State Awards Pitt U.S. 264 Work Contract

The N.C. Board of Transportation Friday awarded a contract totaling $4.43 million for construction of a 3.8 mile segment of the new U.S. 264 from east of Farmville to west of Secondary Road 1210, west of Greenville.

Barnhill Construction Co. of Tarboro was the successful bidder on the project, which is the final segment of the U.S. 264 project between Farmville and Greenville to be let to contract.

Construction of the 9.8 miles of four-laned U.S. 264 from the Farmville East Thoroughfare to the existing five-lane section of SR 1200 at Pitt County Memorial Hospital should be complete with paving in fiscal year 1986.

Completion of work on the Farmville East Thoroughfare — a 3.17 mile two-lane road on a four-lane right of way, from existing U.S. 264 to S.R. 1200 — is scheduled for November 1984.

Other sections of the U.S. 264 project from Wilson to Greenville on which construction is underway include 13.39 miles from east of N.C. 58 at Wilson to existing U.S. 264-U.S. 264A at Farmville.

Contracts for construction of a 2.22 mile section of U.S. 264 from N.C. 58 at Wilson to the section of new U.S. 264 east of N.C. 58 are scheduled to be awarded in July 1985, while the final segment of U.S. 264 between Greenville and Wilson, a 6.7 mile northern loop around Farmville, from west of the Greene-Pitt County line to the Farmville East Thoroughfare, is scheduled after fiscal year 1992.

GNP Indicates Strong Growth

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The economy grew at an unexpectedly strong annual rate of 7.5 percent this spring even as inflation remained in check, the government reported today.

The growth figure released by the Commerce Department for economic activity in the April-June quarter was sharply higher than the preliminary estimate last month of 5.7 percent.

Today's revision followed the pattern the economy set early in the year — confounding experts who persist in predicting slower growth as the recovery from the 1981-82 recession begins to lose steam.

Growth in the second quarter was slower than in the first, which was revised today to an astonishing 10.1 percent annual rate — matching the best performance in three years.

However, both growth rates were well above what economists had predicted. Originally, the consensus forecast was for growth below 5 percent in each quarter.

Growth, as measured by the gross national product, the total output of goods and services, turned in a performance in the January-March period unmatched since a similar 10.1 percent increase in the first quarter of 1981.

Often such strong growth at this stage of an economic recovery would signal a return of inflation. But that has not been the case this year.

The government reported today that a GNP-linked inflation measure was rising in the second quarter at an annual rate of 3.2 percent, lower than the 4.4 percent rate posted in the first quarter. The smaller increase was attributed primarily to food prices, which dropped in the second quarter after rising sharply in the January-March period.

Many economists have expressed concern that the strong growth being shown by the economy could eventually choke off the recovery by inspiring heavy business and consumer borrowing, which would drive up interest rates and trigger inflation. However, while interest rates have risen, inflation has remained in check.

The Commerce Department report said that the strong GNP gain for the second quarter resulted primarily from an increase in final sales — which increased at a rate of 10.4 percent, compared to a 3.6 percent increase in the first quarter.

Personal consumer spending was also up during the period, increasing at an annual rate of 6.9 percent, compared to a 4.6 percent pace in the first quarter.

Capital spending by businesses rose at a strong 20.7 percent rate, about the same as the 20.6 percent pace turned in during the first three months of the year. But housing construction posted only a 9.4 percent annual rate of increase in the second quarter, down from the 21.3 percent rate in the previous quarter, reflecting higher mortgage interest rates.

Begin Backs Shamir In Israel Voting

By MASHA HAMILTON
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel's opposition Labor Party predicted victory in Monday's national elections. But Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's Likud bloc, buoyed by late support from Menachem Begin, said Sunday it has the best chance to form a government.

The 4,050 polling places opened at 7 a.m. Monday, with more than 2.6 million Israelis eligible to vote. Israel radio said 6,000 police officers were assigned to guard the polls.

In addition to Likud and Labor, 24 other parties were on the ballot, including extreme rightist parties, communist groups and several religious factions. Opinion polls indicated neither of the two main parties would win an outright majority in Parliament, and thus would need help from smaller parties in trying to form a governing coalition.

Begin, the popular former prime minister and founder of the Likud bloc, broke a lengthy silence Sunday to endorse Shamir.

Begin, 70, said when telephoned by The Associated Press at his Jerusalem home, "I hope the Likud wins the election and that Mr. Yitzhak Shamir will form the next government." He declined to answer further questions.

But the endorsement, which Likud officials said could be crucial in swaying undecided voters, may have come too late to save Likud.

Israel radio said it would not air the report because as a state institution it cannot broadcast items that might affect the election outcome. Israeli newspapers which appear Monday morning, when polling stations opened, were under no such constraint, however.

Two independent polls published on the eve of the elections both showed Labor leading Likud, but winning fewer than the 50 seats in the 120-seat Knesset, or parliament, that Labor says it needs.

"It's going to be very hard with less than 50 seats," Labor's Mordechai Gur acknowledged in an interview with the AP. "Now, the missile is on the way to the target. We just have to wait and see if it has hit."

If the polls prove accurate, Labor might have to look to the religious parties to join it in a coalition of at least 61 seats needed to form a government.

Labor Party leader Shimon Peres has said he does not want to do this, but Gur said Labor may be forced to turn to them.

"Our own polls show us winning 52 to 53 seats and running about 15 seats ahead of Likud. If that happens, it will be a matter of hours before we can form a government," Gur said. "Otherwise, I don't know how long it could take or where we will have to go to find partners."

In the last previous election in 1981, Likud won 48 seats and Labor 47.

Deputy Prime Minister David Levy, Likud's campaign manager, forecast a close election.

Doctors Urge Physical Before Running

From Staff and Wire Reports

Although jogging is considered one of the best forms of exercise, runners and exercisers of all ages and sizes would do well to heed the warning provided by the death of running enthusiast and expert Jim Fixx, according to local physician Dr. David Small.

"It's the consensus that jogging is still one of the most beneficial means of exercise around and is no more likely to cause death by heart attack than any other form of exercise. But before anyone takes up jogging or any other type activity, he should get a complete physical exam and cardiac evaluation so he will know his limitations," Small, a physician with the Department of Emergency Medicine at Pitt County

Memorial Hospital, said today.

Fixx, 52, author of the best-selling "The Complete Book of Running," collapsed and died of a heart attack while jogging in Northern Vermont Friday. Fixx suffered from serious heart disease, but apparently was unaware of his condition.

"Being checked out every now and then isn't the answer though," Small said. "It's got to be routine, especially for anyone over the age of 40. Those people also should have their doctors perform stress tests to check their cardiac rhythm and blood pressure," Small said. He added that he recently had his cardiac rhythm and blood pressure evaluated.

Vermont's chief medical examiner, Dr. Eleanor McQuillen, who performed the autopsy on the famous runner, said that Fixx apparently didn't know of his condition and that he died immediately.

Mrs. Alice Kasman Fixx, divorced from her husband since 1962, said she was certain that he had no idea he suffered from a heart problem.

"I'm sure he didn't know. As a matter of fact, I urged him to get regular medical checkups. He really was negligent in that area and rarely went to a doctor. He didn't even have a regular one."

According to Dr. McQuillen, two major arteries to Fixx's heart were completely blocked off. Fixx was found on the roadside at approximately 5:30 p.m. by a passing motorist. Efforts to revive him did not succeed.

Small said there was probably nothing anyone could have done to help Fixx because of the time element between his collapse and the discovery of his body. "But had he been gotten to by a team of paramedics within two to three minutes after his collapse, he probably could have been saved by treatment with counter shock," Small said.

"It shocks us all when something like this happens," he added. "But things like this happen, it happened to a man in Wilson some months ago ... The only thing we can do is be aware of what is going on in our bodies and act accordingly," Small said.

Market Gearing For Aug. 1 Opener

The first sale of tobacco on the Greenville tobacco market is scheduled for August 1, J.N. Bryan, sales supervisor for the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade, said today.

"There is every indication that 1984 will be a very successful season," Bryan said, adding that every warehouse firm in Greenville will have a sale every day during the season.

Under the designation program, farmers have designated the warehouse at which they wish to sell their crop, Bryan said. "I would like to urge any farmers who have not already scheduled their sales to please contact the warehouse where their tobacco is designated for sale in order to set up a schedule of sales for the season.

"The Greenville warehousemen are highly experienced in scheduling, with efficient personnel to help in carrying on a smooth operation," Bryan said.

Bryan said prices paid on the Greenville market in 1983 by buyers were the highest prices paid on the entire 17-market eastern belt, with an average of $185.10 per hundred pounds.

Greenville warehousemen, Bryan said "continually improve their procedures to meet the demands of the buying companies and the growers who sell in Greenville, and the Greenville market has the finest purchasers, graders, handlers and processors of leaf tobacco in the world."

Opening sales for the 94th season on the Greenville market, which has 10 warehouse firms and 10 buying companies, will begin with two sets of buyers.

First sales will be at Farmers and Raynor-Forbes & Clark warehouses, while the first set of buyers will be at New Greenville Warehouse for the second sale, New Independent Warehouse for the third sale, New Carolina Warehouse for the fourth and Growers Warehouse for the fifth sale of the day, according to Bryan.

The second set of buyers will be at Star-Planters Warehouse for the second sale, Hudson's Warehouse for the third sale, Keel's for the fourth, and Cannon's Warehouse for the fifth sale on opening day.

Fire Chases Elderly Residents

LOS ANGELES (AP) — More than 200 elderly people fled a late-night fire that erupted at a construction site and roared into their adjacent 12-story retirement home.

Ten people, including several elderly women, were hospitalized. Sixty of the 232 evacuees suffered smoke inhalation Sunday night, but most of them were treated at the scene or taken to hospitals for observations, Fire Department spokesmen said.

The fire, which firefighters said was of suspicious origin, caused an estimated $755,000 in damage to the condominium construction site, the Fickett Towers retirement residence and a building across the street at the First Baptist Church of Van Nuys. Fickett Towers is affiliated with the church.

Nearly 200 firefighters were summoned at 10:18 p.m. Sunday and put out the flames at 11:30 p.m. Fifteen Fickett Towers apartments facing the construction site were gutted, said Tony DiDomenico, a Fire Department spokesman.

"The heat was so intense it broke out the windows in the second to eighth floors," DiDomenico said. Windows were blown out in a building at the church across the street.

Residents, clad in pajamas and nightgowns, were taken across the street to the Baptist Church gym. Relatives picked up some, but about half returned to undamaged apartments by 1:30 a.m. An estimated 30 to 40 had to be housed elsewhere, said Jim Rives, a church administrator.

DiDomenico said the quick, successful evacuation was "absolutely phenomenal."

"There was a big fire going right outside their windows and that's what got them going. If this had happened at 2, 3 or 4 in the morning it would have had quite a different outcome," he said.

"I was in bed and my whole room got lit up by fire," said Hildur Gottlieb, 87, whose fifth-floor apartment faces the construction area.

