Dry-Docked Cruise Ship Falls, Hurts 31

By JEAN McNAIR
Associated Press Writer

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A Panamanian cruise ship with about 150 sleeping crew members aboard fell off a dry dock and crashed on its side into the water early today, briefly trapping about 50 people and injuring 31, authorities said.

The 50 people trapped inside the overturned vessel were rescued or got out on their own, according to the Coast Guard.

"Everybody is off the ship," said Coast Guard Petty Officer Tom Armstrong.

Still, Lt. Susan Donner, a Coast Guard spokeswoman, said authorities continued to search the water's surface below the dry dock platform "just in case."

Spokesmen at three hospitals where the injured were taken said one man was in critical condition with head injuries, but the other 30 were treated mostly for cuts and bruises and released.

The accident occurred at 3:48 a.m. at the Norfolk Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., said Don Haupt, director of paramedical rescue in Norfolk.

Haupt said that of the approximately 150 people aboard the ship at the time of the accident, about 100 got out as the vessel overturned. Another 50 were trapped inside the ship, he said.

No information was immediately available on how the ship fell.

The 484-foot cruise ship, identified by Coast Guardsmen as the Vera Cruz, was originally believed to be Spanish-based but later found to be registered in Panama and owned by Bahama Cruise Lines, Petty Officer Bill Boatman said.

The ship was on a platform above the water when it turned and fell into the water, said Ms. Donner.

The Vera Cruz "fell off the platform, apparently crashed into the water and was listing about 20 degrees," Armstrong said. Workers "sank the dry dock again to refloat" the ship.

The accident occurred in drydock 2 at the shipyard, Haupt said.

Thomas Forrest, a dispatcher at Norfolk paramedical rescue, said most of those aboard the vessel were asleep at the time of the accident.

Coast Guard Petty Officer Vernon Covington said the rescue effort presented a language problem because the crew members spoke Spanish.

Opinion Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today asked the Justice Department whether it considers legal the way 30 members of the North Carolina General Assembly were chosen until this year.

The justices want to know the Reagan administration's views regarding the ruling of a three-judge federal court in North Carolina that the invalidated system illegally diluted black voters' political clout.

The high court will decide whether to review that ruling after hearing from the Justice Department.

The apportionment plan created by the General Assembly in 1981 was quickly challenged by a group of black voters.

Polls Muting Hunt's Praise For Mondale

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Polls showing that North Carolinians strongly favor President Reagan have muted praise for Walter Mondale from top elected Democrats, a move political analysts warn could backfire.

The most recent Gallup Poll showed that 62 percent of the 1,187 voters surveyed Sept. 10-13 favored Reagan while 34 percent supported Democrat Mondale. The poll had a margin of error of 3 percentage points.

Richard Nixon was the last president to enjoy such support among the state's predominantly Democratic voters. His 1972 re-election swept into office the first Republican governor this century and a GOP senator, Jesse Helms.

Democrats do not want to repeat history. Gov. Jim Hunt is challenging Helms' bid for a third term and is urging voters to consider the presidential and senatorial races separately.

Hunt, the state's top elected Democrat, outlined the distinctions between him and Mondale in a televised debate with Helms on Sept. 23. He outlined few similarities with Mondale.

"It's a paradox," said Merle Black, a political science professor at the University of North Carolina. "The more he disassociates himself from Mondale, the bigger the Reagan lead could be and the harder for Hunt to go against that (Republican) tide."

"He needs to be more outspoken about what he likes in Mondale. He needs to shore up the Democrats," Black said.

Hunt campaign spokesman Will Marshall disagreed, saying Hunt made his support for Mondale clear. He said Democrats don't need to support the position of party leaders completely and asked why Hunt should be held to a higher standard.

"Obviously Helms is interested in trying to latch on to Ronald Reagan's popularity, but the people here will not be fooled," Marshall said. "They will decide this race on their feelings about Jesse Helms and Jim Hunt not Ronald Reagan and Walter Mondale."

Marshall said polls indicate North Carolinians are looking at the two races separately. He said the Gallup Poll showed that Reagan increased his lead by 3 percentage points between May and September while Helms' support fell by 1.5 percentage points.

Reagan holds a 2-to-1 edge over Mondale in the most recent poll while Helms and Hunt remain almost neck and neck.

But Donald Schroeder, a government professor at Campbell University, agreed with Black that Hunt is trying to disassociate himself from Mondale "without looking like a bad Democrat."

Schroeder said he thinks Hunt would fare better to avoid discussing the presidential race and concentrate on Medicare, Social Security and tobacco. He said Hunt tried to do that in the debate but failed.

"All he is doing is blurring the perceptions of the Democratic Party," Schroeder said. "To the extent to which the Democratic Party lacks character, an image, there is less of a reason to vote Democratic."

State Democratic Party Chairman David Price said it's "perfectly reasonable to indicate where he agrees and disagrees with the party candidate." Price praised Hunt for telling his stand and noting where it goes against Mondale's ideas.

Black said Hunt is running a risk of angering liberals in the party and making them less interested in whether he wins.

"It's not so much that they wouldn't turn out (to vote) but they wouldn't hustle up votes," Black said.

Marshall said the Democratic Party includes many ideas and said he has not seen enthusiasm for Hunt wane.

During the debate, Helms charged that Mondale and Hunt would pile more spending and taxes on the backs of working Americans. In four of five questions, Helms asked Hunt about Mondale or whether he was a liberal.

"I'm a Reagan conservative and proud of it and Mr. Hunt is a Mondale liberal and ashamed of it," Helms said.

Hunt reminded Helms that he was not running against Mondale and said people know him too well to believe he is a "Mondale liberal." He said people know that Helms often has failed to support Reagan.

"People know that I'm supporting Fritz Mondale for president and that may not be popular now. But I'm a Democrat," Hunt said. "I think that Walter Mondale has made some mistakes and I think he's wrong right now in pushing to increase taxes at the national level."

Pitt Growers Await Clearing Skies

National Weather Service reports calling for clearing of area skies as Tropical Depression Isidore moves farther from North Carolina's coast are a positive note for local corn growers who are awaiting to harvest the remainder of this year's crop, according to Pitt County Agricultural Extension Agent Sam Uzzell.

"The only thing we would be afraid of now would be a good strong wind," Uzzell said, "but the corn that's left can be gotten up with one week of good dry weather." Approximately 20 percent of Pitt County corn remains in the fields.

While rains brought by Diana in mid-September slowed the corn harvest, Uzzell said rains stirred by the hurricane as well as rainfall accumulated over the weekend haven't really hurt soybean and peanut crops. "By in large, the rains will help the peanut crop reach maturity and the soybeans have probably benefitted slightly," Uzzell said.

The Weather Service is predicting clear skies to prevail through the remainder of the week as Isidore moves farther east. This morning, the tropical storm was over 500 miles east of the North Carolina coast.

Isidore's move was greeted with relief by many, who spent the weekend anxiously awaiting floods that never came. On the other hand, the rain did drive the Tar River up a foot and fouled weekend plans of some as well including those attending Marvin Speight's annual fish fry and barbecue at Emerale Isle. For the first time in nine years, the gala Democratic rally was forced indoors to the Islander Motel. Yet according to AP reports, only the grass and sidewalks, not human spirits, were dampened by the drizzle. Attending the event were a number of political hopefuls including Insurance Commissioner John Ingram, Attorney General Rufus Edmisten and Gov. Jim Hunt. Speight is chairman of the state Alcohol Beverage Control Commission.

While the party raged indoors at Emerald Isle, Pirate football fans drove to Raleigh prepared for the worst of weather, but not a drop fell on the estimated 10,000 East Carolina University fans attending the ECU-State game.

Hearings Start In November

Leaf Quota Proposals Set

By The Associated Press
The U.S. Agriculture Department will make four proposals in considering the 1985 marketing quota for flue-cured tobacco during meetings in November, an official says.

Everett Rank, administrator of the department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said the proposals are:

- A base quota of 875 million pounds, which would be an 8.7 percent increase over the 1984 quota.
- A 5.5 percent increase.
- The same quota as in 1984.
- A quota of 745 million pounds, 7.5 less than in 1984.

Public meetings on the proposals will be held at the Tifton, Ga., Rural Development Center on Wednesday, Nov. 7 and at the McKimmon Center in Raleigh, N.C., on Nov. 8.

John Cyrus, chief of tobacco affairs for the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, said the decision hinges on sales of the remainder of the 1984 crop as well the inventory from previous years and the estimated usage for next year. He said growers would like to see the quota increase, but that no change in the quota may be the most they can realistically expect.

"Several things are going for us," Cyrus added, noting that the percentage of tobacco going to the Flue-Cured Cooperative Stabilization Corp. under government support loans this season is lower than a year ago.

He said it is also possible that buyers will take at least 720 million pounds of this year's crop, the level that will trigger the co-op's discount prices for part of the loan stocks from previous years. Cyrus said that would be a figure the U.S. agriculture secretary could take into account to increase the quota.

However, loan receipts have risen in recent weeks, especially on the Old Belt. If that trend continues and the co-op's incentive buying plan is not put into effect, it would be difficult to avoid a cut in the quota, Cyrus said.

This year's quota was cut 11.5 percent from last year, which is 46 percent lower than the 1975 quota.

The department estimates the current flue-cured tobacco supply at 3.016 billion pounds — 2.165 billion pounds in inventory on July 1, plus an estimated 851 million pounds from this season's crop.

Isidore Causes Little N.C. Damage

By The Associated Press
Tropical storm Isidore kicked up wind gusts and heavy rain but did little damage before moving away from the North Carolina coast Sunday and weakening into a tropical depression, authorities said.

By late Sunday afternoon, remnants of the storm were nearly 375 miles east of Cape Hatteras. Damage was confined to minor beach erosion and some street flooding, authorities said.

Emerald Isle police said tides Saturday night swelled to the dunes and spilled onto Ocean Boulevard but caused no damage. At Atlantic Beach, police reported tides 3 feet to 4 feet above normal with minor flooding and winds gusting to 35 to 40 knots.

Heavy rain on Sunday afternoon in New Hanover County caused flooding on U.S. 421 near the Battleship Memorial in Wilmington. The state Highway Patrol reported some traffic congestion, with about 3 feet of water in the roadway in the afternoon.

Minor beach erosion was also reported on the Outer Banks, where high tides Sunday brought waves of up to 10 feet crashing on the beaches in Kill Devil Hills.

Bob Rubbenda with the National Weather Service at Raleigh-Durham Airport said Isidore was downgraded to a tropical depression about 6 p.m. Sunday.

Offers To Fix Old Jukebox Overwhelmed Abby And Staff

DEAR READERS: On Aug. 22, the following letter appeared in my column:

"Dear Abby: We have three adult crippled children (our own) all in wheelchairs due to a rare genetic form of cerebral palsy. However, this is not the problem; I'm coming to that.

"Our children love music, so we bought them a used jukebox and stocked it with their favorite records—mostly polkas, Irish ballads, golden oldies, etc. Last December the jukebox broke down. The dealer who sold it to us tried to locate the transfer switch that was needed to repair it, but he told us that since it was a 20-year-old Wurlitzer, he doesn't expect to find one because the parts are not being made anymore.

"Abby, the model is 2810 and it plays only 45s. It had a beautiful tone before the switch broke.

"Can you help me, or is this a hopeless case?—Gertrude B. in Wilkes-Barre, Pa."

"Dear Gertrude: There must be someone out there who has an old Wurlitzer transfer switch. Readers? Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038."

Did I get letters! My mailman isn't speaking to me, and my staff is still working overtime to handle the responses.

More than 10,000 people from all 50 states, Canada and Puerto Rico wrote, offering to send a transfer switch. And at least a dozen people volunteered to custom-make one!

Michelle K., an employee of the H and G Amusement Co. in Milwaukee, was the first to call my office to say that she had already started taking up a collection at work in order to send a good, rebuilt Wurlitzer to Gertrude's children. She added, "The Milwaukee Sentinel, which carries your column, agreed to pay the $75 shipping charges."

An engineer in Maryland offered to fly to Wilkes-Barre and restore the jukebox to working order, regardless of what was required—free of charge.

I heard from people offering to send Gertrude their collections of old records. Some kind-hearted strangers even sent checks to "help out."

The outpouring of generosity and compassion for Gertrude and her three disabled children had me and my staff typing through tear-dimmed eyes.

I telephoned Gertrude and spoke to her and her husband, Chuck. They were overwhelmed with gratitude and said, "There is no way we can thank all those wonderful people, so will you please thank them for us?"

You will be pleased to know that the sound of music will again be heard in Gertrude and Chuck's home thanks to Philip Roth, owner of Roth Novelty Co. in Wilkes-Barre. He wrote to say that he has represented the Wurlitzer Co. for 25 years and he will gladly provide the music-loving family with the best rebuilt jukebox available at no cost. And because of the special circumstances, Roth agreed

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

Every once in awhile, I think mothers should go through their repertoire of speeches and toss out all those that don't work anymore.

Parental lectures are like anything else. They become obsolete. Kids outgrow them. They're used too often and lose their effectiveness. (When the kids recite it along with you, it's time to phase it out.) And face it! Some of them don't work. They've lost it.

The speech that never worked for me was, "I've never asked you for much, but I'm begging you now." Actually, I put a lot of myself into that lecture. My shoulders slumped, my eyes became dull, and sometimes I cried. I even choreographed it, dragging across the floor and coming to rest on a kitchen chair where I shredded my nose tissue. I'd finish the phrase off with, "Please take out the garbage before it attacks us," or "Stay off the phone until the doctor calls me with my test results." It should have moved them to tears, but it never did.

Another one that was a total flop was, "Never mind, I'll do it myself." It was from my "Guilt Sampler." Friends of mine used it effectively for years, so it must have been my delivery. Whatever, I always ended up with the kids saying, "Okay," and making a fast exit.

Saying goodbye to parental sermons is like bidding adieu to old friends. How I miss "Do you want Mommy to cry?" Few speeches since have made them feel so rotten. "You will never see another cookie as long as you live," was a wonderful soliloquy until the kids bemoaned independently wealthy and found out they could buy their own stash.

Others I was glad to unload. I felt like a fool when I was delivering them. Every time I gave the "One of these days you'll thank me for being so strict" speech I knew I wasn't being convincing by the way they looked at me like I was headed for paper shoes city.

Naturally, a parent never wants to let her repertoire run low. You have to work all the time to replace old speeches with new ones. I'm getting a lot of mileage out of "Would it kill you to get married and make me a grandmother?" I also like "If you don't want to tell me what's bothering you, just drop it, and I'll understand." (Allow three days to deliver this one.)

I tried one the other day that I thought was a winner. "What do you want me to do, keep my mouth shut and say nothing?" I won't go into details... but it needs work.

