KEY TO EXPLOSIONS? — Egyptian Defense Minister Field Marshal Abdel-Halim Abu-Ghazala told reporters today that a mine found by the British in the Suez Gulf appears new and may be linked to explosions that damaged

18 ships in the area. If true, the mine would be the first found after a month-long, seven-nation search. Egypt suspects Libya planted the mine. (AP Laserphoto)

Albemarle Bridge May Be Dropped

Officials of the Norfolk Southern Corp. say the firm may abandon its railroad bridge over Albemarle Sound in two years. But Neil Monroe of the firm's Atlanta office said the closing would have "absolutely no effect whatsoever" on rail traffic through Greenville.

Spokesmen for the railroad said Tuesday that it would cost Norfolk Southern $17 million over the next 15 years to keep the bridge open. The bridge, they said, is used only three times a week.

However, the wooden structure, built in 1910, is the most direct route from Eastern North Carolina to the port at Norfolk, and grain dealers and shippers of other commodities in the area have voiced objections to the railroad abandoning the bridge.

Marguerite Laughinghouse, owner of Swindell Grain Co. in Pantego, said she and other grain dealers would have to ship grain nearly 400 miles to reach Norfolk if the bridge is closed. Now, she said, the trip is 123 miles.

The Interstate Commerce Commission would have to give its approval before the bridge, the longest railroad bridge in the state, could be abandoned.

Monroe said this morning that the Albemarle Sound bridge now carries only "three locals a week, which could be re-routed."

As for traffic through Greenville, Monroe said the bridge closing would not affect service. "Greenville would have the same number of trains ... the same service."

He explained that most of the freight traveling through Greenville goes to Raleigh, or to New Bern, Morehead City, Aurora and Plymouth.

Zoning Board Denies Effort To Change 'Family' Definition

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission unanimously declined to change the "family" definition governing the number of non-related persons allowed to live in a household during its regular monthly meeting Tuesday night.

The request to up the allowable number of non-related persons from three to four was made to the commission by local attorney Stephen Horne on behalf of a client he said was involved in development of student housing.

According to Planning and Zoning Director Bobby Roberson, the current "family" definition was enacted in 1981 in response to a Tar River Neighborhood Association request, and places no limit on the number of people related by blood, marriage or adoption, but limits non-related live-togethers to three on a city-wide basis.

TRNA President Inez Fridley voiced opposition to Horne's request at the meeting, saying that she felt the 1981 decision was "made in good faith" and should not be changed. "That decision did a whole lot to alleviate parking and congestion problems in the area and we'd like it to stay that way," he said. Mrs. Fridley's comments were supported by a man who said he was a 41-year resident of the Tar River neighborhood area. The resident said he, too, was worried about congestion and that increasing the number of "family" members would further add to the problem. "We've had three occurrences within the last two, three weeks where three or four children were almost run over. These roads are too narrow to take this kind of traffic," he said.

City Councilman Louis Clark also attended the meeting and told the commission that the city "specifically" approved the 1981 measure with the Tar River Neighborhood Association and other like residential areas in mind. He added on a personal note that the commission might consider looking into developing different ordinances to accommodate development outside heavily residential areas. "We could keep the flavor of existing neighborhoods, but give help to the people who need it," he said.

In other business, the board heard and voted on a request to approve the preliminary plat of Executive Park, a proposed development that would be located directly across from Pitt County Memorial Hospital and on the south side of Stantonsburg Road. Although Chairman Ric Miller counted the vote in favor of the plat, there has been some question as to what the outcome of the vote actually was. Planning and Zoning officials are re-checking the commissioners' positions and will announce the board's decision later.

Preliminary plats of Chesterfield and East Gate were approved at the meeting. The Chesterfield development would be located off Chesterfield Court in the Tucker Farms-Shenandoah area and involves the building of 20 townhouse units on a 1.76 acre site. The proposed East Gate development would be located at the southeast corner of the intersection of Greenville Boulevard, SE, and N.C. 33, across from Rivergate Shopping Center, and in-

Hospital Board Recognizes Emergency Medical Personnel

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Memorial Hospital trustees last night honored Emergency Medical Services personnel of the county during N.C. EMS Week. Several representatives of local rescue squads visited with the board prior to its regular monthly meeting. Also honored by the board was Don Lassiter, a hospital facilities management employee credited with saving the hospital hundreds of dollars with his cost-saving ideas and action. Lassiter is the mechanic assigned to maintain x-ray film processors formerly maintained through expensive contracts. He's also using a silver recovery process which recoups money for the hospital and has proposed "mixing chemical ourselves," which will save the hospital $13,500 this year. Lassiter was given a $500 gift with the honor.

It was announced that the hospital will within the near future have a patient advocate. Nursing administrator Jo Twilley is taking this job.

It was announced that administrators Fred Brown and Roy Clark are working with members of the medical staff on an American Medical Association project dubbed "Economic Grand Rounds." In this program physicians review patient care from a cost effectiveness viewpoint.

The board voted to enter into contract with the Arthur Anderson Company for the development of a long-range plan for computer utilization in the hospital. The cost was not stated.

A planning retreat for the board was set for Oct. 23.

Capital equipment expenditures approved were buying a cabinet x-ray system for pathology for $14,100; and buying an upgraded cysto table unit for radiology for $80,000 for radiology.

Persons approved for promotion from provisional to full active medical staff privileges were Dr. David A. Ames in psychiatry; Dr. James L. Finley in pathology; Dr. Nicholas Patrone in internal medicine; and Dr. Mercedes de Rivers in psychiatry.

Dr. Ed Monroe, representing the ECU School of Medicine, said negotiations are underway with persons considered candidates for positions as directors of the rehabilitation center and the radiation therapy center.

Reagan Reveals Farm Credit Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is offering a program of loan guarantees and debt deferral to ease the credit squeeze on financially stressed farmers, but Democrats in Congress say it is little more than a political gimmick.

The White House announcement of the farm debt program came Tuesday, just two days before the president planned to travel to Iowa for a campaign swing through the farm belt. Reagan discounted the political implications of the program, however, and characterized it as an effort to provide farmers "more secure hope for the future."

Democratic members of Congress disagreed.

"This is nothing more than eleventh-hour pandering to a constituency Mr. Reagan has ignored for the past four years. It's too little, too late and the American farmer knows it," said Rep. Bill Alexander of Arkansas, the fourth-ranking Democrat in the House.

The program, as outlined by Reagan and the Agriculture Department, calls for:

— The Farmers Home Administration, the lender of last resort to producers, to defer up to 25 percent or $100,000 of the unpaid principal and interest on government loans for five years.

— The FmHA to make available $630 million to 650 million to guarantee repayment of loans made to farmers by private lenders. The loan guarantees would be directed at farmers unable to repay their existing debts and facing bankruptcy.

However, private lenders must first agree to write off a portion of the farmer's loan before the FmHA would back repayment of 90 percent of the remaining debt. The money for the new loan guarantees is included in a budget bill pending before a congressional conference committee.

— The FmHA to contract with local banks and private lending institutions to speed up processing of the federal loans.

— Financial management experts to work with FmHA committees in each county, which currently determine who is eligible for government loans, to provide advice to farmers in developing individual plans for restructuring their debts.

Farm credit problems have become a growing concern in agriculture as total farm debt has soared from $166 billion in 1980 to $215 billion.

Cutter Prepares For Sea Transfer

By R. GREGORY NOKES
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard cutter Sherman was steaming today toward an international rendezvous in the Bering Sea, where Soviet authorities were supposed to turn over five American seamen who had been held for more than a week.

John Hughes, the State Department spokesman, said the cutter could reach the rendezvous spot at midday, and that the actual transfer of the Americans could take place today or Thursday. He said the time of day and weather conditions would be a factor in the timing.

The Sherman is a 378-foot vessel that was diverted from its routine patrol in the Bering Sea to the exchange area located between St. Lawrence Island and the Chukotsk Peninsula.

Hughes said it wasn't determined where the Americans, all residents of Homer, Alaska, would be taken once they were free. But he said the Soviets also would be delivering their boat, a supply vessel called the Frieda K, and the Americans might want to resume their mission that was interrupted when they were taken into custody on Wednesday.

The Freida K was ferrying supplies to remote locations in American waters when it apparently lost its way on Wednesday. Hughes said the Americans sailed in the direction of another ship to ask directions but, unbeknownst to them, the other ship was a Soviet naval vessel.

"The vessel to which they sailed turned out to be a Soviet warship ... Instead of getting directions, they got arrested," Hughes said.

Hughes said the State Department has lodged an official protest with Moscow over its handling of the incident.

Hughes said officials at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow had been allowed just three telephone calls to the Americans.

Page-Fleming Vows Said On Sept. 9

Lee Ellen Fleming of Greenville and Kim Page of Hamilton were united in marriage Sept. 9 at three o'clock in a candlelight ceremony at the First Free Will Baptist Church in Greenville. The Rev. Al Davis officiated at the double ring ceremony. Organ music was provided by Eloise Jackson. Connie Dixon was vocalist.

Ushers were Mike Fleming of Dumfries, Va., and Lang Bailey of Robersonville, cousins of the bride. The wedding was directed by Lyle Davis.

The bride is the daughter of Myrtle Fleming of Greenville and the late Bobby Fleming. The bridegroom is the son of Russell J. Page of Hamilton.

Gwen Waters of Raleigh was honor attendant for her sister, Robin Waters of Raleigh, niece of the bride, was junior bridesmaid.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother and escorted by her uncle, Raymond Fleming of Dumfries, Va. Davis Leggett was best man.

The bride wore a formal gown of white imported chantilly lace over peau de soie. The fitted bodice was accented at the shoulders with sheer point d'esprit lace embellished with silk Venise lace with matching lace appliques which extended over the bodice front to the modified natural waistline. The sheer Renaissance styled sleeves were fashioned in the point d'esprit with fitted cuffs overlaid in chantilly lace. The skirt had a cathedral train. She wore an illusion veil attached to a tiara headpiece accented with Venise lace flowers beaded with pearls. She carried a silk nosegay of white pixie carnations, pink roses, stephanotis interspersed with baby's breath and bridal satin streamers.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church and was given by the bride's mother. Aunts of the bride of Robersonville, Elsie Bemis served wedding cake and Anna James poured punch.

The couple will live in Williamston.

Use Quality Plants When Decorating

NEW YORK (AP) — "You cannot merely fill a room with plants and expect it to look like anything other than a greenhouse," says an expert on interior decorating and designing with plants.

Fashion dictates the way houseplants are used in interiors, just as it guides the shifting trends in decoration, according to Donald Vining, associate editor of Metropolitan Home magazine, adding that today's trend is toward quality rather than quantity.

In the Victorian Age, interiors were loaded with palms, ferns and aspidistras; while in the '20s and '30s, live plants were replaced by bouquets of fresh flowers, Vining points out. Interiors of the '50s usually displayed a rubber tree plant or a split-leaf philodendron growing on a slab of bark, and in the late '60s and early '70s, a renewed profusion of plants recalled Victorian excesses.

In those years, "the increased numbers of plants were a sign of concern for the web of life, the environment and living things in general — especially green ones," says Vining in a chapter of a new book titled, "Ortho's Complete Guide to Successful Houseplants."

"Today, we still like to see plants in our rooms, but we've moved away from the fussy, care-intensive look. Instead, the aim is to make some sense out of our plant collections," he says.

"In place of 'every room a jungle,' it's 'every room a garden,' an effect that requires planning, forethought and selection. Commonly, there is one big plant per room, but one with the space-filling ability and the structural force of a steel girder."

Vining suggests flowering plants may also be included, but they tend to be treated as bouquets and arranged on tables.

The "statement plant" or the "architectural plant," as it is occasionally called, usually has equal status with the other elements of the design, he says.

"In the contemporary use of plants in design, the overall shape of the plant, the texture and the color are as important as the fact that it's a plant," says Vining. "The only substitute that comes close to plants is sculpture." People want plants in their homes for a number of reasons, he says. For one, they create a dynamic three-dimensional shape, and within that shape, the parts of the plant form a balanced though not overly precise pattern.

Vining says part of the rationale for including plants in a design scheme is the shock value.

"When you consider it, bringing the great outdoors inside is a bold notion in today's high-tech society," he observes. "Another aspect of the shock value is the contrast between natural and slick furnishings."

Finally, Vining adds, there is the issue of life itself.

"Plants add life and warmth to interiors, and the fact that they are living things enhances their contribution to our spaces."

"If shape alone were the primary consideration, sculpture would suffice. If pattern were the only requirement, plastic plants or dried flowers would do. If contrast were the major design intent, decorative accessories would suffice. Plants remind us of the wilderness and of the beauty and diversity of this incredible planet."

Vining says decorating with plants is not the same as growing plants, but often they are displayed where they will grow well with no thought as to where they will look the best.

Vining has several suggestions for decorating a home with plants, including:

— Isolate a single plant from its fellows, spotlight it, put it in a showy pot and set it on a stand. "Any accessory looks more important when it is placed on a base."

— Consider placing the plant's growing container inside a cachepot. "The ideal cachepot is only large enough to create a balance between pot and plant."

— Use only one plant variety in a hanging garden and create a spectacular effect. "Unattractive arrangements are most likely to result from an attempt to combine plants."

— Remember an unplanned assortment of plants sitting on a windowsill does not make a garden. "More often than not it makes a mess."

— Emphasize a look that your furniture or color scheme already suggests when planning a centerpiece for a dining or occasional table. "Give your plants as much thought as you would a menu."

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

When they talk about space travel, the good news is that sometime in this century, people will be able to travel on a shuttle to the moon.

The bad news is their luggage will end up on Mars.

Wherever travelers gather, the subject eventually gets around to lost luggage. They are not pretty stories. Like the Olympic cyclist medal winner whose bicycle did not make it home with him . . . not to mention his medals. Or the cardinal who flew on a commuter plane from Chicago to Dubuque, Iowa, and watched the luggage holding his vestments being unloaded in Galena.

And you don't want to know what happened to poor Roselyn Gordon of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Earlier this year, Roselyn went to Pittsburgh for the wedding of her grandson. It was a shame the wedding wasn't held in Canada, because that's where her luggage went.

The agent told her if she did not receive her luggage in 24 hours, she would receive $35 for "new underwear." The luggage did not arrive and "new underwear" was the least of her worries. All she had to wear to the wedding were the slack suit and sneakers she had traveled in. The family tried to come to the rescue. But the mother of the bride was too short and too thin. Finally, they found something to fit . . . a blue maternity dress. They washed out the spots and dried them with a hair dryer and Roselyn marched down the aisle between her two grandsons wearing a maternity dress and a pair of gold bedroom slippers.

End of the story? Grow up. As they were eating dinner the waitress spilled salad all over the gold bedroom slippers and the next time around she spilled champagne down the maternity dress. It was probably nothing personal . . . just an opinion.

My husband is in the process of filling out a two-page questionnaire on his luggage that sat in Dalles for a month while he was vacationing in New Guinea. They want every item in the suitcase listed along with when it was purchased, where purchased and the original cost. The clothes could go out of style before he gets all the questions answered. There is no place on the form for the clothes he had to buy in Port Moresby where they stock clothes for men 5-4 or under (he's 5-11). Or how he had to endure smart remarks like, "Are you on your way to flood?"

Dear Abby

Home Improvements At Son's Make Mess Of Family Relations

DEAR ABBY: Our son, his wife and our only grandchildren live in a distant state, and we visit them once a year for 10 days. We plan this trip far in advance to suit their convenience. It's our vacation.

After we had been in their lovely home for five days, we were informed that the painters were coming in at 7:30 the next morning to start painting the downstairs. They told us that good painters were hard to get, and they had to take them when they were available.

Well, we made the best of it, but the rest of our trip was ruined because the place was a mess and the entire house smelled of paint.

We are not demanding parents, Abby, but since they told us when we could come, and with 365 days in the year, don't you think they could have had the painters while we weren't there? We visit only once a year, and it's the only chance we have to see our grandchildren.

Are we wrong to feel hurt? We sacrificed to put this son through medical school.

HURT PARENTS

DEAR HURT: Are you wrong to feel hurt? No. Good painters may be hard to get, but they are easier to replace than good parents. Your son and his wife should be ashamed of themselves.

DEAR ABBY: I am so furious I can barely write this. Recently, after my husband suffered a heart attack, several non-family members entered the intensive care unit through deceitful means—even after visiting hours. Fortunately, the head nurse realized what was happening and she put a stop to it.

Abby, please allow me to address these well-meaning friends through your column.

If you have a friend in an intensive care unit of a hospital, do not sneak in to pay him a visit. He's much too sick to enjoy your company. Instead, show your concern and friendship by helping his family. Some suggestions: Offer to run some errands, do some yard work, sit with younger children, take a batch of cookies or a covered dish to his house, etc.

Please print this, Abby. It needs to be seen by many.

NAMELESS IN MARION, ARK.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

DEAR ABBY: I am sick of hearing women complain because they don't think they're getting enough child support. My husband was paying his ex-wife $270 a month child support (one child). Last month the court increased the amount to $330!

We are living in a cramped trailer and can barely make ends meet. I just had a baby and most of our baby's things are hand-me-downs from friends.

Meanwhile, my husband's ex-wife lives high on the hog in a $100,000 condo in Houston, drives a Mercedes and shops at Neiman's.

Don't you think the courts should investigate the lifestyles of the people involved before increasing the child support money?

MAD IN DALLAS

DEAR MAD: They should. And some do. But with inflation, the cost of leaving increases along with everything else.

The Problem With Acid Rain

'Good Living'

The instant millionaire is necessarily a rare bird — too many of them, and a million might buy a hamburger. The old-fashioned kind, wherein the magic number is frequently earned over a period of years, is still more numerous, but sometimes the dividing line between "instant" and the "traditional" appears a trifle blurred.

There's quite a difference between a big state lottery winner's status as an instant millionaire and, say, Michael Jordan, whose basketball talents have propelled him into the ranks of the millionaires.

Professional athletics and entertainment appear relatively fertile fields for the quick megabuck role; professional athletes seem particularly prominent in public attention for what seems to be a quick jump into a lifestyle of munificence.

It really wasn't all that "instant". Their talents and physical resources, often shaped prior to high school, are further sharpened during that four-year span and they are lucky if a college coach is willing to invest more time in their development.

By the time they qualify for consideration as a play-for-pay athlete, their ranks have been decimated again and again by attrition. Only a pitiful few of the original dreamers reach the point of earning a "good living," and they had to earn it.

You can believe Michael Jordan's new status of wealth in the basketball field is not the result of luck or chance.

Entertainers who strike it rich are on the same track: long years of "paying their dues," and then for the few who qualify, fame and fortune.

Success

At last we finally have something concrete to back those appraisals. Head Start was, and is, more than a pipe dream of ivory-tower educators, social workers and cheering advocates on the sidelines.

