FIRST HARVEST ... On Wednesday, farmer David Eastwood of near Stokes made a first harvest of one of his fields of tobacco. The late harvest situation is rather prevalent in Pitt County this year due to circumstances created by heavy rainfall in July. Eastwood noted, too, that the excessive rain has hurt the harvest prospect by creating a thin, lighter weight tobacco. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Martin Says Victory Backs Runoff Plan

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

R.L. "Bob" Martin of Bethel expressed pleasure Wednesday over winning the Democratic nomination to the 6th Senate District seat in Tuesday's runoff primary and said the voting was "a solid endorsement" for runoff primaries in the state.

"I am profoundly honored," Martin said of his narrow 6,192 to 6,004 victory over Shelly Willingham of Rocky Mount.

"This district is the backbone of North Carolina's agricultural economy," Martin said. But "it has the diversity, the potential and the means to become the leader in North Carolina's industrial and economic growth."

"This campaign has taken me into every corner of the 6th District. I expect to continue and expand this contact with the people," Martin said, suggesting that "no public official can do less and expect to represent his or her constituency."

According to Martin: "I welcome the advice, the contact, the opinions, and the opportunity to serve all of the people in the 6th District."

"The district is rich with diversity. But even so, there are common concerns such as the viability of the family farm, the quality of public education, and the efficiency of government programs that need to be represented in the Senate."

Martin continued: "I believe that my background in local government and as a farmer will enable me to see that these common concerns receive their proper attention in the legislative process."

The new 6th Senate District — including six townships in Pitt County, one Martin County township, and portions of Edgecombe and Wilson counties — was formed by the General Assembly earlier this year.

Martin and Willingham were the top two vote-getters in a four-way race for the nomination in a July 17 primary, and Willingham called for a runoff.

"I feel I should ... commend the 12,196 people who took the time to exercise their most cherished right by voting in the runoff primary," Martin said.

"Even though I had a clear and convincing plurality in the first primary (Martin polled 5,633, Willingham received 3,721, John Costabile from Wilson took 2,435 and Vernon Morton from Wilson received 220 votes on July 17), my opponent (Willingham) exercised his perfect and legal right to call for a runoff.

"The unofficial returns indicate that more voters voted in the runoff primary than voted in the first primary (12,009 votes were cast on July 17, while 12,196 votes were tallied in Tuesday's balloting)," Martin said, suggesting that both he

Industrial Output Increases In July

By The Associated Press

Showing relentless staying power, the nation's economic surge gained more steam as production at factories, mines and utilities rose a healthy 0.9 percent in July, while the White House said the federal budget deficit should hold steady over the next three years.

In posting the July production gain, the Federal Reserve on Wednesday said industrial output was up a revised 0.9 percent in June, instead of the 0.5 percent originally forecast.

Robert Wescott, an economist with Wharton Econometrics, said the July increase reflected growing optimism by manufacturers.

"Everyone is now convinced that this expansion is rolling and going to continue at least through 1985. That optimism is causing the industrial sector to increase production," he said.

In another report released Wednesday, the Commerce Department said inventories held by U.S. businesses rose 0.03 percent in June, the smallest increase in a year.

Some economists said the slowdown in inventory restocking and Tuesday's report of a 0.9 percent July drop in retail sales signaled that future production gains would moderate.

"With retail sales growing more slowly and the housing industry already peaked, we will begin seeing smaller increases in industrial production in the months ahead," said Lawrence Chimarine, chief economist at Chase Econometrics.

However, Chimarine predicted increases for the rest of the year would still be in the range of 0.4 percent to 0.5 percent a month — substantial enough to drive unemployment down further.

The White House, meanwhile, said brisk economic growth earlier this year allowed it to cut its forecast for the fiscal 1984 federal budget deficit by $3.5 billion, to $174.3 billion.

The revised budget-deficit forecast issued by the Office of Management and Budget also showed that the deficit should hold steady over the next three years, then slip to $161.7 billion in 1989. The deficit reached a record $195.4 billion in the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1983.

The non-partisan Congressional Budget Office last week forecast that the deficit would increase to $263 billion in 1989.

OMB spokesman Edwin Dale said about half the difference is due to the higher interest-rate assumptions of the congressional analysts.

The changes also reflect tax and spending measures adopted by Congress to slash the deficit, and assume congressional agreement on a level of defense spending lower than projected in the budget President Reagan sent to Capitol Hill in February.

Israeli Jets Strike Base In Lebanon

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli air force planes attacked a Palestinian guerrilla base near Bar Elias in eastern Lebanon's Bekaa Valley today, the Israeli military command announced.

The command said the target was a regional guerrilla command post that was a staging base for attacks on Israeli forces. All the planes returned safely to base, the military command said.

Israel says its policy is to strike at guerrillas whenever possible.

Military sources said the guerrilla base about three miles north of Bar Elias was used by the Syrian-backed breakaway faction of the Fatah organization commanded by Said Moussa, who is also known as Abu Moussa.

The sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the planes scored hits on the two buildings at the base.

The attack is Israel's 13th air strike on Lebanon this year and its first in eastern Lebanon since May 24.

Rainfall Slows Pitt Harvest

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

"All crops in Pitt County are showing the effects of too much rainfall in July," said Sam Uzzell, a Pitt County Agricultural Extension agent. "It's been a most difficult season, especially for tobacco and for early planted corn."

Uzzell added that "soybeans and peanuts in quite a few instances are also showing water damage, with a number of fields having a yellowish cast. One of the basic causes of crop damage is due to root loss. Once a plant loses part of its root system, there's no way it can completely recover from that loss."

Throughout Pitt County, the tobacco harvest is running behind the normal schedule this time of year. "A substantial number of farmers are harvesting more than the usual number of leaves at one pulling," Uzzell pointed out. "For some, because of circumstances, there's the potential for stripping the entire stalk on one pass across the field."

One Pitt County farmer, David Eastwood of near Stokes, talked about his tobacco fields Wednesday as a mechanical harvesting aid moved slowly down the rows as primers went almost half-way up the stalk taking leaves.

"This is the first time I've been able to harvest in this field," Eastwood said.

In that same field, a couple of small areas had stalks with wilted, browned leaves, drowned because of excessive water. Asked about loss from drowned tobacco, Eastwood said, "Actually, I would estimate that my loss on that point is less than one percent. There's very little hurt because of that. What has hurt me and many farmers is the loss in weight. Lots of the tobacco is washed out, thin, with not much body."

"And it's the same story," he added. "When you have lightweight, gold-colored tobacco, the buyers say they want leaf with more body, more of an orange color."

Summing up prospects for the agricultural harvest in general, Uzzell said, "I don't believe we're going to have a harvest in any crop on the heavy side this year. It looks like now it's going to be on the light side all the way around."

Tests Are Ordered For Wise

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — David L. Wise, charged in robberies at three fast-food restaurants in which female employees were abducted and raped, was sent to Dorothea Dix Hospital in Raleigh for mental and emotional tests.

Wise, 30, was arraigned in Wayne County District Court Wednesday on charges of rape, armed robbery and kidnapping. A preliminary hearing was scheduled for Aug. 28 in Goldsboro.

A clerk in the Wayne County court said Wise will receive the tests before the hearing.

Kinston Police Chief E.A. Brooks said warrants were obtained for Wise for armed robbery, rape, two counts of kidnapping and larceny of a motor vehicle in connection with a July 19 robbery at a fast-food restaurant. He said the warrants had not yet been served because "he (Wise) is going nowhere."

Wise was arrested Monday by Greenville police after a car chase and charged with robbing fast-food restaurants in Goldsboro and Mount Olive at gunpoint.

In each incident, a young female employee from each restaurant was abducted, driven to a deserted area, raped and later released. The Goldsboro incident occurred July 12, and the Mount Olive robbery occurred Aug. 11.

Wise has not appeared in Pitt County District Court on stolen vehicle and speeding charges.

Study Fails To Find Agent Orange Link

CHICAGO (AP) — Exposure to Agent Orange does not appear to increase the overall likelihood that Vietnam veterans will father children with serious birth defects, a new study says.

But the evidence is "weak," and proving it might never be possible, say the study's authors, researchers at the national Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

They compared data on fathers of 4,815 seriously defective babies born in the Atlanta area from 1968 through 1980 to data on fathers of 2,967 healthy babies matched for race, age and hospital of birth.

Six hundred ninety-six of the fathers were Vietnam veterans, and no evidence was found that exposure to Agent Orange increased their overall chances for fathering offspring with serious birth defects, the researchers reported in Friday's Journal of the American Medical Association.

While the overall birth defect rate was the same for children of veterans and non-veterans, certain kinds of defects — such as spina bifida — showed up more often where the father had served in Vietnam. However, the researchers said this may have been caused by chance or some risk factor other than Agent Orange.

About one-fourth of the Vietnam veterans said they believed they had been exposed to the herbicide, which was used to defoliate millions of acres of Southeast Asian jungle to deprive communist forces of crops and shelter during the Vietnam war.

Though Agent Orange was thought to be harmless to humans and animals, much of it was contaminated with dioxin, considered among the most toxic chemicals known.

An out-of-court settlement in May called for a $180 million trust fund to be set up by seven chemical companies for thousands of Vietnam veterans and their families who believe that they have been harmed by the chemical's effects. Veterans say the effects range from weight loss and liver damage to skin diseases and birth defects in offspring.

The CDC researchers said, however, that their conclusions were the same regardless of which of two Agent Orange exposure estimates they used.

Women Can Start Losing Hair From A Variety Of Causes

Hearst Magazines

Women as well as men can start to go bald, particularly after age 40, from causes that vary from hormones to hairstyles.

Possible reasons for hair loss in women, according to leading dermatologists interviewed in the August issue of Bazaar include low-protein fad diets, beginning or ceasing to take birth control pills, major surgery, a long illness, infection accompanied by high fever or prolonged and intense stress.

All these can result in temporary — if frightening — severe hair loss. All can be easily corrected.

Drugs also can be the villain.

"A long list of drugs, among them antihypertensives, anticoagulants and medications for cardiac conditions can cause hair to go into a resting state and fall out," says Dr.

Michael Lorin Reed, assistant professor of clinical dermatology at New York University Hospital.

"And look to self-prescribed long-term megadoses of vitamins, particularly A in excess of 25,000 IUs (international units), as potential factors in temporary hair loss."

Dr. Norman Orentreich, associate clinical professor of dermatology at New York University School of Medicine, considers "excessive mineral and health-food intake as possible causes of hair loss."

Dermatologists also warn against repeated use of tight curlers, clips, barrettes, hairpins and stiff brushes. Pulling hair tight into ponytails or braids can cause traction alopecia or baldness.

"This condition is temporary if the traction is brief," says Dr. Orentreich, "but permanent hair loss from follicle destruction can result from prolonged traction."

Some women try to halt their hair loss — which usually occurs on the crown in women rather than the receding hairline of male baldness — by improving circulation through exercise, massage and headstands. Does it work?

"It's folklore," states Dr. Neil Sadick, clinical assistant professor of dermatology, New York Hospital. "This is the kind of advice that's passed on from person to person but is never shown scientifically to have any validity."

What does work? First the dermatologists advise, be gentle with your hair. They add that hormones and drug therapy may be the answer and told Bazaar that a new drug now being tested, Minoxidil, is considered promising.

If neither proper hair care nor hormones help, two options remain — hair transplants and wigs.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

Reprinted by Request:
A woman after my own heart was cleaning out her piano bench recently and came across a newspaper dated Jan. 9, 1938.

I was amazed to find a two-page marriage quiz. Maybe it's because we tend to think that divorce became a problem of the '70s and '80s. Yet, 45 years ago men and women were listing the "merits and demerits of their life partners in a test to gain the attention of all intelligent men and women who aspire to make their marriages both permanent and happy."

The plan was to tally up your mate's merits and hopefully have a total left after you subtracted the demerits.

Now you can talk all you want about the big four causes of divorce — money, kids, sex, and in-laws — but take a look at these complaints that bothered their partners. Marriage comes down to a lot of little things that with time become intolerable. They also are very familiar.

Women found these things to be unacceptable in a partner. Men who belch without apology or blow nose at table . . . leave shoes in living room . . . stare at or flirt with other women while out with wife . . . tease wife regarding fatness . . . roll in bed-covers and pull them off . . . eat onions, radishes or garlic on going to bed . . . defer too much to mother; a mama's boy . . . publicly praise bachelor days and regret having married . . . leave dresser drawers open . . . blame wife for everything that goes wrong; rarely admit they are wrong . . . dislike to dress or to shave on Sundays . . . call, "Where is . . . ?" without first hunting object . . . don't talk at home. Any one of those is enough to put the cork on a bottle of honeymoon champagne.

Now, about the women's "demerits." Even 45 years ago, men deplored women who are slow in coming to bed and delay it until husband was asleep . . . don't like children . . . put their cold feet on husband at night to warm them . . . smoke, drink, gamble or use dope . . . remind husband it is her money they're living off of . . . wear pajamas while cooking . . . serve dinner but fail to sit down till meal is half over and then want husband to wait on them . . . make evening arrangements without consulting husband . . . have shoulder slip strap hanging over arms . . . slow up card games with chatter . . . walk around in stocking feet . . . are suspicious and jealous . . . leave stockings in wash basin . . . smoke in bed . . . tell lies, whine and complain . . . talk about former boyfriend or first husband.

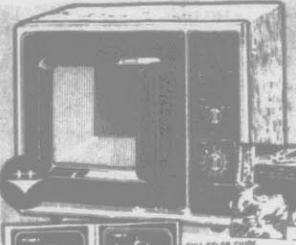

It was interesting. Whoever stored the quiz in the piano bench took the test and the only fault the wife marked was "dislike to dress or shave on Sunday" and the only thing the husband marked was "wears pajamas while cooking."

My conclusion: If they're both wandering around the house in night clothes on weekends the odds are good that the marriage worked.

Florida Bride Is Advised To Rethink Upcoming Marriage

DEAR ABBY: I'm getting married soon and was going to ask my favorite uncle ("Jim") to give me away because my father is dead. Now I'm wondering if I should.

You see, Uncle Jim is now a devoted family man, but he used to be a Catholic priest and he may not feel comfortable participating in a non-Catholic wedding.

Should I leave him out of my wedding? If I do, I'm afraid my mother (his sister) would be deeply hurt. My mother and all her relatives are devout Catholics.

I was raised Catholic, but now I'm a born-again Christian and so is my fiancé. Should I play it safe and not invite my mother or any of her relatives?

Hurry your answer. I need to get married soon before this guy changes his mind again.

GETTING MARRIED IN FLORIDA

DEAR GETTING: Ask your uncle if he wants to give you away, and don't try to second-guess his feelings. Invite your mother and the relatives you want and let them decide whether they want to accept or not.

Your closing sentence causes me to question your maturity. If the guy you want to marry might "change his mind" (again, yet!), perhaps you should slow down and rethink the whole thing.

DEAR ABBY: This concerns the frustrated couple who were unable to marry because the man's wife had left him and he couldn't find her in order to obtain a divorce. The wife had not been heard of for over four years and all efforts to find her had failed. Obviously the man couldn't marry again without divorcing his wife, so they turned to you for advice.

You suggested that they retain a lawyer. Abby, why spend money on lawyers? I had the same problem—only I couldn't find the husband away to see me anymore. Things are not like they used to be, and I'm beginning to worry. He made many promises.

Do I have any legal rights? This is the second time this has happened to me with a married man.

