Baby Fae Off Critical List, Takes Bottle

LOMA LINDA, Calif. (AP) — Baby Fae, off the critical list for the first time since she received a heart transplanted from a baboon, drank water from a bottle after doctors who disconnected her life-support equipment declared, "Every hour is a miracle."

The 18-day-old infant headed toward completing her fourth full day with the animal heart at 11:35 a.m. today, making her the longest-living human recipient of a cross-species heart transplant.

South African accountant Benjamin Fortes, 59, survived for 3½ days after receiving a chimpanzee's heart in 1977.

Controversy continued to surround Friday's experimental operation, in which Dr. Leonard Bailey's transplant team at Loma Linda University Medical Center replaced the infant's fatally defective heart. The baby, whose real name is being withheld, would have died within hours without a transplant, doctors said.

The team was criticized first for the death of the baboon, then when it was confirmed Monday they had not sought a human organ and that the heart of a 2-month-old baby was available the day of the baboon transplant.

Hospital officials took Baby Fae off the critical list Monday afternoon, saying her heart was "working well" as she received an anti-rejection drug. They said she was in serious but stable condition and "breathing easily" after tubes and a respirator were removed.

They then gave her water from a baby bottle to prepare her for formula feedings every four hours, hospital spokeswoman Brenda Pfeiffer said.

The transplant team wouldn't predict how long Baby Fae might survive. Dr. Jack Provonsha, director of the university's Center for Christian Bioethics, said Monday that "she's already lived longer than she was supposed to. Every hour is a miracle."

Of at least four animal-to-human heart transplants performed previously, all in adults, only Fortes survived more than a few hours.

At a news conference Monday, Provonsha said that even if doctors had known that the heart of a 2-month-old child was available, it would have been too large for Baby Fae.

Dr. Claude Lenfant, director of the National Heart,

Blood and Lung Institute, said in a telephone interview from Bethesda, Md., that the size difference would not have been a significant obstacle, but agreed that the doctors lacked adequate time to test whether the tissue was compatible with Baby Fae's.

Bailey issued a statement saying he didn't try to find a human infant heart donor because their rarity "makes that avenue impractical with our current abilities of organ procurement."

"Most heart donors are accident victims, and most infants don't drive cars," said Dr. Robert Levine, a Yale University medical ethics expert. "So I can understand why they didn't go out to look for a human heart donor. They knew there was a very low likelihood of finding one."

Chamber Adopts Top Priorities For Coming Year

The Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce came away from its 9th annual Out-of-Town Planning Conference with a prioritized list of concerns to address in the coming year. Topping the chamber's 1985 agenda will be education, followed by economic development, transportation, development of a regional civic center and agriculture.

Attending the three-day, Columbia, S.C., conference were representatives from East Carolina University, the ECU School of Medicine, Pitt County Memorial Hospital, Pitt Community College, and community and government leaders from the county and Greenville. Total attendance at the Oct. 26-28 conference numbered 84.

On the first full day of the meeting, representatives shared future concerns with chamber personnel who then worked with the representatives on possible solutions to their problems.

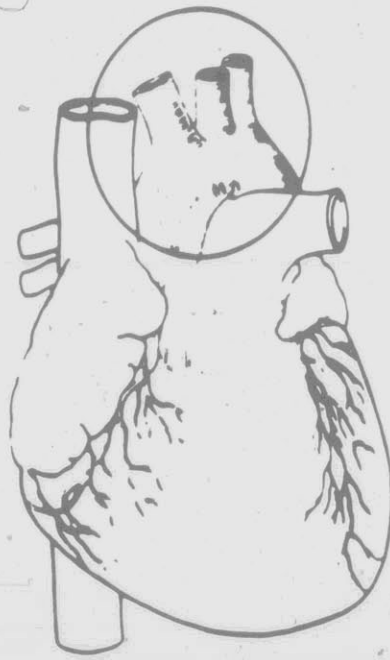

Moderator Phil Dixon said in a press conference this morning that the chamber will appoint committees to study issues pinpointed at the conference, beginning with the question of city-county school consolidation and quality of education in the county and chamber plans to enhance economic development will center on bringing small and large industry to the area as well as furthering the cause of downtown revitalization.

Transportation needs the chamber will focus on in 1985 include encouraging traffic control alternatives for roads around Pitt County Memorial Hospital, expansion and widening of Evans Street, four-laning N.C. 11 to I-40 and promoting a northern N.C. 264 loop.

According to conference keynote speaker, Ray Boleman, the hospital and increasing convention and travel industry in the area are making address of the transportation question, and others, a necessity. In closing conference remarks, Boleman — the incoming chamber chairman — pointed out that 50 percent of all the patients that enter PCMH are from outside Pitt County. "This means that hotel and motel rooms are rented, meals are purchased for those visiting patients

Two More Inmates Executed

By The Associated Press

Earnest Knighton Jr. said he was "going home to heaven" today when he was executed in Louisiana's electric chair for murdering a service station owner, minutes before Thomas Barefoot died in Texas by what he called "this evil" of lethal injection for killing a policeman.

Knighton, 38, who had studied pictures of the chair to give himself "a little bravery," died at 12:17 a.m. CST, said prison officials in Angola, La.

Barefoot, 39, who had claimed that God would intervene, died seven minutes later, said Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox at the state prison at Huntsville.

Death-penalty opponents and supporters marched outside the sites of both executions. Pro-execution demonstrators in Huntsville carried a cardboard model of a hypodermic needle and chanted, "Hit me with your best shot."

The U.S. Supreme Court on Monday voted 7-2 in both cases not to stay the sentences, the 11th rejection in more than five years for Barefoot, who became the 28th person put to death in the United States since the nation's highest court in 1976 allowed states to restore the death penalty.

Before his death, Knighton handed the warden a statement expressing regret at the death of service station owner Ralph Shell, who was killed during a robbery March 17, 1981, as Shell's wife watched.

The statement said drugs caused Knighton, an addict and alcoholic, to commit the crime, and that "what you are doing is wrong. If I thought my death would bring back Mr. Shell or would save someone else from a murder I would volunteer."

"I am sorry, more sorry than I can say, that Mr. Shell is dead — and that I'm responsible," the statement said. "I feel sorry for Mrs. Shell, and all of Mr. Shell's family and friends."

Knighton began reciting the 23rd Psalm as he approached the electric chair. As he was strapped in he repeated over and over, "I'm going home. I'm going home. I'm going home to heaven."

Barefoot, a former oilfield roughneck from New Iberia, La., maintained his innocence but also expressed regret over the Aug. 7, 1978 death of police officer Carl LeVin in the small central Texas town of Harker Heights.

"I hope one day we can look back on this evil ... like we do the witches as burned at the stake," he said. "I want everyone to know I hold nothing against them."

As the poisonous fluid entered his veins, he choked and gasped, and then he jerked and made a noise. Doctors declared him dead four minutes later.

Knighton, who admitted the killing but claimed it was an accident, spent part of Monday at the Louisiana State Penitentiary in Angola on the telephone trying to locate a 17-year-old son he had not seen since infancy, but apparently he was unsuccessful, prison officials said.

14th STREET CONGESTION

There has been a marked difference in the volume of traffic on East 14th Street since school started this fall. In the mornings between 7:30 and 8 o'clock it sometimes takes 15 or 20 minutes to get out onto 14th from Brownlea or other streets entering 14th between Greenville Boulevard and Elm Street. And once on 14th, you move at a snail's pace. What's being done and what more can be done to alleviate this situation? R.S.

Fourteenth Street between Greenville Boulevard and Charles Street is high priority for improvement within the City of Greenville, Gerald England said. The city has requested that it be put in the state's Transportation Improvement Program requests and this has been done. Five-laning is what is suggested. A report should be issued

Personal Income Goes Up

By The Associated Press

Americans' average personal income rose a healthy 2.1 percent in the second quarter of 1984, while a recent barometer of business productivity indicated a standstill not seen in more than two years, the government reported.

On the oil front, OPEC ministers agreed in principle Monday to cut production by nearly 9 percent to curb the worldwide decline in oil prices, but the cartel was trying to decide how to allocate the reduction.

The gains in personal income were not felt by all states. Six farm states lost ground, a drop attributed to the demise of the government's "payment-in-kind" program, the Commerce Department said Monday.

Residents of North Dakota were the hardest hit, with their overall average income down 8.1 percent.

There were declines of 3 percent in Montana, 2.7 percent in Nebraska, 1.6 percent in Iowa, 0.5 percent in South Dakota and 0.2 percent in Mississippi.

Residents of Georgia and Vermont, however, saw their second-quarter incomes increase by 3.6 percent, mainly because of manufacturing and construction payroll increases that were twice the national average.

North Carolina's income went up 2.9 percent to $65.3 billion.

Nationwide, the 2.1 percent income gain was considered substantial because inflation remained low during the period, meaning Americans were able to retain the bulk of the increase in earnings.

The flatness in non-farm productivity in the third quarter reflected no change in the output of workers relative to the number of hours they worked, the Labor Department reported.

Private analysts said the standstill was an unavoidable result of a slowing in the pace of overall U.S. business growth in recent months.

Youngster Gets His Wish

By CAROL TYER

Thanks to his friends at Pitt County Memorial Hospital, Kenny Blanks realized a dream Saturday night — he attended a Jacksons' Victory Tour concert in Atlanta.

Two nurses from PCMH, Donna West and Patti Pope, accompanied the Swan Quarter 13-year-old to Atlanta. Ms. Pope attended the concert with Kenny, and Ms. West and her family, which lives in Atlanta, hosted the other two for the weekend and took them on a tour of the city.

Kenny is a cystic fibrosis patient who spends approximately 50 percent of his time at Pitt Memorial. An avid fan of Michael Jackson and his brothers for the last two years, Kenny has won the love of the people who work in the pediatric unit of the hospital. They decided a week or so ago that he should attend the Jacksons' concert and they raised money to finance the concert tickets and related expenses. The two nurses volunteered to accompany him and attend to his medical needs. Greenville Travel Agency and Eastern Airlines donated a free round-trip ticket for Kenny and provided reduced rates for the nurses.

