PLANE CRASHES — Workmen prepare to remove a crop spraying plane that crashed Tuesday evening near the Frog Level community west of Greenville, causing only minor injuries to the pilot. The plane, owned by Craft Spraying of Farmville, crashed while it was being used to spray soybean fields near Little's Nursery on U.S. 264 west. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Pilot Escapes Plane Crash

By STUART SAVAGE

A Farmville pilot walked away from a single-engine crop spraying plane which crashed 3½ miles west of Greenville off U.S. 264 about 7:40 p.m. Tuesday.

"I had a good co-pilot," Don Wayne Slaughter, 42, of Route 1, Farmville, said this morning.

Slaughter, who said he didn't know what caused the crash, explained that "I'm still getting my thoughts together this morning."

The plane, owned by Craft Spraying Inc. of Farmville, went down about 400 yards north of U.S. 264, behind Little's Nursery.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said an eyewitness told investigators the plane "came up" from a spraying run, "hit the top of some trees, spun around (and) hit the ground."

The sheriff said Slaughter told deputies Tuesday night that "the plane stalled on him" before it hit the trees.

Tyson said the Federal Aviation Administration was notified, but said it would not investigate the crash.

Terry Payne, assistant Pitt County fire marshal, said the Winterville Rescue Squad was called to the crash site at 7:43 p.m. and took Slaughter to Pitt County Memorial Hospital where he was treated for "minor cuts and abrasions" and released.

Payne noted that units from the Red Oak Fire Department also responded and stood by at the site in case a fire broke out.

"From all I could gather, he (Slaughter) was ready to make his last pass for the evening" when the crash occurred, Payne said.

Republicans Set To Name Reagan In Vote Tonight

DALLAS (AP) — After two days of Republican stand-ins, the GOP convention headliner, Ronald Reagan, is arriving from Washington to a Texas-size welcome with red, white and blue balloons and a 10-story American flag.

The president was flying to Dallas today to speak at a political rally and then watch on television as the Republican National Convention renominates him. Reagan is not expected to appear at the convention hall until he delivers his acceptance speech Thursday night.

In Dallas, all was in readiness for the president: more than 300 welcoming signs were spray-painted in red, blue and black on sheets draped over balconies rising 10 stories in the atrium of the Anatole Hotel where Reagan and Vice President George Bush are staying.

Thousands of red, white and blue balloons were poised in a net overhead the stage, waiting to float down on Reagan and Bush as they stand before a banner reading, "Bringing America Back, Prouder, Stronger and Better."

The whole scene was dominated by a 10-story high American flag — the White House's answer to the thousands of small flags waved by Democrats at their San Francisco convention.

Hotel guests were notified in a statement from the Reagan-Bush committee they would have to be out of their rooms for three hours before the president arrived to allow a room-by-room security search for explosives.

Reagan also scheduled a private meeting today with one-time rival, former President Gerald R. Ford.

In 1976, then-President Ford narrowly defeated Reagan for the presidential nomination. And four years later, rumors that Reagan might offer Ford the No. 2 spot on the ticket touched off a tempest even as Reagan was being handed the presidential nomination.

To quell the rumors, Reagan broke with tradition and went to the convention hall in Detroit to announce he had selected Bush as his running mate. Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said this time Reagan won't appear in the convention hall until his acceptance speech.

Consumer Prices Inch Upward

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food prices rose at the fastest pace in five months during July and housing costs also surged upward, pushing overall consumer prices 0.3 percent higher despite declining gasoline and fuel oil costs, the government said today.

Still, the July increase in the Consumer Price Index was only slightly higher than the 0.2 percent gains of May and June, and it left inflation running at an annual rate of 4 percent for the first seven months of the year.

That compares favorably with a rate of 3.8 percent for all of last year — the best performance since 1972.

So today's news was likely to be welcomed in Dallas, where the Republicans are meeting to renominate President Reagan to run for a second term amid continuing indications the economy is still growing briskly while inflation remains relatively low.

In its new report, the Labor Department said higher prices for poultry, fish, fruits and vegetables helped boost food costs by 0.3 percent, the biggest increase since the 0.6 percent of February.

Food prices had inched upward 0.1 percent the previous month.

Meanwhile, gasoline prices dropped 1.8 percent in July after declining 1.5 percent in June, and are now 14.7 percent below their peak level of March 1981.

Fuel oil costs dropped 1.2 percent after declining 0.9 percent in June and natural gas prices rose 1.2 percent after declining 0.1 percent.

Electricity costs jumped 1.8 percent.

Housing prices rose 0.5 percent, including a 0.7 percent increase for homeowners, a 0.6 percent rise for renters and lesser increases for maintenance and repair.

In today's report, the department provided these additional details on consumer price activity:

—Prices for poultry and fish both increased 0.8 percent in July, while fruits and vegetables increased 0.6 percent. Beef prices declined for the fifth consecutive month, and egg prices also declined sharply.

The cost for meals eaten outside the home rose 0.4 percent. Alcoholic beverage prices rose 0.3 percent.

For more than a year now, the government has been churning out statistics showing the economy expanding briskly while inflation remained low.

ECU Earns State Approval

East Carolina University has been notified by letter that its teacher education programs have been restored to full accreditation by the State Board of Education.

Action by the state board to remove provisional accreditation status from the ECU programs followed earlier action by the national accrediting agency, the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE), restoring full and retroactive accreditation.

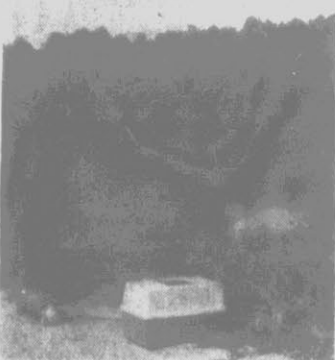

According to Dr. Charles R. Coble, dean of the ECU School of Education, the state board approved all programs at the undergraduate and graduate levels through 1987-1988. Dr. Coble added that the fact that ECU asked for and received a review of the status of its teacher education programs "a year earlier than was necessary" indicated that the university was "ready and anxious" to clarify the provisional accreditation situation.

Neither NCATE nor the N.C. Department of Public Instruction questioned the quality of ECU programs in their actions last year, but centered on the withholding of accreditation and granting provisional status on matters dealing with administrative structure. The university acted in a series of moves last year to revise the administrative structure, including the establishment of the Council for Teacher Education and appointment of Coble as director of teacher education throughout the university.

In addition to approving existing teacher education programs, the accreditation team also approved two new teacher education programs — a middle grades degree program at the undergraduate and graduate levels and a media supervision program at the graduate level.

Area Legislators Saluted

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Sen. Vernon White and Rep. John Gillam were honored at a luncheon here Tuesday designed to thank Pitt County's delegation in the General Assembly for its service.

White, who has represented the county for 16 years in the Senate, and Gillam, who for the past four years has represented the 6th House District, which includes Pitt's Bethel and Carolina townships, were presented plaques at the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce-sponsored program.

Both legislators chose not to run for re-election to their seats this year. White chose to retire, while Gillam waged an unsuccessful campaign to win the Democratic nomination to the 1st Congressional District seat from incumbent Rep. Walter Jones.

Dr. Jon Tingelstad, chairman of the chamber's board of directors, said Tuesday was "a very special day ... to honor our fine representatives."

He said that in addition to recognizing the "retirement" of White and Gillam, "we also thank (Reps.) Ed Warren and Walter Jones Jr." for their service in the House.

Tingelstad was followed by East Carolina University Chancellor John Howell; Kelly Barnhill, vice chairman of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners; Pitt Community College President Charles Russell; Lyman Hardee, past president of the Pitt County Fireman's Association; and Mayors Ross Persinger of Ayden, Frank Hemingway of Bethel, Roger Collins of Falkland, Janice Buck of Greenville and Ralph Thaxton of Grifton, and Farmville representative Frank Bradham, who also cited the lawmakers for their efforts.

Howell said the General Assembly members supported ECU's $110 million operating budget and helped secure $16.25 million for capital improvements, which he said was "the biggest amount" the school has received since the Brody Building (home of the ECU School of Medicine) was funded.

Howell noted that the capital improvement funds represent "half of the money (appropriated) for the university system this year."

"We feel we did very well," Howell continued, adding, "it will be difficult for any other delegation

Wedding Vows Said In Richland Church Saturday

The First Baptist Church in Richlands was the scene of the wedding ceremony of Linda Ruth Cox and Larry Dean Stroud. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Norman Aycock at 3 p.m. Saturday.

The bride, daughter of Billy Cox of Route 2, Richlands, and the late Virginia Cox, was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Marjorie Stroud Cox of Route 2, Richlands, and the late Carl Stroud.

Cynthia Cox of Route 2, Richlands, was the matron of honor. Bridesmaids included Wanda Bennett of Greenville, Pamela Cannady of Wilmington, Pamela Metts of Kinston and Carolyn Thompson of New Bern. The flower girl was Ginger Cox of Richlands.

Edward Stroud of Kinston was best man and the ring bearer was Billy Paul Cox of Richlands. Ushers included Bob Boles of Greenville, Herbert Cannady of Harrells, Ronnie Cox of Richlands and Preston Stroud of Kinston.

Graham McGowan, organist, and Susan Elks, pianist, provided wedding music. Kathy Wahl and Graham Cox were vocalists.

The bride wore a gown of white organza styled with silk Venice lace and schiffli embroidery. The high neckline had a stand-up collar of silk Venice lace and the dropped shoulder yoke was of point d'esprit with schiffli embroidery. The fitted bodice had a basque waistline trimmed with beaded lace. The cap sleeves were of layers of lettuce edged ruffles. The full skirt and attached cathedral train were edged with a ruffled flounce. She wore a hat trimmed with lace and bouffant veil. She carried a bouquet of star of Bethlehem, white sterling roses, lavender snowflake poms accented with gypsophilia.

The matron of honor wore a formal gown of lilac and corsage taffeta fashioned with a ruffled scooped neckline and full skirt accented at the waist with a cummerbund finished with a bow in the back. She carried lavender daisies, white daisies, white snowflake poms, purple statice, accented with gypsophilia tied with purple, lavender and white streamers.

The bridesmaids were dressed like the honor attendant and each carried similar flowers tied with purple and lavender streamers.

The flower girl wore a Mary Louise original lavender dress tiered with white lace and ruffles around the bottom. It had ruffles and lace around the lace yoke and puff sleeves. She carried a white lace basket of lavender and white daisies with lavender and button poms.

A reception was held at the Rock Creek Country Club in Richlands. Music was provided by Alan Smith.

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip to Topsail Beach.

The bride graduated from East Carolina University with a M.S. in home economics. She is a home economist at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom is employed at Greenville Cable T.V.

Abby Calls On Readers For Jukebox Switch

DEAR ABBY: We have three adult crippled children (our own) all in wheelchairs due to a rare genetic form of cerebral palsy. However, that is not the problem; I'm coming to that.

Our children love music, so we bought them a used jukebox and stocked it with their favorite records—mostly polkas, Irish ballads, golden oldies, etc. Last December the jukebox broke down. The dealer who sold it to us tried to locate the transfer switch that was needed to repair it, but he told us that since it was a 20-year-old Wurlitzer, he doesn't expect to find one because the parts are not being made anymore.

Abby, the model is 2801 and it plays only 45s. It had a beautiful tone before the switch broke.

Can you help me, or is this a hopeless case?

GERTRUDE B. IN WILKES-BARRE, PA.

DEAR GERTRUDE: There must be someone out there who has an old Wurlitzer transfer switch. Readers? Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

DEAR ABBY: How old do you have to be to find your real parents? I am adopted and do not get along with my mother. I would like to open the files and find my real parents, but I don't know how to go about it. Please help me. I am 14 years old.

A KID IN KANSAS

DEAR KID: There are many search organizations that will be happy to look for your birth parents—some charge a fee, others do not. The law states that a search cannot be started until the adoptee is 18, but he/she may register now.

My recommendation is: International Soundex Reunion

Registry, P.O. Box 2312, Carson City, Nev. 89702. Write for Soundex forms, and enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. The organization's services are free.

It registers the adopted person, and if one of that person's birth parents also registers, a match is made with the assurance that the "match" is agreeable with all parties. Some parents (also some adoptees) prefer not to be found, which I believe is their right and should be respected.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 16, unmarried and recently had a beautiful baby boy, which I decided to place for adoption. It was a very painful experience. I never want to go through anything like that again so I considered going on the pill. If I do, I might figure that as long as I'm on the pill I'm well protected, so I can sleep with just anybody, and I don't want to be that kind of girl. On the other hand, if I don't go on the pill, I may say, "Well, just this once won't hurt," and I'll end up where I was a year ago.

I want the next time I have sex to be special, but I have a hard time saying no.

I think the other kinds of birth control are gross. What do you think?

CONFUSED IN CONNECTICUT
DEAR CONFUSED: I think it's better to be protected and not need it, than not be protected and regret it. And since

Cooking Is Fun

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer

While touring Europe's Lowlands this spring, I enjoyed Belgium's memorable cuisine, which is becoming familiar in many countries.

When you sample the game and pork dishes, accompanied by the sprightly baby carrots and white asparagus for which the country is famous, you understand why the great paintings of the Flemish masters so often depict lavish arrangements of food. Best known, perhaps, are Breughel's scenes of gargantuan feasting.

Southern Belgium is known for its game and pork, including ham, bacon and sausages. The north has made a name for itself with fish of almost every variety. All the delicacies of the sea, including oysters and lobsters, abound.

But mussels are among the Belgian favorites. Featured only in months with an "R" in them, like oysters in some lands, they are usually served as a main dish, accompanied by the "frites," or fried potatoes which most Belgians adore.

Belgian vegetables are being exported to many countries. Endives, popular far and wide, are said to be grown successfully only in Belgium. They are not only good in salads, but Belgians cook them in stews and soups and feature them as a separate dish blanketed with a smooth cream sauce.

Belgians love their asparagus and prepare it in an unusual way. They serve it with hard-boiled eggs, the yolks crushed in melted butter with black pepper.

Among Belgium's best-known stews is carbonnade, where diced beef and vegetables are simmered in beer. It is delicious, but I always add an equal amount of beef bouillon to the beer to give it more flavor.

Belgium offers tasty desserts, many of which date back centuries. I noted that the older recipes used honey instead of sugar. This is because sugar was scarce in Belgium until the 17th century, when it began to be imported from the Caribbean islands.

Here's a recipe for mussel salad, which is a luncheon favorite.

- 6 pounds mussels
- 2 quarts water
- 6 small carrots, sliced
- 3 medium onions, chopped
- 3 leeks, sliced
- 3 stalks celery, chopped
- 1 teaspoon mustard
- 5 teaspoons white wine
- 2 tablespoons vinegar
- 5 tablespoons olive oil
- 2 sprigs parsley and 1 onion, chopped together

Quickly steam mussels in broth made of the water, carrots, onions, leeks and celery. In salad bowl prepare vinaigrette dressing made of the mustard, white wine, vinegar, oil, chopped onion and parsley. Place mussels in shells in the bowl and mix with dressing. Serve with chilled champagne. Serves 6.

Mistake

Democratic vice presidential nominee Geraldine Ferraro has her troubles which this week led to the release of her husband's tax returns. Nevertheless the Republicans have chosen the wrong horse in Anne M. Burford in their attempt to capitalize on the issue.

Mrs. Burford, it must be remembered, is the lady who has resigned twice under criticism from environmental posts in the Reagan administration. She was totally unacceptable to environmental groups.

Now, Mrs. Burford, of all people, was chosen to show up on GOP commercials as the leading critic of Mrs. Ferraro's finances. She bills herself as head of an anti-Ferraro "truth squad."

Mrs. Burford comes on television and says "Witch hunt. That's what I call it when the liberal media decides to create the news instead of report it. I ought to know."

Through some reasoning that escapes us, Mrs. Burford maintains that the public doesn't know about a scandal on Capitol Hill.

"Did you know that Geraldine Ferraro refuses to disclose her husband's finances?"

Anyone who doesn't know must have been on an African safari for several weeks.

There may be political points to be made from the Ferraro finances, but Mrs. Burford won't make them. The Republican party would do well to send her on an extended vacation for the duration of the campaign.

Challenge

Tomorrow the Greenville schools will begin the new year. They will be followed by the opening of Pitt County schools. As always it is a time of renewal for any community when the students and teachers give up summer holidays and return to the classroom. It is a time of new challenges for the educational system and for the community, for we will never be any better than our process of education.

Students, faculty, administration and parents should look on the coming school year as crucial to our betterment. Education is a challenge to all of us and we must exert all our efforts to obtain the maximum benefits from our education system.

—Rowland Evans and Robert Novak—

Time Span

DALLAS — Conservative Young Turks from Congress last Thursday threatened an opening-session floor fight at the Republican National Convention in order to win more speaking time Monday night for Jeane Kirkpatrick, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Reps. Newt Gingrich of Georgia and Vin Weber of Minnesota started collecting signatures from delegates to force a vote during Monday morning's first session to change the convention agenda. They objected to the schedule limiting time severely and giving Mrs. Kirkpatrick, a favorite of conservative Republicans, only a few minutes.

The congressmen conceded that they hoped their move would milk out a little more time for the ambassador but asserted they would go to the floor if there were no concessions. It was to have been part of general pressure by conservative House members directed against orthodox Republicans who run the convention, exerted mainly in pushing platform positions to the right.

That pressure was intensified several weeks ago when a quiet conservative lobbying campaign for Mrs. Kirkpatrick as keynoter was abruptly cut short. Without consultation, President Reagan's White House staff named the less eloquent but more tractable U.S. Treasurer Katherine Ortega. Since then, the Gingrich-Weber group has been conducting public guerrilla warfare.

Gingrich's threats of a floor fight pushed up the allotted time for Mrs. Kirkpatrick from eight minutes to 10, but he wanted at least 25 minutes or a half hour so that she could present the full Reagan administration foreign policy position.

That was resisted by Reagan's management team under the leadership of William Timmons, a former White House aide of Nixon and Ford administration vintage who is now a Washington super-lobbyist. A Timmons aide said that if Mrs. Ortega was to be limited to 12 minutes for her keynote, 10 minutes was plenty for Mrs. Kirkpatrick.

Gingrich noted that the combined time of Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, Mrs. Kirkpatrick and Mrs. Ortega before the convention was to be 27 minutes. At the Democratic Convention last month, Gingrich added, Gov. Mario Cuomo spoke for 25 minutes and the Rev. Jesse Jackson for over an hour. The congressman was particularly vexed at the five minutes — limited strictly to the platform — allocated to conservative leader Kemp, who delivered a major speech at the 1980 convention in Detroit.

RALEIGH — Two weeks before the 1980 election, the political writers of The Raleigh Times met to plan their election night coverage. When one reporter suggested that the race between Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan for North Carolina's 13 electoral votes might be very close, the city editor chuckled. "If Carter doesn't win here, he'll have already lost everywhere else."

In 1980, Carter appeared to be ahead here. As the city editor implied, Carter would lose here only if he was getting trounced nationally. That's what happened and Reagan carried North Carolina by 38,000 votes.

In 1984, Reagan enters the campaign season in pretty much the same position Carter held in 1980. North Carolina appears to be in his column of "firm" states and, if he loses here in November, it will probably mean he's in very deep trouble nationwide.

Politicians on both sides agree that Reagan now leads in North Carolina. Democratic Party Chairman David Price says he's seen a lot of polls but none of them show Walter Mondale leading here. "But I have seen some which show him to be within striking distance, four, five, six points," Price added.

At the Reagan campaign, press secretary Karen Johnston says about the same thing. She's "optimistic" about Reagan's chances here but adds that "it is something uppermost in this campaign's mind that this state is not a given. That's the reason you see Mondale here."

That's the kind of talk you'd expect. Even though the Democrats are behind, Price must give his troops reason for hope. If the Republicans really are far ahead, it is Mrs. Johnston's job to make sure they don't get overconfident, forget to work and forget to vote.

But these two polls are also shooting straight when they say Reagan can't lay claim to North Carolina yet. There are several factors that lead to the conclusion that the 1984 margin could be as close as 1980s — and that it could go either way.

As Mrs. Johnston noted, Reagan not only won North Carolina by a slim margin in 1980 (only two percentage points), he won it without a majority. He got 48 percent of the vote to Carter's 46 percent. Independent John Anderson and other minor candidates took 6 percent. Anderson voters tended to be liberal and if they went to Mondale this time, the historical comparison with 1980 gets jiggled.

The black vote — expected to be heavily Democratic — is significantly larger this year. Republicans recently noted that the 77,000 new black voters more than wipe out Reagan's 1980 margin of victory.

