Officials Were Ready To Storm Virginia Prison

BOYDTON, Va. (AP) — Authorities say they would have stormed the Mecklenburg Correctional Center building where inmates held six hostages, after releasing three others, if the prisoners had not responded to an ultimatum and surrendered.

The prisoners, who took over the top floor of Building No. 5 at the prison on Saturday, ended the 19-hour siege at 7:04 a.m. Sunday after officials set a 7 a.m. deadline.

Gov. Charles S. Robb said later he had been willing to risk the lives of the hostages and order an assault. The action would have been a signal to inmates that officials would act quickly to restore order, he said.

It was the third disturbance in less than three months at Virginia's only maximum-security prison, where in May the largest escape from death row in U.S. history occurred.

Near daybreak, about 30 officers, accompanied by teams of German shepherds, marched into the compound, lined up in front of the building and stood in formation for five minutes, a Corrections Department statement said.

It was the first and only show of force during the incident.

Soon after daylight, six hostages — five male corrections officers and a female food service worker — filed out of the building.

Then the 32 inmates came out one by one, some shirtless, others wearing headbands.

Three hostages had been released earlier.

Cpl. Ernest Merritt and Officer Leroy Williams, who were stabbed at the start of the takeover, were released Saturday afternoon. A third guard, Edwin Toombs, a diabetic who required medical treatment, was released around 2 a.m. Sunday in exchange for ice water.

Corrections Department Director Robert M. Landon said the show of force was part of the "final action plan" hammered out by himself, Robb, state Public Safety Director Franklin E. White and others.

State officials were adamant that they would not negotiate the demands for institutional changes, Landon said.

"We discussed it and it was clear that the latest time the governor was willing to wait was 7," said David K.

McCloud, Robb's chief of staff.

McCloud and Landon said they were aware of the inmates' offer to release the hostages later in the morning, but both said the inmates had already reneged on one promise to free their captives.

"I think it was a very bad decision. Fortunately, it did not end in tragedy, but it could have. It was unnecessary and could have been disastrous," said Chan L. Kendrick, executive director of the Virginia American Civil Liberties Union.

But McCloud said, "We got them out and they're alive. The proof is in the pudding."

The disturbance began shortly after noon Saturday as six inmates returning from a recreation yard overpowered the two corrections officers.

The guards were stabbed in the head and one was stabbed in the stomach and was "kicked and severely assaulted," prison spokesman Jerry Davis said. They were listed in fair condition Sunday at the South Hill Community Memorial Hospital.

The incident then "snowballed," Davis said. Cell doors were opened and other inmates joined the fracas, according to a statement released Sunday by the Corrections Department.

During negotiations, the prisoners released several lists of demands.

Among them were amnesty, the removal of Warden Sherman Townley, an end to alleged harassment of death row prisoners, an improved diet and more lenient visitation rights.

By early Sunday, the inmates demanded only that their list of grievances be broadcast by the media, that they be allowed to surrender peacefully and that they be brought food.

The string of problems at the prison near the North Carolina border began May 31 when six convicted murderers broke out from death row by dressing in guards' uniforms and escaping in a prison van.

The prison, which houses inmates who can't get along in Virginia's other facilities, also was the scene of a disturbance July 12 in which six inmates and nine employees were injured.

Edmisten Mixes With Pitt Crowd At Sunday Fund Raiser

An estimated 200 persons attended a $50-a-ticket fundraiser for Democratic gubernatorial candidate Rufus Edmisten at Holly Ridge Farms on N.C. 33 east of Greenville Sunday afternoon.

Edmisten, who chose to mingle with the guests in the hot sun rather than make a speech said "I feel mighty good" about the campaign. "I feel I'm running good in Pitt County and eastern North Carolina."

"Those people who can make things happen are coming to my aid," the state attorney general said. "People know I'm a ... Democrat and believe in progress, but a conservative on a lot of things."

Edmisten, who will face Republican Jim Martin in November, said "It will be very hard for a Republican governor to get anything done," with an "overwhelmingly Democratic General Assembly," making the legislative decisions.

Edmisten said "I'm strong on the tobacco program" and emphasized, "I will not forget the east," as governor. "Eastern North Carolina has given me more votes than any section of the state ... the highest percentage of votes in the past two primaries than anywhere else in the state."

Asked what effect an endorsement of Senator Jesse Helms by members of Eddie Knox's family (Edmisten won the Democratic nomination in a runoff primary with Knox) has had on his campaign, Edmisten said "I don't think it's affected me one way or another." Knox supporters, Edmisten said, "are helping me with relatively few exceptions."

Saying "I've never seen more unity" within the Democratic party, Edmisten suggested "defectors are not causing any problem at all. There are always defectors. So-called defectors ... are a figment of their imagination in my opponent's mind."

Two of the most important issues facing eastern North Carolina, Edmisten suggested, are "economic development and a good transportation system."

"The east is a treasure just lying here to be discovered," according to Edmisten. "Resources will be limited, but I will make sure Eastern North Carolina gets its share," of funds for highway improvements and new industry.

He also said "I don't think we have to raise taxes," to fund highway improvements and other state programs. "We simply have to cut out some government (and) set priorities."

"We need to build roads, educate children, protect people from crime," rather than support a number of "experimental social programs" Edmisten suggested.

Aside from the normal difference expected between Democratic and Republican candidates, Edmisten suggested that one of the major differences between himself and Martin is the fact that "I have been elected state-wide on five occasions ... three times as attorney general and in two Democratic primaries. ## REFLECTOR HOTLINE

Hotline gets things done. Write and tell us about the problem or issue into which you'd like for Hotline to look. Enclose photostatic copies of any pertinent information. Our address is The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27835. Because of the large numbers received, Hotline cannot answer or publish every item we receive, but we deal with all of those for which we have staff time. Names must be given, but only initials will be published.

IDENTITIES ASKED

On June 24, 1984, our mother, daughter and ourselves were returning home from near Greenville when we were victims of a wreck on U.S. 13-264. There were many "Good Samaritans" on the road that day, but due to the condition that we were in when we were taken to the hospital and because we are not local residents, we have been unable to learn the identities of several who assisted us. We learned as a result of your recent Hotline tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Randy Baker that they were among those who helped us. We are writing them to give them our deepest appreciation for their valor. We could still like to know the identity of a black man who helped us from our car wedged in a ditch and assisted us to safe place away from the other vehicle which was burning. Later a nurse also assisted us. We are most appreciative to both of these people, to the Bakers and to everyone who has helped us in any way, including your newspaper. Carolyn and Norwood Hudson, Lillington.

Hotline asked at the time of the tribute you mentioned for the identities of the other two persons involved in assisting you and the woman and child in the other car. We heard from neither. If either of them care to be known to you, they may write you at Route 4, Box 390, Lillington, N.C. 27546, or call us.

Election Set

Voters in the Arthur, Belvoir, Bethel, Falkland, Farmville and Fountain precincts of Pitt County and the Robersonville precinct of Martin County will go to the polls Aug. 14 to elect a state senator from the sixth North Carolina senatorial district.

Although candidate R.L. "Bob" Martin of Bethel in Pitt County was the top vote-getter in the July 17 sixth district state senate primary, he did not have a clear majority of the votes. Candidate Shelly Willingham of Edgecombe County requested the runoff.

Martin is a retired railroad employee who has served as a Pitt County Commissioner since 1956. Willingham is a former Washington, D.C., policeman who has been a personnel manager and a financial analyst. He is currently president of the Mary E. Horne Foundation and served on the Edgecombe County Extension Advisory Board.

Persons needing absentee ballots must make application at the Board of Elections, 201 E. Second St., Greenville, by Thursday. Only persons registered for the first state senate primary will be eligible to vote in this run-off, say election officials, which will also involved voters from all of Edgecombe County and a portion of Wilson County.

U.S. Stresses Economics Over Population Policy

By CHRIS ANGELO
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — The United States, promoting a new policy that suggests poor nations can cope with population growth through economic progress, joins 139 other countries at a U.N.-sponsored population conference opening today.

The U.S. policy paper prepared for the conference says too much government control and planning in Third World countries held back economic growth that could have led to a birth rate decline. It emphasizes "sound economic policies" over population policy.

However, Rafael Salas, secretary general of the week-long conference, said there is a worldwide consensus that governments should intervene to affect population growth.

James Buckley, the head of the U.S. delegation, said at a news conference Sunday that while the Reagan administration "recognizes that many nations face critical problems as a result of population trends that must be dealt with on an urgent basis, it does not believe that we face a global crisis."

"I think we Americans will be laughed out of the conference if they stress that theme; it's absurd," former World Bank president Robert S. McNamara said in New York.

The World Bank has predicted that the earth's population will double to nearly 10 billion by 2050, a rate that McNamara said was "disastrous" and would destabilize poor countries, where most of the growth is expected to occur. McNamara appeared Sunday on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation."

Buckley said the new U.S. policy also calls for a cutoff of financial aid to organizations that promote abortions in other nations. He declined to go into detail on how the government would define "promote."

He said the policy supports family planning efforts, including education and distribution of contraceptives.

"What we oppose is a program that forces parents to make decisions with respect to numbers of their own children against their will," said Buckley, a former U.S. senator from New York.

"We fully recognize the sovereign right of each nation to determine for itself its own policies in this and other matters, but we believe that others should recognize that we have the sovereign right to determine under what conditions we will extend help," he said.

Developing countries' concern over their swelling populations prompted the conference, in contrast to the last one, held in Bucharest, Romania, in 1974 at the urging of industrialized nations.

This time, "They didn't feel they were subject to pressure," said Leon Tabah, a former director of the U.N. Population Division. He said the

Thousands Remember Bombing Anniversary

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Five thousand peace activists rallied to mark the 39th anniversary of the first U.S. atomic bombing of Japan, and to make sure the post-war generations remember the attack.

Although dwarfed by the crowd of 90,000 attending Olympic events at the Coliseum a few miles away, the attendance at Survival Day '84 in MacArthur Park on Sunday was the largest in more than a decade for an anti-war event in Los Angeles, police said.

"In sheer size, this is one of the largest I've seen," said Deputy Police Chief Lew Ritter.

Like the Olympics, Survival Day had a flame — an "eternal torch of light" carried into the park by Kenichi Yasui of Hiroshima, who was a child when his city was bombed during World War II.

"The survivors in Japan are getting older, and the people who survived the Nagasaki and Hiroshima bombs are getting smaller (in number)," Yasui, 46, told the crowd through an interpreter. "The younger people don't know what happened, and I feel we must get this message to the younger generation."

A crowd marched to the park from downtown and then observed three minutes of silence at 4:15 p.m. — 39 years to the moment, 8:15 a.m. Tokyo time, after the bomb was dropped on Aug. 6, 1945.

An estimated 118,000 people died immediately, while 60,000 died within five years.

Blues-rock singer Bonnie Raitt and other musicians performed, and vendors hawked a variety of wares including frozen juice bars called Nuclear Freezes.

The march was sponsored by the '84 Mobilization for Peace and Justice.

Meanwhile, in San Francisco, about 100 people attended a vigil for peace at the University of California at Berkeley. A prayer service was planned at an Alameda church today.

Mills-Downs Vows Said On Sunday

Lisa Ann Mills and Henry Earl Downs Jr. exchanged wedding vows at the home of the bride Sunday at 6 p.m. The double ring ceremony was performed by Bobby Williams. Wedding music was presented by Terry Taylor, pianist. Lenn Jackson sang "Truly."

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Mills. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Earl Downs Sr., all of Greenville. Given in marriage by her family and escorted by her father, the bride wore a wedding dress of white eyelet with an eyelet cummerbund. The square neckline and elbow length puffed sleeves were accented by a self-fabric ruffle. Her bouquet and halo were made of shasta daisies with satin streamers.

Lexanne Keeter of Winterville was maid of honor. Pat Nelson of Winterville, sister of the bridegroom, and Danielle Mills of Greenville were bridesmaids. Their dresses were styled similar to the bride's with blue and white gingham skirts and tie belts of white eyelet. They carried bouquets of shasta daisies.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Wilbur Downs, brother of the bridegroom of Greenville, and Mike Mills, brother of the bride of Apex.

The mothers and grandmothers of the couple were remembered with corsages of daisies.

