Second Worst In History

Government Posts $175.3 Billion Deficit

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government posted the second worst deficit in history in 1984, outspending income by $175.3 billion. While the Reagan administration predicts a slight improvement for 1985, many private economists expect the tide of red ink will only get higher.

The 1984 deficit, released Thursday by the Treasury Department, compared to the record $195.4 billion run up in 1983 and $110.6 billion in 1982.

All three deficit totals surpassed the old deficit high of $66.4 billion set in 1976 during the Ford administration.

Democratic presidential candidate Walter F. Mondale has tried to make an issue of the huge deficits under President Reagan, charging that the president is mortgaging the country's future and inviting another recession by driving interest rates higher through massive government borrowing.

Reagan, who had promised in 1980 to balance the budget by 1983, has countered that Mondale's only answer to the flood of red ink is to raise taxes. The president says that economic growth along with further trimming of government programs is all that is needed to reduce the deficits.

The administration, in its most recent forecast, predicted the deficit for 1985 would be $174.2 billion with that figure dropping to $161.7 billion by 1989.

However, the non-partisan Congressional Budget Office has projected the 1985 deficit will be $178 billion and will swell to $263 billion by 1989.

A recent survey by the National Association of Business Economists was even more pessimistic in the near future, predicting the 1985 deficit would total $180 billion.

But Allen Sinai, chief economist for Shearson Lehman-American Express, said Thursday he saw a glimmer of hope in recent interest rate declines, predicting they could trim the 1985 deficit by around $10 billion by reducing the government's huge borrowing costs.

Indeed, the cost of borrowing money is the fastest growing segment of the budget — increasing almost 20 percent in 1984, compared to a 5.8 percent growth in all government spending.

Interest payments on the national debt — which now totals $1.6 trillion — came to $153.8 billion in 1984, making debt servicing the third largest government spending category.

The final deficit for the fiscal year which ended Sept. 30 was only $1 billion higher than a projection made by the administration in August. However, it was $8.4 billion lower than the figure the administration was using in February. The administration credited the improvement to more robust economic growth in the first half of the year coupled with lower-than-expected inflation.

The final report showed that government revenues totaled $666.4 billion in 1984, up 10.9 percent from 1983. Government spending totaled $841.8 billion, up 5.8 percent from 1983.

It marked the 43rd year out of the last 50 in which the government has operated in the red. The last surplus was posted in 1969.

The deficit is even worse when off-budget programs such as federal loan guarantees are taken into account. With all government spending measured, the deficit for 1984 totaled $185.3 billion, compared with $207.7 billion in 1983.

Mondale has come up with a plan he says will trim the deficit by two-thirds by 1989 through a combination of raising taxes and cutting spending.

Mondale has said the deficit is not only driving interest rates higher but also giving the country its worst foreign trade deficit in history. Mondale and many private economists link high interest rates to the strong value of the dollar, which hurts exporters including farmers while opening the country to a flood of cheaper foreign goods.

Mondale has challenged Reagan to come up with his own deficit reduction plan, charging that Reagan has a secret plan to raise taxes which will be revealed after the election. Reagan has denied that charge and said he will raise taxes only as a "last resort."

The Treasury Department provided these details on spending and revenue for 1984:

—Government revenues included $296 billion in individual income taxes, up 2.4 percent from 1983; $212.2 billion in Social Security taxes on workers and employers, up 14 percent from last year; and $56.9 billion in corporate income taxes, up 54 percent from last year.

—Government paid out $292.2 billion through the Department of Health and Human Services, a 5.7 percent increase from 1983. The

7 Indicted In 1981 Pope Shooting; Judge Says Second Gunman Involved

By JOHN WINN MILLER
Associated Press Writer
ROME (AP) — A judge today indicted three Bulgarians and four Turks on charges of complicity in the attempted assassination of Pope John Paul II in 1981, and charged for the first time that a second gunman also shot the pope.

"We must believe without question that there was an international plot to kill the pope," Judge Ilario Martella said after submitting to court officials the results of a three-year investigation into the case.

Martella also issued a new indictment against jailed assailant Mehmet Ali Agca. Agca, 26, who is serving a life sentence for shooting and wounding the pope in St. Peter's Square on May 13, 1981, was indicted today on a charge of illegally bringing a pistol into Italy.

However, Martella said Oral Celik, a suspected member of a right-wing Turkish terrorist group, fired one of three shots that wounded John Paul. Celik is at large.

Witnesses, including American tourists, said Celik was standing next to Agca in St. Peter's Square. The judge said the testimony, ballistics tests and a study of the trajectory of the shots clearly showed a bullet that hit the pope on the finger and arm was fired by Celik. The bullet was never found.

Celik is being sought by Italian police, and he was one of the seven people indicted by Martella today in a 1,243-page document turned over to court officials.

A prosecutor who reviewed Martella's evidence earlier this year told The Associated Press in June that he was convinced Bulgaria, possibly with Soviet aid, masterminded the assassination at

Extra Sleep Sunday As Clock Goes Back

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Morning people get their turn in the light starting Sunday, as an hour of daylight shifts from evening to morning in the annual change back to standard time.

A continuing source of bickering between early-rising country folk and nighthawk city dwellers, this semiannual bit of clock confusion began way back in World War I.

And the latest round was fought out only last year when a congressional effort to tamper with the system was rejected.

Currently the nation — most of it anyway — is on standard time for six months and daylight time for six months.

The changeover comes at 2 a.m. on the last Sunday in April and October, with clocks being set back in October — returning that hour of sleep lost in the spring.

That means turn your clock back an hour before going to bed on Saturday, or you'll be an hour early for church or other appointments.

When daylight-saving time was officially established, on March 19, 1918, the idea was to save energy.

The change moved an hour of daylight from the morning, when few people were awake, to evening, thus saving the fuel needed for lighting for that extra hour. It was wartime, and the saving was very important.

That notwithstanding, the idea ran into trouble in rural areas where farmers were confronted with dark-

Diarrhea Outbreak Probed At Nursery

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

It will take several more weeks before health investigators are able to determine exactly what caused an outbreak of diarrhea in almost a third of the children at a local nursery and kindergarten a spokesman for the N.C. Division of Health Services said Thursday.

Dr. John Parsons, a division of health services epidemiologist, said "we were notified on Oct. 15, of several cases of diarrhea at Tammy's Nursery and Kindergarten on Medical Drive," where he said "some children had become ill with diarrhea ... especially young ones, age 3 and under. Some developed complications and had to go to the hospital."

Parsons said 35 of the 112 children enrolled at the Medical Drive facility were affected by the outbreak of diarrhea, between Sept. 1 and Oct. 16. "Three went to the hospital ... were admitted for several days" after developing "hemolytic uremic syndrome ... kidney inflammation and anemia."

But Parsons said "the outbreak of illness has stopped and there is no risk to any of the children."

Lab tests done on a number of the children "failed to identify the exact cause," Parsons said. So "we took further samples for lab examination," which he said "will take several weeks to complete."

"There is no urgency now as far as getting the results, because by-and-large, the children are all well. At the time we were notified, most of the cases had already occurred and were getting better. It was pretty well over by the 18th. We don't expect to have any further cases."

Parsons said "There are two possibilities for the cause of the outbreak. 'One, it's a virus. One, a bacteria. We think it was introduced into Tammy's by a child coming down with the illness and it spread from person to person ... which is not unusual in a day care setting."

"One, two and three year-olds suffered most of the cases. Once a diarrhea illness starts in that age group, it will spread," Parsons said.

While the outbreak was "not unusual when you consider intestinal illness," Parsons said, "what was unusual were the complications. The fact of the complications was the unusual aspect."

"To see that in association with diarrhea is not uncommon. But what was uncommon was that it was in a day care center."

Parsons noted that "I feel certain that nothing could have been done to prevent the introduction ... of the diarrhea or to have stopped the spread to other children."

Mrs. Delores Whitehurst, director of the nursery and kindergarten said "all of our parents were aware" of the problem.

"We cooperated completely" with Dr. Parsons and the representatives from the Pitt County Health Department and the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga., who conducted the investigation.

While "they don't really know what the cause of it is," Ms. Whitehurst said "it was nothing we did."

Child's Body Found

BELL ARTHUR — The body of 2-year-old Ervin E. May was found yesterday afternoon in the remains of his family's home which burned here yesterday morning.

Firemen removed three other children from the house, but were unable to reach the 2-year-old. A search for the body of the missing child continued into the afternoon, with firemen from Bell Arthur, Farmville and Red Oak taking part.

The house, located on the unpaved road which parallels the railroad tracks here, was engulfed in flames when firemen arrived about 11:15 a.m. County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner said the two-story structure, owned by George Sutton of Bell Arthur, was a total loss.

The child's mother, Diane May, was taken to Pitt County Memorial Hospital for treatment of emotional trauma. A fireman, Bobby Grissom of the Bell Arthur Fire Department, was treated at the hospital for a wrist injury sustained while fighting the fire.

Flower Arranging Workshop Held For Garden Club Members

A flower arranging workshop was held at the meeting of the Greenville Garden Club held last week at the home of Mrs. R.G. Little.

Mrs. Ted Steig conducted the workshop with members bringing materials needed for the arrangements.

Mrs. Fenner Corbett, president, announced the annual meeting of District 12 will be held in Wilson. A life membership in the Garden Club of North Carolina, Inc. will be presented to Mrs. Lacy McBryde, director for the past two years of the district which is comprised of 20 counties in Eastern North Carolina.

There are two home tours planned by garden clubs in the district. A two-home tour is scheduled for Dec. 9 by the Garden Department of the Wilson Women's Club and a three-home tour by the Dig 'n Delve Garden Club in Greenville will take place Nov. 1.

A letter was read from John Alderman, non-game education and information coordinator for the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission. Programs are available to explain the non-game and endangered wildlife species of the state.

Meeting hostesses were Phoebe Owens, Lila Murphy and Mrs. Uran Cox.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

At this time of year, when pumpkins abound, many cooks bake or steam one fresh from a market or leftover from Halloween decorating.

I like to use freshly cooked pumpkin, cut up or pureed, as an accompaniment to a main dish. But when it comes to certain pumpkin desserts, canned solid-pack pumpkin is my choice because my home-cooked pumpkin never duplicates the flavor and texture of the canned.

This is due, as I understand it, to the fact that canned solid-pack pumpkin is made with varieties of pumpkin not easily available in markets in fresh form.

The following recipe for Pumpkin Oat Cake calls for canned solid-pack pumpkin and, if you try the recipe, I recommend you use just that.

PUMPKIN OAT CAKE

- 3 cups all-purpose flour
 - 3 teaspoons baking powder
 - 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
 - 2 teaspoons pumpkin pie spice
 - 3 large eggs
 - 1 1/2 cups firmly packed light brown sugar
 - 3/4 cup vegetable oil
 - 1/2 cup milk
 - 1 cup canned solid-pack pumpkin
 - 1 1/2 cups quick or regular oats
 - 1/2 cup chopped (medium-fine) walnuts
- Icing, recipe follows
- In a medium bowl stir together flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt, cinnamon and pumpkin pie spice.

In the large bowl of an electric mixer at low speed beat together eggs, sugar, oil, milk and pumpkin until blended. At low speed gradually beat in flour mixture until smooth. Stir in oats and walnuts. Turn into an oiled 12-cup fluted tube pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — about 1 hour. Place on wire rack to cool for about 10 minutes. Loosen edges and turn out of pan onto rack. Cool completely. Drizzle with Icing.

ICING: In a small saucepan over medium heat, heat 2 tablespoons butter, stirring several times, until lightly browned. Off heat, gradually stir in 1 cup confectioners' sugar and 4 to 6 tablespoons milk until smooth and thick enough to drizzle.

Dear Abby

She Doesn't Have Clue To His Mysterious Past

DEAR ABBY: How important is it for a woman to know all about her husband's past? This is the second marriage for both of us. I'm 51 and he's 59, and we're happy as a pair of teen-agers. I've talked and talked about my past, and there is nothing he doesn't know about me.

Hi? He hasn't told me anything. When I ask him to tell me more about himself, he says his past is none of my business. He treats me like a queen and gives me everything I want, but don't you think he should tell me if there's anything I ought to know? After all, I am his wife.

LIVING WITH A MYSTERY MAN

DEAR LIVING: If you're happy and being treated like a queen, don't question his past. As his wife, however, you should be made aware of a few facts: Is he wanted by the police? Does he have any large outstanding debts? Does he have any illegitimate children who might come out of the woodwork and say, "Hi, Dad"? Or worse yet, one or more wives?

If he can answer no to all of the above, cover him up; he might catch pneumonia.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 23-year-old single, attractive guy. People tell me I'm good-looking, but I have a big problem. I'm very shy around women. I can't seem to get up enough courage to say "Hi" to a woman sitting alone in a bar. I guess I need a little push to break the ice. I have met many neat ladies who have introduced themselves to me.

Abby, this is for every woman in the world: Next time you see a guy you think you'd like to know sitting alone at a bar, don't be afraid to go over and say, "Hi, my name is (). What's yours?"

He's probably just as lonely as you are, and it could be the beginning of something wonderful.

LONELY IN MANHASSET, N.Y.

DEAR LONELY: It's worth a try. Even if the guy says, "I'd ask you to join me, but I'm waiting for my wife."

DEAR ABBY: I'm glad you advised a reader not to let one bad experience sour her on the whole human race. "Mary C. of Oklahoma City" said she had returned a suitcase her truck driver husband found on the highway, and instead of being thanked, she was accused of stealing some valuables from a second suitcase lost at the same time!

I want to share an experience that might help to restore Mary C.'s faith in strangers:

Our son and two of his buddies were on a camping trip that took them into the Northwest. (They were 17 at the time.) Our son left his camera on a picnic table at one of the campsites. A young couple who were camping next to the boys returned the camera to us with a note telling us that they had become friendly with our son and his friends, and the last picture on the roll of film was of them—the young couple. Abby, our son and his buddies never returned home. All three were killed in a head-on collision in Oregon. Had it not been for the generosity of the young couple who returned our son's camera, we never would have had that precious roll of film—the last pictures to be taken of our son and his friends.

Needless to say, we wrote to tell this couple how priceless their gift turned out to be.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Lois Briley Receives Honor

Lois Briley was honored by Farm Bureau Board of Directors at their meeting held Tuesday night. She was named outstanding woman in agriculture in the county for 1984.

Her selection was based on her managerial and leadership skills in agriculture. The award was presented by Leroy James, county extension chairman. The N.C. Agricultural Extension Service and the State Farm-City Week Committee co-sponsored the award.

Hubert Garris was named new agency manager of N.C. Farm Bureau Mutual Insurance Co. in Pitt County.

Alma Worthington announced Farm-City Week would be observed Nov. 13-20.

President Jim Galloway announced the state convention will be held Dec. 2-5 in Winston-Salem. Voting delegates will represent Pitt County.

COMPUTERIZED CLIPS

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The burden of saving articles or clippings from medical journals to keep up with medical research is being eased by the use of computers, says a medical publication.

According to Clinical Psychiatry News, computerized data bases or organized around certain key words and cross-referenced are now available to the nation's physicians.

While most doctors claim to have systems for saving or clipping publications, the journal reports, "these systems seldom work and the results are generally piles of clippings, unread and gathering dust."

Physicians with their own home computers and 'modems' that make it possible to tie into the data base by telephone are now able to use the researched data at their convenience, the News says.

Mozart's opera, "The Magic Flute," premiered in Vienna in 1791.

An experimental anesthetic, ether, was used for the first time in 1846 by Dr. William Morton of Boston.

Actor James Dean, star of "Rebel Without a Cause," "East of Eden," and "Giant," was killed in the crash of his sports car in 1955.

COALS TO NEWCASTLE? BIEBER, Calif. (AP) — Using its own wood waste for fuel has enabled a local lumber mill to become completely energy independent, according to a national energy journal. Energy User News reports the mill not only generates its own steam and electricity for plant operations but has enough excess electricity to sell to a West Coast power company. The mill, owned by the Big Valley Lumber Co., uses 'hog' fuel or waste wood — chips, shavings and sawdust — to fuel its main boiler. This produces steam to operate four wood-drying kilns, and a turbine generator that produces electricity 24 hours a day all year long for other plant-power needs.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

Here's proof positive that fashion is a look, not a price. Deep-set dolman sleeves and eyelet striping give this classic crocheted pullover an up-to-the-minute, high style look. Worn by itself or over a turtleneck or blouse, it makes for a dynamic fall or winter look. Using acrylic worsted-weight yarn and a large hook, you can crochet this quick and easy sweater with basic crochet stitches. Beginner-easy directions are for small, medium and large sizes. To obtain directions for making the Crocheted Dolman Sweater, send your request for Leaflet No. CL-1021 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29597. Or you may order Kit No. C-1021 by sending a check or money order for $14.50 to Pat Trexler at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions and smple yarn for small, medium or large sizes. Please specify your choice of winter white, skipper blue, rust, gray, deep turquoise or pale green.

the correct gauge in crochet or knitting is a subject that bears repeating as failure to do so means that you will never have a garment that fits as the designer intended. Every pattern should list the correct gauge and suggested hook or needle sizes. Most people fail to test and see if their gauge matches that of the designer. Sometimes it will happen that you crochet or knit to the same guauge or tension as the designer. But even if this has been your experience in the past, it is not a quarantee that it will always be true. This is the voice of experience speaking as I had to learn this lesson the hard way years ago. The suggestion to make a sample swatch seemed boring and useless to me and I had no problem with the first three sweaters I made. The fourth, however, turned out elephant size! I immediately assumed that the pattern had been wrong and complained to the person who had sold it to me. She carefully checked my gauge and advised me that I had worked to a gauge of 3 1/2 stitches per inch instead of the 4-stitch-per-inch age given on the pattern. I couldn't believe that being off just one-half stitch per inch could make such a difference. But she took out a pencil and paper and proved to me that the 152 stitches I was working on for the body totaled 38 inches at 4 stitches per inch, but resulted in an overall bust measurement of almost 43 1/2 inches at 3 1/2 stitches per inch. To crochet a sample swatch in double crochet intended for a 4-stitch-per-inch gauge, follow these directions: Start with a chain of 18 stitches and work your first double crochet in the fourth chain from the hook. Then work a double crochet in each of the remaining 14 chains. The first three chains will count as one double crochet so you will have a total of 16 double crochets. Sixteen divided by four equals four, so your swatch, when finished, should be exactly 4 inches in width. This sample also has a row gauge of 2 rows per inch. Therefore, working 8 rows should make the piece 4 inches long. Try this with a size H hook using worsted-weight yarn. If your sample square are is smaller than 4 inches squares, you will need a larger hook; if it is larger than this, you will need a smaller hook. Keep experimenting with different hook sizes until you match the listed gauge.

Being aware of this will also allow you to substitute yarns. Perhaps you have some yarn on hand that you would like to use. If you can match the gauge exactly with the substitute yarn and you like the effect, then ahead and use it.

Lessening Tensions

We would "bet the family farm" Konstantin Chernenko is as anxious to end the nuclear arms race as Geraldine Ferraro or Walter Mondale .. or John and Mary Smith of the U.S.A.

Being a practical man he would have to prefer investing in automobiles, freezers, housing, Disneyland, highways and hospitals instead of high tech weaponry.

His interview with a Washington Post reporter didn't tell us that. It was as hard-nosed as any of his predecessors could devise.

Presuming Mr. Chernenko hopes to retire with a pension — and so had little choice but to follow the tenor of past "messages" to the U.S., he had to devise somehow a window for dialogue without losing face.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes may have offered a window, with a familiar reminder that "when the Soviet Union is prepared to move from public exchanges to private negotiations and concrete agreements, they will find us ready."

