Diana Stalls After Slapping Wilmington

By MARY ANNE RHYNE

Associated Press Writer

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Hurricane Diana loitered just off the coast today, keeping thousands of refugees in emergency shelters as forecasters warned that the storm was intensifying and could still move toward land with its 115 mph winds and threat of giant storm tides.

"The problem this morning is we have a hurricane with no sense of direction," said Neil Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables, Fla.

Power outages, downed tree limbs and heavy rain were reported, but there were no serious injuries and some coastal communities nearest the storm's center reported no substantial damage.

"There's not even enough damage to try to put a dollar figure on," said Andy Atkinson, finance officer for New Hanover County and spokesman for emergency services during the hurricane.

"I got up and looked over the area and the damage looks minor," Wrightsville Beach Mayor Gene Floyd said today. "Everything's OK over here."

In Southport, near the tip of Cape Fear, a police dispatcher who wouldn't give her name said power was restored about 9 a.m. this morning and that there appeared to be no substantial damage other than tree limbs in the streets.

Diana's sustained winds around its center settled from 135 mph late Tuesday to 115 mph this morning, then rose to 120 mph. "Right now it's starting to intensify," Don Witten, National Weather Service spokesman in Washington, said at mid-morning.

The hurricane's eye was 45 miles east-southeast of Wilmington at 10 a.m., but in the city the wind blew at 29 mph this morning with gusts to 41 mph.

More than 14,000 evacuees went to 65 shelters during the night in a 12-county area of coastal North Carolina, Gov. Jim Hunt said. About 9,000 people had moved into shelters in South Carolina but were allowed to return home Tuesday.

Hunt, who was touring Wilmington this morning, warned residents to stay inside because Diana "is still a very dangerous storm" because of the possibility of heavy rain and the storm's erratic movement.

In three counties around Wilmington, some 16,000 people were without power, said Carolina Power & Light Co. spokesman Mac Harris.

Streets in Wilmington were passable this morning, but late Tuesday the wind had driven stinging walls of rain horizontally across empty streets. The city Police Department pulled its cruisers off the street and patrolled in borrowed four-wheel drive vehicles.

Nearly 700 National Guard troops were called out to assist with traffic and other evacuation work.

The National Weather Service reported today that 7 inches of rain had fallen in Wilmington since Tuesday morning, backing up storm sewers and threatening flooding in low-lying areas. Flooding was reported around the Pamlico and Albemarle sounds 225 miles to the north of Wilmington, as well as the Cape Fear and New Rivers.

Pitt Prepared, But Waiting

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County officials adopted a wait-and-see stance as hurricane Diana sat stalled off the North Carolina coast today.

The National Weather Service had warned that the hurricane, after making landfall, could follow a track to the east of Greenville. But Diana, rather than coming ashore, sat off the coast near Wilmington this morning.

Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby

Joyner said shelters at 13 schools throughout the county were opened at 10 p.m. Tuesday. "We had about 125 people. Wellcome Middle School and D.H. Conley had the largest crowds," he said.

Joyner, who said "there were no problems ... everything went real smooth," said there were still 10 people at the school in Grifton at 7:30 a.m. who were "planning to stay for a while." But he said persons at the other 12 schools left earlier in the morning.

"If there is a need for shelters," later today or tonight, "we will reopen them," Joyner said. "We're just waiting to see now what will happen. Everybody is on standby."

Mayo Allen, director of public works for the city of Greenville, said "we kept 12 employees here all night" but they were not called out. "If the storm is still around, we'll do the same tonight."

Malcolm Green, director of the electric system for the Greenville Utilities Commission, said his department "activated our storm restoration procedure at noon Tuesday" and refueled and stocked trucks, increased inventory of storm-sensitive material and reorganized crews to be ready to respond to an emergency.

"We're ready. But we're hoping it's a training exercise," Green said.

The National Guard's 514th Military Police Company in Greenville was activated about 7 p.m. Tuesday, as was the unit of the 213th MP Co.

Greenville Is Refuge For Some

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

Fearing the brunt of Hurricane Diana, residents of coastal North Carolina traveled inland Tuesday in search of refuge.

Hotel and motel managers in the Greenville area said all rooms were filled Tuesday night and no-vacancy signs were expected again tonight as the hurricane skirted the North Carolina shore.

On The Camelot Inn's guest register Tuesday night were people from Emerald Isle, Washington, Morehead City, Beaufort, Oriental and Indian Beach, among other coastal locations, said manager Don McLane. He said a lot of them are planning to stay on in Greenville tonight.

"They are moving inland and are bringing some of their things," he said. "They are coming in to Greenville for their peace of mind. It is a lot easier to move here where the land is high and wait it out than to stay near the coast until the last minute."

Clerk Gary Johnson at The Ramada Inn said many of his customers were from the Morehead City and Atlantic Beach areas.

"A lot of people are annoyed because it (the storm) didn't turn out to be as big as they thought it was going to be," Johnson said. "But one man said he still wanted to get out of Morehead City."

"We were turning away people last night," said Ramada assistant manager Paul Gianino. "A lot of people were trying desperately to get a room anywhere in Greenville."

Owens Heads New School Consolidation Committee

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

Mark Owens will serve as chairman of the Pitt and Greenville schools consolidation committee, a 12-member board which will meet during the upcoming year to plan and review proposed consolidation of the two school systems.

Owens was elected at the committee's first meeting Tuesday. He currently serves as chairman of the Pitt County Board of Education.

The committee, composed of eight Pitt Board of Education members and four Greenville Board of Education members, was formed after the county board indicated in June it favored "conditional consolidation" of the two systems.

According to the board's merger policy statement, the committee is to "review and make decisions related to achieving full consolidation and see that services between the two systems are jointly planned, shared, reviewed and phased in consistent with completion of improvements to facilities."

The superintendents of the two systems, Eddie West of Pitt County and Delma Blinson of Greenville, were selected as the committee's secretaries.

The committee also approved at its first meeting a set of standard operating procedures listing its goals and objectives, organization.

DIAL-A-TEACHER VOLUNTEERS ASKED

The Greenville City Schools' Dial-A-Teacher program has begun and volunteers are needed to make it work. Area students can telephone for assistance in mathematics, science, social studies, and English-language arts any evening Monday-Thursday from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Coordinated through the Community Schools Program, the program is designed to assist students in finding their own solutions to homework problems. It is not designed to give answers, Community Schools Director Betty Barbee said.

Anyone who can give a few hours to the students is asked to call Ms. Barbee, 752-4192.

GUC Approves Rownetree Service

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Utilities Commission Tuesday night approved water and service to the Rownetree Woods development just west of the city's extraterritorial jurisdiction area on N.C. 43 at the intersection of secondary road 1204, but delayed action on a proposed electric rate increase.

Commissioners last month approved serving the Rownetree Woods property, being developed by Collice Moore, subject to the property being brought into the extraterritorial jurisdiction of the city and the developer executing a voluntary covenant of annexation.

But by a vote of 4 to 2, the commission Tuesday agreed to serve the development even if the property is not brought into the extraterritorial limits.

That action came after attorney Fred Mattox, representing Moore, said "I ask you to remove that condition of the motion ... and serve" the property.

Mattox, who said efforts have been made to secure service for the property, and to have the property brought into the extraterritorial limits for several months, told commission members that the county planning board approved the development plans in July, and the city's Planning and Zoning Commission approved the development in August.

Mattox noted that Moore has requested that the area be brought into the extraterritorial jurisdiction of the city and has also petitioned for annexation.

Saying the City Council has considered the property two times — taking no action once and not approving the request for inclusion in the extraterritorial limits once — Mattox said "in my mind, the City Council is a political group."

Mattox also pointed out that Moore has a commission policy regulating service to areas outside the city's extraterritorial limits.

Commission attorney Phil Dixon, responding to Mattox's presentation, suggested that the commission could follow the written policy for service outside the extraterritorial limits, or follow the informal policy of requiring the development to come into the extraterritorial limits before service is extended. Dixon also told commission members, "I think, if you want to serve the property, there is no legal obstacle."

After commission member Louis Zincone said, in his opinion, "the City Council has ducked this," attorney Mickey Herring, representing property owners in the area around Rownetree Woods, said the City Council found the development "not ... consistent with the long-range plan of the city."

Attorney Charles Vincent, also representing property owners in the area, suggested that by requesting service outside the extraterritorial limits, "they are dictating a zoning policy" to the city and termed the move "an effort to go in through the back door."

Hair And Apparel Styles This Fall Are Mannish

CHICAGO (AP) — Girls will be boys, or so it would seem when looking at fashions for fall. This year, menswear is women's wear as well.

And just as shots of hot color and a mad mix of textures will add femininity to fall's mannish silhouettes, color and texture will add femininity to the short androgynous hairstyles forecast for fall by the Helene Curtis Hairstylists Advisory Board.

"The menswear look, with its larger scale, calls for a new proportion in hairstyles — a shorter look that is still versatile enough to be very feminine at night," says board member Darlene Hakola of Portland, Ore.

"The nape and sides may be clipped very short, much like a man's cut while the crown and bangs remain long. Many women will want a partial perm in these longer-hair sections for an interesting mix of straight and wavy textures."

Michael Swiger, Phoenix, Ariz., agrees that the menswear trend has created a need for a hairstyle that can accommodate a number of radically different looks, from pretty to punk.

"Day and evening fashions are becoming more and more polarized. Women who wear a very tailored suit with a tie and oxfords to work, come home and slip into a slinky beaded dress for an evening out," he says. "Fall hairstyles need to be able to make that kind of day-to-night switch. Textured shorter hair, with fullness cut and permed into the style, can make that transformation easy."

Swiger uses a "weave cut" to add texture and fullness, particularly in the crown. "I first cut a section of hair, then weave out strands and cut the remaining hair shorter," he explains. "The resulting style can be controlled with gels or mousses for a sleek day look, or can be styled into a full flounce of curl for evening."

For added glamour, Swiger notes, women will use color-highlighter mousses that shampoo out as "make-up for the hair." Shades like burgundy, cognac and champagne can add a touch of auburn, red or blonde overall or to accent a design line.

"Color is an integral part of fall's hairstyles," according to Michael Marks of Elkins Park, Pa. "We'll be using bold color highlights to add pizzazz to a cut in the same way a woman adds a bright scarf to an ensemble of neutral-toned fabrics."

Not all of fall's styles will be boldly colored and super short, however. Victor Figueroa of New York sees the bob, spring's hot style, updated with softness in layers all over. "Filtering" as the new layering is called, gives the hair movement by taking away excess weight. Fall's bob will also be cut higher on the nape and permed in an uncurl "crinkled" texture, he says. The look is soft but still controlled.

"Cross dressing — the androgynous trend — has given women the freedom to structure their day look in much the same way a man does. A good suit, maybe trousers and a jacket, make dressing for work each morning as easy as possible," Figueroa explains.

"Fall's hairstyles, at the same time structured and unstructured, will help to keep the menswear feeling from becoming too masculine. Part of the attraction of a woman in a man's clothes is the fact that she is indeed still a woman."

GHS Class of '37 Held Reunion

The Greenville High School Class of 1937 gathered Saturday at the Greenville Country Club to celebrate its 47th reunion with a luncheon attended by 80 class members, faculty and guests.

Members were greeted by the planning committee composed of Roland and Mary Woolard Modlin, Clay and Helen Settle Stroud, Mary Loraine Horne MacKenzie, and Lillian Able Shelton.

The invocation was given by Lillian Shelton. Mary Loraine MacKenzie acknowledged Charles Gaskins, the former class treasurer.

Mary Modlin introduced former faculty members. Mrs. Evelyn Buchanan Moye and Reynolds May. Special gifts were to Reynolds May, Lt. Col. (Ret.) Charles Thomas Cox and Lena May Smith Caviness, visiting classmate.

Sixteen deceased classmates were remembered. A memorabilia bulletin board prepared by Mary Modlin featured class mementoes and historical, musical and social items which denoted the year, 1937.

Herbert Rogers and his wife were honored as the participants who had traveled the greatest distance to be present — from Sacramento, Calif.

A 50th anniversary reunion was set for 1987, with Leslie Garner as chairman.

At Wits End
By Erma Bombeck

The baby manuals would have you believe a child's first words are "Ma Ma" and "Da Da." Don't you wish. The first word is "No," followed in two weeks by the first complete sentence, "There's nothing to eat."

"There's nothing to eat" is an expression older than dirt. It is possibly the greatest guilt line ever written. It'll play anywhere and is guaranteed to bring a mother to her knees begging forgiveness.

That is why children have learned how to stage it, choreograph it and adapt it to whatever audience they are playing to.

Perhaps the most familiar performance is the one staged hourly in front of the refrigerator door. A child will walk into the house, mechanically pull open both the doors to the freezer and refrigerator and scream, "There's nothing to eat."

To a child, nothing is considered edible that is frozen, packaged, wrapped in foil, needs to be heated, cooked, identified, or has not danced on television. Anything edible would have walked to the front of the refrigerator and jumped on their plate.

"There's nothing to eat" is a great line whenever a mother appears late from an afternoon where she has taken a little time for herself. She will find her children in a pathetic tableau huddled around a bare table with bloated stomachs, warming their hands over a candle, whining, "There's nothing to eat."

My kids always played to the house especially when my mother or mother-in-law were in it. They would wait until I had assumed my Florence Henderson pose of a loving mother and wife. Then they would appear and whisper, "Grandma, there's nothing to eat around here... EVER!"

It never ends. The first letter you get from your child at college will have one theme: starvation. "There's nothing to eat here. Please send food." (This, in spite of the fact that the average weight gain among college freshmen is nine pounds a year.)

And for mothers who work outside the home, food bulletins are issued every 15 minutes via a telephone call. There's nothing to eat for breakfast, nothing to pack for lunches and nothing in sight for dinner. As for the woman who doesn't leave an assortment of snacks by the door, don't even think of calling yourself "Mother."

In my son's apartment the other day, I opened the door to his refrigerator. There was nothing in it but a calcified egg roll and a box of cereal hiding out from the roaches. "There's nothing to eat," I said.

He replied, "I've been telling you that for years but you wouldn't listen."

Fathering Isn't Province Of Young, Readers Show

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a writer for the Baton Rouge (La.) Advocate and have a longtime interest in genealogy.

In a recent Dear Abby column, "Pennsylvania Dutchman" stated that his 24-year-old cousin had married an 81-year-old man. It was her first marriage and his third. Ten months later they had a son. "Pennsylvania Dutchman" stated that he had never heard of a man in his 80s fathering a child, and he asked you if this 81-year-old man had set some kind of record.

You replied, "Probably not. But if somebody out there can top this, I'll hear about it."

Well, I'm responding with an enclosure of an item from "Believe It or Not" by Ripley. It appeared on Nov. 11, 1970: "The oldest living American is Sylvester Magee of Columbia, Miss., who fought on both sides during the Civil War, became a father at the age of 109, and at the time this was written he is in excellent health at the age of 129."

"His birth, on May 19, 1841, has been officially attested by the state of Mississippi."

MIKE MULHERN

DEAR ABBY: In reference to the "Pennsylvania Dutchman," I can top him. In 1891, a local physician in the town of Saluda, S.C., married a young woman who was a first cousin of my grandfather.

The groom was 74, and the bride was 16. They had their first child when he was 75, and their fifth child when he was 86! He died the following year, or they probably would have had more children.

The young widow subsequently married and lived to the ripe old age of 87!

Lest you think I jest, this is documented and easily verified. The dates of the abovementioned man and wife and all their children are on their tombstones in Travis Park Cemetery in Saluda.

If you print this, please delete all the names (including mine), as I have a whole slew of relatives still living in Saluda, and I wouldn't want them to think I thought this was corny. But I do.

Blowing The Whistle

Rehash?

Another congressional study — this one dealing with U.S. vulnerability to the threat of oil import cutoffs — doesn't tell us a whole lot.

Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois asked for the study, and as he reads it he is of the opinion that should this country again face oil shortages of serious dimensions, we have the capability to "replace" 3.6 million barrels of the 4.5 million barrels we import daily.

(Note that word "capability;" it is not the same as doing it.)

The study says converting furnaces and hot water heaters in commercial and residential buildings from oil to natural gas and electricity could result in impressive conservation.

It points to increasing the fuel efficiency of light cars and trucks as maybe the biggest single potential for replacing oil lost in a cutoff. Alcohol and other alternative fuels are still listed as practical measures — though most of us are aware alternative fuels fell far short of public acceptance.

In all of this, the "woulds" and "coulds" hedge any promise of success in any future oil crisis. Each of the countermeasures was available in the 1970s when this country was zapped by two oil crises in a row.

Only stockpiling large quantities of oil represents an improvement between now and then. At best, the study confirms a capability to overcome a new oil cutoff; but nothing new in ideas for acquiring an invulnerability.

Luxury

They do things differently at Boston University. There, a freshman student is appreciated beyond all belief.

A tale that stuns credulity was carried by the Associated Press — so you can lower those raised eyebrows. The gist was this:

Because of an unexpected number of freshmen arriving on Boston U's campus, 364 of the frosh are staying at the North Tower of the Boston Sheraton where rooms go for $85 a night, including maid service and use of the pool.

Of course, the arrangement is temporary. There are limits to transplanted Southern Hospitality which has run wild in New England.

Actually the Boston experience of more students checking in than anticipated is being duplicated at other campuses in the area ... but their lap of luxury is less plush for frosh than that provided at B.U.

It would be easier to understand (but less appreciated) if the North Tower housing was a welcoming gesture toward athletic scholars; but that is only a bumbling thought looking for a question.

ARMS Loans Lose Strength

NEW YORK (AP) — Discounted ARMs, those mortgages that hauled homebuilders out of the pits and boosted financially strapped folks into the houses of their dreams, may be losing strength.

The turn of events comes after a year in which such loans, as if by magic, helped many people to qualify for a house they otherwise couldn't afford.

Now, says the nation's largest independent mortgage banker, Lomas & Nettleton, everyone seems to be turning his back on ARMs — borrowers, financial markets in which ARMs are wholesaled, regulatory agencies, and money markets.

It prompts James Wootter, president of the big Dallas-based mortgage outfit to comment that, of all things, the fixed-rate mortgage is coming back, even if borrower and lenders aren't ready for it.

The fixed-rate mortgage, as most people who own houses know, is the kind of loan that was standard for 50 years. Commonly, it featured a steady rate for a very long time, in most cases 20 or 30 years. They were well suited to their time.

Customers liked fixed rates because they permitted them to know where they stood all the time. They knew, for instance, that each monthly payment would be the same as in the previous month no matter if it broke the bank.

In many instances it did. In the volatile 1970s, interest rates in general soared, but not on those fixed-rate mortgages. By contract, lenders couldn't raise the rates. And if they tried, usury laws would have intervened.

The solution, which was worked out over several years between regulators and lenders, was the introduction of adjustable rate mortgages, or loans on which the interest rate would rise, or even fall, with rates in general.

