Tiny Girl Lives With Baboon's Heart

LOMA LINDA, Calif. (AP) — A 15-day-old girl who faced certain death from her own underdeveloped heart was in "remarkably stable condition" Saturday, one day after her organ was replaced with that of a baboon in a historic transplant operation, a doctor said.

"She has good blood pressure. She's opening and closing her eyes. Her chest X-rays have been good. Her blood oxygen levels are appropriate," Dr. Leonard L. Bailey said in a statement released by Loma Linda University Medical Center spokesman Dick Schaefer.

Bailey, who headed the surgical team of more than a dozen people at the hospital 60 miles east of Los Angeles, said "Baby Fae" seemed to have recovered from anesthesia, her neurological signs were normal and she had suffered no seizures.

"The mother is now giving her love," Bailey said. "The baby is in remarkably stable condition."

She passed her first 24 hours with the baboon heart at 11:35 a.m. PDT, hospital officials said.

Sandra Nehlsen-Cannarella, an immunologist who was a member of the operating team, called the case "one of the biggest, overdue advances in our field."

Only four ape-to-human heart transplants have been performed previously, all in adults. Only one recipient survived more than a few hours, living for 3½ days.

No human heart was available for "Baby Fae," born slightly premature two weeks ago with hypoplastic left heart syndrome, which always results in death within a few days, so doctors decided to use the baboon's heart.

The child, whose full name was withheld at the parents' request, was "doing remarkably well," Schaefer said as she came out of anesthesia. "She's on a respirator and she will be probably for a while.... She was stirring and opening her eyes."

Doctors said the infant had nearly died on her sixth day.

The child's mother told the Barstow Desert Dispatch she had taken the ailing newborn home on Oct. 16, expecting the worst, but the baby surprised both mother and doctors.

"She had trouble breathing, and she slept a lot but she was alert when she was awake," the mother said. But she said her daughter "wouldn't be alive today if she weren't in the hospital."

Schaefer said there was "hopeful optimism" that the child could have "a long life" with the ape's heart, based on studies by Bailey.

"In his animal research, he's had animals go from infancy to adulthood and experience pregnancy and delivery (with transplanted hearts), so hope springs eternal that she'll have an active and normal life," Schaefer said.

The research team said in a news release that it hopes to perform four more such baboon-to-infant transplants on an experimental basis.

Schaefer said there had been 200 telephone calls about the case, mostly from the media.

Fiddlin' Convention Opens Festival

Tobacco Show Gets Early Start

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

For the past seven years, the flue-cured tobacco season has enjoyed two endings.

The first, more traditional end has been signaled by final cries of "sold" on Bright Belt warehouse floors as auctioneers accepted closing bids on remaining bundles. The second, newer end, the Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival, comes a month after the last remnants of the year's work have been swept off warehouse floors.

This year will be no exception. Again the season will have two ends; the first has already come. The second began Saturday with the first annual Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival Fiddlin' Convention and will end Nov. 15 with a tobacco spitting contest on stage at the Tobacco Farmers Warehouse.

When the festival first began in 1977, the number of events were limited and did not include the variety of attractions the festival now sports today. Past and present changes, according to festival Executive Director Lynn Caverly Jobes, are due in part to the overwhelming response the festival has received each year.

In recognition of growing public interest, festival events have been expanded over the years, she said, to include not only tobacco related events but attractions to educate and draw those whose only knowledge of the tobacco farming process — which usually begins with bed preparation around the New Year and ends with the cutting of stalks in August or later — comes from the glimpses caught out of car windows on the way to and from work.

In addition to the traditional events connected directly with the process of farming tobacco — the Tobacco Farmer of the Year Award, the tobacco tying and grading contests, and the award for and auction of the best bundle — the tobacco festival has grown to include such events as a queen's contest,

FLAT PICKIN' WINNER — Self-proclaimed blue grass old timer Robert Carey of Garner won third place at the first Southern flue-Cured Tobacco Festival's Fiddlin' Convention with his rendition of "Blue Eyes Crying In The Rain." The judges had not been expected to award a third place prize, but they said Carey was "so tough" that they felt he deserved recognition.

Voter Cards Being Mailed

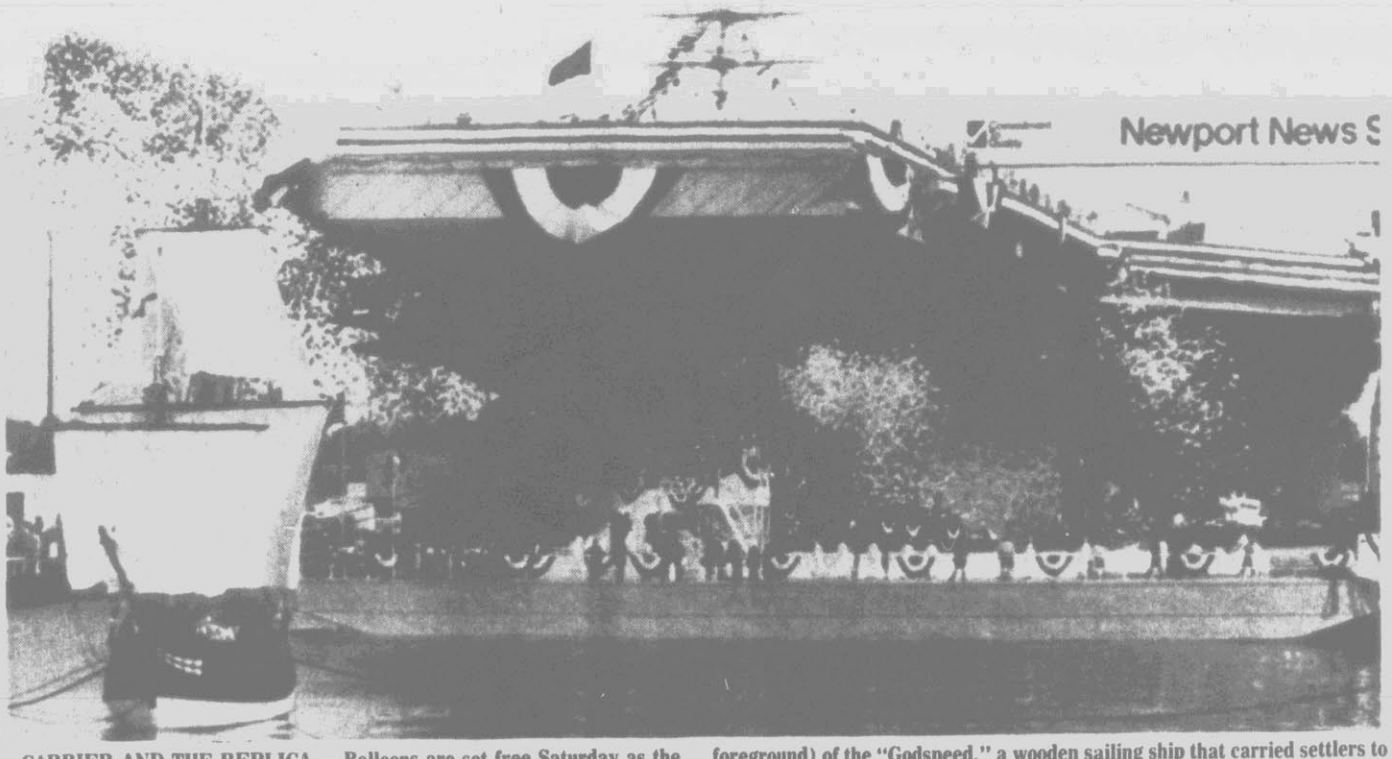
Pitt County residents who have registered to vote between June 1, 1983, and Oct. 8, 1984, will receive a pocket card shortly showing the precinct in which they are registered and the voting place.

Elections Supervisor Margaret Hardee said the cards will be mailed to some 5,000 persons who have registered since special registration commissioners and license examiners for the Department of Motor Vehicles began registering voters.

Similar cards for the other registered voters in the county — about 40,000 of them — will be at polling places to be picked up on Nov. 6., to save postage, Mrs. Hardee explained.

The elections official said the cards, in addition to including the precinct and voting place, will include such other information as the date of registration, the congressional, House and Senate districts, the township, and "tell you what would constitute grounds for cancellation."

Cards for persons registering in the future will be "issued automatically," according to Mrs. Hardee. "We want everybody to have one."



CARRIER AND THE REPLICA — Balloons are set free Saturday as the nuclear powered aircraft carrier "Theodore Roosevelt" is dedicated at the Newport News, Va., shipyards. The 1,092-foot vessel dwarfs a replica (left foreground) of the "Godspeed," a wooden sailing ship that carried settlers to Jamestown, Va., in the 17th century. The Roosevelt will carry 6,000 crewmembers and 100 airplanes on its 14 decks. (AP Laserphoto)

Safe Halloween Urged By Police

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville police want local area children — the witches, ghosts and goblins who will be trick-or-treating this Halloween — to use caution and obey safety rules while on their rounds Wednesday.

Chief Ted Holmes said most children are thrilled at the thought of trick-or-treating. Parents on the other hand, may be apprehensive about their children participating in the annual tradition, Holmes said, because of the posibility of candy tamperings.

While candy tamperings may not be common place, "precautions against them should be taken and children should be advised of other safety rules in order to assure a safe Halloween," Holmes said.

He noted that the candy industry has established a toll-free Holloween Hot Line designed to "help parents to tell the non-problems from the real ones."

If parents have any questions or concerns about Halloween candy, Holmes said, they may call 1-800-443-1200, or the police department.

Community Relations Officer James Tripp offered some other safety tips for trick-or-treaters.

He suggested that youngsters try to trick-or-treat when it is still light outside. "If you must go out at night, make certain that your costume is light in color or that you use reflective tape so people driving cars can see you," he said. "Carry a

Serious Crime On The Decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of serious crimes reported to the police during the first half of this year was 5 percent below the figure for the same six months of 1983, the FBI said Saturday.

Attorney General William French Smith called the half-year drop "another unprecedented development," because it followed the first two consecutive year-long declines since 1960.

During all of 1983, serious reported crime dropped by 7 percent from the year before, and in 1982 reported crime was 3.3 percent below the 1981 figure. During 1981, there was no statistically significant change from the previous year.

During the first half of 1984, overall violent crimes declined 2 percent while the total of the vastly more prevalent property crimes was down by 5 percent, the FBI said.

However, there are increases for four specific crimes. Rape increased 6 percent, aggravated assault 1 percent, motor vehicle theft 1 percent and arson, for which there were only incomplete figures, 2 percent.

Among violent crimes, murder declined 5 percent and robbery, 7 percent. In property crime, burglary was down 8 percent and larceny-theft declined 5 percent.

The overall decline during the first half of the year came in all regions of the nation, in cities of all sizes, suburbs and rural areas, the FBI said.

During this political season, President Reagan and Smith have claimed credit for the decline in crime.

In a statement accompanying the FBI report, the attorney general said, "This administration has made crime control a top national priority ... Reflecting a new resolve on the part of the American people, law enforcement at the federal, state and local levels is achieving unprecedented success."

Most academic experts have attributed the decline in crime to the movement of the post-World War II baby-boom generation past the crime-prone ages of 18 to 25. The decline has shown up in both the FBI reports and in the Justice Department's national surveys, which are based on hundreds of thousands of interviews each year and are considered more accurate.

While Smith has acknowledged a role for demographic explanations, he and other administration officials prefer to stress increases in the number of prison inmates to record levels, citizen watch programs and a general tougher stance toward crime.

The family requests that in lieu of flowers that any contributions be made to the music fund at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church in Greenville.

Schedules Revised

WASHINGTON (AP) — Starting Sunday, passengers at six of the nation's busiest airports will have fewer flights from which to choose during the peak morning and evening travel periods, but the government hopes they also will have to cope with fewer delays.

With the end of daylight-saving time, airlines will begin winter schedules that include hundreds of flight schedule adjustments worked out by industry representatives in September.

Figures from the Federal Aviation Administration, meanwhile, show that the persistant flight delays have not eased since the summer, although vacation travel tapered off after Labor Day. In recent weeks, in fact, the number of delays has increased from the peak set in August.

The FAA said that during the first 24 days of October, there were an average of 1,556 delays a day of 15 minutes or more, compared with an average of 1,431 a day during August.

The Civil Aeronautics Board last week unanimously approved the schedule changes worked out by the airlines. The carriers already had incorporated them into their computerized winter schedules weeks ago.

The more than 1,300 schedule changes at the six airports — Kennedy International and LaGuardia in New York City, Newark, N.J.; O'Hare in Chicago, Atlanta and Denver — are aimed at limiting the bunching of flight arrivals and departures during the popular morning and early evening hours.

cheerleading contest, a junior tobacco football bowl game, pipe smoking contest, quilting and craft exhibitions, clogging and beach dancing competitions and shows, and an antique car show.

Other attractions include the South Atlantic States High School Art Exhibit and awards program and the Tobacco Farmers Show, Nov. 13-15, where farmers from North and South Carolina, Georgia, Virginia and Flordia, and tobacco industries and other related businesses will display their wares.

According to Ms. Jobes, the only new event in this year's celebration was the Fiddlers' Convention held at the Carolina Opry House Saturday. Winners were: Junior Fiddlin' Competition — Chris Hill of Kinston, first place, David Quinn of Newport, second place; Adult Fiddlin' — Lane Hollice of Wilson, first place, Lee Riggs of High Point, second place, and Robert Carey of Garner, third place; Banjo Pickin' — Lane Hollice, first place, Nancy "Banjo" Sluys of Greenville, second place; Flat Pickin' — Mike "Lightnin'" Wells of Greenville, first place, John Worthington of Greenville, second place. Taking first place in blue grass band competition were the Home Town Boys with John Worthington on guitar, Mike Wells on madolin and guitar, Lane Hollice on fiddle and banjo, and Howard Hill on bass fiddle.

Last year's Tobacco Farmer of the Year, Wayne Kirby of Wilson, is an avid fan of both the festival and the Tobacco Farmer Show. "They're ... the best things there's ever been for tobacco," he said. "They help pull the people together from the five flue-cured states, and it's a real boost to farmers. ... We've got enough problems in tobacco, as we know. But after it (the festival and show), I'm inspired to do better."

flashlight so you can see and be seen easily."

Tripp suggested that "the safest thing is for parents to go trick-or-treating with their children." Otherwise, children should not accept treats from strangers" and in any case "only call on homes with lighted porches or with exterior lights on."

According to Tripp, "plan your trick-or-treat route ahead of time," selecting only streets that are well lighted, and cross streets only at corners and never cross the street between parked cars.

"If there is no sidewalk, walk facing traffic," he said.

Face masks, according to Tripp, can keep children from seeing well. He said make-up can be used instead of a mask, but suggested that if masks are used, they should be taken off, and children should look both ways to make sure no cars are coming before crossing a street.

Tripp also said drivers should be especially watchful for children that might dart out into the street.

Holmes, suggesting that homeowners turn on outside lights after dark, said the light will make it safer for children traveling through the neighborhood and might deter acts of vandalism.

The chief said the department will have extra people downtown to handle the larger-than-normal crowd expected in the area for Halloween. But he said no unusual problems are expected.

Racial Brawling Injures Inmates

DENVER (AP) — A brawl erupted Saturday among about 70 Hispanic, Indian and black inmates at the Federal Correctional Institution west of here, injuring 11 prisoners, a spokesman said.

The fight broke out about 11:15 a.m. in an open area fronting several dormitory rooms at the prison, and spilled back into some of the dorm rooms, said Art Espinoza, executive assistant to the warden.

Espinoza said an investigation started immediately after the brawl showed it possibly was "racially motivated," and involved "Hispanic and Indian inmates, and the black inmates."

Espinoza said 11 inmates were hurt, most of them suffering cuts and bruises to the head and neck.

He said seven were taken to Swedish Medical Center or St. Anthony Hospital. Six were treated and returned to the prison, and one inmate — Gerronie Sanders, 31 — was admitted to St. Anthony with a stab wound.

Sanders, serving a 10-year sentence for robbery and theft from Washington, D.C., was listed in serious condition Saturday night at St. Anthony, said a nursing supervisor who refused to give her name.

The prison was placed under a security lockdown after the fight.

"All activities have been suspended until further notice," Espinoza said.

He said the institution is one of two in the nation accepting federal inmates from across the nation who have been sentenced under the Youth Corrections Act, which covers offenders aged 18-26. The other institution is in Morgantown, W.Va., he said.

There are currently 405 inmates at the facility, which is about a mile west southwest of Denver, Espinoza said.

Condemned Man Awaits Execution

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Condemned killer Earnest Knighton was moved to the Louisiana State Penitentiary "death house" Saturday, while his lawyers awaited word on their bid for a reprieve from the governor.

Knighton is scheduled to die early Tuesday morning for the March 17, 1981, murder of Bossier City service station attendant Ralph Shell. Knighton has admitted he shot Shell, but said he didn't mean to kill him.

Joe Doss and Julian Murray, New Orleans attorneys representing Knighton, said Friday that they had submitted new evidence to Gov. Edwin Edwards showing that Bossier City police obstructed the work of his trial lawyer.

The governor has been out of town and has not responded to the lawyers' request.

Peggy H. Wood of Greenville was chosen president-elect of the American Medical Record Association recently. She becomes a member of the AMRA's Board of Directors and will be installed as president next October.

Ms. Wood is chairman of the department of medical record science in the school of allied health and social work at East Carolina University. She received her master's and bachelor's degrees from ECU. She is a past president of the North Carolina Medical Record Association.

Scout Meet

The Pitt District Scout Commissioners will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Cherry Oak clubhouse.

The agenda includes discussions of the N.C. 400th Celebration Fall Camporee at Bath, why persons are needed in Scouting, volunteering and commissioner orientation.

According to Bill Plueddemann, there are about 60 Scout units in the Pitt District that could benefit by having commissioners assigned to them.

"Any man or woman interested in this type of service is welcome and encouraged to attend. If nothing more than to see the side of Scouting that is always there but not recognized," he said.

The Pitt District calendar for November is: Nov. 2-4, Historic Bath Fall Camporee; Nov. 8, district annual banquet at the Moose Lodge; Nov. 10, New Club and Dad Day; Nov. 16-18, Order of Arrow Fall Fellowship; Nov. 17, Club Pow Wow in Wilson; Nov. 20, Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts Leaders Roundtable at Red Oak Christian Church, and Nov. 27, district committee meeting.

Seminar

"What If Suddenly Single," a seminar sponsored by the Martin County Council on the Status of Women, will be held Nov. 3 at Martin Community College in Williamston.

Speakers will include Ann Heffelfinger Barnhill, a Greenville attorney, and Dr. Mary Ann Rose, assistant to the chancellor for special assignments/director of equal opportunity programs at East Carolina University.

A chicken pastry supper, sponsored by the Boosters Club, will also be held in the school's cafeteria.

Program Offered

Dance Slimnastics, an aerobic dance and exercise program, will be offered by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department beginning Nov. 5.

Classes will meet at Elm Street Center Mondays and Wednesdays, and Tuesdays and Thursdays, at 7 p.m. each night. Fee for the six-week session will be $22. The open class policy allows participants to visit the other classes at no extra charge.

Registration will be at the first class meeting. For more information, call 752-4137, ext. 248.

Mock Election

D.H. Conley High School history students will hold a mock election Thursday at 7 p.m. in the school auditorium. A debate will be held, followed by the mock election in which results will be tabulated on a statewide and national basis. Anyone present may vote and the event will be open to the public.

Swimming Classes

The classes, taught by a Red Cross certified instructor, will meet for four weeks on Monday and Wednesday nights from 7-8 p.m. Fees for a lifeguard and use of the pool are $35 per person. Red Cross cards will be issued at the end of the session.

If interested, contact the aquatics staff at 758-4188, ext. 237, Monday through Friday.

Volunteers Asked

The Pitt County Chapter of the NAACP asks that anyone wishing to volunteer or to recommend someone to serve as an officer or member of the executive committee of the organization do so. Interested persons may contact Brenda Weathington, the secretary and convener of the nominating committee, 752-1358.

Sunday Concert

The Rock Island Singers will be in concert Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at St. Peter's Church in Christ, Seven Pines near Farmville.

Final Night

Arthur Chapel Church will observe its final night of pastor anniversary services Sunday at 7 p.m.

The Rev. Robert Gay of New Haven, Conn., will be the guest speaker. The Crisp Chapel Choir and the St. James Choir of Fountain will render music.

Activity Night

Tabernacle of Victory Church on Bethel Highway will sponsor an activity night for children Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

Several movies will be featured, including "The Big Banana Caper" and "The Cave Bears." Games and prizes will also highlight the event.

FARMING SPOKEN HERE

Maynard Waters was born on a family farm. He was an FFA member at Bath High School, a state FFA officer and earned the American Farmer Degree. As a farmer, he has raised hogs, cattle, corn, soy beans, tobacco, sweet corn, cucumbers and strawberries.

Maynard Waters knows the needs of our farmers and he will insure that they are represented in Raleigh.

Maybe you should consider where you'll be in 150 years.

The thought of it isn't pleasant. But your own bodily mortality is some thing somebody's going to have to deal with sooner or later.

So, instead of putting on blinders, why don't you consider the options? Find out a little about what happens after you pass away. The laws and the facts that govern the cemetery business. When you do, we're certain you'll see the advantages that Pinewood Memorial Park, managed by S.G. Wilkerson and Sons, offers over new, private ventures.

Just what is 'Perpetual Care'?

The State of North Carolina requires privately-owned cemeteries to meet certain requirements in order to call themselves 'Perpetual Care' cemeteries.

The law requires that a certain amount from the sale of each grave be set aside in a fund. Interest earned from the dollars in that fund is required to be used for upkeep in the cemetery.

However, S.G. Wilkerson and Sons, has never considered the required amount to be sufficient. Therefore, over the years, the contributions to the fund have been much larger than the amount required.

The results are obvious. With a 25-year growth of mature centipede sod, the cemetery grounds are now beautiful. The infrequent maintenance problems are quickly attended to. Plot buyers in Pinewood select from the grounds themselves, not from a notebook of what cemetery owners hope the grounds will look like years from now. Fact is, it takes years of careful maintenance for a cemetery to really look groomed and cared for.

And all Pinewood graves have the low profile and dignity of a flat bronze marker – better for everyone. What may surprise you the most is the fact that the total Pinewood Memorial Park costs are less, not more, than "package deals".

Let us tell you more. We'd like to explain more. Because we'd like you to make an informed decision about this matter which you and your family should take seriously.

The Wilkerson family has been in this business for many years. So talk to us before you buy anything. We'll respect your decision. But we want you to be sure you know what you're doing.

Jim Hunt Shows Leadership That Is Needed

We have witnessed a campaign for the U.S. Senate seat which is the most expensive in history. It has been a bitter fight with Democratic candidate Jim Hunt and Republican candidate Jesse Helms exchanging sharp words in their televised debates.

Soon, however, all of us as voters will have to choose between the two. There has never been a more important vote to cast as it pertains to the future of North Carolina.

We submit that as governor, Jim Hunt has presided over conservative government in North Carolina. We have maintained a balanced budget, which, of course the law requires, but what is important is that we maintained a balanced budget through one of the worst recessions that the nation has faced since the 1930s. It required the freezing of salaries and the curtailment of other government activities, but it was done. Once the crisis was past Gov. Hunt was at the forefront in recommending better teachers salaries to meet a future crisis in the form of a teacher shortage.

Jim Hunt will apply the same conservative fiscal principles to the federal government as a U.S. senator. In a recent interview he said, "I'm opposed to a tax increase. I think we must cut the deficit drastically and immediately. In my first year in the Senate, I'm prepared to vote to cut spending by some $40 to $50 billion, and to vote for tax reforms, a primary loophole closing of about the same amount."

That is the kind of action we need in Washington to end the incredible annual deficits which the current administration is running up. We believe Jim Hunt will do what he says because he has demonstrated as governor that he has the will to deal with difficult financial times. We think he will use the skills he has shown as governor to win back friends to the tobacco programs — friends which Sen. Helms has lost in recent years. We believe Hunt will approach other national problems with equal understanding and vigor.

Armageddon Theory Elusive

It tells you something about the futility of injecting religious concepts into government or politics when American churchmen argue over President Reagan and the "Armageddon theory".

They settled nothing; didn't even stir up much dust.

The Armageddon Theory? It's one of the latter day interpretations of a brief passage in the Book of Revelations. Armageddon is traditionally identified as the scene of the final clash between good and evil in the world; it is also sometimes referred to as the actual clash. (There is a hill by that name, in central Palestine across the Plain of Esdraelon from Nazareth.)

Over the years President Reagan has occasionally mentioned Armageddon in conversation; just as there are individuals who sometimes talk about stories of unreal terror by Stephen King. It's no big deal, but it concerns some people.

They voice dismay over a possibility of self-identification with aspects of the so-called "theory" which says a nuclear war will happen and that the United States would be an instrument of God in waging such a war. Some say extremists who promulgate the "theory" believe nuclear Armageddon is inevitable and imminent.

Sources of the Armageddon Theory are not identified. There was no mention of their presence at the gathering of churchmen.

The thought persists that extending apocalyptic speculation into the realm of politics might have an ulterior motive.

Sunday Morning Notes

There are phones which answer calls and take messages, redial the last number, dial any number of pre-selected numbers.

Some phones hang up when you put them in the table, others are amplified so that everyone in the room can hear. There is a phone built into the television set so that one can answer it without ever leaving the favorite armchair. Of course, there are all types of cordless phone. You can answer one and go anywhere in the house as you talk. You can even go outdoors. Most cordless phones also allow you to take the phone outside where it will ring when a call comes.

There are also Mickey Mouse phones for the kids and fancy French type phones for the bedroom. For the most part now you buy your phone where ever you wish and connect it with a modular plug which you can install yourself.

It's all a long way from the time when you could have any color phone you wanted so long as it was black. Then you paid a flat fee for the phone service. The phone company installed everything and if the phone broke down they came and fixed it.

At any rate that service is now gone, because the decision was made by somebody that opening up the phone service would benefit the customer. Of course, the cost of phone service has gone up steadily since, but that's another story.

Something else that is rapidly disappearing is the voice of the friendly operator, once the pride of the phone systems.

A look back in old city directories of Greenville will show phone numbers of only four digets — and you didn't dial them, you picked up the receiver, gave the hook a couple of jiggles and an operator came on the line to ask the number you were calling. Once she got it, she completed the call and then you talked. Dial phones replaced that years ago, but still the friendly operator remained around for placing of long distance calls. Now that, too, is going, with direct dialing encouraged and computer voices sometimes substituting for that friendly voice. Directory assistance for long distance numbers is sometimes computerized and even if it isn't it is becoming costly.

This is not to criticize anybody. The phone company is caught up in a technological revolution just like everybody else. It costs big bucks to pay operators to talk to the subscribers, and consequently the operators are disappearing.

Oh well, Alexander Graham Bell never had in mind phone company operators talking to customers. He wanted an instrument on which phone customer could talk to phone customer. Now that is what we do, completely on an instrument we own.

Sam Was A Bouncer

In the role of Dude Lester in "Tobacco Road," Sam Byrd not only made a name for himself as an accomplished actor, the Mount Olive man also made Broadway history and Ripley's "Believe It Or Not" column. Byrd made history when he appeared in Erskine Caldwell's popular play about Southern sharecroppers 1,151 times without missing a single performance. The part won for Byrd the Literary Digest Award as the best young actor on Broadway in 1934. The part called for Byrd to bounce a rubber ball against the Lester house 30 times during each performance — which made a total of 34,530 bounces. He was featured in the Ripley column when he made more than 30,000 bounces. Byrd's record in turnip consumption was almost as impressive. The part called for him to eat two during each performance.

Bouncing that ball and catching it each time became a real responsibility as the number of performances mounted. It got tied up in theatrical superstition because some folks were convinced if he ever did miss, the morale of the whole company would be shot. Byrd used a Spalding squash ball given to him by Jack Kirkland, who adapted the play. Spalding offered Sam a dozen brand new balls for the privelege of displaying the old one in the window of its New York store. But he refused, saying the old one still had plenty of bounce.

Although Sam's performance as Dude, the dim-witted teenage son of Jeeter Lester, won him some attractive Hollywood offers, he vowed at one time to stick with "Tobacco Road" if it played forever. But after more than 1,100 performances, he decided he'd had enough. Although the play was still going strong, he quit. Ironically, he never saw "Tobacco Road" performed on the stage.

Sam, slender, blue-eyed and smart as a whip off stage, seldom missed a cue or forgot a line, but he showed he knew what to do when another member of the cast faltered. Once when he intoned as a entrance cue to Jeeter, "You're gonna die an git laid in the corncrib," Jeeter did not appear. Remembering the script called for him to have 17 brothers and sisters, Sam intoned, "An' Mary Jane's gonna die and git laid in the corncrib, an Sally's gonna die ..." He named about a dozen brothers and sisters before Jeeter finally appeared.

Sam said he quit the show finally because his friends were getting worried about him. "I was getting to act more like Dude than myself. I walked like him, talked like him ... I didn't have a decent haircut all those years as Dude. Besides breathing that dirt got into my sinuses and I had a $100 bill a month keeping well. I didn't mind eating all those turnips."

Byrd, the son of a prominent Mount Olive attorney, headed for New York and a stage career after three years at the University of Florida where he had dabbled in campus dramatics. He went with the blessings of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Cherry who had raised him since the death of his parents. Reportedly, his folks bankrolled him with the money set aside to pay his senior year tuition.

The Mount Olive youth was lucky. He did not have the long struggle most young people encounter in landing that first part on Broadway. In fact, Byrd landed parts in two plays in two months. He explained later how it happened:

"I met an old friend from down South while riding my first subway. I told him I had come up to go on the stage, and advised me to see Dan Reed who was then casting Julia Peterkin's 'Scarlet Sister Mary' for the Shuberts. There was a part in it for me, that of Unex, the little Negro kid."

After acquainting himself with the part and sleeking down his hair in the best Broadway tradition a la Rudolph Valentino, Byrd rushed over to Reed's office where he learned to his chagrin that the play had been set aside for that season. He did learn a valuable lesson, however, when Reed messed up his hair and advised him that there were "too many slickers on Broadway."

Three days later, however, Reed did call and suggested he try out for the role of a crippled farm boy in the "House of Mander." He got the part but the play soon folded. Then Reed helped him get a part in "The Novice and the Duke," a modernized version of Shakespeare's "Measure for Measure."

After it too folded, Byrd sought a part in the touring company of Elmer Rice's "Street Scene" which had just been awarded a Pulitzer Prize. On arriving at Rice's office, Byrd found the playwright besieged by a mob of actors seeking parts. Instead of hanging around, Byrd went home and wrote Rice, asking for an appointment. It was granted.

Rice told Byrd the part he wanted had been filled but offered him a minor role, which Byrd declined saying, "If I can't have the part I want, I'd rather hang around a little longer." Three days later he was advised the part he wanted was his. As a result, he spent his first Christmas away from Mount Olive. During the two years he toured with the company, he saw much of the United States.

After returning to Broadway, Byrd got other parts, but it was not until he played the role of Peter Hines in another Rice play, "We the People," that he attracted the attention of critics. Then came more critical acclaim for his portrayal of Dude Lester in "Tobacco Road," which kept him busy for more than three years. The Literary Digest praised him for his "faultless, astonishingly shrewd performance."

He captured the fancy of the critics again as the the pugnacious Curley in Steinbeck's "Of Mice and Men." While the Steinbeck opus was still running, Byrd, who had taken up producing as well as acting, brought out "Journeyman," based on Erskine Caldwell's story of a rascally, itinerant Georgia peacher. He related later that while he was considering whether to produce the play, he went back to Mount Olive and read the script aloud to his folks. Although parts of it were pretty raw, they liked it.

"Their interest in the play and approval of its drama closed the deal for me," Byrd related. "If they liked it, I was sure New Yorkers would. I bought by telephone the next day."

When "Journeyman" opened, Byrd was still playing the part of Curley, and was unable to attend the opening performance. The reviews were mixed. Some critics liked it. Others did not. It was only a mild success, lasting 41 performances.

Byrd's next, and most ambitious theatrical venture was emblazoned weeks in advance by blinking lights on a huge sign in Times Square. It flashed the message that "John Henry is Coming." It prompted folks up and down the Great White Way to ask, "Who is this John Henry?" Some thought he was a revivalist who was coming the proclaim that judgement day was at hand.

John Henry, of course, was the black man's Paul Bunyan, a legendary character who killed himself putting his strength against that of a machine. Byrd had acquired Roark Bradford's rendition of the legend and hired Paul Robeson, the world famous baritone, to play the title role. With a cast of over 50, with beautiful staging and direction and with raves from the critics, "John Henry" appeared destined for a long run.

The 1984 'Debates' Are Over

WASHINGTON — Now that the overblown "debates" of 1984 are mercifully behind us, it may be possible to get back to the serious business of electing a president and vice president of the United States. Toward that end these poor forensics were no help at all.

These were not debates. They were joint press conferences, and as such they were no more illuminating than most press conferences. The four principals hashed and rehashed the same meat and potatoes they have been hashing for months. We learned not one single new thing about any of them.

The whole business is weird. Ronald Reagan came to national prominence with his bid for the Republican nomination in 1976. He remained highly visible during the Carter administration. He has now served for nearly four years as president. The country thus has had eight years to form a judgment on his political philosophy and his executive experience.

Substantially the same thing could be said of Walter Mondale. His record in the Senate provides a clear pattern of his thought. He put in four years as Jimmy Carter's vice president. With Carter's defeat in 1980 he began his own relentless campaign. We have had at least eight years to get to know him. Over the past 10 months, especially, not a day has passed in which Mondale was not making news.

Yet if the lords of the media were to be believed, eight years of observation and appraisal were as nothing. These so-called debates became "all important." They were "crucial."

Commentators and pundits voted themselves into office as ringside judges, exuberantly scoring the hooks, jabs and knockdowns.

If I were voting on the matter, I would say the Reagan-Bush team won two and lost one" George Bush struck some strident notes in his imbroglio with Geraldine Ferraro, but she had an off night and did not impress. I do wish the vice president would do something about his gestures; he is no windmill and was not meant to be one. As for Rep. Ferraro, the gentlewoman from Queens has the voice of a wood rasp. She ought to cultivate a voice like Cordelia's, which was "ever soft, gentle and low, an excellent thing in woman." As for Mondale, he needs a bellhop to carry the bags beneath his eyes.

To the editor:

The people of today's world are indeed aware that we are living in a nuclear age. The potential for the future on the plus side is there as to growth and progress in ways unperceived. Yet, world leaders and society appear to be participants in a dreaded nuclear race. One misstep and it could result in the end of the Universe: civilization's boner — mankind's annihilation. This matter is of great concern to all decent human beings as to the state of the world we'll be leaving to the next generation.

In the current presidential campaign, much attention is being focused on the age factor. Undeniably, there are disadvantages for those who are in the final segment of the life span,. However, not to be overlooked are the advantages of experience, knowledge and understanding most beings attain with chronological maturing and the living of life.

The thought has entered my mind that, in the event an incumbent president were re-elected for what, due to his age, would be his final opportunity to leave his mark on posterity, he would want very much to go down in history as the president who worked for and did most for the achievement of universal nuclear peace. Surely, he'd do everything possible to avoid being instrumental in any way as to nuclear action that could make for the end of the world.

In this instance, isn't it possible, since living is a learning process (basically, the longer we live, the more we learn), that age would be an advantage?

To the editor:

Let's build our defense second to none. Hire our servicemen and pay them well. But let them be under the same restrictions as servicemen in years gone by. Keep our men in our country and let them spend their money here. We would get along better with the Soviet Union this way.

Tobacco is the money crop in North Carolina and several other states, but it is coming under heavy fire that is jeopardizing our livelihood. The government is already taxing it beyond reason. Tobacco critics are barking up the wrong tree. Why don't they talk about whiskey, wine, beer and illegal drugs? Does tobacco cause men to kill their wives or children? The Bible speaks of straining at gnats and swallowing camels. This is some of that.

In 1931, the Greenville Tobacco Market averaged $9.30 per hundred pounds. Some sold five acres for $85. Banks were closing. In 1933, Roosevelt closed the banks and made them safe from then until now. He closed the tobacco markets, put them under principles of supply and demand, and made tobacco safe from then until now.

To do away with the tobacco program would work a hardship on many of us. It would especially hurt widows who get very little Social Security and depend on what they get from their allotments to make ends meet.

To do away with lease and transfer would make an already expensive crop to raise even more expensive by forcing farmers to move labor and equipment from farm to farm. No farmers I know want to have to do that.

Finally, farmers invest time and money into crops, only to receive whatever the market is willing to give. Imagine selling automobiles that way! We would be better off if we encouraged other countries to enter into more contracts to buy our grain. Also, grain companies should contract grain by acreage for a certain price per bushel. The farmer would then be certain of the price he would get.

This letter is in response to Ms. Machanic's letter to this paper October 25, 1984.

No, Mindy, you did not miss something in the news. Unfortunately many in the media do not care to inform the public of the facts. This is exactly what the Westmoreland vs. CBS trial is all about.

No, Mindy, Herb Lee did not "misspeak opinions in the guise of facts in this campaign" when he discussed Soviet, Cuban, Libyan and PLO involvement in Central America. As a matter of fact he understated the problem. He probably did not wish to confuse the issue by mentioning that Bulgarian, Czechslovakian, Polish and Hugarian advisors are also present in Nicaragua. Where the PLO is getting the funds to arm and train guerrilla for El Salvador should not be too hard to figure out.

Herbert (Herb) Lee likely obtained his facts from articles written by Edward Lynch, Central American consultant, Office of Public Liaison White House, and Nestor D. Sanchez, deputy assistant secretary of defense, inter-American Affairs.

Mr. Jones, as your current Congressman, of course, knows these facts and probably more. (Herb Lee does not have access to classified material.) I agree it is disturbing that someone who is challenging Walter Jones should have to reveal these facts. I also note with interest you do not contest Herb Lee's statement that Walter Jones has voted against any aid to stop this Soviet threat at our doorstep.

Mindy, if Mr. Jones would debate his voting record in public, you would know the facts...how he voted and why. Unfortunately, as the incumbent Congressman, he realizes he is much safer by not doing this. He can keep you ignorant of the facts.

As veterans of Pork Chop Hill, Laos and Vietnam, I and my men fought, and some died, for your "right to know." Isn't it a shame that "politicians" can deny you the very same right for which the men of this nation fought and died?

All He Needs Is A Challenge

Gail Collins

NEW YORK (UPI) — Shelly Palmer is the man who invented the singing cat, and he says he could make one talk, too, if the price was right.

"We could give you accurate 'cat talking' in one month — for an amazing amount of money," said Palmer, head of Shelton Leigh Palmer & Co. in New York.

Palmer's firm specializes in doing the soundtrack for ads — particularly ads that require high-tech solutions to their audio needs.

The ad features a "Close Encounters" theme: a cat sings the Meow Mix jingle to a hovering spaceship, which then mimics the sounds.

Unlike the earlier Meow Mix commercials, in which human beings sang the lyrics — "meow" repeated over and over and over — ad agency Della Femina Travisano & Partners decreed that the audio must come from a musical feline.

It is hard to get a cat to do anything on cue, much less carry a tune, and Palmer opted to use a new technique called timbre-frame re-synthesis to turn one "meow" into a whole song.

"We had to take a digital picture of the cat's voice and make it musical," he said. The picture — a computer model of the harmonic structure of the "meow," then allowed Palmer to "play" the cat's sound on a keyboard, varying the pitch and vibrato as he went along.

One big problem was getting the right sound to start with. "We needed a sound with a very distinct shape to it," Palmer said.

After unsuccessful encounters with professional cats and cats-on-tape, Palmer repaired to Stanley, a friend's fat and rather dimwitted pet.

"He's 12 years old and he's been eating at 5 p.m. for 12 years," said Palmer. "At 4:45 we put a mike stand over his empty food dish. Then we went into the bedroom till 5:30. It was a cat symphony. We got 9 million meows."

When he showed the completed commercial to his friends, none of them noticed anything unusual about the spot, until an exasperated Palmer finally asked if it didn't seem strange "that the cat is singing — in cat."

The son of musicians, Palmer, 26, wanted to be a composer and still intends eventually to run the whole gamut of musicmaking.

He majored in filmmaking and physics in college and admits to feeling a twinge now and then when it becomes clear a client thinks of him only as a high-tech soundman.

"I've minded it less since that became a major profit center," he said.

All the audio experts in the world of advertising have now gone into computerization to some extent, Palmer said. "You have no choice. Everyone's into it in various degrees. All the interested parties have got the same toys in their playroom."

One of Palmer's less high-tech efforts in recent weeks involved six new radio commercials for Meow Mix that will be hard for listeners to avoid in the weeks ahead. Besides a radio version of the television ad, Palmer produced five other variations on the theme of meow-meow-meow-meow, all using human singers who perform the theme to different musical styles. "Kitty Black and the Blues Band" meow to a rhythm and blues beat, Calico Bill and the Prarie Cats serve up a country version.

"We used the same band for each one," Palmer said. "What makes them funny is that they're true to the different musical styles."

Palmer's own favorite was "Meow Mix Sonata," performed by Metropolitan Opera singer Adriania Venneli. Venneli, he said, sang her part with total seriousness and all the traditional operatic flourishes.

"I don't think cats say 'meow' in Italian," he said.

Death Squad

Poll

George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. — Partisans of both President Reagan and his Democratic rival Walter Mondale will find good news in the findings of a recent Gallup survey.

Asked to rate each candidate's concern for the needs and problems of people in 14 different population categories, the public bestows more positive ratings on Mondale than on Reagan for 12 of the groups tested.

On the other hand, although losing to Mondale, Reagan is giving a positive grade by at least 43 percent of the public for his concern for "the average citizen," blacks, women and manual workers, groups on which he scores least well.

Reagan outscores Mondale on caring for the needs and problems of business executives, 67 percent and 46 percent, respectively. Reagan also prevails on caring for wealthy people, with 66 percent positive votes to 37 percent for Mondale.

The charge that Reagan is unsympathetic to some groups finds its greatest expression with regard to women's needs, with Mondale receiving a positive rating of 66 percent to Reagan's 43 percent. Others include poor people, on whom Mondale is positively rated by 65 percent to 46 percent for Reagan. Similarly, 60 percent feel Mondale cares about the needs and problems of manual workers, while 43 percent give Reagan a passing grade. A 15 percentage-point difference separates the public's positive views on Mondale's concern for blacks (58 percent) to Reagan's (43 percent).

Survey respondents were handed a card and asked this question:

"Here is a list of terms shown as pairs of opposites — that have been used to describe Ronald Reagan (Walter Mondale). From each pair of opposites would you select the term which you feel best describes Reagan (Mondale)?"

Here are the national findings, ranked in order of the categories on which Reagan has the most positive votes:

Candidates' Perceived Sympathy For Groups
(Percent rating each candidate postively)

Cares About Needs and Problems of:	Reagan %	Mondale %	Reagan Advantage
Business executives	67%	46%	plus 21
Wealthy people	66%	37%	plus 29
Unemployed people	51%	63%	minus 12
Farmers	50%	55%	minus 5
Middle-income people	50%	58%	minus 8
Young people	49%	555	minus 6
The elderly	49%	60%	minus 11
People like yourself	48%	53%	minus 5
Poor people	46%	65%	minus 19
Small-business people	46%	53%	minus 7
The average citizen	43%	52%	minus 9
Black people	43%	58%	minus 15
Manual workers	43%	60%	minus 17
Women	43%	66%	minus 23

Not surprisingly, there is a strong political cast to voters' assessment of the two presidential rivals. Those who say they would vote for the Republican ticket if the election were held now tend to give Reagan much higher scores than Mondale for his sympathy toward the groups in the study — while the reverse is true of those who favor the Democratic ticket. An interesting exception is that supporters of the Reagan-Bush ticket give Reagan (61 percent) and Mondale (60 percent) about the same proportion of positive votes for their perceived concern for the needs and problems of women. Regardless of their political orientation, 42 percent of women in the survey say that Reagan cares about the needs of their gender while 64 percent say the same thing about Mondale.

For the most part, survey respondents in each population category tend to agree with the general public's assessment of the presidential candidates. For example, the public gives Reagan and Mondale positive grades for 49 percent and 60 percent, respectively, for their concern for the elderly; among persons in the survey aged 65 and older, the figures are 46 percent and 59 percent. Similarly, Reagan and Mondale receive positive ratings of 66 percent and 37 percent for their concern about the wealthy; those in the survey with annual family incomes of $40,000 or more assign Reagan a 71 percent positive score to 33 percent for Mondale.

The observation holds true for most of the groups in the survey, including women, poor people and business executives. The two major exceptions are blacks and young people.

As shown on the table, 43 percent of the public give Reagan a positive rating for his concern about blacks' needs and problems whie 58 percent rate Mondale positively in this regard. Among blacks themselves, however, only 13 percent rate Reagan's concern for people of their race positively, while 65 percent give Mondale a favorable grade.

Similarly, among the general public, Reagan (49 percent) is outscored by Mondale (55 percent) on his concern about the needs and problems of young people. Among 18-24-year-olds in the survey, the score is 48 percent for Reagan to 44 percent for Mondale, a statistical draw.

The findings are based on in-home interviews with 1,518 adults, 18 and older, conducted in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period Sept. 21-24.

For results based on samples of this size, one can say with 95 percent confidence that the error attributable to sampling and other random effects could be 3 percentage points in either direction.

More Aid Is Not The Answer

Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres' contested claim that the Reagan administration has offered to stretch out payments on Israel's $22 billion debt to the U.S. so upset George Shultz that, despite his two-year record as a staunch friend of Israel, he murmured: "Over my dead body."

Peres' claim was denied by U.S. officials. The secretary of state personally admires and respects the leader of Israel's new coalition government. But his surprise Oct. 15 announcement in Jerusalem that unnamed Americans offered a special $500 million stretch-out of debt payments due in December undermined an otherwise fruitful visit here. Indeed, it was seen in some quarters of official Washington as pre-election pressure for new concessions from President Reagan.

Shultz's "over my dead body" rebuke, delivered quietly to aides in his State Department office, reflected the administration's mood all the way to the Oval Office. Shultz is determined that the U.S. will not be pushed into special new concessions until Israel completes austerity measures he thinks are needed to end 800 percent inflation, huge government subsidies and depletion of current reserves. However contradictory such belt-tightening is to Reagan's economic policies at home, austerity is the remedy prescribed for Israel by its own and American economic practitioners.

Before Peres arrived here, the American side quietly asked how the new Labor-Likud unity government headed by Peres and Alternate Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir was planning to handle the explosive West Bank problem. The Americans were admonished not to bring up that subject at all. Hanon Bar-on, deputy head of the Israeli Foreign Office and Peres' advance man, warned privately: If you ask anything about the West Bank, you risk bringing down this government.

Although that warning may be more valid that previously considering the conflicting West Bank views of Peres and Shamir, it rang familiar to U.S. specialists on Israel. Successive Israeli leaders over the years have warned Washington that pressure on the West Bank might weaken their government or encourage Arab intransigence.

These specialists had hoped Israel's need for ever more emergency aid would soften resistance in Jerusalem to Reagan's 1982 West Bank peace plan. A re-elected Reagan, they hoped, might persuade Israel to give his plan a serious hearing.

Such dreams were doomed. Bar-on's resistance to any West Bank discussion forewarned administration officials.

If Shultz had accepted the prime minister's claims, he would have destroyed his own policy of insisting on Israeli austerity before the U.S. gives more aid. Apart from the doubtful effectiveness of those Draconian remedies, still more American aid is not the answer to what ails the Israeli economy. But Israeli insistence on it threatens serious problems between these two allies after the election.

A Game of Nuclear Hide And Seek

Maxwell Glen and Cody Shearer

WASHINGTON — Last year the world's nuclear watchdog inspected 520 nuclear installations and certified that nobody had tampered with the reactors therein.

But don't let that make you sleep easier. The investigators of the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) devote most of their time to ferreting out technical errors and foul play in Canada, Japan and other leading industrialized nations. Unfortunately, the agency has trouble assuring that plutonium and enriched uranium don't fall into the wrong hands elsewhere.

Restrictions placed on inspectors all but negate the value of overseeing facilities in many of the agency's 112 member nations. These nations not only choose the inspectors, they determine what the inspectors will see and when.

Relieved to have its own nuclear capability, South Africa is one of the leading players in this game of nuclear hide and seek. It has permitted IAEA inspectors to examine its Safari research reactor but won't let them near a pilot uranium enrichment plant at Valindaba.

Another culprit is the Soviet Union, which has given the IAEA permission to make its first inspection of Soviet facilities next summer. The Soviets intend only to open their 40 pressurized water reactors for inspection; reactors that can produce weapons-grade plutonium will be off limits.

Among the nations with actual or rumored nuclear capabilities, those said to give IAEA inspectors headaches are Argentina, Brazil, India, Pakistan and Israel. These nations have insisted that full inspections of their nuclear facilities would be a violation of national sovereignty.

Of course, some people argue that a little knowledge about a country's nuclear activities is better than none. One of them is the IAEA Director-General Dr. Han Blitz. But it's hardly comforting to know that many signatories to the nuclear non-proliferation treaty mock the organization established to enforce important safeguards. Let's hope by the time the IAEA celebrates its 30th anniversary, in 1987, that contempt will have given way to more responsible behavior.

There is encouraging but also potentally devastating news in the latest report on world arms production issued by the International Institute for Strategic Studies ("The Military Balance 1984-85").

First the good news: Rising arms costs have led to a decrease in weapons purchase by the Third World. Furthermore, the superpowers' stockpiles of nuclear weapons have not grown, despite the stalemate in arms control negotiations.

Now the bad news: A further expansion towards more accurate, mobile, and easily-concealed weapons is expected to continue through the late 1980s, making treaty verification virtually impossible. New innovations — surveillance sensors, improved electronic jamming and long-range precision guided munitions (PGM) — aren't likely to reduce the probability of nuclear war.

