Economy Gains, Inflation Falls

WASHINGTON (AP) — The economy, headed for what could be its best performance in more than three decades, grew at a rapid 7.6 percent annual rate last quarter while inflation remained in check, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department revised its estimate of growth from April through June up slightly from an earlier 7.5 percent reading.

The inflation rate for the entire economy, as measured by the gross national product, was put at 3.2 percent in the second quarter, down from a 4.4 percent rate in the first three months of the year.

Economists and the Reagan administration have called this performance the best of all possible worlds — strong growth and low inflation.

The economy this year has continually confounded the experts, who had predicted it would slow substantially as the recovery from the 1981-82 recession entered its second year.

Instead, the first three months of the year turned in a 10.1 percent growth rate, the government said today, the best quarterly performance since April-June 1978.

While the second quarter's 7.6 percent rate was slower, it was still an unusually rapid pace for this stage of the recovery and was well above what had been predicted.

The Reagan administration, responding to the strong growth, earlier this month revised upward its forecasts for the year, predicting GNP growth for all of 1984 would be 7.2 percent — rather than an earlier forecast of 5.9 percent.

If the 7.2 percent forecast comes true, and many think it will, it would make 1984 the best year since 1951, when the economy grew at an 8.3 percent rate.

Economic growth last year was 3.7 percent following a 2.1 percent decline in 1982 as the country was mired in its worst recession since the end of World War II.

ECU Convocation Stresses Change

Old and new members of East Carolina University's 900-person faculty gathered Monday morning for the annual fall convocation in Hendrix Theater to begin the new school year.

ECU trustee Chairman C. Ralph Kinsey, citing the dedication and quality of the university's personnel, told the 175 new faculty members that they would "find East Carolina to be a vigorous institution filled with commitment to scholarship and creativity, dedicated to the educational experience of our students and attuned to our role to serve the people of this region and our state."

GOP Kicks Off Convention

DALLAS (AP) — Republicans today convened their 33rd national convention, with leaders telling confident delegates. "We're going to campaign on the strongest economy in three decades and seven presidents." President Reagan was on the campaign trail, trading jibes with Walter F. Mondale.

After a round of convention-even partying in this sun-baked city, delegates gathered today to hear party chairman Frank Fahrenkopf

Jr. call the convention to order with the ritual blast at the opposition.

He described last month's Democratic Convention as "an orgy of pressure groups" and called Mondale "just a man who can't say no." Vice President George Bush had kicked off the convention week activities Sunday with a call for "four more years."

For many delegates the big topic wasn't politics or economics but the searing heat as the temperature set a record 108 degrees on Sunday and forecasters said that could be the norm for the convention week.

Party leaders promised to keep the sessions short and interesting. But it was unlikely anything close to the full complement of 2,235 delegates would be in their bright red seats for the morning session of welcoming speeches and housekeeping business.

The GOP convention program gets rolling tonight with the keynote speech by U.S. Treasurer Katherine Ortega and addresses by Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick and by Margaret Heckler, secretary of health and human services.

At the Republican convention, conservatives were firmly in control, drafting a platform that was a few degrees to the right of what the president wanted.

Ferraro Records Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A problem in copying documents delayed the scheduled release time of Rep. Geraldine Ferraro's financial documents, a spokeswoman for Ms. Ferraro said today.

The documents were originally scheduled to be released at 10 a.m. EDT but that was moved back to 1 p.m. EDT. The documents were to be made available to reporters at a briefing by Ms. Ferraro's accountants.

"They had a copy problem," said Patricia Bario, the spokeswoman for the New York congressman. "They weren't able to finish in time. They said the sets weren't ready."

She said the materials were being copied in Washington by campaign workers and employees of Ms. Ferraro's accounting firm, Arthur Young and Co. Ms. Bario said the workers were preparing about 300 sets of documents, each set about an inch and a half thick.

Ms. Ferraro, inviting voters to "take a look" at her family's tax returns, hoped release of that and other financial information today would end the controversy over her husband, John Zaccaro, that has dogged her vice presidential campaign.

The issue of Zaccaro's tax returns has surrounded her Democratic campaign since she announced Aug. 12 that, despite her earlier pledge to make them public, her husband was refusing to release his tax returns. On Saturday, however, she issued a statement saying that the New York City real estate owner and manager had changed his mind.

Weather Delays Housing Projects

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

Area developers are blaming soggy July weather for throwing off construction, and in some cases completion, of housing complexes being built to accommodate East Carolina University students for the fall semester.

Glenn Davis, sales executive of Kingston Place, a 96-unit condo development on Greenville Boulevard, said his company was trying to have the units ready for students when they arrived yesterday. "But with two months of continuous rain, it was just impossible. I think everybody's days behind," he said.

A representative of the Greenville Utilities Water Plant said that 12.36 inches of rain fell in the Pitt County area during July — "a new record as far as records go," he said. The National Weather Service reported that approximately 1.5 inches more rain fell in the first part of August than has been normal.

Davis said that Kingston Place now hopes to open by the end of the week, adding that in the interim, students who had already arrived and had to be turned away are being put up at a local motel by the company. "They're probably sitting by the pool right now having a good time," he laughed.

One student who asked not to be identified, said he had to stay with his sister last night because the complex where he had contracted for a unit was not quite finished. "They (representatives of Ringgold Towers) did say they'd be ready for us today, though," he said. Calls seeking comment from Jim Ward, a representative of the 171-unit project

A BUSHEL OF POEMS ... A local collard patch provides the ideal setting for Luke Whisnant (left) and Alex Albright, English instructors at East Carolina University, to display a basketful of poems entered in the ECU-Ayden Collard Poetry Contest. Tarboro Student Offers Best Poem

AYDEN — Chad Everett of Tarboro may have called collards a "vegetative plague" and a "wretched stain upon this great land," but the judges still thought his ode was good enough to win the student division of the Collard Poetry Contest.

Everett, a 15-year-old student at Tarboro High School, and six other poets from North Carolina, Florida and Louisiana were named the winners today of the poetry contest held for the 10th annual Ayden Collard Festival Sept. 3-9.

Everett's poem, "The Collard War," was the $25 first-place winner in the student category. Harvey Estes of Magnolia won the $100 first-place prize in the adult division for his poem, "Spring Collards in Washington."

"Both poets will get a plateful of collards in addition to the prize money," said Alex Albright, an East Carolina University English instructor who is one of the contest's originators.

The other winners in the competition included Rose C. White of Titusville, Fla., whose entry, "Twas The Season For Collards," finished second in the adult category. Erwin J. Rice of Baton Rouge, La., won the second place award in the student category for a poem called "Bird."

M.L. Poole of Greensboro was the third place adult winner and Jill Rogers of Tarboro was the third place student finisher.

"The second place winners will get two plates of collards, while those in third place will get all the collards they can eat," Albright said.

The winners will ride in the Collard Festival Parade on Sept. 8. Albright said that 125 of the more than 500 poems submitted will appear in a book, "Leaves of Green: The Collard Poems," scheduled to be distributed during the festival.

East Campaigning

Sen. John East confirmed today that he has withdrawn as an at-large delegate to the Republican National Convention that begins in Dallas today.

"I had made it clear a week or so ago," he said, "that I was leaving the option open. I've been actively involved in three different Republican conventions and felt I really needed to look at whether I could best serve to get President Reagan and Senator Helms re-elected by being there or by staying in North Carolina and campaigning for them. I decided I could best serve by staying here, so that's what I'm doing."

He said he is pleased that Claude Allen, a member of Helms' staff and an alternate delegate, is going in his place.

Delegates from the 1st Congressional District of North Carolina include Hal McKinney of Greenville, Billy Smith of Atlantic and Barry McCarty of Pasquotank County. Alternates are Dean Jones of New Bern; Palmer Sugg, head of the State Young Republicans who attends Campbell College and lives in this district, and Garvin Hardison of Pamlico County. Steve Rader of Washington, N.C., is an at-large delegate.

Reception

A reception honoring Carolyn Ferebee will be held from 4-6 p.m. Sunday at the Third Street School Media Center by the Greenville-Pitt Black Concerned Women.

Mrs. Ferebee was recently appointed principal of Third Street School.

Council To Meet

The Greenville City Council will hold a special meeting at 5:30 p.m. today in the first floor conference room of the Municipal Building to consider an ordinance on opening and closing graves in city cemeteries.

The Municipal Building is located on the corner of Fifth and Washington streets. Following the meeting a workshop will be conducted to review city business.

DWI Charges

Gary Wayne Peed of Route 1, Chocowinity, was charged with driving while impaired following investigation of a 1:10 a.m. Sunday collision in front of the city's police station that injured three people and caused an estimated $10,900 damage.

Officers said the Peed car went out of control and collided with a parked police patrol car and a vehicle owned by a policeman, Cpl. Joe. M. Simonowich of Route 1, Greenville.

Damage to the Peed car was set at $5,000, while damage to the police car was set at $4,500.

Police set damage to the Simonowich vehicle at $650, while damage to a city sign and landscaping was estimated at $800.

Investigators said Peed and two passengers in his car were injured in the collision.

VFW Awards

The Ayden Police Department and the eastern area office of the North Carolina Department of Corrections received Outstanding Community Service Awards at a recent meeting of the Greenville Veterans of Foreign Wars Post.

Commander Louis "Hop" Tyson presented Outstanding Community Service Awards to Ayden Police Chief Tommy Burney and correctional program officer Jackie Moye.

VFW Comrades Tom Phillips and Jim Reid received Individual Outstanding Community Service Awards for their representation of the Post in their community service work with the Salvation Army and the American Red Cross. Phillips is the post adjutant and Reid is the post Americanism chairman. The awards are framed certificates of commendation.

Three Arrested

Greenville police today arrested three 16-year-olds on charges of breaking and entering and attempted larceny after finding them inside Harris' Supermarket at 1102 N. Greene Street about 1:20 a.m.

Officer T.E. Nevelle identified the three as David Wayne Lancaster and Charles Lee Dail, both of Route 4, Greenville, and Alton Ray Cook of Grifton.

Nevelle said the three teenagers entered the store through a door and were taken into custody inside the supermarket by officers who discovered the break-in.

The three were placed under $1,000 bond each pending a preliminary hearing in District Court, set for today.

Weed Workshop

A weed identification workshop will be held from 3-4:30 p.m. Tuesday in the basement of the Pitt County Office Building.

The workshop will carry an hour and one half of pesticides recertification credit and is free of charge. For further information contact Sam Uzzell, 752-2934.

Board To Meet

The Greenville Board of Education

Views On Dental Health

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S.P.A

PSYCHO-CYBERNETIC SMILE

According to the theory of "Psycho Cybernetics", you can improve your positive self image by improving your appearance. Have you checked your smile lately?

Are your front teeth stained? Do you have a space between two teeth? Do you have a tooth that is discolored? Are your gums receding to the point that part of your roots are showing, or are your gums growing up higher than they should and hiding a major part of your pearly whites? Do you have a chipped tooth or the lower front teeth that slant?

Not nice questions to ask, I know. However, a quick look in the mirror and you'll know the answer and probably have known it for a long time, but never got around to doing anything about it. Thankfully, we in the dental profession can revitalize your smile into what you've always wanted: One that is perfect and one of which you can be proud. In fact, some of the above problems can be cured in a single, simple office visit.

