Mondale Attacks Reagan On Kennedy Letter

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

QUINCY, Ill. (AP) — Walter F. Mondale says a 1960 letter President Reagan wrote about John F. Kennedy shows what he really thinks of the Democratic president whose name Reagan often invokes in campaign speeches.

"The fact of it is that Ronald Reagan is trying to tell the American people that he was close to Jack Kennedy and his ideas," Mondale said Tuesday while disclosing the letter in which Reagan compares some of Kennedy's 1960 campaign proposals to ideas espoused by Karl Marx and Adolf Hitler.

"He did everything he could to defeat Jack Kennedy and elect Richard Nixon," Mondale said, citing the letter retrieved from government archives.

In the letter, handwritten to Nixon during the election campaign of 1960 and signed "Ronnie Reagan," the future president wrote this about part of Kennedy's campaign proposals:

"Under the tousled boyish haircut it is still old Karl Marx — first launched a century ago.

"There is nothing new in the idea of a Govt. being Big Brother to us all. Hitler called his 'state socialism' and way before him it was 'benevolent monarchy.'"

The president often invokes Kennedy's name in his effort to convert wavering Democrats to his own candidacy. White House spokesman Larry Speakes confirmed that Reagan wrote the letter, but said he "was pleasantly surprised to find a difference between Kennedy the candidate and Kennedy the president."

Speakes also said Reagan was surprised by Kennedy's toughness during the Cuban missile crisis and by Kennedy's economic program.

But Mondale brushed the explanation aside. "Any adult who tried to compare John Kennedy with the ideas of Karl Marx and Adolf Hitler is not going to improve with age," he said.

Reagan "is in the wrong calling, he should have been a creative writer," Mondale added.

He said the letter is "the truth and Mr. Reagan will have to live with that truth..."

Copies of the three-page handwritten letter were distributed to reporters on Tuesday by Mondale's aides. These aides said they learned of its existence through a tip from a researcher working at the National Archives regional center in Los Angeles. Pursuing the tip, aides said they found the document among Nixon's pre-presidential papers.

Nixon lost the 1960 presidential campaign to Kennedy, but won the White House eight years later and went on to win a second term four years later.

In the three-page letter, Reagan also scorned the noisy, flag-waving floor demonstration typical of a national political convention as a "synthetic time waster" and counseled Richard M. Nixon that a conservative appeal was the way to the White House.

"Somehow the idea persists that someone should put an end to the traditional demonstrations which follow each nomination" at a political convention, wrote Reagan, whose own renomination at the GOP National Convention in Dallas in August set off the type of pre-planned, boisterous eruption on the conventioin floor that has become commonplace.

Reagan added that at one time, the purpose of the demonstration was to influence the nominating delegates in the hall. "Now, however, tv has opened a window onto convention deliberations and the 'demonstration' is revealed as a synthetic time waster which only serves to belittle us in what should be one of our finer moments."

As for politics, Reagan said he was convinced that America was "economically conservative...

"I have a strong feeling that the 20 million non-voters in this country just might be conservatives who have cynically concluded the two parties offer no choice between them where fiscal stability is concerned.," the letter said.

Renovated 'Plaza' Mall Plans Opening

Ribbon-cutting ceremonies at 9:30 a.m. Thursday will mark the grand opening of The Plaza Mall, located on Greenville Boulevard between Charles and Arlington Boulevards.

The Plaza, a fully enclosed and environmentally controlled mall, resulted from a multi-million dollar renovation of the old Pitt Plaza shopping center, which was the city's first full-service shopping center when built in 1965.

Chuck Milian, manager and marketing director of The Plaza, said Greenville Mayor Janice Buck, East Carolina University Chancellor John Howell, and Ed Walker, president of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, will be among those participating in the ribbon-cutting.

Milian said attached to the ribbon will be a $1,000 check which will be given to the United Way following the opening ceremony.

The ribbon-cutting program will be followed by the cutting of a 600 pound cake — a replica of the newly renovated Plaza mall — which measures about 7½ feet long, 4½ feet wide, and six layers thick, and will be served to all shoppers attending the grand opening.

For the opening of The Plaza, according to Milian, 17 new retail merchants will be added to the 28 businesses which called the old Pitt Plaza home. Another five stores are expected to open at the mall between now and the Spring of 1985, Milian said.

Milian said Greenville and Pitt County can expect to gain an additional $20 million in sales in 1985 from the remodeling. Total sales at The Plaza in 1984 are expected to be $23 to $24 million.

Total year-around employment at the mall will be about 600 persons,

Flood Problems Mount In Louisiana; 1 Dead

By RAY FORMANEK Jr.
Associated Press Writer

NEW IBERIA, La. (AP) — Storms blanketed sodden southern Louisiana today after the heaviest downpour in 20 years unleashed nearly 12 inches of rain in 24 hours, driving snakes into homes and causing widespread flooding that killed one person and forced the evacuation of thousands, authorities said.

"We're expecting heavy rains" throughout the day, Hugh Crowther, a forecaster at the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo., said early today. "There will still be some showers and thundershowers for the next couple days."

Delcambre's nearly 2,000 residents were urged to leave town entirely, said Vermilion Parish Sheriff Ray LeMaira. About 50 people in New Iberia were moved to a National Guard armory after water and snakes invaded their homes.

"I was just thinking about getting my children out and nothing else," said Norma Curley, 42. "By the time we got out, the water was chest-deep and there were snakes all over the place."

The snakes apparently were driven by high water into a public housing project, but there were no reports of anyone being bitten, said Iberia Parish Civil Defense Director Joe Valenti.

"We're afraid of the snakes, that's why we're keeping (residents) here," Dorothy Mergist, a manager of the evacuation center at Abbeville High School said this morning. "The water's very high. In some locations it's as much as 4 feet deep.

"The snakes float around in the water, you can see 'em. They're real big," she added.

"There was water all over — everywhere," said Daris Bertrand, 56, another nursing home resident evacuated to the nearby Abbeville High School Gymnasium. "I'm glad to get out."

Crowther said there was a "potential for 3 to 5 inches" of rain overnight in Louisiana's bayou country, where nearly 12 inches already had fallen on Tuesday.

Gov. Edwin Edwards declared Iberia, Lafayette, Vermilion and St. Martin parishes disaster areas and sent the National Guard to help local authorities evacuate residents of New Iberia, Erath and Delcambre.

About 11.57 inches of rain had fallen by early today in Jeanerette, 11.02 inches in Butte la Rose, 9.4 inches in New Iberia and 8 inches in Abbeville. It was the heaviest deluge in the area since Hurricane Hilda in 1964.

One person drowned in St. Martin Parish after floodwaters swept a car off a roadway and reportedly sucked the victim from the car, authorities said.

New Iberia Police Chief Steven Davis said it was too early to estimate the damage.

YELLOW JACKET THANK YOU

Thanks to recent information in Hotline, a frightening situation had a happy ending. Recently when I took my kindergarten class on a walk through Elmhurst School's nature trail to collect things for our fall center, we stumbled across an underground nest of angry yellow jackets. Approximately half the members of my class, including myself, were stung. This incident turned into a learning experience, thanks to Bob Jacobson from the ECU Medical School. The same day he retrieved the yellow jackets and will use them for research. He visited our class the next day and showed the children the actual nest and told them many interesting facts about yellow jackets. I give a special thank you to Hotline and to Bob Jacobson for this experience for our class. Kim Warren, Elmhurst School.

Kansas Gov. Carlin Stumps For Jim Hunt

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

WINTERVILLE — Kansas Gov. John Carlin was among speakers urging the election of Gov. Jim Hunt to the U.S. Senate at what was billed as an Agricultural Harvest Supper honoring Hunt here Tuesday night.

Hunt, campaigning for the U.S. Senate seat held by Republican Jesse Helms, ended a campaign swing through Nash, Wilson and Pitt Counties at the rally, attended by an estimated 1,500 to 1,800 persons.

Hunt, urging farmers to use their heads, nct their hearts, questioned Helms' effectiveness and commitment to agriculture.

"North Carolina and agriculture need a senator who will spend his time representing them as a top priority, not those right-wing interests ... around the world," Hunt said.

"North Carolina and America's rural economy is in trouble," according to Hunt, who charged that Helms, as chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, has failed to exert his influence on tobacco's behalf.

If elected to the Senate, "I'll have ariculture on my mind all the time," Hunt emphasized.

Saying Helms has not proposed "a single new idea," to help tobacco farmers, Hunt commented that if elected, "I think we can do something about all of this.

"North Carolina and agriculture — especially tobacco — need to have a senator ... who will make friends not enemies. When you have the right kind of leadership to do it, it can be done."

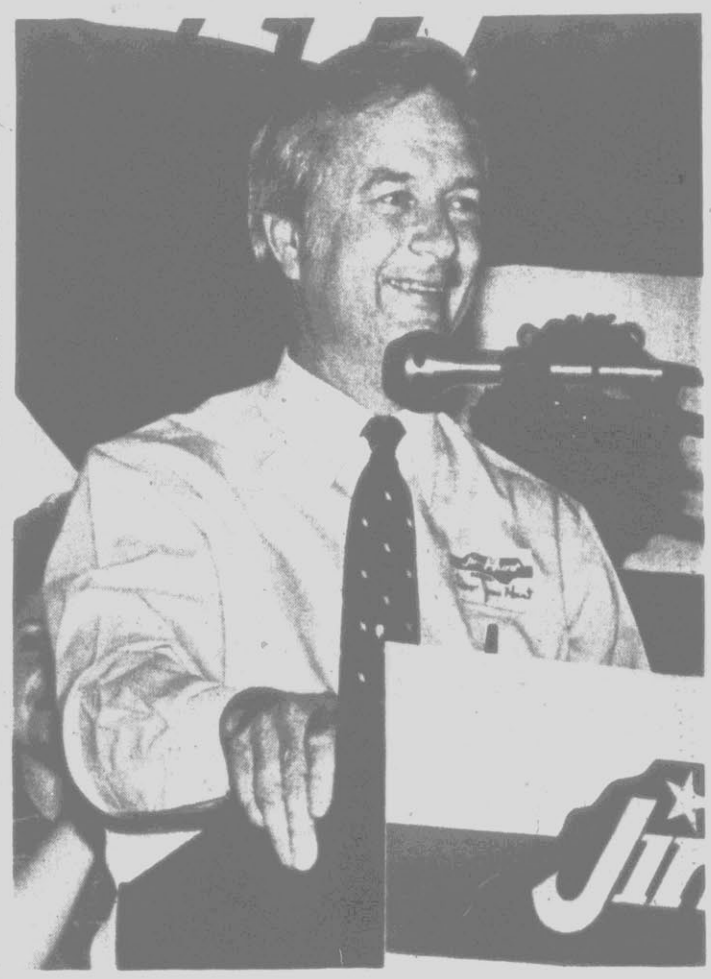

Hunt said, "First, we've got to reduce the massive stocks in Stabilization." He said that buyers of 1982 and 1983 crop tobacco could be given a pound of pre-1982 tobacco for every pound of 1982 tobacco they buy.

"If we do that we will make domestic tobacco cheaper than imported tobacco."

Hunt also said,"I have proposed that the assessments that farmers have paid" in 1982, 1983 and 1984 "be treated as payment in full under the no-net-cost program," which he said would "save farmers a lot of money."

Other suggestions proposed by Hunt: "Stop the runaway increase in tobacco imports coming into this country;" and "work aggressively to create new markets overseas" by creating an intermediate term credit facility which would guarantee loans

Classical Cosmetology Exhibited In Switzerland

By CONOISSEUR
A Hearst Magazine

Turqoise hair was popular with the courtesans of imperial Rome long before it was flaunted by punks in the streets of London and New York.

Other echoes of the past can be found in current beauty routines and fashions, according to an article on ancient cosmetics and beauty aids in the October issue of Connoisseur.

For example, today's jetsetters are not so different from Tutu, wife of the Egyptian scribe Ani (New Kingdom, circa 15th century B.C.). She never traveled without her beauty case — well stocked with an ivory comb, five different kohl vials with applicators, a pumice stone, alabaster and terra-cotta vases for perfumes and unguents, as well as a change of fine red-leather sandals.

And the sallow pancake makeup of TV-age politicos cannot compare for impact with that of Cyrus the Great of Persia, whose heavily outlined eyes and skillfully shaded complexion made him look like a living statue to awed beholders.

One can see the cosmetics fashions and fads of the ancient world in an exhibition at Villa Malpensata, in Lugano, Switzerland (October 15 through November 15). The beauty aids of ages past appear amazingly similar to our own.

The ancients put the same accent on the potential benefits — beautification and rejuvenation — and the same stress on fine packaging, attractive scents, and exotic imports. They had their mirrors, tweezers, beauty cases, and vials, just as we do, and apparently knew a great deal more about the natural substances they used than we might think.

"Classical cosmetology is especially fascinating because of its close ties to medicine and pharmacology," explains the archaeologist Gabriele Rossi Osmida of CNR, the Italian National Council for Research. "Almost all beauty products boasted specific curative properties, especially those introduced to Europe from the East."

Henna, the red vegetable dye used by Arab women to color their hands and hair, has always been prized for strengthening hair as well as for its aesthetic effects. And in Egypt, during the reign of Thutmose III (ca. 1504-1450 B.C.), the formula of kohl eyeliner varied according to the months of the year, as protection against seasonal ophthalmic infections.

Rossi Osmida, the organizer of the Lugano exhibition, is working with a CNR colleague, Giuseppe Donato, on the reconstruction of ancient cosmetics recipes. The two archaeologists of fashion have focused their attention on emollient creams, masks, and tints.

They have discovered that Roman ladies conditioned their skin with refreshing cucumber and rose-petal face packs; when more drastic measures were called for, mixtures included such bizarre ingredients as blood and crocodile excrement. But this is not so different, comments Connoisseur, from smearing our lips with petroleum products and scenting our skins with whale vomit as a part of today's beauty routine!

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Credit Women Honor Bosses At Banquet

Greenville Credit Women-International held its annual bosses' night banquet at the King and Queen North last week. New officers were installed and Boss of the Year and Credit Woman of the Year were announced.

MARIAN HARDEE

State President Gail Ottinger of Kinston installed: Marian Hardee, president; Gloria Hathaway, first vice president; Mildred Porter, second vice president; Louise Whichard, secretary; Betty Womack, treasurer; Angelene Venters, recording secretary; Carol Hardee, parliamentarian; and Debbie Johnston, chaplain.

Pearl Hartsell, Jane Walker, Martha Mills and Pat West are members of the board of directors.

"Soaring to Greater Height" was the theme for the banquet. Ms. West presented each new officer a seagull paper weight as they were installed.

C. Don Langston, president of First State Bank, received the Boss of the Year award from Ms. Johnston. The selection is based on participation of a boss in club activities by attending meetings, giving programs, donations and sponsorship.

Nobles presented the Credit Year of the Year award to Ms. Hardee of Southern Bank and Trust Co. The award is given to the member who contributes the most of the ideals and purposes of the club. Other qualifications include perfect attendance and attendance at the N.C. State Conference, spring board meeting and district conference.

Ms. Whichard gave the invocation and Mrs. Porter gave the welcome. Responding was Avery. Mrs. Hardee introduced the entertainment which was provided by the Swift Creek Cloggers from Gardnerville.

Mrs. Venters and Ms. West, outgoing president, introduced guests including husbands of members, bosses and their wives and members from the Kinston Club.

Mrs. Hardee was chairman of the event and was assisted by Doris Price, Mrs. Porter, Mrs. Johnston and Ms. Hathaway.

Couple Celebrates 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Bailey celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday at a luncheon followed by a reception given by family and friends.

Guests were greeted by Effie Bailey, daughter-in-law of the honorees. Assisting in serving were Catherine Whaley, Peggy Bailey, Blanche Stox, Ernestine and Amy Bass.

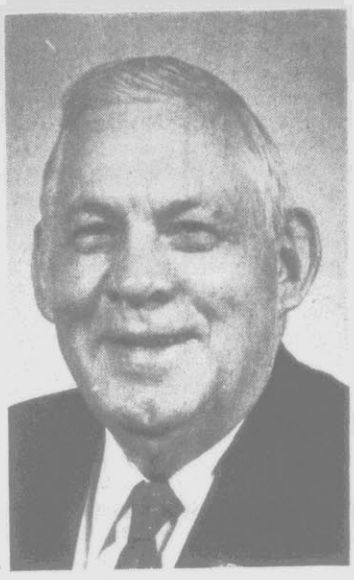

Gifts were displayed by Lori Tugwell and Dorit Rasmussen.

The couple was married Oct. 18, 1934. They have a son, Elmer Ray Bailey, and a grandson.

WATER IS CHAMP

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — The champion thirst quencher is water, says a Pennsylvania State University consumer market specialist, Dr. Harold E. Neigh.

But, he adds, a myth about thirst-quenching is that a drink must be ice cold for it to be effective. "It is purely a matter of habit and culture to have a drink ice cold," he says. "The temperature of the beverage has nothing to do with its thirst-quenching properties, according to food technologists."

C. DON LANGSTON

Former Nixon White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman was released on parole in 1978 from a California prison after serving 18 months for his role in the Watergate affair.

Carpeting Color And Design

In very small rooms, size can be enhanced by painting the walls the same color as the carpet with sofas and beds covered in fabrics of the same hue.

Larger rooms can be made to seem more intimate through the use of carpeting in a rich, deep color with a sculptured texture. Upholstered furniture in a larger room can be covered in contrasting colors or patterns.

Carpeting color also can affect the lightness or darkness of a room. If a room lacks natural light, carpeting in bright yellows, oranges and red can brighten it. Carpeting in blues and greens can tone down a room that seems too bright or one with a western exposure.

Lively colors also are good for family rooms or kitchens while formal rooms are set off by pastels or traditional old-world tones.

On the practical side, light colored carpets show the dirt more but dark colors show more lint. Tweeds and pebbled textures hide soil and so do stripes and patterns.

To extend the life of your carpeting and keep it looking bright, it should be vacuumed twice a week and thoroughly once a week.

"Light" vacuuming is described as three passes of the machine while a thorough job means running the vacuum back and forth seven times. Proper care also includes shampooing every one to three years.

Do-it-yourselfers can use foam sprays or dry powders for cleaning. Shampooing with rented equipment has to be done carefully to avoid mildew or damage to the backing. Steam cleaning also requires rented equipment and is thorough, but takes longer.

Professional cleaners use steam, foam, dry powder and rotary brushes. They also will clean Orientals or carpets with delicate fibers by hand. Professional jobs can de done in the home or outside, if the carpet can be picked up and removed. The advantages of cleaning carpeting outside the home include the fact that it will dry faster and there is no chance of damaging the backing or floors.

Spots and stains are often a problem with carpeting. First of all, the stain or spot should be blotted or scraped up (not rubbed). Then there are a number of steps to follow depending on the nature of the stain.

Coffee stains, for example, should first be treated with one teaspoon gentle liquid detergent mixed in one quart water and then blotted. Next apply water and vinegar and blot; then apply water and blot. The same remedy is recommended for beer and fruit juices.

Chewing gum requires an entirely different approach. First, freeze the gum with an ice cube wrapped in plastic. Next shatter the frozen glob of gum with a hammer or blunt object. Third vacuum up the chips and then apply dry-cleaning solvent, wait several minutes and then blot.

Burns should be treated by fist snipping off the darkened fibers then using a soapless cleaner and sponging with water.

CHOCOLATE VS. TOOTH DECAY

NEW YORK (AP) — Recent studies at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the Forsyth Dental Center in Boston indicate chocolate can help fight tooth decay, reports Chocolatier magazine.

Findings indicate that chocolate contains a heat-resistant, water-soluble protein team component that inhibits the activity of the mouth enzyme, dextransucrase. This enzyme is a key element in the formation of plaque, which is one of the first stages of tooth decay.

In addition, the magazine says, the cocoa butter present in chocolate helps clear foods quickly from the mouth, and the faster a food leaves the mouth, the less its cavity-producing potential.

Time Running Out

Sunday night's debate in Kansas City left pretty much untouched the view that if Walter Mondale outshone Ronald Reagan only marginally, it would not be enough to overcome the pollsters' margin of 15 percent (and up) in the incumbent's favor. The seers told us a decisive win was essential.

There were some minor irritants in the confrontation. Example: how many times did we hear "It's time for America to ---" (you fill in the blanks).

At one point, Mr. Reagan ignored his rival's question and introduced a totally different topic. It was fair under the rules, and it was one way to avoid the image of forever explaining and never attacking. Still, one might have had a feeling that was a question the president would prefer to ignore.

Foreign policy was the evening's topic, and in many ways the duo agreed to a surprising degree...though they concealed it as best they could. Both looked ahead to the "next four years", but as we have learned from history, crucial events are often those that "happen" to you, and are created by foes or friends, or strange combinations of unhappy circumstances.

The president was a prime target for events in Lebanon and Central America. He did not have all the answers... or would not give them. The former vice president implied he would be "on top" of the details as he provided strong leadership, and while he avoided saying what others have said — that the president did not know what was going on — that message was clear.

People with memories could recall President Carter trying harder than most to meet that standard, and he studied legislation and policy papers in his spare time. It is a mistake talented board chairmen avoid. The nuts and bolts are for others; the experienced leader sees the forest and leaves the trees to others.

It was, on the whole, a good showing by the contenders; and an educational experience for the viewers. But time is running out, and the Mondale camp has many votes to be wooed into their column. At this late date, the task is almost too much — barring the unexpected.

Street Funds Help

Area municipalities will be sharing $45.4 million in state street aid (Powell Bill) funds shortly.

Checks have been mailed to 465 municipalities as their share of the 1984 allocation.

In Pitt County, Greenville will receive $606,009.09 with other municipalities receiving amounts based on population and local street mileage. The smallest amount in the county, and the state, goes to Falkland which will receive a check for $1,657.48.

The money can be used for street maintenance or new construction with the local governing body determining the specific projects. The funds are used only for local streets with the Department of Transportation handling state maintained thoroughfares. Funds are collected by the state as a tax on gasoline.

Powell Bill funds have proven invaluable to municipalities as the cost of maintaining and constructing local streets skyrocketed. Without these funds most local streets would be in poor shape today.

Fierce Battle To Pick New Leader

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the fiercest Senate races this year is not in any of the 50 states but in the Senate itself — the battle among Republicans to pick a successor to Howard H. Baker Jr. as Republican leader.

If Republicans retain their control of the Senate — as strategists on both sides now anticipate — then the job will be for majority leader, the position now held by Baker, who is retiring.

If Democrats win back control, then the GOP struggle would be for the post of minority leader.

Those seeking the support of their Republican colleagues are: Sens. Bob Dole of Kansas, Ted Stevens of Alaska, Richard Lugar of Indiana, James McClure of Idaho and Pete V. Domenici of New Mexico.

The Senate chamber is empty now. Members are all home campaigning for re-election or vacationing.

But the race among the five candidates for the loyalty of other Republicans goes on. It goes on by letter, by phone call and by personal contact. Each of the the five is seeking personal commitments for support.

The new GOP leader will be chosen by secret ballot on Nov. 28, in a vote among those who will be in the Senate next year — including any new members elected Nov. 6.

Most senators agree that the even-tempered Baker is a hard act to follow, and the contrast between him and Stevens, who has a reputation for being sharp-tongued, appears to be hurting the Alaskan, who now has the No. 2 post. Stevens has campaigned the longest and possibly the hardest for the job.

