FBI Agent Held As Spy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI today arrested one of its own agents, Richard W. Miller of Los Angeles, on charges of spying for the Soviet Union. He is the first FBI agent in history to be charged with espionage on behalf of a foreign government.

Miller, 47, is a 20-year veteran of the FBI who was assigned to foreign counterintelligence work in the Los Angeles bureau.

Also arrested were Nikolay Ogorodnikov, also known as Nikolay Wolfson, 51, and Svetlana Ogorodnikova, 34, of Los Angeles. The FBI said they were born in the Soviet Union and emigrated to the United States in 1973.

The FBI said its investigation disclosed "evidence that Miller had conspired with the Ogorodnikovs to pass classified FBI documents, dealing with positive intelligence tasking, to the government of the Soviet Union."

Miller was fired by the bureau on Tuesday, the FBI said, for violation of general standards of conduct for agents as well as violation of specific FBI rules.

Positive intelligence tasking refers to the assignment of U.S. intelligence agents to gather intelligence.

"This is a most serious matter, involving a special agent alleged to have committed such a crime against the United States," FBI Director William H. Webster said. "It is an aberration on the proud record of patriotic and dedicated service of thousands of special agents throughout our history. Special agents conducted this investigation and brought this matter to the prosecutive stage."

Justice Department spokesman John Russell said all three defendants were arrested at their residences in Los Angeles in the early morning. They were to be arraigned later today.

They were arrested on a federal complaint filed in U.S. District Court in Los Angeles charging them with conspiracy to provide national defense information to a foreign government. If convicted, they could receive a top penalty of life in prison.

Pitt School Board Adopts Basic Education Program

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

In what Pitt County school Superintendent Edwin L. West Jr. called a "historic" vote, the Pitt County Board of Education Tuesday accepted a basic education program setting course offerings and time allocations for courses in all schools in the system.

The basic program is a long-range school finance project which offers the same courses and staffs for all schools, regardless of size. Pitt County schools are one of eight systems working to define the state's and the county's responsibilities for school children. The Pitt County Board of Education was the first of those school systems to approve the project.

Under the basic education program, "every child will get the same education," West stated. "For example, (D.H.) Conley (High School) is twice the size of Ayden-Grifton (High School). Conley may have 20 students who want to take calculus and Ayden-Grifton may have 10 who want to take calculus. Those 10 students at Ayden-Grifton deserve calculus as much as those 20 at Conley. We are working to have uniform course offerings, staffing and time allotted to the subjects systemwide."

The basic education plan accepted by the board includes the programs which will be offered in grades kindergarten through 12 and the amount of time which will be spent on that subject each day.

For example, John McKnight, associate superintendent for instructional service, explained that 180 minutes per day is planned for reading and language arts at the kindergarten level, and only 45 minutes for reading and language arts at the eighth grade level.

"We focused this project on the hypothetical average student," McKnight said. "We concentrated heavily on reading in the early grades. As the student gets older, the reading is reinforced in other areas. The below average student will receive more reading time."

In the lower grades, the plan adds courses such as computer awareness and media skills and sets aside time for art, music, band, strings and orchestra, "rather than just doing them if you have the time," McKnight said.

In grades 6-8, students will have the choice to take art, music/chorus, band or occupational exploration.

Each high school in the county will offer the same courses under this plan. Some of the courses previously offered, such as special English and functional math, have been eliminated or collapsed into another course under the new plan.

A plan for vocational courses at all high schools also was included in the project.

West said that under this new basic education program, "staffing will be more a problem than equipment." He said the teaching staffs will have to be phased in over a two-to-three-year period.

According to the project report, "At this point, it appears that more part-time staff may be needed in order to deliver an equitable program to all schools regardless of size ... we are in the process of planning to interface both East Carolina University and Pitt Community College with the Pitt County school system."

After the board voted to accept the basic education program, West said,

"What you are doing is historically significant. It will have an impact on quality of programming for a long time."

In other action at the board meeting:

•North Pitt High School's JROTC Battalion was commended for its designation of "Honor Unit with Distinction" for the school year 1983-84.

•Three resolutions were adopted by the board — one in recognition of Lury C. Ragsdale High School for its donations to D.H. Conley High School following the March 28 tornado; one proclaiming Nov. 12 as "Support Services Day," and one in recognition and support of "Educational Office Personnel Week" Oct. 8-12.

•Personnel recommendations relative to employment and resignations were accepted.

•Bernard Haselring was officially placed in charge of processing applications for Impact Aid to be turned into the Department of Health, Education and Welfare; Office of Education.

•An updated list of advisory council members was accepted.

•A slide show of Project Exodus was shown. Project Exodus was recognized last week with a "Governor's Excellence Award." Mary

Collision Sinks Passenger Ferry

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP)

— A ferry taking more than 40 passengers on a birthday cruise in rainy Hamburg harbor collided with a tug boat and sank. Eight people were killed, 15 were missing and feared dead, and 24 were hurt, police said today.

Police said seven bodies, including those of three children, were recovered from the ferry Martina today after frogmen fit steel cables around the craft and it was hauled up from about 42 feet of water and pulled to a Hamburg dock.

The body of an eighth victim, an elderly woman, was found Tuesday night about an hour after the collision.

Eight children were among the 15 people known to be missing.

"We believe that they are dead, since it has been so long since the accident happened," police spokesman Peter Zeyn told The Associated Press.

Divers found the sunken ferry early today, 5½ hours after it collided with a tug boat towing a barge. High tide had hindered efforts to raise the wreck.

Investigators said the Martina may have struck the 32-foot-long cable joining the tug and the barge.

The barge, loaded with excavation equipment, drifted away after the collision and was missing.

Survivors told reporters at the scene that they heard a loud bang before the ferry sank.

A crewman on the tug, who spoke on condition he was not identified, told reporters that the ferry "floated between our tug and the barge we were pulling. The ferry was pushed under water by the cable and sank immediately."

The tug boat Therese was undamaged and joined six fire boats and private craft in searching for victims, authorities said.

Rescuers pulled 24 survivors from the chilly waters before darkness halted the search, which resumed today at daybreak. The injured were kept overnight at two hospitals and were released today after being treated for exposure, police said.

The ferry was on a cruise chartered by Wolfgang Rosenhagen to celebrate his 40th birthday. Rosenhagen and his wife Gudrun, both Hamburg meteorologists, were among the survivors, but their two sons, Guntram, 11, and Mathias, 5, were listed as missing, police said.

Pee Dee May Walk The Plank

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

What's in a name? Not much, according to William Shakespeare, who expressed the sentiment best with his line "a rose by any other name would smell as sweet."

Apparently East Carolina University students opposing the Pirate mascot "Pee Dee" aren't of a like mind. They contend that a pirate by the name of Pee Dee may be a pirate, but his name still stinks.

When Pee Dee was introduced at the opening of the 1983 football season, his image and later his name met with some opposition, but it's taken until now for antipathy to reach a head. In recent weeks, editorials bemoaning the choice of name as well as the methods involved in the name selection process have been run in the university student newspaper, The East Carolinian. A campaign to produce T-shirts adorned with Pee Dee's image covered with a slash run through with a slash was also mounted, but the ECU logo committee vetoed the T-shirt idea, telling the students that use of the Pee Dee's figure in the suggested manner would be an infringement of the university's copyright. Reports of petitions loaded with names have surfaced, too; however, ECU Chancellor John M. Howell said he has not received any written entreaties.

Dr. Howell did say that he is aware of "some" opposition and that a referendum being held on campus today along with the regular SGA election is an effort to assess student opinion on the matter.

"The vote would certainly have some significance in how we decide to deal with this, but at the moment I haven't done anything. I don't have enough information yet," Howell said.

How many students vote on the name issue, how many vote for and how many vote against will be three things Howell said he will look at before making a final decision on Pee Dee's name. "Checking those things will give me an indication of how many students are interested and whether or not this is as hot an

Farmville Board Rejects Zoning Change

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — Farmville commissioners Tuesday night voted to differ with a planning board recommendation and approve a request that a parcel of land zoned light industrial be changed to R-5 residential to allow a church to be built on it.

The land, located on Anderson Avenue, is owned by Davis Enterprise, and Mount Moriah Holiness Church wishes to buy it for a site for a new church. Many members of the church attended the hearing.

A request for a special exception zoning ordinance that would allow pet grooming businesses in R-5 residential areas with the approval of the board of adjustments was denied. The vote was not unanimous. Commissioner Oliver Murphrey said he sees nothing wrong with a pet grooming business in a residential area.

The matter was brought to light because Cathy Baker had requested that she be allowed to have a pet grooming business during regular working hours (no overnight boarding) in DotDee's Dance Studio, a converted house at the corner of Barrett and Belcher streets. Commissioner Moses Moye, who made the motion to deny the request, said he feels that any exceptions to allow business in residential areas devalue property in the area and that "there are plenty of stores available downtown."

Robert Paciocco, executive director of the Mid-East Commission, made a presentation to the board on the services available to member towns.

Approval was given to allow for $50,000 to be spent for a beautification project on the Walter B. Jones Town Common. Members of garden clubs of the town attended, requesting that the expenditure be made as quickly as possible so fall planting can be done.

Fashion Show Models Relate Experiences

By ROSALIE TROTMAN
Reflector Lifestyle Editor

An evening of high fashion, upbeat music and choreography was presented during the "Horizon '84 - The Winning Ticket" show held last night at the King and Queen North.

A project of the Greenville Service League, the Laughinghouse Hospital Fund will receive approximately $1,000 from the show. The show is produced by Belk Stores Services. Each time the public relations show is presented, it has a sponsoring organization.

Prior to the show, two of the show's models, Janice Brock and Andrew Wehrenberg were interviewed.

A native of Monroe, Ms. Brock is now modeling part time but "hopes it will become full time." She auditioned in January for this particular show. "Through the show, you can show your personality - you don't appear on stage very often alone, usually in twos or threes or more, depending on the scene and the fashions being shown," she said.

"We started rehearsals for the main show in August. We go to several cities in the Carolinas, Georgia, Virginia and Tennessee where mini shows are put on. The main show included 21-25 models and the smaller ones are presented with about 10 models," she added.

The show includes a wide range of fashions - from casual playwear to the most formal, including in between suits and coats. Designer fashions to ready-to-wear clothes are also included.

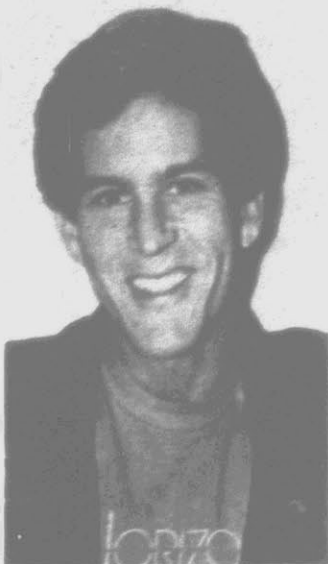

Ms. Brock enjoys modeling evening wear because she feels so elegant. She also likes designer clothes and styles because it includes styles she doesn't have in her wardrobe. "It's like playing dress-up, which I played as a little girl. I didn't know I was destined to become a model," she said.

She graduated from Appalachian

University with a degree in psychology. While still a student, she took a modeling course and was associated with a modeling agency. After graduation, she worked for about a year and then went back into modeling which she has done professionally for two years.

Her advice to others interested in becoming a model is to "get any type of stage experience, high school plays and little theatres. It helps to have public exposure. Be relaxed and develop a stage personality as well as feeling comfortable posing before a still camera. Be persistent! You will be turned down for jobs, but keep trying - it's like any career, you don't always get the first job you apply for. The main thing is to keep at it," she said.

Andrew Wehrenberg, who now lives in Atlanta, Ga., was motivated by his older sister, who was modeling. "Initially I started doing sportswear for magazines locally (in Jacksonville, Fla.). It took a while - I knocked on a lot of doors and contacted agencies. I was chosen to do a jeans ad in Atlanta. The ad was then turned into a billboard and I had a lot of good exposure there," he recalled.

ANDREW WEHRENBURG

He then started getting offers and started working more doing runways, catalogues for clothing stores and also auditioned for the Belk show. "This show is good experience. It's good to get psyched up for each show," he said.

This is Wehrenberg's fourth year in the Belk show. "The show gives a variety of activities including being on talk shows and doing interviews," he said.

Wehrenberg enjoys doing live shows over catalogue prints. "You have more rapport with the audiences. I like the travel and variety of people we meet. It's not the usual 9 to 5 job. There is a little bit of glamor and a whole lot of work; however, you're never sure you'll be working. There is always a question mark and there are slack seasons like June, July and August, the in-between seasons. You have to be versatile in the business."

"The age range is usually better for male models than females. The peak age for guys is 20-40. There are more older men working than older women," he said.

He also does some character modeling. "For instance, if I know

Seasonal Fire Prevention Makes Sense All Year Long

DEAR READERS: Last year in the United States, 6,137 people died in fires. The total loss in property alone came to $6.43 billion.

In Canada there were 675 fire-related deaths. The property damage was $998.89 million.

This is Fire Prevention Week, and although fires occur throughout the year, each season has its own special fire hazards. Here are some tips for all seasons:

FALL: If you enjoy camping, select a tent made of flame-resistant fabric. Pack a reliable flashlight with plenty of extra batteries to light the inside of your tent—never use matches or candles. When building a campfire, place it downwind of your tent. And never try to hasten the burning by using gasoline or other flammable liquid starters.

If you use your fireplace, have your chimney professionally cleaned in the fall to make sure it's in good condition for the coming season.

WINTER: More fires occur during winter than in any other season. The reasons: home heating and the holiday season.

If you use a portable heater, be sure it is placed away from combustibles—draperies, furniture, paper, etc. Remember, the surface heat of some portable heaters may reach 500 degrees, so keep a careful watch on your children and warn them to keep away from heaters. Hospitals are treating an increasing number of patients with burns resulting from contact with the outside surface of some portable heaters.

For a Merry Christmas, choose a Christmas tree that does not have shedding needles, and keep it standing in water while it is in the house. If you choose an artificial tree, choose one that is flame-resistant.

After holiday parties, before retiring, check your ashtrays for smoldering cigarette butts, and carefully examine all upholstered chairs and sofas to make sure that no "live" cigarette butts have fallen between the cushions. Remember, most house fires occur between 8 p.m. and 8 a.m., when people are sleeping.

SPRING: Take spring cleaning seriously—clean out your attic, basement, garage and workshop. Throw out trash, especially combustibles such as rags, newspapers, magazines, boxes and scraps of wood. Never smoke while fueling gas-powered lawn mowers or chain saws. If you must store gasoline, store it in a ventilated area in a can designed especially for that purpose. And store oily rags and paint in a cool place in tightly sealed metal containers.

SUMMER: When cooking out, never use flammable liquids near live coals. An explosion or flash fire could result. When you've finished cooking, soak the coals with water and make absolutely sure they're out when you leave. Smoldering coals that appear to be "dead" can reignite as much as a day later. If you use a propane gas grill, always have the lighted match in position before turning on the gas.

Some tips for all seasons:

- Never smoke in bed.
- Never leave invalids or small children alone in the house—not even for "a few minutes."
- Never use flammable liquids for dry cleaning indoors.

- Have periodic fire drills in your home to be sure everyone knows what to do in case of fire.
- Keep easy-to-use fire extinguishers in your kitchen, cottage, back bedrooms and on your boat. And if you can afford smoke detectors, install them and be sure that they are always dust-free and in working order.

- The phone number of your fire department should be taped to every telephone in your house. If it isn't, should a fire occur, don't waste time trying to find it; get out, and call from a neighbor's house. And once you are out, stay out. No treasure is worth risking your life for.

It took less than three minutes to read this column. Was it worth it? I hope so.

History Associates Have Orientation Session Recently

The N. C. Museum of History Associates began their 1984 membership campaign with a luncheon and orientation session at the historic Jones House in New Bern.

The meeting was held for campaign volunteers in Eastern N.C. Attending from Pitt County were Mrs. Rhett Honeycutt, chairman, Mrs. Howard Dawkins, Mrs. Baxter Richardson, Mrs. Tom Taft, Mrs. Vance Taylor, Mrs. Michael Weaver, Mrs. Robert Young and Mrs. Bill Corbett.

The volunteers were the first to preview a new museum program "North Carolina's First Ladies," which was produced and funded by the museum associates. The audiovisual program features gowns in the museum collection which belonged to the wives of 23 N.C. governors, beginning with the Revolutionary period to the present.

In addition to the gowns, the audiovisual shows portraits, artifacts and memorabilia, providing information about the personalities and accomplishments of the state's first ladies.

The museum associates have funded several educational resources and audiovisual programs for every eighth grade classroom in the state. The First Ladies program reflects the role of women in N.C. history and along with serving as an aid in teaching history, it will be shown at Museum of History Associate-sponsored Museum Days across the state.

Bonds That Tie

A rare treasure in the field of individuals' human rights will find a permanent home in the United States. It is one of four copies of the Magna Charta issued in 1297 — renewing the original English document acknowledging the rights of individuals.

What makes it especially important to Americans is that the document (signed by Edward I and written on animal skin) is largely regarded as the basis for our constitution and our system of government. Unlike its predecessor, signed by King John at Runnymede in 1215, the document acquired by Texan H. Ross Perot became English law. In due time it will be enshrined with the U.S. Constitution, the Declaration of Independence and Bill of Rights.

It is an almost mystical coincidence that sale of the historic document was approved in this year of celebrating the 400th anniversary of the first English colony in the New World, on North Carolina's coast ... reaffirming, as it were, ties of traditions and values between England and America.

We are reminded anew that the Revolution which brought forth a new nation on this continent was largely launched by men who saw themselves as Englishmen fighting for their rights as English citizens.

They were unaware that separation and unlimited new horizons, coupled with rare responsibilities in governing their own affairs, had made them a breed apart.

But not too far apart.

Reminder

Shark stories abound on the North Carolina coast, just as they do in any coastal area.

There is hardly anyone who spends much time on the coast who hasn't heard stories of shark sightings and even of attacks on humans. The movie "Jaws" put the fear of sharks in us, even though it is rare for humans to be attacked in shallow waters.

But the great white sharks are, indeed, off the North Carolina coast as the crew of the commercial fishing vessel, Alligator, proved last week. They brought in a 15½ foot shark weighing 2,080 pounds. The shark became entangled in a fishing cable. The crew was unable to bring him aboard and so they towed the shark to their homeport of Morehead City.

That is, of course, no reason to cease swimming in the coastal waters off Morehead City ... but remember, the sharks are there.

Relations Worsen In Middle East

WASHINGTON — Lebanese intelligence officials suspect but will not identify the Shiite fundamentalists in the Beirut area behind the truck-bombing of the U.S. Embassy, confirming growing U.S. impotence — matched by an alarming Soviet resurgence — in the Middle East.

Information obtained by Lebanese agents about the fourth major terrorist attack on U.S. installations in the Middle East is not being confided to the U.S. Suspicious of American policymakers, officials in the Beirut regime may fear that U.S. retaliation would further damage Lebanon's status in the Arab world.

There is not the slightest taint of suspicion that any Lebanese official had prior knowledge of the attack that killed two Americans. But resistance to confiding in Washington shows the depths to which trust in the U.S. has fallen in Lebanon since the collapse of Secretary of State George Shultz's well-intended effort to arrange simultaneous withdrawal of Israeli and Syrian troops.

In this mood of malaise, neither diplomats nor specialists in anti-American terror are willing to speculate publicly on where terrorists will attack next. One intelligence insider told us: "This is a dog that does not bark. We cannot know where it's going to happen next."

A good guess is one of the small Persian Gulf states such as Bahrain or the Arab Emirates, or even another stab at Kuwait. A slaughter of American diplomats at the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait last winter was barely foiled, largely by good luck.

The situation is symptomatic of America's Mideastern malaise, deriving from policy decisions in Washington. The veto by the U.S. in the United Nations Security Council early in September of a Lebanese-sponsored resolution condemning Israel's occupation conduct almost certainly helped trigger the terrorist attack on the new U.S. Embassy in presumably secure Christian Beirut.

Seeking to avoid the new stigma of a veto, Shultz and top Mideast hands at State almost begged Lebanon to hold off offering the resolution. But the weak Lebanese government, faced with the grave deterioration of its southern regions under Israeli occupation, went ahead anyway.

Lebanese officials privately told the U.S. that Israel's refusal to soften its harsh regimen in occupied Southern Lebanon made delay of the U.N. resolution impossible. They said they had no other choice with Lebanese families divided, commerce at a standstill and Shiite killings by the Israeli-run Southern Lebanon Army a common occurrence.

Loss of influence in the small country where the U.S. had exercised full sway ever since President Eisenhower landed troops there in 1958 is matched in reverse by Soviet movements throughout the Middle East. That's a situation Reagan administration officials prefer to play down — as when Kuwait was about to sign a multimillion-dollar weapons deal with the Soviets this past summer.