Ralph Nader's Public Citizen organization thinks the Food and Drug Administration during Ronald Reagan's tenure has ducked its enforcement responsibilites. Specifically, Public Citizen accuses Reagan's FDA of:

•Acceding to pressure from the drug industry and reversing its decision to require labels on all aspirin products that warn against giving them to children with chicken pox or the flu;

•Approving the arthritis drug Drafex — now associated with more than 100 deaths in this country alone — despite evidence of its link to deaths in Britain;

•Withdrawing a proposal that would have required drug companies to include information inserts in packages of certain dangerous, misused or overprescribed drugs (such as Darvon, Valium).

Walter Mondale needs to rethink his political advertising campaign. That's the conclusion of an Adweek magazine national survey of potential voters. For every voter moved to vote Democratic by Mondale's ad campaign, almost two voters were turned off.

Republican Raymond Shamis, the Massachusetts businessman who wants to fill the Senate seat Democrat Paul Tsongas is giving up, appeared before an environmental group in Boston the other day. He was introduced by a Tufts University professor who read a four-sentence statement prepared by the Shamis campaign. The introduction noted that Shamis had revised the blueprints for his firm's headquarters to save 100 maple trees.

Proclamation

Greenville Mayor Janice Buck has proclaimed the week of Nov. 5-11 as Farm-City Week.

Mrs. Buck said the purpose of the week is to "encourage the citizens of Greenville, together with the rural and urban people, to join in the participation of activities sponsored to accomplish the growth and betterment for the city, county and state."

Oktoberfest

A German Oktoberfest will be held in the Parish Hall of St. Peter's Catholic Church, 2700 E. Fourth St., Tuesday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Sponsor of the dinner is the ECU International Language Organization. Music will be provided by the Coastal Carolina Brass Quintet.

Tickets are $4 in advance; $5 at the door. Contact Ronda Hall for information and tickets, 758-8448.

Poll Rides

The Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club will provide rides to the polls Election Day for anyone who is 65 or older or handicapped. Anyone qualifying and wishing a ride may call Annie Turner, 752-4226, during the day or Naomi Edwards, evening, 756-2926 by Nov. 2.

Senior Citizens

A senior citizens class meeting at the Greenville Nutrition Site recently heard Christine Lewis, a retired Pitt County school teacher, talk on "My Kindness Shelf." Necessities, she said, are thankfulness, patience, humor, joy, tolerance, humility, goodness, peace and love.

Evelyn Spangler, home economist with the Pitt County Extension Service, also discussed "The Importance of Making A Will." She stressed that each adult, regardless of age, should take responsibilty for what will happen to his or her property by having a will and said it should probably be re-evaluated and updated every five years.

LEARNING ABOUT GOVERNMENT — Pitt County high school students (l-r) Bev Wagner, North Pitt; Lisa Deans, Farmville Central; La Gena Godley, D.H. Conley, and Brian Rinehart of Ayden-Grifton talked briefly with N.C. Rep. Walter B. Jones Jr. about the political scene at the fifth annual Pitt County Close Up seminar in Greenville. The seminar featured county dignitaries and employees who talked with students about how their agencies work. (Barry Gaskins Photo)

Students Attend Annual Seminar

Students from four high schools participated Friday and Saturday in the fifth "Pitt County Close Up," a two-day seminar on county government.

John McKnight, associate Pitt County school superintendent, welcomed students to the seminar. The keynote speaker was N.C. Rep. Walter B. Jones Jr.

Also on hand to give the students insight into the workings of local government were Mayors Ross Persinger of Ayden, Frank Hemingway of Bethel, John Turner Walston of Farmville, Ralph Thaxton of Grifton, Kyle Hodges of Grimesland, E.C. Hines of Winterville, Bill Walker of Fountain and Janice Buck of Greenville.

Sessions Saturday were highlighted by discussions led by Pitt County School Board Chairman Mark Owens, tax supervisors Jimmy Hardee and Glenn Cutrell, Social Services child support enforcement supervisor John Jablonski and John Bulow, administrative assistant to the county manager. Additional meetings were conducted by County Commissioners Charles McLawhorn, Bruce Strickland, Charles Gaskins and Burney Tucker.

The seminar included a luncheon featuring Pitt County Democratic Party Treasurer John Ball, Young Democrats President Leroy Smith, Pitt County Republican Party Chairman Henry (Andy) Andrews, and Doug Story, Young Republicans president.

Local coordinators for Pitt County Close Up were Tina Drye of the Pitt County schools central office, Sarah Hunt of Farmville Central High School, Delano Wilson of Ayden-Grifton High School, Joy Riddick of D.H. Conley High and Gigi Walter of North Pitt High.

The students also were given a demonstration of the county's new vote tabulating machines, to be used for the first time in the Nov. 6 general election.

Charlene Webber, a representative of AirMac Technology, the makers of the machines, said Pitt will be one of 35 counties in North Carolina using the firm's voting machines next month.

"All it is is an intelligent ballot box," she said. Pointing out that paper ballot cards are used by voters to mark their choices for the various offices, Ms. Webber said voters then "slide the ballot into the tabulator ... face down" and the machine takes the ballot and tabulates it.

The machine allows straight party voting, split ticket voting and write-ins, the students were told, and gives a print-out of the vote totals for each candidate after the polls close.

Margaret Hardee, supervisor for the Pitt County Board of Elections, said the machines will "speed up knowing who won" elections in the county and save poll workers from having to count ballots by hand.

"You'll still have a paper ballot and still put it in a box. But it's a smart box," she said.

WIC Program Broadens Base

The Women, Infants and Children's Supplemental Food Program is in its 10th year in North Carolina and in the nation and this year became active in all 100 counties of North Carolina, Angela Rich, Pitt County WIC director said.

Ms. Rich said the Pitt County WIC program helps ensure that each of its approximately 2,700 participants have the kind of nutritious diet they need for good health. Nutrition counseling and supplemental foods in the four food groups are offered to low-income pregnant women, breast-feeding women, and children 4 years of age or younger who are at nutritional risk.

A federally funded program, WIC provides these services through the Pitt County Health Department. Applicants are screened medically and only those who meet the medical and financial criteria may participate. There must be some risk associated with poor nutrition for an applicant to be eligible for WIC supplemental foods.

"A nutritionally balanced diet during pregnancy prevents a number of potentially serious health problems for mothers and infants," Ms. Rich said. "Proper nutrition in the first few years of life is absolutely essential for health, growth and development."

Included in the high-risk medical criteria for eligibility are teen pregnancy, obesity, anemia, and low birth weight of an infant. Any one of these, among other conditions, may constitute medical and nutritional risk.

Persons who may be eligible or who would like additional information may call the Health Department, 752-4141, and ask for the WIC office.

Sprayer Freed

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Harald Naegeli, the 44-year-old "Sprayer of Zurich," was freed from prison Saturday after serving most of a nine-month sentence for spraying thousands of bizarre paintings on public and private buildings.

Naegeli, who also had to pay $46,152 to clean up the graffiti, told reporters he planned to leave Switzerland immediately for West Germany.

His paintings intrigued art critics and inspired at least two books, but owners of 200 houses and buildings that he sprayed filed a suit.

Sulphide Leak

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A hydrogen sulphide leak killed the chief engineer on duty and felled two other employees at a plant manufacturing heavy water for India's nuclear power plants, the United News of India said Saturday.

The news agency said the three employees of the plant at Kota, 265 miles southwest of New Delhi, had been hospitalized in serious condition on Tuesday.

Marcos Criticizes Reagan For Remark During Debate

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos lashed out Saturday at what he regarded as U.S. pressure on his government, saying he was not a "pet dog" and that he could stay in power without American assistance.

Marcos said he was "shocked" when President Reagan, replying to a question during his Oct. 21 debate with Democratic presidential nominee Walter Mondale, said communists would take over the Philippines if the United States were to stop its military and economic aid to the country.

"The answer ... should have been there is no indication that the Marcos government can be overthrown by either the bullet or the ballot," Marcos said in a televised speech to members of the 1.4 million-strong Philippine Army Reserve.

"May we inform our friends, the Americans, that we are not doing things here in order to satisfy the State Department or the Americans but in order to meet the requirements of the law provided for in our constitution," Marcos said.

He said the Philippines was thankful to have "such a strong and very generous partner" as the United States, "but we certainly don't want to appear before our Asian brothers as if we were the pet dog of any Western ally."

Marcos was reacting to a U.S. State Department comment that praised him for sending the Benigno Aquino assassination case to a civilian court for trial. Marcos took that action last week after a fact-finding board's majority report said the opposition leader was not killed by a communist agent as the government said, but by a soldier in a military conspiracy involving the armed forces chief, Gen. Fabian C. Ver.

The State Department had earlier expressed concern that Marcos might act only on the dissenting report of board chairwoman Corazon Agrava, who exonerated Ver. The majority report named Ver at the top of a list of 25 military men and one civilian it said were indictable for Aquino's "premeditated killing" in August, 1983.

In his speech, Marcos also lashed out at his local critics for questioning the impartiality of a nine-judge court he has designated to try Ver. Opposition leaders and various business, civic, church and lawyers groups are calling for the creation of a "people's court" to try Ver and the others.

Marcos described as "publicized hysterics" the opposition to Ver's trial by an existing court whose members he personally chose. The chief justice of the court has said that there should be no fear of partiality because the judges, although named by Marcos, can be removed only by impeachment, as in the U.S. federal court system.

"It is a sad note, however, that the orderly working of our judicial process will still be disturbed by the partisan activities of those who would utilize this case for their own selfish political purposes ... to undermine the government," Marcos said.

He also defended Ver, his closest and most trusted ally, and other accused military men, saying blame for the murder was being "strangely imputed to them." Marcos has described the board's majority report as "fraught with doubt and great contradiction."

Anglican Bishop Sets Off Storm With Challenge To Resurrection

LONDON (AP) — A new theological storm brewed in the Church of England Saturday after the new Bishop of Durham, the Rt. Rev. David Jenkins, compared the resurrection of Jesus Christ to a "conjuring trick with bones."

"If people are afraid to explore, they can ask themselves whether they really have any faith at all," the church's fourth-ranking prelate said in a statement after his latest pronouncement sparked new charges of blasphemy.

Earlier, Jenkins, whose appointment last July thrust the church into its biggest theological dispute in decades, said in a pre-recorded radio program:

"I am bothered about what I call God and conjuring tricks. I am not clear that God maneuvers physical things. I am clear that he works miracles through personal responses and faith."

To a questioner on the program who stressed the New Testament teaching that Christ rose from the tomb, Jenkins replied, "All I said, 'Was it literally physical?' ... After all, a conjuring trick with bones only proves that somebody is clever at a conjuring trick with bones."

The British Broadcasting Corp. released in advance a recording of Jenkins' remarks, due to be broadcast in its Sunday religious affairs program, "Poles Apart."

In response, Nicholas Winterton, a legislator and member of the governing Conservative Party, urged Jenkins, 59, to step down from his church post.

"To an ordinary layman like myself these words are blasphemy. The bishop of Durham is a dangerous joker who by some error has been allowed to creep into the Congregation of Bishops," said Winterton.

There was no immediate reaction from the Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie, spiritual leader of the 65-million member Anglican Communion.

Runcie headed a church commission that selected Jenkins as bishop of Durham. Jenkins had been a theology professor at north England's Leeds University.

His appointment was approved by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and Queen Elizabeth II. The monarch is the temporal head of the Church of England.

He used the "conjuring trick" simile to underline his argument that the resurrection was a story told to symbolize the divinity of Christ.

Fashions Changing

NEW YORK (AP) — Put away those baggy pants and oversized sweaters and break out the high-heeled pumps. Seventh Avenue is offering a spring '85 collection that promises to be short, chic and sexy.

After a season of big, blustery styles, America's top designers apparently feel it's time for women to emerge from their mannish cocoons.

For those who have been hiding less than perfect bodies under layers of vests, bulky sweaters and jackets, be forewarned: Spring 1985 will sport plenty of curvy hip and waist tucks and leave legs utterly exposed.

Crisp cobalt and fiesty fuchsia, along with demure daffodil and plenty of sky blue, will brighten many collections. Floral-popping prints are also big this spring.

Sneak previews show that for the most part skirts — done in spring favorites of cotton, twill and linen — will vary from slightly above the knee to the thigh-high mini, which failed miserably when it was revived several seasons ago.

But this time around the look, dubbed "The Short Age" by Women's Wear Daily, promises to be a nice change from fall's elongated styles.

Oscar de la Renta, who has always favored knee-length styles, says this spring is the perfect season to "see the leg and go for the higher heel."

Survey Shows Reagan Leads 40 States

By ROBERT FURLOW
Associated Press Writer

Trailing badly in opinion polls, Democrat Walter Mondale opened the next-to-last weekend of the presidential campaign Saturday by telling a West Coast rally that Ronald Reagan's re-election could lead to right-wing packing of the Supreme Court.

Reagan, meantime, appealed for young people's votes in a radio talk from the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md.

Mondale's running mate, Geraldine Ferraro, also took verbal slaps at the president on the West Coast and suggested that polls showing a big Reagan lead were not taking enough note of Democratic support among women.

And Vice President George Bush, striving to soften public differences within the administration, praised Secretary of State George Shultz for "able leadership" in combatting terrorism — one day after disagreeing with a Shultz comment on retaliation against terrorists.

Meanwhile, an Associated Press survey of poll data and experts in all 50 states and the District of Columbia showed Reagan leading in 40 states with 426 electoral votes, far more than the 270 needed to win. Mondale led only in his home state, Minnesota, and the district for a total of 13 electoral votes.

Nine states holding 99 electoral votes were rated as toss-ups a bit more than one week before the Nov. 6 election.

A CBS-New York Times poll released Saturday night gives Reagan a lead of 19 percentage points over Mondale, 56 percent to 37 percent.

A Newsweek poll released Saturday showed Reagan leading Mondale by 17 percentage points, 57 percent to 40 percent.

Mondale, declaring that "we must carry California," spoke to a rally in a sprawling San Diego park during a day of appearances in Reagan's home state.

He said that if Reagan were re-elected, the Supreme Court would fall under the control of a "far-right fringe."

Ultraconservatives "would seize our temple of liberty and turn it over to judges who passed the approval of the Jerry Falwells of our land," he said in a reference to the leader of the Moral Majority.

Speaking to a cheering crowd of several thousand, Mondale said voters should realize that in light of several judges' advanced ages, Reagan might nominate five high court justices in a second four-year term.

"You are picking that court for the rest of this century," he said.

"This crowd would close down those doors we've opened and follow the dictates of a far-right fringe," he said. "They want the federal government to intrude in the most personal and religious decisions each of us make in our own lives."

Reagan spent the day at Camp David, but he took time out for his weekly radio talk, in which he appealed for young people's votes. He declared that a victory for Mondale could "send many of you from the graduation line to the unemployment line."

Addressing youth at the beginning of his paid political address, he said, "I just have to say your generation really sparkles.

"In my travels I've met you by the thousands and I've seen enthusiasm and patriotism in your eyes that convince me that you get high on America."

Reagan also returned to the themes of his speeches at recent campaign rallies, saying the nation's economy, military strength and opportunities for growth all are greater than when he replaced President Carter four years ago.

"Our nation is at peace and our economy is in one piece," he said, adding that Mondale's policies "would destroy all that ... would cause enormous hardships and send many of you from the graduation line to the unemployment line."

Ms. Ferraro, talking with reporters before a Tacoma, Wash., rally, touched on the sometimes-sore subject of the polls that show her and Mondale trailing badly.

She suggested strong support from women may show up only in polling booths.

"I believe that they are a factor that is not being measured," she said. "I truly believe they're going to be there showing up at the polls."

She also said the Democrats were unveiling a new television advertisement concentrating on her — the first ever, aides said, to focus entirely on a vice presidential nominee — as a way of tapping the appeal that campaign officials feel she has for women.

In Washington, Bush's comments to the Zionist Organization of America contrasted with remarks Friday in which he appeared to take issue with Shultz's call for U.S. armed retaliation against terrorists.

"Under the able leadership of Secretary Shultz, the State Department is focusing, as never before, on international terrorism and what can be done about it," Bush said.

"Let me assure you of one thing: The United States under this administration will never — never — let terrorism or fear of terrorism determine its foreign policy," he said. "We're too great, too proud and too principled a nation for that."

One day earlier, Bush was told by a reporter of a Shultz speech warning that retaliation against terrorists might lead to the deaths of innocent people, and the vice president responded, "I disagree with that."

Engine Parts Fall From Jet

CHICAGO (AP) — Parts of a DC-10 engine rained down on a residential area shortly after the plane took off Saturday, causing no injuries but forcing the jetliner with 265 passengers aboard back to O'Hare Airport, officials said.

The crew of the Honolulu-bound United Airlines plane was forced to dump 109,000 pounds — or about 15,500 gallons — of fuel to lighten the load before landing safely at O'Hare at about 2 p.m., some 30 minutes after it took off, United spokesman Chuck Novack said.

No one on board the plane — Flight No. 3 originating at John F. Kennedy International Airport in New York on Saturday morning — was injured, Novack said.

Parts of the engine fell in the suburban Wood Dale and Hillcrest areas. Wood Dale Police dispatcher Sarah Adams said five engine pieces were found by local residents.

"People found them in their back yards," she said, "but no injuries were reported whatsoever."

The dispatcher said the engine parts were turned over to officials from the airline and the Federal Aviation Administration.

Novak said airline officials are not yet sure what happened, but it appeared that the rear part — the core cowling — of engine No. 3 came apart after takeoff.

"We don't want to say it disintegrated," he said, "but it came apart."

Novak said there was no damage to the main part of the engine, but the pilot did shut it off, relying instead on the plane's other two engines.

"You can fly a plane on two engines," Novak said, "but you wouldn't want to do it for safety reasons. Because the engine was out, we did bring it (the plane) back.

Chicago Fire Department spokesman Donald Walpole said the firefighters on duty at O'Hare were on routine standby for the landing.

Novak said all the passengers were transferred to other flights bound for Hawaii. He said most had left the airport by 3:30 p.m.

Novak said the landing has been reported to the FAA and the National Transportation Safety Board. The engine pieces will be taken to the airline's San Francisco maintenance headquarters to determine the cause of the failure, he said.

Aerospace Execs Get Top Pay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Aerospace contracting executives in a dozen firms receive salaries 42 percent higher on average than other business leaders, a General Accounting Office study showed Saturday.

Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, who asked the GAO to make the study, attributed the difference to the Defense Department's largesse.

The GAO, an arm of Congress, found that the chief executives of aerospace contracting firms were paid an average of $285,500 in 1982, and that they also enjoyed perquisites of stock options, free travel expenses for spouses, club memberships, and the use of automobiles.

3"Most, if not all, of these benefits have been provided at the taxpayers' expense, since by far the predominant business of these companies is the performance of defense contracts," Brooks, chairman of the House Government Operations Committee, said in a letter to Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

Of the $18.6 billion in business the 12 aerospace firms had in 1982, 78 percent was with the government.

Brooks sent a copy of the report to Weinberger, who was asked to respond and assess whether the compensation was reasonable. But a Defense Department spokesman said Saturday, "We have not even received a copy of the report so obviously we cannot comment on it."

GAO said, however, that the sampling included a range of companies "many of which are markedly different from the 12 contractors we examined." But it added, "On balance, we believe the BLS (Bureau of Labor Statistics) and AMA surveys represent the best available data base on which to make the comparisons you requested."

GM, Auto Workers Reach Agreement To End Strike

TORONTO (AP) — General Motors Corp. and the United Auto Workers union reached a tentative agreement Saturday on a contract that would end an 11-day-old strike by 36,000 Canadian autoworkers.

The tentative settlement, confirmed by GM's chief negotiator Rod Andrew, would allow the return to work of more than 40,000 employees laid off at 30 GM plants in the United States because of the walkout.

Agreement was reached Saturday afternoon after 31 consecutive hours of negotiations, interspersed with union caucuses, beginning at 7 a.m. Friday. The final push began when Andrew presented a new comprehensive offer on the money issues late Friday morning.

Andrew told reporters he was "very relieved and happy" that the deal had been struck.

He said the settlement means "we can get these factories cranked up and everybody can start looking forward to things like Christmas and New Year and maybe a little more productivity and progress than we've had in the past few weeks."

Robert White, UAW director for Canada, said the settlement takes "an important step toward recognizing the Canadian autoworkers have different needs, different priorities" from U.S. workers.

Ratification meetings are scheduled for Monday for all nine union locals, so the autoworkers could begin returning to their jobs on Tuesday.

"We're anxious to get back to work as fast as possible," said GM spokesman Harold Jackson in Detroit. "The exact timing will depend on how soon the Canadian workers ratify the contract and they go back to work. Then after that it's just a matter of how quickly the parts pipeline is filled.

"We're just delighted that it's settled, just delighted."

Andrew V. O'Keeffe, spokesman for GM's assembly division, said company officials would be unable to determine immediately when U.S. operations would resume full production.

"I think it wil be at least several days after Canadian production resumes," he said.

Ron Martin, financial secretary of Local 1973 in Windsor, Ontario, said picket lines would remain up until after Monday's ratification meetings.

"We're setting a pattern for our American brothers in 1987," he said of the agreement.

White said the three-year contract would raise the hourly pay of an assembler to $15.59, up from $13.07

Oil Production Cut

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The oil ministers of Iran and Indonesia threw their countries' support Saturday behind a hastily fashioned plan to prop up OPEC oil prices by cutting production.

Indonesia's Subroto told reporters on his arrival at a Geneva hotel that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries would succeed in avoiding a price cut if it slashed production by 1 million to 2 million barrels a day.

OPEC output currently is estimated at 17.3 million barrels a day. Its self-imposed ceiling is 17.5 million.

Iranian delegation chief Mohammad Gharazi said that his country supported last Tuesday's call by six other OPEC oil ministers to tighten the oil spigot in order to preserve the cartel's shaky pricing system, based on $29 a barrel for Saudi light oil.

An emergency meeting of all 13 OPEC oil ministers, starting Monday, will seek unanimous approval of a production-cutting plan. None of the ministers has said how much each member will be asked to cut back, although it is understood that Saudi Arabia — OPEC's largest producer — would make the biggest reduction.

Virtually all OPEC member countries have been hurt by a loss of oil income in recent years as oil-importing countries, particularly in the industrialized West, have cut back on energy use in response to high prices and weak economic conditions.

Poles Say Pro-Solidarity Priest Reported Killed

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A captain in the Interior Ministry has said he killed a pro-Solidarity priest who was kidnapped Oct. 19, but his confession has not been confirmed, the interior minister told the nation on Saturday.

The captain and two lieutenants in the ministry have been charged in the abduction of the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko, said Interior Minister Gen. Czeslaw Kiszczak.

He said the three accused men gave conflicting statements, that no one has been charged with any killing in the case and the Roman Catholic priest's whereabouts were still unknown.

Police stepped up patrols in Warsaw, apparently to discourage any street demonstrations. Popieluszko's sermons backing the now-outlawed Solidarity trade union drew as many as 10,000 people to his Warsaw church.

Poland's official PAP news agency said that the Warsaw provincial defense committee met during the day and "took necessary actions to prevent possible threats." It did not elaborate.

Gen. Kiszczak, who oversees all police units, said on nationwide television and radio that he had no immediate evidence to back up the assertion that Popieluszko had been murdered.

"The organizer of the kidnap claims for his part that he himself killed the kidnapped. The area where, according to him, the crime occurred, has also been thoroughly combed. No traces have been found," the general said.

He added that "the kidnap was organized by Capt. Grzegorz Piotrowski."

The interior minister, a close adviser to Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, the leader of the Communist regime, said, "One of the justified hypotheses of the inestigation assumes that the kidnapped is dead."

Popieluszko's lawyer, Edward Wende, said in a telephone interview that there can be "only one conclusion" from Kiszczak's remarks.

"I'm sure the priest is dead, and I think it's a horrible thing," he said. "The minister did admit that one of them confessed he had killed. He would have to be insane to confess to murder if he didn't commit it, and I don't think he's insane."

Kiszczak said in his address, "Unfortunately, I am not in a position to give information or even sufficient assumptions as for the fate of the kidnapped."

The interior minister said one of the captain's accomplices testified that Popieluszko was left alive on the outskirts of the northern city of Torun, where he was kidnapped by men in another car who stopped his automobile. "However, a lengthy search in that area has not produced any effect," he said.

Rev. JERZY POPIELUSZKO

He identified the three arrested Interior Ministry officials as Capt. Piotrowski, head of a ministry department, and two subordinates, Lt. Waldemar Chmielewski, and Lt. Leszek Pekala.

"They have been accused of Father Popieluszko's abduction, and, if this is justified by further investigation, also of other offenses embodied in the penal code," Kiszczak said.

He added the three face possible death sentences.

Popieluszko, 37, became one of the church's most outspoken defenders of the Solidarity federation, the first independent trade union in the Soviet bloc. It was chartered by the government during strikes in August 1980, suspended with the imposition of martial law in December 1981 and later outlawed.

Kiszczak said authorities would "spare no effort so that the fate of Father Jerzy Popieluszko can be definitively established and the entire hideous affair explained to the very end.

"In Poland, nobody can perish without a trace. Our country is not and will not be a jungle of lawlessness."

West Germany Freed Of Bans

ROME (AP) — A group of seven NATO members, formed to oversee the rearming of West Germany after World War II, formally approved on Saturday the removal of all controls on West Germany's production and stockpiling of conventional weapons.

The West German foreign minister, Hans Dietrich-Genscher, said the decision will not alter his government's long-standing policy on armaments.

"We have no intention of producing strategic weapons," Genscher told a news conference at the end of a two-day meeting of the group's defense and foreign ministers. He said he will outline his government's position on the issue before the West German legislature on Nov. 8.

A document issued by the group said "commitments and controls" concerning nuclear, biological and chemical weapons will be maintained for West Germany.

The Western European Union, comprising Britain, France, Italy, West Germany, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg — was formed in the mid 1950s and provided the political framework for rearming West Germany.

All seven nations are members of NATO.

As the ministers met in an ornate ballroom of the 17th century Palazzo Barberini, thousands of high school students marched through downtown Rome chanting, "We want peace now!"Organizers said the Western European Union "will bring us nothing but bombs."

The demonstration broke up two hours later as light rain fell.

A preliminary agreement to abolish the restrictions was announced after the group met in Paris on June 27. On Saturday, the ministers formally approved that agreement and set the timetable for implementing it.

The document said the ministers, noting that the restrictions have become "superfluous," decided "to abolish gradually the remaining quantitative controls on conventional weapons."

The ministers said these controls should be "substantially reduced" by Jan. 1, 1985 and entirely by Jan. 1, 1986.

Conference officials said the restrictions "for all practical purposes will be thrown out" by spring 1985.

Former Ambassadors Criticize Helms Endorsement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirty-six former U.S. ambassadors criticized the endorsement of Sen. Jesse Helms by a group of current ambassadors, saying Saturday the act violates a well-established tradition of political neutrality among diplomats.

"I was flabbergasted when I heard about (the endorsement)," said Philip Kaiser, former U.S. ambassador to Senegal, Hungry and Austria. "It was so unbelievable it required an appropriate response."

The letter released by the group said: "We deplore the recent statement issued by a group of U.S. ambassadors, all political appointees of the Reagan administration, endorsing the Republican candidate" Jesse Helms, R-N.C., for re-election.

The signees, ambassadors from the previous eight presidential administrations, included former U.N. ambassadors George Ball and Donald McHenry, former Soviet ambassadors W. Averell Harriman and Jacob D. Beam, and former French ambassador Sergeant Shriver.

Helms received the endorsement Thursday in Raleigh, N.C., where he is battling Democratic Gov. James Hunt in a hotly contested and closely watched Senate battle.

At a press conference, J. William Middendorf, ambassador to the Organization of American States, officially pledged support for Helms, saying he has a "strong, close relationship" with the Reagan administration, and is "respected as much as anyone in Washington."

Helms aides also released a list of 21 other current, Reagan-appointed ambassadors who endorsed Helms.

Among them were the ambassadors to France, Mexico, Switzerland, Canada, Austria and a number of Western Hemisphere nations.

"For these individuals to get involved is wrong, period," Kaiser said. "There was no equivocation to anyone I spoke with, they were all against such an action."

The statement by the former ambassadors went on to say: "This action violates a well established tradition, followed by both parties, which has barred American ambassadors, non-career as well as career, from engaging in partisan politics, while on active duty as official representatives of our country.

"The statement is also regrettable because Jesse Helms has been one of the most consistent opponents in the U.S. Congress of sound foreign policy development in the past 12 years."

When the endorsement was announced, the State Department issued its own response suggesting Secretary of State George Shultz was not entirely happy with the action. The State Department response said that "longstanding tradition has discouraged ambassadors from participation in partisan political campaigns."

Hunt Proposes More Spending For Military, Veteran Benefits

GREENSBORO (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt went before American Legion leaders Saturday to reaffirm his support for a strong defense and veterans benefits if he is elected to the U.S. Senate.

His support for increased defense spending and strengthening of conventional military force got a warm response from the approximately 150 Legion leaders.

The 46,000-member national group, however, is bi-partisian and has not endorsed a candidate.

Republican Sen. Jesse Helms, Hunt's opponent in the U.S. Senate race, was invited to speak, but he declined.

Although Helms was not present, his record on veterans benefits was a topic of discussion.

"Every weapon from an M-16 rifle to the most sophisticated system, requires men to operate or to run it," Hunt said. "That's why we must have strong and fair veterans benefits in this country."

Hunt said he believed the contract to provide benefits for veterans is "the most sacred contract the American nation makes."

In literature distributed at the convention, the Hunt campaign said Helms voted against nine veterans appropriation bills in 1976 and quoted him as calling veterans benefits "welfare."

"Veterans benefits are not welfare," Hunt said. "They're something that has been earned and is deserved."

He pledged to support Veterans Administration appropriation bills whenever they come up in Congress.

Pembroke Endorses New Name

PEMBROKE, N.C. (AP) — The Pembroke State University Board of Trustees voted unanimously Friday to endorse changing the school name to the University of North Carolina at Pembroke, school officials said.

The board will now send the endorsement to William Friday, president of the 16-campus UNC system. The UNC Board of Governors will meet in November to decide if it will recommend the change to the state legislature.

Trustees Dennis Lowery of Charlotte and Burlin Lowry of Cary made the motion and all 13 members of the board voted on the proposal.

Surveys on the Pembroke campus show that students, faculty and alumni are strongly in favor of the name change.

"The important thing is what is best for the student when he leaves this university," said Lowery. "I think anywhere in country a degree from a state university carries a certain amount of clout. I've supported this change from the beginning."

Chancellor Paul Givens said the name change is important for clarification.

"The University of North Carolina at Pembroke — that's exactly what we are," he said. "People have asked me, 'Is that a private institution?' I think changing the name would be advantage to the town of Pembroke."

Nine Plead Innocent To Charges

WILMINGTON (AP) — Nine South American citizens pleaded innocent to charges stemming from the seizure of more than 44 pounds of cocaine valued at about $35 million.

The eight men and one woman were arraigned in U.S. District Court Friday on charges ranging from conspiracy to possess cocaine, to importation of cocaine in the Sept. 20 incident.

The cocaine was believed to have been smuggled from Colombia, South American, aboard the Margranel, a ship that regularly delivers cement to South America for a Wilmington company. Six of the nine defendants were crew members aboard the Margranel, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Douglas McCullough.

Five defendants were indicted Sept. 27 on charges of conspiracy to possess with intent to distribute cocaine, possession with intent to distribute cocaine and importation of cocaine. They are John Jairo Arredondo Ospina, 26; Aurelio Gustavo Betacourt-Delahoz, 28; Bolbosa Hernandez, 23; Carlos Enrique Martinez Torres, 35; and Jorge Eduardo Vargas-Vanegas, 23.

They face maximum penalties of 45 years in prison and fines of $75,000. Bail was set at $200,000 each.

Three defendants were indicted on charges of conspiracy to possess with intent to distribute cocaine, possession with intent to distribute cocaine and interstate travel in aid of racketeering. They are Luis Angel Echeverri-Jaramillo, 34; Alex Rojas, 24; and Marlene Samorano, 36. They face maximum penalties of 35 years in prison and fines of $60,000.

Bail was set at $400,000 for Echeverri and $250,000 each for Rojas and Ms. Samorano. Echeverri had "resident alien" status and was living in Manchester, N.H., before coming to Wilmington.

Residence Dorm Behind Schedule

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The $6.8 million residence hall under construction at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill may not be ready for fall occupancy as scheduled, the school's Board of Trustees was told.

If students are not able to occupy the building as scheduled, the university would be saddled with a $750,000 debt to pay next year — $2,000 a day — without any revenue from room rents, said Ferris W. Womack, vice chancellor of business and finance, in an interview after Friday's meeting.

The trustees took no action on the report of capital projects at UNC-CH, which included a report on the possible delay.

The 500-bed residence hall across from Kenan Stadium is a self-liquidating project, meaning it must pay for itself through room rents, Womack said.

Ward L. Setzer, vice president of Security Building Co. in Chapel Hill, contractor for the residence hall, said Friday that too much rain and not enough workers have put the project four to six weeks behind schedule.

"We're studying ways right now to get it built," Womack said. "It is our intent to occupy that building, and anything short of that is unacceptable to us."

Ex-Officer Is Sought In Shooting

RALEIGH (AP) — A first-degree murder warrant has been issued for a former Raleigh police officer after the shooting death of his ex-wife in the parking lot of the apartment complex where she lived.

Claudia Ann Briones, 36, was shot early Friday, Detective Sgt. Gary W. Black of the Raleigh Police Department's investigative division, said.

Lt. J.S. Carroll of the investigative division said a warrant was issued about 9 p.m. for Alan Briones, 36, who left the police department in 1981 for health reasons.

Authorities said an all-points bulletin, describing Briones as "armed and dangerous" has been issued in neighboring states and Texas, where members of Briones' family were reported to be living.

Officers were called the apartment complex about 6:15 a.m. Friday after residents reported hearing screams and several gunshots. Mrs. Briones' body was found several feet from her car. Police said she had been shot more than once.

"She apparently was leaving to go to work," when the shooting occurred Carroll said.

Teahouses

PEKING (AP) — It's high time that China's teahouse tradition was revived, the Communist Party newspaper People's Daily said Saturday.

Teahouses with wooden tables and chairs where people could talk or play board games were once a fixture in Chinese cities. There were once 300 teahouses in the city of Hangzhou.

Their closure has been blamed on the 1966-76 Cultural Revolution, in which leftist radicals attacked old customs and fomented class struggle. ut now teahouses are reappearing.

"Like a cafe in Western countries, China's teahouse is a place for people to rest, meet or while away the time," the People's Daily said."Now it is high time to restore the teahouse business since the life of the masses has improved. It is advisable that in some teahouses, music or folk ballads should be organized to entertain drinkers and sell more tea."

Diet Pill Sweeping U.S.

No Dieting - Eat All You Want Pill Does All the Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA. (Special)—An amazing new "super" grapefruit pill has recently been developed and perfected that reportedly "guarantees" that you will easily lose at least 10 pounds in 10 days. Best of all, it allows you to "eat as much as you want of your favorite foods and still lose a pound a day or more starting from the very first day until you achieve the ideal weight and figure you desire."

This "super" grapefruit pill is a dramatically improved version of the world famous grapefruit diet. It is far more effective than the original and eliminates "the mess, fuss, and high cost of eating half a fresh grapefruit at every meal."

"Pill Does All the Work"

According to the manufacturer, "the pill itself does all the work while you quickly lose weight with NO starvation "diet menus" to follow, NO calorie counting, NO exercise, and NO hunger pangs." It is 100% safe. You simply take the pill with a glass of water before each meal and the amazing combination of powerful ingredients are so effective they take over and you start losing weight immediately.

Pill Has ALL Daily Vitamins

The powerful and unique combination of ingredients are what make this a "super-pill". It contains highly potent grapefruit concentrate and a diuretic to help eliminate bloat and puffiness. No need to take any vitamins to maintain your good health and energy. The pill is fortified with ALL (100%) of the U.S. Government daily vitamin requirements.

Contains Japanese 'Glucomannan'

Each pill also contains an amazingly effective amount of "glucomannan", the remarkable natural dietary fiber discovery from Japan (used successfully for over 1500 years) that expands in your stomach and gives you a full and satisfied feeling all day long.

The super-pill is already sweeping the country with glowing reports of easy and fast weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Now Available to Public

You can order your supply of these highly successful "super" grapefruit pills (now available directly from the manufacturer by mail order only) by sending $12 for a 14-day supply (or $20 for a 30-day supply, or $35 for a 60-day supply) cash, check, or money order to: Citrus Industries, 9903 Santa Monica Bl., Dept. 634, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard, and Amer. Co-Op Slashes Prices On Stored Tobacco

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Prices for the government's 897 million pound glut of surplus tobacco have been slashed but officials said Saturday they cannot predict how much the bargain rates will reduce the huge stockpile.

The Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp. cut prices Friday by 50 percent to 90 percent for tobacco it acquired from 1976 through 1981. The federally financed agency offered the bargain rates to any buyer who purchases 1982-84 tobacco.

"The whole sales program is a package deal, in that to qualify for the higher reduction in the older tobacco, you must buy two pounds from the new crop for every one pound of the old crop," said Fred Bond, the corporation's general manager.

"There's no way you can project the sales activity," he said. "We will know certainly within 30 days, probably."

The corporation has stockpiled nearly $1.5 billion worth of tobacco from previous season and farmers pay interest and storage charges on the unsold crop. Farmers now are charged 7 cents a pound under the No Net Cost Program assessment.

Bond said the success of the bargain rates should be known before Dec. 15 when Agriculture Secretary John Block is scheduled to set the 1985 assessment and marketing quota.

The quota, which determines how much tobacco farmers can grow and sell, varies according to world demand and could be affected by how much tobacco the corporation sells.

Prices for the unsold tobacco were cut in time for an international trade fair that will be staged by the corporation Tuesday in Bremen, West Germany. Some 125 dealers and manufacturers from across Europe and the Middle East have been invited to examine 300 samples from government warehouses.

Bond said the reduced rates will be offered in Bremen and to domestic buyers as well.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said he is optimistic the reduced rates will be a success.

"This is vitally important to the health of the tobacco program and will be very helpful in our efforts to obtain the maximum flue-cured quota for the 1985 crop," Helms said.

Competition from imported tobacco has caused market demand to drop and led to the huge stockpile of unsold tobacco. Tobacco is being stockpiled at a higher rate this year than last.

The program has come under heavy attack from Congressional critics who say the system adds to the federal deficit.

Federal Attorneys Warn N.C. Voters Against Poll Fraud

By United Press International

Federal prosecutors in North Carolina issued warnings against voter fraud in the Nov. 6 election and Sen. Jesse Helms and Gov. James Hunt vowed to dispatch armies of volunteers to ensure a fair vote.

The state's three U.S. attorneys said Saturday they sent letters to Republican and Democratic county chairmen, sheriffs and local election officials warning that voter fraud will be prosecuted "swiftly and sternly."

Helms said his campaign plans to place poll watchers in each of the state's 2,300 precincts. "They won't be cheating because we'll be watching," the two-term Republican said.

Democrats have charged Republicans are gearing up to intimidate voters or create long lines at the polls, especially in heavily Democratic black precincts, and Hunt said his campaign will send out its own volunteer monitors.

"It's an obvious attempt to scare people and intimidate them," Hunt said of Helms' election day plans.

"We're going to protect people's right to vote. The right to vote is a basic American freedom and we're going to make sure people can exercise it."

Helms said he fears "machine politicians" will stuff ballots and help Hunt in the Senate race that both candidates say is dead even.

But federal prosecutors said the FBI will closely monitor the election in North Carolina. At least 14 people — including some officials — have been convicted of voter fraud in two western North Carolina counties in the past two years.

"Because of the recent dimension of election fraud cases in North Carolina, the general election on Nov. 6, 1984, will be carefully monitored by federal law enforcement," U.S. Attorney Samuel Currin wrote in his letter to county officials.

"I consider election fraud in any of its forms a crime of the first magnitude," he wrote. "As United States attorney, it is my responsibility to see that those who commit such offenses are dealt with swiftly and sternly."

Under North Carolina law, each party is allowed two observers at each polling place. The observers are prohibited from intervening in the voting but they are allowed to make notes and report any irregularities.

Burlington Takes $22 Million Loss

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — Burlington Industries says it absorbed a $22.6 million loss in the fourth quarter and analysts predicted Saturday the textile giant will shut down mills in a major restructuring.

The Greensboro-based company said it took the huge losses during the fourth quarter to set up a reserve fund to cover the restructuring. Burlington's stock fell $1 a share and closed at $25 a share on the New York Stock Exchange Friday after the firm announced the losses.

The restructuring is needed because of "the continuing weaknesses in apparel fabrics markets, caused in large part by the growth of imports," said William Klopman, Burlington's chairman and chief executive.

The fourth-quarter losses mounted Burlington's fiscal 1984 losses to $26 million, the company said. The year-end loss is the first the company has suffered in more than a decade.

Burlington, the nation's largest publicly held textile maker, has not made public details of the restructuring.

ELECT TOM TAFT
STATE SENATE
Democrat

We need proven experience in statewide issues to get our fair share from state government.

In the past, eastern North Carolina has often taken a back seat to the Piedmont and western parts of North Carolina. In roads, in industrial development and jobs, in education, even in gathering support for our agricultural needs. Leading our ports, pushing for good roads, proven experience, working in the State Senate. That's why Tom Taft is the right man to represent our district in the state senate. We need leadership and experience in statewide issues to forcefully represent our interests in Raleigh.

Gamecocks 'Hold' Off ECU, 42-20

Pirate Rally Falls Short Against Ninth-Ranked USC

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Hold it!

With East Carolina leading the ninth-ranked South Carolina Gamecocks 10-7 late in the first period, USC Coach Joe Morrison put his team on Hold.

Mike Hold, that is.

The junior quarterback came off the bench for the second straight week to guide his team from behind as the Gamecocks rolled up a 42-20 victory yesterday in Williams-Brice Stadium in Columbia.

On his very first play, Hold hit Ira Hillary on a 71-yard scoring pass, and he followed that with a 26-yard aerial to Chris Corley. Another successful Hold drive ended with a seven-yard scoring run by Thomas Dendy.

South Carolina got on the board with a 74-yard scamper by Kent Hagood on a play that was seemingly stopped behind the line of scrimmage. Quinton Lewis and Jim Desmond each scored on one-yard scoring dives. Scott Hagler kicked all six PATs.

East Carolina got two scoring receptions from Ricky Nichols. He pulled in a 64-yarder from Darrell Speed and closed out the game's scoring with a nine-yarder from Ron Jones. Jeff Heath added two PATs and field goals of 44 and 43 yards for the Pirates.

But putting the Gamecocks on Hold was the difference. He hit on nine of 16 passes for 210 yards. Hagood led the Gamecock rushing with 118 on 12 carries.

Speed completed seven of 18 passes for 147 yards, but he had three passes intercepted and was sacked six times as his protection broke down under the "Fire Ant" defensive rush.

"South Carolina played with a lot of enthusiasm," Pirate coach Ed Emory said. "We thought we could beat them, but they had too many big plays."

Emory noted that Hagood should have been stopped on the touchdown run that opened the scoring, but broke containment. "Then, we were burned on (Hold's first) pass.

"But we played hard although we were not real smart in the secondary."

It was something of a homecoming for the South Carolina-born Emory. "I looked forward to coming here, and I enjoyed the game except for the outcome. Now I've got to face about 250 relatives."

Emory said he also looks forward to playing South Carolina in Greenville next fall. "We've played six on the road and they've played six at home. If we were at home times, it might make a difference."

South Carolina's total offense of 559 yards was its second highest ever. The school record is 616 set against Clemson in 1975.

East Carolina had the first threat in the game, as Henry Williams returned a punt eight yards to the USC 47. But after getting one first down, the Pirates lost the ball as Chris Major intercepted at the two.

But the Pirates couldn't take advantage of the field position. Hagood picked up eight yards on the first play and Dendy added 16 on the second.

On the next play, quarterback Allen Mitchell was almost pulled down in the backfield but managed to pitch the ball off to Hagood, who was also hit as he turned the corner. Hagood broke the tackle, racing down the sideline on a 74-yard scoring jaunt. Hagler's PAT ran it to 7-0 with just under four minutes gone in the game.

The Pirates later took over at their own 25. Two plays netted a first down at the 36, and from there Speed found Nichols open over the middle. The strike covered 64 yards and Heath's kick tied it at 7-7 with 2:59 left in the first period.

Williams got the crowd to its feet with an apparent 72-yard touchdown run on a punt return, but the officials ruled he had stepped out of bounds at the 50.

"I didn't think he stepped out," Emory said. "But I don't think it made that much difference. The officials did a good job out there today."

As it was, the Pirates drove down to the 25 before stalling and calling on Heath to kick a 43-yard field goal, giving East Carolina a 10-7 lead with 12:34 left in the half.

It was then that Hold made his appearance and got the crowd on its feet.

On the very first play after the kickoff, Hold dropped back and fired the bomb to Hillary, who had gotten behind Stefon Adams. Although Adams caught up, Hillary managed to fall into the end zone and Hagler's kick put the Gamecocks back up, 14-10 with 12:16 left.

East Carolina drove to the USC 28 before the Gamecock defense stopped the Pirates, and a 43-yard field goal attempt by Heath was off to the right.

With 4:07 left in the half, South Carolina took over on its own 32 and quickly got to midfield on an eight-yard run and a 10-yard penalty against the Pirates for holding. On third and 10 from there, Hold scrambled and finally found Chris Wade open at the 26 for a first down. Two plays later he laid the ball over the shoulder of Chris Corley, closely guarded by Keith Ford, for the score and the Gamecocks took a 21-10 lead to the dressing room.

After holding the Pirates at midfield on the kickoff, South Carolina drove 89-yards for another touchdown. Hold engineered it with passes of 10, 28 and 13 yards, and a 25-yard keeper. After reaching the

Heels Escape Memphis St. Trap, 30-27

By WOODY BAIRD

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Senior tailback Ethan Horton scored two touchdowns Saturday to lead the North Carolina Tarheels to a 30-27 college football victory over the Memphis State Tigers.

Horton scored on a 3-yard run in the third quarter and on an 11-yard pass from sophomore quarterback Kevin Anthony later in the same period.

Miller kicked a 36-yard field goal later in the same period and a 40-yarder late in the fourth quarter.

North Carolina's other score came on an 18-yard quarterback draw play by Anthony.

Memphis State scored again with 2:14 left in the game when junior fullback Joel Woods carried the ball in from the 4-yard line.

Gelbaugh Lifts Terps By Duke

By RICK SCOPPE
Associated Press Writer

DURHAM — Coach Bobby Ross says Stan Gelbaugh played a near-perfect game in Maryland's 43-7 route of Duke Saturday, but that doesn't guarantee the junior quarterback will be starting next weekend.

Gelbaugh threw three touchdown passes in one half to spark the Terrapins to the Atlantic Coast Conference victory.

"I don't see how Stan could have played better," Ross said. "He executed flawlessly."

But team policy may force Ross to start Frank Reich next week against North Carolina. Reich injured his shoulder three weeks ago against Wake Forest and has not started since, but Ross policy generally says a starter is given back his job when he returns from an injury.

"We will have to look at the whole picture, discuss it as a staff and then make a decision," Ross said. "It is a pleasant problem."

Gelbaugh said he didn't care if he started.

"I'll try to work just as hard and come in if I'm needed," Gelbaugh said.

Duke coach Steve Sloan said the Terrapins were just too strong for the Blue Devils.

"We're not in their league at this point in time," Sloan said. "We're in the ACC, but we're not on their level."

Sloan said the loss may force him to make some changes.

"What we're going to do is evaluate this film and then make some decisions, whether they be personnel-wise, philosophically or whatever the case may be ...," Sloan said.

Gelbaugh, a 6-foot-3, 196-pounder from Carlise, Pa., completed 10-of-12 passes for 207 yards and touchdown passes of 15, 32 and 47 yards. Neal, a 5-10, 203-pound sophomore from Gaithersburg, Md., added a 54-yard run in the third period to his 15-yard scoring reception in the first half as the Terrapins gained 549 total yards, while holding the Blue Devils to 10 yards rushing and 203 total offense.

The victory left Maryland, the defending ACC champs, at 4-3 overall and 3-0 in the conference. Virginia, which was idle Saturday is in second place at 2-0-1.

Clemson Wins With Good Defense, Luck

AP Sports Writer

RALEIGH — Clemson football coach Danny Ford considers Saturday's 35-34 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over North Carolina State a matter of good defense — and good luck.

Stacey Driver scored three touchdowns, two of which followed Wolfpack turnovers in the third quarter. As for the defense, it held off N.C. State on two potential scoring drives, then stiffened to end a Wolfpack bid at the end.

"We did the most important thing we came up here for and that is win the ball game," Ford said. "But actually, we feel like a cat with nine lives. N.C. State did a heck of a job of coming back everytime we would get ahead."

Clemson took an 11-point edge midway through the third period, but the Tigers surrendered a touchdown pass and a field goal. Yet, they held the Wolfpack scoreless in the final 15 minutes.

"Although we gave up 34 points, I thought our defense came through in the fourth quarter when it had to," Ford said. "The defense caused us several heart failures out there, but it looks like N.C. State always plays us like world championship."

Wolfpack Coach Tom Reed said his team is not error-prone, although it gave up two interceptions and a pair of fumbles.

"We're not a turnover team, (but) when we do make a turnover, it seems to come at a crucial time," Reed said. "The second half, in many ways, was a fine second half for us except for the turnovers."

Henry Walls intercepted a Tim Esposito pass and returned it 12 yards to the Wolfpack 33. The Tigers, 5-2, cashed in the turnover four plays later on Driver's 2-yard run with 12:42 left in the third period. Donald Igwebuike added the conversion kick for a 28-24 lead.

Vince Evans fumbled one play after the ensuing kickoff and Jeff Wells recovered at the 11. Driver scored four plays later from 1 yard out with 10:41 left in the quarter for a 35-24 edge after Igwebuike's kick.