They caught on quickly because the market needed them. As an inducement to borrowers, lenders

"Mr. McTavish, your father tells me you would like to work for the Defense Department. In what capacity may I ask?"

"I'd like to be a whistle blower. When I was a little kid all my pals wanted to fly an airplane, but my dream was to figure out what one really costs. Any idiot can drive a jet fighter, but it really takes brains to find out how a defense contractor is screwing the public."

"You mean you want to be a snitch?"

"No, sir. I want to blow the whistle on the military industrial complex and make sure that the taxpayer is getting true dollar for the weapons he is paying for. I'm prepared to attend the Defense Department's Whistle Blower's School if that is required of me."

"McTavish, would it surprise you know that the Defense Department does not have a school for whistle blowers?"

"You could bowl me over. I figured with the billions of dollars you people spend every day a lot must fall through the cracks. How do you train your people to report someone who is sticking it to the government?"

"We work on the honor system over here. Before receiving an order a defense contractor must take an oath that he will not lie, steal or cheat in fulfilling his contract and must report anyone who does. To our knowledge no one has ever broken the code."

"That's very good, sir. But it's quite possible that lying, stealing and cheating may not be defined the same way other people think of it. A person in good faith could sell you a ballpeen hammer for $900 although it only costs him $7.50. He might consider that a fair markup, and you would have to take his word for it. But if you had someone to blow the whistle on him the department could save a heck of a lot of money."

"McTavish, I'm only spending time with you because I'm a friend of your father's. But I believe you ought to understand the facts of life. We're called the Defense Department because we have to defend every cent we ask for our weapons systems. Some of them work, many others don't. It's nobody's fault. But in order to protect ourselves from people who want to endanger our national security, we can't have anyone digging for waste and fraud in our budget. It makes us look as if we don't know what we're doing."

"I understand that, sir. But I don't want to be a public whistle blower. I wouldn't run to the press with an overcharge of a few billion dollars. I would just report it to the secretary of defense and then he could deal with the matter through the Justice Department."

"The secretary hates whistle blowers."

"Why?"
"Because they're not team players. A team player never questions the decisions of those above him. When someone blows the whistle on something that's wrong it reflects on the entire department right up to the secretary himself. If a multibillion-dollar system that we've sold the country doesn't pan out, it is not necessarily the fault of the contractor. In many cases the military is to blame for demanding more from the weapon than it can deliver. Would you be comfortable blowing the whistle on our brave generals and admirals in uniform, many who planned the invasion of Grenada?"

"No, sir. But look at it this way. If we could save billions of dollars, on some of the junk they're working on, the department could use the money for something that works. If you just give me a chance I'll earn my keep in one hour."

"I'm sorry, McTavish. You're very impressive young man, but we don't have any positions open right now."

"Why not?"
"We're having an economy drive and we're not taking on any new whistle blowers. As a matter of fact, to save money we've been ordered to lay off the rats we have now."

Public Forum

To the editor:
It is a well known fact that the structure of society has been defined by men. It is a historical fact that has focused women into the roles of wives, witches, warriors, businesswomen, courtesans, midwives, authors and actresses alike. Even in the period following Elizabeth's reign men and women alike continued to adhere women as "the weaker vessel." Women were thought not only physically weaker but morally inferior, a legacy inherited from "Grandmother Eve." Her lack of education held her in contempt. The few women who had an educational advantage were held in suspicion and disapproval.

Romantic love held second fiddle to compete with money and property.

For all their dependence on this situation women revealed unbelievable strength. They just did not have opportunities to demonstrate their abilities. It was plain unfashionable for men and women alike. Marriage entitled the husband to his wife's person, worldly goods and properties to do with as he liked without the consent of the bride. It was the Civil War that brought many changes in this country, because women were left with no mark or choice otherwise. Some, it is well known, began to Swagger, Swear, Game, Drink and to say, "My husband may have authority over my body and civil respects, but he is not Lord over my conscience."

Women have come a long way and systems and attitudes are hard to change but fairness and equality, in this modern day of failing marriages and free love, should not jeopardize anyone because of their sex.

This proposition affects Grandmother, Mother, Wife, Daughter, Sister and the new-born female infants. It is your right and privilege to put those in office who believe the Equal Rights Amendment is good and proper. The female votes control this amendment.

Strength For Today

We are told in the 27th chapter of the Book of Acts that St. Paul was shipwrecked on the island of Melita (present-day Malta).

The people of the island kindled a fire for Paul and his companions and as Paul was gathering "a bundle of sticks" and laying them on the fire "there came a viper out of the heat, and fastened on his hand." Paul "shook off the beast into the fire and felt no harm."

There is a lesson here which we may well ponder: There is a viper type of person in every society — the person whose words sting like the viper's fangs; whose jealousy is devastating, whose influence is often cast maliciously on the side of meanness.

When the fangs of the scandal-monger are thrust into us knowing that if we have within us powers which God alone can give us, the fangs of the viper will do us no harm.

Who's In Charge?

WASHINGTON — The first anniversary of the Korean Air Lines Flight 007 tragedy has come and gone. Conspiracy theorists still doubt that the aircraft strayed off course and into Soviet airspace. That aside, there are also lingering questions about the United States' ability to respond to such crises. How well, for example, can the nation's command and control structure react at 2 a.m.? How long does it take to inform the president? Who is in charge until then?

The system's pitfalls are well known to Donald Rumsfeld, defense secretary under President Ford. One evening, then-secretary Rumsfeld tried to place a call to Ford on a telephone line that is to be used only during national emergencies. After several minutes, a White House desk man answered only to say that his superior, who was at dinner, would have to approve the call. As Rumsfeld later told friends, he reached Ford two hours later.

Billions of dollars are going into command, control and communications. But the nation's sophisticated hardware is a tool worth only as much as the ability of civilian leaders to use it.

Included in a television ad prepared by the Democratic National Committee for this fall's campaign are 30 seconds of actual combat footage from Vietnam and Central America; the spot warns that President Reagan's foreign policy could lead American into war. Another ad, which deals with nuclear war, opens with a series of black-and-white photos and ends with a tape of President Eisenhower saying that nuclear war is unwinnable. The latter ad points out that, until Reagan entered office, every president since Eisenhower had signed a nuclear treaty with the Soviets.

Although Mondale probably would not reverse U.S. Central American policy in its entirety, the ads are strong stuff.

Professional Amateurs Department: The U.S. Gymnastics Federation and six members of the U.S. men's Olympic gymnastic team have ended negotiations on how to publicize the gold medal winners without jeopardizing their amateur status. According to the federation, the team will be able to participate in a made-for-TV movie about its victory in Los Angeles; conduct an exhibition tour of the nation, beginning in October, and pose for a poster. Several individual team members have also been permitted to enter into separate contracts. Bart Conner, for example, has agreed to make an appearance in a new television series.

Seventy-five colleges in America now enroll 1,000 or more foreign students. The top five schools in the foreign-enrollment department were Miami-Dade Community College with 4,388 foreign students; University of Southern California, 3,752; University of Texas, 3,236; University of Wisconsin, 2,775, and Columbia University, 2,658.

Taking The Initiative

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the presidential campaign enters its climactic eight weeks, Walter F. Mondale is counting on taking the initiative away from President Reagan by hammering away at a limited number of issues.

The Mondale strategy is based on the belief that his positions on such issues as budget deficits, arms control, the environment and fairness are closer to the views of a majority of voters than are Reagan's.

At this stage in the campaign, Mondale staffers concede their candidate is a decided underdog. They don't argue with the suggestion that the president retains a remarkable hold on public esteem.

But what they do argue is that there is plenty of polling data to suggest that Mondale is on the right side of a number of key issues.

If that data is correct, their job is to convince voters that the Democratic nominee is a credible alternative to Reagan, to transfer their agreement with Mondale's positions to support for Mondale the candidate.

That effort began this week when Mondale flew to Philadelphia on Monday and unveiled his plan to cut federal budget deficits. He planned to spend the remainder of the week hammering away at the impact high deficits were having on American life — on big business and small, on farmers and students.

Look for similar periods in upcoming weeks in which Mondale will concentrate on spelling out his differences with Reagan on arms control and will detail his contention that the president's policies are tilted toward the wealthy.

The "issues strategy" is born in the belief that Mondale can't win a personality contest with Reagan.

But it is a strategy that has its risks. It counts on Americans agreeing with the proposition that the high deficits will destroy the economic recovery that is the president's strongest issue and being willing to accept a tax increase to deal with the red ink.

The White House response is to portray Mondale as a compulsive taxpayer, a man whose first instinct always is to go for raising taxes. The president, on the other hand, is pictured as a man who would raise taxes only after exhausting every other possibility.

Reagan never fails to point out that inflation and interest rates are dramatically lower than when he took office and that the nation has avoided repetition of embarrassments like the Iranian hostage crisis.

Mondale complains that the president wants to rerun the 1980 campaign and he's absolutely right. History might eventually treat Jimmy Carter kindly, but right now, the American people seem unwilling to forgive him for the problems that plagued the nation during his presidency.

Now Mondale is out in the land trying to shift that perception, working to get voters to look forward instead of back.

PROPERTY OWNERS...PLEASE NOTE!

We, the people for a more conservative local government, would like to go on record opposing the decision to raise our property taxes by our liberal county commissioners. Therefore, we urge all citizens of Pitt County to let it be known now, and most important, let these commissioners know that they're in public office for all the people and not just for a few special interest groups. There's got to be some changes to get some relief for the property owners of this county. Property taxes increased this year; what will it be next year and the next and so on. The property owners of this county cannot continue to pay for the wants of every group.

After you finish reading this article, if you're a property owner and are as concerned as we are, then please let it be known by sending your comments to: Citizens for a More Conservative Government, P.O. Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Ambassador

MOSCOW (AP) — Egypt's first ambassador to the Soviet Union in six years has presented his credentials to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, the official news agency Tass said.

Salah Bassiouny, who met Gromyko at the Kremlin, is the first Egyptian ambassador to the Soviet Union since 1978, when the late President Anwar Sadat withdrew Egypt's envoy from Moscow to protest Soviet criticism of Egyptian peace talks with Israel. The Soviet ambassador to Egypt was expelled in 1981 on charges of interfering in internal matters.

The two nations had retained charges d'affaires in Cairo and Moscow. They decided in July to resume ambassadorial representation.

Police Seek Public Input On Alarms

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Police Department is seeking feedback on its proposal to expand the existing city ordinance governing fining procedures for recurring false alarms.

"What we wanted to do," Chief Ted Holmes said, "was contact various alarm companies and let them review our plan and contribute suggestions. But we found that there are a whole lot of alarm companies, both out of town and out of state, that operate in this area. There were just too many to try and get a hold of so we thought we'd just advertise."

According to Holmes, the current ordinance only covers alarms that come directly into the police department. "It does not speak to those alarms that go first to a private company and then come to us. So in actuality," he added, "the existing ordinance covers a very small portion of the alarms in town. And as it is, it penalizes those whose alarms come into the police department."

The existing ordinance, Holmes explained, allows police to levy a $25 fine in cases where false alarms coming into the department become a problem. The proposal, if approved, would make the fine applicable to non-police monitored alarms.

"The fine won't be used the first time we have a false alarm, nor the second, this is for continual problems," Holmes explained. "For instance, if we get a certain number of false alarms within a period of time, the company or person using the alarm system would be subject to be fined."

False alarms resulting from bad weather will not be included, Holmes said. However, he added that repeated false alarms involving employee error and mechanical malfunction would be liable. "To my knowledge, we have never levied a fine and I hope we never do, but it's a tool that we need to ensure the cooperation of people who have alarms," he said.

Holmes said he and the department consider the proposal to be an important one because the safety of officers is involved. "Ninety-eight percent of the alarms we get are false and when you get an alarm, false or not, you place the officers in some jeopardy as they are responding as quickly as they can. There's always the possibility of a traffic accident or the possibility that someone might get hurt."

"Additionally, a police officer who responds to alarm after alarm that's false tends to develop the assumption that all alarms will be false. And when it isn't a false alarm, the officer may tend to be careless in responding and may get hurt," he added.

Holmes said the department plans to wait "for a reasonable period" before asking the City Council to act on the proposal. "We want to give people time to respond," he said.

New Harris Store To Open

Harris Super Markets Inc. will open its seventh store Thursday and its fourth in Greenville in a new shopping facility at 1204 N. Memorial Drive across from the Pitt-Greenville Airport.

Durward Harris Jr., vice president of the Greenville-based firm, said grand opening of the new super market in North Greenville Plaza shopping center is set for 1 p.m. A new Family Dollar Store also occupies the center.

Harris said 35 employees will work at the 21,000-square-foot store, which will be managed by Dennis Baker.

The spokesman said the store will have full service meat and delicatessen departments, a produce section with locally grown fruits and vegetables, and a fish market, a new feature for Harris stores. Harris said advance orders for seafood will be accepted.

The store will have a customer service booth for returnable soft drink bottles, postage stamps, envelopes and money orders, Harris said, and will utilize new computerized cash registers with built-in produce scales.

Parking is available at the front of the store and customer access points are located on Memorial Drive and Airport Road.

The company opened its first store in the Greenville area in 1951 and now has three other local units as well as stores in Ayden, Bethel and Tarboro. Durward Harris Sr. is company president and Andrew Humphrey is general manager.

Jamesville Protest Postponed By Board

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

WILLIAMSTON — "The school board took no action, did not reach a decision at last night's special call meeting on a possible solution to the situation," Eugene Rogers, superintendent of the Martin County public schools, said today, referring to a request by a black committee that the school board reverse a staff assignment in the Jamesville school.

"The board, after hearing a small delegation of blacks, agreed to put the matter on the agenda for the regular board meeting in October," Rogers said.

were held for a period of more than two hours.

A decision was made at Monday's meeting to conduct the special call meeting Tuesday night with spokesmen limited to half a dozen persons.

As a means of expressing their concern and disappointment over replacing the retired black assistant principal with a white, blacks in the Jamesville district staged a boycott, keeping their children out of school. The boycott began on Sept. 4, the first day of school and continued through Monday.

City School Board Receives Teacher Certification Report

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Concern about fewer college graduates in North Carolina going into the field of education, specifically those being certified to teach, is being expressed statewide.

At this week's meeting of the Greenville Board of Education, Superintendent Delma Blinson reported on latest figures covering graduates from the state's teaching programs certified to teach. The cited report covers a three-year period in five major fields of public school education.

dance, music, physical education, reading, speech, theater arts, etc — 810, 735, and 700.

- Special education — all fields — 489, 399, and 377.
- Vocational education — all fields, including trade and industrial courses — 274, 216, and 252.

Dr. Charles Coble, dean of education and director of teacher education in the school of education, East Carolina University, commented on the ramifications of the trend of fewer North Carolina college students going into the teaching profession.

training may be moving into teaching fields. You might get a few good teachers this way, but it's not a desirable situation."

Coble and Blinson both emphasized that for the next four or five years, the possibility of increasing shortages in the number of qualified teachers available will be a major problem.

The major teaching field is that of elementary education, with the field of vocational education commanding the smallest number of teacher certified graduates.

The five areas of public education, and the number of graduates certified for teaching during the past three years, are given below. Figures are for graduates from school years 1981-82, 1982-83, and 1983-84 respectively. The third set of figures, for 1983-84, are estimates. In past years, estimates proved to be considerably higher than actual numbers who graduated with teacher certificates.

"It's apparent that over the next two to five years there will be a shortage of qualified teachers in North Carolina," he said. "Already, the effect of fewer teachers is being felt in a number of school systems, particularly the smaller school systems."

"Administrators and educators are naturally concerned about this growing shortage of new teachers," Coble noted. "One thing that can possibly happen as the result of increased pay which is making teaching more attractive is that college graduates without teacher

Congleton Joins Pitt Board

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

J.B. (Beverly) Congleton Jr. was sworn in Tuesday to represent the Stokes-Pactolus area on the Pitt County Board of Education. Congleton fills the vacant seat on the board created by the death of Jack Edwards Sept. 1. He will serve the remaining two and a half years of Edwards' term.

Edwards had recommended Congleton for the position but board member Ferrell Blount of Bethel formally nominated him at the board's monthly meeting Tuesday. Congleton was unanimously accepted by the board, then received the oath of office from Judge David Reid of Greenville.

Congleton previously served on the board from 1968-79, then nominated Edwards to finish his term.

The board also received a report on development of a basic instructional program for Pitt County schools from associate superintendent of instruction John McKnight. According to McKnight, a basic program "insures instructional and staffing equity across schools, regardless of size."

Currently, McKnight said, there is no formula or basis for equalizing needs among the schools. Currently, he said, a few programs exist that are "not as well-utilized or as well-suited to post-school employment opportunities" as others. These programs will be identified using data on usage and future employment trends in the area, and culled from the school system.

"In no way does this (cutting a program) reflect on the instructors or schools or program coordinators," McKnight told board members. "In some cases it just reflects the lack of employment opportunities in a given field."

"Once equity in the basic program is achieved, then enrichment programs and new thrusts can be initiated with the resources that remain," he said.

In terms of the effect of the basic program on staffing, McKnight reported that "at this point it appears that more part-time staff may be needed in order to deliver an equitable program to all schools regardless of size."

"For example, a part-time calculus teacher may be needed for one period at a high school or a part-time music teacher at an elementary school," he said.

In addition to basic program for grades K-12, McKnight's said he was attempting to develop uniform course descriptions for high schools throughout the county. "There has been some concern in the past that a specific English course, for example, at one school, does not offer the same instruction as the same course at another, although both courses earn the same number of QP's (quality points)," McKnight said. "This basic program is an attempt to even up the course descriptions and eliminate wide variations."

Board members will review the basic program information McKnight presented and action will be taken at a later meeting.

A spokesman for the 514th said this morning that 120 men from the unit were "sitting tight, waiting for somebody to tell us what they want us to do." Officers of the 213th declined to say how many members of that unit were on standby this morning.

Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service Chairman Leroy James suggested that if Diana doesn't come inland with its strong wind and dump heavy rains on the area, the hurricane may be of benefit to local farmers.

"Right at this point the rains have been real helpful for peanut and soybeans," he said. "We'll see the results in peanuts and soybean fields," from the rains over the past two days, he suggested.

"Most tobacco is out of the field, and overall, it's been real helpful at this point."

But James said if Diana's strong winds reach into the county the corn crop could suffer.

"I hope the wind doesn't come and blow the corn down," he said. "We haven't had a lot of wind at this point. Everything has been helpful so far."

"It's going to be a mess," if the winds come, James suggested. "We'll lose a lot (of corn) in the field if this happens" because farmers won't be able to harvest the blown-down crop.

Bickering Delays Vote On Israeli Accord

JERUSALEM (AP) — Last-minute bickering between Israel's two rival political blocs today delayed a scheduled confidence vote in Parliament on a bipartisan government and jeopardized the unprecedented accord between the parties.

Prime Minister-designate Shimon Peres, who joined in all-night negotiations with his Likud bloc rivals at a Tel Aviv hotel, had hoped to seek parliamentary ratification today for the joint Labor-Likud Cabinet.