Rhonda Mills directed the wedding. Lisa Briley and Joey Godley presided at the guest register and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Crawford said goodbyes.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony. Cake was served by Norma Harris of New Bern, aunt of the bride. Mary Ruth Hardy of Greenville poured punch. Great aunts of the bride and Betty Joyner assisted with serving.

Brandi Hardison and Ginger Dennis passed out white eyelet and blue gingham bags of birdseed.

An after-rehearsal dinner was given by the parents of the bridegroom at Parker's Barbeque for the wedding party and out-of-town guests.

The bride graduated from J.H. Rose High School and attended East Carolina University. She is employed as a financial counselor at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom graduated from D.H. Conley. He is employed by Winn Dixie as a junior assistant manager.

After a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va., the couple will reside at Route 2, Winterville.

Reader Tells Abby Of Historical Mistake

DEAR ABBY: I see by your column that the U.S. Postal Service goofed when it put the wrong colors on the rump and tail feathers of the American bald eagle. However, it doesn't make a whole lot of difference if the feathers are dark or white.

Now let me tell you about a more serious mistake made by our government that has yet to be corrected on a national scale: I wonder how many people know that the first battle of the American Revolution took place on Oct. 10, 1774, at Point Pleasant, which is now in the state of West Virginia. This was six months and eight days before "the shots heard 'round the world" were fired at Lexington and Concord.

I am very much annoyed that our history books still state that the opening battle of the American Revolution took place at Lexington and Concord on April 19, 1775.

Can you help me and other proud West Virginians to set the record straight once and for all?
FURIOUS IN WEST VIRGINIA

DEAR FURIOUS: This historical gaffe is strictly "for the birds." (Here we go again!) May I respectfully suggest that you enlist the help of your U.S. senator, Robert C. Byrd.

DEAR ABBY: You just saved my summer! You had a letter in your column about the duck hunters using Avon's Skin-So-Soft as a mosquito repellent. I have always used that product, but this summer I didn't order any, and now I know why the bugs are having a feast every day on my person!

In past years when I used Skin-So-Soft I never had trouble with mosquitos. I never knew it was an insect repellent, but that's exactly what it did for me. I've already ordered a bottle.

Thanks a million.
GRACE IN SACO, MAINE

DEAR GRACE: You're welcome. (P.S.: For the record, I have no stock in Avon Co.)

DEAR ABBY: "Downhearted" complained because she and her husband had not had sexual relations in seven months. She wrote, "I know he's not cheating on me because he never goes anywhere except to work, and then he comes directly home."

I'm retired now, but I used to work with a middle-aged woman who for years would meet her married lover at a sleazy little hotel every day on her lunch hour.

CANADIAN

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 54-year-old financially independent professional woman who has had many suitors. The list includes a film producer, a psychiatrist, a novelist, a banker and a chief of staff in a large hospital. I enjoy the company of men, but I am celibate. My problem: These relationships end when I tell them I'm celibate.

These men and I have found each other mutually interesting. I wonder why they don't continue seeing me and get their sex elsewhere. I'd like to meet some gay men or celibates like myself, of equal social position, who enjoy female companionship. Where do I find them?
NOT FRUSTRATED IN L.A.

DEAR NOT: Try the Gay Community Services Center or the Catholic clergy. But why not give sex another chance? You could wind up happily married to a film producer, a psychiatrist, a novelist, a banker, or a chief of staff in a large hospital.

Views On Dental Health

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S.P.A.

SWEET TOOTH - NO TOOTH

If you have a "sweet tooth", you'll probably have to pay a penalty for your pleasure. This is especially true for youngsters and that penalty will be found in the form of increased dental decay. Too much sugar or sugar-sweetened foods taken too often bring on the plaque brigade in full force. When the bacteria in plaque (an invisible film on your teeth) combines with sugar, it forms an acid which eats away at teeth causing decay and a host of other problems. Plaque has a sweet tooth of its own. Don't feed it.

To prove the point, a dental team in Connecticut asked the mothers of almost a thousand children to keep complete records of what their children ate for one complete week. The children's teeth were then examined and the results were matched with the diet diaries. The findings showed that children who liked more between-meal sweet snacks had more cavities than those who ate less. They also found that children who ate more fruit and vegetable treats had fewer cavities than those who liked candy-cookie-cake treats.

Keep that sweet tooth under control. You'll be glad you did.

Couple Marries In Elizabeth City

The wedding ceremony of Peggy Elaine Brickhouse and Howard Summerell Hussey III took place Sunday afternoon at three o'clock in Elizabeth City. The double ring ceremony was performed by Dr. Julius H. Lambeth.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents escorted by her father. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. George Harold Brickhouse of Elizabeth City. The parents of the bridegroom are Dr. and Mrs. Howard Summerell Hussey Jr. of Tarboro and the late Jean Miller Hussey.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Alan Scott Brickhouse of Elizabeth City, brother of the bride, James Miller Hussey of Tarboro and William Jarvis Hussey of Durham, both brothers of the bridegroom.

The honor attendant was Georgia B. Potter of Greenville, sister of the bride, and the maid of honor was Mary-Margaret Hussey of Wilmington, daughter of the bridegroom.

Alice Sue Rousseau was organist for the ceremony and the soloist was Roy Askew. The ceremony was directed by Mrs. Glenwood Stalling of Elizabeth City.

The bride wore a formal gown of white silked chiffon over peau de soie. The fitted bodice featured a deep cape collar of alencon lace beaded with seed pearls. The lace extended over the shoulders and joined at the back giving an off-shoulder effect. The gathered skirt and attached chapel length train of sheer chiffon fell from a natural waistline. The bride chose a two tiered fingertip length bridal veil of illusion with a hand rolled edted flowing from a beaded and crystal tiara for her headpiece.

Both of the attendants wore formal gowns of topaz taffeta. The sleeveless gowns were designed with an open neckline outlined in a double ruffle of pleated taffeta. A matching cummerbund accented the fitted bodice and modified natural waistline from which fell the gathered skirt.

A reception was given by the parents of the bride in the church social hall. Lois Brown, cousin of the bride, greeted guests and presided at the register. Kathleen Brickhouse, aunt of the bride and Jeweldean Jasielium, both of Elizabeth City, poured punch. Assisting were Stacy Turner of Charleston, Julie Brickhouse, cousins of the bride, Peggy Sample and Ethel Askew, all of Elizabeth City.

MRS. HUSSEY

The couple will live in Tarboro after a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, S.C.

The bride graduated from Atlantic Christian College and is employed by East Carolina University. The bridegroom graduated from ECU and is employed by Charles E. Hussey and Associates, Inc. in Tarboro.

The parents of the bridegroom entertained at a rehearsal dinner at the Vicki Villa Restaurant in Elizabeth City. The couple was entertained at several showers and parties given before the wedding.

Health Officials Give Advice On Sun Exposure

By PAT BYRD
Health Educator, Pitt County Department of Health
People are being cautioned by local health officials to protect their skin from excessive exposure to the sun. Over-exposure can result in early signs of aging or even skin cancer in more severe cases.

According to Dr. Robert Ehinger, director of the Pitt County Health Department, a tan may make people look attractive and healthy now, but it does not protect their skin from possible sun damage which may not become visible for years.

"People who work or lie out in the sun for extended periods of time without using sunscreens usually develop sagging, leathery looking skin that may make them look as much as 15 to 20 years older," Ehinger said. "Too much sun can also lead to skin cancer."

A recent National Academy of Sciences report said that malignant melanoma, a potentially fatal form of skin cancer, has been increasing at an alarming rate over the past 50 years. The chance that an individual would develop malignant melanoma in 1930 was one in 1,500, but in 1980, that chance increased to one in 250. According to the report, the rays of the sun may be an important factor in this epidemic.

In 1983, an estimated 17,400 Americans developed malignant melanoma, and 5,200 of those victims died.

Dr. Billy Jones, a professor of medicine in the Dermatology Section at the East Carolina University School of Medicine, said that over exposure to the sun can also cause other skin problems such as red, yellow, gray or brown blotches, the formation of "liver spots" and gray scaly growth which may develop into cancer.

"These problems are not caused by short periods of sun exposure, but result from the cumulative effect of the sun's rays throughout life," he said.

Jones pointed out that exposure to the sun may also cause hypersensitivity reactions in some people, particularly if they use certain drugs such as tranquilizers, diuretics (fluid pills), antibiotics or birth control pills. Some diseases start or become worse from exposure to the sun. These include cold sores, chickenpox, serious skin diseases and genetic problems.

"Despite repeated warnings about the possible dangers of over exposure to the sun, people who want a tan are going to get it," he said. "For those who insist on getting a tan, the safest way is to do it gradually and use the right sunscreen."

Jones noted that there are three basic ways to prevent sunburn:

- avoid the sun during the peak hours of the sun's rays, usually between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m.

- use a sunscreen or sunblock for your skin type, the time of year, your location and the outdoor activities you plan. Small children and people with fair skin, who burn easily and tan poorly, should use a product with SPF (sun-protective factor) value of 15 or greater. Persons with less sensitivity can use sunscreens with lower numbers.

- wear loose clothing.

Dr. Ehinger said most sunbathers are under the age of 30, and because of their youthful appearance now, give little thought as to how their skin will look and feel a few years down the road.

"Over exposure to the sun in early years could cause people to age prematurely and develop skin problems," he emphasized. "We strongly urge people to take the proper precautions to protect themselves and their children from excessive exposure to the sun."

MARY'S CHICKEN

3-pound frying or roasting chicken, cut up

1/2 teaspoon garlic powder

3 tablespoons butter

Medium onion (4 ounces), chopped medium-fine

1 cup golden raisins

1-3rd cup sliced pimiento-stuffed green olives

1 stick cinnamon

1 cup clear fat-free chicken broth

1/4 cup dry sherry

Salt to taste

Rinse and dry chicken; rub with garlic powder. In a 12-inch skillet in the hot butter, over moderate heat, brown chicken; remove. Add onion to the skillet and stir with a wooden spoon over low heat to get up the drippings; stir in raisins, olives, cinnamon, broth, sherry and salt. Arrange chicken in skillet. Bring to a boil. Simmer, covered, until chicken is tender — 30 minutes. Remove cinnamon stick. Makes 4 servings.

Always Optimism

Always tobacco markets open with a mixture of hope and apprehension. This year, perhaps, it was even more so that way.

Tobacco is under heavy attack. Foreign tobacco is a constant threat to the U.S. grown crop and even a strong American dollar has adverse effects on the domestic market. In addition weather conditions this year created a combination of good quality and damaged tobacco, and continuing rains could affect even that.

Thus there was reason for hope when the opening days of sales on the Eastern Belt last week turned out to be not so bad. Wednesday the markets sold 6,496,990 pounds for $10,162,450 to average $156.42. Stabilization took 28 percent of the day's sales.

Thursday the markets sold 5,045,198 pounds for $7,937,497 to average $157.33.

Prices are virtually certain to improve as the season moves along and better grades come on the warehouse floors.

One farmer said, "It's not that good, but it's not that bad either," and that is surely better than a disaster.

Serious View

Some months ago the Environmental Protection Agency indicated its concern over leaded gasoline's impact on public health and lives, and let it be known a plan of curtailment was in the works.

More alarming data recently came into the agency's hands and resulted in a sharply stepped-up schedule for remedial steps. That was the word from Administrator William Ruckelshaus this week. He is in a hurry.

The EPA now wants a total ban on leaded gas by 1995; and if it could be done sooner, we do not doubt an earlier deadline would be set.

Lead is a poison; enough of it can kill. Even a modest concentration in the atmosphere can endanger the unborn, and cause mental retardation among children. Tests in recent years have shown concentrations of lead in the blood of inner-city children that closely track the amount of leaded gasoline sold in the area. Ruckelshaus says thousands (perhaps millions) of children's IQs could be raised if lead were removed from gasoline.

Originally, the EPA thought it would have to do nothing about leaded gasoline. Cars made since 1975 have been equipped with catalytic converters to reduce exhaust pollution. It didn't work out that way.

Surveys showed about 17 percent of motorists with catalyst-equipped cars were putting leaded gas in their tanks (at least sometimes), and the demand for that fuel remained far higher than expected.

(Lead renders the catalyst ineffective, increasing other auto pollutants by up to 80 percent.)

The environmental agency is so concerned over the risks that only a 30-day public comment period would be allowed, as compared with the usual six-month proviso. A public hearing is scheduled Aug. 30-31.

