Tyson, Braswell Sued For $2 Million

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County resident Michael Keith Braswell has filed suit in Pitt County Superior Court asking remuneration for the loss of his mother from his father, Billy R. Braswell, and Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson.

Michael Braswell alleges in the $2 million-plus suit that his mother, Lillie Stencil Braswell, was shot to death by his father, Billy Braswell, Sept. 27, 1982, while he was on duty as a sheriff deputy. He further alleges that "various members of the public had warned Sheriff Tyson that Lillie Braswell was in danger of being seriously harmed or killed by Billy Braswell," that "at least five days prior to her death, Lillie Stencil Braswell had begged the Defendant Ralph L. Tyson for protection from Billy R. Braswell, and had told Sheriff Tyson that she was in fear of Billy Braswell.

"The Defendant Ralph L. Tyson knew or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known that Billy R. Braswell threatened the deceased and had even written certain letters indicating he intended to kill Lillie S. Braswell and himself."

The suit, filed Wednesday, alleges that on Sept. 22 Sheriff Tyson promised "he would have deputies checking on her at all times, even when she was at work, and that he would have a deputy follow her to work in the morning and home in the afternoon and further have a deputy follow her at any time she should be alone to protect her from Billy Braswell. He assured Lillie Braswell that she would be protected. Relying upon these assurances from Sheriff Tyson, Lillie Braswell decided to remain in Pitt County instead of leaving the State of North Carolina and staying with a relative as she had planned to do for purposes of safety. After making said assurances, Sheriff Tyson failed to provide the protection he had assured Lillie Braswell he would give her."

The suit asks $3,424 for the expenses of the funeral and grave marker of the deceased and $2 million in damages for the "loss of the reasonably expected future net income of the deceased, services, protection, care and assistance of the deceased and the society, companionship, comfort, guidance, kindly offices and advice of the deceased to her son."

Sheriff Tyson, asked for comment on the complaint this morning, said he had not seen a copy yet and would not comment until he has.

Braswell is incarcerated in McCain Corrections Center in Hoke County. He was convicted of the murder of his wife.

First Brody Scholarships Go To 5 Medical Students

Five entering medical students at the East Carolina University School of Medicine have been selected as the first scholarship recipients of the school's new Brody Scholar Program in Medicine.

Established last May to recognize scholastic excellence in medical education, the program provides scholarships for students throughout their four years of study at the medical school.

Four of the students have been named Brody Fellows and will receive scholarships of $2,000 each year. The fifth student, named the Brody Scholar for demonstrating superior ability and potential, will receive a $7,500-a-year stipend for four years of study at ECU.

According to Dr. William E. Laupus, ECU vice chancellor and dean of the medical school, the Brody Scholar for the class of 1988 is George E. Crawley II of Wilson.

Named Brody Fellows were Mark

B. Batts of Watha, Peter N. Purcell of Pikeville, Rebecca N. Daniel of Greenville and Sylvia Jones Mullis of Dover.

Recipients of Brody scholarships are selected on the basis of academic performance, leadership potential and a personal interview. Preference is given to residents of eastern North Carolina and students who are interested in practicing primary care medicine in the state, preferably in the eastern region.

The Brody Scholar Program in Medicine is named for the Brody Family of Kinston and Greenville, longtime supporters of the ECU School of Medicine.

The awards will be made to students in each new entering class.

Judge Peel Is Resigning

WILLIAMSTON — Superior Court Judge Elbert S. Peel Jr. has submitted his resignation to be effective Oct. 1.

Peel, a resident judge in the 2nd Judicial District, said he was resigning due to health reasons.

The district's executive committee, at a meeting Thursday night at Beaufort County Community College, nominated District Attorney William C. Griffin Jr. of Williamston for appointment to the remainder of Peel's term. The appointment will be made later by Gov. Jim Hunt.

It is expected that Griffin's name will also appear on the November ballot for the 2nd District in the November elections. Peel first went on the Superior Court bench in January 1963 when he was appointed by Gov. Terry Sanford at the time of the death of the late Judge Malcolm C. Paul of Washington.

New Storm Develops In Atlantic

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical storm Bertha was born today in the Atlantic Ocean, where 3-day-old tropical storm Arthur was churning slowly, and forecasters said the thick of the 1984 Atlantic hurricane season has arrived "all of a sudden."

As Arthur moved slowly toward the Leeward Islands and the north-eastern Caribbean Sea, the season's fifth tropical depression swirled to life as tropical storm Bertha. Bertha was located in the central Atlantic, about 975 miles east of Barbados, according to forecasters at the National Hurricane Center.

Arthur was expected to cross the Leeward Islands and emerge into the warm waters of the northeastern Caribbean today, bringing with it thunderstorms and gusty wind, forecasters said.

At 6 a.m. EDT, Arthur was about 300 miles east-southeast of Antigua, part of the island group that separates the Atlantic from the Caribbean.

An Air Force reconnaissance plane was set to investigate the low pressure system north of Bermuda today.

Shuttle Crew Beats Heat Buildup, Ejects Satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The crew of space shuttle Discovery successfully launched its second satellite today, working against the clock and the sun to sail a military communications payload out of the cargo bay like a spinning Frisbee.

The astronauts ejected the satellite with little time to spare. The temperature on one of its battery packs had climbed gradually overnight to about 86 degrees, just shy of the 90-degree "red line" limit that would have dictated a delay in the release until the pack could be cooled down.

The "red line" was raised just this morning from 84 to 90 degrees.

The two successful deployments, and a third one set for Saturday, could do much to help restore customer confidence in the shuttle as a dependable transportation system.

"Syncom's deployed," reported astronaut Steve Hawley as Leasat,

TAKING STEPS TO GET READY ... Mike Best, a carpenter for the Pitt County school maintenance department, gets started on a new set of steps for a mobile unit at A.G. Cox School. All units at the school received new steps in preparation for the opening of the 1984-85 school year on Tuesday. Another back-to-school maintenance project included cleaning and refinishing all classroom floors, which used 450 gallons each of undercoating, wax and wax stripper, according to maintenance supervisor Carl Heath. Workers also refinished two gym floors, retiled 18 classroom floors and carpeted three classroom floors. In addition, Heath said, all heating, air conditioning and plumbing systems were checked and over 900 gallons of paint went on walls in the school system. (Reflector Photo By Mary Schulken) the first satellite designed especially for the shuttle, rolled overboard today with a motion like that of a Frisbee, the popular flying disc toy. Syncom is a generic name for the Leasat series of satellites.

"Everything looks good," Mission Control replied.

A spring ejected the 15,200-pound satellite 184 miles above central Africa, imparting a slight rotation intended to keep it steady and prevent any one side from overheating in the sun.

A series of payload rocket firings over the next two days is to elevate Leasat to a stationary outpost 22,300 miles up, where it will serve as a switchboard for military communications among land bases and ships and planes on and above the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

Hughes Communications Services, which owns the satellite, obtained permission from the Wham-O Corp. to call this the "Frisbee launch," using Wham-O's trademark name for its saucer-like toy. The Navy has contracted to lease the satellite and three others from Hughes for five years.

Mission Control detected this morning that the temperature on one of Leasat's battery packs had risen from the high 70s to 82 degrees and was creeping up at about a degree an hour. The normal "red line" temperature on the pack is 84 degrees, but Hughes officials decided today that they could safely elevate that limit to 90 degrees.

"If the temperature goes above 90 degrees, you are no-go for deploy," Mission Control alerted the astronauts. Discovery's position would then have been shifted so the satellite could be moved from the sun side to the shadow side of the vehicle to cool it down.

Later today Judy Resnik, America's second space woman, was to run tests on an experimental solar power panel.

BEWARE OF CALLS

Detective Peter Lavin of the Greenville Police Department has warned area residents to be wary of a California company that is offering people the chance to buy vitamins in return for large prizes.

Lavin said he has received reports that a person identifying himself as a representative of Transcontinental Distributing Co. in Hollywood was offering to sell "unit-pack vitamins" for $299. In return for buying the trial-size shipment of vitamins, Lavin said, the representative promised the consumer one of several prizes, including a micro TV receiver dish.

Lavin said those who buy are sent the vitamins with the receiver dish, worth perhaps $10. He said anyone receiving such calls should call Billy Mills at the Consumer Affairs Division, state Attorney General's Office, at 733-7741, Raleigh, or the local postmaster.

Glow From Marriage Lights Up the Years

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago, an article came out in our newspaper about husbands. I think it was in your column. I thought it was so beautiful, I tore it out and saved it. Here is the first part:

"Today is a very special day for me. It's my 25th wedding anniversary and I have this to say:

"I had a mother and father who really loved each other, so I know what love is.

"I've seen two teen-agers safely through the traumatic teens, so I know what satisfaction is.

"I've prayed, and my prayers have been answered, so I know what faith is.

"And I've had by my side for 25 beautiful years, the kindest, gentlest, most considerate human being I've ever known, so I know what happiness is."

That's all I have, Abby. I lost the rest of it. If it was in your column, please print the rest.

MADELEINE LYNCH,
RED OAK, TEXAS

DEAR MRS. LYNCH: Here's the rest of it:

"And because I've known all these things, I know what wealth is."

I wrote it in 1964 as a tribute to my husband. And it's just as true today as it was 20 years ago. Thank you for asking.

***

DEAR ABBY: Not only parents, but friends and relatives often have trouble introducing live-in companions. I have found the smoothest way is to say: "May I introduce John/Jane and his/her constant companion?"

No one has misunderstood yet.
MAE S., ARCADIA, CALIF.

DEAR MAE: I don't think it's necessary to clarify the living arrangements of John and Jane when introducing them. But if you do, "constant companions" do not necessarily live together.

***

DEAR ABBY: I thought the letter from "Big-Busted in Birmingham" was a riot, so I brought it up at my arts and crafts group at Valley View Nursing Home to give the residents a laugh. ("Big-Busted's" fiance wanted to raise chickens but was too cheap to buy an incubator, so he asked her if she'd mind hatching the eggs in her bra.)

Well, the laugh was on me when an 88-year-old resident told me that her grandmother, a large-busted woman, had brought some chicks to full term in her bra after the mother hen had died.

LINDA A. MURPHY,
ACTIVITY DIRECTOR,
VALLEY VIEW, N.H.

DEAR ABBY: Twelve years ago, I had silicone implants placed in my breasts, and the plastic surgeon told me it would be a permanent thing. Well, three years ago one side collapsed, and now I am flat-chested on one side! The doctor who performed the surgery said she was sorry, but to redo the job would mean another operation at my expense. I can't afford it now.

Does a person have any legal rights in a case like this? It's too embarrassing to ask a lawyer.