Our internal level of confidence, our inner security, the strength of our egos have much to do with our personal opinion of our looks. Why not start with the smile?

Legislators Give City, County State Checks Totaling $20,000

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Members of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners and the Greenville City Council have received checks totaling $20,000 for special projects from the county's three resident legislators.

The funds, approved by the General Assembly in the closing days of the short session, included: $2,500 for Sheppard Memorial Library; $3,000 for the city of Greenville for the purchase of rescue equipment; $8,000 for Pitt County for the purchase of equipment for eight volunteer rescue squads in the county; $2,500 for the Pitt County Farmers Market, and $4,000 for the purchase of furniture and equipment for the county Senior Citizens Center.

The checks were part of $142,500 in special projects funds secured by House members Ed Warren and Walter Jones Jr. and Sen. Vernon White, this year.

Other projects benefitting from the so-called "pork barrel" money included: $20,000 for the Winterville Recreation Commission; $10,000 each for the Winterville Historical Society, the Grimesland Volunteer Fire Department, the Bethel Arts Council, and the town of Farmville recreational facilities, and $6,500 for the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce economic development fund.

Other special project money included: $5,000 each for the East Carolina University Summer Theater, the Winterville, Eastern Pines, Pactolus, Simpson and Stokes volunteer fire departments, and the Winterville volunteer rescue squad; $3,000 each for the Pitt County Family Violence Center and Bell Arthur Fire Department equipment, and $2,000 each for fire departments at Belvoir and Gardenersville and Simpson town development.

Projects funded for $1,000 each include: the Pitt County Mental Health Association, Falkland town development, Fountain town development, the ECU Friends of Music, the Farmville Public Library, the Ayden Public Library, the Farmville Arts Council, the Grifton museum and the Ayden-Grifton Playhouse.

R.L. "Bob" Martin, chairman of the board of commissioners, thanked the three legislators, and said "their standing in Raleigh ... helped," secure the funds.

Martin said the checks were presented at a Friday luncheon, rather than at a regular meeting, as a means of "honoring our state legislators."

Warren said the special appropriations were an effort to recognize volunteer groups in the county and "to help that type of group."

Jones noted that the special project money is "the taxpayers money coming back to the taxpayers."

White, a member of the General Assembly for 16 years, said the county delegation has "always worked together." He said he has "no apologies to make" in helping secure the special appropriations for the various county and municipal organizations. "We were trying to honor some of those back home who have given of their time to help their fellow man."

ECU Picks Speier As New Dean

Dr. Ronald P. Speier has been appointed associate dean of students and director of student services at East Carolina University, succeeding veteran James Mallory who has retired.

Speier comes to ECU from a post as dean of student affairs at La Roche College in Pittsburgh, where he served since August 1979. He was also an assistant professor of social sciences at La Roche and has taught courses in education and psychology.

Earlier, Speier was associate dean of students at Radford University in Radford, Va., where he was responsible for developing and implementing a student judiciary system. At Radford, he was administrative hearing officer, chair of the campus judicial board and a member of the appeals committee. He also served as chair of the campus judicial board at Ashland College, Ashland, Ohio, for two years.

Mallory, who retired this summer after 30 years of service at ECU, was associate dean of student life for judiciary and orientation.

Dr. Elmer E. Meyer, ECU vice chancellor for student life, said Speier would have responsibilities in administration, liaison and advising and program development. He will coordinate the campus judiciary system and work closely with the student government association's attorney general, conduct boards and process disciplinary cases. He will chair a committee and approve canvassing and soliciting for student groups. He will administer the university's excuse and withdrawal policies.

Speier holds a doctorate in education from Virginia Polytechnic Institute, a masters in college student personnel from Bowling Green State University and a masters in education from the State University of New York-Geneseo.

Kelly Moore Marries James T. Hardison

Kelly Grayson Moore and James Thomas Hardison were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at two o'clock. The Rev. Allan Sterbin performed the double ring ceremony in the First Free Will Baptist Church.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy D. Moore of Route 1, Winterville, and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hardison of Route 2, Plymouth.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white tulle. The Queen Anne neckline and fitted bodice were accented with re-embroidered lace and seed pearls. The long fitted sleeves were shirred at the shoulders and edged in matching lace. The skirt was gathered at the waistline and fell to slipper length. A lace scallop edged the hemline which flowed into a cathedral train. Her walking veil of tulle was attached to a halo of silk flowers, lace and seed pearls. She carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations, accented with blue miniature carnations.

The bride attended D.H. Conley High School and is a junior at East Carolina University. The bridegroom attended Plymouth High School and Martin Community College. She works part time at Hollowell's Drug Store and he works with Durham Life Insurance Co.

The maid of honor was Janet Worthington of Route 8, Greenville. Bridesmaids included Jennifer Hardee, cousin of the bride, and Amy Tyson, both of Greenville, Annabel Hardison of Plymouth, sister of the bridegroom, and Ellen Riggs of Winterville.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Lloyd Hardison Jr. of Apex and Timmy Hardison of Raleigh, brothers of the bridegroom, Deleon Turnage of Elizabeth City, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Keith Davenport of Greenville and Charles Ambrose of Virginia.

A program of wedding music was provided by Pam Smith, organist. Ann and Janet Worthington were vocalists.

Each of the attendants wore floor length gowns of royal blue taffeta styled with a ruffled scoop neckline, fitted bodice, full gathered skirt and matching sash. Each wore a halo of blue silk flowers. The honor attendant carried a bouquet of blue and yellow carnations while the bridesmaids carried yellow and white carnations.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the church fellowship hall. Cake was served by Sandra Turnage, sister of the bridegroom, and punch was poured by Glenda Hardee, aunt of the bride. Guests were greeted by Mrs. William Tripp.

Parents of the bridegroom entertained the wedding party at an after-rehearsal dinner at the Three Steers.

Margaret Barrow directed the wedding and Wendy Worthington presided at the guest register. Both are from Greenville.

The couple will live near Greenville after a wedding trip to the coast.

Several showers were given in honor of the couple prior to the wedding.

Couple Speaks Vows In Double Ring Ceremony

Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church was the scene of the Sunday afternoon wedding ceremony of Edna Avery Stokes and Robert Norris Merritt Jr., both of Greenville. The Rev. Thomas Hoogerland performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Leroy Avery and the bridegroom is the son of Robert Norris Merritt, all of Greenville, and the late Mrs. Merritt.

Libby Braxton was organist for the ceremony and Susan Lambert was soloist.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ashley T. Hooks of Wilson, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Charles Ramsburg of Sterling, Va., cousin of the bridegroom, were ushers.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a formal gown of pink faille taffeta designed with a sweetheart neckline outlined in miniature chantilly lace scallops in an off-shoulder effect. The fitted bodice featured rows of satin ribbon and chantilly lace with lace complementing the basque waist. Short puffed sleeves were fashioned of taffeta and were edged in ruffles of chantilly lace. From the basque waistline fell the full gathered skirt of taffeta. The bride carried a formal bouquet of alstromerias, pixie carnations, sweetheart roses in shades of pink and baby's breath tied in azalea pink ribbon. A corsage was lifted from her bouquet.

Becky Hatton of Greenville was maid of honor and wore a formal gown of ivory English net over matching taffeta. The slip styled gown featured pink ribbon ties at the shoulder with a pink ribbon belt accented the modified natural waistline. The bodice front was embroidered in pink satin trap in floral patterns. The full skirt featured ruffled tiers of English net banded in pink satin ribbon. She carried a classic bouquet of mixed summer flowers embedded in baby's breath tied with a petal pink bow.

The bride's mother wore a tea length dress of periwinkle blue polyester with a cowl neckline draped to the shoulder. She wore a wristlet of orchids.

Ethel Corey, grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. Ashley T. Hooks, sister of the bridegroom, were remembered with orchid corsages.

After the ceremony an outdoor reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Burnice Smith, Emily Egerton, Mrs. Hubert Smith and Mrs. J.B. Smith, both aunts of the bride.

An after-rehearsal dinner was given at the Holiday Inn by the father of the bridegroom. A bridal shower was given at the home of Doris Hatton by Becky Hatton.

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip to the Bahamas.

The bride graduated from East Carolina University School of Nursing and completed their Family Nurse Practitioner Program. She is employed by the Pitt County Health Department. The bridegroom attended Atlantic Christian College, and is manager of V.A. Merritt and Sons, Inc.

Student Solves Problem She Pays For Annual

DEAR ABBY: My older sister had an argument with our parents because she didn't want them to look at her high school annual. She told them she wasn't ashamed of what her friends had written, but it was private. Our parents said that as long as they were paying for the annual, they had a right to look at it. My sister solved the problem by giving our parents the price of the annual.

I have a little money saved from birthday and Christmas gifts, and I intend to do the same thing when it comes to buying an annual.

A 12-YEAR-OLD BOY WITH FORESIGHT

DEAR ABBY: I am a 76-year-old grandfather who watches TV with my teen-aged grandchildren. No TV commercial offends me as much as those close-ups of love scenes with long, drawn-out, open-mouthed kisses where the lovers gnaw and chew at each other.

DISGUSTED IN ISLAND POND, VT.

DEAR DISGUSTED: Read on for a letter from a pair of Vermont teen-agers. They approve of the TV commercials, but raise another objection:

DEAR ABBY: We just read your column about the family who was watching a good, clean movie on television when a commercial came on for panty liners, embarrassing the teen-age boy and girl. Right after that, a commercial for a douche came on, and the mother became so disgusted she turned off the set.

Well, we are two teen-agers, 13 and 15, and we want to tell you how we feel about these commercials. We are sure most kids know about these products, and if they don't, they should. They are a part of nature and normal living, which is OK.

What we don't think is OK are those soap operas showing a married woman going to spend the weekend with somebody else's husband.

That is not right, and it shouldn't be shown on TV like it's a normal and natural thing to do. We don't think it sets a good example for us teen-agers.

TWO TEENS IN CORINTH, VT.

DEAR ABBY: Do I ever sympathize with the lady in Texas whose husband always has to have a beer while he's driving!

I have had the same situation for years. We have two small children, and I am worried sick every time he takes them in the car. My husband has to have either hot coffee or a cold beer on the dash of his car or between his knees while he's driving. Plus, he smokes constantly. We've had many unpleasant outings because I've asked him not to drink, smoke and drive at the same time. He drives too fast and takes a lot of foolish chances.

I have known for a long time that he drinks too much, but he says beer is harmless. (Two or three six-packs a day?)

When he smokes, sometimes the end of his cigarette falls off and burns his clothes or the car seat. I get so nervous when he tries to drive, drink and smoke at the same time because safe driving requires total attention.

Please help me.

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Beer is not "harmless," especially the amount your husband consumes. Although you cannot control your husband's behavior, you can go to Al-Anon and learn how to deal with his drinking. I urge you to do it. The kids should not be in the car while Daddy is drinking and driving, and neither should you.

(Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

LOTS OF WOOD DANGERFIELD, Texas (AP) — The same amount of wood once used to build a 320-square-foot log cabin now can provide enough lumber to build a 3,500-square-foot home and furnish its occupants with a 30-year supply of paper and tissue products, says Georgia-Pacific Corp.

The firm, a maker of building materials and paper products, says new products, innovations in manufacturing techniques and better use of wood wastes account for the increase in efficiency.

