STRIKE VIOLENCE — Violence fared on the picket lines in Dover, England, today as fighting broke out among coal miners returning to work and those who have been on strike for six months. Dockworkers joined the strike two weeks ago, blocking many of England's ports. Shuttle Returns Home With Perfect Landing

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Space shuttle Discovery glided to a picture-perfect dawn landing on a desert lakebed today, returning from a 2.5 million-mile maiden voyage that restored confidence in America's space transportation system.

Commander Hank Hartsfield and pilot Michael Coats guided the 102-ton space plane through sparkling clear skies to a touchdown at 10 minutes after sunrise, 6:38 a.m. PDT.

"Welcome home," Mission Control told the crew as the shuttle rolled to a stop on the hard-packed sand.

The sun glistened brilliantly off the craft as it completed final maneuvers and zeroed in on the landing strip.

Discovery and its crew of five men and one woman were back home after a six-day mission marked by extraordinary success despite bouts with a stubborn chunk of ice and a final-hours oxygen leak. Theirs was the 12th flight of a space shuttle, the 10th to land here.

The astronauts emerged from the cabin after 40 minutes and were smiling and buoyant as they did a walk-around inspection of their ship. After a medical examination, they were to meet with their families, who viewed the landing, then fly back to their training base in Houston.

Discovery landed at Edwards because NASA has dictated that any shuttle on its first mission must land on the wide-open lakebed because it provides a large margin of safety in case of error. Starting with the next flight in October, most shuttles will return to a runway near the launch pad at Cape Canaveral in Florida, to avoid the cross-country trip back there for the next takeoff.

The third and newest shuttle was over the Indian Ocean on its 97th orbit when Hartsfield and Coats triggered its big jets for 2½ minutes to drop the spaceship out of orbit and into an hourlong dive through the atmosphere into this Mojave Desert air base.

Mission Control wakened the astronauts 90 minutes early today when it detected a leak in a set of tanks that supply oxygen for the cabin pressure and power-producing fuel cells.

Hartsfield switched to a backup system and initiated a trouble-shooting procedure that isolated the leak to a pressure control system. The system was shut off and the leak stopped. NASA officials emphasized the problem posed "no hazard" to the crew or the shuttle and that there was enough oxygen on board for Discovery to stay in orbit an extra two days if necessary.

Discovery's six-person crew comes home with an empty cargo bay, graphic evidence of its success in launching a record three communications satellites on a single flight.

NASA reported all three satellites had reached the high orbits necessary for operation and they would soon begin earning money for their owners: American Telephone & Telegraph, Satellite Business Systems and Hughes Communications Services Inc. The companies paid the space agency a total of $37 million for the delivery service.

Discovery's satellite deployments were the first for commercial customers since last February when two communications payloads went into useless orbits because their booster rocket nozzles failed after successful launches from the shuttle Challenger.

Farmville Turns Out To Examine Plant Proposal

By CAROL BLACKLEY TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — Farmville citizens turned out Tuesday night to hear a presentation of the Cogentrix, a firm which wishes to build a coal-burning steam-generating plant in Farmville to supply steam for the Collins and Aikman textile plant and electrical energy for Carolina Power and Light Co.

William Campbell, a representative of Cogentrix, presented information on how the firm proposes to keep down its emissions, bring in 50 carloads of low-sulphur coal a week quietly and with a minimum of coal dust, and provide a $1 million payroll per year for 25 to 28 employees.

The No. 1 concern of all the citizens who asked questions was what will it do to the ground water level as the firm expects to use 1.2 million gallons of water daily.

Campbell maintained that proper spacing of wells could create a situation in which the aquifer under Farmville wouldn't be seriously lowered, but local engineer Van Lewis said he does have concern that ground water levels could be seriously affected. He said a U.S. Geological Survey study of the situation is under way and that preliminary findings seem to suggest that the cost of measures to make the removal of this much water from the ground not have a detrimental impact on ground water levels would keep the project from being cost-effective.

The town's agreement with the Pitt County Mutual Aid Group for fire protection was renewed.

Citizen Douglas Vines asked that a stop sign be placed on Cameron Street and that the growth there that makes it a blind corner be cleaned up. Town Administrator Frank Bradham was asked to meet with the police chief and look into improving the safety of that corner immediately.

A public hearing was set to consider whether to allow pet grooming in the home of Cathy Baker as a special exception in R-5 residential.

Rudy Cobb was appointed to a three-year term on the Recreation Advisory Board.

A bid by HESCO for the provision of 400 load management switches for the town utilities system was approved. The amount is $23,200.

A committee was appointed to consider the Town of Fountain's request that Farmville provide water service to Fountain.

A new policy to prioritize the tiling and covering of ditches in town and include them in a yearly budget-planning process was approved. Work costing $50,000 will be done this year including: ditches on South Main Street between Cotten and (Please turn to page 6)

County Board Approves Sale Of Tucker Parcel To Planters

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners approved the sale of the Tucker property Tuesday, authorized the placing of a Vietnam memorial on the courthouse lawn, and heard from a group of senior citizens complaining about the county's property tax structure.

Planters Bank and Trust Co. was the high bidder for the Tucker property, located at the intersection of Third and Washington streets, at an Aug. 24 auction, with a bid of $105,000.

Tuesday, commissioners approved the sale of the property to the bank, which owns the adjacent property. The sale includes the 6,654-square-foot building and a 14,000-square-foot lot.

The two-story Tucker Building, built in 1927, was purchased by the county in 1935. It has been vacant since the new county office building on West Fifth Street was opened several years ago.

Commissioners also authorized the placement of a memorial to county residents killed in Vietnam. The action came after Mike Messick, representing the Greenville Jaycees, said the memorial would be similar to memorials already in place at the courthouse for those killed in World Wars I and II and in Korea.

T.R. Jones, representing a group of senior citizens, told commissioners "we are here regarding our present way of taxation. We feel senior citizens and others on fixed incomes are being discriminated against on this property tax."

Jones suggested that people with lower fixed incomes are being taxed "four to eight times greater," based on a comparison with income, "than higher income persons" who get the same county services. "We feel this is discrimination," he emphasized. Jones then suggested that commissioners attempt to "implement other revenue sources" by having the General Assembly approve additional sales taxes or income taxes for county use.

"We'd like to suggest that you take a look at that," Jones said. But he added "going to the legislators ... following up ... takes a little more work" than simply raising property taxes.

Board Chairman Bob Martin told Jones and the others, "This is what we've been preaching to the Legislature for 25 years," that property taxes "penalize those on fixed incomes."

Martin pointed out that "this is the fifth year the county has operated without a tax increase" to fund regular county operations, although commissioners "added 10 cents" to the tax rate "this year to correct the school capital outlay situation ... in order to start work and eliminate this situation."

"I agree with you 100 percent," Martin said, property taxes are "oppressive for those on fixed incomes." But he said changes in tax laws have to be done by the General Assembly. "We don't have the authority."

In other business Tuesday, commissioners approved the purchase of 50 voting booths from Governmental Data Systems of Charlotte, which submitted a bid of $7,200; approved amendments to the county's mobile home, multifamily and subdivision ordinances which will require designers to approve the installation of streets, drainage and septic tanks; and approved a mental health program — Tornado FOCUS (Follow-up and Community Support) — under which mental health workers will go door-to-door in areas hit by the (Please turn to page 6)

Chernenko Back

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet leader Konstantin U. Chernenko today appeared at a Kremlin ceremony honoring three cosmonauts, the official government media said. The 72-year-old president had been absent from public view since July, prompting speculation about his health.

Radio Moscow and the news agency Tass said Chernenko gave medals to cosmonauts Svetlana Savitskaya, Vladimir Dzhanibekov and Igor Volk in honor of their Soyuz T-12 mission in July.

Tass did not immediately make photographs of Chernenko available today, but the agency said it expected to have photographs later. The ceremony was not broadcast live on Soviet television.

The Communist Party general secretary was last seen in public July 13, when he met with U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar. Two days later, Tass said Chernenko had gone on vacation. It did not report his return.

United Way Starting Drive

The Pitt County United Way will kick off its 1984 campaign Thursday, marking the beginning of a nine-week drive to raise the $681,325 needed to meet the 1984 goal.

The goal, a 16 percent increase from last year's goal of $585,080, will provide support to United Way's nearly 30 health and human services agencies in Pitt County.

Since 1958, the Pitt County United Way has held an annual campaign. This year's campaign chairman, Andy Warren, predicts that goal will be met by Nov. 7.

"For many years, United Way has supported agencies in Pitt County which help other people," Warren said. "By making a contribution, Pitt County residents are saying that they want to help their neighbors in the community."

"Our county's tremendous commitment to the United Way was evident last March when its agencies were on hand to assist tornado victims with rebuilding their lives."

But Warren points out that Pitt County United Way agencies also are available to help with life's everyday problems, not just big disasters as experienced last spring.

Jane Parker agrees. She is the executive director of the Farmville Child Development Center, a United Way agency since 1969.

"United Way provides us at the child development center with security, knowing that children with moderate to severe retardation and developmental delay have a place to grow and learn year after year," said Parker. Because of continued United Way support, the center has increased enrollment from 13 to 25 children in three years.

The Boys Club of Pitt County, another agency supported with United Way contributions, serves more than 850 boys in the city and county from ages six to 18. According to Boys Club executive director Chet Emerson, making a contribution to the United Way is making an "investment in the future."

"I swear by the United Way and its commitment to the Boys Club," said Emerson. "There is no investment, small or large, with bigger dividends than the investment you make when you contribute to the United Way."

Under-privileged girls in Pitt County have Operation Sunshine. This after-school and summer program is designed for girls between 7 and 13 years old who are usually neglected by existing or traditional programs. The program began receiving support from Pitt County's United Way in 1968 and has expanded its program to include more than 250 girls during 1984.

Gloria Pearsall, Operation Sunshine activities director since 1978, thinks United Way understands the importance of Operation Sunshine for its girls. "It's a super program that gives girls something to do with their time. I'm just sold on the United Way," she said.

This year, Camp Rainbow, a day camp for children with cancer sponsored by the ECU School of Medicine, will begin receiving United Way support. All agencies and their services, plus new requests, are reviewed each year by a community-based allocations committee to determine budgets and additional services.

Last year, Hospice of East Carolina and Home Delivered Meals for the Elderly were added to the list of Pitt County's United Way services.

Following is a list of agencies and a description of services receiving support from the Pitt County United Way.

•Advocacy Center for Children's Education and Parent Training provides training, technical assistance, public information and service to parents of handicapped children.

•American Red Cross trained a total of 1,876 in First Aid, CPR and water safety; collected 4,791 units of blood and served 267 military families; assisted more than 200 families following the 1984 tornadoes.

•American Social Health Association has a toll free VD hotline for information and referral; is involved in research for control, prevention and treatment of VD and other sexually transmitted diseases.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Teachers And Parents Form Partnership Based On Love

DEAR ABBY: Now that school will soon resume, as a teacher in an elementary school, I am submitting some dos and don'ts for parents. I hope you think they're important enough to publish.

MISS B., TRENTON, N.J.

DEAR MISS B.: They are:

- Do sign and promptly return all notes from your child's teacher.
- Do make every effort to attend all conferences and back-to-school nights.
- Do not forget to ask your child if he/she has any homework; then check to see if it is done.
- Do not throw out any of your child's papers without his/her permission.
- Do let the teacher know about any home situation that might affect your child's behavior or classwork.
- Do send your child to school with clean clothes, face, hands, fingernails and hair.
- Do give your child chores at home to develop a sense of responsibility.
- And most of all, do support, praise and love your child.

YOUR CHILD'S TEACHER

DEAR ABBY: My girlfriend says she will break up with me if I don't quit cracking my knuckles.

She said it will give me arthritis. I think she's wrong. If she is, please tell us what causes arthritis.

ALL CRACKED UP

DEAR CRACKED UP: Briefly, arthritis is an inflammation of the joints. The theory that arthritis is caused by cracking one's knuckles is an old wives' tale—a myth.

DEAR ABBY: I am invited to a wedding. I've already bought a nice gift to take to the reception. I've been invited to a miscellaneous bridal shower (same girl), meaning I can bring anything.

Would it be OK if I took my wedding gift to the shower? After I give it to her, I can tell her privately that this is also my wedding gift.

I would like to give her two gifts, but I can't afford it.

CUTTING CORNERS IN MICHIGAN

DEAR CUTTING: Take a separate gift to the shower. It need not be expensive—a kitchen gadget, a pretty Christmas tree ornament or a fancy oven mitt, but save the wedding gift for the wedding.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who stops in to visit me regularly. She always brings her dog on a leash, making the comment that she hopes I don't mind.

I do not wish to discourage her visits because she's a good friend, but I do wish she would leave her dog at home.

You would be doing many of us a favor, Abby, if you would suggest to dog owners that other people might own dogs themselves if they wanted dogs around.

TRAPPED IN NEW YORK

DEAR ABBY: After 40 years of what started out to be a wonderful marriage, my husband and I are drifting apart. Why? Because after four heart attacks—and against doctor's orders—he continues to smoke "behind the barn."

I'm disgusted with him for being so weak, and angry with myself for nagging him. Meanwhile my heart aches to help him.

He keeps making excuses to get out of the house (he always needs "something" at the drugstore). He av. ds kissing me because he's afraid I might smell smoke on his breath. He drives his own car and meets me places. I know why, and it infuriates me to see what he's doing to himself. Abby, if I were a grown man and wanted to smoke, I wouldn't hide—I'd smoke right in my own home. The one plus in his having to hide in order to smoke is that he probably smokes less. What a sad way for a man to live!

I am not a nut. Please help me to help him. I love this man and I hate to watch him destroy himself because of a foolish habit.

MRS. X

DEAR MRS. X: Your husband has more than a "foolish habit," he has an addiction that only another addict can understand. No amount of nagging, pleading, shaming or damning will help. If and when he is ready to quit, he will seek out a quit-smok'ng clinic, try hypnosis (it has worked for many), or find out what programs are available through his local American Cancer Society or American Heart and Lung associations.

Prayers are helpful. But the ball is in your husband's court.

DEAR ABBY: I am confused about the words "or so." I am told, "Just wrap the roast in foil and bake it in a 400-degree oven for an hour or so." How long is "or so"? Is it five minutes, 15 minutes or what?

People give me directions. They say, "Go down this street about a mile or so." Again I wonder how far is "or so"? Is it two blocks less than a mile, or three blocks more?

Abby, I take the Tuscaloosa News. If you decide to print this, how long will I have to wait to see it?

FERRELL REYNOLDS IN ALABAMA

DEAR FERRELL: About two weeks or so.

DEAR ABBY: "Guilty Conscience" wrote of her embarrassment at not having written her thank-you notes for wedding gifts she received five years ago. It's been 39 years for me, and I still suffer.

Five days after my big lovely wedding, I cut my honeymoon short and went home to be with my grieving parents. My brother was missing in action for three months before it was confirmed that he had been killed.

During the long weeks of painful waiting for "news," I tried to write my thank-you notes, but I felt as though I was writing for some other bride on some other planet. Meanwhile, my husband (also in the military) was shipped from one base to another, and our "gift book" was packed and unpacked I don't know how many times before I could get my act together. Then the book was lost and I was absolutely horrified!

But I did penance. For years, with every wedding gift I sent, I enclosed an overstated, exaggerated "thank-you note" to myself describing the fabulous gift I had sent, saying it was exactly what the bride and groom had wanted, etc. Then I put the note in a self-addressed, stamped envelope and all the bride had to do was sign it and mail it to me. I received some wonderful P.S.s on my notes. Sign me ...

PENANCE PAL IN TENNESSEE

DEAR PENANCE PAL: It takes a person with a super sense of humor to sit right down and write herself a (thank-you) letter. And it takes a bride with an equally good sense of humor to appreciate it.

All About Yuppies New Subculture Created

By HARPER'S BAZAAR A Hearst Magazine

Yuppies deplore vinyl, drink designer water and are only happy when paying too much for something.

These are some of the conclusions Cynthia Heimel reaches about the Yuppie phenomenon in an article in the September Harper's Bazaar.

"There was no such thing as a Yuppie until Sen. Gary Hart decided that all those people in running shoes and pin-striped suits (an appalling combination) who were voting for him needed to be called something," she writes.

"Yuppie. Young Urban Professional. A fun term. The media liked it. Within minutes someone wrote the 'Yuppie Handbook,' and a new subculture was created. Various people who happen to like raspberry vinegar but otherwise didn't know who they were now have been defined."

She believes Yuppies are what happened when the "me" generation of the '70s met economic recession—they turned into a self-oriented and economically conservative group.

Yuppies don't start trends, she says, because they are under too much peer pressure to conform.

"A Yuppie would never act crazy and decide, 'I'll move to Peru.' A Yuppie would never go off into the night with a mysterious stranger. A Yuppie would never hang a pair of furry dice on his rear-view car mirror."

"A Yuppie, at all times, acts sane and smart. Yuppies are good boys and girls ... always playing it safe."

Yuppies, Ms. Heimel says, want things: "Things make Yuppies feel better, more secure. Who cares about nuclear proliferation if we've just bought a new Cuisinart? Shopping is a lot safer than Valium. Possessions bring peace of mind."

The author calls Yuppies street smart and professional.

"Forget ethics, there's no time for that now," she writes. "Ethics are for bleeding-heart types—leftovers from the '60s who care about the poor, who feel a brotherhood with the disenfranchised. But face it, how can Yuppies care about the poor? They wear polyester. They wear tacky designer jeans! They don't have interesting jobs!"

She contends a Yuppie is only happy when he is paying too much for something—from designer water to Holland tulips at $3 a stem.

"When Yuppies get hold of a trend, it's curtains," Ms. Heimel writes. "Not long ago, Yuppies in New York noticed that Cajun food was very hip. Dozens of Cajun restaurants sprang up overnight, all selling dirty rice and jambalaya for hilarious prices."

How can you spot a Yuppie across a crowded room?

Yuppies wear only natural fibers—never synthetics. In luggage and handbags, they insist on leather, never vinyl. They can be found in "horribly spacious restaurants riddled with ferns and pale flowers," eating argula omelets. Especially at brunch.

Ms. Heimel concludes her article in Bazaar by admitting she fears she is becoming a Yuppie herself and her obsessive quest for a vinyl-free garment bag proves it.

"I've just gone to the nearest discount shop to buy the cheapest, most vinyl-laden garment bag I could find." And I found one—a maroon putrescence. But I couldn't bring myself to buy it. I'm afraid I'm one of them now."