Kenny got along fine on the trip. Ms. West said this morning, Kenny said the Jackson concert was everything he'd thought it would be and more. He said he was also impressed with the big buildings in Atlanta and enjoyed the flights, his first ever.

At the concert, he wore his Michael Jackson-type clothes given him this year through the Make A Wish Foundation which provides treats for children with chronic illness.

Public Gets Fashion Sense From Others

By JUDIE GLAVE
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Despite untold millions spent annually on fashion advertising, a majority in a new poll say they choose their clothes more because of what they see on other people and on the racks than in ads.

In addition, a majority of the respondents in the Media General-Associated Press nationwide telephone poll of 1,451 people also said they didn't think designer clothes were of higher quality than non-designer clothes.

Given three choices for the factor that most influenced their clothes purchases, 29 percent of those polled said they were most influenced by what they saw other people wearing, while 24 percent said they were most influenced by what's new in the stores. Eleven percent said advertising for new clothes was the factor that most influenced what they bought.

Thirty-six percent said they were either not sure or that none of the factors influenced their clothing purchases.

Those figures may not exactly thrill Seventh Avenue designers like Calvin Klein, who in a recent magazine interview revealed that he spent $6 million a year on advertising.

The Newspaper Advertising Bureau and Ad Age magazine said no figure was available on how much the fashion industry as a whole spends yearly on advertising.

It is not surprising that people claim to be unaffected by advertising, said one Wall Street fashion analyst.

"People will never admit to being swayed or impressed by a name or label," said Monroe Greenstein of Bear Stearns & Co. "It sounds tacky. The simple fact is if they like the line, they'll buy the line — and people are buying."

In the first half of September, traditionally busy with back-to-school and change of season sales, department stores were selling 14 percent to 17 percent of their merchandise, up several points from the summer lull, said Greenstein.

He said sales in the midteens translated into "a lot of dollars" for stores, and hence, designers and manufacturers as well.

Besides chronicling people's attitudes toward advertising, the poll showed that men were more influenced in choosing styles by looking at what others wore, while women tended to buy what was shown in stores.

Regionally, those in the Northeast — where multitiered shopping malls dot the highways — were more influenced by what was sold in stores, while those in other parts of the country said they looked at what others were wearing.

Seventh Avenue and its European counterparts also may not like to hear that 64 percent of those polled said they didn't believe clothes with designer labels guaranteed a better-made product.

Twenty-nine percent said they thought designer clothes probably were of higher quality, while 7 percent said they were not sure.

And while 48 percent of the respondents admitted to being "somewhat conscious" of fashion changes from season to season, 33 percent said they were "not at all conscious" of fashion dictates.

Seventeen percent said they were "very conscious" and 2 percent said they didn't know.

Forty percent of the men and 26 percent of the women said they were "not at all conscious" of such fashion dictates as skirt length or tie width.

Although they may not change styles as quickly as the fashion industry might like, an overwhelming majority in the poll — 77 percent — said they thought it mattered how a person dresses, and 59 percent said they tried to "dress for success" by wearing clothes to create a favorable impression.

Twenty-six percent said they didn't try to dress for success, and 15 percent said either they weren't sure or didn't have the kind of job where they could "dress up."

People in urban areas were more likely to say they dressed to make a favorable impression than were people in rural areas, and men and women were about as likely — 61 percent of the men and 57 percent of the women — to say they dressed for success. The younger the respondents, the more likely they were to say they dressed in a manner to try to help their careers.

Respondents in the Media General-Associated Press poll included a random, scientific sampling of 1,451 adults across the country Aug. 1-8. As with all sample surveys, the results of Media General-AP telephone polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variations in the sample.

For a poll based on about 1,400 interviews, the results are subject to an error margin of 3 percentage points either way because of chance variations in the sample. That is, if one could have questioned all Americans with telephones, there is only 1 chance in 20 that the findings would vary from the results of polls such as this one by more than 3 percentage points.

Of course, the results could differ from other polls for a number of additional reasons. Differences in the exact wording of questions, differences in when the interviews were conducted and different methods of interviewing could also cause variations.

Pamela Daniel Marries Steve Leggett Griffin

Pamela Alston Daniel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Plummer Alston Daniel of Washington, N.C., and Steve Leggett Griffin, son of Mildred Griffin of Route 1, Washington, and the late Archie Benjamin Griffin, were married Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Ralph I. Epps in the First United Methodist Church in Washington. Mrs. Blake Lewis Jr., organist, and Mrs. Walter B. Gerard III, both of Washington, presented the music. Mrs. William C. Padgett directed the ceremony.

Wendy Daniel of Washington, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids included Sharon Rhodes Parker of Wilson, Mary Litchfield Rawls of Hertford, Sheila Griffin Moore, sister of the bridegroom, Evelyn Payne Snow and Carol Smith Stowe, all of Washington.

The flower girl was Jamie Lyn Moore of Washington, niece of the bridegroom.

The best man was cousin of the bridegroom, M.U. Hodges of Route 1, Washington. Ushers included Thad Hodges Gerard and Steven R. Gorham, both of Washington, O.B. Rawls IV of Hertford, Plummer A. Daniel Jr. of Chapel Hill, brother of the bride, and Benny Curtis Griffin of Williamston, brother of the bridegroom.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a floor length gown of bridal satin. The fitted bodice featured a Queen Anne neckline outlined with Venise lace motifs, long tapered sleeves and a natural waist. Alencon lace motifs etched with seed pearls applied the bodice and sleeves. The floor length satin skirt extended into a chapel train. Silk Venise lace garlands encircled the train and alencon lace motifs accented the front of the skirt. The hemline was bordered with scalloped alencon lace. Complementing her gown was a waltz length mantilla of scalloped illusion with a hand rolled edge accented with scattered lace motifs flowing from a wreath of silk flowers entwined with raised lace motifs tipped with seed pearls. She carried a nosegay of American Beauty roses, white carnations and button mums with gypsophila with satin streamers tied in love knots.

The bridesmaids wore formal gowns of wine matte taffeta designed with a ruffled V-neckline. The fitted bodice with princess lines featured short, puff sleeves with tucks. The gathered circular skirt fell from a natural waistline and was encircled by a double corded tie sash of rolled wine matte taffeta. Each carried a nosegay of miniature pink carnations, button mums tipped in burgundy with Jack Frost pom pons and gypsophila.

Bessie N. Jones, grandmother of the bride of Greenville, was remembered with a cymbidium orchid.

The flower girl wore a wine matte taffeta overlaid with silk organza ruffled gown. It had a rounded neckline with a satin wine sash and carried a white wicker basket filled with burgundy rose petals.

The couple will be living in Washington after their wedding trip.

The bride is a graduate of Washington High School and attended East Carolina University. She is employed at Hackney Industries Inc. in Washington. The bridegroom is a graduate of Washington High School and attended N.C. State University. He is engaged in farming.

A reception was given by the bride's parents in the church fellowship hall. Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Tanner and Mr. and Mrs. Verlon Griffin greeted guests. Rice bags were distributed by Michelle and Dawn Griffin.

Mrs. Michael Pearce and Mrs. Norfleet Hodges poured punch. Mrs. Robert Parker and Mrs. Monnie Smith served cake. Mrs. M.U. Hodges presided at the register. Radell Clark and Ruth Tanner assisted at the reception.

The reception area was decorated with potted ferns. Pink, burgundy and white flowers decorated the refreshment tables which were covered with white linen and leaf cloths.

The mother of the bridegroom entertained at an after-rehearsal party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Larry S. Moore in Washington for members of the wedding party and relatives of the bridal couple Saturday. The couple was honored at a dance held at the Beaufort County Shrine Club Friday evening given by friends and relatives.

Prior to the ceremony, the bride was honored at a bridesmaids luncheon. The couple was also honored at a dinner party, buffet brunch, rice bagging, chicken picken and several showers.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

You're a teacher. You have too many empty chairs in front of you each day. The projection is in another eight years, you will have 10 percent more empty chairs than you have now.

Who are these people who belong in those chairs and why aren't they there?

A few got lost, despaired and figured they'd never catch up. Some are lazy and will give only what they have to get by. The majority are "bored."

Math isn't "fun." Language is "repetitious." History isn't "relevant." They blame education.

It's time all of us stopped making apologies for our school system. If kids want "fun," let 'em go to Disneyland. Language is repetitious because that's the way they learn it. And if the past isn't relevant, neither will be the future.

If someone took one of those "phantom" students by the hand in the first grade, he might say, "We're going on a cruise for the next 12 years to prepare you for a place in this world. We'll stop off at great moments in literature and spend a little time with the human mind and how it works. You can sample challenges of philosophy and sociology and learn why people act the way they do. You can explore the world of science and technology. For the first time you will interact with people outside of your family. Many of them will have different cultural backgrounds, religious views and values. But mostly, you'll learn a lot about yourself . . . your capacity for learning and where it will take you, your mental discipline and where you fit into the universe. Pack lightly . . . only your imagination and curiosity. You can pick up a lot along the way, but you only have 12 years.

"Sure, there'll be ports of boredom, tedium and even absurdity, but so is life sometimes."

Last spring, a school in Richmond, Ind., plagued by empty chairs, offered $100 to any student who showed up for school every day. The perfect attendance record went from 37 to 200 and the school had to scramble to raise $20,000. (The thought that crossed my mind was the money should have been paid to the teachers to show up.)

You can't blame the principal. He's trying. We all are. Maybe parents should join forces with educators to stop "begging" their kids to attend school and telling them that "school is boring, but you might as well tough it out until you're of age."