Meanwhile, Lugar's star seems to be rising — in part because of his role as chairman of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee, a panel that distributes funds and other forms of campaign help to GOP Senate candidates.

And this year, under Lugar's rule, the committee has given the maximum allowable by law to every single Senate candidate — instead of focusing the most money in key races as the Democrats have done.

This has surely not lost Lugar any friends, and he may be able to cash in on his political IOUs when the ballots for Senate leader are passed around.

Meanwhile, Dole, who is not up for re-election this year, has formed his own fund-raising effort to help pump money into the campaigns of GOP colleagues who are running.

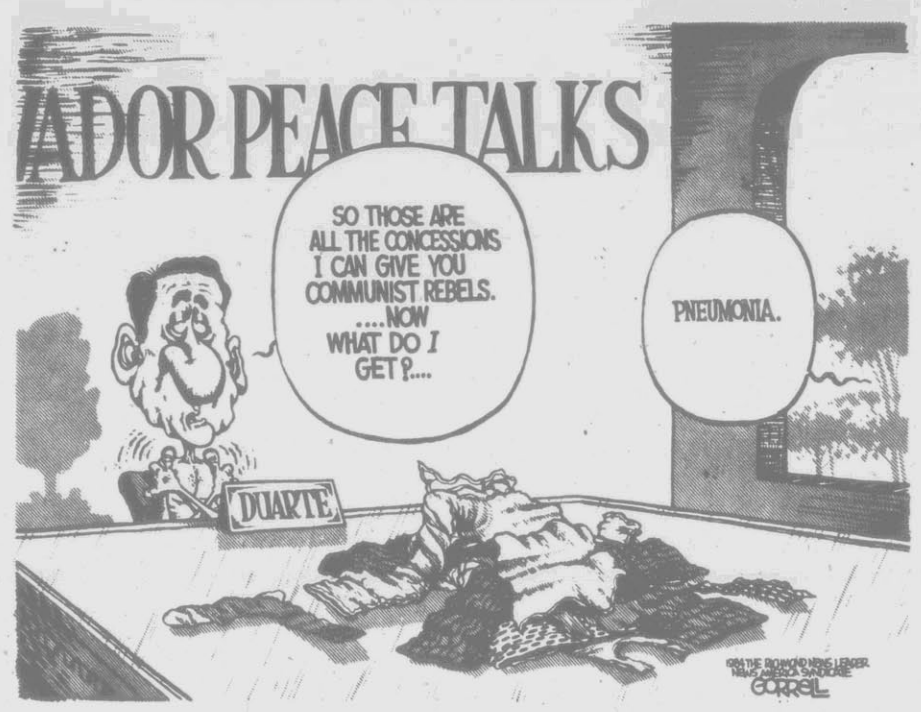

All five, in fact, have been going out of their way this year to be helpful to colleagues.

Since the vote is by secret ballot, and because senators are so divided on the issue, it seems unlikely that anyone will drop out before the election. So suspense keeps building.

There is also an interesting secondary race shaping up for the No. 2 GOP spot in the Senate being vacated by Stevens. Sen. Alan K. Simpson of Wyoming so far is the only announced candidate for the post.

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., has announced that she will run for the post if Dole, the senior Kansas senator, doesn't win his race for the No. 1 spot. Senate rules prohibit a leader and assistant leader from the same state.

Public Forum

To the editor:

How lucky can we get? We, the uninformed stupid public, have the great wisdom of the press and television to explain what the candidates said, did not say, and what they really meant when they didn't say what they meant to say.

At the insistence of television and the press, we were exposed to the debates so we could make up our minds who to vote for.

After all, we have only been exposed to Mondale for 20 years (12 as Senator, four as Vice President, four running for President).

Certainly, we know nothing about Reagan after eight years as Governor of California, two years running against Ford, four years running against Carter, and four years as President — only 18 years.

There is one thing I wish the great wise men of tv and the press would explain to me. They take a public poll afer each debate: Now if the poll shows Hunt 45 percent, Helms 40 percent, we are told it's a "smashing victory" for Hunt, but when it shows 47 percent Helms, 33 percent Hunt it becomes "virtually a draw." Then Mondale wins 46 percent to 41 percent for Reagan and it becomes "complete victory for Fighting Fritz," but Bush annihilates Ferrano and "she demonstrated her ablity to be V.P." even though the poll results were 47 percent Bush, 32 percent Ferrano.

This is how lucky we can get! As hard as the liberal television and press reporters try, they have been unable to convince us that we should trade in ole Ronnie and ole Jesse for "Weak Walter" and "Jumping Jim" (from side to side). As the old saying goes, 'if it ain't broke, don't fix it."

To the editor:

On the final pages of this newsletter are what they call the three outrages of the month. They ask their members to vote on what they consider No. 1.

Is this the outrage of the month? $305,506 ain't peanuts. $1,833 for a video recorder for Jimmy Carter; Gerald Ford, $40,000 for phone calls.

It states that total expenses for Herbert Hoover and Harry Truman were $62,000. It states that last year Nixon, Ford and Carter cost $29 million to keep happy in their dotage, not counting the $83,300 pension each receives.

For staff, travel, printing and other office needs, Nixon spent $214,007; Gerald Ford needed $253,323 and Jimmy Carter spent $305,506.

It ends by stating, "Now ask yourself, why is this man smiling?"

Anthony Woodson

To the editor:

The political debates have been interesting, but there's a lot unsaid. No one has suggested getting rid of the privately owned Federal Reserve system. According to our great Constitution, Congress alone has the authority to make money and decide the value of it. Unlawfully, Congress gave up their rights to the Federal Reserve through which the international bankers operate the biggest scam in history by creating money out of thin air and charging people interest on it. That's why we have high interest rates, inflation, depression and an interest-bearing "national debt" of more than $6,000 for every person in America. The per capita interest on this fraudulent debt is about $600 per year and taxpayers pay it through an unlawful tax on their wages. This is a disgrace that the Demopublicans don't discuss at all. This corrupt system can be done away with and the federal government can start issuing debt-free interest-free money as the Constitution intended. It hasn't been told how well the government operated for 125 years without the income tax either. This tax is just a prop for socialism here and wars everywhere else. Who needs it? George Washington said we shouldn't get involved in foreign wars, but have a policy of America first.

No one mentioned ending the ludicrous system of paying farmers not to produce. Here we are in the midst of milk and honey and turning our backs on starving people! Organic farming should be encouraged to stop the polllution of our soil and water. The food industries should stop robbing us all of vital nutrients by refining everything to uselessness. Cures for dreaded diseases are kept from the public because disease makes money.

Remember — when you vote for the lesser of two evils, you still vote for evil.

A Change In Preference

RALEIGH — Ted and Amy are a young professional couple whom you'd expect to vote a straight Democratic ticket on Nov. 6. They hold liberal-to-moderate positions on most issues and have indicated that they plan to vote for Walter Mondale, Jim Hunt and their Democratic congressman.

So it was surprising to this reporter when Ted and Amy (not their real names, by the way) confided in early September that they planned to vote for Republican gubernatorial nominee Jim Martin.

Voters like Ted and Amy also surprised the camp of Democratic gubernatorial nominee Rufus Edmisten. Polling indicated that Ted and Amy weren't alone. Young, urban, professional voters, the type of liberal and moderate voters who were attracted to Gary Hart's presidential bid, "should have been our people," says Dan Hoover, Edmisten's press aide. Hoover refused to say what percentage of this kind of voter indicated a preference for Martin, but said a significant minority were leaning toward the conservative Republican. "We felt that we ought to have seen a bigger share of them," he said.

Inside the Edmisten camp, there was a feeling that Martin's popularity with the Yuppies was based almost entirely on style. "It was his media (television ads) and personal style," Hoover said. "He was coming off as a warm and caring guy ... trying to make himself look like the great moderate."

Amy, asked to explain the apparent philosophical contradiction of voting for Mondale and Martin, said, "Oh, I just can't vote for Rooo-Fus." She went on to explain that Edmisten sounded like a "redneck" and Martin appeared to be a "class act." She was especially impressed with Martin's academic background. (He was a chemistry professor at Davidson College.)

"Rufus's base is in the rural area," Hoover said. "He is a warmer, more down to earth than Martin — (Martin's style) may be more appealing to some Yuppies, but when they get a look at the issues, things change."

Back in early September, the Edmisten campaign "thought it was time to take some Yuppie issues and turn them (the Yuppies) around to show that, instead of being warm and caring, Martin is elite and cold and tied to the big interests," Hoover said.

A Well-Timed Roadblock

WASHINGTON — This Nov. 11 — Veterans Day — was to mark the return to Washington of two veteran 1960s activists. Jerry Rubin, radical-turned-apostle of Yuppiedom, and the less reconstructed Abbie Hoffman were going to face off in a debate at the Wax Museum, a local nightclub.

Now that its owner, a parking lot company, has decided to close the Wax Museum property on Nov. 3, the Rubin-Hoffman road show may have to make a detour around the town that witnessed many of their legendary antics. But are we upset? Not a chance.

The Rubin-Hoffman tour is a promoter's gimmick that threatens to make their era look even stranger than it already appears to today's younger audiences. The 1960s needs good historians, not aging court jesters, to present its record to a historiphobic generation.

This isn't the first time booking agents have tried to exploit relics of a bygone era. Nor is it likely to be the last. Many of the account executives who market the Rubins and Hoffmans and Liddys and Learys got their own political education in the 1960s. Moreover, has-beens come relatively cheap compared to such highly-sought-after speakers as Carl Sagan or Henry Kissinger.

When squaring off in debate, they can also make for good theater. That, at least, is the reckoning of the Rubin-Hoffman tour's New York-based promoters. As co-defendants in the "Chicago Seven" trial in 1968, Rubin and Hoffman made a lot of noise in Judge Julius Hoffman's courtroom. Imagine, then, the two soup-stirrers pitted against each other on perhaps the most important question facing the younger generation: whether it's better to work against the system, or to cooperate with it. Not surprisingly, the promoters bill the hour-long format as Yippie vs. Yuppie.

Rubin, at 46 a successful New York City businessman, argues on behalf of cooperation. Yuppies need not shed their ideals for the almighty dollar. By accruing wealth, he says, one can "amass leverage and create a society that is good for everybody."

"No generation can live its life as full-time protesters," Rubin told the Chicago Tribune before the tour opened its campus run at Marquette University recently. "...the fact is that the protesters of the '60s have become the entrepreneurs of the '80s ... Why stay as outsiders when we have the opportunity to become the establishment?"

Hoffman, meanwhile, insists that continued agitation is the only course. He cites his almost full-time efforts on behalf of the environmental movement and the campaign against U.S. policy in Central America. Defying the "has-been" label, the 47-year-old resident of rural New York calls Rubin a "sell-out."

For his trouble, of course, Hoffman shares with Rubin and their agents a $5,000 fee. Since turning himself in on a drug charge in 1980 after seven years as a fugitive, he's supported himself largely through the college lecture circuit. "Most of my money ends up in the causes I work for," he insists. Some of his peers, however, might call him no less a born-again entrepreneur than Rubin.

Strength For Today

In 1787 Gibbon completed his famous work, "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire." He attributed the fall to five causes: 1. The rapid increase in divorce; the undermining of the dignity and sanctity of the home, which is the basis of human society. 2. Higher and higher taxes and the spending of public monies for free bread and circuses for the populace. 3. The mad craze for pleasure; sports becoming every year more exciting and brutal. 4. The building of gigantic armaments when the real enemy was within in the decadence of the people. 5. The decay of religion — faith fading into mere form, losing touch with life and becoming impotent to warn and guide people.

Let us not think that our marvelous civilization is either foolproof or inviolate. The same things can topple us over which toppled over the glories of the past.

Mannish Look For Women Is 'In'

DEAR ABBY: I am 17 years old and so is my girlfriend. This summer she got her hair cut real short and started combing it like a boy. I didn't like it and told her so.

Last weekend I took her to a movie, and she wore a man's shirt and tie, a man's type jacket and trousers, and even a pair of wing-tip shoes. I felt embarrassed to be seen with her and refused to hold hands with her because I was afraid people would think we were a couple of homosexuals.

She got mad and said I was a real square. She said she was being fashionable—that the mannish look for women is "in." Is this true?

Am I weird to want my girlfriend to look like a girl?

BOB

DEAR BOB: You aren't weird—the fashion designers are. Your girlfriend has the right to dress the way she wants to dress. And you have the right to refuse to be seen in public with someone whose appearance you find embarrassing.

First the bad news: The mannish look for women is "in." Now for the good news: A lot of women aren't buying it.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: "Safe and Secure," who ignored a male driver who was trying to get her attention when they both stopped at a red light, could also be paranoid. The stranger might have been trying to alert her to a faulty taillight, a hanging muffler or perhaps a belt hanging out her door.

I know because I have been ignored for trying to communicate the same things. And by the way, not all men are ax murderers; I wish women would give us men half a chance before shutting us out.

INSULTED IN NEW YORK

DEAR INSULTED: You're 100 percent right. But I would rather mistake a good guy for an ax murderer than mistake an ax murderer for a good guy.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Last weekend I had a date with a man I didn't know very well. (I had met him in a bar the night before and gave him my phone number.) He took me out for dinner so we could get better acquainted. He came on to me pretty strong, and there was something about him I didn't like (bad vibes).

When he took me home, I planned on saying goodnight at the door because I really didn't want this man in my apartment. (I live alone.) When I said goodnight, he asked if he could use my bathroom. What could I say? After he used the bathroom, he sat himself down in my living room and asked if I would make him a cup of coffee. I was beginning to get the idea, but didn't want to be rude. He sipped his coffee slowly, and kept looking at me in a way that made me uncomfortable. After the coffee, he made a grab for me. I pulled away from him, said I had to get up early for work, then I asked him to leave. I was trembling inside for fear I had a rapist on my hands. Thank God he didn't give me any trouble.

Please print this to let other women know that "May I use your bathroom?" is one way a man can get into a woman's apartment. Now I'm sorry I didn't say, "Sorry, find a gasoline station."

LUCKY IN DALLAS

DEAR LUCKY: Your first mistake was letting the man know where you lived before you got to know him better. You should have met him somewhere to get better acquainted, then taken a taxi home when the vibes were bad.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My problem isn't exactly earth-shattering, but I'm sure it's one that is shared by many.

My husband and I are friendly with a couple I'll call Joe and Schatzi. Schatzi is German-born, but she's been in this country for many years and speaks fluent English. Joe also speaks German. When the two of them are in a group they converse in German, and nobody else can understand what they are saying.

How about a few lines in your column stating what you think about people who speak German in the presence of those who can't understand it?

FED UP
IN FRANKFORT, KY.

DEAR FED UP: People who speak German (or Spanish, or Chinese or pig latin) in the presence of those who cannot understand it are rude, insensitive and offensive.

But a few well-chosen words of protest in a language that everybody can understand will do more than a few lines in my column.

MEAN SEALS

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — Elephant seals, which can weigh up to three tons and reach a length of 16 feet, are the meanest members of the family of pinnipeds, which includes seals, sea lions and walruses, according to marine biologists.

In cases where seals have attacked divers and surfers, elephant seals were responsible every time the offending animal could be identified.

'Saddened' Marcos Reports Ver's Departure

By DAVID BRISCOE
Associated Press Writer

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Gen. Fabian C. Ver, chief of the Philippines' armed forces and a close friend of President Ferdinand E. Marcos, went on "temporary leave" today after a fact-finding board accused him of complicity in the assassination of Benigno Aquino.

Neither the majority nor minority reports of the Marcos-appointed board implicated the president in the killing, and this led to charges by Aquino's family and opposition figures of a cover-up.

The government news agency quoted a "saddened" Marcos as announcing Ver's departure shortly after the majority report by four of the five board members named Ver among 25 military men and one civilian who allegedly plotted the murder of Aquino.

The opposition leader was shot in the head while under military escort at Manila's main airport as he returned home on Aug. 21, 1983, from voluntary exile in the United States.

The four board members said they were "satisfied that the evidence proves the complicity" of Ver in what they called the "premeditated murder" of Aquino.

The board said it had received "overwhelming" evidence showing that the military's "elaborate plans ostensibly geared toward protecting the life of Sen. Aquino were in reality designed to camouflage the taking of that life."

Marcos said in a statement that he sent the majority report to judicial authorities for prosecution — in the same way he had handled the dissenting report of board chairwoman Corazon Agrava on Tuesday. Mrs. Agrava's report concluded Ver was not involved and accused air force Gen. Luther Custodio and six soldiers of plotting the murder.

The government said Ver, in a letter to Marcos, proclaimed his innocence and asked to be relieved until the "trial at the Sandiganbayan (a special civilian court) is finished."

"I never imagined in my wildest dreams that I would be implicated in the Aquino cases," said Ver, also requesting an immediate separate trial.

Justice Minister Estelito Mendoza said at a news conference that he expected those named in the majority report would be restricted to quarters.

Shortly after the majority report's release, a secretary for board member Luciano Salazar said Salazar and board member Dante Santos had been barred from leaving the country on a flight to Hong Kong, having been told they needed clearance from the presidential palace.

Marcos later reversed the order preventing them from leaving, saying it was due to an "apparent mix-up." However, Salazar said he did not believe his detention along with that of Santos and his family was an innocent mistake.

Judge Bars Release Of Kennedy Videotape

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A judge reversed a ruling he made earlier in the day and barred the release of a videotape of the hotel room where David Kennedy's body was found in April.

Circuit Judge John E. Born on Monday ordered Palm Beach State Attorney David Bludworth to release the tape to attorneys representing two former bellhops accused of selling cocaine to the 28-year-old son of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

But later Monday, Born switched his decision and said that unless he decides the tape is essential to the defense, the state attorney's office did not have to release it under rules of pretrial evidence discovery.

At another hearing Monday, behind closed doors, Born reviewed documents in the case that have been requested by several news organizations. The judge said he would announce today if any documents should be released.

Under a standing order from Circuit Judge R. William Rutter, documents given to defense attorneys must also be made available to the news media.

Kennedy's body was discovered in his $250-a-day suite at the Brazilian Court Hotel in Palm Beach the morning of April 25. A medical examiner's autopsy showed that Kennedy died of "combined drug intoxication" from cocaine, a pain killer and a tranquilizer.

Attorney Michael Salnick, representing former bellhop Peter Marchant, 24, of Warwick, R.I., requested the videotape. Also accused of selling cocaine to Kennedy is David Linwood Dorr, 31, of West Yarmouth, Mass.

Tom Clark's Collectibles.
Tom Clark, noted Portrait Sculptor, Creates.
It looks so easy as Tom Clark takes small bits of clay and gently sculpts them on little armatures. Gradually these clay pieces become little life-sized "Gnomes" and "Wood Spirits".
Each piece is hand cast from an original with a special blend of resins, crushed pecan shells and wood chips. Each statue is then carefully hand painted and hand stained. Each creation is signed by the sculptor and each new edition is numbered.
Hold one of these collectibles in your hands and sense the antique wood-like finish, the exquisite workmanship and the soft faded colors.
These same statues also weather very nicely outdoors where they can be used as plant props and patio accessories.

Sea Floor Damage Target Of Study

Scientists plan to take a close-up look at the effects of hurricane Diana on the floor of the Atlantic Ocean where the tropical storm raged for two days before striking inland Sept. 13.

"This provides an excellent opportunity — almost a laboratory setting — to study the effects of storms on the rocks and sediments on the sea bottom," East Carolina University geologist Dr. Stan Riggs said.

The location of the eye of Diana when it stalled off the North Carolina coast (on the outer rim of Onslow Bay on the continental shelf) Sept. 11 and 12 "is almost precisely" the spot where Riggs and other scientists have been studying the ocean floor. Ocean depth at the location is approximately 75 to 85 feet.

Research by Riggs and other ECU scientists and teams from Duke University and the University of South Florida will be resumed at the Onslow Bay site the last week in November. Supported by a $35,000 grant from the National Science Foundation and a $10,000 grant from the U.S. Navy, the studies will be conducted aboard the Research Vessel Cape Hatteras which is operated by the Duke-UNC Oceanographic Consortium.

Riggs said plans call for an interdisciplinary study by geologists from ECU, biologists from Duke and state and national marine fisheries personnel, along with Dr. Al Hine of the University of South Florida and representatives of the Oceanographic Consortium taking part.

Accident Damages Heavy

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 5:14 p.m. collision at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Truman Street, involving cars driven by Ruth Wickum Stewart of Farmville, and David Green of Route 1, Greenville.

Police, who charged Green with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $3,000 to the Stewart car and $2,800 to the Green vehicle.

Cars driven by Victoria Maria Ortiz of Williamston, and Rachel May Clarke of Raleigh, collided about 6:15 p.m. on Charles Street, 180 feet north of the Greenville Boulevard intersection, causing $1,000 damage to the Ortiz car and $500 damage to the Clarke vehicle, investigators reported.

Ms. Ortiz was charged with following too close in connection with the collision.

An estimated $400 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 3:30 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Second and Cotanche Streets.

Officers, who identified the drivers of the vehicles involved as Claudia Slay Moseley of 2815 Ellsworth Drive, and William Allan Stokes of Azalea Gardens, charged Miss Moseley with failing to stop for a stop sign.

Mailbox Snake

MASSAPEQUA, N.Y. (AP) — It wasn't rain, nor snow, nor dark of night that caused the pause in mail delivery here. It was, authorities report, a five-foot boa constrictor.

The snake was discovered Tuesday inside a mailbox during an afternoon mail pickup, Nassau County police spokesman Officer William Burns said. The unidentified mailman was shaken but uninjured, and officials at the North Massapequa Post Office summoned police.

Burns said two officers removed the snake from the mailbox and it was taken to the Tackpasha Preserve in town.

Authorities had no idea where the snake came from or how it wound up inside the mailbox, Burns said.

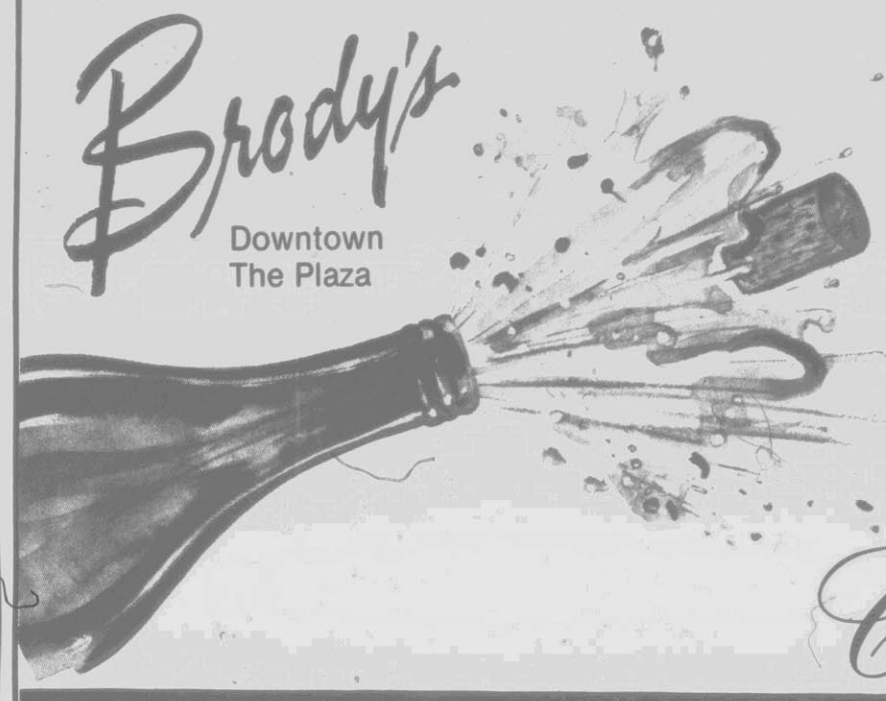

The fuller size woman has a whole new world of fashion... Brody's at the new "Plaza" Mall has recently opened a beautiful new store, devoted entirely to the fuller-sized woman, "the other Brody's". Chapter Gets National Honor

ECU News Bureau

East Carolina University's Beta Kappa chapter of Pi Omega Pi honor society in business teacher education has been awarded first place in national competition for the society's national chapter award.

