Storm Strengthens, No Threat Yet

MIAMI (AP) — Hurricane Josephine became stronger and better organized, but a high-pressure system moving in the North Atlantic today prevented the storm's 85 mph winds from threatening the United States, forecasters said.

Miles Lawrence, a forecaster with the National Weather Service, said the high-pressure system will keep Josephine parallel to the coastline.

Josephine, the third hurricane of the 1984 Atlantic hurricane season, was upgraded from tropical storm status Tuesday afternoon.

At 6 a.m. EDT today, the hurricane's center was near latitude 27.8 north and longitude 72.8 west, or some 375 miles east of Freeport, Grand Bahama Island, the weather service said.

Maximum sustained winds were 85 mph with gales extending 250 miles east and 150 miles west of the center. Some strengthening was expected through Thursday morning.

"Since the hurricane is moving slowly, this increases the uncertainty of its future course," the weather service said in a statement. "Therefore, interests along the southeast U.S. coast should closely monitor the progress of this hurricane."

National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials, worried over Saturday's scheduled landing of the shuttle Challenger at the Kennedy Space Center on Cape Canaveral, were keeping an eye on Josephine's progress.

"We'll make an attempt to land if the weather is good," commander Robert Crippen said Tuesday during a 44-minute space-to-ground news conference. The shuttle's landing could be diverted to California or postponed a day, officials said.

The Bahamian government issued a hurricane watch for Eleuthera and Abaco islands after sending out gale warnings for the central Bahamas.

Forecasters expected Josephine's 5 mph drift to the north-northwest to continue.

"Right now, it's very difficult to give any long-term prediction, and with it moving slowly ... the future is uncertain," said Zimmer.

Further but slow strengthening was also expected.

Earlier, National Weather Service forecaster Bob Sheets had said that since Josephine formed in an area about 500 miles east of Nassau, Bahamas and late in the season, chances of it hitting the mainland were slim.

"From the 11th through the 20th of October a lot of them form in the same general area," Sheets said. "A few come here, the majority go north to northwest and some go northeast."

Seas, already higher than normal because of the passage of a front, were "just being aggravated because of the intensification of Josephine" and were running 16 to 20 feet over open waters, Sheets said Tuesday afternoon.

But high pressure over the southeast United States, which was moving out over the water, would block "any rapid northward movement of the storm" for the next 12 to 24 hours, Sheets said.

The Coast Guard reported Wednesday that six people from a disabled sailboat had been rescued from the oncoming hurricane.

The 41-foot sailboat "Covenant" was on its way from Moorehead, N.C. to St. Thomas in the U.S. Virgin Islands when 33 to 38 mph winds ripped its sails Tuesday, spokesman Joe Gibson said. The 15-foot seas also broke the craft's centerboard.

The tanker Esso Melbourne was diverted from its course to the Dutch island territory of Aruba to rescue the sailboat's crew, Gibson said.

Merger Panel Identifies Jobs

A plan of action for the consolidation of the Greenville and Pitt County school systems was discussed and approved in Tuesday's Consolidation Committee meeting in the Pitt County Office Building.

This session was the second meeting of the Consolidation Committee.

The timetable approved by the board is the first schedule approved by the committee. No target date has been set for completion of the consolidation of the schools.

Consolidation Committee Chairman Mark W. Owens Jr. said, "We are proceeding with the organizational work and it looks like the committee is on schedule" in consolidation procedures.

The plan of action approved by the committee identifies the tasks that need to be completed before consolidation, pinpoints specific personnel responsible for those tasks, and sets up completion dates for each project.

Consolidation activities on the schedule for October include preparing the necessary documents for legislative action; reviewing and examining with school food service staffs a list of tasks, such as inventory and purchasing, to be accomplished to facilitate consolidation, and reviewing with the maintenance staff a list of functions, such as equipment and energy conservation, to be completed to ease consolidation.

Consultant George Redfern is in charge of reviewing with the staff such functions as school organizational patterns, graduation requirements, basic program, report cards, textbook selection procedures, fees and interscholastic and intramural sports.

In other action at the meeting, the board recommended that architect James Hite be employed for the purpose of preliminary planning for the new elementary school on the old County Home property. Architects Cameron Dudley and George Shoe were approved to begin preliminary planning of additions to D.H. Conley, North Pitt and Belvoir schools. Funds for the construction are expected to be made available by the Pitt County Commissioners at a later date.

The Consolidation Committee was formed to work out the business of consolidation after the Pitt County school board came out in favor of "conditional" consolidation in June 1984.

Consolidation has been discussed by the school systems for several years. At the request of the Pitt County Commissioners, a merger feasibility study was conducted by the Research Triangle Institute in 1983. Several options were reviewed, but merger was recommended as the best solution for the problems of the two school systems.

Final Action Scheduled Oct. 30

GUC Studies Rate Increase

By TOMMY FORREST
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville Utilities Commission board members Tuesday night reviewed a proposed electric rate increase.

To compensate for the increased wholesale power costs imposed on GUC (5.2 percent on Oct. 1 and an additional 2.7 percent effective on Jan. 1, 1984), consultants R.W. Beck and Associates have indicated the need to increase retail rates an average of 8.39 percent, effective Nov. 1. The proposed rate reflects a six-month study to determine an equitable way to charge all classes of customers based on cost-to-serve principles, passing on to the customer a fair share of the cost to purchase and deliver electricity.

The average residential customer using 1,000 kilowatt-hours per month, would see a $6.29 monthly increase in summer bills, from $71.50 to $77.79; and a $7.07 monthly increase in winter bills, from $67.86 to $74.93. The proposed rates are competitive with Carolina Power and Light Co.

A public information meeting is scheduled for Oct. 25, at 7:30 p.m. in the GUC boardroom and a special meeting called for the adoption of the rates will be held Oct. 30 at 7:30 p.m.

Commission members moved to request a plan from developer Tommie Little concerning a man-hole type sewage pump station to be placed on property on the White Road east of Treetops Subdivision.

Little discussed with the board the need for the pumping station saying, "It was in our original plan that we thought there would be a need for the station."

In a memo to the commission, GUC Director Charles Horne said, "When the property was first shown to Clellie (Buzz) Smart and me by Mr. Little, there were no engineering development plans of topography available sufficient to determine that the entire site could or could not be served by the existing gravity sewer that serves Treetops."

Horne added that Smart and he were familiar with the property and concluded, "...we questioned, without benefit of an engineering plan, sewer service to the back section of the property."

The property consisting of 49.2 acres, has approximately eight acres that could not be reached by gravity type sewers and would require installation of a sewer pump station and are in question.

Horne also pointed out that unless further growth was indicated in that area, it would not be feasible for the commission to place a pump station there.

Little commented saying his intentions were to have the complete area annexed into the city limits when completed.

A motion was made and passed to have Little return to the commission and present a plan of specifications of the proposed pump station and who will maintain and who will service the station.

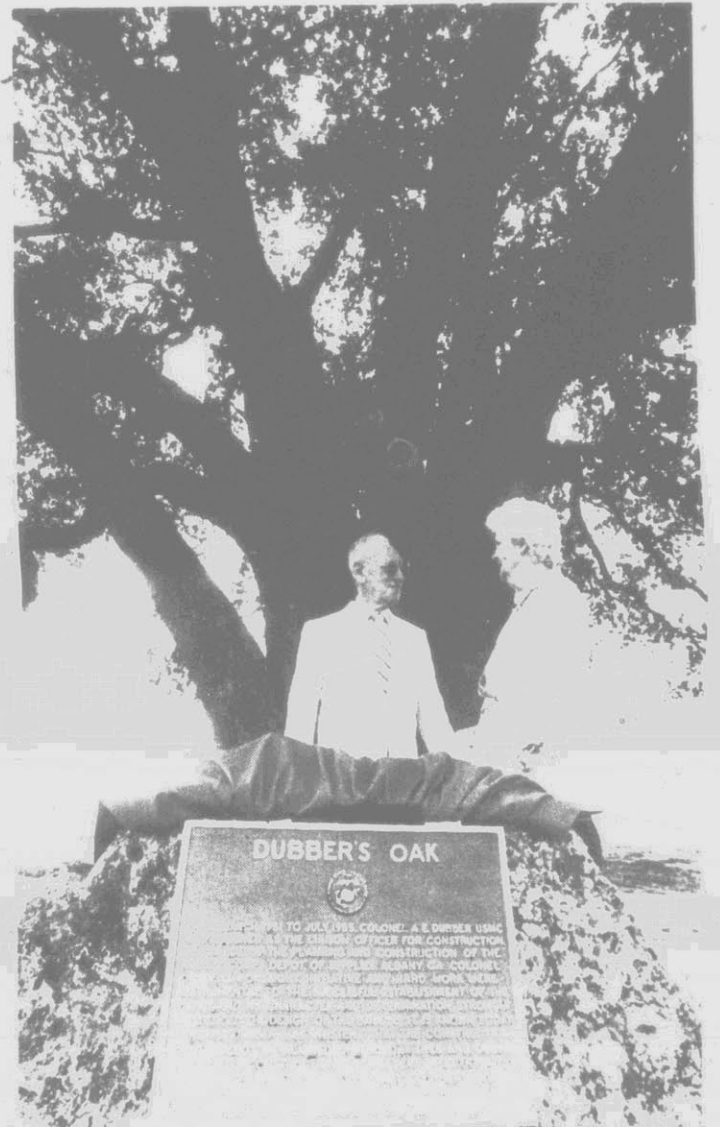

Greenville businessman Bubba Rawl appeared before the commission asking for time to present opposition to the recent approval of water/sewer service to the Rowndtree Woods development just west of the city's extraterritorial jurisdiction area on N.C. 43 at the intersection of secondary road 1204.

Rawl commented saying, "We want a chance to present our side of the proposal."

The property is being developed by Collice Moore and would be subject to being brought into the extraterritorial jurisdiction of the city by the developer executing a voluntary covenant of annexation.

Board Chairman Margaret Wirth said if the commission allowed Rawl to present his side of the proposal, which is against the approval

Marines Honor Retired Colonel

ALBANY, Ga. — In a dedicatory ceremony held recently at the Marine Corps Depot of Supplies, Albany, the late A. E. Dubber, a retired Marine Corps colonel and a resident of Greenville at the time of his death, was honored by the naming of a large oak tree as "Dubber's Oak."

Dubber served for several years as executive director of the Greenville Housing Authority before retiring from public life.

In the concluding phase of the ceremony, Dubber's widow, Pat Dubber of Greenville, unveiled a bronze plaque set in a face of a rough stone which officially proclaims the huge, many-branched oak as "Dubber's Oak."

In his address to those gathered at the ceremony, Maj. Gen. R. A. Shaffer noted "Colonel Dubber had a long and distinguished career that spanned over 36 years. Perhaps his most significant accomplishments during that period were his efforts in the construction of our base ... (He) was the catalyst and the driving force behind the successful completion of this large and difficult construction effort."

Shaffer told listeners that "as most of you are aware, he was insistent that the base be built aligned on this oak tree that we sit under this morning. For that reason, it became known as Dubber's Oak."

"Today," Gen. Shaffer added, "we are making that designation official." The tree and its commemorative plaque is at a point visible to Marines coming onto the base through the main gates. Shaffer expressed the hope that "the tree will inspire Marines to strive for the ideals held by Dubber."

Sergeants In Custody

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Two Green Beret Army sergeants in custody for allegedly stealing arms and explosives are being held on $100,000 bond each pending a federal grand jury investigation.

Master Sergeant Keith Anderson, 32, stationed at Fort Bragg, N.C., was arrested by federal Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agents in a Vero Beach orange grove Saturday. He was driving a truckload of $49,000 worth of explosives and ammunition that ATF agent Dan Conroy said was to be exchanged for cash and cocaine. But the intended buyers were actually undercover ATF agents.

Arrested in North Carolina was Anderson's alleged partner, Sgt. First Class Byron Carlisle, 45, also stationed at the Army base. He is being held on bond at the Cumberland, N.C. jail.

Both men are charged with conspiracy and sale and possession of unregistered firearms.

The agents' story "was that this ammunition was going to be used in South America to help the narcotics operations there," said ATF agent Bill Alfree.

Williamston Losing Operators

WILLIAMSTON — Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company has announced that it will close Williamston's operator services on Oct. 18. The company will switch to new computerized operator services equipment.

The Traffic Service Position System, known as TSPS, will be used in the company's Williamston district which includes the exchanges for Williamston, Robersonville, Hamilton, Columbia, Creswell, Plymouth and Windsor.

Conversion to the new TSPS system will affect 24 local operation services personnel, according to J.C. Coley, division operation services manager for CT&T in New Bern. Approximately 80 other CT&T employees in Martin County will not be affected by the move at this time. Coley reported that six operators will retire and five will transfer to Kinston, one to Tarboro, and one to Rocky Mount.

The switch over will result in nine full-time operators and two part-time operators having their jobs terminated. Coley said that for these people, "termination allowances will be determined by the number of years the employees accumulated with CT&T. Persons who are displaced will be contacted by CT&T's personnel department to see what other line of endeavor they may be interested in."

Wedding Vows Spoken In Bethel Church Sunday

Lori Anne Briley and John David Riggan were united in marriage Sunday at 2 p.m. in the Bethel Baptist Church. The Rev. Norman Joyner performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fulton Briley of Bethel. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Richard Riggan of Greenville.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Donald Greene. Vocal selections performed by Greene of Bethel and Mike Morris of Vanceboro were "I.O.U.," "Through the Eyes of Love," "Let It Be Me" and "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal ivory gown of sheerganza and chantilly lace. The gown was fashioned with a modified Queen Anne neckline accented with lace encrusted with iridescents and a stand-up neck ruffle and featured a fitted natural waistline. The full bishop sleeves closed with ruffled cuffs encrusted with iridescents. The full skirt with an all lace redingote atop cascading center front ruffles flowed into an attached chapel train. Her walking length veil of silk illusion, bordered in lace was attached to a lace capulet etched with pearls and iridescents. She carried a bouquet of velvet pink roses, baby's breath and springer.

Gail Sutton of Stokes was honor attendant for her sister. She wore a formal gown of mauve batiste over peau taffeta which featured long full sleeves with cuffs that were edged with lace and Queen Anne neckline encrusted with lace and seed pearls. A tie sash of self-fabric enhanced the modified natural waistline and the full circular skirt was bordered in a ruffle flounce. She carried a clutch bouquet of purple miniature carnations, fuschia pom poms, rose astors and pink carnations.

Kathy Hooker, sister of the bride of Aurora, and Jenny Riggan, sister of the bridegroom of Greenville, were bridesmaids. Their gowns were of mauve flora batiste over peau taffeta and featured Victorian sleeves and a portrait neckline encrusted with lace and seed pearls. A self-fabric tie sash enhanced the waistline of the full gathered skirt that was bordered with a lace edged ruffle flounce. Their bouquets were similar to those of the honor attendant.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Joe Hooker of Aurora and Gerry Sutton of Stokes, brothers-in-law of the bride. Brandon Sutton, nephew of the bride, was junior usher.

Ring bearer was Robbie Vick of Aurora, nephew of the bride.

Joyce Riggan, sister of the bridegroom, presided at the register and Reid Moore distributed scrolls and rice bags.

MRS. RIGGAN

The wedding was directed by Donna Moore of Bethel.

The mother of the bride wore a rose lustreglo and chiffon gown fashioned with front bodice shirring.

The mother of the bridegroom chose a formal gown in lavender lustreglo with long sleeves. Each wore a cattleya orchid hand corsage.

Mrs. Willie Strickland of Lewiston, Mrs. Charles Barnes of Angier and Catherine Cottrell of Raleigh, grandmothers of the couple, were given corsages of sweetheart roses.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the church fellowship hall. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Coltrain. Punch was poured by Elizabeth Lewis and wedding cake was served by Dora Keel, aunt of the bride. The bridegroom's cake was served by Daphne Keel, cousin of the bride. Good-byes were said to Mr. and Mrs. Alvis Mewborn.

A rehearsal dinner was given by the parents of the bridegroom. After a wedding trip to Florida the couple will live in Greenville.

Dollar Saving Tips
The fall of the year is fine for dollar saving practices. Why not involve the entire family in a three months project? To do this the family should talk about the idea and build enthusiasm for it. Then decide how much money will be used and exactly what will be done, when and by whom. The following tips can help you decide what to do.

For wise spending, make a spending plan and follow it. Cut out spur-of-the-moment buying. In the plan include basic items needed and reduce convenience and luxury items. Reducing shopping trips to once a week or less.

Find the cheapest way to buy "respect" items — the things you use everyday or every week. For example: buy in bulk when cheaper, use day old bread, buy end-of-the-season items, time purchases for traditional sales or weekend specials and "brown-bag" lunch several times per week.

Recycle instead of buying a new item — alter clothing, refurbish furniture, repair and reuse items of clothing, furniture and furnishings.

Do-it-yourself. For example: routine car care, yard work and home repairs and maintenance. Borrow, rent or trade with neighbors instead of buying — special tools and equipment, books, children's toys and furniture.

Select low or no-cost fun and vacation activities, use tourist or guest houses instead of motels, purchase early and special-rate (super-saver) airline tickets, avoid expensive food stops on a car trip and take along packets of staple foods — cereals, crackers, peanut butter, fruits, etc.

Save on holiday gifts by making or buying throughout the year when there is a price advantage.

Eliminate waste by using things longer — wear clothes one more season, use car and appliances another year or more. The less frequently things are replaced, the less money is spent.

Cut out excessive use of energy in the home — use fans instead of air conditioners, use flow-restrictors or aerators to reduce water flow, use line drying for clothes, use dishwasher and laundry equipment at times when energy consumption is low, insulate hot water heater and keep thermostat on lowest practical setting, burn lights only when and where needed and lower thermostat.

Transportation cost is the second biggest budget item for most families. Follow a variety of practices to reduce costs — drive at lower speeds, reduce use of air conditioning, minimize weight carried in trunk, coordinate plans and reduce number of trips made, carpool and contact insurance company for lower insurance rate, keep tires inflated at proper levels and keep engine properly tuned.