I'd prefer to say, "Hey, Empty Chair! While you were watching 'The Love Boat' yesterday, you missed a fantastic trip to the battlegrounds at Gettysburg. If you miss tomorrow, you'll miss how to deal with your anger, what Hamlet said to his mother and blow a math quiz. Sorry, education isn't a lottery and it isn't show biz. It's a lot of hard work. We can't wait for you, Empty Chair. We've only got 12 years to get it together."

Cartel

There is a lot of untapped strength in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. It was manifested in the claim of agreement by their oil ministers to cut production to shore up the cartel's prices.

That agreement is supposed to be unanimously confirmed by the 13 members at a followup meeting.

Obviously the organization is nervous over price-cutting by non-OPEC producers, as well as more economical use of petroleum resources, emergency stockpiles, increased production by non-members and even rivalries within OPEC itself.

Those factors required a response from a common front ... planned at a formal meeting next week. The unanimous vote requirement is a weak link in the chain, but one can see it as an unavoidable condition.

For OPEC members, their power to tap the world's wealth has meant riches beyond dreams. Their bonanza could be likened to one of today's big lottery winners; and just as some lottery winners reacted, they have been spending sums at a rate impossible to describe. They did have a lot of catching up to do.

True, much has been devoted to bettering lives of their people and creation of an economic infrastructure they had never known. At the same time, many other billions of dollars have been squandered.

Free-wheeling habits can sometimes become an addiction — those vast revenues are now necessary — and prospects that their income might shrink more has touched a nerve.

OPEC is far from collapsing. There have always been weak points in the organization, but one could very well argue the oft-hoped-for break-up of the cartel might involve greater risks than global benefits.

Deficit

President Reagan likes to point with pride to economic statistics which are favorable — and to take a considerable amount of the credit.

Inflation is down? Give all the credit to Reagan administration policies and never mind that a severe recession, coupled with the efforts of Americans to save energy, has brought down oil prices.

If the president feels free to take credit for good economic news, then he certainly should jump at the chance to take the blame for a $175.3 billion deficit for 1984, the second worst in history. Last year was worse at $195.4 billion.

No doubt the president doesn't want to get involved with the deficit, but the fact is that the blame should be on his shoulders. He has the office to recommend solutions to this severe problem, but he has done nothing but ignore it.

The mounting deficit is an economic time bomb. It must be dealt with and President Reagan should tell the public how he plans to do so.

—Rowland Evans and Robert Novak—

Reagan Follows His Instinct

KANSAS CITY — President Reagan's deft touch in killing the age issue as the last visible impediment to beating Walter Mondale proved the efficacy of Secretary of State George Shultz's advice during a pre-debate prepping session: "Follow your instinct, Mr. President."

While Reagan followed his instinct, Walter Mondale attempted the improbable: to portray himself as a more knowledgeable and reliable nuclear commander in chief and a stronger leader than Ronald Reagan, a reversal of perceived roles that seemed highly unlikely to sway many voters at this late date.

Reagan's instinct was to turn the age issue on its head in a witty, unrehearsed disavowal of intent to use it in reverse against Mondale. Reagan pollster Richard Wirthlin's computerized focus group of representative voters shot back a stunningly favorable "trace," or reaction, that one Reagan campaign aide told us "went right off the charts."

That killed the last realistic prospect of a Mondale miracle on Nov. 6 and showed that non-politician Shultz, at least, understood that

To the editor:

It is interesting to read and hear the charges and countercharges from the political candidates. I wonder how many people these remarks and advertisements influence. Few I suspect.

Some remarks regarding how the past Republican administration flew around the state "firing" state employees were recently printed. Surely I will not try to rebuke the remarks since I did not experience the act and do not know anyone who did.

It might be of interest to some readers to learn what Gov. Hunt did when he was elected. When he was inaugurated, some 600 employees were serving in an exempt status, meaning at the pleasure of the governor, since the position was appointive and the appointee did not have a grievance privilege.

That number has now increased to some 2,400.

Career positions protected by the State Personnel Act suddenly became political patronage. These positions are now awarded for whatever reason, at the pleasure of the governor, with qualifications possibly being considered after political loyalty.

No official may effectively serve without those persons loyal to that person assisting. Policy must be followed and the elected official held accountable. Elections so dictate. Seemingly, the layers of people are now so numerous that the public might not be aware of misdeeds. Numbers tend to breed inefficiency.

It is easy to be critical, yet we know ill remarks sell copy and gain air wave audiences. Notwithstanding, the integrity of the candidate must be the paramount criteria. I appreciate knowing where my elected officials stand on the issues of today and how willing they are to speak as individuals. It is evident that some of the candidates are straddling fences and have so worn the barriers that these retainers no longer will serve its desired purpose. These fences have deteriorated from side to side use.

Indeed, it is a primary responsibility of an elected person to represent that constituency and to be mindful that serving is at these voters' pleasure. The fence straddler serve no one, not even himself.

To the editor:

Ray Masten's letter in the Forum (Oct. 24) made some good points on the seemingly frivolous behavior of television in reporting on the political polls. Ray asks how lucky can we get? Luckier, I hope, than some elements of the present scene suggest.

As the media have reported, and not exaggerated, there has been a national catastrophe in terms of independent farmers going bankrupt. From the farmer's point of view, that ain't very good luck.

The Wall Street Journal and others have reported that more banks have failed in 1984 than in any year since about 1939.

In many of our major cities, unemployment is worse than the official reports, many former middle class people, having lost good jobs and eventually replaced them with minimum wage jobs. For the unemployed and the underemployed, we could be luckier. And if "Ronnie and

Ole Jesse's trend continues, here's some of the good luck we can expect: 1. school kids taking time out to recite or listen to a "prayer" written by some government employee; 2. a 15-year-old girl raped by one or more thugs, forced by law to carry and give birth to a baby she never wanted and is ill-prepared to care for; 3. instead of the U.S. government (which has collected Social Security taxes on me for about 38 years) standing behind the promises and obligations to people like you and me, I could well be dumped or turned over to the good-natured private insurance companies who really owe me nothing.

We could be luckier.

To the editor:

Congressman Walter Jones has been in the House of Representatives for many years and is seeking another term. Some people say "Good Old Walter should get my vote. He did my family a favor many years ago." Congressman Jones served his district well for a number of years. However, in recent years, Jones has turned from a moderate and/or conservative to a far-left liberal. Make your vote count for the future — not the past.

What are the facts?
Close Union Involvement — Five years ago, Congressman Jones did not support bills favorable to the national unions. However, in recent years he is considered a very strong supporter of unions — votes their wants.

Absenteeism — Congressman Jones' attendance has been very poor for a long time. In 1984 he missed 58 roll call votes (a half year); in 1983, 76; in 1982, 86; and in 1981, 143 (about 40 percent of the time).

Aid to Central American countries — Congressman Jones votes against all aid to these countries. He has failed to recognize we cannot allow communism to take over Central America. Also, it has been estimated if communism takes over them; at least 10 million of their people will walk or maybe ride over our borders seeking new homes. What would 10 million refugees do to this country?

There are many other phases of Congressman Jones' performance that are questionable, such as voting for increasing government spending, voting himself a large pay raise, voting for nuclear freeze, and others.

Isn't it strange that now many Democratic Party candidates have changed from liberals to conservatives? It's unbelievable — Hunt, Jones, Edmisten, and Taft have crossed over. What caused the change?

Herb Lee is a true conservative, seeking to serve North Carolina and America. Exercise your right to vote — vote Republican.

To the editor:

Since I must be out of state on Election Day, I have used my absentee ballot. It was a great pleasure to vote for the Mondale-Ferraro national Democratic ticket and to vote for our next governor, Rufus Edmisten.

My vote for Fritz Mondale reflects our mutual concern for control of nuclear arms; for advances in human rights; and for a progressive economy. Mr. Edmisten will continue the constant growth for our state.

Our next U.S. senator, Jim Hunt, received my vote because of his positive record. Mr. Helms did not get my vote because of his negative actions and attitudes. He is an embarrassment to the good people of North Carolina.

Jim Hunt has been a positive influence in North Carolina and will be a positive influence for us in the U.S. Senate.

Help our country and our state by voting 1984 for these fine candidates.

To the editor:

Parents, we must do some homework, foster excellence in our children if we expect them to be anything but mediocre. Let's do some soul-searching about our children's education by answering these questions:

1. Do we foster positive opinions? What happens when the teacher errs or the administration makes a poor decision? Do we make a federal case out of it? If we do, the children will get the picture. They'll see that we really don't care about respect for authority when it comes to school. We need to build bridges between home and classroom. Talk with respect and admiration about school personnel — even when they make mistakes and when you don't agree with them.

2. Do we show our enthusiasm for learning? Has it been a while since we learned anything ourselves? Let's try enthusiasm when our children ask questions. Go to the library. Read up on the subject. Explain things. Let's not squelch our child's eagerness by saying, "I don't know. Go ask your mother."

3. Do we breed success at home? Do we give our children tasks that will merit our approval? Can we lead them through a successful project so they can feel how great it is to be told that they are smart, strong, quick, neat, mature, responsible, kind, creative? Build on the little things that happen.

4. Are we genuinely interested in each school day? The children are in school seven hours each day or 35 hours in a week. Does it matter what went on during that time? Talking about the school day will reinforce the child's memory of its events and will help us sense problem areas. Your son's having trouble in science. Well, roll up your sleeves. Show that you care by showing that you are interested.

If you haven't already done so, begin to integrate your life at home into the school life of your youngsters. Parents of school children can never say they don't have any homework!

To the editor:

Glory Hallelujah! The gold old Daily and the News and Disturber, this last Sunday, unequivocally endorsed Jim Hunt.

Jesse Helms and all of his supporters are overjoyed. Our greatest fear in this election has been that they were going to endorse Jesse! An endorsement from these two papers is just like the "Kiss of Death."

Do you remember their most recent political endorsement? It was Knox over Edmisten in the Democratic Primary and now both of them are saying all kind of naughty things about Knox just because he "saw the light" and endorsed Reagan, Helms and Martin. I'll just bet ole Rufus is scared to death that they are going to endorse him.