Then there is the 3 to 1 Democratic advantage in party registration. Of the past six presidential elections, Republicans have taken the state three times. But in two of those three elections, they needed a third party challenger (Anderson in 1980 and George Wallace in 1968) to lure Democrats from the party ticket. No minor party candidate has caught fire yet this year.

How important is North Carolina to the two candidates? Very important. It is generally conceded that Reagan will win most of the states west of the Mississippi and that he can put together enough electoral votes to win by claiming the conservative South. Mondale knows he must take the industrial Northeast and Midwest and make inroads in the South. North Carolina, as the 20th largest state in the union, would carry a nice little cache of electoral votes in the efforts of both candidates to implement their plans.

As the traditional opening of the campaign approaches with Labor Day, North Carolina appears to be in a state headed for the Reagan column. But, it is a state which Democrats ought not write off yet.

Linking Aid With Grades

WASHINGTON — Financial aid officials on college campuses are resisting an undying congressional effort to mandate a minimum grade point average for college loan recipients.

The minimum standard would be a follow-up to recent federal regulations that require colleges to maintain standards of academic progress among financial aid recipients. Under the new rules, institutions may set grade point averages and the maximum number of years allowed to finish a degree program.

Enforcement of academic progress is time consuming, and financial aid administrators don't want to undertake a bigger policeman's role than they already play.

This isn't to say that performance standards lack appeal on a gut level. Many undergraduates do squander their tuition money on what become four-year drunks, and some, though a small minority, never repay their loans. That is why Sen. Dan Quayle, R-Ind., among others, wants to link aid to grades.

Yet many aid officials rightly contend that high grade requirements could ultimately deny a full college education to otherwise eligible students. Not all students perform well from semester to semester. Some suffer learning handicaps due to the fact that English is their second language; others are simply slow learners.

And sometimes students gamble on unusually tough courses and lose. Need they be penalized for trying?

Between Jan. 1, 1983, and May 31, 1984, the nation's top 20 defense contractors contributed more than $2 million to congressional candidates, according to the Federal Election Commission. The political action committees of General Dynamics and McDonnell Douglas, the Pentagon's two biggest suppliers, ranked seventh and 12th among defense PACs with total gifts of $138,000 and $100,550, respectively, during the period. The Lockheed PAC led the defense industry's givers with $226,000 in contributions. On the average, the top 20 defense PACs gave $122,000.

Since most PACs give heavily in the latter months of a campaign year, the defense industry probably has much more to give candidates.

Life isn't so bad for top Teamsters union officials. The dissident faction of that organization, Teamsters for a Democratic Union, reports that 74 Teamster officials received more than $100,000 each, or a combined $11.2 million, in compensation during 1983. Teamsters President Jackie Presser led the list with $512,386, according to the dissident group.

Rank-and-file teamsters earn $30,000 at best.

Speaking of the underpaid, last June's college graduates with social science degrees can expect a starting salary of only $17,424, according to the College Placement Council. Petroleum engineers, meanwhile, still have an edge; their starting salaries will be $29,568 on the average.

The Environmental Protection Agency estimates that 43 Americans will contract cancer this year from inhaling gasoline vapors at self-service stations or bulk terminals. Unfortunately, corrective measures would cost $2 billion, the EPA estimates.

As chief executive of the second most populous state, New York's Mario Cuomo earns $100,000 annually — tops among the nation's governors. In contrast, the governor of California, George Deukmejian, receives only $49,100. Deukmejian's salary, in fact, is less than the average governor's pay of $62,532. But Arkansas, Delaware and Maine, at $35,000, pay their governors the least.

On Nov. 3, 1983, budget director David Stockman told a House subcommittee that he "would be happy to take an invitation to come back here and testify next spring because I am absolutely confident that the poverty rate is going to decline dramatically for 1983."

Yet there were more than 6 million more Americans in poverty in 1983 than in 1980. One of every four American, and half of all black and Hispanic, children below the age of 6 were included in that group.

Depreciation Goes With Real Estate

NEW YORK (AP) — Whether the discussion is about investments or tax shelters or new tax legislation, the theory and practice of depreciation is bound to arise when real estate is discussed.

Why shouldn't it, when the theory says real assets depreciate while the practice shows that often they appreciate? Which is to say, a piece of property alleged to be wasting away may be steadily growing in value.

In theory, all physical aspects of a business, land excepted, are said to lose value over time because of usage or wear and tear, and must be replaced if the business is to continue earning income and paying income taxes.

But theory and practice, like plums and prunes, are different things.

A $100,000 income property with a depreciable life of 18 years for income tax purposes, for example, might actually live long beyond that time and still produce income, even if the income is somewhat reduced by deterioration.

Nevertheless, the owner can deduct on his or her annual income tax return one-eighteenth the value of the structure. Assuming the structure, minus land, was bought for $80,000, the deduction can amount to $4,444 a year.

Assets really do waste away in many businesses, and in some instances a business can be made obsolete in a few years by technological advances. Many of the electronic industries, including computers, are in this situation.

It can happen in real estate too, but less often, which makes it what some consider to be the ideal tax shelter.

Alvin L. Arnold, author of The Real Estate Investor's Handbook, published by Warren, Gorham & Lamont, summarizes the duality that makes a tax shelter out of real estate depreciation.

In theory, he says, the deduction compensates the taxpayer for the depreciation of "wasting assets." In practice, the decline in asset value is at a much slower rate than that assigned to the asset.

In theory, he continues, the deduction anticipates the taxpayer will set up a replacement reserve to renew the assets. In practice, depreciation creates untaxed cash flow that can be used for purposes other than renewing assets.

In theory, depreciation allows the taxpayer to recoup his cash investment through tax deductions. In practice, the taxpayer can take deductions on an amount which may far exceed his actual investment in the property.

"As a result of the fact that a property owner may take depreciation deductions far in excess of the actual decline in economic value of the property, a tax shelter is created," Arnold explains.

Another major factor enters the picture: The owner may have paid only 5 percent down on the structure, borrowing the rest. But the depreciation is claimed by the taxpayer on the basis of 100 percent cash ownership.

That can produce a situation, therefore, in which the annual tax deduction can be almost as large as the taxpayer's total investment. When the structure is sold, the depreciation deductions must in effect be repaid. But the owner has had the use of that money for the entire period of ownership.

Moreover, interest on the money borrowed to complete the purchase is tax-deductible as a business expense. And if the property is like many others today it will increase rather than decrease in value.

All this is perfectly legal, and many contend it is also socially desirable in the sense that both businesses and people must have a home and that real estate investors spend the money and take the risk to provide it for them.

But the situation also makes the concept and practice of depreciation one of the most difficult matters to explain to non-investors...

... even if it is almost instantly grasped by those who own or plan to buy real estate.

—Elisha Douglass—

Strength For Today

The Bible declares (Heb. 10:31), "It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God."

Should this make us fear God? Only if we are doing some fearful thing. We are all sinners in that we are selfish, impulsive and frequently mistaken. But God is merciful. He knows our weaknesses and graciously and gladly forgives them. But if people are persisting in some major sin such as dishonesty, adultery, hateful jealousy, revenge, then they are right to fear God. But God opens the way out from every one of these sins. He encourages us to take it. But if we resolutely say No, then God can become very angry with us.

We should remember that God loves us and forgives us in our weaknesses. It is only when we set ourselves against him and his righteousness that he becomes angry with us. His nature is that he is slow to anger and plentiful in mercy.

Planning-Zoning Unit Backs Rezoning For Tar River Area

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

By a vote of 6-2 Tuesday, the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission recommended to City Council that a portion of the Tar River neighborhood be rezoned from R-6 to R-6S.

Board members Rufus Keel and Jim Ward cast the dissenting votes.

According to Planning and Zoning Director Bobby Roberson, rezoning the area to R-6S (single-family residential) would limit duplex and multifamily operations and development to existing structures.

Made by the Tar River Neighborhood Association, the request covers an area bounded by the 1000-1300 block of Johnston Street and 1400-1600 block of Fourth Street on the south, houses which front along the 100-200 block of north and south Elm Street on the east, the rear property line of houses facing the 100 block of North and South Woodlawn on the west and River Drive on the north. According to Stan Joyner of the Planning and Zoning Department, who did a 90-day study on TRNA's request, 335 dwellings or 69 percent of the total 486 dwellings in the area are single-family, 88 or 18 percent are duplexes, 61 or 12 percent are multifamily and 2 or 1 percent are boarding-type houses.

Opposition to the TRNA's request was given by neighborhood rental property owners Steve Horne and Michael Kachmer. Horne, an absentee duplex owner, raised a question about replacement of rental structures if they are damaged. According to existing city ordinances, if a non-conforming structure is destroyed or damaged, replacement of the structure is dependent upon an assessment and replacement cost percentage scale. However, should the damage rate go over 50 percent of replacement cost or 75 percent more than the assessed value of the structure, representatives can apply for a variance which would allow the structure to be rebuilt. Variances are "pretty difficult to come by, though," a planning and zoning representative told Horne and the commission.

Both Horne and Kachmer asked the commission to consider taking a couple of small duplex and apartment areas out of the request so their businesses would not be hurt. "If something should happen, if my buildings are burned or destroyed it would put me out of business," Kachmer, owner of Elm Villa Apartments, explained.

TRNA was represented at the meeting by Inez Fridley, association president. Speaking on behalf of more than 75 residents at the meeting, Mrs. Fridley told the commission that she and association members would like to see the neighborhood be what it was initially designed to be: "A single-family area where people can stay and live and raise their children." She added that the area designated in the request represents a core area of the neighborhood between the Tar River and East Carolina University that has not seen tremendous conversion. "Families in this area have been making tremendous home improvements over the years and are interested in maintaining a family neighborhood," she said.

In other action, the commission declined to recommend a request by R. Guy Mayo to rezone approximately 4.1 acres from medical arts to shopping center. The property is located on the south side of NCSR 1200 just east of Pitt County Memorial Hospital and is adjacent to W.C. Taylor-ABC Moving and Storage. Taylor urged the commission to leave zoning as it is.

The commission also voted to recommend a request by Senior Village for annexation of 10.01 acres located on the north side of N.C. 43 west, approximately 1,000 feet west of the Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center.

Ferraro's Press Aide Quits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hours after her commanding, marathon performance fielding questions about family finances, Geraldine A. Ferraro returns to the campaign trail only to face a new headache — the surprise resignation of press secretary Patricia Bario.

Near the end of her nearly two-hour news conference on finances, Ms. Ferraro, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, looked out at the 38 television cameras and more than 150 reporters and expressed the hope Tuesday that "Gerry will be off the grill."

"We'll get this all out and then we'll move out" to talk about issues rather than finances in new campaign stops beginning with a speech to a teachers union here today, she said.

But Tuesday night, her spokeswoman, Ms. Bario, 52, told The Associated Press: "I quit this evening."

She said she quit in a dispute with campaign manager John Sasso over delays in hiring assistants to help her and because of the confusion that resulted from a lack of staff help.

"I'm going out in sorrow, not in anger," she emphasized. "I have tremendous regard for Ms. Ferraro. I think she's a tremendous candidate and I'd like to be part of the team, but I just wasn't able to operate at the level that I wanted to."

She told Sasso of her decision Tuesday night and planned to advise Ms. Ferraro by note today.

At a Queens, N.Y., news conference, Ms. Ferraro had pointed to her release of "more financial disclosures than you received from any candidate in the history of the United States and from any other spouse" and argued they dispel any notion her family had "something to hide."

"She never flinched and, having promised to take all questions, outlasted two television networks which decided they had seen enough and stopped broadcasting the event before she left."

Her performance provoked an unusual response from the reporters present: they booed or hooted down two of their colleagues who they felt were rudely interrupting Ms. Ferraro's answers. At the end, some television cameramen dropped their normal noncommittal posture to applaud her. And the early reviews from some political commentators were favorable.

and she needed to ensure the company's survival. She said she hoped her elder daughter would take her place.

She told reporters that once she was elected to Congress in 1978 she "wanted to have everything separate. My obligation is to the American public. I didn't want to know about his finances."

DETAILS — Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro gestures during a Tuesday news conference in New York. Ms. Ferraro detailed the financial records compiled by her and her husband, businessman John Zaccaro, and then answered all questions asked by news reporters. (AP Laserphoto)

At her news conference, Ms. Ferraro refused to back off her five-year-old claim that she did not benefit from or know about her husband's real estate management firm, P. Zaccaro Co., and thus was entitled not to list his financial data on federal disclosure forms.

But she announced she was relinquishing her one-third share in the company and her titles of director and vice president, which she said she kept only in case Zaccaro died.

Clearly elated at Ms. Ferraro's performance after a week of controversy, Mondale said Tuesday she has improved the chances of the Democratic ticket defeating President Reagan in the November election.

North Oaks, Minn. (AP) — Walter F. Mondale, contending that Geraldine A. Ferraro's financial disclosure troubles are over, is attacking what he calls Republican "flim-flam artists" who have made less complete disclosures.

Clearly elated at Ms. Ferraro's performance after a week of controversy, Mondale said Tuesday she has improved the chances of the Democratic ticket defeating President Reagan in the November election.

Mondale Elated Over Disclosure

No Secrets

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says reports that his wife, Nancy, is "the power behind the throne, directing me or something," are wrong but that "there aren't any secrets between us."

In an interview in today's Washington Post, the president described Mrs. Reagan as a close political confidante but added he does not ask her what to do. He also said that at the start of his term she got a "bum rap" as a wealthy woman who was unaware of injustice.

Mrs. Reagan is "a very warm person," the president said, who suffered "a traumatic shock" when he was wounded in a March 1981 assassination attempt.

Whatever happens, the president said, he always discusses it with Mrs. Reagan.

"As far back as I can remember in the marriage, anything that happens ... the first thought in my mind — the first image in my mind — is that I'm going to tell her about it." Reagan said in the interview. "She doesn't have to say, 'How were things at the office today?'"

"I just assume she's cleared for top secret," Reagan said.

Nancy Reagan Takes New Image To GOP Convention

By LAWRENCE L. KNUSTON
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Nancy Reagan, who in her first months in the White House earned an image of a free-spiriting socialite draped in designer fashions, comes to Dallas today as a tough campaigner against teen-age drug abuse and ready to receive Republican tribute in a "Salute to the First Lady."

Mrs. Reagan's appearances at the Republican National Convention here are aimed at showcasing her transformation from the shy, seemingly haughty wife of a popular, affable president to a woman with new public confidence and her own crusades.

"In political life, which we've been in since 1966, you don't stay the same, you grow with new challenges and experiences," said the former Hollywood actress, responding to questions through her press secretary, Sheila Tate.

Mrs. Reagan will arrive in Dallas several hours before her husband for the luncheon traditionally given at national political conventions for first ladies. But this year, Mrs. Tate said, the first lady has "turned this luncheon around to honor Republican women" and will be acting, in effect, as a hostess for 2,000 women leaders of the "past, present, and future."

She will have help from two high-powered guests — singer Pearl Bailey and comedian Joan Rivers.

Miss Rivers has promised to tone down her caustic brand of humor — but is unlikely to stifle it entirely — when she answers questions from the audience.

Miss Bailey, who has sung several times at the Reagan White House, will end the luncheon "on a real rousing, inspirational note," Mrs. Tate said.

On Wednesday night, delegates in the convention hall will see the "Salute to the First Lady," a video-taped tribute to Mrs. Reagan, featuring scenes from her childhood, her travels with the president and her work against drug and alcohol abuse by teen-agers. The three major TV networks had not decided by late Tuesday whether to show the tape.

Ten teen-age members of Cenikor, a Dallas-area drug treatment center, have been invited to sit in Mrs. Reagan's box in the convention hall for the tribute and the later state-by-state balloting on the president's renomination.

Mrs. Reagan's new activism, centered around her drug work and efforts for the Foster Grandparents program, has helped her conquer a fear of speaking in public. She hired her own speech writer and began making solo trips around the country.

She will make one such swing on behalf of drug treatment in the days immediately after the Dallas convention.

"The more I've heard, the more deeply I feel about drug abuse, and the more I want to do what I can to solve this problem," Mrs. Reagan said through her press secretary.

Her current image is in sharp relief to the earliest perceptions of the first lady. Critics dubbed her "Queen Nancy," which translated to a postcard caricature of Mrs. Reagan in a crown and ermine robes. Another popular postcard treatment was called "Nancita" and showed Mrs. Reagan's face atop the upstretched arms and torso of "Evita," Broadway's version of Evita Peron, the imperious wife of an Argentine ruler.

In those first months of her husband's administration, Mrs. Reagan had no identifiable public role. News stories dealt with her having kept "a tiny little gun" in a bedside drawer, accepting thousands of dollars worth of free designer gowns and deciding the White House needed new china — 220 place settings at a cost of $209,508 in donated money.

She also spent $730,000 in tax-exempt donations to refurbish the family living quarters in the White House.

"Nancy Reagan has, in her first nine months in the White House, become identified with spending money," The New York Times said in an October 1981 profile.

But she gained public sympathy after the March 30, 1981, assassination attempt on the president by John W. Hinckley Jr. Today she says she has put aside her worry for her husband because "you have to come to the decision that you can't live with fear."

Mrs. Reagan said earlier this year that she expected her husband's re-election campaign to be "tough, real tough," but that he was "the best man for the job."

At the convention, Mrs. Tate said, the first lady's primary role would be "to support the candidacy of her husband."

"It's a chance for the delegates to meet her and see her," she said.

Reagan Daughter, Son Air Opinions

DALLAS (AP) — President Reagan's oldest daughter, Maureen, and son Ronald say they'll cheer the renomination of their father as loudly as anyone, but they're raising their voices, too, over disagreements with him on women's rights.

Maureen Reagan, a California delegate, shouted "no" when the Republican National Convention voted Tuesday night for a platform which ignored the proposed Equal Rights Amendment. Her father opposes the ERA.

And Ronald Prescott Reagan, in his convention-week column for The Dallas Morning News, wrote that he was "proud to have a sister on the cutting edge of the Republican Party's enlightenment concerning women's issues."

"There is a long way to go, to be sure, but Maureen thinks the party is moving in her direction," the younger Reagan wrote. "I hope so."

Ron said that all the Reagan children, including Michael and Patti Davis Brillely, are "normal people" who can be "cranky, fractious and contrary," when they disagree with their father. Patti, who has disagreed with her father over arms control, was on her honeymoon at an undisclosed location. Michael also skipped the convention.

In Ron's column on Tuesday, he quoted Maureen as saying that those who kept the ERA out of the Republican platform are "simple minded" and "not too politically bright."

Ron said ignoring the ERA is "a political blunder" for the GOP.

The president's older daughter repeated her views after her vote Tuesday night, telling reporters she could not support the Republican platform because party conservatives had refused to compromise on women's issues.

She told NBC-TV it was not a hard decision to make because "I have a pretty good intestinal track and I know when I'm doing the right thing."

And she said she had shouted out her dissent in the voice vote on the platform "on behalf of a lot of elected women."

"There were some things I did like in it," she said, but it was impossible to vote on those things separately.

Ms. Reagan, a paid consultant to the Republican National Committee on women's issues, said she believes the system of writing a platform for an incumbent president is "totally antiquated."

"We run on the record of this administration, the Reagan-Bush administration," she said. "We don't need 106 people to come and tell us what they've been doing all these years."

In his column, Ronald P. Reagan said the so-called gender gap can cause trouble for Republicans this year because "the vast majority of women disagree with the Republican leadership on a whole raft of social issues, most notably ERA and freedom of choice regarding abortion."

"As far as they're concerned, the party of Susan B. Anthony has become the party of Phyllis Schlafly," Reagan said, referring to the early suffragette and the prominent ERA opponent.

Cruise Ship Fire May Bring Changes In Maritime Rules

MIAMI (AP) — An investigation into a cruise ship line's second major fire in six months, a smoky blaze that killed two people and injured 31 others, could lead to stronger maritime safety rules, a Coast Guard official says.

"It's too early to say" if Scandinavian World Cruises was at fault in the latest blaze, which came at the end of a daylong gambling trip, Coast Guard Lt. Jim Simpson said Tuesday.

Investigators will look at what caused the fire, how quickly it was reported, how it was fought, how safety equipment functioned, whether the ship's construction hurt firefighting efforts and how crew and passengers reacted, Simpson said.

The smoke "is something that they're going to have to look at very critically," especially whether the ventilation system automatically closed air ducts to prevent smoke from billowing through the ship, Simpson said.

"Investigations like this have resulted in rule changes for ships in the past," he said.

The fire was the third since October 1982 for the Bahamas-registered Scandinavian Sun. The other two fires were minor, according to Coast Guard records.

The Sun's sister ship, the Scandinavian Sea, burned for two days in March at Port Canaveral. Several people were treated for smoke inhalation and much of the ship was gutted.

