ECU Starts New Scholarship Program

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

East Carolina University announced today the establishment of a major new scholarship program designed to attract the most academically gifted students from across the state and nation.

C. Ralph Kinsey Jr., chairman of the ECU board of trustees, said at least 20 University Scholar Awards will be established through a series of privately endowed scholarships, each sufficient to provide $3,000 a year for selected recipients. Each scholarship will be endowed with a base of at least $40,000.

"I regard this as a milestone in the advancement of this institution and the most significant action during my chancellorship," Dr. John M. Howell, chancellor said.

Kinsey said, "This is a commitment to attract the best students in our state and nation and is consistent with this university's tradition in every area of progress."

According to James L. Lanier Jr., vice chancellor for institutional advancement, seven of the University Scholar awards have already been established. The first five University Scholars will be admitted in the fall of 1985. Those chosen are expected to be in the top 5 percent of their high school classes, to have demonstrated leadership abilities and participated in school and community activities, to be capable of effective oral and written communication, and to convey seriousness of purpose in educational goals.

"Attracting more Merit Scholars is an objective we have held for many years," Kinsey said. "We are already enrolling a fair share of these talented students among our student body of 13,827. At present, some 300 honor achievers are enrolled with 'some level of scholarship aid.'"

"We feel that the University Scholars program will make our institution extremely competitive in recruiting more of this nation's very top academic achievers," he said.

W. Riley Roberson III of Washington, N.C., a trustee and chairman of the East Carolina University Foundation Inc., is serving as chairman of the steering committee that will work to complete funding of the program by the end of this school year.

Several commitments have already been made to fund scholarships.

The William Riley Roberson Jr. and Frances Morgan Roberson scholarship has been given in honor of their parents by W. Riley Roberson III and Robin Roberson Pitts. Riley Roberson III serves as chairman of the ECU Foundation and as a scholarship steering committee chairman. He is vice president for sales at North Carolina Dr. Pepper in Washington and his sister is coordinator of foreign languages for the elementary schools of Washington County.

Their father is secretary of the N.C. Department of

Registration Up

RALEIGH (AP) — State Board of Elections Chairman Robert W. Spearman said today that 77 percent of North Carolina's eligible voters are registered to cast their ballots Nov. 6.

Spearman said that since 1981, registration has increased 18 percent to 3,270,933 voters.

"This puts North Carolina certainly up in the top of all states in terms of eligible people who are registered," Spearman said.

He said that during the past three years Democratic registration has climbed by 515,000 and Republican registration is up 231,000. He said the number of white voters registered is 539,000 higher and the number of non-white voters is 247,000 higher.

Evans Testifies Another Officer Kicked Teen-Ager

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Sheriff's Deputy James M. Evans Thursday denied assaulting juvenile James W. Gwin following a high speed chase through Greenville Feb. 4. Evans testified that another member of the Sheriff's Department injured Gwin.

Testifying in his own defense, Evans said, "I didn't never kick James Gwin. I never hit James Gwin."

Testimony was expected to end this afternoon.

Evans, a 41-year-old deputy, is charged with kicking Gwin in the head following the chase. Gwin, a 15-year-old Alabama resident, was a passenger in the vehicle which was stopped on N.C. 11 outside of Greenville after the chase from Beaufort County.

The testimony came during the fourth day of evidence in Pitt County Superior Court of an appeal filed by Evans, who had been convicted in lower court of simple assault of Gwin.

Evans testified that he saw Gwin lying on the ground and that Sheriff's Deputy Walter Cobb had his foot on Gwin's head.

"When Gwin tried to pick his head up, Cobb would push it back down," Evans testified. "He was pushing his head down... I call it kicking."

Evans testified that he was nowhere near Gwin, and only glimpsed Gwin lying on the ground through a crowd of spectators. "There were lots of people walking between me and where he was laying," Evans said.

Evans said he did not tell anyone about seeing Cobb assaulting the juvenile until a week later when an investigation had begun into the incident. Evans testified that he waited to tell Sheriff Ralph Tyson because he was "hoping that the parties involved would come up and tell them their ownself."

Evans said he decided to tell the sheriff because he was being unjustly accused. "I was being investigated and I knew I was being accused of something I didn't do," Evans said.

In rebuttal today after the defense rested its case, District Attorney Thomas Haigwood called to the stand an eye-witness of the Feb. 4 incident, Tom Creel of Raleigh. Creel testified that he had an unobstructed view of Evans kicking out the window of the green Datsun

Economic Growth Declines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The economy's summer slump was even sharper than first thought as overall economic growth slowed to a sluggish rate of 2.7 percent from July through September, the government said today.

The Commerce Department said the gross national product — the broadest measure of the country's economic health — grew at the slowest rate since the the last recession.

But the department said the slowdown helped to keep the lid on inflation, with prices measured by an index tied to the GNP rising at their slowest rate so far this year.

The 2.7 percent rate of growth in the total output of goods and services compared to a sizzling 10.1 percent pace in the first three months of the year and a still rapid 7.1 percent in the April-June quarter.

The government's new estimate of a 2.7 percent rate of growth from July through September represented a steep downward revision from a preliminary estimate of 3.6 percent.

While a slower growth rate means gains in employment will also slow, most economists said that a slowdown at this stage of the recovery is needed to insure that overheated growth doesn't kick up inflation and bring on another recession.

Economists have also been encouraged by reports this week showing that housing sales rebounded sharply in September and personal income and consumer spending also rose. They contend this will help to insure that the summer slowdown is only temporary.

Many economists are predicting growth in the final three months of the year will return to a rate of around 4.5 percent.

Inflation, as measured by an index that measures the same mix of goods and services each quarter, rose at a modest annual rate of 3.8 percent from July through September. This compared to a 4.3 percent rate in the second quarter of the year and a 5 percent pace in the first three months of 1984. The lower rate in the third quarter was attributed to declines in gasoline and construction prices.

The 2.7 percent gain in the GNP was the slowest since a 0.5 percent increase in the final quarter of 1982, which represented the trough of the last recession.

The Commerce Department said the brief auto strike against General Motors Corp. played only a slight role in the downward revision.

Court Upholds Handgun Ban

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois Supreme Court today upheld the nation's first handgun ban, ruling that the law in the Chicago suburb of Morton Grove doesn't violate the constitutional right to bear arms.

The high court said in its 4-3 decision that Morton Grove had the authority to impose the ordinance under its police power as a way of reducing weapons-related injuries and accidents within the village.

The state constitutional right to bear arms "was designed neither to encourage nor to discourage the possession of firearms, but merely to guard against the confiscation of all arms," said the majority opinion written by Justice Seymour Simon.

The specific ban against handguns was justified "because of the ease with which handguns can be concealed and handled, as compared with other types of weapons," he wrote in answer to a challenge to the law by four Morton Grove residents.

He said the handgun ban "could rationally have been viewed by the village as a way of reducing the frequency of premeditated violent attacks as well as unplanned criminal shootings in the heat of passion or in overreaction to fears of assault," as well as accidental shootings and suicides.

The 1981 ordinance, which bars the possession and sale of handguns in the village of 23,000, has been upheld by state and federal appellate courts despite the efforts of the National Rifle Association and other groups opposed to curbs on gun ownership.

Last year, the U.S. Supreme Court declined to hear a federal court suit challenging the ban. That decision let stand a federal appeals court ruling upholding the ordinance.

However, legal experts speculated at the time that the U.S. Supreme Court didn't want to take up the case until Illinois' highest court had addressed the issue.

Morton Grove's ordinance, enforced since February 1982, permits possession of rifles and shotguns, but restricts handguns to law officers and security guards.

New Storm Hits Rockies

By The Associated Press

A "blockbuster" storm lugging record snows left 100,000 Utah homes without power, trapped hunters in Colorado's mountains and spun more than a dozen tornadoes across three states, killing two people. Forecasters said the third storm of the week is moving in today from the Pacific.

A line of severe thunderstorms stretched from eastern Texas to Tennessee today, and heavy rains prompted flash-flood warnings in southeast Texas.

In Wyoming, snow-covered ground was rattled Thursday by the third-strongest earthquake in the state's history, measuring 5.5 on the Richter scale and felt up to 200 miles away, the U.S. Geological Survey said.

The storm stretched from the Rocky Mountains to the Mississippi Valley and was described by Salt Lake City meteorologist William Alder as a "one-in-50-year occurrence." It dropped a record 18.6 inches of snow in 24 hours at Salt Lake International Airport and up to 3 feet in the mountains.

"At least a dozen or 15 tornadoes" were spawned Thursday when the snowstorm's icy winds swooped down on the moisture-laden Plains, said forecaster Joseph Galway at the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo.

"This is the same weather system that gave the snow to portions of Utah and Colorado," said forecaster Bill Hirt in Kansas City.

One person died and another was injured in Argo, Texas, where two houses were demolished, authorities said. A 58-year-old man was killed and his wife injured when a tornado destroyed their mobile home on a turkey farm in Winona, Mo.

An elderly woman was injured when the roof of her mobile home collapsed in Hollis, Ark., authorities said.

The dead person in Argo was found in an open pasture, said Dallas Department of Public Safety dispatcher Larissa Jones. "There had been problems getting emergency vehicles into the area because of downed trees."

Secret Of Cajun Cooking: 'A Long Time'

By JOHN DeMERS

HOLDEN La. (UPI) — In his Cajun cooking show on public television, humorist Justin Wilson comes across as the ultimate homebody — puttering about the kitchen, sharing his favorite tall tales, sipping at a glass of dark red wine.

Yet his appearances keep him so busy crisscrossing the country that he and his wife seldom see home two days in a row. A weekend at his double-wide trailer on the Tickfaw River is a celebration of friends, draft beer and endless Cajun cooking.

"How yawl are?" Wilson asks, rolling out of his pickup onto the gravel and rising to full height beside his outboard-motored "Dambote" — so named for reasons obvious to anyone who has ever owned one.

A draft drawn from the porch keg and downed under a ceiling fan leads quickly to a dip in the bracing river. Wilson climbs carefully down a ladder from his dock, skipping a swing on the rope nearby. The rope, he offers, was installed by an orthopedic surgeon trying to drum up business.

The swim, for all its refreshment, leads quickly to cooking — nearly 12 sweaty hours of it, spiced by friends, more beer and laughter, lasting in his meat smoker right on into dinner the next day.

"The secret to Cajun cooking is that it takes a long time," says Wilson, starting alligator etouffee inside the trailer before heading out to make elk sauce piquante. "You can put it on and drink a beer and have a good time. Cooking is fun unless you make it a drudge."

"My mother was a tremendous cook. You couldn't help learn from her because she had a wonderful sense of humor. If you ain't got a sense of humor you ain't got nothing."

Humor — more than culinary artistry — is at the heart of his show's success. Taped nearly two years ago by Louisiana Public Broadcasting, the 26 episodes currently are running nationally on the Public Broadcasting Service. And there is talk around the cooking porch of introducing "Louisiana Cookin'" to Australia.

Humor, the warm rather than the cutting kind, is also at the heart of most things Wilson does.

He is a safety engineer by profession, looking over factories and job sites with a caring eye for danger. And he is a deputy sheriff in rural Livingston Parish, keeping the radio in his truck jabbering day and night.

After half a century of telling stories, however, it is as the world's best-known Cajun that Wilson will be remembered. His albums, books, appearances and cooking shows have done much to make the nation comfortable with the colorful French culture of south Louisiana.

"If you want to cook worth a damn," he says, stirring his roux while sharing a secret, "all it takes is common sense and imagination. But don't go to imagining marjoram or coriander or however they say those things. Just imagine things like onions, bell peppers, parsley and Louisiana hot sauce."

Though Wilson's official address is in nearby French Settlement, he spends his precious home time these days in the trailer on the Tickfaw. Large to begin with, it has sprouted a veranda for sitting, a screened porch for cooking and a wooden shed for storing.

The place strikes more than a few visitors as a little piece of paradise, yet the heavy wooden wall holding the land together provides a sobering reminder of time, the river and constant erosion.

In the kitchen, the alligator etouffee simmers amidst onions and peppers, while other burners give birth to greens cooked with wine and butter beans seasoned with ham hocks.

Wilson says he has been fixing a lot of gator lately — ever since an electrician rigging a pool to display the reptiles plugged something in backwards. Like true Cajuns, the promoters zeroed in on hides and meat once their sizzling attraction had ceased to attract.

A TV producer arrives with his wife, as do an orthopedic surgeon and his. As stories and beer are passed around, the elk portered from Montana by Wilson's brother-in-law sizzles in a separate pan before tumbling into the sultry sauce piquante.

Everyone is drafted into stirring, their only pay a cube of elk sprinkled with salt or a Spanish olive poured out with the juice running through their fingers.

It is dark outside the porch. Everything for tonight's dinner is simmering in one pot or another, and Wilson supervises the stuffing of tomorrow's beef and pork roasts with garlic and green onions.

With all the company around the burners, it looks a bit like his production set — complete with a hungry, appreciative and increasingly live audience.

"Hell's bells," Wilson says, wiping his hands on a towel that hangs from his dungarees. "How're you going to reach back in the foremost portion of your brain to say something unless you've got an audience? I'm just a reflection of my audience."

A recent weekend dinner was structured around Louisiana alligator and Montana elk. Yet as his new "Gourmet and Gourmande Cookbook" (Pelican, $14.95) makes clear, such exotic ingredients are not essential.

Shrimp, for example, form the basis of a wonderful sauce piquant. A sauce piquant is a sultry concoction that turns up across south Louisiana with whatever meat or seafood is at hand. Shrimp Sauce Piquant 4 lbs jumbo shrimp, peeled and cleaned 2 cups onions, chopped 1 cup green onions, chopped 3/4 cup bell pepper, chopped 1/2 cup celery, chopped 4 8-oz. cans tomato sauce 1 tsp garlic, chopped 1/2 lemon, chopped fine 1 cup plain flour 1/2 cup olive oil or bacon drippings 2 cups dry white wine Red cayenne pepper or hot sauce to taste 6 drops bitters Worcestershire sauce to taste

Make a dark roux with the flour and olive oil, mixing them in a heavy pot on top of the stove and cooking slowly while stirring until it takes on the color of a chocolate bar. This process usually takes more than 45 minutes, so having reinforcements to keep up the constant stirring comes in handy.

Add onions, pepper and celery. Cook until onions and celery become translucent. Add green onions and parsley, then stir in the water, tomato sauce, garlic, hot sauce, Worcestershire and salt.