But the long bargaining session failed to resolve all differences over the power-sharing pact, and a spokeswoman for the Israeli Knesset, or Parliament, later said the confidence vote would not take place before Thursday.

The snags prompted Peres to resume negotiations with the National Religious Party, a key swing faction in the Knesset, on the possibility of trying to form a narrow government without Likud in case the unity negotiations collapse.

After seven weeks of discussing weighty issues such as the future of Middle East peace, the uneasy partnership between Peres' Labor Party and Yitzhak Shamir's Likud bloc faltered over the appointment of a minor Cabinet post.

Both sides wanted the job of religious affairs minister for one of their own allies among the small religious parties.

Shamir, the outgoing prime minister, had promised the ministry to the Shas Party, while Peres had pledged it to the National Religious Party.

A parliamentary vote of confidence would end the political uncertainty that resulted when inconclusive elections on July 23 left both big parties too weak to assemble a governing coalition without each other.

Although details were not disclosed of the haggling over the Religious Affairs post, it appeared that whichever religious party failed to get the post might be allotted a Cabinet minister without a portfolio to maintain numerical equality between the two blocs.

The ministry distributes political patronage in the religious community, and provides funds to religious institutions, allowing the party holding the post to build a network of loyal supporters.

Disagreement also surfaced over Likud's demand to enact a law guaranteeing that Peres would keep his promise to step down from the premiership and hand over the job to Shamir midway through a 50-month term.

Peres, who was assigned Aug. 5 by President Chaim Herzog to form a government, must complete the task by Sunday or give up.

During its session today, the Knesset elected Labor's Shlomo Hillel as speaker. Hillel defeated Likud's Meir Cohen-Avidov by a vote of 60-46 with seven abstentions.

The choice of speaker, which in the past has reflected the balance of power in the Knesset, was not indicative of the current political power structure. Labor has 37 seats to Likud's 41, but Hillel was acceptable to many Likud allies while Cohen-Avidov does not enjoy much personal popularity.

The joint government had appeared assured of ratification in Parliament after the central committees of both Labor and Herut, the Likud bloc's senior partner, gave their endorsement Tuesday night for a unity Cabinet.

Shamir beat back a challenge from former Defense Minister Ariel Sharon, who appealed a show-of-hands vote approving Herut's Cabinet members, including Sharon as industry and trade minister. Sharon said the vote should have been secret.

Pope Urges Youth Not To Seek Escape

MONTREAL (AP) — Pope John Paul II, denouncing the "artificial paradise" of drugs, drinking and premarital sex, told a stadium filled with young Canadians not to seek a "shortcut to happiness."

His appeal Tuesday night ended a busy day in French Canada's largest city that included a speech to priests, a rainy outdoor Mass for more than 300,000 people.

Explosions Shake Philippine Mount

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Nine explosions shook Mayon Volcano within three hours today, shooting heavy volumes of volcanic ash to heights of up to nine miles, a government scientist said.

The explosions, which began at 11 a.m., indicated a "further intensification" in the activity of the 8,100-foot-high mountain in Albay Province, 200 miles southeast of Manila, volcanologist Alex Juanes said.

No casualties have been reported since the volcano began erupting last Sunday but the latest bulletin from the Philippine Institute of Volcanology called on local officials to hasten the evacuation of 14 villages within five miles of the crater because of heavy ash fallout.

Authorities Tuesday began evacuating residents of several of the villages. About 15,000 peasants live in the threatened villages, institute director Rey Punongbayan said.

The volcano had been spewing out red-hot lava, volcanic ashes and rocks since it erupted after a six-year lull.

Known to tourists for its near-perfect cone shape, Mayon killed 1,200 people and buried an entire town under mudflows in its worst eruption in 1814. It has erupted several times since then, the last time in 1978 when its lava poured out for several weeks. There were no casualties in that eruption.

Punongbayan, keeping radio contact with volcanologists stationed on the Mayon slopes, said Tuesday night the current eruption had formed two rivers of red-hot lava or molten rock about 600 feet wide and about 1.4 miles long.

Volcanologists said initial findings indicated the lava flow was inching down the slopes at a rate of 8.4 feet per minute.

The Philippine News Agency said the constabulary has deployed soldiers in the threatened areas to help evacuate families. It said the Ministry of Public Works would use several government trucks for the evacuation.

Peasant families living on the Mayon slopes only have carts drawn either by horses or water buffalos as regular means of transport, volcanologists said.

Army Will Create Two Divisions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army, trying to become more mobile so it can be used to protect U.S. interests in distant hot spots, is planning to create two new "light" divisions based in upstate New York and Alaska.

The units will comprise existing troops and thus won't mean any change in the Army limit of 780,000 uniformed personnel, the service announced Tuesday.

The 10th Division will be reactivated and based at Fort Drum, N.Y., while the reactivated 6th Division will be split between two Alaska bases, Fort Wainwright and Fort Richardson.

The changes will give the Army 28 divisions, including 18 of active duty personnel and 10 of Reserve and National Guard troops. The "light" divisions will each have about 10,200 troops, compared with the 15,000 to 18,000 in other divisions.

"Light" divisions not only have fewer troops, but they also carry lighter and smaller support weapons, such as artillery that can be towed by trucks rather than the larger and more cumbersome self-propelled artillery. There will not be any tanks in the light divisions.

The Army wants the new divisions to be highly mobile and ready for quick transport to world trouble spots such as the Persian Gulf or Middle East.

Gen. John Wickham, Army chief of staff, has been a prime mover behind the new plans, arguing that the units must be "lightened up" so they can be quickly moved to protect far-flung American strategic interests.

The two units will be the second division will have about 7,500 active duty soldiers, while the third brigade in each instance will be Reserve or National Guard troops.

The third brigade would only be activated for major exercises or deployment during a crisis, Army officials said Tuesday.

The 10th Division was created as a mountain division during World War II and fought its way up Italy during the Allied attack in that nation. After the war, it was eventually moved to Germany before it was deactivated in 1958.

The 6th Division began in 1917.

Donor Sues For His 'Share'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Leukemia sufferer John Moore, whose blood may hold a key to fighting such diseases as AIDS and cancer, should share in the potential "billions" of dollars generated by a product developed from his cells, his attorney said.

used in research and treatment for cancer, AIDS, other immune system defects and other viruses.

"The cell line itself doesn't do anything," Golde said. "At present, it can only be used in research. It produces a number of factors and may someday be therapeutically useful. But the cell line is only a tool."

The U.S. Patent Office issued a patent on the line March 20.

Moore filed suit Tuesday in Superior Court against UCLA researchers who used his blood to clone a patented substance called the Mo-cell line. He is seeking an unspecified share of money his attorneys say could be generated in licensing fees.

The suit seeks a ruling on Moore's rights to the patent.

Moore, 39, had agreed to the use of his blood for research but was never told it might have commercial applications, attorney Sanford Gage said.

"Consent to scientific inquiry is not consent to using it for commercial purposes that may have potential sales of billions of dollars," Gage said.

The cell-line, named "Mo" after Moore, provides an easier, less expensive alternative to current gene-splicing techniques to isolate components of blood that may be useful in the care and treatment of leukemia and other conditions, according to the suit.

Named as defendants are the University of California-Los Angeles Medical Center, UCLA researchers Dr. David Golde and Shirley Quan, and the UC Board of Regents, to whom Golde and Quan assigned the Mo-cell patent.

Golde denied any money was made and said the Mo-cell line is only a tool toward eventual therapeutic products.

"To my knowledge, nobody's made any money from it," he said. "I certainly haven't."

Under the university's rules concerning patents, he and Ms. Quan could share 50 percent of the system's royalties from the use of the cell line.

"Sales could be in the billions," Gage said. "We want the court to establish his rights as a patient to receive compensation for what profits have been made from him."

"They (researchers) were telling me my blood had some unusual properties, and they were experimenting with it," Moore said. "I would ask them if it had any commercial value, and they side-stepped the question."

Moore, a sales executive for a seafood company, was living in Alaska when he first went to UCLA in 1976 for treatment of hairy cell leukemia. His began feeling better after his spleen was removed, and currently is living a normal life in Seattle.

Golde and Quan requested he return every six months to give blood samples for research, Gage said.

He agreed, but began wondering about a year ago if his blood had some further significance, Gage said. He was suspicious because his airfare was being paid and because on his last trip the researchers put him up at a Beverly Hills hotel.

"I'm reasonably well read, I'm aware of what's going on in biotechnology, and I felt there might be something there I needed to find out which they weren't telling me," he said.

Golde said the cell line was derived from Moore's removed spleen, adding that blood extracted during the twice-yearly visits "was only used for research."

Gage learned that Moore's cells were the basis for the cell line, a culture of cells that have uniform characteristics.

The suit said the product could be

Trombonist Dies

HONOLULU (AP) — Jazz trombonist James "Trummy" Young, who played with such jazz greats as Louis Armstrong and Dizzy Gillespie, died of a heart attack while visiting friends in California, his daughter said. He was 72.

Young, who had lived in Hawaii for 20 years, was on the mainland to play in a jazz festival in Denver. He was hospitalized Friday in San Jose, where he had stopped to visit friends on his way back to Honolulu, and died Monday night, Andrea Young said.

Young played with Armstrong for 22 years, and also appeared with Gillespie, Benny Goodman and Earl "Fatha" Hines.

He was an Armstrong sideman during the making of such hits as "I Can't Give You Anything but Love," "Ain't Misbehavin'," and "Chinatown."

U.S. To Admit All Amerasians

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is prepared to admit over the next three years an estimated 8,000 Vietnamese children who were fathered by American servicemen during the Vietnam war. Secretary of State George P. Shultz says.

"Because of their undisputed ties to our country, these children and family members are of particular humanitarian concern to the United States," Shultz told a Senate Judiciary subcommittee Tuesday.

But a New York-based private group, Human Rights Advocates International, criticized Shultz's proposal, claiming the Reagan administration should take Vietnam up on what it says is Hanoi's offer to resettle the children in the United States immediately.

In a telephone interview, two spokesmen for the group, Sanford Mevorah and Charles Printz, said the administration is treating the so-called Amerasian children as refugees, whereas U.S. law clearly states they are American citizens.

"We want them here today. We want them here yesterday," Mevorah said.

A U.S. official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, acknowledged that the law regards them as U.S. citizens. But he said it is not feasible to permit the children to come to the United States immediately because that would mean separating them from their mothers, who are not entitled to automatic citizenship.

He added that by treating them as refugees, the Amerasians and other close family members are entitled, before arriving in the United States, to language training and medical care at a refugee center the United States maintains in the Philippines.

"This is the only practical, sensible way to take care of these kids," the official said.

He said the children, because of their Western features, suffer from persecution in Vietnam. Over the years, he said, about 1,500 have been resettled in the United States, usually with their mothers.

The best U.S. estimate is that there are 8,000 more in Vietnam. Vietnamese officials say the figure is about 15,000.

Shultz also said the administration will ask Vietnam to release current and former political prisoners for U.S. resettlement over the next two years. That program would involve some 10,000 Vietnamese, many of whom had close ties to the United States during the Vietnam war. The total includes family members.

When the American-backed regime in Saigon was ousted by North Vietnamese forces nine years ago, many of these Vietnamese were sent to "re-education camps." An undetermined number remain in confinement.

Shultz said the success of the proposals involving both the prisoners and the Amerasian children requires the good will and cooperation of the Vietnamese government.

"We hope the Vietnamese will respond to this new appeal," he said, adding that the proposal will be set forth next month at a meeting in Geneva with Vietnamese officials under the auspices of the United Nations High Commission for Refugees.

Humphrey Widow Presented Medal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some of the nation's leading Democrats, including presidential nominee Walter F. Mondale's wife Joan, filed into Ronald Reagan's Republican White House to pay tribute to the memory to one of their party's leading modern heroes, Hubert H. Humphrey.

Muriel Humphrey Brown, who remarried after the onetime senator, vice president and presidential candidate died of cancer on Jan. 13, 1978, accepted a solid gold congressional medal bearing her late husband's likeness at a ceremony Tuesday in the White House Rose Garden.

Later she unveiled a bust of Humphrey in the Capitol with the help of their son, Hubert H. Humphrey Jr., and congressional leaders. All vice presidents, who also serve as president of the Senate, are accorded this honor.

Testing To Resume On B-1 This Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — Testing of the B-1 bomber will resume this week in California, an indication the Air Force believes that it was not a design flaw that led to last month's fatal crash of the new long-range bomber.

"The complete testing program will resume," Pentagon spokesman Michael Burch said Tuesday. Meanwhile, he said, the Air Force is hoping to soon complete its investigation into what caused a B-1 prototype to crash into the desert Aug. 29 at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

Burch refused to discuss preliminary findings of the Air Force board investigating the crash. However, one Air Force official, speaking only on condition he remain anonymous, said the remaining B-1 prototype would not have been cleared to resume tests "if the board had found anything wrong in the design."

A Rockwell International Corp. test pilot was killed in the crash and two Air Force pilots were injured. Rockwell is the prime contractor for the plane.

The plane that crashed was a B-1A, one of four prototypes built before the bomber program was canceled by President Jimmy Carter in 1977.

President Reagan resurrected the plane when he took office in 1981, arguing that it was needed for America's nuclear strike force to replace the aging B-52s.

The administration has proposed building 100 of the swing-wing B-1s, which will be armed with nuclear weapons. Also on the drawing boards is a "stealth" bomber, which is designed to elude Soviet radars and defenses.

On Sept. 4, Rockwell rolled out the first production model of a B-1. That was a B-1B, the same size and shape as the B-1A but with differences in the engines and including some "stealth" technology.

Although four B-1As were built, two were in storage and only two were being used to test. Tuesday's announcement means the one remaining flyable B-1A will resume test flights at Edwards.

The B-1 crash occurred during an "extremely low-level, extremely low-speed" maneuver during the plane's 127th test flight, the Air Force said.

There have been reports that the crash came after the plane stalled, which means it would have lost lift and plummeted to the ground.

Faith Healers Found Guilty

ALBION, Ind. (AP) — A couple advocating faith healing rightly sought God's help to save their dying daughter, but should have called a doctor "to try to do the healing," said a juror who voted to convict the parents of reckless homicide and child abuse.

After deliberating two hours, a Noble Superior Court jury Tuesday found David B. Bergmann, 28, and his wife, Kathleen, 27, guilty in the death of their 9-month-old daughter, Allyson.

The infant died at home June 7 of an untreated bacterial meningitis, a coroner said.

The Bergmanns are members of the Faith Assembly religious sect, whose followers shun conventional medical care and rely on prayer to heal illness and injury.

Judge Roger B. Cosby set an Oct. 29 sentencing date and released the Bergmanns on the $2,500 bond already posted. The reckless homicide conviction carries a sentence of one to four years. The child neglect conviction carries a term of six to 20 years.

Juror Johnny W. Hootman of Albion said Allyson's parents should have sought medical help when her illness became serious.

Study Blames Trusted Appointees For Leads

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidents who complain they'd had it up to their keisters with news leaks usually have only their closest appointees to blame, says a study of relations between the press and the government.

Most leaks are top-level jobs, the work of politically appointed officials who try to manipulate the media for their own purposes, and not the work of underlings in the government press offices who often get blamed, said researcher Stephen Hess in a Brookings Institution book,

"The Government-Press Connection," published today.

Hess, a Brookings senior fellow and onetime aide in the Eisenhower and Nixon White Houses, spent 1981-82 in the press offices of the White House, the State, Defense and Transportation departments and the Food and Drug Administration to investigate the role the offices play in the dissemination of news.

During his tour, he reported, he found no instance of outright lying, although he saw many instances of press spokesmen telling "half truths."

"Press officers hedge, they insinuate, but I always felt they thought they were playing by rules that reporters understood," he said. "Press officers and reporters were honorable with each other. This may seem faint praise, however, to news readers and listeners."

Sooner or later, most presidents complain about leaks and try to do something about them.

President Reagan, saying he'd "had it up to my keister with these leaks," ordered his staff two years ago not to talk to reporters without approval from the White House press office. That procedure was soon forgotten, but the president's usage of keister, which is slang for buttocks, was not.

Hess said the culprit in press leaks is almost always a member in good standing in the official family, "often with simplistic and misguided notions of the news media."

"It is this lack of discretion that eventually buries all presidents to their keisters," he wrote. "Still, there is nothing constructive they can do about it except to take more care to appoint people who are unlikely to give reporters information that works against the president's interests."

Hess argued that reporters have an obligation, in stories resulting from leaks, "to pass along their sources' motives for revealing information," but that is rarely done.

When it isn't, he said, the reader or listener has "a right to feel used" by both government and press.

As for press officers, while some may brag of their ability to manipulate the news, "most of their activities behind closed doors as well as in briefing rooms are merely variations of shouting good news and whispering bad news," Hess said.

Powerful Telescope To Give Better Look At Outer Space

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — A telescope so powerful it will be able to spot the glimmer of a firefly 10,000 miles away is being readied for shipment and its eventual job of peering close to the edge of the universe.

The $370 million "optical telescope assembly" will join the rest of the $1.2 billion Hubble space telescope satellite in California, then go by barge to Florida for a 1986 launch on a space shuttle.

The 43-foot-long satellite will look seven times farther and detect objects 50 times fainter than Earth-based telescopes.

"We have no idea what we're going to see," said Edward Weiler, program scientist for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

"Space Telescope is not going to shake the fundamentals of physics. It is going to enable us to ask questions we can't even ask today" by finding objects scientist can't even imagine, Weiler said Tuesday at a press briefing.

Nearby, in a nearly dust-free room, workers tested heaters in the telescope assembly, which will be shipped in November from the Perkin-Elmer Corp. to Lockheed workers in California.

From an orbit 310 miles above Earth, the satellite will pick up light that began its journey near the time of the birth of the universe. Scientists hope that light, showing how faraway objects appeared about 14 billion years ago, will help tell how galaxies form.

Scientists also expect the first sharp pictures of Pluto and its moon, and long-term studies of other planets during the satellite's 15-year mission.

Besides producing images from optical light, the satellite will sense ultraviolet light and analyze the mix of wavelengths in light from celestial sources, giving clues to chemical makeup, temperature, density and velocity.

Some 700 heaters are designed to keep temperature fluctuations from warping the telescope's main mirror, a curved 94-inch disc that Perkin-Elmer calls the most perfect mirror of its size ever made. The heaters are to keep the mirror within a half-degree of the 70 degrees at which it was ground.

Donald Fordyce, director of the project for Perkin-Elmer, said computers ground the mirror to one-millionth of an inch accuracy. That corresponds to a ball the size of earth with no imperfection taller than five inches, the company said.

The completed satellite will be a 25,500-pound cylinder 14 feet across. The telescope would be powerful enough to read a small sign in New York from a vantage point in Washington, D.C., or see the light of a firefly 10,000 miles away, Weiler said.