Thanks again, old Daily. With your help, the people of North Carolina are going to send Jesse back to Washington for six more years. Keep up the good work. Without your help, we might not be able to get the job done!

Ray Masten

To the editor:

A friend said to me, "I'm for Jesse Helms because you always know where he stands." Well, I know where he stands, and where he stands is not where he stood.

I know where he stands on Social Security. In November, I have a letter from him telling me he stands foursquare behind Social Security. But that's not where he stood. I know because I have his record on my desk. In 1979, in 1981, in 1982, in 1983, Helms' votes were against the best interests of needy people on Social Security. Where he is standing is not where he stood.

I know where he stands on environmental issues. He is 100 percent for the environment, green trees and all. But he has voted against the Clean Water Act, against the Clean Air Acts, against requiring testing of potentially toxic chemicals, and against the Superfund, the federal effort to clean up the nation's most dangerous toxic-waste dumps. Where he stands is not where he stood.

I know where he stands on the concerns of black people. He has just embraced, under the aegis of Rosie Grier, who is steppin' n fetchin' for him on TV commercials, all the black brothers. But where he stands is not where he has stood since he first began editorializing, years ago, on WRAL-TV. He has consistently, over the years, opposed any efforts to forward the hopes and aspirations of black people. But it is November. And where he stands is not where he stood.

What the state of North Carolina needs is for Helms to stop standing and to start sitting — in a comfortable chair in Monroe, with grandchildren on his knees, a Mammy in the kitchen, and Roberto D'Aubuisson in the guest room. He deserves a long sit.

Strength For Today

Recently a father was talking about his son, who had just published a novel at the age of 23 and was working on a second book.

You can imagine the pride of this parent and the sense of hopefulness and light which he conveyed to his friends with whom he talked.

Listen to the proud parent. Encourage him to keep on talking. Spread the good word about what somebody else's youngster has done. And if once in a while what such a youngster has done is bad, be tongue-tied and indisposed to talk. Let him get on his feet. Give him another chance. Then maybe everybody will be proud of him, particularly those who gave him that second chance.

later this fall saying what priority the project has been given among dozens also submitted from throughout the state.

This five-laning is probably several years away, England said. He said, in the meantime, every time there's an accident it's entered into the computer in Raleigh and whatever intersection is involved moves up on the state's priority list for spot safety improvement funds. He said some widening and storage lanes would help at the intersection you mentioned, but the spending of state funds can only be justified for safety, not convenience.

He said the DOT is aware of the great increase in usage of 14th Street by people living in new housing in the area and of its increased popularity as a route to work at the hospital, ECU, etc. He suggested that everyone now using 14th Street as a route to and from work consider alternate routes and start allowing more time so as not to feel rushed if they must use 14th.

"Greenville's traffic is increasing daily," he said, "and people need to bear in mind they can't get from here to there as quickly as they could when it was not as great."

Hand-Me-Downs Said Dangerous

WASHINGTON (AP) — Family heirlooms may have sentimental value and flea market items may be a good buy, but parents should be wary of hand-me-down or antique nursery equipment that could pose serious hazards for children, the government warns.

"We are cautioning parents about the use of old-style, antique and second-hand products which may not be safe," Nancy Harvey Steorts, chairwoman of the Consumer Product Safety Commission, said Monday.

Commission officials held a press conference Monday to make parents aware that many older nursery articles that have been stored away, and brought out when a new baby enters the family, may neither meet current safety standards nor be in good repair.

"Newer products are generally much safer than older ... cribs, playpens and highchairs now stored away in attics and garages," Mrs. Steorts said.

"As a general rule, the commission staff recommends that if a crib is more than 10 years old, throw it out," she said.

The agency estimates that unsafe nursery equipment caused 90,700 infant injuries and 177 deaths last year, and about 1,300 fatalities since 1973.

Commissioner Stuart M. Statler said those figures may represent "just the tip of the iceberg" because parents of children who die or are seriously injured in such incidents never report them, because they are guilt-ridden or overly distraught.

George Rutherford, the commission's senior statistician for children's products, said 129 deaths in 1982-83 were attributed to faulty cribs alone.

"The deaths are usually associated with the older products, not the new ones," he said.

Commission officials used plastic dolls to demonstrate some of the "hand-me-down" dangers that babies risk when placed in old-fashioned cribs, highchairs, walkers, mesh playpens or wooden, scissor-like gates and corrals that may be found in attics or sold as second-hand items at flea markets.

Mrs. Steorts showed how a child could choke in an older crib where the slats are too far apart, or get caught in a decorated headboard and suffocate. A fatal accident also could occur if the hardware on a crib is worn or faulty and the mattress tips over, throwing the baby out of the bed.

"We are trying to show people what kind of unsafe products are still in their attics — people just don't know what kind of tragedies can occur," Mrs. Steorts said.

"The products have improved a great deal, but many people use the old stuff over and over again."

The commission said that in a 1980 survey of highchair injuries, more than 50 percent involved chairs manufactured before safety standards went into effect in 1975.

The commission said there are mandatory regulations or voluntary standards for cribs, walkers, highchairs, playpens, strollers and toy chests. The rules cover such things as the height of crib sideboards, ventilation holes in play chests and the size of mesh holes in playpens.

The commission suggested looking for these safety features when purchasing nursery equipment:

—Cribs: Slats should be 2 3/8 inches apart or less; head and footboard without cutouts or finials; mattresses that fit securely; quality construction for durability.

—Dropside Mesh Cribs and Playpens: Mesh netting with holes less than one-fourth inch.

Reagan Camp Sees Victory In All States

But Mondale Says Look For Surprise

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

Walter F. Mondale, encouraged by his crowds as he struggles to catch up, says President Reagan is "in for a big surprise" while the president's aides talk not just of winning but of winning everywhere.

Even as Reagan cautioned supporters against overconfidence, his campaign aides were signalling supreme confidence and saying they consider it possible for the president to win all 50 states, an unprecedented feat.

Reagan campaign spokesman James Lake wouldn't flatly predict such an outcome, but he said Monday that private GOP polls show Reagan leading in 49 states and "dead even" in Minnesota, the Democratic challenger's home.

And Lake said Reagan's schedule this week has been tailored to put him in several small states with few electoral votes, with the aim of winning all 50 states.

"The more states you win the more likely you will have a mandate to govern," Lake said.

For his part, Reagan said he was only "cautiously optimistic" about the election one week from today. Urging voters not to become complacent, Reagan said he tries not to read the polls that show him 17 to 24 points ahead.

"Don't you read them either," he said. "Don't let anything keep you on Nov. 6 from getting out there and doing what we need to do."

Campaigning in the Pacific Northwest on Monday, Mondale was buoyed by the large crowds he drew — 10,000 people, wall-to-wall for two city blocks in Seattle — and predicted a voter shift the polls haven't detected.

"I think Reagan is in for a big surprise," Mondale said.

"The whole Hollywood celluloid structure is starting to fall away," he added in Spokane, Wash. "I can feel it coming."

As he spoke in Seattle, a hand-painted sign hung from helium-filled balloons and said, "We have not been polled."

Mondale also unleashed one of the most personal criticisms yet at Reagan and Vice President George Bush.

"Most of the time, Reagan is sleeping at Camp David," Mondale said, suggesting Reagan was so overconfident he spent the weekend at the presidential retreat rather than campaigning.

"And they've got old George Bush locked up in the cellar because he makes a mistake every time he goes out," he added.

Retorted Reagan: "If I hadn't been overnighing at Camp David, I would have been overnighing at the White House. Either place, it's good sleeping."

Mondale was flying today to Duluth, Minn., for a brief stop in his home state, then heading to Chicago for a torchlight parade.

Reagan was remaining in the White House today and planned no more campaign trips until Thursday, when he departs on a trip West that will take him to 10 states, ending in California on Election Day.

Bush and Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro were out on the hustings, too. Ms. Ferraro was in Chicago today for an appearance on the Donahue Show.

Bush, on a trip aimed at boosting GOP candidates, was campaigning today in Natchez, Miss., before flying to Illinois.

"For heaven's sake, don't tie one hand behind Ronald Reagan's back when you send us a congressman," Bush said in Alabama, where he campaigned in Birmingham and Mobile for two Democrats who switched parties and are running as Republicans this year. "Give us the support we need."

With Reagan well ahead in the polls, Bush is focusing his efforts this week in 15 congressional districts targeted for special attention by the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee. In all but a few of the areas, Democrats are believed to be ahead.

Among the candidates Bush was trying to help today was Rep. Daniel B. Crane, R-Ill., who was censured last year for having sex with a 17-year-old congressional page.

Justices Reject Battered Wife Murder Claim

WASHINGTON (AP) — Betty Moran, who had been beaten and threatened repeatedly by her husband, shot him seven times as he napped on a spring afternoon in Cleveland over three years ago.

Mrs. Moran said her husband had threatened to kill her and her mother when he awoke. She claimed she shot him in self-defense.

On Monday, Mrs. Moran fell two votes short of winning Supreme Court review of her murder conviction and sentence of 15 years to life in prison.

Justices William J. Brennan and Thurgood Marshall said the court should use Mrs. Moran's case to consider whether battered women should have to prove their self-defense claims.

The jury in Mrs. Moran's case was told she — not state prosecutors — had the burden of proving she acted in self-defense.

Brennan, in an opinion for himself and Marshall, noted that Mrs. Moran claimed "she was a victim of battered woman's syndrome."

The syndrome's causes, Brennan said, are "the husband's repeated and violent beatings and the wife's dependency — economic and emotional — that make it practically impossible for her to leave."

Four of the court's nine justices must agree to hear an appeal before such review is granted. None of the remaining seven justices expressed any views on the case.

Mrs. Moran testified that she had suffered repeated violent assaults at the hands of her husband, Willie.