It's hard to buy the idea Chernenko's interview was timed and designed to influence the elections, though the thought lurks in the background. His advisers who presumably know the pulse of American public opinion as well as we would certainly tell him such a ploy was foredoomed.

We are convinced the Kremlin's chief spokesman prefers a lessening of tensions. His problem (and ours) is how best to safely attain that goal.

Invasion Anniversary

The people of Grenada on Thursday marked the first anniversary of the U.S.-led invasion. It was an occasion for church services and the closing of major businesses.

American intervention came after execution of the island government's prime minister on October 3 and a Peoples Revolutionary Army junta took control. It was leftist oriented and believed to pose a threat to Americans there.

An election is scheduled for Dec. 3, the first since Dec. 7, 1976. It's a promising sign.

The news agency Tass says the invasion of Grenada was "one of the most disgraceful actions of the present."

We could top Tass. "The Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan is the most disgraceful action of the present." Of course, before that, there was Poland, Romania, Czechoslovakia and Hungary. Governments of countries bordering the Soviet Union have reason to keep an apprehensive watch on their neighbor.

Tass also claims U.S. intent to repeat the Grenadian experience against Nicaragua; it's wishful thinking on their part. The difference is vast.

The Tables Were Turned

No one has ever done it before, but I just polled a pollster. She was standing on the street the other day, holding a clipboard.

She stopped me but before she could speak I took out my pad and pencil and asked her, "How old are you?"

Her face reddened. "I don't think that's any of your business."

"I'll be the judge of that. How much money do you make?"

"I'm going to call the police."

"I'm doing a poll on pollsters, and it's your obligation as an American to answer my questions so we know about the people who are polling us. I don't have much time. Are you single, married or divorced?"

"What right do you have to ask me all these questions?"

"The same right you have to ask them of me. I assure you that your responses will be confidential. But I do have to have your name and address in case someone questions the credibility of my poll."

"Will you go away? I have work to do."

"May I inquire as to your religious persuasion? Catholic, Protestant, Jew or other?"

"I'm not going to tell you."

"All right, I'll check 'other.' Would you consider yourself a Republican, Democrat or Independent?"

"I can't reveal that."

"Why not?"

"Because I'm a pollster, and if I told you it might influence your answers to me."

"You're very attractive. Would your mind tell me what your ethnic background is?"

"What difference does that make?"

"I'd like to know how many Italians, how many Irish, and how many Hispanics are polling this election year."

"Why don't you just drop dead?"

"Don't be angry. I'm only doing my job. By the way, I almost forgot to ask you. How many children do you have?"

"I didn't say I was married."

"I'll put down 'living with a guy.' I hate to leave any blanks in my questionnaire. Let's get down to the important question. If the election was held today would you vote for Ronald Reagan, Fritz Mondale or would you like to be listed as undecided?"

"I don't want to be listed as anything. My vote is a private matter and I'm not going to tell some stranger which lever I'm going to pull."

"What don't you like about Reagan?"

"I never said I didn't like Reagan."

"Does that mean you're going to vote for him?"

"You have some nerve to ask me all these questions."

"I'm not asking them for myself. I'm asking them for the American people. I intend to interview 99 more, and then on the basis of my interviews I will be able to project how the millions of pollsters in America will vote on Nov. 6. After all, with so many people polling the electorate this year, the pollster vote could swing the election."

"It's not fair to poll the pollsters," she said. "We have immunity during a campaign."

"Nobody has immunity from being questioned about their political beliefs. That's what decides American elections. One more question. What is a nice girl like you doing on a street like this?"

She swung her clipboard at me, but I ducked in time.

"What are you writing in your notebook?" she demanded.

"None of the above."

Candidates Have Changed Directions

RALEIGH — What a difference a few months will make in a gubernatorial campaign.

Think back to the days before the Democratic primary when the six major candidates were tripping all over themselves bidding up the price of a big teacher pay raise.

Now, just weeks before the general election, the two candidates are tripping all over themselves offering to cut taxes.

This interminable campaign first brought us "Spend, spend, spend," and now encores with "Cut, cut, cut."

The general election contest between Republican Jim Martin and Democrat Rufus Edmisten pits two candidates who have promised big new spending packages for education. They apparently plan to pay for these new expenditures by cutting the state's tax collections.

Martin opened the calls for cuts. For months he's been calling for cuts in the intangibles and inventory taxes promising that economic growth will more than cover any loss in state revenue.

Edmisten has long opposed cutting those taxes saying he hadn't seen any viable way to replace the lost revenue. But, on October 18, Edmisten said the taxes ought to be phased out with revenue lost by local governments replaced somehow or other. This announcement came a day after Edmisten, in a press conference, had criticized Martin's plans for repeal of the taxes saying it would drive up property taxes. Also, prior to the press conference, Edmisten aides had distributed the text of House Speaker Liston Ramsey's recent scathing attack on the Martin tax cut plan.

Martin also has proposed cutting the taxes on food and over-the-counter drugs for senior citizens. Coming into the last weeks of the campaign, still trailing in the polls, he expanded his proposal. He's now promising to seek repeal of those taxes for all citizens. Martin says that growth in the economy will make up for the loss of revenues and for the added expenditures of his education plans.

The food tax raises $150 million, the tax on drugs raises $20 million, the intangibles tax $80 million and the inventory tax $183 million, annually. Martin proposes to phase these cuts in over four years.

Now these candidates may very well be able to sit down with their calculators and pencils and project revenues for the next four years and show how they can present a balanced budget to the legislature. But there are several factors to consider before you start spending your tax cut or, if you're a teacher, your pay raise.

First, growth will be down in percentage terms over the next four years because inflation is down. Most growth will be real and that leaves the legislature with less new money to spend.

Second, these plans appear to ignore the fact that there are other priorities in the state. Medical care for the indigent is a fast growing budget item and the state still has a real infrastructure problem.

Third, to push their new proposals, either candidate, as governor, will have to ally himself with his adversaries and oppose his allies. Martin would have to line up with liberal legislators who've sought repeal of the food tax and try to defeat conservatives who think the food tax serves a good purpose. Edmisten would have to line up with business to cut the inventory and intangibles taxes and oppose the teachers lobby which feels threatened by such cuts.

Get out the salt and shake a few grains over the campaign news.

Paul O'Connor

Correction

Tuesday's column on the lieutenant governor's race contained a serious error of fact.

John Carrington, the Republican candidate, has criticized his Democratic opponent Sen. Bob Jordan for voting against the Child Protection Act of 1983. Jordan says he did so because he considered the bill unconstitutional.

In reporting on that vote, this reporter obtained the wrong version of the Child Protection Act, a version that was amended in committee before Jordan ever voted on it. By doing so, the ramifications of the bill were seriously misstated.

I apologize to Mr. Carrington for misstating his position on this issue and I apologize to my readers for confusing a very important issue.

Public Forum

To the editor:

The recent campaign advertisements criticizing Jim Martin's Congressional voting record are simply another example of the Rufus Edmisten campaign's attempting to distort the Jim Martin record.

The Edmisten campaign criticizes Jim Martin for a vote on H.B. 3809 regarding Hazardous Waste Disposal. If the Edmisten campaign disclosed all the facts, one would discover that all 11 North Carolina Congressmen voted the same way. I assume that Mr. Edmisten must believe that the entire North Carolina Congressional delegation, with a large majority of Democrats, voted wrong.

The Edmisten campaign also criticizes Jim Martin for a vote cast on the "Meals on Wheels" program. Again, if the Edmisten campaign disclosed all the facts, it would be discovered that Jim Martin voted to maintain an annual funding increase of seven percent for the program. What Mr. Edmisten claims Jim Martin voted against was an amendment to increase spending in the program by 23 percent. Jim Martin will not apologize for votes to reduce federal spending. Since Mr. Edmisten criticizes Jim Martin's votes against this 23 percent increase, I suppose if Mr. Edmisten had been in Congress, he would have voted with the other Tip O'Neill liberals for this budget-busting amendment.

Strength For Today

Many years ago Dr. Frank Laubach, a teaching missionary, became convinced that illiteracy was the greatest problem confronting the primitive people he came to help. Over a period of years he worked out a system by which he could teach illiterate adults to read. Incredible as it seems, he used this system in languages which he himself was almost entirely unfamiliar save for a little nest of key words. He developed a series of symbols and pictures by which people who did not know one letter of their language from another learned to read in a few months.

Laubach chose as a slogan for his method, "Let each one teach one." The promise to do so was the cost of the course.

For a man who taught hundreds of people to read, the statement from Daniel (12:3) certainly applies: "They that be wise (or are teachers) shall shine as the brightness of the firmament."

Price Cut Eyed On Canadian Oil

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil price-cutting has spread to Canada, where the National Energy Board has recommended chopping $1.33 from the price of each barrel of its top-grade light oil sold to the United States.
 The price cut will take effect Nov. 1, unless it is overruled by Canada's Cabinet. It follows similar price reductions for light oil last week by Norway, Britain and Nigeria.
 Analysts said that while only a small amount of oil would be affected by Canada's reductions, the move puts more pressure on the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, which has scheduled an emergency meeting Monday to try to defend its official prices.

 The Canadian cut "is an indication of the flow of events," said Paul Mlotok, an analyst who follows the international oil industry for the New York investment firm of Salomon Brothers Inc. "It tells me that OPEC is more and more on its own ... OPEC is not going to get much help elsewhere."
 Shiek Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the oil minister of Saudi Arabia — OPEC's top producer — has been trying to rally support.

Show Features World Walkers

WASHINGTON, N. C. — Two world walkers and a doctor who attended a nuclear conference in Russia are among guests to appear on Kay Currie's Hospitality House show over WITN-TV, Channel 7, Washington, on Saturday.
 The weekly program is airing from 1:30 to 2 p.m. this week, and will open with a brief segment on Halloween masks.
 Dr. Candace Corson, Littleton native, will show slides of her recent trip to Leningrad, Russia. She attended nuclear peace conferences in Russia and in Finland recently.
 Two long-distance walkers in the Walk of the People Pilgrimage for Life will discuss the status of their trip to date. The two began their walk in California in March and arrived in Rocky Mount on Wednesday. One is Andy Rector, a social worker formerly of Greenville. Rector is legally blind. The other walker is Adele Kushner of Atlanta, an employee of the Fulton County Health Department. From here they will walk to Washington, D.C., to the United Nations in New York, then fly to Ireland, where they will begin the second leg of their world walk. They expect to arrive in Moscow sometime during 1985.
 A segment taped by Miss Currie in Los Angeles features NBC actress Heather Locklear, who can be seen in a TV movie on NBC Sunday night.

Special dashboard permits and license plates for handicapped parking can be purchased at the State License Agency, 718 Dickinson Avenue, or call 758-1193 for information.

Workshop

Twenty first and second grade students at Sadie Sautter School have been participating in a writer's workshop with Ms. Dale DeForage.

The students are learning how books are published and written. They are also writing their own biographies. The workshop, which will continue until December, is sponsored by the city school's Triad Enrichment Program.

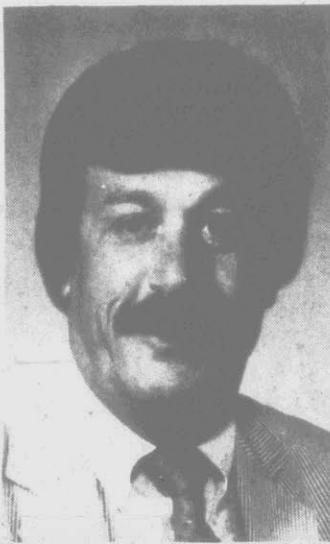

Named To Board

Dr. James G. Jones of Greenville was elected recently to a three-year term on the board of directors of the American Academy of Family Physicians, a national organization for family doctors representing more than 57,000 family physicians and medical students.

Jones, who was elected during the annual meeting of AAFP's Congress of Delegates, has been a delegate from North Carolina since 1974. A graduate of the Bowman Gray School of Medicine in Winston-Salem, Jones founded the department of family medicine at the East Carolina University School of Medicine. He is currently professor and chairman of that department.

Jones is an AAFP fellow and a diplomate of the American Board of Family Practice. He is also a member of the Society of Teachers of Family Medicine, the Association of American Indian Physicians and the American Medical Association.

AAFP is the largest medical specialty society in the nation.

Marijuana Charge

Greenville police arrested Linwood Jerome Williams, 17, of 1307 Allen St., Thursday on possession of marijuana charges.

Officer P.W. Scheutzwow said Williams was charged after his vehicle was stopped on Cotanche Street about 1:10 a.m.

Break-Ins

Police are continuing their investigation of two break-ins reported to the department Thursday.

Officer D.R. Best said $600 in quarters was reported taken from 617 Albemarle Ave. by thieves who entered to the building through a door.

According to Officer M.J. Nobles, cable television hook-up boxes for Home Box Office and Showtime were taken from 1301 Cotanche St. by thieves who gained entrance to the home through a window.

Waters Rally

A rally for Maynard Waters, Republican candidate for N.C. Senate, was held Thursday night at the American Legion Building.

Waters spoke to those attending and said farmers need alternative crops to tobacco and better markets for produce and livestock. He added that he is a farmer and is not just pretending to be one to gain votes.

A catered meal was served and singing was provided by Kay Waters and Treva Tankard. Herb Lee, Nita Raspberry and Randy Doub spoke on behalf of their respective campaigns and candidates (Reagan, Lee, Helms and Martin) and thanked those attending for their support of the Republican Party.

Professor Honored

Thadys J. Dewar, a professor of business education and administrative services in the East Carolina University School of Technology, has been named 1984 Member-of-the-Year by the North Carolina Business Education Association (NCBEA).

Recipients of the award are selected on the basis of classroom performance, leadership in professional organizations, professional growth and performance, and participation in civic and cultural activities.

Mrs. Dewar has served as both chairperson and vice-chairperson of the N.C. Business Teacher Educators, a division of NCBEA. She is currently chairperson of the NCBEA elections committee and a member of its board of directors. Her leadership positions in the past years include president of the N.C. Business Education Council and president of the Business Education Department of the N.C. Education Association (now NCBEA).

A faculty advisor to the ECU chapter of Pi Omega Pi business teacher education honor society, Mrs. Dewar was honored with the society's Distinguished Service Award at a national convention in 1982.

Mrs. Dewar is married to Sam Davis Dewar, a retired agriculture teacher. They reside in Bethel, where she is active on the Bethel Library Board of Trustees and Bethel United Methodist Church.

Workshop

A workshop on small business innovation grants will be held Oct. 31 at Martin Community Community in Williamston.

The workshop is designed to assist small businesses in obtaining grants of up to $50,000 to support innovative business ventures. It is sponsored by the Technological Development Authority and the Board of Science and Technology in the Office of the Governor, and the N.C. Department of Commerce.

George Wood and Jose Fegundo, businessmen from northeastern North Carolina, will be the guest speakers. The workshop is scheduled to run from 8:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. at the college's administration building. Participation is limited to 50 persons.

A $10 registration fee covers lunch and conference materials. For reservations call Janice Faulkner at the Regional Development Institute at East Carolina University in Greenville, 757-6650.

Graduates

Julia C. "Jill" Allen, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Allen Jr. of Greenville, graduated from Meredith College in Raleigh this summer with a B.S. degree in business administration.

Public Forum

Three North Carolina journalists will be panelists at the second in a series of public forums on the 1984 elections at East Carolina University. The program, set for Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., will be held in the Willis Building and is open to the public. The Willis Building is located at the corner of First and Reade streets.

Panelists will include Jack Claiborne, associate editor of the Charlotte Observer; John Alexander, editorial page editor of the Greensboro Daily News; and Eddie Yandle, political reporter for the Fayetteville Observer. Dr. Mary Jo Bratton of the ECU history faculty will be forum moderator.

Panelists' remarks will be followed by an open discussion session during which time they will answer questions and respond to comments from members of the audience.

The forum is co-sponsored by the ECU departments of history and political science, with funding from the N.C. Humanities Committee and the National Endowment for the Humanities.

A third program, the final one in the current series, is scheduled for Nov. 15 and will focus on the results of 1984 elections.

New Office Design

A brighter, cleaner and more functional layout for the Pitt County United Way's downtown Greenville offices has been created by a class of East Carolina University environmental design students on the look-out for public service projects that test their design skills.

Project leader Mindy Machanic explained that the students worked within a very small budget to present a whole new office layout complete with selections of colors for re-upholstery, blinds, wallcovering and new elements such as shelves and artwork. Ms. Machanic is an environmental design professor at ECU.

Students recently presented the United Way staff with their plans including interior renderings, color and finish samples and budget proposals. Mrs. Lou Walker, United Way executive director, commended the students for their work.

Rate Increase

FARMVILLE — Farmville residential electric power consumers will pay 4.38 percent more for electricity than they have in the past, once a new rate schedule approved by town commissioners this week goes into effect with the October bills to be delivered Nov. 1.

A consumer using 1,000 kwh a month will pay $73.14 for the amount of power which cost him $70.70 last month. Utilities Director J.A. Wooten Jr. said the new residential rates will allow the town to recoup $127,959, the amount the wholesale cost is supposed to increase in the next 12 months. The town has previously absorbed large portions of power cost increases, but is unable to do so this time without upsetting the budget, the commissioners said.

Other increases include 4.12 percent to small general business users, 4.51 percent to public housing, 4.86 percent to wholesale customers like the Town of Fountain, 9.14 percent to seasonal users like tobacco warehouses and bulk barn operators, and 4.74 percent to large users.

Luncheon

The Town and Country Senior Thanksgiving luncheon will be held Thursday at 11:30 a.m. Reservations for the Dec. 5

Christmas luncheon must be made by the Nov. 15 meeting. Members were reminded to bring gifts for Operation Santa Claus.

Reports on the New Orleans trip were given by Louis Jordan, Ropsy Baker, Oleva Zahnisen, Grace Hill, Reba Cannon and Pauline Spain.

The regular meetings have been changed from 11:30 a.m. to 9 a.m. Luncheon meetings will remain at 11:30 a.m.

Request Granted

Capt. D.R. Bullock of the Greenville Police Department has approved the request of Belk-Tyler to hold a road race Saturday at 9 a.m. to raise money for the continued operation of the Boys Club of Pitt County.

Permission has also been given to the Simpson Extension Homemakers to solicit funds for repairs to the Simpson Community Building.

Museum Visit

Students in Brenda Highsmith's third grade class at Eastern Elementary School visited the Greenville Museum of Art on Tuesday, Oct. 23.

The visit was an outgrowth of an enrichment activity. At the museum, students viewed works of art for line, shape and color.

Meet Called Off

The Winterville Masonic Lodge No. 232 will not have a communication tonight. Members are to meet at the Lodge Hall by 6 p.m. to attend the annual district meeting to be held at the Solid Rock Masonic Lodge in Everetts at 7 p.m.

Attend Session

WINTERVILLE — The staff of chiropractic physician Dr. Steven I. Cohen recently attended post-graduate educational sessions at the 71st annual convention of the Florida Chiropractic Association in Orlando, Fla.

The three-day session offered 18 hours of continuing education credit for doctors of chiropractic, 12 hours of credit toward chiropractic assistant certification and a 12 hour radiologic technologist license renewal program.

Pitt-Greenville Crime Stoppers program, said Ms. Carmon was taken into custody as a result of information received by Crime Stopper. A reward will be paid to the caller.

Detention Center

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A 12-year-old girl found guilty of "recklessly" shooting her best friend to death with a shotgun has been sent to a youth detention center, where she could stay until her 18th birthday.

Defense attorney Harold Ray filed notice of appeal immediately after Juvenile Court Judge Scott Moore ordered the sentence Thursday for Patricia Dempsey, who contends the slaying of 11-year-old Kerry Thomas was an accident.