The remedial measures include a requirement for refineries to limit concentration of lead in gasoline to one-tenth of a gram per gallon in 1986. That is 11 times more stringent than the current standard. It tells one something about the serious view taken by the EPA.

NEW YORK (AP) — There is little mystery to why a stock market as placid as a summer sky can suddenly generate a storm of activity. It is right there in the figures that Wall Street loves to gather.

The market is institutionalized. It is more concentrated than it used to be. It is directed by money managers who tend to think alike and act alike.

As recently as the 1960s, individuals did most of the trading on the New York Stock Exchange, and stock market officials used to brag about it. Millions of individuals thinking for themselves, it was said, provided the market with a randomness of ideas, assuring that prices truly represented the public mind.

This was before the great growth of institutional activity by insurers, mutual funds, endowments and the like. It was before the incredible growth of pension funds, which now are the biggest factor of all in the marketplace.

In 1955, the percentage of NYSE shares held by institutions was just 15 percent. Ever since it has been growing, exceeding 35 percent by 1980. By many estimates, that growth has continued to this day.

In fact, the 35 percent figure might be low because the Big Board does not include the institutional holdings of bank-administered personal trusts, private hedge funds and non-bank trusts, because of data collection problems.

According to the exchange's Fact Book, "If it were possible to estimate the amount of NYSE stock held or managed by these groups, total institutional holdings would most likely represent half the NYSE list."

In dollars, those holdings are enormous, and also growing.

In 1955, insurance companies owned $6.4 billion worth of shares; in 1980, $65 billion. Mutual funds owned $10.9 billion in 1955, $43.2 billion in 1980.

The biggest growth of all was in pension funds ownership, which was recorded at only $3.5 billion in 1955 and $219 billion in 1980.

But ownership rates alone do not tell the entire story.

The institutions also began departing from their ancient habits of letting their investments gather dust before being considered properly aged for selling. Their managers became more active traders.

Competition dictated that this be so. The best performing institution was the one that got the public's money, and portfolio managers therefore sought to cash in on every news event and every government announcement.

They traded in and they traded out of individual stocks, often in a matter of weeks and often to the tune of many millions of dollars.

They watched what their competitor bought, and often they bought the same stocks.

There was a reason for it. With their tremendous buying power, a few like-thinking institutions could move the price of even the biggest of companies, sometimes creating a panic situation in which other institutions scrambled to buy shares of the same stocks before the price escaped them.

As the institutions, especially the pension funds, continue to grow they are forced — literally forced — to invest, and their investments are of such a size that, generally speaking, they must invest in very big companies.

There is a tendency therefore for certain large companies, many of them among those that make up the Dow Jones Industrial Average, to be the repository of these institutional funds, if only for short periods of time.

As a consequence of all this activity, made possible in part by technological changes that enabled stock exchanges to accommodate it, shares turn over much faster today than in years gone by.

By the final quarter of 1980, institutions accounted for 65 percent of public share volume and 71 percent of public orders executed on the NYSE. And on many days since then the percentage may have reached 80.

More recent figures confirm the extent of institutional activity.

On Thursday, Aug. 2, trading in blocks of more than 10,000 shares — an undisputed indicator of institutional activity — reached a record 3,579 on the Big Board, far exceeding the previous high of 3,151 on January 5.

When activity of this sort is recorded — total volume was a record 172.83 million shares — it is no surprise to find that the Dow Jones average also rose an astonishing 31.47 points to 1166.08 by the end of the day.

Reagan Drops Ranch Privacy

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan's long-standing practice of keeping outsiders from disturbing the pastoral privacy of his mountaintop ranch has apparently given way to the pressures of his re-election campaign.

Before last week, there had been only two events in Reagan's 3½-year presidency that were considered of sufficient importance to allow reporters and television crews to record at the California retreat.

Even the White House aides who accompany Reagan on the approximately six trips a year that the president makes to his ranch stay at the Biltmore Hotel here and talk to him by telephone, not in person.

But the 18-day vacation the president began a week ago appears to be breaking that pattern.

Suddenly, guests are being invited to confer with Reagan at the ranch, and reporters and camera crews are being allowed to witness the events.

The intermittent activity provides a way for the president to have a vacation while preventing Democratic challenger Walter F. Mondale from monopolizing the evening news.

Reporters and television cameras were taken up the dusty, winding road to Rancho Del Cielo last week to take pictures of Reagan's meeting with Archbishop Pio Laghi, the Vatican's representative to the United States. Laghi was brought out here to give the president the Roman Catholic Church's viewpoint on the lifting of some economic sanctions against Poland.

Reagan, wearing a western shirt and cowboy boots, and Laghi, in a clerical collar, posed with Nancy Reagan near the white adobe ranch home and then sat down to a lunch of turkey salad.

While deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes stressed how much Reagan values the opinions of Pope John Paul II on a variety of topics, some critics contended the relationship was threatening the traditional separation of church and state.

Like Reagan's stop to eat pasta two weeks ago at St. Ann's parish in Hoboken, N.J., political observers saw the meeting with Laghi as another way to court the ethnic Catholic vote that may hold the key to electoral victory in several Northeast industrial states.

Two days after the meeting, Speakes announced that Reagan was removing two of the lesser sanctions he had imposed when Poland cracked down on Solidarity in 1981. Although that had been decided before the archbishop's visit, Laghi apparently succeeded in convincing Reagan to promise Poland he would drop his opposition to its membership in the International Monetary Fund if Poland implemented its decision to grant amnesty to 652 political prisoners.

This week's ranch visitor is Vice President George Bush, who will drop for lunch with the boss on Monday. Speakes said that reporters probably will make a return trip to the ranch to record that meeting.

That means that in one week, reporters and camera crews will have been allowed onto the ranch as much as they had in the last 3½ years.

Reporters were invited up the mountain in August, 1981 to watch Reagan sign legislation he pushed to cut taxes 25 percent over three years. The press corps was allowed back in March 1983 to record a visit by Britain's Queen Elizabeth.

Bush, the focus of more attention than usual since the nomination of Rep. Geraldine A. Ferraro as the Democratic vice presidential candidate, will take the rare step of going to the hotel that lodges the White House press corps for a personal briefing after his lunch. Then he will resume a five-state campaign swing.

In between entertaining his guests, Reagan was said to be horseback riding, repairing a stone patio and working on the speech he will deliver Aug. 23 when he accepts the Republican presidential nomination at the Republican National Convention.

—Elisha Douglass—

Strength For Today

A minister recently returned from South Korea told of an interesting circumstance attending a baptismal service in a Korean church. The baptismal font was hewn out of a large block of stone which had formerly been used as an execution block. Here, in the most cruel fashion, hundreds or perhaps thousands of people had in past times been put to death.

But now, in the hands of different people with a different commitment, the gory symbol had been turned into a baptismal font.

The transformed use of this execution block shows us that even though we are not far removed from aboriginal barbarism, we do make progress. But even more important, it shows what Christian faith can do.

The people who transformed the hideous instrument of torture into a blessed symbol of faith were people who believed in Jesus Christ, lived his gospel, and put their lives wholly in his hands.

—Art Buchwald—

How Not To Jazz Up A Political Convention

The stage managers in charge of the Republican National Convention in Dallas are in a tizzy. How do you keep the TV public's attention for four days when the nominations of the President and his Vice President are a sure thing?

I went over to Republican campaign headquarters to see what was going on.

One of the people producing the show was screaming at his assistant. "The only thing that will set this convention on fire are angry demonstrators on the outside of the hall."

"No one wants to demonstrate against Reagan in Dallas," the assistant said. "I've been talking to the gay community in San Francisco and they turned me down flat."

"Did you tell them we'd pay their way if they'd throw stones and block streets?"

"Of course I did. But they said they would rather go to the beach in August."

"How about the environmental groups? Surely they have reason to protest this administration."

"The Sierra Club is going to be in the Sierras, the Audubon Society told me they'd rather be birdwatching, and the Friends of the Earth are holding their own convention in the Grand Tetons in Wyoming. I couldn't even get a handful of anti-nuke demonstrators to come in from New Hampshire."

"What about the peaceniks who want us to pull out of Central America?"

"They were afraid to come because of Texas' reputation for police brutality."

The stage manager was frustrated. "They all scream about the Reagan administration, but where are they when we need them? I told the party honchos Dallas was a lousy place to hold our show."

"Why do you need demonstrators?" I asked him.

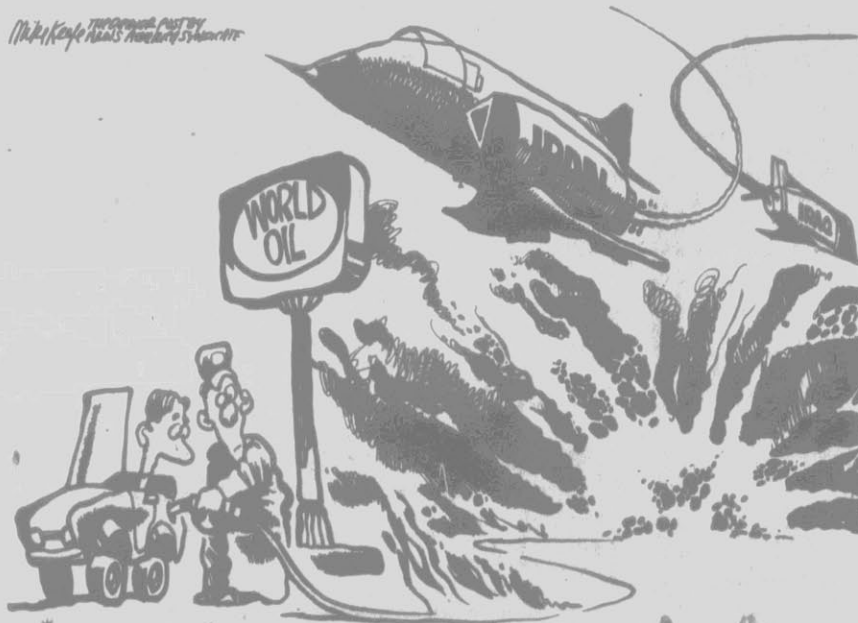

"Because we have to show some contrast between what's going on inside the hall and what's going on outside. How can our speakers attack the people demonstrating outside when there is nobody there? Couldn't you find any hardcore secular humanists willing to demonstrate against prayers in school?" the manager asked.

"Most secular humanists are on vacation in August."

"What about the National Organization for Women? Can't we get them to come to Dallas?"

"They said they were thinking about demonstrating at our convention, but concluded it would be waste of time. They'd rather spend their energies making T-shirts for Gerry Ferraro."

Prison Escapees' Violent Journey Ends At Shootout

SOMERS, Conn. (AP) — Two bank-robbing prison escapees hit a dead end after five violent weeks when the state trooper they asked for directions recognized them, setting up a shootout that left one convict dead and one critically wounded, officials said.

A third convict from Tennessee's Turney Center prison remained at large today, and authorities, believing the trio had traveled together, mounted a search in north-central Connecticut.

Their escape had already cost the lives of three searchers in Tennessee who were killed when their helicopter crashed shortly after the breakout.

William R. Prentice, Michael Hartsock, and Lohman R. Mays dashed for freedom through the pre-dawn fog July 1 after picking the locks on their cells at the prison in Only, Tenn., authorities said.

Shortly after noon on Sunday, Prentice and Hartsock pulled up to a police car on a northern Connecticut highway to ask directions to the home of Prentice's relatives, state police said.

Trooper David Waddell "realized who they were, and they realized that he knew who they were," said Sgt. Edward Dailey, state police spokesman.

Waddell began a chase, and on a dead-end road, Prentice, 29, was killed by gunfire.

Hartsock, 26, a convicted double murderer, was wounded in the chest and abdomen. He was in critical condition today after surgery at Johnson Memorial Hospital, said spokesman Michael Helechu.

A police officer and a teen-age girl riding in a passing car were also injured.

"We were hoping they could be arrested before they killed someone," said Arzo Carson, director of the Tennessee Bureau of Investigation. "We knew they were armed with automatic weapons and of course had robbed and been doing all kinds of violent crimes."

Authorities said that the escapees abandoned one stolen pickup truck and stole at least one van in Virginia; that men fitting their descriptions held a man hostage while they ransacked his Georgia home; and that they allegedly robbed a South Carolina bank of about $30,000 and robbed two men.