Use idle time for profitable do-it-yourself activities where an economic savings can be realized.

Put to good use leftovers — food, paper, fabrics, buttons, zippers, etc. Practice healthful and safe living to avoid waste of money, time and human energy due to illness or accident.

Increase productivity by seeking opportunities and up-grade skills for job advancement or salary increase.

Learn to do your job more efficiently so there is more time for other things which are meaningful or can save you dollars.

Encourage all family members to take advantage of educational and skill development opportunities for employment or do-it-yourself money-saving activities.

Living a simpler lifestyle requires planning, decision-making and more cooperation among family members. But it can result in a calmer, happier family life and a feeling of greater value from the money you spend. It won't occur unless you take some special steps to identify why you can't live within your income and unless you make changes that will put less demand on financial resources. And, it won't occur unless you have the personal strength to stick with the decisions you have made.

Credit Card Fraud Is Now A Growth Industry

DEAR READERS: Have you been careless about protecting yourself against credit card thieves? I was, until I read the following illuminating facts in September's Working Woman magazine:

Credit card criminals are now committing 20,000 crimes a day and are hauling away a billion dollars a year!

Thomas F. Kelleher, vice president for security and fraud control of MasterCard, says, "Our research indicates that the dramatic increase in account-number abuse is in large part due to the participation and direction of sophisticated criminals, not the penny-ante thief of earlier times." From 1973 to 1982, credit card crime jumped 1,540 percent.

Unfortunately, the majority of offenders cannot be caught because of the lag time between fraudulent purchases and their discovery by consumers. "As long as the criminal is smart and throws the card away before the end of the month and doesn't use it for two billing periods, it's difficult to get him," a U.S. attorney is quoted as saying.

Protecting your account means taking precautions. Experts have this advice for cardholders:

— Never give your account number over the phone.

— Always ask for the carbon paper after you charge an item and make sure you or the cashier tears it up.

— Examine your statement monthly and make certain you have ordered everything listed and make sure that the amounts are accurate.

— Always check to be sure you get your own card back from a waiter or salesclerk.

— Don't let anyone memorize your card over your shoulder while you're signing it.

— Keep a list of all accounts and their numbers at home in a safe place and report all lost cards immediately.

I hope the above does as much for you as it did for me.

DEAR ABBY: On the last weekend in August, I went to Harris Beach, Ore., and met this really nice girl from Grants Pass, Ore. It was love at first sight, and we spent a fabulous weekend together. I never experienced anything like it in my life. The only bad thing about the weekend was that when we said goodbye, I didn't get her last name or address.

I would like to get in touch with her. Can you help me?

DEAR IN LOVE: Did you give her your name and address? If you did and she feels the same way about you, you will hear from her. If not, you're out of luck, Romeo.

Good Start

If saving lives was the bottom line, North Carolina's Safe Roads Act has scored points in its first year. But that is not enough. Provisions for immediate license revocation and allowing affidavits from Breathalyzer operators into evidence instead of requiring their operators to testify await a test of constitutionality.

There's another related problem: justice may be suffering because of court dockets jammed with DWI cases and a mounting backlog. With the greater importance attached to "driving while impaired" and the attendant tough sentences, it is important that fair standards of justice apply to all so charged.

The N.C. Safe Roads Act consolidated criminal offenses into one — driving while impaired, raising the drinking age for beer and wine to 19, imposing an immediate 10-day license suspension on drivers who fail a Breathalyzer test or refuse to take the test, and provides a maximum punishment of two years' imprisonment and a $2,000 fine.

People who persist in drinking and driving are very apt to fight those provisions regardless of statistically favorable results.

Comparison of the first nine months under the new law with the same nine months a year earlier show alcohol-related deaths dropped 12 percent despite a slight increase in highway deaths overall. Drunken driving arrests by the Highway Patrol fell from 33,106 under the old law to 29,009 and second-offense arrests plummeted from 2,987 to a mere 108. Alcohol-related accidents dropped more than 16 percent during the period, from 8,359 to 6,985.

Obviously, despite questions of constitutionality and jammed dockets, we have something good going for us.

Good Show

A photo in Tuesday's edition showed an unusual number of people standing in line at the Pitt County Board of Elections office to register for the Nov. 8 election.

Why so many on the final day to register and be eligible for the general election? We like to think that the turnout indicates an increased interest in this election in particular and government in general.

One thing that all parties and most politicians seem to agree on is the desirability of having every eligible citizen exercise his or her right to vote. It is at the very core of the democratic form of government and votes cast is the best indication that government has as to the wishes of the people.

Prospective voters lined up to place their names on the registration books Monday. And that is the kind of crowd gathering we all like to see.

Concessions May Not Be Upcoming

WASHINGTON — An unnoticed but revealing portion of President Reagan's tempered speech to the United Nations recently sent a premonitory chill into the Kremlin, duly reflected in Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko's speech three days later.

Without naming names, Reagan reminded the Soviets that in various treaties they have pledged "periodic and genuine elections," the right to join labor unions, to emigrate at will and to enjoy "freedom of opinion and expression."

Few honest words from an American president could more provoke the Kremlin than those. They showed that despite his ice-breaking meeting with Gromyko, Reagan is not an easy target for the arms-control bloc, both in Congress and within his own administration.

Indeed, despite possible moves toward serious U.S.-Soviet talks on the nuclear issue following Gromyko's visit here, Reagan remains unlikely to make the one-sided concessions pressed by some advisers who are eager for faster progress.

One insider described Reagan's low-key pressure on the Kremlin for revolutionary reforms as an "across-the-board whack" by a man likely to remain president during the next four years. That "whack" coincided with other unnoticed Reagan moves in the days leading up to and during the tense, suspenseful hours he and Secretary of State George Shultz spent with Gromyko, most of them reinforcing the image of an unchanging Reagan faithful to his tenets.

Because the heart of Soviet fear over Reagan's preparedness program involves space-based defense against Soviet missile attack, called "Star Wars," Shultz proposed a quick, clean concession by the U.S.: a moratorium on both "Star Wars" research and anti-satellite weapons in exchange for a Soviet return to the arms control table.

Reagan considered this proposition a bit too long for some hard-liners, but in the end came down against it. White House aides insist that this refusal casts the president's commitment to "Star Wars" in concrete. If so, Soviet strategy to force a U.S. "Star Wars" retreat in return for arms control talks looks futile — as of today. Reagan must become convinced that the Soviets will agree to large mutual cuts in the numbers of offensive missiles before he trims his "Star Wars" sails.

The president did make some decisions that were pleasing to Shultz and the State Department. He decided to delete a crack at Poland that survived several early drafts of his U.N. speech. But neither that deletion nor his much-criticized refusal to chastise Moscow for its invasion and continuing war in Afghanistan shows a change of Reagan temperament under the temptation of quickie arms control agreements.

Not all hard-liner fears are laid to rest. When the pressures of the arms-control bloc and the Europeans reach the boiling point, as they are bound to, Reagan may find himself unable to withstand the cry for concessions. Moreover, some backstairs talk has been heard inside the White House about making a "peace president" out of Reagan in a second term. The president himself, on rare occasions, has confided to insiders that he might be destined as the one American leader finally able to keep the Russians under control.

That presidential self-view may have been evident in the way he surprised his top advisers — Shultz, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and national security adviser Robert McFarlane — just before his Friday morning meeting with Gromyko. He had decided, he said, to spend a few minutes completely alone with Gromyko at the end of the formal conversations. He wanted to say a few things with no one else around.

What he said remains private, beyond the fact that he emphasized his hatred of war, having lived through four conflicts himself. But some hard-line officials close to the president saw disturbing implications. "Could it be," one asked us, "that Reagan will fall into that classic trap of thinking that he can tame the Russians by the force of his personality, where all others have failed?"

That remains to be seen. In the immediate aftermath of Reagan's grandest diplomatic stagecraft some realistic hard-liners worry more than they did before about the president being jostled and jerked by the arms-control bloc, but their view is tentative. For other Reaganites, Gromyko let the president steal the peace issue from Walter Mondale without losing his virtue.

Panel Considers 'Mentally Ill' Plea

—Paul O'Connor—

RALEIGH — The attempted assassination of President Reagan and the subsequent acquittal of assailant John Hinckley Jr. on the grounds that Hinckley was mentally ill raised a storm of protest two years ago. States around the country moved quickly to change their "not guilty by reason of insanity" defense.

In North Carolina, a study commission proposed a new verdict to be called "guilty, but mentally ill." Under this law, the mentally ill defendant who was guilty of committing an act would be shown mercy by the courts. In capital cases, life imprisonment was the most severe punishment with the death penalty being ruled out. In all cases, the defendant would be assigned first to the Department of Human Resources for treatment before being sent to prison.

Guilty but mentally ill never made it into North Carolina law. The 1983 General Assembly never gave the change much consideration. But it is back in the hopper now, included in the massive rewrite of criminal law which is being considered by the Criminal Code Committee.

During a recent committee meeting, the central question in the handling of mentally ill defendants was again debated. Should society punish someone for committing a crime while he is mentally ill?

At issue was the procedure for handling a felon convicted under this verdict, treated and cured by a state mental health facility. The defendant still has time to serve on his sentence, but he is no longer mentally ill. Does the state let him go, or does it punish him for a crime he committed when he was incapable of controlling himself?

Under a provision of the Guilty But Mentally Ill statute, a felon comes up for a new sentencing hearing when the doctors say he is well. The primary purpose of this hearing is to assure that DHR is not dumping inadequately treated, still mentally ill defendants on the prison system. But debate in the committee centered on what options should be open to the judge when he determines that a person is well again.

Some crimes in North Carolina carry minimum statutory sentences.

Life imprisonment, for example, means a defendant must spend at least 20 years in prison. As the Guilty But Mentally Ill statute is now proposed, when the judge agrees that a felon is fit to come out of the hospital, he must send the felon to prison to serve out at least the remainder of his minimum sentence. District attorneys and some legislators on the committee say that is needed to protect the public.

But Rep. Tim McDowell, D-Alamance, asks if that is fair. He thinks the judge ought to have more options at this point. "Under extraordinary circumstances, when the person's crime was a result of his mental illness and when the experts in the field can certify that the person is cured and can justify that the person is not a danger to society, I don't think you ought to continue punishing people because of their diseases," McDowell said. "If we agree that he is guilty but mentally ill then we almost agree that he is innocent because he is mentally ill."

McDowell proposes that the judge at this point have the option of releasing the defendant and put him under state supervision.

Rep. Joe Roberts, D-Gaston, disagrees: "I don't think the committee meant that someone who went out and committed a murder and then got treated could come out again in 90 days and have some other judge set him free."

McDowell agrees with Roberts on that example but still argues for giving the judge more options. It doesn't appear McDowell will win out in the end, however.

Public Forum

To the editor: The Ayatollah Khomeini has seen the light and converted to Christianity. That is to say, Jesse Helms has, in the fall of 1984, just before the elections, discovered that he has a real soft spot in his heart for the old folks. In the fall of 1984, that is.

How about 1979? On April 25 of that year, Helms voted against Meals on Wheels for 30,000 seniors each day. If his vote had been in the majority, it would have closed 20 percent of our senior centers.

How about 1981? On June 23, Helms voted against restoring the minimum benefit paid by Social Security.

How about 1981 again? On July 24, Helms voted against adjusting tax credits to benefit the elderly.

How about 1982? On May 19, Helms voted against protecting the elderly from rising out-of-pocket Medicare costs.

How about 1983? Helms introduced a bill to eliminate Social Security and replace it with private plans.

Now it is 1984. The fall of 1984. Just before election. Helms comes on television and says to the old folks: "I give you my word" to protect the people on Social Security.

We can only say back to Senator Helms what he says back to those who ask him an honest question to which he can't give an honest answer: "Bull!"

Strength For Today

"The very hairs of your head are all numbered." Thus said Jesus (Matt. 10:30; Luke 12:7).

This may seem to be a strange, unrelated, and even unimportant utterance of the Great Teacher. But it was an utterance of great significance. It was our Lord's way of saying that everything in the universe hangs together. From the smallest thing to the largest, all is one. The structure and growth of a hair, the rotation of the seasons, the movements of the planets — these are all tied together just as definitely as the smallest cell of our body is connected with every other cell.

We are living persons in a universe which teems with life. But the life on this planet is nothing compared with the life which must exist with God himself. God is life. God is love. And we are all a part of the vast existence over which God presides.

Recalling Those Who Came First

"Mr. President, I'm updating your biography for the final weeks of our campaign, and I just have a few questions to ask you, if you don't mind."

"Go right ahead."

"Okay, when you grew up you were quoted as saying your father was never a financial success, and while you didn't live on the other side of the tracks, you were in hearing distance of the train whistle. Can you explain this?"

"I would say it was all President Jimmy Carter's fault. You know his irresponsible fiscal policies brought on the 1929 stock market crash and the depression."

"Yes, sir. But you were a boy before the stock market crash and the depression."

"That's correct, but Carter got us into World War I, and when the boys came home there was inflation and high interest rates that led to the crash and the depression."

"Let's go on. You decided to go to Eureka College in Illinois. Why Eureka?"

"I really wanted to attend the University of Illinois. But there was this admission officer who turned me down."

"Can you remember his name?"

"Wait a minute, it will come to me. Now I've got it. His name was Carter...J. Carter."

"So you went to Eureka, played on the football team and majored in dramatics."

"I would have made all American, except one guy on the committee voted against me."

"Do you recall who it was?"

"I don't remember his name, but I think he was a peanut farmer from Georgia. He never voted for any player above the Mason Dixon line."

"You were a very good actor in school and your biggest desire was to go in to the theater. Why didn't you?"

"It was pretty hard to break into the business then because all the theaters in the Midwest were controlled by the Carter Brothers. I became a radio sports announcer instead. I was good at it but I really wanted to become a movie star. So I went to Hollywood. I applied at one studio for a job, but a casting director, a guy named Carter, told me I had no talent. Fortunately the Warner Brothers saw it another way and hire me for $200 a week."

"Where you made mostly 'B' movies?"

"That wasn't my fault. Jack Warner had a flunky working for him named Jimmy C., and he never put me in the real big ones. I don't begrudge him, because if I had made it as a great star, I would have never become president of the United States."

"Now let's go on to the war years. You spent all of it in the Air Force in Hollywood making films."

"I tried desperately to get assigned overseas. But I had a chicken commanding officer, a General Carter, and he wouldn't transfer me. I never forgave him for that."

"Moving along. After you were discharged you were made the head of the Screen Actors Guild, and became disenchanted because the Communists were trying to take it over."

"That's correct. I'll never forget one union leader who got control of the electricians, the musicians, the grips and the painters, and turned them all into Reds. You want his identity?"

"Don't tell me. I think I can guess. Were you prevented from getting good roles because of your anti-Communist stand?"

"Well, Carter didn't make it any easier on me."

"I have all the stuff on your working for GE and then going into politics and finally becoming governor of California. One last question..."

"Mr. President, excuse me for interrupting, but we have just received word from Beirut that our embassy was blown up by a suicide truck loaded with dynamite."

"Darn, I knew something like this would happen when my predecessor dismantled the CIA."

"Are we talking about the same person?"

"Who else? But in my statement to the press, let's not use any names." (c) 1984, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

White House Rules Out Cuts In S. Security

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's Democratic opponents don't take his word that he will keep hands off Social Security benefits if he wins a second term, saying he has broken that promise before.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes, in an abrupt policy switch prompted by a challenge from Walter F. Mondale, on Tuesday categorically ruled out any reductions or changes in Social Security benefits for present or future retirees.

And the president himself joined in today when he told reporters "I am terribly concerned about this demagoguery about Social Security" — a reference to Mondale's allegations.

"I've said over and over again that we're not going to back away from those people on Social Security now and in the future," he said at the White House just before leaving on a campaign trip to Michigan.

But Scott Widmeyer, a spokesman for Mondale, said on Tuesday: "That's the same promise he made in 1980 and broke in a string of broken promises following the 1980 election."

And House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., who has been hammering for three years at the politically sensitive issue that directly affects 36 million beneficiaries and millions more future retirees, dismissed Reagan's assurance as a promise "written in disappearing ink."

"The problem is not the wording of the promise but his failure to keep the promise," O'Neill said.

Reagan's standard position, reiterated as recently as his debate Sunday night with Mondale, had been that he would not try to cut benefits for the system's 36 million current recipients. But that did not rule out changes that could affect the millions of people who have paid into the system but are not yet receiving benefits.

Mondale, at a rally in Cincinnati, said he would reject any attempts to reduce anyone's Social Security benefits and challenged Reagan to do the same.

"I believe that Social Security is a moral commitment, not just to beneficiaries, but to those who are now paying into the system, and I will honor that commitment as president," Mondale told an overflow crowd at the Cincinnati Convention Center.

"I don't know which is worse — cutting benefits for people on Social Security or asking people to pay into Social Security for a whole lifetime and not giving them any benefits when the time comes to retire," Mondale said.

"What about the person who is 46 today and plans to retire? Can he count on Social Security? Of course not ... How do you plan a life if you don't know if that's around?"

The White House, which had been following a strategy of refusing to respond to Mondale, was quick with its reply on Tuesday.

"I am here to say that I have just spoken with the president, and Mondale ought to be ashamed," Speakes said. "He is out to frighten the elderly. The president will never stand for reduction in Social Security benefits for anybody who is now getting it or future recipients."

Former Sierra Club Leader Speaks For Hunt

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

"The main thing to remember about our efforts is that we are non-partisan, we endorse candidates in both parties," said Denny Shaffer, former national president of the Sierra Club. "We endorse candidates whom we feel are supporting positive environmental measures."

Shaffer was in Greenville Monday night as guest speaker at the October meeting of the Cypress Group of the Sierra Club of North Carolina. He was interviewed after the speech.

The Sierra Club of North Carolina has given the club's endorsement to Gov. Jim Hunt in his race against Sen. Jesse Helms for the U.S. Senate in the upcoming November election.

