Poll Gives Mondale Presidential Debate Edge

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — President Reagan and Walter F. Mondale awaited voter reaction after a fast-paced debate that defined differences on domestic issues from taxes to religion, but even many Republicans thought Mondale came out ahead.

A poll conducted by The Gallup Organization for Newsweek magazine, said registered voters who saw the debate picked Mondale as the winner by a tally of 54 percent to 35 percent. A separate poll, done for Mondale's campaign, said respondents picked him as the victor by a spread of 52 percent to 32 percent.

But a Reagan campaign poll said Reagan won, 41 percent to 38 percent and that more than half those who answered said they still intended to vote for Reagan.

Mondale campaign director James Johnson saw in his poll a clear victory for the challenger; Reagan chief of staff James A. Baker III disagreed, but said "even if we did as poorly as a draw, we won."

"The only memorable moments were Mondale's," said John Reilly, a senior political adviser to the Democratic nominee. "I think we won bigger than expected."

Vice President George Bush told reporters in Washington that "President Reagan came out way ahead."

But another Republican, Rep.

John McCain of Arizona, said Reagan could have done better.

"I think the President's weakness was that he appeared hesitant with some of his facts, as he has in the past," McCain said. "I thought he held his own pretty well, but I would have liked the President to do better."

Reagan did not say how he felt he had done in the debate. Of his opponent, the president said, "He kept on saying he didn't know what we were going to do (for the next four years). We're going to keep on doing what we've been doing the past four years."

At a post-debate party, Mondale told supporters, "You know what? We're going to win this election."

Rep. Geraldine Ferraro, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, was as partisan as her counterpart, Bush, saying, "Tonight's debate is going to make a difference in those polls."

Both campaigns will anxiously await other opinion polls that reflect the judgment of the experts who matter, the 100 million or so Americans who watched the debate televised from the Kentucky Center for the Arts.

The Democratic challenger desperately needed a big boost from the debate to cut into the big lead Reagan has held in recent polls. With one month and one more debate left until Election Day, Mondale was running out of time to close the gap as some polls showed him trailing Reagan in up to 48 of the 50 states.

Mondale was flying to New York today to march in the annual Columbus Day parade with his running mate.

Reagan planned to appear at a rally in Charlotte, N.C., and then participate in the unveiling of a statue of Christopher Columbus in Baltimore.

Standing eight feet apart behind identical lecterns, Mondale and Reagan answered questions from three journalists and spelled out their sharply divergent views of what the past three years have meant to Americans. The debate was scheduled to run 90 minutes but ran 10 minutes longer.

Several times, moderator Barbara Walters of ABC chided the audience for interrupting with applause and at the start she scolded both candidates for not being able to agree on four questioners out of a list of about 100 submitted by the sponsoring League of Women Voters.

Ms. Ferraro and Bush will debate Thursday in Philadelphia.

"I think we have given America back her spirit," said the president, who rephrased his 1980 debate question to ask, "Is America better off than it was four years ago?"

After reciting improving economic statistics, Reagan said, "I believe the answer to that has to be yes."

When Reagan debated President Carter in 1980 and the economy was reeling under high interest and inflation rates, the Republican candidate scored effectively when he asked whether Americans felt they were better off than before Carter took office.

Mondale disagreed with Reagan's assessment of the past four years. "If you're wealthy, you're better off," he said. Middle income Americans were about even, he added, and people of modest income were worse off.

In his closing statement, the Democratic challenger said that even after watching the debate, "the American people don't have the slightest clue" how Reagan intends to reduce budget deficits now running close to $200 billion a year.

The rules barred the candidates from questioning each other, but Mondale skirted that prohibition and turned to the president to ask,

"What are you going to do" to reduce the deficit. "You can't wash it away."

There was no opportunity for Reagan to respond directly.

"I don't believe that Mr. Mondale has a plan for balancing the budget," said the president. "He has a plan for raising taxes."

Reagan added that as a senator, Mondale had voted 16 times in favor of tax increases.

In another echo of 1980, Mondale referred to the Reagan economic program as "what was once called 'voodoo economics'" a phrase coined in the 1980 Republican primary campaign by Bush.

Reagan compared economic statistics today with what the figures

Activist Banks Faces Sentencing

By CHET BROKAW
Associated Press Writer

CUSTER, S.D. (AP) — American Indian activist Dennis Banks, who surrendered after nine years as a fugitive to face sentencing for his role in a 1973 courthouse riot, should draw no prison term, his lawyer says.

Banks, a co-founder of the American Indian Movement, faced a maximum penalty of 15 years imprisonment during sentencing today.

He fled after his 1975 convictions for rioting with a dangerous weapon and assault with a weapon without intent to kill, stemming from a riot over the prosecution of a white man charged in the stabbing death of an Indian.

"He really should get nothing, but the realities of life may prevail," New York lawyer William Kunstler said Sunday after arriving to lead the defense team. "I'm going to say a lot, but in essence, it's going to come down to asking this judge to stand up and be a man ... and recognize that this man should not be in jail."

Banks was a community leader and a good citizen while a fugitive, Kunstler said. He said he would present scores of statements from famous people, including the Rev. Jesse Jackson, arguing for a light sentence.

About 75 of Banks' supporters were gathered at the Custer County Courthouse this morning as the sentencing hearing started, and Banks was moved early today from the Pennington County Jail in Rapid City to the Custer County Courthouse.

Highway Patrol cars were parked around Custer to help local authorities in case any disturbance occurred during the hearing. Custer County sheriff's deputies refused to give details of security arrangements, but said they had adequate forces to handle any problem.

Banks, 47, has been held without bail since his surrender Sept. 13. He said he returned to South Dakota for the sake of his family and because his nine years as a fugitive had taken a heavy toll.

The law in effect in 1975 set a two-year minimum sentence on the riot charge, but Kunstler said Custer County Circuit Judge Marshall Young, who presided over Banks' trial, could opt for probation.

Because Young was familiar with the case, the prosecution planned to present no witnesses, said South Dakota Attorney General Mark Meierhenry, who helped prosecute Banks.

The state also had no plans to recommend a sentence, Meierhenry said. "We're just going to let the facts speak for themselves."

Banks' sentencing hearing was scheduled in the new Custer County courthouse, across the street from the old courthouse, where Banks and other AIM leaders gathered on Feb. 6, 1973.

There, they urged authorities to charge a white man, Daryld Schmitz, with murder for the stabbing death of an Indian, Wesley Bad Heart Bull. But when most of the 150 to 200 people who showed up at the meeting couldn't get into the courthouse, the confusion grew into a riot.

Schmitz was charged with manslaughter and acquitted.

After fleeing South Dakota, Banks gained sanctuary in California from former Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. When Brown left office in 1983, Banks was given refuge on the Onondaga Indian Reservation near Syracuse, N.Y.

AIM leaders say the organization has changed its tactics but retained its goal of increased Indian control over Indian affairs since the 71-day occupation of Wounded Knee in 1973, in which two people died.

"We have moved away from violence," said Leonard Peltier, who is appealing his conviction of the deaths of two FBI agents during a gun battle on an Indian reservation in 1975. "We are more into the political arena."

"AIM's more sophisticated now," said Bill Means, executive director of the AIM-sponsored International Treaty Council at the United Nations. "We're using institutions for social change."

HOSPITALIZATION INSURANCE FOR RETIREES?

I recently retired from county employment and have found, to my chagrin, that the County of Pitt pays no hospitalization for its retirees. It was voted down again last Monday. The State of North Carolina, the City of Greenville and even some of the smaller towns pay for hospitalization for their retirees. The average county employee is not paid enough during his working years to receive a large retirement income. Having to pay for his own hospitalization is prohibitive. Yet how can he or she do without it? This is a real hardship. No matter how long a county employee works for the county, he or she never receives a letter of appreciation or any other recognition of his or her service. This is sad, but sadder still is the real disregard for the well-being of long-serving employees of the county in the form of no assistance with hospitalization. Rosa Mae Martin, Bethel County Manager Reginald Gray said you are right, that hospitalization for retired employees of the county was rejected by the county commissioners last week. This was the recommendation, he said, of a Charlotte firm which advises the county on insurance matters. It was pointed out by the consultant, he said, that the cost of insuring retired employees is very high and, if they are included in the same group with current employees, greatly runs up the cost to the each employee. He said the matter was considered about two years ago and was also rejected at that time for the same reason — it's deemed too costly.

The City of Greenville, as you said, does insure retired employees who've served up to 20 continuous years. This is done as part of the current employees' group until age 65, and then with a statewide municipal employees' group.

World Court Delays Action On Complaint

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — The World Court today postponed a decision on a Nicaraguan complaint that the United States is waging "armed attacks" against the Sandinistas.

Instead, the court said it would start a new series of hearings on whether it has jurisdiction to hear the complaint. Davis R. Robinson, the U.S. representative to the court, has argued that the court does not have jurisdiction because Nicaragua never recognized the authority of the World Court.

However, Carlos Arguello, the Nicaraguan ambassador to the Netherlands, has said the Sandinista government does recognize the court's authority because Nicaragua participates in the United Nations.

If the court, which is the judicial arm of the United Nations, decides to accept the case, it may take years before a ruling is issued. The court

United Way Campaign Moving On

The 1984 United Way campaign, which began Sept. 6, has already raised $35,428.92, 5.2 percent of this year's $681,325 goal, according to Diane Webster, communications specialist for the United Way of Pitt County.

"The large industries in the county are just beginning their employee campaigns," she said. Funds are being solicited for the support of the health and human services organizations sponsored by the United Way.

The last official day of the United Way campaign is Nov. 7.

Poll Corrected

An Associated Press story in Sunday's edition incorrectly reported the results of a Charlotte Observer poll in the gubernatorial race between Democrat Rufus Edmisten and Republican James G. Martin.

According to the poll, Edmisten leads Martin 50 percent to 37 percent with 13 undecided.

Officer, Others Hurt

A Greenville police officer and others were slightly injured this weekend in a Fifth Street collision.

According to Police Chief Ted Holmes, Officer C.R. Anderson was responding to a fight call on Albemarle Avenue Friday when a car operated by James Forbes of Farmville turned into the path of the police car. "Officer Anderson, who was operating with his blue light on, came upon three cars in the east bound lane of W. Fifth Street. Two of the cars moved over, the third car (operated by Forbes) turned out of the way and then turned back in front of officer Anderson." Forbes was charged with driving while impaired.

Holmes said Anderson and several occupants of the Forbes car were "slightly injured" and were treated and released at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Damages were estimated at $5,700 — $700 to the Forbes car and $5,000 to the police vehicle.

Recreation Agenda

Three items are on the agenda of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department Commission meeting for October, to be held at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 10. The meeting will take place in the auditorium of the Administrative Office Building on Cedar Lane.

The old business item is discussion of the status of a house on Elm Street; under new business agenda items are for a report on an employee program and viewing of a proposed slide presentation for the Recreation and Parks Department.

Drug Arrests

Charles Andrew Norfleet, currently of 306 Paris Ave., was charged by Greenville police officers with sale and delivery of heroin Sunday.

Norfleet, a 34-year-old Florida laborer, was also arrested for possession of firearms by a felon, carrying a concealed weapon and possession of beer where unwarranted. He is being held at the Pitt County Jail under $6,500 bond.

Also arrested on drug charges Sunday in a separate incident was Clyde Rencher Cash, 19, of Falkland for possession of marijuana. Cash was initially stopped on intoxicated and disruptive charges at the corner of Fourth and Reade street. However upon investigation, police reported they discovered less than an ounce of marijuana, an alligator clip and rolling papers.

Speaks on Indians

Ken Hartsell recently spoke to students at Falkland Elementary School about American Indians.

His presentation included Indian artifacts and a description of the Tuscarora Indians once native to the Pitt County area. The program was held in conjunction with the observance of Indian Heritage Week in North Carolina.

Columbus Day Activities Readied

By The Associated Press
President Reagan and Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale are joining thousands of other Americans to honor Christopher Columbus with parades and ceremonies on the day for Italian-Americans to shine.

Reagan was to help dedicate a statue of Christopher Columbus in Baltimore's Little Italy section today. Mondale was to march up Fifth Avenue in New York's 40th annual Columbus Day parade, a star-studded event which also was to include Vice President George Bush, actress Sophia Loren and Geraldine Ferraro, the Democratic vice presidential candidate.

Ms. Ferraro got a jump on the other national candidates Sunday, reveling in her Italian-American heritage as she joined about 1,500 marchers at a Columbus Day parade in Newark, N.J.

While most festivities paid homage to Columbus, the Italian explorer who while in the service of Spain reached the New World in 1492, partisans of Leif Ericson on Sunday pressed their claim that the intrepid Viking actually was the first European to venture to the Americas.

In Jensen Beach, Fla., the Sons of Norway finished a three-day celebration of Erikson's feats Sunday, but said they planned nothing special for today.

"Christopher who?" the mostly blue-eyed, blond-haired participants shouted when asked about the official observance of Columbus Day.

Today in Baltimore, Mayor Donald Schaefer was to join the president in unveiling a statue of Columbus. Reagan planned to deliver a speech and was to receive a small marble replica of the statue.

The ceremony also was to include appearances by singers from the city's Metropolitan Opera and musicians who specialize in Italian music, as well as two members of the Baltimore Blast indoor soccer team, Pat Ercoli and Nick Mangione.

Organizers said they expected 1 million people for the Columbus Day Parade in New York.

Miss Loren, who was to have been the grand marshal last year before the parade was canceled due to the death of Cardinal Terence Cooke, had promised to come back this year. Previous grand marshals have included Lee Iacocca, Luciano

Pavarotti, Tony Bennett and Frank Sinatra.

The actress was to lead an estimated 50,000 marchers.

"I am looking forward to the exciting parade and joining all Americans in celebrating Columbus' discovery of this great and wonderful land," Miss Loren said. "And of course, I Love New York!"

Before its parade celebrating Columbus and Italian-Americans, New York City paid tribute to Korean-Americans and Polish-Americans.

Waving red and white flags, thousands of Polish-Americans marched Sunday in the city's Pulaski Day Parade, an annual tribute to Polish nobleman Brig. Gen. Casimir Pulaski, who died while fighting in the American Revolution. And the city's fifth annual Korean Parade on Saturday filled the canyons of lower Broadway.

At the Newark parade the focus was on politics. Ms. Ferraro said her immigrant father might have imagined that his son could run for the nation's second-highest office, but he probably never foresaw that his daughter would have that chance.

"I think he would have been thrilled if he were here today, that his daughter... is the first Italian-American, the first woman, to aspire to the office of vice president," the Queens, N.Y., congresswoman told about 300 people before the parade stepped off.

Another procession took place at sunrise Sunday in Durham, N.H., but this one was to honor Ericson, who the celebrants believe reached America 981 years ago, nearly a half-century before Columbus sailed into the West Indies.

The parade route was a far cry from the long journeys by either explorer — it ran 25 feet from a laundry to a restaurant for a program of Scandinavian music and food.

Couple Speaks Vows On Saturday Afternoon

Estelia Jackson, daughter of Mrs. Maye Tyson Jackson of Charlottesville, Va., and the late Dr. E.N. Jackson, and Raymond Leon Carney, son of the late Joe and Annie Carney, were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at three o'clock.

The Rev. Hue Walston of Greenville performed the double ring ceremony in the Sycamore Chapel Baptist Church.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, French Tyson Jackson of Washington, D.C. William Earl Carney, brother of the bridegroom of East Orange, N.J., was the best man.

The honor attendant was Marjorie Watts of Richmond, Va., and bridesmaids included Kay Love Wright, cousin of the bride of Silver Spring, Md., and Charlotte Carney Roberson of Rahway, N.J., sister of the bridegroom.

Flower girls were Karma Love Wright of Silver Spring, Md., god-child of the bride, and Letitia Corinne Paige of Greenville.

Derrick Knight of Winterville, son of the bridegroom, was the ring bearer. Ushers included Charles Ray Carney of East Orange, N.J., and Clifton Earl Carney of Bethel, brothers of the bridegroom. Junior ushers included Julian O'Pharrow of Winston-Salem, son of the bridegroom, Keith Scott of Greenville and Eric Roberson of Rahway, N.J., nephews of the bridegroom.

Mike Early of Greenville and Lula Johnson Langeley presented nuptial music. Vernestine Clemons Paige of Greenville directed the wedding.

The bride wore a formal candlelight floor length dress of chiffon with spaghetti straps with a double wrap skirt enhanced with a qiana lace short-sleeved bodice. Her headpiece was of ivory chiffon with pearls. She carried an arrangement of gardenias, white roses and stephanotis.

The maid of honor wore a formal dress of teal blue with a fitted gathered bodice and full length skirt. She carried a perfect pink rose with baby's breath and greenery.

The bridesmaids wore identical styled dresses as the honor attendant in crimson lustregio and also carried pink roses.

The flower girl wore crimson and ivory printed short length dresses enhanced with a full length bibbed collar of ivory accented with a red bow. Each carried a flower basket of mixed flowers.

A reception followed at Unlimited Touch. Louise Scott, sister of the bridegroom of Greenville, presided at the guest register. Verna Evans, sister of the bridegroom of Willingburg, N.J., was hostess. Patricia Carney, sister-in-law of the bridegroom of Bethel, said good-byes.

Julia Washington, cousin of the bride of Orangeburg, S.C., and Beryl White of Greenville served cake and Charmaine Carney and Sharon Carney, nieces of the bridegroom, received gifts.

The mothers wore white orchid corsages.

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip to the mountains.

The bride is a graduate of James Madison University and the University of North Carolina School of Public Health. She is a sales associate with Century 21 Bass Realty. The bridegroom is a graduate of Bethel Union High School and is a captain with the Greenville Fire Department.

A rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's family.

School Library Media Centers Help Kids Learn

CHICAGO (AP) — Can kids improve their reading skills through television?

The answer to that question is an emphatic "yes" in school systems where students aren't just watching television, but are actually producing it, says Alice Fite, executive director of the American Association of School Librarians (AASL).

Two such school systems — in Richmond, Va., and Riverside-Brookfield, Ill. — have library media center programs designed to give students opportunities for creative outlet, to encourage younger students to read, and to provide access to the latest electronic equipment, including television and computers.

They have been so successful in motivating students to learn, says Ms. Fite, that both earned National School Media Programs of the Year awards for 1984 from the AASL. The award recognizes excellence and innovation in school library media services.

