Leaf Sales House Burns

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

An early-evening fire Thursday destroyed the Raynor-Forbes & Clark Tobacco Warehouse — a 226,875-square-foot tobacco sales facility — on Dickinson Avenue at the Maxwell Street intersection.

The fire was discovered about 6:40 p.m. and was through the roof before units from the Greenville Fire-Rescue Department substation, three blocks away on Memorial Drive, arrived at the scene. The fire apparently started on the west side of the warehouse, then quickly traveled the length and width of the building, reducing it to ashes in an hour or so.

One of the owners, W.C. "Billy" Clark Jr., watching the fire from across Dickinson Avenue, said Tuesday he had no idea how much tobacco was inside when the fire erupted.

Clark, who said Thursday's sale ended at 11 a.m., said there were only "three rows of farmers' tobacco" in the building. Most tobacco for Monday's sale, he said, would have been unloaded today.

However, Clark said tobacco-buying companies lost tobacco in the fire.

Two other owners were among four people in a warehouse office when the fire broke out. They all escaped unhurt.

One of them, W.C. Clark III, said they noticed problems with telephones in the office, looked out, and saw piles of tobacco burning and flames in the roof. "Smoke was billowing out the front door" as they ran to safety, he said.

Young Clark said this morning that the warehouse and tobacco were insured, and said Raynor-Forbes & Clark sales will be held at the Gold Leaf Warehouse at the intersection of Charles and 14th streets, beginning Monday.

He said scales, telephones and other equipment are being installed today and "we'll start unloading tobacco Saturday" for Monday's sale.

Flames Raze Warehouse

The Raynor-Forbes, and Clark Tobacco Warehouse, goes up in flames as Greenville firemen try to bring the blaze under control. The flames apparently started on the west side of the warehouse and quickly consumed the building, reducing it to ashes in an hour or so. Four people in the building escaped unhurt. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

"We're just trying to get our customers satisfied for this year," before deciding whether to rebuild, Clark said.

Young Clark also said he had no idea how much tobacco was destroyed in the fire, but said records from two office safes, which list the amount of tobacco, were recovered intact this morning.

Pitt County tax department records list the depreciated value of the warehouse, built in 1952, as $385,620. However, tax records show the estimated replacement cost as $1.54 million.

Assistant Fire-Rescue Chief Don Mills said one fireman narrowly escaped injury when he moved seconds before a portion of the front wall of the warehouse collapsed. Another firefighter injured his wrist when he stepped in a hole and fell, according to Mills.

Mills, who said four pumpers, two rescue units and the snorkel responded to the fire scene, said the fire was under control by 7:30 p.m. He said all trucks had left the scene by 11 p.m., although "we kept a man there all night."

Assistant County Fire Marshall

Terry Payne said a pumper from the Staton House Fire Department was called to stand by at the city's central fire station during the blaze. When that unit responded to a false alarm on Church Street, a fire truck from Winterville was assigned stand-by duties at the fire house at the intersection of Fifth and Greene streets, Payne said.

In addition, Payne said a rescue unit from Eastern Pines was assigned stand-by duties at the Memorial Drive substation, while Eastern Pines and Red Oak fire units were on stand-by status at their stations.

Sikhs Seize Jet Carrying 93

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Sikh militants armed with daggers hijacked an Indian jetliner carrying 93 people today, forced it to fly to Pakistan and threatened to kill the passengers and blow up the plane, officials said. Some 10 hours after the jet arrived in Pakistan, the government announced its departure.

The one-line Pakistani government statement said the jetliner's destination was not known. The plane was refueled earlier, and India's civil aviation minister said the hijackers wanted to go to the United States by way of Bahrain.

The Pakistani news agency reported today that all the passengers had been set free, but government spokesman Mohammad Sharif promptly denied that report. A Pakistani government spokesman, Younis M. Sethi, said the hijackers had released two Norwegian women who were ill. One of the women apparently suffered a heart attack and was rushed to a hospital, he said. Pakistani officials said later that a crippled man, his wife and child had also been set free.

The Indian Airlines Boeing 737 with 87 passengers and six crew members was commandeered on a domestic flight from New Delhi to Srinagar, capital of northern Kashmir state. Flight IC425 was hijacked after a stop in Chandigarh at 7:25 a.m. (9:55 p.m. EDT Thursday), and diverted to Lahore, Pakistan, where officials closed the airport and halted other incoming flights.

Radio Pakistan said there were six hijackers. India's civil aviation minister, Khursheed Alam Khan, said one of the Norwegian women freed by the hijackers told authorities the sky pirates carried kirpans, small knives worn by faithful Sikhs. It was not known if they had other weapons. The Indian government allows Sikhs to carry kirpans aboard commercial flights. After dagger-wielding Sikhs hijacked a plane in 1981, India banned kirpans from planes. The government later lifted the ban after agitation by militant Sikhs.

Khan told the Indian Parliament that the hijackers were demanding freedom for imprisoned supporters of Sikh extremist leader Jarnail Singh Bhindranwale, who was killed in the Indian army attack on the Sikhs' sacred Golden Temple in Amritsar in early June.

Reagan Says 'No Cake Walk'

DALLAS (AP) — President Reagan, after accepting his party's nomination to seek a renewal of his 1980 mandate, warned Republican Party leaders today that "1984 isn't a cake walk" just because he's ahead in the polls.

"This is no time to sit on our laurels," Reagan told the post-convention meeting of the Republican National Committee.

And to show he meant it, the president set off for Chicago to campaign before the Veterans of Foreign Wars before returning east for a weekend in the comfort of his Camp David retreat atop Maryland's Catoctin Mountain.

In accepting his convention's renomination, Reagan dismissed his Democratic opponents' "New Realism," saying, "Their new realism is just the old liberalism."

Rejecting Walter F. Mondale's attacks on his administration's record budget deficits, Reagan said Mondale — whose name he never used — "has only recently found budget deficits alarming. Nearly ten years ago he insisted ... we sometimes 'need a deficit in order to stimulate the economy.'"

Reagan said Democrats "should be experts on budget deficits. They've spent most of their political careers creating deficits."

For nearly 50 years, Reagan said, "deficit spending has been their deliberate policy."

In a speech interrupted every sentence or two by chanting, cheering, howling delegates, one of Reagan's best-loved lines dealt with Democrats' spending habits.

"We could say they spend money like drunken sailors," Reagan said, "but that would be unfair to drunken sailors." When the crowd finally let him continue, he added, "I was going to say, it would be unfair to drunken sailors because the sailors are spending their own money."

The president said the 1984 election presents "the clearest political choice of half a century."

He called it a choice "between two different visions of the future, two fundamentally different ways of governing — their government of pessimism, fear and limits or ours of hope, confidence and growth."

Recalling his acceptance speech four years ago, Reagan said, "We proclaimed a dream of an America that would be 'a shining city on a hill ... Now it's all coming together. With our beloved nation at peace, we are in the midst of a springtime of hope for America. Greatness lies ahead of us.'"

Reagan was introduced by an 18-minute film so promotional that two networks, CBS and ABC, broadcast only excerpts. Two others, NBC and CNN, broadcast the entire film.

"I feel more patriotic ... I'm proud to be an American," said people in the opening scenes. They were followed by scenes of Reagan in the White House and at the Demilitarized Zone in Korea, in a chow line with U.S. troops.

There were scenes of the assassination attempt in 1981 during which the president was shot in the chest, and then it was on the president in China and on the Normandy coast where allied troops landed on D-Day in 1944.

Shades Of The Old West

ROME (AP) — Italian bandits, taking a page from America's Wild West days, are robbing trains in epidemic proportions. But instead of pistols and horses, the outlaws are using submachine guns, high-powered cars and even motorboats.

Officials say there have been 24 robberies of mail cars so far this year, up from 14 all of last year. There also were 8,000 reported robberies of passengers in 1983, and officials say such robberies are increasing this year, although they have no precise statistics.

The problem has become so acute that the interior, postal and transportation ministers held an emergency meeting with top police officials Thursday to discuss new efforts to combat the crime wave.

The meeting was held one day after bandits armed with submachine guns struck for the third time this month near Naples. They stole at least 200 million lire — $120,000 — from a mail car at a seaside station and then fled by car and motorboat, with guns blazing to cover their tracks.

Other train robbers have made off with as much as $600,000 worth of goods this year.

"It's just like the Far West, but without any risk of getting shot," said the Communist Party daily L'Unita. "Train robberies are the new frontier ... for organized crime."

Pampered Pets Are Enjoying Luxury Life

By ROSANNE RAMUNNI
Easton Express

EASTON, Pa. (AP) — When Old Mother Hubbard went to the cupboard to get her dog a bone, she came up empty-handed.

Today, it's likely the cupboard is stocked with multiflavored bones, cheese-flavored biscuits and vitaminized chocolate drops.

If it's not, Rover might go out for dinner. Restaurants featuring cuisine for canines are the latest thing. At the Beach Regency Hotel in Nice, France, for example, dogs can feast on a buffet of hot and cold meats, vegetables, cheeses and desserts. The meals range from $3 to $9, depending on the appetite and size of the dog.

Pet owners are not just feeding their pets better these days. They are making appointments to have their dogs' hair styled. They are outfitting their pooches with clothing and accessories. And, in the end, they are giving Fido and Spot decent burials.

Dogs are no longer living a dog's life. They're living in an age where pampering has become a popular pastime for many pet owners.

"My pets are my kids; people don't like to hear it but it's true," said Lynn Andrews, proprietor of the Kimberly Pet Cemetery in Fogelsville, and owner of two dogs, two cats and a rabbit. "It's a normal human reaction to form attachments to pets. Pets help us express a lot of things in our lives."

She invites those who are skeptical about the value of relationships between pets and owners to read studies on what social scientists have termed the "human-companion-animal bond."

She said one study conducted at a Lima, Ohio, prison demonstrated that pets can transform hardened prison inmates into warm, loving human beings. Another found that senior citizens living alone and heart-attack victims live longer if they own pets. Yet another proved that pets can be helpful to emotionally disturbed children.

According to pet groomers in the Easton area, bona fide pet-pamperers dress their dog in a raincoat and rubber boots before braving inclement weather. In fact, they have an entire wardrobe for their pet.

What type of clothing is being sold these days? You name it, it's available. Everything from tuxedos to pajamas.

Sandy King's Pets and Supplies in Palmer Township carries a full line of seasonal clothing for dogs. For the winter, there are ski sweaters, snowsuits, leg warmers and scarves. For spring and summer, there are raincoats, rubber boots, shirts bearing a variety of sayings, and sunglasses. For energetic dogs, there are jogging suits. For dogs who enjoy football, there are Penn State sweatshirts.

Karen Tracy, owner of the Bark-ing Lot in Brodheadsville, insists that dressing dogs in certain types of clothing is practical. Her two Tibetan terriers wear raincoats and boots. "When dogs, especially long-haired ones, go out in the snow, they get caked with it," she said.

Besides, she added, most dogs don't mind being dressed. French poodles seem to enjoy it. "A lot of them are little showoffs," she said.

Many pet-pamperers enjoy having their dogs groomed. Yet, many pet owners — even those who are not pamperers — feed their dogs table scraps. The groomers agree that this is not a good idea.

"People think they're doing their pets a favor, but table scraps are not a completely balanced meal," said Jo Ann Snell, who owns Animals Corner in Washington and five dogs, two cats, a chinchilla and numerous ferrets.

The final act of pampering that owners can provide their pets is burial in a pet cemetery. The Kimberly Pet Cemetery offers pets the ultimate in after-life accommodations.

Ms. Andrews, the proprietor, provides for family and friends to be with their beloved pet one last time at a viewing prior to interment. At the viewing, the casket is displayed and a poem and prayers are read.

The entire cost of burying an average-size dog is $138. That includes the cost of a standard casket, a fee for the lot, a charge for "opening" and "closing" the lot and a donation to the cemetery care fund.

Most dogs, the groomers agree, welcome the attention that pet-pamperers lavish on them. But some dogs — like people — are ingrates.

One of Ms. King's customers had a birthday party for her dog and invited a half-dozen other dogs to partake of the cake, which was made entirely of hamburger. But the finicky birthday dog turned up his nose at the cake.

He eats only steak.

A GIANT HERB

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A banana plantation needs to be planted just once in its history.

Del Monte Corp. says the banana plant, which resembles the palm tree, is actually a giant herb that continually produces offshoots. With proper agricultural practices, the same plant will produce bananas for decades.

Crystal Ball Might Have Shady Spot

DEAR ABBY: Last week I went to a spiritual reader who is supposed to have the power to tell you your past, your future and to make your dreams come true. I was told she charged $20, which was fine with me.

After the first reading, she asked me for another $20 so she could burn a candle to bring back my first love, which is something I have been praying and praying for. I gave her another $20 and she told me to come back in a week.