"By whatever viewpoint you look at it, Helms' record on voting for positive environmental measures has been abysmal," Shaffer declared. "All you need to do is to look at the record, it speaks for itself."

In an attempt to inform the public on Helms' environmental voting record as a senator, the North Carolina chapter of the Sierra Club has compiled a brochure that graphically outlines the tenor of Helms' viewpoints and votes on environmental issues.

"On major issues of national importance such as hazardous wastes, clean water, clean air, public land management and the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) budget," Shaffer pointed out, "Helms has without exception voted in favor of measures that are anti-environmental. You can depend on him to be consistent, in voting against what we, the Sierra Club membership, consider essential laws and measures to preserve our natural resources, our total environment."

The brochure, which Shaffer says is going to thousands of people all over the state, claims that Helms has "consistently voted in favor of commercial development of public lands, including strip mining, excessive timber cutting and gas and oil leasing" . . . that in the issue of clean air, Helms has "voted to allow utility companies, shifting from oil to coal, to increase their emissions of sulfur dioxide," (and) has "opposed federal legislation to control acid rain."

On issues directly affecting the North Carolina coast, the brochure claims that Helms has "supported policies that endanger our beaches, fisheries and other coastal resources," and "voted against controls on off-shore oil operations."

The brochure claims, in contrast, that Gov. Hunt "favors a future-oriented management plan of our natural resources, balancing economic development with the conservation of public lands," and that Hunt also "played a major role in bringing together the coalition of industry, environmentalists and government officials who wrote the 1984 NC Wilderness Bill."

Another point emphasized by Shaffer is that "we endorse a candidate only on the basis of environmental matters. For us, issues outside this field, such as education, foreign policy, and morality, for example, do not enter our consideration."

AWARD ... Project Exodus, a program in the Pitt County schools, received a Governor's Award for Excellence at a recent awards breakfast in Raleigh. Receiving the award from Gov. Jim Hunt is John McKnight (r), associate superintendent of the Pitt County schools. Also on hand for the presentation were Board of Education member Anne McGaughey and Project Exodus director Mary Alice Yarbrough.

Reagan's Age Becomes Campaign Issue

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats are saying President Reagan's performance in the presidential debate may be a sign of advancing age, but Republicans are shrugging it off as an "off night" compounded by poor staff work.

Politicians in both parties are watching whether Reagan's age will become an issue in the closing weeks of the presidential campaign.

Rep. John McCain, R-Ariz., said Tuesday that the strength of the age issue may depend on how Reagan does on Oct. 21, when he and Walter F. Mondale will debate a second time, this one devoted to defense and foreign policy.

Even James Lake, spokesman for the Reagan campaign committee, conceded the president had an "off night" on Sunday, but he denied it was a sign of age.

"Why he had an off night, I can't define for you," said Lake. "I can tell you it had nothing to do with his chronological age."

Asked if Reagan's age might become an issue, Lake said, "Absolutely not."

At 73, Reagan is the oldest man ever to serve as president. If re-elected he would be two weeks short of 78 at the end of his second term.

Neither Mondale nor his staff were raising the age issue, but other Democrats were becoming less hesitant.

"He looked old, acted old," said Rep. Tony Coelho of California, who flew with Mondale on Monday from Louisville, Ky., site of the debate, to New York City.

Rep. Claude Pepper of Florida, 84 the oldest member of Congress, said, "There were lapses in the thinking apparently and the alertness of the president during the debate that might well be attributed to his increasing years."

The president's age also was being discussed in the media.

The lead story in Tuesday's Wall Street Journal was headlined: "New Question in Race: Is Oldest President Now Showing His Age."

David Broder, political columnist for the Washington Post, wrote that Reagan's debate performance "let the age issue emerge as it had not done in any of his previous campaigns."

The Wall Street Journal quoted two medical experts on geriatrics as saying it would be appropriate for Reagan to take a test to determine if age has caused any mental impairment associated with senility.

Asked if had undergone any such testing or if any were planned, White House spokesman Mark Weinberg said, "The answer is no to both questions."

At a news conference Tuesday, Coelho said Reagan's age "is an issue the Democrats are tentative about. What we had on Sunday night was that the president's performance was weak. He rambled and he had difficulty recalling."

The California congressman said the debate led to public comment on the age issue. "It's always been there," he said "but it hasn't been out front and I think we see it now more than we did before."

McCain agreed that Reagan appeared hesitant but said he thought the major reason was the president "was overbriefed on facts and numbers and wasn't Reagan ... He wanted to say these numbers and figures to appear as if he had control of the details."

But, the Arizona Republican added, Reagan's strong point is talking about the nation's "overall prospect and image."

Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois, who was one of Reagan's rivals for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination, said, "I think his staff gathered around him and tried to fill him with so much statistical data that they overloaded the system and it's all so totally irrelevant in a debate because nobody remembers a single one of those figures coming out of it."

Like McCain, Crane said Reagan is at his best talking about "the lofty issues, the vision for America, the traditional pep talk he's been giving for four years."

Sen. Nancy Landon Kassebaum of Kansas was another Republican who said she thought Mondale scored well in the debate. But she said Tuesday she did not believe the president's age would be a campaign issue.

"I think the president at his age is better than some people I know at 50," she said. Mrs. Kassebaum is the daughter of Alf Landon, the Republican presidential candidate in 1936, who now is 97.

The one politician who never has hesitated to mention the president's age is Reagan himself.

Reagan uses humor to defuse the age issue. He recently said that when Andrew Jackson left the White House in 1836 at age 70 he felt "pretty trim and fit and vigorous" and then added, "I know, he told me."

When a reporter asked the president last spring about a rumor he might quit midway through a second term, he replied: "What the devil would a young fellow like me do if I quit the job? No, there's never been any such talk at all."

WAITING ON THE ROAR — Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale waits for the orar of a jet plane to subside before speaking at a tarmac press conference at Pittsburgh International Airport. Mondale was to address a rally in downtown Pittsburgh today, stressing the advantage he says his campaign has gained since the first debate in the presidential race. (AP Laserphoto)

Mondale Says Race 'Red Hot'

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Walter F. Mondale, declaring his campaign has become "red hot" since the Louisville debate, says he has smoked out President Reagan on the touchy issue of possible cuts for future recipients of Social Security.

After reacting on Social Security on Tuesday, Reagan was heading today for Michigan, where he was addressing a group of Catholic high school students outside Detroit.

As the Social Security issue simmered, Mondale campaigned

Tuesday with new energy provided by the Sunday matchup with Reagan and Mondale's favorable reviews for his performance.

Mondale talked to a noontime Detroit rally attended by about 8,000 people, then flew to Pittsburgh where he was attending a similar event today.

"I think this campaign is really red hot," Mondale said. "I think we are on a roll. I think we have a chance to win."

From Pittsburgh, Mondale

planned to fly to New York for a meeting in the Waldorf-Astoria with Prime Ministers Shimon Peres of Israel, who met with Reagan on Tuesday.

Mondale also planned to address a fund-raising dinner in New York and to be in Florida on Thursday night when his running mate Geraldine Ferraro debates Vice President George Bush.

Bush and Ms. Ferraro were both preparing for their debate.

Reagan Blasts Tax Proposals

WARREN, Mich. (AP) — President Reagan charged today that Walter F. Mondale has a "knee-jerk reaction in favor of higher taxes" and said his Democratic opponent would weaken America's defenses.

In remarks prepared for delivery to an audience at the Ukrainian Cultural Center here, Reagan, without naming Mondale, hit hard on the tax issue, saying "every time his knee jerks, we get kicked."

Reagan said citizens should get credit for the economic recovery, adding that "once we got government out of the way, the American people, just like they always have, got on with the job of making this a better country for all of us."

The president also lashed out against Mondale on the issue of defense spending.

"My opponent in this campaign has made a career out of weakening America's armed forces," Reagan said. "He's always found one reason or another for opposing vital weapons systems and the modernization of our forces."

Mondale opposed the B-1 bomber and has questioned the necessity for the MX missile.

On taxes, the former vice president sought in last Sunday's Louisville, Ky., debate to assure Americans that people making $25,000 a year or less would be spared any increases.

Mondale asserted that his proposal "protects everybody from $25,000 a year or less against any tax increases and treats those $70,000 and under in a way that is more beneficial than the way the president proposes with a sales tax or a flat tax."

Jurors Selected For Westmoreland Trial

NEW YORK (AP) — Retired Gen. William C. Westmoreland, who led American forces through four critical years of the Vietnam War, gave a cold shoulder to an antiwar activist before watching as 12 jurors were picked to hear his $120 million libel suit against CBS.

Westmoreland says the 1982 "CBS Reports" special, "The Uncounted Enemy: A Vietnam Deception," was false and malicious. The program charged Westmoreland with deliberately underestimating enemy troop strength in 1967 to maintain political support for the war.

Choosing from a panel of 100 potential jurors, U.S. District Judge Pierre N. Leval on Tuesday selected six men and six women to hear the case. The judge said three alternate jurors would likely be chosen this morning, and opening arguments could begin later in the day.

Jurors were questioned extensively about their attitudes toward the press and the military, and particularly about CBS News and the Vietnam War. None of the jurors picked had served in Vietnam, although one had a son in the Army.

Before the jury selection, the 70-year-old Westmoreland was confronted in a hallway of the courthouse by Daniel Ellsberg, the anti-war activist who leaked the so-called "Pentagon Papers" to the media in 1971.

Ellsberg said that he accused the retired general of deceiving the public and told him: "You should have known better at the time and should not have done this."

"He said something to me but I didn't answer," Westmoreland said when asked about the incident.

Ellsberg is not involved in the litigation.

Lawyers for CBS, after failing to have the case thrown out before trial, have said they will defend the accuracy of the broadcast. But they also maintain the mere fact that Westmoreland's lawsuit exists could have "chilling effects" on news organizations reporting on the public acts of high officials.

Westmoreland's lawyers counter the broadcast was a personal attack on the general's reputation, not an impersonal report on his official conduct. A ruling that he cannot sue

CBS would "cede unlimited, unchecked power to the media," they said in court papers.

Westmoreland, who is asking for $40 million for damage to his reputation and $80 million to punish the network, has said he will donate any money he collects to charity.

In addition to CBS, Westmoreland is suing CBS correspondent Mike Wallace, who narrated "The Uncounted Enemy;" George Crile, who produced it; and Sam Adams, a former CIA analyst who became a paid consultant for CBS. Only Crile attended Tuesday's court session and he, like Westmoreland, refused to comment on the case.

Westmoreland commanded American forces in Vietnam from 1964, when a small battle in the Gulf of Tonkin helped trigger the escalation of the war, until 1968, when Communist forces launched the massive Tet offensive and President Lyndon Johnson abandoned plans to run for re-election.

The CBS documentary reported a 1967 dispute between Westmoreland's staff, which estimated the strength of opposing forces at under 300,000 soldiers, and an analyst for the CIA who put the figure at nearly twice that level.

CBS charged that Westmoreland insisted on using the lower figure in order to mislead the president, Congress and the American public into believing that the war could be won. The network said a "conspiracy ... to suppress and alter critical intelligence" left U.S. troops unprepared for the strength of the Tet offensive.

Westmoreland contends there was no plot to minimize the estimates of enemy strength and that Johnson was aware of the intelligence dispute.

To win his libel case Westmoreland must not only prove the CBS statements about his conduct were untrue, but that they were reported with "malice" — that the network either knew the charges were false or reported the allegations with "reckless disregard" of whether they were false.

Westmoreland, Wallace and Crile are all expected to testify.

LEAVES COURTHOUSE — Retired Army Gen. William C. Westmoreland leaves federal court in New York Tuesday after watching 12 jurors selected to hear his suit against CBS. Westmoreland, who head American forces in Vietnam, has sued the television network over a 1982 documentary in which it disputed headcounts made by U.S. forces of casualties in the war. (AP Laserphoto)

Father Files Suit In Mortuary Dispute

DENVER (AP) — A man who found his son's body twisted in its side "in a grotesque fashion" in a coffin with a blood-stained pillow is suing an undertaker for $1.1 million, saying the sight caused the family severe emotional shock.

"One lady screamed and ran out of the church (when she saw the body)," said James M. DeRose, attorney for Frank J. Amato, who filed suit Tuesday in District Court.

The incident occurred in January 1983 at a Catholic church on the eve of a funeral for Michael Amato.

"The mortuary people accused the pallbearers of dropping the casket on the way up to the church, but the father had been following them and said that couldn't have happened," DeRose said.

"It's a pretty sensitive matter. What if it happened to you if you went down to look at your mother, your father, a brother, a son or so on?" said Russell E. Vigil, another attorney for Amato.

Named in the suit is McConaty's Boulevard Mortuaries and a collection agency, D.E.B. Adjustment Co., which filed a suit against the father earlier over nonpayment of a $4,669.89 funeral bill.

Harold Woods, general manager for McConaty's, declined to discuss the suit. He said the mortuary hadn't seen a copy of the complaint and wouldn't discuss the matter until it had been reviewed.

The lawsuit accused McConaty's of "gross negligence" and "reckless disregard" for the feelings of the family and asked for $100,000 in actual damages and $1 million in punitive damages.

Amato, whose son died Jan. 21, 1983, said in the suit that he and other family members arrived at the church for a rosary service on the evening before the burial and were shocked when they looked in the coffin.

NASA May Extend Shuttle Trip By Day

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Challenger's astronauts photographed oil spilled from ships sunk in the Iran-Iraq war and continued their scientific research today while Mission Control officials weighed the idea of keeping the shuttle in orbit an extra day to avoid Hurricane Josephine.

If the flight were extended from eight to nine days and the weather was good, the spaceship would land at Cape Canaveral on Sunday. The additional time also would allow the crew to recoup some scientific data not gathered because of earlier problems.

Flight director Cleon Lacey said Tuesday that Josephine was heading in the direction of the Cape and that NASA was considering either extending the flight a day or diverting Challenger to a landing at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

The shuttle routinely carries enough supplies to stay in orbit an extra two or three days if necessary.

The National Weather Service said today the storm is moving very slowly north to northwest, but said its future course is uncertain.

"If the weather is good, we'll get in there," said Challenger commander Robert Crippen.

While officials watched the storm, the five men and two women aboard the spaceship continued experiments in their orbiting lab.

Mission Control directed them today to take pictures of oil spills near Kharg Island in the Persian Gulf. Several oil tankers have been sunk in that area during the war between Iran and Iraq. A study of ocean oil spills is one of the goals of the mission.

The crew also aimed a radar camera at selected ground features, conducted medical tests, surveyed the oceans and began preparations for the first space walk by an American woman.

Astronauts Kathy Sullivan and David Leestma are scheduled to step into the ship's open cargo bay Thursday to tie down a troublesome antenna and practice techniques for refueling satellites in orbit.

NASA said that if the mission were extended a day, the space walk would be put off until Friday. That's because once the antenna is stowed it can no longer be used to transmit radar camera data to a tracking satellite, which in turn relays the information to Earth.

A good deal of radar data was not gathered early in the flight because of problems with the antenna. An extra day would allow some catchup work.

Justice Reports Threat

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI is looking into a threat on the life of Supreme Court Justice Harry Blackmun, purportedly from a radical anti-abortion group known as The Army of God, according to a federal law enforcement source.

The source, who declined to be identified, said Tuesday that the justice who wrote the court's decision upholding the legality of abortions received the threat by mail.

Blackmun turned it over to Supreme Court police, who referred it to the FBI for investigation, the source said Tuesday night. There was no information on the exact wording of the threatening letter, which a Marquette University theology professor said bore his false signature.

Justice Department spokesman Tom DeCair said, "We don't talk about investigations even to confirm or deny their existence." FBI spokesman Ed Gooderham had no immediate comment.

Daniel C. Maguire, a lay Roman Catholic theologian who argues that abortion is in many instances morally justified, said Tuesday that he was questioned about the letter at his Milwaukee home last Friday by two FBI agents.

Maguire said the agents told him Blackmun was sent "a very menacing letter... a very strong letter" that threatened his life and was signed "D. Maguire, Marquette University."

The former Roman Catholic priest, whom Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro quotes when she says the church is "not monolithic" on abortion, said the FBI agents told him they believed The Army of God had sent the letter.

The little-known group has claimed responsibility for some of the growing number of attacks on abortion clinics around the nation. Three members were convicted for the kidnapping last year of an Illinois abortion clinic director.

Homeless Win Right To Vote

NEW YORK (AP) — Ruling it is unconstitutional to bar the homeless from voting, a federal judge has ordered the Board of Elections to allow individuals to register to vote even if they live on the streets.

The decision, handed down Tuesday evening, was hailed as "a victory" by Robert Hayes, counsel for the Coalition for the Homeless, a privately supported advocacy group.

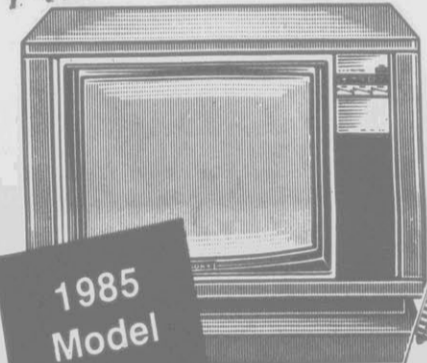

The decision "demonstrates clearly that homeless people are full-fledged citizens with the same constitutional rights as everyone else," said Hayes.

U.S. District Judge Mary Johnson Lowe's decision came in a two-month-old class action suit filed by Peter Dryer, a 32-year-old man who claims he lost his job because of the Reagan administration's budget cuts and has been living in a New York City park since 1981.

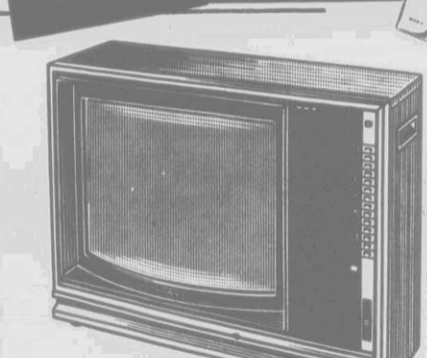

There are approximately 150,000 homeless in the state — 60,000 in New York City, which plans to spend $100 million this year to provide food and shelter for them.