Although the couple jointly operated their towing business, Willie Moran lived in a trailer behind the office and Mrs. Moran lived elsewhere with the couple's children.

She testified that on the afternoon of May 15, 1981, she and her husband had a bitter argument over money. He claimed she was holding back some money she had saved.

Mrs. Moran said her husband warned her: "You better have my money because if you don't, when I get up I'm going to kill you and your mammy."

Moran drank a toddy of honey, whiskey and lemon — given to him by his wife — and then went for his nap.

Mrs. Moran said she made a phone call to raise some money but got no results. After thinking about her desperate situation, she picked up her husband's pistol, walked into the trailer bedroom and began firing at his back.

Two men who helped Mrs. Moran move her husband's body from the trailer later went to the police. Mrs. Moran was charged, tried and convicted.

Her prosecution, in some respects, recalls the case of Francine Hughes of Danville, Mich., whose killing of her ex-husband, James, was dramatized in a recent television movie, "The Burning Bed."

Explosive Found Near Embassy

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Bomb squad officers acting on a telephoned tip dismantled a homemade bomb planted near the U.S. Embassy, Lisbon's security police said today.

Police said the device was removed Saturday after a caller told a Lisbon radio station that a bomb had been planted near the embassy.

The bomb, which had been found by children under a wooden ramp, apparently failed to go off due to a wiring fault, police said. It was about 110 yards* from the U.S. Embassy complex and 55 yards from the headquarters of the Portuguese Communist Party.

Police said the device was made up of two steel tubes, each containing a bazooka grenade.

U.S. Embassy information officer Steve Chaplin said police had notified the mission about the incident, but he said the embassy was not taking part in the investigation.

Colleges Urged To Clean House, Boost Excellence

NEW YORK (AP) — Leading educators are warning higher education officials to clean up their own houses or face the same kind of criticism that has recently shaken the public school system.

According to several speakers in a panel discussion titled "Sauce for the Gander: Does Higher Education Need Reforming?" the nation's colleges are no less guilty than public schools of failing to stimulate students to educational excellence.

Students are not actively engaged in their own education, said Frank Newman of the Carnegie Endowment for the Advancement of Teaching, who is preparing one of several reports expected to be highly critical of higher education.

Students sit in class, listen carefully and read it back on the exams," Newman said at The College Board's annual convention.

"We in higher education have been snug in our little cottages. We have shouted at public education from the sidelines," said. "But now, the spotlight of reform is beginning to turn to higher education."

Also on the College Board panel was Zelda F. Gamson, a University of Michigan sociologist who helped produce a just-released federal critique of higher education, "Involvement in Learning: Realizing the Potential of American Higher Education." That report is the first of several in progress on the state of higher education to be issued in the coming months.

The College Board panel's criticisms of higher education were in many ways similar to those leveled in numerous reports at public schools during the past 18 months. They suggested that college students, like younger pupils, go through the motions of schooling. And college teachers see more rewards in research than in stimulating excitement in their pupils.

"The central issue is how to increase student involvement in learning," said Ms. Gamson.

Newman listed several problems he said colleges and universities must grapple with. Curricula have become overly vocational at the expense of the humanities. "While we have argued for liberal arts, we have professionalized it," he said.

And higher education is "failing badly" in helping minority students enter the managerial and professional job market.

Still, several panelists wondered whether the public would get as excited over higher education's shortcomings as they did when President Reagan decried the "rising tide of mediocrity" in public schools. And the panelists said that without public pressure, it was doubtful that meaningful reform would occur at colleges.

"I am not sanguine that higher education will be on the front burner of national public interest the way kindergarten-through-12th grade has been," said Alice C. Cox, assistant vice president of Student Academic Services at the University of California at Berkeley.

Motorist Trapped In Fall

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 24-year-old woman whose truck plunged off a winding mountain road into a 150-foot ravine says she "prayed and hoped" she would live, but while spending four days without food or water she wrote in a diary, "So this is it."

"I did get religious," Lori Ann Lessley said Monday from her bed at Verdugo Hills Hospital in Glendale after her ordeal in the Angeles National Forest about 15 miles north of downtown Los Angeles.

A supermarket checker who has a 5-year-old son, Mrs. Lessley said she "wondered what it would be like to die" after she found herself trapped in the steep ravine in chilly temperatures.

"I prayed and I hoped, but I gave up about 10 this morning. Then when the helicopter found me, I cried and I hugged the guy," said Mrs. Lessley. She was rescued Monday morning.

Authorities credited the woman's resourcefulness for her survival. She wrapped herself in blankets and work clothes her husband left in the back of the truck and wrapped her feet with tape to ward off night temperatures that dipped into the 40s.

"She did everything right. She had blankets with her, and she carried them with her to sleep in, and she was going downhill to find water," said John Lapalm of the sheriff's Montrose Search and Rescue Team.

She was listed in stable condition and will remain at the hospital for about three days, spokeswoman said.

"They took X-rays, and there were no fractures. It's a miracle," said the spokeswoman, Gretchen Wilson. "She does have lacerations and superficial wounds all over her body."

Mrs. Lessley's husband, Chet, and her son Michael were "very happy" about her survival, she said.

Thoughtful dignity is priceless,
but it costs no more.

The truth is, it's smarter and easier to deal with buying a grave site long before the need arises than during the time of grief.

Think a little, find out something about what's involved — whatever you think about the subject. It's the only way that you can be sure that you make an informed decision whenever you decide what you're going to do.

What's in a picture? Privately-owned cemeteries are governed by state law. In order for a cemetery to be called a 'Perpetual Care' cemetery, it is required that the maintenance for it be paid for by interest earned on a "locked-in" fund, contributions to which are predetermined.

Historically, Pinewood Memorial Park has been maintained by funding much larger than that required by state law. The reason? S.G. Wilkerson & Sons, founders and owners of Pinewood, didn't think the requirement was adequate.

The result? See for yourself: Visit Pinewood and look at the beautiful 25-year growth of centipede sod, attentively maintained almost every day.

So don't be fooled by pretty pictures of what a site is supposed to look like years from now. And be sure you add up all the costs before you buy. You'll see that Pinewood costs less, not more, than unknown quantities.

Professional for 26 years. And years to come. We'd like to explain more. Because as cemeteries for 26 years, we think it's important for every family to make an informed decision about these things.

So before you buy from a salesman with pretty pictures and long promises, talk to us, even drive through our grounds. We're not going to pressure you for anything. And, we'll respect your decision.

But we want you to know what you're doing.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned upward today, reversing its recent decline.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 3.32 to 1,204.73 in the first half hour.

Gainers took a 7-6 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts noted that the market held Monday at the 1,200 level in the Dow Jones industrial average, suggesting that a good many traders found stocks an attractive buy at that point.

But they said several uncertainties continued to weigh on the market — most notably the question of how much the economy might slow in the months ahead.

The government's monthly report on its index of leading economic indicators is due out Wednesday. Wall Streeters generally expect the index, which is designed to detect future economic trends, to show a small increase for September.

Brokers also said traders were cautiously awaiting the election a week from today. It is widely assumed that a decisive victory by President Reagan has already been anticipated by the stock market.

Any other outcome of the voting, analysts say, might prompt investors to scramble to revise their economic and political expectations.

Ford Motor led the active list in early trading, unchanged at 46 1/4. No other issues among the volume leaders showed more than fractional price changes.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 3.54 to 1,201.41.

Declines outpaced advances by more than 3 to 2 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 63.20 million shares, against 83.90 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks fell .28 to 95.06. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 1.53 at 207.78.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Academy Award-winning composer Andre Previn, slated to take over as music director of the Los Angeles Philharmonic in January 1986, says people are making too much of his pop music background.

Boleman added that the county now has approximately 2,000 people employed in the developing convention and travel industry and that the 1,100 rooms that will be available by spring 1985 will put the county in a position to host more meetings and conventions.

Dixon said local residents can also expect some announcements regarding construction of a proposed civic center in the near future. According to chamber President Ed Walker, the civic center could possibly become a reality in the late 1980s and projected the cost of building such a structure at $20 million plus.

Agriculture, tobacco in particular, also will be a chamber concern in the coming year. "The proposed farmers' market must be marketed, but our farmers must be sold on the benefits of diversification of crops," Boleman said. "Survival is a

Seattle Manhandles Chargers, 24-0

SAN DIEGO (AP) — In some other season, Seattle's 7-2 record might place the Seahawks atop the AFC West standings. It certainly would put them in commanding position to gain a National Football League playoff berth.

This year, 7-2 is good for only a second-place tie in the rugged division, and Seattle's 24-0 manhandling of San Diego on Monday night was needed simply to keep pace of its peers.

"We've still got some things to do, and some more games left in the season to do them," said quarterback Dave Krieg, who threw for 282 yards and connected with Steve Largent for three touchdowns. "Seven-and-two in this division doesn't assure you of anything."

Seattle remains tied with the Los Angeles Raiders, one game behind front-running Denver in the division. The Seahawks play the Raiders once more and still have two games left with Denver.

Seattle sacked San Diego quarterback Dan Fouts six times for 47 yards in losses and forced the Chargers into four turnovers. It was reminiscent of the teams' first meeting this year, when San Diego coughed up the ball eight times in a 31-17 loss.

"We just didn't execute the way we should," wide receiver Charlie Joiner said. "It was pretty much the same thing (as last time). They play good defense and are very good on special teams."

"Those things happen. We keep saying, 'We have to rebound, we have to rebound,' and we've just got to keep saying it until we do."

The Chargers, playing without injured receivers Kellen Winslow and Wes Chandler and using limping tight ends Pete Holohan and Eric Sievers sparingly, suffered their first shutout since a 7-0 loss to Denver five years ago. San Diego netted 201 total yards, less than half its average. Fouts was intercepted twice and lost a fumble and running back Lionel James was picked off on an attempted flea-flicker. All three interceptions were made by Kenny Easley, whose feat set a team record.