Well, I went back last night, and she said she would have to have another $50 because the evil spirits blew out the first candle and she would have to light another one to bring back my first love.

I told her I was not a rich woman and that was all the cash I had, so she asked me to leave my VISA card with her so she could buy something for the church in my name. She said that would help bring back my first love. Something told me not to leave it, so I didn't.

I feel like I am being drained for all I have, but it would be worth everything to me if she could bring back my first love.

I need to know if this woman has the power she claims to have. Please answer before I go broke.

UNDER HER SPELL

DEAR UNDER: The only "power" this woman has is to separate people like you from their money. Don't give her another dime! Get in touch with the "bunco squad" of your local police department immediately and report this fraud.

DEAR ABBY: I am 62 years old and have been a widow for two years. I recently met a very nice man, age 64. (He's divorced with grown children.) He's a retired military officer, very intelligent and sensible. He's wonderful company and I know he's interested in me; however, there's one problem. He smells. He looks very clean and neat, but he has a sweaty, disagreeable odor about him.

He wants to see me again, and I would like to see him—but only if he bathes. Should I tell him he has a problem? Or should I just forget about him?

MRS. CLEAN

DEAR MRS. CLEAN: Tell him! You would be doing him an enormous favor. If the cause is internal, he needs to see his physician. If it's external, he needs to know that if he doesn't clean up his act, it's curtains for his social life.

DEAR ABBY: Relevant to "Big-Busted in Birmingham:" Her fiance wanted to start a chicken farm but was too cheap to buy an incubator, so he asked "B.B." to hatch the eggs in her bra.

Had she gone along with the idea, she would have created the first real living bra. Can you imagine a more logical candidate for the booby hatch?

H.N.D., QUINCY, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing something I came across a while back in the Catholic Digest. It was written by a 9-year-old third-grade girl, and it made me smile.

I hope you think it's worth passing along to your readers.

ILLINOIS GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: It's well worth it, and here it is:

WHAT IS A GRANDMOTHER?

A grandmother is a lady who has no children of her own, so she likes other people's little girls. A grandfather is a man grandmother. He goes for walks with the boys, and they talk about fishing and tractors and things like that.

Grandmas don't have to do anything except be there. They're old, so they shouldn't play hard or run. It is enough if they drive us to the market where the pretend horse is and have lots of dimes ready.

Or, if they take us for walks, they should slow down past things like pretty leaves or caterpillars. They should never, ever say, "Hurry up."

Usually they are fat, but not too fat to tie kids' shoes. They wear glasses and funny underwear. They can take their teeth and gums off.

It is better if they don't type-write, or play cards except with us. They don't have to be smart, only answer questions like why dogs hate cats and how come God isn't married. They don't talk baby talk like visitors do, because it is hard to understand. When they read to us, they don't skip or mind if it is the same story again.

Everybody should try to have one, especially if you don't have television, because grandmas are the only grown-ups who have got time.

DEAR ABBY: What is your opinion of a wife who insists that each time I take a shower I wipe down the walls and glass doors in the shower?

Frankly, if it weren't for co-workers and customers, I wouldn't shower at all.

HENPECKED IN WISCONSIN

DEAR HENPECKED: Somebody has to tidy up, so why not the person who made the mess?

And since you shower only out of consideration to co-workers and customers, it's obvious why your wife doesn't feel like doing anything for you.

(Getting married? Send for Abby's new updated, expanded booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Fathers Have Special Role With Children

By REDBOOK
A Hearst Magazine

Fathers who act on the principle that Pop is a parent, too, will wind up with smarter, friendlier, happier children, according to one of America's leading pediatricians.

Dr. T. Berry Brazelton, a top authority on bringing up baby, says in his regular column in Redbook's September issue that fathers have a special role in child-raising.

Fathers are more than substitute mothers — they "contribute very special things to a child's emotional and intellectual development," writes Brazelton.

The pediatrician, an associate professor of pediatrics at Harvard University and chief of the Child Development Unit at Boston's Children's Hospital Medical Center, says, "Every child needs a mother and a father — and every father can make a difference."

He stresses the unique contributions that fathers make to their children:

"For a baby, having an active, involved father is not the same as simply having more mothering."

He cites a 1975 study of first time parents by Dr. Ross Parke and Douglas Swan that highlighted the differences in the ways mothers and fathers handle children.

"The mothers tended to be gentle and low-keyed with their babies. Fathers, on the other hand, were more playful," he reports, "tickling and poking their babies more than the mothers did."

Studies at Harvard also found that fathers play more games with their babies and poke and tickle them more than mothers do.

"The bottom line, though, is that fathers give children more than just fun," Brazelton says.

"Where there is an active father, the child grows up to be more successful at school, to have a better sense of humor and to get along better with other kids. He believes more in himself and is better motivated to learn."

"By the time he is six or seven, the child's IQ will be higher. All because he was involved with a mother and a father."

Children react differently to mothers and fathers from as young as six weeks old, he says.

"These different responses exist even in children of a single parent," he says. "A father in my practice, slightly embarrassed, told me that when his daughter wants to play she calls him 'Daddy' but when she needs something she calls him 'Mommy'."

Women should encourage their husbands to become more active parents, he says, teaching them what they need to know.

The pediatrician also offers suggestions for how a busy father can remain active with his children when they grow beyond infancy.

"I recommend busy fathers save a part of themselves for an encounter with their kids at the end of every day. If a father is willing to do his own relaxing later on, the hours before and after dinner can be for reading with the kids, playing with them or just hanging around."

"In addition, each child should get a special time alone with Dad at least once a week. If they can get away from the house altogether, that's even better."

Brazelton believes men have come a long way from the days when they were considered solely as breadwinners who might even be dangerously incompetent as parents.

"Men are expected to be more competent parents today," he says, "but we still do not reward them for being involved with children."

"In spite of women's march into the workplace, the message our society sends is still the same: It's okay for women to work, but their most important job is to mother; it's okay for men to be parents, but their most important work is work."

Brazelton has this message for everyone: "It is time for all of us to reinforce men who dare to be fathers."

Catherine Forbes To Make Debut Saturday

Catherine Forbes of Greenville will make her debut at the Seventh Colonial Ball Saturday evening at the Colonial Inn in Columbia, S.C.

The ball is sponsored by the South Carolina Society, Sons of the American Revolution. In addition to the formal presentation, a drop-in will be held Friday evening for the debutantes, their escorts and families where the debutantes and S.A.R. officials will be introduced.

Miss Forbes is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Fobes of Greenville. He father is a member of the S.A.R. Her brother, Charles S. Forbes III, will be her escort.

She will be wearing a formal gown of white chiffonette and beaded alencon lace. The gown has a fitted bodice of beaded re-embroidered alencon lace and iridescents scalloped at the scooped neckline. Bows of chiffonette adorn the shoulders and petticoat sleeves are edged with beaded lace. The full skirt flows into a sweep train. The gown was designed by Jim Hjeltn for Galina.

A junior at East Carolina University, Miss Forbes is interested in studying English. She is a graduate of J.H. Rose High School where she was a member of the Drama Club and Keywanettes. She is also a member of The Memorial Baptist Church.

She attended ECU during the first session of summer school and took two English courses. She also did some ushering for the Summer Theatre productions.

The debutante enjoys reading, swimming, tennis and traveling.

NEEDED TO COPE
ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A large group of 35- to 54-year-olds is seeking more education to cope with midlife changes, but higher educational institutions aren't meeting the group's needs, says a specialist in adult and continuing education.

Speaking recently at the University of Rochester's Graduate School of Education and Human Development, Dr. Margaret Hazlewood of Washington said:

"There's a market for adult and continuing education, but to recruit and retain adult students, higher education needs to retrain faculty, become more flexible, and to reach out to those who have been overlooked."

For example, she said, faculty must become "coaches, planners, brokers, linkers, counselors, rather than talkers. We need to prescribe less and to foster more self-direction."

Typewriter Can Aid Children's Computer Skills

ATLANTA (AP) — That typewriter stored away in the attic or basement can give children a head start in learning about computers, says Larry Blasch, who consults with schools in planning computer programs for the classroom.

"Use the typewriter to teach elementary school children keyboarding skills," advises Blasch, IBM education consultant, with headquarters in Atlanta. "The typewriter keyboard is similar to that of a computer but it's cheaper and it's also a good way to boost reading skills."

Blasch says when parents feel it's appropriate to buy a home computer, they shouldn't expect it to automatically make a child a computer wizard — he or she will need support.

"The child's learning will be more effective if parents get involved. Plan to work with the children at the computer — even if it's only 15 minutes a day. The software can be used for instruction or drill in basic skills or for enrichment in a broad range of subjects. Children can work as fast — or as slow — as they wish."

"But if parents don't show they're committed, the child is likely to play zap-em games or the computer will be stashed away someplace and die," Blasch said.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

'In Your Heart You Know ...'

Leafy Justice

Poets must be a strange breed. That conclusion stems from the poetry contest intended to bring fresh luster to the noble and illustrious collard.

Some of the better entries, said judges in the Ayden Festival event, were marked by a distinct downplay of that notable dietary staple whose qualities poets were expected to enhance ... instead, they engaged in biting the hand that fed them.

The press report informs us most of the anti-collards sentiments emerging from the younger writers. Chad Everett, 15, went so far as to call them a "vegetative plague" and a "wretched stain upon this great land." He was among the winners.

This could be overlooked. Chad is still young, and it is a fact that a taste for collards has to grow on many people; but even in making that allowance, a diet of collards might have brought him wisdom and taste beyond that of others his age.

The judges' account notes older writers took a higher plane and struck an uplifting note to express their liking "and even love" for the leafy greens; proving that with age there comes understanding and wisdom as well as an increasing awareness of the good things of life. Also they have relished collards for a longer interval, and benefitted therefrom.

We are told the poetry contest entries represented a broad spectrum of poets from ages 8 to 90, and more than 500 poems were entered from across the land. So the idea was an obvious success.

Perhaps the strangest factor of all in this singular facet of Ayden's 10th annual observance is that one of the two poetry judges (and oddly, too, one of the contest's originators) is not a Friend of Collards. It occurs to us a certain amount of infiltration and sabotage could be involved. Alex Albright may well be a superior English instructor at East Carolina University and a capable judge of poetry, but suspicions are rampant his distaste for collards might influence his impartiality as a judge in this particular case.

We ask you, would you look for a "hanging judge" if you faced a non-jury trial on traffic charges? Most assuredly not.

Another ECU English instructor, Luke Whisnant, was also a judge. He likes collards.

Now that's our kind of judge. All these deep (and dark) thoughts have brought on a headache which folklore assures a fresh collard leaf applied to the forehead will cure. That's good enough for us.

A Myth Goes

One would assume that after living with cats for centuries (they may have accompanied Sir Walter Raleigh's colonists) Americans would have an almost instinctive knowledge about that purring pet.

Not so. One of childhood's earlier lessons on feeding cats was that kitty preferred fish, closely followed by a saucer of milk, meat scraps, a mouse or a bird.

Now a Census of Manufactures reports demand for canned cat food made from fish is declining and attributes it to a new awareness of cat preferences by their owners.

Additionally, an authority points out cats did not develop around water (they are a desert animal) and have no instinct to seek out fish. He reminds that pet foods are bought by owners, not animals. He says they (cats) watch the goldfish (and the goldfish watch them) not because they represent a choice morsel but because the fish are moving.

All these years so many cat owners have been under a misapprehension!

Looking back, we recall a considerable number of childhood facts that turned out otherwise. One more, so late in life, will not draw blood — but maybe the earth moved just a bit.

White House Wishes Go Unnoticed

DALLAS — The moment of truth for the 1984 Republican National Convention came when the White House agent on the platform, Drew Lewis, was rebuffed by Rep. Tom Loeffler of Texas.

Lewis asked Loeffler not to press his platform amendment removing the White House-requested "wiggly room" for President Reagan to raise taxes next year. "The president won't like this," said Lewis. "You mean Dick Darman won't like it," the congressman snapped back.

Presidential aide Richard Darman was vacationing at Martha's Vineyard, not calling platform signals. But to the conservative populists who staged the Dallas platform rebellion, he symbolized the Eastern establishment operatives purporting to represent Reagan in Dallas. When their legitimacy as upholders of Reaganism was disputed, they were rolled over more consistently than agents of any other modern incumbent president unopposed for re-nomination.

The extent to which White House wishes were disregarded in drafting the platform, the only disputed business of this convention, cannot be overstated. Although the White House officially complained only of the plank criticizing the Federal Reserve Board, its wishes were spurned on taxes, national security and social issues.