"The school library — or media center as it is now known — is becoming an ever more integrated part of the curriculum of elementary and secondary schools," Ms. Fite said. "And, we find the schools with the highest achieving students tend to have media centers with the most creative approach to learning, as well as the electronic 'carrots' that young people must learn to master — including television and computers."

Evidence of the interest these new media programs are drawing is the fact that some 80 students at Riverside-Brookfield Township High School volunteer as student aides in their school's library. The Media Services Club is one of the most popular in the suburban Chicago school.

Teachers at Riverside-Brookfield are using television to add sparkle to traditional subjects, while students employ video to produce everything from creative book reports to home economics demonstrations and speeches.

For the last several years, the school has produced a student television show called "Dateline: R-B," directed by two students who receive independent study credit. Upon completion of the local cable system, the show will beam out of the school throughout the community.

Richmond schools are also using the new technology to increase student performance at the elementary and secondary levels. The system's libraries have among their goals "to prepare each pupil to assume a productive role in a technological society" and to increase student achievement. This, according to the judges of the AASL award program, Richmond is doing.

The system makes extensive use of closed circuit television — broadcasting daily programs dealing with reading, literature and literacy. In addition, the in-house TV station airs news and features.

Mircrocomputers are also a part of Richmond's school libraries. They don't necessarily take attention away from such well-accepted programs as the system's "Read Squad," which sends secondary students to elementary media centers to read to younger children. Ms. Fite notes the schools also set aside a 20-minute reading period when everyone — including teachers, custodial staff and administrators — reads.

Dr. James R. Trost, superintendent-principal at Riverside-Brookfield Township High School, says his school's library "doesn't restrict itself to traditional spaces and places, nor does it restrict itself to traditional activities. We have books and a lot of them, and we have the courage to throw them away. We are enthusiastic about the potential of computers in our media program ... and in our role in educational cable broadcasting."

The school's media services coordinator, Dawn Heller, adds that she hopes her library can "provide dynamic and changing learning experiences which will help each student achieve his optimum intellectual development."

Charity Ball Report Given At Meeting

A report on the Charity Ball was given by Mrs. William McConnell, chairman, at the meeting of the Greenville Service League held last week.

She said committees had been appointed and a meeting will be held Oct. 10.

Other committee reports were given including Mrs. George Clark reporting on the Bloodmobile's four September visits involved 87 league members, who worked 290½ hours and 838 units of blood were collected. A report was given by Mrs. Edwrd Seykora, gift shop. She also introduced the new gift shop assistant, Amanda Little.

Laughinghouse Hospital Fund chairman Mrs. Lawton Nisbet answered two calls and two memorials were received. Mary Wesley Harvey, hospital placement, asked members to sign up to work at the hospital in December and April for the spring and fall terms.

Lending chest chairman Mrs. Jon Tingelstad answered five calls and said some equipment was returned. Sustaining representative Mrs. Al Ferguson announced a noon luncheon meeting Oct. 24 at the Sheraton. A report on publicity was given by Mrs. R.W. MacKenzie Jr.

Mrs. Jasper Lewis gave a report on the hospital chapel.

Mrs. Edward Smith, president, conducted the meeting.

Book For Teens Wins Praise From Parents And Teachers

DEAR ABBY: God bless you for having published the booklet "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know." It's the best $2.50 I ever spent. I am 39, and regret that I didn't have that kind of information when I was growing up. Thank God I have it now, because I am a single parent raising two children. Your booklet explains the facts about drugs and sex and the problems of growing up in a direct and honest way without being preachy. I have a girl, 9, and a boy, 11, and they understood it well. You will probably be surprised to receive a letter such as this from a man.

DENVER DAD

DEAR DAD: Thanks for writing. Your letter made my day. Read on for a letter from another writer who not only appreciated my booklet, she offered a valuable suggestion:

DEAR ABBY: I just received "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know." It is excellent. I am a counselor in a junior high school with a large number of Spanish-speaking students. Please consider putting that booklet out in Spanish. And if you do, please point out some cultural differences to make the Spanish edition especially relevant to Hispanics. For example, concerning violence in relationships: Wife beating is sometimes accepted by both wife and husband. The macho man feels that it is OK to beat his wife and children. This attitude should be changed. Abby, you could help to change it. Thank you.

LONGTIME READER

DEAR READER: You are not the first to suggest a Spanish translation of my teen booklet. So, with the help of some friends on the Los Angeles School Board, I finally did it!

For "Lo Que Todo Adolescente Debe Saber," readers should send $2.50 in check or money order to: Abby, Adolescente Espanol, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. (This includes postage.) Please print your name and address clearly. The English-language edition is available for the same price at the same address.

DEAR ABBY: This is in regard to the Pennsylvania Dutchman's 80-year-old cousin who fathered a son by his 24-year-old wife:

I know of a recorded instance in history where a man 100 years old fathered a child by his 90-year-old wife. His name was Abraham and his wife's name was Sarah. And they named their son Isaac.

This can be documented in the Old Testament in Genesis.

BIBLE BELIEVER
IN KENTUCKY

DEAR BELIEVER: I know the story well. According to the Bible, "Sarah laughed" when she was told that she would bear a child. That proves that Sarah had a better sense of humor than most women in modern times.

(Getting married? Send for Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Junior Women Have Guests

Juniorette officers and Florence Holt, club advisor, attended the October general meeting of the Greenville Junior Woman's Club as guests.

Final preparations were made for the upcoming craft bazaar to be held at Carolina East Mall. Donations should be taken to Mary Vojetcky by Oct. 26.

An informational coffee will be held for interested women at the home of Mary Shearin Oct. 17.

Meeting hostesses were Lynne Rackley, Nancy Lee, Chris Flower and Cindy Carter.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

I'm gonna be thinner by Thanksgiving ... and skinny by Christmas!

I'm starting the Diet Center Program today!

WHY DON'T YOU

Maybe you should consider where you'll be in 150 years.

The thought of it isn't pleasant. But your own bodily mortality is something somebody's going to have to deal with sooner or later.

So, instead of putting on blinders, why don't you consider the options? Find out a little about what happens after you pass away. The laws and the facts that govern the cemetery business. When you do, we're certain you'll see the advantages that Pinewood Memorial Park, managed by S.G. Wilkerson and Sons, offers over new, private ventures.

Just what is 'Perpetual Care'?

The State of North Carolina requires privately-owned cemeteries to meet certain requirements in order to call themselves 'Perpetual Care' cemeteries.

The law requires that a certain amount from the sale of each grave be set aside in a fund. Interest earned from the dollars in that fund is required to be used for upkeep in the cemetery.

However, S.G. Wilkerson and Sons, has never considered the required amount to be sufficient. Therefore, over the years, the contributions to the fund have been much larger than the amount required.

The results are obvious. With a 25-year growth of mature centipede sod, the cemetery grounds are now beautiful. The infrequent maintenance problems are quickly attended to. Plot buyers in Pinewood select from the grounds themselves, not from a notebook of what cemetery owners hope the grounds will look like years from now. Fact is, it takes years of careful maintenance for a cemetery to really look groomed and cared for.

And all Pinewood graves have the low profile and dignity of a flat bronze marker — better for everyone. What may surprise you the most is the fact that the total Pinewood Memorial Park costs are less, not more, than "package deals"

Let us tell you more. We'd like to explain more. Because we'd like you to make an informed decision about this matter which you and your family should take seriously.

The Wilkerson family has been in this business for many years. So talk to us before you buy anything. We'll respect your decision. But we want you to be sure you know what you're doing.

Bee Industry Threatened By Parasite

NEW YORK (AP) — A parasitic mite that attacks honeybees' respiratory systems has been discovered in five states, forcing the destruction of millions of bees and threatening the multimillion-dollar bee industry, a federal agriculture official said.

The mites, which sap the bees of energy for honey production and pollination, could cause serious economic losses to beekeepers who depend on sales of honey and to thousands of farmers who depend on bees to pollinate crops, The New York Times reported in today's editions.

"They have discovered a couple of new cases just this last week, one in New York state and the other in South Dakota, that have really got us not knowing the extent of the infestation," Binford Weaver, past president of the American Beekeepers Federation, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview from his home in Navasota, Texas.

"There's a great deal of debate on how serious a problem it really is," he said. "It is generally credited with sapping the vigor of the bees. In severe cases it may keep them from flying."

Meanwhile, the president is expected to sign a bill passed last week that would allow the bee industry to bill honey producers and importers to finance a marketing, research and promotion program designed to increase consumption of honey and reduce a rapidly growing surplus.

Government purchases of honey under a 35-year-old price support program rose to $72 million in 1983 for 115 million pounds. Imported honey costs less than the government support price.

Donald E. Nielson, a spokesman for the federal Agriculture Department's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, was quoted by the Times as saying millions of bees have been destroyed in a bid to keep the mites from spreading.

The mites, which are believed to have crossed the Rio Grande from Mexico, were found in New York, Florida, Texas, Louisiana and South Dakota, the newspaper said.

There is no known way to control the spread of the Acarapis woodi mite, a member of the family of arachnids that includes spiders, ticks and scorpions, according to entomologists. Insecticides that would kill the mite would also affect the bees or their honey.

The mite pierces its victims' trachea and lays its eggs there. When the eggs hatch the young mites suck the bee's vital fluids, weakening its productive capabilities.

The harm to bees varies with the intensity of the infestation, the health of the hive and the severity of the climate. Bee specialists said mite infestations in northern states would seriously weaken the bees.

Many of the nation's 200,000 beekeepers, who maintain more than 4 million colonies, fear the infestation may spread rapidly because honeybees are shipped across the country for crop pollination duty.

"At this stage nothing can be done," said Roger A. Morse, a Cornell University entomologist who has studied the mites and their effect on South America. Morse said certain types of honey bees are "fairly resistant" to the mite and suggested they be developed and popularized.

Morse estimated a 5 percent loss in honey production in the affected areas.

Weaver said he believed setting up restricted zones in affected states, with no movement of bees in or out of the zones, would be effective.

About 3,500 colonies have been destroyed in Texas since the infestation was discovered there in July, said Weaver. Another 200 colonies, of 600 affected, were destroyed in Louisiana, he said.

Times Points To Cuban Moves

NEW YORK (AP) — Cuba has been preparing its population for a possible invasion by the United States following the November presidential election, the New York Times reported today.

The preparations include staging large-scale evacuations and combat drills, building bomb shelters and having children dig trenches outside their schools, the newspaper said in a story from Havana.

U.S. diplomats could provide no explanation for the Cuban activity, but Cubans are saying they expect a victory by President Reagan in the November election to be followed by an American attack, the Times said.

"We have never felt so threatened," said Cuban Foreign Minister Jose Raul Viera Linares.

At an agriculture project in Jibacoa, 30 miles outside Havana, Julio Fernandez, who was working on a shelter, said, "We think Reagan is going to be elected and we have to prepare ourselves."

Cuban officials also believe that Reagan has been moving the United States toward fighting in Nicaragua that probably would involve Cuba, which has military advisers, doctors and teachers in that Central American country.

"I personally think that if there are no fundamental changes in the situation, there will be a war," said Ricardo Alarcon de Quesada, a deputy foreign minister and member of the Cuban Communist Party.

The senior American official in Cuba, John A. Ferch, head of the U.S. Interest Section in Havana, said there had been no changes recently in U.S. policy toward Cuba. "We find nothing in our actions and policies that explains the increase in Cuban defense measures," Ferch said.

However, diplomats interviewed by the Times said they sensed that Cuba sincerely feared an attack was imminent.

Lady Gets New Torch

NEW YORK (AP) — A French company has been chosen to build a new torch for the Statue of Liberty — itself a gift to the United States from France nearly a century ago.

About 10 craftsmen from the firm of Les Metalliers Champenois will come to the United States to create the torch, according to the Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island foundation, which is raising funds for the restoration of the statue.

The craftsmen will perform their work on Liberty Island, and visitors will be able to view the progress of the new torch, the foundation said in a news release.

The statue's corroded original torch was removed during a ceremony July 4 as part of a major restoration scheduled to be completed in time for its centennial, on July 4, 1986.

In the construction of the new torch, the French workmen will use a technique known as repousse forming, the hammering of metal from its underside to achieve a desired exterior shape. Repousse was used in the building of the statue 100 years ago.

Ill From Spill

LINDEN, N.J. (AP) — A pesticide spill that sent at least 100 people to hospitals for emergency treatment should have no lasting or delayed effects on their health, a poisons expert says.

The fumes from an outdoor tank containing malathion drifted as far as 18 miles on Saturday over communities in northern New Jersey and Staten Island, N.Y. Hospitals treated people for headaches, dizziness, nausea, vomiting, abdominal cramps and burning eyes.

Dr. Steven Marcus of the New Jersey Poison Information and Education System said even people with respiratory problems would suffer no delayed effects, and he said no one who was hospitalized was seriously ill.

REACH Is Being Revived

A support group for families of the mentally ill is being revived in Greenville and will meet Tuesday from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church, corner of 14th and Elm streets.

The group is called REACH, an acronym for "Reassurance to Each," and is being led by Joyce House, a layperson who has volunteered to be the community contact for the next year, and Sandra Johnson, an assistant professor in the East Carolina University School of Nursing. Meetings will be held at least the second Tuesday of each month.

Mrs. House said, "REACH seeks to provide comfort and reassurance to those who have a family member or friend experiencing mental problems. We hope that group members will develop a sense of solidarity and sharing with others who are facing similar problems."

"We will try to help those who attend come to a better understanding of the problems of the relative or friends and to find resources within themselves and in the community to help their loved ones and themselves."

She stressed that everything said in the meetings will be kept confidential by those involved and that no one will ever be asked to talk unless they choose to.

The group is sponsored by the Mental Health Association in Pitt County and will receive collaborative assistance from the Pitt County Mental Health Center and other community agencies.

Family Remembers Hudson's Courage

JAMES HUDSON

By CAROL BLACKLEY TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville resident James Hudson ended an 18-year-old battle with pain and paralysis and its attendant disabilities by taking his own life last week.

His family and friends are saddened by his death and the manner of his death, but they are choosing to focus on their knowledge of his courage in the face of pain for so many years, his constant choice to get out and be among people in spite of his ever-increasing pain and limitation of movement, and his many contributions to others, especially the handicapped.

The 58-year-old Hudson, paralyzed from the waist down for 18 years, grew up in Greenville and graduated from Greenville High School in 1943. He entered the U.S. Air Force, but served only briefly, being in Air Force Cadet School when the war ended. He then entered East Carolina College and graduated with a degree in accounting. Having been an outstanding high school baseball player, he also played semi-pro baseball on Robersonville and Hertford teams for a while.

While he was in college, he worked at Carolina Sales Corp. and an associated company, Redisco, hired him when he graduated. He spent his entire career with the company, moving upward until his disability began and working for the company even after it had begun.

He and his wife and three children moved from Greenville to Atlanta in 1961 when he was promoted to assistant manager there and to Dallas when he was named a manager about 1965. While he was living in Dallas, it was discovered he had a spinal tumor, present since birth, that had begun growing. He was told he had to have it surgically removed or risk death. He did and his pain and paralysis began and had steadily worsened. He gradually lost movement in his legs and they constantly hurt.

A deacon in the Methodist Church, he taught Sunday School and served as the church treasurer in Dallas. After he was disabled, he continued to serve as treasurer, having the church minister bring the money and materials he would need to his house for him to continue his work, his sisters said.

His marriage ended in the late '70s. He moved to Gainesville, Fla., to live with his sister, Mary Medlock. There a year, he became involved with DAWN (Disabled Awareness Now), a group of handicapped persons. He set up a book-keeping system for them and became an active member and officer.

Much of his efforts during the year he was there was to make the community aware of the needs of the handicapped, especially access to public places and conveniences.

He also served in Florida as the handicapped representative to the North Central Council of Florida Hospitals, an agency that makes decisions for and dispenses federal and state grants for the building of new hospitals and the provision of hospital equipment.

He returned home to Greenville in 1980. To insure assistance with the ongoing medical care his condition demanded, he could not be gainfully employed, so he chose to work without pay for the company that had employed him during his college years — Carolina Sales. Then 18 months ago, he went to work for the East Carolina Vocational Center, which helps the physically and emotionally handicapped to be gainfully employed.

"We could not have afforded the great expertise that James Hudson brought to a job for which he was never paid," Daneel LeRoux, Vocational Center director, said. "He came to work as regularly and as faithfully as any paid employee. He was always jolly and friends with co-workers and clients alike. He never volunteered to tell you he was in pain, but if you asked him he'd tell you the truth. He was always hurting, yet he could concentrate on his work and share with his fellow employees just as if he wasn't."

"We all loved him," co-worker Barbara Williams said. "I'd known James as early as 1960 when both of us worked for Carolina Sales-Redisco. I don't know anybody I admired more. We really miss him."

Last November he was honored as state handicapped volunteer of the year, a honor for which he was nominated by the Vocational Center.

Last June he went to Duke University Medical Center for a reassessment of his pain. His family said he talked with optimism about how he was going to learn new ways of managing the pain. He stayed several weeks and, at the end, was not successful. He was told, "There is nothing we can do."

"He was not the same after that," his sister-in-law, Alice Hudson said. "He tried to be, but he couldn't be." "He told me last Sunday the pain was moving upward in his body and becoming more and more unbearable," his sister, Mary said.

During the last days before he died, he talked to most of his family members either on the telephone or in person. He went to spend Saturday afternoon with his mother at Carolina Rest Home as he usually did. And he apparently spent a lot of time working on farewell letters to many of the people he loved.

He worked Monday at the Vocational Center. And Tuesday morning his body was found in his apartment. "He stood it just as long as he could. He taught us all what courage was," his sister, Mary, said.

Car Dealer Is Convicted In Auto Rollback Scheme In N. Carolina

GREENSBORO (AP) — A Rhode Island car dealer has been found guilty in federal court of participating in a complicated auto rollback scheme in which car titles were laundered in North Carolina.

Peter J. Baker of East Greenwich, R.I., was charged in indictments in which the government charged that defendants tried to defraud car buyers in North Carolina and five New England states by tampering with the car odometers. The government also charged that forged automobile titles were transferred to North Carolina where new titles were issued showing reduced mileage.

Indictments allege that more than 5.7 million miles were rolled back on more than 160 vehicles from Jan. 25 to May 3, and that the odometer on one car was rolled back nearly 145,000 miles.