N.C. State, 3-5, used a Dwayne Greene interception to drive 40 yards for a touchdown. Evans fumbled a pitch, picked it up and passed 19 yards to Nasrallah Worthen with 7:09 left in the period. Mike Cofer added the conversion for a 35-31 score.

Cofer, who booted an 18-yard field goal in the first quarter, kicked a 42-yard field goal with 3:01 left in the third period.

Ramseur's Four TDs Lift Wake

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Michael Ramseur scored four touchdowns to tie a school record as Wake Forest broke open a halftime tie to defeat William & Mary 34-21 in a non-conference college football game Saturday.

Ramseur scored from four yards out early in the third quarter to break the 21-21 tie an 11-yard pass from Foy White to Duane Owens late in the same quarter gave the Demon Deacons their winning margin.

Wake Forest's defense, which allowed 323 yards offense in the first half, shut out the Indians in the second half, sacking quarterback Stan Yagiello four times and intercepting two passes.

Vols Boot Georgia Tech

ATLANTA (AP) — Fuad Reveiz drilled a 22-yard field goal with 35 seconds remaining as Tennessee edged Georgia Tech 24-21 in a college football game Saturday.

Reveiz's 14th consecutive field goal capped an 80-yard drive in which the Vols converted a fourth-and-six situation on Tony Robinson's 31-yard pass to Jeff Smith that carried to the Tech 10.

John Dewberry scored on a two-yard keeper one play after Robert Lavette's 59-yard sprint as Georgia Tech battled back to tie Tennessee 21-21 earlier in the final quarter.

Dewberry's score came with 7:26 left in the game and only 27 seconds after Tennessee had taken a 21-14 lead when Tony Robinson fired an 11-yard touchdown strike to Vince Carter and then connected with Charles Wilson for a two-point conversion.

Tech had nursed a 14-13 first-half lead throughout the second half until both teams scored in the short span midway through the final period.

Lavette tallied Tech's first touchdown on a 1-yard run and Dewberry hurled a 30-yard scoring strike to Gary Lee for the other just 1:16 before halftime.

Tennessee's other scoring came on Robinson's 6-yard run and field goals of 32 and 45 yards by Reveiz.

It was the second week in a row that Tennessee fought back to win at the finish, trimming Alabama 28-27 last week on Robinson's two-point conversion run with 2:09 remaining.

Reveiz, who has missed only a 63-yard field goal try this year, tied his on team record of 14 field goals in a row with a the game-winner in the final minute. It also lifted his career scoring total to 285 points, breaking a Vol standard that had stood for 53 years — the 276 career points of Gene McEver.

Johnnie Jones hammered out 102 yards on 22 carries to give him 2,429 career yards, breaking the Tennessee mark of 2,364 held by Curt Watson.

Lavette, already Tech's all-time rushing king, had 149 yards on 21 carries, lifting his career total to 3,678 yards.

Robinson, who hit on 20 of 26 attempts for 223 yards, was the main weapon for the Vols Saturday. He hit on four passes for 66 yards in an 87-yard drive that gave the Vols the 21-14 lead with 7:49 remaining.

Since Bill Curry became Tech's coach in 1980, the Jackets are 3-18 against the SEC.

The Pirates drove back down with a 40-yard, Speed-to-Williams completion to the 25. But after a first down at the 14, Jones, subbing for Speed, was hit as he attempted to pitch and fumbled the ball, turning it over.

South Carolina, however, fumbled it right back at the 42 three plays later.

The Pirates moved for a first down at the 30, but on third and one had a motion penalty that pushed them back to the 25. Heath booted a 44-yarder to cut it to 28-13 with 2:42 left in the third.

Late in the quarter, the Pirate defense bottled the Gamecocks deep in the hole and turned it over on a fine 20-yard punt return to the USC 47. The Pirates pushed to the 22 for a first down, but a third-down delay penalty moved it back to the 24. On the next play, Speed was intercepted by Rick Rebune in the end zone, ending another threat.

It took only six plays for the Gamecocks to move 80 yards for the score. Raynard Brown ripped off 21 on second down, and Lewis added 15 to the ECU 39. From the 42 on second down, it looked like Lewis was to be stopped on the option, but he suddenly stopped and fired the ball downfield. Ford appeared set to intercept, but Eric Poole leaped up make the catch at the one. Lewis then cracked over from there, and Hagler's kick made it 35-13 with 11:47 to play.

Bryant Gilliard intercepted Speed on the next series at the USC 45, setting up another scoring drive. Quarterback Desmond scrambled around and finally found Danny Smith open at the ECU 21. A first down at the six was followed by a series of penalties against both teams before Desmond sneaked over on third down from the one. That ran it to 42-13 with 5:27 left in the contest.

Battling the clock, East Carolina came back behind Jones to score once more. Nichols gained 20 yards on a reverse, and Jones hit Scott Lewis for 10 to the 14. On fourth down, Nichols battled the defense for a Jones' pass for the score with 2:59 left.

Still down by 22, ECU successfully kicked the "bam-bam", recovering at the 50. But after reaching the eight, the drive died with 34 seconds left and South Carolina ran one play to finish it up.

"We had good field position several times and didn't make it pay off," Emory said. "Now we've got to do something on the road against Southwestern Louisiana and at home against Southern Mississippi to close with something positive."

The Pirates, now 2-7, travel to Southwestern Louisiana next Saturday afternoon.

Tigers Edge NCSU...

N.C. State had one last chance in the final two minutes, but Clemson snuffed out the drive at midfield.

Driver had given Clemson a 7-0 edge on a 1-yard run early in the first period, but N.C. State retaliated and held a 24-21 halftime advantage. Sparking the Wolfpack was Mark Franklin's 81-yard interception return for a touchdown and a 24-14 edge midway through the second quarter.

The contest did not count in the ACC standings because of Clemson's probation. The Tigers have won the last four games of the series, and the 69 point-total was the most ever in the 53 games between the schools.

Driver's 1-yard run capped a 37-yard game-opening drive and came after Jeff Gethers dropped Dale Hatcher's 34-yard punt.

minutes of the second period, fell to 1-6 and 0-3, and lost its sixth straight game.

The Terrapins stretched their halftime lead to 36-7 on quarterback Frank Reich's 25-yard touchdown pass to tight end Bill Rogers with 7:16 left. Reich, who replaced Gelbaugh in the second half, was one of three quarterbacks Maryland used.

Less then a minute after Reich's scoring pass, Neal faked an end-around and sprinted down the right sideline into the end zone to extend the Maryland lead to 36 points with 6:38 left.

Maryland had 26 first downs to 11 for Duke as the Blue Devils were forced to punt 10 times and failed to convert a third down situation in 14 attempts. The Terps were 9-of-15 on third down conversions.

Maryland, which has beaten Duke 11 straight times, raced to a 29-7 halftime lead on the passing of Gelbaugh, who led the Terps to 22 second quarter points after Maryland grabbed a 7-0 lead in the first period.

Fullback Rick Badanjek opened scoring with a 1-yard run with 8:46 left in the first quarter. Gelbaugh ignited a 22-point second quarter, hitting running back Neal with a 15-yard touchdown pass with 12:12 left. Jess Atkinson made it 14-0 with his 107th career point after — an ACC record.

Duke's only touchdown came when Julius Grantham, returning after a four-week absence because of injury, caught a pass from quarterback Steve Slayden and broke three tackles en route to a 48-yard romp with 37 seconds left.

Alexander Julian for fall takes his colors from desert sources; the clearest, purest azure of the overarching sky, sunsets that leave the horizon ablaze in deep purples, mauves, oranges and yellows. There are sun-burnished shades of adobe, sienna, maize, cactus green and wondrous brights borrowed from blooming desert flowers.

Sweaters for fall resonate with the beat of Indian rhythms, modifying native artistry with unmatched flair. Imagine a traditional navajo weave, transformed to row upon row of bright diamonds that layer across the body of a crewneck for an imposing argyle variation. Intarsia rectangles in striking colors give emphasis to an off-white v-neck vest, and reflect the orderly decoration of Hopi pottery. Donegal weaves give the chiaroscuro effect to the designs, which feature double rib necks, waistband and cuffs with signature striping.

Shown are some of the Colours by Alexander Julian sweater styles that can be found at Brody's for men. Multi-color vertical stripes, twisted cables set in on horizontal stripes, and half pattern argyles. See these sweaters and many more in crewneck, v-neck and vest styles.

Triangle To Host 1987 Sports Festival

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — George Miller, a retired Air Force general who left the military as vice commander-in-chief of the Strategic Air Command, was recommended Saturday to serve as the next executive director of the United States Olympic Committee.

Lt. Gen. Miller, 54, will succeed F. Don Miller in February 1985 when the 500-member USOC House of Delegates is expected to ratify the selection.

"For all practical purposes we have welcomed George Miller to the family," USOC President William Simon said. "He is an absolutely outstanding individual . . . From the first time I met him, in my mind he was among the finalists."

In other executive board action, the Raleigh, Durham and Chapel Hill, N.C., area was named as host for the 1987 National Sports Festival.

The other cities under consideration were Austin, Texas; Buffalo, N.Y., and Indianapolis, which Simon said has an excellent chance at hosting the 1987 Pan American Games.

"All I can say is just keep your fingers crossed," he said. "We'll know in about two weeks."

National Sports Festival VI will be held in Baton Rouge, La., next year with Houston playing host to the competition in 1986.

The selection panel Simon headed picked Miller, a graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, over four other candidates, including Baaron Pettinger, the USOC's current assistant executive director.

Before his interview Friday, the retired general admitted that he lacked administrative experience in amateur sports and had no background as a fund-raiser. On Saturday, though, he said he was confident of his ability to serve the USOC.

"I told the panel that I can't satisfy all of the prerequisites for the job, but that I don't think anybody could," said Miller, who retired Sept. 1 to pursue business opportunities. "I'm not a fund-raiser, but I think I can raise money for this organization."

Miller, who played football at the Naval Academy, said he left the Air Force four years early because he had realized most of his goals in the military.

"My life is a commitment of service," he said, adding the USOC position will give him a chance to continue in a "service" capacity.

In addition to Pittenger, Victor H. Frank, corporate vice president for CPC International; Fred Yonkman, a one-time American Express executive, and Harvey Schiller, chairman of the chemistry department at the Air Force Academy, were finalists for the job.

F. Don Miller, executive director since 1969, will retire from the post but remain with the USOC as president of the newly-created U.S. Olympic Foundation.

Simon also will step down as USOC president in February and Philadelpiha businessman John B. Kelly is said to be slated to succeed him. There was no discussion of the president's position Saturday.

There was lengthy debate, however, regarding the distribution of an estimated $150 million surplus generated by the recent Summer Games in Los Angeles.

At issue is whether the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee may establish a fund to distribute between $3 million and $5 million to Third World nations that sent athletes to the L.A. Games.

Simon reiterated his position that he is opposed to the move because a contract between the USOC and LAOOC says any surplus is to be divided among the two groups (40 percent apiece) as well as 38 national governing bodies for amateur sports (20 percent).

"I'm not opposed to assisting the Third World countries, but we ought to set priorities . . ." Simon said, "and we don't do it by ad hoc spending.

"I say you don't go along (with a 40-40-20 agreement) and change the rules at the end," he added. "I object to the process, not the program."

Harry Usher appeared on behalf of the LAOOC and said creation of the "Los Angeles Olympic Games Friendship Fund," would provide an excellent vehicle to thank some 55 to 65 third-world nations that attended the Games despite a Soviet Union-led boycott.

The USOC president, acting on a motion that the organization explore the idea, said he will appoint a committee to study the issue.

Although the exact amount of the surplus has still not been determined, according to Simon, the USOC expects to receive at least $75 million.

F. Don Miller said $50 million of that will be placed in the U.S. Olympic Foundation, an endowment for the development of amateur sports. The remaining $25 million will be distributed equally among the 38 national governing bodies.

Kansas Topples Oklahoma

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Dodge Schwartzburg kicked four field goals and Wayne Ziegler scored on a 63-yard interception return Saturday, sparking Kansas, a 28-point underdog, to a 28-11 college football upset of second-ranked Oklahoma.

The Jayhawks took a 7-3 lead on Lynn Williams' one-yard run early in the second quarter and never again trailed the previously unbeaten Sooners. Kansas, dominating the game over the final three periods, added a safety by blocking a punt through the Oklahoma end zone.

Oklahoma, 5-1-1, was forced to go with freshman quarterback Troy Aikman because of an injury to senior Danny Bradley and the Sooners' offense never got untracked, making only five first downs in the first half and none in the second period.

Mike Norseth set up Kansas' first touchdown with a 54-yard completion in the second period and hit five straight passes in the second-quarter drive which led to Schwartzburg's first field goal. The victory was Kansas' first over Oklahoma since 1975 and the first time they have beaten the Sooners in Lawrence since 1964.

The Jayhawks were leading 15-3 when Ziegler iced the upset with his 63-yard interception return. Two Oklahoma players lunged at Ziegler's ankles as the Kansas defensive back neared the end zone but they couldn't catch him.

Schwartzburg kicked field goals of 29 yards in the first period, 19 in the second and a career-best 45 yards in the fourth. His third field goal was set up by the third interception suffered by Aikman.

SEATTLE (AP) — Jacque Robinson ran for three touchdowns in the second half and the No. 1-ranked Washington Huskies, getting another stellar performance from their defense and special teams, came from behind Saturday to beat the Arizona Wildcats 28-12 in a turnover-plagued Pacific-10 Conference football game.

There were 19 turnovers on a 48-degree, overcast day at Husky Stadium and Washington's defense came up with 10 of them, including a crucial 22-yard fumble return by Steve Alvord for a touchdown in the third quarter that put Washington ahead 14-6.

In addition, the Huskies, 8-0, had a blocked punt to set up one of Robinson's TD runs, a 4-yarder in the fourth quarter.

Robinson, a senior who was the Rose Bowl's most valuable player as a freshman, also scored on runs of 50 and 2 yards. His 2-yard touchdown with 7:10 gone in the second half came after an interception by Joe Kelly and put Washington ahead 7-6.

Southern Meth (14).....7

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Linebacker Ty Allert's fourth period quarterback sack and James Lott's controversial pass defense preserved No. 3 ranked Texas' 13-7 victory over the No. 14 rated Southern Methodist Mustangs Saturday as the Longhorns seized the Southwest Conference lead.

The Longhorns advanced their overall record to 5-0-1 and 3-0 in the SWC. SMU dropped to 4-2 and 2-2.

Texas built a 13-0 lead in the third quarter on Jerome Johnson's seven-yard touchdown run but the Mustangs threatened to take it away.

Keith Brooks intercepted a Todd Dodge pass and ran it back 42 yards for a touchdown.

Then SMU drove to the Longhorn 14 and 9 yard lines late in the game but came away empty.

Allert sacked Mustang quarterback Don King for an 11-yard loss on third down to force a missed field goal attempt.

Nebraska (4).....62

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Quarterback Travis Turner scored two touchdowns and threw for another in the first half as Nebraska pummeled Kansas State 62-14 in Big Eight Conference football here Saturday.

The fourth-ranked Cornhuskers, 7-1, scored on seven of their eight possessions in the first half to build a 48-7 lead. Turner tallied on a pair of two-yard runs and threw an eight-yard touchdown pass to freshman Jason Gamble.

The verdict, coupled with Oklahoma's upset loss to Kansas, gave three-time defending champion Nebraska sole possession of first place in the Big Eight with a 4-0 mark.

Turner, a junior walk-on, directed the Cornhuskers on six touchdown drives ranging from 79 to 13 yards. Senior Craig Sundberg, who started Nebraska's first five games before giving way to Turner, directed two scoring marches in the first half.

Turner completed 5 of 6 passes for 73 yards and Sundberg was 5 of 5 for 72 yards. All but one of those completions came in the first half.

The Cornhuskers' 48-point first-half total exceeded their performance in any game last season, when they led the nation in scoring.

Ohio State (6).....14

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin shut down Ohio State's vaunted offense and received 203 rushing yards from substitute tailback Marck Harrison to post a 16-14 Big Ten football upset over the 6th-ranked Buckeyes Saturday.

The Badgers, 5-3 overall and 3-3 in the Big Ten, especially dominated Ohio State, 6-2 and 4-2, in the first half when they outgained OSU 309-119 yards in the nationally televised game.

Keith Byars, the nation's leading rusher, picked up 142 yards but was stopped consistently for short gains by Wisconsin linebackers Jim Melka and Craig Raddatz and nose guard Michael Boykins.

Ohio State quarterback Mike Tomczak was unable to take advantage of Wisconsin's defense, which was concentrating heavily on Byars.

He was intercepted three times, including twice by Raddatz.

Michel Leads Rampettes

ELIZABETH CITY — Kristin Michel placed fourth with a time of 21:31 to lead the Rampettes of Rose High School to victory at the Big East Conference Championship cross country meet Saturday.

Rose finished with a low total of 50 points, followed by Wilson Fike with 63, Northern Nash 70, Northeastern 90, Rocky Mount 119: Wilson Hunt and Wilson Beddingfield tied for sixth place.

The Rose boys unit slipped to fifth place with 139 behind Northern Nash with 34, Fike 35. Northeastern 66 and Rocky Mount 116.

Rose will run in the sectionals Smithfield-Selma Friday.

Brown Leads Rainy Pensacola Tourney

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Ken Brown, playing in rainy, blustery weather more common to his native Scotland, saved par on the final hole to preserve a no-bogey 69 and establish a one-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $300,000 Pensacola Open Golf Tournament.

Brown, a former Ryder Cup player for Great Britain, completed 54 holes in 203, 10 shots under par on the rain-drenched course at the Perdido Bay Inn and Resort.

One stroke off the pace at 204 were former PGA champion John Mahaffey, Bill Kratzert and rookie Joey Sindelar, who closed up with a 66 in the scattered showers. Mahaffey had a 70 and Kratzert matched par 71 in the difficult conditions.

Danny Edwards, with a 71, and Ralph Landrum were at 205. Landrum, the leader through the first two rounds, slipped to a 73. Scott Hoch, 69, and Tim Norris, 71, were next at 206.

In the race for Player of the Year honors, which will be determined at the close of this season-ending event, the absent Tom Watson was the beneficiary of some poor play by Bruce Lietzke and Hal Sutton and, with one round to go, moved into the lead on the points list that will determine the winner.

Lietzke and Sutton, who were eighth and ninth in scoring average going into the day's play, had 74s, which dropped them both behind Tom Watson, who moved from 10th to eighth.

With Player of the Year points awarded for positions to the top 10 in scoring average (20 for first, 18 for second, and so on down to two for 10th), Tom Watson's total increased to 56.

South African Denis Watson, who had a 75 and was far back in the pack at 215, has 54 points.

The final standings will be determined after Sunday's play, and the eventual winner will be determined from the positions in scoring average.

Tom Watson has a 70.971 mark. He is followed by Lietzke at 70.987, Sutton at 70.989 and Dan Pohl at 71.009.

If Tom Watson finishes ahead of all three, he wins Player of the Year. If he finishes ahead of two of them, Tom and Denis Watson tie for Player of the Year. If Tom Watson finishes ahead of only one of them, Denis Watson wins Player of the Year.

Sutton and Lietzke need a final round of 69 or better to go past Watson, and Pohl needs a 67.

Brown, in his first full season of competition on the American tour, did not make a bogey in his effort, but had to one-putt five times to save. The last came on the final hole, where he missed the green with a 2-iron.

Flutie Paces Boston College

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Doug Flutie threw for three touchdowns, ran for another and moved to within 142 yards of becoming the NCAA's all-time total offense leader as 11th-ranked Boston College downed Rutgers 35-23 Saturday.

Flutie completed 21 of 30 passes for 318 yards and ran five times for 25 yards. He finished the football game with 9,-582 career yards, second only to Jim McMahon of Brigham Young who holds the total offense record of 9,723 yards.

Flutie, who hurled touchdown passes of 35 yards to Troy Stradford, 29 yards to Kelvin Martin and 11 yards to Peter Casparriello, also jumped ahead of Tennessee State's Joe Adams and into fifth place with 8,937 career passing yards.

Boston College, 5-1, built a slim 14-10 lead on the passes to Stradford and Martin, which came one play after Tony Thurman's eighth interception of the season. Rutgers, 5-3, scored on Dan McHarris' 44-yard punt return and the first of Tom Angstadt's three field goals, a 34-yarder with 2:15 left in the second period.

But just 51 seconds after Angstadt's kick, Flutie capped a 6-play, 74-yard march with his pass to Casparriello that gave the Eagles a 21-10 halftime lead.

They quickly boosted it to 28-10 on Flutie's five-yard run one play after Ken Bell opened the second half with a 92-yard kickoff return.

But Rutgers rallied to close the gap to 28-20 with 5:51 left in the third period. The Scarlet Knights scored on Angstadt's 39-yard field goal and Rusty Hochberg's 15-yard pass to Alan Andrews nine plays after Roy Oake intercepted Flutie's pass.

The Eagles struck right back, moving 71 yards in eight plays on their next series and scored on Tyrone Taylor's eight-yard run.

Angstadt, who has made 17 of his 23 field-goal attempts this year, connected from 23 yards to finish the scoring with 2:49 gone in the fourth period.

Rutgers later moved to the Boston College two-yard line, but Hochberg's fourth-down pass fell incomplete with 2:24 remaining.

Georgia (13).....37
Kentucky.....7

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Just one day after hobbling into Commonwealth Stadium on a cane, Georgia's Kevin Butler booted three field goals Saturday to boost the No. 13 Bulldogs to a 37-7 drubbing of Kentucky.

Georgia, 6-1 overall, improved to 4-0 in the Southeastern Conference football standings while Kentucky fell out of title contention at 5-2 and 1-2 in the league.

Coach Vince Dooley had said he didn't "know how to react" without his record-setting placekicker, whose right knee was sprained during a freak accident in practice last week. Dooley didn't find out Saturday.

Butler was limping but limber enough to boost his SEC scoring record, wrested from Herschel Walker in a 62-35 drubbing of Vanderbilt last week, to 330 career points with the three field goals and four extra points.

The 6-foot-1, 190-pound senior from Stone Mountain, Ga., drilled field goals of 34, 33 and 39 yards. A 46-yard attempt that sailed wide right in the second quarter was only the 20th miss in 90 collegiate kicks but Butler.

The Bulldogs led only 10-0 at the half after one field goal and tight end Scott Williams' 16-yard fumble recovery.

But the visitors bottled up Kentucky's offense series after series and exploded for 27 points in the second half, including Jimmy Harrell's 76-yard punt return and a 2-yard plunge by tailback Lars Tate. Tate had set himself up three plays earlier with a 36-yard run to the Kentucky 2-yard line and got the call at 9:24 of the fourth quarterto cap an eight-play, 75-yard drive that ate up 4:27.

Fred Lane caught a 73-yard scoring pass from reserve quarterback James Jackson with 3:28 to play, upping the score to 37-0.

Mississippi St.....21

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP) — Freshman Robert McGinty kicked a 35-yard field goal on the game's final play to cap a 10-point Auburn rally in the final 4½ minutes Saturday and lift the 12th-ranked War Eagles to a 24-21 Southeastern Conference football victory over Mississippi State.

Trailing 21-14, Auburn recovered a fumble at the Mississippi State 33-yard line with 4:21 to play, drove for the tying touchdown and extra point and then marched 39 yards to set up the winning field goal.

Winning for the sixth straight time, Auburn pushed its record to 6-2 overall and 3-0 in the SEC, but twice had to rally from 14-point deficits. Mississippi State fell to 3-5 and 0-3.

After Reggie Ware's two-yard touchdown run and McGinty's extra point with 3:13 to play, Mississippi State got the ball but couldn't get a first down and punted to the Auburn 39.

Southern Cal (20).....31
California.....7

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Freshman tailback Ryan Knight ran for 122 yards and two touchdowns Saturday to pace 20th-ranked Southern Cal to a 31-7 victory over California and keep the Trojans perfect in Pacific-10 football.

Ryan, a reserve seeing his first extensive duty, replaced starter Fred Crutcher in the second quarter. The shifty 6-foot-1, 205-pound freshman carried 22 times and tallied on a pair of one-yard dives.

The victory gave the Trojans, who led 17-0 at halftime, a 6-1 overall record and 5-0 Pac-10 mark. Cal, playing without injured quarterback Gale Gilbert, fell to 2-6 and 1-5 in conference play.

Tim Green completed 10 of 15 passes for 139 yards and a touchdown for the Trojans, who scored all their TDs after drives of 82, 90, 82 and 81 yards.

The Southern Cal defense, led by linebackers Jack Del Rio and Duane Bickett and nose guard Tony Colorito, shut down the sputtering Cal offense most of the afternoon.

The Bears' only score came on a screen pass from Kevin Brown to Dwight Garner, who raced 75 yards for a touchdown in the third quarter after Cal had fallen behind 24-0.

The Citadel.....21
Appalachian St.....5

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — Quarterback Robert Hill ran for one touchdown and threw for another as The Citadel defeated Appalachian State 21-5 in Southern Conference college football Saturday.

Hill wrapped up a 42-yard, 7-play drive in the first period with his 1-yard run into the end zone. The drive was set up after safety Warren McGrier recovered a Kenny Williams fumble of a punt return.

Irish Upset Seventh-Ranked LSU

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Struggling Notre Dame, seeking to avoid its first four-game losing streak in 21 years, spotted LSU an early touchdown, then rallied on Steve Beuerlein's passing, Allen Pinkett's running and John Carney's three field goals to upset the seventh-ranked and previously unbeaten Tigers 30-22 Saturday.

Pinkett's one-yard run capped a nine-play, 79-yard drive as Notre Dame tied the score at 9:30 of the opening period and the junior tailback, who rushed for 162 yards and tied a school record with 40 carries, leaped over the top of the line from two yards out 28 seconds before halftime to give the Irish a 17-7 lead.

Carney's 44-yard field goal midway through the second period put Notre Dame in front to stay 10-7 and he kept the Irish safely ahead with field goals of 37 yards in the third quarter and 34 yards early in the final period. The last one came after Notre Dame used 14 plays in driving from its 17 to the LSU 16 after a 66-yard touchdown burst by Dalton Hilliard chopped the lead to 20-14. Hilliard finished with 118 yards on 13 carries.

The teams exchanged meaningless scores in the final minute, Mark Brooks running three yards for Notre Dame and LSU scoring with six seconds left on a 50-yard pass from Jeff Wickersham to Rogie Magee.

The Irish, coming off a three-game home losing streak for the first time since 1956, evened their record at 4-4 while LSU lost for the first time after tying its opener and then winning five straight under first-year Coach Bill Arnsparger, its longest winning streak in 11 years.

The game started out as though it would be another long afternoon for Gerry Faust, Notre Dame's beleaguered coach, when the Irish turned the ball over on their first two possessions.

Oklahoma State (10).20
Colorado.....14

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Rusty Hilger fired a 47-yard touchdown pass to Malcolm Lewis and 10th-ranked Oklahoma State used a stifling defense to make up for costly errors Saturday as the Cowboys edged surprising Colorado 20-14.

The long scoring throw allowed the Cowboys, 6-1 overall and 2-1 in the Big Eight Conference, to break an 8-8 second-quarter tie.

Colorado, 1-7 and 1-3, had tied the game on an 80-yard scoring bomb from quarterback Craig Keenan to Ron Brown, and a keeper by Keenan for the two-point conversion.

Hilger, a senior, became the first Cowboy player to surpass the 1,000-yard mark in a single season for the second time in his career.

The erring Cowboys lost four fumbles, including two within the Colorado five-yard line, to keep the game close. But the Oklahoma State defense, ranked ninth nationally, continually pinned the Buffaloes, forcing two safeties.

One came when a Colorado snap sailed over punter Allan Braun's head in the end zone, the other when Oklahoma State's Rodney Harding tackled Colorado's Lee Rouson in the end zone.

Charles Crawford scored on a one-yard plunge for the Cowboys. Larry Roach also had a 31-yard field goal late in the game to ensure the victory.

Dave DeLine had field goals of 21 and 43 yards for Colorado.

Steve Vogle, replaced by Keenan as the Buffs' starter for the game, and Keenan led Colorado on an unsuccessful last-second drive that ended with Vogel being sacked by the Cowboys with 18 seconds remaining.

Indiana 20

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Quarterback Chuck Long passed for 227 yards and broke an NCAA record with 22 straight completions Saturday, including touchdown passes of 5 yards to Jonathon Hayes and 16 yards to Bill Happel, leading 17th-ranked Iowa to a 24-20 Big Ten Conference football victory over winless Indiana.

The victory, coupled with Ohio State's 16-14 loss at Wisconsin, gave the Hawkeyes sole possession of first place in the conference.

Long, a 6-foot-4 junior, finished with 26 completions in 30 attempts, He totaled 176 yards during his long string of completions that began with three minutes left in the first quarter and ended at 10:53 of the final period on an interception by Indiana's Jeff McBain.

The 22 straight completions broke the NCAA single-game record of 18 set by Steve Young of Brigham Young against Air Force last year. The 22 also tied Young's NCAA mark set over a two-game span.

The Hoosiers, trailing by 10 points at the time of McBain's interception, then drove from their own 27 to the Iowa 1 before losing the ball on downs with over six minutes to go.

Indiana got the ball back less than two minutes later on a punt and took it to the Hawkeyes' 7, where quarterback Steve Bradley hit Chris Cook for the final touchdown.

Bradley earlier had touchdown passes of 2 yards to Dave Lilja and 10 yards to Len Kenebrew and finished the day with 263 passing yards.

The two teams were tied 14-14 at halftime before the touchdown pass to Happel put Iowa ahead to stay.

Mississippi.....20

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Quarterback Kurt Page passed for two touchdowns and ran for another and freshman tailback Everett Crawford rushed for two more scores to lead Vanderbilt to a 37-20 homecoming victory over Southeastern Conference foe Mississippi Saturday.

The victory snapped a three-game losing streak for Vanderbilt, upping the Commodores' record to 5-3 overall and 2-2 in the SEC.

Mississippi, which has now dropped four games in a row, is 3-4-1 in all games and 0-3 in the conference.

The two teams battled to a 7-7 tie after one quarter before the Commodores ran off 15 straight points against a Mississippi defense that had been surrendering only 12.9 points a game.

The Commodores added a safety with 9:00 left in the half when the snap from center sailed over Mississippi punter Bill Smith's head and out of the end zone.

Scott's touchdown reception was his sixth of the season and the 18th of his career, tying the school record of Allama Matthews and moving Scott into fourth place on the all-time SEC list.

Fike Holds Off Rampants' Rally

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

Mark Silverthorne kicked a 28-yard field goal and Anthony Thompson raced 12 yards for a touchdown after an 88-yard interception return by Archie Pender to lead second ranked Wilson Fike to a 23-7 victory over the Rose Rampants Friday in Big East 4-A high school football at Ficklen Stadium.

Silverthorne connected on just four out of 10 passes, but one of those was a 31-yard strike to Pender for the Golden Demons' first touchdown. John Handy led the Fike ground attack with 57 yards on 10 carries, while Kevin Barnes added 45 and Thompson 44.

Rose quarterback Battle Emory completed 10 of 19 passes for 141 yards, while the Rampants were limited to 43 yards rushing. But it was the interception by Pender with 5:08 remaining that took Rose out of the contest.

After the Rampants took over at their 48 yard line with 7:11 left, Emory connected with Tyrone Jones for six yards and then to Tyrone Smith for 21 more. A 23-yard run up the middle by James Matthews moved Rose to the Fike 13, and Emory's first pass from there fell incomplete before Pender's second-down interception.

"That's somewhat like the year has gone for us," Rose Coach Chip Williams said. "We bust our tails to try and get something going, then a mental mistake takes us out of it.

"We were running a double cut on an out pattern, and the throw goes to the middle.

"Most of the time (Fike) had a good pass rush. I'm not satisfied with our line play in holding blocks."

Perhaps the most notable example of Fike's pursuit came with 28 seconds left in the game when Emory scrambled out of the pocket for a two-yard gain before Thompson, a standout linebacker on defense, crunched the senior quarterback. Emory left the game shaken up on the play, and the Rampants were unable to force the ball in the end zone on three plays from inside the Fike 12.

"This week we had the poorest practices we've had all year. Our student body certainly did all they could to help us in the Homecoming effort; I hope they're not disappointed in this football team's effort.

"(Fike) hurt us in the first half, but I thought our defense came on in the second half. They just had the big plays when they needed them."

The Rampants were not without big plays, however, as Tyrone Smith intercepted a pair of Silverthorne passes to end successive drives on first down.

The Demons got on the board first with the help of a tipped pass into the hands of Ernest Williams for a 49-yard gain to the Rose 14 yard line. After a holding penalty moved the Demons back to the 31, Fike had a pair of passes dropped before Silverthorne connected with Pender for the touchdown. Silverthorne's PAT kick put Fike ahead 7-0 with 2:28 left in the first quarter.

After the Rampants drove inside Fike territory twice in the first half and again on the opening drive of the third period, Rose finally got on the board with a 36-yard drive.

The Rose defense stopped Fike on the Demon 15 yard line, but Emory fumbled as he was sacked on the first play from scrimmage. Brian Bridges recovered for the Rampants but not before an 18-yard loss to their 46.

Emory retaliated by passing over the middle to Adrian Brewington for 26 yards to the Fike 28, and the duo later connected for 19 more yards to the Demon four yard line. A three-yard loss on a pitch play set up Emory's seven-yard pass to the corner of the end zone where Dwight Smith made the leaping grab to trim the margin to 14-7 with 3:48 left in the third quarter.

Fike bounced back with a 54-yard drive after a 32-yard kickoff return by Barnes. A 15-yard run by Barnes ballooned when the Rampants were assessed a 15-yard penalty for grasping the face mask, and Barnes added a six-yard run to the Rose four. But the Rampant defense held, forcing Silverthorne's 28-yard field goal for a 17-7 score with 11:40 left in the game.

Thompson's 12-yard run set the final margin, as the Demons improved their record to 5-0 in the Big East and 8-0 overall. Rose, which travels to Wilson Hunt next week, dropped to 0-5 in the conference and 2-5-1 overall.

"The thing I can see as difference in this game is the program," Williams said.

Myers Lifts Indians

CHOCOWINITY — Curtis Myers returned a punt for a 60-yard touchdown and Jesse Hooker rushed for 142 yards and three touchdowns as the Chocowinity Indians trounced Mattamuskeet 38-6 Friday in Tobacco Belt 1-A high school football action.

Steven Broadway added 99 yards rushing on 13 carries along with a 30-yard TD run for the Tribe, which tallied 311 yards on the ground.

Hooker added a three-yard scoring run in the second quarter for a 26-0 halftime gap.

John Ray Spencer ran two yards for Mattamuskeet's only points of the night with 8:55 left in the third quarter.

Hooker added a 24-yard scoring run with 1:10 left in the third quarter, and Broadway closed the scoring with his 30-yard run.

Chocowinity, now 2-3 in the Tobacco Belt and 3-5 overall, travels to Bath next Friday. Mattamuskeet dropped to 0-5 in the league and 0-8 overall.

Conley Tops Rams

By DOUG JOHNSON
Reflector Sports Writer

HOLLYWOOD — It looked as though the Havelock Rams came into town loaded for bear but it turned out they were only shooting blanks as the D.H. Conley Vikings held on for a 6-0 victory Friday night.

The victory lifts Conley to 2-1 in the Coastal Conference, but it also guarantees the Vikings can finish no worse than 5-5. Conley, now 5-3, has never had a winning season since the school opened in 1971 and has finished 5-5 just twice — most recently in 1975.

The Rams had ample oppurtunity to score, driving down inside the Viking 25 yard line three times, only to be denied each time. The Vikings found their way into the end zone only once.

But as things turned out, once was quite enough.

Conley took the ball to open play and drove down to the Rams 19 yard line, aided by two off-sides penalties against Havelock and a 16-yard pass from Joel Cox to Ricky Farrow. Two plays later, facing a second-and-10 situation, Cox roled right and hit primary receiver Steve Mills for a 19-yard touchdown — eventually the only points of the night. The extra point was blocked, giving the Vikings a 6-0 lead.

Havelock attempted to return the favor and looked to star running back James Mullins to do the honors. Mullins rushed the ball eight of 10 running plays, running sweeps to the left and right down to the Conley 20. But the Rams stalled and soon found themselves facing a fourth-and-12 situation.

Conley was forced to punt after three plays, and the Rams took over at the 41 yard line. Mullins again bore the load, carrying the Rams down to the Conley 14 before they were stopped by a tenacious Viking defense and forced to turn the ball over on downs.

The second half began as the first had ended, with both teams coming close, but with neither able to capitalize on their drives. As in the first half, Mullins again gained most of the yardage for the Rams, bringing his team to the 25 yard line twice before they lost the ball on downs. But this was as close as they came.

Try as they might, the Rams couldn't punch it in. The Vikings had no better luck, driving in close but getting no farther as they rode a six-point lead to the buzzer.

"This is the biggest win in Conley history," Viking head Coach Donnie Bunn exclaimed amid cheers and victory chants. "Our boys played with a lot of guts, and they did the job when they had to.

"Our defense held when it had to, and our offense came up with the big plays when we needed them. We knew it was going to be tough, and we were up for it. I think we played with intensity throughout the game."

Ananias Jenkins led the Havelock defense, while Mullins rushed for 125 yards on 34 carries to lead the Ram offense.

Vail Leads Jaguars

FARMVILLE — Jeff Vail rushed for four touchdowns and 124 yards as Farmville Central thrashed North Pitt 48-0 Friday in Eastern Carolina 3-A football.

Vail carried the ball in on runs of nine, 14, one and four yards out. He ran for three touchdowns in the first half as the Jaguars rolled up a 28-0 margin.

Quarterback Bobby Evans passed to Andre Vines for a 20-yard touchdown in the opening period.

Robbie Fulford paced the Jaguar defense with a safety by tackling quarterback Calvin Hunter in the end zone. Moore intercepted a North Pitt pass to end another Panther drive.

Farmville Central, which hosts Ayden-Grifton next Friday, was mathematically eliminated from the playoff race when Greene Central defeated Southern Nash 40-13. The Jaguars are now 2-2 in the conference and 4-4 overall.

North Pitt, 0-4 in the league and 0-8 overall, hosts conference leader SouthWest Edgecombe Friday.

Harris Lifts Chargers

LITTLEFIELD — Kelvin Harris rushed for 110 yards including four touchdowns and recovered a pair of fumbles on defense as the Chargers of Ayden-Grifton won their Homecoming bout 32-7 over C.B. Aycock in Eastern Carolina 3-A football Friday.

John Thomas connected with Tommy Dunn for a 60-yard touchdown pass, then kicked the point-after to give Aycock a 7-0 lead in the second quarter.

But Harris broke through for a 20-yard touchdown, then later added a 25-yard TD and the PAT for a 14-0 Charger lead at halftime.

Harris had scoring runs of five and three yards in the fourth quarter, while Mike Dixon capped the offense with a two-yard touchdown.

Dixon had 79 yards on 13 carries for the Chargers, while Roger West added 28 yards with four attempts. Quarterback Danny West connected on three passes for 45 yards for Ayden-Grifton.

Cedric Hines led the Charger defense with a pair of interceptions in the fourth qaurter. Hines returned the first 45 yards to the Falcon two-yard line to set up Harris' three-yard TD.

Ayden-Grifton, now 1-3 in the conference and 5-3 overall, travels to Farmville Central next Friday. Aycock dropped to 1-4 in the league and 1-8 overall.

Pemberton Paces West Montgomery

By RICK SCOPPE
Associated Press Writer

Quarterback Alfred Pemberton scored the go-ahead touchdown on a 1-yard run with just over three minutes remaining as unranked West Montgomery edged No. 1 Jordan-Matthews 19-6 in high school football Friday night.

West Montgomery, 6-1-1, scored two TDs in the final 3:22 to hand the Jets, the top-ranked squad in the combined 2-A and 1-A class, their first defeat in eight games.

The Jets were one of nine teams — including five 4-A clubs — ranked in The Associated Press high school football poll to lose Friday night, while the top 4-A and 3-A teams both came away with victories.

Greensboro Page stretched its winning streak to 14 games — the longest in the state — with a 21-7 victory over Winston-Salem Reynolds 21-7. Quarterback Todd Ellis threw for 278 yards and three touchdowns while completing 20 to 26 passes for the 4-A Pirates, 8-0.

Ellis hit Tripp Welborne with a 29-yard TD pass and then found Welborne's brother, Keith, for scoring passes of 10 and 22 yards.

Kannapolis Brown, the top-ranked 3-A team, beat Anson 28-7 for its eighth victory without a defeat. Only one ranked 3-A team lost as No. 10 Oxford Webb fell to Dunn 10-7 in overtime.

Dunn lost 20 yards on its first two plays in overtime, but on fourth down Blake Hyland kicked a 37-yard field goal. Dunn then stopped Tim Oakley at the goal line on fourth down after Webb decided not to go for a field goal.

Dunn held Oakley, who had gained 1,420 yards, to 53 yards on 17 carries.

Meanwhile, in perhaps the biggest offensive show of the night, Tarboro, the No. 6 3-A team, beat Washington 62-32 as the two teams combined for more than 1,000 yards in total offense.

Running back Ricky Dozier rushed for 305 yards and seven touchdowns for Tarboro, 7-1, which amassed 551 yards total offense — all on the ground.

The Pam Pack had 498 yards total offense, led by quarterback Dick Cherry who had 301 yards passing and three TDs. Wide receiver David McIver hauled in five passes for 219 yards.

In other 4-A games:

•Dirk Floyd passed for 171 yards and two scores to key unranked Gastonia Huss to a 28-14 victory over No. 3 East Burke, 6-2. Floyd hit his first nine passes and completed 9 of 11 for the game as Huss won its sixth straight game and ran its record to 6-2.

•Sam LeNeave kicked field goals of 20 and 31 yards and also scored on a two-point conversion after the holder mishandled the snap as Northern Durham upended No. 5 Henderson Vance 14-7.

LeNeave's conversion run came after quarterback Neal Clark scored from a yard out to slice the Vance lead to 7-6 with 10:03 left in the opening half. Joey Gempler mishandled the snap on the extra point but managed to pitch the ball to LeNeave, who bulled into the end zone.

LeNeave also had 11 tackles at linebacker for the Spartans, 7-1.

•Jeff Mack rushed for 108 yards and scored on a 30-yard TD run as No. 4 Fayetteville 71st, 7-1, beat No. 7 Richmond County 31-7. The Fayetteville team, which had seven quarterback sacks, turned four second-half turnovers by Richmond, 6-2, into 17 points after leading 14-7 at the half.

•Other 4-A ranked teams to lose were No. 6 Fayetteville Westover, which dropped a 22-20 decision to Lee County, and No. 9 Jacksonville, which fell to Goldsboro 9-7.

Rams Down Firebirds, Insure Playoff Berth

SNOW HILL — Jerome Flowers ran for 170 yards and three touchdowns to lead Greene Central to a 40-13 victory over Southern Nash Friday, insuring a playoff berth for the Rams representing the Eastern Carolina 3-A Conference.

Quarterback Kenneth Warren netted 42 yards rushing including a seven-yard scoring dash, and passed to Patrick Moye for a five-yard TD.

Charles Artis added 71 yards on 14 carries for the Rams with a three-yard touchdown plunge.

Flowers had TD runs of 25, 29 and 73 yards, with the latter closing out the Ram offense.

The Rams, now 5-0 in the conference and 7-2 overall, have next week off to prepare for highly touted SouthWest Edgecombe in the final game of the 1984 regular season. The winner of that game will represent the Eastern Carolina Conference in the Division I playoffs, while the loser will be in the Division II bracket.

"I just never dreamed when we started the season we'd be where we are today," Rams Coach Spence Grantham said. "It's just amazing to me we have responded so well. My hat's off to the character of this team.

"A lot of things happened to us early in the season; this shows me a lot of determination and guts."

The Rams rolled up 280 yards rushing while holding Southern Nash, which came into the game with a 2-1 conference mark, to 66 yards on the ground. The Firebirds are now 4-4 overall.

Milton Battle got Southern Nash on the board first with a one-yard TD run, and Bob May added the point-after kick.

Flowers ran 25 yards to the end zone, and Ken Radford kicked the PAT to even the score 7-7.

But Battle returned the kickoff 94 yards to put the Firebirds ahead 13-7.

Artis ran three yards to put Greene Central ahead to stay, and Flowers followed with a 29-yard effort.

"We opended some nice holes on the line tonight," Grantham said. "Jerome Flowers had a big night running the ball.

"We've got the open date before we play SouthWest Edgecombe; I think we'll be ready. The boys look at it as a real challenge."

Bird, Celtics Roll In NBA Opener

By The Associated Press

It's a new season in the National Basketball Association, but it's just like old times for Larry Bird and the Boston Celtics.

With last season's most valuable player Bird scoring 33 points, the defending champion Celtics pulled away from scrappy Detroit in the fourth period and claimed a 130-123 victory as the NBA opened its 39th season.

"There were no question marks in our minds," said Bird, who scored 10 of his points in the crucial fourth quarter and eight in the last two minutes. "We're the defending champs and we came in here with the attitude that we were going to win this game."

In other NBA openers, it was Philadelphia 111, Cleveland 101; Atlanta 119, New Jersey 104; Chicago 109, Washington 93; Seattle 102, Utah 94; and Phoenix 122, Golden State 114.

Bird scored 10 of his points in the fourth quarter, and eight in the last two minutes, as Boston pulled away from a 114-114 deadlock. Guard Dennis Johnson's three-point play at 4:37 marked the end for the Pistons and the record opening-night crowd of 27,563 at the Pontiac Silverdome. Bird supplied three baskets and a pair of free throws in the last 1:56 to keep the Pistons at bay.

"We did the things we had to do down the stretch to win the game," Bird said. "We played hard, played good defense and scored when we needed the points."

Isiah Thomas had 35 points, Bill Laimbeer 24 and Kelly Tripucka 22 for the Pistons.

"The last five minutes were pretty intense," said Thomas. "It was a pretty good basketball game. The key was second shots and also a guy by the name of Larry. He can do some things. He played an outstanding game."

76ers 111, Cavaliers 101

Philadelphia used a 22-7 third-period run to put away Cleveland, which had rallied from a 13-point halftime deficit to a 54-53 lead with 10:06 left in the quarter. Julius Erving, Marc Iavaroni and Moses Malone sparked the 76ers, who ran away to a 75-61 bulge over a six-minute span. Philadelphia led by as many as 19 in the fourth period, only to have Cleveland close within 99-91. At that juncture, the 76ers ran off eight consecutive points.

Malone led the 76ers with 26 points and 19 rebounds, while rookie Ron Anderson led Cleveland with 27 points.

Hawks 119, Nets 104

Dominique Wilkins scored 26 of his 34 points in the second half as hot-shooting Atlanta rolled away in the third period. The Hawks, who trailed 51-48 at the half, connected on their first 16 shots of the quarter. Atlanta ran to an 81-67 bulge after eight minutes, but then managed only one shot in six tries the rest of the period and New Jersey closed within 85-80.

Any Net hopes were quickly dashed in the fourth period when Wilkins scored 14 points during a 19-2 Hawks run.

Bulls 109, Bullets 93

Orlando Woolridge worked inside for 28 points while guard Quintin Dailey added 25 on outside bombs as the Bulls rolled over Washington. Michael Jordan, the NBA's top draft pick, added 16 points in his first professional outing.

Chicago roared to a 19-point lead in the first half, only to have Washington cut the lead to 78-74 after three quarters. But Washington failed score for over 3½ minutes of the final period and Chicago took advantage to rebuild the lead.

Washington's final rally brought the Bullets within 86-80 but Wooldridge and Dailey scored six unanswered points to put the game away. Back-to-back layups by Jordan made it 98-82.

Frank Johnson and Gus Williams each had 15 points to led Washington.

SuperSonics 102, Jazz 94

Danny Vranes scored a career-high 24 points and Al Wood added 21 for Seattle, which used a 19-2 spurt over a 7½-minute stretch of the second half to take control. That run gave the Sonics a 64-51 lead, but Utah closed within 98-94 on a Darrell Griffith jumper with 1:15 to play. But Jack Sikma, who added 16 points for the Sonics, hit four free throws down the stretch to keep Utah at bay.

Griffith had 21 points and Rickey Green 20 for Utah, which played without forward Adrian Dantley, the league's scoring leader last season. Dantley is on the team's suspended list because of a contract dispute.

Suns 122, Warriors 114

James Edwards and Alvan Adams took charge in the second half to overcome a 73-72 Golden State lead. A seven-point run gave the Suns a 79-73 edge and Phoenix didn't trail again. Edwards scored nine of his 30 points in the third period and Adams, a former center now starting at forward, got 19 of his 22 after halftime. The Suns also got 23 points from guard Rod Foster.

Eric Floyd led Golden State with 28 points and Purvis Short had 24.

Harris, Peele Lift Bullets

JAMESVILLE — Robbie Harris rushed for 114 yards and Tracy Peele added 100 to lead Jamesville to a 34-0 thrashing of Belhaven Friday in Tobacco Belt 1-A high school football.

The victory lifts Jamesville, ranked 6th in the Associated Press 1-A/2-A Poll, to 5-0 in the conference and 8-0 overall.

Reserve tailback Maurice Moore added 41 yards on six carries as the Bullets rolled up 247 yards rushing.

Terry Perry led the Jamesville defense with three interceptions, including a 30-yard return for a touchdown in the third quarter.

Harris opened the scoring with a 10-yard run in the second quarter, and Richie Ange connected with David Biggs for a 10-yard TD pass for a 14-0 halftime margin.

Ange later ran one yard for a touchdown, and Maurice Moore closed out the scoring with a six-yard run after Perry's interception return.

"We pretty well dominated them in the second half," Jamesville Coach Jerry Godley said. "We didn't play all that well in the first half with two fumbles to stop drives.

"Defensively, we limited them to 10 yards rushing in the first half, and they didn't get any in the second half."