The Texas Youth Commission, which operates the detention centers, will have discretion over Patricia's release. Moore could have sent her to a private youth home or psychiatric institution.

Worthless Checks Charged

Greenville police Thursday arrested Barbara Jean Hester Carmon, 29, of 905 Imperial St. on charges of obtaining goods with worthless checks.

Sgt. Doug Jackson said Ms. Carmon faces about 25 charges involving some $3,000 at the present time. But he said additional charges could be made, with the total amount involved reaching as high as $5,000.

Jackson said the checks have been passed "all over eastern North Carolina," and merchants holding returned checks on the woman should contact the police department.

NGUYEN CAO KY

Former Vietnamese Official Is Accused

By RICK HAMPSON
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Former Vietnamese Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky, described to the President's Commission on Organized Crime as head of a crime network, called the charge ridiculous and said, "I'm not involved in anything."

Ky said Thursday he had not been subpoenaed, but "if the commission wants me, I am ready."

A hooded witness who identified himself as an "assistant boss" in one of the gangs comprising the extortion, robbery and marijuana-smuggling network testified Thursday that among Vietnamese, "everyone knows" Ky heads it.

He said the ostensibly anti-communist organization committed crimes to raise money for "the jungle war in Vietnam." Below Ky, he said, are four or five former South Vietnamese generals who supervise 15 "state bosses" and a nationwide membership of about 1,000, organized in cells of 30 to 40 members.

"Go to the police, sheriffs or FBI, they can tell you I'm not involved in anything," Ky told The Associated Press in a telephone interview from southern California. "My first reaction is shock. It is ridiculous."

Asked why the witness might have lied, Ky said: "I don't know. I frankly don't know. You know, in my position, there are people who don't like me."

The witness, testifying in the third day of commission hearings into the rise of Asian-American organized crime groups, said the organization is made up of four major gangs: the Black Eagles in San Francisco, Fishermen in Houston, Eagles Seven in Chicago and Frogmen in Los Angeles and Orange County, Calif.

The commission staff said Vietnamese criminal extortion groups were active in California, Texas, Washington, Colorado, Alabama, Florida, Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, Oregon, Louisiana, Virginia and Hawaii.

Law enforcement authorities who also testified Thursday seemed neither surprised nor persuaded by the testimony regarding Ky.

"I had several disagreements with that witness," said police Officer Robert Casey of Houston. "For one, I've never heard of the Fishermen gang."

"I had heard stories" about Ky, said New Orleans police Sgt. John Willoughby. "We have no indication there is a boss of bosses over these groups."

Commission spokesman Arthur

Brill said anyone named at a commission hearing has the right to file a statement with the panel or testify before it.

"Ten years I have been here," Ky said. "Law enforcement never contact me for anything concerning crime."

Ky, 54, held a news conference earlier this year responding to articles by columnist Jack Anderson linking him to groups of Vietnamese extortionists who prey on southern California businesses.

Ky characterized Anderson's articles as "misleading and libelous."

In March, CBS News' "60 Minutes" program reported that a U.S. Customs Service investigation of Ky "concluded that not only is Ky not a leader of organized crime but that there is no one Mafia-type organization (in) the Vietnamese refugee community."

The Orange County, Calif., district attorney's office told CBS reports of Ky's organized crime role were "raw intelligence and grossly unconfirmed."

"All the Vietnamese we talked with agreed that though Ky is at times foolish and flamboyant, he is (not) a gangster," the report said.

Mitterand Jokes About Explosives Incident At Ambassador's Residence

By DAVID MASON
Chief European Correspondent
LONDON (AP) — With a joke and a compliment, French President Francois Mitterand tried today to end a squabble that overshadowed his state visit when a French bomb expert planted explosives to test British security.

Mitterand said he didn't think the French security man who planted a half-pound of unarmed explosives at the French ambassador's residence Tuesday had "any intention of blowing up the French ambassador or the president of the Republic of France."

And, said Mitterand, Ambassador Emmanuel de Mangerie's request that the British police search his garden for explosives before a reception Tuesday night demonstrated

"the confidence we have in the British police."

The affair was a major topic at a news conference that ended Mitterand's four-day visit to Britain. At the news conference, French reporters sang "Happy Birthday" to Mitterand, who turned 68 today.

The French president said he thought the explosives incident had been overblown but had not marred his trip. He said the lesson learned was: "To avoid any misunderstandings of this sort, the right thing to do is to conform strictly to the regulations of the country involved."

Mitterand also defended the bomb disposal expert who travels with him, saying: "We have every confidence in the good intentions of this sapper because this is his job." French officials say the bomb disposal expert always carries a small amount of explosives to blow up any bombs that might be found. Other French officials in Paris said the explosives are carried to give bomb-sniffing dogs a whiff of what they're looking for.

British police dogs brought to the French ambassador's residence Tuesday found the explosives within minutes, hidden under bushes near a tent in the garden where Mitterand was to host a reception later in the day.

On Wednesday, Scotland Yard detectives went to the Grosvenor House Hotel where they said they found more explosives in the room of a French security man. He went with them to the central police station and made a statement and was allowed to leave with a French Embassy official.

British officials, still reeling from the Oct. 12 IRA attempt to blow up Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and her Cabinet at the Conservative Party conference in Brighton, bitterly condemned the French action and demanded an inquiry.

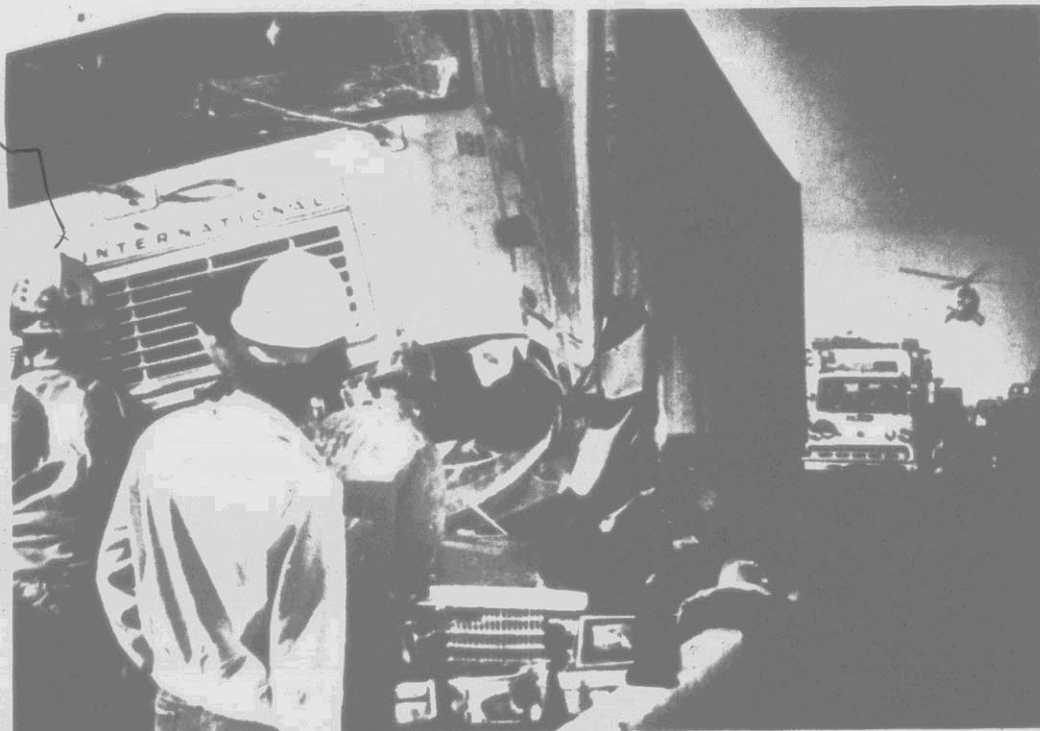

Mrs. Thatcher tried to play down the "most regrettable incident," which she blamed on an "overzealous, very low-level official."

But she also told the House of Commons on Wednesday, "These are matters of the most serious concern. Explosive materials were brought into this country. Urgent discussions have begun and will continue with the French government about this incident."

Mitterand said an inquiry was being conducted, "but one must keep a sense of proportion, and I believe a sense of proportion is a British quality. At any rate I would like to hope so."

He told reporters, "An inquiry is needed, but not an international one. ... What more do you want me to say?"

These officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity, had said it was the British police who asked the French to plant the explosives in order to test the police dogs.

GOVERNOR

In the 12 years he's been in Congress, Jim Martin has been a consistent friend of agriculture.

One agriculture group cited him as having an outstanding voting record when it came to matters that mean most to farmers.

Part of that voting record has been to stand up for tobacco and other matters of special interest in North Carolina. Like the jetties at Oregon Inlet, a vote where Jim Martin worked hard and gets a lot of credit for its passage.

real 'special' is quiet dignity.

There's no known way you can make decisions about what's going to happen to you after you've passed away. Which explains the need for 'pre-need' decisions about what you want for yourself and your family.

But, these matters are seldom discussed. And most people are so uninformed about what's available and what transpires, that it's difficult for them to make a well-advised decision.

So, it's smart to find out just a little about the subject; the better — and the easier — to suit your wants and needs when the time comes.

Is a bargain a bargain? Chances are, you'll soon be approached by people selling 'pre-need' cemetery plots. And as professionals with 26 years in these matters, we at S.G. Wilkerson & Son's Pinewood Memorial Park have nothing at all against buying 'pre-need' grave sites. In fact, it's a good idea. But in order to make an informed decision, find out if a bargain's a bargain.

Other ads in this series will explain the meaning of, and requirements for, 'Perpetual Care' cemeteries. But, there are other things to consider. For example, a 'pre-need' grave site might be a good idea. But we at Pinewood Memorial Park can think of no really good way to store a 'pre-need' vault over the years. And what about 'pre-need' markers? Is everything included? Or will there be added costs?

It may well be that Pinewood Memorial Park, maintained carefully by the Wilkerson family for more than 25 years, costs less, not more, than unknown quantities or "package deals." Make an informed decision. We at Pinewood Memorial Park would like to explain more. Because, as professionals, we'd like for you and your family to make an informed decision about these matters.

And we won't pressure you to deal with us. We've been in this business for many, many years. And we'll be in it for many more. We'll respect your decision.

But, if you have questions, we'd like to answer them.

Helms, Hunt Trade Barbs

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

The harder Sen. Jesse Helms tries to disassociate his campaign from the Federal Election Commission controversy, the harder Gov. Jim Hunt tries to link him to it, accusing him of a coverup.

Hunt said Thursday his Republican opponent's "frantic legal maneuvering" to block completion of an FEC probe of the National Congressional Club and Jefferson Marketing showed he had "something to hide."

Helms responded, "It doesn't involve me. It doesn't involve my campaign."

A federal appeals court ruling Wednesday lifted a judge's order that the investigation be finished before the Nov. 6 election.

The ruling "may have been a victory for Senator Helms, a victory for delay, stonewalling and covering up the truth but it was a clear loss for fair elections and the public's right to know," Hunt said.

Helms said Hunt, a Democrat, was trying to divert attention from questions surrounding his use of state aircraft for political travels.

Also Thursday, Helms announced that 22 U.S. ambassadors endorsed his re-election bid.

Helms' views are "respected as much as anyone in Washington," said J. William Middendorf, ambassador to the Organization of American States, in a news conference.

Campaigning in Burlington, Helms stressed the need for "ballot protection," telling a crowd that he and his supporters "have no intention of winning this election and having it stolen from us."

Helms also accused Hunt of doing anything to get his supporters to the polls November sixth.

In Asheville a group of 13 educators said Helms had consistently voted against necessary school programs, while Hunt has supported funding education.

Hunt, who has charged that Helms has done little to help tobacco farmers as chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, urged the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp. to adopt his plan to reduce stocks.

In the gubernatorial race, U.S. Rep. Jim Martin addressed about 800 members of the Health Insurance Institute. The Republican candidate called for meetings between doctors, insurers and attorneys to stem growing medical malpractice lawsuits.

Meanwhile, Martin campaign manager Jack Hawke released a statement signed by nearly 40 campaign officials denying involvement with a letter alluding to Edmisten's "boozing and womanizing."

"All I can do to stop it is to condemn it regardless of who it comes from," said Martin, saying he didn't know who wrote it.

In Charlotte, Democratic candidate Rufus Edmisten said Martin's plan to repeal the intangibles and inventory taxes and the sales levies on food and some drugs was "ultraliberal, wild and off-the-wall."

The attorney general said he would consider a gradual repeal of the taxes if they could be replaced without burdening local governments with higher property taxes.

State House Speaker Ligon Ramsey reiterated his opposition to Martin's plans in a Raleigh news conference.

ROME (AP) — The vice consul of the United Arab Emirates was seriously wounded in the head and an Iranian woman companion killed early today when at least five shots were fired at the diplomat's car, police reported.

The diplomat, identified by the Italian news agency ANSA as Mohammad Al-Sowaidi, 27, underwent a five-hour operation for removal of a bullet from his head at San Camillo Hospital and was listed in "guarded" condition.

A man picked up at the scene of the shooting was placed under arrest after interrogation, said a police spokesman, who spoke only on condition he not be identified. The suspect was identified as a 22-year-old Jordanian who had checked into a fashionable hotel several days ago.

ANSA gave the Jordanian's name as Jihad Mohammad Othman and said police found an air ticket for Saturday in his hotel room.

Police said they found a Czech-made pistol in the bushes near the shooting scene as well as five spent cartridges.

Police said the shooting occurred on the Via Cassia when the diplomat slowed his Fiat down to make a turn toward his home. He was hit once in the head while the Iranian woman, a 23-year-old university student, was struck by three bullets and killed instantly.

ANSA identified the woman as Noushine Montasseri.

Arrests, Demonstrations On Grenada Anniversary

By The Associated Press

Dozens of people were arrested at demonstrations held around the country to protest U.S. policy in Central America and the invasion of Grenada, but the invasion also was praised on its first anniversary.

At least one group planned a rally supporting the invasion for today, to follow the demonstrations Thursday.

Also on Thursday, medical students who were on the Caribbean island during the invasion praised the Army Rangers who rescued them Oct. 25, 1983 from the Marxist government that U.S. officials said threatened regional stability.

In the four days of fighting that followed, 44 Grenadians, 24 Cubans and 20 Americans were killed.

Twenty-one people, including the Rev. Daniel Berrigan, were arrested in Washington Thursday after blocking a White House gate while protesting the invasion. About 100 people took part in a similar rally at the city's American University, while others gathered for a pro-invasion rally at Farragut Square, near the White House.

Several students pushed through the small crowd at American University, cracking jokes about the gathering and denouncing it as a "commie rally." A few others, members of the Young Americans for Freedom, stopped by to argue with the organizers and to talk up their pro-Grenada rally, set for today.

"Today the enemy is having their say," said Mark Hart, 24, a graduate student in religious studies and a YAF member. "Tomorrow, we will have our say."

About 200 anti-war protesters carried signs and banners and chanted anti-Reagan slogans at Fort Lewis, Wash., and 36 demonstrators were arrested when they blocked traffic to the base, which is home to the 2nd Battalion, 75th Infantry Division Rangers who participated in the invasion.

Fort Lewis spokeswoman June Worthington said 33 of the arrested protesters were cited for obstructing traffic and failure to disperse. The remaining three were cited for "entering the base for illegal reasons," to dispense literature, she said. All 36 were released by mid-afternoon.

In San Francisco, 20 protesters were arrested after refusing to leave the office of Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., who has generally favored the Reagan administration's position in Central America.

The protesters were cited for refusing to obey a lawful order of a U.S. officer and for disturbing the peace, said Stuart Crouse, district commander of the Federal Protective Service. Those who showed proper identification were released immediately.

MAGNAVOX
America's best kept secret.

Most people aren't aware that Magnavox makes anything as technologically advanced as the Total Audio Component System. Yet it's one of the most sophisticated, complete music systems ever assembled. The only one with total remote control.

Here's how these exquisite components stack up: Compact Disc. From a recording sealed in an almost indestructible 5" disc, a laser beam transmits the purest, most accurate sound ever. Music takes on the emotional intensity of a live-performance. Turntable. Microcomputer controlled, fully automatic with linear tracking. Tuner. Digital synthesized with 8AM and 8FM random pre-sets. Cassette Tape Deck. Full record, playback and auto reverse. Amplifier 100 watts per channel at .05% THD, 20Hz-20kHz at 8 ohms. Speakers. Two 12" woofers, two 5" mid range, two 3" tweeters.

Now that you know us better, maybe next time you see a Magnavox, instead of saying "who?" you'll say "hello."

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market opened lower today, extending a decline in the previous session, despite an announcement by one of the nation's major banks that it planned to lower its prime lending rate.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 4.64 at 1,206.38 after the first half-hour of trading. Declines took an early 3 to 1 lead over advances on the New York Stock Exchange.

Shortly after the market opened, Morgan Guaranty announced it would cut its prime, or base, lending rate by one-half percentage point to 12 percent, effective Monday.

The reduction would be the second by a major bank in 10 days, and follows declines in other money-market rates. The federal funds rate, or the rate charged on loans between banks, has been trading below 10 percent in recent days, down more than 1 1/4 percentage points from late August.

But there are some economists who feel that the recent decline in rates is only temporary and that credit demands by the federal government and businesses will send rates higher later this year.

After the stock market closed Thursday, the Federal Reserve Board reported a $1.8 billion increase in the basic money supply in mid-October. That was a slightly larger increase than had been expected, and the credit markets extended their price losses for the day in the wake of the report.

In the early going today, American Telephone & Telegraph fell 1/4 to 18 3/4. International Business Machines was down 1 at 124 1/4 and General Motors was down 1/4 at 78 1/2.

On Thursday the Dow Jones industrials dropped 5.41 to 1,211.02. Declines outpaced advances by more than 3 to 2 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 92.76 million shares, against 91.62 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index fell 47 to 95.93. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .01 at 210.40.

Network Growing

NEW YORK (AP) — The Yakuza, a network of Japanese crime societies whose members wear tattoos to show loyalty and cut off their fingers to atone for mistakes, has expanded into the United States, a presidential commission was told Wednesday.

A hooded, unidentified Japanese man, described as the first member of the Yakuza to testify in this country, told the President's Commission on Organized Crime of the Yakuza's operations in Japan, and a panel of law enforcers described its small but growing presence in this nation.

Yakuza members have been reported in Hawaii, California, Nevada, Colorado and may be in New York City, said James Harmon, commission director.

"They're proceeding cautiously," he added.

"Yakuza are here, not yet in great numbers, but clearly here," said Stanley Hunterton, a commission lawyer.

The hooded witness, displaying a shortened pinky finger from behind the screen where he was sitting, said through an interpreter that he had cut off the top third of the finger "as a sign of repentance for a mistake I had made." He did not say what mistake.

The severed digit, he said, usually is "placed in a small bottle of alcohol with your name on it" and "sent to whoever you're repenting to."

tempt to stop social unrest in the pope's native Poland.

When asked by a reporter whether the Soviet Union was behind the indicted Bulgarians, Martella said: "I have not addressed that issue. It was not part of my job."

Bulgaria denies the allegations, saying they are part of a plot by Western intelligence agencies to smear the Soviet bloc.

Martella said the Bulgarians indicted were Sergei Ivanov Antonov, 36, former Rome station manager of the Bulgarian state airline and the only one of the three held in Italy; Todor Aivazov, 40, former cashier at the Bulgarian Embassy in Rome; and Maj. Zhelyo Kolev Vassilev, 42, former aide to the military attache at the Bulgarian Embassy in Rome.

The Turks named in the indictment were Celik, 25; Bekir Celik, 49, a reputed head of the Turkish Mafia who is in custody in Bulgaria; and Omer Bagci, 38, and Musa Serdar Celebi, 32, both held in Italian prisons.