Robert C. McFarlane, the president's national security adviser, said he doubted that any such deal would actually be consummated. Despite McFarlane's reputation for prudence, he was proved wrong. Indeed, the Kuwait-Soviet arms deal has now entered a deeper phase, with the first-ever agreement to accept Soviet advisers and technicians to train Kuwaitis on their new Soviet arms.

In Egypt, the return of the Soviet ambassador to Cairo and the Egyptian envoy to Moscow marks a restoration of normal diplomatic relations that Israel, helped by the U.S., is unable to persuade the Egyptians to duplicate. Egypt put its Israeli relations on hold, pulling its ambassador out of Tel Aviv after Israeli troops moved into Southern Lebanon.

Considering Egypt's importance in the Arab world, Soviet influence rises throughout the Middle East because of its closer ties with Cairo. The Kremlin's Mideast stock also is boosted by the new alliance between Morocco, America's closest North African Arab friend, and Libya, a hated enemy of Washington and ally of Moscow.

Strength For Today

Often we become what our wishes make us. Ralph Waldo Emerson once said that one should always be careful what his dearest wish is, for it will almost certainly come true. Of course, like all epigrams, this one is something of an exaggeration. There are many of our wishes which never come true. But what the wise old Yankee sage meant was this: that if we want things badly enough we usually get them, and what we persistently cherish in the real of desire comes true in the realm of the actual.

But things people want sometimes destroy their souls. That is the meaning of the declaration in Psalm 106:15: "He gave them the desire of their hearts, and sent leanness into their souls." There is nothing so disillusioning as to work and wait a lifetime for the heart's desire, and then to find when it arrives, that it is dust and ashes.

A Bird In Hand Is A Bird That Costs

I was eating at my favorite Washington restaurant the other day when I overheard an Army general and what I presumed to be someone from the defense industry in discussion.

"Harry, the bird doesn't work," the general said.

"What do you mean the bird doesn't work? I saw it fly with my own eyes at our testing grounds. You were with me. The guy knocked down four drone planes with the bird."

"I saw it. But we took it out and tested it ourselves in battlefield conditions. Every time one of our guys fired one, instead of heading for a plane it hit an outhouse. Are you sure you didn't have those drones fixed to blow up just for us?"

"Chuck, you're not talking to some civilian. This is Harry Minnefie, West Point Class of '64, the guy who returned a kick 90 yards against Notre Dame. Just because I left the service doesn't mean I left the honor code behind me. You're not going to release the results of the tests, are you?"

"We weren't. But somehow a congressman got wind that we withheld them and gave the report to the press, and that brought the inspector general in, and now the secretary is chewing out my butt. We ordered 1,000 of the birds at $5 million each, and they can't shoot down an ostrich."

"Look, we know the bird has a few minor bugs in it, and we're working on it now. We're going to replace the laser, the microchip, the guidance system and the payload. You're going to get the best bird the Army ever ordered."

"When?"

"Two, three years at the most. Of course, we can't let you have it for $5 million. We figure we can bring it in at 9, not including spare parts."

"I can't go back to the Pentagon and tell them we're going to have to pay 9 for a bird you promised to deliver for 5. The heat's on there now, and they're starting to ask questions about price. As a matter of fact, after they found out about the tests they sent in their accountants, and they said you overcharged us by a half-billion dollars."

"So?"

"They want half the money back, Harry."

"Come on, you have to be kidding. They want us to give them back $250 million just because one of our bookkeepers made a mistake?"

"They really wanted all of it back, but the Defense Department is going to eat half because we like doing business with your company."

"Chuck, let's be reasonable. Maybe the bird isn't what it's cracked up to be, but what is today? You buy a car, it doesn't work; you buy a refrigerator, it breaks down. Why should a defense contractor be held to higher standards? When we designed the ground-to-air missile, we knew it had a few flaws in it, but you guys were dying to get it into production, because if you didn't the Air Force would get the money for their bird. Now you're making us the fall guys because the thing can't get off the ground."

Edwin Meese, counselor to the president and would-be attorney general, was watching Michael Jackson and siblings do their thing at Washington's Robert F. Kennedy Stadium. Many of the city's other politeratti had joined him courtesy of the Jackson tour's promoter, Pepsi-Cola. Pepsi lobbyist Max Friedersdorf, formerly of the Reagan White House, had invited virtually everyone he knew — and then some — to witness the highly touted road show.

But Meese might have been just another parent in an arena filled with youthful, mostly white Michael

"Harry, if it were my decision I couldn't care less. I've only got one year to go before I retire. But Congress is on our backs about all the weapons we've ordered that don't pan out, and they're demanding guarantees they work before we buy them."

"What the hell kind of national security policy is that? Look, Chuck, we're not just talking about 1,000 birds. We're talking about 50,000 jobs. If you cancel the contract on us now, we're going to have to close down shop."

"We're not going to cancel the order. If we did we'd be admitting we made a mistake. All we're asking is that you pay us back $250 million to show we mean business when it comes to demanding quality control. As a West Point classmate, is that asking too much?"

"I'll make a deal with you, Chuck. We'll give you your lousy quarter of a billion dollars back if you order 2,000 new birds at $7 million each. I swear to you this one will knock a fruit fly out of the sky."

"What do we do with the ones that are now knocking out outhouses?"

"Keep them. Did it ever occur to you that you can kill more Commies in an outhouse than you can in a Backfire bomber?"

Jacksons' Tour Stands Divided

WASHINGTON — Within shouting distance of the stage stood a portly, familiar-looking man who'd been on the front pages only that week. He'd chucked his everyday pinstripes for a turquois leisure suit. Try as he did, however, he couldn't keep up with the gyrations of his noticeably better practiced 18-year-old daughter.

"It's my first rock concert," he said with a smile, trying to appear the contemporary father, "and it probably will be my last."

Edwin Meese, counselor to the president and would-be attorney general, was watching Michael Jackson and siblings do their thing at Washington's Robert F. Kennedy Stadium. Many of the city's other politeratti had joined him courtesy of the Jackson tour's promoter, Pepsi-Cola. Pepsi lobbyist Max Friedersdorf, formerly of the Reagan White House, had invited virtually everyone he knew — and then some — to witness the highly touted road show.

But Meese might have been just another parent in an arena filled with youthful, mostly white Michael maniacs. This was, after all, the made-for-middle-America Victory Tour, which when all is sung and the moonwalking is over, will go down as a dividing rather than unifying phenomenon.

About 90,000 people passed through metal detectors at the entrance of RFK to witness the Jackson sound and light show on two successive nights. Some 300 beefy bouncers, about four times as many as the Washington Redskins employ for games at the same arena, patrolled the gate and passageways. Of course, given a prohibition against alcohol consumption and the crowd's orderly nature, there were probably four times fewer drunks than at most Redskin games.

Yet, a Jackson fear could have been of some dissatisfied customers. You might not have guessed that from the shrieks, emitted from euphoric adolescents every time Michael J. thrust his sequined self toward the audience. Indeed, the laser show and special effects were of "Star Wars" quality.

But as far as concerts go, Victory was a loser. Unless you were sitting up front with the Meese family, you soon realized why football arenas don't suit music of any sort. The acoustics were lousy, the multimillion-dollar sound system couldn't compensate for that fact, and, for most of us in the stands, the distance to the stage seemed even longer than some of Joe Theismann's best passes.

Thirty dollars was an awful lot to pay to drink Cokes (no Pepsi) and watch the huge television screen set up for those people who'd come without binoculars. But, then again, the Victory Tour was tailored for people who had money to burn.

Of the 90,000 seats filled at RFK, very few were taken by underprivileged city residents. On the day before the first RFK concert, District of Columbia Mayor Marion Barry announced a plan to give away 950 free tickets to needy youths through a citywide lottery program. D.C. schools unveiled their intention to award 60 tickets to students with the best attendance records. Under preliminary criticism for the price of their tickets, the Jacksons decided to provide some tickets to young fans who couldn't otherwise afford them.

But RFK sits in one of the poorer sections of a predominantly black city, and "The Other America" author Michael Harrington might have remarked at the sight of so many whites from the suburbs passing by hundreds of watchful local residents. The city's free ticket plan ultimately satisfied only one request in every 40; Pepsi's giveaway plan for its important friends was much more generous.

Only days before, the Victory Tour's community relations director, the Rev. Al Sharpton, had called the Jackson appearance "a celebration of six brothers who grew up poor, who grew up proud and who grew up minority."

But the Jacksons' tour is, in fact, a testament to the stratification that exists between rich and poor. The Jacksons themselves may reject such a suggestion, but most of us who could afford to see and hear them should have felt embarrassed.

Housing Authority Changes Admission Policy

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Housing Authority approved revision of authority admission policy at its regular monthly meeting Monday.

The board's action, mandated by federal legislation that went into effect Monday, called for balancing of income limits between public and Section 8 housing, revision of the income deduction structure and made provision for the assessment of residents' assets when developing rent rates. New policies governing admission to Section 8 housing were also adopted.

The changes, GHA Director Joe Laney explained, have been in the works since 1981 and come directly from housing and community development amendments made in 1981 and the Housing and Urban Renewal Recovery Act of 1983. The federal mandate was not passed on to local authorities until recently, because HUD did not publish the regulations until May of 1984, Laney said.

"In taking these measures, the administration (HUD) has emphasized the fact that there are not enough units available to provide everyone who needs help with a home. So HUD is urging housing authorities to give priority to the 'Very Low Income' designated families that constitute 50 percent of the median (wage earning population)," he said.

GHA policy revisions including the following:

INCOME LIMITS — HUD now prescribes that both public and Section 8 housing use the "lower income" designation, which translates to a maximum allowable resident income of $16,400 per four member family. Previously, only the Section 8 program carried the $16,400 limit; the public housing income limit was set at $13,100. (Section 8 housing covers both new construction as well as existing construction which is, for the most part, rented by non-authority owners who receive supplements from GHA to offset the difference between what an occupant can afford and true market values.)

INCOME DEDUCTIONS — HUD has increased the deduction for dependents from $300 to $480 and has initiated a new $400 deduction for elderly families to complement the regular medical expense deduction. Non-elderly families will no longer be allowed medical deductions.

FAMILY ASSETS — When a family has net assets in excess of $5,000, annual income figures shall now include the greater of actual income generated by the assets or the passbook savings percentage as determined by HUD — currently 5.5 percent.

NEW ADMISSIONS — Only "Very Low Income" families (families of four members with yearly incomes totaling no more than $10,250) will be issued Section 8 certificates. Conventional and moderate rehabilitation units initially available prior to Oct. 1, 1981, may continue to accept "Lower Income" families; however, only "Very Low Income" families may be admitted to projects which became available after Oct. 1, 1981.

According to Laney, the net result of the changes will be a slight reduction in welfare and elderly family rents. He said working family rents should remain about the same and that loss of medical deductions for families should be offset by increased deductions for dependents.

In other business, GHA Assistant Director Ken Nolan reported that Stage I modernization of Kearney Park is now complete. Improvements covered under the Stage I project were interior and exterior painting, window and door replacement, furnace and hot water heater replacement, addition of insulation and improvements to 35 kitchens. Nolan said that Stage II work has already begun and includes storm drainage work, improvements to utility distribution systems and improvements to the remainder of Kearney Park kitchens not covered under Stage I.

In final business, GHA Director of Resident Affairs Sallye Streeter reported that three housing authority units were vacant at the end of September — two in Moyewood and one in Newtown. Monthly rentals at the authority's projects were as follows: Meadowbrook, $121.05; Kearney Park, $133.56; Moyewood I, $120.24; Moyewood II, $138.38; Newtown, $119.10; and Hopkins Park, $102.21. Average rent totalled $121.52.

Laney added that 30 percent of GHA unit residents were receiving no financial assistance, 45 percent were either widowed, elderly or disabled. Only 25 percent of GHA's residents received aid to families with dependent children in September.

How They Voted

Roll Call Report Service
WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Sept. 20-26.

House

CRIME — By a vote of 243 for and 166 against, the House approved a package of anti-crime bills sought by the administration.

The package was attached to a stopgap appropriations measure (HJ Res 648) that will fund most government operations in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

The stopgap bill, which was sent to the Senate, is needed because Congress since January, 1983, has enacted only four of 13 regular appropriations bills.

Although approving several individual crime bills, the Democratic-led House had kept much of the president's Crime Control Act of 1984 bottled up in committee. Some critics called parts of it unconstitutional.

The federal anti-crime legislation will not directly affect state courts, where most criminals are prosecuted.

In part, the package legalizes pre-trial detention of dangerous defendants, toughens sentencing and parole, restricts the use of habeas corpus petitions, narrows the insanity defense, and makes it easier to prosecute dangerous juveniles as adults.

But it excludes President Reagan's proposal to reinstate the death penalty.

Members voting yes supported the Administration's anti-crime package.

Voting yes: Tim Valentine, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Stephen Neal, D-5, Charles Britt, D-6, Charles Rose, D-7, W.G. Hefner, D-8, and James Broyhill, R-10.

Voting no: Walter Jones, D-1, and James Clarke, D-11.

Not voting: James Martin, R-9.

CHILD ABUSE: The House voted, 369 for and 37 against, to increase federal spending by $50 million in fiscal 1985 for the purpose of combatting child abuse.

States would share the money for programs that train parents and child-care personnel to detect and prevent child abuse. To receive full funding, states would have to require background checks if employees at day-care centers.

The money was added to the 1985 stopgap funding bill (above).

Supporter George Miller, D-Calif., said, "child abuse in day-care centers is a clear and present horror affecting an increasing number of children."

No opponent spoke against the measure.

Members voting no were opposed to the $50 million outlay to combat child abuse.

Voting yes: Walter Jones, Valentine, Whitley, Ike Andrews, Neal, Britt, Rose Hefner and Clarke.

Voting no: Broyhill.

Not voting: James Martin.

CUT — By a vote of 273 for and 134 against, the House inflicted a two percent across-the-board cut in fiscal 1985 foreign aid. This reduced military and economic air by $280 million.

The amendment was opposed by President Reagan. Aid to Egypt and Israel, which accounts for one-third of bilateral U.S. aid, was exempted from the cut.

The amendment was attached to HJ Res 648 (above).

Sponsor Hank Brown, R-Colo., said foreign aid would be hiked by nearly $1.5 billion over 1984 levels. He called that wrong in view of the government's "enormous deficit (and) our efforts to control spending on the domestic side."

Opponent Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., said "it may be good politics to cut foreign aid. But is it good for national security policy?"

Members voting yes favored cutting foreign aid.

Voting yes: Walter Jones, Valentine, Whitley, Ike Andrews, Neal, Britt, Rose, Hefner, Broyhill and Clarke.

Voting no: none.

Not voting: James Martin.

Senate

TV — By a vote of 37 for and 44 against, the Senate failed to silence a filibuster against permitting live television and radio coverage of Senate floor activity.

This killed any chance of enacting the proposal this year. The House permits electronic coverage of its floor proceedings. Gavel-to-gavel television coverage of the House reaches 17 million homes nationwide via cable channel.

Supporter Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said "Democratic government is not an exclusive, arcane rite to be kept accessible only to a select few."

Opponent Mack Mattingly, R-Ga., said "I do not think the public suffers greatly from a lack of information about the happenings in this chamber."

Senators voting no were against live television and radio coverage of the Senate floor.

John East, R, and Jesse Helms, R, voted no.

Business Seminars

Development of business-related skills will be emphasized in a series of seminars sponsored by East Carolina University's Division of Continuing Education in five North Carolina and Virginia locations this fall.

The programs scheduled are "Leading People to Higher Productivity" to be offered in Raleigh, Norfolk, Greensboro and Arlington; "Time Management for Managers and Professionals" in Raleigh, Greenville, Greensboro, Arlington and Norfolk; "Professional Sales Skills" in Greensboro, Raleigh, Richmond and Arlington, and "Negotiating Techniques for Salespeople," in Greensboro, Raleigh, Greenville, Richmond and Arlington.

For information on seminar dates contact the continuing education division.

Lobster Fair

The annual fall Lobster Fair of St. Timothy's Episcopal Church to benefit various church projects will be held Saturday at the church, located at 14th Street Extension and Cherry Oaks.

Activities will include crafts, pony rides, live entertainment, a children's mini fair, and refreshments.

Lobsters are being distributed to those who placed orders. None will be available at the fair site.

Fair co-chairwomen are Mrs. Sharon Johnston and Mrs. Kathy Woods.

Optimist Honored

Charles R. Ross was recently presented a plaque honoring him as the "Outstanding Optimist of the Year."

Ross received the award for his service in the club, his commitment to being a "friend of the youth," and for his optimistic way of life. He was also recipient of the Billy Ross Award, which is given annually to a club member who has exhibited leadership and dedication in working with area youth.

The Billy Ross Award was established by the club in honor and memory of the late Billy Ross of Greenville who was a longtime member of the organization.

Charles Ross, a past president of the club, was chairman of the youth activities committee this year. He coordinated Youth Appreciation Week, the Optimist oratorical contest and the scholarship committee.

Ross is married to the former Ellen Gibson of Greenville and they have two children.

Troupe Member

Nancy Ann Thompson has been selected as a member of the Peace Pacers jazz dance troupe for the 1984-85 school year at Peace College. A freshman at Peace, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Thompson of Greenville.

'Plague' Discussed

"The Plague and Other Plagues of Renaissance Italy" was the subject of a talk held at Pitt County Memorial Hospital today.

Dr. Ann G. Carmichael, an Indiana University physician-historian who is an authority on medicine in early modern Europe, was the speaker. Her talk, funded by the Charles E. Culpeper Foundation, was sponsored by the humanities program of the East Carolina University School of Medicine as part of its Perspectives series.

Trip Planned

The Arthur Chapel Chorus will sponsor a trip to New Haven, Conn. The bus will leave Friday at 9 p.m. and will return Sunday night. Cost is $55 per seat. For more information, call 758-0276.

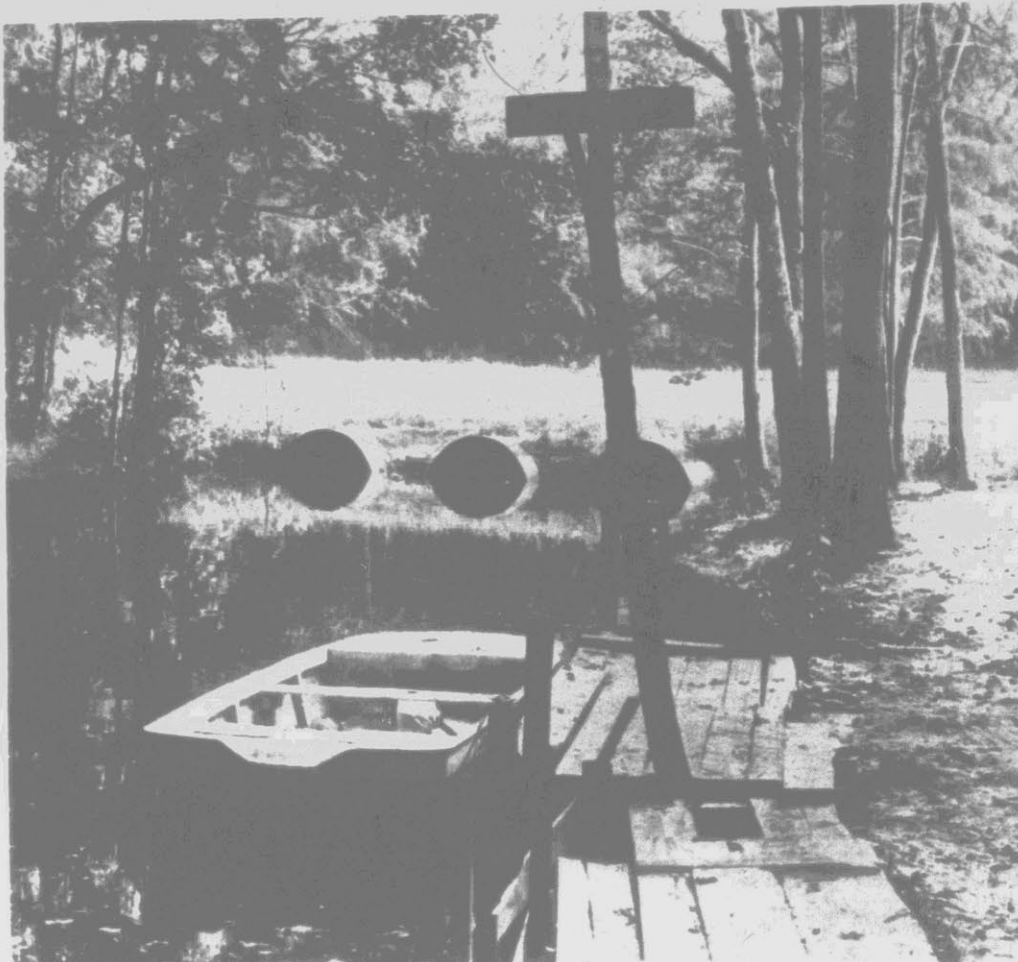

Church Celebration

A four-day celebration of the 119th annual season of the Old Eastern Missionary Baptist Association will be held Thursday through Sunday at Mount Shiloh Missionary Baptist Church, Winterville.