FOOLED AGAIN

DEAR FOOLED: Since I am not a lawyer, I'm not qualified to tell you what your legal rights are, but if I may offer a bit of advice: Stay away from married men! As my sainted father used to say, "Every once in a while the hog kills the butcher, but most of the time, the butcher kills the hog."

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FEELS FOOLISH FOR ASKING": Foolish? No way. Take it from the sage and quotable Malcolm Forbes, who said: "One who never asks either knows everything—or nothing."

Was It Needed?

A recent appropriation made by the state Legislature has surfaced which should give us all concern for the way our tax money is distributed.

The omnibus local appropriations bill contained a $30,000 Department of Community Colleges item to provide for an area economic development coordinator for northeastern North Carolina.

The bill was introduced by Rep. John Gillam and that brought speculation that he was creating a job for himself once his term in the Legislature expired. He says that is not so and he is not interested in the job. If he says he is not interested, so be it. The question comes up, however: why make the appropriation in the first place?

Bob Scott, president of the state's community college system, seemed almost surprised to have the money. He said he was hardly ready to take applications. "We're still trying to come up with a job description," he said.

Clearly this is a case of pork barrel funds being appropriated when no real need has been documented, and that is what we do not need in government.

The sum of $30,000 is a drop in the bucket in the multibillion dollar state budget but it causes one to wonder how many other such appropriations have been made over the years that are still being carried from year-to-year.

There is no real reason to provide $8 or $10 million in pork barrel funds each year for legislators to divide up as they wish. Every item that goes in the state budget should be clearly documented as to need. If we don't need it, don't spend it. After all, it took a lot of taxpayers toiling away many days to provide that $30,000.

Clarity

In an election year ... as well as in everyday life ... it is important that a thought be expressed with clarity. Otherwise, the projected thought is open to either accidental or deliberate misinterpretation.

Room for misunderstanding seems to grow in the preparation of forms which are "simplified" through brevity; but that very brevity can pose questions and uncertainty as to what is actually wanted. It follows that if a person is confronted by a variety of possible responses, the chance of providing sought-for facts is diminished.

Verbally, the use of shortcuts, "body-language", assumptions and "in-house" terminology can be confusing.

A few weeks ago a candidate promised he would increase taxes. Which taxes, he did not say. We'd guess most listeners instinctively presumed he was talking of income taxes.

His rival felt pushed into a position of saying he would never raise taxes ... a statement later qualified by his saying one should never say "never." But what kind of taxes was he referring to when he said they would never be raised? There are all kinds of taxes. Again, listeners and readers had to guess maybe income taxes were on his mind at the time ... it was never clarified.

Good communication depends on full and mutual understanding. It is not always easy to attain.

Oddly enough, we suspect the 1040 income tax form is one of the better government forms in the pursuit of good communications. Almost every line is clarified with definitions and explanations on attached pages.

Much of the time it is not happy reading; but then, neither are newspapers.

Housing Costs Present Problem

LOS ANGELES — After Ronald and Nancy Reagan took time out from their film obligations to marry in 1952, they settled into Nancy's "tiny" apartment in Hollywood. Their quarters were so small, in fact, that they kept a separate apartment to store Mr. Reagan's belongings.

But the newlywed's cramped living situation didn't last long. Within months of their marriage, they'd snatched a first home in Pacific Palisades, an upper-crust L.A. suburb along the seaside.

With her new marriage Aug. 14, the Reagan's daughter, Patti Davis, faces a housing problem, too. When the 31-year-old actress married her 25-year-old yoga instructor, Paul Grilley, she found herself without the home of her dreams.

Indeed, the cost of home-buying has forced Ms. Davis to look for a larger apartment than the one she already occupied in rent-controlled Santa Monica.

Ms. Davis, of course, made a six-figure income last year and could well afford to purchase a home in a number of L.A. area communities, though not in the exclusive section of popular Malibu. Nevertheless, her housing dilemma speaks to a generation that will probably never be able to purchase the home of their dreams in the city of their preference.

George Sternleaf, director of the Center for Urban Policy Research at Rutgers University, contends that home-buying is naturally most difficult for couples in income brackets lower than Ms. Davis'. According to Sternleaf, to purchase a modest $80,000 home with a 15 percent mortgage today would mean monthly payments of at least $1,000 after a 10 percent down payment. When other costs — $100 in taxes each month, $50 for insurance, and utility and repair bills — are added, a couple would face close to $1,500 a month in housing expenditures and need at least $45,000 in earnings (using the rule that housing requires 25 to 40 percent of one's income). Similarly, payments on a $150,000 home would require a combined salary of $76,000.

The higher the tax bracket, the more appealing mortgage deduc-

The White House announced it would investigate to determine why the microphone was on. A newspaper in London called the incident "a joke which has turned into a serious embarrassment."

The Soviet Union Wednesday issued a formal statement calling the remark "unprecedentedly hostile toward the U.S.S.R." and said it was "dangerous to the course of peace."

Former President Gerald Ford can sympathize with Reagan. So can Henry Kissinger, Ford's secretary of state.

Eight years ago, running for a full term in the White House, Ford tripped over Poland, declaring during a debate with Jimmy Carter that there "was no Soviet domination of Eastern Europe and there never will be under a Ford administration."

Candidate Carter jumped on the remark. He said it "disgraced our country" and that he was "shocked by the insensitivity and lack of knowledge that Mr. Ford displayed."

Ford tried mightily to correct the gaffe. "America firmly supports the aspirations for independence of the nations of Eastern Europe," he said.

Carter didn't let up. He called Ford's statement a "cruel hoax upon millions who have lived under Soviet domination for their entire lives."

Other Democrats piled on. Former Postmaster General John Gronouski said Ford was living in a fool's paradise.

Images are important and politicians rise and fall with the impressions they create, intentionally and unintentionally.

Ford already was saddled with a reputation for bumbling. He had bumped his head on helicopter doorways and tripped coming down the stairs from Air Force One on a European visit. So his slip-up on Poland may have contributed to Carter's narrow victory that November.

For all his diplomatic experience and cautious nature, Kissinger found himself in an embarrassing situation during an official visit to Canada in 1975. Like Reagan, he didn't realize the microphone was on.

Kissinger was the guest of honor at a dinner in Ottawa given for him by Allan MacEachen, the external affairs minister. A microphone was on the table, to carry the speech he and MacEachen were to make afterward to reporters in another room.

Unfortunately for Kissinger, the microphone had been switched on.

As a result, he was overheard describing Richard Nixon, his former boss, as an "artificial" and "unpleasant" man. While he was "one of our better presidents," Kissinger said, he was an "odd man ... He was so nervous. It was such an effort for him to be on television. He was very nervous."

Having resigned a year earlier in the Watergate scandal, Nixon was being roundly criticized. But the remarks of Kissinger, who had worked with him closely, must have carried a special sting.

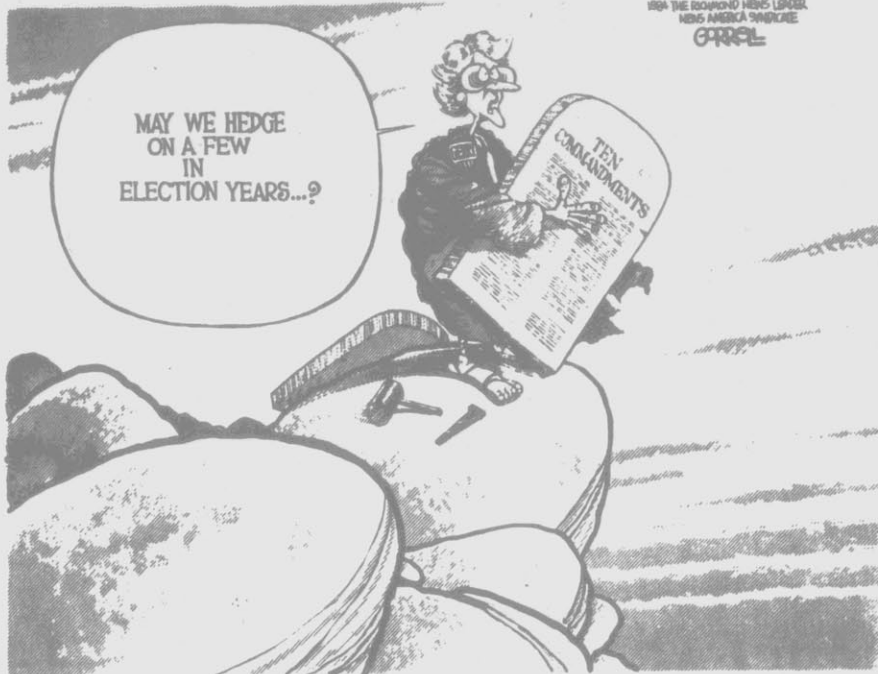

It's not clear yet how much Mondale will make out of Reagan's joking remarks, but the Democratic candidate has made no secret of the fact that he intends to challenge Reagan's capacity to lead the nation in this nuclear age.

While Mondale did not work up Carter's fervor, he suggested Reagan doesn't understand that "a president has to be very, very careful with his words so that they, all of them, communicate what we want to communicate."

As the campaign proceeds, Mondale will be looking for illustrations, and Reagan will have to be careful — all joking aside.

Thoughts On Cable TV

competition could come only from another cable TV company here, a developer in fact would be at the mercy of Greenville Cable TV, as he would have no practical alternative means of service, and consequently would have nothing with which to negotiate for rates lower than the maximum.

To the editor:

Many of us remember the atomic bombing of Japan. It saved our lives. We were getting ready to participate in the planned invasion of Japan, which probably would have resulted in thousands or even a million people being killed.

Remember, Japan brought it on, starting with the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor.

In my opinion, they have been bombing the U.S.A. ever since economically, with their very, very high protective tariffs — stealing high technology and unethical business practices such as dumping excessive products at below cost to manufacture. Many other nations have blocked Japan's tactics, but not America.

We thank the late President Truman for saving our lives by authorizing the dropping of the atomic bomb.

To the editor:

I do believe we all could be made happier if we all were good neighbors to each other. My church bulletin mentioned being a good neighbor and it brought my attention to the first time I began to be a good neighbor. It was in 1930 when I was 16.

A neighbor, Mrs. Lockamy, was expecting her third child. She had a baby girl in the cold winter about February. One week later she told me she was going to wash her hair. Houses were not well-heated back then. I asked her to please don't do that because she already had a cold. She did not listen. She washed her hair and in three days she was taken to the hospital and died of pneumonia.

It shocked me, but I got busy going all around cutting and rolling hair to get money to buy material to make the baby some dresses. I had never made anything before. I got it done well, and I also bought canned milk for the baby. I was sad over the happening, but it did help me knowing I was making an effort to be a good neighbor. It taught me a lesson that we can do most things if we really want to. Being a good neighbor makes us feel good about ourselves.

To the editor:

Having been an active Greenville Jay-C-Ette now for over 10 years, I feel compelled to respond to statements made in an Aug. 13 article in the Reflector by Mrs. Robin Davis, president of the Raleigh chapter of the National Organization for Women. She stated that the decision of the North Carolina Jaycees to vote against the proposed bylaw changers relating to open membership and dissolution of Jaycee Women organization at their national convention this week is "perpetuating the old-boy network and showed a reluctance on the part of the N.C. Jaycees to accept women as leaders."

I see it as quite the contrary. It is largely a show of support of our existing Jay-C-Ette organization (referred to as Jaycee Women by some local chapters and at the state organization level).

The change being proposed nationally would automatically abolish one of the largest, most active young women's organizations in our state — one that has developed extensive leadership training, personal and professional development, Jaycee assistance and community support programs.

At our recent Jay-C-Ette meeting in Greenville the question was asked, "If our Club has to be abolished, how many would be interested in becoming a Jaycee?" Not one person answered positively.

I contend that if Mrs. Davis thinks a woman has to be part of "the old-boy network" in order to get ahead professionally, or personally, then she is grossly underestimating our abilities. Let's hope that in fighting for additional freedoms for women, NOW and others will also strive to help us preserve the things valued so highly by so many women.

The Greenville Jay-C-Ettes have been strong here for 33 years and we are dedicated to carrying on this fine tradition.

Strength For Today

One couple in this community is famous for kindness to newcomers. When a new family moves in, these people begin a series of hospitable acts by which the strangers are helped to settle, be entertained, introduced to other folks, and generally made to feel at home.

How did these kind people start their welcoming procedure? Years ago, when they first moved here, no one paid attention to them. For their first six months, until they made friends, they were quite lonely.

An interesting result of their hospitality is that the attitude of the community toward strangers has changed greatly. Other families have followed the generous, outgoing example of this couple. Now when new people move in, they find this to be a friendly town. From a cold-hearted community in which individuals appeared to be interested only in themselves, this has become a warm hearted community — and all by the effort of two people.

Cypriot Ship Strikes Mine

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — A Cypriot ship struck an underwater mine in the Red Sea and suffered severe engine damage, shipping experts said today. It was the 17th vessel reported damaged by explosions in the waterway since July 9.

The report came as the U.S. transport ship Shreveport, with four mine-hunting helicopters aboard, sailed into the Gulf of Suez and joined an international force seeking to clear the Red Sea of explosives.

A spokesman for Lloyd's Shipping Intelligence in London, which monitors shipping movements worldwide, said Mobil Oil Co.'s London office reported that the Mobil Swift tanker picked up a distress signal from the 11,765-ton Cypriot motor vessel Theopolis.

The signal indicated the Theopolis struck a mine Wednesday night at the south end of the Red Sea, just north of the strait that opens into the Indian Ocean, the Lloyd's spokesman said. He spoke on condition of anonymity.

The spokesman said the ship reported severe engine damage. No further details were available immediately.

The Shreveport made the trip from the Mediterranean through the 100-mile-long Suez Canal and today joined the U.S. ship Harkness and four British minesweepers and a British support vessel in the Gulf of Suez, the northwestern fork of the Red Sea.

About 200 American personnel are reported to be involved in the effort to clear the huge sea — 1,450 miles long and up to 225 miles wide — of explosives.

In Paris, an Iranian exile opposition group, the Mujahedeen, today claimed Iran's Organization of Military Industries had been involved in a secret project to produce sea mines since the start of the year. The group said information about Project Sadaf (Oyster) was received from sources in the Iranian army. There was no immediate comment from Iran.

The statement said the project is overseen by the most senior authorities of the regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, including President Ali Khamenei. It said Iran also had bought a large quantity of mines from abroad.

The British ships involved in mine hunt were anchored today at a small Egyptian naval base at Adabiya, a few miles south of the city of Suez, while crews worked on some steering and sonar problems.

Officers aboard one of the ships said they expected to begin operations this evening or Friday and to continue searching for two weeks to two months.

Egyptian naval sources said the 9,000-ton Shreveport did not dock at Adabiya because the harbor was too small to accommodate it. They declined to pinpoint the ship's location.

U.S., British and Egyptian officials said that apart from locating and dismantling mines, they want to determine who sowed them.

One of the divers on board the wooden-hulled Gavinton told Associated Press photographer Don Mell: "The biggest problem that we face here is that we don't have any idea what we are looking for."

Officials are unsure who is behind the explosions in the Red Sea, or what kind of devices have caused the blasts. There are many different kinds of mines: mines that float on the surface and are detonated by contact and mines that sit on the bottom of the sea and are activated by metal.