No trial date was set.

The indictment said the two Bulgarian Embassy employees had promised to provide a truck with a diplomatic seal to sneak Agca and Celik out of Italy, and that Antonov was waiting with a car outside St. Peter's Square to help Celik and Agca escape.

Celik was accused of offering to pay to Agca, Celebi and Celik for their part in carrying out the assassination; and Bagci was charged with giving Agca the Browning pistol he used in the attack.

Martella said that, because of lack of evidence, he dropped charges against the Bulgarians for a reported plot to assassinate Polish Solidarity leader Lech Walesa during his visit to Rome in January 1981. Those charges had been brought based on Agca's testimony.

Martella said the indictments were based mainly on circumstantial evidence and Agca's testimony. However, he said Agca gave a great deal of precise information about the Bulgarians, including their physical descriptions, places and timings of their meetings and personal habits.

Alibis supplied by the Bulgarians, who have proclaimed their innocence and claimed they never met Agca, were inconsistent, he said.

The Italian prosecutor, Antonio Albano, recommended in May that all seven men be charged with aiding Agca. However, the final decision rested with Martella.

Antonov was arrested and jailed Nov. 25, 1982, but later was released to house arrest reportedly because of ill health. He remains under heavy guard at a Rome apartment.

Albano was assigned to review 25,000 pages of evidence gathered by Martella and make non-binding recommendations to him. Under Italian law, Martella had powers similar to both a prosecuting attorney and a grand jury. He could issue arrest warrants, conduct the inquiry and decide on indictments.

He was obliged to present his findings to a prosecutor for a non-binding recommendation.

Agca, in a meeting with reporters last year, said the Soviet KGB was behind the plot against the pope. At that time, he named his alleged Bulgarian co-conspirators.

Albano said most of the case was built on testimony by Agca, who first claimed he acted alone but later decided to talk to investigators after he was sentenced to life imprisonment. However, Albano admitted Agca has not always told the truth.

According to Albano's report, Celik helped Agca escape from a military prison in Turkey in 1979, later met Agca in Bulgaria and several other European countries, and was supposed to have set off a panic bomb to help Agca escape from St. Peter's Square.

Martella noted that Bulgaria, as well as Turkey, claimed to have conducted their own investigations.

Researchers Pinpoint Hepatitis Culprit

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time, scientists have identified the virus that causes a major type of hepatitis, a significant step in the battle to check the infectious liver disease.

Government researchers said the virus causes so-called non-A, non-B hepatitis, which has become the main form of the disease transmitted through blood transfusions. The findings should lead to a screening test to identify contaminated blood supplies and eventually could lead to finding a preventive vaccine, as are available for other forms of hepatitis.

Researchers from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and the National Institutes of Health said the viral agent is a retrovirus, one of a family of viruses that is increasingly being implicated in a number of human diseases.

Along with various animal diseases, members of this family cause a number of human diseases, including rare forms of cancer and acquired immune deficiency syndrome — AIDS.

In a report published today in the Oct. 27 issue of The Lancet, a British medical journal, researchers say they found evidence of the non-A, non-B hepatitis virus in human serum specimen from people known to have the disease and in two samples of plasma-derived blood products.

Dr. Robert J. Gerety of the FDA said in an interview that in all cases, the researchers detected an enzyme called reverse transcriptase in the samples. This enzyme is necessary for retroviruses to duplicate and is a strong indication of their presence, he added.

Gerety said the researchers also saw the actual virus in other tests and that it looks like a retrovirus, and not those that cause other kinds of hepatitis.

Non-A, non-B hepatitis accounts for 90 percent of the hepatitis transmitted through transfusions of blood and blood products. This type also is responsible for about 110,000 cases annually, or about 40 percent of all hepatitis cases in the United States.

Because the hepatitis and AIDS viruses are in the same family, he said, researchers working on both diseases are exchanging information on the germs.

There is no test for the agent causing this disease and the only way doctors diagnose it is by testing for and excluding all other causes of hepatitis.

Earthquake

LOS OLIVOS, Calif. (AP) — A moderate earthquake rocked a 50-mile area from Santa Maria to Santa Barbara, shattered more than 150 bottles at a winery and knocked a woman from bed, but no injuries were reported, authorities said.

The 3:36 a.m. quake Thursday also was felt at President Reagan's ranch about 10 miles from here, said assistant foreman Karl Mull, adding, "I slept through it. The Secret Service notified me."

The quake measured 4.7 on the Richter scale, a measure of ground motion recorded on seismographs.

FOCUS

Riding The Rails

Passengers on New York's first subway system, which opened on October 27, 1904, rode what looked more like roller-coaster cars than the modern electrified trains. New York's subway is now the most extensive in the world — with 462 stations, 231 miles of track, and 3,000 police officers protecting 1.1 billion passengers a year. A person can catch a subway train in New Jersey and travel beneath the Hudson and East Rivers to Long Island without once seeing daylight.

DO YOU KNOW — Which European city built the world's first subway system?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Pablo Picasso was born in Malaga, Spain.

Area Church News

Debt Paid

St. James' United Methodist Church, 2000 E. Sixth St., will celebrate full payment of its building debt with a dedication service Sunday by Bishop Carlton P. Minnick and the Rev. J.B. Parvin.

Bishop Minnick is the newly assigned bishop of the Raleigh area of the United Methodist Church and Rev. Parvin is Greenville district superintendent. Former ministers of St. James have also been invited to participate in the dedication.

Founded in 1952, St. James' initial membership numbered 74. That membership joined with the church's first pastor, the Rev. Edwin L. Earnhardt, for beginning services in the Greenville High School Building. Later in 1954, a ground-breaking ceremony for a church building was held, but it wasn't until 1966 that the first service was held in the new sanctuary.

Following the dedication service, dinner will be served on the church grounds.

Anniversary

The First Baptist Church of Farmville will celebrate its 75th anniversary and homecoming Oct. 28. Guest speaker for the occasion will be Dr. R. G. Puckett, editor of the Biblical Recorder. Lunch will follow the morning service. The pastor, Rev. Ronald L. Davis invites all former members, family and friends to attend.

Revival

A revival will be held at Oak Grove Church of Christ on Highway 903 near Robersonville Monday through Friday of next week at 7:30 each evening. The Rev. Henry Mann of Richmond, Ky. will be the guest evangelist. A nursery will be provided.

Talent, Fashion Show

The PDQ's of St. Stephens A.M.E. Zion Church in Farmville will present a youth talent and fashion show Sunday at 3 p.m.

Quarterly Meet

St. James Free Will Baptist Church will observe its quarterly meeting this weekend. A members meeting will be held Saturday at 7:30 p.m. Vice Bishop J.H. Vines and the congregation of Lewis Chapel FWB Church will conduct a communion service Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

The Rev. C.R. Parker will be in charge of an 11 a.m. service on Sunday. The Rev. Blake Phillips and members of Zion Hill FWB Church in Winterville will render services Sunday at 3 p.m.

Guest Evangelist

The Rev. Eugene Purcell will be the guest evangelist at Red Oak Christian Church for services Oct. 28-31.

Rev. Purcell is pastor of Riverside Christian Church and a former professor of Atlantic Christian College.

Services will begin nightly at 7:30 and a nursery will be provided.

The church is located on the 264 Bypass, west.

Special Services

Mayo Missionary Baptist Church of Bethel will hold a series of special services Monday through Thursday with services beginning nightly at 7:30.

Evangelist Ronald Cherry, the choir, ushers and congregation of Marantha Deliverance Center of Kinston will be in charge of the Monday service.

Evangelist J.R. Roberson, the choir, ushers and congregation of Conetoe Baptist Church will be in charge of the Tuesday service.

Rev. Williams of Greenville, the choir, ushers and congregation of I Timothy Free Will Baptist Church will be in charge of the Thursday service, and Evangelist James Tripp, the choir, ushers and congregation of Holy Hill Free Will Baptist Church will be in charge of the Thursday service.

Bishop Robert Gorham, the choir, ushers and congregation of Dilby Chapel Free Will Baptist Church of Fountain will close out Mayo Missionary's senior usher board anniversary with a service at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 4.

Carnival

A carnival including games and crafts, sponsored by Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church, will be held Saturday starting at 10 a.m. and continuing until 3 p.m. Plate lunches and hot dogs will be available. The carnival will be held in the parking lot of Dr. E.C. Land's office on Pitt Street.

Render services

Elder Kemp Atkinson and Elder Donnie Atkinson will render service at St. John Free Will Baptist Church, corner of William and Thorne streets, Farmville, Sunday at 7 p.m.

Sunday Services

The Rev. J.J. Styron, the ushers and congregation of White Oak Missionary Baptist Church will render services Sunday at 3 p.m. at Cedar Grove MB Church. The service is sponsored by the gospel chorus.

Anniversary

Haddock Free Will Baptist Church will celebrate its 24th ushers anniversary Sunday at 3 p.m. Eldress Daisy Barnes and the choir of Holly Hill Church will be in charge of the service.

To Preach

Eldress Grace Bailey will preach at Oak Grove Church Sunday at 11 a.m. The public is invited to attend.

Concert

The Pugh Sisters and the D.E.F.G. Gospel Group will be in concert Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at the Warren Chapel Free Will Baptist Church. The pastor, Rev. A. L. Miller invites the public to attend.

Schools Program

Terry Shank and William Martin will present a program Sunday concerning public schools in the Unitarian Fall Series on community agencies and institutions at 11 a.m. in the fellowship hall located at the corner of Fifth and Oak streets.

Martin, professor of secondary education in the East Carolina University School of Education and member of the national board of the Association for Retarded Citizens, will speak on "Forces Affecting Public Education." Ms. Shank, who is on the staff of Pitt Community College and served on the Greenville Board of Education, will discuss "How to Help Public Education in Greenville."

Open discussion will follow the presentations.

Many Words Have Religious Roots But Have Lost Meaning

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Whenever people talk, whatever the subject, they're often using words with religious origins. But most don't know it.

The connotations have changed with the times.

"The reason may be that society is now more secularized," says the Rev. Dale S. Bringham of San Diego, Calif., a Lutheran pastor and researcher into words once religious that are no longer.

With shifting situations and "the passage of time, people simply forgot the religious roots from which the words came," he adds.

In any case, the language is loaded with such terminology, its origins in faith and worship, but now conveying something else.

"There are hundreds of English words and expressions commonly used that have long since lost their original religious significance," says Bringham, pastor of St. Peter's by the Sea Lutheran Church in San Diego.

"The words are still used, but where we got them is forgotten," he added in a telephone interview.

Some examples Bringham cites from everyday discourse:

"Parlor," meaning the main room in the house, stems from a French word meaning to speak and once was a room in monasteries in which monks vowed to silence could speak with visitors.

"Diapers," the white breech cloths for babies, comes from a Byzantine cloth, "diaspros," used for religious garments and meaning pure white.

"Lobby," now any entrance hall, derived from the German word for leaf and referred to the tree-covered walk where visitors waited to visit monasteries. Now "lobbyists" are those waiting outside to influence legislation.

"Holiday," now a celebration of most anything, originally meant "holy day."

"Giddy" and "enthusiastic" both originally meant "filled with God."

"Red-letter day," meaning a climactic day, came from the old practice of marking religious feast days in red on the calendar.

"Short shrift," which means to give scant attention, originally meant a "short confession," the "shrift" from the Anglo-Saxon word "shrive."

"Scapegoat," a victim of unjustified blame, originally was a goat on which the Israelites placed the people's sins before turning him loose in the desert.

"Bonfire" comes from the "bone fires" made from bodies of saints burned during the English reformation.

"Clerks" derived from the word

"clergy" applied to religious leaders because they were literate and able to serve as bookkeepers and secretaries.

"Journals," now a daily or periodic record, originally were devotional aids, named from the French word for day.

"Beads," now a necklace or drops of sweat, came from an Anglo-Saxon word meaning "to ask," referring to prayers counted on pieces of wood or stones held together by a thong.

"Polite," now meaning courteous, came from a Latin word for "polish," as done to church candlesticks and chalices.

"Dominoes," the game played with black and white pieces of ivory, bone or wood, came from the name of black priestly garments lined with white.

"Deans," now usually college officials, originally were religious leaders in charge of a "decem" — 10 monks.

"Beggars," now indigent people asking handouts, came from an old Flemish word, "beghen," meaning to pray, and referred to monks who had taken vows of poverty.

"X," the mark used on ballots, originated from the sign of the cross, which illiterates used to witness to legal documents.

"Ledgers," now any record of financial transactions, came from the Old English word, "to lie," referring to religious breviaries not to be taken from churches but "to lie" in the same place.

"Do, re, me, fa, sol, la, ti" the names for tones of the musical scale, were the first syllables of a religious hymn about John the Baptist.

"Goodbye" comes from "God be with ye."

The change in connotation has taken place "because people aren't as religiously oriented as they once were," Bringham said in a telephone interview.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 27

Western Sizzlin

10th STREET

8:00 a.m. — Gathering

8:15 a.m. — Breakfast

Allen Harrell is a native of Bertie County N.C. where he was raised on a farm. During World War II, he served with the U.S. Army in the European Theater of Action where he was seriously wounded. Allen is a graduate of UNC, Chapel Hill with a B.S. in Business Administration and a J.D. in law. He has practiced law in Roanoke Rapids and Wilson, and has held the post of District Court Judge, Seventh Judicial District, since 1968. Allen and his wife, Irene, are parents of six children and grandparents of four "of the most beautiful grandchildren in the world." Allen and Irene are members of Living Faith Fellowship in Wilson and very active in the ministry of the church. He is a member and field representative of F.G.B.M.F.I.

Judge Harrell's testimony is one of a growing awareness of the Lordship of Jesus—in the family, in the garden, in the courtroom, EVERYWHERE!

Men, come join us for breakfast, fellowship, and Judge Harrell's testimony.

Sunday at 11 a.m., with music to be provided by the No. 2 Choir of St. Matthews. At 4 p.m. a gospel program will be presented featuring the Fantastic Spiritualaires of Greenville and Joe and Willie Daniels. Eldress Marie Grimes will preach at 7:30 p.m., with music to be provided by the Last Generation. Eldress Hattie Cobb is pastor of St. Matthew.

Guest Group

The Sounds of Liberty of Liberty Baptist College will be guests of the Fellowship Church of Greenville Sunday at 3 p.m.

Directed by David Randlett, the Sounds of Liberty is composed of 10 college students who have been appearing this year in the I Love America rallies with Dr. Jerry Falwell. The Sounds of Liberty also can be seen weekly on the Old Time Gospel Hour.

The program will be held at Parkers Chapel Free Will Baptist Church.

Fiddlers' Convention

The Southern Blue-Cured Tobacco Festival will kick off its seventh annual two-week celebration in Greenville Saturday with its first-ever Fiddlers' Convention.

At last count, Tobacco Festival Executive Director Lynn Caverly Jobs said that most musicians entering the four item competition for junior and senior fiddlers are from North Carolina, but she hoped that anyone, anywhere, would feel free to come.

Incentive in the form of first place cash prizes totaling from $50-$100 will be provided for entrants. A cash prize will also be given for the second place adult fiddler; merchandise will be given for second place winners in all other categories.

The all-afternoon event will begin at noon with the down-home playing of the Too Wet To Plow String Band and will close at 6 p.m. following a one-hour performance of special musical guests, the Bill Lyery Band. Performances by the Green Grass Cloggers and the competition for individual fiddlin', banjo, flat pickin' awards and group rivalry for top Blue Grass band honors will be held in the interim.

Two horseshoe pitching fields will also be set up for limited competition between noon and 4 p.m. for men, women and juniors.

Cost to attend the Fiddlers' Convention will be $5 per adult and $1 for children 12 and under. Tickets may be purchased at Apple Records or the Carolina Opry House prior to Saturday and may be purchased at the gate the day of the convention. Last-minute fiddle entrants can pre-register at the Opry House at 10:30 a.m. Saturday.

Shuttle Rehearsal

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The commander of space shuttle Discovery's second journey says officials are "looking forward to a liftoff" Nov. 7 after a successful rehearsal of the countdown.

"We had a superb countdown test," mission commander Rick Hauck said Thursday. Other members of the crew are pilot David Walker and specialists Dr. Anna Fisher, Joseph Allen and Dale Gardner.

During eight days in orbit, the astronauts are to deploy two commercial communications satellites. Allen and Gardner will fly free of the shuttle with jet-powered packs to retrieve two others that were fired into useless orbits.

Yale Disagreement

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Yale students are claiming in a $10 million lawsuit that the university has failed to deliver services for which they have paid since white-collar workers went on strike month ago.

Yale and its officers have "breached their agreement ... been unjustly enriched ... destroyed the atmosphere of collegiality and intellectual inquiry ... and have engaged in unfair trade practices," the suit said.

Named defendants are Yale, President A. Bartlett Giamatti, Vice President Michael Finnerty and Treasurer John W. Buckman. The officials will not comment on the suit filed Thursday until they read it, said spokesman Steve Kezerian.

Car Wash

The Edwards Singers and the Golden Jubilees will hold a car wash Saturday from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday next to Wainwright Amoco on 14th Street.

Observance

The second home mission's anniversary will be observed at Corey's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church Sunday starting at 3 p.m.

Homecoming

Annual homecoming services will be held at Sycamore Hill Baptist Church Sunday starting at 9:30 a.m. with Sunday School. Morning worship will follow at 11 o'clock and communion. The First Baptist Church of New Bern will be guests at the 3 p.m. service.

Weekend Services

Weekend services will be held at the Nazarene Christian Church (Disciples), 205 Skinner St.

Choir rehearsal will be Saturday at 3 p.m. At 4 p.m., the usher board will meet for an usher rehearsal.

Sunday school will be held Sunday at 9:45 a.m. At the 11 a.m. worship service, the Rev. J.C. Mercer of Farmville, an evangelist and employee of the Greenville City Schools, will preach.

Observance

Lizzie Mae Little's anniversary will be observed Sunday at 2 p.m. at St. John Baptist Church in Stokes. The Rev. Roger Hooks will preach the sermon and music will be rendered by Hayes Chapel Church in Pactolus.

Club To Meet

The 20th Centry Club will meet Sunday at 5:30 p.m. at the home of Willie Joyner, Smith Trailer Park.

Arrest Made On Campus

An East Carolina University freshman, Maurice Lamar Kennedy, 18, of Gastonia, was arrested early this morning on two counts of first degree burglary, and one count each of assault on a police officer and possession of marijuana following incidents at Greene Dorm.

University police said Kennedy allegedly entered two different rooms on two floors of the dorm and fled after women asleep in the rooms woke up.

Investigators said Kennedy was taken into custody on the south side of Joyner Library by ECU Police Lt. Stanley B. Kittrell and Greenville officers following a scuffle in which Kennedy attempted to choke the officer.

Both Kittrell and Kennedy were taken to Pitt County Memorial Hospital for minor injuries received in the fight.

Kennedy, an Aycock Dorm resident, was jailed under a $10,200 bond pending a first appearance hearing in District Court Monday.

Pirates Test Gamecock Ranking

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

When Ed Emory was growing up and playing high school football in South Carolina, there was nothing more that he wanted to do than to play for the University of South Carolina. "I grew up pulling for the Gamecocks," he told his weekly press conference. "Many of my friends played there. Big Thursday (USC-Clemson on Thanksgiving Thursday at the State Fair) was the biggest day of the year when I was growing up."

But things changed. There was a coaching change at South Carolina when Emory was a prep-school senior and what he had thought was a promise of a grant-in-aid was lost. He ended up at East Carolina, where he has returned as head football coach.

And while he never got to play for the Gamecocks, he will finally get his chance to take a team into Williams-Brice Stadium for a chance to beat them instead.

But if that victory comes, it will be one of the big upsets of the 1984 football season — a season that has already seen so many of them.