The first place finish marks the seventh time in the past two decades that the ECU chapter has received the national award.

Selection of the winning chapter is based on quality of chapter projects and publications as well as promptness in communications with national officers.

The ECU chapter was chosen for the award by members of Beta Sigma chapter at Montclair State College, N.J., winner of last year's award.

Officers of Beta Kappa include Jimmy Smith of Conway, president; Betty Corbin of Greenville, vice-president; Angela Hamill of Littleton, secretary; Donna Herring of Kinston, treasurer; and Jack Edmondson of Rocky Mount and Lynn Chappelear of Farmville, historian.

Mrs. Thadys Dewar, the chapter's faculty sponsor, is a professor of business education and administrative services in the School of Technology.

'Celebrity' Luncheon Set

A lineup of well known local persons has committed to table hop, tote trays and collect tips for charity, at the American Lung Association's first annual "Celebrity Waiters' Luncheon," according to Jeanette Cox, honorary chairman.

The event will take place beginning at 11:30 a.m., Oct. 31 at the Greenville County Club and will benefit the Eastern Region of the Lung Association in the promotion of lung health.

Master of ceremonies Gary Dean of WCTI-TV, New Bern, will roast the luncheon brigade of celebrity waiters. The waiters, attired in red aprons and straw hats, will pour coffee and tea, sign autographs, pose for pictures, and collect tips for charity.

This fund raising event with a Dixieland theme is for the benefit of the American Lung Association, Eastern Region.

Tickets are limited to the seating capacity of the club and may be obtained at $15 per person from the American Lung Association of North Carolina, Eastern Region, 112 South Pitt Street (across from the main post office), telephone 752-5093.

Unscheduled Trip

NEW YORK (AP) — A subway conductor, upset when riders got back on a train that had been taken out of service, took 80 commuters on an unscheduled trip and cursed them over the subway loudspeakers, a newspaper reported today.

The incident began when passengers on the train were ordered off during rush hour Monday because of a problem with its door indicator lights, the New York Daily News reported.

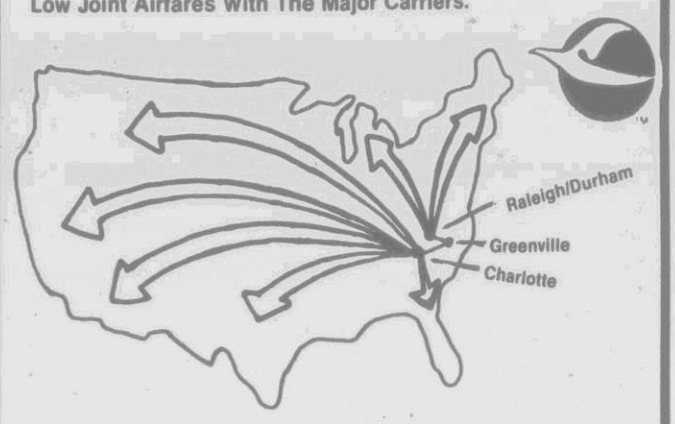

About 80 passengers jumped back on after an announcement that the train would resume service once its doors closed, and the conductor became irate when he discovered the riders, said passenger Paul Lepelletier, 30, of Brooklyn.

The conductor then cursed the riders and told them, "Now we're going to take you for a ride," Lepelletier said. The train continued through Manhattan for 30 minutes until the passengers were let off at another station, where transit police met it.

Most passengers left the subway there, but five staged a sit-in for three hours until police agreed to drive them to a station where they could catch another train on their original line, the News said.

Congressman Walter Jones and local Democratic candidates from the 21 counties of the First District will also attend. Admission, which includes dinner, is $7.

Park To Close

WILLIAMSBURG, VA. — Busch Gardens, The Old Country, will close for the winter season on Sunday, Oct. 28. The park will reopen for the 1985 season on April 6.

Joyce Becker's Soap Opera Festival on Saturday, Oct. 27 and concerts by John Schneider and Louise Mandrell on Sunday, Oct. 28, will conclude the park's 1984 schedule.

Student Plays

Under the direction of Steve Myott, second and third grade students from Eastern and Elmhurst schools wrote and produced two original plays. They were based on the interest of the students.

Ten creative dramatic workshops held in each school prior to the productions provided opportunities for creative expression. Workshops will also be presented by Myott at both Eastern and Elmhurst in the spring.

County Report Cards

Pitt County schools officials have announced that report cards for the first marking period will be distributed Thursday. Parents are encouraged to take the opportunity to communicate with their child's teachers and school in areas of interest.

Joins Law Firm

David W. Hardee, III, native of Greenville and a 1965 graduate of Rose High School, has recently joined a law firm in Washington, D.C., whose staff include Robert S. Strauss, former National Chairman of the Democratic Party.

Hardee graduated from Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va. in 1969 and from the Duke University Law School in 1972. From that date until 1982 he was employed by the Caudle, Underwood & Kinsey Law Firm in Charlotte.

For the past two years, he has worked as a minority tax counsel in the Senate Finance Committee of the U.S. Senate.

He is the son of Anne Lee Hardee of Greenville and the late David W. Hardee, Jr.

New Professors

Dr. Roy T. Denton, formerly an associate professor at the University of Southern Mississippi, and retired U.S. Navy Capt. James R. Bruner, formerly with the Judge Advocate General's Corps, have joined the East Carolina University Division of Social Work as assistant professors.

An alumnus of the University of Tennessee with a doctoral degree in social work from Ohio State University, Denton has taught at the graduate and undergraduate level for 13 years.

Bruner, who received his law degree from the University of Kentucky, was most recently stationed in Norfolk, Va., where he was legal and corrections advisor for the Supreme Allied Commander-Atlantic.

The ECU Division of Social Work includes degree programs in social work and correctional services. The division is part of ECU's School of Allied Health and Social Work.

Charges Made

Milton Lee Phillips, 36, of 600B Clark St., was arrested by Greenville police Tuesday on charges of first degree burglary, larceny and possession of stolen property, according to Officer T.E. Nevelle.

Nevelle said the charges against Phillips resulted from an incident at 509 Sheppard St., reported to the police department early Sunday, in which $12 in cash and $550 worth of clothing was taken from the dwelling.

Carnival Planned

St. Gabriel School will hold its annual Halloween Carnival Extravaganza Friday from 6-8 p.m. in the school hall. Admission will be 25 cents.

Receives Honor

Thadys J. Dewar, professor of business education and administrative services in the East Carolina University School of Technology, has been named 1984 Member-of-the-Year by the North Carolina Business Education Association (NCBEA).

Mrs. Dewar is married to Sam Davis Dewar, a retired agriculture teacher. They reside in Bethel where she is active on the Bethel Library Board of Trustees and in the Bethel United Methodisty Church.

Recipients of the NCBEA award are selected on the basis of classroom performance, leadership in professional organizations, professional growth and performance, and participation in civic and cultural activities.

FAA Orders Fire Retardant Seat Covers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly 15 months after a fire aboard an Air Canada jet claimed 23 lives, the Federal Aviation Administration has ordered airlines to install fire retardant seat covers on commercial aircraft.

The seat covers fit over seat cushions to slow the rate of burn, giving passengers more time to escape. They are to be installed in all planes of 30 or more seats within the next three years.

The order announced Tuesday represents the most far reaching fire safety improvement since the Air Canada DC-9 jetliner was forced to make an emergency landing June 2, 1983, in Cincinnati after fire and smoke engulfed the plane. Twenty-three passengers died and 23 other people escaped by only seconds.

The Air Canada tragedy prompted calls by air safety advocates and members of Congress for tighter fire safety regulations for commercial jetliners. The FAA began developing a number of new regulations, including the requirement for the seat covers and another rule announced Tuesday requiring better emergency lighting in aircraft cabins.

Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole said the special seat covers and the improved lighting requirement to help guide passengers out of a smoke-filled aircraft cabin are expected to save numerous lives.

"While aircraft accidents and fires occur rarely," Mrs. Dole said in a statement, "some 80 percent of the 914 fatalities in U.S. airline accidents involving fires since 1965 were caused by fire, smoke and toxic gases and the inability of passengers to evacuate an aircraft quickly enough to escape those hazards."

FAA researchers have tested the fire-blocking seat covers for some time, but the program was given renewed emphasis by the 1983 Air Canada fire. The covers, which under the FAA rule can be made of a variety of materials, are aimed at delaying the so-called fire "flash-over" where flammable vapors in the cabin ignite causing a fireball that is virtually impossible to survive.

Tests conducted at the FAA's technical center near Atlantic City have shown that a particular cover, made of a product called Norfab, has delayed the flash-over by as much as 40 seconds. Such a delay, FAA researchers estimated, could result in the saving on a average of five to 20 lives a year.

Mediator Eyed To Help Solve Postal Dispute

By MERRILL HARTSON
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Postal Service and its two largest unions have agreed to meet with a federal mediator in an attempt to end a three-month collective bargaining stalemate without binding arbitration.

Although the dispute is headed toward binding arbitration under federal law, a session at the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service is scheduled for Thursday to determine whether there's any chance of a settlement.

"What we are trying to do is to get the principals together ... to circumvent or deviate somewhat from what the law prescribes in this case," a high-ranking government labor relations official who agreed to discuss the situation only on condition that he not be identified said Tuesday.

In the ill-fated negotiations earlier this year, the Postal Service demanded that its workers accept a three-year freeze on wage rates and insisted that management be permitted to establish a two-tier pay system, which would cut the average pay of new employees by 23 percent.

The unions refused to accept these proposals and countered with demands for pay raises and other economic benefits that Postmaster General William F. Bolger said would cost $14.6 billion over the next three years and force up mail rates.

Under the old contract, a typical experienced postal worker earned about $23,000 a year, not including fringe benefits.

The meeting set for Thursday, will involve representatives of the Postal Service and the heads of the two labor organizations, the American Postal Workers Union and the National Association of Letter Carriers.

These two unions represent more than a half-million of the roughly 600,000 rank-and-file agency employees.

Acceptance of the invitation to meet with mediators was confirmed by spokesmen for the two unions and by the senior government official.

Provisions in the Postal Reorganization Act of 1970 for resolving impasses in labor disputes involving the Postal Service were triggered last July 21 when a three-year contract expired.

But early this fall, the Postal Service and the two large unions waived provisions of the act calling for third-party fact-finding in an effort at that time to explore the possibility of reaching a settlement. Nothing came out of that except for some meetings of lawyers representing the two sides.

But the 45-day clock on binding arbitration will not commence until the unions and the Postal Service have selected their representatives to serve on that panel.

Representatives of two smaller unions — the Rural Association of Letter Carriers and the Mail Handler's Division of Laborer's International Union — were not invited to Thursday's meeting, the source said, because mediators wanted to first determine the prospects of any settlement among the major parties.

How They Voted

WASHINGTON — Here's how area House members and Senators were recorded on major roll call votes in the closing days of the 98th Congress.

House

KENNEDY CENTER — The House approved, 166 for and 163 against, a measure enabling Kenndy Center for the Performing Arts to remain solvent.

The rescue plan was included in the $470 billion catch-all appropriations bill for fiscal 1985 (HJ Res 648) that, later was signed by President Reagan.

Washington's Kennedy Center will be forgiven $33 million in interest it owes the Treasury as well as future interest on government bonds that financed its creation in the early 1960s.

The Center will be allowed to retire its debt by 2017 through principal payments of $200,000 annually.

Supporter Mary Rose Oakar, D-Ohio, said "England, Germany, all of the great Western cultures subsidize the arts. We ought to do more, not less."

North Carolina representatives voting yes were Charles Whitley, D-3; Ike Andrews, D-4; Stephen Neal, D-5; Charles Britt, D-6, and James Clarke, D-11.

Those voting no were Tim Valentine, D-2, and James Broyhill, R-10.

Not voting were Walter Jones, D-1; Charles Rose, D-7; W.G. Hefner, D-8, and James Martin, R-9.

SOUTH AFRICA — By a vote of 269 for and 62 against, the House insisted that any new law controlling sensitive exports include a ban on U.S. banks loaning to the South African government.

The House previously included such a ban in its version of the Export Administration Act. But the Senate exluded sanctions against South Africa when it approved the bill.

U.S. banks have been loaning to the pro-apartheid South African government at a rate of $388 million annually.

The effect of this vote was to return the conference report on the Export Administration Act to the Senate, which allowed the bill to die with the 98th Congress.

Members voting yes wanted a ban on U.S. bank loans to the South African government to be part of the Export Administration Act.

Not voting were Whitley, Hefner, James Martin and Clarke.

FTC — By a vote of 36 for and 298 against, the House rejected a provision to weaken the Federal Trade Commission's power to bring anti-trust actions against local governments.

This occurred during debate on a bill (HR 6027) that immunizes cities and municipal units from paying damage awards when they lose anti-trust suits. In future cases, judges can grant only injunctive relief.

The bill was sent to President Reagan.

Supporter Martin Sabo, D-Minn., charged the FTC with "stupidity" in challenging taxicab regulations in Minneapolis and New Orleans.

Opponent Hamilton Fish, R-N.Y., said the FTC should be permitted to "exercise its normal statutory responsibilities to enforce compliance with our anti-trust laws."

Members voting no wanted the FTC to be able to file anti-trust suits against local governments.

Senate

DEBT — By a vote of 37 for and 30 against, the Senate gave final congressional approval to a measure (HJ Res 654) raising the national debt ceiling from $1.573 trillion to $1.824 trillion.

The new borrowing limit is expected to suffice until fiscal 1985 ends next Sept. 30. The House averted a record vote when it approved the new ceiling.

Without the higher limit, the Treasury would have been unable to borrow to pay the government's bills. It was within $25 million of its borrowing authority when the Senate voted.

Senators voting yes favored the higher debt ceiling.

North Carolina Sen. John East, R, voted yes. Sen. Jesse Helms, R, did not vote.

FREEZE — By a vote of 30 for and 61 against, the Senate refused to table (kill) an amendment in behalf of freezing fiscal 1986 federal spending at 1985 levels.

This occurred during debate on raising the debt ceiling to $1.824 trillion (above).

The amendment provided that a record vote on freezing 1986 spending would be held next year as part of the next vote on raising the debt ceiling. It later was shelved on procedural grounds.

Pete Domenici, R-N.M., who voted the kill the amendment, said "I am not prepared to freeze defense spending today at $292.8 billion without a full discussion of what that really means."

Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., called a spending freeze "the unique opportunity for Democrats to finally demonstrate fiscal discipline" and repudiate President Reagan's claim that "we are the party of tax and spend."

East voted yes. Helms voted no.

FTC — By a vote of 56 for and 42 against, the Senate adopted an amendment restoring the Federal Trade Commission's power to bring anti-trust suits against local governments.

As before, the agency could seek injunctive relief but not financial damages.

The provision was attached to a bill to protect municipal units against paying damage awards in anti-trust suits filed against them (see House vote above).

Supporter Warren Rudman, R-N.H., said the FTC should be able to counter "egregious interference in the free market process" on any level of government.

Opponent Ernest Hollings, S.C., called the FTC a "national nanny" that is "not acountable to anyone."

Senators voting no were opposed to the FTC suing cities for alleged anti-competitive practices.

East did not vote. Helms voted yes.

Martin Acquitted

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Billy Martin, the on-again, off-again manager of the New York Yankees, has been acquitted of public drunkenness and disorderly conduct charges because an argument that led to his arrest did not occur in a public place.

Martin, now a scout for the Yankees, was arrested April 14 and spent four hours in jail before posting a $100 bond. Police in Corona del Mar were called to a home by neighbors complaining about a loud argument.

Officers found Martin, 55, "screaming and hollering at a female," said police traffic investigator Gary Bruton.

Orange County Municipal Court Judge Russell A. Bostrom ruled Tuesday that the alleged offense took place on a patio of a home rather than in a public place and

P&G Threatens Lawsuit On Newest Devil Rumor

By JOHN NOLAN
Associated Press Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) — Rumors that Procter & Gamble Co.'s moon-and-stars trademark is a sign the company is in league with the devil are as ridiculous now as they were two years ago, a company spokesman says.

The Cincinnati-based company has launched a direct-mail campaign against the current rumors and is prepared to file lawsuits to halt their spread if it can figure out who to sue, said Robert Norrish, director of public relations.

In 1982, P&G enlisted the aid of religious leaders like the Rev. Billy Graham, the Rev. Jerry Falwell and Roman Catholic Cardinal Joseph Bernardin, and columnist Abigail Van Buren, to squelch the stories and a boycott.

The current rumors also say company President John G. Smale allegedly went on a national television talk show and said some profits were going to Satan.

"It's goofy, it's a ridiculous rumor. It's libelous. The whole thing is just absolutely without foundation," Norrish said Tuesday. "It dignifies the rumor by denying that there's any truth to it.

"It's amazing that in 1984, so many people can get caught up in talking about Satan."

The company, which does $13 billion worth of business worldwide each year, has received about 3,000 calls so far this month about the rumors, Norrish said. In July 1982, the peak of the earlier rumors, P&G got 15,000 calls on its toll-free telephone lines.

Most frustrating were fliers that urged "good Christians" to quit buying Procter & Gamble products. A series of lawsuits resulting in public apologies by two defendants caused the stories to subside but not disappear.

The rumors have been revived in leaflets distributed in churches and shopping malls, Norrish said.

"It's almost unbelievable that there are still persons who could swallow such a cock-and-bull story," Falwell said Tuesday from Lynchburg, Va. "Procter & Gamble is an outstanding company, and an asset to the nation ... I'd be very happy to do anything I could to help them."

The P&G direct-mail campaign, started early this month, is aimed at areas where the rumors are cropping up, including California, Nebraska, western New York, Wisconsin, Chicago, Minneapolis-St. Paul and western Pennsylvania.

The mailings explain the history of the century-old trademark of a "man-in-the-moon" face and a cluster of 13 stars, and reiterate that the company has no affiliation with the devil.

The trademark evolved from 1850s markings on crates of "Star" brand candles, according to the company's authorized history, "Eyes on Tomorrow; The Evolution of Procter & Gamble."

In those days, many riverboat hands along the Ohio River could not read, so wharf bosses painted black crosses on candle crates to separate them from soap crates.

The crosses eventually became an encircled cluster of stars — William Procter decided there should be 13 to match those on the first U.S. flag — and a quarter moon with a man's face was added.

In 1882, the design was registered with the U.S. Patent Office. It has remained unchanged since 1932.

The trademark appears on such products as Ivory soap, Folger's coffee, Cheer and Tide detergents, Scope mouthwash, Crest toothpaste, Crisco shortening and Jif peanut butter.

Dan Kane, spokesman for the Catholic Archdiocese of Cincinnati, said he has received calls during the past few days from various dioceses, inquiring about Bernardin's June 1982 statement. Bernardin, now a cardinal in Chicago, urged Catholics then to do what they could to stop spreading the "ugly rumor" about Procter & Gamble.

NOTICE OF HEARING
SHARING & RESALE OF LOCAL EXCHANGE SERVICE
DOCKET NO. P-100, SUB 73
BEFORE THE NORTH CAROLINA UTILITIES COMMISSION

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the North Carolina Utilities Commission has instituted a proceeding to investigate whether current tariff provisions prohibiting the sharing and resale of local exchange telephone service should be modified. The proceeding was undertaken in response to a June 27, 1984, tariff filing by Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company which provides for, under certain conditions, the resale and shared use of local exchange service. The tariff would allow, for example, the owner of a multi-tenant office building to furnish local service to the firms occupying his offices by sharing or reselling local service furnished to him by Southern Bell.

The Commission will also consider in this docket a tariff filed by Southern Bell on October 11, 1984, which proposes to establish rates and regulations for Public Telephone Access Service whereby subscribers would be allowed to connect FCC registered coin-operated or coinless stations to measured rate local exchange lines.

The Commission has concluded that the filing raises basic legal and policy issues and that a general investigation involving all regulated telephone companies should be conducted. In this investigation, the Commission will consider not only the revisions proposed by Southern Bell but also whether or not similar revisions should be made in the tariffs of other telephone companies.

The Utilities Commission has suspended the proposed tariffs, has set the matter for investigation and hearing, and has made all regulated telephone companies in North Carolina parties to the proceeding.

FURTHER DETAILS

The details of the proposed tariffs are available at telephone company business offices or at the North Carolina Utilities Commission, Dobbs Building, 430 North Salisbury Street, Raleigh, North Carolina, where a copy of Southern Bell's tariffs are available for public review in the office of the Chief Clerk. The Commission will consider additional or alternative revisions which were not included in the original tariffs and may order changes which differ from those proposed by the Company. Upon request, the Commission will place copies of the tariffs in centrally-located public libraries. The material may be copied without prohibition at the library.

HEARING SCHEDULE

The Commission has scheduled a hearing in Raleigh to receive testimony on this matter from the regulated telephone companies and other interested parties. The hearing is scheduled as follows:

Raleigh: Monday, December 10, 1984, at 9:30 a.m. in Commission Hearing Room 217, Dobbs Building, 430 North Salisbury Street, Raleigh, North Carolina.

APPEARANCES, INTERVENTIONS AND COMMENTS

The Commission requires that each telephone company operating in North Carolina inform its customers of the following procedure by which comments regarding this matter can be made part of the record of the case upon which the Commission must base its decision. Persons desiring to intervene in the matter as formal parties of record should file a petition under North Carolina Utilities Commission Rule R1-19. The testimony of formal intervenors shall be filed with the Commission on or before Wednesday, November 21, 1984.

Other persons desiring to present testimony for the record should appear at the public hearing. Persons desiring to send written statements to the Commission should submit their statements prior to the hearing and should include any information which those persons wish to be considered in the investigation of the matter. The contents of letters and petitions will be received in the official file as statements of position. Specific facts, however, will only be considered and on the basis of testimony presented at the public hearing. Interventions or statements should be addressed to the Chief Clerk, North Carolina Utilities Commission, Post Office Box 991, Raleigh, North Carolina 27602.

The Public Staff of the Utilities Commission, through its Executive Director, is authorized by statute to represent the using and consuming public in proceedings before the Commission. Statements to the Executive Director should be addressed to:

Stock And Market Reports

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 2.87 to 1,215.88 in the first half hour.

Analysts said traders were taking a generally favorable view of the outlook for inflation and interest rates.

Before the market opened this morning, the Labor Department reported that the consumer price index posted a moderate 0.4 percent increase in September.

Recent cuts in oil prices by several producing nations have raised hopes that low inflation rates will continue to prevail in this country in the months ahead.

But accumulating evidence of a slowing economy has also prompted worries on Wall Street about a possible significant slump in business activity, and an accompanying period of weakness in corporate profits.

On Tuesday the Commerce Department said new orders for durable goods fell 4.3 per-cent in September. Various brokerage firms had been projecting an increase or a small decline at worst.