Congress Keeps Government Flush, But Stays Around

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — For the fourth time in a week, Congress has passed emergency legislation to keep the government running while it wrangles over a vital money bill. But key negotiators say if a deal can be struck over water projects, "everything will fall into place" and "we can all go home."
House and Senate conferees, ready to meet again today, traded proposals Tuesday but failed to solve disputes stalling the bill needed to keep the government solvent.
The battles over aid to Nicaraguan rebels, defense items and water projects are keeping grumpy lawmakers in Washington when most would rather be campaigning.
Tuesday night, for the fourth time in a week, both houses passed stopgap legislation by voice votes to keep the government running and avoid another shutdown of federal offices. The bill went to the White House.

Some 500,000 federal workers were sent home last Thursday when President Reagan closed down the government for half a day. The new stopgap money bill, valid until midnight Thursday, specified that those workers will be paid for the time they were absent.
The money bill was not the only measure keeping Congress in Washington. The Senate bogged down Tuesday over a House-passed bill adding another $250 billion to the government's borrowing authority — lifting the line of credit to $1.823 trillion.
The debt measure is designed to meet the government's credit needs until the end of next September. Treasury Department officials have said the current borrowing ceiling of $1.573 trillion will be reached by the end of the week.

But both houses were successful in approving and sending to the president a comprehensive international trade bill — which passed the House 386-1 and the Senate by voice vote.
The legislation would extend until 1993 tariff concessions to 140 poor countries and authorize the president to negotiate with Israel the United States' first full free trade agreement.
Speaking of the long-term catch-all money bill, Rep. Silvio O. Conte of Massachusetts, ranking Republican on the House Appropriations Committee, told the House: "If we can settle the public works part of that bill, everything will fall into place and we can all go home and I wish you all a lot of luck in your campaigns."

Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, assistant majority leader, said the dispute over water projects was not just a partisan problem — even though President Reagan has threatened to veto the bill authorizing $18 billion in new projects.
"Interest in water exists both in the House and Senate," said Stevens, referring to the Republican-run Senate and Democrat-dominated House.
While water projects are traditional "pork barrel" legislation, many lawmakers say more than just political plums are at stake.

Congressional negotiators have been trying since last week — when leaders had hoped to adjourn — to work out a compromise spending package to provide about $470 billion for the remainder of the fiscal year that began Oct. 1.

Husband Sets Wife On Fire

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A man set fire to his wife after watching a TV movie about a woman who burned her abusive husband to death, then cried "No!" and "Help!" as she burned, said a neighbor who helped douse the flames.
Police said they would decide on formal charges today against the husband of Sharon Brandt, 37.
Her mother, Margaret Fuhrer of Milwaukee, said Tuesday that her daughter was not expected to live. She was listed in critical condition at St. Mary's Burn Center with burns over 95 percent of her body.
Mrs. Brandt's 39-year-old husband, whose name was being withheld pending formal charges, was arrested on suspicion of attempted murder Monday and held on $60,000 bond after he splashed gasoline on his wife and set her on fire with a cigarette lighter, police said.
A neighbor of the Brandts, 17-year-old Gerald R. Baade Jr., said he was getting ready for bed Monday night when he heard the husband outside yelling "No!" over and over and then "Help!"
Baade said he plunged a bucket into a neighbor's pool and doused the flames engulfing Mrs. Brandt. The husband grabbed the bucket and kept pouring water over his wife, saying they had to keep her cool, Baade said.
The man took one of the sons by the arm and forced him to look, saying "Look at your mother now," Baade said Tuesday.
The husband, who Baade said drives a truck for a construction company and operates an upholstery services, suffered minor burns to his hands and neck. He appeared Tuesday in the District Attorney's Office wearing fatigue pants, combat boots, a hospital gown and bandages on his hands.
The husband told police he had watched "The Burning Bed," a television movie broadcast by NBC, Deputy Inspector Rudolph Will said.
"He told us he watched the show and decided to scare his wife with fire," an arresting officer said in a police complaint.
The couple's two boys, Christopher, 11, and Daniel, 13, witnessed the incident.

New Blood Treatment Helpful

BALTIMORE (AP) — The duration of a paralyzing nervous disorder that affects 3,500 to 4,000 Americans each year apparently can be shortened by replacing blood plasma with an antibody-free fluid, researchers reported.

"This is the first effective therapy that modifies the course of the disease," Dr. Guy McKhann of Johns Hopkins told the American Neurological Association on Tuesday.

Guillain-Barre syndrome, which is not contagious, can result in paralysis within days of diagnosis.

"It is a disease where the patient's own immune system, a mechanism we usually use to fight disease, abruptly gets misdirected and attacks the peripheral nerves," resulting in paralysis, said Dr. John Griffin, also of Hopkins.

Its cause is unknown, but about 60 percent of the cases occur after an acute viral infection, Griffin said.

The disease apparently causes antibodies to attack myelin sheaths, which insulate nerve cells and permit electrical conduction, said McKhann. The damage lessens the nerves' ability to carry electrical impulses that permit movement. Using plasmapheresis, a process that replaces the plasma, or fluid portion of the blood, with a solution containing body salts and albumen, doctors at 21 hospitals treated 122 patients in the acute stages of the disorder, McKhann and Griffin said. The process reduces the number of antibodies in the blood.

Plasma was replaced in patients in the experimental group six times over two weeks beginning in the first or second stages of the disease, McKhann said. The results were compared with those of 123 patients receiving regular medical care, he said.

Patients who had been unable to walk before the plasmapheresis were mobile within 53 days, while patients who were not treated regained mobility in 85 days. Plasmapheresis patients who required a respirator were able to breathe unaided in 29 days, compared with 40 days for the control group.

Patients who had been on respirators and received the new treatment were able to walk in 97 days, compared with 170 days for the control group.

Researchers Say Cancer Will Stay

NEW YORK (AP) — Because cancer seems to stem from mutations in genes that are important to the human body, the disease probably never will be eradicated, but research may help improve diagnosis and treatment, say top cancer researchers.

"I don't think it's likely, on the basis of our present trajectory (of research), to eliminate the process" of cancer development, Dr. Paul Marks, president of the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center, said Tuesday.

Cancer seems to stem from mutations in special genes that appear important in normal life, and "there's no way we're going to completely abolish mutations," said researcher William Hayward of Sloan-Kettering.

The alternative, Marks, Hayward and other cancer specialists said at the Bristol-Myers Symposium on Cancer Research, is research to improve prevention, diagnosis and treatment of cancer.

Some two dozen cancer genes have been found, and while one researcher said he believes scientists will uncover only a few more, others said whole classes of them may have eluded detection so far.

Genes direct the activity of all cells. Two kinds of cancer-related genes have been found, one kind in some viruses, the other in normal cells of animals.

Viral "oncogenes" cause cancer when the virus infects a cell. But those found in normal animal cells are slightly different from their viral cousins, and they appear to promote cancer only when altered slightly.

The cell genes, sometimes called "proto-oncogenes," seem to play a Jekyll-and-Hyde role, according to J. Michael Bishop, professor of microbiology and immunology at the University of California in San Francisco.

In normal cells they appear to be essential to the species, perhaps as part of the genetic wiring for growth and development," Bishop said. But once altered, they may promote cancer by issuing too many chemical instructions to the cell, or giving the wrong instructions. Evidence has been found for both hypotheses.

The alterations result from invasion of a virus or from environmental factors like radiation and cigarette smoking, Hayward said. Some experiments also suggest that a cancer gene can be activated by moving around in the chromosomes, and that cancer may result from a "one-two punch" that involves more than one cancer gene.

HARMONY — President Reagan shakes hands with the new prime minister of Israel, Shimon Peres, Tuesday after the two leaders made departure statements at the White House. After their meeting, Peres said Reagan was a "true friend" and that relations between the United States and Israel had reached a "new level of harmony." (AP Laserphoto)

Peres Says U.S.-Israeli Ties At 'New Level Of Harmony'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres is winding up three days of talks here with a pledge of U.S. economic support and lavish praise for President Reagan as "a true friend."

The new Israeli leader declared Tuesday after a two-hour White House meeting that relations with the United States "have reached a new level of harmony and understanding."

The reason: assurances from Reagan of increased American trade and investment, and possibly a boost in economic aid after a U.S.-Israeli commission makes its report.

The commission was set up during the Peres visit, with instructions to recommend ways to help Israel curb inflation now galloping past 400 percent a year.

"I found in the White House a true friend of Israel who understands her problems and dilemmas," an obviously pleased Peres said.

He said he had not asked for "any immediate cash" but "if the need will arise to raise it we shall approach the United States."

Israel already ranks first among all nations in U.S. aid, with the total for the fiscal year just started at $2.6 billion in economic and military support.

Reagan said he had agreed with Peres to explore "ways to enhance Israel's growth and development prospects" with increased aid and trade, as well as "structural adjustments."

The last evidently referred to a plan to use American dollars to back the weak Israeli shekel in international credit markets.

Other measures being considered include reviving a 1981 proposal to have the U.S. Sixth Fleet replenished in Israel and buying spare parts for American jet fighters there.

Israel already is assured of an economic shot in the arm through an unprecedented free-trade agreement with the United States. Peres hopes it will expand Israeli exports from $11 billion to a new yearly high of $19 billion.

"We made clear our willingness to continue our dialogue and to cooperate the best way we can," Reagan said as he saw Peres off.

A senior U.S. official told reporters later "the appropriate American mix" for aiding the Israeli economy "has to be carefully thought through."

Indicating the administration is prepared to boost economic assistance beyond this year's total of $1.2 billion, the official said "we don't see any problems we can't deal with."

The official, who spoke only on condition he not be identified, added "we would hope to be able to make recommendations when Congress returns" in January.

The new coalition government in Jerusalem has cut $1 billion from its $23 billion budget and imposed several austerity measures.

Bob Hope Tour Of Britain Set

LONDON (AP) — What do you buy a 3-week-old boy who's got everything? Even comedian Bob Hope couldn't come up with an answer.

Hope, 81, arrived in London on Tuesday for his first British tour in 30 years saying he had trouble finding a suitable gift for Prince Harry, the second son of Prince Charles and Princess Diana.

"I mean the kid owns Wales already," Hope said, adding he planned a few gags about the young prince when his one-man show opens tonight at the Dominion Theater.

Hope, who was born in London and came with his family to the United States in 1907, said he arranged to play St. David's Hall in Cardiff, Wales, on Monday so he could visit the house in Barry where his mother, Avis, was born.

"I have a lot of family over here," he said. "I want to tell them to get the teapot warmed up for me because I'm coming 'round for my free meal."

Hope's weeklong tour includes seven shows, with one day off to play golf with the U.S. ambassador to Britain, Charles Price II.

AT&T ANNOUNCES PLANS TO CHANGE RATES ON YOUR INTERNATIONAL LONG DISTANCE CALLS.

AT&T has filed a plan with the Federal Communications Commission to restructure rates for International Long Distance Service, excluding Canada, Mexico, and Cuba. The restructure will be effective in 45 days and will result in rate decreases and increases that bring more closely in line the price of international calls and the cost incurred for completing those calls. The purpose of the filing is to provide price incentives that will increase customer calling during off-peak usage periods, thereby encouraging better utilization of international telephone network capacity.

- HERE ARE THE PROPOSED CHANGES IN INTERNATIONAL LONG DISTANCE SERVICE
- Establish 13 country specific rate schedules to be added to world region specific rate schedules that already exist. (At present, rate schedules are only world region specific).
 - Eliminate one of the world region rate structures, reducing the number from 9 to 8.
 - Introduce new off-peak, discount prices to selected countries and regions.
 - Revise the hours for peak and off-peak rates to selected countries.

Rebels Accept Peace Offer

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — President Jose Napoleon Duarte returned home to cheers after leftist rebels accepted his offer for peace talks and called the guerrillas "separated brothers" who should rejoin their countrymen.

About 1,000 people shouted, "Duarte! Duarte! Duarte!" as he arrived from New York on Tuesday, the day after making his offer during a speech to the U.N. General Assembly. Today, he meets with U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz.

The rebels, meanwhile, announced their acceptance of Duarte's offer to meet next Monday in La Palma, a mountain town 50 miles north of San Salvador in an area where guerrillas move freely.

"I am going to the La Palma meeting with a feeling of agreement and peace, to open my arms to our separated brothers who left one day for the mountains," Duarte told the crowd which greeted him in San Salvador. "Now all Salvadorans say to them, 'Come back.'"

The agreement to talk is the most significant step so far toward a possible peace in the five-year war between the guerrillas and U.S.-backed Salvadoran governments.

In Mexico City, however, a rebel leader said acceptance of the offer "does not in any way mean we are laying down our arms."

"The only thing that could disarm us is the United States army and that would be after spending a lot of time and money," said Salvador Samoyoa, who contended that El Salvador continues to suffer from serious economic and human rights problems.

"Up until now and as long as we do not see other events, Duarte's proposal to begin talks is just a publicity show with other political purposes," Samoyoa said.

Honduran Plans Talks On Peace

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Honduran foreign minister has invited four other Central American nations to a meeting in his capital Oct. 19 to discuss ways to strengthen a proposed regional peace treaty already accepted by Nicaragua.

Edgardo Paz Barnica issued the invitation to the foreign ministers of Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, and Nicaragua during an address Tuesday to the U.N. General Assembly. He told a news conference later that Costa Rica had accepted.

The Central American foreign ministers last met Sept. 7 in Panama, along with those of the Contadora nations — Colombia, Mexico, Panama, and Venezuela. The Contadora Group is named for the resort island where the four nations first met.

Paz Barnica said Honduras agreed with the main points of the Contadora Group's peace proposal, "but the act doesn't say when these acts are to take place, so we will suggest that a calendar be established immediately in order to achieve the reduction of arms, of troops, and of foreign advisers."

"Honduras is willing to start these programs for arms reductions tomorrow if it is possible — as long as it is reciprocal. And if there are North American advisers, they can leave Honduras. But they can also leave El Salvador. And the Soviets, the Cubans, the Bulgarians, the Libyans, can also leave Nicaragua," he said.

In a speech Monday to the General Assembly, President Jose Napoleon Duarte of El Salvador suggested a meeting of the five Central American countries "to correct the deficiencies" of the peace treaty proposal. But he did not offer a date, nor issue a formal call for such a gathering.

The proposed Honduran meeting would come four days after an Oct. 15 deadline for the Central American nations to make their final recommendations on the Contadora Act for Peace and Cooperation in Central America.

The act calls for a commitment to cease operations against neighboring countries, to reduce arms and troops, to exclude foreign advisers and to guarantee civil rights, including free elections.

Nicaragua has said it accepts the draft unconditionally and wants no amendments, but the four other Central American nations and the United States have said they want changes in the draft treaty.

A U.S. official said last week that Washington was concerned about the security aspects of the treaty.

Paz Barnica was questioned during the news conference about Honduras-U.S. relations, especially in light of an interview published

Tuesday in which he said his nation was seeking to redefine its relationship with the United States to de-emphasize military ties.

"With the United States we have and we have had and we will continue having fraternal relationship of cooperation and friendship," he said.

But he said Honduras "is evaluating" economic and security ties with the United States.

"There are no frictions and no arguments," he said, "but there is a determination from the Honduran government to strengthen the capability to express its own opinions and its own needs."

Gunmen Kidnap Diplomat

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Two gunmen kidnapped Spain's ambassador Pedro Manuel de Aristegui in mostly Moslem west Beirut today, a Spanish Embassy spokeswoman reported.

The assailants stopped de Aristegui's car in front of the Spanish mission in west Beirut's Ramlet al-Baida neighborhood, forced him at gunpoint into a green Mercedes and sped off, said the spokeswoman, who spoke on condition that she not be identified.

She said the abduction occurred at 3:50 p.m. (8:50 EDT).

There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the abduction, which came after the Jihad Islami, or Islamic holy war, extremist group threatened to strike at Spanish institutions if two Shiite Moslem Lebanese were not released from jail in Spain.

The organization, believed to be loyal to Iran's spiritual and political leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, has claimed responsibility for devastating bombing attacks on the U.S. Embassy and U.S. military headquarters in Beirut.

Spanish authorities arrested the two Shiite Moslem Lebanese on charges of shooting a Libyan Embassy employee in Madrid. Jihad Islami identified the two as guerrillas belonging to the organization.

A telephone caller told a Western news agency earlier:

"Spain has nothing to do with this strife, but on behalf of our comrades in the Sadr Brigades we ask Spain to release immediately Mohammed Abbas Ramad and Mustafa Ali Khalil or otherwise we will take the necessary measures against it."

Imam Mousa Sadr, the spiritual head of Lebanon's Shiite Community, disappeared during a visit to Libya in 1978. Shiite Zealots have since attacked Libyan diplomats, claiming the Libyan government is holding Sadr.

After the threat, the Spanish Embassy moved all seven diplomats operating in west Beirut to live at de Aristegui's residence in the Christian suburb of Hadath. But it said some diplomats would continue to work in west Beirut from time to time.

De Aristegui was heading home in his chauffeured car when he was kidnapped today, the embassy spokeswoman said. She said his Lebanese driver was left behind by the gunmen.

American Is Killed In Crash

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A U.S.-made F-20 fighter plane crashed today during a demonstration flight staged for South Korean dignitaries, killing its American test pilot, a spokesman for the plane's manufacturer said.

The spokesman for Northrop Corp., which developed the Tigershark plane in 1982, said the cause of the crash was under investigation and the name of the pilot, a Northrop employee, was being withheld pending notification of relatives.

The accident occurred in mid-afternoon near Suwon air base, 20 miles south of Seoul.

The Yonhap News Agency, in a dispatch from the crash site, said the plane crashed while the pilot was test-firing a machine gun while about 100 yards above the ground during the final portion of the demonstration.