Egyptian officials have speculated Libya or possibly Iran may be responsible for laying the mines, but both countries have denied it. Iran has repeatedly blamed the United States, and Washington has denied that accusation.

Tanker Attacked In Persian Gulf

By The Associated Press
An unidentified warplane fired two rockets at a Pakistani tanker en route to a Saudi Arabian oil loading terminal in the Persian Gulf, but the rockets missed and the tanker escaped undamaged, an official at Pakistan's National Tanker Co. said today.

The official, reached by telephone in Karachi from the Pakistani capital Islamabad, said the M.T. Johar was attacked Wednesday near Shah Alam Shoal, 12 miles from the island nation of Bahrain.

The Pakistani news agency, monitored in Kuwait, said the 89,000-ton Johar was some 60 miles northeast of Qatar when the attack occurred. This area — east of the location reported by the tanker company — is the same region where Kuwaiti tankers were attacked by Iranian warplanes earlier this summer.

Iraq, which is at war with Iran, also has attacked neutral ships in the gulf. Neither country has claimed responsibility for the attempted attack on the Pakistani ship.

A representative of the ship's agent, Barber Lines Ltd., based in Damman, Saudi Arabia, confirmed the attack and said it occurred Wednesday afternoon, according to a telexed message he received from the ship.

He said the telex blamed the attack on "unidentified planes."

All the sources spoke on condition they remain anonymous.

Protestants Riot In Northern Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Hundreds of Protestant militants threw gasoline bombs and battled the predominantly Protestant police force early today in what officers said was one of the worst such riots in a decade.

The Protestant attacks came after several outbreaks of rioting this week by Catholics opposed to British rule in Protestant-dominated Northern Ireland.

In the Shankill Road district, about 500 Protestant rioters set two shops afire, and erected barricades and ignited them. Others ripped up paving stones and tore down concrete lamp-posts, smashing them into chunks on the road and hurling them at police.

Housewife Rosemary Wilson told reporters: "The IRA can get away with it — killing and bombing and taking lives every day. Now it's our turn to be heard."

Her comments echoed a growing sense of frustration among Northern Ireland's million-strong Protestant majority, alarmed at what they see as propaganda successes by the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

The mainly Catholic IRA is fighting to drive the British from Northern Ireland and unite the province with the Irish Republic.

The Protestant majority fears British authorities may try to push them into a union with the overwhelmingly Catholic Irish Republic in a bid to end 15 years of sectarian bloodshed.

A police spokesman reported "no serious injuries" and said several arrests were made in the rioting, which described as among the worst by the so-called "loyalist" Protestants in 10 years.

The violence began late Wednesday when a mob hijacked a bus. When police officers moved in, they ran into a barrage of gasoline bombs.

Police said the rioting escalated as supporters of the Ulster Volunteer Force, responsible for some of Northern Ireland's worst terrorist atrocities, rampaged down the street.

The violence began shortly after baton-wielding police fought with 47 alleged Protestant terrorists on trial in Belfast's Crown Court Wednesday. Screaming women relatives of the defendants, arrested on the word of an informer, lobbed plastic bags of urine at police officers in the heavily guarded courtroom.

Police reported several minor injuries in the 20-minute courtroom clash.

Guerrillas Take Toll In Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Battles with leftist guerrillas killed at least four government soldiers and wounded 20, military sources report.

A guerrilla spokesman in Mexico City said the army's casualties were higher, claiming 42 troops were killed or wounded in guerrilla ambushes Wednesday.

The fighting took place in the eastern part of the country, according to the military sources, who asked not to be identified for security reasons.

Journalists traveling in the north said they were told by residents that two children died after government planes bombed the area.

Also Wednesday, Foreign Minister Jorge Eduardo Tenorio said Pablo Mauricio Alvergue has been named the new Salvadoran ambassador to the United States and will assume duties at the end of this month.

Alvergue, 54, replaces Ernesto Rivas Gallant, who had held the post since October 1979.

U.S. Groups Report Deaths Of Civilians

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Salvadoran military is using "indiscriminate" bombing, shelling and infantry attacks to drive the civilian population out of areas where leftist guerrillas are active, two human rights groups allege.

The two groups, Americas Watch and the Lawyers Committee for International Human Rights, charge that the attacks have killed thousands of civilians and displaced hundreds of thousands of others.

The New York-based groups, which have monitored human rights in El Salvador for several years, said the attacks appear aimed at driving civilians out of rebel-controlled areas, thus "depriving the guerrillas of a civilian population from which they can obtain food and other necessities."

"The cost of pursuing this policy, in terms of human suffering, is beyond measurement. And, of course, it is a policy that flagrantly violates the laws of war."

Salvadoran officials were not immediately available for comment on the Americas Watch-Lawyers Committee report, released Wednesday. But in the past, the government has denied allegations that its forces deliberately attack civilian targets.

In a report to Congress last month, the Reagan administration praised the Salvadoran military for "growing professionalism and an improved aggressiveness in combat." The administration has dismissed previous charges of indiscriminate attacks as unreliable or politically motivated.

The new 65-page report on El Salvador's human rights does note a "marked decline in the number of death squad killings and disappearances" that followed stern U.S. warnings to Salvadoran security forces late last year.

But the two groups added: "We believe that the few positive developments in El Salvador are overshadowed by the indiscriminate attacks by the Salvadoran armed forces on civilian non-combatants in conflict zones."

"Thousands of non-combatants are being killed by indiscriminate bombardment from the air, indiscriminate shelling, and indiscriminate ground sweeps. Thousands more are being wounded. And hundreds of thousands are being driven from their homes and forced into the misery of displacement."

A Salvadoran church-related agency, Tutela Legal, listed 1,331 non-combatants killed by the armed forces during the first six months of 1984. The agency also counted 185 civilians killed by rightist "death squads," down from 449 during the previous six months. Tutela Legal blamed leftist guerrillas for 37 murders of civilians in the first half of 1984.

While including figures compiled by the church agency, the Americas Watch-Lawyers Committee report also presented testimony that its delegation obtained from survivors of military attacks.

Farmers Home Ordered To Defer Delinquent Loans

ATLANTA (AP) — A federal appeals court has ordered the Farmers Home Administration to begin a formal loan deferral program for delinquent farm borrowers, which the FmHA had been required to do by federal law since 1978.

The Georgia Farm Bureau hailed the ruling as a victory for 250,000 farmers nationwide. An attorney said the ruling enforces a law that has been on the books for six years.

The court ruled Wednesday that the Farmers Home Administration acted illegally by foreclosing on delinquent loans without first notifying borrowers of their right to seek deferrals.

The ruling by the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Wednesday affirmed a lower court ruling in a Georgia case and reversed a contrary ruling by a federal judge in Alabama.

A three-judge panel of the 11th Circuit ruled on a consolidated appeal of the suits.

In the Georgia case, U.S. District Judge Anthony Alaimo of Brunswick enjoined the agency from foreclosing on Georgia farmers until new regulations were written under which borrowers would be told they have alternatives to foreclosure. Alaimo's ruling was upheld.

In the other case, a judge in Montgomery, Ala., dismissed a borrower's complaint after ruling that use of the FmHA's loan deferral program was at the discretion of the agency. Wednesday's ruling overturned the lower court judge and ordered the case sent back for rehearing.

The Georgia suit, originally filed by Screven County farmer Remer Curry, was made into a class action suit on behalf of more than 5,600 Georgia farmers who were delinquent in their FmHA payments.

"The ruling today (Wednesday) is simply an enforcement of a law that has been on the books for six years," said Martha Miller, an attorney for the farmers.

The suit claimed the FmHA was violating federal law governing loan servicing and foreclosure by failure to establish uniform rules governing loan deferral eligibility and procedures. It also said the FmHA should be forced to notify borrowers of their right to apply for deferrals.

Noting that "many farmers across the nation are in dire need of the relief Congress intended to be made available to them," the appeals court held that FmHA procedures did not meet procedural requirements of the law.

The 1978 legislation required the FmHA to offer deferrals to farmers who had fallen behind in payments for reasons beyond their control. The legislation also said deferrals should be given to farmers when repayment of an FmHA loan would "substantially impair" their standard of living.

USDA attorneys acknowledged last February during arguments before the appeals court that no formal loan program had been established, but that deferrals were always offered as an alternative to foreclosure on a case-by-case basis.

In the appellate court decision, Judge Thomas Clark said case-by-case application of the loan program was not enough.

Attorneys for the U.S. Department of Agriculture refused to comment on the ruling. Agriculture Secretary John Block was returning to Washington after a trip to the Midwest and was not available for comment. Spokesman David Lane said Block will discuss the ruling with the department's attorneys in Washington.

"We will go over our options at that time," Lane said. "At the present time, we can't rule out a possible appeal to the Supreme Court."

Funds Awarded To UNC Study

By The Associated Press

Two University of North Carolina researchers have received $4.3 million in federal grants to help prevent or stop smoking.

The principal investigator on a $2.5 million UNC grant targeting teenagers is Dr. Karl E. Bauman, a professor of maternal and child health in the UNC School of Public Health. He and his staff, over the next five years, will develop anti-smoking campaigns directed at young people in six Southern cities not yet chosen.

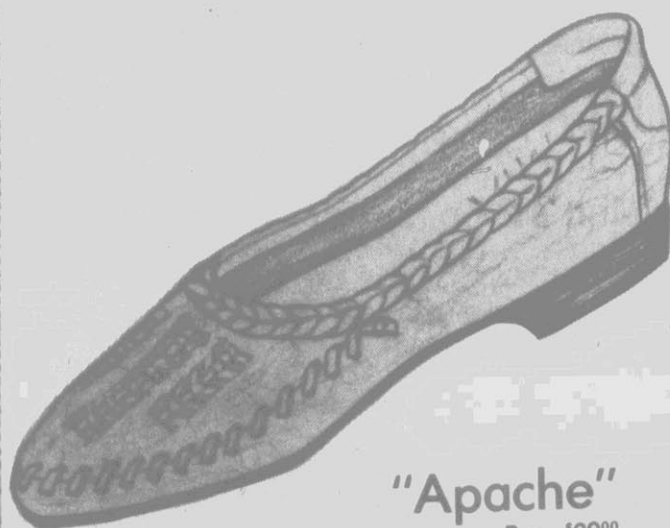

They also will measure the influence exerted on youth by radio, television, teen-age peer involvement and certain kinds of media messages.

Also being funded is a four-year, $1.8 million grant that will examine the influence that manuals, family members, and counseling have on self-help efforts to stop smoking.

Chemical Explosion Kills 3

SIMSBURY, Conn. (AP) — A "runaway reaction" from chemicals being mixed in a bunker-like building at a fuse and explosives factory could have caused a blast that killed three workers and was felt six miles away, company officials said.

One person in the downtown area of this Hartford suburb was hospitalized after inhaling noxious fumes that drifted over the area after the powerful explosion Wednesday at the 148-year-old Ensign-Bickford Co.

All that remained of the 12-by-20-foot building, nestled deep in a pine forest, were parts of cinder blocks, fiberglass insulation and other debris strewn on a winding driveway that led to the isolated structure.

"There was a cinder block embedded in a tree about 30 feet up," said Simsbury police Sgt. Peter Sevetz. "That was 200 yards away."

Chemicals being processed at the time of the explosion left a trail that experts can follow in searching for the accident's cause, said company president Herman Fonteyne.

Fonteyne said the building where the accident occurred was spark-proof, meaning that a spark couldn't have touched off the blast. It was one of five buildings, each ringed by protective berms.

He said it was possible a "runaway reaction" had occurred. In such a reaction, the chemicals become increasingly hotter after being mixed. Unless doused with water, an explosion could occur, he said.

"They were experienced engineers and had been performing the same operation both in the laboratory and in the plant for the past year and a half," Fonteyne said at a news conference.

But, "it's all guess work," he said of the possible causes.

The three victims were handling acetane, nitric acid and other materials as they prepared a chemical used by the oil industry when blasting new wells, Fonteyne said. Ensign-Bickford also makes the detonating devices that separate the booster rockets on the space shuttle.

Taxpayer Says IRS Overpaid

VIENNA, Va. (AP) — Like many taxpayers, businessman Bill Bear is battling with the Internal Revenue Service. But his predicament is different than most: he's trying to give back a $9,069 refund, and the agency insists the money is his.

"I have two letters from them trying to convince me it's mine," Bear said Wednesday. "Everybody tells me I'm crazy not to just take the money, put it in the bank and get the interest — everybody but my accountant."

The accountant advised Bear that when the IRS realizes its mistake it will be just as insistent on collecting the interest as it is now on getting him to keep the money.

Bear, who owns a garage doors and controls firm in northern Virginia, said this isn't the first windfall the government has given him by mistake. He said last month he got a surprise check for $4,600 from the General Services Administration, which asked for the check back that day.

He also said that last year a military weapons center paid him $1,332 twice for the same job. He kept that extra check because he says the government still owes him $1,316 for a bill due since April 1983.

Carol Moore, an IRS spokeswoman, said she could not discuss a specific case but added: "If he thinks that we've made a mistake, all he has to do is turn (the check) back into us. We'll do some extensive research and if he's entitled to it, we'll give it back."

Sentences

MOSCOW (AP) — Four Soviets, including a former clergyman and a movie actor, reportedly have been sentenced to death for a foiled hijacking last November in which seven people were killed.

The official news agency Tass said a student was sent to prison for 14 years for her role in the attempt, and an employee of the Tbilisi airport was given a three-year suspended sentence for failing to prevent the group from carrying weapons aboard the airliner.

The sources and Soviet press reports have said some of those who attempted to take over the plane Nov. 18, 1983, were the children of prominent intellectuals and Communist Party officials in Soviet Georgia.

Executions in the Soviet Union usually are by firing squad.

Breakers Get The Broom

APODACA, Mexico (AP) — Police in this Monterrey suburb have devised a plan to deter teen-agers caught practicing break dancing in the streets in the early morning hours. They have replaced their dancing shoes with brooms.

Carlos Eligio Alvarez, Apodaca police director, says he ordered 16 teen-age boys to clean the street in front of the police station after they awakened neighbors with their loud radios while dancing in the street.

"They can go it until 10 p.m. but not at 2 or 3 in the morning when people are sleeping. If they don't have jobs, their neighbors do," the police chief said.

The dancing cost the boys a morning's labor.

Break dancing is increasingly popular throughout Mexico. An American-made movie about the craze was widely shown this summer, and a television show features break dancing contests.

Monterrey, Mexico's third-largest city, is 143 miles south of the Texas border at Laredo.

Thousands Mark Elvis Anniversary

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — As Elvis Presley tapes played in the background, 5,000 fans carrying candles filed solemnly past his grave today on the seventh anniversary of his death to show "respect for the love he gave us."

"For me, it's been almost 22 years that I'm in love with Elvis, even in death," said Marie-Elizabeth Izzo, a fan from St. Tropez, France.

As police blocked off a section of the four-lane Elvis Presley Boulevard, a brief memorial service was held at 11 p.m. Wednesday before the faithful marched a quarter-mile up the circular driveway of Graceland, Presley's former home, to view his grave.

"We want to say to the world that Elvis is alive in our memory," said Ken Brixey, marketing manager for the company that handles public tours of Graceland and who led the memorial service.

Ever since "The King" died on Aug. 16, 1977, the faithful have made annual pilgrimages to his former palatial residence.

Pat Sargent of Cardova, Ala., and her sister, Ann Kimbrell of Jasper, Ala., waited to place a single red rose on Presley's grave.