Jamesville travels to Mattamuskeet next Friday. Belhaven dropped to 3-2 in the Tobacco Belt and 3-5 overall.

Dozier Punishes Pack

TARBORO — Ricky Dozier penetrated the permeable Washington defense for 304 yards rushing and seven touchdowns as the Tarboro Vikings trounced the Pam Pack 62-32 Friday in Northeastern 3-A high school football.

Dozier needed just 14 carries to amass his total, and he was stopped for no gain twice. Touchdown runs of two, 57, 29, 58, 92 yards and a pair of 22-yard efforts lifted the Vikings to their sixth win in as many Northeastern outings.

Jay Laws had 139 yards rushing for Washington on 15 attempts, while Al McIver had five catches for 219 yards for the Pam Pack.

Tarboro rolled up 549 yards rushing but failed on four pass attempts, while the teams combined for 1,047 yards total offense.

Washington, now 2-4 in the Northeastern Conference and 3-5 overall, hosts Williamston next Friday.

Russell, Temesvari Meet In Title Match

BRIGHTON, England (AP) — JoAnne Russell of Naples, Fla., outlasted Hungary's Andrea Temesvari 7-6, 6-7, 6-2 Saturday to reach the final of the $175,000 Pretty Polly indoor women's tennis classic.

Russell, just three days short of her 30th birthday, has the chance to win her first major singles title after eight years as a professional when she plays Sylvia Hanika of West Germany in Sunday's final.

In a real dog-fight of a semifinal, Russell defeated the 18-year-old Temesvari, the sixth seed, in 2½ hours after missing her first match point in the second-set tiebreaker.

Russell won the women's doubles at Wimbledon in 1977 with Helen Gourlay of Australia and has remained far better known as a doubles player.

"But now these others had better start respecting me a little more as a singles player," she joked after her triumph over Temesvari. "At 30, a whole new career seems to be opening up for me."

On a more serious note, Russell said her better singles results this year have come about because of her increased confidence.

"I was always confident in doubles, because I was taught that particular game when I was around 8 years old. But now I can feel much the same sort of confidence in singles. I know I can hit out for the big points and win them," she said.

On Saturday's form, the unseeded Russell has an outstanding chance of picking up her first major singles success and the $32,000 first-place prize.

Temesvari had the ability to beat her, but never the patience. As early as the ninth game of the match, the Hungarian, who is ranked 18th in the world, became so frustrated that she angrily slashed at the net with her racket and received a warning from umpire Cathy McTavish.

Russell, 0-3 and 3-5 in the opening set, eventually took it with a remarkable 7-0 tiebreaker. When the second set went into a tiebreaker, the two battled evenly until Russell reached match point at 7-6. But Temesvari saved it with a sharp volley and took the next two points to win 9-7.

Temesvari lost control at the start of the deciding set, dropping her serve in the opening game and again in the seventh as the American took advantage of some wild shots.

Paradis, an 18 year-old junior now coached by Britain's former Wimbledon champion, Virginia Wade, gave Hanika a scare in the first set when she went from 2-5 to 6-5, including a dominant spell when she won 10 of 12 points.

In the tiebreaker, Paradis was 0-6 down before pulling to 4-6. But the West German left-hander closed out the set one point later.

Hanika quickly opened up a lead in the second set and yielded only two more games to the young French player.

Trout Joins Free Agents

By The Associated Press

Dallas Green, general manager of the Chicago Cubs, is a busy man these days — so busy, it could cost him a pitcher, or two, or three, or four.

On Friday, Steve Trout became the fourth Cubs pitcher to declare for free agency, and Trout's agent, Alan Hendricks, says you almost have to take a ticket and get in line to negoiate with Green.

Also declaring Friday were designated-hitter Dave Kingman of Oakland and pitchers Rollie Fingers of Milwaukee and John Curtis of California.

"We'll try, at least through next week," Hendricks said. "The problem in dealing with the Cubs is that they've got so many guys who are free agents that logistically it's very tough to get anything done, although Dallas has told me he'll give Steve his undivided attention."

The other Cubs pitchers who have declared are Cy Young winner Rick Sutcliffe, 16-1, and right-handers Dennis Eckersley, 14-12, and Rick Reuschel, 5-5. Trout was 13-7 with a 3.41 ERA in 1984, his best major-league season.

"I've got to think the chances are 50-50" that Trout will go through the re-entry draft, Hendricks said. Clubs may negotiate with their free-agent players until Nov. 5. The draft is on the following Monday. The deadline for filing is Oct. 29.

"The Cubs could run into some problems," Hendricks said in a telphone interview from his Houston office. "If there are between 39 and 62 players in the re-entry draft, no club can sign more than three players. That's one of the things the Cubs have got to concern themselves with."

With Friday's declarations, the number of those eligible for the draft rose to 50. Some of those are bound to re-sign before the draft, however. The Cubs planned to negotiate with both Trout and Sutcliffe next week and probably also will make an effort to re-sign Eckersley.

Reuschel, however, has had rotator cuff surgery and is 35 years old. Trout is 27; Sutcliffe 28, and Eckersley 30.

Kingman, 35, had 118 RBI and 35 homers last season for the A's. Oakland president Roy Eisenhardt was quoted as saying Kingman was asking for $4 million over three years, but the player's agent, Jack Childers, said no such demand had been made.

"Obviously we want him," Eisenhardt said, "but at over a million a year? That's 300,000 people (in the stands). If he can go out and make that kind of deal, I wish him well."

Childers, contacted at his Skokie, Ill., office, said Kingman's asking price was "nowhere near the $4 million they were quoting." Childers said he had made a flexible proposal to A's Vice President Sandy Alderson but had not received a response, so it was likely Kingman would go through the draft.

"From where I'm sitting, it looks like they are going through a situation where they're saying, 'We're not going to spend anymore money.' If that's their position, the club will go down the tubes," Childers said.

Fingers, 38, coming off a season or arm trouble, had 23 saves on July 23 when he injured his back. He didn't pitch again last season, undergoing surgery to remove a disc on Aug. 3. When he was injured, he had a 1.96 ERA.

Curtis, 36, was 1-2 in only 17 appearances with the Angels. He had a 4.40 ERA in 29 innings' work.

Williamston Tops Skins

WILLIAMSTON — Jesse Ward threw a pair of touchdown passes to lead Williamston to a 14-8 victory over the Roanoke Redskins Friday in Northeastern 3-A Conference football action.

The victory was the first of the season for Williamston's, now 1-5 in the conference while 1-7 overall. Roanoke remains winless in seven Northeastern battles and 1-8 overall.

Maurice Jones led the Tigers with 67 yards rushing on 11 attempts, while Corey Baker had 20 carries for 67 yards.

Ward connected with Kermit Brown for a 59-yard touchdown in the second quarter, then passed to Vincent Speller for a 40-yard TD in the third period. Brown kicked the extra point conversion after both touchdowns for a 14-0 lead.

Williamston travels to Washington next Friday, while the Redskins host Roanoke Rapids.

Sea Turtles Saved In Face Of Storm — Over 80 threatened young seas turtles that would have perished in Hurricane Diana were saved in the face of the storm by volunteers and biologists with the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission. Two sea turtle nests on Caswell Beach in Brunswick County were relocated to higher ground a few days before the storm struck. Biologists later checked the nests and released the young hatchlings into the sea at Caswell Beach.

Many sea turtle nests, however, were destroyed by the storm. Some nests simply washed out to the sea as the beaches eroded. Others were covered by salt water, which kills the eggs in a short time. Heavy rains can also kill eggs and prevent hatchling turtles from burrowing out of the nests.

This hurricane was especially werious because it struck at the height of the hatching season for turtles. Tides run exceptionally high in September, and even a normal storm can destroy nests through beach erosion and immersion in salt water. About half of the sea turtle nests had hatched before the hurricane, and the young turtles which had reached the sea were relatively safe.

Many of the remaining nests which had not yet hatched were lost. Assessment of the damages to sea turtle nests along the entire North Carolina coastline is continuing. Plans are to have more volunteers available next year to monitor nests and move them if necessary.

Some shore birds were also injured or killed by the storm, but populations will not be affected. Ospreys, herons and other birds had finished nesting in July so there was no damage to rookeries. Large colonies of these birds disperse after nesting which minimizes the effect of the storm. Although some osprey nests were destroyed, these will be rebuilt next spring. A few birds were blown inland — for example, some shore birds were sighted at Lake Waccamaw — and some migrating land birds were blown out to sea. Many animals moved to higher ground, but the effect of the storm on wildlife other than sea turtles was minimal.

Ducks Unlimited Dinner — This year's Ducks Unlimited fund raising banquet will be held at the King and Queen North on Thursday, Nov. 8. The evening begins with a social hour beginning at 6 p.m. followed by dinner and the auction. Chuck Clodfelter, chairman of this year's banquet, thinks this will be one of the most exciting dinners in recent years.

The auction and raffle will include the Ducks Unlimited print and gun of the year, numerous hunting and fishing trips, boats, a color television and many other valuable items.

Tickets are $40 which includes a D.U. membership and the dinner. Tickets may be purchased at the following locations: Art and Camera Shop, Bond's Sporting Goods, The Outdoor Shop, Overton's or from any Ducks Unlimited area committee member.

Mark this on your calendar and plan to attend this very worthwhile fund raiser!

Fishing Report — Fishing inland has remained fairly consistent. The Tar River continues to produce nice catches of crappie, bream and catfish. Bass have been a little reluctant to bite. The next cold snap should change this, if it ever comes.

A few bass have been caught at Lake Mattamuskeet. The lake closes Nov. 1 to sportfishing, so you still have a couple of days to try them.

All the piers on Bogue Banks have been catching blues in the two-pound class. Red drum are biting moderately well on the outer banks. It should improve greatly with cooler weather.

Outdoor Note — Despite the common association of lightning with rain, it can strike at other times, too. Lightning occurs in snowstorms, sandstorms, tornadoes, over volcanic eruptions and during nuclear explosions.

Perjury Filed Against Parsons

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Former USC coach Pam Parsons and former basketball player Tina Buck lied to a federal jury during Ms. Parsons' $75 million libel suit against Time Inc., says a federal information filed by U.S. Attorney Henry Dargan McMaster.

A surprise witness testified during the May trial that she saw Ms. Parsons and Ms. Buck dancing and kissing at a Utah bar last year. The two women testified they had never visited the bar.

The perjury charges against Ms. Parsons and Ms. Buck were filed as a federal information rather than presented to a federal grand jury for possible indictment. In order for an information to be filed, the defendants must agree to waive their right to have their case presented to a grand jury, McMaster said.

A hearing will be held within 30 days, probably before U.S. District Judge Clyde Hamilton, who heard the libel case, McMaster said.

"At that hearing, the defendants can formally plead their guilt or innocence to the charges," McMaster said. "If they (Ms. Parsons and Ms. Buck) decide to plead guilty, they can then be sentenced at that time."

McMaster would not say whether any plea-bargain arrangements have been made. The charges, filed late Thursday, were made public Friday.

A spokesman for Time Inc. said Friday the company "bears no ill will toward Pam Parsons and Tina Buck."

"We believe it is appropriate for the U.S. attorney to pursue these perjury charges aggressively in view of the great expenditures of time and money by defendant, witnesses, court personnel and jurors," said Mike Luftman, corporate press information manager for the company.

"Neither the press nor any other defendant should be subjected to lawsuits brought in bad faith," he said.

Neither Ms. Parsons nor Ms. Buck could be reached for comment Friday.

Ms. Parsons, who resigned in January 1982 from her position at the University of South Carolina, later filed a $75 million libel suit against Time Inc. for a story that appeared in Sports Illustrated magazine.

The February 1982 article, "Stormy Weather at South Carolina," said Ms. Parsons had a lesbian relationship with one of her players and recruited with sex in mind.

Following a nine-day trial in May, the jury rejected Ms. Parsons' claims that the article untruthfully depicted her as a "sexual deviate, a corrupter of the morals of young women and a person wholly unfit to serve as head basketball coach at the University of South Carolina or in any other position of responsibility."

A surprise witness, Babette W. "Babs" De Lay, told jurors she met Ms. Parsons and Ms. Buck at the Puss 'n Boots Club in Salt Lake City on several occasions during the summer of 1983.

Ms. De Lay, an avowed lesbian, said Ms. Parsons and Ms. Buck were regulars at the club, a well-known lesbian bar. Ms. De Lay said she witnessed the coach and Ms. Buck dancing intimately and openly proclaiming that they were lovers.

In the information, the government's lawyers cite as false testimony Ms. Parsons' and Ms. Buck's claims that they had never been inside the Puss 'n Boots club.

In a question from the trial transcript, Time's lawyers asked Ms. Parsons if she ever went to the Puss 'n Boots. "No, I have not," Ms. Parsons replied. "No sir," Ms. Buck replied to the same question.

The felony charges say the two women's statements are contradictory because there was evidence that they had been in the club on more than one occasion and that they knew it when they testified.

After the trial ended, Judge Hamilton notified McMaster's office and the Federal Bureau of Investigation that one or more witnesses were blatantly lying despite sworn oaths to tell the truth.

The judge also told jurors in the trial it was their job to determine which witnesses to believe because "quite obviously someone or someones have lied."

The FBI concluded its investigation last month and turned the results over to McMaster. The maximum penalty for perjury is a $10,000 fine or five years in jail, he said.

NASL Head Succumbs

NEW YORK (AP) — Services are scheduled Sunday for North American Soccer League President Howard Samuels, an official in the Johnson administration, inventor of the "Baggie" and head of the city's Off-Track Betting Corp.

Samuels, 64, died Friday of a heart attack, said his daughter, Catherine Samuels.

Tributes to Samuels came from leaders in sports as well as politics.

Former NASL Commissioner Phil Woosnam said Samuels was "extremely hard-working, dedicated and direct in his efforts on behalf of the NASL."

"Soccer has lost a true leader and I have lost a good friend," said Werner Fricker, president of the United States Soccer Federation.

Samuels, undersecretary of commerce and head of the Small Business Administration under President Lyndon B. Johnson, was unable to capitalize on that association in New York politics. Four times he failed to capture the Democratic nomination for governor.

Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, now chairman of the USSF's national teams advisory committee, said he "knew him as a friend and admired his dedication and many contributions to the sport."

New York Gov. Mario Cuomo said he was "shocked and deeply saddened."

"He was a gentle, compassionate man who possessed a unique talent for bonding his personal sense of humanity with an intelligent, practical view of business and government," Cuomo said.

Samuels, born Dec. 3, 1919, in Rochester, N.Y., received a degree in science and engineering administration from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Rush Reaches Semifinals

"It wasn't easy today," Rush said Friday, after downing sixth seed Leigh Ann Eldridge of Stanford, 7-6, 6-1, in the Burger King All American Women's Tennis Championship.

Rush said her opponent "served much harder than any player I had played against in the first two rounds."

Stabler Ends Standout NFL Career

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The New Orleans Saints' 1984 season wasn't what he had in mind as his last in the National Football League, quarterback Ken Stabler said in explaning his sudden retirement.

On Friday night, the Saints announced Stabler — one of the most accurate passers ever to play the game — was retiring immediately halfway through a disappointing season.

The news release gave no reason, but Saints fans had become more outspoken recently in their condemnation of the performances by Stabler and Richard Todd, who beat out Stabler and Dave Wilson for the starting assignment.

Then, Stabler's fourth quarter fumble last Sunday night against Dallas on national television produced the game-tying touchdown that helped the Cowboys rally to a 30-27 overtime victory against the Saints.

After the fumble against Dallas, Stabler threw two interceptions in the final two minutes, finishing 2-for-9 for 34 yards.

The loss left the Saints at 3-5 at mid-season, but still hoping for its first winning season and its first playoff appearance after 17 years of NFL frustration.

Stabler, who will be 39 years old on Christmas Day, said he changed his mind about waiting until the season ended to retire and decided to quit now after talking earlier Friday with Coach Bum Phillips.

"I was unhappy with my contribution and unhappy where the team was and the inevitability that I wasn't going to get the opportunity to do anything," Stabler said in Saturday's editions of The Times-Picayune, The States-Item. "I got that today (talking) with Bum.

"They are going to go with Richard and Dave. Bum told me that in two weeks they were going to make room for Brad Edelman and Gene Goodlow and that they would have to put somebody on injured reserve and I was going to be the guy.

"Before today, I always felt that if you keep plugging, something would happen; that you're going to get in there and get your shot. But they wrote me off. I'm aware of that. So I just want to leave with class."

The Saints were optimistic during preseason, partly because Stabler rallied the Saints tc within a game of the 1983 playoffs. With Stabler completing 176 of 311 passes for 1,988 yards and nine touchdowns, New Orleans' 8-8 season last year equalled the Saints' previous best season of 1979.

But his agent, Phillip Henry Pitts, said Stabler's poor performance against the Cowboys had nothing to do with his decision to retire.

"He felt that is was time," said Pitts, reached by telephone at his home in Bay Minnette, Ala. "Under the circumstances, he thought it was best retire."

In spite of his heroic credentials, Stabler — who married a former Miss Alabama USA and had arthroscopic knee surgery during the off-season — was not good enough this year, frustrated fans complained of late.

The Saints' brief statement quoted Bum Phillips, the team's head coach and general manager, and also one of Stabler's closest friends and admirers.

"He's been nothing but a credit to the game his entire career, on and off the field, and we hate to see him go," said Phillips.

"He's always done what we asked him to do. He gave everything he had to help this team and every team he's ever played with to make them winners. We will miss his ability and his leadership. He's been good for this team."

"But he's more to me than just a player. He's my good friend," said Phillips. "I'll miss him professionally, sure, but I'll also miss him personally."

Stabler, who played for Phillips at Houston before joining him here, said the feeling was mutual.

"I could see a lot of hurt in him and I think he saw it in me, too," Stabler said. "if he could draw it up again, he would have drawn it a lot different. So would I. But the cards just didn't come up that way."

The Saints leave later today for their game Sunday at Cleveland, where Wilson, a No. 1 draft choice three years ago, will understudy Todd against the Browns.

The Saints said defensive tackle Tony Elliott had been re-signed and would be reactivated when and if Commissioner Pete Rozelle gives his approval.

Elliott earlier this year was charged with forgery by U.S. and Louisiana authorities. He was placed under a two-year suspended state prison sentence after pleading guilty to six counts of forgery and two counts of issuing worthless checks.

Prosecutors said Elliott needed the money to pay for a drug dependency.

For the 1984 season, Stabler had completed 33 of 70 pass attempts this season — a 47 percent average — for just two touchdowns this season. The three games in which he appeared all were losing efforts — at San Francisco, at home against the Los Angeles Rams and at Dallas.

Again, Pitts said the losses were not a factor in Stabler's retirement.

"No, when you get to his age, it (retiring) always has to enter his mind," said Pitts. "I think he did everything he could to entertain and to produce a winner in New Orleans. I think they're going to have a winner."

For his career, Stabler finished with 2,270 completions in 3,793 attempts — nearly a 60 percent average — for 27,938 yards and 194 touchdowns.

He led the American Football Conference in passing yards with 1,997 in 1973 and led the NFL in passing in 1976 with 2,737 yards and 27 touchdowns.

His major league football career began when the Oakland Raiders drafted him in 1968 after an All-America national championship year at the University of Alabama. He spent 1968 on the Raiders' taxi squad and played in 1969 with the Spokane Shockers of the Continental Football League before finally making Oakland's final roster in 1970.

During a 10-year career with Oakland, Stabler guided the Raiders to a 32-14 decision over Minnesota in Super Bowl XI, played at the end of the 1976 season. Stabler was also named the NFL's most valuable player for the 1976 season.

The Raiders traded Stabler in 1980 to Houston, where Phillips was head coach at the time, and the Oilers reunited him with Phillips in 1982 at New Orleans.

Shula Strives For Perfection

MIAMI (AP) — When Don Shula looks in the mirror, the image he sees is that of the only head coach ever to nurse, cajole and push a National Football League team through an unbeaten season.

And the experience of living through Miami's perfect 17-0 performance of 1972 would seem invaluable as the Dolphins start the second half of the 1984 season as the only unbeaten team in the NFL at 8-0.

But Shula doesn't looks at his reflection and ask for advice. If he did, he might see the same evil-eye glare so many others have been seen last few weeks.

Although his Dolphins have romped past eight straight opponents, Shula bristles at the mere mention of certain buzz words. He starts to seeth when he hears "compare" and "undefeated." The number "1972" and the term "perfect season" bring out the worst in the usually amenable coach.

Between February and July, Shula is willing to discuss the events of 1972 and early 1973, when the Dolphins finished the only unbeaten season in NFL history. Now, with the season in full bloom, he would like the fans and media would let him forget it.

Asked if the experience of the perfect season is being applied 12 seasons later, Shula replied curtly: "I learned not to compare seasons."

Shula may not want to talk about how the current Dolphins measure up against the 1972 team, but everyone else does. A Miami News ran a player-by-player breakdown and the Miami Herald was conducting fan balloting this weekend.

The News rated current players superior at eight of 11 defensive positions. The ultimate Dolphin offense featured five current players (including Dan Marino over Bob Griese at quarterback and Mark Duper over Paul Warfield at wide receiver), four 1972 players and two ties.

Offensively, the 1972 and 1984 teams have little in common except the ability to score bunches of points — 33.4 so far this season compared to 27.5 in 1972. On defense, both team are stingy — limiting their opponents to 13.4 this year, 12.2 then.

The land-based 1972 squad set an NFL record with 2,960 rushing yards. Larry Csonka rambled for 1,117 and Mercury Morris zipped to 1,000. Csonka averaged 5.2 yards per carry, while Morris picked up 5.3. Also in that backfield was Jim Kiick, the club's third-leading career rusher.

That 1984 ground corps of veterans Tony Nathan and Woody Bennett, speedy rookie Joe Carter and powerful Pete Johnson can't hope to equal the output of the 1972 club. But with 1,063 yards in eight games, the current Dolphin backs have kept defenses honest while the aerial circus directed by Marino has racked up 2,403 passing yards.

Marino already has pased the team season record for touchdown passes with 24 and he's only 83 yards behind the record for passing yardage with 2,390. Fleet-footed receivers Duper and Mark Clayton average just under 20 yards per catch on 70 receptions. Warfield caught only 29 passes in all of 1972.

It is no coincidence that statistics indicate the 1972 defense was better against the pass (1,749 yards in 14 games compared to 1,675 this year in eight). The game has changed, and so have the Dolphins.

And that brings us back to the one constant — Shula. When the running game was vogue, he put together the best in the league. Now, everybody passes, and nobody does it better than the Dolphins.

The records Marino is breaking belonged to Griese. As an NBC television commentator who has covered six Dolphin games this season, Griese can offer a unique perspective in the comparison game.

"The similarities have to start with Shula," Griese said. "He is the constant and you have to give him all the credit. He sees what he has and rolls with the punches.

"He is not so staid in his ways that he won't change. And he knows how to bring out the best in them."

Shula doesn't throw the passes for Marino, Griese acknowledged, but he sure did make it easier by drafting Duper and Clayton.

"Another similarity is the number of jinxes that seem to be coming up this season," Griese said. "Like last week, they played in Foxboro where they had lost seven of eight. And a few weeks back they hadn't beaten Pittsburgh in Pittsburgh in a long time. There were a lot of things like that to get us up in 1972. It makes it easier."

What makes it harder is injuries, but there again Shula seems to have a knack for turning a negative into a positive. Griese broke his leg in the fifth game in 1972 and Earl Morrall came in to lead the team into the playoffs.

This year, the Dolphins have lost offensive tackle Eric Laakso, tight end Joe Rose, Nathan, defensive end Kim Bokamper and defensive back Don McNeal to injuries. In every case, somebody has stepped in and done the job so well that the original starters have hardly been missed.

That's something Shula likes to talk about.

"That doesn't happen by accident," he said. "It's sort of a tradition down here. We make sure the second team players get plenty of work in practice, and they usually play just as much or more than the starters in the preseason. They know they've got to be ready to play anytime we need them."

The Dolphins even won three straight preseason games without Marino, who fractured a bone in his hand in a pre-preseason scrimmage against the New Orleans Saints.

"I don't know what it is about him," Griese said. "I don't know what is different about him that makes him a winner. I guess it's just the fact that he does it that makes him different."

Nagelson In Semis

HOUSTON (AP) — Betsy Nagelsen and Butch Walts played just the way Billie Jean King's scouting report said they would.

Nagelsen served superbly and the pair didn't make "stupid" mistakes in recording a 3-6, 7-6 (7-4), 7-5 victory in a quarter-finals match of the $400,000 World Mixed Doubles Championships Friday night.

Top-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd and Jimmy Connors emerged as the only seeded team in Friday night's semi-finals with a 6-4, 6-1 victory over Gabriela Sabatini and Jose Luis Clerc.

"I wasn't surprised how well Betsy served," King said. "I watched them play last night and they didn't make any stupid errors. Betsy plays better in mixed doubles because the guys hit hard and that's the way she likes it."

Fleming apparently didn't read the scouting report on Nagelsen's serve.

"I was definitely surprised," Fleming said. "She hit six or seven unreturnable serves to me and that's surprising."

Fleming served well through most of the match. He won 15 consecutive points off his serve including three love games in the first set. Fleming continued to serve well in the second set but he lost three of four points on his serve in the tie-breaker.

Powers Lifts Trinity

Jimmy Powers rushed for 158 yards with four touchdowns and returned an interception for a 52-yard TD to lead Trinity to a 45-13 pounding over Wanchese Friday in high school flag football action.

Kyler Welch got Trinity on the board first with a 12-yard run, and Powers passed to Rodney Brown for the point-after conversion.

Powers had touchdown runs of 34, 14, 44 and 28 yards in leading Trinity to its fourth win of the season in as many outings.

Trinity will compete in the state playoffs Nov. 16-17.

Scoring summary:

T — Welch 12 run (Brown pass from Powers)
T — Powers 34 run (pass failed)
T — Powers 14 run (Peaden pass from Powers)
T — Powers 52 interception return (pass failed)
T — Powers 44 run (Edward Everett pass from Powers)
W — Wilson 15 pass from Daniel (pass failed)
T — Powers 28 run (pass failed)
W — Daniels 4 run (Wilson pass from Daniels)
T — Everett 60 punt return (pass failed)

Saints, Browns Provide New Faces In Matchup

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Normally, a game between National Football League teams with 3-5 and 1-7 records doesn't draw much interest. When those teams have just lost a quarterback and a coach, however, the matchup grabs a portion of the spotlight.

When the 3-5 New Orleans Saints — minus 15-year veteran quarterback Ken Stabler, who retired Friday — visit the 1-7 Cleveland Browns — minus fired Coach Sam Rutigliano — it won't have any effect on playoff races. But Cleveland, under new Coach Marty Shottenheimer, will try to extend its eight-game victory streak against the Saints, who have never beaten the Browns.

Shottenheimer said the Browns would use the shotgun formation in order to provide more protection to quarterback Paul McDonald. Cleveland has allowed 42 sacks and the Saints lead the league with 34.

"At the start of the week I considered it a possibility, but now I would consider it a probability," Schottenheimer said. "And we've got to make an effort to successfully run the ball to take pressure off Paul."

"It's a change and the great thing about it is the vision," said McDonald, a left-hander. "A quarterback's vision is a lot better because he can see things downfield. The only potential problem is, on a blitz, getting rid of the ball in time. That's the key."

As for New Orleans' left-handed quarterback, Stabler headed to Alabama as the Saints traveled to Ohio.Stabler will be 39 years old on Christmas Day.

"He's been nothing but a credit to the game his entire career, on and off the field, and we hate to see him go," Saints Coach and General Manager Bum Phillips said.

"He's always done what we asked him to do. He gave everything he had to help this team and every team he's ever played with to make them winners. We will miss his ability and his leadership. He's been good for this team."

Stabler was unavailable for comment.

Elsewhere Sunday, the Miami Dolphins, the NFL's only unbeaten team at 8-0, host 0-8 Buffalo. The only other winless club, Houston, is at home to Cincinnati.

Seattle visits San Diego Monday night.

"Although they're 0-8 and a lot of people have already put the 'W' in the column for us, we expect a tough game," Miami Coach Don Shula said. "They gave us one of the best games this year."

The Bills lost 21-17 in a Monday night contest at home in the third week of the season. That's the closest any team has come to beating Miami.

"That was the third game of the year. Things are entirely different now," noted Buffalo Coach Kay Stephenson. "The Dolphins have changed some; certainly their running game is much better.

"We're not looking back to that game. A loss, even for a winless team, isn't anything to draw comfort from."

The Jets, 6-2, and Patriots, 5-3, are chasing the Dolphins. New England also has a new coach, Hall of Fame wide receiver Raymond Berry, who replaced Ron Meyer, who was fired on Thursday. Meyer was released after he had fired defensive coordinator Rod Rust without permission from Patriots General Manager Pat Sullivan. Rust was rehired by Berry.

"It's been my experience that any kind of shakeup — a coach, a player — fired a team up," Jets Coach Joe Walton said.

Pirates Hold Purple-Gold

The East Carolina Unviersity swim team held its annual Purple-Gold intrasquad meet Thursday at Minges Natatorium with the men's teams tied at 56 while the Purple women edged the Gold 56-55.

The Pirate men open the season Nov. 17 hosting UNC-Charlotte, and the women open the same day against James Madison.

Furniture Buyers Shifting

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — Though fewer people came to shop at furniture showrooms in Hickory during the fall Southern Furniture Market, manufacturer migration is not yet a serious problem, officials said.

High Point is the center of the market, where about 1,300 manufacturers cme to show their wares. But as the number of manufacturers in High Point has grown, the number in surrounding communities has shrunk.

At last count, Hickory was down to about 100 showrooms, compared with the 250 it could offer several years ago.

"I think Hickory is always going to have a place in the Southern Furniture Market," said Mayor William R. McDonald.

David Eidson, general manager of the Hickory Merchandizing Mart, is also optimistic. He said his 83,000-square-foot building has been filled for the past five years with manufacturers during the furniture market.

As economic conditions improve, more companies will be getting into the furniture business, some manufacturers say.

But many manufacturers are watching Broyhill Furniture, which is located on the western edge of the Hickory market in Lenoir. It is the largest company participating in the market.

"If Broyhill would move out of the Lenoir area, that probably would change our customers' patterns," said Jerome W. Bolick, president of Southern Furniture Co. of Conover, Inc. "If that were to happen, we'd have to move."

Richard Barentine, executive director of the Furniture Factories' Marketing Association of the South in High Point, said that Hickory manufacturers should be cautious. Barentine's association sponsors the semi-annual furniture markets and has watched the manufacturers' move to High Point.

Between October 1983 and this fall furniture market, 38 exhibitors moved from the Hickory area to High Point.

Glenn S. Thomas, a vice president for The Lane Company, said Lane moved five of the company's showrooms to High Point from Hickory and had more than double the traffic.

Barentine said that manufacturers of the more expensive lines of furniture are the ones who have left Hickory. That leaves the town with the lower end of the market, he said.

"The upper end drew traffic that fed the middle people," Barentine said. "The middle people drew traffic that fed promotion people (those who sell the least expensive lines."

Realty Course

An orientation course for new and prospective members of the Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors will be held Monday through Wednesday at First Federal Savings and Loan, Greenville Boulevard branch, from 8-10:30 a.m.

Study areas include "Professionalism and the REALTOR," the "REALTOR Code of Ethics and Arbitration Procedures," "History of the Governing Boards," and "Use of the Competitive Market Analysis."

Other topics include an update on the North Carolina real estate licensing law, as well as a briefing on the organization and regulations of the Multiple Listing Service. A $15 registration fee is payable at the beginning of the course.

Record Sales

Conner Homes Corp. has announced record sales and earnings for the fiscal year ended Sept. 2. The corporation's net earnings for 1984 were $6,944,901, or $2.37 per share, an increase of more than 100 percent over the $3,429,235, or $1.27 per share, realized in 1983.

Total net sales and revenue were $106,835,785, compared to $74,217,203 in 1983, an increase of 43 percent.

Sales Increased

Fieldcrest Mills Inc. has announced third quarter sales of $148,749,000, which reflects the normal seasonal increase over second quarter sales and a slightly lower figure compared with 1983 third quarter sales of $149,703,000.

Net earnings for this year's third quarter were $3,529,000 (91 cents per share) in comparison with $6,626,000 ($1.71 per share) reported in the third quarter of last year. However, 1983's third quarter earnings including a non-recurring gain of 22 cents per share from the sale of a regional warehouse.

Insurance Award

W. Kurt Fickling, president of Fickling Insurance Association Inc. of Greenville, was recently presented the Ernest F. Young Education Award during the 87th annual meeting in Asheville of Independent Insurance Agents of North Carolina Inc.

The award is presented each year by the survivors of Ernest F. Young, who was a Charlotte insurance man, to the agent who has made the most outstanding contribution to the statewide association in the area of education.

Fickling has served as chairman of the association's education committee for the past year.

President Named

Greenville Insurance Agent Donald C. McGlohon was recently named president-elect of Independent Insurance Agents of North Carolina Inc., succeeding H. Reginald Poteat of Laurinburg.

McGlohon, who is employed at Hines Agency in Greenville, was elected during the 87th annual meeting in Asheville of the statewide association of insurance agents.

McGlohon had served as vice president of the organization for the past year. Before that he served as secretary-treasurer and as a member of the board of directors.

New Representative

Lindsay G. Gray, vice president of marketing and sales for the Greenville Printing Company, has been appointed regional representative for the Printing Industry of the Carolinas Inc. Gray will also be chairman of its special industry committee.

The committee's aim is to organize and promote seminars, workshops, regional meetings and statistical information for quick and commercial printers.

Gray and his business partner founded four years ago the AccuCopy Copy Centers in Greenville, which recently expanded by forming a new commercial printing facility, Greenville Printing Company.

Dividend Declared

The board of directors of Vermont American Corp. has declared a regular quarterly dividend of 10 cents per share of the company's class A and class B common stock payable Nov. 28 to shareholders of record Nov. 2.

Treasurer Re-elected

A local banker is among the 1984-85 officers and directors for the North Carolina Payments System (NorCaPS) and North Carolina Automated Clearing House Association (NorCaCACHA) elected recently at their combined annual meetings in Pinehurst.

William Glidewell, senior vice president of First State Bank, was re-elected treasurer of NorCaPS, a research and development corporation for banks in the state. He was also re-elected treasurer of NorCaCACHA.

Positions Filled

Two positions have been filled by local bankers at Wachovia Bank and Trust Company in Greenville, according to T.A. Bennett, regional vice president.

Powell joined Wachovia in 1979 as a dealer credit manager of sales and finance and was elected banking officer in 1981, his present position. A native of Whiteville, Powell is a 1978 graduate of East Carolina University. He is former treasurer and board member of the Jaycees.

Powell is also a United Way volunteer and a member of Immanuel Baptist Church. He is married to the former Martha Lee Hooser from Huntington, W. Va.

Tomsic began his career with Wachovia as an audit trainee in the regional audit department and has had various responsibilities in that department since that time. In October, Tomsic became a corporate banking trainee, which is his present position.

A native of Hubert, Tomsic is a 1981 graudate of East Carolina University. He is a former member of the Greenville Jaycees and is a United Way volunteer. He is a member of the East Carolina University Alumni Association and the Pirate Club. Tomsic is married for the former Teresa Shook of Swansboro.

Realtor Elected

David Nichols Jr. was recently elected to the North Carolina Association of Realtor's Budget and Finance Committee at the conclusion of its 63rd annual convention in Charlotte.

He is a member of the Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors.

Board Honored

The Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors recently placed first in the small board category of a statewide Private Property Week Contest sponsored by the North Carolina Association of Realtors.

The board also won second place on the national level in the small board category. This marks the fifth consecutive year it has received recognition on a national level.

Cissy Taft of the Greenville-Pitt County board placed third in a statewide essay contest, also in observance of Private Property Week.

In a statewide Make America Better contest, the Greenville-Pitt County board was one of seven boards that placed first in various categories. The local board was also one of five to receive special recognition on a national level for their activities.

All awards were presented at the annual membership meeting of the North Carolina Association of Realtors held in Charlotte at the conclusion of its 63rd annual convention.

Amended Returns

In a recent investigation, Internal Revenue Service officials say they have discovered amended returns are being filed claiming a refund on false grounds.

Evidence shows that taxpayers are filing an Employee's Business Expense Form 2106, claiming out-of-pocket expenses which have, in most cases, been reimbursed by the employer and therefore are not deductible.

The IRS said employees at the Memphis Service Center, where North Carolina returns are filed, are intercepting these amended returns and reviewing them to determine if there is a violation of the tax law.

COMMONPLACE — Lucinda Wolke isn't modeling some far-out type of spectacle, but she is looking over items similar to some that are commonplace in most modern homes. The devices are "adjusting sectors," or equipment used to raise and lower the upper dish rack in home diswashers. These were used in Whirlpool dishwashers manufactured in Findlay, Ohio. Volcano Alert

LEGASPI, Philippines (AP) — Government scientists alerted villagers Saturday to be ready to evacuate the area around Bulusan volcano, which is showing signs of erupting after a year-long slumber.

The Philippine Institute of Volcanology said seismographs recorded 53 tremors Saturday from the 5,144-foot volcano, 250 miles southeast of Manila.

There was a mild eruption last year from Bulusan, which has had about 30 major eruptions since 1852. None is known to have caused casualties.

Bulusan is 50 miles south of Mount Mayon volcano, which has been erupting since Sept. 9. Mayon appeared to be gradually returning to normal, with no significant activity observed for several weeks. But the institute said it was recommending that more than 50,000 refugees in evacuation centers not return home on the slopes of 8,124-foot Mayon because of danger from mudflows.

Meat Packers Cut Slaughter Tally

By KEITH E. LEIGHTY
AP Business Writer

Livestock and meat prices rallied in active trading Friday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

A reduction in the size of the cattle slaughter appeared to be a key factor suporting prices, said Chuck Levitt, a livestock analyst in Chicago with Shearson Lehman-American Express.

He said meat packers held back animals to support prices in response to a report from the Agriculture Department Oct. 18 disclosing more animals than were expected in feed lots. The report initially pushed prices sharply lower.

As a result of the lower slaughter, the price of beef carcasses on wholesale markets recovered from a decline earlier in the week. Traders expect carcass prices to continue climbing next week.

The recovery in futures prices also prompted buying by traders who watch technical factors such as trends on price charts, Levitt said.

Hog prices advanced despite a heavy slaughter this week, as demand from retailers and meat processors appeared to be strong.

Levitt said demand for hams was good even though a report last week disclosed plentiful supplies in storage.

Ideas that the slaughter will begin a seasonal decline earlier than normal also encouraged buying, Levitt said.

Pork bellies rallied primarily in response to the support in the other pits.

Live cattle settled .15 cent to .67 cent higher with the contract for delivery in December at 63.87 cents a pound; feeder cattle were .45 cent to .70 cent higher with November at 67.40 cents a pound; live hogs were unchanged to 1.18 cents higher with December at 47.65 cents a pound; and frozen pork bellies were .6 cent to 1 cent higher with February at 64.87 cents a pound.

Grain and soybean futures prices were mostly lower in light trading on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Analysts said there were few developments in the market to affect prices.

Weather has been the dominant factor and with clear and drier conditions prevailing over much of the Midwest, farmers were able to make progress with the harvest. However, rain was expected to resume over the weekend, which curtailed selling.

The U.S. dollar was stronger against major foreign currencies, and that further encouraged selling, as it portends lower exports of U.S. grains.

Soybean oil was the only market that showed any strength. Jerry Gidel, a grain analyst in Chicago with Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, said demand appeared to be strong from commercial companies that export the product. Some sources said India was believed to be buying soybean oil.

Wheat settled 2 cents to 3 cents lower with the contract for delivery in December at $3.60 a bushel; corn was unchanged to 1 cent lower with December at $2.77¼ a bushel; oats were 1 cent lower to 1 cent higher with December at $1.80½ a bushel.

Buyers Exercise Caution

By SKIP WOLLENBERG
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Actions carried less weight than words this past week on Wall Street, where the second reduction in two weeks in banks' prime lending rates failed to inspire skittish stock market investors.

Analysts said they appeared to be more concerned about a prominent private economist's warnings that interest rates are headed higher.

The polemics leading up to the presidential election less than two weeks away and the OPEC oil ministers talks this coming week in Geneva also kept investors on guard, the analysts said.

Caution was so widespread that volume on the Big Board fell off 38 percent from the previous week as prices drifted in a narrow range.

For the week, the Dow Jones industrial average closed at 1,204.95, down 20.98 from the previous Friday's close. It had risen 35.23 points the previous week.

The New York Stock Exchange's composite index finished at 95.34, down 1.52 for the week. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .07 for the week at 209.31.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell in four of the five sessions during the week, posting its only gain — a 3.42 rise — on Wednesday.

Shortly after the market opened Friday, Morgan Guaranty, the nation's fifth largest bank, announced it would cut its prime lending rate by one-half percentage point to 12 percent, effective Monday. Most other major banks soon matched the reduction.

It was the second prime rate decline in 10 days, but it failed to inspire investors.

"The prime rate follows movements in other open-market rates and open-market rates had already declined," said Robert M. Steiner, senior partner at Steiner Diamond & Co. in Chicago.

He said the banks were only doing what the financial markets already expected they would do and what investors had already taken into consideration in evaluating stock prices.

Charles Jensen, chief technical analyst at MKI Securities in New York, said the market "was frightened" by an interest rate forecast on Thursday by Henry Kaufman, the influential chief economist for Salomon Brothers.

Kaufman said he expected federal borrowing pressures to push rates higher, saying that the recent decline in rates represented only a "pleasant interlude."

Jensen said the report on Thursday of a larger-than-expected $1.8 billion rise in the nation's money supply in mid-October also pushed interest rates higher.

Uncertainty about the presidential election and the meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries made some investors nervous, he said. The OPEC meeting was called to discuss how the members would react to recent price cuts announced by Nigeria, Norway and Great Britain, and OPEC leaders have focused discussion in recent days to production cuts.

"With the OPEC meeting coming up," Jensen said, "traders who responded last week to oil price cuts are having second thoughts."

"I think we are on dead center for the next 10 days," he said.

Lurie said the market also has been hesitant in recent days because "we have had more erratic earnings reports this quarter than we have since the recovery started" nearly two years ago.

Marvin I. Katz, executive vice president at Sanford C. Bernstein & Co., said low volume is preventing the market from making a major move.

"The market is drifting," he said. "There is nothing wrong with this market — it's that there is no volume."

Merchants Seek Tax Roll Back

By The Associated Press

The North Carolina Retail Merchants Association thinks it will have its best chance to repeal the state's inventory tax in 1985, association officials say.

William C. Rustin, president of the trade association for retailers and wholesalers, said that both candidates for governor favor repeal of the tax. Meanwhile, an unexpected surplus in the state budget next year will provide a means for making up revenues lost through repeal.

The association has repeatedly pressed the legislature to appeal the inventory tax — the property tax levies that cities and counties apply against manufacturing and trade inventories.

Rustin said the issue is becoming important because most other Southeastern states have repealed their inventory taxes in the battle to lure industry.

"We've got a retail company that wants to build a distribution center in North or South Carolina," Rustin said. "'We've done everything politically and businesswise we can to bring it to North Carolinea.

"It will mean $20 million worth of capital investment and 40 jobs. If I was county X, Y or Z, I'd sure rather have the capital investment, which is taxable, and the 400 jobs than the inventory tax on the inventory."

The association favors a gradual repeal of the tax over four or five years, Rustin said, with the state reimbursing city and county governments for their lost revenues out of an expected $400 million surplus in the state budget next year.

The inventory tax generates an estimated $220 million in city and conty property tax revenue, he said.

Guerrillas Killed

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Government forces in Angola killed 77 guerrillas and captured two others in six days of fighting this month, the official Angolan news agency, Angop, reported Saturday.

Angop said the rebels were killed in an anti-guerrilla offensive in the central provinces of Benguela, Bie and Huambo from Oct. 2-7. It said large stores of arms and ammunition were seized and 47 captured civilians were freed.

Everyone recalls in some fashion or another "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow" and its tale of a gangly school teacher named Ichabod Crane whose fate was determined one shadowy night, the old country wives say, at the hands of a headless horseman. The horseman, said to be the ghost of a Hessian trooper whose head was carried away by a cannon-ball, haunted the edge of Wiley's Swamp in New York where Ichabod disappeared. Following are excerpts from Washington Irving's well-loved story ... a tale often told the world over on All Hallow's E'vn.

"... All the stories of ghosts and goblins that Ichabod had heard in the afternoon, now came crowding upon his recollection. The night grew darker and darker; the stars seemed to sink deeper in the sky.... He had never felt so lonely and dismal.... (Then) In the dark shadow of the grove ... he beheld something huge, misshapen, black and towering. Ichabod, who had no relish for this strange midnight companion ... now quickened his steed.... On mounting a rising ground, which brought the figure of his fellow traveller in relief against the sky ... Ichabod was horror struck, on perceiving that he was headless! But his horror was still more increased on observing, that the head which should have rested on his shoulders, was carried before him on the pommel of the saddle!... Away then they dashed.... Ichabod's flimsy garments fluttered in the air as he stretched his long lank body away over his horse's head, in the eagerness of his flight ... but just as he had got half way through the hollow, the girth of the saddle gave way ... clasping old gunpowder around the neck, he heard it (the saddle) trampled underfoot by his pursuer.... Then he heard the black steed panting and blowing close behind him; he fancied he felt his hot breath.... And now Ichabod cast a look behind to see if his pursuer should vanish, according to rule, in a flash of fire and brimstone. Just then he saw the goblin rising in his stirrups, and in the very act of hurtling his head at him. Ichabod endeavored to dodge the horrible missile, but too late. It encountered his cranimum with a tremendous crash.... The next morning the old horse was found without his saddle, and the bridle under his feet, soberly cropping the grass at his master's gate.... But no Ichabod ..." (1820)

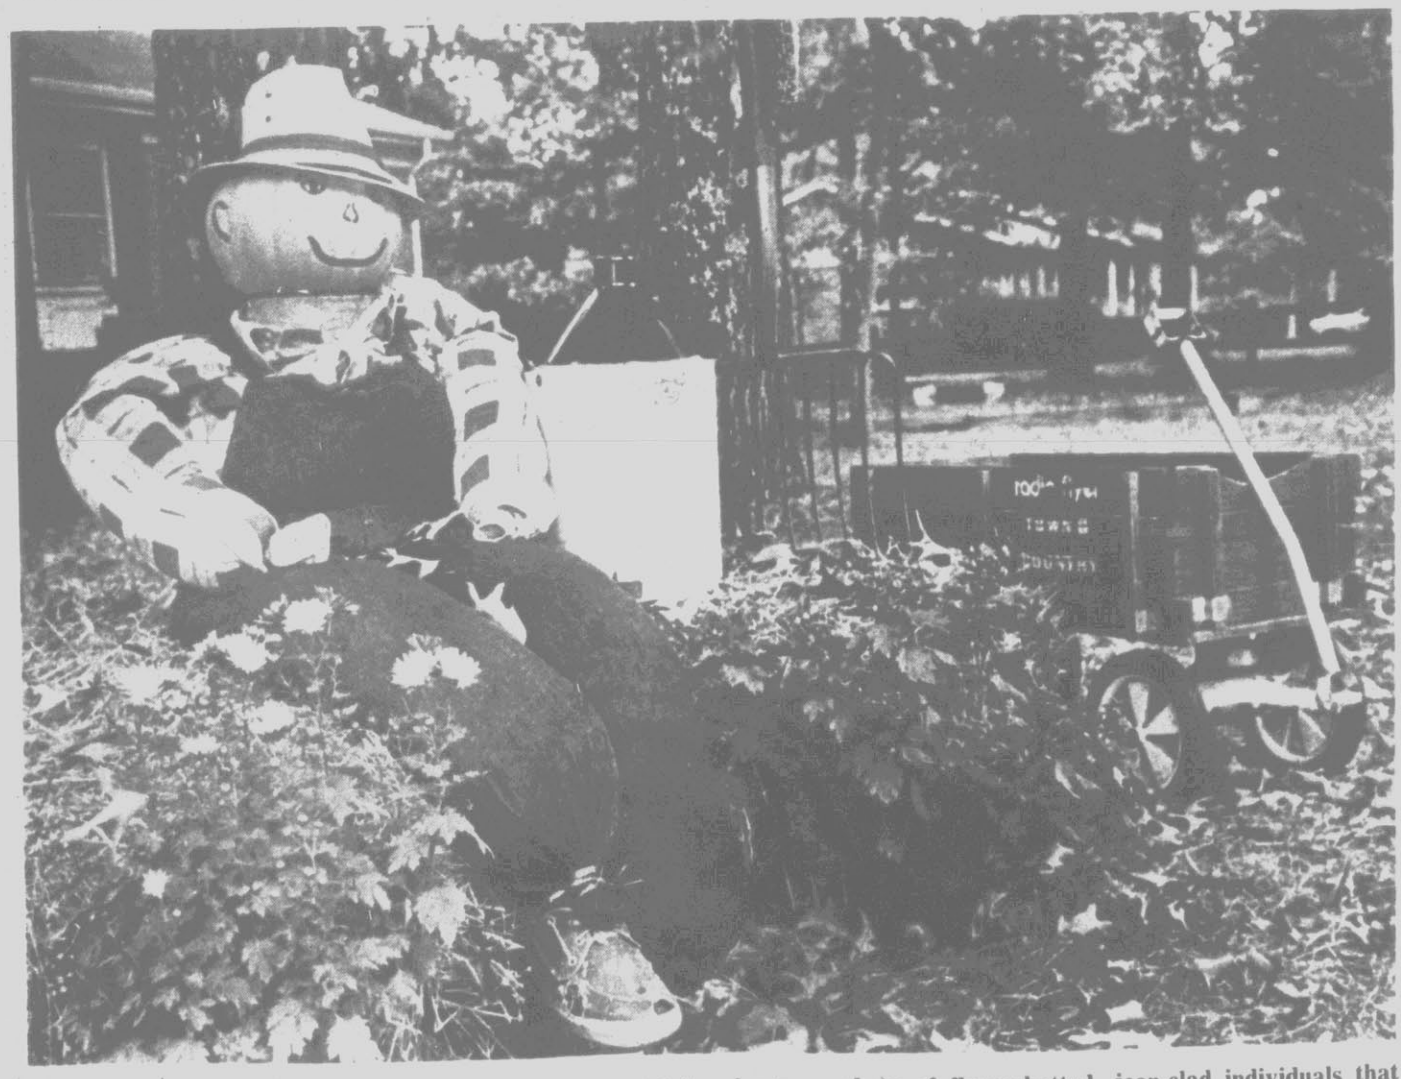
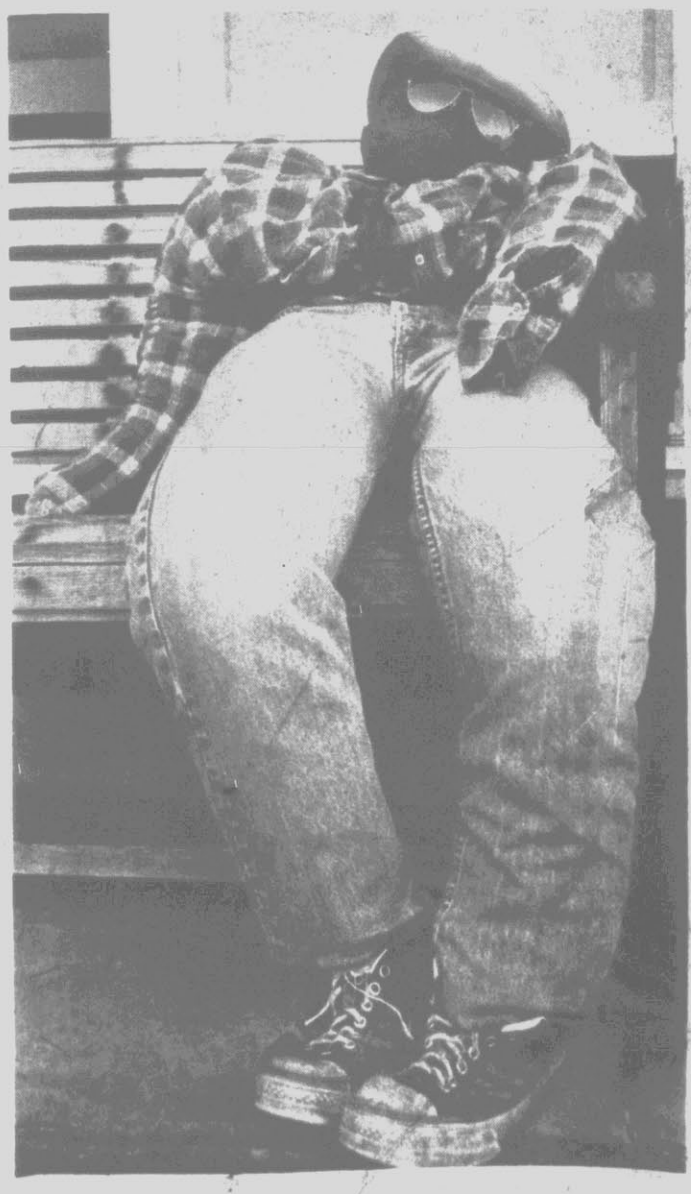
OLD TRADITIONS — Many superstitions and symbols including jack-o'-lanterns, and black cats have long been associated with Halloween. According to Irish legend, there once was a man named Jack who, because of his miserliness and propensity for playing practical jokes on the wrong people, could not go to the hereafter and was sentenced to walk the earth with his lantern until judgement day. In later years, carving pumpkins became a popular holiday pastime that retains its appeal today. The association of black cats, ghosts, spirits and elves with Halloween were passed down by the Druids, an order of priests in ancient Gaul and Britian. The priests thought that cats had once been humans who were transformed as punishment for evil deeds. Other symbols such as Indian corn, strings of dried herbs and flowers are often used for holiday decoration because of their abundance in the autumn season.

