

The transportation authority, with financial help from Appalachian State University, the Appalachian Regional Commission, the state Department of Transportation and the Tennessee Valley Authority, is running its own still to produce corn liquor for fuel.

The authority two weeks ago converted one of its vans to run on alcohol and will convert a second van in late July, said Lynn Leidersdorff, authority director.

"I'd say the performance so far has been satisfactory, and above our expectations," Leidersdorff said in a telephone interview. "We've seen no appreciable difference in the performance of the van and our miles per gallon is only down about two percent."

He said the authority used information readily available from large companies in making the conversion to a multi-fuel carburetor for the van. The authority's shop foreman was already familiar with the conversion, Leidersdorff said, because he runs a race car on alcohol fuel.

The authority sells the byproduct of its distilling operation to farmers as a high-protein food supplement, allowing the authority to break even on what it would pay for unleaded gas, he said.

"If we were a private company that could take advantage of the tax credits, we would see about a 30 percent reduction in our fuel costs," Leidersdorff said.

He said the still is funded as a demonstration of a fuel still that could operate on farms, providing the farmer with feed for his cattle and fuel for his farm equipment. He would, in turn, grow crops that would feed the still and keep the process going.

"The tractor conversion to alcohol is just an adjustment in the choke," Leidersdorff said. "We think this will have some beneficial applications for the agricultural community."

Leidersdorff said the still uses a patented process that produces 2 1/2 gallons of fuel alcohol for every bushel of corn. He credits Whitehurst Associates of New Bern, the company that designed the still, for the success in switching to alcohol.

"There are no small plants operating that I'm aware of getting that kind of yield," Leidersdorff said. "Some of the big ones that deal in millions of bushels might be, but not small ones."

Mash for the still now uses corn, but Leidersdorff said the authority will experiment with other agricultural products and even industrial waste in the production of alcohol.

"North Carolina is the leading producer of sweet potatoes in the country, but 40 percent of the crop is thrown away," Leidersdorff said. "We're meeting with the Yam Packing Institute in August to see if we can't provide the transportation to haul those culls here and make sweet potatoes our primary stock for alcohol production."

"We're finding that a wide range of industries are having a terrible time getting rid of wastes which we could use as feed stock for the still," he said. "There are methods available to use that waste, but no in-place method to put them to use."

Tapes Played In Drug Trial

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Winston-Salem attorney Renn Drum Jr. knew some of his clients were buying and selling cocaine but he was not interested in being directly involved in drug deals, tapes played during his trial showed Thursday.

The tapes indicate that Drum twice helped Susan Weeks, a prosecution witness in the federal drug trial of Drum and six other defendants, meet with defendant Henry Franklin Warden Jr. According to the tapes, Mrs. Weeks wanted to tell Warden that cocaine was available.

Mrs. Weeks said she taped her conversations with Drum by hiding a recording device in her purse. She and Donald Edwin Jones, who were both arrested in August 1983 on charges of beating an FBI agent, testified in exchange for help from the government in trying to cut their prison sentences.

The government also is keeping Mrs. Weeks and her two children in protective custody.

Drum, Ramon Dorta and Luis Laverde of Hialeah, Fla., and Donald Bruce Knight of Greensboro are being tried on charges that they conspired to distribute marijuana and cocaine.

Three other defendants, Donald Martinat and Robert Martinat of Pilot Mountain and Warden of Greensboro have already pleaded guilty to drug charges. They will be sentenced at the end of the trial.

Gas Explosion Kills 1, Five Others Injured

By TOM SORENSEN
Associated Press Writer
HEBRON, N.D. (AP) — Company investigators were trying to determine the cause of an explosion that killed one man, injured five others, and sent flames hundreds of feet in the air above a natural gas pipeline measuring station, authorities said.

The explosion occurred about 12:30 p.m. Thursday about 10 miles northwest of Hebron, Jana Martin, a spokeswoman for Northern Plains Natural Gas Co., said from Omaha, Neb. Hebron is about 60 miles west of Bismarck in central North Dakota.

The explosion and fire damaged two of three buildings at the site, she said.

A four-member investigative team from the company arrived at the site Thursday night.

Tim Wood, 28, of New Salem, was pronounced dead at the scene, Ms. Martin said.

"We were working in our Quonset hut and then we heard the explosion," said Marc Erhardt, a farmer who was about a quarter mile from the blast. "The flames were about 300 feet in the air, I suppose."

"I saw four men come walking through the corn field with their arms up," said Erhardt, adding that someone inside the building tried to warn the other workers moments before the explosion.

The four men told Erhardt what happened as they waited more than an hour at his home before medical help arrived, he said.

"They were sitting in their vehicles when it blew up," Erhardt said. "The guy that hollered at them was in the building and he told them to clear out and he couldn't get out in time and that's when she blew."

Erhardt's wife, Joyce Erhardt, said the injured men who walked to the farm could tell her nothing about what happened, but indicated they knew Wood was "gone when they got here in the yard already."

"I think they just presumed it because the explosion was so great and the fire was so great," Mrs. Erhardt said.

LaMarr Myers, 28, of Mandan, was taken by helicopter to St. Alexius Medical Center in Bismarck, and was later transferred by air ambulance to the Burn Center of the St. Paul-Ramsey County Medical Center in Minnesota, said Bob Schuller, a St. Alexius spokesman.

Myers was listed in serious condition today, Inez Mohr, a supervisor at the burn center.

He had been burned over 40 percent of his body, Schuller said.

Andy Gieser of Mandan was listed in stable condition today at St. Alexius second- and third-degree burns, said hospital spokeswoman Anne Sudart. Robert Seaberry of Mandan, Virgil Pfennig of Bismarck and another victim whose name was not released were treated and released, she said.

The measuring station is owned by Great Plains Gasification Associates, a consortium of five energy companies which also owns the Great Plains coal gasification plant near Beulah, Ms. Martin said. Northern Plains Natural Gas Co., which owns Northern Border Pipeline Co., operated the station, she said.

The station measures the amount of natural gas received from or delivered to the Great Plains plant from the Northern Border pipeline, she said.

CBS Goes To China

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS television programs ranging from "60 Minutes" to college football will be shown on the Chinese national network in the first deal of its kind involving U.S. broadcasts, officials from both networks have announced.

Starting Dec. 1, the 64 hours of programming will be shown under a one-year agreement signed Thursday by CBS and the China Central Network. The contract will not prevent the Chinese station from negotiating with other U.S. networks for programs, according to both parties.

"Our purpose in signing the agreement with CBS is to promote understanding between the Chinese and American people," said Wang Feng, the director of China Central, through a translator.

Several hundred hours of programming were studied by representatives of the government-controlled network before the choices for the 64 hours were selected, officials said.

In addition to "60 Minutes," other Chinese selections included Walter Cronkite's science magazine program, "Universe," "World War II," a 12-part series, and four animated "Dr. Seuss" specials.

Sporting events which the Chinese will see include games with the National Hockey League's New York Rangers; National Basketball Association playoff games; and a college football game, most likely a bowl game, officials said.

"If you look at the programs they have chosen, they are not really controversial," said Joseph DiCerto, director of communications for CBS-Broadcast Group Worldwide Enterprises.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — IS OUR ORCHESTRA LEADER'S SOLEMN AIDE HIS SEMI-CONDUCTOR?

Today's Cryptoquip clue: U equals D

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Convention Was Well-Packaged Show

By FRED ROTHENBERG
 AP Television Writer
 NEW YORK (AP) — If the Democrats have any chance of silencing "The Great Communicator" in November, they have to get up on his level — the airwaves — and beat President Reagan on television.

Thursday night, when the Democrats nominated their historic ticket of Walter F. Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro, they demonstrated an electronic savvy that suggested the "It's-Bedtime-for-Bonzo" placards might not be a pipedream.

There's no doubt TV will have a powerful impact on the election. Not with endorsements, but with images of the candidates that will help the electorate make up its mind.

More people watched Mondale and Ms. Ferraro on Thursday night than will come to all their whistlestops over the next four months. What viewers saw certainly seemed to be a jubilantly united party, albeit of diverse interests, staking out the hallowed ground of patriotism and maternalism.

There was Antonetta Ferraro, the candidate's 79-year-old mother, blowing kisses at the TV screen while her daughter was living out a no-longer sexist American dream.

There was a sea of miniature American flags waving from time zone to shining time zone. CBS anchor Dan Rather called it "a red, white and blue convention."

"It was mother and flag, and there's not much more you need than that," said ABC analyst Tom Wicker. He said pictures of mama Ferraro were "worth millions of votes."

There was Ms. Ferraro getting an ovation by merely introducing herself. There was Sen. Edward Kennedy, obviously enjoying the moment, stirring up the arena for the self-assured Mondale. Mondale's speech, not as compassionate as Gov. Mario Cuomo's or as passionate as the Rev. Jesse Jackson's, was sincere and forthright.

At one point, he even took a page from the president's video textbook, looking straight into the camera and speaking directly to the Reagan voters of 1980.

"It was an effective speech, well-written, well-delivered," said ABC anchor David Brinkley.

Orchestrating this kind of televised love-in was top priority for the Democratic hierarchy. Cable News Network senior correspondent Daniel Schorr called it "the most unified, best-controlled Democratic convention since before the Vietnam days...."

"There was superb management by the Mondale forces. Reagan inspired a kind of oratory that almost had gone out of style."

Chris Matthews, administrative assistant to Speaker of the House Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill Jr., said in an interview with the Associated Press that "the convention was a tremendous opportunity to get our message across. We had a good convention in '76 and picked up 10 points in the polls in one week."