Smokefilled Rooms Are Missing

Cheering News

The College Board, an association of more than 2,500 secondary and higher education institutions, has come up with its annual report of projected student costs for the coming year.

They're up, of course. They've been going up for a lot of years, and the bill is a shock to many families and their offspring who see academic, cultural, social and often economic blessings in the advantage of college disciplines.

The report's projections for 1984-85 are one more reminder of the role inflation plays in the lives of American families. Further, it points up the benefits accrued for all Americans when inflation rates are brought down; not just in the education field but in the basic cost of living.

The survey's analysis of the rising cost of college education shows that cost linked to inflation rates ... considerably lower than those years of double-digit inflation and on average matching the anticipated 6 percent rise for 1984.

Some examples:

At public four-year schools, total costs will go up by 5 percent across the country to $4,881 for students living on campus and a similar increase (to $3,906) for commuting students.

At private institutions, up about 7 percent, an average cost of $9,022 for those living on campus, and $7,782 for commuting students.

On the whole, those increased costs are cheering news; cheering, that is, in comparison with the much higher costs had inflation been running at the old 10 or 11 percent rates.

DALLAS (AP) — Scripted, rehearsed and timed to the minute, the Republican National Convention debuted today — but it was only the second most important political show of the day.

That was just fine with the GOP, for on opening day, top billing belonged to Rep. Geraldine Ferraro and her complicated finances.

The Democratic vice presidential nominee was issuing her personal and family financial disclosure statements, a topic Republicans are happy to talk about and delighted to read about.

Questions about Ms. Ferraro's prior financial statements and her husband's New York real estate business have been dogging the Democrats. That has cost them campaign headway and it also has diverted attention from such GOP problems as the confused White House response to Walter Mondale's insistence that taxes will have to be raised next year, no matter who is president.

President Reagan's last word was no to a tax increase, with the caveat that presidents should never say never. The Republican platform draft says never. It also says that there should be full financial disclosure by candidates for national office and their spouses, an artful addition to keep the Ferraro finance question perking.

"I'm glad there's going to be this full disclosure and let the legal process, if it's something of that nature, work and let the public opinion be molded," said Vice President George Bush, who, by an amazing coincidence, issued his own statement on Friday.

Republican Chairman Frank Fahrenkopf said the GOP would watch the Ferraro disclosure with interest but wouldn't seek to make an issue of it.

But the Republicans are not about to drop the matter — the disclosure itself will lead to questions and probably controversy, which adds up to a continuing distraction for the Democrats.

For the Republicans, there were no distractions in view in Dallas, just four carefully staged convention days as a sendoff to Reagan's re-election campaign.

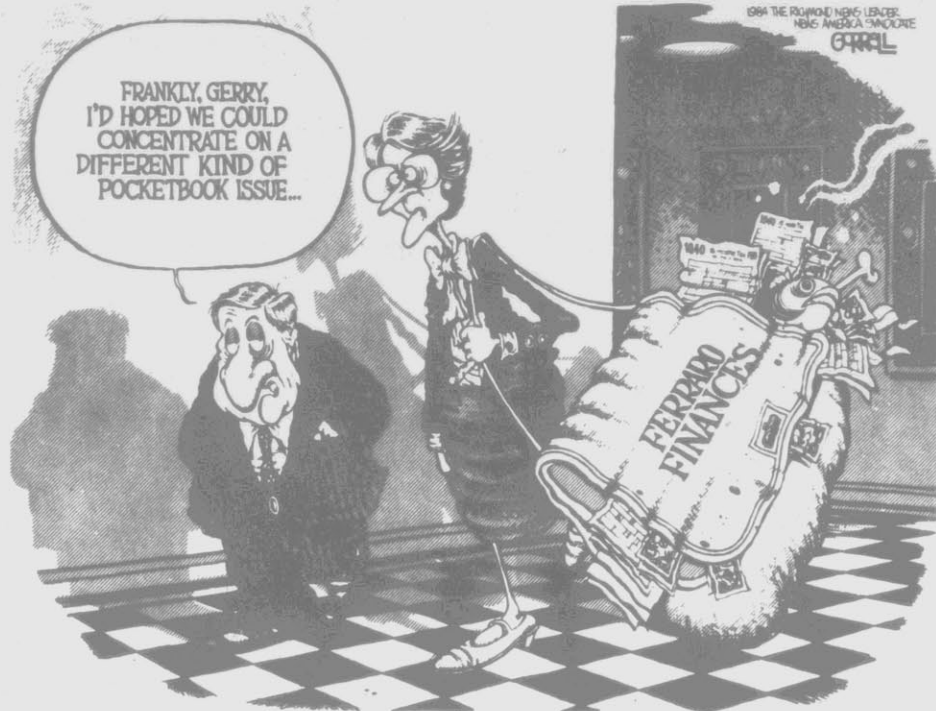

All the decisions were made in advance. And if there was a bit of trouble over the party platform, so what — it will mean what Reagan says it means. His spokesman, Larry Speakes, said the president is going to the voters on his own record.

It's a convention at which 2,233 delegates are committed to the ritual renomination of Reagan and Bush on Wednesday night, and two, Susan Cantania of Chicago and Paul Zimmerman of Upper Merionide, Pa., could vote.

Modern conventions are not decision-making forums anyhow, in either party. They ratify what already has been decided in the presidential primary elections and caucuses that choose presidential nominees. Democrats tend to argue more than Republicans, but the outcome is the same.

The only smokefilled rooms left are at the cocktail parties.

"If you can run a convention on time, if you can do what we can do from a business standpoint, you're going to run the country the same way," said Ron Walker, the Republican convention manager.

Unrealistic

Political party platforms are known for not being worth the paper they are written on. They are adopted at the national convention and often repudiated by actions following the election.

What is included in them should be responsible, though, if we are to have any confidence at all in the people who aspire to run our government.

And who can believe the Republican platform plank which would ban any increase in taxes? Are the Republicans forgetting the monumental deficits which their administration has presided over for the past four years? If those who are drawing up the platform were responsible they would develop a concrete plan for eliminating the deficit. While that might include reduced government spending, it could also mean selected new taxes to get the job done smoothly.

The GOP platform drafters have done what many before them have done. They ignore the nation's number one problem of an annual federal deficit as they attempt to make political points with an unrealistic no-tax-increase plank.

—Mary Anne Rhyne—

Realigning The Parties

DALLAS (AP) — North Carolina Sen. Jesse Helms, who comes from a state where voter registration is 3-to-1 Democratic, has spent his political career courting conservative Democrats to his political team.

After fighting to push the national party platform to the right in 1976 and 1980, Helms is excited this year about the chances of finally realigning the two major political parties to put liberals in one and conservatives in the other.

"More than any other convention, the 1984 Republican convention is moving the country by a giant step toward a realignment of parties," Helms said after helping write a platform for the Republican National Convention here that opposes tax increases and abortions and supports school prayer and space-based defense systems.

"This will do a great deal for the frustration that a great many citizens feel when they decide that their party no longer represents them," he said. "This goes for liberals as well as conservatives."

Helms changed his registration from Democrat to Republican in 1970, two years before he won his first term in the U.S. Senate. He said he has never changed his philosophy.

He helped establish the National Congressional Club to retire his 1972 campaign debt and now the political action committee collects money to distribute nationwide to conservative candidates regardless of their party.

But there remain many Republicans who disagree with Helms and believe the party is big enough for diverging opinions. One is Sen. Lowell Weicker of Connecticut.

"Obviously this is the year of the conservatives," Weicker said. "But I think that anything as far to the right as this, eventually the pendulum will come back in to the middle."

"The Republican Party needs its liberals and conservatives. It doesn't need its extremes," he said. "The voters make us find the ground on which we can win. I don't see this as anything permanent."

Helms calls that "wishful thinking" and says liberals tend to view all conservatives as extremists. He said the degree to which the next president implements the GOP platform will determine whether conservatives continue to rule in 1988.

"If the Reagan administration in its second four years pushes for full implementation of what is being advocated here ... then I think that Republicans may enjoy political prosperity for a while," he said.

Weicker thinks the platform could spell doom for many GOP candidates.

"If many people go around talking the way this platform talks we won't have many Republicans around here in the next decade," he warns.

But Helms is convinced that by realigning the parties, getting conservatives on one team and liberals on the other, political choices will become clearer and voters will be happier.

"In North Carolina, the one statement that I hear most among my Democratic friends is that 'my party has left me,'" he said. "About the only way they can do anything about that is to vote for the Republican Party or Republican candidates in November. They've been doing this; otherwise I would not have been elected to the Senate in 1972 or re-elected in 1978."

He said his re-election bid against Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt this year may test his theory. At almost every campaign dinner, Helms makes a pitch for conservative Democrats to join his campaign or better still the Republican Party.

"The Democrats have already moved all the way to the left. They are about to fall over the cliff," Helms said.

But he said he has been disappointed that President Reagan has not clung more tightly to conservative principles.

"There are some of who believe that the progress has been good but somewhat modest," he said.

"The president has had to trim his sails time after time. If he had had a working majority or coalition in the House and a similar situation in the Senate, this economy would be far better than it is."

Helms said he believes the party is giving Reagan a platform he can use to implement more conservative policies during a second administration.

He said the plight of voters makes it imperative that politicians continue to work to realign the parties.

"They (conservative Democrats) stay in the party and hold their nose so they can vote in local elections," he said.

Reagan Ranch Has Pet Cemetery

WASHINGTON (AP) — When President Reagan visits his California ranch he does more than ride horses, chop wood and clear brush. Sometimes, he digs graves for family animals and makes headstones to mark them.

According to the president's daughter, Maureen Reagan, an occasional ranch visitor, there is an area on the 688-acre ranch atop the Santa Ynez Mountains northwest of Santa Barbara that is called Mount Rhino. This is the area where the animals are buried.

Ms. Reagan, in a telephone interview, told the story of two family dogs buried on Mount Rhino. One belonged to her, a combination dachshund and poodle named Barnae. The other, a Belgian shepherd named Fuzzy, belonged to the president's son, Ron, who is Maureen's half brother.

Before they died, Fuzzy and Barnae were friends. They were such good friends that when Ms. Reagan took Barnae home after a ranch visit, "Fuzzy would howl outside the house," until he was allowed inside to see for himself that Barnae was gone.

Now their graves are next to each other in the pet cemetery.

As Barnae aged and became ill, Ms. Reagan said she asked her father if the dog could be buried at the ranch. He quickly agreed.

So when the time came, Ms. Reagan had Barnae cremated. The formal burial of his ashes was planned for last Thanksgiving. "Father had already taken care of the grave digging and all that," she recalled. He'd also made a headstone.

But it rained relentlessly during Ms. Reagan's visit on Thanksgiving, so the president saw to the burial himself later that weekend, his daughter said.

Michael K. Deaver, the deputy White House chief of staff, noted with great interest an announcement from Democratic challengers Walter F. Mondale and Rep. Geraldine A. Ferraro that the comments of the candidates aboard their campaign planes would be off the record.

Deaver, speaking to a couple of reporters in Santa Barbara, Calif., recently, said he couldn't believe reporters would sit still for such a rule, which has since been lifted. Then he mused aloud about the outcry that he assumed would occur if Reagan tried to impose such a rule on Air Force One.