"I got up to open the window and the heat hit me and I thought I'd better leave. I went right to a fire escape and I walked right down. I forgot my cane," she said.

Damage to the four-story condominium, in the wood frame stage of construction, was estimated at $400,000. Damage to the residential building was put at $250,000 with another $100,000 in damage to contents of the building. Damage to the windows across the street was estimated at $5,000, DiDomenico said.

Erma Hughes, 88, clad in a pink bathrobe, said her apartment is on the side of the building opposite the construction site and found out about the fire when a friend across the hall telephoned her.

She saw the blaze when she went to help her friend leave.

"It was just a solid wall of flame, an enormous burst," she said.

Farm Scene

By Mitch Smith
Agricultural Extension Agent

Each year insect pressure poses threats to the success of many agricultural crops. This year has again proven to be the case. A closer look reveals that presently, the fall armyworm and the tobacco hornworm are threatening corn and tobacco.

The fall armyworm has reportedly been found in much of the late planted corn of 1984. This insect overwinters in Florida and along the Gulf Coast. It is usually a serious pest of corn in July and August. This insect usually occurs in small numbers, but larger populations have been known to cause extensive damage.

Treatment for fall armyworms should be postponed until 75 percent of the corn has tasseled. The threshold to be reached is when eight of every 10 plants have at least one worm present. Timing is critical because treatments should be made after the worms have exposed themselves from the whorl but before they bore into the ears.

Spray application can be done by either ground or air depending upon the height of the corn. If aerial application is to be used, a rate of five gallons of water per acre is recommended.

Hornworms are presently the primary pest in tobacco. This worm is one of the more destructive pests due to the fact that two worms can almost completely defoliate a tobacco plant. Tobacco hornworms overwinter in the soil and emerge in early June to late August. Moths can be seen at dusk depositing heavy masses in late August and early September.

Earlier populations of this insect offer the greatest threat to tobacco. Worms present later in the season are attracted to excessive sucker growth.

The tobacco hornworm is controlled by a number of natural enemies. One of the more popular beneficial insects is called the braconid parasite. This parasite spins numerous white cocoons on the back of the worm. These cocoons live at the expense of the worm and the feeding habits are severely reduced.

Control of the hornworm is recommended when one of every ten plants are infested. Worms counted should be at least one inch long. Parasitized worms count as one-fifth of a regular worm.

More effective control can be seen with stalk destruction and fall plowing to reduce overwintering populations.

Promptness Costly

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Promptness may be a virtue, but a director's speedy work apparently cost Richard Pryor a chance to converse with royalty.

Princess Anne of Great Britain was to have met Pryor on the set of his new film, "Brewster's Millions," when she stopped by Universal Studios during her recent visit to Los Angeles.

But director Walter Hill, working ahead of schedule, had on a previous day completed the scene the princess was to have viewed.

Views On Dental Health

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S., P.A.

A BAD BITE

A bad bite can cause a lot of trouble for children and parents. In dentistry, we call this malocclusion, the improper contact between teeth and jaws when biting.

There are lots of causes, including loss of teeth through decay or accident. Bad mouth habits can cause it, too, such as thumbsucking, tongue thrusting, or breathing through the mouth.

The best thing to do is pay close attention to your child's teeth as soon as they grow into place. First teeth or baby teeth have a big effect on permanent teeth. By looking for wear marks and other signs a dentist can tell if crossbite or other problems are beginning. As the baby teeth are replaced with permanent teeth, sometimes the new tooth may come through crooked or push other teeth out of line.

The earlier problems are handled, the better chance your dentist has to correct them and keep your child's teeth healthy. Major corrective treatment, such as orthodonture, can often be avoided with proper early dental care.

Wedding Vows Said On Sunday

Rita Elizabeth Randolph of Winterville and William Russell Cayton of Atlantic Beach were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at three o'clock in the Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Martin Armstrong III and a program of wedding music was presented by organist Stephen Vaughn and soloist Stephanie Creech. Selections included "The Wedding Benediction," "A Wedding Prayer" and "That's the Way."

The bride is the daughter of Melva A. Jones of Winterville and the late David Keith Jones. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Alvy Cayton of Greenville.

Given in marriage by her mother, the bride wore a formal gown of candlelight silk organza over peau de soie designed by Illisa. The gown was fashioned with a high neckline encircled with re-embroidered alencon lace beaded with pearls and iridescent sequins. The fitted bodice was fashioned with a sheer yoke of imported English net with appliques of beaded lace extending over the bodice front and accentuating the basque waistline. The full bishop styled sleeves were capped at the shoulder with beaded appliques. The sheer fitted cuffs were fashioned in English net applied in lace to form calla points over the hand. The gown back featured a deep scooped yoke of English net centered with covered buttons and outlined in beaded lace which extended the length of the attached chapel length train. She wore a open caplet of silk flowers interspersed with pearl peps, with a tiered illusion veil featuring a pencil edged trim. She carried a full silk cascading bouquet featuring white dendrobium orchids and peach ginster.

Maid of honor was Sarah Edwards of Greenville. She wore a formal gown of peach matte taffeta designed with an open sweetheart neckline and off-shoulder draped sleeves. The fitted bodice was enhanced with a cummerbund of coral taffeta featuring a tiered bustle drape at the back. The sheath styled skirt was fashioned with a split V-opening at the neckline. She carried peach colored silk ginster and wood roses tied with satin ribbons.

Bridesmaids were Pamela Dixon of Grimesland, sister of the bridegroom, April Crouse of Chocowinity and Hilda Grady of Ayden, both sisters of the bride. Junior bridesmaids were Nicole and Sabrina Randolph, daughters of the bride from Winterville. Each attendant wore a gown of coral taffeta with styled like that of the maid of honor. The gowns featured a peach cummerbund and bustle. Each attendant carried a cluster of silk peach irised with springerli and satin ribbons.

Flower girl was Emily Crouse of Chocowinity, niece of the bride. She wore a dress like that of the attendants and carried a white fireside basket with mixed silk peach rose petals and satin ribbons.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Steven Cayton of Goldsboro, brother of the bridegroom, Scottie Dixon of Grimesland, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Chuck Murray of Greenville.

Teen-Ager's Letter Gets Panned, Praised

DEAR ABBY: For years, the first thing I used to read in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat was your column, but you have just lost a reader.

Why? Because I hate your reruns! These people who ask you to print a letter because they think it's so good, let them get a scrapbook and save the ones they like, so the rest of us won't have to be bored with them. "Please, God, I'm Only 17," about the dead teen-ager in a car wreck, is one I really hate. I don't feel sorry for some jerk kid who kills himself doing 80 mph in a souped-up jalopy. I see kids like him every day around here, bouncing up and down in their seats, hitting the roof of the car with their heads. Most of them are either so high on dope or drunk on beer they can't feel a thing. And they all turn up their radios so loud you can hear them a block away.

This may sound cold to you, but if they kill themselves, it's fine with me; there's just one less nut on the road.

Like I said, Abby, you just lost a reader in St. Louis.
—FRED D., ELDON, MO.

DEAR FRED: Sorry, I hate to lose a reader, but I've heard from hundreds of readers (mostly teen-agers) urging me to run that letter every year. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old boy, and I usually have fairly good control of my emotions. I mean, it takes a lot to make me cry, but when I read that letter in your column, "Please, God, I'm Only 17," I couldn't hold back the tears. I just never had anything hit me like that letter did.

It made me realize a lot of things. For one, it made me realize how much it would hurt my parents and grandparents if I ended up like that kid did, all because I chose to drive faster than I should.

It also made me promise myself that I would never, never take a drink of anything—not even beer—and then get behind the wheel of a car. I also promised myself that if I am in a car and the driver starts to drive recklessly or foolishly fast, I will try to talk some sense into him—or her—and if I can't, I will insist on being let out of that car no matter where I am or what time it is.

Thank you, Abby, for printing that letter. Please run it every spring just before the kids have their proms because that's the time most kids get killed in car accidents.

I never realized how much one letter could change my life. Keep up

Martin Respected

R.L. (Bob) Martin of Bethel is respected in Pitt County as a long time member of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners and currently is its chairman.

Through the years he has governed conservatively, but has not been afraid to support expenditures which truly benefit the people of our county and promote our progress. He is as universally appreciated in Pitt County as any politician can be.

This year he decided to put his years of governmental experience to further use by seeking a seat in the N.C. Senate. There was to be a crooked road ahead, however, when a federal court ruled that several districts would have to be redistricted to meet racial guidelines. Martin, who was to have run in a district which included only six Pitt County precincts. The rest of the district was spread over Edgecombe, Nash and Wilson Counties.

Few would predict how Bob Martin would run in the nearby counties. It turned out he ran very well. He swept Pitt and Edgecombe Counties, along with the Martin County precincts and lost only in Wilson County, which was carried by a local candidate.

Martin has been challenged by Shelly Willingham of Tarboro for a runoff election. The first primary has shown that Martin is a popular candidate in areas outside Pitt County. It has to be pleasing to those of us who recognize Martin's outstanding abilities to see that many other voters share this appraisal.

Tobacco Improved

This is the most critical of times for area farm crops particularly tobacco. And despite dry weather followed by heavy rainfall the state's tobacco crop seems to be in good condition.

John Cyrus, tobacco specialist with the N.C. Department of Agriculture sees this year's crop as one of the best in recent years. The rains so far have been helpful, although several dry days are needed to dry out the crop and allow the leaves to fill out and develop. Cyrus cautioned farmers not to harvest too quickly. The tobacco should be allowed to mature properly to obtain the quality that is needed.

A tobacco crop of good quality is badly needed by growers this year. We seem to be on the way to such a crop, if the weather will cooperate and the tobacco is handled carefully.

Democrats Skirted Resolution

SAN FRANCISCO — Climaxing months of agonizing over what to do about the Rev. Jesse Jackson, the Democratic Party flinched last Tuesday when its national convention sidetracked a resolution that, while naming no names, forthrightly repudiates anti-Semitism.

It was offered by the leader of Walter F. Mondale's Ohio campaign, Cuyahoga County (Cleveland) Commissioner Tim Hagan. A passionate liberal, Hagan has been heartsick over Jackson's refusal to come to grips with the blatant anti-Semitism of his vocal supporter, Nation of Islam minister Louis Farrakhan.

But when Jackson and other black leaders protested that Hagan's resolution was directed against them, Democratic National Committee officials and Mondale campaign leaders prevailed on him not to press the repudiation on the convention floor. Unwilling to confront their Jesse problem, the Democrats in San Francisco joined the list of past national conventions of both parties that refused to condemn extremism for fear of offending a constituency group. Invariably, they paid for that faintness of heart.

Democratic leaders all year long have wrestled with the prospective disaster to the party implied by the Jackson campaign's anti-Semitic overtone. Their problem: how to mollify the important Jewish minority without driving off Jackson and his millions of newly-registered black voters.