Add shrimp. Bring to a boil and reduce to a simmer for about 2 hours. Serve over spaghetti or rice. Serves 8

Reader Looks For Way To Trim Christmas Gift List

DEAR ABBY: A couple of years ago I read something in your column about how to tactfully tell friends not to buy you anything for Christmas because you don't plan to buy them anything.

Kindly run it again, as we are in that kind of bind right now.

IN DEBT IN AMARILLO

DEAR IN DEBT: Here it is:

DEAR ABBY: With Christmas coming soon, our problem must be faced, and we don't know how to handle it. To lay it right on the line, with the economy the way it is, my husband and I can't afford to send Christmas gifts this year. (To tell you the truth, we still owe for last year's Christmas gifts.)

We don't want anybody to give us gifts this year because we can't afford to give any. But how do you tell people that, Abby?

OVERDRAWN IN DETROIT

DEAR OVERDRAWN: Come Thanksgiving, write a note saying, "We are thankful for folks with whom we can be honest. We're not in a position to send Christmas gifts this year (nor do we expect gifts), but please accept our love and sincere good wishes for a joyous and blessed holiday."

DEAR ABBY: This is for all the

DEAR ABBY: Is the tomato a fruit or a vegetable? I have heard it called both. I would like to get this cleared up once and for all.

JACK IN MCPHERSON, KAN.

DEAR JACK: The tomato is actually a fruit, although it's usually regarded as a vegetable because it looks like a vegetable and is more likely to be found in the company of vegetables.

Predictions For The Next TV Show

Over-Priced

When you read or hear the North Carolina Senate race is the biggest attention-getter in the nation (other than the presidential contest), you are not being misled. It is all of that. The eyes of 49 other states are on us.

When you are told campaign spending in North Carolina is setting a national record, it is too true. Presumably, there are people in most of the other states who would like to vote this November in North Carolina; unable to do that, they are contributing money to their candidates at fantastic levels ... in all, it is now about $20 million.

It's ridiculous. If anything good could come of that, it would have to be a limitation on how much candidates for various offices could spend in their campaigns. Existing requirements that candidates file campaign expenditures and contributions with the Federal Election Commission assure some control over possible hanky-panky, but they do not impose barriers to excesses.

In terms of population and geographic area, North Carolina is far from being a "big" state. In terms of influence it carries among the other 49, one could rank it among the also-rans.

In terms of over-pricing one seat in the U.S. Senate, we lead everybody.

It is not a point on which we take pride.

Choice

Roosevelt Grier is respected in the sports and entertainment world, and he has been known to be a part of politics.

He was at the side of Robert Kennedy when the presidential candidate was shot and he risked his life to wrestle the assassin to the floor. Certainly Grier has earned unanimous respect.

This week Grier toured North Carolina as a supporter of Jesse Helms, one of the few blacks to do so, and that raised some eyebrows. Sen. Helms, after all, is not known for fighting for the civil rights of black people and consequently his support in the black community is considered miniscule.

Grier is, of course, free to support anyone he chooses, and certainly he still has our respect. On the political battlefields of North Carolina, however, we do not expect him to win many black or moderate votes for the senator. The memory of Sen. Helms' record on equal rights is simply too vivid.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prediction: Ronald Reagan will accuse Walter Mondale on Sunday night of weakening America.

Prediction: Mondale will accuse Reagan of being incapable of dealing with the Soviet Union.

They filled the air with beanballs as they warmed up for the debate on the campaign trail this week.

It won't be a pretty sight Sunday. There, in living color, will be the president of the United States and the former vice president in most unmanly performances.

The television audience is guaranteed a good time. It's only 19 days before the election and the race is getting messy.

But listen hard. Behind the accusations and the show-biz touches are real differences between the candidates on how they approach world affairs.

The debate could be critical. If Mondale is to overcome Reagan's big lead in the polls, he will have to catch up soon.

Conversely, if Reagan is to erase the setback he suffered in their first debate over economic policy Sunday night is his chance to do it.

Rhetoric aside, the candidates have important points to make.

Reagan claims to have rebuilt American defenses after the Carter administration "unilaterally disarmed." He assigns a major share of the blame to Mondale, who was vice president.

On Wednesday, in Palo Alto, Calif., Mondale previewed the reply

he is apt to give when the president repeats the charge during their debate. It's that Reagan has "a naive and primitive notion of national strength."

For examples, Mondale offered the stationing of Marines in Lebanon without a clear mission and spending $25 billion on a B-1 bomber that "the Soviets have spent 15 years preparing to shoot down."

Stripping away overstatement on both sides, they are touching on major differences between the two administrations.

President Carter's goal was a 5 percent boost in defense spending annually. Reagan aimed for 7 percent. Major weapons programs were approved in the Carter years, including the controversial MX missile. Others, including the B-1 bomber, were not. In the Reagan administration new weapons programs generally get a green light.

This means U.S. defenses are growing, but so is the budget. Since the Soviets also keep building, it's hard to determine the overall effect on U.S. national security.

On Wednesday, in Glen Ellyn, Ill., Reagan said the SALT II treaty "was legitimizing a continuation of the arms race."

Since Carter signed it in 1979, he said, the Soviets have added 3,800 warheads to their arsenal. He reiterated his contention that Moscow will negotiate arms reductions "if they see that the United States is willing to go as far as it has to go to see that they don't stay ahead of us in weapons — that we're as strong as they are."

Mondale has accused Reagan of opposing every major arms control agreement negotiated over the last 25 years under Democratic and Republican presidents. Criticizing Reagan's program for research on space weapons, he says the president now wants to "turn the heavens into a battleground."

Last Sunday, in a paid radio speech, Mondale summarized Reagan's arms control policy this way: "If there's an arms agreement, oppose it. If there's a dangerous weapon, buy it. If the Pentagon wants a blank check, sign it. If there's a crucial fact, don't learn it ..."

Again, the two candidates are engaging in the honorable campaign practice of caricaturing each other's record. But they are also making some valid points.

The 1979 SALT treaty was never advertised as the last word in arms control. It was intended to set the stage for further accords. At the same time, the Soviet Union — and the United States — have added to their nuclear arsenals with little difficulty.

Indeed, Reagan campaigned against the SALT II treaty in 1980 as "fatally flawed," much as he had opposed earlier agreements with the Soviets. After taking office, however, he pledged not to undercut its provisions provided the Soviets behaved. Also, the START treaty he proposed in May 1982 would cut deeper into U.S. and Soviet stockpiles than any previous accord.

However, Reagan's defense buildup has not prodded the Soviets into seeking agreements. In fact, the president's prediction that they would negotiate seriously after new U.S. missiles were deployed in Western Europe simply did not pan out. The talks have been suspended for nearly a year.

THE PERILS OF MODERN POLITICS!

Man Must Have His Fantasies To Enjoy Living

Newspaper people cannot live by bread alone. They have to have Walter Mitty fantasies to keep them going. My latest one has to do with the first presidential debate. It was revealed before the confrontation that over 100 names of media people had been submitted and rejected by either Mondale's or Reagan's advisers. I have to believe that I was one of the people on the list.

This is what I'm sure happened. The hundred media names were sent over to Reagan headquarters.

One of Reagan's key aides recognized mine immediately.

"They have to be kidding!" the aide said to the president's debate staff. "According to our files this guy is one of the few people in America who is not better off today than he was four years ago."

"How did you find that out?"

"We talked to his wife."

"The man is relentless when it comes to asking the tough, trenchant questions."

"Not to mention his follow-ups. He'll go for the home run every time."

"It says he has no respect for the office of the presidency."

"Or Vice President Bush's tax returns."

"He drove Nixon out of the White House."

"I thought that was Woodward and Bernstein."

"Who do you think led them to the smoking gun?"

"Wait, maybe it's better to have the devil we know than the devil we don't."

"What the devil does that mean?"

"He'll ask Reagan a probing, in-depth question on urban housing, and then Ronnie will stammer and get the sympathy of the TV audience. People don't like to see someone beat up on their president during a debate, particularly when it comes to urban housing."

"It's too much of a risk. This guy is the foremost authority on sleaze in the country. I say cross him off the list."

"Tell the League of Women Voters if they put this Darwin-loving secular humanist on the panel, our man sleeps at Camp David on Sunday night."

My fantasy is not limited to the Reagan people. I prefer to believe the Mondale staff also flipped when they saw my name on the media list.

"This is outrageous. We can't have this guy questioning our candidate."

"Why? He seems awfully ignorant when it comes to the issues."

"The man's a closet Reaganite. He wants the president in for four more years because he thinks Reagan will provide him with better columns than Mondale. I heard him say on the radio he has to think of himself before his country."

"If Fritz sees him on the panel our candidate will lose all his confidence and forget to bring up Medicare, Beirut and the fairness issue."

"You have to watch out for the liberals. They'll stick it to their own every time."

"He's a wimp, and if there is one thing we don't want Sunday night it's someone who will ask Mondale where he stands on wimps in the campaign."

"The big question we should ask ourselves is, 'Is this guy better off today than he was four years ago?'"

"Are you kidding? He's made more money in the last four years off of Reagan than Bill Casey has made in the stock market."

"Let's tell the League of Women Voters if he sits down on the panel, Fritz is going to church that night."

Well, that's my big fantasy for the election year. Being blackballed by not one but both presidential candidates is every newspaper person's ultimate dream.

Strength For Today

We live in a period of human development when people think and talk little about angels. If angels do not exist, then the testimony of the entire Bible is seriously impugned. If they do exist, then they are so real, so influential in our lives, so beautiful and inspiring, that we should give them much attention.

The Bible is full of teaching about angels. They are not just beings in heaven but also our guardians as we walk the pathways of everyday life. They are round about us. They lay their hands on the circumstances of life and make a difference. The word "angel" means "messenger." Angels, therefore, are messengers to our soul. Through them God is conveying to our minds and souls a sense of his providence in our behalf.

Angels walk beside us, they touch our arms, they whisper their message to our hearts. It is our privilege to respond.

Friends And Advisers Speak Up

WASHINGTON — Desperate to undo the undoing of the president that marked his first debate with Walter F. Mondale, his oldest friends have sent this quiet warning to chief of staff James Baker III: Pull off those bureaucratic briefers who sent an exhausted Ronald Reagan up against his relaxed Democratic foe Oct. 7.

But such advice, in view of well-known White House work habits under Baker's iron tenure as staff chief, may prove easier said than done. Ready for Reagan today are inches-thick briefing books inside glossy covers. They bulge with numbers on defense spending, Soviet missile launchers and warheads, Third World debt and other statistics marching in mind-boggling array.

This time, for the Kansas City debate on national security, the collector of the immense assemblage of data covering four Reagan years and earlier Carter-Mondale periods is Robert McFarlane, Reagan's national security aide. "Robert (Bud) is a good bureaucrat but knows nothing about how to get elected president," one cabinet member, worried about a Kansas City repeat of Louisville, told us privately.

When another Cabinet member, Interior Secretary William P. Clark, who is one of Reagan's oldest friends, saw him first appear on the TV screen in Tampa, Fla., where he was on a field trip recently, he was shocked. Later he described the president as so obviously "tired" that the debate seemed likely to take a heavy toll. Clark, whose departure as national security adviser was arranged a year ago under pressure from Baker, later warned Reagan by telephone to be wary of briefings and rehearsals being prepared for the second debate.

Mixed in with these anguished expressions by Reagan's oldest political friends was anger among Capitol Hill Republicans that Baker had even accepted the Mondale camp's request for 90-minute confrontations from a standing position without asking for stools to sit on — staples for some past debates. As Reagan's negotiator on debate details, Baker specifically rejected the League of Women Voters' offer of chairs or stools, used by Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter in 1976.

That may look like a bum rap. "The president made that decision," one White House insider told us. "It would never occur to him to ask for a chair or stool." But Reagan's congressional friends insist it was Baker's job to protect the president. Particularly was that true in view of the non-secret that the Democratic Party was drooling at the prospect of voters focusing on the president's age — and thus his health — as the one and only issue that could blow him out of the water.

Sen. Paul Laxalt, Reagan's closest friend in Congress and general chairman of the Republican National Committee, slipped into the Oval Office for an extraordinary two-hour chat with Reagan recently. Laxalt had been distraught ever since the misery of that Sunday night. Kept out of active participation in the campaign because of the congressional adjournment crunch, Laxalt could not believe what his two eyes witnessed during the debate:

A renowned debater who seemed unable to go from defense to offense; an accomplished performer clearly programmed to spout dry statistics of bureaucrats rather than aspirations of his presidency; a campaigner who seemed to have been "brutalized" by the heavy schedule of five separate sessions of two hours each that his White House prompters had arranged for him.

Laxalt and Reagan's other close friends grieved beyond that first debate. Four years ago, candidate Reagan had the services of a debating coach. Baker saw no need for such help in 1980, when he was not in charge, and no need in 1984 when he was in charge, resulting, one Reagan insider told us, in "an absolutely unnecessary deprivation" for the president.

His alarm system activated, Laxalt intends to stay scheduled up to the hilt in helping Reagan win the showdown in Kansas City Sunday.

Tiny Girl Gets New Heartbeat

CHICAGO (AP) — A six-month-old girl who has spent nearly half her life hospitalized with a dangerously slow heartbeat could go home within days, thanks to a tiny, innovative pacemaker.

The device about the size of a silver dollar was implanted this week in Stephanie Minor, whose heart sometimes slowed to less than 60 beats a minute. With the pacemaker, it beats normally, at 100 beats a minute.

About a dozen of the miniature pacemakers have been implanted since their use was approved Oct. 1 by the federal government, said Dr. Daniel Scagliotti, a member of the University of Illinois team that operated on Stephanie.

The device, which relies on computer microchips, is a quarter-inch thick and measures 2 3/8 inches by 1 5/8 inches, about half the size of its smallest predecessors. If the heart rate falls below normal, the pacemaker stimulates the heart, bringing the rate back to normal.

With the pacemaker, Stephanie "should be able to function totally normally," said Dr. Barbara Deal, who helped implant the device.

"She's doing very well," said Stephanie's mother, Tamela Minor. "She should come home on Monday. I can't wait. It seems like ages she's been away."

Stephanie has spent 11 weeks of her life so far in the hospital.

Adults or older children could receive larger pacemakers without great difficulty, said Ms. Deal, a pediatric cardiologist. But inserting such a device in a 6-month-old was just about out of the question — conventional "pacemakers are so bulky and it's such an unpleasant operation," she said.

Larger pacemakers also increase the chances for infection, said Scagliotti.

Stephanie was born with apnea, a disorder that affected her breathing. That, in turn, affected her heart, doctors said, but they did not know exactly why.

Doctors hope Stephanie will outgrow the heart-rate difficulty and the pacemaker can be removed.