Actually the president, whose private cabin is in the front of the Boeing 707 that usually serves as Air Force One, almost never comes back to the reporters' compartment, which is in the rear of the plane.

During his presidency, Reagan has talked to the "pool" of reporters aboard the plane three or four times.

Reporters used to at least catch a glimpse of the president as he walked down the aisle of the plane — stopping well before he hit the reporters' compartment — to greet any guests aboard. But within the last year, the White House installed doors at the entrances to all the compartments. Now, when the president is out of his cabin, the doors between him and the reporters are closed.

Neighbors

CARY — Bill Hankel's death earlier this month didn't make big news here. He got no more than the usual two or three paragraph obituaries in the local papers. Nothing about his life singled him out for the nightly news. No, Bill Hankel was just a common man, a private person, the kind of fella who touched and improved the lives of so many other people, but in ways that didn't get in the papers.

Bill was my neighbor. In the MacDonald Woods subdivision of Cary, he was everybody's neighbor. In fact, he almost singlehandedly molded the transient, upwardly mobile people who live in that collection of assembly line, standard three-bedroom frame houses into a neighborhood. He saved it from being the kind of suburban bedroom community where no one knows their neighbor's first name, where an occasional "hello" is the only conversation you share with them.

Bill didn't care much for that kind of life. He was a country boy, born and bred on an Ohio farm, who came to North Carolina with the 82nd Airborne in 1947. He was rough and he was tough but inside he was as soft as they came. When he saw the city slickers laboring to get a stand of fescue or a vegetable garden growing in the red clay of Cary, he just had to help.

"Where'd you ever learn to use a rake like that, boy?" were the first words he ever said to me. That was the way he talked. Real tough. Then he fetched his rotor tiller and spent three hours turning that clay into a suitable bed for zucchini and tomatoes. If he had a tool, he wanted you to borrow it so you wouldn't have to pay for one. If he had a tool you didn't know how to use, he taught you how or he did the work for you.

The Hankel house is strategically located on the top of a hill, overlooking the whole neighborhood. From his favorite rocking chair, situated on the front porch, he'd hold court. Everybody waved as they rolled through the stop sign at the intersection. Most everybody out on a walk with the kids or the dog would walk up his driveway for a short chat. He was the local institution and from his throne he introduced the neighborhood to itself.

In a neighborhood of young families, Bill, 60 when he died, became everybody's "Uncle Bill." Need a babysitter for an hour while you run off to the store or for a pizza with the wife? Bill wanted to take care of the kid and he made certain you felt you weren't imposing. Have a family problem? Bill was there to talk to, just as though he was your father.

Bill would be angry at me for writing this about him. That's too bad. He deserved to be remembered and so do all the people like him, in all the subdivisions, communities and neighborhoods across this state, who are so good to others and yet pass away without the rest of us learning about them.

Bill, we'll all miss you.

Strength For Today

—Elisha Douglass—

We have all heard the expression about an apple a day. It is supposed to have certain wholesome physical effects. Have you ever stopped to think what a poem a day might mean to your mind and spirit?

Poets see things which the general run of mankind does not see. Furthermore, it is sometimes possible to express in poetic form truths which cannot adequately be expressed in prose. You may be amazed to know that in a recent census thousands of people claimed that writing poetry was their chief employment.

May God bless the true poets of every age. And let us always remember the privilege which is ours to go to this treasure house of beauty, inspiration, and wisdom and find there joy, new insights, security and enlarged ambitions. Whatever your age, poetry offers its great ministry to your mind and spirit. It is truly a gift of God.

Vehicles Hit By Vandals

RALEIGH (AP) — Vandals smashed windows in more than 70 cars and trucks parked along residential streets in West Raleigh early Sunday morning, causing an estimated $10,000 in damages.

Sgt. L.W. Godwin said Sunday reports of the vandalism began coming in at about 2 a.m. and continued all morning as residents heading for church discovered the damage.

"There is no indication that whoever is doing this, whether it's one person or more than one person, is going into people's driveways or into parking lots," Godwin said.

Godwin said officers did not find rocks or other objects in the cars that might have caused the damage, leading them to believe a pellet gun or a similar weapon was used.

"Some of the windows were shattered but still intact," he said. "They (pellet guns) do have the power to shatter a window."

Storm Slaps Outer Banks

CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. (AP) — Severe storms swept through areas of the Outer Banks Sunday bringing high winds, waterspouts and lightning that was blamed for at least one house fire at Salvo on Hatteras Island.

The cause of a second fire in a rental cottage at Avon has not been determined. No one was injured in either fire, and damage was described as minor.

Salvo Fire Department spokesman Joe Kierzoski said the lightning in the area "was the most spectacular I've ever seen in 14 years."

Electricity was out in the Hatteras area for several hours Sunday night, according to motel clerk Yvonne Harris at the Salvo Inn Motel, who said power has been on and off throughout the day.

"We're getting along fine with candles," Ms. Harris said.

Waterspouts were seen at both Ocracoke Island and at Southern Shores in the Pamlico Sound.

Officer Ben Alexander of the Southern Shores Police Department in Dare County said a waterspout was reported over the Currituck Sound about 7:30 p.m. But it dissipated without hitting land, he said. "I followed it with binoculars for about five minutes before it dissipated," he said.

N.C. State Tops College Enrollment

By The Associated Press
North Carolina State University and the University of North Carolina are constant rivals in sports, but in this year's enrollment was the Wolfpack has come out on top.

N.C. State officials estimate that 23,600 students will enroll this fall, edging out UNC-Chapel Hill, which expects 22,000 students this year.

Classes start at both schools on Aug. 27.

East Carolina University expects about 13,400 students this year — almost the same as last year's 13,357. Some 2,591 freshmen are expected — up 4 percent from last year's 2,492. Classes begin Wednesday.

Enrollment figures were not available for Appalachian State University, but officials said they did not expect a major change from last year's 1,900 freshmen and 10,000 enrollment total. Classes begin Thursday.

Actual enrollment figures are usually lower than projections because some students drop out or decide to attend other schools, officials said.

NCSU students begin arriving Tuesday, with between 3,400 to 3,500 freshmen expected — up from 3,189 last year. In Chapel Hill, officials estimate a freshman class of 3,400 — an increase from 3,207 a year ago.

Duke University officials say they expect what could be a record number of freshmen, 1,503 — a 7.5 percent increase from last year's 1,390 freshmen. Some 5,775 undergraduates — about the same number as last year — are expected to be enrolled when classes start Aug. 27.

At Wake Forest, 3,000 and 3,100 students — including about 800 freshmen — are expected to register for the fall semester, which begins Aug. 29. Last year, 3,058 students attended Wake Forest, including 834 freshmen.

Elsewhere in the state:

— North Carolina Central University, in its 75th year, expects about 5,000 students, the same number as last year. Between 750 to 800 of those students will be freshmen. Classes start Aug. 27.

— Campbell University expects about 800 to 850 freshmen, about the same as last year. Overall enrollment figures were not available. Classes begin on Wednesday.

— North Carolina A&T State University is expecting 1,280 freshmen and 150 transfer students, with a total enrollment of about 5,600, compared with 5,640 last year. Classes start Aug. 27.

— Davidson College expects 1,366 students, including 361 freshmen. Both figures are about the same as last year. Classes start Sept. 5.

— The University of North Carolina at Greensboro expects about 9,900 students this fall, compared to 9,924 last year. A freshman class of 1,250 — about the same as a year ago — is expected when classes begin Thursday.

Officers Say Convict Lists 5 N.C. Deaths

By The Associated Press
Henry Lucas has told police he killed as many as 360 people in a five-year odyssey across 36 states, including at least five people he recalls killing or disposing of in North Carolina.

Police say Harriet Simmons of Franklin County may be one of the victims Lucas describes in his violent journeys from 1976 to 1981.

Ms. Simmons left on a trip to Nashville on April 15, 1979. Five days later, her abandoned station wagon was spotted on I-40 west of Statesville.

Lucas told police that he picked up a motorist on I-40 about the time Ms. Simmons disappeared. He said he raped and knifed his victim — whose name he didn't know — and dumped her body in Tennessee.

Lucas also says he killed an eight-year-old girl he picked up in 1978 near Perryville, Md., and dumped her in Four Oaks, 35 miles south of Raleigh. Her name isn't known and her body wasn't found.

Other suspected Lucas victims include Lou Della Jernigan, 54, of Four Oaks and two hitchhikers Lucas says he picked up in Durham and Winston-Salem. Mrs. Jernigan was shot in the face in October 1979 when she answered the door at her country home. The names of the female hitchhikers are not known.

"I've been all over North Carolina," Lucas told Wake County sheriff's Lt. Freddie Benson in an interview earlier this year. "Four Oaks. Durham. Raleigh. Winston-Salem. Ingold."

Lucas, 47, told police he would play cat-and-mouse games with his victims. He said those games often ended in rape, death and occasional mutilation. His favorite targets were women stranded on the highway, women working in all-night convenience stores and hitchhikers.

Now in a Georgetown, Tex., jail, Lucas is sentenced to die for one murder, after showing Texas police the body of a woman who has never been identified.

Lucas told police he hated women. "I wanted to destroy every one I could find," Lucas said. "I was doing a good job of it."

Two N.C. Cities Top Retail Areas

By The Associated Press
A national trade magazine says North Carolina has become a mecca for young urban professionals — or Yuppies — making two of the state's areas among the country's top 10 "hot" markets for retail sales.

ADWEEK magazine rates the Raleigh-Durham area No. 8 nationally based on growth in retail sales during 1983, while the Greensboro-Winston-Salem area ranks 10th.

Retail sales jumped 19.6 percent to $3.2 billion in the Raleigh-Durham area, according to the weekly magazine which is published in Atlanta. In the Greensboro-Winston-Salem area, retail sales increased 16.7 percent to $4.8 billion.

"The boom in high-tech industries has put New England, California and North Carolina atop this year's ... rankings of the hottest retail markets," the magazine's annual retailing report said.

"(North Carolina) has become a Yuppie mecca due to its pleasant scenery, easy lifestyle, job availability and mild winters," the magazine said.

The article said profits and salaries from the high-tech industries helped fuel a retail spending explosion in seven of the 10 hottest markets, including the two North Carolina areas.

Hartford, Conn., was ranked No. 1 by the magazine, while Boston was No. 2 and Fairfield County, Conn., was third.

Saturday's Cryptoquip - KIND, THIRSTY MAN CAME TO THE ADE OF GIRL SELLING FANCY LEMON DRINK.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: M equals X

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Shellfire Hits Gemayel Palace

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - President Amin Gemayel's government palace was damaged by shellfire overnight as army troops and Druse militiamen clashed in the worst breach of Lebanon's civil war cease-fire in six weeks, police said today.

The 42-year-old president and his family were not in the two-story hilltop palace, and none of his staff or guards was injured in the seven-hour duels, waged with artillery, multiple rocket launchers and tank cannons in the mountains overlooking Beirut.

Police said 12 civilians were wounded but had no casualty reports for the combatants.

Gemayel was at his summer villa in the mountain resort town of Bikfaya northeast of Beirut when the palace in suburban Baabda east of Beirut was hit. Police said the palace "sustained considerable material damage," but refused to give details.

The fighting centered mainly around the mountaintop town of Souk el-Gharb and a cluster of surrounding villages. It broke out Sunday shortly after two Lebanese soldiers were wounded by a mine that destroyed their vehicle near Souk el-Gharb.