U.S. Middle District Court Judge Richard C. Erwin presided over Friday's trial by stipulation, in which a jury trial is waived, no witnesses testify and no opening statements are made. Instead, the prosecution and defense stipulate or agree as to the facts in the case and those facts are presented to a judge in written form.

Baker was among 10 defendants on trial in the rollback scheme. Erwin reserved judgment on those defendants until he can examine more than 250 pages of stipulated facts and more than 1,000 documents.

Those on trial include Alfred DeFusco, Norman Cardinale, James LaChance, John Irons, Diane M. Scardera, John Cotoia Jr., and Richard Dion of Cranston, R.I., Angelo Marsella, Edward Regine and Ernest Persichino of Johnston, R.I.

In all, 14 people have been indicted in the rollback scheme. Three have pleaded guilty including High Point used-car dealer Darrell L. Hicks.

Fire Cause Pinpointed

RALEIGH (AP) — Raleigh fire investigators and the State Bureau of Investigation have determined that the fire that gutted the downtown government building was caused by a burning match tossed into a box of trash.

Capt. Dudley Gill, director the investigative division of the Raleigh Fire Department, said late last week the fire began in the rear of Pine State Luncheonette, located in the front of the two-story Howard Building.

Fire alarm systems, including smoke detectors and sprinklers, were recommended for a number of large state government office buildings in 1981, but had not been installed, said Kenneth P. Dixon, a deputy commissioner with the state Department of Insurance.

"The legislature has not appropriated the money for it," Dixon said. He said he could not estimate the cost of the recommended improvements.

The Howard Building was not one of the buildings surveyed in 1981.

The fire, which broke out Wednesday afternoon, spread through a breezeway that connects the restaurant to the interior of the building, Gill said. Firefighters remained at the scene Wednesday night, dousing the building to prevent possible flare-ups.

"It's a little early for us to figure out what the score is," Dixon said. "But I can tell you its going to run into several hundreds of thousands of dollars."

4-H'sers Joining U.S. Observance

Pitt County 4-H members are joining the nearly 5 million young people nationwide in observing National 4-H Week through Saturday, according to Dale Panaro, a Pitt County extension agent.

Using the theme "4-H Building on Experience," members are being challenged to use their own, as well as others', experiences and expertise in acquiring practical skills. They are also learning good health habits, developing respect for themselves and others, exploring career and leisure time opportunities, sharing responsibilities for preserving the environment and developing leadership and citizenship skills.

Ms. Panaro said that during the week members of America's largest out-of-school youth education organization will celebrate with activities aimed at promoting individual growth and accomplishment, creativity, social responsibility and family involvement.

In Pitt County, there are 76 volunteer leaders working with approximately 574 4-H members. These volunteers are among the more than 620,000 leaders nationwide who each contributed about 220 hours of service last year.

The 4-H program, conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service at North Carolina State University, is available to boys and girls ages 9 to 19. Programs are conducted in the 3,150 counties of the United States, and the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and Guam.

Plane Crashes

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — An American U-2 reconnaissance jet crashed today three miles south of Osan Air Base. Its pilot ejected and was taken to a hospital.

U.S. military officials did not identify the pilot of the U.S. Air Force plane. They said he was taken to the base hospital, but did not give his condition.

The U-2, based at Osan 30 miles south of Seoul, crashed at 7 a.m., the U.S. Forces Korea officials reported.

The cause of the crash was not known.

Turkey Trophy

CUERO, Texas (AP) — One of the contestants was none too swift and both of them were absolute turkeys.

But some gobbler had to win, so on Sunday the Traveling Turkey Trophy of Tulumtuous Triumph went to Ruby Begonia of Cuero, who ran the second heat of the Great Gobbler Gallop in just 30 seconds.

It was a tough loss for Paycheck, of Worthington, Minn., who covered the track in 71 seconds. Paycheck had been leading after the first heat in Minnesota on Sept. 15.

Views On Dental Health

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S.P.A.
GUM BOIL (ABCESS)

An abscess (sometimes known as a gum boil) in the gum tissue can be a painful experience. It may result from an infection within the tooth itself which means the nerve is dying or has died. The breakdown products move in the path of least resistance through the bone and then through the gum.

The abscess could also be caused by a trapping of food or bacterial products in the gum space we call a "pocket" (an opening between the gum and the tooth) which is a symptom of periodontal disease. If the entrance to the pocket closes tightly around an area of heavy breakdown, then the toxins accumulate and create pressure in the gum wall. Again, you may have pain with the swelling.

It will be painful, will not cure itself and will only get worse without treatment. Whatever the cause, you should call your dentist and tell him of your emergency. He will relieve your discomfort, determine the cause of the abscess and treat the tooth or gum pocket if the tooth is worth saving.

Archbishop Attacks Policies

LONDON (AP) — The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Robert Runcie, has launched an attack on the Conservative government's economic policies, saying they have created record unemployment, poverty and "despair about the future."

In an interview published today by the Times of London, Runcie challenged the government's handling of the 7-month-old coal miners' strike over threatened mine closures, criticizing its "politics of confrontation."

"He condemned violence on miners' picket lines, but spread the blame for it wider than the miners."

"Abuse, the cheap imputation of the worst possible motives, treating people as scum in speech, all this pumping vituperation into the atmosphere has a deep effect on physical violence," he was quoted as saying.

His remarks, made after the Church of England's senior bishops met in London on Saturday, were thought to reflect the tone of their discussions, The Times said.

The archbishop said government policies had caused "unemployment on an unprecedented level, poverty, bureaucracy, despair about the future of some communities, and inequitable sharing of the sacrifices called for."

Unemployment reached an all-time high of 3.28 million, or 13.6 percent of the national workforce, in September, more than doubling since Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher came to power in 1979.

The Conservative Party's influential Bow Group, to which a third of Mrs. Thatcher's 22-member Cabinet belongs, accused her of "missed opportunities" in an open letter before the governing party's annual conference this week.

However, Mrs. Thatcher responded Sunday with a tart defense of her administration's record, particularly its sales of nationalized industries.

"To dismiss all of this ... as cautious and defensive is crackers," she said in a forthright reply to Bow Group chairman Michael Lings that was released by party headquarters.

The fuss in the Conservative Party, usually well-disciplined in public, erupted after the fractious Labor Party wound up its conference last week under renewed criticism for lurching to the left.

A Market and Opinion Research International poll published by the Sunday Times showed Labor had apparently paid a heavy price for its conference votes in favor of a commitment to unilateral nuclear disarmament and support of Britain's striking miners.

The poll of 985 voters taken midway through Labor's Oct. 1-5 conference showed the Conservatives with 43 percent support, eight points ahead of Labor, and the centrist Social Democratic-Liberal Party alliance with 19 percent.

Labor had slipped around five points from its near-equal ratings with the Tories in most polls over the past six months.

The Labor conference, dominated by leftist party chapters and labor union chiefs, welcomed miners' leader Arthur Scargill and blamed police for unprecedented violence on picket lines through a seven-month coal strike.

The poll showed a 75 percent majority blaming Scargill or the miners for the violence.

But it also showed half those questioned considered Mrs. Thatcher "out of touch with ordinary people" and 41 percent thought she was "dictatorial."

Big majorities criticized her handling of unemployment and the coal strike.

The Conservatives' four-day conference opens Tuesday in the south England resort of Brighton and is likely to be dominated by restiveness over unemployment and the coal strike.

The walkout has idled three-fourths of Britain's 175 state-owned mines. It was touched off by plans to close 20 money-losing mines in the state-owned industry.

The 17,000-strong coal foremen's union said after talks with National Coal Board negotiators Sunday that both sides will meet the state-appointed mediation body, the Advisory, Conciliation and Arbitration Service, this week.

The union, the National Association of Colliery Overmen, Deputies and Shotfirers, wants an independent body to have final say on mine closures. The foremen voted to strike and halt all coal production if the talks break down.

Attacks Reported On Liberian Ship In Persian Gulf; Six Said Killed

By MOHAMMED SALAM
Associated Press Writer

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraq said today that its warplanes attacked two ships southwest of Iran's main Persian Gulf oil terminal. Lloyd's Shipping Intelligence Unit in London reported that a Liberian-registered supertanker was on fire and that six crew members were killed and six were badly burned.

An Iraqi military spokesman said in Baghdad that Iraqi jets raided two ships, but Lloyd's and shipping sources in Bahrain confirmed only an attack on the 114,575-ton tanker World Knight. The sources said the attack occurred 45 miles southwest of Iran's Kharg Island.

An Iraqi military spokesman, reading a communique over state television, said Iraqi jetfighters "returned safely to base after successfully raiding and scoring direct hits on the two big naval targets south of Kharg Island," which is 138 miles southeast of Iraq.

The Iraqi communique said the attack was "in implementation of previous Iraqi warnings to all ships against dealing with Kharg Island or other Iranian ports in order to prevent the Iranian regime from using its oil revenues in financing its aggressive aims against Iraq."

The World Knight, part of the World-Wide Shipping Group fleet owned by Hong Kong shipping magnate Sir Y.K. Pao, carried a crew of about 30, according to Richard Allen, Pao's operations chief in Hong Kong. He said he had not received any word about the tanker's condition or any casualties.

But Roger Lowes of Lloyd's shipping casualties service said the ship was on fire and requesting assistance. Lowes said that information had been telephoned to London from the Persian Gulf and confirmed by a Lloyd's agent in Bahrain.

Gulf salvage company executives, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said the tanker was hit only hours after it finished taking on a full load of crude oil at Kharg Island. They said tugboats of the Dutch company Wijsmuller were approaching the tanker, and that units of the Iranian navy were trying to help.

"We are under attack, we are on fire," the executives quoted the distress signal from the World Knight as saying.

"The ship is burning, possibly sinking," said one salvage executive. "We picked up a clear May Day signal from the ship shortly before noon (5 a.m. EDT) ... but after that the signal became so weak we could not obtain any further detail beyond the casualty report and the continuing blaze."

The raid broke a three-week lull in attacks on gulf shipping stemming from the four-year war between Iran and Iraq. Iraq has claimed responsibility for attacks on dozens of commercial ships in the Persian Gulf during its attempt to enforce a blockade of Iranian ports.

According to Lloyd's figures, the World Knight was the 46th ship damaged in the gulf this year. It was the first attack reported since Sept. 16, when the South Korean-owned supertanker Royal Colombo and the Greek-owned supertanker Med Heron were hit in the central section of the gulf.

From Sept. 10 through Sept. 13, Iraq issued a series of communique claiming air and sea attacks on merchant shipping within a 50-mile radius of Kharg Island.

Only two of the attacks were confirmed by marine shipping offices in the gulf. The Norwegian-owned 250,000-ton supertanker Saint Tobias was hit by a French-made Exocet missile fired by an Iraqi jet. The West German-owned supply boat Seetrans 21 was sunk by Iraqi rockets, and six people were killed.

Since those attacks, the Iraqis had appeared to be shifting their emphasis from merchant ships to oil installations. They attacked Iran's Bandar Khomeini port area on Sept. 20 and Sept. 29.

New Storm Forms

By ED BIRK
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical storm Josephine formed east of the Bahamas early today, posing an immediate threat only to shipping, but forecasters advised small craft to stay in port.

Satellite pictures and reports from ships indicated the depression had strengthened to become the 1984 Atlantic season's 10th named storm, according to an advisory the National Hurricane Center issued early today.

At 6 a.m. EDT, Josephine was located near latitude 25.5 north, longitude 71.5 west, or about 375 miles east of Nassau, Bahamas, the advisory said.

The storm, moving to the northwest at 5 mph and with maximum sustained winds of 45 mph, grew from a tropical depression that formed Sunday afternoon.

"It's a big system," said forecaster Gil Clark. "It's not a typical storm that comes out of the tropics. The chances of it reaching the United States this late in the season are pretty poor, but you can't guarantee that."

Gale winds extended 300 miles to the north from Josephine's center and 150 miles to the south, the hurricane center said. A slow increase in strength was expected.

Mission controllers at Cape Canaveral said if the storm moved toward Florida at its present speed, it would hit the state sometime Wednesday, well before shuttle Challenger's scheduled landing Saturday.

A tropical depression becomes a tropical storm and is named when winds reach 39 mph. A hurricane is declared when winds reach 74 mph.

Earlier, forecaster Hal Gerrish said the depression formed under conditions similar to those which helped create Hurricane Diana and Tropical Storm Isidore.

Last month, Diana pelted the Atlantic Coast with heavy rains and winds, focusing its destruction on the Carolinas. Tropical storm Isidore zig-zagged across Florida before spinning northward and dying in Georgia.

Leaders Divided On Debate Results

By The Associated Press

North Carolina political leaders divided along party lines in their assessment of the first of two debates between President Reagan and Democratic challenger Walter Mondale.

State Democratic Party Chairman David Price pronounced Mondale the winner, while his Republican counterpart, David Flaherty, called Sunday's debate in Louisville, Ky., a draw.

Flaherty said Mondale came across better than Jimmy Carter in his debate with Reagan four years ago, but said the structure of the debate was so tight "there were no clear winners."

The debate won't change voters' minds, Flaherty said. "I think those who were for Reagan were reinforced and those who were for Mondale were comforted by his glib manner," he said.

Flaherty said he thought Reagan did exceptionally well and was "very forthright."

But Price said Mondale won the debate.

"People mean different things by that. But I think he won in two ways," Price said of Mondale, the Democratic presidential candidate. "In the first place, I think he won on the issues. He effectively brought up those questions such as the deficit ... questions of where we're going in education...."

"It was Mondale who really looked to the future...." Price said in a telephone interview from his home in Chapel Hill following the debate. "On issue after issue, that was Mondale's perspective."

"On substance he was much stronger, and I thought on style he was also stronger. That's probably a surprise to many people. But I thought in that dimension ... he was more confident ... and that Reagan seemed nervous and confused at times."

Mondale's brother, Mort Mondale, who spent Sunday campaigning in Guilford County, said he was "euphoric" after the debate.

Mort Mondale watched the sparring session at a fundraiser at Colfax School.

"My brother is the candidate that has full capture of the facts and that shows. Those things that the president cited — greater service to the poor and the elderly and the rest — it simply doesn't hold water."

Each of the candidates in the sixth congressional district had a different analysis of the debate.

Republican candidate Howard Coble said "I was pleased with the president's performance. I think both participants equipped themselves well. I don't think either was blown out of the water."

Coble did say Reagan may have been at a slight disadvantage because both candidates were debating the record of the president.

His Democratic opponent in the election, U.S. Rep. Robin Britt, said "I think it was a letdown in Reagan's usual performance. Mondale on the other hand, did show a command of the facts and a poise that was significant."

U.S. Congressman Jim Martin, the Republican candidate for governor, called it "a good spirited debate" and said "it raises the question of which way America wants to go."

Martin said Mondale stands for high taxes and high spending while Reagan seeks to continue his successful programs which Americans support.

Flaherty said Mondale goofed on several points, one of which came off sounding like he was convinced he would lose.

While discussing tax increases to balance the federal budget, the Democrat said he would increase them and complained that Reagan has not revealed his plans once he wins — thus appearing to acknowledge that Reagan would indeed win re-election.

"That was a real faux pas," Flaherty said. "I really think he screwed up in that one."

Flaherty also said he thought Mondale "made a very serious mistake" when he charged that Vice President George Bush paid less taxes last year than a janitor.

"He was trying to mislead people...." Flaherty said. "I think that's demagoguery."

State Posts Record-Breaking Gains In Business Development

By The Associated Press

North Carolina nearly equaled the all-year figures for the previous year by breaking the $2 billion barrier in business investments in the first nine months of 1984, the state Commerce Department reported.

"Only four times in the history of the state have we passed the $2 billion mark," said Alvah Ward, director of the department's industrial development division, on Friday. "We are well on our way to reaching if not exceeding the (12-month) record."

Plant closing and permanent layoffs also slowed during the first nine months of the year, compared with the same period in 1983. But plant closings did cause more layoffs during the period than during the comparable period in 1983, a separate Commerce Department study showed.

New and expanding businesses pledged between January and September to spend $2.01 billion in North Carolina and create 36,700 jobs, according to the report. During the same period last year, companies announced they would spend $1.3 billion and create 20,198 jobs.

Ward attributed the favorable nine-month results to the improving national economy, state industrial recruiting efforts and the state's reputation for having a good business climate.

During the same nine-month period, 41 North Carolina plants closed, idling 5,636 workers, while 34 plants permanently laid off 4,112 workers, a separate department report said. In the first nine months of 1983, 49 plants shut down, eliminating 4,878 jobs, and 49 plants closed permanently, laying off 5,228 workers.

A total of 130 new businesses accounted for $757 million of the nine-month investment figures. The remaining $1.3 billion was pledged by 1,146 companies that announced plans to expand their businesses.

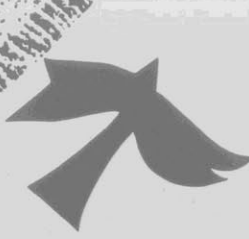

The record for businesses investments was set in 1980, when new and expanding businesses announced plans to spend $2.24 billion. For all of 1983, businesses pledged to invest $2.12 billion in the state.

GM Contract Vote Split Down Middle

By DAVID GOODMAN
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — United Auto Workers union members so far are divided almost straight down the middle on a tentative contract with General Motors Corp., according to voting results from about 15 percent of the union's GM locals.

By early today, 27 of 149 UAW locals had reported ratification results, with 17 voting in favor of the contract and 10 voting against it.

But vote totals reported by 23 of the locals showed the contract leading by a mere 257 votes — 17,953 to 17,696, or 50.4 percent to 49.6 percent. Four locals did not provide exact tallies of their votes.

Most of the UAW's 350,000 members at GM have not yet voted on the pact reached Sept. 21 after a series of local strikes idled 92,000 union members.

"The lion's share of the locals will be voting between now and Friday," UAW spokeswoman Jessica Katz said Sunday. She said the national union wouldn't release any totals until after Oct. 14, the deadline for all local voting. A simple majority of members voting can ratify the agreement.

UAW President Owen Bieber has warned that he won't try to renegotiate the agreement if they reject it.

"If the contract were turned down, it would mean simply one thing — we'll be in a nationwide strike at General Motors," Bieber said.

The three-year settlement would provide pay increases of 2.25 percent per year and a $1 billion retraining and job security program.

"This is probably the most comprehensive agreement we could have reached," Terry Thurman, president of Local 440 at GM's Bedford, Ind., Central Foundry plant, said Sunday after his members voted 2-to-1 in favor. "It's exactly what the membership mandated. It's exactly what the membership needs."