They wore custom-made black T-shirts with a gold sequined portrait of Presley on the front and the name "Elvis" in elaborate script on the back.

"We come here every year," Mrs. Sargent said. "We all love him. We don't believe all that junk they wrote about him in the papers."

Asked what "junk" she meant, she said, "The dope."

The Shelby County medical examiner said Presley died of heart disease, but widespread reports said he abused drugs.

Fireworks Shell Injures Child

SEASIDE HEIGHTS, N.J. (AP) — An 8-year-old boy was in critical condition today after being hit by an unexploded shell during a fireworks display on the boardwalk in this shore resort, police said.

Michael Parantino of Clifton was in extremely critical condition at Community Memorial Hospital in Toms River, where he was taken after the accident Wednesday night, said police Lt. Thomas O'Hare.

The 2-pound fireworks cannister, about 6 inches long, had been shot 500 feet into the air but did not explode and fell to the ground, hitting the child, police said.

The boy's mother, Nancy, was treated for minor injuries at the hospital and then released, said police spokesman Bob Littore. The child's father, Joseph, was not injured.

The fireworks display, held in this Ocean County community every Wednesday night during the summer tourist season, is operated by Garden State Fireworks, police said.

Republican Appeal To Women Faces Major Test At Convention

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

DALLAS (AP) — A month after the Democrats made history by nominating a woman for vice president, Republicans will try to confront the gender gap by giving women unprecedented prominence at the GOP convention in Dallas.

But the GOP plan was getting a skeptical reception from some prominent Republican women, including Sen. Nancy Kassebaum of Kansas who said she was delaying her arrival in Dallas to protest being "treated as a bauble on the tree."

Kathy Wilson, a Republican who is chairman of the National Women's Political Caucus, said the party was pursuing a "showcase strategy."

"They are staging a veritable talent show," said Ms. Wilson, who plans to release a report the opening day of the convention that will dispute Reagan administration claims that it has done a great deal for women.

Nonetheless, the Republicans can claim an impressive increase in the number of women delegates over 1980. This year about 44 percent of the delegates at the GOP convention will be women, compared to 29 percent four years ago.

At a Republican National Committee meeting on Wednesday, Betty Heitman of Baton Rouge, La., co-chairman of the RNC, said, "We, the women of the Republican Party, have listened long enough to the radicals and loudmouths who can find nothing good to say about our country or about our president. For decades, as all of you know, we have been the party of women."

The convention keynote speaker will be Katherine Ortega, treasurer of the United States, and several other top convention posts will be held by women.

Mrs. Kassebaum, the daughter of Alf Landon, the 1936 GOP presidential nominee, will be deputy convention chairman.

But in an interview with the Wichita Eagle-Beacon last week, the Kansas senator indicated she was not overwhelmed by the honor.

"If they had me there Monday (the opening day of the convention) just to have a woman, that would be window dressing," she said. "I'm happy to speak on substantive issues, but to be treated as a bauble on the tree is not particularly constructive is it?"

Instead of being present when the convention opens on Monday, Aug. 20, she said she would arrive the next day, Tuesday.

Long before the Democrats, meeting last month in San Francisco, nominated Rep. Geraldine Ferraro for vice president, the Republicans were making plans to showcase women at the party convention.

Ever since President Reagan took office he has been dogged by polls that say his support is higher among men than among women, which became known as the gender gap.

Yet the only two women in the Senate — Mrs. Kassebaum and Paula Hawkins of Florida — are Republicans. And Reagan named the first woman Supreme Court justice, Sandra Day O'Connor.

At least eight women will address the convention. In addition to the keynoter, they include Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole, Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret Heckler and U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick.

But the toughest job for the Republicans was bringing about a dramatic increase in the number of women delegates without using the Democratic approach of requiring that state delegations be equally divided between men and women.

Betty Rendel, president of the National Federation of Republican Women, recalled that the Republicans rejected an effort in 1972 to use quotas to increase the number of women delegates in favor of saying "we'll do it ourselves."

Mrs. Rendel said that, "'72 was not good, '76 was not good, '80 was not good and '84 is maybe not going to be perfect, but it sure is going to be a whale of a lot better."

This year, advocates of increasing the number of women had support from Reagan and from Frank Fahrenkopf Jr., chairman of the Republican National Committee. Both men appealed to state party leaders to increase the number of women delegates.

In a few states, women delegates will outnumber men. Georgia is sending 17 women and 13 men; Texas 55 women and 54 men; Ohio 45 women and 44 men.

However, the Pennsylvania delegation will have 87 men and 11 women, while in North Carolina the men will be in the majority by a margin 22 to 11 and in South Carolina by 23 to 13.

The Campaign Bush

DALLAS (AP) — Vice President George Bush says the husband of Democratic vice presidential nominee Geraldine Ferraro should make his tax returns public, but Bush says "I see no need" to reveal his own tax documents.

The Republican vice president said he released tax returns dating back six years during the 1980 campaign and after taking office put his assets into "the most stringent blind trust established."

"Obviously, if I have conducted myself that way I think others ought to do it for this job," Bush said. "I'm saying, this is what I've done and I'm saying others ought to do it this way."

In a telephone interview with The Associated Press from his vacation home in Maine, Bush also underscored his willingness to debate Ms. Ferraro but said there likely would be no more than one such meeting.

As to who will decide whether he debates Ms. Ferraro, the vice president said it would be "my decision."

Republicans gathering for next week's GOP convention have been heaping criticism on Ms. Ferraro over her husband's refusal to release his tax returns.

Ferraro

SEATTLE (AP) — Geraldine Ferraro, beset by financial disclosure questions, is keeping up her attack on economic policies of the Reagan administration and charging that it plays by one set of rules "for most Americans and one for the privileged few."

At a meeting of the International Association of Sheet Metal Workers, the New York congresswoman said Wednesday that Americans want a government that plays by the same rules for everyone.

Ms. Ferraro made her remarks as she neared the end of her five-day trip to California, Oregon and Washington state, all targeted by the campaign as important to a November victory.

She was attending a rally here today before heading East to spend the weekend in Queens, N.Y., while her husband undergoes surgery for a hernia.

Delegate

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Susan Catania of Chicago is taking a lonely stand into a Republican National Convention that has been carefully orchestrated as a Ronald Reagan lovefest — she's the only GOP delegate in the nation not committed to the president's renomination.

That position may make her the solitary dissenter among the 2,234 other delegates heading to Dallas to coronate the Reagan-Bush ticket for another four years.

Mrs. Catania, 42, a former state representative and unsuccessful candidate for the GOP nomination for lieutenant governor in 1982, ran as an uncommitted delegate in the March 20 Illinois presidential primary. With a moderate-to-liberal position on many issues, she's often at odds with Reagan policy.

She advocates spending less on defense and more on social programs, for instance. The mother of seven daughters, she is an ardent supporter of the Equal Rights Amendment.

SUSAN CATANIA

FEC-Loan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Transcripts show that Federal Election Commission members clearly were dissatisfied five years ago with explanations given by Geraldine Ferraro's husband and campaign treasurer about illegal loans made to her first U.S. House race.

"Pretty unsubstantiated ... rather flimsy" was the reaction of ax L. Friedersdorf, who was vice chairman when the FEC met in closed session in May 1979 to consider what fines to levy against Ms. Ferraro's campaign and her husband, John Zaccaro.

"Very inconsistent" was the assessment of Robert O. Tiernan, then chairman of the FEC, which Wednesday released transcripts of the May meeting and another closed-door session in October 1979.

Questions about the loans have arisen since Ms. Ferraro became the running mate of Democratic presidential candidate Walter F. Mondale.

The documents also show that a majority on the commission was not happy with the $500 in fines against the Ferraro campaign and $250 against Zaccaro that evolved from a settlement involving an illegal loan totaling $109,000.

"I think we just folded over," Tiernan said.

Mondale

NORTH OAKS, Minn. (AP) — Walter F. Mondale is trying to keep attention on President Reagan; and not problems nagging his own presidential campaign, with a charge that the administration's rosy budget estimates are election-year distortions.

Mondale, who returned home to Minnesota on Wednesday from a two-day Southern campaign trip, was concentrating today on the nation's farm economy and agricultural policy.

He was conducting a private meeting in nearby St. Paul with agricultural experts and some Democratic members of Congress with a special interest in farm issues.

GOP

DALLAS (AP) — Republican leaders, polishing up President Reagan's 1984 campaign platform, are worrying over how television will play next week's GOP convention and about energizing loyalists who might take the president's re-election for granted.

Those issues — and not the sparring over naunces in writing the party platform — were uppermost as a made-for-television convention was taking shape in the August heat of Texas. The convention begins Monday.

Citing polls showing Reagan leading Democrat Walter F. Mondale by 15 or more percentage points, Republican Chairman Frank J. Fahrenkopf Jr. brushed off the ideological skirmishes between moderates and conservatives when he reported to the party's governing National Committee on Wednesday.

Election day over-confidence was on his mind.

"The greatest threat, as I view it, to the re-election of Ronald Reagan and George Bush is not domestic policy; it is not foreign policy," Fahrenkopf said. "The greatest threat is over-confidence by those in this room and throughout this country who are charged with the responsibility for voter motivation and voter turnout."

He laid out plans for the party to spend a record $20 million on exhaustive efforts to get Republicans to the polls.

Funds

DALLAS (AP) — Aides to Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., are counting on a smooth National Republican Convention next week so Helms can spend more time fattening his re-election campaign chest instead of leading conservative battles.

Helms, facing a re-election challenge from Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt, is scheduled to attend fund-raisers at sites scattered across Texas during the two weeks he is staying in Dallas for the convention and Platform Committee hearings.

But Helms had to pass up a $500-a-person luncheon fund-raiser set for Tuesday in Houston so he could attend a daylong session of debate on the proposed national security plank.

Town Sets Time Limit For Barking

SMITHTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — A law limiting dog-barking to 15 minutes at a stretch — to be enforced by a stopwatch-toting inspector — has pet owners at the end of their tethers, vowing to fight for "our dogs' constitutional rights."

"The war has just begun," Muriel Dietch, a two-dog owner, said Tuesday after a Town Board that heard "horrendous" complaints from aggravated non-dog owners passed the ordinance 4-0.

This Long Island town of 6,500 licensed dogs — one for every 18 residents — already has a noise ordinance of 65 decibels for residential areas. But because dogs rarely achieve those levels, the existing law is useless for curbing curs.

Town officials say the new law, with fines of $50 for a first offense, $100 for a second offense and $500 and a possible 15-day jail term for a third, should help muzzle incessant barkers.

But pet owners like Mrs. Dietch are afraid that unfriendly neighbors will take advantage of the ordinance, which takes next week, to sic town authorities on people they dislike.

"All your enemies have to do is get to you through your dog," she said. "This is going to turn neighbor against neighbor."

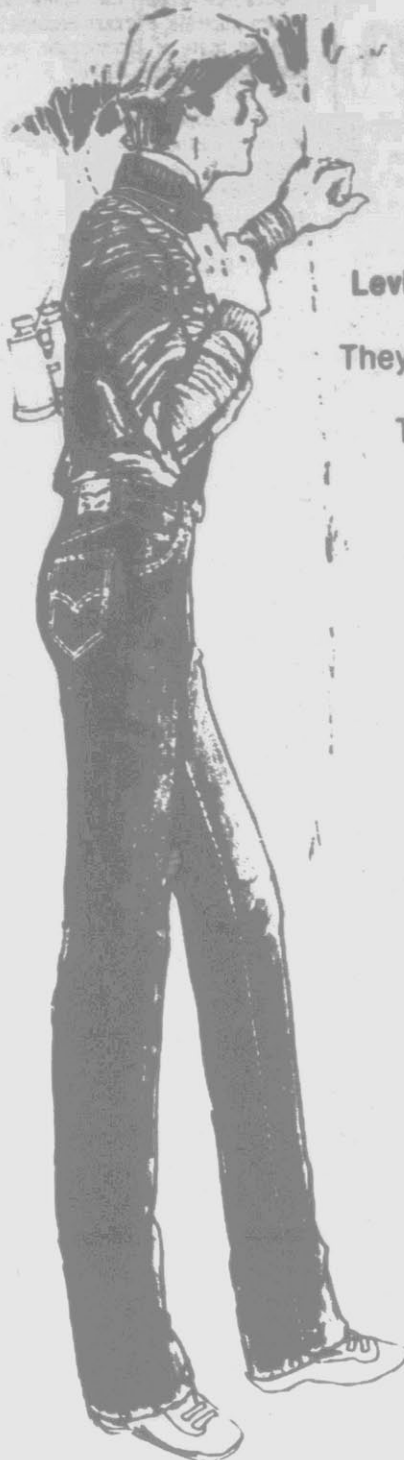

"We'll go to the Supreme Court for our dogs' constitutional rights," she added.

Smithtown Supervisor Patrick Vecchio said officials will only take action against a dog owner after they listen to a violation and time it for 15 minutes. Asked how it would be enforced, Vecchio said an inspector would respond with a stopwatch when notified of a complaint.

He said the ordinance was enacted after Town Board members received several legitimate complaints.

"Some of the complaints were horrendous," said Vecchio, whose allergies prevent him from owning a dog. "Someone can leave a dog tied to a tree for hours, and that dog will bark incessantly. It will drive you crazy listening to that noise all day." "Dogs are born to bark," Mrs. Dietch said.

A crowd of about 35 dog lovers attended Tuesday's meeting and jeered when the law was passed.

NOW Suit Challenges Insurance Premiums

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's largest feminist group, impatient with slow legislative progress toward abolishing sex discrimination in insurance, is moving its fight to the courts.

The National Organization for Women announced plans to file a $2 million class action suit today against Mutual of Omaha, the largest provider of individual health and disability insurance in the country.

The NOW suit alleges that Mutual discriminates against women by charging them higher health and disability insurance rates than men. It says women are harmed financially, psychologically and medically by the discriminatory rates.

NOW President Judy Goldsmith said the insurance industry spent millions of dollars this year to defeat a non-discrimination in insurance act, a harbinger of "intolerably slow" legislative change.

"We, therefore, intend to pursue a litigation strategy to halt the insurance industry's discriminatory and, we believe, illegal pricing structure," she said in a statement Wednesday. "This is the first in what will be a series of lawsuits..."

Len Tondl, a Mutual of Omaha spokesman, said Wednesday that the company had not been notified of the suit. But he said it seemed unfair for NOW to pick on his firm.

"The facts are very clear in saying that females do have greater incidence of medical claims, and therefore the rates are higher," Tondl said. "That's the very same reason they enjoy lower rates in life insurance and lower rates in automobile insurance."

Tondl said individual health and disability premiums last year accounted for more than $650 million in business to Mutual worldwide. The company did overall business totaling $41.6 million last year in the Washington area, according to NOW.

The lawsuit was a product of NOW's New York-based Legal Defense and Education Fund on behalf of 10,000 NOW members in the Washington area, two individuals and all other similarly situated women.

It accuses Mutual of violating the District of Columbia's public accommodations law, which outlaws sex discrimination in public accommodations and defines insurance companies as places of public accommodation.

In addition to financial damages, NOW is asking D.C. Superior Court for a declaration that Mutual's practice is illegal and an injunction blocking continued discrimination in its insurance rates.

A case summary states the suit is expected to "effectively end discriminatory pricing by any insurance company doing business in or from D.C.," pave the way for similar litigation in 26 other states with anti-discrimination laws, and encourage the Supreme Court to bar discriminatory pricing on the open market.