Proclamation

Gov. Jim Hunt has proclaimed Oct. 7-13 as Employ the Handicapped Week in North Carolina as part of the 40th annual nationwide observance which highlights contributions of handicapped individuals to the labor force.

For more information contact the local division of Vocational Rehabilitation or Employment Security Commission office.

Three Injured

Three people were reported injured and an estimated $6,150 in damages resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Tuesday.

Officers said cars driven by Diane Detert Moore of 105 Martinsborough Road and Gary Franklin Turpin of Havelock collided about 3:42 p.m. on Charles Street, 250 feet south of the Greenville Boulevard intersection. Damages were estimated at $3,000 to the Moore vehicle and $2,500 damage to the Turpin auto.

Police, who charged Ms. Moore with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, reported both drivers and a passenger in the Moore car were injured.

Cars driven by Peter Stephen Mushi of 402 Eastern St. and Ken Howard Little of Route 4, Greenville, collided about 8:17 p.m. on Tenth Street, 200 feet east of the Heath Street intersection, resulting in an estimated $200 damage to the Mushi car and $450 damage to the Little vehicle.

Firearms Workshop

A firearms workshop for youth 12 and older and interested adults will be held Oct. 13.

The workshop will consist of six hours of classroom instruction and one hour of range firing. Classroom instruction will begin at 9 a.m. at Wahl Coates School and will be followed by firing instruction at the Greenville Police Department firing range on Cemetery Road. Participants will be bused from Wahl Coates to the firing range.

To register, call the Pitt County Agricultural Extension office at 752-2934, ext. 369.

Break-Ins Reported

Greenville police are investigating two break-ins reported Monday.

Officer K.A. Bedell said $5 in change and an antique gold watch were taken from 2534 Sunset Ave. in a break-in reported at 5:30 p.m.

The officer said a microwave oven, valued at $500, was taken from 602B Green Villa Apartments in an incident reported at 8:40 p.m.

Swimming Lessons

The Eastern Carolina Vocational Center will offer adult beginner swimming lessons Mondays and Wednesdays from 8:30-9:30 a.m. for four weeks beginning Monday.

An adult advanced beginner/intermediate class will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays from 11 a.m. to noon for four weeks beginning Tuesday.

Fees for the classes are $35 per person. For more information contact the Eastern Carolina Vocational Center aquatics staff at 758-4188, ext. 237.

Property Taken

Police are investigating two thefts reported to the Greenville department on Tuesday.

Officer F.G. Pruitt said two end tables, two beds, two dressers, a sofa and a love seat, valued at $1,000, were taken from a home at 418 Bonner's Lane, according to an 8:50 p.m. report.

Officer E.C. Moore said an adding machine, Dictaphone, and clock were reported stolen from room 276 West at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. The incident, he said, was reported at 12:30 p.m.

Suicide Ruled

Greenville police said today that a man found dead in an apartment at Wilson Acres Tuesday morning died of a self-inflicted shotgun wound to the head.

Detective N.L. Garrish identified the man as James Thornton Hudson, 58, of apartment L-11.

Investigators said Hudson, who lived alone, was found seated in a wheelchair in the bathroom of his apartment about 9:40 a.m. by a maintenance man.

Registration Dispute May Be Settled

Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson said today that his department is continuing to investigate a report that a special registration commissioner was prohibited from registering prospective voters at a Winterville apartment development Sunday.

But Tyson said the matter may be settled now that the special commissioners have permission to go onto the property.

The sheriff said his department received a complaint about trespassers at Pinewood Village at 5 p.m. Sunday, from the apartment complex manager.

He said a deputy sent to investigate said there were "No Trespassing" and "No Soliciting" signs posted, and that a group of special registration commissioners were attempting to register residents of the complex.

Tyson said that on Tuesday, Jo Linda Sanders of Route 2, Winterville, "came in ... and made a complaint" that she and other special registration commissioners had been obstructed in their efforts to register residents of the apartments Sunday.

"We talked with the owners" who, the sheriff said, "have agreed to let them go back out there. They can go register anybody they want to."

Ms. Sanders is one of about 140 special registration commissioners appointed by the county board of elections, officials confirmed this morning.

Underground Missile Base Considered

NEW YORK (AP) — The Air Force has proposed constructing a huge nuclear missile base 3,000 feet underground which could survive a nuclear attack and have retaliatory capacity within three days, the New York Times reported today.

The Air Force made the proposal to Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger in July following a two-year study, claiming the proposal was both militarily and technologically feasible, the Times said. Intercontinental ballistic missiles would be stored in the base, the report said.

The cost of constructing the base, which would be built in the 1990s, has been estimated at up to $50 billion, the Times reported. The Air Force spent $10 million studying the plan in fiscal 1984, and might spend the same amount in the current fiscal year, the report said.

The exact cost of the plan would depend on the extent of the base, the number and type of missiles built, the site's geology and the speed with which it would have to be constructed, the Times said.

The base would resemble a 400-mile subway system some 2,500 to 3,000 feet underground, probably in the desert of the western United States, the Times said. It would be able to survive for one year after a nuclear attack, according to the report.

The proposal would supplant the MX missile program, a controversial plan that faces a critical vote in Congress next spring, the Times reported. The MX plan was to place 100 missiles in concrete silos underground.

The Times reported there was no indication whether Weinberger had reached a decision on the Air Force proposal.

Stricken Cuban Finds Way Home

Refugee BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — The pilot of a Colombian cargo jet commandeered to Cuba reported that the hijacker was a Cuban man who said he had cancer and wanted to die in his native country.

The plane was hijacked Tuesday from Cartagena on Colombia's north coast and returned to Colombia later in the day.

The news agency Colprensa quoted the pilot, Manuel Cervera, as saying the hijacker apparently hid in the cargo area with two women and two children as the DC-8 was being loaded.

Back At Base

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet ballistic missile submarine seen drifting and spewing thick smoke off Japan last month has returned to its Vladivostok base, Jane's Defense Weekly reports.

The magazine said the 3,000-ton submarine, which carries three SSN-5 nuclear-tipped missiles, made its way back under its own steam "after 52 hours of fire-fighting and damage control efforts."

It said analysis of photographs of the stricken Golf II-class sub taken by Japanese Maritime Defense patrol planes indicated the fire was started by an electrical overload caused when the craft was snarled in a Japanese shrimp boat's nets Sept. 18.

China Advertises Weapons As Being 'Combat Proven'

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — China has begun advertising "combat proven" weapons in a major Western defense magazine in what is seen as a bid to earn foreign exchange and improve its ability to produce weapons.

A full-page, color ad in the September issue of the International Defense Review offers "affordable innovations for today." It is believed to be the first such advertisement to appear in the West, said Bob Furlong, the magazine's director of publications.

"It is the first advertisement of its kind in the magazine, and as far as we know the first in the West," Furlong said. "It appears to us that the Chinese are going into the export business as a means of increasing their foreign exchange."

The review, printed monthly in Geneva in English, Spanish, French and German, has a circulation of 30,000, but about 300,000 people read it regularly, Furlong said.

Furlong said additional foreign exchange could allow the Chinese to purchase some military equipment from the West, and "to improve their technical base in order to be able to produce the equipment themselves when their defense budget is expanded to allow this."

The advertisement, which offers "simple, robust, efficient and more importantly cost-effective" equipment built by engineers who "are more budget conscious by tradition," marks a change of policy that Furlong said began in Australia in May when China exhibited arms for the first time abroad.

The Chinese also plan to participate in a major defense exhibition in Athens on Oct. 15, Furlong said.

The most recent and extensive display of Chinese military equipment came Monday when China provided a glimpse of its strategic weapons, artillery, armor and missiles at ceremonies in Peking marking the 35th anniversary of Communist rule.

Among the armor displayed were items contained in the advertisement by a state-owned company called "Norinco," or the China North Industries Corporation of Peking. It offered equipment including howitzers, rocket launchers and other weapons.

An official at the Chinese mission to the United Nations in Geneva said officials able to comment on the advertisement were unavailable for comment.

Furlong, who specializes in Chinese affairs, said he believed the advertisement was aimed primarily at Third World countries, since the weapons being offered are less sophisticated and less expensive than similar equipment from Western nations.

Most of the weapons being offered are of basic Soviet origin, with Chinese modifications or redesign but without "anything startling in the way of new technology," a Western military analyst said. Furlong said that with the exception of space and missiles, Chinese "technology is quite a number of years behind that of the major industrial countries."

"It appears unlikely at this stage that they're going to buy any large quantified of military equipment from the West," Furlong commented, "and what they seem to be trying to do is improve their technical base."

Furlong said the attempt to sell arms on the world market appeared to be devoid of "any political influence on potential buyers. It appears to be a straight economic deal at the moment."

U.S. Denies Invasion Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — A claim by Nicaraguan leader Daniel Ortega that the United States plans a "military offensive" against his country on Oct. 15 is drawing sharply worded denials from the Reagan administration.

One U.S. official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, expressed surprise at Ortega's comments, noting that Nicaragua's leftist government has warned frequently of imminent invasions that never took place.

There have been at least five previous claims this year alone, although Ortega's was the first to mention a specific date.

Less than an hour after Ortega made the comment Tuesday in a speech to the United Nations General Assembly, State Department deputy spokesman Alan Romberg dismissed the prediction as "obviously absurd."

In Brownsville, Texas, where President Reagan was campaigning, White House chief of staff James A. Baker III said Ortega's claim was "absolutely not true." Pentagon spokesman Michael Burch called it "absolute nonsense."

Privately, a U.S. official said Ortega's statement may have been linked to the start earlier this week of joint U.S.-Honduran military exercises that are scheduled to continue until Oct. 21. Honduras is Nicaragua's northern neighbor.

This official also suggested that the Nicaraguan warning could have been intended to pressure other Central American countries into giving final approval to a proposed regional peace treaty that has been drawn up by the Contadora mediation group, comprised of Venezuela, Mexico, Panama and Colombia.

The mediators have set Oct. 15 for the Central Americans to offer comments on the draft, the same day Ortega has said the invasion will take place.

The treaty has become a source of contention between Managua and Washington, with Nicaragua insisting that the treaty be accepted as is and the United States saying the proposal requires a number of revisions.

The United States is not a party to the Contadora negotiations but has made its views known to the participating countries since the process began 20 months ago.

North Koreans Object To Speech

TOKYO (AP) — An official North Korean newspaper charged today that it was a "treacherous act" for South Korea to accept flood relief goods from the North while at the same time speaking "ill of us."

The article referred to an Armed Forces Day speech Monday in which South Korean President Chun Doo-hwan accused the North of expanding its military forces near the border and said the South "should preserve a superior military power to overwhelm any threat from the Communist North."

The North Korean Workers' Party newspaper Rodong Sinmun, commenting on the speech, said: "At a time when public opinion at home and abroad is highly speaking of the delivery of our relief goods for the flood victims to South Korea...Chun Doo-hwan, the dictator, maliciously slandered us, harping on the trite theme of anti-Communism. This is a treacherous act."

While Chun delivered his address, South and North Korean workers were busy at two South Korean ports unloading North Korean relief goods under an unprecedented agreement between the Red Cross organizations of the two bitter Korean War enemies.

Chun, in his address, said "...we cannot entirely free ourselves from concern and misgivings" about North Korea's intentions.

The Rodong Sinmun response, carried by the official Korean Central News Agency and monitored in Tokyo, said: "When we offered relief goods with a kindred desire to help the flood victims, they said they would accept our offer to create a 'condition for detente and dialogue.' The provocative utterances of the South Korean dictator are not for providing a 'condition' nor for the relaxation of tension."

Envoy Says Top Posts Unsettled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the Soviets' decision to talk with the United States, a leadership struggle in the Kremlin could hold up any progress in efforts to reduce nuclear weapons, says the U.S. ambassador to Moscow.

After nearly eight months, President Konstantin U. Chernenko still is unable to assert his authority, particularly on issues involving the Soviet military, Ambassador Arthur A. Hartman told reporters Tuesday.

"All they've agreed to do is to have serious discussions with us," Hartman said. After those talks are held on the ambassadorial level here and in Moscow, "we'll see what happens in the new year," he said.

Hartman said no decision had been taken to resume negotiations to reduce U.S. and Soviet nuclear weapons arsenals, which were suspended late last year.

But he said Soviet leaders had changed their minds about not having anything further to do with the Reagan administration. "They are prepared to deal with the United States as the other superpower, despite all the propaganda we've heard, despite all the war scare," he said.

In that respect, he said, "there's a little more reality" in the Kremlin.

Analysts Differ On Spy Charge Threat

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — First Amendment advocates differ over whether the federal government is threatening freedom of the press by charging a U.S. intelligence analyst with espionage for allegedly selling satellite photographs to a famed British military publication.

The charges lodged Tuesday against Samuel Loring Morison, 40, grandson of the late, Pulitzer Prize-winning historian Samuel Eliot Morison, marked only the second time that the espionage statute was invoked when secret materials were passed to a corporation rather than a foreign power.

In the other case, the corporation also was a publication, The New York Times. The defendant was Daniel Ellsberg, a former Pentagon analyst who was charged with leaking the Pentagon Papers concerning American conduct of the Vietnam war. The case against Ellsberg eventually was thrown out on grounds the government had used illegal wiretaps.

A federal magistrate in Alexandria, Va., ordered Morison, of Crofton, Md., held in lieu of $500,000 bail following his arrest Monday night.

Morison was charged with violating section 793 of the U.S. criminal code, the part of the Espionage Act that makes it a felony to transmit defense information to an unauthorized recipient when there is reason to believe that could injure the United States and help a foreign country.

The section carries up to 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine, which is the same as the maximum penalty for theft of government property, the more common charge in such cases.

Mark Lynch, an American Civil Liberties Union lawyer who works in this area, said in an interview, "It's very alarming in terms of press freedom. Is the government going to indict people for espionage every time they leak to a reporter?"

Lynch said "section 793 clearly covers information in addition to documents or tangible items, but there is at least an argument over whether theft of government property covers information. One judge in a dissenting opinion several years ago argued that one couldn't steal information because the government couldn't own information, only the documents it was on."

A different view was taken by Jack Landau, a lawyer who directs the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press. "If you assume the government's allegations are correct, it is not much of a threat to the First Amendment, but we have to wait to hear Morison's side," he said.

Landau noted that the government was not charging Jane's Defense Weekly, the London publication which in August printed three U.S. satellite photographs of a Soviet aircraft carrier under construction in a Black Sea shipyard.

"There was thought given to using section 793 against the press in the Pentagon Papers case, but it was not employed against publications there either, because they could argue that they were trying to help rather than harm the United States by educating the public," Landau said.

While the U.S. government has on rare occasions, like the Cuban missile crisis, made public its high-altitude photos, the released pictures are carefully selected and the rest are closely guarded in order to conceal how powerful U.S. overhead cameras really are.

But, Landau added, "Suppose Morison can show that the Soviets are already fully aware of the capabilities of the satellite camera which took the photographs, so no harm was done and that his intent was simply to rally public opinion behind the need for larger defense budgets?"

"Then the charge would cause more concern ...," Landau said.

In a court affidavit, FBI and naval intelligence agents portrayed Morison as dissatisfied with his top-secret government job analyzing Soviet amphibious ships and longing to trade his inside information for a new job.

The agents said Morison referred to the Naval Intelligence Support Center, where he worked, as "a pit." The FBI said it seized the typewriter ribbon at Morison's work station and found letters in which he solicited a full-time job with Jane's, the publisher of authoritative books on military armaments.

While he worked at the intelligence center in Suitland, Md., outside Washington, Morison also was the $5,000-a-year, part-time U.S. editor for Jane's Fighting Ships.

The government quoted one of his letters to Jane's as saying: "I hope you ... know that my loyalty to Jane's is above question. I'd rather quit here than there."

The FBI recovered the photos from Jane's and said laboratory technicians found Morison's fingerprint on one. They said the analyst denied providing the pictures to the publishing company.

In London, Jane's spokesman Richard Coltart confirmed that Morison is a part-time editor for Jane's Fighting Ships and contributed to Jane's Defense Weekly, but he declined to say where the photographs were obtained.

S. African Violence Continues

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Crowds of blacks beat a suspected government informer to death in one segregated township and stoned a van in another, causing it to veer into the crowd and reportedly kill five people.

In Pretoria, South African President P.W. Botha announced today that Mozambique agreed to a cease-fire with guerrillas who have fought to topple the Marxist government for the past eight years. South Africa had served as an intermediary during three months of negotiations.

The Botha government also said it would permit an impounded arms shipment to go through to tiny Lesotho, which is surrounded by South Africa.

The Sowetan newspaper, the nation's largest paper for blacks, said today five blacks were killed Tuesday when a van being stoned by youths went out of control and plunged into a crowd of 300. The newspaper said seven people in the crowd were seriously hurt.

Police Lt. Derick van der Walt at police headquarters in Pretoria said police could confirm three people were killed and six were badly injured in that incident in Kwathema, about 20 miles east of Johannesburg.

There was no immediate explanation for the discrepancy between the police report and the newspaper report.

In Soweto, southwest of Johannesburg, a crowd beat a black man to death at his home, van der Walt said. No details were available, but the victim was believed to be an informer or to be collaborating with the government, which denies the vote to the black majority.

Blacks stoned buses and police cars in a number of other segregated black townships Tuesday, and police broke up the crowds with tear gas and birdshot. The unrest followed two weeks of relative calm that set in after a series of riots left at least 60 blacks dead.

In Durban an explosion shattered several windows at the Natal Technikon, a technical school for high school graduates, van der Walt said. The blast, which occurred just before midnight, caused no injuries, he said.

News reports said the device was a bomb, attached to a kitchen window in the security office of the school.

Police also confirmed the detention Tuesday of Popo Molefe, secretary general of the anti-apartheid United Democratic Front coalition. A police spokesman had at first denied that Molefe, 29, had been detained at the front's Johannesburg office Tuesday afternoon. No information was available on whether police filed charges against him.

Six other front leaders were in their third week in the British consulate in Durban today, where they have taken sanctuary from security police who want to detain them.

A mattress and a heater were among the few items of comfort moved into the consulate office for the six men, who have been sleeping on the floor. Supporters also have supplied a portable tub and a chemical toilet.

The six men complained that British assistance was inadequate, but they received no encouragement from U.S., French and Dutch embassies to their requests for other sanctuary.

Congressman Says Money For Homeless Never Spent

WASHINGTON (AP) — A New York congressman, saying America deals with stray pets better than homeless people, complained today that the government hasn't made a full-fledged effort to provide shelter for those who need it.

Rep. Ted Weiss, a Democrat, said the $8 million that Congress set aside for the purpose hasn't been spent, and only "a few cosmetic attempts" have been made to renovate surplus federal buildings.

"Homelessness is an epidemic and it is a crisis," said Weiss, chairman of the House Government Operations subcommittee on intergovernmental relations and human resources. "Yet we have a more efficient system in the United States to deal with stray pets than we have for homeless human beings."

Weiss' comments were made in testimony prepared for a hearing on the federal response to the homeless. He noted that estimates of the number of homeless Americans vary, but go as high as three million.

Weiss released an internal report prepared at the Department of Health and Human Services and sent to the president on Aug. 15, 1984.

That report, which proposed spending about $172 million in federal money, calls for cooperation between the private sector and federal leadership to deal with the problem of the homeless.

The report said HHS set up a special interagency task force on food and shelter last October, has certified 133 food banks to obtain food from 197 military commissaries and helped with housing projects in Memphis, Tenn., and Washington.

On the down side, the report said, "Federal efforts to provide surplus federal property to local groups could be more efficiently coordinated."

Joseph F. Delfico, an associate director of the General Accounting Office's human resources division, said Congress provided $8 million to the Defense Department in the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30 to adapt facilities on military installations for use as shelters.

But Delfico, whose agency is the investigative arm of Congress, said none of the money has been spent and only $300,000 is earmarked for projects due to begin this fall.

He said local authorities frequently declined to use federal space "because they had no funds to operate the shelters, the shelters offered were in remote areas and local installation commanders imposed conditions on the use of potential shelter sites which providers felt were too restrictive."

Delfico said long-term solutions to the problems facing the homeless will be very expensive since many individuals have chronic mental health and medical as well as financial problems.

He also said the description of the homeless population is changing.

Students Ousted After Fatal Party

OLIVIA, Minn. (AP) — More than 10 percent of the students at Olivia High School were suspended from extracurricular activities, including football, cheerleading and band, because they were at a beer party after which a student was killed in a car crash.

Last week's homecoming dance was canceled. And for the first time in the school's history, coronation of the homecoming king and queen was eliminated. Most of the candidates had been at the party, School Superintendent Jerry Bass said.

"We buried one of our students last week," he said. "We felt it wasn't appropriate to have students engage in festive or frivolous events so soon after the death of one of their classmates."

