Pounding Rains Flood Part Of Grifton

26 Are Evacuated

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

GRIFTON — For 26 residents of this southern Pitt County town, now-defunct hurricane Diana today became more than just a storm to watch on television.

For the past three days the town has been pounded with unusually heavy rains — heavier than other parts of the county because of its proximity to the storm area. Finally in the wee hours today, the drainage ditches and streams in the area, filled to capacity, overflowed into streets and threatened homes. Police began knocking on doors and evacuating residents to higher ground.

According to Sgt. R.L. Hill of the Grifton Police, 26 evacuees spent last night in the Grifton School, closed to students all day so the facility could be used as an emergency shelter. In addition, by mid-morning 18 children from Joyce's Day Care Center had been moved to the school as water threatened to rise into the day care building.

According to Sgt. Hill, three Grifton streets, Mashie Drive, Fairway Drive and North Pitt Street, were barricaded early this morning because they were impassable. Other streets, including West McRae, North Church and South, "had very high water in places," Sgt. Hill said. Water also surrounded Harris Trailer Park on Pitt Street, he noted.

This morning Sgt. Hill said rain was continuing in the town and "the (flooding) situation looks terrible." No official measurements of rainfall in Grifton were made but, according to unofficial estimates, 10 inches of rain fell on the town over 24 hours.

Barry Gaskins, who helped open the Grifton School shelter for the Pitt County Red Cross at 5 a.m. today said the shelter still housed around 30 evacuees by mid-morning. "Many people had located a place to stay with relatives by morning but there were still quite a few folks at the shelter," he said. "Conditions appear to be getting worse as the rain continues."

Judy Groat of 505 McRae St. said police woke her family around 4 a.m. and advised them to move to higher ground. "They (police) said they were expecting six or seven more hours of heavy rain and that the drainage ditch behind the house would probably flood," Mrs. Groat said. "They told us to prepare to evacuate, so we went to stay with my sister who lives on a hill."

Mrs. Groat said this morning water was high in her yard but had not reached the house. "The water looked like it had started going down a little this morning," she said. "I don't anticipate having to move out of my house but I have neighbors that were moving stuff and putting furniture on cinderblocks."

Greenville Utilities weather station recorded three inches of rain from 7 a.m. Thursday to 7 a.m. today, but Greenville public works officials reported no flooding this morning. "We are prepared if anything does happen," said Public Works Director Mayo Allen. "We have the high water barricades and the high water trucks and the chain saws gased up and ready to go."

The North Carolina Department of Transportation reported that state road 1700 north of Cox's Crossroad was closed because of high water, but other primary and secondary highways in Pitt County were open this morning. According to division engineer Rick Shirley, "we have a few problems, most of them of a minor nature." Many secondary roads have water "sheeting and standing in spots," he said, and "motorists need to respect these conditions and use extreme caution." DOT received reports of numerous cars stalling in high water throughout the night, Shirley said.

Pitt County schools closed early today, said a spokesman for the schools, "because of conditions on secondary and back roads." High schools sent students home at 12:30 p.m. while elementary and middle schools closed at 1 p.m.

Rain was expected to continue throughout the day and possibly into tonight, according to the National Weather Service. Partial clearing is forecast for Saturday.

The Tar River level at Greenville was reported to be 6.2 feet this morning, up from approximately 4 feet yesterday.

Diana Damages Total Over $25 Million; Gov. Hunt Asks For Federal Assistance

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Torrential rains pounded a "terribly damaged" North Carolina today as thousands of coastal residents emerged from shelters to view Hurricane Diana's swath of destruction, which caused more than $25 million in damages.

As Diana rapidly lost intensity Thursday and was downgraded to a tropical storm, Gov. Jim Hunt asked President Reagan for federal assistance because adequate cleanup from the season's first Atlantic hurricane is "beyond the capability of state and local government."

At the White House, presidential press secretary Larry Speakes said he did not know when President Reagan would declare North Carolina a disaster area to enable the hard-hit coastal region to qualify for federal relief assistance.

"It's quite obvious that damage there qualified for a federal declaration," Speakes said, but the state must complete certain requirements to demonstrate its eligibility for disaster relief.

At 9 a.m. EDT, the center of Diana was estimated near latitude 35.2 North, longitude 77.2 West, or just north of New Bern. It was expected to move toward the east-northeast at 5-10 mph, and the National Weather Service said there was a chance Diana could strengthen as it moves toward the Atlantic.

The storm had sustained winds of 45 mph, with gusts to near hurricane force. Gale warnings were posted from Cape Lookout to Chincoteague, Va.

In this southeast coastal city, Diana's 110 mph winds toppled trees and power lines that clogged many streets, blew roofs off homes, swept boats off trailers on land and smashed and sunk many in the water. Many streets in coastal towns throughout the area were still flooded today.

No deaths or injuries were blamed directly on the storm. One man died of a heart attack while securing his house, a social services worker died in a traffic accident while driving to arrange temporary housing for evacuees, and another motorist was killed after skidding on a flooded road.

"We've been lucky thus far even though these people have been terribly damaged and it has been bad for them," Hunt said Thursday as he toured Wilmington. "We have been badly hurt and badly damaged."

Heavy rains pounded interior North Carolina early today, with nearly 2 inches falling 50 miles north of Wilmington at Goldsboro by 3 a.m., the National Weather Service said. Winds gusted to 30 mph in Fayetteville and Jacksonville and some evacuations were carried out in Grifton as floodwaters surged through the town, the weather service said.

Since Tuesday, 17 inches of rain has washed across Wilmington.

Officials at Carolina Beach said late Thursday that residents would be allowed at 7 a.m. to return to the town for the first time since the bridge linking it to the mainland was blocked Wednesday night. But at dawn, police refused to allow residents across the bridge.

C.J. Henley, his wife and four children had waited 48 hours in a station wagon near the bridge to return to their home. Henley was forced to leave without shoes or money.

"They'll have a hard time the next time a hurricane comes to get people off the island," said Steve Fletcher, another angry resident.

Carolina Beach police Sgt. A.F. Dicksey said residents might be allowed back around noon.

About 20 National Guardsmen were sent to guard against looting at Carolina Beach on Thursday and a curfew was declared from 8 p.m. to 6 a.m. Roads were blocked by water, debris and washouts and the state Department of Transportation bought 75 chain saws to cut fallen trees, said spokesman Ted Funderburk.

In Brunswick County, the fast-food chain Hardees Inc. planned to begin servicing 15,000 meals today to 5,000 people in still staying at eight evacuation shelters. The evacuees went without food overnight Wednesday until the governor ordered meals and cooks shipped in from Red Cross headquarters in Wilmington.

Hardest hit when Diana raced for land just after midnight Wednesday were the small beachfront communities of Yaupon Beach and Long Beach, both on Oak Island about 25 miles to the south of Wilmington. Damage there was estimated at $20 million, according to state Highway Patrol Capt. Robert Barefoot.

Damage in Wilmington and New Hanover County was estimated at $5.6 million, said county inspections director Sky Conklin.

Carolina Power & Light Co. spokesman Mac Harris said about 7,800 customers still had no power at dawn. At the height of the storm, some 42,000 customers lost power, officials said.

At the height of the hurricane Thursday, 13,000 people were being housed in 57 shelters in 13 counties, said Red Cross spokeswoman JoAnne Jones. In South Carolina, more than 14,000 people spent the night in 16 shelters along the coast, officials said.

In Long Beach, population 1,834, the two front streets were under four feet of water and the roof had blown off the town hall.

Looking Ahead

Mostly sunny Sunday and Monday, becoming partly cloudy Tuesday. Cool with highs in 70s Sunday and Monday, with some 80s in eastern section. Lows in the 50s Sunday and Monday, in the 50s to low 60s by Tuesday.

Presidential Debate Said Set

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — President Reagan and Democratic challenger Walter F. Mondale will meet in the first of two televised presidential debates early next month, probably on Oct. 7 in Louisville, Ky., according to sources familiar with negotiations between the campaigns.

The only debate between Vice President George Bush and Rep. Geraldine Ferraro, D-N.Y., is tentatively set for Oct. 11 in Philadelphia, said one source, who refused to be quoted by name.

The second presidential debate is scheduled for Oct. 21 in Kansas City. All the dates and locations were subject to final agreement between the Reagan and Mondale campaigns, but that agreement was expected at a meeting in Washington today.

A formal announcement on the debates was also likely today, the sources added.

The League of Women Voters, which sponsored the presidential election confrontations in 1976 and 1980, is expected to be the official sponsor again this year, said one source familiar with the talks. That would leave the commercial television networks, which won permission from the Federal Communications Commission to sponsor debates this year for the first time, in the same position as previous years — broadcasting the debates as news events.

Campaign officials traveling with Mondale declined specific comment on the discussions over the debates, which both camps see as a critical factor in the outcome of the Nov. 6 election.

The one debate between Reagan and former President Carter was viewed as decisive in 1980.

Council Continues Request

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville City Council elected Thursday to continue consideration of the Tar River Neighborhood Association's request to rezone a portion of the neighborhood bordered by the Tar River and Fifth Street from R-6 (allowing multi-, duplex and single-family dwellings) to R-6S (single-family with allowances for existing or conforming uses). According to City Manager Gail Meeks, the continuation was requested by TRNA President I.N. Fridley.

Also continued were requests by R. Guy Mayo Jr. to rezone two parcels of land, located across from and east of Pitt County Memorial Hospital, from medical arts to shopping center, and a request to reduce the speed limit on Farmville Boulevard from Line Avenue to Raleigh Avenue to 25 mph and to allow on-street parking from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m., Monday through Friday and over the weekends.

In other action, the council approved a request by the University Condominium Homeowner's Association to close a portion of John Avenue located 478 feet south of US 264 bypass and 388 feet east of Cedar Lane. This portion of street had never been dedicated or opened.

In blanket consent, the council approved the following items:

•Ordinances creating civil penalties for theft or non-return of Sheppard Memorial Library materials, and policy and safety violations of Pitt-Greenville Airport regulations. Both ordinances carry provision for $50 penalties.

In the case of the library, the $50 fine would be used after patrons receive three notifications of overdue books — the first would be sent a month after books are delinquent, the second notice would be sent on a quarterly basis and the third notice, delivered by certified mail, would be sent calling for return within 15 days if no response was received following the other notices.

Potato 'Breeding War' Is On

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — Potato researchers in the Pacific Northwest are engaged in a "breeding war" with their counterparts in the Midwest and Northeast, they say.

Victory will belong to the challengers — the Midwest and Northeast — if their scientists can develop — or breed — a spud as good as the Russet Burbank variety, says Al Mosley, a crop scientist at Oregon State University's Agricultural Experiment Station. That is America's favorite for baking and making the slender, golden french fries sold at fast food restaurants, he explains.

It won't be easy, he adds. The Northwest grabbed its top-potato-producer position from the Northeast in the late 1950s. Now farmers in Idaho, Washington and Oregon have growing the Russet Burbank, developed more than 100 years ago by the famous horticulturist Luther Burbank, down to a science.

Massive center-pivoting irrigation systems in some areas, moving like the sweep on a radar scope, regularly douse water on perfectly circular 130-acre potato fields.

The potato thrives in the sandy, irrigated desert soil, Mosley points out. Some Northwest farmers get average yields of as much as 25 tons of high-quality tubers per acre. This is about twice as much as average yields for the potato varieties grown in states like North Dakota, New York and Maine, where the Russet Burbank grows poorly.

Giant processing plants operate 24 hours a day producing many of the more than 5 million pounds of french fries Americans eat annually.

Still, the region is looking over its shoulder.

"The Northwest grows about half the potatoes sold in this country, including about 75 percent of the baking and processing potatoes," said Mosley. "But nine-tenths of the breeding research is going on in the Midwest and Northeast. They must have 13 or 14 breeding programs back there, and we have two. They're trying to breed us right out of business.

"If they get a russet potato with good shape and quality — it really won't have to yield that well — it'll give us a real hard time. Production costs are much lower there. They don't have to irrigate, for one thing.

"Also," he added, "the growers are sitting right next to New York, Boston, Chicago, what have you. There are no big shipping costs like out here. The growers in New York would be in seventh heaven if they had a good potato for french fries. The processing plants would move East."

Not everyone in the East agrees with that assessment, though.

Ray Webb, chief potato breeder for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Research Center at Beltsville, Md., admits that developing a russet potato better adapted to the Midwest and East, from Maine to Florida, is "our major effort." But the effect on Northwest growers shouldn't be all that significant, says Webb.

"The impact would be much less than is currently perceived because, even if we get the varieties we want, I don't think our acreage for processing potatoes will increase enough to give processors the total volume they need. We do about 10 percent of the processing now. I'd guess it might go to 20 percent with a better russet," he said.

The USDA researcher speculates that even with a better russet potato most Midwestern and Eastern farmers would continue growing more profitable fresh market potatoes, and varieties used to make potato chips, and that Northwest growers could offset any losses by marketing more potatoes to Pacific Rim countries.

But the Northwest is not taking any chances.

"The Russet Burbank is susceptible to a number of diseases and we're under a lot of pressure to breed for resistance," said Joe Pavek, a USDA potato breeder stationed at a University of Idaho research facility at Aberdeen, Idaho. "Our growers have to have a superior potato because of that one great disadvantage — distance to market."

In a tri-state program supported by growers, researchers in Idaho, Washington and Oregon are stepping up their attempts to breed a potato better than the Russet Burbank now grown.

"It's interesting," said Mosley. "Under the surface, there's cooperation among the scientists in different parts of the country — sharing of information and test varieties. It's a good-natured rivalry. For one thing, we all know that a variety developed in one area just doesn't do that well in another area. But the whole thing has very serious consequences for the growers. They aren't laughing."

The war may be heating up, he said.

"I was at a potato convention back in Maine recently and we ate a beautiful long russet at the banquet one night that looked as good as any Burbank I ever saw. The taste wasn't quite there, and I understand it doesn't yield as well as the Russet Burbank. But the point is, they're getting there. It was a new East Coast variety."

West Coast Offers Variety of Food Items

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer

The West Coast states, renowned for their farms and orchards, yield a bountiful and diverse range of delicacies, including a wealth of seafood.

Washington, Oregon and California have a frontage on the Pacific Ocean of more than 700 miles, and from those states comes such fare as Olympia oysters, dungeness crab, rockfish, shrimp and mussels.

Best known, perhaps, is the Pacific salmon, often called the greatest of sports fish. A prime source of food for hundreds of years, they hatch in fresh water river and streams, spend their adult years in the salt waters of the Pacific, then return to the rivers to spawn.

Seafood is only part of the story. The lower zone of California is arid land, but irrigation has turned it into an Eden of citrus fruit trees, not to mention groves of olives, dates and avocados.

The West Coast is famous for its bread, especially the sourdough loaf made from grain grown in California's great Central Valley.

Northwest farmland is celebrated. Sleek herds of cattle roam the pastures and the region has an abundance of vegetables and fruit.

Oregon's raspberries are noted for their fragrance and great size. Jams and preserves are shipped to delicacy shops all over the East.

The area is a hunter's paradise. Deer, black bear, pheasant and other birds range through the forests of Oregon and Washington. For those who don't like to hunt, there are game farms featuring squab, wild turkey, game hen and guinea fowl.

For seafood lovers, here is a recipe for curried oysters featured at the historic Shelburne Inn on the Long Beach Peninsula off Washington's coast.

4 tablespoons clarified butter
2 teaspoon shallots, finely minced

2 teaspoons minced garlic
2 teaspoons green pepper, diced
1 teaspoon curry spice mix
12 small oysters
½ cup heavy cream

To clarify butter, melt slowly over heat so milk solids sink to bottom, leaving a clear liquid. Saute shallots, garlic and green pepper lightly in butter until softened. Add curry spice (see below) to shallots, garlic and green pepper, and stir. Add oysters and coat well. Add cream, and poach oysters until plump and firm. Remove oysters to heated serving dish on half shells and cover with foil. Reduce sauce until mixture coats a spoon. Remove foil from oysters and spoon sauce over them. Garnish with lemon and chopped parsley and serve. Serves 2. Good with a chilled California white wine.

To make curry spice, blend 1 tablespoon curry powder, 1 stick cinnamon, crushed, 1 crushed bay leaf, ¼ teaspoon ground cloves.

Himalayan Foothill Resort Called "Queen of the Hill Stations"

By MARIE GOTTSCHALK
MUSSOORIE, India (UPI) — When the sun never set on the British Empire, the rulers of colonial India fled north each summer to the cool of the Himalayan foothills to escape the heat and dust of the plains.

Today the sanctuaries are no longer the playground of crisp British officers on polo horses and Indian princes living in huge hillside palaces reminiscent of English country homes.

India's well-to-do and its small middle class have become the latest to share the region with the hermits and holy men whose caves and huts still dot the hillsides.

They go to resort towns such as Mussoorie, known as the "Queen of the Hill Stations," to escape the sweltering plains and crowded cities.

Mussoorie, a town of about 20,000 people some 130 miles northeast of New Delhi, rules over the plains and muddy Ganges to the south from its cool perch in the Himalayan foothills.

The beautiful Doon Valley, at whose mouth Mussoorie sits, was discovered by a British captain who strayed into it with his hunting party in 1827. That same summer he erected the town's first building, which still stands as a hotel.

Until the first car arrived in 1920, Mussoorie could only be reached by a 7 mile trek from the nearest town either on horseback or aboard porters' shoulders.

Today, a quick flight or overnight train from New Delhi goes as far as Dehra Dun, 22 miles from Mussoorie. From there it is a 90-minute bus ride up a winding road.

As the bus climbs to Mussoorie's 6,000-foot altitude, at each curve the air becomes noticeably cooler and cleaner.

During monsoon season, patches of fog and mist roll in and out of the valley, uncovering and then cloaking again the hillside terraces of bright green paddy. Except for that and the occasional grazing cow or goat, the hills are too steep for farming.

Monkeys sit on crumbling stone walls along the side of the twisting road. The walls are to keep vehicles from straying into oblivion but serve as grim reminders of those who ignored the "Better Late Than Never" warning signs.

Although the British have long since yielded their hill stations to India's newest elite, vestiges of the imperial past both haunt and enliven Mussoorie.