The fighting, which died down before dawn today, prompted Gemayel to dispatch his political adviser, Michel Samaha, to Damascus, where he met with Syrian Vice President Abdul-Halim Khaddam.

After that meeting, Maj. Gen. Mohammed Kholi, a senior aide to Syrian President Hafez Assad, traveled to Lebanon and today met Gemayel in Bikfaya, the state radio said. He was expected to discuss ways to help bring about agreement on a security plan to re-establish government authority in militia-controlled areas in the central mountains.

Diplomatic sources in Damascus, who spoke on condition they remain anonymous, said an Assad-Gemayel summit conference in the Syrian capital was being planned, probably for Thursday.

Syria helped negotiate the latest cease-fire among the militias and the army and supervised preparation of a security plan to restore stability to Lebanon.

Lebanese army Commander Michel Aoun met at the Defense Ministry with representatives of the three principal Lebanese militias to examine a final draft of the security plan for the mountains, the state radio said.

In south Lebanon, Israeli troops today closed the Bate-Jezzine crossing, the only open gateway linking the occupied south with the rest of Lebanon, for three days, Lebanon's state radio said. The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said the measure was being taken to prepare for new traffic procedures and to curb arms smuggling that helps guerrillas attack Israeli troops in the south.

In Beirut, a Greek military attaché was wounded Sunday when two men armed with rifles tried to steal his car as he drove past the American University in the Moslem sector of the city, police reported. They said the attaché, Yannis Georgoulas, scuffled with one of the men and the other shot him in the right leg.

Officers at a nearby police station heard the shot, rushed to the scene and arrested the gunmen, said station commander Capt. Nabil Meri. Georgoulas was taken to the American University Hospital, where a spokesman described his wound as "very minor."

A final draft of the Syrian-backed security plan was expected to be discussed by Prime Minister Rashid Karami's coalition Cabinet in a meeting Wednesday with Gemayel, according to state-run Beirut radio.

The use of growth implants for beef cattle is a practice that has increased tremendously over the past few years. However, there are still beef cattle producers who fail to utilize this simple management technique that has an excellent return for a small investment.

Commercial cow-calf producers no longer have to ask whether implanting will work. Results across the country involving thousands of cattle have shown that cattle implanted gained five-20 percent more than cattle not implanted under the same environmental conditions. Growth implants are available for suckling calves to finished cattle.

Implants on the market today vary according to location of placement in the ear, period of effectiveness, slaughter withdrawal times and age and sex of cattle to which they can be administered. Some implants can be administered to calves at birth and reimplanting later will produce similar beneficial gains. Returns have been as much as $15 and more on each dollar invested for growth implants.

Cattle producers who never used implants should give it a try - administering an implant is a simple procedure. Remember, however, that administering growth implants is not a substitute for good management and sound nutrition for cattle. Implants only help when cattle are raised under proper conditions and are receiving proper levels of nutrition. Under most conditions, breeding animals should not be implanted.

For more information on this practice or assistance in utilizing growth implants contact the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office at 752-2934.

Red Sea Search Is Unproductive

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) - The Western effort to identify the source of the explosions damaging ships in the Red Sea continued today while two Soviet minesweepers headed south in the waterway, apparently toward pro-Soviet South Yemen.

At least 18 ships have been damaged by mines in the Red Sea and the Gulf of Suez, the northwestern branch of the sea, since July 9, and American, British and French mine hunting units have responded to Egypt's request to help search for the explosives.

U.S. Navy officers on board the USS Shreveport, the base of four American minesweeping helicopters searching the Gulf of Suez, said Sunday the oceanographic ship Harkness had made 12 "contacts" with mine-like objects, but most were found to be trash or coral when checked by frogmen.

They said some of the objects simply "drifted away." The Harkness is leased to the U.S. Navy.

U.S. Navy Commodore Alvin S. Newman, who commands the 650 crewmen and U.S. ships and helicopters, said it may be impossible to lay the blame for the mining, even if a mine was found and identified.

"Every maritime nation has mines in its arsenal," he said. "If we find one, we will know what we are up against. That is the Egyptian goal, too."

The American helicopters were out dragging a torpedo-like sonar device by cable through the choppy blue sea and into a stiff breeze. The helicopters pull the device in runs of 15 to 20 miles, but only search an area of about one square mile on each run.

After examining two of the damaged ships, U.S. experts believe the mines are resting on the sea bottom. That type of mine may be triggered by the sound, pressure or magnetic field of a ship passing overhead.

The U.S. force is concentrating its efforts in shallower waters of the main shipping routes. Mines laying on the bottom would be ineffective in deeper water.

"If we don't find anything, we will have to ask the Egyptians how far they want us to go," said Capt. Donald Dill, head of the anti-mine team.

Newman said a third U.S. ship, the LaSalle, arrived off the Saudi Arabian port of Jidda on Sunday, and would be used as a base for three U.S. helicopters searching for mines around the Saudi port.

Egypt has said it believes Libya or Iran placed the mines, but both countries have denied the allegation. A pro-Iranian terrorist organization calling itself Islamic Holy War has claimed responsibility.

Iran Preparing New Offensive

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) - Iran has sent thousands of volunteers to its battlefield with Iraq and is prepared for a new offensive if Iraq does not comply with Iranian demands, according to Tehran newspapers.

"Iran is ready for a military operation as soon as the grace period ends," Mohsen Rafiqdust, minister in charge of the Islamic Revolutionary Guards was quoted as saying Sunday. The report in the daily Sobhe-Azadegan, did not say when the deadline would expire.

Among Iran's demands are the overthrow and execution of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

Rafiqdust also was quoted as saying Iran had delayed an expected offensive "because it wants to keep the casualties to a minimum."

Iran has said it would be willing to discuss a peace agreement with Iraq only if Hussein is ousted and Iraq agrees to pay compensation for damages caused by the war, which broke out when Iraq invaded Iran in September 1980.

Irish Youth Riot

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) - Protestant and Roman Catholic youths attacked police patrols with gasoline bombs and rocks in separate outbreaks of rioting early today, police reported.

The street disturbances in Belfast and in Strabane, County Tyrone, were the latest in a week of violence in this sectarian-divided British province.

A spokesman for the Royal Ulster Constabulary said "dozens" of youths hurled gasoline bombs at police dismantling makeshift street barriers thrown up by protesters in Belfast's Protestant Shankill Road district. Police retaliated by firing a one plastic bullet, said the spokesman, who asked not to be identified.

In East Belfast's Newtonwards Road, another stronghold of Protestant militancy, some 150 youths raced through a shopping center, hurling stones and smashing windows, the spokesman said. Police found a cache of 13 gasoline bombs piled up on a sidewalk in nearby Florence Place.

Catholic youths took the streets in West Belfast and in Strabane, 14 miles from Northern Ireland's second largest city, Londonderry, the spokesman said.

Youths threw gasoline bombs at police trucks escorting a fire engine to a burning building in West Belfast and stoned police patrols in Strabane, the spokesman said. Police retaliated in both centers with plastic bullets. There were no arrests and no reports of injuries, the spokesman said.

In the Shankill Road area, 15 people were arrested early Sunday during a three-hour disturbance, during which a sniper fired on an armored police Land Rover.

Study Says Reforms Hurt Schools

By LEE MITGANG
AP Education Writer

A new study by a leading think-tank says that current state education reform efforts are neglecting, and in some cases even worsening, the crisis in the teaching profession.

The 19-page Rand Corporation study, "Beyond the Commission Reports: The Coming Crisis in Teaching," says that the drive in many states to tighten curriculum requirements and impose more competency tests on teachers and pupils alike are making teaching careers less attractive.

In the absence of other steps needed to boost the status and pay of teachers, these new state-imposed bureaucratic controls on teaching make it a less inviting career than it already is, says the report. It instead urges greater freedom for teachers to tailor their methods to the individual needs of students.

"The search for excellence as it is being conducted in most states will not solve the problem," said the report released Monday.

The "least academically able students ... will become the tenured teaching force for the next two generations of American school children," unless radical and expensive steps are taken to boost the status of the teaching profession, it adds.

The report, certainly among the most sympathetic to the plight of teachers of the dozen or so education reform blueprints issued in the last 16 months by various sources, calls for a sharp rise in average teacher salaries — to start at $20,000 and reach a top of $50,000. Teacher salaries currently start at about $13,000 on average, and the Rand report contends that the profession cannot compete with other careers.

The study written by Rand social scientist Linda Darling-Hammond also recommended:

- establishing a career ladder allowing experienced teachers to assume responsibility for supervising new teachers and developing programs;
- offering recruitment incentives such as scholarships and forgivable loans for academically talented college students to enter teaching;
- making teacher education programs more challenging;
- requiring teacher internships before tenure is granted;
- improving working conditions by allowing paraprofessionals to assume non-teaching duties.

It said those steps were necessary to head off serious teacher shortages expected by 1988.

The report warned the supply of new teacher graduates may satisfy only 80 percent of the demand for additional teachers four years from now. It said shortages have already occurred in a number of subjects including math, physics, computer programming, chemistry, data processing, bilingual education, special education, earth science, biology and English.

The problem is particularly severe in math and science.

'Debit Cards' Coming

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Banking officials say more than 30 percent of the American public is interested in "debit cards," which will allow merchants to draw the amount customers owe them directly from their bank accounts.

Atlantic Richfield Co. already is testing the new concept at some of the convenience stores it owns in Santa Clara and San Diego counties and could expand the system to 2,100 of its outlets in 17 states by mid-1986.

"We are trying to create an atmosphere of convenience for our customers," ARCO spokesman Scott Loll said.

Mobil Oil Co. later this month will begin its own year-long test that will link 2,500 high-volume service stations nationwide with machines to accept debit cards, and financial experts think that is just the beginning.

Eighty percent of all Americans over age 21 have bank accounts, according to Dan Buser of the American Bankers Association in Washington, D.C.

The banking industry estimates that between 30 and 40 percent of all bank customers would accept debit cards, he said.

Five major California-based banks — Bank of America, Wells Fargo, Crocker, First Interstate and Security Pacific — agreed last year to set up a debit-card network called Interlink, which is expected to begin operation by late 1984 or early 1985.

Baker Will Address Convention

DALLAS (AP) — Howard H. Baker Jr. will address a Republican National Convention tonight for the last time as a member of the United States Senate, but he may be harboring hopes of coming back in four years to accept the party's presidential nomination.

The Tennessee Republican is Senate majority leader and will be opening the convention as its temporary chairman.

His address tonight is one of his last major public appearances before retiring from the Senate at the end of his term in January, and he has been taking the speech seriously.

Tom Griscom, Baker's spokesman, said the senator worked hard on the speech and "we think we will make some news."

It will likely include a heavy dose of criticism of Democratic presidential nominee Walter F. Mondale, a former Senate colleague.

The 58-year-old Baker announced in January 1983 that he would not seek another term, but emphasized: "I certainly do not intend to retire from politics. I expect that I'll have other things to say on political affairs in the future. I may even engage in active political combat."

Baker makes no secret that he "would like to be president. I may someday run for president."

He sought the party's presidential nomination in 1980, trying to appeal to moderate Republicans. But his poor showings in early primaries and caucuses forced him to become the first candidate to drop out of the race the year Ronald Reagan rode a surging conservative tide into the White House.