The Ypsilanti, Mich., experiment involving a group of 123 poor black children — about half of whom were enrolled in intensive preschool education classes 22 years ago — has born fruit, and the results published.

Those results tell us there is reasonable evidence lives can be changed by pre-school education efforts. Fifty-eight of the 123 toddlers involved attended classes for 2½ hours, five mornings a week. The remaining children waited to enter kindergarten and first grade at normal ages. That's the background.

This is what researchers found when those children became 19-year-olds.

Fifty-nine percent of the preschool grads were employed — compared with 32 percent of the rest; two-thirds were high school grads — compared with just under half of the comparison group; 38 percent had enrolled in college or post-secondary vocational school — compared with 21 percent of the others.

On a test of functional competence, 61 percent of the preschool group scored at or above average, while only 38 percent of the others did as well. Fewer than a third of the preschool group had ever been arrested or detained, compared with half the others; the teen-age pregnancy rate was almost half as great for girls from the preschool group as for their peers; 18 percent of the preschool group were on welfare, compared with 32 percent of the others.

(The findings go on and on, but the message is a continuing song of hope. It was wholly reasonable. Doting grandparents will brag to all who listen that their three-year-olds have minds "like a sponge" with no limit to their learning.)

Another note for the pragmatists who are thinking in terms of dollars-and-cents: the program cost $1,589 per child two decades ago, or $4,818 in 1981 dollars. But the savings in special education alone (in 1981 dollars) was $7,082 each, say the researchers. And when savings from reduced welfare and crime and increased earnings are factored in, society benefits from a 7-to-1 payoff on that year or pre-school education.

Head Start was a part of LBJ's War on Poverty. For budgetary reasons it was scaled back, but the findings suggest greater economizing by expanding the program.

The Ypsilanti report comes at a time when North Carolina's education system is hunting a better way of accomplishing its purposes, and at the same time offers a course of action which did live up to its promises in the very recent past.

Diet Goes Unchanged

BUFFALO, N.Y. — When President Reagan visited this Democratic stronghold last Wednesday, his political managers were not diverted by Walter F. Mondale's deficit taunts from what one Reagan operative calls "a diet of pure mush." That diet was unchanged even though Mondale two days earlier had challenged Reagan to come up with his own deficit-reduction scheme. The president's first campaigning since then reflected hard White House decisions neither to offer specific programs nor cut up Mondale.

So mushy a Reagan perceptibly diminished the enthusiasm of both the candidate and his big crowds in

FAYETTEVILLE — In the television spot, UNC football coach Dick Crum stands alongside one of his favorite fishing spots and warns that acid rain is killing "everything."

Dr. Denis DuBay, a plant biologist studying the effects of acid rain on crops at N.C. State finds that TV spot aggravating because after two years of study he's fairly certain that acid rain is NOT killing everything. "Acid rain is one of our most serious environmental problems but it is not the most serious problem we have, it may not even be the most serious air pollution problem we have," he told the Fayetteville chapter of the Sierra Club recently.

Scientists studying acid rain have found that it does not appear to have any effect on crop yields. "I would be surprised if any farmer suffered any damage at all from acid rain," he said.

Acid rain is created when sulfur dioxide and nitrogen oxide — pollutants which come from power plants and automobiles — mix in the atmosphere with precipitation. The result is a highly acidic rain that does what you'd expect acid to do when sprinkled on trees, rivers and buildings.

Coach Crum is correct when he warns that his favorite fishing streams are being harmed seriously by acid rain, DuBay said. As acid rain has fallen on lakes and streams, it has increased the acidity of those bodies of water to the point where fish can't live in them. Acid rain has also been blamed for serious problems in our forests and in the fabled forests of West Germany.

But acid rain "probably is not going to be a big problem with regards to crops," DuBay said. There are several reasons. One of the initial concerns about acid rain was its effect on the and therefore on agriculture. Large portions of North Carolina are covered with soil types that are fairly sensitive to acid. Also, acid rain causes nutrient leaching and changes the natural process of plant decomposition. But scientists now feel, DuBay said, that the farmer's intensive management of his soil is enough to correct any changes wrought by acid rain. "If the acidity gets too high, it would be easy to add lime to reduce it, although that would create some added costs," he said.

Another concern stemmed from the acid's contact with the plant. If acid rain is chewing up trees, imagine what it can do to a head of lettuce. But that fear has been abated by tests which show that the acid isn't affecting the crop yields. "Crops are only in the ground for one season. They're not left out in the rain year after year. They're not exposed to the acid rain for very long. Also, crops grow in the summer, when there isn't very much rain."

DuBay said that under conditions currently existing in the eastern United States, one of the most troubled areas in the world so far as acid rain is concerned, only one variety of soybean appears to be having problems.

This is not to say that farmers don't have any concerns when it comes to air pollution. DuBay said he considers ozone pollution to be a greater general air pollution concern than acid rain, and especially a greater concern for farmers. Ozone, which results from natural and man-made hydrocarbons released into the air, "is much more toxic to plants than is acid rain," he said.

Federal funding of acid rain research has been stepped up dramatically in the past several years and although DuBay is confident that there's good news in the crops department, he says further study will be conducted both in North Carolina and nationwide to assure that acid rain doesn't cause subtle problems for farmers which scientists haven't yet discovered.

Sticking With The Issues

Tip O'Neill has criticized Fritz Mondale for not running a hard-hitting personal campaign against President Reagan.

It's shaken the Mondale advisers and they had a meeting with the Democratic candidate to loosen him up.

"Fritz, you have to take the gloves off and show you're damn mad about what's going on in this county."

"I want to stick with the issues."

"The hell with the issues. Tomorrow you're going to address the steel workers and you have to prove you're one of them."

"How do I do that?"

"For one thing you might take off your suit coat when you talk to them."

"Gosh, I hate to take off my suit coat. I could get my white shirt dirty."

"Forget your shirt. And you could loosen your tie and open the button on your collar."

"In front of all the media?"

"We want you to look like a regular guy. Our surveys indicate that you're coming off stuffy and uptight."

"I don't care how I look. I believe this election should be decided on the massive budget deficits, waste in defense and tax breaks that go to the rich."

"We know what you believe. We also know what the voters are looking for. They're watching your style — and you don't have any."

"Of course I've got style. I may not be as exciting as Ronald Reagan, but I'm very presidential, and when the people listen to what I have to say they'll forget his charisma."

"That's the problem, Fritz. They're not listening. You're putting the voters to sleep. Can't you get more anger in your voice when you're talking about jobs and Reagan's foreign policies?"

"Sure I can. I'm angry right now."

"Then why aren't you screaming at us and telling us we don't know what we're talking about?"

"I don't like to show my true feelings. People from Minnesota never do."

"Fritz, we're way behind in the polls. You have to prove you'll be a tough president, and no one can push you around. You're going to have to let the sparks fly, and whip up the crowds to a frenzy."

"If I do that they won't listen to the issues."

"You can deal with the issues AFTER the campaign. First you've got to win the election."

"Well, if you say so. After I take off my suit coat and open my tie, what do I do next?"

"Slam your fist against the podium for starters."

"I could hurt my hand."

"Okay, so if you hurt your hand we'll put a bandage on it. It will show the voters how angry you really are about the state of the nation."

"Reagan never slams his fist on the podium."

"He doesn't have to. He's the incumbent. Besides he's a natural Mr. Nice Guy. You can't beat a nice guy with another nice guy. Our only chance of winning is for you to convince the people that when you get in the White House you're going to be a first-class S.O.B. Can you do it?"

"Of course I can do it. Look, I'm taking off my coat and I'm opening my tie and I'm hitting my fist on the table. Now what?"

"Get angry because all the steel workers are losing their jobs."

"How's that?"

"Is that as angry as you can look?"

"It's the angriest you'll ever see me."

"Okay, it will have to do, until we think of something else."

His Own View

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Maybe Walter Mondale knows something that the pollsters and pundits have missed in this presidential campaign.

Or maybe he's just following the rule of politics that says it doesn't make any sense to spend time mulling losing scenarios.

Here he is in California, Ronald Reagan's home state. Why is the Democratic challenger spending two more days in a state most people think is certain to support its favorite son?

"He thinks he can win in California," says Dayton Duncan, deputy press secretary to the Mondale campaign.

After all, the nuclear freeze got a majority in 1982, and the environmental movement is a powerful factor in the state's politics.

True enough. But the fact is Mondale has yet to carry California, whether as Jimmy Carter's running mate in 1976 and 1980 or in the 1984 primary against Sen. Gary Hart.

California is the biggest single block of electoral votes at stake on Nov. 6, but aren't there states where he might better spend his time, states where the outcome could be much closer?

Allow Mondale his own view of reality. Presidential campaigns customarily operate within their own unique views of the world.

So, along come polls that say Mondale trails Reagan by anything from about 14 to 30 points.

Does the candidate look worried?

"You can stuff those polls," said Mondale.

His campaign chairman, James A. Johnson, reacted to the polls showing Mondale 14 to 16 points behind by saying, "That's about where we are."

When an NBC News poll showed Mondale trailing Reagan by 30 points, the candidate said, "I'd say that's about as far off as any I've seen."

If the poll is right, what is there for Mondale to do? No one expects him to look at a poll showing him far behind, shrug his shoulders, announce the campaign is a waste of time and then go fishing in Minnesota.

For a politician once criticized as too cautious, Mondale is running a high-roller campaign that seems based on a single strategic assumption — that somehow voters will suddenly decide they really don't agree with the Reagan policies and will shift their support to Mondale.

It's an assumption that the Mondale camp can apply as easily to California as to Massachusetts because the candidate appears to believe deeply that the president is so wrong on so many issues, and Mondale clearly believes that voters eventually will come to agree with him and that traditional political yardsticks won't apply.

He fights on. His rhetoric gets sharper. He attacks the president frontally, dropping the caution with which most Democrats have approached Reagan.

Strength For Today

There are a few things which are as necessary to the living of a wholesome moral life as are breath, water and food to the living of a normal physical life.

The first of such things is sincerity. The word comes from two Latin words which mean "without wax." This was a sign which a Roman merchant displayed on the assortment of jars he had for sale. The assurance of the merchant was that the jar was not an old, broken piece patched up with wax, but was a newly molded jar.

Regardless of other virtues we may have, if we do not have sincerity, we do not have anything of real and lasting value. Whatever your religious faith is, be sincere in your acceptance and practice of it. Be sincere in social relationships. Be sincere with members of your family. Above all, be sincere with yourself. We are never fit to confront life until we have confronted ourselves.

Health Secretary Predicts Changes For Social Security

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation to make it harder to terminate Social Security disability benefits is drawing praise from a top administration official who predicts speedy approval by Congress and President Reagan.

"I am confident that leadership in both houses will move swiftly in getting a bill to the president so that this department can begin implementing its provisions and end the turmoil that has characterized the disability review program over the past several years," Margaret Heckler, secretary of health and human services, said Tuesday.

The measure "will result in a fairer and more efficient program to serve the special needs of disabled Americans," she said.

Staff members from the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee estimated that the cases of more than 100,000 disability recipients whose benefits were cut off will be reviewed again under new standards set by the legislation.

Under a compromise agreement, which still must be ratified by the full House and Senate, case reviewers generally must prove that an individual's medical condition has improved before terminating disability benefits.

The agreement by House and Senate negotiators also provides that disability recipients threatened with a benefit cutoff can maintain all payments until they have exhausted the appeal process.

For the first time a clear standard of review for people on the disability rolls will be spelled out in the law, said Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan.

"A finding of medical improvement or some other change in the beneficiary's condition will be required along with ability to work in order for benefits to be terminated," he said.

The legislation also continues a moratorium on the review of mentally impaired individuals until review standards are established.

It also requires that in determining eligibility, examiners must consider the combined effects of a person's impairments and whether any one impairment would be severe enough to qualify for benefits.

The measure establishes a commission to study the question of using subjective evidence of pain in determining eligibility.

"Fairness finally is being restored to the disability insurance system," Sens. Carl Levin, D-Mich., and William C. Cohen, R-Maine, said in a statement.

Rep. J.J. Pickle, R-Kan., told a news conference the agreement was "a significant achievement bringing both relief and hope to thousands of disabled citizens."

Nearly half a million people have received preliminary notices that their benefits would be ended since the Social Security Administration began congressionally mandated reviews of the disability rolls in 1981. More than 200,000 people were reinstated after proving they remained disabled.

Thousands of appeals have been filed and courts have ordered the government to cease removing people from the rolls because the eligibility criteria were unfair.

The furor forced the Health and Human Services Department, of which Social Security is a part, to suspend the reviews.

Tobacco Production Shows Sharp Rebound

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tobacco production is rebounding sharply after last year's drought-reduced harvest, sending Agriculture Department economists to computers and scratch pads to figure out what happens next.

As of Sept. 1, total U.S. tobacco output was forecast at 1.74 billion pounds, up 22 percent from the 1983 harvest of 1.43 billion pounds, including hefty gains for flue-cured and burley, the two major U.S. tobacco crops and the leading kind for cigarettes.

"Both acreage and yields are higher," the department's Economic Research Service said Tuesday in a new outlook report. "Better growing conditions improved leaf quality, and despite large supplies, prices at flue-cured auctions are averaging a little higher than last season."

The total tobacco supply for 1984-85 is expected to rise about 4 percent to 5.5 billion pounds, with burley accounting for most of the increase. Flue-cured supplies are down, however.

Officials said that world cigarette sales will probably be steady in the coming year, indicating little change in the amount of unmanufactured tobacco that will be required.

"Exports may rise a little from last year's 520 million pounds because of the better quality 1984 crop," the report said. "However, the strong dollar, large world supplies and already high prices of U.S. tobacco will continue to dampen exports."

Cigarette output in the United States may drop this year from 1983's 667 billion pieces, and "increased prices and health concerns" may cause U.S. cigarette use to drop about 1 percent, the report said.

Based on state estimates, the 1984 flue-cured crop totals 856 million pounds, up 4 percent from last year. However, inventories on hand as of July 1 were down 2 percent, meaning a total flue-cured supply of about three billion pounds, 1 percent less than last year.

Flue-cured sales began July 25 and by Sept. 14 growers had marketed 55 percent of their crop, with 15 percent of the marketings going under government loan.

"Despite a bigger crop, large supplies and unchanged price support, the improved quality of this year's (flue-cured) crop has boosted prices," the report said. "Sales through Sept. 14 averaged $1.78 per pound, about 1 percent above the previous year."

This year's burley crop is expected to increase sharply, along with more Maryland, fire-cured, dark air-cured and cigar types of tobacco. No burley production figures were included, but the report said the 1984-85 supply will be about 12 percent larger than in 1983-84.

The national marketing quota for 1985 flue-cured tobacco must be announced by Dec. 15, and the quotas for burley and other types by Feb. 1, 1985.

SAT Scores Increases

NEW YORK (AP) — Average mathematics results on the Scholastic Aptitude Test scored their best gains in at least two decades in 1983-84, The Associated Press has learned.

The first significant move upward in recent years.

The three-point gain last year in math put scores back to their best levels since 1976 when the average stood at 472. But they were still a far cry from the 502 average in 1963 when scores began a downward spiral.

Math SATs were up three points to 471, according to a state education source with access to the national scores who asked not to be identified. Scores on the verbal portion of the exam rose a more modest one point from the previous year to 426.

The 1983-84 results were to be released today by The College Board which sponsors the exam taken by approximately 1 million college-bound seniors. Education Secretary T.H. Bell had scheduled a news conference today to discuss the scores.

Scores on both math and verbal SATs have changed only slightly during the last five years, following 20 years of nearly uninterrupted declines. The gain in math scores is

Reagan Revives Campaign With Swing Into Farm Belt

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan was returning to the campaign trail today, heading first for the Northeast and then into the Farm Belt, where he was expected to pick up some support from a series of recent actions aimed at helping farmers still hard hit by recession.

Reagan's first stop was Waterbury, Conn., a city with a large number of Italian Catholics, whom the president has been courting, particularly since the selection of Italian Catholic Geraldine Ferraro as the Democratic candidate for vice president.

Reagan campaign spokesman John Buckley said the president enjoys a comfortable lead in Connecticut at the moment but that campaign strategists expect Democrats Walter Mondale and Ms. Ferraro to narrow the gap in the traditionally Democratic state before Election Day.

He added that the Reagan campaign considers the Waterbury visit more important than Connecticut's eight electoral votes would suggest because it is likely to be covered by news media that reach into the other New England states and into New York, making brief stop an unusually efficient use of campaign time.

Buckley said Ms. Ferraro does not appear to be helping the Democratic ticket among Roman Catholics generally. But he acknowledged that private polls show she has helped Mondale, at least marginally, among Italian-American voters.

Reagan's visit to a political rally in Waterbury, like his and Vice President George Bush's appearance — with their Democratic opponents — at an Italian-American dinner in Washington Saturday night, is designed to blunt the positive influence she has in the ethnic community, the spokesman said.

Reagan goes from Connecticut to Hammonont in rural southern New Jersey. Although Reagan recently visited Elizabeth, Hoboken and Oradell, it was to be his first visit downstate in two years in the populous battleground state. Hammonont is a major fruit and tomato producing community which calls itself the "blueberry capital of the world."

To save the expense of out-of-town accommodations, the presidential party returns to Washington tonight, then heads west on Thursday to woo Iowa farmers and campaign with former President Gerald R. Ford in Ford's hometown of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Although Reagan appears to be well ahead of Mondale throughout much of the country two weeks into the general election campaign, he faces one of his tightest races in Iowa, where farmers have been slow to reap the benefits of the economic recovery that has spread through many urban and industrial areas.

Reagan announced on Tuesday a program to aid debt-ridden farmers through increased federal loan guarantees and a deferral of some existing government debts. And he rejected the steel industry's demands for tough restrictions on foreign steel imports, restrictions that agricultural interests feared would draw retaliation against U.S. farm exports on which the nation's major grain producers depend.

Last week, in another exercise of presidential power welcomed by farmers, Reagan announced he was raising the limit on grain sales to the Soviet Union to permit increased exports of U.S. farm products.

Mondale Feels Encouraged Despite Showing In Polls

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — Walter F. Mondale, dogged by polls showing President Reagan with a solid lead in the presidential race, says "all I know is what I feel" and that he is encouraged about his chances of an upset victory in November.

Talking to reporters upon his arrival here Tuesday night, the Democratic presidential nominee asked, "Who can follow these polls? One says 30, one says 13, one says 16, one says 2."

In each case, the numbers cited by Mondale referred to the size of Reagan's lead in percentage points.

"I can't follow any of them," he added. "All I know is what I feel and the response I'm getting, and I'm very encouraged."

Mondale shifted the emphasis of his campaign to arms control and accused President Reagan of wanting to tear up the anti-ballistic missile treaty and launch "a headlong anti-satellite race with the Soviets."

During a speech at the University of Southern California, where he twice stopped to admonish pro-Reagan hecklers, Mondale directed his remarks to the president and said, "Don't duck the question of nuclear life or death."