The probe by representatives of the Coast Guard's Miami marine safety office, the National Transportation Safety Board and Coast Guard headquarters in Washington, D.C., is not so much "to point a finger, but to improve safety in ships," Simpson said.

"Cruise ships are as safe as the present international rules ... can make them," he said. "Now that's not to say there's not room for improvement."

Fire aboard the blue-and-white liner carrying 537 passengers and a crew of 201 people was reported at 11:17 p.m. Monday, but Miami Fire Chief Kenneth McCullough said Tuesday that "as best as we can put together" the fire began about 11 p.m. as the ship docked.

The Coast Guard wants to know why it was not notified until 11:54 p.m., when a bridge tender called, Simpson said.

The bodies of Colleen Skantar, a 24-year-old music teacher from Greenacres City escorting children on a church outing, and a Jamaican crewman, whose identity was withheld pending notification of relatives, were found on the vessel shortly after 1 p.m. Tuesday, officials said.

The injured, all adults, were treated, mostly for smoke inhalation, and released from area hospitals.

L. Michael Zacchilli, cruise line executive vice president, said a "small fire" broke out in an auxiliary engine room as the 441-foot liner was returning from its "cruise to nowhere."

"Smoke immediately began coming through the decks and passageways of the staircases and engulfed the midsection of the ship," Zacchilli said.

Dispute Over Gun Leaves Officer Dead

CAMBRIDGE, Ohio (AP) — A man who wanted his gun back killed one police officer and seriously wounded another, then kept up a running gun battle with lawmen during a 60-mile, high-speed chase until he was wounded and captured, authorities said.

The man who was facing a weapons charge walked into the Cambridge police station Tuesday night to get back a gun that police had confiscated, Wheeling, W.Va., Police Chief Ed Weith said.

The officers were shot in the station parking lot about 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, police said.

Police chased the man for 60 miles east on Interstate 70, where officers said his car was brought to a halt in West Virginia when the gunman was wounded in the shoulder.

"I'm not sure how the stop happened, whether the gas tank was shot out or the tires were shot out, but the car was pretty shot up and that stopped him," Weith said.

Weith identified the man as Donald M. Glenn, 29, of Guernsey County. He was listed in serious condition today at Ohio Valley Medical Center with three gunshot wounds.

Cambridge officials were withholding further details until a news conference today, Cambridge police Lt. Robert McCoy said.

No charges had been filed against Glenn by Tuesday evening, but Weith said: "We have been advised through teletype that there will be a warrant in the morning for aggravated murder."

Base Left Undamaged

HONOLULU (AP) — A special Army team found no damage on a hurricane-swept Pacific atoll where 13,000 tons of chemical weapons are stored, and 370 evacuated workers were expected to return to the island Thursday.

A 24-member survey team landed on Johnston Atoll and found no significant visible wind or water damage Tuesday, said Maj. Terry McCann, a spokesman for the U.S. Pacific Command.

The survey team remained on the island, and a team of 74 will be flown in today to restart essential services, McCann said, adding that the remaining evacuees will be returned on Thursday.

Workers tested the toxic stockpiles with special monitoring devices to determine whether any of the substances had leaked, but there were no reports of leaks.

The 370 military and civilian inhabitants of the island left Sunday night because Hurricane Keli, packing winds of 100 miles per hour, was heading toward the atoll.

The storm passed within 72 miles of the facility, where more than 13,000 tons of active and obsolete chemical weapons, including the nerve agents GB and VX, are stored in underground bunkers.

The hurricane has since been downgraded to a tropical depression. It carried winds Tuesday of only 35 miles per hour and was losing strength rapidly, the National Weather Service said.

Military officials were not concerned about the security of the atoll during the 48-hour period it was abandoned.

The atoll, 715 miles southwest of Honolulu, is a series of small, flat islands with a land mass of 625 acres.

The slain officer was identified as Lt. Jerry Dragosin, 34, a Cambridge native and police officer since 1972. Sgt. Eugene Woody, 38, who was off-duty at the time, was in guarded condition today at Guernsey Memorial Hospital with multiple gunshot wounds.

The suspect was pursued by Ohio troopers into West Virginia and through a partial roadblock, Weith said. Police said shots were fired during the chase.

"With all the traffic going through there we couldn't block it off entirely, so he scooted through there," Weith said.

At 8:20 p.m., the suspect was apprehended on I-70 just west of the West Virginia State Police barracks in Elm Grove.

South Africans Vote For Third Parliament Chamber

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — South Africa today held its first election for a non-white chamber of Parliament, but opponents appealed for a boycott to protest the white minority's continued political domination.

About 907,000 voters of mixed race were eligible to cast ballots today. Boycott organizers predicted a low turnout of about 15 percent that they said would discredit the new three-chamber Parliament, which will exclude blacks entirely and continue to be controlled by whites.

In Johannesburg, groups urging a boycott said six more of their members were detained by police, raising the two-day total of arrests to 41.

At Rhodes University in Grahamstown, witnesses said police arrested 18 students, including the president of the Student Representative Council, who had gathered with a single placard to protest the elections.

Louis le Grange, the minister of law and order, issued a statement saying the arrests were made because of the "revolutionary climate and situation of unrest in certain parts of the country." The statement did not list those detained. Leaders of the Labor Party, expected to win most of the 80 seats at stake today, predicted a 40 percent turnout. Government sources have said they would be satisfied with as little as a 20 percent turnout.

Another election next week will pick a 40-seat chamber for the 850,000 South Africans of Indian descent.

But a third legislative chamber for whites will retain an effective veto over the actions of the two non-white chambers and could govern even if the others walk out.

South Africa's 22 million blacks will remain without the right to vote, own land or move about freely.

Opponents of the election say the new system entrenches white-minority rule, known as apartheid, by enlisting the support of the Indian and mixed-race communities against the blacks without actually giving them full rights.

Conservatives have accused Prime Minister Pieter W. Botha's government of selling out the interests of the country's 5 million whites.

In western Cape Province, home to many of South Africa's 2.7 million

"coloreds" — as people of mixed race are officially classified — voting appeared slow when booths opened at 7 a.m. It also was slow in townships around Johannesburg.

At the Ravensmead community hall in one of the poorer townships, about 150 of the 11,000 registered voters cast ballots in the first hour.

Labor Party candidate John Christians' home in Ravensmead was damaged by two gasoline bombs during the night. The bombs started a fire in an enclosed porch that Christians used as an office, destroying files and furniture.

"I think this will make more people come out and vote for me," Christians said through a broken window on the porch. He said he blamed boycotters for the attack.

Asked why mixed-race voters should endorse for a system that offers them little control over their lives, Christians replied: "The people believe it's a starting point to better themselves, instead of having nothing."

At the polling station down the street, one woman who refused to give her name said: "It's for my children's future."

Boycott leaders say they have the same motivation.

"The constitution is an attempt by the white South African government to seek credibility and extend its life," said Trevor Manuel, Western Cape secretary of the United Democratic Front, a multi-racial coalition opposed to apartheid.

Police detained 35 front members Monday night and early Tuesday without explanation. Le Grange said earlier that the front planned to disrupt voting and encourage school boycotts as part of a larger campaign to stir up opposition to the government.

The front has denied intimidating voters and has charged "gross irregularities" in voter lists and the casting of absentee ballots.

There are 207 candidates from four parties and 33 independents running for the 80 seats. The Labor Party is expected to finish far ahead of the People's Congress Party, the Freedom Party and the Reformed Freedom Party.

Polls close at 9 p.m. (2 p.m. EDT), and the first results are expected about three hours later.

Under the new system, approved by white voters last November, most questions affecting only a particular racial group will be decided by that group's chamber.

Cease-Fire in Tripoli Falls As Moslem Militias Battle

TRIPOLI, Lebanon (AP) — Artillery duels between rival Moslem militias rocked residential neighborhoods in this Syrian-controlled city today as a cease-fire collapsed and police raised the three-day casualty toll to at least 79 dead and 230 wounded.

The state radio said a 19-hour cease-fire between pro-Syrian and anti-Syrian militias broke down late in the morning, and "almost all residential neighborhoods in the city are under random bombardment."

The broadcast said Dr. Samir Kabbara, chief of north Lebanon's medical department, ordered all hospitals to brace for an influx of casualties and issued appeals for blood donations of all types.

In Beirut, meanwhile, the Cabinet convened today for a session that was expected to deal with Israel's occupation of south Lebanon.

Local radio stations said the government was expected to seek U.N. Security Council action against what Prime Minister Rashid Karami described as Israel's "repressive measures" in the southern third of the country, which it has occupied since its June 1982 invasion to drive out Palestinian guerrillas.

In announcing the latest casualty figures in Tripoli, police said the toll was expected to climb when civil defense and Red Cross teams finished a check of bombed-out buildings. The Beirut newspaper

An-Nahar said the toll in the port city of a half-million people had already surpassed 90 dead and 300 wounded.

One Red Cross source said the large majority of the casualties were civilians.

The hostilities have pitted the Syrian-backed Arabian Knights militia against the fundamentalist Islamic Unification movement in a struggle for local dominance.

Beirut newspapers said two Sunni Moslem groups, the Mosques Committee and the Islamic Committee, have joined forces with Islamic Unification in the fighting against the predominantly Alawite pro-Syrian militia.

The Sunnis control most of Tripoli, which is 50 miles north of Beirut. The Alawites, a minority offshoot of Islam, are concentrated mainly in one Tripoli neighborhood.

In reporting on today's Cabinet meeting, Beirut radio stations said the government might give the army the green light to reopen the Beirut-Damascus international highway to help expedite a stalled security plan aimed at extending government authority to the central Lebanese mountains.

Pakistani Village Hit By Afghan Gunfire

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Afghan troops shelled a Pakistani village, killing three Afghan refugees and raising the reported death toll in a week of border incidents to 52, a Pakistani official said today.

The artillery barrage about midday Tuesday also injured five Afghans at Teri Mangal, near the town of Parachinar, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said.

Initial reports had said at least two persons were killed in the shelling. The spokesman, who insisted on anonymity, said Pakistan would strongly protest the attack, as it has five other alleged border attacks since Aug. 13.

Teri Mangal is reportedly a haven for Afghan rebels who are battling the Marxist government and the Soviet troops supporting it.

"Frankly, I'm amazed it hasn't been hit before," said a Western diplomat, speaking on condition of anonymity. He said the village is just across the border from an Afghan army garrison which has been under a guerrilla siege for five weeks.

Mexican Imports

RAMOS ARIZPE, Mexico (AP) — A two-tone gray Chevrolet El Camino rolled off the General Motors assembly line here this week, the first Mexican-made vehicle in the company's history intended for the U.S. market.

Chrysler already is shipping cars north across the Rio Grande, and the Ford Motor Co. has announced plans to do the same.

John McCormack, GM vice president in charge of Latin America and South Africa, said the trend is tied to the recovery of the U.S. auto market. American companies, he said, are using Mexican facilities to meet a growing demand in the United States.

The El Camino, a car-pickup combination, had been produced by GM in Arlington, Texas. It now will be produced solely by the company's 4-year-old plant in Ramos Arizpe, just outside Saltillo in the northeastern state of Coahuila.

do as well as this group did this year."

Barnhill said the senator and representatives "served with dedication ... served the people of Pitt County well." He added that White, with 16 years service, "will be hard to replace."

In expressing his appreciation, Russell said the legislators helped secure a $6 million operating budget for PCC as well as $500,000 in capital outlay money to help fund construction of a new building at the school.

Persinger said the lawmakers did "a tremendous job," while Collins, who said Falkland is "the smallest incorporated town in North Carolina," expressed thanks "for what time they have given us."

Hemingway, who said Bethel was separated from the rest of the county when it was placed in the 6th House District, said Gillam "served us extremely well," was very attentive to us, and "we sincerely appreciate the dignity with which (he) went about representing Bethel and Pitt County as a whole."

Hemingway also said Warren and Jones did "a tremendous job" representing Bethel as well.

Mrs. Buck, saying White and the House members have represented the county well, suggested "what helps Pitt County helps Greenville ... what helps East Carolina (University) helps Greenville."

She added that the county "has the finest representatives in the state. I think they represent the finest county in the state."

Responding to the comments, White said "I appreciate the recognition," and said "it has been a distinct pleasure serving ..."

Gillam said "I am looking forward to many years of service to all of you."

The luncheon was attended by 110 people.

Salesman Charged On Tax Counts

Clyde P. Owens, 51, of 1711 Treemont Drive, was arrested in Kinston Tuesday on charges involving the failure to pay state and county taxes.

The indictments, handed down by a Pitt County Grand Jury on Monday, allege that a business which Owens was president of sold merchandise on which his company collected sales tax that was not paid to the state, and withheld taxes from employees' wages that were not forwarded to the state.

Owens, a salesman for a Kinston office supply firm, was president of Detail Data Services Inc. at 2719 E. 10th St. until it closed recently.

Greenville police officials met with wrecker operators Tuesday afternoon to review procedures used by the department for calling wreckers and to hear suggestions for improvements in the system.

Chief Ted Holmes told the 17 operators that "it is important for us that we all get together. We're going to be towing a lot of cars next week ... now that school has started."

Holmes, who said there are 21 wreckers on the department's list, reviewed the rotation system, fee schedule, storage of cars and the procedure for the release of stored vehicles.

The chief said while officers will be issuing warning tickets and parking tickets this week to cars illegally parked in the area around

East Carolina University, drivers next week can expect their illegally parked cars to be towed away.

A number of the wrecker operators raised questions about the towing fee, which is regulated by city ordinance, for vehicles the police department has towed.

Assistant City Attorney Mac McCauley said the present base fees — $25 during the day and $30 at night, which is paid by the vehicle owner — can be increased only by a change in the city ordinance.

In addition to an increase in towing charges, to $35 during the day and $40 at night, wrecker operators suggested the $2 per day storage fee be increased to $3 a day, with the maximum storage charge raised from the present $25 a month to $40 a month.

said he was spraying a soybean field with the insecticide Lannate when the accident occurred. Authorities initially blocked off the crash area to prevent any unnecessary contact with the insecticide.

"There wasn't a problem with the poison," he said. "I was about empty," estimating that there was about 30 gallons of the chemical left in the plane's tank. "I had no trouble getting out," Slaughter said. "I got out after it hit ... at the edge of the field."

Slaughter, who had been spraying a field near the Raynor-Forbes & Clark tobacco warehouse on Dickinson Avenue earlier, praised rescue workers for their quick response.

"The rescue people did a super job," he said. "They were there really quick. I'd like to thank them."

Slaughter said the Piper Pawnee plane, valued at $15,000 to $18,000, was destroyed.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pushed ahead today, extending Tuesday's strong advance.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 2.10 to 1,241.83 in the first half hour.

Gainers outnumbered losers by almost 2 to 1 among New York Exchange-listed issues.

Investors got new evidence this morning that the economy was maintaining healthy growth rate without any substantial increase in inflation.

The Commerce Department reported that new orders for durable goods increased 2.2 percent in July.

Meanwhile, the Labor Department said the consumer price index rose 0.3 percent in the same month, setting a 3.5 percent annual pace after com-pounding.

Midcon led the active list in the early going, down 1/4 at 37. A 433,800-share block traded at 37.

Gainers among the blue chips included General Motors, up 3/8 at 76 1/2; General Electric, up 1/4 at 58 3/4, and International Business Machines, up 1/8 at 126.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average jumped 22.75 to 1,239.73.

Hospital Records Busiest Month

July was the busiest month in the history of the hospital, Pitt County Memorial Hospital trustees were told Tuesday night, with 13,656 patient days registered.

Census has been down lately but is picking up, a PCMH spokesman said, as new services, including a cardiac surgery program, have been instituted.

A certificate of need application has been submitted to the state for PCMH to have helicopter services, it was reported. Approval or disapproval should come in late October, at which time a contract can be signed. If all goes well, the service could be in operation in late January or early February, the board was told.

Approval was given for the purchase of an electroencephalograph for special medical services at $16,080 and two air compressors for plant operations at $7,000.

Trustees were invited to spend time with the administrative staff whenever they can to learn more about the day-to-day operation of the hospital. Some trustees have already done this, PCMH Vice President Fred Brown reported.

Dr. William Laupus, dean of the East Carolina University School of Medicine, said two people are being interviewed for the Rehabilitation Center medical director's position. He credited Debbie Davis, administrator of the rehab center, with keeping the center running smoothly without a medical director.

Provisional medical staff privileges were approved for the following physicians: Randolph Chitwood and Paul Cunningham in surgery; Susan Downer Foreman in pediatric medicine; Ronald Fisher and John Diamond in psychiatric medicine; Raphael Sanchez, Michael Vernon, Ellen Temple Brubeck, Jeanne S. Beretta, and Stephen Willis in family medicine (Vernon, Brubeck, Beretta and Willis also have Type II OB privileges); James G. Peden, Richard W. Croskey, Harry Glenn Adams, Francis McCusker, John Holter and Richard Rumley in internal medicine; Michael Kodroff in radiology; Paul Biddinger in pathology and diagnostic medicine; Bruce Wilhelmsen in orthopedic surgery, and Richard Kazior in obstetrics and gynecology.

Sentence Reimposed

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Ruling that opponents of the death penalty may be excluded from capital murder juries, a federal appeals court today reimposed the death sentence on North Carolina convicted murderer Larry Darnell Williams.

The decision from the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals also upheld the murder convictions and life sentences of Charles Bruce Keeten and Bernard Avery.

U.S. District Judge James McMillan had overturned the three convictions on the grounds that excluding death penalty opponents from juries hearing capital murder cases was unconstitutional.

Keeten, Avery and Williams had produced studies they said showed that excluding death penalty opponents left a jury more prone to conviction.

They also said that violated the Sixth Amendment guarantee of having a jury representing a fair cross-section of the community.

And they argued that their studies justified the need for having one jury decide guilt or innocence — a jury that could include death penalty opponents — and a separate panel that could not to decide the penalty.

In North Carolina, the same jury decides the verdict and then chooses

USFL Considers Changing Format

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, AUGUST 22, 1984

CHICAGO (AP) — United States Football League owners are meeting today and Thursday to consider shifting the 2-year-old spring league to the fall and to mull over a series of changes that could involve the consolidation or merger of several teams.

Donald Trump, owner of the New Jersey Generals, said he will propose that the league switch at least partially to a fall schedule in 1986. League operations director Peter Hadzazy said he expects ratification by the USFL's 18 owners, two-thirds of whom must support the move.

But nothing is really set. "The Democrats may be more united than the USFL at this point," says Myles Tanenbaum of the league-champion Philadelphia Stars, one of six remaining original USFL owners and a firm advocate of spring football.

USFL owners may also have to deal with the consolidation of a league that began in 1983 with 12 teams and expanded to its present 18 for 1984. There were reports Tuesday that the Oklahoma Outlaws, who already have abandoned Tulsa's Skelly Stadium, will merge with the Oakland Invaders and that other teams might also consolidate.

"We have not necessarily strengthened the league by going from 12 to 18 teams," said Oakland's Ted Tabue, another original USFL owner.

The spring-fall debate has been intensified by a league survey of 3,000 fans. USFL sources say it showed that 65 percent of those asked preferred that the league remain in the spring.

But proponents of the fall move, led by Trump and Eddie Einhorn, owner of the new Chicago USFL team and of baseball's Chicago White Sox, maintain that the survey showed such general enthusiasm for professional football that the USFL could make a go of it against the old, established National Football League.

They maintain that the spring television audience, which tends to desert the tube as the weather gets warmer, will never be large enough to support the league.

Trump on Tuesday denied a report that the USFL club was considering a move to New York's Shea Stadium if league owners decided to switch from a spring to fall schedule in 1986.

"The New Jersey Generals have a strong desire to remain the New Jersey Generals and play in the Meadowlands," Trump said in a statement issued by the club.

"I will shortly be advising the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority to make room (in the fall) for the only team that is truly a New Jersey team and proud to call itself that," said Trump.

Throughout its two years of existence, particularly in the aftermath of the signings of stars like Herschel Walker and Steve Young, the USFL has continually maintained that its future is bright.

But in the second half of this season, serious financial trouble developed in three of the league's major markets — Washington, Chicago and Los Angeles.

The Washington franchise was sold to Florida real estate developer Sherwood Weiser and moved operations to Miami. Chicago was taken over by the league and an expansion franchise eventually granted there to Einhorn. Los Angeles, which paid the most money for the most college stars, has effectively been taken over by the league after the collapse of owner J. William Oldenburg's financial empire.

Also, ratings of ABC's USFL Game of the Week fell about 8 percent over last year and, despite strenuous efforts to raise the ante by USFL owners, ABC will pay it only $15 million next year. Even with a new $70 million, three-year package from ESPN, that means only about $2 million per year per team, compared to the nearly $15 million each NFL team gets from the networks.