Poll Shows Crime Fear

NEW YORK (AP) — Nearly half the Americans in a Media General-Associated Press survey said they have guns at home, and 1 in 10 said they regularly carry a weapon to protect themselves from crime.

Meanwhile, older people, blacks and those from lower income and education groups are more likely to be afraid of crime than younger people, whites and those from higher income and education categories, according to the poll.

The survey said that 86 percent of the 1,243 respondents in the nationwide telephone survey said they are not afraid to go out after dark in their own neighborhoods, compared with 14 percent who said they are afraid.

But 35 percent said they are afraid to go out after dark in their downtown areas, compared with 63 percent who are not afraid and 2 percent who are not sure.

Forty-four percent said they keep a gun at home to protect themselves from crime, compared with 55 percent who do not and 1 percent who said they were not sure. Thirteen percent said they have installed burglar alarms and 10 percent said they carry a gun or some other weapon.

People over age 55 are twice as likely as people under age 55 to be afraid to go out after dark in their own neighborhoods. Similarly, people with no more than a high school education are more afraid than people who have attended college.

Thirteen percent of the whites said they are afraid, compared with 22 percent of the blacks, and 18 percent of the people who earn under $10,000 said they are afraid, compared with 9 percent of those who earn more than $35,000.

Trevino Removes Doubt With Victory

THE DAILY REFLECTOR

MONDAY AFTERNOON, AUGUST 20, 1984

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — It had been three years since he had won, and despite 26 tour victories in 17 years, Lee Trevino — the cocky "Merry Mex" — wondered if he would ever win again.

Those doubts were erased Sunday when Trevino beat back the challenges of Lanny Wadkins and Gary Player to capture the 66th PGA Golf Championship by four strokes with a gutty 69.

His 273 total — 15-under-par over the 7,145-yard, par-72 Shoal Creek Course — was the most shots under par ever recorded in this championship, and he became the first man to win it with four consecutive rounds in the 60s.

Watkins finished with a 72 and Player a 71 to tie for the second spot at 277.

"It feels great. When you're young, you always say it's inevitable. You'll win sooner or later. But when you're old, you don't know if you'll ever win again," said the 44-year-old Trevino.

"The last time I had won was in May of 1981 (Tournament of Champions), but I was always saying I can win — only it didn't happen."

Well, it happened, and Trevino is $125,000 richer for gaining the title, his sixth major along with his other PGA title in 1974, two U.S. Opens and a pair of British Opens.

The victory pushed his earnings for the season to $265,407 and to $3,019,592 for his career, third best behind Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson. But it didn't come easy despite the four-stroke margin.

Trevino held only a one-shot lead over Wadkins on the par-3 16th hole and was looking at a 15-foot putt for par. Wadkins had about a 12-footer for birdie.

"That was the turning point," said Trevino. "I had hit an awful shot, hit it fat and into the bunker and he's got a 12-footer for birdie. I need the 15-footer for par."

"I make mine and he missed and I've still got my one-shot lead," he said.

Watkins then bogeyed both the 17th and 18th while Trevino added a birdie on the final hole for the victory.

Player, who earned $62,500 along with Wadkins as runners-up, parred the final four holes to catch Watkins.

For Wadkins it was a disappointment, but he conceded that "Lee played awfully well. He made the putts he had to on the back nine, and I didn't. That was it," said Wadkins.

"Number 16 was the key to the tournament. I felt like we kept putting the heat on each other back and forth, and it was a lot of fun," he said.

"At the Tournament Players tournament last year it was similar, and I beat him. But he got me here," said Wadkins.

The victory also qualified Trevino for the World Series of Golf tournament later this week in Akron, Ohio.

Calvin Peete fired a 68 in the final round which was delayed one hour by a thunderstorm, and finished fourth at 278. British Open champion Seve Ballesteros of Spain was alone at 279 after a 70.

Larry Mize, Scott Simpson, Gary Hallberg and defending champion Hal Sutton were tied for sixth at 280. Mize had a 73, Simpson and Hallberg 70s, and Sutton a 69.

At 281 were left-hander Russ Cochran, Victor Regalado and Japan's Tommy Nakajima. Cochran had a 67, Regalado a 70 and Nakajima a 74.

Nicklaus, who designed the treacherous, hilly course with a deep punishing rough, had a 69 for a 287.

Watson, who has won five British Opens, two Masters and the 1982 U.S. Open, but has never won this event, had a 71 for 291.

Lopez Edges Carner

SHAKER HEIGHTS, Ohio (AP) — Even with fuzzy eyesight and aching feet, Nancy Lopez has proven to herself and her opponents she still ranks with the foremost players in women's professional golf.

"It's a big win for me, almost like a major, to beat the best players in the world and take the pressure again," Lopez said Sunday after her 1-shot victory over two-time defending champion JoAnne Carner in the Chevrolet World Championship of Women's Golf.

Lopez closed with a 1-over-73 for a tournament record total of 281, seven strokes below par at Shaker Heights Country club. Carner had 69-282.

Beth Daniel in 1980 and Carner last year had shared the previous 72-hole tournament in suburban Cleveland.

Still, it was a bittersweet triumph for Lopez, even with the richest first prize in women's golf, $65,000.

Her husband, Houston Astros' infielder Ray Knight, was riding the bench a few hours away in Pittsburgh.

"I asked to be traded. There is just nothing left in Houston for me," Knight said via telephone from the Astros' clubhouse in Three Rivers Stadium.

Lopez supports her husband and will move with Knight to a new city if he is traded.

"He played last year with an achilles tendon and this year with kidney stones and dizziness. He played with pain. It's a sore spot with me the way he is being treated," she said.

Lopez knows all about playing with physical problems.

She had blisters so badly during this $200,000 tournament she needed help from a physician and considered playing in tennis shoes.

And, choosing not to wear her contact lens for the last two months, she has sight problems. "I can't see very far without them," she said. "I can see the pin, but it's kinda blurry. I can't see the leader boards. I have to ask my caddie."

Those physical problems could not minimize the importance of her 29th victory.

"It's self-satisfying to know I can still handle the pressure," Lopez said. "This year really has been an adjustment for me — traveling with a child."

She takes 9-month-old Ashley Marie with her for all of her tournaments.

Even with a family, Lopez says she will stick around four more years in a bid to follow the very strict rules of the LPGA Hall of Fame.

Braves' Pitchers Ailing

ATLANTA (AP) — Two Atlanta Braves pitchers with arm problems had appointments with a physician today and for at least one of them, the season is over.

Starter Len Barker, 7-8, and starter-reliever Steve Bedrosian, 9-6 with 11 saves, tried to throw before the Braves' Sunday game at St. Louis.

Both experienced pain and were sent home to be examined by Dr. Carl Fackler.

"This really doesn't help," said Manager Joe Torre, whose team trails the San Diego Padres by nine games in the National League West.

Barker is already on the disabled list. Even before the throwing session, he had agreed to undergo surgery to remove a calcium deposit from his right elbow.

"It's the same thing," said Barker after his brief attempt at throwing. "This is the first time I've waited this long and it didn't get any better."

This is a good time to do it. I can do it now and be ready in spring training."

Bedrosian had not thrown since a five-inning stint as a starter against Pittsburgh last Wednesday.

"I think it's just going to take some rest, that's all," said Bedrosian.

"I've had this before, but it's gone away," said Bedrosian. "The thing is that I'm trying not to let it scare me."

Trainer Dave Pursley said Bedrosian's condition is puzzling because "usually they can tell you just where it hurts. We haven't been able to do that."

McEnroe 'Thankful'

TORONTO (AP) — He stood at the microphone like a standup comic, displaying the grinning face of a winner.

After demolishing fellow American Vitas Gerulaitis 6-0, 6-3 in the $450,000 Player's International final Sunday, John McEnroe accepted the $48,000 check that went with his first-ever Canadian Open title.

"I'd like to thank Vitas for not playing well — that's what friends are for," said McEnroe, the world's No. 1-ranked player, whose earnings have gone over the $1-million plateau for the second year in a row.

McEnroe, 25, then tempered his feelings about the one-hour match.

"I think I played my best match of the tournament while Vitas didn't play his best," he said. "I felt good about that [my concentration]."

"The key was not to let it slip away. But at the same time I wouldn't have wanted to win the match oh and oh. Not that I wasn't trying to win, but it's better for me to do it that way."

Heading into the U.S. Open in late August, McEnroe said he was feeling a lot better than last year when he was upset by fellow American Bill Scanlon in the round of 16.

"I didn't know if I ever was going to win this tournament. It was his eighth appearance, so it's good I've got that off my back," said McEnroe, who lost to Bjorn Borg of Sweden in the 1979 Canadian Open final. "Now I can concentrate on the Open."

McEnroe, who has a 59-1 match record this year, regained the No. 1 ranking last Monday even before Czechoslovakian Ivan Lendl, the defending champion here, was upset by Francisco Gonzalez of Paraguay in the second round.

McEnroe was so dominant Sunday that the match lasted just an hour. It was his eighth consecutive victory over Gerulaitis, who has not beaten him since 1980.

Near the end of the match fans were asking the left-handed McEnroe if he could play right-handed.

"People can say what they want," said Gerulaitis, who won the Canadian Open the last time it was held here in 1982. "They pay the money and I really can't complain since they've always been behind me in the past and I did play pretty bad today."

Elsewhere, Brad Gilbert rallied to win the last three games of the third set to beat Hank Pfister 6-3, 2-6, 6-3 and win the $100,000 Grand Prix tennis tournament in Groves City, Ohio, and Czechoslovakian Tomas Smid routed Mel Purcell 6-3, 6-2 to capture the Head Classic tournament in Stowe, Vt.

In women's play, Martina Navratilova outlasted her doubles partner Pam Shriver to extend her winning streak to 48 consecutive matches in a 6-4, 4-6, 7-5 finale in the $150,000 United Jersey Bank Classic.

Gilbert, winning his first pro title in the United States, breezed to an easy victory in the first set but encountered a baseline battle with the 30-year-old Pfister in the second set. He suffered a service break in the second game, when the score went to deuce 10 times before Pfister won on a passing shot.

The victory, worth $20,000, was the first for the 23-year-old Gilbert since he won in Taipei, Taiwan, in 1982.

Smid used a pressure serve-and-volley game to avenge an earlier loss to Purcell and take home a $25,000 prize. Purcell collected $15,000.

Her triumph in Mahwah, N.J., earned Navratilova $27,500 and moved her to within eight matches of Chris Evert Lloyd's modern record of 56 consecutive singles victories, set in 1974.

But the victory in the two-hour, 15-minute match did not come easily for the top-seeded Navratilova.

Shriver, who has beaten Navratilova just three times in 22 matches, most recently in the 1982 U.S. Open, rallied from a 2-5 deficit in the third set to tie the match 5-5 and had a break point against her opponent in the 11th game.

But Navratilova whipped a backhand volley past Shriver and won the next two points to hold serve.

"I had to play good tennis to win," said Navratilova after her final tennishour before defending her U.S. Open title. "I was in a little trouble."

China's Athletes Still Receiving Recognition

PEKING (AP) — One week after the end of the Los Angeles Olympics, China's athletes are still getting medals.