But in truth, insurgents on the platform committee believed they were following true Reaganite faith far more closely than the Washington-based lawyers, lobbyists and political consultants represented the president here. Most members of this convention management team ran the Kansas City convention for Gerald Ford against Reagan in 1976.

The president's agent on the platform committee was no Californian (as in 1976 and 1980) but Stanton Anderson, a high-priced Washington lawyer-lobbyist elected as a delegate by the microscopic District of Columbia Republican Party. He sat in the back row of the committee, relaying signals from campaign functionaries hidden behind a curtain (enjoying only mixed success in platform voting).

Although Anderson revealed no Reaganite leanings before Reagan entered the White House, a presidential aide told us, "Stan is the only one we can trust" on a committee packed with long-term Reaganites. That candid admission measures the gap between the White House and rank-and-file Republicans on the eve of the campaign.

The president's aides were interested solely in avoiding open conflict by drafting a bland platform; the Reaganites wanted to expand the framework and enlarge the party, seeking to turn 1984 into a realigning election. That contradiction explains the difficulty in managing the platform encountered by Drew Lewis, who as secretary of transportation was perhaps Reagan's most politically astute Cabinet member.

Indeed, it is doubtful that even a brass-knuckles battle could have been won. Ronald Reagan himself seemed remote and shadowy.

DALLAS (AP) — Twenty years ago, Barry Goldwater planted the seeds of conservative dominance in the Republican Party, and now he was back for Ronald Reagan's harvest.

The nominee of 1964, who battled in the political trenches to "take this party back" for conservatism, bestowed his old campaign slogan on his heir, the president of 1984.

"In your hearts, you know he's right," Goldwater told the Republican National Convention on Wednesday night.

The Arizona senator was duly applauded then, as when he repeated his defiant warcry of two decades back. "And let me remind you," he said, "extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice." It was explosive first time out. This time it was only nostalgic. These conservative Republicans warmed to the words, but they hadn't waged the wars of the Goldwater era.

The controversies that raged between GOP factions in those days have not ended, but the conservatives Goldwater led in a losing presidential battle are in total command of the party.

They gained it behind President Reagan, who first came to national politics as a campaigner and fundraiser in the Goldwater campaign. There's no generation gap between the conservative champions — Reagan is 73, Goldwater 75. But there is a wide one between the Republican troops of their campaings. In the years since Goldwater's nomination, the Republican spectrum — indeed, the American political spectrum — has moved toward the right. The Democratic platform of 1984 is a more conservative document than those of the past. The Republican platform includes planks that go beyond Goldwater's conservatism.

In another era, conservatives did battle with people like Nelson A. Rockefeller, liberal Republicans who preferred to be called moderates, or centrists, or mainstream politicians.

But the mainstream isn't where it used to be. Gerald R. Ford is a basically conservative Midwestern Republican, but in today's lineup he's a voice from the center. "I'm a moderate or a centrist in the Republican Party," the former president said. "I feel very strongly that that element in the Republican Party has to be represented."

That's the sort of thing Rockefeller and his allies used to say to the Goldwater conservatives. Not that it got them much. The nominated Goldwater said he did not expect the support of people who did not agree with his cause. That cause was Republican conservatism.

"I don't buy the idea that I'm the godfather or the padre of what's going on today," Goldwater said in Dallas. "My ideas weren't new."

But he was the leader, "the conscience of a conservative," the symbol of the movement that moved the party. Sen. John Tower of Texas told the convention Goldwater "fostered a movement that changed the political complexion of America — culminating in the election of Ronald Reagan to the presidency of the United States."

For all that, Goldwater has not always been a hero to the new right. He supported Ford over Reagan for the Republican nomination in 1976, and some of his old supporters thought it a betrayal.

He opposes constitutional amendments to ban abortion and to permit prayer in public schools, not because he disagrees with the objectives but because he doesn't want the Constitution changed for such purposes. Both are supported in the GOP platform. Goldwater once vowed to fight the new right "if they try to dictate their moral convictions to all Americans in the name of conservatism."

The 1984 platform was approved routinely, without a dissenting word. The moderates who wanted it amended in their direction couldn't muster the support to take their case to the convention floor. Goldwater's partisans didn't have that kind of control in 1964. But they had the voices to shout down his critics, and the votes make it stick.

"I have a hunch this is my last convention," Goldwater remarked in Dallas.

Whether it is or not, his imprint will be there when Republican meet again.

Strength For Today

There is an old gospel hymn the refrain of which runs, "Will There Be Any Stars in My Crown?"

We may smile condescendingly on what we consider to be mere sentiment and superficial theology. But is this reaction justified? We may not express out longing for heaven in such words and images today, but if we do not have a longing for heaven, then our theology is imperfect and our religion immature.

What will heaven be like? The Bible does not go to great lengths to describe it, and probably the reason is that its glory is beyond description.

A quiet conscience, a sense of right doing, a firm faith in the goodness and love of God — here is the basis for heaven on earth. A hope for life everlasting lived amid glories too great for human language to express — this is the ultimate hope. And we should cherish it.

Testing The Microphone

"Mr. President, can I have a voice level please? We go on the air in a few minutes."

"My fellow Americans, I'm pleased to tell you today that I've signed legislation that would outlaw Russia forever. We begin bombing in five minutes."

"Mr. President, you're not coming through very well. What I'm getting on my earphones is that you said we were going to begin bombing the Russians in five minutes."

"You heard me correctly. There is nothing wrong with the sound."

"Mr. President, you're not serious, are you?"

"Of course not. It just a joke, like 9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1."

"I don't know that joke."

"Well, there's two guys on this American nuclear submarine and they start wondering what would happen if they both put their keys in to the missile computer at the same time."

"Mr. President, you're fading on me. Could you speak up just a little?"

"How's this? I'm sick and tired of the commies turning down all my disarmament plans. I say let's nuke 'em, and get it over with. How was that?"

"Your voice was loud and clear, but I'm not sure I heard the message correctly. Did you say something about nuking the Russians?"

"I'm just having a little fun with the mike test. We're not on the air, are we?"

"Not yet, sir. But we're awfully close. Could we try it once more? Why don't you recite 'Mary Had a Little Lamb'?"

"I don't know that one. How about 'Give my regards to the Kremlin, say hello to the big Red Square. Tell all the folks on Gorky Street that we'll soon be there.'"

"That was good, Mr. President. Are you comfortable with the volume?"

"Why shouldn't I be comfortable with the volume? Are you taping all these tests?"

"Yes, sir."

"Good, you never can tell when I want to use one. How much time do we have?"

"Two minutes. Would you like to try another test?"

"How's this? I never saw a mushroom cloud. I never hope to see one. But if I did I know I'd rather see than be one."

"Mr. President, I hope I'm not out of line but do you know something I don't know?"

"How's that?"

"Well, all these voice tests indicate there seems to be something on your mind. A lot of guys in the control room are calling their wives."

"Don't be ridiculous. I'm just trying to make the voice tests more interesting. They have no right to call their wives because anything I say before my radio broadcast is off the record."

"Yes, sir. But suppose the Russians pick up on the tests and think it's the real thing?"

"Just let them try it and see how far they get."

"That's not the point, sir. I think when we're going for a voice level we ought to stick to safer subjects such as Mondale and taxes."

"I'm the president and I can say anything I want to when I'm testing. It's my mike and I paid for it."

Soviets Reject Report

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has firmly denied a report in the London publication Jane's Fighting Ships that elite Soviet commando units are operating along the coast of neutral Sweden.

The official news agency Tass, in a report Thursday, dismissed the Jane's story as "absurd inventions" and said Jane's Editor-in-Chief Capt. John Moore "seems to have decided to beat every record of lies and slanders against the Soviet Union."

In Sweden, Hans-Gustaf Wessberg, the defense press secretary, told The Associated Press today: "The picture painted by Jane's does not conform with the reports from Swedish defense officials and politicians on submarine violations and other incidents."

Moore wrote in a foreword to the 1984-85 yearbook of Jane's Fighting Ships, published in London Thursday, that elite Soviet commando units operating from submarines or converted merchant ships are continuing to penetrate Swedish territorial waters "in flagrant contravention of international law."

Moore said the units are "trained in the techniques of raiding, sabotage, reconnaissance and political murder."

Tass denied that the Soviet Union infringes on Sweden's security.

"The Soviet Union has always strictly observed the generally recognized norms of international law, honors the borders of other states and, unlike the NATO member-countries, does not infringe upon the sovereignty and independence of other states."

It referred to the incident in October 1981 when a Soviet submarine was stranded on rocks in Swedish territorial waters and repeated previous Soviet statements that the submarine was in Swedish waters because it had faulty navigational equipment. The incident was "unintentional" and "in no way affected Sweden's security interests," Tass said.

Iraqi Jets Rocket Ship

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iraqi warplanes rocketed a ship south of Iran's Kharg Island oil terminal today, and shipping sources said a Cypriot tanker captain radioed that his vessel had been hit and set afire, forcing the crew to abandon ship.

In Baghdad, the Iraqi military spokesman said jetfighters "successfully raided and effectively hit a big naval target" south of Kharg, Iran's main oil terminal.

Iraq did not identify its victim, but the term "big naval target" is commonly used by Iraq to refer to a tanker. It was the second attack on gulf shipping claimed by Iraq within 24 hours.

The attack was confirmed by Lloyd's Shipping Intelligence Unit in London, which said the master of the 31,280-ton Cypriot tanker Amethyst sent an SOS a half-hour after the attack saying the ship, which had picked up oil at Kharg six hours earlier, was burning badly and needed helicopter assistance.

Lloyd's later said it had received word that the Amethyst had been struck by a missile on its starboard side, and that tanks number six and seven were spilling burning oil. It said the living quarters and engine room also were on fire.

The London firm said the Amethyst's crew is believed to have been evacuated by Iranian helicopters, and that several tugs were believed fighting the fire.

British Embassy Hit In Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Unidentified assailants fired rocket-propelled grenades at the new British Embassy in west Beirut today, damaging the consular and visa section but causing no casualties, Charge D'Affaires Richard Palmer said.

Meanwhile, the death of Lebanon's highest ranking Druse army officer, chief of staff Maj. Gen. Nadim Hakim, in an air crash threatened to further delay President Amin Gemayel's plans to extend his government's control to the Druse-controlled central mountains.

And in the northern port of Tripoli, authorities put the final toll from four days of fighting by rival Moslem militias at 120 killed and 325 wounded, most of them civilians.

Palmer said two rocket-propelled grenades struck the 11-story building that houses the embassy in the seafloor Ruche neighborhood at 1 a.m.

The embassy moved only a month ago to the new premises in the city's Moslem sector. An Arabic speaking man claimed responsibility for the attack on behalf of the "Lebanese National Resistance Front" in a telephone call to the Beirut office of the French news agency Agence France-Presse.

mythical Soviet submarines in Sweden's territorial waters was initiated at (the) CIA's prompting a long time ago," Tass continued.

"The Soviet competent authorities have already more than once refuted all inventions of this kind, yet the provocative anti-Soviet campaign around the alleged 'invasion' of Sweden's territorial waters and those of other countries by Soviet submarines is continuing."

Tass said that what it called the campaign about Soviet submarines was a deliberate move by people seeking to undermine detente and Soviet-Swedish relations.

Wessberg said submarine violations of Swedish waters have been going on since the 1960s, but declined to say how often or by which nations. He said until recently the violations occurred in the outer territorial waters and that intruders left the area when detected.

Lost Jewish City Found

CARMEI, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Beneath a maze of stone huts now used by Arab shepherds, an Israeli archaeologist believes he has uncovered a lost Jewish city where winemakers once worked in massive caves.

Groping his way down a dusty stone stairway, archaeologist Avraham Negev led some students and a reporter recently into one of the caves which he said was part of Carmel, a city dating back to the third century, when the Romans ruled Palestine and when Jewish sages composed the Talmud.

Carmel is mentioned in the Old Testament as a Jewish settlement, but few historians believed that Jews inhabited the area after the Romans razed Jerusalem in 135 A.D. Negev, a lecturer at Hebrew University, said he began researching the area 35 miles south of Jerusalem after a synagogue was unearthed in 1969.

The synagogue indicated that Jews lived in Carmel, at least until the Moslem invasion of Palestine in the seventh century.

Most of the volunteers excavating the 15-acre site are religious Jews from nearby settlements who regard the finds as historical proof of their claim to the predominantly Arab West Bank, which Israel captured in 1967.

Negev said Carmel was known to be a town in Biblical times. But the only recorded proof that it still existed as a Jewish city in Roman times came in the writings of Eusebius, bishop of the Mediterranean coastal city of Caesarea.

Biblical Carmel was about one mile from the Roman-era city being excavated. Old Testament references date it to the 13th century B.C., mentioning it as an inheritance of the Israelite tribe of Judah.