Views On Dental Health

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S.P.A

INFECTION FOLLOWING SURGERY

If you undergo any kind of an operation in a hospital, you normally spend time in "recovery" where you are carefully cared for to insure no "post-op" infection develops. A dentist does not have this luxury (nor does the patient). If a surgical procedure is done (such as an extraction), the patient normally leaves the office with verbal or printed instructions about what to do or not to do to prevent infection and promote healing. If you ignore the instructions, you may be flirting with the possibility of post-procedure infection.

Signs of infection would be pain, swelling, and perhaps a feverish feeling. Swelling after surgery doesn't necessarily mean you have an infection, as some swelling is normal. But if it keeps getting bigger, feels warm and firm and is painful, see your dentist immediately.

He may put you on an antibiotic, or he may have to open and clean out your wound. Do not take the attitude that it will probably get better by itself. It may, but if it doesn't, it's going to be harder and longer to treat later.

Patience

Tass, the Soviet news agency, pretty well signaled a reaction from Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko with its resounding "nyet" to President Reagan's proposals for defusing tensions between the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. in his address before the United Nations.

Actually, an early favorable response by Gromyko was hardly in the cards.

There could be no such response until Moscow is ready to make its evaluations of a situation which (we are told) they do not relish, either.

Any productive steps might well be months away; and maybe one could speak in terms of years.

Our own opinion leans toward that of a longtime observer who looks on the Gromyko mission to the United States as one of evaluating attitudes and opportunities to attain his government's long-range ambitions and hopes through meetings with spokesmen for two very diverse camps that comprise prevailing attitudes toward relations with Russia. From Mr. Mondale and the president he might be able to reach conclusions as to the most advantageous prospects for the years ahead.

We should not look for quick resolution of existing differences — which is contrary to habitual impatience of our people who are inclined to anticipate a fast cure for any unpleasant situation.

Mr. Gromyko knows how to say "no" in innumerable ways; some of which leave doors open to "maybe." What he tells his superiors in the Kremlin would make far more interesting reading.

Extremes

The extremes to which some people can be led by the injection of religious scruples into political fields are many and varied.

A good example occurred earlier this month when New York Gov. Mario Cuomo's offer of a $1,500 contribution to a Catholic home for unwed mothers in Garrison, N.Y., was declined because of views expressed in a Cuomo speech.

The sum was the governor's honorarium for a talk on religion and politics at the University of Notre Dame. In that speech, Cuomo reaffirmed his opposition to abortion as well as his concern that he and other Catholic politicians shouldn't feel compelled to work for legislation to outlaw abortion.

A similar Catholic service for unwed mothers in Albany found no problem in accepting the sum, and the director in noting other gifts from the Cuomo family in the past, observed that "not to have accepted this gift at this time would seem hypocritical."

The dispute over seeking to impose a sectarian tenet as law for everyone can result in unique differences of opinion as well as extremes in viewpoint.

Prepare To Pay The Price

WASHINGTON (AP) — Low- and middle-income Americans in growing numbers are buying into what they consider the ultimate tax shelter: they make a small down payment on an overvalued investment and "finance" the balance through the Internal Revenue Service.

Using such a scheme, a taxpayer can wipe out all tax liability for the current year and get back all taxes paid in the three previous years.

IRS Commissioner Roscoe L. Egger Jr. offers a blunt warning to lower-income people who are investing in such tax-avoidance schemes, which once were confined to the wealthy. "If you're going to taste forbidden fruit," he says, "be prepared to pay the price."

When well-to-do people get caught in "abusive" tax-shelter arrangements, they usually have no trouble settling their accounts with the IRS.

But for lower-income taxpayers, Egger noted in a recent interview, it often creates a collection problem for the agency, which sometimes ends up confiscating a family's property for back taxes.

The latest shelter scheme is built on a law designed to help businesses survive when expenses — tax deductions — in a given year exceed income. If the resulting loss is too big to be used up in one year, it can be carried back over as many as three years, canceling any tax liability for those years.

The law permits a business to file a Form 1045 with the IRS, which is required to process the filing within 90 days and — if it looks proper — to issue a refund for those years.

In a typical lower-income tax-shelter scheme, a promoter will buy a nearly worthless musical recording and, by passing it through a series of hands, inflate the price to $250,000. An investor will make a $2,500 down payment and sign a 12-year note for the balance, which, on paper, would be paid off with proceeds from the sale of copies of the tape.

By claiming a 10 percent investment tax credit for the $250,000 purchase, a $25,000-a-year wage earner can avoid any tax liability in the year of purchase and have enough "loss" left over to exceed all the tax paid in the three most recent years. The person files a Form 1045 and within 90 days gets a refund of those taxes.

Another promoter might set a lower price on the tape, accept the down payment and mark the account closed as soon as a share of the refund is received.

"The thing takes on as many variations as there are promoters," Egger said. "But the promoters know it is impossible for us to audit all the returns in 90 days. In the great majority of these cases, they know they are going to get their money back."

In the typical case, Egger said, an investor might get back $15,000 from the IRS. "What will he do with it? Pay a sizable chunk to the promoter, of course; pay bills, buy a car, take a vacation. But we are reasonably sure that by the time we complete an audit, assess a deficiency, impose a penalty and interest, we are going to have a collection problem. They won't be able to pay."

Already, Egger said, "we have identified thousands of (shelter) returns with heavy, heavy involvement of people with relatively low incomes — in the $15,000, $25,000 category."

During a spot check at its Kansas City service center this summer, the IRS examined 71 tax-shelter plans whose filings for refunds looked suspicious. Twenty-five involved 271 lower- and middle-income investors — "factory workers, secretaries, athletic coaches, teachers, school principals, court reporters, salesmen and draftsmen," Egger said.

He said it is clear some professional tax-return preparers are advising taxpayers to invest in such arrangements. "At one service center we found numerous returns from a single preparer — you would swear he literally had run off the returns on a duplicating machine. They were identical."

Al James Golto of the H&R Block tax-preparation firm agreed with Egger that lower-income shelters are getting more attention from promoters because of the IRS campaign against "abusive" shelters used by the wealthy.

Egger said the IRS will fight lower-income schemes with the same tools Congress recently approved for attacking shelters of the wealthy. These include requiring promoters to register tax shelters with the IRS and give the agency a list of every investor.

Michael Jackson was in Washington recently for his concert, but it was really no big deal unless you turned on a television set or picked up a newspaper.

This is how all the local TV news programs seemed to play it.

"Good evening, ladies and gentlemen. Here is the news. Michael Jackson has just returned to his hotel room, after a visit to a record store in Northwest Washington. For a live report we take you to Brent Studebaker at the Regent Hotel where the singer is staying.

"Brent, do you have any information as to what Michael is doing right now?"

"Grady, our latest information is Michael is in his suite taking a nap before his concert tonight. We're going to get you a shot of the window of Jackson's suite on the fifth floor. There it is, Grady."

"Good work, Brent, we'll get back to you later in the program. And now for other news. Five thousand people were drowned in a tidal wave in Atlantic City, New Jersey, this morning. But before we give you further details on that story, Brent Studebaker has a bulletin from the Regent Hotel."

"Grady, I've received information from an impeccable source that Jackson has awakened from his nap and is taking a shower."

"Thanks, Brent, stay with it, and let us know what he does when he comes out of the shower. In other news, Fidel Castro arrived in Miami today and asked for political asylum. The dictator escaped from Havana after cadets from the military school took over the government. We have a special report from Miami — no, delay that, we're going back to Brent Studebaker at the Regent Hotel. How does the situation look now?"

"Grady, it's quite calm here for the moment. Thousands of people have gathered in front of the hotel to get a glimpse of anyone from the Jackson family. Here is a T-shirt I just bought from a vendor and a Michael Jackson button."

"Thanks, Brent. Now this just in from Capital Hill. A crazed gunman has taken over the floor of the U.S. Senate and is holding all 100 senators hostage until they meet his demands that they pass a bill outlawing seat belts on commercial airplanes. If we have time we'll try to get more information on the story. In the meantime, let's go back to Brent Studebaker who informs us that Michael Jackson is eating dinner."

"Grady, I've been in touch with room service, and Jackson ordered a grilled cheese sandwich, a glass of milk and apple pie a la mode. He gave the waiter a $5 tip."

"Did he sign the check himself, Brent?"

"We're trying to find that out now."

"And knowing you, Brent, I'm sure you will. Now this from the United Nations in New York. Taft Huebner is standing live with Andrei Gromyko who has just announced the Soviets will come back to the Geneva arms talks under certain conditions. Come in, Taft."

"Mr. Gromyko, what exactly do you expect to tell the president when you see him?"

"I plan to tell him that..."

"Taft, Mr. Gromyko, forgive me for interrupting, but we have just received word that Michael Jackson is now leaving the hotel to go to RFK Stadium. We'll try to get back to you if we can...Brent, is it true Michael is about to depart?"

"Here he comes now. Michael Jackson is in the second limousine exiting from the garage and should be at the stadium in 15 minutes."

"I can't see too well here, but did Jackson actually wave to the crowd?"

"Yes, Grady. He waved with his sequined glove. I think our camera crew was the only who had it."

"Thanks, Brent, once again you've done a fantastic job. We'd like to advise our listeners that President Reagan's press conference, in which he plans to announce a shaking up of his Cabinet, will not be seen tonight so we can bring you Michael Jackson's arrival live from RFK Stadium."

More TV Ads Upcoming

WASHINGTON — A secret meeting of Republican strategists last week committed a half-million dollars for television commercials against targeted Southern Democratic congressmen, but President Reagan's agents held back use of his name.

Thanks to Reagan's projected landslide in the South, Republicans campaign planners now see the possibility of winning previously unattainable House seats. The first $250,000 in TV spots will attack Walter Mondale, with special emphasis on his tax-increase plan. However, key Southern Republican politicians argue that to omit Reagan's name from these commercials is failing to play the party's trump card in Dixie.

The second $250,000 worth of TV spots, scheduled for after Oct. 15, might include a presidential appeal if Reagan's lead against Mondale still holds. But that is not certain. The president's men are still reluctant to risk his prestige in an appeal for House seats.

In the face of reluctance by any Cabinet member to voluntarily step aside in a second Reagan term, White House and campaign operatives are quietly pushing for at least one removal: John Block to go as secretary of agriculture.

Block, a millionaire Illinois farmer, is privately blamed as a negative for President Reagan in seeking the rural vote. Some of his decisions have been publicly criticized by Ed Rollins, the Reagan-Bush campaign manager.

However, Block has proved a resilient political fighter since coming to Washington in 1981 and is not likely to go quietly. He is considered a possible future candidate for statewide office in Illinois.

The possible drag by Walter F. Mondale's presidential campaign on statewide Democratic candidates in the South has reached the point where in Arkansas party leaders say it could endanger Sen. David Pryor's once secure seat.

An aggressive campaign waged for months by the Republican challenger, Rep. Ed Bethune, has cut in half Pryor's previous lead of more than 30 percentage points. That is still a fairly comfortable margin, unless President Reagan shows coattails in his projected Arkansas landslide.

Democratic Gov. Bill Clinton, not seriously challenged in his third-term bid, has privately expressed concern about the effects of the Mondale drag on Pryor. He and other leading Arkansas Democrats would be content if Mondale keeps away from their state for the rest of the campaign.

A deal Sen. Jesse Helms had worked out with the White House was sandbagged by State Department functionaries who refused to accept two minor amendments when the anti-genocide treaty, a long-pending international agreement against mass slaughter of populations, first came before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Helms's deal with presidential aides should have smoothed the way for quick committee approval of the two minor amendments. But nobody told the State Department, which immediately objected to Sen. Charles H. Percy, the committee chairman and no friend of Helms.

That explains Helms's embarrassing public confusion at the first committee session on the treaty. The last thing wanted by Helms, fighting a tough re-election campaign in North Carolina, was the appearance of opposition to President Reagan (who had personally called for Senate ratification of the of the long-pending treaty).

Strength For Today

Ben Jonson, the playwright-poet who was a friend of Shakespeare, once wrote:

"It is not growing like a tree

In bulk, doth make men better be."

Size alone is not important — size of reputation, size of bank account, or size of anything else. Quantity is not quality. The bulk of the good work in the world is done by the thousands and thousands of relatively unknown but productive people without whose effort and power the wheels would soon cease to turn.

Many people become embittered at seeing the fame and fortune of others while they themselves go comparatively unrewarded. In their bitterness at missing bigness they sometimes forget that they can still achieve goodness. In the long run it is quality, not quantity, that counts. Happiness and peace of mind make better companions than fame and fortune.

"THE LATEST THEORY IS THAT THEY WERE ACTUALLY AN EARLY ATTEMPT TO BUILD A SECURE MIDEAST EMBASSY..."

Reagan

DETROIT (AP) — President Reagan, returning to the campaign trail after a week devoted almost entirely to foreign affairs, urged new U.S. citizens at a swearing-in ceremony today to enrich America with their culture but not to forget their heritage.

In remarks prepared for a mass naturalization proceeding for 1,548 new citizens from 82 countries, Reagan said: "You have joined a country that has been called the least exclusive club in the world with the highest dues."

Freedom, he said, "has a cost. But I don't suppose anyone would know the cost of freedom better than you."

"Our diversity is not only ethnic," Reagan told the group, which ranged in age from 2 to 93. "You will find, if you haven't already, that this country is full of different — and sometimes conflicting — ideas and philosophies."

"Walk by a newspaper stand, and you'll see scores of magazines and newspapers arguing this point and that. Listen to television and radio, and you'll hear more than enough opinions with which to agree and disagree."

"In fact, if you don't, over the next few years, wind up at least once taking off your shoe and throwing it at a television screen, then you will have missed out on one of the great Modern American Moments."

After the naturalization ceremony, Reagan was to address the city's business and financial leaders at a luncheon of the Economic Club. He was also visiting Mississippi and Texas on his three-day trip.

The campaign schedule includes an outdoor rally in Gulfport, Miss., and a three-city swing through Texas, ending in Houston, where Reagan and Vice President George Bush meet for a major Republican fund-raising dinner Tuesday night in Bush's adopted hometown.

An Associated Press survey shows Reagan leading in all three states, although Democratic nominee Walter F. Mondale is mounting determined challenges in Michigan and Texas, which many strategists say he must carry to have a chance at electoral victory.

The president returns to Washington on Wednesday to begin preparing for his first debate with Mondale. The nationally televised confrontation is scheduled for 9 p.m. EDT Sunday in Louisville, Ky.

Mondale

WASHINGTON (AP) — Walter F. Mondale, well behind in the polls midway through the general election campaign, is describing President Reagan's meeting with a Soviet official as an "apparent failure" and depicting it, along with the latest bombing in Lebanon, as evidence of inadequate leadership.

