Hurricane Warnings Posted For Coast

By MIKE McQUEEN

Associated Press Writer
JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Diana blew into a hurricane with 80 mph winds today, lashing Florida's coast with heavy seas and forcing vacationers to flee Georgia resort islands.

School officials canceled classes in some parts of South Carolina and Georgia, and beaches were closed from Florida to North Carolina.

"Only a slight change in course could bring the storm on shore in a few hours," the National Weather Service said.

"Coastal residents in Georgia and South Carolina should be ready for quick action in case the hurricane moves toward the coast unexpectedly," the National Hurricane Center said.

A hurricane warning was posted from north of Brunswick, Ga., to Oregon Inlet, N.C., including Pamlico Sound, the center said. Gale winds extended outward 150 miles to the northeast of the center and 75 miles to the southeast.

At mid-morning, the storm's eye was near latitude 30.8 north and longitude 80.2 west, or about 80 miles east-northeast of Jacksonville and 105 miles south-southeast of Savannah, Ga.

The hurricane was moving northward at 5 mph, slightly off-shore but parallel to the coast, pushing high tides and towering waves into oceanfront areas. The National Hurricane Center said a research plane flying over the storm had recorded highest sustained winds of 80 mph. A tropical storm becomes a hurricane when winds top 75 mph.

A small craft advisory was issued from St. Augustine to Brunswick, and from Virginia Beach, Va., north to Chincoteague, Va.

Tides of 3 to 5 feet above normal were forecast along the coast ahead of the storm and 7 feet above normal if the center moved inland, forecasters said.

Weather service offices in the Carolinas recommended that boat owners remain in port and suggested that coastal residents check medical supplies and batteries in flashlights and radios. Mobile home owners were warned to tie down their structures.

Street flooding in areas of poor drainage were expected in South Carolina and Florida.

Beaches in Dare County, N.C., were closed to swimmers because of rough waters. And beach erosion was reported along northeast Florida.

Diana kept space shuttle Discovery from returning home to Cape Canaveral on schedule, forcing an overnight stay in Oklahoma. The shuttle continued its piggyback ride home to Florida atop a Boeing 747 today.

Classes in Beaufort and Colleton counties in South Carolina were canceled today. Emergency officials set up a 24-hour command post and considered evacuating Hilton Head and Fripp islands.

At least 94 military families near Beaufort were evacuated from their mobile homes, said Gunnery Sgt. Jim Kaufmann of the Parris Island Marine Base.

And officials recommended that Georgia's barrier islands be emptied, while some island businesses taped windows to keep glass from shattering should Diana hurl its punch inland.

"We are going into a voluntary evacuation of low-lying areas and the islands," said Frank May, chief of Civil Defense for Glynn County.

Pitt Could Face Effects Of Storm

By SUE HINSON

Reflector Staff Writer
Depending on what course Hurricane Diana takes in coming hours, Pitt County could be in for heavy winds and possibly some flooding, according to Hal Walker of the N.C. Department of Emergency Management.

Walker, coordinator of emergency management activities for Area A — the 15-county district that includes Pitt, Hyde, Dare, Currituck and other sound-side counties — said that residents of the area should take precautions even though authorities were not sure whether Diana would reach this far inland.

"Inland areas like Pitt County that are pretty far removed from any major body of water like the sounds, usually experience some flooding and wind damage depending on the forward strength and direction of the hurricane," Walker explained. "It's hard, though, to predict what will happen next, because hurricanes are such capricious creatures. They can go in any direction at anytime. They do not move in straight lines like tornados."

Walker said that about the only thing inland residents could do was to secure loose objects in their yards, make sure that boats in the river were secure and move their furniture if their homes were located in a flood-prone area. "There's not really anything anyone can do beyond that because Diana's really so far away," Walker said.

He added that Emergency Management officials will be in contact throughout the duration of the storm and that local bases are prepared to take emergency measures should it become necessary.

In the event assistance is needed on the local level, the Pitt County Emergency Management office advises residents to listen to radios and televisions for directions on where to go and what to do. An office spokesman said that area evacuation centers will be located in the county's schools.

As of 11 a.m. today, Diana's eye was located on the Georgia-Florida border — 450 miles from Wilmington.

According to Cliff Strickland of the Greenville Utilities Water Plant, .78 inches of rain generated by Diana had already fallen in the Pitt-Greenville area by 9 a.m. today. An informal check by Strickland revealed that .70 inches of the total .78 inches fell between 7 and 9 a.m.

Coastal Area Gets Mixture

By The Associated Press

Rain squalls hit the Outer Banks while the sun shone brightly at Wrightsville Beach today as North Carolina coastal residents prepared for a possible invasion by Hurricane Diana.

The National Weather Service, which said early today there was an 18 percent chance the storm's eye would pass within 65 miles of Wilmington, cautioned coastal areas to batten down as the unpredictable hurricane approached.

Residents were warned to "check your level of hurricane preparedness," the weather service said.

"Residents along the ocean front, especially where erosion and flooding has been a problem in the past, should make provisions to relocate if it becomes necessary at a later time," the service said.

The weather service advised residents of Brunswick, New Hanover, Pender, Onslow, Carteret, Craven, Pamlico and Beaufort counties to take specific actions to prepare for a storm.

Elma Twyne, sheriff's dispatcher in Dare County, said a Raleigh man called wanting to know whether to come down. "I told him to call the weather bureau," she said.

Nightclub Razed By Fire

By STUART SAVAGE

Reflector Staff Writer
The Attic, billed as North Carolina's No. 1 and the South's No. 6 rock nightclub, was destroyed by an early-morning fire Sunday.

The fire was reported at 3:44 a.m., Fire-Rescue Department Chief Jenness Allen said, and firefighters battled the stubborn blaze for five hours before being able to enter the building.

One officer at the scene said dense smoke and the lack of access to the building, as well as fear that the roof might collapse, forced firemen to fight the blaze from outside.

According to Allen, three pumps, the department's snorkel, a rescue unit and a salvage truck and 30 men responded to the fire.

The chief, who said investigation into the cause of the fire is continuing, noted that investigators Sunday tentatively determined that the fire started from a cigarette dropped through a crack in the floor near the stage area.

According to Pitt County records, the 26-year-old building, at 103 E. Fourth St., was valued for tax purposes at $92,080 but would cost $177,000 to replace.

Tax records also show that inventory and equipment in the 8,530 square-foot building was valued at $41,366 in June 1983.

Attic owner Tom Haines, who said the burning of the nightclub "sure was devastating to a lot of lives," estimated the value of equipment, furnishings and inventory lost to the fire at about $150,000.

Haines said, "We're going to do our best to get back on our feet and going again. The biggest drawback is a financial one. We had limited insurance. It may be a while before we get back to the level that we were."

But Haines said, "As it stands right now, we'll be operating at the King and Queen North this weekend," opening Thursday or Friday night. "We're not sure now (but) one of those two days."

The Attic was "the oldest nightclub in North Carolina with live entertainment," Haines said, suggesting that "a lot of people considered it not a nightclub but an institution. It was one of the best on the East Coast."

Haines said the Attic opened for business in another downtown Greenville building on Sept. 8, 1971. "13 years and one day" before the fire, and moved to the Fourth Street location in January 1976.

Saying the Attic employed 25 people and could hold 800 customers, Haines said Saturday night, when the band Stormz played, "was the best night we've had in six months."

The last person left the building "about 3:15 a.m. Sunday," Haines said. "We're extremely thankful to God that it started after everyone left. Someone might have gotten hurt," if the fire had erupted when the club was full of people.

"It's unbelievable the number of people that have called and come by ... offered assistance. It meant a lot to a lot of people. It was more than just a business to a lot of people ... it was part of a lot of people's lives," according to Haines.

Jamesville Blacks Boycott Classes

By JERRY RAYNOR

Reflector Staff Writer
JAMESVILLE — "A few more black students are in school today than attended last week," said Robert Jones, principal of Jamesville School in eastern Martin County. A boycott of classes by blacks since the school opened last Tuesday continued into a second week.

The boycott, blacks in the Jamesville School District contend, is due to their concern over the appointment of a white assistant principal, Janet Kallen, at the K-12 school to replace W.C. Moses, a black assistant principal who retired at the end of the 1983-84 school year.

Martin County School Superintendent Eugene Rogers said that, "in filling the vacancy, Principal Jones had offered the position to a number of qualified black candidates who declined the position for various reasons."

Jones emphasized that the boycott "has been altogether a peaceful one, with everything going nicely on campus. There's been no friction. The boycott," he added, "ranges across all grades, from kindergarten through the 12th grade."

"On opening day, we had only 25 or 30 of the approximately 250 black student enrollment in attendance. By Friday, the number had picked up to 120."

The Martin County Board of Education has put on its agenda for its regular monthly meeting tonight a request by a black committee that the school board take action to revoke the appointment

Martin Panel OKs Compactor Purchase

WILLIAMSTON — Martin County Commissioners at their September meeting agreed to spend $102,098 for a new compactor to be used at the Martin County Landfill. The compactor previously used at the landfill was damaged by fire. Commissioner A.C. Baily informed the board that with the insurance settlement, plus a discount available on a new machine, it can be purchased for the $102,098 although a new compactor currently retails new for more than $200,000. The replacement compactor is being offered by the E. F. Craven Company of Greenville.

During a discussion period, board members offered support for continued emergency response training.

Dale Lilley, emergency management coordinator for the county, reported on the results of a disaster drill held this summer. He pointed out some officials had been concerned by not having pre-notice of the drill, but stated he feels pre-notice would compromise the training portion of the exercise. Due to conflicting opinions on the element of notification versus surprise, Lilley asked the board for their guidance in future drills. The consensus of board members is that actual emergencies are without pre-warning, and that training should continue to be somewhat secretive in order to be most effective.

In other actions, the board agreed to use $24,000 of the county secondary road contingency fund to pave four-tenths of a mile of SR 1310 near Sunnyside Eggs, Inc.; agreed to supply a letter of intent for the Williamston-Martin County Senior Citizen's application for a $50,000 grant; and approved a number of program changes within the Martin County Department of Social Services. The Social Services agreement included putting back $40,000 which had been deleted from the earlier budget requests.

Get a head start on holiday decorating with this stunning wreath made of crocheted flowers and jaunty felt leaves. Make one in harvest colors for the fall season and in Christmas colors of red, gold and white. These make welcome gifts and are sure to be big hits at any charity bazaar.

To obtain directions for making the crocheted Holiday Wreath, send your request for Leaflet No. CL-0909 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler (The Daily Reflector), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29597.

Or you may order Kit No. C-0909 by sending a check or money order for $13.50 to Pat Trexler at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions, yarn and felt. Please specify your choice of harvest or Christmas colors.

curate directions or involved charts, you may send just a sample of the directions you could furnish if your design is selected. Also include a list of the materials used.

Any entry submitted must be your own original work. We cannot consider items made from any published pattern. In submitting the entry, you agree that the design is original and that it may be featured as a leaflet and kit offer in this column.

Unlike many other contests, I am not necessarily looking for extremely intricate or unique designs. Most of my readers like their needlecraft projects to be quick and easy, if possible. If you have created a design that brought you compliments from your friends and neighbors, it is probably a good choice for this contest.

In the knit or crochet categories, sweaters, vests, coats, suits, scarves, hats, purses, afghans and pillows are among the items that will be considered. Christmas designs also will be welcome. Needlepoint would include both the traditional and plastic canvases.

If the item is small, such as a Christmas ornament, your chances would be better if you submit several as a single entry group.

There is not a definite time limit on entries as I have a continuing need for designs. Nor will there be a single "first prize." The amount of the award will be based on the originality of the design and the amount of time involved in making and/or writing the directions for the item.

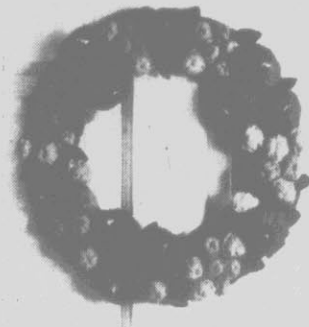

For example, the Designer Award would be higher for an afghan or Aran Isle sweater than it would be for a cap or scarf.

Please include with every entry your name, full mailing address and phone number, and send all entries to: Pat Trexler, Design Contest, P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29597.

Here's hoping I will hear from many creative needlecrafters!

Endorsing Book Giving Info On Sexual Abuse

DEAR READERS: In recent months, a national disgrace of epidemic proportions has come out of the closet—the sexual abuse of children. It began when the owners and operators of a prestigious day care center were charged with having sexually abused more than 40 children who ranged in age from 2 to 5.

The suspects were charged with, among other things, having posed and photographed the children in sex acts with other children and adults, then selling the pictures and movies to a large porno ring.

It seems incredible that these children had been repeatedly sexually abused over a period of so many years, yet no child told anyone. It was later learned that the children had been threatened that if they told anyone, their parents would be tortured and killed!

As is usually the case, when one can of worms is opened, others follow, and now we discover that children in day care centers in other areas of the country may have also been victimized by sexual abuse.

As a result of the publicity, my office has been deluged with books dealing with the sexual abuse of children. Most were good, many were very good, but in my estimation the one book that topped them all was "No More Secrets for Me" by Oralee Wachter. This plain-speaking little gem is written for children of all ages. Children who are just learning to read will understand it. Children who are too young to read, but are read to by their parents, grandparents, teachers and sitters will understand it.

It handles a very delicate subject with great sensitivity and taste. But more important, it tells children how to protect themselves against being sexually abused.

I telephoned the publishers at Little, Brown and Co. and told them that I thought "No More Secrets for Me" was the best book I had seen on the subject, but $12.95 was too much for the millions of people who should buy it.

I urged them to bring it out in softcover for under $5. It is now available in paperback, and I do not overstate my enthusiasm when I say that no home with a child between the ages of 2 and 14 should be without it.

The introduction to the book begins: "It's not fair, but it happens. Someone you know, or someone you like, or someone in your family touches you, and you don't like it. It doesn't feel good the way hugging and holding hands does. It isn't fun like wrestling. It doesn't feel close and comfortable the way it does when someone you love puts an arm around you."

"If someone touches your body in a way you don't like, you may feel mixed up. You may feel as if you were tricked or forced into it. Or maybe the person makes you promise not to tell anyone and to keep the touching a secret. This book is about taking care of yourself, just in case this ever happens to you or a friend."

"No More Secrets for Me" is now available at your local bookseller for $4.95. If it's not in stock, order it directly from Little, Brown and Co., Distribution Center, 200 West St., Waltham, Mass. 02154. Add 50 cents for postage and handling.

To order by phone: The toll-free number is (800) 343-9204. In Massachusetts call collect: (617) 890-0250.