"You may hide your plans, but we can't hide from the consequences of your plans."

Arms control and the environment were topics Mondale planned to focus on during appearances today in Stockton and San Francisco.

After his appearance at USC, Mondale flew to Fresno, in the heart of California's agricultural belt, and said that earlier in the day the president "announced something that he said is really going to help the farmers."

He added, "Where's he been for three and one-half years when we needed him?"

Mondale was referring to Reagan's announcement of a program to aid debt-ridden farmers through increased federal loan guarantees and deferral of some government debts.

Mondale predicted the president would have many politically motivated changes of heart before Election Day.

He said, "I believe Mr. Reagan is going to go through more conversions, more changes of mind, he's going to born again more often in the next 49 days than at any time in his life."

"He's going to learn things he never knew before and say things he never said before because we've got him on the run."

But there was no sign in any recent polls that the Democratic challenger had the president on the run.

The latest New York Times-CBS poll said Reagan was leading by 22 points, while an NBC News poll made public earlier in the week said the Reagan lead was 30 points.

A new Louis Harris poll said the Reagan lead was smaller, 13 points.

Several thousand students were in the USC Quad to hear Mondale and he had to contend with a vociferous group of Reagan supporters who often interrupted him with chants of "boring, boring" and "four more years, four more years."

Finally, an exasperated Mondale said, "Let me tell the Republican hecklers one thing, this USC is not the Republican Convention where you can silence people who want to talk about arms control and the future."

He then continued with his speech, and hecklers went on with their chants.

Once again, he addressed them, saying, "You're going to lose this election because you're not showing respect for the American people."

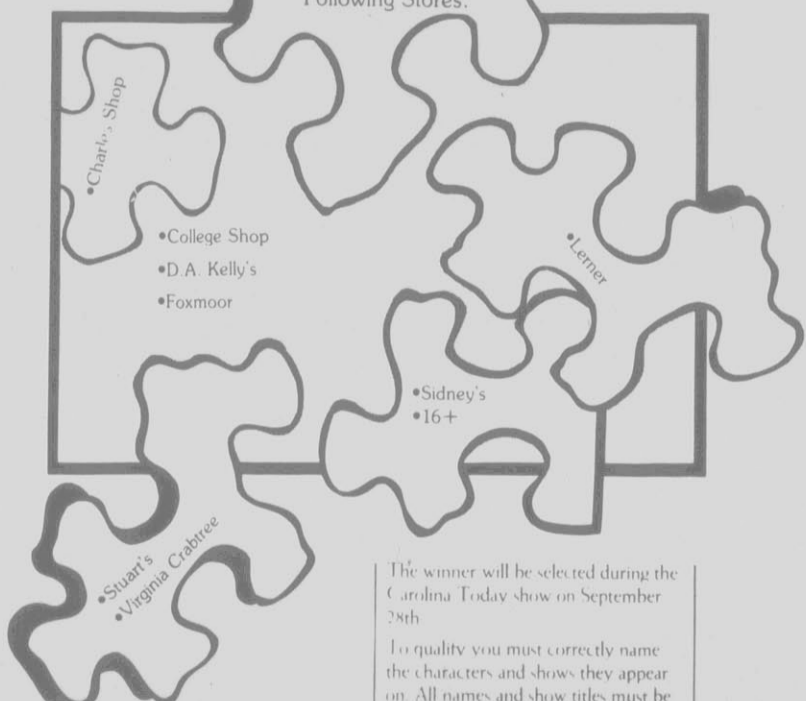

Asked later about the heckling, Mondale said: "I think they hurt themselves. This is a great center of learning. People came there to listen."

"The discussion was about arms control, the most important issue of our time. We had about 40 kids trying to prevent thousands of young people from hearing the message. It does them no good. I think they should be ashamed of themselves."

Helms Says More Changes Needed In Genocide Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — He stood nearly alone in the Senate, as he has so often. He spoke of atrocities in Indonesia, as he has spoken of the destruction of Carthage, the ravages of Idi Amin and the Holocaust of the Jews.

For the 3,000th time in 17 years, Sen. William Proxmire was on his feet demanding that the Senate ratify a 35-year-old treaty outlawing genocide — the systematic destruction of an ethnic, national or religious group.

President Reagan endorses the treaty. So does Democratic presidential nominee Walter F. Mondale. A vote was set for today in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, where its chairman, Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., predicted approval.

But Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., has said he might fight the treaty if the administration will not agree to riders to satisfy the objections of conservatives who say it could override the Constitution and trample the rights of U.S. citizens.

Helms, asked Tuesday how his negotiations with administration officials were going, said, "We have made some progress, but not enough for me to support it. But we are still working."

Proxmire has made a speech on the genocide treaty almost every day that the Senate has conducted business since Jan. 11, 1967. Although senators can have speeches printed in the Congressional Record as though delivered, without delivering them, Proxmire doesn't do this. He makes the speech.

On Tuesday, as usual, few senators were present as he spoke in a period devoted to routine business.

Each speech has been different, the Wisconsin Democrat said in an interview. "We haven't recycled any of them."

"I recognize that people may have thought, 'Well, this is a very ineffective performance. Here this guy has been speaking year after year after year and nothing happens,'" Proxmire said.

But as time went on, he said, there were significant developments. In 1976 the American Bar Association, which had opposed the treaty, came out for it. When Reagan was elected, he said he would study it. Then, on Sept. 5, Reagan urged the Senate to ratify it.

Proxmire regards Reagan's support as crucial because he says the conservative credentials of his administration will make it harder for conservatives, except those on the far right, to oppose the treaty.

Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., has not listed the treaty when he speaks of items that need to be done in this session, but Proxmire said he is still pressing for quick action.

In his milestone speech on Tuesday, Proxmire cited reports of atrocities that critics of the Indonesian government charge are being carried out in that Asian country to stifle dissent.

"The United States has consistently spoken out against human rights violations throughout the world, and has conscientiously embraced humanitarian values at home," he said. "But, it is not enough to simply live up to our ideals. It is time we act positively and back them up with a clear denunciation of crimes against humanity."

"The most fundamental and unacceptable of these crimes is genocide, and we in the Senate have an opportunity to take action against this barbaric activity by ratifying the Genocide Treaty."

In previous speeches, Proxmire has often cited other examples from what he called the "long, varied, terrible history of genocide."

"We have had genocide ever since the dawn of recorded history," he said. "On the floor of the Roman Senate, Cato used to stand up and call for genocide day after day after day for years."

"Carthage had invaded Rome several times and the Romans said, 'We can't just defeat this country; we have to destroy them.' And they did. Talk about genocide. They killed every man, every woman, every child. They destroyed all the property in the country. They plowed up the land. They planted salt there so that nothing would ever grow there again."

"That's the kind of thing you can talk about: The Turkish genocide of Armenians, the genocides in Cambodia, (former Ugandan leader) Idi Amin's action against tribes in Africa. And then all of the stories about the Holocaust in Germany and in Europe, not only with the Jews but with the Gypsies and not only in Germany, but in Poland and Holland and all over."

It is, said Proxmire, "just a terrific literature of information about genocidal conduct" for him to call on as he continues his campaign for ratification.

House Panel OKs Proposal To Discourage Car Thefts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation to foil car thieves who strike every 31 minutes in a $4-billion-a-year nationwide crime wave is ready for House and Senate action after clearing a major hurdle.

A key vote took place Tuesday when the House Energy and Commerce Committee approved a bill that would require automakers to either stamp identification numbers on 14 parts of their most theft-prone cars or equip these vehicles with anti-theft devices.

The heavily amended measure is a version of a bill that a coalition of insurance companies, consumer groups and police organizations have pushed for several years.

The panel's voice vote cleared the way for floor action in both the House and Senate, where a similar proposal won committee endorsement earlier this year.

David Jewell, spokesman for the Coalition to Halt Automotive Theft, predicted the compromise legislation would win enactment before Congress adjourns, probably for the year, in early October.

Currently, vehicles carry numbers only on their engines, transmissions and dashboards. Advocates of more numbers say that "chop shops" steal cars, discard the marked items and make huge profits reselling the rest of a vehicle.

Thomas Discovers New Trend In Life

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

He has had triumphs and tragedies in his life, but for B.J. Thomas, a recently discovered faith in God has given him a new meaning and purpose.

Thomas discussed his performing career and his personal ups and downs during a visit to Greenville last week to perform at the Greenleaf nightclub. His concert Friday was to benefit This Way Up, downtown Greenville's Christian coffeehouse.

The 42-year-old singer admitted that despite million-selling pop and country hits like "Hooked On a Feeling." "I Just Can't Help Believing" and "Another Somebody Done Somebody Wrong Song," and winning an Oscar for "Raindrops Keep Falling on My Head," his life has not been complete. He turned to drugs and stopped singing.

In 1976, Thomas experienced a "spiritual rejuvenation" and regained touch with his family, his music and himself.

"I'm not very religious," Thomas said. "I'm not a fundamental Christian, but I do believe that if you can love yourself, you can love other people, and that's about as Christian as you can get.

"I've tried to express some of my new found peace of mind through my music," he continued, "and I think my involvement with gospel and Christian music has helped change the face of that music, and made it possible for other entertainers to express their beliefs without being put into any category."

About his drug addiction, Thomas said, "Drugs are something I have to deal with every day. I think about them today and I'll think about them tomorrow. But I'm off the stuff now. "I was away from music for a few years, but it's great to be back," he said.

Thomas said singing was always his goal in life. His father encouraged him to become a singer and he introduced Billy Joe to the music of The Grand Ole Opry when he was a youngster. Thomas said his early musical influence was Ernest Tubbs, a longtime Opry member who died recently. Thomas is himself a member of The Grand Ole Opry, fulfilling a lifelong dream.

A record he recently recorded with Ray Charles will be released in several weeks, he said.

Thomas said that the tragedies in his life have now turned to triumphs.

America is within walking distance.

Coins Are Expensive To Remove

BOSTON (AP) — From the first day water started cascading down the 60-foot "water sculpture" in Boston's new Copley Place complex, people have been tossing coins in the fountain.

Visitors can't seem to resist making a wish and tossing a coin in pools at the base of the 80-ton waterfall inspired by the fountains of Rome, says Frank Lazorchak, vice president-general manager.

"Copley Place officials thought it only proper to donate the money recovered from the pools to worthy causes of groups from the surrounding neighborhoods," he says.

Then came something of a shock. Lazorchak adds. The cost of removing and donating the coins — $2,000 worth in the first four months — appears to at least equal and possibly exceed the value of the coins.

"First we have to drain the pools," explains Lazorchak. "Then we have to take the coins out by hand."

"We do this weekly but even then, the coins need cleaning. So we take them to a back room and scrub them in a tub. Then we have to lay them out to dry."

The coins are placed on a screen in front of a heater to speed the drying. "Then we have to sort them and then bag them," Lazorchak continues, noting that the process takes several employees the better part of a day and adds up to high labor costs.

The next step is to have an armored car take the coin bags to a bank, where the coins have to be rolled. "One time, we took out about $200 and I have a bill here for $57.50 just to take them to the bank," Lazorchak says.

But Copley Place isn't going back on its promise. Lazorchak says Urban Investment and Development Co. of Chicago, developers of the complex, felt it was good community relations to make sure the money benefitted the Boston area.

"We sent two young girls to Scout camp with the first of it," he said.

Balloonist Now Eyes Pacific

NICE, France — American adventurer Joe W. Kittinger, who completed the first solo balloon flight across the Atlantic, is not sure what his next challenge will be. But he is certain there will be one.

"I don't know (what's next), but there's still the Pacific that's never been flown solo yet," Kittinger, 56, told The Associated Press on Tuesday evening by telephone from Saint Roch Hospital in the French Mediterranean port city of Nice.

Earlier, the retired Air Force colonel said his next project could be an attempt to beat the land speed record and exceed the speed of sound.

Kittinger lifted off from Caribou, Maine, last Friday and crossed the French coast late Monday night in his 10-story-high helium-filled Rosie O'Grady's Balloon of Peace.

He continued his flight until Tuesday afternoon, when he crash-landed on an Italian mountaintop as threatening storms neared. He was catapulted from the gondola of the balloon when the craft ran into a wooded mountaintop near the Italian town of Savona, and broke his right foot.

He was flown by helicopter to the hospital, where X-rays were taken and his leg was put in a cast. He was released later Tuesday.

"Life is an adventure, and I'm an adventurer," said the Orlando, Fla., native, who holds other balloon and parachute jumping records and flew hundreds of combat missions in Vietnam.

Asked why he undertook the Atlantic crossing, he said: "You just have to go for it — that's the American way."

Six men had failed in previous trans-Atlantic attempts, two dying, but Kittinger said his flight went without a hitch. When he arrived over France, he decided to set a new distance record for the class of balloon as well.

No official distance figure has yet been announced by Kittinger or his support crew, but he appears to have covered more than 3,500 miles in his four-day journey. He was disappointed, however, not to have been able to go farther.

Kittinger had faced thick clouds and heavy rain for the last leg of his trip, across France and part of the Mediterranean, but stormy weather in Italy was the main factor in ending his trip.

"I couldn't go any further," he said. "There was a big thunderstorm on the other side of the mountain, and I was in mountains and the weather was pretty bad and the winds pretty brisk."

When he was thrown out of the basket on landing, "I hit rather hard from about 10 feet or so and I rebroke an old injury I had from parachute jumping many years ago," he said.

"It's embarrassing, really," said Kittinger. "It marred an absolutely perfect flight. But it's a small price to pay and it could have been worse."

Kittinger, who was shot down over Vietnam in 1972 and was a prisoner of war until 1973, told reporters he would like to have gone all the way across Europe if he could have kept his balloon out of trouble.

"I wanted to land in Moscow," he told reporters in Nice, "not for political reasons, but because it would have been the longest possible trip."

The Atlantic crossing was achieved 80 hours and nine minutes after his liftoff from Maine, according to unofficial tabulations. The unofficial duration of the entire trip was 95 hours, 48 minutes.

After reaching Europe near the southwestern French city of Biarritz, Kittinger's craft continued eastward across the Bordeaux region, passing to the south of the industrial center of Toulouse and reaching the Mediterranean near the coastal town of Narbonne.

Although it appeared early Tuesday that Kittinger would pass over the French island of Corsica and reach Italy slightly north of Rome, winds from the south drove him north toward the French Cote d'Azur and northern Italy.

The Rosie O'Grady, traveling at an altitude of about 14,000 feet, frequently attained speeds of up to 75 miles per hour in traveling across France.

NCSU Plan

RALEIGH (AP) — Officials of North Carolina State University unveiled a $45 million capital improvement plan Tuesday for the Advisory Budget Commission.

The plan includes an $11.6 million Natural Resources Research Center, $29 million in facilities for the School of Textiles and two agricultural research facilities totaling $4.4 million to be built at outlying research stations.

Edwin F. Harris Jr., director of campus planning and construction, told the commission the plans will be presented to the 1985 General Assembly as part of the University of North Carolina Board of Governors budget requests.

Decline In Farm Value Affects Borrowing

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer

Farmland values in North Carolina aren't declining as drastically as they are in other states, but the drop still makes it harder for farmers to finance their operations, economists say.

"It makes it difficult for them to borrow at the same level (as before the decline)," said Frank Bordeaux, chief economist for the North Carolina Department of Agriculture. "If the farm is worth less than it was two or three years ago, the farmers have less equity to borrow against. Farmers have been going out of business, and this is one of the complicating factors."

Bordeaux cited U.S. Agriculture Department figures showing the average value of an acre of North Carolina farmland, including buildings, went from $1,215 in 1980 to $1,331 in 1981, $1,284 in 1982, $1,297 in 1983 and $1,362 in 1984.

But when inflation is taken into account, land values actually declined slightly, he said.

National average farmland values have also declined, going from $795 per acre in 1981 to $739 this year, said Bordeaux. But in Iowa, the average value of an acre of farmland plus buildings plummeted from $1,811 in 1980 to $1,396 this year.

"That's about as dramatic as it gets," he said. "All Corn Belt states are seeing more fluctuation."

"North Carolina is more resilient — we're not tied into corn and soybeans like Iowa," he said. "We've got tobacco, fresh fruit and vegetables, livestock, broilers and swine. ... But we're still not doing all that great."

Part of the problem is the high value of the dollar compared with other currencies, said Bordeaux. That means foreign traders are buying fewer U.S. commodities.

"Nearly one-third of agriculture is geared to the export market," he said. "We have production geared up for that level. Without exports, our product prices decline ... and farmland declines as well."

Meanwhile, farm profits are declining because the cost of production is still moving up, he said.

"The biggest thing farmers need is stability in the economy — no wide cycles one way or the other," he said. "I would say they (land values) may stabilize after this decline has occurred, but again it's a function of the overall economy."

Hunt Requests Federal Disaster Aid

By The Associated Press

Gov. Jim Hunt has added four counties to the list of those he is asking President Reagan to declare disaster areas in the wake of Hurricane Diana, bringing the total number to six.

Hunt asked Reagan Tuesday to approve federal emergency aid for Pender, Columbus, Bladen and Sampson counties. He requested Friday that New Hanover and Brunswick counties be declared disaster areas.

As state officials estimated damage in the six counties at almost $79 million Tuesday, the Federal Emergency Management Administration dispatched teams from Atlanta to determine how well individuals, businesses and local governments might recover without federal help.

Their study, which may be completed by Friday, will be the basis for Reagan's decision on the request for disaster aid.

The team's will "go deeper" than local officials did last week to determine the effect of the storm, said P.E. Hall, chief of disaster assistance programs for the agency in the Southeast.

"Dollar figures really don't matter," when FEMA assessors look at a house, Hall said in a telephone interview from Atlanta. "The question is: Is it livable or not? If it's livable, they'll go right on by."

FEMA work should be completed by Friday, said Jack Glover, public affairs officer for the FEMA regional office. Should Reagan issue a disaster declaration, federal assistance centers would be open within three or four days, Glover said.

Small Business Administration teams are also in southeastern North Carolina to survey damage to businesses affected by the hurricane.

The latest preliminary damage estimates were put at $78,847,623 in the six counties in a letter from Jesse Pugh, state coordinating officer for emergency management, to the federal relief officials.

Private residential damage was $30,113,678. Damage to business totaled $5,100,385. Agricultural damage totaled $26,454,400 and damages to state and local government property was $17,179,160.

"As indicated in Gov. Hunt's letter, it is the state's intent to implement the Individual and Family Grant Program," Pugh's letter said. "The state is unable to immediately pay its 25 percent share of this cost, and therefore requests that $1,010,010 be advanced by the federal government."

Also, an industry trade group estimates insurance companies will have to pay $36 million in claims resulting from the hurricane.

Property Claim Services, which is based in Rahway, N.J., and operates under the auspices of the American Insurance Association, released the estimate of total damage Tuesday.

PCS has established a consulting office in Wilmington which will provide information to member insurance companies.