This year's USFL losses are estimated at more than $30 million, with Los Angeles, which drew fewer than 8,000 fans to the Coliseum for a playoff game, reportedly losing more than $10 million. As a result, owners want to stop the high spending that brought the league stars and reaped a huge publicity haul last winter.

Eastern Bloc Posts Seven World Records In Games

MOSCOW (AP) — After five days of competition at the Friendship '84 Games in Moscow, Eastern bloc nations have established seven world records and posted 35 performances that would have won medals at the Olympic Games.

And there are surely more to come.

Vladimir Salnikov, the world's best middle and long distance swimmer who would have been one of the Soviet Union's surest bets for Olympic gold at Los Angeles, does not take to the pool until Thursday.

The triple freestyle world-record holder is said to be at peak form after months of preparation for the Olympics, which he didn't attend because of the Soviet boycott.

But his fans will have to wait a little longer to see whether the 24-year-old master of sport from Leningrad can add to his country's tally of world marks.

While the swimmers have an off day today, most of the action centers on the cycling track in the Moscow suburb of Krylatskoye, where three finals take place, including the eagerly awaited confrontation in the sprint between Sergei Kopylov of the Soviet Union and his East German rival Lutz Heschlich.

Each is a two-time world champion. Heschlich won the Olympic gold in 1980 and each has swept all opposition aside this week.

The other finals are the 4,000-meter team pursuit and the 50-kilometer group race.

Tuesday's cycling highlights were the world indoor records set by the Soviet Union in the 4,000-meter team pursuit race with a time of 4 minutes, 14.26 seconds and Nadezhda Kibardina, also of the host nation, in the 3,000 meters for women in 3:58.025.

A total of nine swimmers posted times Tuesday that would have won medals at Los Angeles as the East-bloc sports powers enjoyed their most successful day in the pool as well as at the Krylatskoye Cycling Oval.

Sergei Zabolotnov snatched the 200-meter backstroke world mark from American Olympic champion Rick Carey, clocking 1:58.41. Carey's previous record was 1:58.86.

His time would have assured Zabolotnov a gold medal at the Olympics, had the Soviet Union and its allies not boycotted the Los Angeles Games. Carey's winning time at Los Angeles was 2:00.23.

Vladimir Shemetov, who placed second behind Zabolotnov in 1:59.54, also eclipsed Carey's gold-medal time at the Olympics.

The second swimming world record was set by the East German women's 400-meter freestyle relay team in the event final.

Kristin Otto, Karin Konig, Heike Friedrich and Birgit Meineke won in 3:42.41, bettering their old mark of 3:42.71 set at the 1980 Moscow Olympics in the same pool.

The Soviet Union finished second in Tuesday's race, clocking 3:44.31, which was .09 seconds faster than the Dutch team that won a silver medal at Los Angeles.

Williams Out With Hip Injury

Senior Henry Williams injured his hip Tuesday night as the East Carolina University Pirates continued preparation for their opener against Florida State Sept. 1.

Williams, the nation's number one kick returner in 1983 (31.1 yard average), suffered a hip pointer and will be sidelined for up to three days.

Williams watched the second half of the workout from the sidelines but will be ready for Florida State.

Offensive guard Rich Autry injured his left shoulder and was to be examined this morning. The extent of the injury is not known.

Pennant Race Keeps Cubs Charged

By The Associated Press

The iron man of the Chicago Cubs is beginning to show a little wear around the edges, but he wouldn't have it any other way.

"There are some days when I am tired," admits catcher Jody Davis, "but the excitement of winning and being in the pennant race has everybody up. Every day we are playing before thirty-thousand people."

The Cubs, again playing well before their adoring daytime crowd, ripped Houston 11-5 on Tuesday, with Davis supplying four of the runs with a bases-loaded single and a two-run home run, his 18th.

The outburst gave Davis 82 RBIs, second in the league behind another every-day catcher, Montreal's Gary Carter, who has 88.

The victory, Chicago's fourth in a row, swelled the Cubs' lead in the National League East to five games over the fading New York Mets, 7-4 losers at San Diego.

In other NL games, Pittsburgh nipped Atlanta 5-4, Cincinnati stopped St. Louis 4-1, Los Angeles got by Montreal 4-3, and Philadelphia scored 10 times in the eighth to overcome San Francisco 12-5.

Davis, who has sat out only six of Chicago's 125 games, was mired in a 1-for-17 slump when he came up with the bases loaded in the third inning.

"I've been struggling... That single when it meant something was the big hit, and set the stage for the home run," he said. "I knew I looked bad when I struck out (in the first), but my frustrations ended when I got the single in a big situation."

Davis' single, which followed a run-scoring hit by Gary Matthews, gave the Cubs a 5-1 lead. The duo struck again in the fifth when Matthews hit a solo homer and Davis a two-run shot to settle the issue.

Dennis Eckersley, 7-7, allowed only one run over seven innings for the victory. Mike Scott, 5-11, took the loss, despite home run support from Bill Doran, Jose Cruz and Jerry Humphrey.

Padres 7, Mets 4

Graig Nettles stroked three hits, including his 18th homer, and Tony Gwynn raised his league-leading batting average to .361 with three hits and two RBIs for San Diego.

Nettles doubled and scored in the second, hit his sixth homer in five games in the sixth, and singled in a run in the seventh. Gwynn drove in a run in the third with a grounder and singled in another run in the seventh.

Tim Flannery hit his second homer of the season in support of Tim Lollar, 10-10, who went 5 1-3 innings. Craig Lefferts pitched 3 1-3 innings before surrendering two runs in the ninth. Rich Gossage recorded the final out for his 24th save.

Ed Lynch, 8-8, took the loss.

Pirates 5, Braves 4

Marvell Wynne slapped a bases-loaded single with one out in the ninth inning to cap Pittsburgh's comeback. The Braves led 4-3 after Dale Murphy hit his league-leading 28th homer, a three-run shot off Pittsburgh starter John Tudor in the sixth. The Pirates tied the game in the seventh on a two-out single by Lee Lacy against Braves reliever Jeff Dedmon, 3-2.

In the ninth, Denny Gonzalez doubled and went to third on Doug Frobel's sacrifice bunt. Gene Garber came out of the Atlanta bullpen to intentionally walk Dale Berra and Lee Mazzilli to load the bases before Wynne punched a single into right field.

Don Robinson, 2-5, picked up the win in relief, striking out five of the six Braves he faced.

Clayton Named To ECU Hall Of Fame

Lawrence Howard "Cotton" Clayton, former basketball and baseball player at East Carolina University, will be honored with induction into the school's Sports Hall of Fame during halftime ceremonies of the Sept. 8 home opening football game against Temple University.

Clayton becomes the 43rd member of the 11-year old hall, established in 1974 to honor those individuals who have, by their direct participation in East Carolina University intercollegiate athletics, brought outstanding recognition to themselves and to the university.

During two years of athletic participation from 1959-61, Clayton was named All-America in both baseball and basketball, as well as, All-North State Conference and All-District.

Perhaps baseball was his top sport. Playing for coach Jim Mallory, Clayton led the 1961 Pirate team to the national championship in the NAIA as the team's leading hitter. He played both outfield and third base.

Following graduation, Clayton played in the Baltimore organization for seven years, including AAA ball.

According to a newspaper article in the Raleigh Times, Clayton is credited with being the state's most prolific high school scorer ever in basketball, with 2,750-plus points in four years.

After his pro career ended, Clayton returned to his home in Henderson.

Son Lawrence Jr. graduated from East Carolina in 1983, while Clayton's youngest son, Randy, is a sophomore this year at ECU.

Clemens Strikes Out 15 As Bosox Roll

By The Associated Press
Every so often, a major-league pitcher who has just struck out a bunch of batters is asked whether he was trying to strike out people. And most of the time, the pitcher says he wasn't worried about strikeouts and wasn't thinking about them. Introducing Roger Clemens, a hard-throwing rookie for the Boston Red Sox. "I like to strike people out. I like to do that. It's not going to happen all the time, but if I'm going good and there are real free swingers, I'll go after them," Clemens said after striking out 15 as Boston routed the Kansas City Royals 11-1 Tuesday night. Clemens' strikeout total was the most for a Red Sox pitcher since Bill Monbouquette fanned a team-record 17 Washington batters in 1961.

AAA Pawtucket on May 11. "I threw 85 percent fastballs. They hit a couple of curves that I hung in the first inning. But when I got behind on the count, I came with the fastball." The 22-year-old right-hander allowed seven hits and did not walk a batter. And Kansas City Manager Dick Howser wasn't too thrilled with what the Royals hit. "It was too quick," Howser said. "Even the hits we got were nothing to be excited about." In other American League games, Detroit hammered Oakland 12-6, New York doubled California 8-2, Cleveland beat Toronto 3-1, Seattle topped Baltimore 4-3, Texas nipped Chicago 4-3 in 10 innings, and Minnesota at Milwaukee was rained out.

After consecutive doubles by Dane Iorg and Jorge Orta staked Kansas City to a 1-0 lead in the top of the first, the Red Sox bats starting doing their damage. Jim Rice cracked a two-run homer, his 23rd of the season and the 299th of his career, in the bottom of the first. Then, Rice singled home two more runs in the second to boost his RBI total for the year to 97 — two behind AL leader Dave Kingman. Tony Armas belted his major league-leading 34th homer during a six-run sixth inning while Clemens was striking out at least one batter in every inning. "Usually when a guy starts out tough, you really don't worry about it because you feel he's going to lose something. But he seemed to get stronger," said Kansas City's Darryl Motley after striking out three times and grounding into a double play. Tigers 12, A's 6 At Tiger Stadium, Lance Parrish crashed a grand-slam homer in the first inning and Darrell Evans hit a three-run blast followed by Larry Herndon's solo shot during a six-run sixth.

Parrish's fourth career slam and 29th homer of the season came after Howard Johnson opened the Detroit first with a walk and Alan Trammell and Kirk Gibson singled. Milt Wilcox upped his record to 14-7, his career-high in victories. The right-hander, who has had shoulder problems, went six innings. He has not completed any of his 27 starts. Rickey Henderson led off the game with his 13th homer for Oakland. Carney Lansford of the A's extended his hitting streak to 24 games, tying Hubie Brooks of the New York Mets for the longest string in the majors this year. Trammell had three hits and boosted his current hitting streak to 19 games. Rangers 4, White Sox 3 Alan Bannister, who played parts of five seasons with Chicago, continued to haunt his former teammates. Bannister delivered a pinch-single with two outs in the bottom of the 10th inning, driving in Larry Parrish from second base to lift host Texas. Bannister has hit .349 against the White Sox since being traded away in 1980. Greg Luzinski's single put Chicago ahead 3-2 in the top of the eighth before Marv Foley's first home run since May 12 tied it in the bottom half of the inning. Indians 3, Blue Jays 1 Cleveland ran its winning streak to seven games, its longest victory string in two years, thanks to Jerry Willard. Willard belted a two-out, two-run homer in the top of the ninth inning in Toronto to lift the Indians. The homer came off Dave Stieb, 12-5, who has not won since July 29. Roy Smith, 5-4, gave up five hits over the first eight innings and Ernie Camacho pitched the final inning for his 17th save. Yankees 8, Angels 2 Phil Niekro won the 283rd game of his career and raised his record this season to 15-7 by going seven innings and yielding five hits in sending California to its seventh straight loss. New York has won four straight games, scoring 33 runs over that span. Mike Pagliarulo and Bobby Meacham had three hits apiece to lead a 14-hit Yankee assault against the visiting Angels. Meacham's first major-league homer highlighted a three-run uprising in the third inning that put the Yankees ahead to stay. Mariners 4, Orioles 3 Jack Perconte entered the game with three hits in his last 30 at-bats. That quickly changed in Baltimore. Perconte had three doubles and drove in two runs to lead Seattle's 13-hit attack. Loser Storm Davis, 12-7, allowed 12 of those hits as he dropped his third straight game. Salome Barojas, 9-4, got the victory and Edwin Nunez went the final 3 1-3 innings for his third save.

High Tag
Detroit catcher Lance Parrish put the tag on Oakland's Carney Lansford as he tried to make it all the way home on a double by Dave Kingman in the first inning of Tuesday night's game. Parrish came up in the bottom of first and cracked a grand slam for his 29th homer of the season. (AP Laserphoto)

Amritraj Upsets John McEnroe

MASON, Ohio (AP) — India's Vijay Amritraj reached back in time and produced a major tennis upset. Amazingly, the victor was John McEnroe, who lost a match for only the second time this year. While Amritraj was performing miracles Tuesday against the top-seeded McEnroe in the first round of the $375,000 Association of Tennis Professionals tournament, second-seeded Jimmy Connors breezed past Roscoe Tanner 6-1, 6-3, and will meet Mike Bauer this evening in the second round. Amritraj will face fellow Indian Ramesh Krishnan while defending champion Mats Wilander of Sweden plays Australian John Alexander. Argentina's Guillermo Vilas, the seventh seed, is matched against Rodney Harmon after Vilas took three hours and 20 minutes to put down a stubborn Tom Gullickson 7-6, 6-7, 7-6, Tuesday night. McEnroe was beaten 6-7, 6-2, 6-3 by the veteran Amritraj, who admitted playing his best tennis in years. "It brought back memories of when I was 19 and playing Rod Laver in the U.S. Open in 1973," said Amritraj. "After 11 years there's still a little bit left. I thought I served tremendously."

"I also returned his serve well, which I rarely do," said Amritraj. "I think he was a little surprised. He played a tremendous tiebreaker in the first set. But after that, I just put the first set behind me." "You know you're going to play some bad matches," said McEnroe, 59-2 on the year. "Mentally, I did not have the right attitude." "The key thing here is to learn. You should learn by your mistakes," said McEnroe, who argued with officials in the first and last games. His only previous loss this year was in the French Open to Ivan Lendl. "I can't take anything away from him," McEnroe said. "I was surprised at how well he played, particularly on his serve." In other matches Tuesday, Shahar Perkiss of Israel upset fourth-seeded Aaron Krickstein, 7-6, 6-1; and Wilander, the third seed, defeated Fritz Buehning, 6-1, 6-2. Elsewhere, Andy Kohlberg beat Brad Drewett of Australia, 6-3, 4-6, 7-6; John Lloyd of England eliminated Switzerland's Slo Zivojnovic, 6-4, 6-2; Marty Davis beat Sandy Mayer, 1-6, 6-2, 6-3; Peter Fleming defeated Per Hjertquist of Sweden, 6-2, 6-4; and Dan Cassidy trimmed Terry Moor, 6-1, 6-2.

Falcons Lose Leading Rusher

By The Associated Press
William Andrews, one of the most productive running backs in the National Football League, will be lost to the Atlanta Falcons for an indefinite time after surgery, scheduled for today, on his injured knee. Andrews, who has rushed for 5,772 yards in his career, was running in practice Tuesday morning and caught his foot while making a cut. "It looked like William's left knee kinda just dipped," said linebacker Buddy Curry. "The tackle was nothing at all that should cause an injury. The guy just sort of brush-tackled him." Curry said Andrews' knee appeared to buckle just before the tackle. "It looked like a normal thing to me, but then he rolled over and didn't get up," running back coach Steve Crosby said. The Falcons' all-time leading rusher ran for 1,567 yards last season, also a club record, and caught 59 passes for 609 yards. It was the second time in his career he had produced more than 2,000 yards in a season. Another veteran running back, Roosevelt Leaks, looking to start his 10th professional season, was cut by the Buffalo Bills Tuesday as teams trimmed their rosters to 60 players. The teams must reach the final 49-player limit by next Tuesday. Leaks, 31, who played his college ball at the University of Texas, was with the Baltimore Colts of the NFL from 1975 through 1979. He joined the Bills in 1980 and had his best year as a pro in 1982, when he carried 97 times for 405 yards and five touchdowns. A 12-year veteran, Jim Youngblood, was released by the Seattle Seahawks. Youngblood, who played with the Los Angeles Rams through last season, was signed last March as a free agent by the Seahawks. In his 11 seasons with the Rams, he played five seasons under second-year Seahawks' head coach Chuck Knox. In releasing Youngblood, who came into the NFL from Tennessee Tech and played in 147 regular-season games, Knox elected to go with Shelton Robinson, a three-year veteran, at inside linebacker. Former Nebraska All-American running back Jarvis Redwine was among four players cut by the Minnesota Vikings, who also placed veteran place-kicker Benny Ricardo on the injured reserve list. Although Redwine, 27, played in the NFL for three seasons, he had a career total of only 70 yards rushing in 17 carries. Ricardo had been competing with newly-acquired Jan Stenerud and Rick Danmeier for the kicking job. Also cut by the Vikings were running back Rick Bell, defensive back Dana Noel and free-agent linebacker Dwayne Roberts. The Pittsburgh Steelers, after releasing running back Franco Harris Monday, continued their youth movement. They have traded or released 11 veterans since training camp opened. They sent wide receiver Greg Hawthorne the New England Patriots on Tuesday for an undisclosed draft choice.

The Steelers also released third-year tight end John Rodgers and placed defensive end Bob Kohrs, hampered by a knee injury, on the physically unable to perform list. Kohrs is not eligible to come off the list until Oct. 8. Linebacker Stan Blinka, acquired by Denver from the New York Jets after last season, was cut by the Broncos, along with nose tackle George Small, a free agent. Defensive end Rob Swanke was placed on the injured reserve list. Veteran quarterback Jerry Gosteyn and three-year backup offensive lineman Ed Muransky were released by the Los Angeles Raiders, who also cut former Kansas City running back James Hadnot. Also cut were offensive linemen Clint Berry and George Nualiku, wide receiver Gerald Bradley, tight end Kent Jordan, defensive lineman Jeff Chaffin and linebacker Larry McCoy. Wide receiver Jeff Simmons was placed on injured reserve with a knee sprain. The Atlanta Falcons cut seven-year veteran center Mark Slaton while placing rookie defensive back Stan Gay on the injured reserve list. They returned running back Eddie Meyers of the U.S. Naval Academy to the military reserve while cutting seven others to reach the 60-man limit. The Philadelphia Eagles cut nine free agents along with sixth-round draft pick Scott Raridon, a 6-foot-3, 288-pound offensive tackle. Raridon twice walked out of camp. The Green Bay Packers waived veteran defensive end Byron Braggs and placed guard Leotis Harris on the reserve-failed physical list. Harris is eligible to be reactivated on Oct. 8.

Dye, Auburn Set For Kickoff Classic

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — It's down to the countdown for Auburn's Kickoff Classic battle against defending national champion Miami, a team Coach Pat Dye said poses a great threat to his Tiger squad. Dye said in a news conference Tuesday that his players have studied films of Miami since January and "it's not surprising that they were a great team last year." He said Miami has one of the nation's strongest defenses and an experienced offense led by quarterback Bernie Kosar. "We're concerned most about Miami's offense," Dye said. "Eight starters return. Their line returns intact from tackle to tackle. Their wide receivers return. And of course, the quarterback Bernie Kosar returns." "Very seldom did you see people get to Kosar last year. He is a master at reading defenses. He calls a lot of plays at the line to take advantage of the defense." Dye said the Miami offense features two talented wide receivers. "Eddie Brown is a great player. He is as good a wide receiver that we've seen since I've been at Auburn. The excitement begins when he catches the ball. Stanley Shakespeare is also an outstanding receiver," Dye said. The Auburn team leaves Friday for East Rutherford, N.J., and the game will be played Monday at the Meadowlands. Dye said his team has made good progress getting ready for the season-opening contest. "We've scrimmaged a little more than usual. But we've needed to for our quarterbacks, freshmen and redshirts. We've spent time learning the trade. We're right on schedule for Miami," he said. The offense has particularly impressed Dye, with only three turnovers in three full-scale scrimmages. "The backs have handled the ball well," Dye said. "You can't afford to beat yourself offensively." The Auburn coach said that, despite the injury to Pat Washington's shoulder, the quarterback situation looks good. "I really think whoever starts will be fine and whoever comes off the bench will do better," he said.