Women's Smoking Creates Health Concern in Nepal

By BINAYA GURUACHARYA
Associated Press Writer
KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — The growing incidence of smoking, particularly among Nepalese women, has become a major public health concern in Nepal.

Some 72 percent of women in the mountainous region smoke, says Dr. Mridendra Raj Pandey, a prominent physician who had conducted a study four years ago, and "this might have gone even higher since then."

The percentage was lower among the inhabitants of the hills around the Katmandu Valley — 59 percent for women — but the figure increased by 4.4 percent this year, according to a recent survey.

Smoking was found among only 48.7 percent of women in the tropical plains of Terai in southern Nepal, and 14.6 percent of the women smoked in urban areas of the Nepalese capital.

Chronic obstructive lung disease is quite common, with a consequent loss of productivity and increased health care costs, according to a World Health Organization study on smoking in Nepal.

The majority of people in and around the Katmandu Valley preferred to smoke cigarettes. But in the Terai belt bordering the Indian states of Bihar, West Bengal and Uttar Pradesh, "bidi," or tobacco wrapped in leaves, appeared to be the most popular.

The traditional style of hookah, a pipe with a long flexible tube in which the smoke is cooled by passing through water, was in vogue throughout the country.

The hookah is made of brass, coconut shells and even bamboo in Nepal. Its user mixes tobacco with molasses before inhalation. But the hookahs are being gradually replaced by modern cigarettes.

As a result of excessive smoking, acute respiratory infection has become a major cause of infant mortality in this nation of 16 million.

Per capita income in Nepal — one of the least developed countries in the world — is less than $140 U.S. a year, but annual per capita expenditure on smoking or tobacco chewing is more than $6.70 U.S.

The Ministry of Finance has found taxes on tobacco products a politically comfortable way of raising revenue, Pandey says, but such taxes do not really increase gross national product: the country actually becomes poorer because of health consequences and the resulting increase in health care bills.

Nepal has no anti-smoking legislation. Cigarette manufacturers do not have to put a warning that smoking could be dangerous to health on their packets.

However, the government has banned advertising of cigarettes on the state-run radio and press.

But anti-smoking programs have been generally discouraged largely because the multimillion-dollar Janakpur cigarette factory, the country's largest, built with Soviet aid, is a government enterprise.

'Ugly Ring'

Censorship.
The word has an ugly ring to it and democracies associate it with totalitarian societies. We believe in the United States that we have a constitutional right to do and say what we wish.

That, however, is speaking in generalities. When it comes to specifics censorship sometimes becomes a problem. Nowhere is it more of a concern than in the schools — from kindergarten through college. Attempts have been made to ban such books as "The Grapes of Wrath," "The Diary of Anne Frank," "Catcher in the Rye," "The Living Bible" and even "Huckleberry Finn" and "Little Red Riding Hood."

The problem is of enough concern that the ECU Department of Library Science is sponsoring a public forum: "Censorship in Education: From Kindergarten Through University" The forum will be held at the Regional Development Institute Auditorium at 7 p.m. Thursday. The forum is being held during National Banned Books Week.

The problem of censorship should concern us all. By any stretch of the imagination everything that is written is not worth reading. On the other hand some of the most controversial writings of their time have come to be recognized as great works. In a democracy new ideas should be given the chance to survive.

Realities

Protests against the 91 percent reduction in the use of lead in gasoline by January 1986 was almost expectable among the larger oil companies. The changeover is no small operation.

That target was proposed by EPA Administrator William Ruckelshaus last month, and it represents an ambitious attitude.

An alternative, achievable target of a 54 percent reduction by next July has been suggested, together with deferral of the 91 percent reduction until 1988. The deferral does not appear to be sought on the grounds of lost profit (after all, the automotive industry has a voracious appetite for gasoline, leaded or unleaded, and the quantities required are increasing rather than declining). So one must assume the industry has its eyes on what it can do rather than what it would like to do.

As most people are aware, exhaust fumes from leaded gasoline have been associated with pollution of the atmosphere and with brain-damaging blood-lead concentrations that affect children. It was banned from cars produced after 1975, but about 16 percent of those relatively recent cars are being fueled by leaded gas, anyhow. It is cheaper.

The Environmental Protection Agency will probably accept realities of the situation as posed by some of the major companies.

Concern Over Religion

WASHINGTON — A long telephone conversation recently between Walter F. Mondale and New York's Gov. Mario Cuomo points to attempted use by the beleaguered Democratic presidential candidate of the religious issue as a political wedge against Ronald Reagan.

Cuomo cautioned Mondale against using "polemics" and warned him not to "besmirch" himself with religion as the governor claimed President Reagan had done to himself. But reports that Cuomo urged him not to bring up the subject are incorrect. On the contrary, Mondale's speech to the B'nai B'rith Jewish fraternal organization in Washington last week was to reflect Cuomo's advice.

Painting Reagan as rashly attempting to "Christianize" America is now viewed by Mondale's strategists as a way to slow down the president's re-election special. It is a high-risk appeal to what Cuomo calls "non-Christians and thinking Christians" — targeting Jews, non-believers and better-educated younger Christians. The prospect of this tactic backfiring is relished by Republican strategists, including one Reagan aide who told us: "I think they are falling into a well of poison."

In truth, the Republicans are walking their own religious tightwire. Despite nervousness by the president's cautious senior aides, political managers have eyed both conservative Catholics and fundamentalist Protestants as bridges to an expanded Reagan constituency.

Part of that plan as conceived by Reagan political operatives has been the new Roman Catholic archbishop of New York, John J. O'Connor. When O'Connor last June questioned "how a Catholic in good conscience can vote for a candidate who explicitly supports abortion," Reagan operatives were delighted. The hand-picked selection of Pope John Paul II was vetoing pro-choice Democrats — including Rep. Geraldine Ferraro.

But Cuomo felt from the start that he could beat the archbishop in a battle of allegiance with the state's Catholics.

"They are wrong politically," Cuomo told us. That conviction was reinforced by a poll of New York City and Long Island voters in the Aug. 26 Newsday. Its showing of 74 percent to 12 percent for Cuomo over O'Connor on the abortion-Bible issue delighted the governor's men, who quickly passed the word to cheer Mondale's gloomy bastion in St. Paul.

All this has worried the president's cautious advisers, who are not comfortable culturally with either Jerry Falwell or Archbishop O'Connor. Reading their own polls that show anti-abortion sentiment in a minority, the campaign strategists want Reagan to back off. They are deeply concerned by fence-sitting Jewish voters worried more by a "Christianizing" Reagan than apprehension over Mondale in the Rev. Jesse Jackson's demanding embrace.

The president's own B'nai B'rith speech recently was scheduled to be not only a reassurance to Jews but the moving of an arm's length from evangelicals and anti-abortion Catholics. Reagan campaign strategists want their ardent support — but more quietly please.

Quiet is what the Democrats will not give the White House.

Cuomo is clearly Mondale's tutor in this highly sophisticated mixing of religion and politics. In a campaign where the economic cards are in Reagan's hand and foreign policy is no issue, the attempt to isolate the president as a "Christianizing" true believer is deadly serious political strategy bearing maximum risks and rewards.

Seeking That Which Is Spontaneous

WASHINGTON (AP) — You're one of the presidential candidate's media managers and you've worked for a week to position your man out front on the tapioca issue.

You've arranged for him to visit a tapioca plant, to ride in a parade with the Tapioca Queen and to deliver a major address dealing with the threat of foreign tapioca imports. It's been scheduled for 11 a.m., in plenty of time for the evening network news.

You know — everyone knows — that the candidate's audience, the occasion and the setting are mere backdrops for the image that will be projected in the news media.

All's set. And then, as the candidate gets off the airplane, he is met by a swarm of news people, carrying cameras, microphones and tape recorders, and asking a bunch of questions that have nothing at all to do with the theme of the day, tapioca.

They want the candidate to respond to his opponent's charge, earlier in the day, that the candidate is soft on civil rights. They want his comment on the latest economic blip out of Washington. They want to know why the local mayor has not been invited to ride in the candidate's caravan.

And when the candidate answers those questions, for which he has not been primed (he'd been briefed on the campaign plane on tapioca, naturally), it is those unpolished, spontaneous answers that make the night's newscasts and the next editions of the newspapers.

Small wonder, then, that the candidate's staffs — any candidate, any staff — worry about unexpected questions from the press and sometimes try to do something about it.

And that helps explain why there are often dustups between the press and the staffs of the national candidates on the general issue of press access — how often will the press get to see the candidate, question him and report on what is seen and what is said.

Walter F. Mondale tried to impose a rule in August that anything that happened on his chartered plane, on which the press pays to ride, is off-the-record and non-reportable, as though it didn't happen. Geraldine Ferraro sought to impose a similar rule.

The traveling press protested, Mondale's people ultimately relaxed the stricture and now what happens on the Mondale plane is on the record unless the candidate specifies, before responding to questions, that what he is about to say is off-the-record.

Rules governing coverage of Ms. Ferraro aboard her campaign plane are in a state of flux and still being negotiated.

She doesn't like informal question-and-answer sessions with the press to respond to the latest campaign development or opposition charge, but she did undergo the longest, toughest grilling within anyone's memory when she had an almost two-hour news conference on her family's finances. Ms. Ferraro has also started having a few formal news conferences in the course of a trip of several days.

The White House changed its ground rules for presidential coverage on Sept. 2, but four days later made some modifications. At issue this time was the number of news media people in the press pool that accompanies President Reagan as he walks along the ropes at airports and other campaign stops greeting voters and sometimes making small talk with them.

Deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said the pool would be cut from 11 news people to five — a television correspondent, a TV cameraman, a soundman and two photographers — but no pencil-and-paper reporters.

Other reporters could watch, but were held so far back they could not hear what Reagan was saying. Reporters from The Associated Press and United Press International — whose reporting is made available to virtually all the major news outlets in the country — protested. After negotiations in the White House, Speakes shifted and agreed to include them.

Vice President George Bush has barred reporters from Air Force Two on most of his trips in recent days. Again there were protests, and the Bush people said they are taking another look. Reporters have always accompanied presidents on Air Force One, and that practice continues in the Reagan presidency.

These disputes aren't going to go away. News is the unexpected, the unscheduled. That's what reporters look for. And that's what the media managers wish they wouldn't be around to see.

These disputes aren't going to go away. News is the unexpected, the unscheduled. That's what reporters look for. And that's what the media managers wish they wouldn't be around to see.

Back In Town

NEW YORK (AP) — Considering the notoriety, even scandal, attending its departure and prolonged absence, it is surprising how little attention has been paid to its return — but productivity is back in town.

It slipped in quietly perhaps, but its presence has been observed now for eight straight quarters and it is beginning to look as if it will be around for many more quarters and maybe for years.

Productivity, in case you forgot, is production efficiency. It used to grow at about 3 percent a year — you could rely on it — but then in the 1970s it became less noticeable and finally it seemed to have left town altogether.

Between 1977 and early 1982 it showed almost no growth, causing politicians and economists and business people and labor to scratch their heads and blame each other.

What a shame, they all said, that the United States of America, which showed the world how to produce, had forgotten its own lesson. It was embarrassing to the point of making Uncle Sam look soft and pudgy.

Scores of reasons — some would call them alibis — were offered. Just look at a few and you'll get the idea:

Americans put too much emphasis on consuming, too little on producing. Labor was greedy and lazy. Management was riskless and unimaginative. Pollution control demands forced money into non-productive areas. High energy costs offset attempts to be efficient. And many more — possible but not certain causes.

A case can be made that some of the factors that destroyed productivity, whatever they were, led to the big recession of 1981 and 1982. You just cannot continue to live a better material life without producing it.

Significantly, productivity began rising again in the third quarter of 1982, just before the end of the recession, generally considered the worst in the post-World War II era. It has been rising ever since.

It means more profits for business, more disposable income for employees, both of which are confirmed by recent government figures. It means less inflation, to which the official statistics also attest.

And it suggests if not assures that the economy of the 1980s may grow faster and with more stability than the late and unlamented economy of the 1970s.

Welcome home, productivity.

Strength For Today

One of the most valuable and yet often least valued dimensions of life is time. Yet although it is precious and irreplaceable, nothing is more easily wasted. How can we spend our time well?

One way is to have a worthwhile occupation and to spend honest hours at it — hours really devoted to the work at hand and not watching the clock or sipping coffee. We also need to spend time on people — the right people. Those who are important to us — our families, our friends, must receive a fair share of our time if these relationships are to be rich and full.

Good causes deserve our time. The person who thinks he supports his church or community by contributing a few dollars but never doing anything is not really giving of himself.

The gift of one's self is the most important and rewarding gift of one's time.

House To Act On Cigarette Warnings

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — After months of delay, legislation to strengthen health warnings on cigarette packs is heading for final House action, although its fate in the Senate remains uncertain.

The House today was scheduled to consider a bill that calls for replacement of the current warning with four new, rotating warnings. It was the first item on the agenda as the House and Senate prepared for a busy week as remaining days in the 1984 session were dwindling, with adjournment set for Oct. 5.

Only four of the 13 appropriations bills needed to fund the federal government for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 have been signed into law. Congress must take care of these items, or lump the money into a catchall emergency spending bill, if it is to avoid a post-election lame-duck session.

Complicating the chore are major deadlocks over defense spending levels and a budget blueprint. House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., and Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., planned to meet early this week — their second get-together on the subject — to try to seek a compromise that would break the logjam.

The Senate was voting today on a motion by Senate leaders to cut off debate on a bank deregulation bill.

The legislation would grant new powers to banks, including underwriting municipal bonds and dealing in securities. Opponents have been filibustering against it.

Senators are then expected to turn their attention to appropriations measures. First up is an $8.5 billion military construction bill on which Senate Democrats are expected to wage a battle over U.S. funds for Central America.

Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., has announced he plans to push for an amendment that would bar spending any of the money for permanent military bases in Honduras. It will be the first congressional debate over Central American policy since a helicopter crash in Nicaragua killed two Americans on a flight across the Honduran border earlier this month.

The Senate may also consider a plan this week by Baker to permit the same kind of gavel-to-gavel television coverage of the Senate that has been used in the House since 1979. A Baker aide said it is doubtful he can muster the support needed to win approval of the plan.

Democratic presidential candidate Walter F. Mondale scheduled a visit to the Capitol this evening for a private ceremony to install a bust of the late vice president Hubert H. Humphrey, who represented Minnesota in the Senate at the time of his death. A public unveiling ceremony for the bust is scheduled for Tuesday.