"It will probably be left in for 1 to 2 years," said Ms. Deal. But if it's needed longer, it may be left inside the child's chest for 7 or 8 years.

"That's about the limit for a pacemaker," Ms. Deal said.

The small size has another benefit.

"She'll have a small scar but it won't be very remarkable," said Ms. Deal.

PATIENT — Tamela Minor holds her 6-month-old daughter, Stephanie, recently at the University of Illinois Medical Center in Chicago where a Pacemaker the size of a silver dollar was implanted in the child. The little girl's heartbeat has been dangerously low all of her life. The Pacemaker has moved the heartbeat to the normal 100 times per minute. (AP Laserphoto)

Father Kills 6 Children, Himself

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — A woman whose husband killed their six children then took his own life "loved that man so much" that she hid his guns from police when he fired shots into a wall during an argument two months ago, a neighbor said.

James Alan Day, 36, shot each of his children once in the head while his wife was at work Thursday, then sat down in a rocking chair in the living room, put the gun to his head and shot himself, said detective Lt. Gary Weber.

Candace Day returned home to find the bodies of her children Michael, 15; Bart, 14; John, 9; Stephan, 8; Christopher, 7; and Laura, 6, in their beds, Weber said. There was no apparent motive, but the couple had a history of domestic trouble, he said.

Mrs. Day, 36, told neighbors her husband had fired several shots into walls and doors while threatening her after a quarrel about two months ago.

"When the law came, she took and hid the guns so he wouldn't get arrested," said Sandy McGuinn, who lives two houses away. "She apparently loved that man so much she'd go through any kind of grief to keep him."

The couple separated temporarily about two years ago after Day beat his wife, who filed for divorce last year but had the petition dismissed after she reconciled with her husband, neighbors said.

Mrs. Day told police there had been no recent quarrels or other problems she was aware of that might have prompted the shootings, Weber said. She said her husband and children were asleep when she left for work about 2:30 a.m.

Mrs. Day had started a job Monday with the U.S. Postal Service.

Day had worked as an electrician at the Whirlpool Corp. appliance plant here since 1980. He was scheduled to work Wednesday night, but did not show up or telephone the plant, said company spokeswoman Debbie Litchford.

He was known as being "fairly quiet," Ms. Litchford said.

About 50 neighbors watched Thursday as the bodies were removed from the four-bedroom brick house, a rent-subsidized unit of the Evansville Housing Authority.

Sherry Grayson, who lives nearby, said she heard crying and screaming after Mrs. Day arrived home around 10 a.m., and went outside to find her in hysterics on the lawn.

Mrs. Day phoned police from her home after discovering the killings, Weber said.

The gun Day was holding was a .45-caliber automatic that had been converted to use .22-caliber ammunition, he said. The gun would not have made much noise, which could explain why none of the children awoke and escaped, said Vanderburgh County Deputy Coroner William Sandefur.

Police records showed Day had been arrested five times since 1977 for theft, battery and traffic violations. None of the charges involved his family.

National Hot Line Opens To Trace Missing Children

WASHINGTON (AP) — Operators are geared up to handle a possible avalanche of calls following today's opening of a nationwide telephone hot line to gather information on missing children.

"We think it's going to be an awful lot," Jay Howell, executive director of the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, said Thursday. "We're prepared to do whatever we have to do. No one is certain what the demand's going to be."

Howell is overseeing the startup of the first federally funded nationwide service to take tips on the whereabouts of missing children. Each year somewhere between 500,000 and 2 million children are reported missing.

"We are confident that this national telephone number will result in many missing children being safely returned to their homes,"

Howell said.

People with information on missing children may call a toll-free number and relay their leads to operators working at the center's computer bank. The tips will then be turned over to local, state and federal law enforcement agencies.

The toll-free number is 1-800-843-5678. Until Alaska and Hawaii are tied into the toll-free number, the temporary number for those states is 202-634-9836. Calls for information and assistance are received at the National Center's main number, 202-634-9821.

A former district attorney in Florida and a U.S. Senate investigator, Howell also is overseeing preparation of materials to help parents proceed when their children are missing, advise law enforcement officers on the latest search techniques and educate families on how to prevent abductions and sexual abuse of youngsters.

He gave some examples of specific advice:

— Police investigating the case of a missing child should return to the scene of the disappearance 24 hours, 48 hours and a week after the initial report to canvass for witnesses whose regular activities bring them into the area.

"Don't ask, 'did you see anything suspicious?'" Howell counsels. "Instead ask, 'what did you see?'"

— Authorities should assume from the outset that the disappearance of a child may be a kidnapping. "The first few minutes may be the only time during which evidence or information is going to come to light about the child," he said.

— Children should be given clear information about danger signals to watch out for.

British Block Bargain Rate For Trans-Atlantic Travel

LONDON (AP) — The British government has rejected all applications from British and U.S. airlines for cheap trans-Atlantic winter fares, saying it feared that approval could lead to new antitrust actions in America.

Pan American World Airways and Trans World Airlines, two big U.S. carriers, had planned to offer a $189 one-way fare beginning Nov. 1.

Deputy Transport Minister Michael Spicer said Thursday that Britain turned down the applications because the U.S. State Department did not respond to a British request for iron-clad guarantees that British airlines would not face antitrust action in American courts if Britain approved the cheaper fares.

Virgin Atlantic, Britain's newest low-cost airline, had opposed the winter price cuts, accusing the major American and British carriers of the same "predatory" practice that they allegedly used to drive Laker Airways into bankruptcy.

The liquidator of Laker Airways, which pioneered cheap trans-Atlantic travel, is suing British Airways, British Caledonian and eight other European and American airlines in a billion-dollar antitrust suit in the United States. The civil suit alleges the 10 airlines conspired to drive Laker out of business.

The U.S. Justice Department is also investigating whether the trans-Atlantic competitors were guilty of collusion when they lowered fares in 1982 to compete with Laker.

The decision means that British Airways' cheapest London-New York round-trip fare will stay at about $331 instead of dropping as planned to about $308.21 — just $1.19 more than Virgin Atlantic's $307.02 round-trip fare.

EPA Reclaiming States' Powers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency is planning to take authority away from most states to review new industrial plants for the pollution effect they might have on national parks and wilderness areas.

Agreeing with environmentalists that the states had done a poor job, EPA announced Thursday that it will propose regulations to directly take over the protection of visibility around pristine areas.

EPA said only two of the 35 states near wilderness and park areas — Alaska and Louisiana — have adopted plans that the agency ordered in 1980 for monitoring visibility and assuring that new plants do not further impair it.

Of the remaining 33 states, Chris Rice, an EPA spokesman commented: "Basically, they forfeited the opportunity. Now, any new industry is going to have to get approval from the feds instead of the states."

Rice added, however, that each state is still being given four months to come up with its own plan before EPA takes its program over.

Reagan Steals Show As Mondale Stays Home

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — President Reagan held the spotlight at the annual Al Smith memorial fund raiser, listening as the largely Catholic crowd cheered him and booed Walter F. Mondale as the man who didn't come for dinner.

Mondale's decision to stay home and rehearse for his foreign policy debate with Reagan on Sunday was the center of attention at the 39th annual dinner Thursday night in memory of the Democratic Party's 1928 presidential candidate.

More than 2,000 people attended the dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria. And some of them booed as the dinner chairman read Mondale's letter of regret to Roman Catholic Archbishop John O'Connor, president of the Alfred E. Smith charitable foundation.

Reagan, who returned to Washington to resume his own debate preparations, made only a glancing public reference to his rival's absence.

Instead he focused his brief speech on Smith and two leading New York prelates, the late Cardinal Francis Spellman and the late Cardinal Terence Cooke.

"Here we are at the height of the season marked by differences of opinion," Reagan told his audience. "And yet all this striving and all these contesting issues fade to insignificance in the clear light of example these men set for us, each in his own unique way."

Referring to Cooke, whom Reagan visited last year shortly before the cardinal's death, the president said he knew Cooke best in "circumstances of dire spiritual need." He made clear he was referring to the cardinal's prayers and encouragement after Reagan was shot by would-be assassin John Hinckley.

"Nothing could have meant more to me — and to Nancy — than Cardinal Cooke's visit with us at the White House while I was recovering from young Mr. Hinckley's unwelcome attentions," the president said.

In his benediction, O'Connor said, humorously, that "despite rumors to the contrary," God has not announced that he is "either a Democrat or a Republican."

That is so, he said, "because we all want to claim you and so it should be."

O'Connor has been a frequent critic of Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro's stand on abortion.

The hotel's ballroom was filled to overflowing and O'Connor announced that the estimated 2,200 people who attended were the largest crowd in the history of the Al Smith dinners and the largest single party in the history of the hotel.

The crowding was as bad on the dais as on the floor and as he searched for a place to sit, the archbishop announced: "Either the president of the United States or I are without a seat. And I have no intention of standing."

Another place was set, but the president referred both to the chair crisis and to the absent Mondale when he said he didn't understand "how the absence of one individual could cause three of us not to have seats."

Other prominent politicians at the dinner included New York's Democratic Gov. Mario Cuomo and Sens. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., and Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., and New York's Democratic Mayor Edward Koch.

Reagan called Democrat Al Smith, "the happy warrior to whom time and respect and affectionate memory have elevated beyond partisanship."

The Al Smith dinners have been a traditional campaign way stop for contenders for the presidency since 1960 when John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon encountered each other at the event.

Nixon passed up the 1972 dinner, though, and sent Vice President Spiro T. Agnew as a stand-in.

Reagan and then President Jimmy Carter exchanged their first handshakes at the Al Smith dinner in 1980, then exchanged barbs.

Other prominent figures who have spoken at the event over the years include President Dwight D. Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

After Mondale sent his regrets to this year's gathering, the sponsoring committee refused an offer by the Democrats that his running mate attend in his place.

Today Reagan had only one event on a light schedule, signing anti-terrorism legislation passed in the last days of the 98th Congress.

He plans no other political appearances until he arrives in Kansas City on Sunday for the 8 p.m. EDT debate.

He is scheduled to speak at a Reagan-Bush rally in Kansas City immediately before his face-off with Mondale and some White House officials hope that will give the president a psychological boost.

Bush Says Dive Didn't Cause Undue Concern

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

SEATTLE (AP) — Vice President George Bush, a Navy combat pilot downed during World War II, says he didn't even notice the 200-foot dive taken by Air Force Two to avoid colliding with a light airplane on approach to Seattle.

"I didn't know one single thing about it," said Bush, who was alone reading papers in his cabin Thursday when Capt. Wayne Williams, in the cockpit of Air Force Two, spotted the small plane on a collision course, coming from the left side.

Williams, who was the aircraft commander but sitting in the co-pilot's seat, immediately plunged the vice president's aircraft — a military version of the 707 with about 40 people on board — into a steep dive.

"You're talking to an old Navy pilot where we used to fly wing-to-wing, the guys' wingtips almost touching. Two hundred feet. That seems like a mile to me," Bush said later when asked if the close call had made him leery about flying again.

"It seemed to me we were right on collision course and that small aircraft would have come right into the side of Air Force Two if the co-pilot had not spotted it and taken the evasive action," said Phil Jones, a CBS television correspondent aboard Air Force Two to interview the vice president.

At the time, the skies were sunny and clear. Informed of the near mishap several minutes later, Bush "glanced up and didn't seem concerned at all," said an aide, Joe Hagin.

"I literally wasn't aware at all and somebody had to come up and tell me well after the fact that there had been that near miss," Bush said. "I do recall in retrospect the plane going down relatively fast."

He emerged from the plane smiling and acting as if nothing had happened and walked over to a gate to shake hands with dozens of well-wishers. Nearing the end of a six-day campaign swing, Bush planned to tour Todd Shipyards today before flying to Council Bluffs, Iowa, and then on to Washington.

More than 4,000 workers have lost their jobs at Puget Sound shipyards over the past two years, and layoffs are threatened for another 1,000, posing an election-year problem for President Reagan.

Bush's press secretary, Peter Teeley, said the Puget Sound yards, paying high union wages, have "got a competitive problem with other yards." Even so, he said, "We want to keep America strong and our Navy the best in the world. We know the Mondale-Ferraro ticket does not share our commitment to the 600-ship Navy."

The near collision Thursday was the second time in less than three weeks that Bush's plane, with the vice president on board, has come unusually close to small, private aircraft.

On Sept. 30, Bush's aircraft came within three-fourths of a mile laterally and 500 feet vertically of a Cessna 310 about 13,000 feet over Ohio. Neither plane had to take evasive action and Air Force Two passengers were not aware of the incident.

Hagin said Thursday's incident was "much more noticeable... This was closer than we'd all like to see it."

The aide said Bush's plane was at about 3,000 feet, descending toward Seattle's Boeing Field, when Williams spotted the other aircraft.

"He took control of the plane and we dropped approximately 200 feet rapidly."

He estimated the small plane was less than 500 feet from Air Force Two.

Asked if the small plane had been at the same altitude as Air Force Two, Hagin said, "Apparently — heading right toward."

Ferraro Says Reagan Policies Made World More Dangerous

NEW YORK (AP) — Geraldine Ferraro says President Reagan has pursued a foreign policy of "inaction and inattention" that has made the United States less secure and the world more dangerous.

As part of the buildup for Sunday's critical foreign policy showdown between Walter F. Mondale and President Reagan, the Democratic vice presidential nominee is portraying the differences between Reagan and Mondale in stark terms and telling voters that their choice all but amounts to life or death.

However, Ms. Ferraro said Thursday she is not trying to "soften up" Reagan before the nationally broadcast debate.

"What I was trying to do was set forth our views on foreign policy, our views of his record, the administration's record over the past four years," she said.

"We anticipate that Fritz Mondale will be able to present our program, and, perhaps, the president might be able to explain away his record, but I just don't think he's going to be able to do that."

Ms. Ferraro was back home in Queens today after returning Thursday night from a long West Coast swing. She planned no public appearances until an address on arms control Saturday at the University of Massachusetts.

On Thursday, she told students at the University of Washington in Seattle, "No difference between the two parties could be more profound than the disagreement on war and peace."

In an intense appeal, she said, "There is a choice this year."

"On Nov. 6, if you want to continue the track we're on, then vote for Ronald Reagan."

"But if you want to negotiate a nuclear freeze, stop the covert war in Central America, relaunch the diplomacy of peace and fight for human rights, then vote for Walter Mondale."

"Inaction and inattention are no substitute for energy and understanding," she said.

Shultz Says Move Welcomed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Reagan administration welcomes Soviet leader Konstantin Chernenko's call for U.S. moves to break the arms control deadlock, and is ready to move rapidly to discuss arms reductions, says Secretary of State George P. Shultz.