Kickoff is set for 1:30 p.m. with a crowd of around 70,000 expected.

"South Carolina is the best team we've played so far this year," Emory said of the ninth ranked Gamecocks who bring a 6-0 record into the contest. Five of those wins have come at Williams-Brice. The lone road game was a come-from-behind 36-32 win at Notre Dame.

"They're better overall than Florida State," Emory declared. "They are playing like I think football should be played with enthusiasm, vigor and excitement — like we ought to be playing — like we played last year. They are two or three steps faster than anyone they've played and the way they're playing has a lot to do with it."

Home, sweet home. That's another key too, Emory said. "This is the sixth time in seven games they've played at home. They played The Citadel and beat them late. They beat a Duke team that's not having a great year. They were tied with Georgia 10-10 in the fourth quarter and Georgia fumbled and missed a couple of field goals and got beat 17-10. Then, they beat a Kansas State team that is not playing well. Pittsburgh gave up the big play to them to lose 45-21. So they have momentum now."

Emory said rallying to beat Notre Dame was a big step for the Gamecocks, giving them a road victory over a good team. After ECU, South Carolina has games with N.C. State, Florida State, Navy and Clemson, all but the FSU game on the road.

"They'll have a good crowd there and they'll try to intimidate you. But I don't think we'll be intimidated by either the crowd or South Carolina. We play well before big crowds. But I'll be disappointed and surprised if we are intimidated," Emory said.

THE DAILY
FRIDAY AFTERNOON, OCTOBER 26, 1984

South Carolina likes to jump on opponents early, Emory noted. They have outscored opponents, 49-10 in the first period. They also enjoy a 98-39 second half advantage including a 67-23 fourth period. Only in the second quarter are they outscored, 55-52.

"This game gives us a chance to stand in the sun and get some attention," Emory said. "We're going to be fresh and healthier than we've been in recent weeks."

The meeting is just the second between the two teams, but the first of a five-game series that will see South Carolina come to Greenville next year. In the only previous meeting, the Gamecocks rallied from a 16-6 deficit after three periods to gain a 19-16 win in 1977.

The Gamecock rushing is led by Kent Hagood, a 5-11, 216-pound junior. He's picked up 322 yards on 50 carries, scoring three touchdowns. Backup Quinton Lewis (6-0, 200, Sr.) has rushed for 320 yards on 45 carries and one touchdown. Raynard Brown (5-8, 184, So.) has chewed up 224 yards as a reserve back. The other starter, Thomas Dendy (5-10, 183, Jr.) has 212 yards, while quarterback Mike Hold (5-11, 195, Jr.) who pulled out the Notre Dame game off the bench, has rushed for 141 yards. Starting quarterback Allen Mitchell (6-0, 175, Jr.) has rushed for 116 yards.

Mitchell has hit on 38 of 71 passes for 574 yards and five touchdowns while Hold has hit on 18 of 29 for 364 yards and three scores.

Flanker Ira Hillary (5-10, 187, Sr.) is the leading receiver with 12 catches for 263 yards. Split end Eric Poole (6-0, 185, Jr.) has seven for 155 yards and tight end Chris Corley (6-3, 252, Sr.) has seven for 125 yards. Reserve split end Chris Wade (6-0, 195, Sr.) has caught five for 140 yards and three touchdowns.

Placekicker Scott Hagler is the leading scorer with 35 points, on 26 of 26 PATs and three of five field goals. Hold has scored four touchdowns for 24 points to be second.

South Carolina's defense terms itself the "Fire Ants" and they have truly swarmed to the ball, according to Emory. "The defense makes things happen for them. They play inspired football and do all they can to get to the ball."

The leading tackler is linebacker Paul Vogel (6-1, 215, Sr.) with 73, while James Seawright (6-2, 218, Sr.), also a linebacker has 62 tackles.

South Carolina has held opponents to 118.5 yards a game rushing and 173.8 per game passing.

For East Carolina the big question is quarterback. For the last few games, Darrell Speed has been the starter, with Ron Jones coming on in reserve. Jones, however, engineered most of the scoring drives against East Tennessee State last week, while Speed sat on the bench with tendonitis in his throwing arm. Speed was improved in practice this week, but Emory said he still expected to see both of them in the game.

"I don't intend to go into 1985 with only one experience quarterback," Emory said.

The Pirates, 2-6, play their final road game of the season next Saturday in Lafayette, La., against Southwestern Louisiana, then wind up the year on November 10 against Southern Mississippi in Greenville.

Smith's Three Goals Lead Rampants Past Fike, 5-2

WILSON — Jordy Smith scored three goals to help Rose snap a two-year jinx at Wilson Fike yesterday with a 5-2 soccer victory.

The win was the first ever for Rose at Fike and it resulted in the worst loss of the year for the Golden Demons.

Smith, in pulling his hat trick, did it for the second time this season, a Rose school record. No one in the brief history of the sport had made two hat tricks (three goals in a game) in one season.

Smith's first goal came at the 12 minute mark with an assist by David Ely. That was followed three minutes later by a goal by Travis King, assisted by David Lee and Lewis Robbins. A minute later, Smith struck again, assisted by King.

Robbins closed out the Rose scoring in the first half with a goal at the 25 minute mark, scoring on a penalty kick. Fike's Tom Covington scored ten minutes later to cut the Rose lead to 4-1 at the half.

Fike also scored the first goal of the second half as Troy Farley hit on a penalty kick. But Smith scored his final goal with eight minutes left on another penalty kick, insuring the win for Rose.

The Rose outshot Fike, 15-7 and has outscored its opponents, 16-3 in the last three games.

Cited for their play by Coach Will Wiberg were Ely, Robbins, Carl Wille and Richard Haselrig.

"We wanted this one badly. It was a very big win for us," Wiberg said.

Rose is now 9-1 in Big East play and 12-2 overall. The Rampants close out their home season on Tuesday at 4 p.m. against Hunt and can clinch the league championship with a victory in the contest. They have one game left after that, at Northeastern next Thursday.

The Big East champ automatically advances into the State Playoffs.

Perkins Won't Be A Starter

DALLAS (AP) — Prized rookie and first-round draft pick Sam Perkins won't be in the starting lineup Saturday when the Dallas Mavericks meet the Houston Rockets in a nationally televised National Basketball Association game, Mavericks coach Dick Motta says.

Motta said Thursday he will hold the 6-9½ former North Carolina star out of the starting lineup because Perkins' two-week contract holdout put him too far behind the rest of the players.

Tom Baines is continuing to make a mockery of it all. He says he's just waiting for something like a 2-10 week, but the rest of us know it's not going to happen.

Of course, if we forget to put his picks in.... Na, we couldn't do that. (Or could we?) Let's see, if he goes 0-12 this week....

Well, at any rate, Baines is currently atop the crew with a 61-32 record. Then, it's six games before we find Jimmy DuPree in second place with a 55-38 mark. Vickie Spivey, our guests and this writer are tied for third with 52-41 records, with Joe Jenkins slowly fading into the sunset at 44-49.

Joe is still optimistic, of course, which might make him the most optimistic guy in the world. The rest of us think his position at the rear has been assured.

Our guest of last week was WNCT-TV sports director Greg Kerr, who turned in an 8-4 record, which ties him with Dixon Sauls of Farmville Central and ECU sports information assistant Rob Wilson for the best among our guests.

This week, our guest is Cindy Pleasants, also of WNCT-TV, the hostess of Carolina Today. Cindy comes from a sports background, however, having served as the sports editor of the East Carolinian when an undergrad at ECU.

Turning to the high school ranks, our record last week was 7-2 which brings us to 50-20 on the year.

This week there are several key games, and maybe we'll get Greene Central right yet. We're giving them credit at last — well-deserved credit at that.

Ayden-Grifton will be hosting Charles B. Aycock and it's time for the Chargers to work out some of their frustrations. Aycock has won but once this year. Unless A-G rolls over and plays dead, it'll be the Chargers by 48-0.

North Pitt visits Farmville Central with the Jaguars fighting to keep their heads above water in the ECC race. North Pitt is just fighting to win a game. The Panthers have come close, but no cigar. The smoke this week will also be on the Farmville side of the field, 35-7.

D.H. Conley plays host to Havelock in the other Pitt County game. The Vikings snapped a three-game losing streak and have a chance to clinch a break-even year with a victory. Havelock just lost its first since an opening loss to 4-A New Bern. The Rams and Vikings have had a fine series in the past and this one could be a dilly too. But we have to give the Rams the edge, 21-14.

In other area games, it'll be Chocowinity over Mattamuskeet, Jamesville over Belhaven, Greene Central over Southern Nash, Williamston over Roanoke and Tarboro over Washington.

In our picks, the highlight games are the Pirates and Gamecocks, and Fike vs Rose.

The Rampants are still trying to get their offense on track, while Fike continues to blow people right off the track. This one doesn't look good for the Rampants, and the panel gives the Demons a 6-1 nod. Our own pick is Fike by 35-14.

East Carolina travels to nationally ranked South Carolina. The Gamecocks will probably be trying to put points on the board to move up in the rankings with a win. The panel splits here, however, with Pleasants sticking with the Pirates. The rest, 5-1, goes for South Carolina. Our guess, 45-17.

Our other concensus picks: Clemson over N.C. State; Georgia Tech over Tennessee; Wake Forest over William & Mary; Pittsburgh over Navy; Syracuse over Army; Maryland over Duke; Memphis State over North Carolina; Vanderbilt over Mississippi; Texas Tech over Tulsa; and Arizona State and UCLA, a toss-up.

Landrum Shakes Off His Start Of Day Doldrums

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — It was not a particularly good start to the day for Ralph Landrum.

He woke up Thursday with his right eye almost swollen shut. "I guess it had gotten irritated and I rubbed it too much," he said.

When he got to the course for the start of the $300,000 Pensacola Open golf tournament, his caddy was missing. "I just grabbed one out of the bullpen," he said.

Then he made a bogey-6 from the middle of the fairway on the second hole he played.

But Landrum, enjoying what he called "pot luck — the hole just got in the way a lot" scattered nine birdies across his card, one-putted 10 times, and compiled the best score of his two-year PGA Tour career, an 8-under-par 63. It staked him to a three-stroke lead after the first round.

"The difference was that I made a lot of putts (including a couple from 12-15 feet to save pars). Maybe I made a lot of putts because I couldn't see very well out of the right eye. I'll go home and rub it some more tonight. Maybe stick a fork in it," he said.

Mark O'Meara stuck three shots in the water on the way to a scrambling, struggling 77 that virtually ended his hopes of obtaining any of golf's three major seasonal honors in this, the last official event on the 10-month PGA Tour.

His poor opening round all but assured the absent Cal Peete of the Vardon Trophy, which goes to the man with the low-stroke average on the Tour. O'Meara, the only man with a chance to catch him, would have to shoot three rounds of 63.

And, O'Meara, needing a sixth place finish here to overtake Tom Watson as the year's leading money-winner, is in danger of missing the cut for the final two rounds. His only chance of going past Tom Watson and Denis Watson on the final point standings for Player of the Year is a victory here.

Tom Watson, who is not competing, and Denis Watson share the lead with 54 points. Denis Watson did nothing to improve his position, shooting a 73. Andy Bean, needing a victory in this event to take the money-winning title, also had his problems with a 74 in the muggy heat.

Three strokes off Landrum's leading pace were Ken Brown of Scotland, John Cook, Roger Maltbie and Danny Edwards, tied at 66.

Football Schools Try To Unmuddle TV's Muddle

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Representatives of all major college football powers have set a December meeting in Dallas for what could be a final attempt to put together a single coalition to administer television rights.

Officials of the Big Ten, Pac-10, Southeastern, Southwest, Big Eight, Atlantic Coast and Western Athletic conferences will attend, along with Notre Dame representing northern independents and Florida State representing southern independents.

"We're trying hard to look to the future and cast aside or ignore the problems we've had in the past," said Tom Hansen, executive director of the Pac-10 Conference. "I think we've been very successful in working together in a cooperative vein."

The panel's goals, according to Hansen, would be to increase network TV income by having one administrative body, work out a fair plan for TV appearances, protect receipts at stadiums and meet all legal requirements.

Television rights fees were cut in half for many schools this year following the Supreme Court decision voiding the NCAA's control of football telecasts.

The court's ruling stemmed from an antitrust suit brought by the universities of Oklahoma and Georgia, which had sought since 1981 to dissolve the NCAA's centralized controls.

Afterward, an unsuccessful attempt was made to form a TV coalition involving the 63 schools of the College Football Association and the Pac-10 and Big Ten conferences.

The Pac-10 and Big Ten, however, signed a separate agreement with CBS, while the CFA signed a contract with ABC.

The immediate result, said many school administrators, was the loss of millions of dollars in potential TV revenue as well as a glut of college football on television.

As many as 10 games can be seen every Saturday in metropolitan markets with full cable service, a trend which many believe has hurt ratings and could erode stadium attendance.

At least one administrator who does not share Hansen's optimism is Deloss Dodds, athletic director at Texas.

Olajuwon In Spotlight Tonight

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

No. 1 pick Akeem Olajuwon dominates the spotlight on the National Basketball Association season opener in a nationally televised debut for the Houston Rockets against the Dallas Mavericks Saturday.

He does not, however, have a monopoly on big expectations.

Olajuwon probably takes a back seat in that department to Chicago rookie Michael Jordan, who led the hapless Bulls to a 5-2 preseason record. Chicago hosts the Washington Bullets tonight in one of six season-opening games.

"He's already a superstar,"

Rose Wins Net Finale

Rose High School's girls' tennis team completed the regular season yesterday with a 7-2 victory over Fike, giving the Ramettes a perfect 14-0 mark in Big East play.

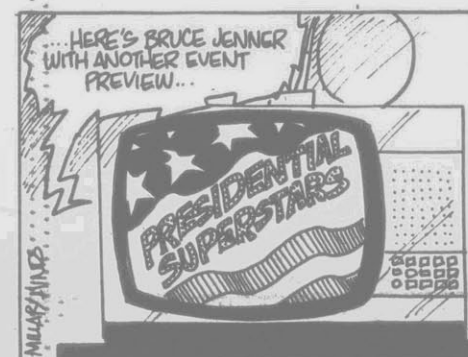

The only blemish on the schedule was a non-conference match loss against New Bern in the season opener.

With the conference championship safe in hand, Rose will now enter the Northeastern sectionals, to be held Wednesday and Thursday at Wilson.

Summary:

Catherine Land (R) d. Beth Graves, 6-3, 7-5.
Vicki Parrott (R) d. Sujate Ghatte, 6-4, 6-2.
Susan Taylor (R) d. Tricia Ferrell, 6-3, 7-6.
Anne Lynne Davis (R) d. Gaither Shroot, 6-2, 6-4.
Susan Evans (R) d. Kim Horton, 7-5, 6-2.

Kansas City General Manager Joe Axelson said of Jordan, the former North Carolina and Olympic hero. "We were playing Chicago in an exhibition game in St. Louis. The crowd was about 5,500 and they were sitting on their hands until Jordan came on the floor. It was like somebody turned the lights on."

"The whole time Jordan was in there, there was a hum in the building."

Elsewhere tonight, Atlanta is at New Jersey, Cleveland at Philadelphia, Boston at Detroit, Utah at Seattle and Phoenix at Golden State.

Saturday night's games include Detroit at New York, Philadelphia at Atlanta, New Jersey at Cleveland, Washington at Indiana, Los Angeles Lakers at San Antonio, Portland at Kansas City, Chicago at Milwaukee, Golden State at Denver and the Los Angeles Clippers at Utah.

All the plaudits aside, Jordan said he does not expect to take the NBA by storm.

"It's not going to be the Michael Jordan show," he said. "I just want to be able to fit in and help the team. I've seen the success of the Bulls, the White Sox, the Bears ... I think it's going to be time for the Bulls now."

The Celtics-Pistons matchup pairs two strong teams with revamped starting lineups.

The Celtics, who won eight straight NBA titles from 1959 through 1966, were the last team to successfully defend a championship in 1969.

"In my mind, it's no mystery, no jinx as to why teams haven't repeated," Coach K.C. Jones said. "Other teams improve through the draft and through trades, and everybody guns at the team at the top. This year, in the East alone, Washington, Detroit, Philadelphia and New Jersey all have improved."

The 76ers, after posting a 65-17 record in 1982-83 and then winning 12 of 13 playoff games en route to the championship, are back this year hoping to prove last spring's first-round playoff loss to New Jersey was a fluke.

"It really didn't hit us until we were walking off the floor after that fifth game," said 76ers General Manager Pat Williams. "Then you realize you're dethroned, defrocked."

Valkyries Win Again

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley's Valkyries found themselves in a hole early, but struggled back and pulled out a 2-1 victory over Wilmington Laney last night in the second round of the State Volleyball Playoffs.

Conley lost the opening game, 15-13, but came back with a 15-4 win in the second game to even the match. The Valkyries then won the final game, 15-9, to capture the victory.

Darby Fulford served up eight straight points in the second game while Lisa Mills added seven in the deciding game. Mills had eight hits to lead in that area, while Debbie Patrick and Michelle Waters each had seven. Trellany Boyd led in assists.

"It was a hard-fought match," Coach Martha McCaskill said. "Laney had an excellent team and were the best blockers we've seen all year. But we came back and it's always good to do that."

Conley now moves into the third round of play and will travel to Pender, a winner last night over Whiteville, for the next round. That game will probably be played on Monday at a time to be announced.

The Valkyries, in moving into the third round, have matched their previous best advance in the playoffs. In 1982, they also reached the third round before losing to Pender.

by Jeff Millar & Bill Hinds

You're just another ballclub. That's when the humiliation sets in."

"In 1982-83, we tasted the thrill of victory and last year we tasted the agony of defeat," Coach Billy Cunningham said. "The pain of losing last year will serve as a catalyst for this season."

The strong Philadelphia cast of Moses Malone, Julius Erving, Andrew Toney and Bobby Jones will be joined by two first-round draft choices, Charles Barkley and Leon Wood.

Cleveland is counting on a rookie center, Mel Turpin out of Kentucky. "Turpin has all the tools to be a dominant player in this league," said George Karl of the Cavaliers, one of four teams with new coaches.

Karl and George Irvine of Indiana are NBA coaches for the first time, while Cotton Fitzsimmons at San Antonio and Jack McKinney at Kansas City are former Coach of the Year award winners with new jobs.

"Any team that has some of the players we have can win," said Fitzsimmons, who inherits veteran stars like Artis Gilmore, George Gervin, Mike Mitchell and Johnny Moore and a top rookie in Olympian Alvin Robertson. "They had a bad year and fell from grace."

Last season, Fitzsimmons was at Kansas City, which hired McKinney five days after Fitzsimmons joined the Spurs. McKinney was fired by Indiana after posting a 26-52 record.

Berry Takes Over Disrupted Program

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Sports Writer

New England Patriots players may be excused if they claim that their concentration was broken a bit this week for Sunday's game with the New York Jets.

It's been a week when the big news out of Foxboro, Mass., where the game will be played, has been the upheaval on the Patriots' coaching staff. On Wednesday, much to the consternation of many of the players, Coach Ron Meyer fired defensive coordinator Rod Rust; on Thursday, Meyer was fired and replaced by Raymond Berry, who reinstated Rust.

Berry, a Hall of Fame receiver with the Baltimore Colts and a one-time New England assistant, said he would make no changes in Meyer's game plan for the contest with the Jets, which could have considerable bearing on the race for wild-card playoff spots in the American Conference.

General Manager Pat Sullivan said he made the switch at the season's midway point "because I oppose disruptions and we need a stable situation here."

"Berry is the low-key kind of guy who should be able to fit in right away," he said.

But Berry, in what could pass as the understatement of the week, said:

"This is not an ideal situation."