To Tim Hagan, this was no political balancing act. It was a matter of principle. Working with Jewish clergymen, he drafted a resolution stating that the Democratic Party "repudiates and completely disassociates itself from people who practice all forms of hatred, bigotry, racism and anti-Semitism."

Jackson immediately labeled the resolution as an attack on him, a theme picked up by key black leaders in the party — including the influential Rep. Mickey Leland of Texas. Democratic National Chairman Charles T. Mannatt requested Hagan not to press for floor action and let the matter go before the Democratic National Committee Friday after the convention ends.

Sen. Gary Hart's forces were willing to back Hagan, but Mondale strategists asked him not to make trouble. The resolution would come up the very night Jackson was speaking. As a loyal Mondalite, Hagan agreed — but without illusions. "If we can't pass something like this, we're in a hell of a shape as an institution," he told us. "I don't believe what's happening."

What's happening is partly the RALEIGH — Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, had heard enough. A veteran legislator, he'd heard numerous environmental debates during his years in Raleigh. He'd heard, as he put it, both environmentalists and businessmen warn that "the plan of salvation was about to be rewritten" if one side or the other didn't get its way. As one of the most powerful members of the House, and a man once voted its most conservative member, his opinion of the proposed phosphate ban would hold great sway with others.

In a short eloquent speech, Watkins enthusiastically supported the ban. He admitted that he'd voted against most environmental bills during his tenure and he confessed that it was probably a good thing that a few of those bills had passed despite his lack of support. North Carolina now needs tougher environmental laws, he said, and the phosphate ban was a good place to start.

Although the phosphate ban passed the House, it failed in the Senate. It was about the only setback for environmentalists this year. They earned passage of several important bills, but maybe more importantly, they saw their movement mature in 1984.

No longer is the environment a sideshow in the General Assembly. In 1984, the phosphate ban took center stage in the closing weeks and managed to tie up the bank lobby's much sought after interstate banking bill. Nor is the battle the mismatch it once was with a few liberal legislators and college professors fighting powerful committee chairmen and the business world. In 1984, the now and future kings of the assembly were squarely on the side of the environment.

The phosphate ban was supported by House Speaker Liston Ramsey and by Sen. Bob Jordan, D-Montgomery, the Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor. Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green opposed the bill and signed its death warrant by sending it to an unfriendly committee. It had passed the House by a wide margin and Jordan says he could have passed it through the Senate if he'd gotten it to the floor.

The legislative mood for environmental issues is improving for several reasons. First, there's the change in Senate leadership. Jordan, a fairly certain winner in November, is much more environmentally attuned than was Green.

A second factor is the growth in seniority of legislators who hold the environment as a paramount concern. Rep. Charles Evans, D-Dare, for example, had power to help his phosphate ban bill this year because, as chairman of the powerful banking committee, he had a hold on the banking bill.

Also, the environment has become an issue which the corporate community must now be concerned with. For example, the N.C. Citizens for Business and Industry was instrumental this past year in working out a hazardous wastes treatment compromise that sailed through the assembly in June.

Finally, the environment is an issue about which the public has become concerned. As Sen. Russell Walker, D-Randolph, said, "All of us are reading the newspapers and seeing on TV the kind of things happening." Things, he said, like acid rain, leaking hazardous waste dumps, water and air pollution. The public fears for its own health and for the health of rivers and forests.

Watkins says early environmental warnings went largely unheeded here because without visible environmental damage "it was harder to convince everybody that pollution was a problem." He said pollution in the state is not all that bad now, but it is becoming visible and that is convincing some people that something must be done to fight pollution.

Reader Urges Less Food Intake

To the editor:

Obesity is a slowly suicidal disease. It is unnatural for the body to have more fat than it requires for its necessary functions. Nevertheless, no other ailment is so lightly considered. 99 percent of overweight is due to increased food intake over normal requirements.

Why do people get fat? What causes them to accept an unsightly abnormality? Obesity often occurs in families. Is it glandular? Is it hereditary? Perhaps. However, it is more likely they are fat because they have been brought up on fattening food. Eating is a habit as well as an urge of self-preservation.

The fat man is not necessarily the happy man. On the contrary, among the common causes of added weight are nervousness and frustration. Divorce, loss of a loved one, transfer from one job to another less enjoyed, fear of illness — these are a few of the many reasons why people overeat.

Obesity is the beginning of many diseases. High blood pressure, heart disease, diabetes, gall bladder disease, and many forms of arthritis thrive in the fat man. For this reason, treatment of obesity and recognition of its potentialities for harm are important for good health.

One out of every four persons in this country is overweight. If weight is more than 10 percent above normal, life expectancy is reduced about one-fifth.

Exercise alone will not take off poundage. According to recent tests at the University of Alabama, you would have to walk 66 miles at four m.p.h. to take off one pound.

No other enemy of modern man can be so easily vanquished as obesity. The question is: Just how eager are you to win? Benjamin Franklin said: "To lengthen thy life, lessen thy meals."

Greenville

To the editor:

As a resident of the Greenville area and a member of the Greenville Area Preservation Association, I would like to urge the City of Greenville to create an historic district from Fifth Street to the Tar River, as suggested in a letter to the editor of your newspaper by Maury York. I don't think that it is fair to the residents of Greenville to destroy a neighborhood to provide more parking lots for East Carolina University. ECU has a huge parking problem behind the library. I suggest that, in the long run, it would be more convenient and possibly cheaper to build a parking deck on this lot. If Greenville allows the wanton destruction of older buildings to continue at the rate of the last 10 years, 10 years from now will we have any buildings more than 25 years old?

Paul G. Little
Box 182, Winterville

To the editor:

All we hear lately is how great it is that the good Rev. Jesse Jackson has been here and there gaining freedom for this prisoner and that prisoner. The question is: Do we really need these prisoners back in our society at this time? Do we not have enough drug pushers and assorted criminal types already.

The trip he made to free our navy lieutenant from his captors was in my eyes a good deed, but there are the ones left that almost everyone has forgotten. They are the POWs and the MIAs of the Vietnam War who number about 2500. Why doesn't he go there and bring back these men? These prisoners are not drug dealers, rapists or any type of criminals. They are good men that were sent by us to do a job that we needed done. These men are heroes, fathers and sons of good American people who would love to see them free again. Jesse, go after them if you wish to make points with all of America!

Mystery Crate

I was getting off the airplane at the San Francisco airport when I saw a large wooden crate standing on the tarmac. Several customs officials were staring at it.

"What's going on?" I asked the chief customs inspector.

"We're not sure. We think we can hear a human voice from within."

"It's addressed to the Democratic National Convention, Moscone Hall," I said. "It's probably a stack of 'Fritz for Pres' placards or 'We Want Teddy' balloons," I told the man.

"We can't take any chances. It could be something bigger than that. It could be Gary Hart."

"Why would Gary Hart arrive in a crate?"

"He doesn't have much chance for the nomination and he might be trying to do something dramatic to turn the convention around."

"Well, if Gary Hart wants to arrive in a crate, what concern is it of yours?"

"It might not be Gary Hart. It could be Louis Farrakhan or Phyllis Schlafly. We don't like people arriving in San Francisco in wooden boxes."

"What are those German shepherd dogs doing?"

"They're trained to sniff out suspicious crates addressed to the Democratic convention, just to make sure if they're accredited or not."

"If couldn't be Mrs. Ferraro, could it?"

"No, we've eliminated her, now that Mondale has announced she would be his running mate. There would be no sense in her arriving by box since there would be no element of surprise."

"What made you people pick that particular box?"

"For one thing it wasn't marked 'FRAGILE' or 'THIS SIDE UP,' and it wasn't insured. Then when two people from the Democratic National Committee showed up in a van to claim the crate, they didn't argue when we refused to turn it over, and just drove away. This aroused our suspicions that it was Gary Hart, because now that he is no longer a vice presidential possibility the DNC doesn't care how he shows up at the convention."

"Maybe it's Jesse Jackson?" I suggested.

"We've ruled him out. He'd never arrive by crate without tipping off the media."

"Maybe it's just one of the speakers scheduled to address the convention."

"Yes, but why would a speaker arrive in a crate?"

"Perhaps he didn't want to come in the first place, and that was the only way to get him out here."

"We won't know until the court order to open the box arrives."

"Is there any law about shipping someone to the Democratic convention in a crate?"

"Not if he was provided with enough food and water. Otherwise the ASPCA will bring charges."

Someone handed the Chief a court order and he went toward the crate with a hammer and crowbar.

—Elisha Douglass—

Strength For Today

Some one has described the difference between a young person and an old one as whether the person in question looks forward or backward. Young people are always looking forward. The best is yet to come; their achievements and goals are ahead of them. Old people tend to look backward to the good old days. They may reflect on the past pleasures and regret that little remains in the future for them.

But today old age no longer means the end of activity. One man in his seventies now enjoys the motorboat for which he never had time previously. Another is writing a book. These people are old in years but not in attitude. They have not stopped looking forward to tomorrow and planning to be useful and happy in it. Remember the famous lines of Robert Browning:

"Grow old along with me!

The best is yet to be,

The last of life, for which the first was made."

The Dicamba Problem And How We're Solving It.

Ever since early June, when extension specialists began to report instances of dicamba damage to tobacco crops, W.R. Grace & Co. has been working with the growers to resolve the problem quickly and fairly.

A letter precisely describing the claims settlement procedure has already been sent to every grower whose crop has suffered damage from traces of the herbicide dicamba found in some Grace fertilizer products produced at Wilmington, NC.

Insurance adjusters are in the process right now of visiting every single grower who has filed a claim. In the meantime growers should continue to cultivate, harvest and cure their crops as usual.

As the assessment procedure clearly indicates, settlements are being sought on an absolutely individual basis.

Adjustments will be based on the full market value of poundage losses due to dicamba damage, with fair allowances for the location of the damaged leaves on the plants, since the higher leaves normally command higher prices.

Growers will also be compensated fairly in instances where they will be unable to recover losses of carryover poundage. Where a loss of carryover poundage is recoverable, however, its value will be taken into account.

If you have not received a letter in response to your claim, or if you have any questions, call us toll-free at 1-800-672-9300, Ext. 290; or call our insurance carrier CNA, collect, at (919) 782-3606.

We've been meeting the needs of tobacco growers since 1904. We're not about to stop now.

Candidates Discuss The Issues

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Trying to become the state's second Republican governor this century, U.S. Rep. Jim Martin last weekend appeared eager to project a conservative image — but without depending on Sen. Jesse Helms. Despite a cancellation by his Democratic opponent, Attorney General Rufus Edmisten, Martin, along with the two candidates for lieutenant governor — Sen. Bob Jordan, D-Montgomery, and Republican John Carrington of Cary — gave an audience of reporters, editors and publishers some early impressions. Edmisten told the North Carolina Press Association Saturday he couldn't attend the session because of a meeting with fellow state attorneys general following the Democratic National Convention in San Francisco.