The satellite will orient itself by stars to lock onto its target, constantly fighting drift. Weiler said the satellite's ability will be comparable to mounting a laser beam on the Capitol dome, hitting a dime in New York and not drifting off the coin for 24 hours.

The satellite is named for Edwin P. Hubble, a distinguished American astronomer who died in 1953.

Firm Pledges To Find Cause For Bad Chips

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Instruments Corp. will work "night and day" tracing an apparent failure in its testing program that allowed millions of possibly defective chips to be installed in sophisticated defense weaponry, a company official says.

The Pentagon, over almost a decade, may have purchased as many as 15 million defective chips manufactured by Texas Instruments, the Defense Department said Tuesday. It said the chips were installed in electronic parts in the B-52 strategic bomber and other weapons.

"Nothing has been ruled out, including fraud," Texas Instruments Vice President Norman Neureiter said Tuesday.

Michael Burch, assistant secretary of defense for public affairs, said Tuesday in Washington "there is the possibility of criminal investigation of TI."

The Pentagon said it has told defense contractors to stop accepting the chips until a review of their testing is complete.

The silicon chips are at the heart of almost all electronic products now produced.

"Any weapon that contains a sophisticated electronic part" could contain the chips, said Donald E.

Moore, quality control chief of the Defense Logistics Agency, which oversees the Pentagon's purchases of weaponry.

More than 80 defense contractors may have purchased the chips from TI and put them into weapons systems, and as many as 4,700 types of chips might be involved, Moore said.

Defense officials also blamed the failure of a computer on the space shuttle Discovery on a faulty TI microchip, but the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and Neureiter both said the chip was not at fault.

Neureiter said TI has launched an intensive investigation into the testing of the 4,700 types of microchips.

"We have put together a full action team," he said. "We're working night and day to resolve this issue."

He said the company does not know precisely what went wrong, where it happened or how many weapons systems may be affected. He said most of the military microchips were manufactured and tested at plants in Taiwan and Midland, Texas.

Pentagon spokesmen said some of the defective chips may have been installed in the onboard computers of the B-52 bomber.

Coastal Residents Wait Out The Storm

At Southport

By WILDA WAHPEPAH
Associated Press Writer
SOUTHPORT, N.C. (AP) — Sheets of rain and fierce winds gusting to 115 mph wailed through dark streets littered with tree limbs, store signs and garbage cans. In a shopping center parking lot, one man sheltered in a station wagon with his three dogs.

Hurricane Diana lurked ominously in the Atlantic today, extending furious arms for miles in every direction, feeling its way up the coast.

The streets of Southport, a seaside community of about 3,500 people on a point of land about 25 miles south of Wilmington, were littered with trees tangled in downed power lines. Store signs, ripped from their mountings, were crumpled on the ground.

Red flags atop the Live Oak shopping stood stiff in the wind, fluttering loudly.

Overturned trash cans cluttered nearly every street.

Early today, Southport was still without electricity and Police Chief Bill Coring and his crew were waiting for daylight, and the rain and wind to subside.

"It's hard to tell how much damage there is until morning," said Coring, his office lit by a bare-bulbed table lamp powered by an emergency generator.

The wall clock, frozen at 5:41 p.m., told when electricity was lost.

Somehow, the town crept through the storm with no one injured.

The Coast Guard station at Oak Island just across the sound from Southport reported sustained winds

Tuesday of 100 mph with gusts hitting 115 mph.

Carolina Power & Light Co.'s Brunswick Nuclear Power Plant just outside Southport shut down automatically Monday when it was struck by lightning and officials decided to keep it off line until the hurricane passed, a utility spokesman said.

Three miles inland from Southport, about a dozen cars were parked along the front of Live Oak shopping center by people seeking shelter from the storm.

Tom Medlin, 59, of Southport said he didn't want to go to an evacuation center because they wouldn't take his three dogs.

Sitting in his station wagon with his animals, a flashlight and a box of food, Medlin said he thought the shopping center was "a safe place."

In Holden Beach, about 15 miles to the south along the coast, Mayor Kenner Amos had ordered Highway 130 blocked at the Intercoastal Waterway bridge.

Amos, mayor of the town of 200 residents for 10 years, earlier had ordered the beach houses evacuated and the electricity cut off to prevent fires.

"I'll tell you what," said Amos, referring to the hurricane. "At about 3 o'clock this afternoon, I wouldn't have given you a plug nickel for this beach."

"Today it looked like this darn thing was coming right straight into here."

Town officials, he said with pride, had worked out a system for evacuating the beach.

The area was split into six divisions, with a "captain" in each who would, when called, alert residents in his division, Amos said.

"We did it in two and a half hours, I'll bet that's the best record on the coast," he bragged.

"I told everyone if they had a tank of gas not to stop at a shelter, to go as far as they could inland," he said.

And In Jacksonville, Calm, Fear, Humor

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer
JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The evacuees stretched out on cots in a smoky school gym Tuesday night and waited with a mixture of calm, fear and humor for Hurricane Diana to hit.

As babies sucked bottles and pajama-clad toddlers scurried around 198 cots lined up in the Jacksonville Middle School basketball court, some old-timers listened nervously to radios and recalled hurricanes Donna and Hazel a generation ago.

"I remember Hazel, back in 1954. It just left a wasteland, like 'Piffit!'" said Ken Brown, illustrating the destruction with a flattening of his hands. "Powerlines were down everywhere. All the streets were flooded. Hope it doesn't happen here again."

Most of the 200 evacuees at the school came during the evening when emergency personnel broadcast warnings to trailer residents to find solid shelter.

"We just panicked. I was scared to death. But he was real cool," Lorraine Swartz said, pointing to her husband, Marine Lance Cpl. Craig Swartz. "I'm worried about my trailer and I'm worried about my dogs."

"I figured I could lose my trailer, but at least I'd have my life," said Gary Babbert. "I hope this thing comes in and we can get it over with."

Red Cross coordinator Nyrt Buck said 13 volunteers, including rescue personnel, were helping organize, feed and calm the evacuees.

"Some folks are awfully worried, especially the older ones," she said. "But even the younger ones, you can see their hands shaking."

Ms. Buck said the evacuees included one epileptic, one diabetic, two people with asthma and several with high blood pressure, but that a Red Cross nurse was on hand.

Ed Herring, principal of the school, said he had been up since 6 a.m. — first as principal and then as shelter manager.

"The kids are just about worn out," he said. "They were ridiculous earlier. They were just entertaining themselves ... scampering all over the bleachers."

But by 10 p.m., as storm winds gathered strength outside, many children sprawled out on cots or in the arms of their mothers, some of whom wore curlers.

"Right now the biggest danger is not the hurricane, but panic," said Jacksonville Rescue Squad volunteer Dale C. Anderson. "It's been real calm so far. I hope it stays that way."

"You've got to have a sense of humor — to find an outlet for people," said Julius Clark, a Coastal Carolina Community College student who volunteered to help with the Red Cross. "That's how you counteract fear. For example, we had one man who was real worried about his boat. We told him, 'We may find it parked on the highway, but we'll find it.'"

In Wilmington, Carolina Beach resident Walter Hewett quoted a

Bible passage about the foolish man who builds his house in the sand.

"That book has never been wrong," Hewett said as he waited in an emergency shelter. But Hewett said he believed his mobile home would be standing this morning.

"I had to quit my job to go home," said Hewett's son, Tracy, who repairs radiators. "My family is more important to me than radiators."

Hewett, who has a three-month-old baby, said his employer did not believe the weather was bad enough to let his employees go home.

Many of the people at the shelter were anxious for the worst to be over. "I wish it would hit already, so we could go home," said Debbie McKee, a resident of Wilmington. "I just got scared, what with hearing it on the news and the babies." She brought her two-year-old and eight-month-old children with her.

Keisha Taylor, 11, said she wasn't scared but she was afraid for the belongings left behind at Carolina Beach.

"I'm scared for my doggie. They left him at home and my dad was at work," she said.

People hovered the Hoggard High School gym like a patchwork quilt, with grouping of families on cots and blankets. Some of them clustered with grandparents in wheelchairs.

For the evacuees, the night was highlighted by the arrival of baby food and formula at 8:20 p.m. and diapers at 10:10 p.m.

Army Looks Into Looting

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — A Pentagon spokesman says the Army's Criminal Investigation Command is examining claims of "wrongdoing" by U.S. servicemen during the invasion of Grenada last year. The Fayetteville Times reported.

In reports Tuesday, the newspaper quoted Pentagon spokesman Lt. Col. Bill Smullen as saying the probe was being conducted on the Department of the Army level, but he couldn't give details.

Steve Moore, spokesman at Fort Bragg, said the CID was probing reports of looting and "that ... investigations are being conducted where such follow-up action appears warranted."

Jane's Defense Weekly, a British military publication, recently stated that the United States paid some $1.6 million in compensation to 700 claimants for damage during the October 1983 invasion. An Army spokesman said that included $1.5 million for combat-related claims and just over $450,000 for non-combat-related claims.

Joe Rizzi, a former 82nd Airborne Division soldier who was in Grenada, said a CID agent contacted him last week about statements about looting he made to a Newsday reporter in July. Rizzi's was quoted as saying troopers were "stealing all kinds of stuff" and taking "about anything they felt they might need," including watches, cameras and money.

At one point, Rizzi said members of his squad entered a house and that "one of the guys came out with a big bag, a big plastic bag, filled with money."

Rizzi said he did not take part in the looting and destruction because he thought about his own home in Spring Lake, N.C., and because he believed it was wrong.

Last November Ft. Bragg officials conducted an investigation into allegations of looting, property destruction, drinking and marijuana smoking contained in a diary kept by Spec. 4 Arthur L. Brogden, who was sent to Grenada with the 508th Infantry of the 82nd Airborne.

Post officials concluded the claims were false and cleared Brogden and other members of his unit of wrongdoing.

Brogden, who has since left the Army, wrote that his company happened upon the Cuban Embassy in Grenada and proceeded to "loot" it of food and liquor. He later said he did not mean that soldiers took "fixtures and jewels."

Gerald Ford To Campaign For Former Congressman

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

A visit by former President Gerald Ford to Asheville next week will boost former U.S. Rep. Bill Hendon's efforts to unseat Democratic Rep. James M. Clarke, a Hendon spokesman said.

"He campaigned for us here in 1980, and we invited him back ... and he accepted," said Charles Duckett, Hendon's campaign field director. "I think it definitely will help. In 1976, he carried this area in the primary even though Ronald Reagan won statewide."

In other political news Tuesday North Carolina Democrats repeated charges that Sen. Jesse Helms tried to scrap the Social Security program, while state GOP Chairman David Flaherty said Gov. Jim Hunt was breaking his promise to stop using state planes for political trips.

Duckett said in Asheville that Ford would attend a $250 per person fund-raising luncheon there and hold a news conference Sept. 21.

When he won in 1980, Hendon became the first Republican congressman to represent the 11th District in 52 years. But he was unseated by Clarke in 1982 by 1,324 votes.

The North Carolina League of Conservation Voters has endorsed state Rep. Bob Jordan, the Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, over Republican John Carrington of Raleigh.

The league, in a statement, praised Jordan for supporting funding of clean water projects, opposing burial of most hazardous wastes and working to strengthen the state's sedimentation pollution law.

In a Greensboro news conference, retired University of North Carolina history professor Richard Bardolph and his wife, Greensboro city councilwoman Dorothy Bardolph, said Helms was "hostile" toward Social Security.

"No matter what he may say in the heat of a campaign, Jesse Helms is out to destroy Social Security," said Bardolph, a Democratic activist.

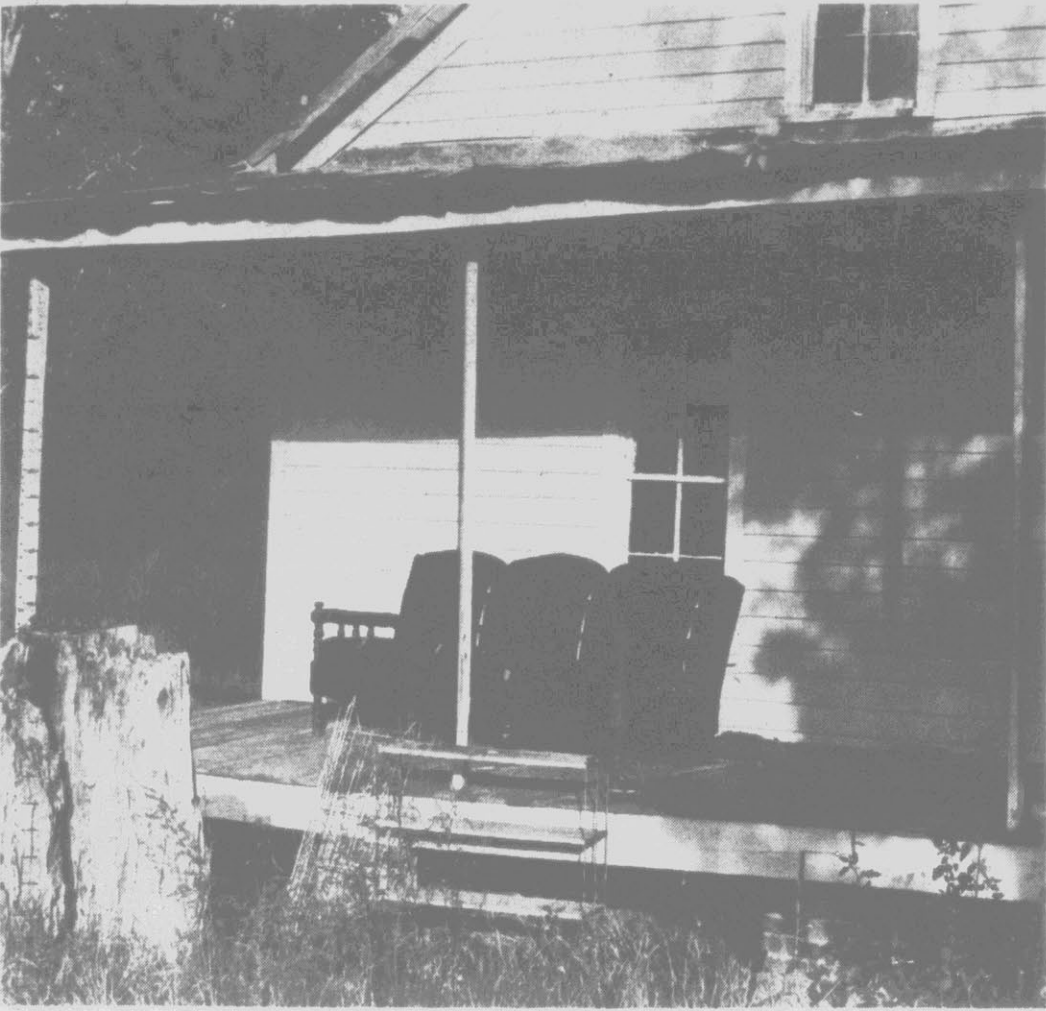

"It's amazing that Governor Hunt continues to make this a political football," responded Claude Allen, a Helms spokesman. "This is a tactic of Democrats and liberals every election year..."

Hunt said last Thursday he would stop traveling to political gatherings in state aircraft after his aides conceded they had underbilled his Senate campaign for use of the airplanes and helicopters.

In a news conference Tuesday, Flaherty said Hunt flew in a state helicopter to Greensboro last Friday to attend a barbecue for campaign workers and a fund-raiser and concert in his honor at North Carolina A&T State University.

"There is no limit to Hunt's willingness to flagrantly violate state law, federal law, and his own promises — all in order to advance his political career," said Flaherty.

"Dave Flaherty has gotten his facts screwed up again," said Marshall. "He's whistling in the wind again."

FRONT PORCH DREAMS? — Could it be that the leather sofa on the porch, the abandoned-to-the-yard metal phonograph record holder and bookcase are leftovers of the front-porch dreams of former occupants? In any case, it seems apparent that in moving, the occupants were either in a hurry to leave or for some other reason decided to abandon part of their belongings. The scene is in a rural area of Martin County. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Textile Industry Rebuffed In Search For Protection

WASHINGTON (AP) — Like the U.S. automobile and steel industries before it, America's textile industry is seeking government protection against unfair foreign competition.

But the textile industry, which accounts for a larger portion of the gross national product than either the auto or steel industry, is getting the same response from key congressional officials.

Throughout a day of Capitol Hill meetings Tuesday, industry officials were told repeatedly that they are the victims of outdated trade agreements and regulations and economic forces unleashed by the federal government's growing budget deficit.

Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., chairman of the Ways and Means trade subcommittee, capped the day by telling them he would resist their attempts to win protection as he did earlier attempts by the auto and steel industries.

"The basic fundamental problem is the unbalanced budget," Gibbons said during a panel discussion with other congressmen. "Any industry susceptible to import penetration is having a hell of a time now."

He acknowledged that the textile industry has been managed better than the steel and auto industries and has modernized and increased productivity in the face of an increasing flow of imports.

But Gibbons said he has resisted pleas for protectionism from the auto and steel industries. "And I'll resist you, too," he added. "Protecting one industry will open the floodgate. I want to work with you and try to solve your problems, but in the context of solving America's problems."

More encouraging words, however, came from three Southern Democrats whose congressional districts depend heavily on textile manufacturing: Ed Jenkins of Georgia, Butler Derrick of South Carolina and Charles Rose of North Carolina, the core of what is known as the Congressional Textile Caucus.

Jenkins, the caucus chairman, vowed to "intensify the battle" for the industry next year with "a comprehensive measure" that could include an emergency freeze on textile imports.

TO ALL TELEPHONE COMPANY SUBSCRIBERS NOTICE OF HEARING

DOCKET NO. P-100, SUB 72
BEFORE THE NORTH CAROLINA UTILITIES COMMISSION

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the North Carolina Utilities Commission has instituted a proceeding to investigate whether competitive offerings of intrastate long distance telephone service in North Carolina are in the public interest and, if so, what rules and regulations should apply to such offerings.

A bill was ratified by the North Carolina General Assembly on June 29, 1984, which amends Chapter 62 of the Public Utilities Law. The General Assembly declared as a matter of policy that competitive offerings of long distance telephone service may be in the public interest in this State. Further, the General Assembly vested authority in the North Carolina Utilities Commission to allow competitive offerings of long distance services by public utilities as defined in G. S. 62-3(23)a.6. The legislation authorized the Commission to issue a certificate to any person applying to offer long distance telephone service as a public utility provided that such person is found to be fit, capable and financially able to render such service; that such additional service is required to serve the public interest effectively and adequately; and that such additional service will not jeopardize reasonably affordable local exchange service.

In response to the action of the General Assembly which expanded the power and duties of the Utilities Commission with regard to long distance telephone service, the Commission has concluded that before any carrier certification hearing is held, a general investigation should be to consider whether, and to what extent, competitive offerings of long distance telephone service should be allowed in North Carolina and what rules and procedures should be established for authorizing such competition if it is found to be in the public interest.