Soviets Lead Friendship...

stopping the clock after 4:07.66. Her old mark was 4:08.07. Her time was slower than American Tiffany Cohen's winning Olympic time of 4:07.10. But it would have given her the silver medal. Irina Laricheva of the Soviet Union clocked 4:09.70 and also stayed within the 4:10.27 that won Britain's Sarah Harcastle the silver at Los Angeles. In the women's 100-meter backstroke, Ina Kleber of East Germany posted the second-fastest time ever recorded, winning the final in 1:00.99 — more than 1.5 seconds faster than the 1:02.55 that netted American Theresa Andrews the Los Angeles gold medal. Otto was second in the Moscow final in 1:02.02, also faster than Andrews' gold-medal time. In the men's 100-meter freestyle, Sergei Smiryagin won in 50.26 seconds, a time that would have just given him a bronze at the Summer Olympics behind Rowdy Gaines of the United States and Mark Stockwell of Australia. In the yachting competition of the Estonian port of Tallinn, Soviet sailors were leading after four races in three classes, with an East German having the edge in a fourth class. Canadian Reines Couby ran fifth in the windglider competition with 48.7 points. In the Flying Dutchman class, Duncan Lewis, also from Canada, was eighth with 50.4 penalty points. The shooting competition saw the only winner of the day not from East Germany or the Soviet Union. Bulgarian Petar Zaprianov won the small-bore rifle event in the prone position with 599 rings, ahead of Sergei Iyanenko of the Soviet Union with one point less. The trap shooting went to Alexander Asanov of the Soviet Union, who scored 199 pigeons, ahead of East German Jorg Damme with 194 hits. East Germany's Jens Potteck won the air pistol competition with 584 rings, ahead of two Soviet shooters. In Friendship Games competition outside Moscow, Cuba won six semi-final bouts to run its consecutive victory string to 17 in the boxing competition being held in Havana. The most stunning Cuban victory was in the heavyweight class, as Hermenegildo Baez scored a 3-2 decision over Alexandr Yagupkin of the Soviet Union. Yagupkin won the world amateur championship in Munich in 1982. Earlier, the partisan Cuban crowd booed and whistled down a contingent of Soviets in the arena balcony after the Jose Hernandez-Serik Konakbaev welterweight bout. Hernandez won a 4-1 decision. The Soviets won their other three fights against non-Cubans. The Soviet Union won the men's tennis championship at Warsaw, Poland, defeating Czechoslovakia 2-0. Alexander Zvierev whipped Martin Vajda 6-3, 6-0, and Andrei Chesnokov stopped Pavel Vojtisek 6-3, 5-7, 6-3. Olga Mostepanova scored three perfect 10.0s to give Soviet women a big lead over East Germany after team compulsories in the gymnastics competition held in Olomouc, Czechoslovakia. Mostepanova, 16, had perfect scores in the vault, uneven bars and the beam, and added a 9.90 in the floor exercise. The Friendship Games were organized to give Eastern Bloc athletes a chance to compete and possibly improve on Olympic performances. Only a handful of non-boycotting athletes are participating in the Games.

Mechanic Uses Sculpting As Way To Relax

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Jack Korbobo sees sculpting as "a way to relax and get away from this crazy world we're in."

The Chicago native should know. He's employed full time as a mechanic at the Allentown plant of Mack Trucks Inc., and he spends an equal number of hours at his sculpting hobby.

His creativity becomes evident the moment one enters his south Allentown home. Framed ceramic faces on stretched canvas adorn one living room wall; two heads sculpted by Korbobo stand on the opposite side of the room.

Facing the entrance is a star with a lotus flower in its center — the symbol of a California religious group called the Voice of Astara. Next to the star is a colorful butterfly that looks very modern, but was actually created using a century-old technique once employed at a Bucks County tile works.

Korbobo studied sculpture for more than 10 years under Richard Lieberman at the Baum Art School.

Lieberman notes that his former student is "very creative" and has a good sense of humor which, he says, is very important in art. "If he works hard, he'll arrive," Lieberman predicts.

Korbobo didn't set out to be a sculptor, though. What he wanted to do, he says, was create several lanterns for his Japanese garden after he learned that the cost of ready-made ones would run close to $100.

He began studying pottery with Raymond Gallucci and completed not only the lanterns, at a cost of $3.50, but also an unusual interior lamp and numerous other pieces. Two years later, he made the switch to sculpture.

C. Leslie Smith, a long-time friend of Korbobo who sells the artist's work in his store, describes his creations as "refreshing, new and exciting."

"It's been very rewarding to me," Korbobo says of his avocation, looking around the living room and the adjoining dining area, alive with color and texture of his work. Examples of his pottery hang from the exposed beams in the kitchen and line the cabinet tops.

Decorating the wall in another room are the heads of a man and a woman, literally bursting out of stretched canvas. Over the couch in his den is a montage he made casting the faces of several people in potters' plaster.

A sculpture he takes particular pride in is the head of Christ, which he has worked on intermittently for several years. He plans to donate the piece to his church when he's finished.

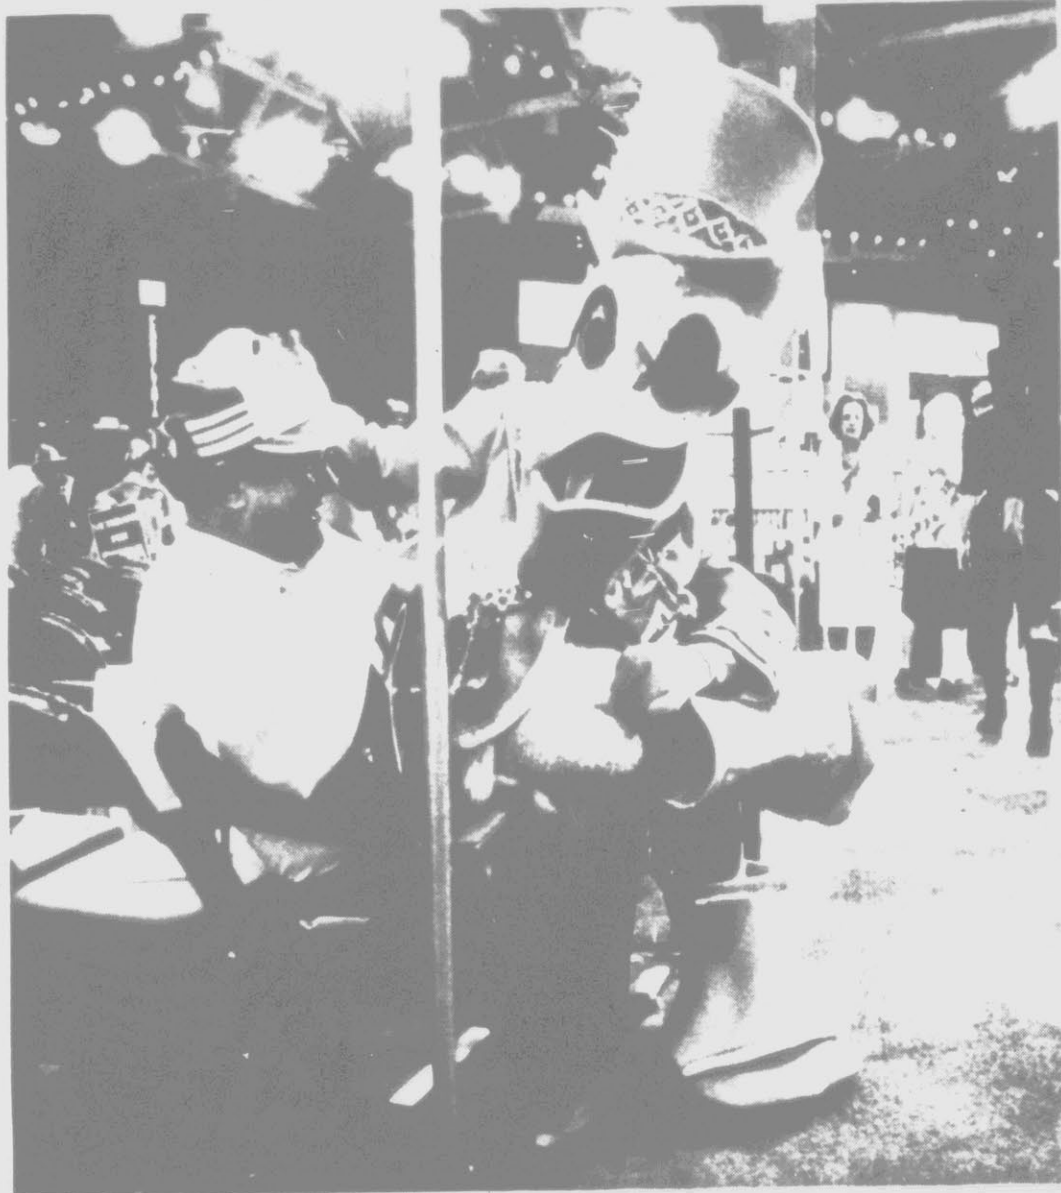

A related sideline for Korbobo is the sculpting of company logos, a venture he says began when William Devaney, president of Stanley Vidmar Inc., ordered more than two dozen of the corporation's honeycomb-and-bee logos from him. Korbobo also has done the logos of the Bank of Pennsylvania and other firms.

Korbobo's attached garage serves as his studio. He works first with a molding compound to create his pieces. From the original sculpture, he makes a mold by coating it with more applications of latex. The finished product is cast in Hydrostone.

At the end of his driveway, Korbobo has an unusual concrete sculpture weighing 3½ tons — the largest he has ever made. A year in the making, the piece — 92 inches at its highest point — was placed there in 1977 and is supported by concrete rods that extend 40 inches into the ground.

Korbobo says he has no favorites among his creations, but admits he hates to part with his pieces. "You become attached to them," he says.

The artist says his hobby will become a full-time occupation after his eventual retirement from Mack. "I'm too ambitious to retire," he says of the prospect of just taking it easy.

Tiny Master Has Know-How About Ocean-Going Vessels

PORT SALERNO, Fla. (AP) — Jennifer Castle would admit she's not an expert on how to prepare a gourmet dinner, but those who know her would never question her ability to teach everything one needs to know about boating.

Only 5 feet tall and tipping the scales at slightly over 100 pounds, this mother of three children is president of Chapman School of Seamanship, an accredited non-military facility that has prepared over 1,000 students from age 17 to 72 for careers in the maritime field.

At 37, Mrs. Castle has earned a U.S. Coast Guard license to operate oceangoing vessels of up to 100 tons, recently moved the school from its previous base several miles away to this coastal site and lacks only a few more credits at Indian River Community College for an associate degree in business administration.

"We place at least 90 percent of our students on yachts, charter and fishing boats after they graduate," she says. "Some of our graduates are now captains, other have returned here as instructors."

A variety of courses — for powerboats or sailboats — is also available at the Chapman School for the boat owner who knows little about maintenance, navigation, rules of the sea and boating in general.

The school, a non-profit institution, had a humble beginning when she and her late husband, Glen D. Castle, taught their first students aboard an old 93-foot Canadian coast guard vessel obtained in Fort Lauderdale from a group of monks who ran out of funds en route to the Dominican Republic.

Charles F. Chapman, a noted authority on boating, lent his name to the school.

Mrs. Castle explains that her husband wanted the school as a way of helping disadvantaged youth — a goal he conceived while in a federal prison.

"Glen was a captain in the U.S. Navy and after he left the service shortly after World War II, he got into trouble with stolen securities.

While in prison, he realized many young people have no direction. He decided to use the knowledge he had to help others," Mrs. Castle explains.

It was after his release that the two met on a lake near her childhood Dallas home. Married at 21, she and her husband went to South Florida in 1968 and for three years hired on as captain and crewman aboard a number of yachts.

Club Helps Newcomers To Trade

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE (AP) — North Carolina businessmen who are unaware of the wide-open possibilities of world trade can seek help with technicalities through organizations like the Metrolina World Trade Club, club officials say.

"It's not so difficult as it is different," club secretary Emma Quinn said of the technicalities of importing and exporting. "There are so many places to get help if a person really wants to get into (world trade). You've got to know the right people to ask."

"We're involved in networking at the trade club. The purpose is to help each other."

The Metrolina World Trade Club, with 200 members, is the largest of seven such clubs around the state. They're all chapters of the North Carolina World Trade Association.

The Charlotte chapter provides members with input from federal and state commerce department officials, ports officials, freight forwarders, bankers, insurers and other exporters and importers, said Ms. Quinn, who is also director of the Small Business Center at Central Piedmont Community College.

It's a good way to learn about the intricacies of international trade, including letters of credit, other financing factors, documentation and the unusual business customs of foreign trading partners, she said.

"For example, in Japan, you have to hand your card with both hands and bow, otherwise it's an insult," she said. "In China, you have to be sure you arrange the seating at a meal or meeting properly."

Speakers at the club's monthly meetings have included former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and the vice president of Pneumafil Corp., who described how his firm landed a huge order for air handling equipment from the People's Republic of China. Experts scheduled to speak in the next few months include state Agriculture Commissioner James Graham and Walter Johnson, a state specialist in Japanese trade.

Even something as elementary as the seasons can be a factor in world trade, said Ms. Quinn. For example, a Charlotte T-shirt salesman discovered that when the demand for shirts falls off in the winter in the northern hemisphere, it's summer south of the equator.

"It's just a matter of being creative," said Ms. Quinn, who also teaches a course on exporting at CPCC. "Marketing is the real secret of success."

Dues at the Metrolina World Trade Club are $30 a year for individuals, $200 for companies that want to send four members and $500 for corporations that want to send 10 members.

Candidate Withdraws

BOLIVIA, N.C. (AP) — The Brunswick County Republican candidate for the 14th District seat in the N.C. House of Representatives has withdrawn from the ballot, leaving a vacancy that party officials are trying to fill.

The Board of Elections learned Monday that John Watkins, who was vying for the chance to represent Brunswick County and one precinct each in Pender and New Hanover counties, had resigned his party's nomination.

It was the third resignation by a Brunswick County Republican candidate in a week.

In his resignation, Watkins said his "job situation right now didn't look good," Mrs. Britt said. She said he "may have to leave the area to seek employment."

Brunswick County Republican party chairman John Dozier said Tuesday that he planned to poll each member of the executive committee to find an opponent for Democratic incumbent David Redwine.

Two other Brunswick Republicans gave up their chance at seats on county boards last week. The executive committee had to find replacements for candidates in the county commissioner's race and for a seat on the county school board.

Probation

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A pastor who said his storefront church needed bingo to survive was placed on three years' probation after pleading guilty to operating the game without a license.

Hennepin District Judge Neil Riley also ordered the Rev. Phillip Snell to pay $1,000 in court costs under a plea-bargain agreement in which two other counts were dismissed.

Snell pleaded guilty three days before trial to a charge of running an unlicensed bingo game at Christus Rex Church on May 26. He could have been sentenced to five years in prison and fined $5,000.

Sanford Vet Will Head National VFW

CHICAGO (AP) — A third-generation soldier becomes the new commander of the Veteran of Foreign Wars this week, marking the first time a Vietnam veteran has been chosen to lead the 2-million-member organization.

Billy Ray Cameron, 40, will begin his duties Friday with a promise that the post will not affect his advocacy of issues with particular importance to Vietnam veterans.

"We've got to continue to tell the public and the government that these (Vietnam) veterans need to be respected," Cameron said in an interview Tuesday. "It's an amazing thing about Americans, we tend to get very complacent."

"I've already testified before various state legislatures and the U.S. Congress about legislative issues that concern the Vietnam vet and I intend to be very vocal in the coming year," the resident of Sanford, N.C., added.

Those issues are always present on Cameron's mind. He still walks with a limp — the result of a leg injury suffered when he stepped on a mine in the war in 1968. He has a rash on his neck and arms that he says his doctors believe was caused by exposure to the chemical defoliant Agent Orange during the war.

He argues veterans exposed to Agent Orange should qualify automatically for disability compensation, recalling with some pain meeting the families of other vets who trace their troubles to the chemical.

But Cameron, who also has served as North Carolina's state VFW commander and has held several executive posts at the national level, has not taken part in any of the damage lawsuits filed over exposure to Agent Orange. His interest in the settlement is limited to his capacity as commander-in-chief of the VFW, he says.

He speaks passionately about the need to resolve questions over those soldiers who went to Vietnam and are thought still to be prisoners of war or missing in action. On his right wrist is a bracelet bearing the name Darrell Johnson, a friend from Rocky Mount, N.C., who has been listed as missing since 1968.

Cameron left North Carolina State in 1966 to enlist in the Marine Corps, and one year later found himself stationed in Vietnam, southwest of Da Nang. In March 1968, he held the rank of corporal and stepped on a "bouncing Betty" while on patrol.

The mine exploded, breaking his right leg in 12 places and severing his middle finger. The finger was reattached, and he still carries some of the fragments from the explosion.

"When I was laying in the hospital (at Travis Air Force Base in San Francisco), I saw people with no arms and no legs, fighting to survive. I had a desire to something then and there. I prayed and asked the Good Lord what I could do," he said. "That's the biggest reason I picked the VFW."

Cameron, whose grandfather served in World War I and his father in World War II, is married and the father of two children. He has taken a one-year leave of absence from his position with the Lee County (N.C.) civil defense agency.

Board Changes Reporting Of Law Tests

RALEIGH (AP) — A change in reporting procedures means North Carolina's law schools will not receive information on their graduates' passing rate on the July bar exam, a benchmark used by schools to measure how well they are training their students.

Instead, the state Board of Law Examiners has decided to send to the schools only a list of all those who passed both the July bar exam and another test on the rules of professional ethics.

The names of those who passed the bar exam, but did not take the ethics test will not be sent to the schools, said Fred Parker, executive director of the board.

John D. Scarlett, dean of the law school at Wake Forest University, said Tuesday he was concerned about the change in the way bar exam results are reported.

"The way they're putting out the data this year, we can't tell what happened," Scarlett said. "It will make it more difficult for us to figure out what has happened."

"We will not have statistic that will be meaningful at all," said Kenneth S. Broun, dean of the law school at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. "They have no way, or they're not releasing to us, whether someone has flunked the (bar) exam or just hasn't taken the other exam."

Scarlett said the old method allowed schools to compare how their graduates did against graduates from other schools.

Parker said passing the ethics test was a new requirement that applicants must fulfill to practice law in North Carolina. It is given separately from the bar exam on different dates.

Parker denied the new reporting system was a break with tradition.

"It's no change," he said. "The board has always reported the names of people who have met all the requirements to be licensed."

Du Pont May Lay Off 150 At Wilmington

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A spokesman for Du Pont said Tuesday the weak worldwide polyester market may result in layoffs for up to 150 workers at the Cape Fear Du Pont plant by the end of the year.

"The business is in such a situation ... that unless we get some turnaround soon, we won't be able to handle the (employment) excesses we have been," said John Mears, personnel manager of the plant near Phoenix in northern Brunswick County.

Mears said Du Pont has been suffering for about a year from a global glut of polyester, which has dampened both domestic and foreign sales. The problem, he said, has been compounded by the failed double-knit market, competition from producers in the Far East and the high value of the dollar to other currency.

The high dollar valuation makes goods produced in the United States more expensive overseas while imported items become relatively inexpensive.

"We have been getting significant competition from imports," Mears said.

Mears said Du Pont has been gradually reducing the number of employees at the Cape Fear plant by attrition. It now employs about 1,930 to make polyester fiber and DMT, a prime ingredient in polyester.