The plush places to stay remain hotels with names like Savoy, Riviera, Paramount and Broadway. The ballrooms and billiard tables still in use at the Savoy and Hackman's Grand Hotel have a beat-up charm.

Elizabethan architecture is common. Burnt orange roofs and stone churches stand out among the tall pine trees.

Men wear cardigan sweaters and oxford shoes to stroll in the cool, damp air along roads lined with moss-covered trees. Schoolgirls in v-neck sweaters, gray flannel skirts and bright red socks walk to class under big, black umbrellas.

India's elite are not the only refugees in Mussoorie, evidenced by "Georgy Porgy's Chinese and Tibetan Restaurant," which serves steamed dumplings called Mo Mos and "chang," the rice and barley beer for which Tibetans are famous.

The resort has a thriving community of Tibetans who sell their traditional handicrafts, as well as down jackets, windbreakers and athletic bags, at roadside tables. At its closest point, Tibet is only 55 miles away.

At dusk, the trumpets of the monks mingle with the calls of the monkeys and the birds in the trees.

Rickshaws, each pulled by two men, are the major form of transportation. In the off-season, groups of men, young and old, stand idly by their vehicles.

But all is not as placid as it seems. Along with its old world charm, Mussoorie has a modern struggle with the pressures of commercialization.

Huge billboards promise hotels with "all modern facilities." Young Indian boys and girls in blue jeans stand mesmerized before video games.

And for the past few years, the resort town has seen a housing boom that does not entirely delight its long-term residents — and clearly threatens what remains of the old world.

Mussoorie has so far been spared the noisy, polluting autorickshaws that are the boon and bane of cities such as New Delhi. But clumsy highrises clutter the mountainsides as half a dozen builders put up 1,000 tiny, multi-story apartments.

Massive, sterile, and colorless, the highrises are made up of dark cubicles piled high enough to obstruct the view of the valley. Purists say they violate the town's 70-year-old construction ordinance, which was designed to protect Mussoorie's resort charm.

"Just look at those black pigeonholes," said the secretary of the "Save Mussoorie Society," which seeks to repel the latest wave of invaders. "I will not even tie a blessed poor old cow out there."

Local Workshop offers help to solve problems with sewing and machine related difficulties...

Greenville Sewing Center, an Authorized dealer for Singer Company, located in Greenville Square announced today a workshop to be held at their business on Tuesday evening, September 18th, from 7 until 8:45 P.M. to offer help to the person who is constantly having problems getting their machines to perform according to normal expectations.

Leader of the workshop will be C.R. (Bob) Thompson, partner and manager of the local Company who has had some eighteen years of experience with SINGER. Thompson has held numerous workshops and clinics for sewers in South and North Carolina and the simple explanations of eliminations of problems and their solutions challenges even the most reluctant to get "Back to their sewing machine".

Items to be discussed will include proper selection of needles and/or threads; tension adjustments; adjustments of proper pressure for feeding of fabrics; skipped stitches (causes and cures); maintenance of the sewing machine; and lastly, fabric handling. Admission is by pre-registration (call 756-0747 for your seat) and will be limited to not over twenty-five persons.

After completion of the workshop, the floor will open to answering of questions from the audience.

It should be emphasized that while the cost of the clinic is free to the participants, this will be the only workshop of this type offered this fall in this area. Workshops covering other subject matter have been planned; however.

Education Challenges To Be Explored

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Education Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)— If revolutions in the schoolhouse keep your head twirling — usually in the dark — there's help at hand if you tune in a television show called "Inside Your Schools."

The second annual edition of the monthly television magazine produced by the American Federation of Teachers launches its 1984-85 broadcast season this month on numerous PBS and community stations (for air time, check local stations).

The TV magazine all about public education also airs nationally on cable TV over the Learning Channel the first Tuesday of each month at 3 p.m.; repeated Thursday, 2:30 p.m. and Sunday, 12 noon.

Steve Allen is the host for the 12-part series that explores challenges facing the nation's schools. Issues are those parents need to know about if they're to keep up. Knowing helps one guide the kids intelligently during their 12-year journey through the academic maze.

Allen, described by the AFT as "the consummate learner," takes viewers back to school for a half-hour each month to meet the teachers, examine the issues and even enjoy students.

"We are very fortunate to have a personality of Mr. Allen's stature and commitment to learning identified with our series," said John H. Stevens, executive producer.

"Steve Allen is far more than a comedian. He is a serious man whose continuing involvement with education demonstrates a side of him compatible with our effort to inform the American public about what goes on in the nation's classrooms."

Allen was creator and moderator of PBS's "Meeting of the Minds" series and is an adviser to the Gifted Children Advocacy Association. He speaks out frequently on the importance of quality education and its link to the nation's future.

Tidbits of "Inside Your Schools" program content on a month-by-month basis include:

September — Reunion of the class of 1964, an interview with Alex Haley and traffic safety tips for the new school year.

October — A look at the controversy over bilingual education, and talks with New Mexico Gov. Toney Anaya.

November — Reports on what schools are doing to help protect children, including programs on missing children, physical and sexual abuse and an interview with Dr. Joyce Brothers.

December — Explores some of the alternatives available to students in the public school system.

January — In recognition of the importance of good teaching, focuses on issues of teacher testing and evaluation, in-service training and job sharing.

February — Considers opportunities for women through education, asks astronaut Mary Cleve about her school experiences.

March — Shows how teachers are using new technologies in the classroom and how students are learning about technological developments.

April — Deals with communications, innovative and traditional approaches to the teaching of reading and writing.

May — Reports on special education in the public schools, including student appearances at the National Very Special Arts Festival in Washington, D.C.

June — Focuses on the various aspects of youth employment and its relationship to school.

July and August — Selected reports from previous 10 shows.

The series also will report regularly on findings of the National Assessment of Education Progress — the nation's report card on public education. This agency, NAEP, collects and assesses data on student demographics and student achievement. It is funded by Uncle Sam.

Each monthly show also will feature five or six reports in the following categories:

Where We Stand — Critical issues such as merit pay and tuition tax credits.

Excellence in Education — Samples include a teacher using computer know-how to educate profoundly disabled youngsters, and a unique approach to helping students with homework.

Kids in Performance — On the athletic field, on stage, in the school chorus, at the state science fair.

Teaching — Cameras go into the classroom to report on innovative teaching approaches.

Husband's Rejuvenation Caused Her No Jubilation

DEAR ABBY: I found a paid hotel bill in my husband's possession. A room had been rented in a lady's name at a very expensive local hotel. It showed that a party of two had spent the night there and had room service. I was out of town at the time.

I also found a canceled check indicating that my husband had given this same lady a nice sum of money. (We have separate checking accounts.)

When I confronted my husband with the hotel bill and canceled check, he said he "found" the hotel bill at his place of business. The canceled check, he said, was a loan he had made to a young woman he hardly knew.

Abby, I know he's lying. I did some checking around and learned that the lady is 26 years old and married. (My husband is 58.)

When I told my husband I was going to mail the hotel bill and canceled check to the lady's husband, he begged me not to, but contends that he is innocent of any wrongdoing.

My husband has been impotent for the last eight years due to medication he's been taking for high blood pressure. (I've been told that a young woman can arouse an older man when a woman his own age cannot.)

Should I mail the check and hotel bill to her husband? I think he should know, since I do. I understand he is a very nice man.

I will not make a decision until I hear from you.

WAITING IN GEORGIA

DEAR WAITING: Please don't mail the hotel bill to the lady's husband. I realize that you are hurting. But would you hurt less if you caused her husband to suffer too?

Try to resolve this problem rationally without bitterness or ill-will by discussing it with a counselor. Your husband needs counseling, too. He's obviously a very troubled man who needs your understanding, and the non-judgmental guidance that a counselor can provide.

DEAR ABBY: A 54-year-old, financially independent professional woman wrote to say that she had many suitors who enjoyed her company, but after she told them she was celibate, they disappeared. She wondered why they didn't continue seeing her and get their sex elsewhere.

Abby, celibacy has nothing to do with sex. In my Webster's Dictionary, a "celibate" is defined as "unmarried." The woman should have used the word "chaste," which means "innocent of unlawful sexual intercourse."

Furthermore, there would be no need for an unmarried woman to announce that she is celibate since a celibate is, by definition, an unmarried person.

Why didn't you straighten her out?

CELIBATE IN N.J.

DEAR CELIBATE: I didn't straighten her out because until you straightened me out, I also thought celibate and chaste were synonymous.

But celibacy, according to my Webster's Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary, is also defined as "abstinence from sexual intercourse."

***

DEAR ABBY: Although I can't top "Pennsylvania Dutchman's" cousin, I think I can match him. From the Markwell family Bible: Lewis Markwell Sr. died in November 1879, shortly before his 80th birthday. However, my records show a cousin whose father was 90 when she was born!

My great-great-great-grandmother Armstrong, born in 1739, bore five children after she was 41 years old. The youngest was born when she was 49. I realize this is no record, as there have been children born to women in their 50s. But five children after 40 is not every woman's fondest hope!

CONFIDENTIAL TO IN LOVE WITH A PARAPLEGIC MAN: The many intelligent questions you asked me deserve to be answered, but unless you include your name, address and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, I am unable to reply.

Recognition

It strikes us there should be another occasion of special recognition for Dr. Billy Graham. There have been many in his past, but this would be especially appropriate if the peace activists in the Western World chose to honor him.

The evangelist is once again in Russia, and while his message to the people there is one of proclaiming the gospel, his gospel's message is one of peace. Some of that seed might fall on fallow ground.

Why not? This American is strangely welcome in Russia. Perhaps it is because he plays by rules of the host government; he does not insult the atheist regime, and in turn obstacles to the Graham visits are almost pro forma and major barriers fall. Obviously the Kremlin almost trusts him.

In his current 12-day visit, Billy Graham will be in Leningrad, Tallinn, Moscow and Novosibirsk; for the first time he will be preaching outside Moscow.

True, the visit of the famous evangelist has some propaganda value; and this does not necessarily refer to consumption by observers abroad, but to the domestic variety. We are sure in our own minds the regime has an unspoken desire their people witness occasional evidence their government actually practices an element of democracy ... within reason, of course ... so they bend a little to get a lot.

To be fair, odds are against Dr. Graham's shaping the course of the world through his visit as an evangelist to the Soviet Union. Still, one can never be sure. He is strongly persuasive, and has (shall we say?) a friend known to lend a hand when the going gets rough.

The idea that peace activists should weigh a special recognition for Billy Graham is no casual thought. His voice and presence and a note of authority to the underplayed reminder that Christianity offers within itself a lifestyle that invites no more war.

Textile Industry Wants Restrictions

RALEIGH — Legislators from the state's largest textile-producing counties are being summoned back to Raleigh for a special meeting on the crisis facing that industry.

House Speaker Liston Ramsey approved the special meeting after hearing from representatives of the industry, the N.C. Commerce Department, the Employment Security Commission and other legislators.

Charles Dunn, lobbyist for the N.C. Textile Manufacturers Association, told that group that foreign imports are killing the textiles, apparel and fiber industries and that the furniture and hosiery industries are also beginning to feel the effects of an American market that is wide open for foreign goods.

"Unless something is done, and unfortunately I'm not too optimistic for the rest of this year, we're going to see more layoffs, some plant closings and profits will be a wash. Some companies will make a little and others will lose," Dunn said during a meeting with the legislators and state officials.

The "something" Dunn would like to see done is imposition of trade restrictions. "I'd prefer to say that we're looking for fairer trade policies," he said in an interview.

This is the time to strike, he said. Those policies would have to be implemented in Washington and the politicians who would have to impose them are up for election. "I would love to see Walter Mondale come down here, maybe hold press conferences in Greensboro, Gastonia and Spartanburg (S.C.) and make essentially the same speech he made to the autoworkers up in Michigan — just substitute textiles everywhere he said automobiles," Dunn said. "That would catch President Reagan's attention and force him to make a move." (Mondale favors trade restrictions that would reduce auto imports.)

The special legislative meeting, tentatively scheduled for Sept. 26 at 2 p.m. in the Legislative Building, would be part of an overall effort to bring political pressure to bear on Reagan, Mondale and the many U.S. Senate and House candidates up for election this year. Rep. Dave Bumgardner, D-Gaston, said legislators from six Southeastern states have been meeting to discuss ways to build grassroots interest in fighting imports.

At the meeting, Dunn and the state officials who took part in the preliminary meeting, will lay out the tale of woe that textiles, apparel and fiber face. They also hope to have representatives of local chambers of commerce describe the ripple effects, throughout the economy, that problems in these industries have wrought.

It is hoped that public opinion can be fired in the form of a letter-writing campaign. Dunn said that textiles workers, given the word that their jobs are in danger, would be willing to write such letters and that most textile companies would be willing to give editorial help to those who can't write well.

Bumgardner reported that the legislators from the six Southeastern states are talking about a television campaign, using combined resources of state-operated public TV stations, to alert Southeastern residents of the crisis these industries face.

Glenn Jernigan, ESC director, said that over the past 10 years, the textile industry has lost more than 63,000 jobs and that the textile share of the state's manufacturing work force has dropped from 36 percent in 1973 to 26 percent last year.

"We've got to make it clear to people that this hurts everyone in North Carolina, not just the textiles people," Jernigan said.

Speculation

Is Soviet Premier Konstantin U. Chernenko too seriously ill to continue working?

The speculation is rampant following a period when Chernenko was not seen in public. The 72-year-old premier appeared in public Sept. 5 to award medals to three cosmonauts, but a West German newspaper, Die Welt, reported he was hospitalized following that appearance. Prior to that he had not been seen in public for almost two months.

Soviet spokesmen, of course, deny that anything is wrong with Chernenko and maintain that he is working at his desk. And there it stands. There will be no way of knowing for certain whether or not the Soviet leader is working at full force, and if he is ill, who is making decisions.

Through the illness of Yuri V. Andropov government seemed to continue in the Soviet Union and no doubt, if Chernenko is ill, his functions, too, will be handled by the Central Committee.

On this side of the world, however, it makes one nervous to consider that the leader of our most powerful adversary might be ill and unable to make the decisions that could preserve world peace.

Defusing The Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a week marred by complaints about President Reagan's accessibility and about new rules governing coverage of the president, White House aides are trying to defuse the issue.

On Tuesday, for example, Reagan appeared before reporters four times — which must be a record, given Deputy White House Chief of Staff Michael K. Deaver's well-known tactic of scheduling only one public event a day in an attempt to retain control over what story and what pictures appear on the evening television news.

The president began the day by meeting with Republican congressional leaders, which was closed to media coverage. But then he made one of his rare appearances in the White House press room to personally announce he planned to meet with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and to answer questions for 10 minutes.

That was followed by a picture-taking session in the Rose Garden with Reagan and NATO Secretary-General Lord Carrington, during which reporters vainly shouted questions at the president.

And that was followed by a meeting in the Cabinet Room at which Reagan, before cameras, personally announced that the Soviet Union will be permitted to buy an additional 10 million metric tons of U.S. wheat and corn during the second year of its long-term grain agreement with the United States. No questions were asked during that session.

There was another switch at a brief session in the press room on Tuesday. The White House sets the time limit for how long Reagan will entertain questions, although, by tradition, the senior wire service correspondent ends the session by saying, "Thank You."

Usually, deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes stands in a corner of the press room and signals to reporters to stop asking questions and also signals to the wire service reporter when to end the meeting.

But on Tuesday, he stayed out of view, except to briefly step in the room to give the signal to the wire service correspondent to end the questioning period. As a result, it looked to many people as if the correspondent had unilaterally ended the questioning, when in fact it had been dictated by the White House.

The traditional "thank you" also gives Reagan the opportunity to blame the end of the session on the wire service correspondent.

"I was hoping to get beyond the second row," the president said Tuesday after the wire service reporter ended the questioning.

Although Bruce Drake of the New York Daily News had begun to ask a question, Reagan said "I can't" because the session was over.

WASHINGTON — Although Walter Mondale nursed the hurt in private, he was furious at House Speaker Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill's unwanted advice via TV and newspapers to "stop acting like a gentleman and come out fighting" in his uphill presidential campaign.

"He was darned sensitive about that," one Mondale insider told us. When a reporter asked his reaction, Mondale spun on his heel and walked away. He failed to understand that over his long Labor Day Cape Cod weekend, O'Neill writhed in fury at the evening news showing Mondale "getting the hell beat out of him by Reagan," as O'Neill told a friend.

But several days later, the mood between Fritz and Tip had warmed. O'Neill went out of his way to blame the nominee's staff for campaign snafus when he introduced Mondale to the House Democratic caucus.

Not present was campaign chairman Jim Johnson, who stands in minimum high regard with House Democrats.

Walter F. Mondale's representatives came away from their first negotiating session on campaign debates with the clear perception of a ploy by James Baker III, White House chief of staff, to avoid a vice-presidential debate.

Baker did not say it in so many words. But his Democratic counterparts believe he will, in time, offer a specific number of total debates, presidential and vice presidential — possibly three but more likely two. Since Mondale's agents will snap at the maximum number of battles with President Reagan, that would leave Vice President George Bush and Rep. Geraldine Ferraro out in the cold.

That fits White House inclinations. The president's men can see little good but much bad coming out of a confrontation between patrician George Bush and the feisty female who is the first woman ever named to a presidential ticket.

A secret supporter of Sen. Charles H. Percy in his Senate race against Rep. Paul Simon is the man who upset Simon in the 1972 Democratic primary for governor: former Gov. Dan Walker.

Walker remains a Democrat and has not publicly endorsed Percy. But he was present at a fund-raiser for Percy on Lake Michigan Sept. 5 hosted by Walker's Republican wife. During the evening, Walker had nothing good to say about Simon and considerable praise for Percy.

However, Republican politicians don't want Percy talking up Walker's friendliness. He was an unpopular one-term governor, and public remorse over the outcome of the 1972 primary is considered one of Simon's major political assets in the race against Percy.

The hint in Sen. Howard Baker's speech to the Republican National Convention in Dallas that running for president in 1988 was not such a great idea for him resulted partly from his feeling that the Republican Party has undergone immense change in the Reagan years.

Insiders now say that the odds are heavily stacked against Baker running, partly because of the Reaganization of his party, partly because he thinks Vice President George Bush will go into 1988 with a commanding lead.