The Commission has scheduled evening public hearings as follows in order to afford all telephone subscribers throughout North Carolina reasonable opportunity to appear and present testimony regarding the issue of intrastate competitive long distance telephone service:

- Asheville: Monday, October 15, 1984, at 7:00 p.m., Superior Courtroom, Fifth Floor, Buncombe County Courthouse, Courthouse Plaza, Asheville, North Carolina.
- Charlotte: Monday, October 15, 1984, at 7:00 p.m., Commissioner's Board Room, Fourth Floor, County Office Building, 720 East Fourth Street, Charlotte, North Carolina.
- Wilmington: Monday, October 15, 1984, at 7:00 p.m., Courtroom 317, Courthouse Annex, Corner of Fourth and Princess Streets, Wilmington, North Carolina.
- Rocky Mount: Monday, October 22, 1984, at 7:00 p.m., Council Chambers, Third Floor, Administrative Offices Complex, One Government Plaza, Rocky Mount, North Carolina.
- Greensboro: Monday, October 22, 1984, at 7:00 p.m., Courtroom 2-A, Guilford County Courthouse, No. 2 Governmental Plaza, Greensboro, North Carolina.
- Raleigh: Monday, October 22, 1984, at 7:00 p.m., Commission Hearing Room 217, Dobbs Building, 430 North Salisbury Street, Raleigh, North Carolina.

In addition, the Commission has scheduled a hearing in Raleigh to receive testimony on this matter from the telephone companies subject to the Commission's jurisdiction and other interested parties. This hearing is scheduled as follows:

- Raleigh: Tuesday, October 23, 1984, beginning at 10:00 a.m. in Commission Hearing Room 217, Dobbs Building, 430 North Salisbury Street, Raleigh, North Carolina, and continuing, as necessary, to conclusion.

Persons desiring to intervene in the matter as formal parties of record should file a motion under North Carolina Utilities Commission Rules R1-6, R1-7, and R1-19. Persons desiring to present testimony for the record should appear at a public hearing. Persons desiring to send written statements to the Commission should submit their statements prior to the hearing and should include any information which those persons wish to be considered in the investigation of this matter. The contents of letters and petitions will be received in the official file as statements of position. Specific facts, however, will only be considered on the basis of testimony presented at the public hearings. Interventions or statements should be addressed to the Chief Clerk, North Carolina Utilities Commission, Post Office Box 991, Raleigh, North Carolina 27602.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined slightly today amid new doubts about the interest-rate outlook.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 2.76 to 1,195.23 in the first half hour.

Losers took a 5-3 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Federal Reserve actions earlier in the week were taken initially as possible signs that the Fed was moving to ease credit. But some analysts dismissed the central bank's maneuvers as technical, not tactical, adjustments.

There was speculation on Wall Street early Tuesday that Henry Kaufman, the Salomon Brothers economist, was about to take a more optimistic view of interest-rate prospects.

However, Kaufman repeated his long-term bearish position.

Syntax slipped 1/8 to 46 1/2 in early trading. Rumors that the company might be a takeover target were denied Tuesday.

But nearly two stocks rose in price for every one that fell on the NYSE.

Big board volume climbed to 101.36 million shares from 74.4 million on Monday.

The NYSE's composite index rose .15 to 94.76. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .48 at 212.

A lot of the people had gone through other bad storms, like Hurricane Hazel, and were fearful of what the damage might be.

Best Value Motor Lodge manager Nick Batel said his motel was booked solid. "A lot of the people said they might go back today and find out what kind of damage there was," he said.

The Holiday Inn's 155 rooms also were filled, said manager Doug Roos.

"Businessmen canceled their trips, and as soon as that happened, we were filling the vacancies with persons from the coast," he said, and people had to be turned away. He estimated that about one-third of the motel's occupants were from the coast.

Brenda Mann, a desk clerk at The Sheraton-Greenville, said, "People came in last night from the coast, and they want to stay again tonight, but we don't have rooms for some of them." She said that in addition to coastal residents, local people who live in mobile homes also came to the hotel to escape the damaging winds and rains of the storm.

Besides coastal residents coming into Greenville by car, an entire Piedmont Airlines flight stayed in a local motel Tuesday night.

Marie Compton, assistant manager of the Econo-Travel Motor Hotel on Memorial Drive, said Piedmont's flight from Kinston to Wilmington was canceled and passengers spent the night in the Greenville motel.

"They seemed disturbed and upset and panicky, but after they had a good meal, they rested through the night and seemed okay this morning," Mrs. Compton said. "Piedmont called this morning and said everything in Wilmington was pretty open except the beaches. But the flight still could not leave today, so the passengers were put on a bus to Wilmington."

duties, voting procedures, etc. Meetings were set for 5 p.m. on the second and fourth Tuesdays in each month. The second Tuesday will be a regular meeting, members voted, and the fourth Tuesday a "back-up" or emergency meeting.

The board also adopted an outline of topics to be tackled by the committee, but voted to eliminate a month-by-month tentative timetable listed with the topics.

"I don't want to see us going into something with a time figure," said committee member Anne McGaughy of Farmville. "I personally don't want to see the committee work against a deadline. I don't know how long each item may take and I don't want to see us not take enough time on some or take too much time on others."

"I agree because there are some of these topics I feel we can do in less than a month," said Jim Black of Winterville. "I can also say I see some I think will take longer than a month to complete."

The 12-member board also began preparations for representative of each school system to take representatives of the other system through the schools in their respective districts.

"I would like to see the schools in the Greenville system that I have not seen through the eyes of that school's representative on the city board," committee member Black said. "I'd like to hear and see what the board members feel is a particular school's strengths and weaknesses because I think that perspective could be very important."

The committee instructed West and Blinson to contact schools in both systems and set up visits. Topics to be considered by the committee during the interim consolidation period include:

- Submission of a consolidation plan of action to the two boards and the county commissioners.

- Complete consolidation documents for submission to the State Board of Education, the Legislature and county commissioners.

- Complete plans for consolidation of the school food services and maintenance, custodial, staff development and personnel services.

- Outline plans for consolidation of instruction and preparation of budget recommendations for 1985-86.

- Plan for consolidation of financial operations and submit a 1985-86 budget to county commissioners.

- Complete plans for a new elementary school and additions to D.H. Conley, North Pitt and Belvoir schools.

Vikes, Panthers Renew Rivalry

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

After two weeks of non-conference action, the D.H. Conley Vikings are 2-0 and haven't allowed a point to be scored against them. Conversely, North Pitt's Panthers are 0-2 and scored just one touchdown on a 69-yard run.

But ask either school's coach — Donnie Bunn of Conley or Larry Bolger of North Pitt — about this Friday's cross-county matchup on the Vikings' home field and they offer the same response: you can throw the record book right out the window.

"I know from talking to the people here, you can throw the record book out," Bunn said. "North Pitt went down to Havelock and gave them fits. I'm looking for an exciting game from both sides. It's a pride game; you can throw everything else out the door."

Ayden-Grifton, which downed Roanoke 27-8 in its opener last Friday, travels to Richlands, while Farmville Central, a 3-7 winner over Williamston, visits Bertie. In other area games, Greene Central hosts North Lenoir, Roanoke visits Washington, Williamston travels to Plymouth, Chocowinity is at Perquimans and Jamesville at Belhaven.

Conley posted a 3-7 record in 1983, but the Vikings' new coach comes from a winning program at SouthWest Edgecombe.

"We can't be over-confident," Bunn said. "We don't have anything to be over-confident about. Our enthusiasm was good at practice Monday. The thing we're trying to concentrate on is not being satisfied. We've got to continue to play hungry; got to continue to play unsatisfied. What we've done so far doesn't help us a bit."

North Pitt struggled early in the season a year ago, so the Panthers' offensive output this season is an improvement — even if only a little.

"From what I understand, the Conley game is a tradition, and they get up for that," Bolger said. "They came out yesterday with a little more confidence and willingness to listen.

"I think (scoring against East Carteret) has a lot to do with confidence. That was a big play, and they had a drive going in the fourth quarter. We're not out of the dark yet, we've still got a long way to go."

The Panthers lost to East Carteret 19-6 last week, but Bolger saw many signs of improvement despite North Pitt's 96 yards total offense. Melvin Bradley tallied 108 yards on 23 carries including a 69-yard touchdown on the Panthers' second play from scrimmage, and East Carteret was held to 169 yards total offense.

"(We) definitely showed a lot of improvement," Bolger said. "Our defense was shaky in the first half; we gave up a long drive. Then in second quarter we had a punt blocked to set up another drive. After that, (our defense) came together and (East Carteret) couldn't move the ball.

"Defensively, just a few more adjustments and we'll be right where we want to be. If these young kids will stay with us, they're in for some exciting things.

"The kids are starting to see that (our offense) does work. In the fourth quarter, we drove to the 14 before a turnover stopped us. The offense is starting to come together. The offensive line has improved greatly; they're coming off the line quickly.

"They were a little bit tentative against Havelock and Roanoke, but now they're starting to fire off the ball. We have to go out and meet the defense. We had some problems with our pass blocking. We threw six times, and they were all complete — only three were to us and three to them.

"Overall, though, (the East Carteret game) was a confidence builder."

Conley, meanwhile, made the most of a 42-0 thrashing of Jones Senior. The Vikings rolled up 298 yards rushing along with 50 passing on two completions. The only low spot for the Vikes was 100 yards of penalties marked off against Conley.

"A couple were for jumping off sides," Bunn said. "But I'd rather have that than sitting back and getting blown off line. One or two others were for late hits, and that hurt us more. There again, they're being aggressive — not flagrant, just a step late on an assignment or something like that.

"It's an aggressive error, and we feel like we can correct it by our mental approach.

"With our early success, that's helped our players gain confidence in what we're trying to do. We want to create enthusiasm. If you play excited, you can be successful.

"We've still got to see how well we play when we get behind.

"We have three backs that we're pleased with, but one person standing is Martin Anderson at running back and defensive back. He likes to hit; he runs aggressively, and he put on one of the hits of the week on defense."

FARMVILLE CENTRAL

The Jaguars pounded out 284 yards rushing and 64 passing on four completions against Williamston.

"With the exception some major penalties, that's as fine an opening game as I've seen in nine years as a head coach," Farmville Coach Dixon Sauls said. "We stopped ourselves twice. We felt like we executed extremely well on offense for a season-opening game.

"Going into the game, we didn't expect to score five touchdowns, certainly not against Williamston. Our offensive line got off the ball, and the backs ran hard.

"Our offensive line as a unit played well, particularly Jerome Daniels at right guard and Dennis Tripp at tight end.

"Defensively, we contained Williamston — we had 21 first downs

Emory Makes Line Changes

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Ed Emory has never been 0-2 before in his career — either on the college or high school level — and he's not at all pleased about the prospects of going 0-3 with the 1984 East Carolina Pirates.

So he's going to be making some changes in his offensive line this week in an effort to try and get something in the otherwise punchless offense of the Pirates.

This past Saturday, East Carolina accounted for only 125 yards in total offense against Temple University, falling by a 17-0 count. It was the first shutout in Ficklen Stadium for the Pirates since 1971, and the rushing total of 58 yards was also the lowest since 1971 when ECU amassed just 33 against Tampa in the final game of that season.

Emory wasn't so worried about the shutout, however, as about the lack of offensive thrust. "It's only you people (the media) who have made a big thing about the shutout," Emory said. "We could have kicked a field goal on several occasions, but our job was to get back into the football game with a touchdown, not a field goal."

And Emory avowed, if he had to be 0-2, he'd rather it be with this team. "This team has character, talent and kids that care. They will get better. How soon, again, I don't know. But we will be a good football team, and I know we have a good football program here and I'm not worried about that."

Even so, Emory was disappointed in the offensive performance of the team Saturday night. "We've got our backs to the wall, and we've dug ourselves a deep well to crawl out of. But we will dig our way out."

Temple, Emory added, is a much improved team. "I think they'll have a winning season, but we still should have beaten them. When you hold a team to an average of only three yards a play, you should win."

While saying he was not making excuses, Emory listed a number of injuries to players on the offensive line which had made it difficult to get any continuity this fall — throughout preseason as well as since the season began.

"First of all, we lost four great players to graduation," Emory pointed out, listing Norwood Vann, Terry Long, John Robertson and John Floyd. The first three of those all made professional teams after being drafted.

"And the quarterback problem has come because none of the three have really been given a fair chance to show what they can do. You can't pass when you don't have time to throw because of the lack of protection. And you can't run option plays when you don't have the protection to let them develop."

Emory listed linemen Ken Bourgeois and Jeff Autry as being lost before the season started, while Tim Dumas, Brad Henson, Norman Quick, Mac Powers, Greg Quick and Rick Autry have all been playing with various slowing injuries. Tight end Damon Pope was sidelined in the second quarter of the game Saturday and may miss several games.

"All together, we have 17 linemen sidelined with injuries," Emory said. "No program can handle that sort of injury list.

"It's a Catch 22 situation. What can we do? We can line up, practice coming off the football and protecting the passer and the runner. But we can't do that because of the number of injuries. What we should have done was bite the bullet two weeks ago and gotten ready to play without these people. But we kept telling ourselves that they'd be back tomorrow."

Tomorrow, however, still hasn't arrived.

"I'll tell you what kind of year we've having. We've had three hernia operations this fall already. I've never heard of anything like that anywhere in football," Emory said. The latest victim is defensive end Vinson Smith, who underwent surgery earlier this week.

However, Curtis Wyatt, another defensive end who underwent hernia surgery just four weeks ago, returned to action in last Saturday's game and performed well.

Returning to the offensive line, Emory said he has made some changes and hopes that they will begin to turn things around. Tim Mitchell will continue at center with Greg Thomas as his backup. Rich Autry and Norman Quick will handle the guard duties with David Kramer and Paul Hoggard in backup roles.

Powers shifts to tackle, as does Theodore Livingston, backed up by Greg Quick and Greg Sokolohorsky. Dave Thomas was moved from defensive end to back up both tackle and guard.

At the tight end position, three people have been moved over from the defense, led by Curtis Struyk, Scott Lewis and Pat Bowns.

"We will be going a lot of 1-on-1 and 2-on-2 in practice each day for the next several weeks in an effort to improve our line play," Emory said.

In the meanwhile, he has also decided to go with Robbie Bartlett at the #1 quarterback position against this week's opponent, Central Michigan. "He's older and has more experience and maturity," Emory said of his reasons for picking the junior college transfer.

Emory was also pleased with the defensive effort against Temple. "We missed only 11 tackles for 27 yards," he noted. "And we had eight knock-backs." The missed tackles are those that should have been made but weren't — with the yardage gained afterwards. Knock backs are tackles in which the runner does not gain any further yardage after being hit.

"Chris Santa Cruz was our defensive player of the week. He played an excellent game at nose guard," Emory said.

"But now the defense is hampered to some extent because we've moved four players to the offensive unit."

And while the Pirates are attempting to get better this week, Emory is worried about how much Hurricane Diana will hamper practice sessions. "We can't learn a lot slogging around in the rain, and we can't get into Minges because they've just resurfaced the floor."

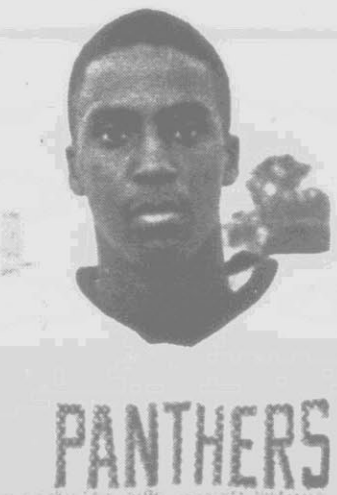

Emory again added that he had never been associated with a rushing game that was as bad as Saturday's. "We never controlled the line of scrimmage, but we could have turned the game around had (David)

Plum scored." Plum pulled in a batted pass at the Temple 40 and returned it to the one before slowing and being chased down.

Emory then blamed three different breakdowns in blocking on the running plays that netted no yards and resulted in a fumble that Temple recovered. "That was the turning point of the game. But even at halftime, I felt like we could come back. I thought that any minute we were going to get things started.

"Our players are hurt and disappointed. But East Carolina is no flash in the pan. I think this group of players is going to get the things done necessary to turn things around. It won't be any quick fix, though. We're going to have to take it a step at a time."

The next step comes Saturday in Mt. Pleasant, Mich., when the Pirates face Mid-American Conference favorite Central Michigan.

The Pirates, 2-0, received 16 out of 18 possible first-place votes while pulling in 173 points overall to outdistance Wilson Fike, 2-0, which claimed 106 points.

West Mecklenburg, 2-0, got one first-place vote and 79 points to capture the No. 3 spot. The last first-place vote went to a team that failed to make the top 10.

Fayetteville Byrd, 1-0, is ranked No. 4 followed by Henderson Vance, 2-0, and Morganton Freedom, 2-0.

Rounding out the top 10 are Northern Durham, 2-0, East Burke, 1-0, Fayetteville 71st, 1-0, and East Forsyth, 2-0.

In the 3-A ranks, Kannapolis, 2-0, received 15 first-place votes and 173 points while SouthWest Edgecombe, 2-0, was a distance second with 86 points. Defending 3-A champs Eastern Randolph, 2-0, pulled in a pair of first-place votes and 76 points overall to finish third.

West Caldwell, 2-0, is fourth followed by West Henderson, 2-0, which got one first-place vote. Clinton, 1-0-1, is sixth followed by Southern Durham, 2-0, Shelby, 1-0, Alexander Central, 2-0, and Shelby Crest, 1-0.

In the combined 2-A and 1-A class, Swain County, 2-0, was named No. 1 on seven ballots and received 100 points, while Southwest Guilford, 2-0, picked up five first-place votes and 75 points.

Jordan-Matthews, 2-0, and Maiden, 2-0, each received on first-place vote to finish third and fourth, with 73 and 65 points respectively. Sylva-Webster, 1-1, received two first-place votes to finish fifth with 63 points.

Two defending state champions come next. Robbinsville, which has captured five straight 1-A titles, received 49 points despite losing its opening game, while Randleman, 1-1, which is looking for its fourth consecutive 2-A crown, received 47 points.

Fuquay-Varina, 1-0, and Chatham Central, 2-0, finished tied for eight with 46 points, while Newton-Conover, 0-1, was 10th with 35 points.

Olympic Surplus 'Staggering'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Summer Olympics' "staggering" surplus of about $150 million — nearly 10 times the amount originally projected — will help promote sports in the United States and possibly in Third World countries, organizers said.

It is by far, officials said Tuesday, the most positive financial result of any Olympic Games in history.

A huge surge of ticket sales and an extremely high nationwide television audience contributed to the huge windfall.

"The success is due in a large part to the enthusiasm in this community and throughout the country," said Olympic committee board chairman Paul Ziffren.

The money will provide unprecedented funding for training future Olympic athletes through a $75 million disbursement to the United States Olympic Committee. Another $50 million will go to a newly formed LAOOC Amateur Athletic Foundation, and the LAOOC will hold $25 million in reserve, possibly to go toward the development of sports in Third World countries.

Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley, who is in Spain advising Barcelona officials on their plans to bid for the 1992 Olympic Games, said: "I am very pleased to hear about the staggering surplus announced today by the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee."

"The LAOOC's financial statement proves that the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles were the most successful ever held. Everyone associated with the Olympic Games and the people of Los Angeles justifiably should be proud," the mayor said in a prepared statement.

As of Tuesday, the committee showed revenues of $239 million for television and broadcasting, $151 million for tickets, $121 million for sponsorships and licensing, $28 million from U.S. government Olympic coin sales, and $80 million from interest, ticket handling charges and 1983 pre-Olympic events. Interest accumulated from pre-Olympic events alone amounted to $55 million.

At a news conference at the Olympic headquarters in Los Angeles, the committee leaders issued financial figures that showed a "current forecast" of a total revenue of $619 million — more than $100 million above projections publicly issued last year.

Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee President Peter V. Ueberroth said International Olympic Committee President Juan Antonio Samaranch had expressed some reservations about the Games being such a money-making enterprise.

Ueberroth indicated that the idea of possibly giving some of the money to Third World countries had grown out of his talks with Samaranch in the last two days.

To The Editor:
The recent coverage by the Daily Reflector concerning area triathletes was appreciated. What you apparently do not realize, however, is that there are Greenville residents who train year around in preparation for participation in triathlons along the East Coast. Although the article indicated that triathloning is "new," most of these Greenville triathletes began participation by competing in the first triathlon event in North Carolina. "The Wilmington YMCA/Pepsi Triathlon" September, 1979 — 1 mile swim, 42 mile bike, 10 mile run (presently 1.25 miles swim, 24.8 mile bike, 9.3 miles run). Except for two of the following groups, these triathletes work normal 40 hour or more per week job and train prior to work beginning, at lunch time and in the evening (3-4 hours per day, 52 weeks per year, year in, year out).

Robert Morrison is one of the premier "Age Group" triathletes in North Carolina and the VA, NC & SC region. Four of the following group have participated in and completed ten or more triathlons. Since these triathletes do represent Greenville and since the Daily Reflector does represent local news/sports please be aware of the accomplishments of Greenville residents. The following is a list of "known" Greenville triathletes (have participated in recognized triathlons):

Homers Power Twins Back To Lead

By The Associated Press
Minnesota's Tom Brunansky stood near home plate watching teammate Kent Hrbek lumber around the bases for an inside-the-park homer and decided he would take an easier route.

"On my home run, all I had to do was jog," said Brunansky, whose 30th round-tripper of the season followed Hrbek's 25th as the Twins beat Kansas City 5-1 Tuesday night to take a one-game lead in the American League West.

"The fans like to see Herbie run," said a jovial Brunansky. "To watch Herbie pass out in the bat room was kind of fun, too."

Their heroics, which highlighted a four-run rally after two were out in the seventh inning, gave the Twins the first two games of the three-game showdown in the Metrodome. And they were enough for Frank Viola, 16-12, who tossed a six-hitter and struck out nine Royals.

"When I was coming around third, I could hardly stand up and I didn't think my legs would make it," said Hrbek, a strapping 6-foot-4 and 215 pounds, who needed oxygen. "I'm not exactly known for my blazing speed."

"When he dove into home plate I could see him yelling, 'Yeah, before he hit the plate,'" said Mickey Hatcher, who had three hits and two runs batted in to extend his streak to 9-for-9 with three walks when runners are in scoring position from the seventh inning on.

Elsewhere in the AL, it was Detroit 9, Baltimore 2; Cleveland 4, California 2; Toronto 10, New York 3; Milwaukee 14, Boston 6; Oakland 4, Chicago 1; and Seattle 4, Texas 3.

"People don't believe we can do it, but we know we can and we don't want to prove anything because the darker it is the easier it is to sneak up on someone," Hrbek explained.

"We still have 18 games to go but we have a loose atmosphere and we're having fun," said Viola. The Twins held a 1-0 lead with two outs in the seventh when Tim Teufel hit his second double and scored on Hatcher's second RBI single. Hrbek followed with his shot into the gap in right-center, and Brunansky then reached the seats in left.

Kansas City Manager Dick Howser said Minnesota's pitching impresses him more than its power. "Their top three pitchers (Viola, John Butcher and Mike Smithson) are as good as anybody we've seen in any division," Howser said. "That's why they are leading — their pitching staff."

Tigers 9, Orioles 2
Lance Parrish and pinch-hitter Larry Herndon drove in two runs apiece during Detroit's five-run fifth-inning rally in support of Den Petty, 17-8.

Darrell Evans had four hits, including his 16th homer, for Detroit, while Rick Dempsey drove in both Baltimore runs with his 10th homer and a run-scoring double.

The victory reduced Detroit's magic number for clinching the AL East crown to seven over Toronto. Any combination of Tiger victories and Blue Jay losses totaling seven would give Detroit the division.

Blue Jays 10, Yankees 3
Toronto's George Bell and Jesse Barfield slugged two-run homers in a game that featured a bench-clearing brawl in the fifth inning. New York's Dennis Rasmussen threw close to Willie Upshaw following Barfield's 13th homer to set off the brawl. Both players were ejected.

"I've been hit hard before and I've never done anything like that," Rasmussen said. "I was doing this (throwing inside) to set up the next pitch."

"The man married with three kids and he can't support them if he's in the hospital or walking down the street picking up rocks and eating them — you know, crazy," said Toronto's Cliff Johnson. "The man went straight for his coconut."

Dave Winfield drove in New York's runs with his 19th homer. Indians 4, Angels 2
Andre Thornton blasted a two-run homer, his 31st, and rookie right-hander Don Schulze, 3-5, scattered nine hits as Cleveland beat California.

The loss left the third-place Angels two games behind Minnesota in the West.

Brian Downing's second-inning line drive hit Schulze under the right ear, but failed to knock him off the mound.

"The ball didn't hit me flush in the head," said Schulze. "It deflected off my thumb. All I got out of it was a little numbness in the thumb."

Thornton's homer capped a three-run rally in the first inning against right-hander Ron Romanick, 10-12, who is winless since July 31.

Rob Wilfong hit his sixth homer for California.

Brewers 14, Red Sox 6
Cecil Cooper capped a four-run fifth inning with a three-run homer and Willie Lozado and Robin Yount had two hits apiece, including consecutive homers in Milwaukee's nine-run seventh inning, which matched the biggest one-inning output in the team's history.

Tony Armas, the major leagues' leading home-run hitter, slammed his 37th for Boston.

Mariners 4, Rangers 3
Rookie Danny Tartabull's two-out, bases-loaded infield single, the only hit of the inning, scored Darnell Coles as Seattle rallied for two runs in the bottom of the ninth inning to beat Texas. Buddy Bell fielded Tartabull's bounce behind third base, but pulled first baseman Pete O'Brien off the bag. Texas reliever Dickie Noles, 1-3, hit Alvin Davis to open the inning. Domingo Ramos ran for Davis and eventually scored on a wild pitch by reliever Dave Schmidt.

A pair of intentional walks, a sacrifice and a pop out set the stage for Tartabull.

A's 4, White Sox 1
Curt Young limited Chicago to six hits over eight innings, and Bill Almon drove in the go-ahead run with a fifth-inning single as Oakland beat Chicago.

Young, a rookie left-hander who improved to 8-4, outdueled Chicago right-hander LaMarr Hoyt, 12-16, who gave up nine hits in 7 1-3 innings. Bill Caudill pitched the ninth to pick up his 31st save.

Oakland scored in the first on consecutive singles by Carney Lansford, Joe Morgan and Dave Kingman.

Vance Law's 16th homer tied the game in the second.

America's Team: Is It The Giants?

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Sports Writer

Take it from someone who knows. The new-look America's team looked, at least for one Sunday, like well... the New York Giants.

"A lot of things that happened to them out there today were things that in the past happened to us," Dave Jennings, the New York punter, said after the Giants took apart the Dallas Cowboys 28-7. "You just shake your head and wonder what's going on."

Is this that paragon of machinelike efficiency that has dubbed itself — with the help of CBS — America's team?

Or is this just another NFL team that has lost four of its last five games: a team with 12 rookies, contract disputes and a quarterback controversy; a team that has committed nine turnovers in its first two games? In other words, just one of the gang in the Parity Football League?

The party line, which anyone knowing the history of the franchise would ignore at his own risk, is this: the season is young; the team is young, this was just one bad game from which the Cowboys can bounce back.

"I like our personnel," says Coach Tom Landry. "We had to come back from a Monday night game on the West Coast to play the Giants and we had to shuffle our receivers with Tony Hill hurt. We were flat all week and flat in the game."

"But we'll be all right. About midseason you see where you are and you take it from there."

"It's just one game," says defensive tackle Randy White, who held out during training camp. "I feel good about this team."

But, there are the other signs. Like the other White, Danny, standing next to his locker telling anyone who asks that he's not satisfied with being the Cowboys' punter while he waits for Gary Hogeboom to have a couple of bad games that might put him back at quarterback.

And the mistakes, characteristic for a young team, which the Cowboys are. There were five turnovers in the opener against the Rams — Dallas was lucky the Rams could score only 13 points, allowing the Cowboys to come away with a 20-13 victory.

But the defense, the more solid half of the team so far, couldn't do much about the Giants last Sunday, in part because of the kinds of mistakes that Dallas teams just don't make.

Trailing 14-0, midway through the second quarter, Dallas had the ball on the Giant six, third and 3. The anticipated touchdown makes it 14-7, anybody's game, probably Dallas given the history of the teams involved.

Whoops. Dallas time out. Somehow, two players have run off the field and only one has run on, leaving Hogeboom with only 10 plays.

Time back in and Dallas appears in a strange formation. Three backs set right, nobody behind the center. Hogeboom frantically waves and Tim Newsome comes back and sets up behind him. Meanwhile, Ron Springs is going forward as the ball is being snapped. A flag drops.

Worse, is the failure to block Lawrence Taylor, the Giant who must be blocked before all others. He clobbers Hogeboom as he sets up, the ball is jarred loose, and bounces up into the arms of Giant linebacker Andy Headen, who cruises 81 yards into the end zone. Suddenly it's 21-0 instead of 14-7 and the game is irrevocably gone.

What happened? Every team that plays the Giants prepares specially for Taylor, generally using a guard or tackle to block him because he can't be stopped by a back. Did Dallas? "We know he's there," said Landry, "but we make no special preparation."

A few minutes later, Taylor made an almost identical play, sacking Hogeboom and forcing a fumble on the Giant 10 that ended another Cowboys threat.

NCAA Probe Reveals 107 Alleged Violations

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A preliminary investigation of the University of Florida football program by the NCAA uncovered 107 alleged rules violations ranging from illegal recruiting practices to spying on opponents.

The Southeastern Conference school received official notification of the charges Tuesday in a 75-page letter released by Marshall M. Criser, university president.

"This is a painful process for us all," Criser told a news conference. "It is a true test of our ability to weather a storm of intense emotion and grim reality."

While a number of the allegations appeared minor — such as an assistant coach lending a player $20 that was later repaid — several others were more serious and alleged direct involvement by Coach Charley Pell.

Also implicated were several present and former members of Pell's staff as well as a number of boosters, including New York Yankee owner George Steinbrenner.

Some of the charges involved the sale of complimentary tickets, and one charged alleged that Pell administered a fund of $4,000 "from which he withdrew cash to pay costs that could not be paid by the university without violating NCAA legislation."

Pell, in his sixth year with the Gators, resigned Aug. 26, saying he accepted responsibility for any wrongdoing that might be uncovered during the probe, which began in December 1982.

The 43-year-old coach is being allowed to remain with the team in 1984, though Criser has left the door open to dismiss him at any time pending developments in the NCAA case.

Criser refused to comment on Pell's status Tuesday, but said the university will prepare a response to the charges in "early time."

Pell, meanwhile, told the Associated Press that some of the allegations are false.

"We will respond to the charges in the proper form, and certainly there are a lot of false charges which will be resolved in the process," he said by telephone.

The NCAA asked the university for a response by Sept. 18 and is expected to announce sanctions some time after a meeting of its Committee on Infractions in Kansas City Sept. 21-22.

Possible penalties could include television restrictions and the loss of scholarships if the NCAA places the school on probation.

In addition to the letter, Criser released about 1,700 pages of documents relating to the probe, including the transcripts of taped interviews with Mike Brown and Sonny McGraw, two key witnesses who cooperated with NCAA investigators.

Criser said he was making the information available to the media after receiving "a significant opinion interpreting and clarifying the Florida Public Records Act" from the state Supreme Court. The names of present and former Florida students were deleted from the information released.

Several newspapers had sought permission to review documents relating to the investigation, and the university filed suit Sept. 4 seeking guidance on the matter.

Criser said the school will continue to release information as quickly as it can be reproduced.

Many of the charges included in the NCAA letter are the same as those that surfaced in state newspapers that covered the probe aggressively.

The St. Petersburg Times published at least 10 major stories detailing alleged irregularities, including spying on opponents' practices. NCAA rules prohibit schools from scouting opponents more than once, and Tuesday's charges alleged that Brown, a graduate assistant in 1980 and 1981, attended practices of teams the Gators had already scouted in Gainesville.

Among the allegations linked to Pell in the Gators' probe are that he arranged for a player to be paid $935 for work he did not perform for University Athletic Association, Inc., and that he had knowledge that complimentary season tickets were being sold at prices far above face value.

It was also alleged that between 1979 and 1983 he administered a fund of at least $4,000 to pay costs of improper scouting activities and to provide salary supplements for several part-time assistant coaches.

Another charge said that McGraw administered a fund to provide loans to "various enrolled student-athletes" — though a specific amount of money was not mentioned.

Several charges intimate involvement by Steinbrenner, a Tampa businessman, who allegedly arranged for the purchase of complimentary tickets from a player over a three-year period.

McGraw, meanwhile, was the Gators recruiting coordinator until he was demoted in May 1983. He was named in a number of charges involving illegal recruiting practices.

"Let me strongly express our desire that the public understand that in many instances a witness only presents one version of an alleged happening and that the NCAA letter of inquiry are 'charges,' however serious they may be," Criser said.

The president, nevertheless, said he had "directed" a letter of apology to seven schools — California, Mississippi, Mississippi State, Louisville, Florida State, Georgia and Auburn — that Brown says he scouted illegally.

Criser said the existence of illegal scouting had been denied by the coaching staff, but that Brown's interview and subsequent verification of the accuracy of the information led to the letters of apology.

The president added that he offered to forfeit 1980 victories over California, Mississippi, Mississippi State, Louisville and Auburn as well as a 1981 triumph over Florida State.

"Obviously this is a regrettable step, but I am convinced that it is the only one permitted by the standards of fair play," Criser added.

Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden, however, told the Miami Herald that he wouldn't accept a forfeit.

"They beat us," he said. "A forfeit would be strictly meaningless."

Pell, who left Clemson in 1978 to take over a struggling program at Florida, has compiled a 32-26-3 record at the school, including a 0-1-1 start in 1984.

About three years after leaving Clemson, the Tigers were slapped with a record NCAA probation and Pell was linked to some of the infractions in that case.

Florida went 0-10-1 in his first season in Gainesville, but has made four straight bowl appearances since.

to their three for the first units — although we didn't execute assignments as well and weren't as physical as we would like to be in the future."

Bertie defeated Currituck 28-21 last week, and Sauls characterized it as "a typical Bertie team — senior-oriented with strong, quick athletes. Physical, ball-control offense."

"They have an aggressive, blitzing defense with an eight-man front to defeat them, we have to pick up their stunting linebackers. We're going to have to go outside some to establish the running game."

"It will be an excellent test for us playing a physical team. I think it's good to play a team the caliber of Bertie — it tests your physical and mental toughness."

AYDEN-GRIFTON
Tailback Kelvin Harris rushed for 80 yards, two touchdowns and a point-after conversion in the Chargers' opener, but Ayden-Grifton managed just 162 yards rushing and two pass completions. Roanoke tallied 159 yards total offense.

"I was tickled to death to win last week's game," new Charger Coach Dwight Tart said. "That was my first win as a varsity coach. But more important, it was a big win for team as far as a morale boost; Roanoke has a good football team."

"I thought we had a pretty consistent effort, and James Lane had good game on defense. I thought Wesley Hardee had good game on defense, picking off pitchout that was bobbed and took it in for a touchdown."

"I thought we played a real good game defensively, and one of our big plusses on defense was our punting game. Gene Johnson really boomed it and kept them out of field position. We're looking for big things as far as him helping us."

"I feel like we have big challenge against Richlands. They're going to run a 6-2 defense and pro-type offense. I look for them to try to get

Loss Of The Attic Runs Deeply For Some

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A sense of sentimental regret for the loss of something dear has been expressed both by patrons and workers of The Attic, Greenville's long-established nightclub which was destroyed by fire early Sunday morning.

Susan Laughinghouse, who "would have been there nine years" next month, said "it's hard for me to put into words all the things I feel about the loss."

"Working there was more than just a job. All of us felt we were part of a close family. Many of our customers had strong ties with us, and a number of them have contacted me to say they too feel they have lost something special."

"One way or another," Ms. Laughinghouse said, "I hope Tom and Stewart (Tom Haines and Stewart Campbell, co-owners of The Attic) will hopefully be able to do something to get into operation again. The Attic is not just a place, it is a legend."

Ms. Laughinghouse, who works during the day at a veterinarian establishment, commented, "It may be hard for some people to understand, but being there was not just a job, it was a second home to me. I've heard many of our regular customers say it was always a place to go to where one would never feel lonely even if they came alone."

Ms. Laughinghouse mentioned that "one of the most touching expressions imaginable is the fact that someone came alone and placed a bouquet of marigolds on the ruins of the building. That certainly says something."

Another employee of The Attic with considerable time on the staff — four and one half years, is Lewis Joyner. A surveyor by day, he also worked at night at The Attic, "as a door person. My primary job was checking the ID of young people."

"Like a lot of other people, both the family at The Attic and our patrons, I feel it was a landmark. There are lots of people, like myself, who have been going there for years, for the music and for comradeship," Joyner said.

Joyner said "the loss to the community is a sad thing, and I feel and hope that Tom and Stewart can get back on their feet soon."

"Maybe I'm just being sentimental about it, but I enjoyed working there, and I shall miss it," Joyner also made mention of having seen the bouquet of flowers placed there by some unknown person. "That was a nice touch on the part of whoever did it," he said.

Armless Man Uses His Feet

GORDONVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Among the many things that keep Ray Meyers busy these days is latching together hooked rugs.

It's not really unusual for a man to be creating hooked rugs. Many men not only make hooked rugs, but do needlepoint and crochet, too. But Meyers may be the only man to create with his feet. He was born 73 years ago without arms.