Matthews said the Democrats had had only 13 hours of prime-time television since 1980, and now they were going to be "from 'Live at Five' to midnight."

To make certain they didn't blow their lines, Matthews said House Majority Leader Jim Wright had instructed the delegates, in their TV interviews, "to stress the issues that will win for us in November. Make sure the time isn't used for idiotic responses."

The Democrats didn't make any of the dumb mistakes of previous conventions.

Ms. Ferraro spoke at 8:30 EDT, and ABC, CBS and NBC — all scheduled to begin coverage at 9 — came on early to capture the momentous occasion.

Sinatra Set For MTV Cable Debut July 28

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With a little help from his friends — and pals of Quincy Jones as well — Frank Sinatra is about to hit Music Television.

Though a world premiere date has yet to be set, a spokeswoman says the video of Sinatra's new single, "L.A. Is My Lady," will debut on the cable music channel, MTV: Music Television, July 28 in time for the start of the Summer Olympics.

The laid-back tribute to the City of Angels will be something of a departure from MTV's usual diet of rock and pop, and it will have plenty of star-watcher appeal.

Appearing in the video with Sinatra will be Mayor Tom Bradley; actresses Jane Fonda and Dyan Cannon; actor-crooner Dean Martin; pop stars Donna Summer, LaToya Jackson, Michael McDonald and James Ingram; "General Hospital" heartthrob Jack Wagner; author Alex Haley; Los Angeles Dodgers manager Tommy Lasorda and pitcher Fernando Valenzuela, plus rock bands Van Halen and Missing Persons. Quincy Jones, producer of both the record and the video, will appear, as will his wife, former "Mod Squad" star Peggy Lipton Jones, who co-wrote the song with Oscar-winning composers Marilyn and Alan Bergman.

Pitt Crops Are Surviving

Tobacco and other crops in Pitt and other eastern North Carolina counties seem to be doing well in spite of a long dry spell earlier in the summer.

Leroy James, agricultural extension service chairman in Pitt County said this morning that "the soybean crop looks exceptionally good at this point," while "corn is doing better than what we anticipated earlier. It's really come out in the past four or five days."

As for tobacco, James said "I was out yesterday and saw a little tobacco flopped" because of the heavy rains over the past few days.

"I would suggest that farmers get out with those shovels and turn the water out of the fields."

"Basically, overall, things look exceptionally good," James said. But he urged tobacco growers to "let the tobacco get ripe in the field. It's awfully important this year. Buyers are looking for good ripe, good quality tobacco."

John Cyrus, a tobacco expert with the N.C. Department of Agriculture, said if favorable weather continues, the state could produce one of its best tobacco crops in recent years.

Rains this month have broken the dry spell which was threatening tobacco and other crops, and Cyrus said what farmers need now is "a week or so without rain to let the (tobacco) crop dry out and allow the leaves to fill out and develop."

Cyrus said a major concern is that farmers may try to harvest the crop too quickly "before the tobacco fully ripens and matures. We are encouraging farmers to let this crop mature because we badly need a good quality crop this year to maintain our place in the world market."

The tobacco expert, predicting that the state will reach its effective quota of 561 million pounds of tobacco this year, said this year's crop has the potential for being as high in quality as the crop produced in 1982.

Delegates Return After Rousing Speech

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — North Carolina delegates to the Democratic National Convention began returning home today after a speech that some called presidential nominee Walter Mondale's greatest.

As the convention ended Thursday night, some delegates began packing to head home while others remained to do more sightseeing. Most of the delegates arrived either last Saturday or Sunday.

In his speech Thursday night, Mondale said it would be necessary for the next president to raise taxes to help reduce the deficit. He also promised to begin working the first day he took office to achieve peace.

Mondale acknowledged that the competition for the nomination was fierce, but said he thought the "heat was passion, not anger."

"It was by far the strongest speech I have ever heard him give," said Congressman Robin Britt, a Mondale delegate from Greensboro, N.C. "It hit the issues and defined where the current administration's weaknesses are."

Britt said it was "gutsy" for Mondale to talk about raising taxes.

"He's got to describe what the painful remedies are because we've got to bite the bullet," Britt said.

He said he thought Mondale's speech generated "a tremendous power to unify."

Almetta Armstrong of Candor, another Mondale delegate, praised the nominee for promising to see that no child goes hungry and to improve education for the young.

But some of the Rev. Jesse Jackson's delegates were reserving final judgement on the speech.

LaVonia Allison of Durham said Mondale was talking about making a series of changes during the next decade. She said that's too slow and called for immediate proposals on jobs and justice.

"Ten years is too long for us to wait," she said. "Mondale said good things but he's taking too long to develop them."

"He's got to start on a jobs program the first day he's elected. He's got to start on a justice program the first day he's elected," Ms. Allison said.

Bruce Lightner of Raleigh said that if Mondale "means every word he said in that speech ... I'll work my behind off for him."

But Lightner said he was not convinced that Mondale will carry through with his plans and said he was not excited by the campaign.

Gary Hart delegate Zee Lamb of Nags Head said he was "shocked" Mondale talked about raising taxes.

"I know what he's saying with the deficit but I'm afraid the average voter doesn't," Lamb said. "It was courageous to say what the reality is."

There was more uniform enthusiasm in the delegation about New York Rep. Geraldine Ferraro's vice presidential candidacy.

Almost everyone in the group wore a "Mondale-Ferraro" button and some of the women had "Ferraro-Mondale" buttons, putting their favorite candidate first.

"It's great," said Thomas Coley of Greensboro, a Mondale delegate. "They're 50 percent of the population. At least the second person in charge ought to be a woman."

Coley praised Ferraro as a "dynamic worker" and woman who has proved she can get the job done.

Helen Heavner of Vale, a Mondale delegate, waved a "North Carolina for Ferraro" banner.

"One of the reasons she's a good choice is that she stands for all the right issues," she said. "More important than being a woman, she is indeed the right woman for the job. It's time people realized she was not selected just because she was a woman but she was selected because she was the right person."

Officials Eye Spotted Fever Outbreak

MEBANE, N.C. (AP) — In a state that's been a national leader in the number of Rocky Mountain spotted fever cases in humans, an outbreak of the tick-borne disease has killed a young puppy and attacked eight other dogs.

Officials believe last month's canine outbreak may be the largest in the country and the first to strike a kennel.

Dr. Ed Breitschwerdt, a researcher at North Carolina State University in Raleigh, said spotted fever has "been clinically unrecognized by the veterinarian profession. A kennel outbreak has never been reported thus far."

The rickettsia microorganism, also responsible for typhus, rubella, typhoid and other diseases in humans, occurs in four varieties in dogs, he said. The Rickettsia rickettsii variety is responsible for Rocky Mountain spotted fever in humans, canines and other mammals such as rabbits and mice.

Although they have not been reported in professional journals, Breitschwerdt said, spotted fever was recently diagnosed in one dog at a Fayetteville kennel and is suspected at another kennel in southeastern North Carolina.

Steve and Susan Muller, owners of the kennel of Siberian huskies, noticed something wrong with a puppy June 17. An Alamance County vet initially diagnosed canine pneumonia or distemper and started the dog on antibiotics.

The next day, another of their dogs began "rolling and doing flips and beating her head against the fence," said Mrs. Muller.

The animals were admitted June 21 to the School of Veterinary Medicine at N.C. State. An autopsy was performed on the dead puppy and extensive blood and tissue examinations were done on the other four animals.

Eight of the kennel's 12 dogs eventually contracted Rocky Mountain spotted fever.

Breitschwerdt, associate professor of medicine and a colleague, Dr. Craig Green at the University of Georgia are believed to be the first researchers to investigate tick fever as a naturally occurring disease in canines.

In 1980, North Carolina ranked first in the number of reported cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever in humans, with a record 321 cases and 17 deaths. Dr. David Durack at Duke Medical Center in Durham has said the state usually has roughly one-fourth of all reported cases in the United States.

Police Seek Suspect In Kinston Robbery

KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — Police are looking for a masked man who held-up a Kinston restaurant and abducted and raped an employee Thursday, in an incident similar to a robbery in Goldsboro last week.

An armed man wearing gloves, rubber boots, and a stocking over his head, entered Burger King at about 1:30 a.m. and ordered five employees to the floor, police said.

After taking money from the cash registers, he ordered the employees into the store cooler and told them to stay for 20 minutes. He then left the restaurant, taking a female worker hostage.

The unidentified woman told police the suspect forced her into the trunk of a car owned by another Burger King employee. She said the man drove for 10 or 15 minutes before stopping in a large parking lot. She said the man took her out of the trunk and raped her, and then forced her into the trunk of another car.

Six Methodist Bishops Elected

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer
LAKE JUNALUSKA, N.C. (AP) — After a lengthy but historic voting process, United Methodists in the Southeastern Jurisdiction Thursday finished electing six bishops to fill posts left vacant by mandatory retirements.

Today the delegates will assign the six new bishops and five current bishops in the jurisdiction to their posts for the next four years. A new bishop cannot be assigned for his first term to the district from which he was nominated.

The strain of the week began to show Thursday when the 576 delegates meeting at this lakeside assembly ground groaned as retiring Bishop Frank L. Robertson of Birmingham, Ala., said, "There is no election" on the 14th ballot. The 15th ballot also failed to bring forth a new bishop.

Finally, on the 17th ballot, the Rev. Robert C. Morgan of Birmingham, Ala. was elected late Thursday afternoon, garnering 358 votes — 12 more than he needed for the required 60 percent.

The 51-year-old pastor of the Vestavia United Methodist Church, will serve until the year 2000 in the bishop post.

During the precedent-setting meeting, the assembly picked its first black bishop and elected two bishops on the first ballot for the first time in United Methodist history.