"There's not much to say," San Diego Coach Don Coryell said. "All of us are embarrassed we played as poorly as we did. All we can look forward to is getting everybody pieced back together and be a spoiler."

Coryell had acknowledged last week that his team needed to beat the Seahawks to retain any chance of making post-season play. The Chargers are 4-5, with all five losses coming to fellow AFC West teams.

Krieg, a 53-percent passer coming into the game, humiliated San Diego's inexperienced secondary by finding Largent open three times for touchdowns and connecting on a 60-yard bomb to Daryl Turner and a 41-yarder to Byron Walker.

"We wanted to spread it around a little bit, (but) anytime Steve gets somebody one-on-one, it's time to do it," Krieg said of Largent, who dominated second-year cornerback Gill Byrd most of the evening.

Largent pulled in touchdown passes of 11 and 13 yards in the first half, and Norm Johnson added a 42-yard field goal to make it 17-0 at intermission. A 16-yard Krieg-to-Largent pass in the third quarter ended the scoring.

A ninth-year pro from Tulsa, Largent caught a pass for the 100th consecutive game in Seattle. His first touchdown came on his first reception of the night, the fifth straight game in which he has scored with his first catch.

"The first (touchdown) was meant for me, but the other two, I was just in the right place at the right time," Largent said. "The third one was kind of a scramble, but Dave has great downfield vision and he found me."

While Krieg was chewing up the San Diego secondary, Fouts was struggling to keep his composure as his offensive line collapsed around him. Fouts was hurried into several quick releases besides the six sacks, and finished with 24 completions in 39 attempts for 200 yards. The rushing game netted 48 yards on 23 carries.

Seattle Coach Chuck Knox was so pleased with those numbers that he awarded the game ball to defensive players and coaches.

Texas Christian Is Ranked For First Time In 22 Years

By The Associated Press
How 'bout them Frogs?

The Texas Christian University Horned Frogs are part of The Associated Press college football rankings for the first time since 1962.

"It's a great honor for the school and the players," TCU second-year Coach Jim Wacker said Monday night after the rankings had been announced, "but frankly, I'd rather wait until the season is over and see us ranked in the Top 20. Then it would stay there forever."

TCU, now 6-1, last made the Top 20 during a 6-4 campaign in 1962. You have to go back to 1959 to find the Horned Frogs in the final poll. They were seventh that year.

TCU beat Baylor 38-28 Saturday to clinch its first winning season since 1971. Its only loss was to Southern Methodist.

"We had a team meeting yesterday and talked about bowls and polls," Wacker said. "I think the players realize that you can lose it (the ranking) faster than a blink of an eye. We want all their concentration in Houston (Saturday's opponent). If we take care of our business, the polls will take care of themselves."

TCU, which is No. 20, replaced Penn State in the rankings. The Nittany Lions, 19th a week ago, lost 17-14 to West Virginia and fell out of the Top 20.

Washington, 8-0, remained No. 1 by turning back Arizona 28-12. The Huskies received 50 of 60 first-place votes and 1,184 of a possible 1,200 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

But Oklahoma, No. 2 a week ago, lost to Kansas 28-11 and fell to 10th place. Meanwhile, Texas moved up from third to second with three first-place votes and 1,121 points following a 13-7 victory over SMU, which fell from 14th to 19th, just ahead of TCU.

Nebraska walloped Kansas State 62-14 and rose from fourth to third with three first-place ballots and 1,076 points while Brigham Young jumped from fifth to fourth. The Cougars received the other four first-place ballots and 970 points after routing New Mexico 48-0.

Ohio State and LSU, the 6-7 teams a week ago, both lost and fell to 16th and 15th, respectively.

South Carolina, which cracked the Top Ten last week for the first time, vaulted from ninth to fifth by trouncing East Carolina 42-20. The Gamecocks' 7-0 start is their best ever.

"These young men are handling all this very well," said South Carolina Coach Joe Morrison. "And I think they'll continue to handle it well going into the game with North Carolina State."

Miami was idle last week but jumped from eighth to sixth. Oklahoma State defeated Colorado 20-14 and went from 10th to seventh.

Georgia, a 37-7 winner over Kentucky, shot from 13th to eighth, followed by Boston College, which defeated Rutgers 35-23 and climbed from 11th to ninth. The Second Ten consists of Auburn, West Virginia, Florida, Florida State, LSU, Ohio State, Iowa, Southern California, SMU and TCU.

Washington Atop Computer Rankings

Washington, top ranked for the past several weeks on the Associated Press and United Press International, has moved to the top of the Daily Reflector's Computer Rankings this week, edging past last week's leader Brigham Young.

Washington finished the week with a total of 320 points while BYU slipped to second place with a total of 306.

Points are awarded on the following basis. Each time Team A win, it is awarded six points. Each time a team beaten by Team A wins, four more points are awarded, and each time one of Team B's victims wins, two more points are awarded to Team A.

Teams are thus rewarded for their success against strength of schedule. Miami, Fla., and Ohio State are tied for the number three spot on the rankings, while West Virginia and Nebraska are deadlocked for fifth.

Texas comes in seventh, followed by Penn State and Fullerton State, tied for eighth. Louisiana State rounds out the top ten.

Fullerton, overlooked by the wire services until this week, made its first appearance in the UPI poll at number 20 this week, while it continues to be absent from the AP poll despite a 9-0 record.

The top 20 teams as determined by the computer program, run by Barry Adams for the Reflector.

Valkyries Gain State Semifinals

BURGAW — D.H. Conley's Valkyries rallied from six points down in the first game and pulled out a three-game decision over Pender County last night to reach the State Volleyball Playoff semifinals.

Conley won the opening game, 16-14, then lost the second game, 15-12. The Valkyries then came up with a 15-5 win in the final game to sew up the match.

The win sends Conley into the semifinals of the state tournament, to be played Thursday at a site and time to be announced. All four of the finalists will come to that site and

Davenport For Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jim Davenport has earned the chance to become manager of the San Francisco Giants and is ready for the job. So says his son.

"This place has been a madhouse, but it's pretty exciting," Gary Davenport, a former infielder in the Giants' minor-league system, said from the family's home Monday. "He deserves it."

A team source confirmed that the elder Davenport would be named the team's manager at a press conference today. He would take over for Danny Ozark, who replaced the fired Frank Robinson in mid-season on an interim basis.

Ozark said he did not want to manage in 1985.

Davenport, 51, has been a player, coach and minor-league manager during his 28 years in the Giants' organization. He could not be reached for comment Monday, although Gary Davenport said his dad has been "talking contract" with management.

Davenport was managing winter league ball in the Dominican Republic when Giants General Manager Tom Haller called him to come home last weekend for the announcement.

Club owner Bob Lurie, who is trying to sell the money-losing team to someone who will keep it in San Francisco, said he would attend the news conference.

Davenport was among five finalists for the manager's job. The others were Felipe Alou, Steve Boros, Joey Amalfitano and Rene Lachemann.

Boros said Monday he was told last week that he was not the Giants' choice. "Going by what everybody else has said, I'd assume it's Jimmy Davenport, and that certainly makes a lot of sense."

"He's an organization guy who has paid his dues, and an excellent baseball man," Boros said.

Davenport started as a minor league player for the Giants in 1955 after playing baseball and football at the University of Southern Mississippi, where he was a quarterback in two Sun Bowl games.

Goode Takes Grid Contest

James M. Goode of Rt. 11, Box 213, Greenville, is the winner of last week's Daily Reflector Football Contest.

Goode correctly picked the winners in 26 of the 32 games listed on last Tuesday's contest pages. His victory, however, came on the basis of his point total guess. His guess of 88 was closest to the actual total of 91 scored in Washington State's 50-41 win over Oregon.

Second place went to Dennis Hoard of 2604 Tryon Dr., Greenville. He also had 26 correct picks, but was further off the point total with a guess of 82.

Four other entrants also picked the winners in 26 games, but were still further off in their point total guesses. The tie between Pittsburgh and Navy was counted wrong since it is allowable to pick a tie under contest rules.

The next contest of the series appears on the following pages.

DUNKEL INDEX

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

Jordan Aids Woolridge

CHICAGO (AP) — Thanks to rookie sensation Michael Jordan, basketball is fun again, says Orlando Woolridge of the Chicago Bulls.

"There is a kind of magic in his ability to turn a game around and to instill in his teammates a desire to excel," Woolridge said after Jordan's game-high 37 points powered Chicago to a 116-110 win over the Milwaukee Bucks in the National Basketball Association's only game Monday night.

Jordan scored 22 of those points in the final quarter, breaking the club record of 21 in a single quarter set by Bob Love on Dec. 29, 1972, against the Boston Celtics.

"We did everything we could to stop Jordan, but our double-teaming efforts proved futile," said Bucks' Coach Don Nelson.

"It is too early to tell how good Michael Jordan is going to be, but tonight, he sure had the hot hand," said Bucks' guard Sidney Moncrief.

"I think he did something that few players can do upon entering the league, and that is to study his opponents and learn by their mistakes," Moncrief added.

It was only the third professional game for Jordan, a college All-American who was twice named Player of the Year at North Carolina. But he credited his performance less to his own talent than to an ankle injury slowing Moncrief.

"I told Coach (Kevin) Loughery that I thought I could take advantage of it by beating Moncrief to the hoop in the fourth quarter, and it worked," Jordan said after the Bulls had avenged their Saturday loss to the Bucks.

"I noticed that when the Bucks were trying to double team me, they left a wide gap in the lane that I was able to take advantage of," Jordan said. But he said Moncrief's injury was the greatest help.

"I became charged up emotionally late in the game," Jordan added, "because I know how important it is for the team to win in Chicago, and to get rid of the boobies (booming fans)."

"Basketball is fun again, thanks to Michael Jordan," said Woolridge, who was the team's second leading scorer with 30 points. "He is a laugh a minute on the court. I don't think he tries to be funny, but he is so upbeat and intense."