Andrew's Former Girlfriend Weds

LONDON (AP) — American-born actress Koo Stark, the former girlfriend of Britain's Prince Andrew, has married an heir to the $76 million Green Shield trading stamp empire.

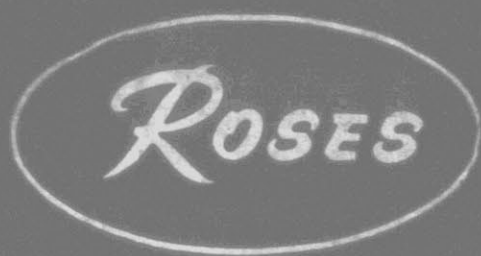

Miss Stark, 28, who once starred in soft-core erotic movies and created headlines worldwide when she and Andrew, now 24, slipped out of Britain under false names in October 1982 to vacation in the Caribbean, on Wednesday married Green Shield heir Timothy Jeffries.

Miss Stark wore white for her wedding to the 21-year-old Jeffries. The ceremony took place at St. Saviour's Church in north London's Hampstead district.

The Church of England vicar who performed the ceremony, the Rev. John Neil-Smith, said: "It was such a quiet affair you wouldn't have known it was happening."

Most Britons didn't know it had until they read their newspapers this morning. The Daily Mail carried the story today under an "exclusive" tag but other newspapers, including The Times of London, swiftly caught up with reports of the wedding of their own.

The wedding ceremony was followed by a luncheon at London's posh Savoy Hotel.

Skin Produced In Test Tube To Help In Treating Burns

BOSTON (AP) — The use of sheets of skin grown from postage-stamp size scraps to save the lives of two critically burned young boys offers new hope for the 15,000 Americans who suffer extensive burns each year, a report published today said.

The skin grown in test tubes from skin cells taken from the two brothers allowed them to survive burns as extensive as any ever described in medical literature, researchers said.

The treatment culminates years of research to find a substitute for natural skin that can be used when people are burned so badly that their own skin cannot be used for grafts.

"This is the first real evidence that it works," said Dr. G. Gregory Gallico, a plastic surgeon at Massachusetts General Hospital and the Shriners Burns Institute in Boston.

The doctors decided to try the test-tube skin last summer after two youngsters were burned over 97 percent of their bodies. The skin was applied in repeated operations over a period of months. Without the experimental therapy, Gallico said, the boys had little chance of survival.

The substitute is living skin that the doctors hope will be as durable as nature's own.

"To me, it looks wonderful, absolutely gorgeous," Gallico said in an interview. "To a lay person, it would appear like a very thin, tight sort of scarred skin that might heal over a burn. It's shiny and pink and smooth."

Ordinary grafts often leave a patchwork appearance because of the seams between them.

Although the laboratory-made skin has been tested on six other people with small wounds, this is the first time that it has been used to cover large sections of the body.

A key to the growing process is its speed. In three weeks, doctors can produce enough skin to cover an entire body.

Skin from other donors can serve as a temporary covering to prevent infection and fluid loss. But it cannot be used permanently, because it is eventually rejected by the victim's immune system. The test-tube skin is genetically identical to the victim's own skin, so it's not rejected.

A report on the boys' treatment appears in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

About 100,000 people are admitted to hospitals each year for treatment of burns with about 15,000 of those suffering severe burns.

The burn victims who received the successful test-tube skin grafts — Jamie Selby, 5, and his brother, Glen, 6 — were hurt while visiting their mother a year ago in Casper, Wyo. The boys had daubed themselves with paint. Then, naked, they tried to take it off with a solvent, and the chemical caught fire.

Jamie has been able to return home and go to school. His brother, though still receiving skin grafts on his buttocks, appears to be well on the way to recovery.

"We believe these little boys had the largest burn wounds ever to survive," said Gallico. "Since they just about didn't have any skin left, there can't be too many people with much larger burns."

Although the boys are walking and active, the doctors are still concerned that the skin may not be flexible enough to allow them free movement of their joints.

"A conservative assessment would be that it appears to be permanent and durable and may be a promising therapy for large burn wounds in the future," Gallico said.

In an accompanying editorial, Dr. Jack C. Fisher of the University of California in San Diego wrote: "The achievement of Gallico and associates cannot be overstated."

The skin-growing process was developed by Dr. Howard Green of Harvard Medical School.

The tiny skin sample is minced and placed in flasks. These contain fibroblast cells like those found in the inner layer of living skin, along with a concoction of culture medium, steroids, cholera toxin and growth hormones.

"It's those additives to the medium that enable us to grow the cells so fast," Gallico said.

'Test Tube' Fathers

LONDON (AP) — Doctors report that they have pioneered a "test-tube" technique to help some infertile men become fathers, and that a British woman married to an infertile man is pregnant as a result of the breakthrough.

Dr. Malcolm Whitehead, consultant obstetrician at King's College Hospital, told reporters Wednesday that the technique involved a surgical operation to extract sperm from the husband.

The sperm was then put, along with eggs taken from his wife's ovary, in a glass dish in the laboratory. The sperm fertilized the eggs in the dish and the fertilized eggs were then implanted in her womb to grow into a baby in the normal way, he said.

The pioneering technique is for use in the case of men who have blocked vas deferens tubes, Whitehead said.

The tubes are the highly convoluted ducts that convey sperm from the testes, and the technique is an outgrowth of the successful test-tube procedure — in vitro fertilization — used mainly for women with blocked fallopian tubes.

Whitehead said the new technique is being tested on a number of British couples unable to have children because the husbands' vas deferens tubes are blocked, but that so far, only the one woman he had mentioned is pregnant. The woman has not been identified.

Whitehead told The Associated Press the new technique could be applied in the case of men who had undergone a so-called "irreversible" vasectomy after deciding they no longer wanted to become fathers but had then changed their minds.

But he said preference in the team's research work on the new technique is currently being given to men with vas deferens tubes damaged at birth or by disease or other complications.

FAA To Enforce Flight Schedules

ATLANTA (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration says it wants airlines to alter schedules voluntarily to ease airport delays, but has also proposed its own limits on landings and takeoffs to relieve congestion at the nation's six busiest airports.

The FAA's deputy public affairs director, Dennis Feldman, made the announcement Wednesday in Washington as FAA Chief Donald Engen spoke to airline officials in Atlanta.

A rule allowing the agency to limit landings and takeoffs will go into effect following a two-week public comment period that begins Friday, Feldman said.

The airports involved are in New York City, Newark, N.J., Atlanta, Denver and Chicago.

"The objective is to spread out the flights within the assigned hours and quotas," Feldman said. "The airlines at present are bunching flights beyond the capacity the airports can handle."

Engen said he would prefer not to have the FAA involved in regulating airline schedules. "I would hope the airlines would do it themselves," he said.

Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Hanford Dole, who released the formal proposal in Washington, said the FAA will "vigorously enforce any scheduling agreements," voluntary or regulatory, with civil penalties of $1,000 per violation.

Airport congestion has been a cause of mounting concern as travelers have been delayed and reports of near-collisions around airports have increased.

Engen said weather is the major cause of flight delays, but the newly deregulated airlines have aggravated the problem by overscheduling during peak periods.

Pan Am Workers Halt 8 Flights

NEW YORK (AP) — Vowing to "shut down the world," unions for thousands of Pan American World Airways employees staged a surprise strike over a freeze in pensions that grounded eight flights before a court order sent their members back to work today.

Pickets at airports nationwide came down late Wednesday after U.S. District Judge Joseph M. McLaughlin in New York issued an injunction ordering the Transport Workers Union's 6,000 members back to work, said Victor Diaz, of the union's air transport division.

"We have a court injunction, so we're abiding by the law," Diaz said. A telephone operator for Pan Am in New York confirmed today that all operations were normal.

The strike, called at 2 p.m. Wednesday by the TWU, forced the cancellation of eight of the carrier's 500 daily flights, Pan Am spokeswoman Pamela Hanlon said. All of the flights were either to or from New York, she said.

The Teamsters, the Air Line Pilots Association and the Union of Flight Attendants said their members would honor TWU picket lines.

At New York's Kennedy Airport, TWU mechanics and cargo handlers began walking out at 2 p.m., along with passenger and reservations clerks represented by the Teamsters, and about 70 workers set up picket lines outside the airline's terminal, Ms. Hanlon said.

After the strike began Capt. Henry Duffy, president of the Air Line Pilots Association, said, "We are shutting down the world." Union spokesman Marty Martinez later acknowledged that some pilots were crossing picket lines.

McLaughlin, who issued the temporary restraining order sought by Pan Am, said he would hold hearings on the pension issue within 10 days.

Pan Am attorney Ernest Garb, who told McLaughlin the walkout was causing "grievous harm right now, right at this moment," said pilots and flight engineers were honoring TWU picket lines and that the Teamsters were staging an independent strike.

Across the nation, the strike had little impact.

Pickets at West Coast airports came down about an hour after word of the judge's order was received, Martinez said. "The strike is over," he added.

BROILERS: The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 47.00 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pound birds. The market is generally steady and the live supply is moderate for a moderate demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Thursday was 1,841,000, compared to 1,857,000 last Thursday.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn higher at mostly 3.38-3.56 in East and mostly 3.59-3.65 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans slightly lower at mostly 6.53-6.94 in the east and mostly 6.69-6.78 in the Piedmont; wheat mostly 3.35-3.43; (new crop corn 2.76-3.14; soybeans 6.16-6.47).

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, steady after Wednesday's sharp drop.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 5.41 to 1,204.39 in the first half hour.

But losers took a 4-3 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The government reported this morning that housing starts dropped 6.6 percent in July. The figure was taken as new evidence that the pace of economic expansion is slackening, possibly allowing room for lower interest rates.

Rates were mixed in the bond and short-term money markets this morning.

In addition, analysts said stocks seemed to attract some buying this morning from traders who had been waiting for a pullback after the market's powerful early-August rally.

Among today's early volume leaders, General Motors rose 1/2 to 74 1/2; American Express gained 1/4 to 31 1/4; Gillette was unchanged at 48 3/4, and Exxon slipped 1/4 to 41.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 15.13 to 1,198.98.

Declines outpaced advances by about 5 to 3 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 91.88 million shares, against 81.47 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index fell 84 to 93.70. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 1.21 at 206.22.

Park Road To Reopen

GATLINBURG, Tenn. (AP) — The highway linking Gatlinburg with Cherokee, N.C., blocked for nearly a week by rock slides, will reopen today, U.S. Park Service dispatcher Diane Parks said.

Heavy rains were blamed for the slides last Friday in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park that caused U.S. 441, or Newfound Gap Road, to be closed, park officials said. Large trees in the roadway complicated the clean-up job, they said.

Ms. Parks said Wednesday night the road will be open before 4:30 p.m. EDT today.

The two slides blocked about a mile of roadway and stranded 31 cars for about six hours. There were no injuries.

The 518,000-acre park straddles the Tennessee-North Carolina state line.

Capsized

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Police rescued 202 people and recovered five dead bodies after an Indonesian vessel capsized off the coast of east Malaysia. Most of the passengers on the vessel, which sprang a leak, were Indonesian.

and Willingham "were able to increase significantly their vote totals" in the runoff.

Tuesday's election "is proof the runoff primary is a viable means to ensure that the Democratic Party nominates candidates with wide public support," Martin said.

"While my victory on Tuesday is most gratifying and represents the culmination of an extremely long campaign this year," Martin said, "I welcome the challenges of the job before me. I look forward to working with Democratic leaders in the district and with the supporters of my opponent, to ensure a Democratic victory in November."

Martin, a member of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners since December 1956, has had a difficult and somewhat uncertain road to the Senate nomination.

He filed as a candidate for the 9th Senate District seat when the district included all of Pitt County. Later, the county was split when the General Assembly realigned a number of districts and Pitt's Arthur, Belvoir, Bethel, Falkland, Farmville and Fountain townships became part of the new 6th District.

The state attorney general's office told Martin that since he had already filed as a candidate for the 9th District seat, he could move from Bethel to the portion of the county still in the 9th District; or he could file as a candidate in the new 6th District, which he chose to do.

Parliament

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — Parliament opened today with the new Labor Party government calling on all South Pacific nations to work to establish a nuclear-free zone in the region.

In a policy statement, the government of Prime Minister David Lange said "In concert with our neighbors, the establishment of a South Pacific nuclear weapons free zone will be sought."

Lange has vowed to ban visits by U.S. nuclear-powered warships and any warships carrying nuclear weapons, saying they would expose New Zealand to nuclear attack. The decision has strained New Zealand's defense ties with Washington.

Olympians Have Date With Mickey

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Two hundred U.S. Olympic medalists arrived in Florida to chants of "U-S-A! U-S-A!" for a parade and a date today with Mickey Mouse at Walt Disney World, the fourth leg of their triumphant five-city tour.

The athletes, some a bit weary from a giant ticker-tape parade in New York earlier Wednesday, responded with youthful enthusiasm to a red-carpet reception from local and state officials.

"It's great to be home," said gold-medal swimmer Ambrose "Rowdy" Gaines of Winter Haven. "This is the best part of the trip. New York City was great, but it's good to be here."

After a 1.3-mile parade in nearby Orlando today, the Olympians were to see Walt Disney World's Magic Kingdown before departing for Dallas, the final stop on their corporate-sponsored tour that began in Los Angeles and included a stop in Washington, D.C., on Tuesday.

An estimated 2.5 million New Yorkers jammed the Wall Street district on Wednesday for a glimpse of the U.S. athletes, who they showered with ticker tape.

As hundreds of spectators climbed on a construction scaffold for a better view of the parade route, the plywood structure designed to protect pedestrians from falling debris collapsed, injuring at least 101 people, four seriously.

Arrival ceremonies and the banquet in Florida on Wednesday night were closed to the public, but many athletes mingled with small crowds of autograph hunters and fans at the plush hotel where they spent the night.

jaunt sponsored by the U.S. State Department.

Swimmers Tracy Caulkins and Nancy Hogshead, volleyballer Flo Hyman and members of the men's and women's gymnastic teams circulated through the crowds of invited guests, signing autographs and patiently explaining what competing in the Olympics meant to them.

Former Olympic great Rafer Johnson, traveling with the entourage in three charter planes, called this "The greatest Olympic team this country has ever had."

hand the love and the pride and the glorious feeling that your country has for you."

John and JoAnn Puha came to Florida from Flemington, N.J. with their two children to view the Olympians because they couldn't afford the cost of going to Los Angeles, even though they had purchased tickets to some events.

"It shows a lot of nationalistic pride," Puha said. "The things these young kids had to go through ... to see them strive and strive."

Carson May Come Back; Franco Nears No Return

By The Associated Press

Harry Carson, recently on the outs with the New York Giants, apparently is on his way back, but running back Franco Harris is approaching the point of no return with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

It appeared that Harris, who needs 363 yards to break Jim Brown's all-time National Football League rushing record, would be in the Pittsburgh fold last week. But Steelers President Dan Rooney now describes chances of an agreement as "bleak."

With Harris absent, the Steelers play the Dallas Cowboys in a nationally televised preseason game tonight. On Friday, it's New England at Washington and St. Louis at Seattle.

Saturday's schedule features Cincinnati at Chicago, Cleveland at Kansas City, Indianapolis at Denver, Detroit at Buffalo, Green Bay at the Los Angeles Rams, New Orleans at Houston, the New York Jets at the New York Giants, Philadelphia at Minnesota, San Francisco at San Diego and Tampa Bay at Atlanta.