Baker, now sampling law firms with Washington outlets that he might join after leaving the Senate next January, lunched last week with former Secretary of State William P. Rogers, senior partner in a big Manhattan firm. But Baker is more likely to choose the famed Houston-based firm of Vinson and Elkins, which played a major role in Lyndon B. Johnson's meteoric political rise in the 1940s.

Gov. Jim Thompson of Illinois, widely regarded as a possible selection for attorney general if presidential counselor Edwin Meese's nomination is withdrawn, has informed Meese he has no interest in the job.

—Art Buchwald—

Charity Functions

After a quiet summer, the "Man and Woman of the Year" dinner invitations are starting to roll in again. Honoring a distinguished man or woman is now one of the most popular ways of raising money for a worthy cause. The only trouble is that there are so many causes that it is hard to choose which one you want to get involved with. The people who run charity functions don't take rejection easily.

Last spring I got a call from a guy named Marty, who said he was telephoning for Jonathan Leverage, president of the International Chewing Gum Wrapper Corp. who was chairman of the dinner committee to honor Woody Wonderful as "Man of the Year" for what he'd done for the Princess Di Disabled Polo Players Retirement Home.

Marty wanted to know if I would serve on the honorary dinner committee with Dinah Shore, Howard Cosell, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kissinger and the ambassador from Sri Lanka, along with 100 of Woody's closest friends. He assured me there was no work or obligation involved.

I agreed and stupidly believed that was the end of it.

Three weeks later I got the call from Marty, who said the tables weren't moving and was wondering if I could possibly unload a number of them at $2,500 each as a favor to my buddy Woody.

"You said there was nothing I had to do when I allowed you to use my name on the dinner committee," I yelled.

"Woody's not asking you to do anything but make a few phone calls to friends to insure the dinner doesn't go into the red."

"I'm not going to sell any tables."

"Well, what about taking one for yourself?"

"I don't want to take a table for $2,500. I'll buy two tickets and that's it."

"All right, but I can't promise who you'll sit with, because if you don't take an entire table you could get stuck with some awfully tacky people."

"For 500 bucks, I'll have to take my chances."

"Okay, now you want to talk about the programs?"

"What program?"

"The printed program honoring Woody Wonderful which will be handed out at the dinner. A full gold page tribute costs $5,000, a silver page $3,000, and a black and white page $1,500."

"I don't want an advertisement in the program."

"If you don't take a page we can't invite you to the Platinum Circle reception after the dinner in Woody's suite."

"I don't care about going to the reception. I'm not even going to the dinner."

"If you don't show up Woody's going to be terribly hurt. He told me personally he was hoping to see you there."

As luck would have it I ran into Woody the next day and said, "I'm sorry I can't be at your dinner next week at the Waldorf."

"What dinner?"

"The one where they've made you 'Man of the Year.'"

"Holy smoke, did my staff get me into another one of those deals without telling me?"

"Didn't you even know you were doing a benefit for the Disabled Polo Players Retirement Home?"

"Who can keep track of what my stupid manager lines up for me?"

"Marty said you told him it was the greatest honor you had ever gotten in your life."

"Who's Marty?"

"The guy who called and said you'd never talk to me again if I didn't come to dinner."

Activities include a parade, live entertainment, rescue competition and a display of emergency service vehicles. Barbecue dinners will be available for $3.

In addition, an auction will be held at the Winterville Fire and Rescue Station.

Cash Flow Seminar

A seminar titled "How To Manage Cash In The Small Business" will be held from 7-9 p.m. Tuesday at the Willis Building in Greenville.

The seminar, the second in a series of four on small business sponsored by the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, will feature Dr. James F. Buck, associate professor of finance at East Carolina University, as the speaker. Buck will cover cash management, forecasting cash flow needs and computer applications in cash management.

The cost to chamber members is $15 and to non-members is $30. Registration deadline is Monday. For further information or to register call Holly Gilliam at the chamber office at 752-4101.

Reception

An International Reception to honor international faculty and students at East Carolina University and other international persons in the area is being given from 2 to 4 p.m. Saturday at the International House Book Store, 618 Pitt Street.

The reception is being sponsored jointly by the International House Book Store and Ariele's. It is free and open to the public.

Board To Meet

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners will meet Monday at 10 a.m. at the county office building at 1717 W. Fifth St.

Chapter To Meet

The Eva J. Lewis Alumni Chapter of Elizabeth City State University will meet Sunday at 4 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Christine Lewis, 921 Melody Lane, Greenville.

Series Planned

Greenville's REAL Crisis Center will be a participating agency in conjunction with a four night series of television programs on the subject of "The Prevention of Child Sexual Abuse: What Your Children Should Know."

The series, which is to be broadcast over The University of North Carolina Center for Public Television, opens Monday night with a 90-minute program for parents, teachers, and any others who have contact with youngsters. It explains sexual abuse of children, the victims and perpetrators, and what can be done to prevent it. Case studies will be used to show the extent of the problem.

The 30-minute Tuesday program, also at 8 p.m., is intended primarily for viewers in the kindergarten through grade three range.

The Wednesday program, which begins at 8:30 p.m., is designed for students in grade levels 4-7, discusses problems with babysitters, communication with parents, and other relative factors.

The third program, on Wednesday, is to be aired at 8 p.m. and is designed to show uncomfortable and sometimes dangerous situations faced by young people, particularly teenagers.

Thursday's program, fourth and final in the series, begins at 8 p.m. and is a 60-minute program directed basically to high school students.

Personnel at the REAL Crisis Center will be on duty during and after airing times of these programs to answer questions of anyone calling in. The number is 758-4357.

Scout Roundtables

The Pitt District Boy Scout and Cub Scout leaders' roundtables will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at Red Oak Christian Church.

The programs for the evening will include the themes of the month, "Rope Engineering" for Boy Scouts and "Wild and Woolly West" for Cubs. Other activities and dates will be discussed.

Program Member

East Carolina University has become a member of the International Student Exchange Program (ISEP) which facilitates the exchange of U.S. students with those in foreign universities.

Myra Cain of the ECU Office of Academic Affairs said ISEP membership "will make it much easier for our students to engage in studies at foreign universities." Under the ISEP program, an ECU student who pays tuition and fees at ECU may exchange places with a student from a foreign campus, not necessarily the same institution to which the ECU student will go.

ISEP maintains a network of universities in the U.S. and abroad which participate through an exchange of information and students. Through ISEP, copies of the ECU catalogue are available to foreign ISEP member institutions.

Dr. Robert J. Hursey of the ECU mathematics faculty will be in charge of ECU's participation in the program, Cain said.

She noted that a recently announced foreign exchange scholarship program established by Greenville engineer Thomas W. Rivers and his family "will fit very nicely" into plans to broaden foreign studies by ECU students and studies by foreign students at ECU. The Rivers Foreign Exchange Endowment Fund provides up to $2,500 for tuition, travel and lodging for ECU and foreign exchange students studying abroad.

Classes Planned

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department will hold baton twirling classes beginning Tuesday and continuing each Tuesday for 10 weeks at the Jaycee Park Recreation and Parks Building.

A beginner's class will be held from 4 to 5 p.m. and an advanced class will meet from 5 to 6 p.m. Persons aged 5 to 18 are invited to participate. The instructor will be Bobbie Parsons, who has taught with the recreation department for the past six years. For more information and registration, call Ms. Parsons at 756-1268 or the Recreation and Parks Dept., 752-4137, Ext. 202.

New Chairman

Lt. Col. Paul D. Knoke has been named chairman of Aerospace Studies and commander of the East Carolina University ROTC detachment, succeeding Lt. Col. James Thomas who had held the post since 1980.

Knoke comes to ECU following a five-year tour of duty at Randolph Air Base, San Antonio, Texas, where he headed two divisions responsible for the planning of vocational training for all Air Force non-flying personnel.

LT. COL. PAUL KNOKE

During the previous six years, he taught composition, speech, grammar and American literature at the Air Force Academy, Colorado Springs, Colo.

An alumnus of Virginia Military Institute, Knoke holds a doctorate in American literature and a master's degree in English from Ohio University.

Although single, Knoke has two foster sons, both of whom are now married and serving the armed forces. He has worked with young people as a youth league baseball coach, a Boy Scout leader, and as director of the Boysville Big Brother Program in Texas.

Martin Has Water Woes

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

WILLIAMSTON — At mid-morning, water was rapidly rising on a number of Martin County roads, particularly on rural roads in various areas of the county.

J. B. Taylor, communications officers for the State Highway Patrol office, said "at this time (10:30 a.m.) we have not had any reports of accidents or people being stalled due to water on the roads. Our advice to everybody is not to travel unless absolutely necessary, and to keep to major roads like U.S. 64, 11 and 17 whenever possible."

J. Comer Griffin, assistant superintendent of Martin County Schools, reported that Supt. Eugene Rogers "is out now with transportation officials checking road conditions. Our plans are to attempt to keep schools going until one this afternoon, but that may have to be changed. We're keeping a close watch on the situation. One of the problems is that most pupils got drenched in getting on buses and getting off at schools this morning. It's an uncomfortable situation."

Griffin added where roads may be impassable for buses, it might "involve doing some doubling back on the school bus routes."

A member of The Enterprise news staff, Denny Jenkins, reported, "When I drove in to work this morning before eight o'clock, there was nothing more than wet roads with a bit of water running across the road here and there. Less than two hours later, when I went out to check on conditions of the roads, I was amazed to find several places where long stretches of water are flowing at top speed across roads, with water two, three feet and possibly even deeper in some places."

Roads Jenkins mentioned as having stretches of heavy water include the Prison Camp Road, which is the shortcut back road from Williamston to Greenville, McGaskey Road that links the western part of Williamston to Highway 125 to Hamilton, and a number of low lying roads in the Everetts and Farm Life communities.

"There's a good chance the water on roads will build up even more," Jenkins added this morning, "as it's still pouring heavily with no let-up at this time."

FOCUS

Postal Express-ion

On this day in 1858, the Butterfield Overland Mail began the service with which the pony express would later compete. Butterfield coaches carried the U.S. mail between Tipton, Missouri, and San Francisco. When the pony express started in 1860, it followed a more northern route. Butterfield made the trip in 20 to 22 days. Pony express riders carried the mail 1,966 miles in less than 10 days. However, at an initial $5 a half ounce, pony express rates were not exactly cheap.

DO YOU KNOW — How many times did pony express riders lose the mail?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — About 200 million bushels of apples are grown in the U.S. each year.

South African Constitution Still Denies Black Vote

By TOM BALDWIN
Associated Press Writer
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — After two weeks of black riots and a fresh spate of bombings, P.W. Botha was sworn in as state president today under a new constitution that still denies the vote to South Africa's black majority.

Botha, prime minister since 1978, was the architect of the new system creating separate houses of Parliament for the Asian and mixed-race minorities to sit alongside the existing white chamber. The Parliament convenes Tuesday.

In the coastal city of Durban, six non-white opposition leaders sought by security police remained at the British consulate today, where they took refuge on Thursday, British diplomats said. Britain has allowed them to stay but refused to intervene on their behalf.

John Hedley, a British Embassy spokesman in Pretoria, said the fugitives were awaiting a response to a message their lawyer sent to the Ministry of Law and Order. But the minister of law and order, Louis Le Grange, refused to negotiate with the opposition leaders, and a clergyman who visited the six said they planned to remain in the consulate indefinitely.

Chief Justice Pierre Rabie administered the oath of office for state president, which replaces the post of prime minister, to Botha at a morning ceremony in Cape Town at the Great Church, near Parliament.

Botha, in his inauguration speech, said change could not come to the divided nation overnight.

"We pledge ourselves to strive toward the protection of the principles of human dignity, liberty and property of all in our midst," he said. "We vow to uphold and defend Christian values and civilized norms as well as freedom of faith and worship."

"Our state must maintain a particular character. That character can only be built on orderly government and respect for our different population groups and peoples, their traditions, their hopes and ideals," Botha said. His speech did not specifically mention the nation's 22 million blacks, who will continue to be denied a voice in the government.

The foundation of Botha's National Party rule has been separate development for the races, which has resulted in an array of laws that guarantee white privilege.

The constitution has been billed as a step toward race reform, but critics say it entrenches white privilege since the white chamber will have the final say over the other two.

A surprise guest at Botha's swearing-in ceremony was black guerrilla chieftain Jonas Savimbi, who heads the main rebel army fighting the Marxist government in Angola.

"I came here freely," said Savimbi, who admits receiving aid from South Africa, Africa's last white-ruled nation. "It is a fact, whether people like it or not, we are condemned by geography to live together in southern Africa."

Police said riot-weary black townships were calm overnight, except for one incident of youths throwing stones at cars in Soweto, Johannesburg's black ghetto. The day before, police said they shot to death a man who threw a gasoline bomb at a police bus.

Another bomb shattered an electrical substation Thursday near downtown Durban, but police and witnesses said there were no casualties. Guerrillas fighting white-minority rule in South Africa have been blamed for a series of similar bombings.

Nationwide, police said 41 have been killed in the unrest since Aug. 31, and about 300 have been injured. Most of the violence has been in black townships around Johannesburg and near industrial towns to the south.

However, clergymen in the worst-hit townships said at least 39 riot victims, and possibly 41, would be buried in mass funerals Saturday. Police had said 31 blacks died in those southern townships in rioting last week.

The six opposition leaders, who asked the British on Thursday to intervene on their behalf, spent the night in the seventh floor consulate offices and were still there this morning, British diplomats said.

British officials denied their request for intervention but did not force them to leave.

At least five of the six were among more than 40 political leaders jailed without charges by the government in August. They are leaders of groups that organized boycotts.

Roof Fall Hinders Recovery At Mine

By CHARLES WOLFE
Associated Press Writer
SHIELDS, Ky. (AP) — A crumbling shale ceiling forced workers to delay efforts to recover the bodies of two miners killed by a huge slab of falling rock deep inside a coal mine, an official says.

Crews recovered two bodies Thursday morning, but ran for safety about 4 p.m. when rock began falling in Bon Trucking Co.'s No. 2 mine, said David Jones, administrator of the state medical examiner program.

"We couldn't hear it from the outside, but they started coming out. Two or three guys indicated it was about as scared as they've ever been in a mine," Jones said.

Jones said he believed rubble from the second fall may have covered the last two bodies, delaying their removal from the shaft, perhaps for days.

"I think they'll be lucky to get anyone out by tomorrow (Friday)," Jones said.

Early today, recovery crews remained in the mine, pumping water out of the accident site.

The four miners were killed 1,600 feet inside the mine Wednesday. Federal records show that roof-fall fatalities in the Kentucky coalfields are up substantially in 1984, compared to the same period last year. A total of 26 workers have died this year, with 14 involved in roof falls. In the same term of 1983, there were 12 fatalities and four related to roof falls.

As of Sept. 13, 1982, there had been 40 mining-industry fatalities, with 13 in roof falls.

Harvey L. Napier, president of Bon Trucking Co., which operates four underground mines and one surface mine in Harlan County, declined comment on the latest accident until after the recovery effort ended.

State Mines and Minerals Commissioner Willard Stanley, who said it would be days before an official investigation begins, identified the dead miners as Mike King, 19, Johnny E. Lipfird, 34, Danny R.

Simpson, 27, and Bill Worthington, whose age was not known. All were from Harlan County.

The bodies of King and Simpson were taken to Louisville for autopsies by state pathologists. The post-mortems would show "whether they died instantly or if they had been alive for some time and could have been saved if someone had gotten to them," Jones said.

Thursday's progress in recovering the bodies was measured in inches, said Rick Ayers, a Bon Trucking Co. miner who worked with the 20-member recovery team.

"You have to watch it as you work. It's real slow. They're having to break the rock by hand with hammers," he said.

Flatbed trucks loaded with timbers and wooden blocks used to shore up the roof chugged up the dusty road leading to the mine portal, located about 1 mile off Kentucky 38 in Harlan County's Possum Hollow.

The roof, Stanley said, was "so tender, so fragile, it won't hold up the jacks. ... Pieces are breaking off."

Rescuers were stacking wooden blocks one on another to support the roof, Stanley said. "That's the only way you can hold up a heavy roof," he said.

The recovery team was under strict orders to move slowly to shore up the roof before trying to remove any bodies, he said.

"It's laminated shale — rocks that are not bound together strongly," he said. "I'd rather be a few hours longer and not have another one (accident) on our hands. People in the profession can't afford that."

The ceiling in the immediate area of the accident was not supported by roof bolts, Stanley said. It was supported, instead, with straight timbers, as called for in the company's roof-support plan filed with the state, he said.

Burger No. 2 miners, Stanley said, were under instructions to install roof bolts in unsafe areas. "These bolts extend six, seven or eight feet into the rock. ... With the fallen rock as massive as it is, I don't think the roof bolts would have helped in this case," he said.

He said he had ideas about what might have caused the cave-in, but would not comment until after the investigation.

Miss America Scandals Increase Interest

By ROBERT WADE
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Advertising experts predict the worst scandal in the history of the Miss America pageant could mean a 35 percent increase in the contest's television ratings Saturday, organizers said.

Albert A. Marks Jr., the pageant's executive director, called it "ironic" that the nude photographs which forced Vanessa Williams to relinquish her crown in July could interest more people in the pageant than ever.

Convention Hall, the 25,000-seat home of Miss America since 1940, is sold out for Saturday night's finals.

and about 65,000 copies of the pageant's $2 program book are "virtually sold out and there is no time to print anymore," said Marks.

But Marks said he was not about to thank publisher Bob Guccione, whose Penthouse magazine published the photographs.

Guccione this week announced he possessed 350 color slides of one of this year's contestants, but would make her name public only if she becomes Miss America.

Marks challenged him to identify the woman, but Guccione declined.

"I do not want her to be thrown out of the contest as I am very interested in seeing her win. It's in my best interest," Guccione said.

The furor "in a perverse way" has brought a new national focus to the pageant, Marks said. Television ratings, which had dropped in the last decade, are expected to soar, he said.

In 1974, about 30.3 percent of the televisions in America were tuned to the pageant, according to A.C. Nielsen Co. Last year, the percentage of homes viewing the contest dropped to 20.5 percent.

But Marks said advertising agencies in New York City believe the ratings could increase 35 percent over last year, although pageant officials are more conservative, estimating a 10 percent to 15 percent increase.