Prentice had "quite a list" of convictions, said his sister, Pamela Matlock of Somers. "Armed robbery, assault ... shooting somebody — it's an endless list," she said Sunday night.

Prentice was serving a 30-year term for armed robbery. Hartsock was serving a life sentence for two murders. Mays, 41, was serving life as a habitual offender.

State police, alerted that the escapees might be in Connecticut, were patrolling near the home of one of Prentice's relatives in Somers.

Prentice drove a red-and-white Bronco on Sunday, Dailey said.

Waddell radioed for assistance and chased the van for about two miles along Route 83 before the convicts drove down a quiet, residential street and then onto Gregory Avery's lawn.

The convicts were armed with semi-automatic pistols and two military assault rifles and Hartsock was firing from the passenger side, Dailey said.

The police were "right on their tails," Avery said. The convicts fired more shots before Hartsock fell from the car, he said, then two police cruisers rammed the Bronco and police shot Prentice.

It was all over in a couple of minutes, he said.

The injured teen-ager was riding in a passing car with her mother when she was accidentally shot, police said. Michelle Chagnon, 14, of Springfield, Mass., was treated for a bullet wound in the upper left arm and released, police said.

A police officer was treated and released after his eyes were sprayed with glass, Dailey said.

Steve Watson, deputy director of the Tennessee Bureau of Investigation, said it was possible Mays was still in the area, since the trio seemed to have remained together since their escape.

"We thought they would have been headed that way (toward Connecticut) after the South Carolina bank robbery that enabled them to get some money and drop out of sight," he said.

Out-Of-Work Figures Vary Across State

RALEIGH—June unemployment rates increased moderately in 68 of North Carolina's 100 counties, decreased in 25 and remained unchanged in seven according to figures released by Glenn Jernigan, chairman of the North Carolina Employment Security Commission (ESC).

Jernigan said the change was due mainly to the seasonal influence of persons entering and re-entering the labor force.

Eighty-seven counties recorded single-digit unemployment rates and 13 showed double-digit rates. Statewide, total unemployment was 6.2 percent compared to a national rate of 7.4 percent.

Counties with the lowest unemployment rates, all below 4 percent in June were: Wake, 3.2 percent; Dare, 3.3 percent; Gates, 3.3 percent; Perquimans, 3.5 percent; and Durham, 3.5 percent.

Counties with the highest unemployment rates in June were: Swain, 13.6 percent; Halifax, 13.2 percent; Richmond, 12.5 percent; and Northampton, 12.1 percent.

Unemployment rates in North Carolina's eight Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas (SMSAs) increased in six areas, decreased in one area and remained the same in one. Jacksonville was unchanged at 4.3 percent; Hickory's rate decreased to 5 percent; and the percentages in the six areas with an increase in unemployment rates were: Raleigh/Durham, 3.4 percent; Charlotte/Gastonia, 4.6 percent; Greensboro/Winston-Salem/High Point, 5.4 percent; Salisbury/Concord, 5.7 percent; Asheville, 6 percent; Burlington, 6.7 percent; Fayetteville, 7.2 percent; and Wilmington, 8.6 percent.

Statewide, North Carolina has a labor force of 3,076,600 persons, with 2,885,400 persons employed, and 191,200 persons unemployed during June.

Infant Dies After Attack

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — An 18-day-old girl who was left unattended in bed for 15 minutes was mauled by her grandmother's Siberian husky and died of the injuries, authorities said.

Candiss Neely of Indianapolis died Saturday after being bitten on Friday at her grandmother's house in Brownsburg. The grandmother, Margaret Neely, was in the back yard when the attack occurred, police said.

The dog was one of several in the house, which Mrs. Neely shares with her son, Anthony, the child's father. The baby's parents are divorced, and the mother, Teresa Neely of Indianapolis, had custody of the child.

Bloodmobile Visit

A bloodmobile will be held from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday at Carolina East Mall, Pitt County Red Cross officials have announced.

The bloodmobile, sponsored by the Red Cross and Carolina East Mall, is the first to be held at a local mall according to blood services committee chairman Barry Gaskins. "We encourage all eligible blood donors to attend this drive," Gaskins said. "As usual, our summer blood supply is running low so every donation is crucial."

For further information contact Ruth Taylor at 752-4222.

Two Arrested

Greenville police arrested two Washington men on drug possession charges Saturday after a car in which the two were traveling was stopped about 8:30 p.m. near the intersection of Third and White Streets.

Officer C.R. Anderson said Jason Kirkland Samsel of 104 Eden Drive, and Christopher Mark Moore of 410 Simmons St., were charged with possession of marijuana, possession of heroin and possession of drug paraphernalia in connection with the incident.

Commission To Meet

The Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission will meet at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday in the third floor Council Chambers of the Municipal Building. The meeting was previously scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Horne Is Director

Greenville Utilities Commission General Manager Charles Horne Jr. was recently elected to a two-year term as one of five at-large directors of Electricities of North Carolina Inc., a non-profit association serving the interests of the state's municipal electric systems.

New ASSE Chapter

The American Society of Safety Engineers has approved the establishment of its 119th Chapter, headquartered in Greenville, organization officials have announced.

The Eastern Carolina Chapter, formerly the Eastern Section of the Society's North Carolina Chapter, was approved by the Society's Board of Directors at its June meeting held in conjunction with ASSE's Annual Professional Development Conference and First Exposition.

Officials report that Ralph Dudley, 1984-85 North Carolina Chapter President, of Burroughs Wellcome Co., Greenville, was instrumental in forming the new chapter.

Members of the 1954 graduating class of Greenville High School held their 30th reunion Saturday, with 60 of the class' 125 graduates attending.

Class member Terry Bundy, now a communications engineer for the City of Los Angeles, was recognized as traveling the greatest distance to attend the reunion. Other traveled

Man Indicted On Federal Leaf Counts

NEW BERN — U.S. Attorney Samuel T. Currin said a federal grand jury here last week indicted Archie R. Alligood of Washington on charges of falsely identifying tobacco, obstructing a criminal investigation and obstructing justice.

Currin said the charges allege Alligood falsely identified tobacco sold at the New Carolina Warehouse in Greenville during both the 1981 and 1982 crop years.

The indictments also charge Alligood with obstructing a witness from communicating information about the false identification to federal investigators by means of bribery, and with obstructing justice by instructing witnesses to give false information to a federal grand jury.

Currin said the case is part of a continuing effort by federal law enforcement authorities against "corruption on the part of a few that damage the tobacco program."

If convicted on all counts, Alligood could face a maximum sentence of 25 years in jail and a fine of $35,000, Currin said.

Directory Underway

A produce growers' directory is being compiled by the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service, say local officials, and when completed will be available to produce buyers statewide.

Pitt County produce growers should contact Sam Uzzell at the extension office, 752-2934, extension 374, to obtain a questionnaire or for further information.

Sunday Wrecks

An estimated $2,800 damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Sunday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted when a car driven by Louise Herring Evans of 200 Crown Point Road collided with a pole in the Greenville Square shopping center parking lot about 7:20 p.m.

Police, who said a passenger in the car was injured, set damage to the car at $2,000.

Cars driven by Charles Michael Harrison of Winterville and Joseph Scott Greene of 1300 Drum Ave., collided about 6:05 p.m. on Dfokinon Avenue, 2 mile east of the Truman Street intersection, causing $500 damage to the Harrison car and $300 damage to the Greene vehicle.

Investigators charged Greene with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Break-Ins Reported

Greenville police are continuing their investigation of four break-ins reported to the department Sunday.

Officer C.A. Sharpe said at television set and desk fan, valued at $175, was taken from 612 S. Pitt St. in a break-in reported at 4:50 a.m., while a television set valued at $100 was taken from 1022A W. Fifth St., in a break-in reported at 5:10 a.m.

According to Officer B.W. Lewis, a video cassette recorder valued at $700 was taken from the Pepsi Cola plant on Dickinson Avenue in a break-in reported at 7:06 a.m.

A break-in at South Greenville School was reported at 5:07 p.m. according to Officer J.C. Mulford.

Mulford, who said entrance to the school was gained through a window, said a calculator valued at $90 was reported stolen.

Farm Scene

By LEROY JAMES
County Extension Chairman

With soybeans actively growing, farmers can expect to see a wide variety of insects feeding on the foliage. Green cloverworms, Mexican bean beetles, grasshoppers, Japanese beetles and bean leaf beetles all will be active. Several of these defoliators can usually be found in most soybean fields so it's important to use defoliation estimates and population counts to make control decisions.

Soybeans can generally tolerate large amounts of defoliation without yield loss. Research has shown that the degree of tolerance varies with the stage of plant growth, plant vigor and overall growing conditions. Plants that are actively growing and producing new leaves and increasing food production in the lower leaves. But soybeans under moisture stress can't compensate for as much leaf loss so defoliation thresholds should be adjusted. Be sure to correctly estimate defoliation during pod and seed development stages because severe yield reductions can occur if defoliation exceeds 20 percent.

To help know when to scout for insects, here are brief life histories of our more defoliators:

•Green cloverworms: overwintering, most migrate northward in late spring to lay eggs on clover and alfalfa. Larvae begin to feed on soybeans in July and peak larvae feeding occurs in early August. High populations of this insect are generally controlled by disease organisms.

•Mexican bean beetle: overwintering, adults move directly to early planted soybeans where they feed for a few days before laying eggs. In North Carolina three generations develop each year. Economic infestations are most likely to occur on early or late-planted soybeans.

•Grasshopper: overwintering eggs start to hatch in early April. Immature and adult forms generally move into the main soybean fields in middle to late June. Economic outbreaks are most likely to occur in no-till soybeans, double-cropped beans and in fields next to recently-harvested small grains.

•Japanese beetles: adults emerge in late June and cause most of their damage in early July. Rapidly-growing soybeans often outgrow their damage.

•Bean leaf beetles: overwintering adults enter fields at the time of soybean emergence to feed and lay their eggs in the soil.

Start looking for defoliating insects when soybean plants reach the second trifoliolate and continue scouting on a weekly basis until the pod-fill stage. Base defoliation estimate on a random sample of 20 leaflets taken in five locations throughout a field.

Since the decision to apply an insecticide is also based on insect population levels, take a three by three foot shake cloth sample in the same five areas and count the number of insects found per three feet of row.

Weather Blamed In Crash That Killed 49

DHAKA, Bangladesh (AP) — Airline officials say monsoon rains had reduced visibility to near zero at the moment that a Bangladesh airliner crashed while trying to land, killing all 49 people on board. Aminur Rahman Yousuf, a special assistant to President Hossain

Mohammed Ershad, said the Fokker 27 of the Bangladesh Biman airline crashed Sunday afternoon in swampy land awash from the heavy rains, about 500 yards from the runway at Dhaka's international airport.

It was the airline's worst accident since it began operating in 1972, the year after Bangladesh became independent from Pakistan.

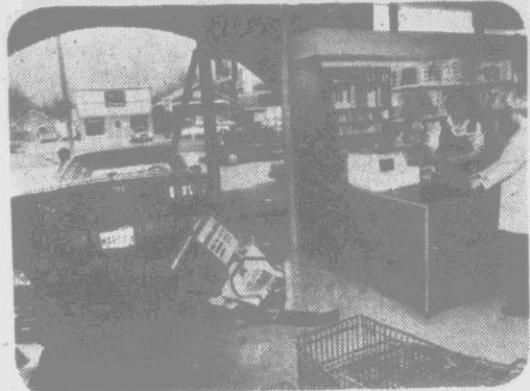

A naval officer said the crash site was virtually "unapproachable." He said the plane was in 30 feet of water and only the tail with the airline's skylark symbol was visible.

Army and navy divers were called in, but rescue officials said that only 28 bodies had been recovered by this morning. The bodies included those of the pilot, the co-pilot and the only two foreigners on board — businessmen Paul Holmes of Britain and Itta Shino Tuka of Japan. Airline officials reported visibility at the time of the accident was "almost blind."

FOCUS

Stop, Look, and Listen

Yesterday marked the anniversary of the first electric traffic signal light, installed in Cleveland Ohio in 1914 to prevent accidents like this one. But traffic controls did not begin with the automobile age. Traffic in downtown Rome in the first century A.D. was so bad that the Roman Senate banned personal hand-pulled carts during certain hours. Mounted horses and chariots could proceed as long as they observed stop signs, one-way streets, and other signals.