More than 6,000 guests crammed Peking's Great Hall of the People Sunday to congratulate China's triumphant Olympic athletes and watch Communist Party leaders award them special merit medals, the official news agency Xinhua said.

"Young pioneers presented flowers and red scarves to the medalists and others as the hall echoed with the sound of drums and bugles," Xinhua said. "Prior to the meeting, many young people and children eagerly sought their autographs."

The newspaper didn't elaborate on who was invited to attend the gathering.

Party leaders also threw a banquet for the team Saturday night and consoled world-record jumper Zhu Jianhua, who missed a chance to win a gold medal and came home with a bronze.

Photographs on the front page of the Party organ People's Daily and other newspapers showed Premier Zhao Ziyang and party seniors Deng Yingchao and Ulanhu smiling and clapping for the team at the banquet, also held in the Great Hall of the People.

Struggling Orioles Pound Angels

By The Associated Press
The Baltimore Orioles are literally hundreds of miles out of first place. The struggling Birds looked more like the defending champions Sunday than they have for most of this season. Rick Dempsey drove in three runs with a pair of homers and Gary Roenicke added a three-run blast, highlighting a 16-hit attack, as Baltimore took a 10-4 victory over California to sweep their weekend series with the Angels.

Mike Flanagan, 10-11, ended his personal five-game losing streak while pinning a fifth straight loss on the Angels.

The Orioles have fallen far short of expectations this season, but in a sense the only thing keeping them out of first place is their East Coast location. Their 65-58 record is identical to that of the "high-flying" Minnesota Twins, the leaders in the American League West.

California's loss dropped the second-place Angels below .500, making Minnesota the only Western club with its head above water.

The Orioles had scored two or fewer runs in 10 of Flanagan's last 20 starts and six of his last 10.

"I felt a little strange," said Flanagan. "I had gone about a month or so with not too many runs to work with. I felt more pressure with a 5-1 lead it had been so long since I'd been in that position."

Dempsey has had the look of a champion against the Angels this year. "I guess they (the pitchers) got behind and accidentally hit my bat," said the catcher, who has three homers in his last three games and four of his six this season against California.

He was 0-for-17 before a single and a homer Friday night.

"When I went up in the eighth," Dempsey added, "the guys on the bench told me to try and get in the books with the big guys by hitting three homers. I tried."

In other AL action, Cleveland swept a pair from Milwaukee, 8-6 and 2-1. Seattle downed Detroit 4-1. Boston clipped Minnesota 5-4. Toronto rallied past Chicago 7-4, and New York topped Oakland 9-6.

Dempsey started a five-run rally in the third with his first homer. Mike Young and John Shelby followed with singles, and after Cal Ripken fanned, Eddie Murray, Wayne Gross and Joe Nolan rapped successive run-scoring singles to finish Bruce Kison, 3-2.

Bobby Grich drove in one run with a third-inning double and two with an eighth-inning homer. Another former Oriole, Doug DeCinces, drove in the Angels' other run with a groundout in the sixth.

Dempsey hit his sixth homer of the season in the sixth. Roenicke clouted his ninth in the seventh and walked with the bases loaded in the eighth for his fourth RBI of the game.

Indians 8-2, Brewers 6-1
Mel Hall cracked a two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning to win the first game, then scored the winning run on Pat Tabler's triple in the ninth inning of the nightcap. The Indians extended their winning streak to six games and padded their bulge over the Brewers to 2½ games in the battle to stay out of last place.

"Yeah. It was a good poke," the outfielder said of his game-winner.

Steve Comer, 3-7, limited Milwaukee to seven hits in the nightcap, firing his first complete game of the year.

In the opener, George Vukovich slugged a three-run homer in the sixth inning, but Robin Yount tied it 6-6 in the ninth with a solo shot.

Mariners 4, Tigers 1
Mark Langston and Ed Vande Berg combined on a four-hitter at Detroit. Langston, 12-9, struck out 11 to move within two of California's Mike Witt, who leads the AL with 153.

Langston, 6-2 since the All-Star break, retired 13 straight batters before yielding to Vande Berg, who got the last two outs for his seventh save.

Dan Petry, 15-6, also struck out 11 batters, a personal high.

Steve Henderson had three hits and drove in two runs and Phil Bradley added three hits for the Mariners.

Red Sox 5, Twins 4
The Red Sox ended a string of three consecutive losses to the Twins as Bill Buckner and Ed Jurak drove in runs with eighth-inning singles. The Twins, who rallied from a 3-0 deficit, had taken a 4-3 lead in the top of the inning.

Reliever Steve Crawford, 5-0, pitched to one batter to earn the victory.

"I've gotta teach the guy how to vulture properly, like I used to," said Bob Stanley, who worked the ninth for his 18th save. "You gotta let them tie the game, then win it."

Jim Rice hit his 22nd homer for the Red Sox. Tom Brunansky, with his 25th, and Kent Hrbek, with his 20th, homered for the Twins.

Blue Jays 7, White Sox 4
Pinch hitter Dave Collins' two-run triple keyed a four-run ninth inning off Juan Agosto, 2-1, and Ron Reed. The two relievers inherited a 4-3 lead from starter Tom Seaver.

Greg Walker doubled and tripled for Chicago, scoring both times. Vance Law hit an RBI triple and Rudy Law added a pinch homer.

Jimmy Key, 4-5, was the winner. Ernie Whitt hit his 10th home run for Toronto.

Yankees 9, A's 6
Ken Griffey's three-run homer and Dave Winfield's two-run single powered a five-run New York eighth inning. Winfield smashed four hits, including his 14th home run. Butch Wynegar also homered for the Yankees.

Carney Lansford singled twice to extend his hitting streak to 22 games, longest in the American League this year.

Rangers 6, Royals 4
George Wright hit a two-run homer and Ned Yost and Gary Ward added two RBIs apiece for Texas. Frank Tanana, 13-11, gained the victory despite yielding consecutive homers to Darryl Motley, Frank White and Steve Balboni in the seventh.

Balboni picked up his second homer of the evening with one out in the ninth.

Soviets, 'Friends' Gather For Games

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

The Soviet Union and a few dozen friends are hanging around with each other these days in Moscow, Prague, Havana and elsewhere.

There's running, vaulting, swimming, punching — all those things Carl Lewis, Mary Lou Retton, Tracy Caulkins and Mark Breland do so well.

But Carl, Mary Lou, Tracy, Mark and thousands of other athletes, many of the world's best, aren't there. They've already achieved what they set out to do. They've competed in the Olympics.

Thousands of other athletes set out to do the same, athletes from the Soviet Union, East Germany, Bulgaria, Poland, Hungary, Cuba and points east.

But just as President Carter decreed four years ago that athletes from the United States and 61 allied nations should not be permitted to compete in the Moscow Olympics, the rulers of the Soviet Union and their friends closed the door that led to Los Angeles — and took the additional step of organizing generic competition.

When the Games of the XXIV Olympiad open in Seoul, South Korea, on Sept. 17, 1988, none of these athletes will be mentioned in the Olympic record books.

They are not Olympic athletes. Not this year. They are participating in what might as well be called the Pan Soviet Games.

And how many folks here know what's going on over there? And care?

Very likely, not many — and not much.

After all, this competition isn't the real Olympics — or, as Peter Ueberroth might have called them, "The Official Olympics of the 1984 Summer Olympic Games."

This competition is sort of the alternative Olympics, as in "alternative lifestyle," wherein the accountant quits his job, quits his family and escapes to a commune.

Commune.

As in Communists. The folks who invented it.

They haven't been very inventive in these ersatz Olympics. It's as though they're making believe they're in Los Angeles. Trumpets herald the arrival of the victors. Women in colorful garb escort them to pedestals and hand out bouquets. Medals are dispensed and national anthems are played.

Oh, they're making sure not to call the games "Olympics" or to use the five rings and so on.

That would be sort of like some small-town hamburger joint advertising itself with golden arches or a neighborhood brewery trotting out Clydesdales in its commercials.

The International Olympic Committee likely would frown upon the infringement of its trademarked symbols. As long as they leave the Olympics alone, the IOC will reciprocate. Monique Berlioux, the director of the IOC, said she has "no reaction whatsoever" to the competition.

The rest of the world beyond the few dozen competing nations hasn't had much of a reaction, either. No 180 hours of globe-girdling television provided by ABC. No special Olympic sections in newspapers.

Reds Win...

His double in the sixth inning preceded Jerry Martin's home run that gave the Mets a 3-2 lead. The homer, Martin's third, came off Mark Davis, 3-15, who has lost nine straight games, an NL high this season.

Jesse Orosco, who lost the first game, pitched the ninth for New York and got his 27th save, matching the team record set by Tug McGraw in 1972.

In the opener, Brad Wellman tagged Orosco, 8-4, for a two-run homer with one out in the ninth, giving the Giants their victory.

New York's Hubie Brock knocked in four runs in the first game and another in the nightcap.

Phillies 6, Dodgers 3
Ozzie Virgil's two-run single highlighted a four-run rally in the seventh inning that overcame a 3-2 deficit. The outburst, which was helped by a run-producing wild pitch and an error by host Los Angeles, came against three pitchers.

Shane Rawley, 6-3, pitched his first NL complete game in 10 starts, allowing seven hits. One of those hits was a three-run homer by Greg Brock in the sixth.

Cardinals 8, Braves 5
David Green's line drive to center field in the fourth inning turned into an inside-the-park homer when it skipped past Dale Murphy and rolled to the wall.

The homer capped a three-run fourth inning and gave St. Louis a 4-0 lead. Ricky Bruce, 8-2, got the victory and Bruce Sutter earned his 33rd save.

Brad Komminsk and Alex Trevino homered for the visiting Braves.

TV Convention Floor Reports Say Business Is Rough

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It takes weeks of physical training, intensive roadwork, muscle in the clinches and the ability to dance out of tight spots in the corner.

In terms of preparation and performance, the job of television floor reporter is not unlike being a boxer, say Ken Bode and Chris Wallace, two NBC correspondents who will be covering the gridlock at the Republican convention in Dallas this week.

ABC, CBS and NBC are scheduled to begin coverage of the four-night event tonight at 9 p.m. EDT.

"It's very physical," said Bode. "There's an axiom that grad school is tough on the tail and eyes. Well, here you hope the legs don't go out. I do a lot of bike-riding as preparation, and I wear running shoes. In TV reporting you feel it on the feet much more after carrying around those battery packs."

Wallace, whose legwork helped him break the story that George

Bush was going to be on the Republican ticket four years ago, says he does extra sit-ups and laps in the pool before the conventions.

"It really is physically demanding," Wallace said. "You've got to keep moving, and you can really get worn out. Another thing is you must wear comfortable shoes. I'm in awe of Connie Chung (another NBC floor reporter) who covers the convention in high heels."

NBC is the only network maintaining four floor reporters for the Republican convention. "The job of finding news at the Republican convention will be harder," said Reuven Frank, NBC's executive producer for convention coverage.

ABC has cut back to two floor reporters and CBS will have three.

"The Democrats had four kinds of delegates and they had disagreements," said Joan Richman, executive producer of CBS' campaign coverage.

"The reality of this convention is that there won't be that kind of hurly-burly on the floor," said Jeff Galnick, executive producer of political programming at ABC.

Besides having more floor reporters, NBC also makes assignments differently than CBS and ABC do. CBS and ABC divide the floor into sections, while NBC lets its correspondents go everywhere.