The Rev. Ernest W. Newman, 56, superintendent of the Deland District in the Florida Conference, on Wednesday became the jurisdiction's first black bishop.

Also elected Wednesday were the Rev. James Lloyd Knox, 55, pastor of the First United Methodist Church in St. Petersburg, Fla., and the Rev. L. Bevel Jones III, 58, pastor of Northside United Methodist Church in Atlanta.

On Tuesday, the delegates elected the Rev. Ernest A. Fitzgerald, 59, pastor of West Market Street United Methodist Church in Greensboro, and the Rev. R. Kern Eutsler, 65, director of the Virginia Conference Council of Ministries — the first time in United Methodist Church history that two bishops have been elected on the first ballot.

Bishops serve as administrators and spokesmen for the church in their area, but their greatest power is the authority to appoint ministers.

By LAWRENCE KILMAN
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Nude photographs of Vanessa Williams in intimate scenes with another woman, being published in the September issue of Penthouse magazine, could cost the reigning Miss America her crown, pageant officials said.

Officials, described as "extremely distressed," were to meet today to decide whether to cut short the reign of Miss Williams, 21, the first black Miss America, said Mary Kay Marks, the wife of pageant executive director Albert A. Marks Jr.

It removed before her reign ends in September, Miss Williams would be replaced by runner-up Miss New Jersey, Suzette Charles, who is also black.

No other Miss America has ever been forced to resign, according to the New York Daily News.

The photographs were taken by freelance photographer Tom Chiapel "sometime before" Miss Williams won the pageant in September, Penthouse publisher Robert Guccione said Thursday.

"They're nude and they're very revealing," Guccione said. "They're rather like other photo layouts that appear in Penthouse. There is nothing coy about them. They're quite exciting."

Playboy magazine said it had been offered the photos, but refused to buy them because, "I'm not sure if she intended them for general publication," said Gary Cole, the magazine's photo director.

"We were not interested in the possibility of harming her career," said Playboy spokesman Richard Nelson.

Guccione said it had "occurred" to him that the publication of the shots could harm Miss Williams' career or cost her the Miss America crown.

Miss Williams is shown totally nude in intimate scenes with another woman, said Sy Presten, a publicist for the magazine.

Dennis Dowdell, a spokesman for Miss Williams, said she considered the "unauthorized use" of the photographs "an invasion of her privacy."

However, Guccione said he had a release form signed by Miss Williams and that Penthouse has "every legal right" to publish the photos.

Leonard Horn, the pageant's general counsel and a past president, said Thursday that contest officials had not seen the photos but hoped to obtain copies and review the case at today's meeting.

Bylaws of the contest have no specific language concerning nudity, but they do include "the usual morals clause" requiring "the maintaining of the dignity of the crown of Miss America," Horn said.

Mrs. Marks said her husband was unavailable for comment Thursday night, but Marks told the Atlantic City Press earlier, "I cannot say definitively" that Miss Williams would lose her crown. He told Chicago's WBBM-TV that Miss Williams had confirmed she posed for the photographs and that pageant officials were "extremely distressed."

Miss Williams' mother, Helen Williams of Millwood, said she had not discussed the photos with her daughter and declined to comment. She said her daughter was on the road promoting the upcoming Miss America pageant, but she did not know exactly where.

Miss Williams was a Syracuse University student and entered the national pageant as Miss New York. Miss Charles' parents, Charles and Suzette DeGaetano, told the Atlantic City Press that they were stunned by reports of the photos.

"I think that whether or not Suzette assumes the role of Miss America is something that only the Miss America board should determine," DeGaetano said.

Mrs. DeGaetano said she had not spoken with her daughter, who she said was in New York City rehearsing for a singing engagement. She would not provide a telephone number.

Guccione said Penthouse paid "a lot" for the photographs, but declined to be more specific. The pictures were taken by Chiapel when Miss Williams worked for him as a makeup artist and receptionist.

"The photos were done at her insistence. She wanted them done," he said.

Asked about the effect of the publication on Miss Williams' career, Guccione said, "My first obligation is to my readers...."

BROILERS: The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 49.75 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pound birds. Forty percent of the loads offered have been confirmed with a preliminary weighted average of 50.15 cents f.o.b. dock or equivalent. The market is steady and the live supply is moderate for a mostly moderate demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Friday was 2,040,000, compared to 1,665,000 last Friday.

HENS: Market steady with a firm undertone for next week's trading. Supply heavy. Demand moderate to good. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday slaughter was 10 cents.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn slightly lower at mostly 3.75-3.89 in East and mostly 3.85-4.00 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans lower at 6.84-6.90 in the east and 6.83-7.00 in the Piedmont; wheat mostly 3.33-3.40; (new crop corn 2.80-3.22; soybeans 6.00-6.30).

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined slightly today in a drifting session. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 19.98 points Wednesday and Thursday, slipped another .56 to 1,102.36 by noontime today.

Losers held a 5-4 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers said a quiet session was in prospect with a summer weekend approaching.

The government reported this morning that Americans' personal income rose 0.8 percent last month. Analysts said that came as new evidence that the pace of the economy remained strong.

Interest rates have fallen a bit lately in the bond market. But stock traders appear doubtful that rates can keep coming down as long as economic activity remains so brisk.

Chrysler rose 1/4 to 27 1/4 in active trading. On Thursday the company reported sharply higher second quarter earnings.

Occidental Petroleum dropped 1 1/4 to 27. The company said it bought back 4.8 million of its shares from financier David Murdock. The NYSE's composite index rose .14 to 86.54. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .03 at 192.22.

Volume on the Big Board came to 35.96 million shares at noontime, against 36.73 million at the same point Thursday.

as his general campaign chairman. Mondale may hear some griping. Ms. Ferraro returns home to her working class district in Queens, N.Y., for the weekend with her family and then heads for her congressional office in Washington on Tuesday. Later next week, she'll join up with Mondale in Minnesota for several days of meetings to map their campaign.

Mondale plans to decompress by fishing for a few days in the cold waters of northern Minnesota, looking for walleyed pike.

Mondale's speech was political and traditional. Ms. Ferraro's was philosophical.

As the first woman ever nominated for national office by a major political party, she made history — and she made the most of it.

"By choosing an American woman to run for our nation's second highest office, you send a powerful signal to all Americans," she said. "There are no doors we cannot unlock. We will place no limits on achievement."

The delegates cheered — but they would have cheered anything she said.

"Ger-ry!" they chanted. "Ger-ry! Ger-ry!"

Mondale said he is wiser than four years ago, when Democrats had "the pants beat off us." He lost re-election then as Carter's running mate.

"We are wiser, stronger and focused on the future," Mondale said. "If Mr. Reagan wants to re-run the 1980 campaign, fine. Let them fight over the past. We're fighting for the American future — and that's why we're going to win."

He mentioned "the future" 18 times.

He dubbed his program "the new realism" — that may become his campaign slogan — and said: "Tonight we come to you with a new realism: ready for the future and recapturing the best in our tradition."

He also said: "Here is the truth about the future: We are living on borrowed money and borrowed time. These deficits hike interest rates, clobber exports, stunt investment, kill jobs, undermine growth, cheat our kids and shrink our future."

Said his running mate, also talking about family and the future: "If we leave our children nothing else, let us leave them this earth as we found it — whole and green and full of life."

Betty Friedan and Bella Abzug, pioneers of American feminism, danced in the aisle near the New York delegation when the convention nominated her. Male delegates yielded their seats on the floor to women alternates so they could be part of the moment. Some delegates were in tears after Ms. Ferraro's speech.

"I was always brought up to believe a woman could do anything, but I never believed it until now," said Catherine Cowan, a delegate from rural Adams County, Pa. "I've been crying ever since she got the nomination."

At the end, the Democrats gave Mondale the harmony he needed if he is to win.

Off the convention floor, defeated rival Gary Hart repledged his support, saying he would go wherever he is needed. The Rev. Jesse Jackson said he'll help, but asked the nominee to send minorities a signal that they will not be forgotten by a Mondale administration.

Sunbird ...

Sunbird serves 11 cities in North and South Carolina and Georgia with a fleet of six airplanes and 78 employees seven days a week.

Bingham said the Hagertys' purchase of Sunbird from Air Transportation gives both Sunbird and Air Cargo "an opportunity to reach their fullest potential."

He said the Hagertys will "give Sunbird the capital it needs to fully develop" the airline's potential, while at the same time allowing Air Transportation Holding Co., to expand Mountain Air Cargo, which was formed in 1975.

Mountain Air Cargo, with 70 employees, operates 32 planes and serves 45 cities in 12 states making "contract runs for major freight people," Bingham said.

Bingham noted that it "may take 60 days or more" to receive all the approvals necessary and for the sale to become final.

CBS To Telecast Pac-10, Big Ten

NEW YORK (AP) — In what could be the first of several big television deals for college football in the wake of a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling, CBS will broadcast at least 10 Pacific-10 and Big Ten games this fall.

The Pac-10 and Big Ten are the only major conferences not tied in with the 63-member College Football Association, which is negotiating with CBS and ABC for its own television package.

The Supreme Court invalidated the NCAA's television contract earlier this month, setting up a scramble by networks and schools to determine how college football will be televised this year.

CBS agreed with the two conferences to televise a total of 14 games on 10 weekends this fall, some of which would be shown to a divided audience. The network said the agreement does not affect the two games it has already committed to — Boston College-Miami and Army-Navy.

CBS did not announce its schedule, and said the schools were still negotiating over the sticky issue of "crossover games" — games that might involve a Big Ten or Pac-10 team against a member of the CFA.