Ling-Ling Has Stillborn Cub

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ling-Ling, the giant panda at the National Zoo, gave birth late Sunday to a stillborn cub, zoo officials announced today.

Dr. Robert Hoage, special assistant to the zoo director, said the infant panda appeared to be normally developed, and that its sex and the cause of death were not known. A necropsy was scheduled for later today.

Ling-Ling and the zoo's male panda, Hsing-Hsing, had mated on March 19 to produce their second cub. The first, a 4.7-ounce male, died three hours after birth in July 1983.

Hoage said the delivery took place at 10:34 p.m. EDT Sunday in a bamboo nest Ling-Ling had built in a corner of her den and "appeared to be more characteristic of a panda birth than last year's abrupt ejection."

"Even though the cub failed to move or emit the loud cries that characterize baby pandas, Ling-Ling repeatedly licked and cradled the infant, demonstrating once again that she could be an excellent mother," the zoo said in a statement.

Ling-Ling appeared in excellent health after the birth, Hoage said. She had been receiving low-level antibiotics for more than eight months to avert any possible genitourinary infections.

The two pandas came to the United States in 1972 as a gift from the Chinese government following former President Richard Nixon's first diplomatic visit to that country.

The zoo's panda quarters, visited by an estimated 3 million people a year, had been closed to the public since June 23 when Ling-Ling began behaving as if she were pregnant. She had been watched since around the clock by volunteers and by closed-circuit television.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market surged ahead today, resuming last week's record-breaking rally in continued heavy trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 87.46 points last week, gained about 12 points to the neighborhood of 1,214 in early activity today.

Gainers took a 2-1 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said many investors who had been caught off guard by the market's sudden rally last week were scrambling to buy stocks.

They noted that money managers at many investing institutions were fearful of missing out on any further gains in the market.

The rally got its start as a belief spread on Wall Street that long-term interest rates had passed their peak and were headed lower. That view has been reinforced by a series of recent statistics signaling an apparent slowing of the pace of economic expansion.

American Telephone & Telegraph led the active list in the early going, up 1/4 at 19 1/4. A 400,000-share block traded at that price.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average jumped 36.00 to a six-month high of 1,202.08.

Advances outpaced declines by more than 4 to 1 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume soared to 236.57 million shares, eclipsing the record of 172.83 million set on Thursday.

The NYSE's composite index climbed 2.46 to 93.23. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 7.01 to 203.83.

have served in a position that is more like being governor than any other position in North Carolina.

"The attorney general deals with things on a daily basis that the governor deals with," Edmisten suggested.

Another difference, Edmisten said, is his "record of standing up for the average, ordinary citizen," while Martin's record, Edmisten said, is one of support "for those who are wealthy ... standing up for the very rich. That's a big, big difference."

Although Martin is "a very fine person," Edmisten said, the Republican "represents Charlotte, and they don't grow much tobacco there."

Asked about a move to make utility company financial records available for review, Edmisten said "there's not enough information on utility companies to make decisions" on requests for rate hikes.

IMPROVING NUTRITION OF FEED...Pitt livestock agent Phillip Rowan explains how treating low quality silage with anhydrous ammonia can improve the nutritional value of the forage for cattle. Above, is silage treated at McLawhorn's Dairy. Bales should be stacked and covered with plastic. Ammonia is then pumped into open barrels inside and the plastic is completely sealed. In 15-45 days, the forage has been treated, said Rowan. The farm agent cautioned farmers to follow safety precautions when using anhydrous ammonia. ## U.S. ... Area 'Clubs' Raided poorer countries are expected to ask for more family planning assistance.

But while growth remains a major issue, a U.N. survey showed countries were more concerned about migration and distribution of their populations.

The population growth rate has declined from 2 percent to 1.7 percent a year in the past decade. But most of that has been in China and the industrialized countries. Declines in mortality offset drops in fertility in most developing countries, leaving the growth rate about the same, according to U.N. reports.

Demographic changes — such as the increasing age of populations in industrialized countries, and the overwhelming youth of the still-growing Third World countries — also will be discussed.

Officers of the Greenville and Ayden Police Departments raided five Pitt County "clubs" this weekend that reportedly had been selling liquor without licenses.

Police say they subsequently cited around seven people, both operators and patrons, for illegally buying and selling the liquor.

Details of "club" names and those receiving citations were not available this morning, according to Greenville Police Chief Ted Holmes. Holmes did say, however, that four of the establishments were located in Greenville and the fifth in Ayden.

"Most of the places that were raided can be considered established clubs that did not have liquor licenses, one, however, was a private home," Holmes said. He added that one of the "clubs" was located on a dirt road by the river, the other Greenville establishments were located on Pennsylvania, Myrtle and Albemarle avenues.

"All of the places raided within the Greenville city limits were only involved in selling liquor without a license, but the Ayden raid was a little more critical — dope was found on the premises," Holmes said.

Ayden Police Chief Tommy Burney was not available for comment.

Holmes said the raids went smoothly and that no one was hurt. "Everyone we dealt with was very cooperative. That's the major concern I have when these things happen, that everyone's adrenalin stays down and no one gets hurt."

Holmes added that the police department's goal in making these arrests is to make people comply with the law and get licenses. "I just don't understand why they don't do it legally and go down and get their licenses," he said.

The raids started at approximately 10 p.m. Saturday and ended after midnight.

Population experts say they hope the talks will stick to concrete population issues and not get bogged down in ideology as the Bucharest conference did.

But since the delegates generally are at the level of health minister, rather than demography and family planning experts, politics will play a big role as the countries compile the two major documents they will issue.

"Population is viewed 140 different ways here," Salas said.

While suggesting the need for more economic development, Edmisten said "I don't think anything will take the place of tobacco. Tobacco will be alive a long, long time."

But he said that there are "far too many experts in tobacco," who speak out "to protect their own interests."

Edmisten suggested that a "tobacco summit" should be called to "tell everyone (associated with the industry) to pull together on tobacco. If we all get together we wouldn't have as many problems."

Your Social Security Disability Benefits

BENEFITS DENIED?

Have you been denied benefits under Social Security's disability benefits programs? Do not be discouraged. That happens to most people who apply the first time.

Have you asked for reconsideration of your disability claim and been turned down a second time? Again, don't be discouraged or give up. That's the way the disability system works today.

Take your case one step further and go before a Social Security Administrative Law Judge for a hearing with a qualified representative to present your case. Then the chances of your winning benefits are somewhere

Mental Health Perspectives

SPOUSE ABUSE

Spouse abuse is the mistreatment of a spouse by his or her mate. Violent episodes, even murder, may be triggered by conflicts over drug or alcohol abuse, money, sex, housekeeping, etc. Inability to communicate is almost always involved. Contributing factors may include:

- Sex role definitions—Unreasonable or conflicting expectations about the roles of husband or wife may lead to friction, frustration, and ultimately to violence.
- Job frustration—Dissatisfaction with work or pay may lead to frustration, which can turn into violence directed against the person's spouse.

Sense of inadequacy—Abusers may feel unable to fulfill responsibilities or to live up to their image of the person they'd like to be. Shame and guilt may surface as violence towards others.

Women are more likely to be physically mistreated. They're usually more vulnerable and are less able to escape. Men are usually victims of emotional abuse and are less likely to report it. The Pitt County Mental Health Center has an ongoing program to help cases of Spouse Abuse. If you suspect a problem, seek help right away. Don't allow small problems to turn into larger ones. # Joan Benoit Overcomes Knee Injury

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joan Benoit won the most important women's marathon in history. Three months ago, she didn't think she'd be in it.

It was her knee. It's tough to run 26 feet on a bum knee let alone more than 26 miles. So 17 days before she would have to try and qualify for the U.S. Olympic team, she had arthroscopic surgery.

Could she recover in time? She was determined but doubtful.

In the mail she had received photos of a mural near the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum depicting her. When she had surgery, she thought, "They've put it up for nothing at all. I won't even be there."

She was wrong. She won easily at the U.S. women's marathon trials on May 12.

"It took me about four weeks after the Olympic Trials to realize what I had done," she said. "To this day, I still don't know how I managed to qualify."

It also might take a while for her to realize the magnitude of her breakaway victory at the Coliseum Sunday in the first-ever Olympic women's marathon.

"I don't know how to express it. It was something very, very special, something I've dreamed about," said the durable runner from Maine. "I can't believe I won this marathon."

"It wasn't as emotional as qualifying for the Olympic team because of the special circumstances preceding the Olympic Trials but it was indeed very special."

Her time of two hours, 24 minutes, 52 seconds was the third fastest marathon ever run by a woman and the fastest in an all-female marathon. Benoit also holds the world record of 2:22:43 set on the hillier Boston Marathon course in 1983.

Her slight frame belies her spirit and desire to overcome injury and win races.

"I don't know where my competitiveness comes from. I often ask myself that and I haven't found the answer yet," said Benoit, who once dreamed of earning a spot on the Olympic ski team. "I guess it's just one challenge after another. I plan to continue competing. I don't know for how much longer. I still think I have a PR (personal record) in me."

"I grew up in a family of three brothers and it was survival of the fittest so I always played with boys (and) had to hold my own from the start."

She did that Sunday from start to finish.

The 27-year-old Benoit said she wasn't hampered by the heat and smog. She took command during the third mile and opened a lead of 1 minute, 12 seconds just before the halfway point of the 26-mile, 385-yard race. Her winning margin was 1:26. Grete Waitz of Norway won the silver medal in 2:26:18, and Rosa Mota of Portugal took the third-place bronze in 2:26:57.

"I don't know how to say this without sounding cocky. But it was a very easy run for me today," Benoit said. "I was in control all the way and I was very surprised I was not challenged at all."

Bringing Home The Gold

Benoit, Lewis Lead U.S.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Carl Lewis, already the possessor of one gold medal, got a big jump on the field in his quest for a second one. And Joan Benoit and Evelyn Ashford took big steps in restoring American women to the forefront of Olympic track.

The big jump Sunday was in long jump qualifying — 27 feet, 2 3/4 inches, to be exact, 11 inches longer than anyone else. And he wasn't really trying. He just stripped off his warmup suit, loped down the runway, qualified, waved, put his warmup suit back on and that was that.

The long jump final will be held tonight. And Lewis, of Willingboro, N.J., who won the 100-meter dash Saturday night, was set to run today in heats and quarterfinals for the 200 meters. His fourth event, the 400 relay, will be run Saturday night.

Heading into today's competition, the United States had 92 medals, 43 of them gold. West Germany was second overall with 30 medals and Romania, third with 29, was runner-up in gold with 15.

As swimming and gymnastics bowed out of the Olympics during the weekend (and some swimmers and gymnasts bowed out of Olympic competition), synchronized swimming, sort of like judging Esther Williams movies, made its debut today.

The women's marathon made its Olympic debut Sunday and Benoit won it with remarkable ease, beating Grete Waitz, the first time the Norwegian marathoner has finished other than first. It also was the first U.S. women's Olympic gold medal in track since the 1968 Mexico City Games.

"It was a real honor for every woman in this race today," Benoit, a 27-year-old from Freeport, Maine, said. "It's been a long time coming. We certainly proved we could run the distances."

No one proved it more dramatically than Gabriella Andersen-Schiess of Switzerland, who staggered into Memorial Coliseum and across the finish line in 37th place, almost unconscious from dehydration.

Ashford, of Roseville, Calif., won the gold in the women's 100 meters with relative ease, surpassing the Olympic record with her time of 10.97 seconds to the 11.13 by Alice Brown of Altadena, Calif. "I was stunned at first," Ashford said. "I didn't realize at first what I had done... I won — and I was under 11 seconds. I wanted to be under 11 seconds." She also owns the world record of 10.79 seconds.

Like Benoit and Ashford, Edwin Moses of Laguna Hills, Calif., had little trouble in winning his race — his 105th consecutive victory in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles in 47.75 seconds, just off the Olympic record of 47.64 he set eight years ago.

Detroit Matches Longest 1984 Streak

By The Associated Press

The Detroit Tigers seem determined to put a little excitement back into the American League East.