More than 9,000 people attended the first night of competition on Wednesday, while only 6,370 people were in the audience for the first preliminary show last year, according to pageant figures. More than 11,000 people attended the second night of preliminaries Thursday.

William P. Dannhauser, director of variety programs in NBC's entertainment division, said the interest has alleviated the network's concerns about how the furor over Miss Williams, 21, of Millwood, N.Y., would affect the pageant's ability to draw an audience.

Miss Williams was replaced by Suzette Charles, 21, of Mays Landing. Miss Charles will crown her successor on Saturday.

In preliminary competition, Miss New York, Mary-Ann Farrell, 22, playing an Argentine composer's piano selection, captured the talent event Thursday. Miss Utah, Sharlene Wells, 20, captured the swimsuit competition in a white outfit.

Reagan Campaigns After Opry Visit

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is resuming his re-election effort in the Rose Garden after a string of campaign forays that culminated in a flag-waving, foot-stomping, made-for-television, "proud to be an American" extravaganza at the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville, Tenn.

"This fellow Mr. Reagan has put our country back where it should be," country and western music star Roy Acuff told more than 4,000 people in the opry house Thursday afternoon as a campaigning president beamed in the background.

Acuff was the guest of honor at a celebration of his 81st birthday, but Reagan wove his standard re-election themes of hope, opportunity and pride in America into his speech.

He declared that patriotism had never gone out of style in country and western songs, and told his audience as well as the performers on stage, "People like you make me proud to be an American."

He added, "We are greatly blessed in this country ... So much of our greatness is behind us, but so much of our greatness is before us. There are big challenges ahead, and big dreams."

With that, Reagan presented Acuff with a birthday cake so large it had to be wheeled up to the front of the opry stage, and then led the audience in a chorus of "Happy Birthday."

Acuff cut the cake, singer Lee Greenwood led in singing "God Bless the USA," the crowd waved small American flags that the Reagan campaign had provided, and suddenly confetti showered down from the ceiling.

The birthday celebration-turned-campaign rally capped a brief trip into Tennessee that also included a speech before a group of high-tech business leaders, and Reagan was back at the White House by early evening. With no more out-of-town campaigning expected until next week, the president scheduled a Rose Garden ceremony today honoring Hispanic excellence in education.

The trip to Tennessee was Reagan's third outing of the week, and whether it was in Pennsylvania on Sunday, New York state on Wednesday or the stop in Nashville on Thursday, he combined his upbeat vision for the future with an incessant attack on Democratic challenger Walter F. Mondale's tax plan.

Mondale favors $85 billion in tax hikes to reduce the record deficits that have accumulated during Reagan's administration. But the president said, "We don't need more politicians insisting we have deficits because you're not taxed enough."

Mondale Ignores The Polls

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Walter F. Mondale, shrugging off hostile questions in Mississippi and polls showing President Reagan with a wide lead, is plugging away at his issue strategy in the belief that it's his best chance for victory.

The Democratic presidential nominee appeared in a jovial mood when he arrived Thursday night in St. Louis, where he will deliver a speech on the federal budget deficit today at Washington University.

When a reporter asked him about recent polls saying he was anywhere from 12 to 16 points behind Reagan nationwide, the candidate grinned and replied: "You can stuff those polls."

Mondale began Thursday in Tupelo, Miss., where he described the Reagan administration's domestic policies as "nothing short of official cruelty."

He accused Reagan of "trying to almost destroy the Medicare program" and then asked, "What kind of people are we? Do we want to do that to our senior citizens?"

"Of all the mean-spirited ways, of all the shameful ways to cut money out of that budget," he added.

The religious issue came up when the meeting was opened to questions from the audience. A young man who identified himself as a senior at the University of Mississippi said the Democratic platform supported abortion and gay rights and was anti-religious. He told Mondale: "You certainly don't represent Mississippi values."

"Anti-religious?" said Mondale. "Where do you get that?"

The former vice president went on to say, "I have my faith and it's my whole being and I believe that's true of you, too."

"And what makes America great is that our faith is controlled by ourselves, our conscience and our God."

The audience applauded loudly. Earlier, James Quackenbush, Mondale's Southern coordinator, said he thought the candidate was winning support in the region with his stand on religion.

"I've never seen him get bigger applause," he said.

Quackenbush said Mondale's proposal to raise some taxes but place all revenue from those increases into a trust fund to be used exclusively to reduce budget deficits "sends a real good signal" to people in the fiscally conservative Southern states.

While conceding that Reagan is very popular in the region, the Mondale aide said people are listening to what the Democratic nominee is saying about budget deficits.

James A. Johnson, the Mondale campaign chairman, shrugged off the polls by saying, "I think that's roughly where we are." He attributed the figures to Reagan's "personal popularity and the fact the voters have not yet focused on the issues."

Mondale got an enthusiastic response later in the day from people who sat in blistering heat in a soybean barn in Jackson, Tenn., to hear him lambast Reagan farm policies. "Under Mr. Reagan, 200,000 farmers have lost their farms," said Mondale.

"Mr. Reagan has hung a 'for sale' sign on our family farms and on our rural economy," he added.

He said he would declare a six-month moratorium on all Farmers Home Administration foreclosures and would appoint a farm credit management team in each county to evaluate the credit worthiness of endangered farmers.

Relations Discussed

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — A British special envoy has been meeting with top Nigerian officials to discuss relations between the countries that were strained by the attempted kidnapping in July of a Nigerian exile in Britain.

Sir Roger Du Boulay, a retired diplomat who served in Nigeria from 1948 to 1958, has been in Lagos since Tuesday. He is expected to return to London this weekend to prepare a report for Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe.

Du Boulay's talks with senior Nigerian officials are the first high-level contacts since former Transport Minister Umaru Dikko was drugged and hidden in a Lagos-bound crate marked diplomatic baggage July 5. Nigeria's military regime had been seeking his return to face charges of corruption allegedly committed while serving in the civilian government overthrown Dec. 31.

Britain expelled two Nigerian diplomats after the incident and told Nigeria's ambassador he was no longer welcome. Nigeria then ordered Britain's ambassador in Lagos to leave.

NOTICE

Pursuant to the general statutes of North Carolina, section 143-129, sealed proposals will be received by Pitt County until 11:30 a.m. on Monday, October 1, 1984 and will be opened at the Commissioners' meeting on October 1, 1984 in the Commissioners' Auditorium on second floor of the Pitt County Office Building, located at 1717 West Fifth Street, Greenville, North Carolina for the following service:

Pope Blasts Secular Society As Canadian Trip Continues

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer
HALIFAX, Nova Scotia (AP) — Pope John Paul II, hammering away at the faults of secular society, today tackles the theme of technology as he takes his cross-country pilgrimage to Canada's largest city, Toronto.

The pope wound up his last full day in the maritime provinces on Thursday with more denunciation of society's emphasis on profit over the needs of people.

For his sermons and speeches in Toronto, a thriving, ethnically mixed city of 3 million people, John Paul has chosen the theme of "technology and the human person." More than 1 million Roman Catholics live in Toronto, a number second only to Montreal.

Six days into his 12-day pilgrimage, the Polish-born pontiff has pounded away at what he sees as the ills of modern society.

On Thursday evening in Halifax, Canada's most important eastern seaport, he called on lay Catholic workers to "proclaim by action your respect for life, your social concern, your rejection of materialism and consumerism."

Added the pope: "You are called to exemplify purity of life and, if you are married, to be living signs of conjugal fidelity and of the indissolubility of marriage, just as Christ preached them."

In a brief appearance before a youth rally at a Halifax park, the pope said modern families are "threatened by divorce, pornography, alcohol and drug abuse."

The youngsters serenaded the pontiff, who wore a cream-colored overcoat against the cool night air as he rode through the crowd in a partially open limousine.

Earlier Thursday the pope spent seven hours in Moncton, New Brunswick, his last stop in French-speaking Canada.

As in his other stops in the Atlantic provinces, Canada's poorest region, the pope called for greater emphasis on people's needs.

At an open-air Mass in a muddy field, he urged 100,000 worshippers to live a simple life of sharing "in contrast with the present race for profit, consumption and artificial gratification."

He also emphasized the importance of respecting human rights, "including the right to life from the moment of conception."

Before leaving St. John's, Newfoundland, John Paul made a detour to the waterfront to meet the Polish crew of the schooner Gedania, trading them rosaries for a T-shirt bearing the design of the Gdansk yacht club.

Still more reminders of home await the pope in Toronto, where tens of thousands of Polish-Canadians are preparing a rousing greeting for him tonight in Varsity Stadium at the University of Toronto.

Toronto's population includes large colonies of immigrants from Italy, China, Portugal and Eastern Europe.

After Toronto, the pope heads west for the heart of mainly Protestant, English-speaking Canada.

Two Decontaminated After Nuclear Leak

LANIER, Ore. (AP) — Two maintenance workers have been "successfully decontaminated" after coming in contact with radioactive water during a cooling system leak at the Trojan Nuclear Plant, utility officials said.

Bill Babcock, a spokesman for Portland General Electric Co., said the leak was inside the reactor containment building and didn't pose a hazard.

The utility said an "unusual event" — which requires notification of federal officials — was declared at the plant Thursday because the leakage was above technical specification limits and required the action.

There was no evacuation at the facility, Babcock said.

Babcock said it was impossible to say how much radiation exposure the two men received.

"It's like getting radioactive dirt on the skin. You aren't going to get a lot of radiation," he said. "But if you get it on your hands and eat a sandwich, you get it inside you."

Research Finds Kids With Early Education Start Perform Better

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty-two years ago, researchers enrolled about half of a group of 123 poor black children in Ypsilanti, Mich., in intensive preschool education classes but withheld the early training from the others.

While 58 of the 3- and 4-year-old youngsters attended the high-quality classes for 2½ hours, five mornings a week, the remaining children waited to enter kindergarten and first grade at normal ages.

Now, the latest results of that study confirm what researchers postulated back in 1962, when preschool programs were a rarity: youngsters who get an early start on their education do better than their peers in virtually every respect — from more success in school and the job market, to fewer scrapes with the law, and lower rates of welfare and teenage pregnancy.

The findings are chronicled in a book, "Changed Lives: The Effects of the Perry Preschool Program on Youths Through Age 19," published today by the High-Scope Educational Research Foundation of Ypsilanti.

David P. Weikart, the foundation's president, said the study demonstrates "that preschool education of high quality can alter the lives of children living in poverty.... (It) can contribute to solving the major social problems of our times."

The study, conducted with government aid and grants from the Carnegie Corporation of New York and other foundations, found that at age 19:

—59 percent of the preschool graduates were employed, compared with only 32 percent of the rest.

—Two-thirds were high school graduates, compared with just under half the comparison group.

—38 percent had enrolled in college or a post-secondary vocational school, compared with 21 percent of the others.

—On a test of functional competence, 61 percent of the preschool group scored at or above average, while only 38 percent of the others did as well.

—Fewer than a third of the preschool group had ever been arrested or detained, compared with half the others.

—18 percent of the preschool group were on welfare, compared with 32 percent of the others.

—Only 1 in 6 of the preschool group later required expensive special education classes for slow learners; almost 3 in 10 of the rest did.

—The teen-age pregnancy rate was almost half as great for girls from the preschool group as for their peers.

The program cost $1,589 per child two decades ago, or $4,818 in 1981 dollars. But the savings in special education alone, in 1981 dollars, was $7,082 each, the researchers said.

And when the savings from reduced welfare and crime and increased earnings are factored in, society benefits from a 7-to-1 payoff on that year of preschool education.

The benefit-cost ratio was only half as great for the two-year program, the study said.

Drs. Julius B. Richmond, a former U.S. surgeon general, and Milton Kotelchuck of Harvard University's School of Public Health, called the study "a very important demonstration that high-quality preschool intervention can prevent developmental attrition and can make a positive impact on the future lives of its participants."

In recent years, studies have repeatedly shown that poor children who took part in preschool programs such as Head Start or who get federally financed remedial help in elementary school fare better later and, perhaps most importantly, had more positive attitudes about their schooling.

Head Start, launched in 1965 as part of Lyndon Johnson's War on Poverty, is now a $1 billion-a-year program reaching 430,000 poor children. It was part of the so-called "safety net" that President Reagan left intact.

But the study said 4.5 million of the 20.3 million American children 5 and under live in poverty, and they are still underserved.

The children of the study lived in a neighborhood on the south side of Ypsilanti — a town near Detroit — that was the attendance area for the Perry Elementary School.

The study has cost $3.5 million over the 22 years. Weikart said the researchers plan to keep following the Ypsilanti group to age 26.

Coroner Rules Capote Death Resulted From Liver Disease

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Liver disease complicated by drug intoxication and inflammation of the veins caused the death of prize-winning author Truman Capote, according to the coroner's office.

Capote, author of such works as "In Cold Blood" and "Breakfast at Tiffany's," suffered from liver disease, infection in his legs, emphysema in the lungs and epilepsy, Ronald Kornblum, the county's acting chief medical examiner-coroner, said Thursday.

Kornblum performed the three-hour autopsy on the 59-year-old Capote on Aug. 26, a day after he died at the Bel-Air home of Joanne Carson, the divorced second wife of talk show host Johnny Carson.

Toxicological tests found barbiturates, valium, anti-seizure drugs and pain killers similar to the numerous prescribed medicines found at Ms. Carson's home, a release from the coroner's office said.

"The toxicity was a contributing factor, but not lethal," coroner's spokesman Bill Gold said. "If it had not been for the liver problems, the intake of medications would not have been a problem."

"The liver is the key thing here," he said, noting that the liver serves as the body's detoxifier.

The coroner's office previously revealed that Capote suffered from phlebitis and epilepsy, but the liver condition, the emphysema and intake of medicines had not been established.

Extradition Avoided

MONTREAL (AP) — Two Canadians who hijacked a U.S. jetliner to Cuba in 1969 cannot be sent to the United States to stand trial because American authorities waited too long to seek their extradition, a Superior Court judge ruled.

Judge Rejean Paul said Thursday that granting the request to extradite Alain Allard and Pierre Charette would violate "fundamental principles of justice."

Allard and Charette, former members of the extremist Quebec Liberation Front, were indicted by a New York grand jury in 1975 for hijacking a New York to Miami National Airlines flight to Cuba in May 1969. There were 75 passengers on board.

Edmisten Cool To Martin Proposal To Exempt Elderly From Sales Tax

By The Associated Press
A proposal by U.S. Rep. Jim Martin to exempt people over age 65 from the state sales tax on food, non-prescription medicine and medical supplies drew a cool reception from his gubernatorial opponent Rufus Edmisten.

"North Carolina's sales tax on food and medicine is a special burden to the more than 640,000 of our citizens who are over age 65," Martin said, unveiling his proposal during a Raleigh news conference Thursday.

The Republican congressman said he was confident the Legislature "can be persuaded of the essential fairness of this timely tax cut," which would cost the state $20 million to $25 million a year. Martin said the loss would be financed by reordering state funding priorities.

Dan Hoover, Edmisten's campaign press secretary, said the Democratic attorney general called Martin's proposal "an administrative nightmare."

"He is sympathetic about those on fixed incomes," said Hoover. "But he has reservations about how workable it would be. It would present serious problems for the grocery stores in collection and verification."

Martin said the sales tax exemption could be implemented several ways, including reimbursing the elderly by providing them with a credit on their state income tax.

Also Thursday, Edmisten announced the formation of an Executive Business Advisory Council he said will advise him on business and economic development matters during his administration.

Members of the council include former U.S. Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps, Hector McLean, chairman of Southern National Bank, and Ike Belk, an official with the Belk Stores Group.

"We must continue effective programs and policies that have been instituted in the past five to ten years," Edmisten told the council members. "But we must also take on the challenge of doing even better in promoting economic development and industrial diversification throughout the state."

State Republican Party chairman

David Flaherty says a private audit of Gov. Jim Hunt's use of state aircraft for political trips creates a conflict of interest for the private accounting firm.

Hunt ordered the private audit after his aides admitted the governor's office had underbilled the Hunt campaign committee for use of state aircraft. Peat Marwick Mitchell and Co. has been conducting that audit for a week.

But Flaherty said Wednesday the company could not be considered independent because state budget chief John A. Williams and Hunt campaign treasurer Maylon Little had been associated with the company.

Ronald Barbee, managing partner for the company in Raleigh, said Williams was with a company that merged with Peat Marwick and Mitchell in 1965 and that Little left the company in 1974. Williams said he had no part in selecting the company and Barbee said there was no conflict.

Reagan-Bush re-election officials announced that U.S. Secretary of Education Terrel Bell will make an appearance in North Carolina for the Reagan-Bush campaign Saturday.

Bell will appear at a political rally at the CU-DI-MAR Country Supper in Asheville with Martin, and U.S. congressional candidate William Hendon, said Karen Johnson of the state Reagan-Bush campaign.

A celebration Thursday at an Asheville street dedication went on without Gov. Jim Hunt, who was surveying the damage caused by Hurricane Diana on the North Carolina coast.

"Governor Hunt is where he needs to be," said Joe A. Pell, Hunt's senior assistant.

Planning for the $3.9 million project began in 1977 and the five-lane connector opened last month.

Pell read Hunt's remarks to the assembled group of state transportation officials, as well as Asheville and Buncombe County officials.

Proposal Pondered On Cutting Burley Warehouse Supplies

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Tobacco companies might retaliate if burley growers enter the retail market with a generic cigarette made partially from surplus leaf piling up in warehouses, says one farmer.

The Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation is considering a proposal to reduce pressures on its tobacco program by making a generic cigarette.

Not all growers support the idea, suggested Wednesday by Jack Biehn, chairman of the farm bureau's advisory committee, to directors of the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative.

Harrison County burley producer Joe McDaniel, president of the cooperative, said he thought the cigarette companies wouldn't welcome the competition.

"Just off the cuff, I would think the big, billion-dollar companies would have the upper hand on any competition against them," McDaniel said. "They are so big and diversified, they could just lower their price, rely on their other businesses to carry them for a while and run any small competitor out of business."

Yet, McDaniel agreed that something had to be done to keep more tobacco from going into the cooperative pool, driving up the no-net cost deductions from farmers' paychecks "and perhaps even destroying the entire program." He said he favors reducing the support price to entice tobacco companies to buy more U.S. burley.