Halliburton led the active list in the early going, down 1/4 at 29 1/2. A 790,000-share block traded at 29 1/4.

General Motors climbed 3/8 to 79 1/8. The company reported lower third-quarter profits on Tuesday, but said strikes were a major cause of the drop.

Hunt ...

from 3 to 10 years to "sell more tobacco to some countries in a position to pay for it."

Hunt also said producers of flue-cured tobacco should be brought together to make long-term plans for a stable tobacco program. "We need to know where we're going to go and what we're going to do.

"There's some hope out there. It's a matter of voting your pocketbook."

Carlin, chairman of the National Governors' Association, said Hunt "is a respected leader, not just here in North Carolina, but throughout the country," for his support of agriculture.

Pointing out that agriculture is the "biggest industry in this country" and suggesting that farmers receive no recognition from key people in Washington, Carlin said "it's time for a change.

"What we need is responsible leadership. What a difference it would make if your U.S. senator knew how to bring people together ... rather than divide them.

Three Democratic U.S. representatives — all members of the House Agriculture Committee — from Eastern North Carolina, Walter Jones, Charlie Rose and Charlie Whitley, also urged farmers to vote for Hunt.

Whitley related how Hunt flooded congressional leaders with telephone calls when the tobacco program was in jeophardy in 1982.

"Hunt called night and day," Whitley said. "He has already demonstrated that he has influence in Washington. If we elect him to the U.S. Senate, he'll have even more."

Rose said, "I came here tonight to tell you, as chairman of the House Subcommittee on Tobacco and Peanuts, that I've spent most of my waking hours for the past four or five years" working to save the tobacco support program. "It would be 10 times safer that it is tonight if you elect Jim Hunt," because, Rose suggested, Helms, in the past six years as chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee has "gone out of his way (to) alienate dozens and dozens of his colleagues."

Jones, the senior member of the tobacco and peanut subcommittee, told the gathering, "I know why we're here tonight ... to convince you the man we are honoring here tonight can best serve you" in the Senate.

"Tobacco is a problem with us," Jones said. Suggesting that Helms isn't even trying to save the tobacco program, he said "we need someone who cares ... someone who will stand up ... defend the tobacco program on the Senate side."

Jones than asked Hunt, "As the next member of the United States Senate, would you ever vote to double the tax on cigarettes?"

"No" Hunt shouted.

Mall ...

with 800 employees expected to be employed at The Plaza during the Christmas holiday season, Milian noted.

As an enclosed mall The Plaza features copper-colored Alcan (a man-made metal) ceiling inside, which will reflect lights from wooden troughs and store-fronts for indirect lighting, Milian said. The only direct lighting in the mall, Milian said, will be from skylights.

The mall also features Alcan and stone entrances and tile floors.

Renovation work at The Plaza moved into full swing in January, according to Milian, who said that contractors have been "working around the clock" to complete the renovation work before the grand opening.

"We expect 85,000 people will visit The Plaza," during the grand opening, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Milian said.

Milian, a Raleigh native and 1984 ECU graphic design and broadcasting graduate, said Mark Pitney and Associates of Raleigh is The Plaza's leasing agent and management firm.

John Kane, one of the owners of The Plaza Mall, said the name of the shopping center was changed in an effort "to reflect a more fashionable community center" that resulted from enclosing the structure and adding stores during the $3 million renovation.

"We originally bought the center in 1978 with the intentions of enclosing it," Kane said, adding that "the location is one of the best in the Greenville area."

The renovation of the shopping center added about 70,000 square feet of space to the 225,000 square-feet in Pitt Plaza during remodeling program which also allowed better use of existing space at the mall, Kaine said.

Denture Wearers Get Help

ATLANTA (AP) — Millions of denture wearers can now benefit from a jawbone substitute that helps overcome slippage, one of the biggest drawbacks in having artificial teeth, an oral surgeon says.

Dr. John N. Kent of Louisiana State University said the substitute — known as hydroxylapatite — has been used in more than 20,000 patients in the two years it has been on the market.

Kent, who presented his findings this week at the 125th annual session of the American Dental Association here, said the man-made material has proved to be far superior to other procedures for building new bone in the mouth.

"This is an unparalleled dental success story when you consider the fact that this thing works and works so well, and has the potential for helping 2 (million) or 3 million people who wear dentures," Kent said.

Teeth are normally embedded in the bony structure known as the alveolar ridge, which is part of the lower and upper jaw. Dentures sit on the alveolar ridge when the teeth are removed.

Without the teeth, however, the alveolar bone erodes, eventually leaving little or no bone on which to anchor dentures. As a result, dentures tend to slide in the mouth.

Car Is Pulled From Tar River

Pitt County Sheriff deputies pulled a 1966 red Mercedes, valued at $2,000, from the Tar River near Port Terminal Tuesday.

According to Sheriff Ralph Tyson, some picnickers spotted the car, under approximately three feet of water, about 11 a.m.

Tyson said there were no indications of foul play, but investigation is continuing.

Animal Protection

ROME (AP) — Italian film director Franco Zeffirelli plans to launch a nonpolitical movement for the protection of animals, but won't rule out "using the force of the movement to influence the government," a magazine said.

Helms Asserts Support For Tobacco, Peanuts

WILLIAMSTON — Republican Sen. Jesse Helms, campaigning for re-election here Tuesday, reminded supporters at a reception of his support for the tobacco and peanut programs, and for a strong national defense.

Helms, chairman of the Senate Committee on Agriculture, said if he is not re-elected, North Carolina would lose that position to a senator from another state and, in doing so, would bring an end to the tobacco and peanut programs.

"Just about every Senate member wants to be on the Senate Agriculture Committee," Helms said. "There is no way a new senator from North Carolina is going to become chairman of that committee."

Expressing concern for the spread of communism in the Western hemisphere, Helms said he considers the government's first responsibility to be national defense.

"If you don't have that" Helms suggested, "a budget cut isn't going to make any difference. The first dime you spend on a second-rate national defense is wasted money."

Citing the threat of communism, Helms said, "I hope the people of North Carolina are mindful that we are in a treacherous situation. All around the world, communist are really pushing hard.

He said, in our hemisphere communists are using Castro and others to "undermine anti-communist governments. If El Salvador fails, watch out," Helms warned.

Former Umpire Dies

DALY CITY, Calif. (AP) — Former major league umpire Babe Pinelli, who worked home plate during Don Larsen's perfect game in the 1956 World Series, died Monday at a convalescent home. He was 89.

Pinelli called pinch-hitter Dale Mitchell out on strikes to cap Larsen's perfect game between the New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers. Pinelli played eight years in the majors — with the Chicago White Sox, Detroit Tigers and Cincinnati Reds — before retiring as a player in 1927. He started umpiring in 1935 and once went 20 years without missing a game.

Jaguars Seek To Keep Hopes Alive

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

A "remote possibility."

That's all that remains of the Farmville Central Jaguars' hopes of returning to the state 3-A high school football playoffs as a representative of the Eastern Carolina Conference, according to head Coach Dixon Sauls.

"The playoff picture is completely dependent on the outcome of our three games and Greene Central's games with SouthWest Edgecombe and Southern Nash," Sauls said.

For Farmville Central to make it to the Division II playoffs, the Jaguars would have to win the final three games of the season while Greene Central has to lose both contests on its schedule. After the Rams host Southern Nash this week, they have a week off to prepare for top-ranked SouthWest Edgecombe.

The Jaguars should have little difficulty getting past winless North Pitt this week amid Homecoming festivities, but Ayden-Grifton visits Farmville next week before the Jags close the season at Southern Nash.

In other area games, Chocowinity hosts Mattamuskeet, Jamesville entertains Belhaven, Roanoke is at Williamston and Washington travels to Tarboro.

Farmville Central rolled past C.B. Aycock last week with a 56-0 victory over the 1-7 Falcons. Aycock's lone win was against the Panthers of North Pitt.

"Hopefully winning after three tough losses will turn our season around," Sauls said. "We just had to regroup after three disappointing losses at the start of the conference schedule; we'd still like to have a winning season."

The Panthers are 0-7 overall and 0-3 in Eastern Carolina action after a 24-8 loss to Plymouth last Friday in a non-conference contest. The Panthers managed 258 yards total offense, but eight intercepted passes sealed their fate.

"Some of those were third-and-long, and it was just as good as a punt," North Pitt Coach Larry Bolger said. "We had one or two critical interceptions. We were on the Plymouth five yard line at the start of the game and threw an interception, and later we were moving the ball when they intercepted it.

"I though we had the opportunity to score three times, and we only took advantage of it once. Our offensive guys realize now that they can move the football. That was one of our better games, but we've been getting progressively better."

Freshman quarterback Calvin Hunter completed 12 out of 31 passes for 125 yards, but Bolger said "poor quarterback technique" contributed to several of the interceptions.

"Calvin's come a long way, but he's still learning," Bolger said. "I'm sure we're going to put the ball in the air again (against Farvmille Central). Our biggest problem on offense has been running the ball.

"Our backs are good and run hard, but they don't have the speed. Our offensive line is trying hard and hitting people up front, but they don't have the size to hold their blocks long enough."

The Panthers yielded 308 yards on

Leaders Hold Spots, But There're Shakeups Below

By RICK SCOPPE
Associated Press Writer

Greensboro Page, Kannapolis Brown and Jordan-Matthews remain No. 1 in the Associated Press prep football poll, but below them there was a major shuffle as 17 teams occupy different spots this week and four others dropped out.

Page, 7-0, received 21 first-place votes and 219 points overall to remain atop the 4-A class, with Wilson Fike, 7-0, getting the other first-place vote and 196 points to hold its No. 2 ranking.

East Burke, 6-1, jumped two positions to third with 146 points, followed by Fayetteville 71st, 6-1, which moved from a tie for No. 9 to No. 4 after it claimed a 54-20 victory over Fayetteville Byrd, which is unranked after being No. 4 last week.

Henderson Vance, 6-1, is No. 5, while Fayetteville Westover, 6-1, heads up the second five. Richmond County, 6-1, dropped from third to No. 7 followed by Scotland County, 6-1, is eighth.

Jacksonville and Raleigh Millbrook — unranked a week ago — are No. 9 and No. 10, respectively. Both teams are 6-1.

Kannapolis, 7-0, leads the 3-A division, receiving 19 first-place votes and 216 points overall. West Henderson, 7-0, moved past SouthWest Edgecombe, 8-0, into second place despite receiving two fewer first-place votes.

West Henderson got 171 points overall while SouthWest Edgecombe picked up three first-place votes and 169 points. South Point, 7-0, was fourth with 148 points followed by Clinton, 6-0-1.

The second five consists of Tarboro, 6-1, Tuscola, 6-1, Statesville, 7-1, Shelby, 6-1, and Oxford Webb, 7-1, which was unranked last week but moved into 10th after defeating then-No. 4 East Wake 30-13.

In the combined 2-A and 1-A division, Jordan-Matthews, 7-0, was selected first on 15 ballots and received 221 points overall to outdistance Randleman, 7-1, which received four votes for first and 195 points overall.

Fuquay-Varina, 7-0, was third with one first-place as the top three teams remained the same in the class.

Wallace-Rose Hill, 7-0, got one first-place vote and is No. 4 followed by Southwest Guilford, 7-1.

The second five is made up of Jamesville, 7-0, Newton-Conover, 6-1, Forest Hills, 6-1, Maiden, 6-1, and James Kenan, 6-1, which was unranked last a week ago.

Also falling out of the poll this week was Greensboro Grimsley, which was No. 6 among the 4-A class before losing to Greensboro Dudley 33-13, and Manteo, which was 10th in the 2-A and 1-A class prior to losing to Currituck 34-0.

Here are the top 10 North Carolina high school football teams, according to classification, as voted on by a panel of sportswriters, with team, number of first-place votes, records and total points:

Three Hold To Reflector Lead

Greensboro Page, SouthWest Edgecombe and Jamesville held onto their top spots in the Daily Reflector High School Rankings this week, but upstart Tabor City jumped past Randleman, Wallace-Rose Hill and Jordan-Matthews to take over the number one 2-A position this week.

Tabor City, 7-1 on the year, has compiled a total of 35½ points thus far this year on the rankings scale to nose past Jordan-Matthews and Randleman, both with 35.

Page continues to post the top score in the 4-A ranks with a total of 53½ so far this year. Wilson Fike is second with a 51½ total, while Charlotte Garinger is third with 44.

SouthWest took advantage of an open date by Kannapolis to run its point total to 56 on the year, while Brown held to second place with a 47 total. Statesville is third with 46, just a notch behind.

Kannapolis will get its chance to leap back ahead this week as the Cougars take the week off.

Jamesville, 7-0, is the lone unbeaten in the Class 1-A ranks at this time. The Bullets have put together a total of 26 points to lead the 1-A's while Rosewood (6-1) is right behind at 24.

Points are awarded for each game a team wins, based on the classification of its foe. Additional points are awarded for each game a victim wins.

Florida Given 3-Year Probation

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The wait continues for the University of Florida football team.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association, culminating a 22-month investigation, notified the Southeastern Conference school Tuesday that it faces three years' probation with sanctions for violating NCAA rules, but the case is anything but closed.

School officials have 15 days to file an appeal — a decision that would delay the penalties and enable the 16th-ranked Gators to remain eligible for postseason play this season.

A confidential NCAA report received by university President Marshall Criser cited 59 rules infractions in former Coach Charley Pell's program and detailed sanctions that would prohibit Florida from appearing in bowl games and on live television for three years.

The Gators would also lose 10 scholarships in each of the next two academic years.

Copies of the report — which included a provision under which the final year of probation could be suspended — were released under the state's sunshine law, which has allowed the news media to gain access to thousands of pages of transcripts and documents pertaining to the probe.

There was no immediate indication of whether Criser, who left town for a meeting in Birmingham, Ala., after speaking with the team Tuesday afternoon, will appeal.

Alvin V. Alsobrook, vice president for university relations, read a statement from the president at a news conference, but did not field questions.

"The report will not be officially or unofficially commented upon by the university administration or by the University of Florida Athletic Association until responsible clarification has been sought and reasonable evaluation made," Criser's statement said.

Meanwhile, some of the players indicated they hope an appeal is filed, giving the team a shot at playing in the Sugar Bowl if it can win its first SEC title ever.

"I think if it were left up to the team, we would go," junior linebacker Patrick Miller said. "A bowl game is supposed to be a reward and this team should get a reward for all it's been through."

"There are advantages and disadvantages to doing it either way," senior wide receiver Gary Rolle said. "What the best way is for the seniors is pretty obvious. But it's not just seniors that are involved here."

The investigation — launched in December 1982 — eventually cost Pell his job, but the 5-1-1 Gators haven't wavered under interim replacement Galen Hall.

The team is 4-0 since the former Oklahoma assistant took over Sept. 16 and is in the thick of the race for its first SEC title ever.

The violations cited by the NCAA ranged from improper cash payments to athletes to illegal scouting activities. The report said "corrective and disciplinary" action already taken by the university was instrumental in the Committee of Infractions' decision to possibly suspend the third year of probation on a conditional basis.

The NCAA reports recommends that the Gators' season end with the final regular-season contest in 1984, 1985 and 1986. It also proposed no live television appearances in 1985, 1986 and 1987 and a loss of scholarships for the 1985-86 and 1986-87 academic years.

The last year of sanctions would be wiped out if Florida abides by NCAA regulations for the first two years of probation, the NCAA said, adding that an appeal of its findings will not be reviewed until January 1985.

Pell, who arrived at Florida in 1979 and engineered a remarkable turnaround, resigned Aug. 26 but asked to remain in the job until the end of the 1984 season.

Criser relieved him of his duties, however, less than a week after the NCAA returned notice that it had uncovered 107 alleged rules violations during its probe.

Transcripts of university interviews with the former coach revealed that he admitted several violations after earlier denying them to investigators.

At the time he announced his resignation, Pell acknowledged that "mistakes and errors" had been made and added that the infractions had not helped him turn around the program.

Pell's wife, Ward, read a statement to reporters over the telephone Tuesday quoting her husband as saying: "I am very shocked and disappointed at the NCAA's announcement and will not have any further comment on the matter."

Florida, 2-0-1 in SEC play, meets Auburn in a crucial league game on Nov. 3 — before the school must notify the NCAA whether its plans to appeal the findings.

There has been speculation in recent weeks that officials might try to delay the impending sanctions in hopes that the team can remain eligible for a berth in a major bowl if it wins the SEC crown or completes an outstanding season.

Hall, an assistant at Oklahoma for 18 years before coming to Florida, and Criser met with the team at 3 p.m., about two hours before the confidential report was released.

"This is something that's been hanging over our heads for the last couple of years," the interim coach said. "We have looked at the penalty and now the president will make a decision at a future date.

"Now we are looking forward to getting this football team back together and hopefully all this is behind us and we can get ready to play a football game in 10 days," he added.

Hall added that Criser indicated the players would have some input in the decision on whether to appeal, but that the final decision will be made by the president.

Jaguars Seek...

defense including 248 rushing, and Bolger is concerned with the unit's progress as his squad prepares for Farmville's potent running attack.

"If anything, our defense is getting worse while the offense is getting better," Bolger said. "We've got some anxious kids getting took out of the play because they're trying too hard, and some just look like they're on roller skates getting pushed around.

"We're working toward our goal, though, and that's improvement. We really don't have anything to lose and everything to gain against Farmville Central.

"They need a win to have a chance (for a playoff berth); they're right there on the teetering point. Sometimes Homecoming can be a distraction and sometimes it can get them pumped up; you just have to wait and see."

The Jaguars have to prepare for North Pitt's passing game, but Sauls was concerned with the performance of his offensive line against Aycock. Junior Dennis Tripp moved from tight end to tackle, filling a vacancy created by injury and illness.

"Dennis Tripp made a very unselfish move to tackle and that helped us a lot with our blocking," Sauls said. "We plan on starting him at tackle, but we'll evaluate the situation as we go.

"We played well in many areas (against C.B. Aycock). In particular, we did not make mental errors nor did we draw penalties like we have lately. Our young players gained a lot of experience; we went with our second unit as a group through much of the second half.

"North Pitt's another county rival, and they've had some problems with the youth of their team and adjusting to a new coach. Defensively, we have to be very alert of their multiple formations, and we have to work on pass defense and pass rush."

D.H. CONLEY

The Vikings of D.H. Conley find themselves in an unusual position; with three games remaining, the Vikes are 4-3 with a chance to have a winning season.

Since its first football team in 1971, Conley has never has never finished better than .500. The 1974 and 1975 Viking squads posted 5-5 overall marks for the top records at Conley.

"That's got to be one of our goals at this point to have a winning season," Conley first-year Coach Donnie Bunn said. "Just to be in this position is a fantastic feeling. But this game is important because it's pivotal for a chance at the playoffs.

"We've been in there every ballgame. The boys have developed a little pride; they see a purpose in what they're doing."

Conley improved its chances of a winning record with a 27-8 win at West Carteret last week, but the Vikings host Coastal Carolina rival Havelock this week in their final home game. The Vikes travel to North Lenoir and West Craven for their final games.

Quarterback Joel Cox completed 12 out of 20 passes for 151 yards and three touchdowns in the victory over the Patriots.

"Our passing game has become a very real part of our offense," Bunn said. "We've got to work on Joel relaxing and throwing the football. There was a couple of times against West Carteret that he had receivers open and just overthrew the football. On one play, the receiver was wide open in the end zone and the ball sailed five feet over his head.

"I feel like we want to keep things honest; teams have been putting eight people up front against us, and that makes it hard to run the ball. We've had to concentrate on running off-tackle; we've put in a new blocking scheme for that and it's enabled us to open some holes.

"(West Carteret) is going to put eight, nine, 10 or even 11 up front and come at us," Bunn said. "They're not real big, but they're very aggressive. We've got to be able to throw the football. Our running will be geared to the tackles and outside; they dare you run to run up the middle."

The Vikings trimmed their penalty yardage to 45 yards, but Bunn said they "still had breakdowns at times."

Junior Shane Adams has taken over the punting chores for Conley, and Bunn said Donald Blackwell's move to defensive tackle from linebacker has sealed the Viking defense.

"Since he's moved, Donald Blackwell's been our leading tackler," Bunn said. "Teams had been picking on that side of our defense, but they can't use that any more.

AYDEN-GRIFTON

Ayden-Grifton managed victories over all four non-conference opponents on its schedule, but the Chargers are still looking for their first Eastern Carolina Conference victory.

The latest ECC loss was Friday against Greene Central, 16-3. The Chargers grabbed fumbles on Greene Central's first three possessions but trailed 7-3 at the end of the first quarter.

"We should have come out of that with more than three points," Charger Coach Dwight Tart said. "I think that was a real big factor; it built Greene Central's confidence and destroyed ours.

"In the Greene Central game, I think the kids were emotionally worn out from the D.H. Conley and Southern Nash games."

The Chargers host C.B. Aycock, 1-3 in the conference and 1-7 overall, this week with Homecoming as added inspiration. The loss to the Rams knocked Ayden-Grifton out of the playoff picture, but Tart said the Chargers have set a 7-3 record as their goal.

"I hope we don't take (C.B. Aycock) lightly," Tart said. "I hope we go out and play like we've got a chance to be conference champion; it's a chance to get out of the conference cellar.

"They've only won one game, and teams like this are easy to overlook. Anything is possible in a conference game; Farmville Central is better than their record shows, and C.B. Aycock and North Pitt have improved a lot.

"I think some of them are a little embarrassed by losing two in a row. I hope we'll funnel it in a positive direction.

"I feel like we're as good as some of the teams who've beat us. Just on that night, they were better."

Rampettes Take Finale

Rose High School's girls wound up the regular season with a trio of victories yesterday in a cross-country meet held at River Park North.

The Rampettes finished the meet with 37 points, just nosing out Manteo which had 40. Northeastern finished with 77, while Washington had 77.

Becky Thompson led Rose across the line, finishing in second place with a time of 22:38. Lisa Pagel was sixth in 24:54, followed by Amy Moore, eighth in 25:17. Debbie Morrison was ninth in 25:28.

Other Rose finishers included Jody Ross, 12th in 25:57, Kelly Jones, 18th in 26:47, Catherine Spencer, 23rd in 28:34; Kristan Lang, 24th in 28:39; Michele Hunt, 30th in 30:58; Becky Kirkland, 34th in in 33:47.

The wins boosted the Rose record to 14-1 for the season.

The Rampettes travel to Elizabeth City on Saturday for the Big East Meet.

JMU Gains 3-1 Win Over Bucs

James Madison had goals by Andre Selanes, Mark Agee and Terry O'Donnell.

Pirates closed the season with a 2-12-1 record, while James Madison is 5-7-1.

Rose Takes Tennis Title

The Rampettes of Rose High School defeated Kinston 6-3 Tuesday to capture the Big East 4-A Conference girls tennis championship.

Catherine Land downed Cindy Dawson 6-2, 6-3 in the top singles match. Anne Lynne Davis of Rose defeated Sarah Anderson 6-3, 6-2 in singles, but was forced to retire from her doubles match with eye trouble.

"I just want to congratulate the girls," Rose Coach Tom Evans said. "We still have a young team, and we've had a lot of adversity this year."

Rose, which closes out the season Thursday at Wilson Fike, is now 13-0 against Big East opposition while 13-1 overall.