Miami visits the Los Angeles Raiders on Sunday to complete the third weekend of preseason play.

Harris, 34, currently in the option year of a contract that pays him $385,000 annually, has been offered a raise in a one-year contract with an option year. But Harris' agent, Bart Beier, has kept his client out of camp for a month while demanding a two-year pact.

Columbia, S.C., in an interview with the Morristown, N.J., Daily Record.

Carson has not been available for comment, but Kelly said his client wanted "to get away from the environment of camp ... It wasn't necessarily a contract matter. It was the same thing that's bothered him the last few years. He's sick of losing, sick of rebuilding, sick of trading people."

Another Giant linebacker, Lawrence Taylor, echoed similar sentiments on Wednesday, and hinted that he might join Carson on the sidelines.

"You just can't get rid of a Brad Van Pelt, a Brian Kelley, a Terry Jackson or a Beasley Reece and expect us to put it back together, expect us to have a great defense," Taylor said.

Player Work Is Pleasing

Coach Ed Emory was pleased with the play of a number of players Wednesday as the Pirates of East Carolina completed their second day of practice in pads.

Emory singled out the performance of defensive tackle David Kramer, saying "Kramer has made great strides since coming over to ECU."

Defensive tackle Dave Plum was very encourage with the line play of his teammates and himself. "I feel the defensive line play is a little ahead of last year's at this point," Plum said.

Coordinator Named For ECU Academics

Pamela Penland has been hired to fill the vacant position of academic coordinator at East Carolina University, Dr. Kenn Karr, director of athletics, announced today.

Penland replaces Robert Tallo, who left ECU during the summer. Penland came to East Carolina from Rose High School, where she held the position of guidance counselor for five years. During that five year stretch she also worked in the same capacity at Aycock Junior High.

Penland is no stranger to East Carolina athletics as she served in the capacity of part-time academic coordinator during the 1983-84 school year. During that time Penland worked with the freshman football players.

In her current position, Penland will coordinate all athletic academics at East Carolina. She will be in charge of academic, personal and career guidance for ECU's student athletes.

Penland is the member of the National Education Association, the North Carolina Association of Educators, the Mid-East Guidance Association and the Dean's Advisory Committee for the Education Department at East Carolina.

"We are very pleased to have Pam on board," Karr said. "I have confidence she will do an outstanding job for us and continue the fine work that has been accomplished in this area over the last few years."

WNCT Airs ACC Games

Marvin Chauvin, vice president and general manager of WNCT-TV, announced today that the station will televise the Atlantic Coast Conference 1984 Football series which will begin on Saturday, September 8.

The schedule is not yet finalized, but a 12-game package will feature a game each Saturday through November 24.

The tentative game schedule is as follows: Sept. 8, Syracuse at Maryland; Sept. 15, To Be Announced; Sept. 22, North Carolina at Boston College; Sept. 29, Wake Forest at Maryland; Oct. 6, N.C. State at Georgia Tech; Oct. 13, North Carolina at Wake Forest; Oct. 20, N.C. State at North Carolina; Oct. 27 and Nov. 3, To Be Announced; and Nov. 24, North Carolina at Duke.

All games will be within the 12 noon to 3:30 p.m. time slot.

Jays Drop Twinbill As Tigers Win

By JONATHAN VITTI
Associated Press Writer

What had seemed so easy just the night before suddenly became difficult, and left the Blue Jays with a half-game profit to show for all their effort.

The Jays swept a double-header from the Indians on Tuesday, but lost a pair Wednesday night in Cleveland — one an embarrassing 16-1 defeat and another an agonizing 4-3, 13-inning affair.

Like a spendthrift on payday, the Blue Jays lost 1½ of the two games they had gained on Detroit, which dropped a twin bill one Tuesday. The Tigers beat California 8-3 Wednesday night.

day night.

Cleveland's 19-hit barrage was overpowering in the first game. George Vukovich drove in four runs and Andre Thornton slapped three run-scoring singles to back the eight-hit pitching of Don Schulze.

After taking a 3-2 lead in the top of the 10th, losing it in the bottom of the inning and getting the first two outs in the 13th, the Blue Jays lost the nightcap when George Bell dropped — or did he? — Joe Carter's sinking liner.

"I saw him catch it," Carter said. He had stopped going down the first base line. "Then (Coach) Ed Napoleon was telling me to touch first base. I didn't see the ball come out of his glove."

"Bell came up with the catch," Toronto Manager Bobby Cox said. "He raised his arm and showed the ball. Then the ball popped out when he hit his elbow on the ground. To me, it's a catch."

"I just want to go to bed," Bell said.

The ball at first stuck in the end of Bell's glove. But when Bell rolled to show the ball to the umpires, it popped out, allowing Mike Fischlin to score the winning run.

"When I first hit it, I thought it was in the gap for sure," Carter said. "Then I saw him (Bell) coming for it. He made a gallant try for it."

Elsewhere in the American League, Texas beat the Chicago 6-5 in 10 innings, Oakland downed Baltimore 6-1, New York topped Seattle 3-2, Kansas City outscored Boston 13-8, and Milwaukee defeated Minnesota 8-4.

Cleveland's Mike Jeffcoat, 4-1, gave up two hits in three innings for the victory. Jimmy Key, 3-5, took the loss.

In the opener, Schulze, 2-4, a rookie obtained from the Chicago Cubs in June, pitched his first major-league complete game.

Cleveland took a 1-0 lead in the first against Luis Leal, 12-3, on Thornton's first RBI single.

After Brett Butler struck out to start the Indians' third, the next six Cleveland hitters scored, one each on singles by Thornton and Jerry Willard, two on a single by Vukovich and two on Brook Jacoby's double.

Cleveland chased Leal with three runs in the sixth on Thornton's third RBI single and Vukovich's second bases-loaded single of the game.

Tony Bernazard slugged a solo homer, his second, to highlight the Indians' three-run seventh, and Jerry Willard added his eighth home run in the eighth as Cleveland scored three times off Rick Leach, who moved in from right field to pitch the last inning.

Tigers 8, Angels 3

The Tigers rebounded from their double-header loss Tuesday night as Dan Petry improved his record to 15-5, tying him with teammate Jack Morris as the winningest pitcher in the AL.

"We dropped back two games and I wanted to put an end to that," Petry said. "That California lineup tends to put the fear in you."

It was the first time since Aug. 2 that a Tiger pitcher held the opposition to fewer than four runs.

Tom Brookens' three singles drove in two runs and Dave Bergman's two triples drove in three.

Doug DeCinces hit his 15th home run for the Angels, his second in as many nights. Fred Lynn also hit his 15th for California.

Rangers 6, White Sox 5

Larry Parrish led off the 10th inning with his 20th home run off Richard Dotson, 12-10, who lost his sixth of seven decisions since the All-Star break.

Dotson said the Rangers didn't hit him that well. "But of course (today) in the paper they'll all look like line drives," he added. "But I'll know better."

Charlie Hough, 13-10, threw 145 pitches and gave up homers to Harold Baines, Carlton Fisk and Greg Walker, but pitched into the tenth for the victory. Dave Schimdt got the last three outs for his eighth save.

There were plenty of fireworks in the 10-inning, 11-run game — too many, in fact. Six people were slightly injured when fireworks went off in the right field stands after Walker's homer.

A's 6, Orioles 1

Carney Lansford had a home run and two singles while extending his hitting streak to 18 games. Mike Heath drove in two runs with a bases-loaded double in the seventh inning.

Lansford, batting .370 in his streak, drilled his ninth homer off Dennis Martinez, 4-7. The surging A's have won 10 of 13 while the sagging O's have lost 11 of 16.

Yankees 3, Mariners 2

Rookie Joe Cowley, celebrating his 26th birthday, won for the fourth time in five decisions while making his fifth major-league start.

Jay Howell pitched 2 2-3 hitless relief innings, and Dave Righetti got the final two outs for his 21st save and ninth straight in a save situation.

Dave Winfield singled in the go-ahead run in the fourth inning. Jim Beattie, 9-13, was tagged with his fifth straight loss.

Royals 13, Red Sox 8

The Royals rallied for seven runs in the sixth inning with the help of three Boston errors.

Bob Stanley, 7-8, started the sixth after Bob Ojeda left the game with a 6-2 lead suffering from a sore left elbow.

Reliever Joe Beckwith, 6-3, picked up the win. Dan Quisenberry pitched the final three innings for his 31st save. Don Slaught slugged his second home run for the home team while Tony Armas hit his league-leading 33rd for the losers.

Brewers 8, Twins 4

Rick Manning hit a three-run homer and scored three times as Milwaukee snapped Minnesota's three-game winning streak. Five other Brewers added one RBI each.

Mike Caldwell, 6-10, won his second straight after losing nine in a row.

Fernandez Showing Dodgers They Made Mistake In Trade

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Sid Fernandez thinks the Los Angeles Dodgers made a mistake when they traded him to the New York Mets, and the young southpaw is not only doing his best to prove it — he's succeeding at it.

"He hasn't been bad in any of his seven starts this year," said New York Mets Manager Davey Johnson after watching Fernandez key a 3-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Wednesday night.

Fernandez, in his first appearance against his former team since a trade last winter, scattered five hits over 7 2-3 innings and won his fourth game in five decisions with relief help from Wes Gardner and Jesse Orsco.

"It definitely was not a grudge match," said Fernandez, "but it does feel good to show them that they might have made a mistake. The Dodgers got what they wanted (reliever Carlos Diaz and utilityman Bob Bailor) and the Mets got what they wanted. I do they think they gave up on me a little."

In other NL action, it was Montreal 8, San Francisco 3; Atlanta 7, Pittsburgh 3; Cincinnati 3, St. Louis 2 in 11 innings; Houston 6, Chicago 2 and San Diego 4, Philadelphia 3.

George Foster slugged his 18th home run, one of only four hits off loser Fernando Valenzuela, 9-14. Valenzuela has lost three straight decisions, six of his last seven and eight of his last 11. The Los Angeles left-hander struck out nine but walked five. He was also victimized by two errors in the seventh inning by third baseman German Rivera that led to the winning run.

With one out in the seventh, Rivera booted Mookie Wilson's grounder. Wilson stole second, his 36th theft of the season, and after Kelvin Chapman walked and Keith Hernandez flied out, Foster grounded sharply to Rivera who threw wildly to first, enabling Wilson to score the winning run.

The victory moved the Mets within 2½ games of front-running Chicago in the NL East.

Expos 8, Giants 3

Left-hander Dan Schatzeder belted a game-winning, two-run single, added a double and a triple and scattered nine hits through eight innings, leading Montreal over San Francisco.

Schatzeder, 6-3, fell behind on an unearned run in the fourth inning, but used his bat to give the Expos a lead in the fifth off loser Mark Calvert, 2-3. After Dan Driessen and Tim Wallach opened the fifth with singles and advanced on a passed ball by catcher Bob Brenly, Schatzeder singled for a 2-1 Montreal lead.

Schatzeder also tripled and scored in a two-run seventh-inning rally.

"I take pride in my hitting," said Schatzeder. "I like to bat. I got a decent pitch to hit (in the fifth) and I was able to drive it through the hole."

Braves 7, Pirates 3

Glenn Hubbard capped a six-run first inning with a three-run double and Dale Murphy drove in three runs to lead Atlanta over Pittsburgh.

The early explosion provided a comfortable cushion for right-hander Steve Bedrosian, 9-6, who worked five innings for his third victory in the four games he has started. He struck out four and walked four.

Gene Garber hurled the final four innings for the Braves, earning his fifth save.

Pittsburgh starter Rick Rhoden, 10-9, was the victim of the Braves' early assault. But after yielding six runs before getting anyone out, Rhoden retired the next 12 batters, striking out six. He left the game after giving up another run in the fifth.

Reds 3, Cardinals 2

Brad Gulden's RBI single with two out in the 11th inning lifted Cincinnati over St. Louis in a game that marked the end of Vern Rapp's tenure as manager. Rapp was fired and will be replaced by Pete Rose, who was acquired by the Reds from the Montreal Expos to serve as player-manager.

Gulden's single came off Cardinal relief ace Bruce Sutter, 4-4. Sutter, who entered at the start of the 10th as St. Louis' third pitcher, struck out Dave Parker and Nick Esasky to start the 11th. But Cesar Cedeño followed with a single and stole his second base of the night before Gulden singled home the winning run for the Reds, making a winner of Tom Hume, 4-12.

Reds starter Jay Tibbs pitched brilliantly until running into trouble in the eighth when he gave up a run on Steve Braun's RBI pinch single. The Cardinals tied the score 2-2 in the ninth when Lonnie Smith drew a bases-loaded walk off reliever John Franco.

Astros 6, Cubs 2

Mark Bailey drove in three runs and Bob Knepper and two relievers combined on a six-hitter as the Astros defeated Chicago to extend their winning streak to six games.

Bailey, who finished with three hits in three at-bats, singled home a run in the fourth, then knocked in a pair of runs in the eighth with a bases-loaded double against losing pitcher Dennis Eckersley, 6-7.

Knepper, 12-8, struck out four and walked two in seven innings to improve his career record against the Cubs to 6-7 and record his third consecutive victory. Bill Dawley and Frank DiPino finished up for the Cubs, with the latter recording his 11th save.

Padres 4, Phillies 3

Carmelo Martinez hit a bases-loaded single with one out in the ninth inning to boost San Diego over Philadelphia.

Tony Gwynn led off the Padre ninth with a triple off Al Holland, 5-7, the fourth Philadelphia pitcher. After walking Steve Garvey and Kevin McReynolds intentionally, Holland struck out Terry Kennedy, but Martinez slapped a single to left to win the game.

Reliever Rich Gossage, 7-4, who gave up the tying runs in the ninth on a two-run single by Greg Gross, was the winner.

Reed Convinced Joe Is Number One Man

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Coach Tom Reed said he was trying to be fair in his first year at North Carolina State when he said tailback Joe McIntosh would share playing time with the reserves.

As the second year gets underway, Reed is convinced that McIntosh is his main man and people like Michael Miller and Joe Greene might have to wait awhile.

"I didn't so much have reservations about him but maybe the abilities of Mike Miller and the other kids," Reed said during N.C. State's photo day. "I didn't want them to get the feeling that they were not going to get a fair look."

Reed said it was the steady play of McIntosh that convinced him to change his attitude. After all, the Lexington, N.C., native is the nation's leading rusher entering his senior season with 3,051 yards rushing.

"Winter conditioning, a determined attitude in the off-season, a fine spring football camp and a very positive attitude," Reed said of how McIntosh persuaded him. "That's the mark of a good player. They can do a lot of things well."

One thing McIntosh has done this summer is gain weight. Listed at 189 pounds at the start of 1983, he has added eight more pounds for this year.

Reds To Name Rose Manager

CINCINNATI (AP) — Visions of the Big Red Machine of the 1970s were dancing in the minds of the Cincinnati Reds owners when they decided to hire Pete Rose as a player-manager for the struggling ball club.

"He and Tony Perez remind the people of the times when the Reds were big winners," said Marge Schott, a minority shareholder, who believes the fans will turn out for the Cincinnati native despite the team's next-to-last position in the National League West.

"Pete is history. If he gets close to the record (Ty Cobb's all-time career hit record), the people will pack the stadium," Schott said. "The man on the street here loves him. They are the ones who buy the tickets. They are going to go bonkers over Pete coming back."