Shultz departed from prepared remarks at a dinner Thursday night to comment on statements made this week by the Soviet president, who said the U.S. can signal its desire for improved relations by negotiating seriously on one of the arms control proposals advanced by Moscow, such as a nuclear weapons freeze. "I can assure you this administration welcomes yesterday's statement by Chairman Chernenko that the Soviets are ready to pursue a constructive dialogue with us," he said at the dinner sponsored by the Rand-UCLA Center for the Study of Soviet Behavior.

When asked by an audience member if Chernenko's comments might have been timed to coincide with the U.S. presidential election, Shultz said he didn't know.

"What I do know is that we're ready to respond to constructive moves and we're ready today, we'll be ready tomorrow, we'll be ready in the middle of November, we'll be ready in December, and, if the president is reelected, we'll be ready in February," he said.

Shultz described his 35-minute speech as an analysis of the "conceptual basis" of U.S.-Soviet relations.

"Our premise is that we should become strong so that we are able to negotiate," Shultz said.

Shultz said the Soviets were urged to improve their human rights record.

A reputation founded on no hidden costs.

The Wilkerson family, owners of Pinewood Memorial Park, has always felt that there was something particularly wrong with gimmicks or hidden costs in either the funeral home or cemetery business.

But, believe it or not, everyday people all over this country are being fooled by undisclosed or unmentioned costs and "special deals" both in pre-arranged funerals and in purchasing grave sites.

And the reason is simple. Since these subjects aren't especially pleasant, people remain uninformed. So it pays to learn a little about what you're doing before you buy.

Ways costs are sometimes hidden. Even with preselected and pre-paid grave sites, cemeteries usually charge a fee to "open" and "close" a grave site when the time comes. Some charge extra for weekend and holidays. So be sure you know how much these costs will be before you buy. Or better yet, deal with Pinewood Memorial Park, where all costs are disclosed and discussed in consultation with you.

Another way costs are sometimes hidden by others is by charging for marker installation. For example, suppose you bought a double bronze marker that is stored until the need arises. Be sure you know if there will be additional costs for installation and how much they will be. Your marker may require a base — is it extra? Surprise costs in a time of grief can be tragic.

Above all, beware of "package" deals and be careful. They are not always what they seem to be.

Find out about costs from professionals. With a reputation of 26 years hinging on a low key approach and full disclosure of all costs especially for 'pre-need' purchases, S.G. Wilkerson & Sons, owners and managers of Pinewood Memorial Park would like to tell you more.

We're certain that when all is said and done and the totals are in, you'll find Pinewood costs less, not more than unknown quantities.

So let us help you become more informed. We'll respect your decision, no matter what. But let us serve your needs.

One of the necessities for a pass completion at football is for the receiver never to take his eye off the ball. At bridge, the spot cards are your footballs. Watch those spots! They can be made to work wonders.

North-South reached an excellent spade slam. The key bid was North's raise with a doubleton honor — more than enough for a suit that partner had rebid at the three-level.

This hand is from a duplicate tournament, and only a handful of the declarers succeeded in making their contracts. Some won the opening lead, crossed to the king of trumps and tried to guess the club situation. Whether they led to the king or the knave was immaterial — they eventually had to lose a diamond trick as well.

Others tried to ruff a diamond. Unfortunately, East overruffed — down one.

The successful declarers were those who realized the table's J-9 of hearts were equals with the queen. At trick two, they led the jack of hearts from the board and sluffed their club loser. As a result of this loser-on-loser play, dummy's nine of hearts was now a trick. Declarer could win any return, cash the king of trumps and enter dummy with the queen. Now the nine of hearts could be cashed to take care of declarer's diamond loser, and the rest was easy.

This combination of equals appears in many guises. If you are aware of it, you will be surprised at how often it turns up at the table.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Body Found After Crash KAYENTA, Ariz. (AP) — The body of an Air Force colonel who had been missing since a B-52 bomber crashed on a mesa in Monument Valley has been found, and authorities say it could be months before the accident's cause is known.

The body of Col. William L. Ivy, 43, of Stockton, Calif., was found Thursday night amid the wreckage of the bomber at the south end of the impact area, said George Pierce, a spokesman at Kirtland Air Force Base, N.M.

One other crew member was killed and five were injured when the bomber apparently scraped the mesa Tuesday night and exploded in a fireball witnesses said was seen 10 miles away, authorities said.

Rain and snow had hindered rescue and search efforts and teams flown into the Navajo Reservation by helicopter finally reached the wreckage Thursday night and "located the missing colonel and he was dead," Pierce said.

Authorities had thought that Ivy, an observer on the low-level training flight, might have survived the crash and said he was equipped with a survival kit that included an artic sleeping bag, food, water and a radio.

With that kit, they said, he could have survived indefinitely if he were not critically injured.

The five survivors were reported in fair or good condition Thursday at San Juan Regional Medical Center in Farmington, N.M.

The other victim, Sgt. David W. Felix, 26, of Faribault, Minn., may have suffered a head injury when his parachute was blown into a cliff, rescue workers said. The exact cause of his death was not known Thursday.

President Signs Security Measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, decrying the growing problem of international terrorism, today signed legislation that authorizes $366 million to increase security at U.S. embassies abroad and creates a $10 million fund to pay rewards for anti-terrorist information.

Under the bill, rewards of up to $500,000 will be paid for information about a planned terrorist act against Americans or U.S. property, or for information leading to the conviction of those who commit terrorist acts.

In a written statement, the president said the United States must maintain a global presence "and not succumb to these cowardly attempts at intimidation."

He said the bill provides resources "essential in countering the insidious threat terrorism poses to those who cherish freedom and democracy."

"This act is an important step in our multi-year effort to counter the pervasive threat international terrorism poses to our diplomatic personnel and facilities overseas," Reagan said in a written statement.

He said it complements separate measures taken with U.S. allies aimed at countering terrorists. "While none of these steps guarantee that terrorist acts will not occur again, we can be certain that the measures made possible by this act will make such attacks more difficult in the future," the president added.

The money was sought by the Reagan administration in the wake of bombings against the U.S. embassy in Lebanon.

In its request for the money, the State Department said it would be used to improve security at 70 of the most threatened U.S. posts by installing walls, fences, lighting, barriers and guard booths.

It also would allow the deputy assistant secretary of state to use a government car to travel to and from work.

In addition, the bill urged Reagan to seek "more effective international cooperation in dealing with international terrorists." It also encourages the United States to work toward establishing an international working group to combat terrorism.

Reagan said that since Sept. 1, there have been 41 terrorist attacks by 14 terrorist groups against 21 nations.

Black Churchgoers Told To Lead Way

WASHINGTON (AP) — Black churches and their clergy can lead the way in building a more just society, but doing it will take action, not just preaching, a national conference of black Christians was told.

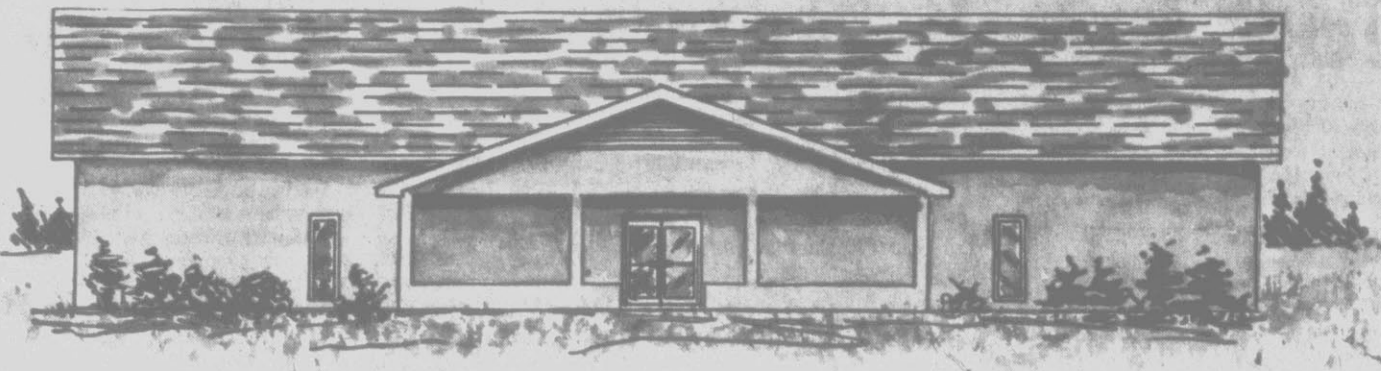

"Preaching sermons ain't going to change it," said black theologian James Cone of New York. He said the need is for "commitment to faith and justice" as exemplified by the late Martin Luther King Jr.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, stopping by on the campaign trail for the Democratic ticket, said "our religion makes us political. It will not let us be quiet. It will not let us sit down."

The Rev. T.J. Jemison of Baton Rouge, La., president of the National Baptist Convention of 7 million blacks, said that "never before in the history of the nation has the black church stood in such a pivotal position."

"It has a great opportunity to let the nation know it is heading in the wrong direction." But to do that, he said, "we must change from rhetoric to example."

Expensive Hunt-Helms Race Leads Nation's Costly Senate Campaigns

By DAVID GOELLER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Campaign spending has reached $20 million in one pivotal U.S. Senate race and topped $10 million in another, with the bitter contest in North Carolina already breaking the all-time high for a two-person battle.
According to the latest federal reports, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., spent nearly $12.8 million — itself a record for a single candidate — on his re-election effort from the start of 1983 through last Sept. 30.
Gov. Jim Hunt, his Democratic challenger, reported spending nearly $7.2 million in the same period. While Hunt trailed Helms by far in spending, his outlay was still among the highest of candidates seeking the 33 Senate seats up for grabs this year.

1982 race won by Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., over former Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.
And before Helms and Hunt are finished, they will exceed the approximately $20 million spent in the 1982 California sweepstakes by Wilson, Brown and the 15 other candidates who vied for the seat in the primary.
The North Carolina race is considered extremely close, with the lead bouncing between the two candidates in polls over the last several months. The latest Charlotte Observer poll gave Hunt a 4 percentage point lead, with a 3.5 point margin of error.
And as he headed into the final five weeks of the campaign, Hunt told federal officials that he had $684,630 left in his war chest, compared to $154,591 for Helms.
The other $10 million-plus contest is in Texas, where Rep. Phil Gramm, a Democrat-turned-Republican, is battling Democratic state Sen. Lloyd Doggett for the seat held by Republican John Tower, who is retiring.
Gramm reported spending $6.76 million between January 1983 and Sept. 30, nearly double the $3.6 million reported by Doggett, whose financing includes $273,000 in personal loans or loans guaranteed by the candidate.
Doggett, however, had a big edge Sept. 30 in unspent campaign funds — $696,957 to $83,086 for Gramm, who even Texas Democrats concede has at least a six-point lead in voter polls.
The North Carolina and Texas races are drawing big money from special interests. Through Sept. 30, political action committees gave Gramm $890,711; Hunt, $702,433; Helms, $661,763; and Doggett, $638,541.
These two races as well as relatively close contests in Illinois, Iowa and Massachusetts are considered crucial as Republicans attempt to retain the control of the Senate they captured in 1980. They currently outnumber Democrats 55-45.

In Illinois, incumbent Republican Charles Percy reported spending $3.69 million during the 21-month period, with $292,942 cash on hand. Percy, holding a slight lead, received $887,265 from PACs and $160,448 in personal loans.
The latest report by his Democratic opponent, Rep. Paul Simon, was not available on Thursday, but between January 1983 and last June 30 he spent $1.83 million, got $472,316 from PACs, and had some $88,000 available.
The Iowa race has been a see-saw affair between Republican incumbent Roger Jepsen and Democratic Rep. Tom Harkin, who had a 9-point lead in a recent statewide poll.
Through Sept. 30, Jepsen spent $2.13 million, got $633,561 from PACs and had $130,400 in available funds. In the same period, Harkin, who got $572,605 from PACs, spent $2.03 million and had $31,459 in cash.
In Massachusetts, Democratic Lt. Gov. John Kerry has a 7- or 8-point lead over Republican businessman Ray Shamie in the relatively low-budget race to fill the seat being vacated by Democrat Paul Tsongas.
Kerry has reported spending $1.02 million through Sept. 30, with $127,872 cash-in-hand. Lacking any money from PACs, his campaign got $309,000 through personal loans or loans guaranteed by Kerry.
Shamie's report for the period ending Sept. 30 was not available. In 1983, he got $3,750 from PACs and spent $281,388. His personal or guaranteed loans totaled $129,000.
Personal debts are the hallmark of the West Virginia race for the seat of Democrat Jennings Randolph, who is retiring.

Democratic Gov. Jay Rockefeller spent $7.79 million through Sept. 30. The bulk of his campaign treasury came from his personal fortune — $6.52 million in personal loans. In this regard, he is not far behind Mark Dayton, the Minnesota millionaire who pumped $6.9 million of his own money into his losing 1982 race against Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn.
Rockefeller's Republican opponent, businessman John Raese, reported personal loans of $326,725 in the 21-month period. He said his total spending was $570,223, with $15,737 still available.
Following are the latest figures for other Senate races for the 21-month period. The first figure is total spending; the second is PAC money; the third is cash available on Sept. 30; and the fourth is loans made by the candidate or guaranteed by the candidate.
—New Hampshire: Republican Sen. Gordon Humphrey, $684,667; $359,597; $256,853; 0. Democratic Rep. Norman D'Amours, $524,817; $274,097; $148,178; 0.
—Tennessee: Democratic Rep. Albert Gore Jr., $2,067 million; $721,051; $594,138; 0. Republican Victor Ashe, $1,27 million; $111,044; $84,498; $104,536.
—Michigan: Democratic Sen. Carl Levin, $2.37 million; $534,197; $486,641; 0. Former astronaut and Republican Jack Lousma, $911,816; $216,651; $111,797; $100,000.
—Kentucky: Democratic Sen. Walter Huddleston, $1.49 million; $689,625; $354,895; 0. Republican Mitch McConnell, $1.135 million; $103,546; $116,366; $25,000.

Reorganization

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — President Hernan Siles Zuazo completed a Cabinet reorganization by naming three members of his party and an independent to key posts.
Gualberto Mercado was sworn in Wednesday as finance minister, replacing Oscar Bonifaz, who had favored tougher austerity measures to control an inflation rate of 1,600 percent this year. Bonifaz' Christian Democrats quit the government last week in a policy dispute.
This is the sixth Cabinet named by Siles Zuazo in the two years since he became Bolivia's first elected president in nearly two decades. The previous one resigned Oct. 8.