DON'T USE MY NAME

DEAR DON'T: Go back to the plastic surgeon and tell her that you are sorrier than she is, but if she doesn't redo the job at no additional expense, having said it would be a permanent thing, you will take it up with the complaint or peer review department of the medical association of which she is a member—or the board of medical quality assurance of the state that licensed her to practice. Look in your telephone book for the numbers.

DEAR ABBY: My ex-husband is getting married again, and since I am on good terms with him and the woman he is marrying, I would like to send them a wedding present.

My "ex" is 42, and she is a few years younger. Do you think it would be appropriate for me to send a wedding gift? Or would it be better if I didn't? I can't simply ignore the occasion because my children, who are also his children, are going to be in the wedding party.

I don't want to play the role of the embittered wife because I really don't feel that way. I am glad they found each other, and wish them every happiness.

EX-WIFE

DEAR EX: Every ex-husband should have such an extraordinary ex-wife. Your lack of bitterness is all too rare, and your generosity of spirit is refreshing. Feeling as you do, send them a wedding gift.

High Risk

Concern over the sunken radioactive cargo aboard a French freighter off Belgium has diminished with continuing reports that the containers are intact and there are no signs of leakage.

The cargo is sealed in steel containers designed to be watertight for up to a year; or, so says the Paris-based company. It is small comfort to observers who reflect on risks involved in the moving of hazardous materials and the effects of shock from any kind of accident occurring while such a shipment is in transit — whether on land or on sea.

Recovery of all particles would appear feasible on dry land; but the perils of contamination cannot be ignored should a mishap occur at sea, as was the case Sunday when a small French ship sank in shallow water after colliding with a large ferry.

Transportation of radioactive materials is part of the scene when any country becomes involved with the nuclear field. Part of the price we pay for that involvement is the cost of extraordinary safeguards required in the handling of the materials.

The potential cost of failing to achieve complete safety would be incredibly high.

Misstep

The Baptist State Convention's executive committee was put in an impossible position by the sale of its mailing list to the re-election committee of Sen. Jesse Helms.

The governing board's chairman, the Rev. James Murphy of Durham, termed it "unfortunate" the list got into the hands of a political organization. The board voted to affirm a ban on use of its mailing list by outsiders. (That policy had been a verbal understanding for years and the list reportedly never used before by an outside organization.)

The Rev. Coy C. Privette (of the Christian Action League) has apologized for an admitted error in judgment and his role in the sale.

The Helms campaign used the list in a letter which urged the convention's ministers and other church officials to support Helms' re-election and solicited monetary contributions.

A number of the clergymen who received the letter protested merging of religion and politics. We agree it is a misstep.

Struggle For Control

DALLAS — Backstage intrigue among principal White House players transplanted to the lavish Anatole Hotel focused on a single question: Who is the Reagan second term? Will Michael K. Deaver become chief of staff after the election?

The answer coming into the Republican National Convention almost certainly was yes, and Deaver would like it confirmed before Election Day. But that prospect has raised passion among conservatives, who renewed a campaign here in behalf of Interior Secretary William P. Clark.

This subject, more than tactics for the 1984 campaign, consumed insiders at the Anatole — beginning a power struggle that may cast a long shadow right up to the election of 1988. The struggle takes on such importance because of President Reagan's dependence on staff, a fact not denied by his closest admirers.

At stake is whether the concentration of power is achieved by the masterful James A. Baker III as chief of staff will be perpetuated into the second term. Baker wants to take a Cabinet post (State, Justice or Treasury), but he also wants to retain his links into the White House. That would be accomplished by Deaver (who "wouldn't know an issue if it bit him," in the opinion of a colleague) moving up from deputy chief of staff.

The third piece of restructuring involves Richard Darman, Baker's astute lieutenant who wants to replace David Stockman as director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB). This prospect of Baker-Deaver-Darman extended into the second term excites anxiety on the Republican right, which felt it lost policy control by lassitude after the 1980 election and does not want to repeat its mistake.

Their choice as chief of staff has been Judge Clark, who no longer speaks to Deaver. His presence would drive Darman and Deaver out of the administration and dilute Baker's influence. For weeks, Clark had discouraged all entreaties from the right. Thus, the commonly considered alternative to Deaver has been businessman-politician Drew Lewis, the former secretary of transportation. He was not viewed by conservatives as a fellow true-believer, but they were willing to take a chance on somebody who would give them access to power.

However, Lewis's performance as White House agent on the platform here succeeded in antagonizing almost everyone, including his erstwhile conservative sponsors. At the same time, Clark told a friend here that he would serve as chief of staff after all.

Still, Clark faces an uphill climb. The inevitability of Deaver as chief of staff has been preached by Mildred Schmidlapp came home from lunch the other day and told Bert Schmidlapp the "girls" wanted her to run for mayor of Five Corners. "Are you out of your mind?" said Schmidlapp. "If you run for public office I'll have to produce my tax returns."

"What's wrong with that?" Mildred wanted to know. "Everyone will know how much money I make."

"So, what's the big deal? You didn't do anything wrong when you filled out your tax returns, did you?"

"Everyone does something wrong when he makes out his tax returns. How could you do otherwise with the crazy forms they require you to fill out?"

"Well, as long as it's an honest mistake people won't fault you."

"I'm not worried about people. I'm worried about the IRS. You release my tax return to the public and I'll have 20 agents down here going over every facet of my business."

"I don't see why I should give up my political ambitions because you're afraid of the IRS."

"Look, I run an honest car dealership in this town — at least as honest as any other car dealer. But in order to meet by bills I can't give all my money to Uncle Sam."

"Then what you're saying is you have something to be afraid of if your tax return is made public."

"Everyone has something to be afraid of when his tax return is published. The only thing the IRS has going for it is fear."

"Why didn't you tell me this before?"

"Because you didn't give a hoot how I ran my business in the past. Now you decide to run for office and suddenly you want to know where the bread for the table is coming from. Why do you want to become mayor anyway?"

"If I do a good job it will be a natural step to the Governor's Mansion."

"My God, if you run for governor they'll not only have the IRS but the FBI after me."

"Don't tell me you have anything to hide from the FBI."

"How do I know? They could set me up in a sting operation. They'll try to get me involved in a stolen car ring. Those guys will stop at nothing to set you up."

"I didn't say I'd run for governor right away. But it would be a good spot to launch my campaign for the Oval Office."

"That's where you're heading?" "What's wrong with wanting to be the first woman President of the United States?" Mildred said.

"Nothing if you don't mind the IRS trashing our records, the FBI tapping our phones, the media camped under our bed, and the public afraid to do business with me because of conflict of interest."

"But you've always been supportive of women running for political office," Mildred said. "Now you're talking out of the other side of your mouth."

"When I said women, I used it in a generic sense. I never thought you would toss your hat in the ring."

"The only reason I'm doing it is that I believe I'd make a very good mayor, and the machine in this town has been in office long enough."

"The machine you're talking about buys all its police cars from me."

"Well, it's wrong. The contract should go to the lowest bidder. That's one of the things I'm going to campaign for."

"That's just great. You take on the machine and they'll see that no one buys a tire from me."

"Honest government is more important than selling cars."

"I agree. So how do I make a buck while you're running for mayor of Five Corners?"

"That's your problem. If I'm going to run for public office I shouldn't know how you make your living."

Columnists See Change In GOP Stance

DALLAS — Days before Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., captured his party's presidential nomination in 1964, he received a private note from his chief rival, Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania. The message, which infuriated Goldwater, could, with some revision, have been directed at Ronald Reagan in Dallas.

"Your organization ... feels they have bought and beaten enough delegate support to make the result (of this convention) a foregone conclusion."

"You have too often casually prescribed nuclear war as a solution to a troubled world."

"You have too often allowed the radical extremists to use you."

"You have too often stood for irresponsibility in the serious question of racial holocaust."

Twenty years later, a philosophy that most Americans were overwhelmingly unwilling to trust has become the melody of the Republican Party. One need only read portions of Barry Goldwater's "extremism ... is no vice" speech at the 1964 Republican Convention to see the parallels between then and now.

Undeniably, the menace of the Republican Party now is worse than it was in Goldwater's heyday. The GOP has been overrun by hopeless reactionaries who make Barry Goldwater today sound like a moderate. The National Conservative Political Action Committee (NCPAC) is now the heart and soul of the Republican Party — not the fringe group it was once thought.

Not surprisingly, the far right is still making its appeal to people who are afraid. These are the rich, the powerful and the suburbanites who feel less secure than they really are. Their fears are transparent. They quake at the thought of losing power, prosperity and the value of their dollars.

And they seem willing to do whatever it takes to protect their status. They'll spend unlimited amounts of money or say anything to maintain their purity. In Dallas, we heard delegates describe Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker as a "socialist" and Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole as a "KGB agent."

The Reaganites' vision of themselves is as off-target as the frontier, self-made virtues they claim to embody. Their desert is air-conditioned tents and landscaped gardens. Their covered wagons are 35-foot limousines. Their blue jeans are designer quality from Neiman-Marcus. And their money is often inherited.

Nowhere was this clearer than at a

$1,000-a-plate fund-raising dinner for NCPAC at Bunker Hunt's million-dollar ranch last week. Texas sheriffs, mounted on horses, patrolled the 1,000-acre spread while 1,600 guests savored filet mignon beneath an enormous air-conditioned tent. Meanwhile, entertainers Pat Boone, Bob Hope and Chad Everett treated the Gucci crowd to a series of sexist and inflammatory jokes.

Undoubtedly, the Republicans' brand of conservatism today is radically different from what one conservative, Robert Taft, preached in 1952. Taft, you recall, was an isolationist. He wanted to keep the United States out of trouble.

—Elisha Douglass—

Strength For Today

Are you afflicted with fear? If so, what do you fear most?

A hundred persons to whom these questions might be addressed would probably give a variety of answers, but the majority would undoubtedly say that what they fear most is the uncertainty of the future.

Will we have enough money to get through and live comfortably in our declining years? Will our children be able to fulfill the ambitions we have for them? Will disease strike us down, or our loved ones?

More and more do religious people need to be reminded that the future can be left in the hands of God. We have things in our own nature which we need to fear more than we fear the future. But we do not need to fear God in whose hands the future rests.

In him is complete sufficiency.

Ingram's Fate Awaits November

RALEIGH — In the dog days of August in a year when the Atlanta Braves appear incapable of making a run for the pennant, the talk around the Raleigh coffee shops has fallen back on good ole John Ingram.

Ingram, the state insurance commissioner, unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination and general loose cannon on the Democratic deck, is going to need something to do come January when he goes off the state payroll for the first time in 12 years. He's a lawyer and could decide to go back to Randolph County and practice law. No one in the coffee shops expects him to do that, and since they need something to talk about, they fret over where Ingram may end up in the expected administration of Democratic gubernatorial nominee Rufus Edmisten. (Ingram isn't expected to get any kind of a state job if Republican Jim Martin wins the election.)