Company spokesman Pat Henry said Diana was not too bad in terms of damage. Hurricane Alicia, which last year hit Houston and Galveston, did an estimated $675 million in damage.

Another PCS spokesman, Gary Kerney, said the estimates do not include damages resulting from floods, which will be handled by the National Flood Insurance Program.

"As everyone has stated, it could have been a lot worse," Kerney said. "There is considerable damage in the beach areas. It appears the first houses on the beach did suffer the brunt of the damage. As you move back away, the damage was real light."

MacDonald's Attorneys Ask New Trial

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — A team of three lawyers for Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald is scheduled to present new witnesses in their client's attempt to clear himself in the stabbing deaths of his pregnant wife and two daughters.

Attorneys will go to court today seeking a new trial for MacDonald, who is serving three life sentences.

The attorneys say new evidence points to two participants in the killings — Helena Stoeckley Davis and Greg Mitchell — and backs up MacDonald's story that drug-crazed hippies attacked his family at their Fort Bragg home.

Both Ms. Davis and Mitchell are now dead.

MacDonald was convicted in 1979 of killing his wife, Colette, and daughters Kristen and Kimberly on Feb. 17, 1970. He was sentenced in 1982 to three consecutive life terms.

MacDonald, a former Green Beret captain, is in federal prison in Bastrop, Texas.

Attorney Brian O'Neill of Santa Monica, Calif., said the defense will present five or six new witnesses to substantiate the story of Ms. Davis, who claimed she was part of the group that attacked MacDonald and his family. O'Neill declined to identify the witnesses.

Ms. Davis died of pneumonia in January 1983 in Seneca, S.C. She testified out of the presence of the jury that she and others killed MacDonald's family. The judge ruled the statements were not "clearly trustworthy."

Government attorneys say any new evidence that MacDonald could present at a retrial probably would not result in an acquittal.

In papers filed July 13, prosecutors said the new evidence is not competent or admissible and if it is, it could have been discovered before the original trial.

The new trial motions are based on a long post-trial investigation and the affidavits of 22 new witnesses who claim to have seen or heard something that substantiates comments by MacDonald and Ms. Davis.

In papers filed April 25, MacDonald's attorneys say Mitchell also made statements indicating he was involved in the killings while a soldier at Fort Bragg.

The attorneys said Mitchell talked to Bryant and Norma Lane of Charlotte about an unspecified crime that they later believed to be the MacDonald murders.

Mitchell died in June 1982 from hepatitis and liver problems.

Prosecutors say they don't believe Mitchell was referring to the MacDonald murders. They also say Mitchell was an alcoholic who died of cirrhosis of the liver and it is unlikely that his statements could meet the legal standard of being "clearly trustworthy."

MacDonald's attorneys also have asked the court to vacate his sentence, set aside his conviction and remove U.S. District Court Judge Franklin Dupree from the case.

Dupree recently refused to remove himself.

The MacDonald case has a long and complex legal background.

MacDonald was investigated by the military and charged with murder but in late 1970 the charges were dropped. The Army then reopened the case at the request of the Justice Department.

Government prosecutors received a full report of the Army probe in 1972 but did not take the case to the grand jury until 26 months later. MacDonald was indicted Jan 24, 1975.

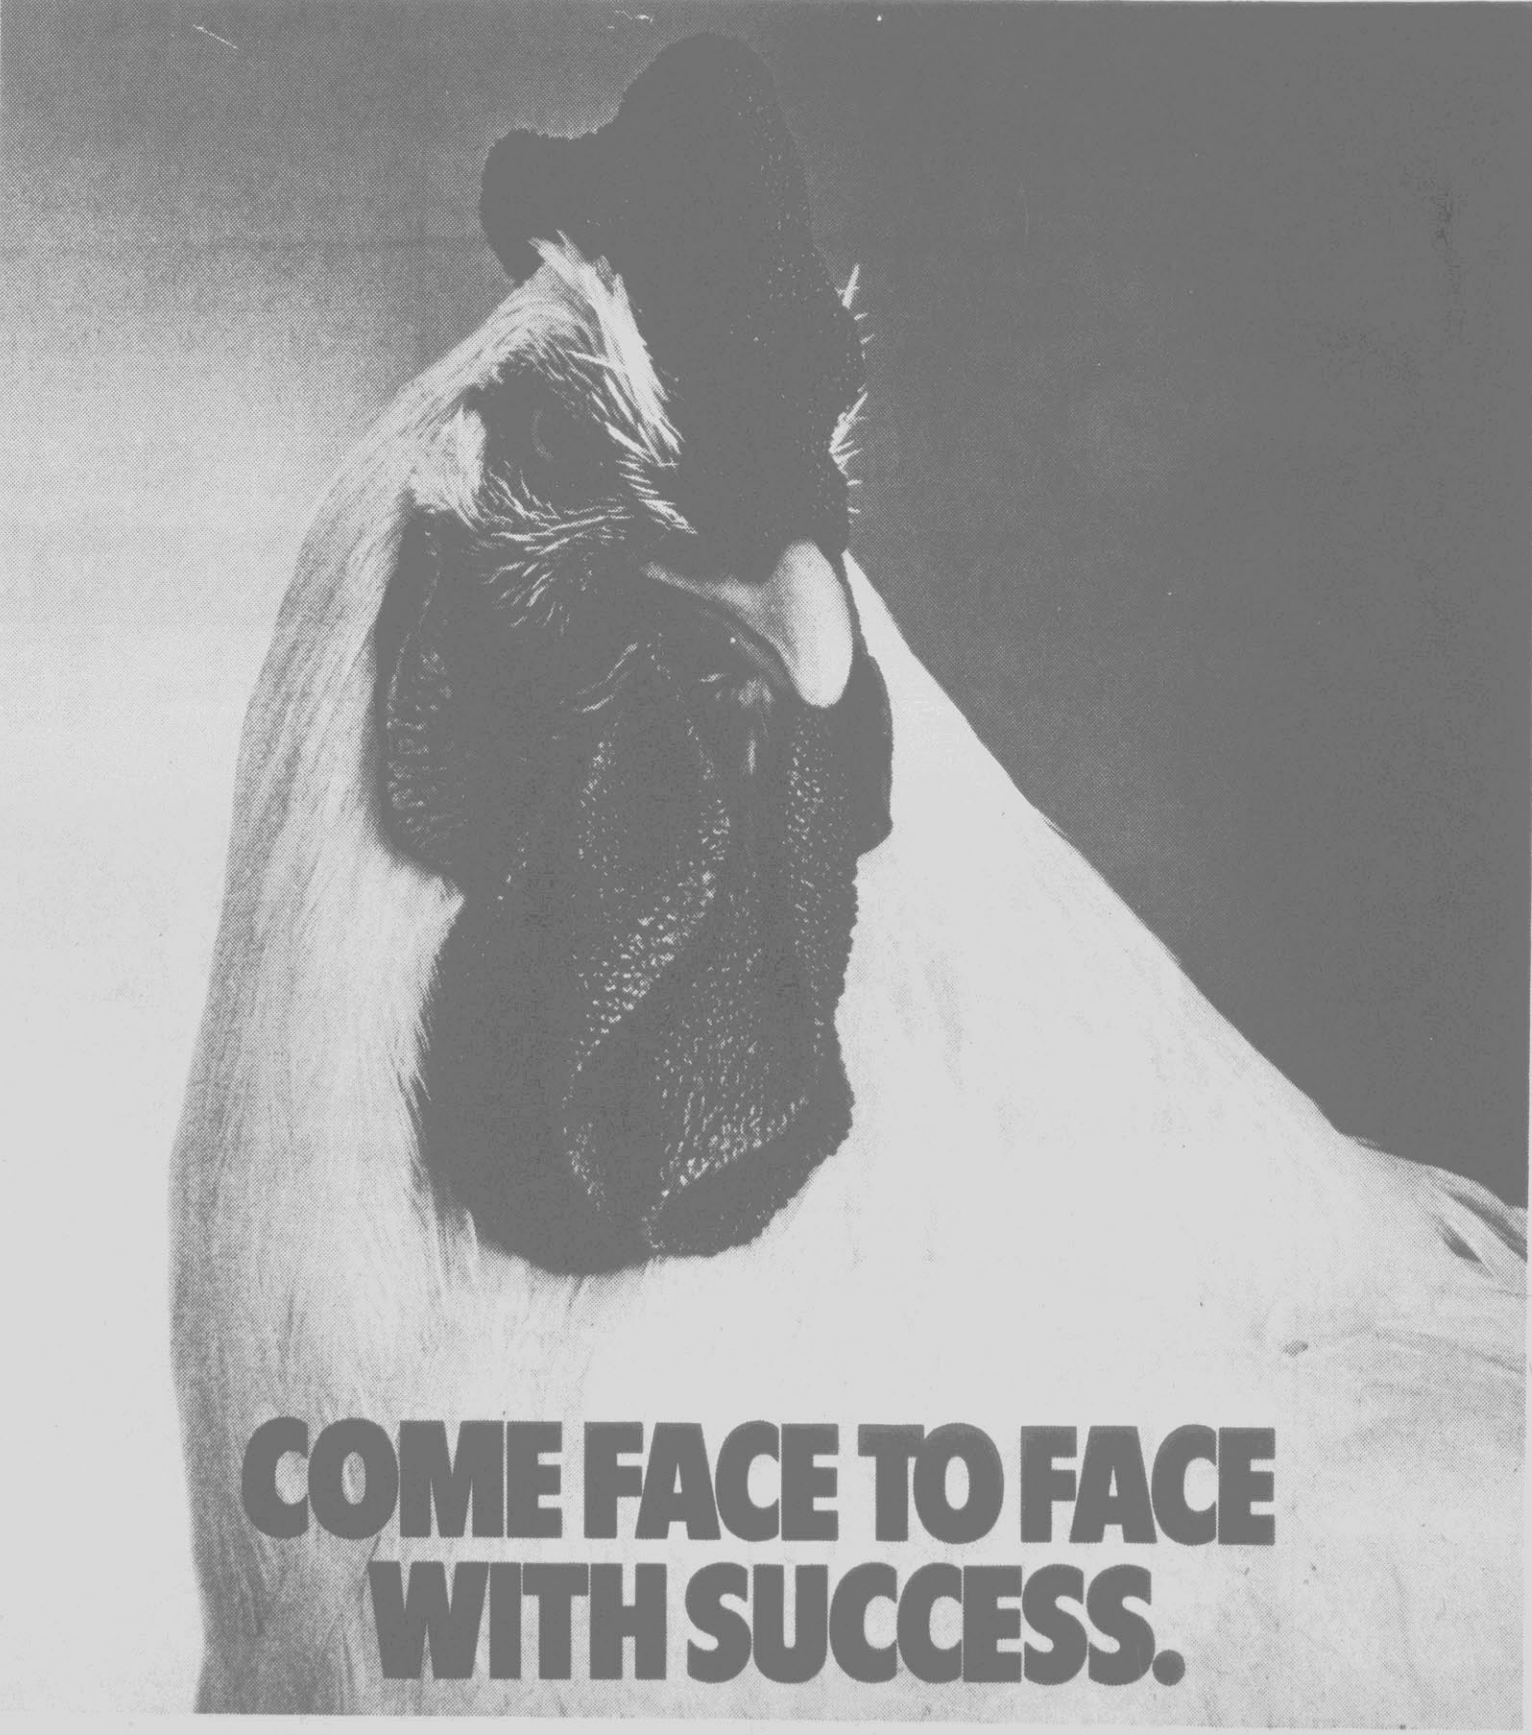

The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals tried to dismiss the charges but the U.S. Supreme Court in 1978 ruled that such decisions can't be made before a trial.

MacDonald was tried in federal court in Raleigh and convicted in August 1979. That same year the Supreme Court rejected his argument that prosecutors violated his constitutional protection against double jeopardy.

The 4th Circuit Court overturned the conviction in 1980, saying MacDonald was denied a speedy trial. The conviction was reinstated in March 1982 by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court in January 1983 rejected MacDonald's claim he was denied a fair trial because the judge limited Ms. Davis' testimony, setting the stage for defense attorneys to seek a new trial Wednesday.

Jesse Jackson Appearing In Triangle Area

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

The Rev. Jesse Jackson will focus his activities on getting young people to register and vote when he visits North Carolina just one day after Andrew Young came to the state to urge black clergymen to encourage their parishioners to vote, a Democratic Party official says.

G.K. Butterfield, a Wilson attorney and co-chairman of the state Democratic Party's Unity Campaign, said Jackson would visit the Tar Heel state today.

After a morning meeting with state party leaders, he will make speeches at North Carolina Central University in Durham and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Butterfield said. Jackson, a member of the North Carolina A&T State University board of trustees, will attend a board meeting in Greensboro later in the day.

"I speculate that (Jackson) sees an enormous amount of apathy among young voters," said Butterfield. "He can be very effective with them. He has an extraordinary ability to motivate people."

Meanwhile, Young, who was U.S. ambassador to the United Nations under President Carter and is mayor of Atlanta, met privately at a Raleigh church with around 140 black ministers. In a news conference afterward, he said he told the group that President Reagan's reelection was not inevitable.

"I think what we are concerned about is that our members and our constituents not give up, and believe their vote doesn't count," said Young. "Nobody can tell them — through polls or newspaper columns or radio or television — that it's already been decided and that one side has already won."

While acknowledging that he supports the entire Democratic ticket, Young said his statement to the ministers wasn't partisan and that he was more interested in getting blacks to vote than in winning support for any particular candidate.

Young called the U.S. Senate race between Republican incumbent Jesse Helms and Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt one of the most important in the nation for blacks and whites, and said it would help decide "whether the South is going to move forward or ... backward."

"I think of North Carolina ... as one of the enlightened states," said Young. "North Carolina making an impact on the world depends on continuing the tradition of brotherhood and justice. And I'm not sure that Senator Helms sees it quite the same way."

Young also said he was "very comfortable" and saw nothing improper with the ministers' encouraging political activity from the pulpit.

Asked whether the blacks' actions were comparable to those of the Moral Majority and other right-wing religious groups, Young replied, "None of us would ever appeal to religious authority and say that if you don't vote like I tell you to vote you're going to go to hell."

The meeting was organized by state Rep. C.R. Edwards, D-Cumberland, a minister, who said he and other "concerned people" wanted to spur blacks to keep working for the candidates of their choice.

The state Democratic Party said Tuesday that vice presidential nominee Geraldine Ferraro would campaign in Raleigh and Greensboro on Oct. 1.

Former Sen. Robert Morgan announced Ms. Ferraro's visit in a news conference at state Democratic headquarters, and predicted that her appearance would boost the ticket's prospects for victory.

"... We feel this confirms the fact that North Carolina is being taken as a very key state," said Morgan. "We think it is a winnable state. ... We will be working vigorously between now and the election."

Morgan acknowledged that results of a Gallup Poll released over the weekend showed President Reagan and Vice President George Bush leading Walter Mondale and Ferraro in North Carolina by 62 percent to 34 percent with 4 percent undecided.

But Morgan said the poll had underrepresented blacks and people who considered themselves partisan Democrats, and cited his own surprise defeat by Republican Sen. John East in 1980 as evidence that polls aren't always right.

David Flaherty, state Republican chairman, said he welcomed Ms. Ferraro's visit because "it will reinforce the fact that the Democratic candidates don't stand for the things that are important to the people of this state."

Ms. Ferraro will appear at a fund-raiser at the Raleigh home of Jeanette Carl, a Democratic activist, and will speak at a $100 per person rally at a Raleigh hotel, said Jane Patterson, state administration secretary.

The party also announced formation of a Women's Voter Task Force, which will try to motivate women to vote for "Democrats who will support issues that are important to women and their families."

Ms. Patterson, chairman of the task force, said the group would hold a series of news conferences across the state to "get the word out."

Ms. Patterson said North Carolina Democrats had been responsible for funding a pay equity study, approval of a statute requiring equitable distribution of property among spouses, and creation of programs to help women get jobs that Republicans have fought.

Flaherty said creation of the task force was "just an opportunity to get some publicity."

"How come, if the Democratic Party is so much for women, they don't have any (female) candidates for Council of State?" asked Flaherty. "Why was the Republican Party the first to put a woman on the Supreme Court? ... They talk a good game, but the fact is that while the Democrats talk about what they're going to do for women, the Republicans produce results."

Sex Abuse Laws Get Review

RALEIGH (AP) — A state representative acknowledged that a legislative panel is studying a proposal to lessen penalties for crimes involving sexual abuse of children, but said it's highly unlikely that the Legislature will even consider the recommendation.

The General Assembly's Criminal Code Committee is studying a recommendation by the North Carolina Criminal Code Commission that the sentences be lightened, said committee chairman Rep. Dan Blue, D-Wake.

But it's highly unlikely that the Legislature will consider — much less approve — the proposal, he said Tuesday.

The study was part of a comprehensive review intended primarily to reorganize and streamline the law. He said the committee wanted to examine the commission's proposals since that group spent about six years at the task, but said that doesn't mean the committee will forward all its proposals to the full Legislature.

"I disagree vehemently with some of the (commission's) recommendations," said Blue in an interview. "But they worked for six or seven years (1973-1979) and we felt they did too much work to just let it go down the drain without looking at it."

"I can say that, from an informal poll of the committee members, the probability of our adopting that child abuse proposal has all the chances of the proverbial snowball."

The commission's recommendations include:

— Reducing the charges of indecent liberties with a minor and sexual activity with a dependent to misdemeanor crimes, punishable by a maximum of two years in prison. Under current law they are felonies with 10- and 15-year maximum sentences.

— Not protecting 12-year-olds under first-degree statutory rape and sexual assault laws, where the maximum punishment is life imprisonment. The proposed law defines intercourse and any sexual act with a 12-year-old as a less serious offense carrying a maximum prison sentence ranging from two to six years.

— Creating a "mistake-as-to-age" defense in which penalties are reduced if both parties agreed to sexual contact and "the defendant reasonably believed the victim to be

Hunt Considers Barfield Request

RALEIGH (AP) — The Velma Barfield who awaits execution in November is not the same person who was found guilty of poisoning her boyfriend in 1978, says the convicted murderer's son.

Ronnie Burke of Goosecreek, S.C., was one of several people to meet with Gov. Jim Hunt Tuesday as supporters of clemency for Mrs. Barfield presented their side to Hunt.

The governor will meet with opponents of clemency, including relatives of Mrs. Barfield's victims, today. They have argued that the law requires the death penalty be carried out and that Mrs. Barfield is "an accomplished liar."

Mrs. Barfield is scheduled to die Nov. 2 for the 1978 poisoning death of Stuart Taylor, her boyfriend at the time. She also has admitted poisoning her mother and two elderly Robeson County residents.

Burke said his mother was addicted to prescription drugs for 10 years and lived "from pill to pill." He said she has given up all drugs since her imprisonment and has changed dramatically.