Thirty-nine of the school's 365 students were suspended.

The varsity football team lost 10 players, most of them seniors, and the girls' volleyball team lost seven. While the suspensions decimated the teams, scheduled games will be played, Bass said Tuesday.

The suspensions, which run from four to eight weeks, also hit three wrestlers, 10 band members, two members of student drama, three National Honor Society students and four cheerleaders.

To some, it seemed a high price to pay for being at a beer party.

But if the punishment "saves a student's life in the future, it's all worth it," Bass said.

"If anything good can come out of this, it will be that the community has been forced to deal with the problem," Bass said. "I sure hope they remember this for a long time."

Several groups in this rural community of 2,250 people in south-central Minnesota have offered to help with alcohol education programs and the school board has begun a review of policies on alcohol use since the accident, he said.

Todd Mathiowetz, 17, of Olivia, was killed Sept. 23 when the car he was driving went off a country road and overturned minutes after he left a party in nearby Beaver Hills Park. The Renville County coroner's office would not release results of a blood-alcohol test.

School policy requires that students caught drinking and students present when classmates are drinking be suspended from extracurricular activities. Bass said most of the suspended students turned themselves in on the Monday following the party.

Fitness Program Reportedly Lowers Kids' Blood Pressure

NEW YORK (AP) — A fitness consultant says he has developed a fitness and education program that will lower children's blood pressure and blood cholesterol levels, but doctors say it is not known whether such programs lessen the risk of heart disease later in life.

The program, called "Feelin' Good," is "designed to teach children how to assume responsibility for their own health," Charles Kuntzleman said Tuesday at a news conference held by Prevention magazine.

A three-year trial of the program with 360 7- to 12-year-old children in Michigan lowered the children's blood cholesterol by 4 percent, their diastolic blood pressure (measured between heartbeats) by 6 percent and boosted their self-esteem, said Kuntzleman of Spring Arbor, Mich.

The children were chosen from more than 24,000 children in 13 Jackson and Chelsea, Mich., public school districts who participated in the program between 1980 and 1983, Kuntzleman said.

In the first year, the children were given four 30-minute exercise sessions and two 30-minute periods of classroom instruction a week for 13 weeks, he said. In the second and third years, the curriculum lasted nine weeks.

Parents were encouraged to learn about the program and were told how to improve their children's diets, Kuntzleman said.

The study, financed by the W.K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, Mich., has not been reported in a scientific journal, Kuntzleman said.

Officials of the government's National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute and the American Heart Association said they were not aware of the study and could not comment on its conclusions.

Dr. William Friedewald, an authority on heart disease prevention at the institute, said a key question for any fitness program is whether participants continue exercising and watching their diet after the program ends.

"You can get people excited about anything for two months, but will they do it for five or 10 years? The answer, by and large, is no," Friedewald said.

Judge Says Probation Is Warning

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — A judge who ordered probation for a 38-year-old man convicted of killing a "no-good" who stole $100 says the sentence should be a warning to those who prey on the elderly — the victim may shoot back.

"We've had just crime after crime over here where ... they go out and hold some old person up," St. Clair County Circuit Judge John Hoban said Tuesday.

"This kind of senselessness gets to you after a while," he said. "So when somebody shoots back, you just can't get too excited about it."

Hoban said he expected some criticism for sentencing James Godwin of East St. Louis to four years' probation. But he said the man's age and the circumstances justified the sentence.

Godwin was charged with murder in the May 4 death of Cecilia Banks, 38, who lived above him. Hoban found Godwin guilty of the lesser charge of manslaughter, and sentenced him Monday.

During his trial, Godwin testified that Miss Banks entered his apartment as he was counting his monthly $314 Social Security payment, grabbed $100 and walked out. He said she promised to repay him but later refused to do so.

"She laughed at him," Hoban said, adding Godwin admitted that he "just went berserk" and shot Miss Banks six times in the chest.

Assistant State's Attorney Lisa Struif said she was stunned by the sentence and by Hoban's comments. "It was shocking," she said. "When I told him her life should be worth more than $100, he said, 'I doubt it.'"

Hoban acknowledged the comments, calling the dead woman "a no-good" and a thief.

"I said, 'For goodness sakes, I think he did us a favor,'" he added.

Ms. Struif said Godwin was convicted in 1969 of second-degree murder and spent eight years of a 20-year sentence in a Wisconsin prison, while the dead woman had no police record.

"She had never done anything but get on relief as soon as she could and draw from the taxpayers," Hoban said. "She spent her money some way and needed other people's money, too, and didn't hesitate to steal it."

Godwin could have received the maximum sentence of 15 years in prison.

"My intentions are not to criticize the judge," Ms. Struif said. "But in light of his conviction and in light of his criminal history, I felt he should be sentenced to the maximum."

But Hoban said Godwin was too old to go to prison and was, himself, a victim.

"These young people think you can steal from old people and laugh at them and say, 'What are you going to do about it?'" Hoban said.

"I don't condone (killing)," he said. "I don't say that everybody should be sitting inside the house with a sawed-off shotgun or anything of the sort."

"But on those rare occasions when they do shoot back, I can't go into a cardiac arrest over it, either."

Reagan Keeps Donovan At Distance

WASHINGTON (AP) — An unusual cloud of silence has descended upon the normally talkative Reagan-Bush staff. Led by the president himself, campaign officials are working to keep their distance from the troubles of Labor Secretary Ray Donovan.

In separate telephone interviews Tuesday, one campaign official after another refused to discuss the likely political impact of the Donovan indictment.

"The whole campaign is just going to clam up," said John Buckley, a spokesman for Reagan-Bush '84. "The feeling is there is nothing to be gained by our talking right now."

One the campaign trail, Reagan went briefly onto the offensive, striking out against a so-called "lynch atmosphere" that hectors his appointees.

But at the same time, Reagan said the case was now "a matter of law," insisting, "I'm not going to comment further on this except to say that to my knowledge he (Donovan) is innocent until proven guilty."

By granting Labor Secretary Donovan an unpaid leave and making his brief statement Tuesday, the president hopes to insulate himself from any political fallout that results from Donovan's indictment by a Bronx, N.Y. grand jury.

In the past, Reagan has used that strategy to extraordinarily good effect, leading Democrats to refer to his "Teflon presidency," because Americans don't seem to hold him accountable for the bad news that erupts in his administration.

But it remained to be seen whether the situation — apparently the first indictment of a sitting Cabinet officer in history — would affect Reagan's political fortunes.

The indictment already has revived Democratic challenger Walter F. Mondale's allegation that the Reagan administration has a "sleaze factor" and a "tawdry record of unethical conduct."

Mondale said he presumes the innocence of Donovan but added that Reagan should fire him if the charges appear to be based on reasonable evidence.

Mondale, who has long called for Donovan's ouster, described him as "the weakest secretary of labor in modern history."

"The charges are very serious," he said. "I think the president should right now make a serious independent determination ... whether there is a reasonable basis for these charges and not just react politically in defense of a Cabinet officer."

"If they determine that there are reasonable grounds for these charges," Mondale said, "then I think the secretary should be removed."

At the White House, a senior official said he had "no idea" what the political consequences for Reagan would be of the indictment.

The official, speaking on the condition that he remain anonymous, said Reagan would "stand by" Donovan, but added it was still not clear to the White House what the indictment contained. "We will wait and see what transpires," he said.

Reagan, campaigning in Brownsville, Texas, just five weeks before the Nov. 6 election, refused to say outright that he believed the indictment was politically motivated. But the president tried to take an offensive position.

"I don't think there are many precedents for all the attacks and assaults that have been made on so many people of our administration with allegations and charges that were without any foundation in fact and were later revealed as having no foundation in fact and the people were cleared — kind of a lynch atmosphere in that," he said.

However, many presidents have had to confront the problems of controversies involving their aides. Former President Jimmy Carter, for instance, told his embattled budget director, Bert Lance: "I'm proud of you." Lance ultimately resigned.

Laughter In White House

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Leaders around the world talk baloney, and they think that's food for thought," the presidential candidate said, his nose beet-red, his orange hair frizzed as if zapped by electricity.

"I talk human relationships. I talk love," continued the jumpsuit-garbed politician, addressing a downtown crowd of preschoolers and parents.

Despite his funky appearance as he spoke of bringing love and laughter to the world, Larry Harmon is no punk rocker from the Sunset Strip.

He's the original Bozo the clown. And he's not happy about the state of the world and the country.

"We're all in a mental state of Saran wrap. We can see through it but we can't do anything about it," the 59-year-old clown said in an interview.

Tuesday's speech launched Bozo's three-week cross-country campaign tour, in which he will travel in his silver Bozo Bus and talk about voter registration, hopefully generating excitement about the November elections.

His platform is to "bring laughter back into America" by putting a clown in the White House.

Bozo is registered as a write-in candidate for the "Big Whig Party" in "more than half the states," according to a news release.

Pointing out that he has met such world leaders as France's Gen. Charles de Gaulle, Bozo said he would bring 35 years of diplomatic experience to bear if voters call upon him to lead the nation.

"I'm the person who believes he can talk to the Russians one-on-one," he said. "I'm not a politician. I'm a people person."

The independent candidate for president, who created the character of Bozo for television in 1949, spoke of bristling Soviet and American missile silos.

"Look at those children and you know we've got a problem," he added, gesturing toward his audience.

He was accompanied Tuesday by two men who said they had taken vacation time from their police jobs in Cleveland, Ohio, to act as security guards. They declined to give their names because they said they work undercover.

Bozo said his platform is peace, understanding, love and laughter — attributes that made the TV clown a goodwill symbol throughout the world.

Harmon has spent much of his campaign speaking to college audiences, including a rally at Columbia University in May that drew 5,000 students, Bozo spokesman Jerry Digney said.

"It's a travesty against the spirit of our nation when we don't get out and vote," Bozo said.

Harmon is financing his own campaign, with the cross-country trip on his Bozo Bus costing him $50,000 to $60,000, Digney said. Stops are planned in Phoenix, Ariz.; Omaha, Neb.; Atlanta; Columbus, Ohio; Philadelphia; Trenton, N.J.; Washington; and New York.

CAMPAIGN KICKOFF — Bozo the clown, or Larry Harmon, stands in front of the Los Angeles City Hall Tuesday before embarking on a cross-country, whistle-stop tour to promote his campaign as a write-in candidate for president. Bozo is running on the "Big Whig" party ticket and is on the ballot in more than half the states. (AP Laserphoto)

Report Calls For Work On New Crops

By JIM DRINKARD
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. agriculture needs to develop new crops to diversify its production and reduce its vulnerability, but federal researchers have virtually halted their efforts in that area, according to a new report.

American farming is vulnerable to drought and reduced water supplies, increased soil salinity in irrigated areas, soil erosion and pests, said Paul F. Knowles, a retired University of California agronomist.

U.S. agriculture also is dominated by a relative few crops for which it already has production capacity far in excess of demand, the report noted — 26 million to 30 million acres of excess, by one estimate.

All of those problems, as well as the imbalance between U.S. imports and exports and the nation's need for certain materials critical for national defense could be addressed by the development of new crops, said the report by the Council on Agricultural Science and Technology.

But the council, based in Ames, Iowa, said only 3 percent of the 300,000 species of higher plants have been evaluated for possible value as crops. An Agriculture Department program to make such evaluations, begun in 1957, now has virtually dried up for lack of money, the report said.

"Even among species with some promise, there has been very little follow-up work in terms of developing types adapted to commercial production," Knowles told Congress' Joint Economic Committee on Tuesday.

New crops can be developed by domesticating wild plants, adapting plants from other parts of the world to the U.S. environment or by making genetic changes in established crops, the paper pointed out.

But it is at best a slow process, and usually is hampered by lack of coordination and by frustration over initial lack of markets. The U.S. success story of the century, soybeans, only became a commercial crop in the 1930s, 170 years after the plant was first introduced.

"It is difficult to now foresee another single new crop development of the magnitude of the soybean occurring within our lifetimes," said Ronald L. Sampson, a product development official with the Procter & Gamble Co. who was on the task force that wrote the report.

Rather, he said, new plant developments likely will come in the area of specialty crops. Examples of emerging new crops include kiwi fruit, avocados, sunflower seeds and pistachio nuts.

Other plants the report said will help make the U.S. less dependent on exports or bolster supplies of strategic materials include jojoba, a shrub whose seed oil is similar to sperm whale oil; guayule, a desert shrub that produces a quality natural rubber; kenaf, a fast-growing tropical plant that can be used to make newsprint; and cuphea, an oil-bearing plant that can be used to replace coconut and palm kernel oils.

Promotion of such new crops could diversify America's farming base, offer crops more tailored to their environment and give consumers new and better products, the report said. One such crop, grain amaranth, offers the possibility of a new snack food more nutritious than those now on the market, said another task force member, University of Missouri agricultural economics professor Melvin Blase.

The report recommended increased research support for new crop development, expanded efforts by the Agriculture Department and the creation of an independent national new crops institute that could coordinate and fund research.

One possible incentive for producers, the paper suggested, would be allowing them to grow potential new crops on land idled under production control programs for major crops like wheat and feed grains. Loan guarantees and tax incentives also could spur more rapid development of new varieties, it said.

Count Starting For Space Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The countdown began today for Friday's launch of space shuttle Challenger following an anxious period when a pileup of routine paperwork threatened to delay the flight.

The primary goal of Challenger, with a crew of five men and two women — the largest crew ver for a single space mission — is an extensive study of planet Earth.

It also includes the first space walk of an American woman and the first space flight for a Canadian.

The count started on time at 1 a.m. EDT when test conductor Jerry Crute issued the traditional "call to stations" that summoned crews to the launch pad and the control center.

Things were less organized late Tuesday when officials considered delaying the flight a day or two because of the paperwork backlog.

But during a hastily-called telephone conference between National Aeronautics and Space Administration managers here, in Houston and in Washington, it was determined the paper logjam could be broken in time and directed the countdown to start.

A paperwork postponement would have been a new first for the American manned space program.

Fly Away Home

Each October, thousands of Canada geese fill the skies near Horicon Marsh in Dodge County, Wisconsin, as they migrate to their wintering grounds in southern Illinois, Kentucky and Tennessee. Geese are among the many breeds of birds who return, like clockwork, to particular locations each year. For example, the swallows always return to San Juan Capistrano, California, on March 19, while buzzards return to Hinkley, Ohio, on March 15.

Social Security Increase Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — Social Security beneficiaries will be assured of a cost-of-living increase Jan. 1 no matter what the inflation rate is, under legislation nearing final congressional approval and President Reagan's expected signature.

The House approved the measure, 417-4, Tuesday and sent it back to the Senate for final approval. Although the Senate already has approved similar legislation, there are technical differences between the two versions.

Reagan sought the legislation in July, when it looked as though the 3 percent trigger on which current law bases a cost-of-living increase would not be met.

However, the latest Consumer Price Index figures indicate that if present trends continue, there will be a cost-of-living increase ranging between 3.3 percent and 3.6 percent even without the legislation, according to the House Ways and Means Committee.

At present, the average monthly benefit for an individual is $430, and it would go up by about $12 a month if the inflation increase is 3 percent, Social Security spokesman Jim Brown said. For a couple, the current average of $740 would go up about $21.

"This legislation neither helps nor hurts beneficiaries because the economic conditions are such that under present law beneficiaries will get the cost-of-living adjustment this year anyway," Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Texas, chairman of the House Social Security subcommittee, told colleagues.

"From beginning to end, this bill has been little more than a political football," Pickle complained. "It stands as a monument to the need-less meddling that makes the formulation of consistent, long-term Social Security policy so difficult."

Rep. Barber B. Conable Jr., R-N.Y., said that if the bill weren't passed, "the Democrats would eventually claim that somehow the president manipulated the inflation rate to prevent the elderly from getting the cost of living."

The benefit increase is based on the rise in inflation measured by the Consumer Price Index for Urban Wage Earners and Clerical Workers between the third quarter of 1983 and the third quarter of 1984. That figure is not due out until late October, when Congress will have adjourned and members will be busy campaigning for re-election.

The legislation provides a one-time waiver of the 3 percent trigger, ensuring that 36 million Social Security recipients will get a benefit increase even if present trends do not continue, and the inflation figure is below 3 percent.

Under existing law, cost-of-living increases are financed by increasing the wage base on which taxes are calculated.

Federal Reserve Expected To Stand Firm On Current Monetary Scheme

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Election Day not far off, private analysts doubt Federal Reserve policymakers will take any strong steps that might send interest rates soaring.

Politics aside, they argue there is nothing going on in the economy that calls for the central bankers, meeting behind closed doors on Tuesday, to alter their current monetary course.

Interest rates, they say, should stay at about the same level.

"I'm not expecting any change," said Bernard Markstein, senior financial economist at Chase Econometrics in Bala Cynwyd, Pa.

David Jones, economist at the New York brokerage firm Aubrey G. Lanston & Co., added: "I would guess that in the weeks immediately ahead they will hold to an unchanged posture."

The new decisions by the Federal Open Market Committee will help guide the economy through the national elections. The next strategy session of the panel is tentatively set for Nov. 7, the day after the elections.

Minutes of Tuesday's meeting will not be released until after the November discussions. Results of the Aug. 21 meeting will be released on Friday.

Since the August session, analysts have detected signs that the Federal Reserve was supplying more money to the banking system, allowing interest rates to drift downward.

The Fed has been following a moderately tight monetary strategy by trying to supply enough money to keep the economy expanding, but not enough to set off another round of high inflation.

Tighter credit conditions tend to boost interest rates; easier conditions tend to help interest rates slide.

In recent weeks, the prime lending rate of major banks has slipped from 13 percent to 12.75 percent. Wells Fargo Bank in San Francisco reduced it to 12.5 percent.

The Fed's apparent easing last month, the analysts said, was no doubt prompted by the slowdown in the economy's expansion from the vigorous pace early in the year and the continuing modest pace of inflation.

Moreover, they said, growth in the money supply has been sluggish in recent months.

Some argue, too, that the Fed does not want to draw attention to itself in the middle of a presidential campaign and become an election issue.

Fed Chairman Paul Volcker's "general inclination is to keep a low profile as we approach the election," said Jones.

"With an election approaching, the Federal Reserve is likely to be more accommodating than it might be otherwise," said economists Roger Brinner and David Wyss of Data Resources Inc. in Lexington, Mass.

"As a result, we expect the (policymakers) to continue the recent relaxation of monetary policy," the analysts wrote in a newsletter to clients.

Yet, many analysts don't look for additional easing until the central bankers get a better fix on the future course of the economy.

"I think the Fed will take a wait-and-watch attitude," said Allen Sinai, chief economist for Shearson Lehman-American Express.

Markstein speculated the officials "are pretty much happy with where the economy is now."

"They're concerned inflation might heat up in the future so they don't want to loosen any further," he said. "And they're certainly happy enough with events so they're not going to want to tighten."

The economy grew at a surprisingly strong annual rate of 10.1 percent from January through March and at a 7.1 percent clip in the second quarter. The pace in the just-ended third quarter has been estimated at 3.6 percent, after adjustment for inflation.

The slowdown in the growth pace will relieve some pressures on interest and inflation rates, according to analysts, and improve chances for a longer recovery.

The Federal Open Market Committee is made up of the seven Federal Reserve Board governors and five of the 12 presidents of the regional Federal Reserve Banks.

Candidates Trade Charges As Debate Nears

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

Walter F. Mondale says President Reagan's taking responsibility for the latest American deaths in Beirut isn't good enough and won't wash, while Reagan is defending his administration against what he calls "baseless charges" and both men begin in earnest preparations for their first debate.

The president and his challenger were clearing their campaign calendars to devote time to this Sunday's debate in Louisville, Ky., the first of two face-to-face sessions.

Reagan was also trying to voice support for his Labor Secretary, Raymond Donovan, indicted Monday by a New York grand jury. Reagan said Donovan was "innocent until proven guilty" and the victim of a "lynch atmosphere" that has plagued his administration.

"It's now a matter of law, and so I won't comment further," Reagan said.

Vice President George Bush was preparing to release long-awaited details of his income tax returns today. Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro was dealing with her finances too, filing Tuesday an updated congressional financial disclosure statement showing hundreds of thousands of dollars not previously reported.

Campaigning Tuesday, Mondale and his running mate hit strongly at Reagan on the question of blame for the latest fatal bombing in Lebanon.

"He seems to be saying, 'I take responsibility, but nothing went wrong,'" Mondale said of Reagan. "I don't believe that will wash."

After nearly two full weeks of demands that someone take the blame for the bombing that killed two Americans at the U.S. Embassy annex, Reagan raised the subject with reporters after arriving in Brownsville, Texas.

"I am responsible, as I said that I was on the previous tragedy," Reagan said. "I was responsible and no one else for our policy and our people being there."

But the president said "there was

Bush Will Reveal Tax Data Today

HOUSTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush, a millionaire twice over, is preparing to disclose his personal income tax returns that he says have been kept secret even from him for the past three years.