(The World Book Encyclopedia 1969)





KEEPERS OF THE CORN — Originally constructed to ward predatory crows from farm fields, scarecrows have become a common sight around Halloween. These two not-so-scary fellows are but a small representation of the large numbers of floppy-hatted, jean-clad individuals that can be seen lounging on front steps and yards around Pitt County.

Couple Marries In Greensboro Saturday

The wedding ceremony of Jane Hadley Goforth and Geoffrey Lentz Wheeler took place Saturday at 3 p.m. in Peace United Church of Christ in Greensboro. The double ring ceremony was performed by Dr. G. Melvin Palmer.

Given in marriage by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Dean Goforth of Greenville, the bride was escorted by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. William C. Wheeler of Vienna, Va., and the late Dr. Wheeler. William C. Wheeler Jr. of Weisbaden, Germany, was best man for his brother.

Ann G. Sutton of Greenville was honor attendant for her sister. Bridesmaids were Sally Arey of Herndon, Va., sister of the bridegroom, Jan L. Foust, Barrie G. Wood and Sandra S. Youngblood, all of Greenville. Caroline S. Bell of Greer, S.C, cousin of the bride, and Sarah Cox of Greesboro were flower girls.

Andrew Cox of Greensboro was ring bearer. Ushers included Charles Forbes and Neal Miller of Vienna, Va., David Hart of Knoxville, Tenn., and Paul Arey of Herndon, Va.

MRS. WHEELER

The bride wore a gown of white satin with a high neckline outlined with alencon lace, long fitted sleeves of illusion and alencon lace. The fitted bodice was of illusion and alencon lace and the skirt was full cut and extended into a chapel train enhanced with satin bows and border of alencon lace. Her veil was of chapel length illusion attached to an alencon lace cap. She carried a cascade of white butterfly roses, white cymbidium orchids with pink centers and white miniature carnations accented with baby's breath tied with white bridal satin.

The honor attendant wore a two-piece gown of frost rose taffeta designed with shoe-string straps with a jacket with a ruffle around the neckline and short puff sleeves. She carried a nosegay of minuet roses, miniature burgundy and mauve carnations, carmen alstromeria accented with blue statice and baby's breath. The bridesmaids' gowns and flowers were identical.

The flower girls wore frost rose taffeta gowns styled with ruffled necklines, puff sleeves, gathered skirts with a flounce and burgundy sash. Their nosegays were similar to those of the other attendants.

The couple will live in Reston, Va., after a trip to Nassau.

The bride graduated from J.H. Rose High School and received a B.S. from East Carolina University. She received her M.Ed in child development and family relations from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. She is a teacher at the Senate Employees Child Care Center in Washington. The bridegroom graduated from the University of Tennessee with a degree in ornamental horticulture and landscape design. He is a superintendent of Reston South Golf Course in Reston, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. A.C. Farmer, aunt and uncle of the bride, greeted guests at the reception in the church fellowship hall which was given by parents of the bride. Cake was served by Mrs. Guilford Cargal, Mrs. David Bell, Mrs. James B. Bell and Mrs. William C. Wheeler Jr. Punch was poured by Mrs. William Butts and Mrs. Clifford Tilley, cousins of the bride.

The rehearsal dinner was given Friday night by the mother of the bridegroom at the Bur-Mil Country Club in Greensboro. Aunts and a cousin of the bride entertained at a bridesmaids luncheon at the Cardinal Country Club in Greensboro. Several pre-nuptial parties were given by friends of the bridal couple prior to the ceremony.

Visitors Get Glimpse of U.S. Family Life

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the director of China's Foreign Affairs Office or a sports authority from Senegal visit the United States as official government guests, they may not only confer with a U.S. senator, but may also eat barbecued chicken with a family of six in Tulsa, Okla.

Such face-to-face encounters with grass roots Americans are all part of a program which allows foreign leaders to meet their professional counterparts in this country and also see the backroads and ordinary lifestyles of America.

Called the International Visitor Program and operating under the sponsorship of the United States Information Agency, it relies on 800,000 unpaid volunteers, U. S. embassy officials in every corner of the world, dozens of government employees, and private organizations.

What pulls this sprawling network together is the desire to offer each visitor — some 4,000 annually — an uncensored view of American pluralism, its institutions and politics, and through the process build mutual understanding, says Robert Schadler, director of the program.

"We are constantly told by our foreign service officers overseas that in terms of enhancing public diplomacy and erasing cultural misconceptions it is one of the most effective exchange programs at any price," said Schadler. "And one of the most memorable aspects is the homestays with American families."

For Becky Thompson of Little Rock, Ark., who has hosted more than 25 international guests in her home through the IV program, it has meant "seeing the world from my front porch." As a result, she said her oldest child is thinking about majoring in languages at college, she is much more involved in her community's political process and the experience has enhanced her husband's desire to be a medical volunteer in Nigeria.

The steady stream of foreign visitors into the Thompson home has so acculturated their youngest child, a 5-year-old, that he "sings nursery rhymes in German."

Ann Cole, of Chicago, acknowledges that she and her husband, Roger, who both work and have raised a family of four, regard themselves as "armchair ambassadors." During the past 20 years, they estimate that their home has been a way station for "literally hundreds of foreign visitors from at least 60 countries."

East-West tensions have not dampened a two-decades-old relationship the Coles have with an economics professor from Soviet Estonia. Every Christmas they exchange cards and Christmas tree decorations. Their international exposure was also the impetus for her husband's sabbatical to Europe in 1962.

One guest, a writer from Salerno, Italy, and his wife taught Mrs. Cole the secret of cooking Roman artichokes. Six years later when another writer from the same Italian city was flipping through the Coles' guest book, he noticed his colleague's name. The coincidence caused the Coles to send back an audio tape, rekindling an old friendship.

These senior level visitors may get treated to everything from a paddleboat cruise on the Mississippi to a New England town meeting, or just simply a ride to pick up the kids at school.

"It's usually not called entertaining," said Alan Warne, executive director of the National Council on International Visitors, which oversees the homestays. "These opportunities are not designed so much to talk about foreign policy as they are to learn what goes on in the daily lives of Americans."

The dollar value of these volunteer hours adds up to about $17 million annually in "free" private sector support, according to Warne. The government contributes about $30 million each year.

Once selected by an embassy official overseas, each foreign visitor actively participates in designing his or her 30-day tour program. Schadler says there is no attempt to paint America as a "Garden of Eden. These people are too sophisticated for that. If they want to see our urban slums they see them. Our program is designed to establish a person-to-person dialogue and increase understanding. Anything after that is a bonus."

Among the world leaders who first came to this country in their formative political careers through USIA's IV program are British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, Colombian President Belisario Bentacur, and Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere.

The IV program claims about 40 current heads of state as alumni, but is also the channel through which prime ballerinas and agronomists often first see America.

Unwittingly, the program has been midwife to a few miracles, Schadler says. When Abdourahmane Soli, secretary general in the Niger Ministry of Justice, was studying the U.S. legal system, he was asked at a dinner party in Memphis, Tenn., if he intended to visit Dr. David Meyer, a world-renowned eye surgeon.

Soli was legally blind and had had corrective surgery five times, all with no success. Although skeptical, he met Meyer, was operated on, and now has full sight in his right eye and the guarantee of 70 percent vision in the other.

Faulconer-Mercer Wedding Vows Spoken

Charlean Holmes Mercer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Mercer of Route 4, Louisburg, and Henry Michie Faulconer II, son of Jeanette C. Snowden of Chamblee, Ga., and the late H.M. Faulconer, were married Saturday afternoon.

The Rev. Malloy Owen III performed the ceremony in Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church. Mark Gansor played the piano and vocalists were Billy and Sandra Stinson.

Lee Beere of Leesburg, Va., sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids included Julia Everhart of High Point, sister of the bride, Catherine Faulconer of North High Shoals, Ga., sister of the bridegroom, Katherine Joyner of Rocky Mount and Christina Meskey of Greenville.

The acolyte was Christopher Beere of Leesburg, Va., nephew of the bride. Daniel Keller of Ackworth, Ga., Jack Van Rich of Rocky Mount, Jeff Eischeid of Marietta, Ga., and Robert Chandler of Decautur, Ga., were ushers. Ralph Schrum of Charlotte was best man.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of organza with chantilly lace. Lace fashioned the empire waisted fitted bodice with the sabrina neckline and formed the bishop sleeves with lace cuffs. An overlay of lace formed the skirt with a pleated insert in front and around to form the attachel chapel length lace train. A chapel length veil of silk illusion was attached to a chantilly lace covered cap. Lace trim scallops the illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of white butterfly roses interspersed with baby's breath and tied with white lace and satin ribbons.

The honor attendant carried a colonial nosegay of white daisies, pink and huckleberry pixie carnations, blue statice, baby's breath and huckleberry ribbon streamers. She wore a formal gown of violet faille taffeta designed with an open sweetheart neckline accented by an inset panel of imported Brussels lace in matching violet. The gown was fashioned with elbow length pouf sleeves. A tie sash of matching fabric accented the modified natural waistline.

The bridesmaids were dressed identically in huckleberry faille taffeta and carried similar nosegays tied with violet ribbons.

The mothers wore corsages of white pixie carnations and the grandmothers were remembered with corsages of white carnations.

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip to Jamacia.

The bride is a computer operator for Garner Wholesale in Greenville. She attended N.C. State University and Nash Technical College. The bridegroom is a forester for N.C. Forest Products in New Bern. He graduated from the University of Georgia.

MRS. FAULCONER

The bride's parents entertained at a reception at the Ramada Inn. The refreshment table was centered with a five branch candelabra holding a mixed colonial bouquet of carnations, fuji mums, daisies, statice and baby's breath in shades of pink, huckleberry, lavender and white.

The wedding party and out-of-town guests were entertained at a wedding breakfast at the Holiday Inn given by Mr. and Mrs. Nelson K. Reid, Catherin Faulconer and Mrs. Ara H. Faulconer.

Wedding Vows Spoken At High Noon On Saturday

Teresa Lynn Taylor and Dr. Ned Hinnant Craft, both of Ayden, exchanged wedding vows Saturday at high noon in the First Baptist Church in Ayden. The Rev. Gilbert G. Mister performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby N. Taylor and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Craft Jr., all of Ayden.

Linda Sawyer of Ayden was honor attendant. Bridesmaids included Sarah Beale of Williamsburg, Va., Emily Hepler of Charlotte, Kimberly Starling of Pine Level, Janet Ricciarelli of Grifton, Deborah Boyd, cousin of the bride, and Mona Williams, both of Greenville. Melinda Sawyer of Ayden was junior bridesmaid.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Groomsmen were Tom Craft, brother of the bridegroom of Wilson, the Rev. Edward Taylor and Tyrone Taylor, both of Greenville, Frank Taylor Ayden, brothers of the bride, Dr. Jimmy Buckthal of Chapel Hill, Paul Ricciarelli of Grifton and Kevin Nelson of Ayden. Ring bearer was Daron Taylor, nephew of the bride of Ayden.

Mrs. Glenn Swanson presented a program of classical organ music. Steve Jones of Carrboro, acting as his own accompanist, sang "Evergreen," "Truly" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white bridal satin over peau de soie. The gown was fashioned with an open sabrina neckline accented by an applique of scalloped re-embroidered alencon lace beaded with pearls. The lace extended over the bodice front and enhanced the dropped silhouette waistline. The long fitted Renaissance sleeves were trimmed in a floral patterned Venise lace interspersed with appliques of the imported lace. The gathered skirt and attached cathedral length train were edged at the hemline in a border of alencon lace. She wore a waltz length veil of illusion held in place by a Camelot cap overlaid in lace and beaded with seed pearls. She carried a cascading bouquet of rubrum lilies, white roses and miniature white carnations tied with white lace and satin streamers.

The honor attendant wore a formal gown of royal blue taffeta featuring a sweetheart neckline with off-shoulder draped elbow length sleeves. The fitted bodice topped a tiered ruffle skirt ending with a Victorian train. Her headpiece was a miniature red rose and baby's breath. Her arm bouquet included red roses, rubrum lilies, white freesias, alstromeria and baby's breath tied with royal blue, rose satin and white lace streamers. The bridesmaids dresses and arm bouquets were identical to that of the honor attendant.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of aqua georgette with a draped yoke neckline and the mother of the bridegroom selected a formal gown of daphine styled with a fitted bodice. Each wore a white orchid corsage tied with white satin ribbon. Grandmothers of the bridal couple were remembered with white chrysanthemum corsages.

Mrs. Ralph C. Worthington Sr. of Ayden directed the ceremony and Gloria Velasquez of Rhode Island presided at the register.

A reception was given by the bride's parents at the Holiday Inn in Greenville. Guests were received by Mr. and Mrs. Carl King of Greenville. Others assisting were Mrs. Don Watson of Grifton, Deborah Beale of Richmond, Va., and Mr. and Mrs. John D. Charlton of Goldsboro. Background music was presented by Mrs. Swanson.

The bridegroom's parents entertained at a dinner party at the Sheraton Inn in Greenville Friday night. Linda Sawyer gave a bridesmaids luncheon at her home in Ayden assisted by Lisa Allen, Becky Godley, Martha Buck and Maggie Watson.

Pre-nuptial events honoring the bridal couple included dinner parties, a pantry party, cookout, pig picking and a pool party.

The bride is a graduate of the University of North Carolina School of Pharmacy and was a member of Phi Mu Sorority. She is employed by Pitt County Memorial Hospital as a registered pharmacist. The bridegroom is a graduate of East Carolina University and the University of North Carolina School of Dentistry. He practices dentistry in Ayden.

After a wedding trip to Kiawah Island the couple will live in Ayden.

MRS. CRAFT

Dr. Thorpe Is DAR Speaker

Dr. Daniel Thorpe, assistant professor of the history department, East Carolina University, was speaker at the meeting of the Susanna Coutanch Evans Chapter DAR held last week.

He spoke on the rise of the Anglican church in the government of North Carolina, as a crown colony in the 18th century, its weaknesses and how other denominations came into power.

Mrs. Gilmer Hulsey, American History Month chairman, announced students at A.G. Cox, Stokes and Belvoir would be entrants in the essay contest. Renetta Smith showed her certificate of appointment from the National Society CAR as organizing senior society president.

Amy Edwards of D.H. Conley and Leigh K. Lanier of J.H. Rose are the DAR Good Citizens sponsored by the chapter. Both are from Greenville and will attend the District VIII Awards Day in Farmville when the district winner will be announced.

In November the chapter will meet jointly in Farmville when Mrs. Albert Potter, state regent, will speak. At the regular meeting Col. Carl Grantham will give a national defense message.

Laws Vary From State To State On Giving Age

DEAR ABBY: Is it legal to ask a woman's age on a job application form? I believe I read in your column that it was against the law, yet I have had to answer that question on every application form I have filled out when applying for a job.
CONFUSED IN DULUTH, MINN.

DEAR CONFUSED: According to the Department of Human Rights in Minnesota, it is illegal to ask a person his or her age when that person applies for a job. This is clearly stated in the state's Human Rights Act. (Laws vary from state to state.)

On the federal level, according to the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, the question of age may not be asked when a person applies for employment, but after a person is hired for a job, his or her age must be known in order to complete records that will affect Social Security and retirement benefits.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My wife's sister, "Zelda," drives her mother to the eye doctor, the foot doctor, grocery shopping, etc., for which she charges her $20.

My wife drives her mother to the same places for free. When Zelda hears about these free trips, she blows her top!

Two questions: Is the money Zelda gets from her mother considered taxable income? And can my mother-in-law claim the money she pays Zelda for driving her as a "medical deduction?"
MR. IN-BETWEEN

DEAR MR. IN-BETWEEN: My accountant, Jerome Weinstein, says: "The money Zelda receives for chauffeuring her mother is taxable income, but she may deduct any expenses incurred in order to earn it. (Gasoline, parking, depreciation on her car, etc.)

"However, all the money your mother-in-law pays Zelda for chauffeuring her is not deductible—only the medical portion would be deductible, and only if it exceeded 5 percent of her adjusted gross income."

If this sounds confusing, ambiguous or perplexing, now you know why I turned these questions over to my accountant.

Hughes-Bullock Vows Exchanged Saturday

The wedding ceremony of Angel Marla Bullock and Thomas Glenn Hughes took place Saturday at 1 p.m. in the Grindle Creek Church of God. The double ring ceremony was performed by Delbert Garrison.

The bride is the daughter of David E. Bullock of Farmville. The bridegroom is the son of Ann Hughes of Williamsburg, Va.

MRS. HUGHES

Katrina Gray was pianist and Mary Warren sang "We've Only Just Begun" and Donnie Harris of Greenville sang "Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown with a chapel train of organza and chantilly lace etched with seed pearls. The fitted lace bodice featured a Queen Anne neckline and full length puff sleeves which ended with an organza flounce over the hand. Seed pearls adorned the bodice. The full length skirt extended into a chapel train and garlands of lace bordered an inverted organza panel on the skirt. She wore a veil of illusion with a hand rolled edge appliqued with lace motifs flowing from a wreath of silk flowers and lace motifs. She carried a bouquet of silk red and white roses.

Linda Bullock of Farmville was matron of honor for her stepdaughter. Bridesmaids were Lois Ann Roberson of Washington and Debra Elaine Taylor of Stokes, aunts of the bride.

The best man was Curtis D. Bullock of Greenville, grandfather of the bride. Ushers were Todd Roberson of Washington and Alton Taylor, cousins of the bride.

The bridesmaids wore formal gowns of tinesta knit each in a shade of violet or pink. The honor attendant was dressed in a burgundy gown. The gowns were fashioned with a Victorian inspired neckline encircled with chantilly lace. The empire bodice featured a sheer V-shaped yoke of matching point d'esprit edged in ruffled chantilly lace forming a bertha collar. The sleeveless dresses featured crystal pleated skirts. Each wore a circlet of silk flowers to match their gowns.

The flower girl wore a formal gown of violet faille taffeta designed with an open neckline outlined in matching violet chantilly lace. The elbow length pouf sleeves featured ruffled lace. The gathered skirt was enhanced at the waistline in violet satin ribbon.

A reception was held after the wedding ceremony and was coordinated by Dennis Bullock of Durham. Ann Davis served wedding cake and punch was poured by Wanda Oakley. Both are from Greenville.

The bride is attending Pitt Community College and is working on a paralegal degree. The bridegroom is a graduate of Lafayette High School in Williamsburg, Va.

Annette Nobles And John D. Doughtie Say Vows

The wedding ceremony of Lana Annette Nobles of Greenville and John Douglas Doughtie of Tarboro took place Saturday afternoon at two o'clock at their home on Route 1, Bethel. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Willis Wilson.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Nobles Sr. of Stokes and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl N. Doughtie of Tarboro.

MRS. DOUGHTIE

Rae Nobles, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor and wore a rose silk net tea length gown which featured a portrait neckline and a fitted waistline with a full gathered skirt that was bordered with a lace edged ruffle flounce. Her bouquet was similar to that of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a tea length gown of daphne silk net and the mother of the bridegroom selected a mauve tea length gown of georgette. Both wore white orchids.

Immediately following the ceremony the parents of the bride entertained at a reception at the King and Queen North in Greenville. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Joe Pleasant, uncle and aunt of the bride. Punch was poured by Polly Galloway and cake was served by Edith Warren, cousin of the bridegroom. Peggy Griffin presided at the bride's book. Mr. and Mrs. Vance Long of Tarboro said goodbyes. Shannon Corbin handed out rice bags.

A rehearsal dinner was given Friday night by the parents of the bridegroom at Stack's in Tarboro. A pig picking was given by Mr. and Mrs. David Nobles Jr. Showers were given for the couple prior to the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Orman Whichard entertained at a brunch on the morning of the wedding.

The bride is a graduate of Atlantic Christian College in Wilson and teaches at Belvoir Elementary School. The bridegroom attended Wayne Community College and is employed by Export Tobacco Co.

After a wedding trip to Florida the couple will live near Bethel.

Nancy Nahouse Gives Program

The Benevolent Circle of the King's Daughters and Sons held its luncheon meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. R.E. Corbett Jr. Nancy Nahouse presented the program.

She reviewed portions of Doris Jansen Longacre's Minnonite cookbook "More or Less — How to eat better and consume less of the world's limited food resources." She stressed the need for a healthy diet and recommended that the circle cooperate with the Soup Kitchen as one of its projects.

Members will bring items for the Soup Kitchen to the next meeting. Gloria Chestang will give the program and accept the items.

Mrs. Tom Bartik, president, gave a report on the N.C. Branch convention held in Durham earlier this month. Representing the circle were Mrs. Bartik, Mrs. Ben Weaver, Mrs. Corbett and Annie Turner.

State President Minnie Scott presented Josephine Rawl an honorary life membership certificate from the International Order of the King's Daughters and Sons.

Campbell Soup labels, cancelled postage stamps and eyeglasses for the needy were collected and members were reminded to continue saving these items.

Mrs. Bartik asked for volunteers to help at the circle's bazaar booth Saturday at Carolina East Mall.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

On The Young Side

By CLAY DEANHARDT

It has been a week of celebrations and festivities here at Rose High as the school held its homecoming for 1984. This year's homecmong theme was "Autumn Fest," and each day this week had some special activity to help celebrate the event.

Monday was Country Day, Tuesday was Fall Sports Day, Wednesday was School Spirit Day, Thursday was Ghost and Ghoul Day and Friday was Autumn Fest Day.

Friday afternoon the school held a pep rally to get ready for the big football game with Fike and then a parade down Fifth Street to welcome back alumni. After the game, the homecoming dance was held at the school. Sponsored by the Key Club, the dance featured the band Zenon, a returning favorite from last year.

It takes a lot of work to pull an event like this off and it is time to give credit where credit is due. The SGA did a fantastic job in preparing for the week and special thanks go to the homecoming/parking committee and the assembly committee. President Curt Hendrix and vice president Churchill Thomas should be commended for a fine job. Also the Key Club, led by Tommie Perkins, did an outstanding job on the dance. Probably the most thanks should go to Kara Deyton, who worked tirelessly to get the parade, the assembly, all the sponsors, the homecoming court and the escorts organized for the event. Congratulations to all for a job well done. Next week, I will announce the homecoming court and the 1984 homecoming queens.

The Quill and Scroll National Honor Society for journalism recently held its first meeting and elected officers. They are Clay Deanhardt, presdient, Kim Edwards, vice president, Grace Jendrasiak, secretary, and Nancy Johnson, treasurer.

Leslie Brinson is the new teacher for the week and she teaches biology and chemistry. She is a graduate of Florida University and Florida State where she obtained her master's in botany and science education. She formerly taught biology at Ayden Grifton High Schoo. She says she likes Rose because the students are "hard working and conscientious."

COMPUTERS IN, READERS OUT?

YORK, Pa. (AP) — Meter readers, the people who periodically come into houses to check water and gas meters for billing purposes — are becoming victims of the computer age.

In York, some 18,000 residential water meters are being linked to a central office computer by television cable and read electronically. In the near future the same will apply to gas meters, according to MIS Week.

Couple Marries In Timothy Church

Tina Evonne Dennis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Dennis of Route 2, Ayden, and Larry Bruce Cole, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Cole Sr. of Route 3, Greenville, were married Saturday afternoon at two o'clock.

A program of organ music was presented by Wilma Smith. Stephanie Creech sang "We've Only Just Begun" and "The Wedding Song."

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a formal gown of ivory organza over peau de soie designed by Gunne Sax. It was styled with an illusion net neckline and stand-up lace collar. The illusion was trimmed with chantilly lace and matcing ribbon and bow. The long lace organza sleeves were trimmed with ribbon and bows. The cuffs were accented with a lace ruffle. The raised waistline was trimmed with matching lace, ribbon and bow. The full skirt flowed cathedral length and the hemline was bordered with a wide lace ruffle which was trimmed with chantilly lace and ribbon. She wore an ivory lace hat trimmed with seed pearls in a floral design. The illusion veil was waltz length and was attached in back with illusion poufs. The bride carried her mother's prayerbook with a cascade bouquet of pastel orange lilies, peach carnations and mums.

The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Lori D. Dennis of Route 2, Ayden. Bridesmaids included Catherine Cole of Route 3, Greenville, sister of the bridegroom, Marie McDaniel of Route 1, Winterville, cousin of the bride, Denise Coward of Greenville and Debbie Kite of Winterville.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Chris Stancill of Route 2, Ayden, Donald Banks, Mark Langley and Mike Damone, all of Greenville.

The honor attendant wore a formal gown of peach faille taffeta designed with an open neckline. The fitted bodice featured a taffeta ruffle which outlined the neckline and deep scooped back creating an off-shoulder effect. Short cap sleeves complemented the gown and a sash of taffeta encircled the natural waistline. She carried a bouquet of peach carnations accented with baby's breath and greenery tied with silk bows.

The bridemaids were dressed like the honor attendant and carried identical flowers.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of periwinkle blue and the mother of the bridegroom selected a pale peach formal gown. Both wore white orchid corsages.

Sybil Morris directed the wedding and Lynn Pollard presided at the guest register. Bird seed bags were distributed by Lisa Rouse, niece of the bridegroom.

After the ceremony a reception was held in the church fellowship hall. Cake was served by Shirley Rouse, sister of the bridegroom, and Edna Mills. Jeanette Barr, sister of the bridegroom, poured punch.

The couple was honored at a rehearsal dinner given by the bridegroom's parents at their home. A shower was also given in their honor prior to the wedding.

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina and Virginia.

The bride is employed at Eastern Carolina Neurological Associates and the bridegroom is associated with father in the construction business. She graduated from D.H. Conley High School and Pitt Community College with a degree in medical secretarial. He attended D.H. Conley High School.

HOW NOW COW?

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — The cow has now been launched into the age of electronics in Australia, reports a computer management information journal.

At the flick of a switch, according to MIS Week, farmers in two Australian states — Victoria and New South Wales — are able to plug their microcomputers into a central computer for advice on herd management, feeding programs, market predictions and even irrigating systems.

As a result, a herd will not be able to mutter a moo without being monitored by a panel of computers in the dairy shed and the farmer's office.

According to the Victorian Agriculture Department, the computer system is expected to improve the quality of both milk and beef and provide farmers with an up-to-date rundown on their herds.

Wedding Vows Said In Robersonville Church

Patricia Rebecca Langston and Walter David Rouse were married Saturday in the First Christian Church in Robersonville. The marriage was performed by the pastor, David Cox, and assisted by the bride's cousin, the Rev. I. Mayo Little Jr.

The bride is the daughter of Patsy R. Miller of Williamston and James R. Langston of Winterville. The bridegroom is the son of Daphne Y. Keegan of Charlotte and Harold F. Rouse of Wilson.

The bride wore a formal gown of ivory silkened organza over taffeta. The Victorian inspired gown featured a high neckline encircled with ivory chantilly lace. The fitted bodice was fashioned with a sheer yoke of imported English net outlined in a panel of ruffled chantilly lace which was repeated on the long fitted undersleeve. The full skirt extended to an attached chapel length train. She wore a waltz length illusion mantilla edged in lace to complement her gown. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis, orchids and white roses.

Hayes Warren, the bride's cousin, served as maid of honor and bridesmaids included Mary Chapman, Verna Holzbach, Emma Jean Wilson, Karren Campbell and Beth Stuart.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Bob Keegan, Brad Rouse, Jimmy Proffit, John Walker and Kurt Kronenfeld.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and is a commercial account representative for Aetna Life and Casualty. The bride attended Stratford College and graduated from East Carolina University. She is a claims representative for Aetna Life and Casualty.

COALS TO NEWCASTLE?

BIEBER, Calif. (AP) — Using its own wood waste for fuel has enabled a local lumber mill to become completely energy independent, according to a national energy journal.

Energy User News reports the mill not only generates its own steam and electricity for plant operations but has enough excess electricity to sell to a West Coast power company.

The mill, owned by the Big Valley Lumber Co., uses 'hog' fuel or waste wood — chips, shavings and sawdust — to fuel its main boiler. This produces steam to operate four wood-drying kilns, and a turbine generator that produces electricity 24 hours a day all year long for other plant-power needs.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

One by one the mystiques of men and women are crumbling. We have done in-depth psychological studies on why men like football, why women buy shoes that hurt their feet, why men refuse to answer the phone when it rings, and why women go to the restroom in twos.

But no one has had the courage to study how a woman can go into the supermarket for a quart of milk and emerge with two full shopping carts.

The easy answer is when women enter a supermarket, the air becomes thinner and they black out. When the air hits them, they are $103.93 thinner than when they went in.

The real answer takes longer and is more complicated. First, a little history.

Women have always been foragers for food. In the animal kingdom, it is the female lion who drags back an impala for lunch and then sits there while the males stuff themselves before she gets to eat.

In the days B.S. (Before Supermarkets), the men used to track down something furry with bad breath and bring it home to be cleaned, cooked and served by the little woman.

When the first general store came upon the scene, men (and wisely so) gave the job back to women. They told them it would be a social experience where they could visit with neighbors, buy a piece of candy for the kids, a length of calico for themselves and then load up the buckboard with a year's provisions.

The supermarket experience, as we know it today, is not for sissies. It begins with the cart delicately engineered so that when you push it forward it runs backward over your foot.

You go from the heat of revolving barbecue spits to the bone-chilling cold of the frozen turkeys, to the humidity of the produce within seconds. There's a child seat in the cart where the child's legs can kick you in the stomach as you shop. There's the Garden of Eden waiting room (at the check-out) featuring gum, The National Inquisition, fresh flowers, sunglasses and fresh baked croissants to tempt you. Aisle upon aisle is lined with free entry blanks (win a trip to Florida), sample pizza and pastrami, bonus coupons, introductory offers, coupons to be redeemed, get one free, new, improved, revolutionary, buy me, try me.

Small wonder women shop for two hours and get home to find they have nothing edible to cook for dinner.

When a woman goes into a supermarket for a quart of milk, it's perhaps the greatest challenge she will face in her entire life. I cannot tell you the pressure of trying to get down an aisle without a cookie reaching out and whining, "Make me yours," or a bag of potato chips jumping into her arms and whispering sensuously, "You need me." The supermarkets are women's Mount Everest, their Olympic Marathon, their Armageddon. We're fighting for our lives.

I knew you wouldn't understand.

Publishing Partnership In Romance

By JEANNINE E. KLEIN

GREENDALE, Wis. (UPI) — Can a truckdriver who enjoys reading philosophy in his leisure time and a Saudi Arabian-born former beautician find success and happiness in suburban Milwaukee by forming a literary partnership?

Thomas and Sharon Curtis have.

The Curtises, who live in Greendale, have written 10 romance novels in eight years, with an 11th in the works.

"We've learned a lot of lessons," Mrs. Curtis said of their literary partnership that most recently spawned the best-selling "The Windflower," written under the pseudonym Laura London.

The Curtises also write under their own names and as Robin James. Their popularity is evident, as Dell plans to republish five earlier Laura London romances.

"It took a long time to iron out problems with collaboration and we still don't have it down pat," Curtis, 31, said.

The ease with which the couple works is evident in their conversation as they literally finish the other's sentences. The two proudly claim that not even their mothers can tell who wrote certain passages in their books.

"We want people not to be able to distinguish between Tom and I," Mrs. Curtis, 33, said.

"I think the secret to it is, if there is one (to their successful partnership), is to have one voice," Mrs. Curtis said. "We can imitate each other's style with some versatility."

Both said they had always wanted to write and each took literature courses at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

"We both wanted to be journalists, but with a child to support, we had to be real practical and get real-life jobs," Mrs. Curtis said with a laugh.

"Tom feels it should be like writing in a church pew. He finds the hardest most uncomfortable chair in the house," she said. "But I like to be incredibly comfortable, on a chaise, with my feet up."

They said they rarely squabble over their writing but admit there are certain buzzwords, like trite, cliche and overworked, that are sure to set off a writer's disagreement.

Curtis takes over the typewriter for the first draft. His wife does the second draft, which he describes as "a pretty solid reworking." The third draft is basically an editing and then it's off to the publisher.

They're younger than most romance writers and they put more emphasis on humor, dialogue and "equality in relationships," Mrs. Curtis said.

And she notes that romance writing, up until about five years ago, traditionally was the province of British writers such as Mary Stewart and Victoria Holt.

Now that Americans have broken into the genre, there is "a completely different orientation. ... Plus, it's become more permissible to use sexuality."

The Curtises have diverse backgrounds. She was born in Saudi Arabia where her father was a geologist for an American oil company. Curtis, the son of a Baptist minister in Darlington, Wis., toyed with playing in a rock band.

The couple turned to romance-writing "because it gave us a structure to follow ... and we wanted it to sell," Curtis said.

"Romances are emotion books. They're one of the most exciting genre to write in because you can't just rely on action," Mrs. Curtis said.

"That's right, it has to come out of the relationship. It's actually quite a pure form of writing. It really comes out of that old-fashioned sense of character," her husband added.

"We use our own reactions a lot," he said. "We'll think of a given situation and try to interject ourselves into it."

"I also get ideas as I'm driving down the interstate," he said with a laugh.

"One thing I feel about romances is that what Tom and I write is certainly true to our feelings about love and loving," Mrs. Curtis said.

"We might write a little about people we know too," he added. "The thing about writing is that you get to be the hero and the heroine... and the guy menacing the heroine."

The Curtises, their two children and a dog that hates company live in an unpretentious three-bedroom home that is bordered by a white picket fence.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: A few years ago you published an unusual recipe for pork-stuffed eggplant slices, served with a thin flavorful sauce. It was Chinese in style and, if I recall correctly, a friend of yours devised the recipe. I enjoyed the dish very much, but have lost or misplaced the recipe. Would you give it again? — EAGER COOK.

DEAR EAGER COOK: My friend Florence Lin, author of several fine books on Chinese cooking, did indeed devise the eggplant recipe you enjoyed. Here it is again, the ingredients exactly as before, but a few details in the method brought up-to-date. — C.B.

BATTER-FRIED STUFFED EGGPLANT SLICES

- 1 teaspoon miniature dried shrimp, if available
- 2 tablespoons hot water
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1/2 teaspoon sugar
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- 1/2 pound ground lean pork
- 1 tablespoon finely chopped green onion
- Batter, recipe follows
- Sauce, recipe follows
- 1 to 1 1/4 pound eggplant
- 2 cups corn oil

In a small bowl soak shrimp in hot water for 30 minutes; drain well; finely chop. In a small bowl stir together cornstarch and sugar; stir in soy sauce until smooth. Add shrimp, pork and green onion; mix well; cover and refrigerate.

Prepare Batter; let stand at room temperature.

Trim ends from eggplant; peel. Slice into sixteen 1/4-inch-thick slices. Pair eggplant slices according to size. Put 1 to 2 tablespoons of the pork mixture on each of 8 of the eggplant slices; spread pork mixture almost to edges. Top with remaining eggplant slices. (If not frying at once, cover and refrigerate until ready to do so.)

Pour corn oil into an electric skillet. Heat to 365 degrees. With tongs, dip eggplant sandwiches, one at a time, into Batter until well-coated. Fry, a few at a time, turning once, until browned — 6 to 8 minutes. Drain on paper towels. Keep hot in a single layer in a warm oven. Can be kept hot up to 30 minutes or may be reheated in a preheated 450-degree oven for 5 to 10 minutes. Serve hot with reheated Sauce.

Makes 8 servings.

Batter: In a medium bowl whisk together 3/4 cup all-purpose flour, 1/4 cup cornstarch, 2 teaspoons baking powder and 1/4 teaspoon salt. Gradually whisk in 3/4 cup cold water and 2 tablespoons corn oil until smooth. Stir in 1 to 2 additional tablespoons cold water to make a smooth thick batter.

Sauce: In a small bowl stir together 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 1 tablespoon soy sauce and 1/2 teaspoon sugar until smooth. In a 1-quart saucepan, over medium heat, heat 1 teaspoon corn oil. Add 1 tablespoon finely chopped green onion and 1 small clove garlic (finely chopped). Stirring constantly, cook about 1/2 minute. Add 1 cup chicken bouillon or clear fat-free chicken broth. Restir cornstarch mixture and add. Stirring constantly, cook until boiling, clear and thickened. Set aside, covered, off heat. Makes 1 cup. Reheat before using.

SAUCE DESSERT

- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 6 tablespoons cocoa
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 1 cup hot water
- 1 tablespoon light or dark corn syrup
- 1/2 tablespoon butter
- 3/4 teaspoon vanilla
- Chocolate cake squares and vanilla ice cream

In a 1-quart saucepan thoroughly stir together cornstarch, cocoa and sugar. Gradually stir in water, keeping smooth; add corn syprup. Over moderate heat stir constantly until boiling and as thick as half-and-half. Off heat stir in butter and vanilla. Makes about 1 cup. Top squares of chocolate cake with scoops of vanilla ice cream and chocolate sauce.

FARE FOR TWO Won Ton Soup

Oriental Chicken & Rice
Fruit & Tea

ORIENTAL CHICKEN

- 2 cups loosely packed shredded leaf lettuce
- 1 cup cooked chicken-breast strips (2 inches long and 1/2 inch wide), at room temperature
- Hot or warm cooked rice
- 1 1/2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1 tablespoon honey
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 2 thin slices fresh gingerroot, finely chopped (1 teaspoon)
- 1 small green onion, finely chopped
- Dried red pepper flakes to taste

Arrange lettuce in center of each of 2 dinner plates; top with chicken; surround with rice in the portion size you wish. In a small saucepan over moderately low heat whisk together oil, honey, soy sauce, gingerroot, green onion and pepper flakes until simmering — makes 1-3rd cup. Pour this hot sauce over chicken and lettuce. Serve at once. Makes 2 servings.

Stamp Honors Veterans Of Vietnam War

By SYD KRONISH
AP News Features

A fitting philatelic tribute to the men and women who fought and died during the Vietnam War is embodied in the main design of the new 20-cent Vietnam Veterans Memorial stamp ready for release on Nov. 10th. First day deadline is Dec. 10th.

The "V-shaped" Vietnam Veterans Memorial is composed of two black granite walls, each nearly 250 feet long, that are cut into a grassy slope between the Washington Monument and the Lincoln Memorial. The walls are inscribed with the names of 57,939 Americans missing and dead, listed in chronological order, beginning with the first casualty in the summer of 1959 and ending with the last in the spring of 1975.

The stamp is being issued in connection with the second anniversary of the dedication of the Memorial. Depicted are people reading the names of the fallen heroes. Below the design in a single line of black type are the words "Vietnam Veterans Memorial, USA 20c."

First day cancellations may be ordered in the usual two methods. You may purchase the stamp at your local post office (after Nov. 10) and affix to your own envelope in the upper right corner. No remittance is required. Send to Customer-Affixed Envelopes, Vietnam Veterans Memorial Stamp, Postmaster, Washington, DC 20066-9991. It must be postmarked no later than Dec. 10th. If you prefer to have the USPS affix the stamp, follow the same mailing procedure, but enclose a money order for 20 cents.

Send to: Vietnam Veterans Memorial Stamp, Postmaster, Washington DC 20066-9992. Deadline for mailing is December 10th.

The USPS has issued a souvenir card in honor of "PHILAKOREA-'84 — the international philatelic exhibition held in Seoul, Korea. The text of the card, printed in Korea, reads as follows: "The United States Postal Service is pleased to issue this souvenir card in honor of PHILAKOREA '84. We issue it for the friendship between our two nations of beauty.

"During the past century the postage stamps of Korea and the United States have depicted many breathtaking natural wonders. We have chosen for this card reproductions of two stamps which feature views of National Parks of exceptional beauty. The Korean stamp, which was issued in 1975, depicts the rugged glory of Mount Sorak National Park. The United States stamp, issued in 1934, reflects the grandeur of the Grand Canyon National Park."

The card will be sold by the Philatelic Sales Division in both canceled and uncanceled forms. The 20-cent Hawaiian Statehood commemorative stamp will be affixed to the card and canceled with the circular U.S. cancellation to be used at PHILAKOREA '84. The uncanceled cards are $2.00 each and the canceled versions are $2.20. Orders should be addressed to PHILAKOREA '84 Souvenir Card, Philatelic Sales Division, Washington, DC 20265-9997.

A souvenir card commemorating the fourth annual observance of National Stamp Collecting Month has been released by the USPS. The card, which carries the message "Fall In Love With Stamp Collecting — A Family Hobby," features a production of the recently issued 20 cent Family Unity Stamp. The uncanceled cards are $2.00 each and the canceled versions are $2.20. Mail orders should be addressed to Philatelic Sales Division, Washington, DC 20265-9997. The card is also being sold at the more than 300 Philatelic Centers around the country.

Awards For The Houston Ballet

HOUSTON, TEXAS — At the Tokyo International Ballet Competition held Oct. 2-8 in Tokyo, Japan, members of the Houston Ballet received a number of competition awards.

The ballet's director, Ben Stevenson, won a third gold meal for choreography. Houston ballet principal dancer Li Cunxin and partner Martha Butler received a silver medal. Miss Butler, 17, was the youngest dancer among 66 competitors from 21 countries.

The international competition, held every two years, rotates among the cities of Varna, Bulgarai, Moscow, Tokyo, and Jackson, Mississippi.

Friends Of College Season Opening

RALEIGH — Solisti New York, a chamber orchestra of New York City, will open the 1984-85 season of Friends of the College series. Performances will be given at 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 2-3.

The program for both evnings will include works by Grieg, Devienne, Tchaikovsky, and Mozat.

Admission is by season membership only. All season tickets have been sold, and no individual tickets are available.

Three New Exhibits Opening At The GMA On November 6

AUTUMN BOUQUET — A single plant of white autumn flowering wild asters grows before a rude window in the side of a small tar-papered barn in Martin County. A prolific bloomer, the wildflower grows along roadsides and in abandoned places, often in conjunction with goldenrod. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Three exhibitions will open at the Greenville Museum of Art, 802 South Evans Street, on Tuesday, Nov. 6. A reception, open to the public, will be held at the museum from 7 to 9 p.m. on that date.

• In the North Gallery, a wide range of drawings, watercolors and oils by Greenville artist Sarah Blakeslee Speight will be shown.

A native of Illinois, Mrs. Speight studied at the Art Institute of Chicago, the Corcoran School of Art and the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, from which she received two scholarships for continued study in Europe.

Her work is best known for its color combinations and brushwork that echo the art of the French Impressionists. She uses this technique to capture contemporary visual statements.

Mrs. Speight has won numerous awards for her work and her art is included in a number of collections such as the Greenville Museum of Art, the North Carolina Museum of Art, the Muskegon (Michigan) Museum, NCNB, and the Hines Gallery in Rocky Mount, among others. Her portrait of Elizabeth Copeland, retired director of Sheppard Memorial Library, is on permanent display at the library.

Sarah Blakeslee Speight is married to artist Francis Speight; and they have two children, Thomas and Elizabeth.

• In the South Galleries, selections from the GMA Collections and Shadowbox Assemblages by R. Vincent Smith are going on view Tuesday.

A former California painter and now a Greenville sculptor, Smith will exhibit recent work encompassing music room interiors, the artist's studio .and an Egyptian tomb. His work was recently shown in an exhibit at the Waterworks Gallery. The GMA Collection includes an example of one of his assemblages, "The Artist's Studio," currently on display in the museum.

Hours at the museum are 10-9 on Tuesday, 10-6 Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, 11-3 on Saturday, and 1-4 on Sunday.

"A Varied Vision" is the title of an exhibition by A. Dewane Frutiger to be on view during November in the Upstairs Gallery. The show will include some of his recent photography and poetry.

Frutiger is director of the Developmental Evaluation Clinic at ECU and is a clinical assistant professor in pediatriacs at the ECU Medical School. This show accents his personal and varied visions of the world, ranging from landscape to the details of a child's face.

New Show At Arlington Hall

Work by two artists, painter Anita Nicholls and ceramist Joan Cohen, will go on view Thursday, Nov. 1 at the Arlington Hall Gallery, 327 Arlington, Blvd.

A reception, open to the public, will be held from 5 to 7 p.m. Sunday, Nov. d4.

• Nicholls, a native of Canton, will show watercolors, pastels, and acrylics. Her work has been exhibited in a large number of shows, primarily in North Carolina. She has received purchase and merit awards in several Watercolor Society of North Carolina shows. She has also received prizes from the North Carolina State Fair juried exhibitions, from the Art League of Manatee County, Florida, and the City of Raleigh Art Festival. Places where her paintings have been seen include Wilson, Raleigh, Greensboro, Durham and Goldsboro.

Paintings by Nicholls are in the collections of banks, brokers and industries in several North Carolina locations.

• Ceramist Cohen, curently a teacher in the Carrboro schools, was the subject of an article in the April 1984 issue of "Arts and Archives." Individual shows in which her pieces have been shown include ones in Durham, Chapel Hill, Kinston, Sarasota, Fla., and Pittsburgh, Pa.

She has also shown in group shows in these towns as well as in Washington, D.C.

Cohen holds membership in the American Craft Council and the Carolina Designer Craftsmen, and has conducted a workshop for student teachers. Ms. Cohen is founder and director of S.A.I.L., a children's creative arts program on Saturday afternoons.

Free Symposium

NORFOLK, VA. — In conjunction with the exhibition "Porcelain in the Age of Mozart," The Chrysler Museum will hold a symposium on "Rococo to Neoclassical: Artistis Transformations in the Late 18th Century" on Saturday, Nov. 17, from 9 a.m. to 5 pm.

The symposium, funded by the Mabel Brown Memorial of the Norfolk Society of Arts, is open to the public free of charge.

The Chrysler Museum, Olney Road and Mowbray Arch, Norfolk, is open from 10 to 4 Tuesdays-Saturdays, and 1-5 on Sundays.

Dillard Gift

GREENSBORO — Dillard Paper Company of Greensboro has given $17,500 to Weatherspoon Art Gallery at the University of North Carolina-Greensboro to cover the expenses of the gallery's 20th annual Art on Paper Show which opens in mid-November.

The gift brings to $277,000 the amount that the Greensboro-based paper products firm has contributed to the gallery through its corporate Dillard Fund since 1965, the year of the first Art on Paper exhibit.