The two events "have really in a profound way exposed to the nation what I've been trying to say in the past," Mondale said Sunday.

"We have a president who's not really in charge. He's not mastering the details. He's not leading on the central questions," the Democratic presidential candidate said of the president's meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and the fatal terrorist bombing of the U.S. Embassy annex in Beirut.

Mondale's only public campaigning Sunday came in his weekly radio broadcast, although he took questions from reporters afterward.

He was making a quick trip to New Jersey today and one to Arkansas on Tuesday, the beginning of a week that aides have structured to give him plenty of time to prepare for next Sunday's televised debate with Reagan in Louisville, Ky.

Mondale linked the Reagan-Gromyko meeting and the bombing in Lebanon as he delivered his paid, weekly radio speech and answered questions.

Mondale said the Reagan-Gromyko meeting was an "apparent failure in arms control," and demanded that Reagan provide the public with an account of what happened.

"I believe the president has a duty to hold his own news conference, to tell the American people what to make of this," he said.

Mondale renewed his own suggestion for a temporary moratorium on development of space weapons, and for re-proposing an informal agreement that negotiators worked out on medium range weapons that the United States and Soviet governments both rejected.

As for Lebanon, Mondale accused Reagan of an "inexcusable attempt to duck responsibility" for the bombing that killed two Americans.

Bush

WASHINGTON (AP) — While saying he believes President Reagan is willing to take responsibility for American deaths in Beirut, Vice President George Bush argues that fair-minded people believe everyone should be "a little careful about assessing blame."

The vice president also leveled new charges against Democratic challengers Walter Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro, accusing them of acting as if it is "immoral" and "selfish" for Americans to want to buy a new home or a new car or protect their paychecks against higher taxes.

Bush was heading to Athens, Ga., today to deliver what aides said was a non-political address at a celebration of the 200th anniversary of the University of Georgia.

At a news conference Sunday, Bush said, "I think fair-minded people recognize that when you're dealing with abject, international terror, it's impossible to guard against all possibilities."

Bush derided Mondale and Ms. Ferraro as "doomsayers" who are "going around desperately looking for something to feel bad about."

"The opposition talks about as if it were immoral to want to take care of your own family, loved ones, and work toward the good life and maybe buy a new car or get a mortgage on a house or save up for your children's education," Bush said.

"We've got news for them; that is the American dream. There's nothing wrong about it at all. Freedom, opportunity, family faith, fair play — that's what America is all about," Bush said.

"And if they don't understand it, it's too darn bad," he said.

Ferraro

NEW YORK (AP) — Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine A. Ferraro is heading back to the South today for another extended campaign foray after a stop in the industrial heartland.

The New York congresswoman starts her four-day, six-state campaign trip with a morning rally in Akron, Ohio, an important Midwestern state where President Reagan is regarded as leading Ms. Ferraro and the Democratic presidential candidate Walter F. Mondale.

Then Ms. Ferraro will fly to North Carolina, where Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt will join her for a two-city swing, the first time he has campaigned with a member of his party's national ticket this year.

Hunt, who is locked in a fierce and expensive fight with Sen. Jesse Helms for the GOP incumbent's seat, did not appear with Mondale when he made a campaign swing through the state in August.

But campaign officials said the two-term governor will be with Ms. Ferraro at her stops in Greensboro and Raleigh late today.

Early Tuesday, Ms. Ferraro returns to the Midwest with a visit to an automobile plant near Rockford, Ill.

Then she goes on to Nashville, Tenn., for a speech and what organizers say will be a big reception with women's leaders and a party fundraiser. It will be her second trip to Nashville in the campaign, coming a month after a trip there in late August.

On Wednesday, Ms. Ferraro travels to Atlanta for a speech and then attends a rally in Memphis. That journey South winds up back in the Midwest with an event in Dayton, Ohio.

Thursday wraps up her trip with a campaign swing through Pennsylvania.

Four Beatified

VATICAN CITY (AP) — In a rain-soaked ceremony at St. Peter's Square, Pope John Paul II beatified four people, including a Belgian cook for a religious order, a Spanish mother of seven children, and a chaplain to Italy's royal family.

Beatification is a step before a person is canonized, or raised to sainthood. After beatification, he or she bears the title of "Blessed."

Two of those beatified were 19th century Italian priests, Federico Albert and Clemente Marchisio. Albert, ordained in 1843, was named a chaplain to Italy's royal family of Savoy but also worked for the poor in the northern city of Turin.

Also beatified was Isidoro de Loor, a Belgian friar who worked as cook for the Passionist religious order before dying of cancer in 1916.

The fourth person was Rafaela Ybarra de Vilallonga, who was born into a wealthy Spanish family in 1843. She married and had seven children, and also devoted herself to religious works.

Wasps Attack, Kill 7-Year-Old Boy

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Wasps attacked and killed a 7-year-old boy and severely stung his pet collie after the two apparently disturbed the insects' underground nest.

Mike Markham and his dog were "literally covered with hundreds of yellow jackets" when they were found Friday afternoon, said Barbara Williams, a neighbor who rushed to the boy's aid.

The child apparently could not escape because the dog's leash was tangled around him and a tree, The Orlando Sentinel reported.

"They covered his body like a rain jacket. They were in his mouth, in his eyes and ears," said Chris Smith, 19, a neighbor who also helped the boy.

The boy was taken to Orlando Regional Medical Center, where he died at 2:05 a.m. Saturday, a hospital spokeswoman said. The hospital released no other details.

It was not known how many times the boy was stung or whether he was allergic to the wasp venom.

The boy had taken his dog for a walk when they were attacked in a lot that adjoins an open field, neighbors said.

Ms. Williams, 38, ran to help the boy when she heard a woman scream.

Auto Talks Continue

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — The United Auto Workers union, having reached a tentative labor contract with General Motors Corp., today settled down to try to hammer out a contract with Ford Motor Co.

The union says it'll put the same agreement reached with GM on the table today when talks with Ford resume in this Detroit suburb today. Ford says it wants a contract that fits its needs, not those of bigger and richer GM.

Talks at Ford were suspended after Labor Day, when the union singled out GM as a strike target and bargained there.

Contracts with both automakers expired Sept. 14; GM and the union reached a tentative agreement Sept. 21 after six days of spot local strikes.

The GM accord includes pay raises and up to $1 billion in worker-aid programs that Ford may decide are too expensive.

UAW officials said the GM pact would increase the pay of the average employee $8,730 over three years if inflation runs at 5 percent, with $3,000 more possible under the company's profit-sharing plan.

But the number one automaker, because of its size, is less susceptible than Ford to competition from Chrysler Corp. and foreign carmakers.

Congress Flounders In Final Sessions

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most of the government was technically out of money today while the Senate searched for a way out of a procedural quagmire that is holding up legislation to make federal departments and agencies solvent again.

This was to have been the final week of the 98th Congress, but the dispute which began last week over a civil rights measure has placed the adjournment target in doubt.

Government offices were to open as usual this morning — the start of a new fiscal year — although the bill needed to provide most government agencies with about $476 billion is stuck in the Senate. Only four of 13 necessary appropriations for fiscal 1985 have been signed into law.

To avert a shutdown of government offices, the Senate took time out from its snarl on Saturday to pass by voice vote a simple two-day extension of the deadline. The House was expected to go along today.

The White House Office of Management and Budget previously told government officials that all employees should report for work as scheduled today.

While the stopgap measure keeping the money flowing until midnight Tuesday buys some time to avert a disruption of government operations, it does nothing to untangle the mess in the Senate.

Before Senate activity came to a complete halt during an unusual Saturday session, Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., pleaded with his colleagues, saying the continued wrangling threatened to make the Senate "a body who legislates by trial and by physical endurance, and we will be here until Christmas, as far as I am concerned, until we do what we have to do."

Baker then scolded his colleagues. "If we have not the guts enough every now and then to do some things that are unpleasant and politically dangerous in order to keep this government running, we have forfeited our fundamental responsibility as members of the Senate."

But the logjam remained unbroken.

Supporters of a House-passed civil rights measure aimed at negating a Supreme Court ruling that limited the application of federal anti-discrimination laws have won two significant victories.

They first won a vote over whether the so-called Civil Rights Act of 1964 could be considered as an amendment to the money bill. And then the Senate voted 92-4 Saturday to curtail debate on the issue.

In a ruling last Feb. 28, the high court said a law banning sex discrimination at colleges and other institutions receiving federal aid applied only to the program involved and not to the entire institution. The legislation would, in effect, reverse that decision.

But conservatives opposing the measure say it would go far beyond restoring federal laws to their status before the ruling.

Led by Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, the conservatives continued to block passage of the measure by trying to attach their own amendments on such politically volatile subjects such as court-ordered school busing and gun control.

Hatch has made no apologies for his position, saying, "I've got no choice, I've got to fight this. It's a matter of principle."

The supporters are just as stubbornly insisting that the civil rights measure must be passed before Congress adjourns this year.

Appearing on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press" Sunday, two members of Congress who are considered potential 1988 presidential candidates said President Reagan should be working to get the civil rights measure enacted.

"I think the president should be leading the effort," said Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y.

'Tis Silly Season For Nation's Lawmakers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Barber B. Conable Jr. calls the congressional rush to adjourn the "silly season." Sen. Malcolm Wallop has a harsher term for his colleagues and their late-in-the-session antics.

Congress' annual session-end rush, which was resuming today with an unlikely windup date of week's end, has become familiar, complete with at least one crisis that threatens to leave the government technically broke.

Conable, a New York Republican retiring after 20 years in the House, has noted the phenomenon for his constituents.

Every week, Conable sends newspapers in his district a "Washington Report" he writes himself. This week he looked at the "silly season," a time he said when "the landscape is littered with twisted arms and broken hopes."

"Every legislature in the world goes through a silly season as it approaches adjournment, cleaning up the calendar of cats and dogs and controversy in a rush of hectic activity which compresses great peril to the nation into the smallest possible time frame," Conable wrote.

"Legislative demonstrations abound, as an appeal to this or that special interest passes one house with full understanding that it will not pass the other."

The House last week passed a money bill laden with election-year goodies such as public works projects. The Senate, trying to pass its version of the emergency measure, is mired in a fight over civil rights legislation that supporters want to tack onto the money bill.

"Late hours, polarization as a result of the pending election and the abandonment of normal procedures to speed up the process all combine to make it a time of frazzled nerves and collective recrimination," Conable wrote.

The prospect that Congress may not meet its target of adjourning by Oct. 5 has shortened tempers among the legislators.

On Saturday, as the Senate met but made no progress on the money bill, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., told his colleagues, "I think the Senate is beginning to look like a bunch of jackasses."

Wallop, R-Wyo., sarcastically corrected him saying, "Why are you saying we're beginning to look like a bunch of jackasses? We're already there."

"I wear glasses," Goldwater replied.

Conable reassured his constituents saying, "Fortunately, the two houses of the bicameral system and a president with the veto power save us from most of the mistakes which otherwise would remain as monuments to this madness."

But, he added, that "must" legislation will be subject to "silly season amendment."

"Let's all hope the outrages affect only the participants, ultimately, and not the people they represent," Conable said.

Shipyard Holds Ship

BOSTON (AP) — A civilian shipyard, disputing the Navy's claims that work under an $8.5 million repair contract has been unsatisfactory, has blocked a warship the Navy obtained a court order to remove.

The Boston Shipyard Corp. placed cranes in front of and behind the anti-submarine frigate USS Conolly on Saturday after the Navy said it was canceling the contract and moving the ship to another yard.

The Navy won a federal court order Saturday for the frigate's removal, but the cranes remained in place Sunday, said Cmdr. Dan Davidson, a Navy spokesman.

"It will not be practical or possible now to move the ship until at least Monday," Davidson said. "The shipyard has not yet removed their impediments to the removal of the ship from their yard."

An employee at Boston Shipyard's executive offices who refused to give her name declined comment Sunday. But a statement handed out at the shipyard reiterated its claim the yard would close if the Conolly were removed.

"The Navy has the right to terminate a contract after due deliberation of the facts. Conversely, we have the right to dispute any allegations during the deliberation process," the statement said.

"There was nothing of substance noted by the Navy which would normally precipitate such a drastic action," shipyard President William Kenney said in the statement.

The Navy gave notice Sept. 21 it was dissatisfied with the yard's overhaul work, which began Sept. 10.

Guests Flee Hotel Fire

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A downtown hotel fire that forced the evacuation of more than 400 guests, including people who screamed for help from their balconies, caused extensive damage to the top two floors, authorities said.

Investigators today were trying to determine the cause of the five-alarm blaze that broke out just after 9:30 p.m. Sunday, apparently in an 11th floor maid's closet at the 12-story Hilton Hotel, Deputy Fire Chief Don Peacock said.

Guests on the top floor were forced to their balconies, and some shouted "Help us, please help us."

Those guests, their faces covered with wet towels, were escorted down an interior fire escape at the 435-room hotel, said Fort Worth Fire Department spokesman Jim Noah.

One man was treated at the scene for smoke inhalation, Peacock said.

"We were lucky to get him out of there," he said. "He was asleep and had had a whole lot to drink."

Guests were allowed back in the hotel soon after firefighters extinguished the blaze shortly before 11 p.m., Noah said.

New Cars Cater To 'Baby-Boom Rich'

By EDWARD MILLER
AP Auto Writer

DETROIT (AP) — The new American cars arriving in showrooms this fall embody the latest sales strategy from Detroit: Catering to the affluent baby boomers and the European-style cars they like to drive.

For 1985, Chrysler Corp. and General Motors Corp. are going after the Yuppies with American-made sedans that are faster, lighter and stiffer-handling — in short, more European — than the U.S. cars aimed at upwardly mobile people a decade ago.

The Chrysler entry is the LeBaron GTS and a twin model, the Dodge Lancer.

GM's Pontiac division will bring back an old nameplate, Grand Am, for its sporty sedan. Two other GM divisions will have a version of that car — Buick's will be called the Somerset Regal; Oldsmobile's will be the Calais.

In the same category, Ford Motor Co. is importing the Merkur XR4Ti from its West German subsidiary.

The marketing divisions in Detroit are counting on a surge in sales from people who want two-door coupes that handle like sports cars with the luxury of a touring sedan — and are willing to pay the price.

European manufacturers such as BMW and Mercedes-Benz have been shipping such cars like that to North America for years.

But the American strategists say they don't have to compete head-to-head with the imports. They say the potential market is big enough to give the Americans a foothold while allowing the imports to keep their niches.

Pontiac, for instance, estimates that the buyers in the young, upscale category — from two-income, white-collar households — will make up 42 percent of the adult population by 1990.

Ford's Merkur strategy is to catch many of those buyers while they're too impatient to continue driving boring subcompact cars but not yet affluent enough to get behind the wheel of a Mercedes.