Police Seeking 43 In Kinston

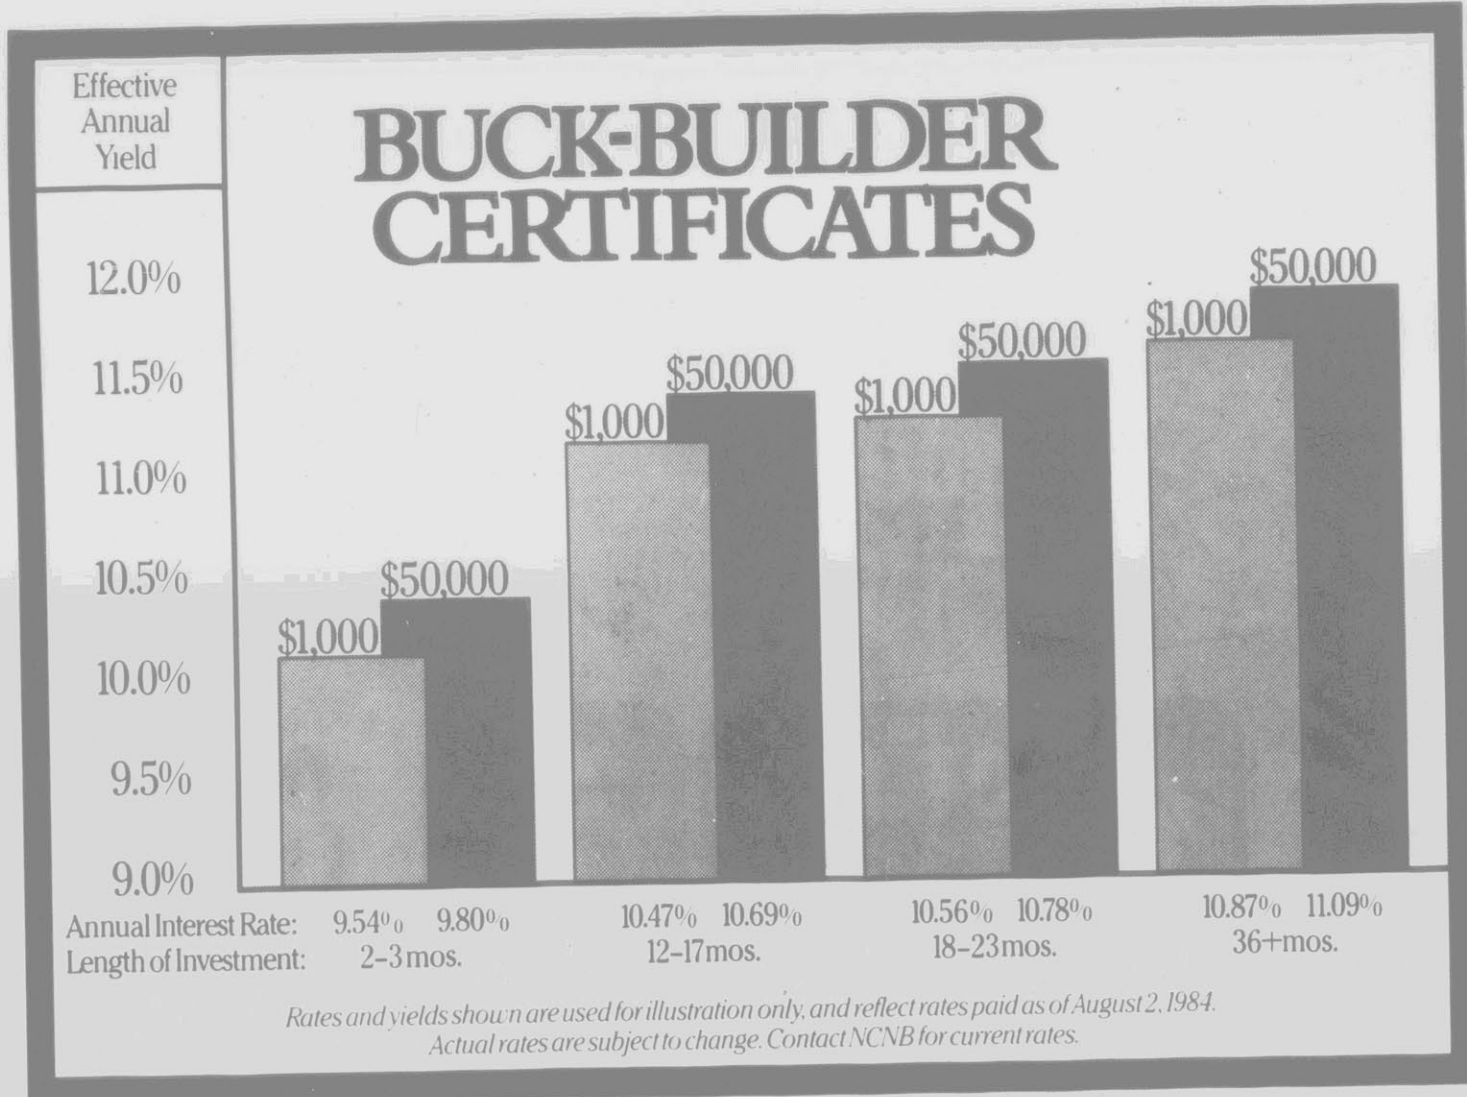

KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — Police Tuesday were rounding up 43 people facing some 113 indictments on drug charges stemming from a federal, state and local undercover operation in Kinston.

Kinston Police Chief Ross Hagler said drugs involved in the case included heroin, cocaine, LSD and marijuana. He said the investigation focused primarily on street dealers.

John Britt of the Alcohol Law Enforcement Division said administrative charges would be levied against licensed ABC outlets for after-hours violations.

ALE officers and State Bureau of Investigation agents also assisted in the eight-month probe.

Bank Records May Be Opened

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Court of Appeals ruled Tuesday that a North Carolina bank can be ordered to release a customer's bank records to crime investigators and keep the release secret for 90 days.

The decision came in a Guilford County case in which North Carolina National Bank fought a request by state investigators to examine the records of one of its customers. The investigators defended their request to a Superior Court judge by saying they had "reason to believe" the examination "would be in the best interest of justice."

The examination was requested during the initial stage of a criminal investigation, before there was enough evidence to obtain a search warrant or issue a subpoena. A judge granted the request and ordered the records released.

"Corporations such as NCNB have never possessed the kind of Fourth Amendment protection accorded to persons and their homes," Appeals Court Judge Clifton E. Johnson wrote in the opinion. "Corporations' special status as creatures of the state exposes them to exhaustive state scrutiny in exchange for the privilege of state recognition."

The court noted that a 1978 federal law forbids the release of such financial records, but said it applied only to federal investigators.

The opinion said there was no state law authorizing a court order to examine bank records and that there was "little effective procedure" established for law enforcement officials to examine bank records as part of an investigation.

The court urged investigators to explain their reasons more fully in seeking to examine bank records.

In another ruling, the court said that a man could not be kept in jail indefinitely for failing to make child support payments when his confinement made it impossible for him to obtain the money.

The decision came in the case of a Randolph County man who had been jailed four times for civil contempt because he had fallen behind in child support payments to his ex-wife. Each time he was jailed, he fell further behind in the payments and was released so he could start a job.

Each time he was released, he fell further behind in payments until he owed $10,590 in back child support.

The court ruled he could not be kept in jail under a civil contempt order that required he pay the $10,590 unless it was found that he had the ability to comply with the order.

Helicopter Pilot Faces Army Trial

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Attorneys for a Fort Bragg helicopter pilot say smuggling charges against their client should be dismissed because he turned in Soviet-made machine guns from Grenada during an announced amnesty.

Capt. John E. Dorsz, 28, allegedly smuggled the weapons back to Fort Bragg after serving during the invasion of Grenada.

The eight-year veteran, faces charges of smuggling five AK-47 automatic rifles into the U.S. from Grenada, conspiracy to take the weapons from the island, violating an order not to bring contraband into the country and conduct unbecoming an officer.

Dorsz chose to have his case heard before Judge Raymond McRorie, a military judge, rather than before a court-martial board of officers.

Military officials say Dorsz and two enlisted soldiers took the weapons from a warehouse in Grenada between late October and early November 1983 while his unit, the 32nd Aviation Battalion, was involved in military action on the island.

Defense attorney Capt. Jack T. Tomarcho said Dorsz turned in his portion of the weapons to an Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agent of the U.S. Department of the Treasury.

He told McRorie Monday his client surrendered the weapons under an amnesty program that specifically said there would be no attempt to prosecute soldiers turning in illegal weapons taken from Grenada. The amnesty was publicly announced.

Maj. Elton Sledge, Dorsz's former company commander when both were assigned to A Company, 82nd Aviation Battalion, testified that he assumed an amnesty program was in effect.

He said he gave his soldiers the chance to turn in any contraband through their commanders. Sledge testified that he offered to act as go-between to avoid retribution against soldiers.

But he said he never told soldiers they were totally protected from disciplinary action.

Former Worker Files Lawsuit

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A former meter reader for Carolina Power & Light Co. has filed suit against the company, claiming he was fired because he is black.

Robert L. Dorsey filed the suit Monday in U.S. District Court in Wilmington. Dorsey is seeking reinstatement and back pay.

Dorsey was employed by CP&L from December 1978 to July 1983. He said he was placed on one year's probation by CP&L management in June 1983 because he missed work to attend his grandmother's funeral.

A month after the probation period began, Dorsey went to the Martin Luther King Center in Wilmington during his lunch break, which he took around 1:30 p.m., he said. Another meter reader saw his truck at the center and reported him, he said.

He was fired and told that meter readers must take their lunch break from noon to 1 p.m., he said, although he contends that was not a policy before the incident occurred.

Fred Day, district manager at the Wilmington CP&L office, said Tuesday that "CP&L's actions in this matter have been entirely appropriate and lawful," adding that "until there is some final resolution of the matter, it would be inappropriate to comment further."

Tar Heel Delegates Support Platform

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) — Republicans seeking top offices in North Carolina say the new GOP platform fits their campaigns well but some of the state's delegates to the Republican National Convention still disagree on the subject of abortion.

The platform won enthusiastic support Tuesday from North Carolina delegates to the convention. It opposes a tax increase, calls for a constitutional amendment prohibiting abortion, supports voluntary school prayer and supports peace through strength and space-based missile defense systems.

"I like it," said state GOP chairman Dave Flaherty. "It says the things we've been saying all along. It's every bit as conservative as 1980. We want to make sure they do not try to moderate Ronald Reagan."

Sen. Jesse Helms, who is seeking re-election against Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt, helped draft the platform and has said he wouldn't change a word. He arrived at the convention center to defend the platform from possible attacks by liberals Tuesday but he left when it became clear that no one would be able to challenge the platform.

Congressman Jim Martin, who is running against Democratic Attorney General Rufus Edmisten for governor, said the platform "makes a statement of principles that not only conservatives but moderates will be able to align themselves with."

Martin was visiting delegates Tuesday. He said he decided not to become a delegate because of his busy campaign schedule in North Carolina.

Rep. Thomas Rhodes of Wilmington, a delegate and candidate for Congress running against incumbent Democrat Charlie Rose, predicted the platform would sit well with his constituents.

"It's a fairly conservative platform," he said. "On the other hand, the Democratic platform is somewhere left of Attila the Hun so the liberals make our platform look moderate."

Rhodes said he thinks the platform should have spelled out ways it will give women equal rights if it doesn't support the ERA.

That and the subject of abortion also were the sources of disagreement among some of the state's 106 delegates and alternates.

Shirley Cox, a delegate from Gastonia, and Mac Converse, an alternate from Orange County, said they could not support the platform because of the anti-abortion plank.

Mrs. Cox, a homemaker, said she doesn't believe she is alone in her views but said the party has not given pro-choice delegates a chance to identify each other and work together. She got a copy of the platform less than two hours before she had to vote on it.

"Because of the way they're doing it makes it easy to deny that party platform is yours," she said.

"It is a decision for the woman to make, not the government. Your body is not a vessel in which the government can make you carry a child," she said.

Mrs. Cox said she favors the Equal Rights Amendment also, which is not mentioned in the platform.

Converse said he was uncomfortable with banning all abortions.

"I oppose abortion generally but a woman ought to have the option in case of crime," he said, referring to incest and rape.

Thomas Pollard, an alternate and Onslow County GOP chairman, said he believes the platform reflects the public's mood.

"It reflects my vision of America," he said.

Flaherty predicted the platform would help state candidates, although the state platform did not address abortion or ERA.

"Who in North Carolina is against prayer in schools?" he asked. "Some are not thinking the same way about ERA or abortion but 90 percent is what we've been saying."

Meanwhile Helms was honored for his role as chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee at a breakfast Tuesday that attracted 250 people. The breakfast was sponsored by agricultural interests including the Fertilizer Institute, the American Meat Institute and the Chicago Board of Trade.

"If the American farmer prospers, all America will do better," he said. "But if the American farmer goes down, you better believe the rest of us will go down too."

Agriculture Secretary John Block and Kansas Sen. Bob Dole were honored along with Helms.

Dole and his wife, Elizabeth, spoke to the convention Tuesday evening. Mrs. Dole is Transportation Department secretary and a Salisbury, N.C. native.

She said women are too smart to vote blindly as a bloc. She also predicted they would not vote for a candidate just because she was a woman.

"No platform will buy us, no party inherit us, no candidate will own us," she said. "We have had our fill of promises. Ronald Reagan has given us results and we choose Ronald Reagan."

Duke Prof Says GOP Holds Key To Ethnics

DALLAS (AP) — The Republican Party is short on tradition but long on delivering foreign policy promises to ethnic minorities, a Duke University professor says.

"The future of ethnics lies with the Republican Party because we believe in a strong defense to support freedom abroad," said Magnus Krynski, a professor of Slavic languages at Duke. "Democrats are more and more isolationist."

Krynski, who came to America from Poland in the mid-1940s and who still speaks with a heavy accent, is a delegate to the Republican National Convention.

He is active in the GOP ethnic caucus, lobbying for platform provisions he believes will spread freedom around the world.

He said this year's party platform has many attractive features for ethnics — a strong policy on Central America, support for radio broadcasts abroad and a strong defense.

He said programs like Voice of America are important to give citizens of communist countries "a sense of what they can demand of their government." He believes the success of Solidarity in Poland is partly a result of Radio Free Europe's efforts.

Krynski said he was "quite enthusiastic" about this year's party's platform, adding that "many Polish Americans feel as I do."

He predicted that more ethnic-group members would shift their allegiance this year to the GOP. Democrats have a long tradition of including ethnics, Krynski said, but they are "paving the way for their own defeat" by calling for unilateral disarmament and advocating isolationist policies.

"We don't have the tradition of the Democrats," he said, explaining why there are few ethnics in the GOP. "We have a poor image. We have to appeal to a different kind of ethnic."

That type of ethnic voter is middle class, intelligent, educated and idealistic, he said.

Krynski hopes that more ethnics will become delegates in future years. He said he believes the door is open to them because he became a delegate only two years after joining the party.

Lawyer Sentenced On Cocaine Charge

GREENSBORO (AP) — Winston-Salem lawyer Renn Drum received a 90-day active jail term Tuesday for his conviction on a cocaine charge, but U.S. District Court Judge Richard Erwin said Drum probably will be punished more than other defendants who got longer sentences.

Erwin also fined Drum $2,400, gave him a 36-month suspended prison sentence, placed him on five years probation and took away his right to practice law in U.S. Middle District Court in Greensboro.

Drum was convicted July 31 on a federal charge of conspiring to distribute cocaine. He was found not guilty of three other related charges.

Earlier, Erwin told Drum's attorney, Norman Smith, "Nobody has as much to lose as your client." Citing the publicity the case has generated and the probability that Drum will lose his state law license if the conviction is upheld, Erwin said, "The court is willing to say that (Drum) is being punished at this time to an extent greater than the other defendants."

Erwin indicated he based his sentence on Drum's limited involvement in the conspiracy. Assistant U.S. Attorney David Smith described Drum as the low man in a conspiracy that caused large quantities of cocaine to be shipped from Miami to the Piedmont beginning in 1981.

"Some people will say you got a great break," Erwin told Drum. "I don't think you did."

Drum's attorney called the sentence "moderate" but said it would be appealed.

Drum, who is free pending appeal, could have been sentenced to a maximum 15 years in prison and a fine of $25,000.

The 52-year-old Drum was one of 11 defendants sentenced Tuesday. Penalties handed down ranged from 25 years and a $45,000 fine for the Florida man described as the source of the cocaine to suspended sentences for some of those already in prison.

Most of those sentenced Tuesday had pleaded guilty to reduced charges.

Helms-Hunt Debates Planned

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
Aides to Gov. Jim Hunt and Sen. Jesse Helms say the Senate candidates will meet for hour-long televised debates Sept. 9 in Wilmington and Sept. 23 in Charlotte.

"I think we do want to get out our message on the issues, and this is a good forum to get them before the people," said Bob Rosser, assistant director of the Helms campaign.

"I think everybody is frustrated by these 30-second commercials, especially with the nasty tone Sen. Helms has taken in so many of them," said Hunt aide Will Marshall. "In the debates, he has to come out and face Gov. Hunt and discuss the issues man to man."

A spokeswoman for the North Carolina Association of Broadcasters said the first debate would be carried by the University of North Carolina Center for Public Television network. She said it hadn't been decided whether that would be the case for the second debate.

Earlier, Rosser called a Raleigh news conference to display a new 30-second TV ad in which President Reagan traces Helms as an inspiration to all Americans.

"One senator we can always count on to stand up for his beliefs is Jesse Helms," Reagan says in the ad. "Jesse's courage on the tough issues is an inspiration to all Americans."

"I cherish my friendship with Jesse and I need his honesty and his outspoken patriotism back in the United States Senate. Now more than ever, I need the advice and experience of Jesse Helms to keep America moving."

Rosser also said the Helms camp had stopped a recorded telephone canvass to North Carolina voters featuring stock car driver Richard Petty. Rosser said the canvass wasn't in operation this week in accordance with a prearranged plan and that it might be resumed later.

The Hunt campaign has said the canvass, in which Petty's voice asks the person being called his preference in the senatorial and presidential races, is illegal because the recorded message does not state its purpose and sponsoring organizations.

On another matter, Rosser defended a Helms fund-raising letter asking for urgent contributions to combat what the letter called a Hunt plan to spend $373,000 on TV ads in a "surprise blitz."

The letter was mailed from Dallas, but was printed last week in Raleigh. It includes a telegram to Helms from his campaign director, Mark Stephens, warning that the campaign was short of cash. Helms told The Greensboro News & Record in Dallas that he'd never received the telegram.

Gary Pearce, Hunt's campaign co-director, said the mailing was deceptive and "consistent with the campaigning under false pretenses they do."

Rosser said, "Any fund-raising letter you have to plan a few days ahead. Our need for money is always great because as soon as we get money we put it into TV or other things. ... Everything in that letter was factual."

In the governor's race, Republican candidate Rep. Jim Martin went to Dallas on Tuesday for his brief appearance at the GOP National Convention. He was to attend a few meetings before heading back to North Carolina the next day.

Campaign spokesmen for Martin's opponent, Democratic Attorney General Rufus Edmisten, issued a statement Tuesday night saying a lawsuit filed against Edmisten over a lease agreement had been resolved.

Michel Showfety filed the suit claiming that Edmisten reneged on an agreement to occupy a Greensboro campaign office through

4 WAYS TO SAY "CHARGE IT"

'Call To Glory' Gives ABC Top Spot In Weekly Rating

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — ABC gathered in the gold even after the Summer Games closed, sprinting to a Nielsen ratings victory paced by the Air Force drama, "Call To Glory" — a show heavily promoted during its Olympics coverage.

The summer series, set in the early 1960s, grabbed 44 percent of the television audience for a first-place finish for the week ended Aug. 19. The two-hour premiere show got a rating of 24.8.

ABC also finished as the top network, although its margin of victory fell after the heady ratings during the Olympics. CBS moved to second and NBC, second for the past three weeks, fell to third.

Anyone watching ABC's Olympics coverage would have found it difficult to avoid the promos for "Call To Glory." The show seemed to make more appearances than anchorman Jim McKay.

"Olympics Highlights," a final view of the games, was second in the ratings.

Craig T. Nelson stars in "Call To Glory" as an Air Force colonel and Cindy Pickett as his wife in the show. ABC will telecast the show for at least six weeks, then bring it back later. However, if the ratings continue big it's expected the network will keep the show on with no interruption. ABC was first in the A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings with a network average of 13.3. CBS was second with 10.8 and NBC was third with 10.4. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute 13.3 percent of the TV homes were tuned to ABC.

Other shows in the Top 10: NBC's "Riptide," third; CBS' "60 Minutes," fourth; NBC's "Remington Steele," fifth; NBC's "The A-Team," sixth; ABC's "Webster," seventh; CBS' "Trapper John, M.D.," eighth; CBS' "Alice," ninth; and the ABC special "World's Funniest Commercial GooFs," tenth.

Two pre-season professional football games were at the bottom of the ratings, along with the perennial last-place finisher, NBC's "Summer Sunday, USA." Here are the bottom five in descending order: "The New Show," NBC; NFL Pre-Season Football, San Francisco vs. San Diego, CBS; NFL Pre-Season Football, New England vs. Washington, NBC; "Airwolf," CBS; and "Summer Sunday, USA," NBC.

"The CBS Evening News With Dan Rather" took back its long-held first-place position among the highest-rated evening news show. ABC's "World News Tonight" held the top spot during the two weeks of the Olympics. NBC's "Nightly News" was third. The ratings: CBS 10.5, ABC 9.6, NBC 8.6.

Here are the top 20 shows of the week:

1. "Call To Glory," ABC, a rating of 24.8 or 20.7 million households.
2. "Olympic Highlights," ABC, 22.3 or 18.6 million.
3. "Riptide," NBC, 17.5 or 14.6 million.
4. "60 Minutes," CBS, 16.7 or 13.9 million.
5. "Remington Steele," NBC, 15.9 or 13.3 million.
6. "The A-Team," NBC, 15.6 or 13.0 million.
7. "Webster," ABC, 15.2 or 12.7 million.
8. "Trapper John, M.D.," CBS, 15.1 or 12.6 million.
9. "Alice," CBS, 14.6 or 12.2 million.
10. "World's Funniest Commercial GooFs," ABC, 13.8 or 11.5 million.
11. "The Love Boat," ABC, 13.7 or 11.4 million.
12. "Matt Houston," ABC, 13.6 or 11.39 million.
13. "Hill Street Blues," NBC, 13.5 or 11.3 million.
14. Movie—"The Main Event," ABC, 13.4 or 11.2 million.
15. "Fantasy Island," ABC, 13.3 or 11.1 million.
16. "Facts of Life," NBC, 13.3 or 11.1 million.
17. Movie—"Word of Honor," CBS, 13.2 or 11.0 million.
18. "Dallas," CBS, 12.9 or 10.8 million.
19. Tie—"The Jeffersons," CBS, 12.9 or 10.8 million.
20. Tie—"Cagney & Lacey," CBS, 12.9 or 10.8 million.

