Suicide Bomber Strikes Embassy

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A van filled with explosives and driven by a suicide commando ran a hail of gunfire and blew up today a yard from the U.S. Embassy annex in an east Beirut suburb, severely damaging the building and reportedly killing 23 people. The U.S. State Department said two Americans were among the dead.

Lebanese military sources put the total number of casualties at 23 dead and 60 wounded, but could not say how many were American and how many were Lebanese. At the blast scene, officials supervising the rescue reported two Americans were killed and 21 wounded.

Among the injured were the U.S. and British ambassadors. Neither man was seriously hurt.

Richard Murphy, assistant secretary of state for Mideast affairs, said in Washington that two Americans and at least four or five Lebanese employees of the embassy were among the dead.

The names of the dead were not immediately available.

The explosion ripped a 6-foot-deep, 16-foot-wide crater in front of the six-story annex and injured people inside and outside the building. The Voice of Lebanon radio estimated the van carried 330 pounds of explosives. Murphy said the vehicle, which he described as a small pickup truck, bore forged Dutch diplomatic license plates.

Islamic Holy War claimed responsibility for the blast. The same shadowy terrorist group also claimed last year that it blew up the U.S. Embassy in west Beirut, killing 63 people, and the twin bomb attacks on U.S. Marines and French peacekeeping troops, in which 299 servicemen died.

American and Lebanese guards said they fired at the speeding van today as it scraped through concrete anti-vehicle barriers on the road next to the embassy annex. British bodyguards waiting outside the annex for their ambassador said they fired at the van and hit it several times.

Despite the gunfire, the vehicle rolled to a spot directly in front of the main entrance to the annex and exploded.

Lebanese Red Cross officials at the annex, which is in the east Beirut suburb of Aukar, said they had taken 15 bodies from the wreckage two hours after the blast, and had treated 18 wounded. Abu Jawdeh hospital officials said they had received two bodies and treated 40 wounded.

The blast occurred at about 11:45 a.m. (4:45 a.m. EDT), and the U.S. and British ambassadors were meeting on the top floor of the annex at the time. U.S. political officer David Winn said neither U.S. Ambassador Reginald Bartholomew nor British Ambassador David Miers was seriously hurt in the blast.

Both ambassadors were taken to Abu Jawdeh hospital in Christian east Beirut, where they were seen conscious and talking.

President Reagan said the explosion was part of "the worldwide terrorist movement," which he said "threatens our people whereever they are in the world

Florida Executes Henry

STARKE, Fla. (AP) — James Henry, who denied killing an 81-year-old civil rights leader, died in the Florida electric chair today, the seventh person executed in the state this year.

Henry, 34, electrocuted minutes after a court-imposed stay expired, was the ninth person executed in Florida since 1976 and the second this month. Twenty-five people have been executed nationwide since the U.S. Supreme Court reinstated the death penalty in 1976.

The execution was carried out despite pleas from national civil rights leaders that the inmate be spared.

About 30 demonstrators — a few supporting capital punishment — held vigils in a pasture across the street from Florida State Prison as a black-hooded executioner put Henry to put death with 2,000 volts of electricity administered over 60 seconds.

He was pronounced dead at 7:09 a.m., four minutes after the electricity was turned off.

The Supreme Court on Wednesday turned down Henry's appeal in a 7-2 decision. But the court prevented the first double execution in the nation in 19 years when it rejected 8-1 a request by state officials to electrocute convicted child-killer Aubrey Adams today.

Henry was under his second death warrant for the March 24, 1974, murder of Zellie Riley of Orlando.

Economic Surge Dips But Inflation Also Falls Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy has slowed dramatically from its breakneck pace of the first half of the year, but inflation has edged down also, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department reported that the gross national product, the broadest measure of the nation's economic health, was increasing at an annual rate of 3.6 percent from July through September.

That preliminary estimate for growth in the current quarter marks a pronounced slowdown from the 10.1 percent pace set in the first three months of the year and the 7.1 percent revised estimate for the period from April through June.

The slowing of economic growth had been widely expected, given a string of weaker business statistics released in recent weaks. Some economists had feared the drop would be more pronounced, predicting the GNP rate could dip as low as 2 percent.

The more moderate growth rate is welcomed by most economists as a signal that the recovery from the 1981-82 recession can be sustained without kicking up inflationary pressures.

Indeed, the latest report contained good news on the inflation front. An index of prices tied to the GNP declined for the second consecutive quarter. The index rose at an annual rate of 2.9 percent in the third quarter, down from a 3.3 percent pace in the second quarter and a 4.4 percent rate in the first quarter.

The combination of low inflation and strong growth, especially in the first half of the year, is expected to give the country its best economic gains in more than three decades.

The Reagan administration has predicted that GNP growth for the entire year should be 7.2 percent, the best rate since 8.3 percent growth in 1951. That would compare to a 3.7 percent gain in 1983 and a 2.1 percent decline in 1981 as the country was mired in its worst recession since the end of World War II.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said the new report showed "the economy has shifted down to a more moderate and sustainable growth rate." He predicted that growth for the "foreseeable future" would average about 4 percent.

Allen Sinai, chief economist for Shearson Lehman-American Express said the 3.6 percent growth estimate was neither too big or too small. A higher number would have sustained fears the economy was growing too quickly while a lower number might have spawned worries of a recession.

"Politically, it is an ideal number," he said. "The luck of the Irish is holding."

Meese Probe Finds No Basis For Prosecution

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special prosecutor reported today he found no basis "for the bringing of a prosecution" against presidential counselor Edwin Meese III, nominated by President Reagan to be attorney general.

Special prosecutor Jacob A. Stein, reporting to a special court which appointed him to investigate allegations concerning Meese, said he looked only for violations of the law and would "submit no comments on Mr. Meese's ethics and the propriety of his conduct or an evaluation of Mr. Meese's fitness for office."

He reported that he questioned 200 witnesses and had 45 of them, including Meese and his wife, Ursula, testify before a grand jury.

In his 385-page report, Stein described his long inquiry and said:

"Based upon the investigation described above, we find no basis with respect to any of the 11 allegations for the bringing of a prosecution against Mr. Meese for the violation of a federal criminal statute."

But he added, "I am compelled to limit my inquiry to the sole question of whether the evidence warrants prosecution under federal criminal statutes."

Therefore, he said, he would not offer any judgments on Meese's fitness to become the nation's top law-enforcement officer.

Action on Meese's nomination to become attorney general has been suspended pending the outcome of Stein's investigation.

Meese is the counselor to President Reagan and a long-time associate and personal friend of the president.

The most serious allegation under investigation concerned Meese's failure to report on required government financial disclosure forms an interest-free loan of $15,000 that Meese's wife, Ursula, had received from Edwin W. Thomas Jr., a California friend of the Meese family.

Thomas and his wife were both later appointed to government jobs in San Francisco and their son, Tod, for a time held a Labor Department job.

But Meese said he had nothing to do with the appointments and said his failure to disclose the loan was inadvertent.

Texas Child Gets Chance Here For Her Special Gift

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Three-and-a-half-year-old Candice Reneau will fly here from her home in Nacogdoches, Texas, this afternoon to pick up the Cabbage Patch doll of her dreams.

A heart patient since birth, the child, great-niece of Betsy Wendling of Route 1, Grimesland, has asked for a Cabbage Patch Kid for Christmas and described in detail the blond hair, pigtails and green jogging suit she'd like for her "baby" to have. Since there's a chance that she might not live till Christmas, Mrs. Wendling and her boss, Austin Britt, an executive of Wachovia Bank here, decided to see what they could do about an "early Cabbage Patch Christmas" for Candice.

The employees of Sew and Sew Inc. of Greenville, makers of Cabbage Patch doll clothing, have lavishly outfitted a specially obtained doll for her and will present the doll and her wardrobe to Candice Friday morning, Sew and Sew operating manager Steve Carnes said.

Accompanied by her mother, Kim Reneau, and her grandmother, Billie Reneau, Candice will spend the weekend with Mrs. Wendling and her husband, Robert, and their children, Jackie and Luke. The Wendlings will give a coffee for the Sew and Sew employees prior to the doll presentation.

The obtaining of the doll and the creation of her wardrobe was arranged by Phil Flowers, secretary-treasurer-comptroller of Sew & Sew. Carnes said a special blond-haired pigtailed doll was flown from Coleco Toys headquarters in Connecticut. Then a meeting of the Sew & Sew's employees was called and they were told Candice's story. They've done the rest — built an abundant wardrobe starring a green jogging outfit.

Another special love of Candice is pizza. Saturday night she and her family will be treated by the management and employees of That's Amore Pizza here will be treated to all the pizza they can eat.

Since her birth, Candice and her family and physicians have been fighting for her life. She was born with a backward-placement heart, two right-sided lungs and arteries between heart and lung underdeveloped. She underwent four surgeries during her first 32 days of life and has now been operated on eight times. She has severe headaches and tires easily.

But when she's rested, she's a 25-pound bundle of energy and torrent of big words, her great-aunt says. She loves people and is excited about meeting all the Greenville folks who are excited about meeting her.

Authority Says Men Need Reliable Clothes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Reliable clothes continue as the staple of menswear, says an authority on masculine clothing.

"I used to predict a major change — that men would give up suits," said Charles Hix. "I said there would be more casual dress for the office. But I recant.

"Society will not let the man out of that uniform."

Segments of that "uniform" include neckties and hats. "I predicted, too, that the necktie would go," said Hix in an interview. "I no longer think so.

"Hats? They have become optional; you don't see them worn as a must. But bald men love hats for an obvious reason.

"I see a lot of men turning to caps and to berets.

"With women back in hats again, who knows but what men will do the same."

Hix, 42, has written extensively through the years on menswear. His latest offering is the book, "Man Alive! Dressing the Free Way" (Simon and Schuster, $17.95).

"Not every job entails wearing a suit and tie," said Hix. "But in many occupations if you don't you'll be at a disadvantage.

"There is a popular myth that a failure to dress 'correctly' in professional settings signifies lack of interest in or knowledge of job.

"Thus a man who does not dress to the high expectations of others is not perceived as totally reliable. And being reliable is a very critical issue in the business world."

Hix, in his book, discusses some of the symbols of reliable dress, or what he calls the "security system."

He mentions details on a suit jacket. "Lapels today mean absolutely nothing," he writes. "Many of a suit's buttons are still there purely for meaningless show. Some pockets are sewn shut, never to carry anything.

"And what is more illogical than a necktie, a piece of cloth morbidly akin to a noose?

"Creased trousers are another affront to logic because they cannot be maintained except as an exercise in futility."

The section on reliable clothes is just one in the Hix book. He discusses off-duty garb, earthy clothes, sporty clothes, clothes that are smart, crisp, easy, and powerful.

Hix showed up for the interview in non-reliable clothes (by, say, Wall Street standards) of pullover sweater, sports shirt, gray slacks and no tie.

"I thought of suit and tie for the interview," he said, "then I thought, no, I won't be a hypocrite. It's a hot and humid day, she will understand."

The Hix book is lavish with photographs, the work of Stephen AuCoin.

"You've got a lot of nearly nude men in the pictures," I said.

"Those are to get attention," said Hix, who includes a whole section titled "Sexy."

"Actually it's an effort to get men to think of clothing in a different sense. They forget that women like to look at attractive men. Men used to turn off at this idea. But not anymore.

"If we're adept (as our own designers) we can augment our appeal. If we're inept we can diminish it. Don't flub it."

OK for the attention-getting photographs, but what about using some realistic figures instead of all those professional models who look like young gods.

"Chubbies don't look good in clothes," he said. "I believe men, as well as women, have got to work themselves into decent shape.

"And I don't see unattractive looking women in those women's fashion magazines!"

Hix, a native of Northville, Mich., a Detroit suburb, graduated from the University of Michigan with Phi Beta Kappa key and awards for creative writing.

His previous books on menswear are "Looking Good" and "Dressing Right." He also wrote "Working Out," a shapeup guide for men.

Society generally demands that clothes for the job be reliable and also wants men attentive to their appearance.

"Let's face it," said Hix. "There are men who have absolutely no interest in clothes. I won't reach them. And I'm not expecting to affect the dress of the David Rockefellers of this world, the men who have succeeded already at everything.

"I hope to reach the younger group, from the late teens to the early 40s.

"And if you think a lot of men aren't interested in clothes, look around you at the men's shops, the department store sections devoted strictly to menswear, a lot of it designer stuff.

"You don't think all that is show, do you? Stores aren't going to give space to something that won't sell."

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

AFTERNOON REFRESHER

Pecan Cookies & Iced Tea

PECAN COOKIES

¼-pound stick butter
¼ cup sugar
1 large egg, separated
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1¼ cups shifted cake flour
¾ cup pecan halves, finely chopped

In a medium bowl cream butter and sugar. Beat in egg yolk, then lemon rind and lemon juice. Gradually stir in flour until blended. Chill dough, covered, until firm enough to handle. Using a level tablespoon for each, shape into balls. Beat egg white slightly and dip balls in it, then in pecans. Place about an inch apart on a buttered cookie sheet. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven until firm and nuts are lightly browned — about 20 minutes. Remove with a wide spatula to a wire rack to cool. Makes about 1½ dozen.

Wife Owes Reader A Lobster Dinner

DEAR ABBY: We received a wedding invitation from a casual acquaintance. What are our obligations? We have never socialized with these people. Must we send a gift even if we decline the invitation? My wife says yes. I disagree. My wife received an invitation to a shower. She declined the invitation. Is it necessary to send a gift anyway? Again, she's not a close friend of the bride or the hostess.

My wife insists that everyone who receives a shower invitation is expected to send a gift whether she attends the shower or not. I submit that no gift is required unless the invitation is accepted.

I realize that this is not exactly an earthshaking problem, but if you say I'm right, my wife will have to buy me a lobster dinner.

PHILIP C.
IN WEST HARTFORD

DEAR PHILIP: Tell Mrs. C. she owes you a lobster dinner.

DEAR ABBY: I witnessed something last evening that distressed me greatly.

My aunt and uncle were trying to bribe their 2-year-old daughter with candy to hug and kiss some relatives the child had never seen before. The child was obviously shy and didn't want to put on a phony show of affection to people who were virtually strangers to her.

With all the horror stories about children being sexually abused these days, parents should not encourage their children to hug and kiss people they have never seen before—even if they are relatives. It makes that child all the more vulnerable to sexual abuse should a relative (or a stranger) try to take improper liberties in the future.

All children should be taught that it's OK for them to say no if they don't want to be touched, hugged or kissed.

A CONCERNED NIECE

DEAR CONCERNED: You are concerned with good reason. We've all seen well-intentioned grown-ups encourage reluctant youngsters to "go kiss Uncle So-and-So" without realizing the incipient danger you point out.

Thanks for caring enough to write. I learned something valuable today.

DEAR ABBY: I am 79, soon to be 80. A friend told me that you once printed something funny about the joys of turning 80. Will you please run it again?

LEO THE LION

DEAR LEO: With pleasure:

DEAR ABBY: We oldsters sure do get away with a lot just because we've managed to keep breathing longer than most folks. I have just celebrated my 80th birthday and I've got it made.

If you forget someone's name or an appointment or what you said yesterday, just explain that you are 80, and you will be forgiven. If you spill soup on your tie, or forget to shave half your face, or take another man's hat by mistake, or promise to mail a letter and carry it around in your pocket for two weeks, just say, "I'm 80, you know," and nobody will say a thing.

You have a perfect alibi for everything when you're 80. If you act silly, you're in your "second childhood."

Being 80 is much better than being 70. At 70 people are mad at you for everything, but if you make it to 80, you can talk back, argue, disagree and insist on having your own way because everybody thinks you are getting a little soft in the head.

They say that life begins at 40. Not true. If you ask me, life begins at 80!

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

With regularity, I get two kinds of letters. One is from young people telling me what rotten kids they are, how they've driven their mothers crazy and how they did things behind their backs that their mothers would disown them for forever. They write they cannot say what they feel and so their mothers never know how much they love them.

As a parent, I belong to one of the biggest coalitions in the world. Our numbers are awesome. Our P.R. among the best in the world. Our bonds so strong that one mother can look at another one across the room and know exactly what she is thinking. Our methods of maintaining discipline — guilt and respect — are the best-kept secrets of the Western world.

At the risk of revealing a few confidences and jeopardizing our position of authority, there are some things children should know about us.

We came into this world as you did: naked, toothless, unable to communicate, with sub-standard plumbing.

We spilled milk, wet our pants, spit, hurt the dog, sassed, lied, stole, were hostile and made our parents wish they had quit when they got the puppy.

During the period our own children were growing up, we made approximately a quarter of a million decisions on their behalf, most of them based on no experience whatsoever and most of them probably bad ones. We try not to look back.

We talk a lot, but we never seem to say what we mean. We say, "Aren't you going to pick up your room?" like you have a choice. When you answer, "No," we get mad. We should say, "Pick up your lousy room before it catches fire," but we don't want to appear human.

We feel our kids don't trust us. (I know, that's their favorite line.) But it's true. If they did they would tell us the truth — especially when they screw up — and know that we won't self-destruct.

We don't know everything. We just pretend we do to maintain control and figure if we admit that, our kids will have less respect for us.

Ironically, the things our children are ashamed to tell us, we already know. we just don't say anything because we feel it will make you feel better about yourself if you can admit it.

You cannot do anything new under the sun. Any temptation, anything you mees up, anything underhanded, any mistake . . . we've done it . . . and survived it.

We really don't have to be told we are loved. We search hungrily for it every day of our lives and recognize it in a million forms. We can live on something like a homemade card or the first bite out of your ice cream cone for years.

We're human. We bleed when we're hurt, cry when we're unhappy, are disappointed when we fail, and wonder why we're here. That's why it takes a lot for kids to get us out of their lives.

The other kind of letter? They're from women telling me what rotten mothers they are and how they've driven their kids away from home and how they can't bring themselves to say to their children they love them.

For a society that talks a lot . . . we don't say much, do we?

'Free Money'

Giving away the coins people throw in a fountain is a great idea, especially when the money would go to worthy causes of groups from surrounding neighborhoods. That was the thinking of Boxton's Copley Place officials.

Well, it was a great idea until they ran into one of those facts of life that could happen only in America.

The cost of removing and donating those coins ($2,000 worth in the first four months) was found to at least equal and possibly exceed the value of the coins.

Can anyone imagine "free money" being so expensive to give away? It tells you something of what inflation has done to this country.

Imagery

Imagery is the key word.

The Miss America of 1984-85 doesn't smoke, drink, gamble or believe in premarital sex, thinks the Equal Rights Amendment is unnecessary, and says the title, crown and prerequisites have no place in her planning a career. She also says her reign will be devoted to re-establishing Miss America as a role model.

Miss Sharlene Wells is not what you would call an "average" American girl.

The pageant people expected, and the network people also anticipated, a sharp increase in the share of the national television audience usually gathered by the spectacle. Americans are avid beauty pageant watchers, but this one promised to be a little more attention-getting because of the publicity generated in the dethroning process of Vanessa Williams.

Suzette Charles, last year's runner-up, was installed as the reigning Miss America and was showcased at the weekend pageant in the field of entertainment, which has long been her career choice. Miss Charles is no slouch as an entertainer and her talents promise to underline the word "opportunity" among the spin-offs of advantages offered winners of the "senior" beauty pageant in this country.

Miss Wells is a beauty (as were all the contestants), and as she says, the eight judges most likely were looking for somebody like her.

So much for the better things of life, and back to the mundane.

Imports Pose Threat To N.C. Industry

CHARLOTTE — Don't expect anything spectacular from the North Carolina economy in 1985. On the other hand, the state's economy will enjoy moderate growth which would be even better if three of its largest industries weren't facing such strong competition from foreign imports.

That's the projection of UNC-Charlotte economistswho worked in conjunction with First Union National Bank. Dr. John Connaughton, director of the North Carolina Economic Forecast, said in an interview that the state's economy should mirror the national economy during 1985. In 1984, the state's economy has grown faster than that of the nation as a whole.

The projection calls for a 2.6 percent increase in the gross state product during 1985. (GSP is a measure of goods and services produced in the state.) That's a moderate rate of growth that is good news. But, compared to growth in 1984, it's a bit of a comedown. Connaughton projects that by the end of this year, the state's economy will have grown 6.5 percent. (These growth figures are all adjusted to account for inflation.)

Growth will not come evenly across the board. The textiles industry, which employs a massive 10 percent of the state's workforce, is suffering from skyrocketing foreign imports. Textiles, and related industries, make up a sizeable portion of the economy's non-durable goods sector and therefore drag down the projection for that sector. Connaughton and his associates are projecting only 2.5 percent growth in this sector.

Agricultural output will fall, they project, continuing a long time trend. North Carolina's agricultural products accounted for nine percent of total GSP in 1958 but, by 1985, they will represent only 2.3 percent, Connaughton said.

Construction should also fall. A housing shortage in the state has nearly been made up, so demand will fall. Interest rates will stay high, they project, and therefore hurt construction.

With that much bad news, how does Connaughton explain a projection that actually calls for growth? Diversity. The state's economy is shaking its dependence on just a few industries and spreading into new areas which are expected to do well next year.

For example, durable manufactured goods output should grow twice as fast as the economy in general — about 4.5 percent. Retail trade, government, public utilities, transportation and communication should grow about three percent.

This will mean new jobs in the state. The forecast maintains that the state's workforce will rise to nearly 2,519,000 workers by the end of this year and then add another 54,000 jobs next year. By the end of this year, Connaughton says the unemployment rate should be down to six percent and by the end of next year down to 5.2 percent.

The economists say that the lower rate of growth will be good for the economy. "The slowed pace of economic growth expected in 1985 has positive and timely value. After two years of vigorous economic growth in 1983 and 1984, inflationary pressure has been increasing. Real GSP increased by 5.2 percent in 1983 and is forecast to grow by 6.5 percent in 1984. Both growth rates are above the North Carolina long-term GSPgrowth rate of 4.4 percent. The gradual cooling of the economy in 1985 should relieve some of this inflationary pressure without the increases in unemployment experienced during the 1982 recession," their report says.

Mondale Suggests 'Trick With Mirrors'

WASHINGTON — Walter Mondale now has obliged a breathlessly awaiting nation by letting us know how he would achieve a reduction of two-thirds in the deficit projected for 1989. He would do it with mirrors.