Meyers, who isn't the least bit shy in discussing his "exceptional" ability, has in fact been an entertainer and has held center stage for more than 50 years of his life. He's still much in demand, playing his guitar with his feet, and either singing or playing a harmonica by holding it between his shoulder and his face.

There isn't much that this father of two sons and five grandchildren can't do.

Drive? He's an accomplished driver. Hunt? He's a good marksman with the rifle. Cook, paint pictures, work crossword puzzles, wash his hair, pick fruit, mow the lawn. These are all as common to him as saying the ABCs.

"You can't miss what you never had" seems to be the way Meyers has patterned his life. He has managed to work his way around any situation that demands two arms.

Born in Christiana in the middle of a large family and raised in Lancaster County, Meyers was always able to keep up with his brothers and sisters, even matching them in climbing trees. He went to public school in Vintage and graduated from Allentown High School.

He learned from birth to do with his feet what the average child does with his hands.

"I could have ridden a bicycle, but we couldn't afford to buy one in those days," says Meyers, who lives with his wife Eleanor in a spacious modular home in Gordonville.

He's a great CB radio fan and has his equipment set up in the family room. When he's on the air, you'll recognize him by the handle, "Minus Two." A woman once asked him how he came by that name.

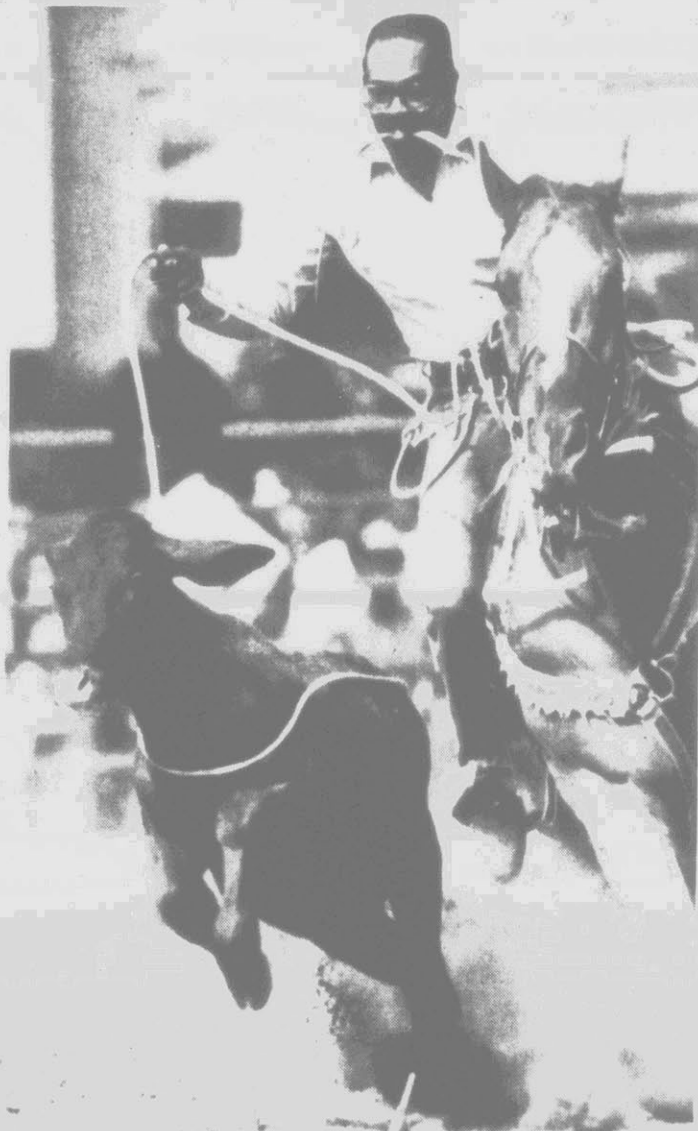

"You know you're born with two arms and two legs, but I was born 'minus two' he chuckled, with the sincere humor that eases people into overlooking his armless shirtsleeves.

It only takes a few minutes of chatting with Meyers to soon forget that he is minus anything. He has a great talent for welcoming you into the "normal life" he lives.

Everything most people would do with two hands, Meyers does with his feet and toes. He wears slip-on shoes and black socks that have the toes cut out, giving him freedom to use both of his feet or just one foot.

Behind the wheel of his car, he is as much at home as he is in his living room. He handles the wheel with one foot and the floor pedals with the other. He has logged more than 2 million miles in 49 years of driving without one traffic citation. He is believed to be the only person without hands who drives a car without special equipment.

Many of those miles were driven while Meyers was making personal appearances and earning a name as a show business entertainer in country-western style.

END OF THE ROPE — A calf nears the end of a rope during the calf-roping competition in the Black Cowboys Association benefit rodeo Saturday in New York. The rodeo was for the benefit of the United Negro College Fund and other charities in New York's Harlem. Contestants competed in five events, from bull riding and barrel racing, to calf roping, steer wrestling and bareback bronco riding. (AP Laserphoto)

Randall Says Actors Need More Support

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Actor Tony Randall says it shouldn't be necessary to beg for money to support a Shakespearean theater group like Randall Duk Kim's American Players Theater.

But it is, so he does. Randall, who played the character Felix Unger in "The Odd Couple" television series, appeared as featured guest at a $100-a-plate dinner to benefit Kim's theater group, based at nearby Spring Green, and its acting academy. About 150 people attended the Monday night affair.

"It shouldn't be necessary, for something this worthwhile, to have to travel halfway across the country to beg people to give money," Randall said.

The veteran star of Broadway, movies and television said the best way to keep classical theater alive is through government support, as is the case in many European countries.

He said professional companies like Kim's are the key to the continuing vitality of Shakespeare's works.

CBS Regains Top Billing In Weekly TV Rating War

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Long-time ratings champion CBS won first place in the Nielsen ratings for the week ended Sept. 9 after a summer season that saw the network in third place more often than first.

The top show was NBC's "The A-Team" and CBS' highest-rated show was a rerun of the movie "The Shadow Riders," which took fourth place. Altogether, CBS won seven of the Top 10, expanded to 11 places because of a tie.

It was CBS' first victory since the week ended June 24. Since the end of the regular season in April, which CBS won, the network has been first five times, tied for first once, and in last place eight times (including last week).

ABC, first for six straight weeks, fell to second. NBC was third.

CBS won the week with a network average of 13.1 in the A.C. Nielsen Co. survey. ABC was second with 12.4 and NBC was third with 11.9. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute 13.1 percent of the homes with televisions were tuned to CBS.

The first of the network previews will be reflected in next week's ratings. CBS began telecasting new shows this week and ABC will sneak preview two news series. "Glitter" and "Hawaiian Heat," later in the week. The season doesn't officially begin until Monday, Sept. 24, the day after the Emmy telecast, but the networks are moving out many of their shows early.

In second place behind NBC's "The A-Team" was ABC's Monday Night NFL Pro Football, Dallas vs. Los Angeles. Third place went to the ABC movie "Coal Miner's Daughter." The CBS movie "The Shadow Riders" was in fourth place.

Also in the Top 10: CBS' "Simon & Simon," fifth; CBS' "The Jeffersons," sixth; NBC's "Riptide," seventh; CBS' "Alice," eighth; CBS' "Trapper John, M.D.," ninth; and CBS' "Magnum, P.I.," and CBS' "Boys in Blue," tied for tenth.

This week a ratings point increases to represent 849,000 homes. For the past year a ratings point had equalled 838,000 homes.

At the bottom of the ratings for the week was CBS Reports, "High Technology." The five shows at the bottom in descending order: NBC Major League Baseball Pre-Game, NBC Reports "Defense in Space," ABC's "20-20," NBC's "Summer Sunday, USA," and CBS Reports "High Technology."

CBS was first in the evening news show division, with ABC second and NBC third. The ratings: CBS 10.6, ABC 9.6, NBC 8.8.

Here are the week's top 20 shows:

1. "The A-Team," NBC, a rating of 20.1 or 17.0 households.
2. ABC Monday Night NFL Football, Dallas vs. Los Angeles, 18.9 or 16.0 million.

A Review

Eastwood Gets Message Across

Something must be eating at Clint Eastwood's conscience. For some reason, it seems, his most recent films have a definite moral. "Tightrope," his latest movie which is now showing at the Plitt, does not harvest his traditional screenfuls of gun games and car acrobatics. Unlike the majority of his other films, "Tightrope" has something to say: rapists and murderers are sick people who deserve death. And it is effective.

As in Eastwood's last movie, "Sudden Impact," this one is also about a string of murders which stem from rape-oriented occurrences. Through showing disturbing details, only somewhat gory, Eastwood manages to make the viewers want the rapist/killer dead. These scenes are interspersed with film-saving comic inserts which keep viewers from becoming too emotionally glued to the tragedies.

Eastwood reveals his intended message (the sick mind of a rapist/murderer) by showing just enough, but not too much, of the ugly scenes. The nudity, profanity and blood and guts could be worse. Eastwood creatively utilizes these segments to add flavor to the film, just enough to let the viewer figure out what is not shown.

Original but predictable, the mystery film is put together well. A hotshot detective, Eastwood is assigned to a case involving the rape and murder of a young prostitute. After similar rapes and murders occur, Eastwood, of course, realizes the incidents have been committed by the same person. Baffled, he gradually pieces together enough clues to trace the murderer to his place of employment. The killer knows Eastwood is on his back and both men feel they can hoo-doo the other. For a while, the suspension builds.

While Eastwood slowly gains momentum, the bad guy continues his treacherous ways and devises a scheme to ultimately stop Eastwood's advances: scare him away by threatening his beloved children. Eastwood soon finds his children's housemaid dead in the clothes dryer, her cheek pressed against the glass. But when he discovers his little girl hog-tied and gagged, with the murderer's trademark on her cheek, we all know what will happen. This is not Eastwood's cue to hit the road, but rather his blood-inciter, the last straw.

Eastwood, an excellent actor and director, entices his viewers to believe what happens to the killer is morally right. The final climax is expected and wanted.

Singer Barbara Mandrell Injured In Auto Accident

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country singer Barbara Mandrell was in fair condition with a broken leg today after surgery for injuries suffered when her automobile was struck head-on by a car that swerved into its path. The driver of the other car died.

The singer's two children, who were returning home with her from buying school clothes, were slightly injured in the accident Tuesday evening near the Nashville suburb of Hendersonville, authorities said.

Miss Mandrell, 35, underwent about three hours of surgery for a broken leg and fractured right knee at Baptist Hospital, where a spokeswoman listed her condition today as fair.

Her sister, entertainer Louise Mandrell, said Miss Mandrell also suffered facial lacerations and a concussion, but was awake and alert before the surgery began.

"It will take a little time, but she will be fine," Louise Mandrell said. "I appreciate, and I know Barbara would appreciate everyone's prayers. And we also want to ask everyone, please, while you're praying to pray for the White family."

She was referring to relatives of Mark White, 19, of Lebanon, the driver of the car which Hendersonville police said swerved into the path of Miss Mandrell's 1982 silver Jaguar.

White, who was briefly pinned in his 1981 red Subaru, was pronounced dead at Hendersonville Hospital following the 6:30 p.m. accident, authorities said. It took three hours to remove debris from the crash site on U.S. 31E, about four miles north of Hendersonville, police said in a statement.

Spokeswoman Melanie Lamb said Miss Mandrell's son, Matthew Dudley, 14, was admitted to Hendersonville Hospital for observation suffering lacerations, and her daughter, Jaime Dudley, 8, was treated for "bumps and bruises," and released.

Miss Mandrell is known for such hits as "I Was Country When Country Wasn't Cool," "Sleeping Single in a Double Bed," and "In Times Like These."

Her husband, Ken Dudley, was en route to Nashville from Washington state, relatives said.

Louise Mandrell said her sister will have to curtail her concert tour.

"It'll be some time before she'll go back on the road because she does have a rather serious injury to her leg," she said.

This additional gallery time applies only during the period of the showing of an exhibition of work by artist Francis Speight, which opens Friday and will be on view through Oct. 14.

Gallery officials recommend that patrons visiting the show, particularly during weekdays, make efforts to find parking space off campus due to the scarcity of on-campus parking areas reserved for visitors.

No Charge Is Planned

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tony Award-winning actress Brenda Vaccaro, booked for investigation of cocaine possession, will not be charged in the incident, a district attorney's spokesman said.

"After investigation by police it was decided that there was insufficient evidence that the cocaine found in (her) home belonged to her," spokesman Al Albergate said Tuesday.

Miss Vaccaro, 44, was arrested at her West Los Angeles home Aug. 31 after police received a call from a man who said he was her boyfriend.

The man claimed he and Miss Vaccaro "were involved in an argument over her use of cocaine, and she battered him when he tried to destroy her cocaine," Sgt. Larry Parino of the police narcotics division said shortly after the arrest.

Families Do Less On Farms

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A new look by the Agriculture Department at who does the work on U.S. farms shows that hired laborers have gradually taken over a larger share of the load — along with machines, of course.

The number of family workers — which include farm operators and unpaid family members — dropped from 8.3 million in 1940 to 2.4 million in 1980, the department's Economic Research Service said in a report.

Foreign workers, many of them illegal aliens, also are important in U.S. agriculture. Barring tougher laws, they will continue to provide growing muscle for tending many of the nation's food crops.

"According to statistics from the Immigration and Naturalization Service, slightly over 100,000 undocumented aliens are apprehended each year in agriculture," the report said.

"Experienced observers of the farm labor market believe that the number of illegal aliens in agriculture is considerably larger, accounting for 10 to 15 percent of all hired farm workers."

Despite farms becoming larger and much more highly capitalized, they are still primarily family operations, the report said.

In the 1982 census of agriculture, for example, it was found that 87 percent of the 2.24 million farms in the United States were owned by individuals, rather than by partnerships or corporations.

Also, the report noted, farm operators and their families "continue to account for the major share" of agricultural employment in most states.

"Nevertheless, over the last four decades, hired workers have replaced some family workers," the report said. "Hired workers accounted for about 24 percent of annual average farm employment in 1940, but by 1980 the proportion had increased to 35 percent."

However, in absolute terms, the number of hired workers has dropped by almost 40 percent from a peak of 4.3 million in 1950 to about 2.5 million in 1981, the most recent year surveyed by USDA enumerators. Most of the losses occurred in the 1950s and 1960s, with the hired labor force stabilizing in the 1970s between 2.6 million to 2.7 million annually.

"The overall decline in the number of hired farm workers has been largely due to the adoption of new production and marketing technology on farms," the report said. "The planting and harvesting of many crops (including cotton and grains) were widely mechanized during the 1950s and 1960s."

"During the 1970s, however, hired worker displacements slowed considerably as large-scale mechanization and technological innovations leveled off."

The report said the predictions on U.S. farm labor developments over the next few years or through the turn of the century are difficult at this time because of so many uncertainties — technological development, farm programs, immigration policy, international trade, collective bargaining laws and commodity prices.

China Confirms Famine Deaths

PEKING (AP) — Chinese officials have acknowledged for the first time that more than 10 million people died during a four-year famine that followed the late Mao Tse-tung's "Great Leap Forward" in 1958.

The State Statistical Bureau, responding Tuesday to queries submitted by The Associated Press, confirmed that the Great Leap into huge communes and hastily built factories caused one of the century's worst calamities.

Government officials had been asked about calculations by American demographers that indicated as many as 30 million people died because of food shortages between 1958 and 1961.

Bureau spokesman Xu Gang said that in the four years of 1959-1962, "over 10 million people died of unnatural death due to both man-made factors and serious natural disasters."

Xu said it was difficult to determine the exact number of famine deaths during Mao's ambitious program, which coincided with drought, floods and infestations that turned poor harvests into severe food shortages.

The government had not previously released specific information about the death toll, possibly because China's top leader, Deng Xiaoping, and other officials now in the Communist Party hierarchy did not oppose the Great Leap.

The official media usually refer only to "years of natural disasters," "terrible damage" and "serious losses."

The Campaign

Reagan Says No New Plans Needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, challenged by Walter Mondale to spell out new deficit-cutting plans, is saying the federal budgets he fashioned throughout his term speak for themselves.

Those budgets, first sent to Congress in 1981, have proposed cutting a wide swath through hundreds of federal programs to slash billions of dollars in government spending.

Defense was one of the few programs spared the chopping block in the president's budget blueprints.

Cuts were recommended in food stamps, nutrition programs, jobs programs, public housing, water projects, welfare, the FBI, the Consumer Product Safety Commission, the Environmental Protection Agency, Indian housing, fish and wildlife management, the arts, scientific research, mental health and space exploration.

Many of the Reagan's efforts to pare programs were rebuffed by Congress, some repeatedly.

Still, the administration estimates that through the end of last year, the president got slightly more than half of the budget reductions he sought from Congress.

The Office of Management and Budget says increases in spending on domestic programs — excluding defense, space, foreign assistance and interest costs on the national debt — have been "contained." Were the president's financial guides followed, it says, a decade-long freeze on domestic spending would result, after adjustment for inflation.

Mondale

DAVENPORT, Iowa (AP) — Democratic presidential candidate Walter F. Mondale, staying on the attack against President Reagan, is drawing a bleak picture of what Reagan would do if elected to a second term.

During an appearance at Scott Community College today, the challenger planned to portray a second Reagan term as certain to produce a tax increase, cuts in Social Security and Medicare benefits and new efforts to cut federal domestic programs for cities, environmental protection and aid to the poor.

But while Mondale was trying to hammer away at what he thinks are Reagan's weak points, the Democratic nominee got a lesson Tuesday in the hazards of running against an incumbent president.

Mondale was campaigning in the Midwest when Reagan showed up in the White House press room to announce he would meet on Sept. 28 with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

One of the issues Mondale has tried hardest to keep in the forefront of the campaign is the fact that Reagan has never met the Soviet leadership in an effort to reduce East-West tensions.

"I hope they make progress," said Mondale, who went on to express skepticism about the forthcoming meeting.

"It's pretty pathetic that an administration in the middle of its campaign for re-election has its first meeting, not with the Soviet counterpart of the president, but with the foreign minister," Mondale told reporters in Chicago.

He also noted that during previous administrations — both Republican and Democratic — presidents routinely met with Gromyko when he came to the United States for sessions of the United Nations.

Bush

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — The Reagan administration hasn't fulfilled its campaign pledge to stem textile imports, but hasn't forgotten it either, Vice President George Bush said during a day-long campaign stop in South Carolina.

"I can't stand here and tell you that the full campaign pledge was kept," Bush told a Columbia news conference Tuesday. But "we're making progress."

"It is extraordinarily difficult. We do not want to see retaliation against other goods, but we'll keep pushing on this."

Crediting South Carolina Republicans Rep. Carroll Campbell and Sen. Strom Thurmond with recent action tightening textile regulations, Bush said, "We're on the right road. I think there is still a way to go."

Bush visited a Charleston shipyard earlier in the day and later an NCR Corp. plant in West Columbia before attending a fund raising reception.