"I don't think there will be any surprises," Peter Teeley, the vice president's press secretary said in advance of today's disclosure.

The vice president planned to release his forms after flying from Houston to Little Rock, Ark., for a campaign rally and a question-and-answer session with citizens. Later in the day, Bush planned to campaign in Tulsa, Okla.

Teeley said the information would include the standard 1040 tax form and schedules revealing deductions and the amount of interest and dividend income.

The sources of income were not to be revealed, in keeping with the intent of the blind trust in which Bush's assets were placed to take them out of his control and to protect against the vice president knowing how policies he advocates affect his financial holdings.

In all, about 25 pages of tax forms and letters were to be released, Teeley said. The correspondence included details on how Bush's blind trust was established with the Office of Government Ethics.

Among major party candidates for president and vice president, Bush is the last to reveal his income taxes.

For weeks, he maintained he could not disclose the information under terms of his blind trust.

In a sudden reversal last week after two days' of questioning by reporters, Bush said he would release "essential information" about his taxes for the years 1981, 1982 and 1983. Bush said the Ethics Office had granted his request to be released from certain terms of the trust prohibiting disclosure.

Under the trust, Bush's taxes have been prepared and signed by the manager of the blind trust, and Bush said he was not permitted to see them or inquire about them.

Asked about Bush's change of heart on disclosure, Teeley said, "I'll tell you why we caved in. We wanted to get rid of the story."

Questions about income taxes dogged Bush's Democratic rival, Geraldine Ferraro, until she revealed her taxes and those of her husband, John Zaccaro.

Ms. Ferraro said that between 1979 and 1983, she had a gross income of $332,474 and paid federal, state and city income taxes of $130,922, or 39 percent of her total income. She said she and her husband have a combined net worth of almost $3.8 million.

Bush revealed in August that he and his wife, Barbara, have a net worth of $2.1 million, with $879,381 in assets covered by the blind trust and $950,000 in the estimated value of his vacation estate in Kennebunkport, Maine.

Teeley said the trust had appreciated about $100,000 over three years.

no evidence of any carelessness or anyone not performing their duty" in the Sept. 20 truck bombing, the third such attack on a U.S. installation in that country during Reagan's term.

"I'm not going to deliver somebody's head up on a platter, which seems to be the request of so many when things like this happen," Reagan said.

In Nashville, Tenn., Ms. Ferraro called Reagan's remarks a meaningless gesture and said it was just as he did after the Oct. 23, 1983, bombing in Beirut that left 241 Marines dead. An April 18, 1983, embassy bombing there killed 16 other 16 Americans.

"He accepted responsibility in 1983 and it meant nothing," she said.

"We have now waited 13 days and we have the president accepting responsibility and saying no heads will roll. What does that mean?" she said.

In Little Rock, Ark., Mondale said, "I think he now has to really take responsibility and tell us what happened, what went wrong and what he's doing to prevent a recurrence."

The charges against Donovan, now on an unpaid leave of absence, prompted renewed questioning and charges by the Democrats about Reagan's appointees, an issue Mondale raised earlier this year as the "sleaze factor."

Asked about the issue, Reagan said, "If there is one, it's on the other side, with their baseless charges and accusations that have all been proven false."

Said Mondale, "I believe there is a tacky element in this administration."

Reagan was flying back to Washington today from Houston, where he and Bush headlined a $1,000 a plate gala that raised more than $2 million for the Texas Republican Party.

In Texas he offered an optimistic view of the campaign, befitting an incumbent far ahead in the polls.

"Things are going so well our opponents in this election don't seem to know what to talk about," Reagan said. He added that Mondale's proposal for a tax increase has been

"about as popular with the American people as a skunk at a lawn party."

Aides said he would study briefing materials, discuss debate strategy with his advisers and practice his technique by facing budget director David Stockman in mock debate in the White House family theater.

Mondale, hoping for a strong performance to help narrow the president's lead in the polls, has enlisted Columbia University President Michael Sovern to "play" Reagan should he decide to stage a practice confrontation before the real thing, according to aides.

With only one more public appearance this week, aides said Mondale had already begun watching video tapes of earlier Reagan debates and would be poring over briefing books prepared by his staff.

Bush, meanwhile, attacked the Democrats as offering a "totally negative" campaign message.

"Mondale and Ferraro see a silver lining and then they try to find a cloud to go around it," Bush said. "Their motto: Always is heard a discouraging word."

He was flying to Little Rock, Ark., where aides planned to release details of his taxes, which until last week Bush insisted could not be made public because of the terms of the blind trust into which his assets had been placed.

Emory Learned Early It Was Going To Be Bad Day

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Ed Emory found out early that Saturday morning wasn't going to be his day. While in the bathroom in his motel room in Raleigh, Emory suddenly noticed it was raining inside and was deluged by water and plaster from an overflowing toilet in the room above him.

And things got no better during the rest of the day. "Our bus driver got lost on the way to (Carter-Finley) Stadium. Then, we had the ball game when it seemed like everything went for State, and then, on the way home, the bus broke down and we had to get another one from Raleigh," Emory told the media gathered at his weekly press conference Tuesday.

Saturday night, the Pirates lost to N.C. State, 31-22, in Carter-Finley, and Emory thinks his team should have come away with the win.

"I'm disappointed that we didn't win. We should have won and we could have won," the Pirate coach said.

Emory blamed the loss on two things — the inability of the Pirates to stop the number one play of the Wolfpack and the inability of the Pirates to make something happen when they had the chance.

"We didn't stop their number one play, the sprint draw, all night. They only ran two plays that really hurt us, that and the tailback counter. It was poor execution on defense, mental mistakes by our linebackers, not getting off the blocks and not playing with the intensity we needed."

"They gave us the chances we needed, but we gave them 14 points with fumbles and interceptions."

Emory pointed out that the Pirates had the ball five times in the first half and could have made something out of nearly every one of those possessions, but got only one touchdown, off the first drive.

"The second time we had the ball we had an interception. When I saw it Saturday night, I thought we had thrown it right to (John) McRorie, but after seeing the film, he made a great play to get to the ball. Darrell (Speed) took something off the ball and if he had thrown it with any zip, McRorie would never have gotten to it."

That interception resulted in a score for State, giving the Wolfpack a 14-7 lead.

After failing to move the ball on the third possession, the Pirates got it back and moved to the State 30 where on third and four, a bad pitch was fumbled, taking the Pirates out of field goal position.

Following a State field goal, Emory was tagged with a 15-yard unsportsmanlike conduct penalty on the scoring play. "What happened was this," Emory explained. "I thought one of their guys was hitting one of our players, and I stepped out on the field to yell to him to get away from the guy. The official threw the flag for me doing that. Now I've been around football a long time and that's the first flag I've gotten like that. Usually, an ump will warn you and ask you to step back, but this guy didn't."

"The thing that really burned me later was that (Tony) Baker went out of bounds in front of their bench and one of (State's) coaches shoved him. Two referees were there and pointed at the coach and warned him, but didn't throw a flag. Now what's fair is fair. If they give me one, they should give him one too."

Emory went on to point out that after getting back into State territory, Speed raced to the Wolfpack 13 yard line only to have the ball called back for a delay penalty. "There was no whistle, and the flag came out after the ball was snapped. I'd bet my life that there was one second on the clock when the ball was snapped, but it was a devastating penalty for us."

On the next play, the Pirates appeared to complete a pass to Ricky Nichols who lost the ball before coming down. College rules say a player must touch the ground in control of the ball, even if hit in the air by a defender. Nichols did bobble the ball, and it was unclear if the ball hit the ground before he recovered it. "I thought the pass was complete, and I still do," Emory said.

At any rate, instead of having a first down on either of the two plays, the Pirates were forced to kick it away and State came up with a reception on a batted pass to help set up a field goal that made it 20-7 at halftime.

"I still thought that we could win the game at that point," Emory said. "The defense played better in the second half and we took the ball to their 35 before we got sacked on third and seven, again taking us out of field goal range." The next time, the Pirates suffered an interception, then scored on their third possession to cut it to 20-14.

"That was exactly where we wanted to be going into the fourth period. We knew that we could score again and we really thought we could win it," Emory said. "The fourth quarter should have been ours."

The Pirates got good field position after two short punts, but failed to move the ball once and the second time, from the State 44, picked up five yards, then fumbled it away. "Our tackle completely missed the block to enable (a State player) to make the play. We just beat ourselves."

State turned the game around using a broken tackle play to score a touchdown and then added a field goal to put it out of reach. ECU rallied for a late touchdown, but couldn't recover the "bam-bam" kickoff. Emory claimed State was off-sides on the kickoff — the reason the Wolfpack recovered.

"But it was our lack of ability to stop the sprint draw and to score that lost us the ball game," Emory said.

Tigers Make Royals Look Like The Amateurs, 8-1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Amateur umpires are no problem when the Detroit Tigers make the Kansas City Royals look like amateur players.

"We sure can't blame the umpires for what happened," said Frank White, one of only four Royals to get a base hit Tuesday night in the opening game of the best-of-five American League Championship Series.

The fact the Tigers whipped them 8-1 was not as galling to the Royals as how it happened. The Tigers, the Eastern Division champs who won 104 games in the regular season, jumped on their hosts with a combination of pitching, power, and, insist the Royals, plain old luck.

"We knew they were good. We didn't know they were lucky, too," said White. "That hardly seems fair. They didn't win 104 games by being slouchy. But it did seem like every ball we hit hard was hit straight at somebody. And except for the home runs, most of their hits were just barely out of reach."

Tiger starter Jack Morris left the game after the seventh inning with a blister on his pitching hand. Even though he did not have his best stuff, Morris allowed only two third-inning singles and retired 10 in a row before Jorge Orta tripled leading off the seventh.

By then, Alan Trammell's single, triple and home run had led the Tigers to a 5-0 lead off Kansas City's Bud Black and the issue was all but settled.

Larry Herndon and Lance Parrish also hit solo home runs for the Tigers, who have won eight straight games in Royals Stadium dating back to their final meeting in 1983.

"I don't understand why we seem to always play well here," said Parrish, who drove in the Tigers' second run with a sacrifice fly in the first inning. "I don't expect there is a true reason for it other than we're playing good ball."

Tonight the Royals, aware that no team ever recovered from an 0-2 deficit to win a league series, stake their immediate future on the 20-year-old right arm of Bret Saberhagen. He was 3-1 against the Tigers in the regular season and will oppose Dan Petry as the Tigers seek to take a commanding two-game lead back to Detroit.

Black pointed to the first inning, when Lou Whitaker singled and Trammell tripled and both wound up scoring.

"I've got to keep those guys off base to keep their RBI guys from driving them in," he said. "I didn't do that. I made some mistakes. I got the ball out over the plate and they took advantage. I felt fine. I just threw bad pitches and they took advantage."

Everyone agreed the amateur umpires, rushed into action to replace the striking regulars, did a fine job. Behind the plate was Bill Deegan, a 10-year major league veteran who retired in 1980.

"The umpiring certainly did not have anything to do with the outcome of the game," said Royals Manager Dick Howser, whose playoff record fell to 0-7. "Bill Deegan had been a good umpire for 10 years, and he was a good umpire tonight."

A good example of the Tiger luck the Royals were talking about came in the pivotal third inning. The Tigers were leading by two runs when the Royals loaded the bases with two out on singles by Don Slaught and Willie Wilson and a walk to Pat Sheridan.

George Brett, the Royals' best clutch hitter, stepped to the plate and lashed a slicing line drive into right field. Kirk Gibson, the Tigers' fastest outfielder, came in on the ball and made a one-handed catch as he went to his knees.

"When I hit it, I thought I hit it good," said Brett. "I thought it was a clean base hit to right field. When I saw him dive for it, I said, 'Oh, my God, that guy is crazy.' But it turned out I was the one who was crazy."

Gibson admitted he had a sinking feeling in the pit of his stomach as the play unfolded.

"I started in and realized I was beyond the point of no return," he said. "I tried to get in front of it but it was hooking away. I realized if it got by me it would go to the wall for three sure runs. If we are going to win, we have to make the plays. I was glad I could this time."

Trammell reached base all five times he came to the plate, drawing a base on balls in his final at-bat when a double would have enabled him to hit for the cycle.

"It really doesn't matter," he said. "After getting a hit in my first at-bat in the playoffs, I felt good at the plate all night."

AG, Conley Clash In Top Game

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

The Ayden-Grifton Chargers are hoping a 14-7 loss to Southern Nash after being ranked 10th in the east will provide inspiration; the Vikings of D.H. Conley are banking that a week off helped heal bumps and bruises suffered early in the non-conference schedule.

The Chargers visit Conley Friday night hoping to improve on their 3-1 record, while the Vikings — amid Homecoming activities — hope to get back on the winning track after losing their last outing at Farmville Central two weeks ago.

"Hopefully our guys will get up for the game," Ayden-Grifton Coach Dwight Tart said. "I hope we don't have to go to SouthWest Edgecombe (next week) having lost two in a row and having a chance to be .500 after starting out 3-0."

While the Chargers get into the heart of the Eastern Carolina 3-A schedule and the Vikings open play in the Coastal Conference, both coaches are concerned about the mental and physical state of the players.

"We had a good week of practice; we gave them a day off Friday," Conley Coach Donnie Bunn said. "This week is our Homecoming, and sometimes you lose perspective of the importance of the game itself."

"(The loss last week) is going to make Ayden-Grifton hungry; they were ranked number 10 in the east then lose a tough game."

The Chargers scored on their first possession, but a pair of penalties against Southern Nash helped sustain the drive. Ayden-Grifton never posted a threat offensively until a fourth-quarter drive ended with a turnover.

"We had so many chances to win," Tart said. "A missed block assignment here or there and then a throw to the wrong receiver cost us chances to score. We just needed to take a little more time."

"I thought we played hard throughout the game, we just didn't quite get to where we should have been. I think if anything, we might have been a little cocky after being ranked and 3-0.

"We try not to be too critical with breaking down film; nobody likes to hear negatives all time. We did some things well. When we were down, we took a kickoff and drove down the field with a chance to score."

Running backs Kelvin Harris and Mike Dixon lead the Charger offense, and both backs have had success running the ball. Harris sat out part of the game against Southern Nash, but came off the bench to lead a late rally.

"Against Conley we're going to have to be able to run the football," Tart said. "They'll put six on the line defensively and rush eight to make us prove we can throw the ball. The majority of the passes will be short, but have to establish that we can throw consistently."

"Defensively, we have to shut down their running game, but their quarterback (Joel Cox) throws the ball well. They run motion at you and move the ball down the field. We need to shut down their first down plays and put them in second- and third-and-long situations.

"I think we'll give Conley a good game."

If Tart has any doubt his Chargers will be challenge for Conley, Bunn certainly doesn't.

"They've got a quick team, but their backs are a little bigger than ours," Bunn said. "The lines match up pretty well, but there again they may have a step on us."

"We're going to be trying to stop Dixon and Harris — they're two real good running backs. We're having to concentrate on what they're doing, but they have a good young quarterback, also."

"I think it'll come down to who has better execution. The nature of our offense is that the linemen hit quickly and don't have to hold blocks that long. When you're playing a team with line that's not that big, our offensive line has to play that much harder."

"We're still looking for improvement on the offensive line — mainly picking up stunts. That's not been a problem so far, but we're going to see more stunts."

In other games involving Pitt County schools, Farmville Central travels to SouthWest Edgecombe and North Pitt hosts Southern Nash. Farmville Central lost a non-conference contest to West Craven 28-16, while Greene Central pounded North Pitt 48-0, last week.

In other area games, Chocowinity travels to Creswell, Washington hosts Plymouth, Jamesville is at Bath, Williamston entertains Tarboro, C.B. Aycock visits Greene Central, and Roanoke entertains Ahoskie.

FARMVILLE CENTRAL

The Jaguars were unable to establish their usual ball-control offense against West Craven, as Farmville was held to 145 yards rushing. By contrast, West Craven rolled up 231 yards rushing and 159 passing.

"We lost momentum by giving up seven big pass plays," Farmville Coach Dixon Sauls said. "But they're correctable mistakes — either physical or mental. We don't foresee that happening again."

"We were a mentally and physically beaten team from the third quarter on. We must play better team defense; we had some young people free-lancing. But I still think we're sound defensively."

"Offensively, we seemed to be able to move the ball at will part of the time, but the offensive line as a group had difficulty. We had success throwing the ball late in the game completing 11 out of 22 passes."

The Jaguar defense will face its toughest test of the season Friday when SouthWest Edgecombe — ranked second in the Associated Press poll of North Carolina sports editors — takes the field. Sauls hopes the Farmville offense will occupy most of the playing time, as powerful Jerome Staton is touted as one of the top running backs in the state.

"We hope to be more disciplined on defense this week," Sauls said. "Certainly we cannot allow Staton to rush for his 200 yard average. I feel like that will be the big key — keeping him from making too many big plays."

"If we keep our offense on the field, that'll be a big plus. We need to have ball-control offense, but their blitzing defense is very under-rated — they usually intimidate teams into mistakes. We simply must try to build momentum."

"I know it would be an upset, but I feel we have a chance to beat SouthWest Edgecombe."

NORTH PITT

The Rams of Greene Central utilized four blocked punts to pound North Pitt 48-0 last Friday, and the Panthers must rebound against high-flying Southern Nash.

The Firebirds rolled to a 14-7 victory over Ayden-Grifton last week, but North Pitt Coach Larry Bolger is more concerned over the mental state of his young squad.

"We're very disappointed score-wise with the way we played against Greene Central," Bolger said. "We just don't have any mean ones yet. We have a couple of kids who like to hit, but until we get that aggressiveness and mean factor it's going to be a long season."

"They just blew right through us (on the blocked punts). We had it on the move a couple of times, but we managed to stop ourselves."

Bolger admits he thought it would take North Pitt — which features eight freshmen and eight sophomores — a while to adapt to a new system, but progress has been slower than even he expected.

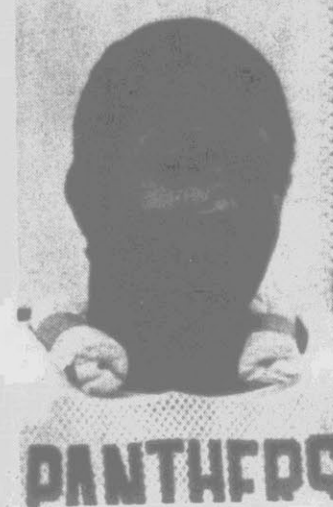

"Sometimes I think we're talking to a brick wall," Bolger said. "We met with the team Monday and talked to them about the season. We told them they've tried it their way for four games; now they've sort of made a commitment to try it our way."

"Our offense is sound, based on a good philosophy. When the kids realize that, it'll start to work."

Senior running back Truman Baker and receiver Ashley Shepard have been slowed by injuries suffered against Greene Central, but both are expected to be ready for the Southern Nash game. Junior running back Melvin Bradley returns to the Panther lineup after missing a week for disciplinary reasons.

"We got beat up a little last week, but overall we're pretty healthy," Bolger said. "We've got to work on line explosion. One of the advantages the offensive line has is that they're supposed to know the count. If they wait on the line and don't attack, the defense can't help but stop you."

Leaders Hold Spots On AP Poll; Four Newcomers

By RICK SCOPPE

Associated Press Writer

Four teams that were unranked a week ago are included on this week's Associated Press high school football poll, which leaves Greensboro Page, Kannapolis and SouthWest Guilford in the No. 1 spots.

Page, 4-0, received 20 first-place votes and 208 points overall to edge Wilson Fike, 4-0, for the No. 1 spot among 4-A teams. Fike picked up 187 points.

Henderson Vance, 5-0, received one first-place vote and 160 points to jump from sixth to third. Greensboro Grimsley, 4-0, went from eighth to fourth after gaining 133 points.

Richmond County, 4-0, received 118 points to jump from 10th to fifth while Fayetteville Byrd, 3-1, fell from third to sixth after losing to Fayetteville Westover 25-21 last week.

Morganton Freedom, 3-1, was No. 7 followed by two teams which were unranked last week. Pinecrest, 4-0, is ranked No. 8 and McDowell, 4-1, is ninth. East Burke, 3-1, is No. 10 after falling five places from a week ago.

In the 3-A class, Kannapolis, 5-0, picked up 20 first-place votes to outpoint SouthWest Edgecombe, 5-0, which was selected No. 1 on one ballot and received 196 points.

West Henderson, 5-0, was No. 3 with one first-place vote and 161 points overall as the top three 3-A three teams stayed the same this week.

East Wake, 5-0, moved from fifth to fourth with 146 points while Clinton, 3-0-1, fell one spot to fifth. South Point, 4-0, jumped from 10th to sixth followed by Eden Morehead, 4-0, Eastern Randolph, 3-1, Waynesville Tuscola, 3-1, and Shelby, 3-1, which fell from fourth to 10th.

Southwest Guilford, 5-0, which takes on defending 2-A state champ Randleman on Friday, heads up the combined 2-A and 1-A classification, receiving 15 first-place votes and 208 points.