This is in the best tradition of such promises. Ronald Reagan propounded the same sort of hocus-pocus in his campaign four years ago. His idea was that by cutting tax rates, he could so revitalize the economy that enough revenue would come in to pay for a program of higher spending on defense and lower spending on non-defense items. It didn't quite work out that way.

Now comes Mondale. He begins with a figure of $263 billion as the projected deficit for 1989. He would cut defense spending by $25 billion, in part by killing the MX missile and the B-1 bomber; he would cut outlays for health care by $12 billion; he would cut farm programs by $4 billion; and he would save $51 billion in lower costs of interest. He would pick up $5 billion by eliminating "waste, fraud and abuse," which is what they all say; he would cut unspecified "discretionary programs" by $8 billion; and he would add $30 billion in "spending increases."

On the revenue side, the gentleman would ask tax increases of $85 billion. Be would take in $17 billion from the revenues produced by economic growth. With everything in place, the projected deficit would drop from $263 billion to $86 billion, a mere 1.6 percent of the gross national product, and we would all live happily ever after.

The threshold trouble with all these "specifics" is that they begin with imaginary numbers and cannot rise much above the level of make-believe. It is hokum, pure hokum, to suppose that anyone can accurately predict in September 1984 what economic conditions will be in September 1989. Inflation, unemployment, interest rates, war, peace, wheat crops, energy costs — all these are maybe this and possibly that. The Mondale program is like a one-way railway ticket, good for this day and class only.

The Mondale plan presents other flaws to the skeptical eye. He proposes a net increase of $22 billion in non-defense spending, but there is no way under moon or sun that the Democratic candidate could pay for all the promises he has made with a mere $22 billion. Let me mention a few.

The gentleman promises to spend more on roads and bridges, mass transit, water supplies, harbors, ports and local sewerage systems. He will spend more on prenatal care, supplementary food, school lunches, child nutrition, child care, and a new program to prevent and treat child abuse. He will restore government's role in helping all Americans to find adequate and affordable housing. He will upgrade housing in minority communities and create more units for poor and low-income people.

Mondale has promised "a major new commitment to education." How major is major? His party platform promises a dozen costly new programs of aid from nurseries through graduate schools. His promise to cut farm programs by $4 billion runs headlong into his campaign promise to work toward commodity price supports at "parity of income." He proposes higher spending on hazardous wastes, on clean air, on clean water, on arts and humanities, on "the highest quality of health care" for veterans. A new program would hire "hundreds of thousands of unemployed people to work weatherizing and installing solar energy systems in millions of American homes." He would make the needs of cities "a federal priority once again." He would create a new national reconstruction fund to provide loans to states and localities for public works. The list goes on and on.

As for tax increases, the Mondale plan is to soak the rich. That is politically appealing but fiscally deceptive. A taxpayer in the $200,000 bracket now pays a tax of perhaps $64,000. Mondale would raise is to about $71,000. Fine! But out of 77 million taxable returns, only 175,000 are predicated on incomes above $200,000. The big money is down there in the livelihoods of the 72 million families with incomes under $50,000, and ultimately they must bear the brunt of any really lucrative program of higher taxes.

Let me revert to fundamentals. All the bar charts and projections and speculations and conjectures are the stuff of political entertainment. They have about the substance of cotton candy. What we know, taking the gentlemen on their words, is that Mondale regards a tax increase as a first resort; Reagan regards a tax increase as a last resort. This we can believe. The rest is mostly moonshine.

Protectionism

NEW YORK (AP) — Next to federal spending, economic protectionism is perhaps the most difficult issue for people to deal with, in large part because their intellectual inclinations conflict with their economics.

To put it another way, lofty rhetoric is compromised by practical necessities.

Everyone, for example, is for sanity in government spending, and most people also will tell you they believe in marketplace competition rather than protectionism.

But that's before the "buts" butt in, as in "I'm all for cutting the defense budget but I don't want them to cut jobs," or "I'm all for free trade, but we have to limit imports of cars, textiles and shoes."

Blue-collar workers and executives say it. Professors talk that way, and so do students. And economists, steel workers, editorial writers, lobbyists, steel company executives and, perhaps above all, politicians talk that way.

"It is hard to meet a self-confessed protectionist in either party," says Murray Weidenbaum, director of the Center for the Study of American Business at St. Louis' Washington University.

Then he adds his own "but," commenting that: "The sad truth of the matter is that both parties have moved toward protectionism, but with different degrees of rapidity."

The record seems to bear him out.

The Carter administration negotiated "orderly marketing agreements" covering textiles and shoes, under which other nations agreed to limit their exports to the United States.

And while professing its patriotic belief in free, competitive enterprise, the Reagan administration has taken specific actions to restrict imports of automobiles, motorcycles, steel, sugar and textiles.

What makes the issue of protection so difficult to deal with? To begin with, self-interest.

Depending on his stand, it can mean election or defeat to a congressman whose constituency includes autoworkers, or textile or shoe or steel workers.

To an executive it can mean the very existence of his company. To an economist it can mean constructing an economic rationale and then, at a cost to his prestige, being forced to make exceptions in it.

But perhaps most significantly, it means jobs, which explains the United Auto Workers support of a proposed domestic content bill that would in effect reduce imports of cars from large Japanese companies.

Protectionism means something more too, which adds to the difficulty of taking a stand on it. It means higher prices, simply because of the decreased competition from imports.

In effect, the protection of American goods and jobs from lower-priced imports is a tradeoff for higher prices.

The benefits and drawbacks, however, aren't equally shared: Certain companies and workers benefit specifically from protectionism, but everyone shares the higher prices.

And all this has made protectionism, next to curtailing government spending, perhaps the most persistent and thorny issue down through the economic ages.

Who can really say how he or she would choose when forced to descend from the lofty realm of rhetoric to the practical issues of jobs, profits — and, in fact, survival?

Consumers Lose Advocate

WASHINGTON — Consumers will lose an ardent advocate when Michael Pertschuk leaves the Federal Trade Commission later this month. But only fellow commissioner Patricia Bailey knows whether his legacy won't be forgotten.

Bailey has regularly sided with Democrat Pertschuk, whose term expires on Sept. 25, against the FTC's conservative majority on policy and enforcement issues before the commission. FTC Chairman James C. Miller has even accused her, along with Pertschuk, of ending a tradition of collegiality and compromise at the agency.

Yet Bailey, 47, is a Republican. Despite strong ties to anti-Reagan feminists and the moderate wing of her party, she doesn't perceive herself as a Pertschuk clone ready to do battle with Reagan appointees (Jimmy Carter nominated her in 1979) at every turn. "I don't see myself as that kind of spokesman," she says.

Consumer groups and activists elements within the FTC are urging Bailey to assume Pertschuk's position as chief in-house critic. But while her pro-consumer efforts have angered Reagan administration officials, her style has been cool to Pertschuk's hot: more reasoned and less strident.

Those characteristics may result, in part, from her many years at the State Department and in moderate GOP circles. (She worked for Republican presidential candidates Nelson Rockefeller and Gerald Ford, and her husband is Ford's 1976 media director, Douglas Bailey.) Though a lawyer, Bailey brought to her FTC post no hands-on experience in consumer issues.

But she did bring a belief in assertive government regulation — a credo that put her at odds with the minimalist views of Miller and other Reagan appointees. Bailey began joining Pertschuk in opposition to a Reagan administration proposal to eliminate the FTC's antitrust enforcement bureau and 10 regional offices. She also led a losing effort to require disclosure by dealers of known defects in used cars.

Bailey's persistent efforts will not guarantee consumers victories during the last three years of her term. Reagan's choice to fill Pertschuk's seat, FTC lawyer Mary Azcuenaga, will upon confirmation give the five-member commission four likely conservativevotes. Yet consumer activists hope that Bailey will at least be a beacon in the dark.

To understand the iconoclasm of Georgetown basketball coach John Thompson, who has given one of his star players a mandatory year off to concentrate on academics, you might read a recent NCAA report. According to the athletic association, a majority of athletes who participated on college teams as freshmen in 1977 would not have met the academic eligibility standard — a "C" average or better — approved by the organization last year. According to the NCAA, only 57 percent of the white freshmen athletes and only 18 percent of the blacks would have met the newstandard.

Members of the baby-boom generation stand to enjoy an unprecedented level of income in their peak earning years. Data Resources Inc. projects that the share of households headed by people 45 to 54 with real incomes above $50,000 will rise from 17.2 percent in 1980 to 33.4 percent in 1995. Unfortunately, the proportion of all households headed by 45-to-54, year-olds with real incomes below $10,000 will only drop from 13.3 percent to 12.3 percent in the same period, Data Resources says.

The typical chief executive officer of a medium-sized U.S. company is a 45-year-old male who earns $71,797, excluding perks, according to the Big Eight accounting firm of Peat Marwick Mitchell & Co.

The Washington-based Tax Foundation says that government — federal, state and local combined — spent an average of $14,743 per household in 1982. Of that figure, expenditures for social welfare programs accounted for $4,982, followed by defense and international relations spending, with $2,446, education ($1,988) and interest on general debt ($1,458).

For the record: Ronald Reagan has held 26 press conferences since entering office. Throughout his term, Jimmy Carter held 58.

Strength For Today

Henry II was, in many ways, one of England's great kings. But, unknown to him, his sons rebelled against him, and on his deathbed, asking for a list of traitors, Henry saw the name of his youngest son, John, at the head of the list. He turned his face to the wall and died of a broken heart. "It is our fate," said another of his sons later, "that none should love the rest. That is the only inheritance which shall never be taken from us."

How horrifying, and yet how often it has proved true in many families — none has loved the rest. Yet the truth is that most people in such households would welcome a wholesome change. But they are too proud to take the first step. The fatal precedent of long and entrenched antagonism has created a barrier to reconciliation. Yet whoever will take the first step in that direction may break the barrier by releasing in others the desire to give and receive love.

Air Force Buys Coffeemaker For $7,622

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 10-cup coffeemaker for $7,622 and a crewseat armrest for $670 are among the latest entries in the expanding catalog of items bearing price tags as high as they fly aboard Air Force cargo planes.

What's worse, according to testimony to a Senate Subcommittee on Thursday, a lot of the stuff gets thrown away without even being unwrapped.

Airman First Class Thomas Jonsson said he got nowhere when he pointed out to his superiors that the Air Force could save $1.5 million per year by making replacement arm rests for seats on the C-5A cargo plane, rather than ordering them from an outside manufacturer at $670.06 apiece.

Sen. Charles E. Grassley, R-Iowa, chairman of the Judiciary subcommittee on administrative practice, said the latest evidence demonstrates that a promise by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger to clean up spare parts procurement practices is an empty one.

"Those who know better stamp 'B.S.' all over it," Grassley said. A Pentagon official, Herbert Fisher, reiterated, however, that "We are determined" to correct the problem.

Jonsson, who orders parts for flight-line mechanics at Travis Air Force Base, Calif., said that last December he was required to order 220 armrests for relief crew seats on the C-5A. He showed the panel an example.

Jonsson said he had also shown one to his wife, and "she was as surprised as I was" at how simple the item would be to make. "I took her advice" and pursued with various officials on the base whether it could be made at shops there, he said.

"According to the in-house supervisor on the base, it turned out that we can make the part for $5 to $25 each, depending on the quantity needed," he told the subcommittee.

That could save the Air Force up to $1.5 million per year for the fleet of C-5As, he said, but his formal proposal through the Air Force's Zero Overpricing Program has been ignored, despite repeated prodding, for eight months.

Jonsson also mentioned the $7,622 coffeemaker for the C-5A. Rep. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., who introduced the airman, said the 10-cup coffeemaker cost $4,947 four years ago. "It might as well be made of gold," she said.

Jonsson said that "these items are not highly sophisticated and complex — I used to be in charge of fixing them. I have found them to be unreliable and poorly made despite their high price."

Former Capt. Robert A. Greenstreet, who also worked at Travis, said he often fished brand-new parts, including a circuit board worth $1,481, out of trash bins on the base. Some were still sealed in their packages, he testified.

Parts that were originally ordered in error — but were perfectly usable — frequently were simply thrown away, rather than being returned to the supply system, he explained. "It is a system that appears to be designed to encourage waste," he said.

Norman Jones, an equipment specialist at the Warner Robins Air Logistics Center in Georgia, provided the committee with a list of hundreds of new spare parts that were sent to disposal sites at the base, including an F-16 item worth $7,775 and 300 C-130 valve housing drive pilots valued at $21,981.

Fisher, director of the Contract Policy Office at the Pentagon, told the subcommittee that Weinberger has "moved most aggressively" to correct such problems, but conceded there has been a "lack of management attention" until lately.

"We are determined to correct this problem and institutionalize our reforms," he said.

On The Other Side

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Ken McAvoy, a cancer patient who doctors say has only months to live, is doing a booming business with his offer to deliver messages to the deceased for $20.

He placed two advertisements in a regional magazine offering to contact people on the other side, and has fielded dozens of calls from people seeking his services.

"I have a mission in this life. I believe this is what I was put on this earth to do," declared McAvoy's ad.

"I will acknowledge by a written guarantee a copy of which I will take to the grave with me, and I solemnly promise to put forth my best efforts in trying to contact those who you wish to be contacted..."

In the first week, he had five requests. At the beginning of this week, he had more than two dozen, he said.

"The London Times has called. Everybody seems to have a very good reaction to it. I'm flabbergasted," said McAvoy, 41.

McAvoy said messages ranged from "I love you and will join you soon," to a simple "Why, Dad?" from a child cut out of a will.

With a printed guarantee, McAvoy promises somehow to locate dead relatives and deliver the missives.

Dr. Thomas Hammond, a Fort Lauderdale neurosurgeon, confirmed that McAvoy is suffering from a malignant brain tumor and has from several weeks to three or four months to live.

Genocide Treaty Faces New Delay

WASHINGTON (AP) — After sitting on the shelf for 35 years, a treaty outlawing genocide now may be put off in the Senate until January at the earliest, despite a recommendation from the Foreign Relations Committee for swift ratification.

The committee approved the treaty by a 17-0 vote Wednesday. It urged the Senate leadership to proceed immediately to its consideration and "seek to complete action on it prior to adjournment." Congress is aiming to wind up its session on Oct. 4.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., meanwhile, continued his practice of urging ratification of the treaty on every day that the Senate does business. On Wednesday, he delivered his 3,001st such speech.

Candidates Step Up Campaign Rhetoric

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

President Reagan is heading into the Farm Belt today after moving this week to help debt-ridden farmers, as Walter F. Mondale attacks him on the environment and says the president "put a 'for sale' sign on our public lands and a 'for rent' sign on our wonderful beaches."

Reagan's trip to Cedar Rapids, Iowa, today capitalizes on a series of presidential actions in the past week that may aid farmers, including his move Tuesday to increase federal loan guarantees for farmers and to defer repayment of some government loans.

While the Democratic presidential nominee was on the West Coast sharpening his "Fighting Fritz" attacks on Reagan, Vice President George Bush was stepping up his rhetoric, too, saying the Democratic ticket — which trails badly in most recent polls — was desperate and collapsing.

"These kamikaze attacks are nothing more than the politics of desperation of a campaign going down in flames," Bush said Wednesday night in Columbus, Ohio.

"And on the subject of nuclear arms negotiation especially, they've lost all sense of proportion," said Bush, who was campaigning in New England today.

Mondale was in Seattle today for a union convention before flying back to Washington to attend a Hispanic dinner. Running mate Geraldine Ferraro was in Dallas before heading to California.

Reagan was going to Michigan after his Iowa stop, campaigning with former President Gerald R. Ford in Ford's former hometown, Grand Rapids.

Besides his move on farm loans, Reagan may have helped himself among Midwestern farmers with his move last week raising limits on grain sales to the Soviet Union. And his rejection of the steel industry's request for import quotas may also please farmers, who had feared quotas would prompt retaliation against U.S. farm exports.

Campaigning on opposite coasts Wednesday, Reagan and his challenger provided contrasting imagery in describing Reagan's first term.

"There is a new mood in the country these days. Uncle Sam is seeming mighty jaunty," Reagan said in Waterbury, Conn. "... I see our country today and I think it is springtime for America."

Mondale, in San Francisco criticizing inaction on toxic waste, acid rain and other environmental threats, said: "Come see America, Mr. President, and see what you've done to it and what you refuse to do to protect this country. ... Take a trip with me and see what your policies have done to America."

At an outdoor rally that drew thousands of people in downtown San Francisco, Mondale received the endorsement of the Sierra Club, the first time in its 92-year history the 200,000-member enviromental group has backed a presidential candidate. He also picked up the support of Friends of the Earth, another environmental group.

Mondale accused Reagan of being isolated in "a question-free zone," of campaigning through "photo opportunities" that lack substance, and of refusing to say what he would do in a second term.

He said Reagan refused to enforce clean air and clean water laws, and citing the federal fund set up to clean toxic waste dumps, said the administration "turned the 'superfund' into a superfraud."

"He put a 'for sale' sign on our public lands and a 'for rent' sign on our wonderful beaches," Mondale said.

"And then Mr. Reagan's pollsters told him he was getting in trouble," said Mondale. "And so what he did is what he does best. He decided to do damage control by photo opportunity, and not deal with the problem but the politics of the problem."

In Chicago on Wednesday, Ms. Ferraro warmed to the environmental theme, too.

"Where other presidents have worked to clean the air, help the poor and pass the ERA, Ronald Reagan has fogged the air, helped the rich and passed the buck," she said.

Ms. Ferraro spoke to an outdoor crowd estimated at 25,000 people in downtown Chicago. Her appearance brought together that city's two fueding leaders, Mayor Harold Washington and Cook County party chief Edward Vrdolyak, prompting Ms. Ferraro to say, "I love you both."

Reagan, appearing before a flag-waving crowd of 10,000 people in Hammonton, N.J., blasted Mondale's plan for reducing the federal deficit with a tax increase and spending cuts as a "blueprint for bondage" that would hang a "ball and chain around America's neck."

He also criticized Mondale's image of America.

"We are talking about two different worlds," he said. "They see America wringing her hands. We see America raising her hands."

He appealed for the votes of registered Democrats, invoking the names of Democratic presidents past, including John F. Kennedy — whom Reagan has said he voted against in 1960.

Reagan said the earlier Democratic leaders were "people who believe in protecting the interests of working people, and who are not ashamed or afraid of America standing up for freedom in world."

Panel Votes To Drop Hatfield Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Ethics Committee, lacking sufficient evidence of wrongdoing, should close the book on whether Sen. Mark Hatfield improperly used his influence to aid a Greek businessman, the panel's chairman says.

Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, says he agrees with the recommendation of the committee staff that the six-member panel not launch a formal investigation of Hatfield's dealings with Basil Tsakos.

Stevens made the statements Wednesday after an hour-long closed committee meeting at which members reviewed evidence developed by the staff during the preliminary inquiry started last month at Hatfield's request.

"I've gone over all of the evidence that they have brought before us, and I think, on the basis of what we've conducted so far and our review, that the recommendation is correct, that we not open a formal inquiry," Stevens said.

He said the staff tried to determine if there was "sufficient evidence to justify a formal inquiry into the conduct of the senator. The recommendation is, there is not. And based upon what I see, I concur in the recommendation."

Stevens said the recommendation "in no way" was based on a lack of committee jurisdiction. "It's not a question of lack of jurisdiction," he said.

The chairman said the committee would meet sometime next week to vote on whether to accept the recommendation. He said the panel did not act Wednesday because there "are matters that some of the members want to pursue." He did not elaborate.

Hatfield, an Oregon Republican campaigning this year for a fourth term, "is not going to issue any statement until the Ethics Committee renders a final judgment," spokesman Craig Higgins said.

Hatfield has acknowledged that his wife, Antoinette, received $55,000 in four installments in 1982 and 1983 from Tsakos, who wants to construct a $10 billion petroleum pipeline across Africa.

American Sailors Back Home After Week In Siberia

GAMBELL, Alaska (AP) — Five tired but smiling American sailors said they were glad to be back on American soil today after a week in Siberia, where they were taken by a Soviet warship that seized their supply ship during a souvenir-hunting jaunt.

The seamen, released Wednesday in a rendezvous between an armed Soviet icebreaker and a Coast Guard cutter in the Bering Sea, were not harmed during their detention, said Tabb Thoms, skipper of the 120-foot Frieda K.

With his crew by his side, Thoms spoke to a mob of reporters and villagers Wednesday night after the freed vessel beached on Gambell, located on St. Lawrence Island about 50 miles east of the rendezvous site where the vessel and crew were freed earlier in the day.

Thoms said he and the crew piloted their ship to the rendezvous, where Coast Guard Capt. Jack Billington met with the commander of the Russian icebreaker Aisberg in the wheelhouse of the Frieda K to sign documents turning over the crew and vessel to the Americans.

The transfer took place in the Bering Sea near the international date line at 3:20 p.m. ADT (7:20 p.m. EDT).

"There was just a very warm hello. We were very happy to see them," said the Frieda K's cook, 29-year-old Charles Burrall.

Coast Guard officers who boarded the Frieda K were met by five armed Soviet crew members, said Chief Petty Officer Dan Dewell.Thoms said the Soviets confiscated film from cameras, the ship's log and charts from the Frieda K.

Thoms said the crew was pressured to sign papers admitting an intentional violation of Soviet territory, but refused to do so.

"We collect T-shirts and sweat shirts from where we go, from time to time, and this was our intention" when the encounter with the Soviet warship occurred Sept. 11 in the Bering Strait, said Thoms.

The crew, which delivers supplies to remote villages, was heading for a village on Little Diomede, an Alaskan island only 2½ miles east of Soviet-owned Big Diomede, when the boat was stopped and boarded by "many, many" Soviet soldiers, he said.

The skipper acknowledged to reporters that he may have strayed into Soviet territory, but said he was not aware of it at the time.

"My navigation equipment said I was 15 miles inside U.S. waters, but apparently that was off," he said.

Congress Tightens Rules On Disability

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has passed legislation that would make it more difficult to terminate Social Security disability benefits and sent it to President Reagan, who is expected to sign it.

The legislation, whose architects hope it will end the chaos in the disability review process, was passed by the Senate on Wednesday by a 99-0 vote and by the House 402-0.