The cigarette warning bill, a compromise that health groups as well as tobacco industry officials had a hand in writing, would require one of four new labels to appear on each cigarette pack sold in the United States:

Each would begin "Surgeon General's Warning:" and be followed by:

- Smoking Causes Lung Cancer, Heart Disease, Emphysema, And May Complicate Pregnancy.
- Quitting Smoking Now Greatly Reduces Serious Risk to Your Health.
- Smoking by Pregnant Women May Result in Fetal Injury, Premature Birth, and Low Birth Weight.
- Cigarette Smoke Contains Carbon Monoxide.

AFTER DAWN — Smoke still comes from windows and doors of the Attic as Greenville firemen continue to battle a fire that destroyed the nightclub Sunday. The fire was reported at 3:41 a.m., and firemen remained at the scene until 12:30 p.m. The club bills itself as the No. 1 rock club in North Carolina. (Reflector Staff Photo by Stuart Savage)

BATTLING BLAZE — Firemen, wearing helmets and protective clothing, direct a stream of water into a rear door at the Attic in an effort to cool flames that slowly burned away the interior of the nightclub Sunday. (Reflector Staff Photo by Stuart Savage)

Americans Showing More Interest In Soviet Studies

By JOHN C. GIVEN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. interest in the Soviet Union appears to be growing as more Americans become experts in Soviet affairs. After more than a decade of waning curiosity, enrollment in university courses relating to the Soviet Union is picking up, U.S. educators say.

Extensive media attention to the arms race and two changes of Soviet leadership in the past two years have done much to stimulate public interest in U.S.-Soviet matters, they say.

One indication is a dramatic 26.7 percent increase last year in the number of American college students studying the Russian language, up by 6,399 students to 30,386 since 1980, according to a recently released survey.

The number marks an abrupt turnabout after a steep decline, from 40,696 to 23,987 students, since the 1968 academic year, said Richard I. Brod, director for language programs at the New York-based Modern Language Association.

The association's last survey of foreign language-teaching in U.S. centers of higher education was done in 1980. Other languages showing high increased enrollment since then are Japanese (40.2 percent), Chinese (15.9 percent) and Italian (11.1 percent), Brod said.

Amid recent publicity about a national shortage of Russian-speaking Soviet experts, some educators say improved job prospects are attracting many students. Others are not sure the number of new jobs is that significant.

But the consensus among several officials is that Soviet studies are back in style in the academic world for the first time since the post-Sputnik era of the late 1950s and early 1960s.

Financial support, rapidly drying up a few years ago, has been reappearing.

Late last year, Congress passed a bill calling for annual federal grants for advanced-level Soviet and Eastern European studies by U.S. specialists. The first appropriation, $4.8 million, has been approved for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1985.

Among private donations were: —A $10 million endowment in 1982 from former Ambassador to the Soviet Union W. Averell Harriman to Columbia University for what is now the W. Averell Harriman Institute for Advanced Study of the Soviet Union.

—$1.5 million for a faculty chair to study the Soviet economy by the Roland and Gladys Harriman Foundation.

—$1 million to the University of California at Berkeley and to Stanford University for a joint study program on Soviet international behavior by the Rockefeller Foundation.

Several educators noted that the increase in students was not just in the number taking first-year language courses but also in those seeking careers as Soviet Union experts.

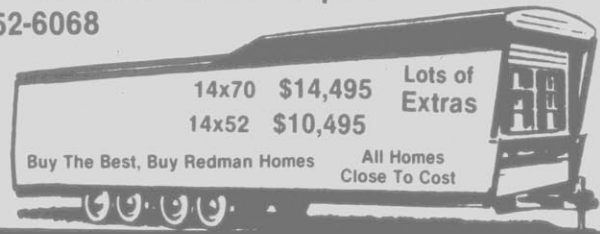

"The main thing we see is the number of serious students who carry on. We see some increase in beginning students, but more of those seeking something they can do with it," said Brigham Young University Professor Don Jarvis, who is president of the American Association of Teachers of Slavic and East European Languages.

This appears to be true at Columbia, where Jonathan E. Sanders, assistant director of the Harriman Institute, reported "a phenomenal increase in applications."

America's first "boom" in Russian studies came in 1957 after the Soviet Union launched the world's first space satellite, Sputnik.

Iraq Reports Jet Attack

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraqi jetfighters attacked and hit a "large naval target" south of Iran's main oil loading terminal at Kharg Island today, a military spokesman announced.

Iraq customarily uses the term "naval target" when it attacks oil tankers or other commercial ships doing business with Iran, but it did not identify the target today, and there was no immediate independent report that any ship in the gulf had been hit.

The unidentified military spokesman, reading a military communique on Baghdad Radio, said the target was attacked at 10:45 a.m., and Iraq's planes returned safely to base.

Iraq declared a blockade of Iranian oil exports last February and has been attacking commercial shipping in the Persian Gulf in an attempt to put economic pressure on Iran and force an end to the nearly 4-year-old Iran-Iraq war.

Israeli Jets Hit Targets

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli jets bombed suspected Palestinian guerrilla targets in central Lebanon today, hours after a Moslem leader said 50 young Lebanese have been prepared for suicide attacks against Israel's occupation forces.

A communique from the Lebanese military command said one person was killed and another wounded in the attack on the central Lebanese mountain town of Bhamdoun on the Beirut-Damascus international highway. The communique also said an ammunition dump was destroyed, but did not say who operated the dump.

The Israeli military command said its pilots reported "accurate hits" on a three-story building in Bhamdoun it said was used as a command post by the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, a Marxist, pro-Moscow faction of Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization.

But a Syrian-backed dissident PLO group said in a communique issued in Damascus that the pre-dawn raid was staged on "one of our positions in Bhamdoun," 14 miles east of Beirut.

The dissident faction, headed by Col. Saeed Mousa, also known as Abu Mousa, said the commanding officer of the post, Maj. Salem Suleiman Daoud, was killed in the attack and three other guerrillas were wounded.

Indian Troops Battle Rioters

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Army troops with orders to shoot rioters on sight arrested 67 people today as Moslem-Hindu violence continued in the southern city of Hyderabad. Police reported nine deaths, 130 injuries and more than 350 arrests in two days.

Quake Hits West Coast

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A strong earthquake rumbled under the Pacific Ocean, sending two quick jolts through the San Francisco area but apparently not triggering a tidal wave, authorities said.

The National Earthquake Information Service in Golden, Colo., said the quake that struck at about 8:15 registered 6.4 on the Richter scale. No damage or injuries were reported.

The earthquake was centered about 100 miles west of Cape Mendocino, according to Tom McEvilly, assistant director of the seismographic station at the University of California at Berkeley. Estimates on location of the epicenter could vary up to 50 miles, he said.

The National Earthquake Information Service, which is part of the U.S. Geological Survey, said the quake was centered 160 miles southwest of Eureka.

Two quick jolts from the quake were felt in San Francisco, Oakland, Berkeley and Inverness, and the quake also was felt in Fort Bragg, Redding, Santa Rosa and San Jose, the service said.

The earthquake did not generate a tsunami, or tidal wave, according to the Pacific Tsunami Warning Center in Honolulu.

'Hit List' Dismissed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reagan administration officials say a "hit list" prepared for the White House by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce had nothing to do with the dismissal of a career civil servant fired because she lacked "the right mental attitude" toward the president's policies.

The head of the civil service system, Donald Devine, says he may have discussed the case of former Energy Department executive Maxine Savitz with White House aides. But he said the "hit list" was never mentioned and did not affect his decision to support her firing.

And former Assistant Energy Secretary Joseph J. Tribble, who cited Mrs. Savitz' "lack of compatibility of purpose" with administration goals when he fired her, says he never heard of the list until Sunday.

But Mrs. Savitz, who was rated as "highly successful" and awarded a 10 percent performance bonus in a job evaluation only a week before the Chamber of Commerce sent the list to the White House, says she is not so certain.

"It may very definitely have contributed to my firing," she said in an interview over the weekend.

The Savitz case is not entirely new. It was the subject of a congressional hearing last year.

Child Care Changes Possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — Snocked by revelations of child abuse in some of America's day care centers, many members of Congress are feeling pressure to ensure better services for the growing number of children with working mothers.

"We pay more attention to regulating racetrack workers, bank employees and real estate brokers," complains Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla. Now it's time to do more to safeguard children, she says.

"Congress is beginning to show the same concern for the kind of child care received by millions of American children — many up to 50 hours each week — as it has for their health and education," says Rep. George Miller, D-Calif., chairman of the House Select Committee on Children, Youth and Families.

"Surely child care has become as important to the development and future well-being of a child as are education and health care. Surely we can play a positive role in this area, as we have in the others," he said.

Miller's panel wound up a series of hearings last week on child care and plans a joint hearing on child abuse with a Ways and Means Committee panel on Sept. 17. The findings will be part of a major report to be released next month before Congress adjourns.

Miller calls it "the most in-depth congressional look at child care in a decade" and says it will contain specific recommendations.

They would include:

— Tax credits for employers who set up on-site day care facilities for the children of their employees.

— Further tax credits for parents to help meet day care expenses.

— An increase in money for Title

XX of the Social Services Block Grant, the major direct funding source for day care for low-income families.

— Federal aid to school districts to set up before- and after-school programs for "latchkey" children — pupils who are home alone while their parents work.

— Incentives for the creation of child care research and referral centers so parents will know what options are available in their communities.

The latter two measures have been passed by the House this session but not by the Senate.

Sen. Hawkins said legislation she introduced last week would improve the quality of child care and require states to impose higher standards for day care centers.

The bill requires federal standards and licensing procedures for day care centers and providers, mandates state compliance or a loss of federal funds for child care programs, requires criminal record checks of day care operators and their employees, and calls for states to maintain 24-hour toll-free telephone numbers for reporting child molestation incidents.

"Child abuse is not new," she said. "But the increasing use of child care centers by working parents provides child molesters with a greater opportunity to abuse our children."

"The lack of protection for our children is shocking," she said.

In its latest budget legislation, the Reagan administration has proposed increasing the child care tax credit to 40 percent of qualifying expenses for families with annual incomes of $10,000 or less. Their credit now is 30 percent.

Navy Studies Plans For New Submarine

NEW LONDON, Conn. (AP) — The Navy is studying proposals for a radically redesigned nuclear-powered attack submarine that will run faster, deeper and quieter than any ever built by a Western power, according to a published report.

The SSN-21 would carry twice as many weapons as today's attack submarines with an unspecified arsenal of torpedoes, mines and nuclear missiles, senior Navy officials told The Day newspaper of New London.

Navy sketches depict the SSN-21 with a wide bow to accommodate increased numbers of torpedoes and with diving planes amidships instead of in the classic position on the sail, the newspaper reported Sunday.

Each of the first four of the new subs are projected to cost $1.6 billion and the rest, $1 billion each. They would replace the Navy's $800 million attack submarine, the nuclear-powered 688 — or Los Angeles — class.

By contrast, each of the Navy's Trident nuclear missile-firing submarines costs $1.2 billion.

The Navy received design proposals for the SSN-21 in July from the Electric Boat shipyard in Groton, a division of General Dynamics Corp., and the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co. in Virginia.

The shipyards — the Navy's sole sources of submarines — are competing for the $174.3 million design contract, which the Navy says it expects to award by early 1985.

The Navy plans to start building the first of 30 SSN-21s soon after awarding the lead-vessel construction contract in 1988.

Both shipyards could share the design contract, Navy officials, speaking on the condition that they not be identified, told The Day.

Views On Dental Health

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S.P.A

THE PREVIEW TECHNIQUE

Do you have apprehensions about taking your child to the dentist for his or her first check-up? Could that be one of the reasons why you haven't made that first important appointment?

Well, your child's first visit to the dentist does not have to be for a check-up. There's no reason why it can't be a social visit just to "get acquainted".

If your youngster hasn't been to the dentist yet, the next time you have an appointment take him along. Let him watch the dentist check your teeth, clean them, etc. There's no better way for a child to understand that dental care is important for your health and good looks.

Believe me, the worst first dental experience is an emergency visit for a toothache or accident-caused injury. Extensive treatment or repair on a first visit may set your child up for a chain of future needless anxieties.

Don't avoid your child's first visit. The sooner your youngster creates a confident relationship with the dentist, the better. Start with a preview.

Mondale Unveils Deficit-Cutting Plan

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Walter F. Mondale today unveiled a deficit reduction package of tax increases and spending reductions totaling $177 billion, and a "pay as you go" requirement that the president come up with new taxes or spending cuts to pay for any new federal programs he might propose.

Mondale's newest budget plan, released after weeks of preparation, suggested no increases in existing federal income tax rates. Instead, he called for further delays in the effect of a new law protecting taxpayers from inflation. The money raised through deferral of indexing, as inflation protection is known, and other previously proposed tax increases, would be funneled into a trust fund that by law would only go to offset the deficit.

Overall, staff aides in Washington said the package would cut federal deficits by two thirds, to $86 billion in 1989.

Since the Democratic National Convention, Mondale has said that whoever is elected president will have to raise taxes to offset the mushrooming deficit.

The package announced today would fall most heavily on wealthier taxpayers.

Families earning less than $25,000 in 1989 would receive the full benefits of indexing; those earning between $25,000 and $35,000 would pay an additional $95 under Mondale's plan, and those up to $40,000 about $200 more.

Bowman Cutter, a top budget official in the Carter administration, said families earning about $100,000 would pay $2,600 in higher taxes.

The new plan incorporates an earlier Mondale proposal announced last January under which he would raise $60 billion in new revenues by 1989 by imposing a 10 percent surcharge on those earning more than $100,000, and a cap on the final year of President Reagan's tax cuts for those earning above $60,000; and a 15 percent minimum tax on corporations.

Mondale's spending cuts would include $25 billion less for defense by 1989, $12 billion less for health programs, $4 billion less for agriculture and $5 billion in savings by running the government more efficiently.

It also would add $30 billion for federal aid to education and restoring cuts in the Environmental Protection Agency made by President Reagan.

On Sunday, Mondale repeated his charge that despite claims to the contrary, Reagan would recommend a tax increase after the 1984 presidential election.

The president has denied any such plan and said he would increase taxes only as "a last resort."

"It's always a last resort in October and a first resort in December," said Mondale.

Since he began campaigning for president in February 1983, Mondale has talked about major budget savings by capping the cost of health care, achieving more efficient administration of farm programs and holding increases in defense spending to between 4 and 5 percent.

If Mondale were to achieve his goal of cutting deficits by two-thirds by the end of 1988, the red ink total that year could be about $57 billion, or in the same range as the final year of the Carter administration.

But estimates of future deficits vary depending on predictions of economic growth and the level of interest rates.

The federal budget deficit reached a record $194.5 billion in the fiscal year that ended last Sept. 30, and the administration is predicting a deficit of $174.3 billion for the current year.