"Some companies have indicated to us that a range of an average price of from $1.40 to $1.60 a pound would make our burley more competitive with sales in the world market," McDaniel said.

The no-net cost program was approved by Congress two years ago to guarantee that the government wouldn't lose money on loans paid for tobacco that fails to bring at least 1 cent per pound more than the support price. The initial assessment charged farmers was 1 cent per pound in 1982. That has risen, from 5 cents in 1983 to 9 cents per pound this year.

That deduction has gone up with the quantities of burley going into the cooperative pool. Kentucky growers have complained that other countries are flooding the U.S. market with cheap burley, driving down prices for their product.

If a generic cigarette were produced, some of the blend would be bought from the mounting stocks of unsold tobacco stored under expensive loans in the cooperative.

"It is still in the talking stages, but we have already appointed a committee and it's being seriously looked into at this time by soliciting input from other burley groups," said Biehn, a burley farmer in Pendleton County.

He said it may be possible to produce a generic cigarette and make money for the producer.

"We would not only lower stocks in the pool and the no-net cost charge by using the surplus burley to make the generic cigarette, but we could bypass the middleman and go direct to the retail outlet ... like vegetable growers do at roadside stands, to keep our costs to a minimum," Biehn said.

"This may sound like a remote proposal, but any and all ideas on how to relieve the pressures now being applied to the program should be considered and studied carefully," Biehn said. "You don't know if something will or won't work until it has been thoroughly researched."

Belk Files Petition; Lists $10 Million Debt

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Henderson Belk, one of six heirs of Charlotte department store founder W.H. Belk, has filed statements in U.S. Bankruptcy Court declaring he owes $10.3 million to more than 140 creditors and has only $1.3 million in assets.

In connection with his Aug. 27 petition for bankruptcy, Belk declared he owes the Internal Revenue Service $1.23 million in disputed back taxes plus interest and penalties of about $1.2 million.

Belk was not available for comment.

The first meeting of creditors in the case will be Oct. 1 at federal bankruptcy court in Charlotte.

Belk also declared in his petition that he owes $39,956 in North Carolina taxes and an unknown amount in state taxes in Florida, South Carolina, Tennessee and West Virginia.

Other debts include $844,000 to Capital America Inc., a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., leasing company, and $861,209 to CNB National Bank of Charlotte for loans on two automobile dealerships — Henderson Volkswagen Inc. of Charlotte and Toyota of Asheville.

Belk, 61, listed debts in connection with investments in car dealerships in Lincolnton, Myrtle Beach, S.C., Jacksonville, Fla., and Houston. He also listed 22 creditors of Frankenberg & Co. of Charleston, W.Va., a clothing chain in which he invested.

Belk, once president of the Belk-Lindsey division of Belk stores in Florida, said in his petition that he owes money to banks in High Point and Salisbury; Fort Mill and Florence, S.C.; Knoxville and Chattanooga, Tenn.; Charleston and Huntington, W.Va.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Albany, Ga. and Little Rock, Ark.

Belk now holds no office in the Belk chain.

In March 1982, Belk's brother, William Henry Belk Jr., filed a petition for bankruptcy under Chapter 7 of the bankruptcy code in Miami, claiming $8.5 million in debts and $150,000 in assets. That case is still pending.

Professor Says Labor Only Industrial Lure

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — Recruiting industry to mountain counties can prompt disappointment in areas where the only bargaining chip is usually cheap labor, says a Mars Hill College social science professor.

"When we win (industry), we will win it, in most instances, at a very heavy price," Donald N. Anderson, chairman of the Department of Social and Behavior Sciences at Mars Hill, told members of the Appalachian Consortium.

"That whole ball game of selling one's county — that price gets extremely high," he said Wednesday.

He said a county can best serve its citizens and preserve its culture by giving incentives to existing industries to expand or maintain their employment levels.

In addition, Anderson recommends counties petition the federal government to preserve revenue sharing and block-grant programs to help counties solve their own economic problems.

The federal government should initiate a program of retraining workers skilled in troubled industries, like textiles and metals, for jobs in high-technology industries, he said.

Zoning can be important in the development of industry in the mountains, Anderson said. "It's one mechanism where you can direct and structure growth in the counties."

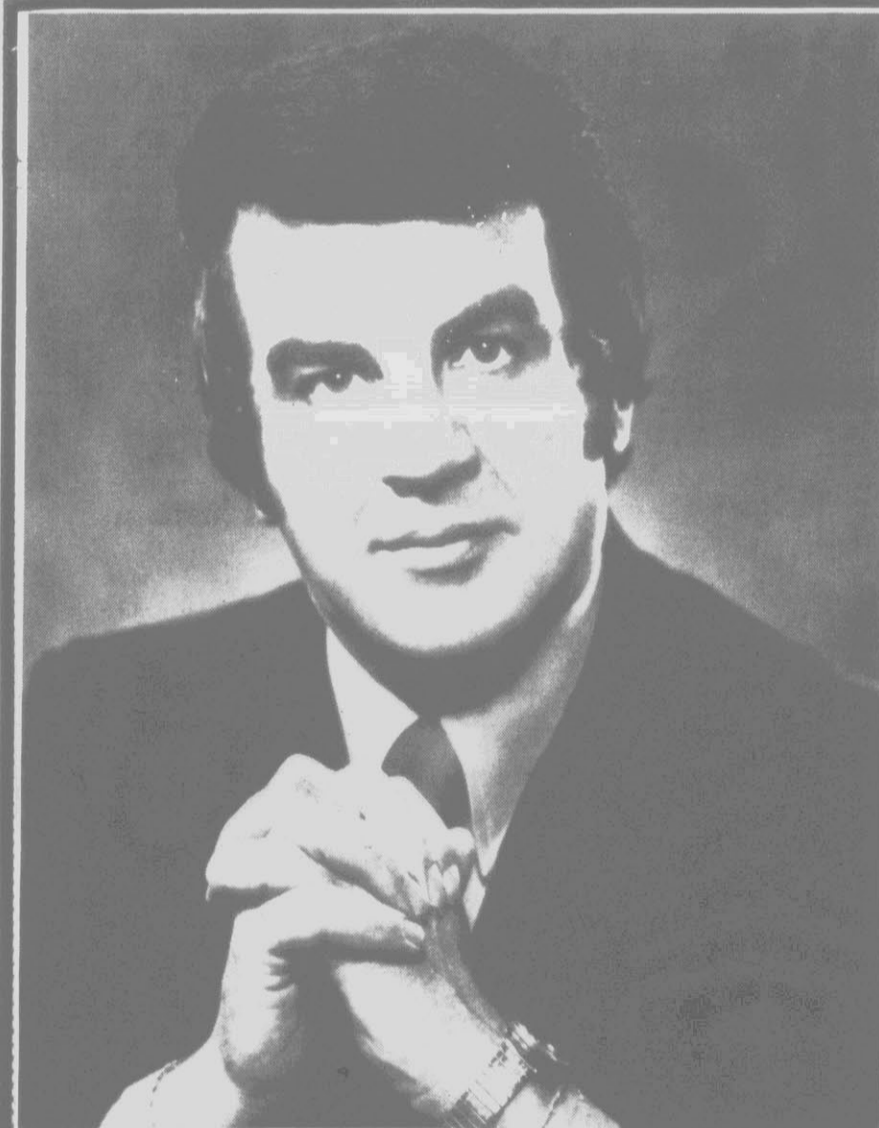

He also said a county such as Watauga shouldn't focus solely on tourism as an industry, because diversification is the key to a healthy local economy.

J. Paul Combs, chairman of the Watauga County Commissioners, said he thinks his county should push for industrial recruiting.

"Our kids shouldn't get out of high school and spend their lives working in local restaurants," Combs said.

He agreed that tourism won't be able to support the county's growth entirely, adding that the business tends to bring industries with low-paying jobs like restaurants.

Watauga County knows the problems it faces when recruiting industry, Combs said, but it is in a better position than most counties because of Appalachian State University.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

BIBLICAL SLAVERY

SLAVERY WAS A FACT OF LIFE IN BIBLICAL TIMES. THE MAJORITY OF SLAVES CAME THROUGH THE CONQUEST OF WAR. EVEN IN THOSE ANCIENT TIMES, THE HANDLING OF SLAVES BY THEIR CONQUERORS WAS NOT A HIT-OR-MISS OPERATION. LISTS EXIST, GOING AS FAR BACK AS 1740 B.C., IN WHICH THE ANCIENT EGYPTIANS TABULATED THEIR CAPTIVES' NAMES. IN THE BROOKLYN, N.Y. MUSEUM SUCH A LIST HAS BEEN PRESERVED IN WHICH AT LEAST TEN NAMES OF SEMITIC ORIGIN HAVE BEEN DECIPHERED. FOR THE PEOPLE OF THE BIBLE THERE WAS ALWAYS THE THREAT HANGING OVER THEIR HEADS OF POSSIBLE CAPTURE AND THE RESULTANT ENSLAVEMENT. WHEN WAR BROKE OUT BETWEEN KINGS, NO FAMILY COULD BE CERTAIN THAT THEY WOULD REMAIN TOGETHER IF THEIR KING AND HIS ARMY LOST THE WAR. A PRIME EXAMPLE IS THE TAKING OF LOT AND HIS FAMILY AND ALL HIS BELONGINGS BY THE CONQUERORS OF SODOM AND GOMORRAH (GEN. 14:12) -- ALTHOUGH LOT WAS NOT A NATIVE OF THE LAND! ONLY THE FACT THAT ABRAHAM CAME TO HIS RESCUE SAVED LOT FROM A LIFE OF SLAVERY!

OF ALL THIS, LOT, CAMPED NEAR SODOM, KNOWS NOTHING--UNTIL, IN THE EARLY DAWN, THE PRIVACY OF HIS TENT IS INVADIED!

Pope's Puerto Rican Journey Provokes Religious Friction

By ISMAEL TORRES
Associated Press Writer

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — A Protestant evangelist who draws large crowds at his rallies is leading a campaign against Pope John Paul II's visit here Oct. 12, charging that it is aimed at undercutting a growing fundamentalist influence on this predominantly Roman Catholic island.

Catholic Church officials say that the anti-papal rhetoric has become so stident that they are worried the seven-hour papal stopover could be marred by violence.

The Rev. Jorge Raschke's "Clamor to God" fundamentalist rallies have been heavily anti-pope since the papal visit was announced earlier this year.

A Labor Day rally featured as speakers three top political figures, including the island's governor, who are Roman Catholics.

his smiles, is the shrewdest leader the (Catholic) Church has had in many years," Raschke said.

He denied that he and other fundamentalists are inciting their followers to violence. He said they are urging their followers to stay away from activities involving the pope, including an open-air Mass that Catholic officials expect will draw 500,000 people. The pope also will visit the Dominican Republic on his tour.

The visit here will be the first by a pope to this U.S. Commonwealth, which has been Catholic-dominated since its settlement by Spain four centuries ago. But Catholic officials admit that the Protestant evangelicals have made major gains in recent years.

Various church officials estimate that as many as 30 percent of the island's 3.2 million residents are now Protestants, although there is no breakdown between those who are fundamentalists and those who are members of mainstream groups, such as Methodists, Presbyterians, Episcopalians and Lutherans.

Catholic Church conflicts with prominent Puerto Ricans are also believed to have added to the growth of the fundamentalists here. The late Luis Munoz Marin, political leader of the island for three decades, was threatened with excommunication by the church in the 1960s after he advocated birth control.

Raschke claims his purpose is educational.

"We hold no hatred for him (the pope) as a person," Raschke said in an interview. "What we are talking about, and urging the public (to recognize), is the religious significance of the figure of the pope." Raschke calls on his followers to lift their voices directly to God, "not through another man as intermediary."

He contended in the interview that the pope's visit is political, and designed to stem the growth of the evangelical sects. He accused the Catholic hierarchy of using the visit to try to stir up an atmosphere of persecution against evangelists.

"We believe that this pope, for all the pope's visit, said the church views the evangelists' campaign with great concern, adding that "strict security measures" will be in effect during the stopover.

"We are more concerned about the intellectual and religious confusion being implanted in the Christian public," Rodriguez said.

But he added that the rhetoric creates a climate for confrontations.

The Evangelical Council, which groups traditional Protestant churchmen here, has condemned the actions of Raschke and other fundamentalist leaders and has tried to get them to stop.

The Rev. Jose Lebron Velazquez, the council president, said telephone calls to Raschke to discuss the matter have gone unanswered.

Lebron was also critical of the Labor Day rally in San Juan by Raschke's "Grupos de Avivamiento, Inc." — Revival Groups, Inc. "It's an anti-pope activity," said Lebron, pastor of the United Evangelical Church.

Raschke claimed 150,000 people attended the rally on the grounds of the Capitol building. Reporters estimated the crowd at half that figure, still considered an impressive turnout for a religious activity here.

Among the speakers at the rally were Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo, former Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon, and Senate President Miguel Hernandez Agosto, all Roman Catholics.

Raschke said he had planned to hold the rally on the day of the pope's visit but changed his mind because of Lebron and others.

Lebron said there are more areas in which Catholics and Protestants agree than those that divide them. He mentioned as examples John Paul's positions condemning the arms race, nuclear weapons and abortion.

"We here are differences, but that this is not the moment to emphasize those differences," Lebron said.

Raschke also has placed a series of radio commercials denouncing what he calls "idolatry and paganism" of the Catholic Church, meaning its veneration of saints and belief in papal infallibility.

The preacher is the coordinator and fund-raiser for as many as 100 individual fundamentalist evangelical churches in Puerto Rico. He also conducts religious radio programs and preaches in tents around the island.

Merchants and some politicians have been at odds with the church because of the Catholic hierarchy's staunch opposition to ending a long-standing ban on the opening of stores and businesses on Sundays.

Puerto Rico's No. 1 television personality, Iris Chacon, became a "born again" Protestant Christian in July, a year after she drew criticism from the Catholic Church for her sexy dance routines and a suggestive television commercial.

Religion, Politics Mix Stated

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

All the campaign fuss about whether religion should be involved with politics is "incredibly naive," says a researcher whose work has shown them to be closely and regularly intertwined.

"They are inextricably linked," says psychologist Peter Benson of Minneapolis, research director for the Search Center for studies into beliefs and values.

"The ties between religion and politics are incredibly strong."

While American history indicates such links throughout the country's life, he says current research has shown those links remain powerfully determinative in the legislative votes of Congress members.

Stock And Market Reports

By The Associated Press

HOGS: Trend is steady to 50 cents lower at N.C. buying stations. Kinston, Spivey's Corner, Murfreesboro, Siler City and Robersonville 48.00; Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Pine Level, Chadbourne, Ayden, Laurinburg and Benson 47.75; Wilson 48.00; Rowland 47.00. Sows: (500 pounds up) Wilson 45.00; Fayetteville 44.00; Whiteville 44.00; Wallace 45.50; Spivey's Corner 45.00, Rowland 46.00.

BROILERS: The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 49.75 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pound birds. 41 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed for a preliminary weighted average is 48.65 cents f.o.b. dock or equivalent. The market is generally steady and the live supply is moderate for a light to good demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Friday was 1,703,000, compared to 2,260,000 last Friday.

HENS: Market trending higher. Supply adequate. Demand good. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday slaughter was 15 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market swept ahead today, continuing Thursday's strong rally on the strength of hopes for lower interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 9.93 to 1,238.18 in the first half hour. Gainers took a 4-1 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The market's latest upsurge got its start Thursday amid hopes for new evidence that the economy was slowing, paving the way for a possible decline in interest rates.

Those hopes were fulfilled by the government's reports this morning of a 0.8 percent drop in retail sales and a 0.1 percent decline in the produce price index of finished goods for August.

Also working in the market's favor was word from the Federal Reserve late Thursday of an unexpectedly large $2.1 billion drop in the basic measure of the money supply for the latest reporting week.

Today's early volume leaders included General Electric, up 1/4 at 59 3/4; Procter & Gamble, up 3/4 at 57; United Technologies, up 40 1/8; and American Express, up 1/8 at 34 7/8.

On Thursday the Dow Jones industrial average jumped 27.94 to 1,228.25, for its best showing since it rose an equal amount on Aug. 9.

Advances outpaced declines by almost 3 to 1 on the NYSE. Big Board volume totaled 110.58 million shares, against 77.98 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index climbed 1.67 to 96.48. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.95 at 214.13.

ECU Hopes To Spell Relief W-I-N

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

There's a bit of hoopla about Joe McIntosh, N.C. State's running back, billed as the "Number One Returning Rusher in the Country" this year.

Well, not quite. McIntosh is the number one career returning rusher. The number one man last year for the season — back this year — is Napoleon McCallum of Navy, who ground out 1,587 yards.

Both of those runners have gotten plenty of ink, however, and are well known to nearly every football fan in the country.

But consider Curtis Adams. Who's he? Adams is the number two man behind McCallum, rushing for 1,431 yards last season with an average of 5.4 yards per carry. He scored 96 points, tying for seventh place in the country in that category. Overall, he was fourth in rushing among NCAA Division I-A players.

In all-purpose rushing, he finished fourth again, with an average of 159.2 yards a game and a total of 1,751 yards.

So what's the big deal about Adams? The 6-0, 185-pound senior is the tailback on the Central Michigan Chippewas — East Carolina University's foe for this weekend.

Probably the most unheralded back in the country, he rushed for only 79 yards in 19 carries in the Chippewas' opening game, but really wasn't needed for more.

Central Michigan ran off a 45-22 victory over Northern Michigan two weeks ago behind the passing of sophomore quarterback Ron Filmore, a 6-3, 190-pounder. Filmore hit on 10 of 15 passes for 151 yards and three touchdowns. Chief target was split end John DeBoer, a 6-4, 185-pound junior, who caught five passes for 97 yards, three of them going for touchdowns.

That served to leave DeBoer tied for second place in the nation in scoring with 18 points and Filmore in third place in passing efficiency. Filmore also rushed 14 times for 70 yards, the longest 35 yards.

Fullback Matt Correy (6-0, 215, Jr.) also did well, rushing 10 times for 57 yards. Both he and Adams each scored once.

"Central Michigan has a hell of a program," East Carolina coach Ed Emory said of his Saturday foe. Kickoff in the game is set for 1 p.m. on the Chippewa field in Mt. Pleasant, Michigan.