Sources said the network paid $8 million for the rights, far less than the $34.5-million that CBS and ABC had agreed to pay the NCAA under the old contract. That pact was thrown out when the Supreme Court upheld a lower court ruling that the NCAA's exclusive hold on bargaining rights violated antitrust laws. The ruling in effect allows schools and conferences to make deals independent of any central authority and also took away the networks' exclusivity.

Consequently, said Neal Pilson, president of CBS sports, the network was not prepared to make the commitment it had under the old contract with the NCAA. He said CBS had rejected a CFA plan that called for televising between 55-60 games on a regional basis on Saturday afternoons.

"The network's role in the new marketplace is broadcasting a minimum number of games of national importance," Pilson said.

ABC was taking the same position. A network source, who declined to be identified, said whatever fee would be paid for the rights also would be far less than that $34-million figure.

"We lost money last year," the source said. "We've made it quite clear that we will not lose money this year."

Under the agreement worked out by the CFA following the Supreme Court ruling, there would be three "windows" — time periods in which televised games would be permitted.

The first, beginning at noon EDT on Saturday, would allow the televising of games by schools or conferences who make their own deals with local stations, usually through syndicators. The second, starting at 3:30 p.m., would be for the networks; the third, at 7 p.m., would be for cable.

Under that agreement, in a large market such as New York, with three independent channels, a Public Broadcasting System outlet, and three network stations, there could be as many as four games televised simultaneously in the noon to 3:30 p.m. period.

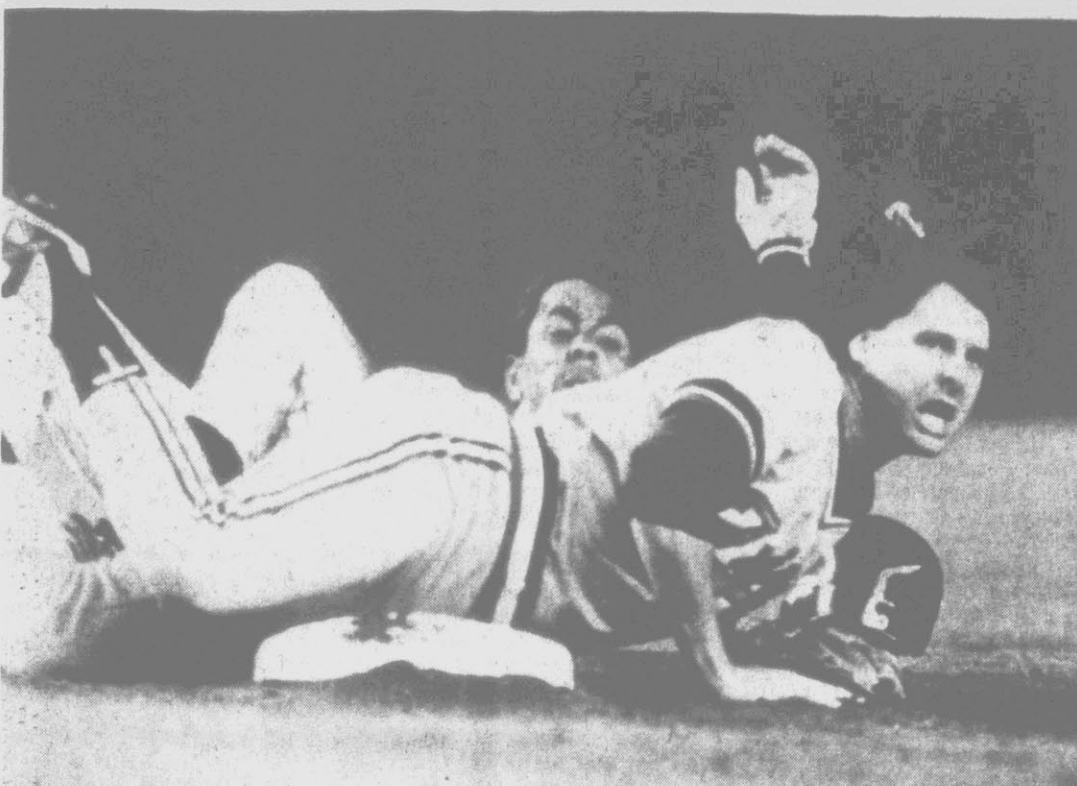

PBS, for example, has already agreed to televise an Ivy League game of the week, and the independents have expressed interest in syndicated networks set up by Penn State on the one hand and a triumvirate of Pitt, Boston College and Syracuse on the other.

In a related matter, University of Arizona Athletic Director Cedric Dempsey was quoted today as saying he expects the NCAA to place a moratorium on all television-related sanctions of football programs for the 1984 season. "From what I've heard, they're going to postpone the sanctions until there is some clarification by the lower courts as to whether they can use these sanctions as punishment," Dempsey told the Arizona Daily Star in a copyright story.

An NCAA penalty prohibits the Arizona from showing football games live in 1984 and 1985 because of rule infractions between 1971 and 1980. Arizona is also ineligible for any bowl games this season. That aspect of the punishment is not affected.

Other schools under NCAA sanction are Southern California, Wichita State, Wisconsin-Madison, Kansas, Clemson and Southern Mississippi.

Kinley, Edwards Power Pitt Over Wayne, 9-6

SNOW HILL — Mike Kinley drove in four runs with three hits while Darryl Edwards struck out 14 and scattered six hits to lead Pitt County to a 9-6 victory over Wayne County to even the American Legion Area I eastern playoffs Thursday at Greene Central High School.

Wayne County won the opening game of the series Sunday, but rain forced delay of the second contest. The third game will be played tonight at Goldsboro, while the fourth game will be Saturday at Harrington Field.

Edwards gave up a run in the first and another in the second, then cruised through six innings before giving up four in the ninth. Paul Hill came on in relief, walking two before striking out Brian Brogden to end the game.

Eight Wayne County errors accounted for most of the damage, as Pitt County plated just two earned runs.

Jackie Conway had two hits in four trips to the plate for Pitt County.

Jansen Evans, Anthony Jernigan and John Thomas had two hits each for Wayne County.

Pitt County took control in the bottom of the first, as Toby Fischer walked and Doug Coley singled before a two-run single by Kinley.

Edwards opened the second with a single, and Conway was safe at first on a sacrifice bunt attempt. Edwards scored on an error by the Wayne catcher, and Conway crossed the plate on a grounder to second by Fischer. Billy Michel walked and scored from first on a double by Kinley.

Pitt County added another run in the fourth. Coley walked, went to second on a passed ball, took third on a single by Michel and scored on Kinley's sacrifice fly for a 6-2 edge.

Fischer singled in the sixth, went to second on a wild pitch, moved to third on an infield out by Coley and scored on another error by the catcher.

In the seventh, Traye Fuqua reached first on an error and later scored when Conway went to second on a throwing error by Evans at shortstop.

Steve Wall reached first on an error in the eighth and later scored on a sacrifice fly by Daniel Keel.

Edwards had trouble in the ninth, as he walked two and a single by Jernigan plated one run. Thomas tripled in two more runs, and he later scored on a wild pitch by Hill. Two walks by Hill were followed by the game-ending strikeout.

Seaver Learning New Batters

By The Associated Press
Tom Seaver, who won three Cy Young Awards in the National League with the Mets, says his first time around the American League in 1984 was a "learning process." Now the AL batters are starting to learn about Seaver.

Seaver, 9-6, combined with Jerry Don Gleaton Thursday night to defeat the Cleveland Indians 3-0. "It's a learning process the first time around the league," Seaver said after shutting the Indians out for eight innings. "You might have a general idea how to approach a hitter, but you still have to find your own way to get guys out."

Cleveland rookie Steve Farr, who struck out nine, left after giving up a leadoff single to Carlton Fisk in the ninth. One out later, reliever Mike Jeffcoat walked Greg Luzinski and threw a wild pitch to move the runners to second and third. Greg Walker followed with a sacrifice fly to left before Ron Kittle slugged his 22nd home run off reliever Don Schulze.

Tigers 9, Rangers 2

Detroit won its sixth game in their last seven as Kirk Gibson and Lance Parrish slugged home runs and Ruppert Jones went 4-for-4.

"The key to anything is to apply yourself," Jones said after his perfect performance that paced a 13-hit Detroit attack.

Following Jones' sixth-inning single, Gibson slammed an 0-1 pitch from Texas reliever Odell Jones into the left-field seats for his 14th home run of the season to give the Tigers a 6-0 lead.

Twins 2, Yankees 1

Minnesota executed the major's first triple play this season and Tom Brunansky's sacrifice fly snapped a 1-1 tie in the eighth inning.

Kent Hrbek opened Minnesota's eighth inning off New York relief ace Dave Righetti, 2-3, with a double and advanced to third on Tim Teufel's infield hit to second. After Dave Engle popped out, Brunansky lofted a sacrifice fly to center, allowing Hrbek to score.

Royals 6, Baltimore 3

Hal McRae singled and doubled, driving in two runs, and rookie Mark Gubicza scattered seven hits.

With the score locked at 2-2 in the bottom of the seventh, Greg Pryor, Onix Concepcion and Willie Wilson stroked consecutive singles off Mike Flanagan, 9-8, to put the Royals on top 3-2. Gubicza raised his record to 6-8 while striking out eight and walking two.

Wayne Gross hit his 13th homer for the Orioles in the ninth.

Athletics 4, Brewers 1

Dave Kingman smashed his 27th home run to tie Hall of Famer Ralph Kiner for 29th place on baseball's all-time list with 369.

Kingman homered deep into the left field bleachers off Moose Haas, 6-7, with one out in the fourth.