Most Merkurs, therefore, are expected to sell well below the $20,000 starting prices of Europe's best sedans. Chrysler says its basic LeBaron GTS will sell in the $9,000 range. The Buick Somerset and Olds Calais will start at around $9,000.

Another new, U.S.-made car is the Volkswagen Golf, which will replace the slow-selling Rabbit at VW's domestic assembly plant outside New Stanton, Pa.

The Golf, which has been made by VW in Europe, has a shape similar to other subcompact hatchbacks, including the Rabbit, but VW says it's a wholly different kind of car.

Also, GM and Ford, playing catch-up to Chrysler, will introduce minivans this year. Unlike Chrysler's, these will be rear-wheel drive and will have bigger engines. While able to carry larger loads, they will be more difficult to fit into a garage and will have more in common with big vans than do Chrysler's models.

Here is a look at some of the new products for 1985:

AMERICAN MOTORS

New for 1985 is a two-door convertible version of the Renault Alliance, the French-designed car that is built at AMC's works in Kenosha, Wis.

The Alliance — and its hatchback derivative called the Encore — also will get a more powerful engine, and the company will upgrade its line of Jeeps.

CHRYSLER

The K-cars — Dodge Aries and Plymouth Reliant compacts — will get a facelift. While retaining much of the original sheet metal, the cars will have new grilles and a rounded look at both ends.

The hot-selling Dodge Caravan-Plymouth Voyager minivans will be virtually unchanged.

A new nameplate in the Plymouth line will be Caravelle, a twin to the front-wheel drive Dodge 600 midsize car.

FORD

The Mustang Turbo GT has been discontinued for 1985 as has the basic Mustang, called the L. The emphasis in 1985 will be on performance, thus Ford expects brisk sales of the 5.0-liter Mustang and the turbocharged SVO version of the car.

GENERAL MOTORS

GM is importing a small car, to be called the Chevrolet Spectrum, from its Japanese partner, Isuzu Motors Ltd. It will be called the Chevrolet Spectrum.

GM also plans to introduce early next year the car to be built in Fremont, Calif., under the corporation's joint venture with Toyota Motor Corp. of Japan. It may be called the Nova, a Chevy nameplate from the 1960s and 1970s.

New Type Mortgage Introduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new type of mortgage, designed to have the combined advantages of fixed monthly payments and adjustable interest rates, is being introduced by the Federal National Mortgage Association.

Robert J. Mylod, president and chief operating officer of the mortgage association, known as Fannie Mae, said indications are "lenders expect this mortgage to be popular with consumers."

He said more than 200 lenders nationwide have already made commitments for the new loans.

Fannie Mae Chairman David O. Maxwell told a recent mortgage marketing group in Raleigh, N.C. that, starting Wednesday, the association would institute changes to make the new loan package more attractive to lenders.

Fannie Mae purchases mortgages from lenders, giving them new money to lend. As the biggest single buyer of mortgages, the association can affect the types of mortgage terms offered by banks, savings and loans and mortgage companies by specifying the terms of loans it is willing to buy.

Interest rates on the new "fixed-payment, adjustable-rate" mortgage are keyed to the one-year Treasury securities index, which has been running 2 to 2½ percent lower than rates on fixed-rate 30-year loans.

Lenders usually offer lower rates on any adjustable rate mortgage because the risk of changes in interest rates is shared by lender and borrower. Many lenders are still stuck holding fixed-rate loans that were entered into during the days of single-digit interest rates.

However, borrowers and their representatives in Congress have been critical of some adjustable rate mortgages that have had frequent rate shifts, leaving home buyers unsure what their monthly payments will be.

As interest rates have stayed high or increased, most of the adjustments have been upwards, especially on loans that started out with artificially low "teaser rates," some as low as 5 percent. Some borrowers have seen their monthly payments double.

"Consumers are concerned about the high mortgage interest rates and fluctuating monthly payments of many loans being offered today," Mylod said. "The fixed-payment ARM is a very positive response to those concerns."

With the new home loan, payments change only every five years, even though the interest rate could change once a year.

At the end of the first five years, the borrower may negotiate a fixed-rate mortgage for the remaining 25 years or a new five-year contract at a new interest rate and payment schedule.

The new payment would be based on the average of the previous four years' rates and the current market rate on one-year ARMs.

Here is an example given by Mylod: "If a homebuyer borrowed $60,000 at a 12.75 percent interest rate, the monthly payment on a fixed-payment ARM would be $652. That monthly payment would remain $652 for the first five years, whether or not interest rates in general rose through the period."

If the interest rate adjusts upward during the five-year period, then the monthly payment will not be enough to cover principal and interest. A ything left unpaid each month would be added to the outstanding balance.

Black Lawmakers Rap USDA Record On Civil Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department, which thought it was used to shocks during the long current downturn in the farm economy, is now under increasing fire on a new front: civil rights.

Black lawmakers and leaders, in Washington this weekend for a major legislative conference, took aim at the department for allegedly ignoring equal opportunity laws in its own bureaucracy and discriminating against black farmers who apply for federal loans.

At the core of the complaint is the decline in the number of black farmers. That number, tapering downward since it peaked in about 1910, dropped sharply during the last decade. Now there are about 57,000 black-operated farms out of 2.4 million farms nationwide.

"At the present rate of farmland loss by blacks, there will be no farmland owned by this minority within as few as 10 years," said Joseph Brooks, president of the Atlanta-based Emergency Land Fund, a black farm aid group.

Brooks and others said largely to blame is the Farmers Home Administration, the farm lender of last resort, whose loans to blacks have dwindled at the same time need for them has risen.

"Local FmHA administrators still operate in an 'old boy network' that is essentially closed to blacks in the South, where most black farms are located, said Rep. Edolphus Towns, D-N.Y., who is originally from North Carolina.

The department's Office of Equal Opportunity, which is responsible for overseeing enforcement of civil rights laws in employment and benefit programs, has had seven directors since President Reagan took office 3½ years ago, said Rep. John Conyers Jr., D-Mich.

He said the department has "clearly failed to meet its responsibility to enforce our civil rights laws" both in personnel practices and in offering financial assistance to farmers.

The criticism has clearly political overtones — the Rev. Jesse Jackson, who has been campaigning for Democratic presidential challenger Walter Mondale, took up the issue last week. But the department's own inspector general has found merit in the charges.

"Our preliminary findings are that management problems exist in the Office of Equal Opportunity and we recommend prompt remedial attention," Inspector General John V. Graziano wrote in an August report to John J. Franke, assistant secretary for administration.

Graziano found the office had been lax in submitting required annual reports to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and had failed to establish any policy for investigating complaints of discrimination in administering program benefits — such as the farmers' complaints that they can't get FmHA loans. He also noted low employee morale in the office.

Responding to the report Alma R. Esparza, director of the office, called the charges "false and personally motivated" and cited what she said was an enforcement plan already published that covers most of the complaints.

But another department source familiar with the issue, who spoke only on condition he not be identified, said yet another review of the office had found a serious lack of leadership.

Among specific problems cited by Brooks and the other black farm leaders last week were that FmHA operating loans to blacks have fallen from 8 percent of the total in 1980 to 5 percent last year, and ownership loans have declined from 3 percent to 1 percent in the same period. Loans to blacks, who tend to have smaller farms, were less than the average loan size.

Soviet-U.S. Talks 'Sober, Intense'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz says charges are now "reasonably good" that the United States and Moscow can establish constructive negotiations aimed at improving superpower relations.

But Shultz said Sunday it would be incorrect to say that the talks between President Reagan and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko last week were very positive.

"Not very positive — sober and intense," Shultz said in an appearance on ABC-TV's "This Week with David Brinkley."

Meanwhile, Robert C. McFarlane, the president's national security adviser, said it would probably take a couple of months for the Soviets to respond to Reagan's proposals for regular high-level contacts focusing on arms control and other issues.

"The Soviet process is a very deliberate one, and they've had a lot to chew on after this week, so it will take some time," McFarlane said on CBS' "Face the Nation."

Shultz said that in the nearly nine hours of talks with Gromyko — 3½ hours with Reagan and the rest with Shultz — "practically all subjects of concern" between the two nations were discussed.

As a result, he said, "the chances of a more constructive dialogue with the Soviet Union ... are reasonably good."

He said the two sides agreed "to keep in touch, carefully and systematically" through diplomatic channels.

Shultz said there will be follow-up consultations at the ambassadorial level in Washington and Moscow to decide plans for specific meetings on specific issues.

But Walter F. Mondale, the Democratic presidential hopeful, told reporters Sunday that the Reagan-Gromyko session was an "apparent failure in arms control," and "both disappointing and a basis for apprehension" because it raised doubts about "which Reagan will we see" if he wins a second term.

"Will we see the Reagan who for four years has engineered an arms race ... or will we see a Reagan who as he has in the past week, talks about peace?" he said.

Mondale, who met with Gromyko in New York on Thursday, said afterward he thought there was an opportunity for Reagan to make progress toward breaking the impasse over arms control talks.

However, after Gromyko's meetings with Reagan and Shultz, administration officials could only say they hoped the talks would break the impasse, but couldn't be sure.

On another subject, Shultz described as "nonsense ... a fairy story" a published report that the White House kept the Gromyko visit secret from the Department of Defense until virtually the last minute because of concern the Pentagon might try to prevent it.

Shultz acknowledged that in the early stages of the planning "the president kept it to himself and a few other people," but said "the Department of Defense was completely involved in the preparations."

David L. Aaron, a foreign policy adviser to Mondale said on ABC-TV he didn't think anything tangible had been accomplished in the meetings with Gromyko, otherwise the White House already would have disclosed it.

"If there was something good that came out of this meeting, I don't think they would be keeping it a secret," he said.

But Shultz said the president's objective was to demonstrate to Moscow that the United States is "a strong vibrant" country ready to engage "in serious discussions." He said the president "managed to get his message across."

Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said on CBS-TV that he believes the stage has been set for serious negotiations with the Soviets late this year or sometime next year.

"For them to turn their machinery around is usually a rather laborious process," said Kissinger, a prime architect of detente with the Soviet Union during the Nixon administration.

Gunbattle

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The military says 11 communist guerrillas and five government troops, including a constabulary company commander, were killed in a 30-minute gunbattle in the southern Philippines.

Brig. Gen. Conrado Tan-Gatue said the battle broke out after about 100 New People's Army guerrillas ambushed a convoy of constabulary soldiers in Surigao del Sur province, 510 miles southeast of Manila.

Shultz Assumes 'Responsibility'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz, responding with unusual emotion to questions on the U.S. Embassy bombing in Beirut, says he will find out if negligence was involved "but we're not in this investigation business to knock somebody's head off."

"There is somehow this notion that somebody's head has to roll," the usually relaxed Shultz told interviewers Sunday on ABC-TV's "This Week with David Brinkley."

"Well, maybe so," Shultz said. "And I'm willing to have it be my head anytime anyone wants ... I certainly feel responsible. Absolutely. And I take that responsibility very seriously."

The secretary's heated response came in reply to a question on whether lax security was involved in the Sept. 20 terrorist bombing of the embassy annex in which two U.S. servicemen and several other people died. It was the third major attack on Americans in Lebanon in 17 months.

"Just you listen to me now — I feel so strongly about this," Shultz said when interviewers tried to interrupt. "The people out there in Beirut are serving our country in a risky environment ... and they are doing everything possible to improve their security and it's up to us to help them."

"There is an investigation ..." he said. "If there was negligence, we'll find it. But we're not in this investigation business to see if we can knock somebody's head off. Our purpose is to find out what additional we can do to enhance the security of our embassies."

Shultz described U.S. Ambassador Reginald Bartholomew as "a hero." He said the envoy had "come close to getting killed three times."

"Let's be clear about the responsibility," Shultz said. "The responsibility is with people who through the use of terrorism are trying to have an impact on U.S. policies.

Democratic presidential candidate Walter F. Mondale has accused the Reagan administration of failing to beef up security at the embassy before the bombing.

Mondale said in a Sunday radio broadcast that the bombing involved "not a failure of American intelligence."

"There was a failure to use it wisely," Mondale said.

China Marks 35th Year Under Communism

PEKING (AP) — In a spectacle of patriotism and military might, Communist China celebrated its 35th anniversary today with a colossal pageant capped by Deng Xiaoping's first public speech as top leader of the country.

"Today all our people are full of joy and pride," Deng declared from the rostrum of Peking's Tiananmen Gate, where Mao Tse-tung proclaimed the founding of the People's Republic in 1949.

In his first public address since 1978, when he rose to power at a meeting of the Communist Party Central Committee, the 80-year-old Deng boasted to a half million onlookers of China's "new look" under his reforms.

That was the theme of a mammoth parade by tens of thousands marchers carrying pompons, giant signs and flags. They marched in step behind nuclear missiles, Olympic athletes, robots and 100 floats depicting such achievements as oil derricks and a massive coal pit.

A 500-member military band played the national anthem and 100 guns fired a 28-salvo salute to launch the military portion of the parade, China's first military review since 1959.

On the eve of the National Day celebrations, Prime Minister Zhao Ziyang declared that China is ready to start talks with Taiwan leading to peaceful reunification "acceptable to both sides."

Zhao made the overture at a state banquet, hailing the Sept. 26 agreement with Britain on resuming control over Hong Kong in 1997 as "a big step forward in our great cause of national reunification."

Deng, in his 12-minute speech today, continued on the Taiwan theme, saying reunification was one of China's top priorities.

Taiwan "is part of our sacred territory," he said. "Being an irresistible trend, the peaceful reunification of our motherland will sooner or later come true."

Deng also took an indirect swipe at Mao, saying "the perverse acts of the counter-revolutionary Gang of Four" have been thoroughly redressed — a reference to Mao's widow Jiang Qing and three other radical leftists held responsible for upheaval during Mao's 1966-76 Cultural Revolution.

Under a thick haze, 6,000 troops in smart new uniforms, 426 tanks and other war vehicles paraded through the balloon- and flower-filled Tiananmen Square.

Deng rode general-like in a black limousine convertible to review assembled troops before making his speech. "Comrades, how are you? You work very hard," he called out.

"How are you, chairman?" the soldiers replied in unison.

In a flourish of color and changing patterns, 100,000 youths in the square used floral wreaths to depict the Chinese flag, map and characters that read "Long live the motherland, long live the Communist Party."

Eighteen phalanxes of soldiers, seamen, airmen, paratroopers, militia, women's medics and people's armed police goose-stepped down the 100-yard wide Changan Avenue, past a the rostrum filled with China's rulers and guests, including Cambodian Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

The new military uniforms still bore no rank identification, a reform promised later for the People's Liberation Army, for which the parade was intended as a morale booster.

Twenty-four armored formations roared past, led by 32 jeeps carrying anti-tank missiles and 32 trucks with 30-tube and 40-tube rocket launchers.