Jordan-Matthews, 4-0, got three first-place votes and 181 points to remain second while Maiden, 4-0, clung to its No. 3 spot, getting one first-place vote and 172 points.

Randleman, 4-1, was No. 4 with one first-place vote and 140 points overall, while Fuquay-Varina, 4-0, was No. 5. Swain County, 4-1, got one first-place vote and 88 votes to head up the second five, followed by No. 8 Newton-Conover and the two other teams that were unranked a week ago.

Wallace-Rose Hill, 4-0, picked up 39 points and was ranked No. 9 while Jamesville, 4-0, was 10th with 12 points.

CHICAGO (AP) — Bob Dernier set the tone and Gary Matthews set the pace in a record-shattering display of power, but it was Keith Moreland's defensive gem that put a lock on the outcome.

The Chicago Cubs smashed five home runs, two by Matthews who drive in four runs, on their way to a 13-0 romp Tuesday over San Diego in the opening game of their best-of-five National League Championship Series.

Dernier homered on losing pitcher Eric Show's second pitch which Matthews said "set the precedent for our club. Bobby hit a fastball, we're a fastball-hitting club" and Show is a fastball pitcher. The quick run takes the pressure off and everyone tends to relax.

Matthews didn't relax too much. He also homered in the first inning to hand Rick Sutcliffe a 2-0 lead, and his three-run homer triggered a six-run fifth to put the issue beyond doubt.

Matthews put a leg up on the series' Most Valuable Player award which he won last year with the Philadelphia Phillies. But he told his teammates "Don't be afraid to dethrone me."

It might not be easy, but others gave it a try. Sutcliffe allowed only two hits, struck out eight in the seven innings he pitched and he cracked a homer and a single.

Dernier also had a double and two walks and scored three times and Ron Cey also homered giving the Cubs an LCS record of five round trippers.

Other series records included Matthews homering in four straight games dating back to last season; the Cubs' 16 hits; the biggest shutout score and the biggest margin of victory.

Despite what seemed to be an outstanding performance, Sutcliffe said "I didn't have my best stuff and I lost my concentration."

"I struggled in the fourth inning," he said. "But Moreland's catch basically ended the game. It took the momentum out of their dugout and put it back into ours."

With one out in the fourth, Steve Garvey beat out a bunt single. Graig Nettles flied out, but Terry Kennedy and Kevin McReynolds both walked to fill the bases. Carmelo Martinez ripped a drive to right and Moreland speared the ball with a diving catch.

"There was no doubt I caught the ball," said Moreland when asked if he feared the substitute umpires, filling in for the regular umpires who are out on strike, might miss the call.

"I wasn't thinking about the umpires, I had just looked at the scoreboard and saw the score was 5-0 so I told myself 'Don't do anything crazy,' so I went out and did a crazy thing," Moreland explained.

"When I got to the dugout I realized what a dangerous thing I had done," Moreland said. "If that ball gets by me, it's three runs. I figured it was a hit and what I was trying to do was keep the man on second base from scoring. But the ball stayed up and stuck in my glove."

San Diego Manager Dick Williams kept a low tone, but said, "That was one loss. We didn't play too well. We were blown out, the long ball got us. I thought it would be a low-scoring game. It was, for us."

Williams had said the key to the series would be keeping the top two men in the lineup off the bases. The Cubs managed that but the Padres didn't.

In addition to Dernier reaching four times, Ryne Sandberg had two hits and a walk and the dynamic duo "set the table" for Matthews.

"They kept our men off the base," said Williams, whose 1-2 hitters Alan Wiggins and NL batting champion Tony Gwynn, went hitless.

"We could have come back," said Williams. "Sutcliffe was wild and we had opportunities but Moreland made that great play. We didn't score any runs off Sutcliffe, but I've seen him sharper."

Sutcliffe left after seven innings. Manager Jim Frey let Warren Brusstar finish the shutout although he was clipped for four singles.

"I was thinking of Game 4 and 5," said Frey, who has not announced who will pitch in the fourth game if the series goes that far. "I was trying to save him some pitches. We may have saved him 40 or 50 pitches."

Game No. 2 was scheduled today with Steve Trout, 13-7, facing Mark Thurmond, 14-8, in a battle of left-handers.

"The key to Trout will be making good pitches in the strike zone," said Frey. "Velocity and a breaking ball are not the answer. You have to change speeds and keep the ball in the park."

Frey was pleased to see the wind blowing out at 20 mph before the opener, saying the Cubs "seem to do well with the wind blowing out."

"I think the wind was a big factor to tell the truth," Frey said. "The wind makes a difference of 30 or 40 feet when the ball is hit high."

Frey felt Matthews' two homers would have been extra base hits had it not been for the wind. Matthews agreed on the first, but said "the second one was out."

Williams thought the only ball which might not have gone out was the one Cey hit because "He reached out for it."

Said Cey, "I'll take it anyway."

Umpires' Job 'Easy'

By The Associated Press

The Chicago Cubs and Detroit Tigers were rough on their opponents and easy on the substitute umpires in the opening games of the baseball playoffs.

The Cubs belted the San Diego Padres 13-0 and the Tigers routed the Kansas City Royals 8-1 Tuesday. Both winners jumped to early leads and made things simple for the umpires who were working in place of the striking regular arbiters.

The American League game offered virtually no close calls and the replacement umpires were generally praised for their work. The National League contest did have one embarrassing moment, though.

In the bottom of the third inning, Ryne Sandberg raced from first to third on a single by Leon Durham and slid in just as the throw from the outfield arrived at the base. Joe Maher, the third base umpire, was well up the left field line and out of position, prompting former Baltimore Orioles' Manager Earl Weaver — a television commentator — to say, "They got their hands caught in the cookie jar already."

Otherwise, everything went smoothly on the fields. Off the fields, however, there were no negotiations and little hope that the dispute would soon be resolved.

Richie Phillips, head of the umpires' union, and American League President Bobby Brown (a management negotiator) were at Tuesday night's ALCS opener in Kansas City and were to meet following the game.

"The big issue is money," Brown said. "Right now, there isn't a bright ray of hope."

Earlier in the day, Phillips said from his office in Philadelphia: "There's nothing going on right now. There have been no negotiations."

The umpires for the NL game in Chicago were Dick Cavanaugh, a 51-year-old retired pilot, who worked behind the plate; Dave Slickemeyer, a steak and seafood salesman, and Joe Pomponi and Maher, both physical education teachers. All four have worked together in the Big Ten Conference and had also worked during the seven-week major league umpires strike in 1979.

The usual six-man contingent was reduced to four in the NL playoff with the elimination of the foul-line umpires. The league's explanation was that the replacements "are used to working that way (in four-man crews)."

The AL game had six umpires. Bill Deegan, who umpired for 10 years in the majors, was behind the plate, with John Bible at first base, Randy Christal at second, Larry Zirbel at third, Harold Jordan in left field and Mike O'Dell in right.

There was only one close play in the AL contest, a sixth inning grounder by Frank White to shortstop Alan Trammell, whose throw seemed to pull first baseman Darrell Evans off the bag. White was called out by Bible.

Asked about that play, Royals Manager Dick Howser said "Jose Martinez (KC's first-base coach) thought he stayed on the bag and that he was out."

Deegan drew praise from Howser and Tigers winner Jack Morris.

"I thought Deegan did a good job — he was a good umpire for 10 years," Howser said.

"I thought he did an outstanding job," added Morris. "Every umpire is human and will mistakes and I think he made some."

Deegan said he has been umpiring little league and softball the last few years.

"I volunteered for it last night when I saw it (the umpires strike) in the paper," said Deegan, who also worked a 1970 game when the National League playoffs were struck. "I don't believe in unions."

Brown, interviewed by ABC-TV before the game, said he felt the substitute umpires had done "pretty well" in the National League series opener earlier.

"We were real tense at first," Pomponi said. Then, the Cubs turned the game into a rout. "The score made it easy. As the score got wider, the game got easier."

Phillips claimed his union members would "hold out through the World Series if we have to."

Retired major league umps Al Barlick and Ed Vargo, on the NL staff as supervisors, were in the dugouts "for any immediate rules interpretations."

The umpires walked out over demands for more money for working postseason games and, according to NL President Chub Feeney, "a larger pool of money for guys who don't show up for work," meaning those not selected to handle the playoffs and World Series.

Peter Ueberroth, in his second day as commissioner of baseball, was at both games. But he reiterated that he would leave the negotiating to Brown and Feeney.

Duke Downs East Carolina

The Lady Blue Devils of Duke University pounded East Carolina 15-3, 15-5, 15-9 in women's college volleyball action Tuesday at Minges Coliseum.

Duke improved its record to 12-1, while the Lady Pirates drop to 2-15.

East Carolina travels to UNC-Chapel Hill Thursday for a 7 p.m. match.

PGA Tour Turns To Seasonal Races

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — With the PGA Tour winding down, major maneuvering in two important seasonal races could be accomplished this week in the $300,000 Texas Open.

The two leading contenders in the Player of the Year race — the non-related Watsons, Tom and Denis — are among the missing, so the attention shifts to the struggles for the leading money-winning spot and the Vardon Trophy, which goes to the man with the low-stroke average on the Tour.

With a prize of $54,000 awaiting the winner, rampaging Mark O'Meara has an chance of overtaking Tom Watson on the money-winning list. Watson has $476,260 for the season, and his playing schedule in the four (including this one) official events remaining is uncertain.

O'Meara, who has won once and collected five second-place finishes, including last weekend in the LaJet Classic, is second on the list with $437,173.

"I've put myself in position, at the moment anyway, to make a run at it. I'd be foolish not to try to take advantage of it," O'Meara said.

He has a non-Tour commitment next week but will play in the Walt Disney World "and if I still have a chance to win the money title, I'll definitely play in Pensacola (the final event on the schedule)."

Both Tom Kite and Cal Peete have a chance to vault over leading Craig Stadler in the Vardon Trophy standings. Stadler is not competing in the tournament that begins Thursday on the Oak Hills Country Club course. He leads with a 70.73 stroke average.

Peete is second at 70.77 and Kite third at 70.81. The short, 6,525-yard, par 70 course often yields some of the lowest scores on the Tour and provides Peete and Kite with opportunities to make up some ground.

"I've got a chance to do some good this week, and I'd sure like to take advantage of it," Kite said.

Other leading figures in the 151-man field include Masters champion Ben Crenshaw, PGA titleholder Lee Trevino, Lanny Wadkins, Bruce Lietzke and defending champion Jim Colbert.

Valkyries Top North Lenoir, Rose Matches Northeastern

WHEAT SWAMP — D.H. Conley's girls' volleyball team swept a pair of matches from hosting North Lenoir and West Carteret yesterday to remain unbeaten.

Opening the evening, Conley took a 15-9, 15-8 victory over West Carteret. Michelle Waters served up seven straight points in the match, while Lisa Mills had seven and Debbie Patrick had six hits in the match.

Then, against North Lenoir, Conley swept through 15-4, 15-4. Mills served up 14 straight points in the opening game of the match. Patrick led the hitting with five.

The victory boosted Conley's record to 16-0 on the season, 6-0 in the Coastal Conference. Conley travels to West Carteret on Thursday with White Oak also joining in.

Rose.....1
Northeastern.....1

ELIZABETH CITY — Karla Turner scored seven points on serve to lead the Rose Rampettes to a 15-6, 15-6 victory over Northeastern in the opening match Tuesday in high school volleyball action.

Northeastern rallied to win the second match 15-3, 15-8. Rose is now 9-3 in conference action.

The Rampettes, who have played three straight matches on the road, host Wilson Hunt Thursday.

Ayden-Grifton beat Farmville Central in their meeting, 16-14, 15-3.

In the FC-GC match, Susan Stancil led service for Farmville, while Wilkes paced the Lady Rams. Against Ayden-Grifton, Wilkes was also the top server. Delanda Rice led Ayden-Grifton.

In the AG-FC match, the Lady

Ueberroth Gets Bonus

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Peter V. Ueberroth, who helped guide the Summer Games to a $150-million surplus as president of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, was awarded a $475,000 merit bonus, an LAOOC official said.

Ueberroth's bonus and $350,000 awarded to LAOOC Executive Vice President Harry L. Usher were two of 6,500 bonuses given to Olympic employees, the LAOOC compensation committee announced Tuesday.

Bonuses ranged from $500 to $35,000, the latter for group vice presidents. The average was $1,100.

Ueberroth, who is now commissioner of major league baseball, presided over the 1984 Games without a salary this year in a show of support for Olympic volunteers.

He had, however, received $168,000 in LAOOC salary and bonuses in 1980, $203,000 in 1981, $243,000 in 1982 and $265,000 last year.

"Without their extraordinary leadership and talent, stemming from their deep commitment to the Olympic movement and the people of Southern California, the 1984 Games might have had a far different outcome," said Roy L. Ash, chairman of compensation committee.

"Their performance has been extraordinary," said Card Walker, a member of the compensation committee. "I consider these merit bonuses low in light of the results achieved."

Chargers were led by Juanita Murphy, while Patrice Ellis led Farmville.

Farmville travels to North Pitt on Thursday, while Ayden-Grifton visits Greene Central.

NP-SN-SWE

BETHEL — North Pitt defeated Southern Nash 15-7, 15-11, then lost to SouthWest Edgecombe 15-5, 15-4 Tuesday in high school volleyball action.

Climmie Harris and Myra Moore had nine service points each for North Pitt in the second game against Southern Nash, while Harris and Rhonda Wallace were the Pant-HERS leading hitters with assists by Melody Harrington.

Harris had three service points for North Pitt against SouthWest Edgecombe. Pam Gorham had seven points on serve for the Lady Cougars.

SouthWest Edgecombe defeated Southern Nash 15-2, 15-6 in the final match.

Rampants Top Fike, GCA Defeats Bethel

Rose High School nipped Wilson Fike, 2-1, after making two of five kicks in a shootout after the contest ended in a 1-1 deadlock after regulation and an overtime.

Jim Carter scored the only goal of the first half after just 1:38 to put Rose into a 1-0 lead. Fike came back eight minutes into the second half to knot the score off a free kick by Mike Perry.

Neither team could then score again either in the remaining regulation time or in a ten-minute overtime.

In the shootout, Rose goalie Gregg Ward stopped the first four Fike shots before Will Cozart hit for the Golden Demons, giving them a 1-up edge. But Rose came back with goals by Jordy Smith and Lewis Robbins — Robbins making the last shot of the five in the shootout for Rose — to give the Rampants the win.

"We played a very strong second half," Coach Will Wiberg said, "but we just couldn't put it into the nets. It was a big win for us, since we've had trouble with them in the past."

Wiberg cited Curt Hendrix, Robbins, Burt Aycock and Scott Davis for their play in the match, in which Rose outshot Fike, 23-11.

Rose is now 4-0 in conference play and 7-1 overall. The Rampants travel to Wilson's Fleming Stadium on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. to face Hunt.

Gr. Christian.....12
Bethel.....1

Paul Hollingsworth scored five goals and had an assist as he led Greenville Christian Academy to a 12-1 soccer victory over Bethel Christian yesterday.

Hollingsworth got it all started with a goal after 4:50 of play, while Derek Leupen, who scored three goals and had two assists, followed with his first at 8:27, then added a second at 9:50.

Maury Harris scored the fourth goal for GCA, with an assist by Robin House, followed by another by Hollingsworth, assisted by Leupen. Kerry House scored off an assist by Hollingsworth, and the two exchanges duties for the final goal of the half for a 7-0 lead at intermission.

Leupen opened the second half with a goal after 2:18, then at the 16:41 mark, Hollingsworth scored again, assisted by Leupen. Hollingsworth made his fifth goal at the 21:52 mark.

Tim O'Shea, assisted by Joseph Martin, and Jesse Leneave, on a penalty kick, closed out the scoring for GCA. Bethel finally made it onto the scoreboard at the 34:18 mark on a kick by Dave Davis.

GCA climbs to 3-4 with the win, while Bethel is now 0-5. The Knights return to action on Friday, hosting Falls Road.

Court Says Conviction In Error

RALEIGH (AP) — A Craven County woman married a man "who is either a thoughtless fool or a sadistic brute" but there is insufficient evidence that she let her husband abuse their 2-month-old child, judges wrote in a North Carolina Court of Appeals decision.

"The only thing to her discredit that I see in the record is that she married a man who is either a thoughtless fool or a sadistic brute; but the General Assembly has not yet made such marriages a crime, and probably could not do so constitutionally," wrote Judge Eugene H. Phillips in Tuesday's decision.

Beverly Ann Woods of Havelock had appealed her April 1983 conviction of misdemeanor child abuse, for which she received a two-year suspended sentence. In her appeal, she contended Craven County Superior Court Judge Michael Bruce erred in denying her motions to dismiss the case on the basis of insufficient evidence.

Mrs. Woods was accused of permitting her husband, Ulysses Woods Jr., to inflict physical injury on their daughter, Jessica, by "severely biting" her and of not trying to stop the abuse.

"The record in the present case is devoid of any evidence that defendant allowed her husband on Oct. 12, 1982, to inflict physical injury on the child in the manner described in the warrant," Judge R.A. Hedrick wrote in the opinion.

In court testimony, Mrs. Woods said she was not in the same room with her husband and daughter and that her husband told her he had bitten the infant on the mouth, causing it to bleed.

Mrs. Woods took the child to Craven County Hospital, where Dr. Thomas G. Irons said he found scratches, abrasions, bruises and scars and that X-rays showed "twisted fractures" of the legs, seven fractures of the ribs and a fractured collarbone.

Mrs. Woods testified she didn't know how the child got the bruises, but said her husband first began biting Jessica when she was a month old. She said she had threatened to leave with the child if her husband continued abusing her.

"In our opinion the evidence in this record is sufficient for a jury to find beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant created or allowed to be created a substantial risk of physical injury, upon or to (her) child by other than accidental means." ... The defendant here, however, was neither charged with nor found guilty of this offense," the decision said.

In other opinions the court: — Affirmed a trial court's decision denying a Durham County couple's claim to recover losses from a stock investment they made upon tips allegedly provided by two E.F. Hutton representatives.

J. Travis Skinner and Barbara R. Skinner said they bought stock in two insurance companies after John Hudson and Donald Fontes gave them "inside information" that corporate takeovers were imminent. But the Skinners said the takeovers never occurred, and when they later sold their stock, they incurred more than $47,000 in stock losses, margin call, margin interest and brokers' commissions.

The trial court ruled that the plaintiffs' claims to stock losses and margin interest were barred by the doctrine of equal fault. The defendants counter-appealed the trial court's failure to dismiss all of the claims.

"The doctrine of (equal fault) precludes an action based on fraudulent, illegal or immoral transaction to which the plaintiff was a party," the opinion said. "Thus, where the parties are equally in the wrong, the courts will not give one party legal redress against the other."

"...we feel that the plaintiffs' actions also place them in equal fault with the defendants in their attempt to undermine the objectives of the North Carolina and federal securities laws," the opinion added.

— Ruled that a trial court judge properly dismissed a complaint filed against Dr. Juan J. Santos and Forsyth County Hospital Authority Inc. by Judy C. Walker, administratrix of the estate of Virginia Cranfill.

The complaint alleged that Santos administered radio-therapeutic treatment to Ms. Cranfill from Jan. 14, 1966, to May 15, 1966, and that she died "as a result of the faulty and negligently directed and administered" treatment.

Attorney Says State Still Has Three Options Left On Redistricting Plan

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina now has three options after the U.S. Justice Department rejected a state House of Representatives redistricting plan for three northeastern counties, an attorney for the state said.

Kathleen H. McGuan, an attorney with the Washington law firm handling the state's redistricting proposal, said North Carolina could file a lawsuit in U.S. District Court in the District of Columbia, submit more information to the U.S. Attorney General in hopes that he would change his mind, or the N.C. Legislature could meet again and consider a new redistricting plan.

Ms. McGuan said she was certain the Legislature would consult its counsel before choosing any option.

The Justice Department rejected the plan for Wilson, Nash and Edgecombe counties that would have divided the present 8th District into one single-member district and one three-member district, before its midnight Monday deadline, Ms. McGuan said Tuesday.

She said she did not know the department's basis for rejection.

Ms. McGuan said in a telephone interview that the department's letter was in the mail, notifying the law firm and the state that the plan was turned down.

The Justice Department studied a plan submitted by the N.C. General Assembly that would have created one predominantly black single-member district and a three-member at-large district in the three counties.

Hunt Campaign Opens New Attack On Helms Social Security Record

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

Gov. Jim Hunt's campaign for the U.S. Senate has renewed its assault on Sen. Jesse Helms as an enemy of Social Security, as Helms' wife declared this "a make-or-break year in America."

Dorothy Helms, campaigning for her husband at a luncheon fashion show and Republican fund-raiser in Greensboro Tuesday, told a crowd of about 100 women that "we cannot afford any more promising politicians in Washington."