Condemned

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet media has condemned the arrest of antiwar activist Benjamin Spock in Washington this week as a violation of human rights and repression of the peace movement.
The official news agency Tass issued six articles Wednesday on Spock's arrest. Stories denouncing the action were also published by the government daily Izvestia and Komsomolskaya Pravda, official newspaper of the Soviet youth organization.
The 80-year-old pediatrician, whose child care books have been widely circulated in the Soviet Union, was arrested Monday for violating court-approved restrictions on demonstrations in front of the White House.
Spock was freed later Monday, but the stories in the Soviet press nonetheless demanded his immediate release.

Plea Rejected

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — The supreme court has rejected a plea to stop the extradition of Argentine leftist guerrilla leader Mario Firmenich.
The ruling means Firmenich, 35, former head of the Montonero guerrilla group, could be sent back to Argentina at any time, a court official said.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

WAYS OF WAR

THE BIBLICAL KINGS AND THEIR ARMIES OPERATED ACCORDING TO WELL LAID PLANS! HIGH ON THEIR PRIORITIES WAS THE SURPRISE TACTIC. AMBUSH WAS ALWAYS A DECIDED FAVORITE OF THESE ANCIENT TACTICIANS. IF THEY COULD GET THE OPPOSING ARMY TO FALL INTO A TRAP THIS WAS MORE TO BE DESIRED THAN A HUGE FRONTAL ASSAULT WITH ITS POSSIBILITY OF FAILURE. A VERY POPULAR MANEUVER WAS TO HIDE A LINE OF TROOPS BEHIND A HILL AS AN OPPOSING ARMY WAS ADVANCING, THEN, AT THE PROPER TIME, THE TROOPS HIDDEN BEHIND THE HILL WOULD SPRING UP AND SHOWER THE ADVANCING ENEMY WITH DEADLY FLIGHTS OF ARROWS! MORE TIMES THAN NOT THE RESULT WAS A THOROUGHLY EFFECTIVE ACTION!

Evangelist's Son Making Mark In Father's Empire

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — At the beginning of his television program, Richard Roberts, like many other talk show hosts, bounces out from behind a curtain and launches into an upbeat song when introduced.

However, unlike the typical host, Roberts sings inspirational songs. Instead of interviewing a guest about his or her latest movie, Roberts questions his guests about their religious experiences.

With the fall debut of the daily Richard Roberts Show, Roberts is making his first attempt at hosting a show in the medium that launched his father, evangelist Oral Roberts, into prominence.

For years, Roberts has appeared on his father's weekly television programs — singing and expanding on the religious doctrine preached by his father. In recent years, he also has served as executive producer.

The hour-long Richard Roberts Show is broadcast live from television studios in the Mabey Center, located on the campus of Oral Roberts University. The center also contains a sports arena. Roberts tells the viewers of his show that its purpose is to "encourage, entertain, inform and help them find answers to the problems they face daily."

Except for brief musical interludes provided by a 14-member band and a group called the Oral Roberts Singers, Roberts is on camera for most of the program. He is assisted on the show by his wife, Lindsey.

Immaculately dressed, Roberts wanders around the huge set either to sit on a sofa and talk to his wife about letters from viewers asking for prayers, or circulates among the audience.

In the audience, he seeks reports from "real people with miracle stories on physical, emotional, spiritual and financial problems they have overcome through prayers."

During a recent show, Roberts combined the real people stories with another segment of the show he calls "news updates" to form a near 15-minute promotion of Oral Roberts' City of Faith Medical Center which opened in 1981.

The hospital has had financial problems in recent months because of a lack of patients. Roberts talked of a number of hospital promotions and touted a new hospital policy of offering free treatment to the poor.

Roberts, in keeping with the recent emergence of his healing ministry, also prays for viewers who call a bank of telephones located on the show's set.

Like his father, Roberts has refused to be interviewed by the media in recent months, and recently declined to talk about the show sponsored by the Oral Roberts Evangelistic Association.

However, the producer of the show, Harry Salem, said the idea of the program came from the son.

"The idea resulted from Richard receiving word from a Chicago man who said he was delivered from drug addiction while watching Oral Roberts' Sunday show," Salem said. "He decided if that was what the show was doing, why should the viewer have to wait seven days to be helped by the ministry?"

The cost of doing the show has not been determined, Salem said. He said because the show is produced in house, using the same technical people who produce the Oral Roberts shows, a budget has not yet been developed.

Earlier this year, Oral Roberts revealed that about $15 million a year is spent producing television and radio shows for his ministry.

During his show, Roberts makes pitches for contributions from viewers, asking for $100 first and then for lesser amounts. After the show, collection baskets are passed among the audience.

Currently the show is on about 80 television stations across the country, according to Salem, with more added weekly.

driven by the juveniles. He said other officers came into his view until 10 officers were on the scene.

"The thing I remember most vividly was Mr. Gwin's body hitting the ground," Creel testified. "I was looking through the legs of eight or 10 officers. I saw as many as two, possibly four, kicking and stomping Mr. Gwin's body."

Creel said he approached three officers at the scene and was told to move along. He said he reported the incident to Highway Patrol Capt. Carl Gilchrist.

Under cross-examination, Creel testified that he did not see Evans kicked anybody. "I can't identify who kicked and stomped Mr. Gwin," he added. "It happened so fast and there were too many people there and there was too much confusion and I was looking at the backs of the law officers."

In other testimony Thursday, Sheriff's Superintendent and Criminal Investigator Larry Parker testified that he went to Pitt County Memorial Hospital Feb. 4 to see that the deputy guarding Gwin had been relieved at the end of his shift.

Parker said he asked Gwin who had injured him and that Gwin had replied, "a black state trooper wearing blue and a hat with GPD on it." Evans is white.

The state rested its case Wednesday.

Bucs No Breather For Pirates

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

There's probably no argument that when the 1984 football season opened, this Saturday's game with East Tennessee State was looked at as a breather in the midst of a tough East Carolina schedule.

But it hasn't worked out that way. East Carolina, rather than moving along toward a third-straight winning season, has sunk into the quicksand of a 1-6 losing year, while the Buccaneers of ETSU have put together one of their best starts ever and are 4-2 and ranked 19th in the Division I-AA polls.

It's Homecoming for the Pirates, with kickoff set for 2 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium. It's only the third home game in eight contests for the Pirates — with one more home game still to go, a November 10 date with Southern Mississippi.

East Tennessee, which has usually served as an easy game for the Pirates, isn't expected to roll over and play dead Saturday — and the Pirates will probably have a struggle on their hands to snap their three-game losing skid. Over the last three seasons, ETSU was easy quarry for the Pirates, losing 66-23 in 1981, 30-0 two years ago and 21-9 last season.

"East Tennessee has one of the best defenses in the country," ECU Coach Ed Emory said. "They are leading the nation in three categories and return 19 of their 22 starters from a year ago."

Going into last Saturday's game with Furman, won 28-16 by the Paladins, the Buccaneers were leading the NCAA Division I-AA ranks in scoring defense and were third in two other areas. ETSU was allowing but 6.0 points a game (up to 9.7 now). They were allowing only 71.8 yards a game rushing, and 220.0 yards in total offense — both third best in the country.

"They really swarm to the ball on defense," Emory added.

"They have a veteran offensive line and four fine running backs. Their quarterback is getting better and better every week. And they threw the ball 37 times last week."

That in itself is bad news for the Pirates, who have yet to put together a decent pass defense this year.

Emory displayed a letter at his weekly press conference Tuesday from a disgruntled fan, imploring him to "give priority to recruit defensive backs."

"But," Emory said, "it's not all the defensive backs." The up-front play has not been good on the pass rush, getting only nine sacks this year, as compared to 25 last year in seven games, and 22 the year before. "Our linebackers (inside and defensive ends) haven't gotten their hands on the ball this year either. Your secondary is only as good as the people up front."

A check of the past few years shows not only that the Pirate pass defense is at its weakest this year, it hasn't been all that sharp over the past six seasons.

Using the NCAA's complicated formula for grading pass efficiency, the Pirate opponents for the past 12 years were compared. While the number of passes thrown has steadily increased to a high of 342 last year, the Pirate defense has not kept pace. For example, in 1973, opponents hit on 212 of 257 passes for 1,511 yards and eight touchdowns. However, 22 passes were intercepted. That gives under the NCAA formula a pass rating of 89.62.

Up until Pat Dye's final year, the pass rating ranged from a low of 63.82 to a high of 95.66.

But in Dye's final year, it soared to 115.25, then went to 130.23 in Emory's first season. It dropped to 122.80 in 1981, to 121.52 in 1982 and last year was at its lowest since 1978 with a 109.27 ranking. This year, it's currently 142.0, the highest ever.

The number of interceptions by the Pirates has dropped from a high of 26 in 1976 to just six so far this year. The number of touchdowns against ECU has climbed from an average of 6.1 from 1973 to 79 (low of two, high of nine) to 12.2 for the six years since (low of nine last year, high of 15 in 1980). So far this year, 12 touchdowns have been thrown against the Pirates.

And while the Pirates have played a tougher schedule and better quarterbacks over the past few years, it is obvious that they haven't kept pace.

(Note: in setting up the NCAA formula, all passers over a 14-year period were ranked with 100.0 considered the average of them all.)

Oddly enough, ETSU's current quarterback, Robbie White (6-1, 192, Jr.) took over the job only two weeks ago when the then-number one QB, along with four other players were suspended for the season by Sasser. White has — going into the Furman game — hit on 18 of 36 passes for 201 yards, and two interceptions. He had not thrown a touchdown pass going into the Furman game. (Updated stats have not been made available by ETSU's sports information office.)

White's chief target has been flanker Paul Rose (5-11, 186, Sr.), who caught 13 passes for 194 yards prior to Furman. Split end Jim Murphy (6-3, 192, Sr.) has pulled in nine for 104 yards.

Tailback Jerry Butler (5-11, 187, Jr.) is the leading rusher, with 296 yards, while backup Herman Jacobs (5-6, 187, So.) has rushed for 167 yards.

The leading scorer is kicker Herbie Campbell, with 22 points. He's hit four of four PAT's and six of eight field goals.

Emory says that the Pirates must concentrate on winning the game. "That's our goal now: to beat East Tennessee State and to play with pride. If we're still thinking about our losses, we'd better watch out. If we revamp our attitude and go after a win, I think we'll be all right."

Emory said that the Pirates are

Coastal Champions

D.H. Conley's Valkyries went 20-0 during the regular season to win the Coastal Conference volleyball championship this year. Members of the team are, first row, left to right: Michelle Waters, Miriam Fulford, Rhonda

Conley Wins First Test

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley's Valkyries had little trouble in disposing of Swansboro in the first round of the State Volleyball Playoffs yesterday.

Conley rolled up a 15-6 win in the first game and closed it out with a 15-8 victory in the second.

Lisa Mills served up seven straight points in the opening game to spark the Valkyries and added six hits in the match. Debbie Patrick had four hits and Rhonda Jackson added three.

Coach Martha McCaskill cited Michelle Waters, Darby Fulford and Trelaney Boyd for their play in the match also.

Now 21-0, Conley will play the winner of the Wallace-Rose Hill and Wilmington Laney match in round two of the playoffs. That match, however, will not be played until Monday, so it will be then before the Valkyries find out who their opponent will be for the match, which will be played in the latter part of next week.

Beck, Booros Are Tied For Lead In Disney Golf

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Chip Beck and Jim Booros, tied for the lead after the first round of the $400,000 Walt Disney World Golf Classic, have vastly different goals this week.

Beck, a frequent challenger, is seeking that elusive first victory on the PGA Tour.

And Booros, with the odds against him, simply is seeking an extension of his golfing life, in this, the next-to-last event on the 10-month Tour.

"I've only made six cuts this year," Booros said after he had hit short irons inside of 4 feet for five easy birdies in his 8-under-par 64 Thursday, by far his best effort of the season.

"I've got about $11,000 (in winnings for the year). I need to win about $30,000," the 31-year-old Booros said.

He said that is the figure he'll need to secure a spot in the top 125 money-winners for the season and thus retain his playing rights. If he doesn't make it, he said he'll return to work as a club pro at a municipal course in Allentown, Pa. He has not applied for the Tour Qualifying School, the only other avenue available for him to qualify for play next year.

"The way I've played the last two years, sometimes you just hate to be out here. It's no fun. But last week (at the Southern Open) I birdied the last five holes for a 65 in the last round and that kind of carried over here. And the last two rounds have been fun," Booros said.

Beck, who scored an eagle-3 and missed a 10-foot putt for a second eagle, and Booros both played without bogeys on the Lake Buena Vista course, one of three layouts used for the first three rounds of this event.

A single stroke off the pace at 65 were Danny Edwards, who once teamed with his brother to win the National Team Championship here, slump-ridden Bobby Clampett and British veteran Peter Oosterhuis.

The group at 66 included former U.S. Open and PGA champion Larry Nelson, Jay Haas, Frank Conner, Gene Sauers and Jay Overton.

Of those nine leaders, seven played at the Lake Buena Vista course. Nelson and Haas were at the Magnolia course.

Hubert Green, a winner last Sunday, and South African Denis Watson equalled the best score on the Palm course with 67s.

Denis Watson came into this tournament tied with the absent Tom Watson for the lead in the Player of the Year standings, and is one of three men who have a chance to overtake Tom Watson for the leading money-winning spot. Mark O'Meara, No. 2 on the list, had a 70 and Andy Bean shot 68, both at the Palm course.

The players have one round at each of the three courses before the field is trimmed for the final round at the Magnolia course Sunday.

Tom Baines is trying to make a runaway of it this year. He just doesn't want us to get any closer to him that we did last week.

Last week, despite having to throw out two ties, Baines still finished with an 8-2 record — not that he gloated — not much, that is. That boosted him into a four-game lead over Jimmy DuPree, his closest competitor. And he holds a whopping eight game lead over the next closest.

Baines brings a 53-28 mark into this week's contests, while DuPree is now 49-32. Vickie Spivey and this writer are now 45-36, while our guests are 44-37. Joe Jenkins, bless him, comes in with a 38-43 mark, a good 15 behind Baines.

"Only need one good week, and I'm back up there," Jenkins said. Unfortunately, we can't wait that long, Joe. But we should be nice to him today since it's his birthday.

Our guest last week, North Pitt coach Larry Bolger turned in a 5-5 record, leaving Dixon Sauls as the coaching champ of pickers with an 8-4 mark.