Negev said the Romans destroyed ancient Carmel after a Jewish revolt failed in the second century, and built their own village by that name. The Jews built another town nearby.

The African nations of Tanzania and Uganda announced in 1972 that they had settled a dispute that had arisen when Uganda accused Tanzania of launching an invasion.

Satellite Pinpoints Crash

DETROIT (AP) — Rescue workers in western Michigan were first alerted to the fatal crash of a small plane when the aircraft's emergency signal was picked up by a Soviet satellite, authorities said.

Two people died Wednesday night when a Cessna 150 apparently ran out of gas and crashed shortly after takeoff from a Muskegon airport. The plane's emergency signal was picked up early Thursday and relayed to earth by one of three Soviet satellites in a five-nation tracking system, said Air Force Lt. Col. Bill Clark.

The first Soviet signal came about four hours after the accident, and the crash site was pinpointed three hours later, Clark said from Scott Air Force Base in Illinois, where he is director of inland search and rescue.

"Without this system, we could have spent days looking for these folks," he said.

Richard Pumphery, 49, of Covert, and Robert Sherman, 14, of Muskegon, died on impact when the plane struck a tree in a dense wooded area, said Muskegon County Sheriff's Lt. Bill Bayne.

The two took off Wednesday night for an impromptu flight and probably crashed less than 40 minutes later, he estimated.

"There wasn't any fuel in the wing tanks," Bayne said. "We're assuming they were out of fuel."

The Soviet satellite relayed a signal early Thursday from the plane's on-board emergency locator to the base's search-and-rescue team, Clark said.

The first satellite can pinpoint a crash within 12 miles and the second within three miles, he added.

"It's a routine, 24-hour operation. The rescue center is the clearinghouse for all inland rescue in the continental United States," Clark said.

The United States, Soviet Union, Norway, Canada and France belong to the system, Clark said, adding that the Soviets are involved for its maritime applications.

The system began operating two months after the first Soviet tracking satellite was launched in June 1982, Clark said.

The United States also launched a satellite in March 1983, but it failed in June, Clark said. Another U.S. satellite is scheduled for launch in September.

Mass Graves Found In Peru

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Government investigators have found the bodies of more than 100 young men in eight mass graves in the Andean region where soldiers are fighting Maoist guerrillas, according to news reports.

An independent Lima television station said Thursday that workers uncovered 90 bodies in seven graves in the Pucayacu Gorge, 40 miles northwest of the city of Ayacucho.

The newspaper La Republica said officials also found 25 to 30 bodies in a grave 18 miles from Huanta, where its correspondent, Jaime Ayala Sulca, 22, disappeared Aug. 2 after being seen entering military headquarters. It quoted local reporters as saying peasants led investigators from the attorney general's office to the site Wednesday.

The military command in Lima, which directs operations against Shining Path guerrillas in the Ayacucho region, did not comment on the reports.

Channel 5 said the seven graves were unearthed in the presence of Fernando Olivera Vega, a senior official in the attorney general's office. Two government workers and a judge who is investigating Sulca's disappearance also were present.

The television station said the bodies apparently had been buried within the last five days "since a copy of a Lima newspaper dated Aug. 19 was found in one of the graves."

It said the bodies "showed signs of torture." The hands of some of the victims were bound, and some of the faces were "covered with cloth."

Olivera Vega recently said that 934 people had disappeared in the Ayacucho area.

The discoveries raised to more than 240 the unofficial count of bodies found in the Andean mountain area since the armed forces assumed a bigger role in fighting guerrillas July 6.

Island Hearing

WILMINGTON (AP) — More than 400 people turned out for a hearing to support state acquisition of Masonboro Island, an uninhabited 13-mile stretch of sand that separates Wrightsville Beach and Carolina Beach.

The state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development is seeking federal approval to add the island to the North Carolina National Estuarine Sanctuary.

All but one of 25 speakers at the hearing supported sanctuary designation for the island, which is accessible only by boat.

Incentives

MOSCOW (AP) — The government will extend its experiment with worker incentives such as profit sharing and local autonomy to several more industries, the official Soviet news agency Tass says.

In January, the electrical and heavy engineering industries began the experiments on a nationwide basis. They also were applied on a limited basis to light industry, the food industry and some local services.

Enterprise directors were given more autonomy in making decisions, and workers were allowed to keep a percentage of profits, or savings from the cost of production.

Dockworkers Join Strike In Britain

LONDON (AP) — Leaders of Britain's 35,000 dockworkers today called an immediate nationwide strike, the country's second in two months, in support of the 23-week-old coal miners' walkout.

The decision was by an overwhelming majority," Transport and General Workers' Union official John Connolly declared after dockworkers' leaders huddled in emergency session for 2½ hours.

The nationwide strike was widely expected after steelworkers Thursday unloaded coal for a fuel-starved Scottish steel plant from a Panamanian freighter which the transport union had ordered boycotted in support of the miners. The steelworkers' action prompted an immediate strike by Scottish longshoremen, who began their strike today.

It is the second nationwide strike called by dockworkers in indirect support of the coal miners' walkout. The last strike by dockworkers, an 11-day walkout that paralyzed 75 percent of British trade, was in July.

Jim Gilligan, Scottish docks secretary of the transport union, said the strike by the 2,500 Scottish dockworkers began at 8 a.m.

Longshoremen are boycotting coal imports in support of the miners, but the steelworkers say supporting the miners would be devastating for the hard-pressed steel industry.

The miners' strike, which has idled 75 percent of Britain's 175 state-owned pits, was called by the 183,000-member National Union of Mineworkers on March 12 to protest plans to close 20 money-losing pits with the loss of 20,000 jobs.

The docks dispute flared up after crane drivers belonging to the Iron and Steel Trades Confederation unloaded 95,000 tons of coal Thursday from the freighter Ostia at the Hunterston terminal on Scotland's River Clyde.

Man Saves Toddler

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — An 18-month-old girl, clad only in a diaper, crawled across a busy highway while rush-hour traffic whizzed past her, before being rescued after she reached the grassy strip dividing the roadway.

Two astounded law enforcement officials and an employee of a nearby business scooped up Silver Lynn Whitley, who apparently was oblivious to her brush with death.

Orange County Sheriff's deputies said the girl's mother had watched her walk to a mobile home where the girl's father lives. She apparently thought the child had entered the trailer, the deputies said.

One rescuer, Roger Freeman, said he couldn't believe his eyes when he first spotted the baby Wednesday.

"I could see her silhouette in front of oncoming headlights, then she'd disappear behind cars as they rushed past her, apparently unaware she was there," said Freeman, 34.

Freeman, an agent with the Metropolitan Bureau of Investigation, said he and his partner partner, Chuck DeLosSantos, weren't sure they could get to the child before tragedy hit.

"All I could think of was that we weren't going to be able to reach her in time," Freeman said. "I yelled for Chuck to go faster, go faster."

Freeman reached the child a few seconds after she fell onto the median.

The child's mother, Marilyn Arlene Mercer, could not be reached for comment. Her estranged husband said he didn't know anything was awry until his wife showed up at his trailer looking for the child.

More Vanessa Nudes Planned

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Miss America Vanessa Williams, who resigned her crown under fire because of sexually explicit photos of her with another woman published in Penthouse magazine, has acknowledged posing nude for a second photographer.

Penthouse publisher Bob Guccione said the second collection of nude photographs of Miss Williams will appear in the January issue of his magazine. The pictures were taken by photographer Greg Whitman and Miss Williams signed a model's release before posing for the shots, she says.

"When I first heard that Penthouse was publishing nude photos of me, I assumed they were by Whitman," Miss Williams said. "In my naivete, I had signed a release for Whitman."

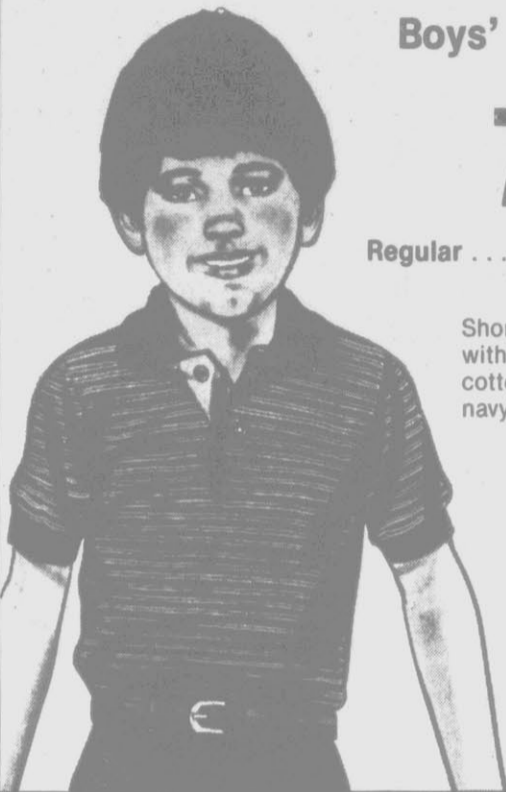

Miss Williams said she later "felt badly" about the pictures and asked Whitman if she could have the photos back. The New York Times reported today. The photographer returned them all, she said, except for several color slides which Whitman said he wanted for his portfolio.

IN FLAMES ... Firemen battle flames as molten ashes fall Thursday evening in a fire that destroyed the Raynor-Forbes and Clark Tobacco Warehouse on Dickinson Avenue. A spokesman for the owners said today records were saved that would show how much tobacco, which was insured, was stored in the warehouse. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

In The Area

Larceny Charge

Greenville police arrested Ronnie Allan Holland, 25, of Ayden, on a larceny charge Thursday following the 2:09 a.m. theft of an antenna from a police department car. Officer D.W. Nichols said Holland, a passenger in a car stopped in the 400 block of South Summit Street, allegedly took the aerial from the police car while the officer was talking to the driver of the stopped vehicle.

Theft Probed

Police are investigating the theft of two bicycles and other property Tuesday from 208 Georgetown Apartments. Officer J.G. Bridges, who said the theft was reported Thursday, said the bicycles, valued at $500, and a book bag valued at $15 were taken after entrance to the apartment was gained through a kitchen window.

Drug Arrest

A Route 4, Tarboro, man was arrested Thursday night by Pitt County deputies on drug law violations, according to Sheriff Ralph Tyson. The sheriff said Sammy Andrews was arrested at his residence near Penny Hill and charged with possession of a controlled substance with intent to manufacture and sell, and with possession of drug paraphernalia. Tyson said deputies confiscated a quantity of marijuana plants and seed, pipes, scales and other items. Bond for Andrews was set at $5,000.

Planning Session

Pitt District Scout leaders will attend a planning conference Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at Red Oak Christian Church. Activities for the 75th year of Scouting will be set up on the yearly calendar. Each unit in the district will receive information aimed at benefitting operations. Highlights for the September themes for Cubs and Boy Scouts will be presented. The Cub theme will be "This Is Our Town USA," while Scouts will follow "Camping In The 20s." Scouting involves Cubs, Boy Scouts and Explorers.

Family Reunion

The Forbes family reunion will be held today through Sunday in Greenville. Activities include a fish fry tonight from 7:30-10 at 600 W. 14th St.; a think tank and family outing Saturday from noon to 3 p.m. at Green Springs Park, and a banquet Saturday from 7-10 p.m. at the Ramada Inn. Sunday at 11 a.m., the family will worship at Holy Trinity United Holy Church.

Requests Approved

Police Capt. D.R. Bullock has announced the approval of two requests for solicitation permits in Greenville. Bullock said the requests were submitted by the Fountain Police Department to sell tickets through Sept. 22 to raise money for the School of Remedial Education activity program, and by the National Multiple Sclerosis Society to solicit funds Sept. 1-15 to raise money to support research and to support programs to aid area multiple sclerosis patients.

Heart Association

The organizational meeting of the Pitt County Heart Association was held this week with Lib Layne, temporary chairwoman of the reorganization committee, conducting the session. Ed Walker, Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce president and committee member, discussed the history and progress of the American Heart Association. Billie Cox, director of field services for the North Carolina Heart Association, provided additional information. Katherine Vinson, local 1983-84 vice president, outlined the importance of a year-round county association.

Appointees to the rules and regulations committee included Don Wilkerson, Dr. Robert Thurber and James Goes. Nominating committee members are Mavis Butts, chairman, Dr. Jim Jones, Dr. Ray Minges, Reid Hooper, Betty Fuqua, Pam Burkart and Martha Snowden. The next meeting will be Sept. 12 at 7:30 p.m. in the Willis Building. Officers will be elected and awards will be presented to 1983-84 volunteers.