The candidates discussed a wide range of issues including the economy, education and Walter Mondale's choice of New York Rep. Geraldine Ferraro as a vice presidential running mate. Martin touted his near-perfect ratings by conservative publications during his six terms in Congress and espoused traditional conservative economic philosophy, emphasizing lower taxes and government efficiency.

However, Martin stopped short of supporting one of Helms' pet projects — a constitutional amendment prohibiting abortions — and said his campaign was not affiliated with Helms' political arm, the National Congressional Club.

Martin said the club will "have full responsibility for the Helms campaign and I thought early on ... that it would be better for them to (devote) their full attention to that race."

In a state where Republicans are outnumbered 3-to-1, Martin shied away from sharp criticism of the Democratic Party.

He said Mondale's choice of Ms. Ferraro was "basically good," but mildly pointed out that the ticket lacked "philosophical balance." Carrington used tougher language, saying the Democrats were offering "the same old people, the same old philosophy," and blaming the majority party for budget deficits he said were brought on by "50 years of giveaways."

North Carolina would benefit from a stronger two-party system, Martin and Carrington said, adding that they were undaunted by the prospect of facing a hostile Legislature controlled by Democrats.

Martin said he expected to be "tested," but said "all governors have some problems getting programs through the General Assembly." He said he had detected "a willingness there, a spirit of good will ... to work with whoever's elected."

For his part, Jordan said Democrats realized that their first obligation was to "do what's right for the people." But he acknowledged that Martin might have some trouble getting legislative approval of "political appointments."

Jordan promised to involve more senators in the legislative decision-making process if elected lieutenant governor. The four-term senator stressed his experience in local and state government, a subject he apparently will raise often during the campaign against Carrington, a political newcomer.

Supporters Say Mondale Needs Charisma To Do Well in N.C.

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Take a little charisma, add more than a dash of economic and foreign policy, then whip with a party machine and Democrats might come up with a recipe for electing Walter Mondale president, say North Carolinians.

The state's 88 delegates to the Democratic National Convention last week quickly turned their attention to the fall campaign against Ronald Reagan after selecting Mondale their nominee.

In North Carolina, electing Mondale could be difficult. The latest polls agree that the Republican president holds a healthy margin over Mondale. Some delegates stress registering more voters who are likely to support a Democrat — women, blacks and young people.

"We will have to pull together all the Democratic candidates' people and ... work on massive voter registration," said Melanie Reid, a Mondale delegate from Burlington.

She said Democrats will have to put Mondale in a "new conservative package" for many North Carolinians to accept him. But she said Democrats could appeal to voters' American ideals with New York Gov. Mario Cuomo's story, to everyday working people with the Rev. Jesse Jackson and to women with New York Rep. Geraldine Ferraro as the vice presidential candidate.

George Cunningham, a Hart delegate from Wilkesboro, believes that voter registration combined with a get-out-the-vote effort will help Mondale win.

Hunt stressed such grassroots organization in a speech to the delegation. He asked delegates to constantly search for votes and to help open county campaign headquarters by Aug. 1.

Kirsten Nyrop, a Hart delegate from Raleigh, said she would be helping the party compile volunteer lists that include a large number of political newcomers. She said she'll also be pushing for some specific proposals from Mondale about how to implement his philosophies.

"We are strong on rhetoric," she said. "I'd like to hear some specifics."

Ms. Nyrop said there are four key issues to her — jobs, foreign policy, Social Security and education.

LaVonnia Allison, a Jackson delegate from Durham, said her top three priorities are jobs, peace and justice.

Former U.S. Sen. Robert Morgan, a Mondale delegate and head of the candidate's North Carolina campaign, said he thinks Democrats can win votes by comparing their proposals with the GOP administration's recent record.

"They have done what the Republican administrations have always done," Morgan said. "They've enhanced the upper class to trickle down, but some people have been hurt."

Morgan also cited the foreign trade deficit and the federal budget deficit. He said Democrats should campaign on farm policy too, noting that Mondale said he believes tobacco will be sold and the question is where the leaf will be raised.

Former Gov. Terry Sanford said he thinks Mondale needs more than issues and organization to win this fall.

"I think the question is will Mondale, now that he got the nomination, come with the kind of excitement ... to put him in a contending position all over this country," Sanford said. "It's up to the candidate."

Sanford predicted that Ms. Ferraro's spot on the ticket will be a plus in North Carolina.

"Anyway you look at it it would have to be a plus," he said.

Ms. Allison said Mondale must "turn on" voters who have been lost or turned off by the process.

"The only way to turn on people is to make them feel good," she said. "People feel good when they feel like they're part of the system, that the system is responsive to them," she said, adding that many Jackson delegates still are waiting to see the impact of their campaign.

New Owners Point To Long-Term Stay

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Despite following a long line of caretakers during the past decade, the firm taking over Pinehurst Country Club and Golf Course is no fly-by-night owner, a company official says.

"We're here for the long run, because when we get a club, we get married to it," said James M. Hinckley, senior vice president of operations and development for Club Corporation of America. "There's been some uncertainty of ownership over the last 10 years, and there's been a cloud over the direction and future of Pinehurst. We want to put an end to that."

Hinckley said the company is still planning Pinehurst's future. The only announced capital improvement is the construction of a seventh golf course near the World Golf Hall of Fame.

He said the company would be select a manager soon and planned to bring in a team to assess the operation of the club and develop a strategy for development.

Dallas-based CCA, which has been in the club business since 1957, announced its purchase of Pinehurst earlier this month. CCA is the second resort development firm to own Pinehurst.

In 1970 the heirs of Pinehurst founder Edgar Tufts sold the resort to Diamondhead Corp. for $9 million, but cash flow problems in the last 1970s forced the company to restructure its debts and use the resort for collateral on $73 million in loans to Pinehurst Inc.

Three years later, Pinehurst Inc. was sold for $104 million to the consortium of banks that provided Diamondhead the loans. With the banks in control, a $4 million capital improvement program was launched.

"The banks brought stability to Pinehurst," Hinckley said. "Business is up over last year, but we think there is room for more and that's why we're getting involved." He declined to disclose the terms of the purchase.

Residents say the years of temporary ownership took a toll on the six golf courses and in the resort buildings.

"When I first got here, everything was in good condition, but things started going down shortly after that," said Boyd N. Walker, who moved to the resort seven years ago. "It was the condition of the greens and fairways...I don't know whether it was lack of fertilizer, lack of care or lack of knowledge, but 90 percent of the people here will agree with me on that." Walker, chairman of the Pinehurst Golf Club's nine-member board of governors, said the capital improvements by the bank consortium made a difference.

"The problem Pinehurst had in the '70s was that Diamondhead was primarily in the business of land sales," Hinckley said. "It used Pinehurst to draw people here. And when the banks took over, they did not want to be here for the long run either."

CCA owns more than 115 clubs worldwide, including the Firestone Country Club in Akron, Ohio, the Inverrary Country Club in Lauderhill, Fla., and the Capital City Club in Raleigh.

Mental Health Perspectives

Intermediary Care Facility
by Lillian Hussey
Communication Specialist

For many years families with mentally retarded children had only two choices, either place the child in an institution or provide care for them at home. Those who resisted "residential care" at first eventually are faced with the problem of who will care for their child when they are gone.

Through the years the institutions have changed their emphasis from "residential care" to "education to the individual's fullest potential." Borderline, moderately, and severely retarded individuals are taught self-care skills and are given training to help them become as independent as possible.

With the current emphasis on deinstitutionalization many of the borderline and moderately retarded are being removed from the state institutions. A relatively new concept of care has been introduced which provides a home-like atmosphere with a small group. The group home concept provides a reasonable alternative for parents who resisted institutionalization, and a more independent living arrangement for retarded individuals coming out of institutions.

The new Pitt County Group Home for Mentally Retarded/Autistic Persons was officially opened in the spring. The home is located in Grifton and currently serves five residents. If you would like more information on this type of program call Mental Retardation Services at 752-7151.

Sales Brisk As Penthouse Hits The Stands

By MARY MacVEAN
Associated Press Writer

Newsstands across the country are reporting sellouts and waiting lists as people who don't usually buy "girlie" magazines, male and female, clamor to pay $4 for the Penthouse magazine featuring nude photographs of Vanessa Williams, Miss America.

"Penthouse, Penthouse, Penthouse. I only started at 7 o'clock, and 200 people have asked me about it," Nazir Muhammad, a clerk at an independent newsstand in New York's Times Square, said today shortly after midnight.

"I have a list of 78 people, a waiting list," said Curtis Thomas of The Final Edition in University City, Mo. "I haven't seen anything like this since the Joan Collins Christmas Playboy issue."

Penthouse rushed the magazines to vendors ahead of schedule, and nearly 800 copies were sold at one

Dallas newsstand and 300 at one in Bridgeport, Conn., over the weekend. Other vendors said the exposure of a beauty queen has sparked brisk sales and those who had yet to receive the magazine said inquiries were unusually high.

The photos of Miss America in intimate poses with another woman, prompted pageant promoters to ask the 21-year-old beauty to resign her crown. She was to announce her decision today.

The photographs are part of September's special "15th Anniversary" issue of Penthouse, priced at $4 - $1 more than usual. "They're going out like everything," said a clerk at the Commerce Street Newsstand in Dallas. The clerk, who refused to be identified, said 39 bundles, with about 20 magazines in each, were sold Sunday.

"It's really a hot item, incredible," said Steven Davis, a clerk at the DeLauer News Agency in Oakland, Calif., which had not received the magazine Sunday night.

"Me alone, I've got at least 50 people" on a waiting list, Davis said. "We have a lot of people come in and secretly buy it, but not many people call up and ask for it."

A clerk in Pittsburgh said he sold 40 to 50 copies Sunday. "They come right in and ask for it," said the clerk at the McKnight Road News Co., who would not give his name.

At the Eastern Newsstand in Chicago, customers were buying up to five copies apiece, said owner P. Shas, adding he sold 215 copies over the weekend and planned to order 200 more.

In Bridgeport, Conn., many stores had sought additional copies, but Philip Grusso, assistant manager of Fairfield County News Co., said his distribution agency was unable to fill the orders.

The News Corner in Bridgeport sold 300 copies of the magazine Saturday and Sunday, said clerk Andrew Voitek.

"The words 'Miss America' and 'controversial' are synonymous in this situation," said Thomas, in Missouri.

Five Widows File Lawsuits

AHOSKIE - The widows of five men who died as a result of an explosion at an aluminum manufacturing plant here last Sept. 16, have filed lawsuits charging the operators, designers and private inspectors of the facility with negligence.

The complaints were filed by the Greenville law firm of Dixon, Duffus & Doub last week in Wake County Superior Court on behalf of the former employees of Carolina Billets Co.