The cases of more than 100,000 disability recipients whose benefits were cut off will be reviewed again under new standards set by the legislation, according to staff members of the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee.

Under the measure, case reviewers generally must prove that an individual's medical condition has improved before terminating disability benefits.

It also provides that disability recipients threatened with a benefit cutoff can continue to get all payments until they have exhausted all appeal avenues.

The bill would continue a moratorium on the review of mentally impaired individuals until review standards are established.

It would require that in determining eligibility, examiners must consider the combined effects of a person's impairments and whether any one condition would be severe enough to qualify for benefits.

The measure would establish a commission to study the question of using subjective evidence of pain in determining eligibility.

Nearly half a million people have received preliminary notices that their benefits would be ended since the Social Security Administration began reviews of the disability rolls in 1981 that were ordered by Congress. More than 200,000 people were reinstated after proving they remained disabled.

With thousands of appeals filed, the courts ordered the government to cease removing people from the rolls. The Health and Human Services Department, of which Social Security is a part, was forced to suspend the reviews in the midst of the furor.

Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Texas, chairman of the House Social Security subcommittee, said the legislation directed the Department of Health and Human Services and the Social Security Administration, which is a part of it, to "start a program now that will be fair and equitable to disabled people across this land."

"We have an obligation to see that the recipients of benefits deserve those benefits, but there have been cases where people have been removed that should not have been removed," said Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the Finance Committee, who helped fashion the final bill with House negotiators.

Lawsuit

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Gastonia-based Sun-Drop Bottling Co. Inc. has sued Coca-Cola Bottling Co. Consolidated, charging that Coca-Cola is inducting retailers to inflate prices on Sun-Drop's line of soft drinks and give preferential promotion to Coca-Cola products.

In its 10-page complaint filed Thursday in U.S. District Court in Charlotte, Sun-Drop contends that Coca-Cola has engineered "illegal price-fixing arragements" with certain supermarkets, grocery stores and convenience stores through "illegal prizes, rebates, kickbacks, commissions, compensations and discounts."

PAPAL BARGE — Pope John Paul II waves to a crowd assembled on the edge of the Rideau Canal at Ottawa during his stopover Wednesday ending a 12-day tour of Canada. The pope, who is to fly back to Rome tonight, called Wednesday for a "new vision of humanity" among the world powers. (AP Laserphoto)

Cheers Fade For Reagan's Plan To Cut Steel Imports

WASHINGTON (AP) — The quick applause for President Reagan's plan to limit steel imports has faded in a barrage of criticism from Democrats and a labor leader along with confusion over what the government has actually promised.

The United Steelworkers union officials and House Democrats said Wednesday they were deeply disappointed by the 10-point program designed to curtail imports through stepped up enforcement of existing trade laws and voluntary restraint agreements with problem foreign producers.

Steel importers qualified their earlier plaudits, though executives of big steel producers stood by their favorable response.

The bipartisan Congressional Steel Caucus did not take a position on the presidential policy, but its chairman, Rep. John Murtha, D-Pa., and other individual members reacted along party lines.

"I am increasingly skeptical that the administration's plan will do anything to help our steelworkers and steel communities," said Murtha.

"It fails to provide any guarantees that imports will actually be reduced. It depends on negotiations with countries that have shown no regard for American workers or the American economy," he said.

On the other hand, Rep. Don Ritter, a Pennsylvania Republican whose district includes Bethlehem, said, "It's a heck of a lot more than we've ever had and I think there's commitment behind it. Our effort now is to keep the administration's feet to the fire and see that implementation does occur."

United Steelworkers union president Lynn Williams scoffed at what he called "a phantom program" and said he fears Reagan's enthusiasm will evaporate after the November election.

"None of it is required; none of it is a matter of law," Williams said at a press conference. "There is nothing to prevent him from backing away from the whole situation in a few months or a year."

Told of the union displeasure, Reagan said while campaigning on Wednesday, "They don't have all the details."

And White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the president "does feel the steel decision has not been explained adequately."

House Balks At Bill Allowing Heroin Use

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill allowing the use of heroin to treat the pain of dying cancer patients for whom no other drugs proved effective has been soundly defeated in the House.

It voted 355-55 Wednesday against the legislation, which was opposed by the Reagan administration and by the American Medical Association.

The bill would have established a four-year research program to make heroin available through a limited number of hospital pharmacies that agreed to stock it and on the written prescription of a licensed physician.

Under the legislation, physicians could prescribe heroin only after conventional painkillers had been tried on a patient and found to be ineffective.

Proponents said the legislation would be a humane and compassionate gesture to help cancer patients with intractable pain. But opponents said potent drugs are now available for that purpose, and illegal drug diversion could result from the legislation.

Pope Closes His Canadian Tour With Call For 'Vision'

OTTAWA (AP) — Pope John Paul II, at the final stop of his 12-day Canadian tour, appealed for a "new vision of humanity" without abortion, war and starvation.

"We cannot close our eyes, nor should we harden our hearts, in the face of untold suffering and needs that afflict millions of our fellow human beings," the pope, who flies back to Rome tonight, told Canadian leaders and foreign diplomats Wednesday.

"One person alone cannot change the world," said the pontiff. "But all of us together...will be able to create a peaceful and peace-loving society."

This morning was set aside for a private meeting with Canada's Roman Catholic bishops. Some bishops said touchy subjects such as clerical celibacy and the ordination of women might be raised with the pope, a stout defender of traditional doctrine.

World peace was the topic for the pontiff's last sermon in Canada this afternoon, when he says a Mass at a riverside park near downtown Ottawa.

The pope arrived in Ottawa on Wednesday in high style, cruising down the Rideau Canal through the center of town in a pontoon boat decked in flowers, waving to crowds lining the banks.

His first stop was at the Convent of the Servents of Jesus-Mary, across the Ottawa River in Hull, Quebec, where he said the simple life of nuns is "perhaps the protest that most urgently needs to be made to a society where profit-making efficiency has become an idol."

At his Government House reception, with Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, other government officials and the capital's diplomatic corps, the pontiff elaborated on his sweeping critique of today's world.

Society, he said, is "lacking in sensitivity when it does not allow certain facts to influence its action." His list was extensive:

—The absence of arms control agreements.

—The use of science to build weapons of mass destruction.

—Limited wars killing "people in countries not one's own."

—Abortion, which he described as "disregard for the value and dignity of unborn life."

—Experimentation on human embryos.

—Starving or undernourished children.

—Lack of basic health care.

—Massive flight to cities that cannot offer work, education or food.

—Loss of liberty, especially freedom of religion.

What is needed, the pope said, is "a vision that does not see society's problems in terms of economic, technical or political equations alone, but in terms of living people."

British Say Suez Mine Recently Set

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Preliminary investigation of a mine found in the Gulf of Suez indicates the device had not been in the water long, a British Embassy spokesman said today.

The spokesman, who spoke on condition of anonymity because of embassy rules, said the mine remained in shallow water near the western shore of the gulf at the northwest end of the Red Sea.

"It had not been in the water for a long time," the spokesman said. "I think it may be another three or four days before we're certain what we have." Egypt's defense minister, Abdel-Halim Abu-Ghazala, told reporters Wednesday that the mine, found last week by British navy searchers, appears "almost brand new" and may be linked to a series of explosions which damaged 18 ships in the Gulf of Suez and Red Sea between July 9 and Aug. 15.

Egyptian officials suspect Libya and possibly Iran of planting the mines in an effort to disrupt shipping in the Red Sea and Suez Canal. Both countries deny the charge.

The British spokesman said the mine was found in about 40 yards of water south of the approaches to the canal.

British navy units had been searching the northern sector of the Gulf of Suez as part of a multinational effort to investigate the cause of the explosions.

U.S. Navy helicopters and ships searched the central sector of the Gulf of Suez for a month before completing their phase of the operation earlier this week.

Units from Egypt, France, Italy, Saudi Arabia and the Soviet Union also searched various parts of the Red Sea.

The mine located by the British was the only one found so far which Egyptian officials say could be linked to the explosions.

Last Friday, the French navy found a mine in the southern end of the Gulf of Suez. But investigators determined the device was planted during the 1973 Arab-Israeli war and was not linked to the recent shipping attacks.

The French mine was later detonated.

Soviets May Give Key Military Post To Former Chief Of Staff

LONDON (AP) — Marshal Nikolai Ogarkov, the former Soviet chief of staff, was not demoted as some Western analysts surmised, but will likely be assigned to command Soviet forces facing NATO, Jane's Defense Weekly reports.

And the "ultimate goal" of the new command for Moscow's top general would be "total victory against the West," wrote Youssef Bodansky, identified by the magazine as a consultant to the U.S. defense and state departments, in the edition published Wednesday.

Jane's Defense Weekly is produced by Jane's Publishing Co. which issues military yearbooks considered highly authoritative by the defense establishment.

Bodansky, who has often had articles on Soviet military affairs published in the weekly, gave no indication of his sources in the report.

Jane's, which relies on an extensive network of official and unofficial sources around the world, said in an introduction to the article that Bodansky's "closer examination of the circumstances of the change of guard in the Soviet General Staff" presented a "different picture" of his transfer.

Ogarkov, 66, was removed as chief of staff and deputy defense minister Sept. 6 and re-assigned to "other work," according to the Soviet news agency Tass. His deputy, Marshal Sergei Akhromeyev, 51, succeeded him.

There have been reports in the Western press that Ogarkov was cast into political oblivion after losing a Kremlin power struggle, but there has been no definitive report on why he was removed.

Bodansky said the Soviets have sought to mask the transfer as "a politically oriented demotion" in a "large-scale disinformation."

But, Bodansky wrote, Ogarkov "seems to have been nominated to a central combat operational command post in which he would actively be able to lead the Soviet armed forces, should the need arise, in the strategic military operations he himself has refined and introduced as the primary type of war of the Soviet Union."

Poles Hint At U.S. Envoy Exchange

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland is hinting that it might be ready to exchange ambassadors with the United States to stop "the further decline of relations."

Meanwhile, two Solidarity activists whose reimprisonment caused further U.S.-Polish strains urged Communist authorities to restore the outlawed free trade union.

The indication that Warsaw might accept a U.S. ambassador came in an article denouncing Reagan administration policies since the Polish regime declared martial law in December 1981 to crack down on Solidarity.

The Polish news agency PAP distributed on Wednesday the text of the article, which was for today's edition of the official Communist Party newspaper Trybuna Ludu.

Poland has not named a new ambassador to Washington since the last envoy, Romuald Spasowski, defected to the United States after Poland declared martial law.

It has also refused to accept a replacement for the last U.S. ambassador to Warsaw, Francis J. Meehan, who left in February 1983. President Reagan named John D. Scanlon to replace him shortly afterward, but the post has been unfilled.

The Trybuna Ludu article accused the Reagan administration of harboring "an anti-Polish obsession."

But the article concluded: "Despite it all, Poland is for stopping the further decline in relations with the United States and even for the improvement of the rank of their substance and official record, provided that the United States recognizes Polish realities,...departs from the policy of interference and propaganda aggression, discontinues the lawless restrictions, and appropriates compensation for the harms and losses" caused by U.S. sanctions to protest martial law.

A U.S. Embassy official, reached by telephone, said the statement appeared to be "a bright sign" that could lead to an exchange of ambassadors and better relations.

The official spoke on the condition he not be identified.

After the Polish government released 630 political prisoners in July under a general amnesty, the Reagan administration announced it would restore U.S. landing rights to regular flights by the Polish national airline and resume cultural and scientific exchanges.

Still in effect are the two harshest U.S. sanctions — a ban on new loan credits and loss of favored trading status with the United States, partly because of concern over the fate of 22 political prisoners not released under the amnesty and the reimprisonment of the two Solidarity activists.

The two men, Wladyslaw Frasyniuk and Jozef Pinior, made their appeal to the regime in a statement from their jail cell in Wroclaw.

They were arrested Aug. 31 and sentenced to two months in jail for allegedly attempting to organize an illegal demonstration to mark the fourth anniversary of Solidarity's birth.

"Filling up prisons again will not weaken the resistance of an independent society," their statement said.

"We emphasized many times that July's amnesty would serve social peace if it were followed by granting Polish workers the right of self-determination, the right to have their own organizations and most of all, the right to trade union pluralism," the statement said.

Solidarity founder Lech Walesa said in a telephone interview Wednesday that he has met with Jacek Kuron, a leading dissident freed from jail under the amnesty in July.

"We talked about the situation and agreed we are going together," Walesa said without elaborating.

Kuron tried to see Walesa on Aug. 24 but said police detained him at his Warsaw apartment and a local police station to make him miss his flight to Gdansk, the Baltic seaport where Walesa lives.

In Warsaw, the top government spokesman accused a popular Polish priest who vigorously defends Solidarity of sowing "hatred" toward the government during his Masses in Warsaw.

The spokesman, Jerzy Urban, made the charge in an article written under the name Jan Rem, a pseudonym he often uses.

The priest, Jerzy Popieluszko, was indicted in June on charges of making inflamatory sermons and stockpiling explosives and illegal pro-Solidarity literature in his apartment. The charges were dropped under the amnesty declared in July.

Iraq Hits Main Persian Terminal

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraq said its armed forces attacked Iran's main Persian Gulf oil shipping terminal at Kharg Island today, damaging installations there in retaliation for an Iranian attack on two Iraqi ports.

A military spokesman announced in Baghdad that Iraq attacked "some facilities" on Kharg Island but did not elaborate.

The unidentified Iraqi spokesman, reading a communique over the state radio, termed the attack "a warning strike."

The reported attack was "in response to" a reported Iranian attack last Sunday against the Iraqi ports of Al-Baker and Al-Amiq in the gulf region, the spokesman said.

Producers To Meet

The Pitt County Livestock Development Association will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday at Parker's Restaurant with Phillip Moore of Pfizer Inc., as the speaker.

The meeting is open to area livestock producers.

Problems Expected

When weather conditions allow for corn harvest to resume farmers should be aware of weed problems in their fields, according to Pitt extension agent Mitch Smith.

Effective control of bermudagrass and johnsongrass can be done during the months of September and October, Smith said. "Corn fields which have this problem should be harvested and then mowed to allow these weed pests to emerge about three weeks later," he noted. "After these grasses have emerged, Roundup should be used at a two quarts per acre rate for johnsongrass and a five-quart-per-acre for bermudagrass."

Smith said weed mapping is helpful is selecting control programs for next year. "This practice enables a farmer to remember which weeds caused him problem during the 1984 growing season," he said.

How They Voted

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Sept. 6-12.

HOUSE

WILDERNESS — By a vote of 368 for and 41 against, the House passed and sent to the White House a bill (HR 1437) to permanently protect nearly two percent of California as a national wilderness.

The bill includes 1.8 million of the state's 100 million acres in the federal wilderness system, and releases another 1.8 million pristine acres for timbering, recreation and other commercial development.

This is one of the 20 state wilderness bills that Congress has approved or is considering under a 1964 law. The affected states are those with sizeable National Forest Service holdings.

Wilderness advocates say at least two percent of the lower 48 states will be protected from development when the 1964 law is fully implemented.

Supporter James Weaver, D-Ore., said "there is probably more asphaltic surface in this country than there is wilderness."

Opponent Norman Shumway, R-Calif., said the bill "reflects the trendy fantasy that public lands are sacred only to the degree they escape human needs."

Members voting yes favored the bill.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were Walter Jones, D-1; Tim Valentine, D-2; Charles Whitley, D-3; Ike Andrews, D-4; Stephen Neal, D-5; Charles Britt, D-6; Charles Rose, D-7; W.G. Hefner, D-8; James Broyhill, R-10, and James Clarke, D-11.

No North Carolina representatives voted no.

Rep. James Martin, R-9, did not vote.

EXTRADITE — The House rejected, 103 for and 307 against, a bill (HR 3347) to update laws under which foreigners are extradited from the U.S. This is the first proposed modernization in nearly a century.

Many members who favor modernization voted against the bill because it was debated under a short-cut parliamentary procedure that prevented amendments. They favored amending the bill to make it more palatable to President Reagan.

A leading area of controversy was the bill's "political offense doctrine." This prohibited extradition when the foreign national demonstrated the alleged crime for which he was being called home was political, except when the alleged offense was heinous or severe.

The Administration and many members voting no felt the doctrine was too protective of international criminals under the banner of human rights.

Supporter William Hughes, D-N.J., said U.S. extradition laws "are sadly out of date and in need of reform."

Opponent Dan Lungren, R-Calif., said such an important element of the president's anti-crime package should be subjected to full debate and floor amendments.

Members voting yes favored passing the extradition reform bill under a closed parliamentary procedure that blocked pro-Administration amendments.

No North Carolina representatives voted yes.

Those voting no were Walter Jones, Whitley, Ike Andrews, Neal, Britt, Rose, Hefner, Broyhill and Clarke.

James Martin did not vote.

SENATE

BANKS — The Senate voted, 76 for and 20 against, to prevent banks from receiving interest on certain deposits they are required to make with the Federal Reserve, the nation's central bank.

This occurred during debate on S 2851, a major banking deregulation bill that awaited final passage.

The vote killed a provision under which banks and other depository institutions were to begin reaping interest on a portion of their Fed balances. Interest was to be paid on reserves held against Super NOW and money market deposits.

The Fed requires federally chartered banking institutions to maintain reserves against a percentage of their profits. It uses the deposits to regulate the nation's money supply.

William Proxmire, D-Wisc., said the provision would cost taxpayers $4 billion over the next six years "with the bulk of the payment going to a mere handful of giant money-center banks."

John Heinz, R-Pa., defended the payment of interest as a necessary incentive for banks to seek out commercial deposits and thus remain competitive with other financial institutions.

Senators voting no wanted the government to start paying interest on certain balances that banks must maintain with the Fed.

North Carolina senators John East, R, and Jesse Helms, R, both voted yes.

The recent Summer North American Championships in Washington made front page news in the world's press, though not in a way to bring joy to the hearts of bridge administrators. First, a team was suspended from the tournament for "improprieties." Then Edith Rosenkranz, wife of the developer of the Romex system, Dr. George Rosenkranz, was kidnapped and held for ransom. Sterling work by the FBI resulted in the safe return of Mrs. Rosenkranz, the recovery of the ransom and the apprehension of three suspects in the kidnapping.

The FBI investigation was not all that Dr. Rosenkranz had to admire in Washington. On this hand from an event prior to the kidnapping, it was the defense of his partner, Eddie Wold of Houston, that earned his plaudits.

North-South were playing five-card major opening bids with a forcing no trump response. South really had no reason to invite game with his hand, since he might have found his partner with an even weaker holding.

Wold led a club, and declarer captured East's queen with the ace. Ace, king and another trump left West on play, and a club return looks natural enough. However, declarer would win that and take three diamond tricks for his contract.

Wold found the killing continuation — a low heart! The defenders took their four heart tricks for down one. Why a low heart and not a high honor? The auction marked East with a doubleton heart. What if that doubleton did not include the queen? Then East probably held the queen of diamonds, and the defenders would get their three heart tricks anyway.

Dropped Pants

MONTREAL (AP) — A 65-year-old American accused of planting the bomb that killed three people in a Montreal railroad station lowered his pants during a court session at which he declared his innocence.

"I'm not part of the bomb squad, I am the truth squad," said Thomas Brigham, a native of Rochester, N.Y., during a six-minute arraignment on three charges of first-degree murder. "I couldn't be part of a heinous thing like this."

Although handcuffed, Brigham managed to drop his trousers moments after he arrived in the courtroom. He remained in his shorts until he was led back to his cell.

On the advice of a psychiatrist, Judge Bernard Grenier placed Brigham in custody for 30 days to undergo psychiatric examination before he enters a plea.

Area Labor Force Keeps Growing

The labor force in the Greenville labor area — Pitt and Greene counties — continues to grow. The preliminary figure for the civilian labor force in the area as of mid-July was 60,170, an increase of 1,920 from the mid-May total of 58,250.

The area report, released by James Hannan, manager of the Greenville office of Employment Security Commission shows that total employment in the two counties during July was estimated at 56,630, up 1,840 from mid-May. Agricultural employment was up due to seasonal requirements by 2,910 persons over the two-month period of mid-May to mid-July.

The gain, according to Hannan, was partially offset by a loss of 1,550 in the nonmanufacturing sector, due primarily to a worker decline of 1,680 at that time in government, principally the result of cut back in school employment during the summer.

In the field of service jobs, there was a gain of 110 workers during the two-month period. Manufacturing employment showed only minor changes from mid-May to mid-July.

A breakdown of the civilian labor force in the two counties, the numbers employed and unemployed, are:

•Pitt County — 51,020 labor force, 48,040 employed, 2,980 unemployed, with an unemployment rate of 5.8 percent.

•Greene County — 9,150 labor force, 8,590 employed, 560 unemployed, with an unemployment rate of 6.1 percent.

Vincent Claims He Is Innocent

MALIBU, Calif. (AP) — Jan-Michael Vincent often plays tough guys, but he says he's innocent of knocking a man unconscious during a June 3 barroom brawl in Malibu.

Vincent, charged with one misdemeanor assault count, entered the innocent plea Wednesday during an arraignment in Municipal Court. A pretrial hearing was set for Oct. 17.

Sheriff's deputies said the 38-year-old actor punched John Bogasian, 42, of South Pasadena. Bogasian was knocked unconscious when his head struck the barroom floor, they said.

Vincent has appeared in many films and television series, including the TV mini-series, "The Winds of War," and the films "Tribes," "Damnation Alley," and "Going Home," for which he won a Golden Globe nomination.

Shared Power

SAN MARINO (AP) — The Parliament of this tiny mountain republic has elected a Socialist and a Communist to share executive power for the six months beginning Oct. 1.

The Great and General Council, San Marino's legislature, picked Socialist Marino Bollini, 51, and Communist Giuseppe Amici, 45, to be the new captains-regent.

Lawyer Complains

MEXICO CITY (AP) — An American lawyer visiting Havana said President Reagan is trying to prevent U.S. intellectuals from visiting Cuba, the official Cuban news agency Prensa Latina reports.

Prensa Latina quoted Harold Meyerson, identified as the legal adviser for the Marazul travel agency, as saying Reagan doesn't want American intellectuals to learn about the economic and social reality of Cuba.

The dispatch said Meyerson is in Havana along with a group of lawyers attending a symposium about politics and ideology and their relationship with the law.