The rumors of Ingram's next job

are based on two distinct sets of assumptions. The first is that Ingram needs a suitable high-paying job but has no future political ambitions. The second is that Ingram wants to run for office again and therefore needs a job which will help him rebuild his political standing, a job that will keep him in the public eye.

If Ingram simply wants a job and a paycheck, there are several state jobs which Edmisten could give him. Speculation in this area centers on the Industrial Commission. The commission doesn't usually get much publicity but commissioners enjoy eight-year terms and make good money.

Ingram might also want to be a judge. He'd get more publicity than an industrial commissioner but he would be barred from political activities. If he were appointed to the Court of Appeals or to the Supreme Court, he would certainly have made a career step up from his current job.

Few of the political coffee drinkers expect Ingram to want a job which takes him out of the political spotlight, however. They expect him to run for office again, possibly as early as 1986 when John East's U.S. Senate seat comes open. (Ingram lost to Sen. Jesse Helms in 1978.)

The perfect job for Ingram in that case would be either as a member or chairman of the Utilities Commission. Ingram based almost his entire gubernatorial campaign on utilities bashing and he could use the office to make life miserable for the utilities. It would be right in line with the kind of political career he'd built for himself.

But there are problems with such speculation. First, a utilities commissioner must be confirmed by the Legislature and Ingram may have too many enemies in the assembly. Also, that might be a bigger plum than Edmisten feels he owes Ingram.

Another rumor has Ingram being named Commerce secretary. Martin is publicly fueling this rumor in an attempt to scare businessmen away from Edmisten. Finally, there's talk of Ingram as head of the Division of Motor Vehicles, a step down in prestige but a job that could be highly visible and in which Ingram could continue to rant about auto insurance rates.

Edmisten denies flatly that he has made any promises to Ingram and Ingram's office says the commissioner has no plans yet for January. But Edmisten has said he'll consider Ingram and the other defeated Democratic gubernatorial aspirants for positions in his administration.

For the political junkies, all of this is very important. Ingram has diehard supporters and enemies within his party and, in state government, there are a lot of state employees who would simply prefer not to find Ingram at the head of their department come January.

Agents' Line Riles Rest Home Voter

CHECKING IN — Former North Carolina AFL-CIO leader Wilbur Hobby carries some of his belongings with him as he enters the Federal Correctional Institution in Lexington, Ky., Thursday. Hobby will serve a one-year sentence for a 1981 conviction on charges that he misapplied money connected with the federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act. He also was fined $40,000. (AP Laserphoto)

ANDREWS, N.C. (AP) — It may be a long time before the staff and residents of Carolina Rest Home forget the FBI's visit to 80-year-old Bill Crowe.

Agents wore out their welcome in a few minutes Wednesday and left as Crowe gave them a loud, quick lesson on his theory that a man's vote is none of the FBI's business.

U.S. marshals and FBI agents have swarmed over Cherokee and Clay counties this week serving subpoenas and questioning people about alleged widespread vote buying.

Two agents aroused Crowe's anger when they questioned him about vote buying in Cherokee County.

The agents showed up at the rest home about 2 p.m., flashed their badges and identification cards to the rest home staff, and asked permission to question Crowe.

Crowe, a former logger and a rest home resident since 1980, said Thursday he has been a Democrat all his life and has missed only one election — "a long time ago" when he was in Detroit.

Crowe said both agents were courteous. The rest home staff agreed. Crowe just didn't like their line of questioning.

"They kinda made me mad on the windup. If I'd thought about it, I'd have told them they were on the wrong side of the door and I've got a pretty good cane over there." Crowe said, jerking his thumb toward a plain wooden walking cane leaning against his bed.

"They tried to pick something outta me, but they didn't stay but a few minutes. I don't think they'll be back," he said.

Crowe said the agents asked him about the 1982 election when Cherokee County Deputy Glenn Holloway came to the rest home and gave him a ride to the polls. "That's what they wanted to know about, if I was paid to vote."

Holloway verified he took Crowe and several other elderly people to the polls in his personal car. Holloway said that in 1982 deputies purchased their own patrol cars. Holloway has been listed as an unindicted co-conspirator in the vote-buying investigation.

"I'm legal to vote. I'd almost crawl to vote," Crowe said. "I'm not a fool Democrat; I'm just a Democrat and I'd do anything to vote. But I wouldn't sell no vote. Anybody who'd sell their vote ain't nothing."

GAO Report Says Leaf Plan Is OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal Commodity Credit Corp. does not have to make changes in the way it charges interest on loans to tobacco farmer cooperatives, according to a report by the General Accounting Office.

The report, obtained Thursday by the News and Observer of Raleigh, says no changes have to be made even though the current procedures result in federal subsidy of the tobacco program.

It disputes allegations by congressional critics of the tobacco program about the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp. and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Those critics said the two were ignoring the intent of Congress in 1981 and 1982 legislation that said the program should be operated at virtually no cost to federal taxpayers.

The GAO, the investigatory arm of Congress, said the legal issue "was not free of doubt."

It reaffirmed its previous findings that the CCC method of figuring interest charges was an "apparent contradiction" of the goals of the 1981 and 1982 legislation.

But the GAO said the legislative history of the act showed that Congress knew CCC's method of figuring interest charges meant that the government would not recoup its full interest costs from farmer cooperatives.

It concluded that Agriculture Secretary John Block was not required to make changes that his department has warned would wreck the federal tobacco program.

At issue is the difference in the way the CCC computes interest on the millions of dollars it loans tobacco cooperatives and the way the U.S. Treasury Department computes interest on the treasury money CCC borrows to make the loans.

Rep. Thomas E. Petri, R-Wis., is a tobacco program opponent who requested the GAO report. A Petri aide called it "a very unfortunate reading of the legislative history" of the 1981 and 1982 acts.

Joseph F. Flader, legislative director for Petri, said the congressman likely would pursue legislative changes on the interest question when Congress considers the 1985 Farm Bill next year.

"I think the GAO supports us in our position that it (the program) should be operated in a business-like fashion," he said.

But Hoke C. Leggett Jr., associate director of the U.S. Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service disagreed. The GAO report "basically supports the department's position that the legislation does not mandate that we change the repayment schedule," said Leggett, who is also a vice president of CCC.

Leggett also said the report supported changes that the USDA did make in the repayment schedule early this year as a "fair compromise" on the interest question.

Credit Sale

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The United States has agreed to sell South Korea $482 million worth of agricultural products on credit during the fiscal year starting Oct. 1, the Finance Ministry announced.

Ministry officials said the sales will include $270 million worth of raw cotton, $110 million worth of wheat, $60 million worth of corn, $25 million worth of beans and $17 million of beef tallow.

They said the credits will be repayed over 12 to 18 months at interest rates to be negotiated between the Koreans and the U.S. banks providing the financing.

Barfield's Daughter Says Her Life Now An 'Emotional Roller Coaster'

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — The daughter of convicted murderer Velma Margie Barfield says her life has been an "emotional roller coaster" preparing for her mother's death and hoping at the same time it won't happen.

Kim Norton, 31, of Lumberton, said she and other supporters of Mrs. Barfield would wage a fierce public-relations battle, hoping to convince Gov. Jim Hunt that drug addiction led her mother to poison four people in the late 1970s.

Mrs. Barfield was convicted of murdering her fiance, Stuart Taylor of St. Pauls, in 1978.

In an interview at the Raleigh home of Sister Mary Teresa Floyd, a Catholic nun and leader of a committee working to save Mrs. Barfield, Mrs. Norton said it was "very hard" to cope emotionally as the execution date drew nearer.

"My brother (Ronnie Burke of Charleston, S.C.) and I are just trying to come to grips with the reality that it could happen, and we've got to be prepared for it," Mrs. Norton said. "It's just a real emotional strain, that's the only words I can say. ... It's an emotional roller coaster."

"People die every day, but there's not many times when a person has a day set (when) ... you're going to walk into this room and this is where your life's going to end," she said.

"A lot of times I wonder how my mother feels. I know spiritually that she's at peace. ... I really don't think my mother's going to suffer. It'll be her family, the ones that have to go on, to live with this forever. We try to deal with it the best we can one day at a time because we don't know what's going to happen next."

The slender, dark-haired woman, wearing a light-colored skirt and dark blouse, said she and her husband told their 8-year-old daughter Stacy about the case "a few months ago."

"She kept reading things in the newspaper and hearing things on TV, so we decided it was time to tell her," said Mrs. Norton. "After we explained it to her — and I mean, we laid everything on the line, didn't hide anything, just explained exactly what happened — she said, 'I still love her, 'cause she's still my grandmother.'"

"And she really means that, because when we visit with my mother, the whole two-hour visit she'll usually sit in (Mrs. Barfield's) lap with her arms wrapped around her."

Mrs. Norton said her other daughter, 4-year-old Wendy, "doesn't really know what's going on," although the child realized that "when we come to visit her grandmother it's not like going to other grandmothers' houses."

Wendy has asked why her mother wore only a plain brown prison uniform, Mrs. Norton said, but didn't mention the execution until recently.

"Evidently she's heard it on TV," said Mrs. Norton. "I told her we'd be visiting my mother soon, and she said, 'I hope she don't die. I hope she lives forever.'"

Mrs. Norton said she was getting emotional support from friends in the Lumberton area, where she works in a department store. During the six years since her mother's trial, she said, she's been informed more than once at work about developments in the case.

"You have to have a release and my release is crying," she said. "I just go find me a spot in the store and I just let it out. And they (coworkers) are right there with me, crying with me."

Mrs. Norton said she once encountered the daughter of one of Mrs. Barfield's victims at the store.

"We sort of shared the grief for a moment," she said. "I really do think they understand that it's been equally as rough on us as on them."

Hunt has said he will meet with people who favor the execution and those who oppose it next month. A spokeswoman said Thursday he would decide shortly thereafter whether to permit the execution or commute Mrs. Barfield's sentence to life imprisonment.

Mrs. Norton said Mrs. Barfield's supporters would tell Hunt that the 51-year-old grandmother was "a different person" at the time of Taylor's death, when she had been addicted to prescription drugs for nearly a decade.

Supporters say that Mrs. Barfield has been a model prisoner and has counseled other inmates while writing hundreds of letters. But those who favor her execution say her drug problem wasn't serious and that she has not changed.

"I was near her (when she was taking drugs) and I know how she was," said Mrs. Norton. "It's no excuse for what she did, but ... she deserves another chance to pay back society. She won't do anybody any good if she's put to death."

Mrs. Norton, who hopes to visit her mother Saturday and as often as possible thereafter, said she wished she could meet the families of other death-row inmates.