About 100 Korean officials reportedly were watching the show. Among them were Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Kim In-kee, Kim Yung-sun, chairman of the National Assembly's defense committee, and Cho Choong-hoon, chairman of Korea Air, formerly called Korean Air Lines.

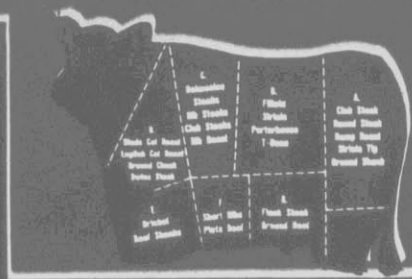

Two of the F-20 Tigershark planes were brought to South Korea on the last stop of a promotional tour that included demonstration flights in 19 countries. The other plane was on the ground for inspection by the Korean officials at the time of the crash.

Hitler Plaque

BRAUNAU, Austria (AP) — Rejecting a government appeal, a district court upheld a ruling against placing an anti-fascist plaque on the house where Nazi dictator Adolf Hitler was born, the lawyer who fought for the ban said.

Florian Lackner, representing the house proprietor, said a district court in nearby Ried had turned down the federal government's legal challenge, putting the case to rest.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, showing no sign of breaking out of its recent sluggish trend.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 1.10 to 1,174.03 in the first half hour.

Gainers and losers ran about even in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Interest rates have been moving downward in recent days. But doubts have persisted on Wall Street that a significant drop in rates can occur in the face of a heavy schedule of borrowing by the federal government.

Stock traders have also been unsettled by a steady barrage of earnings disappointments that have hit many individual issues hard.

That has raised the question of how much benefit lower interest rates would be to the market if corporate earnings generally come down at the same time.

Baxter Travenol Laboratories led the active list in early trading, down 1/8 at 13 1/2. The company reported third quarter earnings of 28 cents a share, against 41 cents in the comparable period a year ago.

Among other pharmaceutical stocks, Abbott Laboratories slipped 1/8 to 38 3/8 and Pfizer was off 1/8 at 34 3/8.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrials fell 2.76 to 1,175.13.

Losers led gainers by about 7 to 6 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 76.84 million shares, up from 46.36 million in the previous session when many banks and other businesses were closed in observance of Columbus Day.

water/sewer service, then it would have to basically reopen the matter and hear Moore's comments again.

The board denied the request by Rawl, saying members felt a decision has already been made.

Rawl said, "I feel we were a victim of circumstances."

In other business, the commission heard a report from Malcolm Green, electric department superintendent, explaining GUC's role in providing support given to Southport during hurricane "Dianna".

"This was part of our mutual aid agreement we share with some 60 to 70 municipalities," Green said.

Four crews were sent from Greenville and assisted the small southeastern town with restoring power. Green also noted the town was very appreciative of the help during the crisis.

Green reported on load management operations for the past month saying all of the switches ordered had been received and approximately 300 applications were on backlog.

A program by Ed Askew, support services director, and stores personnel was presented before the commission. Stores Manager Myrl Paramore, Donnie Allen, chief stores clerk, and Azell Payton, stock crew leader, explained their duties and methods of purchasing supplies and maintaining stock. The stores department has 11 employees.

John Ferren, assistant general manager, presented to the commission the first annual report of the commission saying 300 copies were presented and would be placed in the various places in Greenville. The report consisted of pictures, facts and figures of the commission during the 1983-84 year of operations.

The commission also read and discussed the amendments to the water/sewer extension policy effective immediately. The additions state the commission's policy on extension of existing sewer and water mains. The commission approved the changes immediately.

In additional business before the commission, consideration of amendments to the Power Agency Sales agreement was tabled until a time in which paragraph could be discussed. City Manager Gial Meeks commented there were paragraphs that delegated too much authority to the power agency, and she would like them defined better. Commission members said they would review the material with city attorneys.

Bids for a new sludge truck for the new wastewater treatment plant were also approved by the commission. The low bid, of $127,777 was presented by North Carolina Equipment Company, but was not accepted because the firm would not guarantee the 250 day delivery time nor the $250/day penalty for delay in delivery. The next lowest bid was by Jet Vac Sanitary Service, for $131,964. The commission awarded the contract to Jet Vac Sanitary Service.

The commission also passed a resolution declaring certain equipment and vehicles surplus and would be held for auction Saturday, November 10, at 10 a.m. at the GUC Operations Center, 801 Mumford Road.

Offshore Drilling Bill Is Stalled

Passage of offshore drilling legislation that would mean up to $7.74 million a year for North Carolina coastal management programs appears unlikely after midwestern senators began a filibuster to block the bill.

"The smell of pork is in the air," said Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., who led opponents Tuesday saying they were prepared to debate the measure "at some length."

The federal government now gets all revenues from leasing offshore tracts for development of oil or gas.

Decisions Give Tigers 3-2 Win

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Captain had his hook out. San Diego had his ace in the hole. But Sparky Anderson went against his own instincts, left Jack Morris in — and the Detroit Tigers' right-hander dug himself out and buried the Padres.

San Diego Manager Dick Williams, who likewise has a propensity to reach for the hook and yank a body out of his bullpen at the slightest provocation, decided Tuesday night to give Mark Thurmond a little extra time.

And when Thurmond reached back for a little extra, he found not the bullets that Morris was firing but a bomb that blew up in his face.

While Morris struck out nine batters — three in the sixth inning, Thurmond ran out of luck in the fifth as Larry Herndon deposited a high 3-1 fastball into the right field seats at San Diego Jack Murphy Stadium, giving the Tigers a 3-2 victory in the opening game of the World Series.

It continues tonight with Detroit's Dan Petry, 18-8, opposing the Padres' Ed Whitson, 14-8.

Morris was hopping on and off the rim of disaster all game, from the first inning, when the Padres scored their two runs on Terry Kennedy's double, to the sixth, when Graig Nettles and Kennedy singled with nobody out.

By then, Anderson had had half his bullpen warming up at one time or another. "I move pretty quick and I was getting ready," said Captain Hook, whose habit of waving in relievers at a moment's notice followed him from his championship years in Cincinnati.

Bobby Brown was the Padres' next batter. His job: sacrifice the runners ahead. Twice he bunted foul. Then he waved half-heartedly at a bullet of a fastball.

One out.

"When he struck out the first guy, he started throwing after that," Anderson said. "Jack normally can come out throwing that way. Tonight I think he was a little nervous in the first inning."

Now there was one out and still two on in the fifth. Carmelo Martinez was next — Morris' next victim. Three strikes.

Two outs. Up came Garry Templeton. Three strikes.

Inning over. Morris had survived. "If one more man would've got on that inning," Anderson said, "he would've been gone — and we would've lost!"

"He has a lot of confidence in me, so I didn't think he would pull me," Morris said. "Then again, he has a lot of confidence in the bullpen."

So does Williams, what with middle relievers like Andy Hawkins and Dave Dravecky. The Padres got here on middle relief, no starter going more than five innings in the National League playoffs against the Chicago Cubs.

Williams had Hawkins and Dravecky up and throwing in the fourth inning, when the Tigers put a pair of runners on base with two away before Lou Whitaker fled out.

Williams had them up again in the fifth, when Kirk Gibson walked with one out and wound up as Thurmond's second victim of a pickoff throw, the first one Alan Trammell after he singled home Detroit's first-inning run.

Williams still had them warming up when Lance Parrish pulled a ground-rule double down the left field line on the eighth full count which Thurmond had to deal with.

Williams had them up — they were warm, watching the game, their arms folded — when Herndon homered on the 112th of Thurmond's 117 pitches.

"He was going to come out at the end of that inning, anyway," Williams said. "He just came out one hitter too late."

"He gave in on the 3-1 pitch, got the ball up over the plate that Herndon went with. Our book on Herndon is that he's a fastball hitter. It was just an unfortunate pitch. If Mark gets it down, it probably wouldn't have happened."

That still left five innings for the Padres to catch up. Even after Morris' zip, zip, zip in the sixth, they still had their chances, especially in the seventh, when Kurt Bevacqua, the designated hitter, led off with a drive that whistled past the Detroit bullpen and rattled around in the right field corner, an easy double.

Whitaker, the Tigers' second baseman, sprinted into short right field to take the throw from Gibson.

"When the fans gave that roar, I think that kind of allowed me to know what was going on," Whitaker said. "Usually, you'd think the man was only going to go to second base. There's a rule that says, 'Don't go into third base sliding, especially when you're down.' When the crowd started to roar, I knew he was going for third base... so when I got the ball I just turned and threw. And I'd like to thank the fans for helping."

Bevacqua helped a bit, too. As he rounded second base, he glanced over his left shoulder at Gibson — and he tripped. He was an easy out.

"I just stumbled," he said. "It's just as easy as that. If I didn't stumble, I make it easy. Why did I stumble? I just don't know... Don't forget, you have to give Gibson and Whitaker plenty of credit. They made excellent throws and if the relays aren't good, I'm in there."

Instead, he was out. So, for all intents and purposes, were the Padres. They had only one more baserunner, Tony Gwynn, who walked with two away in the seventh and was thrown out trying to steal.

Good Workout For Hurricane

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Offensive coordinator Steve Logan was upbeat after the Tulsa Golden Hurricane went through a two-hour workout in full pads in preparation for Saturday night's football game with East Carolina.

"We had a very spirited practice today and the kids really got after it," Logan said after Monday's session. "Their attitude was excellent as we work on the first stage of our game plan for East Carolina."

Held out of practice were linebacker Xavier Warren, with a thigh bruise, and noseguard Bruce Pike, who has a lacerated forehead.

Defensive back Tim Gordon, linebacker Greg Thomas and running back Gordon Brown returned to practice.

Defensive back Marcus Anderson reinjured his hamstring and offensive tackle Dave Smith was limited because of an ear infection.

Chargers Next To Challenge Cougars

By JIMMY DUPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

When SouthWest Edgecombe star running back Jerome Staton was ejected along with Farmville Central's Dennis Tripp in the early stages of the game last Friday, Jaguar fans may have been encouraged.

But in the long run, Farmville Central may have missed its big tight end and linebacker more than the Cougars did their 211-yard per game runner.

After holding SouthWest Edgecombe scoreless in the first half, Ron Mayo scored a pair of touchdowns and kicked a field goal to lift the Cougars to a 19-8 victory over Farmville.

"It was a very disheartening and disappointing loss after we controlled the tempo of the game most of the time," Farmville Coach Dixon Sauls said. "Eventually, (Staton and Tripp) swung at each other. That certainly hurt SouthWest Edgecombe, but it hurt us too. We were prepared to play against SouthWest with Staton in the game.

"We lost one of our leading tacklers on defense; it was a factor, but I don't know if it changed the outcome of the game."

Farmville quarterback Bobby Evans completed 10 out of 17 passes for 87, but the Jaguars managed just 88 yards rushing. Andre Vines caught eight passes for 75 yards against SouthWest, while Jeff Vail rushed 23 times for 96 yards.

The Jags hope to improve on their offensive output this week when they entertain Eastern Carolina 3-A rival Greene Central. The Rams defeated C.B. Aycock 35-0 last Friday to improve to 2-0 in the conference and 4-2 overall.

"We had some limited success with the short passing game," Sauls said. "I think we showed improvement on our passing game, and I hope that will be a factor in our remaining games."

"The difficulty for us is to build up to the intensity level of last week. After a big conference loss, I'm concerned about our ability to come back emotionally."

Greene Central has recovered from the preseason loss of running back Anthony Thompson, who transferred to Wilson Fike. Quarterback Ken Warren and tight end Patrick Moore lead the Rams' offense which rebounded after a pair of early-season losses.

"They've done an excellent job of adjusting," Sauls said. "Their offense is similar to ours. We've played against so many wishbone teams, it'll be a challenge to get ready to face another offense. Their offense is more versatile than the wishbone."

"Greene Central is the most important game on our schedule right now; I'm sure they'll be motivated."

In other games involving Pitt County schools, D.H. Conley opens its Coastal 3-A Conference action hosting White Oak, North Pitt travels to C.B. Aycock and Ayden-Grifton visits SouthWest Edgecombe.

Jamesville, ranked ninth in the Associated Press 1-A/2-A poll, hosts Chocowinity, Roanoke travels to Bertie and Washington is at Ahoskie in other area games.

D.H. CONLEY
Ayden-Grifton defeated Conley 13-0 to spoil Homecoming festivities last week, but now the Viking coaches attempt to get the team ready for its first Coastal clash.

"It just boiled down to we didn't execute when we needed to," Conley Coach Donnie Bunn said of the loss to Ayden-Grifton. "We had, in the first half, three scoring opportunities. That's what was so disappointing to me."

"They were quick and aggressive, and we had anticipated that."

"We took the opening kickoff and drove down the field, then threw it right at them. We got to the 14 and one time to the eight, hit a receiver in the end zone but they dropped the pass. Then we missed a field goal that was long enough but just a little wide."

"That had to pump up Ayden-Grifton, and as a result we went in 0-0 at halftime."

On top of the mental adjustments the Vikings have to make, as many as five players may be sidelined against White Oak. Guards Alton Mobley and William Mobley are out for the week, while running back Ricky Farrow is questionable with a hip pointer.

"We had to improvise on defense after those injuries," Bunn said. "Ayden-Grifton ran to the same hole after we lost the tackle."

"But I felt good about the way the boys stepped in. We might have to make some adjustments this week to fill the holes."

Bunn has already decided to move linebacker Donald Blackwell to right tackle, and other changes may be made before Friday.

"Bobby Ray is very quick at running back for White Oak, and they have a tremendous line," Bunn said. "They try to break him off tackle or outside. We felt like we needed to move Donald Blackwell to shore up the other side of the line."

"Our guys were down after losing to Ayden-Grifton," Bunn said. "We could have gone into the conference schedule 4-1, but we've stressed this week that the conference is what we've been working toward all year. We've got to do positive things early to get some momentum."

AYDEN-GRIFTON
If there's a team in eastern North Carolina that can't afford to rest on its laurels, it's got to be the Chargers of Ayden-Grifton.

The 13-0 shutout over Pitt County rival D.H. Conley gave the Chargers a boost and improved their record to 4-1 overall, but Ayden-Grifton travels to SouthWest Edgecombe — ranked second in the state by the Associated Press poll.

"That was a very big win for us against Conley," Ayden-Grifton Coach Dwight Tart said. "We really didn't get on track offensively in the first half; our line didn't give us consistent blocks. But we picked up the pace in the second half."

Indeed, running back Kelvin Harris scored a pair of second-half touchdowns to provide the only points the Chargers needed.

"Defensively, we played a very strong game," Tart said. "We didn't contain the pass as well as I'd like, but we punished them pretty good for running the ball."

"They had chances to score and didn't get it in the end zone. I felt very fortunate at halftime not to be down 14-0."

SouthWest Edgecombe averages 30 points per game on offense while giving up just eight, but Tart said he felt the teams would be more evenly matched than it appears statistically.

"We'll just go after them like we usually do," Tart said. "We'll go with what we have and make adjustments from there."

"Naturally, they like to have the ball in Staton's hands — he's their big runner. But they have a very balanced attack; Jerome just happens to overshadow the rest of their runners."

"We have the same situation here. Kelvin Harris overshadows Jesse Hooker and Mike Dixon, but I'm not afraid to put the ball in their hands in any situation."

"We want to make them throw more than they have been, but we've got to execute our assignments. I think they'll try to shut my running game down and make us throw. We've been close on a lot of passes but haven't had much success.

"Both teams have good offenses, so I think it'll come down to whose defense can stop whose offense. They'll be little bigger, but I think we'll be just a little quicker. I feel like we have a real good chance to win if we play hard and don't give up the big plays."

NORTH PITT
It's not a game that the state championship hinges upon, but the North Pitt Panthers and C.B. Aycock are attempting to break out of the winless category Friday at Pikeville.

The teams own a combined 0-11 record in 1984, and Aycock has managed just three points in six outings. The latest thrashing for the Falcons was a 35-0 loss to Greene Central, while Southern Nash whipped North Pitt 33-6.

"We couldn't stop (Southern Nash's) running game," North Pitt Coach Larry Bolger said. "Defensively, we sat back and waited for them to come to us, and we were disappointed with that. We're not big and physical; we can't afford to sit back and wait."

"We stopped ourselves on offense either with turnovers or penalties in their 30 a couple of times. We moved the ball on them, although they helped out with penalties a couple of times."

The Panthers and Falcons are both 0-2 against Eastern Carolina 3-A foes, and Bolger hopes North Pitt will break out of the slump at Aycock.

"They're young and inexperienced just like we are," Bolger said. "We watched them when they played at Rosewood; they have some hesitation, but they're big physically. We've been beaten by a couple of the same teams, but it looked like we moved the ball better"

"I think (a win) would definitely be a big confidence builder," Bolger said. "We're trying to prepare for them just like we do other teams. I think they realize if we're going to win, this is the week to do it."

Jordan-Matthews Takes Lead In 2-A/1A Rankings

By RICK SCOPPE
Associated Press Writer

Jordan-Matthews grabbed the top spot among the combined 2-A and 1-A class in this week's Associated Press high school football poll while the other two No. 1 squads remained on top.

Jordan-Matthews, which ran its unbeaten record to five straight on Friday with a 45-0 victory over Chatham, captured the top spot following Randleman's 6-3 victory over then-No. 1 SouthWest Guilford.

Jordan-Matthews received 14 first-place votes and a total of 208 votes to edge Randleman, which moved from fourth to second with five first-place votes and 189 points. Maiden, 5-0, remained third with two first-place votes and 175 points and Fuquay-Varina, 5-0, moved up one position to No. 4 with 139 points. SouthWest Guilford, 5-1, edged Wallace-Rose Hill, 5-0, for fifth by two votes — 104 to 102.

North Stanly, 6-0, one of four new teams in this week's poll, is eighth, followed by Jamesville, 5-0, and Forest Hills, 4-1, which was unranked a week ago but received one first-place vote this week.