Founded by the Warner Amex Satellite Entertainment Co., MTV recently became a public corporation. Robert W. Pittman, chief operating officer of the company, said creation of the new channel was prompted by the success of MTV and "by the need expressed by cable operators, advertisers and the record industry for a second, differentiated all-music service."

MTV Networks' new music channel will be offered free of charge to cable operators already carrying MTV and will be advertiser supported, the company said. MTV currently charges operators 10 cents to 15 cents per subscriber.

Coverage Of Party Meetings Continues To Raise Questions

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — ABC's news executives made the right decision by showing "Hart to Hart." They just made it a month too early.

On July 17, the second night of the Democratic convention, ABC bolted from politics to a detective show and then back to politics without even solving the crime on "Hart to Hart."

Tuesday night, on the comparable second night of the Republican convention, ABC considered joining the GOP's pep rally in progress, but decided instead to provide the full prime-time coverage, experimenting in the first hour with a combination of talking heads, set-up pieces and absolutely no news whatsoever.

The winner wasn't Ronald Reagan or Walter F. Mondale, it was Home Box Office, Showtime, independent stations and major league baseball.

Ironically, ABC's case for more limited convention coverage was made more effectively when ABC stayed with a boring Republican convention — CBS' Dan Rather suggested it might be called a "speed-yawning course" — than when it pulled away from a Democratic convention anxiously awaiting the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

ABC — and NBC, for that matter — said after the San Francisco conclave that conventions, without floor fights and without contested nominations, should probably be treated as special reports and late-night broadcasts in the future. Some will say that uninspiring speeches by the Republicans made that case even stronger.

"Unfortunately, they did everything they could to justify future cutbacks in convention coverage with an unusually boring program," Terry Michael, deputy director of communications for the Democratic National Committee, said Tuesday night.

ABC was roundly criticized last month for calling convention coverage a dinosaur, but it almost seemed that ABC, which took the same coverage approach as CBS and NBC on Tuesday night, had decided to take us back to the stone age — just so we could see for ourselves.

How could ABC reconcile staying on the air for the Republicans, whose conflicts are minimal and whose nomination is not being contested, when ABC one night short-changed the Democrats whose conflicts were real and whose nomination was being bitterly challenged?

"In that first hour we attempted to create a sense of where the Republican party is going and who its leading characters for 1988 were," said Richard C. Wald, senior vice president of ABC News.

So floor reporter Richard Threlkeld had a set-up piece on future presidential hopefuls, he and correspondent Lynn Sherr asked delegates about the party's conservative platform and anchors Peter Jennings and David Brinkley interviewed Republican leaders about rifts between moderates and right-wingers.

Wald said he had discussed ABC's course of action with ABC News President Rooney Arledge and ABC News Vice President David Burke on Monday night. "There was a fair amount of division what to do," Wald said. They knew that not starting at 9 p.m. EDT when CBS and NBC were going on would provoke critical abuse again.

"The other possibility was to do something different at 9. Our decision was to do something different at 9," he said. By different, he meant prepared pieces, analysis with George Will and the floor reporters, no speeches and no news.

Money Talks

Sunday is "Women's Equality Day." On August 26, 1920, the 19th Constitutional Amendment was certified, giving American men and women equal voting rights. But the U.S. Treasury had trouble getting the message. Martha Washington is the only woman ever featured on U.S. paper notes — and these were $1 silver certificates of the 1890s. Not until 1979, when the Susan B. Anthony dollar was minted to honor the great suffrage leader, did a woman grace a U.S. coin.

Bank Plans Corporate Move In '85

GREENSBORO (AP) — Northwestern Bank plans to move its corporate banking and credit administration division from North Wilkesboro to Greensboro in mid-1985, bank officials say.

The bank announced Monday that the move will involve 44 jobs, including five executives who now live in Wilkes County.

The shifts will be the latest in a series since the bank's parent company, Northwestern Financial Corp., announced early last year that it will call Greensboro its headquarters.

President Bob Allen said the latest moves, especially those in corporate banking, are in line with the bank's strategy of seeking the business of mid-sized companies — those with annual sales of up to $100 million. Greensboro is in the center of an area with many companies of that size, he said.

In establishing closer ties with Greensboro, Northwestern officials say they have had to move cautiously because of sensitive feelings in North Wilkesboro, where the bank began in 1938. Northwestern employs about 1,100 people in Wilkes County.

New Broadcast Group Formed

GREENSBORO (AP) — A new broadcast production company covering mostly sporting events, many of them live, has been formed in Greensboro, company officials said Monday.

Special Events Television Network will first market the NASCAR Winston Cup Grand National stock car racing series. SETN already has acquired the broadcast rights to the Sept. 23 Goody's 500 race and the Oct. 21 Hodgdon American 500 race in Rockingham.

"We are convinced that there are a number of television stations, network affiliates and independents alike, with a definite appetite for an alternative to the traditional ... sports programming," said Richard V. Ozan, a network spokesman.

Sale Talks

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing Co. of St. Paul, Minn., is negotiating to buy the Naegele Outdoor Advertising Co., whose local headquarters is in Greensboro, a spokesman said.

3M's board authorized the negotiations last week, which had been continuing informally since last May, the spokesman said.

3M owns National Advertising Co., a major competitor of Naegele. The two companies are discussing the sale of Naegele operations in 22 of its 24 cities, the 3M spokesman said.

Coral Reef Rules Effective Today

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Delicate coral formations in the South Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico will benefit from federal protection under regulations that become law today.

The Magnuson Fishery Conservation and Management Act gives special protection to several reefs, designating them as unique habitats of particular concern because they are currently or potentially threatened.

They include two Florida formations, the Middle Grounds, 100 miles west northwest of Tampa and the Oculina Bank, 17 miles east of Fort Pierce.

The regulations are "aimed at optimizing the benefits from coral resources while conserving coral and coral reefs," said Jack T. Brawner, director of the Southeast Regional Office of the National Marine Fisheries Service in St. Petersburg.

He said they apply to coral in the federal fishery conservation zone from the Virginia-North Carolina border south through the Gulf of Mexico to the Texas-Mexico border.

In the Gulf, the zone starts about 10 miles offshore and extends

State's Lumber Production Up

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina produced 909 million board feet of Southern pine lumber in 1983, the most since the late 1950s, said J.C. Jessup Jr., vice president for the North Carolina Region of the Weyerhaeuser Co. in New Bern.

The state's lumber, pulp, paper, plywood and wood products industry employs more than 50,000 people, making it one of the largest employers of this industry in the South, Jessup said.

The industry's annual payroll is more than $500 million. Jessup said value added by lumber manufacture to the timber resource is above $624 million annually.

Jewelry Sought

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iran is asking Pakistan to return gold, silver and jewels believed stolen during the 1979 revolution against Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, and reportedly seized by Pakistani police, a newspaper says.

The Tehran Times, quoting Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, said the jewels were seized from a former aide to the Iranian royal family at Lahore airport, near Pakistan's border with India, earlier this month.

Study Cites Cost Of Abuse, Illness

RALEIGH (AP) — A Research Triangle Institute study says alcohol abuse, drug abuse and mental illness costs the nation more than $190 billion annually in lost employment, reduced productivity, accidents, deaths crimes and other social consequences.

ability," said Henrik Harwood, an economist with the institute. The study concluded that more than half the economic toll of alcohol and drug abuse stems from lost productivity, Harwood said.

Overall, the study estimated that alcohol abuse costs the United States $89.5 billion a year, including $50.5 billion from reduced productivity and $4.1 billion in lost employment. The total for drug abuse was $46.9 billion, $25.7 billion of which was attributed to reduced productivity.

Based on available figures, the report estimated that mental illness costs the country at least $54.2 billion annually, including $20.9 billion in treatment expenses.

Financially Ailing Firm Eyes Recovery

GREENSBORO (AP) — A poultry corporation that filed for reorganization after falling on hard times two years ago says a strengthening poultry market is bringing the company back into black ink again.

Lane Processing, owned by Cliff and Dorothy Lane and based in Grannis, Ark., has 19 poultry industry subsidiaries, including Carolina Farms and Carolina Poultry of Siler City and Webster Farms and Webster Poultry of Pittsboro.

Janitor Gets Prison Term

GREENSBORO (AP) — A Greensboro janitor received two consecutive 20-year prison terms Tuesday for sexually assaulting two children who contracted gonorrhea during the attacks.

Guilford Superior Court Judge Thomas W. Ross sentenced Oscar Lee Marshall in connection with attacks on the 5-year-old victims Nov. 23 and again on Dec. 9 and ordered him to undergo extensive psychiatric counseling.

Jury Locks In Deciding Murder Trial

WAYNESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A Transylvania County jury was deadlocked Tuesday at 9-3 in its second day of deliberations in the murder trial of two Ohio men but planned to resume discussions today.

Jury foreman Sherman Comstock told the court at 2:40 p.m. that the group had "reached a decision, but not a unanimous decision." Judge Robert M. Burroughs ordered jurors back to the jury room.

Mitchell Pakulski and Elliott Rowe III, both of Toledo, Ohio, are on trial on charges stemming from the 1978 shooting death of Waynesville security guard Willard R. Setzer.

A Madison County jury also deadlocked in the case in May after seven hours of deliberations over two days.

Burroughs asked if there was any evidence or testimony that could be reviewed again to help the jury reach a unanimous decision, but Comstock said there was none.

The judge told jurors if they could not reach a unanimous decision on all six charges to work toward a decision on some of them. Pakulski and Rowe are charged with first-degree murder, conspiracy to commit murder, armed robbery, breaking and entering and larceny, conspiracy to commit breaking and entering and larceny and larceny of a motor vehicle.

The jury was scheduled to resume deliberations at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Life Term Given Killer

RALEIGH (AP) — Christopher L. Partin, the confessed killer of former Raleigh high school teacher Merriman C. Hill, was sentenced Tuesday to a life term plus more than 37 years in prison.

Partin pleaded guilty July 30 to beating Hill to death with a crowbar and then dumping his body in a river. He also pleaded guilty to charges of robbing and kidnapping Hill and burglarizing his home.

The sentence came after Partin told Superior Court Judge Anthony Brannon that he "seriously doubted" he could ever commit such a crime again.

"I wish there was something I could do for his family," Partin said Tuesday. "I'm very sorry for what happened to Mr. Hill."

Partin had faced life plus 110 years for the Dec. 17, 1982 slaying and other crimes.

Brannon ordered that he serve the presumptive prison term for each of the charges to run consecutively. Under the state's sentencing law, Partin will probably serve a minimum of 25 years in prison before he is eligible for release.

Town Fires Police Chief

HOPE MILLS, N.C. (AP) — Robert A. Collier, Hope Mills police chief for nearly two years, said he was fired because of his investigation of a police officer.

After a closed session during Monday night's meeting of the town's Board of Commissioners, Town Manager John R. Pick read a statement announcing the firing.

"Because I respect Mr. Collier's rights to privacy and because of the possibility that further investigations may be necessary, I do not feel at liberty to go into details of the specific reasons which (led) up to my decision," Pick's statement said. "Mr. Collier has been advised of my reasons for this action. I will leave it up to him whether he chooses to discuss it further."

Following the meeting, Collier said, "I refused to resign, so I was fired. I felt there was no wrongdoing on my part. I was making an investigation on an officer and apparently two other officers told him (Pick) about it."

Collier, 55, said he was fired under a personnel ordinance section "relating to stirring up dissension and having an effect on the morale of the department."

Pick said Capt. Lloyd E. Jimmy, Dixon, assistant police chief, has been appointed acting chief.

Bomb Explosion Causes No Injuries

PARIS (AP) — A bomb exploded outside the Paris branch of Israel's Bank Leumi, but caused no injuries and only slight damage, police report.

The bombing this week was the fourth in France in eight days. A group calling itself M5 asserted responsibility for two bombings in southeastern France last week, but no one claimed responsibility for the Bank Leumi attack.

Interior Minister Pierre Joxe went to the scene, near the Paris Opera, to oversee the investigation.

Laurent Davenas, an assistant prosecutor, said the bomb shattered some windows at the bank and damaged two cars parked near the building.

 Today's Cryptiquip clue: O equals T

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Part Blamed For Coaster Failure

KINGS MILLS, Ohio (AP) — Amusement park officials blamed a defective part for an accident on a stand-up roller coaster that injured eight people, and said they expect to reopen the ride in about two weeks.

The last car of the King Cobra ride at Kings Island amusement park came to a stop on the tracks as a wheel spindle broke Aug. 8.

T. Lew Hooper, vice president and general manager of the park in southwestern Ohio, said Monday that analysis by three independent laboratories found that a wheel assembly fell off because the spindle failed to hold it in place.

"The spindle was not thoroughly heat-treated during manufacturing in Japan," Hooper said in a statement. "It was not as hardened or as strong as it should have been."

Park officials blamed Togo Inc. of Japan for producing the part. Togo designed and built the ride, which opened April 22.

Passengers, strapped standing up in the ride when it stopped in a 540-degree turn parallel to the ground, were left hanging seven feet in the air for about 15 minutes while restraints were released manually.

Ruth Voss, manager of marketing communications for Kings Island, reported the test results Monday.

 South West North East
 1 ♦ 2 ♠ 2 ♠ 3 ♠
 4 ♠ Pass Pass Pass
 Opening lead: King of ♠.

The lucky player guesses right. The good player finds a way to avoid having to guess.

Not even the vulnerability is an excuse for West's overall. After North had raised freely, South did not want to sound as if he was simply competing, so he chose the aggressive course and jumped to game at his second turn.

West led the king of clubs and, when dummy appeared, declarer saw he had two sure losers in hearts and one in diamonds. The success of the contract therefore appeared to hinge on whether declarer could guess which defender held the jack of diamonds, since declarer could finesse in either direction.

But there was a far better line, and declarer found it. He won the opening lead and ruffed a club, then drew trumps in two rounds. Next he started stripping hearts from his hand and dummy by conceding a low heart to the defenders. East won, but his only safe return was a heart. Declarer rose with the ace and exited with a heart. As long as that suit broke 3-3, whichever defender won the third heart would be end played. He would either have to lead a club and allow declarer to ruff on the table while sluffing a diamond from hand, or else break diamonds and do declarer's work for him.

What if the hearts broke 4-2? Declarer would be no worse off than if he had tried to guess diamonds immediately. The defender who won the third heart would be able to exit with his last heart. Declarer would ruff, and then would have to try to be as lucky as the guessers who had located the jack of diamonds earlier in the play.

PLO Faction Plans Boycott

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) - The leaders of a Syrian-backed PLO faction opposed to PLO chairman Yasser Arafat say they will boycott a meeting of the Palestine National Council.

The statement Monday came less than 24 hours after five main Palestine Liberation Organization factions, meeting in Algiers, Algeria, decided Sunday to convene the council in mid-September for the first time in more than two years. Algiers was selected as the tentative meeting site.

The four dissident PLO leaders, whose groups make up the Palestine National Alliance, joined forces in 1983 to try to oust Arafat. With Syrian backing, they drove Arafat's supporters out of eastern and northern Lebanon.

Any effort to hold the Palestine National Council meeting before the PLO leadership issue is resolved "will lead to an eternal and historic schism of the PLO," the four leaders said at a news conference.

The four are Samir Ghoshe of the Popular Struggle Front, Ahmad Jibril of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command, Issam Al-Kade of Saiga, and a leader of rebels from Arafat's Fatah movement who uses the code name Qadri.

Sentence

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - A military court reportedly has sentenced a former leader of the Israeli-backed Village Leagues in the occupied West Bank to two years in jail for attacks on political rivals.

Israel Army Radio reported that the court in the West Bank city of Ramallah convicted Bishara Kumsiyeh, 60, and four of his sons of carrying out a series of attacks ranging from smashing the windshields of cars to planting a bomb in the auto of Bethlehem Mayor Elias Freij.

Electrical Workers Try To Keep GE Plant Open

By BRUCE M. SMITH
 Associated Press Writer
 LADSON, S.C. (AP) — Carnell Gathers has labored at General Electric's steam turbine plant here all his working life, making parts for the massive generators that utility companies use. Now he's working to save his job.
 The 33-year-old father of three began work here 15 years ago, when the plant opened amid a heavy demand from the utility industry for turbines. That demand faded in recent years, and GE announced June 1 that it planned to phase out the Ladson operations over the next 12 months.
 Gathers and many of the other 450 workers have countered with an aggressive effort to find new uses for the mammoth facility, located 20 miles northwest of Charleston on 365 acres carved out of a Carolina pine forest.
 Gathers is president of Local 1202 of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, which claims 200 members among the plant's 335 hourly workers. He says the union committee looking into alternative uses for the plant is among the first such union committees in the nation.
 "A lot of people ain't gonna recover out of this thing," said Gathers as he sat at his desk in the union hall, a modest brick cottage located a stone's throw from the plant. "You've got some bitterness around here."
 "Some of these guys in this shop are in their mid 30s and they may have a pretty good chance of finding another job. But you look at those people who are in their mid 40s and early 50s, those people are going to have problems," he said.
 Ladson is the last of five steam turbine facilities GE has closed because of declining utility orders, said John Curtin, plant manager of employee and community relations. Operations will be consolidated at GE's main plant in Schenectady, N.Y.
 The local plant was opened in 1969 and reached peak production in 1972, when it employed 1,200. In those days, GE had orders for 20 steam turbines a year. But no domestic orders have been received since 1981.
 The demand for electric power grew only 2.3 percent from 1976 until 1983, according to figures from the North American Electric Reliability Council. Only an additional 2.8 percent increase is expected by 1991.
 The Ladson workers have taken their plight to the public through a series of news conferences and meetings with top public officials.
 The union's Alternative Use Committee surveyed plant employees to take stock of their skills, and last week it presented the company with a list of possible alternative uses for the facility.
 The committee kept three criteria in mind:
 — Keeping the plant under GE ownership so employees could retain their benefits and wage scale, up to $13 an hour.
 — Finding a product similar to the turbines now manufactured.
 — Finding a permanent solution, not a stopgap measure that would keep the plant operating only temporarily.
 The union says products that meet all three criteria include smoketack scrubbers to clean emissions from coal-fired generating plants and generators to make power from solid waste and waste industrial heat.
 The union said other GE lines unrelated to power generation could be manufactured at the plant, including laser tool systems, jet engines and armaments. It said certain products in growth industries could be made here by other manufacturers, including prefabricated tunnel and bridge sections, special tanks for refineries and hazardous wastes, and components that could be used in space-based manufacturing.
 Company officials were "very responsive" when the union presented its proposals, said John T. Burns, Local 1202 vice president. He said GE promised to get back to the union on a request that company engineers review the proposals.
 The local also would like to see a visit to the plant by GE Chairman John Welch. Burns said that Welch "says he likes people who like to take a chance and aren't afraid to fail. We are taking a chance and would like his attention."
 The company has made no comment since receiving the committee proposals. Earlier, plant manager Curtin said he doubted that other GE work could be brought to the plant, which is a special-purpose facility.
 Other GE products "just don't have a need for additional capacity that would make sense at this location," Curtin said. "Our primary thrust at this point is to give the employees the tools they need to find employment subsequently." He said the company is putting together a job assistance program to help employees find new jobs and develop new skills.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Look into the various ways by which you can gain whatever is vital to your welfare, but don't force any situation.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Get advice from an expert how best to get ahead in the morning, but after lunch make no radical changes, though you may want to.

Part Blamed For Coaster Failure

Violence Spotlights Irish Aid Group

By JUDIE GLAVE
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Its birth in 1970 was relatively unheralded. But since its growth into a rebellious teen-ager, the Irish Northern Aid Committee has seen its share of troubles in the United States and in the divided island it says it is trying to help.

The Irish Northern Aid Committee, or Noraid, says its primary purpose is to raise funds for widows, orphans and families of dead and imprisoned members of the Irish Republican Army in Northern Ireland. Its critics, however, insist the money is used to buy guns and bullets for the outlawed IRA, not clothes and bread.

But, either way, it has been in the forefront of the fight to end British rule in Protestant-dominated Northern Ireland. And Noraid is flourishing under the attention.