New ECU Facility Allows More Study In Genetics

ECU News Bureau

A new facility under development in the East Carolina University Biology Department will allow students to investigate one of the fundamental techniques behind recent advances in genetic engineering, according to Dr. Wendell E. Allen.

Dr. Allen, ECU coordinator for molecular biology-biotechnology, said the new laboratory will be equipped for research and training involving the reproduction of monoclonal antibodies by hybridoma technology — a process that has widespread applications in medicine, agriculture and food science.

Development of the facility marks the most recent expansion of ECU's undergraduate and master's level training programs in molecular biology and biotechnology. The program was initiated in 1981 and is being established as a joint project of the Biology Department and the ECU School of Medicine. Allen and Dr. A. Mason Smith of the School of Medicine's Department of Microbiology will serve as co-directors.

According to Allen, the discovery of methods permitting the production of monoclonal antibodies in an artificial environment is probably one of the most important techniques to arise in the scientific world in the past several decades. "There are virtually no disciplines within the biological sciences that have not been influenced by the availablility of monospecific antibodies to be used as probes, carriers and markers," he said.

Hybridoma technology involves the fusion of cells from a malignant tumor of the immune system with [illegible] lymphocytes (a type of white blood cell) taken from mice immunized against a particular disease or toxic substance. The cells resulting from this fusion combine the lymphocytes' ability to produce specific antibodies with the tumor cells' characteristic for continuous division, therefore assuring the unlimited production of identical antibodies secreted by the hybrid cells.

Funds for the purchase of equipment came from a $30,000 grant from the North Carolina Biotechnology Center, and $13,000 and $1,000 matching gifts from the School of Medicine and the ECU Foundation, respectively. Allen said that the equipment has been ordered and that laboratory classes are planned for the spring semester.

Power Project

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Hungarian environmentalists are asking Austrians to help them fight a huge Soviet bloc power project which they say will cause irreversible damage to a long stretch of the Danube River.

The Hungarians, members of a group known as the Independent Danube Circle, are seeking Austrian support for a petition campaign they began this summer. It was believed to be the largest environmental protest ever in the Soviet bloc.

An appeal being circulated in Vienna says the project, which includes plans to dam or divert a 138-mile stretch of the Danube, "completely ignores economic factors, in particular the supply of drinking water and the protection of nature."

because these groups are opposed to everything we stand for."

But, Reagan told reporters as he left for a political swing through the Midwest, "You have to live and do you have to do your best to protect yourself. But you have to know that these terrorist groups are threatening all over the world."

First reports from Lebanese military sources had said the 48-year-old Bartholomew sustained head and chest injuries and was in intensive care. Reagan and the State Department denied the report.

Winn said he rushed to Bartholomew's office after the explosion."When I first got to his office, Ambassador Bartholomew was pinned under the rubble," he said. "We (Winn and Miers) had to pull him out."

Winn said that at the time of the blast, there may have been "30, 40 or 50 people in the building. It depends on how many were in the visa line."

U.S. Marine Cpl. Larry Gill said he was on duty at the front entrance of the annex when the attack occurred."We heard shooting, saw it (the van) skidding, then the lights went out," he said.

Gill, of Mobile, Ala., suffered cuts and bruises. He said he had been partially buried in the rubble, but "I think I'm okay."

The wreckage of the vehicle used in the attack lay about five yards from the main entrance to the annex building. The Dodge or Chevrolet van exploded a yard from the annex entrance.

One diplomat on the scene said: "Our guards shot at the car and tried to stop it, but it got into the compound and exploded right here" — pointing to the spot in front of the entrance. The diplomat also spoke on condition of anonymity.

Other witnesses also said embassy guards opened fire on the approaching van. There was one report that a U.S. Marine killed the driver of the van just before the explosion.

The building did not collapse, but there was severe damage to the ground floor, and considerable damage to the other five stories. Damage from shrapnel could be seen 500 yards away.

Fuad Saleh Jr., a witness who lives about a mile from the embassy, said: "The blast was very powerful. Our house shook and smoke, white smoke, started billowing. We could see the smoke clouds and hear ambulance sirens."

Fire engines and civil defense squads rushed to the scene to extinguish the blaze while rescue workers searched the wreckage. Ambulances were taking the casualties to east Beirut hospitals.

About 90 minutes after the explosion, a man telephoned the Beirut office of the French news agency Agence France-Presse to claim responsibility on behalf of Islamic Holy War, also known as Islamic Jihad.

The announcement attributed to Islamic Holy War said: "The operation comes to prove that we will carry out our previous promise not to allow a single American to remain on Lebanese soil. When we say Lebanese soil we mean every inch of Lebanese territory.

"We also want to caution our Lebanese brothers and all citizens to stay away from American institutions and gathering point, especially the embassy.We are the strongest and we will remain the strongest."

No member of Islamic Jihad has ever been identified. Lebanese and American officials have said there may not actually be such a group, and that the name may be used by many individual attackers or small independent groups.

Henry ...

Henry maintained his innocence, but apologized to the dead man's family.

"Most of all I would like them to know — and this is not an admission of anything — that I'm sorry for their grief," he told reporters Tuesday. "I know that's not a whole lot but it's from my heart."

Henry, who said that he believes in God and life after death, was visited Wednesday night by a girlfriend and family members, but declined a visit from a minister, said Vernon Bradford, a Department of Corrections spokesman.

The condemned man was awakened at 4:30 a.m. and ate a last meal of oysters, hot sauce, cantaloupe and grapefruit juice, said Department of Corrections spokesman Vernon Bradford.

"I've never had oysters before," he said.

At 5 a.m., his head and right ankle were shaved to accomodate the electrodes, Bradford said.

The refusal by the Supreme Court to block the execution followed a similar ruling earlier in the day by the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta.

Defense attorney Dick Burr had cited findings by a New York University psychiatrist, who suggested Henry may have suffered permanent brain damage when he was abused as child. Burr said the damage may have caused Henry to react violently when confronted with stress.

The attorney said the new evidence, if it had been presented at the trial, could have swayed the jury not to recommend the death penalty.

Sows: (500 pounds up) Wilson unreported; Fayetteville 44.00; Whiteville unreported; Wallace 45.50; Spivey's Corner 44.50, Rowland 44.00.

BROILERS: The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 47.50 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2½ to 3 pound birds. Too few loads offered have been confirmed for a final weighted average. The market is lower and the live supply is moderate for a light to moderate demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Thursday was 1,722,000, compared to 1,853,000 last Thursday.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn steady at mostly 3.95-3.00 in East and mostly 3.13-3.16 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans irregular at mostly 6.05-6.29 in the east and mostly 5.95-6.03 in the Piedmont; wheat mostly 3.27-3.34; (new crop soybeans 5.59-6.84).

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, levelling off a bit after its decline of the past two sessions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 24.07 points in the past two trading days, slipped another 1.33 to 1,211.68 by noontime today.

But gainers held a slight lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Before the market opened, the government issued a "flash" estimate that the economy is growing at a 3.6 percent annual rate, after adjustment for inflation, in the current quarter.

That was down substantially from a 7.1 percent growth rate in the second quarter. But in the bond market, where there had been talk of an even sharper slowdown, interest rates rose.

Among actively traded blue chips, Eastman Kodak dropped ⅛ to 71¼, but Allied Corp. rose ¼ to 35½ and International Business Machines gained ⅛ to 126.

The NYSE's composite index rose .10 to 96.31. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .44 at 215.76.

Volume on the Big Board came to 42.39 million shares at noontime, against 49.61 million at the same point Wednesday.

Jags Test Conley's New Powers

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

Coaches in the National Football League have been known to gripe about playing a Monday night game on national television then having to prepare for a game the following Sunday. But area high school coaches have the task of getting ready to play Friday after making up games Monday.

If the schools happen to be county rivals, such as D.H. Conley and Farmville Central, there is even more pressure.

Conley pounded North Pitt 45-0 Monday for its third straight shutout of the season, while Farmville's Jaguars suffered a 6-0 loss to Bertie.

"Conley certainly has the momentum coming into the game," Farmville Coach Dixon Sauls said. "They'll be fired up; we much match their enthusiasm."

Meanwhile, Conley Coach Donnie Bunn is concerned that his players must maintain their concentration despite the best start by a Viking squad in recent years.

"I'd rather be playing a rival this week," Bunn said. "We can't be satisfied. Farmville will be the best team we've faced so far. They have top athletes and they're well coached.

"They're big; they have tremendous size on the line. We know they're going to run right at us."

In other area games, Chocowinity travels to Mattamuskeet, Jamesville is at Northwest Halifax, Greenville Central visits Northampton West and Williamston hosts Ahoskie. All the area games that were scheduled for last Friday night were postponed until Monday when Hurricane Diana threatened to hit the region.

"We're used to a schedule and now we have to cram to prepare for our next game. That means there's a chance of oversight. We're having to put in a little extra time."

The Jaguars have moved to later practice times hoping to rest for Friday's challenge.

"It's a challenge to prepare mentally," Sauls said. "We praticed at night Tuesday and at six (Wednesday). Our practices will be short and crisp, but we'll have to leave out a few things we would ordinarily work on.

"We could wind up physically under par. We appeared a little leg weary against Bertie, possibly because of the rain last week. But that's not an excuse for the way we played."

Senior Jeff Vail rolled up 105 yards rushing on 21 carries to lead the Jaguars on offense, but Sauls was not pleased with the performance overall.

"I hope we learned from our mistakes," Sauls said. "We did not make maximum effort on every play. We just had poor overall execution in our passing game.

"The one tuochdown in the game came against our punt coverage. Joe Smith has done an excellent job punting for us so far averaging 37 yards. We jsut had a breakdown in coverage."

Sauls praised Jerome Daniels for 11 tackles on defense, along with junior nose guard Dennis Tripp.

"We had an outstanding game defensively," Sauls said. "We only gave up 52 yards and they never crossed our 50."

Defense was the key for the Vikings Monday, as well. Conley defensive back Steve Mills picked up a fumble on the first play from scrimmage and raced 32 yards just 15 seconds into the contest to give the Vikes all the points they needed.

"Our whole first half point production (25) was provided by the defense," Bunn said. "It wasn't until the second half that we put together an offensive drive. I felt like we had trouble picking up our blocking assignments.

"Once we got our blocking scheme adjusted to the number of people they had up front, I felt good that our players were able to communicate with us and resolve the problems."

Middle linebacker Ricky Rice lifted the Viking defense, according to Bunn.

"Ricky got through and created some things that set us up in good field position offensively," Bunn said.

"We've got to continue to progress. We've got to have better execution on the offensive line, but that comes around slower. The line has just got to be more aggressive.

"We've got to stay healthy; we're down to 25 players now. We've got so many going both ways, we've got to be in condition."

AYDEN-GRIFTON

Kelvin Harris rushed for 106 yards and Mike Dixon intercepted a pair of passes, but Coach Dwight Tart wasn't pleased with the performance of the Chargers' offense in their 14-0 victory over Richlands Monday.

"We didn't make things happen," Tart said. "It would have made a big difference if we had come off the ball better. We took last Thursday off because of the weather, then school was dismissed early Friday. So essentially, we hadn't practiced since Wednesday.

"I think that could have made a big difference. Defensively, we played a little more passive than I would have liked. Our secondary intercepted three passes; Mike Dixon had two and Jackie Braxton one."

Another factor of the Chargers' defensive performance, which included a fourth-quarter safety, was Gene Johnson's 45-yard average of two punts.

"He hung one up there that I thought might not come down," Tart quipped. "He's reallay kept us out of trouble on defense with his punting."

Tart also praised receiver Shannon Peede for helping keep one of the Charger scoring drives alive with key receptions. "He was essential in moving the ball up the field," Tart said.

The Chargers, now 2-0 on the season, face North Lenoir Friday. The Hawks suffered a 20-0 loss to Greene Central Monday, but have posted a pair of victories.

"I think we'll match up pretty well against North Lenoir," Tart said. "They use a 4-4 defense and stunt out of it a lot from what I've seen. It'll be a real challenge for our offensive line.

"Hopefully, we're beginning to respond and rise to the occasion a little more now. We had one of our best practices of the season (Tuesday). If we go out with that intensity and play hard, we have a chance to have a real good week.

"I feel like (North Lenoir) will be extra ready to play because they've already lost one game this week and nobody likes to lose two in the same week."

NORTH PITT

A week off will give North Pitt's Panthers a while to work on the problem which has cost them the most in three losses: turnovers.

"That's been our biggest problem so far," Coach Larry Bolger said. "Against Conley, we had four turnovers turn into touchdowns. We made seven turnovers against East Carteret.

"We've got to work on protecting the football, keeping it in our hands and catching punts."

A fumble on the Panthers' first play from scrimmage against Conley was returned 32 yards for a touchdown, and North Pitt was not able to bounce back after limited success early on offense.

"We handed them four touchdowns," Bolger said. "Defensively, we were hot and cold Monday. At times, we stopped Conley, but they moved the ball in a couple of drives.

"We gave up the ball on the four or five yard line a couple of times. From that point, it was a battle to survive.

"We had a little talk with the players Monday after the game and again (Tuesday) at practice; we wanted to make them realize these are non-conference games. We want them to know we understand they are still learning a new system.

"We felt a little rushed during the summer trying to get everything put in that we wanted to do, and this week gives us a chance to catch up on everything. We don't know how to handle pressure and we can work on that this week, too."

Rose Fines Himself $50

ATLANTA (AP) — Almost everything went right for Cincinnati Reds player-Manager Pete Rose. But what went wrong cost him $50.

He ran through a "stop" sign at third base and was out by 10 feet at the plate in the third inning.

"That's $50," Rose said after the Reds' 4-2 victory Wednesday night over the Atlanta Braves. "That's the first time I've had to do that since I became manager. I paid it to me but it'll really go to charity. I was just too aggressive."

Otherwise, things went fine.

"Everything we did tonight seemed to work out," Rose said.

He put Duane Walker in to replace Eddie Milner in centerfield when Milner came down with a virus. Walker homered in the second.

He used Tom Foley to pinch hit for winning pitcher Jay Tibbs in the eighth. Foley homered of reliever Gene Garber, giving the Reds a 3-1 lead.

Rose doubled home Ron Oester in the third inning to give Cincinnati its second run, but then was thrown out by Braves center fielder Dale Murphy when he ran through third base coach Joe Sparks' hold sign on Dave Parker's hard single to center.

"I chewed Parker out for hitting the ball so hard," Rose said.

Rose's double was his 725th of his career, tying him with Stan Musial for the National League record. It also was his 100th hit of the year, extending his major league record of consecutive 100-hit seasons to 22.

"The double was nice, but the next one will be better," Rose said. "When you're tied with someone, you're not No. 1 but it is nice to be mentioned with Stan Musial. He was a great player."

Rose now has 4,090 career hits, and needs 102 more to break Ty Cobb's all-time hit mark.

Driverless Hinkle Finds Vegas Lead With 3-Wood

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - Slump-ridden Lonnie Hinkle left his driver in the bag, found the fairways with his 3-wood and — playing consistently from the short grass for this first time this season — compiled a career-best 62 that staked him to the first round lead in pro golf's richest tournament.

"This is almost like cheating, this playing from the fairways," Hinkle said Wednesday after he'd put an amazing birdie, birdie, birdie, birdie, eagle finish to his 9-under-par effort Wednesday in the Panasonic Las Vegas Invitational, which offers $1,122,500 in total prizes and $162,000 to the winner.

"Playing from the short grass is a lot easier, a lot more fun, than playing out of the woods and the water and the rough and the garbage and the bunkers, where I've been all year," said the long-hitting Hinkle, a non-winner since 1979.

The problem, he said, was with his driver. He has been unable to find a replacement for the one he broke in Houston more than a year ago.

"I've got the prettiest club you ever saw," he said. "And I can't hit it. I can't hit it at all. I just can't be as bad as I've been playing."

So, after driving into the rough off the first tee, he left the driver in the bag, used a 3-wood or iron off the tee and devastated the Las Vegas Country Club course.

"That was a lot of fun. There was a lot of laughing and giggling out there," Hinkle said.

The effort was built around that amazing finish, four birdies and an eagle on the last five holes; scores of 2-3-3-2-3, with a wide-breaking, 35-foot putt catching the cup for the eagle that gave him the lead in this 5-day, 90-hole event.

The format calls for the 176 pros to play one round on each of four courses at this desert playground, each day with a different, 4-man team of amateurs, before the field is cut for Sunday's pros-only finish at the Las Vegas course.

Fuzzy Zoeller, the current U.S. Open champion and the 1983 winner of this title, will not be among them.

Zoeller suffered a recurrance of chronic back problems — severe spasms — and, despite medical treatment Tuesday, was unable to defend his title. Zoeller was hospitalized for six days in August when back problems forced him out of the PGA National Championship and the World Series of Golf.

Corey Pavin, who is closing in on a money-winning record for a rookie, had a 63, also at the Las Vegas Club, in temperatures that reached toward 100 degrees.

He was followed by Dan Pohl, whose 64 was six under par at the Tropicana Club.

Scott Hoch and Canadian Dave Barr, both at Las Vegas, and Willie Wood, at Tropicana, had 65s.

Jay Cudd, Bill Kratzert and Jim Simons, all at Tropicana, and Jim Blair, Mike Donald and Gary Hallberg, all at Las Vegas, had 66s.

Angels Pass Twins; Royals On Top

By The Associated Press

It's the same three teams in the American League West race, just the order has changed.

California needed 11 innings to defeat Kansas City 4-3 Wednesday night and the Chicago White Sox downed the Minnesota Twins 7-3. That means Kansas City holds first place, but the Angels jumped ahead of the Twins, who lost their third straight game.

Only a bad-hop single by Bobby Grich kept the Angels from falling 3½ games behind the Royals with 12 games to play.

"This was really a big win because now we're in second place and only chasing one team," California Manager John McNamara said. "It's a lot tougher to chase two teams instead of one."

In other AL games, Boston trounced Toronto 10-4; Detroit beat Milwaukee 4-2; New York defeated Baltimore 6-5; Oakland edged Texas 8-7 and Seattle downed Cleveland 4-3.

Doug DeCinces led off the California 11th with a single and Rick Burleson was sent in to pinch run. He was advanced to second on a sacrifice bunt by Brian Dowing. Reggie Jackson was walked intentionally, setting the stage for Grich's good hop hit off Joe Beckwith, 8-4.

"I'm not going to say that I just put my head down and ran," Grich said. "I was watching the ball all the way wishing that it would take off. I knew it had a chance because I hit it with a lot of top spin and on this infield the ball has a tendency to pop up."

What had been popping up in the minds of many was that California was pulling a fold in its biggest series of the year. The Royals had taken the first two games of the series 10-1 and 10-0.

"In everyone's mind this was a must game," California reliever Doug Corbett, who pitched 3 1-3 perfect innings, said. "We wouldn't have been mathematically out of it but it would have put a big damper on things if we hadn't come through."

Rod Carew came through for the Angels, tying the score 3-3 in the seventh inning with a pinch-single off reliever Dan Quisenberry. Darrel Miller led off the inning with a walk and Quisenberry relieved starter Danny Jackson. Miller went to second on Bob Boone's sacrifice bunt, but Quisenberry struck out Juan Beniquez and went 0-2 on Carew before the seven-time AL batting champion came through.

"Basically, this showed what kind of club we have," Grich said. "We lost two lopsided games but we came back. This is where experience pays off. We are not going to give up."

Don Aase, 4-1, held the Royals hitless over the final two innings for the victory.

White Sox 7, Twins 3

Pinch-hitter Steve Christmas hit his first major-league home run, a three-run shot that broke a 3-3, seventh-inning tie. Floyd Bannister, 13-10, allowed five hits in seven innings as the Twins lost their third straight to fall out of first-or second-place in the division for the first time since July 22.

Greg Walker led off the top of the seventh with a single. Two outs later, he stole second and pinch-hitter Roy Smalley was intentionally walked, setting the stage for Christmas, who was batting for Marc Hill. Mike Smithson, 15-13, took the loss for the Twins, who scored all their runs on homers, a two-run shot by Tim Laudner and Tom Brunansky's 32nd of the season.

Minnesota first baseman Kent Hrbek missed the game with a strained forearm but was expected to play today against Chicago.

Red Sox 10, Blue Jays 4

Dwight Evans continued his assault on Toronto pitching, hitting two three-run homers. Evans' second home run came in the Red Sox' six-run fifth inning that gave Boston a 9-1 lead. In the last two games in Toronto, Evans slugged four home runs and drove in 10 runs.

Mike Easler added a two-run shot in the fifth that gave Bruce Hurst, 12-10, the cushion he needed for his road victory since defeating California on July 21. Boston's Jim Rice took over the AL RBI lead when he drove in his 118th run of the season with a ninth-inning single.

Tigers 4, Brewers 2

With a reserve-filled lineup the day after they clinched the AL East title, the Tigers beat the Brewers as Jack Morris won his 18th game of the season, tying him with Baltimore's Mike Boddicker for the league lead.

Rookies Nelson Simmons, who had three hits, Scott Earl, Dwight Lowry, Mike Laga and Doug Baker supplied all the offense Detroit needed while Willie Hernandez, the last of four Detroit pitchers, worked the final inning for his 31st save.

Milwaukee had taken a 1-0 lead on Roy Howell's fourth homer of the season.

Yankees 6, Orioles 5

Don Mattingly drove in three runs with three hits to improve his batting average to .346, one point behind teammate Dave Winfield, the league leader who was rested Wednesday night by Manager Yogi Berra.

Joe Cowley, 9-1, allowed four runs on six hits in 6 2-3 innings for his eighth straight victory. All the Baltimore runs scored on homers as Mike Young, Jim Dwyer and Rick Dempsey hit solo shots and Al Bumbry added a two-run blast for the visitors. Boddicker, 18-11, was the loser.

A's 8, Rangers 7

Garry Hancock drilled a two-out, bases-loaded single to cap an Oakland rally in the bottom of the ninth. The A's trailed 7-2 and scored two runs before Texas starter Charlie Hough was forced to leave with arm problems.

Carney Lansford tied the game in the eighth with a two-run single and Hancock made a winner of Steve McCatty, 8-14. Gary Ward drove in three runs for Texas and Buddy Bell knocked in two.