Jordan battled two Milwaukee players — Moncrief, who wound up with 28 points, and Terry Cummings, who had 26 — to bring the Bulls back from a six-point deficit with less than five minutes to play as he scored 13 of his team's final 17 points in a torrid fourth quarter.

He also played without the benefit of backup guard Quintin Dailey, who failed to appear for the game and could not be reached by club management — the second such no-show since Dailey was the team's first-round draft pick in 1982.

Dailey's last no-show was in December 1982, after which he requested a temporary leave of absence to seek psychiatric help for "extreme emotional stress." He returned to the team to play spectacularly, making the NBA all-rookie team, but later underwent drug rehabilitation.

He was given sixth-man status last season, but finished the season strong, at an 18.2-point scoring clip.

"We were forced to play without our sixth man, and it probably pushed Jordan even harder," Loughery said. "And thanks to his gutsy performance and a great show by reserve guard Wes Matthews, we were able to outscore Milwaukee."

Morrison Not Feeling Pressures At USC

COLUMBIA (AP) — For some coaches, a perfect season and the No. 5 national ranking would be heady stuff. But South Carolina Coach Joe Morrison says the pressures just aren't mounting.

"I don't think there's more pressure now than when we were 1-0, 2-0 or 3-0," Morrison said Monday. "It's about the same each week."

The Gamecocks, who until this season had never been ranked higher than 13th, are coping with the Cinderella season without difficulty, Morrison added.

"Our players have handled the pressure of being unbeaten and the rankings well the past two weeks and there is no reason why they can't continue," he said. "They realize it's hard work and keeping their minds on their business that's put them in this position. They know they've come a long way in the season to let up now and mess things up."

Morrison said he believed the Gamecocks would hold their poise going into this week's game against North Carolina State.

"Like they say, it's chemistry. It's something you can't describe; it's just there. But it sure means a lot to a team."

NC State Coach Tom Reed, whose

Wolfpack stands 3-5 as they wait for South Carolina to visit Saturday, says he enjoys seeing a team have that special chemistry.

"This team just has the right mixture that you can't put on a depth chart," Reed said. "South Carolina is playing great football right now."

"The chemistry... it's there. And it makes the difference between a good and great football team."

Reed, who dropped a 35-34 squeaker to Clemson last weekend, said the last two losses (28-21 to North Carolina a week earlier) were hard to stomach no matter how they were viewed.

"You pull a tooth and you're happy to get it overwith," said Reed. "It hurts. We've had two very difficult weeks."

CBS Movie Explores Teen-Age Suicides

By SCOTT KRAFT
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Network television occasionally takes a break from car chases and gunplay for powerful movies, such as "The Burning Bed," "Adam" and "Something About Amelia," that start from reality and create drama — rather than trying to make drama seem real.

"Silence of the Heart," tonight on CBS, is such a movie, a film with a superb cast and an unpleasant topic — teen-age suicide.

It may make you cry. It will not make you laugh.

But don't be turned away by the topic. "Silence" is neither didactic nor preachy, yet it has an interesting script that accurately shows what happens to people when a teen-age son or brother or friend commits suicide.

Two weeks ago, CBS presented an afternoon movie, "Hear Me Cry," about the subject, and later this season, ABC will examine the issue in the TV movie, "Surviving."

The statistics on teen-age suicide are these: one in 10 youngsters will attempt suicide before the age 19, more than 5,000 succeed every year, and the suicide rate among teen-agers has tripled in the past 25 years, according to federal figures.

But "Silence" is not about statistics.

It is about one 17-year-old, Skip Lewis (Chad Lowe), a normal kid from an upper middle class home who escapes his problems by pressing the gas pedal on his Camaro and driving over a cliff.

More than that, though, it is the story of his best friend, Ken (Charlie Sheen), his sister, Cindy (Dana Hill), and his parents, friendly and concerned folks played by Mariette Hartley and Howard Hesseman.

The movie opens with a string of adolescent cliches.

Skip's SAT scores are in, and they're bad. "It's not the end of the world, right?" Skip tells the school counselor.

Then Skip asks out the most popular girl in school and she declines.

"I thought I'd just turn 16 and get my own car and life would be great," Skip says. Ken advises him. "Sometimes you've got to just roll with the changes," Ken says.

By midnight, Skip is dead.

Skip had a bad day. But, as the film points out, suicide is not a spur-of-the-moment decision. Low SAT scores and bad luck with girls may have pushed Skip over the edge, but there is always more. Psychologists say thoughts of suicide are harbored for months before the ultimate action is taken.

Before Skip's parents can understand his suicide, they have to accept that it was a suicide. They want to believe it was simply a tragic car accident, but in the days that follow they realize Skip wanted to die.

They also learn, along with the viewer, that there were signs things were not OK. They were good parents, but they really didn't know their son.

Skip had quit his job and hadn't told his parents. He told a friend he felt like "a square kid in a round world." He kept a book of poetry written by a teen-age girl who committed suicide and made notations such as "dying is an art" in the margins.

There were changes in his behavior, too, changes so subtle they became clear only in hindsight.

These things really happen. Since 1982, it has happened to eight teen-agers in Plano, Texas, where 93 other youths have attempted suicide in that time. It has happened to 11 teens in the suburbs north of New York City this year. It has happened in the best homes, to the best offspring of the best parents.

"Silence of the Heart" explores why it happens, why it seems to be happening more often and ways to identify the danger signs in children.

Ms. Hartley is terrific as Barbara Lewis, a concerned mother who didn't ignore her children but just didn't know enough to recognize the subtle signs. Hesseman brilliantly plays Carl Lewis, the father steadfastly refusing to acknowledge that his son wanted to die.

Miss Hill, the eldest child in "Shoot the Moon," the 1982 Albert Finney movie that dealt with divorce, is energetic and convincing as Cindy, the sister who investigates Skip's final days and learns the truth.

Sheen, 18-year-old son of actor Martin Sheen, plays Skip's best friend with intensity. Like the others, Ken blames himself for not seeing the signs.

Anyone who knows an adolescent or is an adolescent will be better for having seen "Silence of the Heart."

FOCUS

Is Anyone Out There?

Scientists have recently produced the first concrete evidence of another solar system in the universe. It may be awhile before we visit it, however. Our new neighbor is 293 trillion miles away. At 25,000 miles per hour, it would take a space craft more than 1.3 million years to make the trip. If the universe were a building 20 miles long, 20 miles high, and 20 miles wide, all of the matter in it would add up to a single grain of sand.

Rather Says He Couldn't Bet On Reagan Landslide

By JOAN HANAUER
UPI TV Reporter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dan Rather says he's not a betting man — but if he were he wouldn't bet on a Reagan avalanche on election day. He wouldn't bet against it, either.

"I don't draw to an inside straight. I don't bet on the weather and I don't bet on politics," Rather said. "Politics are so unpredictable."

What about all those polls that show Reagan walking away with a second term?

"We journalists, and I include myself, have not done a good job of explaining polls. They may be accurate the instant they are taken," he said, "but they have the shelf life of fresh shrimp, which is to say they don't last."

"People don't always know what they think or they change their minds — I change my mind a lot. And people don't always tell the truth when some nose-pollster comes along."

"The most important thing to know is how short their shelf life is. The pollsters will tell you that if you ask. The pollsters are salesman — just like the politicians — and some of them could sell Raid to a roach."

Rather, who again will anchor CBS election night coverage, doesn't get bored covering politics — because it is unpredictable and because it is important.

"I'm always surprised," he said. "That's one of the nice things about covering politics. One of the things that never ceases to interest me about presidential campaigns is what subjects catch on and what subjects won't."

"I didn't say issues because voters seem to undergo an almost instant narcolepsy any time the word issues is mentioned, and I find myself the same way."

One topic that flared up during the second Reagan-Mondale debate was Armageddon.

"Every presidential year you have subjects that are a few people's favorites, make their way into the campaign and then are never heard from again," he said, citing Kimoy and Matsu, two islands off the coast of Taiwan that became a debating point in the 1960 Kennedy-Nixon debate and then returned to obscurity.

"So it is with Armageddon talk," he said. "I mean no sacrifice. I read Revelations and am as puzzled by it as the next person. But listening to what was said in the debate, I still am puzzled. I don't know what it has to do with electing a president."

Rather defended the network practice of taking exit polls to predict how a state would vote even before the polls close.

"They are one of my journalistic tools," he said. "They are designed to let the public know what the political pros know in their back rooms. For many years before exit polls, the polls did their own version and kept it to themselves. Modern journalists said, in effect, we are going to find out what those polls know."

He said at CBS News on election night, speed comes in fourth after accuracy, fairness and sensitivity and he added: "We never have and will not report results of exit polls before a majority of the polls are closed in any given state."

The debates themselves — well, Rather pointed out, they were not debates, but "expanded news conferences in which the candidates got to choose the questioners, had some say about the moderators and dictated the form."

He said in future he would like to see the candidates go face-to-face, "with rules very much as they were for my high school debating team and yours."

Looking back at the 1984 presidential campaign, he finds it historically notable.

"This is the year in which a black American for the first time ever walked into the convention of one of the two major parties as a viable candidate for the presidential nomination. For the first time there is a woman on one of the two major party tickets. Americans have adjusted to that."

"I think Americans adjust better than any other people in the history of mankind... ah, womankind... ah, peoplekind," Rather said with a laugh.

Critics Divided Over Rock Musical

LONDON (AP) — Critics are divided over whether "Chess," a rock musical by Tim Rice, lyricist for "Evita" and "Jesus Christ, Superstar," and two members of the Swedish pop group ABBA, is a checkmate or just a rook.

The musical by Rice, Benny Andersson and Bjorn Ulvaeus about an all-important chess match between an American and a Russian opened Saturday night in Barbican Hall.

Anthony Masters in The Times called the show "a bewildering range of borrowed musical styles," but said that "several numbers might, with promotion, be hyped into singles..."