The plaintiffs are Beulah M. Anthony, wife of Claude M. Anthony who died Oct. 6; Mary J. Sharpe, wife of Norman L. Sharpe, who died Sept. 24; Bernadette A. Lani, wife of Robert V. Lani who died Oct. 4; Marlene J. Mueller, wife of William A. Mueller who died Sept. 25; and Ruth Ann Orndoff, wife of Gerald Leo Orndoff who died Oct. 31.

Each of the complaints seeks compensatory and punitive damages in excess of $10,000.

The defendants include: Daum and Dewey Inc. of Vienna, Ohio, the company that designed and installed the equipment in the plant; Horizon Castings Co. of Cleveland, Ohio, manufacturer of the water jackets for casting units in the plant; Peirson and Whitman Inc. of Raleigh, an engineering firm that designed the plant; Easco Aluminum of Girard, Ohio, Easco Corp. of Baltimore, Md., and New Jersey Aluminum of New Brunswick, N.J., companies that were involved in the manufacture, distribution and sales of products made at Carolina Billets (a subsidiary of Easco Aluminum); and Industrial Risk Insurers of Hartford, Conn., which allegedly evaluated the Ahoskie facility to determine if it met industry standards.

Pitt Residents Take Part In Rescue College

DURHAM - More than 500 students attended the 23rd annual North Carolina Rescue College held at the Durham Public Safety training center over the past two weekends.

The school, now sponsored by the N.C. Insurance Department's Fire and Rescue Service Division, was founded in Greenville, in 1961, through the joint efforts of the Greenville rescue squad, the Insurance Department and the state rescue squad association.

A number of Pitt County residents were among students taking part in the training program this year, including representatives from Ayden and Eastern Pines rescue squads, the Greenville Fire-Rescue Department and the Pitt County fire marshal's office.

Three former members of the old Greenville Rescue Squad were among the staff instructors on hand to help students learn skills such as rescue from heights, the proper use of hand and power tools in auto extrication, rappelling, fire extinguishers, incident command, preventative maintenance for ambulances and self-contained breathing apparatus. They included: Wilburn Small of Wilson, an instructor with the N.C. Department of Insurance; Stuart Savage, a staff writer for The Daily Reflector; and Joe Burris of Newton, a shift supervisor and training officer for the Catawba County EMS System.

Another former Greenville rescue squad member, Dawson Nethercutt of Chapel Hill, director of training for the Insurance Department's Fire and Rescue Services Division and director of the rescue college until his retirement two years ago, serves as a consultant to the school.

Nethercutt, Savage and Graham Johnson of Elkin, the Insurance Department's senior rescue instructor and assistant director of the rescue college, are the only people on hand for the rescue college's first classes in Greenville, who are still affiliated with the school.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market sold off sharply today amid concern over continuing rapid growth of the economy.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped 12.37 to 1,089.00 in the first half hour.

Losers outnumbered gainers by more than 3 to 1 in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Before the market opened, the Commerce Department said the Gross National Product grew at a 7.5 percent annual rate, after adjustment for inflation, in the second quarter of the year.

That marked a substantial upward revision from the earlier "flash" estimate of 5.7 per cent for the April-June period. At the same time, the department raised the economic-growth figure for the first quarter from 9.7 to 10.1 percent.

Strong growth is good news for many individuals. But many Wall Streeters fear that the more rapid pace of the economy, the sooner it will outrun its capacity, reviving inflation or precipitating a new recession.

Analysts are also worried about strains on the credit markets and upward pressure on interest rates. Long-term interest rates rose in the bond market this morning.

Among today's early volume leaders, General Motors dropped 1 to 66 3/4; Eastman Kodak lost 1/2 to 71 1/4, and International Business Machines was down 1 to 105 1/2.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 1.55 to 1,101.37, bringing its loss for the week to 8.50 points.

Declines outpaced advances by about 2 to 1 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 79.08 million shares, against 85.23 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index fell .47 to 86.21. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 1.13 at 191.12.

Singer Injured
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Steve Tyler, lead singer of the rock group Aerosmith, escaped injury when he fell from a stage during a weekend concert at the Prairie Capital Convention Center.
Tyler's fall Saturday forced the cancellation of the concert after 45 minutes, and 20 police officers were called when some of the 6,000 angry fans began demanding refunds, said Cmdr. Bob Shipman.

Amtrak Trains Collide In N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP) — Two Amtrak passenger trains apparently crashed head-on today in "a major accident" on a bridge, Amtrak and Fire Department officials said. Scores of people were injured, including one critically.

"Evidently it was a head-on collision," said John McLeod, an Amtrak spokesman in Washington. "We have a major accident, multiple injuries, no fatalities," said Fire Department spokesman John Mulligan.

"Upwards of 100 minor injuries" were reported, with one of them critical, said Ellen Weiman, a spokeswoman for the city's Emergency Medical Service.

The Shoreliner, out of Boston, and the New England Zip, out of Washington, crashed at about 10:45 a.m. at the Sixth Avenue bridge on the Hell Gate line in the Astoria section of the borough of Queens, said McLeod.

"The location is two-track territory and it is reported that number one track had been put out of service for maintenance," McLeod said.

He said the Shoreliner had left Boston at 6:35 a.m. and was due at Manhattan's Pennsylvania Station at 10:44 a.m. The New England Zip had left Penn Station at about 10:40 a.m., on the way to Boston.

"We heard a boom and that's what it was," said Joseph Specht, owner of Etcetera Wallpaper, a store located beneath the elevated tracks. "It sounded like a terrific explosion. I ran out and saw smoke...."

He said that from the street, "You can see the two trains. They're banged into each other."

Specht said cherry pickers were lifting emergency teams up to the tracks.

Earlier this month an Amtrak passenger train collided with a tanker truck in McBee, S.C., killing two people in the third fatal accident involving the railroad in a week. The other accidents were in South Carolina and Vermont.

Despite the rash of mishaps, Amtrak officials say only 20 passengers of the nationwide rail system have died between the time the system began service in 1971 and the end of March 1984.

Reported 99 derailments that resulted in 212 injuries and four deaths to passengers and crew.

Reagan Confers With Duarte

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan conferred today with President Jose Napoleon Duarte of El Salvador in a meeting underscoring the administration's continued support for the Central American country and kicking off a drive for more aid to the troubled region.

Duarte flew to Washington today from New York, where he arrived Sunday at completion of a five-nation tour through Western Europe. It was the second Duarte-Reagan meeting this year and their first since Duarte took over the presidency.

"We're delighted to have him here again," Reagan said as he posed for pictures with Duarte on a muggy, hot day outside the Oval Office on the colonnade overlooking the Rose Garden.

The meeting, scheduled for 30 minutes, came as Congress was returning from a three-week recess. The lawmakers faced an agenda that includes administration requests for $116 million in additional aid for El Salvador and $21 million in undercover funds for CIA-backed rebels fighting Nicaragua's Sandinista regime.

Before leaving town June 29, Congress allocated $62 million for El Salvador — about one-third of the amount requested by the administration — but refused to approve money for the Nicaragua contras.

GNP ...

Before adjustment for inflation, GNP rose at an annual rate of 10.9 percent in the second quarter, reaching a level of $3.646 trillion, after increasing 14.9 percent in the first quarter.

When inflation is taken into account, GNP increased at a 7.5 percent rate from April through June to a level of $1.64 trillion.

The GNP implicit price deflator, which takes into account changes in buying patterns as well as prices, posted a 3.2 percent rate of increase from April through June, its best performance since a 3.1 percent rate of increase in the third quarter of 1983.

On Friday, the Commerce Department reported that consumer spending rose a tiny 0.2 percent last month, sharply behind the 1.1 percent gain in May.

While the personal consumption figure was off from what had been expected, a string of other reports released in recent days showed a robust economy with low inflation.

Inflation at the wholesale level stayed at zero for the third straight month in June while unemployment fell to 7.1 percent, its lowest level since President Reagan took office.

All of the numbers would seem to indicate that Reagan will have little trouble with the economy through election day. While rising interest rates could spell trouble for long-term economic health, most economists predict recent increases will not turn the economy sour until after November.

A nervous Wall Street is looking to the Federal Reserve Board for any signals that it is tightening the credit screws further to make sure inflation does not return. Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker appears before Congress Wednesday and Thursday to discuss the central bank's monetary goals for the rest of 1984 and 1985.

Harvey Infant Dies In Raleigh

Julia Harvey, infant daughter of George H. and Margaret Jones Harvey of Raleigh, died Sunday following complications from congenital lung disease.

The baby, one of quadruplets born last Aug. 2 to Harvey, a Greenville native now a Raleigh attorney, and his wife, had been in Wake Medical Center since her birth. She had hyaline membrane disease, also called respiratory distress syndrome, a lung ailment common in premature infants. She and her three brothers — Warren, Harrison and Scott — were delivered 10 weeks prior to their due date.

Ballesteros Wins British

THE DAILY REFLECTOR

MONDAY AFTERNOON, JULY 23, 1984

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — The roar on the 18th green said it all. Severiano Ballesteros had snaked in a 15-foot putt and Tom Watson, one hole behind, knew that his dream of a record-equalling sixth British Open title was over ... at least for another year.

Almost predictably, it was the vicious 17th hole, the 461-yard, par-4 "Road Hole" that destroyed Watson's hopes.

With the title seemingly heading towards a Monday playoff after an exciting nip-and-tuck finale between the American and the Spaniard, Watson inexplicably overhit his second shot at the most crucial stage of the match.

After a strong drive to a good position on the fairway, his 2-iron shot flew across the road almost out of bounds and landed right next to a stone wall.

Watson knew his chance had virtually disappeared on the hole that had dashed the hopes of several other players before him.

"I wasn't quite sure what club I wanted to hit ... and I pushed it to the right on to the road. The ball ran up about two feet from the wall and restricted my backswing," he said.

The two-time defending champion did well to chip to within 30 feet of the pin but missed the putt and took a bogey.

By then, Ballesteros — who had either been in the lead, just behind or level with Watson for most of the day — had putted on 18 to edge ahead one last time at 12 under par.

As the crowd roared, the popular Spaniard clenched his fist, punched the air and smiled broadly.

Now Watson needed an eagle-2 to catch the Spaniard. He drove well but could not chip in from 93 yards and the title went to Ballesteros for the second time.

"Seve played very well today. I just did not have the feel. So be it," said the 34-year-old two-time defending champion.

Ballesteros, who won the Open for the first time in 1979, had not won a tournament all year and was naturally ecstatic. He had started the day tied for second with West Germany's Bernhard Langer at 9-under-par, two strokes behind Watson and young Australian Ian Baker-Finch.

Ballesteros said he wanted to win for his mother, Carmen, who had flown over from Spain to watch him play for the first time ever.

"When I holed the last putt, I was so excited, I almost killed my caddie with my hand," said an elated Ballesteros.

"I so nearly missed it. It was a difficult putt. But the distance was right and it just dropped in from the lip."

Ironically, the 17th hole had given Ballesteros more trouble than Watson in the previous three rounds.

Ballesteros went to the hole tied with Watson at 11 under par for the tournament.