Blue Jays 8, Mariners 1

Right-hander Dave Stieb, 11-3, allowed only three hits over the eight innings and Damasco Garcia stroked three hits, including a home run.

Jesse Barfield added four hits, two singles and two doubles, to the 15-hit Toronto attack.

Stieb took the AL lead in ERA at 2.21.

Candelaria Powers Bucs Past Padres

By The Associated Press
With eight wins in nine tries since the All-Star break, the Pittsburgh Pirates are making a run at respectability.

John Candelaria salvaged a little more of the Pirates' wounded pride with a three-hitter and a two-run homer Thursday as Pittsburgh downed the San Diego Padres 5-1.

With an average of over five runs per game in the nine since the break, the Pirates are threatening to put an end to the "Slumber Company" jokes. They have also clubbed 10 homers in the nine games.

"When you're 14 out or whatever we are, you can't do it in a day or a week. You have to do it a day at a time. You win today and try and come back and win tomorrow," Candelaria said. "We've got to catch (fifth place) St. Louis before we catch New York."

Although a three-homer outburst by the Pirates has become a rarity, the shot by Candelaria was an absolute first. Candelaria had not hit a home run in 566 career at-bats.

"Did I know it was a homer? I had a good idea," said Candelaria. "I've thrown so many to other hitters I recognized the sound."

"But I don't expect to hit another one in the near future. It feels great, but I'll take the win. That's what they pay me for — not to hit home runs. That's what they pay Jason Thompson and Bill Madlock for."

Whether they get paid for it or not, Tony Pena and Dale Berra also slugged homers for Pittsburgh. But Candelaria's 400-foot blast drew the notices.

"It was no cheapie," Padres Manager Dick Williams said. "He got all of that. It was up there in the seats."

Only three other major leaguers, all pitchers, have had more career at-bats than Candelaria without hitting a homer: Don Sutton, Steve Rogers and Ron Reed.

Elsewhere in the National League, Chicago topped San Francisco 6-4, Philadelphia crushed Atlanta 9-1, Cincinnati bopped New York 9-6, Los Angeles creamed St. Louis 10-0 and Houston edged Montreal 3-2.

Candelaria's home run almost overshadowed his overpowering pitching. He beat the Padres in 1 hour, 50 minutes. Only one other NL game this season has been that quick.

"I came in my office after the game and the clock said 9:30. I thought it had stopped," Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner said. "But that shows the way Candy can pitch when he's healthy. When he's got all his stuff, there's no better pitcher in baseball. He can dominate a ball game."

Candelaria, 9-6, retired the final 13 batters and ran his personal winning streak to four games.

Marvel Wynne, whose knuckeballing shot to the outfield just prior to Candelaria's homer wound up a triple, drove in the final Pittsburgh run with an eighth-inning single.

The Padres took a 1-0 lead when Luis Salazar belted his first home run of the season to lead off the third. Cubs 6, Giants 4

Gary Matthews has been struggling, but he won't let Chicago Manager Jim Frey sit him down.

"Every time I start thinking of putting someone else in there for him, he comes through with something big," said Frey.

Matthews' tie-breaking, three-run homer in the seventh inning powered the Cubs to their eighth win in nine meetings with the Giants and made a winner of reliever George Frazier, 2-0.

Matthews was hitless in his last 12 at-bats when, with two out, he blasted his sixth homer of the season with some help from Wrigley Field.

"I didn't hit the ball that well," said Matthews, "but I got enough of it and the wind blowing out helped."

Chicago catcher Jody Davis threw out four would-be base stealers in the first five innings.

Phillies 9, Braves 1
Jerry Koosman hurled a four-hitter and Tim Corcoran drove in four runs with four hits as the Phillies won their fourth in a row.

Juan Samuel and Ivan DeJesus also had four hits for the Phillies, who had 17 hits overall.

"I've had games before with big leads and just challenged hitters with my fastball," the 40-year-old left-hander said. "I've given up three, four, five runs before, but I was going to pitch my own game. I just decided to mix them up."

Koosman got his big lead when the Phillies chased Craig McMurtry, 7-11, while scoring five first-inning runs. Koosman, 11-7, walked one and struck out seven in winning his third straight start and sixth decision in his last seven.

Reds 9, Mets 6
Cincinnati broke a 4-4 tie in the sixth when New York shortstop Rafael Santana had the ball knocked out of his glove while tagging Brad Gulden on a rundown at third base.

Gulden raced home and Eric Davis followed with a two-run double off ex-Red Bruce Berenyi, 7-10.

Mario Soto surrendered six runs in 6 1-3 innings but raised his lifetime record against the Mets to 8-1. His two-run double in the second gave Cincinnati a 3-2 lead and his 10th victory against three defeats broke the Reds' three-game losing streak.

Dave Parker homered for the home team, his eighth.

Cyclist Suspended For Illegal Substance

DENVER (AP) — What road cyclist Alexi Grewal thought was an innocent herbal vitamin probably will end his longtime dream of competing in the Olympics when he was just a few days short of his goal.

Grewal, 23, of Aspen, Colo., one of the best American road cyclists, was suspended from competition Thursday for 30 days for taking an illegal substance. His automatic suspension by the U.S. Cycling Federation also effectively disqualifies Grewal, who had already made the Olympic team, from the Los Angeles Games.

Tests taken after Wednesday's race in the Coors International Bicycling Classic showed a banned substance in his urine, said Ian Emerson, an official for the 10-day cycling series. Emerson identified the illegal substance as phenylethylamine, which is found in some over-the-counter cold and hay fever remedies.

The chief medical officer of the Coors Classic, Jeff Paulsen, later said the substance was either ephedrine or pseudoephedrine, also contained in over-the-counter cold preparations.

"I've been in training 12 years of my life for the Olympics," said Grewal, who was crestfallen by the news of the suspension. "I'm going to follow every appeal."

But the cyclist said he had no one to blame but himself for the mistake.

"It's not the officials' fault, it's my fault," Grewal said. "I didn't take anything intentionally. My two tests on the races show it."

Grewal, who said he took an herbal vitamin before racing on Wednesday, was suspended before the start of Thursday's seventh race in the 10-day Coors Classic road cycling series.

"I read the label and it was written in Chinese," Grewal said. "It was such an innocent thing. I popped one in my mouth and started the race."

A friend had recommended the herbs, he said, saying they "would be good for energy. I took one and that's it. No Olympics, no Coors race, no nothing."

In addition to the Olympics, the presence of the illegal substance eliminated Grewal from the Coors Classic, where he was the overall leader and winner of two of seven events so far.

While the suspension is appealed automatically to the U.S. Olympic Committee, Michael Ainsner, Coors Classic race director, said he doubted it would make any difference.

Bob Paul, a U.S. Olympic Committee official, said in Los Angeles that the USOC had learned of the suspension but that it was too early to say how it affected Grewal's chances to compete in the Olympic Games.

"Until we get more information, we can't say for sure that he's out of the Olympics," Paul said. "We tell the athletes to stay away from herbal substances, but they don't always listen."

The announcement that the routine drug tests were positive came just before the Washington Park Criterium, seventh stage of the Classic.

The top two finishers and the overall leader, plus two racers chosen at random, submit urine for testing after each race in the Classic.

There will be four U.S. men on the Olympic cycling team. Grewal and Ron Kiefel were named earlier, with the final two expected to be selected in the next few days, a Coors Classic spokesman said.

Last summer, tests found 15 participants at the Pan American Games at Caracas, Venezuela, with prohibited substances in their bodies. In most of these cases, the illegal substance was anabolic steroids.

Weightlifter Jeff Michels of Chicago, one of those caught in Venezuela, still is fighting to have a suspension by the International Weightlifting Federation lifted so he can compete in the Olympics.

The U.S. Olympic road cycling coach, Tim Kelly, said he was shocked by the positive test on Grewal.

"I'm totally wiped out," Kelly said. "It's just incredible. It had to be an accident. Nobody would take anything like that knowingly. Alexi knows better."

Andretti Passes Sneva For Michigan Pole

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) — Mario Andretti beat Tom Sneva at his own game, outracing the biggest lead-foot in Indy-car racing to the pole for the Michigan 500.

And he did it Thursday in one of the closest competitions in the history of Indy-car qualifying.

Andretti's Budweiser-sponsored Lola turned the high-banked two-mile Michigan International Speedway oval at an average speed of 211.088 mph.

Sneva's 211.051 was just six one-hundredths of a second slower.

Amazingly, that was not the narrowest pole victory in Indy-car annals. The record of five onehundredths of a second was set last year at Road American in Elkhart Lake, Wis., when Andretti edged Italian driver Teo Fabi.

"When the pressure is on, then you're looking for everything you can get," Andretti explained. "If there's nothing in the bag, then nothing will come out."

"If there is something more in there, sometimes it will come out and you'll squeak in on top."

Asked if beating Sneva, who recently set the one- and four-lap qualifying records at Indianapolis and holds the Michigan qualifying mark of 211.392, gave him any special feeling, Andretti replied:

"Naturally, especially when he's got a good string going. Whoever is going quickest in the yardstick. That's the guy you'd like to beat, so it feels real good to beat Tom right now."

"And it's also nice showing the Lola can't just win poles on road courses and can beat the best on an oval," Andretti added.

Sneva, who had hit 211.9 in practice Thursday morning, said, "When the track heats up like it did later in the day, there's no question you lose a little speed. It was just enough to keep us from getting the record. And it was just enough to keep me from getting the pole."

Andretti, coming within inches of the backstretch and fourth-turn walls on both of his qualifying laps, turned his fast one after hitting 209.181.