"They just sort of hide in the background. Maybe some of them are ashamed ... but we need each other."

School Bus Flips In Mitchell County

BAKERSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Some 20 Mitchell County elementary and middle school children escaped serious injury when the school bus they were riding ran off a soft shoulder on a narrow, unpaved road and flipped several times.

First-grader Tammy Hamby of Rebels Creek community was transported to Spruce Pine Community Hospital where she was treated and released. The rest of the children were taken to Bakersville Medical Clinic and were treated for scratches and bruises.

Bus driver Jerry Willis underwent chest X-rays, according to Reid Duncan, Bakersville Clinic administrator.

According to Angie Boone, 12, of Rebels Creek, "the dirt caved in and Jerry tried it get back on the road, but he couldn't and we flipped three times."

Robert Bryant, 11, of Cona, said the bus was halted in its plunge down the bank by a small locust tree. "Everybody got thrown out of their seats," he said. "It's a miracle nobody got their neck broke."

Paul Grindstaff, whose son, John Paul, got off the bus just before the wreck occurred, said residents along the road with support of the school board and county commission "have been trying for five and a half years to get the state to fix this road so it would be safe for school buses."

"They say they haven't got the Grindstaff said rights-of-way have been signed by all landowners along the road, which has been the scene of at least two other school bus accidents in the past four years.

Bystanders said when the wreck was discovered, Willis, who they said appeared most seriously hurt, was helping children climb out of the bus.

Duncan said a second school bus was dispatched to bring the children to the clinic, "but they all started screaming. Mostly what you have got here is trauma. They're scared to death right now at the thought of getting on a bus."

NAACP Boycott Will Continue

CHARLOTTE (AP) — NAACP officials say the civil rights organization will continue to boycott the Salisbury-based Food Lion Inc. until the food store chain consents to a fair-share agreement.

In addition, the NAACP said it will emphasize support of the boycott by moving its quarterly national board of directors meeting from New York to Charlotte. The organization chose Charlotte over Salisbury, where the grocery chain has its headquarters, because it thought hotel facilities were better for meetings, said Denton Watson, director of public relations for the New York-based NAACP.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, SEPT. 1, 1984

YOUR DAILY
Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime is good for expressing your charm and magnetism to make headway towards gaining your hopes. Avoid arguments. Don't upset any present conditions. Use self-control.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A belligerent manner toward others could bring much trouble so cooperate instead and get better results.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get into work that requires neatness and precision and avoid a quarrel with an outside partner. Remain constant.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't try to skip out of tasks that have to be performed even though your mind is on pleasure and fun with friends.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Forget pleasure and try to improve conditions at home and strive for more harmony there.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Get out early and be with friends so that you can avoid a possible argument at home which could prove disastrous.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get busy on monetary affairs and be sure to drive or walk very carefully. Be with congenial persons and you feel happier.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Although financial affairs can be in a bad condition, don't try to straighten them out today, but get yourself in good physical condition.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get rid of that resentment over some affair otherwise you can make some big mistakes. Then handle practical matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you contact outsiders you can gain that personal aim that means so much to you. Be happy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Give more attention to career work and not so much on personal aims. Showing that you follow directives of higher-ups is wise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take no risks with your reputation, especially in the community in which you reside, but improve it instead.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be sure you agree with the aims of the one you love and don't try to run off to seemingly greener pastures.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be highly magnetic yet want to be alone at times and should be taught to socialize with others. One who will want to make radical changes at the most unusual time, yet this is the secret to the big success possible in this chart.

PBS Tops Networks In Emmys For News

NEW YORK (AP) — Six episodes of "Vietnam: A Television History" each won Emmy Awards for news and documentary excellence as the Public Broadcasting Service garnered 19 awards, topping the three major networks.

ABC won 11 awards, CBS won 10 and NBC won 6 as the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences presented its 1983 National News and Documentary Emmy Awards Thursday night.

The PBS documentary on the Vietnam war won six of the seven Emmys presented in the Outstanding Informational, Cultural or Historical Programs category. PBS' "Rain Forest," a National Geographic Special, won the seventh.

PBS also won the Outstanding Investigative Journalism Emmy for programs with its "Uncounted Enemy, Unproven Conspiracy," a presentation of the Inside Story program, which did not return this season due to a lack of funding.

ABC, CBS and NBC shared the Outstanding Investigative Journalism award for segments of news shows. ABC won for "Growing Up In Smoke" on 20-20, CBS for "Lenell Geter's In Jail" on 60 Minutes, and NBC for "Poison On Your Plate" on First Camera.

ABC's 20-20 won four Emmys, CBS' 60 Minutes won three, and PBS' Inside Story also won three. The CBS Evening News With Dan Rather won five Emmys.

The awards are given in recognition of excellence for television journalism in such areas as coverage of news stories, background analysis, investigative reporting and interviews. There were 187 nominees.

Prices Lowered

MOSCOW (AP) — The ruling Politburo has ordered a reduction in retail prices for some medications and consumer goods, the official news agency Tass reported.

Tass did not report by what percentage the prices would be cut, but said the total reduction will amount to about 2.2 billion rubles ($2.6 billion). The Politburo occasionally orders price reductions, particularly for clothing at the end of a season.

Roof Of Discount Store Collapses

DEL CITY, Okla. (AP) — Rescue workers faced the laborious task of ripping up the foot-thick concrete roof of a discount store today to make certain no one was trapped when the roof collapsed, injuring 15 people and hurling shoppers out the door.

Shoppers said that "just sort of a rumble" gave them barely 30 seconds to save themselves before the cave-in at the Walls Bargain Center, a former bowling alley, about noon Thursday.

Aisles became tunnels through which screaming customers crawled to safety.

Emergency workers were told as many as five people might have been pinned. They scrambled over roof sections and peered into cavities for eight hours in afternoon temperatures that hit 140 degrees in some spots under the concrete, authorities said.

But after looking through holes cut in every section, the search was called off at 8 p.m.

"You could only get about a foot or so of room under the roof to look for people," said Michael Menard, one of the men who dug into the building from above. "Counters were smashed all over. There were clothes ... a lot of glass. It's nasty in there."

Fifteen people were taken to Midwest City Hospital. Four were admitted and two underwent surgery, but the injuries weren't described as life-threatening, said Gerry Larsen, the hospital's executive secretary.

Authorities said they had no idea what caused the collapse.

An investigation accounted for everyone thought to have been in the massive store and no one was reported missing, said Lyn Cusic, a spokeswoman for the Del City Police Department.

But the search was scheduled to resume today as rubble was removed from the 40,000-square-foot store.

"Right now it looks like nobody's been killed," she said. "They've gotten under every area, but whether they've covered every inch, I don't know," she said.

DOUALA, Cameroon (AP) — The official Cameroon National Radio said early today that 24 people died when fire swept through a Cameroon Airlines Boeing 737 as it was preparing to take off from Douala.

The radio broadcast also said 72 people were injured in the fire Thursday, while the remaining 20 people aboard escaped unharmed.

The cause of the fire was not known. But on Thursday night, a group calling itself the Cameroon Liberation Front claimed responsibility for the fire in a broadcast from Gabon. Reporters in Yaounde quoted the broadcast as claiming the group did not intend to kill people, only to blow up the plane.

Charles Twining, the U.S. consul general in Douala, said there were seven Americans aboard the plane, and that five were injured, none critically.

'Miss Ellie' Role Is New For Veteran Donna Reed

NEW YORK (AP) — Donna Reed used to be concerned with measles, school grades and whether her TV kids, Mary and Jeff, were picking the right friends. Now her prime-time offspring are J.R. and Bobby, and she's worried about them fussin' and fightin' and maybe killin' each other.

Miss Reed, the all-American mom in the old "Donna Reed Show," has become the new Miss Ellie, matriarch of the irascible J.R. Ewing (Larry Hagman) and his brother, Bobby (Patrick Duffy), on "Dallas."

The two maternal roles are 18 years and miles apart. "That's the attraction," said Miss Reed. "Miss Ellie does have bad boys. But they can't do anything that keeps her from loving them."

That sentiment could be severely tested if J.R. turns out, in some way, to be responsible for Bobby being shot. It was Bobby who fell from the chair after he was pelted with bullets apparently intended for J.R. on the final episode of "Dallas" last season. The cliffhanger will be repeated tonight.

Lee Rich, head of Lorimar, the production company behind "Dallas," said the actors involved didn't even know that Bobby was the one hit by bullets.

"We shot four different endings," said Rich. Sue Ellen (Linda Gray), Pam (Victoria Principal) and J.R. all were filmed in the hot seat. "I think everybody was amazed when Bobby fell out of the chair," Rich said.

The identity of the shooter, however, got out, and Lorimar had to re-shoot the first episode of the new season. Supermarket tabloids reported that the assailant was Morgany Brittany's character, Katharine Wentworth.

For many longtime TV watchers, the new Miss Ellie will also be a surprise.

Strikes, Mourning Paralyze Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Christian and Druse gunners exchanged artillery and rocket fire in the hills overlooking Beirut today, and the capital was paralyzed by a general strike in the Moslem sector and a day of mourning in the Christian area.

Police said two foreign workers, an Indian and a Jordanian, were killed and two Lebanese army troops wounded before the mountain battles halted before dawn.

The two foreigners were factory workers in the Christian town of Kfarchima, whose Phalangistdominated "Lebanese Forces" militia garrison was involved in the fighting against Druse irregulars in the neighboring village of Shweifat, the police report said.

Police said the army troops were injured in fighting around the mountaintop town of Souk el-Gharb, above Shweifat and Kfarchima.

Christian east Beirut and other Christian areas observed a second day of mourning for Pierre Gemayel, founder and leader of the Phalange Party, and father of President Amin Gemayel.

Master of Middle-earth

Today, ten years after his death, J.R.R. Tolkien is remembered as the author of some of this century's most-loved works of literature — "The Hobbit" and "The Lord of the Rings." Perhaps no one believed more fervently in an underlying truth in fantasy than the creator of Bilbo Baggins, Gandalf, Strider, and Gollum. "Faerie contains many things besides elves and fays," said Tolkien — such as "ourselves, mortal men, when we are enchanted."

DO YOU KNOW — In Tolkien's trilogy, "The Lord of the Rings," what is Strider's real name?

Arms Talks Unlikely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz says the odds are against U.S.-Soviet arms control talks being held in Vienna next month, despite the expressed hope of both sides that talks be held.

"If you were a betting man, I wouldn't put a lot of money on it," Shultz said Thursday when asked if he thought the Vienna talks would be held. The date proposed was Sept. 18.

Shultz's comments, made in an interview with The Associated Press, would appear to dash any chance that the two superpowers will hold new arms control negotiations prior to the November presidential election.