"There were certain things in the agreement that we did not like, but overall — concerning job security, the wage package and the pension agreement — I think it was a good agreement," said Tom O'Donnell, president of Local 424 at GM's Chevrolet axle plant in Buffalo, N.Y., where members endorsed the pact 726-307 on Sunday.

But other local leaders attacked the agreement, objecting to what they called inadequate wage increases and a $22-per-year increase in union dues.

Alli, shop chairman for Local 1112 at GM's Lordstown, Ohio, assembly plant, said his members voted no by more than a 3-to-1 margin because "they just don't like the agreement."

"With the concessions and the profits, they think they should get more," Alli said.

Workers at the following GM plants were reported to have voted in favor of the contract by Sunday: Detroit Diesel Allison in Detroit and Romulus, Mich.; Saginaw, Mich.; Chevrolet; Saginaw Central Foundry; Ypsilanti, Mich.; GM Assembly; Arlington, Texas, GM Assembly; Janesville, Wis., GM Assembly; Shreveport, La., Truck and Bus; Milwaukee Delco Electronics; and Van Nuys, Calif., GM Assembly.

Also: Bedford, Ind., Central Foundry; Indianapolis Truck and Bus; Buffalo, N.Y., Chevrolet; Tonawanda, N.Y., Chevrolet foundry; Cleveland Fisher Body; Mansfield, Ohio, Fisher Body; and Euclid, Ohio, Fisher Body.

Voting against the pact were workers at the following plants: Lansing, Mich., Oldsmobile; Kalamazoo, Mich., Fisher-Guide; Saginaw, Mich., Steering Gear; Bowling Green, Ky., Chevrolet; Lordstown, Ohio, GM Assembly; Lakewood, Ga., Chevrolet; Louisville, Ky., GM parts; Buffalo, N.Y., Harrison Radiator; Columbus, Ohio, Fisher Body; and Baltimore Truck and Bus.

At Ford Motor Co., contract talks proceeded at the subcommittee level over the weekend, as union and management worked toward an informal deadline of noon Friday set by the UAW. Both sides said talks could continue beyond then if progress was being made.

First Presidency On Hand For Close Of Mormon Session

By VERN ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Mormon Church's semiannual conference concluded on a theme of unity within its aged hierarchy, underscored by the presence of all three members of its First Presidency.

"I want to assure you, as I have assured you in the past, that there is unity in the leadership of the church," Gordon B. Hinckley, second counselor in the policy-making First Presidency, said at the Sunday afternoon close of the two-day 154th Semiannual General Conference at the Tabernacle on Temple Square.

Seated behind Hinckley as he spoke were church President Spencer W. Kimball, 89, and Kimball's first counselor, Marion G. Romney, 87, who have been in frail health and mostly confined to their homes in recent years.

Although Kimball and Romney did not address the conference, their presence marked the first time in the past several conferences that all three leaders have appeared together. Kimball attended three of the two-hour conference sessions, including both on Sunday.

"There is not the slightest divisiveness among the General Authorities," said Hinckley, 74, who for more than a year has been in day-to-day charge of the 5.5 million-member Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

A new book, "America's Saints," written by a pair of California journalists, has charged that the hierarchy frequently is split on political or administrative questions.

Also Sunday, church members were urged to drive "the plague of pornography" out of their homes and communities.

"Pornography is addictive. What may begin as a curious exploration can become a controlling habit," said Elder David B. Haight, a member of the church's Quorum of the Twelve Apostles.

Haight urged support for enactment of laws regulating the content of cable and satellite transmissions. Although he did not mention it by name, Utah residents will vote Nov. 6 on Initiative A, the Cable TV Decency Act, which would prohibit distribution by cable of obscene and indecent material.

"Cable television and satellite transmissions, with their powerful capacity for good, are not only being used but are also being abused," Haight said.

He urged support of "reasonable and constitutional laws and regulations" to control cable content.

Haight's remarks, so close to the election, undoubtedly will have an impact on the fate of Initiative A in conservative, predominantly Mormon Utah, which has over 100,000 cable subscribers.

However, Jim Bunnell, president of the Utah Cable Television Operators Association, said when contacted Sunday he didn't think Haight was urging support for the ballot measure, which the association maintains is unconstitutional.

"I don't think anyone should construe this as support, direct or indirect, for Initiative A," Bunnell said.

Haight also urged members to "actively petition the management of convenience stores, movie theaters, book stores, television stations and all other places of business and media establishments to withdraw indecent materials from public display and patronage."

Elder Bruce R. McConkie of the Quorum of the Twelve, a mostly advisory body, told members to follow the counsel of their leaders.

"No true Latter-day Saint will ever take a stand that is in opposition to what the Lord has revealed to those who direct the affairs of his earthly kingdom," McConkie said during an afternoon address. Nor would a faithful Mormon "ever pursue a course, or espouse a cause, or publish an article or book, that weakens or destroys faith."

Gas Prices On Rise

By RICHARD DE ATLEY
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — U.S. gasoline prices have continued an unseasonable autumn climb, largely due to reduced production by OPEC nations, oil industry analyst Dan Lundberg says.

The average price of gasoline for all grades, including taxes, was $1.192 per gallon last week, up nearly a third of a cent from the Sept. 28 average, Lundberg said in an interview Sunday.

The analyst, who publishes the weekly Lundberg Letter, checks prices at about 18,000 gasoline stations across the country every two weeks, then averages the results.

"It is unprecedented that prices are going up," said Lundberg, noting that prices traditionally drop during the autumn and go up during the summer, when consumption increases.

But this year prices declined most of the summer and increased after Labor Day, he said.

In 1983, gasoline prices fell by 1.9 cents from Sept. 1 through early October, he said, adding that the increase has been nearly half a cent for the same period this year.

Lundberg said the reason was that leaders of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said in August they were cutting production. Earlier in the summer there had been a glut with OPEC producing 19 million barrels a day, well over their projected mark of about 17.5 million barrels, he said.

The survey found per-gallon prices at self-service pumps were $1.073 for regular, $1.152 for regular unleaded, $1.335 for premium unleaded, and $1.282 for premium. Self-service stations now amount to 74 percent of retail gasoline traders, Lundberg said.

Whale Carcasses Are Buried As Specialists Study Mystery

EASTHAM, Mass. (AP) — Whale specialists searched for clues to solve the mystery of why whales beach themselves, as workers bulldozed graves behind Cape Cod dunes to bury 94 pilot whales that came ashore over the weekend.

Whale specialists on Sunday examined 43 carcasses, some as long as 22 feet and weighing a ton, in an effort to learn what causes such groundings. Another 51 carcasses were to be examined today, said Liz Kay, a spokeswoman for Boston's New England Aquarium.

The whales beached themselves in an inlet Saturday in what authorities said was the largest stranding in recent years. The dead mammals were bound for graves that bulldozers carved behind the dunes.

All the beached whales were dead by nightfall Sunday, either of natural causes or by injections designed to kill them before they drowned in the high tide, said Daniel J. Morast, whale program director for the International Fund for Animal Welfare.

"More than 60 to 70 whales were in an area 60 feet long and, maybe, 100 feet square," said Morast. "It was roped off, and I couldn't believe they had that many whales, one solid mattress of dead and dying pilot whales. Their backs were starting to arch, their eyes were closed."

"They certainly make sounds, clicking sounds, part of their echo location device. Many were making that sound," he said.

"I saw one that got away about 3 p.m.," said Morast. "It was a juvenile pilot whale swimming in shallow water. I heard it calling."

"I waded to it, and it was swimming freely on its own about four feet offshore in 2½ feet of water. I never thought it would make it. But as I watched, it did, indeed, swim away to deeper water."

Morast said he didn't know if the young mammal was part of the group that beached themselves.

Scientists do not know why the beachings occur.

"We have all these theories," said Jan Sherlock of the animal welfare fund. "One is that the lead whale is sick, he's going and the others follow. Another involves voice-imagining in the water that somehow gets magnetically out of kink. And some say whales will beach themselves in high seas and cold water, but that's not the case here."

The latest strandings on the Cape — 23 pilot whales in North Eastham in December 1983 and 65 in Wellfleet in November 1982 — came during severe storms, said the Aquarium's Patricia Fiorelli, who coordinates the Marine Mammal Stranding Network.

More Refugees Have Fled To West German Embassy

By NESHA STARCEVIC
Associated Press Writer

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — About 40 more East Germans reportedly have slipped into the closed West German Embassy, avoiding a round-the-clock cordon of plainclothes and uniformed policemen to join at least 100 other refugees seeking political asylum.

Sources who spoke on condition they not be identified reported the latest influx into the embassy Sunday but said they could not tell how the group got past police to enter the compound.

Security had been tightened after about 10 East Germans scaled the embassy's six-foot wrought-iron back fence Saturday. The fence is adjacent to a wooded hill.

Plainclothes police joined uniformed Czech policemen with walkie-talkies posted around the 18th century building. Numbering up to 30 at a time, they checked identity papers and photographed passersby.

A dozen laughing East German children could be seen throwing paper airplanes about 50 yards inside the fence, and about 30 adults strolled in the embassy's sun-dappled garden Sunday. An AP reporter who called to two women sitting on a bench inside the garden was shooed away by police.

The West German government reported no breakthrough in negotiations with East Berlin over the refugees, and a handwritten sign outside the ornate former palace in Prague advised that the embassy would remain closed indefinitely.

"The situation is unchanged," a West German government spokeswoman told the AP by telephone. She said it was against policy to discuss the case.

Sources said East German authorities reportedly were conducting unusually thorough checks of travelers crossing the border into Czechoslovakia. East Germans require no visas to visit Czechoslovakia.

East Germany kept silent on the standoff, considered an embarrassment amid the weekend fanfare and propaganda marking the 35th anniversary of the founding of the East German communist state.

East Germany celebrated the anniversary with a parade of about 2,500 goose-stepping soldiers, and Soviet-built tanks and missiles though East Berlin. Street fairs, with brass bands, sausage stands and amusements were held throughout East Berlin.

The embassy incident went unreported by the state-run news media in East Germany and Czechoslovakia.

The standoff in Prague was the latest in a string of incidents this year in which East Germans have taken refuge in Western embassies, hoping authorities will let them move to the West. East Germans are granted automatic citizenship in West Germany.

West Germany said earlier that Communist authorities in East Germany refused to grant the refugees exit visas but promised not to punish them if they returned home.

The Bonn government spokeswoman, who said government policy prohibited her from being quoted by name, reiterated chief government spokesman Peter Boenisch's statement Friday that the embassy would stay closed until the problem is resolved. She offered no clue when it might be reopened.

None of the embassy staff would comment.

The refugees were believed to be sleeping in the embassy basement and wherever else space was available. The sources said sanitation was a problem because the embassy lacked bathroom facilities for so many inhabitants.

Sources said food was being prepared for the refugees inside the four-story baroque-style building by an embassy cook using goods from the mission's stocks.

Boenisch said Friday that the refugees had streamed to the embassy over "the past 10 days" and included 20 children. Sources in Prague said the youngest was four years old.

Boenisch said many of the East Germans were suffering from colds and were under medical care.

Prisoner Died

RALEIGH (AP) — A 25-year-old inmate in a Durham County prison unit collapsed and died last week while working on a road crew, a spokeswoman for the North Carolina Department of Corrections says.

Jeffrey Paul Acree, was a minimum custody prisoner in the Durham County prison unit serving two years for possession of marijuana, and two drunken driving convictions, according to Patty McQuillan.

Acree was shoveling dirt on a secondary road Friday between Durham and Chapel Hill when he passed out, Ms. McQuillan said.

Acree entered prison in April and his tentative release date was March 24, 1985.

Ms. McQuillan said an autopsy would be performed.

Queen Begins Kentucky Visit

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The queen of England, looking for the little extra something that makes a winner, is visiting the bluegrass kingdom of three aristocratic stallions who wear the Triple Crown.

Queen Elizabeth II, who arrived in Kentucky on Sunday afternoon and scheduled private engagements today, is likely to inspect Triple Crown winners Seattle Slew, Affirmed and Secretariat as she searches for fitting mates for her broodmares.

"The queen will be matching conformation as well as pedigree," said her racing manager, Lord Henry Porchester. "She'll be looking for things you can't get from a photograph, trying to grasp the make and shake of the stallion."

The 58-year-old queen's only public appearance before she departs Friday is scheduled Thursday when she is to present a trophy to the winners of the Queen Elizabeth II Stakes at Keeneland Race Course in Lexington.

A cool rain greeted the start of the queen's first visit to the United States since her West Coast tour in the winter of 1983. About 200 people gathered, some two hours ahead of time, behind a fence 100 yards away, hoping to see her.

Only the briefest glimpse was possible; the queen spent about 10 minutes at Blue Grass Airport before departing for Lane's End Farm near Versailles, where she is staying in the 19th-century country mansion of William S. Farish III and his wife, Sarah.

Seven-year-old Amy Collins, daughter of the airport's assistant manager, curtsied and gave the queen a nosegay of flowers. "I thought it was pretty good," Amy said later. "She said 'Thank you, how very nice of you.'"

The queen had been touring Canada with her husband, Prince

Philip, who left Winnipeg, Manitoba, directly for the Middle East.

Dressed in mauve plaid, she descended from the Royal Air Force VC-10 carrying her own umbrella.

Gov. Martha Layne Collins, who presented the queen with a blue leather-bound, gold-trimmed book on Kentucky, said she was "very much aware that we needed the rain. It didn't dampen her spirits at all."

Lexington Mayor Scotty Baesler said the event "exceeded my expectations. There's certainly an aura about it that's hard to describe."

Secret Service agents were called in from Washington, D.C., and from surrounding states to help provide security during the visit.

"From what I've seen it's every bit as big as what we do for the vice president or the president or somebody like that," Lexington Police Capt. Larry Walsh said.

The U.S. presidential debate attracted much of the attention in Kentucky on Sunday, with President Reagan and Democratic presidential candidate Walter F. Mondale squaring off just 80 miles away in Louisville.

While the queen did not plan to meet with Reagan, her press secretary, Michael Shea, said, "It wouldn't necessarily surprise me if they spoke on the telephone."

Porchester said the queen would be spending most of her time in Lexington.

Other horses she planned to inspect included Devil's Bag, the early favorite for the 1984 Kentucky Derby who was retired with an injured knee; Alydar; Spectacular Bid, and any stallion with the blood of the great Northern Dancer, who stands in Maryland.

The queen now has one pregnant mare and her foal in Kentucky, but Porchester said she might send up to five mares to be bred to American stallions.

TV Consultant Feels Mondale Won The Debate

BY FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Walter F. Mondale seemed more self-assured, more assertive and, most surprisingly, more affable than Ronald Reagan in their first presidential debate, according to a television consultant who has coached three presidents and hundreds of business executives.

"For me, Walter won the debate," Jack Hilton said after Sunday night's face-off in Louisville. "To me, he seemed more self-assured; he seemed to be relishing it. He was confident and assertive. And the biggest surprise was that he was more affable."

Hilton, whose clients have included John Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, Gerald Ford and 320 of the Fortune 500 Corporations, continued:

"The president was uneasy. His speech was, in part, halting. His head was bowed, and he seemed to be searching his memory for statistics."

"In terms of their presentations, Mr. Mondale was the victor — and surprisingly so. But it was a narrow victory, not by the so-called knock-out."

Hilton's evaluation was in line with the AP's panel of seven experts who judged the candidates in standard debate categories and found Mondale the runaway winner.

But Hilton pointed out that presidential debates tend to confirm voters' predispositions and only sway a small percentage of votes. Mondale would benefit, he said, but not enough to eliminate his double-digit deficit in the polls.

Hilton said Mondale, who faced the challenge of having to debate a president who was more popular than his policies, effectively assaulted the president without being antagonistic.

"He attacked the policies, actions and plans of the administration, never Mr. Reagan personally," said Hilton, who has not done consulting work for either presidential candidate.

Mondale even went so far as to give the president credit for America's renewed spirit and said he liked Reagan personally.

"Mr. Mondale was complimentary, deferential and certainly respectful," said Hilton.

He said there were no major gaffes — nothing that would dog either man in the media for the next few days.

Hilton credited Mondale with the evening's best anecdote — when he said Reagan reminded him of a Will Rogers' line about Herbert Hoover: "It's not what he doesn't know that bothers me, it's what he knows for sure that just ain't so."

Hilton said Mondale also got off the best line of the night when he questioned Reagan's leadership ability, saying there is a "difference between being a quarterback and being a cheerleader."

In the category of most evasive answer, Hilton listed Mondale's non-response to a question about religion and politics.

For most convoluted answer, the TV consultant said he had a lot of entries for both men.

Hilton regularly counsels business executives and others on the best ways to present their views on television.

He noticed that Reagan was looking to his left while answering questions, apparently addressing his questioners, while Mondale was doing a much better job of connecting with America's living rooms.

"Mr. Mondale's eye contact with the camera was far better than it's been for him and also in comparison with Mr. Reagan," said Hilton. "There was no reason why Mr. Reagan was looking stage left. His eye contact was down on the lectern, off to the side. His head was bowed."

The most striking contrast was late in the debate when Mondale actually could confront Reagan face to face. The impetus was a question from CBS' Diane Sawyer asking each debater to challenge the other's most outrageous statement.

Tokyo Police Find Poisoned Candy

TOKYO (AP) — Blackmailers calling themselves the "21-faced monster" placed a cyanide-laced box of chocolate candy in a supermarket in a suburb of Osaka, police said today.

A spokesman for Osaka state police said officers detected 0.2 grams of cyanide, a potentially lethal dose, in a box of chocolates made by Morinaga and Co., a major Japanese confectionery company.

The box was found in a supermarket with the message: "Danger, contains poison. You'll die if you eat this. The 21-faced Monster." The box was reported to police by a store employee, the spokesman said.

It was the first time that the group, which is believed responsible for similar blackmail attempts against other candymakers this year, has carried out its threat to plant poisoned candy on store shelves. The group takes its name from the villain in a popular mystery series of the early 20th century.

In a letter delivered to major Japanese newspapers this morning, the blackmailers said that over the weekend they had placed in supermarkets in central and western Japan 20 boxes of Morinaga candy products laced with at least 0.2 grams of cyanide each and inscribed with a written warning that the candies contain poison.

The letter said 30 more boxes would be planted in the next 10 days without the written warning.

The letter did not include any demands, but the group on Sept. 12 demanded the equivalent of $400,000 from Morinaga in return for not poisoning its products.