Results:

Catherine Land (R) d. Cindy Dawson 6-2, 6-3

Susan Mattocks (K) d. Vicki Parrott 1-6, 7-5, 6-3

Susan Taylor (R) d. Tricia Tunstall 6-4, 6-2

Anne Lynne Davis (R) d. Sarah Anderson 6-3, 6-2

Susan Evans (R) d. Robin Powell 6-1, 6-0

Parrott-Evans (R) d. Tunstall-Anderson 8-3

Rose Defeated In Final Meet

Rose High School's boys' cross-country team wound up the 1984 regular season yestrday, bowing to Northeastern and Manteo, but defeating Washington.

The Eagles of Northeastern finished the meet with the low score of 29, while Manteo came in with 37. Rose finished with 85, while Washington had 87.

Rose's best finisher was James Ormond, who took 11th place in 19:42. Jimmy Bryant finished 13th in 19:48, while John Evans was 16th in 20:11. George Saad was 20th in 20:35, while Patrick Kavanaugh was 33th in 26:26. Clay Deanhardt finished 34th in 27:16.

Rose concludes the regular season with a 2-14 record. The Rampants travel to Elizabeth City to run in the Big East Meet on Saturday.

Emory Feasts On USC Omen

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Each week when East Carolina Coach Ed Emory holds his Tuesday press conference, a luncheon is served to the gathered media and ECU staff.

Yesterday, the group was treated to a chicken dinner, and afterwards Emory wondered if that might not be some kind of omen. "We're playing the Gamecocks," he said. "That's some kind of chicken. Does this mean anything?" he asked of the catering staff.

Well, maybe, and maybe not, but it did Emory something more to savor in the shadow of his Pirates' second victory of the 1984 season.

That victory came Saturday when the Pirates topped East Tennessee State, 24-6, in the annual Homecoming game. It snapped a three-game losing streak and gave the Pirates their second victory of the year. Both of those victories have come over Division I-AA teams, however, and Emory would like to claim his first Division I-A victory of the year this Saturday over ninth-ranked South Carolina.

Meanwhile, Emory took time to look back on last Saturday's win.

One of the best things about it was the running of reserve fullback Bubba Bunn, who raced for 161 yards on 14 carries, scoring two touchdowns. For that Bunn was named the offensive player of the week for the Pirates.

He was also named as the ECAC Player of the Week, the first Pirate to gain that honor this year.

Kevin Walker, Tony Smith and John Britt — the only true freshman playing with the varsity — were co-players of the week on defense.

"I told you that East Tennessee would be a tough defensive team and they were," Emory said. "They played with a lot of intensity and did a great job on defense. But the big play won the game for us."

The Pirates scored on two long Bunn runs and a Ron Jones-to-Ricky Nichols pass. Another touchdown pass, from Darrell Speed to Amos Adams was called back for illegal motion. "I hated to see it called back, it was such a great play. But Amos was just a little anxious and leaned a little. It was a good call by the official. But it's a shame. It would have helped Amos and Darrell."

Emory praised Bunn for having gone through a lot of adversity over the past two years and to have come back from that. "He responded to the call with a great football game. I'm glad it came when it did."

But, there were areas, too, that didn't please the coach. "I thought our line play didn't look as good as it has. Our tight ends played better, but our receivers probably played the poorest they have. I do have to say that Scott Lewis is doing a fine job backing up Damon Pope at tight end and has made a better player of Damon.

"Our fullbacks didn't block as well as they should have and they have to do better. Our tailbacks really didn't get a chance to do much with the defense (ETSU) was playing."

Defensively, Emory said the Pirates still don't have the enthusiasm, quickness and intensity that much be shown to win. "We bent but we didn't break against them, but if we let South Carolina get that close than often, we're going to get blown out. We're just not getting the line play and end play we need to win."

But, the coach added, "there's nothing like winning. And I'm proud of the number of fans who came out to see the game. I think it shows that we are making progress. People are coming now to see the Pirates, not who we play."

Emory also defended his move on a supposed on-side kick in the final minutes of the game after Bunn scored his final touchdown.

"We had already decided we were just going to run the fullback and run out the clock," Emory said. "But then, they called time out and on the next play, Bubba broke it.

"They were penalized 20 yards (15 for a personal foul after the PAT kick and 5 yards for being off-sides on the try), and we decided to kick it 'slam-bam.' It's like the 'bam-bam' but Jeff (Heath) kicks it as hard as he can. We really weren't trying to recover it just to keep them off balance."

The Pirates travel to Columbia, S.C., Saturday for a 1:30 p.m. contest with the nationally-ranked South Carolina Gamecocks.

Sutcliffe Unanimous Cy Young

CHICAGO (AP) — Rick Sutcliffe, the man who pitched the Chicago Cubs to their first championship since 1945 with a 16-1 record, said he'd trade his Cy Young Award to have been in the World Series this year.

The biggest disappointment of his near-perfect season with the Cubs was the heart-breaking loss to San Diego with Sutcliffe on the mound in the fifth game of the National League Championship Series.

"I'd gladly give this up to have been playing the World Series," he said. "It leaves one goal to be met . . . We fell a little short and I can't be totally happy."

Sutcliffe was the first unanimous selection since Steve Carlton of the Philadelphia Phillies won his first Cy Young award in 1972. Only Sandy Koufax and Bob Gibson had been previous unanimous selections — Koufax in 1963, '65 and '66 and Gibson in 1968 and '70.

Sutcliffe, the third Cub pitcher to earn the award, told a news conference Tuesday that "I couldn't accept this without giving credit to the fans, the people of Chicago and the front office," Sutcliffe said at a news conference immediately after the award was announced.

"Individual awards are nice to look at and hang on your wall, but that's about it," he said. "I'll never forget coming back out on to the field in Pittsburgh (after beating the Pirates to clinch the National League East title) and seeing a picture on the scoreboard of all the fans celebrating around Wrigley Field."

Sutcliffe arrived in Chicago two days before the trading deadline of June 15 as part of a six-player deal with the Cleveland Indians. He left behind a 4-5 record, but brought along a contract that paid him $900,000 plus incentives this season.

Cy Young Award winners traditionally have pocketed some extra dollars in following seasons.

But Sutcliffe, who became a free agent last week, said he was uncertain whether he would cash in on the award, adding, "That situation (contract talks with the Cubs) just hasn't been resolved."

He said he told his agent, Barry Axelrod, "that I needed some time to get my feet on the ground."

"I just haven't really sat down and thought about it," Sutcliffe said, adding he planned to meet with Cubs officials late this week or early next week.

The towering 28-year-old right-hander posted 14 straight regular-season wins — including the game that clinched the National League East Division crown for Chicago, its first title in 39 years, and the opener of the league championship series.

The award made him the first Cy Young winner to have pitched in both leagues in the same season. He also became the fourth pitcher in baseball history to win 20 games while pitching in both leagues.

Seven of his wins came after a Cub defeat, two of them snapped four-game slides, and he stopped the second-place New York Mets all three times he faced them.

During a September appearance against the Mets, Sutcliffe pitched so well en route to one of his three shutouts that home plate umpire Doug Harvey stopped by the Mets' dugout between innings and told Manager Davey Johnson that the right-hander had the best stuff he'd seen all year.

Youth Cage Loops Set

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department will be holding pre-registration for youth basketball on November 7-9 from 3 to 7 p.m. at West Greenville, South Greenville and Elm Street gyms.

Participants will play and practice at the gym where they register with the exception of seniors, who will register at Elm Street and play at Rose High School.

Ages are divided as follows:

- Ages 9-10 will play on Pee-Wee teams.
- Ages 11-12 will play on Midget teams.
- Ages 13-14 will play on Junior teams.
- Ages 15-17 or seniors in high school will play on Senior teams.

All ages are those of April 1, 1985.

A girls' basketball league will be offered for Pee Wee and Midget ages.

The program will begin on Monday, November 26.

For more information, call the athletic office at 752-4137, extension 248, or 259 or 220.

Adult Basketball Programs Slated

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department is preparing for its winter basketball program and will have a different structure from the past.

Offerings this year for adults will include:

- 1. A City League — open to any male 16 years or older.
- 2. An Industrial League — open to employees of area businesses.
- 3. A Church League — open to members of area churches.
- 4. A Women's League — open to any female 16 years or older.

Each league will be divided into divisions, depending on talent and competition level and participants will only play teams in their league.

There will be a team entry fee and a $2 participation fee per player.

The first organizational meeting for all interested managers and players for all leagues will be held at Elm Street Gym on Thursday, Nov. 8, at 7 p.m.

King Sparks Rose Kickers

Travis King scored four goals and sparked Rose High School to a 6-1 soccer victory over Kinston High School yesterday.

King got two goals in the first half of the contest as Rose rolled out to a 3-0 lead. The first came after 13 minutes of play, off an assist by Jordy Smith. Smith scored on his own — his 11th goal of the year — at the 27 minute mark, with Mike Maxon assisting. Carl Wille then assisted King three minutes later on his second goal of the half.

Bert Aycock scored the fourth Rose goal four minutes into the second half with an assist by Maxon. King then hit a minute later, assisted by Tony Perkins, and then closed out the Rose scoring at the 48 minute mark on an unassisted corner kick.

Rose outshot Kinston 28-7 for the day.

"We really controlled the midfield area and that was a big help," Coach Will Wiberg said. He cited the play of Lewis Robbins, David Ely, Doug Bray and Jim Benedict in the game.

Rose is now 8-1 in Big East Conference play and 11-2 overall. The Rampants travel to Wilson Fike on Thursday, seeking to win there for the first time ever.

Sutter Files For Free Agency, May Later Sign With St. Louis

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Bruce Sutter has declared his intention to offer his split-finger fastball to the highest bidder, filing for free agency from the St. Louis Cardinals. It could help make him the second $1-million reliever in baseball.

Sutter's agents say there still is a chance he could re-sign with the Cardinals before the re-entry draft Nov. 8, but his declaration of free agency Tuesday probably gave him whatever leverage he needs to push his salary over that magic mark.

"Now, at least in a preliminary way, we can explore the interest in him with other teams," agent Jim Bronner says.

Sutter, 31 years old, reportedly was paid $3.5 million for his four-year contract that expired this past season. So, he needs an another $125,000 a year to join Rich Gossage of San Diego as baseball's only $1-million relievers. Gossage makes an estimate $1.25 million per year.

Sutter's numbers speak eloquently on his behalf. He set a National League mark and tied the major league record of Dan Quisenberry with 45 saves in 1984. He had a 1.54 earned run average and a 5-7 record. Sutter now has 260 lifetime saves for an average of nearly 29 in each of his nine major league seasons.

Sutter was one of three players who filed on Tuesday. The others were Jim Gantner, Milwaukee Brewers infielder, and pitcher Dave Rozema of the World Series champion Detroit Tigers. That brought to 40 the number of players who have signified their intent to participate in the re-entry draft. Players have until Monday to file for free agency, and clubs may continue to negotiate with their free-agent players until Nov. 5.

On Monday, Sutter's agents, Bronner and Robert Gilhooly of Northbrook, Ill., made the Cardinals a counter-offer in their third round of negotiations. The offer was given to Cardinals executive committee member Lou Susman, who normally speaks for club owner Gussie Busch.

Susman expected Sutter to file as a matter of form and said that "while differences remain," the Cardinals still wanted to sign their pitcher to a longterm contract.

"Obviously, there still are some differences, or he'd be signed," Bronner said in a telphone interview from his office.

"I wouldn't characterize the negotiations at all except to say we're still negotiating," Bronner said. "The fact that Bruce filed for free agency is not an indication of anything more than that he filed for free agency. Our intention is to continue to negotiate with them and, as I understand it, theirs is to continue to negotiate with us."

Sutter joined pitcher Rick Sutcliffe of the Chicago Cubs and designated hitter Andre Thornton of the Cleveland Indians as the top names to file for free agency. Sutter and Gantner, along with Sutcliffe and Thornton, will be rated Type A free agents if they go through the draft.

If a Type A free agent is signed by another club, the team that loses him can select from a special pool of professional players for compensation. Ratings are based on a player's performance level at his position over two seasons.

Gantner batted .282 with 56 RBI in 613 at-bats for the Brewers last season. He scored 61 runs and had 27 doubles. Rozema allowed 110 hits in 101 innings for the Tigers with a 7-6 record and 3.74 earned run average.

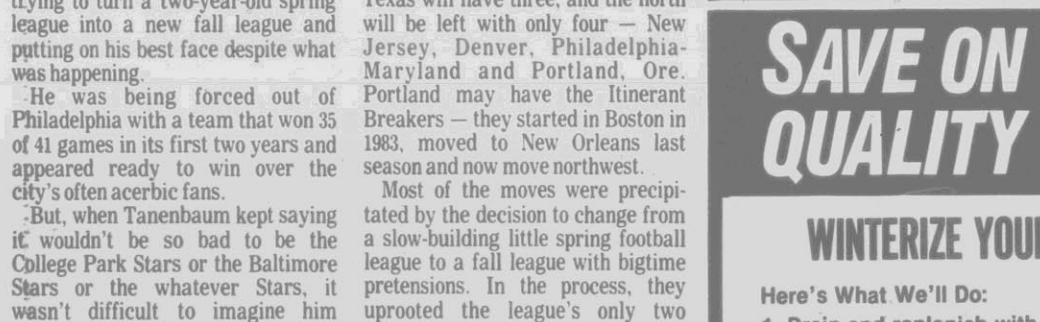

Lady Pirates Drop Pair

Methodist topped ECU 15-8, 6-15, 15-4, while Pembroke State swept a pair of games.

East Carolina, now 2-16, travels to UNC-Wilmington Thursday.

Tanenbaum Feels Pinch As USFL Moves South

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Sports Writer

Anyone who really wants to know the realities of the United States Football League might ask Myles Tanenbaum, the man who did everything exactly the way he was supposed to.

And had his franchise pulled right out from under him.

Tanenbaum, who owns the USFL champion Philadelphia Stars, was in Amelia Island, Fla., with the rest of the league's owners last weekend, trying to turn a two-year-old spring league into a new fall league and putting on his best face despite what was happening.

He was being forced out of Philadelphia with a team that won 35 of 41 games in its first two years and appeared ready to win over the city's often acerbic fans.

But, when Tanenbaum kept saying it wouldn't be so bad to be the College Park Stars or the Baltimore Stars or the whatever Stars, it wasn't difficult to imagine him breaking out in tears.

"When you've gotta go, you've gotta go," he said. "I think we've felt like anyone feels about leaving home. But, we're part of a league, not just one team."

The meetings at Amelia Island were preceded by a crisis atmosphere. Various sources forecasted chaos, predicted that the decision to switch to fall football in 1986 might be reversed, even predicted that the USFL might fold.

Instead, the owners created the Sun Belt Football League.

None of this is official, of course.

After the owners spent most of Saturday spilling various plans for mergers and consolidation all over the Amelia Island Inn and Conference Center, they held a news conference to say they would hold another news conference to tell everyone what they did. Then, Commissioner Chet Simmons warned he would impose a $50,000 fine on anyone who leaked information. This, after just about every owner in the league had discussed the plan before the gag rule was imposed.

This is what they said.

Most likely, the USFL will play with 15 teams in 1985, its last year in the spring before switching to the fall, 11 of which are in the Sun Belt stretching from Florida to northern California.

Florida will have three teams, Texas will have three, and the north will be left with only four — New Jersey, Denver, Philadelphia-Maryland and Portland, Ore. Portland may have the Itinerant Breakers — they started in Boston in 1983, moved to New Orleans last season and now move northwest.

Most of the moves were precipitated by the decision to change from a slow-building little spring football league to a fall league with bigtime pretensions. In the process, they uprooted the league's only two champions.

Michigan, which won the league's first title, is moving Bobby Hebert, Anthony Carter, John Corker and friends to Oakland to merge with the Invaders, and the Philadelphia story is detailed above — Tanenbaum's Stars will probably play in College Park, Md. this year before moving to Baltimore, abandoned by the Colts, in the fall of '86.

As with New Orleans, the NFL teams in Pontiac, Mich., and Philadelphia, those cities have first call on the suitable stadiums. The same problem is brewing in Denver, one of the most successful USFL franchises financially, which may be forced to move to Boulder, 35 miles away.

That doesn't seem to bother Chicago's Eddie Einhorn and New Jersey's Donald Trump, who convinced their fellow owners that the USFL had to go bigtime or bust.

In fact, Einhorn refuses to play in Chicago during the spring in conflict with his White Sox, but he insists he'll be back in the fall after he negotiates a television contract, which has not been forthcoming so far.

Amy Grant Religious Recording Is All Gold

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Amy Grant's "Age to Age" album has been certified gold, which means it has sold more than 500,000 copies. The unusual thing is that it's a religious album — they don't often go gold.

In October, Miss Grant sold out 6,000-seat Radio City Music Hall in New York. She had a seven-piece rock band, in which her husband, Gary Chapman, plays guitar, three backup singers and a sophisticated lighting system. The songs were mostly loud, with a rock beat. Miss Grant, her long, curly hair loose and trendily dressed, is 23, pretty, wholesome-looking, and projects a likable sincerity.

Her eighth album, out last spring on Myrrh Records, is "Straight Ahead." In an interview, she says, "I can't imagine anybody who isn't at least interested in what I'm singing about rushing out and buying a bunch of Amy Grant records. But people will tell me after a concert, 'I never heard of you until tonight. A friend suggested I come.'

"It's rare that one circumstance, like one concert, will change a person's entire life. But in a concert I think I have an opportunity to present a realistic picture of God alive and working in our lives today, that some young person might not have seen.

"With every song, my goal is to say I believe that God is who He said He is and there's an eternal scheme of things we've got to plug into.

"For two and a half hours, every person there is in a circumstance where they can choose to decide who God is instead of society or parents or school or peer pressure choosing for them."

Lyrics of songs she writes and songs she chooses to sing don't deal with such topics as drugs, Miss Grant says. "I would say I'm not dealing with the resulting problems, but dealing with the symptoms. My songs talk more about our self-esteem and who we are in God's sight. If you don't feel like anybody gives a flip about you, it's hard to care that much about yourself.

"It's hard for anybody to grasp that, 2,000 years ago, God loved me enough to come in the form of man and die for me. Jesus is saying, right in the midst of whatever bad stuff you're doing, I love you.

"I just want to tell kids they're important. I need that myself; I need to feel like somebody cares.

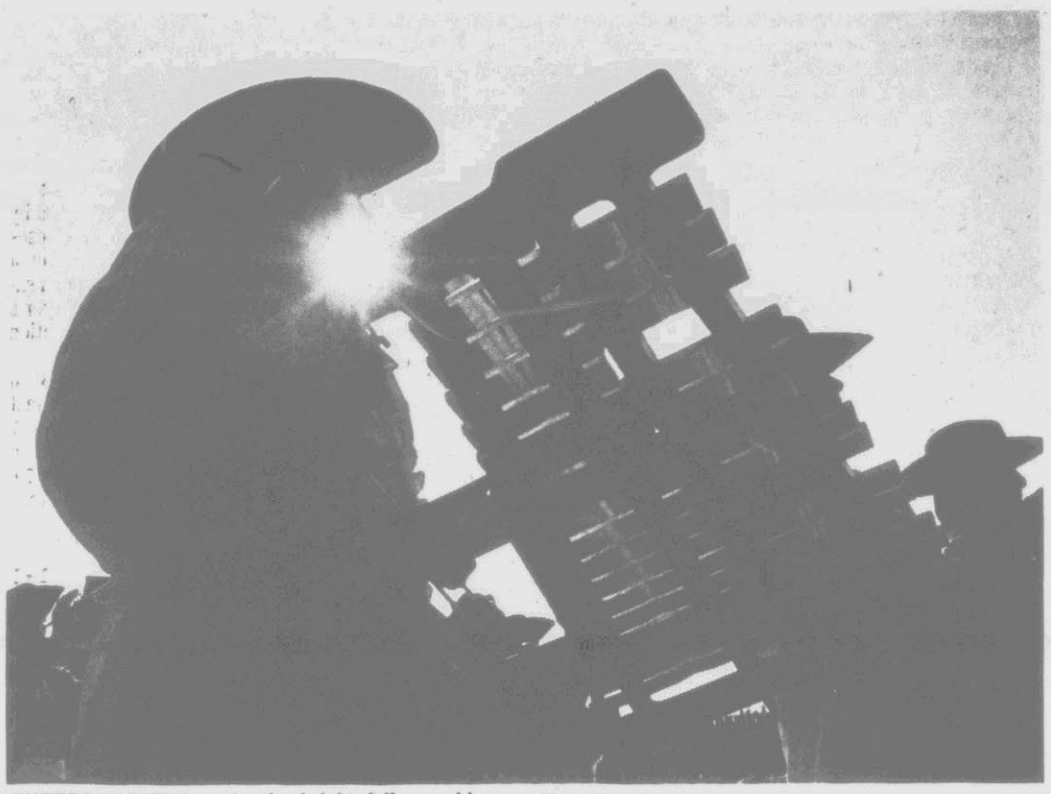

"It's funny the things that insecurity will make you do — draw attention to yourself, do stupid or self-destructive things. Hopefully my songs deal with more the root instead of saying you've got to live by my rules."

Miss Grant, born in Augusta, Ga., youngest of four girls, grew up in Nashville, in a religious household. "We went to the Church of Christ. It had a lot of heart but a lot of rules. There were no instruments in the church; all music was vocal. I stood next to Kathy, who's eight years older, and she told me there are notes on the page. If I wanted to sing with the rest, I should figure them out and follow them. By about fourth grade everybody knew a little how to read music.

"When I was a freshman in high school, I started going to a different church, downtown, with friends. I think, even if you grow up in a Christian home, each child has to feel like he's venturing out on his own and find out his life, even if it ends up being the same as his parents'.

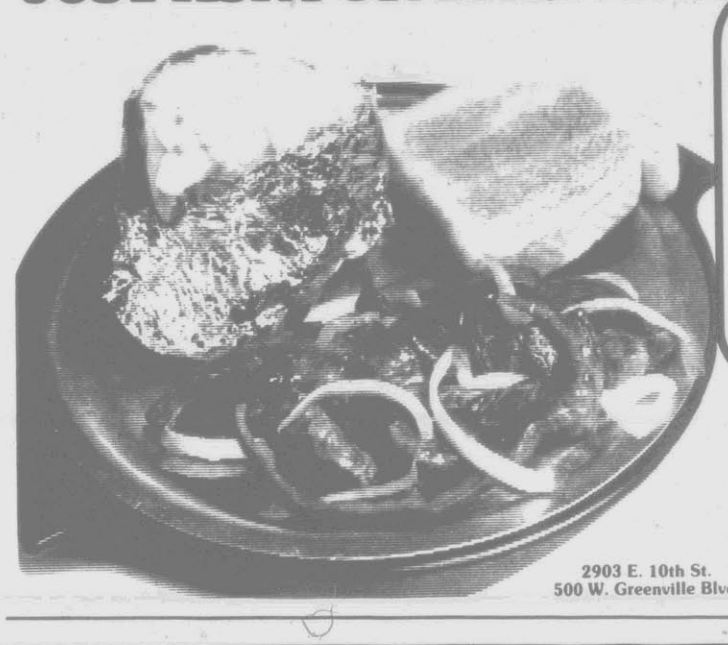

"I was pretty much a good kid. But when I left my parents' church and when searching on my own, I thought I was rebelling in the biggest way. It felt good. When you're young and discover any sort of truth, it suddenly makes you want to tell your parents how to live. They must have been trying to keep a straight face; every parent must go through it.