Shultz said he hopes to meet with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko at the United Nations in late September, although he hasn't heard officially that Gromyko is coming.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said earlier this week the United States was continuing preparations for the talks.

Vietnam Spurred More Education

WASHINGTON (AP) — As a group, young men who matured during the Vietnam era were educational overachievers, spurred on by draft deferments and the GI Bill, new government statistics show.

The rates of college attendance for men born from 1947 through 1951 have exceeded those of young men born either before or since, the Census Bureau reported on Thursday.

The combined result of the GI Bill and college draft deferments was that "men eligible for the draft during the Vietnam Era received more education than they would have under normal circumstances," reported Rosalind R. Bruno of the Census Bureau.

The subsequent decline in attendance "may be a return to 'normal levels' of college enrollment, she said in the study "Educational Attainment in the United States."

But, she added, this group of young men is the leading edge of the post World War II baby boom, a group that has recorded many changes from traditional behavior, and "theories abound on this generation."

The percentage of young men attending college climbed rapidly from 1966 through 1972 and then began declining, Ms. Bruno reported.

"College attendance to maintain a draft deferment most likely caused an increase in college enrollment rates among young men in the 1960s, and the elimination of the draft in the early 1970s probably had some negative impact on enrollment rates in succeeding years," said Ms. Bruno.

The college enrollment rate for civilian men aged 18 to 24 rose from 24 percent to 36 percent between 1960 and 1969 and then dropped to 27 percent in the mid-1970s, the bureau reported.

In addition to students seeking draft deferments, she said, "veterans with GI Bill benefits attended college in the mid-1970s, but as these benefits expired, attendance declined...."

Using figures for men aged 25 to 29 years old, she compared rates of college attendance to illustrate her study.

In 1966, 30.1 percent of men in that age group had completed at least one year of college. By 1971 some 37.9 percent had finished one year and in 1976 more than half, 50.1 percent, had at least one year of college behind them.

But by 1981, the share of men in that group with a year or more of college fell to 45.7 percent.

NEA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1.7-million member National Education Association endorsed Democrat Walter F. Mondale for president today, claiming President Reagan, if re-elected, would "undermine the public schools."

The teachers' union said the endorsement meant that "thousands of teachers will be mobilized to get behind the Mondale candidacy."

The endorsement followed a secret mail ballot among the nearly 7,000 members of the association's governing body, its Representative Assembly. The yes or no question on the ballot was whether to endorse Mondale, and of the 5,754 who returned ballots, 88 percent voted yes, NEA said.

Debates

WASHINGTON (AP) — With all the secrecy and protocol of international negotiations, top aides to President Reagan and Walter F. Mondale are meeting to hammer out details of this fall's presidential debates.

White House Chief of Staff James A. Baker III, who negotiated the terms of debates for President Ford in 1976 and candidate Reagan in 1980, was given the prerogative to choose the site — still secret — for this afternoon's session.

Mondale campaign chairman Jim Johnson, representing the former vice president, will select the location of the second meeting, according to a Mondale campaign source who spoke on the condition of not being identified.

Baker and Johnson will also discuss details of a debate between Vice President George Bush and the Democratic vice presidential nominee, Rep. Geraldine A. Ferraro of New York.

Teamsters

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's endorsement by the Teamsters union still leaves him far behind Walter Mondale in the contest for organized labor's official support, but the White House is vowing to fight for the votes of millions of blue-collar Americans whose leaders back the Democrats.

The 1.9 million-member Teamsters, the nation's largest union, delivered its endorsement Thursday night to Vice President George Bush, who flew to Columbus, Ohio, for a Teamsters gathering.

Mondale

NORTH OAKS, Minn. (AP) — Walter F. Mondale, trying to take the initiative in the election-year tax debate, is working on a plan that would earmark revenue from future tax increases to reduce federal budget deficits.

The Democratic presidential nominee talked about the plan Thursday during a closed meeting with the party's business council.

Joseph H. Fuchs, of Phoenix, a member of the Democratic Party Business Council, said that under the plan described by Mondale "all of the increases in tax that Vice President Mondale is proposing would be used only for the reduction of the deficit and not for implementation of any new social programs."

Ferraro

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro, buoyed after a six-state campaign swing marked by cheering, flag-waving crowds, says her candidacy is in no danger of eclipsing that of running mate Walter Mondale.

"No way are we overshadowing Fritz Mondale," Ms. Ferraro told a press conference after she addressed a crowd of some 7,000 that spilled over the streets in the park behind the Old State House in Hartford, Conn.

She said she and Mondale plan to formally kick off their White House bid together on Labor Day and after a cross-country tour, "we're going off... in our own directions."

Ms. Ferraro made it clear that although she has been receiving a lot of attention and headlines, and has appeared on the covers of national magazines during the five weeks since she was invited to join the ticket, she is a team player.

"Every time someone sees Gerry Ferraro stand up, as a candidate for the first woman vice president, immediately they harken back to the person who made that possible, which is Walter Mondale," Ms. Ferraro said.

Zaccaro

NEW YORK (AP) — The husband of Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro defended his management of an elderly woman's estate, but said he understood and would "accept" a state judge's decision to remove him as conservator.

In ordering the removal Thursday, Supreme Court Justice Edwin Kassoff said he found "no suggestion" that John Zaccaro acted dishonestly in borrowing money from the woman's assets.

Stocks And Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market gave ground again today, continuing the slow decline of the past two sessions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 8.83 Wednesday and Thursday, slipped another 3.43 to 1,219.85 in the first half hour today.

Losers took a 3-2 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The market's dramatic midsummer rally has shown signs of fading lately as hopes for lower interest rates have dimmed.

Analysts have interpreted the latest comments from the Federal Reserve as a signal that the Fed is reluctant to relax its credit policy.

Long-term interest rates, which fell substantially earlier in the summer, have lately backed up a bit.

Today's early volume leaders included General Electric, up 1/4 at 56 3/4; General Motors, up 1/4 at 72 1/4; International Business Machines, down 3/4 at 123 1/4; and Texaco, unchanged at 36.

On Thursday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 3.64 to 1,223.28.

Advances outpaced declines by about 8 to 7 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 70.84 million shares, against 90.66 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index slipped .24 to 95.81. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .19 at 214.64.

Pirate Countdown Nears 'Zero'

Like those rockets that sit on the launching pad on the Florida east coast, East Carolina head football coach Ed Emory has been counting down the days until the 1984 season gets underway.

Today, the count reached "1". Tomorrow night at 7 p.m. in Florida State's Doak S. Campbell Stadium in Tallahassee, the count will reach "zero."

Emory and his staff, along with thousands of Pirate fans will learn then whether the 1984 Bucs are going to take off like one of those rockets, or — like some of those other rockets — sit on the pad waiting for another day.

As the launch count dwindled down toward that zero mark, there were still many questions to be answered for the Pirates. As of this morning, there had been no decision as to which of three potential starters would draw the assignment at quarterback. Emory has only said that junior college transfer Robbie Bartlett, sophomore Darrell Speed and freshman red-shirt Ron Jones will all see playing time. "It may be we won't know for sure until kickoff," Emory said earlier this week.

Another question is the defensive line, where several players counted on to start didn't return for various reasons, and others are youngsters with little or no collegiate experience.

Florida State, meanwhile, counters with a quarterback who came off the bench at season's end last year to guide the Seminoles to victory over North Carolina in the Peach Bowl, and one of the nation's top running backs, one FSU is touting for the Heisman.

The quarterback is Eric Thomas, a junior who played in but three games during the regular season, hitting three of eight passes. But in the Peach Bowl, he connected on seven of 13 passes for 99 yards and two touchdowns. He also carried the ball 13 times for 41 yards, scoring once.

Greg Allen, a senior speedburner, is steadily adding to his collection of records at Florida State. He already holds the marks for most yards in a season, 1,134; most in a game, 322 (an NCAA record), most touchdowns rushing in a game, 4, in a season, 21, and in a career, 126. There are a number of others also listed in the FSU guide.

And he has a chance to set three more in the game Saturday night. With 2,798 career yards, he needs 155 to reach the current standard. He needs 135 to reach the 4,148 yards of all-purpose rushing, and just ten points to tie the FSU career record of 240 points.

Last year, Allen carried 33 times for 154 yards against the Pirates in FSU's 47-46 victory.

"This is a great challenge for us," Emory said. "But I think we will go into the game well prepared."

Emory said the offense and defense both have to be ready for anything. The Seminoles have a new defensive coordinator and the Pirate staff is unsure what to expect.

On offense, FSU now has former ECU offensive coordinator Art Baker, but the Pirates are unsure whether the Seminoles will run the freeze-I which the Pirates employed under Baker and still use.

"I think we will be a good football team in 1984," Emory said. "I just don't know how fast we'll be a good football team.

"Our greatest concern is the quarterback situation, how they'll handle the pressure. I don't want to have them put it on the ground or have an interception early. I want them to have a chance to get their feet on the ground and establish their tempo.

"Then, too, we've got to contain their offense, and with such a young line, I don't know if we can."

The Pirate will be attempting to halt a seven-game losing string to Florida teams under Emory and a nine-game string that dates back to 1965. Three previous trips to Florida to face FSU have resulted in 63-7, 56-17 and 47-46 losses.

"It's time for us to win one," Emory said. "This is as good a time as any to do it."

East Carolina is expected to start Stefan Adams at split end, Damon Pope at tight end, Ricky Nichols at flanker, Tim Dumas and Greg Quick at tackles, Norman Quick and Mac Powers at guards and Tim Mitchell at center. The backfield will have Jimmy Walden at tailback, Reggie Branch at fullback, and either Bartlett, Speed or Jones at quarterback.

Randy Watts and Essray Taliaferro will be at the defensive ends, with David Plum and Joe Grinage at the tackles. Chris Santa Cruz will be at nose guard. The linebackers will be Donald Reid and Tyrone Johnson, with Kevin Walker and Calvin Adams at the corners. Keith Ford and Gary London will start at the safety positions.

The game will be carried live over the Pirate Sports Network, as will all games, heard locally over WOOW or WITN-FM. The game will also be telecast over WITN-TV, with a one-hour tape delay, starting at 8 p.m. A pre-game show will begin at 7:30 p.m.

The Pirates next outing will be Saturday, September 8, as they open their home season against Temple.

Petty Leads Way At Darlington

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Richard Petty led the way in the second day of qualifying Thursday for Sunday's running of the Southern 500 NASCAR Grand National classic at Darlington International Raceway.

Petty, whose lap speed of 153.426 miles per hour won him the 16th starting slot, said he is generally pleased with his car's performance leading up to the race.

"We should have run that good yesterday, but we didn't," Petty said. "We haven't done anything to the car since yesterday except run it."