"The day's gone by. I can't bring it back," Manager Sparky Anderson said Sunday after the Tigers dropped a 5-4, 4-0 doubleheader to the Kansas City Royals and found themselves with a four-game losing streak for only the second time all season. "What is true about this game is that there are no cakewalks in it. For every good thing that happens, bad things happen. This game has a way of evening itself."

Detroit's lead over Toronto in the American League East, which stood at 12 1/2 games a week ago, is down to eight because the Blue Jays have won five in a row, including Sunday's 4-3 victory over Baltimore on Cliff Johnson's record-setting 19th career pinch-hit homer.

"Thank God we had that (lead) as a bonus," Anderson said. "We haven't been hitting. We've been pitching well, though, until this weekend."

The Tigers will need all the pitching they can muster with doubleheaders on tap in Boston tonight and Tuesday.

"We've got five games in three days; there's no sense in talking about it because we've got to play it," Anderson said.

In other AL action, Minnesota downed California 4-2 and reclaimed first place in the AL West, Chicago trounced Milwaukee 7-0, Boston beat Texas 4-2, New York stopped Cleveland 4-0, and Oakland edged Seattle 5-4.

With the opener tied in the ninth, Pat Sheridan hit a one-out single off Detroit relief ace Willie Hernandez and went to third on a two-out single by Jorge Orta. Dane Iorg followed with a fly to deep left that fell just out of the reach of Ruppert Jones, who was playing shallow.

In the nightcap, Pat Sheridan keyed a four-run first inning with a two-run homer off Juan Berenguer and Charlie Leibrandt pitched eight shutout innings.

"To sweep anybody, just to go into a town and win like that, is something," said KC Manager Dick Howser, whose Royals are only three games out in the West. "But let's face it, we didn't see Dan Petry or Jack Morris, and we know that. We're going to see them next weekend in Kansas City, though, so let's wait and see what happens."

Detroit catcher Lance Parrish said the Tigers must keep a positive attitude even if the fans don't.

"You're going to have ups and downs during the course of the season, and this is definitely one of them," he said. "It doesn't do any good to think about it. I never thought I'd hear the people booing us, but I guess that's expected."

Darrell Evans noted that the Tigers' lead slipped from 8 1/2 games on May 20 to just 3 1/2 on June 6 before they went on another tear.

"We're eight games in front," he said. "It's the other people who have to worry, not us. If we play the way we're capable of playing then we don't have to worry about anyone else."

Blue Jays 4, Orioles 3

Johnson's record-setting homer came off Tippy Martinez in the eighth inning and snapped two ties. It broke a 3-3 tie with Baltimore as well as the tie that existed between Johnson and Jerry Lynch, who hit 18 pinch homers for Cincinnati and Pittsburgh from 1957-66.

Johnson, who also has played with Houston and Chicago in the National League and New York, Cleveland and Oakland in the AL, hit five pinch homers in 1974, one in both 1975 and 1976, three in 1977, two in 1978, one in 1979, three in 1980, one in 1981 and again last year.

"There wasn't any doubt about that one," Johnson said of his long homer. "I had all of it. I had time to admire it a little bit."

Twins 4, Angels 2

Tom Brunansky drove in three runs, two of them with his third home run in as many games, and Ken Schrom scattered six hits over 7 1-3 innings to lead Minnesota to a half-game lead over California. Brunansky tagged Ron Romanick for an RBI single in the first inning and slammed his 20th homer in the third.

"I'm a streak home run hitter and right now I'm in a streak," said Brunansky. "The homers I'm hitting this year mean more because we're in the race."

White Sox 7, Brewers 0
Greg Luzinski ran his RBI streak to eight consecutive games with two run-scoring singles and Richard Dotson pitched 7 1-3 innings as Chicago closed within two games of the West lead and handed Milwaukee its eighth straight setback.

Luzinski's first RBI triggered a three-run first inning off Mike Caldwell, who hasn't won since April 27 and tied a club record by losing his ninth successive game. Luzinski also singled a run across in the second inning while Julio Cruz contributed a two-run double.

Eastwood Takes Second Title

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Bob Eastwood, a balding, 38-year-old veteran who played for 12 full seasons without a victory, now is a two-time winner on the PGA tour.

"I have no explanation — but I love it," Eastwood said after his scrambling closing round of par 72 Sunday was enough to provide him with a 2-shot triumph in the Danny Thomas-Memphis Classic. He finished with a 280 total, eight shots under par on the 7,282-yard Colonial Country Club course.

"I love the feeling of being a winner," said Eastwood, who first joined the tour in 1969, had his career interrupted by military service and then — finally — scored his first victory earlier this season in New Orleans.

"It was good to get that first win," Eastwood said. "But this one may have been harder. This was tougher to win because I wasn't hitting the ball as well as I was at New Orleans."

"I had to think better, manage my game better."

"I think I'm a smarter player now. I have the experience, know more about what I'm doing."

As a double winner, Eastwood joins Tom Watson, Tom Kite, Greg Norman, Peter Jacobsen and Gary Koch as a multiple winner on the American tour this season.

The victory was worth $90,000 from the total purse of $500,000 and pushed Eastwood's earnings for the year to a career-high $188,794.

Loren Roberts, who had led or shared the lead through the first three rounds, fell victim to a closing 76 that sent him reeling back to a tie for fifth — still the highest finish of his three-year career.

With Roberts fading, Eastwood took the lead alone with an 18-foot birdie putt on the fifth hole. He held the top spot the rest of the way, but had to survive a late challenge by Mark O'Meara, who closed to within a single stroke of the lead with a two-putt birdie-4 on the 16th.

Playing in front of Eastwood, O'Meara challenged the water on the par-5 18th, and paid the penalty. His second shot caught the pond and his last chance was gone.

He finished in a tie for second at 282 with Ralph Landrum and Tim Simpson. O'Meara had a 69, Landrum closed up with a 67 and Simpson had a 70 in the hot, muggy weather.

Roberts was tied with Mark Lye, who had a 71, at 283.

Bill Kratzert, rookie Willie Wood and Roger Maltbie, each with a 71, were next at 284.

Leonard's HR Dedicated To Robinson

By The Associated Press
For now, Danny Ozark is a genius — thanks to Jeff Leonard.

Ozark succeeded the embattled Frank Robinson on Sunday as San Francisco manager after Robinson was dismissed Saturday night. Leonard's ninth-inning grand slam gave the Giants a 7-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves Sunday and made Ozark a perfect 1-0 as San Francisco manager.

According to Leonard, his ex-manager was gone but not forgotten. "My motivation was to dedicate that game to Frank Robinson," said Leonard, who hit a 3-2 pitch from Donnie Moore over the fence in right-center field. "As a manager, he made me a better ballplayer."

Ozark, a 538 manager in seven seasons with the Philadelphia Phillies, is so far an invincible field captain with the Giants. He was at a loss to explain his successful start.

"I don't know what he would have done differently in this game," Ozark said, referring to Robinson. "Everybody manages about alike. I feel good about it, naturally."

being able to manage again. But I just feel bad for Frank."

For Leonard, who batted in another run in the third with a double, the home run was the 16th of the season. The grand slam was the third of his career.

The Giants entered the ninth trailing 4-3. With one out, Dan Gladden singled off reliever Gene Garber, 1-2, and Bob Brenly doubled him to third.

Donnie Moore was called in to pitch and Chili Davis was walked intentionally to set the stage for Leonard.

Gary Lavelle, 4-4, pitched three innings in relief of starter Jeff Robinson to pick up the win. Greg Minton pitched the final inning for his 12th save.

Elsewhere in the National League, Chicago defeated Montreal 4-3, San Diego outscored Houston 9-5, Cincinnati edged Los Angeles 2-1 in 11 innings, New York went 10 innings in beating Pittsburgh 3-1, and Philadelphia topped St. Louis 6-3. The Dodgers, Pirates and Cardinals all played giveaway, committing crucial late-inning mistakes that decided their fate.

Reds 2, Dodgers 1
Steve Sax's throwing error in the bottom of the 11th inning allowed Cesar Cedeno to score the winning run.

With one out, Cedeno on second and Skeeter Barnes on first, Dave Van Gorder grounded to shortstop Dave Anderson, who flipped to Sax at second for the force. Barnes took Sax out with a hard slide and Cedeno sprinted for home. Sax threw wildly to the plate and Cedeno scored easily.

Barnes had taken Sax out hard on a ninth-inning force play after Barnes' single had tied the game. "I thought about that before the pitch," Sax said. "I knew he was going to be on me if we didn't hold him (on first base). He was there when I got the ball."

Dodger starter Fernando Valenzuela took a 1-0 lead and a one-hitter into the bottom of the ninth.

Mets 3, Pirates 1
Dale Berra fumbled an apparent double-play grounder by Mookie Wilson with one out in the top of the 10th inning, and a walk to Keith Hernandez loaded the bases. George Foster followed with a two-run single.

Mets starter Sid Fernandez had blanked the Pirates on two hits until Lee Lacy tied the score with a one-out home run in the eighth. Wes Gardner pitched two hitless innings for his first major-league victory.

Phillies 6, Cardinals 3
St. Louis reliever Neil Allen walked John Wockenfuss and Ozzie Virgil with the bases loaded in the eighth to force in the tie-breaking runs.

Jeff Lahti, 3-2, issued the first of four eighth-inning walks allowed by St. Louis. Bill Campbell, 4-3, pitched the seventh inning and was credited with the victory, while Al Holland gained his 24th save.

Willie McGee homered in the bottom of the eighth to make it 4-3. Von Hayes' fourth hit of the game, his 12th homer, gave the Phillies two insurance runs in the ninth.

Andersen-Schiess Driven By Basic Olympic Dream

By NORM CLARKE
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES — Pain shouted from her contorted body, but her numbed mind drove her toward the finish line.

Gabriella Andersen-Schiess has no memory of those final tortured steps at the conclusion of Sunday's women's marathon. But the millions who witnessed her Olympic bravery — and shared her agony — will never forget it.

"I don't remember it a whole lot," said the 39-year-old Swiss-born ski instructor. "I got within four kilometers and then I blacked out."

She staggered into the Coliseum for the final 500 meters of the 26-mile run and slowed to a dazed, grotesque plod. Her lame left leg dragging, she weaved aimlessly, almost leaving the track.

Instinctively, she continued, propelled by applause from the near-capacity crowd of 77,000.

When her grim struggle ended in collapse as she crossed the finish line, attendants stopped her fall, cradling her limp body.

Taken off the track in a stretcher, Andersen-Schiess was treated for dehydration and given intravenous fluids by Olympic doctors, officials said. She did not require hospitalization.

However, the wrenching conclusion to the first women's Olympic marathon sparked debate over whether officials should have stopped her for her own good.

Canada's team physician, Doug Clement, questioned the wisdom of allowing Andersen-Schiess to continue.

"If it would have been a Canadian athlete, even in first place, good God, you shouldn't let that happen," he said.

"There were tears in my eyes. I was saying 'My God, what a mess this is.' It was the dilemma of all time. Do you tackle her and stop her or do you let her go and have blood on your hands?"

But Dr. Anthony Daley, chief physician for the Games, declared, "Meet officials did the right thing by allowing her to continue," Olympic officials reported.

Later, after being returned to the nearby athletes' village at the University of Southern California, she was alert and said during an interview that she recalled little about the last two miles.

"I couldn't really think rationally at that time," she said. "My actions were by instinct and reflex ... I would rather have finished in a normal manner."

"I remember coming into the stadium and I thought I could finish," said Andersen-Schiess, who resides in Sun Valley, Idaho.

Asked if officials should have allowed her to finish, she replied:

"I don't know. I don't feel too bad now, so I don't think there's any lasting effect," she said. "I'll probably be a little weak for a while, but I can walk around now and I feel fine."

Needing 16 minutes to cover the final mile, she finished 37th in a time of 2:48:42. Six of the 50 competitors dropped out of the race, which was run under near-ideal conditions, officials said. Almost half the race was run near the ocean and the temperature at the Coliseum was 76 degrees.

American Joan Benoit won the event in 2 hours, 24 minutes and 52 seconds.

"As she (Andersen-Schiess) came up the tunnel, my thoughts were, 'This is one of the most courageous things I've ever seen,'" said Dr. Richard Greenspun, a Los Angeles internist who is the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee's chief medical officer for track and field.