"That church, Belmont, is on Music Row. It came out of the hippie movement of the early 1970s. A magnetic preacher came in. Kids started going in droves."

IN THE STATE

Leaf Changes Urged

RALEIGH (AP) — There is a good chance that a two-part rescue effort to save the tobacco industry, recommended by the Board of Directors of the state Tobacco Growers Association, could become law in the next year, an association spokesman said.

"We think it's imperative that some action be taken immediately," said T. Carlton Blalock, the association's executive vice president, said after Tuesday's meeting.

The association's recommendation includes a rollback in federal price supports and calls for a modified version of a plan in which growers would purchase and destroy old leaf held by the Flue-Cured Stabilization Cooperative Corp. in exchange for an increase in their quotas.

"The directors who represent the farmers across the state believe that unless we take these steps, the chance of the program surviving for more than one or two years are slim and none," Blalock said.

Price supports would be reduced between 12 and 18 percent under the plan, from the current $1.699 per pound to between $1.40 and $1.50 per pound. The directors failed to agree on a specific figure but said they will settle in between the two figures.

The reduction is aimed at making American-grown tobacco more competitive with cheaper foreign leaf, Blalock said.

"We're hoping to put more specifics on the proposals and present them formally at our resolutions meeting on Nov. 8," Blalock said. The Nov. 8 meeting will come after a U.S. Agriculture Department hearing in Raleigh to solicit public comment about next year's tobacco quota.

U.S. Agriculture Secretary John R. Block will host the meeting.

The federal tobacco program limits the amount farmers can grow and sets a minimum price which must be paid for each pound of leaf. When tobacco does not receive the support price, the stabilization corporation purchases and stores it for later sale.

More than 879 million pounds of unsold tobacco — some of it more than eight years old — now sits in government warehouses.

"We must try to use every means available to reduce the surplus," said association spokesman Chris Bickers.

Blalock said that the directors hope to to use the unsold tobacco "in a way that would introduce our tobacco to countries that are not traditional customers customers."

Worth about $1.5 billion, the stockpile continues to grow and tobacco is coming in faster this year than last, despite an 11 percent cut in growers' quotas, cigarette makers' promises of increased purchases and a price freeze.

The plan presented by Guilford County farmer David R. Hopkins Jr. represents a double-edged effort to reduce the stockpile and transfer quota to active growers. The association's directors approved a version of his plan which would allow growers to purchase Stabilization's tobacco, have it destroyed and receive a pound of base quota for each pound they buy.

Carter Lectures

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Former President Jimmy Carter told a crowd of more than 2,500 that he detects "an excessive amount of dormancy in our student bodies" and urged students to use their citizenship to benefit others.

Carter asked students attending the Weil Lecture on Citizenship at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill Tuesday to ask themselves, "What have I done in a truly sacrificial way for anyone else — something that cost me without direct personal benefit to enhance the life of others."

That, he said, is his definition of citizenship.

Again Controversial

DARMSTADT, West Germany (AP) — Garry Trudeau's famous comic strip has been back in the papers for just a few weeks, and already "Doonesbury" is rekindling controversy over its socio-political content.

The U.S. armed forces newspaper Stars and Stripes announced Monday it was moving "Doonesbury" to its commentary page because it has a "blatant" political message — at least until after Election Day.

Courts Will Judge If Hunt Committed Felony In Aircraft Use, Helms Says

By The Associated Press

Republican Sen. Jesse Helms says the courts will have to decide if Democratic opponent Gov. Jim Hunt committed a felony by using state aircraft for political purposes, but Hunt says he has done nothing wrong.

Helms charged Tuesday Hunt still owes taxpayers at least $80,000 for using state aircraft for campaign purposes.

"The first time that Gov. Hunt used the state airplane or helicopter for political purposes, he violated the state law. That's a felony," Helms said told about 50 people at a reception in Williamston.

When asked if he was accusing Hunt of committing a felony, Helms said the courts would have to decide that.

Hunt, campaigning in Greenville, said Helms' accusation "really sounds like desperation talk. ... I wonder what he's going to say tomorrow."

Hunt said he had done nothing wrong.

"Does he think Ronald Reagan is robbing the American people when he uses Air Force One because of security reasons?" Hunt asked. "I don't think people think that."

Hunt paid the state more than $186,000 for using the state aircraft but state Republican Party Chairman Dave Flaherty filed a civil suit against Hunt over the matter. The case will be tried after the Nov. 6 election.

Meanwhile, in his own campaign swing through eastern North Carolina, Hunt said tobacco has "taken a beating" because Helms botched his chairmanship of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Hunt said Helms had not proposed "a single new idea" to bolster the embattled federal tobacco program, being too busy doing the bidding of "Jerry Falwell and the Moral Majority."

The Hunt-Helms race was the subject of the ABC news show "Nightline" Tuesday night. Host Ted Koppel interviewed spokesmen for two Washington groups raising money for the candidates, and Hunt. Koppel said the show tried to get Helms to appear live, but the senator refused, saying he could not work the program into his schedule.

In another U.S. Senate race issue, Helms has asked the post office to return a vote-for-Helms postcard sent to incorrect addresses. The request has prompted a cry from Democrats that the mailing is being channeled into the black community as possible groundwork to impede voting on election day.

The postcards to registered voters carried a notation to the postal service to return, instead of forwarding, those addressed to people who have moved.

"The card comes back (to the GOP), and the voters go to the polls," said Charles R. Poole, Wake Democratic chairman. "If the address on the card is not the same as the address on file with the poll registrar, the Republicans will challenge the vote."

State Democratic Chairman David Price said that the mailing "seems to be targeted to heavily Democratic areas."

"The people that I know who have gotten them are blacks," he said.

But Claude A. Allen, Helms' campaign press secretary, said the mailing had not been targeted at black voters, but declined to provide other details.

In other political news, a lawyer for the defunct John Ingram gubernatorial campaign has threatened to subpoena state officials if the state Board of Elections continues an investigation of illegal campaign contributions.

Robert W. Spearman, chairman of the elections board, received a letter last week from a lawyer representing W. Michael Rogers, Ingram's campaign treasurer.

The Ingram campaign, which ended after Ingram was eliminated from the governor's race in the May 8 Democratic primary, has refused to give the state $8,000 contributed by Wilson tire distributor John C. Bolt Jr. in the names of his children.

The letter to Spearman asked that the elections board re-examine its finding that the contribution was illegal.

In the letter, lawyer E. Cader Howard said that during a telephone conversation with Spearman a reference was made to "political heat" the board had received. Spearman said he didn't know what that meant.

Howard's letter said the intent of the subpoenas would be to determine "underlying motivations that have seemed to fuel the 'political heat' to which you have alluded."

Spearman said no one had tried to influence him or the board in the case.

Also Tuesday, Democratic candidate for governor Rufus Edmisten told black ministers in Winston-Salem "it's very important that the concerns of blacks be recognized."

Edmisten and the entire Democratic ticket were endorsed by the Black Ministers and Associates Conference.

Republican gubernatorial candidate Jim Martin, meanwhile, told voters in Kannapolis his tax relief proposals for business would help workers by creating a strong job base.

In Charlotte, Democratic congressional candidate D.G. Martin reported that he raised more than $280,000 in campaign funds as of Sept. 30 without donations from political action committees.

Inmates Transferred After Pact Revealed

RALEIGH (AP) — Thirteen Wake County jail inmates have been transferred to two state correctional facilities in Raleigh after they said they formed a suicide pact, Sheriff John Baker said.

WRAL-TV in Raleigh reported Tuesday night that it received a letter about the pact and gave the letter to Baker.

Baker said 12 inmates were moved to Central Prison and one was sent to Polk Youth Center.

Baker said the inmates had planned suicide as a possible retaliation against the system.

'Dynasty' Ratings Boosted By Collins' Antics

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joan Collins' jailhouse blues are earning big Nielsen ratings points for ABC's "Dynasty," but not enough to pull the network out of third place behind CBS, which regained its lead, and NBC.

CBS was back in first place for the week ended Oct. 21 after NBC's triumph the week before on the strength of the movie "The Burning Bed" and the World Series. NBC fell to second place and ABC was third.

It was another non-normal week as the presidential debate Sunday took a 90-minute block out of one of the highest sets-in-use periods of the week. The audience estimate for the debate is not expected to be available for a week. The first debate, however, attracted an estimated 90 million viewers to the three commercial networks, according to ABC.

"Dynasty" edged out CBS' "Dallas" as the most-watched show of the week. It was the biggest ratings for "Dynasty" since its season premiere last year. The more trouble the rich Carringtons get into on "Dynasty," especially Miss Collins' naughty Alexis Carrington, the higher the ratings. Currently, Alexis, accused of murder, has swapped her Nolan Miller originals for prison gray. Her ex-husband, Blake Carrington, is facing financial ruin, his daughter Fallon is presumed dead and his grandchild has been kidnaped.

CBS was first with a network average of 16.4 in the A.C. Nielsen Co. survey. NBC was second with 15.8 and ABC was third with 15.3. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute 16.4 percent of the nation's TV homes were tuned to CBS.

NBC was still in first place for the season-to-date. The ratings: NBC 17.5, CBS 16.9, ABC 15.2.

Every show in the Top 10 was a regular series. CBS had five shows, NBC three and ABC two.

Here are the Top 10: "Dynasty," ABC, first; "Dallas," CBS, second; "The A-Team," NBC, third; "Hotel," ABC, fourth; "Cagney & Lacey," CBS, fifth; "60 Minutes," CBS, sixth; "The Cosby Show," NBC, seventh; "Simon & Simon," CBS, eighth; "Newhart," CBS, ninth; and "Riptide," NBC, tenth.

Although it's still early in the season, it appears that NBC has broken out of the ratings cellar. NBC got a lock on Tuesday night at the end of last season with "The A-Team," "Riptide" and "Remington Steele," all of which made the Top 20 this week. Now, with Bill Cosby leading off, it has broken CBS' hold on Thursday night. Three NBC Thursday night shows, "The Cosby Show," "Family Ties" and "Cheers," made the Top 20.

The lowest-rated show of the week was NBC's new action-adventure series "Hot Pursuit." The five bottom shows in descending order: ABC's "Ripley's Believe It or Not," CBS' "Dreams," "CBS' "AfterMASH," CBS' "E.R.," and NBC's "Hot Pursuit."

"The CBS Evening News with Dan Rather" led the evening news shows in the ratings. ABC was second and NBC was third. The ratings: CBS 12.3, ABC 10.7, NBC 10.2.

Here are the week's 20 top shows:

1. "Dynasty," ABC, a rating of 26.1 or 22.1 million households.
2. "Dallas," CBS, 24.6 or 20.8 million.
3. "The A-Team," NBC, 24.3 or 20.6 million.
4. "Hotel," ABC, 22.5 or 19.1 million.
5. "Cagney & Lacey," CBS, 21.6 or 18.3 million.
6. "60 Minutes," CBS, 21.4 or 18.1 million.
7. "The Cosby Show," NBC, 21.3 or 18.0 million.
8. "Simon & Simon," CBS, 21.2 or 17.9 million.
9. "Newhart," CBS, 21.0 or 17.8 million.
10. "Riptide," NBC, 20.8 or 17.6 million.
11. "Magnum, P.I.," CBS, 20.3 or 17.2 million.
12. "Kate & Allie," CBS, 20.0 or 16.9 million.
13. "Knots Landing," CBS, 19.7 or 16.7 million.
14. "Falcon Crest," CBS, 19.4 or 16.5 million.
15. "Family Ties," NBC, 19.3 or 16.4 million.
16. "The Fall Guy," ABC, 19.2 or 16.3 million.
17. "Cheers," NBC, 18.6 or 15.7 million.
18. Movie-"His Mistress," NBC, 18.3 or 15.5 million.
19. "Remington Steele," NBC, 17.6 or 14.9 million.
20. "The Jeffersons," CBS, 17.3 or 14.6 million.

Meredith Relived Past In 'Wet Gold'

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When actor Burgess Meredith played a grizzled old beachcomber hunting for sunken treasure in the ABC movie "Wet Gold," he felt he was reliving the past.

Meredith stars with Brooke Shields, Tom Byrd and Brian Kerwin in the TV film, which ABC will telecast Sunday.

"It struck me as kind of coincidental," said Meredith. "When I arrived at Nassau in the Bahamas it was the same place where I'd gone in 1960 or '61 on an outlandish treasure hunt with Kevin McClory (later producer of the James Bond series) and author John Steinbeck. Steinbeck and I had become good friends when I did 'Of Mice and Men.'

"But more important than us, Kevin also persuaded Peter Gimbel, the famous professional diver, to join us. Gimbel is the man who recently brought up the safe of the Andrea Doria."

Meredith said they were hunting for silver ingots lost when a Spanish treasure ship sank near one of the islands in the Bahamas.

"We had a very amusing and enjoyable, but unproductive search for the silver," he said. "It was a nice adventure. We had several close calls with sharks."

"I play an old derelict, a beachcomber who was on the ship that sank," he said. "Brooke overhears me talking about it and believes me, which no one else did. She and two friends steal a boat to search for the gold. Everyone fights for Brooke and everyone fights for the gold.

"It's sort of like a wet 'Treasure of the Sierra Madre.' I'm going to see John Huston (writer and director of "Treasure of the Sierra Madre") and I'm going to tell him."

There's also a parallel between the heroine of the Operation Prime Time miniseries "A Woman of Substance" and producer Diane Baker's effort to bring it to the screen.

The six-hour miniseries, based on the book by Barbara Taylor Bradford, tells the story of how Emma Hart pulls herself up from poverty to become a wealthy international businesswoman. It will be shown on 90 stations belonging to OPT beginning this Saturday.

It stars Jenny Seagrove as young Emma and Deborah Kerr as Emma in later years. Barry Bostwick plays the man in her life.

Everyone was clamoring for the film rights to the novel, which sold 7 million copies. Miss Baker, with no studio behind her and with no commitment, wrote the author that she wanted to do it with "dignity and class."

The author's husband, Robert Bradford, who was handling the negotiations, wrote Miss Baker that he would not sell an option because he didn't want a studio to buy an option and then let the project sit on a shelf.

"So he said to me, 'Diane, if you want to do it, I won't sign any papers, but you've got my word I'll go along with it," she said.

This was before the Australian epic "The Thorn Birds" had been on and Miss Baker found the networks weren't interested in a book set in England. But, she finally got a four-hour commitment from OPT.

"I went back to Bradford and he said, 'OK, if you feel you have a deal, this is the price.' And it was a huge price! It was more than OPT could pay and I picked up the rest with a bank loan in England."

After that, Miss Baker and her secretary personally prepared separate contracts for each of the 90 stations that belong to OPT. It went into production on April 2 of this year and was completed on July 7. Miss Baker then supervised the editing and post-production. "I've just finished the transfer of the film to tape and I'm exhausted," she said.

Why was she willing to take such a risk?

"I was looking for something that wasn't going to put me out of business," said the fledgling producer. "When I read the book I said this is not just a potboiler. It's very classy. I can make this in a realistic, classy way without jeopardizing the quality. I didn't want to do something like 'Lace' or 'Master of the Game.'"

She said the book was about "the strength of a woman's ambition in the 1900s that is far beyond its time. Women didn't buy land, women didn't succeed the way Emma Hart did. It's not against men. We never try to make points, we just have a very competent, bright woman who succeeds in getting what she strives for."

'Teachers' Topped Nation's Weekend Box Office Results

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Movie patrons spent $3.4 million to make MGM-UA Entertainment Co.'s "Teachers" the most popular movie in the nation's theaters last weekend.

"Places in the Heart" by Tri-Star Productions and "Thief of Hearts" by Paramount Pictures Corp. tied for second place with a weekend take of $3.1 million each.

"The Little Drummer Girl," the Warner Bros. movie with Diane Keaton starring as the title character from John LeCarre's thriller novel about international terrorism, took in $2.6 million in its first week of release.

It tied with Universal's "All of Me," also earning $2.6 million.

"The Razor's Edge," comedian Bill Murray's venture into dramatic acting, took sixth place with $2.4 million, followed by "A Soldiers Story," with $1.6 million. Both are Columbia Pictures films.

Here is a listing of the seven top-grossing films last weekend, with the name of the movie, the maker, weekend gross, total gross and number of weeks in release:

"Teachers," MGM-UA, $3.4 million, $17.4 million, four weeks.

"The Little Drummer Girl," Warner Bros., $2.6 million, $2.6 million, one week.

"All of Me," Universal, $2.6 million, $26 million, four weeks.

"The Razor's Edge," Columbia, $2.4 million, $2.4 million, one week.

"A Soldier's Story," Columbia, $1.6 million, $7.2 million, six weeks.

Fonda Honored

WASHINGTON (AP) — Actress Jane Fonda received the Solidarity Award of the National Conference on Soviet Jewry for aid to economist Ida Nudel in her 10-year effort to emigrate from the Soviet Union to Israel.

The group said at a ceremony Monday night that Miss Fonda visited the 53-year-old economist in the Soviet Union in April and later presented her case to Soviet officials. The actress told the awards dinner that the case "has deeply touched my heart."

Walk Of Fame For Eva Gabor

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Eva Gabor, who starred in the films "My Man Godfrey" and "Gigi" and the long-running TV series "Green Acres," has joined the ranks of those with stars on the Hollywood Walk of Fame.

The gold-colored star bearing the actress' name was placed in the sidewalk Tuesday next to the star honoring director Frank Capra.

Miss Gabor, 63, a native of Budapest, Hungary, made her stage debut in Rodgers and Hammerstein's "The Happy Time," and went on to a film career that included "The Last Time I Saw Paris" and "Don't Go Near the Water."

"Green Acres," in which Miss Gabor starred with Eddie Albert, ran for six seasons on CBS. The actress also appeared in "The Eva Gabor Show" and "Almost Heaven" on television.

Thanks Mom

NEW YORK (AP) — Julian Lennon, the older son of Beatle John Lennon, says he's glad Yoko Ono has made it difficult for him to get his father's momentos, because he "might go a little wild, if I had a bit of money."

"I think she's being very clever about that," Lennon said in an interview for broadcast Thursday on NBC News' "Today" show. "I think if anything was to come into my hands at my age, I mean this is what I'm thinking on her behalf, you know, I wouldn't work, like I would normally."

Lennon, 22, the son of the slain Beatle and his first wife, Cynthia, said that being given money is "one of the worst things that could happen to you ... especially at a young age."

ACTOR DIES — Actor Oskar Werner, who starred in such films as "Jules and Jim" and "Ship of Fools" was found dead in his Marburg, West Germany, hotel room Tuesday, police said. He was 61. (AP Laserphoto)

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING BEFORE THE N.C. BOARD OF AGRICULTURE

Notice is hereby given that a public hearing will be held by the North Carolina Board of Agriculture on Thursday, November 15, 1984 at 10:00 a.m. in Room 359, Agriculture Building, Raleigh, N.C. for the purpose of amending, adopting or repealing the following rules of the N.C. Board of Agriculture as follows:

A. FOOD AND DRUG

(1) Amend 2 NCAC 9B to update rules and standards adopted by reference.

(2) Adopt rules governing the production of smoked and smoke-flavored fish and repeal of existing provisions.

(3) Repeal 2 NCAC 9H, except for 2 NCAC 9H .0009(a) (Disposition of Damaged or Unclean Food).

(4) Repeal of 2 NCAC 9I (Procedures for Handling Complaints).

(5) Amend the Pasteurized Milk Ordinance (2 NCAC 9G .0100) to reflect changes in statutory authority.

(6) Amend 2 NCAC 9K to delete superfluous language relating to testing procedures for milk and cream, with changes in terminology.

B. Repeal of 2 NCAC 33 (Cattle Disease Committee) with no change in departmental operations. G.S. 106-2.

C. Repeal of 2 NCAC 24 (Livestock Market Advisory Board) with no change in departmental operations. G.S. 106-407.1.

D. Repeal of Swine Disease Committee, 2 NCAC 23, with no change in departmental operation. G.S. 106-2.

E. Repeal of 2 NCAC 16, Research Stations, with no changes in departmental operations. G.S. 106-2.

F. Repeal of 2 NCAC 44 (Museum of Natural History) with no change in departmental operations. G.S. 106-22(15).

G. Repeal of 2 NCAC 37 .0101 and .0102 with no change in departmental operation. G.S. 106-22(17).

H. Repeal of 2 NCAC 51 .0100 (State Farm Operations and Food Distribution) with no change in departmental operations. G.S. 106-26.14.

I. Amend 2 NCAC 52D .0001 (Standards for Meat and Poultry Inspection) to update federal regulations adopted by reference. G.S. 106-549.21, 106-549.22 and 106-549.28.

J. Repeal of 2 NCAC 43E .0001, 2 NCAC 43E .0002(a)(c)(d)(e)(f)(g) and (i), as statutory duplications, and the repeal of 2 NCAC 43I (Western Farmer's Market), 2 NCAC 43J (Western N.C. Horse and Livestock Facility), 2 NCAC 43K (Charlotte Farmer's Market) with the concurrent adoption of a uniform set of operational standards for all these facilities. Fees will also be adopted. The new subchapter will also contain provisions governing the State Farmer's Market at Raleigh, presently codified as 2 NCAC 21. 2 NCAC 21 will be repealed. Statutory Authority is G.S. 106-530, 106-22.

K. Repeal of 2 NCAC 10 (Pesticide and Plant Protection), except 2 NCAC 10G (Plant Conservation Board) and 2 NCAC 11 (Seed and Fertilizer) with the concurrent adoption of 2 NCAC 48 (Plant Industry Division) which will encompass the provisions of 2 NCAC 10 and 2 NCAC 11 with the deletion of all provisions not meeting the statutory definition of "rule" per G.S. 150A-2(8)(a), and specifically deleting the following provisions of 2 NCAC 11:

1. .0107 Liquid Commercial Fertilizers: Sampling
2. .0108 Bag Weights
3. .0114 Boron Landplaster Mixtures for Peanuts
4. .0401 Mixtures for use on Commercial Crops
5. Note that some changes in terminology may be made.

The rules contained in these chapters will be reorganized for clarity of content, improved terminology, and removal of superfluous material. Substantive changes in tobacco plant rules, fees, vegetable plant certification, methods to abate plant pests, and related issues will be considered. 2 NCAC 10G (Plant Conservation rules) will be retained.

Statutory Authority G.S. Chapter 106, Article 56 (N.C. Fert. Law)
G.S. Chapter 106, Article 3 (N.C. Seed Law)
G.S. Chapter 106, Article 4D (N.C. Biological Organism Act)
G.S. Chapter 106, Article 8 (Sale of Agricultural Liming Material)
G.S. Chapter 106, Article 36 (Plant Pests)
G.S. Chapter 106, Article 55 (N.C. Bee and Honey Act)

Interested persons may present their views either orally or in writing at these hearings or prior to these hearings by mail, addressed to the Secretary to the N.C. Board of Agriculture P.O. Box 27647, Raleigh, NC 27611.

On a recent space shuttle mission, astronauts practiced re-fueling orbiting satellites. There are now 1,454 satellites in space. Of these, 1,395 are orbiting the Earth. American businesses or NASA own 464 of them, while 826 belong to the Soviet Union. The oldest and smallest United States satellite still in space is Vanguard 1. Launched March 17, 1958, it weighs in at 3.5 pounds. The largest United States satellite weighs 2.5 tons.