The meeting between the two teams is the second. East Carolina won the first, 24-6, back in 1982 in Ficklen Stadium. The Pirates spotted the Chippewas a 3-0 lead, then came back to take a 17-3 edge before allowing another field goal and scored themselves again in the final period.

But, Emory cautions, things have changed since then. "They've got only four players back from that 1982 team on offense and three on defense. The quarterback who faced us then is now the number three man on the list."

"Adams is as good a running back as there is in the country. And they're big. They've gotten a real Michigan influence both offensively and defensively. We've got to stop the option play and both Adams and Filmore if we expect to have a chance to win."

Not that the Chippewas are a one-sided team. They've got good people on defense, too. Jim Bowman (6-2, 205, Sr.) is rated as an outstanding free safety by Emory. Strong safety Mike Kenealy (6-1, 190, Sr.) intercepted two of three passes picked off by the defense against Northern two weeks ago.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR

FRIDAY AFTERNOON, SEPTEMBER 14, 1984

Central allowed Northern only 56 yards on the ground, something that would cause the Pirates fits as they are having trouble getting their offensive line together.

However, Northern hit on 26 of 44 passes for 417 yards, which might give the Pirate quarterbacks the chance to show their worth.

"Another thing that worries me is that they've had two weeks to get ready for us," Emory said. "We've had to get ready for them, try to straighten out our problems and fight the rains from Hurricane Diana at the same time. It's not easy for us."

East Carolina, 0-2 going into the game, is hoping to find the right combination in the offensive line to give the backs a chance to run and the quarterbacks time to throw and work the option. Against Temple last week, when the Pirates were shut out in Ficklen Stadium for the first time in 13 years, East Carolina managed only 125 yards in total offense, and that worries Emory. Changes have been made in the offensive line and four members of the defensive unit have been switched to offense in an attempt to bolster up things.

Central Michigan was the overwhelming preseason favorite to win the Mid-American Conference this year and has done little so far to change that opinion. Under Herb Deromedi, the Chippewas have an impressive 50-15-2 record in seven years. The 1982 season — when the first played the Pirates — was their worst, finishing 6-4-1 and fourth place in the league. They have won two MAC titles and finished second twice more in those seven years.

East Carolina's rushing is led by fullback Reggie Branch with 87 points while tailback Jimmy Walden has 83 yards. No one else has rushed for over 50 yards.

In passing, Ron Jones has hit on six of 22 for 109 yards, while Robbie Bartlett, who will start this week, has 49 yards on three of eight completions. Top receiver is Stefan Adams with five catches for 76 yards.

Following Saturday's game the Pirates return home to host upstart Georgia Southern on September 22.

Johnson Tries To Figure It Out After Mets Lose

By The Associated Press

Dave Johnson, winding down his first year as manager of the New York Mets, had the tired look of a man drained of easy answers after his pennant-contending team was blown out 14-4 by the last-place Pittsburgh Pirates.

"I don't understand why we have games like this," he said after the loss. "I wish I knew . . . because we've had games like this all through the season. Our concentration wanes and we forget what we're doing out there. When we're bad, we're very bad. Sometimes, it gets out of hand."

In the only other National League game played Thursday, the Philadelphia Phillies crushed the St. Louis Cardinals 10-2. Montreal's game against the East Division-leading Cubs was rained out in Chicago.

Suffering its third defeat in four days, second-place New York dropped 7½ games back of Chicago.

"In my mind," said Mets first baseman Keith Hernandez, "the killers were the games against the Cardinals (Monday and Tuesday). When we lost those, it was really like nails in the coffin. Now we're hanging on the ledge."

For the Cubs, who face the Mets in a three-game series at Wrigley Field beginning today, the magic number to clinch the National League East is nine.

"If we don't sweep those games, forget it," said Hernandez. "It's over, no doubt about it. It's that simple."

As the Mets combined ineffective pitching with physical errors and mental mistakes Thursday, the Pirates broke out to a 9-1 lead in the seventh inning. By the eighth, Johnson had replaced eight of his nine starters.

"Early on, it looked like we needed a wakeup call," he said. "A lot of strange things were happening out there. It was terrible, just terrible."

Johnson talked about outfielders allowing runners to take extra bases, infielders forgetting to cover the right bases and pitchers not making the right pitch when they had to.

"There's a fine line sometimes between technique and effort. Sometimes the technique is so brutal it seems like the effort is not there. But heck, I know these guys are trying. There's a lot of character on this club."

Leading Pittsburgh's attack was third baseman Jim Morrison, who collected three singles, a double and a career-high six RBIs.

"The Mets are a great young ballclub," said Morrison. "The Cubs also have a lot of young players, but they also have a lot of seasoned veterans. That can make the difference."

Phillies 10, Cardinals 2
Juan Samuel and Mike Schmidt combined to drive in seven runs as Philadelphia crushed St. Louis.

IRS Contribution Ruling Could Alter Fund-Raising

By The Associated Press

Internal Revenue Service officials and North Carolina college athletic administrators confirm that a recent IRS ruling on rewarding contributors with athletic tickets may alter big-time college fund-raising.

"The interpretation appears pretty cut and dried," said Lee R. Monks, assistant director for the IRS in North Carolina. "It underlines the definition of a charitable contribution as a gift with no strings attached. When a donor derives a benefit like a preferred ticket, the ruling indicates his contribution cannot be tax-exempt."

The ruling, issued without warning on Tuesday, states in part: "A contribution to an athletic scholarship program that is required to be made in order to obtain the right to purchase a preferred season ticket to a university's home football games is not deductible as a charitable contribution . . ."

Charlie Patterson, assistant athletic director for development at Wake Forest, said, "As I understand it, the directive could have a tremendous nationwide effect on athletic fund-raising."

"I just hope it won't be strictly enacted when all is said and done," he added.

"Most of the people who give love the school," said Joe Alleva, Duke's director of athletic finance and assistant director of the Iron Dukes club, "but they love a good ticket almost as much."

Alleva said he hoped some leeway would be allowed in enforcing the rule.

"There are some perquisites involved in many charitable organizations of all kinds," he said. "If the ruling is enforced strictly, I would hope exemptions could be retained for contributors if we abolished priorities and distributed tickets at random to all those who met a required donation level."

Area Grid Contests Reset For Monday

The effects of Hurricane Diana have served to wash out nearly all of the area's high school football games, scheduled for tonight.

At deadline, the only game which had not been postponed was Chocowinity at Perquimans, although the schools expressed the feeling that it would be called off.

Rescheduled for Monday are the following: Rose at New Bern (7:30 p.m.); Ayden-Grifton at Richlands (7:30 p.m.); North Pitt at Conley (7:30 p.m.); Farmville Central at Bertie (7:30 p.m.); North Lenoir at Greene Central (7:30 p.m.); Roanoke at Washington (7 p.m.); Williamston at Plymouth (8 p.m.); and Jamesville at Belhaven (7:30 p.m.).

Also postponed until October 26 is a flag football game that was to send Trinity Christian to Wanchese Christian.

A decision on a soccer match between Greenville Christian and Ridgeway was to be made later today.

Also postponed from yesterday were: Rose at Northeastern tennis (Monday, Sept. 24); Greene Central at East Duplin tennis (no date);

Plymouth at Roanoke tennis (Wednesday); Rose at Northern Nash cross-country (Thursday); and Conley at Washington cross-country (Monday).

Rose High School's junior varsity football game with New Bern was also postponed, but may be played on Saturday.

Woody Peele

After two weeks, last year's basement dweller, Jimmy DuPree, continues to lead the pack with a 18-6 record, much to the amazement of everyone — especially Jimmy.

But Tom Baines is making noises about catching up, pulling to within two at 16-8. He passed last year's winner, Vickie Spivey, who fell into third place at 15-9, tied with the guests. This writer and Joe Jenkins are next — or on the bottom, depending on your point of view — with 14-10 records.

This week there are several games that could help to move the standing around again — or spread them further apart.

Last week's guest, East Carolina Sports Information assistant Rob Wilson turned in an 8-4 record, beating out his boss, Bob Gennarelli by one game. Wilson now holds the young lead among the guests.

This week, we bring in the new Rose High School football coach Chip Williams for a chance at it. "You're picking on the wrong guy," Williams said. "I don't know that much about it." Sure, Chip, we know. No 12-0's now, please. We get embarrassed enough as it is.

Peele	Williams	Baines	Spivey	Jenkins	DuPree
Rose over New Bern	Rose	Rose	Rose	Rose	Rose
Alabama over Ga. Tech	Alabama	Alabama	Alabama	Alabama	Alabama
N. Carolina over Navy	N. Carolina	N. Carolina	N. Carolina	N. Carolina	N. Carolina

Auburn over Texas	Texas	Texas	Auburn	Auburn	Texas

First, a look at the high school games in the area. Last week, we turned in a 6-2 record, which brings us to 8-4 on the year. And now that everyone has played at least once, we've got a chance to improve on that with a little more knowledge.

Ayden-Grifton, after crushing Roanoke last week, visits Richlands. The Chargers won this one, 16-6, last year, one of only three losses suffered by Richlands during the season. Both teams are 1-0 now, but we like the looks of the Chargers, call it 15-8.

North Pitt visits Conley in a cross-county rivalry. The Panthers are looking for their first win in three starts, while the Vikings are looking to win their third straight. Conley hasn't been scored on yet, and might get to think they're unstoppable. We don't think the bubble will break this week, and we pick Conley, 24-6.

Farmville Central visits Bertie in a game that could tell a lot about both teams this year. The Jaguars rolled over Williamston last week, while Bertie just did nip Currituck. Playing at Bertie is a big key, and this one could go either way. We'll pick Farmville, 21-20.

In other area games, it'll be North Lenoir over Greene Central, Washington over Roanoke, Perquimans over Chocowinity, and Jamesville over Belhaven.

Rose High School visits New Bern as the Rampants try for their second win in a row. New Bern, with two games behind it, will be out to win its second. The Bears haven't scored much, just six points a game, but they've only allowed 11 points in those two contests. The field conditions could decide the contest as Rose will be seeking to use its speed to its advantage over New Bern's size. We'll stick with Rose, 20-12, and the panel goes down the line with the Rampants, 6-0.

East Carolina, smarting from its 17-0 loss to Temple, travels to Central Michigan, which features one of the country's top quarterbacks and running backs. East Carolina needs to generate some offense, and get an offensive line that will open up some holes. Our own opinion is that it won't come this week. We pick Central Michigan, 28-17. The panel is split, however, 3-3, dividing equally between the Pirates and Chippewas.

Our other consensus picks: Alabama over Georgia Tech; North Carolina over Navy; Virginia over VMI; Notre Dame over Michigan State; Missouri over Wisconsin; Maryland over Vanderbilt; N.C. State over Furman; Wake Forest over Appalachian State; Pittsburgh over Oklahoma; and Auburn and Texas, a toss-up.

Independent TV Stations Seeking Football Rights

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — An association of independent television stations has filed a pair of antitrust suits aimed at opening the way for telecasts of more college football games.

The suits, filed Thursday in Federal courts in Oklahoma City and Los Angeles, seek to break what the association contends are restrictive agreements involving the College Football Association, two major conferences not in the association, ABC, CBS and ESPN (the cable television network).

In the court action the Association of Independent Television Stations, Inc., says the contracts stifle competition and prohibit its members' rightful access to certain contests.

INTV hopes to break the right of colleges or television groups to restrict competition during certain exclusive time periods where the national TV networks have been operating since the U.S. Supreme Court struck down the old NCAA television plan and contracts.

Named as defendants, in addition to the CFA and the networks, are the Big Eight, Big Ten and Pac 10 conferences.

The CFA includes major independent football powers as well as schools in the Atlantic Coast, Big Eight, Southeastern, Southwest and Western Athletic conferences.

Speaking at a news conference earlier this week, Forrest A. Hainline, the attorney for the association, said, "There is nothing wrong with a network putting together a season package. But a ban on head-to-head competition is wrong."

George Schweitzer, a spokesman for CBS, said in New York that the network had received the complaint but would have no comment until its attorneys have had a chance to read it.

"Our stations aren't asking for guarantees," Herman W. Land, the president of INTV, said earlier this week. "We just want a chance to compete."

The television group says it would have no objection if the suit were assigned to U.S. District Judge Juan Burciaga, who issued the initial ruling that struck down the old NCAA television plan.

ABC and ESPN have a contract with the CFA in which CFA members agree not to televise against the games being shown by ABC and ESPN. CBS had a contract with the Big 10 and Pac-10 based on similar restrictions. INTV also said the Big Eight has an agreement to televise some of its games during another time period with similar restrictions.

The CFA contracts are based on a concept devised by Chuck Neinas, executive director of the CFA, which envisioned three different time periods or windows for telecasting college football on Saturdays — early afternoon, late afternoon, and night.

Under that concept, the two late time periods are protected or restricted, while the early time period (known as an "open window") would allow individual schools or conferences to make their own deals. The Big Eight package is being presented during the open window.

Games shown during the open window must begin by 11:40 a.m. CST.

The INTV claims they're

"severely disadvantaged" because the required early start would cause scheduling disruptions and would be financially unattractive because of audience considerations.

"The agreements prevent INTV members from bidding for games to be shown in the afternoon or at night, a unique time during which there are no substitutes for intercollegiate football," the suit said.

The INTV contends the agreements violate the Sherman Antitrust Act, that the defendants have reduced output, subverted viewer choice, distorted pricing and eliminated head-to-head competition without countervailing pro-competitive justification.

The suit contains basically the same charges the University of Oklahoma and the University of Georgia made in the suit that overturned the NCAA plan and its contracts with ABC and CBS.

An ABC spokesman said the network has not yet seen a copy of the suit and would not comment until it does. ABC has always shown a strong preference for exclusive programming, but CBS indicated earlier this summer that it was willing to go head-to-head on Saturday afternoons.

The suit was initially assigned to U.S. District Judge David Russell, one of the presiding judges for the Western District of Oklahoma.

Burciaga presided over a seven-day trial of the NCAA case in Oklahoma City and ruled against the NCAA on virtually every significant point.

Hearns Is Hot Property Again

SAGINAW, Mich. (AP) — Thomas Hearns, a sensational two-round winner over Roberto Duran, is a hot boxing property again, with "a lot of things coming my way ... endorsements and things like that."

He's also headed for a big-money fight with Marvelous Marvin Hagler and, he hopes, to heights that have been unreachable for fighters.

Hearns, the former World Boxing Association welterweight champion and current World Boxing Council super welterweight champion, wants to become an unprecedented winner of four titles. The idea is to beat Hagler for the middleweight title, then go on and win the light heavyweight championship.

It's not a pipe dream for a 25-year-old, who can mix boxing skill with power punching and who finds himself on top of his rough-and-tumble world.

Saturday, at the 7,500-seat Saginaw Civic Arena and on national television, Fred Hutchings will try to knock off the Hit Man from Detroit in a scheduled 12-round bout for Hearns' share of the 154-pound class title.

"I'm not just here for a payday," the 25-year-old Hutchings said Thursday of his title shot, which will be televised on CBS Sports Saturday and is scheduled to begin about 4:30 p.m., EDT.

While Hutchings' record is not as spectacular as Hearns' or dotted with names like Sugar Ray Leonard, Duran, Wilfred Benitez or Pipino Cuevas, the 6-foot-2 challenger, an inch taller than the champion, appears to have earned his shot.

Hutchings has a 27-1 record, with 17 knockouts. He has outpointed such good pros as Marcos Geraldo, Buster Drayton and Curtis Ramsey and knocked out Kirkland Laing in the 10th round national television last year.

Hutchings has won 23 straight fights dating back to April 7, 1981, when he lost a six-round decision to Tim Harris at Sacramento, Calif., in his fifth pro fight. Hutchings, who gained a six-round verdict over Harris in this third fight, knocked out Harris in the ninth round in his 13th fight March 31, 1982, at Stockton, Calif.

"He's a very good fighter," said Hutchings. "He's going to find out that's to my advantage."

But Hearns, who has four decision victories compared to three KO wins since he was stopped in the 14th round by Sugar Ray Leonard for the undisputed welterweight title in 1981, isn't predicting a quick knockout. Victory, not a particularly type of victory, appears to be his goal to keep on the path toward a showdown with Hagler, which manager-trainer Emanuel Steward said is being targeted for March 1.

"People are looking for a knockout in every fight," said Hearns, who will be 26 Oct. 18. "All your fights can't be knockouts."

Hearns' third defense of the title he won on a 15-round decision over Benitez Dec. 3, 1982, New Orleans — he outpointed Luigi Minichillo and beat Duran — is scheduled to be his next-to-last.

Blackburn Not Thinking About Possible Victory

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The first round pace-setters in the $300,000 Greater Milwaukee Open provided the usual disclaimers about their prospects of winning.

"I'm not even thinking about it, not now. It's just fun to play a good round," said longshot Woody Blackburn after a career-best, 8-under-par 64 gave him the lead Thursday.

"Who's to say what will happen?" asked Dan Pohl, who admitted intense surprise at a 65. "I'll just keep plugging away — play it one day at a time," he said.

"I'd like to break through and win, but there's too much golf left to be played. All you can do is try to get in position to have a chance on the last three or four holes on Sunday," said Mark O'Meara, one of a large group at 67, 5-under-par on the 7,010-yard Tuckaway Country Club course.

Tom Watson, however, was not so coy.

"I'd like to win another tournament," said Watson, the only three-time winner on the American Tour this season.

And he put himself in position to do it, playing his last nine holes in 31, including birdies on the last two, for a 68 that, he said, "was a good score."

Watson said he made his career-first start in the Milwaukee tournament "to protect my lead in the money-winning race against Tom Kite, and to stay ahead of Kite — he's only a couple of points back — in the race for Player of the Year."

"I'd like to win another and get the 10 points (on the complicated point list that determines the Player of the Year), and lock it up."

Watson, who has taken five Player-of-the-Year titles and led the Tour in money four times, was asked why he places such importance on those seasonal races.

"Pride," was his one-word answer.

Kite, like Watson making his first Milwaukee appearance, had a disappointing 73 that left him far back in the pack.

Gary Hallberg, with a 66, was third alone behind Blackburn and Pohl.