Mariners 4, Indians 3

Seattle's rookie duo of Alvin Davis and Mark Langston combined to down the visiting Indians. Davis' two-run, second-inning double proved to be the game-winner and gave the outfielder 112 RBI, the highest American League total for a rookie in 34 years.

Langston, 16-9, allowed four hits and struck out nine to increase his American League-leading total to 195. He was relieved by Edwin Nunez after surrendering a leadoff single to Carmen Castillo in the ninth. Pat Tabler followed with a home run off Nunez, who was relieved by Dave Geisel, who earned his third save.

State, Wake Meet In Key ACC Game

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

North Carolina State and Wake Forest, two teams who have declared the third week of the season crucial, collide in Raleigh this weekend in Atlantic Coast Conference football action.

The Demon Deacons dropped an opening night decision to Virginia Tech before struggling to defeat Appalachian State last weekend. N.C. State trounced Ohio University in its opener, then was upset 34-30 by Furman almost a week ago.

All eight ACC teams are in action for the first time this season. Second-ranked Clemson meets No. 20 Georgia in Athens and North Carolina travels to No. 10 Boston College. Duke goes to South Carolina. Georgia Tech is at home to face The Citadel. Virginia travels to Navy and Maryland is at No. 18 West Virginia.

Wolfpack Coach Tom Reed warned that Furman might provide a tough challenge and the Paladins pushed the N.C. State defense all over the Carter-Finley Stadium field. Thus, Reed said, Saturday's battle takes on a new meaning.

"I hate to think of the third game of the season as a make or break game, but the loss to Furman does put a little more importance on this game," Reed said. "Our team was very upset with the loss Saturday, but they have the desire to get better. I could see it on their face."

Wake Forest Coach Al Groh says he doesn't want to face the Wolfpack following its loss and echoes Reed's belief about the importance of their conference opener.

"The game Saturday has the potential for having a significant positive impact on the rest of the season," said Groh, who in three seasons has won just two ACC games.

Clemson had last week off but Coach Danny Ford expects to have a tough time trying to combat the Bulldogs — and the crowd — in 82,00-seat Sanford Stadium.

"I'm very concerned, not just with Georgia, but with our team," Ford said. "But as a coach, I especially enjoy a game like this because the people involved are going to give a good account of themselves. I won't have to preach much this week."

The Tar Heels were stunned by Navy in their season opener in Kenan Stadium. The road doesn't get any easier this week as Boston College and quarterback Doug Flutie present the newest challenge for Coach Dick Crum's defense.

"Trying to stop Flutie, there's no magical formula to stopping that guy. He's good and you've got to try to slow him down," Crum said. "I don't know that anybody has really stopped him."

Duke goes back to work after last Saturday's vacation. The Blue Devils should have tailback Julius Grantham at full speed following a hand injury that hampered him prior to the Indiana opener. Quarterback Ron Sally has a sore shoulder and may give way to Drew Walston for the starting spot in Columbia.

"This open week has given us a chance to change our alignments to South Carolina's type of play," Coach Steve Sloan said. "Their defense blitzes more than most college teams.

"Also, we're changing how we line up defensively," Sloan continued. "South Carolina uses a split back veer which is complicated and hard to stop."

Georgia Tech knocked off Alabama 16-6 and Bill Curry wants to make sure the 1984 season isn't a mirror image of 1981, when the Yellow Jackets knocked off the Crimson Tide and then lost the next 10 contests.

"Now it is highly important we show improvement. That's the bottom line," Curry said. "To get it is to demand it and I will settle for nothing else."

The Navy passing attack might not have been accurate against the Tar Heels as 18-for-41 statistics indicate, but their victory over North Carolina came on a 60-yard pass-and-run. Virginia Coach George Welsh now knows that the Midshipmen can attack not only on the ground with tailback Napolean McCallum, but through the air as well.

"They're trying to help (McCallum) with their passing attack," Welsh said. "I didn't think they'd be that wide open, especially with two sophomores at quarterback."

Welsh has two sophomores at the quarterback spot, but because Kevin Ferguson tossed three touchdown passes in a victory over VMI, he is likely to retain the start this weekend.

Maryland Coach Bobby Ross is not as pessimistic about the team's 0-2 start after viewing the films of last weekend's loss to Vanderbilt. The Terrapins opened 0-2 in 1982 and went on to an 8-4 record, but he admitted that the Mountaineers provide a major challenge to avoid a 0-3 beginning.

"They're a big football team and very physical," Ross said. "They're riding high at 3-0 and have no apparent weaknesses. But I'm looking forward to going up there."

Lady Pirates Earn Split

UNC-Wilmington won both of its matches by impressive margins to sweep a tri-match involving UNC-W, North Carolina Weslayen and hosting East Carolina in women's volleyball last night.

The Lady Seahawks defeated the homestanding Lady Pirates in the opening match, 15-5, 15-2, and handed N.C. Wesleyan a 15-1, 15-9 defeat in the very next match.

East Carolina took on the Lady Battling Bishops in the nightcap getting its first win of the season, 8-15, 15-13, 15-12.

East Carolina is 1-1 on the year, while UNC-W moves to 2-1 and N.C. Wesleyan is 2-2.

The Lady Pirates host Wake Forest and UNC-Charlotte in another tri-match spread over Friday and Saturday.

Junior Girls Win Opener

Manning Rolls 700 Pin Series

James Manning recorded a 700 series while bowling at Hillcrest Lanes last night.

It was the first 700 of the new season which started earlier this month at the lanes, but was Manning's third in the last two seasons. He had two last year.

Manning, bowling for the United Machine Works team in the Men's City League, recorded games of 218, 252 and 237 for a 707 series.

He has been bowling about nine years.

Payton Goes For Harris' Position

CHICAGO (AP) — In three days, Chicago Bears running back Walter Payton figures to supplant Franco Harris as the National Football League's No. 2 career rusher. Next month, he might become No. 1.

The prospect of climbing to heights no man, including standard-setting Jim Brown, has gone before, has Payton sounding very philosophical.

"Once, they said people would never reach the moon, and there were times when you would have been stoned for saying that," Payton said Wednesday, preparing for Sunday's showdown with Harris and the Seattle Seahawks.

"But that goal was proven obtainable. You don't set your sights for goals that can be accomplished. You set your sights for goals beyond your reach," he continued, "and that way you accomplish more than you would have thought."

Brown, who retired at age 29, set the NFL standard of 12,312 career rushing yards in just nine seasons with the Cleveland Browns. Payton, 30, entered this, his tenth season, trailing that mark by 687 yards and Harris, 34, a 12-year veteran, by only 325.

But Harris' contract squabbles with the Pittsburgh Steelers diffused what should have been a season-long drama and changed it, instead, into a lopsided confrontation.

Harris held out for more money while missing all of training camp, subsequently lost his job in Pittsburgh, and ended up in Seattle. Playing sparingly for a passing team while getting his legs back, Harris has managed just 59 yards in two games in a Seahawk uniform.

"They're (the Seahawks) more concerned about winning (than Harris' chase for the record) and doing their things," said Payton. "It might have been different if he'd still been in Pittsburgh."

Payton, meanwhile, has churned out 350 yards on the ground in three starts and catching 11 passes for 54 more yards to steal Brown's top spot in the all-time combined yardage category last with 15,656.

When the Bears visit Seattle, Payton will face Harris for just the third time, this time just 34 yards behind the man he chased in his mind's eye all during the off-season.

"When I said I wanted to catch Franco this season it was a motivational tactic more than anything else. I had just gone through (arthroscopic) surgery on both knees and while I worked, I used that for my training and to keep my mind real strong," said Payton. "It worked."

But Payton will have reason to use the images of both Harris and Brown even after he gets to the top of the rushing list.

He needs one more 1,000-yard rushing season to match Harris' eight; 27 rushing touchdowns and 38 total TDs to erase Brown's marks of 106 and 126, respectively.

After that, well, there's always the space program.

Chocowinity Splits Openers

BELHAVEN — Chocowinity opened the 1984 volleyball season yesterday, gaining a split with Aurora and hosting Belhaven.

In the opener, Chocowinity downed Aurora, 15-8, 15-7, but then lost to Belhaven, 15-12, 15-11.

Chris Machado served up three straight points in each of her four services, while Zina Warren had six in a row in the second game with Aurora.

"We really didn't set up well and we didn't spike. I was really disappointed in our play," Coach Larry Knox said.

The Lady Indians, now 1-1, return to action on Wednesday, hosting Belhaven and Aurora.

Padres Could Ice Flag Tonight

By BEN WALKER
AP Sports Writer

The San Diego Padres are faced with a dilemma that any team would enjoy.

With a 5-4 victory over San Francisco in 10 innings Wednesday night, the Padres cut their magic number for winning their first National League West crown to two.

This afternoon, the Padres were to play the Giants and a victory would clinch a tie for the division title. If second-place Houston then loses to Los Angeles tonight, San Diego would win the West.

"It'll be kind of messed up if we win and then have to wait and see what happens in Houston," said Padres outfielder Tony Gwynn.

"I hope it's a nice celebration," San Diego Manager Dick Williams said. "I imagine there will be some bubbly iced from now on."

In other NL games, Pittsburgh clubbed Chicago 11-6, Philadelphia drilled New York 13-5, Cincinnati beat Atlanta 4-2, St. Louis blanked Montreal 1-0 and Los AngTDes downed Houston 3-1.

Chicago's magic number for clinching its first NL East crown was reduced to three with New York's loss.

San Francisco reliever Scott Garrelts, 1-3, walked the bases loaded full of Padres with one out in the 10th.

Garry Templeton then grounded to second baseman Manny Trillo, who threw high to the plate. Catcher Bob Brenly made the catch, but pinch-runner Eddie Miller's slide jarred the ball loose for an error and allowed the winning run to score.

"He was pulled off the plate, but I thought he (Brenly) was a little anxious to try to pull out and throw to first," San Francisco Manager Danny Ozark said. "He held the ball, but the collision knocked it away."

Said Williams: "We'll take it."

Pirates 11, Cubs 6

Tony Pena's grand slam capped a six-run rally in the sixth inning that sent host Chicago to its third straight loss.

Pittsburgh trailed 6-5 going into the sixth before Doug Frobel led off by drawing a walk from Tim Stoddard, 10-6. Marvell Wynne's two-out triple tied it, and after Lee Lacy walked, Johnny Ray doubled to put the Pirates ahead.

Rich Bordi replaced Stoddard and intentionally walked Jason Thompson to load the bases before Pena ripped his third career grand slam and 14th home run of the season.

Rick Sutcliffe started for the Cubs. He was knocked out in the fifth inning but left with his 13-game winning streak intact.

Gary Matthews and Keith Moreland hit consecutive home runs for Chicago in the third inning.

Phillies 13, Mets 5

Philadelphia combined 15 hits, including four triples, eight walks, five stolen bases and five New York errors for a rout.

Jeff Stone went 4-for-5 — he's 21-for-41 against the Mets this season — to key the attack. Steve Jeltz, who entered the game batting .156, lined a bases-loaded triple to cap a five-run explosion in the first inning, during which New York starter Ron Darling, 12-8, threw 55 pitches.

Steve Carlton, 13-7, got the victory.

The host Phillies led 11-0 after seven innings. Kelvin ChapMan hit a three-run homer in the ninth for the Mets.

Reds 4, Braves 2

In the second inning, Pete Rose cracked an RBI-double to give Cincinnati a 2-0 lead over Atlanta. It was the 725th double of Rose's career, tying him with Stan Musial on the all-time NL double list.

The hit was Rose's 100th of the season, extending his own major-league record of consecutive 100-hit seasons to 22. Rose now has 4,090 hits, leaving 102 shy of breaking Ty Cobb's career hit record.

Dave Parker followed Rose's double with a sharp single to center, and Rose was thrown out at the plate after running through third-base coach Joe Sparks' stop sign.

"That's $50," player-Manager Rose said in announcing that he was fining himself.

Duane Walker and Tom Foley each homered for the visiting Reds.

Cardinals 1, Expos 0

Danny Cox threw a three-hitter for his first major-league shutout as he raised his record to 9-10.

St. Louis scored the game's only run in the sixth off Steve Rogers, 6-15, when Ozzie Smith tripled with one out and came home on Terry Pendleton's sacrifice fly.

Dodgers 3, Astros 1

Jerry Reuss was the pitching star and Dave Anderson was the hitting hero.

Reuss tossed a four-hitter for just his second victory since coming off the disabled list on July 12. He is 4-7 this season.

Anderson had three hits, including a run-scoring triple, as visiting Los Angeles broke Houston's six-game losing streak.

Fine, Rose, Fine

Cincinnati Reds player-manager Pete Rose tries to bypass Atlanta Braves' catcher Alex Trevino but is tagged out Wednesday while trying to score on a single by Reds' Dave Parker. As manager, Rose fined himself $50 on the play for missing the "hold" signal at third. Watching the out at bottom is Reds' Cesar Cedeno. (AP Lasephoto)

Ex-Heavyweight Champ Ali Is In The Hospital

NEW YORK (AP) — Three-time former world heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali has been diagnosed as having minor symptoms of Parkinson's disease and not a fatal illness, his doctor said.

And the charismatic and controversial ex-boxer has vowed to overcome his undiagnosed problem.

"I'll whip this thing. I'll whip it," Ali promised Wednesday, adding he was not frightened by the prospect of fighting the disease.

"I'm not scared. They could tell me tomorrow, 'Ali, you have cancer of the heart, you've got six months to live.' I'll say I'm glad," the 1960 Olympic gold medal winner said. "I had a good life and was good to people and I'll be glad to meet Allah."

Ali was given test drugs at Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center earlier Wednesday "to see if it helps him and how much it helps him," said Martin Ecker, a diagnostic radiologist consulting on Ali's case.

"He's not in any danger. It's not a fatal disease," said Ecker, medical director of Ali's boxing management company. "You don't die from what he has and I feel very optimistic that what he has can be controlled by medication."

The 42-year-old ex-boxer said that his slurred speech and slow body movement could be the result of his boxing career.

"I've been punched a lot of times," he said. "I've been in the boxing ring now for 30 years and taken hard punches in fights and also in training preparing for the fights, so there's a great possibility something could be abnormal."

Ali underwent five days of tests at the Manhattan hospital this month before leaving Sept. 11 for a brief trip to Europe. He returned Tuesday for more tests and treatment.

He said while it was possible boxing had caused his problems, he never regretted his ring career because of the good it had allowed him to bring to other people.

"I'm glad I've been charitable all my life. I'm glad I gave away a lot of money. I'm glad I helped a lot of poor people," Ali said. The boxing great said he expected to be hospitalized for two more days.

Because Ali's condition was apparently not worsening and he lacked classic symptoms, doctors ruled out both Parkinson's disease, a degenerative brain disease, and "the punch-drunk syndrome," caused by repeated blows to the head, Ecker said.

When asked if boxing should be banned, Ali replied: "I think boxing is one of the less sports where people die, and if you're going to start protecting people because they're hurting each other then you got to stop a lot of sports and I don't think they can stop boxing because I'm ill . . . There are sports much rougher than boxing . . ."

Ali, the only fighter to have won the heavyweight boxing championship three times, had a 21-year career from 1960 to his retirement in 1981. His title was stripped in 1967 when he refused to be drafted into the Army for the Vietnam War. He won it back from George Foreman and later lost and recaptured it from Leon Spinks.

Ali's speech has been slurred for about two years. An interviewer in Germany quoted Ali as saying, "I always feel tired but don't feel pain at all . . . I don't know exactly what it is."

Ecker said doctors also were unsure of Ali's precise aliment. "Obviously he has a neurological problem. It's not a progressive thing," he said.

"It's Parkinsonism," Ecker said. "By that we mean it mimics some of the symptoms of Parkinson's."

Asked if Ali's illness condition would worsen, he said, "We don't believe so. We hope not."

Ali does not have the quivering hands and difficulty walking that are associated with Parkinson's disease, which eventually can incapacitate its victims, Ecker said. In most cases, the cause of the disease is unknown.

Dr. Edwin Campbell, medical director of the New York State Athletic Commission, said Ali for years has taken the drug L-Dopa, often prescribed for patients showing symptoms of Parkinsonism.

Campbell, who examined Ali before his New York fights, also said he understood that the ex-boxer suffers from high blood pressure. Ecker confirmed that Ali takes L-Dopa but said he was not aware of any blood pressure problem.

Ecker said Ali planned a news conference upon his release from the hospital, after which he planned to go to the Sudan for an Islamic conference.

Clemson-Georgia Feud Is One With A Long History

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — The ongoing football feud between Clemson and Georgia was something defensive tackle Kenneth Sims was aware of long before he signed to play for the Bulldogs.

As a youngster in Greenville, he recalls days he stood in awe of the Georgia football team when they ate dinner at the restaurant where he worked as a dishwasher. That was the day he caught Bulldog fever.

That was one of the pleasant memories he will carry into Saturday's game against the Tigers in Sanford Stadium in Athens.

"I was just so impressed to see those big guys," Sims said, of the experience many years ago.

Since forsaking nearby Clemson for Georgia, his mental bulletin board of Bulldog-Tiger memorabilia has grown.

Marring it is Clemson's 13-3 victory over the Bulldogs in 1981, the lone scar on Georgia's 10-1 regular-season record. It was just enough to keep Georgia from playing for a second consecutive national championship, and it triggered the Tigers' undefeated march to glory.

The irritating memory of Clemson players refusing to shake hands after their defeat in 1982 also gnaws at him.

And don't forget the thought of having to put up with the hometown pro-Tiger contingent pick at him for choosing Georgia. He hears it every time he returns home, but he hopes to silence it Saturday.

"I hear a lot of Clemson's going to do this and Clemson's going to do that," Sims said. "I kinda get tired of it so I didn't go home as much this year.

"Hopefully, we'll pull the game out and I can just sit at home. I'm not going to brag or anything, just tell 'em, 'Hey, I told you so.'"

The revenge would be sweet — possibly denying Clemson its chance to be the national champion in the polls.

"We have that in our mind," Sims said. "They spoiled one for us. We're looking for that revenge, for that one loss to set them back."

History favors Sims, but the bookies like Clemson.

The Bulldogs have won 15 of the 16 games at Sanford Stadium, and the 82,000-plus fans in attendance Saturday will be highly partisan.

Hall Didn't Figure On Getting Chance This Way

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — It figures that somewhere down the road a head football coaching job awaited a man with Galen Hall's credentials.

He didn't expect the opportunity to come at Florida in 1984, but the 44-year-old native of Altoona, Pa., says he welcomes the challenge of guiding the Gators' embattled program the rest of this season.

"I think all coaches would like to think there are certain places where you would or wouldn't go," says Hall, an assistant at Oklahoma for 18 years before coming to Florida as offensive coordinator last February. "I think any coach would be proud to be the head coach at the University of Florida."

The soft-spoken Hall was named interim coach at the Southeastern Conference school Sunday night after Charley Pell was fired for his involvement in alleged rule violations uncovered during a 21-month NCAA investigation.

Pell and three assistants are among a contingent scheduled to appear Friday in Kansas City before the NCAA's Committee of Infractions to answer the 107 charges pending against the Gator program.

Hall said he was "shocked" to receive a call from Athletic Director Bill Carr, who offered him the job Sunday afternoon, but added that there was no hesitation to accept. He also received assurances that he will be considered as a permanent replacement.

Years ago, though, his answer may have been different.

"I think everyone has goals in life, but I'm not sure it was a burning desire on my part," Hall recalls of his ambition to become a head coach.

He spurned a number of opportunities to leave Oklahoma where he served as receiver coach for seven years before Barry Switzer was named head coach and promoted him to offensive coordinator.

"I was very happy at Oklahoma," says the one-time Penn State quarterback who also played two years of professional ball with the Washington Redskins and New York Jets. "I had offers, but I don't know what good it would do to talk about them."

Hall says he plans no major changes as Florida's interim coach — "My philosophy is ball control, whether it be by running or passing" — and is confident the team has an excellent shot at winning its first-ever SEC championship, despite the distractions caused by the NCAA probe and Pell's dismissal.

"I think the players have a deep loyalty to Coach Pell," he ssid. "But I also think with the character they have, we're looking forward to getting on with the season."

Gary Rolle, a senior wide receiver, believes the new coach will receive the all-out support of a squad that's off to a 1-1-1 start after a 9-2-1 finish a year ago.

"Anything can happen when you've got 150 people . . . but I don't think you'll see a lot of people jumping ship. I think we'll cling together," Rolle said. "I think a lot of players have the attitude that they came to play for the University of Florida, not necessarily Coach Pell or Coach Hall."

The Gators, who have an open date this weekend, will entertain Mississippi State in Hall's debut as head coach on Sept. 29.

Jets Try To Avoid Letdown

NEW YORK (AP) — After getting tough against the Cincinnati Bengals, this is keep-tough week for the New York Jets.

"We don't want a letdown," Coach Joe Walton said Wednesday. "We feel if we have good concentration at practices, it's a good carryover."

As he prepares his Jets for Sunday's National Football League game at Buffalo, Walton is attempting to guard against overconfidence based on the 43-23 blowout of the Bengals last weekend and the Bills' 0-3 start.

"They're going to be a hungry football team," Walton said of the Bills. "But their loss to Miami might work for them, too. If they realize they can play a great football team down to the wire, they will win a lot of games."

In their last start, the Bills were nipped 21-17 Monday night by the Dolphins, a team Walton considers as talented as any in football. Also among their three losses was a 21-17 defeat by New England, another top American Conference East rival.

"One of their problems has been falling behind early and trying to catch up by throwing the ball," said Walton. "But (quarterback Joe) Ferguson is still dangerous. If he gets on a hot streak, he can burn anyone."

Ferguson, in a interview by telephone at the weekly Jets' press conference, admitted he was "frustrated" by Buffalo's lack of a strong running game this season. Joe Cribbs, Buffalo's leading rusher, jumped the team to go to the United States Football League in the off-season.

"We really haven't had a chance to get our running game going because we're always starting out from behind and have to pass," said Ferguson. "We have a lot of good, young runners here. But the running game just hasn't been given a fair shot so far."

UCLA Has Chance To Find Itself

By The Associated Press

Will the real UCLA football team please stand up.