This was the fifth pole of the season, the fourth straight, but the first on an oval for the 44-year-old former world driving champion, who also has won two of seven races this year.

Only now-retired Bobby Unser, who won seven poles in 10 races in 1972 — including six straight at the start of the season — has won more in a single year. And there are still eight more races remaining on the CART-PPG Indy-Car schedule for 1984.

Bobby Rahal took the outside of the front row in another of the dominant March race cars from England, hitting a top lap of 208.714.

Rick Mears, who won the Indianapolis 500 in May, shares the second row with Kevin Cogan and Howdy Holmes. Sneva's teammate, all in Marches. Mears hit 208.117, Cogan, who this week replaced Fabi in the Forsythe Brothers' car, was at 207.320, and Holmes turned at 206.736.

Gordon Johncock, the 1982 Michigan 500 winner, was next at 205.685, followed by Pancho Carter, the winner of the inaugural Michigan 500, at 204.163; Colombian Indy-car rookie Roberto Guerrero at 204.099, and three-time Indy winner Johnny Rutherford at 203.580.

A.J. Foyt, the only four-time Indy winner and a part-time driver in recent years, qualified a March at 200.535, but was later disqualified when CART technical inspectors found his rear wing was set back one-half inch too far behind the rear axle.

Foyt, 49, who had serious accidents here in 1981 and 1982, then skipped last year's race, cannot requalify that car. But CART officials said he could be added to the back of the field by promoter's option if the car gets through another technical inspection.

Tournament 14-15 Babe Ruth

Greenville 15
Pitt County 3

PINETOPS — Tom Moyer struck out 10 and fired a six-hitter to lead Greenville to a 15-3 victory over Pitt County in the championship game of the 14-15 Babe Ruth League District V All-Star Tournament.

Travis King, Jason Galloway and Scott Davis had two hits each, while Axel Smith ripped a solo homer for Greenville.

Pitt County led 2-0 after three innings, but Greenville took the lead with six runs in the fourth. After Smith's leadoff homer, Tom Moyer walked and King and Tom Taylor singled to load the bases. Galloway singled in Moyer, and Davis doubled in King and Taylor for the game-winning RBI. An error on a fly ball by Greg Jones allowed Galloway and Davis to score.

Greenville added five more runs in the fifth, as Davis singled in King and Taylor, and Greg Jones doubled in Galloway, Terry Warren and Eric Jarman. A triple by Robbie McDonald in the sixth drove in the final Greenville runs.

Greenville advances to the state tournament which begins Saturday at Elizabeth City.

Coastal Plain North.... 5

HOLLYWOOD — Tony McLawhorn drove in five runs with a double and a homer to power Coastal Plain South past Coastal Plain North 13-5 for the championship of the 16-Year Old Babe Ruth All-Star Tournament.

Curtis Perkins ripped three hits to lead the South, with Robbie Ehrmann and Eddie Brown adding two each.

Mike Elks, Ken Hadnott and Jimmy Williams combined for a two-hitter on the mound for the South.

After two outs in the second, McLawhorn doubled in Elks and Perkins for the game-winning RBI. Randy Mills followed with a base on balls, and Larke Weatherington singled in McLawhorn and Mills for a 4-0 lead.

Coastal Plain South plated eight runs in the fourth, with McLawhorn ripping a three-run homer in the spree.

Coastal Plain South enters the state tournament Saturday at Goldsboro.

Baker-Finch Takes British Lead

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — Taking advantage of the mild conditions, Australia's Ian Baker-Finch fired a stunning 6-under-par 66 today and surged into the lead on the second day of the British Open golf championship.
 Baker-Finch, winner of this year's West Australian Open and last year's New Zealand Open — his only two tournament victories — ripped up the Old Course at St. Andrews with the best round of the tournament so far.
 His 36-hole total of 134 equaled the St. Andrews course record set at the Open 24 years ago by Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina.
 Baker-Finch, who practiced for six days on these Scottish links prior to the Open, took a three-stroke lead over Britain's Nick Faldo and Seve Ballesteros of Spain, the 1979 Open champion, each of whom shot a 4-under-par 68 for a total of 137.
 The two players had tied on 69 on Thursday and were neck and neck again after two rounds.
 Australia's Greg Norman, Peter Jacobsen of the United States and Bill Longmuir of Britain, the overnight leaders on 67 — 5 under par — were still waiting to start their second rounds when Baker-Finch, one stroke behind after Thursday's first round, stepped up his onslaught of the historic fairways.
 He picked up his first birdie on the second hole with a 12-inch tap-in, then holed a 7-foot putt on the third.

THE KEEPERS OF THE TABERNACLE!

LEVITES, THE DESCENDANTS OF LEVI, ONE OF THE SONS OF JACOB, WERE TRADITIONALLY CHARGED WITH THE CARE OF THE SANCTUARY. IN THE TRIBE OF LEVI THERE WERE THREE TRIBAL FAMILIES, GERSHOM, KOHATH, AND MERARI. MOSES AND AARON WERE LEVITES OF THE HOUSE OF AMRAM AND FAMILY OF KOHATH (EX. 6:16-26). THE DERIVATION OF THE NAME LEVI MEANS A PERSON GIVEN IN PLEDGE TO A TEMPLE FOR A DEBT OR VOW. THUS SAMUEL WAS VOWED BY HIS MOTHER AT SHILO BEFORE HE WAS EVEN BORN! AARON AND HIS SONS WERE SET APART FOR THE PRIESTHOOD AND THE OFFICE WAS MADE HEREDITARY. IT MUST BE REMEMBERED THAT THE CARE OF THE TABERNACLE AND ITS SERVICE WAS GIVEN ON A NOBLE SCALE. THE CARE AND TRANSPORTATION OF THE COSTLY SANCTUARY AND THE PREPARATION OF MATERIALS FOR THE ELABORATE SERVICE, ENTAILED LABORS TO WHICH NO ONE MAN OR EVEN ONE FAMILY WAS EQUAL. THUS, THE ONLY WORK OF THE ENTIRE TRIBE OF LEVI WAS CARING FOR THE TABERNACLE AND GIVING SERVICES AS PRIESTS.

NBC Tweaks Rival ABC In Convention Coverage

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The Democrats may have healed their wounds, but the networks still are fighting in the trenches. The latest example was when NBC played a form of "Tweak the Press" designed to embarrass ABC.

After anchor Tom Brokaw signed off NBC's convention broadcast Thursday night, the network ran a printed crawl giving viewers the ending of the "Hart to Hart" episode that ABC started but didn't finish Tuesday night. The graphic did not mention ABC by name.

NBC credited USA Today with the plot synopsis, which revealed that the Harts, played by Robert Wagner and Stephanie Powers, manage to "chase the thugs, thus averting a murder."

NBC News spokesman Bill McAndrew said Reuben Frank, the former NBC News president who was in charge of the network's convention coverage, decided on the coverage twist.

ABC's decision to cut into convention coverage with a repeat of the canceled mystery series Tuesday night had touched off a storm of media criticism. After 25 minutes of the program, ABC returned to San Francisco for a speech, already in progress, by Speaker of the House Thomas P. O'Neill.

ABC defended its decision to interrupt the convention coverage by saying that the proceedings were running behind schedule.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
2 NT Pass 3 NT Pass
Pass Pass
Opening lead: Six of ♠.

Usually, you have to develop only one suit for your contract. On occasion, you might need a second suit as well. But South felt his five-card suit made his hand too strong for an opening bid of one no trump. Although his jump rebid of two no trump was not forcing, North had just enough to go on to game.

As happens when both partners bid aggressively, the final contract was tenuous. Even if declarer could establish and run the diamonds, he would still need some club tricks for his contract. Then there was the chance a defender with three diamonds to the ace could kill dummy by holding up. Declarer's solution was elegant.

He won the opening lead and led the jack of diamonds, overtaking on the board with the queen. When East held up, declarer switched his attention to clubs. The jack of clubs was finessed successfully, and declarer now reverted to diamonds, overtaking his 10 with the king. East had to hold up again to prevent declarer from bringing in the suit, but now declarer was on the table to repeat the club finesse.

He still needed a slice of luck. The finesse of the queen of clubs won as expected, and declarer laid down the ace of clubs. When both defenders followed, everything had come up roses. Declarer scored two spade tricks, two diamonds and five clubs — all he had contracted for.

How do you choose the best opening lead? Charles Goren has the answer. For a copy of "Winning Opening Leads," send $1.85 to "Goren-Leads," care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to Newspaperbooks.

Kannapolis Gets New Businesses

KANNAPOLIS, N.C. (AP) — A K&W Cafeteria and three outlet stores are scheduled to open by early October in Kannapolis.

The businesses are part of Cannon Mills Co. owner David Murdock's plans to turn the town into a regional retail center, officials said Tuesday.

Cannon officials hope downtown Kannapolis eventually will have 50 to 60 outlets and specialty shops "in a Williamsburg-type setting," said Lynne Scott, vice president of public relations for Cannon Realty and Development Corp., a Murdock-owned company formed this month.

"This is the first phase of it all."

K&W, based in Winston-Salem, has agreed to lease about 11,000 square feet in Oak Avenue Mall, a 68,000-square-foot, $3.5 million convenience center expected to open in late September, Scott said.

Other stores scheduled to open in downtown Kannapolis include Kitchen Collectibles, a Chillicothe, Ohio, manufacturer of kitchen products, and Aileen Inc. of Edinburg, Va.

Pay the Piper

July 22 is Rat-Catchers Day — a day honoring exterminators of those disease-carrying pests. It is also the day on which, in 1376, a famous rat-catcher — the Pied Piper — made history. According to legend, the German town of Hamelin, plagued with rats, engaged a piper who promised to, and did, pipe the rats out of town and into the Weser River. Refused payment, the piper then piped the children out of town and into a cave, never to be seen again.