Police believe the same group was responsible for kidnapping the president of Ezaki Glico Co., another major confectionery maker, last March and demanding $4 million in ransom.

Although the Glico president escaped unharmed, the group continued to send letters to mass media and Glico until late June, threatening to place cyanide-laced Glico products in stores throughout Japan.

Glico's sales declined as thousands of stores around Japan took Glico products off their shelves. Despite the threats, no poisoned packages were found, and the "21-faced Monster," in another letter, called off the threat against Glico because they were "bored."

Astronauts To Focus On New Targets

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — With a space walk put off until Thursday, Challenger's astronauts have three uninterrupted days to train their radar camera on the jungles, deserts and seas of planet Earth.

Targets today, the fourth day of the mission, included Brazilian jungles, the Egyptian desert and the North Sea, where West German scientists are creating an artificial oil slick.

As Challenger circled overhead, weather experts watched Tropical Storm Josephine, churning 600 miles east of Florida.

Mission Control said that if the storm moved toward Florida at its present speed it would hit the state sometime Wednesday, well before the shuttle's planned landing at Cape Canaveral on Saturday. But officials noted tropical storms are unpredictable and said they were ready to shift the touchdown to California or New Mexico if necessary.

Mission controllers decided Sunday to postpone the first space walk by an American woman for two days because they did not want the radar photography interfered with by a possible repeat of earlier antenna problems.

The delay also preserves an option for spacewalkers Kathy Sullivan and David Leetsma to lash down the antennas, if necessary, for the return to Earth on Saturday. It also avoids the possibility of the astronauts' being hit by an unstowed antenna while outside.

The radar camera antenna failed to completely retract on Saturday and had to be nudged into place with the robot arm. Another antenna, which relays the radar data to Earth via an orbiting satellite, lost its ability to lock onto the satellite and its motor was disconnected to stop its erratic swings.

Pointing that second antenna at the satellite is now done by maneuvering the shuttle, with commander Robert Crippen and pilot Jon McBride at the controls. That is a slower process, and scientists said they now expect to get only about 50 percent of the data they had sought from the radar experiment.

NASA scientists Shelby Tilford said researchers were pleased with the first radar runs on Sunday, when the astronauts gathered data over land masses, including a long sweep across North America and South America.

They also scanned the Lake Turkana region in Kenya, where anthropologists have found the oldest bones of man. The hope was that the radar pictures will provide clues where other archaeological digs might be performed.

A similar radar flown on an earlier shuttle mission discovered ancient river channels in Egypt.

How to save millions of dollars in your spare time.

The cost of building a hospital today is more than $150,000 a bed, and the cost of running that hospital would bring tears to your eyes.

So the time to save money is at the planning phase, before the first yard of concrete is poured. And we'd like to help.

We provide health-planning information to hospitals, government agencies and civic groups all the time, and we'd be delighted to help your community's leaders organize a voluntary cost-containment coalition.

As the 1984 corn and soybean harvest gets underway, producers need to carefully evaluate their pricing and storage decisions. With sharply lower grain prices than a year ago and ample storage capacity available, growers may be tempted to store without examining the cost of storage and the expected returns from holding the crops.

The cost of storing corn from harvest until late winter or early spring includes extra drying and shrinkage required for making grain safe and storage, interest on the value of the grain and direct storage expenses.

On Sept. 12, the price of corn in central North Carolina markets was about $3 per bushel. At 14 percent interest, the cost of storing new crop corn is about 3.5 cents per bushel per month. If corn is stored at 14 percent moisture rather than 15.5 percent, an additional 1.5 points of moisture will have to be removed for storage using the commercial moisture discount of 2 percent of the market price for the additional 1.5 points of moisture removed, the cost of additional drying and shrinkage would be 9.0 cents per bushel. Commercial storage costs would be about 4 cents per bushel per month.

Under these conditions, the cost of storing $3 corn commercially from Sept. 15, 1984, to January 1985, is 39 cents per bushel. The cost of May 15, 1985, is about 69 cents per bushel.

The price of soybeans for harvest delivery was around $6 per bushel. The interest cost would be 7 cents per month. Under normal circumstances, no additional drying is necessary to store soybeans. However, some shrinkage losses may occur if held in storage for 6-8 months. The monthly storage rate for soybeans is the same as corn.

If the corn or beans were stored in on-farm facilities, the out-of-pocket storage costs would be significantly less than the commercial rate, reducing the total cost accordingly.

There are basically two ways to recover the costs of storing corn and soybeans. One is to store the grain unpriced and speculate that the cash price will increase enough to cover the costs.

A second way to cover the costs of storage is to forward price grain for delivery some time after harvest if that price exceeds the harvest price by more than the cost of storage.

Farmers who are considering corn or soybean storage should look carefully at their local basis and at the price spreads to determine the most profitable delivery dates.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed lower today, extending last week's decline. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 5.74 to 1,176.79 in the first half hour.

Losers took a 3-2 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

A quiet session was expected, with many banks and other businesses closed in observance of Columbus Day.

As the trading week began, there was a growing belief among Wall Streeters that the Federal Reserve was leaning toward a less restrictive credit policy.

But some analysts still expressed doubts about the chances for a significant drop in interest rates, because of a heavy schedule of new debt offerings by the government in the next few weeks.

Brokers generally saw no dramatic reaction among investors to Sunday night's presidential debate.

Among today's early volume leaders, Nynex dropped 1/4 to 69 3/4; Motorola 1/4 to 35 3/8, and Goodyear 1/8 to 24 3/4.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrials slipped 4.86 to 1,182.53, finishing the week with a net loss of 24.18 points.

Advances outpaced declines by about 8 to 7 on the NYSE. Big Board volume totaled 82.95 million shares, against 76.70 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index lost .06 to 93.89. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .03 at 211.40.

Debate ...

were at the close of the Carter administration and said, "I am running on the record. I think sometimes, Mr. Mondale is running away from his."

Social Security brought one of the sharpest clashes as Mondale insisted that the program for the elderly had been a target of Reagan budget cutting in 1981 and would likely become one again.

In response to a question on what he thought was the most outrageous thing his opponent had said during the debate, Mondale demurred and even offered some kind words for Reagan.

But Reagan responded: "I'll tell you the most outrageous thing in political dialogue both in this campaign and the one in '82 and that is the continued discussion and claim that somehow I am the villain who is going to pull the Social Security checks out from those people who are dependent on them."

At another point in the debate, Reagan said, "I will never stand for a reduction of the Social Security benefits for the people that are now getting them."

Several times during the debate, Mondale quoted the Rev. Jerry Falwell, leader of the Moral Majority, as saying he expected to have a say in determining at least two of the next Supreme Court justices.

When the question of abortion was raised, Mondale asked: "Does every woman in America have to present herself before some judge chosen by Jerry Falwell to clear her personal judgment? It won't work."

Reagan equated abortion with murder and said he wants federal judges who share his view on abortion.

When the president was asked why he did not attend religious services either in a church or in the White House, Reagan replied that he is concerned about the security of others and added, "I miss going to church. But I think the Lord understands." He didn't say why he doesn't invite ministers to conduct services at the White House, as then-President Nixon did.

Both candidates professed to hold deep religious beliefs.

Pastor Eyes Future

DALLAS (AP) — Dr. W.A. Criswell, celebrating his 40th anniversary as pastor of the First Baptist Church, told thousands of members of his congregation that he has "no interest in anything except the church."

Standing Sunday in a pulpit he has occupied more than 4,000 times, Criswell, 74, spoke of the passage of time and his hopes for the future.

But Criswell was at a loss for words when he was presented with a black 1985 Mercedes-Benz during the celebration.

"I didn't know what to say," Criswell said. "I was speechless."

The car was one of several gifts Criswell and his wife, Betty, received during the daylong celebrations, and reminders of his tenure were many and varied.

Music at the morning services was conducted by all four of the music directors who have served Criswell. There was also a filmed message from Billy Graham and letters from President Reagan, Dallas Mayor A. Starke Taylor and Gov. Mark White.

There was also the reminder of how much time had lapsed. When members of the congregation who had been present for Criswell's first sermons in 1944, only a handful of people stood up at 10:50 a.m. service.

About 12,000 members attended Sunday's events, said assistant pastor Tom Melzoni. The celebration included worship services, a concert and barbecue dinner in the church parking garage.

But the public only hears of AIM when there is violence or controversy, said Means, 38.

"The non-Indian puts the Indian out of sight, out of mind," said Means, whose brother, "You never hear what good we're doing."

Banks also faces a federal charge of flight to avoid confinement after conviction, which carries a maximum sentence of five years. He has pleaded innocent to that charge.

Rev. King In Hospital

ATLANTA (AP) — The Rev. Martin Luther King Sr. was reported in guarded but stable condition today at a hospital where he is undergoing treatment for complications of heart disease, his physician said.

The 84-year-old father of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. was in critical condition after checking himself into Crawford W. Long Memorial Hospital on Sunday. His condition had improved this morning, but he remained in the intensive care unit.

"At present he is quite stable and alert and cheerful and in good spirits," Dr. Bernard Bridges, King's personal physician, said Sunday night.

King, known affectionately as "Daddy King," has a history of heart problems.

"He came in with some problems that had to do with irregularity with his heart rhythm and rate," Bridges said, adding that more tests would be performed.

"Of course we're looking for the underlying things that may have caused this in the first place," Bridges said Sunday. "We have fairly good evidence now that will pretty much be confirmed in the next 24 or 48 hours."

King is the retired pastor of Ebenezer Baptist Church in Atlanta.

Citrus Survey Begins In Fla.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — Agriculture officials today began a detailed survey to learn the extent of citrus canker infestation at the seventh nursery discovered to have plant stock bearing the dreaded bacteria.

The highly contagious disease was confirmed last week in laboratory tests of suspect plant material from Adams Containerized Citrus Trees in Haines City. Tracing plants purchased from Adams promises to be a more difficult task than with the other six infected nurseries, officials said, because Adams sells to retailers such as grocery and department stores that rarely keep tabs on their buyers.

CORRECTION

The date listed in Sunday's edition for Opera Theater auditions on the ECU campus is incorrect.

The auditions will take place on Tuesday, Oct. 23 in two time increments; from 5 to 6 p.m. and again at 7:30 p.m. They will be held in the Recital Hall of the A.J. Fletcher Music Center on campus. For more details, contact 757-6851.

Court ...

has no enforcement powers and depends on voluntary adherence to its verdicts.

The case formally began with the leftist Sandinista government's filing of charges on April 9.

Nicaragua accused the Reagan administration of "killing, wounding and kidnapping" its citizens and attempting to "coerce and intimidate" the Sandinistas by supporting the so-called "contra" rebel forces.

The Reagan administration has backed the rebels, praising them as "freedom fighters."

The Sandinistas came to power in 1979 in a revolution that overthrew the U.S.-backed Somoza family.

Two groups of rebels — one based in Costa Rica that includes disenchanted Sandinistas and the other based in Honduras that includes and former members of Somoza's National Guard — have been waging a guerrilla war aimed at toppling the Sandinistas.

On May 10, the 15-member World Court ordered the United States to stop military actions aimed at Nicaragua pending its decision on whether it has jurisdiction over the dispute.

The court can only consider disputes in which all nations involved agree to its jurisdiction.

The United States pledged in 1946 to respect the court's jurisdiction. But apparently anticipating that Nicaragua would lodge the accusations, the Reagan administration announced on April 6 that it would not accept court authority in Central American disputes for two years.

Under its statutes, the World Court is empowered to take such "interim measures" before the final adjudication in a case when it considers the sovereign rights of a nation to be in jeopardy.

Duarte Makes Peace Offer

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Salvadoran President Napoleon Duarte today invited opposition guerrilla leaders in his country to meet with him Oct. 15 in the Salvadoran city of La Palma to discuss a proposal "to return peace and social harmony to all Salvadorans."

"I came to speak of peace," Duarte told the U.N. General Assembly. He asked his opposition to come to the meeting, in which all parties would be unarmed. He said it would be covered by the world's press.

Duarte also said he would invite the rebels to participate in the next democratic elections.

He said his offer is rooted in the El Salvador constitution, which allows political pluralism and co-existence of different ideologies.

He said he will propose to the legislative assembly a general amnesty for political crimes. He promised to control any abuse of authority and eliminate "all methods of repression that have existed in the history of our fatherland and have been in part the reason for a rebellion that has no reason."

Obituaries

Adams

Mr. Patrick Adams, formerly of Pitt County, died Sunday in Philadelphia. He was the brother of Mrs. Lovie Crandall of Greenville, and Mrs. Blanche Brown of Ayden. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Barry

WASHINGTON — Mrs. Olive B. Barry, 67, died Saturday morning at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. A memorial service will be held at a later date in the Mother of Mercy Catholic Church in Washington.

Mrs. Barry, a native of West Springfield, Mass., spent most of her life there. For the past four years, she lived at Route 3, Washington, with her sister-in-law, Miss Jeanette S. Barry. Mrs. Barry was a member of the Mother of Mercy Catholic Church and was active in the Ladies' Altar Society.

She is survived by a son, Louis M. Barry of Orleans, Mass.; two daughters, Mrs. Loretta Lzymanski of Burlington, Conn., and Mrs. Jean Hill of Sandwich, Mass., and eight grandchildren.

The family suggests that anyone desiring to make a memorial contribution consider the Mother of Mercy Catholic Church in Washington.

Padres Master Cubs, Take League Title

SAN DIEGO (AP) — It was a game full of history — record-making history for the National League, the extension of history for the Chicago Cubs and, perhaps, the beginning of history for the San Diego Padres.

On a Sunday when presidential candidates agreed to debate, major league umpires agreed to arbitration and San Diegans agreed to play the role of the "10th man," the Padres shook their season-long ineptitude against Rick Sutcliffe, scored six times in two innings and defeated the Cubs 6-3 to advance to the World Series.

It was the first championship in the 16-year history of the Padres, who never before had finished higher than fourth in the NL West, much less made the Series, which begins here Tuesday against American League champion Detroit.

The victory, played before 58,359 fans in San Diego Jack Murphy Stadium, also marked the first time in NL history a team has captured a pennant after losing the first two games of the best-of-five playoff.

The Padres erased a humiliating 13-0 defeat at the hands of Sutcliffe in Game 1 and a 4-2 loss in Game 2 to win the next two contests at home, 7-1 and 7-5, forcing Sunday's finale.

And then they won it, leaving the talent-laden Cubs to uphold a 39-year-old team tradition by breaking the hearts of their feverishly loyal fans. They were denied what many presumed to be their predestined pennant, which would have ended a drought in place since World War II.

"This is the sweetest. This is the best," said San Diego's Dick Williams, who managed the Boston Red Sox to an American League championship in 1967 and took the Oakland A's to World Series victories in 1972 and 1973. "Nobody gave us a chance, but we believed in ourselves."

Williams, whose Padres were 81-81 and in fourth place in each of his first two years as manager, cut and pasted together a victory in Game 5 with five pitchers and four pinch-hitters, and he did it without his best power hitter, Kevin McReynolds, lost for the year with a fractured wrist in Game 4.

History was made on the strong arms of relievers Dave Dravecky and Craig Lefferts, who turned in two perfect innings apiece while the Padres rallied from a 3-0 deficit, and on the strong bats of Tony Gwynn and Steve Garvey, who placed key hits in the decisive four-run seventh.

And history came to bear on Chicago's Leon Durham, whose clean miss of a Tim Flannery pinch-hit ground ball in the seventh — the only error of the game — precipitated the rally that made Sutcliffe a loser for the first time in his last 16 decisions.

"It was a routine ground ball and it stayed real low. I was anticipating a hop," said Durham, who watched in horror as the ball skipped between his legs. "I have nothing to be ashamed of. If it was meant to be, it was meant to be."

Flannery's grounder came with one out and allowed Carmelo Martinez to score from second, tying the score at 3-3. Alan Wiggins then singled, and Gwynn — seven for 19 in the series — followed with a grounder that took a huge hop on infield grass purposely kept short, bounced over Ryne Sandberg's head at second and carried into right-center field, scoring both men.

Gwynn took third on a play for Wiggins at the plate and came home one pitch later when Garvey, the series' unanimous Most Valuable Player, slapped a single up the middle.

That did in Sutcliffe, who had yielded only one earned run in 24 1-3 innings against the Padres this season prior to Sunday and who Williams and Garvey both later said should win the Cy Young Award.

"It's a beautiful feeling. It's the greatest thing that can happen to an athlete," said Garvey, who finished the series eight for 20 with seven runs batted in and single-handedly forced a fifth game when he drilled a two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning Saturday.

Payton Claims NFL Rushing Lead

By The Associated Press
It was a classic pitchout to Walter Payton. He took the ball around left end and ran right into the National Football League record book.
With the modest six-yard gain Sunday, Payton swept past Jimmy Brown on the NFL all-time rushing list and at the same time led the Chicago Bears to a 20-7 victory over the New Orleans Saints.
"I'm glad I don't have to do it every week," Payton said after a 154-yard rushing day.

Payton, who started the day needing only 67 yards to surpass Brown's 12,312, broke it early in the third period. He finished with 12,400.
"I was so nervous I had the shakes," said Payton. "I tried to conceal it the last three weeks. But it was hard on me, my family and my friends. There was a lot of pressure."

Elsewhere, it was St. Louis 31, Dallas 20; New York Jets 17, Kansas City 16; Washington 35, Indianapolis 7; Miami 31, Pittsburgh 7; New England 17 Cleveland 16; Denver 28, Detroit 7; Tampa Bay 35, Minnesota 31; Philadelphia 27, Buffalo 17; Atlanta 30, Los Angeles Rams 28; Los Angeles Raiders 28, Seattle 14; Cincinnati 13, Houston 3, and San Diego 34, Green Bay 28.

The New York Giants host the San Francisco 49ers tonight.
Payton, carrying the ball 32 times, also surpassed another Brown standard by going over the 100-yard mark for the 59th time in his career.
Payton put the Bears ahead to stay with a 1-yard touchdown plunge on the final play of the first half for a 13-7 lead.

"I don't like to get beat but it doesn't bother me to get beat by Walter Payton," New Orleans Coach Bum Phillips said.

Cardinals 31, Cowboys 20
Neil Lomax fired three touchdown passes as St. Louis ended seven years of frustration in Texas Stadium.