"The mood is upbeat in America, but we would be even better off if we didn't have so many Tip O'Neills in Congress," Mrs. Helms said, referring to the speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives. "I hope we can change that."

In Raleigh, Hunt's campaign unveiled Tuesday a television commercial on Social Security that accuses Helms of trying to conceal his stand.

Claude Allen, spokesman for the Helms for Senate Committee, said Hunt was distorting Helms' record and playing a "cruel hoax" on the elderly.

Gary Pearce, co-chairman of the Hunt campaign, displayed during a news conference copies of letters written by Helms and George Hess of Raleigh, a retired Social Security official. Helms' letter is to Hess, asking him to "spread the word" that Helms doesn't favor cutting Social Security. Hess' letter, bearing that message, is addressed to the state's "concerned citizens."

Pearce called the letters "incredible" and "a glaring example of political doubletalk by Senator Helms."

"You can't wage a 20-year crusade against Social Security — as Jesse Helms has — and then, in an election year, pose as the Senate's leading defender of Social Security," Pearce said.

"Time after time, when he had a chance to stand up for Social Security, Jesse Helms went down to the Senate floor and voted to cut the benefits that our parents and our grandparents have earned," he said.

Allen said in a telephone interview that the letters were authentic. Hess' letter was mailed to "several thousand" people statewide around mid-August, he said.

"It's just a cruel hoax to play on senior citizens for Governor Hunt to come out in this campaign once again and try to scare them," Allen said. "What we see is Hunt and other liberal politicians demagoguing the issue, just as (national Democratic strategist) Peter Hart said they would do to frighten them to the polls."

The letter from Helms, dated Aug. 1, tells Hess that Hunt is "trying to frighten" the elderly into voting for him and "ought to be ashamed of himself."

"As long as Jesse Helms is in the Senate, their Social Security benefits will not be cut," Helms wrote. "I will fight any such proposal with every bit of strength that I possess."

Hess' letter, which carries no date and begins "Dear Concerned Citizen," calls Helms "the public official who I believe has done more to strengthen Social Security than any other." It asks the recipient to support Helms and contribute $15 to $50 to his campaign.

Frank Geter, who appeared with Pearce, blasted the Helms letters as an example of "big lie technique" he said Germany had used during World War II.

"Here it comes again," Geter said. "If it ain't so, why, say it is so. And that seems to be what they're trying to do."

Pearce said the ad would appear on statewide television indefinitely.

Justices Reduce Rate Hike

RALEIGH (AP) — A state Supreme Court ruling on a 1982 Duke Power Co. increase will mean lower rates for consumers, says a lawyer with the Public Staff, which represents consumers before the North Carolina Utilities Commission.

"We are happy with the decision," attorney Paul Lassiter said in a telephone interview Tuesday. "We hadn't been expecting anything on it. It will mean reduced rates for ratepayers."

The court ruled Tuesday that the commission must cut the $166.4 million rate increase it allowed Duke Power in 1982 by $29.6 million and ordered refunds.

But Lassiter said he didn't know just how much that reduction would be.

"I don't have the order in front of me, so I can't really tell you," he said.

Duke had sought a revenue increase of nearly 20 percent or $211 million, but the commission approved only about a 12 percent hike.

The utility was allowed to add to its ratebase nearly $104 million for construction work in progress on the Cherokee Nuclear Station as of Dec. 31, 1980. But the state's high court said the commission was wrong to allow Duke to add $29.6 million for funds used during construction on work done before July 1979.

The Supreme Court affirmed a state appeals court ruling that remanded the case for further findings of fact on whether there was enough evidence "as to the reasonableness of Duke's fuel costs." The Supreme Court said the utilities commission may reopen the rate hearing to consider more testimony on the fuel costs.

The Great Lakes Carbon Corp., Kudz Alliance and the Conservation Council of North Carolina had appealed the commission decision.

The court's decision was one the Public Staff had held during hearings on the proposed rate hike, Lassiter said.

The Supreme Court also: — Concluded that John Thomas Noland Jr. received a fair trial free of prejudicial error.

Noland was sentenced to death for the February 1982 shooting deaths of his estranged wife's father and sister. He also received two life terms for two counts of first-degree burglary and a consecutive 20-year term for assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill his mother-in-law.

Troy C. Milton and Cynthia Milton, both of Charlotte, were shot in the head and Milton's wife, Mary, was wounded after Noland allegedly made several threats to kill his wife's family when she refused to return from California to North Carolina.

— Ordered a new sentencing hearing for John Sterling Gardner, who was sentenced to life in prison for the Dec. 17, 1982 slaying of Ray Eugene Shaver of Rowan County.

The court said the trial judge erred when he failed to find a statutory mitigating factor in sentencing Gardner.

— Found no error in the trial of Calvin Chavis Baker, who was convicted in Forsyth County in 1983 of first-degree rape, auto theft, breaking and entering and larceny.

Baker, who denied raping his victim, argued his confession wasn't made voluntarily, he wasn't competent to stand trial and should have gotten a change of venue due to pre-trial publicity.

School System Sued By Student

GREENSBORO (AP) — A $1 million lawsuit filed by the father of a 12-year-old girl asks that the strip-search policy of Durham County schools be declared unconstitutional, but the school superintendent says no such policy exists.

The suit, filed Sept. 25 in U.S. Middle District Court in Greensboro by Jack Steven Courson on behalf of his daughter, Cynthia Courson, alleges that the girl was strip-searched in the hunt for a missing $5 bill.

The suit was filed against the Durham County Board of Education and two assistant principals.

It charges that strip-searches are a policy of the Durham County Board of Education and constitute an invasion of privacy and, as carried out, violate the Fourth and Fourteenth Amendments to the Constitution.

Asked if the school system has a strip-search policy, Durham County School Superintendent Sidney Ray said, "There is nothing in our policy that speaks to searches one way or the other."

The suit says a male assistant principal observed the search, which it alleges occurred Feb. 23 at Lowes Grove Junior High School.

"I regret that this sort of thing has come up, but there is a lot more to this than is in this complaint," Ray said.

"There's definitely another side to this," he said. But he declined to provide specific details.

Couple Receives National Award

GUTHRIE, Ky. (AP) — Ten farmers and ranchers from across the country received awards today from U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block for their soil and water conservation efforts.

The 10 were named finalists in a program established to recognize new conservation methods; the program is sponsored by National Endowment for Solid and Water Conservation and the Du Pont Co.

The finalists, selected from 47 state winners, are:

Tim and Billie Hitchcock of Rock Island, Tenn.; George and Elaine Work of San Miguel, Calif.; Burl and Cathy Scherler of Sheridan Lake, Colo.; Donald and Irene Kozisek of Holyrood, Kan.; Karl and Ferrol Lawin of Long Prairie, Minn.; Harold and Elsie Sieck of Pleasant Dale, Neb.; Gary and Lorene Blake of North Wilkesboro, N.C.; George and Ruth Sharee of Newton Falls, Ohio; James and Patricia Hostetter of McVeytown, Pa.; and Larry and Rebecca Sullivan of Ennis, Texas.

The finalists received expense-paid trips to the ceremony. Three top winners will each be awarded $1,000 later this year.

"These men and women practice soil and water conservation because they believe in it, because it is cost-effective and because it helps protect the basic resources of our nation," Block said in remarks prepared for delivery at the awards ceremony.

The ceremony was conducted on the Todd County, Ky., farm of Allen Franks, one of the top winners in the 1983 program.

Two Sit-Coms Debut On CBS Tonight

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Two back-to-back sitcoms with roots in other entertainment media debut on CBS tonight.

"Charles in Charge," created by a playwright with several off-Broadway credits, has the smart, sassy feel of a Neil Simon jokeathon. "Dreams," inspired by cable's popular MTV, is so-so as music and abysmal as video.

For years, CBS has failed in the first prime-time hour on Wednesday nights. "Charles in Charge," starring Scott Baio from "Happy Days," offers a good start in the time slot. But "Dreams," starring John Stamos from "General Hospital," is a weak link to the follow-up "CBS Wednesday Night Movie."

Baio plays Charles, a 19-year-old college student who becomes a live-in nanny to three children: Lila, 14, Douglas, 12, and Jason, 10. The parents in this suburban family are white-collar executive types. Jill (Julie Cobb) and particularly Stan Pembroke (James Widdoes) come across as buffoons who are too eager to delegate child-raising responsibilities to Charles.

For example, Stan is concerned about Lila's male friends, but he's too bluster to articulate any guidelines. Always speaking in generalities, he says, "Do you understand what I'm telling you?" Invariably, Charles does.

Despite this weakness, clever writing and the exuberant Baio elevate "Charles in Charge" above TV's standard family fiction, in which the kids are a cross between Dr. Benjamin Spock and Joan Rivers and the adults are about as intelligent as Donald Duck.

In "Charles in Charge," you won't find flesh-and-blood kids, as in NBC's "The Cosby Show," but playwright Michael Jacobs ("Cheaters") has crafted some riotous one-liners and some quirky caricatures.

Jason (Michael Pearlman) is a video-game nut who wears a monster mask at the dinner table.

Douglas (Jonathan Ward) is a precocious know-it-all who is one step from sexual awareness — as are most video-age kids. "The children know everything," says Jill. "We have cable TV."

Part adolescent and part adult, Charles is faced with a dilemma. While still growing up himself, he's saddled with being a surrogate parent. Balancing those two worlds produces much of the show's comedic possibilities.

Like tonight, when Charles has an eagerly awaited stay-at-home date with the school's beauty Gwendolyn Pierce (Jennifer Runyon from "Ghostbusters") and is torn between making advances and acting properly in front of the kids. At the same time, he's playing parent because Lila is doing homework in her room with a good-looking guy.

The plot gets a little slapsticky, but is rescued by sophisticated writing and Baio's immense charm and credibility. The former Chachi from "Happy Days" can definitely carry his own series. He displays deft comic timing and a sincerity and warmth that makes him a believable and winning role model.

Scholastic magazine and longtime sitcom producer Al Burton are in charge of the production, and they seem intent on creating comedy that has depth but doesn't descend into anything depressing. "We won't do stories about teen-age suicides and drugs," said Burton.

If Baio is the kid next door, the smart alecks in "Dreams" are nightmares. They're not into drugs, but neither are they the sort to be welcomed into many living rooms.

"Dreams," about five

Philadelphians who try to succeed as a rock 'n' roll band, is a high-decibel show, not because of the driving soundtrack but because the series' one-joke joke is a putdown — generally a loud one.

The worse practitioner is Ron Karabatsos as Frank Franconi, who is the uncle of the group's lead singer and main macho man (Stamos). Franconi's a boorish jerk who does a terrible Ralph Kramden imitation.

Some may compare "Dreams" to "The Monkees," but that 1960s series had a carefree spirit, while this incarnation is pretentious and nasty. The series' blue-collar air is strictly superficial. The hard work behind creating rock 'n' roll is all but ignored.

Tonight's episode starts promisingly with a wistful music-video sequence about a successful band. The brief segment turns out to have been a dream. The rest of the program is then filled with inane dialogue and a flimsy story.

"If you can be any song what would you be?" asks one band member, pushing himself on a female who isn't a fan.

"Beat It," she says.

Ballet's Prices Go Back To 1944

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Balletomanes got a one-day windfall in honor of the 40th anniversary of the American premiere of "The Nutcracker" as the San Francisco Ballet rolled back prices to 1944.

"I'm going to spend $12 instead of $160," said Pat Alker of San Francisco, who queued up Monday with her 4-year-old daughter to take advantage of the 3200 tickets at prices ranging from 90 cents to $3. Regular tickets range from $5 to $37.50.

The first person in line arrived at 7 a.m., and by noon about 700 people, limited to four tickets a person, were waiting for the arts bargains.

The ballet handed out balloons while such Nutcracker characters as the Dancing Bear and the Mouse King and his entourage skipped through the crowd. And at noon, cookies were distributed to the ticket buyers.

On Christmas Day 1944, the San Francisco Ballet presented the first full-length version of the Tchaikovsky classic, and the ballet decided to let ballet patrons benefit from the anniversary. The tickets being sold were good for the matinee and evening performances on Sunday, Dec. 30, the last day of the run that starts Dec. 12.

"The Nutcracker is part of the holiday spirit," said Gregg Graff, a graphic designer who was the first in line for the cheap ducats. "But I do wish these were 49¢ tickets," he said referring to the San Francisco professional team.

Quinn Reports Sculpture Stolen

MONTCLAIR, N.J. (AP) — Anthony Quinn is on the road with the musical "Zorba" and is out three pieces of sculpture he created, possibly worth as much as $500,000, authorities said.

The three works were stolen from a warehouse, where they were stored en route to an exhibit, authorities said.

Quinn, 69, has offered a reward that probably will exceed $10,000 for the works' safe return.

FIRST IN BLUES CATEGORY ... Mojo Collins, left, is first place winner in the Blues category of the 1984 statewide jazz competition sponsored by the Preservation Jazz Company of Raleigh, the Raleigh Little Theater, and the Raleigh Parks and Recreation Department. Collins is shown receiving a certificate for the award from Elmer Gibson, president of the Preservation Jazz Company.

Blues Winner Will Perform Here Twice

Mojo Collins, winner of the first place award of a 1984 statewide jazz competition in the category of a blues music, will perform in Greenville Thursday and Friday at The Piquant Alley club, 109 E. Fifth St. Performances begin each night at 9:30 p.m.

Other top winners in the competition were: best jazz group, East Carolina University's Jazz Bones; best vocalist, Amy Eldridge; and best jazz guitarist, Greg Hyslop. The competition was held recently in Raleigh with all contestants featured in a free live concert in Raleigh's Rose Garden. Sponsors of the event were the Preservation Jazz Company of Raleigh, Raleigh Little Theater, and the Raleigh Parks and Recreation Department.

Grants for the competition were made by St. Augustine College, several recording studios, and a number of individuals, with partial funding from the North Carolina Arts Council in cooperation with Artsposure of Raleigh.

Works by competition winners will be included in an album to be released at a later date.

Collins, a lyricist, singer and instrumentalist, is a resident of Kitty Hawk where he operates Jomo Records. He is a 1964 graduate of Garner Senior High School and served in the U.S. Air Force from 1965-68.

Bethel Schedules Harvest Festival

BETHEL — The first Harvest Festival will be held Friday and Saturday at the Bethel Elementary School and in downtown Bethel.

The festival opens Friday with a Bethel Harvest Festival Pageant at the school. Tickets for the pageant are priced at $2 for adults and $1 for children, and will be available at the door.

The major part of the festival is scheduled for Saturday, with activities getting under way at 9 a.m. and continuing until 6 p.m.

Saturday's round of events will be held in the downtown area and will include an arts and craft show and an art exhibit of work by students from Bethel Elementary and North Pitt High schools, as well as art work by Bethel area adult amateurs.

Five major events are scheduled Saturday. These are: 11 a.m., a Western Show; noon, a break dancing contest; 12:30 p.m., a pumpkin contest; 1 p.m., a concert by The New Dixie Grass Band, and 3 p.m., a Western Show.

Additionally, a number of recreational events, principally oriented to young people, will be taking place throughout Saturday. These include face and pumpkin painting, thumb printing, cookie decorating, a dunkin' booth, a little tyke hayride, a stagecoach ride, and a pumpkin shooter.

A variety of crafts, arts, food and refreshments will be on sale.

Americans Showing More Interest In Learning Oriental Martial Arts

By SEHYON JOH

Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — When Emmy Villaverde was mugged by two knife-wielding youths on a New York street five years ago, she decided to learn karate.

She started to train in the Oriental martial arts, she says, not to fight muggers, but to build self-confidence. "I've heard somewhere that criminals usually prey on those who appear to be timid and vulnerable," said the 33-year-old hotel clerk.

Two years later, she was accosted again by a thug on New York's busy Fifth Avenue in broad daylight. "Apparently, I hadn't gained enough confidence to show off and help discourage a mugger from thrusting his hand into my purse," Ms. Villaverde said.

But this time, she didn't panic. In one sweeping move, she turned around, grabbed him by the neck and gave him a knee-kick to the groin, sending him reeling to the pavement.

"I just took my wallet from his hand and walked away," she said.

Like Ms. Villaverde, an increasing number of Americans, especially young women, are learning karate and other Oriental martial arts, mainly to defend themselves against criminals, said James Coleman, an editor of Black Belt Magazine in Burbank, Calif.

"A rising crime rate in big cities is a major reason for most people to train in the arts of self-defense," he said.

Martial arts are also popular as a form of physical fitness, Coleman said.

"More and more Americans are becoming health-conscious these days and they think it's a good idea to exercise and learn to defend themselves at the same time," Coleman said in a telephone interview.

Coleman and others at Black Belt, one of three U.S. magazines on the martial arts, could not say exactly how many Americans are training in martial arts. But judging by an increase in subscriptions to their magazines, interest in the martial arts has risen considerably in recent years, they said.

Henry Cho, an organizer of the U.S. Karate Championships held in New York last March, said an estimated 2 million Americans had taken up karate, kung fu or taekwondo at one time or another. Just a decade ago, there were 400,000 martial arts enthusiasts in the country, he said.

Karate and taekwondo are Japanese and Korean versions respectively of kung fu, the 2,000-year-old Chinese martial arts. While kung fu stresses offensive aspects of the martial arts, karate emphasizes defense, with taekwondo falling somewhere in between, explained Cho, who is also an instructor at St. John's University in New York.

"A lot of young people also come to learn the martial arts after watching kung fu movies made popular by the late Chinese movie star Bruce Lee," Cho said. "But those who seek a quick solution to their fear of crime, or those whose interest was aroused by fanciful kung fu movies on television, do not last long. They usually drop out after a first few sessions," he said. "It isn't easy, you see, to learn even the rudimentary moves of karate."

Children as young as 6 are also learning the martial arts.

"Parents are encouraging their children to take karate lessons for mental discipline as well as for physical fitness," said Cho.

The instructor, however, warned against over-confidence. He said many of his students were at a point where they felt they could fight off an attacker in a "hand-to-hand" confrontation.

"But it's dangerous to be over-confident in one's ability to defend oneself," he said. "You simply don't know enough about the other guy."

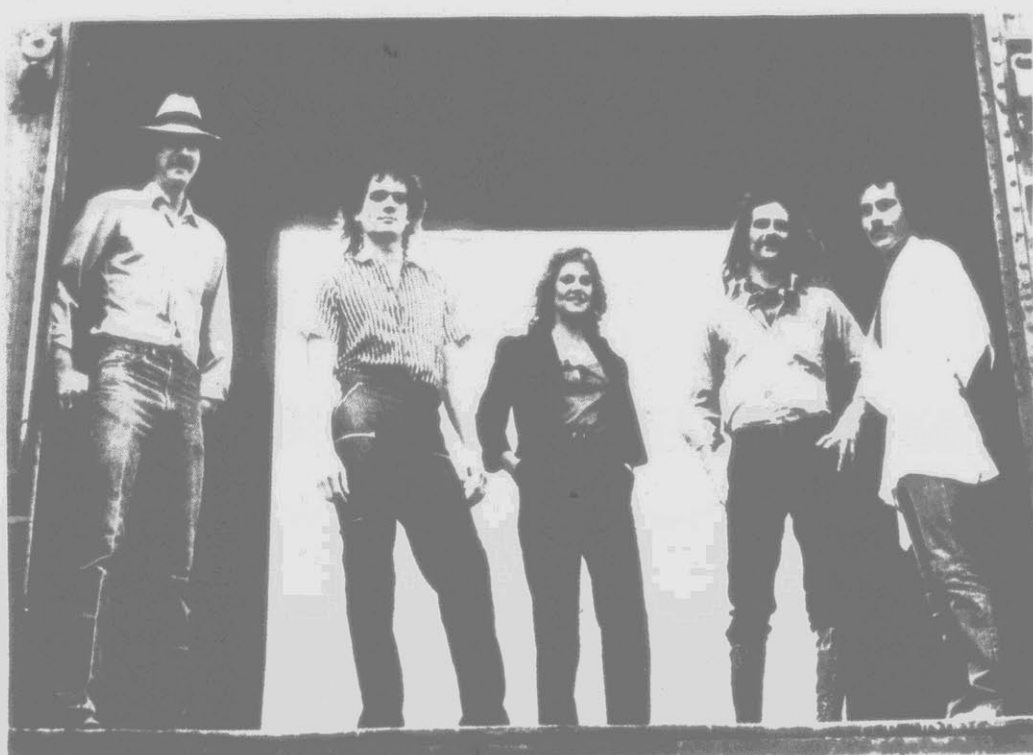

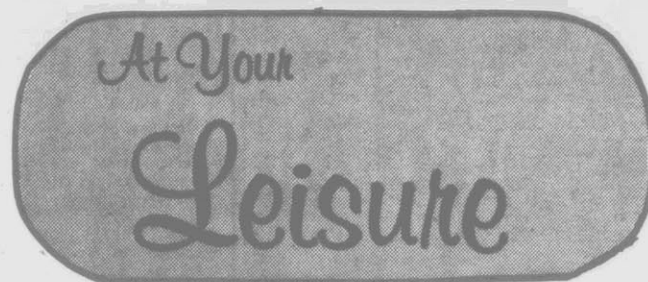

Sgt. Peter Sweeney of the New York Police Department voiced a similar caution: "Whether the people know martial arts or not, they should contact police when they are in trouble."