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Editor

Salads, whose base is cooked white rice, are comparative newcomers to the American culinary scene. Although there are a good many cookbooks devoted to salad-making on my shelves, only a few recently published ones include recipes for rice salads.

My first introduction to rice salad came about 20 years ago when a fine restaurant chef was inspired to concoct a white rice and celery salad dressed with curry mayonnaise and surrounded with slices of fresh fruit. It was a delightful accompaniment for sliced cold chicken and turkey as well as lamb and veal.

Since then we've made all sorts of salads at my house using cooked white rice, but not until recently did I try brown rice in some of them. My young "health food" friends fully approve and here's a Southwestern version they particularly like.

The select brown rice called for holds its shape in cooking. It doesn't get too soft or mushy.

SOUTHWEST BROWN RICE SALAD

- 2-3rds cup chopped (medium-fine) onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 and 2-3rds cups water
- 1 cup select brown rice
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 4-ounce can chopped green chilies, undrained

- 15 1/2-ounce can red kidney beans, drained and rinsed
- 1-3rd cup chili sauce
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 3 tablespoons lime juice
- Cayenne pepper to taste
- 1 small avocado
- 1 medium tomato, diced (medium-fine)

In a medium saucepan over low heat cook onion and garlic in butter until onion is wilted. Add water and bring to a boil. Stir in rice and 1 teaspoon of the salt. Cover tightly and cook over low heat until all the water is absorbed—50 minutes. Transfer rice to a large bowl. Stir in the chilies and kidney beans.

In a small bowl whisk together the chili sauce, oil, lime juice, remaining salt and cayenne. Pour over rice mixture; toss lightly to combine. Cool to room temperature or chill. Peel avocado and remove the seed. Cut into 3/4-inch cubes. Just before serving add the avocado and tomato to the rice mixture and toss gently.

Makes 6 servings.

Homemaker's Haven

By Evelyn Spangler
Pitt Home Agent

The look for the well-dressed male this fall is somewhat dressier than in previous seasons, both in business and leisure wear.

Business suits generally will be darker in hue, according to the Men's Fashion Association of America (MFA), an industry group representing 450 menswear firms. However, many fall suits have bright colored stripes woven into the fabric, giving them a feeling of depth.

Classic dressing will make a strong showing for all and the double-breasted suit is making a come-back, both looks slightly dressier than in past seasons. Single-breasted suits may show peaked lapels or might be worn with the season's fashion innovation: the vest with lapels.

For a slightly more casual look, sport coats continue their popularity this fall. They'll be available in large, soft plaids and tweeds, some with suede elbow-patches and leather trim.

In slacks for the office, the season's big fabric is flannel in many shades and weights. Also popular will be an array of garbardines, corduroys and mixed tweeds with straight legs still the most popular shape. Pleated slacks are gaining popularity for both office and casual wear. Casual slacks will show a great deal of detail work in addition to the pleats including darts, watch pockets, elastic waists and/or button tabs.

Collar styling is the big news in fall shirts for men with choices including the classic button-down, cutaways, rounded collars and a shorter designer collar. The contrast look remains strong with a white (or light) collar highlighting a shaded or patterned shirt.

There's a strong emphasis for all on outerwear and the MFA says that the look in coats and jackets has never before been so diversified or so handsomely styled. The season will see everything from dressy topcoats to bomber jackets. Outerwear models range from waist-length jackets to ankle-length coats.

Transitional models, with zip-in liners for colder weather, will be popular.

Outerwear includes headgear. The MFA says that many young men are beginning to wear hats in styles ranging from dressy felts to sporty caps.

In sportswear one of the more prevalent trends for fall will be fabric mixing: an ensemble might include a corduroy vest, plaid skirt, cable-knit sweater and poplin slacks. Sweaters will be very popular and will be seen in a variety of weaves, often with geometric patterns.

The rugged outer look is taking over from the running look in leisure wear and oversized shapes are becoming the rule with roomy tops and pleated pants as well as the new big shirt look.

Although the overall look for fall is a slightly dressier one there has been no sacrifice in comfort. Men increasingly are demanding clothing that not only delivers good looks but comfort as well.

Call the Extension Office at 752-2934, extension 370, for a copy of "Basic Primer on Men's Suits." This extension brochure discusses good fit, check points on buying, care and maintenance, fabric characteristics and styles.

REQUIRES CARE

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — When a child's favorite stuffed animal or toy becomes worn and dirty, it can be restored and cleaned with proper care, says the Extension clothing specialist at Oklahoma State University.

Angela Criswell says the first step is to brush or vacuum the toy to remove surface dirt and dust; clothes, if any, should be removed and laundered separately.

If there is no label to advise if the item is machine-washable or hand-washable, she suggests opening part of a seam to check if the stuffing is brownish or multicolored. Such material could stain the covering if it gets wet.

These toys, she advises, should be scrubbed with a sudsy brush and rinsed by wiping with a damp cloth. This method can also be used for mechanical toys.

Letter From The Adriatic: Fish, Fashion, Miss Topless

By RUTH E. GRUBER

SIBENIK, Yugoslavia (UPI) — In spotless white uniforms, four young cadets from the local Yugoslav naval academy face the wall in a busy pizzeria, examining their reflections in the long mirror over the counter as they eat.

A Michael Jackson song booms out from the well-stocked jukebox, spilling into the narrow alley near Sibenik's picturesque Old Town. The four young sailors, serious-faced over their pizzas, tap their feet and gently wiggle their hips to the music.

"Michael Jackson," says Klara, 11, a Belgrade girl vacationing in Sibenik and also enjoying a pizza. "He sings good. His songs have good rhythm. But I really like Paul Young."

This is summer on Yugoslavia's Adriatic coast, whose crystal water, hundreds of miles of rocky shoreline and hundreds of Adriatic islands are increasingly a magnet for tourists.

The winding coastal highway, in many places squeezed between plunging mountains and the turquoise sea, is crowded with cars from West Germany, Austria, Czechoslovakia, France and elsewhere.

Private families advertise in German, and sometimes other languages, that they have rooms in their homes to rent out, homemade wine and fiery fruit brandy to sell.

Private restaurants advertise their charcoal-grilled specialties with handmade signs replete with directional arrows and drawings of fish or lamb being roasted on a spit.

Tourism officials say that in late July there were about 1 million tourists on the Yugoslav coast, about two-thirds of them foreigners.

Yugoslavia's severe economic crisis has been a mixed blessing for the tourist industry. Although official figures show the inflation rate at a whopping 60 percent, the Yugoslav dinar at the same time has lost value against Western currencies and prices are still cheap.

At a terrace restaurant overlooking the sea about half an hour's drive up the coast from Sibenik, three customers ate mixed fried shrimps and calamari, salad and 3.3 pounds of grilled, fresh-caught fish, with a liter of homemade wine and mineral water for a total of $30.

Private accommodation can be had for well under $8 for a single room.

In some localities, the number of foreign visitors has risen 60 percent over last year — with an average 20 percent increase in foreigners overall. In the first seven months of the year Yugoslavia earned $425 million from foreign tourists, or 7 percent over the same period last year.

The number of Yugoslav tourists vacationing on the coast, however, has dropped by 25 percent.

Sibenik is about halfway down the coast, between Zadar and Split. It is not one of the famous resorts such as Dubrovnik, Kotor or Opatija and compared to these bigger centers almost seems undeveloped.

Its Old Town is similar to Dubrovnik and other typical coastal towns, with polished stone streets and piazzas like ballroom floors, an ornate cathedral and winding alleys — some of them steep stairways — lined with tall stone houses.

At sunset, on a long promenade along the waterfront, young people go through a ritual nightly "corso," strolling back and forth in the latest fashions, seeing and being seen.

Cafes are full of tanned young Yugoslavs, beautiful girls and handsome men, in immaculate summer gear, sipping coffee, brandy, beer and wine.

Sibenik's main beach area is a 15-minute trip by ferry boat through spectacular archipelago scenery, and it's possible to take other boats further out to better, more deserted beaches, including nudist areas.

Development of the Yugoslav coast over the past decade or so as a major international tourist resort area is easily seen.

Near Sibenik, for example, the tiny fishing village of Vodice has been turned into a private entrepreneur's paradise.

There are scores of privately run bars, cafes, restaurants, ice cream parlors and pizzerias in the town, most of them opened by Yugoslav "guest workers" who worked in the west and returned home after saving up money. Hundreds of thousands of Yugoslavs work in the west.

"It's all grown up over the past five years," said a Belgrade journalist who regularly vacations in Sibenik.

Two types of posters in the village illustrate the Adriatic attitude.

Many of the Vodice establishments are decorated with pictures of the late President Josip Broz Tito. Tito, architect of Yugoslavia's independent type of communism, died four years ago.

Record

Are people reading more? They must be if we can judge by the annual report of Sheppard Memorial Library.

The fiscal year 1983-84 set a record for book loans. The library system reported that 286,380 book loans were made during the fiscal year. Interestingly, it has been over 20 years since the previous record was set. The library system lent 275,756 books in 1961-62. There are, of course, far more people in the area now than there were 20 years ago and why it took so long to reach the 1961-62 total is a puzzlement.

Nevertheless it is apparent that the library system use is on the increase and that is positive. Carver Branch had a 24 percent growth rate in 1983-84 while the East branch had a 16 percent increase. The Pitt County Bookmobile circulated 10 percent more items over the previous year. The libraries had 154,066 visits during the fiscal year and the staff answered 35,999 requests for information during the year.

We can hope the increased use of the libraries shows that the public is returning to reading, which is still the best way to obtain information. In addition, books of fiction offer a completely portable entertainment device which can be turned on and off at will. There is plenty of competition for reading in our complex society, but books are clearly holding their own.

Laudable

We would be remiss if the turnaround in nursing scores at North Carolina A&T University were overlooked. Just three years ago only 13 percent of the nursing school grads at A&T passed the national nurses licensing exam. Last month, the school saw an 88 percent passing rate ... a laudable and welcome improvement.

Three years ago the National League of Nursing had put the school on probation and the State Board of Nursing issued a warning. There was a distinct danger it would close. Drastic measures were called for, and a new dean was assigned to solve the problems.

True, only eight graduates took the exam in July, a small percentage of the number of North Carolina grads who took the test, but the promise is there. As part of the upgrading process Dean Marrietta Raines instituted a more careful screening of students. Hopefully the sought-for new standards of attitudes and aptitudes will continue high with accompanying results. We would expect to see growth in the size of classes. The opportunity to encounter quality is a natural magnet.

The school's future at A&T carries an optimistic note.

Boss Can Obligate Employee

WASHINGTON — Should an employee be held responsible for criminal actions by his employer?

Where the crime is illegal dumping of hazardous wastes, a federal appeals court says yes.

Reversing a U.S. district court's opinion, the appeals panel ruled that the criminal sanctions of federal hazardous waste disposal law applied to knowledgeable employees of a company as well as its owners and operators. The lower court had said that employees could not be held liable for dumping wastes if top management had failed to obtain a permit.

Justice Department officials said that decision had freed from political prosecution the very people who did the actual dumping. Officials argued that, with the prospect of being named co-conspirators, lower- and middle-management personnel would be more likely to turn state's evidence against bosses who have broken the law.

But according to Judson Starr, the Justice Department official in charge of federal environmental law enforcement, the government need not prove that an employee actually knew the dumping was illegal. Merely his position would be enough to infer that knowledge, Starr said recently.

Ordinarily, employers have been responsible for the actions of their hired help — not the other way around. Justice Department officials, who've had trouble putting toxic dumpers behind bars, would rather round up all the suspects. Admittedly such sweeping action might get better results.

Yet the waste disposal business is, well, dirty in more ways than one. Managers intent on saving their own skins won't always make employees aware that their actions are criminal. Meanwhile, there are employees who, for fear of jeopardizing their jobs or personal safety, will simply decide to keep quiet.

These possible scenarios suggest that the appeals court ruling deserves careful interpretation.

This fall Sweden will become the first nation to place "Sweets may damage your health" notices on RALEIGH — Truth may be the first casualty of all political campaigns, but not far behind on the casualty list comes laughter. That's certainly the case in Politeca North Carolina this year where things are getting pretty dour. For the candidates, political careers are on the line. For their workers, future employment is at stake. It doesn't make for an atmosphere very conducive to hearty chuckling.

But alas, even in such earnest surroundings, there are people who still find time to laugh. Let this column stand as a tribute to those who, although they're involved in the great debates of our time, still take the opportunity to cackle a bit.

On the Republican side, Dave Flaherty is probably the most famous great laughter. The Boston Irishman, who is GOP state chairman, loves to kid and joke and then laugh at his own wit. (Sometimes he gets quoted for this stuff and it gets him in trouble.) "Oh, it's just a fat laugh," the cherubic Flaherty says of himself.

Jack Hawke, Jim Martin's gubernatorial campaign chairman, isn't as well known as Flaherty in political circles, but he would make anyone's All Laugh America squad.

"His laugh explodes like a machine gun," one Martin aide says of Hawke. "It's infectious." Hawke is almost always laughing, his friends say.

Over at the reelection campaign of Sen. Jesse Helms, Mark Stephens, campaign director, is considered the best laugher. "One of his legs will start shaking and then the other one will start, then he'll start laughing," one campaign aide reported. "Mark reminds you of a mischievous little kid who has something up his sleeve when he laughs."

The best laughter in the Democratic camp is, without a doubt, Brenda Summers, press secretary to Bob Jordan, the candidate for lieutenant governor. Ms. Summers, who used to report political news for WBT-TV in Charlotte, laughs at everything. No matter how dumb your joke, she laughs at it. And she keeps on laughing, gradually letting the laugh fade out in the fashion of a rock-and-roll record.

Ms. Summers gets tough laughing competition from two members of Gov. Jim Hunt's Senate campaign staff, Gary Pearce and Stephanie Bass. The Gary and Stephanie Show has been running for eight years, since they staffed Hunt's gubernatorial press office in 1977. Pearce is just plain loud when he laughs. When he gets really worked up, "he'll hold his sides and slide down in his chair," Ms. Bass reports. Her laugh starts as a high pitched shriek and develops into a loud cackle. Betty McCain, Hunt's longtime political ally from Wilson, also deserved mention but her laugh is more notable because it usually follows one of her own jokes — most of which are very funny.

Of all the candidates on the scene today, Rufus Edmisten, Democratic nominee for governor, and John Carrington, GOP candidate for lieutenant governor, have the most obvious laughs. Edmisten could play Santa Claus. He laughs like "Ho, Ho, Ho." Carrington has a dry, almost cynical, sense of humor and his laugh fits it almost perfectly.

Unfortunately for laughaholics, the state's most outrageous political laugher didn't make it into the campaign. Sen. Cass Ballenger, R-Catawba, laughs like that dog on the old Yogi Bear show. Ballenger bowed out of the governor's race when Martin got in, and Flaherty says Ballenger's laugh may be an impediment to future political success. "I've had more people say he has to do away with his laugh before he runs again."

Public Forum

To the editor:

In his letter to the editor of Aug. 26, John G. Clark Jr. sought to chastise Eddie Knox for the judgments of members of his family. Mr. Clark is laboring under several misconceptions and the load of "personal rancor and spite" which he carries but which he perceives as lodging with the Jesse Helms camp.

The fluent sarcasms and distortions continued in every sentence of his letter point to where the rancor and spite is located. By my count his reference to curtailing Social Security and school lunches is one of 13 sarcastic distortions.

In addition to his load of personal rancor and spite, Mr. Clark is also laboring under another load which makes his life troublesome and misdirected. He believes politics is a game, a game where the winning is the purpose and the end. Undoubtedly this is the belief and practice for many politicians. It is the distinction between politicians and statesmen.

Surely there were fundamental differences between the philosophies and intended gubernatorial programs of Mr. Knox and Mr. Edmisten. Were those differences simply plays in a quest for winning election? Of course not. They were, and are, basic beliefs and as such are inviolable.

Mr. Clark has correctly associated the Knox (candidate for governor) with Jesse Helms who is seeking re-election to the Senate. In this contest there are also differences of philosophies and intentions, closely related to those of Eddie Knox. Playing the game of politics ought not to be the purpose of this election, but instead our aim should be that of statesmanship.

Strength For Today

The Book of Revelation is a much abused and misused section of the Bible.

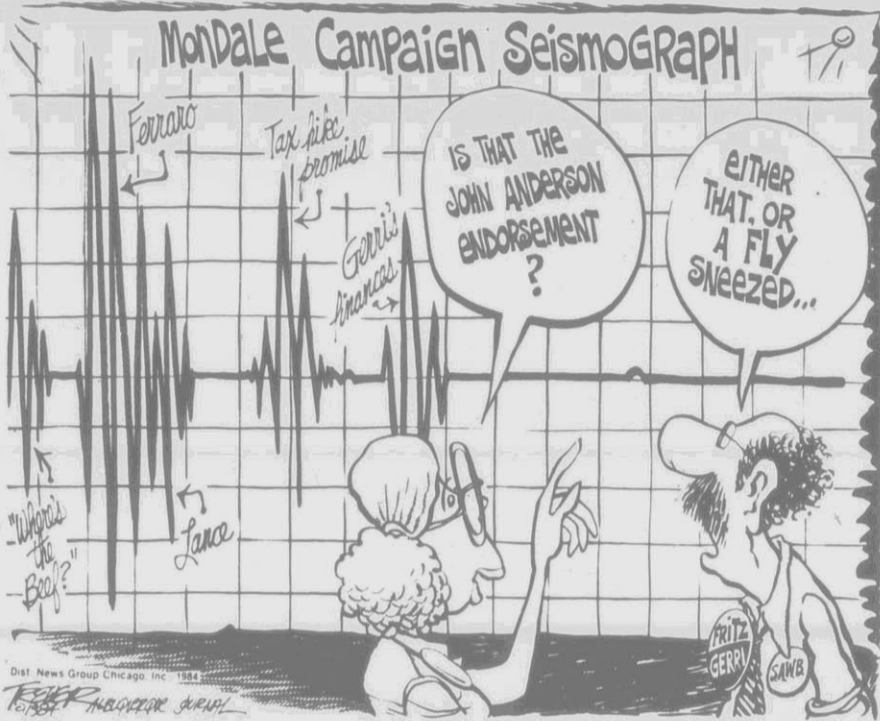

People either over-emphasize its teachings or neglect them. Those who over-emphasize them keep looking up to heaven expecting a new world to descend upon them shortly. Those who neglect the teachings of Revelation fail to appreciate the glory and triumph which God has promised to the faithful.