"I feel good about this particular race because the car and everything on the team is working good," he said.

Harry Gant gained the pole position Wednesday, moving his Chevrolet around the track at an average speed of 155.502 miles per hour.

Chevrolets took the first four positions as Lake Speed, Darrell Waltrip and Neil Bonnett were second, third and fourth respectively in first-day qualifying Wednesday.

Thursday, several of the drivers who came in behind Petty said they were disappointed with their showings.

"We were after first, and I really thought we would get it," said Rusty Wallace, who captured position 18. "I don't know why we weren't faster — we've been running better than that in practice."

Jody Ridley, who got position 17, said his Chevrolet "was a little loose, and it cost us."

"We're kind of in the middle," Ridley said. "We don't go quite fast enough to win a pole, but we always make the field."

Buddy Baker, who will start from position 19, and Phil Parsons, who's at No. 25, also said their cars needed some adjustments before race time.

"The car was just too loose in turns three and four. I was nearly sideways coming off four and it hurt momentum so much it ruined the second lap," Parsons said.

Tommy Ellis, in position 27, said his team "has a lot of work to do between now and Sunday."

"That sure wasn't very fast, was it? At least I brought it back in one piece this time and didn't wreck like

I did yesterday," Ellis said. The remaining 10 qualifying spots will be decided at 1 p.m. Friday.

Here are the qualifiers as of Thursday for Sunday's running of the Southern 500 NASCAR Grand National classic at Darlington International Raceway. Positions 15-30 were decided Thursday; positions 31-40 will be decided Friday.

Cubs Give Up Opening Rights

NEW YORK (AP) — The Chicago Cubs, should they reach the World Series, will be allowed to play daytime games at Wrigley Field although it will cost them the chance to open at home.

Should the Cubs win the National League pennant, the first two games of the World Series will be switched to the American League city, baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced Thursday.

Wrigley Field is the only major league stadium without lights, and with the Cubs currently leading the NL East by six games, the situation presented baseball with a problem.

"If all the games scheduled to be played in the NL East city during the National League Championship Series and World Series were shifted from night to day, each major league team would lose an estimated $700,000 in television revenue.

"An adjustment to the NL and AL playoff schedules will be made if the Cubs win their division," Kuhn said.

The first two games of the NL series would be played by day in Chicago, with the first two AL games at night. If Chicago does not win the NL East, Game 1 of the NL series would be a night game and Game 2 would be played during the day.

Statistics show the team that played the first two games at home has won the World Series 53 percent of the time. Kuhn also pointed out that visiting teams have won the seventh and deciding game 15 of 26 times that the Series has gone the distance.

"It's not a perfect solution," Kuhn admitted. "But it's the one that is the best compromise."

The option of installing temporary lights at Wrigley Field was blocked by state and local laws, Kuhn said. A state law restricts the amount of noise allowed at night games while the local ordinance prohibits athletic contests that would draw more than 10,000 people in an area surrounded by a large residential area.

"In our discussions with the people in Illinois, we decided we could not get relief for either one of the regulations," Kuhn said.

Other options included moving the Cubs' home games to either Comiskey Park, home of the crosstown White Sox, or County Stadium in Milwaukee, about 90 miles away.

Under the plan announced by Kuhn:

—If the Cubs win the NL East, the best-of-five playoffs will start with day games in Chicago Oct. 2-3. Both American League playoff games in that case would be played at night.

—If the Cubs do not make the playoffs, they will start with a night game at the NL East Oct. 2, followed by an afternoon game the next day. The American League playoff would begin with a day game Oct. 2 and a night game Oct. 3.

The AL playoffs will begin in the home park of the West winner.

—If the Cubs win the National League pennant, the World Series will start in the American League city with night games Oct. 9-10, moving to Chicago for day games Friday through Sunday, Oct. 12-14. The last two games, if necessary, would be at night in the AL city.

—If the Cubs do not win the NL, the Series will open with night games Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 9-10, in the NL park and move to American League for a night game Friday, Oct. 12, and day games Saturday and Sunday. The last two games, if necessary, would be at night in the NL city.

The possibility of moving the games from Wrigley Field "was an option we had in mind," the commissioner said. "It was not a frivolous one."

"However, I would not rule it out as an alternative for the future," Kuhn said. "Baseball must promptly find a clear-cut solution to the lights situation."

Had the original schedule held, and if Cubs hosted three weekday games during the World Series, baseball would have been required to rebate to NBC a large sum of money to compensate for the loss in advertising revenue.

The change will mean that only one game would be involved, Game 3 of the Series. Games 4 and 5, weekend games, would be played at night anyway.

An NBC-TV spokesman said the network and baseball executives would have to work out "an appropriate adjustment" if the Cubs are in the Series and Game 3 is played played by day instead of at night.

"NBC made it clear that they felt we had a commitment to those night (World Series) games and that they would hold us to it," Kuhn said.

A spokesman for ABC-TV, which will televise the NL and AL playoffs, said the network was happy with the decision.

"We're going to be showing one day game and one night game the first two days as is it," said the spokesman, who asked not to be named.

Kuhn's decision did not surprise Chicago executives, pleased area fans and drew criticism from some Cubs.

Said Cubs President Jim Finks: "Everyone has worked hard to resolve the situation and I think that the decision is a good one for the game of baseball."

"There's a law against it to begin with," Finks said of the possibility of putting in lights.

Several Cubs did not like the idea of losing an extra home game in the World Series.

"I know I'm not going to get a vote, but it's pretty obvious I'd like to start at home," said Chicago Manager Jim Frey.

Said outfielder Keith Moreland: "It's not good news to me that we lose the home-field advantage, but we've still got a long way to go."

Cathy Zuccarello, speaking from the Cubby Bear Lounge across from Wrigley Field, said she did not like the notion of the Cubs playing somewhere else or at night.

"It was a horrible idea," she said.

Announce Scholarships

Wayne Peterson of Tarboro (right), president of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co., presents East Carolina University chancellor Dr. John M. Howell with a formal agreement establishing a series of $3,000 scholarships to honor past and present ECU football players. One of the scholarships will be awarded at each of the home football games this year. (ECU News Bureau Photo)

CT&T Will Give Scholarships

Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. will present a $3,000 scholarship in honor of an East Carolina University football player at each ECU home game this season.

Wayne Peterson, president of CT&T made the announcement at a meeting of company officials with Dr. John M. Howell, ECU chancellor, Pirate head football coach Ed Emory and ECU Pirate Club executive director Richard Dupree.

The scholarship will be administered through the ECU Educational Foundation (Pirate Club), for the general athletic scholarship fund and will be presented to an ECU student-athlete. It will be presented in honor of present or former football players "whose academic achievement, dedication to athletics and character reflect great credit on East Carolina University," Peterson said.

Dr. Howell praised CT&T and its management for their support of the university, noting the company's response during the $1 million campaign to provide a margin of excellence in its athletic program. "You (Peterson) picked it up and came up with a better pitch than I did," the chancellor said.

Under the scholarship agreement, the ECU athletes to be honored will be designated by the director of athletics and those being honored will be announced during the halftime program of each home ECU football game. ECU's first home game is September 8 against Temple.

"The future status, purpose and amount of the award will be evaluated by Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. and the ECU Educational Foundation by March 1 of each year," Peterson said.

Redskins Dolphins Set For Rematch

By The Associated Press
The Washington Redskins meet the Miami Dolphins in a rematch of Super Bowl XVII opponents as the National Football League opens its regular season on Sunday.
Since beating Miami in the NFL's championship game 27-17 two years ago, the Redskins have played the Dolphins once in an exhibition game that resulted in a 38-7 victory for Miami last year.

"They are among the elite — a well-coached, disciplined team that doesn't do anything fancy but out-execute you," said Washington assistant coach Richie Petitbon of the Dolphins.

The Redskins' growing injury list — which includes defensive linemen Dave Butz (back) and Darryl Grant (knee), cornerback Darrell Green (thigh) and offensive linemen Joe Jacoby (ankle) and Russ Grimm (leg) — remained a primary concern heading into the season opener.

"The injuries will play as great a part in planning our game plan as what Miami does," said Redskins Coach Joe Gibbs.
The Dolphins don't have as many injury problems as the Redskins — only linebacker A.J. Duhe is missing due to lingering knee and shoulder problems. Quarterback Dan Marino bounced back from a dislocated finger to throw for 204 yards against Tampa Bay in last week's exhibition game.

England at Buffalo, Philadelphia at the New York Giants, St. Louis at Green Bay, San Diego at Minnesota, San Francisco at Detroit, Tampa Bay at Chicago, Cincinnati at Denver, and the New York Jets at Indianapolis.
Cleveland plays at Seattle in a Monday afternoon game and Dallas visits the Los Angeles Rams in the first of the weekly Monday night games.
The Cowboys open the season with a new quarterback in Gary Hogeboom, who is supplanting Danny White. They also have 12 rookies on a 49-man roster that lost five players to retirement.
Most of the Dallas newcomers are replacing a group of blue-chip retirees — Harvey Martin, Drew Pearson, Billy Joe DuPree, Pat Donovan and Robert Newhouse. The last time the Cowboys lost as many players, in 1975, they went to the Super Bowl.

Coach Tom Landry's vote of confidence in Hogeboom, however, is not overwhelming.
"This could be a one-week thing. We're playing it game by game," he said. "I'm not sure which quarterback will take us to the Super Bowl, Hogeboom or White, time will tell. I hope Gary will live up to it, but who knows?"
The Rams will try and repeat their 24-17 triumph over Dallas in the National Football Conference's wild-card playoff game last year.
The Jets-Indianapolis game will be played in the new Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis, where the Colts have moved from Baltimore.
The Colts, whose only preseason victory came in their only preseason game at the Hoosier Dome, will be greeted by a capacity crowd of 61,000. Mike Pagel will direct a ground-oriented offense featuring running backs Curtis Dickey and Randy McMillan against the Jets, who will have six-year backup Pat Ryan at quarterback in place of Richard Todd, traded to New Orleans.

Donald Finds Groove For B.C. Open Lead

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — With a little help from a friend, Mike Donald got into the right groove for the B.C. Open. Now he's 25 percent of the way to his first Professional Golfers' Association Tour victory.
Obstacles in the way, though, including red-hot Fred Couples, who fired a 5-under-par 66 Thursday to tie the Donald for the first-round lead of the $300,000 event.
Another might be years of PGA history in which obscure golfers seem to turn up leading after 18 holes but fade to the fine print after 72. It happens in the "major" tournaments as well as the lesser-known.
The B.C. Open has a history of providing a stepping-stone to young golfers, however, and Donald, 29, saw no reason to suspect a collapse.
"I was nearly perfect on the first nine holes," he said. "I think that helps the confidence. And I've been near the lead this year — I've had a couple of third-place finishes. There's no reason I couldn't do well here."
He said he spent last week getting advice from friend Gardner Dickinson, who now competes on the senior tour.
"I always play better after I go down there (Palm Beach, Fla.). I always pick up a few keys," Donald said.
Donald is now in his fifth year on the Tour, one more than the 24-year-old Couples, but Couples is having an extravagant year so far, winning the Tournament Players Championship and amassing $313,701 for fourth place on the money list.