The Cardinals beat the Cowboys on the road for the first time since 1977.
While Lomax was bombing the Dallas secondary for over 300 yards, the Cardinal defense intercepted Cowboy quarterback Gary Hogeboom twice and sacked him twice.

Hogeboom was replaced by Danny White, who engineered a fourth-period scoring drive.

Jets 17, Chiefs 16
Pat Ryan threw a 15-yard touchdown pass to Mickey Shuler and Tony Paige scored on a 1-yard run after a fumble to rally the Jets from a 9-0 deficit.

The Kansas City defense, a week after sacking Cleveland quarterback Paul McDonald 11 times, did not get to Ryan once. New York's Freeman McNeil carried 19 times for 107 yards, but did not play in the fourth period because of bruised ribs.

Redskins 35, Colts 7
Joe Theismann riddled Indianapolis with 17 completions in 20 attempts for 267 yards and four touchdowns.

Washington's John Riggins had 94 yards and one touchdown, leaving him 24 short of becoming the fifth player in NFL history to rush for 10,000 career yards.

Theismann, who had passed for only four touchdowns in five previous games this season, had 162 yards in the second quarter alone as the Redskins turned a 7-7 tie into a rout.

Dolphins 31, Steelers 7
Dan Marino threw a pair of second-quarter touchdown passes in a successful return to his hometown as Miami remained unbeaten at 6-0.

Marino, the former University of Pittsburgh star, completed 16 of 24 passes for 226 yards. Miami rolled to a 21-0 lead with a pair of second-quarter touchdowns in just over a minute. Marino has a league-leading 17 scoring passes.

Patriots 17, Browns 16
Tony Eason fired a 42-yard touchdown pass to Stephen Starring on a perfectly executed flea-flicker play and then hit Starring with a 24-yard pass, to set up Tony Collins' game-winning touchdown run in the fourth quarter, as New England overcame a 16-3 deficit.

Cleveland had two chances to regain the lead in the final 3:12. But Matt Bahr, who had kicked three first-half field goals, missed a 36-yard attempt and quarterback Paul McDonald was intercepted by cornerback Raymond Clayborn near the New England goal line with seven seconds left.

Broncos 28, Lions 7
A bruising Denver defense led by Steve Wilson and Rulon Jones smothered Detroit's mistake-prone offense.

It becomes more and more obvious with each passing week that the East Carolina University Pirates are still having problems. Some of those problems are beginning to work their way out, but others seem not to be improving at all.

The offense of the Pirates has improved, there is no question about it. Had the Pirates played offensively as they have the last couple of weeks, they would have beaten Temple at least.

With Darrell Speed at the quarterback — settled in at last — the Pirates have some consistency at that position. He has shown himself to be a good passer and is improving in his decision making. While he didn't do well against State, he appeared to make the right choices most of the time against Pittsburgh.

The running of Reggie Branch, Jimmy Walden and Tony Baker continues to be outstanding, and with Speed has served to open up the entire offensive game.

The big problem remains with the defense, however. Injuries have caused some of the problem, making it necessary to move some people around to difference places.

One of those moves was that of Stefan Adams from the offense to defense. And while Adams did not start against Pittsburgh Saturday, he played quite well when in the game. While statistics kept in the press box for defensive purposes are unofficial (coaches grade the films for the actual stats), Adams was awarded nine solo tackles and one assist for a total of 10 — tops on the team. Not bad for a player who just moved over on Monday.

Unfortunately, it was not enough. Pittsburgh was able to open up its running game by capitalizing on the Pirate pass defense, which gave the Panthers both of its touchdowns. And both times, the receivers were wide open.

Former Kansas City Chiefs quarterback Len Dawson, doing the color for the Katz Network telecast of the game, commented time after time on the woeful pass defense.

Dawson pointed out that the Pirates were playing 10 yards off the receivers at the line of scrimmage and were backing up as soon as the ball was snapped. Dawson said Pittsburgh should throw the short pass, five or so yards downfield — and get a guaranteed five.

Perhaps that might not score touchdowns on its own, but it can surely get a team into position to score a touchdown or a field goal.

In our own estimation, East Carolina has not had a strong pass defense in some time. Last year's was good toward the end of the year, as good as it has been in some time, thanks to the presence of people like Clint Harris. But he is gone now.

Another problem, maybe the most significant one, is that the Pirates have had a different secondary coach in each of Ed Emory's five seasons at East Carolina. Coaching changes are to be expected, but some continuity is needed there.

The Pirates must also recruit athletes with an eye toward using them as secondary people. Too often, these people play other positions in high school, since it might not be as much of a glamor position as quarterback or wide receiver.

A coach once said that the best athletes should be in the secondary. Sometimes it's hard to recruit a player on that basis when he thinks he can play on the offense.

Run For The Record

Payton, Ditka Felt Pressure

CHICAGO (AP) — Relief.

Walter Payton felt it. Quarterback Jim McMahon and the rest of Payton's Chicago Bear teammates felt it. Even Coach Mike Ditka felt it.

It was as if a giant sigh was released from Soldier Field in Chicago when Payton took a pitchout from McMahon with 57 seconds gone in the second half of the Bears' game with New Orleans Sunday and slashed upfield, the ball held in characteristic fashion in the crook between his right hand and wrist. When he was tackled at his own 27 after a 6-yard gain, Payton had finally become the National Football League's all-time leading rusher, ahead of Jim Brown, who retired in 1965 after rolling up 12,312 yards in a nine-year career.

"How did I feel? Relieved," said Payton, who needed 67 yards entering the day. He finished the game, a 20-7 victory for the Bears, with 154 yards in 32 carries, giving him an even 12,400 for his nine-year, six-game career, 88 ahead of Brown and 2,600 short of the goal of 15,000 he has set for himself.

The game was stopped and Payton, holding the ball aloft, handed it to Pete Elliott, executive director of the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio. Even the opposing Saints applauded and his teammates rushed onto the field to mob him.

But Payton shooed them away.

"I felt we were moving the ball and I didn't want us to cool off," he said after receiving the telephoned kudos from President Reagan that have become part of the routine for record-breaking athletes. "I was just glad it was over. For the past three weeks I've tried to conceal it, but there's been a lot of pressure."

Brown was not at the game to see Payton break another of his records. By rushing for more than 100 yards for the 59th time in his career, Payton broke out of their tie at 58 100-yard games.

McMahon said that Ditka had told the Bears before the game to get the record for Payton. But he said the coach also emphasized that winning was more important — the Bears had lost the two games in which national attention had been focused on Payton after winning their first two.

"We wanted to get him the record," McMahon said. "I'm very glad it's over and I think Walter is too. The first thing Walter said was 'it's over with, let's go for the win.'"

That's the way Walter is, he's always working for the win."

"I knew he was going to break the record eventually," said Ditka, whose temper had been getting shorter and shorter during the past few weeks. "But the primary thing is always to win the game first. Walter knows that. He wants it. That's why he's such a great player."

Characteristically, Payton's longest run was also one of the most important — a 25-yard burst deep into Saints territory with five minutes left that just about iced the game. He also had a 19-yard run on his second carry of the game, but otherwise ground out three, four and five-yard gains against a New Orleans defense geared to stop him.

Also typical, he made one key play that didn't go down on the scoresheet, a screening block that freed fullback Matt Suhey on a 23-yard pass play in the final minute of the first half. That set up the Bears' go-ahead touchdown, which Payton scored himself, somersaulting over the line from the 1-yard line with just three seconds to go in the half.

After the game, Payton tried to play down his accomplishments, suggesting he was simply a luckier representative of NFL running backs in general. He specifically pointed out three men who died before they could reach their peaks — Joe Delaney of the Kansas City Chiefs, who drowned two summers ago; David Overstreet of the Miami Dolphins, killed last summer in an auto accident, and Brian Piccolo of the Bears, who died of cancer in 1966.

But Payton's coach, who played with Gale Sayers and against Brown and O.J. Simpson, set the record straight on who he considers the best.

"Walter can do so many things that when we had all those injuries at quarterback, I honestly considered switching to a single wing and putting him at quarterback," Ditka said of Payton, who has thrown for five touchdowns the last five times he has been called on to throw an option pass.

"When God decided to make a fullback or a halfback, he might have said 'Sayers' or he might have said 'Brown.' But when he was going to build the best all-around football player who ever lived, he said 'Jim Thorpe.' And he said Walter Payton."

Umpires Return For Finale

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The return of major league umpires in time for the finale of the National League Championship Series was possible only because so many of them reside in the San Diego area.

"I drove 70 miles an hour to get here, and I ran two red lights," John McSherry said as he undressed following Sunday's game in which the San Diego Padres won the first National League pennant in club's 16-year history.

McSherry, Doug Harvey, Paul Runge and John Kibler dressed with minutes to spare Sunday after being called into service by Richie Phillips, attorney for the striking Major League Umpires Association. Only Kibler was originally listed to work the NL playoffs.

"We were close enough that it was time to pull the trigger," Phillips said, explaining that the presidents of both leagues and the association had agreed to submit remaining issues to binding arbitration. The strike began at the close of the regular season last Sunday.

Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth was to meet with both sides today and hear their proposals. Ueberroth said he would rule no later than Tuesday morning.

Phillips refused to discuss specifics, but he said the issues remaining deal with compensation for special events like the All-Star Game and the league playoffs.

As part of the agreement for binding arbitration, Phillips agreed that the regular umpires would work the World Series between the Padres and Detroit Tigers, beginning Tuesday night in San Diego.

"Basically, the crunch came this morning. The commissioner asked me at 11:30 a.m. . . . He said the San Diego fans deserve the best umpires. We realized we were close enough that we couldn't finish it. (Sunday). And (AL President) Bobby Brown wasn't down here."

"I was moved by my trust for him and just a little moved by the drama of the (Saturday's) game," Phillips said. In Game 4 Saturday night, San Diego's Steve Garvey cracked a two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning to give the Padres a 7-5 win and force Sunday's finale.

"I don't believe he's going to be an owners' commissioner. To be effective, he has to be responsible to all the people in baseball," Phillips said of Ueberroth. "I think he will be that."

Phillips said the amateur umpires assigned to four NL and three American League playoff games did "a decent job."

"It wasn't quality officiating on a major league level," he said. "You need professionals to get that."

To a man, the regular umpires said they were glad to be called back to work in time for the World Series.

"We didn't want to go out in the first place," said Doug Harvey, who worked third base Sunday.

"It's hard to watch those (amateur) guys out there," McSherry said. "They shouldn't be out there. We should be out there."

Amateurs Terry Bovey, John Stewart, Frank Campagna and Frank Fisher were unavailable for comment Sunday after officiating games 3 and 4. But crew Supervisor Ed Vargo, who retired as a major league umpire last year said the four took their last-minute replacement well.

"What could they say?" Vargo asked. "They did their best."

Detroit Pulled For Cubs

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Tigers, from owner Tom Monaghan to reserve outfielder John Grubb, are thrilled to be facing the San Diego Padres in the World Series.

But they're not so excited about flying back-and-forth to play the games.

"I was pulling for the Cubs because I don't like long flights across the country," Kirk Gibson said Sunday night as he prepared to board the team's charter to San Diego after the Padres rallied to beat Chicago 6-3 in the fifth and deciding game of the National League Championship Series.

Had the Cubs won, the World Series would have opened Tuesday night in Detroit. As it was, the Tiger players scrambled to catch their charter that left about two hours after the Padres' victory.

"I have only one pair of pants at home," third baseman Marty

Castillo said during a loose workout Sunday at Tiger Stadium. "The others are at the dry cleaners — and won't be ready until Wednesday."

Many of the Tigers thought they would be playing the Cubs, who won the first two games of their best-of-five series with San Diego. In the final game, Chicago led 3-0 before falling.

"When it got to be 3-2, I said, 'Hmm, we better get packing.' I was kind of shocked to see Chicago lose," said Milt Wilcox, the winning pitcher in Detroit's pennant-clinching victory over Kansas City.

"I think it's a little bit of a surprise to all of us to be playing the Padres," Tom Brookens said. Added Grubb: "I had the suitcase packed and next to the TV set."

Larry Herndon, who played in the NL with San Francisco through 1981, said he was the familiar with Chicago and San Diego, but, "for travel reasons, I'd like it to be Chicago."

Wilcox and Dan Petry, who will start Game 2 after Jack Morris pitches the opener, both zeroed in on what problems the Padres will present.

"San Diego has some pretty good left-handed hitters," Petry said, referring to Tony Gwynn, the NL's leading batter (.352), and power hitters Graig Nettles and Terry Kennedy.

"I didn't know San Diego had that kind of a team," Petry said. "They were pretty impressive the last three games."

Wilcox was impressed by the Padres' first two batters, Alan Wiggins and Gwynn.

"Their speed at the top of the lineup should help them," Wilcox, the expected Game 3 starter, said. "They've got a comeback team."

The Tigers seemed relaxed as they went through their light practice in the mist. The laughed and joked and talked like the champions they are.

"It was nice to be able to win it early and then sit back and enjoy for a couple of days," centerfielder Chet Lemon said. "You might lose all perspective if you win and then had to go right back out there the next day and put it all on the line."

"We've had some time to realize what we've done, and now we're ready to go out and do more."

Monaghan, the Tigers' 47-year-old owner, mingled with his players, wearing a suit but carrying around a bat and spitting like his sluggers.

He usually offers encouragement, yet does not meddle in making on-field decisions — usually.

"C'mon, Chet, keep your eye on the ball," he said with a broad smile as Lemon, 0-for-13 in the playoffs, fouled off some pitches in the batting cages.

"I'm trying," Lemon said. "I owe somebody."

Evert Lloyd, Turnbull Claim Doubles Title

MANHATTAN BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Chris Evert Lloyd and her doubles partner, Australian Wendy Turnbull, are close friends on the Virginia Slims tennis circuit.

But the friendship dissolves quickly in the singles final of a tournament.

Lloyd, taking advantage of a tiring Turnbull, used the lob effectively to beat her, 6-2, 6-3, to win the $150,000 Virginia Slims of Los Angeles tournament.

Playing her usual baseline style against her opponent's serve-and-volley tactics, Lloyd required only 58 minutes to down Turnbull in 90-degree heat at the Manhattan Country Club.

The victory earned the top-seeded Lloyd $28,000, while the third-seeded Turnbull won $14,000.

In the doubles championship, Lloyd and Turnbull combined to down Eva Pfaff of West Germany and Bettina Bunge of Monaco, 6-2, 6-4.

Turnbull was coming off an exhausting three-set victory the previous night in the semifinals over Rosalyn Fairbank, a match in which Turnbull fought off three match points.

"Wendy had hers last night," Lloyd said, adding that overcoming three match points happens "only once or twice in a career of 10 to 15 years."

Lloyd, who usually starts slowly, broke Turnbull's serve to open the first set, then broke a 2-2 tie by winning the last four games of the set.

Elliott Adjusts, Claims Miller 500

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Benny Parsons loomed large in Bill Elliott's rearview mirror as the early laps unfolded in the Miller High Life 500 Grand National stock car race.

"He (Parsons) was about to put us a lap down, and that's when we got that first caution flag and were able to make some changes," Elliott said Sunday as he celebrated his victory in the $501,000 race at Charlotte Motor Speedway. First place was worth $52,633.

"Until the first caution flag I was just racing to keep up with the leaders," the drawing redhead from Dawsonville, Ga., added. "The car was just super loose. We couldn't get through turns three and four and I was really losing ground.

"But the crew got me back up front. They worked with the tires and did some work on the chassis during the pit stops and got it worked out at about the midway point in the race."

That saving first caution flag didn't come out until lap 152 when Sterlin Marlin and Ken Ragan tangled with each other and the wall in turn three on the high-banked, 1.5-mile oval.

There were only two other caution periods in the record-setting race.

But that was enough for Elliott, who took control following the last of the caution periods.

His Coors-sponsored Ford Thunderbird, owned by Harry Melling, crossed the finish line 12 seconds ahead of the Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS of runner-up Parsons.

And Elliott, who turned 29 today, picked up his second victory of the season and third of his Grand National career as he averaged 146.861 mph. That broke the Speedway mark for 500 miles of 142.240 by Cale Yarborough in October of 1973.

"We needed that first caution flag because that the crew some time to work on things, and it gave us a chance to catch up," Elliott noted.

"After that, we just got to running good and moved up toward the front."

He took the lead on lap 206 of 334—during the third caution period—and was headed only during his final pit stop—on lap 274 by Parsons—the rest of the way.

"It's hard to be disappointed, but it's hard to be happy because we got beat," said Parsons, who is a good friend of both Elliott and Melling. "Our car did run awfully well, but Bill did beat us."

"This kind of race we had today was tailor-made for Elliott and he was able to adjust to it. First, the long green and then yellow and then the long green... that's the type of race Elliott runs the best."

Yarborough was a distant third, followed by Harry Gant and, a lap down, Terry Labonte, all in Chevrolets.

Gant moved five points closer to Labonte in the Winston Cup point chase at 86, with Elliott's triumph moving him past both Darrell Waltrip and Dale Earnhardt into third place—227 points behind.

Waltrip was leading the race when Ragan hit the wall ahead of him in turn four and the two-time Winston Cup champion was forced to try to drive between Ragan and the wall. He didn't make it, badly damaging the car and losing 64 laps in the garage area while his crew made repairs and got him back out.

He wound up finishing 27th in the 41-car field, while Earnhardt's engine simply gave up after only 74 laps, placing him 39th.

That left Earnhardt fourth and Waltrip fifth in the standings, trailing Labonte by an intimidating 267 and 280 points, respectively, with just four races remaining.

The consistent Labonte, going for his first series championship, now has finished in the top eight in his last 11 races.

"We didn't run well all day," the soft-spoken Labonte said. "We were lucky to finish. But we did finish, and that's very important to us."

Elliott really doesn't feel like he's in the point race.

"Terry is so consistent that the only way I could catch him is if he really had some bad luck—and I don't wish him that," Elliott said.

The only other caution period in the race was caused when Tim Richmond, running fourth at the time, blew an engine on lap 204.

Cub Fans Denied Opportunity

By JIM O'CONNELL
 AP Sports Writer

For every vine on the walls of Wrigley Field a tear has been shed by one of the loyal legion who follows the Chicago Cubs—the group that must wait one more year.

The Cubs have not played in the World Series since 1945, the longest current non-appearance streak in the major leagues. A 6-3 loss to the San Diego Padres in Sunday's fifth game of the National League Championship Series kept that streak intact and started the gnashing of teeth, the outpouring of tears and renewed cries of: "Wait until next year."