This ancient book came out of a great ordeal. It was addressed, like other writings of its type, to people who had passed through inconceivable tribulations. The underlying message of the book is that in the end God and his kingdom of love will triumph.

The destiny which the human race confronts is a destiny of hope. God made us for triumph, not defeat. "Eye has not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God had prepared for them that love him."

The Issue Of The Commander

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Bush pulled on his flying jacket and climbed into the cockpit of a torpedo bomber last weekend to launch an attack on his newest opponent.

Bush's weapons this time were videotape and photographs — not torpedoes — as he took aim at Geraldine Ferraro without saying a word about the Democratic vice presidential candidate.

Facing the first female opponent of his political career, Bush raised the "commander-in-chief" issue just as carefully as other male politicians have done against women they have confronted across the ballot box.

Sometimes the politician's prop has been a tank, not a plane, but the message has been the same — this man, this candidate has dealt with the military, with the life-or-death decisions of combat, just like the tough decisions of a president or governor.

In Norfolk, Va., ceremonies over the weekend, Bush climbed into the cockpit of a Grumman Avenger torpedo bomber on the anniversary of his being shot down over the Pacific in such a plane in 1944. Pentagon officials declared the ceremony non-political.

But the unspoken political challenge was clear: "Match that, Geraldine Ferraro."

Ms. Ferraro, like most American women, has no military experience and even though the armed forces are including more and more women, they are barred by law from combat jobs.

Bush's weekend exploits recall the best-known example of using a military image against a female candidate.

In Mississippi in 1980, William Winter came in second to Evelyn Gandy in the Democratic gubernatorial primary and faced her in a runoff.

In an ad fashioned by Winter's media consultant, Bob Squier, Winter was shown wearing army fatigues and climbing onto a tank, part of Mississippi's National Guard. The announcer talked about the governor's role as "commander-in-chief" of the state's military.

Such attacks are both successful and controversial.

The ad, part of Winter's successful effort to deny Miss Gandy the nomination, was roundly booed when it was shown at a National Women's Political Caucus seminar a year ago.

Likewise, Bush's emphasis on his military experience is unpopular with feminists and Democrats.

"Epaulet-flexing" was what Ann Lewis, political director of the Democratic National Committee, called it.

But the military emphasis aims at what the public perceives as a weak spot in female politicians.

A study for the women's caucus found that men were perceived by voters as better in times of crisis than women and better at decision-making under pressure. And these perceptions — or stereotypes — are among the most significant found in the study by the polling firm of Yankelovich, Skelly and White.

The Bush-Ferraro situation is somewhat different from the one in the Mississippi governor's contest.

To begin with, the Republican vice president was decorated with the Distinguished Flying Cross for his World War II exploits over the island of Chichi Jima.

And with the vice president next in the line of succession as commander-in-chief of the nation's armed forces, more is at stake than supervision of the Mississippi National Guard.

Patriotism is a major theme this fall as both parties are trying to outdo each other in wrapping themselves in the American flag.

President Reagan proclaimed the "New Patriotism" on Tuesday to the American Legion, calling it "a change from only a few years ago when patriotism seemed so out of style."

IT'S KIND OF HARD TO BELIEVE!

packages of candy. Barbro Westerhold, chairman of the National Social Welfare Board, also wants to require similar notices for ice cream. "People need to be reminded that there is no nourishment in these products," she said recently.

White House officials are trying to set up a meeting between President Reagan and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in late September, when the United Nations General Assembly convenes in New York. If the meeting occurs, it will be in New York. It will also be the president's first encounter with a senior Soviet leader since becoming commander-in-chief.

Students made up 1.6 percent of the delegates and alternates at the GOP convention. About 2.5 percent of the delegates were 18 to 24 years of age.

Top American and British military officials are thinking of deploying large stockpiles of deadly chemical weapons in Western Europe. The top brass wants to combat the Russian force of 300,000 tons of chemical weapons that may be used in a conventional war.

On the closing day of the Republican convention in Dallas, executives of all three major TV networks agreed privately that they had spent too much money and manpower in covering what many considered a "non-event." And they agreed in separate conversations that things would be different in 1988.

"The resources we are expending are not justified by the news that is available," one executive said. Nonetheless, the major networks helped their affiliates cover the non-event. All three provided facilities for their affiliates. Forty-three locals used CBS, 12 used NBC and 10 used ABC.

The film used to introduce Vice President Bush in Dallas cost a mere $3,200 to splice together, according to GOP sources. The Reagan introductory film is said to have cost at least $500,000.

Perry was arrested on warrants issued July 12. Sheriff Ralph Tyson said, as a result of an investigation started by the Craven County Department of Social Services. The Pitt County DSS also assisted in the investigation, said Tyson.

One indictment charged that Perry disseminated "material which he knew or reasonably should have known to be obscene" to a minor on May 12. The other two indictments charge that Perry took indecent liberties with two minors on March 24.

WOOD, METAL, WOOD — Three stages of wood and a discarded metal farm machine add up to a typical Pitt County roadside rural composition. Pilot Dies, Wife Lands

MIAMI (AP) — A woman whose "only thoughts" were to help her fatally stricken husband get to a hospital used radio instructions to safely land a light plane from a mile in the sky despite never having piloted before.

The Piper Cherokee with Elaine Yadwin, 61, at the controls thumped to the ground with the only damage a broken front landing gear more than an hour after her 66-year-old husband, Richard, slumped at the controls from an apparent heart attack.

The Coast Guard flew the couple to Palmetto Hospital, where Yadwin was pronounced dead on arrival, said hospital spokesman Ernie Domenech.

Another passenger, whose name was not released by authorities, at times had to hold back Yadwin's body while Mrs. Yadwin manipulated the controls.

"The only thoughts that went through my mind were, 'I've got to help him, I've got to help him.' We had to come down. He needed help," said a teary-eyed Mrs. Yadwin after her ordeal Tuesday.

Minutes before noon, Mrs. Yadwin took over the Piper Cherokee when Yadwin lost consciousness during a flight over the Everglades, said Jack Barker, a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration in Atlanta.

Sixty-three minutes later, the ordeal was over.

New Housing Units Nearing Completion

Housing Authority officials are predicting that units in Greenville's new project, West Meadowbrook, will be ready for occupancy by early October, despite earlier plans to have the units ready by mid to late August.

The delay, director Joe Laney told board members at the authority's regular meeting Tuesday, is in part due to bad weather in July. He added that there have been some contracting problems as well.

Laney said the units are now approximately 70 percent complete; however, he added that he had hoped the project would be 75 percent complete or better by this time.

In other business, housing director Sallye Streeter reported that all authority units were occupied at the end of August. The average rent for units was $106.14 with $102 at Meadowbrook, $107.33 at Kearney Park, $103.31 at Moyewood I, $115.92 at Moyewood II, $99.57 at Hopkins Park, and $118.30, Newtown.

Laney reported that 118 of the authority's 120 Section 8 units, 107 of 109 Section 8 moderate rehabilitation program units and all 68 University Tower units are occupied.

Canadian Conservatives Sweep Election

TORONTO (AP) — Brian Mulroney's Progressive Conservative Party swept to a historic landslide victory over Liberal Prime Minister John Turner, winning the most Parliament seats ever captured by one party in Canada.

The national election Tuesday was the Tories' first majority victory in 26 years. Mulroney's troops trounced the Liberals in all 10 Canadian provinces, ousting a party that had governed for all but nine months of the past 21 years, including 15 years under Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

The Conservatives captured 211 seats in the 282-seat Parliament. The Liberals won 40 and the socialist New Democrats 30. One independent was elected.

The Liberals were crushed even in French-speaking Quebec, where the Tories got just one seat in 1980. This time the Conservatives took 58 of the 75 seats.

Mulroney, who as head of the winning party is almost certain to become the new prime minister, promised today that his Progressive Conservative government will improve conditions for business and "get the economy of Canada moving again."

During his campaign, Mulroney promised to improve relations with the United States and to spark the economy, which is suffering from 11 percent unemployment.

Speaking early this morning to a cheering crowd in a hockey rink in his hometown of Baie Comeau, Quebec, Mulroney proclaimed "a new day for Quebec and a brand new day for this wonderful Canada."

Quebec has voted solidly Liberal most of this century, and always supported native son Trudeau. Mulroney, a 45-year-old electrician's son who became president of a mining company, won the Tory leadership last year largely on his promise to make inroads in Quebec.

Just a month ago, 12 seats in Quebec would have been considered a victory for Mulroney.

With 99 percent of the vote counted nationally, the Conservatives had 50 percent of the popular vote to 28 percent for the Liberals and 19 percent for the New Democrats.

The victory was the worst thumping the Liberals have received since John Diefenbaker and the Tories won 208 out of 264 seats in 1958.

"The people of Canada from coast to coast have spoken and the people are always right," Turner said in a concession speech. The prime minister won the district where he was a candidate in Vancouver, and will now be leader of a tiny opposition in the House of Commons.

Mulroney promised to create a "new climate of confidence" for business, fight for women's rights, and work for world peace.

"Our objective and our mandate is to create jobs and to get the economy of Canada moving again," he said. "We owe it to our youth and the elderly as well."

Canadian law leaves it up to

Turner and Mulroney to arrive at appropriate date for the new government to take power. It is expected that Mulroney will need about two weeks to choose a Cabinet and discuss the changeover with civil servants before being sworn in. Conservatives have mentioned Sept. 17 as a possible date.

Turner will go into the history books as the shortest-serving Canadian prime minister of the century. He took office when Trudeau resigned on June 30.

MINOT, N.D. (AP) — A cemetery gardens manager used a tree-watering tractor to put out a grass fire begun by a squirrel which caught fire when it came into contact with an electrical transformer.

"It was a lucky thing I was here, and I had a tank of water behind the tractor," said Gene Olson, who was watering trees about 400 feet from the spot where the fire started Monday at Sunset Memorial Gardens.

Olson said he heard a snap and soon "saw the smoke" and the "squirrel singed," starting a grass fire in the southwest corner of the cemetery.

With no time to call anyone for help, Olson raced to the fire on his tractor and doused the area with a bucket and water from the 400-gallon tank he was using to water trees. In addition, he threw a couple of buckets of water on two large evergreen trees, which were in line with the fire, he said.

No Sudden Changes Expected By New Canadian Leadership

TORONTO (AP) — Brian Mulroney led the Progressive Conservatives to a crushing victory by promising "profound change," but his government is not expected to produce any sudden shift to the right.

Since replacing former Prime Minister Joe Clark as Tory chief last year, Mulroney has moved the party to the left on many key issues.

"Mulroney is no hard-faced Tory ideologue," his three biographers wrote in their book on Mulroney's life. "He is no clone of Margaret Thatcher or Ronald Reagan."

Mulroney pledged during the campaign to impose a minimum tax on upper-income Canadians, while protecting and even expanding all social programs, which he described as a "sacred trust."

The Tory leader also promised to find about $3 billion ($4.3 billion Canadian) in the next 2½ years for new government programs, mostly to combat the current 11 percent unemployment rate.

Many Conservatives in Parliament, however, disagree sharply with Mulroney on these issues. They have kept silent until now, trying not to harm the party's chances in the election.

Political observers are looking forward to seeing how well Mulroney will be able to maintain discipline among the large number of supporters he will have in the House of Commons.

Anyone who thinks Mulroney will move the country sharply to the right is "out to lunch" said Stephen Clarkson, a political scientist at the University of Toronto.

Whatever his domestic policies, Mulroney will likely get along quite well with the Reagan administration.

He has promised to welcome foreign investment: the Trudeau government set up a government agency with the power to forbid investments not considered "beneficial to Canada."

Mulroney also said he would rewrite Trudeau's energy policy, scrapping a provision giving Canada a 25 percent share of any oil or gas discovery on federal lands. That rule, known as the "back-in" clause, was often cited by U.S. officials as the greatest irritant in relations between the country.

The new prime minister is also promising to treat the United States as a best friend, giving the U.S. government the "benefit of the doubt" on foreign policy issues.

"Mulroney is the most pro-American prime minister in living memory — perhaps forever," Clarkson said.

Mulroney has promised, though, to keep pressing the U.S. administration for action to fight acid rain, which is produced when clouds of pollution from American factories follow the winds to Canada and turn to rain.

A key indication of Mulroney's intentions will be his choice for foreign minister. The leading candidates are thought to be Joe Clark, who is on the party's left wing, and Sinclair Stevens, a right-winger whose policies would be closer to the Reagan administration's.

Vandals Open Valves, Corn Syrup Oozes

PHOENIXVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Emergency crews stuck with cleaning up a 400,000-gallon "lake of corn syrup" created when vandals emptied 28 train cars hoped to suck up the goo before bees swarmed to the sweet scene, officials said.

The cleanup at the railroad siding on the property of the Phoenix Steel Co. was to begin this morning with the syrup pumped into tank trucks, authorities said.

On Tuesday, authorities waded through ankle-deep syrup, turning off opened valves on the tank cars, but it amounted to closing the barn door after the horse was gone.

"I shut 14 tank cars off," said Joseph Moore, foreman of the Phoenixville Friendship Fire Company. "I believe most of them were completely empty."

Officials were worried that the sticky sweetener might attract swarms of bees, as did a similar suspicious spill from a single tank car at the same siding eight days earlier. But cool weather and a light rain apparently kept the insects away.

"It was a massive spill, just like a lake of corn syrup," Moore said.

Police and Conrail investigators, meanwhile, continued their search for the vandals responsible for the spill about 25 miles west of Philadelphia.

Prison Inmates Brawl, 7 Injured

DANVILLE, Ky. (AP) — State prison officials were investigating the cause of a "club-wielding street fight" between black and white inmates that involved up to 100 prisoners and left three guards and four inmates injured.

Warden Dewey Sowders said staff members at the Northpoint Training Center had received tips that there might be trouble before the fighting started Tuesday afternoon. But the exact cause of the 20-minute outbreak of violence was not yet known.

"I have no idea why. Evidently, it was a black and white thing," Sowders said. About 33 percent of the 683 inmates in the 700-inmate medium-security prison are black, he said.

A special emergency team was called in when the disturbance broke out, but no guns, tear gas or riot sticks were used to quell the outburst, Sowders said.

Sowders said guards Joe Chance and Rocky Rouston were admitted to hospitals with apparent concussions. A third guard, identified as Joe Bourne, suffered a wrist injury and was expected to be released from the hospital.

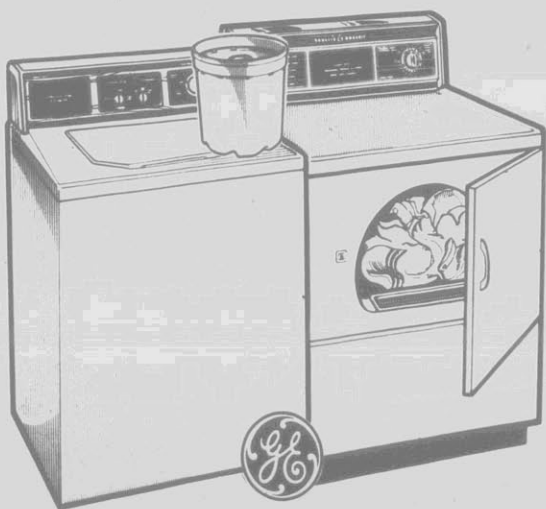

Sowders said he did not know the names or conditions of the four injured inmates, but said "it's nothing life threatening." The four were taken to the hospital, and two of them were expected to be admitted, he said.

Chile Clamps Down On Anti-Military Protest

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The government enforced a curfew today in the capital and closed four universities after a French priest, one of his slum parishioners and a 14-year-old boy were killed in violent demonstrations against military rule.

More than 50 people were injured and 270 were arrested by riot police Tuesday in the first of two days of planned demonstrations, the most widespread anti-government protests in Chile in six months.

The demonstrations, centered in this Andean capital, forced most shops to close several hours early and sharply curtailed public transport and school attendance.

French Embassy spokesman Jean Mazoyer said the Rev. Andre Jarlan, 43, died in his second-floor office in the Santiago district of La Victoria on Tuesday when he was hit in the neck by two bullets apparently fired through the wall from outside. Witnesses said riot squads had fired automatic weapons at demonstrators on the same block a half hour before. Earlier Tuesday, a 35-year-old rehabilitated drug addict was shot dead in the back while manning a street barricade in the same slum neighborhood in southwestern Santiago, said the Rev. Pierre DuBois, a Roman Catholic priest. Police said the slain man was a "common criminal" and the shooting was not related to the protests.

In an incident at another street barricade in a suburban neighborhood in southern Santiago, a 14-year-old was fatally shot late Tuesday, police confirmed early today.

The government imposed a curfew of midnight to 5 a.m. in Santiago so police could clear flaming barricades set up by youthful protesters at intersections in a score of outlying districts. It also closed four volatile university campuses, decreed censorship of two independent radio stations and seized editions of two opposition magazines from newsstands.

The protests are intended to pressure President Augusto Pinochet to restore democratic rule came as the 68-year-old army commander approaches the 11th anniversary of the 1973 military coup that toppled an elected Marxist-led regime and brought him to power.

Gen. Roberto Guillard, governor of metropolitan Santiago, said, "a very small percentage of the people, who have some mental problems," took part in the protests, which he said were "destined to fail." Mario Sharpe, president of the six-party Democratic Alliance that called the demonstrations, said they "showed the desire of an immense majority of Chileans for democracy." He said the regime imposed censorship "to hide the magnitude of the protest and the violent repression."

The opposition alliance urged Chileans to stay home today, and leftist groups said they planned to block access roads to keep commuters out of the center of this city of 4 million people. Associations of small businessmen and truckers announced support for the one-day work stoppage.

Most downtown shops closed

Tuesday afternoon after riot police with clubs, dogs and water cannon attacked hundreds of demonstrators singing the national anthem in Santiago's main square, then skirmished with them for hours in the surrounding streets.

Soviet Deputy Premier Dies

BERLIN (AP) — Leonid A. Kostandov, a deputy Soviet premier, died of a heart attack today while visiting East Germany, the official East German news agency ADN said.

Kostandov, 68, one of 10 Soviet deputy prime ministers and a member of the Soviet Communist Party Central Committee, had been on a tour of East Germany after leading the Soviet delegation to the annual Leipzig trade fair during the weekend, the agency said in a dispatch from Berlin.

ADN did not say when Kostandov arrived in East Germany or how long he had planned to stay.