"We didn't interfere. I think if she'd fallen, a doctor would have asked if she felt she couldn't continue. There were nurses, trainers, and doctors lining the course."

Greenspun said medical personnel did not actually ask Andersen-Schiess if she wished to continue. But when she was approached, she was seen to veer away.

"Her actions were louder than words," Greenspun said.

Dehydration is a common occurrence in marathons, according to Greenspun. When it strikes, loss of body fluids leads to a cutoff in blood supply, causing numbness in limbs.

Dr. Arne Ljungqvist, a member of the International Amateur Athletic Federation Board who was at trackside, said such decisions are easy if there are miles to go in a marathon, but difficult if the runner is close to the finish.

"I have been at similar events," he said. "It is hard to judge if a runner is to be stopped because if you interfere, the runner is disqualified."

"Secondly, if you lay a runner down to examine them, it is physiologically impossible for them to get up and finish the race. It is better for doctors and trained medical staff along the way to determine if the runner should be pulled off the course."

at the Montreal Games and well off his world mark of 47.02.

"I just feel very fortunate to be able to be around for eight years and be able to repeat after that long," the 28-year-old Moses said. "After not being able to go in 1980 (when the United States boycotted the Moscow Games) it really just sweetens the whole victory."

Sunday's other track-and-field medalist was Finnish javelin thrower Arto Haerkoenen.

Also Sunday:
•The cycling competition was closed out with the United States — Ronald Kiefel of Denver, Roy Knickman of Colorado Springs, Colo., Davis Phinney of Boulder, Colo., and Andrew Weaver of Coral Springs, Fla. — winning the bronze behind Italy and Switzerland in the 100-kilometer road team event.

•Meldrick Taylor of Philadelphia, at 125 pounds, 132-pound Pernel Whitaker of Norfolk, Va., and Jerry Page of Columbus, Ohio, 139 pounds, all scored unanimous decisions. But Robert Shannon of Edmonds, Wash., at 119 pounds, was the first American boxer to lose, stopped in the third round by Sung-Kil Moon of South Korea. Also losing at 119 pounds was Star Zulu of Zambia, beaten by world champion Marizio Stecca of Italy.

The U.S. women's basketball team, led by Anne Donovan's 14 points, clobbered Canada 92-61 to move within one victory of a gold medal. The American women will play the title game Tuesday night against South Korea, which they beat 84-47 earlier in the tournament. The U.S. men's team plays West Germany tonight in the quarterfinals.

The U.S. women's volleyball team also is one victory shy of a gold medal following its 16-14, 15-9, 15-10 sweep of Peru. It will play China Tuesday night. "We should go into the match loose and proud," U.S. Coach Arie Selinger said. The Americans beat China in four sets last Friday night.

•Li Yuhua of China took a 517.92-516.75 lead over Kelly McCormick of Columbus, Ohio, going into tonight's women's springboard diving final. "This was just a day to get the kinks out," McCormick said. "The prelims are always weird. I'll be more aggressive tomorrow."

•The United States team of Bradley Lewis of Corona del Mar, Calif., and Paul Enquist of Seattle won gold in the double sculls and American teams won three silvers and a bronze in other rowing events.

•America's women gymnasts, concluding their greatest Olympic performance by far (eight medals, seven more than ever before), won a gold, two silvers and three bronzes to their earlier haul.

•The American women's handball team was beaten 33-20 by Yugoslavia.

•Romania's Nicu Vlad set three Olympic records en route to a gold in the middle heavyweight (198 pounds) weightlifting.

•Yoshiyuki Matsuoka of Japan won the gold in the half lightweight judo competition.

•Italy won the team foil gold in men's fencing.

Romanian gymnast Ecaterina Szabo finally lived up to her advance billing by winning three gold medals — in the horse vault, floor exercises and balance beam, sharing the last gold with teammate Simona Pauca.

Julianne McNamara of San Ramon, Calif., shared gold with Ma Yanhong of China on the uneven bars, Mary Lou Retton of Fairmont, W. Va., won silver in the horse vault and bronze for the uneven bars and floor exercises, and Kathy Johnson of Huntington Beach, Calif., won bronze on the balance beam. She immediately announced her retirement, saying she hopes to coach, judge or do television commentary in the sport.

The U.S. swimmers on Saturday night matched their feat of 21 gold medals in the 1968 Games, then announced a wave of retirements, among them Rowdy Gaines of Winter Haven, Fla., and Steve Lundquist of Jonesboro, Ga., who were denied a chance to compete in Moscow four years ago and who were half of the medley relay team that set a world record en route to this 21st gold.

"These Olympics take away all my bad memories," Gaines said. "Before the Olympics, my only regret in swimming was that I didn't get to go to Moscow for the 1980 Olympics. Now that's completely forgotten." George DiCarlo, Nancy Hogshhead and Tracy Caulkins also said they were retiring.

Caulkins was one of five American triple-gold medalists.

Fernandez 'Extends' Martina; Wilkison Moves Into Title Match

By The Associated Press
Martina Navratilova's winning streak is 43 but the world's top women's tennis player had to work for her latest success.
Gigi Fernandez, the 1983 NCAA finalist currently ranked No. 110 in the world, gave Navratilova her toughest threat in the $150,000 Virginia Slims of Newport tournament before losing a 6-3, 7-6 (7-3) decision.
Fernandez had the satisfaction of winning more games and keeping Navratilova on the court longer — 67 minutes — than any of the champion's previous four opponents.
"I thought I'd play the game I played all week, a grass court game," said Fernandez, who will represent Puerto Rico in the Olympic Games this week. "I thought if I returned serve well, I'd give her a good match."
Fernandez, 20, had reached the final round after making the main draw as a lucky loser, replacing Pam Shriver, who withdrew because of illness.

"I knew she was a good player. She was two points away from beating Shriver at Wimbledon," said Navratilova.
Fernandez attacked the net at every opportunity and forced Navratilova to lunge for volleys and stretch for groundstrokes. She also returned Navratilova's serve extremely well, but her own erratic service game proved her undoing.
"I was frustrated at not being able to break her serve," Navratilova said, "but I was playing well on my serve, which is all you can expect on grass."
The victory was worth $28,000 to Navratilova. Fernandez, enjoying her best tournament in 10 months as a pro, earned $14,000.
In men's play, Johan Kriek had an easy time in earning top honors at the North American Open.
Kriek, 26, needed only 61 minutes to score a 6-2, 6-4 victory over unseeded Mike Westphal of West Germany in Sunday's title match at Livingston, N.J. The former South African, who now lives in Naples, Fla., had only one break point against him in defeating the 19-year-old Westphal.

"I was serving very well and mixed it up so that he could never get in a groove," said Kriek, ranked eighth in the world and top-seeded in this week's Western Open at Cleveland. "It's so easy when you are serving well."
Kriek won $15,000, while Westphal took home $7,500. The women's singles title went to third-seeded Steffi Graf of West Germany. The 15-year-old overpowered 14-year-old amateur Holly Danforth 6-1, 6-1 in 46 minutes for a $3,000 prize.
In North Conway, N.H., eighth-seeded Joakim Nystrom of Sweden and unseeded Tim Wilkison moved into today's final of the $255,000 Volvo International tournament.

Petty, Woods Negotiate

By The Associated Press
Kyle Petty will wheel his Ford Thunderbird around the NASCAR Winston Cup Grand National tour for the Woods brothers racing team if 7-Eleven agrees to sponsor them, a newspaper reports.
Petty and Leonard and Glen Wood confirmed Friday that they plan to fly to Dallas later this month to finish negotiating a sponsorship contract with 7-Eleven, the Winston-Salem Journal reported.
"What we have (with the Woods) is a letter of intent," Petty said. "It's 98 percent sure, and everything is pretty much a formality. But we haven't signed anything."
He said Grand National car owner Raymond Beadle also was interested in signing him as driver for the 1985 season, and that Beadle's personal friendship with 7-Eleven officials might be a factor in the company's decision.
The marriage between Petty and Woods Brothers would leave the Petty's own family business without a driver for the first time since it was founded in 1949. Kyle's father, Richard, left Petty Enterprises at the end of last season after a 25-year career.
"We might simply sell the whole place," Kyle Petty said of the family business.

Miller Wins LPGA Event

WHEELING, W. Va. (AP) — The hills of West Virginia have become a second home for Alice Miller as well as a haven for her golf game.
"I love coming here and one of my goals this year was to defend my title in West Virginia," Miller said Sunday after doing just that with a 2-stroke victory in the $150,000 West Virginia LPGA Classic.
"It's a big relief and a thrill. I haven't been playing well," said Miller, whose last victory came in February in Sarasota Fla.
Miller's 7-under-par 209 was worth $22,500 and was the third win in her six-year career. It was one well-earned as she shot a final-round, even-par 72 to fight off a strong challenge from Vicki Singleton, her former Arizona State teammate, and Beverly Klass, Singleton, the first day-leader with a tournament record 66, and Klass finished with 5-under-par 211s on the 6,150-yard course.
Miller credited her victory to "smart golf," especially over the final five holes after Singleton had pulled to within a stroke with a birdie on No. 13. Miller had a bogey on that hole and the 2-shot swing appeared to be setting the stage for the tournament's sixth straight playoff.
But Miller parred the final five holes and Singleton missed birdie putt opportunities on the final four holes of the steamy and soggy Speidel golf course at Oglebay Park. "I guess some of it was my lack of experience in that type of position," said Singleton, who earned more money Sunday ($11,625) than she did all last year.
"There was no room for error," said Miller, who led the tournament after two rounds by 1 stroke. "I think the strong point of my game is that I play smart. I wanted to stay aggressive with my swing and play smart."
"The most disappointing thing is to go out on the last day and lose a lead. You don't want to back up into the field. If someone shoots the lights out and passes you, OK. I just wanted to play my game and not look at the leader board."

Actor Richard Burton Dies In Switzerland

By HANNS NEUERBOURG
Associated Press Writer
GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) —
Richard Burton, a Welsh

coalminer's son who fascinated the public as much with his turbulent private life as with his acting virtuosity, has died from a brain hemorrhage. He was 58.

A renowned Shakespearean stage actor and the star of more than 40 movies, Burton lived high, drank hard and pursued a highly publicized love life that included two marriages to Elizabeth Taylor.

"He was a born actor but he was a bit wild and chose a rather mad way of throwing away his theater career. He was awfully good to people and generous," said actor Sir John Gielgud after news of Burton's death in a Geneva hospital on Sunday.

The actor was taken ill at his villa in Celigny outside Geneva and rushed to the hospital, said one of his brothers, Graham Jenkins, in Portsmouth England.

Burton's agent of 34 years, Valerie Douglas, told reporters at the actor's villa that he will be buried at Celigny. She said further details, such as the time and place of the funeral, had yet to be arranged.

She said memorial services would be held in South Wales and London but that no dates had been fixed.

When told of the actor's death, Miss Taylor was in California with two of her children, including Maria, the daughter she and Burton had adopted during one of their two marriages, said her publicist, Chen Sam.

"They are extremely, extremely upset," said Ms. Sam, weeping. She said Miss Taylor was too shocked to make a statement on Sunday.

Laurence Olivier was said to have once told Burton: "Make up your mind. Do you wish to be a household word or a great actor?" Olivier, who was to soon make a movie with Burton, called him "a very fine actor and his early death is a great tragedy to the theater world, the film world and the public."

Burton's splendid baritone renderings of Shakespearean lines invariably electrified audiences and his piercing blue eyes and commanding presence riveted screen audiences of such works as "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" "The Spy Who Came in from the Cold" and "Becket." But critics called several of his other 50 films mediocre or terrible.

Jenkins, saying he last saw his brother two weeks ago in London, said: "It was very sudden. He has been in tremendous form recently."

A month ago, Burton celebrated the first anniversary of his marriage to Sally Hay, 36, a film production assistant. She was with him when he died, said Burton's brother Verduin. "She is very upset. She can hardly speak. She is heartbroken," he said.

Mrs. Burton became alarmed when the actor failed to awaken Sunday, Ms. Douglas said today.

"She could not awaken him," the agent said. "His breathing was not correct. She called a doctor and immediately had him sent to a hospital."

Burton once said his alcoholism was "as bad as cancer." In June he declared that his legendary drinking bouts were through and announced his "semi-retirement" from acting.