"I was very pleased to make par this time because I'd had three 5s there," said Ballesteros. "I told my caddie I'd have to finish with at least two 4s to have a chance because I thought Watson would definitely make par on the 17th.

"The birdie putt on the 18th was the most important putt of my life."

Ballesteros' reputation for spectacular stroke play at times gave way to steady, almost clinical golf. That, he said, was the best way to play the historic, difficult Andrews links.

Except for his three 5s on 17, he made only two bogeys all week.

"I played very consistently."

Ballesteros disclosed that with his confidence low, he had been helped before the tournament by his two close friends on the circuit, Jaime Gonzalez of Brazil and Vicente Fernandez of Argentina.

"They really gave me some tips. I owe a lot to them," he said.

Yarborough Finishes Second

Gant Overcomes Pit Errors

LONG POND, Pa. (AP) — Three pit-stop mishaps almost convinced Harry Gant it was not his day, but when he took the lead in the Like Cola 500 with 16 laps to go, Gant said he knew he was headed for victory.

Gant edged Cale Yarborough by a car length Sunday to win the top prize of $34,605 in the $347,975 NASCAR Winston Cup event at Pocono International Raceway.

Gant, 44, of Taylorsville, N.C., said he had no doubts he would win after he slipped inside Yarborough and Bill Elliott as they were battling for the lead on the 184th lap.

"I was confident because the car was running as good as it had all year," he said. "On the final three laps, I was just trying to save the tires. I don't think the other two cars could have beaten me."

The victory ended a string of near-misses for Gant, who has finished second four times this season and 17 times in his career.

"I never gave up," Gant said. "I never thought that all of the things that were going wrong were going to keep me from winning."

Gant won the 200-lap race with an average speed of 121.351 mph.

Gant said a change that crew chief Travis Carter made to his Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS Sunday morning was a key to the victory, his first since capturing the TransSouth 500 at Darlington, S.C. in April 1983.

"My car would come off the third turn better than anyone else's," Gant said. "And I was able to run lower in the corners than anyone. These two advantages, plus having the strongest engine we've had this year, proved to be the difference."

"Travis made some changes in the chassis before the race and they were the right adjustments. He hit

Elliott finished third. Terry Labonte was fourth, two seconds behind Gant, with Benny Parsons completing the top five.

Rusty Wallace, Ron Buchard, Kyle Petty, Tim Richmond and point-leader Dale Earnhardt rounded out the top 10.

Gant ran into problems on lap 118 and lap 165.

Completing a stop on lap 118, Gant ran over his jack, a violation of NASCAR rules that forced him into the pit a lap later as a penalty. By the time he returned to the track, he was trailing leader Yarborough by 13.57 seconds.

Gant moved back into the lead when a yellow flag on lap 149 bunched up the leaders.

When Greg Sacks spun in the third turn on lap 165 to bring on the eighth of nine caution flags, Gant headed into the pit for four new tires.

But in the rush, Gant's Chevrolet clipped tires held by a member of his pit crew, knocking them out of the crewman's hands. The crew member, who was knocked down, wasn't hurt, but the mishap dropped Gant to eighth.

After running over the jack, "I was trying not to think," Gant said, smiling.

Then came the mishap with the crew member, and, he said, "I was thinking it was not our day."

Gant's first win of the year enabled him to become the 11th different driver to win a Winston Cup race this year. The record for most different winners in a season is 12, set a year ago.

Two drivers who were expected to battle for the lead encountered nothing but trouble during the day.

A broken oil line cost two-time national champion Darrell Waltrip six laps, and a broken push rod cost him another 27 laps. He had to settle for 22nd place.

Bobby Allison, who had won three of the last five races at Pocono, cut a tire on lap 32 and slammed into the second-turn wall, heavily damaging his Buick.

Allison returned to the track 59 laps later, completing the race without front fenders, a hood, and the rear portion of his car. He finished 28th.

Olympic swimmers, practicing for their events, swim close to 10 miles a day and also have several hours of weightlifting.

Byner Turns Heads In Browns' Camp

KIRTLAND, Ohio (AP) — Earnest Byner may be an obscure running back from East Carolina, but he's already begun making his mark in the Cleveland Browns' training camp.

"The thing Byner has that the other guys (backs) don't have is great hands," said Coach Sam Rutigliano. As a receiver, the coach said Byner is "better than Boyce Green, better than Mike Pruitt and better than Johnny Davis."

Pruitt, Davis and Green are the returning veterans at running back for Cleveland along with Charles White, who sat out last year because of the ankle injury. Another running back, Dwight Walker, is being tried at receiver, so there's apparently at least one spot open in the backfield.

Byner, the Browns' 10th-round pick in this year's National Football League draft, has a few things in common with Green, who had been an obscure running back from Carson-Newman. Green was the Browns' 11th-round pick in last year's NFL draft.

Byner is 5-foot-10, 210 pounds; Green is 5-11, 215.

They even look alike.

"The first day I got here, some of the players said I look just like Boyce Green," Byner said. "I don't mind that at all. In fact, it helps. But I still have to go through the same things he went through. He's been there. Now I have to go where he's been."

Rutigliano started raving about Byner the first few days of the Browns' summer camp at Lakeland Community College. But Rutigliano also knows what it took for Green to prove himself last summer.

"The first time we gave the ball to Boyce in a game, he ran 70 yards for a touchdown," Rutigliano recalled, referring to Green's performance against Buffalo in a pre-season game after Charles White broke an ankle. Green later in the season filled in for Pruitt and rushed for 137 yards in one game.

"Sometimes through adversity a star is born," Rutigliano said.

Byner on Saturday caught three passes for 24 yards in the Browns' scrimmage against the Buffalo Bills, although free agent James Black of Akron also caught three for 31 yards in that contest.

"I'm not the kind of guy who goes out and boasts," Byner said. "but I feel like I have a good chance to make it if I continue to work hard and the coaches see the same things I'm seeing."

Village Visitation Rules Upset Runner

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Ruth Wysocki is heading for the pinnacle of her racing career — and she is very upset.

Not upset at her performances, which have been absolutely stunning in the past month, but the fact that her most ardent fan, her husband Tom, will not be at her side during the Olympic Games at Los Angeles.

Only athletes, team coaches and official representatives will be allowed to stay in the Olympic Village during the Games, and that excludes Tom.

"There will be a lot of things happening during the Games... a lot of extra hassles, a lot of extra security," Wysocki said Saturday night after winning the women's 2,000-meter race in an impressive 5 minutes, 42.9 seconds at the Sacramento International Summer Games.

"But the thing that has me really angry is that we can't have any visitors — my husband can't even come into the Village," said

Wysocki. "He's my biggest supporter... my biggest fan. That's really upsetting."

"I want him to experience it with me — and he can't. I want him to come to the Village. But he can't even look around. I think he deserves to experience it with me... to share it."

"We were led to believe we could have visitors," continued Wysocki, who gained instant celebrity last month by upsetting Mary Decker in the women's 1,500 at the Olympics Trials. She also made the U.S. team in the 800, finishing second to Kim Gallagher in the Trials.

"When I left the Trials, I thought I would be able to get credentials to get my husband into the Village," said Wysocki. "In the last couple of days, I found out that wasn't so."

"He has tickets to the events, but he can't get into the Village."

"It's going to be an abnormal thing for me (being without her husband during the Games)," she continued. "It's not something that I can't overcome. It's just upsetting."

"He and I have come so far in this experience — and now he can't share the ultimate with me."

The ultimate seemed like the impossible for Wysocki not long ago.

Coming into the Trials, she had never run faster than 2:01 for the 800 and 4:16 for the 1,500. In the Trials, she improved dramatically to 1:59.34 for the 800 and 4:00.18 for the 1,500.

She also has recovered very well from the physically and mentally demanding grind of the Trials, unlike other "doubblers," such as Decker and Gallagher, both of whom are injured.

She credits three things for her sudden improvement.

One, a solid base of distance work from her background as a road racer.

Two, a loss of eight pounds, after switching to a "high complex carbohydrate diet, with low fat and low protein."

And three, more time to devote to training since April, when she quit her full-time job with a semiconductor company in El Toro, Calif.

She also has been greatly encouraged by her husband, a road racer. Last Christmas, he showed her the qualifying times for the Olympic Trials, and asked if she thought she could meet the standards. "Why not?" she said.

She didn't think she could make the team, but just running in the Trials would be a great experience.

Now, with her exceptional performance in the Trials, and victories in the 800 and 2,000 in pre-Olympic meets, she has risen rapidly among the Olympic medal contenders. Still, she is not overly confident, and that's why she would prefer her husband being close by during the Games.

"I don't have a lot of international experience," said Wysocki. "And I don't want to set a lot of lofty goals, because I don't want to come away disappointed. Whatever happens happens."

Perhaps one athlete who came away disappointed from Saturday night's meet was Carl Lewis. He had hoped to break Bob Beamon's world long jump record of 29 feet, 2 1/2 inches. But Lewis, fighting unusually strong winds and cold temperature, had to settle for a winning jump of 28-1.

Lewis took three shots at breaking Beamon's mark, but each jump was wind-aided and would not have counted as a world record even if he had surpassed 29-2 1/2.

After passing his last three tries, Lewis said, "The weather was not very good. I did not want to risk injury."

"The cold weather (the temperature dropped into the 50s after a recent high of 122 and consistent temperatures at or near 100 degrees)," said Lewis. "The wind (which gusted to at least 25 mph) was not that bad. What really was bad was the cold weather."

Lewis, in his final meet before the Games, also anchored the U.S.

Olympic team to victory in the 400-meter relay in 38.5 seconds.

The wind, however, marred all of the individual sprint races and the jumps.

For example, Calvin Smith won the men's 100 in a wind-aided 9.94. Roger Kingdom took the men's 110-meter hurdles in 13.00, also wind-aided. And Benita Fitzgerald-Brown captured the women's 100 hurdles in 12.97, another wind-aided time.

Other standout performances included Johnny Gray's world-best of 1:14.16 in the men's 600, Frenchman Thierry Vignerot's 18-10 1/4 in the pole vault, and Judi Brown's 55.8 in the women's 400-meter intermediate hurdles.

In Eugene, Ore., Mike Tully broke his own American record in the pole vault at the Prefontaine Classic, which was attended by 78 Olympians. Tully cleared the bar at 19-1 on his third try to break the record for the third time this year. He jumped 19-0 1/4 at the Trials.

"I've been jumping very well all year," Tully said. "Odds are I'm going to continue what I'm doing. I don't think I'm going to fall apart."

Strawberry Continues Attack On Reds

By The Associated Press

Darryl Strawberry says he's "not mad at the Cincinnati Reds." It only seems that way.

The New York Mets outfielder has hit 15 home runs so far this season and six of them have been against Cincinnati, including Sunday's two-run blast in the eighth inning that powered a 7-6 triumph over the Reds.