Truck-towed howitzers, cannons and mine-laying vehicles preceded 72 armored personnel carriers and 108 tanks.

Short, fat, submarine-launched strategic missiles and cruise-type weapons were followed by 32 silvery anti-aircraft missiles. Then came nine medium, long and intercontinental-range ballistic missiles, including the red-and-white CSS-4 ICBM in three stages, capable of a nuclear strike deep inside the Soviet Union or anywhere in Asia.

The haze prevented spectators from a good look at the 94 bombers and jets that flew overhead.

All the military hardware was designed and manufactured in China, officials said.

As the civilian portion of the parade started, 10,000 "peace doves" soared above the 124-acre square.

DISPLAY OF POWER — Four abreast, Chinese-made 155mm self-propelled howitzers roll down Peking's Changan Avenue today opposite photos honoring two non-Chinese heroes — Lenin and Stalin. China gave the world a look at these guns, said to show design innovations inspired by

Israeli armor, and other weapons in a parade displaying its military strength. The parade was part of China's 35th anniversary celebration as a communist nation. (AP Laserphoto)

Italian Crackdown On Mafia Spreads To U.S. Mobsters

PALERMO, Sicily (AP) — A jailed crime boss has defied the Mafia's code of silence, enabling police to round up scores of suspected mobsters and putting U.S. authorities on the trail of others in one of the biggest breakthroughs against the Mafia in 20 years.

Police said Tommaso Buscetta violated the "omerta" — or code of silence — to avenge the killings of seven relatives by rival gangs in a battle for control of Palermo's multi-million drug trafficking network.

In Washington, Justice Department spokesman Thomas M. Stewart said Sunday that U.S. warrants had been issued in connection with the case, but he refused to say where they were issued, whom they sought or anything more.

Police officials in Italy, speaking on the condition they not be named, said law enforcement officers in several American cities had joined the search for suspects named by Buscetta.

Authorities said investigators hoped the U.S.-Italian operation could crack alleged connections between the Sicilian Mafia and the secret American crime society known as the Cosa Nostra.

Thousands of police officers throughout Italy were searching for mob figures named by Buscetta. Italian police said. Italian magistrates issued arrest warrants Friday for 366 suspects. Police said 58 arrests were made over the weekend and 160 other suspects listed by Buscetta already were in jail for crimes. The Italian news media said Buscetta's turning informant was the biggest break against the Mafia since Joseph Valachi, an organized crime figure in the United States, confessed to a U.S. Senate commission in 1963.

Among those tracked down after Buscetta's revelations was Giuseppe Greco, a notorious Mafia figure who was convicted "in absentia" for the 1983 murder of a judge involved in the fight against organized crime.

Buscetta, after being arrested in Rio de Janeiro for allegedly carrying a false passport, was extradited from Brazil to Italy on July 15. He tried to commit suicide after his arrest and was returned to Italy under heavy guard.

He is believed to be one of the most important links between South American cocaine traffickers and drug-selling gangs in the United States and Europe.

Authorities said Buscetta implicated people in drug trafficking rings and in the murders of 120 people, including local officials in Palermo, over the past 14 years.

Reports said Buscetta named crime figures allegedly behind the murder of Gen. Carlo Alberto Dalla Chiesa, Italy's top anti-Mafia official who was shot to death, along with his wife, in Palermo in 1982.

Buscetta also named additional mobsters allegedly involved in the 1983 car-bomb killing of Judge Rocco Chinnici, who came down hard on the Mafia, the reports said.

Jordan Opens First Parliament In 10 Years

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — King Hussein today opened Jordan's first regular Parliament session in 10 years with a call for Arab unity, but a Syrian leader was quoted as suggesting the king risked assassination for restoring diplomatic ties with Egypt.

Hussein's address to Parliament was his first major speech since Jordan announced last week that it was restoring diplomatic ties with Egypt after a five-year break. The king defended his decision and also lashed out at the United States for "procrastination and hesitancy" in its Middle East initiatives.

Regarding the reconciliation with Egypt, Hussein said Jordan was "hoping other Arab states will take similar steps and restore Arab-Arab ties to their purity and strength." He called for a summit meeting to reunify the Arab world.

Syria — which along with Libya is strongly opposed to the renewed Jordan-Egypt relationship — rejected the call for an emergency Arab summit, Syrian state radio reported today.

The radio also quoted Syrian Vice President Zohair Masharka as telling a rally in Damascus: "Jordanian leaders should expect their fate will not be different from that of the late Anwar Sadat."

Sadat, the Egyptian president who signed a 1979 peace treaty with Israel, was assassinated by Moslem extremists in Cairo in October 1981. The peace treaty he signed prompted 17 Arab governments to sever diplomatic ties with Egypt.

Corn producers constantly look for ways to reduce labor, fuel and nitrogen fertilizer costs. Cultural practices that reduce soil erosion and the threat of drought are also high priorities among growers. One corn production system promises to help in all of these areas.

Planting corn without primary tillage into a legume cover crop lowers labor and fuel requirements while providing 80-120 pounds per acre of nitrogen for the crop. Moreover, the presence of a legume mulch reduces hazards of erosion and appears to conserve sufficient moisture to increase yields in dry seasons. However, to realize the full benefits of using legumes as nitrogen sources for corn, certain guidelines must be followed.

Winter annual legumes are especially sensitive to soil acidity. A soil pH of 5.8 is the minimum for establishing uniform legume stands. Legume stand uniformity is essential for success of the corn crop to follow. Since the corn will be dependent upon the winter legume for most of its nitrogen, corn yields will decline in those areas where legume growth is inadequate.

An important factor in the establishment of uniform legume stands is the calendar date on which they are seeded. Since the winter annuals are subject to varying degrees of winter kill, it is important to plant them as early as soil moisture conditions are favorable — usually September in North Carolina. September-seeded legumes survive unseasonably cold winters better than those planted at later dates. Many commercial and research fields planted to winter annual legume in September of 1983 survived while those seeded at later dates were completely killed by the low temperatures encountered shortly after Christmas. The most uniform legume fields were those with the least amount of winter kill.

Another benefit derived from September planting dates is increased legume growth in the spring. The additional growth is important because top growth of the winter annuals generally determines the amount of nitrogen that will be available for use by corn. It is not wise to delay corn planting in April to allow further legume growth. Rather, it is preferable to stimulate legume growth with early seeding dates and good management of the cover crop.

There are a number of legumes that may serve as nitrogen sources for corn (vetchs, clovers, alfalfas, Austrian winter peas, pigeon peas, etc.). Four have been elevated in the Coastal Plain and Piedmont of North Carolina over the last four years. Hairy vetch, Cahaba White vetch, Tibbee clover (a variety of crimson), and Austrian winter peas have all exhibited some characteristics favoring their use as nitrogen sources.

Legumes intended for use as nitrogen sources for corn are generally evaluated in terms of their potential nitrogen production. Often overlooked is the increasing evidence that mulches and crop residues may be managed to conserve soil moisture and increase corn yields. The winter annual legumes produce thick mulches that appear to retain soil water that normally would be unavailable for use by the crop.

The bottom line is that legume cover crops are more economical to establish than rye or wheat when the value of their nitrogen contributions are considered. They offer many opportunities to the corn producer who is willing to manage the legume with the same care that he gives other crops.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined broadly today, extending last Friday's drop.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 6.18 to 1,200.53 in the first half hour.

Losers outnumbered gainers by almost 3 to 1 in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said rising interest rates in the bond market Friday and early today weighed down stock prices.

They also cited worries that the recent slowing of the economy might give way to a significant business slump.

The National Association of Purchasing Management, a trade group, reported over the weekend that its members' orders fell in September, for the first drop since December 1982.

Among actively traded blue chips, International Business Machines lost 7 1/2 to 123 1/2; General Motors 1/2 to 76 1/2; and General Electric 3/4 to 55 1/2.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 10.05 to 1,206.71, reducing its gain for the week to 4.97 points.

Declines outpaced advances by about 4 to 3 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 78.95 million shares, against 88.88 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index lost .42 to 95.77. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .60 at 215.45.

Legal History
LONDON (AP) — A Londoner made legal history today as the first English lawyer to advertise his professional services on radio.

Percy Richer bought advertising time on four British radio stations to tell listeners about the value of a good solicitor for checking out lengthy property leases.

The Law Society, which regulates lawyers' professional standards and conduct in England and Wales, decided to allow radio advertising as of today.

Court Backs Funeral Rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal regulation of the funeral industry withstood a Supreme Court challenge today as the justices left intact rules imposed on 22,000 funeral homes nationwide two years ago.

The rules, aimed at providing consumers with more information about funeral prices and halting unfair or deceptive practices, were challenged by seven funeral homes serving as industry representatives.

They said a Washington-based federal appeals court that upheld the rules ignored most of the 70,000-page public hearings transcript compiled by the Federal Trade Commission before the rules were imposed.

"In failing to review the rulemaking record, the court of appeals so far departed from the usual course of judicial procedure that it was unable to, and did not, perform the critical function" of guarding against agency abuses, the appeal said.

Before the FTC imposed the rules in 1982, funeral industry regulation traditionally was left to the states and local communities.

The commission's investigation of the industry began in 1972, and led to findings that a significant number of funeral homes were taking advantage of vulnerable consumers.

Today, the federal rules require that before funeral homes can discuss arrangements they must:

—Give consumers a written list containing prices of funeral goods and services on an itemized basis, although package deal prices also may be quoted.

—Offer price information to consumers who request it over the telephone.

—Generally obtain permission from a family member before embalming.

—Refrain from requiring use of a casket for cremation.

—Refrain from making specified misrepresentations.

—And include several short disclosures on the price list informing consumers of their legal rights and purchase options.

Funeral home lawyers said the basis for such broad regulation "is a collection of over 70 methodologically flawed surveys and the anecdotal testimony of various individual witnesses."

The complete and bound rulemaking record, according to government lawyers, contained about 70,000 pages — and weighed about 1,000 pounds.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here, which unanimously upheld the commission rules last Jan. 12, never called for the entire rulemaking record.

Court Rejects Papers' Bid To Open Jury Selections

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five North Carolina newspapers challenging secret jury selection in the trial of nine Klansmen and Nazis earlier this year lost a Supreme Court appeal today.

The court, without comment, left intact a ruling that the presiding judge acted correctly when he barred the public and press from the jury-selection portion of the January trial in Winston-Salem, N.C.

The appeal rejected today had argued that the closure violated free-press rights, and was aimed at limiting similar closures in the future.

U.S. District Judge Thomas Flannery presided over the trial of nine defendants charged with civil rights violations stemming from the Nov. 3, 1979 shooting deaths of five Communist Workers Party members during a "Death to the Klan" rally in Greensboro.

Five of the defendants had been acquitted in a 1980 state murder trial, and all nine were acquitted in the federal case.

At the trial's outset, Flannery on Jan. 9 ordered that jurors be chosen in secret — an order immediately challenged by eight newspapers. Their efforts to open the proceedings were dashed, however, when Chief Justice Warren E. Burger failed to act on their urgent request for help before jury selection was completed.

The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Jan. 19 upheld Flannery's order. Five newspapers in Greensboro, Winston-Salem and Charlotte, joined by the North Carolina Press Association, then sought Supreme Court review.

They contended that Flannery failed to follow guidelines established by a Supreme Court decision announced last Jan. 18.

In it, the justices ruled unanimously that news reporters and the public have a constitutional right to attend jury selection in criminal trials — and that their right can be infringed only as a last resort.

The decision, authored by Burger, also said that trial judges forced to close portions of the jury-selection proceedings most often should provide transcripts for public scrutiny within a reasonable time.

The federal trial ended April 15, but the newspapers did not have access to a full transcript of the seven-day jury selection when they filed the Supreme Court appeal June 4.

Florida Affirmative Action Plan Survives Challenges

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, in a victory for civil rights groups, today let stand a Miami area program that sets aside some county-run construction projects for businesses managed by blacks.

The court, without comment, rejected an appeal by a Florida contractors' association that said its members' constitutional rights were violated by the "affirmative action" program giving preferences to blacks.

In 1982, the Dade County Commission tried to promote the growth of black-run businesses by passing an ordinance allowing proposed building projects to be set aside for competitive bidding by black firms.

The ordinance also required that at least half of the value of those selected projects be awarded by the major contractor to black subcontractors.

The local law was in response to May 1980 racial disturbances in the predominantly black Liberty City section of Miami. Studies conducted after those disturbances concluded that race relations could be improved by enhancing business opportunities for blacks.

In October 1982, the county commission set aside a $6 million metro rail project, the Earlington Height station, for award to a black-owned

Woody Peele

One tries to look for the bright spots. And they were there.

East Carolina's offense looked good against N.C. State Saturday night in Carter-Finley Stadium. The Pirates showed that on the first series against the Wolfpack, driving right down the field.

Tony Baker made good yardage on the sweeps and Reggie Branch had an outstanding night crashing through the middle. Both made over 100 yards. And Darrell Speed looked good passing the ball, despite the fact that he completed less than 50 percent of his throws. Had those that had been on target been caught, he would have been above the 500 mark.

But, because Speed is in his first year as the quarterback, he made some mistakes, mistakes that proved fatal to the Pirates in their quest to beat the Wolfpack.

Four times, as Coach Ed Emory pointed out afterwards, the Pirates were taken out of field goal range by mistakes by the offense. Another mistake led to a State field goal.

The first fatal mistake was an interception thrown right into the hands of a Wolfpack player and that led to the first N.C. State field goal — three points.

Then, a bad pitch was fumbled out of bounds on third down and the Pirates had to punt when, with any kind of gain at all, they could have had a good shot at a field goal. Figure three points.

A delay penalty — called, oddly, after a 23-yard gain by Speed — cancelled that run and resulted in the Pirates again being taken out of field goal range. An official's decision on a pass the play before also cost the Pirates field position. Ricky

Nichols had caught a Speed pass in the air, and was immediately hit, knocking the ball loose, with Nichols appearing to recover. It was ruled incomplete. Figure at least three, maybe seven points there.

Again, a sack on Speed on third down well inside State territory cost the Pirates another chance of at least a field goal. Three more.

And finally, a fumble by Speed in another good field position turned it over, again within field goal range.

That's a net result of 15 points, three added to State's score and 12 or more that didn't get added to ECU's. Maybe it can be argued that Jeff Heath might not have made them all. That's true. But it still was a big difference in the game.

Not that the Pirate defense didn't contribute to the loss also. The defense continues to be unable to stop traffic with a red light. Tim Esposito was sacked a few times, but generally had plenty of time to throw, and usually his receivers were wide open. And the line opened up holes that you could literally have driven that proverbial truck through. Witness Vince Evans' 201 yards rushing and Joe Greene's 119.