Tied with O'Meara at 67 were 48-year-old Dale Douglass, Mike Nicolette, rookie Corey Pavin, Bill Kratzert, Donnie Hammond and veteran George Archer, a winner last weekend in Sutton, Mass.

Blackburn, 33, lost his full playing rights due to his dismal play last season, when he missed 21 cuts in the last 22 tournaments he played and now competes only when all other categories of exempt players have been exhausted.

He qualifies as a former champion, off a victory with Kratzert in the 1976 National Team Championship.

Blackburn said teaching pro Peter Kostis helped with restructuring his game — "basically, we started all over, went back to basics, fundamentals," he said — over the last year.

A BIG NIGHT

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — During the 1983-84 college basketball season, Steffond Johnson of Louisiana State had played only 18 minutes in 11 Southeastern Conference games before the Tigers played Mississippi.

Then Johnson had his own personal night of nights. He made 20 points, came down with 15 rebounds, played 37 minutes and had five steals.

Give Up On Petty Effort

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Race car owner Cliff Stewart says his efforts to lure Richard Petty away from the Curb Racing Associates team for the 1985 season have come up empty.

"Richard called me earlier in the week and said that they (Petty and Mike Curb) had gotten all their problems straightened out," Stewart said. "I think I was used to get what (Petty) wanted out of Curb."

Stewart, a High Point furniture manufacturer, has voiced dissatisfaction with his current driver, rookie Rusty Wallace. He said no sponsors were interested in the car for next season with Wallace as the driver, even though Wallace leads the NASCAR Grand National rookie-of-the-year point standings.

Stewart said he talked to Petty several times, but a deal hinged on Petty being able to leave the Curb team. Petty is in the first year of a three-year contract with Curb, a former California lieutenant governor and member of Ronald Reagan's re-election campaign.

Curb told reporters in California that he met with Petty last weekend and that the team had some communication problems because of Curb's campaign activity. He said he expected to spend more time with the team in 1985.

Stewart said with Petty out of the way, Buddy Baker is number one on his list of possible drivers.

Lady Pack Tops Aces

EDENTON — Rain washed out part of the action yesterday, but not before Washington had won a 5-0 victory over Edenton in a North-eastern Conference tennis match.

Washington captured all five matches easily, never losing more than three games in a set and only 11 in the entire match. The number six singles and the three doubles matches were all washed out.

Washington, now 2-0, travels to Roanoke Rapids on Monday for a make-up match.

Summary:

Missy Fulmer (W) d. Cindy Dunn, 6-3, 6-1.
Tommie Metters (W) d. Liza Vaughan, 6-1, 6-0.
Jessica Moore (W) d. Kelly Johnson, 6-0, 6-1.
Kyle Stearns (W) d. Carol Baker, 6-1, 6-1.
Sue Ellen Day (W) d. Martha Hornthal, 6-1, 6-2.

Lynn Cracks Two Homers

Three's A Crowd

Fred Lynn wasn't feeling well before the California Angels took on the Cleveland Indians. After the game, it was Cleveland who had that sinking feeling.

The California outfielder was bedridden Wednesday with a strep throat. Before Thursday night's game, he was still complaining of feeling weak.

"I didn't have a lot of energy or a lot of strength," said Lynn, who smashed two home runs in the Angels' 7-3 victory. "By the time batting practice was over, I already felt like I'd played the game. I thought I had it."

What he now has is 22 homers, equaling his final 1983 output.

In other American League games Wednesday, the New York Yankees stopped the Toronto Blue Jays 6-1 and Texas edged the Seattle Mariners 9-7.

Lynn lined a three-run homer in the second inning and added a solo shot in the seventh, giving him seven homers in his last 12 games.

"I can't concentrate on homers because I'm not that type of a hitter," he said. "But when I get in a streak, I can hit a bunch in a short time."

The victory moved California to within 1 1/2 games of Minnesota and Kansas City, the co-leaders in the AL West who were both idle Thursday.

Jim Slaton, 7-7, scattered seven hits and struck out seven while walking three in 8 2-3 innings. Don Aase came on to record his seventh save.

Joe Carter hit his 10th homer of the season for Cleveland.

Yankees 6, Blue Jays 1

Ray Fontenot hurled eight innings, picking up his first victory since Aug. 10, as New York pushed Toronto one step closer to the brink of elimination in the AL East. The magic number for the division-leading Detroit Tigers now stands at six.

Although Fontenot didn't finish the game, he didn't mind.

"When you have the kind of bullpen we have, you don't have any reason to complain," the pitcher said. "I could have gone into the ninth, but a complete game is not that important, especially this late in the season."

Reliever Jay Howell came on in the final inning and struck out all three batters he faced.

Willie Randolph and Omar Moreno led the Yankees' attack, each driving in two runs, while Scott Bradley had his first two major league hits, a single in the second inning and a double in the fourth.

Don Mattingly hit his 22nd homer of the season in the sixth inning, while Dave Winfield collected two hits to maintain his league-leading .351 average.

George Bell drove in the lone Toronto tally with a double off the right-field fence in the third.

Rangers 9, Mariners 7

Gary Ward smashed a three-run homer and Bobby Jones added two run-scoring singles, pacing Texas over Seattle.

Ward's homer, his 18th, capped a four-run Texas sixth inning and gave the Rangers an 8-0 lead.

Seattle roughed up Texas starter Frank Tanana, 15-13, for three runs in the seventh and tallied three runs off reliever Dave Schmidt in the eighth.

Bob Kearney had three hits, including his seventh homer, and drove in two runs for the Mariners.

Auburn Faces Tough Test At Fourth-Ranked Texas

By The Associated Press

It's only the second game of the season for the Auburn Tigers, but already the most important one of the year for them.

"We know this game is our season as far as the national championship is concerned," said Auburn defensive end John Dailey as the 11th-ranked Tigers prepared for Saturday's game with fourth-ranked Texas.

The Tigers had come into the season ranked No. 1 in The Associated Press poll, but dropped 10 places after a 20-18 loss to Miami in the Kickoff Classic.

"If we go 0-2, we're out of it," said Auburn center Yann Cowart. "It would be extremely difficult to win a national championship with two losses with all the good teams out there."

Texas Coach Fred Akers is wary of Auburn, and for more than one reason.

"I don't like to play someone who's had a game before, especially a top football team," he said. "They've had a game to get the butterflies and some of the bugaboos that come about the first game out of their system, plus conditioning, so I don't care for that."

Along with their national championship aspirations, the Tigers will be motivated in other ways. The Longhorns won last season's meeting 20-7, holding Auburn star Bo Jackson to merely 35 rushing yards. In this year's opener against Miami, Jackson gained 96 yards.

In other games involving the nation's ranked teams, it's Minnesota at No. 1 Nebraska; No. 16 Washington at No. 3 Michigan; No. 12 Penn State at No. 5 Iowa; co-No. 5 Miami at Purdue; Long Beach State at No. 7 UCLA; Tulsa at No. 8 Brigham Young; Washington State at No. 9 Ohio State; Bowling Green at No. 13 Oklahoma State; No. 14 Southern Methodist at Louisville; No. 15 Oklahoma at No. 17 Pitt; No. 18 Florida State at Kansas; and No. 19 Alabama at Georgia Tech.

Lou Holtz made a successful coaching debut at Minnesota with a 31-24 victory over Rice. But the Gophers don't figure to have as easy a time with Nebraska.

"Nebraska is deserving of its No. 1 ranking," said Holtz. "The offensive line is the best I've ever seen."

Last year Nebraska humiliated Minnesota 84-13, beginning a slide that cost Joe Salem his job and eventually led to the hiring of Holtz, who had coached before at Arkansas and in the pros.

Ohio State quarterback Mike Tomczak, on the bench with an injured leg in last week's victory over Oregon State, has been cleared for action against Washington State. Tomczak hopes he gets a better reaction from the home crowd than last week's boo-birds that caused Ohio State Coach Earle Bruce to comment: "We sort of consider Ohio Stadium as an away game."

Like Auburn, Pitt hopes to make a comeback from an opening-day loss and remain in the running for the national championship. The Panthers were upset by pass-happy Brigham Young in their opening game.

"They can do a lot of things on offense," said Pitt Coach Foge Fazio of Oklahoma, a 19-7 winner over Stanford last week. "I don't think anybody in the country has the speed of Oklahoma. I know we're not fast enough. We're just going to try to put our players in the right spots."

Fazio admits that's not easy to do against Oklahoma. Not only do the Sooners have potentially one of the nation's top backs in sophomore Spencer Tillman, but Fazio says Oklahoma "has two great wide receivers and a quarterback (Danny Bradley) capable of throwing for 2,000 yards. And they're so comfortable in the Wishbone, they scare you."

Oklahoma will be trying to overcome a recent jinx of sorts in Saturday's game. Of the Sooners' last 11 games against nationally ranked opponents, they've lost 10. The Sooners have lost four games a year for each of the last three seasons and most have been against top-ranked teams.

"We did some good things last week and had some minuses," said Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer. "But I think these are things that we can correct. We've had a lack of depth at running back and that's hurt us. We've just not been as effective offensively because of the running back situation. Defensively, we don't know what kind of football team we have."

Gastineau Impressive

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals are impressed that New York Jets defensive end Mark Gastineau could compile a National Football League lead of six sacks despite missing four weeks of practice because of a court trial.

"It leads me to believe that if we could get all of our guys indicted, maybe that's the formula for success," chuckled Bengals Coach Sam Wyche.

"So far, it ain't affected him too much, has it," said tackle Mike Wilson, who will face Gastineau on Sunday.

"It's kind of fascinating how you can take a month off and still lead the league in sacks," guard Gary Smith said of Gastineau, who was convicted of assault. "He's big, he's strong, he's got speed. If you don't take the right set on him, he's gone. He's in the backfield."

"I know what he wants to do, he knows what I want to do," said Wilson. "I try to do the same thing for every opponent. As soon as you take somebody lightly, that's when you get your rear beat."

"But, he is supposed to be the best defensive end, so it gives me a shot to play against the best. You've got to say he's the best. If I do well, maybe I'll get some good PR out of it."

HANSON'S NEW JOB

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) — Terry Hanson, a veteran television and pro sports executive, has been named Director of Communications and Broadcasting for the PGA Tour. The 37-year-old Hanson has spent the last three years at the Turner Broadcasting System, first as executive director of sports and later as director of sports.

Trevathan Leads Rampettes' Sweep

Lisa Trevathan served 12 consecutive points to lift the Rose Rampettes to a 15-6, 13-15, 15-1 victory over Northeastern Thursday in high school volleyball action.

Rose took the second match 15-2, 17-15 to increase its record to 2-0 on the season.

Trevathan's scoring string came in the decisive third game of first match.

In the second match, Melissa Stanley served out the last five points of the final game.

"We had exceptional play from the returning players from last year," Rose Coach Kim Gruber said. "I was real pleased with the sophomores who came off the bench."

Gruber also cited Trevathan, Jenny Carroll and Cheryl Clark for hitting on the front line.

The Rampettes travel to Beddingfield Tuesday.

Conley.....2 Ayden-Grifton.....0

LITTLEFIELD — D.H. Conley swept a pair of matches from Ayden-Grifton Thursday in high school volleyball action.

The Valkyries took the first match 15-3, 15-6, then rallied for the second 15-8, 15-6.

In the opening game of the first match, Debbie Patrick won 12 points on serve for Conley, while Yolanda Rice had three for Ayden-Grifton. Michelle Waters had seven points and Trellany Boyd six for the Valkyries in the second game.

Waters had five points and Rhonda Jackson three for Conley in the second-match opener, while Boyd had seven and Jackson four in the second game. Lucy Williams had three points and Karen Edmonds two for the Lady Chargers.

Conley improved its record to 6-0, while Ayden-Grifton slipped to 0-2.

Farmville C.....2 ENCSD.....0

WILSON — Farmville Central avenged a pair of losses earlier in the week to Eastern North Carolina School for the Deaf by sweeping two games Thursday in high school volleyball action.

Farmville won the first match 6-15, 15-9, 15-7 with Gina Mazingo leading the Lady Jaguar servers. Felicia Parker was the leading server for ENCSD in the opener.

The Lady Jags won the second match 15-9, 15-7 with Debra Joyner leading the way.

Sales Contradict Predictions

By TIM BOVEE
AP Business Writer
DETROIT (AP) — The prediction held by some analysts that demand for automobiles would weaken failed to materialize in early September, when consumers "hungry" for automobiles boosted sales at the nation's automakers.

The six companies reported a 29.7 percent increase in sales during the period over early September of last year, the best showing at this time of year since 1982.

"The inventory more than anything else is distorting the figures," said David Bloom, an automotive analyst for First Boston Corp.

The present mix between 1984 models, nearing the end of their sales year, and the 1985 models going on sale next month, also clouded the sales reports for Sept. 1-10, Bloom said.

Altogether, 150,240 cars were sold in early September, compared with 132,333 in the year-ago period.

"I would expect that you won't really be able to see a true trend in sales until a month or two more of data," Bloom said.

The seasonally adjusted annualized rate for Sept. 1-10 was 8.2 million, compared with 6.3 million for the same time in 1983, according to the industry journal Ward's Automotive Reports.

"We were expecting somewhere around the 7.5 million to 7.7 million level," said Scott Merlis, automotive analyst with Shearson Lehman-American Express.

"Consumer demand remains very strong, despite the fact that interest rates over the past three to six months have increased steadily. The consumers are hungry for new cars," Merlis said.

Merlis said he expects a slowdown in the sales rate this month because of supply shortages among all the major automakers.

At the end of August, GM had 49 days supply of cars; Ford, 70 days; and Chrysler, 74 days, Merlis said.

Sales this year through Sept. 10 totaled 5,684,158 cars, up 24.2 percent from the 4,575,183 sold during the comparable period last year.

Ford Motor Co. led the Big Three automakers with a 36.8 percent increase in car sales for the 10-day period, compared with a 35.4 percent increase for Chrysler Corp. and a 24.1 percent increase for General Motors Corp.

American Motors Corp. reported a 15.6 percent increase in sales; American Honda Motor Co. Inc., a 159.7 percent increase; and Volkswagen of America Inc., a 24.2 percent decrease.

The percentage comparisons were based on sales per day. The 10-day period this year contained seven selling days, compared with eight selling days last year.

The year-to-date periods this year and last year each contained 213 selling days, allowing direct comparison of the sales figures.

In last year's period, Honda's Ohio assembly plant was not in full production, inflating the change when compared to this year.

The drop in Volkswagen's sales reflect the company's switchover from the Rabbit to a new subcompact called the Golf.

Company-by-company sales for the Sept. 1-10 period and for the comparable period last year were:

—Ford, 39,328 this year, 32,865 last year.

—GM, 83,425 this year, 76,835 last year.

—Chrysler, 18,191 this year, 15,351 last year.

—American Motors Corp., 4,250 this year, 4,200 last year.

—American Honda Motor Co. Inc., 4,234 this year, 1,861 last year.

—Volkswagen of America Inc., 812 this year, 1,221 last year.

The AMC sales figures do not include Jeeps, the company's best-selling vehicle. Chrysler sales figures do not include the company's hot-selling minivans, which are classified as trucks.

Company-by-company sales for 1984 through Sept. 1 and for the comparable period last year, and the percentage change, were:

—Ford, 1,360,017 this year, 1,041,648 last year, up 30.6 percent.

—GM, 3,348,091 this year, 2,726,132 last year, up 22.8 percent.

—Chrysler, 684,792 this year, 587,468 last year, up 16.6 percent.

—American Motors, 141,800 this year, 133,160 last year, up 6.5 percent.

—Volkswagen, 57,713 this year, 57,583 last year, up 0.2 percent.

—Honda, 91,745 this year, 29,192 last year, up 214.3 percent.

Reagan Phones Husband Of Hospitalized Singer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — President Reagan asked Barbara Mandrell's husband to tell the country music singer that she is in his "thoughts and prayers" as she recovers from an automobile crash that killed the driver of the other vehicle.

Mark White, 19, was to be buried today in Lebanon, Tenn., about 20 miles southeast of the Nashville suburb of Hendersonville where his Subaru crossed into the path of Miss Mandrell's silver Jaguar Tuesday night.

Miss Mandrell was asleep Thursday when Reagan called her husband, Ken Dudney, from Air Force One as he traveled to Nashville to speak to a group of Tennessee business people and wish Grand Ole Opry star Roy Acuff a happy 81st birthday.

"God certainly was watching out for her and the children," Reagan told Dudney, according to White House spokesman Larry Speakes.

Dudney was in a suite adjoining his wife's room at Baptist Hospital when the president called.

He was "very grateful about the president's concern" and went to tell his wife when the seven-minute conversation ended, said Gil Cawood, a hospital spokesman.

Miss Mandrell, 35, had performed for Reagan once at the Kennedy Center in Washington.

"The doctors' prognosis is very, very favorable, but they aren't sure when she'll be released," said Jeannie Ghent, Miss Mandrell's publicist. "She ight need orthopedic work on her broken leg."

Miss Mandrell suffered a mild concussion and broken right leg in the accident.

An investigation into the accident will be complete in two to three days, said a Hendersonville police spokesman.

Opening lead: Ace of ♣.

If the missing diamonds are divided 3-3, there is no way declarer can avoid the loss of two tricks. The only chance is to hope for a normal 4-2 split, or even 5-1, with the honors divided between the two hands. But how do you play the suit?

One way is to guess right — if West has the doubleton honor, lead the jack; if East has it, cross to dummy and lead toward the jack. Another is to peek — but that's frowned upon in most circles.

Instead of trying to divine the position, why not play the odds and simply lead the ace of diamonds and another? Whichever defender has a doubleton honor must win the second diamond and present declarer with his contract by yielding a ruff-sluff. And, of course, you will drop the singleton honor. Quite simple, really.

If you guess right far more often than not, don't let anything we write change your methods. But if you are like the rest of us and have trouble guessing right even half the time, you might consider going with the odds.

With his square shape, North might have rebid one no trump at his second turn, rather than raise hearts. When he elected to support his partner, South was worth a jump to game on the strength of his diamond fit and sixth heart.

West led the ace of spades and continued the suit to his partner's king. Declarer ruffed the third spade, drew trumps in two rounds, then cleared the clubs by cashing the king-ace and ruffing the table's third club. Now all that remained was to try to limit the diamond losses to one.