The agency said he died suddenly of "a second heart attack" at 5:30 a.m., but did not say where or give other details.

ADN carried a medical bulletin signed by a Dr. Wittbrodt, identified as the medical director of the government hospital, saying Kostandov "suffered from chronic ... heart disease and arteriosclerosis following a first heart attack."

Details about Kostandov's initial heart attack were not provided.

In a separate report, ADN said East German leader Erich Honecker and other Politburo members "extended their deepest condolences" to the Soviet ambassador in East Berlin.

Kostandov was appointed a deputy premier Nov. 4, 1980, after serving as minister of the chemical industry for 15 years.

Born Nov. 27, 1915 in what now is the southern Soviet Republic of Turkmenia, he was graduated from the Moscow Institute of Chemical Engineering and worked in Central Asia before being named to a succession of government posts.

Some Ford Prices Will Rise For '85

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. has given its dealers a list of tentative prices for 1985 cars showing no increases in the base prices of its two smallest cars and increases on other models no greater than 6.5 percent, a Ford spokesman said.

Ford plans to announce its final prices for the 1985 fleet sometime before the official introduction of the new models Oct. 4, spokesman Gene Koch said Tuesday.

The company's two smallest cars, the subcompact Escort and its twin, the Lynx, tentatively list at $5,620 and $5,750, respectively, Koch said.

The lowest-priced Mustang from 1984, the L model, will be dropped from the line, making the LX the least expensive version of that sporty car, Koch said.

Comparably equipped Mustang LX models tentatively carry a base price of $6,885, down from $7,281 in 1984, he said.

Tentative prices for other cars range from a $52 increase for the lowest-price, two-seat Ford EXP to a $1,181 increase for the Lincoln Town Car, increases of 0.78 and 6.5 percent, respectively.

Other tentative base price increases include 2.3 percent for the Ford Tempo, 3.6 percent for the LTD, 4.9 percent for the Thunderbird, 5.5 percent for the Mercury Grand Marquis and 5.7 percent for the LTD Crown Victoria.

The most expensive car in the 1985 line would be the Lincoln Continental Mark VII, with a tentative base price of $22,631, up 4.4 percent.

General Motors Corp. has announced tentative price increases for its 1985 base models averaging 2.3 percent; Chrysler Corp., 1.7 percent; and American Motors Corp., 4.1 percent.

GM Price Hike Is Only $292

DETROIT (AP) — The Associated Press erroneously reported Monday that General Motors Corp.'s initial price increase for 1985 averages $1,325 per car including options.

The average introductory price increase for 1985 models is $292, excluding options, according to GM.

However, GM said the average buyer is expected to add options to its car that would boost the average spent on a 1985 model to $12,931, an increase of $1,325 over the 1984 average.

Mondale Tries For 'Fighting Fritz' Label

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

President Reagan, seeking to lose the issue he ignited in Dallas, says critics have "greatly distorted" his views on religion and politics, while Democrat Walter Mondale is attacking the president's tax policies as unfairly favoring the rich.

Mondale, in an effort to regain the "Fighting Fritz" label he earned in winning the Democratic nomination, rolled up his sleeves and loosened his tie to earnestly denounce Reagan's tax cuts.

"I'm mad, I'm angry, I'm damn mad, because I don't think it's right," he said while campaigning Tuesday in California.

Mondale's running mate Geraldine Ferraro joined in the condemnation of the Reagan administration's economic program. But she also acknowledged her family had more money than its pockets because of the tax cuts Reagan sought and won.

Nonetheless, she said the cuts were unfair.

"And actually, could we have done without it? We could have. We would have lived as well," she said. "... There are a lot of people who are suffering in this country as a result of my getting the tax cut and Ronald Reagan getting the tax cut and George Bush and a lot of other people in this country who are upper income, and that's unfair."

Reagan was in Chicago today, ending his four-day campaign kickoff trip with a speech to the Chicago Economic Club before returning to Washington.

Mondale was in Salt Lake City addressing the American Legion, the same group Reagan spoke to Tuesday. And, like Reagan, he planned a morning courtesy call on Mormon Church officials.

Before the Legionnaires and again in Chicago, Reagan addressed the religion-in-politics issue on which he has drawn heat from his Democratic opponent.

Reagan told reporters in Chicago that he had raised the religion issue only once, referring to the large ecumenical prayer breakfast in Dallas on Aug. 23.

"What I said was greatly distorted," Reagan said. "My concern was not with government invading religion but with all those people that are trying to make government turn around and interfere with people's right to prayer."

Speaking on the day he accepted his party's nomination at the Republican National Convention, Reagan told the prayer gathering: "The truth is, politics and morality are inseparable. And as morality's foundation is religion, religion and politics are necessarily related."

Three days ago Mondale responded in a radio address, saying the Republicans in Dallas "raised doubts about whether they respect the wall our founders placed between government and religion."

Wearing a Legionnaire's cap from his own California post, Reagan sought to answer Mondale's criticism in his Salt Lake City speech.

"I can't think of anyone who favors the government establishing a religion in this country. I know I don't," he said.

"But what some would do is twist the concept of freedom of religion to mean 'freedom against religion,'" he added.

Campaign officials labeled Reagan's comments a clarification, but the issue may be raised again this week when both Reagan and Mondale speak to the B'nai B'rith in Washington.

Fellows Named

DURHAM (AP) — A Pulitzer Prize-winning science writer from the New York Times will be among journalists from the Washington Post and Time Magazine who will take part in a Duke University program of visiting journalists.

John Noble Wilford has been named the first Times-Duke Fellow. He and five other members of the New York Times staff to be named will spend a month each on the Duke campus during the current academic year.

All visiting journalists design their own academic programs while on campus, and also give lectures and assist in teaching.

Reagan restated his call for a constitutional amendment permitting organized prayer in public schools — while allowing children to opt out if they wish. He called voluntary prayer in the schools "in the spirit of the Constitution as our forefathers wrote it..."

Vice President George Bush, too, has been on the attack, angrily criticizing Mondale on defense spending and Central America policy in a speech at College Station, Texas. Hours later in Houston, though, he was forced to correct and hedge his charges.

Criticizing the Sandinista government in Nicaragua, Bush shouted: "If you walk like a duck and you quack like a duck and you say you're a duck, you're a duck. They are Marxist-Leninists. They are not liberals as Mondale says."

At a news conference later, Bush said, "Maybe I used the wrong word" in quoting Mondale. He said the Democrat had called them "leftists ... It's something less than they are."

On the military, Bush contended Mondale wanted to "drastically cut spending" for the Pentagon. Questioned later, he hedged and said he wasn't sure what Mondale's program called for.

Mondale has not advocated cuts in defense spending but said he would increase military spending by smaller amounts than those sought by the REagan administration.

"I believe he's said he would cut from what we've recommended," Bush said. "But I will now stop so I don't get in any hot water and just wait and see if that point is correct or not."

Mondale was in Compton, Calif., Tuesday before flying to San Jose and then to Utah. Criticizing the Reagan tax cuts in California, Mondale charged that Reagan's re-election would mean "the rich will get richer and the average American will get poorer."

He also dismissed the decline in unemployment rates since the end of the recession, saying that just meant that Reagan has "put a lot of people he put out of work back to work."

In Washington, meanwhile, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said Mondale's economic proposals would cost the average American household $660 more in taxes over the next five years. He said Mondale is trying to "mousetrap the American people into another decade of high taxes, rising spending and still-bigger budget deficits."

Mondale replied: "They cooked up their own budget. Now they are trying to cook up my budget. ... All of it allows them to avoid saying what they will do to reduce the deficit. The deficit is not bad, it is obscene."

'Tired' Singer Disappoints Audience In Local Show

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

Johnny Rivers, the rock and roll whose hits include "Mountain of Love" and "The Poor Side of Town," played before a crowded, and ultimately disappointed, audience at The Carolina Opry House Friday night.

Rivers, a guitar player and singer, and his band played approximately 30 minutes and returned for two encore songs. His crowd-pleasing songs, as few as they were, included "Maybelline," "Seventh Son," "Secret Agent Man" and "Baby, I Need Your Loving."

During and after the brief show, the 42-year-old Rivers acted tired and unresponsive; he answered questions with short answers and didn't appear interested in talking about his new MCA album, "Heart-break Love," or his video which will be shown on Music Television next week.

Rivers, born Johnny Ramistella, said he was playing the guitar when he was 13 years old and formed his first band when he was in junior high school in his hometown of Baton Rouge, La. He moved to Hollywood in 1960, where he still lives with his family.

Of his early goals, Rivers said, "I

SIMS, N.C. (AP) — After hours of grimy, exhausting work cropping tobacco near Sims, eight Haitian migrant workers will climb aboard what they hope is their ticket out of farm work forever.

Thursday, they will climb into a mobile classroom obtained by the Migrant and Seasonal Farmworkers Association this summer to bring English language skills to Hispanics and Haitians working in migrant camps in eastern North Carolina.

The adults in Thursday's class — whose native language is Creole — will receive graduation certificates signifying their attendance in the twice-weekly, 11-week English language curriculum.

MIGRATING PESTS

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — In warm weather, many insect pests migrate from lawns to the inside of homes through cracks in the foundation of a house.

To help prevent insects such as ants and millipedes from entering the house, the makers of Spectracide insect control products suggest patching up cracks and other potential areas of entry. Then, they say, apply a five-foot band of insecticide.

wanted to play rock and roll music. I didn't know exactly what was going to happen."

What happened was a string of gold records beginning with "Memphis" in 1964; Rivers' own record company, Soul City, and publishing firm, Rivers Music, and the Monterey Pop Festival, which he helped found with John Phillips and Paul Simon.

In addition, Rivers discovered a young, black lounge act called The Versatiles, changed their name to The Fifth Dimension, and produced their first hit, "Up, Up and Away." That single won the grammy award for "record of the year," and Rivers received a grammy as its producer.

Rivers mentioned that one of the highlights of his career was his one-year contract playing at the Sunset Strip nightclub "The Whiskey A Go-Go," starting the Go-Go dance craze in the mid-1960s.

The entertainer said he now is on the road performing three or four months a year. "The crowds are still receptive and I do a lot of big concerts," he said.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks opened broadly lower today, extending the market's post-holiday retreat.

Financial issues were numerous among the early losers, along with retail, auto and telephone stocks.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which opened at a two-week low, fell another 6.30 to 1,206.05 in the first 30 minutes of trading.

Declines jumped out to a 2-1 lead over advances on the New York Stock Exchange.

Investors remained preoccupied with the fear that U.S. interest rates will move higher in the weeks ahead despite an apparent slowdown in the economy's expansion, brokers said.

Government and private credit demands are expected to remain strong in the fourth quarter, and there is little evidence that the Federal Reserve is prepared to significantly ease its restraint of credit, they added.

Carnation edged up 1/8 to 79 1/2; Nestle S.A. said today it began its tender offer of $83 for each of Carnation's shares.

Chase Manhattan fell 1/4 to 41 1/2. Merrill Lynch lost 3/8 to 30 3/4 and Manufacturers Hanover was off.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrial average skidded 12.03 to 1,212.35 — its lowest level since Aug. 17, when it stood at 1,211.90.

Losers led gainers 5 to 2 on the NYSE, whose composite index fell 0.90 to 94.96.

Big Board volume totaled 62.11 million shares, compared with 57.46 million Friday. Markets were closed Monday for Labor Day.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index lost 1.08 to 214.33.

Theme Park

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Preliminary plans for a $10 million year-round aquatic amusement park proposed for Buncombe County were unveiled Tuesday at a county Board of Commissioners meeting.

Mountain Magic Park would be a major theme park on the order of Carowinds, Six Flags and Kings Dominion, offering special discounts to area residents, according to Keith Bartlett of Arden. Bartlett is president of Land of Sky Entertainment Park, the development company.

Attorneys Waived

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — Two Lucama men charged in connection with an alleged child pornography ring have waived the right to court-appointed attorneys in their first court appearance.

James W. Ward, 59, and Doral Ray Mason, 49, waived the attorneys Tuesday in Wilson County District Court. A probable-cause hearing is scheduled for Sept. 10 for Ward and Sept. 17 for Mason.

The men were arrested last week and charged with two counts of crime against nature and taking indecent liberties with a minor.

No Appeal

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A school district that kicked a high school senior out of the National Honor Society after she became pregnant probably will not appeal a court order that she be reinstated, a lawyer for the district said.

U.S. District Judge J. Waldo Ackerman ruled that Linda Wort, 20, was a victim of sex discrimination and was denied equal protection under the law.

"I'm just so excited," said Mrs. Wort, who was dismissed from the honor group in February 1982. She filed the suit "to make sure it wouldn't happen again," she said.

Man Shoots Officer, Takes One Hostage

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A gunman shot and wounded a policeman early today and took a former girlfriend hostage at the home of her new boyfriend in what apparently started as a domestic disturbance, police said.

The gunman had barricaded himself inside the house in a residential neighborhood, police said. Several nearby homes were evacuated and traffic was diverted around the area, said police spokesman Bob Moss.

"We've been in contact with him (the suspect) all morning," Moss said. "We're just playing a waiting game. We don't plan to go on the offense unless it's necessary."

Officers were called to the house around midnight by the owner, said Capt. Roy Phillips.

"The man who lived in the house called the police and told them about the man being out there and being dangerous," said Phillips. Phillips, who was among the officers answering the call, said he was talking to the owner in front of the house when the suspect "opened up with a .22 rifle and there was a bunch of shots" behind the house. He said the gunman was believed to have a 12-gauge shotgun as well.

During the shooting, Officer James G. Brown, a 22-year police veteran, was hit in the shoulder, Phillips said. Brown was listed in stable condition at Charlotte Memorial Hospital this morning.

Police did not identify the suspect, the hostage or the owner of the house.

Army Activates Green Beret Unit

FORT LEWIS, Wash. (AP) — The Army has reactivated its first Green Beret unit since the Vietnam War, saying that "Soviet expansionism" is making special forces training more important than ever.

"Once again this nation finds itself in need of you," Maj. Gen. Leroy N. Suddath, commander of I Special Operations Command at Fort Bragg, N.C., said at a ceremony Tuesday at Fort Lewis, where the unit will train.

"Soviet expansionism" through support of insurgents continues to create a climate in which it may become necessary to use unconventional forces such as the Green Berets to stop "wars of liberation," Suddath said.

The 776-member unit will be under the command of Fort Bragg, but will train in Washington state, where they can make use of desert conditions at the Yakima Firing Range, forest and Europe-like conditions at Fort Lewis and mountain and snow conditions at Mount Rainier, said Bob Rosenburgh, a civilian spokesman for the base.

Suddath said the Green Berets' wartime mission of infiltrating behind enemy lines and their peacetime mission of training America's allies are essential for the nation's military strategy.

Border Proof

SAN YSIDRO, Calif. (AP) — A 35 percent increase in Border Patrol agents in the Southwest is proof the Reagan administration "means business when it comes to illegal aliens," an immigration official said.

Harold Exell, western regional commissioner of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, said the 436 new agents are part of an effort to "regain control of our borders." The government hopes the new agents will boost from 50 percent to 85 to 90 percent the number of illegal aliens captured crossing the border.

"If you train to your wartime mission," the general told the troops, "your peacetime mission will be in good hands."

The unit is a descendant of the Devi's Brigade, formed July 5, 1942, and deactivated in France in 1945. It was reactivated as the 1st Special Forces group in 1957 on Okinawa, Japan, and served through the Vietnam War. It was deactivated on June 28, 1974.

The reactivation demonstrates a higher level of deterrent strength and possible need for military advisers, Rosenburgh said.

"If a country is vulnerable and its military too small, the Special Forces can be invited in by the government and set up training camp and train sufficient number of indigenous troops to be able to start training their own people," Rosenburgh said.

Green Berets are primarily advisers, he said. They are fully capable of taking on commando operations on their own, as they did in Vietnam, he said.

Members of the Green Berets must meet special physical and mental qualifications and are specially trained. The Army looks for a "higher caliber" soldier to wear the Green Beret, Rosenburgh said.

The unit has been coming back to strength since last winter, with soldiers from other units and those with prior Special Forces experience being called.

Americans spent $46.5 billion to improve or keep up their homes in 1981.

Busted Play Turned Into Score

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Ed Emory would like to claim that he's a genius for coming up with the "fake field goal" touchdown pass Saturday night against Florida State.

He'd like to, but he can't. It wasn't, Emory explained at his press conference Tuesday, a fake at all — it was a busted play. "Our regular snapper, Stuart Ward, was in the (FSU mobile hospital) getting his chin sewed up after getting hurt, and we had to use Tony Smith (a flanker) to snap. He was high and to the side with his snap, and there was just no way for (Jeff) Bolch to get the ball down."

Emory said that the procedure here is for Bolch to roll out, yelling "Fire!" the codeword to release the backs and receivers into the end zone. However, Bolch, in the excitement forgot and only one receiver, Jeff Patton, broke to the end zone. "And he got knocked down, but got back up," Emory said. "If no one is open, Bolch is just supposed to throw the ball toward the goal posts, and if the receivers don't see the passer, they're supposed to head for the goal posts. It all worked out and Patton was there to catch his first touchdown pass."

So maybe it wasn't pretty, but it did turn out to be one of the bright spots for the Pirates in their 48-17 loss at the hands of Florida State.

Emory joked that there is talk of getting the legislature to pass a bill forcing certain in-state schools to play East Carolina. "But they're putting in a provision that prohibits us from playing in the state of Florida again."

"Personally, I'd just as soon be back there in December in a bowl game."

Turning to the more serious side,

Emory said the Pirates are exactly where they were a year ago, 0-1. "You can play with numbers and stats, but we're where we were last year now, 0-1."

"We will be a good football team. I just don't know when."

Emory said that Florida State was a better football team than he had given them credit for before the game. "And (Eric) Thomas is a better quarterback than I thought he was too. We tried to recruit him once. We should have kept it up."

But, Emory added, the Pirates helped Florida State as much as possible with two pass interceptions, a fumble and a blocked punt. "We didn't play with much intensity, enthusiasm, spirit or unity," the coach said, "and I'm disappointed in that."

Emory said he thought the Pirates were ready to play at the start of the game. "We stopped them for a field goal and came right back and scored one of our own. Then, we held them again before starting to give up the ball. And when we were down 17-3 and needed something good to happen, they kicked the ball to Henry (Williams) for the first time and Patton ran into him, knocking the ball loose." FSU recovered around the 20 and scored again, eventually taking a 31-3 halftime lead.