"The Velma Barfield in prison today is not the Velma Barfield that did the things that she has confessed to doing," Burke said. "She was a different person (before going to prison) and had no control over her life at all."

Unless Hunt grants clemency or attorneys win a delay from the courts, Mrs. Barfield will choose between the gas chamber and lethal injection to become the first woman executed in North Carolina since 1944 and the first in the United States in 22 years.

More than 40 supporters of clemency talked with Hunt on Tuesday. They included Burke and his sister, Kim Norton of Lumberton, four of Mrs. Barfield's five brothers, her sister, cousins and nieces.

There also were former inmates, friends and ministers, including evangelist Billy Graham's daughter, Ann Lotz.

Mrs. Barfield's attorney, Jimmy Little, showed Hunt a 15-minute videotape of Mrs. Barfield visiting with her family at Easter.

"We would like for everyone to know that we do love her and have forgiven her for what she has done," said James Bullard, Mrs. Barfield's brother who is a minister. "We know that what she is doing in prison now is helping other people, young people and older people alike."

He said she is able to tell inmates about the danger of drugs and how her life has changed.

"She is a changed person," Bullard said. "She is a person who's realized that she has done wrong. And for the people to realize that we as victims can be able to forgive one another is the main thing."

Hunt refused to say when he might decide on clemency but he said politics will play no part in his decision. The execution is scheduled four days before the election in which Hunt is challenging Republican Sen. Jesse Helms' bid for re-election. "I'm listening to these people today," Hunt said. "I'm trying to give them plenty of time to try to tell me what's on their hearts and their minds... It (the decision) will be made strictly on the merits."

Little said he doesn't think politics will affect Hunt's decision.

"Governor Hunt is not going to make a life and death decision on the basis of politics," Little said.

Lynne Garrison, a spokesman for Hunt, said the governor received 1,203 letters between June 1 and Sept. 14 about Mrs. Barfield's execution. She said 1,013 of the letters opposed the execution.

Mrs. Garrison said 563 of the letters came from outside the United States.

Commuters See Little Help

RALEIGH (AP) — Larger airlines and people who would just as soon drive are proving to be stiff competition for small commuter airlines in North Carolina, despite deregulation.

The reason for the current commuter airline woes is because Congress deregulated the fares at the same time it changed the flight requirements. Suddenly, it was cheaper for many travelers to drive to a bigger city and catch a plane rather than fly from Rocky Mount to Raleigh and on to their destination.

Profit margins in the state's commuter airline business are usually small, according to those familiar with the industry. Wheeler Airlines soars and dips between red ink and black ink each year, says company vice president Anthony L. Parker.

Parker pilots two flights a week for the airline. When he isn't flying, he serves as director of operations and second in command. At Wheeler, pilots can also be found helping load baggage.

"I try to schedule the flights early so I can be back here by nine o'clock," said Parker, 29.

Sunbird Airlines of Charlotte, which cut flights by 20 percent this spring, has never made a profit since it began operations in 1979, said president Roy H. Hagerty. The company has lost "more than a million dollars" over that period, he said.

When the federal government stopped requiring airlines to fly into certain towns and cities, bigger airlines like Piedmont left places such as Rocky Mount and New Bern, where it, too, had started out as a commuter airline. The commuter services that sprung up around deregulation were supposed to fill the gaps with small planes better suited to the light passenger traffic.

At the airport in Hickory, slightly more than an hour's drive away from Charlotte, there are more flights now on two commuter airlines than there were before Piedmont left in 1980. The following year, passenger traffic almost doubled to 22,000, but fell off during the recession. It never recovered and now stands at about 12,000 a year.

Ironically, Hickory is considered a success story among the state's small airports.

Elsewhere, the small airlines are doing better in thickly populated states where traffic is congested and driving to a metropolitan airport is difficult. Since deregulation, passengers on the nation's 218 commuter airlines have nearly doubled, from 11.3 million in 1978 to 21.8 million last year, according to the Regional Airline Association.

The Civil Aeronautics Board guarantees air service to airports that had flights before deregulation and provides subsidies to some commuter airlines to keep it up.

Woman Is Fined For Lockup

DANVILLE, Va. (AP) — A prison term is "not the appropriate penalty" for an 81-year-old Danville woman who kept her granddaughter locked in her basement for seven years, a Danville judge says.

Circuit Court Judge James F. Ingram sentenced Essie Farmer Jones on Tuesday to a year's probation and fined her $500.

Mrs. Jones was indicted on a felony charge of child neglect, to which she pleaded innocent because of a lack of mental responsibility. She was found guilty in June of the lesser charge of misdemeanor child neglect.

"A period of incarceration (for Mrs. Jones) would serve no useful purpose," Ingram said in imposing the sentence.

Dr. Anita B. Baldemor, an expert in child psychiatry, testified at the trial that Mrs. Jones suffers from paraphrenia and primary degenerative dementia, which is known as Alzheimer's disease when it strikes younger people.

Mrs. Jones was not aware that she was abusing a child and perceives her granddaughter, Carol Jones, as an animal, Ms. Baldemor said.

A forensic psychiatrist testified that Mrs. Jones saw her granddaughter as an impostor being used by others to take the elderly woman's money.

Mrs. Jones began locking her granddaughter in the dirt-floored basement soon after the girl, then 11 years old, came to Danville to live with her, according to testimony during the trial.

Witnesses for the prosecution said Mrs. Jones admitted locking her granddaughter in the attic or basement whenever someone came to the door or when Mrs. Jones left the house.

A city police detective testified at the trial that the basement was so dark he could not see his hand in front of his face and that the smell of urine in the room was so strong it burned his nose.

Carol Jones' plight was discovered by a Social Security Administration representative in early 1983 and since that time the girl has been living in a foster home.

Mrs. Jones argued at the trial and said again at the sentencing hearing that Carol is not her granddaughter. The woman maintains that her daughter's baby was switched soon after birth.

Carol's mother, Lucille, died three days after giving birth to the child in New York.

Hotel Site Turns Up Viking Ruins

By WILLIAM C. MANN
Associated Press Writer

VIBORG, Denmark (AP) — It was to be Viborg's finest hotel, built on a rolling lakeside meadow. The problem was, Viking-age craftsmen got there first, about 1,000 years ago.

"Our analyses of preliminary digs from this place found that there might be something noteworthy under the ground," said archeologist Olaf Olsen, whose State Museum Board coordinates archeological activity in Denmark.

"What we found was just astounding."

A team led by the Viborg Museum's Hans Krøngaard unearthed remains of a Viking-age town where goldsmiths, potters and other artisans made goods for more than 300 years.

Archeologists stepped in after plans for the hotel were made public. They told local authorities that they had no money to excavate the place now, but that a town under centuries of silt had to be saved.

Plans for the hotel were scrapped and new ones drafted that, once approved, will place the structure offshore on stilts over the picturesque central Jutland lake, Soenderose.

Historians say that in 1313 local warlords hired German mercenaries to mount a rebellion against Denmark's King Erik VI. He crushed the uprising and built a fortress at the edge of Soenderose from where his envoys could keep an eye on the conspirators.

In the process the lakeside town was flooded, either intentionally to create a moat around the fortress, or accidentally by a mill that was placed across an inlet to serve the fortress.

Krøngaard said the water that covered the town preserved it better than any other late Viking-period community in Denmark, which is rich in relics of the last two millennia.

He and Olsen compare the find with the spectacular Viking city unearthed in York, England. Restored in every detail, even with background recordings of old Norse conversations and chemically reproduced Viking-era smells, the York town has become a major tourist attraction since it was opened to the public last April.

Krøngaard said the Viborg find could provide a missing link between Northern Europe's early Viking period, the era of the York excavations, and the Middle Ages.

So far, little has been found from the period 1000 to 1300, the final centuries when Vikings set sail from Jutland and Norway on their escapades to England and elsewhere.

"There are few written records from this time," Olsen said in an interview. "We expect to find streets and houses at Viborg. These were craftsmen. We expect to find out who worked, where they worked, and who they worked for."

At the site of his team's nine preliminary digs, now filled in to await further excavation, Krøngaard explained where he found impeccably preserved housing timbers and latticed twigs bonded by mortar.

He leaned over and picked up a pottery shard from the bare earth covering one of the digs and identified it as a jar handle from the 14th century.

Krøngaard said that, beneath where he stood, he expected someone eventually will find a street. He said its juxtaposition with houses will show whether Northern Europeans just before the Middle Ages built adjacent to streets or away from them.

Such is the type of information that excites archeologists.

Nevertheless, according to Olsen it will be a long time before archeology gets such information from Viborg, possibly two centuries.

Basically, the reason is a lack of money. But archeologist Olfert Voss, secretary of the State Museum Board, said the board favors delaying the digs.

"Archeologists are going to be more and more clever in the coming years," he added. "Their methods will improve. ... Science would like to have this fine picture (of late Viking-age life), but it also would like to have the best possible picture."

Olsen agreed. "I wouldn't mind if a great part of this was left for 50 or 100 years," he said. "It wouldn't matter at all."

The following rezoning requests were also approved:

A request by B.C. Branch to rezone 8.26 acres from highway commercial to office and institutional. The property is located on the east side of N.C. 11, 725 feet south of Airport Road.

A request by Johnny Wheeler to rezone 34 acres from R-6 to unoffensive industry. The property is located on the north side of Langley Street (formerly Clark Street), 180 feet east of Memorial Drive.

A request by Joseph M. Taft Jr. to rezone 23 acres from R-6 to unoffensive industry. The property is located on the northeast corner of 12th Street and Seaboard Coastline Railroad.

In final business, the commission agreed to change the name of Hearths Side Drive to Hearths Drive and to bring a parcel of land within the city's extraterritorial jurisdiction and zone it accordingly. Approximately 3.5 acres of the 50 acre tract were zoned R-9 and the remainder was zoned R6-MH, to allow location of mobile homes. The request was brought by Tommie Little, an area developer.

Vatican Appeal

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican newspaper is appealing for action against the "horror, worry and humiliation" of what it termed the growing problem of seWual abuse of children.

"There have been too many warning signs in recent times," L'Osservatore Romano said in a strongly worded editorial. The newspaper then cited as an example the case of 6-year-old Thea Puymbroeck of Amsterdam. According to Dutch press reports, she died last month of a cocaine overdose in a hotel in the southern Netherlands city of Eindhoven after being sexually abused by a brothel owner and a prostitute.

Wreath Lowered

HAIFA, Israel (AP) — Italian navy divers lowered a wreath to the rusted hull of a World War II submarine sunk off the Israeli coast, honoring the 60 crewmen lost 42 years ago when the ship went down with all hands.

The divers, based aboard the Anteo, interrupted their 10-day operation to recover the submarine crew's remains as Italy's Undersecretary of Defense Tommaso Bisagno arrived for a shipboard ceremony and Mass. The remains of 22 sailors the Scire, Italy's most decorated World War II submarine, have been recovered so far.

On Aug. 10, 1942 the Scire, a 600-ton sub with a distinguished war record against British warships in the Mediterranean, was spotted by a British plane off the Haifa coast. The plane fired and British cannons on shore fired at the sub, and the British destroyer Isley dropped 16 depth charges, trapping Scire's 49 sailors and 11 frogmen.

Quick Turnaround Needed For Rose

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Even after several hours to digest Rose High School's 7-7 tie football game against New Bern. Coach Chip Williams was still very disappointed in the outcome of the game.

"New Bern played an excellent football game," Williams said. "But we didn't take care of our gap assignments on defense. Our tackling was not on a par with the game against Jacksonville."

"Roughly speaking, there was no progress between the two games — likely there was some regression," Williams added.

The Rampants scored their only touchdown on a 32-yard pass from Battle Emory to Tyrone Smith late in the first half on a four-play, 80-yard drive. New Bern came back to score on an 11-yard pass in the third period. Two late drives by Rose failed to produce, one ending on a punt and the other, with 33 seconds left, falling short when Brian Bridges' 37-yard field goal attempt hit the crossbar and bounced back on the field.

"We can make all kinds of excuses," Williams said. "Having to play on Monday was an excuse, but we can't rely on excuses. When it's game time, you've got to be ready to play regardless of what day it is. And we didn't play well."

Another excuse, Williams suggested, would be the absence of fullback Tom Moore, lost for much of the season with a broken leg. That left most of the ball-carrying load on sophomore Anthony Cobb, who responded with 127 yards on 20 carries. Rose netted only 118 yards rushing, however.

"The only thing is that an excuse is only just that — an excuse. It doesn't help anyone," Williams said.

"We just have to get better. Right now we're not doing the things in games we need to be doing. We don't usually have good practices on Mondays and I guess we play that way on Mondays too. And we got what we deserved."

"I know New Bern is tickled to have tied us, but we have got to use this as a positive thing and grow from it. And that takes integrity and pride."

The Rampants suffered a number of penalties, and Williams blamed that on a simple lack of concentration. "In the second game of the season, that's not what you should have."

"We still have some questions on both offense and defense. We need to see some improvement or we need to make some changes."

Williams said he was pleased with the offensive performance of Cobb and Tyrone Smith, who caught several passes, including the lone touchdown. "But they can't be the whole team," Williams said.

"New Bern was doing about what we expected, but they were getting five and six yards on every first down. That's way too much. Their running backs were impressive. They were just carrying our people forward."

"What we did against Jacksonville, we didn't do against New Bern. We controlled the line of scrimmage against Jacksonville; we didn't against New Bern."

Williams was especially disappointed that Rose didn't score early when Cobb ripped off 50 yards down to the Bear 17. A pass from Emory to Smith was just beyond the end line on the best attempt at that point.

Williams felt Adrian Brewington had another good night on defense, pulling in his third interception in two games. "David Walker did a good job as a fill-in, and our secondary did a good job except on the touchdown pass, which was almost the same play Jacksonville used to score on us."

The Rampants have the unpleasant job of playing again now on Thursday, just three days after the New Bern game. They'll be hosting Eastern Wayne at 7:30 p.m. Thursday night in Ficklen Stadium. The game is played on Thursday under East Carolina University rules which prevent a high school game from being played in the stadium on Friday when ECU has a Saturday afternoon home game.

"Playing on Thursday is not good for us anytime," Williams said, "and worse when we have to play on Monday before."

The coach said he thought it was Eastern's advantage too. Although the Warriors also played on Monday, losing to Wilson Hunt, 16-0, Williams still feels like the Warriors have more to gain from the situation.

Eastern has struggled in its first two games. It bowed to Rocky Mount, 33-14, in the opener, then had a week off to prepare for the Hunt game. In both contests, the Warriors were unable to generate much offense, picking up only some 60 yards on the ground in each of the contests.

Still, Williams feels that Eastern can be a tough opponent, mainly because of the Monday-Thursday game situation.

The contest is the final non-conference game of the year for the Rampants, who open Big East play next Friday night against Northern Nash.

Emory: Pirates Should Have Beaten Chippewas

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Ed Emory, coach of the East Carolina University football Pirates, left it to the media.

"I have no words to describe 0-3," Emory said. "I don't know how to put it into words...the disappointment, the concern."

The Pirate coach was referring to his team's winless start after three games; consecutive losses to Florida State, Temple and Central Michigan.

"But we're not going to give up. We might give out but we won't give up," he promised.

Against Central Michigan, the Pirates were an improved team, having the chance to pull out a victory before bowing, 17-12, to the Chippewas. "They have a good program out there, but we should have won and didn't."

Emory said that the wind factor was a big one in the game and that the officials got very confused at the start of the contest. The Pirates won the toss and elected to delay their option until the second half. Central Michigan then took the wind, but the officials lined up so as to give them both the wind and the ball. The confusion was continued in the second half also.

"Perhaps the biggest factor in the game was on our second defensive play when Kevin Walker got thrown out. The officials called a double personal foul, but only ejected Kevin."

"I don't think Central Michigan has played a team as physical as ours since they played us in 1982 and they wanted to get in some licks. We don't play dirty, we play hard. Their guy hit Kevin and elbowed him and Kevin pushed him back and slapped him. The official saw only part of it. He should have just warned both of them and told them if they caused any more trouble, they would be ejected."

"At any rate, we had to put in a freshman (Ellis Dillahunt). He's going to be a good one, but he made some mistakes and it cost us."

Emory also noted that the Pirates didn't move the ball like they have to to win, with consistency. "And we started seven times inside our 20. When you don't pick up a first down and then punt, you're only digging yourself a deeper hole," he said.

Emory said that he felt the Pirates would definitely come back after Central's quarterback Ron Filmore was injured. "But we missed a field goal we shouldn't have missed and we didn't push it in after we blocked the punt."

The coach said that he elected to go with Darrell Speed after starting quarterback Robbie Bartlett was injured because of an earlier helmet problem. "Robbie was having problems with his helmet and we called for Ron (Jones) to go in, but then found out Robbie had already gotten his helmet and that was giving problems, too. So we had to put in Darrell. When Robbie got hurt, we put Darrell back in because he had already been in there."

Emory felt that the Pirates got much improved line play. "Our protection never broke down. We're getting better, but we're still not playing like we have to."

The Pirates lost Bartlett to a knee injury as well as defensive tackle Joe Grinage, the lone interior lineman with experience from last year. Grinage suffered a shoulder separation. Both are expected to be lost for the year, although neither is expected to undergo surgery. Ed Varnes, a free safety, has also been lost with a knee injury, and Terry Paige, a tailback, will be checked for possible surgery later this week.

"We did not take Brad Henson or Tim Dumas (starting offensive linemen) to Michigan, and we're getting ready to play without them this weekend," Emory said.

"We've moved Curtis Struyk back to defensive tackle after Grinage's injury. Lewis Wilson, a freshman quarterback, has been moved to defensive back to see if he can give us some depth. We've moved Todd Abrams (freshman quarterback) up to work with Speed and Jones now that Bartlett's out of the picture."

East Carolina now prepares to return home Saturday afternoon for a 1:30 p.m. meeting with upstart Georgia Southern, a Division I-AA team which has come up with a 3-0 record so far.

No One's Laughing At Tigers Now

By HARRY ATKINS
AP Sports Writer

DETROIT (AP) — They'll never doubt Sparky Anderson again.

When he came to Detroit six weeks into the 1979 season, Anderson had everybody whooping with laughter when he predicted the Tigers would be winners in five years.

The laughter was washed away Tuesday night in a river of champagne after the Tigers clinched the American League East title by beating the Milwaukee Brewers 3-0.

"This has been my No. 1 team as far as I'm concerned," said Anderson, who guided the Cincinnati Reds to five titles in the National League. "When I came here, I said we'd be winners in five years and I think I've proven myself to those people. I don't think my credibility will ever be questioned again."

Anderson also became one of the first casualties of the night when he was accidentally cut on the head by a bottle during some horseplay between Lance Parrish and Kirk Gibson. Doctors stopped the blood from streaming down the manager's head with a piece of tape.

The Tigers, who became the first team since the 1927 New York Yankees to lead the race from wire to wire, wrapped up the title with the same combination of pitching, power, speed and daring they employed all season long.