However, Couples wasn't counting on his third Tour title.
"I just want to play my best and hope I do well," he said.
Just behind were Tommy Valentine, Canadian native Dan Hallderson and Wayne Levi, all with 67s.
Rookie Jim Gallagher and veteran Ed Fiori shot 68s, while 11 players were grouped at 69. All told, 32 players broke par on the 6,966-yard En-Joe Golf Club course and another 10 matched par 71.

Woody Peele

The 1984 football season is here, with nearly half of our area high schools getting their year underway tonight, while East Carolina and a number of others are starting their play on Saturday.

And with the return of the grid season, our panel of experts also makes its reappearance.

We're going to try and put Vickie Spivey, our lone female panel member, back in her place this year after she put us in ours by winning the championship last year.

As a reminder, Spivey finished the year with a 106-50 record, while this writer was second with a 104-52 mark. Tom Baines finished at 102-54, followed by Joe Jenkins at 98-58, and Jimmy DuPree at 97-59.

But this is a new year, and we're hopeful that things will improve somewhat.

First, a look at the area high school slate. Six of our area teams begin their season tonight, four of them involved in cross-area games.

Greene Central visits D.H. Conley in one contest. The Rams were looking for a great year until losing their top player to a transfer to Wilson Fike. D.H. Conley — like all of the other schools in Pitt County — has a new coach, and there is new enthusiasm among the players. This should be one of the better games around, but we'll have to stick with tradition and give the nod to Greene Central, but only 13-12.

North Pitt visits Roanoke in another game pitting two area teams against each other. The Panthers have a new coach also, and there are hopes of a new era beginning at the school. Roanoke has more veterans back, however, and Coach Nolan Respass feels he has one of the best quarterbacks in the area. Our nod here is to the Redskins, 21-7.

In the other games in the area, we like Washington over Belhaven, and Williamston over Perquimans.

Now to the panel.

Our guest this week is the new sports information director at East Carolina University, Bob Gennarelli. Bob comes to Greenville after a stint with the University of Houston, and already has promised that he'll be our guest come the bowl games — when the top guest returns.

East Carolina, of course, opens the season with Florida State — on the Seminole field. The Pirates have been getting better down there, last year losing by one one point. But they still haven't come around with a victory. Florida State has Greg Allen, one of the top running backs in the country, while the Pirates are still trying to decide which of three rookie quarterbacks will get the nod come Saturday night.

With all this, we have to go with Florida State in this one, 35-14. The panel concurs, giving FSU a 5-1 nod — the only exception being Gennarelli.

Our other consensus picks: Clemson over Appalachian State; Mississippi State over Tulane; Tulsa over Southern Illinois; Air Force over San Diego State; Boston College over Western Carolina; Pittsborough over Brigham Young; Miami over Florida; Louisville over Murray State; Tennessee over Washington State; Arizona over Fresno State; and Illinois over Northwestern.

Miami Out For Revenge

By The Associated Press

It's payback time for the Miami Hurricanes.

Tired of bumper stickers that read "Florida 28, National Champions 3", the 10th-ranked Hurricanes tackle the 17th-ranked Florida Gators in one of Saturday night's key college football games.

The bumper stickers, of course, refer to last season's opening game when the Gators handed the Hurricanes their only loss in a national championship season.

At present, the Gators are a team in turmoil. Coach Charley Pell has announced his resignation, effective at the end of the season, because of a continuing NCAA probe into the Gators' program, and quarterback Dale Dorminey was lost for the season with a knee injury.

The Hurricanes are fresh off last Monday night's 20-18 upset over top-ranked Auburn in the Kickoff Classic in East Rutherford, N.J. The defending national champions are led by sophomore quarterback Bernie Kosar, who completed 21 of 38 passes for 329 yards and two touchdowns against Auburn.

"We're going to play one great football team Saturday night and we have to completely forget Auburn," said Miami Coach Jimmy Johnson. "If we think about Auburn, we're going to be in trouble."

Said Kosar of Florida: "They humiliated us (last year). They're one of our big rivals and we'll be ready to play them. I don't think it'll be as much a revenge aspect as much as continuing on with our winning ways, hopefully."

In other games involving the nation's Top Twenty teams on this first full weekend of the college football season, Brigham Young will play at No. 3 Pitt, Appalachian at No. 4 Clemson, Western Carolina at No. 19 Boston College and East Carolina at No. 20 Florida State.

The Panthers have a pretty good idea what to expect from BYU.

"No matter who the quarterback is, you know what they're going to do — pass," said Pitt Coach Foge Fazio.

Robbie Bosco, who was 17-of-28 for 252 yards and three touchdowns as last season's backup, is the latest in a long line of strong-armed quarterbacks at BYU, following the likes of Gifford Nielsen, Marc Wilson, Jim McMahon and Steve Young.

The big name at Pitt these days and one of the main reasons for their high national ranking is Bill Fralic, one of the game's best offensive tackles.

Clemson figures to have an easy time with Appalachian. Although Appalachian did beat Wake Forest, one of Clemson's Atlantic Coast Conference colleagues, in the 1983 opener, the Tigers are 30-2-2 over the past three seasons and have won 20 straight home games.

The only problem that Boston College might face Saturday is a lack of intensity, since Western Carolina might catch the Eagles looking ahead to Alabama next week. But BC Coach Jack Bicknell warns that "Western's passing game is a threat to any team they play."

BC's Doug Flutie, who threw for 2,724 yards last year, needs 2,875 to become major-college football's first 10,000-yard passer.

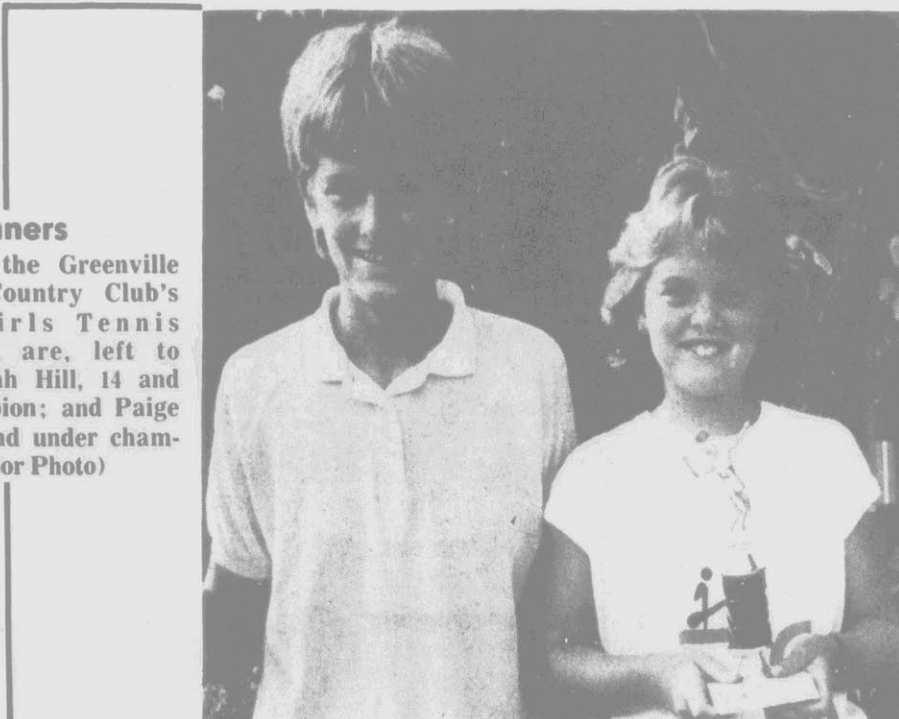

In last year's game between East Carolina and Florida State, FSU prevailed 47-46 in a contest that featured 948 yards of offense. The Seminoles finished 7-5 and were 15 points shy of being 11-1; East Carolina went on to an 8-3 season and a No. 20 final ranking, the three losses coming at Florida State, Florida and Miami.

Among the other games, it's Northwestern at Illinois; Washington State at Tennessee, and Mississippi State at Tulane.

JOE NEVER BUNTED
NEW YORK (AP) — Reminiscing about his extraordinary 56-game hitting streak in 1941, still a major-league record, Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yankees pointed out that not once did he get a bunt hit.

"During my streak I made 91 hits," DiMaggio said. "But none was a bunt. The speed the young players have today, they should be able to make many more leg hits than I ever did. But the record still stands."

DiMaggio batted .408 during the streak and had 160 total bases. He scored 56 runs and batted in 55. He made 15 home runs, drew 21 walks, and only struck out seven times.

Witness Gives Fight Version

NEW YORK (AP) — After New York Jets All-Pro defensive end Mark Gastineau and quarterback Ken O'Brien backed off from a pile of bodies where they were punching and kicking people in Studio 54, one discotheque patron was left "lying in a pool of blood," a witness to the brawl has testified.

"I saw Mark Gastineau and Ken O'Brien throwing punches with several of their buddies," Dr. Gary Michael Prince testified Thursday. "I didn't know who they were hitting, but I saw them hitting people."

Prince identified the bloody victim as John Benson, 23, of Manhattan, one of three men Gastineau and O'Brien are on trial for allegedly assaulting at the disco last Sept. 30.

Prince, 30, of 123 W. 79th St., said he was a security employee at the disco the night of the fracas. He said Benson ran up and told him Gastineau was in a scuffle.

HOW THE LORD TOOK CARE OF ISRAEL IN THE WILDERNESS...

WITH THE ISRAELITES RANTING AND RAGING AT MOSES, IN THE WILDERNESS, THIS GREAT MAN KNEW ALL THE ANSWERS HE NEEDED WOULD BE FOUND IN PRAYING TO GOD...

...AND HIS PRAYERS HAVE NOT BEEN IN VAIN...

BECAUSE THE LORD PROMISED THEM "BREAD IN THE MORNING" AND "MEAT IN THE EVENING."

...AND BEFORE DARKNESS CAN SET, A MIGHTY FLIGHT OF BIRDS APPEARS...

...STRAIGHT FOR THE CAMP THEY FLY! SUCCULENT, FAT, QUAILS WITH TENDER, JUICY, MEAT ON THEIR BONES! THEY SETTLE DOWN UPON THE CAMP AND THERE IS MORE THAN ENOUGH FOR ALL TO EAT OF THIS GIFT FROM OUT OF THE SKIES!