Reds spokesman Jim Ferguson said Wednesday in St. Louis that Rose had been acquired as a player from the Montreal Expos and would replace Manager Vern Rapp starting Friday night when the Reds host the Chicago Cubs. The Reds, who were off today following an 11-inning, 3-2 victory over St. Louis in Rapp's final game, have to move someone to make room for Rose on the roster.

Ferguson said Rose, who had not been a regular with the Expos, would be primarily a manager but would be available for some games and as a pinch hitter. Rose, who earlier Wednesday in San Francisco denied he was taking the job, could not be reached for comment early today. The Reds scheduled a news conference for 4 p.m. EDT.

The announcement was well received by veteran players. Team captain and shortstop Dave Concepcion, who played with Rose, said: "Pete will be a good manager and he will make a difference in the attitude here. He's a great guy to deal with and he was a great player. If he has to be hard with the players, he can be. He's got the ability and he knows the game."

Second baseman Ron Oester, another Cincinnati native who grew up watching Rose, added: "If anybody can motivate this team, Pete can. I can tell you this, he won't put up with anything less than an all-out performance."

Tony Perez, another member of the Reds powerhouse teams of the 1970s, returned to Cincinnati prior to the 1984 season but never expected to be playing for his long-time friend.

"He will help the attitude here," Perez said. "The attitude has not been bad but it hasn't been what it should be."

Rose left Cincinnati as a free agent in a wage dispute with former Reds President Dick Wagner. He went to Philadelphia, where the Phillies won National League pennants in 1980 and 1983.

The 43-year-old Rose had difficulty finding a club to play with this year before he was signed by Montreal. But he was benched when the Expos acquired first baseman Dan Driessen from Cincinnati. The Reds have not said who will be sent to Montreal to complete the deal.

The switch-hitting Rose, who holds the major-league record of 10 seasons with 200 or more hits, started the 1984 season with 3,990 hits, 201 shy of Cobb's mark of 4,191. Through Wednesday, Rose had appeared in 95 games this season, collecting 72 hits in 278 at-bats for a .259 average.

Rose broke in with the Reds in 1963 and spent 16 seasons here. He helped lead the Reds to four National League pennants (1970, 1972, 1975, 1976) and two World Series championships (1975, 1976).

Rose, named the NL Player of the Decade of the 1970s by The Sporting News, won the league's Rookie of the Year award in 1963, was named Most Valuable Player in 1973 and was the MVP in the 1975 World Series when he hit .370 against the Boston Red Sox.

The Reds, who have been at or near the bottom of the NL West in the last three seasons, replaced Russ Nixon with Rapp last winter. Rapp constantly manipulated the lineup, drawing fire from veterans like Concepcion.

"You've got to respect your manager," said one Reds veteran, who asked not to be identified. "You don't have to like him, but you sure have to respect him. I haven't talked to anybody here who even likes the guy, much less respects him."

Pitcher Bob Ojicko defended Rapp.

"Vern hasn't done anything to hurt this team or make it lose," Ojicko said. "I know he's not an easy guy to get along with or talk to and he'll be the first to tell you he's an old goat, but he hasn't hurt this team. In fact, I think he's done everything he possibly can to help us win."

"I did everything I could," Rapp said. "I have no bad feelings toward anyone," said Rapp.

"I've had my shots," added Rapp, who managed the St. Louis Cardinals in 1977. "I'm not a perfect person. I just did the best I could within myself."

Study Says Rich-Poor Gap Wider

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reagan administration policies have contributed to a widening income gap between America's poor and well-to-do families, a new private study contends.

"Because of underlying economic and demographic trends, some of this widening of the income distribution would have taken place regardless of who was president," said the study by the Urban Institute. "But the particular tax and benefit reductions that President Reagan supported exacerbated the trend," it said.

"His policies helped the affluent but were detrimental to the poor and the middle class," the study said.

Administration officials declined to comment in detail without studying the 415-page report. But Robert Ortner, chief economist for the Commerce Department, said he doubted the contention that Reagan policies had contributed to a widening gap.

Besides, he said, cuts in the tax rate pushed by the administration actually helped low-income Americans by creating more jobs.

The institute's figures are based on government statistics but are adjusted in several ways and include only estimates for the still-unfinished current year.

Basically, they say that after discounting for the effects of inflation, American families' after-tax income rose 3.5 percent to 4 percent between 1980 and 1984 compared with average four-year gains of 5.1 percent in the 1970s and 11.3 percent in the 1960s.

But the gain was not evenly distributed, the report said. Dividing American families into fifths, by income levels, it said a typical family in the bottom 20 percent suffered an after-tax income drop of nearly 8 percent in the first four years of the decade. A typical middle-class family's income rose about 1 percent and after-tax income rose nearly 9 percent for the wealthiest fifth.

Layoffs during the 1981-82 recession were one obvious factor dragging down average income for the poorest families, since many wage-earners in that category lost their jobs and had no income at all for long periods.

In addition, there were increases in two-wage-earner families and single-parent, female-headed families.

Reagan policies did have an effect, the report said, citing spending restraints on social programs mainly benefiting the poor as well as tax-rate cuts with big benefits for the wealthy.

Previously, the administration has rejected contentions that the tax cut was not equitable by saying nothing could be fairer than the plan Congress adopted to cut all rates by about the same amount.

Hatfield Affair May Bring Change At Oregon's Polls

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Sen. Mark Hatfield's dovish Republican politics and reputation as a profoundly religious man of absolute integrity have made him one of the most popular elected officials in Oregon history.

Some of his critics, however, say the recent turmoil surrounding payments of $55,000 to Hatfield's wife by Greek financier Basil A. Tsakos may have poked some holes in the senator's white-knight aura of invincibility and could tarnish the love affair the state has had with him for 34 years.

"He tended to get away with political positions that other people might have had trouble defending," said Dick Celsi, state Democratic Party chairman. "People tend to give him a benefit of a doubt, and not question him as closely as they question other political figures."

Celsi said the media have gone easy on Hatfield until now and that the recent incident will focus more attention on him.

But state GOP Chairman Diarmuid O'Scannlain said it was enough that Hatfield admitted error.

"It certainly doesn't shake my confidence in him, not one bit," O'Scannlain said. "It takes a certain amount of courage for a man of his prestige to admit he made a mistake."

Esponsing a blend of conservative theology and liberal politics, the tall, ruggedly handsome Hatfield has for years epitomized what it means to be senatorial, distinguished and beyond reproach. He is running for a fourth Senate term against state Sen. Margie Hendriksen of Eugene.

Even his strongest detractors in Oregon haven't openly accused the senator of wrongdoing.

But Jim Klonoski, a political science professor at the University of Oregon and former state Democratic chairman, said Hatfield's reputation for integrity and political courage is more perception than reality. Klonoski blames the media.

"I think the Oregon press has done a good amount of protecting him and creating an image," he said. "I'm not sure who or what Mark Hatfield is, because I can't see through the media image."

Gerry Frank, Hatfield's chief of staff, said in recent days Hatfield has received encouragement from Democratic and Republican colleagues alike, including a telephone call from Sen. John Stennis of Mississippi, a Democrat and a "hawk" whose political views are totally unlike Hatfield's.

"He's the squarest guy I know," said Gov. Vic Atiyeh, a Republican who has known Hatfield for 25 years. "His honesty is unquestioned."

At a news conference Monday, Hatfield said he erred in judgment by allowing his wife, Antoinette, to accept the money at a time when he was supporting Tsakos' trans-Africa pipeline proposal.

GOP Challenges State Elections Board

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — An ally of Sen. Jesse Helms says the state elections board, in an attempt to affect the outcome of the Hunt-Helms race, didn't comply with a ruling that the state's crossover voting law is unconstitutional.

But board Chairman Robert Spearman accused Helms' attorneys of trying to confuse voters.

On Wednesday Helms, R-N.C., and the Republican Party filed a motion in U.S. District Court in Asheville requesting that the board be held in contempt of court. The motion was filed by Thomas A. Farr, an attorney in the Raleigh firm that includes Tom Ellis, chairman of the National Congressional Club and a top Helms adviser.

Club Director Jim Cain said the election board failed to explain to local boards that printed instructions on ballots must clearly reflect U.S. Judge Woodrow Jones' ruling.

"I think it is a flat-out attempt to affect the Hunt-Helms race," said Cain in an interview. "It just looks like they're doing everything possible to avoid compliance with Judge Jones' order."

Cain pointed out that state board members were appointed by Helms' re-election opponent, Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt. He said the board appeared eager to discourage Democrats who might want to vote a straight-party ticket but also cast individual ballots for Helms.

"I think that the Helms attorneys are doing everything they can to confuse the voters," said Spearman. He said the board briefly discussed the matter in a meeting Wednesday and "we will promptly be filing a response to their motion. ... It has no merit whatsoever."

Spearman added that the board decided to complain to the N.C. State Bar about a memorandum sent by Farr to local election boards advising them not to print their ballots until the controversy is resolved.

Since the issue remains in litigation, the memo was an improper contact between a lawyer and an opposing client and should have been sent to the state Attorney General's Office, which represents the boards, Spearman said.

"We didn't do anything we felt was inappropriate," Farr said.

The crossover voting controversy arose in 1982, when freshman U.S. Rep. Bill Hendon, R-N.C., was defeated by Democrat James McClure Clarke.

Under state law at that time, if a person voted a straight-party ticket but also crossed over to vote for individual candidates of other parties, the straight-party vote would be counted but the crossover vote wouldn't.

Hendon, who lost by 1,324 votes, claimed he would have won if crossover votes had been counted. He filed suit asking that the election results be overturned. Helms and the state GOP later joined the suit.

Jones refused to invalidate the election, but he declared the state law unconstitutional. He ordered the Legislature to provide that crossover votes be counted even when a person voted a straight ticket.

The state's appeal is pending before the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va.

The Legislature this summer passed a measure that says beginning next March, if a person crosses over after voting a straight-party ticket, his vote in that particular race won't be counted for either candidate.

The bill also ordered the state board to tell local boards how to comply with Jones' ruling for the upcoming general election.

The state board approved ballot instructions telling the voter that if he wants to vote a straight ticket, he should mark the straight-ticket box for the party of his choice but that otherwise he should not mark a straight-ticket box and choose a candidate in each individual race.

The Republicans say the instructions are inadequate because they don't say that under Jones' ruling a person may simultaneously vote a straight ticket and cast a crossover vote.

But Spearman said Jones never ordered the state to revise its ballot instructions.

Test-Tube Triplets Reported Stable

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Doctors at North Carolina Memorial Hospital are closely monitoring the state's first test-tube triplets, delivered 10 weeks premature to a Mooresville woman, to see if breathing problems worsen.

Margaret G. Lyerly gave birth by Caesarian section Wednesday to two boys and one girl at about 3 p.m., at N.C. Memorial, hospital spokeswoman Kathy Bartlett said.

"The babies had a very vigorous start in life," said Dr. Carl Bose, assistant professor of pediatrics at the University of North Carolina School of Medicine. "They all cried spontaneously."

Mrs. Lyerly, 31, was listed in good condition and is expected to spend five to six days in the hospital "which is normal for a Caesarian section," said Ms. Bartlett.

The triplets were listed in serious but stable condition, but Ms. Bartlett said more tests were needed before she could say when they might go home.

Bose said the babies, born only minutes apart, all had mild respiratory difficulties and were receiving supplemental oxygen Wednesday night, but otherwise they appeared to be in good health.

"We hope it won't be a serious problem," he said, adding that the triplets were being monitored in the hospital's intensive-care nursery to check on breathing difficulties.

The girl, named Katrina Elizabeth, weighed 3 pounds, 6 ounces and was born first at 3:01 p.m. Nathan Griffith, weighing 3 pounds, 11 ounces, followed at 3:02, and Christopher Houston, weighing 3 pounds, 6 ounces, was born at 3:03.

Mrs. Lyerly went into premature labor and was transported Tuesday afternoon by helicopter to N.C. Memorial from Davis Community Hospital, where she had been the past month, said her husband, Chris Lyerly.

Dr. Edwin M. Fulghum, Mrs. Lyerly's obstetrician, said Mrs. Lyerly went into premature labor Sunday and he had been treating her since then in an effort to delay delivery.

"It's not unusual for triplets to be premature," Ms. Bartlett said. "That's routine."

Mrs. Lyerly has been pregnant 30 weeks and three days and doctors had set Oct. 20 as her delivery date, Lyerly said.

Grace Sues Ingram

RALEIGH (AP) — The W.R. Grace Co. is suing state Insurance Commissioner John Ingram for $5 million, accusing him of slander after the company learned some of its fertilizer used in North Carolina tobacco fields was tainted.

The suit filed Wednesday said Ingram announced June 29 that he would visit the plant although Grace had declined his request for a visit. Ingram was refused admission in front of "an array" of media representatives, the suit said.

"Thereupon, the defendant launched into a campaign of harassment, intimidation and defamation directed toward the plaintiff which has continued to the present time," the suit said. It said he continued to accuse Grace of making "bad fertilizer" and of being "secretive" and negligent.

After Winston-Salem attorney W.F. Maready filed suit for Grace, Superior Court Judge James H. Pou Bailey issued a temporary order barring Ingram from making public remarks about the suit or the Connecticut-based firm, which has a plant in Wilmington.

H&R BLOCK INCOME TAX SCHOOL—GOOD INVESTMENT IN THE FUTURE

Thousands of people are saving money at tax time and earning money in their spare time as income tax preparers.

H&R Block, the world's largest income tax preparation service, is offering a basic income tax course starting September 6 with morning, afternoon and evening classes available.

During the 14 week course, experienced Block personnel will teach students all phases of income tax preparation including actual experience in preparing individual returns.

Instruction topics include current tax laws and tax theory and their application as practiced in Block offices nationwide. There is classroom lecture and practice problems on each subject. Courses are programmed to teach students increasingly complex tax problems as study progresses. Students will find the course both practical and challenging and will also be able to use their new skills directly to save money on their own tax returns.

Anyone may enroll. There are no restrictions or qualifications. Courses are ideally suited for housewives, retired persons, teachers, persons wanting to increase their tax knowledge or anyone who files a tax return.

Qualified course graduates may be offered job interviews for positions with Block. However, Block is under no obligation to offer employment, nor are graduates under any obligation to accept employment with H&R Block.

The modest course fee includes all textbooks, supplies and tax forms necessary for completion of the school. Certificates and 7.5 continuing education units will be awarded upon successful completion of the course.

Registration forms and a brochure for the income tax course may be obtained by contacting the H&R Block office at Greenville Square, telephone 756-9365.

Tar Heel Says Platform Offers 'Equality'

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — The Republican Party platform being drafted this week outlines specific steps toward "real equality" for women in areas ranging from retirement savings to government jobs, says Mary Jane Hollyday of Asheville, N.C.

Mrs. Hollyday is a member of the Platform Committee drafting a document for approval next week by the Republican National Convention. As a member of a human resources subcommittee, she dealt with some areas of traditional concern to women.

"It (the platform) offers them real equality," she said of the draft being considered now by the full Platform Committee. "Our platform does not speak to needs in just generalities. We ... specifically state that there are concerns for women and we have addressed those concerns in a very positive way."

She said one example focuses on Individual Retirement Accounts. She said couples in which one spouse works outside the home now may contribute $2,000 for the wage earner and $250 for the spouse at home.