This version of the Chicago Cubs, the winningest one-city franchise in baseball history with 8,227 victories, was unlike any ever sent on the field before. Ten of the players had postseason experience with other franchises and the two men in charge of the operation—General Manager Dallas Green and Manager Jim Frey—had managed in World Series.

Still, once again something happened to keep the Cubs from playing in the Fall Classic. Instead, it was the classic case of Chicago's fall.

"They wouldn't be the Cubs if they didn't break your heart," Jeff Granger, a 29-year-old Chicago resident, said.

When they Cubs took a two games-to-none lead over the Padres in the NLCS, hearts were beating quickly on Chicago's North Side in anticipation of a World Series game in Wrigley Field.

The Commissioner's office had decided that because the Cubs' park is the only one in the majors where night games cannot be played, the rhythm of the World Series would be changed to accommodate television. If the Cubs had won the pennant, the Series would have begun in the American League park, not the National, and the Cubs would have hosted only three games instead of the four that belonged to the NL team on the rotation basis.

By losing, the Cubs avoided a breach of that rotation.

"I think everybody is a little shocked right now that it's over for us," Cubs' catcher Jody Davis said. "We still gave the people of Chicago something they hadn't had in 39 years, a championship."

Before, the closest Cubs, who have been in 10 World Series but won only two (1907 and 1908) had managed to claiming a championship since 1945 was 1969 when they led the NL East by 9½ games on Aug. 13. When the season ended they were eight games behind the New York Mets.

Ron Santo, the captain and third baseman of the 1969 Cubs, still talks about that swoon and the trouble it has caused him.

"I've got everything I want in life," Santo, a successful businessman, said. "I'm a happy man. But I've got this guilt! I still carry the guilt... I felt guilty for the fans."

Now, these Cubs, the new playoff-experienced version of the team that couldn't play in October, played in October—but with no championship rings.

"I've been a Cubs fan all my life, and the one thing that teaches you is that life goes on," John Harrington, a Chicago resident who flew to San Diego for the final three games of the playoffs, said.

Peete Takes Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP)—Cal Peete, with a victory, and Mark O'Meara, with still another high finish, put the pressure on a pair of golf's biggest guns going into the closing weeks of the PGA Tour season.

"Fortunately, I played well enough to win—and I put some distance between me and Craig Stadler," Peete said after he had compiled a front-running, no-bogey final round of 66 that produced a 3-shot victory Sunday in the Texas Open golf tournament.

Peete's reference to Stadler involved the race for the coveted Vardon Trophy, which goes to the man with the low stroke average on the Tour. Peete lost that title last year by .01 of a stroke—a difference of two shots for the year—to Ray Floyd.

The 41-year-old Peete, the most successful black player the game has known, came into this tournament trailing Stadler (who did not play here) 70.77 to 70.73.

Single-Parent Motherhood Is Topic Of 'Kate & Allie'

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The Kate half of "Kate & Allie" wants to have a baby. The fact that she isn't married doesn't faze her, and, as a testament to this special show, it didn't bother CBS' censors or its advertisers.

In tonight's new-season return of this sparkling series, an unmarried friend of Kate's has a baby. Kate's involvement with the newborn child unleashes her own maternal impulses, even though Kate, played by Susan Saint James, is divorced and, for the moment, intends to stay that way.

In funny and mature ways, this episode raises the pros and cons of single-parent motherhood. It doesn't detail how Kate would get pregnant, but the mere suggestion of a single woman contemplating having a baby is light years away from TV's dizzy housewife burning the roast on "I Love Lucy."

"There was a scene in an earlier version of the script that mentioned sperm bank and hiring a stud, but then we took it out," said Sherry Coben, the series creator who wrote this episode. "It wasn't necessary to say it, or go that far. We wanted to graze the issue with a wistful sort of yearning."

Ms. Coben says she has single friends who've considered having children, and tonight's issue touches the broader subject of the modern working woman and her widening choices. In comparison, Jack Tripper living with his girlfriend on "Three's a Crowd" this season — billed by ABC as a breakthrough — comes off as sheer silliness.

To some extent, "Cheers" and "Family Ties" also can tread adult territory, but no show does it as well or with as much finesse as "Kate & Allie."

The amazing thing about "Kate & Allie" breaking down barriers is that it's done with such perceptive wit and warmth, and with so much fidelity to the characters, that hardly anybody notices it's happening.

"I don't worry about alienating anybody," said Ms. Coben. "My problem is to make Kate and Allie true to themselves. As long as you're true to the characters, you can graze by any real-life issue. What I want people to feel after the baby show is real warmth."

Even so, Ms. Coben was surprised that CBS' censors never raised an eyebrow about the show. Winifred Gorlin, vice president for program practices, said only one change was requested by her department — a telephone number in the script was thought to be too real, raising the possibility of viewer phone calls.

"Kate and Allie are two divorced women striving to create life in a fatherless household," said Ms. Gorlin. "The portrayal allows all sorts of issues without being exaggerated. Similar subject matter on another show could be offensive."

Ms. Gorlin said the characters' development beyond traditional TV roles "lessens outmoded stereotypes and allows the show to discuss subjects that reflect real life." It's a 1980s issue, she added, "because of the need for women to be more accomplished as career people while the years slip away."

CBS not only didn't resist the story idea, Michael Ogiens, head of CBS' programming in New York, actually suggested it.

"It was never a controversy here," said Josh Kane, vice president of programming in New York. "Clearly, the implication was that Kate would find somebody to father the child — maybe ol' Max (her ex-husband). But it's really more a biological-clock story than a how-to story."

"We're not sitting on a sequel," added Kane. "We have no plans to raise the subject again."

Advertisers, who have been criticized by the networks for being cautious around touchy subjects, were enthusiastic about this episode. There were no sponsor defections, according to the CBS sales department.

"All in the Family" had occasional sponsor problems, but that was a different decade, a different approach to social issues and a more extreme set of characters.

"You don't feel we're making points or didactic statements," Ms. Coben said. "The issue isn't black and white. It's not Archie vs. The Meathead. It's more the way life really is."

Which is why "Kate & Allie" will never do an episode on a smoking rib roast.

"I can't figure out how to get a half hour out of that," Ms. Coben said. "People have submitted scripts that go into the ozone of sitcom land, but we don't really consider those kinds of things. We get comedy out of regular life."

'Genius' Grant Aids Filmmaker In Financing Newest Project

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It happened to filmmaker John Sayles just like it did to the fortunate on the "Millionaire" TV show.

A voice on the telephone told him he had been selected for an award from the MacArthur Foundation. "That's nice," said Sayles, who has won occasional awards for his small-budget, personal films. "Do I go somewhere to accept the award?"

"No, we'll send the checks," he was told.

Unbeknownst to Sayles, he had been thoroughly investigated by the MacArthur Foundation, which decided he was eligible for one of its "genius" grants. They are given, with no strings attached, to creative individuals in various fields. Sayles is the first maker of film drama to receive a grant, which in his case amounts to $30,000 a year for five years.

Sayles used the money, along with fees from writing scripts for major studios, to finance his $350,000 feature, "The Brother From Another Planet." The offbeat film, which concerns an extraterrestrial visitor trying to cope in today's Harlem, recently drew lukewarm reviews from New York critics.

But the 34-year-old Sayles is accustomed to controversy about his work, which includes "The Return of the Secaucus Seven," "Lianna" and "Baby, It's You." Even though he writes important scripts such as "The Clan of the Cave Bear," which is now being filmed, he prefers to devote his major efforts to making shoestring movies.

"I guess I was spoiled by starting as a novelist," said the lanky, rugged Sayles, whose "Union Dues" was nominated for a National Book Award. "When you write a novel, you have total control over the material. You can't have control when you work for a major studio."

"I've written scripts for the studios, but only to earn money to finance my own films. Being a script writer in Hollywood is like being a carpenter: You only contribute to the final construction. I'd rather be an architect."

Sayles once tried the studio route. Having made "The Return of the Secaucus Seven" for $60,000, he found himself filming "Baby, It's You" for Paramount Pictures on a $3-million budget. The studio didn't like his final cut and "barely released" the film, he said.

His social consciousness stems from a boyhood in Schenectady, N.Y., which he described as a town in which unions and factories were constantly at odds. After attending Williams College, Sayles worked in nursing homes and factories, "writing with whatever time and energy I had left."

After drawing attention with his fiction, he wrote such movies as "Piranha" and "Battle Beyond the Stars," then decided to make his own films.

"The Brother From Another Planet" is a curious film, awkward in some respects, but with a fine, cutting edge to its satire. The film's best asset is a winning performance by Joe Morton as the alien: Without uttering a word, he conveys all the wonder and repulsion of a visitor to Spaceship Earth.

Sayles' next film will be "Matewan," based on the true story of a 1920s coal miners' strike in West Virginia. He'll do the financing himself and is saving up his monthly checks from the MacArthur Foundation.

"One of the nice things about the grant," the filmmaker remarked with a smile, "is that because it is awarded for 'meritorious' achievement, it's tax-free."

Annual Contest

COHOCTON, N.Y. (AP) — At the start, every available maple tree around Cohocton High was occupied, and officials even had to turn away some sociable climbers.

The latest in high-rise motels? Nope, just the town's annual 48-hour tree-sitting contest.

When the contest, part of this town's 19th Annual Fall Foliage Festival, ended Sunday at 6:30 p.m., five people were tied for first place, each having spent the entire 48 hours perched in their maple trees.

The man eventually declared the winner, Todd Jenner, earned a $175 prize. But even so, he said he'll probably never do it again.

Leaf Leaders Say Falling Purchases Mean Cuts Probable For 1985 Quota

RALEIGH (AP) — Diminishing enthusiasm of tobacco buyers wipes out the likelihood this year of a discount sales program, while a larger amount of leaf going under loan means the 1985 quota will probably be cut, tobacco leaders say. "This almost assures the secretary (U.S. Agriculture Secretary John R. Block) will have to reduce the quotas for next year," said John Cyrus, tobacco affairs chief for the North Carolina Department of Agriculture. Block will meet with growers at a public hearing Nov. 8 in Raleigh and will announce the 1985 quota Dec. 15, Cyrus said.

A smaller quota may see farmers harvesting less and thus making less money next year, he said.

"The farmers hate to see quotas cut but realize that the reduction is a part of this program," Cyrus said, adding that quotas have dropped 58 percent since 1975.

Under the federal tobacco program, the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp. buys tobacco that growers can't sell above the federal price support level, and it tries to sell the leaf later to repay loans used to finance the program.

But tobacco from past years has been piling up in Stabilization warehouses, leading officials to offer a discount program as an incentive for manufacturers to buy more of this year's crop.

Buyers would have to purchase about 90 percent of the 1984 crop for the discount program to take effect, Cyrus said.

As of last Thursday, Stabilization had taken in 16.4 percent of the 1984 crop compared to 14.3 percent through the same date last year, figures from the Federal State Market News Service show.

Under the discount program, manufacturers would get discounts of up to 60 percent on purchases of leaf that went under loan in earlier years. But those terms would have taken effect only if tobacco buyers purchased at least 720 million pounds of this year's crop.

"It's obvious now they won't reach that," said T. Carlton Blalock, executive vice president of the Tobacco Growers Association.

Blalock called the situation "very disappointing, because we had felt this (year) would be a start toward turning things around" in the market.

Reagan Plans N.C. Campaign Stop; Poll Shows Hunt With Slight Lead

By The Associated Press President Reagan will make a campaign stop in Charlotte just one day after the first of two debates between Reagan and Democratic challenger Walter Mondale.

Reagan will make a brief campaign stop in Charlotte today, where he will speak for about 15 minutes at a campaign rally.

He will appear with gubernatorial hopeful Jim Martin, Sen. Jesse Helms, 9th District congressional candidate Alex McMillan, 11th District candidate Bill Hendon, 8th District candidate Harris Blake of Pinehurst and 10th District Rep. Jim Broyhill.

State Democratic Party Chairman David Flaherty pronounced Mondale the winner of the debate but his Republican counterpart called the debate a draw.

State GOP chairman David Flaherty said Mondale came across better than Jimmy Carter in his debate with Reagan four years ago, but said the structure of Sunday's debate in Louisville, Ky., was so tight "there were no clear winners."

But Price said he thought Mondale won the debate both in style and substance.

In the U.S. Senate race, Gov. Jim Hunt says he's pleased with the latest Charlotte Observer Poll showing him with a slight lead in the U.S. Senate race, but Helms questioned the credibility of the poll.

The poll, conducted Oct. 1-4 and released Sunday, shows Hunt has taken a narrow 46 percent to 42 percent lead over Helms. The survey of 804 registered voters, with a 3.5 percent margin of error, also shows 11 percent of respondents were undecided or refused to answer and nearly 1 percent picked other candidates.

Three weeks ago, The Observer Poll found Helms leading Hunt 48 percent to 45 percent with 5 percent undecided.

Although Hunt said he was pleased with the latest poll, he called the Senate race "dead even."

Helms criticized The Observer Poll, saying it erred in predicting President Reagan and John East would lose in the last election.

On Sunday, several candidates were introduced to some 85,000 spectators at Charlotte Motor Speedway before the Miller 500 stock car race. Politicians waved but did not address the crowd.

Maureen Reagan, daughter of President Reagan, represented "NASCAR Racers for Reagan-Bush." "We're going to have a great race, right gang?" she said as the crowd roared.

The candidates appearing at the track were Martin, Democratic lieutenant governor candidate Bob Jordan, his Republican opponent John Carrington, McMillan, 9th congressional Democratic hopeful D.G. Martin, and Democrat Jim Long, a candidate for insurance commissioner. Democratic gubernatorial candidate Rufus Edmisten was represented by his brother, Paul.

Edmisten told a women's group at the Democrats' annual Vance-Aycock meeting in Asheville Saturday that women "will be involved in every level of government" if he's elected governor.

"Sex discrimination will not be tolerated in the Rufus Edmisten administration," he said.

In an interview with The Charlotte Observer, Helms said Saturday he regretted appearing "harsh" in his three televised debates with Hunt and says the sharp tone may have turned off voters.

Hunt agreed that the format caused him and Helms to be perceived as harsh.

When Helms was asked last week about Hunt's charge that his campaign tactics are "clearly calculated to divide our people," Helms told the Greensboro News and Record last week that his opponent is a racist. Hunt termed the remark "the height of irony."

"I believe it's fair to say he's the racist in this campaign," Helms said. "He's trying to appeal to black citizens, but he's trying to hide it."

"That's unbelievable," Hunt said Saturday.

Hunt's charge about Helms' tactics arose during a Sept. 9 debate after Helms asked Hunt why he had run certain ads in newspapers circulated in the black community but not in general circulation newspapers.

The ad touts Hunt's support for a Martin Luther King holiday. Despite Helms leading the Senate opposition, the holiday bill passed.

Hunt has stopped short of terming Helms' strategies as racist, saying only that Helms wants to "open up the old wounds and fight the old battles all over again."

But Helms says, "That's ridiculous."

In other political news, members of the statewide Students for Hunt group held a rally Sunday night at North Carolina State University where they gave the governor two cloth sashes carried by more than 400 students who took part in a statewide relay run last week.

The relay began in Asheville and Elizabeth City Tuesday, with runners from more than 70 different colleges took turns in carrying the sashes. The final runners reached Raleigh just before the rally.

Hunt lauded the crowd of 350 students for the "tremendous amount of planning and energy that made the relay a success."

Army Sergeants Accused Of Selling Hot Weapons

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Federal agents ended a two-month investigation with the arrests of two Army sergeants from Fort Bragg on charges they tried to exchange stolen weaponry, for drugs and money, U.S. Treasury officials said.

Prosecutors were expected to seek a $500,000 bond today for Master Sgt. Keith Anderson, 32, and Sgt. Byron K. Carlisle, 43, according to Dan Conroy, special agent in charge of the department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Agents arrested Anderson in Vero Beach Saturday when he allegedly tried to trade a truckload of ammunition for $49,000 worth of cocaine and cash, said Bill Alfree, a spokesman for the bureau.

Carlisle, an intelligence officer with the Institute for Military Assistance and the 7th Special Forces group at, was picked up Saturday at Fort Bragg in Fayetteville, N.C., Alfree said.

According to the Treasury spokesman, Anderson was told by the undercover agents that the stolen military items would be delivered to South America to support narcotics operations there.

Alfree said the men were to be charged with violations of federal firearms laws. Conroy said both men face up to 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine if convicted.

The two months of detective work ended Saturday when Anderson drove a 12-foot truck filled with explosive devices from Fort Bragg to Vero Beach, where he had allegedly arranged to sell them, Alfree said.

"The arrests culminated a two-month undercover investigation in which ATF agents posed as large-scale narcotics dealers and made numerous purchases from the violators," Conroy said.

According to Alfree, Anderson and Carlisle previously sold undercover agents in Key West, Jacksonville and Fayetteville a long list of military hardware including 30 Claymore mines, 30 M-67 fragmentary grenades, 100 pounds of plastic explosives, 21 pounds of TNT, 29 pounds of military dynamite, 1,680 rounds of 5.56-caliber ammunition, 800 feet of detonating cord, 1,500 feet of time fuse, 73 M-60 fuse igniters, 144 electric blasting caps and 80 non-electric blasting caps.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's full moon finds you trying to decide between quick action in putting into motion some conditions you would like to have in your life or to use a more thoughtful approach.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You may have to compromise with an associate if you are to agree on some deal, which would be wise.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You are confused as to whether to discuss a plan further with others or start right in on it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan your time well so that you can be with good friends and later with your mate. Get your talents working nicely.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You may have to make some changes in your schedule in order to handle both personal and business affairs wisely.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You get fine ideas today that can help to make your life more worthwhile and pleasant.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Business matters have to be handled but your mate also wants your attention, so plan your time well and you can please all.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are certain of what you want at this time but an associate tries to persuade you to do differently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are highly enthused and can get much accomplished during the daytime, after you have decided on the right course.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Important that you do whatever you can to make your mate happier, and put your ideas across.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Doing what is desired of you by kin is wise, even if you have to forget some outside affair you had in mind.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be alert to new ideas and methods if you want to be more successful at present interests.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have every opportunity to get ahead financially so get busy at business dealings and be accurate.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will always want to know progressive, thinking and successful people and can very easily get a fine education and learn a good deal about many subjects and can become most successful in life. A born pioneer here, but one who will have the wisdom to be careful.