Program Guest

Alex Albright, an English instructor at East Carolina University and a co-director of the ECU/Ayden Collard Poetry Contest, will be the guest on "ECU Concepts" Sunday at 8 a.m. on radio station WOOW. Albright will discuss the contest which attracted over 500 entries from 32 states and several foreign countries. He will also discuss the book "Leaves of Greens: The Collard Poems," which will go on sale during the Ayden Collard Festival, Sept. 3-9. "ECU Concepts" is a 15-minute program produced by ECU and hosted by James Rees of the department of theatre arts.

Council Workshop

The City Council will conduct a workshop Monday at 5:30 p.m. in the first floor conference room at city hall to discuss long-range planning for the city of Greenville.

Meeting Scheduled

The Pitt County Board of Social Services will meet Monday at noon at the Three Steers Restaurant on Memorial Drive.

Community Club

Hillsdale Community Club will meet at 4 p.m. Saturday at the home of Miss Mary Ebron, 1200 Meadowbrook Drive.

Pilot Club Sale

The Pilot Club of Greenville will conduct a combination trash, treasure and bake sale at U-Ren-Co. on Evans Street, located next door to Moffitt's Magnavox. The sale will start at 7 a.m. and continue throughout the day. Proceeds will be used to help finance community service projects.

Saturday Reunion

The Wilson Family reunion will be held at Triumph Baptist Church at 2 p.m. Saturday. A covered dish lunch will be served. For further information call Jean Hansley at 757-0036.

Candidate

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — The opposition National Party has picked attorney and journalist Alberto Saenz de Zumaran to replace jailed party leader Wilson Ferreira Aldunate as its presidential candidate for the Nov. 25 election.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

HOW THE LORD TOOK CARE OF ISRAEL IN THE WILDERNESS...
 WHEN THE ISRAELITES, UNDER MOSES' GUIDANCE, ESCAPED FROM EGYPT INTO THE WILDERNESS IT WAS NOT LONG BEFORE THE PEOPLE BEGAN TO HAVE THEIR DOUBTS AND MISGIVINGS. AS THEIR MEAGER FOOD SUPPLIES PETERED OUT THEY BEGAN TO PAINT A DISMAL PICTURE OF THEIR FUTURE....

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market gained ground today, aided by some favorable money-supply news.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 2.65 to 1,235.09 in the first half hour.

Gainers took a 4-3 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

After the close Thursday, the Federal Reserve reported an unexpected $1.2 billion drop in the basic measure of the money supply for the week ended Aug. 13.

The figures provided reinforcement for the belief that the Fed wasn't likely to clamp down on monetary growth in the near future, and stirred some hope that the central bank might lean instead toward easier credit conditions.

However, open-market interest rates showed little response to the news. Rates were mixed in the bond and short-term money markets this morning.

Dominion Resources led the active list, up 1/8 at 24 1/8. A 285,000-share block changed hands at 24 1/8.

On Thursday the Dow Jones industrial average edged up .66 to 1,232.44. Declines slightly outnumbered advances on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 83.13 million shares, against 116.05 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index gained .05 to 96.01. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.33 at 212.20.

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt has announced appointment of Roland H. Hayes to a new judgeship in Forsyth County, a position that was created by the state Legislature this year. Hayes, 53, has been an active member of the American Bar Association and the North Carolina Bar Association. A graduate of the North Carolina Central University School of Law, he has been in private law practice since 1974.

In Memory Of Willie Dixon Deceased April, 1976

Today we thought of you
Yesterday we did too
In fact no day passes
That we don't think of you
Unseen, unheard but always near
Still loved, still missed
And very dear.

Happy Birthday

Power Surge Helps Twins Win

MILWAUKEE (AP) — There's an unexplained power surge in Milwaukee.

The Brewers, woefully weak in the home-run department all season, had two homers Thursday afternoon in a 5-2 victory over the American League West-leading Minnesota Twins.

In the past five games, the Brewers have hit eight home runs to bring their season total to 72. They have also hit 18 in August, equaling their season-high accomplished in May.

"We haven't seen a lot of that," said Milwaukee Manager Rene Lachemann of the home runs. "I may have to go back over the lineup to see what we've been doing right."

In Thursday's game, Bill Schroeder cracked his ninth homer of the season and Mark Brouhard connected for his fifth. Both came off left-hander Frank Viola.

"They just hit the pitches I made mistakes on," said Viola, who fell to 14-11. "The fastball to Schroeder was a terrible 0-2 pitch, and he really hit it good."

"On Brouhard, he was looking for a changeup because he hit the heck out of it."

In the only other AL game Thursday, the Toronto Blue Jays beat Cleveland 6-1, snapping the Indians' eight-game winning streak.

The solo home runs by Schroeder and Brouhard didn't hurt Viola as much as a three-run fourth inning by the Brewers.

Jim Gantner opened the fourth with a double to left and Robin Yount reached first on second baseman Tim Teufel's error.

Cecil Cooper and Ted Simmons followed with singles to drive in both runners. One out later, Bobby Clark rapped a single to left to drive in Cooper and give Milwaukee a 4-2 lead.

"The only one well-hit was the one up the middle by Cooper," said Viola. "It was just one of those games."

Brouhard homered to left in the seventh to give the Brewers an insurance run.

The Brewers took a 1-0 lead in the third inning when Schroeder homered to center field.

Gary Gaetti put the Twins up 2-1 in the fourth when he followed Tom Brunansky's two-out single with a homer to left. It was his fifth of the year.

Bob McClure, 4-5, scattered six hits, walked two and struck out three in completing his first game in 12 starts. "McClure was throwing the fastball a lot more," said Lachemann, whose team snapped a five-game losing streak. "He was also getting ahead of hitters, which is a big thing for him."

Viola, who had won his last three starts, gave up nine hits; one walk and struck out three before leaving with one out in the seventh. Pete Filson and Bobby Castillo finished up for the Twins.

Minnesota took two of the three games in the series, and now leads the AL West by five games over Kansas City and California.

"If we keep winning series, we'll be in good shape," said Twins

Manager Billy Gardner. "The only thing we've got to look out for is not getting swept. You'll be in good shape if you split or win a series."

Blue Jays 6, Indians 1
Doyle Alexander pitched a four-hitter and George Bell drove in two runs as host Toronto finally beat Cleveland.

Alexander's victory boosted his record to 12-5 and ended the Blue Jays' five-game losing string to the Indians. The right-hander struck out seven and walked three in pitching his fifth complete game of the season.

The second-place Blue Jays now trail the Tigers by 12 games in the AL East.

Bahr's Missed Point Lets Eagles Take 20-19 Victory

By The Associated Press
Matt Bahr wanted to kick himself for missing an extra point.

"It will come back to haunt me many times," said Bahr after his missed extra point allowed the Philadelphia Eagles to escape with a 20-19 victory over his Cleveland Browns Thursday night, one of two National Football League exhibition games.

In the other contest, the Los Angeles Rams crushed the San Diego Chargers 47-14.

Along with his missed extra point, Bahr also fell several yards short on a 51-yard field-goal attempt with 10 seconds left.

"I thought I hit it well. I hit it straight. I just had to give it another yard or two," he said.

"Bahr didn't have enough gas," said Cleveland Coach Sam Rutigliano. "The range was within Bahr's potential. He's kicked that distance before."

The Browns had an opportunity to win after Philadelphia's Michael Haddix fumbled at his 45-yard line with 26 seconds left and Cleveland linebacker Chip Banks recovered.

Quarterback Paul McDonald, who completed 15 of 30 passes for 233 yards, connected with Dwight Walker for an 11-yard gain and a first down at the Eagles' 34. But three Cleveland passes fell incomplete before Bahr came on with 10 seconds remaining and failed to connect, too.

Ron Jaworski completed 11 of 20 passes for 186 yards and one touchdown to lead the Eagles' offense.

Los Angeles running back Barry Redden scored two touchdowns and the Rams rolled up 30 first-half points on their way to routing the Chargers. Redden scored on runs of one and three yards and Eric Dickerson added another rushing touchdown for the Rams, scoring on a one-yard run.

The Rams gained 212 yards in total offense in the first half to only 55 yards for the Chargers, who were forced to punt six times.

In tonight's action, Gerald Riggs will be put in the spotlight when the Atlanta Falcons meet the Denver Broncos.

Riggs, a 230-pounder beginning his third NFL season, suddenly became Atlanta's starting running back this week when the club's all-time rushing leader, William Andrews, was declared out for the season after ongoing knee surgery.

"It's a definite challenge to try to fill the shoes of a man who's done what William has done," Riggs said. "I've always been preparing myself to come in and play, whether I was a starter or not. Right now I'm concerned with not doing anything different from the way I've always been doing it."

Riggs has seen only limited duty as a backup during his two pro seasons. He has 18 carries for 92 yards during the current exhibition season.

Quarterback Steve Grogan will get plenty of action against Kansas City tonight, according to New England Coach Ron Meyer. Grogan "still needs more work," said Meyer. "We all do. This is right where we expected to be at this time."

Minnesota's new coach, Les Steckel, meanwhile, will be taking a hard look at veteran quarterback Archie Manning in the game against St. Louis.

"We just want to see how valuable he can be to the football team," said Steckel in explaining his choice of Manning for the assignment in the final regular-season tuneup for each team.

"We've just had so many injuries. We haven't since the first ballgame been able to show what we can do," said Steckel, whose team has a 1-2 preseason record. "We've taken the opportunity of this being experimental. I've been accused of being a mad chemist, but that's what it's been."

Backup quarterback Pat Ryan will start for the New York Jets against the Los Angeles Raiders. Starting quarterback Ken O'Brien and defensive end Mark Gastineau have missed practice time this week because they're involved in a court case in New York, and Jets Coach Joe Walton has not been especially happy with O'Brien's preseason work (37 completions in 71 attempts for 423 yards and one TD.)

In other games tonight, it's Detroit at Cincinnati, Miami at Tampa Bay and Seattle at San Francisco. In Saturday's games, Washington visits New Orleans, Indianapolis is at Green Bay, Pittsburgh at the New York Giants and Houston at Dallas. Chicago plays Buffalo at Indianapolis on Sunday to close out the NFL's preseason schedule.

Rozelle Says He Can't See USFL-NFL Merger

CHICAGO (AP) — United States Football League club owners, having made their momentous decision to challenge the National Football League for fall audiences, returned home, possibly to ponder the wisdom of their action.

Those who harbor dreams that the move, starting in 1986, will lead to some USFL teams being absorbed by the older and more powerful league, received little encouragement from NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Rozelle said Thursday that USFL owners are misguided if that is their intention.

"I just can't see it happening," said the commissioner. "There's just no sentiment for it. When we expand, we'd want to pick our own cities and our own owners."

"There are many, many reasons why it would not be feasible. One of them would be antitrust problems. We had to get a bill through Congress to merge with the AFL," Rozelle told the New York Times.

The NFL commissioner, in response to comments from New Jersey Generals owner Donald Trump that the USFL move would hurt NFL television ratings and increase NFL salaries, said, "Donald has an erroneous view if he thinks this shakes up the NFL."

Rozelle said he had talked to about 10 NFL owners and all of them welcomed the USFL shift.

"Everyone I spoke to said they're in favor of going to the fall because it stops spreading football out," the commissioner said.

The switch to a fall schedule, after one last spring-summer card next year, also will likely end the USFL's first crack at college talent. The 2-year-old league held its college draft in January, more than three months before the NFL, and was able to sign some top talent.

Its future success in that area remained uncertain.

"I think there are a lot of risks we can't anticipate," USFL Commissioner Chet Simmons after the two-day owners meeting had ended. "But there are a lot of things that can be done."

The first of those was the move announced Wednesday of the league-champion Philadelphia Stars to Baltimore. The second was the approval Thursday of the merger of the Oklahoma and Oakland franchises.

The league now at 17 teams has been forced to nurse two failing franchises in Los Angeles and Washington and is without a network TV contract for the 1986 transition season.

Simmons said it was unlikely the USFL would enter the spring season next year with 17 teams.

"The question of whether to go ahead and add a franchise or consolidate further to 16 (teams), or even 14, will depend" on what a committee of owners studying the implications of a move to the fall season in 1986 recommends, Simmons said.

Simmons said several groups have expressed interest in the Los Angeles franchise now that the fall season is set. And he said the league already has endorsed Florida real estate developer Sherwin Weiser's attempt to purchase the Washington franchise, although he conceded the league wouldn't wait much longer for a final agreement.

The final element in the "shakeout" depends on Eddie Einhorn, the owner of baseball's Chicago White Sox and the recent buyer of the USFL's Chicago franchise. He has not yet committed to fielding a team for 1985 — in Chicago or elsewhere.

WITN-TV To Air ECU-FSU Game

The East Carolina University-Florida State football game will be broadcast at 8 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 1 on taped delay by WITN-TV.

Contractual agreements with the College Football Association and ESPN prevent broadcast of games until 30 minutes after the start of the nationally televised game. ESPN will broadcast the Miami-Florida game with a kickoff time of 7:30 p.m.