DO YOU KNOW — Is the town of Hamelin in West Germany or East Germany?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Robert Ford shot and killed Jesse James.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JULY 21, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The practical aspects of your life should be taken into consideration this Saturday and no nonsense permitted where getting affairs on a more secure financial structure is concerned.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Improving outside affairs so they are more in accordance with government regulations is wise today. Use care in driving.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Find the best way of improving business affairs in the days ahead and don't let a partner dissuade you. Take time for amusement.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be practical in dealing with your mate and you get far better results. Don't argue with a fellow worker. Be more affectionate.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Do nothing that can annoy the one you love and look to a powerful friend to get some problematical affair solved.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You are inclined to be too demanding at home but can accomplish more if you handle tasks yourself. Take needed health treatment.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Steer clear of a pal who wants to bother you with own problems when you are busy. Garner data that can bring you security.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are tempted to get into unwise monetary investments, so think twice, and refrain from so doing. Try to please your mate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study into whatever can bring you greater self-improvement, but avoid an associate who can be troublesome. Be happy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Some anxiety could keep you from seeing a good friend, so get out of the doldrums early. Don't listen to your mate's advice.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have fine creative ideas which should be made more practical, so get busy on this. Forget that fleeting wish.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Being at home and with family is best today, so avoid outside activities. Extend invitations to friends and entertain them nicely.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Handle Saturday activities wisely, such as marketing, telephone calls, or whatever else cannot be done during the busy week.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be down-to-earth in ideas and understand how important business matters can be and will concentrate on the practical and monetary side of life. Be sure to send to college otherwise bad investments could be made and much loss sustained.

Vernon Tyson And His Wife Frances Attended D-Day Ceremonies In June

Nostalgic Return To Normandy

THE TYSONS TODAY . . . Vernon and Frances Tyson were photographed in their store on Dickinson Avenue recently. The couple, like millions of other American servicemen and their girl friends or wives, carried on a long-distance correspondence during World War II. (Reflector Staff Photo)

D-Day, June 6, 1944

Text By Jerry Raynor

" . . . We were in a convoy all night long . . . As we approached the French coast, we could see clouds of smoke, even in the early dawn hours.

" . . . When we touched shore . . . I saw dead bodies and splintered pieces of earlier boats all about, in the water and on the shore.

" . . . I was hoping to run across one of my wartime buddies . . . For years, several of us had kept in touch, but as the years passed we drifted apart, stopped writing."

To historians the date of June 6, 1944, was a historic date marking a significant step forward on the road to Allied Victory in World War II. To the average GI taking part in the landings on Normandy on the north coast of France 40 years ago, the date is recalled as the climax to months of rugged training and waiting.

Vernon Tyson of Greenville, with his wife Frances were among contingents of Americans visiting the area during the 40th anniversary of the Normandy landings in early June this year.

The Tysons are owners-proprietors of Tyson Furniture Store on Dickinson Avenue.

In Second Wave

"I was in the second wave coming into Omaha Beach on the morning of the sixth," Tyson recalled. "I was a member of the Army engineers, a young soldier who'd been in service since November '41.

"The day before, the fifth of June, we had left the English Channel port of Falmouth and had gotten about half way across the channel, then turned around and went back to the port of Plymouth. When we left Plymouth late on the afternoon of the fifth, there were destroyers on each side of us, so we all knew the real thing was underway.

"We were in a convoy all night long of the fifth, under the cover of darkness and a barrage of balloons. As we approached the French coast, we could see clouds of smoke, even in the early dawn hours."

Tyson said the second wave landed about three hours after the first wave had gone in. "Because we were engineers and had lots of heavy gear aboard, we were on the type of landing craft, a LCT, that went all the way up on shore. When we touched shore, and the ramp of our craft was lowered, I saw dead bodies and splintered pieces of earlier boats all about, in the water and on the shore. Naturally, that sorta got to me."

Tyson was a member of the 121st Combat Engineers attached to the 29th Infantry Division.

Infantrymen, Tyson noted, "really had the roughest of it, carrying everything on their backs. As engineers, our cargo consisted of many different items — jeeps, demolition material, ammunition, Bangalore."

After getting safely ashore, Tyson decided to go to the top of a hill to get a better view of what was happening. "But some snipers got after me, so I went back down the hill without losing time. The next day at dawn, all of those in our unit got together again."

Wounded July 10

"After Omaha," Tyson said, "our unit moved on inland. We went through the hedgerows around St. Lo, which in itself was a real frustrating situation. After pushing our way through the hedgerows, we were busy building a CP (command post). The Germans waited until we had finished it, then zeroed in on us and blew it up.

"That was the 10th of July. I received shrapnel injuries in my hands and was flown back to England, where I was hospitalized for six weeks before being returned to my unit."

When he returned, he recalls "my unit had reached Aachen just inside the German border (where Belgium, The Netherlands and Germany join each other). We moved on to the Ruhr River, where we laid mines. After that we continued to advance, moving into the province of Bremen in northern Germany, then further east where we joined up with the Russian forces at the Elbe River in the last days of April, 1945."

A few days later, in May, 1945, the German forces surrendered. Five months later, Vernon Tyson was back in the U.S. "I was discharged in September 1945," Tyson said, "just two months short of four years service."

A YOUNG SOLDIER AND HIS JEEP . . . Army engineer Vernon Tyson was photographed beside his trusty vehicle, a jeep, in Plymouth, England during April 1944, just two months prior to the Normandy invasion. (Photograph by E. Morgan, Plymouth, England)

A fond memory of wartime England recalled by Tyson was that of service provided to GIs by the Red Cross. "Some people may put the Red Cross down," he said, "but I will always remember the many times they came out on the moors to serve us tea, doughnuts and coffee."

Many Wartime Letters

When Vernon Tyson went to England for duty, he was a single soldier who left his girlfriend Frances Cash behind. Frances, a native of Wendell in Wake County, was a graduate of East Carolina University teaching in Raleigh. "We met before Vernon went overseas," Mrs. Tyson said. "And believe me," she laughed, "I must have written a million letters during the time he was in England and later in Europe."

The Tysons are the parents of two children. One is deceased. The other, a son, William Vernon, Jr. now lives in Houston, Texas.

Journey Of Rememberance

When the American Legion announced that on the 40th anniversary of the Normandy invasion, former servicemen were being encouraged to visit Normandy and other areas of the World War II days of 1944 and 1945, the Tysons decided they wanted to make the trip.

"I really wanted to go back, to see Omaha Beach, the cemetery there, the chapel, to see what I could remember about the area, how and what had changed," Tyson said.

"We're glad we made the trip," Mrs. Tyson commented. "it turned out to be an exciting experience for both of us."

The tour began in London. "Most of the men in the tour were veterans of D-Day. Many of them had revisited Normandy somewhere along the way before, and most of those we talked to on the tour were men who had been wounded in action," Tyson related.

"I was hoping to run across one of my wartime buddies," Tyson added. "but I didn't. For years, several of us had kept in touch, but as the years passed we drifted apart, stopped writing."

Highlight Events

In France, the highlight events were on Wednesday, June 6. Commemoration services held at the memorial site of the Normandy American Cemetery were attended by President Reagan, French President Mitterand, the Duke of Luxembourg and other dignitaries.

Wreaths were laid at the foot of the huge sculpture of a young man with arms uplifted symbolizing the Youth of America, all those who fought and who died in the 1944 invasion.

"After going to the ceremony at Normandy, we went to the cemeteries in Ardennes and at Bastogne," Mrs. Tyson said. "At Bastogne the memorial is in the shape of a star with the names of states inscribed on it."

Another place visited was the cathedral city of Reims, in France. "We saw Ike's headquarters," Tyson said. "The room where General Eisenhower worked has been kept the same as it was at the time. It gave me a rather strange feeling to be in that room."

Vivid Impressions

The sounding of taps at the June 6 ceremony, according to Mrs. Tyson, was "really awesome. There was not a sound, not a stir among all the people there. It was certainly a very emotional experience."

Another sight which Mrs. Tyson remembers vividly was that "of walking along the wall where a wreath had been laid for the son of President Theodore Roosevelt. (Brigadier General Theodore Roosevelt, Jr. died in Normandy on July 12, 1944). The area was crowded with people of all ages.

"One woman, an American, told us she had come to visit the spot where her father died on D-Day, which happened also to be his 20th birthday. She had come to be with him at his grave on what would have been his 60th birthday."

"Many of the death dates on tombstones were July 10 and July 11, 1944. The 10th was the day I was wounded, so I realized how fortunate I'd been to be among the wounded who survived," Tyson commented.

Personal Encounters

There were also many personal encounters, some of a happy nature, some sad.

"Time and again people told us how they idolized Patton," Tyson said. "People at Malmedy, in Belgium, where an American platoon was ambushed and slaughtered.

People in Luxembourg. A man in one small town related that the village was bombarded 30 times, with only 15 houses left standing."

Mrs. Tyson expressed pleasure about their trip to the small principality of Luxembourg, "where the mayor of Luxembourg city, a lady, gave the American visitors a warm welcome. They planned a special ceremony just for us, and their were also several receptions given us during our visit there."

"One man, an engineer for Goodyear told us the story of being hidden by his father when he was a 16-year old boy. The Germans had begun recruiting men and boys from Luxembourg to serve in their army, and the people of Luxembourg went on a national strike protesting this. The Germans took 10,000 men from the country, forcing them into service. Many never returned to their homeland."