In other games Sunday, Cincinnati is at Houston; Indianapolis at Dallas; Detroit at Green Bay; Minnesota at Chicago; New Orleans at Cleveland; Atlanta at Pittsburgh; St. Louis at Philadelphia; Tampa Bay at Kansas City; Buffalo at Miami; Denver at the Los Angeles Raiders; San Francisco at the Los Angeles Rams; and Washington at the New York Giants.

Seattle is at San Diego Monday night.

New England, 5-3, beat the 6-2 Jets 28-21 in their first meeting a month ago at Giants Stadium. But the Patriots were crushed 44-24 last week by the Miami Dolphins, a loss that triggered Meyer's firing of Rust and, indirectly, Sullivan's firing of Meyer.

New England lists as "questionable" All-Pro guard John Hannah, hospitalized during the week for treatment of a neck injury and will definitely be without Irving Fryar, the NFL's top draft choice, who has a separated shoulder.

The Jets' 28-7 winners over Kansas City last week, are getting healthier — running back Freeman McNeil may be back after a week on the sidelines with a rib injury and receiver Johnny "Lam" Jones may be activated after missing the entire season with a broken collarbone.

There's also a new coach in Cleveland, where defensive coordinator Marty Schottenheimer took over the 1-7 Browns after Sam Rutigliano was fired last Monday.

Like Berry, Schottenheimer doesn't plan any immediate changes when the Browns take on the 3-5 Saints, who blew a 21-point lead and lost to Dallas 30-27 in overtime last Sunday night. But, he says that sometime soon he may switch to a two-back offense in place of Rutigliano's one-back alignment.

"You don't play coaches, you play teams," said Saints' Coach Bum Phillips, who added that he's more concerned about getting his own team back on track after three straight losses.

in the strong AFC West.

Denver won the first game, 16-13, handing the Raiders their only loss of the season. The Broncos may have to go with Gary Kubiak at quarterback in place of John Elway, who bruised his shoulder in last week's 37-7 win over Buffalo.

That means Denver, which gained 233 in the first game, will again move primarily on the ground.

"We'll have to control the ball by running it," said Coach Dan Reeves. "We'll mix things up, and we'll challenge their cornerbacks like we did last time, but our main concern is being able to run. The Raiders are very dangerous when they get you in a must-pass situation. They really come after you with their pass rush."

E.B. Aycock Tops Wilson Fike, 32-0

E.B. Aycock Junior High School got two touchdowns from Adrian Barnhill and romped to a 32-0 victory over Wilson Fike yesterday.

The victory was the fifth straight for the Jaguars this year and their 18 in a row over the past three years.

Barnhill scored the first of his two in the opening period, dashing 16 yards for a 6-0 lead. Tim Moore then pulled in a punt and returned it 67 yards for another score with Tom Moye kicking the PAT for a 13-0 lead.

Hines, Hugie Mayfield, Stacy Best, Rexter Williams, Moore and David Jones.

Leading the offense were Jay Mattox, Ray Gaynor, Tommy Baker, Hines, Jeff Ward, Mike Penland, Nelson Galloway, Barnhill, Daniels, Smith, Jeff Mahoney, Wes Jackson, Clifton Davis and Moore.

Bethel-Wellcome 36
Farmville 14

BETHEL — Bethel-Wellcome defeated Farmville Middle School 36-14 Thursday in junior high football action.

Billy Hardison had touchdown runs of 12, 15 and 20 yards to lead Bethel-Wellcome. Randy House passed to William Morning for a 50-yard touchdown, then ran five yards for another. Marcus Hines had a pair of point-after runs, while House ran another.

Morning, William Ebron, Herbert Staton and Johnny Sherrod paced the Bethel-Wellcome defense.

Chicod-Whitfield 26

WOODINGTON — Tyrone Turnage ran for a pair of touchdowns to lead Chicod-Whitfield to a 26-0 victory over Woodington Thursday in junior high football action.

Anthony Perry ran for a 15-yard touchdown in the first period, and the score remained 6-0 until the fourth quarter.

An eight-yard run by Turnage capped a 65-yard drive, and Turnage later returned a fumble 45 yards and added the PAT.

Chicod-Whitfield, now 3-2, travels to Bethel-Wellcome next Thursday.

Valkyries Take Sixth Place

NEW BERN — Vanessa Marrow finished third to lead D.H. Conley to a sixth place finish Thursday at the Mideastern 4-A Conference cross country meet.

White Oak won the meet with a low score of 62. Other scores were Manteo and Washington 84, Eastern Wayne 104, Jacksonville 114, Conley 137, New Bern 158, Goldsboro 160 and Wilmington Hoggard 226.

Kerry Kessing of Manteo took first place with a time of 22:01.

Conley will run again next Friday at the sectionals at Pine Level.

Other Conley times with order of finish:

Angela Hicks (18th) 25:06, Priscilla Barnhill (34th) 28:11, Cynthia Brown (40th) 30:33, Martha Dale (42nd) 33:14, Leslie Stevens (43rd) 33:17

Brigham Young Rips New Mexico

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — It is the nature of Brigham Young's offense that an opposing defense can play respectably and still lose by boxcar figures.

Quarterback Robbie Bosco, the latest in the long line of Brigham Young passing wizards, threw three touchdown passes Thursday night and teamed with bullish fullback Lakei Heimuli to lead the unbeaten, No. 5 ranked Cougars to a 48-0 Western Athletic Conference football victory over New Mexico.

Despite the lopsided defeat, New Mexico Coach Joe Lee Dunn felt his injury-depleted defensive unit had played about as well as it could against the best passing machine in major college football.

"We didn't play bad defensively," said Dunn. "They sort of outclassed us tonight. We're not in the same league with them."

Bosco picked apart the Lobos' unorthodox defense, that featured as many as six defensive backs, to extend BYU's winning streak to 19 straight, the longest in major college football. BYU also has won a record 19 straight conference games and is headed for its ninth straight WAC title with a 5-0 league mark and 9-0 overall record.

Bosco completed 19 of 29 passes for 227 yards and connected with wide receiver Glen Kozlowski on TD strikes of 7, 10 and 3 yards. Heimuli, a 207-pound sophomore, found plenty of running room when most of the New Mexico defenders dropped into the secondary to look for Bosco's passes, and rambled for 141 yards and two touchdowns.

"New Mexico's changing defense didn't bother us," said Bosco. "We called the plays that worked in those defensive situations and after we adjusted we were okay."

The Lobos stayed close for only a quarter, when they held BYU to one touchdown.

"We just had to be patient against them," BYU Coach LaVell Edwards said of New Mexico's gambling defense. "We played well and it just took a little while in the first half to get things figured out."

New Mexico, losing its fourth straight in league play, dropped to 4-4 overall and 1-4 in the WAC.

The Cougars also got a 47-yard punt return TD from Vai Sikahema and field goals of 27 yards and 47 yards by Lee Johnson.

New Mexico, riddled by injuries the last four weeks, killed what few scoring opportunities it had with seven turnovers.

The Lobos lost their second quarterback in three weeks when senior Todd Williamson suffered a broken bone in his throwing hand in the first half. Two-time all-conference linebacker Johnny Jackson and wide receiver Chris Buford also departed with injuries.

BYU scored the first time it handled the football, going 79 yards in 13 plays with Bosco and Kozlowski accounting for the final seven yards.

The Cougars built the lead to 24-0 at halftime on the first Johnson field goal, Sikahema's punt return and a 2-yard plunge by Heimuli.

BYU turned it into a rout with 17 points in the first three minutes of the third quarter.

Heimuli went 33 yards on the second play of the quarter, Johnson converted on a field goal after a fumble by New Mexico halfback Willie Tural. Bosco hit Kozlowski with 12:00 left after Lobo third string quarterback Billy Rucker fumbled on the first play after the BYU kickoff and the Cougars' Kurt Gouveia recovered at the New Mexico 14.

The Brigham Young-New Mexico game kicked off a long weekend of college action which features a pair of clashes involving ranked teams.

Chester Paramore (8th) 18:46, Gene Wozny (20th) 19:16, Charles Wilkerson (24th) 19:35, Derrick McLawhorn (30th) 19:48, Carl Dunn (43rd) 20:32, Hall Dunn (64th) 21:50, Richard Patch (68th) 22:02, Steve Eroh (84th) 25:45

Rose Jayvees Down Fike

WILSON — Rose High School's junior varsity football team overcame a number of penalties that helped Fike along and pulled out a 26-19 win over the Demon Imps last night.

For the Rampant Cubs, it evened their record at 4-4 on the year and left them with a 3-2 Big East record.

The Rampant offense controlled the line of scrimmage and Rodney Harris scored two touchdowns on runs of 22 and 19 yards. Quarterback John Lyles also added two scores, sneaking in from the two and the one. Robbie McDonald added two of three PAT tries.

Lee Rogers caught two passes for 10 yards and rushed for 48 yards.

Others cited by the coaching staff on offense were Burwyn Swindell, Lee Miller, Greg Hallow, Steve Peele, Walt Pollard, Harris, Jeff May, Kraig Butler, Burt Richardson and Tim Clark.

A number of penalties against the defense helped Fike along the way to its scores. Curtis Perkins, Melvin Jenkins and Harris each had an interception. Others who led the defense were Bill O'Brian, Lee Smith, Andre Love, Rogers, Eric Jarman, Wyatt Whichard and Jim Gillihan.

Cited in the kicking game were McDonald, Kenny Barnes, Scott Carrawan, Ronald Moore, Boris Neal and William Carr.

The Cubs close out their home season on Thursday, hosting Wilson Hunt.

Messer Wins Top Flight

PIKEVILLE — Farmville Central's Kathi Messer cracked the Charles B. Aycock domination of the Eastern Carolina Conference, winning the number one seed championship.

Messer defeated Kathy Herring of Greene Central, 6-0, 6-0, yesterday, then added a win over Aycock's Dawn Whitley, 6-2, 6-0, to complete her swing through the tournament.

With just three teams in the field, a round-robin was held at each seed, with Aycock's second through sixth singles entry winning each of the remaining slots, along with all three of the doubles.

Aycock finished the meet with 34 points while Greene Central had 16 and Farmville Central had four.

Messer was named to the all-tournament and the all-conference team.

First seed: Kathi Messer (FC) d. Kathy Herring (GC), 6-0, 6-0; Messer (FC) d. Dawn Whitley (A), 6-2, 6-0.

Second: Carol Jenkins (GC) d. Vivian Roebuck (FC), 6-4, 6-4; Pam Bedford (A) d. Jenkins, 6-2, 6-0.

Third: Liddy Jackson (A) d. Carla Edwards (GC), 6-1, 6-1.

Fourth: Carrie Pritchett (A) d. Tangela Craft (GC), 6-0, 6-3.

Sixth: Donna Best (A) d. Kim Langston (GC), 6-2, 6-0.

Second: Best-Pritchett (A) d. Jenkins-Edwards (GC), 8-2; Jenkins-Edwards (GC) d. Roebuck-Bailey, 8-4.

Third: Kim Langston-Tangela Craft (GC) d. Tamaa May-Gina Pennell (FC), 8-7; Leopard-Bedford (A) d. Langston-Craft (GC), 8-0.

Meyer Dismissed Despite 5-3 Record

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — The storm that threatened to wash out the road to the playoffs has subsided. It swept away Ron Meyer as coach of the New England Patriots and brought in Raymond Berry.

Now, General Manager Patrick Sullivan is hoping for a period of calm weather.

"We have a good football team that has every capability and possibility of being in the playoffs this year," Sullivan said Thursday. "We felt the distractions and turmoil of the type that seemed to be developing were not in the best interests of the Patriots."

"So we went out and hired a very stable man (Berry) who has tremendous football knowledge and experience."

Meyer was fired Thursday morning, 24 hours after he fired Rod Rust as the National Football League team's defensive coordinator without consulting Sullivan. Players, who had great respect for Rust, were shattered and praised him.

Rust was re-hired Thursday. Meyer's other assistants also were retained by Berry.

The shakeup occurred despite New England's 5-3 record and the danger of making a major change at the midpoint of the season.

"I really oppose disruptions in the middle of the season of any variety," said Sullivan, indicating that the departure of Rust was a bigger disruption than that of Meyer, who was in the third year of a four-year contract.

Sullivan said there were many other factors that went into the decision but refused to elaborate.

"It's everything I didn't want to happen," he said of this week's developments.

Meyer's departure came three days after Cleveland's Sam Rutigliano became the first NFL coach to be fired this year.

Meyer, 43, said he believed strongly that "the defensive schemes weren't planned well... I felt drastic action had to be taken so I changed the coordinator. Then the team changed me."

Although his contract gives him the right to hire and fire coaches, in actuality Meyer lacked total control to do that or to make other personnel changes.

He said if he had consulted with Sullivan and Player Development

Director Dick Steinberg about his desire to fire Rust, he would have been talked out of it as he was when he made the suggestion after last season.

"This whole word control to me is a word that is not important," said Berry, the ninth head coach in New England's 25-year history. "Control speaks of having a lot of power, like you're king or something. My ego is not in that area."

The Patriots practiced as usual Thursday for Sunday's game here with the New York Jets, who are one game ahead of New England and in second place in the American Conference East. The 51-year-old Berry, in private business the past 2½ years, said he planned few changes for that game.

"This situation probably calls for probably not getting into coaching too much" this Sunday, said Berry, who has a contract to finish this season and an option for next year that can be exercised by him or the club. "As time goes on and I'm around longer probably some of the things that I feel are important will become more a part of the system."

Berry, whose brilliant 13-year career as a receiver with the Baltimore Colts earned him a spot in the Hall of Fame, was New England's receivers coach under from 1978 through 1981, when the team was 2-14. Head Coach Ron Erhardt and his staff were fired after that and replaced by Meyer and a new group of assistants.

Many Patriots thought their play Sunday would not be affected by the midweek distractions.

"If we can concentrate today, I think we can concentrate any day. I don't think it will be a problem Sunday," said quarterback Tony Eason.

Players generally were happy to see Meyer go and Rust return.

"The biggest distraction this week was Rod Rust getting fired," said linebacker Steve Nelson.

Offensive guard Ron Wooten said Berry "is soft-spoken. He speaks the truth, unlike some other coaches we've had. He only speaks when he's got something to say. I think it's going to be a great situation."

consider approaches other than his own.

The problems intensified this season. Players were upset with his public criticism of them and complained about his coaching abilities. Three weeks ago, Sullivan met with the team, but not the coaches, and heard complaints about Meyer.

Sullivan acknowledged that Meyer was upset about the meeting, which the former coach saw as undermining his authority. Both he and Meyer denied that the firing of Rust was a test of power.

"He just had a conviction that he had to make the change," said Sullivan. "I don't think there was any hidden motive behind it."

Before coming to New England, Meyer spent the previous six years at Southern Methodist, where he turned a losing program into a consistent winner. He oversaw a similar turnaround with the Patriots, who had the NFL's worst record in 1981 but made the playoffs in Meyer's first season. His 18-15 record with New England is the best winning percentage of any of the team's head coaches.

"I'm proud of what I'm leaving this team," Meyer said. "I'm sure disruptions and decisiveness of some of the actions may have ruffled some feathers in the wrong areas. Ron Meyer is not a lapdog."

While Meyer lost his job for his decisive move to fire Rust, team owner William H. Sullivan Jr. praised his son Patrick for acting decisively in dumping Meyer.

"The results of the decisive action that Ron Meyer took led to tremendous confusion in our operation," the owner said. "The results of what Pat has taken will eliminate that."

Waugh Takes Second Place

William H. Waugh of Greenville placed second in the 55-59 age group in the second quadrennial Thro-A-Thon meet held recently in Raleigh.

The top three scorers in the meet were Len Olsen of New York, Elmer Shaw of Syracuse and Gilberto Gonzalez of Puerto Rico.

The Thro-A-Thon is a Masters (40 and older) field meet in which each qualifier competes in throwing events with 14 different sized implements (shot, discus, javelin, hammer and weight).

Patriots Celebrate Meyer's Departure

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — When the New England Patriots learned that Coach Ron Meyer had been fired Thursday, "the first reaction of a lot of guys was 'yay, yahoo,'" said linebacker Larry McGrew.

Members of the National Football League club said they felt badly for Meyer but added that his departure and the hiring of Raymond Berry as his replacement were best for the team.

"It's going to be a real pleasant change," said defensive end Doug Rogers. "Players have to have respect for a head coach. I don't think there was a great deal" for Meyer.

Since his arrival in 1982 after six years as head coach at Southern Methodist, Meyer's relations with his players had been strained. After he benched running back Tony Collins, who played in the Pro Bowl last year, and free safety Rick Sanford earlier this year, Sanford asked to be traded.

"Everyone knows he and I had our differences this year," Sanford said. "All I can say is it's a positive move for the organization."

There was too much tension in the air," he added. "A lot of guys (players) questioned his knowledge of what he was trying to get done."

Collins, who had criticized the team's one-back offense the week before he was benched, said the firing of Meyer "may be is the best thing. I felt if Ron was going to be here next year I really would have to be traded."

When I first met him, I really thought he would be a hell of a man, a hell of a coach. I don't know what happened."

Placekicker Tony Franklin, in his first season with the Patriots, supported his former coach.

"Six years in the NFL and I finally find a coach that I like and he's gone," Franklin said.

Running back Craig James, who played under Meyer at SMU, said Meyer "will probably be happier now."

Meyer's firing was precipitated Wednesday when he fired defensive coordinator Rod Rust without consulting General Manager Patrick Sullivan. Rust, who is highly respected by the players, was re-hired Thursday.

"A change in a defensive coordinator who is running an entire defense and knows it explicitly... would be a disruption," said quarterback Tony Eason. "Now, when you change a head coach, this may sound silly but the change in a head coach is not that drastic. That's just the nature of the positions."

Rust, reluctant to comment, said, "it's been a fast 24 hours... I'm yesterday's news and I'd just as soon leave it that way."

"I like my job. I like coaching and I'm proud to be able to coach."

Players praised Berry, who worked with some of them from 1978 through 1981 when he was an assistant coach with New England.

"Raymond Berry earned more respect in one day than Ron Meyer earned in three years," said Collins.

"He comes in here. He's soft-spoken. He speaks the truth, unlike some other coaches we've had," said guard Ron Wooten.

"Raymond's the right man for any coaching job in this league," said linebacker Steve Nelson. "I'm sorry for the things that Coach Meyer went through. I'm sure in some ways he's relieved, too."

Manny Trillo, then the second baseman of the Philadelphia Phillies, set a record of 89 games in a row while also handling a record 479 chances without an error in 1982.

'V' Back Tonight As Weekly Series On NBC

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Like neighbors who overstay their welcome, the lizard-like visitors from the miniseries "V" are unfortunately back tonight as weekly pests in the NBC series "V."

Evidently, last season's "V: The Final Battle" wasn't really the last final battle.

There was some campy charm when these aliens with the human exteriors and the Lacoste interiors tried to take over the world in two high-rated miniseries in recent seasons, but the series takes on a woefully contrived appearance when America's survival is at stake each week.

Worse than bad science fiction, "V" is more like a limp, space-age spaghetti Western. Instead of white hats and black hats, the best way to tell the difference between good guys and bad guys is the length of their tongues and the texture of their skin.

Although the nation flocked to the theaters to see the "Stars Wars" trilogy, viewers know the difference between a spaceship that seems real and one that looks as if it came out of a cereal box.

That isn't to say that "V" won't be successful. Its target audience at 8 p.m. Eastern time is young viewers with wild-and-crazy imaginations who might be willing to trade in a souped-up General Lee on CBS' "Dukes of Hazzard" for a souped-up spaceship on "V."