Missed tackles in the backfield, batted passes that came down in the hands of other State players, the list could go on. Lady Luck seemed to be smiling on the Pack Saturday night.

At any rate, the Pirates are going to have to improve greatly if they are to have any shot at a winning season this fall. With four games already on the loss side, only two more defeats snap a two-year winning streak. With the schedule the Pirates have, there must be a much tougher defense and a more consistent offense if those two losses are to be avoided.

Mattingly Slips By Winfield

By The Associated Press
The best thing for him, Don Mattingly said, was that he batted ahead of Dave Winfield.

"I think Dave gets me a lot of good pitches," the New York Yankees' first baseman said of his superstar teammate in the outfield. "The whole year long I felt that hitting in the No. 3 spot was such a good spot with Dave behind me." Mattingly said.

It must have been doubly painful for Winfield, knowing his presence in the cleanup spot was getting better pitches for Mattingly and seeing Mattingly drilling four of those pitches for base hits Sunday to win the American League batting championship with a .343 average to Winfield's .340.

In the National League, San Diego outfielder Tony Gwynn, like Mattingly playing his first full big-league season, won the batting title with a major-league high .351.

By the end of the first inning, in which Mattingly punched a 1-1 pitch from rookie Randy O'Neal to left field for a clean single and Winfield grounded into a forceout at home, Winfield was behind Mattingly for good.

He wasn't anywhere to be found when Mattingly finally trudged into the clubhouse following the 9-2 victory over the playoff-bound Detroit Tigers. Those who had been in the locker room before the game ended said that when Winfield left the field, replaced by a pinch-runner in the eighth inning, he dressed and departed before the ninth even began, leaving behind a magnum of champagne compliments of the boss.

George Steinbrenner, the Yankees' owner, had also delivered one to Mattingly's locker. Mattingly, he acknowledged before the game, was his kind of player, a team player who would get angry when the Yanks lost even when he had done well personally — as opposed to Winfield, who had insisted on such occasions that he had done his part.

On Sunday, the fans, perhaps only two-thirds of the announced tickets-sold attendance of 30,602 at Yankee Stadium, were clearly rooting more for Mattingly. They cheered both players, but did it louder — and on their feet — for Mattingly, the player with the $125,000 salary compared to Winfield, the $1.5 million-a-year man.

Mattingly came into the game trailing Winfield .3410-.3395. After the first inning he led .3406-.3404. In the third inning he pulled a 1-0 pitch into the right field corner for a double and Winfield walked on a 3-1 pitch. Mattingly's lead now was .3417-.3404.

In the fourth, Mattingly pounced on O'Neal's first pitch and doubled to right once again, but Winfield kept things interesting by throwing the bat at a 1-2 offering, topping the ball to third and beating Howard Johnson's throw to first for a base hit. Mattingly's margin now was .3428-.3416.

In the fifth, Sid Monge finally cooled off Mattingly, who ended the inning with a fly ball to Chet Lemon in shallow left-center field. But in the sixth, Aurelio Lopez got Winfield on a bullet to Lemon. The margin now was .3422-.3409.

It would come down to the last at-bat. If Mattingly made out and Winfield got a hit, Winfield would win the race, .3421 to .3416.

"When somebody told me before my last at-bat that Dave could win it by two-thousandths of a point or something, I felt right then that nobody could be a loser. No way I could be a loser in this; no way Dave could be a loser.

"It's hard for someone to lose in this situation but I guess that's the American way. Someone has to win and someone has to lose. I never thought it would come down to the very last at-bat."

Willie Hernandez, the ace of the Detroit bullpen, was on the mound when Mattingly, leading off, strode to the plate, the cheers raining down upon him.

The first pitch was a strike. The crowd boomed.

The second pitch was a ball. The crowd boomed again.

The third pitch went bouncing out to the right of rookie second baseman Scotty Earl. On the second bounce it took a high hop, grazed the infielder's glove and headed toward right field.

On the field and in the stands, eyes turned to the press box. In the press box, eyes turned to Red Foley, the official scorer. He hesitated for only a few seconds before grabbing the press-box microphone and saying emphatically: "Base hit!"

Winfield's at bat was now moot. A hit would mean nothing but a better second-best average. He grounded to Johnson, whose throw to Earl forced Mattingly at second.

As he left the field, he paused at first and shook Winfield's hand. The cheers grew louder when Mattingly approached the dugout, waved his helmet to the crowd and celebrated with a few high-fives from his teammates.

Then, at a suggestion from a couple of them, Mattingly turned and headed back to first. He and Winfield exchanged embraces, one of congratulations, the other of condolence. They waved and left the field together.

"It's been a storybook year for me," said Mattingly, who began it winning the batting title in the Puerto Rican Winter League with a .368 average for Caguas.

It ostensibly became a two-man race on June 15 when Winfield was first at .340 and Mattingly second at .335.

Kent Hrbek of Minnesota made a couple of brief appearances in second place early the next month — but on July 16 it became a Winfield-Mattingly duel for good.

In the NL, there was never really a race. On June 11, San Diego's Tony Gwynn moved into the lead with a .361 average. He was never seriously challenged thereafter.

Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia finished as a co-winner in the NL in both runs batted in and home runs. The veteran third baseman hit his 36th homer of the season Sunday to tie Atlanta's Dale Murphy, while his one RBI tied him with Montreal's Gary Carter at 106.

Tony Armas of Boston led the AL in both home runs and RBI, with 43 and 123, respectively.

On the pitching side, a rookie led each league in strikeouts — New York's Dwight Gooden in the NL with 276 and Seattle's Mark Langston with 204 in the AL. Bruce Sutter of St. Louis led the NL with a major-league record tying 45 saves, while Dan Quisenberry of Kansas City led the AL with one less.

Alejandro Pena of Los Angeles had the best ERA in the NL, 2.48, while the 2.79 posted by Mike Boddicker of Baltimore was the best in the AL.

There was one 20-game winner in each league — Joaquin Andujar of St. Louis finished at 20-14, while Boddicker had a 20-11 mark. Chicago's Rick Sutcliffe was 16-1 in the NL with the Cubs after compiling a 4-5 record with Cleveland in the AL.

Rams Set Safety Mark Against Giants

By The Associated Press

It was safety first, second and third for the Los Angeles Rams.

The Rams manhandled the New York Giants 33-12 Sunday, registering a National Football League record three safeties and generally embarrassing the Giants' offensive line, which was called for holding nine times. Punter Dave Jennings had two of his kicks blocked and quarterback Phil Simms was sacked in the end zone while trying to pass.

Elsewhere, it was Denver 16, the Los Angeles Raiders 13; Miami 36, St. Louis 28; San Francisco 14, Atlanta 5; Tampa Bay 30, Green Bay 27 in overtime; New England 28, the New York Jets 21; Dallas 23, Chicago 14; Seattle 20, Minnesota 12; Indianapolis 31, Buffalo 17; Kansas City 10, Cleveland 6; New Orleans 27, Houston 10; San Diego 27, Detroit 24, and Washington 20, Philadelphia 0.

Giants guard Billy Ard accurately summed up the afternoon.

"They just kicked our butts," said Ard. "We just self-destructed."

Broncos 16, Raiders 13

Denver knocked the defending Super Bowl champions from the undefeated ranks — only Miami and San Francisco are perfect at 5-0 — in a bitter battle. Gerald Willhite's 4-yard scoring run and three Rich Karlis field goals did the damage for the Broncos in a fight-marred game, lifting 4-1 Denver into a tie with the Raiders and Seahawks for first place in the AFC West.

The Broncos rushed for a season-high 233 yards.

"It's simple," said Raiders Coach Tom Flores. "They ran the ball too well against us. It's frustrating when they pick up five or six yards a crack."

Dolphins 36, Cardinals 28

Miami used a familiar formula: Dan Marino throwing to his talented corps of receivers for big yardage and lots of points. Marino, who leads the NFL with 15 touchdown throws, hit for a team-record 429 yards and three touchdowns on 24 completions in 36 passes.

Tight end Joe Rose caught a 26-yarder. Mark Clayton hauled in a 29-yard strike and Tony Nathan scored from 22 yards on Marino passes.

"I'm piling up a lot of yards but I wouldn't without the people around me," said Marino, a Pro-Bowler as a rookie last year.

49ers 14, Falcons 5

San Francisco kept its record spotless as Joe Montana hit on a pair of touchdown tosses and the defense stopped Atlanta — which was averaging 30.5 points a game — four times inside the 49er 10. Montana, wearing a flak jacket to protect bruised ribs which forced him out of last week's game, threw to Russ Francis for a 5-yard score and to Mike Wilson for a 21-yard TD.

The Falcons rolled up 418 yards on offense as Steve Bartkowski passed for 267 yards and Gerald Riggs, leading rusher in the NFL, ran for 136.

Buccaneers 30, Packers 27

Green Bay pulled off some last-second heroics to force the overtime, but the spontaneous trickery by James Lofton was wasted when Tampa's Obed Ariri kicked a 48-yard field goal with 10:38 gone in overtime.

Lofton caught a 22-yard pass from Lynn Dickey and lateraled to Gerry Ellis, who ran 14 yards to complete a 36-yard scoring play with eight seconds left in regulation. The razzle-dazzle between Lofton and Ellis was unplanned, according to Packers Coach Forrest Gregg.

Patriots 28, Jets 21

New England controlled the ball with long drives and Tony Eason connected on 28 of 42 passes for 354 yards and three touchdowns. He also scored on a 4-yard run.

"We kept the Jets guessing," noted Eason. "We weren't usually in situations where everyone in the stadium knows what we're going to do next."

Cowboys 23, Bears 14

Despite 155 yards rushing by Walter Payton — moving him within 66 yards of Jim Brown's all-time NFL record — Chicago was victimized by a 68-yard TD screen pass from Gary Hogeboom to Tony Dorsett.

"We made a couple of mistakes early," said Payton, who will go after the record next week against New Orleans. "We had a lot of opportunities to put points on the board, but we didn't. When you're playing a team like Dallas, you can't afford not to take advantage of those opportunities."

Colts 31, Bills 17

Indianapolis' running attack, ranked second in the NFL entering the game, was stopped cold in the first half. But it came alive in the second half behind Randy McMillan, who wound up with 114 yards and two touchdowns. Joe Dufek, making his first start as Bills quarterback, ran for a touchdown and threw for another.

Chiefs 10, Browns 6

Kansas City produced an awesome pass rush, sacking Cleveland QB Paul McDonald 11 times for 78 yards. Todd Blackledge connected with Billy Jackson on a decisive 9-yard scoring toss.

"We were just one sack away from the world record," exclaimed Mike Bell. "We managed to stop them on first down and force them into passing situations. And then we just came at 'em."

Seahawks 20, Vikings 12

Seattle didn't match KC but still got five sacks, forced three fumbles and led from its first possession, on which Dave Krieg hit Steve Largent for a 20-yard score. Eric Lane, who along with Franco Harris has led Seattle's running game in the absence of injured Curt Warner, rushed for 113 yards and a 40-yard TD.

"I've been playing special teams for four years," said Lane, who started the season with 23 career rushing yards. "When Curt went down, it happened so fast I was just thinking of him. But I knew I'd have to take on a bigger responsibility in our offense."

Saints 27, Oilers 10

Hapless Houston, 0-5, was held to eight first downs and 133 yards by New Orleans. Frank Watterell ran 35 yards with an interception for a score and Hokie Gajan had a 15-yard TD jaunt. Oilers quarterback Warren Moon, the high-priced refugee from the Canadian League, was benched in favor of Oliver Luck in the second half. Moon had the flu.

Chargers 27, Lions 24

Dan Fouts engineered 24 first-half points, then San Diego held off a furious Detroit rally. The Chargers drove 80, 49 and 87 yards for scores in the first half and led 24-7 at intermission. Then Gary Danielson and Billy Sims — who had an 81-yard run — sparked the Lions. Danielson even hit James Jones on an 8-yard, go-ahead scoring toss in the final minutes, but it was negated by an offensive interference penalty.

Redskins 20, Eagles 0

Washington's defense sacked Eagle quarterback Ron Jaworski four times and shut down Philadelphia. John Riggins rushed for 104 yards and a touchdown and Joe Theismann hit Art Monk on a 51-yard scoring pass.

After the game, Eagles owner Leonard Tose said Coach Marion Campbell "was not in trouble" of losing his job.

Connors Falls To Cash...

the Swedes have proposed Dec. 28-30, a date called "the worst" of all possible choices by McEnroe because it will put the American team in Sweden for the Christmas holiday.

The Swedes have yet to choose a surface for the final round, but Sundstrom has suggested literally throwing sand into the American juggernaut. He said the Swedes should use a grass court with sand sprinkled over it to make the surface slideable as well as slow.

Sundstrom said he and the other Swedes in Australia had tested a synthetic grass court over which some 16 tons of quartz sand had been spread, and found it suited them nearly as well as a genuine clay court.

Sundstrom said it would probably be more practical to use a slow indoor carpet. Wilander said only that Sweden had better play on something slow or "we are likely to go down 0-5."

Cash's triumph was the first time the United States has lost a match in three Davis Cup rounds this year and also marked the first American loss to Australia in their last three meetings.

Cash, ranked seventh in the world, used exceptionally strong serves and return shots to defeat Connors. The Australian had 10 aces in the match.

Both Sunday matches were shortened to a best-of-three format after the United States clinched the victory Saturday when McEnroe and Peter Fleming won the doubles match over Paul McNamee and Mark Edmondson.

The 1985 World Group participants also were decided this weekend, with one exception. With the final two singles matches scheduled to be played today, Israel had a 2-1 lead over the Soviet Union in the European Zone A final. The winner will earn a berth in next year's World Group, the only countries actually competing for the prestigious Cup.

In the relegation round, pitting World Group first-round losers, remaining in the select 16-nation field were Yugoslavia, West Germany, India and Ecuador. Advancing from zonal competition to the World Group were Japan, Spain and Chile.

Besides the U.S. and Sweden, also remaining in the World Group because they won either first- or second-round matches are Italy, Argentina, Australia, Czechoslovakia, France and Paraguay.

Yugoslavia ousted Great Britain

4-1, West Germany swept Romania 5-0, Ecuador stopped New Zealand 4-1 and India downed Denmark 3-2.

The losers in the relegation round drop down to zonal play next year.

Elsewhere on Sunday, Martina Navratilova won her 65th straight tournament singles victory, then joined with Pam Shriver to win their 73rd consecutive doubles match playing as a team.

Navratilova, No. 1 in the world, defeated speedy Zina Garrison 6-4, 6-3 in New Orleans to win the singles championship of the $150,000 Virginia Slims tournament stop here.

She and Shriver, the world's top-seeded pair, beat Wendy Turnbull and Sharon Walsh 6-4, 6-1, for the doubles championship.