The founders of the group, based in the Inwood section at Manhattan's northern tip, say Noraid has grown "by leaps and bounds," gaining support with each new incident or outbreak of violence in Northern Ireland.

At the urging of the Justice Department, a federal judge in New York ruled in 1981 that Noraid is "an agent of the IRA, providing money and services for other than relief purposes."

The group currently has 90 days to list the IRA as its principal on forms filed under the Foreign Agents Registration Act, says federal attorney Brian Ahearn. Noraid says its attorneys may sign the documents but will insist on noting that they are doing it under protest.

The latest involves the group's American-born publicity director, Martin Galvin, whose appearance at an Aug. 11 rally in Belfast sparked a police assault that left one man dead and 20 others injured.

Galvin, 34, had been denied entry into Northern Ireland by the British, but he ignored the order and sneaked across the border to attend the rally. The assault occurred when police tried but failed to arrest him.

The New York City attorney, who works as a city Sanitation hearing officer, went into hiding afterward. But Sinn Fein, the IRA's legal political wing, announced Monday that he would make an appearance in Dublin today.

Probably the best known of Noraid's leaders is 82-year-old Michael Flannery, an Irish rebel in his teens and one of the three founders of Noraid. He was tried but acquitted in 1982, along with four other men, on federal charges of stockpiling weapons for use by the IRA.

Noraid also gained attention in battles over the group's IRA connections and in the swirl of publicity surrounding the choice of Flannery as grand marshal of New York's 1983 St. Patrick's Day parade. New York's Cardinal Terence Cooke refused to come out to the steps of St. Patrick's Cathedral as a sign of his disapproval when Flannery led the parade up Fifth Avenue.

So far the attention — some planned and some spontaneous — has only helped the group. Beginning as a single chapter with a handful of volunteers, Noraid has grown into an organization with 125 chapters in at least 70 cities nationwide.

Galvin has estimated the group to have at least 5,000 supporters, a figure that fluctuates with the political tide, says Flannery.

Flannery says Noraid volunteers come from all backgrounds and all walks of life.

East, R. and Jesse Helms, R. both voted yes.

EROSION — The Senate adopted, 63 for and 34 against, an amendment adding teeth to "sodbusting" legislation aimed at preventing farmers from cultivating highly-erodible land. The amendment replaced softer sanctions in HR 5743 (above).

Fragile lands are being plowed under so rapidly that the government fears another Dust Bowl in parts of the West.

Under this amendment, if a farmer plants a crop on grassland or other soil classified as fragile by the government, he will be denied federal subsidies for that crop throughout his acreage.

While many farm lobbies regard this as excessive government interference, conservationists and some other farm groups say such a crackdown is needed to control sodbusting.

Senators voting yes supported the tough anti-sodbusting language. East and Helms both voted yes.

TARGET PRICES — By a vote of 66 for and 25 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to raise the "target price" for wheat and feed grains such as corn to the level specified in the 1981 farm bill. The amendment was offered to HR 5743 (above).

Sponsors wanted to nullify the wheat and feed grain portions of a new law that freezes or lowers the target price for many major commodities beginning in 1985. All taxpayers are affected by the congressionally set target price for a crop, because they supply the difference between it and the lower market price.

Thad Cochran, R-Miss., said the amendment would cost the Treasury $1.6 billion annually.

James Exon, D-Nebr., who sponsored the amendment, called the cost "small compared to bailouts and deals we have provided financial institutions, manufacturers and foreign nations."

Senators voting no sought higher government subsidies of wheat and feed grain growers.

East and Helms both voted yes.

Interior Department spending bill. North Carolina representatives voting yes were Valentine, Whitley, Ike Andrews, Neal, Britt and Broyhill.

Those voting no were Walter Jones, Rose, Hefner and Clarke. James Martin did not vote.

SENATE

FAMILY FARMS — By a vote of 46 for and 34 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment requiring President Reagan to provide the public with a report on his plans for easing the family farm's credit, export and income problems.

Sought by Democrats, the report was to have been issued in advance of the November presidential election. The vote occurred during debate on the fiscal 1985 Agricultural Department appropriations bills (HR 5743) that later was sent to conference with the House.

Bob Dole, R-Kans., said the amendment deserved to be killed because "this is pure politics."

Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., who opposed the tabling motion, said the public wants to hear "what the Administration plans to do to ameliorate the severe plight of the farmer."

Senators voting no wanted to force Reagan to issue the special pre-election farm report.

North Carolina senators John

How They Voted

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes immediately before the current three-week recess.

HOUSE

EL SALVADOR — By a vote of 234 for and 161 against, the House granted the White House request for an extra $70 million in military aid to El Salvador during the last two months of this fiscal year. This reversed a previous House denial of the added money.

The vote occurred during debate on HR 6040, later sent to the president. Congress now has appropriated $196 million in fiscal 1984 military aid to the government of Salvadoran President Jose Napoleon Duarte.

Supporter Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., said "this is a critical vote for the future of this hemisphere."

Opponent David Obey, D-Wisc., said U.S. military aid around the world has been hiked by more than 400 percent under the Reagan Administration.

Members voting yes supported more arms money for El Salvador.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were Tim Valentine, D-2; Charles Whitley, D-3; Ike Andrews, D-4; Charles Britt, D-6; Charles Rose, D-7; W.G. Hefner, D-8, and James Broyhill, R-10.

Voting no was Walter Jones, D-1. Not voting were Stephen Neal, D-5; James Martin, R-9, and James Clarke, D-11.

FOOD — The House rejected, 120 for and 293 against, a proposal requiring recipients of food stamps to file monthly financial statements as a condition of eligibility. Those without earnings were to have been exempted.

The vote came during debate on a hunger relief bill (HR 5151) that later was sent to the Senate.

Sponsor Bill Emerson, R-Mo., said the requirement would curb fraud and abuse.

Those voting no were Walter Jones, Valentine, Whitley, Ike Andrews, Neal, Britt, Rose, Hefner and Clarke.

James Martin and Broyhill did not vote.

CUT — By a vote of 212 for and 181 against, the House inflicted a three percent across-the-board cut in fiscal 1985 appropriations for the Interior Department. The bill (HR 5973) then was sent to the Senate with a pricetag of $8.03 billion.

Sponsor Joseph McDade, R-Pa., said President Reagan had threatened to veto the bill if the cut were not made.

Opponent Sidney Yates, D-Ill., asked: "Since when is acceptance by the White House to be the sole test for this House?"

Windmill Providing Electricity

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Kyle Gerhardt says 7½ years of work and financial struggle have been worthwhile to show that wind can be a viable energy source.

Now, he says, "everything is exactly as I predicted it would be" with the windmill he believes is part of the solution to future energy problems.

The windmill has been operating behind his house for the last year and the 58-year-old inventor says, "This is a completely different operation. This is an innovative prototype. I'm the only one who thinks like this, but a true inventor doesn't give a damn what others think."

Gerhardt claims to have $500,000 invested in the prototype he says can provide the knowledge to develop smaller windmills to furnish a household with all its electrical needs.

He said wheels about 10 feet in diameter should take care of an average household. His prototype has blades 29 feet in diameter and the rig stands 85 feet high.

Gerhardt said his windmill eventually will have to be monitored and controlled by computers and robots — the only way to be certain that the electricity produced is used efficiently.

"With all the variables in the wind speed and the different power loads needed for different things, computers are the only way to keep it organized," said the general contractor who holds patents on the wheel's design.

"The main problem right now is money," said Gerhardt. "It's a vicious circle to try to get enough money to do this (keep the windmill going) and run a household."

But Gerhardt said he felt the years of work and financial struggle were worth the effort because of the uniqueness of his design.

He said he applied for grants, but that the paperwork was too big a burden. He said he could borrow money, but "you have to be sane about how you're going to pay it back, so I stayed away from that."

"If we had a backer right now, I could tell an engineer how to build the wheel right now," he said. "If someone wants to invest, I'll take a year off to work on it. But keeping everything going, I can't afford to run around the country advertising and selling this thing."

Outside the workshop at the base of the windmill tower, Gerhardt glanced up at the rotating wheel.

"I guess I'm the only one who believes in me," he said.

Education

DENVER (AP) — A federal judge has approved a $2.2 million-a-year plan to hire 60 teachers and 40 tutors for expanded bilingual education programs in this city's schools.

The ruling by U.S. District Judge Richard P. Matsch stemmed from a 1980 class-action lawsuit challenging the Denver Public Schools' implementation of a decade-old desegregation order.

Driver Ed Instructor Says Tune Out Stereo

By JEFF BARKER
Associated Press Writer
STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Fifty-one years after teaching his first driving lesson in a 1929 Graham-Paige, Amos Neyhart still believes he can turn even the timid and the reckless into model motorists.

But, he advises, America needs to lower its car stereos and "pay attention to what's on the road."

The American Automobile Association says Neyhart, 85, conducted the first high school driving class. "He is the grandfather of driver education," said Francis Kenel of the AAA.

Although retired, Neyhart still teaches occasionally and regards driving as "the pleasure of a lifetime." He owns a 1979 Lincoln.

In 1933, Neyhart, then an industrial engineering professor at Pennsylvania State College, now Penn State University, offered his services to the local high school — even paying for the gasoline at 15 cents a gallon.

His gesture came after a drunken driver had slammed into Neyhart's parked car and wound up with 33 stitches in his neck. Driving was serious business, Neyhart concluded, and motorists needed experts to teach them about the rules and hazards of the road.

"I saw so clearly that the place to teach them was high school. In high schools you have the classrooms and kids who are eager and anxious to learn," he said.

Later, Neyhart decided he could reach more drivers by teaching potential instructors. Teachers came from around the country to his Teacher Preparation Course in Driver Education at Penn State in 1936.

Since then, he has educated driving teachers in almost every state.
He is skilled at maneuvering and maintaining school buses, ambulances and mail trucks and has helped train those vehicles' drivers as well. In 1961, he traveled to Yugoslavia to lecture on traffic safety.

Neyhart said the key to safe driving was forming good habits.

"When I get in the car with a student, I say, 'Tell me what you are going to do.' Then they do it and repeat it and repeat it," he said.

He worries about drivers with loud car stereos. "Anyone can drive if they think about it, but the mind can only concentrate well on one thing at a time," he said. "I'm a very poor conversationalist in my car."

Many accidents are the result of wandering minds, Neyhart said. He cited a recent accident in central Pennsylvania in which a motorist stopped in the middle of the road to watch an airplane take off. "And the driver behind him hit him from the behind. He was watching the plane, too."

Driver education classes should teach students about drunken driving by illustrating the results, Neyhart said. "Just show them what drinking does to reflexes and to the brain and let them decide," he said.
"I would never think of having one drink before getting into the car."

the gamut from "horrid to outstanding," he said. He claims that some companies mislead students by promising success in a designated number of lessons.

"The individual differences in people come out in driving. You can't look at a person and tell how fast they are going to learn anything," he said.

Neyhart has received one traffic ticket — for going 5 mph over the speed limit to pass another vehicle.

"I was speeding," he admitted,
"but I always taught my students that you can't dilly-dally when you're passing."

Drug Arrests

ISSAQUAH, Wash. (AP) —
Twenty-three people have been arrested and $500,000 worth of drugs seized following a five-month investigation of drug-dealing in this Seattle suburb. Entire families were involved in the illegal trafficking, police said.

As many as 60 people were found during the probe to be involved in the growing and selling of marijuana, police Chief Duane Garrison said. In one instance, a 14-year-old girl sold her school friends pot grown by her teen-age brother, and authorities found a marijuana farm worth $50,000 in their home, police said.

As many as 40 more arrests are likely, Garrison said.

Class Reunion

The H.B. Sugg Class of 1964 will have its 20th class reunion Sept. 2 at the Sheraton Inn in Greenville.
Members of the '64 class interested in attending should contact class president James Harris, 757-3296;
secretary Louvenia Ford, 753-5525, or committee chairman Maxine Johnson, 753-2712.

Class Gets New Ideas From Past

By MARTHA WAGGONER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Students in Professor Gerald Elkan's course, "Entering the 21st Century," at North Carolina State University are learning that sometimes the best designs are the old designs.

The course is based on a 1981 Global 2000 study of what the world will be like in the year 2000, Elkan said in a recent telephone interview.

"My thinking is that all the students (in his class) will be about 40 years old then and be at the height of their careers," he said. If the students are to make an impact on the world, it will happen then, he said.

The class studies food production, energy and mineral resources and the quality of life.

"We see what we can do and what the problems are and what we might be able to do to alleviate some of the problems," Elkan said.

Elkan's students are required to write a paper or design a project that can be used to help solve some of the problems the world will face in 2000.

And the students are discovering that for some countries, high-technology may not be the answer.

"We've noted that high technology isn't necessarily the way to go to alleviate problems in the Third World," Elkan said. "With sophisticated equipment, if a gasket goes bad, the whole thing goes out of kilter, and they can't get the part for a year."

One of the discoveries the students have made about the past is a piece of equipment called a hydraulic ram. Elkan said he had learned of the rams and suggested to mechanical engineering student David Eichenberger of Raleigh that he build one for his project.

The pump, which uses the hydraulic action of flowing water to push water uphill, was developed around 1750 in Great Britain. It provided water for cities in the United States with 20,000 to 40,000 people, he said.

Eichenberger built a ram for $42, but it's "not foolproof, it still has bugs in it that need to be worked out," Elkan said.

He said several people have approached the student and the professor about manufacturing the pump for developing countries.

"We want to be real careful that it's done for developing countries and not for people who do it for profit," Elkan said.

Meanwhile, as word of the project spread, Elkan and his student learned of a hydraulic still operating on North Carolina's Roan Mountain. About the size of a vacuum cleaner, it lifts water 500 feet from a small stream to a popular camping and picnic area on the 6,285-foot-high summit at a rate of two gallons of water a minute.

The pump is maintained by local mechanic Oscar Queen, who is employed by the U.S. Forest Services.

Elkan said Queen reported that "except for having to change a gasket once in a while, or a relief valve plugging it up, it just runs year in and year out."

But the pump is just one of a vast but vanishing chest of old-time knowledge that Elkan said can be used to help developing countries.

Another is a non-electrically operated refrigerator that was built in the United States by the Crossley Co. Although about 75,000 such appliances were built, Elkan said he has never even seen one in an antique store.

Elkan said a friend of his, who directs research for an industrial firm once told him, "If one looked back, about everything we ever needed in developing countries has already been used at one time or another and then been forgotten about."

Former Leader Goes On Trial

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — A former high-ranking official of Nigeria's deposed civilian government has gone on trial before a military tribunal on charges of taking a kickback worth about $1.28 million.

Victor Masi, former finance and public works minister is the first Cabinet official of ex-President Shehu Shagari's government to be tried since the military seized power in a Dec. 31 coup. The military has accused Shagari's civilian administration of rampant corruption.

Masi and an aide, Simon Nwokomah, were charged with taking the bribe from a construction company, demanding another payment, and getting a road construction contract awarded to a firm partly owned by Masi, an official statement said.

The trial is being held behind closed doors.

Judge Says Will Stay With Case

RALEIGH (AP) — Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald's lawyer Tuesday asked U.S. District Court Judge Franklin Dupree to remove himself from MacDonald's case because the judge's relative worked for MacDonald's former prosecutor, but Dupree refused to withdraw.

Dupree has presided over the case since 1975. MacDonald is a former Army captain convicted in 1979 of slaying his pregnant wife and two young daughters at their Fort Bragg apartment in 1970.

MacDonald is seeking a new trial. Raleigh lawyer Wade Smith argued that Dupree shouldn't deal further with case because his former son-in-law was a member of the U.S. attorney's staff when it investigated the case in the early 1970s.

Smith said he and other defense lawyers were aware that James Proctor had been Dupree's son-in-law from December 1960 until July 1972. But Smith said that only recently did he learn that Proctor strongly advocated prosecuting MacDonald while a member of the U.S. attorney's staff.

Smith said Proctor's interest in the case "was enormous." He added that Proctor at one time had a shouting match with former MacDonald attorney Bernard Segal while the Army was investigating the case.

Dupree said he would not withdraw himself from the case.

"I have made a thorough study," he told Smith. "I just don't believe that in view of these circumstances which have been brought to light by your investigation that my impartiality in this case could be reasonably questioned."

He also said he was staying with the case "with some reluctance because I don't believe I've ever had a case that caused me more concern." He said his personal preference would be to relinquish the case but said he was "duty-bound" to keep it.

Justice Department lawyer Brian Murtagh had asked Dupree to deny Smith's motion.

Murtagh said there was no evidence that the judge had been biased at any time before or during the trial. He added that the defense should have raised the issue earlier if it was important.

Murtagh also said that Proctor had no success in persuading his superiors to prosecute MacDonald in the early 1970s.

MacDonald is seeking a new trial on the strength of 22 affidavits from witnesses who said they could support MacDonald's story that four drug-crazed intruders broke into his apartment and killed his family.

The government said new evidence wouldn't prove MacDonald's innocence.

In Cemetery

WAYNESBORO, Pa. (AP) — A cemetery is considered a sad place to many people. But to Chris Mills Benedict and John Null, it's a place filled with love.

That's why the two chose to be married at Green Hill Cemetery recently, reciting their vows amid quiet lawns and old trees.

When Chris was 12 years old, her father, Nevin Mills, took the job of superintendent of Green Hill, and the Mills family moved to a large brick house on the grounds of the cemetery. Chris and her friends spent happy times climbing trees and exploring the 65 acres, barefoot most of the time.

"At first my friends felt strange," she remembers, smiling. But they stayed for slumber parties, ball games and pool parties, and got used to the surroundings.

After Chris' first marriage ended in divorce, she said she was "gunshy," and not very interested in the friendly man she met at the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention in Philadelphia in June 1983. Even when he asked her to marry him the day after they met, she wasn't impressed.

"He was very persistent," she recalls, smiling at him. "He just kind of grew on me. He was good to me and the kids."

John Null of Mount Pleasant, Pa., had been a construction foreman for 10 years when he met Chris. He began to look for work in the Waynesboro area, and finally persuaded her to marry him.

On March 21, Chris' father died suddenly of a heart attack. Her mother moved in with Chris in Waynesboro, and they began to face the reality of leaving the house in the cemetery where they had spent 18 happy years.

The idea didn't come to them right away, but when it did they agreed it was the best solution: John applied for the job of superintendent of the cemetery, and got it. On May 14 he began work, and Chris and John set the wedding date.

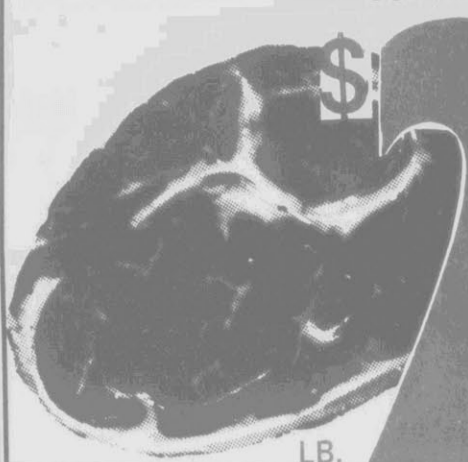

And so on a recent Saturday, Chris and John stood before the Rev. Allen Heckman, VFW past state chaplain, and exchanged vows.

But every item shown here can be ordered for you.

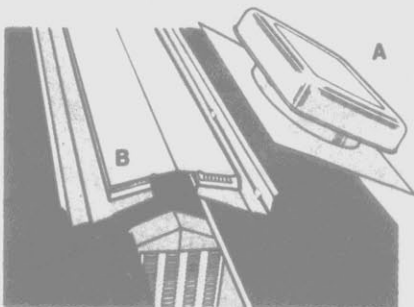

Lowe's Pricing Policy: Many items in this tabloid carry a reference retail price. The reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its full retail price based on prices at which it or similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference retail price does not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that our reference retail price as described above represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this advertisement are listed at "regular" selling prices. The merchandise is offered at this price except during a special sale. The purpose of showing a reference retail price (or a regular price) is to assist you, our customer, in making a knowledgeable and better informed buying decision. We suggest that you also do comparative-shopping and compare our prices. (Prices in this tabloid do not include delivery charges. Ask us about delivery rates.)

THE FACTS OF LICE

Millions of school children may have head lice sometime this year. These tiny insects are transmitted from one person to another on combs, clothing hung together, caps, seats in movies and buses. AND, if a child brings them home, any family member can get them.

THINGS TO LOOK FOR:
Intense itching is the chief symptom of lice infestation.

HOW ECKERD CAN HELP:
It can be very easy to get rid of lice infestation with the proper medication and cleaning procedures. Ask your Eckerd pharmacist about safe medications and cleaning items that can quickly kill lice and their eggs.