"The 1984 UCLA team just hasn't found itself yet," Coach Terry Donahue said after the Bruins struggled past unheralded San Diego State 18-15 and Long Beach State 23-17 and slipped from fourth to eighth in the rankings.

Saturday's opponent, however, is No. 1 Nebraska and another so-so performance just won't do. Especially since the Cornhuskers have averaged 563.5 yards a game — 422.5 of it on the ground — in trampling Wyoming 42-7 and Minnesota 38-7.

The Cornhuskers are six-point favorites. And wouldn't it be ironic if they won the national championship this season without Rozier, Gill, Fryar & Co. after coming so close last year with them . . . Nebraska 28-14.

Last week's score was 36 right, 15 wrong and one tie for a percentage of .706, and two of the four Upset Specials covered the spread; on the year, it's 91-32-2—.740. Against the spread, last week was 14-12—.538; for the year, 28-28—.500.

No. 2 Clemson (favored by 3½) at No. 20 Georgia. Clemson 21-17.

No. 15 Florida State at No. 4 Miami (by 2). Miami 35-31.

No. 14 Iowa at No. 5 Ohio State (by 3). Ohio State 20-13.

Rose, New Bern Fight To 7-7 Tie

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

NEW BERN — Football may be a game of yards, but an inch was the difference for Rose High School Monday night as the Rampants battled to a 7-7 tie with New Bern.

Penalties and lost opportunities told the tale for the Rampants, who saw their chance to win the game just fall short when a 37-yard field goal attempt by Brian Bridges was not quite long enough. The boot hit the crossbar and bounced back, leaving it tied at 7-7 with 33 seconds left to go in the game.

Rose's only score of the evening came late in the first half when quarterback Battle Emory hit Tyrone Smith for 32 yards and Bridges added the PAT.

New Bern's only score came early in the third period, when Carnell Wallace pulled in an 11-yard pass from Vincent Becton and Wade Dixon was successful with his PAT attempt — ironically for Rose, the first successful PAT this year for the Bears.

The penalties the Rampants piled up irked first year coach Chip Williams. "We lost our class on the field," he said. The Rampants got five first half encroachment penalties in the first half, four of them on the defense, and added a couple of more in the second half. They also got two 15-yarders for personal fouls.

The penalties served to help slow down the Rampant offense and to keep the New Bern offense on the field. Four of 14 New Bern first downs came on penalties.

"I'm not at all pleased," Williams said. "We played like a freshman team out there tonight.

"Our defense didn't play well. (New Bern) got four to six yards every time on first down. We can't let someone do that and still expect to win.

"On offense, I thought Tyrone Smith played a good game, but they adjusted and covered him well in the second half. We're just looking to him on passing plays and we've got to learn to execute and read the defensive secondary and go to the open man.

"Having a game like this isn't going to help us at all since we've got to get ready to play again on Thursday night."

Rose, playing in East Carolina's stadium, has a home contest at the end of the week, and under ECU conditions, may not play on Fridays prior to a Saturday afternoon ECU home game.

If there was a bright spot on offense it was the running on tailback Anthony Cobb, who picked up 127 yards on 20 carries in the contest, including a 50-yard rip on one play. However, he got little help from the rest of the backfield, which lost a net of nine yards on 11 other carries.

Rose finished the game with 243 yards total while New Bern had an identical amount. Rose rushed for 118 and passed for 125, while New Bern hit 87 through the air and 156 on the ground.

Both teams crossed midfield on their first possession, the Bears moving to the Rose 35 before losing it on a fumble and Rose moving back to the New Bern 48 before failing to pick up a first down.

Rose got the ball back in good field position at its own 42 on the next possession, and threatened but came up empty-handed. After losing five yards on a penalty, Rose got 50 yards from Cobb on a spurt up the middle down to the Bear 13. But Emory's pass to Smith was just over the end line, and three more rushing plays moved it only to the nine.

Cobb's 11 yard punt return put the ball on the New Bern 37, but a sack of Emory on third down forced a punt on the first series of the second period. The Bears then drove from their own eight to the Rose 43 before Charles Hill threw fullback Anthony Grist for a nine-yard loss and an offensive pass interference call cost 15 more on the next down.

With 3:36 left in the half, Rose took over at its own 20. Cobb picked up 13 on the first play and Emory went to Smith for 37 on the second to the Bear 30. Cobb was pulled down two yards behind the line on the next play, however.

From the 32, Emory again went to Smith, again behind the Bear defense, and this time it went for the score with 2:20 left on the clock. Bridges' kick made it 7-0 and that held until the half.

But the Bears did come up with a threat before the half ended. On second and ten from their own 30, the Bears connected on a 32-yard pass to the Rose 38, only to cough it up on the next play as Adrian Brewington pulled in an interception, his third of the year, on the two.

Rose got put in a hole on the second half kickoff when a personal foul after the whistle left the Rampants with first and 25 to start with. They got 10 of that back before punting, but the Bears took over on their own 48.

Grist picke dup seven and John Borden added 10 more to the Rose 35. Grist got another first down three plays later at the 24. But after Hill stopped Grist for a loss of four yards, a pass interference penalty against the Rampants gave New Bern a first down at the 14.

Three plays netted only two yards, but Becton hit Wallace on fourth down for the touchdown with 3:44 left and Dixon tied it up.

The Bears moved just over midfield on their next possession, but were forced to kick from the 49. Rose, starting from the 15, picked up a first down at the New Bern 49 on a 23-yard pass from Emory to Dwight Smith. Cobb added 12 more, but Rose appeared stopped when Dwight Smith was hauled down on a reverse for a six yard loss on third and 11. However, a personal foul against the Bears left Rose facing fourth and two at the Bear 29.

And again, a penalty hurt. Bridges pulled early and the five yard loss forced Rose to punt.

The Bears again drove to just over midfield before Hill was again on the spot to stop Borden on a yard short on fourth down at the Rose 47.

Emory hit Tyrone Smith for 13 yards and a first down, but Tony Wilson intercepted the next try after it was tipped away from Smith by Peter Lengyel at the Bear 37.

Becton fumbled it back to Hill, however, two plays later at his own 42.

Facing third and six at the 38, Emory pitched back to Cobb, who started to his left, then cut back to the right and lofted a pass to Emory, who then galloped 20 yards for a first down at the 18. But Rose failed to gain, and Bridges' 37-yard field goal attempt was just not quite long enough.

The Bears got back to the Rose 40 on a long pass but time ran out before another play could be gotten underway.

Borden finished the game with 94 yards on 17 carries for the Bears, leading their offense.

Vikes Roll Over Panthers, 45-0

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Steve Mills of D.H. Conley scooped up a fumble less than 45 seconds into the game and raced 32 yards to the end zone to set the stage for a 45-0 thrashing of North Pitt in 3-A high school football Monday.

Mills also caught a 29-yard touchdown pass from Martin Anderson in the second quarter. Anderson led the Vikings' ground game with 72 yards on 10 carries, while Derrick Parker rushed for 44 yards and a pair of TDs.

The victory was the third shutout of the season for the Vikings, now 3-0. Conley's defense held the Panthers to 10 yards rushing and 17 passing, while the Vikes utilized a pair of fumbles — both recovered by Mills — and two interceptions.

"Our defense set the tempo for the game," Conley Coach Donnie Bunn said. "It was 25-0 at halftime, and the defense set up all of that. We were stymied by their defense in the first half.

"When we went outside, they had the line pretty well spread out. We were confused on some of our blocking assignments, so we made adjustments at halftime."

If there was a sour note for the Vikings, it was their 16 penalties for 160 yards, while North Pitt managed 63 yards with nine flags.

After Mills' fumble return on the Panthers' first play from scrimmage, North Pitt picked up a first down on a nine-yard pass from Calvin Hunter to Ashley Shephard and a two-yard run by Melvin Bradley. But the Viking defense threw North Pitt for losses of two, seven and eight yards on the next three plays to force a Panther punt.

Conley took over on the North Pitt 48, and Anderson ran for 10 yards while Ricky Farrow had runs of 14 and 11 yards to set up a six-yard touchdown blast by Parker with 3:39 left in the opening period.

The Vikings forced North Pitt to punt again with 1:20 left in the quarter and drove from their 49 to the Panthers' 29 on four running plays. Quarterback Joel Cox lateraled to Anderson for the 29-yard touchdown strike to Mills with 11:08 till halftime as the Vikings took a 19-0 lead.

The Panthers forced Conley to punt with 5:28 left in the first half, but the Vikings pinned North Pitt inside its seven before a penalty moved the ball out to the 21. Bradley fumbled on second down, and Jimmy Faulkner recovered for the Vikings and advanced to the Panther two yard line.

Farrow bolted over from two yards out to boost the Vikes' lead to 25-0 with 3:44 left.

The Panthers finally began to drive against Conley on their last possession of the half, as Bradley swept around both ends of the line for 33 yards on five carries to move North Pitt to the Viking 31. After an incomplete pass by Bradley and an illegal procedure penalty, Hunter was sacked for a four-yard loss and the Panthers were moved 15 yards further back on an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty to end the drive.

But Conley came back after halftime to drive 78 yards on 12 plays to spread the margin to 32-0 with 6:26 to play in the third quarter.

Anderson rushed for 25 yards in the drive before plowing through for the final two yards. Cox passed to Leonard Johnson for 18 yards and to Mills for five during the drive.

"That was our first real offensive drive of the night," Bunn said. "On that drive, we threw some quick slants to open up our running game. If we can rush the football, we don't want to have to pass."

The ensuing kickoff was mishandled by the Panthers, and Derrick Mullins was trapped at the North Pitt seven. Bradley picked up two yards on first down, but Hunter fumbled on the next play and Gerald Harper recovered for Conley at the 12.

Donald Blackwell carried the ball in for the Vikings with 3:43 left in the third period and Mark Davies added the extra-point kick for a 39-0 margin

An eight-yard run by Parker with 8:43 left in the game set the final margin, but Conley's Shane Adams intercepted a Bradley pass with 1:38 remaining.

"In essence, we gave them four touchdowns with turnovers," North Pitt Coach Larry Bolger maligned. "It's hard for a defense to come out and stop somebody when they're getting the ball inside the 10 yard line. It's time for us to prepare for our conference schedule now."

The Panthers are fortunate to have Friday night off, while the Vikings visit Farmville Central in another non-conference matchup.

"Our kids are enjoying (the three wins)," Bunn said. "I don't think (the shutouts) have put any additional pressure on them; it's helping them build pride. But we've still got to build on what we're trying to do; we've got some real tests ahead."

Chargers Down Richlands, 14-0

RICHLANDS — Ayden-Grifton's defense gave up just 126 yards total offense while Kelvin Harris ran for 106 yards as the Chargers blanked Richlands 14-0 Monday in high school football action.

Mike Dixon intercepted a pair of Richlands' passes, while Jackie Braxton also picked off one.

Quarterback Danny West connected with Gene Johnson for a 10-yard touchdown pass in the first quarter to give the Chargers the only points they needed.

After a 33-yard pass from West to Shannon Peede, Jesse Hooker plowed over from two-yards out to lift the Chargers to a 12-0 margin.

Wesley Hardee sacked quarterback James Thompson in the fourth quarter for a safety to set the final margin.

Richlands penetrated Ayden-Grifton territory just twice in the game and managed to move inside the 40 once before the Charger defense held.

Ayden-Grifton, now 2-0, hosts North Lenoir Friday. Richlands evened its mark at 1-1.

Rams Win First By 20-0

SNOW HILL — Greene Central put its defensive game together Monday night and pulled off a 20-0 upset of North Lenoir. The Rams had been shutout in each of their first games, but turned the tables on the Hawks, who were unbeaten in two starts this fall.

Kenneth Warren scored two of the Ram touchdowns, both in the first half, and both set up by the defense. Warren had a hand in the first big play himself, intercepting a North Lenoir pass and returning it 36 yards to the North Lenoir 22. He later scored from five yards out for a 6-0 lead in the first quarter.

In the second period, Jerome Flowers broke through to block a Hawk punt, turning the ball over on the North Lenoir five. Warren then scored from the three and passed to Charles Artis for the PAT giving the Rams a 14-0 lead at the half.

The final touchdown came after the Rams had put together a goal-line defense to half North Lenoir's only thrust of the night, turning the back at the five. Three plays later, Andre Corbitt broke free and raced 90 yards for the final touchdown of the evening.

The Rams did well through the air, hitting on 8-13 for 72 yards. Patrick Moye had five receptions for 28 yards while Steve Wells had three for 33 yards.

"Our defense played pretty well," Coach Spence Grantham said. "I think playing on Monday night agreed with us. But neither team really executed that well."

The Rams, now 1-2, travel to Northampton West on Friday.

Plymouth Tops Williamston, 7-6

PLYMOUTH — Williamston High School came away a 7-6 loser Monday night against Plymouth, but not before giving it their all to try and pull out the victory.

Down 7-0 in the final period, the Tigers scored on Maurice Jones' seven yard run to pull within one point and coach Harold Robinson elected to go for it all on a two-point conversion.

On the play, Williamston used the "water-bucket" play with a reverse but Jones tripped and fell just shy of the end zone, leaving it at 7-6.

Plymouth's touchdown came in the third period when Cecil Gibbs pulled in a 29-yard pass from Danny Fenner. Tony Patrick added the fateful PAT kick.

The Tigers, just before the half, blocked a Plymouth punt to get good field position, but had the ball intercepted at the one yard line.

Then, in the closing minutes of the game, the Tigers again blocked a Viking punt, taking over at the Plymouth 48. They moved it down to the 20 but a fourth and four pass fell incomplete with 48 seconds left, ending their hopes of pulling it out.

The Tigers fall to 0-3 overall and 0-1 in Northeastern Conference play, while Plymouth is now 1-2, 1-0.

Washington Tops Roanoke By 28-6

WASHINGTON — Jay Laws ran for 163 yards and two touchdowns in leading Washington High School to a 28-6 Northeastern Conference victory over Roanoke High School Monday night.

Laws picked up his yardage on 19 carries, two of which were 42-yard touchdown runs.

After a scoreless first period, Washington got things started early in the second quarter as Laws dashed 42 yards for a 6-0 lead. The Pam Pack added a second touchdown late in the period with Laws again going the distance from the 42 yard line. This time he also ran over the PAT for a 14-0 lead.

Roanoke came back with just 1:17 left in the period to score its only touchdown of the night. That came on a one yard run by Troy Baker and a two-point conversion try failed, leaving it at 14-6 at the half.

Washington added two more touchdowns in the third period, both off passes by Dickie Cherry. Cherry first hit David McIver on a 29 yarder for a score, then hit Al Matthews for 17 yards on the other. Ronnie Godley ran over the PAT after the final score.

The win boosts the Washington record to 2-1 on the season, 1-0 against Northeastern foes. The Redskins fall to 1-2, 0-1 in the league.

Bertie Inches Past Jags, 6-0

FARMVILLE — Andrew Ryan broke a pair of tackles on a punt return and raced up the sideline for an 84-yard touchdown to lead Bertie to a 6-0 victory over Farmville Central in 3-A high school football action Monday.

Jeff Vail of Farmville rushed 21 times for 105 yards as the Jaguars dominated the offensive statistics with 192 yards total compared to 87 for Bertie.

Jerome Daniels led the Jaguars with 11 tackles, while Bill Blount added 10 and nose guard Dennis Tripp had nine.

Four turnovers, two intercepted passes and a pair of fumbles, early in the game ended Farmville drives. But the Jaguars moved to the Bertie 10 yard line in the fourth quarter before being stopped.

Ryan's run came with 10:55 left in the second quarter, and the pass attempt for the point-after conversion failed.

"Both teams were very physical, particularly on defense," Farmville Coach Dixon Sauls said. "We did not execute like we did last week. We appeared to be a little leg weary early in the game. That could be a result of last week's weather.

"Those four turnovers early in the game stunned us, and it took a while for us to regain our composure. We just had an outstanding effort from our squad."

Farmville, now 1-1 on the season, hosts D.H. Conley Friday in another non-conference 3-A matchup.

Area Runners In Triathlon

WILMINGTON — Despite the lingering effects of Hurricane Diana, the 6th annual Pepsi Triathlon was held Sunday in Wilmington, with several Greenville residents participating.

The triathlon consisted of a 1.25 mile swim, a 24.8 mile bike ride and a 9.3 mile run.

Scott Wolcott, a former Greenville resident, now a student at N.C. State, won the event with a time of 2 hours, 29 minutes. Wolcott has qualified for the Hawaii Ironman Triathlon.

Other Greenville residents in the event were: Lance Timmons, 2:40; Ellen-Bond-Sims, 2:44, 2nd female overall, 2nd in age group; Missy Ward, 2:48, 1st in 25 and under age group; Robert Fox, 2:51, 5th in 35-39 age group; and David Carter, 2:54.

The next triathlon is on September 22 at Fayetteville, followed by the Savannah, Ga. triathlon on October 6.

Jackson Calls For More Sharing By Colleges

By The Associated Press

Former Democratic presidential candidate Jesse Jackson has offered to lead a delegation of North Carolina A&T University trustees to meet with UNC President William Friday to ask for an account of A&T's share of the university system's pot.

Jackson spoke Wednesday to fellow trustees of N.C. A&T during a swing through the state.

Jackson, whose two sons are on the school's football team, is upset that A&T has 32 fewer athletic scholarships than the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and N.C. State University and that it does not have a training table for its players.

A&T, which lost its opening game of the football season 46-7 against South Carolina State, has about one-fourth as many students as UNC-Chapel Hill and N.C. State.

Jackson said A&T has been told it must make do with fewer scholarships and athletic resources because its program does not make enough money to support itself.

"That's punishment," he said. "A&T shouldn't be taking any punishment."

Trustees spend a lot of time overseeing the performance of A&T's faculty, students and administrators, Jackson said. He said the trustees also "should look in the opposite direction" at how the UNC General Administration performs.

"When we send the chancellor down to Chapel Hill, he negotiates from a position of weakness," Jackson said. "He is a paid employee. There are points beyond which the chancellor cannot go in those negotiations but that the trustees can. I'm not sure you can assign an employee to go into that lion's den."

Earlier Wednesday, Jackson, in a new campaign to register voters, told an audience at North Carolina Central University in Durham there are thousands of reasons to vote because this generation will choose between "peace and war, jobs and jails."

Jackson was greeted with shouts of "Jesse ... Jesse ..." as he arrived at the podium almost an hour late.

"There are thousands and thousands of good reasons to vote and not one reason not to," Jackson said.

Jackson called the coming November elections critical for the country's future. He advised all students who were not registered to vote to register after his speech.

Jackson also attacked President Ronald Reagan's record on business and the treatment of the poor.

"Big business is giving millions of dollars to Reagan because they don't have to pay any taxes under him," Jackson said. "This is the kind of reverse Robin Hood thinking that must be changed in November."

Jackson said Reagan's feeling that the poor should work harder to get ahead is a dangerous fallacy.

"The poor in this country work the hardest and the longest on the nastiest jobs for less money while their sons are the first to die in foreign wars," he said.

"Under Ronald Reagan, people stand in surplus cheese and butter lines but those same poor can't afford any meat to go with their cheese and butter or refrigerators to store them in," he said.

At the conclusion of his speech, Jackson asked all the unregistered students present to stand. He then asked them to register, noting that he would require students to vote if he were chancellor at NCCU.

Jackson also said NCCU students staged sit-ins and demonstrations 25 years ago, so today's students could vote.

"This generation does not have to sit-in to gain their dignity," Jackson said. "All you have to do is vote."

In a later speech at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Jackson told an audience of about 500 that the races in the U.S. Senate and Congress are as critical as the presidential race.

"This is a critical period in the history of our state and this nation," Jackson said at UNC. "Your generation will choose between peace and war, between jobs and jails."

Jackson urged a move toward economic equality, to reduce the number of poor people in the country.

"Your generation must move from a racial battleground to economic common ground and see what we have in common," he said.

Jackson said polls and media projections which show Reagan with a large lead over Democratic challenger Walter Mondale are wrong.

"Anybody can lose," he said. "And if Reagan doesn't get enough votes, he will lose. Reagan isn't leading now. The real polls open up on Nov. 6."

Enrollment Of Blacks Falls Again

RALEIGH (AP) — The number of black freshmen enrolling at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill has declined for the second straight year, university officials say.

But enrollment of blacks is rising at most of the other 10 predominantly white campuses in the UNC system, according to preliminary figures provided by campus officials.

Those figures show 350 blacks enrolled this fall at UNC-Chapel Hill in a class of 3,300 freshmen, 10.6 percent, compared with 427 a year ago in a class of 3,207, 13.3 percent, and 470 in 1982 out of a class of 3,313, 14.2 percent.

Slightly more than 800 blacks applied to UNC-CH this year, compared with 1,020 in 1983 and 1037 in 1982.

Black enrollment overall at UNC-Chapel Hill is expected to remain at about 8.7 percent, the level last year.

Harold Wallace, vice chairman for university affairs at UNC-Chapel Hill, speculated "cutbacks in federal aid (to college students) has had a large impact on the choices that blacks made about higher education."

Because of the cuts, he said, more loans and fewer grants and scholarships were available.

Preliminary figures on white enrollment were unavailable from four of the system's five predominantly black campuses, but officials at some of the schools said white enrollment was likely to rise this year.

At Fayetteville State University, officials said overall white enrollment was expected to hit 22.4 percent this fall, compared with 18.7 percent last year.

UNC-Wilmington was the only other predominantly white campus to show a decline in black students. At UNC-W, 353 blacks enrolled this fall out of a total of 5,532 students, 6.4 percent, compared with 363 blacks out of 5,432 students in 1983, 6.7 percent.

Fifty-eight black freshmen enrolled this fall in a class of 1,114, 5.2 percent, compared with 85 black freshmen in 1983 in a class of 1,113, 7.63 percent.

UNC-W Chancellor William H. Wagoner said Wednesday he was surprised by the decline in the number of black students.

"We've done every possible thing that we can to attract black students to this campus," he said.

Gary T. Barnes, associate vice president for planning with the UNC system, said he did not have final figures for the system this fall.

Poverty Conference

RALEIGH (AP) — The Reagan Administration and the recent recession are to blame for a 63 percent increase in poverty in North Carolina since 1980, a social work professor at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill said.