Navratilova announced earlier in the week that she now plans to take a five-week vacation from the tour.

Kansas City Foes Short Of Tigers' Total

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Sparky Anderson was merely stating the obvious, but the Detroit manager may ruffle a few feathers on the eve of the American League playoffs.
The Western Division champions from Kansas City were also rans in the tough AL East, Anderson noted.
Mathematically speaking, he's right. The Royals will represent what many believe is the worst division in the major leagues. They won the West an 84-76 record, 20 games short of the 104-58 mark Detroit posted in the East.
"Kansas City has played well. They've got a good ballclub," Anderson said. "I think we have to remember one thing. They couldn't have done that in any other division."

The Royals, however, are weary of hearing about what a pushover their division is. Any hint of Tiger bravado is certain to stir resentment when the action starts at 7:30 p.m. CST Tuesday night in Royals Stadium.
Also sure to grab attention is a planned strike by major league umpires. National League umpire Paul Runge, vice president of the Major League Baseball Umpires Association, confirmed late Sunday that umpires would strike the playoffs and World Series. Money and job security, among other things, were matters of contention in the union's contract negotiations with Major League Baseball.
Royals centerfielder Willie Wilson said the Tigers will "be hyper and up. But if they're too up, they'll come down hard."

The Tigers were easily the best team in the game the first two months of the season and the Royals were certainly among the worst. They were beset by injury and controversy. Wilson, an all-star outfielder who won the AL batting title in 1982, sat out the first 32 games because of a drug-related suspension. All-star third baseman George Brett missed the first month and much of the last month with injury.
The Royals, who said themselves they were in a "transition year," didn't reach .500 until September.
"I really like their ball club and after June, they're as good as any ballclub in the league," said Anderson. "But in this division, you play like that before June, you finish sixth."

Jack Morris, a hard-throwing right-hander whose 19 victories include a no-hitter against the White Sox, will start for the Tigers on Tuesday night. Going for the Royals will be Bud Black, a slender left-hander who won 17 with sharp control of a variety of pitches.
The Royals prefer to talk about their record since July 18, which was 19 games above .500 and the best in baseball.
"They are going to have to play good to beat us," said Kansas City Manager Dick Howser. "We've been playing well for three months, not two weeks, not just September. We're one of the better clubs in baseball. From 1 to 10, we're in there somewhere."

Designated hitter Hal McRae, the Royals' team leader and philosopher-in-residence, puts no value on season records in assessing playoff teams.
"You don't have to be a good team to win the playoffs," he said. "You just have to play good. There is a difference."
Steve Balboni, the big first baseman who hit 28 home runs for the Royals, figures to see a confident bunch of Tigers.

"They are expecting to sweep us three straight with the year they've had," he said. "I don't think anyone believes that in this clubhouse. I don't think anyone here is going to settle for just winning the division."
Anderson would probably least like to rattle Wilson, the leadoff hitter and offensive sparkplug.
"If Wilson's hot, we're in trouble," he said. "If he's not, we can maybe handle (George) Brett better. If Wilson has a .250 series, we should win it."

Cubs Set For Playoffs

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs bring a better season record and a handful of candidates for pitcher, player and manager of the year into Tuesday's opener of the National League Championship Series against the San Diego Padres.
But the league's two biggest surprise teams might have to share the spotlight with the Major League Baseball Umpires Association. Union vice president Paul Runge, a National League umpire, confirmed late Sunday that the association has ordered its members to strike the playoffs because of a dispute over a contract. The umpires are seeking better pay and job security, among other things.
Cubs shortstop Larry Bowa, who played on four of the Philadelphia Phillies' NL playoff teams, says that regular-season statistics don't mean a thing.
"You can erase all the 300 averages, all the records, the big numbers — everything," says Bowa. "It starts all over, and at a different level."
"Who remembers who fumbled an easy grounder on July 4th, or who hit the ball a mile a month after that," said Bowa, who plans to pass on his postseason experience to some of the younger Cubs.
"There are more marbles, things seem like they're magnified 10 times. That's the thing you have to get across to the young guys, the guys who haven't played in the big ones before," he said.
But while the Cubs haven't been in a post-season game since World War II, many of the players and coaches on the 1984 squad have playoff and World Series experience.
Cubs Manager Jim Frey, who guided the Kansas City Royals into the 1980 World Series, said he doesn't plan any changes in the playoff series.
"We played better baseball than anybody in the National League over the last three months of the season (47-29 since the All-Star break) — which is especially satisfying since the club was unrecognized in everybody's poll. There's no reason to tinker with anything now," he said.

The Royals made it into the American League playoffs again this year, but Frey said he won't feel funny facing his former players if the Cubs and Kansas City meet in the World Series.
"As long as we make it to the World Series, I don't care who we play," he said.
Frey has been mentioned as Manager of the Year timber while Ryne Sandberg, with a hot glove and .314 bat, is a candidate for Most Valuable Player and Rick Sutcliffe, Frey's pick as Tuesday's starting pitcher, is in the running for the Cy Young Award. Sutcliffe was 16-1 with 14 wins in a row as a Cub and 4-5 at Cleveland.
San Diego Manager Dick Williams, who spent the final weekend of the regular season in Chicago personally scouting the Cubs, will send his pitching ace, Eric Show, 15-9, in the battle of right-handers.
Williams can brag of having the runaway league batting champ, Tony Gwynn, in his lineup. The rightfielder had a .351 batting average.
On Sunday, the Cubs beat St. Louis 2-1 to finish with a 96-65, record, 6 1/2 games ahead of the runner-up New York Mets, while San Diego lost in Atlanta 4-3 to end up 92-70, 12 games ahead of second-place Atlanta.

This is the first post-season appearance for the Padres, the first in 39 years for the Cubs, and both towns are still dizzy from celebrations. Chicago has gone so far as to put a 12-foot, 30-pound Cubs baseball hat on the head of the huge Picasso sculpture in the city's Daley Center Plaza. At the Padres gift shop at San Diego Jack Murphy Stadium, "Cubbuster T-Shirts" are sold out.

Pickets Still Mark Las Vegas Casinos As Strikers Hang On

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Tiny clusters of pickets gather daily at half a dozen hotels — reminders of the hot summer nights when hundreds clashed with police and blocked traffic on the famed Strip of this gaming mecca.

They are the remnants of an expensive, bitter hotel strike that enters its seventh month Tuesday. And there are growing indications the 600 holdouts may never see a settlement.

"It's a strike that never should have happened," Culinary Union Secretary-Treasurer Jeff McColl says of the longest labor dispute in Las Vegas history. "In a strike like this, everybody loses."

Union members lost an estimated $75 million in wages and benefits. The city lost a like amount in lifeblood tourism revenue. Millions more were lost in gaming income.

Nearly 1,000 strikers were arrested before a federal judge stepped in to halt the mass arrests. Hotels vowed they would remain open — and did. Union leaders vowed the walkout would be long and bitter. It was. And now the lingering pickets are sticking to their guns.

"It looks like the talks are at a dead end," said Johnnie Kirkling, 42, as he leaned on a newspaper rack outside the Four Queens Hotel on Friday, a picket sign resting on the sidewalk. "But I won't go back. I'm a union man all the way. I'll stick it out a year; four years if necessary."

Kirkling said he, his wife and their five children live on $80 weekly in strike pay and sacks of groceries provided by the union.

Some 17,000 members of four unions left their jobs at 29 hotels April 2.

They began straggling back to work in late May and early June, settling one casino at a time for a five-year pact that calls for a nickel an hour raise the first year and a transfusion for an anemic health and welfare fund.

Today strikes continue at six hotels, but all six are open and operating with replacement workers.

Meanwhile, tourism officials say business is returning to Las Vegas after slipping in April, May and June. Tourism spokesman Rossi Ralenkotter said tourism was up 0.9 percent in July over July 1983. The city welcomed 7.5 million visitors for the first seven months of the year — a 1.2 percent increase over the same period last year.

At Sam's Town and Holiday Inns downtown and on the south end of the Strip, the replacements have asked the National Labor Relations Board to have the Culinary Union decertified as a bargaining agent.

Strikers at the California Hotel were offered their old jobs when a new 350-room addition opens this week, but balked because of differences over work rules.

Before the strike began, a bankruptcy judge gave the Marina Hotel on the Strip permission to void the Culinary contract because it was too costly.

Cable Panel Picks Award Nominees

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Cable Television Association has nominated 125 programs and individuals for the 1984 Network Awards for Cable Excellence, or ACEs, the Emmy of the cable industry.

Four big stars are competing for the Best Actress in a Dramatic

Theatrical Program, including Elizabeth Taylor and Carol Burnett for their performances in HBO's "Between Friends," Bette Davis for HBO's "Right of Way," and Jean Stapleton for Showtime's "Faerie Tale Theater Jack and the Beanstalk."

Equally impressive is the list of nominees for Best Actor in a Dramatic Theatrical Program: James Stewart for "Right of Way," Sir Laurence Olivier for HBO's "Mr. Halpern and Mr. Johnson," Ed Asner and Daniel Travanti for Showtime's "A Case of Libel," Ben Cross for HBO's "The Far Pavilions" and Ron McLarty for The Disney Channel's "Tiger Town."

The winners will be announced Dec. 4 during a ceremony at the Beverly Theater in Beverly Hills, Calif., which will be videotaped for airing to more than 31 million cable subscriber homes over SuperStation WTBS Jan. 6, 1985.

This year's competition drew 524 entries in three divisions, excellence in special programming, excellence in a program series and national performance and craft.

Gubernatorial Candidates Say Neither Won Major Victory In Only TV Debate

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Neither Attorney General Rufus Edmisten nor U.S. Rep. Jim Martin claimed victory after the only face-to-face debate of their campaign for governor, but both said they made important points and avoided big mistakes.

"If I'd gone up there and stood on my head I wouldn't have lost any of the people who were going to vote for me," said Edmisten, a Democrat, after Sunday's hour-long debate filmed at WRAL-TV and telecast statewide. "People don't make up their minds who they're going to vote for based on debates."

"We both scored a point or two," said Martin, a Republican. "Every politician will say, 'yes, I won,' but it's really the people who will decide who won."

The debate focused primarily on economic issues — taxes, highways, education and utilities. Edmisten sought to portray himself as a protector of the working class, while Martin called himself a "constructive conservative" in the mold of President Reagan.

Martin, trailing in public opinion polls, had eagerly sought a series of debates and called for more Sunday. Edmisten refused, saying the voters were "about debated out."

Both candidates made opening statements and then responded in turn to questions submitted by the North Carolina Radio and Television News Directors Association. Edmisten had balked at Martin's suggestion that they question each other directly.

Martin said the format kept him from repeating many of the criticisms he's leveled at Edmisten — including the attorney general's failure to prosecute a Democratic sheriff on vote-buying charges and to bring charges against highway bid riggers.

"I'm not backing off" those issues, Martin said. "I wanted to bring them up ... but no one asked about them."

Edmisten defended the format, saying it had kept them from "screaming at and hollering at each other."

Martin said North Carolina's intangibles and inventory taxes were a "unique, self-inflicted handicap" that were stunting development of the state's border regions.

"The effect is that it does wonderful things for other states (that don't levy the taxes) but not for North Carolina," said Martin. "Yes, these ... taxes do hurt us. I want to get rid of them."

Edmisten said that Business Week magazine recently had called North Carolina the top state for new industry despite the inventory and intangibles taxes.

He supported phasing out the taxes if the state could replace the money that local governments would lose. Otherwise, he said, "property taxes will go up, and the cost of owning a house will go up."

Edmisten hammered away at Martin's support of telephone access charges and "construction work in progress" or "CWIP," which means allowing utilities to charge ratepayers for unfinished projects.

"Mr. Martin has simply voted time and time again for what big utility companies wanted ... and I simply wouldn't have voted (that way)," said Edmisten. "That's one of the biggest contrasts I know between me and (Martin)."

Martin said that if he was elected

he would appoint a "balanced utilities commission" and make sure that North Carolina residents would not "pay one cent more than they have to get adequate service."

He defended CWIP as "pay-as-you-go financing" and warned that without it, companies would have to borrow money to construct new plants, thus driving up interest rates. He said phone access charges were necessary to hold down long-distance rates.

On other issues: — Both candidates said their top priority would be education and that they would raise taxes for schools if necessary. Martin endorsed merit pay for deserving teachers, while Edmisten stressed making sure that only the best students are allowed to teach.

— Martin said Interstate 40 was the only highway project he could guarantee and accused Edmisten of practicing "the politics of illusion" by promising more road construction than he could deliver.

Edmisten said he had made no promises and that "you can't put all your road-building eggs in one basket."

— Edmisten called for a "summit conference" of tobacco interests to determine what should be done to protect that industry. Martin said the best way to help tobacco was to "strengthen our export ability" by finding more markets.

AFTER THE DEBATE — Republican Jim Martin, left, and Democrat Rufus Edmisten congratulate each other after their televised debate Sunday night. The two men, who are opponents in North Carolina's gubernatorial campaign, refused to claim victory in the debate but each said he had scored major points. The debate probably will be the only such event during their campaign. (AP Laserphoto)

— Martin told the audience that "when Ronald Reagan wins and Jim Martin wins, North Carolina wins." He emphasized Edmisten's support of the Democratic presidential ticket of Walter Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro and said Edmisten had taken stands backed by "some of the most liberal Democrats in Congress."

Edmisten responded, "If you ask all the drug pushers ... they don't think I'm a liberal." He acknowledged that he supported Mondale but said, "I have my own record. ... I'm running for the governorship."

Democrats Count On Visit By Ferraro For Big Boost

By The Associated Press

Leaders of the North Carolina Democratic Party say they think the visit of vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro to Greensboro and Raleigh may provide just the boost the party's ticket needs in the Tar Heel state.

"I think it has given us the momentum that we need," said Wallace Harrelson, Democratic party chairman in Guilford County. "Honestly, this is a historic visit. This is the first time any woman candidate on a major national ticket has campaigned in North Carolina."

Ms. Ferraro was scheduled to arrive in Greensboro around noon today for a downtown lunch-hour rally.

She then will travel to Raleigh for a 4:30 p.m. rally on the downtown mall, a $500-per-couple fund-raiser at a private home and a $100-per-person fund-raising dinner.

Accompanying Ms. Ferraro will be Gov. Jim Hunt, who's running for U.S. Senate; Attorney General Rufus Edmisten, candidate for governor; and state Sen. Bob Jordan, D-Montgomery, the Democratic lieutenant governor nominee. None of them showed up when presidential nominee Walter Mondale visited Asheville in August.

"The fact that she's just a very likeable and magnetic candidate has added a great deal of excitement," said State Democratic Chairman David Price.