The Congressional Budget Office predicts a budget deficit of $238 billion by 1988; the Reagan administration says the deficit for that year would be $176 billion.

The Campaign

Bush Includes N.C. Stops On Campaign Trip Today

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush, armed with arguments about the budget deficit and the war-and-peace issue, is heading to the South where Democrats hope a big voter registration drive will help defeat President Reagan.

Bush was setting out today for Raleigh and Winston-Salem, N.C., the first stops on a three-day trip that also will take him to South Carolina and Georgia.

Four years ago Reagan lost Georgia to Jimmy Carter and won South Carolina by only 11,456 votes and North Carolina by just 41,383. But GOP campaign strategists say Reagan is ahead of Walter Mondale in each of the states now and leads throughout the South.

Democrats hope to cut into Reagan's strength in the region with a voter registration drive that was kicked off last Friday in Columbia, S.C., by the Rev. Jesse Jackson, Sen. Ernest F. Hollings and Gov. Richard Riley. With Jackson's help, Democrats hope to register thousands of blacks who sat on the sidelines in the 1980 presidential election.

Bush's press secretary, Peter Teeley, said Republicans can beat the Democrats in the registration sweepstakes.

"We've always been concerned" about voter registration, Teeley said. "We've been working ours all along. At the least, we can match what the Democrats can do."

Teeley said Bush would make a strong appeal to southern Democrats to abandon their party to vote for Reagan.

"There's a significant difference in Democrats in the South and Democrats who control the Democratic national apparatus and the delegates to the Democratic National Convention," Teeley said.

Teeley said Bush was prepared to respond to questions in the South about Mondale's charges that Reagan is trying to break down the barrier between government and religion, following Reagan's remark that "religion and politics are necessarily related."

Reagan Says Tax Hike Not Answer

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (AP) — President Reagan, pounding at Walter F. Mondale's new plan for cutting the deficit, says raising taxes is "an old answer ... the wrong answer" for the nation's economy.

"We won't overcome our challenges by going back to the days when the federal government kept taking more and more, knocking the economy right off its feet in the process," Reagan declared Sunday in a campaign appearance outside Philadelphia.

"Raising taxes is an old answer," he added. "Some say it's the only answer. I say it's the wrong answer."

Reagan returned to Washington following his speech to the largely Polish Catholic audience attending an annual festival at Our Lady of Czestochowa Shrine. He was remaining in the White House today and scheduled a meeting with officials of the National Baptist Convention, a group Mondale addressed during its convention last week.

The president's speech did not mention the record federal deficits that have occurred during his own term and that Democratic challenger Mondale's tax increase plan, being unveiled today, is designed to reduce.

Mondale contends a tax increase is essential to reduce the deficits no matter who is elected president next November.

Reagan said his goal is a "historic simplification" of the tax code and moving tax rates "further down, not up." He did not say whether that would mean an actual reduction in taxes.

As is his custom, Reagan never mentioned Mondale by name.

The president flew from his retreat at Camp David to the shrine in his Marine helicopter, landing only a few hundred yards from where he spoke.

Falwell Claims Mondale Doesn't 'Have A Prayer'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. Jerry Falwell says Walter F. Mondale is raising the "non-issue" of church-state separation simply because his Democratic campaign "doesn't have a prayer" of defeating President Reagan.

"It's a farce," the president of the conservative Moral Majority said Sunday as he made back-to-back appearances on the CBS program "Face the Nation" and ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley."

"No one is questioning anyone's religion," Falwell said. "No one wants to establish a Christian state ... We want a nation under God. That's all the president, and every president since Washington, has called for."

The fundamentalist minister said that "Mr. Mondale, for lack of an issue and a point of vulnerability on the church-state issue, Mr. Mondale, who doesn't have a prayer — even a voluntary prayer — of being elected, is creating a non-issue."

That remark was a reference to the proposed constitutional amendment to allow voluntary organized prayer in public schools — a proposal supported by President Reagan and by Falwell's Moral Majority but opposed by Mondale.

Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., said on the ABC program that he thought Falwell's assessment of Mondale's election chances went too far.

"I think the Rev. Falwell ... would be a little bit more careful about ... saying Mr. Mondale doesn't have prayer. That's getting into electioneering," Moynihan said.

Other participants on the two programs were critical of Reagan's campaign-trail comments about politics and religion being inseparable. Reagan said in Dallas on Aug. 23 that "politics and morality are inseparable. And as morality's foundation is religion, religion and politics are necessarily related."

Laurence Tribe, professor of constitutional law at Harvard University, said, "I'm most concerned that he is attempting to co-opt the moral authority of religion, as though we had some assurance that God was a Republican."

"First of all, the president is essentially trying to sanctify public institutions with religious ceremony and religious symbols," Tribe said. "... Secondly, the president is denouncing those who disagree with him on sensitive issues like abortion or school prayer as ungodly, unreligious, intolerant. Third and most important, the president and the current administration are identifying themselves with God's authority."

Rabbi David Saperstein, director of the Religious Action Center of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, accused Reagan of speaking differently to disparate audiences about religion's role in government.

Job Rate Holds

Jim Hannan, manager of the Pitt County Employment Security Commission, has reported that the rate of unemployment in Pitt County has not changed for four consecutive months.

The rate of workers employed in Pitt County has remained at 94.2 percent employed, with 5.8 unemployed since April. The work force in Pitt County has increased by 6,200 people since July 1978; however, the county is now at the lowest unemployment rate since that date.

Hannan says credit for the constant high employment rate "is due to the foresight that has brought a diversity of various industries as well as the agricultural diversity of Pitt County."

Begin Hospitalized For Series Of Tests

JERUSALEM (AP) — Retired Prime Minister Menachem Begin was hospitalized today for tests that may lead to surgery for a suspected urinary tract problem, officials said.

Begin's former personal secretary, Yechiel Kadishai, said the 71-year-old Begin was taken to Shaare Zedek Hospital near his home this morning after he reported feeling pains.

A hospital official who refused to be identified by name said Begin's condition was good, but that he may need an operation. The official did not say what type of surgery might be necessary.

Begin was examined by his personal physician, cardiologist Mervyn Gottesman, who reported finding no signs of the heart trouble that has plagued Begin in the past.

"He feels fine now," said Kadishai, one of the few people who has seen Begin regularly since the former prime minister retired into seclusion a year ago.

Hospital spokeswoman Yaffa Alkalai said Begin was undergoing tests in the urology department, and it was not clear how long he would be confined to bed. She said a policeman and a secret service agent were stationed outside Begin's private seventh-floor room.

Begin has a history of heart trouble, beginning with a serious heart attack just before he was elected to a first term of office in 1977. He usually is treated in Hadassah Hospital, which also is close to his home, for suspected coronary problems.

Begin quit in mid-term last September without explanation, telling his Cabinet only that "I can't go on any longer."

He reportedly was tired and depressed over the death of his wife a year earlier and the mounting

Israeli difficulty in extricating its army from Lebanon.

Since stepping down he was seen in public only once when he moved in December from the prime minister's official residence to an apartment on Jerusalem's western outskirts. A photograph then showed him to be thin and looking much older than when he retired.

He occasionally has spoken to reporters by telephone, but he refuses to see all but a few family members and close friends.

Open House

An open house will be held in the emergency department of Pitt County Memorial Hospital Sept. 16 from 1 to 5 p.m. Staff members will be on hand to answer questions and an Emergency Medical Services helicopter will be available for viewing on the hospital helipad.

Monday through Friday of next week from 7 to 9 p.m. displays on Emergency Medical Services and special services will be available at The Plaza. On Sept. 20 a demonstration of the "Jaws of Life" extrication tool will be given and Sept. 21 the Greenville Fire and Rescue Squad will demonstrate its repelling skills.

Bloody Brawl

WOLFRATSHAUSEN, West Germany (AP) — A motorcycle enthusiasts' gathering near Munich turned into a bloody brawl when a motorcycle gang attacked other participants with steel pipes, iron bars and a homemade pistol, police reported.

Your Social Security Disability Benefits

BENEFITS DENIED? Have you been denied benefits under Social Security's disability benefits programs? Do not be discouraged. That happens to most people who apply the first time.

Have you asked for reconsideration of your disability claim and been turned down a second time? Again, don't be discouraged or give up. That's the way the disability system works today.

Take your case one step further and go before a Social Security Administrative Law Judge for a hearing with a qualified representative to present your case. Then the chances of your winning benefits are somewhere between 70% and 80%. The Judge will see you and hear your personal description of your physical or mental illness, and your representative will present your case as it applies to the complex rules of the Social Security Act.

If you have a hearing requested or scheduled before an Administrative Law Judge, call now for an immediate conference. There is no fee for an initial conference to discuss your eligibility for disability.

Maybe you should consider where you'll be in 150 years.

The thought of it isn't pleasant. But your own bodily mortality is some thing somebody's going to have to deal with sooner or later.

So, instead of putting on blinders, why don't you consider the options? Find out a little about what happens after you pass away. The laws and the facts that govern the cemetery business. When you do, we're certain you'll see the advantages that Pinewood Memorial Park, managed by S.G. Wilkerson and Sons, offers over new, private ventures.

Just what is 'Perpetual Care'?

The State of North Carolina requires privately-owned cemeteries to meet certain requirements in order to call themselves 'Perpetual Care' cemeteries.

The law requires that a certain amount from the sale of each grave be set aside in a fund. Interest earned from the dollars in that fund is required to be used for upkeep in the cemetery.

However, S.G. Wilkerson and Sons, has never considered the required amount to be sufficient. Therefore, over the years, the contributions to the fund have been much larger than the amount required.

The results are obvious. With a 25-year growth of mature centipede sod, the cemetery grounds are now beautiful. The infrequent maintenance problems are quickly attended to. Plot buyers in Pinewood select from the grounds themselves, not from a notebook of what cemetery owners hope the grounds will look like years from now. Fact is, it takes years of careful maintenance for a cemetery to really look groomed and cared for.

And all Pinewood graves have the low profile and dignity of a flat bronze marker — better for everyone. What may surprise you the most is the fact that the total Pinewood Memorial Park costs are less, not more, than "package deals".

Let us tell you more. We'd like to explain more. Because we'd like you to make an informed decision about this matter which you and your family should take seriously.

The Wilkerson family has been in this business for many years. So talk to us before you buy anything. We'll respect your decision. But we want you to be sure you know what you're doing.

McEnroe Dominates Lendl In Open Final

NEW YORK (AP) — If there were any questions about the pre-eminence of John McEnroe and Martina Navratilova, they were answered most emphatically at the U.S. Open tennis championships.

"I would say he's No. 1," said Ivan Lendl.

"Yes, I would agree she's the best," said Chris Evert Lloyd. They spoke from experience — the experience of being only No. 2, and from the experience one gains only from the other side of the net, watching passing shots whiz by, lobs sail overhead, drop volleys fall helplessly out of reach.

On Sunday, McEnroe defeated Lendl in the minimum three sets, 6-4, 6-3, 6-1. On Saturday, Navratilova defeated Lloyd in the maximum three, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4.

After an extraordinary Saturday in which both men's semifinals as well as the women's final were taken to the limit of player and audience endurance (three matches amounting to 9 hours, 11 minutes of play), Sunday's 100-minute men's final was almost anticlimactic.

The New York crowd, which has rarely roared for McEnroe, a neighborhood kid if ever there was one (he grew up about 15 minutes from the National Tennis Center), cheered him for two sets Sunday. Then the fans swung their affections to the gaunt, stoic Czech.

"I think they just wanted to see some more tennis," Lendl said.

Lendl, for his part, had seen enough. "In order to play even or beat him, you have to return his serve and break him, too," he shrugged. "Since I didn't break him ..."

Not even once. Only once did he even come close, at 15-40 in the second game of the second set. But McEnroe was more than equal to the situation.

Lendl tried a passing shot. McEnroe, anticipating it, was already moving to his right when the ball clipped the net and headed skyward. McEnroe changed directions as quickly as the ball. He lost sight of the ball for an instant, whirled in place, located it again and rammed a forehand down the line.

It wasn't game, set, match — but it might as well have been.

McEnroe held service, broke Lendl's at deuce five games later with a forehand cross-court passing shot and then a service return that Lendl netted.

Then he put him away at love in the 10th game and demolished him in just 26 minutes for the third set that gave McEnroe his fourth U.S. Open title.

Lendl was a loser as a U.S. Open finalist for the third year in a row and a loser to McEnroe in nine of their past 11 meetings.

"I feel tired," said McEnroe, who looked quite fresh despite what he and Jimmy Connors had been through in their semifinal match the night before. "I really feel exhausted. I mean, I feel unbelievable and I feel terrible at the same time. My body's just said, 'That's enough.'"

"But he looked pretty bad himself," he said of Lendl. "I felt pretty bad the whole day and then, when I got out there, I felt pretty good for a couple of sets and I was able to get on top of him."

Lendl rushed the net far more — and far more quickly — than he had in his five-set semifinal marathon against Australian Pat Cash. "Maybe he wanted to end the points early or something," McEnroe surmised. "But he started out in the beginning trying to attack my serve. When he didn't break me after a couple of games, he kind of gave up on that and just looked kind of discouraged the rest of the match."

Championship Form

John McEnroe's backhand proved too much for Czechoslovakia's Ivan Lendl to handle during the men's singles final Sunday at the U.S. Open Tennis Championship at Flushing Meadow, N.Y. McEnroe crushed Lendl 6-3, 6-4, 6-1 to win his fourth U.S. Open title. (AP Laserphoto)

Payton: More Fun To Chase Records

By The Associated Press
For Walter Payton, chasing a record is more fun than actually getting one.

"Going into the game I really didn't think about the record," Payton said. "It means more to chase the record than to have it."

The Chicago Bears runner, who puts together power and speed in a rare combination, did some record-chasing and some record-setting Sunday in a 27-0 National Football League romp over the Denver Broncos.

Payton, in only 20 carries, got 179 yards closer to Jim Brown's all-time NFL rushing record of 12,312 yards and surpassed Brown's mark in a lesser-known category, combined rushing and receiving.

Payton now has 15,517 total yards, bettering Brown's 15,459. Payton is 47 yards behind the career rushing record.

Also ahead of Payton in the rushing yardage derby is Franco Harris, 34, who made his Seattle debut with 46 yards on 14 carries, giving him 11,996 in his 13-year career, 131 ahead of Payton.

In other NFL games Sunday, it was Miami 28, New England 7; Chicago 27, Denver 0; St. Louis 37, Buffalo 7; Detroit 27, Atlanta 24 in overtime; Kansas City 27, Cincinnati 22; New Orleans 17, Tampa Bay 13; and Philadelphia 19, Minnesota 17; Los Angeles Rams 20, Cleveland 17; Indianapolis 35, Houston 21; Los Angeles Raiders 28, Green Bay 7 and Seattle 31, San Diego 17.