Rookie right-hander Randy

O'Neal, making his first major league start, pitched like a seasoned veteran. O'Neal, 1-0, tossed seven shutout innings, allowing just four hits, before Willie Hernandez marched in to notch his 30th save. Hernandez, who has not blown a lead all season, gave up a pair of harmless singles.

"The instant I came out, I knew I had a win," O'Neal said. "With Willie coming in, I knew there was no doubt."

The tone for the season was set during the fourth game when Jack Morris pitched a no-hitter in Chicago. The Tigers set a major league record by going 35-5 over their first 40 games, while tying a major league record with 17 consecutive road victories.

"We did what we had to do all year," Darrell Evans said, champagne running down his face. "Everyone on this club contributed to this night."

"We have made it to the first stop. Now, we have two more to go (the AL playoffs and possibly the World Series). This team never really had a slump. At least, we always felt we were too good a team to lose too many in a row."

Parrish drove in two runs and Tom Brookens belted a solo homer to provide all the offense the Tigers needed.

"I'm swinging the bat real good right now," Brookens said. "This is what all ballplayers shoot for and now we have it. "This is a great feeling. It's greater than I ever thought it could be."

The trigger to the Tiger attack, as it has been so often this season, was the one-two punch of Lou Whitaker and Alan Trammell, the first two men in the Detroit batting order.

Whitaker walked in the Detroit first, went to third on Trammell's double and scored on an RBI grounder by Parrish.

"We did it," Parrish said. "They can never take it away. This is a tremendous feeling. I don't know if I've ever been this excited."

In the Detroit sixth, Trammell doubled, Gibson walked and Parrish singled to drive in Trammell and chase Bob McClure, 4-8. Brookens clouted his fifth homer in the seventh on a 3-2 pitch from Milwaukee reliever Mike Caldwell to the roaring approval of 48,810 in Tiger Stadium.

"We didn't want to back into this thing, and we didn't," first baseman Dave Bergman said. "We went out and won it."

At the start of the eighth inning, a large detail of police marched out and ringed the field. Fans swarmed onto the field anyhow and continued to chant and sing outside the ballpark for nearly three hours after the game as police watched.

At least 25 arrests were reported shortly after the game.

San Diego Moves Closer To Flag

By The Associated Press

Terry Kennedy is glad to have his pitching staff in fine form once again. The San Diego Padres are thrilled to have Kennedy's bat back from a long vacation.

With Kennedy behind the plate, left-hander Dave Dravecky twirled a three-hit, complete-game as San Diego blanked Cincinnati 2-0 Tuesday. The victory enabled San Diego to reduce its magic number to four for clinching the National League West title. Any combination of San Diego victories and Houston losses totaling four would give the Padres their first-ever division crown. San Diego has 12 games remaining, Houston 11.

"I'm just glad the staff is back," said Kennedy, whose two-run homer provided all the offense San Diego needed. "That was my main concern. Those guys got us here, and those are the guys who are going to win it."

"At the start of the year, people said the Padres would go as far as their starters go," the veteran catcher added. "They've taken us a long way."

Chicago's magic number for clinching in the East remained at four as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Cubs 6-2 while the New York Mets stopped Philadelphia 8-5. Chicago, however, leads New York by eight games with only 12 to play.

In other games, Houston needed 10 innings to subdue San Francisco 5-4. Atlanta edged Los Angeles 6-5, and Montreal beat St. Louis 7-4.

The same experts who figured San Diego's pitching was a key also thought the burly Kennedy would probably have to approach his 1983 batting figures — a .284 batting average, 17 home runs and 98 runs batted in. But he hasn't come close to that kind of production until recently.

He has staggered most of the season in the .220s and his home run production has been helped by the

Rose Girls Win Opener

Rose High School's girls cross-country team came away with a 21-39 victory over Rocky Mount yesterday in the opening meet of the season.

Kristin Michel took second place overall in leading the Rose runners across the line. Third went to Becky Thompson, fourth to Jody Ross and fifth to Lisa Pagel. Layne King finished seventh, Kelly Jones, eighth; Gloria Gutierrez, ninth; Sarah Jones, 10th; Leigh Caldwell, 11th; Kristin Lang, 12th; Catherine Spencer, 13th; Kathy Scott, 15th; Debbie Morrison, 16th; Michele Hunt, 18th; and Becky Kirkland, 19th.

Other details were unavailable. Rose's boys also ran in the meet, but were defeated. The score and other details were not made available.

five homers he has slugged since Aug. 28.

"I've always been that way in September," said Kennedy, whose three hits raised his average to .240. "It's probably because I know the season's coming to an end and I get excited."

Carmelo Martinez led off the Padres' second inning with a single off Cincinnati starter Joe Price, 7-12, and Kennedy followed with a homer to right field.

Dravecky, 9-8, struck out three and walked just two for his first victory since July 30. It was his third complete game and second shutout of the season, in which he's divided time between the bullpen and the starting rotation.

Dravecky held the Reds hitless for 5 1-3 innings before Ron Oester broke the spell with a double. He permitted just a seventh-inning double to Cesar Cedeno and a ninth-inning single to rookie Wade R o w d o n .

Pirates 6, Cubs 2

Johnny Ray hit a homer and a triple and drove in four runs and Lee Lacy added a solo homer as the Pirates, despite their last-place standing in the East, won for the seventh time in 13 meetings with the Cubs.

John Tudor, 10-11, pitched the first five innings for Pittsburgh, allowing three hits and one run while striking out four. He left the game when his left elbow tightened up, and Don Robinson picked up his ninth save by working the last four innings.

Dennis Eckersley, 8-8, allowed just four hits and two earned runs in his seven innings.

The Cubs jumped to a 1-0 lead in the second when Leon Durham drilled his 22nd homer of the season, equalling his career-high set in 1982.

Lacy cracked his 12th homer in the fourth and Ray followed with his sixth round-tripper. Ray drove in another run with a grounder in the sixth before adding icing with a two-run triple in the eighth.

Mets 8, Phillies 5

Darryl Strawberry's three-run, ninth-inning home run gave the Mets a three-game advantage over the Phillies in what has developed into a battle for second place behind Chicago.

Pinch-hitter Rusty Staub opened the ninth with a single off Philadelphia reliever Larry Anderson, 3-4. Wally Backman sacrificed pinch-runner Ron Gardenhire to second and Mookie Wilson, who had tied the game with a three-run double in the seventh, was intentionally walked.

Al Holland came in and retired Keith Hernandez on a groundout but Strawberry hit his 23rd homer.

Reliever Tom Gorman improved his record to 5-0 by pitching two innings. Jesse Orosco worked the ninth for his 30th save.

Juan Samuel hit his 14th home run for the Phillies.

Astros 5, Giants 4

Craig Reynolds 10th-inning single scored Terry Puhl to give reliever Dave Smith, 5-3, a victory over Scott Garrelts, 1-2.

Puhl walked with one out in the 10th and went to third on Mark Bailey's single. Reynolds then belted the game-winning single.

The Astros tied the game in the ninth when pinch-hitter Jerry Mumphrey who had singled, came home on Phil Garner's triple to center off San Francisco reliever Gary Lavelle.

Houston starter Mike LaCoss, 7-5, lasted only one-third of an inning. Dan Gladden led off with a single, went to second on an infield out and scored on Chili Davis' single. A single by Dusty Baker and a walk to Bob Brenly loaded the bases and brought in Astro reliever Mike Madden. Madden then walked Scot

Wolfpack Tops Bucs

RALEIGH — East Carolina's soccer team suffered its fourth straight defeat and third straight shutout at the hands of a determined North Carolina State squad on the Wolfpack's home field Tuesday afternoon.

N.C. Satate scored both of its goals in the first half and within one minute of each other. With just 8:19 expired in the first half, Sadri Gjonbaccaj scored the opening goal. Teammate Sam Owoh made it 2-0 with his shot just 36 seconds later.

East Carolina goalie Jesse Daughtry had a busy day fighting off 30 shots on goal by the N.C. State squad. The Pirates were outshot, 30-5.

Thompson, forcing in Davis with the second run of the inning.

Braves 6, Dodgers 5

Chris Chambliss' pinch-hit, two-run double in the eighth inning lifted the Braves past the Dodgers. Pinch-hitter Randy Johnson singled with one out off Dodger reliever Burt Hooton, 3-5. Johnson was replaced by pinch-runner Albert Hall. When pinch-hitter Claudell Washington walked one out later, Hooton was replaced by Ken Howell, who yielded Chambliss' double to left field.

Gene Garber, 3-5, was credited with the victory. Donnie Moore pitched the final inning to earn his 16th save.

The Dodgers went ahead 5-4 lead in the seventh when Candy Maldonado singled in Dave Anderson, who had walked and stolen second.

The Braves led 4-3 lead in the fifth when Dale Murphy hit his 34th home run, but the Dodgers tied it on Greg Brock's leadoff homer, his 14th, in the sixth.

Expos 7, Cardinals 4

Bryan Little snapped a tie with a bloop double and Tim Wallach added a two-run double later in the seventh inning as the Expos denied Cardinals' starter Joaquin Andujar his 20th victory.

Montreal right-hander Bryn Smith, 12-12, was battered for four runs on five hits in the opening inning, but then restricted St. Louis to a lone single through seven innings. Andujar, meanwhile, dipped to 19-13 while failing a second time in six nights to become the major leagues' first 20-game winner.

Jeff Reardon pitched the final two innings for his 21st save.

Tim Lincecum had three hits and stole four bases to take over the National League lead with 70 thefts.

Switzer, Sooners Hopeful In 1984

By The Associated Press
 In 1973, Barry Switzer's first year as Oklahoma's head coach, the Sooners went 10-0-1.
 In 1974, they were (a) on NCAA probation, (b) 11-0-0, and won the national championship.
 In 1975, the Sooners won their first eight games. But they had the audacity to lose to Kansas 23-3 before going on to win another national championship. And that loss, which made Switzer's overall record 29-1-1 in what was then the toughest conference in the country, prompted this call from a disgruntled fan — obviously spoiled by

Oklahoma's record 47-game winning streak in the mid-1950s — to an Oklahoma City newspaper:
 "I told 'em when they hired that guy he'd lose a game every couple of years."
 From 1973 through 1980, Switzer's record was a stunning 83-9-2. The poorest years were 9-2-1 (1976) and 10-2 (1977, 1980). But the last three years have produced records of 7-4-1, 8-4-0 and 8-4-0. And, even though it came down to the Sooners against Nebraska for the Big Eight title each year, there was some grumbling at the school where a former president once said he hoped to build a university the football team could be proud of.

 No one had to tell Switzer that another 8-4-0, which might earn a coach a lifetime contract at some schools, would be frowned on at Oklahoma ... and Switzer says no one did.
 "No one ever said, 'Barry, you've got to win so many games or this year is your last year.' But at the same time, I know darn well that if we end up 7-5 or 8-4 there might be some problems."
 Switzer got the message last winter when the board of regents did not extend his contract, leaving him with four years instead of the customary five. "It puts us on notice that we need to get things going," was the coach's reaction then.

telegrams, more than we've had in a while," Switzer said Tuesday. "All the right people were smiling. People liked what they saw."
 Switzer also is smiling. The business problems with the Securities & Exchange Commission and Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. that had him in debt for almost $5 million — "For two years it's been a total nightmare" — have been cleared up, with a federal judge dismissing an SEC lawsuit against Switzer and six others. He took his medicine — $300 worth — on a charge of driving while impaired (a breath test showed a blood alcohol content of 0.12 percent; the legal level is 0.10) and that storm has blown over.

The new-old Wishbone offense has been impressive despite the absence of Spencer Tillman, last year's leading rusher, who has missed both games with a hamstring injury.
 "It's not a classic Wishbone," Switzer says. "We're a multiple offensive team running a three-back option offense. We're using a lot of formations — one-back, two-back, three-back sets. We have multiple sets, which lend themselves to the passing game. It's an advantage over the old Wishbone because we have a well-conceived passing game. We never had that in the past. We have more weapons than we've had in the past.

SNOW HILL — Greene Central High School swept a pair of volleyball matches from North Lenoir yesterday, but not without difficulty.

Gruber cited the play of Chris Holec, Darden, Kendra Harris, Amanda Smith, Debbie Seykora and Melissa Stanley in the match.

The Lady Rams struggled to a 17-15 win in the opening game of the first match, then came back with a 15-7 win in the second game.

Wilson took the opening game, 15-5, while Greenville came back with a 15-10 win in the second game. Wilson won the third and deciding game, 15-9.

Now 3-1, the Lady Rams host Goldsboro on Monday.

Amber Tripp led the Lady Knight serving, while Tammy Huggins was the leading hitter. Angie Vaughn led Wilson's servers with Melinda Deans pacing the hitting.

N. Pitt 2

GREENSBORO (AP) — Virginia freshman flanker John Ford, who had a 44.3-yards-per-reception in the Cavaliers' 35-7 victory over Virginia Military, has been named the Atlantic Coast Conference rookie of the week.

The 6-foot-1, 175-pound native of Belle Glade, Fla., who made his first varsity start against the Keydets, caught three passes for 133 yards and two touchdowns. He teamed up with quarterback Kevin Ferguson on scoring strikes of 28 and 89 yards. In the process, he set Virginia freshman records for touchdown catches and yardage.

The 89-yard scoring reception was the fifth longest pass play in Cavalier history.

Ford rounds out the selections for ACC players of the week. Earlier, Georgia Tech linebacker Ted Roof and defensive end Gary Baldinger were selected defensive players of the week. The Yellow Jackets' tailback Robert Lavette and the Demon Deacons' center Michael Nessel were picks as offensive players of the week.

All of the selections for ACC players of the week are made by a special committee of the Atlantic Coast Sportswriters Association.

Rose Downs Goldsboro

GOLDSBORO — Rose High School got a shutout performance from goalie Lee Lewis as the Rampants scored a 3-0 soccer victory over Goldsboro yesterday.

David Lee scored the only goal of the first half at the six minute mark, with an assist by Jim Carter.

Then, 21 minutes into the second half, Doug Bray scored on a corner kick, assisted by Hutton Cobb and Bobby Sullivan. The final goal came in the last three minutes when David Ely scored on a penalty kick.

For Lewis, it was his first shutout as goalie.

"The defense played very well," Coach Will Wiberg said. "Tommy Perkins had a very good game. Our offense missed on a number of fine opportunities to score, however, and I look for better play on Thursday."

Rose opens its Big East schedule against Rocky Mount on Thursday at 4 p.m. Rose is now 3-1 on the year.

Fog Forces Pope To Call Off Trip To Indian Village

FORT SIMPSON, Northwest Territories (AP) — Pilgrims who traveled vast distances to catch a glimpse of the pope suffered a second disappointment when they learned he would not stop today at this island village.

An Indian drum dance near the site where the pontiff was to speak was interrupted Tuesday night with the announcement that Pope John Paul II would fly directly from Vancouver to Ottawa today.

Moans of disappointment and cries of "No" filled the drum circle as Jim Antoine, president of the Fort Simpson band of Dene Indians, broke the news to the people in Slavey, their native tongue.

The pontiff had been scheduled to spend three hours at Fort Simpson on Tuesday morning, but a dense, chilly fog clung to the area, forcing the papal aircraft to be diverted first to Yellowknife and then on to Vancouver.

He had planned to declare his support for the efforts by Canadians and Eskimos to win self-government, including "a land base with adequate resources."

Many Indian and Eskimo groups have been negotiating with the Canadian government for years over their claims to land, resources and the right to set up their own governments.

The pope had agreed to attempt a visit to Fort Simpson today, but those plans were abandoned for reasons of security, poor weather forecasts and "the precedent it would set," Antoine said.

"It's a sad occasion, very emotional for a lot of people who have come many miles to see the pope," Antoine said.

"We've had disappointments before for the government and other institutions, why not from the church?" said Joe Mercredi, a resident of Fort Simpson.

The pope had extended an invitation to the native leaders to meet with him in Ottawa, the last stop of his 12-day Canadian tour, but they declined.

"We have been invited to go to Ottawa tomorrow morning, quick like a bunny, and meet with the Holy Father tomorrow afternoon," said David Ahenakew, president of the Assembly of First Nations, Canada's largest organization of Indians.

"I don't feel that would be right to go to Ottawa and leave you here with your disappointment," Ahenakew said. "We have declined the invitation to go to Ottawa tomorrow. It is not out of disrespect."

But Ahenakew said he was pleased with the pope's message, which he called "absolutely the statement we were hoping for."

"We believe Pope John Paul has tried everything he could be with us," said Steven Kakwi, president of the Dene Nation, which represents some 12,000 Indians. "No one leaves here except feeling stronger for having been here."

The leaders urged the saddened pilgrims to remain in town and attend a religious service this morning at the 50-foot white teepee that had been built on the bank of the Mackenzie River for the pope's visit.

"We've always had ourselves, and we will always continue to have ourselves," Antoine said.

The announcements over, the drumming resumed, and the dancing and chanting continued into the cold night.

Seven Miners Die In Clash With South African Police

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Seven black miners were killed and scores injured in clashes with police during a wildcat strike at a non-union gold mine, police said today.

In addition to seven dead, 89 black miners were wounded in several hours of fighting Tuesday at the Western Areas Gold Mine, said Lt. Derick van der Walt at police headquarters in Pretoria. The Rand Daily Mail said the injury toll was at least 140 after police opened fire on the illegal strikers during a six-hour rampage.

None of the 9,000 black employees at the mine reported for work today, the South African Press Association said.

A second illegal strike at Hartbeestfontein Gold Mine, also west of Johannesburg, spread to about 10,000 day shift workers out of 12,000, said Anglovaal Ltd. spokesman Ray Moore.

The two wildcat strikes spread after unionized black miners at seven other gold mines accepted a revised pay offer from Anglo American Corp. after refusing to work for 36 hours. It was the first time black miners had challenged the mining industry through legal collective bargaining and strike action.

Moore said the miners at Hartbeestfontein were given an ultimatum this morning: "Either you return to work or we pay you off."

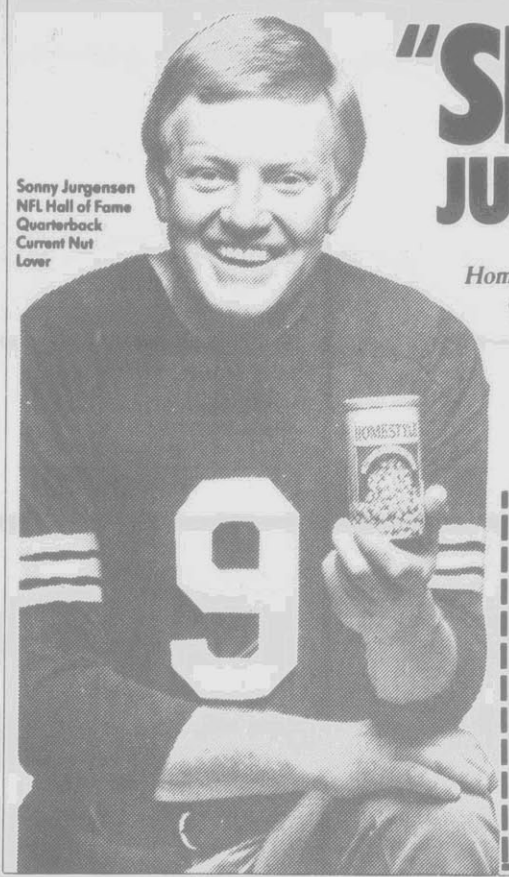

The workers had demanded immediate recognition as part of the National Union of Mineworkers. Moore said the workers were told the union's application was being considered.