Raleigh-Charlotte Amtrak Schedule Caters To Students, Elderly Riders

By The Associated Press
 Officials predict the time schedule of North Carolina's first direct Charlotte-to-Raleigh train service in more than 30 years will mean most of the riders will be students and elderly people rather than businessmen.

"We don't expect a lot of business travel from Charlotte to Raleigh, and none from Raleigh to Charlotte," said David King, director of public transportation for the state Department of Transportation.

The service debuts Oct. 28. The Piedmont Palmetto's schedule places the train in Raleigh at 12:30 p.m., with stops in Kannapolis, Salisbury, High Point, Greensboro, Burlington and Durham. The train would leave Raleigh at 5:35 p.m. and arrive in Charlotte at 9:40 p.m.

"We feel like... the market will be a lot of college-age people and a lot of elderly people," King said. "Anyone taking the train for business would have to know they'd have to do their business in the afternoon. Speed is not one of our strong suits."

John Q. Burnette, a Charlotte banker who served on the North Carolina Transportation Board until last month and made the motion last year to proceed with plans for the train, said he wasn't aware the train would not arrive in Raleigh until after noon.

Burnette said he originally thought the train would draw Charlotte business people, lawyers and government officials who regularly travel to Raleigh.

"I've heard people say, 'If the schedule looks good, I'd like to do it, because it gives me time to get on the train and do some work on my way to Raleigh,'" he said.

"If they find that ridership is lagging because of those time schedules, maybe they'll be able to change them," Burnette said.

The one year trial route is costing the state $496,000 or 45 percent of the cost to see if the run is practical. Amtrak is paying the other 55 percent.

The Raleigh-Charlotte run is actually a part of Amtrak's Savannah-to-New York Palmetto, which will give travelers along the Piedmont a mostly daylight rail trip to the Northeast. The train will reach Washington at 6 p.m. and New York at 10 p.m.

King said that connection persuaded Amtrak to agree last year to the North Carolina link.

Depending on the number of riders each day, the train's single diesel engine will pull between one and three new, lightweight coaches and a club car that will serve beverages, snacks and microwave-heated sandwiches.

The train's four-hour, five minute travel time over the 173-mile route averages up to 42 mph. At the request of Cannon Mills, that schedule was stretched to add a stop in Kannapolis.

King said it will be lengthened again three to four minutes because town officials in Mebane, Elon College and Gibsonville are refusing an Amtrak request to raise their 20 mph train speed limit to 45 mph.

The Charlotte-Raleigh trip takes about three hours by car and five hours by bus, which costs about $13. By plane the trip takes only 45 minutes, with the fare ranging from $55 to $65 one way, compared to $22.45 for the train.

Helms' Critics Charge That Senator Is Blocking A Child Nutrition Bill

By The Associated Press
 Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., denies his critics' claims that he is holding up action on a child nutrition measure because he fears the bill's supporters will succeed in pumping more money into the programs.

"If anyone is holding the bill hostage, it is Sen. Helms," said Ed Cooney, staff attorney for the Food Research and Action Center in Washington. "And we feel that's an abuse of power by the chairman."

But Helms, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, contends the delays have come from other senators trying to amend the bill to increase spending beyond committee recommendations.

The bill would reauthorize for two years five child nutrition programs due to expire Sept. 30. But failure to pass the measure won't kill the programs.

While no reauthorization bill has passed for the nutrition programs, Congress has provided money for them for an additional year in a catchall spending bill that House-Cenate conferees are working on.

Many nutrition program advocates say the programs need more money to restore cuts made in previous years. They also are concerned that the lack of reauthorization leaves the nutrition programs, including the $1.5 billion-a-year

Women, Infants and Children's feeding plan, with an uncertain future.

"It's difficult, if not impossible, to efficiently run a nutrition program if it has authorization to operate for only one year," wrote Sens. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa, and David Boren, D-Okla., in a letter to fellow senators last week.

Their letter said without reauthorization, the programs would have to compete for new authority next year when they "will have to compete with the farm bill and the food stamp reauthorization for the attention of the Agriculture Committee."

The three senators had planned amendments to reauthorize the programs for three years and add money to them, but they didn't offer the amendments when the Senate considered a budget bill called a continuing resolution.

One reason was that they believed Helms and Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., would have objected to the additional spending, said Boschwitz aide Barbara Thomson. She said Boschwitz still plans to amend the Agriculture Committee's nutrition bill if it gets to the Senate floor, which appears doubtful.

Boschwitz proposes amendments to add $139 million or $86 million per year to the committee bill.

Helms has agreed to add $30 million to the level for the WIC nutrition program provided for in the Agriculture Committee measure. But he says other increases sponsored by Boschwitz could cost $346 million over the next three years.

Tom Boney, Helms' food and nutrition adviser, said Helms also doesn't want to bring up the measure unless he's given assurance that the Democrat-controlled House won't amend the bill.

Tax Fraud Reduction Aim Of Audit Unit

RALEIGH (AP) — Only a few tax cheaters have been turned up by a new special audit unit in the North Carolina Department of Revenue, but officials hope word of the unit will make people think twice about falsifying tax returns.

"To a certain extent, we have to rely on the media to get the word out (about tax-evasion prosecutions)," said Dewey N. Sanders, supervisor of the unit, which was created by the 1983 General Assembly.

Sanders admitted getting publicity about such cases is seldom easy.

"It's not like murder or rape or a riot," he said. "But we try to make sure the local media, at least, gets word on tax cases."

Often, big tax cases may seem small because the law requires the prosecution to prove every penny that has not been paid, Sanders said. To be sure a suspect is convicted, prosecutors may focus on $1,000 or $2,000 when the actual amount involved could be 10 times that, he said.

Turkish Terrorist Hanged

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — A terrorist convicted of killing a watchman in 1980 was hanged at dawn Sunday in Buca, near the Aegean port city of Izmir, the independent Hurriyet news agency reported.

Ilyas Has, identified as a member of the leftist Revolutionary Path terrorist group, was condemned to death by a Turkish military court based in Izmir two years ago. It found him guilty of killing a watchman in Karsiyaka, a residential district in Izmir, to get the man's pistol.

The execution brought to 29 the number of leftist and rightist terrorists hanged for involvement in the widespread political disturbance that disrupted Turkey before the military coup of September 1980.

Traditional Alms-Bowl Makers See Factory Threat

By JIM ABRAMS
Associated Press Writer
BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Hidden in the heart of Bangkok is a place known as Ban Batr — literally meaning House of Alms Bowls — and for generations it has been the sole producer of the bowls Thailand's Buddhist monks use in their daily rounds for alms.

Now the tradition and simple livelihood of the craftsmen are threatened. Ethnic Chinese have set up a factory capable of manufacturing 1,000 alms bowls a day. The craftsmen need eight hours to make one.

"The factory-made bowls are a threat to us," said Thongsuk Suesiserm, at 73 the patriarch of the community of five households, some 50 people. "But only we make genuine bowls following religious customs."

"We are very poor but we can still get by," added Hathairat Sirikanna, a 27-year-old woman. "Our quality is still better and we don't want to change."

The bowlmakers live in ramshackle wooden shanties with precariously leaning tin roofs and no plumbing. The labyrinth of narrow walkways is cluttered with lines of laundry, rusting iron, heaps of bowls and charcoal. Smoke from the kiln mingles with the older women cook curries, vegetables, dried fish and chicken.

No one knows exactly how long the people of this enclave have been making alms bowls. Thongsuk, the old man, said Ban Batr has been in the business at least since his grandfather's youth 140 years ago. Other accounts say King Rama I brought in the first bowlmakers after establishing Bangkok as the capital of Siam, Thailand's former name, in the mid-18th century.

The alms bowls and the soliciting by monks, who today number 275,000, go back several thousand years in Buddhist legend. In the Theravada school of Buddhism, to which more than 90 percent of Thai people adhere, the laity can acquire "merit" which can affect both their present lives and future incarnations by donating rice and other food to monks.

Early every morning, in the cities as well as in the rural areas where most of Thailand's 27,000 monasteries are located, the saffron-robed monks set out on their daily rounds. The faithful wait in front of their homes and shops to make their offerings.

Bowlmaking too is a ritual little changed over the years, Thongsuk said. Discarded iron scraps — sheets of rusting Japanese iron were piled in one corner — are first pounded into strips and fringes are pounded together to make a crown-like configuration.

The bowl is then carried to a neighbor's house where copper shavings and borax are applied to seal the seams. The bowl next goes into the community kiln where a charcoal fire, fed by a primitive bellows, turns the metal red-hot.

Another neighbor is assigned the next task of repounding the metal with a rounded hammer and filing it to a smooth, silvery sheen. Finally, oil and varnish are applied and the bowl is placed bottom-up over a small charcoal grill to make it black, the standard color for alms bowls.

"We used to fire the bowls twice, instead of once like now, and today the young children go to school," Thongsuk said when asked how bowlmaking has changed since his youth. There used to be 100 people in the community — twice as many as today, he added.

It still takes eight hours to produce one bowl, and profits are slim. Mrs. Hathairat said the most common bowl, measuring about 7 inches in diameter, sells for 40 baht ($1.74), with a profit margin of five baht (22 cents).

Her brother, Pathum Akobon, pointed out that every Ban Batr bowl is made of eight segments, according to ancient religious dictates, while the factory bowls are one solid piece of metal.

"Several years ago a senior monk carrying one of the artificial (factory-made) bowls was hurt in an auto accident," he said, indicating it happened because the bowl was not made in accordance with religious tradition.

New Country Music Faces May End Alabama's Reign

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The fresh faces of singer Lee Greenwood, the mother-daughter duo The Judds and the group Exile are threatening Alabama's three-year domination of the Country Music Association awards.

Eleven award winners and two new members of the Country Music Hall of Fame will be announced on a live CBS television special from the Grand Ole Opry House tonight. Kenny Rogers is host.

Alabama, a four-piece country-pop band, has been voted entertainer of the year for the past two years and top vocal group for the past three. The group also has been No. 1 instrumental group for two of the past three years.

Greenwood, spurred by the success of his patriotic single, "God Bless the USA," this year is rated a good chance to win the top award, entertainer of the year. That would deprive Alabama of becoming the first act to win the honor three times.

The other three finalists are Barbara Mandrell, blind pianist-singer Ronnie Milsap and the flashy Oak Ridge Boys.

Miss Mandrell, who is recovering at home from serious injuries suffered in a Sept. 11 traffic crash near Nashville, will join the show via a live remote hookup, a spokeswoman for the telecast said Sunday. The singer will thank her fans for their expressions of concern since her accident, accept any awards she might receive and listen as Greenwood sings "To Me" to her.

The Judds, a look-alike mother-daughter duo with the hit "Mama He's Crazy," will vie with Alabama for vocal group of the year. The remaining finalists are Exile, the Oak Ridge Boys and the Statlers.

Exile, a former pop band, has moved into country music and challenges Alabama for top instrumental group. Other finalists are the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, the Ricky Skaggs Band and the Oaks Band.

The Judds and Exile have had country music careers for only about a year.

Finalists for top male vocalist are Greenwood, veteran Merle Haggard, 1982 winner Skaggs and newcomers Gary Morris and George Strait. Morris was recently chosen for the lead male role in the opera "La Boheme" in New York City, but is scheduled to be present tonight.

Finalists for top female vocalist include Janie Fricke, who's won the past two years. Joining her are two former winners, Miss Mandrell (1979 and 1981) and Emmylou Harris (1980), country-pop star Anne Murray and traditional country stylist Reba McEntire.

The awards are voted on by 8,000 singers, musicians, songwriters and other country music professionals.

Tentatively scheduled to appear on the show are Alabama, Deborah Allen, Lynn Anderson, Glen Campbell, Ray Charles, Earl Thomas Conley, Exile, Miss Fricke, Crystal Gayle, Vern Gosdin, Greenwood, Miss Harris, Waylon Jennings, the Judds, Kris Kristofferson, Brenda Lee, Loretta Lynn, Louise Mandrell, Miss McEntire, Milsap, Bill Monroe, Morris, Michael Martin Murphey, Miss Murray, Willie Nelson, the Oak Ridge Boys, Dolly Parton, Charley Pride, Eddy Raven, the Statlers, John Schneider, Skaggs, Ray Stevens, Strait, B.J. Thomas and Tammy Wynette.

There will be a stereo simulcast on radio's Mutual Broadcasting System.

$1 Million Robbery

LYON, France (AP) — Six hooded robbers seized an executive of a precious metals company and his family, forced him to open his company's safes and escaped with 220 pounds of gold worth more than $1 million, the executive said.

Michel Rey-Coquais said the robbers, armed with pistols and wearing hoods over their heads, first seized his daughter, Catherine Rey-Coquais, 17, and her two cousins, aged 19 and 20, as they came home from a party about 3 a.m. Sunday.

Rey-Coquais, 52, technical director of Societe d'Affinage de Metaux

Precieux, said the robbers tied up the three cousins, his wife and his son Thierry, 24, and then four took the executive by car to the company's headquarters, leaving two accomplices with the rest of the family.

Rey-Coquais said the robbers were familiar with the company, its operations and the security system.

He said the robbers opened four safes and took about 220 pounds of gold bars and wire. After alerting their accomplices by walkie-talkie, the robbers chained Rey-Coquais to an office door and fled, he said.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARINGS PROPOSED NORTH CAROLINA HAZARDOUS WASTE MANAGEMENT RULE REVISIONS (10NCAC 10F)

The North Carolina Department of Health Services, Division of Health Services, will conduct three public hearings and a public hearing on proposed rule amendments concerning the management of hazardous waste in North Carolina to meet the mandate included in GS 130A-294(g). The public is invited to attend the meetings and hearing and comment on the proposed amendments to the rules.

PUBLIC MEETINGS: November 27 (7:30 p.m.); LOCATION: Auditorium School of Allied Health, East Carolina University, Greenville, NC November 28 (7:30 p.m.); Mulls Convention Center, Highway 64-70 Hickory, NC November 29 (7:30 p.m.); LOCATION: Public Hearing, January 18, 1985 (1:30 p.m.); LOCATION: Highway Building Auditorium, One South Wilmington Street, Raleigh, NC

Written and oral (for no more than 10 minutes) comments on each subject may be presented at the hearing. The standards of the proposed rule amendments are: - Standards for locating and permitting of a hazardous waste facility including hydrological and geological factors, natural resources, local land use, transportation factors, aesthetic factors, and criteria which improve community acceptance.

The statutory authority for adoption of these rules is G.S. 130A-294. These rules will be considered for adoption by the North Carolina Commission for Health Services on January 25th, 1985 meeting in Raleigh. Any person may request information by writing or calling: Solid and Hazardous Waste Mgmt. Branch Room 213, Bath Building 306 North Wilmington Street Raleigh, NC 27602 Telephone: (919) 733-2178 October 8, 1984

Captain Subject Of Probe

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A Navy captain accused of shooting at whales also allegedly failed to report a collision between his ship and a trawler and had computer tapes thrown overboard, a Navy spokesman said Sunday.

The Navy's inspector general began investigating Capt. Melvin D. Munsinger in August and a Congressional inquiry began last month, said Lt. Cmdr. Ron Morse, a spokesman for the Pacific Fleet Surface Force in San Diego.

The allegations by officers and crew of the USS San Jose involve "potential misconduct by the commanding officer and others," Morse said in a telephone interview.

"The investigation is proceeding. We are making as much progress on the thing as we can. It is broad in scope and we want to be thorough. Our primary concern is to get a good, thorough investigation, as opposed to a quick one."

Commodore P.D. Butcher, the commander of the Pacific Fleet Surface Force, "has a number of allegations, but basically they center around those three things," Morse said.

The accusations were reported Sunday by the Norfolk Virginia-Pilot and Ledger-Star.

The San Jose allegedly collided with a fishing trawler last April in Pusan, South Korea, knocked it on its side and injured one fisherman, Morse said. It violated international law by not stopping to help, crew members said.

Munsinger and his first lieutenant conducted target practice on a pod of whales in the Indian Ocean, although U.S. law forbids capturing, injuring or harassing the animals, the crew and officers said.

Munsinger also ordered two boxes of magnetic computer tapes thrown overboard because they were stored in a passageway "in his way," they said.

After the investigation is complete, the information will be given to the Navy's version of a grand jury to determine whether charges go to a court martial, officials said.

Munsinger, who yielded command of the San Jose last June in a normal rotation and now is chief of staff to Cruiser Destroyer Group 3 in San Diego, declined comment on the investigation.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠954 ♥K1063 ♦QJ8 ♣752

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
1 ♣ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—You have a minimum response and you have reached a playable spot. Opener's rebid in a new suit at the one-level is not forcing, so there is no need for you to keep the bidding open. Don't take a preference to two clubs — you are raising the level for no good reason. Partner might have a three-card suit and even if he has five clubs, eight tricks might be beyond your combined assets.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠Q1063 ♥AK85 ♦AQ93 ♣7

Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?

A.—In support of spades your hand is worth 19 points, so you want to get across to partner the information that you are in the slam zone. Jump shift to three diamonds. If you must jump shift in a four-card suit, it is more prudent to select a minor over a major.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠AQ872 ♥KQ6 ♦KJ ♣A72

Partner opens the bidding with one diamond. What do you respond?

A.—In terms of high cards this is a much better hand than the one above, but it is nowhere near as good in playing strength. The reason? You have not yet established a trump fit. Therefore, we suggest caution. Instead of jump shifting, we would make a simple one spade response and show our strength in the subsequent bidding.

Q.4—Both, vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠J7642 ♥AQ6 ♦5 ♣K763

Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?

A.—Because of your five-card support and singleton, you might be tempted to jump to four spades. However, you have far too much strength for that action. In support for spades your hand revalues to 14 points, so the textbook response is a jump raise to three spades.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠KJ3 ♦K9875 ♣A6532

Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?

A.—The one thing you must not do is jump raise partner with only three-card support, even excellent three-card support such as you have. Make a waiting bid of two diamonds. If partner can raise or bid clubs, you are conceivably in the slam zone. If he bids hearts, you can jump in spades without overstating your trump length.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠KQJ53 ♥K82 ♦93 ♣A105

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♣ Pass
2 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—You want to be at least in game, perhaps slam, but you are not yet sure whether it is best to play in hearts, spades or no trump. You need more information from partner, and the obvious way to get that is to bid three clubs. A new suit by you is forcing, and partner's next bid should clarify his hand. Naturally, if he raises clubs, you will take him back to hearts.