But he took on a heavy work load. He played O'Brien, the interrogator, in a new film version of George Orwell's futuristic classic "Nineteen Eighty-Four," then a small role as a congressman alongside his daughter Kate in an American TV series, "Ellis Island."

Burton was born Richard Jenkins, 12th of 13 children of his coalminer father and barmaid mother, on Nov. 10, 1925 in the village of Pontrhydfen, South Wales.

Supermarket Bulletin Boards Search Out Victims Nationwide

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — When officials in the New Jersey Division on Women were looking for a way to reach victims of domestic violence, they turned to the community supermarket.

Notices posted on bulletin boards in 400 supermarkets eight months ago resulted in a 50 percent increase in the number of calls received by the hot line for victims of domestic violence, said Cheryl Edwards, the division's executive director.

"I was astounded," she said last week, adding that the hot line now receives about 230 calls a month.

Her experience demonstrates how bulletin boards, which representatives of supermarket chains said they first hung up about 10 years ago, have become a hot medium for getting the word out about a meeting, lost dog, violin lessons, maid service or food stamp program.

"Supermarket bulletin boards are the largest free classified advertising service in the world," said Rochelle Dishon of Supermarket Communication Systems, a Connecticut-based company which has supplied bulletin boards to 4,900 supermarkets nationwide, including 260 in New Jersey. Supermarket officials said the bulletin boards have become such a fixture that their placement is part of the designing of new stores or redecorating of old ones.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, AUGUST 7, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime is fine for whatever concerns making decisions that reflect your own intimate thoughts, and this is followed by a chance to make practical application of these aims.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Many fine opportunities to advance can be studied today so that you can put the finest of these in operation tomorrow.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Find the best way to please the one you love in the evening and make this person happier. Be very romantic and charming.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Contact those persons with a single-track mind in business and get good results and fine advice. Later follow their suggestions.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Adopt a more philosophical attitude at your job and insure its continuity. Take care of any health problem.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Use that particular talent you possess and make it work like a charm so that it brings you benefits and real satisfaction.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan how to get more accomplished at home, even though it may mean extra effort and the expenditure of a little more money.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handling communications of all sorts wisely is most important today and tonight. Enjoy your home and family this evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Look to a money expert for the ideas that can help to make your life more abundant and fruitful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have fine judgment at this time, so reach decisions where important matters are concerned. Drive most carefully.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have fine ideas for self-development so put them in operation quickly before others get ahead of you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You can make fine advancement through the auspices of good friends today. Go after the practical during the daytime.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get your career work done well and you gain the attention of bigwigs and praise as well. Get together with friends later.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will want to talk incessantly, so early teach to have all the facts and figures straight before making any comments and keep out of trouble. A good education is important here in order to make a big success in life, which is the motivating force here.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Saturday's Cryptiquip — "IS TENNIS ATTIRE REQUIRED?" AN ESQUIRE INQUIRED.
Today's Cryptiquip clue: P equals I

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Islanders Differ On Effect And Benefits Of Tourism

OCRACOKE, N.C. (AP) — On an island with roots dating back more than two centuries, to the time of Blackbeard the Pirate, residents say tourism has been a mixed blessing to Ocracoke.

"Ocracoke has lost its virginity," one islander said recently. "Change is inevitable. Nobody can stop it, just like you can't stop the tide."

Tourism has brought the unincorporated fishing village of 660 a new three-story brick motel, a dance hall, and Ocracoke's first jail.

The 16-mile of protected national seashore has been noted for its half-tamed beaches and wild ponies that wandered loose over the sand flats. Ocracoke had long survived without local government, without police, a hospital, or even home mail delivery.

But developers rushed in to grab a piece of the tourist trade, and because there were no controls on construction, zoning became an issue.

Islanders complaining about development around Silver Lake, Ocracoke's picturesque harbor, asked Hyde County government to hire a consultant, write a sample zoning law and impose some control.

Voters turned down control 424-238. "They thought it was a death sentence," said David Esham, Ocracoke preservation association president and a proponent of control. "It got out that this (zoning) ordinance was meant to cramp the lifestyle of the people," said Alton Ballance, and Ocracoke county commission candidate. "They thought that they could not keep crabpots in the front yard or, if their house burned down, they could not rebuild."

Until the state completed N.C. 12 across Ocracoke's 16-mile stretch in 1957 and initiated ferry service in 1960, commerce from the outside world was meager.

Tourism has changed the island, bringing the ferries, jobs and services.

"It's the bread and butter very definitely," said Larry Williams, co-owner of the Island Inn. "So many people on the island don't realize what a blessing this is."

One of the main objects of controversy is the Anchorage Inn, a modern brick motel, which owner Scott Cotrell said he wanted to be the "most imposing structure on the island."

Several islanders agree the building is imposing.

"I don't mind telling you that's the worst thing that has happened to Ocracoke," said crafts shop owner Philip Howard, whose great-great-grandfather owned the island. "If you stand on the docks and start at the cottage across from the Coast Guard station and let your eye scan the entire circuit of the harbor, there's no way you can do it without focusing on that brick hotel."

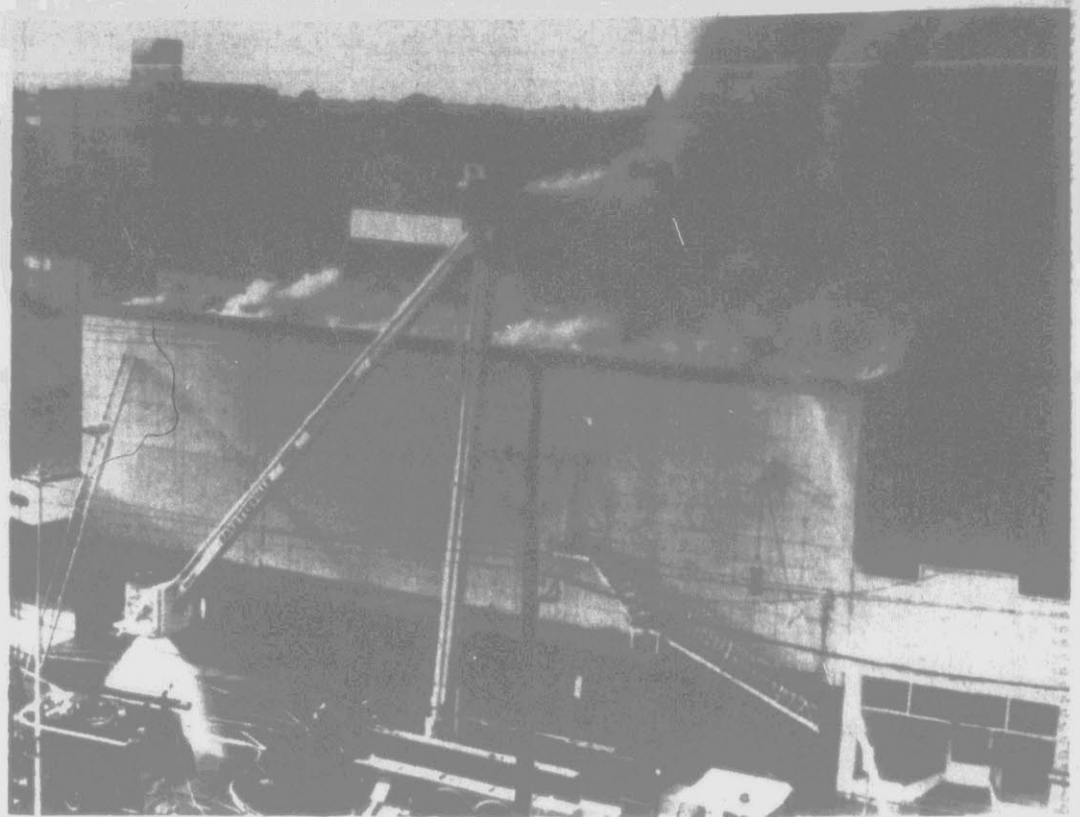

The Anchorage "looks like something that belongs on an interstate," Ballance said.

Even islanders who want Ocracoke left as it is know the economic odds are against them.

"I would sell anything I've got for half a million," said Jack C. Willis, owner of a general store. "And I've got news from you. These people who say their land is not for sale — they would sell it for enough money."

But Ballance said not everyone would be tempted.

"If someone said, 'I'll give you $5 million' (for the property), I'd say go take a hike because there are things more important to me than money," Ballance said. "If more people felt that way, you'd probably see this place more quaint than it is."

Firemen Overcome By Smoke Fighting Fayetteville Blaze

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Firefighters kept watch throughout the night and early today over a fire that destroyed an abandoned downtown building and sent six firefighters to a hospital for smoke inhalation.

Nearly 300 city and county firefighters worked 2½ hours to bring under control the blaze, which broke out at 5:05 p.m. in the abandoned Belk's building in the 100 block of Hay Street, said fire dispatcher Susan Faircloth. Firefighters remained at the scene this morning to watch for "hot spots" that might ignite again, she said.

The tall, two-story building was destroyed, and a crane knocked down what walls remained for safety reasons, Ms. Faircloth said.

Nearby buildings may have suffered some heat damage, but Ms. Faircloth said she knew of none that were damaged by the blaze itself.

The fire began on the second story of the building, said Duane Emerick, fire department dispatch supervisor. The cause of the fire has not been determined. Six firefighters were treated for smoke inhalation and heat exhaustion at Cape Fear Valley Hospital and were later released, said hospital spokeswoman Joy Miller.

Ms. Faircloth said 225 Cumberland County firefighters, 70 city firefighters, seven county ambulances, five county rescue squads, 20 county fire trucks, six city engine companies, two city aerial ladder companies, and three fire medics (similar to rescue squads) responded to the scene.

Digger Feels He's Found Lost Town

HILLSBOROUGH, N.C. (AP) — Since English surveyor and historian John Lawson visited and wrote about it in 1701, archeologists have been trying to find Occaneechi Town.

A University of North Carolina anthropologist thinks he has struck gold.

"We have every reason to believe that we have found at least part of Occaneechi Town" along the banks of the Eno River, 15 miles north of Chapel Hill, said Roy S. Dickens. "We're as sure as we can be in this business."

Dickens and his crew are in the midst of a five-year project, which actually started with Joffre Coe, a UNC professor emeritus who first found the site and worked near it in 1938 and again in 1940 and 1941.

In 1982, Dickens succeeded Coe and decided to do some serious digging into North Carolina's past by picking up where Coe left off.

The work resumed in a cornfield near the Eno River where Coe's old site was located. Dickens carbon dated the site to about 1545 — 21 years before the first Spanish explorer ventured into the Piedmont.

Late last summer, Dickens' team started searching the ground farther down the field for surface artifacts such as stone tools, pottery fragments, arrowheads and flakes of worked stone. The discoveries were enough to justify a full-scale excavation.

By painstakingly digging out 10-foot squares just below the plow zone, Dickens' team found a new site, about 200 yards west of Coe's old site, which he speculated was started between 1680 to 1710.

Many of the Indians of central North Carolina had vanished forever by 1730, their villages decimated by European diseases, their culture disrupted by military operations, political manipulation and forced resettlement, Dickens said.

With help from staff archeologists H. Trawick Ward and R.P. Stephen Davis Jr., and about 18 UNC students, Dickens is trying to "catch a glimpse of what this culture must have been like" before and during early European contact.

"Right now we have only two frames out of the whole story," he said. "We think that in the future we can reconstruct the story line and then tie it into what really happened here from 1300 to 1720."

Outside the village of Occaneechi Town, the archeologists have 10 graves, including one that contains a skeleton wearing a breastplate of shells. An English rum bottle dating from 1700 and 1704 lies beside another Indian's remains. Another body had been buried with an Indian clay pot, a musket, a metal hoe and a lead smoking pipe, all of English origin. Other graves contained a silver-plated English spoon, a European copper kettle and English sleigh bells.

The group also has excavated an oval "sweat house," which was common among Eastern American Indians.

Second Oldest

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Last year, when Laura M. Nell celebrated her 101st birthday, the Veterans Administration said there was no doubt that she was the oldest woman veteran in the United States.

As Miss Nell celebrated her 102nd birthday on Saturday, she got the news that she is apparently the second oldest U.S. woman veteran.

Louella Luhrman, a resident of the Veteran's Administration nursing home unit at Palo Alto, Cal., turned 102 last Dec. 8.