Show of Spanish Art In New York

NEW YORK, N. Y. — An exhibit of Spanish art incorporating 57 paintings by 23 Spanish artists from the mid-19th to early 20 centuries will be shown at the National Academy of Deisgn in New York City from Nov. 8 to Jan. 15. The show is entitled "Spanish Painters in Search of Light."

The show is organized by the Modern Art Museum in Barcelona and is comprised of landscapes, figure studies, seascapes and cityscapes. Most of the paintings are broadly painted, full of color and light-drenched.

Among the best known artists whose work are being exhibited are Joaquin Sorolla, Mariano Fortuny, Aureliano de Beruete, and Daniel Vasquez Diaz.

The National Academy of Design, founded in 1825, is located at 1083 Fifth Avenue. Hours are noon-5 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday. Admission is $2 for adults, $1.50 for students and senior citizens, free Tuesday evenings 5-8 p.m.

Booth Spaces Now Available

WASHINGTON, N. C. — Booth spaces for the Friday and Satuday, Nov. 23 and 24 Second Annual Down East Craft Show at the Washington Civic Center are now available for rentals.

Approximately 50 booths will be available for display of arts and craft at the Old Train Depot on the corner of Main and Gladden Streets. The show will be held from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Nov. 23 and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Nov. 24.

Booth space for both days is priced at $10. The space is 12 feet wide with long tables to be provided to those who request them. There will also be a prize for the best booth display.

Interested persons are to call 946-2504 or write to: Beaufort County Arts Council, Washington Civic Center, Washington, N. C., 27889.

BYER MUSEUM ANNIVERSARY

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — The Byer Museum of the Arts is celebrating its second anniversary with the exhibit "The World of Jonathan Talbot."

The show, a collection of collage constructions by the New York artist, is on view through Dec. 2.

Art Show At Carolina Mall

A special community art show featuring the work of over 20 area visual artists will be exhibited at Carolina East Mall on Saturay, Nov. 3 from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m.

The event is co-sponsored by the Greenville Museum of Art and Carolina East Mall. It highlights the art of local and regional artists including painting, drawing, prints, tole painting, jewelry and a wide variety of crafts. The work on display is for sale.

Mary Anne Pennington, director of the Greenville Museum of Art, and Susan Roberts, Carolina East Mall's marketing director, coordinated the exhibit.

There is no admission price, and all sales will be handled by the individual artist.

An Avid Collector Of Swords, Sabers

By RON STUMPF
Bethlehem Globe Times

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP) — William Burkhardt doesn't regret throwing his rock collection off Bethlehem's Broad Street Bridge.

"I was in about sixth grade," he recalled, "and I walked a few blocks all the way to the library near the Moravian cemetery with this box of rocks.

"It was really heavy and all I won (at a show) was a Hershey bar. That was it. So on the way back I threw them off the Broad Street Bridge and into the Monocacy Creek."

Collecting things is more than a hobby with Burkhardt. It is in his blood. He went from rocks to bugs to buttons. But he's been stuck on swords for years.

Burkhardt, 43, a house painter, owns a 110-piece American military sword and saber collection, most of which he displayed at Bethlehem's historic Sun Inn recently in conjunction with Musikfest '84.

Burkhardt began collecting swords 32 years ago. Each piece in his collection was found in the Lehigh valley, he said, by going to yard sales and auctions.

"There was an auction on Sixth Avenue back in 1952," he recalled. "My brother and I bid on a box of 50 Civil War bayonets, but Paul Leaser, a history teacher at Liberty High School, bought the box for a couple of pennies more than we had.

"He felt sorry for us, I guess, so he let us carry it back to his car and he gave us each a bayonet, and that started it.

"My grandfather, Clarence Baum, a cousin of Emerson Baum who started the art school (of the same name in Allentown), collected Indian relics. He got me interested in collecting things. He always taught me that it's not quantity, but quality. That was hard for me to learn."

"I upgrade (my collection) constantly. I lost a lot of money doing it, but true collectors lose money," he said.

The goal in sword collecting, he said, is to get an antique model that is as "clean" as possible and not one "that looks like some kid chopped down a neighbor's drain pipe with it."

Getting a vintage piece in mint condition is akin to "hitting the lottery," he said, because some swords, depending on their historical significance and condition, can be worth as much as $100,000.

Some of the most valuable pieces are Presentation Swords, or those awarded to military officers or citizens who have displayed great valor.

Third Lecture Oct. 30

"Gender, Sex, and the Novel: A Question of Taste" is the title of the third free lecture in a four part symposium "Literature and The American Public" being offered in Greenville.

Dr. Sally Brett, professor of English at East Carolina University, will conduct the program to be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 30 in the auditorium of East Branch Library, 2000 Cedar Lane.

Dr. Brett's lecture will explore the depiction of male and female roles in English and American fiction of the 20th century. She will explain how changes in public opinion and social relations have been reflected in the roles assigned to men and women in popular and elite works of fiction.

The lecture series is sponsored jointly by Sheppard Memorial Library and the East Carolina University Department of English, and is made possible by a grant from the North Carolina Humanities Committee.

The fourth and final lecture in the series will be presented on Nov. 13.

For more information on the symposium, call 752-4177.

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By JULIE HICKS

"When you've got your health, you've got just about everything." So goes the saying and there are several new books at the library which deal with this important topic.

In "Control Your High Blood Pressure — Without Drugs!", Dr. Cleaves M. Bennett encourages us to "discover just how much power you have to get healthy, and stay healthy, and to enjoy it."

In the pages of this book we learn that nearly one out of every four Americans suffers from high blood pressure. Untreated, it is a condition that can lead to heart attack and stroke. Until recently, the major treatment for this silent killer has been drug therapy using medications that carry many dangerous side effects.

The author offers here the first all encompassing, medically tested program that can and will significantly reduce high blood presssure, improve physical health, and enhance mental well-being without the use of drugs.

Dr. Bennet presents a sound, easy-to-follow regiment. The result is the kind of help that allows you to take control of your own health and well-being with a 12-week program that attacks the causes of hypertension on three major fronts: diet modification, stress reduction, and simple but regular exercise.

The author believes that the medicine cabinet doesn't have to be at the center of your life — particularly if your life is threatened by high blood pressure. His program is a vital resource that will educate, enlighten, and inspire — with life-long results.

One in three people will get cancer. If you are over 60, the chances are even greater. "The Conquest of Cancer" describes the greatest hope yet for victims of all kinds of cancer, and tells how the immunotherapy program at the Livingstone-Wheeler Clinic in San Diego has been achieving a remarkable rate of remission in cancer patients since opening its doors 15 years ago.

Dr. Virginia Livingston-Wheeler has formulated a phenomenally successful treatment regimen and is practicing her technique at her clinic.

Her research has shown that we all carry the potentially killing cancer microbe in our blood, and it is only a strong immune system that can either hold it in check or a weak immune system that can allow it to gain a foothold and permit the growth of cancer cells.

"The Conquest of Cancer" offers an anti-cancer diet program to make certain your immunity is kept high enough to reduce the chances of your ever contacting the dread disease.

November Ideal Mountain Hiking Time

BOONE — Hiking through forests of flaming autumn colors is so popular that relatively few hikers ralize the benefits of taking to the trails in fall. And fall is different from autumn. The colorful elaf show is autumn's hallmark. And fall begins when the leaves have dropped from the trees.

But the goal of many hikers is to take to High Country trails after peak autumn before the mountain snow season. This leafless, snowless period offers the year's best views. Unobstructed by leaves, vistas at times reach to 100 miles, well beyond the often hazier perspectives of summer and even autumn. Bare of foliage, surrounding summits expose the rugged cliffs and crags that are softened or hidden by summer greenery.

Perhaps best of all, the crowds are gone. Trails are infrequently traveled and the walker is often alone with only the rustle of leaves underfoot.

The nearness of winter makes for spectacular sky and cloud colors. Combined with the almost barren ruggedness of the peaks themselves, fall comes close to hiker heaven. And wildlife seems to agree. The lull before winter coaxes many species of game into the woods to gather food for winter, providing good opportunities to watch.

To plan a fall walk in the High Country, call, toll free, 800/222-7515 and ask for the free brochure and area guide map.

Ervin Autobiography Published October 17

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA. — Senator Sam Ervin's autobiography was released by the publisher. The Michie Company of Charlottesville, Va., on Oct. 17. Ervin has worked on the book, "Preserving the Constitution: The Autobiography of Senator Sam Ervin," for ten years.

A native of Burke County, Ervin was born in 1896. He graduated from the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill and from Harvard Law School.

A soldier during World War I, Ervin was wounded in battle at Cantigny and Soissons. From 1922 when the entered private law practice in Morganton, to 1974 when he retired from the U.S. Senate, Ervin devoted himself to the law.

During his 20 years in the U.S. Senate, Ervin played a vital public role as a member of the Senate Judiciary and Armed Services Committees. He was on the Watkins Committee which repared the report to censure Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

He also wrote and piloted passage of the Bill of Rights for Indians, and he had a major role as chairman of the Watergate Committee.

Columnist James J. Kilpatrick has called Ervin "the last of the Founding Fathers."

Ervin uses his political philosophy combined with a personal narrative. The book is like a personal scrapbook, with Ervin explaining each memento. He wrote the book without the aid of a ghostwriter. It includes hundreds of quotations from friends, from the Bible, and from poets, philosophers, and historical figures whose writings influenced his thought. It is illustrated with 18 black-and-white photographs.

NCSA Events

On Friday, Nov. 2, a concert by the NCSA Chamber Orchestra will be presented at 8:15 p.m. in Crawford Hall on campus. The concert will feature pianist Rachel Matthews as the soloist in Mozart's "Concerto for Piano and Chamber Orchestra." Peter Perret conducts the orchestra. Admission is $3.

From 8:30 p.m. to midnight on Saturday, Nov. 3, the NCSA Jazz Gala, directed by Ron Rudkin, will be held in the Benton Convention Center. Admission is $10.

Sossamon Winner Of Poetry Award

ASHEVILLE — Leroy Sossamon of Bryson City is this year's winner of the Oscar Arnold Young Memorial Contest of the Poetry Council of North Carolina, announced at the recent North Carolina Poetry Days gathering in Asheville. He was awarded a prize of $100 and a year's possession of a gold trophy on which his names is engraved with those of 35 other poets honored on preceding annual Poetry Days since 1950.

The award is for having written and published during the preceding year a book of poems judged the best of those submitted. Sossamon's volume, "These My Mountains, This My Land," was published by The Village Press of Bryson City and contains eight full-color photographs of the mountains of North Carolina.

Mrs. Billie Varner of Lexington was second place winner in the book contest with "A Sharing of Life."

Other winning poets were honored with cash prizes, books and certificates for entries of individual poems in a number of categories.

Young Lad Has Poem Published

The eight-line poem, about a jack-o-lantern's grief if trick-or-treating children fail to pass by on Halloween night, was dictated by David to his mother several weeks ago after he read Tasha Tudor's book, "Pumpkin Moonshine."

The poem is included in the newsletter's "Spin-Off" section which contains a group of children's writings — stories, puzzles, riddles, poems. David received payment as a contributor to the publication.

He is the son of James and Franceine Rees.

Civil War Encampment

SMITHFIELD — On Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 3 and 4, Bentonville Battleground State Historic Site and the First North Carolina Volunteer Infanty will present the 5th Annual Bentonville Living History Encampment-Tactical Demonstration.

About 600 Union and Confederate troops from all over the east coast will take part in this two day event. Weapsons demonstrations, military drill, authentic camp living, Civil War medical techniques, and Civil War music will be presented throughout the weekend.

Tactical demonstrations of Civil WAr infantry, cavalry, and artillery will be presented on Saturday afternoon. A small battle scenario at 4 p.m. Saturday will depict Federal troops wrenching trenches away from Confederate adversaries.

The weekend's highlight event will be at 2 p.m. Sunday when all participating soldiers will recreate the third day of fighting that took place at the Battle of Bentonville on March 21, 1865.

Bentonville Battleground, site of the largest Civil War battle fought in North Carolina, is located in southeastern Johnston County, 15 miles south of Smithfield off U.S. 701. The site is approximately 45 miles southwest of Greenville, and about 20 miles west of Goldsboro off SR 1008.

New Exhibit At The Waterworks

SALISBURY — Two artists are showing work in an exhibit that opens today at the Waterworks Galley, Number One Water Street, Salisbury. A reception, open to the public, is being held from 2 to 5 p.m. today. The show will be up through Dec. 3.

In the Murphy Gallery and Sculpture Garden, Barbara Rhoades of Emeryville, Calif. is showing neon sculpture and other sculpted works. A North Carolina native, she is attending graduate school in California. She combines fabrics and found objects with neon in her work.

Marianna Hamilton-Fox of Orlando, Fla. works with batik on silk and in watercolor. She studied batik in Indonesia in 1980. From 1977 until this year, she was an associate professor of art at the University of South Carolina. She is currently at the Loch Haven Art Center in Orlando and Rollins College in Winter Park, Florida.

Poetry Entries Being Received

GREENSBORO — Entries for the annual North Carolina Poetry Society Contest are now being received. Deadline for submission is Jan. 15, 1985. The contest encompasses ten categories, eight for adults and two for students.

Mexican Actress Katy Jurado Veteran Of 41 Years Of Film

By SOLL SUSSMAN
Associated Press Writer

CUERNAVACA, Mexico (AP) — Katy Jurado, whose eyes flashed fire in "High Noon" and other movie epics, says she sometimes sees her youthful image now on television and wonders: "Who is that girl — so shy, so cute?"

ANNIVERSARY LIFT — French actress Lillian Montevechi, who won a Tony Award for her role in "Nine," gets support Wednesday night at New York's Chippendale during one-year celebrations at the "For Ladies Only" night spot. (AP Laserphoto by Ronald Lopez)

Now, though she has the same presence and charm as ever, she laughs that she is "old, fat and ugly — whatever you want to call it." That comes after 41 years as an actress and 125 movies, by her count.

Miss Jurado remains active professionally, though hampered by a broken leg that has kept her in a wheelchair for nearly four months.

She appeared as the mother last spring in the short-lived Norman Lear TV series "a.k.a. Pablo" about a Mexican-American family. To her amusement, it led many in the United States to believe she is Mexican-American and not, as she is proud to point out, a Mexican who has maintained a home in this resort city for many years.

"I never became an American citizen," she said, switching often from Spanish to English in a poolside interview in Cuernavaca, 45 miles southwest of Mexico City.

Miss Jurado also has a small but visible part in John Huston's recently released film, "Under the Volcano," which is set in the Cuernavaca of the 1930s.

"I want to do still even the smallest part — as long as it has character," she said. Her top choice, the actress said, would be to play the lead in a movie version of Gabriel Garcia Marquez's "Big Mama's Funeral."

It will be hard to match her spectacular start in Hollywood. Already a star in Mexican movies, she made her first American movie here in 1950, a Western called "The Bullfighter and the Lady."

Then she was called to Hollywood for "High Noon," the classic that won Gary Cooper an Academy Award as a sheriff abandoned by his town to alone face a band of gunfighters.

Miss Jurado played Mrs. Ramirez, a woman of the world who has a memorable confrontation scene with Grace Kelly as Cooper's Quaker bride. She recalls waiting endlessly to film her scenes as Miss Kelly, making only her second movie, pretty much had things her way.

"She was born to be a princess," Miss Jurado said of the actress who later became Princess Grace of Monaco. "She was that kind of a cold girl. ... She knew how to move all the pieces on the chessboard."

She said the part of Mrs. Ramirez wasn't difficult for her at all, although she spoke almost no English then and phonetically learned the lines.

"I am a little fire person," Miss Jurado, who wears colorful makeup but makes few attempts to hide her wrinkles, said with a robust laugh. "I always do what I feel and say what I think. I still have my temper."

In 1954, Miss Jurado was nominated for an Oscar as best supporting actress for "Broken Lance."

She doesn't feel that she ever was typecast abroad as a Mexican woman, playing among others a Jew in "Barabbas" with Anthony Quinn. But she said she often was offered roles that were mere stereotypes of what Mexicans are believed to be like.

"I didn't take all the films that were offered — just those with dignity," Miss Jurado said. She also believes that her career would have been more successful if she had spent more time in Los Angeles, rather than returning to Mexico after a film was completed.

Miss Jurado did live in California during her second — "and the last," she added emphatically — marriage to actor Ernest Borgnine.

"My life has not been a success," she said. "It has been continuous pain. ... You waste so much time in life." Her son by her first marriage was killed in a highway accident two years ago.

Miss Jurado said she made her first movie in 1943 at age 16 as a joke. Her father threatened to put her in a convent school but three months later she was married, and the movies kept coming.

Asked if she ever misses Hollywood Miss Jurado replied: "Yes, I do — for the work. When I'm not working, I feel very alone."

Dunnington Broadway Debut

By MICHAEL KUCHWARA
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Steve Dunnington looks like a professional swashbuckler.

Maybe it's the shaggy brown locks or the moustache that droops over the corners of his mouth. More likely it's the 6-foot-2½ frame and the 225 pounds that he carries with the ease of a man who knows how to handle a blade.

Dunnington first swashed a sword at the age of 7 in a fencing class at a Columbus, Ohio, YMCA. Today, at 26, he's making his Broadway debut as the man in charge of the swordfights and fisticuffs in "The Three Musketeers," an updated, multimillion-dollar version of a Rudolf Friml musical that first wowed New York in 1928. It opens Nov. 4 at the Broadway Theater.

The 1984 revival, with a new book by Mark Bramble and additional songs from other Friml musicals, promises to be a rowdier, bawdier and more athletic edition of Alexander Dumas' classic tale of D'Artagnan and his trio of musketeer friends — Aramis, Porthos and Athos.

The show contains at least 10 major fights, says Dunnington, who was first seriously bitten by the drama bug while majoring in theater at Ohio University. He's also in charge of various other feats of derring-do in the musical, such as teaching actors to jump off 16-foot staircases and bound across a narrow walkway encircling the orchestra pit.

Today's audiences demand special effects that look real, he says, taking a short breather during a hectic morning schedule that includes teaching star Michael Praed — who plays D'Artagnan — a few new parries and thrusts.

"George Lucas and Steven Spielberg have spoiled theater audiences," says Dunnington, referring to the movie wizards who created such smash hits as "Star Wars" and "E.T. — The Extraterrestrial." "Audiences are so much smarter now than they used to be. It's harder to trick them. You have to work at getting everything as realistic as possible."

Using a complicated system of symbols and numbers which he began devising in college, Dunnington keeps detailed notations of every sword fight and brawl. The symbols represent basic fencing moves and the numbers different parts of the body.

"It's similar to dance notation, a kind of shorthand that helps the actors remember what they are doing," he says.

But it is difficult to meticulously map out a fight without having the participants in front of you. Dunnington tries to work out many of the details with his assistant, Todd Lester.

"I get the concept of what I want to do in my head. But you can really only choreograph when you have the people there," Dunnington says. "You have to know each individual's capabilities.

"I couldn't take my assistant and choreograph a fight and then teach it to two people without knowing what they're able to do. You can't expect them to fight the same way Todd and I could."

For "The Three Musketeers," a special kind of actor was needed for every role, not just the chorus. Dunnington, along with director Tom O'Horgan and choreographer Lester Wilson, wanted performers who could act, sing, dance — and fight. Everybody has to get into the melees.

More than 7,000 actors auditioned before the lucky 37 people were chosen.

"The training since then has been comprehensive — some weightlifting, a lot of isometric exercises and some stretching," Dunnington said.

Dunnington's own theatrical career has been on the athletic side, including stints as a stuntman at Florida's Sea World and playing Tybalt in seven different productions of "Romeo and Juliet." One of the latest was at the Asolo State Theater in Sarasota, Fla., where he also served as the plays's fight choreographer.

Dunnington, who arrived in New York one year ago, was among the first who auditioned for the producers of "The Three Musketeers."

"I showed them a resume of things I had done and videotapes of my work," he says.

N. C. Chamber Orchestra To Perform In Farmville Nov. 1

A free concert for school children and an evening performance at Farmville Central High School by the North Carolina Symphony Chamber Orchestra under the baton of associate director James Ogle is scheduled in Farmville on Thursday, Nov. 1. The events are sponsored by the Farmvill Community Arts Council.

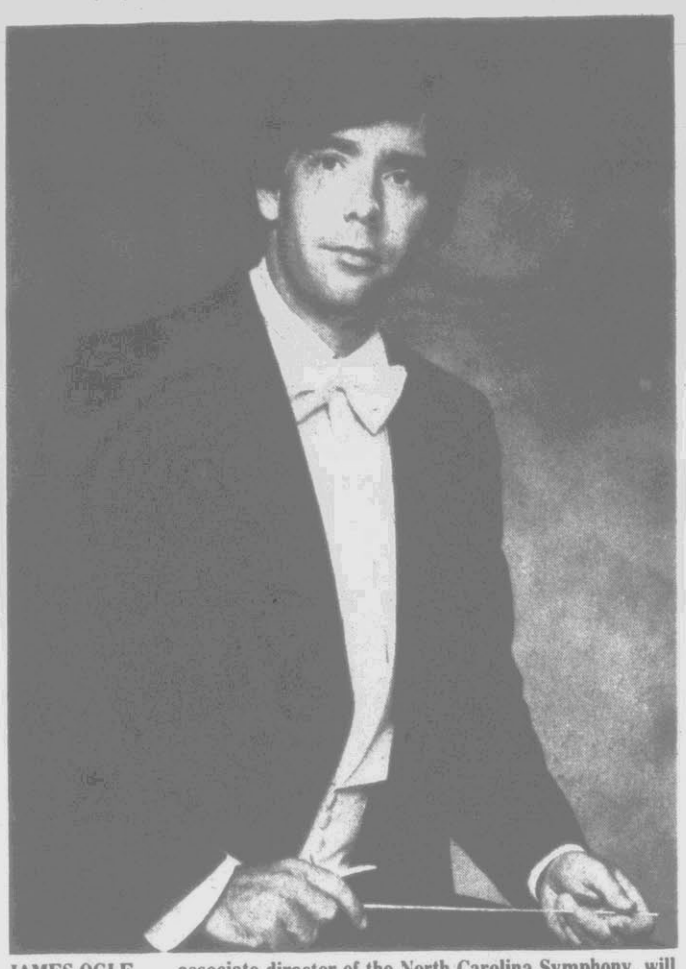
About 1,900 students from Pitt County schools will be attending a demonstration-performance by the orchestra during the school day Thursday.

The public concert will begin at 8 p.m. Thursday in the gymnasium of Farmville Central High Schoo. Tickets are priced at $4 for adults and $1 for students through high school age. Advance tickets are available from Charles Joyner Clothier, Farmville Furniture Company, and Kue's Pharmacy. Tickets may also be purchased from the Farmville Community Arts Center, 753-3832, or from Mrs. S. H. Aycock, 753-3325, Mrs. Bob Deans, 753-5973 and Mrs. Van Lewis 753-5968. Tickets will also be available at the door unless all are sold in advance.

Compositions to be performed on the evening program include Brahms' "Serenade No. 1 in D Major;" Rossini's "Overture to Tancredi" and Bizet's "Jeux d'Enfants." The major piece to be performed is Mozart's "Symphony No. 31 in D Major," the "Paris."

Ogle, now is his seventh season as associate conductor of the North Carolina Symphony, is a graduate of the University of Michigan. He was winner of the symphony's first Young Conductor's Competition in 1974, and in that year was also winner in the Malko International Conducting Competition held in Copenhagen, Denmark.

He has appeared with the International Festival of Young Artists Orchestra in Leysin, Switzeland and has been guest conductor of a major music festival held each summer in California. In 1980 Ogle studied with Seiji Ozawa, Leonard Bernstein, Andre Previn, and Sir Colin Davis at the summer home of the Boston Symphony.



JAMES OGLE . . . associate director of the North Carolina Symphony, will conduct the North Carolina Symphony Chamber Orchestra in a concert at 8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 1 in the gymnasium at Farmville Central High School. He will also present a free program to about 1,900 Pitt County students on Thursday.

Music Clubs Audition Rules Announced

GREENSBORO — The Biennial Young Artist Auditions of the National Federation of Music Clubs will be held at the state level for North Carolina on Saturday, Jan. 26 in Hart Recital Hall of the University of North Carolina, Greensboro.

Auditions will be held in five categories — man's voice/opera, woman's voice/opera, piano, strings, and oratorio. The winner in each category will then go to the South Atlantic District Auditions to be held Feb. 16 at Queens College in Charlotte. Winners in both the state and district levels will receive an award for $400 given by the N. C. Federation of Music Clubs.

National semi-finals and finals will be held April 14-15 in Wichita, Kansas. Winners there will each receive the National Federation's award of $5,000 along with fringe benefits, and will be presented in concert at the "Young Artists Evening" at the convention being held in Wichita.

Entrance fee is $10. Applications for entry and rules are available from: Mrs. Walter Vassar, N. C. Auditions Chairman, 1501 Mimosa Drive, Greensboro, N.C., 27403, telephone 272-5946. Applications and list of repertoire to be submitted to the national chairman for approval must reach Mrs. Vassar before the deadline, Dec. 1.

Voice entrants must be between 23 and 35; instrumental entrants must be 18 but not yet 30 by March 1. All entrants may enter auditions in the state of their birth or the state in which they are studying and working.

Carolina Today

As it begins its 26th year of broadcast, Carolina Today continuues its pattern of guest personalities drawn from all walks of life in eastern North Carolina as well as ocasional guests from other parts of the state and from outside the Tar Heel borders.

The early morning show, which airs from 6 to 8 a.m. daily over WNCT-TV, channel 9, Greenville, is co-hosted by veteran Slim Short and newcomer Cindy Pleasants.

The calendar for the coming week is:

MAORI ART

NEW YORK (AP) — An Exhibition of 174 works of traditional art created by the Maori people of New Zealand is on view at the Metropolitan Museum of Art through Jan. 6, 1985.

The exhibition, "Te Maori: Maori Art From New Zealand Collections," marks the first time the Maori people have allowed their treasures to journey abroad. Although a great deal of Maori art is in the care of the New Zealand museums, it remains the property of the Maori tribes, who venerate these objects as the spiritual dwelling place of ancestral powers.

In 1620, the Pilgrims from England signed the Mayflower Compact which set basic rules for their new settlement in Massachusetts.

Percussion Concert Set

A percussion concert by The Percussion Ensemble of East Carolina University, directed by John H. Brewington, will be presented in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall at 8:15 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 1. The recital is free and open to the public.

Compositions to be played on the recital program are: "The Swords of Moda-Ling" by Gordon Peters; "Three Asiatic Dances" by George Rock; Michael Colgrass' "Three Brothers;" Elliot A. del Borgo's "Introduction and Rondo;" "A Time for Jazz" by Jared Spears; and Joe H. Green's "Xylophonia," featuring B. B. Barker, xylophone soloist. Parker, of Jackson, Tenn., is a graduate teaching assistant in percussion.

TO REPLACE HEXUM — Australian actor Anthony Hamilton has been signed to a starring role in the 20th Century Fox Television series "Cover Up," according to a studio spokesman. Hamilton will join the cast in essentially the same role played by Jon-Erik Hexum who died Oct. 18. (AP Laserphoto)

Bath Recital Nov. 1

Charles Bath will perform a recital of piano music of Robert Schumann on Wednesday, Nov. 7 at 8:15 p.m. in the Recital Hall of the A. J. Fletcher Music Center on the East Carolina University camus.

The recital is free and open to the public.

Works written for the piano by Robert Schumann will constitute Bath's recital. This will include "Arabesque," "Scenes of Childhood," "Papillons," and "Sonata in F minor (Concerto without Orchestra)," all of which were composed between 1830 and 1840.

Schumann is regarded as one of the most poetic composers for the piano. His romantic music displays some of the best sonorities in piano literature.

Bath is chariman of the keyboard department and professor of piano at the ECU School of Music. He has been on the ECU faculty since 1966.

Prior to coming to ECU, Bath taught at Wichita State University in Wichita, Kansas, at the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N. Y., and at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. He frequently appears in concert with his wife, violinist Joanne Bath.

ADF Now Accepting Dance Applications

DURHAM — Applications are now being accepted for the Young Choreographers and Composers in Residence program scheduled to take place at the American Dance Festival during the summer of 1985.

Applications and information may be obtained by contacting: American Dance Festival, P. O. Box 6097, College Station, Durham, N.C., 27708, telephone 684-6402.

The program for young composers and choreographers affords participants the opportunity for both exploration of the disciplines of dance and music and the opportunity to create a collaborative dance and music work to be premiered at the ADF.

All participants will receive a fee for taking part in the project. Choreographers must have presented professional performances of their work for at least two to three years to be considered. Final selection will be made by a dance panel by March 15.

Composers must complete an application by March 7 to include educational background, musical training, two references, works composed, and a list of recent works performed with a minimum of eight instruments. Final selection of composers will be made by a panel by March 29.

Rose Students Chosen For NC State Orchestra

The J. H. Rose High School Music Department and orchestra director Paul D. Emerson announce the selection of eleven students to perform in the 1984 North Carolina All-State Honors Orchestra.

The Honors Orchestra is made up of outstanding students in the state. The orchestra will perform in Winston-Salem on Sunday, Nov. 4.

This year, Rose High School has more students selected for the Honors Orchestra than from any other high school in North Carolina.

Two New Offerings

CHAPEL HILL — A fictitious cathedral city in the west of England and British-rule India are the settings for two new presentations on "Masterpiece Theater" this fall over the University of North Carolina Center for Public Television, Chapel Hill.

The season premieres with "The Barchester Chronicles," a seven-part series based on Anthony Trollope's classic saga. The first part airs at 9 p.m. tonight over the nine UNC-CH channels in North Carolina.

"The Jewel in the Crown," the second of the masterpiece offerings, will air at 9 p.m. Sundays beginning Dec. 16.

Documentary About Duran Duran Tour

NEW YORK, N. Y. — MTV: Music Television will present the world premiere of Duran Duran's "Blue Silver" at 10 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 6. The 57-minute unconventioanl documentary chronicles the group's 1984 United States tour.

"Blue Silver" takes a personal look at each band member, on and off stage, scenes of the group rehearsing, and footage of comical situations faced on the road.

Songs in the documentary include "Union of the Snake," "Save A Prayer," "Careless Memories," and "The Wild Boys," among others.

AALTO'S CONTRIBUTIONS

NEW YORK (AP) — Alvar Aalto's contributions to 20th-century design are the subject of an exhibition at the Museum of Modern Art.

"Alvar Aalto: Furniture and Glass" examines the Finnish architect-designer's industrial design work in depth and is the first exhibition ever to present the full range of his furniture.

The exhibition closes Nov. 27.

Auditions Set For ECU Dance Concert

Dance auditions for the East Carolina Dance Theater have been scheduled for Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 5 and 6, in the Messick Theater Arts Center on the East Carolina University campus. The auditions will begin at 6:30 p.m. each evening in dance studio 14.

Each year the East Carolina Dance Theater produces a concert encompassing ballet, jazz, and modern dance. The pieces are choreographed by members of the dance faculty in the ECU Department of Theater Arts. For the past nine years the concerts hav played to standing room only audiences.

Those auditioning should be warmed up and ready to dance by 6:30 p.m., and should wear leotards and footless tights, and if they have them, bring ballet, pointe and/or jazz shoes. Some autditions will be in bare feet.

ECU students, staff and faculty and local area residents are invited to audition.

The Dance Theater Concert is scheduled for Feb. 20-23 in McGinnis Theater on campus. For more information, call 757-6390.

TO GIVE FREE CONCERT — Dr. Wayne Kirby, associate professor of music at UNC-Asheville, will perform his compositions in a free concert at 3 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 4 at the North Carolina Musuem of Art in Raleigh. He will be accompanied by dancer Julie Gilliam and musicians Elliott Wadopian, Douglas James, Christian Biesterfeldt, and DeWitt Tipton.

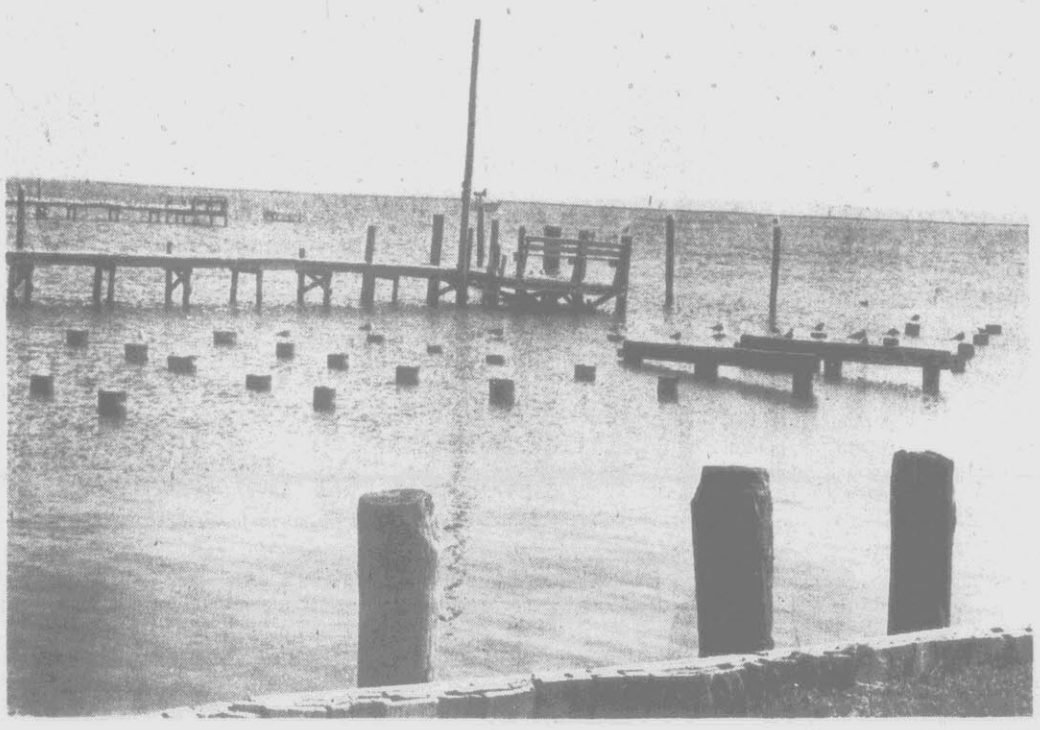
DELTA AIR LINES

LINED UP . . . This is a partial view of a line-up of docked yachts in the protected slip at the Belhaven Marina. The marina has the capacity to handle about 30 yachts a day. The boats come from all parts of the U.S. as well as some from European and Far Eastern countries.



A Stopover For Sail Cleaning And Carolina Sun

. . . A CANDADIAN VOYAGER . . . Doug McKittrick of Fort Erie, Ontario, Canada, gets a bit of Carolina October tan on his way to Florida as he scrubs the sails of "Calcutta Glass," docked behind him. "The boat was constructed in Taiwan of Burmese teak," McKittrick explained. "It's well-made and handles beautifully." McKittrick's rather long voyage is from the eastern tip of Lake Erie, through New York and on down through the waters of the Intercoastal Waterway to his Florida destination.

Belhaven Marina Services About 3,500 Yachts Yearly

Text And Photos By Jerry Raynor

Appropriately, its address is a Pungo River waterfront street in the Beaufort County town of Belhaven named Water Street. Here, in this normally quiet town of about 3,000, an amazing total of 3,500 yachts visit the Belhaven Marina annually.

"In the busy seasons we have approximately 30 yachts coming in daily, boats in transit," explained Alan Rohloff, manager of the busy marina. "The number varies, of course, according to size.

"Now that we are computerized," Rohloff said, "it's an easy matter to provide the figures on our boat visits here. Of about 9,000 yachts that use the waters of the Intercoastal Waterway each year, we receive visits by about 3,500. Most are transient visitors who come in for a short stay, usually overnight.

"Basically, we are a service marina, with the ability to perform major or minor renovations. We also provide regular service to boaters.

"The two busiest times of the year start in March, when yachts are going north after a winter in Florida, and again beginning about the end of August when boats begin to go south."

Rholoff, a New York native, still has his Yankee brogue, but bits of the Belhaven way of speaking can be detected now and then — Rholoff has been manager at the facility, owned by Belhaven Marine Railway, for five years.

He manages a crew of 14, including a very busy young man, Kevin Svec, a new dockmaster "who has only been with us for a fairly short time."

On the sunny Saturday afternoon the photographs on this page were made, Svec moved with the agility of a dolphin, racing from one incoming boat to another to direct docking sites and to insure each yacht was properly secured.

A factor appreciated by yachtsmen, Rholoff said, "is that the slip here, surrounded by land, is very well protected in the event of a hurricane. This is fortunate for us and our trade."

Rohloff readily admits that handling this number of visiting yachts "can keep a person pretty busy, but for anyone like myself who loves boats and everything about boats and water, it's as much joy as work."

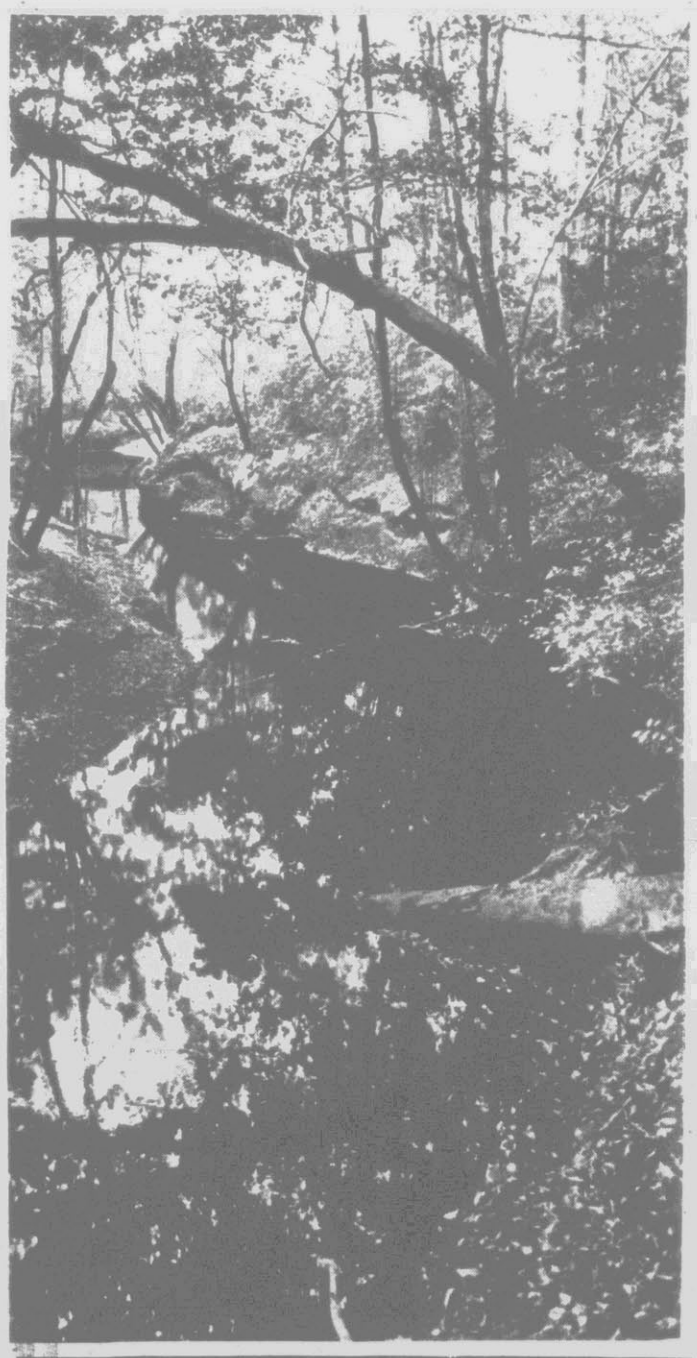
ECU Uses Ellis Property For Outdoors Research

FIELD STUDY ... East Carolina University biology professor Dr. Claudia Jolls and senior biology major Steven Price examine a parastic Indian Pipe during an ecology field trip. Several courses at ECU include field study on the Ellis property east of Falkland.



Text And Photographs By Leslie Todd East Carolina University News Bureau

ECU News Bureau

FALKLAND — An unusual tract of forest land highly valued by East Carolina University scientists for its environmental diversity will remain open for use as an outdoor classroom thanks to the generosity of a retired Winterville school teacher.

Mrs. Reed Parker Ellis, who grew up not far from the wooded property east of Falkland, recently renewed a lease agreement with ECU that allows faculty and students to use the property for laboratory exercises, field demonstrations and individual research projects.

For a token payment on $1 per year, ECU biologists can continue to explore the relatively unspoiled forest which boasts some unusual plants, including mountain laurel and galax, rarely seen in this part of North Carolina.

"My husband and I have always enjoyed the things of nature, and we like the idea that the property can be preserved and used for study," said Mrs. Ellis, who still visits the site to enjoy the springtime flowers.

The 100-acre tract was purchased by her father in 1918 from descendents of Robert Williams Jr., a Pitt County doctor and farmer who served in the North Carolina Assemby in the late 1700s and early 1800s. Never cleared for farming, the property has long been a favorite spot for family outings. As a child, Mrs. Ellis joined groups of local residents who gathered there to pick wildflowers.

According to ECU Biologist Dr. Vince Bellis, a variety of natural features and a lack of destructive logging activity in recent decades make the Ellis property locally of great value for environmental studies.

"One special beauty of this property is that it has been logged selectively and at a number of different times rather than simply clear-cut," said Bellis. "This gives students an opportunity to observe both young and relatively mature forest environments within a short distance of each other. They can see everything from young pines on the edge of the property to huge beech treees in the ravines that are 150 to 200 years old."

From a botanist's point of view, some of the most interesting areas on the property are steep, north-facing ravines where constant shade and seeping springs create a cool, moist environment. Here grow dense stands of mountain laurel and galax, plants that are normally associated with the cool climate of the Blue Ridge mountains. The ravines also provide an ideal environment for certain mosses, ferns and liverworts not commonly found in the Pitt County area.

"The presence of these small pockets of plants and animals outside their normal range invites some interesting scientific questions," says Bellis. "How and when did they first become established here? Are the individuals found here genetically different from those in the major areas of distribution?"

ECU scientists identify three distinct forest environments on the Ellis property. The higher elevations are dominated by a mixture of loblolly pines and hardwoods including several types of oaks, two types of hickory, sweetgum, dogwood, American holly and sassafrass.

A lower elevation hardwood forest contains many of these same trees but certain species such as white oak, holly and ironwood become more abundant. Black walnut and mulberry appear at this level with mountain laurel, tulip trees and American beech being abundant on the north-facing ravines.

The lowest elevations are found along the floodplain of Otter Creek, a year-round stream fed by spring waters that meanders along for several miles before flowing into the Tar River. Bald cypress, river birch, basswood and possum haw are some of the species that characterize this low lying area.

According to Mark Brinson, director of graduate studies in biology at ECU, the property has been used as an outdoor laboratory for ecology classes for well over 10 years. Common field exercises include statistical sampling methods, soil studies, leaf fall and leaf composition studies and vegetation analysis. Field trips to the area number about five or six each semester.

Other courses that utilize the Ellis proerty include field botany, field zoology, mycology (the study of fungi) and environmental biology. At least one graduate level thesis has been prepared using research performed on the property.

"This area is unparalled in Pitt County for its community of several distinct forest types that are in a relatively advanced state of ecological development," comments Brinson in a memorandum describing the property. "Future access to this gem of natural beauty is highly valued by the biology faculty and is considered an irreplacable component of quality education at ECU."

N.C. Zoo Plaza Named

ASHEBORO — The principal plaza and visitor service area at the North Carolina Zoological park has been named the Z. Smith Reynolds Plaza in honor of the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation of Winston-Salem.

The plaza is the main entrance to the zoo and the area where zoo visitors gather at the start and finish of their visit. The 27,000 square feet in the plaza contains the restaurant, outdoor tables, gift ships and rest areas.

The Reynolds foundation was honored and recognized in this manner for its generous support of the N. C. Zoo through grants to the N. C. Zoological Society.

ROCKY HILL, Conn. (AP) — CBS commentator Andy Rooney says Connecticut's new $1.1 million library for the blind and physically handicapped is a "monument to civilization" that "stands a little higher than most."

"For all the things we've done wrong with the land we live on, all the mistakes we've made ... it is a great delight to come to a place like this where finally we have done something right," Rooney, known for his humorous commentaries on the news program "60 Minutes," said at dedication ceremonies Thursday.

The new library has 90,000 books in Braille and large print as well as more than 1,000 books on tape or records that can be shipped to libraries around the state for use by the handicapped.

Arizona Sportsmen Couple Enjoy The Art Of Frog Gigging

By RON RODGERS
Sierra Vista Herald-Dispatch

SIERRA VISTA, Ariz. (AP) — When a couple of avid sportsmen such as Dee Vannoy and Wayne Kaiser are between the season of the field and the season of the stream, they know what to do.

And that's to strike out for the nearest marsh and practice the amphibious sport of frog gigging.

With their rods and reels and lures and ammunition stored away for the season, Kaiser and Vannoy drag out their 79-cent barbed metal gigs, attach them to the nearest old broom handles, put on some clothes they don't mind getting muddy and head out at dusk to their "secret ponds" somewhere in Cochise County.

"It breaks up the cabin fever," said Kaiser, an animal control officer with the city of Sierra Vista.

Kaiser and Vannoy, a Sierra Vista public works employee, are long-time fishing and hunting buddies who try to hunt or fish every chance they get.

"To them, frog gigging is a perfect mix of the field and stream sports they enjoy so much and makes a fine substitute for the fishing and hunting they would really rather be doing.

While Vannoy is a country boy from Pennsylvania raised on hunting and fishing, Kaiser knew only the streets of Chicago as a youth. He got his first taste of hunting and fishing and subsequently went "crazy for nature" during a stint with the Army in Alaska.

Three or four times every frog season from July to November, Kaiser meets Vannoy at his home near the base of the Whetstone Mountains.

There they pack their gear into a truck, spray on a thick coat of bug repellent, hone their gigs and map out their plans for the evening.

Then they head out on an hour-long trip to the ponds. Vannoy chanced on them while dove hunting in the area and he has shared his secret with few others besides Kaiser.

That's because there are few ponds around this part of the country, and the fewer the frog pond cognoscenti, the better the gigging, Vannoy said.

The reedy marshes where the duo hunt the bullfrog are actually active stock ponds in the middle of a combination farm and ranch, and Vannoy has the property owner's permission to hunt there.

Tramping through the marshy shore recently, the two went about their hunt.

While it may seem deceptively easy to go out in the dark, blind a frog with a bright light and then stick it with a gig, that's not neccessarily the case.

The skill in frog gigging as practiced by Vannoy and Kaiser is a large dose of patience combined with the ability to discern the difference between the riveted bullfrogs and the clumps of reeds and weeds in the shadows before they get too close and send the creatures swimming or leaping out of gig range.

The frogs can be found floating either in the water or among the tall grass at the edge of the marsh, for these amphibians like to come out of the water at night.

"The later it gets, the higher up on shore you'll find them," Kaiser said in explaining the habits of the bullfrog he has come to know so well.

When the frogs leave the water, he said, they like to hide near rocks or drain pipes or clumps of weeds.

This night, apparently someone had been to most of the ponds before these hunters, and the frogs were few and far between. Those that were there were wary, and the duo failed to limit out at 15 each as they usually do.

That aside, using some skill and patience, Vannoy and Kaiser were still able to depopulate the ponds by about 20 fat, tasty bullfrogs.

CEZANNE ART AT PRINCETON

The exhibition includes six oil paintings, 18 watercolors, six drawings, and six prints.

Bountiful Kenyan Tea Crop

By BARRY SHLACHTER
Associated Press Writer

KERICHO, Kenya (AP) — The worst drought in 50 years has wiped out about 40 percent of Kenya's wheat, corn and coffee crops, but it has spared most of the tea-growing areas here in what once was a Europeans-only preserve called the White Highlands. It rained almost every day.

For Kenya, the abundant tea crop and rising world prices likely will make the area one of the few bright spots in the economy this year.

For the Chumo family it will mean a new house with running water.

While other areas of the country are in recession, highlands growers, many of them black families, are expecting substantially higher incomes and local merchants are gearing up for a sales boom in motor vehicles, building supplies and other items.

Overall tea output nationally in this tropical East African country could drop 10 percent below last year's record of 119,783 tons because of the severe dry spell afflicting Limuru, east of the Great Rift Valley, according to Stephen Nkanata, an economist with the semi-official Tea Board of Kenya. Other estimates predict a 20-percent decrease unless seasonal rains come to Limuru soon.

But in Kericho, in the highlands west of the Rift Valley, it's been raining almost every day, and local merchants expect the sales boom to start in late October when the small-scale tea farmers get the bulk of their annual earnings, said Frederick Muiruri, branch manager here of the British-owned Standard Bank.

The Chumo family, growing tea in Kericho since 1961, says it doubled production to more than 909 pounds this year because of ample rain, better care of bushes and use of fertilizer. The family's gross proceeds from tea are expected in the range of 30,000 shillings ($2,070), up 150 percent from last year's 12,000 shillings ($827), said Solomon Chumo, 21.

The Chumos are relatively affluent by the standards of rural Kenya. Many people are subsistence farmers with small plots and little cash earnings. Nationally, per capita income is about $425 a year.

The average amount paid for tea in Mombasa, an auction center and the Indian Ocean port which ships Kenyan tea abroad, went up to $1.25 a pound this past September from 72 cents a pound in September 1983.

Kenya, even with a predicted 10-percent overall drop in output, could earn about $248 million in foreign exchange from tea this year, said the Tea Board's Nkanata. It will be needed to pay what may be a $253-million bill for imported grain to meet the domestic shortfall.

The near record tea prices at international auctions stem from India's curbing of exports of high-quality blending teas in order to meet domestic demand. Indian tea drinkers consume about one-fifth of total world production.

Thanks to the Kenya Tea Development Authority (KTDA), which a World Bank study called one of the most successful smallholder agricultural schemes in a developing country, the individual farmer is benefitting from the high prices paid by overseas tea drinkers.