Judge Sets Criteria For Sheriff's Release

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A federal judge, over the objections of prosecutors, said suspended Dawson County Sheriff John David Davis may be released in the custody of his attorneys upon payment of a $350,000 bond.

Prosecutors opposed the bond arrangement, saying Davis has threatened witnesses in the federal drug smuggling conspiracy case against him.

Meanwhile, prosecutors said they are investigating allegations that another defendant in the case contracted to have a Georgia Bureau of Investigation agent and another law enforcement officer killed.

Davis, currently being held in the Columbia County Jail, is accused of participating in a drug smuggling operation conducted by Larry Douglas "Red" Evans of Lincoln County.

Evans, a part-time race car driver, was convicted in June 1983 and is serving a 40-year prison sentence. Prosecutors say his smuggling operation brought in more than 77,000 pounds of marijuana.

Under the bond arrangement set by U.S. District Judge Anthony Alaimo on Monday, Davis would be transferred to a jail in Gainesville. Defense attorneys then could take Davis from jail between the hours of 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. daily.

Defense attorneys William Moore and Jim Whitmer have said they must have Davis' help to prepare their case.

"I'm going to hold you all responsible, believe me," Alaimo told the defense attorneys. "If there's any indication whatsoever that there has been intimidation of witnesses, you can rest assured he's going back."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Michael Faulkner opposed the arrangement, claiming the government has evidence that Davis has intimidated key prosecution witnesses, including the former sheriff of Elbert County, Charles E. Starrett.

Davis was indicted in August along with six other men on charges of conspiring with Evans and 49 others to smuggle marijuana, cocaine and methaqualone into the United States. The indictment accused Davis and Starrett, who was listed as an unindicted co-conspirator, of providing protection for Evans' ventures.

An affidavit supporting the government's motion opposing the bond, signed by GBI agent Francis B. Wiley, stated that Davis "made a serious threat" to Starrett, who "truly believes Davis has the capability" of carrying out the threat.

The affidavit also mentions "unverified" information being investigated by the FBI that another defendant has contracted with a Louisiana man to kill Wiley and another law officer, identified as investigator Randy Sims.

Man Who Wed His Mom Indicted, Lawyer Says

CHARLOTTE, Tenn. (AP) — A man who claimed he unwittingly married his mother and fled after she refused to give him a divorce has been indicted on charges of felonious incest, the man's lawyer said Tuesday.

Attorney Doug Jackson said his client, Danny James Bass, 26, would surrender to authorities later Tuesday.

According to Jackson, Bass was named in a sealed indictment handed up Monday by a Dickson County grand jury. Kenneth Atkins, the district attorney, would not confirm the charges, saying he could not comment on an indictment that had not yet been unsealed.

Bass' mother, Mary Ann Garton Bass, 43, of Charlotte, pleaded innocent last month to a charge of criminal incest and is free on $5,000 bond.

Bass, who had been put up for adoption when he was 3, met and married Mrs. Bass in 1978 during a search for his natural mother.

He said he id not know at the time that the woman was his mother and found out several months after the marriage. He said he ran away and joined the Army after his mother refused to give him a divorce.

However, there have been conflicting reports as to when Bass learned of the relationship.

Bass' uncle, Horace Sullivan, who raised him, said in August that he introduced him to his mother 13 years ago.

"He knew who his mother was," Sullivan said. "... I took him to a church and introduced him to his mother when he was 13 years old."

Jackson said he plans to file a motion that the case be dismissed. Jackson said a hearing has been set for Friday in which he will argue that the four-year statute of limitations has run out in the case.

"I don't anticipate this matter going to trial," Jackson said. "The DA has indicted them not because they had carnal knowledge of each other, but because they married each other," he said.

4 WAYS TO SAY "CHARGE IT"

Hospital Withdraws From High Risk Infant Care Program

MACON, Ga. (AP) — The Medical Center of Central Georgia's decision to pull out of a state program to care for high-risk infants may threaten the entire program.

The Macon Medical Center, one of five hospitals in the program, has decided to cancel its 1985 Intensive Infant Care program grant, forcing about 200 high-risk infants in Macon's 33-county perinatal region to find other care.

"We're saddened by all this because we fought so hard to get the initial grants," said Dr. Kenneth Henderson, the hospital's medical director.

"The word has to go out to the Legislature that if we want to continue these programs, we've got to have more money," Henderson said. "Are these infants going to be deprived of care, with all the bad outcomes associated with that decision, or are the resources going to be made available?"

Lucille Dismukes, executive director of the Georgia Council on Maternal and Infant Health, said withdrawal of the Macon could overburden the program as its patients seek care elsewhere. The entire state system for caring for high-risk infants could collapse, she said.

"If (the remaining four hospitals) started getting in a lot of other folks that can't pay, it's going to be tough for them to take them," she said.

The Macon hospital has participated in the program for five years, Henderson said. In 1983-84, the hospital lost $1 million on the program, which pays only part of the sick infant's bills, he said. Projections show the hospital could lose $1.3 million in 1984-85.

Under the Intensive Infant Care project, the state is divided into five perinatal regions, each served by a hospital that can provide the highest level of care for very sick and premature babies.

The five institutions are Grady Memorial Hospital in Atlanta, Eugene Talmadge Memorial Hospital in Augusta, Memorial Medical Hospital in Savannah, Medical Center of Central Georgia and the Columbus Medical Center.

Dr. Louis Levy, director of the Columbus Medical Center's neonatal intensive care unit, said the problem of funding for high-risk indigent babies "borders on being a crisis in the state."

Part of the Macon hospital's problem, is that its $427,000 grant has not been increased since the project began, Henderson said.

"We probably need about $12,000 per patient, and the state is able to support about $6,500," he said.

The Macon hospital told state officials it would continue to accept out-of-county indigent, high-risk infants only if the referring hospital could be required to pay up to $5,500 per patient when a baby's bill exceeded the state's $6,500 payment.

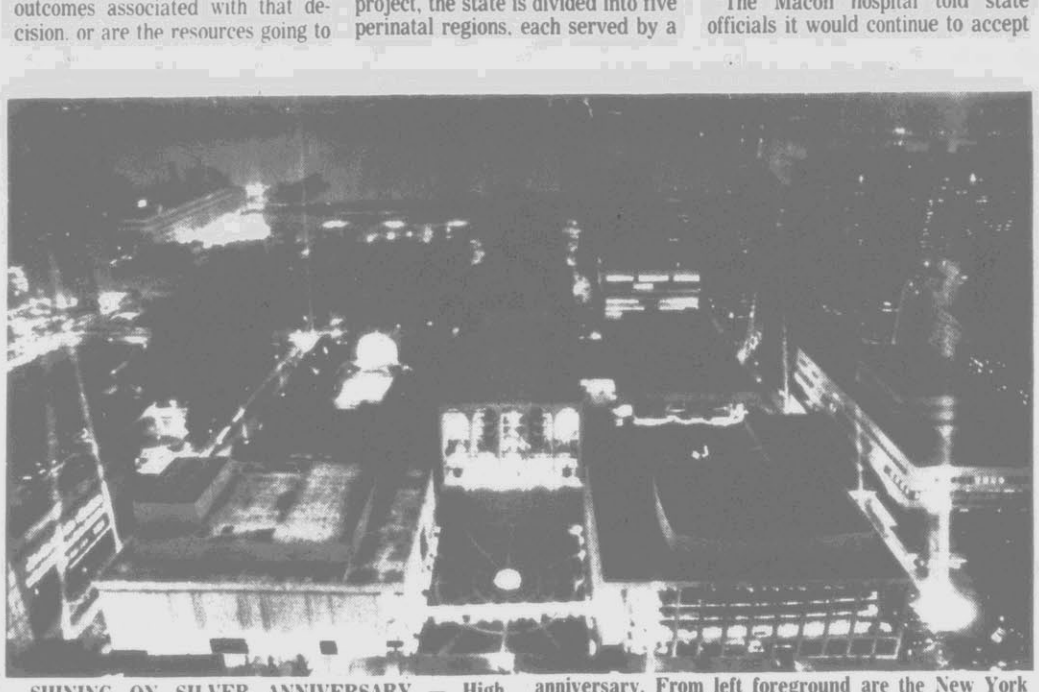

But the state rejected the proposal, Henderson said.

"Funding is not available to meet their prices," said Harry Carr, deputy director of family health for the Georgia Department of Human Resources.

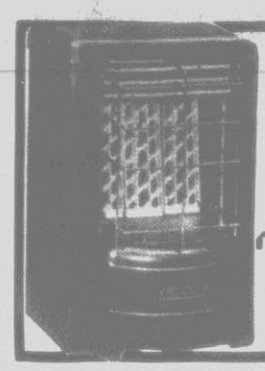

Even if the money were available, it would be unfair to give the Macon hospital more than the others, Carr said. He said the program was designed to help defray the hospital's costs, not pay for the entire program.

Exxon Reports Profits Rose; Ashland Says Earnings Fell

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD
AP Business Writer

Exxon Corp., the world's largest oil company, said today its earnings rose 4.1 percent in the third quarter to $1.275 billion, while Ashland Oil Inc. reported a loss of $240.88 million in the three months ended Sept. 30.

Exxon, which earned $1.225 billion in the third quarter of last year, reported growth this year in oil and natural gas production and from its chemicals business.

However, the company reported sharply lower earnings from the sale of refined petroleum products such as gasoline because worldwide surpluses continued to unsettle markets.

Ashland said its loss for the fourth quarter of its fiscal year reflected a previously announced, one-time charge of $271.14 million, or $9.70 a share, for the planned sale of several non-oil businesses.

Ashland's loss followed a report Monday by Atlantic Richfield Co., that it had a loss of $519 million in the same period as a result of a $785 million writedown of its metal-making and minerals businesses. A year earlier, Los Angeles-based Arco had a profit of $405 million in the period.

Meanwhile, Chicago-based Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) said Monday its earnings edged up 2.7 percent in the third quarter from a year earlier, helped by a one-time-only gain of $53 million from the sale of its Australian refining and marketing operations.

Earnings per share rose 12.1 percent in the third quarter, to $1.58 from $1.41 a year earlier. For the first nine months of the year, earnings per share shot up 28.1 percent, to $4.97 from $3.88.

Net earnings for the first nine months of the year climbed 22 percent, to $4.10 billion from $3.36 billion a year ago.

Ashland, with headquarters in Ashland, Ky., said the loss in the fourth quarter of its fiscal year compared with a profit of $51.07 million, or $1.47 a share, a year earlier.

For the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, Ashland said it had a loss of $172.5 million against a profit of $102.8 million, or $2.46 a share, a year earlier.

Doubts Raised In Hong Kong On Agreement

By TSE PUI SHAN
Associated Press Writer

HONG KONG (AP) — An editorial cartoon published here shows Foreign Secretary Geoffrey Howe of Britain announcing to a jubilant crowd at the Hong Kong airport, "I have here in my hand a piece of paper signed by Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping and which guarantees a lease in our time."

The allusion is Neville Chamberlain, the British prime minister who signed the Munich agreement with Adolf Hitler in 1938 and declared "peace for our time."

Britain signed the Munich agreement with Germany to appease Hitler in an effort to avert global war. Less than a year later, Nazi troops invaded Czechoslovakia, an event that led to World War II.

The "lease" referred to in the cartoon is the one Britain signed for 99 years with China in 1898 for the New Territories, the part of Hong Kong that is on the Chinese mainland. Hong Kong Island and Kowloon were ceded previously to Britain by China and will revert to China when the New Territories lease runs out in 1997.

Under the terms of a draft agreement initialed by Britain and China in September, Hong Kong's capitalistic systems will be maintained for 50 years — under what Peking says will be "one country, two systems."

But many people in Hong Kong now are wondering whether the agreement is really worth more than the Munich agreement and whether Hong Kong's "lease in our time" will last much longer than Chamberlain's "peace for our time."

Doubts now are arising among Hong Kong residents who see no guarantees in the documents that China will abide by the agreement. All that Hong Kong has is Peking's word, they say, and many of them harbor a deep-rooted distrust of the Chinese communists.

About one-third of Hong Kong's 5.4 million people are immigrants who have fled from China. They and many locally born people distrust the communists because they see China's past behavior as being characterized by upheavals, leadership instability, policy inconsistencies and duplicities.

They cite as a typical instance of such duplicity the 1957 campaign launched by Chairman Mao Tse-tung with the guideline, "Let a hundred flowers bloom and a hundred schools of thought contend."

Mao urged the people to discuss all ideas freely on the assumption that intellectuals would eventually see that Marxist-Leninist thought was superior.

But almost all the intellectuals lashed out at the Chinese leadership and Communist Party. When the criticisms created unrest that threatened to get out of hand, the intellectuals were ruthlessly suppressed.

An unknown number of intellectuals were killed while large numbers of others, estimated at hundreds of thousands, were labeled "rightists" and packed off to labor camps.

Mao explained that the purpose of the campaign was to lure out "demons, devils, ghosts and monsters" so that they could be wiped out.

The Chinese leadership has changed since Mao's death in 1976 and is now seen as more open and pragmatic. Nevertheless, many Hong Kong people still have serious misgivings.

"It is not a question of their being difficult, fussy, choosy, close-minded or one-track-minded," wrote Chang Kuo-sin, a columnist for the English-language newspaper Hong Kong Standard.

"It is rather a question of their being realistic and practical-minded, taking a longer view of their future than is usual, counting their money rather than thinking of their nationalism, and being more concerned with the rights of men than the sovereignty of nations."

The British governor of Hong Kond, Edward Youde, has said he saw no reasons to doubt the Chinese leaders' sincerity because "this is a freely negotiated agreement by the Chinese government in which they have committed their prestige."

But as the terms of the agreement have sunk in, many residents are voicing suspicion.

Some political commentators are saying that those who had made plans to leave Hong Kong are not likely to be persuaded by the agreement to change their minds.

The chief worry is that whoever is China's leader in the future will not recognize Peking's commitments. One resident expressed his concerns along these lines in a letter to the editor of the South China Morning Post:

If things don't seem to go his way,
He may turn to you and say,
"I make the laws to which I'm bound,
"Now I'll turn Hong Kong all around."
No recourse now for me and you.

Inventors Banking On New Toy Glider

By DEAN GOLEMBESKI
Associated Press Writer

WEST CORNWALL, Conn. (AP) — The damp air was cooling with the onset of evening when Tim Locke rushed out the front door with his small invention in hand.

He planted his feet in the thick grass and launched the toy hang glider on a slow, looping flight that ended after a few seconds with a gentle landing.

"You don't have to really wang it. You just throw it," he said of the proper launching technique for his invention.

Had the air been hotter, the foam and plastic glider might have caught a "thermal" — or a rush of rising warm air — and flown for minutes. Still, Locke was pleased with the flight of the toy that he has tinkered with for nine years.

He tossed it into the air again, and then stood fascinated.

"I'm into all wind sports," he said, explaining that his devotion to hang gliding led to his toy's development.

The toy has a 14-inch foam wing and a hard plastic balancing weight shaped like a pilot that together give it the appearance of a miniature hang glider.

"I've had many different designs. It looks mindless simple, but there's a lot that goes into it," Locke said.

To protect the design, Locke has patented it in the United States, West Germany and Japan under the name Windseeker.

Soon, the public will be able to test the glider itself.

Locke and his partner, Carl Hermann, have formed Windseeker Corp. and have overseen the recent production of 30,000 gliders that they and their distributors will sell. The year-old corporation's first customer was NASA, which bought 48 of the gliders to sell at its Washington, D.C., gift shop. Another 48 have been sold to the New England Air Museum in Windsor Locks.

The sales have been the high point in what has been a difficult and frustrating business experience for Locke and Hermann. It has been an experience that has left the two more confident of their own abilities, but wary of others.

"We had a lot of doubting Thomases along the way. That was almost the fuel to drive us on further," Locke said. "We believed that if we persisted, the persistence would pay off."

Their troubles started in 1975 when Locke began working on the glider.

"I had this brainstorm to construct a toy flying hang glider," Locke said, explaining that he built a working model that same day from materials he had at his home in West Cornwall. He then took the glider to Hermann to show it to his boyhood friend.

"The moment he threw the first prototype at me, I knew we had something special to work on," said Hermann, a Falls Village resident.

As Locke set out to improve his design, Hermann took over the business chores, such as trying to find a company willing to buy the glider. Hermann also set out to gain the necessary patents.

The two first thought they would be satisfied selling the patent to a company and receiving royalties from its sales. They found many companies to be interested, but unwilling to take a gamble on the 30-year-old Locke, a logger by profession, and 29-year-old Hermann, a graphic artist.

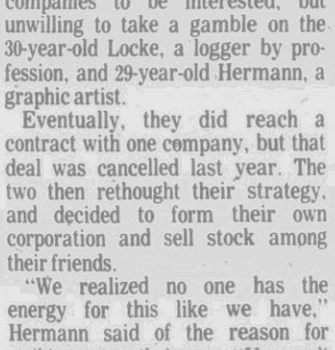

Eventually, they did reach a contract with one company, but that deal was cancelled last year. The two then rethought their strategy, and decided to form their own corporation and sell stock among their friends.

"We realized no one has the energy for this like we have," Hermann said of the reason for striking out on their own. "You can't calculate the hours we put into this."

With the support of their stockholders, the two finalized the glider's design, and found three small companies to make and package the glider.

Dan Haggerty Arrested

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Dan Haggerty faces arraignment Nov. 6 on two cocaine selling charges, the first filed against an actor "of import" arrested by a year-old entertainment unit of the police department.

Haggerty, television's "Grizzly Adams," was ordered bound over Monday for Superior Court trial on charges he sold 18 grams of cocaine, worth $2,160, to undercover narcotics officers. He is free on $5,000 bond.

Haggerty, 41, starred in the NBC television series "The Life and Times of Grizzly Adams," based on the life of James "Grizzly" Adams, who fled to the wilderness in the late 1800s after being accused of a crime he did not commit

A dummy reversal is a simple but elegant way of scoring extra tricks. But you have to be careful about how you use your entries, or you might allow the opponents to score a ruff to defeat you.

Seven spades is an excellent contract, but not easy to reach. North bid optimistically to get there in quick time. He used Stayman to locate a 4-4 spade fit, then leaped to Blackwood. After all the aces were located, his six clubs was the Grand Slam Force, and South duly bid the grand slam since he had two of the top three trump honors.

West led a trump, and declarer could count 11 tricks. The obvious way to develop the two tricks needed to fulfill the contract was by ruffing and, because of the entry situation, a dummy reversal was the recommended way to achieve his goal.

Declarer won the opening lead in dummy, cashed the ace-king of diamonds and ruffed a diamond high as West sluffed a heart. He returned to the table with a trump and ruffed another diamond high. Unfortunately, on this trick West sluffed his remaining heart, and now declarer had no way to get to the board to draw West's trumps. When he tried to cross with a heart, West ruffed for down one.

West's discard of a heart on the third diamond should have alerted declarer to the danger. Instead of using a trump to return to dummy, he should have crossed with a heart while West still had one. Then he could ruff a diamond high as West discarded and still get back to the table with a trump to draw the remaining trumps and claim his slam.

Experiments Indicate Aging Slowed

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Symptoms of aging were delayed in experimental rats deprived of a key element in their diet, a University of California researcher says.

Research associate Paul Segall said when he deprived rats of the amino acid tryptophan, their life spans increased, with some living up to eight months longer than usual.

He warned, however, that such an experiment with humans could be dangerous. He said the rats also experienced abnormal growth and neurological and behavioral disorders.

Segall said aging symptoms, including hair loss and reduced immune responses, may be caused by the loss of specific cell groups in the brain and endocrine system on a genetically programmed schedule.

The loss of these cell groups causes the brain and endocrine glands to malfunction, said Segall.

The restricted diet may slow the production of proteins by the cells, postponing the loss of the cell groups, he said.

Segall, who has been studying the physiology of aging for 17 years, discussed his findings Saturday at the a meeting of the American Aging Association.

Career Goal

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Broadway star Mary Martin wants to end her career the way it began, "sitting on a piano and singing in a bar again," and that bar could be in a San Francisco hotel, says her son, actor Larry Hagman.

"We sort of made a deal with friends of ours who run the Stanford Court Hotel," Hagman said in an interview in November's issue of McCall's magazine. "If the deal is consummated, the hotel will put in a small bar, seating maybe 80 people, and mother will do two shows a night, five nights a week."

Marble Search Led To Start Of Business

By JOYCE A. VENEZIA
Associated Press Writer

DEEP RIVER, Conn. (AP) — When Connie Karkowski got tired of her children zapping space invaders, she decided to teach them how to hunch over and knuckle down with an aggie to shoot miggles.

In order to do so, Mrs. Karkowski needed her childhood collection of marbles, lost long ago in forgotten corners of her past homes. Thinking replacements would be a simple matter, she headed to the local five-and-ten-cent store.

"But all I could find was junk, junk and more junk," she said, explaining that most marbles she found came in a nondescript assortment that lacked the large shooter marbles.

"So I started finding out where I could purchase marbles — good marbles — and that's where my business really got rolling, so to spek," she said.

Now three years later, Mrs. Karkowski is owner of The Great American Marble Co., which she proudly says is the only U.S. distributor of marble packages.

"Our biggest competition is in England and Taiwan," she said.

The company itself is a small American success story. After discovering where to buy swirlies, rainbows, solids, clearies and cat's-eyes, Mrs. Karkowski thought something should be done to revive the lost art of marble shooting.

"So after doing some research, I and an 11-and 13-year-old started building small pine boxes to fill with marbles and instructions," she said.

"We started with a small ad in Yankee magazine for mail orders, and soon — before we knew it — it was one of the hottest selling items in the Smithsonian magazine."

The business started in the Karkowskis' two-car garage in Old Saybrook, but its growth has forced a recent move to a rented warehouse in Deep River, where boxes and bins of marbles are boxed, bagged and wrapped by two employees.

Sales manager Judy Ganswindt recalls early days in the garage when she would be talking to salesmen while waving frantically at the others to stop packing.

"All the salesmen could hear was the roll of marbles," she said.

The business' humble beginnings didn't sway the demand: The 2-inch by 2-inch advertisement prompted hundreds of letters from parents and grandparents anxious to teach children about the lost art of marble shooting and collecting.

"Kids are totally amazed when they discover their parents know how to play a game," Mrs. Karkowski said.

One man wrote and requested marbles to use as eyes for a bear he was carving from wood. And a woman wrote in and requested clear marbles for her spaghetti sauce.

"Evidently the clear marbles bounce just enough in the bottom of the pot," Mrs. Karkowski said. "She said her sauce just wasn't the same since she lost her clear marbles and had to use colored ones."

The company is working on new ideas, such as a silk-screened cloth shooting ring and collector marbles, Mrs. Karkowski said. Now that Mrs. Karkowski and Mrs. Ganswindt have developed marketing savvy, they say they're confident enough to expand beyond just boxes of marbles.

"We were both basically just housewives who never did any selling, and suddenly we were walking the streets of New York with marbles in our briefcases," Mrs. Ganswindt said. "We didn't know what we were doing."

Buyers were helpful, she said, and offered suggestions on what customers might want.

But demonstrations prove to be popular too — when the two women get on their knees to show how to shoot marbles, it's not long before salespeople find themselves on the floor.

The trivia are also just as interesting as the tips on how to get backspin in the shooter. Every marble has a name: Aggies are valuable marbles made of agate. Miggles are target marbles. Bumboozers are special oversize shooters.

The company recently started selling "steelies" — actual ball bearings that are "the best" shooters, Mrs. Karkowski said.