"The defense didn't handle adversity. The tackling was pitiful, poor, poor.... When we tried to find some bright spots on defense, we couldn't find many."

Emory did find some on offense, such as the play of wide receivers Ricky Nichols and Williams, and running backs Jimmy Walton and Reggie Branch.

"We didn't play as well up front, but we haven't had our five starters together much at all," Emory said.

Center Tim Mitchell was the only lineman to draw Emory's praises.

"Still, we averaged 5 1/2 yards a play, had 19 first downs and 350 yards in total offense," Emory pointed out.

The coach thought both quarterbacks used, junior college transfer Robbie Bartlett and red-shirted freshman Ron Jones did well, but that Jones "executed the offense better." For that reason, Jones will draw the starting assignment this week against Temple University.

The big thing for the Pirates this week will be how they come back from the lopsided loss to the Seminoles. "A lot is written about how teams handle winning. And that would be the greatest thing in the world if we could do it this week. But we've got to learn about bouncing back, taking criticism and having a gut check."

"I saw some good things on offense and in the kicking game and some individual things on defense. I said before the season that we'd have to be patient. But the loss comes when we needed a win for the momentum to play Temple, to help our program and to fill Ficklen Stadium."

"Still, Florida State got embarrassed (53-14 by Florida) on December 3 and came back to win the Peach Bowl and then to beat us. Now we've been embarrassed and must come back."

Emory said, too, he was concerned about the senior leadership. "We don't have the Terry Longs and Earnest Byrnes and the like leading us this year; the guys who work their butts off on every play. This team will meet their standard, but I don't know when. Saturday, we got beat from the ears up, our minds got left behind by Florida State."

Chargers Young And Talented

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

LITTLEFIELD — Youth and talent are abundant in the Ayden-Grifton football camp according to new Coach Dwight Tart, but leadership is still a missing factor as the Chargers prepare for their 1984 season opener Friday against Roanoke.

"We have some experience at some positions," Tart said. "But we've got some young guys who will play because of sheer talent. Our experienced players haven't taken over like we had hoped they would."

"We need to find some leadership. We've been inconsistent, as well. One day we'll have a good practice, really laying the sticks; the next day we're real calm — like they're saying to themselves 'we practiced well yesterday, let's take it easy today.'"

"That's something new to me as a coach; I've had to make adjustments."

Tart admits the change to a new coach after Dixon Sauls departed to take over at Farmville Central has presented problems, but he points to other factors that have affected the Chargers.

"(The transition) has been reasonably smooth," Tart said. "There's been a few kids who have not decided to accept a new coaching staff, but they seem to be falling a little more into place now."

"We've had a lot of kids out of practice as far as working on farms. We've been lenient about their work schedule, but when a kid's missed six or seven practices something has to be done."

Tailback Kelvin Harris will miss the opener for disciplinary reasons along with a knee injury, while guards Wheeler Davis, James Lane and Duane Dixon are doubtful after missing practice.

Junior Danny West and senior Shannon Peede have battled for the quarterback slot, but Tart conceded West is the likely starter against Roanoke. Peede will move to wing back in the Chargers' wing-I offense.

"Shannon Peede has shown a little more coolness at quarterback, but Danny probably has a little more ability as far as athletic talent is concerned," Tart said. "No matter which one starts, the other will be at wing back. We used both quarterbacks when we scrimmaged (Lejeune), and both did some good things. They both threw the ball well; I'll pass as much as my offensive line will let me."

"The line opened some nice holes, but as small as we are they don't stay open long. Our running backs fought for extra yardage, and I was impressed by that."

But the Chargers are small up front, averaging 185 pounds according to Tart. Center Mike Connor will be joined by guards Maurice Edwards and Tyrone Sutton, and tackles Jackie Braxton and either Tony McLawhorn or Burnice Bullock.

David Wiggins and Gene Johnson are the tight ends. Senior Mike Dixon and sophomore Alex Chapman are battling at fullback, while Jesse Hooker and Roger West are the leading tailbacks.

"Sometimes (our running backs) have played reasonably well and sometimes they've loafed around," Tart said. "We probably have more talent there than anywhere else, but

Ayden-Grifton High School will open the 1984 football season Friday, hosting Roanoke High School. Members of the Chargers are, first row, left to right: Shannon Peede, Mike Burnham, Maurice Berry, Fred Coley, Danny West, Timmy Best, Roger West, Wesley Hardee, Alex Champan, Mike Dixon, Jesse Hooker; second row, Kelvin Harris, Jackie Braxton, Grant Hargrove, John Carmon, Mike Connor, James Lane, Duane Dixon, Wheeler Davis, Reggie Barrow.

"Both our scoring drives in the scrimmage were impressive because of the length — we took the ball 70 yards twice."

"I don't think we came into practice in good shape as far as wind is concerned. Defensively, I felt like we got tired, and that hurt us. I thought the defense looked good and hit well every series except the when Lejeune scored."

Johnson will be at nose guard, while Ellison and Sutton are the defensive tackles. Connor and Wesley Hardee are the ends, while Peede and Cedric Hines or James Lane are the outside linebackers.

Braxton, an All-Conference selection a year ago, returns at middle linebacker, while Dixon is at cornerback. Maurice Berry and Mike Burnham will alternate at the other cornerback and safety.

The Chargers should have an advantage most of the time with overall team speed, but Tart said their "big weakness is depth."

"If we get hurt in some position, we could be in trouble," Tart said. "We've had some sprains and bruises, but nothing major so far."

"I think we'll stack up in the middle of the (Eastern Carolina Conference). If we get the kids funneled in the right direction, we have chance to be a good football team."

North Pitt suffered a 28-0 setback against Roanoke last week, but the young Panthers hope to bounce back when they open the home schedule with East Carteret Friday.

Freshman quarterback Calvin Hunter connected on five out of 11 passes, but the Panthers managed just 27 yards rushing against the Redskins. North Pitt also gave up three fumbles in the opener.

"Offensively, it's just a matter of timing," North Pitt Coach Larry Bolger said. "I was not really surprised by our passing; Calvin Hunter put the ball right there for the receivers, and Ashley Shepard, another freshman, caught most of those."

"On defense, a couple of over-active kids out of position on a counter play put them in the end zone. That's something we can correct, so I'm not that upset with the way the played most of the time."

"We're going to learn from our mistakes."

"It ought to be a plus on our side that we've played one already, even if we lost. We had the best practice (Monday) that we've had all year. They know we believe in them, and they know they have a lot to learn."

"We asked them if they were willing put forth the effort we require, and they were."

Connors Not Looking Ahead

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

His next opponent is John Lloyd, against whom he has never lost so much as one set. But there is no way Jimmy Connors is looking past him toward McEnroe.

"I don't worry about anybody except the guy I'm playing next. One at a time, that's the way I take 'em," the third-seeded Connors said after he advanced into the quarterfinals of the $2.55 million U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

"I've seen John play for about 10 years now," Connors said, "but I haven't seen him or anybody else play here. I have enough trouble watching the guys I'm playing while I'm playing 'em."

In today's women's quarters it was No. 1 seed Martina Navratilova vs. Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia; Lloyd's wife, No. 2 Chris Evert Lloyd vs. Sylvia Hanika of West Germany; No. 3 Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia vs. No. 14 Carling Bassett of Canada and No. 4 Pam Shriver vs. No. 13 Wendy Turnbull of Britain.

5 Andres Gomez of Ecuador and No. 4 Mats Wilander of Sweden vs. No. 15 Pat Cash of Australia.

Both Connors and the unseeded Lloyd advanced with Tuesday night victories over seeded Swedes, Connors defeating No. 16 Joakim Nystrom 7-6, 6-0, 6-3, 16-12 beating No. 9 Henrik Sundstrom 4-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2 after the day's schedule was disrupted by rain.

In Tuesday's only afternoon match completed between showers, McEnroe disposed of unseeded Robert Green 6-3, 6-2, 6-2 to advance to a quarterfinal meeting with Mayer, a surprisingly easy 6-3, 6-2, 6-3 winner over No. 13 Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia.

Also Tuesday night, Wilander beat Tim Mayotte 6-4, 6-4, 7-6 in a four-round match begun Monday night. And Hanika defeated Patra Huber of Austria 6-4, 7-5 to fill out the women's quarterfinal field.

Connors said he wasn't surprised to find Lloyd waiting for him in the quarters. "He's been playing good tennis. He's beaten a lot of good guys to get there."

As usual, Connors played an animated game, reacting to the crowd — which in turn was reacting to him. "I was having a good time out there," he said. "I sat around all day. Didn't get to hit any balls because of the rain. I just wanted to get out there and try to get going. I was just happy to get out of the hotel room."

Lloyd said he's "very superstitious — I think a lot of players are — and I think I've only lost once in the first round here in the 10 times I've played it. And that was to Jimmy (in 1981).

"But I think I'm a much, much better player now than I've ever been. Jimmy's ranked third in the world, obviously one of the great players, but I'm not going to be overawed by playing him."

Neither, for that matter is Mayer. "I've played well against him, beaten him," Mayer said. "I had a rough match against him the last time we met in the Open (McEnroe winning 4-6, 7-6, 6-3, 4-6, 6-1 in the 1982 quarters). Win or lose, hopefully this one'll be shorter."

McEnroe had no trouble defeating Green, who wasn't supposed to get anywhere near this far in the tournament. "He had nothing to lose and could go out there and hit his shots, which is what he did — except I played better," McEnroe said. "He didn't play badly. He had a great tournament and I think he should be proud of what he's done."

The Open was only the second Grand Prix tournament in which Green made it past the first round. "You just look for a decent draw and hope for the best," he said. "I thought if I got a good draw, one or two rounds. The fourth round is more than I expected."

He said he'd had a lot of interest shown in him in the 48 hours between his third-round victory over Australian John Fitzgerald and the loss to McEnroe.

"A few agents have been making contact, expressing an interest in getting together," Green said. "Right now I don't have any contracts — clothing, shoes, rackets. I do have a string contract..."

The Atlanta Braves, second in the Western Division to the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1983, had the worst record in the circuit in one-run games, winning 19 and losing 29.

Qawi's Withdrawal Spoils Fight Card

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Challenger Dwight Muhammad Qawi's withdrawal from Friday night's light heavyweight title fight with titleholder Michael Spinks has wiped out the card which was to have included a World Boxing Council cruiserweight championship fight.

Qawi was scheduled to face Spinks Friday, the undisputed 175-pound champion, in a 15-round rematch of their brawl last year in Atlantic City, N.J., which Spinks won by a unanimous decision.

But Qawi left Reno last Friday with what his manager said was an aggravated chronic shoulder injury.

"Since Friday afternoon's pullout, we have been feverishly working to set something up," promoter Butch Lewis said Tuesday.

But the Katz Sports Network, which was to have televised the bout, could not work out a new deal with the sponsors and some 200 television stations set to carry the fight, he said.

Lewis said there also was not time to restructure ticket prices, which ranged up to $200, for just the second championship bout and the undercard. Carlos "Sugar" DeLeon and Alfonso Ratliff were scheduled to go 12 rounds for DeLeon's WBC cruiserweight title. Lewis said earlier that fight alone would not have been a strong enough draw for prime-time television.

Nevada Athletic Association Commissioner Sam Macias said Tuesday he would recommend that the commission suspend Qawi from fighting in Nevada because he failed to fulfill his contract to face Spinks.

In addition, he said he already had recommended that the WBC remove Qawi, the No. 1 contender, from its ratings and said he would make the same suggestion to the World Boxing Association, which also has him the top contender.

"I feel he should have stayed for an examination" in Nevada, instead of returning to New Jersey on Friday, Macias said.

Qawi's manager, Rocky Newman, said Friday his fighter missed a jab during training the day before and was in such intense pain he could not run the following morning.

AL's West Race Continues Hot

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

First it was the Minnesota Twins breathing a sigh of relief and then the Kansas City Royals took their turn as the hot American League West race continued to be the only real scramble left this season in major league baseball.

Twenty-four hours earlier, Minnesota Manager Billy Gardner was talking about the need for his Twins, who entered the important three-game series with five straight losses, to win one from the Royals. Round one went to the Twins, 4-1, and their lead grew to two games.

Now, it was Tuesday night, and Kansas City second baseman Frank White, whose sixth-inning single drove in the go-ahead run in a 4-1 victory by the Royals, was holding court.

"You just don't want to get swept," White was explaining, almost as if his script had been written by Gardner. "Now, if we win tomorrow, we're in a tie for first place, and that makes it that much more interesting."

"This is what baseball's all about," said White, who added that California, only a game behind the second-place Royals, also was not to be overlooked. "There's going to be a lot of excitement and that's what the people pay their money to see."

Gardner did not believe the loss would saddle his players with any serious doubts.

"They're in a good frame of mind," he said. "They'll bounce back."

three-run homer off California reliever Don Aase, 3-1, in the bottom of the ninth.

Mike Witt entered the ninth with a five-hit shutout, but left the game after allowing a leadoff single to Andre Thornton and a two-out walk to Pat Tabler. Bando greeted Aase with his ninth homer of the year.

Fred Lynn, who has driven in 34 runs in his last 35 games, singled, doubled and hit a two-run homer, his 19th, extending his hitting streak to seven games.

Orioles 4, Tigers 1
Cal Ripken and Eddie Murray drove in first-inning runs and Mike Boddicker, 17-9, pitched a six-hitter through seven innings as Baltimore handed Detroit its sixth loss in seven games. Rick Dempsey added a two-run homer for the Orioles in the fifth.

Al Bumbry and Mike Young started the Baltimore first with singles and moved up on a passed ball by Tiger catcher Lance Parrish. Ripken hit a sacrifice fly and Murray singled to chase Dave Rozema, 7-6, after only a third of an inning.

Seaver hurled a five-hitter as Chicago drilled Oakland in a rain-delayed game. Seaver, 13-9, picked up his 286th career victory by pitching eight innings.

Steve McCatty, 7-13, who had a 7-0 lifetime record against Chicago going into the game, gave up five runs in 2-2/3 innings.

Leading 1-0, the White Sox started their rout in the second inning when Walker smashed his first homer of the night, scoring Scott Fletcher, who had doubled, and Jerry Hairston, who had walked.

Pirates Helped Start String

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

What can the Miami Hurricanes do for an encore?

If you're thinking about an encore to their 1983 national championship, that remains to be seen, although they're off and running — make that passing — with victories over Auburn, the preseason No. 1 team, and Florida.

in the Kickoff Classic, scoring the winning field goal with 6:09 left — a relative laugh.

But last Saturday night they really cut it fine, falling behind Florida 20-19 with 41 seconds left and then marching 72 yards in five plays, using all of 29 seconds, and taking a 26-20 lead on Kosar's 12-yard pass to Brown with seven seconds remaining. Tolbert Bain's 59-yard interception on the final play was just icing on the cake.

But if cliff-hangers whet your appetite, the Hurricanes are on a stretch of five consecutive games that weren't over until, as Yogi Berra would say, they were over.

Nov. 5, 1983 — Miami 12, East Carolina 7: With time running out and their quest for a major bowl bid in jeopardy, Bernie Kosar drove the Hurricanes 80 yards for the winning touchdown. The big play was a 52-yard pass from Kosar to Eddie Brown, which helped set up Kosar's 1-yard run with 1:04 left to play.

Nov. 12, 1983 — Miami 17, Florida State 16: Trailing 16-7, the Hurricanes began their comeback when Kosar teamed up with Brown on a 37-yard scoring pass late in the third period. But they didn't score the winning points until Jeff Davis, who missed two earlier attempts, kicked a 19-yard field goal on the game's very last play.

Jan. 2, 1984 — Miami 31, Nebraska 30: In one of the most exciting games in college football history, Miami completed its story-book climb to the national championship in the Orange Bowl. The Hurricanes led 17-0 only to have Nebraska tie the score early in the third period. They led again 31-17 but once more Nebraska battled back with two touchdowns, the second on Jeff Smith's 24-yard run with just 48 seconds remaining.

The Cornhuskers, ranked No. 1 and needing only a tie to win the national championship since they would have been the only unbeaten team in the country, then kicked away the title by not kicking the extra point. Coach Tom Osborne ordered a 2-point conversion pass from Turner Gill to Smith, but strong safety Kenny Calhoun batted it away.

This year, with Jimmy Johnson at the coaching helm replacing Howard Schnellenberger, Miami has not lost its flair for the dramatic. The Hurricanes opened the season by upsetting No. 1-ranked Auburn 20-18

Penn State meets Texas on Sept. 29 at the Meadowlands — Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J. — which isn't necessarily news except that Texas will be the home team.

That was decided Tuesday by a coin flip at the weekly luncheon of the Football Writers Association of New York at Giants Stadium. Jim Tarman, Penn State's athletic director, called tails and it came up heads.

According to Penn State, when first arranged some years ago, the game was scheduled for a neutral site in the East because Darrell Royal, then the Texas athletic director, wanted to bring the Longhorns to that area.

Mississippi State Coach Emory Ballard reportedly needs a good season to save his job and the Bulldogs took a major step in that direction by thumping Tulane 30-3 despite fumbling away two seemingly certain touchdowns and having another called back by a penalty.

Ballard abandoned the Wishbone, which he helped to invent, in favor of the I-formation. "We put the dot under the I and made it an exclamation point," he said.

With 203 rushing yards, tailback Johnnie Jones was the star of Tennessee's 24-17 victory over Washington State, but the key player probably was quarterback Tony Robinson, who inherited the job when Alan Cockrell bypassed his senior year to sign a pro baseball contract. Robinson, who threw only 12 passes all last season, completed 13 of 16 against the Cougars for 125 yards and scored on a 1-yard keeper.

"I wanted to go out and show everybody I could throw a football," Robinson said. "I didn't have any doubts about the way we would play or I would play. I had a lot of confidence and I think I can do better on down the line."

Left fielder Joe Carter misplayed Rod Carew's double in the 12th inning, allowing Juan Beniquez to score the tie-breaking run from first base after Cleveland's Chris Bando had tied the game with a two-out, Minnesota starter Ken Schrom, 4-8, had yielded only one hit through the first five innings until Motley singled to left with one out in the sixth.

To the editor:
Many area and local citizens have expressed concern about the media coverage of Greenville native, William Frizzell, as compared to the coverage of other local youth who leave the area and excell.

The William "Boo Boo" Frizzell saga began at Rose High School where he started at defensive back. Upon graduation, he attended North Carolina Central University, started at defensive back and made All-League honors four consecutive years. He was a sought-after player by many pro teams and his father made him stay in school. He graduated from "Central" and was drafted by the Detroit Lions this spring.