Kickoff time for the Pirates' 1984 opener is still scheduled for 7 p.m.

Irish To Play ECU

East Carolina University's men's basketball team will face the Irish National Team in an exhibition game this fall.

The contest is scheduled to be played in Minges Coliseum on November 19. The game is one segment of an eight-game tour being made by the Irish team over a 12-day period.

Other area schools to be played by the team are ECAC-South foe James Madison and Metro Conference member Virginia Tech.

The Pirates begin practice on October 15 and will open the regular season on November 27, hosting Central Connecticut State.

Lietzke Leads Series

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Bruce Lietzke, the first-round leader, offered a prediction for the NEC World Series of Golf.

"If I don't drive it better, I can't win," said Lietzke, the leader Thursday by two strokes after squeezing a 4-under-par 66 out of windy Firestone South.

Tom Purtzer and Rex Caldwell, two first-time Series qualifiers, matched 68s for second place going into today's second round of the $700,000 tournament, offering a first prize of $126,000.

Craig Stadler, Mark McCumber and Denis Watson of South Africa, all at 69, were the only other players in the field of 42 to break par.

Tom Watson, this year's No. 1 money-winner, and British Open champion Greg Norman of Australia were among those at 70. Defending champion Nick Price of South Africa shot 71, Jack Nicklaus and PGA winner Lee Trevino 72s and Masters winner Ben Crenshaw 74.

Lietzke called it an unfamiliar round — 18 holes filled with an 111-yard wedge shot for an eagle, 10 putts on the front side and just five fairways hit.

"My strength is my driving and hitting greens in regulation. I drove it poorly and putted incredibly," said the 33-year-old, looking for his first Series victory.

Lietzke is trying to shake an image of being an early-season winner. Of his 10 victories, six have come in January or February and all but two by May.

"One of my little goals is to win this time of year. I've never come close to winning in August, September or later," he said.

"I am very fresh," said Lietzke, "and if I am fresh mentally, I can overcome physical problems with my swing."

Lietzke was 3-under after two holes, thanks to a birdie-eagle beginning over this 7,173 yard monster. He toured the front side in 30, 5-under, aided by six one-putt greens.

Caldwell was astounded by Lietzke's performance. "That's incredible," he said, looking at the scoreboard in the press tent. "You got no roll in the fairways. The ball was plugging, even on down slopes.

It's the longest course we play on tour, by far."

Caldwell, playing with a new set of irons, found the gusting North wind difficult. "When you turned into the wind, you had to hit a lot of lumber. Scott Simpson hit a driver for his second shot at 18. I hit a 3-wood," he said.

He, too, found a swift start. He birdied three of his first holes, played the front side in 32 before slowing on the last nine.

"I hit my driver five times in a row off to the right on the back side," he said. "I had to beat it out of the rough."

Purtzer admitted tending to two children while his wife, Jacqueline, was ill may have benefitted him. "I'm playing Mr. Mom this week, chasing two little kids around the hotel. It sure got my mind off golf. It may have helped," he said.

Tee shots are his problem, too. "I probably drove the ball last week as poorly as I ever have on tour. I'm still not real confident with my drives," said Purtzer. He rode into contention with three straight birdies, starting on the sixth hole.

Horton: Heels Anxious To Prove Themselves In 1984

By RICK SCOPPE
Associated Press Writer

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — North Carolina senior tailback Ethan Horton says the Tar Heels have something to prove this year — and they can't wait for the season to begin so they can do just that.

"Everybody's pretty anxious to get the season going because ... the game we played in the Peach Bowl (a 28-3 loss) was pretty embarrassing for us," Horton said. "I'm sure it hasn't left anybody's mind ... the embarrassment we felt after the game."

"I think everybody's anxious to show ... that we are a bunch of winners and that we can win," Horton told reporters Thursday during their stop in Chapel Hill on the Atlantic Coast Conference pre-season football tour.

The Tar Heels opened last year with seven straight victories, but dropped four of their final games to finish 9-4.

"We felt last year was a letdown because we expected more," Horton said.

Horton said he's looking for a better season in 1984 as the Tar Heels seek their sixth straight bowl appearance under Coach Dick Crum.

"I'd like to go undefeated. I think we have the capability to do that," Horton said.

The 6-foot-4, 218-pounder from Kannapolis said the Tar Heels may be helped this year by a change in the team's image.

"Coach Crum and his staff have really turned us loose this year," Horton said. "And I think that's helping us as players because a lot of the players we have aren't even-keel type players."

"We're emotional players ... and now we're able to turn it loose," said Horton, who gained 1,107 yards rushing to lead the Tar Heels ground attack.

Horton said the image change is partly a result of the Tar Heels' youth.

"The younger players are eager to play," he said. "We have this type of enthusiastic player, emotional player, motivated player now. We don't have the same type of player this year as we did last year."

Crum did not completely agree with Horton's assessment.

"I think what youngsters perceive as being turned loose is a lot of their own enthusiasm," Crum said. "I'm not going to be one to take that away from them."

Crum said that the 1984 Tar Heels have more "emotion ... than we've had in awhile."

The Tar Heels are also younger than they have been in the past, Crum said, with four starters back on defense and seven on offense.

"We really don't know what we've got," Crum said. "The jury's still out. We're just going to have to see how the team develops."

Horton and fullback Eddie Colson, who gained 425 yards last season, give the Tar Heels experience at the two running back slots, but Crum is still searching for a starting quarterback.

Sophomore Kevin Anthony, a 6-2, 188 pounder, and freshman Mark Maye, a 6-4, 204 pounder who was red-shirted last year, are vying to replace Scott Stankavage, who passed for more than 1,700 yards last year.

Anthony, who threw just 14 passes last season, is listed as the starter going into the fall drills, which began Monday, but Crum said neither player had won the job.

"Both are so similar," Crum said. "The thing I saw from the offense in the spring ... it really didn't matter much who was at quarterback. The other 10 guys responded to them the same."

Crum said if neither player emerges as a clear-cut choice, he would play both of them in the Tar Heel's opener against Navy on Sept. 15 in Kenan Stadium.

"I like the situation we've got," Crum said. "If one of them has not taken charge, we'll see them both against Navy."

Tigers In Rebuilding Year

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

(Editor's note: This is the first of a series of stories previewing area high school football teams.)

WILLIAMSTON — Last year, the Williamston Tigers pulled off some surprises and rolled to an 8-2 regular season record, finishing second in the Northeastern Conference race. The Tigers went on to finish 10-3, bowing to Southeastern Guilford in the Division II Eastern finals.

For Coach Harold Robinson, it was a gratifying year, but there are few of the same players around this year for him to celebrate that good fortune. Instead, Robinson and his staff are in the midst of a rebuilding season — but one which affords a great deal of hope for the future.

"We have only three seniors on this year's squad, but there are 27 juniors," Robinson said. A total of 17 seniors graduated, all but three of them starters.

"We have one offensive and three defensive starters back," Robinson said. "We're very young, but the most positive thing is that they have progressed as well technically as any group I've ever been around. They are going to have to learn from their mistakes."

"I'm not saying we're going to be pushovers. I think we will win some, but at the same time we've got to be realistic. The kids have worked hard, and the seniors have given us good leadership so far."

The lone starter returning on offense is Daily Reflector All-Area center Brison Green, a senior. However, he will be performing his duties at the tackle position this season.

On defense, Jesse Ward, a junior cornerback, returns along with fellow corner Kermit Brown and linebacker Mike Leggett. Brown is a senior, while the other two are juniors.

The only other senior back this year is defensive end Jesse Ewell.

Robinson says he plans no changes in his game this year. The Tigers will continue to run the wishbone and use the 4-4 scheme on defense. "We've been using the 4-4 for 11 years now. The kids like it and they like to play defense. I thought the defense did a heck of a job in the scrimmage (against Greene Central Wednesday night) on defense, and the offense scored two touchdowns."

"But, after the scrimmage, I can say we've still got a lot of work to do."

Robinson says that the players and the coaching staff have a lot of enthusiasm, which helps the team do good work. Too, it will probably be the last year the Tigers play at their current field. A new stadium is to be constructed near the Williamston gymnasium, and Robinson hopes to be on that field next fall.

"Our offensive line is very young. They seem to be doing a good run blocking, but their pass blocking still has a ways to go. But we're really further along in run blocking than I thought we would be at this time."

Last year's quarterback, All-Area selection James Ward, is gone, but there will still be a Ward in the backfield, taking the snap. This time it's brother Jesse, who saw some duty there last season. "He and James worked closely together last year, and they worked together off the field too, and this should be a help to us. Jesse is a good all-around athlete. He's not as tall as James, but he may have a stronger arm."

One of the running backs should be Maurice Jones, a junior with 4.5 speed. "He's not real big, but he has exceptional quickness and intelligence. He reads blocks real well."

At the other running back position, Ronald Myrick, a junior, and Anthony Johnson, a sophomore, are battling for the starting job. "Both of them have the tools," Robinson said.

At fullback, junior Rob Revels moves in. "He's done an outstanding job so far," the coach said.

The Tigers use two wide receivers in their game plan. Brown saw some duty there last year and will take over one of the spots, while Mike Leggett and Terry Gardner are working at the other side.

With Green moving to tackle, Les Thomas, a junior, has moved into the vacated position. "He's not real big, but he's scrappy; the type of player I like."

Bill Peterson and Andy Summerlin, both juniors, appear likely to hold down the guard positions. "They've come a long ways. They realize their mistakes and work hard to correct them."

Green will be at one of the tackle spots, with Ray Sherrod, a junior, likely at the other. "I just can't say enough about Green. He's an outstanding player and a fine leader. Troy Raynor may also could figure in the picture."

Ewell, the lone senior who didn't start last year, has looked good at one of the defensive end positions, while Sherrod could be at the other spot. Johnson, however, has pushed for the position and impressed the coaching staff during the scrimmage. Brian Maye also had a good scrimmage and could see action.

Green and two juniors, Marvin Ore and William Kelly, are the leading candidates at defensive tackle, and Robinson feels both of the juniors have come a long ways. Mike Ange, who didn't play last year, also looked good in the scrimmage as did Raynor, who could end up as a starter.

Thomas and sophomore Thurmond Rodgers appear the leaders at inside linebacker, while Leggett, Gardner and Revels are the top candidates on the outside. Revels saw a lot of action there last year, but Robinson is hopeful of resting him on defense for his offensive duties. Hark Harris and Jordan Rawls, a couple of newcomers, should also provide additional depth in the linebacker slots.

Brown and Ward return in the secondary, giving it great strength. Joining them at the safety position will probably be Ricky Mason, while Jerry Speller and George Rucker offer backup strength.

Robinson feels comfortable with Ward as the punter, and feels Brown, as the placement kicker, can get the job done.

"We've got good speed, we just need the experience," Robinson said.

As far as the Northeastern Conference race is concerned, Robinson feels it will be a three-way race between Bertie, Washington and Tarboro. "Bertie might have the advantage," Robinson said.

As for the Tigers, well, don't count them out. They pulled off some surprises last year, and could well again. "We're certainly not counting ourselves out of the conference race."

Realistically, we're not going to be figured to do much this year, but nobody can take us for granted," Robinson said.

Coalition Favors Tough Title IX

WASHINGTON (AP) - Civil rights advocates are warning that the success enjoyed by American women at the 1984 Olympics may not be repeated unless Congress strengthens the law forbidding sex discrimination by federally aided educational institutions.

Members of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, a coalition of 165 organizations, on Thursday attacked President Reagan and conservatives in the Senate for opposing efforts to toughen the law - known as Title IX - barring sex discrimination by schools and colleges that receive federal funds.

"As a practical matter, there is no longer any federal law which comprehensively prohibits sex discrimination in education," said Ralph G. Neas, executive director of the conference.

"Women's athletic programs have been stripped of the federal protections that allowed women athletes to come into their own over the past decade," he said, referring to a recent Supreme Court decision on sex discrimination involving Grove City College in Pennsylvania.

The Supreme Court overturned lower court decisions by ruling that a recipient of federal aid is subject to federal anti-discrimination laws only for the program or activity which directly received the money.

Neas said U.S. Olympians like Cheryl Miller and other members of the women's basketball team, the women's volleyball team, and Tracy Caulkins and other women swimmers benefited from Title 9. They held athletic scholarships that were not available until Title 9 was enacted in 1972.

"By opposing the Civil Rights Act of 1984, President Reagan and the Senate leadership would deny the next generation of American women the chance to compete in the Olympics," said Judy Goldsmith, president of the National Organization for Women.

Neas cited a study by the National Coalition for Women and Girls in Education. It found that 35 percent of high school varsity athletes are women compared to seven percent in 1972.