Mrs. Tyson delighted in mentioning one man they met, a veteran of both World Wars I and II. "He was 91, from Wisconsin. Despite his age, he was spry and didn't miss a trick. He told us he had left his girlfriend back home, that he wanted to be unattached on the trip."

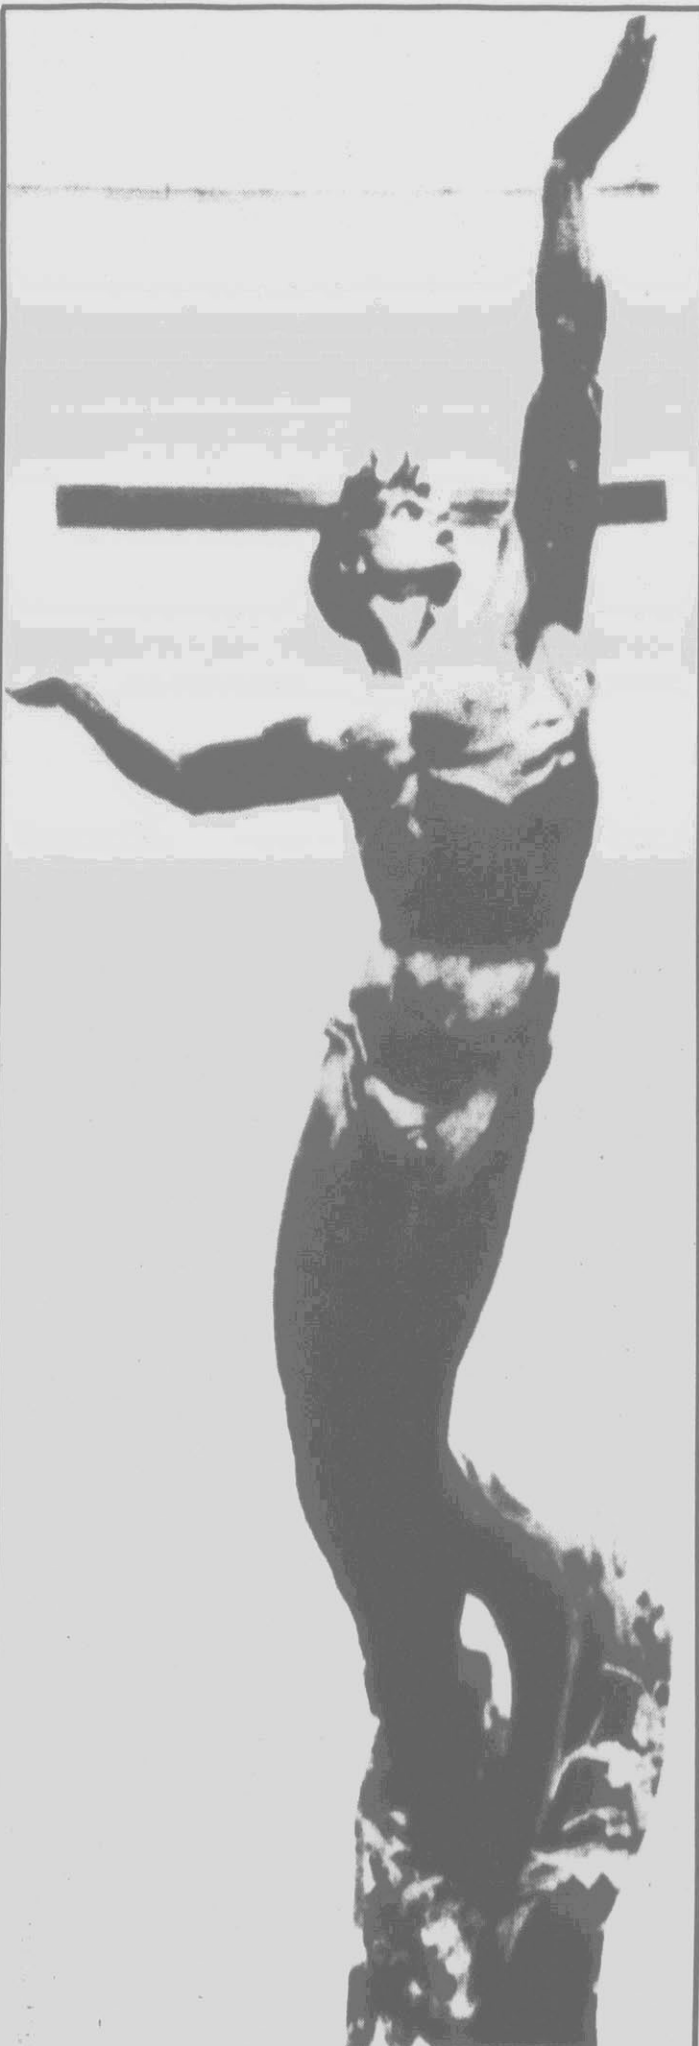

Tyson noted "most of the men I talked to were from the mid-Western states. I did meet one veteran from Greensboro and one from Eden as well as one from West Virginia and one from Georgia."

Tour In Two Phases

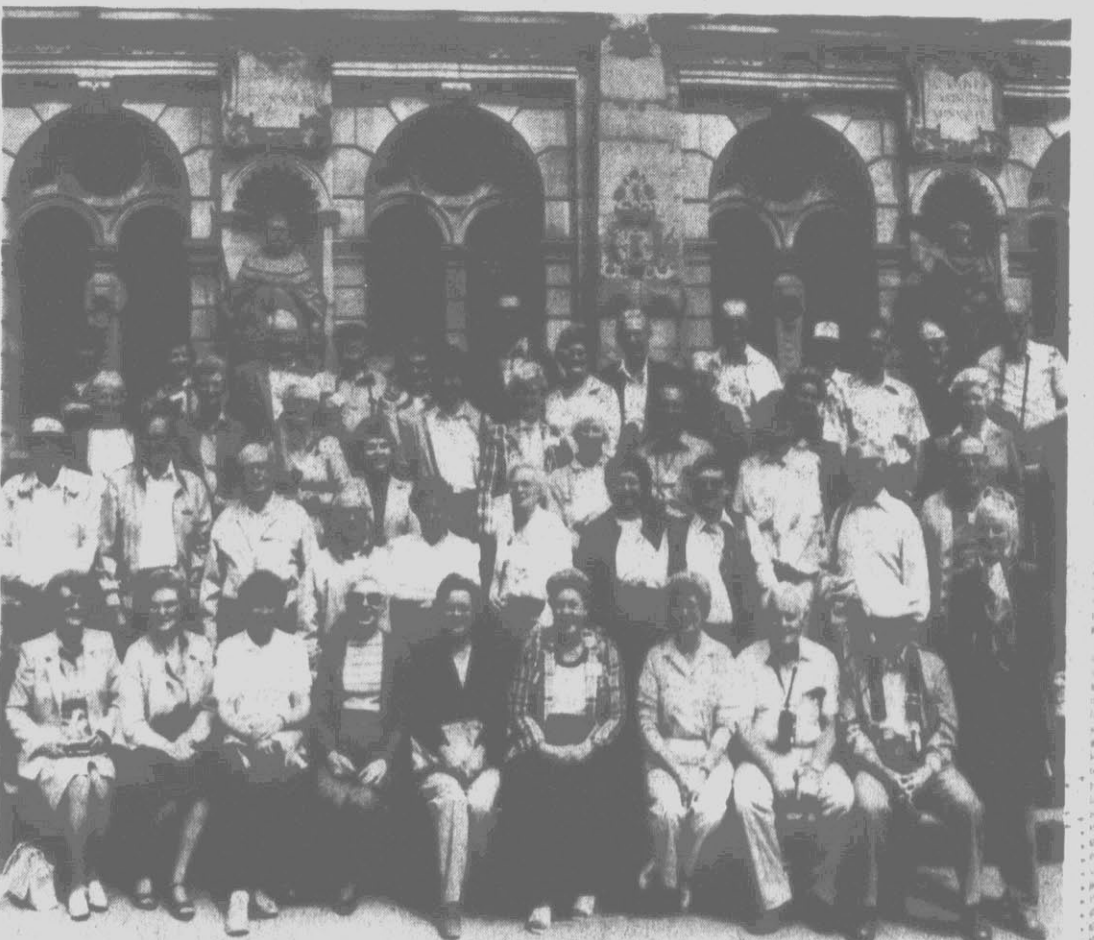

The tour was divided into two phases — "D-Day Plus 40," focusing on commemorative activities marking events of June 6, 1944; and the second phase, "The Road to Victory." It was on the second phase that the Tysons visited in Belgium, Luxembourg and parts of West Germany.

"We visited Paris and London," Mrs. Tyson said. "In London, we made a special visit to St. Paul's Cathedral, where the dean of the cathedral welcomed our group and said prayers for the dead. There's an American chapel in St. Paul's."

"We're both glad we made the trip," Tyson concluded. "It brought back many memories for me, and gave me a chance to share with Frances some of the places I'd been to under entirely different circumstances. Someday, we may want to go back for another visit."

MEMORIAL SITE . . . A huge sculpture, several times life size, representing the Youth of America who fought in Europe during World War II, soars above the Normandy American Cemetery near Omaha Beach in France. It was here that the Tysons witnessed special ceremonies on June 6, marking the 40th anniversary of D-Day. U.S. President Reagan, French President Mitterand and other dignitaries took part in the ceremony. Vernon Tyson was one of numerous Normandy veterans attending. (AP Laserphoto)

A SOUVENIR PHOTOGRAPH . . . The Tysons were among a group of World War II GIs and family members who attended D-Day ceremonies and later joined a nostalgic "Road to Victory" tour in Belgium, France and Germany. Here the group poses on the steps of