Jewish Leader Defends Role Of Political Fundamentalists

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — People who accuse President Reagan of trying to "Christianize America" are showing intolerance toward fundamentalists, according to the national director of the Reagan-Bush Jewish Coalition.

"The charges of some that the influence of the 'religious right' is improper, or that Reagan is trying to Christianize America, is religious intolerance just turned around," the director, Ben Waldman, told a Jewish War Veterans convention Thursday.

Responding to an audience question, Waldman said the Reagan administration is not trying to erase the line between church and state. He also said there is no constitutional ban on participation by religious leaders in politics.

"We must be careful to distinguish between religious people involved in politics and a state religion," he said. "I don't think we're in danger of the institutionalizing of a state religion. I don't think we're in danger of the barrier being broken." But Rep. Bob Edgar, D-Pa., a Methodist minister representing Walter Mondale at the political forum, charged that the administration has "symbolically elevated (Rev.) Jerry Falwell to a cabinet position."

He said the movement for prayer in the schools should not be taken lightly and won hearty applause when he added that religious teaching should be confined to churches, synagogues and homes.

"In the last few years there has been too much focus on how we can allow fundamentalist Christians access to our schools and public policy," Edgar said. "We've stepped over the line and gone too far."

The two presidential campaigns asked Waldman and Edgar, chairman of the House Veterans Affairs hospitals and health care subcommittee, to represent them at the 89th convention of the 100,000-member Jewish War Veterans group.

The pair were supposed to talk about veterans and foreign policy, but the session ended up as a debate on religion and politics — including an apparent allusion to controversial remarks earlier this year by Rev. Jesse Jackson and Black Muslim Leader Louis Farrakhan, a prominent Jackson supporter.

Waldman said Reagan specifically repudiated anti-Semitism in his convention acceptance speech last week but Mondale "made no condemnation ... There's a lack of will on the part of the Democrats to address this question this year."

Edgar countered that the presidential tickets, the Democratic and Republican parties and politicians of all ideological persuasions "stand together" against anti-Semitism.

"This is not a partisan issue," he said to a round of applause. "I resent the comments ... suggesting that Walter Mondale or the Democratic Party or myself as an individual congressman are bigots."

Singles Aren't All That Happy Just Being Alone

BOSTON (AP) — The "yuppie" capital of New England is home to nearly half a million single men and women. But despite dating services for Jews, Christians, entrepreneurs, advanced degree holders and computer jocks, scores of singles still yearn for a significant other.

"I never hear anyone say how great it is to be single anymore," said Jane Carpineto, a social worker who has taught "Spouse Hunting: The How-To of the Mating Game" to hundreds of singles at the Boston Adult Education Center.

"Urban life is so anonymous, everybody is dying to know how to meet somebody."

With Boston's hundreds of colleges and universities, eligible people seem to abound: strolling on the banks of the Charles River near Harvard University, shopping at the trendy boutiques on Newbury Street, dancing at the clubs and discos near Kenmore Square.

But Mrs. Carpineto and other experts on the single life say looks are deceiving. Boston is full of lonely men and women hoping to get hooked.

"There was a time when everybody wanted to be single, but that has shifted. Now most single people want to be in a committed relationship," said William Novak, the author of "The Great American Man Shortage."

"People aren't meeting each other anywhere. It's not just Boston, but the city does seem to be the center of dating services," Novak added.

"Boston is loaded with well-educated, upwardly mobile professionals looking for their equivalents or better," said Novak's wife, Linda, who runs New Possibilities, a dating service in suburban Newton.

"They start here as students, they go to graduate school and then they hang around. They become very involved in their other, working lives and feel it's really hard to let something as ambiguous as love happen when everything else in life is so controllable."

"I don't think anyone believes love just happens anymore, I'm sorry to say," she said.

Every month, six pages of personal advertisements appear in Boston magazine, the bible of the young, urban professional crowd — yuppies.

"Beautiful sensitive professional F, 29, 5-5, 130, graduate student, jogger, cross country skier, oenologist, loves music, dining, books, Trivial Pursuit, photography, sports cars, picnics, parties, quiet evenings, seeks a sincere, mature, professional B, W or J male, 30-40, for wiring, dining, conversation and seeing the NH foliage in my new sports car," said a typical ad.

Every week The Boston Phoenix, catering to the city's students and young professionals, runs hundreds of classifieds placed by an army of warm, sensitive professionals eagerly seeking same.

Evening and adult education centers around the city offer specialized classes: "Single Again," "Dating After 40" and "How to Find a Mate in Boston" at the Boston Family Institute in Brookline; "Dealing with the Opposite Sex," "Finding Your Mate" and "Love and the Single Life" at the Cambridge Center for Adult Education.

In her "Spouse Hunting" class, Mrs. Carpineto, married for 14 years to a man she met in school, asks her students to describe in detail their perfect mate. But she finds they are so unrealistic in some cases, it is no wonder they are single.

"There is a lot of emphasis on money these days. It's amazing," she said. "Women who are very successful, who come in dressed to the nines, want to marry someone who makes more than they do. That cuts out a huge percentage of the available men."

The bidding:
South West North East
1♥ Pass 2♥ Pass
4♥ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Queen of ♣.

The opponents don't always get off to the best lead—if you know anyone who claims he does, he is either given to terminological inexactitudes or his methods should create suspicion. But don't give back any advantage you might have gained from the opening lead.

Four hearts was a perfectly normal contract to reach. South needed little more than heart support from partner to have a good shot at the contract.

West got off to the second best lead of a club. Declarer won in hand, crossed to the table with a trump and led a diamond to the king. West took the ace and seized the opportunity to lead a trump. Declarer played another diamond, but West won and returned his last trump. Since declarer could ruff only one diamond in dummy, he ended up losing three diamonds and a spade.

When West did not find a trump opening lead, declarer was a tempo ahead of the game. All he needed to make his contract was to ruff two diamonds on the board. At trick two, declarer should simply have led a diamond from hand!

The defenders can win and shift to a trump, but declarer is a move ahead. He wins and leads dummy's last diamond. Although the defenders can lead another trump, dummy still has two trumps to take care of declarer's diamond losers. Declarer has more than enough entries to his hand in the A-K of spades and club ruffs to ruff both losing diamonds and get back to draw the remaining trump.

How should declarer play at duplicate? That is a close question. The contract is normal, and if the ace of diamonds is onside, you can make an overtrick. In addition, even if the ace of diamonds is wrong, you still make the contract if trumps are 2-2 or if the defender who wins either the first or second diamond doesn't lead a trump. It is just about worthwhile to go for the overtrick.

Hunt Names New Judge

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Patricia Ann Timmons, a Lumbee Legal Services attorney, has been named by Gov. Jim Hunt to a newly created District Court judgeship for the 12th Judicial District.

When she wears the judicial robes later this year, she will be the first black woman to serve as a judge in the district comprised of Cumberland and Hoke counties.

Hunt's legal adviser, Jack Cozort, said the appointment is effective immediately, and she will serve a term expiring Dec. 1, 1986.

Ms. Timmons, 29, was one of two Fayetteville lawyers nominated by the 12th District Bar to the governor's office. The other nominee, Assistant Public Defender Greg Weeks, 38, had the majority support of the local bar in a vote taken after the nominations.

But because she will be filling a new seat, rather than a vacated one, the governor was not required to follow the bar's recommendations, as is the normal procedure in filling unexpired terms.

Ms. Timmons is a 1979 graduate of the University of North Carolina School of Law. She has worked two years as an assistant district attorney and a year as a staff lawyer with the legal services office.

Wreck Blocks I-85 Traffic
 HILLSBOROUGH, N.C. (AP) — A pickup truck and a truck loaded with a corrosive chemical collided on Interstate 85 Thursday night, killing one man and blocking the eastbound lanes of the interstate for about four hours.
 William Paul Allen, 64, of Haw River, the driver of the pickup truck, was killed said Barry Grubb, a dispatcher for the state Highway Patrol in Greensboro.
 Traffic was detoured while authorities removed the overturned chemical truck from the eastbound lanes, he said. A small amount of hydroxy-methyl-amino-ethanol, a corrosive industrial chemical, spilled from the truck, Grubb said.
 Daniel L. Miller, 33, of Statesville — the driver of the chemical truck —

UNC Study Says Phosphate Exposure Doesn't Pose Unusual Risk Of Cancer

By F. ALAN BOYCE
 Associated Press Writer
 CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Workers in Florida's massive phosphate industry are at no greater risk of developing lung cancer than Florida residents in general, a study by the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill said today.
 "From the industry standpoint, I would say it's reassuring that there's no excess in lung cancer in terms of Florida," said Dr. Harvey Checkoway, the UNC epidemiologist who directed the five-year study for the Florida Phosphate Council.
 The study, the largest ever of the phosphate industry, included 22,323 men who worked for at least one year in the industry between 1949 and 1979. Cause-of-death information was obtained for 96 percent of the 2,278 workers who died during the 30-year span and the data were compared with Florida and national death statistics, Checkoway said.

 "They (the phosphate industry) had been concerned because their industry had never had a systematic health study," he said in a telephone interview. "There was some anecdotal report of cancer occurring among certain workers at one of the (Florida) companies. The other factor that came into play is there is radiation exposure in the industry at very low levels."
 Phosphates are used in fertilizer, detergents, toothpaste, beverages, photographic supplies and a wide variety of other products. The largest deposits in the United States are found in the Bone Valley region of west central Florida, northern Florida, south central Georgia, eastern North Carolina, Tennessee and western mountain states.

Phosphate production is Florida's third largest industry.
 The study indicated deaths due to lung cancer were slightly higher among phosphate workers than the national rate, but about the same as Florida rates. Among white workers there were 117 deaths, while 96 would have been expected based on U.S. rates and 113 based on Florida rates, Checkoway said. Among nonwhite workers there were 46 lung cancer deaths compared with an expected 37 deaths using U.S. figures and 45 predicted by Florida figures.
 Phosphate workers also appeared to have higher death rates due to emphysema than the nation as a whole, although too few deaths occurred to be statistically meaningful, Checkoway said. Eight nonwhite workers died, compared with about 4.6 who would have been predicted by U.S. emphysema death rates, and 31 white workers died when 21 would have been predicted. Florida deaths from emphysema were not available for comparison.

 Checkoway said the data could be affected by difficulty in telling whether workers in the study smoked cigarettes.
 "Smoking is a major cause of both of those diseases," he said. "We tried to get information on cigarette smoking, but most of it (the information) was second hand and probably inaccurate."
 Researchers also compared death rates for workers in 16 jobs in the industry as well as workers likely to have been exposed to 10 different agents, including sulfuric acid and alpha radiation.