Last week he played the entire game against the Bengals, survived the cut list and made the team. A jubilant phone call to his mother disrupted our weekly choir meeting last Monday. Being excited along with everybody else and having remember not seeing any coverage at all about "Boo Boo," I immediately ran to the phone to inform the local media. One source did not know who he was and the second source knew little or nothing, but commented on waiting on "info" from the training camps.

When coverage was released, all former ECU standouts were named as doing previously, and followed by a small patch of data concerning William. Had he been a former ECU student, robbed a bank, or been charged with rape, coverage would have been no problem.

In spite of this, we should all be proud of William and this letter to express to the community our pride in a local son.

Sunday before last The Daily Reflector gave excellent coverage to another Greenville native, Martin Daniels, and the community was highly elated.

Congratulations to the families of both Marvin and William on their excellent achievements.

Cubs Pass First Test, Top Phillies

By The Associated Press
The Chicago Cubs have passed their first test of the final month. Ron Cey homered for the second straight day and Scott Sanderson managed to scatter 13 hits as the Cubs beat the Philadelphia Phillies 7-2 Tuesday night, extending their lead in the National League East to seven games over New York.

The Cubs did it by knocking out Philadelphia ace Steve Carlton, and the impressive victory may have knocked the Phillies out of the pennant chase.

"This is not the time to get cocky," warned Sanderson after Chicago had finished sweeping the two-game series at Veterans Stadium. "But if we had come in here and they won two in a row, it would have given them confidence to get the ball rolling for them."

Instead, Chicago ran its record in September to 4-0 and, coupled with the Mets' 12-2 defeat in St. Louis, helped the Cubs take their biggest lead of the season. Third-place

Philadelphia is 10 1/2 games behind.

The victory came on the same day Chicago received permission from the baseball commissioner's office to start printing playoff tickets, and although it may be early to start counting such things, the Cubs magic number to eliminate the Mets is now 18.

In other NL games, Los Angeles edged San Diego 2-1. Pittsburgh rallied past Montreal 5-3, Atlanta clubbed Houston 8-7 and Cincinnati rolled by San Francisco 8-3.

"It wasn't that I fooled them. But none of their hits were in the gaps, down the lines or over the fence," said Sanderson, who took a shutout into the ninth but lost it when his own error led to two unearned runs.

Cey's 25th homer of the season, a two-run blast, helped the Cubs charge to a 3-0 lead in the first inning.

Gary Matthews and Keith Moreland drew walks from Carlton to start the sixth and Cey followed with an RBI single. Gary Woods delivered a run-scoring double that brought on reliever Kevin Gross, pinch hitter Leon Durham had a single that made it 6-0 and Sanderson capped the outburst with a sacrifice fly.

The lone highlight for the Phillies came as Carlton, 11-7, struck out four to regain the all-time major league strikeout lead with 3,857, one more than Houston's Nolan Ryan.

Cardinals 12, Mets 2

In St. Louis, George Hendrick went 4-for-5 and drove in four runs. Tom Nieto belted a two-run homer and had a pair of singles. Tommy Herr doubled twice and singled, and Lonnie Smith had three singles.

It added to a 17-hit assault that powered St. Louis over New York. The Mets enjoyed a brief 2-0 lead in the first inning on Darby Strawberry's 20th homer before the Cardinals went to work against Sid Fernandez.

Doubles by Herr and Hendrick made it 2-1 in the bottom of the first, Nieto homered in the second and Hendrick had an RBI single in the third before St. Louis broke it open with five runs in the fourth.

Fernandez, 4-4, along with Wes Gardner and Brent Gaff, were victimized in the Cardinals' big inning.

Winner Danny Cox, 7-10, gave up four hits over eight innings and Bob Forsch, activated from the disabled list earlier in the day, worked the ninth.

Dodgers 2, Padres 1

Pinch hitter Sid Bream's sacrifice fly with the bases loaded and one out in the bottom of the ninth inning was the game-winner for host Los Angeles.

Ken Landreaux, whose home run in the first inning put the Dodgers ahead, drew a walk from Andy Hawkins, 7-9, with one out in the ninth. Landreaux stole second and continued to third on catcher Bruce Bochy's throwing error.

Hawkins walked Pedro Guerrero and then intentionally walked Greg Brock, leaving it up to Bream.

Braves 8, Astros 7

Dale Murphy is known as a home-run hitter; Alex Trevino is not. They both hit late homers in Atlanta to lift the Braves.

Murphy's NL-leading 30th homer, a two-run shot in the seventh inning, made the score 7-7. In the eighth, Trevino led off with a home run, his third of the season and just the fifth of his six-year career.

"Trevino may not have hit many home runs in his career, but he can sure hit the fastball," said Houston coach Denis Menke, a former Braves player. "And Murphy always wears us out."

Pirates 5, Expos 3

Jason Thompson stroked a two-run single and Tony Pena hit a sacrifice fly as Pittsburgh rallied for three runs in the top of the ninth inning.

With a runner on first and one out in the ninth, Montreal reliever Bob James gave up a double to Lee Lacy. Johnny Ray was intentionally walked to load the bases and then Thompson singled before Pena drove in an insurance run.

Pittsburgh starter Jose DeLeon, who has lost eight straight decisions, took a one-hitter and a 2-1 lead into the sixth. But Montreal loaded the bases with two out, and Wallace Johnson greeted reliever Rod Scurry with a two-run pinch-single to put the host Expos ahead.

Reds 8, Giants 3

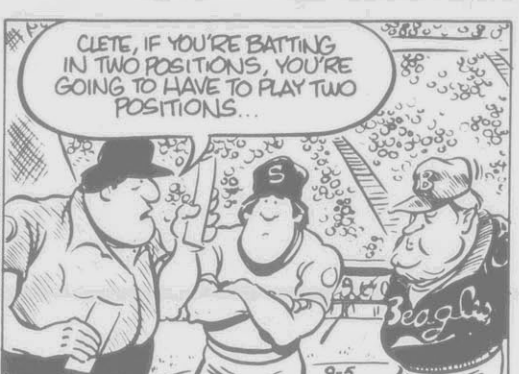

Eric Davis hit a leadoff home run in the fifth inning to lift Cincinnati into a 2-2 tie, and then belted a three-run shot in the eighth inning during a six-run rally.

The visiting Reds went into the eighth trailing 3-2 but Dave Concepcion's RBI double tied it. Pinch-hitter Tony Perez then delivered a run-scoring single and Davis followed with his sixth homer of the year.

Pete Rose doubled for his third hit of the game and later scored on a wild pitch to cap the uprising.

Mario Soto raised his record to 14-7 despite allowing Scot Thompson's first home run since 1980.

forced to waive third-string quarterback Bryan Clark in order to add veteran defensive lineman Greg Boyd to the roster.

San Francisco also said it would be without cornerback Eric Wright from three to five weeks because of a strained left knee. The other starting cornerback, Ronnie Lott, will try to play with a sprained ankle.

The Dallas Cowboys reported that Tony Hill, their top wide receiver, suffered a shoulder separation in their 20-13 victory over the Los Angeles Rams and will be lost for from four to six weeks.

That leaves Dallas with only three wide receivers for Sunday's clash with the New York Giants — Doug Donley, Kirk Phillips and Mike Renfro.

Two backup quarterbacks will likely see action this week.

Pittsburgh quarterback David Woodley, who suffered a concussion in the Steelers' 37-20 loss to the Kansas City Chiefs, will miss Thursday night's game with the New York Jets. He will be replaced by Mark Malone.

Denver's starter, John Elway, is listed as questionable for Sunday's

Warner Out For Season, Seahawks Look For Help

By The Associated Press
The Seattle Seahawks, who with a 3-1 preseason and a 33-0 victory to open the regular season were on a run, will run henceforth without Curt Warner.

Exploratory arthroscopic surgery was performed Tuesday on the right knee of Warner, who led American Football Conference rushers with 1,449 yards in his rookie season last year.

The Seahawks didn't like what the surgeons saw — ligament damage requiring immediate surgery that will likely end Warner's season.

"The doctors expect a good recovery," said Seahawks spokesman Gary Wright. "However, we are taking a conservative approach. We expect him to be out for the season."

Warner injured the knee when he cut on the Kingdome's artificial turf in Monday's triumph over the Cleveland Browns.

The San Francisco 49ers head into Monday's game with the Washington Redskins with several defensive injuries.

Torn knee ligaments have ended the year for defensive end Jeff Stover, who was starting in place of holdout Fred Dean. The 49ers were game at Chicago with a bruised left shoulder he suffered against Cincinnati last weekend. Gary Kubiak, who replaced him and led the Broncos to a 20-17 victory, would replace him.

Clayton Weishuhn, one of New England's starting inside linebackers, injured his knee and will miss Sunday's game against the Miami Dolphins. Patriots Coach Ron Meyer said he was undecided whether to move Larry McGrew from an outside linebacking position or go with Ed Reynolds, Weishuhn's backup.

The Kansas City Chiefs, meanwhile, announced that second-year offensive tackle David Lutz, who sprained his knee in Sunday's victory at Pittsburgh, will be out for about half the season.

Lutz was found not to have sustained the feared ligament damage that would have sidelined him for the year.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
2 ♦	Pass	4 NT	Pass
6 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠

At times, you may have to tackle more than one suit to develop the tricks you need for your contract. The order in which you play the suits might be crucial.

When North's Stayman inquiry failed to locate a major-suit fit, he made a quantitative raise in no trump. We might have passed with the South hand, but at the table South judged to go on to slam on the strength of his fair five-card suit.

West led the top of his diamond sequence, and declarer could count nine fast tricks. With a normal 3-2 break, two more tricks can be developed in clubs, and the heart suit will always produce a second trick, to bring the total to 12.

However, declarer cannot afford to go after clubs first. Why? Because if he does and the heart finesse fails, the defenders have two tricks before declarer can reel in his dozen. Therefore, declarer should win the opening lead in dummy and immediately take the heart finesse.

If the heart finesse succeeds, declarer would simply surrender a club in the proper fashion (cash one top honor, then lead low from hand) and claim his contract. But when it fails, declarer can no longer afford to lose a trick in clubs. Now his only realistic hope is to find East with both missing club honors.

Assume West continues with a diamond. Win on the table and lead the 10 of clubs. If East does not cover, run it. If he does cover, cross to the board with the jack of hearts and repeat the club finesse. As the cards lie, this line allows you to bring in the whole club suit and, with it, the slam.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge," will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. Tass Charge

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet news agency Tass has carried a report from Afghanistan alleging that the United States and its allies have supplied chemical weapons to rebels fighting the Soviet-backed regime.

A U.S. State Department spokesman in Washington, Joe Reap, called the report "nonsense." He added: "We have never supplied chemical weapons of any sort" to the Afghan rebels.

Tass, saying it was quoting from the Afghan news agency Bakhtar, wrote: "Washington does not stop at using the dirtiest methods, including supplies for counter-revolutionary scum of barbarous chemical weapons that are used by bandits against Afghan civilians."

An estimated 105,000 Soviet troopers are in Afghanistan supporting the Marxist regime of President Babrak Karmal. They entered the country in December 1979 as the rebels were gaining victories over government troops.

Survivors

FARNBOROUGH, England (AP) — The two-man crew and a passenger on a military transport walked away unhurt after their plane crashed at an air show and caught fire before thousands of spectators.

The twin turbo-prop, Canadian-designed De Havilland Buffalo had put on a two-minute flying display and was demonstrating its short-landing ability when it hit the ground after what appeared to be a too-steep descent.

Its wheels came off and bounced away. First came sparks, followed by a sheet of flame and a cloud of black smoke. Debris flew through the air.

Capt. Bill Loverseed, co-pilot Brad Fowles and passenger Eric Lane left the wreck uninjured.

Work Release Plan Helps Offenders Find Assurance

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — Trying to reconnect with the world they left behind is perhaps one of the most frightening aspects for people leaving any kind of reform institution.

But a work release program instituted by the Fountain Correctional Center for Women offers its residents a chance to get back into the world, earn a little money, and achieve for themselves a measure of self-assurance and pride.

Beverly Henderson, 27, who has been in the program for about four months, began working at a local sewing factory and is now a waitress. She said her first job gave her the opportunity to prove herself and to prove what she can do.

"I got a feeling of responsibility," she said. "My manager and my supervisor gave me a chance to show myself as being trustworthy and I enjoyed the work. I changed jobs because I was interested in getting something a bit more permanent."

Alex Brown, who owns the restaurant Henderson works in, also employs two other Fountain residents as waitresses.

"They help cooking the food, serving in line, and they get along real nice with the other workers," he said. "It gives them a little freedom to be out and it seems like they enjoy it."

"I can't think of nothing but good coming of the program. I've had nothing but responsible people and good work."

Program Director Madison Fisher said that as of the end of August, there were 32 residents in Fountain's work release program. His goal is to find jobs for 50 residents and increase the number of employers participating in the program.

"It gives the women a feeling that someone cares for them," Fisher said. "Of course, they're nervous when they go out — I guess I would be too — but they take a lot of pride in their jobs and try to do their best. All of the employers say they do an outstanding job."

Ms. Henderson, who expects to be released in December, said "work release is a privilege and gives you something to strive toward."

"Work release is a privilege and gives you something to strive toward," she said.

This program, among many others, was started when the Richard T. Fountain Youth Center for juvenile male offenders was charged to the Fountain Correctional Center for Women on March 1. It is the first minimum custody center for women operated by the state of North Carolina. Only women 16 and older, convicted of non-assaulted crimes, such as larceny or writing bad checks, are assigned to Fountain.

Fountain is now an advancement center for the women residents, the last stop before they are released. As a result, the facility offers an array of community-based programs to enhance the growth and potential rehabilitation of the center's population.

Soon after Fountain made the transition, Fisher sent a letter to 50 businesses in Rocky Mount informing them of the program. He said the general response was one of curiosity and requesting more information.

The residents are paid minimum wage, out of which they must pay Fountain $5 a day for room and board, and $1 a day for transportation. All taxes are taken out.

IN THE STATE

Teacher Plan

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Board of Education was to consider a five-step career development plan today for teachers that the board says is intended to "attract the best candidates into teaching."

The plan would raise teachers' pay to $45,696 for instructors with 31 years of experience. The highest salary for a North Carolina teacher now is $24,840 a year.

It's a revised version of a career ladder proposal submitted to the board in June. The revised plan would allow teachers to move up the ladder more quickly than the previous plan.

DWI Ruling

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A District Court judge has ruled that part of the Safe Roads Act applying to teen-age provisional licenses is unconstitutional.

Robert M. Brown, an assistant district attorney, appealed Tuesday's decision by Judge J.W.H. Roberts to Forsyth Superior Court. Roberts is one of several District Court judges in the state who have ruled the same way.

Roberts dismissed a charge of driving after consuming alcohol that had been brought against R.G. Pendergrass, 17, of Pfafftown, who has a provisional license.

Supervisors Cut

ASHEVILLE (AP) — The Reagan Administration is working to cut down on the number of supervisors in the federal government hierarchy, the director of the U.S. Office of Personnel says.

Donald Devine's prepared speech, which was sponsored by the Asheville Chamber of Commerce, was delivered Tuesday by his regional representative after Devine was grounded by storms in Baltimore.

A.M. "Bud" Wandling quoted Devine as saying, "We found the number of employees in supervisory or management positions was 36 percent of the work force — compared with less than 10 percent in private industry. We have been working to reduce this."

Wandling said the government work force had been reduced by 100,000 in the Reagan administration years to 2.1 million — not counting defense personnel.

Ammonia Leak

GREENSBORO (AP) — About 150 employees from the Industries of the Blind were evacuated Tuesday when ammonia began leaking from a neighboring ice plant, authorities say.

Ammonia began leaking from the Ice Delivery Co. plant when workers who were tearing down the facility hit a line to a 20-gallon ammonia tank with a bulldozer.

The employees were evacuated about noon and were allowed to return to work about an hour later.

Reward Paid

RALEIGH (AP) — The Council of State has approved a $5,000 reward for a Sanford woman whose description of a man who raped and beat her two years ago led to the arrest of the same man for murdering a Harnett County woman.

The council's approval came after it had twice delayed action on a recommendation by Gov. Jim Hunt while other claims to the reward were investigated.

The council approved the reward payment to Carol T. Albright, 33, after Hunt recommended that she and another unidentified claimant receive $5,000 each.

Mrs. Albright had filed suit against Hunt in June, charging breach of contract after the state refused to pay the reward offered in a 1981 murder. She said she was entitled to the money because information she gave authorities about her 1982 rape and beating led to the arrest of Steven Eugene Martin, who was convicted both in her assault and the 1981 murder of Mavis Jewel Thorne of Harnett County.

Trial Begins

RALEIGH (AP) — A Wake County Superior Court jury has begun hearing a $6 million lawsuit brought against Carolina Power & Light Co. by a young man crippled by a massive electrical shock.

Lawyers described Tuesday the events of Nov. 11, 1980, that culminated in a sudden rainstorm and a 13,200-volt shock from a power line. The suit contends the accident left Daniel Miller so burned that he lost both forearms and his right leg.

Miller was a temporary employee of William C. Pace II, owner of a kennel in northeastern Wake County, when he was electrocuted when his ladder hit a power line.

Department Head

RALEIGH (AP) — Dr. John A. Bailey, professor of mechanical and aerospace engineering at North Carolina State University, has been named head of the N.C. State Department of Mechanical and Aerospace Engineering.

Bailey, a member of the engineering faculty since 1967, fills a vacancy left by Dr. Ralph A. Burton, who returned to teaching and research in the department.

The Mechanical and Aerospace Engineering Department had an enrollment this fall of more than 1,600 undergraduate and graduate students.

Youths Drown

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Two Charlotte teen-agers drowned Monday in Lake Norman while two friends, who tried unsuccessfully to help, looked on.

Jeff Deese and Phil Cheek, both 17, had been playing football with friends before deciding to take a swim at a Lake Norman boat landing about three miles west of Mooresville.

Mooresville Rescue Squad Chief Jimmy Deaton said signs at the area prohibit swimming, but it is still a popular recreation spot.

Sand Saved

MANTEO (AP) — Along with the lights, the equipment and the costumes, working crews from "The Lost Colony," the nation's oldest outdoor drama, are packing away over a ton of sand, which will be used next year on the outdoor stage.

The drama closed its season Saturday. Spokeswoman Lynn Summerall said the sand, which can be blown away by winter winds, has been costly to replace. It was decided to pack the sand and reuse it.