NBC is counting on "V" to fill its Friday night black hole, into which every one of the network's Friday series was lost in space last season. None survived, and, already this season, NBC's 9 and 10 o'clock programs, "Hunter" and "Miami Vice," are performing better.

Now, with the debut of "V," NBC hopes its Friday night schedule will be boosted in the way "The Cosby Show," leading off Thursday nights, has vastly improved the fortunes of the follow-up "Family Ties" and "Cheers."

Nobody expects NBC to knock off CBS' dynamic duo of "Dallas" and "Falcon Crest," but a strong second-place showing could really solidify NBC in its surge into second place over ABC in the overall weekly ratings.

NBC is spending more on "V" — about $1 million per episode — than any other series, including "Hill Street Blues" with its large cast. The show's producer, Robert Singer, says he plans at least one dynamic special effect and shocker each week. Nothing stands out, though, in tonight's episode.

Another drawback is that viewers who missed the miniseries will be confused by the first episode, and that has nothing to do with any complexities of the plot, which is the closest thing to a Saturday morning cartoon there is in prime time.

It's now Liberation Day, one year after the freedom fighters defeated the earthling-eating invaders with red dust, which did to them what Kryptonite did to Superman. Diana, one of the alien leaders, is on trial for "genocide, crimes against humanity and cannibalism."

"That's a matter of taste," says Diana (Jane Badler).

While Diana has been in protective custody, all your favorite resistance fighters have been flourishing:

Newsman Mike Donovan (Marc

Singer) is back playing street reporter after saving the world and resisting a cushy anchor job. "That's show biz; I'm a newsman," he says.

Elias (Michael Wright), another hero, now runs a disco, endorses the latest in galactic sneakers and is technical adviser on the movie, "Lizard Kill." (The best thing that can be said for "V" is that it never does take itself too seriously).

Dr. Julie Parrish (Faye Grant) is a scientific researcher for the corrupt corporate magnate Nathan Bates (Lane Smith), whose company, Science Frontiers, manufactures red dust.

Bates helps Diana escape tonight because he believes he can profit from the aliens' scientific discoveries, such as their cancer cure.

Then there is Elizabeth (Jenny Beck), the offspring of a human mother and alien father. Her medication isn't working so well, and she seems to be undergoing a metamorphosis. She travels to a cave and sprouts a cocoon.

Another returning star from the miniseries is former ABC News anchor Howard K. Smith, who, beginning with the third episode, will open each program with a "Television Free America" newscast, reporting on the war between us and them.

For as long as this series is around, put your money on a standoff.

Vanessa Redgrave Suing Symphony Orchestra For 1982 Cancellations

By CAROLYN LUMSDEN
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Actress Vanessa Redgrave testified Thursday that a booking agent feared she might be shot if she appeared with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, but the orchestra manager says he worried that her work with the Palestine Liberation Organization would cut Jewish contributions.

The Academy Award-winning actress is suing the orchestra for $5 million for canceling a series of performances in April 1982 because of her PLO sympathies.

Testifying Thursday in her own behalf for about an hour, Miss Redgrave angrily said: "People have got a right to decide if they want to see something themselves."

She said a "fantastic" number of people opposed her hiring to narrate Igor Stravinsky's "Oedipus Rex."

"We expected protest, but nothing like this," she said a booking agent told her a month before the performance. She quoted him as saying: "What will you do if you're shot?"

"I think that was a bit excessive, because what can you do," she said.

Her testimony was to continue Friday.

Orchestra officials contended more was at risk than just protests over the performance.

By sponsoring the famous PLO supporter, the orchestra could have lost the support of Jewish patrons, BSO general manager Thomas W. Morris said. "If we went ahead, it very well might affect fund-raising."

Miss Redgrave sparked an uproar in 1978 when she branded Jewish demonstrators "Zionist hoodlums" after receiving an Academy Award.

She became a center of controversy again in 1980 when she played a Jewish survivor of a Nazi death camp in the television movie "Playing for Time."

A member of the British left-wing Workers Revolutionary Party, she has narrated two documentaries by the PLO and accused Israel of crimes against Palestinians that "hideously mirror the crimes of the Nazis."

Miss Redgrave said in her suit that she lost her civil liberties with the cancellation of the contract with the Boston orchestra, and her attorney said the "blacklisting" cost her at least 14 months of work. She was expected to elaborate on that contention when she resumed testimony Friday.

Two famous artists have testified for opposite sides in the case.

Canceling her contract to narrate "Oedipus Rex" was "a dangerous precedent," said Peter Sellers, the 27-year-old theater director hired to stage the performance.

"If the Boston Symphony Orchestra acts this way, no one is safe," Sellers testified Tuesday. "Across the course of musical history, there is a rich history of disruption."

"I disagree that politics and music must live together," BSO music director Seiji Ozawa testified the next day. Music must remain neutral "to stay alive as an art."

Miss Redgrave, famous for her roles in such movies as "Camelot" and "Julia," has sued for breach of contract — $31,000 for the six performances scheduled for New York City's Carnegie Hall and western Massachusetts' Tanglewood — and $5 million for violation of her civil rights.

Sellers had hired Miss Redgrave in March 1982 after hearing that the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith would refrain from criticism, and the orchestra's management at first backed his choice, he testified.

But Sellers said he detected a "bunker mentality" as protests mounted from the Jewish community.

"If you know a big earthquake is coming," Ozawa testified, "you don't be on the 54th floor in Tokyo."

'Severe Storm' Floods Houston Area, Forcing Evacuations; 1 Feared Dead

By MICHAEL L. GRACZYK
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Creeks and bayous jumped their banks, forcing the evacuation of more than 100 homes and sweeping a woman away after more than 9 inches of rain fell from "one of the most severe storm" ever, authorities said.

The woman was missing and feared drowned after her car collided with two other vehicles and skidded down an embankment into a muddy bayou, police said. Waist-deep water forced residents in northern sections of Houston to board airboats, flatbed trucks or canoes and seek higher ground.

"I've got three feet of water in front of my house on the street," said Joe Davis, who lives just north of the city. "My garage is completely flooded. I've got about an inch under my kitchen door."

The storm, which dropped 9.32 inches of rain in the 24 hours ending at 7 p.m. Thursday, "will rate with one of the most severe storms we've had," said Jim Green, director of the area's Flood Control District.

Weather officials had feared the downpour would continue for another day, but it stopped Thursday night and the storm system shifted west.

"The worst appears to be over. This may get us out of the woods," said Bob Fields of the National Weather Service's office in Houston. Flood warnings were extended through the night because the water was slowly receding and drainage systems were filled, Fields said.

Police divers Thursday evening suspended their search for the woman whose car plunged into Braes Bayou on the city's south side. Because of currents, "that car could be in the Ship Channel by now," said diver D.L. Carlton.

Traffic was clogged and freeway feeder roads were blocked by stalled and abandoned cars. Tow-truck drivers did a booming business removing vehicles from the high water.

Students were rescued from a school bus that stalled in high water in Aldine, a northwest Houston suburb, said Ola Maxey, a clerk with the Harris County sheriff's office.

"So many streets are flooded we're not able to keep a list," Ms. Maxey said. "So many stalled cars are blocking the roads, we can't get through."

An elementary and middle school in Spring, about 20 miles north of Houston, were closed Thursday after principals had to wade through knee-deep water to the buildings, said spokesman Jerry Smith. There was no damage.

Hope For Obese In Wave Of New Surgery Advances

By STEVE WILSTEIN
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — New techniques are making stomach surgery, long denigrated as a form of quackery, a safe treatment for millions of Americans so obese their health is threatened, said doctors at the annual conference of the American College of Surgeons.

The surgical fee for his operation is $2,500 and is accepted by most insurance companies, he said.

Another technique, "vertical banded gastroplasty," was developed nearly four years ago by Dr. Edward E. Mason, of the University of Iowa, and Dr. Cornelius Doherty, of St. Francis Hospital in San Francisco.

Stomach surgery to treat obesity has been around since the early 1960s, but the recent improvements have made operations safer, quicker and available to more people, said Dr. Thomas J. Blommers.

In this operation, which costs about $2,000 plus hospital fees, a vertical partition is stapled inside the stomach. This creates a pouch that can accommodate a small meal.

"If a person eats more than the capacity allows, they vomit just like anyone would," Mason said. "They eat less, so they lose weight. They feel full with less food."

More than 7,000 such operations have been performed by about 100 surgeons around the country, they said. The average patient loses 60 to 70 percent of his excess weight in the first year.

One of the problems with all the surgical techniques is that "patients can out-eat the operation," said Blommers. These patients continue to eat so much they stretch the walls of the smaller pouches in the stomach. Reinforcements in the pouches reduce the chances of the stretching, but occasionally new operations are needed.

"The vast majority of patients who have the surgery now say they are very happy and would gladly go through it again," Blommers said.

"Obesity is an incurable disease," Blommers said. "These people have a tremendous desire to eat. It's not something they can control. Diets and behavior modification don't work. Obese people lose weight for awhile, but then gain it back."

"For these people, the only alternative is surgery," he said. "You control (the desire to eat), but you don't actually cure it."

One technique, developed by Dr. Lubomir I. Kuzmak of Newark, N.J., is to surgically implant a thin, dacron-reinforced, silicone band and wrap it around the stomach. The band presses into the stomach, dividing it into two parts with a small opening about the size of a dime between them.

The small capacity of the upper pouch limits the amount of food eaten at any meal and the small opening slows down the passage of food.

"The patients feel very comfortable," Kuzmak said. "So far there don't seem to be any side effects."

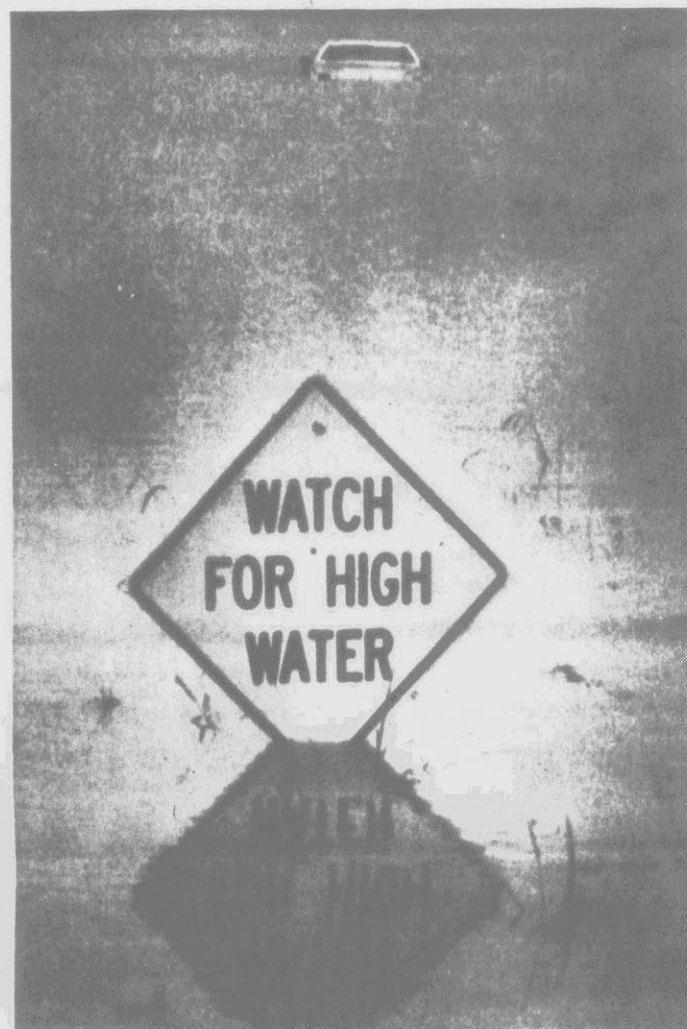

He said "gastric banding" has become popular in Scandinavia, and other doctors in the U.S. are using banding with different materials.

Burt Is Back

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Burt Reynolds is back at work on a new movie after being sidelined for about four months by an inner ear infection, kidney stones and a jaw problem, a spokesman says.

Reynolds, 48, is "doing terrific," Dave Gershenson said Thursday. "Burt is back at work ... on 'Stick' and will begin reshooting some scenes for about a week beginning Nov. 7. He got sick while they were filming the final scenes and they have to be done over."

In "Stick," adapted from an Elmore Leonard novel, Reynolds plays a man who stumbles into a murder and drug operation upon his release after seven years in prison. The movie also stars Candice Bergen.

SIGN OF TRUTH — A sign north of Houston warns of high water and it told the truth. Thursday the Houston area was hit with eight to nine inches of rain. Creeks and bayous were rising rapidly and streams in north Harris County were out of their banks. (AP Laserphoto)

TV Violence Decried At Washington Hearing

By MARGARET SCHERF
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Wooden toy cars that lasted many years in a pre-school playroom are easily destroyed by children who drive them like "mad" to imitate violent television heroes, says teacher Mary Ann Banta.

With the advent of increasingly violent TV shows, "I was forced to introduce into the block corner the concept of sensible driving, losing driving licenses and impounding of cars," Ms. Banta told a congressional hearing Thursday on television violence and its possible effects on children's behavior.

"Before the 'Dukes of Hazard,' they used to build really nice roads — now they have a tendency not to build roads and to drive like mad," she said.

"Each fall I wait with eager anticipation 'the new fall lineup'.

What defensive tactics am I going to have to develop this year to counter the new activities of the latest heroes?"

Crystal Snowden, one of Ms. Banta's pupils at the Early Childhood Center of the University of the District of Columbia, says she likes the "Dukes of Hazard" because the characters "jump" and "chase."

"We do it on our grandmother's sofa," the girl told Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee's subcommittee on juvenile justice.

Robert J. Keeshan, who played the TV role of Captain Kangaroo for many years on CBS, warned that a "steady diet of television viewing exposes our young people to considerable violence, dramatic violence."

"This diet of violence, has, in my opinion, created an immunity to the horror of violence. The young child may even come to believe that the use of violence is justified in problem solving."

Other witnesses said broadcasters should be encouraged to reduce the level of violence on television.

"The networks, their affiliates, and the cable stations should be held responsible for reducing and controlling the amount of violence shown on television," said Dr. John Murray, senior scientist and director of youth and family policy at the Boys Town Center Urban Program in Nebraska.

"However, I believe that parents, educators and researchers should work with policy makers to encourage television executives and advertisers to reduce television violence and increase pro-social programming."

He noted that legislation has been introduced in Congress designed to increase the number of children's programs by providing tax incentives for corporations to help pay for them or imposing legal obligations on networks to carry them.

But Specter said that even if a direct relationship can be shown between TV violence and aggression in children, First Amendment considerations probably would rule out any legislative efforts to change programs.

"There can be little doubt that experimental and field findings ... indicate a plausible causal relationship between the viewing of televised violence and subsequent aggressive behaviors," said Dr. David Pearl, chief of behavioral sciences research at the National Institute of Mental Health.

He cited a study that began in 1960 of the third grade of a New York State county. "The best single prediction of aggressiveness at 19 years of age turned out to be the violence of the television programs the subjects preferred when they were 8 years old," Pearl said.

However, Philip A. Harding, vice president of the Office of Social and Policy Research in the CBSBroadcast Group, said that "after years of hearings and official government reports, there is still no convincing evidence that television violence creates criminals or increases crime in our society."

Pearl said "we know that television presentations of various antisocial or violent acts have instigated imitations or what some have called 'copy-cat' behaviors."

But Harding said he believes "there exists among certain individuals a level of emotional pathology which, given the appropriate trigger necessarily manifests itself in violent and destructive ways. To the extent this trigger is an external one, it might be literally anything in the disturbed individual's environment."

Military Equipment Sales Big Business

By TIM AHERN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Rockwell International is proud of its new Hellfire missile, so proud it took out a two-page magazine ad with a picture of the new missile about to demolish a tank.

"Hellfire makes light work of heavy armor," read the headline. The ad went on to praise the new missile as "ideal for destroying a target with the first round."

The ad, in Aviation Week & Space Technology, is typical of those sponsored by defense contractors as they tout their vast array of military equipment.

ately, selling military equipment — is big business.

Although the Pentagon, with its $292 billion budget for this fiscal year, is the biggest supporter of the American defense industry, foreign customers also provide plenty of business.

They bought almost $20 billion worth of military equipment from U.S. defense firms in fiscal 1983. That figure exceeded $20 billion in fiscal 1984, although final figures aren't in yet for the period which ended Sept. 30.

The amount and type of arms sales is affected by a variety of factors, according to officials in the U.S. government and defense industries who spoke on condition they not be identified.

Democrats in Congress have claimed that the Reagan administration is indiscriminately selling weapons to almost any non-communist nation which wants them, a claim the administration denies.

In fiscal 1983, the Pentagon's foreign military sales program provided $17.5 billion worth of equipment to 72 nations and NATO. That was a decrease from the fiscal 1982 sales of $19.8 billion, but a large increase over the $7.2 billion sold in 1981.

By contrast, in fiscal 1980, the last full year of the Carter administration, the Pentagon approved $13.4 billion in foreign military sales.

Those sales are government-to-government only. In addition, the U.S. government also permits American defense contractors to sell directly to foreign governments, although those sales must be cleared through the State Department.

That category of sales accounted for $2.08 billion in fiscal 1983, up from the $1.79 billion of the previous year but below the $2.19 billion in 1981. In fiscal 1980, it was $1.96 billion.

One reason cited by officials for the decrease in sales last year was the global recession, which has particularly damaged debt-ridden Third World nations, often the most eager customers for Western arms.

Another factor is completion by a number of nations of rearmament programs started during the late 1970s, the officials suggested.

The United States sells equipment to a wide variety of nations — 101 in the past quarter century — but no sales are approved to Soviet-bloc nations.

Some of the U.S. arms, however, have wound up being used by both sides in a conflict. For example, the Saudi Arabian air force, using American-built F-15s, recently shot down American-supplied jets flown by the Iranian air force during the long-running Iran-Iraq war.

Under the shah of Iran, that nation was a strong U.S. ally and was second only to Israel as a buyer of American hardware.

Private Medicine

PEKING (AP) — China's public health minister, Cui Yueli, has called for the expansion of private medicine to improve health care across the country.

The minister, in an article for the national Guangming Daily newspaper, said retired doctors could open clinics or consultancies inside drug stores to issue prescriptions or give patients advice.

Ministry policy research director Ding Youhe said individuals have been permitted to set up private practice since 1980, but Cui called for a further relaxation of regulations.

Private practitioners can open their own drug stores and hire assistants. Retired doctors can do so without losing their state pensions, Cui said.

Attorney Not Ruling Out Possibility Of New Appeal For Condemned Killer

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — As her Nov. 2 execution date nears, condemned killer Velma Barfield has made decisions about her death and funeral, but has told attorneys to file for an appeal only if there's a good chance it would hold up, one of her lawyers said.

"If you'd seen her ... picking out what clothes she will wear in the casket and what songs will be sung at her funeral, you'd realize how real her death has become to her," attorney Jimmy Little said in a news conference Thursday.

Mrs. Barfield on Thursday selected execution by lethal injection, rather than by gas.

Little said Mrs. Barfield talked with him about the choice of execution methods and said, "There doesn't appear to be that much difference between the two" in terms of discomfort.

"What I noticed as we walked through it was she would not have to view the witnesses (under lethal injection) if she did not want to," he said.

Little said Mrs. Barfield also has asked about the feasibility of organ donations.

Working with attorneys from New York and Florida seeking new issues to raise, Little said a decision on a possible appeal was unlikely before Monday.

"We are advising her that in our opinion the issues that we have recommended are valid issues," he said. "I'm not at liberty at this point to go into what those issues are."

Little said only that some issues had never been brought up in court and others had been given new life by recent court decisions.

Mrs. Barfield previously asked that no further appeals be made on her behalf, but her faith and letters from other death-row inmates may have changed her mind, Little said.