The number of women involved in intercollegiate sports has soared from 16,000 in 1972 to more than 160,000 today. And collegiate athletic scholarships increased from virtually none in 1971 to 5,000 in 1979 to 10,000 now.

The high court's ruling on the Grove City case was actively supported by the Reagan administration, which broke with its predecessors who had maintained that an entire institution was subject to anti-discrimination laws if any program received federal money.

Since the decision on Feb. 28, 1984, the Justice Department has used the Grove City case as a basis for dropping 23 other discrimination suits brought by women and minorities and taking a narrower position in 20 others. The action on these cases means the department is applying the principle outlined by the court in race, age and disability cases as well as sex cases.

The bill that the conference supports would in effect nullify the Grove City decision. It was passed by a House vote of 375 to 32 on June 27. Some 63 members of the Senate have sponsored the legislation. But Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, chairman of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, Sens. Jesse Helms and John East, R-N.C., all have actively opposed the bill.

Hatch has introduced an alternative that Neas said was "a horrible bill" which "would actually put us in a position worse than we are now."

Neas said he expects the civil rights bill to pass eventually, but noted that the Senate officially has only four weeks of work remaining on its calendar before adjournment.

Officiating 'Abysmal' In Friendship '84 Games

MOSCOW (AP) - The Friendship '84 Games is not without its testy moments.

After Colombia's basketball team was thrashed by the Soviets 143-41 Thursday, a member of the South American team's delegation complained about the officiating.

"We did not give ourselves a chance of beating the Soviets but one of the referees was abysmal," said assistant trainer Christopher Hankins Edison.

"He called my team all the time and let them get away with countless fouls. If that guy refereed like that in South America, he'd get thrown out."

Officials refused to discuss the outburst, except to say that all referees had been pre-selected by the European zone of the International Basketball Federation.

Colombia is one of the few countries in these Games which also was at the Los Angeles Olympics. The others were part of the Soviet-inspired boycott.

With three days of qualifying to go in the basketball competition, the Soviet Union and Cuba have maximum points in Group One, while Poland leads Group Two.

Not only are the Soviets strong favorites to win the basketball competition, anything but a home victory in the field hockey tournament also will constitute a major upset.

The Soviets would have been the only field hockey team among participants here to qualify for the Olympics.

The hosts, though, are not having things all their own way in the swimming pool. East Germany's 15-year-old Sylvia Gerasch set a world record Thursday in the women's 100-meter breaststroke of 1 minute, 08.29 seconds. The East Germans are only one victory behind the Soviets with nine finals to go over the next three days.

Five swimmers posted times faster than the ones winning gold at Los Angeles and three others swam faster than silver medalists at the Summer Olympics.

Soviet ace Vladimir Salnikov, a triple Olympic gold medalist at the 1980 Moscow Games and world record-holder in the 400-meter and 1,500-meter freestyle, could not match his own world record in his 400-meter speciality.

He was nearly one second slower than his best of 3:48.32 but has another crack at beating his mark in the 1,500-meters.

The boxing tournament winds up tonight in Havana with Cubans involved in the finals of all 12 weight classes.

The rowing continued today at the Moscow Olympic basin with the women's finals, a misnomer of a sort since no qualifying heats were even held.

Soviet sailors led in four of the five classes contested in yachting off Tallin with an East German ahead in the fifth.

Canadians Duncan Lewis, Stephen Fleckenstein and Reines Couby are out of the running for top places in their classes.

Lewis is eighth in the flying Dutchman class with 50.4 penalty points. Fleckenstein also ranks sixth in the star class with 41.8 points and Couby is 40.4 points off the pace in fifth place in the windglider class.

On the shooting range, Milan Bekes of Czechoslovakia won the three position small bore rifle event with 1,169 points.

Only two apprentice jockeys have won the Kentucky Derby, Ira Hanford on Bold Venture in 1936 and Bill Boland aboard Middleground in 1950.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — RESTLESS CASINO WORKER, AT THE BEACH IN MONACO, WAS TAKING A GAMBOL.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: S equals U

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Reagan's Film Causes Waves

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Conventions are political entities, and if the Republicans put together a made-for-television convention with speeches and staged bursts of spontaneity, there's very little the networks can do to stop them.

But commercials are TV entities, and the networks were adamant that they weren't going to let the Republicans put their glorified movie images of Ronald Reagan on their air for free without some journalistic check and balance.

Control. That was the issue behind the Reagan Film Fuss. TV had to draw the line somewhere.

It was bad enough that the networks this week were giving Reagan and Co. what amounted to a free ride by showing powerful people pictures of a harmonious convention that had no news and no conflicts.

But people — even those who agree with each other and are on their best camera-conscious behavior — are the lifeblood of politics and journalism. They can be questioned, challenged and confronted, and what they say can be spontaneous and alive. A canned film of Reagan introducing Reagan is not the same thing as a real Sen. Edward Kennedy introducing Walter F. Mondale.

This may not be an easy distinction to understand, particularly when the networks give free air time to politicians to wave their flags, drop their balloons and congratulate themselves. But that's why many TV executives are re-thinking whether they should allow the parties to produce made-for-TV commercials, also known as prime-time conventions, in 1988.

Settlement Announced

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Producer Robert Evans says he and Las Vegas financiers Edward and Fred Doumanis have settled their bitter legal battle over "The Cotton Club," a $48 million film due for release in December.

In return for his 50 percent interest in the movie, Evans was relieved of having to repay loans totaling $3.5 million and gets a cash payment he described as "close to seven figures."

Evans, who spent years developing the film about the famed New York speakeasy of the Prohibition Era, will receive screen credit as producer and presenter of the film, which stars Richard Gere, Gregory Hines and Diane Lane and is directed by Francis Ford Coppola.

Evans also will receive additional payments from the Doumanis if ticket sales exceed certain levels.

"They were very generous ...," Evans said. "I hope their investment in 'The Cotton Club' proves a favorable one."

The Doumanis also reportedly paid $5.8 million to acquire investor Victor Sayyah's 25 percent share in the film, leaving the Doumanis as sole owner.

The Doumanis have no telephone listing in Las Vegas. Sayyah also could not be located.

The settlement ends months of feuding that ended with Evans suing the Doumanis for control of the film. Evans said he and the Doumanis are now on such good terms that they may even make another film together.

Asked about the film's financial prospects, Evans said: "If the drama in the film is one-half as good as the drama in making the film, it will make profits."

The Big Bang

Sunday is the anniversary of the biggest natural explosion in history — the eruption of Krakatoa. More than 36,000 people died when the Indonesian volcanic island blew apart in 1883. A steam cloud boiled 25 miles high, tidal waves cleared 120 feet, and five cubic miles of earth and ashes filled the air — to a height of 50 miles! The explosion could be heard 3,000 miles away. If Mount St. Helens had been Krakatoa, even Floridians would have heard the crash!

DO YOU KNOW — In what year was Mount St. Helens' last major eruption?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Maxwell Anderson wrote the play, "Winterset."

Helms Using Baptists' Mailing List

RALEIGH (AP) — Some Baptist clergymen are protesting the use of a computerized mailing list belonging to the North Carolina Baptist State Convention to solicit support and money for Sen. Jesse Helms' re-election campaign.

In a "Dear Pastor," letter dated Aug. 15 and signed by four leading North Carolina Baptists, the Helms campaign urged ministers to support Helms and conduct voter registration sign-ups following Sunday services.

Roy J. Smith, general secretary-treasurer of the Baptist State Convention said Thursday night that all or part of the Baptists' 18,000-name "Key Leadership List" had been used by the Helms campaign.

Smith said the convention's executive committee had not approved the use of the list and that it was against convention policy for the list to be used by political candidates.

"Evidently someone who had access to the address labels passed them along to the political organization that made the mailing," Smith said. "We are making every effort to find out who furnished the labels. Once we do we will take this information to the executive committee for their action."

Smith said he was "surprised to say the least" by the Helms campaign's use of the mailing list. He said the list was closely guarded by the convention.

Smith said the convention's executive committee must approve any use of the list by outside groups. He said the committee recently turned down a request by a Baptist church in the state to use the list to promote a non-political seminar sponsored by the church.

The mailing has sparked complaints from a number of church leaders, Smith said, some of whom have contacted the convention's office in Cary to complain. He said he has received reports that the mailing went to pastors, assistant pastors, ministers of education and church clerks.

R.G. Puckett, editor of the Biblical Recorder, the convention's newspaper, said he also has received calls. "It would not be an overstatement to say they are incensed," Puckett said. "It is an abuse of the Baptist denomination... That list should not have been made available to anybody for political purposes."

Puckett said a copy of the list was sold in June to the Christian Action League, a religious lobbying organization partly financed by the convention. Rev. Coy Privette of Kanapolis, one of the four church leaders who signed the Helms letter, is executive director of the CAL.

Privette's office said he was attending a revival Thursday and he could not be reached.

The letter was also signed by the Rev. B.J. Morris of Lincolnton, president of the Baptist Pastor's Conference; Henderson Belk of Charlotte, a Baptist lay leader; and C. Mark Corts, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church in Winston-Salem and a past president of the state convention.

All three men said Thursday they were unaware that the Helms committee had used the convention's mailing list.

Triples Go To Family's Hospital

STATESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The nurses in the obstetrics and gynecology department at Davis Community Hospital say seeing Margaret and Chris Lyerly and their children was like welcoming family home.

The Lyerly triplets — the state's first test-tube triplets — were transferred to Davis Hospital Wednesday. The week-old babies were born at Chapel Hill's North Carolina Memorial Hospital, but Mrs. Lyerly spent the month before the delivery at Davis, which is closer to her Mooresville home.

Katarina Elizabeth, Nathan Griffith and Christopher Houston were transferred to Davis Wednesday.

RUTH BROWN?

In 1949 Ms. Brown became the first female artist signed by Atlantic Records. She recorded "Tear Drops" and Atlantic had its first hit.

In a short time Atlantic Records became known as "The House That Ruth Built". She earned fifty chart hits, and three gold records, including her legendary hits, "Mama, He Treats Your Daughter Mean", "5-10-15 Hours", and "Oh What a Dream".

Ruth was the top female R&B singer of the decade, headlining every major club in the country, including the Apollo Theatre, where she introduced Pat Boone, Ray Charles, and Harry Belafonte, among others. Ruth starred as Mahalia Jackson in the Los Angeles Production of Selma, and as General Cartwright in the all black revival of Guys and Dolls with Leslie Uggams. Norman Lear saw Ms. Brown and quickly brought her to Hollywood to feature her in the NBC-TV series Hello Larry, followed by another role in the CBS-TV series Checking In.

In 1969 Ms. Brown received a Grammy Nomination for best R&B vocalist for her rendition of Lennon and McCartney's Yesterday, on her acclaimed album, "Black is Brown and Brown is Beautiful".

She is a legend, "The Queen of Rhythm and Blues", and Stevie Wonder recently acknowledged her as "having started it all". After all, you can't spell rhythm and blues without R&B, and R&B stands for Ruth Brown, "The Mama of Rock and Roll!"

Ruth has recorded over 46 records and when the real history of Rock and Roll is written, the name Ruth Brown will introduce the first paragraph! Ruth Brown is the most exciting, most moving, most phenomenal performer of her type alive today!

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, AUG. 25, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until noon you will have the chance to see how you can get ahead in a very successful manner by the special talents with which you are endowed, so get into a positive and active state of mind.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can get into the entertainments that you most enjoy today, so contact your friends early in the day.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A good day to invite friends in, particularly those of different background to yours. Reach a new accord with kin by being thoughtful.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make those telephone calls that will bring in the benefits you want and need. Be most careful in motion of all kind.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Elevate your consciousness so that you can get more of the good things of life now and in the future.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Think along lines of personal expansion and then go after your aims in a positive way. Be with friends who appreciate and understand you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Formulate a plan that can help you to have more of the good things of life and then follow through on it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Permit a good friend to help you in gaining personal wishes more quickly today. You are inspired about the days ahead.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) The morning is apt to be slow but later you can get a bigwig to assist you with your talents. Be happy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Early make careful plans and then be off to the places where you can get important data you need.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Fine Saturday to handle responsibilities nicely but also to find more up-to-date systems of operating.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You may find it hard in the morning to contact a partner but keep trying since a meeting could prove very worthwhile.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A good day to get into tasks that are hard to do during very busy work days, but first analyze them well.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she can look at everything from its broadest scope and potentiality, so be sure to give the finest education so that the most can be made of this fine quality. Be sure to praise for any exceptional work that is done and raise the incentive, and your expectations can be met. One whose star can take to a very great height.

Things had been going so badly that Trump Coup Tommy had stayed away from the club for months. Readers will remember that Trump Coup Tommy played like a duffer except in one circumstance—when trumps were breaking badly. Then he became the Superman of the Green Baize, bringing home seemingly impossible contracts with ease.