Tale Of Two Cities: 'Hawaiian Heat,' 'Miami Vice'

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Poor Mac! This Chicago policeman is so depressed that he shanghaies his partner and takes off for the fun and sun of ... ABC's "Hawaiian Heat."
Like a couple of snowbirds, Mac and Andy immediately fall into the local action. In this case, a narcotics deal which involves the father of a beauty they meet as soon as they step off the plane, and the brother of a Honolulu police official who immediately takes them on as undercover agents.
Robert Ginty is Mac Riley and Jeff McCracken is Andy Senkowski in "Hawaiian Heat," which makes its debut in a two-hour movie special tonight. The regular one-hour series begins next Friday.

Mac is volatile and impulsive, tells terrible jokes, wears loud Hawaiian shirts, lives on the beach and has a friend who owns a helicopter tour service. All that's missing are Higgins, the dogs and the red Ferrari from "Magnum, P.I."
McCracken's character is harder to pin down. Sometimes he raises his voice, but mostly he just seems to fade into the wallpaper.
The movie special shows how Mac and Andy start out in Chicago (where it's icy cold and crime-ridden and very depressing) and end up in Honolulu (where it's warm and crime-ridden and lots of fun). Mac feels the tension and the final straw comes when he's passed over for promotion because his policeman father is in prison for taking a bribe.
Mac coldecks Andy and loads him aboard a jumbo jet, next stop

Honolulu. The first person they run into is Maggie, whose father is in narcotics trouble up to his lei. The second person is Irene (Tracy Scoggins), a beautiful blonde who runs a helicopter service, which comes in very handy when things get sticky.
At their first tourist stop Mac and Andy are caught in the middle of a gunfight (involving Maggie's father), wind up in jail, where they're recruited as undercover cops by Maj. Oshira (Mako), whose brother is the narcotics kingpin behind it all. You can pretty much figure out the rest of it.
The show is fast-paced, doesn't take itself too seriously, and the scenery is nice.
NBC's "Miami Vice" is another new detective series in which two disparate partners are joined together to fight crime.
In this case, it's Sonny Crockett (Don Johnson), a good ol' boy who lives on a boat with an alligator named Elvis, and Ricardo Tubbs (Philip Michael Thomas), an intense yet flamboyant black detective from New York who's looking for the Colombian drug dealer who killed his brother.

As undercover partners, Sonny and Ricardo will pique your interest. The pilot is intriguing and involving and reminiscent of the sassy flavor of "Hill Street Blues." Which is no accident. Anthony Yerkovich, the co-executive producer and writer, formerly produced "Hill Street."
The two-hour pilot will be on Sunday night, and then the series moves to Friday nights.
"Miami Vice" is a very violent show about the very violent drug scene in Florida. Reportedly, Miami would just as soon pass up the honor of the title and see the series move to Fort Lauderdale, or anywhere else. Earlier this summer, the show's technical adviser, Lt. Pete Cuccaro, resigned to protest a script he called "demeaning" to police officers.

You may also notice a bit of MTV in "Miami Vice." It has a music-video score and soundtrack that will be simulcast on FM radio.
"Miami Vice" is a more serious show than "Hawaiian Heat," and it's better written. The characters have attitudes and traits that seem ingrained, while those of "Hawaiian Heat" seemed to have been buttoned on along with the flowery shirt.

There is hope for "Hawaiian Heat," if it can be weaned away from its dependence on "Magnum, P.I." — and if something can be done to give Andy a personality.

New Cast Member

NEW YORK (AP) — British comedian Pamela Stephenson has joined the cast of NBC-TV's "Saturday Night Live."
In making the announcement, executive producer Dick Ebersol called Miss Stephenson "one of the world's most talented and experienced female sketch comedians."
Miss Stephenson, who starred in the British TV series, "Not the Nine O'Clock News," said she's been a fan of the late night comedy show for a long time.
"The live element is very exciting," she said. "It's the only way to do television."
The Auckland, New Zealand native will make her debut on the Oct. 6 season premiere of "Saturday Night Live."

They say that behind every great man there's a woman. But in this case it's ridiculous.

When rich, eccentric Edwina Cutwater died, she wanted her soul transported into the body of a beautiful woman. But due to a cosmic error, she's taken over the entire right side of Roger Cobb, instead.

Now, he's losing his job. He's losing his girlfriend. And he just can't get her out of his system.

No matter how hard he tries.

STEVE MARTIN · LILY TOMLIN

1984 PARADE

Saturday & Sunday,

1. RED OAK TOWNHOMES

Red Oak Townhomes, conveniently located on the outskirts of Greenville on State Road 1135 are the ideal home for the selective buyer. Built by Stanley Peadar Builders, Inc., these townhomes are in a peaceful country setting away from the hustle of a growing city, yet only five minutes away from shopping centers. Each townhome is uniquely decorated by professional designers, or you can make your own selections. Each unit contains a living room, dining area, kitchen, 1 1/2 baths, and two bedrooms. Fine design and excellent construction - characteristic of Stanley's building reputation - are built in to each unit, adding to the benefits of investment.

Stanley Peadar

2. #16 PALMETTO PLACE

Our model Aspen Unit at Cypress Creek Townhomes features a private courtyard entry into a living area well-lighted by large, insulated, Andersen Brand windows and skylight. The bright kitchen, with raised panel cabinets, may be entered through the garage, which features an automatic door opener. The master bedroom suite is downstairs; glass doors lead from this room, and the living room, to a private patio surrounded by stately old trees. This three bedroom unit also features a fireplace, 2 1/2 baths in 1,730 square feet.

3. 102 HEARTHSIDE DRIVE

We don't just mean smart "looking". A lot of thinking goes into a Tipton Builders, Inc. home. Its planning that makes the difference and we always build them with the family in mind. So is the case with this lovely three bedroom, 2 1/2 bath Georgian home located on a beautiful wooded lot in Club Pines. Graceful colonial mouldings enhance the elegance of this plan. Experiences true Southern living while you are entertaining in your large paneled great room with colonial fireplace, relaxing on your screen porch, or cooking something special in your modern kitchen. The master bedroom features two large walk-in closets, and a full ceramic bathroom. There is plenty of closet and storage space in this house with a permanent stairs leading to a completely floored attic.

Ed Tipton

4. 502 BREMERTON

502 Bremerton represents the distinctive manner in which Stuart Hardy Construction Company blends the warmth of colonial architecture with the convenience of modern materials. Our presentation has 4 bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, all formal areas, and a private family room with a fireplace. The exterior is brick veneered with buff colored mortar, a color typical of the late 1700's. It is also accented by three chimneys, a water table at the second floor level, and authentic wooden foundation vents throughout. The interior uses nine foot ceilings, hardwood flooring in the formal areas, cushioned vinyl in the kitchen, breakfast, and laundry room and carpet in all other areas. A wet bar is accessible to the family room. 502 Bremerton has made use of all energy efficient technology and is a true example of our logo: Stuart Hardy Construction Co. "A HOME CRAFTSMAN"

Stuart Hardy

5. 504 DAVENTRY DRIVE

Gaylor Builders, Inc. is owned and operated by Mont D. Gaylor and is located on Commerce Street, specializing in custom homes and commercial projects. Gaylor Builders has enjoyed continuous growth over the past decade, providing a special kind of service to home buyers of discretion and featuring many new innovative ideas that help meet the needs of today's market. The company entry in this years parade is a two story brick home located at 504 Daventry Drive in Bedford Subdivision.

Mont Gaylor

6. 505 DAVENTRY DRIVE

Almost perfect! That's what can be said about this traditional home with a unique interior. Good looks, good use of space, excellent floor plan, abundant storage and attic space, and just the right finishing touches make this house one of our finest on the market. The foyer says "welcome" with its beautiful wood parquet floors and impressive chandelier, setting a theme of casual elegance for the adjacent living room and dining room. French doors lead to the family room - spacious, yet cozy - in tones of cinnamon, tan and navy. A roomy kitchen holds plenty of work and storage area aside from the quaint adorned by a bay window. The master bedroom, one other bedroom, and bath are located downstairs off of a hallway. Upstairs, two more spacious bedrooms and one bath complete the house. The bath and one bedroom are accented interestingly by the dormer windows, creating an interesting angle for the play of light. Storage space is abundant upstairs with double access to a spacious attic. Yes, you must see this house to believe it.

7. 511 DAVENTRY DRIVE

This year William B. Everett, Jr., Inc. has two entries in the annual Parade of Homes. At 511 Daventry Drive and 603 Daventry Drive, Bedford Subdivision, you'll find three and four bedroom homes of Williamsburg design. With authentic colors, colonial wall-papers, and combinations of hardwood flooring and carpeting, you'll agree these homes are built with a "designer touch". Careful attention is paid to planning and detail and both homes include the energy efficient features important to today's home buyers. You'll agree Colonial Williamsburg never looked so good!

Ben Everett

8. 603 DAVENTRY DRIVE

William B. Everett, Jr., Inc. is owned by Ben Everett of Greenville, N.C. as president, and has been in business for ten years. With offices in Robersonville, N.C. they specialize in eighteenth century residential and commercial construction. Mr. Everett is a member of National Home Builders Association and the Greenville-Pitt County Home Builders Association where he is currently serving on the Board of Directors. William B. Everett, Jr., Inc. is a past Parade of Homes winner.

9. 611 QUEEN ANNE ROAD

Located on a beautiful corner lot, this two story white brick Georgian home built by Bowser Construction Company is certainly one of the finest Greenville homes built during the 1980's. Entering through double doors into a spacious two story foyer bordered at the top on one side by a paragon window and balcony on the other, this spacious home flows into a rich custom paneled study. A splendid family room opens into the foyer, kitchen and screened porch. These rooms create family living space unequalled in quality, livability and spaciousness. The kitchen and breakfast room have a large bay window and painted American maple for splash backs, a greenhouse window and existing built-in features. A mudroom and utility area lead into a fabulous garage and onto a side porch through stained glass salvaged from an earlier Pitt County Courthouse. The dining room features its own bay window and wall to ceiling molding giving it a modern but warm ambience that leads into the formal living room and back to the foyer. The downstairs master bedroom features cathedral ceilings with pleated tongue and groove construction, sky-high colors and again wall to ceiling decorative mirrors. The master bath features a sunken bath located in a greenhouse that projects into the backyard, a grand shower and amenity room. Features: A walk-in closet that connects both to the bathroom and master suite offers not only storage and storage for all seasons but built-in dressers. The upstairs offers four comfortable bedrooms for guests and children, baths and a playroom with skylights. Truly one of Greenville's distinguished homes built with the old-fashioned quality, soundness and crafts- manship.

Merle Bowser

10. 1243 ASH CIRCLE

The drive from Greenville to Treetops takes only five minutes, yet the contrast is startling. For here you'll find a special place unique in all of Greenville, designed for special people. Treetops is a private place because traffic is reduced almost exclusively to home owners and guests. Quiet cul-de-sacs add to the livability, privacy and security. The floor plans include both a one level and two level design. There are two bedroom plans with two baths and three bedroom plans with two and a half baths.

Tom Chapin

11. 110 HIDDEN BRANCHES CLOSE

Treetops has become one of Greenville's most desirable neighborhoods. When you visit, you'll see why. Treetops is a neighborhood for active professionals. There's no yardwork or exterior maintenance. That gives our residents more time to relax in a quiet setting with plenty of trees. Treetops is designed to enhance the good life, a retreat you can come home to at the end of your busy day. Two generous bedrooms with two full baths, large closets and ample outside storage with deck or patio.

Tom Chapin

12. 105 CAROL COURT

Combining the style of the Victorian Era with today's construction technology, Carolina East Construction has recreated the American dream of an individually owned home. The Davenport house consists of 3 bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, living and dining rooms, spacious kitchen with utility room, and large open foyer. This energy-efficient house exceeds E300 program, utilizing Anderson windows, Peachtree doors, and a Rudd heat pump system. Come visit the Davenport house and discover that style, function and quality are still greatly significant with Carolina East Construction.

13. 1318 LARGO COURT

Outstanding in design and unique in features, a bit of the past has been captured in this new home built by Myles Cartrette. Timeless beauty and charm of wood clapboard, dormers and brick walks are enhanced by the wooded setting of Tucker Estates II. An arched front gable supported by stately columns and chippendale rails grace the entry foyer. Williamsburg accents are carried through the great room with fireplace, formal dining room, 3 bedrooms, 2 baths and large country kitchen highlighted by hand-painted tile and french door access to walled patio.

Myles Cartrette

14. 1805 WHITE HOLLOW DRIVE

Defense Secretary To Tell Parliament About Cruiser Belgrano's War Sinking

By ED BLANCHE
 Associated Press Writer
 LONDON (AP) — Britain's defense secretary is scheduled to testify in Parliament about the Falklands War sinking of the Argentine cruiser General Belgrano, which Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has been accused of ordering torpedoed to wreck a peace initiative.

Conservative legislator Sir Anthony Kershaw, chairman of the powerful all-party Select Committee on Foreign Affairs, said Thursday night that Defense Secretary Michael Heseltine will answer questions in a closed-door session after Parliament reconvenes from its summer recess Oct. 22.

He said the allegation that Mrs. Thatcher ordered a Royal Navy submarine to torpedo the cruiser May 2, 1982, to ruin the Peruvian peace initiative "is a very, very important political question that my committee wants to go into."

The decision to question Heseltine underlined growing parliamentary and public concern about the Belgrano, the biggest warship sunk in combat since World War II.

The 10,800-ton ship, a former U.S. Navy cruiser, was hit by two torpedoes fired by the nuclear-powered submarine HMS Conqueror. It sunk with the loss of 368 crew members in the first naval action of the 74-day war.

It was the biggest casualty toll from any action in the South Atlantic war, in which 712 Argentinians and 255 Britons were killed.

Britain's later victory over Argentina helped her Conservatives win a second term in the June 1983 general election.

Mrs. Thatcher has denied she ordered the attack to wreck the developing peace initiative. She has said the attack was to eliminate one of the Argentina's major warships threatening Britain's far-flung task force.

But contradictory and sometimes vague statements by Mrs. Thatcher and senior ministers have fueled the controversy.

The foreign affairs committee's decision to investigate came after the government's most persistent critic, Labor Party legislator Tam Dalyell, produced classified documents leaked by a Defense Ministry official that Dalyell said indicated a cover-up.

The documents included a secret memo advising Heseltine and other ministers to withhold information in answers to parliamentary questions about changes in the "rules of engagement" that led to the sinking of the Belgrano.

The memo noted: "A full list of changes would provide more information than ministers have been prepared to reveal so far about the Belgrano affair."

Dalyell charged Aug. 19 that the government decided to make all Argentine ships in the South Atlantic legitimate targets on May 2, 1982, only hours before the cruiser was torpedoed.

Until then, British forces were only permitted to attack Argentine ships and planes inside the 150-mile "total exclusion zone" London had declared around the Falkland Islands invaded by Argentina on April 2, 1982.

But the government did not announce the change in the rules of engagement until May 7, five days after the Belgrano was sunk. The Belgrano was hit 150 miles outside the exclusion zone.

The document, Dalyell charged, showed that "ministers have been caught red-handed in the act of deception."

Clive Ponting, 38, an assistant secretary at the Defense Ministry, has been charged with violating the Official Secrets Act in connection with the leaking of the documents and is to stand trial.

Ministers have told Parliament that the Conqueror did not locate the Belgrano until May 2. But the submarine's captain, Cmdr. Christopher Wreford-Brown, has said he shadowed the cruiser for more than 30 hours before the attack order was radioed from London.

The Observer newspaper last Sunday claimed that Sir John Nott, Britain's defense secretary during the war, lied to the House of Commons when he said the Belgrano was closing on British ships when it was attacked.

David Owen, leader of the centrist Social Democrats, last week called on Mrs. Thatcher to reveal all details of the Belgrano sinking "to avoid a long, drawn-out, acrimonious, bitter dispute."

He charged that the government was "in the early stages of a Watergate" because it had "locked itself into a depressing cycle of error, half-truths and deliberate falsehood."

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, SEPT., 15, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime is good for attending to whatever your practical needs happen to be, and then to get both men and women to aid you in extending your present interests.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make sure you keep practical promises you've made during the day, and tonight steer clear of some unknown chance acquaintance.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get into those personal tasks you have had little time for recently, and they are soon behind you. Find better ways of gaining desires.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be more practical in going after private aims and you gain them more easily now. Buy some nice gift for your closest tie.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Good day to see as many pals as possible and improve the relationships, but tonight is best spent at home.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Handle those small tasks that will gain you the approval of bigwigs and you gain favor. Forget about going out tonight and spending money.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have many little tasks to handle before you can get into that new course of action you have in mind.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Early get into business affairs that are important and study your accounting so that you feel more secure.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Maintain a cooperative spirit and the day will go right for you. If others want you to do what is not to your liking, just refuse.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Let your work come first today and gain the help of those around you who comprehend your aims.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You are feeling aces in the morning and get into creative work with enthusiasm with fine results following.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make sure you do nothing that can disturb your family today since their ideas and yours are quite different.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You are able to put your ideas across to partners so that they will agree and give you backing for your proposals.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be very much down to earth and should have the kind of training to add to this natural bent. The career in business should start early before your progeny builds up all kinds of prejudice and then could have much trouble in dealing with others.

Potholes Curb Mail

MATTOON, Ill. (AP) — Rain and sleet may not stop the mail carrier from making his appointed rounds, but really bad potholes have swallowed up mail delivery to a rural area near here.

Mattoon Postmaster Leonard Finnegan said that mail service was being stopped along a two-mile, lakeside road near this central Illinois community because of the pothole problem.

"It's the most horrible thing you ever saw," Finnegan said. "My rural carriers have threatened to file grievances if they have to drive that road."

Maintenance of the road is the subject of a lawsuit between the city of Mattoon and Paradise Township.

Navy Knew Of Oil Leak

BREMERTON, Wash. (AP) — according to Navy statements and reports. In addition, poor maintenance and an overworked crew may have contributed to a ship fire that killed six seamen last November.

Top Navy officers knew before they sent the aircraft carrier USS Ranger to sea in July 1983 that it was leaking thousands of gallons of oil a day.