"I just think it's time to get myself into a groove where I can help this ballclub win. We're in a pennant race now, and it's important for me to do well," said Strawberry, whose heroics gave the Mets a 2 1/2-game lead in the National League East over the Chicago Cubs, 11-5 losers to San Francisco.

The Mets have won 13 of their last 16 games, going 17-4 in the month of July for an overall 55-37 mark. The last time the Mets were 18 games over .500 was June 1972.

In other NL action, San Diego beat Pittsburgh 5-1 in the opener of a doubleheader before the Pirates took the nightcap 3-2 in 11 innings; Philadelphia stopped Atlanta 6-2; St. Louis nipped Los Angeles 7-6 and Houston stopped Montreal 6-1.

Strawberry's homer off reliever Keefe Cato, 0-1, gave the visiting Mets a 7-5 lead and helped them withstand a ninth-inning homer by the Reds' Gary Redus off Jesse Orosco.

Reliever Tom Gorman, 2-0, earned the victory despite giving up a two-run homer to Dan Driessen in the seventh that tied the game 5-5. Mets starter Ron Darling struggled through the six innings, scattering four hits and walking seven, but left with a 5-3 lead.

"The guys here believe in winning," Strawberry said. "When you have that type of attitude, anything can happen."

The loss, meanwhile, dropped the Reds 16 games below .500 in fifth place in the NL West.

"This team just has to realize how good it can be, but they have a tendency to give in," Cincinnati Manager Vern Rapp said.

Giants 11, Cubs 5

Joel Youngblood socked a homer, double and single and pitcher Mike Krukow had two hits, including a run-scoring double, to lead San Francisco over Chicago.

Youngblood hit his ninth homer in the fourth inning and doubled and scored on a single by Scot Thompson in the sixth. Krukow then doubled to score Thompson.

The visiting Giants jumped on Steve Trout, 9-5, for three runs in the third inning when Krukow singled with one out, and later sewed up the game with a five-run ninth capped by Bob Brenly's three-run homer.

"We've been a good hitting club all season," said Youngblood. "We got the hits but we weren't scoring runs, we weren't putting numbers on the board."

Padres 5-2, Pirates 1-3

Ed Whitson and two relievers combined on a five-hitter and a pair of early Pittsburgh errors set up San Diego runs as the Padres took the first game of their doubleheader. Steve Garvey and Graig Nettles each drove in a run during a two-run sixth inning and Tony Gwynn had two RBIs.

Doug Frobel's one-out double off Goose Gossage drove in Tony Pena with the winning run in the 11th inning as Pittsburgh rallied to win the second game.

With the score tied 2-2, Pena walked in the 11th before Frobel lined a shot into the left-field corner at Three Rivers Stadium. Gossage, 4-3, took the loss despite holding the Pirates to three hits over 4 1-3 innings.

Phillies 6, Braves 2

Steve Carlton pitched two-hit ball over eight innings as Philadelphia won in Atlanta. The only hits allowed by Carlton, 9-4, were a two-out double by Dale Murphy in the fourth inning and a single by Glenn Hubbard in the eighth, when the Braves scored on a wild pitch. Al Holland pitched the ninth for the Phillies, giving up a homer to Bob Watson.

Carlton's victory, the 309th of his career, enabled him to break out of an 11th-place tie with Charles Radbourn on the all-time victory list.

"He has great command of that breaking ball," said Watson of Carlton. "He sets you up with the fastball, which he keeps away, and gets you out with the breaking ball. He makes the batter adjust."

The Phillies put the game away earlier, scoring two runs in each of the first two innings.

Cardinals 7, Dodgers 6

Tito Landrum and Darrell Porter each knocked in two runs in a six-run seventh inning as host St. Louis rallied to beat Los Angeles.

With Alejandro Pena protecting a 4-1 lead, Landrum singled in the first two runs of the inning. Steve Braun's pinch double made it 4-4 before Terry Pendleton singled home the go-ahead run. Porter capped the rally with a two-run double that gave the Cardinals a 7-4 lead.

Bob Welch, 6-11, was victimized by the Cardinals rally, while Danny Cox, 4-8, gained the victory.

Astros 6, Expos 1

Joe Niekro pitched a five-hitter and Denny Walling knocked in two runs to pace Houston over Montreal.

Niekro, 10-8, pitched his fourth complete game of the season. Bryn Smith, 8-8, was the loser, pitching 2 1-3 innings and giving up five earned runs on seven hits.

The host Astros broke open the game with a four-run third. The runs scored on singles by Walling, Jose Cruz, Ray Knight and Niekro.

Gary Carter, who ranks second in the National League in home runs with 19 and first in RBI with 69, knocked in Montreal's run with a fifth-inning homer.

Albemarle Ousts CPS

GOLDSBORO — Pat Davenport threw a five-hitter on the mound and used acrobatics on the bases as Albemarle eliminated Coastal Plain South from the 16 year-old Babe Ruth League All-Star state tournament.

Mike Elks went the distance on the mound for Coastal Plain South, yielding five hits and just one walk.

Davenport ripped two hits to lead Albemarle at the plate. His hit in the seventh evened the game by driving in two runs.

Three infield errors aided Albemarle in the seventh, but Davenport leaped over the Coastal catcher and landed on the plate for the winning run.

Tony McLawhorn paced Coastal Plain South with two hits and a pair of RBIs.

Slaughter Remains Hot As Royals Top Orioles, 8-4

By The Associated Press

When Don Slaughter steps to the plate, the world champion Orioles are just so many pigeons.

The catcher, with a double, triple and two singles, turned in his second four-hit game against the Orioles in three days Sunday to help the Kansas City Royals to an 8-4 victory over Baltimore.

Slaughter reached base 12 times in 16 plate appearances over the weekend as the Royals took three out of four from the Orioles. Slaughter is hitting .257 overall this season, .457 against the Orioles. He batted .529 against them last year.

"Things like that happen. You can't explain it," said Royals Manager Dick Howser. "The Orioles probably have the best five-man rotation in the league. But one thing is the fact that Slaughter is starting to hit the ball well and we've been playing Baltimore. When he's swinging the bat well, he can hit anybody."

"I just wish I knew why Slaughter decided to get hot against us," raved Baltimore Manager Joe Altobelli. "He's a good contact hitter. I don't think we'll be the only team he beats up on."

Slaughter traces his current hot streak to a series at Oakland just prior to the All-Star break.

"You wait for it to happen and then when it does you say, 'Oh, boy, let's keep it going,'" he said. "I've always felt good hitting against Baltimore. They have a few left-handers and it always seems to come together for me against them."

Elsewhere in the AL, Oakland defeated Milwaukee 5-4, Detroit blanked Texas 2-0, Cleveland downed Chicago 3-1, Boston bopped California 3-0, New York edged Minnesota 6-5 and Toronto topped Seattle 5-3.

Slaughter singled amid a five-run fifth-inning outburst that buried Scott McGregor, 12-8, and handed the victory to Larry Gura, 10-7. Greg Pryor and Darryl Motley stroked two-run singles in the onslaught.

Joe Beckwith and Dan Quisenberry pitched the final two innings for the Royals.

The Orioles scored their runs on solo homers by Rick Dempsey, Benny Ayala, Todd Cruz and Mike Young.

A's 5, Brewers 4

Oakland fell behind 4-0, but Dave Kingman's 28th home run in the fourth inning brought the A's within 4-2 and Bill Almon's leadoff blast in the seventh ruined the Brewers.

"I think the key in this series was not to get ahead early," said Almon.

On Friday night, the A's blew an early 7-3 lead and lost 9-7. They were ahead 4-1 after seven innings on Saturday and fell 7-4 to Milwaukee.

Bill Krueger, 7-6, allowed only five hits over 8 1-3 innings, giving up only a single after Milwaukee collected four hits in a four-run second-inning rally. He retired the final 14 batters he faced before Bill Caudill came on for his 20th save.

Kingman's homer gave him 87 RBI in the 85 games he's played.

Tigers 2, Rangers 0

Dan Petry and Willie Hernandez combined on a four-hitter and Dave Bergman smacked his fourth home run of the season as the Tigers completed a sweep of the four-game series in Detroit.

Petry, 13-4, helped the Tigers to their ninth win in their last 10 games. He became the American League's first 13-game winner. Hernandez got the last out for his 20th save.

Charlie Hough, 10-8, came out on the losing end despite allowing only three hits.

Indians 4, White Sox 1

Neal Heaton also pitched a three-hitter but won, allowing no hits over the final 6 1-3 innings while retiring 18 of 19 White Sox batters. Heaton, 7-9, had won his previous start, giving him consecutive victories for the first time this season.

George Vukovich lined a two-run single in the decisive sixth inning. Tony Bernazard and Julio Franco singled in insurance runs in the seventh.

Carlton Fisk belted his 10th home run in top of the third.

Red Sox 3, Angels 0

Dwight Evans and Tony Armas homered to back Bob Ojeda's three-hit pitching as the Red Sox swept a three-game series in Anaheim and won their ninth in 12 against the Angels this year.

Ojeda, 8-7, threw his fourth shut-out of the season, most in the AL. Evans, who has driven in 17 runs in Boston's 12 games with the Angels, hit his two-run shot, his 19th, in the sixth. Armas led off the seventh with his 27th.

Yankees 6, Twins 5

Willie Randolph lined a single to right with two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning and Bobby Meacham scored from first when right-fielder Tom Brunansky allowed the ball to get past him. Brunansky's error let in sixth-earned run of the game.

Joe Cowley, 1-0, gained his first American League victory with four innings of hitless relief. Dave Winfield stroked a three-run homer for New York.

Blue Jays 5, Mariners 3

Cliff Johnson celebrated his 37th birthday with a three-run homer that highlighted a five-run fifth inning. Johnson's 10th homer was his fourth in 13 at-bats.

Toronto right-hander Doyle Alexander, 8-4, scattered six hits over seven innings. Roy Lee Jackson pitched the last two innings for his eighth save.

Seattle took a 2-0 lead in the fourth on Ken Phelps' 15th homer, into the Kingdom's third deck.

Network Documentaries Having To Struggle

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Are network documentaries becoming an endangered species?
Pam Hill, executive producer of ABC News' "Closeup" documentary unit, says the long-form broadcast has fallen on hard times, but it's not near extinction yet.
"It's a struggle," said Ms. Hill. "The pendulum on documentaries always has swung back and forth, although I've never seen it as low as the last year and a half. But I really do believe the pendulum will swing back. If it doesn't, I think the genre will be in danger."

She added that "the networks bear the public responsibility" and have always found room on their entertainment-filled schedules to do some hard-hitting issue-oriented programs "that don't make money."
In the 1984 election year, ABC's documentary time was cut in half to six hours. CBS, where the high standards for documentaries were imprinted by Edward R. Murrow, has switched its prime-time news emphasis away from the single-subject show.

At CBS, only Bill Moyers, in an occasional hour-long documentary and on some of his "Crossroad" segments, keeps Murrow's legacy alive. "Bill shares our concerns," Ms. Hill said. "He's one of the few in our industry still targeting the major issues of our time."