In the 4-A division, Greensboro Page remained on top following its 49-13 victory over Greensboro Grimsley, 4-1, which dropped from No. 4 to No. 9 this week.

Page, 5-0, received 21 of 22 first-place votes and 219 points overall to edge Richmond County, 5-0, which jumped three spots to No. 2 with 211 points. Wilson Fike, 5-0, received the other first-place vote and 201 points but fell from second to third, while Henderson Vance, 5-0, fell one spot to fourth with 165 points.

Fayetteville Byrd, 4-1, is No. 5 followed by Pinecrest, 5-0, which jumped two spots, Morganton Freedom, 4-1, East Burke, 4-1, which moved from 10th to No. 8, Grimsley and Fayetteville Westover, 4-1, which was unranked last week but received 27 votes this week.

Kannapolis Brown, undefeated in six games, remained on top among the 3-A classification as the top four teams remained unchanged. Brown received 20 first-place votes and 227 points overall while SouthWest Edgecombe, 6-0, was second with two first-place votes and 215 points.

Third-ranked West Henderson, 5-0, received one first-place vote and 173 points, followed by East Wake, 6-0, with 126 points. South Point, 5-0, jumped one spot to fifth with 117 points followed by Clinton, 4-0-1, Eden Morehead, 5-0, Waynes Tuscola, 4-1, Shelby, 4-1, and Tarboro, 4-1, which was unranked a week ago.

New Leaders In Reflector Preps

As can be expected this early in the season, there were a number of changes among the Daily Reflector's Prep Rankings after last weekend's game.

Greensboro Page, which leads in the Associated Press poll, moves from the third to first spot this week, replacing Vance County, which had an open date.

Vance tumbles to third, while Richmond County holds to its second spot and Wilson Fike remains in fourth.

The biggest jump is made by Westover, unranked last week, now in fifth place.

Kannapolis and SouthWest Edgecombe are deadlocked for first place in the 3-A ranks, as the Cougars pull even with last week's leader.

Jordan-Matthews continues to head the 2-A's, while Wallace-Rose Hill, tied for first last week, slips back one point to second place.

Rosman, third last week in the 1-A's, takes over first place, while unranked Jamesville, is now tied for second.

Points are awarded for each victory a team claims, and picks up addition points for each team its victims win. Beating a 4-A opponent counts more than beating a lower ranked foe.

The 4-A's see the most newcomers, with eight listed among the 17 teams ranked (seven tied for 10th place). There are two newcomers in the 3-A ranks, two in the 2-A, and two among

Rose Kickers Top Eagles

Rose High School's soccer team won its eighth straight match yesterday, downing Northeastern 4-2.

Both of the Northeastern goals came against the second unit as Coach Will Wiberg subbed freely after Rose had taken a 2-0 lead in the contest.

Tad Castellow got the opening goal for Rose eight minutes into the game, with an assist by Jordy Smith. Travis King then scored off a free kick, heading the ball into the goal at the 12 minute mark, assisted by Jim Carter.

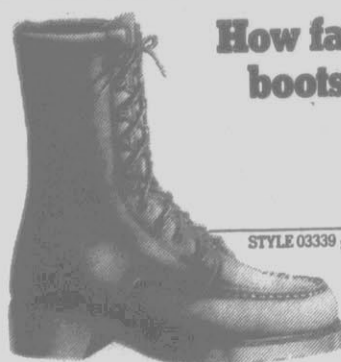

Clarence Morris scored for Northeastern 22 minutes into the half, while Paul Sullivan came back to score for Rose five minutes later, assisted by Smith.

Ten minutes into the second half, Smith scored on his own, his tenth goal of the year, with Carl Wille assisting. Northeastern scored the final goal at the 67 minute mark, as Jason Value scored.

"Overall, I was pleased with the outcome of the game," Wiberg said, "but our intensity was lacking, especially in the second half. We are going to have to play the full 90 minutes if we are to beat Rocky Mount."

Wiberg cited the play of Carter, Scott Davis, Steve Childers and goalie Lee Lewis, who didn't allow a goal in 13 minutes of play at the end of the match.

Now 9-1 overall and 6-0 in Big East play, Rose travels to Rocky Mount next Tuesday for its next outing.

'Defensive Genius' Not Accurate

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Some thoughts from Bill Arnsparger, who was the brains behind the Miami Dolphins' defense for 10 of the past 13 years before leaving to become LSU's new head coach:

On being labeled a 'defensive genius' — "I think it's a term used rather loosely and I laugh a little when someone asks about it. When you have success, people apply names to it. I've been fortunate to have some success in the defensive side of the game and the term 'defensive genius' is something the media came up with."

On the teaching aspects of college football (Arnsparger was an assistant coach for 14 years at Miami of Ohio, Ohio State, Kentucky and Tulane before going to the pros 20 years ago) compared to the NFL: "I'm not sure we do any more teaching here than in the NFL. In the pros, you constantly review the players on their assignments. I really haven't been conscious of spending any more time teaching football here than I did in the pros."

An art scholarship at the University of Georgia bears the name of Coach Vince Dooley. It began when Dooley, who holds a Master's Degree in history, enrolled in an art appreciation course last spring.

During the spring quarter, a reunion of Dooley's first 20 teams was held in Athens — Georgia, that is. A significant amount of the funds collected during the reunion was turned over, at Dooley's request, to the art department for use as a scholarship. And, according to Francis Ruzicka, head of the art department, the initial donation is only the beginning.

"With this initial contribution, a fund has been established with the University of Georgia Foundation," he explained. "We hope this will be the springboard for a long-range, significant endowment fund. The scholarship is a unique and precedent-setting expression of support for the visual arts. I can't recall another instance in which an athletic organization manifested a concern for art and art students in this manner."

Gary Zimmerman, who won the Morris Trophy last fall as the Pacific-10 Conference's outstanding offensive lineman and went on to play with the Los Angeles Express of the United States Football League, is the first former University of Oregon athlete to contribute a fully endowed scholarship to his alma mater.

Zimmerman, a third-team All-American guard, donated $50,000, which has been established in an endowment fund. The interest earned each year will represent the cost of a football scholarship at Oregon. Athletic Director Bill Byrne said Zimmerman earmarked the gift to be divided equally each year among the training room, the weight room and the scholarship fund.

"Because of the training room, he (Zimmerman) was able to stay healthy and get where he is," said Coach Rich Brooks. "Because of the weight room, he was able to attain what he has as a professional football player, and the scholarship enabled him to receive an education. This is the ultimate a former player can do for his school."

Oklahoma is one of the few universities to install what has become known as a "think tank." The Dallas Cowboys have two such tanks and use them to help players relax, to concentrate on assignments, to discipline themselves, to avoid mental errors and to help rehabilitate injuries.

The flotation tank is an enclosed chamber filled with approximately 10 inches of warm, saturated solution of epsom salts — a solution so dense that even the thinnest person floats supine with the entire body at or near the surface of the water.

The buoyancy counteracts the effects of gravity, giving the floater a sensation of weightlessness. The chamber is silent and pitch-black. In the absence of sensory input, the floater feels detached, free, at peace.

Researchers have discovered a wide range of educational and therapeutic uses for the tank, including pain relief, stress reduction, increased creativity, problem solving, smoking cessation, weight reduction, accelerated learning and increased feelings of self-confidence and self-control.

Kansas lineman Quintin Schonewise on football in his native Nebraska: "I know this — college football is one game in 49 states and another game in the other one."

And Kansas Coach Mike Gottfried on the Nebraska-Oklahoma domination of the Big Eight: "I can't help but think about how many opposing coaches they've forced into the insurance business."

And this from Kansas State quarterback Stan Weber: "Winning isn't just football. If you go out and win 11 games and then flunk out of school at the end of the season, you're all losers."

Alabama is 1-4 this year, 9-8 over-all. In his senior year, Perkins, a wide receiver, was voted the Atlanta Touchdown Club's Back of the Year over Heisman Trophy winner Steve Spurrier of Florida and was selected the Birmingham Quarterback Club's SEC Lineman of the Year.

"We'll work our way out of this, I'll guarantee you that," Perkins says of Alabama's worst start since 1957.

Oilers Trade Campbell SCOREBOARD

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The New Orleans Saints have acquired running back Earl Campbell from the Houston Oilers in a trade for a 1985 first round draft pick, giving the Saints two Heisman Trophy winners with Campbell and running back George Rogers.

"There's room enough in New Orleans for me and Rogers," Campbell said after the swap was announced Tuesday.

"What this does is give us two great backs," said Coach Bum Phillips, who was coach of the Oilers when he got Campbell in 1978.

Under Phillips, Campbell led the National Football League in rushing in 1978-80.

Phillips, sacked by the Oilers in 1980, picked up Rogers, the 1980 Heisman Trophy winner at South Carolina, in his first year with the Saints as the No. 1 draft choice of 1981. Campbell won the trophy in 1977 at the University of Texas.

Phillips said Campbell would report to camp today, and play against Los Angeles on Sunday.

"Obviously, we are glad to get him," Phillips said. "I've never had too many good players. This trade gives us a heck of a backfield."

"I doubt if he and George (Rogers) would play in the same backfield in too many situations, but they might. Earl is a tailback in the I-formation. That's what he does best."

Campbell, 5-11, and 238 pounds, started the season with 8,296 yards on 1,883 carries for a 4.4-yard average, but has just 278 yards on 96 carries this season, for a 2.9-yard average.

Both the Saints and Oilers said the other team initiated the trade.

The Saints said the Oilers came up with the offer Tuesday — the deadline for NFL trades.

The Oilers said the Saints had called several times to see if Campbell was available and the offer for a first-round pick was too good to turn down.

"I believe this trade is in the best interest of both the Oilers and Earl because it gives us the opportunity to select an outstanding young player next year and it gives Earl the chance at this stage of his career to hopefully be bound for the playoffs in 1984," said Ladd Herzog, the Oilers' general manager.

Herzog said Campbell's trade had nothing to do with the former All Pro's inability to fit into Houston's one-back offense.

"I don't think the offense had anything to do with the trade of Earl Campbell," Herzog said. "What we tried to do was best for the organization."

"It was good for Earl, too. He now has a chance to go to a team that believes in the I-formation."

Oiler Coach Hugh Campbell, struggling at 0-6 in his first year in the NFL, said, "It hurts to see him go. But I'm glad to see him go where he will have a coach that will take great care of him."

The trade came as a surprise because the running back position is one of the few spots on the Saints' roster that is well-staffed by experienced, healthy people.

Team Takes Ayden Event

The team of Jimmy Walls, Gene Hemby, Doris Moseley and Don Phillips took first place in a SuperBall with One Lady tournament held at the Ayden Golf and Country Club recently.

The foursome finished the day with a 60, 12 under par, winning the event by four strokes.

Ayden also held its annual Parent-Child Tournament. In the 13-and-over age group, Brian and Tom Heath won with an 87 for the 18 hole event. Jeremy and Jim Shadle finished second. Eric and William Nelson won the 11-12 age group. They had a 47 for nine holes, while Josh and Tom Dickens finished second.

In the 8-10 age group, Chris and Walter Claybrook had a 36 over seven holes to finish first. Williams and Bill Johnson were the runners-up. Jarrett and Susan Moore won the 6-7 age group with a 36 over five holes. Jonathan and Jerry Clark were second. Todd and Tim Smith won the five and under group with a 19 over three holes. Kelly and Paul Andrews finished second.

The club recently had an unusual occurrence at the par three 17th hole. A foursome approached the hole and one golfer hit the green with three others off target.

First up, Gwen Merritt, ten feet short of the green, chipped in for a birdie. Then, C.C. Little, in the trap, blasted out and also rolled it into the cup — another birdie. He was followed by Red Huffham, also in the same trap — and the same results — a birdie.

All that left the fourth member of the group — who shall forever remain nameless — quite shaken. He three-putted.

Goldsboro Loses Bid To Merge Schools

RICHMOND (AP) — A federal appeals court has ruled that if the city of Goldsboro, N.C., has a problem with a racially imbalanced school system, it is not up to neighboring Wayne County to solve it.

The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld Tuesday the action of U.S. District Judge Franklin T. Dupree Jr. in blocking Goldsboro's efforts to force a consolidation of city and county schools.

In a suit filed in July 1981, the city school board said a result of the county school board's refusal to merge the two systems was to maintain racially discriminatory schools in both jurisdictions.

In June 1983, Dupree dismissed the case, saying he had found no intentional racial discriminatory act or failure to act on the part of Wayne County which caused racial discrimination in Goldsboro schools.

Goldsboro, completely surrounded by Wayne County, had in 1982 a school system in which nearly 78 percent of the students were black, compared to a 31 percent black system in Wayne County.

Dupree noted in his ruling that although the percentage of black students in Goldsboro schools has increased, the quality of education has not suffered.

He noted also that both the city and county are operating desegregated systems and merger could cause hardship to Wayne County students who might be assigned to schools outside their immediate communities.

Goldsboro contended that Wayne County caused white flight from the city school system by establishing "white haven" schools and by opposing certain public housing in the county.

In upholding Dupree, the appeals court said it was reluctant in desegregation cases to disturb the decision of a lower court judge who was "better able to separate the wheat from the chaff than we can do with only a cold record before us."

While acknowledging "there is evidence of discriminatory intent in the present case," the court said there is also evidence to the contrary that must be given equal weight.

It concluded that the racial imbalance in the Goldsboro schools is due to demographic changes more than anything Wayne County has done or not done.

Among these demographic changes, it cited the end of the baby boom, a nationwide exodus from cities to suburbs and the flourishing of private academies for white students.

"The county board has done nothing to produce segregation in Goldsboro," the court said.

"An independent school district which has not caused segregation in a neighboring independent district has no duty to rectify a racial imbalance in the other district," it added.

The court acknowledged that Goldsboro has a problem.

"Yet, its problem is one beyond our power to correct. We are not at present charged with a responsibility to remedy problems caused by demography and private racism," it said.

Housing Aid Is Available

By The Associated Press
Residents of coastal North Carolina who were victims of Hurricane Diana could be eligible for temporary housing assistance, according to a federal official.

"We have a program tailored to provide several types of assistance to eligible families whose homes are not livable due to damage inflicted by the hurricane," said Paul Hall, Federal Coordinating Officer for the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Hall said assistance includes grants for minimal home repairs, money for renting houses or, as a last resort, government-owned mobile homes.

"In this case, it appears the majority of assistance we provide will be minimal home repairs," said Mike Polny, director of the Temporary Housing Program.

The deadline for applying for assistance is Nov. 20, Hall said.

Diana struck southeastern North Carolina on Sept. 13, causing more than $70 million in damage.

Turned Back

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — A Dutch man and woman turned back after coming within 820 feet of the summit of Mount Everest in a Dutch climbing team's second unsuccessful attempt to reach the top of the world's highest mountain.

The Nepal Tourism Ministry, quoting a radio message from the base camp, said that Mariska Mourik, 26, and Bart Vos, 33, were unable to negotiate the "Hillary Step" just below the 29,028-foot peak.

Palsied Victim Exercises Her Right To Cast Ballot

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — Cynthia Phillips, serving a life sentence locked within her own crippled body, has registered to vote. She sees no excuse not to exercise her constitutional rights.

Miss Phillips, a 20-year-old victim of cerebral palsy, is unable to walk or talk or move her arms. She communicates through the awkward syntax of a talking machine, which she operates with the movements of her head.

On Nov. 6 Miss Phillips will go to the polling place at Green Valley community center in Avery County and, with a little help to mark the ballot, make her choices in the elections.

The oldest of three children — her brother Jim attends Appalachian State University, and Alan is in Avery High School — Miss Phillips has shared, for years in the family's love for politics.

Last Tuesday her great-aunt Sybil Thompson, the voter registrar for the Green Valley section of Avery County, came to the Phillips' home to register Miss Phillips. She held Miss Phillips' right hand on the Bible as she administered the oath, and later helped her to mark the registration paper.

And just like a typical daughter in the rebellious years, Miss Phillips decided not to take her mother's advice on party affiliation.

Her mother, Vivien Phillips, watched the proceedings and then said in surprise, "Despite all my good advice she registered Democratic. She just plain and simply, as her daddy says, is a hard-headed woman."

Miss Phillips said her interest lies more in local elections than in national matters. However, the two candidates for her U.S. congressional district, James McClure Clarke and Bill Hendon, have visited the home seeking her support in the upcoming election. She did not give either candidate a firm commitment.

Mrs. Phillips expects that her daughter will do as the rest of the family does and change party affiliations freely, depending on the candidates and issues in local and state elections.

Miss Phillips has been fortunate in being included in good natured and wide-ranging family discussions and in enjoying the gracious surroundings afforded by her parents' lumber mill. But no amount of love can erase the difficulties she faces in trying to communicate without her own voice, in seeing the world without moving.

IN THE STATE

Jones To Keep Up Jetty Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — An "uprising by environmentalists" is to blame for the failure of the U.S. Senate to consider a major wetlands acquisition bill that contains authorization to construct two $100 million jetties in Oregon Inlet, a North Carolina congressman says.

First District Rep. Walter B. Jones, D-N.C. said Tuesday he was "a little disappointed" by the failure of the Senate to act.

Jones, chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, steered the legislation through the House last month. It was included in a larger bill that would have provided $1 billion during the next 10 years to buy and preserve new federal wetlands.

"I did all I could. I did my job in the House," Jones said. He said he planned to carry the fight to the next Congress, which starts in January.

GOP To Have Observers

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Republican Party will place observers at precincts during the Nov. 6 election to watch for possible voting violations, GOP Chairman David Flaherty says.

"We just have got to make sure, especially in this election with so much at stake, that we not allow anything go wrong because someone didn't check some facet that could go wrong," Flaherty said Tuesday.

Patrol Gets Woman Trooper

RALEIGH (AP) — A former Asheville police officer has become the state Highway Patrol's first black female officer, according to patrol officials.

Carolyn Ann Green was one of three women who graduated during ceremonies in Raleigh on Friday, bringing to six the number of women officers in the ranks, according to Capt. Clay Fox.