The scheme was designed for rural families to grow a hectare (2.47 acres) or two of tea which they would pick themselves. But some have increased their tea plots to eight hectares and more, while hiring outside pluckers.

Thomas Chumo, 52, has 1.4 hectares (3.5 acres) under tea. He also keeps six cows and grows corn to feed his wife and 11 children. His tea has earned him enough to buy a used motorcycle and invest in a butcher shop, whose customers are pluckers on a large tea estate owned by a British multinational.

With this year's earnings, his sons will complete a new tin-roofed house of five rooms and buy pipe to carry water from a local stream.

Banker Muiruri said some tea farmers are expected to transform earnings into trucks and inter-city buses and taxis to bring in added income. Dealers in building supplies and other goods also are expected to cash in.

"I expect to sell 20-30 motorcycles in October when I usually sell only four in a month," said Kishan G. Morjaria of Kericho's Chai Motorcycles and Hardwares.

Black farmers in Kenya were not permitted to grow tea or most other export crops until shortly before independence from Britain in 1963. Land ownership in the highlands was largely limited to whites.

The rationale was that tea could only be a large plantation crop, and that small farmers would only damage a reputation established over years by European growers. But many blacks saw the restriction as a way to keep them from competing on the open market, thereby forcing them to work as farm hands for European settlers who faced a chronic labor shortage.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime finds you able to continue with the opportunity to extend your interests and activities. Get a fresh start at the practical phases of your worldly ambitions.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Formulate a new course of action which you can later take to an expert. Be sure to drive with special care today.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Use a new system for organizing your responsibilities. Contact persons who can best help you to advance.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) State your need for more backing from a partner and you can easily get it. Take your loved one out for a good time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Join with an associate for the pleasure you both desire. Take any health treatments to become stronger.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) If you assist a partner to gain own goals, you will get more cooperation from others. Stay home this evening with kin.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A good day to plan recreations for the future that can be greatly enjoyed. Stop hiding your light under the proverbial bushel.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Strengthen the foundation of your living so that you have greater security in the future. Remember that life is what you make it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make those new arrangements for greater profits from work. You are able to get needed data from partners.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Handle your activities sensibly and you can have more of life's goodies. Contact business persons and state aims.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Use your best judgment and good hunches in business. Go about socially where bigwigs are to gain favor.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be concerned with important personal matters today and forget about trying to have fun. Be more practical.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If you do something special for your friends, you find that many favors can be bestowed upon you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will do well at whatever is practical and be a fine organizer. Teach early to be more cooperative with others and not so aggressive. See to it that school work gets done on time and accurately. Don't neglect spiritual training.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1984

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A particularly good time for you to go directly to the most influential persons you know and obtain the support you desire. Get involved in any community ventures available.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can advance commensurate with the efforts you put out. Be alert to whatever arises in terms of opportunities.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have fine ideas now that should be put in operation quickly so that you can become more successful in the future.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Find the best way to deal with business allies. Buy a nice gift for your loved one to show you are thoughtful and kind.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) If you show more interest in what an associate is doing, you can improve the relationship and gain cooperation.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Handle work so that a bigwig will approve and you are in line for a raise or promotion. Listen to different points of view.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Good day to take immediate family out of town and show them a good time. Use hidden talents, but drive carefully.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Look to a relative to help you solve some problem at abode. Stop driving yourself so hard while others do nothing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Show your partners that you will help them more in your relationships since their needs are greater than yours.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are inspired as to how best to add to property and other assets you may have, so get busy on such.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Good day to relegate other persons and their problems to the background and concentrate on yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make that plan that will gain you what you desire after consulting with a good advisor, one who understands you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be with others who are cheerful and can lighten your mood. Be sure to use care in all travel today.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be a born politician, so give the right kind of academic course in school for just such a position in life. A fine head for business here also. One who likes everything to be neat and orderly at home.

Harvest Of Mushrooms A National Obsession In Poland

By MATTHEW C. VITA
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Wladyslaw Michalak, body crouched, eyes darting from spot to spot on the moist earth beneath his feet, stalked his prey in a tuft of pine trees outside Warsaw.

He was not alone.

Twenty feet away, partially hidden by a tangle of brush, Jerzy Romanski moved silently across the bed of pine needles, his eyes trained to the ground, his hands ready to pounce.

Turning to a group of onlookers and grinning from ear to ear, he held aloft a prawdziwek — a large white-stalked plant with a beige top that is the most prized mushroom in Poland.

Mushrooming in this country of 37 million people is more than a form of weekend recreation. It's a national obsession.

This fall, Poles are combing the woods by the thousands and carting out baskets brimming with mushrooms, which are abundant this year because of the damp and relatively mild weather.

Even some national mushroom records are being set.

"Mr. Roman Wietrzycki of Wloclawek found a boletus weighing 0.75 kilos (more than 1½ pounds) and measuring 25 centimeters (10 inches) tall," reported the official Communist Party newspaper Trybuna Ludu.

The government-run forest production enterprise in the Zielona Gora district bought a record 38 tons of mushrooms Oct. 4 and is expected to take in more than 600 tons before the season is over, according to the official news agency PAP.

"These are hectic days for employees of the enterprises of forest production," Trybuna Ludu said.

Many big-time gatherers sell their mushrooms to the government forest production enterprise, known by the initials LAS, for as much as 200 zlotys ($2) a kilogram (2.2 pounds). The government exports dried mushrooms to Switzerland, West Germany, France and Italy.

"I'm selling up to 30 kilos (66 pounds) a day," said Zofia Wegorek, who gets up to 1,000 zlotys ($10) a kilo for top varieties at her vegetable stand at the Polna Market in Warsaw.

The prices alone are enough to drive many Poles to the woods.

"Here you get lots of fresh air and you don't have to spend any money," said Michalak, displaying his day's collection that was near the top of his basket.

Highways and rural roads in the countryside on weekend mornings are lined with parked cars of mushroom hunters. Factories sponsor Saturday morning bus outings for workers, who converge on the woods by the hundreds.

The mushroom mania that has brought many first-timers to the woods is prompting the state-run television network to broadcast warnings about the dangers of eating poisonous varieties.

"Unfortunately not all mushroom gatherers are able to distinguish edible mushrooms from those that are poisonous," a newscaster said during one broadcast. "Sometimes one small mushroom may cause dangerous intoxication or even death."

The broadcast featured an interview with a doctor who said he treats "more than a dozen poisoned people, sometimes several dozens" each day.

During the War of 1812, the British captured Fort Niagara from the Americans in 1813. The British took 300 prisoners. The first fort was a log structure surrounded by a palisade, built in 1687 at the mouth of the Niagara River for LaSalle. It was captured by the English

The last stand of the first English parliamentarians ended in 1266 when the rebels surrendered Kenilworth Castle to the king after a six-month siege. Their leader, Simon de Montfort, who called England's first parliament, had already been killed in battle.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — POOR FIREFIGHTER'S BIGGEST HANG UP: HE HAS HEARTBURN.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: X equals T

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Vietnamese Suffered In Special Camps

EDITOR'S NOTE — The United States has offered to take in 10,000 former South Vietnamese soldiers and officials interned in "Re-Education Camps" in Vietnam after the Communist victory in 1975. Here, on the basis of interviews with former internees, diplomats and human rights officials, is a report on conditions in the camps and what happened to some of the people who were sent to them.

By PETER ENG
Associated Press Writer

PHNOM DONGRUK, Cambodia (AP) — Col. Lam Ne of the defeated South Vietnamese army says he languished as a virtual prisoner of war for seven years after the North Vietnamese Communists triumphed in April 1975 and set up what they called camps for re-education.

He said he first was imprisoned in Can Tho, near the old capital of Saigon (now called Ho Chi Minh City), along with 1,000 other high-ranking South Vietnamese officers, and then in two other camps. He was released in early 1982, his body showing signs of malnutrition and some beatings. Freedom came as suddenly as his imprisonment, with "no reason at all" given, recalled Lam Ne, now a hollow-cheeked man of 57 and a refugee in this camp on the Thailand-Cambodia border.

Lam Ne's case apparently was not unusual. Diplomatic sources believe 150,000 to 200,000 others like him may have spent varying periods in Vietnam's "Re-Education Camps" and that 10,000 or more long-term internees remain. As many as 100 camps may have existed throughout the country, the diplomats said.

What follows is a generalized picture of the camps, put together from intreviews with former internees, diplomats and human-rights officials. Their descriptions and accounts could not be independently verified because of a lack of access to the camps by outsiders and to officials in Hanoi, Vietnam's capital.

The camps are set up in areas ranging from just-cleared forest to complexes of concrete buildings ringed by barbed wire and minefields. The internees are fed meager rations and toil in the fields for eight hours a day.

Actual political courses (re-education) in classrooms are minimal and irregular. Some prisoners are beaten, a lesser number tortured or executed for disobeying or trying to escape, but there is no systematic, harsh mistreatment. Large numbers, however, have died of malnutrition, malaria, tuberculosis and other diseases.

Lt. Col. Chuong Lam of the South Vietnamese air force, who also is at this refugee camp, said he was never beaten during the three years he spent at two army-run camps and six years at three police camps.

Under army supervision at Yen Bai, about 80 miles northwest of Hanoi, the prisoners worked eight hours a day, clearing the forest and building the camp themselves, he said. Sometimes potatos and corn were provided.

Chuong Lam, 44, said that during his nine-year internment, he saw some prisoners beaten and others shackled in lightless, tiny cells for up to four months for stealing food or other infractions.

Many former internees have fled Vietnam since their release, escaping either by boat or trekking across Cambodia.

"I saw many die from disease. How many I don't remember," he said in an interview at his simple bamboo hut at Phnom Dongruk.

Conditions appear to differ dramatically from one camp to another. They seem to have improved slightly over time, with, for example, more frequent family visits permitted.

Phan Hien, justice minister in the government in Hanoi, has said that since 1982, delegations have been sent to regularly inspect camp conditions.

Vietnam, apparently unhappy with the system, is trying to institute conventional legal procedures and published a draft penal code in August 1983.

In 1977-78, informed sources say, Vietnamese officials began experimenting with alternatives by releasing prisoners back to their homes, under the supervision of local People's Committees (governments). Others were sent to what Hanoi terms "intermediary forms" of re-education, like the "new economic zones" that were established to boost production in the rural areas.

"The main thing that concerns us is that these people are political prisoners held without trial — there's no sentence, no term," said David Laulicht, a spokesman for the London-based human rights organization Amnesty International.

In September, the U.S. government offered to accept 10,000 of what it calls current and former "political prisoners" over the next three years. At an Oct. 4 meeting in Geneva, Switzerland, the Vietnamese government agreed in principle to the proposal, but demanded that the United States take all of what it described as "criminals" in the camps.

U.S. officials say they are waiting for Vietnam to propose dates for further talks on the issue, one of several that have blocked the establishment of postwar diplomatic relations.

The Vietnamese government has described those still in the re-education facilities as guilty of "national treason." It has said they are former high-ranking army officers and government officials, and leaders of "reactionary organizations."

The U.S. State Department and Amnesty International maintain the camps also hold others who had U.S. connections during the war, and groups considered politically suspect since 1975 — intellectuals, Buddhist and Christian clergymen, and ethnic Chinese.

A Thai-based analyst who has followed Vietnamese affairs closely since the war said the Communists executed some senior army officers in April and May of 1975, but then decided against any major bloodletting and established the re-education system.

A Western diplomat theorized that the 10,000 or so still in the camps have remained there because Hanoi's already slow-paced unification of Vietnam's North and South could be set back even more if well-educated people with strong ties to the previous regime were allowed back into society.

The re-education system stemmed from a policy statement of the Viet Cong-based Provisional Revolutionary Government, which ruled from April 1975 to July 1976. It said all soldiers, officers, non-commissioned officers and government officials who did not immediately embrace the new regime must spend up to three years in re-education. It added that all "die-hard agents" would be tried before people's tribunals.

Vietnam told Amnesty International in September 1980 that 1 million people were freed after short-term courses, and that 40,000 were held for long-term re-education. Independent sources, however, believe that as many as 200,000 Vietnamese may have spent more than a year in the camps.

Various Western sources have reported a series of arrests, and re-arrests, after the original round-ups.

According to Amnesty Internationl, people with no connection to the old regime were arrested in 1976-77, mostly in the Ho Chi Minh City area. These included writers, artists and officials who had retired before April 1975. Some influential ethnic Chinese were reported arrested in 1978 during a crackdown on southern Vietnam's merchant class. Arrests were made in 1980, possibly because former South Vietnamese leaders living abroad began urging resistance to the new regime, a Western source said. Other arrests were reported last year.

In 1978-79, informed sources say, the camps, formerly army-run, were taken over by public security police, completing the transformation of the camps into "rehabilitation" centers.

Vietnam said in mid-1981 it was speeding up releases of well-behaving prisoners.

It also has freed some seriously ill prisoners and a few others after intercession by Amnesty International. Larger numbers are reported to have bribed camp commanders or made use of family connections with high-ranking officials.

The United States, however, charges that those released are denied working and housing permits, ration coupons, identity cards needed for internal travel, as well as access to the U.N. Orderly Departure Program.

Investment Decorating Could Be Beneficial

By HOUSE BEAUTIFUL
A Hearst Magazine

Today's high quality furniture may become tomorrow's high-priced antique, which makes buying fine furniture a sound investment.

Investment decorating is the term used in a layout in House Beautiful's current issue that takes a close look at today's influential home design trends — American Country, Art Deco, Neo Classic, Japanese and '80s Contemporary — showing the reader how to spend wisely for home furnishings.

"You should know how to recognize excellence in workmanship, comfort and enduring value," says Debbie Brown, the magazine's home furnishings director. "It's important to know why things cost what they do and what sets one product apart from another."

Whether working on your own or through a decorator, here are some tips from the magazine's editors on recognizing quality as an investment in your home.

—The appearance and durability of upholstery fabric is related to its fiber content, weave and finish. Generally, a close woven fabric will wear the longest; patterns and medium or dark colors will show the least soil. Look, too, for fabrics treated to resist soil.

—When shopping for sofas and chairs, make sure cushions are properly sized and shaped to fit snugly and evenly. Unzip a cushion cover. If it has a sturdy cotton ticking and feels substantial, it is more likely to be of good quality.

—Better furniture is built with coil springs that add to comfort and durability. You can feel the springs by putting your hand under the cushion seat. The higher the number of coil rows, the better the piece. Three rows are good; four is best.

—Wood furniture usually is more expensive because of higher material costs and the amount of hand craftsmanship required. Sometimes 25 steps are required for a wood piece, including sanding, rubbing, glazing and padding.

—Finishes should feel smooth to the touch, with no rough or uneven edges. They should be clear to reveal the figure or grain of the wood. They should exhibit a glowing depth of patina.

—Inlays and marquetry are two of the aesthetically pleasing effects achieved through veneer construction with solid woods. Veneers do not indicate inferior finishings — antiques with intricate veneer patterns currently are bringing record prices at auction.

—Drawers are a key to the quality of furniture. Look for consistency in size between the drawer front and the sides. The drawer bottoms should be clean with no glue residue.

—Furniture to hold home entertainment equipment and electronics are a major new thrust in the design field. Many are constructed with built-in electrical outlets to conceal wires and cords. Quality units will have a leveling feature in bottom corners to provide proper alignment and compensate for uneven floors.

—When shopping for carpet, a good rule of thumb is the denser the carpet, the better. One way to determine relative density is to run your fingertips through the pile to see how much backing you feel. The denser the carpet, the less visible backing.

—When shopping for beds, the House Beautiful editors advice, remember that mattress prices are determined by size, materials and construction of both mattress and foundation. Always buy the two together. If a mattress needs replacement, so does the foundation.

Here's the Answer

Q. — We have a lot of faucets in our old house. All of them are the regular washer-type faucets that used to be so common and every so often I have to change one of the washers. Recently, I discovered the washers I had on hand did not fit the faucet I had to fix. I chose one a bit larger than needed and sanded it down around the outside so that it finally fit. But it took me nearly an hour to do so. Isn't there some easier way to get an oversized washer to fit?

A. — If you are very careful, you can reduce the size of the washer with a very sharp knife or a razor blade in a handle. This is rather hazardous if you have a washer which resists cutting. However, there is one way to sand off the excess with the use of a portable electric drill and a bit which is the correct size. Select a bit over which the washer will fit very snugly. Push on the washer until it is a few inches on to the bit.

Now place a piece of sandpaper someplace where it will stay firmly in place. It can be taped to the top of a workbench or work table or, if it is on a sanding block, held in the jaws of a vise. Turn on the drill. When you are sure the washer does not come off while the bit is rotating, gently lower it to the sandpaper. Work carefully and slowly and you will find the sandpaper is taking off some of the washer's edges. Turn the drill slightly as you move along and soon the washer will be reduced all around. Every so often you may have to remove the washer from the bit to see whether it fits the bottom of the faucet stem.

Q. — Our basement floods two or three times a year. We have had all sorts of inspections and all sorts of suggestions, but what it all boils down to is that we need a sump pump to get the water out of the basement when the occasional flooding takes place. Is this a do-it-yourself job?

A. — It depends on your physical condition, age, knowledge of pipes, and local plumbing codes. In short, no answer can be given that will cover everybody. The fact that you ask the question makes it fairly certain that the job should be done by a plumber. Different kinds of sump pumps are available, some of which cost more but work better. Be sure to find out which is best in your case.

Q. — We will soon have to get a part of our old plumbing system replaced. It is made up of iron pipes and fittings. Is it possible to have the new installation of copper?

A. — Iron and copper do not like each other. Because of what is called galvanic action, the iron will slowly deteriorate, although this may take many years. There are certain fittings that can be put between these two metals that will slow down or eliminate the galvanic action. Ask your plumber and take his advice.

A drawer that is stuck can test your temper. If you do not stay in control of the situation, a minor problem can turn into a major one. One exasperated tug too many or too strong and you have a broken drawer or damage to the object that is causing the trouble in the first place.

There are lots of reasons for a stuck drawer, among them loose nails, warpage, broken runners, just plain wear and a jammed item inside the drawer. In the latter case, the drawer usually opens a bit, then sticks. If you tug at the drawer gently, it sometimes will come free. If not, don't force it. Use a ruler or some such tool to prod inside the drawer to dislodge the object. Should the drawer not open even the tiniest bit, unusual but not rare, insert the blade of a putty knife into the opening between the drawer and the bureau frame. Do this very gently.

If all efforts to open the drawer without forcing are unsuccessful, see how the bureau is constructed and whether you can get results by taking out the drawer above or below the blocked one. You may even have to take off the back of the piece of furniture, which can be tedious but not difficult.

Most of the time, a drawer acts up in a different way. It just doesn't slide smoothly. Take everything out of the drawer and begin a thorough examination of it and the runners on which it moves back and forth. Check the construction of the drawer.

If you find some loose nails, withdraw them and replace them with similar nails. Follow the same method of attachment as used in the original construction, but when this isn't possible, substitute glue for nails. Don't use screws when nails and glue were the original fasteners. Especially look at the bottom of the drawer to see whether it is pulling away from its frame. Actually, the inspection will reveal, even to a novice do-it-yourselfer, what is wrong and how it can be fixed.

One thing is important. Be very careful not to make any drastic adjustments requiring the removal of very much wood. If you do, you may regret it later when moisture re-enters the wood and swells it. Whenever possible, sand rather than plane.

Sometimes the runners are worn or out of whack. Here again, common sense will reveal that to you, as the drawer is slid in and out. See whether the problem requires sanding or an adjustment or possibly replacement of the slides and runners. In some cases, you may find it advisable to replace old wooden runners with modern ones of metal or plastic, with or without ball bearings to make them work easier.

If any wood is removed at all during the repair job or if the sliding parts have no finish, seal them with a mixture of shellac and denatured alcohol, half and half. When everything is completely dry, apply wax or paraffin or some other lubricant to the slides and runners.

It may be the drawer has to be lifted slightly to open all the way and nothing else is wrong. In that case, place a couple of thumb tacks in the runners at the front end. This will lift the drawer slightly so it slides easily.

Corner joints can be strengthened with wood blocks, glued in place. Most of the time the blocks have to be clamped in place until the glue dries, but check to see whether the clamps are necessary. You may have an adhesive that does not require pressure to keep the parts together during the curing process.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find tips on a variety of repair subjects in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $1.50 to this paper at Box 5, Teaneck, NJ 07666.)

Q. What are some plants that can be used as windbreaks? (F.F., Mocksville)

A. Several evergreen trees which grow into large windbreaks and also screen objectionable views are hemlock, cedar, Southern magnolia, white pine, loquat, Leyland cypress and deodar cedar. Six to 12-foot evergreen shrubs for windbreaks are camellia, sasanqua, cleyera, elaeagnus, hollies, ligustrums, wax myrtle, photinias and viburnums. Oleander and pittosporum can be used in the Coastal Plain. If space is limited for a hedge, consider a fence (which can be covered with a vine to make it a better screen or windbreak) or a wall. Windbreaks obstruct and redirect wind. As wind strikes an obstruction, it moves over it, around it or through it. Impenetrable windbreaks create a strong vacuum on the protected (leeward) side, which reduces the protection. Windbreaks composed of living plants allow some of the wind to penetrate, which makes them more effective.

Q. Are bulbs grown in Holland of better quality than American-grown bulbs? (O.R., Wilkesboro)

A. For the home gardener, there is basically no difference in quality between bulbs grown in America or those grown in the Netherlands (Holland). Although the Dutch are leaders in bulb production, a bulb is not of higher quality just by virtue of being from Holland. If gardeners wonder why their garden center carries only Holland-grown hyacinths, crocuses or ornamental onions, it is because these bulbs are among those not produced in America.

Q. What can you tell me about the azalea named 'Formosa'? (G.C., Anson County)

A. 'Formosa' is one of the most popular varieties of the Southern Indica Hybrids, a group of azaleas commonly called Indica azaleas. 'Formosa' has rose purple, single blossoms which are about three inches across. Generally, Indica azaleas have larger leaves and blossoms than the common Kurume hybrids. They can become quite large (six to 12 feet tall with a spread of six to eight feet). Indicas flower from late March to mid to late April. Indica azaleas are most often used in eastern and southeastern parts of North Carolina because they are not as cold hardy as most other azaleas.

No. 26200 — The Blossomview

Office Looks Out On Covered Deck

By Jerry Bishop

Besides its five bedrooms, multiple activity areas, and emphasis on space, the Blossomview, a split foyer plan, includes a convenient home office that looks out on the covered deck.

Living areas are impressively large, and featured are a kitchen/dining room/living room complex, a luxurious master bedroom, and a lower level kitchenette and family room. In fact, with its 21-ft. family room, two bedrooms, full bath, and storage area, the lower level is suitable for use as a separate apartment.

The striking exterior is heavily glassed and enhanced by a massive stone chimney and appealing covered deck. The interior carries this same sense of space, with high cathedral ceilings and fixed windows over living room and foyer.

Up from the foyer, the 19-ft. living room enjoys a woodburning fireplace and is open to the dining room and kitchen. The area joins the patio via sliding glass doors.

Decorative Symposium Announced

WINDSOR — Christine Meadows, co-author of "George Washington's Chinaware" and curator of Mount Vernon, Washington's restored home, is among those to speak at the fifth annual "Decorative Arts Affair" on Thursday, Nov. 8.

Her topic will be "Mount Vernon: Restoration in Retrospect."

The day-long program is sponsored by the Historic Hope Foundation, Inc., and the East Carolina University Division of Continuing Education.

Other speakers will include Mrs. W. Marion Odom of Roanoke Island, who will discuss the Elizabethan Gardens; and Charles Granquist, curator of Monticello, home of Thomas Jefferson, who will speak on current restoration at Monticello.

Hope Plantation, where the annual symposium is being held, was the Bertie County home of David Stone, North Carolina's governor from 1808 to 1810.

More details about the symposium are available by writing to: A Decorative Arts Affair, Division of Continuing Education, ECU, Greenville, N. C., 27834.

THE TALE OF THE FIVE OF DIAMONDS

DEAR READERS: We have had many requests over the years for those hands that we consider to be our favorites. That makes quite a list. For the time being, therefore, we are devoting the Sunday column to a series of famous hands. At the end of the series, we will go back to our weekly question and answer column.

Both vulnerable. East deals.

	NORTH ♠ Q 9 8 6 3 ♡ A K 4 ◇ 10 ♣ A 10 8 5
WEST ♠ 7 2 ♡ 8 3 2 ◇ Q 9 7 6 4 3 2 ♣ 2		EAST ♠ 4 ♡ Q J 10 9 7 6 5 ◇ J 8 ♣ K Q 7
	SOUTH ♠ A K J 10 5 ♡ Void ◇ A K 5 ♣ J 9 6 4 3

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
3 ♡	Dble	Pass	4 ♡
Pass	4 ♠	Pass	6 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Two of ♠.

The Five of Diamonds (he derived his name from the fact that he was a jeweler by trade) was full of nervous energy. Although he did not make many tricks in his own right, he was a favorite partner of many more powerful players because of his knack of making the right play at the right time.

"I do hate these preempts. Having to make decisions at such high levels bothers me," he muttered. "Still, I had to do something over three hearts. I felt I was too strong for three spades and four spades is so unilateral. So I settled for a double and before you could whistle Dixie, I found myself playing in slam.

"West led a club. Had he led his partner's suit, I would have been able to assure the contract. Why do I always have to contend with these individualists?

"Obviously, that had to be a singleton. And while I could no longer afford to strip the red cards from both my hand and dummy, draw trumps and then lead a club to the eight to guarantee the hand, an alternative plan presented itself.

"From the bidding and lead, I knew 10 of East's cards—seven hearts and three clubs. If he had no more than two diamonds, I was a shoo-in.

"I won the ace of clubs, drew trumps in two rounds, cashed the ace-king of hearts for two club discards and ruffed a heart. Now I cashed the ace-king of diamonds, on which one of dummy's clubs was discarded. The time was ripe for me to enter the fray.

"You might have elected to ruff the Five of Diamonds. Not I! I chose to discard another club. West was forced to win and return a diamond—poor soul had nothing else in his hand. I discarded the table's last club while ruffing in hand, and since there was nothing but trumps left on the board, the slam was home."

Send any questions for this column to Charles Goren and Omar Sharif, care of this newspaper. Each week a prize of a copy of the new "Goren's Complete Bridge," a $9.95 value, will be awarded for the question judged to be the best received.

Charles Goren and Omar Sharif personally cannot undertake to answer all questions submitted.

CBS Movie To Deal With Teen Suicide

By Laurie Deans

Mariette Hartley, starring this week in "Silence of the Heart" (airing Oct. 30 on CBS), a dramatic film that lifts the lid off the once-taboo subject of teen suicide, sounded quite out of breath.

"I've been talking to Westchester papers, and Texas papers and Beverly Hills papers," she explains on the phone while cooking dinner at the same time. "It isn't a selfish thing. I want to reach the kids that I think this affects more than anyone. Suicide seems to be virtually an epidemic among white middle-class kids, and they have to be reached."

The statistics, as she pointed out, are frightening: Between 5,000 and 10,000 teenagers a year end their own lives; another 400,000 — a low estimate — try.

"How can one not be affected? Why is it happening and what's going on and what can we do about it?" Miss Hartley asks with the fervor and concern that she says gripped her long before she was approached to do the film.

In fact, Miss Hartley's concern is extremely personal. Her father committed suicide 20 years ago, leaving her with a head full of unanswered questions and unresolved feelings — shock, anger, hurt, denial — and a strong desire to get people to face up to the subject.

One of the biggest problems with suicide is that people don't talk about it. "There is such shame and guilt attached," she says. Teen suicide, she notes, is often covered up, with many intentionalshootings written off as "accidental." The epidemic also differs in some respects from adult suicide. "So much I think is an impulsive rash statement to parents and friends, a huge cry for help.

I don't think they know the finality of it. They don't want to be dead forever; they just want to take a breather."

Miss Hartley believes that television drama is the best way to bring the subject out into the open. "As an actress and a mother and a daughter and a wife, I know of no better way of showing what goes on in a family when suicide hits. I'm sure there are documentaries out on it. But very few people are going to go out and see a film about teen suicide.

Left to right: Mariette Hartley, Dana Hill and Howard Hesseman star in "Silence of the Heart," a film dealing with the devastating effects of a teenager's suicide, airing Tuesday, Oct. 30 on CBS.

Michele Will Tell

DEAR MICHELE: We have been discussing the real names of stars and personalities. We know a few, but there are a few we can't recall. Would you please print the real names of Jack Benny, Kirk Douglas, Mike Wallace, Loretta Swit and Morgan Fairchild? — SUSAN DANIELS

To Susan: Loretta Swit stands alone as the one on your list whose name has remained the same from Day One. Jack Benny was born Benjamin Kubelsky, then went by Ben K. Benny for a time during his vaudeville years. Kirk Douglas, born to Russian immigrant parents, began life as Issur Danielovitch. He later changed his name to Isidore Demsky, and finally settled on Kirk Douglas. Mike Wallace, also of Russian immigrant parentage, was born Myron Wallace in Boston. Morgan Fairchild — Racine on "Paper Dolls" — began life 34 years ago as Patsy McClenny. Speaking of names: How about Rodolfo Alfonzo Raffaele Pierre Philibert Gulielmi? For obvious reasons, he changed his name to Rudolph Valentino.

DEAR MICHELE: I love watching Audie Murphy's old movies on television. Could you please print some information about him, and list a few of his movies? — A. HOWES

To A. Howes: Born June 20, 1924, in Texas, Audie Murphy was the son of sharecroppers. He rose from poverty to fame and fortune, only to die virtually bankrupt. Murphy survived World War II and returned to the States as the war's most decorated GI. He launched a film career in the late 1940's that, over a span of 20-odd years, included such features as "The Kid from Texas," "The Red Badge of Courage," "Hell Bent for Leather," "The Cimarron Kid," and perhaps his most famous screen outing, "To Hell and Back," based on his autobiography. In 1970, he was exonerated of an attempted murder charge following a barroom brawl. One year later, Audie Murphy was dead, the victim of a small-plane crash.

Please address questions to Michele Will Tell, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 2315, Grand Central Station, New York, NY 10163. Because of the volume of mail received, personal replies cannot be sent.

'Sweet Revenge' Is An Unheralded Find

By Robert DiMatteo

One of the liveliest and most provocative made-for-TV movies of the season airs this week unheralded, and dressed in the camouflaged garb of a B-movie. Some people will probably dismiss "Sweet Revenge" (CBS, Oct. 31) as a rambling revenge fantasy in which a ruthless Army career officer (Kevin Dobson) gets his comeuppance from a young major's wife (Kelly McGillis). The movie, which spans 14 years and two major time frames, does cover a lot of ground and allows for plenty of digressions — and that's part of what is unusual and good about it. There's some life underneath the scenes, some sense of texture and behavorial surprise beyond the schematic tendencies of even the most widely praised TV-movies such as "The Burning Bed." "Sweet Revenge" also manages to address the much-debated subject of the violence that arises from the uneasy relations between men and women, and it does so without setting up a simplistic victim-victimizer situation.

Except for the ending scenes, which may be misconceived, this is a compelling little thriller, with a disturbing undercurrent, an intriguingly intricate plot, plenty of atmosphere and an unusually strong cast.

TV Chatter

Linda Lavin, star of CBS's "Alice," will serve as grand marshall of the College of William and Mary homecoming parade this weekend in Williamsburg, Va. A 1959 graduate of the college, Miss Lavin will be attending the homecoming activities in conjunction with her class's 25th anniversary reunion. More than 25,000 people are expected at this year's event.

Kenny Rogers' yearlong drive to collect 1 million pounds of food for the needy surpassed that goal with 40 concerts still left on his schedule. Rogers had launched the drive in memory of singer Harry Chapin, who was active in the world-hunger movement. Concert goers were asked to donate canned goods.

Tony Danza, star of the new ABC series "Who's the Boss?" found out recently who was, when a New York City judge sentenced him to three years probation and 250 hours of community service for assaulting a guard at New York City's Mayflower Hotel. "I feel like a real jerk," Danza complained after his court appearance.

This week's crop of made-for-television movies features Brooke Shields, Tom Byrd, Brian Kerwin and Burgess Meredith in ABC's Sunday Night Movie presentation of "Wet Gold," an adventure tale about a sunken treasure. Gerald McRaney, Heather Locklear, Terence Knox and Peter Mark Richman star in NBC's Sunday Night at the Movies presentation of "City Killer," in which a rejected suitor takes pleasure in terrorizing an entire city and the woman he loves. Valerie Bertinelli, David Morse, Patricia Neal, Caroline McWilliams and Millie Perkins star in NBC's Monday Night at the Movies presentation of "Shattered Vows," an emotional true-life drama of a young nun's decision to leave the convent before taking her final vows. Mariette Hartley, Dana Hill, Howard Hesseman and Charlie Sheen (Martin Sheen's son) star in CBS's Tuesday Night Movie "Silence of the Heart," in which the effect of a teenager's suicide on his family and friends is poignantly portrayed. And Kevin Dobson, Alec Baldwin, Alfre Woodard and Wings Hauser star in the CBS Wednesday Night Movie "Sweet Revenge," in which a sister vows to avenge her brother's betrayer. What a lineup!

Martin Short Finally Makes it To 'SNL'

By Jay Carman

The addition of Martin Short to this season's cast of "Saturday Night Live" represents a nice irony and an even nicer bit of symmetry.

Short is a Canadian, of course, and so was Lorne Michaels, who created the innovative show in 1975 and produced it during its first five years. Michaels was and is an old friend of Short's and also an admirer who did his best to import the popular Toronto comedian to the show.

Michaels almost persuaded him to join "SNL" in 1979.

"He offered me a holding deal in case John Belushi or Danny Aykroyd left," says Short. "I said 'sure, it sounds great,' but then I auditioned for the last series James L. Brooks ("Terms of Endearment") did. It was 'The Associates,' with Wilfred Hyde-White and I just grabbed it."

By the time "The Associates" ended, Michaels had left "SNL," along with its most famous cast members. Things have been iffy ever since for the satirical series.

For the 34-year-old Short, however, things have been little short of fabulous. He rejoined his old pals from Second City on the "SCTV" comedy satire series. There, his imitations of everyone from Jerry Lewis to Jerry Lee Lewis, as well as his ultra-strange invented characters — such as Jackie Rogers Jr. and Ed Grimley — made him a cult favorite all over the continent.

Ex-Pug Danza Faces His Toughest Fight

By Ian Harmer

HOLLYWOOD — Tony Danza's five years as a moonlighting pugilist on "Taxi" and his 12-3 win record as a professional fighter before he doffed his gloves for an acting career make it tough to resist the use of Rocky-style cliches when you talk to him.

So it's no surprise that when ABC Entertainment President Lou Erlicht called Danza at home to discuss the future of his new show, "Who's the Boss?" he asked him, "You must have gone on to win fights after having the &&*! kicked out of you in the first round."

The network has moved the sitcom into a new slot — from Thursdays to Tuesdays, where it airs opposite another new sitcom, CBS's "E/R" and NBC's blockbuster "The A-Team."

Before the new slot was decided upon, Danza's debut as the star of his own series was almost KO'd by NBC's "Family Ties," a once-marginal show that hauled itself out of the ratings cellar and into the high Nielsens by the astonishing success of its lead-in, "The Cosby Show."

"We thought all we had to beat was 'Magnum, P.I.' and since there's only so many times you can watch a guy racing around Hawaii in a fast car, we figured we had a chance," he says.

"Cosby proved we were wrong — he made a hit out of 'Family Ties' as well as his own show and floored us."

A defect of the ratings race is that fine new TV offerings are often summarily axed before the audience has a chance to discover them, but ABC obviously has faith in "Who's the Boss?"

"I learned lessons about comedy from the best teachers in TV in the time I was with 'Taxi,' and I know this show's funny," says Danza, between swigs from his beer bottle in the star commissary at Universal Studios.

"I turned down several other series offers while I was waiting for this to come along, and I'm proud of the work we're doing, he says. "But obviously that doesn't mean a thing if there's no one out there watching us."

Danza's new writers have created a character much smarter than Tony Banta of "Taxi" — a single father who takes on a job as housekeeper-baby sitter to a divorced female executive (Judith Light).

Unwanted Marino Now NFL's Foremost QB

By Lorenzo Carcaterra

He was the one they didn't want. Some scouts said he was too short. Others said he had a tired arm, was burned out from passing Pittsburgh to college victories. A few simply thought he lacked the ability it takes to be an NFL quarterback. Only one man liked what he saw. And nothing that's happened these last two years has made Miami Dolphin head coach Don Shula change his mind one bit about Dan Marino.

Marino, in only his second full season of pro ball, has established himself as the quarterback of the decade. There are better passers (Joe Montana), better readers of opposing defenses (Jim Plunkett), better long ball hurlers (Dan Fouts). But, down the road, in another year, maybe two, Marino will be the best of the lot, the best quarterback in the NFL.

It is a given in pro football that it takes a quarterback at least four years to develop, to hone the skills needed to play the position. Marino moved in after five games last season and started putting points on the board and W's under the Miami win column. So much for givens.

Under Coach Shula's supervision, Marino learned defenses, the intricate Miami offense, how to fend off the blitz and hang the ball. The only thing they didn't have to teach him was how to win. Marino knew how to do that all along.

Along with his lessons, Marino discovered a wonderful wide receiver named Mark "Super" Duper. They have quickly become the Don Meredith-Bob Hayes combination of their generation. The situation repeats itself nearly every week. Close game, second and long, defense in, Marino tosses a 50-yard bomb to Duper for six. It got Miami to the playoffs last year and probably will get them to the Super Bowl this year.

Much of Marino's credit must go to Shula. He took raw talent and shaped it, formed it, defined it, all during the course of a pre-season. The rest Marino handled. He has become a star, confident, mature, determined to win. He is as cool as Johnny Unitas, as quietly cocky as Bob Griese, both of whom were also coached by Shula.

Watch him as he approaches the center. The shoulders flap with near arrogance, the long hair dripping down the back of the helmet a la Joe Namath, the fingers of the right hand shaking to their own cadence. Within seconds he knows the defense, calls the play, gets the snap. The rest is a thing of true NFL beauty. It's a fast drop, a firm stance and a long toss Downfield and deep. Into the arms of Duper. The race to the end zone is short and merciless. The end result is usually a referee with upraised hands. Marino finishes the play on the seat of his uniform, listening to the loud, appreciative roar of the crowd. For the kid quarterback, no one wanted, it will always remain the greatest and sweetest sound in the world.

Cosell honored

Showtime for Asner

Ed Asner has joined the cast of "Tender is the Night," Showtime's first miniseries. The six-hour adaptation of F. Scott Fitzgerald's novel is currently filming in the south of France and Switzerland. Previously announced cast members include Peter Strauss, Mary Steenburgen and Sean Young.

A triple talent

Coffman's
MENS WEAR

One-ply...
Two-ply...

Some suit fabrics are one-ply, others, two-ply. It takes years of experience to tell the difference in quality. But that difference shows up after only a few wearings.

All Coffman's suits are made of two-ply fabrics

Two-ply fabric stands up to years of wear. Our suits don't wrinkle after the first wearing. And there's no bagging that dry cleaning can't restore. Most manufacturers make only one-ply suits; we specify only those who tailor two-ply fabrics.

Fabric quality is hard to recognize in the store. So it makes sense to ask the experts at Coffman's. We take pride in our customer's wardrobes and the quality they experience year after year. Visit us on the mall in downtown Greenville and try on a suit you'll enjoy for years to come.

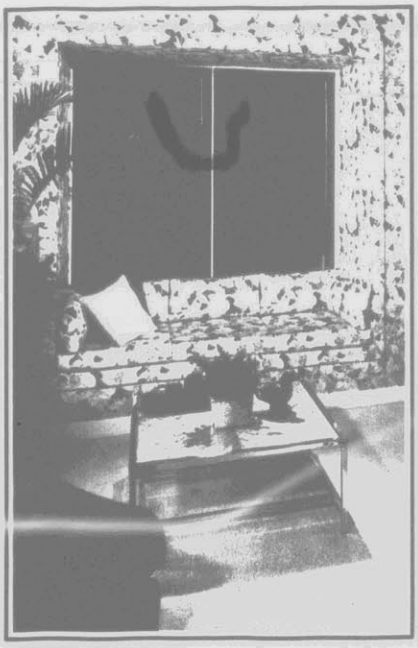
PLEATED SHADES

Versatile Pleated Shades – Permanently pleated polyester shades in hues to complement any color scheme. Sheer and semi-sheer, to let in light and view; or opaque for privacy. These handsome shades are made of aluminized fabrics to help keep summer heat out, winter heat in.

Affordable Flair With

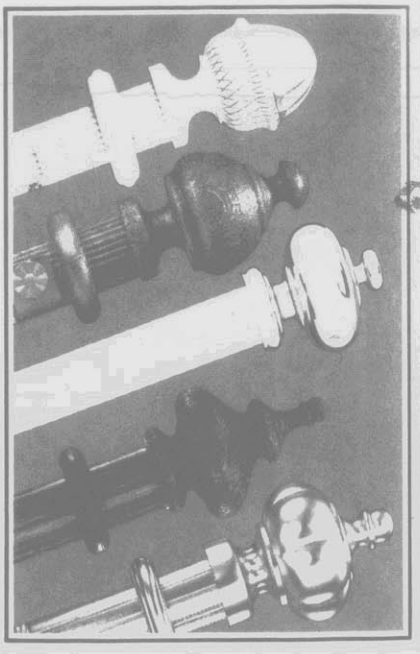


Fashionable Mini-Blinds

Slim-slat blinds in a variety of colors. Stripes are available, too. Tilt closed for privacy, or open for a little or a lot of light. Tempered aluminum slats flex, so if someone pulls them down to peek outside, they'll spring back into position.

Surprising Window Shades

Dull window shades are a thing of the past. Choose from a variety of frolicsome, sophisticated or romantic designs. Fine Swedish fabrics. Metal rollers won't warp, sag or distort the fabric. You can use them alone or as a colorful highlight under fabric panels.

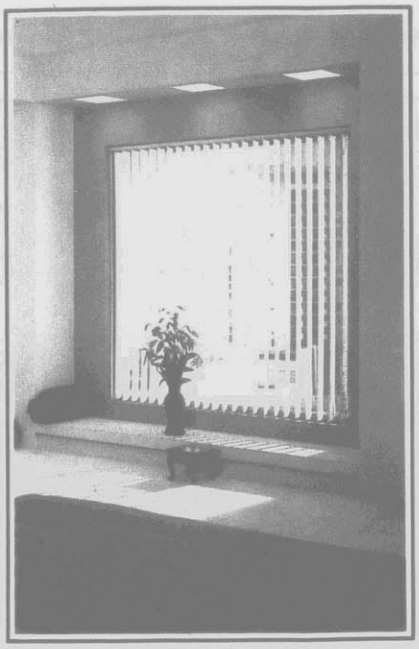


Distinctive Drapery Rods

Rods that work behind the scenes. Rods with show-off style. Decorative traverse rods with the warm look of wood, the elegance of brass or gold, and other favorite finishes.

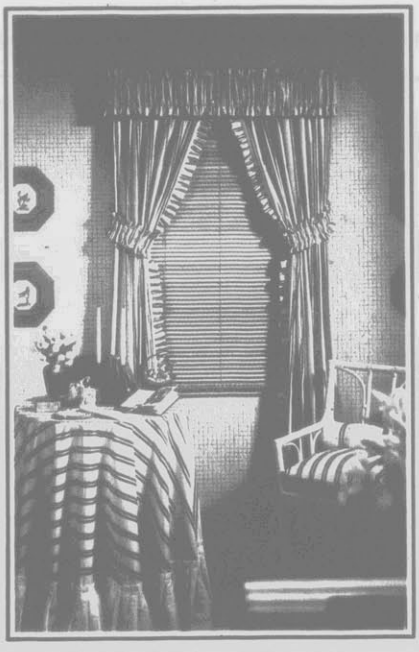
Pole sets give you the choice of hand-drawn draperies or shirred curtains. And the Continental® rod forms its own shirred valance look. Kirsch drapery hardware can unleash your imagination to create your own unique window treatments.

Ideas by Kirsch



Trend-Setting Vertical Blinds

The rare combination of a high-fashion look with downright practicality. Tilt for light control, or draw back like draperies. Offered in a variety of fabrics, weaves and colors – from shimmering sheers to rich knits. All exclusive Kirsch designs to bring your windows to the height of fashion.



Elegant Wood-Slat Blinds

The timeless beauty of natural wood. These blinds give you the look and feel of custom shutters with a more affordable price, easier installation and greater practicality. Twist them shut, the world goes away. Twist them open and the slats almost disappear to let in the view.

Dramatic Woven Woods

Dramatic in the textures and colors available. Dramatic in versatility, too. The Romanette® shade style with its slim headrails goes inside the window, so it can also serve as an undertreatment. And for dramatic savings, see the back page.

For windows that are as well-dressed as you are, the place to start is with Kirsch window fashions.

And the time to start is now, while we're able to offer you these remarkable values.

For 76 years, Kirsch has been the quality name to turn to for dressing up your windows, which is one reason we're proud to be a designated Kirsch window fashion center. We're proud, too, of the fascinating variety of treatments you can choose from. And we're just plain excited about these beautiful savings.

Come in and see for yourself.

KING: HE LIKES LUCCI

Those incredible hulks the Los Angeles Raiders don't just talk football in the locker room. A hot topic for the men in silver and black is Erica, the waywardly evil character played by Susan Lucci on the top-rated ABC soap All My Children. "Erica is horrible," says Raider Howie Long. "If she were a guy instead of the witch she is, she'd be the quintessential Raider." Actually, the Raiders aren't the only team to tune in. "My brother Wilbert [a Philadelphia Eagles running back] watches all the time," says Raider wide receiver Cle Montgomery. Agrees his running back teammate Kenny King: "Almost everybody is into it. The figure has to be 80 percent." And now for the big question: Does Susan Lucci watch Monday Night Football?

Rob Lowe is not exactly riding a box-office wave. Consider the ticket action on his three most recent films: Few checked into Hotel New Hampshire, Class got low marks, and Oxford Blues was something less than socko. Even so, Lowe, 20, is considered a hot property, a situation he finds decidedly puzzling. Indeed, after he finishes his latest projects, Youngblood and St. Elmo's Fire, he's going to take some time off to sort things out. "Unless a great movie comes along," explains Lowe, "I'm going to wait to see how these two do before making any more plans." While he's on leave, don't look for this blue-eyed lad at a chic soirée. "I never want to be better known for what party I showed up for than for my last film," he insists. "Being treated well — here's your table, here's your champagne — I call that sushi and sunglasses. I'd much rather be barefoot in my jeans, hanging out with my friends."

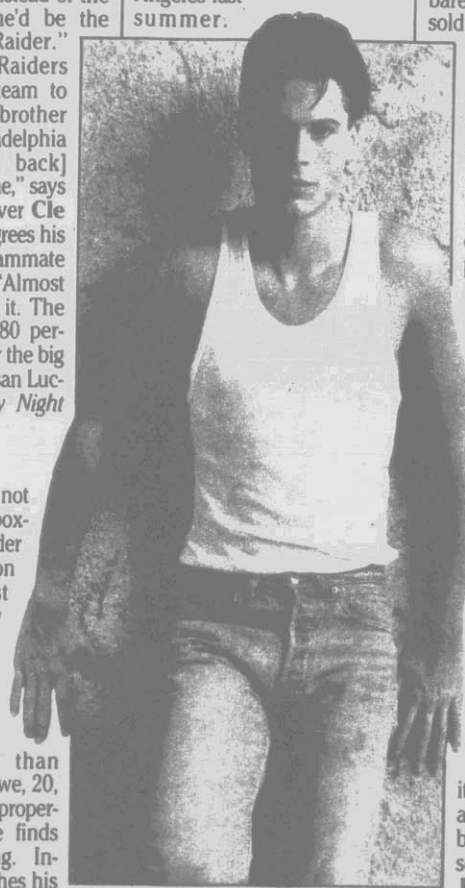
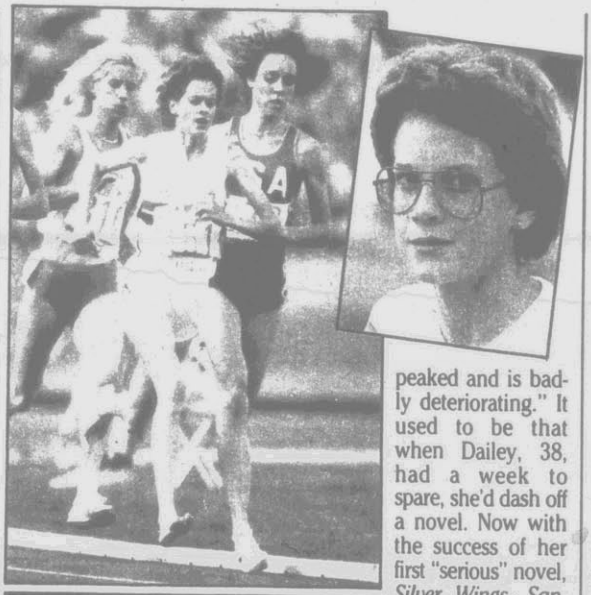
There seems to be a little trouble at the starting blocks for the film about the life of runner Zola Budd. It's not because of the unresolved status of the run-in with American Mary Decker in the 3,000-meter race in Los Angeles last summer.



LOWE: BAREFOOT IN THE DARK



BUDD: TRIPPED UP

The film rights to Brian Vine's biography of the barefoot Olympian have been sold to Anant Singh, an Indian producer who lives in Johannesburg. But production plans have been, um, tripped up by South African red tape, which prohibits Singh from filming in Budd's apartheid hometown. Vine and others are now trying to persuade Singh to shoot in the Nevada desert. As for the cast, Vine guesses: "At one stage someone suggested Tatum O'Neal, but she's not the right shape. I think an unknown will play Zola." And who'll portray the British journalist himself, who helped recruit Budd for the British flag? "Robert Redford should play me," Vine says with a sigh, "but it will probably be Broderick Crawford."