A fight broke out during the night between workers who wanted to return and others who wanted to strike, and one man was stabbed, Moore said. Mine security officers used tear gas to end the disturbance, he said.

Since black unions were legalized four years ago, the National Union of Mineworkers has grown quickly and is seen as a potentially powerful force in the gold mining industry, which employs more than 400,000 blacks and produces half of South Africa's export revenues.

Work returned to normal at the Durban Rodepoort Deep mine after 111 workers were injured there Monday in an impromptu illegal strike, said the owner company, Rand Mines.

Exiles Returning To Homelands

By RICHARD BOU-DREAU
Associated Press Writer

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — As military rule slowly gives way to civilian government across South America, many of the thousands of political exiles who either fled or were banished are returning to their homelands.

Human rights groups speak of an exodus of several million people during the past generation. But a majority of those left for better jobs, or because they felt vaguely uneasy about the repressive political climate, and many took undue advantage of political refugee status offered by foreign governments.

Nonetheless, by the most conservative estimates, about 100,000 political activists, labor leaders and intellectuals were forced out of their home countries by government order or fear of imminent arrest, torture and execution by military regimes trying to crush leftist dissent in South America's six southernmost nations.

Now, from as far as Finland and Malaysia, they are trickling back to help rebuild democratic institutions, or simply replant their roots in native soil. But the homecoming is as uneven as the region's return to constitutional rule and it is limited by its worst recession since the 1930s.

Most of the 3,000 Bolivians who fled after a 1980 military takeover have gone back since one of them, Hernan Siles Zuazo, assumed the presidency in 1982. Argentina's return to civilian rule last December has brought home thousands of dissidents who left after a 1976 coup.

In Paraguay, ruled for three decades by Gen. Alfredo Stroessner, the region's most entrenched strongman, opposition party leaders were invited to return home last December and about 30 did so.

The generals who have been in control in Chile and Uruguay since 1973 were slower to relax their grip, but have let hundreds of exiles come back. As in Paraguay, they seem to have stopped banishing their opponents.

In July, three Communists were arrested in Chile and flown to Argentina, where they refused to seek political asylum. They were flown back to Chile, then expelled again to Colombia, where that government also supported their cause and flew them back home.

It was the first successful challenge to Chilean President Augusto Pinochet by any of the estimated 37,000 critics he has banished by decree. On Aug. 4, his regime canceled the orders to expel the Communists and confined them instead to villages inside the country.

Pinochet's foes hailed the cooperation of Argentina's and Colombia's elected leaders as a step toward curbing forced exile — a punishment that has survived more than 150 years of Western-style constitutions in Latin America.

"The last year of exile is just as dramatic as the first," says Christian Democratic leader Andres Zaldivar, a former Chilean exile. "The tension of both periods breaks up a lot of families."

President Raul Alfonsin is urging all Argentines living abroad to return and help unify their country after a decade of militarism and violence. Hipolito Solari Irigoyen, who was held in a clandestine jail and then spent six years in exile, has been named roving ambassador in charge of repatriation.

Journalists and intellectuals are back in large numbers, lured by what Jacobo Timerman, Argentina's best-known former exile, found last March to be "an explosion of ideas and feelings held back for so long."

A colder reception awaits those going back to countries still under military rule. In Chile, 5,100 exiles have been authorized to return since Christmas 1982, but many are barred from public service or teaching jobs. About 1,000 have actually come home.

"A lot of them don't feel accepted," says Humberto Largo, who heads a repatriation program for Santiago's Roman Catholic archdiocese. "They feel like exiles in their own country."

In few ways Western statesmen can appreciate, exile has a major impact on Latin American politics. In 1980, Hernan Siles Zuazo was elected president of Bolivia, only to have his inauguration blocked by the military. Disguised as an Indian peasant, he slipped across Lake Titicaca in a boat to Peru.

Having spent 15 of the last 24 years in exile, the 70-year-old Siles returned to office in 1982. But his coalition government is in disarray — torn, in part, by quarreling between a "palace guard" of aides who joined him in comfortable Peruvian asylum and a faction that stayed underground in Bolivia to wage resistance against the military.

In Chile, Pinochet's use of forced exile, a weapon legalized by his own constitution, has weakened leftist parties. But it has isolated his regime from international diplomatic and economic support.

As serious unrest broke out at home last year, Pinochet stepped up a limited amnesty program to let 15 opposition leaders and thousands of other exiles come home, then slowed it down as the conciliatory approach worked to defuse massive street protests.

The civilian official in charge of Chile's amnesty program, Alberto Cardemil, is a reluctant defender of forced exile. "As a Catholic, I lament the human suffering," he says. "But unfortunately, there are Chileans who advocate violence and destabilization. Of course, we cannot let them back in."

Leftists returning to Chile, Uruguay and Brazil have reinforced political movements trying to hasten the end of military rule. But many, particularly those who lived in Southern Europe, say they have brought home ideals of democratic socialism more conciliatory and "realistic" than the ones they left with.

Stop Added

RALEIGH (AP) — State transportation officials, who are still aiming for an Oct. 28 start-up of a new Amtrak passenger train across the Piedmont, have added Kannapolis to the list of stops.

David King, director of public transportation for the state, said the Kannapolis stop should generate riders because the mill town is turning its historic downtown into a mall with outlet stores that could attract shoppers from all over the Piedmont.

The town is planning to restore the old passenger station where Southern Railway passenger trains used to stop. King said town officials approached the state about adding Kannapolis to the route.

U.S. Doubles Salvadoran Helicopter Fleet

By ARTHUR ALLEN
Associated Press Writer

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The chairman of the joint chiefs of staff confirmed that the United States is doubling El Salvador's fleet of large military helicopters and said the extra aircraft will greatly aid the fight against leftist rebels.

Col. Adolfo G. Blandon, in an interview Tuesday, said the government expects to receive at least 10 more UH-1H helicopters in the next few months.

There were 22 UH-1Hs in El Salvador in July. Ten more already have been added, and a U.S. official said another 10 to 15 will arrive by December. A UH-1H can carry 10 soldiers and is equipped with side-mounted M-60 machine guns.

In another Central American development, Nicaragua's defense minister said Tuesday his leftist government "will not renounce its right" to acquire Soviet MiG-type jet fighters despite U.S. opposition.

The U.S. official in El Salvador, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said expansion of the helicopter fleet was made possible by the $70 million in aid approved by Congress in July.

The official said the benefits of the helicopters were demonstrated last June 28 when the army repulsed rebels from the important Cerron Grande dam, with a 500-man force flown to the area about five hours after the attack began.

More than 120 soldiers died in the battle, but the government claimed a partial victory because the guerrillas were driven off before they could substantially sabotage the dam.

The increased tactical mobility the helicopters provide has long been sought by military planners, the U.S. official said, but previous U.S. aid has been insufficient for substantial changes.

The 1984 U.S. military aid package to El Salvador totals $196 million, compared with $81 million last year and $55 million in 1982.

"We got everything in little bits," Blandon said. "This aid will help complement our forces."

Leftist guerrillas have been fighting the Salvadoran government for five years.

Nicaragua's defense minister, Humberto Ortega, said his country is negotiating to obtain MiG-type airplanes, but he did not provide details and declined to say how many planes his country wants to buy.

"It would be a danger (to the United States) to install Soviet bases in Nicaragua, but really, to acquire MiG-type airplanes is not any danger to the United States," Ortega said at a news conference at the Nicaraguan Embassy in Mexico City.

American Is Blamed For Attack

MONTREAL (AP) — A coroner's inquest ruled that New York state native Thomas Brigham was "criminally responsible" for the Labor Day bombing that killed three French tourists at Montreal's main railway station.

Crown attorney Claude Parent said charges would be filed today in Session Court against Brigham, 65, in connection with the deaths.

As police led him from the inquest Tuesday, Brigham shouted, "I am above the hypocrisy of the court."

The ruling ended a two-day inquiry during which 20 witnesses testified. Parent said he did not call Brigham to testify because, "I do not believe his state (of mind) justifies that he be heard."

Brigham was declared mentally incompetent by an Ohio judge in 1975. A native of Rochester, N.Y., he has lived in a downtown Montreal rooming house for several months.

Parent said notes sent by Brigham or found in his possession were sufficient evidence to warrant criminal charges. But defense attorney Pierre Poupart said there was "not one iota of evidence" that Brigham engineered the bombing.

Testimony indicated Brigham was at the station minutes before the bomb exploded, but Poupart told reporters "mere presence at the scene of a crime is not a crime."

Cyrille Delage, the Quebec City fire commissioner appointed by the provincial government to conduct the inquiry, said the evidence was "rather unusual and very circumstantial," but he had no choice but to render the verdict.

Coroners' inquests are held in Quebec province to determine if there is criminal responsibility in violent or suspicious deaths.

Delage cited a note he said was found in Brigham's room the night of the bombing. Dated April 22, it read: "The thing is, we want to explode the thing as quickly as possible and before the U.S. primaries are over and the Pope's visit has become too established."

Delage also noted that on several of the dozen or so handwritten notes introduced as evidence, "9.30 a.m." and "Sept. 3" were prominently mentioned.

The bomb exploded in a baggage locker at Central Station at 10:20 a.m. Sept. 3, one week before Pope John Paul II began his 12-day tour of Canada.

Police witnesses testified the explosion was caused by an "unusual and relatively complex" pipe bomb.

A police expert said the bomb contained nitroglycerine and gasoline and its explosive force was equivalent to "seven to 10 pounds of dynamite."

Bill Allows Heroin As Treatment

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill to allow the use of heroin to treat severe pain in terminal cancer patients is called a compassionate measure by supporters while opponents argue it will undermine efforts to curb illegal drugs.

The House moved today toward a vote on the measure, which was the subject of several hours of debate on Tuesday.

The bill, opposed by the Reagan administration and the American Medical Association, would establish a four-year research program to make heroin available through a limited number of hospital pharmacies on the written prescription of a licensed physician.

Under the legislation, physicians could prescribe heroin only after conventional painkillers had been tried on a patient and found to be ineffective.

Rep. Stewart McKinney, R-Conn., said he could not understand why, when there is 4.3 million metric tons of heroin available each year illegally in the United States, some could not be given to dying cancer patients to treat pain that is not relieved by other drugs.

"Pharmacies are cornucopias of junk that will boggle your mind, screw up your brain and eventually kill you," McKinney said. "There is no substance in the world that's going to affect man's mind, from booze on up, that isn't going to be abused."

But Rep. Harold S. Sawyer, R-Mich., told his colleagues, "this is totally unnecessary. There are more potent painkillers on the market and available to physicians."

He said "there is no excuse for opening up the potential diversion problem" in which drugs provided for humane purposes would be used illegally. "What's needed is additional education of doctors to cope with pain," Sawyer said.

"Each year the federal government seizes hundreds of pounds of heroin illegally smuggled into this country," said Rep. Henry A. Waxman, D-Calif., chief sponsor of the bill.

ICC Rate Decision Overturned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interstate Commerce Commission acted illegally when it let railroads that ship coal for export set their prices without government control, the U.S. Court of Appeals has ruled.

The three-judge panel decided unanimously Tuesday that the ICC's action, which took last September, "was not in accordance with the law," because it enabled railroads that are the sole suppliers of coal to some exporters to charge inflated prices.

"ICC's opinion is premised on the general finding that in the absence of regulation, railroads would be sufficiently constrained by various forms of competition that they would not be expected to abuse any market power they might hold," Judge James Skelly Wright wrote in the opinion filed for the court.

"We have found the commission's understanding of that statutory phrase (abuse of market power) to be unreasonable in that it largely ignores the protections Congress meant to guarantee to shippers," Wright concluded.

The ICC rule exempted railroads that ship foreign-bound coal from provisions of the Interstate Commerce Act and the 1980 Staggers Rail Act, an amendment amendment to the commerce law designed to lift regulatory burdens from railroads.

The National Coal Association and the Coal Exporters Association filed suit against the ICC, arguing that because about 85 percent of U.S. exporters must rely on a single railroad for coal shipments, the ICC's rule provided an unfair advantage to those monopoly rail lines and a disadvantage to shippers and overseas customers.

"The Staggers Act mandated that a balance be struck between the needs of shippers and the needs of the railroads. The ICC has consistently failed to heed that mandate, and today's ruling demonstrates that the ICC has been acting improperly," National Coal Association President Carl E. Bagge said following the appeals court ruling.

"The decision also serves as a positive signal to foreign buyers of U.S. coal that our coal can be supplied in the world marketplace at reasonably assured prices," Bagge said.

The appeals court said it sent the case back to the ICC "for any further proceedings that may be appropriate." Donald Shaw, an official in the ICC's rail operations division, said the commission may either accept the court's ruling or re-open the case. Eventually, it could attempt to reinstate its ruling on different legal grounds, he said.

Intervenors in the case included Norfolk & Western Railway Co., Coastal States Energy Co., Nippon Steel Corp., and the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway Co. Norfolk & Western has since merged with the Southern Railway Co. and is now the Norfolk Southern Corp.

Coal Talks Are Racing Against Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bargainers for the United Mine Workers and the soft coal industry continue to strive for agreement on a new contract, but time is running short.

Unless the 160,000-member UMW waives a longstanding practice of refusing to send its members to the mines without a contract, the two sides would need a tentative settlement by around Thursday or later in the week.

Because it takes roughly 10 days for the union to complete the process of conducting a mail referendum ratification vote, any agreement reached after this week would bump up against the Oct. 1 expiration of the current pact.

The negotiating teams, led by UMW President Richard Trumka and Consolidation Coal Co. chief executive officer Bobby R. Brown, met Tuesday at a downtown hotel and were scheduled to meet again today.

In keeping with a self-imposed news blackout, spokesmen for the two sides would not discuss the issues blocking agreement or say whether any progress was being made.

But coal industry analyst Seth Schwartz of Energy Ventures Inc., an Arlington, Va., consulting firm, said he believes wage and other economic issues do not represent the major obstacle to a settlement.

UMW members working in mines in the western part of the United States accepted contracts with wage gains of around 10 to 14 percent over three to three and a half years. In the current national soft coal contract, union members won wage gains averaging 37.5 percent over three years. A typical union miner now makes well over $14 an hour.

More Auto Strikes Set

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union said today it has authorized strikes against four more General Motors Corp. plants, closing about half the assembly capacity of the world's largest automaker.

The escalation of the labor conflict will put 92,000 of GM's 350,000 UAW members on the picket line and is expected to further hurt GM's parts pipeline supplying the assembly plants.

Negotiations between the UAW and GM were scheduled to resume at 9:30 a.m. today. The two sides negotiated Tuesday for 16 hours, except for short breaks, with the UAW offering a proposal which it said could end the talks and the automaker giving its response.

Already, 8,000 non-striking workers have been laid off by GM because the parts they make have nowhere to go.

The latest layoffs followed selective strikes over local issues called at midnight Friday against 12 assembly plants and one research center.

The walkouts coincided with the expiration of GM's national contract and 149 local contracts.

Although the strikes have been authorized on local issues, many local union leaders say the leadership is using local issues as a guise for national strikes.

The strategy of authorizing strikes on local issues allows the UAW to hurt GM without leaving the bargaining table.

UAW President Owen Bieber hasn't set a national strike deadline.

The latest union announcement, at just before 1 a.m. today, came nine hours after Bieber called a news conference to say he had made a bargaining proposal that "hopefully could conclude these negotiations."

Bieber gave no details of the union proposal, and said many "sticking points" remained in the talks.

But he said progress had been made on job security, the union's top issue, and wages.

"I think that the document that we're working with will meet the objectives that we sought to obtain in job security," Bieber had said.

But the company sent spokesman John Mueller to meet with reporters later Tuesday night to say GM had delivered a "response" to the union's proposal. Mueller would not elaborate.

The union's new strike announcement came less than four hours later.

The newly struck plants are: Oldsmobile main assembly, Lansing, Mich., 13,772 workers; Cadillac assembly, Detroit, 7,001 workers; GM Truck & Bus, Flint, Mich., 5,790 members; and GM Truck & Bus, stamping plant, Indianapolis, 2,854 workers.

A Wall Street analyst estimated the company's losses at $27 million a day before the four new strikes.

UAW members at the Van Nuys, Calif., GM plant voted 1,750-559 Tuesday to remain on strike until a national settlement is reached with the automaker, the union said.

"We didn't want to become the first (UAW) local to cave in to GM," one union member said after the vote.

"We are sorry to see that they have decided to go in that direction," said GM spokesman Harry Kelly.

The Van Nuys workers didn't vote on whether to ratify a tentative pact reached Sunday that covered local issues.

The workers returned to the job briefly Monday under orders from the UAW headquarters in Detroit, but were pulled off the assembly line after only a few hours by local union leaders.

"We're going to continue to strike until we have a national agreement," said Pete Beltran, president of UAW Local 645 at the factory with 4,200 union workers.

The UAW picked GM as its national strike target this year, and says any agreement with the automaker will be a model in its talks with Ford Motor Co., which employs another 115,000 UAW members.

Anniversary

BASSETTERRE, St. Kitts (AP) — The tiny former British colony of St. Kitts-Nevis today marked its first anniversary as an independent nation.

The nation's two islands, with a combined population 44,000, have been bound together since 1623 when they became Great Britain's first colony in the Caribbean.

Prime Minister Kennedy Simmonds, in an interview with The Associated Press, said he has no fears the country will be split apart under independence, despite a controversial constitution granting Nevis substantial autonomy and the unilateral right to secede from the federation.

"I always believed that the people of St. Kitts and Nevis are inextricably bound ... and that the problems of disunity were at the leadership level," Simmonds said.

ABC Wins Ratings; CBS Has Top Show

LOS ANGELES (AP) — CBS no doubt is hoping it has another "M-A-S-H" on its hands after the first-place ratings debut of "E.R.," its hospital emergency room comedy.

The new series was the No. 1 show and CBS had six shows in the Top 10 for the week ended Sept. 16. Nevertheless, CBS fell to second place in the Nielsen ratings as ABC regained first place. NBC was third.

CBS would not be remiss in comparing "E.R." to "M-A-S-H." It has somewhat of the flavor of a civilian equivalent and its star, Elliott Gould, plays a doctor as irreverent as his role as Trapper John in the movie "M-A-S-H."