"Our platform says this is not equitable," Mrs. Hollyday said. "We say that homemakers retire just like other people and they wish to be provided for financially."

The platform says, "We will continue to actively seek the elimination of discrimination against homemakers with regard to Individual Retirement Accounts so that single-income couples can invest the same amount in Individual Retirement Accounts as two-income couples."

The platform also calls for the personal tax exemption for children to be no less than for adults and pledges to at least double the current level. Mrs. Hollyday said that should interest many women.

"Today, with the cost of rearing and educating a child, they should be accounted for on an equal basis with adults," Mrs. Hollyday said.

The platform says a husband and wife with children are paying more of their income in taxes than in 1960 while single people and married couples without children are paying the same average tax rates as in 1960.

The party also pledges to continue to increase the number of first-time appointments for women in government and cites a number of accomplishments by Reagan, including the appointment of Sandra Day O'Connor as the first female Supreme Court justice.

"I think the president has certainly expressed his intent to treat women in a fair and equitable fashion by virtue of the fact he sought them out and appointed them to many, many positions. He has given them the same opportunity to participate at high government levels that men have had for many, many years."

Two other issues of special interest to women — abortion and the Equal Rights Amendment — are opposed or not mentioned in the platform.

"The unborn child has a fundamental right to life which cannot be infringed," the platform says.

It goes on to endorse a constitutional amendment prohibiting abortion, oppose the use of government money for abortions and to call for elimination of funding for groups that advocate abortion.

DALLAS (AP) — A Christmas tree farmer, a seafood wholesaler and a Polish immigrant are among the 53 Republican delegates from North Carolina who will attend the party's national convention Monday.

One of the delegates is black, 62 percent of them are men and more than one-half of them are in their 50s and 60s, indicates a telephone survey of the delegates by The Associated Press.

In addition, almost half of the delegates say they belong to the National Congressional Club, the conservative political action committee that was formed to retire Republican Sen. Jesse Helms' 1972 campaign debt and now raises money for candidates nationwide.

The delegates have a variety of occupations, and all but a handful are white-collar jobs. None are union members. Five delegates said they are retired and 10 women work in the home.

Nine classified themselves as business owners or executives, three as teachers, three as sales representatives, two as stockbrokers, two as insurance agents, two as contractors and two as attorneys.

SCLC Leader Says Blacks Want Jobs

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Black Americans will give Walter Mondale the support he needs to defeat President Reagan only if he shows them job programs and other inducements, the president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference says.

"I told Mr. Mondale this morning that we are waiting for the beef," the Rev. Joseph Lowery said Wednesday at a news conference kicking off the SCLC's four-day national convention — the last gathering of a major civil rights group before the November election.

"There's no question the black community will support Mr. Mondale, but endorsements are not enough," he said. "The question is how massively we support the Mondale-Ferraro ticket."

"Unless we can go to the people and say, 'Here's the beef'" on job programs, affirmative action, world peace and other issues, he said, Mondale won't get that support.

Lowery said Mondale told him Wednesday that he wanted to attend the SCLC convention, but that he and Reagan had agreed to avoid major campaigning during each other's party convention. But Lowery said Mondale still may make an appearance.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, who fought Mondale for the Democratic nomination, had been expected to attend, but Lowery said he was out of the country this week.

Some 1,500 delegates from around the country were attending the 27th annual convention, taking place at several sites in Charlotte. Lowery said SCLC's membership numbers "in the millions" with about 120 official chapters and some 500 affiliate chapters, such as churches and women's groups.

The Democratic convention put in its platform many of the goals proposed by a coalition of SCLC and other black leaders, but Lowery said it was mostly "language without the substance."

"What we're looking for now is the how," he said.

All finesse aren't equal. There are some where, even if they succeed, the best you can do is break even. If they fail... Consider this example from a rubber bridge game.

The auction was simple enough. North was on the borderline of a raise to three hearts or four hearts. He chose the conservative course, but South had more than enough to continue to game.

West led his fourth-best diamond, and declarer wasted no time in going down. He won the king of diamonds, cashed the ace of trumps and finessed the jack. West took his queen and continued with a diamond.

Declarer won and tried to ruff a diamond on the table. Unfortunately, East overruffed and, in the fullness of time, declarer lost a trick in each black suit for down one.

The lure of the finesse was declarer's downfall. Had he realized he could afford to lose a trump trick and a trick in each black suit, he might have found the winning line. As long as trumps split 3-2, the contract was cold.

After winning the first diamond, declarer should immediately concede a spade to establish communications between his hand and dummy. Suppose the defenders continue with a diamond. Declarer wins and cashes the ace-king of hearts. Regardless of whether the queen drops, declarer abandons trumps and reverts to diamonds. He ruffs a diamond and, if a defender over-ruffs, there is still a trump on the board to take care of South's remaining diamond. If no one over-ruffs, declarer returns to hand with a spade ruff to ruff his last diamond on the table. Regardless of what the defenders do, they can get no more than their high trump and two black-suit tricks.

You need a better reason to take a finesse than simply because one is available.

Pay Phone

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota became the first state to end the pay phone monopoly by local phone companies in June, and now a pay phone at Gary Quam's restaurant may be the first one owned by a competitor of Northwestern Bell Telephone Co.

The phone that American Pay Telephone Inc. installed Tuesday at Good Food & Co. won't make much difference to callers, except that they'll have to reach their party before depositing coins, Quam said.

Minnesota is expected to become a test market for privately owned pay telephones. Northwestern Bell spokesman John Walker said the phone in Quam's restaurant was believed to be the first.

Sentence Lengthens On Appeal

GREENSBORO (AP) — A Greensboro man who appealed a one-week jail term for a drunken driving conviction drew an 18-month sentence after court officials found an error was made in his favor in the original trial.

The error gave Guilford County Superior Court Judge Peter W. Hairston Wednesday a second aggravating factor, boosting the penalty for Dwight McCants, 30.

Guilford District Attorney Lamar Dowda said the verdict might make defense attorneys hesitate before appealing DWI convictions from District Court.

District Judge Robert L. Cecil, who presided over McCants' Feb. 9 trial, had imposed the mandatory minimum jail sentence when court transcripts showed he was convicted of driving under the influence in 1979.

Under the new Safe Roads Act, a previous drunken driving conviction within seven years constitutes an aggravating factor and means a prison term of between one week and one year.

During that trial, court officials noted that McCants also was convicted of DWI in 1977 but apparently misread a computer printout of his arrest record and mistakenly believed the conviction fell outside the seven-year limit by about a month.

Following Tuesday's jury verdict against McCants, Hairston correctly noted that the 1977 conviction fell within the limit by one month.

Under the new DWI law, two previous convictions within seven years means a prison term of between two weeks and two years.

"I'm sure it was a surprise for Mr. McCants," prosecutor Elam said of the sentence imposed.

McCants' attorney, George Clary, was unavailable for comment.

State Health Costs May Be Increased

RALEIGH (AP) — State government employees and public school teachers may be paying higher health insurance premiums soon, officials of the state health plan said Wednesday.

Donald S. Patterson, chairman of the plan's board of trustees, said the premiums had not increased since the state plan took effect Oct. 1, 1982. However, medical costs had risen about 15 percent in 1983, he said.

He said alternatives to raising premiums were reducing benefits or dipping into the plan's cash reserves.

The board on Wednesday asked its consultant, William M. Mercer Inc. of Charlotte, to meet with the board's executive committee to discuss possible changes in premiums or benefits or both.

Patterson said he hoped the board would make its decision in November and send a recommendation to the General Assembly next year.

The consultant in February recommended to the board that premiums be increased 8.67 percent for employees and their dependents, or 12.94 percent for employees alone.

Harold W. Wright, the plan's assistant director for finance, said the plan's deficit had worsened since the consultant made his report.

The state pays premiums for employees and teachers. Those who have dependents pay an additional premium through payroll deduction.

In his monthly report to the board Wednesday, Wright said the plan's net income from premiums in July was $16.3 million, compared to net claim payments of $21.3 million, while premiums have remained about even, Wright said, claim payments have increased over the past year by several million dollars a month.

Part Of NCSU Campus Evacuated

RALEIGH (AP) — A fire in an engineering building at North Carolina State University forced the evacuation of a one-block area on campus, but officials said the fire was extinguished within 15 minutes.

University Information Director Lucy Coulburn said the fire was discovered in Daniels Hall about 3:50 p.m. Wednesday. She said the Raleigh Fire Department was dispatched to the scene and emergency medical services were standing by.

No injuries were reported, Ms. Coulburn said.

Capt. Larry Lyles, a public safety officer for N.C. State, said someone in the engineering department was experimenting with a chemical called silean, which ignites on contact with air. He said only a small amount of the chemical ignited, but seven nearby buildings were evacuated because more silean was stored in the laboratory.

Lyles said damage to the room was estimated at $200 and an investigation was continuing into who had caused the fire and how similar fires might be prevented.

Capt. John Gaddis of the Raleigh Fire Department said he did not know how many people were evacuated.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, AUGUST 17, 1984

YOUR DAILY
Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until noon you will be able to arrange helpful undertakings, so make decisions then, for the afternoon and evening find you able to get into the nitty gritty details of making them work.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can plan your activities early in detail and later carry them out most advantageously.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Arrange confidentially whatever is necessary to gain your personal aims and then all goes well for you. Drive more carefully.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Come to a decision about that private wish you have and then act upon it confidentially and gain it.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Be certain to handle public affairs intelligently and gain the approval of higher-ups.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You have been studying plans that need right decision now, and later you can gain the help of a bigwig. Listen carefully.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) If you do something important for the one you love, you can then get into activities that are progressive and get good results.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You can reach a decision on a new plan with partners early and then get right down to the work that needs to be done by you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Early get that pressing work behind you so that later you can be with outside partners so you can plan the future more wisely.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get your finest talent across to bigwigs so that you can become more successful. Then get busy with the work ahead of you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Carry through with promises you made so that you improve conditions for kin, then later go out together for amusement.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Talk over your plans with partners so that you can produce more, and later gain the assistance of kin for some important project.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Find a better way of putting your assets to work so that you can command a greater income in the days ahead.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have much ability at investigative work and can come up with the right answers, especially with anything connected with the modern world, and should have as fine an education as possible so that upon reaching adulthood much success can be possible.

Pay TV Debuts New Series Tonight

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "Steambath," a new made-for-pay comedy series starting tonight on Showtime, will, if nothing else, test the durability of a joke.

In other words, will the amusing premise that worked in the relative confinement of the theater hold up through six half-hour episodes? How many people will traipse unwittingly through the steambath door, only to learn they have entered the hereafter, before the routine stales?

In the two installments available for preview, "Steambath" manages tolerably, thanks largely to a superior script that is, at times, marvelously droll.

"I didn't think pharmacists got angry," Meredith (Janis Ward) muses after Ackerman, newly arrived from his drug store in Cleveland, complains about his fate.

The series is based on Bruce Jay Friedman's successful off-Broadway play which was sanitized and subsequently shown on public TV. The Showtime version reintroduces the bare skin (tastefully) and naughty language (gratuitously) that was left out of that previous television play.

"Steambath" was written by David Pollock and Elias Davis, whose previous credits include "M-A-S-H," "The Carol Burnett Show," "All in the Family," "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" and "The Steve Allen Show."

Jose Perez plays Morty, the Puerto Rican washroom attendant who is, by the way, God. "It's a lucky thing for the universe I am Puerto Rican," he retorts when a newcomer questions his qualifications. "It gives me my sense of humanity, not to mention my great charm."

The regulars include Tandy (Robert Picardo), a public relations executive dispatched by a dose of bad Japanese food; DaVinci (Al Ruscio), a foul-mouthed ex-cabbie; a couple of worn-out Broadway hoofers (Neil Schwartz and Patrick Spohn); a world-weary former waitress named Blanche (Rita Taggart), and the guileless Meredith (Miss Ward).

No one is willing to accept Morty's omnipotence on faith, at first, anyway, and he is indefatigable in his willingness to demonstrate. "The only thing I've seen to equal it," DaVinci marvels after one particularly awesome display, "is the halftime show at the Orange Bowl."

In addition to the permanent residents, there are those who are just passing through, who somehow don't meet Morty's standards:

"You never heard about my most famous commandment, about remembering the Sabbath and keeping it holy?" Morty asks Ackerman, who pleads, "Yes, but sometimes people need things on weekends: lawn sprinklers, surgical supplies, tub toys."

"You're a fad," Morty tells Blossom, the radio psychologist, who claims to know more about human nature. "You're going the way of Nehru jackets and bell bottoms ... although I still miss those pants."

"Steambath" is good, not great television, but the series was produced expressly for pay television, and Showtime deserves some credit for that.

"An irreverent, no-holds-barred comedy like 'Steambath' simply isn't available on commercial television today," says Peter Chernin.

Safe Will Be Opened

NEW YORK (AP) — A safe pulled from the wreck of the Andrea Doria three years ago will be opened on live television tonight, but experts and passengers agree there probably won't be anything of value inside.

But Peter Gimbel, whose multimillion-dollar expedition came up with one of the luxury liner's 18 safes, is still hopeful.

There is "a rumor that won't die that a 'consignment of precious stones' was in one bank safe, said Gimbel, although he acknowledged it was more likely he would recover 'a lot of waterlogged paper.'"

Clive Cussler, an author and shipwreck hunter, agreed: "I doubt anything much will be found inside. Maybe a few soggy pieces of paper."

The safe hasn't been opened yet because of Gimbel's trouble in selling a documentary on his salvage effort. The safe will be opened during the broadcast of the documentary, scheduled at 8 p.m. EDT tonight on 160 television stations.

The Andrea Doria went down on July 26, 1956, killing 46 of its 1,100 passengers. The ship took 11 hours to sink after colliding with the Swedish liner Stockholm in the Atlantic 40 miles south of Nantucket, R.I.

Wolper To Get Special Award

LOS ANGELES (AP) — David Wolper will be honored at this year's Emmy awards for his production of opening and closing ceremonies for the Los Angeles Olympics.

The Academy of Television Arts & Sciences board of governors voted to give Wolper an unprecedented plaque of special recognition for making the two Olympics ceremonies "memorable international television experiences," academy president Diana Muldaur said in a statement Wednesday.

Wolper, a former governor of the television academy, has three Emmys and numerous Emmy nominations to his credit.

The plaque will be presented during the Emmy telecast Sept. 23 on CBS.

STATEMENT OF PHILOSOPHY

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department believes that recreation serves as a catalyst within the community to create a climate for developing leisure time activities that enhance the quality of life and meet the basic needs shared by all human beings—to belong, to achieve, to be recognized, to have status, to acquire and use skills, and to have a creative outlet. Recreation develops sportsmanship, leadership, appreciation of the cultural arts, physical fitness and conservation of the environment. Recreation creates opportunities to promote family unity and individuality and develops understanding and positive interaction among people.

RESERVATIONS

Picnic Shelter Reservations: can be made by calling ext. 202. Picnic shelters that can be reserved are located at Elm Street Park (3), Kiwanis Shelter (indoor grill, deck, picnic tables) behind Elm St. Gym, Greensprings Park, Peppermint Park, West Meadowbrook Park, and Javore Park.

Tennis Court Reservations: The City tennis courts (6) at Elm Street can be reserved for 1 1/2 hours, 7 days a week. To reserve a court call the administrative offices, 752-4137, Ext. 202, at least one day in advance.