Washington is at San Francisco tonight.

The Bears, 2-0, dominated Denver, 1-1, in all aspects of the game, outgaining the Broncos 406-130. Denver turned the ball over four times en route to its first shutout loss in 85 regular-season games, dating back to 1978.

"It was a tremendous win and the victory means more than anything," Payton said. "It's our best start in a long time. When things go right, they go right."

Payton was referring to his 72-yard run, the longest touchdown dash of his 10-year career, which came off the wrong formation.

"Jimbo (Covert) was supposed to pull and didn't," Payton said. "I sliced through and after I hit the outside I kept my balance and took off."

"He continues to amaze me out there," said Chicago Coach Mike Ditka.

Payton, who said his ultimate goal is to gain 15,000 yards rushing, invited Brown to be in attendance should Payton break his record.

"I'll do anything he wants, I'll even foot the bill for him," the Bears' runner added.

Another record was set when Chicago placekicker Bob Thomas kicked a field goal and his first extra point. The four points gave him 542 in his Chicago career, surpassing George Blanda's team record of 541.

The Bears knocked out two Denver starters early, sending quarterback Gary Kubiak and running back Sammy Winder to the hospital with concussions.

John Elway, injured last week, quarterbacked four series, but was yanked early in the third quarter in favor of rookie Scott Stankavage, who completed just four of 18 passes for 58 yards.

Chicago quarterback Jim McMahon also was injured. He left after a 61-yard touchdown bomb to Willie Gault in the first quarter.

McMahon returned in the second quarter, but Bob Avellini quarterbacked the entire second half.

Giants 28, Cowboys 7

Phil Simms had his second straight strong performance at quarterback and got plenty of help from the Giants defense.

Simms fired three touchdown passes, giving him seven in New York's two victories, while his teammates sacked the Cowboys'

Gary Hogeboom five times and forced four turnovers. Linebacker Lawrence Taylor had three of the sacks.

With the score 14-0 and Dallas on the Giants' 6 in the second quarter, Taylor sacked Hogeboom and made him tumble. The ball was picked up by linebacker Andy Headen, who raced 81 yards for a touchdown.

Archer Wins Boston Classic

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — As a kid, he used to pretend he was Ben Hogan and Sam Snead.

Now, just three weeks shy of his 45th birthday, big George Archer is a winner once again on the Professional Golfers Association tour.

Archer fired a 6-under-par 65 and ran away from the pack Sunday in winning the $350,000 Bank of Boston Classic by six strokes.

"This was a lot better than shooting pheasants," said Archer, whose hobbies are hunting birds and fishing. "I had goose bumps on the back nine."

Archer took the lead on the 63rd hole, sinking a 25-foot birdie putt while tour rookie Joey Sindelar hit into a bunker and had to settle for a double bogey 6.

Sindelar, a three-time Ohio State All-American from Horseheads, N.Y., tried to come back. Two holes later, he put a 6-iron to within one foot of the cup. Archer left himself 28 feet away.

Archer then coolly sank the clutch putt for a birdie before Sindelar collected his easy birdie.

Then, on the 394-yard 13th hole, Archer buried any hopes Sindelar and other players in the field may have had. Using an 8-iron, the 6-foot-5 veteran holed a 137-yard shot for an eagle 2.

"As we went to the 13th tee, I talked to my caddy about the chances of catching George," Sindelar said. "When he sank that shot, though, I knew I was playing for second place."

Archer went on to add two more birdies for a 5-under-par 30 on the back nine. That enabled him to equal the tournament record of 280, set by John Mahaffey in 1978, and to win by the biggest margin on the tour this year.

"The ball just kept going in the hole," Archer said. "It was a nice way to win, not much heat."

Archer called his eagle "probably the best iron shot of my career because of the circumstances."

"I couldn't see it because I was shooting at the top of the mountain, but what a thrill that was when I saw people jumping up and down," Archer said. "It's just a tremendous thrill."

"It may have been the best iron shot of my career. You make a shot like that maybe during a practice round. To do it in the heat of the final round of a tournament is something else."

Archer, whose career has been marred by a couple of serious injuries, laughed as he noted that the victory ensures him a spot on the PGA tour for three more years.

"Now I'll be able to play out here until I'm 48," he said after he whipped Sindelar and Frank Conner, who tied for second at 276.

The victory was Archer's 13th since he joined the tour in 1964. However, it was his first since 1976 — after hand surgery and before a back operation.

Royals Take West Lead

Woody Peele

You'd probably have to go back pretty far to find a game like Saturday night's for East Carolina.

We've racked our brain and those of others who've been around a while, and no body can seem to remember a game with as poor an offensive show as the Pirate put on Saturday night in the last ten or so years.

There have been a few challengers. We can think of some games that put the Pirates to shame offensively.

One must go back to 1980 to find a game with less total yardage. The Pirates got 125 yards in total offense Saturday. Against Florida State in 1980, the Pirates were held to 102 yards in losing 63-7.

But to find a game in which the Pirates collected less rushing yardage than their 58 yards against Temple, you've got to go all the way back to 1971, when Tampa rolled up a 457 win over the Pirates.

Ironically in the final year of that team's participation in that sport, East Carolina got only 33 yards on the ground in that contest.

There appeared to be little imagination in the Pirate offense. Generally, it was "up the middle" and the yardage was seldom there. The longest run by any Pirate Saturday night was 19 yards. That came on a scramble-roll out by Ron Jones.

The longest run by any of the backs was an eight-yarder by fullback Reggie Branch.

There were few option plays — mainly because the line couldn't hold back Temple long enough for them to develop. And the Pirates suffered through five sacks as the pass protection seldom proved effective.

The Pirates do have a young team, but the offensive line was one spot where there was supposed to be some experience. There are injuries, too. Hopefully, the Pirates will find some players on the offensive unit with what Emory has referred to as "want to."

The Pirate defense did show some improvement against the ground attack, but Temple cannot be accused of being a Florida State either. The pass defense was none too good, as the Owls hit on 15 of 28 passes, a good percentage. Several of the incomplete passes had men open but were either under- or overthrown.

There remains much to be done before the Pirates can become the team Emory says they can become. It's not going to get any easier, either. The Pirates have no opportunity to lick their wounds and try to get things ready with a week off. It's straight through this year from start to finish.

There's no breather this week in Central Michigan. That team is picked to win the Mid-American Conference, and has had two weeks to prepare for the Pirates.

Next comes a home date with upstart Georgia Southern, a team that has only in the last three years resumed football after a 40-year vacation from the sport. The Eagles shut out Florida A&M, a strong Division I-AA team, and crushed Presbyterian. A staggering Pirate team may find them more than troublesome.

Follow that up with a much improved N.C. State Wolfpack and the nationally ranked Pitt Panthers. Tulsa follows with another strong team, and who knows what could happen after that against East Tennessee, South Carolina, Southwestern Louisiana and Southern Mississippi.

Okay, Georgia Southern and East Tennessee were expected to be breathers. But not the way the Pirates are playing now. Now, they would appear to be life and death struggles.

Hopefully, the Pirates will find a way to come together and turn things around. If not, with the super schedule the Pirates face this year, it could turn into a long, long nightmare.

By The Associated Press
At various times this season, the Kansas City Royals have occupied every position in the American League West standings. Now, they're where they want to be — on top.

For the first time all year, the Royals secured sole possession of first place in the West with a comeback 6-5 victory Sunday over Seattle. They'll have to protect that slim margin beginning tonight in Minnesota, where they play the first of three games with the Twins. Minnesota, which had been in first since Aug. 4, fell a game in arrears by losing 9-3 to Texas.

The California Angels blew an opportunity to jump past the Twins and fell 1-2 games off the pace when Tom Seaver four-hit them in an 8-2 Chicago victory.

In the East, Detroit completed a three-game sweep of second-place Toronto and dropped its magic number for clinching the division to nine with a 7-2 decision. The Tigers lead the Blue Jays by 1 1/2 games.

In other games, it was Baltimore 4, Milwaukee 0; Boston 10, New York 1; and Cleveland 7, Oakland 5.

Royals Manager Dick Howser knows how precarious his team's standing is.

"We've got to keep grinding them out," said Howser. "A one-game lead can disappear in one game. It gives you a little more leeway but it is still grinding-out time."

The Royals ground out Sunday's victory. After trailing 2-0 on Dave Henderson's two-run homer, KC sent nine men to the plate while scoring four runs in the fourth. Frank White belted a two-run homer, and Bucky Dent and Willie Wilson singled in runs.

Seattle tied it in the seventh on Jim Presley's two-run homer and went ahead 5-4 in the top of the ninth when John Moses scored from third base on Mark Huisman's throwing error on a routine bouncer.

That set the stage for the Royals' rally to first place.

Jorge Orta opened the KC ninth with a pinch single. Wilson singled Orta to second and Pat Sheridan walked to fill the bases before Darryl Motley flied to left to score pinch-runner Onix Concepcion.

Don Slaught then lined a pitch off reliever Ed Vande Berg to left field to score Wilson with the winning run.

"It does feel kind of funny," said Wilson. "We haven't been there (in first place) this late in the year in a while. But I can't get too happy because we still have a long way to go."

Rangers 9, Twins 3
Knuckleballer Charlie Hough continued his mastery of the host Twins, throwing a nine-hitter and striking out eight. Hough has an 8-0 career mark against Minnesota.

He was aided by home runs from

Donnie Scott, Gary Ward and Buddy Bell.

Minnesota now must regroup for the series with the Royals.

"We have to play that series for the momentum," Minnesota outfielder Mickey Hatcher said. "The biggest factor will be who comes out (of the series) with a lead. They'll have the momentum."

White Sox 8, Angels 2
Seaver threw a four-hitter for his 287th major-league win and was helped by a two-run double by Marc Hill and Vance Law's two-run single. Greg Walker homered for the host Sox. Both California runs were unearned.

Tigers 7, Blue Jays 2
Detroit concluded a sweep in Toronto that dropped the Tigers' magic number for clinching the East to nine as Kirk Gibson slammed a mammoth homer and Johnny Grubb also connected. The Blue Jays are 11 1/2 games back.

"It was awesome," Gibson said. "Three games! The best thing we could possibly do and we did it!"

Orioles 4, Brewers 0
Mike Boddicker, who won 16 games as a rookie last year, earned his league-leading 18th victory on a seven-hitter for his fourth shut-out. Cal Ripken Jr. clouted a two-run homer in support of Boddicker, 8-1 since July 23.

Red Sox 10, Yankees 1

streak at Boston with four hits — including a pair of run-scoring doubles — and Al Nipper threw a five-hitter for his fifth straight victory. Jim Rice contributed his 25th homer.

Boggs, the AL batting champ last year, went 11-for-15 in the three-game series to raise his batting average from .306 to .318.

"I feel with a little luck I could be hitting .330 or .335 right now," said Boggs, who batted .349 and .361 in his two previous major-league seasons. "I can think of a lot of places where I could have gotten other hits."

Dave Winfield, the AL's leading hitter, was 0-for-4 as his 20-game hit streak was snapped.

Indians 7, A's 5
Chris Bando and Joe Carter each homered, doubled and singled at Cleveland. Oakland's Rick Langford made his first start of the year after spending most of the season on the disabled list because of elbow surgery last summer.

"We know we're going to score runs," Bando said. "We've got these new players — Joe Carter, Mel Hall (acquired from the Chicago Cubs in June). We know we're going to explode. The attitude's good. It's a confident feeling."

Dave Kingman hit his 34th home run for Oakland and raised his RBI total for the season to 113, tops in the major leagues.

Redskins, San Francisco Battle In Title Rematch

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — If tonight's game between the Washington Redskins and San Francisco 49ers is as ferocious as last January's clash in the conference championship game, both teams might be in trouble.

This is only their second game of the National Football League's regular season, with 14 to go before the playoffs. After crunching bodies through a long afternoon eight months ago, the Redskins were aching and wheezing. And they won.

The 49ers, supposedly a "mess" team, delivered and took their hardest hits of the season in that game. They lost by the difference of two penalties and a last-minute field goal, 24-21, but they wore their wounds proudly.

Bill Walsh, the San Francisco coach, expects a similar game this time, and hopes the officials won't call every little bump. He hasn't forgotten the pass interference penalty on Eric Wright and the holding penalty on Ronnie Lott prior to Mark Moseley's winning field goal in the title game.

While complaining again about those "phantom" calls, Walsh indicated that he'd like to see more good, clean, rock 'em-sock 'em football, and fewer flags.

"You can't play defensive football with any reckless abandon because on virtually every close play people are looking for a flag, hoping for one, depending on what side you're on, and officials appear obligated to throw one," Walsh said.

film. Heiden said.

Simms tossed a 62-yard scoring pass to Byron Williams late in the first period to give the Giants a 7-0 lead and added two other TD passes, one 16 yards to rookie Lionel Manuel and the other 18 yards to Zeke Mowatt, after Dallas turnovers.

Raiders 28, Packers 7

Los Angeles knocked Green Bay quarterback Lynn Dickey out of the game with a bruised back in the first two minutes, then shut down the Packers' passing attack the rest of the game.

Rookie Randy Wright took over for Dickey and the Raiders' secondary, led by cornerbacks Mike Haynes and Lester Hayes, held him to 10 completions on 23 passes for 67 yards and two interceptions.

James Lofton and John Jefferson, Green Bay's star receivers, caught zero and three passes, respectively.

Jim Plunkett had a touchdown pass and Marcus Allen a 7-yard scoring run to lead the Raiders' offense.

Dolphins 28, Patriots 7

Dan Marino increased his two-game total to seven TD passes as he tossed a pair of scoring strikes to Mark Clayton within a 1:36 span of the third quarter to lead Miami.

The Dolphins, who have won 17 straight games over the Patriots in the Orange Bowl, broke away from a 7-7 halftime tie as Marino hit Clayton on a 38-yard play and connected with him again on a 15-yarder after a Patriots' tumble.

Miami intercepted four passes by Steve Grogan, including two by Glenn Blackwood. Mike Kozlowski returned another interception 26 yards, then lateraled to William Judson, who rambled another 60 yards for a touchdown.

Cardinals 37, Bills 7

Neil Lomax passed for two touchdowns and Ottis Anderson scored twice as St. Louis built a 31-0 lead.

Lomax delivered 4-yard scoring passes to Roy Green and Anderson in the opening 14 minutes and Anderson also scored from the 2 to help the Cardinals build a 24-0 halftime lead.