But David Flaherty, chairman of the state Republican Party, said Ms. Ferraro's visit could backfire on the Democrats. "A tremendous number of people are turned off by Ferraro's meanness, her vicious attacks ..." he said.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for a Wake County organization that opposes abortion said Sunday the group had no plans to demonstrate during Ms. Ferraro's appearance in Raleigh.

"I know that the Republican Party has asked that people not heckle her," said Edward N. Gropp Jr., a spokesman for Wake County Right to Life. "But I don't know if any individuals will go down there or not."

To show support for Ms. Ferraro, members of the N.C. State University College Democrats plan to march from the campus to downtown Raleigh for the rally, said Henry Jarrett, a spokesman for the group.

Democrats hold an almost 3-to-1 edge in registration in North Carolina. But a Gallup Poll conducted Sept. 10-13 showed that 62 percent of the 1,187 voters surveyed favor Reagan while 34 percent support Mondale.

In May, a Gallup survey of 1,000 voters showed Reagan with a 59 percent to 38 percent lead.

Price said he expected the upcoming presidential debates to cut into Reagan's lead.

"I think some issues will be coming home to rest on the shoulders of the man responsible for them, issues we know the North Carolina electorate is very skeptical about," Price said.

Flaherty said he expected Reagan and Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., to help each other in North Carolina.

The hoopla surrounding Ms. Ferraro's visit is important for several reasons, Harrelson said. Undecided voters are certain to watch or read about her visit and may be attracted by her style, he said.

"She's a very charming lady, a very forceful lady," Harrelson said. "I think people in this area of the state will be impressed with her."

Perhaps as important, however, is the gusto Ms. Ferraro may spark among political volunteers, said Carolyn Beyer, a political science professor at Greensboro College.

"I think it has a psychological effect to have a good showing," Beyer said. "Political campaign rallies are not much more than that. It gives enthusiasm for the workers, they go out and stomp a little more."

Patti Eckard, a Hunt campaign worker who helped arrange the visit, said area volunteers are already stirred. "Just knowing of the presence of the Secret Service is something awesome," she said.

East, Helms Among Four Senators Who Voted No To Civil Rights Plan

By The Associated Press
 Putting the words "civil rights" on a bill makes "knees buckle and their spines cave," says Sen. John East, R-N.C., one of four senators who opposed a civil rights bill on a procedural vote.
 "If you put the words 'civil rights' on any bill, you can get anything passed because the knees buckle and they (the senators) will go along," East said as the Senate voted 92-4 Saturday to cut off debate by opponents of the legislation. "The knees buckle and their spines cave."
 Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., also voted with East. The bill would overturn a U.S. Supreme Court ruling restricting the ability of the federal government to cut off funds to educational institutions that discriminate on the basis of sex. The legislation would assure that no similar court decision would apply to discrimination on the basis of race, a handicap or age.

 But while Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., called the vote to end debate "an overwhelming reaffirmation" of the cause of civil rights, East argued that the bill would have effects far beyond reducing discrimination.
 East and other conservatives have said the legislation could give the government greater power to intervene in the lives of private citizens. In a speech on the Senate floor, East called the measure "the most massive shift of power (from the Congress) to the federal bureaucracy and the courts that this Congress has ever made."

 Helms, Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, and 20 other senators first voted against the debate cutoff but changed their votes when it became apparent that the debate cutoff would pass. The voting was held open while East was summoned to the floor where Sens. J. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and Helms urged him to switch his vote. East refused, and Helms changed his vote back to "no."
 East said later that Helms' vote switch was part of a parliamentary strategy that East had decided not to follow. Helms could not be reached for comment.

Truck Firm Sues Belk's

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Tryco Trucking Co. Inc. of Charlotte has filed a federal suit charging Belk Stores Services, a Belk executive and four others with unfair and deceptive trade practices in an attempt to drive Tryco out of business.
 The suit filed earlier this week charges that Charles Young used his position as general traffic manager for Belk Stores Services to direct Belk business away from Tryco to Tempus Trucking Co. The suit charges Young secretly owned Tempus with two other men, who were not named as defendants.
 The suit said Tryco was formed in January 1979 primarily to provide trucking services for Belk.
 Young and Luther Moore, assistant general counsel for Belk Stores Services declined comment because the matter was in litigation.
 Tryco filed a petition Wednesday seeking protection from creditors while it reorganizes under federal bankruptcy laws.

Welfare Benefits Rise

GREENSBORO (AP) — As the largest increase in welfare benefits ever in North Carolina goes into effect today, welfare officials say the state still pays among the lowest benefits in the nation.
 The 10 percent, across-the-board increase, approved by the state General Assembly this summer, is the third such increase in the last quarter-century. The increase affects those receiving Medicaid or Aid to Families With Dependent Children — the major federal welfare programs administered by state and local government agencies.
 In addition, many new eligibility rules, affecting about 40 percent of the state's 167,000 welfare clients, also take effect today.
 "It won't make that much difference," said John Syria, state social services director. He said North Carolina ranks 39th in the nation in the amount of its average welfare benefit.
 The national average welfare payment per case in 1983 was $109 a month, according to the state Department of Human Resources. In North Carolina, the average monthly payment was $71 for 1983, the latest year figures are available, department figures show.
 The increased AFDC benefits will cost roughly $9 million each year and will be shared by the state, federal and local governments, Syria said. The total annual Medicaid increase should cost about $2.2 million, said Barbara Matula, state Medicaid director.

"It really won't add more people to the rolls," she said. "It means they have to spend less of their limited monthly income for medicine before we kick in."
 Doug Sea, a legal aid lawyer in Charlotte who monitors state welfare programs, said the increase means poor people across North Carolina won't have to spend as much of their limited income on medicine and other necessities.
 "This is going to have a significant effect on the elderly and disabled people who have not been able to afford their medicine," Sea said.
 The precise amount of the increase depends on the size of the family. A typical family of four that now receives $221 a month in welfare benefits will get $242 a month under the increase.
 The 20 technical changes that also go into effect affect a wide range of welfare regulations.
 One change covers benefits for unemployed pregnant women. Previously, such women had to register with state agencies to show they were looking for a job. Under the revised guidelines, women in their sixth month of pregnancy no longer have to register for jobs.
 The last general increase in welfare benefits came in August 1982 when the state approved a 5 percent raise. A similar 5 percent raise was also approved in 1979, according to Kay Fields, chief of the assistance payments section of the Department of Human Resources.

Court Reinstates Fired Housing Director

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals has overturned a decision by a lower court judge and reinstated a $10,000 award to the former Shelby housing director, ruling his 1979 firing was racially motivated.
 The court's decision reinstates a February 1983 decision by an all-white jury, which awarded $10,000 in compensatory damages to Aniedi Abasiokong, who is a Nigerian native.
 Abasiokong was fired in May 1979 by City Manager Dave Wilkison, who said the housing director misused city property and personnel.
 "Mr. Abasiokong never lost faith that ultimately he would prevail, and that appears to be what happened," said lawyer John Gresham, who represented the former housing director.

 Lawyers representing the city said they had not yet seen the ruling and were unable to comment.

 Abasiokong was accused of allowing city employees to deliver mulch in a city truck to his home. When appointed to the $15,000-a-year post in early 1978, Abasiokong was the only black holding a job at the director level in Shelby.
 While the Court of Appeals decision means Abasiokong will receive $10,000 in damages, lawyers for both sides still must negotiate any "additional equitable relief" such as back pay, Gresham said.

Grocery Costs Show Slight Price Drop For September

Much cheaper pork chops and sugar pulled overall grocery prices down 1.7 percent during September, the monthly AP Marketbasket survey found.

The strong U.S. dollar in relation to other currencies has been a major factor in lowering prices, an economist said.

Pork chops fell an average 9.4 percent, after dipping 1.9 percent in the previous month.

Sugar fell an average of 1.2 percent during September.

"The biggest single influence is probably the dollar, along with the continued very small inflation rate in the U.S.," said David A. Wyss, an economist with Data Resources Inc. in Lexington, Mass.

"The continued decline (in prices) is showing the continued strength of the dollar. It's up 14 percent from last year. That's reflected in lower prices of imported goods."

Asked why pork chop prices fell so dramatically, John Ginzler, a livestock analyst in Chicago with the investment firm Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc., cited a "very sharp price decline for fresh pork at the wholesale level."

Those wholesale prices, which have declined steadily, are at lows for the year, he said.

He said hamburger, in particular, was "attractively priced for retailing."

During September, overall prices fell in nine cities, an average of 4.2 percent. They rose in three cities, an average of 1.8 percent. The bill was unchanged in Salt Lake City.

The marketbasket tab fell 0.7 percent during August.

The tab has risen a scant 0.7 percent since the beginning of the year, according to the latest check.

The Associated Press drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and non-food items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973, and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month. One item, chocolate chip cookies, was dropped from the list several years ago because the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the survey.

No attempt was made to weight the AP survey results according to population density or in terms of what percent of a family's actual grocery outlay each item represents.

The day of the week on which the check was made varied depending on the month. Standard brands and sizes were used when available. If the requested size and brand was not available on March 1, 1973, a comparable substitute was selected. Items temporarily out of stock on one of the survey dates being compared were not included in the over-all total.

The AP did not try to compare actual prices from city to city — to say, for example, that eggs cost more in one area than another. The only comparisons were made in terms of percentages of increase or decrease — saying a particular item went up 10 percent in one city and 6 percent in another.

The USDA marketbasket issued each month is based on a complex set of statistics. It is used to keep track of changes in the proportion of the food dollar received by the farmer, wholesaler and retailer and does not correspond to actual family spending.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar.

The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, R.I., Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Geologists Plan Deep-Hole Study

ATLANTA (AP) — Geologists are eyeing an area on the northern Georgia-South Carolina line to drill the deepest hole ever bored into the crust of the North American continent, a depth of 6½ miles.

Preliminary field studies tentatively have narrowed the site for the project to a 120-mile area along the flanks of the southern Appalachians in Stephens County, Ga., and Oconee County, S.C.

"This is the last big frontier in modern earth science," said Cornell University geologist Jack Oliver, whose seismic measurements in the southern Appalachians raised new scientific curiosity about what lies beneath.

"The continental crust has never really been explored at depth, but we do know that, like Columbus, every time we have gone looking for something we have found surprises," Oliver said. The $60 million project, which will take four years, could shed new light on the ways oil and gas are trapped, where and how potentially important minerals are deposited in the area and why earthquakes sometimes occur in the East.

It will be at least a year before the exact site is chosen, but the National Science Foundation is expected this month to release $2 million for detailed studies of the area.

The Appalachian hole, which scientists eventually hope to convert into a permanent geologic observatory, is intended to be the centerpiece of a budding National Science Foundation program known as the Deep Observation and Sampling of the Earth's Continental Crust.

"Although deep holes like this are so costly that we will probably only be drilling one at a time, this is really the start of a decades-long program," said University of Oklahoma geologist Frank Stehli, who heads the National Academy of Science's advisory committee on continental drilling.

With a targeted depth of 33,000 feet, the Appalachian hole would equal and possibly surpass the world's deepest oil or gas wells.

Most oil wells, however, have been drilled through softer sedimentary rock. The Appalachian hole would go through solid granite much of the way.

The current hard-rock drilling record is held by Phillips Petroleum, which sank a multimillion-dollar well 18,000 feet in Arizona before concluding it was a dry hole.

Suited to a "T"

"While I still have got breath in my lungs, I will tell you what a dandy car you make," gangster Clyde Barrow wrote to Henry Ford in April, 1934. "I have drove Fords exclusively when I could get away with one." One month later, Barrow and his girlfriend Bonnie Parker drove into a police ambush in a Ford. John Dillinger also prized Fords for their getaway power. Henry Ford introduced the first Model T, on the right, on October 1, 1908. By 1924 he had sold 10 million of them.

Vitamin A Importance Cited

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even mild vitamin A deficiencies among children in developing countries can result in eye disease and unexpectedly increased death rates, scientists have learned.

Dr. Alfred Sommer, of the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health in Baltimore, said Sunday that a recently completed study of thousands of children in Indonesia shows that the proper amount of vitamin A is more important than previously believed.

Sommer said vitamin A deficiencies cause an estimated 25 percent of all childhood deaths in developing countries, killing up to 10 million children each year. Lack of adequate vitamin A also blinds another 250,000 children annually, he said.

While severe vitamin A deficiency has long been known as a primary cause of blindness and death among Third World children, he said, no one suspected that slight shortfalls of the nutrient could push mortality rates up to 14 times higher than those of vitamin-balanced peers.

"No one knew that such a small deficiency could have such a large impact," Sommer said after addressing a science writers' seminar convened by Research to Prevent Blindness, Inc., a private group which sponsors eye research.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♥AQ653    ♦A1085    ♣KJ94
Partner opens the bidding with three spades. What action do you take?

A.—At this vulnerability, you are on the borderline for a raise to four spades. However, the fact that you are void in partner's suit means that he might have one trump loser more than he anticipates, so that convinces us to pass. If you bid three no trump, you should brush up on your understanding of the trick-taking potential of your hand.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠6    ♥K8    ♦AKJ93    ♣AQ1054
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦    Pass    1 ♥    Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Partner's one heart response has improved your hand a little, because the king of hearts now becomes a working card. Therefore, we would jump shift to three clubs. Had partner responded one spade rather than one heart, we would have deemed a simple rebid of two clubs sufficient.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠KJ982    ♥AQJ    ♦Q96    ♣93
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠    Pass    2 ♦    Pass
2 ♣    Pass    3 ♣    Pass

What action do you take?
A.—You have a minimum opening bid and partner did not have the values to force to four spades. Nevertheless, we would not pass. Our diamond values should be upgraded, and we would accept the invitation on the strength of the double fit. Had partner's response been two clubs instead of two diamonds, we would have been content with a partial score.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠J10    ♥AQJ9    ♦Q6    ♣J9873
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass    Pass    1 ♣    Pass
2 ♣    Pass    2 ♣    Pass

What action do you take?
A.—In terms of high cards, your hand does not merit another move. However, you have two honors in partner's suit, a five-card suit of your own and excellent intermediates, so we think you are worth one try. The obvious bid is two no trump, despite the sketchy diamond stopper.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠KQ10    ♥84    ♦KQ95    ♣A982
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass    Pass    1 ♦    Pass
2 NT    Pass    ?

What action do you take?
A.—Partner's jump to two no trump after passing shows a balanced hand of 11-12 points. You have 14 good points — the tens and nines give your hand body. Proceed forthwith to three no trump.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠1065    ♥AKQ2    ♦J64    ♣QJ5
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠    1 ♦    1 ♥    Pass
2 ♣    Pass    ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Since your hand is flat, and most of its strength is concentrated in one suit, it is not quite as strong as its point count suggests. Certainly, it is worth another bid, but we would not contemplate any drastic action. For the moment, a raise to three clubs is adequate.