Summerall said the 1984 drama was seen by more than 91,000 people in 68 performances this year, a record high.

Still Closed

CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. (AP) — Cape Hatteras Lighthouse, closed to visitors since May, will be closed indefinitely while engineering experts try to determine how serious cracks in its wall and deterioration to cast iron parts is.

"The problems were worse than we thought," said National Park Supt. Tom Hartman. "There are two vertical cracks in the inside walls, moisture is seeping through the interior and the metal brackets anchoring the staircase are severely eroded."

Judge Named

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt has appointed Lamar Gudger as a special Superior Court judge.

Gudger was named Tuesday to replace Charles C. Lamm Jr., who is now a resident Superior Court judge in the 24th Judicial District.

Gudger, 64, is a native of Asheville. He is a former state representative and state senator. He served as a congressman for four years. His term will expire June 30, 1987.

Scientists Cited

RALEIGH (AP) — Two scientists at North Carolina State University have been selected for William Neal Reynolds Distinguished Professorships.

Dr. R. Wayne Skaggs, professor of biological and agriculture engineering and soil science; and Dr. Harold E. Swaisgood, professor of food science and biochemistry were named at a luncheon for Reynolds professors and university officials.

The professorships were established in 1950 when the William Neal Reynolds Foundation gave NCSU 10,000 shares of Reynolds Industries stock to the school.

Expansion

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Museum of Art has been in its new home less than two years, but museum trustees are already discussing plans to build a new wing at a cost of $7.5 million to $10 million.

At a board meeting Tuesday, the 15 trustees present voted to establish capital construction priorities through the end of the decade. The biggest item on the list could be a two-story west wing to expand the museum's exhibition space.

Campaign Expenses Include Little Things

By The Associated Press
Gov. Jim Hunt pays a higher salary to his employees in his U.S. Senate campaign, but his Republican opponent, Sen. Jesse Helms, hires more people.

The figures come from federal campaign reports that show the most expensive U.S. Senate race in the country has its share of mundane expenses.

The Helms campaign payroll totaled $81,300 for 107 workers in June for an average net salary of $760 each that month. Additional payments for group insurance, Social Security and state and federal taxes added $30,000.

Reports show the Hunt campaign employed 52 people in June with salaries totaling more than $52,000, an average of $1,000 a month. Payroll taxes and insurance added another $23,000.

Chunks of money also go toward keeping the lights burning, the candidate moving and the office running. Federal campaign records show that the Helms' campaign, which had spent a total of $9.3 million as of June 30, spent about $580,000 on administrative operations, travel and supplies.

Hunt, who had spent a total of $3.9 million in the same period, spent about $460,000 on operating expenses.

The office equipment also runs up the tab. The Hunt campaign took out a $76,500 loan last fall to purchase an IBM computer system. About $10,600 went for two computer terminals, $7,571 for a word processor and another $4,280 for personal computers.

Rental of copiers, computer printers, typewriters and maintenance cost the Hunt camp $13,254 in May and June. Furniture rental for the Raleigh office costs $550 a month. Rent adds $1,325 a month and the

Tobacco Allotment Sales Up

RALEIGH (AP) — At a time when many are predicting the demise of tobacco, the state director of the U.S. Agricultural and Stabilization Service says he is surprised to see so many farmers investing in the chance to grow more.

The comment by John Cooper followed his announcement Tuesday that North Carolina flue-cured tobacco farmers have bought about 18,000 acres of allotment from non-growers in the two years since Congress decided that only growers should hold allotments.

"We're showing there's a group of farmers that have confidence in the program, and these days so many people don't have confidence in anything," said Cooper.

The allotment sales from about 18,500 farms, representing about 32.7 million pounds of marketing quota, were first authorized by the No Net Cost Tobacco Program Act of 1982.

The sales by non-growers in the 12 months ended June 15 were double the pace of the previous year, Cooper said.

"The sales of allotments and quota have proven to be a positive step in making the tobacco program stronger because we're putting tobacco back into the hands of the growers," he said.

Cooper said farmers buying allotments were paying from $1.25 a pound in the Piedmont to $3.50 a pound in parts of the Eastern Belt. The ASCS is not involved in the financial details of such transactions, he said.

Before 1982, farmers could only lease and transfer allotments — the right to grow the state's biggest cash crop and receive federal price supports.

The 1982 legislation set 1987 as the last year for lease and transfer of allotments and December 1984 as the deadline for corporations to sell off allotments they once rented out.

Wake County led the state in sales, Cooper said, with 1,580 acres and 2.8 million pounds trading hands. Guilford County was second with 785 acres and 1.3 million pounds.

Hospitalized

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — Surrealist painter Salvador Dali, hospitalized for burns covering 18 percent of his body, remains in serious condition, his doctors say.

The 80-year-old Dali was taken to El Pilar clinic Friday, one day after a fire broke out in his bedroom at his home, Pubol Castle, in northeastern Spain. Friends attributed the fire to an electrical short-circuit.

The painter had at first refused to leave the castle, where his Russian-born wife Gala is buried.

Dali's doctors said the artist also is being treated for malnutrition. He has a respiratory condition and has been in frail health in recent years.

Helms has access to the National Congressional Club's staff and computer services. Jefferson Marketing Inc. functions as the campaign's advertising agency. But some aspects of the Helms campaign's payment for those services have been challenged by Democrats.

Then there are the not-so-usual expenses — like the Hunt campaign's $3,764 bill for Holiday Inn rooms at the Democratic National Convention in San Francisco. The Helms campaign spent $8,100 for rooms at the Plaza of America for its entourage at the Republican National Convention in Dallas.

Debate Set Sunday

By The Associated Press
A spokesman for Gov. Jim Hunt says Hunt will emphasize several new issues in his second debate with Sen. Jesse Helms, and a Helms spokesman says the senator may take a different approach in this debate.

Hunt has promised to emphasize issues such as education, the environment and tax fairness. But campaign spokesman Will Marshall said the governor is not preparing differently for the second meeting.

Helms for Senate campaign spokesman Claude Allen said Helms may take a different approach in this debate.

"This time Gov. Hunt will not get away with making misstatements as he did the last time," Allen said.

Meanwhile, the moderator of the second debate predicts there will be "a little more direct confrontation" in it than the first because the number of questions asked have been cut by two.

The one-hour debate will be broadcast Sunday from WWAY-TV in Wilmington, beginning at 7 p.m. The moderator again will be George Diab, president-elect of the N.C. Association of Broadcasters and president of WWAY-TV.

Diab said the candidates will stand for the debate. The first confrontation came at the University of North Carolina Center for Public Television in Raleigh, where candidates sat behind a large desk.

The meeting was scheduled to be one of three regional and two statewide debates.

Talent Hunt Planned To Find Actors For New Stooges

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Stooges are coming! The Stooges are coming!

Not in reruns. Not in 30-year-old movies. Larry, Moe and Curly are scheduled to return in a brand new comedy for theaters. "003" — a cut-rate, slapstick version of the James Bond spy capers.

How is that possible? The three original Stooges have died: Curly Howard in 1952, and Moe Howard and Larry Fine in 1975.

"We will launch a nationwide talent search for actors to replace Moe, Curly and Larry," said Norman Maurer, who is masterminding the Stooze revival.

He is ideally suited for the job. He wrote the stories and produced four Stooze features and directed two of them. He is also Moe Howard's son-in-law.

Columbia Pictures, which made millions from the Three Stooges since they started making shorts for the studio just 50 years ago, has given the go-ahead for "003." If the new movie is a hit, more will follow. George Gallo is writing a screenplay, which Maurer expects in a week.

"Then we'll launch the talent search and work up a budget," said the producer in an interview. "I expect the cost will be in the medium range — $8 to $10 million. That astounds me. I made the last Stooges features for under $400,000."

Filming is expected to take place next year in England and Mexico, where the spy adventure takes place.

If "003" comes off, it will mark another chapter in the unending saga of the three knockabout comics who have had an irresistible appeal for two or three generations of Americans.

It all started with a vaudeville comic named Ted Healy, a wild Irishman with an original comic style. In 1922, he hired a two brothers, Moe and Shemp Howard, as victims of his violent comedy. In 1925, a violinist named Larry Fine joined the act. Later Shemp left to be a single performer and his place was taken by the melon-headed brother Curly.

Ted Healy and His Three Stooges moved on to Hollywood, then in 1934 Healy went off on his own (he died in 1937). Moe, Curly and Larry began their long association with Columbia. After Curly's death, Shemp rejoined the Stooges. He died after three years, and his place was taken in turn by Joe Besser and Joe DeRita.

"The big popularity of the Stooges came after World War II, when the shorts were released on television," Maurer said. "The kids of the Baby Boom went crazy over the Stooges. They're adults now and their children are now fans. There's a big audience out there for our movie."

STOOGE HEAVEN — The Three Stooges, from left, Curly Howard, Moe Howard and Larry Fine, ham it up in a scene from one of their "Three Stooges" episodes. Although all three have since died, a nationwide talent search will be launched for actors to replace them in a new film, "003," a slapstick version of the James Bond spy capers. (AP Laserphoto)

Brynnner Schedules New Medical Tests

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A national tour of "The King and I" starring Yul Brynner will have to bypass Minneapolis next month because the veteran stage and screen actor will be undergoing medical tests, the Orpheum Theater announced.

The theater said Tuesday that it had canceled performances of "The King and I" from Oct. 1 to Oct. 21 because Brynner must undergo medical examinations in California and Europe.

"We were told that Mr. Brynner will be undergoing examinations with specialists," said Mark Zelenovich, marketing, advertising and public relations agent for the Twin City Theater League. The appearances were part of a national tour of the show.

If the 64-year-old Brynner is able to continue the tour, Zelenovich said an attempt will be made to arrange other dates at the Orpheum.

Brynner was diagnosed as having lung cancer last year, but underwent treatment and said in an interview in December that the disease had been arrested.

'Tightrope' Holds First In Earnings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Suspense, supernatural high jinks and sex dominated the final weekend of what is shaping up as the biggest summer in film industry history.

Clint Eastwood's "Tightrope" held first place for a third straight weekend even though its gross of $7.1 million for the four-day Labor Day holiday was slightly down from the previous three-day weekend.

But feisty "Ghostbusters" almost regained the top spot by scaring up $6.8 million, nearly $2 million more than a weekend earlier.

"Bolero," a sexually explicit adventure starring Bo Derek, scored $4.6 million in its maiden outing to replace "Red Dawn" at third place. But critics predicted a short theatrical life for the film, which was released without a rating because its raciness supposedly would have earned it an X.

The review in the trade publication Daily Variety began: "There's a real good cartoon at the Hollywood Pacific this week in which a horse does funny things with Woody Woodpecker, followed by 'Bolero' in which Bo Derek does funny things with a horse, her hair and a couple of men. Judging from the audience's reaction, the cartoon will be around longer."

The weekend's other newcomer, Tri-Star's "Flashpoint" starring Treat Williams and Kris Kristofferson, was unable to crack the top 10 with a take of $1.9 million.

- Final figures for the summer aren't yet in, but most observers expect that total ticket sales for the 50-odd summer releases will surpass the $3.77 billion reported last year in Daily Variety.

MISSION ENGLAND

When future generations study 20th Century history, "Mission England" will possibly be viewed as one of the great Christian events of our day as Billy Graham held forty-one meetings in six major English cities. In rain, wind and summer heat, attendance records were shattered everywhere. 1.2 million people came; 100,000 responded to Dr. Graham's invitation! Tonight see "the miracle of the century!"

Watching the Watchers

At the start of a new television season, viewers in the 83.8 million U.S. households with television sets may be wondering how their favorite shows will fare in the Nielsen ratings. "The Niensens" estimate the percentage of these households watching particular broadcasts. According to Nielsen, women over 55 watched the most television in 1981. But female teens watched the least. During the 1983-84 season, the TV series with the highest average rating was "Dallas."

Two Years Of Pain, Struggle In Search For Missing Paperboy

By MARGARET STAFFORD
Associated Press Writer
WEST DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — They sold candy on street corners to raise money. They sent posters around the country. They hired private eyes. They testified before Congress. And still their boy is missing.

Wednesday will mark two years since Noreen and John Gosch's 12-year-old son Johnny set out to deliver his Sunday newspaper route and never returned.

"Wednesday's going to be a terrible day ... a long, awful day," Mrs. Gosch said in an interview. "You always remember, but on Sept. 5, it hurts a little more."

The Gosches have been leaders in a growing nationwide effort to educate Americans about missing children but, Mrs. Gosch said, "The bottom line is that my son is still missing. That's what it all boils down to for me."

Gosch has said he and his wife would not cease their search "until our bones are dust and we can't move."

Their search took on extra incentive in August when another Des Moines newsboy disappeared, under eerily similar circumstances.

Eugene Wade Martin, 14, had gone to a street corner early Aug. 12 to pick up his copies of the Des Moines Sunday Register for delivery. Witnesses saw him talking to a man.

It was almost a carbon copy of Johnny's disappearance. He had also gone to a street corner to pick up his papers. Witnesses reported seeing him talking to a man who seemed drunk or high on drugs.

Despite searches, reward offers of more than $100,000 and quick police action, there are no solid leads in the Martin case.

The major difference in the cases, said Mrs. Gosch, was how police and townspeople immediately responded to Eugene's disappearance. The Gosches have been bitterly critical of law officers for refusing to treat Johnny's disappearance as an abduction until the trail was cold. They said police didn't start looking for their son for 72 hours.

"It was an atrocity that they didn't look for Johnny Gosch like they did for Gene Martin," Mrs. Gosch said. "At least the Martins didn't have to go through what we did, at least they didn't have the added burden of fighting the system."

One reason for the quick attention in the Martin case was "Johnny Gosch bill," an Iowa law passed this year making it mandatory that police search for missing persons as soon as they are reported.

Law enforcement officials say they are continuing their search for Johnny.

"We absolutely are still involved in that case," said FBI agent John Evans. "Whenever we receive any information, it's covered. We are doing everything humanly possible to get that child returned to his parents."

Both Evans and Sgt. Lyle McKinney of the West Des Moines Police Department said they were working on the assumption that Johnny is alive.

"I can't afford the luxury of theories about whether he's alive or dead," McKinney said. "We're still working on it. Obviously, the tips have slowed down, but we still get information from all over and we check on it."

Reported sightings of Johnny Gosch still come in. The boy was reportedly seen in Florida and Corpus Christi, Texas, last year. In February, his mother said a boy who sounded like Johnny called three times in one night, sounding drugged or injured. The calls were too brief to trace.

Mrs. Gosch said the descriptions of the boy believed to be Johnny say he now has long hair, walks with a limp, has slurred speech and is almost 6 feet tall. Each time a sighting is reported, the Gosches' private detective responds. So far, the closest he's come is within four days of the boy — and a man who is with him all the time.

"It's good on the one hand because we know he's alive," Mrs. Gosch said. "But it's frustrating because we can't be there at the same time. Someday, we will be."

The Gosches believe their son was captured for a national child pornography ring. Law officers have told her "stringers" are sent to get young children for pedophiles.

"We've been told these creeps get $12,000 to $20,000 a head, depending on how satisfactory the children are," Mrs. Gosch said. "Hey, the risks are pretty high if they get caught, so the pay has to be good."

The authorities have not officially linked the cases of the two missing paperboys, but the public has. Hundreds of volunteers helped search for both boys after Eugene disappeared.

Mrs. Gosch said she was torn between gratitude for the help and anger that it didn't come sooner. Mostly, she's angry.

"You bet I'm angry," Mrs. Gosch said. "Some people helped us, but a large percentage of the people in Des Moines condemned us. We faced a lot of narrow-mindedness and apathy in this town. It left a bad taste in my mouth."

Dallas Davis, a neighbor, shares the family's anger. "Noreen Gosch has been force-feeding this state for two years about missing children," Ms. Davis said. "But people still sit on their fannies, they still won't believe their children are in trouble."

There are two other Gosch children — Joe and Kristy, both grown — who have also felt the ordeal keenly.

"They are angry too, and frightened that this kind of thing can happen and people can react so cruelly," Mrs. Gosch said.

When Kristy Gosch was selling candy to help raise money for the detectives, a woman spat on her, saying "Your mother is disgusting and I wouldn't do anything to help her."

Mrs. Gosch told of having people watch her while she shopped for groceries, and say things like, "What's she doing buying avocados when her boy is missing?"

At the end of one of Mrs. Gosch's speeches, a man stood up and said he thought she didn't have a son named Johnny and had made the whole thing up to get attention.

"I told him I hoped the next child taken was his," she said. It was the only time she has lost her composure in public.

But Mrs. Gosch is also quick to note the good things that have come along with the bad.

"We have met some wonderful, kind people with whom we never would have known without this," she said. "We have made some positive changes to help the missing children and we're going to push for more."

But the stress takes its toll. The Gosches sometimes "are so tired we feel we can't move another inch."

Art Lover Has View Of Museum

By LAURA A. SALSINI
Associated Press Writer
MILWAUKEE (AP) — From his small, cluttered apartment on Marquette University's campus, Leonard Scheller gazes at the school's new glass and brick art museum.

It's appropriate that the 78-year-old retired copy editor for the Milwaukee Journal should have this view, for he is one of Marquette's most generous art donors. He has given the school a set of 58 prints by the French artist Georges Rouault.

His small apartment was cluttered with newspaper clippings, religious statues and books one recent day. A handful of yellow daisies in a tin can adorned his kitchen table, still littered with crumbs from the morning's breakfast.

Scheller has lived on the campus since he first came to the school as a journalism student almost 60 years ago, and he has lived in his present apartment for the past 16 years.

His love of art was born long after he had graduated and started work. One day, he stumbled across a TV program about Rouault and his somber, charcoal prints and was instantly entranced. When a traveling exhibition of the 58-print "Miserere" series came to Marquette, Scheller went to see it.

"I visited it every day — and it was at Marquette for a few weeks," said Scheller as he sat in his favorite rocking chair with Marquette's insignia inscribed in gold on its back.

Scheller looked like a misplaced owl, with ruffled feathers of white hair and benevolent myopic eyes behind thick gold-rimmed glasses, as he talked about why he loved the simple lines of Rouault's work. "Look at the noses — that's his trademark," he said. "The more an artist can tell you with one line, the more of an artist he is."

Scheller was especially taken by print No. 8, which shows a melancholy clown. The clown reveals a universal aspect of the human character, he said.