"It is abundantly clear," said Andrew Dobelstein, coordinator for the Conference on Poverty in North Carolina, which began Wednesday. "The current Reagan administration has, as a matter of public policy and action, reduced seriously its commitment to social concerns. And there is no indication that this policy direction will change if this administration is returned to office next year."

About 700 of the 1,000 people attending the conference are people living in poverty, many of whom raised money in their communities to attend, Dobelstein said.

Surplus Leaf Sale Is Likely

RALEIGH (AP) — A discount sale program to reduce surplus stocks of flue-cured tobacco is likely as long as the amount going under government loan stays at no more than 15 percent, tobacco officials say.

"As long as we can take no more than 15 percent of the crop from here on out, I believe we can reach our goal," said Hoke C. Leggett Jr., associated director of the U.S. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

He said as of Tuesday, the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp. had taken in only about 15.05 percent of the 569 million pounds of flue-cured leaf marketed this season.

With the government projecting total marketing of 850 million pounds, the percentage going under loan must continue at that level or decrease if the discount program is to go into effect, he said.

Under the discount program announced July 2 by Stabilization, buyers can get discounts of up to 60 percent on purchases of leaf acquired in earlier years by the cooperative. But those terms will be offered only if private-sector buyers purchase at least 720 million pounds of the 1984 crops.

Stabilization is a grower-owned cooperative that uses government loans to acquire all tobacco that fails at auction to bring a bid of at least a penny a pound more than the government support price.

Ford To Campaign In Asheville Friday

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

Both Democrats and Republicans will be pulling out the stops this weekend, with former President Gerald Ford campaigning in North Carolina for Republican gubernatorial candidate Jim Martin as Walter Mondale's daughter also visits the state.

Ford is scheduled to appear at a noon fund-raising luncheon in Asheville Friday for GOP congressional candidate Bill Hendon, who is trying to regain the House seat he lost in 1982 to Democratic Rep. James M. Clarke.

Later, the former president will appear with Martin, a four-term congressman from the 9th District, at a Greensboro news conference.

"President Ford has many friends in North Carolina who are grateful for is sound leadership of our country," said Martin. "I am grateful for his encouragement. ... It's a real plus for our campaign."

Eleanor Mondale, 24-year-old daughter of the Democratic presidential hopeful, will speak tonight during the annual convention of the state AFL-CIO in Raleigh. Edward Carlough, vice president of the national AFL-CIO, also was scheduled to attend.

Friday, actress Bonnie Franklin of the television series "One Day at a Time" is scheduled to speak on behalf of Gov. Jim Hunt's campaign for the U.S. Senate in Raleigh at the state Democratic Women's Convention.

Vidal Sassoon, a California beauty expert and cosmetics manufacturer, is slated to deliver a $25 per ticket lecture on beauty tips to Democratic convention attendants Friday. He'll give another lecture Saturday.

Meanwhile, supporters of Hunt and Sen. Jesse Helms clashed on whether Helms was sincere in his support of Social Security, while the chairman of the state Republican Party said Democratic U.S. Rep. Ike Andrews was illegally using government employees in his re-election campaign. Andrews denied it.

Helms' appearance Tuesday at a Washington, D.C., news conference to announce a House-Senate compromise on reviewing disability benefit cases rankled Hunt's campaign.

In a news conference outside the state Capitol, Charles Hall, a Raleigh attorney specializing in disability cases, said Helms had "unmitigated gall" to say he supported Social Security.

Helms "has voted time and again to endorse the administration's drive to terminate disability benefits for hundreds of thousands of people," said Hall.

"Now, locked in the toughest race of his life, Senator Helms has switched his stand," said Hall. "This cynical about-face proves only one thing: that disabled North Carolinians can trust Jesse Helms to fight for them only in an election year.

"For Senator Helms to step forward now — seven weeks before an election — and claim credit for solving the disability crisis is worse than political showmanship. It is the height of hypocrisy."

Claude Allen, Helms' campaign spokesman, said it was "a matter of record" that Helms had introduced last year a bill to require that the government prove a person was wrongly receiving benefits before cutting the person from the rolls.

"Governor Hunt and his people forget that Senator Helms opposed all the things they're accusing him of," said Allen.

David Kraft, a Helms aide in Washington, said the compromise approved by the conference committee was nearly identical to the bill Helms introduced last year. Kraft said Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, invited Helms to the news conference.

David Flaherty, state GOP chairman, said in a Raleigh news conference that Andrews' congressional staff had "been active in planning fund-raisers and taking care of his campaign's clerical work."

Flaherty said that Andrews' latest campaign spending report to the Federal Elections Commission included a $200 reimbursement to Barbara Wills, an Andrews staff member, for "petty cash fund for Cary campaign office," and that the address for the campaign office was the same as for Andrews' congressional office in Cary.

"The Andrews staff has clearly been doing campaign work illegally on government time in a government office," said Flaherty.

Flaherty said another entry in the report showed that a check had been made out to the state Democratic Executive Committee for a workshop that Ms. Wills attended.

"Why is a congressional staffer going to a political training session if she is not being used to campaign?" asked Flaherty. "And did she go on government time?"

Flaherty said he would write to the chairman of the House Ethics Committee "to request a full and early investigation of these charges."

Andrews, whose opponent is Republican Bill Cobey, said in a telephone interview from Washington that Flaherty's allegations were "ridiculous."

Ms. Wills "is an American citizen," said Andrews. "She can support and campaign for whomever she wants."

The first animated cartoon featuring Mickey Mouse was shown on this day in 1928. Mickey was created by Walt Disney and his friend Ubbe Iwerks. In his first cartoon, "Steamboat Willie," Mickey was a troublemaker who was cruel to other animals. After thousands of angry letters poured in, Walt Disney made Mickey the kind, friendly creature we now know. Today, Mickey is loved around the world. In Italy he is called "Topolino," while the Japanese call him "Miki Kuchi."

Jones Taking Steps To Rescue Jetties

By The Associated Press

Aides to Rep. Walter B. Jones, D-N.C., the chief sponsor of a bill to build two $100 million jetties at Oregon Inlet, say they think Jones can defeat a move to strike the jetty legislation.

Debate began Wednesday in the U.S. House began debate on the bill to construct the jetties.

Meanwhile, jetty foes uncovered a legislative move to allow construction of the jetties to begin as early as next year.

Rep. John F. Seiberling, D-Ohio, a jetty opponent who is trying to defeat the measure, said in a letter to his House colleagues that Jones was "short-circuiting" the debate on the project with a maneuver in the House appropriations committee last week.

That committee added language to a report accompanying the 1985 continuing budget resolution, a stopgap spending measure ordering the U.S. Corps of Engineers to start constructin of the project if legislation contained in the wetlands bill became law.

Jones told House members that the legislation before them would do no more than settle a land dispute over the project.

"I would still have to go to the appropriations committee and make a case for more money," he said.

Edmund B. Welch, top aide to Jones, said he assumed the language in the appropriations bill was added by Rep. Tom Bevill, D-Ala., an appropriations subcommittee chairman and Jones ally. But Welch said the maneuver was not instigated by Jones in the current budget resolution.

Over the years, Congress has appropriated about $16 million for the jetty project, but because of opposition delays, most of that money has been diverted to other corps projects.

MacDonald Hearing Continuing Today

RALEIGH (AP) — Lawyers for former Green Beret Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald will continue their fight for a new trial for their client, who is serving three life sentences for the 1970 slayings of his wife and two daughters at their Fort Bragg home.

The federal court hearing was to continue today with the testimony of Prince Beasley, a retired Fayetteville police officer.

MacDonald's lawyers said the new evidence points to two participants in the killings — Helena Stoeckley Davis and Greg Mitchell — and backs up MacDonald's story that four drug-crazed hippies broke into his apartment and stabbed to death his pregnant wife, Colette, and two daughters — Kimberly and Kristen — Feb. 17, 1970. The home was smeared with blood and MacDonald himself sustained stab wounds.

Both Ms. Davis and Mitchell are now dead.

Beasley testified Wednesday that Ms. Davis was an informant with whom he worked. He said he interviewed her between Feb. 27, 1971, and March 1, 1971.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Brian Murtagh tried to outline differences between a statement from the 1971 meeting and Beasley's testimony at the MacDonald trial.

The statement from the 1971 meeting said Ms. Davis could remember little from the night of the murders but she was having dreams that indicated she may have witnessed the slayings or have known those involved in the slayings.

Fayetteville newspaper carrier Dorothy Averitt testified she saw someone after the slaying who looked like the blond woman·

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, SEPT., 21, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Despite a deceptive condition, some limitation from the past and a desire to be an introvert today, you have some excellent opportunities to advance by your own resourcefulness.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Put aside any trouble with kin or in business and concentrate on that new project you have in mind.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Ideas of intelligent persons and your own do not seem to coincide, so get the advice of an experienced person in business.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Listening to the ideas of an adroit associate is wise; then you can improve some plan you have made and get home conditions bettered.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) A pal and a regular ally are at odds with your ideas but a fellow worker is in agreement with them now.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You need some recreation since your ideas and those of kin do not help your present situation.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Distant affairs do not seem to go well and you are dissatisfied with own activities, so stay at home and be helpful to kin.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Private and financial affairs seem hard to solve, so get busy at your correspondence and get good results.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be more practical and handle your finances yourself without the aid of a friend who is not sufficiently cognizant of your affairs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Use mature judgment and gain benefits that mean a great deal to you. Don't let some unpleasant situation continue.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Not a good day to seek a new philosophy or be with buddies, but good for getting your affairs straightened out nicely.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A good day to repay favors to good friends, so put practical affairs aside for awhile. Don't be so concerned with worldly affairs.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make sure you handle tasks in the world of business with much care and caution and steer clear of an overly glamorous person.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be able to solve problems very well since there is the ability to either be direct or philosophical in approaching them, depending on their nature. Teach not to get into the habit of worrying otherwise the fine potential here can be lessened a great deal.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: VINTAGE SILVERFISH WAS STRANDED IN BIG GOLDFISH BOWL.
Today's Cryptoquip clue: E equals V

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

'Marmaduke' Is Fictional Pooch

ESCONDIDO, Calif. (AP) — Brad Anderson, who has delighted readers for 30 years with the cartoon adventures of Marmaduke, the awkward but lovable pooch, says he doesn't have a Great Dane for inspiration.

Marmaduke stars in his syndicated cartoon appearing daily in more than 600 North American newspapers, but Anderson said there's never been a "real" Marmaduke in his life. The character, Anderson said, is based on a bulldog owned by his mother and stepfather. Parts of its personality also come from dogs Anderson has met over the years, a sort of "everydog," the cartoonist said.

Anderson, 60, dabbled in grape farming and had thoughts of becoming pilot before settling on a career as a cartoonist.

"Cartooning kept taking over more and more, so finally I gave into it and went into it fulltime," said Anderson.

As for Marmaduke's name, it just sort of popped up one day.

"It's just a good name for a dog," he said.

Patricia Hearst Is New Mother

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Patricia Hearst Shaw, daughter of publishing magnate Randolph A. Hearst, has given birth to her second child — a 5-pound, 6-ounce girl.

Lydia Marie Hearst-Shaw was one month premature, Yale-New Haven Hospital spokesman Tom Urtz said Wednesday. Mother and daughter were doing well, he said.

Mrs. Shaw, 30, and her husband, Bernard Shaw, live in Westport and have one other child, a daughter, Gillian, 3.

'Sex Kittens' Sophia Loren, Bardot Celebrate Half-Century Birthdays

By The Associated Press

They were the sex sirens of the '60s. One earthy and exotic; the other vulnerable and kittenish. Now, Sophia Loren and Brigitte Bardot are turning 50.

For Miss Loren, the years have been gracious. She looks upon her half-century birthday on Thursday as "a wonderful thing. You are born, you grow older and there's nothing wrong with it."

For Miss Bardot, the years have been awash with tears. She is reclusive and depressed, according to various reports. "It's really tough to age ... It's half a century. Welcome to the senior citizens' club," she said in an interview with Paris Match last July.

The French actress was a seductive sex kitten, whose perfect body, cascade of blond hair and dark, haunting eyes became legend after she made "And God Created Woman" in 1956.

After that, she made about 40 other films before going into retirement 11 years ago in her native France and devoting her life to the defense of animals.

Now, Miss Bardot usually hide behind sunglasses and seldom show her face in public. Her birthday Sept. 28; on her last one, she tried t kill herself.

She said she lives simply today "no makeup, straight hair, with th lines on my face.

Injured Singer Is Recovering

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country singer Barbara Mandrell should be hobbling about by Saturday after surgery to put a foot-long steel rod in her leg bone, which was broken in a car accident, her doctor says.

Dr. David S. Jones, the orthopedic surgeon who performed the operation Tuesday night at Baptist Hospital, said the 35-year-old entertainer will regain full use of her leg. She should be able to use crutches or a walker by the weekend, he said.

Miss Mandrell has been hospitalized since the accident Sept. 11. The driver of the vehicle that swerved into her car was killed.

Known for the hits "I Was Country When Country Wasn't Cool" and "Sleeping Single in a Double Bed," Miss Mandrell has canceled all public appearances for the rest of the year.

The singer-actress still will be in the hospital when her first made-for-TV movie, "Burning Rage," premiers Friday night.

Sinatra Drops Suit Over Book

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A biographer says Frank Sinatra only wanted to scare off her and her sources with a lawsuit which he has now dropped, saying it would serve "no further purpose."

Lee Solters, a publicist for Sinatra, announced Wednesday that the 68-year-old entertainer is abandoning the suit which accused Kitty Kelley of falsely claiming to be his official biographer to obtain interviews.

According to Solters, Sinatra had received assurances that Miss Kelley has not and will not mislead anyone into believing she is his authorized biographer. But Miss Kelley, of Washington, D.C., said no one has given Sinatra any such assurances.

RCA Will Release Old Presley Discs

NEW YORK (AP) — RCA Records has announced it will release a series of long out-of-print Elvis Presley records over the next year.

The new releases will include a six-record, boxed set of live performances; monaural re-releases of four early albums; and two singles "six packs," with 12 hits each.

The set of live performances, called "Elvis Presley — a Golden Celebration," includes a recording of the performance Presley gave on TV's Ed Sullivan Show in 1956.

The four albums to be released in mono are "Elvis Presley," the 1956 album that includes "Blue Suede Shoes;" "Elvis," also from 1956; "Elvis' Golden Records," the 1958 album with "Jailhouse Rock" and "Love Me Tender;" and the 195 album "50,000 Elvis Fans Can't B Wrong."

Fran Still Alive Out In Ocean

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical storm Fran slowly worked its way westward from the coast of Africa today, the lone holdout of the hurricane season, but forecasters did not expect it to strengthen soon.

Fran, the season's sixth named storm, blew 40 mph winds in the mid-Atlantic, the National Hurricane Center said in a 6 a.m. EDT advisory.

The storm was moving toward the west at about 15 mph and was expected to continue that motion through today..Fran was some 1,500 miles east of San Juan, P.R., and about the same distance southeast of Bermuda, forecasters said.

It was near latitude 20.5 north, longitude 43.5 west.

"Little change in strength is expected for the next 24 hours," the weather service said.

Meanwhile, the season's seventh tropical storm, Gustav, died near Bermuda on Wednesday.

Tropical storms are named when winds reach sustained strengths of at least 39 mph. When winds increase to at least 74 mph, the storms are upgraded to hurricanes. The hurricane season runs through the end of November.

Agreement Set On New Farm Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House-Senate negotiating panel has agreed to a $34 billion compromise for next year's spending by the Agriculture Department, including money to finance part of President Reagan's new program to help debt-ridden farmers.

But in agreeing on the farm, food and nutrition bill, the conference committee scrapped a proposal to create a major new soil conservation program designed to protect erosion-prone farmland.

Senators on the conference committee pushed for approval of the "sodbuster" measure, but House members resisted on grounds that it was improper to attach legislation for a new program to an appropriations bil.

The action came Wednesday during an afternoon-long session to work out differenc s between the House and Senate on spending for programs administered by the Department of Agriculture in the fiscal year that starts Oct. 1.

Sen. Thad Cochran, R-Miss., chairman of the conference, said he hoped both chambers can vote on the committee's recommendations and send the measure to the president before the planned adjournment of Congress early next month.

Although precise final spending totals were not available Uednesday, committee staff members estimated the measure provided for spending of about $34.5 billion, or nearly the same amount requested in President Reagan's 1985 budget.

Included in the bill is $500 million for the Farmers Home Administration to guarantee loans made to farmers by private lenders to cover operating expenses. That is to be added to $150 million for operating loan guarantees which Congress included in a supplemental appropriations bill signed into law last month by Reagan.

Combined, a total of $650 million will be available to FmHA through next year to guarantee repayment of farmer debts to banks — action Reagan announced Tuesday as part of a farm debt relief package.

Also approved by the conference committee is a provision requested by the Agriculture Department to permit it to use up to $200 million of the guarantees for restructuring debts under more liberal terms of farm ownership loans.

Charles Shuman, FmHA administrator, appeared before the conference committee and said the provision would allow repayment of some loans over 40 years instead of 15 years, which is the period required for guaranteed operating loans.

Although not part of Reagan's farm debt program, spending of $1 million was approved by the conference committee for the Extension Service, the educational arm of the Agriculture Department, to provide financial management services to farmers with severe credit problems.

The biggest share of the money in the appropriations bill, almost $11.5 billion, will go for food stamps. A child nutrition program, including school lunches, would receive about $1.5 billion and a similar amount goes for the feeding program for low-income women, infants and children, called WIC.

However, the conference committee agreed that about $1 billion of the money for the three programs cannot be spent until the Reagan administration submits a revised budget request to Congress recommending the extra amount.

The latest projections indicate more people are eligible for the programs now than when the administration made its original budget request.

PROFESSIONAL SALESMANSHIP TRAINING

Give yourself a break! Learn how to SELL SUCCESSFULLY. Sure fire selling techniques that will:

- *Get Action
- *Guarantee Results
- *Earn You More Money

Our training sales people range from NEVER-SOLD to PLATEAUED-OUT to HIGH-LEVEL PRODUCERS.

You can capitalize on over eighteen (18) years of experience in training. For you, this experience means that the "RAH-RAH" motivating lectures have long since been taken out in order to develop action oriented training that gets results and keeps getting results long after stimulation has worn off.

There is no magic formula in selling, however, there are certain areas that can be defined and worked on. These areas and more are covered in this course.

In which areas do you need improvement:

1. Professional Sales Psychology
2. Importance of Prospecting
3. Cold Prospecting
4. Telephone Prospecting
5. Time Management
6. Understanding Your Competition
7. Overcoming Objections
8. Recognizing Buying Signals
9. The Selling Process
10. Ask For the Order

For more information and registration for upcoming class on October 4-5 (6:30 - 9:30 P.M.) and October 6 (8:00 A.M. - 5:00 P.M.), call SALES & MANAGEMENT TRAINING OF GREENVILLE, N.C. at 757-0684 or visit us at the Dunn-Grier Building located at First and Pitt Streets, Greenville.

Fair Readies For 65th Season

Some towns are "Fair Towns" and some counties are "Fair Counties." Others are not. There are many things that go into the making of a town or county that may be classified as a "Fair Town" or "Fair County," such as population, agriculture, industry, tradition, and the spirit of enthusiasm of the people. Yet, many towns and counties with much of the above don't have food fairs and some have none at all. Whatever the formula, it can be said without a doubt that Greenville and Pitt county have what it takes to support one of the best and longest-running fairs to be held in the entire sate. Of the nearly 60 state, county, and regional fairs held in North Carolina every year, the Pitt County American Legion Agricultural Fair can take its place easily in the top eight or nine, and the speculation has it that it has more potential than any fair in the state, and it may be in the top four or five in a few short years. It has been going that way for the past 65 years, or ever since September 21, 1920.

First Decade

When World War I had ended, the economy began to jump and everyone began to enjoy a brief period of booming prosperity beginning in 1919. It was about the this time that one of Greenville's leading businessmen of the first half of the century, W. Haywood Dail, began thinking in terms of Greenville hosting an annual county air. Largely through his efforts, and with an investment reported at that time of almost one hundred thousand dollars, a fairground was purchased and exhibit halls and a large race track built in the area of what is now Guy Smith Stadium on Memorial Drive. The facilities were claimed to be the finest in the state for a county fair and an enormous amount of publicity was generated concerning the event. The Daily Reflector began publicizing the fair every day with front page coverage for nearly two weeks in advance.

On Tuesday, September 21, 1920, the first Pitt County Fair opened with a parade down Dickerson Avenue at 11:00 a.m. and the official opening of the fairgrounds at 12:00 noon with an address by the Honorable F. C. Harding. After this, the horse racing and auto racing began and exhibits were viewed. The midway was played by the Krause Greater Shows, which advertised itself as being one of the four largest carnivals in the United States, traveling on 22 railroad cars and carrying 300 people, 20 great attractions, and four of the newest and most sensational riding devices. The premiums for the first fair were offered through the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and published in the Reflector for one week in advance.

It was a great event. Thousands of people flooded the grounds on September 21, 22, 23, 24, 1920, to make the first fair a giant success. Greenville and Pitt County have been "Fair Territory" ever since.

Throughout the 1920's the Pitt County Fair continued to grow and prosper through the energetic efforts of Haywood Dail and his associates. The list of exhibits and premiums grew each year as did the auto and horse racing events. The midways of the 1920's were played by some of the great railroad shows on the eastern seaboard such as Max Linderman, Willie Ziedman, Endy Brothers, "Mighty" Sheesley, and Frank West Wonder Shows. In fact, one of the annual fair traditions was seeing the great show trains unload in the area, where the Norfolk Southern Railroad now crosses Memorial Drive. In 1928, the Pitt County Fair was regarded as one of the top fairs in the state and its horse racing and horse shows were considered the finest anywhere.

By 1929, the fair had been expanded to six days and nights and gate admission was fifty cents. The season of 1929 was not a good one, not because of the depression (the stock market did not crash until eight days after the fair was over) but because of the weather. Over half the week was lost to rain. This did not itself hurt the fair so bad, for it had enjoyed a prosperous and steady growth, but it did not put the fair in a good position to meet the disastrous depression year of 1930.