Ms. Green has been assigned to the Rockingham district and reports to work today.

New Research Center

DURHAM (AP) — A new research center designed to promote private investment in timber growing is now in operation at Duke University's School of Forestry and Environmental Studies.

Benjamin Jayne, dean of the forestry school, said the center will focus on a "critically important aspect of future timber availability in the United States" by helping to stimulate investment in forestry from such sources as pension funds and limited partnerships.

The center's programs will include special courses for foresters and tax advisers, conferences and research in areas ranging from forest investment to publications.

Professor Is Chosen

RALEIGH (AP) — An assistant North Carolina State University professor is one of 10 scientists from across the nation chosen to serve on a technical advisory committee survey of air pollution damage to the nation's forests, officials say.

Robert I. Bruck, assistant professor of plant pathology and forestry at N.C. State, will take part in the National Terrestrial Survey. Bruck is a specialist in diseases of forest trees and has done extensive research on the decline of the mountain spruce and fir forests in the Southern Appalachian mountains.

Heating Cost Assistance

RALEIGH (AP) — An estimated 180,000 low-income families in North Carolina will be eligible for financial help with their heating bills this winter thanks to the federal Low-Income Energy Assistance program, officials say.

"It is not the purpose of the program to pay all of a family's heating bills, but to provide some relief from the high cost of energy during the winter months," said Bonnie Cramer, assistant director for program administration in the N.C. Department of Human Resources' Division of Social Services.

Awards To Be Presented

ASHEVILLE (AP) — The Linn Cove Viaduct on the Blue Ridge Parkway, the first structure of its kind in the United States, will receive two national awards later this month, officials say.

The awards will be presented during ceremonies for 1,243-foot viaduct on Oct. 20.

Richard W. Karn, national president of the American Society of Civil Engineers, will present the parkway with his group's "National Award of Merit." The parkway will also receive an award from the Prestressed Concrete Institute.

Parkway Superintendent Gary Everhardt will receive the awards on behalf of the National Park Service, which manages the parkway.

Solon Says School Plans Get Priority

RALEIGH (AP) — State officials have placed a $400 million price tag on two major proposals by the state Board of Education to improve North Carolina's public schools.

The proposals — a career development plan for teachers and administrators and a minimum basic curriculum for all state students — were approved by the board but would take effect only if funded by the General Assembly.

House Speaker Liston B. Ramsey, D-Madison, predicted Tuesday a surplus of $300 million to $350 million would be available for the 1985-87 budget "if the economy holds up like I think it will."

The two-year budget will be considered by lawmakers after they return to Raleigh in January.

The two proposals are "among my top priorities," Ramsey said. But, he said, "I'm not saying I'm going to support" the board's recommendations. He said the Legislature's Public Education Policy Council might recommend changes in both programs and that he would have considered those recommendations.

The state board in August voted to request $632 million in new programs for 1985-87 — $230.9 million in 1985-86 and $401.1 million in 1986-87. That budget request included $110 million in 1986-87 to put into effect the career development program, which would be tested in 1985-86 in 16 school districts at a cost of $7.2 million.

The program would allow teachers and administrators to earn higher pay by assuming additional duties.

The board this month adopted the curriculum plan, which would provide a minimum basic course of study for public school students throughout the state. The board has not said how much the plan would cost.

Hilda Highfill, a fiscal analyst on the legislative staff, said that the curriculum plan would cost "well over $300 million."

Ms. Highfill said the plan would require 10,989 new teachers to meet new standards for reducing class size — an addition to the payroll that she said would cost $268.3 million. She said that amount did not include additional teachers that might be required for special education, nor did it include funds for materials, textbooks, facilities or other costs.

Court Hears Arguments Over DWI

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Supreme Court heard arguments about parts of North Carolina's drunken driving law and about whether the state attorney general can sue lower court judges who have ruled parts of the law unconstitutional.

The court agreed to hear the arguments in response to mounting legal furor over the year-old law. Attorneys have challenged several of its provisions, including one that allows affidavits of Breathalyzer operators as evidence, as unconstitutional.

The affidavit provision "makes the District Court in a DWI case merely a wayside station," attorney William B. Crumpler said Tuesday. Crumpler represented a Raleigh man charged with driving while impaired in November.

In that case, Wake District Court Judge Philip Redwine ruled unconstitutional the part of the law that lets prosecutors submit affidavits from the technicians who conduct breath-analysis tests.

In other arguments, Assistant Attorney General Issac T. Avery Jr. asked for reversal of a Superior Court ruling that dismissed Attorney General Rufus Edmisten's lawsuit against seven District Court judges.

Crumpler argued the affidavit provision violates a defendant's right to confront witnesses, which "is intended to preserve the integrity of the fact-finding process." He said a citizen should be assured of getting a fair trial in District Court, rather than going to Superior Court where affidavits are inadmissible.

But Avery said a DWI defendant has the right to subpoena the Breathalyzer operator. He added that if every defendant had done that last year, there would have been 70,000 appearances in court by technicians.

"The affidavit in the section (of the law) is admissible ... otherwise the effect of the law would be removed," Avery said, adding that the General Assembly intended for each defendant to have the same kind of evidence used against him.

Joseph Ledford, a Charlotte lawyer, asked if the state was going to allow "trial by affidavit" in District Court.

"Now, drunk driving is a real serious problem ... but at the same time, your honors, it's also a very serious problem when we cut into the integrity" of the court system, Ledford said.

His colleague, Lyle Yurko, questioned the "trustworthiness" of the Breathalyzer, but Avery said it had been used for 20 years in the state and that was not an issue before the Supreme Court.

Yesterday's Cryptiquip - OUR TENACIOUS ARCHITECT'S FEET HURT; HE HAS FALLEN ARCHES.

Today's Cryptiquip clue: M equals W

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Candidates Preparing For Debate

RALEIGH (AP) - Strategists for Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., aren't ready to comment on his upcoming debate with Democratic challenger Gov. Jim Hunt, but a Hunt spokesman says the governor will persist in tying Helms to the far right.

The two will square off Saturday in the last of the televised debates that have heightened their campaign's bitterness and tension.

The hour-long debate will begin at 7 p.m. in Charlotte and will be the only one of the four viewed by a live audience. About 95 members of the North Carolina Association of Broadcasters and the N.C. Radio and Television News Directors Association will attend.

The previous three debates - one in late July and the other two in September - have seen Hunt attack Helms as a right-wing extremist who has put his personal agenda ahead of the state's interests.

Helms, who struck a low-key, gentlemanly image in the first debate, took a more aggressive posture thereafter. In the third debate - which some experts said was his best performance - he sharply blasted Hunt as a liberal and tried to tie him to Democratic presidential nominee Walter Mondale.

At one point in the most recent debate, tempers visibly flared off Hunt accused Helms of trying to cut veterans' benefits. Helms asked, "Which war did you serve in?" Hunt, angrily accusing Helms of challenging his patriotism, said he had been too young to fight in Korea and too old to serve in Vietnam.

Claude Allen, Helms' campaign press secretary, said in a telephone interview Tuesday that Helms strategists weren't ready to comment on the upcoming debate.

Will Marshall, press secretary for the Hunt campaign, said Hunt would persist in tying Helms to the far right and would keep pounding away at what Hunt sees as the Republican incumbent's hostility to Social Security and Medicare.

"We think the governor has done a good job of laying out Senator Helms' record," said Marshall. "Now it's time to explore why Helms has voted the way he has - who he's fighting for in Washington. The answer is that Jesse Helms has been playing to a nationwide audience of right-wing extremists."

Hunt also will question Helms about his "inconsistent performance" in the other debates, Marshall said.

"In the first debate, (Helms) came on like a gentleman, in the second he was Mad-Dog Jesse and in the third he was even more harsh," said Marshall. "It's a split political personality, a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

Apartheid's Prisoners

The United Nations has proclaimed tomorrow a day of solidarity with political prisoners in South Africa. Blacks and others who oppose the minority white government's policy of "apartheid," or racial separation, are often detained without trial in South Africa. Today, about 4.7 million whites rule over approximately 23 million blacks. By the year 2000, the white population will only increase to 5.2 million, but the number of blacks is expected to rise to 50 million.

DO YOU KNOW - Who is the Prime Minister of South Africa?

TUESDAY'S ANSWER - Americans have about 42 million cats and 49 million dogs as pets.

Values Upheld

HONOLULU (AP) - Actor Jeff McCracken says he doesn't mind bikinis, but he drew the line at a tug-of-war with a group of scantily clad women for an episode of the ABC-TV series "Hawaiian Heat."

"Women should be treated as people, not objects," said McCracken, co-star of the new series. "I know it's awfully hard to do a show in Hawaii and not have beautiful women in bikinis, but there are values to uphold."

Paradise Is Just A Train Ride Away

By CLAUDE E. ERBSEN
Associated Press Writer

EAST STRASBURG, Pa. (AP) — The train to Paradise leaves from here every day nine months out of the year, but for railroad fans it's heaven on earth right here in this tiny hamlet in the heart of Pennsylvania's Amish farmland.

The mournful whistles of operating steam locomotives, the acrid smell of burning coal, a museum full of vintage railroad equipment — and even a motel made up of more than two dozen retired cabooses — combine to attract more than 300,000 passengers a year to the 4.5-mile right-of-way of America's oldest operating short line railroad.

The Strasburg Railroad, originally chartered by the Pennsylvania legislature in 1832, now carries mainly tourists between here and Leaman Junction, in nearby Paradise. But it also moves about 90 carloads of freight each year between a local factory siding and the mainline tracks of Conrail and Amtrak at Leaman Junction.

According to Ellis R. Bachman, the railroad's vice president for administration, the line faced abandonment in 1959 in the face of competition from trucks, and severe damage to its track from heavy storms. When the line's owners filed papers to abandon the line, Bachman recalls, "local railfans decided to buy it and play trains."

To raise the $18,000 needed to buy the line at its scrap value, stock was offered at $450 a share, but there were few takers and "the community laughed at the effort," Bachman remembers.

Just as the project was about to die for lack of support, someone hit upon a gimmick. "Buy stock," prospective investors were told, "and we'll make you a vice president."

The gimmick worked, and the line was saved from abandonment. It had a president, 23 vice presidents, and an aging gasoline-powered Plymouth locomotive in such disrepair that the Interstate Commerce Commission wouldn't allow it to operate. Its track was overgrown with weeds.

In his history of the line, William M. Moedinger recalls that "beneath the vegetation was four-and-a-half miles of railroad track of sorts, with a gauge of approximately four feet, eight and one half-inches, give or take an inch here or there."

Having saved the line, the newly minted railroaders set out to clear the track, replace rotting ties and rusting spikes, and began to scrounge for additional rolling stock so they could "play trains" in earnest on weekends with their refurbished Plymouth locomotive.

Slowly, steam locomotives and other new equipment joined the line, and as the word spread, the stockholders' friends clamored for rides and gradually tourists and railfans began to find their way to East Strasburg, as the line built up its rolling stock.

Today it boasts a Victorian depot, hauled in piece-by-piece from an abandoned station 20 miles away, a fleet of refurbished parlor and observation cars, and half a dozen steam locomotives, four of them in running condition. One of its open observation cars was custom-built for the 20th Century Fox production of "Hello Dolly."

Located about two hours' drive from Philadelphia, and only nine miles from Lancaster, the Strasburg Railroad operates from March to December.

The Railroad Museum of Pennsylvania, directly across the road from the railroad's depot, adds an extra touch of nostalgia for the bygone days of railroading.

Two other nearby attractions give an extra boost to the railroad atmosphere that permeates the area: the Toy Train Museum, a scant half mile away and the Choo-Choo Barn, a barn-sized electric train layout superimposed on a diorama of Lancaster County, complete with tiny animated figures on farms and in homes, and a three-ring circus. There's even a fire engine responding to an alarm.

From its wobbly rebirth in 1959, the railroad has grown into a profitable million-dollar-a-year operation, with a year-around staff of 15, and a summer payroll of 100.

It still has 20 vice presidents, and those hard-to-sell $450 shares of 1959 have been split 200-to-1, and are now worth $105 apiece. For those without a calculator handy, that makes a 1959 investment of $450 worth $21,000 today.

PBS Launching Eight-Hour Series That Delves Into The Human Brain

By LEE MITGANG
AP Education Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Love, charity, hate, fear, Hamlet, mass murder, the hoola hoop, the Pyramids — "Here is the most remarkable of all worlds, possessed by every single one of us. This is the landscape of the brain."

So begins a remarkable eight-part public television series titled "The Brain" which, given the subject, must go down as one of the medium's most ambitious undertakings ever.

The hour-long documentaries, which start tonight and run weekly through Dec. 5, deal colorfully with this gray matter. The series dazzles and reassures us by showing how our knowledge of this most mysterious organ has grown more in 20 years than in the rest of history. At times it sobers us with how much remains frightening and unknown.

Five years in the making, the series explores the horrors of madness, the miracle of memory, the roots of violence, aggression and sex, stress and emotion. We learn that to understand the brain is, in many ways, to understand our very humanity.

In Part 1, "The Enlightened Machine," host George Page reveals the scope of the series by showing how the brain is capable of hair-trigger responses behind the wheel of a race car — and how those same miraculous cerebral impulses can go wild and nearly ruin the life of a young epileptic named Jason.

We hear the indomitable choreographer Agnes de Mille describe how the very organ of her genius betrayed her in 1975 when she suffered a stroke. And we see this master dancer relearning to walk through grueling therapy.

Not to be missed is a later episode on "Madness," focusing on schizophrenia, "the darkest paradigm of all illness." Jerry, a young schizophrenic at St. Elizabeths Hospital in Washington, D.C., hears voices and leaves this world for an imaginary one.

"I don't have no fun at all," is his heartbreaking summation of his own life.

The episode on "Stress and Emotion" is also particularly gripping. It opens with a dramatic reenactment of one of the strangest accidents in medical history. Phinneas Gage, a railroad worker in Vermont in 1848, suffered an accident in which a railroad tie plunged into his skull, causing little pain but separating the parts of his brain that control emotion.

Miraculously, he survived, but as one of his co-workers said, Gage had "an animal's emotions in a man's body."

From that accident and later research, the program says we're rapidly moving closer to understanding the chemical clockwork of anxiety and stress. Already we can control those emotions to some degree with Valium and other drugs. But our understanding of love, hate and other strong emotions is in its infancy.

The mysteries of learning and memory are introduced in another episode by actress Kitty Carlisle Hart, who recalls that her earliest memory is of a gramophone on her parents' dining room table. Author George Plimpton talks about how everyone seems to remember where he or she was when President John F. Kennedy was killed.

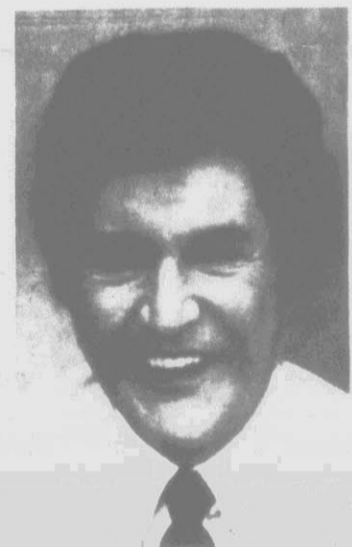

The late British actor Stanley Holloway demonstrates how at age 90 he could recite a song he sang 50 years earlier — but could not remember something that had happened to him five weeks ago.

Microscopes and the study of amnesiacs are slowly unlocking the mysteries of memory, the program reveals.

"The Brain" also happens to be the backbone of a college-level course being offered this fall for credit at 113 colleges and universities in 33 states. Viewers interested in finding out how to enroll can call toll-free at 1-800-LEARNER.

Because the series is both a college course and prime-time entertainment, the scientific terminology gets a bit thick at times — but never so thick, fortunately, as to lull the average viewer's excitatory synapses.

"The Brain" is outstanding educational programming in every way.

LIBERACE

Liberace Says Man Is Stranger

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Entertainer Liberace contends he never met the man accused of using the pianist's name to raise money for a golf tournament.

Liberace answered, "No, sir," several times when prosecutors asked if he ever made arrangements with Dirk Summers for a tournament Summers allegedly claimed was to be sponsored by Liberace.

During cross-examination, defense attorney Peter Flangas attempted to show that Liberace knew Summers.

"I never saw that man in my entire life," Liberace said.

Summers is charged with forgery and attempting to obtain money under false pretenses. Prosecutors allege he forged Liberace's signature and tried to raise as much as $75,000 for the tournament.

Liberace, 65, testified Tuesday at a preliminary hearing in Justice Court. The case was to continue today.

'The Cosby Show' Scores Points For NBC

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — CBS won the ratings war for the week ended Oct. 7, but NBC appears to have dealt it a heavy blow on Thursday night, a CBS stronghold until Bill Cosby returned in a new comedy series.

Although NBC finished third for the week, the strong showing by "The Cosby Show" has raised hopes at the network that it will end the ratings decline it has been in since the mid-1970s.
ABC was second, although the network dumped three new series and revamped its Tuesday and Thursday-night schedules after its worst opening week ratings since 1962. The network had only one program in the Top 10 this week, and not even a regular series at that. The prime-time runner of its coverage of the final game of the National League baseball playoffs was seventh.

NBC fell to third after a second-place finish the previous week. But for the season overall, NBC is still in second place. And the huge ratings from the movie "The Burning Bed," plus the big ratings expected from its coverage of the World Series could put NBC in first place for the season.

The presidential debate Sunday was not given a rating because it was not a sponsored program. ABC said, however, that it attracted an estimated 90 million viewers on all three commercial networks. This does not include its audience on other networks and cable.

"Dallas," starting its eighth season, led CBS to its second victory in the two-week-old fall season. In all, CBS had six shows in the Top 10.

NBC had three shows in the Top 10, including two Thursday-night comedies, "The Cosby Show," fifth, and "Family Ties," ninth. "The A-Team" was sixth.