"If we divided the floor into quadrants, I'd lose 75 percent of my sources," said Bode. But if he sees an NBC colleague in one delegation, he'll generally search out news elsewhere.

"The story doesn't operate in quadrants," said Wallace. "Sometimes it's all in one delegation or in one aisle."

With the conventions now mere rubber stamps for selecting the candidates, there's less chance of a floor reporter making big news. At last month's Democratic convention, the biggest splash was made by CBS' Ed Bradley, who tried to conduct a joint interview with Democratic rivals from Chicago, Mayor Harold Washington and councilman Edward Vrdolyak.

"You're still looking to do something special," said Wallace, the son of Mike Wallace, a correspondent for CBS' "60 Minutes."

Bode and Wallace each took pride in small coups at the Democratic convention. Wallace had the first interview with Joan Mondale, and Bode asked Geraldine Ferraro the first question after she had become the vice presidential nominee.

Wallace set up the interview with Mrs. Mondale's press secretary and then nailed it down with a 20-minute visit to Mrs. Mondale's home. It paid off when Wallace cornered Mrs. Mondale first, while keeping CBS' Lesley Stahl out of the picture with moves worthy of an offensive lineman protecting his quarterback.

For his exclusive, Bode wrangled a special under-the-podium pass and lay in wait for Ms. Ferraro. He even was escorted to his spot by the Secret Service, he said, passing by correspondents from all three networks. As Ms. Ferraro was striding by, she told Bode no interviews.

"I figured I could try and slip in one question, something that she wouldn't mind answering," he said. "This was not the time to ask her about her husband's real-estate holdings. I knew she was close to her mother, so I asked her if she had spoken to her mother yet. She answered that."

Singer Picked Up In Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — "Some mixup" led to the arrest of the Beach Boys' Brian Wilson and two other men on criminal trespass charges at the Republican National Convention site, a lawyer said.

Wilson and the two men, who listed themselves as employees of the Beach Boys, were arrested Sunday because they were found at a restricted site without proper credentials, police said.

Wilson, 42, of Los Angeles, was in custody for more than 3 1/2 hours before posting $200 bond, said Bob Knowles, Dallas County detention commander.

"There's been some mixup," said Henry Ackels, a local attorney who helped Wilson post bond. "As I understand, they were touring the convention center."

Police Sgt. Jody Thomas said the three said they were guests of a credentialed person "who neglected to escort them back out. We haven't proven that, or disproven it, and I don't know the name of the credentialed person."

The Beach Boys, the California group known for their 1960s surfing songs, performed Saturday night for Republicans and journalists in town for the convention.

The employees posted $400 bond each. They were charged with misdemeanor possession of drugs after almost 270 pills were found on them in a search, said Knowles.

No hearing date was set for the three men.

SUPERIOR COURT DIVISION
BEFORE THE CLERK
NORTH CAROLINA
COUNTY OF PITT

IN THE MATTER OF: FORECLOSURE OF A DEED OF TRUST EXECUTED BY GLENN C. JAMES, GRANTOR, TO LOUIS SINGLETON, TRUSTEE, DATED FEBRUARY 11, 1980, AND RECORDED IN BOOK T-48, PAGE 328, IN THE OFFICE OF THE REGISTER OF DEEDS OF PITT COUNTY, NORTH CAROLINA.

WHEREAS, the undersigned acting as trustee in a certain deed of trust executed by Glenn C. James to A. Louis Singleton, Trustee, dated February 11, 1980, and recorded in Book T-48, Page 328, in the Office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County, North Carolina, and whereas, within the time allowed by law an advanced bid was filed with the Clerk of Superior Court and an Order under date of August 6, 1984 issued directing the Trustee to resell said land upon an opening bid of TWENTY FIVE THOUSAND FIVE HUNDRED TEN DOLLARS ($26,510.00).

NOW, THEREFORE, under and by virtue of said Order of the Clerk Superior Court of Pitt County, and the power of sale contained in said deed of trust, the undersigned Trustee, do hereby offer for sale upon opening bid at public auction to the highest bidder for cash at the Courthouse door in Greenville, North Carolina, at 12:00 o'clock noon, on the 30th day of August, 1984, the land in said deed of trust and described as follows:

That certain tract of land containing 25.9 acres, more or less, located in Belvoir Township, Pitt County, North Carolina, and bounded, now or formerly, by natural boundaries and/or lands owned by and in the possession of persons as follows: North by Allen Heirs; East by State Road 1411; South by Charlie Jones and West by Allen Heirs; said tract lying approximately 15 miles South from the Edgecombe-Pitt County line on State Road 1411 and being more specifically described as follows: BEGINNING at a point in the centerline of SR 1411, being a common corner between the northeast corner of Tract No. 10 and the southeast corner of Tract No. 11 of the Mack Jenkins Farm; thence from the point of beginning, thence North 85° West 1500 feet along the line of Tract No. 10; thence North 85° West 100 feet with the line of Tract No. 10 to a point, cornering; thence North 1° East 311.07 feet to a point in the line of Lot No. 12, cornering; thence North 85° East 1100 feet along the line of Lot No. 12 to a point; thence South 80° East 311.07 feet to a point in the centerline of SR 1411, cornering; thence South 10° West 500 feet to the point of beginning, containing 25.9 acres, more or less.

This sale will be made subject to all ad valorem taxes or other assessments now due or which constitute a lien on the above described tract of land, and further subject to lease for the year 1984; and the highest bid at said public auction shall be required to deposit with the Trustee ten per cent (10%) of the amount of his bid up to and including $1,000.00, and five per cent (5%) of any excess over $1,000.00, to show his good faith. This bid due August 19, 1984.

FOCUS

Party Time

Republicans gathering in Dallas this week may be unaware that the Grand Old Party began in this humble schoolhouse in Ripon, Wisconsin. A meeting was held there on Feb. 28, 1854, to protest the pro-slavery Kansas-Nebraska Bill. At this meeting, chaired by Whig leader Alvan E. Bovay, participants decided to form a new party if Congress passed the controversial bill. Congress did, and at a second meeting, Bovay appointed a panel to organize the Republican Party.

Georgia Town Quiet Under Curfew

WAYNESBORO, Ga. (AP) — Officers patrolled quiet, rain-slicked streets today under the second overnight curfew imposed to quell 24 hours of unrest triggered by the death of a black man in police custody.

Black leaders and the man's wife, meanwhile, appealed for peace, and authorities said a preliminary autopsy showed the man died of heat exhaustion after an unsuccessful run to evade capture in muggy heat. "Leave it alone and let us handle it legally," said Carrie Gardner, whose husband, Larry, died at a hospital on Friday.

The east Georgia town was quiet Sunday night, following the arrests of 30 people for curfew violations Saturday and early Sunday. Three of them were charged with carrying concealed weapons, police said.

"There's nothing going on," Nicky Murray, a spokeswoman for the Burke County sheriff's office, said early today.

At least 36 State Patrol officers joined Waynesboro police and Burke County sheriff's deputies on their rounds Sunday night, said Sheriff Greg T. Coursey.

At church services on Sunday, black leaders and ministers urged restraint, and Coursey said he met with officials to discuss ways to avoid further strife. He said plans were under way for a "rumor hotline."

Coursey attributed the disorders to three or four "agitators."

The unrest began after a television station reported Friday night that a man might have been beaten to death at the jail. The station, WRDW-TV in Augusta, later reported that beating had been ruled out as a cause of death.

The initial report triggered five fires believed to be arson, minor looting and broken windows and several random gunshots. Two officers received minor injuries when they were hit by rocks, Coursey said. Evidence of firebombing and a Molotov cocktail were found at two of the fires.

Preliminary autopsy reports showed that Gardner, 32, died of heat exhaustion, said coroner Craig Kennedy. Police said Gardner ran in 90-degree heat to avoid capture.

"That's what got him," Police Chief H.L. Ivey said.

Gardner was arrested on a felony warrant for allegedly selling marijuana and on a shoplifting charge.

Black leaders — including Burke County Commissioners Herman Lodge and Woodrow Harvey, and the Rev. Julian W. Bell, president of the Burke County chapter of the NAACP — joined Kennedy and Coursey in issuing statements to assure people that Gardner's death did not result from an injury.

"Those of you in the Baptist church I know stand for what's right," Harvey said at a service Sunday. "I stood and watched the autopsy ... to see if there were any outside bruises on his body. I'm here to tell you there weren't any."

Kennedy said it would be three to four weeks until biological tests were completed and a final ruling on the cause of Gardner's death could be delivered.

Sherry Lorenz, news director at WRDW, said the station received three calls Friday night from residents reporting that a man had been beaten to death at the jail. She said the sheriff's department would not confirm or deny the reports, and Coursey was not available at the time.

Injured Driver

NORTH SHIELDS, England (AP) — A farmer's son drove his tractor half-a-mile to get medical attention after severing his leg in the rotating blades of a tilling machine.

Peter Currell, 20, was plowing his father's field near this northeastern town Sunday when he slipped and caught his right leg in the machine, severing it above the knee.

He managed to climb back into the tractor cab, leaving his leg behind, and drove to a pub. Though the leg was recovered and packed with ice, a North Shields police officer said it was "too badly mutilated" to be sewn back.

THE TALE OF THE TWO OF SPADES

DEAR READERS: We have had many requests over the years for those hands that we consider to be our favorites. That makes quite a list. For the time being, therefore, we are devoting the Sunday column to a series of famous hands. At the end of the series, we will go back to our weekly question and answer column.

Neither vulnerable. North deals.

Opening lead: Two of ♦.

"If I were to tell you that I was instrumental in winning a major championship," said the Two of Spades, "you probably would laugh me right out of the pack. And if I were to insist that I did it not by winning a trick, but by giving the declarer a trick that he would not otherwise have won, you would probably think that I was losing my senses. But bear with me.

"On the hand in question, I was held by one of the world's great players. The bidding went as shown. Our opponents were not shy in the auction, and certainly the diamond slam that they reached was not the world's best. However, if you study the diagram you will see that, left to his own devices, declarer will almost surely make his contract. He will be forced to take the heart and the diamond finesses, and a ruffing finesse for the nine of clubs. Since both royal ladies and the nine are well placed, declarer's only loser will be the ace of hearts.

"My expert did not know all this. He threw me into the fray at trick one, and the audience gasped when they saw that he had given the declarer an extra trick in spades. Declarer took advantage of this to discard two hearts from dummy, but that was to have strange repercussions later in the play.

"The king ace of diamonds fetched the queen, and the last trump was drawn. Declarer cashed the ace king of clubs and, after my owner dropped the Q 10, ran the eight successfully. He now set up dummy's last club with a ruff.

"But now, when declarer led a heart and my master played low smoothly, declarer was faced with a choice of plays. He thought long and hard before rising with the king, and our side took two heart tricks to defeat the contract.

"Not surprisingly, our teammates were not as optimistic. They played three no trump and scored the game without any difficulty. This hand was enough to win the title."

Earn Good Money Raising Thoroughbreds

Consumers know a well-bred bird when they see one. That's why Perdue's bigger, meatier, better chicken is Number One. The brisk demand means we need more breeder houses. Which is where you come in.

As a Perdue breeder producer, you're where the whole success story begins. You're the manager of a year-round business. You earn good money, because Perdue pays you weekly for the eggs you produce.