Second Decade

With little money for food or anything else, few people had any money to spend on a trip to the fair in 1930. Nevertheless, plans were made to go ahead with a big show and exhibit program in hopes that somehow things would improve by fair time. They did not. Frank West's Wonder Shows returned but did little business. Exhibits were presented but there was little money for premium and the fair had a poor season as might be expected. Admission: 25c. By 1931 things had not improved and many thought it was pointless to even put on a fair. True to his energetic spirit, however, Haywood Dail went ahead with his plans for a fair in 1931. There was no carnival, only a few free acts, some races and exhibits. However, the fair was surprisingly well attended—but a far cry from its 1928 zenith.

The bottom of the depression was reached in 1931, but so well had the people of Greenville and Pitt County demonstrated that this was a "fair-going" area that plans for a 1932 fair were made. A small amount of money was secured for premiums and exhibits were readied. A small carnival, Roland Exhibition Show, was contracted, and the 1932 fair, billed as the Pitt County Free Fair, proved to be a modest success.

Things were looking up slightly in 1933. Roosevelt came into office with his New Deal and the spirit of the people everywhere was rising. Haywood Dail planned a bigger fair in 1933 than any year since 1929 and he called it the Pitt County New Deal Fair. "Mighty" Sheesley returned with his great railroad carnival (claiming that he came to Greenville direct from the Chicago World's Fair), and over 20 free acts, including a high diving horse, were lined up. Races and other grandstand shows were featured and a couple was married by a local minister on horseback (a frequent feature of many fairs in those days).

During those lean years, as would be expected, the facilities at the old fairground were neglected and many of them were in great need of repair. If the fair was going to continue, it was evident that more money than the fair was making would have to be pumped back into it and money was not easy to come by in those days. Therefore, when the East Carolina Chamber of Commerce, which was headquartered in Goldsboro and dedicated to furthering the economic interest of some 10 cities in Eastern North Carolina, conceived the idea of sponsoring fairs in each of the member towns, Greenville went along with the idea. Thus, in 1934 the name of the Pitt County Fair was changed to the Greater Greenville Fair. Money was channeled into the grounds and facilities at the same location which was owned by the Pitt County Fair. Only the name and sponsoring organization were different. A new carnival, Kaus United Shows, was signed for the midway and with tobacco selling much better in 1934, the fair was a success in every way. It started off that year with a parade down Dickerson Avenue out to the old fairgrounds exactly as the first fair had started in 1920. A crowd estimated at 30,000 people attended the fair that year and if a new hope and new spirit had been on the horizon in 1933, clearly it came into focus with the 1934 fair. Virtually the same sponsorship and name were continued for the 1935 fair despite a late October date and cold weather. After the 1935 season, however, the East Carolina Chamber of Commerce decided not to sponsor any more fairs and the Pitt County Fair was destined for a major change.

By 1936 the Pitt County Fair was owned solely by Haywood Dail, but he had relinquished the management of it to the East Carolina Chamber of Commerce in 1934. It was felt that a sponsoring organization was definitely the way to go if the fair was to continue, and what better organization was there than the American Legion. Therefore, in 1936 the fair was taken over by the Greenville and Farmville American Legion Posts and operated at the old fairgrounds for the 1936 season. This proved to be a great success and late in 1936 the American Legion reincorporated the fair as the Pitt County American Legion Fair. The old Greenville fairgrounds were long deemed as a great sight for a new ball park for Greenville and the Coastal Plain League going pro; Greenville needed a fine ball park and stadium. The American Legion needed a new fairground and bought a sight on the Falkland Highway where the Medical Pavilion now stands, and the old fairgrounds became the site of Guy Smith Stadium. Thus the Pitt County Fair had its second of four homes in its 65-year history, and the American Legion approached the 1937 season as the Pitt County Fair's proud new owner.

The remaining fairs in the 1930's were successful under the ownership of the Greenville and Farmville American Legion Posts. (Ayden's Post joined the ownership a few years later.) Mr. A. J. Grey was hired as manager and the exhibits and agricultural themes grew better each year. Tents were first rented as exhibit halls but later a fine exhibit building was built on what is now the intersection of Memorial Drive and West Fifth Street (or the Falkland Highway). Kaus United Shows played the fair from 1934 until 1939 when the Art Lewis Show brought its carnival to Greenville.

By 1940, Greenville and the Pitt County area were proven to be great "fair territories." It seemed that neither rain, cold, draught, nor economic woes could get the Pitt County Fair

Thrill Drivers At Fair Friday and Saturday

It will be plenty of action and lots of thrills when the Fantasy on Wheels 'Hell Drivers' perform at the Fair Grounds on Friday and Saturday afternoon of fair week at 5 o'clock.

There will be no charge for the show, a presentation of the American Legion Posts which own and operate the Agricultural Fair. President Les Turnage and Manager Sam Winchester said fair-goers and thrill-seekers have an opportunity to see these drivers, and the Fair officials are delighted to bring the feature entertainment, without charge.

Jack Plumstead and Tonny Petersen will put a fleet of new Chrysler, Dodge, and Plymouth cars and trucks, riding on Cooper tires, through their paces over lofty ramp elevations.

The big 28 high-speed event show promises a string of thrilling acts lasting an hour and 15 minutes. They will balance and drive new automobiles on the sidewalls of their Cooper tires, balancing on two wheels as far as they can go.

A new Dodge pickup truck will shoot off a ramp, soar 65 feet through space, and come floating down on a receiving platform.

Old automobiles will be demolished before your eyes, motorcycles will fly through space and the highly technical reverse spin.

Petersen has a long and varied career in show business. He is a native of Copenhagen, Denmark, traveled throughout Europe with a prestigious circus. His specialty was a triple somersault into a chair from a teeterboard.

While performing in this country in the late 50's, he saw his first automobile thrill show and originated the idea of combining an acrobatic act with an automobile stunt. One of his earliest stunts was doing a handstand on top of a car as it soared into space from a ramp elevation. He was a featured performer at New York's World Fair in 1964 and 1965.

Plumstead is a 35-year veteran of playing major fairs, speedways and exhibitions. So spectacular was his act at the New York World's Fair in 1964 and 1965 that a tire company contracted with him to head its television campaign which ran for six years. He down and keep her that way for long. The fair had proven to be an annual way of life for the area's population and it was destined to stay that way. However, unsettling times were again ahead—this time not from depression, but from war. Greenville hosted the fair in 1940 and felt the effects of a rejuvenated tobacco crop with exhibits in full bloom and Endy Shows on the midway. A successful fair was held in 1941 with A. J. Gray as manager and the Kaus United Shows returning after a two-year absence. The agricultural, machinery, and livestock exhibits received wide praise from agricultural officials in Raleigh during the 1941 fair.

The 1942 fair was planned despite the fact that the nation was at war and the future was very uncertain. The 1942 fair almost did not happen at all.

The midway contract that year was made with Cetlin & Wilson Shows, a railroad carnival that later grew to be fourth largest in America. However, in 1942, it was what was called in those days a "gilly show," because instead of transporting on wagons and flat cars, it hauled its equipment to and from the fairgrounds in "gilly wagons" or baggage wagons. The equipment was then loaded in baggage cars. Two weeks before the Pitt County Fair, this show was playing the Petersburg, Va., fair when torrential rains mired the show and the lightly-constructed "gilly" wagons broke under the strain of teams and tractors trying to get them off the lot. The lot became a river of mud and mire. There was no way the show could get to Wilson, its next stop, and then Greenville the next week. There were two choices—cancel the Wilson fair and come to Greenville, or cancel Greenville and go to Wilson during Greenville's week, or move both fairs forward a week at the last minute. After many discussions, the latter was agreed upon, and the Pitt County Fair was held the first week in November—the first time in November since the 1920's and more than likely the last time. The theme for 1942 was "Pitt County's Victory Celebration," but it would be three long years before the slogan would be appropriate.

It was decided not to have a fair in 1943 because of the uncertainty of everything. Many fairs were suspended for the duration of the war(there was no State Fair in 1942, 1943, 1944 or 1945) and it was assumed that the Pitt County Fair would not be held again until the war was over. However, early in 1944, the thinking on the subject began to change. The war had reached a turning point and people needed a chance to forget the tensions of everyday life during wartime, even briefly. Furthermore, the people of Greenville and Pitt County missed the fair not held in 1943, and it was thought that if a carnival could be signed, an attempt to hold the fair would be made. The J. C. Weir Shows, a 25-car railroad show made up of the old Art Lewis Shows that played the fair in 1939 had just been formed and was owned by J. C. Weir and James E. Strates. They made a specialty of playing American Legion-sponsored fairs because of the war and also because Mr. Weir was an active legionnaire. The 1944 fair was blessed with good weather and good crowds. The fair was held again in 1945 with Lawrence Greater Shows on the midway, despite the fact that owner Sam Lawrence was killed in Kutxtown, Pa., six weeks earlier. Thus, the Pitt County Fair missed one year during the war when many fairs were suspended for up to four years. A. J. Grey remained manager.

Beginning in 1946, Greenville and Pitt County began to grow and the Pitt County Fair began to grow. Exhibits and livestock grew each year, enthusiasm grew, the midway grew, the crowds grew. In fact the fair was outgrowing its grounds. As early as 1947 there was speculation that the fair would have to move to larger quarters some day. With the building of the new hospital near the fairgrounds in 1950, the American Legion purchased a new site for the fair across from the Airport. 1950 was the last season at the Falkland Highway grounds. Norman Y. Chambliss had been named manager of the fair in 1949 and his expertise in fair management was to guide the Pitt County fair over the next twenty years. Mr. Chambliss, from Rocky Mount, was the owner of the Rocky Mount Fair and during the thirties had managed the North Carolina State Fair. The midway was played by Triangle Shows, Marks Shows and Prells Broadway Shows through the 1950 season. Dr. J. L. Winstead was president of the fair in 1947 and 1948. David J. Whichard was president in 1949.

Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Decades

With a new home on the north side of Greenville, the Pitt County Fair was set for a bigger than ever season in 1951. Under the management of Norman Y. Chambliss the fair that year was good and many favorable comments were heard about the new facilities. Livestock and the Junior Dairy Show began to be an important part of the fair about this time. The fair adopted a new slogan to go with its new facilities. This slogan "Pitt County on Parade" was used for many years and is still used today. The only disappointing thing about the 1951 fair was the midway. Lawrence Greater Shows, which had played the fair in 1945, returned, but the show was not up to par.

During the next 28 years (from 1951 until 1978) the Pitt County Fair established itself as one of North Carolina's finest. Exhibits, especially in the livestock area, were better each year and the enthusiasm that the people of Greenville and Pitt County had for the fair grew.

Over fifty thousand people were estimated to attend each year and once again the fair seemed to be outgrowing its grounds. Norman Y. Chambliss served as manager until the close of the 1969 fair and was then succeeded by the very capable Sam Winchester who had directed the exhibits for many years.

Fireworks, free acts and expanded exhibits contributed to the fair's success during these 28 years along with the help of legionnaires and hundreds of other people of Greenville and Pitt County who are simply goo numerous to mention. In 1956, a contract was signed with the O. C. Buck Shows of Troy, N. Y., to provide the midway and this proved to be a very successful venture. (Oscar C. Buck died in Greenville at the 1971 fair.) This great show and its successors, the Buck-Page Exposition and Amusements of America—long one of the East Coast's greatest carnivals with an arsenal of over 80 rides—have provided the midway continually for 29 years. Roland Page, owner of Buck-Page and now affiliated with the huge Amusements of America as well as the five Vivona brothers (especially Morris and Phil), owners of Amusements of America, have proven over the years to be real friends of the Pitt County Fair.

Mrs. Evelyn L. Spangler, Home Economics Extension Agent

Directors

The home economics program of the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service, North Carolina State University at Raleigh, has grown from the original canning clubs to a broader adult education program for the entire family. It reflects the needs of contemporary living, with emphasis on consumer education, management, and family relationships. Included are all phases of homemaking: Foods and Nutrition, Clothing and Textiles, Housing and House Furnishings, Home Finances, and Human Development. Each is important in developing a well-balanced home in which happy, healthy people are to live. Educational Exhibits are planned in an effort to promote the total Home Economics Extension Program.

Organizations connected with the Extension Homemaker Association in Pitt County are eligible to have nine exhibits, each 8x8 feet.

Fair History

A New Era

It was no secret that as early as 1961, people began to realize that once again the fair was too big for its home. At the same time, especially in the late 1970's, no one thought that the fair could afford to buy new fairgrounds at any suitable location. It would have to be on a main thoroughfare, at least twenty acres, and have suitbale sandy soil. Such property was beyond the reach of the fair. This was an understandable assumption with the skyrocketing property prices at the time. But beyond the reach of the fair??? Les Turnage did not think so. After the opening of the eastern by-pass in the late 1970's Les found it. There it was—sandy soil, 31 acres on a by-pass and it could be bought. Thinking it too good an opportunity to pass up, Less told the board that if they did not think it feasible to purchase the property, he would buy it himself. They bought it and the Pitt County Fair had its fourth home.

The laying out of the new fairgrounds in 1979 was not something that was attempted in a haphazard manner. Conner Eagles, grounds and buildings superintendent, and Les Turnage secured two men from Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham's office in Raleigh and they visited many fairgrounds around the state.

Throughout 1979 Conner Eagles was busy laying out the grounds and supervising the building of the new facilities. Under a small clump of oak trees at one end of the grounds, Mr. Eagles conceived the idea of letting the trees and an old barn stay to remind fairgoers of the way life used to be in the old days in an agricultural environment. This seemed like a good idea to other fair officials and before long more and more was added to this exhibit. This became what is now known as the W. Conner Eagles Farm Homestead. Also know as the Village of Yesteryear, this display of a farming village for the early 1900's is recognized over the state as the finest exhibit of the type to be found anywhere. The most recent addition is the old Winterville railroad station and most of the buildings were taken directly from their original sites in Pitt County. Most of the buildings are stocked with types of things of the past that were in them originally, all given by the generous people of Pitt County and adjacent counties who want to make this project an ongoing one. No other fair or museum can boast of anything of this type that is finer or more complete, including the similar display at the State Fair. With all of this, the exhibit grows each year and what a good place to display it—at the agriculture fair. This alone has made the Pitt County Fair famous among fairs in the state.

In 1983, for the first time since the fair had its first home at Guy Smith Stadium, a free automobile thrill show (Jake Plumstead and Tony Peterson's Hell Drivers) were presented at the fairgrounds. The fair had featured such acts in the late forties and fifties, but not at the fairgrounds because there simply wasn't room. These shows were staged on Sunday afternoon at the airport. The Hell Drivers Show will return in 1984 on Monday and Tuesday, October 1 and 2. A new grandstand area is being added this year with over 1500 portable seats and a 700-foot race track. Admission to the thrill show continues free, and Plumstead and Peterson promise an even bigger and better show.

Inevitably, one could not go to a fair of yesteryear and not hear the thrilling music of the midway pumped out by the always present carousel organ. These organs are few in number and have been missing from the fair grounds in Greenville and elsewhere for many years. However, 1983 and again in 1984 "The Carousel Queen," a beautiful old 1910 carousel organ, will greet fair goers with midway music in its wagon between the exhibit building and the midway. This area will be equipped with picnic tables for the first time, this giving a rest area with fairground music to patrons. Truly a modern fair, but with plenty of nostalgia. And it's a safe bet that the Pitt County Fair will soon be the biggest fair east of Raleigh while getting better all the time.

Haywood Dail would indeed be proud.

SAM WINCHESTER

Sam Winchester In 15th Year As Manager of Fair

Sam C. Winchester will be meeting fair patrons and exhibitors for the 15th year when the Pitt County American Legion Agricultural Fair opens Monday, Oct. 1.

And few people in the county have a more intimate acquaintance with Pitt's rural and industrial populations than he does.

A native of Guilford County, Winchester attended Hillsdale and Summerfield Public Schools and was graduated from N.C. State University (then State College) in 1935, with a B.S. degree in agronomy. He was employed by the United States Department of Agriculture Cooperative Extension Service for 34 years, the last 27 of which were in Pitt County.

Winchester served as Assistant County Agent, County Agricultural Agent, and County Extension Chairman, before retiring on December 31, 1969.

He took over the management of the Fair at the death of Norman Y. Chambliss, and has been in the management's office since then. The Fair, during the decade and a half, has moved into more spacious surroundings, and features have been added annually.

Interest in the exhibit and educational programs of the annual event has grown proportionately.

Score Card for Judging

Fruit	55 points
a. Shape	10
b. Clearness and Color	15
c. Flavor	15
d. Texture	10
e. Pack	5
Syrup	45 points

EXPLANATION OF SCORE CARD

Jams are made from crushed fruits, usually small ones, and are cooked to a smooth jelly-like consistency. Conserves and Marmalades usually have a citrus fruit and nuts and raisins may be added. Butters are a smooth, thick spread. These products must be processed in boiling water bath for airtight seal (no paraffin). Standard half-pint or pint jars.

a. Clearness and color	10
b. Flavor	15
c. Consistency	10
d. Proportion of juice	10
Total	100 points

EXPLANATION OF SCORE CARD

Shape—Fruit should have original shape as nearly as possible

Clearness and Color—Clear, and in some fruit transparent, not too dark.

Flavor—Fruit flavor should not be destroyed by the use of too much sugar.

Texture—Tender, but firm and ripe.

Pack—Arrangement of fruit with reference to symmetry of jar. Juice should be clear and not too dark.

Consistency—Heavy, but not enough to crystallize.

Proportion of Juice—About one-third as much syrup as fruit.

Seal—Preserves should have an air tight seal (no paraffin). Standard half-pint or pint jars.

General Appearance	30 points
a. Color	10
b. Clearness	10
c. Crystals (lack of)	10
Flavor	30 points
Consistency	35 points
Container	5 points
Total	100 points

Explanation of Score Card

Color—Pronounced, yet natural color

Clearness—Transparent and Sparkling

Flavor—Natural fruit flavor.

Consistency—Tender, breaks with distinct cleavage, angles hold shape; should not be syrupy, sticky, or tough.

Container—Standard jars with clean, new tops that fit tightly. Tapered ½ pint jars are very good. Jars should be sealed or a thin layer of paraffin should be over jelly.

DEPARTMENT "I"

PANTRY

Mrs. Thomas H. Langston, Director

ADULT DIVISION

Canned goods must have been canned in the time period October 1983 to September 1984. They must be the work of the exhibitor. Containers should be standard pint or quart jars. Others will not be judged. No spices, color, or lemon peel should be added.

The Fair Association reserves the right to have all pickles, jams, jellies, and preserves opened for judging. All entries should be in by 5 p.m. Monday of Fair Week.

CANNED FRUITS AND VEGETABLES
Score Card for Judging

Fruits and tomatoes should be processed in boiling water bath and low-acid vegetables processed as in a steam pressure canner.

Color	25 points
Liquid	15 points
Flavor	* points
Appearance	25 points
Appropriate Size	15 points
Pack	10 points
Container	10 points
Total	100 points

* Flavor is very important, but cannot actually be judged since jars are not opened.

Explanation of Score Card

Color—That of natural fruit or vegetables.

Liquid—Appropriate for product and method of processing.

*Flavor—The natural flavor should be preserved as much as possible. In canning fruits, do not overpower flavor with sugar.

Appearance—Uniformly well-ripened products; no defective or over-ripe fruits or vegetables. Only young and tender vegetables should be canned.

Appropriate Size—Uniformity of shape and size appropriate for product.

Pack—Arrangement with reference to symmetry and best use of space within the jar. Attractiveness of pack should be considered but not time-wasting fancy packs.

Container—Containers should be standard quart, pint or half-pint canning jars. Labels, if used, should be on bottom of jar.

DEPARTMENT "J"
FLORAL DEPARTMENT

Mrs. Irene Taylor, Director

Cut flowers must be placed by 9 o'clock Tuesday morning of Fair Week. Each arrangement must be the work of the exhibitor.

ATTENTION EXHIBITOR:

1. There will not be any residue on cut flowers or potted plants.
2. Pinch off buggy, dead leaves and flowers.
3. Wash off dirt and dust.
4. Clean soil around roots of plants.
5. Cut flower specimen is one flower with foliage and no buds.
6. A display is three or more of the same kind of flower.
7. A collection is three or more of different varieties.
8. An arrangement is a pattern of flowers with a focal point.
9. No artificial flowers, foliage, fruit, or food items will be permitted in any class. Dried or treated materials will be permitted only in those classes specified.

Special Note

It is suggested that in hardening your flowers for exhibit that they be cut early in the morning and placed in warm water (120° to 140°). To keep them overnight, they should be kept in a cool place. If available, cut flowers should be kept in a cooler at about 40 degrees.

DIVISION I
DIVISION FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

Entries must be entirely the work of the exhibitor. Entries must be marked with the age of the exhibitor.

LESTER TURNAGE

Lester Turnage Finds Time To Be President Of Pitt County Fair

Fortunately for those interested in the success and welfare of the Pitt County American Legion Agricultural Fair, Lester E. Turnage, Jr., of Greenville has squeezed into a busy schedule time and room enough to head the Fair Board.

His knowledge of real estate and business transactions have enabled the Fair to experience steady growth.

He has worked closely with Connor Eagles in preserving the country flavor of the Fair and in the restoration of the Village of Yesteryear, an attraction that has gained more than unusual attention and interest.

Turnage is a graduate of Farmville High School, attended Atlantic Christian College in 1941-42, N.C. State University in 1942-43, and served in the Air Force from 1943-1946. He was with the D. L. Turnage Real Estate and Insurance Agency from 1946 to 1954, and has been self-employed since 1954 as owner of Turnage Real Estate and Insurance Agency.

In 1951, he was the Greenville Jaycees' "Man of the Year." The same year, he was the N. C. Jaycees' "Man of the Year," and in 1971 was Greenville-Pitt County Realtor of the Year.

Since 1964, he has been president of the Pitt Fair. Prior to that, he served as Commander of American Legion Post #39. He has been on the Greenville School Board, and has served as chairman of the Greenville Scouts, and as an institutional director of the East Carolina Council, Boy Scouts of America.

He is a charter member of the Hooker Memorial Christian church, is past chairman of the Board, and is on the Building and Grounds Committee and Visitation Committee.

He is married to Irene F. Adams. They have five children: David Turnage, Sue T. Hood, Pam T. Finch, Ed Turnage and Kent Adams; and three grandchildren.