Another police officer who declined to be identified by name put it more bluntly: "A bullet travels faster than hands."

Cho said karate was also popular in Europe and spreading fast to other parts of the world. He said there was talk among sports leaders of proposing that the International Olympic Committee consider including karate in the 1988 Olympic Games in Seoul, South Korea.

Ms. Villaverde, who has earned her black belt since she knocked down a mugger on Fifth Avenue, said she would probably never fight a mugger again, especially in an isolated place or at night.

"But I'm ready to face any challenger if it is for a trophy at the next U.S. karate championship or at the Olympic games," she said.

RETURN PERFORMANCE — Three musicians formerly of the Greenville-New Bern area — Bobby Stever, bass; Lynn Parker, lead guitarist, and Greir (C' Boy) Crawford, drummer — are returning to Pitt County for two performances this week. The three have teamed up with two Virginia musicians, Tim and Renae

McGuire, to form a band named January Rose. On Friday night January Rose will play at Rocky Roads South, corner of Queen and Highland Streets, Grifton, and on Saturday they will be at the Carolina Opry House, Greenville.

'Having Colors Done' Is More Than Hobby

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The art of matching sweaters and scarves to the blue in an eye or the pink in a cheek is putting green in a lot of pockets as personal color analyses evolve from hobby to a serious part of the fashion industry.

The practice of "having colors done" — matching skin, eye and hair tones to textile colors that flatter a person — is good for Deanna Radeloff. The 43-year-old home economics professor at Bowling Green State University is putting nearly 20 years of study in color and psychology to use in a sideline business of training color analysts, who then go into business for themselves, telling others what color clothes they should wear.

"I don't know why people are getting so much into color now, because we've known about it for ages, but everybody is," says Ms. Radeloff, who began training analysts to use her system in 1982.

Dolores Ware, managing director of the Color Association of the United States, said the system would probably have been only a party game a decade ago. The New York-based organization sets standards for colors used in the textile industry and monitors color trends in many industries.

Now, she said, color analysis is influencing the textile industry and how stores market clothes.

Jennifer Emery, women's fashion manager and buyer for the Damschroder department stores in Toledo, agrees. Store workers studied under Ms. Radeloff and now train all sales people in coloring because they need to know what customers are talking about when they shop with color swatches to be matched, Ms. Emery said.

Ms. Radeloff's system considers tones in a person's eyes, the way skin reflects and absorbs light, and other factors, to choose colors in four basic categories — usually linked to the seasons. She said her system was based on scientific studies, but said it and other systems often got only scorn from scientists.

"Anybody that's very pragmatic, who has a very quantitative mind, is going to look at this and say, 'Yeah, right.' But any artist or creative person who works with color will recognize color's effect," she said.

"The big topic (among) professionals now is, is this subject really credible? One thing, it is a subjective process ... and while there is a science to color, we haven't made this profession scientific," Ms. Radeloff said.

Ms. Radeloff decries color analysts who consider colors psychic or mystically linked to a personality. But no matter how frivolous some believe color analysis is, the money involved is very serious.

Prospective analysts pay Ms. Radeloff $2,000 for 40 hours of training, certification to use her system, and standard supplies including lights, drapings of various colored fabrics, mirrors, color wheels and swatches of fabric for clients to use when choosing clothing.

4. Hot & Spicy Tandoori Chicken

4 Holy Farms Boneless
Chicken Breast
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons dark brown sugar
1 small onion, minced
1 clove garlic, minced
1/4 cup lemon juice
1 tablespoon Worcestershire
1 tablespoon white vinegar
1 1/2 teaspoons chili powder, salt and pepper
dash hot pepper sauce
4 large pita pockets, warmed lettuce leaves
8 slices tomato
1 green pepper, seeded and cut into 8 rings

Cut chicken into 1/2-inch cubes. Melt butter in large skillet. Add chicken, and cook over high heat until lightly browned. Lower heat; add brown sugar, and stir until sugar is melted and chicken is coated. Add onion and garlic. Cook until onion is translucent and sugar is caramelized. Add 1/4 cup water, Worcestershire, vinegar, and chili powder in small bowl. Stir to blend. Add to skillet and stir well. Season with salt, pepper, and hot pepper sauce. Simmer, stirring until sauce is very thick, about 5 minutes. Split pita pockets in half crosswise and line each half with lettuce. Place 2 tomato slices and 2 pepper rings into each pocket. Spoon chicken mixture into pockets and serve.

Oil Outlook: Prices More Likely To Fall

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Eighteen months after a historic price cut, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is still struggling to keep prices from falling further.

Not even the first rise in world oil demand in five years or a 4-year-old war between Iran and Iraq in the oil-rich Persian Gulf has enabled OPEC to dry up a global oil glut and turn its balance of payments deficit into a surplus.

At a meeting last week, members of an OPEC committee again recommended that the 13-nation cartel leave unchanged the prices and production levels established in March 1983.

Here are some questions and answers about the oil price outlook:

Q. What has happened to OPEC's prices?

A. Official prices, after adjusting for inflation, have fallen to levels last seen in 1979. Prices in the spot market, those markets not bound by long-term supply contracts, are below official levels.

That is a sharp departure from the previous decade, when OPEC appeared firmly in control of the oil patch and prices appeared to be on a non-stop upward course. The official price of Arabian Light crude oil, OPEC's benchmark blend, rose from $2.75 a barrel in 1973 to $34 in 1981.

But conservation and substitution of other fuels in response to the runup in prices, coupled with a steep economic slump that was brought on in part by soaring oil prices sent demand for oil tumbling and created a glut that toppled prices. OPEC, responding to market pressures rather than leading the way, reduced its price to $29 a barrel in March 1983, a level that still prevails.

Q. What has that meant for OPEC?

A. It has turned a balance of payments surplus into a deficit. OPEC's current account — a broad measure of the flow of payments for goods and services in and out of the cartel — ran a surplus of $112 billion in 1980, when OPEC sold $277 billion worth of oil. Last year, the cartel estimated its current account had a deficit of $16.8 billion as oil sales fell to $157 billion. OPEC said the deficit would have been worse if its members had not reduced their imports and expansion programs. A smaller deficit is expected this year and another deficit is expected in 1985.

Q. What has oil price stability meant for consumers?

A. Relief from rising oil prices has helped to hold down inflation in the United States, even during the strongest economic growth spurt in more than three decades. But the impact has not been as great in Europe because oil is sold for dollars and the dollar is at record heights.

Meanwhile, with oil plentiful and prices moderating, some costly efforts aimed at developing synthetic alternate fuels have been shelved.

Q. Is any change likely in oil prices?

A. Analysts say that barring a major supply disruption, it is unlikely ly that oil prices will resume climbing for at least two more years, and that it may be 1990 before oil prices start rising faster than the inflation rate.

If OPEC cuts prices to try to boost sales, competition within and outside the cartel for an increased share of the business might lead to overproduction that could push prices even lower, analysts say. If prices are raised prematurely to try to increase revenue, a slowdown in economic growth and in the demand for oil could bring back the glut and a resumption of falling prices.

Stephen Smith, a senior vice president at Data Resources Inc., a private consulting firm, is betting the official price will hold steady at $29 a barrel in the near term. But he says there is a 20 percent chance for another cut in OPEC prices next year and only a 10 percent chance of an increase.

"I see $29 by default — OPEC is too 'poor' to decrease its price, too nervous to increase it," Smith adds. "They're locked in."

FORECAST FOR THURS., OCTOBER 4, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a day when conditions ricochet from being difficult at one moment, when you need to accept delays philosophically, to very favorable conditions, when you should push your talents.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get into new outlets that are profitable and relegate old activities to the background where they are apt to be less troublesome.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Avoid a partner who is very demanding and be with important persons and put over fine deals with them.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Your work schedule seems difficult, but apply more effort and all works out fine, then join a partner at some pleasurable pursuit.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Instead of running off on a tangent, try to please your mate and be happy. Then get your work handled with flair.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Home affairs are not to your liking in the morning, but tonight you can get off to interesting pursuits.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't let some comments disturb you in the morning, but get busy finding the right mechanisms that will make your work far easier.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Monetary problems can be cast aside for awhile and you can plan for a good time that will help you to cut down on tensions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) There are bound to be delays in whatever you do today, so be philosophical about this.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Do not go off on some questionable little trip, but handle problematical affairs in a modern way and get right results.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't permit an imposing friend to take up your time in the morning, and later you can make your property more charming.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Keep rooted to your own wishes and steer clear of outside troubles. Stop wasting time with those who are depressive.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Although the new appeals to you, this is no day for making radical changes, but fine for planning a new course of action.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will definitely be a product of the modern era and should be educated at up-to-date schools in order to make the most of the capabilities. Your progeny may be quite different from most others and be ahead of them, so do not try to change or conform them to the norm.

No Resentment By Spy

LONDON (AP) — The wife of a spy considered by U.S. officials to have caused more damage to Western intelligence than any other since World War II says her husband does not resent her, even though she helped put him behind bars for 38 years.

"There's no resentment," Rhona Prime, wife of Geoffrey Prime, said in an interview on the British Broadcasting Corp.'s Newsnight television program. She said she visits her husband three times a month in prison.

Prime, 45, a former translator at Britain's top-secret electronic intelligence-gathering facility at Cheltenham, was sentenced on Nov. 10, 1982, after confessing that for 14 years he fed Western secrets to agents of the Soviet Union's KGB.

Allstate Settles Sex Discrimination Suit; Agrees To $5 Million Payment

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Allstate Insurance Co. agreed to pay $5 million to 3,100 saleswomen who claimed they were paid less than men for the same jobs, in a settlement that could affect salary-setting policies nationwide, a federal official said.

In reaching the settlement, announced Monday, the nation's second largest insurer said it was starting a new compensation system that would no longer use an employee's salary in a former job as a factor in setting pay.

The eight-year-old sex discrimination suit, filed by a San Francisco public interest law firm, charged that the practice perpetuated bias against women because they earn an average of 60 cents for every dollar earned by men.

Clarence Thomas, chairman of the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, called the wage discrimination settlement one of "historic proportions" and said it "should have significant impact on salary-setting practices in all industries nationwide."

Both sides agreed in June to settle the case.

"This is a major victory for pay equity for women in this country," said Judith Kurtz, staff attorney for Equal Rights Advocates.

Although the settlement does not create a legal precedent for other companies, the agreement "should have significant impact on salary-setting practices nationwide," said Clarence Thomas, chairman of the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission in Washington.

The suit, filed in 1976 by Lola Kouba, an Allstate saleswoman in Sacramento, alleged Allstate's use of previous salary to fix non-commission salary guarantees violated the equal pay for equal work requirement of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

In a statement, Allstate said under a new program "all sales agent trainees and agents within the same market area will receive the same guarantee at the start of their careers."

A new marketing program "gives us the opportunity to reach a settlement in the Kouba case, thus ending what looked to be years of expensive litigation," the company said.

Under the settlement, Allstate, a unit of Sears, Roebuck & Co., maintained it did not discriminate and based starting salary on several factors, including education and previous experience.

The settlement was approved in Sacramento by U.S. District Judge Lawrence K. Karlton.

Debate will always rage as to whether bridge is an art or a science. To us it seems that as long as judgment plays an important part in the game, it will always be more of an art.

Here's an example from World Championship play. When Pietro Forquet and Benito Garozzo sat North-South for Italy, the bidding went as shown. South decided that his hand was too strong offensively for a normal preemptive bid, so he elected to open one spade. North's jump to four diamonds confirmed spades as trumps and asked about control of diamonds. East made a lead-directing double and South's redouble showed first-round control of the suit.

North still needed to know something about the quality of South's suit, so he cue-bid hearts. When South bid his spades a third time, North had heard enough. He jumped to five no trump, the Grand Slam Force, to check on trump honors. Holding two of the three top honors, South naturally bid the grand slam. West led a diamond, and declarer claimed 13 tricks.

At the other table, the American South chose to open the hand with a preemptive bid of four spades. It was an understandable action — interchange the North and West hands, and it is East-West who can make a grand slam in diamonds if declarer guesses correctly in trumps. Unfortunately, that crowded the auction. South had no way to show a diamond void in an aceless hand in response to his partner's Blackwood inquiry, and the auction came to an end in six no trump by North.

While the Italians used science to bid the grand slam, their gain of 11 International Match Points on the

Detainees Released

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — The head of the military regime marked Nigeria's independence day by announcing the release of 250 people detained since the coup that put him in power nine months ago.

In a nationally broadcast address this week, the 24th anniversary of the West African country's independence from Britain, Maj. Gen. Muhammadu Buhari also said his government's tough fiscal policies have reversed Nigeria's financial slide.

He said the process of releasing detainees — including former bureaucrats and businessmen — "will be a continuous one." He said further details on the release would be made public later.

Since toppling the civilian government of Shehu Shagari in a New Year's Eve coup, Buhari's government has arrested hundreds of former public officials, businessmen and some of their relatives. Many have been tried by military courts on charges of corruption and currency violations.

Among those detained is Shagari, the man twice elected president of Africa's most populous country.

Injunction Halts 'Bible Clubs' In 2 Elementary Schools

By FREDERICK STANDISH
Associated Press Writer
KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — School officials who have allowed Bible clubs to gather at two elementary schools for 30 years are deciding whether to appeal a judge's ruling that having the clubs on school property during school hours violates the U.S. Constitution.

U.S. District Judge Richard Enslen said that the Tri-County School District's tradition of having the clubs in the schools violated the First Amendment provision for separation of church and state.

Enslen issued a preliminary injunction barring the clubs, conducted by the Bible Center Ministries of Jenison, from meeting in Howard City and Sand Lake.

School board attorney Jon G. March had argued that the court was forced to weigh First Amendment rights guaranteeing freedom of religion against the separation of church and state.

"We think the balance weighs in favor of the free exercise (of religion) argument," said March.

But Enslen disagreed, saying, "Surely it is too much to ask of an elementary school child to understand the subtleties of the First Amendment."

School board members were said to be split on whether to appeal

Enslen's ruling. They are scheduled to discuss the matter Monday.

"I think we've committed enough taxpayers' money," said John Princer, school board vice president. "We've gone as far as we can go. The judge has spoken."

Board member Bruce Saunders called the injunction "a grave miscarriage of justice."

Enslen's ruling came in a suit Michigan Attorney General Frank

Kelley filed against the school board after it voted unanimously last month to continue holding the clubs at McNaughton Elementary School in Howard City and Sand Lake Elementary School in Sand Lake.

Testimony showed that the clubs were held at the schools once a week between 12:30 p.m. and 1 p.m. — the last half of a lunch-recess hour. Students with parental permission were allowed to go to the clubs instead of a recess period.

Tri-County Superintendent Robert Miller testified that employees of the ministries took attendance but never told the school who attended and who did not.

Congress recently passed legislation allowing student religious meetings in public schools. The bill limits activities to before and after school hours.

Of the 270 students at the Sand Lake school, about 40 had parental permission and about 30 attended the weekly clubs, according to testimony. At McNaughton, which has an enrollment of about 330 pupils, about 40 of the 60 students with permission went to the club meetings.

Last year, parental permission forms were handed out by teachers, Miller said. But this year, the ministries would have to make their own arrangements, he told the court.

Enslen said requiring the ministries to take care of the permission forms was a step in the right direction of separating the school from the clubs, but he said he doubted they could be kept apart completely.

HOW TO MEASURE

To determine width, measure (A) against inner edge of facing boards up against check stop at top, center and bottom. Use shortest measurement. Then, measure (B) both sides from top to sill to find correct height. When upper and lower glass are unequal in height, measure (C) from inner edge of facing board to center of meeting rail.

UP TO $1,000 INSTANT CREDIT! CHOOSE FROM TWO PLANS.

Apply For Our Convenient Lowe's Credit Card.

Just present your Visa, American Express or MasterCard, and you may qualify for up to $1,000 instant credit on a new Lowe's Card. (Even without these cards, your application will be processed with a minimum delay.) Ask a Lowe's salesperson for complete details.

Finance Major Purchases Of Up To $5,000 On Our Low Payment Plan.

Our Low Payment Plan offers you an easier way to make those major home improvements and larger purchases. It's designed to let you finance purchases of $250 to $5,000 for up to five years at competitive rates. The result is a very low monthly payment that fits comfortably into your family budget and brings important home additions, from a new refrigerator to a new roof, within easy reach. Just look for the above symbol in future advertisements. And, where space is available, we'll also provide the specific credit details on selected items, to give you an idea of the relative size of monthly payments and Annual Percentage Rates. Low Payment Credit Terms are outlined below. So apply today. You may qualify for up to $1,000 instant credit when you present your Visa, American Express, MasterCard, Sears or Lowe's card!

Lowe's Low Payment Credit Terms: Your credit must be satisfactory. Our cash price does not include sales tax. The monthly payment price may be slightly lower, depending upon state law. The monthly payment price includes sales tax of 4%. If sales tax differs in your area, the monthly payment will vary slightly. Credit Life and Disability Insurance is available upon request. Delivery charges are excluded.

We Also Honor American Express, Visa & MasterCard.

Lowe's Raincheck Policy: If we sell out of an advertised item, we'll issue you a raincheck. When we restock, you'll be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price (except for products marked "Limited Quantities"). Our smaller stores may not stock all advertised items. But every item shown here can be ordered for you.

Lowe's Pricing Policy: Many items in this tabloid carry a reference retail price. The reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its full retail price based on prices at which it or similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference retail price does not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that our reference retail prices as described above represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this advertisement are listed at "regular" selling prices. The merchandise is offered at this price except during a special sale. The purpose of showing a reference retail price (or a regular price) is to assist you, our customer, in making a knowledgeable and better informed buying decision. We suggest that you also do comparative shopping and compare our prices (Prices in this tabloid do not include delivery charges. Ask us about delivery rates.)

The Farmington's Extras

The Farmington features a massive fireplace, 4 bedrooms, 2½ bathrooms, a laundry room with walk-in closet, plus a kitchen dining bar and pantry.

Land & Labor Are Extra Garage Is Optional

The Farmington also has a 618 sq. ft. garage (optional); 1,130 sq. ft. downstairs and 1,114 sq. ft. upstairs; a formal living room; a 15' x 16' family room.

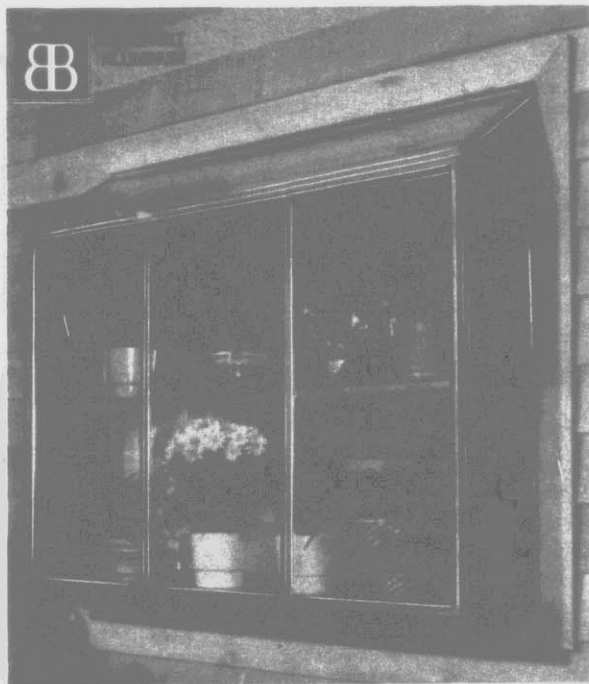

Our Total Package System Takes The Hassle Out Of Home Building

1 For one low price, Lowe's will supply all the materials to build the Low-E® (low energy) home above from the foundation plate up. And Lowe's will guarantee the price for 90 days. And that could save you money right there! That's a great idea.

2 Once construction begins, we'll deliver the materials to your lot — in building sequence, so there will be less chance of loss due to bad weather or pilferage. In other words, you won't get your carpeting when your roof's going up.

3 Our Low-E® homes exceed normal energy efficient standards. That's because they incorporate extra insulation, extensive caulking, insulated doors and windows, attic ventilation, heat pump and much more. So you can save on energy year after year.

4 The "Farmington" is just one of Lowe's many home plans. We offer a wide choice of home styles and sizes — from solar, contemporary designs to small vacation cottages. Stop in for complete details and our illustrated home booklet.

Sears pricing policy: If an item is not described as reduced or a special purchase, it is at its regular price. A special purchase, though not reduced, is an exceptional value.

Large items such as furniture and appliances are inventoried in our distribution center and will be scheduled for pick-up or delivery. Delivery is not