Stump Mitchell set up two scores with a 39-yard kickoff return and a 39-yard punt return.

Lions 27, Falcons 21

Gary Danielson completed 22 of 31 passes for Detroit and engineered a 51-yard drive in overtime that concluded with Ed Murray's winning 48-yard field goal.

The big play in the drive was Danielson's 30-yard pass to David Lewis down the middle for a first down at the Atlanta 34. A moment later, Murray booted the game-winner 5:06 into the extra period.

"The result was good, but I wasn't pleased with the kick," Murray said. "I knew it was long enough, but it was waving around a little bit and I was a little concerned with that. It started to move left, then floated right and went right through the middle."

Chiefs 27, Bengals 22

Todd Blackledge improved Kansas City's record to 2-0 in his second career start with two touchdown passes, including a 19-yarder to Carlos Carson that gave the Chiefs the lead for good.

With the Bengals ahead 17-14, Blackledge completed six passes on a 75-yard drive, including the toss to Carson.

Blackledge also had a 46-yard scoring pass to Anthony Hancock.

Rams 20, Browns 17

Eric Dickerson carried the load on Los Angeles' final drive that ended with Mike Lansford's 27-yard field goal with 1:25 to play.

Dickerson, who gained 102 yards on 27 carries in the game, got 48 of his yards on six carries in the drive that saw the Rams march 61 yards to the Cleveland 9.

Leroy Irvin had an 81-yard interception run for a touchdown for

"They needed a sweep and they didn't get it." Cubs outfielder Keith Moreland said Sunday after the Mets prevailed 5-1 behind Ron Darling and Hubie Brooks.

In other NL games Sunday, Philadelphia needed 11 innings to defeat Montreal 6-5, St. Louis edged Pittsburgh 2-1, San Diego clobbered Houston 8-4, Cincinnati downed Los Angeles 5-1, and San Francisco beat Atlanta 6-4.

The Cubs' magic number holds at 14 because of the loss, but to listen to Chicago Manager Jim Frey you would think it was just the opposite.

"When we started this 11-game road trip," Frey said, "I thought it would be good for us to go six-and-five. We went seven-and-four. We're in a better position than we were 10 days ago."

Ten days from now, the NL East race could well be over if past records hold up.

Next weekend, the Mets will visit Chicago's Wrigley Field for three games. So far this year the Cubs have won all six games played in Chicago, a fact the Mets are well aware of.

"We're going to try real hard not to think about those games," Brooks, who launched a three-run homer in the sixth inning Sunday, said. "We'd rather not play there. But there's no getting around it. We'll have to show up. We don't have any room for error right now. We have our work cut out for us and God only knows what the Cubs can do there."

What the Cubs couldn't do in Shea Stadium Sunday was come up with solid relief for starter Scott Sanderson, who pitched five scoreless innings before being forced to leave with back spasms, a condition that put him on the disabled list for a month earlier in the season.

George Frazier, 5-3, started the sixth inning having yielded only one earned run in his last 19 innings over eight appearances. Mookie Wilson tripled on Frazier's first pitch and Keith Hernandez doubled for a 1-0 lead.

Darryl Strawberry struck out but reached first and Hernandez third on a third-strike wild pitch. George Foster chased Frazier with an RBI single and that brought on Warren Brusstar, whom Brooks greeted with a three-run blast to right, his 15th homer of the year.

Waltrip Pleased With Wrangler 400 Victory

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip said everything about the fall Wrangler 400 NASCAR Grand National race was the same as the spring event — except the ending.

"In the spring, we led most of the race — about 350 laps — but Ricky (Rudd) caught us," Waltrip said Sunday after claiming his fifth victory of the season. "I could almost see that happening again."

But Waltrip used a late pit stop to correct a tire problem, then pulled away to victory in the 216.8-mile race.

The win kept alive Waltrip's hopes for a third Grand National championship, which he captured in 1981 and 1982.

Waltrip started from the pole position and quickly established his Chevrolet as the dominant car in the field. The only times he yielded the lead during the first 200 laps came Darling, 12-6, allowed five hits through eight innings and was lifted in favor of Jesse Orosco after Gary Matthews led off the ninth with his 12th home run of the season.

Phillies 6, Expos 5
Pinch-hitter John Russell lofted a sacrifice fly with the bases loaded in the 11th inning to snap the Phillies' six-game losing streak. Rich Schu singled with one out in the top of the 11th off reliever Joe Hesketh, 1-1. Glenn Wilson doubled him to third, chasing Hesketh. Dick Grapenthin walked pinch-hitter Sixto Lezcano intentionally, setting the stage for Russell.

The Expos were one out away from victory as they led 5-3 in the ninth with the bases empty and two out. But Von Hayes walked, Mike Schmidt lined an RBI double to right and reliever Bob James brought Schu, a pinch runner, home with a wild pitch and a balk. Schmidt hit his 30th home run of the year, the sixth straight year and 10th time overall he has reached that mark.

when he pitted under caution on laps 133 and 157.

But after a pit stop on lap 215, Waltrip's car appeared to weaken and Rudd, who carried on a race-long battle for second place with Dale Earnhardt, took the lead on the backstretch of lap 276.

Waltrip explained that a problem with his tires had caused him to fall from the lead.

"Up to that point, the pit stop on 215, we could just about run away from everybody at will," Waltrip said. "But we had problems for a hundred or so laps with a set of tires."

When Trevor Boys spun out in turn 1 on lap 342, Waltrip used the opportunity to pit. Rudd, the leader, also pitted and both changed all four tires.

PBS Show Offers Nature, Science At Sea

By LEE MITGANG
AP Education Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Voyage of the Mimi" is an unusual television voyage, a 13-episode adventure trip aboard a schooner produced to show young audiences the raw excitement of nature and science.

The series could be seen as a simple Disney-esque yarn about a crew that takes off for the icy waters of Maine to study whales, is shipwrecked in a raging storm and uses brains and ingenuity to find food and water on a North Atlantic island. Along the way, warm human bonds are formed.

But "Voyage of the Mimi" is up to much more than that. The public television series, premiering today on many stations, is the result of a $2.65 million Department of Education grant aimed at giving children better understanding of math, science and technology.

The program most home viewers will see is merely one part of a multimedia package consisting of TV shows, student and teacher guides, and computer software that will eventually be sold for school use this fall.

The Bank Street College of Education in New York produced the series using the federal funds, and Holt, Rinehart & Winston spent an additional $1 million to produce the computer software and the teacher and student lesson guides. The program is geared to fourth through sixth graders, but is suitable for up to eighth grade.

The multimedia nature of "Mimi" is both its strength and weakness. Only youngsters lucky enough to attend a school willing to spend $987.16 for the multimedia package of videotapes, lesson plans and computer games will get the full and rich educational benefits of the series.

Most home viewers will see only the public TV show, however — wholesome viewing, no doubt, but not exactly gripping fare.

Each half-hour episode has two 15-minute parts: the first part is the dramatic episode of the Voyage of the Mimi, and the second is a documentary "expedition," a science lesson based on the voyage.

The first episode, "All Aboard," introduces the characters — which is about all you can do in 15 minutes. It doesn't make for a strong series kick-off — too bad, because it may deter viewers from seeing later episodes, which are much more entertaining and informative.

There's Captain Granville, gruff skipper of the Mimi, his 11-year-old grandson, C.T., Sally Ruth Cochran, a deaf college student majoring in marine biology, Anne Abrams, an oceanographer, Rachel Fairbanks, a rich kid from the suburbs with a chip on her shoulders because her parents are separated, Arthur Spencer, a black high school student who arrives with a suitcase-sized radio, and Ramon Rojas, a marine biologist.

Besides science study, a key theme of the series is people learning to work with and enjoy others who are different, like deaf people.

The 15-minute documentary accompanying the first episode is called "Planet Ocean" and features Benn Affleck, the actor who plays young C.T., and Dr. Sylvia Earle, explaining the work being done at the New England Aquarium in Boston.

Later episodes are more rewarding. The ninth episode, "Shipwrecked," has Captain Granville nearly dying of hypothermia, saved by the body heat of Ramon and Arthur. But the crew of the badly damaged Mimi realizes they are on an island, and are therefore isolated. They will have to survive with their wits.

The following episode, cleverly named "Making Dew," shows how the parched crew figures out how to use the sun to turn sea water into fresh water. The follow-up documentary is a fascinating look at how physicist Ted Frey has been helping solve a water shortage in Greenport, N.Y., by freezing and draining sea water.

"The Voyage of the Mimi" is wholesome educational television for young viewers that gets better as it goes along. Stick with it, flaws and all.

'Bolero' Helps Pay Off Ranch

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — John and Bo Derek say their new film, "Bolero," may be a "silly bit of fluff," but it helps pay for their 32-acre Santa Barbara ranch.

"Oh, if the day ever comes when I can raise money without Bo, then maybe I'll make a different sort of film. But right now, what we're doing is helping pay for the ranch which we love," said Derek, 58, who wrote and directed "Bolero" with his wife as star and producer.

The Cannon Pictures film was released without a rating, presumably because extensive nudity and sex scenes would have earned it an X.

It grossed more than $4 million dollars during its four-day Labor Day weekend debut, but critics scored it as boring and silly.

"The critics don't worry us," Derek said. "But why do they feel the need to attack us? This film isn't meant to be taken seriously."

"The film is meant to be corny," Ms. Derek, 27, said. "And, listen, it's so innocent. If Hugh Hefner went to see it he'd be bored to tears."

JOINS CAST — Actress Gina Lollobrigida and actor Robert Foxworth perform in a scene for a segment of the TV series "Falcon Crest" scheduled to be shown in October. ## Panda Birthday Bash

MADRID (AP) — Chu-lin, one of a few panda bears born in captivity, is scheduled to celebrate his second birthday Sunday with 9,000 children and over a ton of cake, Madrid zoo officials said today.

But Chu-lin, who weighs 190 pounds, is expected to abstain from birthday cake and stick to bamboo.

The playful panda eats over eight pounds daily, zoo officials said.

The young panda is the offspring of two pandas the Chinese government gave Spain in 1978. Chu-lin's mother Shao-shao died last year.

Jones Says Bad Habits Gone

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music star George Jones says honkytonk drinking turned into years of alcohol and drug dependency. But he says the wild ways that got him the nickname "no show" Jones for his habit of missing concerts are behind him now.

"I was about as crazy and messed up and wild as you can get. I was doing all kinds of drugs, marijuana, cocaine, booze. You name it and I was doing it," Jones said.

"Changing my life wasn't easy. ... But now that it's done, it's fantastic," he added in a copyright story in Sunday editions of The Tennessean of Nashville.

"A couple of years ago, I realized it was up to me to put the pieces of my life back together again," he said. "I did some strong, deep thinking, and I knew it had to change, and I knew I had to do it alone."

Jones, who is divorced from country singer Tammy Wynette, said if he had to divert blame for his alcohol and drug abuse from himself he would point to the atmosphere of country bars and nightclubs, where careers either blossom or die on the stem.

Jackson Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jermaine Jackson is suing an accounting firm for $2 million, saying he and his superstar brother Michael didn't approve the $1.2 million fee paid to the company out of the "Victory Tour" earnings.

Jackson filed the suit against the Moultrie Accountancy Corp. of Los Angeles and its owner, Fred Moultrie, in Los Angeles County Superior Court on Friday.

According to the suit, Moultrie took $1.2 million, or 5 percent of the Jacksons' tour earnings, under an agreement signed by four of the six brothers. But because Michael and Jermaine didn't sign the May 7 agreement, Moultrie was entitled to only $300,000, the suit claims.

Jackson also claims Moultrie is not a licensed certified public accountant and seeks an order forbidding him from receiving more money from the pop music group.

Moultrie was not at his office Friday and would not be available for comment until Monday, said a spokesman who would not give his name.

Judge Lawrence Waddington set a hearing for Monday.

Actress Builds Home For Doll Collection

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Jane Withers, the child star who became Josephine, the lady plumber of television commercial fame, is getting ready to display her collection of more than 8,000 dolls in a studio where she also plans to make family films.

With the collaboration of Chuck Rice, Miss Withers is building the studio next to Rice's ColorHouse film processing firm in Burbank. It will cost nearly $1 million, including the land, and will also feature a run for stray dogs and cats she picks up until she can find them permanent homes. It is expected to be completed in about three months.

Star Left Films For Normal Life

CONROE, Texas (AP) — Barbara McCollum, who starred as Darla in dozens of "Our Gang" films, says she left show business as a teen-ager for a "happy, normal life" with her husband and three children.

Miss Withers, 58, starred in dozens of films and radio shows as a child. By 1947, she had collected 3,500 dolls, many of which were displayed during World War II in a two-year traveling show that raised $2.5 million in 10-cent war stamp admissions.

Now at 53, she is preparing for her 35th high school reunion, at which she plans to perform a dance routine. Otherwise, she said, she doesn't perform because she doesn't want to be away from her husband for long, although she has happy memories.

But when she married Texas rancher and oilman Bill Moss, "He didn't want to see all these dolls around," she said. "So my mother and I wrapped each one individually, but I said to my dolls, 'It's OK, kids. ... One day, we'll take you out for the whole world to see again.'"

"I enjoyed doing all of it. I liked dressing up," she said. "We rode horses. I got to fly and ride in boats. This was during a time when most families — including mine — didn't even have cars."

She and Moss divorced in 1954, and in 1955 she married Kenneth Errair of the Four Freshman singing group. He died in 1968.

But at 17 she met her husband, Jim, and was married after 12 weeks.

"I wanted a happy, normal life," she said. "As a general rule, actors are not too happy."

Rhetoric Obscures Agreement On I-40

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Arguments between gubernatorial candidates Rufus Edmisten and Jim Martin over completion of Interstate 40 have obscured the fact that they agree on a timetable for finishing the highway.

The rhetoric also may have obscured the real debate — the source of money to build the 90-mile link between Benson and Wilmington and the road projects that will suffer to allow completion of the link to one of the state's ports.

Edmisten, a Democrat and state attorney general, said I-40 has "my highest priority." He wants to let all contracts on the road in the next four years so motorists will be driving on the road in 1990.

Martin, a Republican congressman from the 9th District, said he is convinced the highway is "the single most important project in the entire state because of the sea port." He also wants to let all the contracts in the next four years.

Thirty-four miles of the missing link are under construction and the right of way has been purchased for the entire 90-mile segment, said Highway Administrator Billy Rose. The scheduled completion date is 1993.

The road will be expensive — an estimated $115 million to $120 million with approximately $12 million set to be spent each year.

"I would attempt to go to Washington and get more federal (money) commitment," Edmisten said. "The money situation could get better. You cannot say one road in the state of North Carolina is the only road that's going to get any attention."