This week's guest is Greg Kerr.

the new sports director of WNCT-TV, Channel 9. Greg has a special interest in one of our games, Stanford vs. Washington State. His brother is on the Cardinal staff.

Our high school record last week was only 4-3, which brings us to a 43-18 mark for the year.

One of the key area games involves Greene Central at Ayden-Grifton. The Rams have really been rolling high since they started Eastern Carolina Conference play, having won three in a row. The Chargers, losers of two straight, need to come up with a win to get back into the race. This may be one of the best games of the year, and we're going to pick the Chargers to come out on top by a 14-7 score.

Farmville Central meanwhile goes to Charles B. Aycock. The Jaguars come off two heart-breaking losses and need to win. Aycock is coming off its first win of the season. Still, it's Farmville as the choice. 28-0.

North Pitt entertains Plymouth in a non-conference game. The Panthers are still winless, while Plymouth is showing signs of having its best year in some time. We have to go with the odds here, and give Plymouth a 21-7 edge. Conley travels to West Carteret in the toughest game to pick in the county. Conley has lost three in a row while West Carteret has been up and down. The Vikes have a lot of injuries and that could be the key factor. We look for West to win here, 12-7.

In other area games, it's Belhaven over Chocowinity, Jamesville over Aurora, Tarboro over Roanoke, Bertie over Washington, and Roanoke Rapids over Williamston.

Turning to the panel's picks, we find Rose traveling to Kinston. The Rampants are still trying to put together an offensive thrust after early season injuries halted their powerful machine. Kinston, meanwhile, has one of its best teams in years. The panel likes the Vikings, 6-0. Our own pick is Kinston by 18-13.

East Carolina, suffering through one of its tougher seasons, entertains East Tennessee State for Homecoming. The Pirates have won but once, over a Division I-AA team, and ETSU is currently 19th on the I-AA poll. Nobody's picking the Buccaneers, however, as we're all looking for ECU to pull this one out. Own own pick is ECU by 24-21.

Our other consensus picks: Clemson over Duke; N.C. State over North Carolina; Alabama over Tennessee; Kentucky and Louisiana State, a toss-up; Stanford over Washington State; Auburn over Georgia Tech; Virginia over Wake Forest; Texas A&M over Baylor; Boston College over West Virginia; and Illinois over Purdue. Raiders, Chargers Hit Bottom With Penalties

By The Associated Press
The order of the day for the Los Angeles Raiders and San Diego Chargers this Sunday could be, "To the rear, march!"

They've each been headed that way lately.

Last weekend the Raiders were hit with 11 penalties for minus 105 yards in the first half alone, but survived and defeated the Vikings 23-20 on Chris Bahr's field goal as time ran out. In Kansas City, the Chargers absorbed 11 penalties for minus 127 yards in their 31-13 loss to the Chiefs.

"We looked at the films," Chargers Coach Don Coryell said, "and we're playing the same way we always did. I don't know. It can be called or not be called. It depends on the official. We have to play it like we always play."

Tom Flores, the Los Angeles coach, says part of the Raiders' problem is their bad-guy image. "Teams approach us a little differently because of our reputation," he said. "But you can't go out and retaliate because of this. There's always some pushing and shoving going on out there, but it seems if you retaliate, you're the one that gets caught."

Elsewhere Sunday in the National Football League it's unbeaten Miami at New England, Kansas City at the New York Jets, San Francisco at Houston, Denver at Buffalo, Chicago at Tampa Bay, Cleveland at Cincinnati, Detroit at Minnesota, the New York Giants at Philadelphia, Pittsburgh at Indianapolis, Seattle vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee, Washington at St. Louis and, in a night game, New Orleans at Dallas. Monday night's game is the Los Angeles Rams at Atlanta.

The game in San Diego is a rematch of the meeting in Los Angeles last Sept. 24, when the Raiders eked out a 33-30 victory on Marcus Allen's four touchdowns, including the game-winner with 45 seconds to play.

"We don't seem to be operating smoothly," Flores said. "Obviously, the most important statistic is the won-lost column but we'd like to be able to win them with a little more margin. The Raiders are first in the American Conference West at 6-1 and the Chargers are tied for fourth at 4-3."

At that time, the Chargers had attempted to trade Chuck Muncie to Miami, a deal voided when he passed a drug test urinalysis, then shipped Pete Johnson to the Dolphins. And, having traded James Brooks to Cincinnati in order to get Johnson, it seemed San Diego had no runners of note.

Enter second-year pro Earnest Jackson.

He ran the ball 29 times for 155 yards against the Raiders (to Allen's 49 yards on 18 carries). Meanwhile, Dan Fouts, the pilot of Air Coryell, was outshone by LA quarterback Jim Plunkett, who completed 24 of 33 passes for 363 yards.

Jackson is second in AFC rushing with 550 yards and five touchdowns to the 438 yards and seven TDs by the fourth-place Allen. But while Plunkett now is injured and out of action (Marc Wilson is starting), Fouts leads the league in passing yards with 2,101.

Fouts needs 10 yards to pass Sonny Jurgensen's 32,224 and move into fifth place in career NFL passing yardage, and Chargers wide receiver Charlie Joiner needs 13 receptions to boost his career total to 634 and move past both Ray Berry (631) and Don Maynard (633) and into second place on the all-time list behind Charley Taylor's 649.

Miami routed the visiting Patriots 28-7 on the second Sunday of the season — but New England hasn't been the friendliest places for the Dolphins of late. They've lost seven of their last eight games there.

"I certainly don't need to be reminded that we haven't won in New England in a while," Dolphins Coach Don Shula said. "Nobody realizes more than we do how tough the Patriots are in Foxboro. This, plus the fact we just have a two game lead on them, should give us all the incentive we need for this game."

The game brings together the league's top two quarterbacks, Dan Marino of the Dolphins and New England's Tony Eason, who has replaced Steve Grogan since the teams' first meeting. Marino is the runaway passing leader with a 67 percent completion rate and 20 touchdowns.

The Jets, 5-2, share second place with the Patriots in the AFC East. They defeated Kansas City 17-16 two weeks ago, when Freeman McNeil rushed for 107 yards. But McNeil, the AFC's rushing leader with 601 yards, may see only limited action Sunday due to an aggravated rib injury. Johnny Hector, his replacement in last Sunday's 24-20 victory in Cleveland, rushed for 97 yards and caught 42 yards in passes against the Browns.

King, Davis Lead Rose

Travis King and Scott Davis each scored two goals as Rose High School bombed Wilson Beddingfield, 5-0 in a Big East soccer match yesterday.

The shutout was the fourth recorded this year by the Rampants, who boosted their overall record to 10-2 with the victory.

Mike Maxon, who had been subbed into the game only a minute earlier, scored the first Rose goal at the 20 minute mark, assisted by David Lee. That goal was followed by King's first of the day two minutes later, assisted by Carl Wille.

Davis scored his first goal 20 minutes into the second half, with and assist by Jim Benedict. King followed a minute later, his fifth goal of the year, with assists by Lewis Robbins and Tom Harwell.

Davis wound up the scoring at the 71 minute mark, with Paul Sullivan assisting.

Rose outshot Beddingfield on the day 30-4, including 19 shots in the second half.

Gregg Ward and Lee Lewis combined in the goal for the shutout, while Coach Will Wiberg cited the play of Wille, Josh Hickman, Sullivan, and Steve Childers in the game.

Now 7-1 in league play, Rose has four games remaining, including two on the road at Fike and Northeastern — where the Rampants have never won.

They first play host to Kinston on Tuesday.

Darrell Speed leads the Pirates in offense with 113.7 yards per game total offense. He's hit on 42 of 82 passes for 517 yards and four touchdowns and had four picked off.

Fullback Reggie Branch leads the rushers with 337 yards, while tailback Tony Baker has rushed for 348 yards. Jimmy Walden, also a tailback, has picked up 213 yards while Speed has rushed for 165.

Sandberg Not Expecting Letdown

NEW YORK (AP) — Ryne Sandberg doesn't think the Chicago Cubs will lose the winning edge during the off-season. After all, he notes, the Cubs didn't do as much winning as planned.

"I don't think that will be a problem with us," said Sandberg, the Cubs' stellar second baseman who topped the voting for The Associated Press Major League All-Star team. "All we won was the National League East and we could have done a lot better than that. I think we'll still be hungry going into spring training."

On hand to make sure that hunger persists will be Cubs' Manager Jim Frey, who was selected as AP's Manager of the Year after rallying Chicago from a 71-91 record in 1983 to a 96-65 mark and the East title this season.

"Everybody says awards are team awards, but that's more true for a manager than a ballplayer," said Frey. "If Sandberg gets recognized for an award, he will deserve that himself. When a manager gets an award, it's the result of everybody."

In a nationwide poll of AP-member sports writers and broadcasters, Frey received 52 votes to 31 for Billy Gardner of the Minnesota Twins, who finished second in the American League West. Sparky Anderson, who led the Detroit Tigers to the World Series title, was tied for third with Dave Johnson of the New York Mets with 10 votes apiece. Dick Howser of Kansas City received six votes after leading the Royals to the AL West title.

Sandberg received 105 of a possible 108 votes at second base.

"Ryne just had one of those years where it was hard to consider somebody else," said Frey. "He was so outstanding offensively and defensively that people had to sit up and take notice."

"At the start of last year, my goal was to improve offensively and I've got to be real happy about my performance," Sandberg said. "But I'd be a lot happier if we'd gone past the playoffs."

Sandberg, who batted .314 with 19 home runs and 84 runs batted in, led the National League in runs scored with 114, tied with Juan Samuel of Philadelphia for the lead in triples with 19, and was second to San Diego's Tony Gwynn with 200 hits.

The rest of the honor infield includes Eddie Murray of Baltimore at first base, Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia at third, Cal Ripken Jr. of Baltimore at shortstop by a 52-49 vote margin over Alan Trammell of the Detroit Tigers, and Gary Carter of Montreal at catcher. The outfield consists of Dave Winfield of the New York Yankees, Gwynn and Dale Murphy of Atlanta.

Rich Sutcliffe of the Cubs was selected as the right-handed starting pitcher, Minnesota's Frank Viola was the top left-hander and Detroit's Willie Hernandez was the choice as relief specialist.

Dave Kingman of Oakland was the designated hitter.

Murray batted .306 and led the AL with a .410 on-base percentage, 107 walks and 19 game-winning RBIs. He was among the American League leaders with 29 homers, 100 RBIs and a .509 slugging average.

Schmidt was tied for the NL lead in homers and RBI. He had 36 homers, as did Murphy, and 106 RBIs, tying Carter. Ripken batted .304 with 27 homers and 86 RBIs. Besides his 106 RBIs, Carter had 27 homers and a .294 batting average.

Winfield finished second to teammate Don Mattingly in the AL batting race, three points back with a .340 average. He also had 100 RBIs and 19 homers. Gwynn was the NL batting leader with a .351 average. He led the league with 213 hits and had 71 RBIs and 33 stolen bases. In addition to his 36 homers, Murphy had 100 RBIs and batted .290.

Sutcliffe, traded from Cleveland in June, was 16-1 for the Cubs, including a 14-game winning streak at the end of the season. His ERA was 2.69, and he struck out 155 batters in 150 1-3 innings. Viola had a 3.21 earned run average and an 18-12 record.

Hernandez, a left-hander who spent the 1983 season at Philadelphia, had 32 saves in 33 opportunities, a 9-3 record and 1.92 ERA.

Kingman was second in the AL in homers with 35 and third in RBI with 118 while batting .268. In 1983, Kingman hit only .198 with 13 homers.

The all-star berth also represented a strong comeback for Viola, who managed only a 7-15 record a year earlier with the Twins.

"I knew I had the talent, but after the first two years I wasn't showing any of it," Viola said. "To have the turnaround I had in one year makes me feel good. Hard work pays off, and it also says a lot for the team that played behind me."

Bodine Sets Mark In American 500

ROCKINGHAM (AP) — When Sunday's American 500 gets underway at the North Carolina Motor Speedway, Geoff Bodine will be sitting in the pole for the Grand National event after setting a record qualifying speed for the race.

The 492-lap stock car race is scheduled for a 12:10 p.m. start Sunday.

Bodine, driving a Chevrolet, claimed his third pole this season by logging a fast lap of 144.415 mph in Thursday's qualifying.

That ties him for second with Harry Gant and Bill Elliott in the competition for a post-season prize of $25,000 awaiting the driver who starts No. 1 most often. Darrell Waltrip, Ricky Rudd and Cale Yarborough are tied for the lead at four poles each with two races left.

"The motto of our All-Star Racing team is 'Never give up,'" Bodine said. "We can still get five poles and take that money."

Elliott, winner of the Miller 500 at Charlotte two weeks ago, made it exceedingly close, rolling to the other front-row starting spot at 143.363 mph in a Ford. The difference in the Bodine and Elliott clockings was just nine-thousandths of a second, 23.352 to 25.361.

Third-fastest on the 1.017-mile track was Waltrip, timed at 144.153 in a Chevy.

Terry Labonte and Gant set up an interesting duel - for the early laps of the race, especially - by qualifying fourth and fifth. The two are matched in a showdown for the Grand National driving championship, with Labonte leading by 59 points.

Completing the top 10 in the first half of the 40-car field are Dale Earnhardt, Lake Speed, Neil Bonnett, Ron Bouchard and Bobby Allison. Richard Petty qualified 12th-fastest.

Among those who will attempt to make the field today starting at 2 p.m. is Rudd, whose hopes were dashed Thursday by mechanical problems, forcing him to abort his qualifying run.

Also looking to qualify today is Tim Richmond, among the faster drivers in early practice Thursday.

Richmond crashed his Pontiac between turns three and four. The car was damaged too severely to repair quickly, so a backup machine must be brought in today.

Joe Ruttman, taking over the ride formerly occupied by Tommy Ellis, also wrecked near turn four. His Chevy wasn't as seriously damaged and he'll drive it today.

"The first time out in practice we ran really good and I was optimistic about our chances," said Bodine,

Rose Jayvees Top Kinston

Rose High School's junior varsity football team held off a late Kinston rally for a 14-6 win yesterday.

The Rampant Cubs took the lead early in the second quarter on a 15-yard sweep by Lee Rogers. The other score came in the third period on a quarterback sneak by John Lyles. Robbie McDonald kicked the PATs following each score.

Kinston's lone touchdown came in the final period on a 20-yard pass after they had taken over following a fumble recovery. The Baby Vikings later had a first and goal inside the five after another fumble recovery and two 15 yard penalties against Rose, but were held out of the end zone.

Andra Love, Rogers, Melvin Jenkins and Jim Gillihan were cited for their defensive play.