CBS won the A.C. Nielsen Co. survey with a network average of 18.5. ABC was second with 16.0 and NBC was third with 15.9. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute 18.5 percent of the TV homes were tuned to CBS.

"Knots Landing," returning with the resolution to its summer cliffhanger, was eighth. It kept NBC's "Hill Street Blues" to 22nd place.

Two new CBS comedies made their debut during the week. "Dreams" was No. 27 and "Charles in Charge" was No. 29.

Here are the Top 10: "Dallas," CBS, first; CBS movie "He's Not Your Son," second; CBS movie "Passions," third; "Simon & Simon," CBS, fourth; "The Cosby Show," NBC, fifth; "The A-Team," NBC, sixth; National League Playoff Game No. 5, ABC, seventh; "Knots Landing," CBS, eighth; "Family Ties," NBC, ninth; and "Murder She Wrote," CBS, tenth.

The standings above and those listed below are from CBS. Although the totals for all three networks are the same, each network had some variation in the listings because of different policies regarding paid political telecasts and prime-time runner of sports events. Both CBS and NBC counted the prime-time runner of the final game of the National League Playoffs, but ABC (which carried the game) did not. ABC and NBC listed paid political telecasts, but CBS did not.

Although the season is young, it appears that among the new series

NBC's "The Cosby Show" and CBS' "Murder She Wrote" will be major hits.

Singer Sends Check To Union

HOMESTEAD, Pa. (AP) — Steelworkers here have found at least one boss, rocker Bruce Springsteen, who is giving his money away.

A $10,000 check from Springsteen, 35, arrived Tuesday at United Steelworkers Local 1397 in this recession-ravaged mill town. The local's food bank hands out $60 worth of groceries a month to each of its 1,000 members.

"We were going to buy turkeys for Christmas. This check means we can have turkeys for Thanksgiving, too," said Ron Weisen, Local 1397 president.

The singer, known as "The Boss," met Weisen last month during a concert in Pittsburgh.

"He decided the night he met you he would like to lend his support," Springsteen's manager, John Landau, wrote in a letter enclosed with the check.

"It was a dynamite gesture," Weisen said. "He really relates to the poor and the working class. He sings my type of rock and roll."

Another Gift

LIVERPOOL, England (AP) — Yoko Ono's donation of $110,700 may not keep the Strawberry Fields Children's Home going forever, but it certainly should help.

The widow of ex-Beatle John Lennon marked his 44th birthday Tuesday with the gift to the home where he had often played as a child. Ms. Ono had donated $12,300 to the home in January.

The home, located in this port city where the Beatles first performed together, inspired their 1960s hit "Strawberry Fields Forever."

How They Voted

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Sept. 27 through Oct. 3.

HOUSE

AMUSEMENT PARKS — By a vote of 300 for and 119 against, the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill (HR 5790) giving the federal government power to regulate the safety of amusement park rides.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission could order the repair of defective rides if state and local oversight is non-existent or inadequate. Half of the states lack safety inspection programs for amusement parks.

Sponsor Paul Simon, D-Ill., said most amusement park patrons mistakenly assume that rides have undergone adequate safety checks.

Opponent William Dannemeyer, R-Calif., said "there has been no case made for the extension of federal responsibility into yet another area of human endeavor."

Members voting no were opposed to the Consumer Product Safety Commission gaining jurisdiction over amusement parks.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were Walter Jones, D-1; Tim Valentine, D-2; Charles Whitley, D-3; Ike Andrews, D-4; Stephen Neal, D-5; Charles Britt, D-6; Charles Rose, D-7; W.G. Hefner, D-8; James Broyhill, R-10, and James Clarke, D-11.

James Martin, R-9, did not vote.

PROTECT — The House passed, 285 for and 134 against, a bill giving a president statutory power to protect the steel industry against damaging levels of foreign imports. The bill (HR 6301) was sent to the Senate.

In return, steel companies would be required to invest more generously in new plants and equipment. Also, companies would have to restrain price hikes and invest heavily in retraining displaced steelworkers.

Members voting yes wanted more protection for domestic steel.

North Carolina representative voting yes were Walter Jones, Whitley, Ike Andrews, Britt, Rose, Hefner and Broyhill.

Voting no were Valentine, Neal and Clarke.

James Martin did not vote.

LEGAL — By a vote of 300 for and 87 against, the House passed a bill to extend for one year a tax loophole for participants in group legal services plans.

Such plans are similar to medical insurance plans that employers set up for their workers.

The bill (HR 5361), which was sent to the Senate, was opposed by President Reagan. It extends the tax break until the end of 1985 and will cost the Treasury an estimated $54 million in fiscal 1985.

Employer contributions to prepaid legal services plans will remain excluded from income and payroll taxes. This gives employers a financial benefit for which they are untaxed.

Supporter Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., said Congress needs more time to fully evaluate the special tax treatment.

Opponent Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., said the bill requires all taxpayers to fund "expensive tax benefits" for just a few beneficiaries.

Members voting yes wanted to continue special tax treatment for group legal services plans.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were Whitley, Ike Andrews, Neal, Rose, Broyhill and Clarke.

Those not voting were Walter Jones, Valentine, Britt, Hefner and James Martin.

SENATE

RIGHTS — By a vote of 53 for and 45 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to liberalize civil rights laws by making it easier to deny federal aid to institutions that discriminate.

The vote ended Senate consideration this year of a House-passed bill to counteract the Supreme Court's landmark Grove City College ruling. It separated the legislation from a fiscal 1985 appropriations bill (HJ Res 648).

The court held that, in most instances of discrimination, federal aid to an educational institution cannot be denied across-the-board but only to individual programs that are discriminatory.

Howard Baker, R-Tenn., said tabling the civil rights measure was necessary to clear the way for congressional adjournment in early October.

Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., called failure to pass the civil rights measure "a sad and shameful chapter in our nation's history."

Senators voting yes wanted to end Senate consideration this year of the civil rights measure.

North Carolina senators John East, R, and Jesse Helms, R, both voted yes.

NICARAGUA — The Senate rejected, 42 for and 57 against, an amendment to prohibit fiscal 1985 funding of CIA-backed insurgents who are fighting Nicaragua's Sandinista government.

The vote preserved an appropriation of about $28 million for the "Contra" forces. It occurred during debate on HJ Res 648, the stopgap appropriations bill to fund most government activities in the fiscal year that began Oct. 1.

The House previously voted to stop funding the CIA-directed war against the Sandinistas. Its differences with the Senate were to be resolved in conference over HJ Res 648.

Senators voting yes wanted to stop funding the anti-Sandinista forces.

East and Helms both voted no.

SUPERFUND — By a vote of 38 for and 59 against, the Senate rejected an amendment to increase Superfund spending for toxic waste cleanup. The vote occurred during debate on the fiscal 1985 stopgap appropriations bill (HJ Res 648, above).

The amendment sought to increase the Superfund's five-year spending authority from $1.6 billion to $6 billion, and to quicken the government's long-stalled attack on toxic dumps.

Sponsor Bill Bradley, D-N.J., said the operation of the Superfund "affects the health and well-being of millions of American..."

Opponent Bob Dole, R-Kans., said the stopgap funding bill was the wrong vehicle for the Superfund measure.

Senators voting yes wanted to increase Superfund spending in fiscal 1985.

East did not vote.

Helms voted no.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early day is very good for you to get into the details of money and possessions, especially with newcomers in your life who have considerable experience in financial matters.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make the collections possible and then pay your pressing bills since later some situation from the past will take time.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have fine judgment in the morning and can handle important matters well, but later, delays deter your progress.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Early schedule your time and activities well and then carry through despite any delays that may come up.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Contacting some influential person early can bring you fine new ideas but don't let go of others you may have, either.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) If you contact bigwigs early, you are apt to gain the backing you need for whatever your purpose, then handle routines well.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You are inspired how to gain your finest aspirations early, so go right after them without procrastination.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have good ideas how to become more successful and have greater business know-how, so carry through without delay.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Long talks with associates can bring fine results today, and later do not discuss your prejudices with others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you handle your work with greater insight, you may have greater benefits accruing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Look to industrious and progressive friends for the aid you need in gaining personal aims.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Have guests in who are accomplished in the evening, but make arrangements early for best results.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Morning is best time to handle communications of all sort, and tonight be very careful while out driving.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be very good at business and have the feet squarely on the ground and would do very well when working with others of pretty much the same nature, so be sure to give as fine an academic education as possible. One who has vision.

Louvre Gets Caught Up In Still Another Conflict

By MARILYN AUGUST
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — Nine months after the unveiling of a controversial plan to erect a glass pyramid at the entrance to the Louvre, the prestigious museum is in the grip of another bitter conflict.

Two teams of archaeologists digging for vestiges of ancient Paris in adjoining courtyards of the former royal palace have clashed publicly over their ideas on how to do the job.

The root of the trouble is ideological. One of the teams is led by Pierre-Jean Trombetta, a casually dressed, bearded, outspoken member of the French Communist Party. He presides over the dig at the Cour Napoleon, where 50 archaeology students and volunteers from around the world are uncovering the working-class neighborhoods that sprung up outside the palace walls.

"We can trace the evolution of the city and its inhabitants — from the 14th to the 19th centuries," said the bespectacled Trombetta. "We see how they lived, what they ate and what they did for a living.

"This is a rare opportunity for urban archaeologists. Usually findings of this sort have long been buried under concrete," he added.

The other team, working in the Cour Carre, is headed by Michel Fleury, a conservative who until last year had been in overall charge of all archaeological digs under the French capital.

His second-in-command is Venecelas Kruta, a Czech-born, staunch anti-communist who oversees 50 unskilled workers paid minimum wages. He took them off the unemployment lines to work on the site.

They are unearthing the remains of the medieval dungeon built by Philippe Auguste in 1200.

"The dungeon symbolizes the state," said Kruta, dressed in a suit and tie beneath his yellow rain slicker. "It's where the king stored his treasures — the crown jewels, and of course, his most prized prisoners. Since we have no overview of the ancient Louvre, and very few archives, the dig is of great historical value."

Government officials agree. When excavation is completed in January, the dungeon walls and turrets will go on permanent display. The Cour Napoleon, on the other hand, will be destroyed to build architect I.M. Pei's glass pyramid. Cost of both digs runs about $10 million.

It all seemed academic enough until Trombetta told a reporter "there is an archaeology of the right and one of the left." He then proceeded to denounce Kruta's "rightist" methods as unprofessional.

Besides what he called Fleury's longstanding and passionate interest "only in the powerful," Trombetta disapproved of Fleury's use of bulldozers to clear the 90-foot pit around the dungeon.

"There is a good chance they are not only plowing under valuable objects, but also destroying the context in which everything else must be studied," he said. "For an archaeologist, an object — a piece of animal bone for example, is important only if we know whether it comes from the kitchen or the garden." Kruta was incensed. He called the charges "outright lies," and said that in the three-foot area around the dungeon walls, all digging was done by hand.

"The terrain should determine the method, and the idea that everything has to be excavated to perfection simply leads nowhere," he said. His findings, he added, speak for themselves: 85,000 ceramic and metal fragments, an eight-inch 15th century bronze statue, hairpins and a priceless silver buckle.

At the Cour Napoleon, unexpected findings included a collection of Louis XV silver coins. Each coin is worth around $200, but together they provide information on how money circulated in 18th century France.

CONTROVERSY — Archeologists dig in the courtyard of the Louvre Museum in Paris for vestiges of ancient Paris. Two teams dug in the courtyard have clashed publicly over how the project should be carried out. Ideology reportedly is at the root of the controversy, which has created yet another uproar about the museum. (AP Laserphoto)

Texas Republican Tops PAC Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican Rep. Phil Gramm of Texas is leading the nation in raising congressional campaign funds from oil and gas industry political action committees, according to a new study.

Gramm, seeking the Senate seat of retiring Republican John Tower, had received a total of $187,489 from oil and gas PACs as of Sept. 1. At the same time, his opponent, Democratic state Sen. Lloyd Doggett, had gotten only one $20 gift.

The study, based solely on filings by 212 oil and gas industry PACs with the Federal Election Commission from Jan. 1, 1983 through this past August, showed Republicans on average faring twice as well as Democrats in raising money from energy interests.

GOP candidates for the 33 Senate seats at stake in 1984 so far have received an average $41,650 from oil and gas PACs compared with an average $17,684 for Democrats. In races for the 435 House seats, energy interests have contributed an average $8,502 to each Republican candidate and $4,304 to each Democratic contender.

"About the only places oil and gas PACs are supporting Democrats are in the producing states of Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana unless they are key members of the House leadership or Senate committees," said Mike Podhorzer, an author of the study.

Through August, according to the FEC reports, the oil and gas PACs made contributions totaling $5.47 million to congressional candidates.

The study, released Monday, was put together by the Citizen-Labor Energy Coalition, an organization of unions and consumer groups critical of the oil and gas industry.

Noting that PAC contributions traditionally are heaviest in September and October, the coalition said it "expects the totals to go much higher by Election Day" and exceed the $8 million that the same PACs gave to congressional candidates in the 1982 election.

Behind Gramm, the largest recipient of oil and gas money is incumbent Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., at $123,750. Percy's opponent, Democratic Rep. Paul Simon, cosponsor of an unsuccessful bill in the House to roll back federal price ceilings on natural gas, has received only $1,000 from oil and gas PACs.

Sen. Bennett Johnston of Louisiana, the ranking minority member on the Senate Energy Committee who handily won reelection last month, is the largest Democratic recipient at $122,126.

In races for House seats, the biggest oil and gas PAC recipient is Rep. Jack Fields, R-Texas, at $59,897.

Among the 212 PACs, the largest single contributor was Tenneco Inc. with a total of $288,050. Standard Oil Co. of Indiana — AMOCO — was second at $230,024, followed by FMC Corp. at $189,940 and Union Pacific Corp. at $165,875.

Consumer Confidence Declining

NEW YORK (AP) — Consumers remained fairly confident about the economy in September, but appeared slightly more apprehensive about the future, the Conference Board said this week.

The business-financed research organization said its September survey on consumer confidence found that 28.4 percent of those polled thought business conditions were "good," up from 27.6 percent in August.

But the survey also found declining expectations that personal income and the availability of jobs would continue to grow.

The survey found a decline in consumers' plans to buy new cars, the Conference Board said, adding that this probably was due to the strike by auto workers at General Motors Corp.

Study Shows U.S. Is Least Socialized

By CARL HARTMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is far and away the least socialized of major countries, with more than 95 percent of its economy run by private enterprise, according to a study recently published by the International Monetary Fund.

The finding has nothing to do with the policies of President Reagan because its latest figure for the United States goes back to 1978, two years before he was elected.

But little has changed since. In 1978, the study finds, only 4.4 percent of the capital being formed in the United States came from publicly owned enterprises. The U.S. share was called "untypically low." One reason, not mentioned in the study, is that telephone, telegraph, television, radio, electric power and transportation systems in the United States are for the most part in private hands. In other countries they are largely run by governments.

The postal service and water systems, together with ports and airports, are the chief publicly owned enterprises in the United States, and small portions of the broadcasting, transport and electric power networks.

Japan, which comes closest to this country, had 11.2 percent in publicly-owned enterprises for the years 1978-81, West Germany 10.8 percent for 1978-79 and Britain 17.1 percent for 1982. Britain's proportion reached 22.4 percent between 1954 and 1957, years when Britain was ruled by three Conservative prime ministers, but has been going down since then.

Norway's rate has been rising and reached 22.2 percent between 1978 and 1980.

The study was done by R.P. Short between 1980 and 1982, when he was on the staff of the International Monetary Fund. He is now an economic adviser to the British

Treasury, but his work has only just been published by the fund in a volume called "Public Enterprise in Mixed Economies."

Short measures the shares of public and private enterprise by the amount of property they buy in the form of factories, machinery, buildings and other major goods.

In an introduction, IMF managing director Jacques de Larosiere blames some governments — which he does not name — for creating "economic imbalances" in part through the businesses they own. He names price control as a policy that he says often prevents such businesses from covering their costs.

He also blames inefficiency in the public sector for deficits he says lead to the creation of too much credit, to inflation and to trouble in countries' international payments.

De Larosiere was apparently referring to poor countries, where the study finds the proportion of public ownership much greater.

Compared with the 4.4 percent of the United States, or even Norway's 22.2 percent, Algeria had 67.6 percent public ownership in 1978-81, Zambia 61.2 percent in 1979-80 and Burma 60.6 percent in 1978-80.

Figures in Asia were somewhat lower: Pakistan 44.6 percent in 1978-81, India 33.7 percent in 1978-81, Taiwan 32.4 percent and South Korea 22.8 percent in 1978-80, and Thailand 12.8 percent in 1978-9.

Latin America was lower still: Mexico 29.4 percent in 1978, Brazil 22.8 percent in 1980, Argentina 19.6 percent and Chile 12.6 percent in 1978-80.

None of the rules for the play of the hand are inviolate. All are subject to expediency. East learned this lesson the hard way on this deal from a team match.

At both tables the final contract was three no trump. Note that South probed for a major-suit contract rather than just settle for the no trump game after North had shown a distributional hand. Three no trump might not be the world's best contract, but no other game was much better — two rounds of diamonds would give declarer no chance at four hearts, and five clubs depends largely on a 3-3 heart break.

At both tables the opening lead was West's fourth-best diamond.

Both Easts won the ace, but here their paths diverged. The standard way to show that you started with four cards in the suit led by partner is to return your lowest card in the suit, so one East dutifully returned the two of diamonds.

Declarer's only legitimate hope is to rise with the queen and hope that East held the king as well as the ace. However, declarer made the technically inferior play of the eight and struck gold. West won the jack and played the king to fell the queen, but East was forced to win the fourth diamond. Declarer made the rest of the tricks as West's fifth diamond withered on the vine.

At the other table East decided that it really made very little difference whether West thought he had three or four diamonds. He realized that his 10-9 in the suit represented a possible block, so at trick two he returned the 10 of diamonds. Now the defenders were guaranteed five tricks in the suit regardless of what declarer opted to do at trick two.