Tommy had hardly sat down at the table after his long absence when this hand was dealt. East preempted in third seat, but it takes more than a preempt to silence Tommy. He weighed in with four hearts, and West's double was deafening. North was resigned to another 1,100 penalty, but he reckoned without Tommy's peculiar talents.

Warned by the double that trumps were stacked on his left, Tommy played the hand in masterful fashion. He won the ace of diamonds and led the 10 of spades. West held off with the ace, and Tommy promptly shifted his attention to clubs.

He cashed the king and ace of clubs and ruffed a club in hand. Now he led another spade. West could do no better than win the ace and get out with a spade. Tommy won on the board, ruffed another club, then exited with a spade.

Down to nothing but trumps, poor West was forced to ruff and exit with a trump. The low trump was won on the table, and now Tommy conceded his diamond loser. West was forced to ruff his partner's winner and lead away from the king of trumps into Tommy's ace-queen tenace. So Tommy ended up scoring three trump tricks and two ruffs, two spades, two clubs and a diamond for a total of 10 tricks!

Judge Appointed

ASHEBORO (AP) — Russell G. Walker Jr. of Asheboro has been appointed by Gov. Jim Hunt to fill the unexpired term of retiring Superior Court Judge Hal H. Walker.

Jack Cozart, Hunt's legal counsel, said the governor approved Walker's nomination by the District Democratic Judicial Committee, and Walker will run unopposed in the November election.

Walker, son of state Sen. Russell G. Walker Sr., D-Randolph, had served as a special Superior Court judge before his appointment. The judgeship has jurisdiction for Randolph and Montgomery counties.

Hal Walker, 66, who was elected to serve a second eight-year term in 1982, announced earlier this month that he would retire from the post Sept. 30.

Drinking Water

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — State health officials have ordered residents of more than 8,000 Richmond County homes to boil their drinking water after tests found traces of coliform bacteria.

Frank Morris, an engineer with the Fayetteville office of the Division of Health Services, said the high bacteria count is the result of chlorine dissipating before the water reaches its destination.

Water for the system is bought from Anson County and is pumped from the Anson treatment plant on the Pee Dee River.

Tar Heel Republicans Enthusiastic

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) — Most of the 53 North Carolina delegates to the Republican National Convention were scheduled to return home today, bringing with them renewed enthusiasm after a speech by President Reagan one delegate called "a killer."

Reagan closed the four-day convention with a speech in which he accepted his party's presidential nomination and drew the battle lines for the upcoming campaign.

In the North Carolina delegation, there was a mixture of slick

Reagan-Bush signs, hand-painted Reagan posters and Sen. Jesse Helms' re-election banners.

"It was a killer," Katherine Holding, a delegate from Raleigh, said of the Reagan speech. "He said all the right things. He said all the good things."

"The proudest day of my life as an American citizen was today," said Barry McCarty, a delegate and state Senate candidate from Elizabeth City. "Ronald Reagan stands for American traditional values, not the doom and gloom of the guys who need a socialist government to hand them everything."

Helms praised Reagan for clearly drawing a distinction between Republicans and Democrats in a way the public will understand and accept.

"The Republican Party is moving forward," Helms said. "This nation is upbeat. We have pulled the country out of the hole it was in when Ronald Reagan took over."

Helms said he looked over parts of the speech dealing with agriculture and foreign policy before Reagan delivered the message. But Helms said he had no changes to suggest to the president.

North Carolina Republican Party chairman Dave Flaherty said both the Republican and Democratic nominees "have put it on the line."

But he said there was one big difference between the two party's candidates.

"We don't make promises we don't deliver," Flaherty said.

Most of the North Carolina delegates said they felt Reagan said the right things in the right way.

Hunt Attacks Helms' Record

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt said Thursday that Sen. Jesse Helms has been ineffective in helping the tobacco and textile industries, but Helms aides say Hunt, as a freshman senator, would have little clout to help either industry.

Hunt launched his attack on Helms during a campaign visit to Winston-Salem. In a sidewalk news conference near R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Hunt said the incumbent had done little to focus the attention of Congress and the Reagan administration on the two industries' difficulties, despite his chairmanship of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

tobacco farmers of the burden of paying for unsold leaf from 1982 and 1983. The Flue-Cured Tobacco Stabilization Corp., a grower-owned cooperative, has had trouble selling the surplus leaf.

Helms "says all will be well if he is re-elected and gets to keep his seat on the Senate Agriculture Committee," said Hunt. "But the real question before tobacco farmers is not which candidate can best defend the status quo. It's which candidate has the skills and the ideas to help create a brighter future for our farmers and workers."

"If Jim Hunt were elected, he would be a freshman senator in a minority party working with senators such as Ted Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Howard Metzenbaum (D-Ohio)," said Rosser. "He would be virtually ineffective."

The U.S. trade deficit in textiles has increased from $4 billion to $15 billion while Reagan has held office, "despite a Republican campaign promise in 1980 to limit the rise in textile imports to growth in the domestic market," Hunt said.

"What our textile and tobacco workers need most of all today is hard-working and effective representation in Congress," said Hunt. "Above all, they need a senator who will listen to them and represent their concerns, not one who is too busy with his own special crusades to pay attention to people here in North Carolina."

Bob Rosser, assistant director of the Helms for Senate Committee, said Helms' chairmanship "shows that he has the clout it takes to deal with the tobacco and textile industries for North Carolina. ... He has promised that as long as he is chairman of the committee there will be a tobacco program, and he has stood by that."

Cigarette sales fell by 6 percent after the federal tax was doubled from 8 cents to 16 cents per pack, which Helms and Sen. John East supported, Hunt said.

Hunt promised, if elected, to introduce a bill that would relieve

Helms said last week that granting most-favored-nation status to China, which he opposed but which Hunt favored, was the biggest reason for the textile industry's woes. Hunt denied that Thursday, saying the problem was "not action by China, but inaction in Washington, D.C."

Rosser said Helms had done all he could to curb imports, but that China's government-subsidized products "are threatening to wreck the (domestic) industry with a flood of cheap foreign goods into this country."

Former A&T Official Alleges Harassment

GREENSBORO (AP) — A former assistant director of admissions at North Carolina A&T State University has filed suit against the school, claiming he was fired because he refused the sexual advances of a male colleague.

Those named in the suit could not be reached Thursday or refused to discuss the suit. Ben Rawlins, A&T's legal counsel, also declined comment.

Benny R. Mayfield, who was fired in June, asks that he be reinstated to the faculty with tenure and that he receive back pay and damages of at least $600,000.

Mayfield, also an instructor in the Department of Secondary Education and Curriculum, says the university failed to abide by its own requirements for tenure and reappointment and failed to provide him a proper grievance appeal for his charges, including those of sexual harassment.

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court in Greensboro, names the school, the University of North Carolina Board of Governors, UNC President William Friday, A&T Chancellor Edward Fort, Vice Chancellor Nathan B. Simms Jr. and the man Mayfield alleges made sexual advances toward him. The

"Simms and Fort have refused to take any measures to remedy the unlawful acts" by the male colleague, the suit says.

Fire Ruins Restaurant

NAGS HEAD, N.C. (AP) — A fire burned a popular Outer Banks restaurant today and destroyed memorabilia of the Wright brothers, who pioneered motorized flight at nearby Kill Devil Hills.

More than 80 firefighters from three fire departments on the coastal resort islands battled the blaze at the Seafarer Restaurant, where owner Rick Young said he displayed an original patent and other Wright brothers memorabilia.

The items were stored in the restaurant lounge. Young said some of the documents were given to him by members of the Wright family and that he lost research material for a book he was writing.

The fire broke out after the restaurant closed at 2 a.m. and gutted the stucco and wood structure built in 1959. By 7 a.m. the fire was burning but under control. A passing rainshower helped firefighters subdue the blaze.

Young said the 14,000-square-foot building was the largest restaurant on the Outer Banks, which are crowded with tourists during the summer.

Nags Head Fire Chief Paul Royston said the fire was the largest he had seen in years. The fire burned a portion of a porch roof at a neighboring beach cottage, and neighbors sprayed their houses with garden hoses.

Three firefighters were taken to a medical center for treatment of heat exhaustion.

The Woman in Red

Shy, quiet Teddy Pierce wanted a little adventure.

And one day it walked into his life in a red silk dress.

Now his wife is packing a gun. His friends are going nuts trying to cover for him and he's about to get caught with his pants down on the six o'clock news.

Be very careful of what you want...

Because you just might get it.

Farm Wages Rise Slightly

WASHINGTON (AP) — New figures by the Agriculture Department show that wages paid to hired farm workers rose 1.2 percent last year, says the Agriculture Department.

The annual report issued this week by the department's Statistical Reporting Service was based on surveys made during the week of July 8-14.

On the average, including all forms of payment such as piece work and hourly wages, farm workers received $4.16 per hour, compared with $4.11 a year earlier. Last year's $4.11 was up 2.8 percent from $4 per hour in July 1982.

The report also showed that 1,435,000 people were working on farm jobs after being hired directly by farm operators in July, 2.9 percent fewer than during the same week a year earlier. Bad weather apparently was the main reason.

Those did not include 326,000 workers hired and paid by crew leaders and custom operators who provide services for farmers. A year earlier, those workers were put at 285,000.

"During the survey week, showers and thunderstorms were widespread east of the Plains, more scattered through the Plains and Southwest," the report said. "Very heavy rain and severe weather curtailed field activities in parts of Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin. Hot weather in California and extremely dry weather in parts of Texas limited some field work in those areas."

According to the government's cost-of-living indicators, wage rates for farm workers the last two years have increased substantially less than the nation's inflation.

This year, for example, the 1.2 percent gain in wages was less than one-third of the 4 percent annual rate posted by inflation so far in 1984. Inflation in 1983 was 3.8 percent, compared with last year's 2.8 percent increase in the wages of hired farm workers.

When computed solely on the basis of hourly pay, wages this summer averaged $4.12 per hour, up from $4.07 in July 1983 and $3.91 in July 1982, the report said.

Those workers paid on the basis of piece rates received an equivalent of $4.60 per hour, up from $4.52 last summer. But that was down from $4.74 two years ago. Wages for piece work can be affected significantly year-to-year by weather, maturing of crops and other factors.

"Approximately 42 percent of the hired workers received perquisites such as meals, housing or motor vehicle in addition to the cash wages in July 1984," the report said. "About 13 percent ... were furnished a house in addition to the cash wages."

In the survey week last year, 41 percent of the workers got perquisites, including 12 percent who received housing.

Of the workers hired directly by farmers, 41 percent were on farms where 11 or more were employed.

Farms having seven to 10 hired workers accounted for 7 percent of the total; those with three to six workers, 27 percent; two workers, 13 percent; and a single hired worker, 12 percent.

Researcher Says Clinic Unproven

ATLANTA (AP) — An unproven cancer treatment at a Bahamas clinic that counted former Gov. Lester Maddox among its patients apparently resulted in 16 people developing abscesses, a federal researcher says.

Dr. Paul Garbe, an epidemiologist with the national Centers for Disease Control, said Thursday that a CDC study showed that the only common exposure of the patients who developed abscesses was the self-administration of human serum proteins manufactured at the clinic. The proteins were supposed to promote the body's immune system.

The clinic, in Freeport, Bahamas, is known as the Immunology Researching Center and is operated by Dr. Lawrence Burton, a former New York zoologist. It opened in 1977 and sees 350 new patients annually.

Also among those who have sought treatment at the clinic were former President Jimmy Carter's sister, Ruth Carter Stapleton, who died last year.

Burton's treatment is not licensed in the United States because government health officials contend he has not provided sufficient data to test its effectiveness.

The source of the contamination of the serum could not be determined because of limited access to medical records at the clinic, the CDC said in its Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report.

Garbe said the contamination could have come either during final packaging of the serum proteins at the clinic or when daily injections were drawn at the clinic from open vials of the serum.

"It's hard for me to pass judgment on whether people should or shouldn't go to the clinic," Garbe said. "But I think it's an indication that people should be cautious about undergoing immunotherapies that have not been proven effective against cancer."

The 16 patients, who were not identified, developed abscesses after receiving injection between March 1982 and March 1984. Eleven of the cases appeared between Nov. 15, 1983, and March 1, 1984.

Garbe said such infections normally can be controlled with antibiotics and with incision and draining of the abscesses. Only two of the 16 patients failed to respond to such treatment, he said, and both still had the abscesses when cancer caused their death.

The clinic, which is not regulated by any government or health agency, invited the CDC to investigate the cause of the abscesses in the 16 patients and provided limited access to the clinic's medical records.

Garbe said he was unable to identify the source of serum contamination because he was not given access to injection records describing the frequency and composition of the doses.