Ratings, the kind that show up at the bottom of the weekly Nielsen rankings, are the major reason why documentaries are in trouble. The networks know they can reach larger audiences with prime-time newsmagazines that mix investigative reports with the broader personality profiles and trendy pop-culture segments.
Ms. Hill said governmental watchdog panels in Washington, ultimately, might decide whether the newsmagazines are satisfying the networks' obligation to use their airwaves to discuss important public-affairs issues.

In the 1984-1985 season, Ms. Hill said, ABC's documentary allotment will return to the pre-election 10-12 hours, and, in a sharp contrast to TV's trend toward shorter segments to meet the public's shorter attention spans, "Closeup" will have as many as three 3-hour documentaries.

viewership holiday periods.
Ms. Hill said she pushed for the longer programs for "both idealistic and pragmatic reasons." The idealism centered on "my belief that it is of grave importance to target the kinds of issues that change the quality of life or affect the way our children are growing up."
Then she adds: "I also wanted to survive."
The corporate folks at ABC, like at CBS and NBC, are never happy when documentaries receive their usual microscopic ratings. The ABC brass decided that concentrating the three-hour documentaries in fewer nights would be better than having 10 low-rated hours, depressing prime-time audiences for 10 nights.
"They would disrupt less hours," Ms. Hill acknowledged.
Another recent development affecting interest in documentaries is that audiences may feel they're getting their serious issues through the lenses of the networks' entertainment divisions. The movies, "The Day After" and "Something About Amelia," were the highest-rated programs of 1983-84.
"TV movies, even the ones that are well done, deal with sex and violence," said Ms. Hill.

New Movie Stars Cher

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Director Peter Bogdanovich, who hasn't made a film since the 1980 murder of his actress-girlfriend, Dorothy Stratten, is back at work on "Mask," a movie starring Cher.
Bogdanovich spent most of the last four years writing a book about his relationship with Miss Stratten and the events that led to the former Playboy Playmate's death. Called "The Killing of the Unicorn," it is to be released Aug. 15, the fourth anniversary of Miss Stratten's shooting death at the hands of her husband, Paul Snider.
In the interim, two screen versions of the Stratten story have been released — one a TV movie starring Jamie Lee Curtis, and Bob Fosse's feature movie, "Star 80." Bogdanovich disliked both.
"I never thought the movie would work, and it didn't," he said. "It wasn't a true story, after all."

"P.M. Magazine" Creative

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — "P.M. Magazine" is not only the grandpa of the current generation of reality programming on local stations but is possibly the only syndicated show that's different from city to city.
Each of the more than 80 television stations that broadcast "P.M. Magazine" takes the raw material it receives from Group W Productions and constructs its own show.
The idea is for each station to make "P.M. Magazine" its own creation by using local talent as the hosts and adding local stories to the mix of features, special reports and in-depth surveys of lifestyles, trends and controversial subjects.

In addition, a different magazine show is broadcast by each of the five Westinghouse stations (the parent company of Group W) — but in this case it's called "Evening Magazine."
The feature stories produced by the Westinghouse stations form the nucleus of the material that becomes "P.M. Magazine." But each of the subscribing stations also contribute the best of their locally produced stories.
"It's a unique way of combining national and local feature stories," said George E. Resing Jr., senior vice president of Group W. "No other show is done like this."
It originated eight years ago as a local magazine show on Westinghouse's San Francisco station, KPIX. It wasn't long before each of the company's stations was producing its own version. Finally, it was syndicated under the name "P.M. Magazine."

Resing, who was general manager at KPIX at the time, said, "There's nothing new about the concept of a magazine show, but our execution was. We did it all on video tape, we did everything outside with no studio work, we used bright young people as hosts and we used flashy editing techniques."
"It set the pattern that's been copied by many other reality programs across the country. It was innovative then, but the local news shows began to pick up our techniques and have diluted the form."
Resing said "P.M. Magazine" is among the top five in ratings among all syndicated shows.

Hurried Training

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The city Police Academy pushed 59 recent graduates through training on an accelerated schedule, slicing one month off the six-month curriculum to get the new officers on the street in time for the Olympics.

"There are a few areas where the recruits didn't receive as much instruction," said Capt. Thomas G. Hays, commanding officer of the Training Division. "But it's nothing the casual observer or members of the community would notice."

The new officers had 310 hours cut from the 960-hour course, received 105 fewer hours of Spanish lessons, Hays said. Other areas, especially community relations and cultural courses, were also reduced, he said.

McDonald's Uncertain On Reopening

By MARK J. KREIDLER
Associated Press Writer
SAN YSIDRO, Calif. (AP) — Plans to reopen the restaurant where 22 people were slain in the nation's worst single-day mass murder have been put "on hold" following community protests against the idea, a McDonald's Corp. spokesman says.

"Whatever action would be taken is on hold," said Bob Keyser, McDonald's director of media relations. "The concern is for the people, not simply for business."

Keyser added he has "no idea" when the company would make a final decision on the future of the franchise, situated on the main street in this predominantly Hispanic community of 14,000, which is a part of San Diego.

Monetary pledges, meanwhile, poured into a fund set up to help the victims and their families, operators of the fund said Sunday.

On Thursday, a day after the massacre, McDonald's spokesman Chuck Rubner said the company wanted to reopen the outlet because, "We don't want to leave an empty shell as a reminder of this tragic incident."

But the plan sparked protests among San Ysidro residents, who want the restaurant razed and replaced with a "Memorial Park for the Innocent" in remembrance of the men, women and children who died at the hands of James Oliver Huberty, 41.

Before he was fatally wounded by a police sharpshooter, the heavily armed Huberty killed 20 people Wednesday and wounded 20 more. A 21st victim died Thursday. Eight of the wounded remain hospitalized, their conditions ranging from good to serious.

"What has happened here is horrible and we will not forget it," said James Davis, 29, who lives with his wife and infant child 1 1/2 blocks from the restaurant. "This will haunt us the rest of our lives."

"We want them to bulldoze it down and build a memorial park. To reopen this (restaurant) would be a mistake. This has left deep scars on our town. Nobody will eat here," said Davis, a participant in a weekend candlelight vigil held outside the establishment.

About 50 people participated in the subdued protest, carrying handlettered signs in English and Spanish, with phrases such as, "We Are Hurt," "Our Community Is In Mourning: Please Respect Our Wishes," and "McMemorial Park."

Petitions circulated at the demonstration drew 1,400 signatures. The petitions, which will be given to San Diego Mayor Roger Hedgecock, ask that the restaurant be closed forever.

"It's our custom to memorialize the dead," said Gloria Salas, a Hispanic leading the petition drive. "We have nothing against the company, but they have enough money to open anywhere else."

Clyde Leech, the director of the fund for families of the victims, said Sunday the nationwide response had been so great that he was forced to open two more telephone lines during the weekend, bringing to three the number of lines being used to receive donation calls.

"We've just had an absolute deluge," said Leech, who said he could not estimate how much money had been raised. He said he would meet with officials of San Diego Trust and Savings on Monday to obtain a preliminary total.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦KJ98432 ♥7 ♦95 ♦843
Partner opens the bidding with a demand bid of two hearts. What do you respond?
A.—You have a long, broken spade suit, but this is not the time to show it. When partner opens with a forcing two-bid, your first responsibility is to tell him whether or not you have a positive response. Since you don't, respond two no trump.

Q.2—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♥AQ973 ♦AK854 ♣762
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ 1 ♣ Dble Pass
What action do you take?
A.—It is seldom wise to pass partner's low-level penalty double with a distributional hand. This is especially true if you have a void in the enemy suit, because you will never be able to attack declarer's trump holding. Bid two diamonds.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AQ94 ♥AJ10 ♦853 ♣K92
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
What do you bid now?
A.—It is a close decision between a rebid of one spade or a raise to two hearts. There are many problems that could arise if you introduce your spade suit. Suppose, for example, that partner would take a preference to two clubs. If you now bid two hearts, you are showing an unbalanced, somewhat stronger hand. On the whole, the immediate raise to two hearts should keep you out of trouble.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦KQ953 ♥A1098 ♦62 ♣AQ
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 2 ♣ 3 ♦
What action do you take?
A.—Had there been no intervening action, your hand would be good enough for a game try of either three hearts or three spades. Now, however, you cannot afford to bid three spades only — that would be a purely competitive action. We would take our chances and jump to four spades, but we won't criticize a game try of three hearts. The important point is that you must make some positive move with your hand.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AK762 ♥KJ ♦953 ♣Q82
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♣ Pass
2 ♥ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—You have found your eight-card fit. On this sequence partner guarantees a six-card suit. You have good support and the values for game, so jump to four hearts.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦876 ♥5 ♦AKQ1062 ♣AK8
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
3 ♦ Pass 3 ♥ Pass
What do you bid now?
A.—Jump shifts are usually made with one of two types of hands: where you have a fit for partner's suit, or where your suit is self-sustaining. Since partner can't have anything in diamonds and very little in clubs, his spades must be good. Bid three spades. First set the suit, then probe for whether you should settle for the small slam or whether partner's trumps are good enough for a grand. Obviously, you will cue-bid clubs at the next opportunity.

A&T Alumni Silent

GREENSBORO (AP) — North Carolina A&T State University alumni association members aren't talking about a meeting Saturday in which they discussed the growing crisis of confidence surrounding Chancellor Edward Fort.

"We have decided to want to keep this in-house, to handle it through the internal structure," said John Maye of Charlotte, president of the national alumni association.

Maye and about nine other members of the university's national alumni association's executive board attended the private meeting in Greensboro. Other alumni at the meeting also refused to comment.

Two weeks ago Maye was among a three-member delegation of alumni that met with Fort for six hours to discuss their concerns about his leadership. After that meeting, Maye also declined to comment other than to say the meeting was "productive."

When Maye first announced last week the alumni group would meet Saturday, he planned a large news conference afterwards to announce the group's findings and recommendations. But that plan was later scrapped.

The silence over the past two weeks is a departure from Maye's initial outspoken stance on the issue. He said in an interview three weeks ago that he personally believes the job of chancellor is too big for Fort to handle and that Fort does not create the nurturing atmosphere demanded by A&T's mission of educating academically and culturally deprived students.

But University of North Carolina officials have recently said that Fort is making changes necessary to improving A&T's quality.

An Ill Wind

Today, in the midst of hurricane season, Virgin Islanders will observe Hurricane Supplication Day by praying for balmy weather. In 1900, an unforgettable hurricane in Galveston, Texas, raised the sea level four feet in less than a minute. Six thousand people drowned. Some animals seem able to anticipate these storms, which are pockets of intense low air pressure. Fiddler crabs may burrow inland up to two days before a hurricane.

DO YOU KNOW — What are hurricanes called when they occur in the Northern Pacific Ocean?

FRIDAY'S ANSWER — The town of Hamelin lies in what is now West Germany.