ABC was the top network for the week despite having only two shows in the Top 10. The network placed eight shows in the next 10. NBC also had two shows in the Top 10.

ABC's highest-rated show was the seventh-place movie debut of the new fall series "Hawaiian Heat." The network's Monday Night NFL Football was tenth.

The movie premiere of NBC's new "Miami Vice" series was second and its coverage of the "Miss America Pageant" tied for third with CBS' "60 Minutes."

No other new shows made the Top 10. ABC's "Glitter" was 12th; NBC's "Punky Brewster" was 38th; the new CBS movie "Threesome" was 46th. The season premiere of CBS' "60 Minutes" was fourth. The fall season doesn't officially get under way until Monday, Sept. 24, but the networks got off to an early start.

ABC won the week with a network average of 14.1 in the A.C. Nielsen Co. survey. CBS was second with 13.7, and NBC was third with 12.6. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute 14.1 percent of the homes with television were tuned to ABC.

The Top 10 were: CBS' "E.R.," first; NBC's "Miami Vice," second; NBC's "Miss America Pageant" and CBS' "60 Minutes," tied for third; the CBS movie "Some Kind of Hero," fifth; CBS' "Cagney & Lacey," sixth; ABC's "Hawaiian Heat," seventh; CBS' "Newhart," eighth; CBS' "Kate & Allie," ninth; ABC's Monday Night NFL Football, Washington vs. San Francisco, tenth.

The lowest-rated show of the week was the NBC pilot "Cracker Brothers." The bottom five in ending order were: CBS' "Airwolf," CBS' "Saturday Morning Preview," CBS' "AfterMASH," ABC's "Ripley's Believe It or Not," and NBC's "Cracker Brothers."

CBS remained on top among the evening news shows. ABC was second and NBC third. The ratings: CBS 11.7, ABC 9.7, NBC 9.2.

Here are the week's top 20 shows:

1. "E.R.," CBS, a rating of 23.0 or 19.5 million households.
2. Movie—"Miami Vice," NBC, 22.8 or 19.3 million.
3. "Miss America Pageant," NBC, 22.1 or 18.7 million.
3. Tie—"60 Minutes," CBS, 22.1 or 18.7 million.
5. Movie—"Some Kind of Hero," CBS, 19.5 or 16.5 million.
6. "Cagney & Lacey," CBS, 19.4 or 16.4 million.
7. "Hawaiian Heat," ABC, 19.1 or 16.2 million.
8. "Newhart," CBS, 19.0 or 16.1 million.
9. "Kate & Allie," CBS, 18.9 or 16.0 million.
10. Monday Night NFL Football, ABC, 16.8 or 14.2 million.
11. CBS NFL Football (prime-time runover), CBS, 16.5 or 14.0 million.
12. "Glitter," ABC, 15.9 or 13.4 million.
13. "Webster," ABC, 15.5 or 13.1 million.
14. "Dynasty," ABC, 15.0 or 12.7 million.
15. "Simon & Simon," CBS, 14.9 or 12.6 million.
16. "20-20," ABC, 14.8 or 12.5 million.
16. Tie-Movie—"Having It All," ABC, 14.8 or 12.5 million.

Wilder Kept Wedding Secret

SAINT-PAUL-DE-VEENCE, France (AP) — Actor-director Gene Wilder says he kept his wedding to comedian Gilda Radner a secret until the last minute because "I didn't want the most beautiful day of my life to turn into a publicity operation."

Wilder, 49, and Miss Radner, 37, the actress-comedian who gained fame on the original cast of "Saturday Night Live," were wed Tuesday in a private civil ceremony in this town in the south of France.

After the ceremony, attended by eight guests, Wilder said he had chosen the town for the wedding because, "When I took Gilda for a walk in the hills, she never before seemed so calm, so relaxed, so happy."

Miss Radner, who's in Wilder's latest movie, "The Woman in Red," arrived at the town hall carrying her Yorkshire terrier Sparkle and a bouquet of orchids. Afterward, she snapped pictures of her husband with a small camera she took from her purse.

They plan a honeymoon, but Wilder said where is "a secret."

Separation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — No divorce proceedings have been started and "nobody's seeing a lawyer," but John De Lorean and his wife, Cristina, have moved to separate addresses as he continues his legal battles and she pursues a career as a talk show host.

Confirmation of the separation came Tuesday from the attorney who successfully defended De Lorean, the former sports car manufacturer, on federal drug trafficking charges. De Lorean was acquitted Aug. 16.

"It was a little too much pressure for anybody to handle," said attorney Howard Weitzman. "Cristina was there, day and night. John was there, day and night. They decided to take a little bit of a break."

Role As Truman Said Difficult

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Actor Kevin McCarthy says his stage portrayal of Harry Truman is the most difficult acting job of his long career.

The 70-year-old McCarthy is presenting "Give 'Em Hell, Harry," a one-man play by Samuel Gallu, through Sunday night at the University of Hartford's Lincoln Theater in West Hartford.

The actor, who starred in the 1956 movie "Invasion of the Body Snatchers" and is frequently seen on TV, most recently in "Flamingo Road," said Tuesday that his involvement with the Truman role over the past six years has brought a steadily growing respect for the Missourian who was president from 1945 to 1953.

McCarthy says the most memorable of his Truman performances was one two years ago attended by Margaret Truman Daniel.

Her review: "Kevin McCarthy is superb as my father."

Democrats See Success In Defeat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although their bill to overhaul the insanity defense was defeated, House Democrats say they may have won a campaign issue to counter President Reagan's charge that they're soft on crime.

The Democrats' version of a new insanity law fell short by 39 votes Tuesday, following complaints by Republicans that it wasn't tough enough.

Still, the GOP opponents are on record as defeating a bill designed to prevent most federal defendants — be they presidential assailants or small-time drug dealers — from winning acquittal by pleading insanity.

"Oh, sure," responded Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., when asked whether Democrats might use the bill's defeat as a campaign issue.

Conyers, floor manager for the legislation, said it was needed "to restore public confidence in the criminal justice system" following John W. Hinckley's successful insanity defense at his trial for shooting Reagan in 1981.

The opposition was led by a self-styled hardliner on crime issues, Rep. George W. Gekas, R-Pa., who acknowledged "some Republicans were uncomfortable" with his position.

But he told a reporter the vote was "politically well explainable" for law-and-order Republicans and commented, "I take that chance."

"Serious flaws exist in the bill," Gekas said in a floor speech. "If it was in effect when Hinckley was on trial, he not only would have walked out of the courtroom, but there's a possibility that he would not have walked into the hospital."

Hinckley, acquitted by reason of insanity on June 21, 1982, is in a federal mental institution in Washington for shooting Reagan, White House press secretary James Brady and two law enforcement officers.

The vote was 225-171 in favor of the bill, short of the 264 votes needed under a special rule that required two-thirds passage. The party breakdown showed 121 Republicans and 50 Democrats opposing the bill, while 192 Democrats and 33 Republicans supported it.

Despite the Republicans' dilemma, Conyers said he would press for another vote before adjournment, this time under a rule allowing a majority vote for passage and votes on amendments. The rule used Tuesday permitted only an up-or-down vote on the legislation brought to the floor, without amendments.

Conyers said he attempted to pass the bill under the two-thirds rule because "We figured the Republicans would support it." He said accommodations were made in the bill to win GOP backing that did not materialize.

McFarlane Sees New Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan does not consider the Soviet Union an "untrustworthy" partner in nuclear arms talks despite reports of massive treaty violations, according to the White House national security adviser.

While Democratic presidential candidate Walter F. Mondale has questioned Reagan's commitment to arms control, national security adviser Robert C. McFarlane predicts the suspended arms talks could resume by spring if the president is re-elected.

Briefing the president daily has convinced him that if Reagan is re-elected, his "passion and pre-occupation" would be a genuine reduction in U.S. and Soviet nuclear weapons, McFarlane said Tuesday night.

Arms control is one of the principal issues in the Reagan-Mondale contest, with the two candidates staking out contrasting positions.

Reagan has ruled out inducements to reopen the stalled talks while Mondale has proposed a moratorium on new weapons tests and a negotiated freeze.

Reagan reported breaches of a half-dozen accords in January to Congress. An advisory committee found others. Its report, due to be submitted to Congress and its key findings made public, is being held up possibly until after Reagan's meeting Sept. 28 with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Some conservatives in Congress have questioned whether the United States should keep on negotiating with the Soviet Union in light of its past record.

But McFarlane said Reagan does not accept the view that "the Soviet Union is so unreliable and so untrustworthy as to rule out the very idea of agreeing to something with them in the future."

Answering questions at Johns Hopkins University's School of Advanced International Studies, he said "the president does not believe that."

Rather, McFarlane said, "he believes strongly there is no alternative to seeking reductions of nuclear weapons" and that "these lessons from the past" should be used to strengthen future agreements with such measures as more effective verification.

"We will tell it like it is," McFarlane said. "When the Soviet Union violates a treaty it is important that we know that, for our own security, as well as the American people know it so they can know and be very rational about how to deal with this kind behavior."

He added: "That is to say, you don't stop trying."

U.S.-Soviet negotiations on nuclear weapons have been in suspension for nearly 10 months. McFarlane predicted that talks with the Soviets will be resumed on this and other issues by next spring if Reagan is re-elected. "We are ready with flexible positions, imaginative options," he said.

McFarlane rejected a suggestion that the president sought military superiority over the Soviets.

Forecasters Say Storms Stabilized

MIAMI (AP) — A tropical storm off the African coast moved slowly out into the mid-Atlantic today while another swirled away from Bermuda, but forecasters said they didn't expect them to strengthen soon.

The weather systems were the sixth and seventh tropical storms of this year's Atlantic hurricane season, which runs through November.

Fran's winds were clocked around 45 mph, the National Hurricane Center said at 10:30 p.m. EDT Tuesday. Satellite pictures and isolated ship reports put Fran near latitude 21.8 north, longitude 34.5 west, or about 750 miles northwest of the Cape Verde Islands off the west coast of Africa.

Fran was moving west-northwest about 15 mph and was expected to maintain the same speed and direction for the next 24 hours, forecasters said. "Little change in strength is likely" today, forecasters said.

Maximum wind speeds within Gustav reached 50 mph. Its "poorly defined center" was located near latitude 33.0 north, longitude 63.5 west, or about 75 miles northeast of the island of Bermuda, the weather service said.

Gale force winds — between 40 mph and 50 mph — extended about 400 miles north of the center in North Atlantic shipping lanes, said hurricane center forecaster Miles Lawrence. The storm was not expected to strengthen before tonight.

Tropical storms are named when winds reach sustained strengths of at least 39 mph. When winds increase to at least 74 mph, the storms are upgraded to hurricanes.

Hong Kong Agreement Announced

PEKING (AP) — After two years of bargaining, Britain and China today announced completion of a draft agreement on how Peking will regain sovereignty over Hong Kong when the 99-year British lease on the colony expires in 1997.

Spokesmen for both countries said their negotiators had agreed on the text of an accord on the transfer of Hong Kong and had submitted it to their governments. Final differences over nationality, land sales and aviation were resolved by members of a working group which worked feverishly to meet China's deadline for completion of an agreement by the end of September.

Asked if all disputed issues were resolved, a British source said: "We couldn't have submitted draft texts otherwise."

Immediate reaction was favorable in Hong Kong, where the Hang Seng Stock Market Index rose 8.87 points. Uncertainty over the colony's future adversely affected the property market, stocks and the Hong Kong dollar during the negotiations, which began in September 1982.

The agreement was first announced by a British Embassy spokesman who said: "Draft texts have now been submitted by delegations to governments on both sides for consideration."

The same statement was read three hours later by Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman Wang Zhenyu at a news briefing.

China has pledged to maintain the capitalist system of the trading center on its southern coast for 50 years after 1997. Hong Kong will become a "special administrative region" of communist China under a "one country, two systems" policy.

News reports said the draft text covers how China will administer the territory of 5.5 million people after 1997, land policies, and the role of the joint liaison group that will monitor the implementation of the agreement.

The working group that tackled the final disputed issues — land sales, nationality of residents, and aviation rights — has finished its task and some members have left Peking.

No date has been set for the final 23rd round of formal talks between teams led by British Ambassador Sir Richard Evans and China's assistant foreign minister, Zhou Nan.

But sources said the talks likely would be held next Tuesday and plans call for Evans and Zhou to initial the agreement the same day.

The draft agreement must be approved by the governments of both China and Britain before the initialing. Mrs. Thatcher's Cabinet is expected to consider it Thursday.

Following the initialing, an assessment office in Hong Kong will gauge public reaction in the colony and convey its assessment to London, where the British Parliament will debate and then vote on the agreement.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: V equals G

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. FOCUS

The Irrepressible Conflict

Civil War historians will remember that on this day in 1863, the Union forces suffered a major defeat in the battle of Chickamauga. The entire army under the command of General William S. Rosecrans was badly mauled and forced to retreat from Georgia into Chattanooga. More than 28,000 soldiers died in this battle. This still doesn't surpass the agony of Gettysburg, where over 40,000 died. The wagon train carrying Lee's wounded men from Gettysburg was 17 miles long.

DO YOU KNOW — What Confederate general defeated Rosecrans in the battle of Chickamauga?

TUESDAY'S ANSWER — Sir Joshua Reynolds painted Samuel Johnson's portrait.

Actress Says She Took First Step

NEW YORK (AP) — Mary Tyler Moore says she was the one who called to ask her husband for their first date — at 2 o'clock in the morning.

The actress said she met Dr. Robert Levine, 16 years her junior, when he treated her mother for a bronchial infection. The day he sent her mother home from the hospital, she recalled, he told them to call him at home "any time in an emergency."

The "emergency" occurred just a few nights later when Miss Moore, feeling lonely, decided to phone the young doctor.

"I knew I wanted to see him again," she said in an interview in October's Good Housekeeping magazine.

Most of us grumble chronically about the bad cards we hold. When this hand was over, East could complain that he held too many high cards.

to hand with the jack of trumps. After ruffing his low club, he overtook the king of spades and proceeded to run trumps.
 He reduced dummy to four diamonds and East, who had been having some trouble finding discards, kept the king of hearts and three diamonds. When declarer cashed the ace of clubs, East was forced to discard a diamond, for he had to keep his king of hearts to cover declarer's jack.
 Reading the position perfectly, declarer exited with his heart. East was forced to win and lead away from his king of diamonds into the table's ace-queen tenace.
 Just another everyday slam had come home!

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, SEPT., 20, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Except for an influential person who will aid you in making the advance you desire, you find this is a day when it is difficult to channel your energies into constructive directions.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Finish some important work at home and do not irk any co-worker in any way. Take time for treatments that will improve your health.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Early make arrangements with a good friend for some entertainment that is pleasing to both. Then communicate with others.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you talk about finances at home, you can improve conditions there admirably. Show greater affection.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You have fine ideas to proffer allies, but don't be forceful with others in order to gain your own way.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Look to an expert for good ideas now best to handle your money matters. Don't remain secluded because someone may have been unkind.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Contact that friend who likes you very much and can help you to solve a problem that is pleasing to both. Then communicate with others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) If you use tact, you can get the data from a bigwig that is vital to your welfare. Don't take any risks with your reputation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try a different method for gaining your personal goals and you are more successful. Postpone that business affair with a pal.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) An expert can assist you in some business problem, but don't turn on one who has given you much moral support.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take a partner to some new site where you can get a finer perspective so that there can be greater success.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You may be in line for a raise so take no risks with your work and be very precise. Listen to the suggestions of your banker.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) An associate can help you with some entertainment matter and make it go very well for you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she is a born problem-solver and should have the education slanted along such lines. Make sure not to drive your progeny overly hard otherwise much of the incentive here will be lost and little will be accomplished throughout the lifetime.

heart cue-bid, but West found the lead anyway. Declarer was Richard Popper of Wilmington, Del., and he would have preferred any other lead. He was reluctant to have to rely on the diamond finesse for his slam, so he won the ace of hearts, cashed the king of clubs and crossed

Missile Maker Boasts Of Record

LONDON (AP) - The French manufacturer of the Exocet missile boasts in a full-page advertisement in The Economist magazine that the weapon has hit 103 vessels in the Persian Gulf and disabled at least 47.

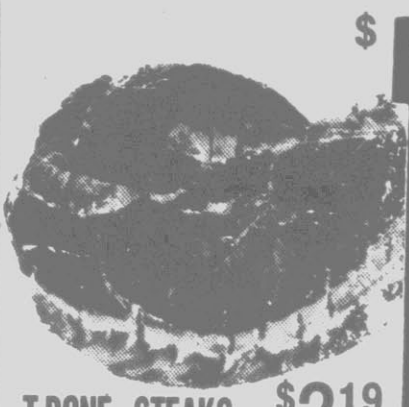

"Exocet is and remains the leader in its category... that's why it upsets people so much," said the ad for Aerospatiale.

The figures used in the Aerospatiale ad exceed the number of ships confirmed hit by Lloyd's of London. The insurance underwriter has said 70 vessels were attacked in the gulf during the period cited in the ad.

Finance Major Purchases Of Up To $5,000 On Our Low Payment Plan.

Our Low Payment Plan offers you an easier way to make those major home improvements and larger purchases. It's designed to let you finance purchases of $250 to $5,000 for up to five years at competitive rates. The result is a very low monthly payment that fits comfortably into your family budget and brings important home additions, from a new refrigerator to a new roof, within easy reach. Just look for the above symbol in future advertisements. And, where space is available, we'll also provide the specific credit details on selected items, to give you an idea of the relative size of monthly payments and Annual Percentage Rates. Low Payment Credit Terms are outlined below. So apply today. You may qualify for up to $1,000 instant credit when you present your Visa, American Express, MasterCard, Sears or Lowe's card!

*Lowe's Low Payment Credit Terms: Your credit must be satisfactory. Our cash price does not include sales tax. The monthly payment price may be slightly lower, depending upon state law. The monthly payment price includes sales tax of 4%. If sales tax differs in your area, the monthly payment will vary slightly. Credit Life and Disability Insurance is available upon request. Delivery charges are excluded.

We Also Honor American Express, Visa & MasterCard.

Lowe's Raincheck Policy: If we sell out of an advertised item, we'll issue you a raincheck. When we restock, you'll be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price (except for products marked "Limited Quantities"). Our smaller stores may not stock all advertised items. But every item shown here can be ordered for you.

Lowe's Pricing Policy: Many items in this tabloid carry a reference retail price. The reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its full retail price based on prices at which it or similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference retail price does not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that our reference retail prices as described above represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this advertisement are listed at "regular" selling prices. The merchandise is offered at this price except during a special sale. The purpose of showing a reference retail price (or a regular price) is to assist you, our customer, in making a knowledgeable and better informed buying decision. We suggest that you also do comparative shopping and compare our prices. (Prices in this tabloid do not include delivery charges. Ask us about delivery rates.)