Martin argues that the state can't count on getting more money from the federal government so it must take money from all other highway projects, delaying some roads and improvements by a year.

Rose said the I-40 project accounts for one-fourth of all federal aid to North Carolina for primary road programs. Other highways competing for that money include U.S. 74 in the Whiteville area, U.S. 74 west of Charlotte and U.S. 321 between Dallas and Hickory.

A new source of funds is the $54 million-a-year resurfacing fund, Rose said. Draining money from that source would mean postponing or eliminating plans to upgrade some roads.

Projects in that category include widening Interstate 85 around Charlotte and making I-85 six lanes wide from Durham to Greensboro.

Edmisten argues the General Assembly, which has been predominantly Democratic, would never allow a Republican governor to tamper with the highway construction schedule.

Martin argues President Reagan will probably be re-elected, and a GOP administration would not be inclined to give a Democratic governor more highway money.

Edmisten charges Martin with sacrificing all highways to build I-40. Edmisten has promised to make a top priority construction of several other highways.

but he acknowledged last week that those roads already are scheduled for completion.

"If you want to be governor you better realize there is more than one road," Edmisten said.

Martin accuses Edmisten of making hollow promises because those roads were made a top priority long before the Democrat began running for governor.

"It is standard practice in North Carolina politics to promise everybody every highway," Martin said. "I decided not to promise highways that there is no money for. Any candidate who promises every highway is not promising anything."

Edmisten says the highway issue is not a "burning issue in the state of North Carolina." He said Martin is bowing the issue out of proportion in an attempt to get votes in eastern North Carolina.

"I'd be proud to win votes by building the highway issue into an issue of integrity rather than the old game of illusions," Martin said.

Jail Suicide Increase Cited By Examiner

GREENSBORO (AP) — With a tougher drunken driving law filling jails, the state should examine statistics showing many jail suicides are committed by people facing alcohol-related charges, says the state's chief medical examiner.

"I'm concerned," said Dr. Page Hudson. "I'm not saying we should not have these laws. I'm saying we probably are going to have to take a close look at what happens."

"It'll be interesting to see what happens with the get-tough-with-drunk-drivers laws and people are put in jail on the first or second DWI (driving while impaired) offense," he added.

Hudson's study conducted between 1972 and 1976 found that 62 percent of the people who took their lives within the first 24 hours of being jailed in North Carolina were facing alcohol-related charges.

Of those who committed suicide within the first 12 hours of being jailed, 85 percent still were intoxicated at the time of death, Hudson's study showed.

The typical victim was a 22-year-old white, single male whose arrest involved alcohol.

Keith McKeown, assistant director for the National Coalition for Jail Reform in Washington, D.C., said guilt and the "jail environment" were the biggest factors in leading inmates to kill themselves.

"It's an embarrassing situation," added Capt. W.R. Becker, commander of detention services for the Guilford County Jail. "If you're talking DWI — these are John Q. Publics who have a drink on a Friday night, not wanting to hurt anyone, and then a highway patrolman sees him weaving. "There are lot of newcomers, first encounters with the justice system and the law says you will pull time in jail," he said. "It doesn't matter if you've been in jail one time or 1,000 times, it's an embarrassment."

Hudson said his study had led jailers to routinely take belts from inmates and keep a closer watch on prisoners during their first 24 hours behind bars.

Even so, the suicides continue. Seven jail inmates have killed themselves in North Carolina this year.

After the suicide of Harvey Wayne

Perras, 37, in the Guilford County jail Aug. 18, after he had been booked on charges of assaulting a female and damaging property, jail personnel began keeping records on potential suicide victims. The information is exchanged between the Greensboro and High Point jails, and as each new inmate is processed the file is checked for his name.

"If someone comes in and even mentions suicide in passing as a joke, we pass the word on," said Becker. "You have to take the jokes seriously because if he does end up killing himself, you can be accused of negligence."

Bill Friday To Decide This Week On Retirement Date

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Amidst speculation that he'll soon relinquish his post, University of North Carolina System President William Friday says he should know by the middle of this week whether he'll retire after this year.

Friday's comments that it would be appropriate to retire at age 65 also encouraged the speculation.

The 64-year-old UNC president recently said he has not made up his mind about when he will retire, but he has traditionally asked the chancellors of the 16 UNC campuses to step down at age 65.

In interviews Friday has said he probably would not wait for mandatory retirement at age 70 and that he would give the UNC Board of Governors at least one year's notice of his decision. The board is scheduled to meet in Chapel Hill Friday.

Friday had said July 27 after a board meeting that he hoped to use an August vacation to think about his future. But he said he reached no decision and that the press of his work in the past month had been more than he expected.

"I haven't done a thing," he said. "It's just a matter of priorities."

Friday, a native of Raphine, Va., who grew up in Dallas, N.C., became president of the old Consolidated University of North Carolina in 1956, succeeding the late Gordon Gray.

Since all the state's public universities were merged into the University of North Carolina in 1972, Friday has had the support of the Board of Governors, a 32-member body appointed by the General Assembly for staggered eight-year terms.

In July, the board gave Friday a 29-percent pay raise to $115,000 a year, although Friday had not sought the raise and later said he might not accept all of it. Some board members said at the time that the high salary might help attract top-notch candidates to succeed Friday when necessary.

State's Poultry Industry Recovers

GREENSBORO (AP) — Low prices plaguing North Carolina poultry producers in the last few years have vanished, making this year one of the strongest, industry spokesmen say.

"We're in a real healthy situation," said Larry Tetterton, chief of the Poultry Section in the department's Division of Marketing. "Prices are holding fairly steady."

The state's egg industry was especially strong in the first half of the year, he said.

Experts agree that overproduction sparked the poor prices for broilers, turkeys and eggs in the early 1980s, but the industry's turnaround has come more from plant closings, reorganizations and the improved national economy than from reduced output.

"It seems like it's feast or famine in the poultry business," said Johnnie Thompson, general manager of the Perdue Farms Inc. broiler operation in the Moore County town of Robbins. "We're back in good shape right now."

Last year the industry grossed $912 million, second only to tobacco in state agribusiness, to rank fourth nationally in broiler production with nearly 420 million birds, according to the state Agriculture Department's Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. The state ranked first in turkey production in 1983 with nearly 29 million birds.

The figures do not vary much from the 423 million broilers and 27 million turkeys produced in 1981, but in that year and 1982, broiler producers were losing up to 30 cents on every bird while turkey producers saw prices fall until they lost $2 on every turkey slaughtered.

David Bowden, a market news specialist with the Department of Agriculture, said dock prices for broilers recently have ranged from 47 cents to 58½ cents per pound — up from 38 cents in 1981.

Hunt, Helms Pleased At Second Debate

WILMINGTON (AP) — Republican Sen. Jesse Helms and Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt had different goals for their second debate, but each of the U.S. Senate candidates emerged confident about his performance.

"I wanted to establish who Jim Hunt is ... and talk about the kind of senator I would be," Hunt said after an hour-long debate Sunday night that was televised statewide from Wilmington station WWAY-TV.

"I think that came through time and time again," Hunt said.

Helms said the debate went well for him. He refused to compare it with the July 29 debate but repeated criticism of the debate format.

"I had hoped the governor and I could sit down ... man to man and discuss the issues without this kind of dog and pony show," Helms said.

Helms outlined his purpose in the debate during opening remarks.

"The foremost issue in this campaign is credibility," he said.

Repeatedly during the debate, Helms questioned Hunt's honesty in claims about attracting jobs to the state, promises to protect the environment and support for a Martin Luther King holiday.

Meanwhile Hunt pressed Helms about his future proposals to help farmers, clean up hazardous waste spills and make taxes fair for working people as well as corporations.

The debate covered many topics raised in the first confrontation and in an expensive advertising campaign by the candidates. Helms has raised $8.4 million and spent most of that money, the latest campaign spending reports show. Hunt has raised $5.1 million and is saving some of that amount for a final ad blitz.

The debate opened with a two-minute statement from each man, followed by four questions from the candidates and two from local journalists. During the last 30 minutes the candidates directly questioned each other.

The moderator was George Diab, president-elect of the North Carolina Association of Broadcasters and president of WWAY-TV.

Another regional debate is set for Sept. 23 in Charlotte, and a second statewide debate is scheduled for Oct. 13.

About 100 Hunt supporters waited in the rain to greet the candidates as they arrived. They waved "Hunt for Senate" signs and chanted the same message. After Hunt arrived, they went to a local hotel to watch the debate and celebrate.

About a dozen Helms' supporters, one of them wearing a Ronald Reagan mask, held a banner and cheered as Helms entered and left the studio.

Each candidate was allowed to take three aides into the studio with him while more than 35 reporters watched on television monitors in an adjoining studio.

Several times during the debate, Hunt challenged Helms "to put aside all the negativism and tell us his vision for progress." Hunt promised not to air negative television ads if Helms would do the same.

"We have not put on any negative ads, we're just telling the truth about you," Helms said.

Some of the major issues discussed by the candidates were:

King Holiday
Helms asked whether Hunt was hiding his support for a Martin Luther King holiday by advertising his position in an ad published only in black newspapers.

"I have been on record in news conference after news conference saying 'yes' I support that holiday for Martin Luther King that 10 of our 11 congressmen voted for," Hunt said.

He charged Helms with trying to divide North Carolinians on the issue.

"Maybe you really don't know what's been going on here but people have been working together," Hunt said of blacks and whites in North Carolina. "We're not going to go back now and open those old wounds. That's what you want to do... The people of North Carolina have come too far for that."

Helms called the answer a "fine political speech" but asked, "Which is more important to you governor, getting yourself elected with that enormous bloc vote or protecting the constitution and the people of North Carolina?" Hunt, in his rebuttal, asked Helms "how far back do you want to take us—20, 30, 40 years?"

Tax Fairness
Hunt said Helms had voted to give oil companies $227 billion in tax cuts in 1979 and $60 billion in tax cuts in 1981 while refusing to ease the tax burden on working people. He noted that Helms is receiving money from oil and chemical companies' political action committees.

Helms said Hunt had received a contribution from the biggest oil company in the world and was bringing up the issue because, "he either doesn't understand the legislative process or he wants to convolute it or distort it."

Helms said there are not many tax loopholes left to close to make taxes fairer. He asked if Hunt wanted to eliminate deductions for mortgage interest, medical care payments or charitable contributions.

Hunt said he would leave those deductions but questioned whether Helms would.

Education
Helms said he has voted against some education programs in Congress because "the federal government ought not be in the process of education."

He asked voters to look at Hunt's record. He said Hunt has "jerked teachers around on pay raises" and said test scores are not improving.

Hunt said the scores have risen since he took office and said education does need federal help. He said the programs which Helms opposed meant teachers and aides for classrooms.

Jobs
Helms said Hunt has claimed credit for creating more than 200,000 new jobs during his administration, but Georgia got more than 400,000 new jobs during the same time. Helms also charged that many of the jobs for which Hunt takes credit do not exist.

"The percentage growth of jobs in North Carolina during Governor Hunt's administration, eight years, is less than that of all of our neighboring states," Helms said.

Hunt said that was Helms' "typical negative approach" to attack him without telling what he would do to improve the state's economy.

Hunt said more new plants for U.S. companies came to the state than any other state and more than one-half of the new plants for overseas companies went to North Carolina. He said more than 240,000 new jobs were created in manufacturing.

"I go out and work hard at it ... and Senator Helms works against the things we need," Hunt said, citing money for water and sewer projects.

"The best industrial development, the best farm program that Congress can write is a balanced budget with cutting federal spending and letting the private sector go to work," Helms responded.

Superfund
Hunt asked Helms if he would continue to oppose the Superfund, which would help pay to clean up toxic waste dumps.

"The Superfund is an overly expensive bill and I'm going to vote against an overly expensive bill every time," Helms said, charging Hunt with trying to solve problems by throwing money at them.

Hunt said Helms has the worst environmental record in Congress and said he's sheltering chemical and oil companies from paying for cleaning up spills.

Helms challenged Hunt's record, pointing to the PCBs that were found along North Carolina roads and buried in Warren County. Helms said that was the area least able to resist the dump. He also charged that Hunt "made a secret deal" with Virginia to allow water to be piped from Lake Gaston to Virginia Beach, Va.

Reagan
Helms, repeating his strong support for President Reagan, pressed Hunt to say whether he supported President Reagan's economic policies.

Hunt asked if Helms and Reagan were such good friends why couldn't he help tobacco farmers and textile workers in North Carolina.

"You see when it comes to bread and butter issues ... you're not there," Hunt said. "But you are there snapping a picture with the president."

Hunt said he opposed Reagan's cuts in education and some other areas. He promised that if he goes to Washington he will vote his own way.

"Mr. Hunt doesn't want you to know it but he's a Mondale liberal and he's ashamed of it," Helms said in his closing statement. "I'm a Reagan conservative and proud of it."

Transportation Available For Bumper '84 Harvests

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Plenty of railroad cars, trucks and barges are available to haul this year's bumper harvests, says the Agriculture Department.

For example, at midyear the fleet of jumbo covered hopper cars totaled more than 230,000 cars, a growth of 14 percent from 1980, according to a new outlook report by the department's Economic Research Service.

In 1980, an average of more than 29,000 cars was loaded with grain each week, the report said. So far in 1984 27,185 cars averaging 3,300 bushels of grain each, have been loaded per week. Railroads can handle another 7 million to 8 million bushels per week, it noted.

Barge operators also are experiencing substantial surplus capacity. Last year barges hauled an average of 40.8 million bushels of grain each week. Through mid-1984, they averaged only 32.8 million bushels.

"The U.S. truck fleet seems to be expanding," the report said. "Preliminary indications point to 172,000 more van trailers this year, about 51,000 more than were added in 1983."

Many of the new trucks reflect the increases in size and weight permitted by the Surface Transportation Act of 1982 and "represent a larger average addition to capacity" than those built in 1983, the report said. Also, large trucks now can operate more widely than before, on up to 60 percent of the nation's primary and interstate highways.

The report was written by T.Q. Hutchinson of the research service, who cautioned that despite the surplus of equipment, "brief localized shortages have occurred among rail cars to carry grain and trucks to haul produce" to market.

"These shortages result from the difficulty in predicting the exact time of harvest in a specific area, and seldom indicate an overall shortage of equipment," the report said.

Ocean vessels for handling agricultural exports were reported in good supply this season.

Transportation costs are up from last spring, including Interstate Commerce Commission approval for a 0.4 percent increase in rail rates, effective on July 1.