South Carolina GOP Chairman George Graham said the Bush visit "shows we're aggressively campaigning in this state. These were two major industrial visits."

In a new term, the president might be expected to revive some of the proposals tossed out by Congress and to offer some new initiatives as well.

Indeed, he said at a news conference Tuesday that he expected a "continuation of what we've been on."

His own budget director, David Stockman, indicated earlier this year, however, the administration might have difficulty getting Congress to accept additional deep slashes in the budget.

"You are now at the point where you are reaching the legislative hard core of the budget," he said in a February interview with Fortune magazine.

Mondale, the Democrat's presidential challenger, has been trying to force the president to spell out what he would do to reduce the deficits in a second term. He contends the president is planning on boosting taxes to curb the red ink.

But Reagan insists he would only resort to tax hikes as a last resort.

Asked about Mondale's demand that he show his hand, Reagan said, "I think that I put more specifics on the table in this term than probably any administration I know."

Pressed for specifics, he said: "It's as simple as this. If that rate of increase in spending can be brought down as we've brought it down already. If at the same time, through economic growth, the rate of revenues begins to climb at a steeper rate, those two lines have to meet. And where they meet is a balanced budget. And this is what our plan is."

Storyteller

Former reporter, O. Henry, born on this day in 1862, lived as interesting a life as many of the characters in his 250 short stories. For example, he fled to Honduras in 1896 after being indicted for bank fraud. When he returned to visit his dying wife, he was arrested and spent 3 years in prison. O. Henry's stories often featured victims of coincidence or fate and built up to sharp, unexpected endings, as in his most famous story, "The Gift of the Magi."

DO YOU KNOW — What was O. Henry's real name?
MONDAY'S ANSWER — The Supreme Court upheld the "separate but equal" rule in "Plessy v. Ferguson."

Exile Returns To Rejuvenated Argentina

By KEVIN NOBLET
Associated Press Writer
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Journalist Jacobo Timerman, who had vowed never to return to a country where he was imprisoned, tortured and finally exiled, is back at work in Argentina and "full of passion" for its democratic renaissance.

"You must realize it is the first time for me, living under a democratic regime in Argentina," he said in a recent newsroom interview. "This is a new thing."

Timerman, 61, assumed the editorship of the afternoon daily La Razon on Aug. 15, and since his return has modified the rightist editorial stance and has adjusted to working for a paper that supported the previous military government.

"This paper was the most democratic in the country at one time. Then it changed," he said. "News-papers change."

His return was not welcomed by conservative leaders in the Argentine Jewish community. His book about his captivity, "Prisoner Without A Name, Cell Without A Number," had accused them of complicity in human rights abuse for not openly criticizing the anti-Semitism of many of the armed forces' leaders.

The Delegation of Argentine Jewish Associations refused to comment Monday on Timerman's return, but Mario Gorenstein, the organization's president when Timerman's book caused a furor in 1981, said then:

"Anti-semitism is an endemic disease here. But ... it does not exist in the spectacular proportions that some people, especially outside the country, try to give it for their own reasons."

Asked if he has any contact with those Jewish leaders now, Timerman, a Jew, declared with a scowl: "No. I have nothing to do with them."

Timerman's odyssey began in April 1977, when he was running the highly regarded newspaper La Opinion. His house was stormed by 20 plainclothesmen who dragged him off to be tortured in clandestine detention centers. He was accused of economic fraud and links to leftist subversion.

Despite an international outcry and two rulings of innocence by the nation's courts, he remained under arrest until his expulsion in September 1979. He lived in Israel, Spain and New York until the Dec. 10, 1983, presidential inauguration of lawyer and human rights activist Raul Alfonsin, whom Timerman calls "an old friend." Indeed, he said only Alfonsin's victory convinced him to return.

"Everything was open and beautiful," Timerman said of a visit in January. "I again had the feeling of the country. I decided with my wife to come back and make a try."

Timerman and his wife, Risha, returned for good in March, when "I began to get involved, interested ... full of passion for what was going on in Argentina."

Timerman had begun his journalistic career as La Razon's political editor in 1958, and approached the newspaper's publisher, Patricio Peralta Ramos, for help in restarting La Opinion.

"I said the paper (La Razon) was going down and down ... I told him what nobody else had," Timerman recalled. Peralta Ramos offered him the job of assistant publisher and editor-in-chief.

Timerman insisted on total control of editorial policy and the right to restart La Opinion. The publisher agreed, he said.

Timerman scrapped La Razon's old-fashioned vertical layout in favor of sweeping banner headlines, often proclaiming charges against the military by human rights groups or Congress.

He has hired dozens of new reporters, including 10 to run a new economics section, offering the high salaries that had attracted much of the cream of Buenos Aires journalists to the old La Opinion in its heyday.

"If you pay them well, they are happy. They write well. They come with imagination and ideas," he said.

Such abrupt changes could kill a newspaper, alienating old readers without providing time for attracting new subscribers. But Timerman contends the 80-year-old La Razon has enjoyed a rise in both circulation (estimated at 190,000) and advertising revenue since his arrival.

To show that the paper has not suddenly turned anti-military, he hired a former military president, Gen. Alejandro Lanusse, to write a weekly column. Lanusse oversaw elections in the early 1970s, ending an earlier period of rule by the armed forces, and has been critical of the last military regime.

Timerman said the work has restored him.

"I was always tired" while doing freelance work for American and European papers while in exile, he said. "Now I get up at 5 a.m. And while I shave I sing 'Rigoletto.'"

Reminded of his vow, repeated several times while in exile, that he would never come back, he waved a meaty hand and shrugged.

"I changed my mind. So what?" he said. "You have to accept that civilized people sometimes change their minds."

Coroner Has His Post Locked Up

CLEVELAND (AP) — Dr. Samuel R. Gerber never cared much about reading mysteries, perhaps because in 47 years as Cuyahoga County coroner he has unraveled enough of them to sate any thirst for whodunits.

Gerber, who recently turned 86, gives no sign he is ready to retire from the job to which he was first elected in 1936. He is unopposed on the Democratic ticket in the November general election for another four-year term.

In 1980, he gave some thought to retiring, but was on the ballot and received 360,000 votes — the highest total of any candidate in a county-wide race that year.

"Four years ago, I said no more terms. Now I said one more term," says Gerber, a slight, gray-haired man. "One of these days I will (retire)."

He had no interest in becoming coroner when he moved to Cleveland and said he had had little knowledge of forensic medicine at the time.

S. Security To Use Care In Choosing Court Cases

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Social Security Administration, conceding it is mired in a "major crisis" over disability lawsuits, says it will try to regain credibility before judges by using more discretion over which cases it fights down to the wire.

Agency officials say they also will try to speed up their response time in the individual and class-action lawsuits that are being brought against the agency in record numbers — 28,000 this year alone.

"The agency's credibility before the federal courts is at an all-time low," the agency said in an internal report made public Monday on its efforts to solve the litigation crisis.

"There is a growing impression in the courts that SSA will defend any case, no matter how poor the facts," said a task force set up last spring to address the crisis.

Among the remedies is a pilot project to weed out "poorly defensible cases" instead of fighting every ruling to restore disability benefits.

The report from the agency's litigation management project, headed by Associate Commissioner Sandy Crank, said 50,000 Social Security cases are pending in the federal courts, up from fewer than 20,000 at the end of 1981.

"A great deal of adverse publicity surrounds many Social Security litigation cases and court orders are written in increasingly critical terms," said the task force memo. The report cited "a dramatic increase in the number of motions or threats to hold the secretary (of health and human services, Margaret M. Heckler) in contempt." The task force said the briefs the agency files in individual cases "are essentially pro forma; arguments are not tailored to the specific points raised by the plaintiffs." "The litigation process was not designed to handle the current volume of cases," the task force stated. Government lawyers were complaining back in the 1970s about the ever-rising number of Social Security disability cases working their way into the federal courts. But the volume has mushroomed since the government began a massive review of the disability rolls in 1981. More than 1 million people had their benefits reviewed, and roughly 45 percent were found ineligible, but administrative law judges and federal jurists have kept many on the rolls. In a related matter, U.S. District Judge Joyce Hens Green ruled Monday in Washington that the Social Security Administration had put undue pressure on administrative law judges by focusing reviews on those who often ruled against the government in cases involving disability benefits. The ruling came in a lawsuit filed by an association representing 540 of the 800 administrative judges against the Department of Health and Human Services alleging that the Reagan administration had set illegal quotas on how many Social Security disability cases each judge must hear and how many must be decided in the government's favor. Appeals courts have ordered benefits restored for thousands of mentally ill people and tied Social Security's hands in many states. Mrs. Heckler called a halt to most reviews in April pending action in Congress on a disability reform bill that is still tied up in conference. The task force report said there was "sometimes confusion, lack of coordination and delay in the implementation of (judges') orders. ... Recently, probably because of the hostile attitude of many courts, there is a trend toward complex court orders with incredibly short timeframes," including 24 hours in one case. The agency said it will waive a 60-day waiting period before carrying out orders in certain cases where no appeal is planned. There is no change in the agency's controversial policy of not automatically applying a federal appeals court ruling to all cases within that circuit. But the agency said that policy will be reviewed. The House disability bill would force the government to acquiesce in circuit court rulings unless it appealed to the Supreme Court. Brown said, "There are no estimates that I know of" of how many poorly defensible cases on which the agency might throw in the towel.

Charlotte Man Offers Exercise Aid

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A Charlotte businessman has come up with an aid for people who want to exercise but just don't have the willpower — for the price of one good running shoe.

"It's designed to make people who want to take part in exercise, exercise," said Bruce Ballinger, inventor of the "Put it in Gear" motivational fitness program. "If you just want to sit around and eat potato chips, it's not going to work. But if you're interested in exercising, this provides the basic information on how much to exercise — and how to make yourself do it."

Ballinger is a 53-year-old real estate broker who runs some 40 miles a week. He began selling the program this spring for $25.

The package includes advice on choosing the right exercise program, progress charts, a T-shirt with a red gear logo, a keychain-type red gear to remind you to exercise and an exercise log titled "My Conscience."

After you make a commitment to a certain amount of exercise each week, you write down what you actually do in the log.

The T-shirt and gear are designed not only to remind you to exercise but also to let others know you have made a commitment.

"If you have this red thing on your desk, you're inviting other people to ask you what all this means," said Ballinger. "The more people know about your commitment, the more embarrassed you will be to quit."

He said he had been using some of the motivational techniques for 10 years. He decided to let others know about them when he saw would-be exercisers at the YMCA walk around aimlessly in their brand-new athletic shoes because they didn't know where to begin.

Each exerciser should pick his own routine, whether it's running, bicycling, swimming or calisthenics, he said. The minimum requirement in the program is 30 minutes four days a week, with options to increase every 30 days. The advice is based on medical standards for reducing pulse rate and blood pressure.

The program includes motivational postcards sent 10 days after a person signs up. One card reads: "If you stop, start again. Jane Fonda and Arnold Schwarzenegger you ain't."

Ballinger said he got requests for his program every day through word of mouth. He said his motivation for developing it was "angelic" rather than financial.

"I'd be delighted if I do more than break even," he said. "If it catches fire, I'll have a good time with it."

New Leader

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Lt. Col. Mengistu Haile Mariam, a leader of the 1974 coup against the late Emperor Haile Selassie, has been unanimously elected chief of Ethiopia's new ruling Marxist party.
 The move means the left-wing military leaders in control since the coup would continue to dominate Ethiopia through the new Workers' Party. Mengistu, 43, a U.S.-trained ordnance officer, assumed undisputed command of the secretive leadership, known as the Dergue, in 1977.
 The last remnant of once close U.S. military ties with Ethiopia was severed when former President Jimmy Carter enforced an arms embargo in 1978 because of alleged human rights violations. The Soviets quickly replaced the United States as the arms supplier.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	Dble	Rdbble	Pass
Pass	2 ♥	2 ♦	Pass
4 ♦	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♥.

When you are dealt a miserable collection of tickets, it is all too easy to lose interest in the hand. But one of the fascinations of bridge is you never know when you are going to find yourself in the spotlight. Consider this deal.

Note South's pass at his second turn. When partner redoubles, it is usually correct to leave the next action to him, because he might want to double the opponents rather than go on bidding. Here North's redouble was based on spade support, and South had enough to leap to game.

The defenders started with three rounds of hearts, declarer ruffing. Obviously, the problem was to avoid losing two club tricks. Declarer drew two rounds of trumps and was delighted when both defenders followed. Then he set about stripping the red suits from his hand and dummy.

The last heart was ruffed, the ace-king of diamonds were cashed and a diamond was ruffed on the board. Now, declarer led a club.

If East was one of those players who dozed off at the table because he felt that his hand was not going to affect the outcome, declarer would have gotten home. East would lazily play a low club, declarer would insert the eight and West would be end played. He would either have to yield a ruff-suff or return a club into declarer's ace-queen tenace.

Fortunately for the defenders, East was on the ball. He inserted the 10 of clubs! Declarer tried the finesse, but West won the king and returned the jack. His nine of clubs took the setting trick.

Ceremony

OTTAWA (AP) — Brian Mulroney, leader of the Progressive Conservative Party, will be sworn in as prime minister next Monday to replace John Turner, whose Liberals lost by a landslide in the Sept. 4 election.

Turner was in office only since June 30, when fellow Liberal Pierre Elliott Trudeau stepped down as prime minister. Mulroney said he will begin talking to potential Cabinet ministers this week and would convene Parliament "as soon as possible."

Visit Still On

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Romania says its president, Nicolae Ceausescu, will visit West Germany next month as planned despite the recent decisions by leaders of two other Warsaw Pact nations to postpone similar visits.

"It is clear that Mr. Ceausescu will make his visit. We are not interested in what other countries do," Romanian Embassy spokesman Ion Crecu told reporters. Ceausescu's visit is scheduled for Oct. 15-19.

New Diplomat

LONDON (AP) — The first Libyan diplomat accredited to Britain since the shootings at the Libyan Embassy in April has taken up his post, the Foreign Office says.

Britain agreed to Salah Eddin Mahdi Msalam's posting after Libya released two of the six Britons it has been holding since the days after the standoff at the embassy and the resulting diplomatic rupture.

Msalam will represent Libyan interests in Britain and will work out of the Saudi Arabian Embassy in London.

Trip Canceled

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Bulgarian President Todor Zhivkov, apparently bowing to pressure from Moscow, has become the second Soviet bloc leader to abruptly call off plans to visit West Germany this month.

East German President Erich Honecker last week dropped plans to make an unprecedented visit to West Germany.

Consumer Groups Sit Out Steel Quota Battle

By JILL LAWRENCE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer groups have been conspicuously silent during one of the year's noisiest battles: the steel industry's fight for stiff import quotas. Instead, fair trade groups backed by big banks, big industry and big business are pleading the consumer's cause. Saying they can't "cover every hot issue," three major consumer lobbies are staying on the sidelines.

letting others warn about skyrocketing steel prices and higher costs for cars, appliances, machinery and aircraft. "Most consumers really are not aware of the consequences of the steel quota," says Doreen Brown, director of Consumers For World Trade, which is supported by companies such as Caterpillar Tractor, Xerox and Bank of America. "(Consumer groups) have for the most part stayed away from trade issues ... because of their close cooperation with labor on social issues," Ms. Brown said last week. "They have not spoken out for protectionism. They have not spoken out at all." President Reagan must act by Sept. 24 on the U.S. International Trade Commission's package of tariffs and quotas that would restrain 70 percent of the foreign steel sold in the United States. The ITC, agreeing with the domestic steel industry's arguments, ruled on July 11 that foreign steel shipped to the United States in 1983 caused serious injury to American steelmakers and should be temporarily restrained. The ITC package would cost consumers $7.8 billion yearly, according to CWT. The Federal Trade Commission puts the cost at $1 billion over five years. Domestic steel companies say aggressive competition would keep prices down.

Even with so much money at stake, three consumer groups said they plan to stay out of the steel quota controversy. "Traditionally on trade issues we haven't been able to take across-the-board positions. And we've got a lot of other issues that are a lot more direct and we feel more comfortable with," said Gene Kimmelman, legislative director of the Consumer Federation of America, which represents 30 million members of some 200 state and local groups, including some unions. "It's not true that we always agree with labor," Kimmelman said. "We are caught in the middle (on steel) because we can see both sides." Officials of Congress Watch, a Ralph Nader group, and Consumers Union, affiliated with the 3-million circulation magazine Consumer Reports, said small staffs limit their lobbying and their priorities. "In general I have yet to see an import restriction that I like," said Mark Silber, director of Consumers Union's Washington office. But he said his three-person staff "can't cover every hot issue in Washington" and is concentrating now on consumer finance, telecommunications services and health and safety issues. "That doesn't mean we don't oppose quotas or the improper use of tariffs," Silber added. "We do oppose as a general proposition the use of those devices as a means of protection." Nancy Drabble, head of the 60,000-member Congress Watch, said her group has focused this year on product liability legislation, hazardous waste cleanup funding and pesticide regulations. "Steel import quotas just don't happen to be one of our issues," said Ms. Drabble. "It's not because of labor interest involvement. We don't get labor money like some consumer groups. We have grass roots supporters." Meanwhile, CWT has enlisted importers, exporters, port interests, farmers, retailers and manufacturers in its free trade crusade, many of them with more at stake than consumer prices. CWT's supporters view steel protection as a threat not only to consumer prices but to their businesses as well. CWT and its backers defend their authority to champion the consumer cause. "Retailers feel they're surrogate consumers. We feel the consumers' unhappiness ... When the price goes up, we feel it first," said Robert Brouse of the Retail Industry Trade Action Coalition, which contends textile and apparel quotas cost consumers $4 billion this year. Steel imports claimed 20.5 percent of the U.S. market last year and jumped to a monthly record of 33 percent in July 1984.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, SEPT. 13, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until noon you will have brilliant ideas about what is best for you in the days to come, so make some policy decisions so you will know exactly where you wish to go.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Plan how to gain your personal aims in the morning and then go after them with alacrity.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Talk over with a trusted advisor what is best for you to do at this time in the morning; then you can make a fine plan tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Clarify in your mind what it is you truly want to accomplish, and then get busy at the actual work required.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You understand well the course you are taking and can be successful with it during daytime.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) If you go to higher-ups for advice, you can gain your wishes far more readily. State your aims clearly.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Find new ways of adding to present income and bring them to the attention of an expert who can best guide you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Listen to the views of a new partner and then cooperate and get excellent results. Get into detailed work in the evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try to come to a better understanding with a co-worker and later talk to an expert who can tell you how to make better plans.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan to continue with that creative plan you have started and get it working like a charm.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you state your ideas to family, you gain much cooperation. Then in the evening take them out for amusement.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Morning finds you busy communicating with others but in the evening you can enjoy home and kin.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Put those ideas to work that will gain you added property, then go to experts for added advice.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be very much interested in all kinds of modern and futuristic matters and should have as fine an education as possible in order to make the most of the advanced technology springing into being. A very practical bent to this nature.