The offense, which rolled up over 200 yards and controlled the ball most of the game, was led by Burwyn Swindell, Steve Peele, Greg Hallow, Lee Miller, Walt Pollard, Curtis Perkins, Tim Clark, Lee Smith and Lyles.

Rose travels to Wilson Fike next Thursday.

West Carteret.....6

HOLLYWOOD — Carter Adkins sprinted 50 yards for the winning touchdown as the D.H. Conley junior varsity pounded West Carteret 14-6 Thursday in high school football action.

West Carteret took a 6-0 lead in the first quarter, but Viking quarterback Bronswell Patrick connected with Stevie Maye to even the score in the third period. The two-point conversion failed, knotting the score at 6-6 before Adkins' run.

Jay Joyner recovered a pair of fumbles for Conley, while Sherwood Wilder picked up another and David Hudnell intercepted a West Carteret pass. Patrick, Carlton Staton, Reggie Stocks and William Mizelle led the Conley defense.

Conley, now 1-0-1 against Coastal Carolina 3-A opponents and 1-4-1 overall, travels to Havelock next Thursday.

Flutie Looking For Win, W. Virginia Remembers

By The Associated Press
Boston College quarterback Doug Flutie is looking for a victory; West Virginia is looking for revenge.

"I'd like to show West Virginians that I am as good as some say . . . that's it's not only publicity," said Flutie, who has passed for more than 8,000 yards and 53 touchdowns in his career, but never has beaten West Virginia.

"It really bothers me," Flutie said. "That's something I don't want to go through my career without doing."

While BC is ranked fourth in the nation and West Virginia is 20th in the Associated Press college football poll, the Mountaineers want revenge for last year.

"We haven't forgotten last year," said West Virginia fullback Ron Wolfley. "We beat BC at their place 27-17, but the voters gave the Lambert Trophy to them, not us."

The Lambert Trophy is awarded to the best team in the East.

Flutie didn't play against the Mountaineers as a freshman, and in 1982 as a sophomore had what he calls the poorest game of his career, completing only 9 of 33 passes for 122 yards with four interceptions. Taking advantage of a fumbled punt in the final minutes, West Virginia won 20-13 in Morgantown that season.

In last year's contest, Flutie completed 23 of 51 passes for 418 yards.

"It was real frustrating," the quarterback said.

Smith Leads Aycoc Past Kinston, 42-0

KINSTON — Axel Smith scored three touchdowns and rushed for 203 yards in leading E.B. Aycoc Junior High School to a 42-0 victory over Kinston yesterday.

Smith scored the first Jaguar touchdown in the first period, racing 32 yards with the ball.

Jeff Mahoney opened a 22-point second period with a 10-yard touchdown pass from Tom Moyer. Moyer then ran over the PAT. The second scored was a 73 yard run by Tim Moore, and the third a six-yard run by Moyer. Moyer kicked the PAT after each of the final two scores for a 28-0 lead at intermission.

Smith scored single touchdowns in each of the remaining quarters. He took a 50-yard pass from Moyer for the first and added a 70 yard run for the second.

In addition to Smith's yardage, Moore ended up with 110 yards as the Jags rushed for 404 on the day.

Cited for their defensive play was Shelton Northern, Barry Murray, Tim Hines, Rexter Williams, Hugie Mayfield, David Jones, Tim Jones, Steve Ward, Steve Morris, Chris Throckmorton and Jeff Ward.

On offense, leaders were Mike Penderland, Jay Mattox, Ray Gaynor, Tommy Baker, Tim Hines, Jeff Ward, Scott Galloway, Smith, Moore, Moyer, Adrian Barnhill, Stacey Best, Jeff Mahoney and Wes Jackson.

Aycoc is now 4-0 on the year and plays host to Wilson Fike next Thursday.

WINTERVILLE — Billy Hardison ran for a pair of touchdowns and completed a pass to William Morning for another as threw for another as Bethel Wellcome pounded A.G. Cox 42-12 Thursday in junior high football.

Morning also caught a touchdown pass from Randy House, while Michael Daniels and Michael Blow rushed for the final Bethel touchdowns.

William Ebron, Herbert Staton and Tony Hopkins led the Bethel Wellcome defense.

Wellcome, now 3-0, hosts Farmville Middle School next Thursday. A.G. Cox slipped to 1-3 with the loss.

Chicod-Whitfield.....22

CHICOD — Anthony Perry ran for three touchdowns and Tyrone Turnage added a pair of point-after runs to lift Chicod-Whitfield to a 22-6 victory over Frink in junior high football action Thursday.

Perry had runs of five and four yards in the first half, and added a 30-yard run. The final touchdown was set up by a 20-yard pass from Jeremy McAllister to Turnage.

Frink scored its only touchdown in the second half.

Chicod, now 2-2, visits Woodington next Thursday.

Anderson Selected Top A.L. Manager

DETROIT (AP) — Sparky Anderson promised to make the Detroit Tigers winners in five years. He kept his word, and today is the American League's Manager of the Year.

Anderson guided the Cincinnati Reds of the National League to World Series titles in 1975 and 1976. The Tigers, second in the AL East in 1983, acquired Hernandez from Philadelphia during spring training, and that trade seemed to be the last piece missing from Anderson's puzzle.

now has been manager of the year three times. "My record was clean going in. I'm the only man to win 100 games in both leagues and the first man to win the World Series in both leagues.

Anderson, who guided the Tigers to the best record in their history and a World Series championship, won the award by one point over Dick Howser of Kansas City, it was announced Thursday by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Anderson received 13 of 28 first-place votes and a total of 96 points. Howser, who led the Royals to the AL West title, got 11 first-place votes and finished with 95 points.

Anderson became the first manager to win world championships in both leagues when his Tigers swept the Royals in the AL playoffs, then beat the San Diego Padres in five

Tornado Session Pinpoints Needs Of Weather Service

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — A hearing on the National Weather Service's performance during the March tornadoes that struck in March showed the NWS needs both more personnel and updated equipment, Rep. Tim Valentine, D-N.C., said.

"I learned there is a need for some extra personnel, a need to update the equipment — especially the radar — and a need to improve the system of communication between the National Weather Service, the electronic media and the public," Valentine said after Thursday's hearing.

age of manpower and equipment caused the NWS problems during the March tornadoes.

"The technology is out there and it is available," said Dean Carson, a technician for the Raleigh bureau of the National Weather Service. "What we need is someone in Washington, D.C., to bring it to light."

There are plans to upgrade equipment, especially the addition of satellite communication equipment, but those plans are not for the immediate future, Carson said.

"We need to be able to get better information without good equipment or we will not have a good system," Carson said.

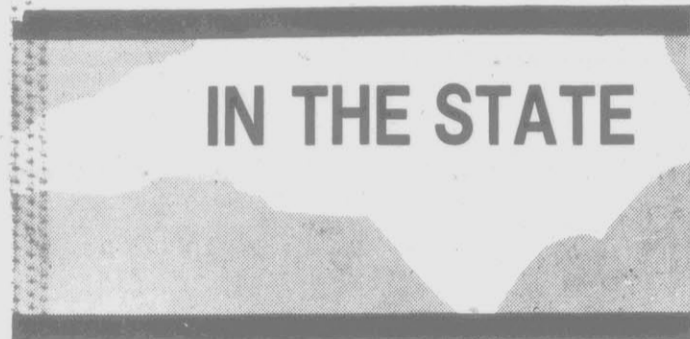

Carson told the subcommittee that even though meteorologists were important "the technology staff is just as important." Carson said the main problem with the weather service is a lack of high technology equipment.

Valentine was the chairman of the four-hour hearing of the House Subcommittee on Natural Resources, Agriculture Research and Environment. He said the hearing was not intended to condemn the weather service but was a forum for ways to improve its services.

Subcommittee chairman Rep. James H. Scheuer, D-N.Y., said at the hearing that Reagan administration fiscal policies were to blame for inadequate forecasting equipment and personnel.

Valentine said while he did not disagree with Scheuer, he "did not glean from the testimony that there were problems with budgetary constraints."

A technician agreed that a short-

Ingram Rejects Money Request

RALEIGH (AP) — The gubernatorial campaign of Insurance Commissioner John Ingram has refused to comply with an order to turn over to the state $8,000 given to his campaign in the names of two Wilson children.

In an Oct. 17 letter to the state Board of Elections, E. Cader Howard, an attorney for Ingram campaign treasurer Michael Rogers, said the board lacked the authority to order the payment.

Ingram finished sixth in the Democratic gubernatorial primary.

The board ruled Oct. 2 that contributions totaling $14,000 and donated in the names of Melissa Carol Bolt, 11, and H. Carey Bolt, 3, to Ingram and Attorney General Rufus Edmisten were illegal and must be turned over to the state treasury.

Edmisten's gubernatorial campaign has turned over the $6,000 the board said was owed to the state.

Campaign finance reports filed with the board showed that the children, whose father is John C. Bolt, a Wilson tire company executive, contributed $3,000 each to Edmisten's campaign and $4,000 each to Ingram's campaign.

The board's ruling came in response to a complaint by Republican gubernatorial candidate Jim Martin's campaign.

"Our client respectfully declines to comply with your order that the Ingram Campaign Committee pay the sum of $8,000 to the board on account of the Bolt contributions, and no such payment will be made voluntarily," the letter from Howard said.

State elections director Alex Brock said the board would have to decide what to do about the Ingram campaign's response.

Howard said state law prohibits candidates from knowingly accepting contributions made by individuals in the name of another person. He said the Ingram campaign did not know the contributions from the Wilson children were made in their names by their father.

Since the contributions were not knowingly accepted, the board can not force repayment, Howard wrote.

Hunt Says Helms 'Stonewalling'

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt accused Sen. Jesse Helms of "stonewalling" and said Helms was trying to block a decision by the Federal Election Commission on whether Helms political associates violated election laws until after the election.

"By attempting to use legal maneuvers to cover up potential wrongdoing by his political machine, Senator Helms shows he has a double standard," said Hunt in a news conference Thursday. "Rather than come clean about his relationship with the Congressional Club and Jefferson Marketing, he and his allies are stonewalling all the way up to the Supreme Court."

The Democratic governor is challenging Helms' bid for a third term in the U.S. Senate.

Helms Plans New TV Campaign

RALEIGH (AP) — A vote on the federal budget by Gov. Jim Hunt at the National Governors' Conference will be the subject of another television commercial released by his opponent in the U.S. Senate race, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

The 30-second Helms commercial, which spokesman Claude Allen said would run statewide through next week, has a voice saying, "High taxes will bring back high interest rates, double-digit inflation, unemployment and recession. Yet Jim Hunt raised his hand and voted for a $217 billion tax increase."

Hunt's vote was on a deficit-reduction resolution at the National Governors' Conference in February. He said Wednesday he opposed the section dealing with taxes and "absolutely" would not favor higher taxes if elected.

Edmisten Campaigns in Guilford County

GREENSBORO (AP) — Democratic gubernatorial nominee Rufus Edmisten told Greensboro business leaders Thursday that industry hunting must be linked to hunting export markets.

"You can count on me to foster a strong business climate in this state," Edmisten said. "Every time we go hunting for another industry here, we'd better be looking for an export market."

Edmisten met with 66 business leaders at the Greensboro City Club before a tour of downtown banks and insurance companies. Later in the day, he spoke to more than 80 people at a meeting of the Kiwanis Club.

Martin Outlines Tax Plan

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Republican gubernatorial candidate Jim Martin says the General Assembly should have reduced taxes last year when it had a $650 million surplus instead of spending the money.

The congressman also called Thursday for a repeal of the state sales tax on food and over-the-counter medicine, saying the move would help consumers and stimulate new jobs.

Martin outlined tax reforms that would include eliminating the intangibles tax and phasing out the inventory tax.

As proposed by Martin, the 3 percent state sales tax on food and non-prescription medicine would be lifted on Jan. 1, 1986. The plan would not affect local-option sales tax revenues collected by all but one county in the state.

JON-ERIK HEXUM

Actor Brain Dead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jon-Erik Hexum, the television actor who inadvertently shot himself in the head with a blank-loaded pistol, has been declared brain dead and his organs will be removed for donation, coroner's officials said early today.

The hospital where Hexum, 26, has been since the accident on the set of the "Cover Up" TV series notified the Los Angeles County coroner's office Thursday night that Hexum was brain dead, coroner's investigator Phil Campbell said.

Hexum was to be flown to Stanford University Medical Center and taken off a respirator, Campbell said. Then his organs, including heart and kidneys will be donated to patients in need of transplants, he said.

Telephone operators at Beverly Hills Medical Center, where Hexum was admitted after the accident last Friday, said no officials would comment on when the body would be transferred to Stanford.

"They'll do it as quickly as possible. It is possible the body could die even on a respirator," Campbell said.

However, doctors must wait for Hexum's heart to stop beating once he is removed from the respirator before they can begin surgery, Campbell said.

Hexum's mother, Grētha, requested that her son's organs be donated to transplant patients, coroner's investigator Philip Spada said Thursday.

"Normally (doctors) would like to find recipients right away and make direct transplants," without having to store the organs, said Donald Messerle, also an investigator with the coroner's office.

After the transplants, Hexum's body will be returned to the Los Angeles coroner's office for a likely autopsy, Campbell said.

Diane Sawyer Joins '60 Minutes' With Segment On Velma Barfield

NEW YORK (AP) — Start the stopwatch, but don't toot the trumpets. Although broadcast history will be made Sunday night, Diane Sawyer, the first female correspondent inside the door at "60 Minutes," doesn't see herself as a journalistic pioneer banging down the hinges.

"We're beyond that," said Ms. Sawyer, who will join the cast of crusading correspondents on CBS' popular newsmagazine Sunday with a profile of Velma Barfield, the North Carolina grandmother and convicted murderer who is scheduled to be the first woman in two decades to be executed.

"I'm pleased that there's a woman on '60 Minutes,' and boy am I pleased that it's me," said Ms. Sawyer. "I'm going to do the same range of stories that Mike (Wallace), Ed (Bradley), Harry (Reasoner) and Morley (Safer) do. We're interchangeable, except in our personalities and interests."

"I don't think in ceremonial terms, or see this as a frontier achievement. This is a journalistic honor, and, as journalists, we're genderless."

Part of the phenomenal success of "60 Minutes" is that the program allows journalists to be personalities, and vice versa. A Mike Wallace story will invariably come across with a harsher tone than one reported by Morley Safer, who usually can be counted on to offer a wry twist or two.

Viewers remember stories as Wallace pieces or Reasoner pieces. In contrast, can you name one correspondent from NBC's failed "First Camera?"