"During World War II, if you had a steelie, you were a lucky kid," she said. "You always played for 'funsies' with your steelie, never for 'keepsies.'"

"It's an ancient sport. Other countries never had a 'lost generation' of marble players," Mrs. Karkowski said.

Director Died

SALZBURG, Austria (AP) — Oscar Fritz Schuh, the West German director who staged numerous opera world premieres, died Monday. He was 80.

South African Bushmen Threatened With Extinction

By MORT ROSENBLUM
AP Special Correspondent

DECEPTION PAN, Botswana (AP) - Xakadio the Bushman dressed carefully for work. First, a wool baseball jersey, and a black tuxedo over that. Then the piece de resistance: huge round sunglasses of the sort favored by aging movie queens.

He is one of the 1,000 or so Bushmen left in the harsh, dry reaches of the Central Kalahari Desert. They are the last of the nomadic hunters and gatherers who were catapulted from the Stone Age to the Jet Age with no stops in between, and whose way of life is threatened with extinction.

Altogether, fewer than 60,000 Bushmen survive in pockets of Southern Africa. Once numbering in the hundreds of thousands and occupying a third of the huge continent, they are but a shadow of populations dating back perhaps 23,000 years, among the most ancient of all the people who now live in southern Africa.

For 200 years after the Dutch settlers landed in South Africa in 1652, the dimunitive Bushmen were systematically decimated. Today, politics, ecological disaster and social change threaten the two last reserves — in Botswana and South-West Africa, or Namibia — where the Bushmen live free in places such as the Kalahari.

Every few minutes, Xakadio giggled excitedly and identified in sign language the game below: an undulating fist for ostrich; two fingers curved backward for eland; contorted digits, dipping rhythmically, for giraffe.

"I am happy in the bush, I know it well, and I am not afraid," Xakadio said through an interpreter. But, asked if he would do without the trappings of encroaching modern civilization, he was equally emphatic: "No."

Xakadio is relatively well off, living at Williamson's research camp deep in the desert. But his case illustrates dramatically the Bushmen's plight.

Generally short with yellowish skin, beardless faces that wrinkle quickly, and tightly kinked hair, Bushmen are routinely scorned and mistreated by other Africans. Some tribes call them subhuman. But they are matchless hunters, using arrows tipped with a homemade poison so strong that they carry the antidote with them at all times.

Bushmen, known for their rollicking humor, mimmick each other, and strangers, and chat endlessly in a clicking, multi-toned language. But they take their plight seriously. In the Kalahari they call themselves, "the people of the short blanket."

As a young man, Xakadio went to Johannesburg to work in the mines. The city scared him, and the hard, regimented life depressed him. He shuns urban centers in Botswana where Bushmen face discrimination.

Now in his 40s or 50s — "I was born before the war of Hitler" is the best he can do when asked his age — he is dependent on a job, not easy to find. Otherwise, the options are few.

The huge Central Kalahari Game Reserve was established in 1961, not so much for the animals as for the 5,000 Bushmen who lived by hunting them with bows, arrows and stealth.

During long dry months, Bushmen can live for months sucking up water from beneath the dried-up streambeds through straws and storing it in ostrich egg shells. They trap spring hare and chase down antelope. They can tell an animal's age by its tracks.

"I've seen Bushman trackers pick up two-day-old lion spoor and then follow it, jogging all day long at 12 miles an hour," said Mark Kyriakou, a veteran white hunter. "They are amazing."

But, pushed by drought and lured by an easier life, most Kalahari Bushmen have gravitated to "cattle posts," watering points outside the reserve where they tend herds for token pay and survival rations.

"We will go back to the bush when the rains come, and we can find game and water," declared Tuelo Skalabui, chief of Xade, a village of 500 Bushmen where pastimes range from drinking homemade beer to lounging.

But outsiders who study the Bushmen are not so sure.

In Xade, a young man in a leisure suit missing its buttons and a dirty orange polo shirt, pestered a rare visitor for handouts. He looked dubious when asked if he would go back to the bush. Others chuckled at the idea.

Professor Phillip Tobias of Johannesburg's Witwatersrand University has estimated that no Bushmen hunter-gatherers will be left in the next century.

"They are losing their customs, and following other people's cultures," says Gaolatlhe Thupe, a Botswanan teacher at Xade. "In 10 years time, they will be just like the other tribes in Botswana."

Worse, ecologists and sociologists fear, the intense pressure for more grazing land is tempting the government to open up to cattle vast stretches of reserve land the Bushmen no longer use.

Bushmen are encouraged to leave the land and take jobs or live as herders.

"That would be the end of the Kalahari, for the Bushmen, the wildlife, and then the cattle," says Williamson, a South African scientist working for the Frankfurt Zoological Society of West Germany.

"As it is, their way is going fast," he adds. "They are caught between the bush and the new way, educating their children. They want both. It's sad, really."

In Namibia, South African planners in charge want to make a game reserve of Eastern Bushmanland where 2,200 Ju-wasi Bushmen live a balanced life of hunting and farming and children attend school.

American scientists John Marshall and Olga Levinson, who have lived among the Bushmen for years, said in a report:

"...The death blow of a nature reserve is not a figure of speech. It is not a metaphor for social disintegration and collapsing values. Dispossession threatens their livelihood and therefore their lives."

Bushmen would be allowed bows and arrows but, the report says, most hunters can no longer use them, having been taught to rely on guns instead. The reserve would condemn some to "a kind of plasticized Stone Age" and others would join the other 20,000 Namibian Bushmen in "dire poverty on farms and in townships or homelands of more fortunate peoples."

Bushmen now suffer from South Africa's practice of recruiting them as scouts and soldiers to fight Namibian guerrillas, the scientists say. Military service changes values and makes communities dependent on pay checks that could stop any time, they argue.

Anthropologists say old Bushmen ways of life were still widespread a generation ago, often protected by governments which considered them little more than curiosities.

In 1941, South African Minister for Native Affairs Denys Reitz told Parliament:

"It would be a biological crime if we allowed such a peculiar race to die out, because it is a race which looks more like a baboon than a baboon itself does...We look upon them as part of the fauna of the country."

Search For Poachers Goes On; Reward Up

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The reward fund to help locate the culprits who killed two deer and cut another's throat at Pendleton King Park has swelled to $1,000 as concerned citizens continued to offer their aid.

Augusta police Capt. W.R. Bell said he received numerous telephone calls last week from people who offered information and volunteered money — anything that might help locate the poachers.

"We probably had 30 calls Friday," Bell said. "It indicates there's some animal lovers out there."

Bell said pledges have ranged from $20 to $500 and as of Monday the fund had reached $1,000.

Two of the people offered to donate money to the park in addition to reward money, Bell said.

He said hunters especially have been indignant about the Oct. 13 incident.

"They feel this thing gives them a bad name. They want to make sure people realize there is a lot of difference between hunting for food and this kind of slaughter," he said.

Although no arrests have been made, Bell said numerous leads have been reported to the police department. However, since the deer at the park were killed during bow season, most of the leads concerned legal hunting incidents, he said.

In an effort to eliminate future problems for the deer, the Pendleton King Park Committee decided Monday to decrease the number of deer and provide additional security at the park.

The citizens' committee agreed to reduce the number of deer at the park to three — keeping two does and one buck, said J.E. Hornsby, superintendent of the City Council's parks committee. The other seven deer probably will be placed in a state park by the State Wildlife Department, he said.

The committee also agreed to have the deer pen extended 100 feet and provide 24-hour security for the animals, he said.

Top Secret Data On Souvenir Cover

WASHINGTON (AP) — A gift shop at NASA's Johnson Space Center in Houston is selling souvenir envelopes that provide detailed drawings and the official code name of a top secret Navy space project, according to Aviation Week and Space Technololgy magazine.

The aerospace industry publication said the souvenir postal covers, which sell for $1 apiece, show a detailed drawing of the Whitecloud satellite — a mother spacecraft and three smaller craft that can be separated in orbit to fan out over a large area and scan the oceans.

The magazine quoted officials at the Naval Research Laboratory as saying that the ocean research satellite program is so secret that its code name — Project Whitecloud — is not even supposed to be used in telephone conversations.

The satellite, the first of which was launched in 1976, is believed to be used to monitor Soviet ship movements.

The envelopes carry the words "Project Whitecloud" in bold face script and provide the description, "Built by Naval Research Laboratgory — carries radio-frequency antennas for detecting shipboard radar & communications signals."

Savile Row Has International Appeal

By EDITH M. LEDERER
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Savile Row, which for more than a century dressed the English gentleman in his bowler hat and pin-stripe suit, is now outfitting millionaire businessmen and celebrities from Abu Dhabi to Dallas.

While the staid conservative look is still the Row's top seller — minus the less frequently worn bowler — a touch of high fashion has appeared on the street of famed tailoring establishments in London's fashionable Mayfair district.

But with the cheapest custom-made suit selling for about $650, all but the very richest Britons have abandoned Savile Row for ready-to-wear labels.

Marks and Spencer, the giant British department store chain, has the lion's share of the market. Its St. Michael suits — selling at bargain prices of about $125 — are worn by a host of well-known men, including actor Dustin Hoffman, opposition Labor Party leader Neil Kinnock and Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's husband, Denis.

Prince Charles and jet-setting businessmen stick to Savile Row's classic styles, but rock star Elton John, composer Andrew Lloyd-Webber and the three teen-age sons of U.S. oil billionaire Gordon Getty are into designer Tommy Nutter's big-jacket look with brocade vests.

After decades of consolidation forced by skyrocketing rents and several years of economic ups and downs, Savile Row is currently enjoying a boom sparked by the falling British pound and the strong American dollar.

"We are now doing roughly 70 percent of our business for overseas customers," said Colin Hammick, managing director of H. Huntsman and Sons. "Our biggest market is North America, but we have clients in France, Belgium, Italy, the Middle East and South America."

Huntsman, which made riding breeches for the late King Edward VIII — who abdicated to marry American divorcee Wallis Simpson — and keeps saddles in each of its five fitting rooms, makes no apologies for charging the highest prices on the Row: a minimum of $1,260 for a wool worsted suit.

"The fact that it's the most expensive is inevitable if you make the best quality," Hammick said.

"We are proud that we do as much handwork now as we did 50 years ago," he added, explaining that a Huntsman suit takes three months to finish, needs at least three or four fittings, and is all hand-sewn except for the main side and arm seams.

John Brand of Tobias, one of a number of smaller Row firms that have managed to survive, admitted that made-to-measure tailoring "is not very profitable. ... But at least we're all nice and busy because the dollar is very strong."

Made-to-measure suits at Tobias start at about $695, and Brand said 75 percent of his business is from foreigners. "Americans account for 45 percent at least."

Hammick said custom-made or "bespoke" suits (clients are said to "bespeak" their requirements) offer a customer a wider range of fabrics, patterns and individual styles than ready-to-wear.

"If we have done our job properly, it should enhance the figure — maybe by only a small percentage," he said. "I mean, you can't do miracles. But I think every figure can look a little better."

Like Nutter, Gieves and Hawkes and others on the Row, Huntsman has introduced a ready-to-wear collection starting at $470 for those who can't afford the time or money for a tailor-made suit. But traditionalists like Anderson and Sheppard, who reportedly acquired Prince Charles as a customer recently, wouldn't dream of selling ready-to-wear.

Savile Row was laid out in the 1730s and takes its name from Lady Dorothy Savile, wife of the 3rd Earl of Burlington, who owned the property. Originally, it was a fashionable residential street. But in the mid-19th century, it became the headquarters of many of London's finest tailors.

A few original shops remain, with their old wooden fronts and small windows strewn with bolts of material. But the street, now bustling with traffic, has been invaded by a travel agency and several modern office buildings.

When Tommy Nutter went into business on Savile Row in 1968, he said, his "was the first new shop to open for as long as anybody could remember."

Catering to the Beatles and the swinging '60s crowd, Nutter's flared jackets, close-fitting trousers and vests with braided and satin edges caused some raised eyebrows among the Row's pin-striped stalwarts. He left in 1976, returned in 1982 and is now one of the few tailors offering a more modern look.

"I think I'm the only one with any clue of what's happening in 1984-85," said Nutter, whose best customer is Elton John. "What I offer really is the same quality as any of the other tailors ... but I would hope my styling is more up to date."

Hammick welcomed Nutter, saying he gave "a little color to the Row." But he insisted Huntsman's clothes were not dull or out of date.

"I like to think our clothes are not in any way old-fashioned — that in the styling, they are in line with the sort of trend of fashion. We never aim for obvious high fashion because high fashion after six months or so suddenly is dated," he said.

Colin Ward, manager of Gieves and Hawkes, which he described as a very conservative business, said he didn't get very excited about modern men's fashions.

"I suppose there must always be young people who don't want pin-stripes, but I don't think there are many middle-age trendies," he said. "There will always be someone who needs a conservative made-to-measure suit."

Education Criteria Debated

GREENSBORO (AP) — Starting next month, no applicant to the Gaston County Police Department will be considered without a college degree, and experts are arguing whether that much education is necessary for a patrol officer.

"Police work is a professional situation," said Gaston County Board of Commissioners chairman Harley B. Gaston Jr. Gaston County has the only law enforcment agency in North Carolina for which a baccalaureate is required.

"We are dealing with people in all kinds of settings and all kinds of situations," Gaston said. "We feel more education will benefit the officer in a positive way. We hope it's going to improve the conviction rate by better processing of the people arrested."

While Gaston doesn't think a college education is a stiff requirement, others claim an experienced officer without college classes can be more valuable than someone with extra schooling but no on-the-job training.

In 1982, Greensboro Police Lt. Al Stewart was awarded a Guilford College administration of justice degree. He said that is not a realistic goal for all his peers.

"We've got a number of very fine police officers without college educations," Stewart said. "I think I was a good officer prior to going to school. I think it helped me, but I don't think it is a necessity."

Two presidential commissions, in 1967 and 1973, recommended that officers earn baccalaureates, said William Clancy, a professor of law, police science and criminal justice administration at the John Jay College of Criminal Justice of The City University of New York. To back its stand, the federal government authorized law enforcement federal grants and other assistance as incentives.

A John Jay College study in 1970 on authoritarianism revealed that college graduates were more mature and sophisticated and understood the use of power better than lesser educated officers, Clancy said.

We Are Proud To Have Been Located In "The Plaza" Since 1972

In October 1972 - Hungates moved to Pitt Plaza from a downtown location where we began our business only 8 months before. Our 1st Pitt Plaza store was small, only 1500 square feet. Seven years later we moved across from the concourse to a much larger, 3800 square foot store. Now we have moved to another new location in "The Plaza". This time we have combined our retail store with an adjoining 2nd level general office and warehouse. Thanks to the loyalty of the people in Greenville, Pitt County and surrounding areas, we have grown to five stores located throughout North Carolina and we are looking for further expansion in the future. We are proud to have our store and headquarters in the new Plaza. Thank you for making it possible.

Roscoe Griffin's

THE PLAZA

GRAND OPENING SALE

Our founder, Roscoe Griffin would be proud of the way his shoe stores have grown to cover Eastern North Carolina including a second Greenville location. As part of the store's grand opening ceremonies, we would like to pay tribute to Roscoe's sense of value by introducing RoscoeBucks.

These certificates are good for five dollars off any of our non-sale shoes in stock and are redeemable only at our new Greenville Plaza location. Limit one per customer please. For old fashioned bargains and now two locations in Greenville, stop by and check out our new store, located in Greenville Plaza.

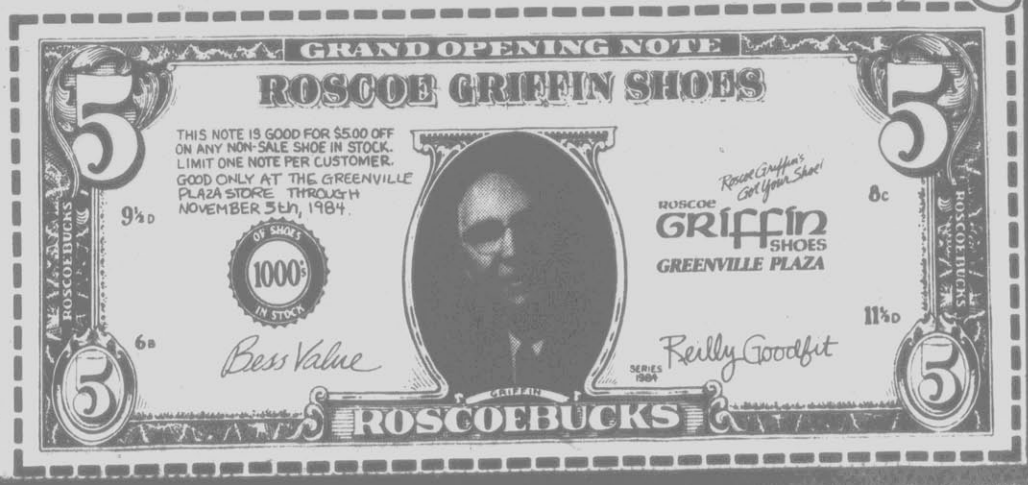

A new shipment of the popular MIA Apache moccassin has arrived in time for our Grand Opening Sale.

You'll find these and other values at our famous Roscoe Griffin prices. So come on by and help us celebrate.

WEEK #4

COMMUNITY WEEK

It just keeps getting better and better at The Plaza. This being the last week of our Grand Opening Celebration — We're Dedicating this week TO YOU! The value and selection will be awaiting you — and as a special "thank you" to the community — The Plaza will have . . .

A Charity Bazaar on Friday and Saturday-November 16 & 17. Community groups will be selling hand-made items at The Plaza to benefit area charity organizations.

The Men Behind The Mall

The Plaza is owned by George Kane, III, John Kane, and Charles Kane. All three brothers are directly or indirectly involved with the operation of the center. John and Charles are principals in Pentagon Properties, the company which has overseen the renovation of the property. George Kane is an attorney with the law firm of Emanual & Emanuel in Raleigh and handles all legal work for Pentagon Properties.

John Kane, a 1973 graduate of Wake Forest University, was employed for five years with George Kane, Inc., a general contractor primarily engaged in commercial construction. While working for George W. Kane, Inc., John managed and leased income producing properties including Pitt Plaza. In 1978, John founded his own management, leasing and development company under the name of J.M. Kane and Company. The company was located in Greenville until 1981, at which time the company moved its office to Raleigh, North Carolina. Among the major contributions to the Greenville area was the Greenville Athletic Club, which was developed by John and opened for business in 1981. In 1984, the company changed its name to Pentagon Properties.

Charles Kane joined Pentagon Properties in February, 1983 after three years with Metropolitan Life Insurance Company - Real Estate Division. Located in the Atlanta office, Charles applied his financial skills acquired in the MBH program of Vanderbilt University in the investment field for Metropolitan Life. In three years, Charles generated over $100 million in new real estate investments in Atlanta, Nashville and New Orleans. The experience gained with Metropolitan is being applied as chief financial officer of Pentagon Properties.

Pentagon Properties is active in all phases of real estate including management, leasing, acquisition and development, financing and syndications. The company currently owns, leases, or manages properties in Raleigh, Greenville, Rocky Mount, Tarboro, Washington, Wilmington and Atlantic Beach.

A DOUBLE-TAKE CAKE

On Grand Opening Day (Thursday October 25th) The Plaza will "Have its cake and eat it too!" Marcia Anderson and Bill Evans of Jerry's Sweet Shop, will bake and decorate a cake approximately 7½ feet long, 4½ feet wide, and 6 layers thick! The cake will be a replica of the newly renovated "Plaza Mall" and will be served to all shoppers who celebrate the Grand Opening with the Plaza merchants. The "Cake Constructors" estimate the cake to weigh 600 pounds. It will be made out of 60 sheet cake sheets (18" x 26") and will take over 30 hours to put together and decorate. Ms. Anderson will be on the Mall Wednesday October 24th to apply the "artistic" touches to the edible sculpture. When asked if the job would be a tough one for her, Ms. Anderson replied, "a piece of cake".

So, eastern North Carolina, come and celebrate the Grand Opening of YOUR Mall. Come take "a piece of the Plaza" home with you on October 25th — Plaza Grand Opening!

THE PLAZA

A Mall creates one full time job for every 500 feet of leasable area. On top of that, malls are some of the biggest employers of part-time help — position which just aren't easy to find. The Plaza Mall will employ close to 600 people year round and an estimated 800 during the Christmas season. This means jobs for area residents, more money to spend in the area, and therefore economic stability and growth for Greenville and the surrounding communities.

Alternatives! That's what's so special about The Plaza for eastern North Carolina. A superb and convenient location has provided a mall with an exceptional tenant mix, lots of fashion selection, a unique variety of tasty food, and a combination of fun and exciting gift/specialty shops that make The Plaza the obvious choice for all of your shopping needs!

UP TO $1,000 INSTANT CREDIT!

CHOOSE FROM TWO PLANS.

Apply For Our Convenient Lowe's Credit Card.

Just present your Visa, American Express or MasterCard, and you may qualify for up to $1,000 instant credit on a new Lowe's Card. (Even without these cards, your application will be processed with a minimum delay.) Ask a Lowe's salesperson for complete details.

LOWE'S
Low Payment Credit Plan

Finance Major Purchases Of Up To $5,000 On Our Low Payment Plan.

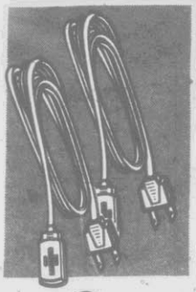

Our Low Payment Plan offers you an easier way to make those major home improvements and larger purchases. It's designed to let you finance purchases of $250 to $5,000 for up to five years at competitive rates. The result is a very low monthly payment that fits comfortably into your family budget and brings important home additions, from a new refrigerator to a new roof, within easy reach. Just look for the above symbol in future advertisements. And, where space is available, we'll also provide the specific credit details on selected items, to give you an idea of the relative size of monthly payments and Annual Percentage Rates. Low Payment Credit Terms are outlined below. So apply today. You may qualify for up to $1,000 instant credit when you present your Visa, American Express, MasterCard, Sears or Lowe's card!

*Lowe's Low Payment Credit Terms: Your credit must be satisfactory. Our cash price does not include sales tax. The monthly payment price may be slightly lower, depending upon state law. The monthly payment price includes sales tax of 5%. If sales tax differs in your area, the monthly payment will vary slightly. Credit Life and Disability Insurance is available upon request. Delivery charges are excluded.

We Also Honor American Express, Visa & MasterCard.

Lowe's Raincheck Policy: If we sell out of an advertised item, we'll issue you a raincheck. When we restock, you'll be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price (except for products marked "Limited Quantities"). Our smaller stores may not stock all advertised items. But every item shown here can be ordered for you.

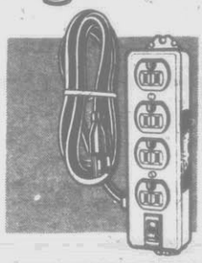

Lowe's Pricing Policy: Many items in this tabloid carry a reference retail price. The reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its full retail price based on prices at which it or similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference retails do not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that our reference retail prices as described above represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this advertisement are listed at "regular" selling prices. The merchandise is offered at this price except during a special sale. The purpose of showing a reference retail price (or a regular price) is to assist you, our customer, in making a knowledgeable and better informed buying decision. We suggest that you also do comparative shopping and compare our prices. (Prices in this tabloid do not include delivery charges. Ask us about delivery rates).