"She's heard from several people on death row who feel she's just given up," he said. "That's never been the case."

If Mrs. Barfield decides that an appeal would do no more than bring another delay of execution, she won't permit it, Little said. Then attorneys would file affidavits to the appropriate courts to see that her wishes are honored, he added.

However, Little noted, "There's always the possibility of a third party stepping in."

Mrs. Barfield, who will turn 52 on Monday — four days before the execution — was convicted Dec. 2, 1978, of poisoning her boyfriend.

Contributions To Helms, Hunt Amount To Over $22 Million

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Political action committees gave almost 6 percent of the $557,182 in donations to Gov. Jim Hunt's campaign the first 17 days of this month and nearly 5 percent of the $1.2 million Sen. Jesse Helms raised, election reports show.

The Federal Election Commission reports released Thursday were the last to be submitted to federal officials before the Nov. 6 election.

By mid-month, contributions to both U.S. Senate candidates totaled $22,598,517, while spending totaled $21,826,365, the report shows. Helms, a Republican, continues to outpace Hunt, a Democrat, in donations and spending by an almost 2-to-1 margin. The candidates broke national spending records weeks ago.

The reports show that Hunt raised $557,182.81 from Oct. 1 through Oct. 17 compared to $1,219,898.22 for Helms. Hunt spent $535,514.93 during the period compared to $1,200,689.90 for Helms.

Hunt had raised $6,928,040.60 for the year through Oct. 17 compared to $9,827,771.56 for Helms. The Democrat had spent $7,088,439.47 during the period compared to $9,805,097.14 for Helms.

For the campaign through Oct. 17, Hunt had raised $8,397,932.08 and spent $7,827,752.81. The Republican incumbent had raised $14,200,585 and spent $13,998,613 for the campaign.

The Helms' re-election campaign paid 64 cents of every dollar to the National Congressional Club or Jefferson Marketing for advertising, postage, telephone or other services. The campaign spent $678,110.19 on advertising alone.

Formed in 1972 to retire Helms' campaign debt, the club and its relationship with Jefferson Marketing Inc. is being investigated by the FEC.

Meanwhile, the Hunt campaign paid $246,786.36, or 46 cents of every dollar, to D.H. Sawyer of New York for the production of commercials, surveys or fees.

Helms' PAC contributions included $2,000 from the NCNB PAC, $2,000 from the R.J. Reynolds Good Government PAC, $3,000 from Abbott Laboratories Better Government PAC, $9,000 from Auto and Truck Dealers Election Account, $5,000 from Conservatives Acting for Texas, $5,000 from Hardees Good Government PAC and $5,000 from the I Love America Committee.

Among Hunt's contributions were $5,000 from the N.C. Democratic Election Campaign Fund, $10,000 from the Steelworkers Political Action Fund, $5,000 from the National Council of Senior Citizens PAC, $2,000 from the R.J. Reynolds Good Government Fund, $7,100 from the Nurses Coalition for Action in Politics and $7,000 from the National Abortion Rights Action League PAC.

3 Death Sentences For Eddie Robinson

ELIZABETHTOWN, N.C. (AP) — Eddie Carson Robinson received three death sentences for his part in the slayings last spring of a Bladen County man, his wife and his step-daughter.

The jury that found him guilty Wednesday deliberated for an hour and 50 minutes before sentencing him to die Thursday for killing James Worley, his wife, Sheila Denise Worley, and her daughter, Psoma Baggett.

Superior Court Judge Hamilton Hobgood Jr. set an execution date of Jan. 4, but stayed his order because a death sentence is automatically appealed.

Last month Elton Ozell McLaughlin was convicted on the same charges and was sentenced to die for Worley's murder. He received two life sentences in the slayings of Mrs. Worley and 5-year-old child.

Robinson testified that McLaughlin had planned the murders and that he had only followed McLaughlin's orders.

Worley's body was found in his burning car about three weeks before Mrs. Worley and her daughter were killed.

Testimony at the two trials showed McLaughlin and Robinson shot Worley at his home and then set his body and car on fire at another location. Mrs. Worley was killed when McLaughlin and Robinson feared she would implicate them in her husband's death, according to testimony.

Mrs. Worley's body was found in her partially submerged car in a Bladen County creek. Psoma's body was found near the car, and Mrs. Worley's 18-month-old daughter was found alive on the front seat of the car.

Soviets Interested

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — Soviets want to know more about American society, but they must depend on unreliable sources of information, says a former KGB agent who is now a professor at American University.

Lecturing at Appalachian State University Thursday, Vladimir Sakharov said such sources include Communist Party publications and broadcasts, that are "50 percent false, 30 percent true and 20 percent middle of the road bologna."

Soviet coverage of the presidential elections, for instance, has stressed that the Communist Party will be placed on the ballots of at least 34 states, showing that the U.S. houses a serious Communist movement.

Council Takes Perez Family To Court

By BILL CRIDER

Associated Press Writer

POINTE A LA HACHE, La. (AP) — The Perez family once ruled oil-rich Plaquemines Parish as though the Louisiana county were an Arab sheikdom.

But then the two sons of Leander Perez, the founder of the political dynasty downriver from New Orleans, fumbled away their political inheritance.

Today the Perezes face a marathon court fight instigated by the Plaquemines Parish Commission Council they once virtually owned.

The suit accuses the late Leander Perez of having diverted what should have been millions of dollars of parish, or county, money to his own pockets.

The legal battle is bogged down in two sideline skirmishes.

In one, a state appeals court decided the family could keep secret the payments it got over the past 50 years from oil and natural gas leases handled by their Delta Development Inc.

The council has decided to appeal that ruling to the Louisiana Supreme Court.

"I think we are compelled to appeal, since we represent the taxpayers," said Luke Petrovich, a councilman who once was Leander Perez's right-hand man but now leads the forces that brought down the dynasty.

This aspect of the case dealt only with a Perez bid for a protective order forbidding public disclosure of information which the family-owned company might have to disclose to the opposition during "discovery" prior to trial.

Thus far, the only transaction revealed in the court record was $21 million that Gulf Oil Corp. paid to Delta from 1973 to 1983. Gulf is just one of many oil companies involved.

Meanwhile, a state district judge is pondering the Perez claim that the recovery suit filed by the council came too late and should be dismissed.

Council attorney John Schupp said nothing was done earlier because the Perezes controlled the legal machinery. Any move to investigate was crippled and killed by court injunctions or indictments, he said.

"Lots of chutzpah," said Schupp. Judge G. William Swift of Lake Charles, the retired jurist appointed to referee this fight, said he expects to rule some time in December.

If it survives, the suit remains a long way from trial. It is a bonanza for lawyers, since odds are it could drag on for decades.

"This is what is known as a 'career case,'" Assistant Attorney General Kendall Vick said as he read a newspaper report on one of the legal maneuvers. "By that, I mean some of the lawyers in it may do nothing else for years."

Though the suit to recover millions upon millions of dollars may not succeed, the mere fact that it was filed would have seemed ridiculous a few years ago.

Leander Perez, one of the founders of the old Dixiecrat Party and a fervent racist, died in 1969. His acute political instincts enabled him to run Plaquemines Parish for a half-century.

Plaquemines lies downriver from New Orleans. It's flat country. Parts of it are green with orange groves, but it's mainly marsh, barely above sea level. The only dry ground is near the Mississippi River and that peters out at Venice, population 27,000, the last town reachable by road.

While Leander Perez was district attorney, an abundance of oil, natural gas and sulphur was discovered in the marsh.

From 1936 to 1938, the two levee boards in the parish granted mineral leases to Delta Development, secretly owned by Perez, on thousands of acres that later became oil and gas fields.

When Perez died 14 years ago at 77, he left Plaquemines Parish to his two sons, Chalin and Leander Jr.

Between them, they held the reins of power. In 1979, for reasons known only to themselves, they began fighting each other. Before it was over they had lost their total control over Plaquemines.

"It was like a Greek tragedy or, as some say, a biblical story," said Petrovich.

Chalin Perez, 61, the younger, was installed as president of the Commission Council in 1969. Now he is out of office, having stepped aside rather than risk a losing bid for re-election. Leander Jr., 63, is still district attorney but leaves office at year's end, having also decided not to run.

Pahaquarry Overlooks Its Own Mayor's Race

PAHAQUARRY, N.J. (AP) — In this age of multimillion-dollar campaigns that compete for the public's attention, a rural mountain town with 25 residents forgot it was supposed to have an election for mayor.

As a result, Warren County officials and the attorney for the 20-square-mile town a short distance from the Delaware River Gap are scratching their heads over what to do when Mayor Donald von Hagen's term on the three-member township committee ends Dec. 31.

Joan Wilson, an official with the Warren County clerk's office, said Thursday that the problem began before the June primary when the town certified that there was no local office to be filled this year.

Based on the certification, the ballots went to the printer on Oct. 5 without any reference to local elections here, Mrs. Wilson said.

But a short time ago, von Hagen was reading a newspaper listing of municipal races in the area and he noticed a critical omission.

"There was none listed for Pahaquarry and I knew there had to be one," observed the mayor.

Von Hagen said he has "no idea" what the town, about 60 miles northwest of New York City, will do now.

Calls to the law office of the town attorney were not returned.

Mrs. Wilson, who said she has never seen a similar situation in the 25 years she has worked for the county, said the town with its 20 registered voters most likely will have to conduct a special election later in the year.

Other officials suggested that the town could conduct a write-in vote, a relatively easy task since it would be feasible to notify everyone in town by letter.

Opening lead: King of ♦.

Being too passive on defense gives away many a contract by allowing declarer time to develop suits. Being too active can sin in other ways, as this hand from the trials to select Canada's team for the current World Team Olympiad proves.

South's jump to four hearts on a hand with only one ace, no fit for partner's suit and some wasted values in clubs is open to question — three hearts seems sufficient. No fault can be attached to North for his leap to a slam that had no play — until West chose to lead a hand!

The opening lead of the king of diamonds was, to say the least, adventurous. Declarer, Joe Silver of Montreal, now had a chance. He won the first trick and crossed to the king of hearts, cashed the king-queen of clubs and got back to dummy with the queen of hearts to lead the ace of clubs. East would have done well to let declarer discard his spade on the ace of clubs, which would still have beaten the contract a trick, but he chose to ruff and declarer overruffed. Declarer now ran trumps to prepare for this four-card ending:

♥ 8 ♥ J9
♦ 108 ♠ J6

When declarer now leads his last trump, East is forced to sluff a high spade, as does dummy. East is now thrown on lead with a spade and he has to lead away from his diamonds into declarer's combined tenace, giving declarer two more tricks in that suit and his slam.

However, East saw the ending coming and he sluffed his diamonds in the hope that his partner had started with king queen. That was 12 tricks the easy way.

Robot Census

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau, which has been enumerating the American people since 1790, is planning to begin counting robots, too.

"This will be the first time we have attempted to collect information on robots," says Thomas Mesenbourg, assistant division chief for the bureau's Current Industrial Reports.

"There has been a lot of talk about how rapidly this industry will grow in the next 10 years, so we are trying to get in on the ground floor" in keeping statistics on the robot industry, Mesenbourg explained in an interview Thursday.

Currently awaiting approval from the Office of Management and Budget, the bureau has proposed to launch the count in January, requesting data from firms which manufacture robots. The final report should be out by next September.

The count, which is expected to cost about $25,000, will help provide background data for industry and to prepare for the 1987 Census of Manufactures, Mesenbourg added. The funds for the initial survey will come from the Census Bureau's budget.

The count is primarily concerned with robot products for industrial use, such as those becoming more and more common on assembly lines and in the welding industry.

However, the census forms will also provide for collection of information on robots for home use, in the event that becomes a larger share of the market in the future.

The Census Bureau takes a formal census of manufacturing firms every five years and conducts annual surveys of industrial productions to keep the figures up to date. Currently those efforts count robots under a variety of categories depending on the end use of the robot — as a welding tool, for instance.

Property Taxes, Salaries Down For City Governments

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's cities and towns are spending a smaller share of their budgets on salaries than in the past, and property taxes are declining as a source of income, the Census Bureau reported Thursday.

Salaries and wages accounted for 34.9 percent of all spending by municipal governments in 1982, down from 41.7 percent in 1972, the bureau said.

Over the same decade, municipal income from property taxes fell from 26 percent of all receipts to 16.9 percent for the 2,771 cities and towns with 10,000 or more residents, the report said.

Overall, these municipalities had income of $115.5 billion and spent $112.8 billion in 1982. That compares with 1972 totals of $42.1 billion in income and $43.7 billion in expenditures.

While salaries and wages grew with inflation, overall employment by municipalities has gone up and down during the decade. From 2,029,000 workers in 1972, employment peaked in 1979 at 2,190,000 and then began falling, dipping to 2,079,000 as of 1982, the study found.

During the same period, local initiatives seeking to cut or limit taxes have forced cities and towns to reduce their dependence on property taxes as a source of income.

For the first time, in fact, property taxes fell from first place as a source of municipal revenues, being supplanted by revenue from utilities.

The utility category includes government-owned and -operated water supply, electric light and power, gas supply and transit systems.

Cities and towns collected $20.5 billion in utility revenues in fiscal 1982, or 17.7 percent of all income, the report said. That was up from $5.8 billion, or 13.9 percent of income a decade earlier.

In 1982, property taxes raised $19.5 billion, or 16.9 percent of all revenues. That compared with $10.9 billion in 1972, when such taxes amounted to 26 percent of revenues for municipalities.

Cities and towns also collected $19.0 billion in state aid in 1982, up from $8.4 billion in 1972. But the percentage of revenues from that source dropped to 16.5 percent from 20 percent over the decade.

Other major sources of income for municipalities included charges and fees, $12.5 billion; federal assistance, $10.2 billion; and sales taxes, $10.2 billion.

Besides being the biggest source of funds, utilities also were the biggest source of spending by cities and towns, with expenditures of $23.6 billion, or 20.9 percent of all spending. That was up from $6.3 billion in 1972, when it was 14.4 percent of spending.

Other major expenses for towns and cities were education, $10.1 billion; police protection, $9.9 billion; highways, $6.9 billion; sewerage, $6.4 billion; and fire protection, $5.4 billion.

The education expenses amounted to 8.9 percent of all spending, down from 13.4 percent a decade earlier. Other changes in percentages of municipal spending included police, 8.8 percent, down from 9.1 percent; highways, 6.1 percent, down from 6.4 percent; sewerage, 5.6 percent, up from 4.5 percent; and fire, 4.8 percent, down from 5.1 percent.

Over the 10-year period surveyed, the municipalities increased their outstanding long-term debt from $45.9 billion to $93.6 billion, but short-term debt fell from $6.7 billion to $4.8 billion.

Fishermen Fear New Boundary Changes

By FRED BAYLES
Associated Press Writer
NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — Paydays for David Gregory used to be a big deal: $1,700 for 10 days of hard work aboard a fishing boat. But poor catches have cut the figure in half in recent months, and now Gregory thinks his paycheck is about to take another tumble.

"It's the decision," says the 38-year-old fisherman. "It's going to hurt everybody."

Gregory isn't alone in his fears. From the busy docks of New Bedford to the lobster piers in Maine, fishermen are holding worried discussions about "the decision" — a World Court ruling that denies them a fertile swath of the North Atlantic's Georges Bank they have fished for generations.

The court's ruling goes into effect on Friday.

"We fish there very heavily. I don't know if we can make it up," said Tom Brancalone, a 43-year-old Gloucester captain who has been going out to the northeast peak of the Georges Bank since he was a 17-year-old boy on his father's ship.

"The impact is very hard. It's brought a hardship to the whole industry," he said.

The World Court's Oct. 12 ruling ended a boundary dispute over a 30,000-square-nautical-mile area that began in 1976 when the United States and Canada extended their territorial claims to overlapping areas 200 miles out to sea.

The two countries agreed to submit the dispute to the international court after the U.S. Senate refused to ratify a 1979 treaty that called for joint management of the Georges Bank.

The international court's decision gave the United States a major portion of the disputed area. But when the international jury drew new boundary lines, Canada received a section of shoals rich with scallops and an abundant spawning ground for finfish.

The impact may be significant. According to the National Marine Fisheries Service, 55 percent of the pollack caught by New England fishermen — and 25 percent of the total U.S. pollack harvest — comes from the area now off limits to Yankee fishermen.

The section also accounts for 35 percent of the yellowtail flounder and scallop brought back to New England's fish piers. The loss could cut U.S. catches in those categories by as much as 20 percent, the fisheries service said.

The boundary changes will affect those who traditionally fish closer to the U.S. shore. John Rittgers, executive director of the National Marine Fisheries regional office in Gloucester, said the new restrictions will crowd U.S. fishermen in a smaller area, increasing competition for the already dwindling supplies of fish.

"It's sort of like an apple orchard on a public common. If the apples in the neighboring town die and the people come over to your town, there are fewer apples to go around," he said.

The boundary change comes at a bad time for New England fishermen who have seen boom turn to bust in recent years.

The fishing industry grew rapidly in the late 1970s when the extension of the 200-mile limit barred foreign fishing fleets from Georges Bank. But New England's fish harvest has been dropping since the early 1980s. Fishery officials say the catch at major New England ports is down by 25 million pounds this year.

Fishermen, already squeezed by high insurance and interest rates, also face new fishery restrictions on the size of their nets, which would allow smaller fish to escape and spawn.

"We're trying to tighten up our belts to make the requirements," said Brancalone, who is president of the New England Boat Owner's Association. "But everybody has big mortgages to make. The way it looks, I don't think we can survive for much longer."

Peter Doeringer, director of Boston University's Institute of Employment Policy, said he worries that New England's 13,000 full-time fishermen — and their communities — are facing economic hard time..

"For every job in the fishing and processing industry, there's another job lost in the community," he said.

Expedition Leader Dies On Everest

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — The Nepalese leader of an expedition to clean up refuse on Mount Everest, the world's highest mountain, died on the mountain Thursday, according to a radio message from the team's base camp.

The camp provided no other details of the death of Inspector Yogendra Thapa, 36, of the Nepalese Police Mountaineering and Adventure Foundation.

Thapa, an experienced mountaineer, was clearing up piles of garbage left by previous expeditions along the traditional southeast route up the 29,028-foot peak.

Apart from cleaning the trail littered with oxygen bottles, scraps of tents and tins of food and fuel, Thapa's group is also undertaking the task of retrieving the bodies of half a dozen climbers who died on the upper parts of the mountain.

Three Americans — including rancher and ski resort owner Dick Bass, 54, of Dallas — had participated in the cleanup operation at the invitation of the Nepalese police.

However, they were ordered off the mountain last week when a part of the Katmandu press alleged that Bass "bought" the police to scale the peak by "queue jumping." Reservations to climb it are booked until 1997.

Bass denied the charges and said Thursday at a press conference in Katmandu that he was with group with the objective of preserving the environment and "since cleaning would take place all the way to the top."

However, the Nepalese Tourism Ministry, which controls mountaineering affairs in the country, rejected his request for a permit.

In Peking today, the Chinese Mountaineering Association reported that 33-year-old Philip M. Ershler of Seattle had become the first American to scale Everest this year.

He reached the summit last Saturday, the association said in a statement.

There was no explanation provided for the six-day delay in reporting Ershler's success. The association obtains information on mountaineering expeditions via short-wave radio.

Ershler is a member of a team led by Louis W. Whittaker, which includes 12 climbers and 10 assistants.

Legislative Help

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner says he will ask the Legislature to pay the state's share for seven canker-infested citrus nurseries and producers who were forced to burn seedlings.

U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block on Thursday widened an "extraordinary emergency" declaration to include the citrus producers that bought seedlings at the seven infested nurseries. Burning is the only way to stop canker.