Wallace and former "60 Minutes" correspondent Dan Rather are also remembered for sometimes lying in wait for reluctant interview subjects. Ms. Sawyer calls this so-called "ambush interview" a valid technique, when it's "the only way you can get access to someone on a critical story with a critical question."

While personalities give "60 Minutes" its spice, stories still are its meat and potatoes. In the show's weekly opening, the pecking order is the ticking stopwatch, a tease of the upcoming pieces, and then the famous signatures — "I'm Mike Wallace, I'm Morley Safer..."

Ms. Sawyer becomes the fifth introduction, and it probably will take some time before this bright, literate broadcaster puts her own style, story selection and stamp on "60 Minutes." She says, quite amorphously, that her interests are people, places, issues and ideas — "the whole gamut."

If she sounds like the game-show contestant who's just been given 15 minutes to empty the supermarket shelves into her basket, it's because 15 minutes each week on "60 Minutes" really is journalistic liberation, especially after more than two years as co-anchor on the "CBS Morning News."

"At the 'Morning News,' you always felt the exigencies of time breathing down your neck," she said.

Alberta Hunter Dies At Age 89

NEW YORK (AP) — Alberta Hunter, a blues singer with a robust voice and whimsical manner who once said "hard work, courage and stamina" is what kept her going through a career that spanned seven decades, has died at age 89.

Miss Hunter, an energetic but delicate-looking woman, made her last public appearance Sept. 10 on a morning television show, said her pianist Gerald Cook. She completed a U.S. concert tour this summer that included Chicago, Detroit and Denver, and before that spent six weeks in concert in Sao Paulo, Brazil.

The singer, who began her career in the 1920s, dropped it in the 1950s and resumed performing in the 1970s, died at her apartment here of natural causes on Wednesday, Cook said Thursday.

Cook said Miss Hunter, who weighed slightly over 100 pounds, had not complained of any illness recently.

"A lady of that age, it's difficult to speculate" why she died, he said. "You would have to say it was of natural causes."

In 1980, Miss Hunter suffered a fractured hip but was back in action several months later for a sold-out concert at New York's Museum of Contemporary Art.

"This old jalopy's got a lot of mileage on her yet," she said at the time.

That same year, Miss Hunter, whose soprano voice over the years drifted down closer to the tenor range, sang at the White House for President Carter.

Day Care Changes Urged

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Higher standards for the more than 180,000 North Carolina children in day care will not mean great increases in the cost of that care, a report by the state auditor says.

The report released Thursday by Auditor Edward Renfrow compares the cost of service at day-care centers that are voluntarily meeting higher standards with those meeting minimum criteria and found the centers with higher standards charging from 99 cents to $2.49 more per week.

"We definitely agree that standards should be raised," said Kathy Neal, spokeswoman for the Department of Administration. "But we do not want them raised so high that parents cannot afford day care."

Bryant Haskins, spokesman for the Department of Human Resources, agreed.

"The whole day-care issue is something that needs to be looked at," he said. "It's something the Legislature needs to look at next time."

North Carolina ranks sixth nationally in the number of day-care centers but the minimum standards for those facilities are among the lowest and need to be raised, the report concluded.

It also recommends consolidating responsibilities for day care within the Department of Human Resources, writing procedures for investigating day-care complaints and considering setting fines for those who violate day-care standards.

"North Carolina currently has mandatory licensing standards that are among the lowest in the nation," Renfrow said in a prepared statement.

The report notes that the federal government recommends ratios of four children ages 2 to 3 per staff member while North Carolina permits 13 children per adult. The government suggests nine children ages 5-6 per staff member while North Carolina permits 26.

More than 180,000 children are being provided care during the day outside their homes by someone other than their parent.

There are 2,250 licensed day-care centers and 4,500 registered day-care plans in North Carolina.

The difference in a day-care center and day-care plan is the number of children and length of time they stay in the facility.

FOCUS

"Cornwallis is taken!"

"I have the honor to inform Congress that a reduction of the British army is most happily affected." With these words, George Washington notified the Continental Congress that British General Cornwallis had surrendered at Yorktown, Virginia. While an aide to Cornwallis handed the general's sword to an American officer, the British army band played the song, "The World Turned Upside Down." The American victory at Yorktown in effect ended the Revolutionary War.

Council Adopts Agenda

DURHAM (AP) — Delegates to the North Carolina Council of Churches Thursday adopted a five-point legislative lobbying agenda for the 1985 General Assembly aimed at helping the disadvantaged.

Delegates voted to support legislation that would improve the lives of migrant farm workers, provide alternatives to prison, expand the public defender system, protect the environment and meet housing needs for low-income and elderly people.

"These resolutions say the church is concerned with the needs of people in North Carolina," said the Rev. James W. Ferree of Gastonia, a Methodist and the council's president.

About 60 delegates representing the council's 26 constituent denominations and eight individual churches attended the meeting.

The council has sponsored a lobbyist at the General Assembly for 15 years.

The proposals adopted Thursday are guidelines, providing a general sense of what to pursue rather than specific initiatives to support, said the Rev. S. Collins Kilburn, executive director of the council.

"There's a certain degree of non-specificity that is necessary because you don't know exactly what measures will be important," Kilburn said. "You can't get too specific because you need room to move."

Hotel To Revive

BRIGHTON, England (AP) — The Grand Hotel, devastated in an IRA bomb attack aimed at Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and her Cabinet last week, will be rebuilt, according to its owners.

A spokesman for the Greenall Whitley group said the hotel and brewery chain hopes to reopen the 122-year-old hotel on Brighton's promenade by late next year.

Furniture Buyers Study New Lines

By TOM MINEHART
AP Business Writer

Furniture representatives described opening day of the Southern Furniture Market in High Point as marvelous, while a furniture company president called activity at the market center in Hickory a "disaster."

Buyers, designers, furniture factory salesmen and reporters flocked into 53 acres of showroom space at the Southern Furniture Market Center in High Point Thursday.

"We have had excellent attendance so far," said Lewis Ingram, director of marketing administration for Bernhardt Furniture of Lenoir. "I haven't had a chance to even sit down to see what it is."

Joyce Kupecki, press secretary for the center, said buyer registration by noon Thursday was up 21.6 percent over the same period last October and 28.4 percent higher than in October 1982.

Ms. Kupecki said she could not release the actual figures on buyer attendance. But she said the entire Southern Furniture Market, held in showrooms stretching from Lenoir to Burlington, attracts about 41,000 buyers from 50 states and 60 foreign countries, store representatives, designers and media personnel each April and October.

Some 800 of the 1,337 manufacturers participating in this market will be displaying their wares at the five-building Southern Furniture Market Center in High Point until Oct. 26.

Ingram said buyers at Bernhardt's showroom seemed especially interested in the firm's contemporary Cirrus group, featuring bird's eye maple and dyed veneers. There was also interest in teak furniture with ebony banding.

Jean Reynolds of the Lane Co. of Altavista, Va., reported "marvelous" attendance at the Lane showroom at the center on opening day.

"We're very pleased for opening day," she said. "Buyers are showing a lot of interest."

Ms. Reynolds said many people are interested in Lane's America Collection, furniture with a "country theme." Others were ogling a line called Life Cycles, featuring lacquered polyester pieces.

Meanwhile, manufacturers said attendance was relatively low at market centers in Hickory, most of which opened to buyers on Monday.

"Judging by the exhibitors around me, this is a disaster," Robert Hudson, owner of Lloyd Furniture Manufacturing Co. of South Hill, Va., said Wednesday at the Hickory Merchandise Mart.

The National Home Furnishings Association reports sales through September are up 12 percent from the same period in 1983, but several buyers in Hickory said retail sales for the past four months have been below 1983 levels.

Plane Used To Haul Pot Identified

HILLSVILLE, Va. (AP) — A marijuana-laden airplane that crashed into a southwest Virginia mountain Wednesday, killing the pilot, was one of six special reconnaissance aircraft made for the U.S. military during the Vietnam War, police say.
It's believed the single-engine aircraft was privately owned by someone from Virginia, state Trooper W.J. Evans said Thursday. He would not elaborate. The pilot, who was not the owner, might have been one of several pilots who had access to the plane, Evans said.
Carroll County Sheriff W. Hassell Vass said the airplane, carrying between 800 and 1,000 pounds of marijuana, was destroyed in the crash and fire. The airplane's Federal Aviation Administration identification numbers were burned, but the aircraft has been identified as one of six special reconnaissance craft made for the U.S. military, Vass said.
Vass said the possibility that the airplane might be of military register had not been ruled out.
The pilot was the only person aboard, and his body was burned beyond recognition, Vass said.
Dr. David W. Oxley, deputy chief medical examiner for Western Virginia, said identification would have to be made from dental comparisons.

The airplane crashed into Fancy Gap Mountain shortly before 6 p.m. Wednesday and burned on impact.

Vass said the cause of the crash is under investigation by federal aviation officials. But, he said, visibility was minimal the night of the crash.
Although the airplane was destroyed, some small fragments remained. Some of these were painted military olive drab, but there also was some orange paint, Vass said.

Evans said the aircraft had a "real large fuel capacity."

Cherokees To Vote On Constitution

CHEROKEE, N.C. (AP) — The Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians has been discussing whether to adopt a proposed constitution or continue operating under an 1897 state charter and will vote on the issue Wednesday.
"We operate day to day by resolution and ordinance. If we get enough of the wrong people in tribal government, they can do anything to us they want to," Principal Chief Robert S. Youngdeer told a small group Tuesday night.
Youngdeer cited as an example a resolution presented to the council last week by Painttown council member Gerard Parker. The resolution sought equal treatment for all enrolled members in areas of education, medical treatment, employment preference and the right to hold elective office in tribal government, regardless of blood degree.
Youngdeer said matters of this nature should be put to a vote through referendum, but did not elaborate on whether he felt the issue of blood quantum and equal benefits was valid.
Both the charter and the proposed constitution require that officeholders be at least one-sixteenth Cherokee.
Richard Welch, Yellow Hill council member and editor of the weekly Cherokee One Feather, told the group he favored the constitution, saying to vote for the document would allow the people to put limits on their government.
"The people who are against this constitution today are the people who want to gain something. They want more than the constitution is allowed to give them, and that's not right."
"There are a lot of people who are against this constitution because perhaps in the future it limits their children from enrollment if they choose to marry a non-Indian, but those are not things we can control either," Welch said.
Jimmy Cooper, owner and operator of Holiday Inn in Cherokee, said he's concerned that the proposed document doesn't provide equally for all of Cherokee's citizens.
"The constitution that you and I are considering today fails to deal with human rights, a very focal issue in our society for the last 30 years," Cooper said.

A Nostalgic Look Back At A Feature Of Many North Carolina Homes Of The Past

Detached Kitchens Were Once Widely Used

... Two Greenville residents, Patsy Baker O'Leary, left, and LaRona Murray, discuss details of the two porches connecting the main part of the house, right, with the detached kitchen. Both recalled their childhood days when they lived in houses similar to the one here. Weeds fill the yard, and on the tin roof of the kitchen, someone left a ladder. On the porch behind the two, a stove and refrigerator rust in the weather. A more modern touch is a cluster of empty plastic bottles. . . . At right, wheeled units of farm equipment are lined up in the back yard in the space before the homestead's henhouse, or chicken house as the more refined called it . . .

Today, only a few eastern North Carolina homes with detached kitchens and a connecting porch or breezeway are left. It is rare indeed to find one still in active use. Most, like that of the homestead pictured on this page, have long been abandoned and are in an advanced stage of deterioration.

During the 19th century and well into the 20th century, in some instances as late as after the days of World War II, the kitchen was the heart of family life in numerous small town and rural homes. It was in these spacious kitchens, detached or an integral part of the house, that the women of an often extended family — wives, mothers, spinsters, widowed grandmothers and aunts — held sway over household activities.

Except in the latter years of the prevalence of detached kitchens, there was seldom electricity to generate modern appliances. Kitchen furnishings and utensils were spartan compared to today's wide range of kitchen conveniences.

For the typical housewife, kitchen hours began at dawn. The lucky ones had husbands, brothers or sons who would kindle a fire in the sturdy cast-iron range. Less fortunate women were the first out of bed, to light a kerosene lamp, and in cold or hot weather trek across the connecting porch or breezeway to a dark kitchen.

Before others in the house awoke, it was the woman who transformed the dark kitchen into a haven of comfort. In winter, the kitchen became a snug refuge from the cold. In all seasons, there was the cheerful invitation of fragrances — buttermilk biscuits baking, flavorful coffee beans being roasted, the rich aroma of country cured ham being fried in a heavy iron skillet.

Breakfast was only the beginning of multiple daily activities centered around the kitchen. Before the advent of handy snacks and quick-consumption fast foods, when a woman working outside the home was a rarity, the norm was preparing three hot meals each day, seven days a week. In summer months kitchens stayed steamy all day long for days on end as the women of the house prepared for winter the garden's bounty in canning and pickling, in making jams, jellies, and preserves.

And there was water to be kept hot in the stove's reservoir, water to be used for washing dishes, behind-the-stove bathing, scalding feathers from chickens, and scrubbing the wood or linoleum covered floors.

The detached structure for some homes encompassed kitchen and dining room adjoining each other. More often, one large room served both purposes.

After supper, the cleared dining table was the family gathering place where children studied, men played checkers or card games, and women, in their favorite small rockers, patched clothes, did crochet work on a bedspread, or dreamed some time away with a Sears Roebuck catalog.

The detached kitchen shown in the photographs on this page, with a narrow breezeway and two-porches at right angles connecting the main house and the kitchen, were taken at an abandoned home in Beaufort County. The small house, at the end of a one-lane dirt lane, was obviously occupied until some fairly recent date.

Evidence of the last occupants still abound in and around the house — a straightback chair, the paint gone, next to the door opening from the porch into the kitchen; a rusting stove and refrigerator; socks, dried and yellowed, still hanging on a line on the porch.

A huge oak spreads its branches protectively over the house. Massive hydrangea bushes fight the encroachment of honeysuckle, and the yard all around the house has become a storage place for farm equipment infrequently or no longer used.

Admittedly, most housewives and family members, if given a choice, would not choose to return to the more tranquil, but work-laden days of detached kitchens. Nevertheless, there's an aura of romance in these places that is missing in today's convenient streamlined kitchens.

... The back view of the main house, left, and the detached kitchen, right, shows the narrow open passageway, called a breezeway, that separate the two structures. The breezeway separation space served two useful purposes — to help channel breezes onto the kitchen porch, and to afford a greater chance to save the main house in the case of a kitchen fire . . .