"The clown paints himself a face whenever he works," Scheller said, like people who hide behind a mask in their dealings with the world.

After seeing the Marquette exhibit years ago, Scheller decided he wanted a print for himself. He tracked down several art dealers in Paris who dealt in Rouault prints, and eventually collected the "Miserere" series.

His brother asked him to lend the series to St. Louis University's new library for its dedication. But Scheller decided to buy another series and simply give it to the university.

He has donated complete sets of original prints to St. Louis, Marquette and the University of Notre Dame. He also has given prints to 25 Jesuit Universities in the United States and to 12 of the state university campuses in Wisconsin.

Scheller explains his philanthropic mission by saying that he wants others to experience Rouault's work as he has. His Christmas cards are usually miniature versions of the painter's art.

Scheller's devotion to Marquette began years ago, when he entered its College of Journalism. He began his school days in 1925, and never really stopped them.

The former newsman is a fixture at Marquette — especially at its basketball games. He has missed a home game of the Warriors for 20 years. And he frequently has students over for lunch, giving them his famous burgers and strawberry shortcake.

"One time Marquette sent around a questionnaire asking the tenants how long we intended to live here. I put down 'until I die,'" he said with a chuckle.

His father was a farmer in Green Bay, but Scheller was always more interested in writing than reaping. His career aspirations were resolved for good in high school when he won an essay contest in history.

"Then and there, I decided I was going to be a writer," he said. "And, best of all, I've never been sorry."

In college, he worked on the school newspaper, The Marquette Tribune. My beat was the modern language club. You can imagine what kind of exciting stories came out of that meeting."

After his graduation 1929, Scheller worked at several Milwaukee newspapers before joining The Milwaukee Journal's copy desk in 1943. He remained there until 1975.

But his graduation didn't mean the end of his education. Scheller continued taking courses in theology, history and economics at Marquette for about 20 years because, he said, it's "so much fun to learn."

The series he gave to Marquette is now tucked away in the bowels of the school's library, where much of the university's nearly 5,000-piece art collection is being housed until its permanent home is dedicated on Nov. 11.

Adventurers Sail Viking Ship Across The Atlantic

BOSTON (AP) — Six adventurers sailed a replica of a 1,000-year-old Viking ship across the North Atlantic and while battling high winds and threatening waves discovered what one of them called "a key to history."

The 57-foot, single-sail ship left Norway June 17 and arrived in Boston Monday. Following a 10th Century Viking trading route, the sailors said they found Viking artifacts along the way and have learned quite a bit about type of ship used by Viking explorer Leif Ericsson.

"Most importantly, we have learned that this is a very seaworthy ship," said Ragnar Thorseth, 36, a writer who is leading the expedition.

"We conclusively proved that Viking ships can sail up to 45 degrees into the wind using a square sail," he said. "That disproves the theory that they had to use oars to turn their ships when there was no tail wind."

"We also found that the rudder on Viking ships was not nearly as important in steering as was the sail. That may sound small to you, but when you put all these small things together, you have a whole, a key to history," he told The Boston Herald.

The ship, Saga Siglar, which means sailer of the sagas, is an exact replica of a knarr, or deep sea trading ships, used in the 10th and 11th centuries. Archeologists recovered one in 1959 from a fjord in Denmark.

The replica weighs 27 tons and is made of Danish oak and Norwegian pine. "We worked with our hands, using the old tools — tools that the Vikings would have used," Jacob Bjorkedal, 29, a member of the crew told The Boston Globe.

His father is a master shipbuilder in Norway.

The ship does have some modern devices — compass, radio, radar and a 22-horsepower diesel engine.

A Boston Globe reporter, who joined the ship in Halifax, Nova Scotia, said that while the crew fished for food along the way, there also were chocolate bars, soda and Canadian beer on board.

"No man escapes his own time," the Globe quoted Thorseth as saying.

"No matter if we have radio or radar, we are still a small, open boat on a big ocean," he said. "The sea, the wind are just as dangerous as they were in Viking times."

The ship ran into a storm with 70-knot winds and 45-foot waves between Greenland and Labrador.

"I knew theoretically that the Saga Siglar could survive high winds and heavy seas," Thorseth said. "But when we began taking on water, I felt doubt, yes, and fear as well..."

The Globe reported that he lashed his 11-year-old son, Erik, to his side and ordered the crew into survival suits. "I was thinking, 'My God, what have I led us into? What are we doing out here?'" he is quoted as saying.

When he was 20, Thorseth rowed alone 100 miles across the North Sea to the Shetland Islands of Scotland, the first person to do so. Two years ago, he led the first Norwegian expedition to the North Pole, and he has traveled to remote parts of the Arctic.

"There is not enough adventure left in the world," he said. "If I do nothing else in my life, even if I die broke and broken, I will at least have had an exciting life."

Officials Replaced

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Chancellor Fred Sinowatz has replaced his controversial finance minister and three other fellow Socialists in the Cabinet.

Sinowatz, who formed his coalition government with the small Freedom Party 15 months ago, said this week that the realignment was necessary "to ensure the efficiency of the federal government."

He denied reports that ousted Finance Minister Herbert Salcher, criticized sharply by newspapers for his tax reform plans, was doomed in the government after he supplied the state prosecutor with evidence against his predecessor, Hannes Androsch, three weeks ago.

A judge has launched a preliminary investigation into alleged tax evasion by Androsch in financing a private villa. Two prior revenue audits found no wrongdoing by the former minister.

Salcher was replaced by Franz Vranitzky, the director general of Laenderbank, Austria's second-largest commercial bank.

Foreign Minister Erwin Lanc was succeeded by Vienna Mayor Leopold Gratz. Transport Minister Karl Lausacker was replaced by State Secretary Ferdinand Lacina, a 42-year-old expert on nationalized industries. And Family Minister Elfriede Karl was replaced by Gertrude Froehlich Sandner, a deputy mayor of Vienna.

New Movie Slated For Lowcountry

By BRUCE M. SMITH
Associated Press Writer
NORTH CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — The $2.4 million television movie "Rearview Mirror" starring Lee Remick will be filmed in the South Carolina Lowcountry over the next six weeks, state officials announced Monday.

Production will begin Sept. 10 and some 175 local residents will be employed as extras, said Lt. Gov. Mike Daniel. In addition, an undetermined number of local residents will be hired as crew members. About half of the production's budget will be spent in South Carolina, he added.

The film, which concerns a nurse who is abducted by a pair of escaped convicts, is expected to air on NBC by the end of the year, according to Paul Freeman, the producer of the Sunn Classics Pictures production.

Scenes will be shot in Charleston, North Charleston, Berkeley County, Johns Island, Sullivan's Island and Mount Pleasant, he said.

Daniel said the film is important because Sunn Classics is a leading film producer and it's important that the state and its citizens offer the firm a warm welcome.

The production could also mean more business for the state's growing film industry down the road, he added.

"Many of those associated with 'Rearview Mirror' will be a part of the production of 'North-South,' a $30 million mini-series for ABC television to be filmed in January of 1985," he said.

"Because South Carolinians are competitors and want to bring this exciting and positive industry to our state, we want that project filmed in South Carolina as well," Daniel said.

Freeman is also associated with "North-South," a Civil War epic. He said crews have scouted locations in the Lowcountry but no decision has been made on where the film will be produced.

Bud Ferillo, of the lieutenant governor's office, said the announcement of the "Rearview Mirror" means that the state has attracted $43 million worth of film productions during the past four years.

Veteran Composer Dies After Illness

NEW YORK (AP) — Arthur Schwartz, composer of "Dancing in the Dark," "That's Entertainment" and other songs for Broadway and films, died Monday after a long illness, according to the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers. He was 83.

Schwartz, a long-time board member at ASCAP, died at his home in Kintnersville, Pa., according to ASCAP spokesman Ken Sunshine.

Born in Brooklyn, N.Y., Schwartz started playing the harmonica at an early age, wrote little songs and taught himself piano. He wrote and produced shows while at summer camp, wrote college songs while attending New York University and then wrote popular songs while attending Columbia Law School.

His first published song was "Baltimore, Md., You're the Only Doctor for Me." It was published in 1923 and paid him $8 in royalties.

He continued to write songs while practicing law, and finally gave up the legal profession for music in 1928 at the behest of lyricist Lorenz Hart.

That same year, he met Howard Dietz, his long-time collaborator who died last year. Their first show, produced in 1929, was "The Little Show," starring Fred Allen and Clifton Webb. Among the show's songs were "Little Old New York" and "I Guess I'll Have to Change My Plan."

In 1931, Schwartz and Dietz did the music and lyrics for "The Band Wagon," a major success that was twice adapted to the screen. Among the songs were "Dancing in the Dark" and "I Love Louisa."

Through the 1930s, they continued to write for Broadway, including such songs as "Louisiana Hayride" and "You and the Night and the Music." But box office successes became more rare.

Schwartz turned to Hollywood, writing songs for the screen and producing several film musicals, including "Cover Girl" and "Night and Day."

In 1951, Schwartz returned to the stage with a musical adaptation of "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," starring Shirley Booth. The show was a hit, with songs like "Love is the Reason" and "I'll Buy You a Star."

Schwartz continued to write. In 1982, he published a song with choreographer George Balanchine — Schwartz wrote the words to "The World is Turning Fast" and Balanchine wrote the music.

Schwartz is survived by his son, Jonathan, a New York radio personality.

Gains Reported On Construction Spending In July

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spending on new construction edged up 0.7 percent in July, reversing a decline of the previous month, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said that total construction spending rose to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $311.4 billion in July following a decline of 0.5 percent in June.

The meager increase, however, was far below the robust hikes of more than 6 percent turned in during the first two months of the year. Analysts have said the construction industry has been hurt by rising interest rates with the weakness in recent months symptomatic of a slowing of the overall economy.

Construction of single-family homes was down for the second straight month, falling 1.9 percent from the June rate.

Spending on apartment buildings rose, however, climbing 7.8 percent after dropping 3.3 percent in June.

Non-residential private construction was up a slight 0.8 percent in July to $77.4 million, calculated annually, after falling 2 percent the month before. The increase included gains in industrial, office and other commercial building.

Public construction was down 1 percent to an annualized total of $57 million following an increase of 3.6 percent in June. State and local construction remained essentially unchanged but federal construction declined 9 percent.

The total construction figure was up 14.4 percent from a year ago. During the first seven months of the year, $168.9 billion of new construction was put in place, a 20 percent increase over construction spending for the first seven months of 1983.

James Nance Dead At 91

PURCELL, Okla. (AP) — James Clark Nance, who built a newspaper empire in Oklahoma and served 34 years in the state Legislature, including a tenure as Speaker of the House, died Monday. He was 91.

Nance purchased the Weatherford Democrat for $500. He and his late partner, Joe McBride, at one point owned newspapers in Walters, Anadarko, Purcell, Clinton, Hobart, Mangum, Alva, Sulpur, Henryetta, Hominy and Norman.

Nance was first elected to the Oklahoma House in 1920. During his second term, he was named to the investigating committee that brought charges against Gov. J.C. Walton, who later was impeached.

Nance later resigned from the Legislature and went to Lubbock, Texas, where he was involved into another newspaper venture.

He returned to Oklahoma and was elected to the Legislature in 1927. He was chosen Speaker of the House in 1929 and presided over the impeachment of Gov. Henry Simpson Johnston.

Nance served in the House until 1932 when he was elected to the state Senate. After one four-year term, Nance returned to the House.

Nance was re-election to the Senate in 1938 and served for 12 years. He was elected president pro tempore in 1947. He left the Senate in 1949, but returned to politics in 1952 with his election to the House and his election again as Speaker.

It was during the 1953 session when Nance made famous his "pocket veto" of a bill. The Legislature passed a bill Nance did not like, and when the governor's office went to look for it for his signature, the bill could not be found.

After the 15-day deadline passed for gubernatorial action, Nance discovered he'd "accidentally" stuck the bill in his pocket and took it home with him.

Nance is survived by two daughters. Services will be held Thursday.

Long State

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — The distance across the breadth of the state of Texas is about 800 miles, according to the Rand McNally "Road Atlas."

It says the straightest route across the state is virtually due west from the eastern border near Shreveport, La., past Dallas and through the center of the state, to El Paso on the western border.

If a motorist wanted to drive it, the trip would take just under approximately 18 hours of continuous driving, the atlas says.

HAPPEN YEARLY

GOLDEN, Col. (AP) — Roughly 60 times a year for the past nine years, a significant earthquake measuring 6.5 or above on the Richter scale has shaken the earth, often causing considerable damage.

Major quakes registering 7.0 to 7.9 occur on an average of 18 times a year and great quakes, 8.0 and above, happen yearly, according to the National Earthquake Information Center.

Sculpting Lets Worker Relax

By PHYLLIS GUTH
 Allentown Morning Call
 ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Jack Korbobo sees sculpting as "a way to relax and get away from this crazy world we're in."
 The Chicago native should know. He's employed full time as a mechanic at the Allentown plant of Mack Trucks Inc., and he spends an equal number of hours at his sculpting hobby.

His creativity becomes evident the moment one enters his south Allentown home. Framed ceramic faces on stretched canvas adorn one living room wall; two heads sculpted by Korbobo stand on the opposite side of the room.
 Facing the entrance is a star with a lotus flower in its center — the symbol of a California religious group called the Voice of Astarte. Next to the star is a colorful butterfly that looks very modern, but was actually created using a century-old technique once employed at a Bucks County tile works.

Korbobo studied sculpture for more than 10 years under Richard Lieberman at the Baum Art School.

Lieberman notes that his former student is "very creative" and has a good sense of humor which he says, is very important in art. If he works hard, he'll arrive, Lieberman predicts.

Korbobo didn't set out to be a sculptor, though. What he wanted to do, he says, was create several lanterns for his Japanese garden after he learned that the cost of ready-made ones would run close to $100.

He began studying pottery with Raymond Gallucci and completed not only the lanterns, at a cost of $3.50, but also an unusual interior lamp and numerous other pieces. Two years later, he made the switch to sculpture.

C Leslie Cmth, a long-time friend of Korbobo who sells the artist's work in his store, describes his creations as "refreshing, new and exciting."

"It's been very rewarding to me," Korbobo says of his avocation, looking around the living room and the adjoining dining area, alive with color and texture of his work. Examples of his pottery hang from the exposed beams in the kitchen and line the cabinet tops.

Decorating the wall in another room are the heads of a man and a woman, literally bursting out of stretched canvas. Over the couch in his den is a montage he made casting the faces of several people in potters' plaster.

A sculpture he takes particular pride in is the head of Christ, which he has worked on intermittently for several years. He plans to donate the piece to his church when he's finished.

A related sideline for Korbobo is the sculpting of company logos, a venture he says began when William Devaney, president of Stanley Vidmar Inc., ordered more than two dozen of the corporation's honeycomb-and-bee logos from him. Korbobo also has done the logos of the Bank of Pennsylvania and other firms.

Korbobo's attached garage serves as his studio. He works first with a molding compound to create his pieces. From the original sculpture, he makes a mold by coating it with more applications of latex. The finished product is cast in Hydrostone.

At the end of his driveway, Korbobo has an unusual concrete sculpture weighing 3 1/2 tons — the largest he has ever made. A year in the making, the piece — 92 inches at its highest point — was placed there in 1977 and is supported by concrete rods that extend 40 inches into the ground.

Korbobo says he has no favorites among his creations, but admits he hates to part with his pieces. "You become attached to them," he says.

The artist says his hobby will become a full-time occupation after his eventual retirement from Mack. "I'm too ambitious to retire," he says of the prospect of just taking it easy.

Kittens Touched Thief's Heart

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — A box full of kittens can do the job of a watchdog, says a local business director who learned that a warm heart can deter crime as well as a fierce bark.

A thief broke into Media Works over the weekend, but had a change of heart when he saw a box of kittens that the company's creative director, Kyle Edgell, had brought in after finding them in an alley, Ms. Edgell said Monday.

"I don't know who you are," the thief wrote in a note to Media Works employees, "but you seem to be very nice people, all of you."

"I can feel the love and energy in these rooms. I thought to take as much as possible, but when I saw those kittens ... I could not."

"My family is in need of money. That is why I am doing this."

"Please forgive me what I did take. I understand if you don't."

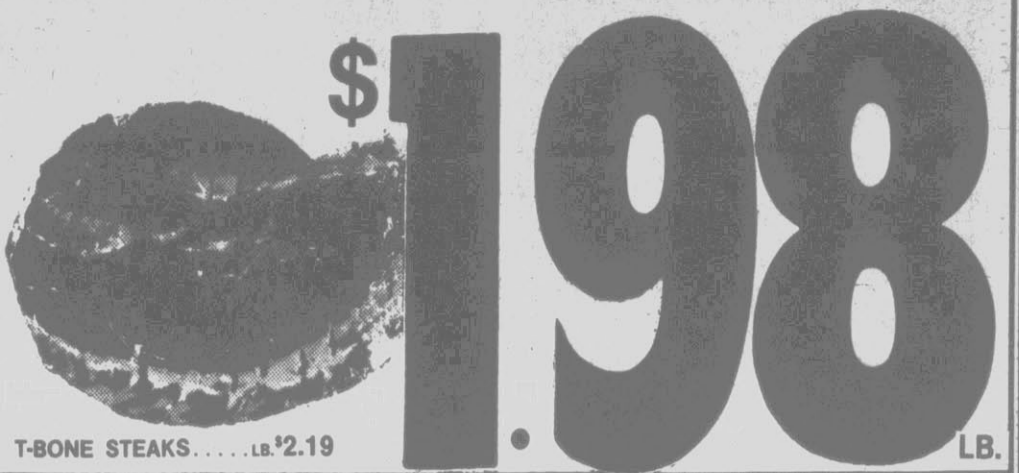

The burglar took a pistol used as a prop, but he refrained from taking valuable recording equipment.

PHARMACY

Are you paying $7⁰⁰ for a $3⁵⁰ prescription?

How Can You Be Assured the Quality of a Generic Drug? By the dependability and integrity of the professional pharmacist and the store where you shop. We at Kroger are dedicated to serving you with dependable products at the lowest possible prices consistent with the highest quality drugs.

How Much Will You Save With a Generic Prescription? Your savings can be as much as 50% and even more, depending upon the drug involved! In most cases, when the brand-name drug is replaced by a generic, the savings are substantial!

Can All Prescriptions Be Filled With Generics? Many, but not all, prescriptions could be filled with generic drugs. Your Kroger Pharmacist will be glad to tell you if a generic equivalent is available for your particular medication.