"Early indications are that the increases have not been applied uniformly to grain rates," the report said. "For example, rates for sunflower seed from Aberdeen, S.D., to Duluth-Superior rose in July by as much as six cents per 100 pounds (4 percent) for 80-ton carloads. But rates for other oilseeds and grains, shipments of 105-ton carloads, and multicar shipments were unchanged."

"It appears that shippers able to load large volumes will be little affected by the ICC's July decision." Barge rates are expected to "exhibit their usual volatility" this fall,

Farm Scene

By LEROY JAMES
County Extension Chairman

Other than some early season insects, soybeans were relatively free of insect damage throughout the month of July. We are now, however, in the season in which most foliage-feeding and pod-feeding insects cause the greatest damage.

No one can accurately predict how damaging soybean insects will be in 1984. Weather conditions could be an important factor. Most soybeans look good and have excellent yield potential. Field surveys indicate that green clover worms, bean leaf beetles, stink bugs and yellow-striped army worms are present in low numbers. Soybean loopers, velvet bean caterpillars and pod worms are being reported occasionally in light numbers.

Every soybean field in North Carolina should be surveyed at least weekly for the remainder of the season. Much economic damage from insects could be avoided with timely insecticide applications.

Velvet bean caterpillars have four pairs of pro-legs and are very active when disturbed. Color varies from green to black with faint white stripes down the sides. They are serious foliage feeders but are easy to control with low rates of recommended insecticides.

Soybean loopers have two pairs of pro-legs. The larvae loop when they crawl and are green in color with white stripes down the sides of older larvae. They are serious foliage feeders and very difficult to control with most insecticides.

Green clover worms have three pairs of pro-legs and the larvae loop when they crawl. They are very active when disturbed and are green in color with white stripes down the sides. They are not serious foliage feeders and insecticide controls are necessary in about one out of every five years. The larvae are very susceptible to naturally occurring diseases.

Beet army worms have four pairs of pro-legs and are green in color with a characteristic black dot above the second pair of true legs. They are primarily dry weather pests and are very difficult to control with insecticides.

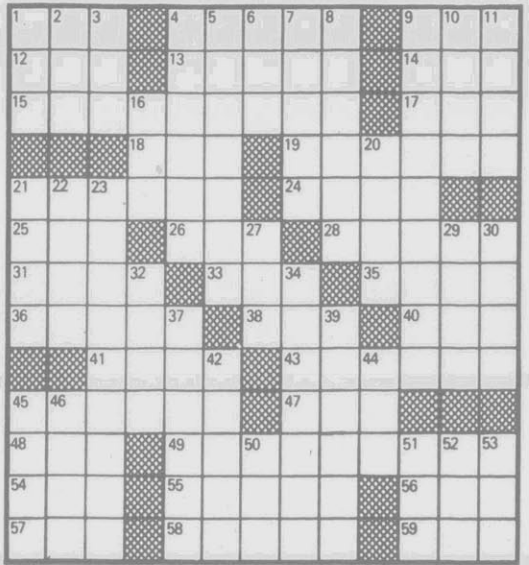

Corn ear worms have four pairs of pro-legs. The color varies from yellow to green, brown to pink, with various colored stripes down each side. They are inactive when knocked off soybean plants.

Stink bugs may be brown or green, depending on the species. Both nymphs and adults suck juice from soybean pods, causing pod shed, or in older pods, a discoloration of the beans and subsequent reduction in grade.

Heavy populations of stink bugs may occur in isolated parts of a soybean field. Unless fields are closely examined, such infestations may go unnoticed.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Put ideas across to others that can add considerably to present assets, but don't be extravagant in finding amusement.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be a born pioneer and quite different from most other children, and will want to delve into all sorts of things early in life, so give a good deal of attention so that the energies are directed in right directions. ### Cliff Collapses, Trapping Man And Woman

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — A man in his early 20s was killed and his female companion injured when a cliff collapsed atop the beach where they were sunbathing, burying them in rocks and dirt.

"From what we can determine, the man was killed instantly," sheriff's Deputy Donald Patterson said. "The female was buried completely by the dirt, but witnesses came over and dug down to the girl, to her head so she could get oxygen, and that saved her."

The woman, identified as Kristin Calene, 21, of Santa Barbara, was flown by sheriff's helicopter to Goleta Valley Hospital where she was in stable condition with several broken bones, Patterson said.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1 — East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦Q6 ♥Q92 ♦A10762 ♣QJ10

The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♥ Pass Pass 1 NT
Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A. — Be careful. In the balancing seat, partner could bid one no trump on as few as 11-12 HCP — with 16, he would first double. Still, your hand merits a move toward game, and two no trump is the obvious bid.

Q.2 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦7 ♥J103 ♦QJ983 ♣K1052

Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What action do you take?
A. — It might seem that, with only 7 HCP, you should be content to leave well enough alone. However, you have excellent fillers and a fair five-card suit, so we feel that the hand merits an invitational raise to two no trump.

Q.3 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦854 ♥Q853 ♦AJ95 ♣62

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♣ 1 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A. — It is unlikely that you have game, but you should rarely pass partner's overall when you have four-card support and useful side values. Raise to two hearts. That not only makes it harder for the opponents to get back into the auction, but confirmation of a fit could be the key to unlock a game for your side.

Q.4 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦A6542 ♥J103 ♦7 ♣A876

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♣ 1 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A. — If you bid one spade or raised to two hearts, you need to brush up on your basic bidding. A bid of one spade would not be forcing, and could end the auction when four hearts is a spread. In support of hearts, your hand is almost the equivalent of an opening bid, so it is only a question of whether you should bid four hearts or three. Lack of a fourth heart is the compelling argument against a jump to game. Be content to invite partner to game with a raise to three hearts.

Q.5 — Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AJ954 ♥763 ♦94 ♣AK9

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 1 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?
A. — Since you have a balanced minimum, the only sound action is to pass. Don't worry about the fact that you are somewhat short of stoppers in the red suits. A rebid of two spades in this sequence virtually guarantees a six-card suit.

Q.6 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦Q76 ♥8 ♦AK8763 ♣Q85

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♣ Pass 1 ♦ 1 ♥
2 ♦ 2 ♥ ?

What do you bid now?
A. — Partner surely has nine or ten cards in the minor suits, and he must have at least a couple of hearts. Therefore, he is short in spades and, as a result, your hands should fit very well. We suggest you waste no time and leap straight to five diamonds.

Storm Delays Shuttle Return

ALTUS, Okla. (AP) — Space agency officials kept a close eye today on tropical storm Diana to determine whether the space shuttle Discovery can continue on its way to the Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

The shuttle, riding piggyback atop a Boeing 747, made what was supposed to be a brief refueling stop at Altus Air Force Base on Sunday.

But Diana, which was whipping the northern Florida coast with high tides, wall-like waves and 70 mph winds, forced the shuttle to remain at this southwest Oklahoma air base overnight.

If the weather along the Florida coast cooperates, the space shuttle will leave today for the 3½-hour flight to Florida.

Discovery landed at the air base here Sunday as some 40,000 spectators watched.

There were worries that some of the shuttle's exotic fuel was still aboard, and spectators at first were kept 1,000 feet away as a precaution. A special team examined the shuttle and determined there was no danger, however.

Pope Backs Traditional Values

QUEBEC (AP) — Pope John Paul II, beginning his 12-day pilgrimage to Canada with a strong defense of traditional values, told Roman Catholics they must make faith the bedrock of modern culture.

"Do not accept a divorce between faith and culture," the pope told 250,000 worshippers — including Prime Minister John Turner — at an open-air Mass Sunday in the capital of Quebec province.

In remarks to a mainly French-speaking audience, he also paid tribute to Canada's ethnic diversity, then retired to prepare for his first meeting today with Indian and Eskimo groups at a shrine on the banks of the St. Lawrence River.

Several thousand native Canadians, representing Eskimos and nine Indian tribes, were scheduled to meet the pope at the sanctuary of St. Anne de Beaupre, dedicated to the patroness of Canada. It has been a pilgrimage site for centuries for Indians converted to Catholicism by French missionaries.

The session is one of three planned meetings with native groups during the pontiff's tour — the first visit by a pope to Canada.

Church officials said the pope specifically asked to meet with native groups, who are struggling to retain their cultural identity and — in some cases — demanding political self-determination.

Information released by the Conference of Canadian Bishops for the papal trip said Canada's native people have the highest rate of infant mortality in the country as well as the highest rates of suicide and unemployment.

Two years ago, John Paul met at the Vatican with four Canadian Indians who asked his help to protect their land rights.

As he opened his Canadian trip Sunday, the pontiff drew enthusiastic crowds to his processions around this historic walled city, many shouting, "Vive le pape!" — Long live the pope.

"I thank God that I had the chance to see him before I die," said Jean-Guy Grancher of Val Belair, Quebec. "But I'd say he's come 25 years too late. Nobody goes to church anymore."

Church officials say about 30 percent of Quebec's Roman Catholics attend church regularly.

At the outdoor Mass, John Paul cited contributions of various ethnic groups to the building of Canadian culture.

French Canada "has taken to itself a distinctive contribution of Amerindians and benefited from the English presence on this continent. It has been enriched by the successive waves of immigrants from all over," he said.

While the pope conducted Mass on a Laval University athletic field, late-afternoon sunshine turned to dusk, punctuated with lighted candles in the throng.

The church in heavily Roman Catholic Quebec has often been credited with enabling a distinct French-speaking culture to survive, despite the English conquest of North America in the 18th century.

But the church's unquestioned dominance over Quebec society, intact through the 1950s, has "shattered," in the past 25 years, the pope acknowledged.

"It is henceforth open to a variety of currents of thought: it must answer innumerable new questions," John Paul said in his homily, telling his audience to hold fast to their faith.

"In this changing society, dear brothers and sisters, you must learn to articulate your faith, and to live it," he said in fluent French.

"Faith will illuminate culture, it will give it savour, it will enhance it," he said. "If it is this way, the church will continue her mission through you."

"Faith will ask culture what values it promotes, what destiny it offers to life, what place it makes for the poor and the disinherited," John Paul said.

"Such a witness respects freedom of consciences, without thus abandoning them to certain 'imperatives' of modern civilization which claim to serve human advancement but which in fact detract from respect for life."

The choir sang a beloved Quebecois folk song, "Gens du Pays," to John Paul as the ceremony ended, and the pope responded by returning to the microphone and calling out, "Vive l'eglise du Quebec" — Long live the Quebec church.

Twenty-one years ago today, these students helped end segregation in the schools of Birmingham, Alabama. It had taken months of demonstrations before this remnant of "Jim Crow" passed into history. At its height, segregation took bizarre forms. In one state, whites and blacks had to use separate phone booths. Another state segregated gambling tables. And elsewhere, many courts supplied witnesses with separate Bibles on which to swear to tell the truth and nothing but.

'Altar Girls' Top Issue in Canada

OTTAWA (AP) — The Vatican has barred women from serving as "altar boys" at Pope John Paul II's Masses in Canada, a move highlighting the contrast between a traditionalist pope and a liberal, fast-changing Canadian church.

Many Canadian bishops are "embarrassed" by the Vatican decision, since women routinely function as altar servers during Mass in Canada, said the Most Rev. Fernand Lacroix, speaking at a briefing for reporters on Sunday, the first day of the pope's 12-day tour.

In one concession to Canadian practice, women will be allowed to distribute the Eucharist among the huge crowds expected for pontifical Masses during the visit.

The role of women at papal events is only one of a range of gender-related issues that have left some Canadian Roman Catholics disillusioned with central church policy.

A recent Montreal newspaper poll showed that large majorities of Catholics in Quebec province disagree with church prohibitions against artificial contraception, divorce and the ordination of women as priests, all issues that have been outspokenly defended by the 64-year-old pontiff.

The pope "will be made very much aware of all these surveys... the mood of the country," the Most Rev. Marcel Gervais, auxiliary bishop of London, Ontario, said Sunday in response to a reporter's question.

A Montreal group calling itself the Cooperative for Women's Freedom says it has collected the signatures of 1,140 Canadian women who pledge to withdraw from the Catholic Church because of its "anti-women laws."

On the flight from Rome to Quebec on Sunday to begin his Canadian pilgrimage, journalists asked Pope John Paul about this protest.

"They do so under their own responsibility," he replied. "I respect everybody. I love everybody. But the truth must always be defended."

A more vocal protest might occur Tuesday after the pope arrives in Montreal. A "Coalition against the Pope and His Visit" says it will stage a march there to demonstrate opposition to the pontiff's stand on issues involving women and other questions.

The Canadian church allows girls or women to assist at Mass in the customary role of altar boys, bearing implements for the service and otherwise helping the priest-celebrant, as well as leading the congregation in prayer. In some parishes, female servers are more common than males, Canadian clergymen say.

But the Vatican told Canadian church leaders that only young men — seminarians — could assist at John Paul's 12 Masses in Canada.

"We are somewhat embarrassed... We find it unfortunate that Rome is bothering with such a minor detail," Lacroix, a retired bishop, said when asked about the matter at a session arranged by the Canadian Conference of Catholic Bishops.

Bishop Gervais said there appeared to be a "lack of total logic" in the Vatican demand, since women will be allowed to function as communion servers, lectors and cantors during papal services here.

The movement for greater women's involvement in the church hierarchy also has gathered strength in the United States. Last year, a delegation of U.S. priests was instructed at the Vatican to withdraw church support from any groups supporting the ordination of women as priests.

Many proponents of women's ordination believe it would help revive the North American Catholic priesthood, shrinking because of a long-term decline in the number of seminarians.

In a recent issue of a Quebec feminist magazine, Catholic theologian Marie Gratton-Boucher dismissed the argument that "divine will," as evidenced by Christ's choice of only male disciples, prohibits ordination of women.

"It isn't God who said things should be so. It was human beings who grabbed the power, believing it to be their right," she said.

Graham Launches Crusade

MOSCOW (AP) — American evangelist Billy Graham, beginning a 12-day speaking tour of the Soviet Union, told a Soviet official that "peace will only come when we know God."

"I am an atheist," replied Vladimir V. Fitsev, deputy chairman of the Soviet council on religious affairs. But he also told the visiting Baptist preacher that the world's problems could be solved with mutual efforts toward peaceful coexistence.

Graham, who arrived in Moscow on Sunday, was traveling to Leningrad today, and was scheduled to lay a wreath in a cemetery there where victims of the World War II siege of Leningrad are buried.

Graham was met at the airport Sunday by Metropolitan Filaret, the patriarch of Moscow, and Andrei Klimenko, chairman of the All-Union Council of Evangelical Christians and Baptists. The religious leaders exchanged brief words of welcome and hopes for peace between the superpowers.

"There were people who said this was not the time to visit the Soviet Union in light of the present strained conditions" with the United States, Graham told officials and reporters.