□

Romance. Who needs it? "Mysteries, Westerns and romances will always be around," predicts best-selling romance writer Janet Dailey. "But the romance genre has peaked and is badly deteriorating." It used to be that when Dailey, 38, had a week to spare, she'd dash off a novel. Now with the success of her first "serious" novel, Silver Wings, Santiago Blue, "I'm up to four months," says the Missouri Ozarks resident. Dailey has penned 60 tomes in the 10 years since she began her writing career. An upcoming project for Dailey's electric typewriter: a generational saga set in Alaska. Why Alaska? "I heard James Michener was doing Texas," says Dailey with a laugh.

Fall Guy co-star Heather Thomas, who peeled down to a bikini to pose for three eye-popping posters, has no plans to stay a second banana forever; she wants to direct, write and produce movie scripts "by the time I'm 45." Thomas, 26, claims that "it's ridiculously easy for a good-looking, well-built blonde to get into show business in California — all you need is to meet some sleazeball who wants you to be an extra on his show. The hard part is staying in for any length of time. I still have third billing on The Fall Guy, but I'm happy as a clam. While they keep reshaping my role I'm learning more about the industry and paying the rent."

□

N.C. of Flint, Mich., writes in to ask Larry Manetti, of Magnum, P.I., whether he has an off-screen relationship similar to his buddy-buddy connection with Tom Selleck on the hit series. "I do," says Manetti. "I met a boy named Billy Kent when I was 11. He was standing alone on a playfield. Being English, he was not used to American baseball, and the other kids were making fun of him. I came to his rescue. Now Bill is 6 foot 3, doing well in the construction business, and has no need of rescuers. In fact, he's had to be there for me a couple of times."

KID "ARCHITECTS"

Give 'em space: They're building their future

By Joan Kron

First came the baby boom. Then came the baby's room boom. With the U.S. birth rate higher than it has been for a decade, architecture for children is a growth industry. It seems that in every magazine you pick up, another designer is urging you to decorate "to the max" for kids — cribs with ruffles, walk-in playhouses with "Country Dutch" trim, and roomy beds in the shape of racing cars. But at what point does this decorating boom become a budget buster?

In this age of child-centeredness, there is perhaps nothing more intimidating to parents than being confronted with glossy magazine pictures of elaborately decorated kids' rooms. As if providing one's offspring with a good education weren't enough to worry about, now comes the message that children may be deprived if their play equipment doesn't include playhouses in the shape of fairy-tale castles, Snoopy cabins or Jaba-the-Hut huts.

But the potential buyer had best beware. If your child's play area looks more like a DMZ than Disneyland, there is no need for guilt. In fact, say child psychologists, your children may be better off without these fancy trappings: It's not how much they have. It's how they use what they find around them, and how you allow these budding "architects" to retool their territory.

Yes, playhouses are important, but let your children make their own hideaways out of whatever appropriate materials their imaginations seize upon. The reason: Play is serious business for children. Just as various weightlifting machines build different muscles in adults, different play activities and toys help develop different abilities in a child. Construction projects foster physical, intellectual and perceptual development as well as cooperation skills. They also boost self-confidence and give a child a sense of control and the feeling that "I made this happen."

The benefit of play structures goes beyond the fun of constructing them. "Hidden and secret play spaces are of paramount importance to children of all ages," says Clare Cooper Marcus, a professor of landscape architecture at the University of California at Berkeley who is also an expert on children's play needs. Caves and lofts, nooks and hideaways become places of privacy: child-scaled houses where kids can role-play, fantasize, and imitate the adult world. Having a playhouse that adults can't fit into makes a child feel more in control. These spaces are at once secure and exciting. They feel safe like a womb, yet dangerous like a cave, says noted geographer Yi-Fu Tuan, who has written extensively on the subject.

Playhouses help children gain a sense of individuality and personal identity, a major developmental task. Regulating privacy and controlling other people's access to the self is the very basis of individuality. And this process starts at birth, even though infants seem to have very little control over their privacy. (A perfect example is the scene in the film Terms of Endearment where the mother, played by Shirley MacLaine, hovers continually over her infant daughter's crib to make sure she doesn't stop breathing.)

Despite such adult intrusions, infants manage to get privacy by closing their eyes. They demonstrate desire for independence by wriggling loose from an adult's grasp. "Peekaboo," a game infants love, is one of the earliest rehearsals for privacy and separation. When a child begins to crawl and walk, "peekaboo" gives way to "hide-and-seek," and the hiding place may be the child's first "little house," a space behind the sofa or under a table.

But a little hiding can go a long way with 3- to 5-year-olds. Studies of children's play habits have revealed that tots like to play near their caretakers. Even outside, small children tend to play no further away than the doorways of their homes.

To look at the "super" kids' rooms in magazines, one would think that the children of America were holed up in their bedrooms day and night. In fact, it is usually only parents who prefer to confine their children's play to the bedroom or the designated playroom, which is often in the attic or the basement. When children are young, however, they generally don't like to be imprisoned in their bedrooms; they feel too isolated. They want to be in sight of parents or caretakers. Even children of 7 rarely want to stay in their rooms for more than an hour at a time.

As children mature they are willing to be alone for longer periods. They also need retreats where they can get away from action temporarily, relax, play alone, daydream, read a book without distraction, share a secret with a friend, have a tantrum, observe others, and learn to cope with separation from adults.

When parents want to be alone they go to their favorite chair or stretch out on their beds. Of course, children do this too, but they are much more action-oriented than adults, according to sociologist Laura Climenko Johnson and architect Joel Shack, authors of the forthcoming book Kidspace. Older children prefer retreats that are harder to reach. For kids, the next best thing to equipment that moves (such as swings and seesaws) is equipment that they can move on. It's more fun to jump from pillow to post and climb up to a hiding place, or crawl on the stomach and scrunch down into the well under a table.

Don Hunstein

Charles M. Rafshoon/Pictorial Parade

Because children spend so much of their time indoors in inclement weather, and because not all children have a backyard to build in, it's important to provide them with opportunities to build and inhabit structures indoors as well as outside.

Few homes, however, are set up for active indoor play. In a study of private homes in Toronto that offered day care for children, Johnson and Shack found that most homes offer places for quiet play, but not for loud, messy, or active play.

In Kidspace, which grew out of their day-care study, Johnson and Shack advise that children should never be given a completed play structure. The less finished, the better. It is the parent's job to provoke a child's creativity and imagination. "The parent has to get the child started, build the initial framework, and supply an inventory of loose parts such as rope, a ladder, blankets, sheets, and foam mattresses," says Shack, who was the chief designer of the Children's Village at Ontario Place, a Toronto amusement park.

Inside or out, Joel Shack believes that there is a primal need for children to have both caves and lofts to play in. And both can be had without hiring architects. The makings of a play hideaway exist in every home, and its cost and aesthetic quality have nothing to do with its value to a child. A 23-year-old whose parents could have afforded to provide him with the most costly play equipment fondly recalls his favorite childhood playhouse: a huge carton that the washing machine came in.

If parents don't provide hideaways, children usually create them themselves, improvising by throwing a blanket over a chair or a card table. They can make a playhouse in a window seat, an alcove, the cramped space at the bottom of a stairwell, the space under a desk, even in a corner, which philosopher Gaston Bachelard called "a germ of a room, or of a house." One little girl discovered a satisfying playhouse — close to Mom — by swinging the kitchen door into the dining room and playing house in the space behind it.

Boxes, cupboards and closets are ready-made hideouts. In the film E.T., The Extraterrestrial, the children made a playhouse out of their bedroom closet and peopled it with their dolls. In The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe, one of the Narnia tales by C.S. Lewis, a wardrobe is used in the same way as Alice's looking glass, as the magic entrance to a fantasy land.

If children are playing in a closet, however, parents must make certain that the door can be opened from the inside and that there is an interior light they can control. Young children tend to be afraid of the dark, and playing in cave-like places where they have a choice of light or darkness helps them conquer this fear. Remember, though, to keep your children away from such dangerous spaces as old refrigerators and car trunks.

Building a safe loft requires more adult assistance than caves do, but it is well worth parental effort. Children love to climb and perch on different levels and see the world from different vantage points. The lofty hideaway has the added advantage of being accessible only to the person daring enough to climb up to it. Older boys often use heights to deter younger children and girls from reaching their digs. One devious trick that big kids employ is to make the rungs on the ladders leading up to their tree houses so far apart that smaller children cannot reach them.

No matter where kids' hideaways are, parents should be prepared to tolerate a "design sense" different from their own. By the time the kids tie on the inner tubes, rope ladders, torn sheets, and their hand-lettered signs, the whole structure may look more like a squatter's hut than world-class architecture. Take the case of Robby Van Pelt, a Richmond, Va., budding residential designer. In 1981, when he was 13, he had a run-in with neighbors and local housing inspectors over his playhouse, a three-story mini-house complete with electricity, wall-to-wall carpets, and furniture — all built and installed by the young man. Robby's mother was more understanding. "This was a child's fantasy that just kept going," she said, seeming not in the least perturbed by it.

If we want our children to grow up without having their creativity squelched, we may have to put up with their inelegant creations when they are young. But it's certainly preferable to investing in a miniature fairy-tale castle that the kids ignore in favor of an old cardboard box. FW

THE PLOTS THICKEN AT THE WHODUNIT SHOPS

Crrreeeeeakkk! The door swings open on the Scene of the Crime, revealing antique-style bottles labeled "strychnine," toy bats (with wings), a trick fireplace topped with a replica of a Maltese falcon, and a human skeleton. Parked outside is a black van with velvet upholstery and California license plates that read "ARSENIC."

Aha! You've come upon a likely suspect, caught him red-handed, reaching for a. . . book? Yes, behind the drawn lace curtains of this building in the section of Los Angeles known as Sherman Oaks is a bookstore stocked floor to rafters with thrillers, mysteries and detective novels. The meat cleaver dangling from the ceiling puts a damper on the impulses of shoplifters.

And while the Shadow may know what evil lurks in the hearts of men, it's a woman who runs this whodunit haven: Ruth Windfeldt, who suddenly materializes from the back room. Her hair is swept up in a huge bird's nest, and her fingernails seem to drip with red. "It's a modified Gibson," she says about her hair. "I've always worn it this way. And I've always read mysteries. So has my family. They're from Hungary — Transylvania."

Granted, Transylvania is Dracula country, but California has spawned many of the top mystery writers in America, among them James M. Cain, Ross Macdonald, Raymond Chandler and Dashiell Hammett. "There's something about L.A.," muses Windfeldt. "I suppose it's Hollywood, the old Hollywood during the time Chandler was writing in the '30s, '40s and '50s. You have everything here. It's as if Chandler used his mysteries to cross all the levels of society from the very wealthy to the bums on the street."

Los Angeles, then, was the natural place for Californian Windfeldt to set up shop with her husband, Al. Since they opened the Scene nine years ago, their stock has grown to 15,000 titles, including entire shelves of Agatha Christie and Arthur Conan Doyle.

They took their cue from what was perhaps the first bookstore fully devoted to mystery novels: Murder Ink. in Manhattan, founded in 1972 by Dilys Winn, who edited the best-selling anthology of the same name (published by Workman). According to Robert Mecoy, an editor at Dell, mystery literature has always satisfied a basic need for order in people's lives. "Real life is a mess," he says. "Mysteries have a beginning, a middle and an end. You always find out who did it."

Crime novels do pay. Shops like the Windfeldts' are sprouting up all over the world. In addition to several in the United States, there are three stores in France, two in Canada, and one in Australia.

Business is so good at the Scene of the Crime that Windfeldt is opening a tearoom. She promises not to mix truth with fiction on her menus. "The tearoom will be like the store," she says. "We'll educate people about the joys of sherry. But you just can't say you're serving arsenic." —Mary Reinholz

GETTING PERSONAL WITH

MARIETTE HARTLEY

SHE'S NOT MRS. JAMES GARNER BUT SHE'S STILL SPEAKING UP

She spouted Shakespeare at 10, has appeared in more than 150 TV shows and 10 films, performs regularly in Los Angeles theater productions, and last year starred in her own TV series, Goodnight, Beantown. But Mariette Hartley is probably best known as the wise-cracking "wife" of James Garner in those memorable Polaroid commercials. A sidekick no longer, the 43-year-old actress stars in this Tuesday's CBS movie Silence of the Heart, a film that explores teenage suicide and its effect on the family left behind. Suicide is not an unfamiliar subject to Hartley — her father took his own life when she was 20. But her real-life husband, director Patrick Boyriven, and their two children, Sean, 9, and Justine, 6, provide a strong and happy foundation for her at their home in California. Mariette took time out of her hectic schedule to speak with FAMILY WEEKLY Reporter-Researcher Cornelia Kennedy about her new film role, her roller-coaster career, and the family that holds it all together.

Doug Kirkland/Sygma

Kennedy: You must be tired of people asking you if you're James Garner's wife. Are you glad you did the commercials?

Hartley: Oh yes. I get tired of it now, but toward the end of the commercials we found that the tables started to turn and people started to ask Jim if he was Mr. Mariette Hartley! I consider it a major victory! I loved it, though. It enabled me to work for 16 days a year and then be with my family the rest of the year, and that was wonderful. It also gave the country a window to my sense of humor, which I don't think they'd had before, even though I'd done comedy all my life. It was the most painless way to re-enter acting. I have to be really careful about what I do now. I'm a firm believer that where one door closes, another bigger one opens. My slow climb back to acting success has been steady and solid, and I'm very happy about that.

Q: Silence of the Heart deals with an explosive issue that is very close to you personally. Was the movie difficult for you to do?

Hartley: It was a very draining experience for me. I was glad that it was over at the end, because of that. But my prayer was that it will affect lives. That's what we were trying for, to make people aware. There is such a rash of it [teenage suicide] going on, and no one has been able to isolate what is causing this epidemic. The time was right to do this movie.

Q: How old were you when you started acting?

Hartley: I started when I was 10 with marionettes, which is why it was such a joy for me to work with the Muppets, because [Jim Henson and the others] are my gods! Then I began studying Shakespeare. I just loved the challenge, but at that age I was very intimidated and frightened.

Q: You have done so many diverse things in your career. Where would you like to go from here?

Hartley: I'd love to do a great feature film or a Broadway play. I've done films, but they've never had terrific distribution — they've all ended up in the air, you know, TWA, Eastern, United.... But theater is my real meat, my real nourishment, my church! If I didn't have that I'd go nuts.

Q: How do you manage to juggle such a busy career — acting, chairing important committees like SOJURN [for battered wives] — with the responsibilities of your family?

Hartley: I spend a lot of time at home now, and one of the things that I've found keeps this family together is that month and a half during the summer that we go away together. There's no TV, no phones, nothing mechanical. We play cards, scuba dive, swim, ride bikes: things that keep our family together. We demand it. One of the things that was so devastating about the research we did for the movie was that kids apparently don't eat with their families; they don't have that dinner hour. One of the happiest times for us is that dinner hour or that breakfast hour, when you catch up and laugh or giggle or talk.

Q: Your career has taken ups and downs. Do you think you've missed important opportunities?

"My slow climb back to success has been steady and solid, and I'm very happy about that."

Hartley: When I first came to L.A., I was an instant star. But my life kind of fell out from under me and I couldn't get back on my feet. It's taken me a long time to get back into those waters of success. I'm glad in a way that I didn't peak too early, because I have so much more to give now, I'm in such an ideal situation now, and I've got the rest of my life ahead of me. I've learned so much having nine lives.... I really feel like I've had nine careers. I feel the Lord or the Universe or however all that works has been very gentle with me.

Q: What would you say your single biggest achievement has been?
Hartley: My family, my children. Because of their support and love, the work that I have begun to do internally as an actress is coming across in my roles. My two lives go hand-in-hand. I finally have the courage to treat the camera like a friend, because I live with friends. I'm very proud of them; we've worked very hard in a lot of tough ways. Often you have to make decisions you're not prepared to make at all as a parent. My son's best friend died when he was 5, and it was one of the toughest things that our family has had to live through. I've been in therapy on and off for a long time because of things that have happened in my life.... It never occurred to me that my son might need that at 5! We finally had to do it to help all of us get through this, and it saved all of our lives. Those are the kinds of things that families have to face together, to give the child the best thing for him at that time; whether you're terrified of doing it or not: It's a releasing process, a letting go. And if nothing [else] can teach you that, a family does. FW

IT WORKS SO FAST!

An Amazing New Diet Discovery

"Just imagine! Now at last, you can have the body of your dreams!"

Dear Friend,

My name is Sandra Brooks. I am a diet counselor and I have been working in Costa Mesa, California for 5½ years, and I am writing to ask you a personal favor.

If you will do this favor for me, you will be helping me with my work and I will gladly pay you for your help.

Here is what it is all about. As a diet counselor I do a lot of research on different ways to lose weight and recently I really hit the jackpot. It all started when I read a headline in a national magazine that said:

BURNS AWAY MORE BODY FAT EACH DAY THAN 15 HOURS OF NON-STOP EXERCISE!

The story underneath that headline was incredible. It told about an amazing diet pill that has now been tested by 500,000 men and women. According to the announcement, this pill, when used with a certain "Crash-Loss" wonder diet, can produce a weight loss of up to 1 pound every 8 to 12 hours and a loss of 1½ to 2 pounds each day. Not only that, the announcement also indicated you could burn away fat:

- Up to 4 TIMES FASTER than running 20 to 25 miles a week!
- Up to 7 TIMES FASTER than over 2 hours of sit-ups or push-ups!
- Up to 15 to 22 TIMES FASTER than a 30-minute non-stop weight-lift workout!

Could all this be true? I had to find out. After more reading I soon discovered that this pill contains an amazing formula that has been used by several other companies who have also reported extraordinary results. For example, one company talks about a woman who, using this same formula, lost 16 pounds in just 7 days and says that doctors have praised this incredible tablet as the best diet pill ever. Another company says this formula, when used with their program, lets people feel extremely vibrant and energetic and, at the same time, it said you can:

- Shrink millions of fat cells in the first 24 hours.
- Melt off up to 10 pounds in 4 days
- Burn away up to 16 pounds in the first week
- Drop up to 24 pounds in 14 days
- Continue losing 30, 40, 50 and up to 100 pounds and more

Naturally, reading all these claims got me very excited because I am always on the lookout for new ways to help my clients lose weight. Also, it was very encouraging that so many different companies were reporting these dramatic results and that each company was using a pill that contains the exact same active ingredient.

Anyway, to make a long story short I took all of this information (and some of the pills) to THE AMERICAN DIET ASSOCIATION and I started to work with them on a program to make this formula even more effective. The results have been amazing. Our new product is called FAST-TRIM and it works like a miracle. FAST-TRIM is an all-out fat-fighting weapon that is both safe and very powerful! FAST-TRIM contains three fantastic tools to help you lose. They are:

1. A diet pill with the exact same active ingredient that has been used by the other companies mentioned earlier.
2. Another pill that works to flush out excess water so you can get an immediate start on looking thin.
3. A unique program that I personally developed that works extremely well with or without the extra help a diet pill can provide.

Altogether, I believe this product is the best thing on the market. It truly gives you the best of both worlds. It is designed to allow you to comfortably reduce your calorie intake in order to provide ultimate fat destruction and, astounding as it may seem, you will:

- Never miss a meal
- Never starve yourself
- Never torture yourself with exercise

Why am I so excited about this product? The answer is easy. You see, although I can't vouch for the results achieved by other companies (I only know what I read), I can definitely vouch for all the facts in my own personal "success story." It's hard to believe now, but not long ago I actually weighed 389 pounds. And back then, when I was so heavy and just learning how to lose weight I didn't even have what I now call "The Pill" to help me!

But those days (thank God!) are gone forever. I now weigh only 112 pounds! Yes, it's true. I have actually lost 277 pounds and I did it in only 13 months. This is an average loss of 21.3 pounds per month and, during the first four months, I lost an average of more than nine pounds per week every single week! By the way, I have also lost:

- 37 INCHES OFF MY HIPS
- 36 INCHES OFF MY WAIST
- 5½ INCHES OFF MY CALVES
- 18¼ INCHES OFF MY THIGHS AND EVEN
- 2½ INCHES OFF MY FOREARMS!

How much will you lose? Nobody can say for sure. It all depends on your individual metabolism, your current weight-level and a number of other factors. My case is unusual because I had so much to lose. However, when you begin to use the FAST-TRIM program, you can actually expect to measure the difference in your waistline in the first 48 hours! In fact, you will probably lose more inches each week than if you did hundreds of sit-ups every day. Not only that, if you are like some of my most successful clients, you may very well lose as much as 3 to 5 inches off your waistline in the very first month and, if you are a woman, you may lose as much as a full dress size in only 7 days.

And don't forget, the FAST-TRIM program gives you my system plus that amazing diet pill plus the aforementioned pill that flushes out excess tissue water. All in all, FAST-TRIM may be the most comprehensive and effective fat-burning method ever developed. There are no painful exercises, no starvation diets and no gimmicks. FAST-TRIM is a unique system and two amazing tablets that, when used together, make up a program, that, quite simply, works like crazy!

ABOUT SANDRA BROOKS

Sandra Brooks is a diet counselor in Costa Mesa, California. In addition to her 2500 private clients, she also works with The California Department of Corrections and she has helped hundreds of prison inmates achieve a new self respect by losing their excess weight and keep it off. Sandra herself has lost 277 pounds and she did it with her own (self-developed) system in only 13 months. Her amazing story has been written up in several national publications and read by more than 25 million (25,000,000) people.

And now I want to spread the word. I want every overweight person and every medical doctor in the world to know about FAST-TRIM. What I need is proof and this is where you can help. And, as I said before, I will be more than happy to repay you for your help.

So therefore, here is what I would like you to do. If you or any member of your family is overweight, I would like you to go ahead and order the FAST-TRIM program (it is sold by THE AMERICAN DIET ASSOCIATION) and start using it and see if it works for you.

Now, as I said before, because everybody is different, nobody can guarantee how much or how fast you will lose. However, THE AMERICAN DIET ASSOCIATION is so positive about FAST-TRIM they are making the following guarantee:

IF YOU HAVE NOT LOST UP TO 6 POUNDS IN THE FIRST 48 HOURS AND UP TO 12 POUNDS IN THE FIRST WEEK, IF YOU ARE NOT 100% SATISFIED — THEN SEND BACK THE EMPTY PRODUCT CONTAINER AND THE COMPANY WILL RETURN YOUR ENTIRE PAYMENT TO YOU QUIETLY AND WITHOUT QUESTIONS!

The price is just $19.95 plus $2.00 postage and handling (Total $21.95) for a full 30-day supply with complete instructions. A 60-day supply is $39.95 and, if you order this amount, the company will pay all costs for handling and shipping.

VITAL NOTE

PLEASE FOLLOW THE INSTRUCTIONS BELOW TO RECEIVE YOUR FREE SUPPLY OF THIS AMAZING DIET SYSTEM.

It is easy to order. Just write your name and address and the words "FAST-TRIM" on a piece of paper and send it with your payment to:

THE AMERICAN DIET ASSOCIATION
1666 Newport Blvd., Dept. SB-237
Costa Mesa, CA 92627

Checks and money orders should be made payable to THE AMERICAN DIET ASSOCIATION and credit card orders can be handled by phone. If you live in California, just dial (714) 631-4170 and tell the person who answers how much you want to order. After that, give her the number of your MasterCard or Visa and the expiration date. If you live outside California, you can call our toll-free number which is (800) 854-6917.

That's all there is to it. Your order will be shipped promptly. After that, you are the only judge. If you are not 100% satisfied, simply return the empty-product container and THE AMERICAN DIET ASSOCIATION will refund your entire purchase price with no questions whatsoever.

Obviously, however, to take a risk like this, the company has to be pretty sure you are going to be much more than satisfied. Actually, in fact, I believe you are going to be amazed!

Anyway, if I am correct, I want you to write me a letter. Send the letter to THE AMERICAN DIET ASSOCIATION, marked to my attention. In the letter tell me how much weight you have lost (please include actual before and after figures) and how you feel about the FAST-TRIM program.

In return for this favor I will immediately (as soon as I get your letter!) send you another supply of these special diet tablets (and the special water pills) and I will send them absolutely free!

The amount I will send you will be the same amount you order now from the company. Therefore, in your letter, be sure to tell me how much you originally ordered. The free tablets I will send you will be my way of thanking you and repaying you for your help. You see, with your help, and the help of other nice people like yourself, I honestly feel that, in the long run, I can do a lot to ease the suffering of people who have been struggling for years with a weight problem.

Sincerely,

Sandra Brooks

Diet Counselor

IMPORTANT NOTICE

As your weight begins to plummet you should use your good judgment and not let yourself become too thin. Normal directions suggest taking 4 tablets each day. However, if you are losing weight too fast (more than 10 pounds a week), reduce the tablets to only 2 per day.

PLEASE READ THIS

All effective diet programs cause you to lower caloric intake which is essential to the reduction of fat and body weight. Naturally, the incredible results described on this page may not be achieved solely by the use of the tablets. You must use the entire program for fastest results. Also, even though this program is extremely effective it is still safe. However, before beginning this or any other weight loss program, you should check with your physician to make sure you are in normal health. Individuals being treated for high blood pressure or depression or who have heart disease, diabetes or thyroid disease should only use as directed by their physician.

The Ladies' Home Journal Centennial Doll

EMILY

Inspired by the very first doll ever featured by the Ladies' Home Journal, an heirloom doll of hand-painted bisque porcelain, beautifully costumed in rich velvets and delicate lace.

Reservation Deadline: December 31, 1984.

Since 1884, we've been bringing fashion, news and insights to American women everywhere. And today, we are proud to still be one of America's best-loved magazines.

Now, to celebrate our 100th anniversary, we at the Ladies' Home Journal are pleased to announce the issue of a unique commemorative. A limited edition centennial doll which we believe will be of special interest to doll collectors everywhere.

Inspired by the very first doll ever featured by the Journal, "Emily—The Ladies' Home Journal Centennial Doll" is a creation as engaging as it is lovely. One which combines the charm of that gentler, bygone era with the special significance of an important anniversary issue.

Exquisitely handcrafted in a time-honored tradition

Fashioned in the tradition of the famous nineteenth-century bisque collector dolls, this beautiful new creation carries the dollmaker's art to a level of perfection rarely encountered today. For, like those cherished dolls, "Emily" is sculpted with meticulous attention to each and every detail of her hand-painted bisque porcelain head and hands. Costumed in a beautifully tailored dress of consummate elegance, carefully designed to authentically recreate the fashions of 1884.

From the lush velvet bow atop her flowing brunette hair . . . to the party frock, tailored of rich forest green velvet, edged with delicately embroidered lace . . . right down to her cotton stockings and high-button shoes . . . "Emily" is the very vision of loveliness. All dressed up in her party best to celebrate the occasion.

Attractively priced

Although you might expect to pay much more for a collector doll of comparable size and quality, "Emily" is modestly priced at $125. And, in keeping with its important commemorative status, this centennial doll will be issued in a single limited edition, available only during this anniversary year. After December 31, 1984, the doll will never be offered again.

FRANKLIN HEIRLOOM DOLLS

Each imported doll will be crafted for us by Franklin Heirloom Dolls. And, in the tradition of the finest collector dolls, "Emily" will bear both the distinguishing mark of Franklin Heirloom Dolls and the legend "Ladies' Home Journal Centennial 1984." In addition, each doll will be accompanied by a Certificate of Authenticity, attesting to its status as a limited edition centennial year issue.

Wherever you choose to display her, "Emily" will make a charming addition to your home. And an important one as well. For, here is a limited edition doll of unusual significance. A beautiful tribute to 100 years of the Ladies' Home Journal—and a collector doll possessing all the qualities of a future heirloom.

No payment is required now. But your application should be returned to Franklin Heirloom Dolls, Franklin Center, PA, by December 31, 1984 at the very latest.

LEWIS BERMAN'S MONTHLY COLUMN

THE HEARTBREAK OF LOSING YOUR ANIMAL

A client who lost his Scottish Terrier once wrote me a note that said, "There is only one great sadness in owning a pet: It usually doesn't outlive you."

When my cat Mitchell died, I walked the streets of New York thinking, "How could this possibly have happened to me?" Mitchell was 12 when he contracted a stomach disease. I remember the month — January — because I can still picture him at our Christmas party only weeks before, his front paws on the coffee table, caught in the act of nibbling on the crabmeat intended for the guests.

Pets satisfy enormous emotional needs in our lives. Within a family they often function as children. They need our love and care. They bring us a youthful joy. When they die we may have feelings approaching the bereavement following the death of a child.

People who lose their pets lose a part of themselves. A pet is often associated with poignant phases and events in our lives. How we love the dog who befriended us throughout our childhood, or the cat who stayed by our side when we were lonely on a New Year's Eve! It's normal to feel grief.

Very often the grief unfolds in stages much like those that come with the death of a beloved person: denial, (misplaced) anger, guilt, depression, and eventually, acceptance and resolution.

Grief that lingers can lead to a crippling depression. In extreme cases one may need to seek professional help, from the family doctor, a religious counselor, or a therapist who specializes in the area of studies called the human-companion animal bond. Your veterinarian can probably recommend a good therapist.

As a veterinarian I find great joy in being a healer; absolutely none in acting as an undertaker. I hate to see anyone's animal die. So many painful memories linger: of Daisy, Jacqueline Onassis' stalwart Pekingese dog, convulsing in my arms because of the neurological disease that led to her death; of Laurie, Otto Preminger's fun-loving French poodle, whom I could not rescue from a disease of the mouth.

Putting an animal to sleep is an option of last resort. I recommend that you try everything you possibly can to prolong your pet's life — within reason. There are times when our knowledge commands us to end an animal's suffering and to allow it to die with dignity. Such decisions must be made carefully, with the guidance of a veterinarian. When an animal is suffering from an incurable disease and the quality of its life has completely deteriorated, I may be forced to say, "Your pet's time has come. Be kind to him: let me put him to sleep."

Such was my advice many years ago to my in-laws, whose 16-year-old Golden Retriever, Kai, had been devastated by a string of serious illnesses. He was crippled by arthritis and had to be carried to the backyard to perform his basic functions. Kai's suffering had become a source of great unhappiness to all of us, especially to the dog himself. I explained to my in-laws, as I do to all of my clients, that euthanasia assures the pet a painless death. A high concentration of a barbiturate solution (sodium pentobarbital) is injected into the animal, and within 10 seconds it is dead.

I believe that children should be told the truth about the deaths of their pets. When I began practicing 25 years ago parents would ask me to tell their children a dog had gone to a dog farm or a boarding home. Thankfully such misguided protection is long past! Imagine how distrustful of adults a child might become upon discovering that the animal was actually dead.

There are some wonderful ways to memorialize your pet. After cremation you can have the animal's ashes returned in an urn. Or you can establish a memorial fund in your pet's name by sending a contribution of any amount to the Morris Animal Foundation in Englewood, Colo. The money will be used according to your specification: either to study the illness that took your pet's life, or toward general research designed to better all animals' lives.

At the risk of sounding trite, remember that eventually you will overcome your grief. Sometimes a new pet can help. Much as I still miss Mitchell, I have new joys in my life: my dog Daisy, my cats Petey and Spike, and of course the animals I care for every day. And, like most people, I have emerged from the sad experience a stronger person who has learned a great lesson: how to cope with the loss of a loved one. PW

WHIZ QUIZ

WHAT YOUR HUMOR SAYS ABOUT YOU

TRUE OR FALSE

1. A humorous response can rescue you from almost any embarrassing situation.
2. Jokes that make fun of men are judged funnier by most people than jokes that make fun of women.
3. The better a child's sense of humor, the better that child will get along with his parents and with other family members.
4. A sense of humor enables you to find more things in life to laugh at, but it won't help you deal with the pressures of everyday life.

ANSWERS

1. True. In a study conducted at Michigan State University and Florida State University, behavioral scientists found that humor can usually serve as a face-saving device as well as a way to avoid losing one's composure when something embarrassing happens.
2. False. A team of San Diego State University investigators enlisted a panel of 51 male and 57 female undergraduates and had them rate a series of jokes, some that poked fun at men, others that poked fun at women. Both the male and female students rated the jokes that ridiculed men as less humorous than those directed at women. The researchers also found that both sexes believed women have a greater capacity to laugh at themselves than men, whose self-images might not tolerate such humor.
3. False. In a study entitled "The Family Relationships of Humor-Oriented Adolescents," a team of specialists at Vanderbilt University divided their subjects into three groups: those who, according to their peers, seldom did or said anything funny; those who tried to be funny occasionally, but usually weren't; and those who had a real sense of humor. The subjects were then rated on a "Family Environment Scale," a 90-item true-false test that assesses an individual's perception of his or her family. The results: In all cases, the subjects who were thought to have a sense of humor felt more distant from their families and more likely to come into conflict with them. Similar studies have noted that humorous people tend to be non-conformists and are also more resistant to authority, more assertive and more influential. Such people are also likely to feel misunderstood by their parents.
4. False. Researchers at the University of California examined the role of laughter as a stress reducer. A six-week study showed that students who were faced with pressures from exams, academic competition and financial and social matters were much better able to handle these stresses when they were taught the physiological and psychological benefits of laughter, and learned "to take life less seriously and laugh at themselves more frequently." A study at the University of Waterloo provided additional evidence that a well-developed sense of humor and the ability to see the lighter side of life reduces the harmful effects of stressful experiences. — John E. HAPPY HALLOWEEN

A SPELL-BINDING CAULDRON OF DELIGHTS

By Marilyn Hansen

Black cats and the dark of the moon; there's nothing quite like Halloween to bring out the imp in all of us. Jean-Michel Savoca and Boyce Brawley of Breadline Catering in New York City have brewed up some bewitching recipes with a Transylvanian flavor. So get out your cauldrons, summon all your favorite ghouls and goblins, and conjure up a Halloween party that's a real thriller. Recipes can be halved to serve a family of four.

HALLOWEEN MENU

*Vampire Punch
*Jack O'Lantern Soup
*Chicken Transylvania
Buttered Noodles
*Sautéed Cinnamon Apples
Mixed Greens - Assorted Rolls
*Floating Meringue Ghosts

VAMPIRE PUNCH

1 cup sugar
1 cup water
1 (20-oz.) can pineapple chunks in juice, undrained
1 qt. hulled fresh strawberries or 2 (10-oz.) pkgs. frozen
1 qt. cranberry juice
Juice of 2 oranges
Juice of 2 lemons
1 qt. club soda, chilled
2 cups crushed ice

1. In saucepan bring sugar and water to a boil, stirring until sugar dissolves. Cool.
2. In large bowl, combine pineapple, strawberries, and juices. Chill.
3. Add cooled sugar syrup to fruit mixture. Refrigerate. Just before serving, add club soda and ice. Makes 8 (2-cup) servings

JACK O'LANTERN SOUP

4 cups milk
2 cups mashed pumpkin
1 tablespoon unsalted butter or margarine
2 tablespoons brown sugar
Dash ground nutmeg
Dash ground cinnamon
Pinch saffron (optional)

1. In a large saucepan, scald milk.
2. Gradually add pumpkin to milk. Add butter, brown sugar and spices; heat, stirring constantly, on medium-low heat. May be served hot or chilled from a tureen or hollowed-out pumpkin.

Makes 8 (¾-cup) servings

CHICKEN TRANSYLVANIA

6 tablespoons unsalted butter
2 large onions, sliced
4 teaspoons sweet paprika
4 lbs. boned chicken breasts, split
2 cups chicken broth
1 cup Madeira wine
2 teaspoons tarragon leaves
Salt and pepper, to taste
1 pt. sour cream

1. In a large skillet, melt butter. Add onions and saute, stirring until onions turn light golden. Add paprika and stir well.
2. Add chicken and brown on both sides. Stir in broth, Madeira and tarragon. Taste sauce; season with salt and pepper.
3. Heat to the boiling point, reduce heat, and simmer, covered, 20-25 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat and stir in sour cream. Serve on buttered noodles if desired.

Makes 8 servings

SAUTEED CINNAMON APPLES

8 Rome Beauty apples
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup unsalted butter or margarine
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
½ cup raisins
¼ cup Calvados or applejack (apple brandy)

1. Core apples and cut into thin slices.
2. In a large skillet, melt butter over medium heat. Add apples. Sprinkle with remaining ingredients. Saute, stirring, 10-15 minutes or until apples are tender.

Makes 8 servings

FLOATING MERINGUE "GHOSTS"

6 eggs, separated
½ cup plus 6 tablespoons sugar, divided
Dash salt, or to taste
1 qt. milk
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
⅓ cup raisins

1. In large bowl beat egg yolks slightly. Add ½ cup sugar and salt.
2. In saucepan scald milk; slowly pour into beaten eggs, whisking rapidly as you pour.
3. Pour custard mixture into top part of double boiler placed over hot, but not boiling, water. Keep water simmering, and stir custard constantly until it begins to thicken.
4. Remove from heat and cool. Stir in lemon rind; pour into shallow baking dish.
5. Preheat oven to 500° F. Whip egg whites until stiff. Whipping constantly, very slowly add 6 tablespoons sugar and vanilla.
6. Spoon egg whites into 8 large balls and float on top of custard. Decorate each with raisins to form eyes and a smile.
7. Place custard dish in a pan of cold water and put the whole into preheated oven for 1-2 minutes, long enough to brown the tips of the meringue. Serve at room temperature or chilled. Makes 8 servings

"Vitamin Side Effects Revealed!"

(Atlanta, GA) —

FC&A, a nearby Peachtree City, GA, company announced today the release of a new $5.99 book, "Vitamin Side Effects Revealed".

It reveals surprising side effects and other secrets about vitamins . . . facts that aren't generally known by the public. Read on through this interview with FC&A President, Frank K. Wood.

Answer: Yes, two vitamins can actually be harmful in high doses. Other vitamins can sometimes cause diarrhea, dizziness, sleepiness, depression, upset stomach, cramps, high blood pressure, fear, ringing sounds or poor heart function.

Even so, the good effects of vitamins outweigh the bad effects. But you must know what vitamins you need and how much to take. That's why you need my new book.

Answer:

- How you can get vitamins for free.
- Not one but two vitamins which can help fight hardening of the arteries, and coronary heart disease.
- Two minerals that help protect against cancer.
- A vitamin that helps protect against schizophrenia.
- Two minerals and a vitamin that can combat osteoporosis, which causes the collapse of the backbone in older women.
- Two minerals that can help lower high blood pressure.
- A mineral that helps regulate blood sugar levels.
- A vitamin that helps heal wounds or surgical incisions.
- A vitamin that helps increase fertility.
- A vitamin that protects against sunburn.
- A vitamin that helps fight viruses.
- A vitamin that helps prevent kidney stones.
- A mineral complex that may slow down aging.
- An amino acid that combats cold sores and Herpes infections.
- A vitamin that helps increase circulation in the legs.
- A vitamin that helps alcoholics control their drinking.
- A vitamin that helps control premenstrual tension and fights depression.

Question: What else is in the book?

Answer: Complete descriptions of every vitamin. What each does for you . . . How much you need to take . . . What foods contain different vitamins . . . How prescription drugs, alcohol, and smoking can destroy certain vitamins . . . How particular vitamins can fight many diseases . . . How much of each vitamin you can safely take . . . How long your body stores each vitamin . . . Deficiency symptoms for each vitamin.

Don't wait to order "Vitamin Side Effects Revealed." If you don't get this new book . . . you'll never know all the things different vitamins can do for you — and their side effects.

WHAT IN THE WORLD

BY MARION LONG

WILL THE DESIGNER LOOK STRIKE BOWLERS, TOO?

One of the wonderful things about bowling is that there are so few pretensions. And that includes attire. Really now, do people want to look like Pierre Cardin while bowling? No — the last thing a bowler wants is to get all gussied up for his or her Thursday night league.

Well, according to AMF, makers of the Angle bowling ball and other sporting goods, bowlers are tired of the "tacky to downright ugly" shirts traditionally worn in the alleys. If AMF is right, bowlers of the future will be decked out in shirts "that are just as much at home at a suburban lawn party."

We couldn't help wondering over the phone if AMF had found out whether there's really a market for the more elegant shirts. After all, bowling seems a sport more often associated with beers and nuts than martinis and hors d'oeuvres. Products Manager Rick Milner took offense to that implication, however: "So you thought that people who bowl are slobs?!" Spare us, Mr. Milner. We were just trying to pin matters down!

CHARITY BEGINS IN THE WAITING ROOM, SOMETIMES

A branch of the American Medical Association recently reported that the more money a doctor makes, the less likely he is to see patients on a charity basis. Steven Culler and Robert Ohsfeldt of the AMA's Center for Health Policy Research found that the physicians who devote the most time to caring for poor and unemployed patients are psychiatrists and graduates of foreign medical schools, who earn lower-than-average incomes.

Psychiatrists, it was found, provide between $5,848 and $7,507 more per year in charity care than do general and family practitioners. And foreign medical graduates — who tend to practice in lower-income areas of cities — supply from $4,342 to $5,422 more care for free than do grads from U.S. and Canadian medical schools.

Culler's diagnosis? "It is possible," he theorized, "that [prosperous] doctors do 'hidden' charitable work — financially helping to fund a clinic, for instance — that wasn't taken into account." That's a charitable interpretation.

MAYBE JUNIOR JUST ISN'T READY TO TAKE UP THE OBOE YET

Mozart disproved the rule, but in general, children shouldn't begin musical training too early, says Richard Grunow of the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N.Y. While many parents begin their children's training as soon as they're old enough to climb onto a piano bench, Grunow suggests that kids move at a slower tempo.

But how is a parent to know when to call in the music teacher? Wait for the "musical age." It comes along at various times — usually in the fourth or fifth grade — but when a child can sing in tune and move his body in a consistent tempo, the moment has come.

Grunow finds that the best kind of musical preparation is simply to grow up in an atmosphere "where the whole family is playing or singing together." Makes us wish we had a tape of the family sing-alongs at the Jackson home!

WHEN AN EXPERT SPEAKS, YOU DON'T HAVE TO LISTEN

The news media, as we all know, like to cite the opinions of "experts" in order to add weight to their stories. But just how wrong the experts can be has been documented in The Experts Speak, a new book by Christopher Cerf and Victor Navasky.

Calling themselves the first expertologists, the intrepid duo compiled predictions made by those who should have been in positions to know. What they found was amazing. "Over three years," says Cerf, "we were not able to find an expert who was right about anything."

Indeed, some of the errors are doozies. Tris Speaker, manager of the Cleveland Indians, said of Babe Ruth's move to the outfield: "Ruth made a great mistake when he gave up pitching. He might have become a great star."

In 1955, The Washington Star said of Richard Nixon: "Sincerity is the quality that comes through on television." And in 1964, an actor was rejected for a part in a movie called The Best Man because, as a United Artists exec put it, "Reagan doesn't have the presidential look."

BEDSIDE READING

What are Americans reading before they shut out the light and turn in for the night? Two reports:

"I'm a chef who only reads cookbooks. I have been reading a lot of health magazines, too, because our patrons want very low-calorie foods. I call it "spa cuisine." But lately I've been reading Paul Prudhomme's Louisiana Style Cooking and William LaVerne's French Regional Cooking, which I recommend to young people. It tells you all about the individual foods as well as giving recipes."

John Haskell, cook, Butterfields, Muncie, Ind.

"The last really good book I read was the novel The Outsiders by S.E. Hinton. I liked it because it was a rough book. It was about rough gangs in Tulsa, Okla. — it was exciting. And it was about a life that's very different from here."

YOU CAN AFFORD THIS NEW HOME ...and you'll be amazed at what's included

At the LOW cash price of $37,555*, we'll build this beautiful three-bedroom, one-bath home on your property. The walls, trim and floors will be ready for you to finish. Then, move in your furniture and appliances, install heating and/or air conditioning, and arrange for plumbing and electrical hookups.

$37,555* Cash Price

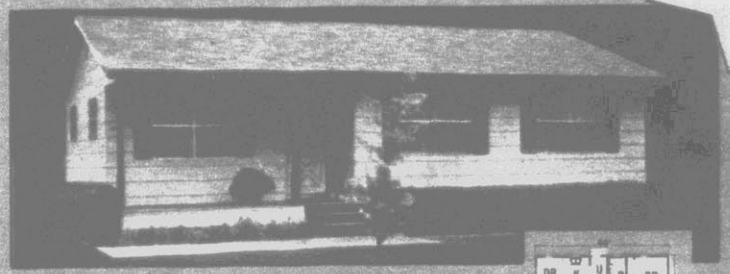

Photo depicts an actual home and may include additions and personal items provided by the customer and/or options that are not a part of our standard offering. Shrubs and landscaping have been added.

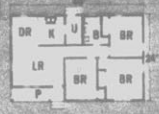

$362.40 Per Month for only 20, NOT 30 years

*The cash price and FIXED-MORTGAGE payment schedule quoted apply to this model built on any accessible, cleared and level lot provided by the customer. In most states they will be LOWER, however. Additional modifications or changes, if necessary to comply with local building requirements in certain isolated areas, will be at customer's expense.

Over 20 models built on your property finished to almost any stage from the shell up to 90% complete.

10% FIXED-MORTGAGES

ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE

Compare Jim Walter's 10% FIXED-MORTGAGE, 20-year plan to 30-year financing at 14% or 15%, and see the tremendous savings for yourself. With Jim Walter, your monthly payment for this home, with NO DOWN PAYMENT and NO "points" or closing costs, will be $362.40 for only 240 months. For comparison, if you finance this same amount, even at 14% for 30 years, you'll make 360 payments of about $445.00. That's 10 EXTRA YEARS of payments and more than $80.00 per month higher than Jim Walter's. This is a huge, TOTAL SAVING of over $73,000 when Jim Walter is your builder.

NO DOWN PAYMENT

To qualified property owners

Yes, Jim Walter makes building a new home affordable. What's more, you'll know EXACTLY what your FIXED-MORTGAGE monthly payment will be even before construction begins, and it will not change. In fact, should you decide to sell your home later, the mortgage payment will remain the same to your new buyer.

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1. Bag is missing. 2. Ghost is reversed. 3. Calendar is moved. 4. Nectline is lower. 5. Knife is different. 6. Crystal ball is missing.

• BE-CHARMED! Are you superstitious? As luck has it, there are any number of lucky charms to ward off evil spirits. Some of the oldest of these involve "magic" squares such as the one at right.

	1

• Ghastly Riddles to Ponder: Where do ghosts shop? At boo-tiques. What causes ghosts to have bare legs? Short sheets.

WITCHES WHICH? PARTY TRICK

Ask guests to pick someone among them who has "special telepathic" powers. This done, pass out pencils and paper, and ask each one to secretly draw a jack-o-lantern. Explain that you will leave the room and upon your return will immediately pick out the "telepathic" person's drawing.

SCARFACE! Who's that knocking at my door? Someone weird! Add these colors neatly to scene: 1—Red. 2—Blue. 3—Yellow. 4—Lt. brown. 5—Flesh tones. 6—Lt. green. 7—Orange. 8—Dk. brown.

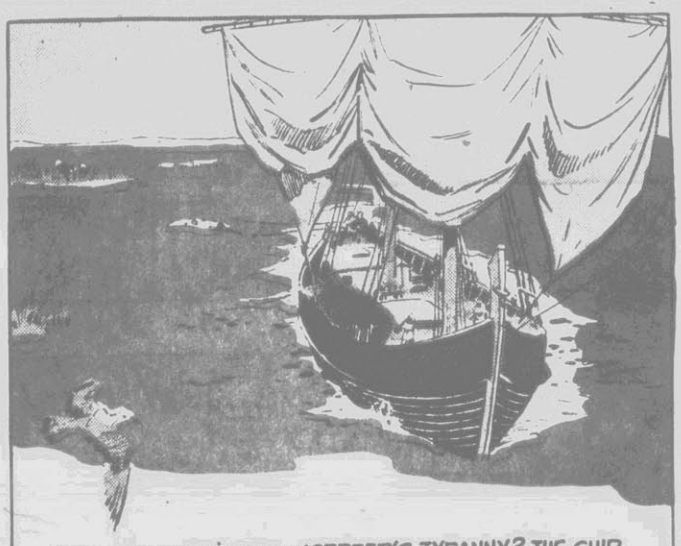
Prince Valiant

CREATED BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: "MAEVE! COME BACK!" HIS PEG LEG IN PIECES, A HOBBLED MORDRED CANNOT PURSUE AS MAEVE AND MARCUS RUN FOR THE RIVER. BEFORE MORDRED'S MEN KNOW WHAT IS HAPPENING THE TWO ARE SWIMMING OUT FROM SHORE. PRINCE VALIANT SEES THEIR APPROACH.



MORE REFUGEES FROM MORDRED'S TYRANNY? THE SHIP IS ALREADY IN MIDSTREAM, GRIPPED BY A BRISK CURRENT. VAL ORDERS LONG ROPES TRAILED BEHIND THE VESSEL. HIS HEART LEAPS WHEN THE TIRED SWIMMERS GRAB HOLD AND BEGIN DRAWING THEMSELVES CLOSER.

MARCUS IS THE FIRST TO POP HIS HEAD ABOVE THE GUNWALES, AND WITH A JUBILANT WELCOME PRINCE VALIANT HAULS HIM TO SAFETY. NOW THE SECOND FIGURE IS PULLED FROM THE WATER, RADIANT WITH RELIEF. "ARN," SHE CALLS BREATHLESSLY. THE YOUNG PRINCE COLORS WITH RAGE, REMEMBERING WHAT HE THINKS TO BE MAEVE'S TREACHERY. THE NERVE OF HER.

"STOP!" CRIES MARCUS, "IT WAS NOT SHE." THE WARNING COMES TOO LATE. FROM HIS FATHER'S SCABBARD ARN HAS PULLED THE 'SINGING SWORD.' WITH ONE ANGRY STROKE HE SEVERS THE RELATIONSHIP. A SUDDEN GUST OF WIND FILLS THE SAILS AND THE SHIP BURSTS AHEAD. MAEVE BOBS PITIFULLY IN ITS WAKE.