Martin Hoyle in The Financial Times called it "as bland and wholesome — and forgettable — as a smorgasbord."

But Michael Billington in The Guardian praised the piece's "quasi-operatic structure and its musical eclecticism," and commended the London Symphony Orchestra for its "rich orchestral treatment."

More than 160 musicians and singers are participating in concerts of "Chess" this week in Paris,

Woman Led Anti-Nuclear Raid

LONDON (AP) — A 67-year-old woman says she organized a daylight raid on a British nuclear plant to show how easily nuclear materials for a bomb could be stolen.

Katerina Barnes said Monday she helped dig a tunnel under the main gate of the Sellfield nuclear reprocessing plant in northwest England and entered the grounds Sunday along with 20 other anti-nuclear protesters.

The women were inside the perimeter for several minutes before armed security officers confronted them, she said.

Opening lead: King of ♣.

Beware of contracts that look too easy. Who knows what dangers lie in store in the way of bad breaks?

The interesting point in this auction is North's bid of five no trump. That was intended not so much to find out about how many kings South had, but to confirm all the aces in case South had the values to go to a grand slam.

Against six hearts West led the king of clubs. It looked all too easy. Declarer won the ace of clubs and cashed the ace-king of trumps, and got the bad news that he had a trump loser, and possibly one in spades. Now he tried to set up a long diamond on the board to take care of a spade, but the 5-2 break ended that. No matter how he wriggled, at the end he had to concede a spade trick and a trump for down one.

It would have cost declarer nothing to ruff a club at trick two. Now when declarer learns of the 4-1 trump break, he has enough entries to overcome the unlucky distribution by scoring all his low trumps with ruffs. After the second round of trumps, declarer continues by cashing the ace-king of diamonds, sluffing a spade from hand, and ruffing a diamond.

The 5-2 diamond split is disconcerting, but not fatal. Declarer crosses to a high spade and ruffs a club, then gets back to dummy with the remaining high spade to lead another minor-suit card. If East ruffs any of the minor-suit leads from the table, declarer simply discards his spade loser. If East does not ruff, declarer scores all his low trumps, and the defenders' trump and spade trick crash together at trick 13.

Defendants Plead Innocent To Theft

LONDON (AP) — Three Londoners have pleaded innocent to charges that they committed Britain's biggest robbery — the theft of $37 million worth of gold bars, platinum, diamonds and travelers checks from a warehouse near Heathrow airport.

The 6,800 gold bars, along with the other valuables taken last Nov. 11, have never been recovered.

Hooded gunmen, believed to number six, broke into the Brinks-Mat security warehouse, overpowered the guards and doused two of them with gasoline to force them to hand over keys.

One of the guards, Anthony Black, was sentenced in February to six years in jail after telling police he was an accomplice.

Black began testifying Monday against the three men on trial in London: Michael McAvoy, Brian Robinson and Anthony White.

British press reports say five other men wanted for alleged involvement in the robbery are living in luxury in Spain, which has no extradition treaty with Britain. British police have confirmed they are "making inquiries" about other suspects in Spain.

Highway Crash

VALLADOLID, Spain (AP) — A military truck, a passenger bus, a light truck and two cars collided in heavy heavy fog, killing 13 people and injuring 33, the civil guard reports.

Killed in the crash Monday were five soldiers and eight civilians, the civil guard said. Five of the victims were relatives of the new Roman Catholic bishop of the Osma-Soria diocese, Jose Dieguez Reboredo. They had been returning home after Sunday's ceremonies installing the new bishop.

The pileup occurred near Simancas in north central Spain.

Former Raleigh Officer Found Dead In Texas

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The body of a former North Carolina policeman was named on a warrant in his wife's murder case was found floating in a pond after he apparently killed himself, authorities said.

The body of Alan Briones, 36, of Raleigh, N.C., was found Monday in a brush-covered area near here by mounted officers, said Christopher Kirk, a Brazos County Sheriff's investigator.

A Sheriff's Department statement released Monday said Briones apparently took his own life, said Ron Huddleston, a spokesman for the department.

Briones is named on a first-degree murder warrant in the death of his wife, who was shot to death Friday in a west Raleigh parking lot.

A car that Briones rented on Friday in Raleigh was found abandoned in southern Brazos County.

Kirk said a sheriff's posse searching near a farm pond found Briones' body Monday morning in a pond about 100 yards away from the rented car. Briones apparently suffered "a massive wound to the head," he said.

Kirk said no weapon was found, but divers were combing the bottom of the stock pond searching for the two pistols Briones was believed to have been carrying.

"My information is that he had suicidal tendencies and that he was heavily armed," Kirk said.

Huddleston said autopsy results were not yet available Monday night.

Kirk said authorities believe Briones died on Saturday because heavy rains on Sunday would have blotted out any tracks made before then. There were no tracks around the pond, said the investigator, indicating that Briones entered the water before the rains.

Briones grew up in Victoria and served in the police department there for a year. He then joined the Raleigh police force, but was fired in 1981. The Briones couple separated six months ago and authorities said the former officer had been living with his mother in Victoria. He was last seen there on Oct. 19.

Brazos County sheriff's deputy Charlie Owen said Briones was thought to have been taking anti-depressive medication and was known to have suicidal tendencies.

Helms Tells Kinston Group Hunt's 'Consummate Liar'

By The Associated Press
The U.S. Senate campaign between Republican Jesse Helms and Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt continued to heat up as Helms called the governor "a consummate liar" and Hunt accused the two-term incumbent of being a lifelong opponent of Social Security.

"I think the most disappointed I've ever been with anybody has been with the governor of North Carolina, who simply cannot tell the truth," Helms said at a Kinston campaign appearance Monday. "Over and over again he has deceived the farmers, he's deceived the textile workers and he's deceived the people with whom he's been working...."

"I have come to the conclusion that Jim Hunt will say anything if he thinks it will give him some political gain," Helms added.

Hunt was joined Monday by former Social Security Administration deputy director Robert Ball in charging that Helms is trying to scare voters about the future of the Social Security system.

Hunt said Helms is a lifelong opponent of the program while he is a lifelong supporter of it.

"When he is not trying to scare senior citizens and working people, Senator Helms is trying to confuse them with worthless paper guarantees and with private alternatives to Social Security to actually make young workers pay double," Hunt said.

Meanwhile, Helms charged Monday that Hunt has received more money from labor unions than any U.S. Senate candidate in history and would be a puppet for the unions. But the governor said he is pleased to have their support and would maintain his independence.

In other action involving the U.S. Senate race, Helms' campaign officials said they would file a complaint with the Federal Elections Commission alleging Hunt used various committees to hide improper campaign contributions.

Claude Allen, a Helms for Senate spokesman, said "the record shows that the North Carolina Campaign Fund, the Jim Hunt Committee (state), the Jim Hunt (Senate) Committee, the Democratic Victory Fund and the Governor's Office of North Carolina have all operated as one committee to elect Jim Hunt to the United States Senate."

Allen said lawyers investigated the committees after Democrats asked the FEC to rule on possible illegal ties between Jefferson Marketing and the National Congressional Club, two groups with ties to Helms. Rep. Charlie Rose, D-N.C., has claimed Jefferson Marketing and the Congressional Club are arms of the same organization and were used to disguise contributions to Republican candidates.

Hunt spokesman Will Marshall said the complaint was "silly and frivolous."

University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill basketball coach Dean Smith has agreed to appear at a campaign breakfast for Hunt in Fayetteville Wednesday, said Maureen Clark, co-chairman of Hunt's campaign in Cumberland County.

In Asheville, four Republicans led by former Department of Correction Secretary David Jones endorsed Hunt, saying Helms had undermined North Carolina's integrity.

"He represents an era I'm afraid of, and that's McCarthyism," Jones told reporters. "He labels people. If he's that negative here, he's that negative in Washington."

Allen, contacted at Helms headquarters in Raleigh, said he "doubted very seriously" that the Hunt campaign did not officially sanction the conference.

Buncombe County residents Robert and Mary Proctor and Polk County resident Ralph Rogers were also introduced by Jones as Republicans for Hunt.

Rogers said his 15-year career of charity work led him to speak out against what he called Helms' bigotry and lack of concern for anyone but himself.

Allen responded that Rogers' comments were "absurd" and that Helms' campaign is aimed at "all people, black or white."

The Lexington Dispatch also endorsed Hunt Monday, saying his election represents a choice "between good and evil, between decency and indecency, between what is best for this state and this country and what is worst."

Democrats announced Monday that presidential candidate Walter Mondale and vice presidential hopeful Geraldine Ferraro will appear live on a satellite television hookup at a Raleigh fundraising party Tuesday. Meanwhile, Republican officials said President Reagan will not visit North Carolina this week, despite earlier reports that Reagan might come to the state to help Helms and gubernatorial candidate Rep. Jim Martin, R-N.C.

Martin said Monday a letter on his old campaign letterhead accusing Democratic opponent Rufus Edmisten of "boozing and a womanizing" is a fake.

Martin, at a news conference, said the letter had not been received by any Martin supporters, nor was it distributed by the Martin campaign.

"So far as we can determine, there exists only one copy of one page of an apparently two or more page letter," Martin said. "It is patently a fake."

Edmisten aides had said the letter was distributed in Guilford County.

Martin said the letter might have been circulated by political enemies of Edmisten or that Edmisten's campaign may have trumped up the letter in a last-minute bid for support.

Helms Advances Standing In Charlotte Observer Poll

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Republican incumbent Jesse Helms has moved ahead of Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt in their U.S. Senate race, while President Reagan's support among North Carolina voters continues to grow, Charlotte Observer polls show.

Helms led Hunt 47 percent to 43 percent in the telephone survey of 1,038 registered N.C. voters conducted Oct. 24-27. That is a reversal of polling results three weeks ago in the volatile U.S. Senate race.

The latest poll also showed strong gains for Helms' fellow Republicans on the ballot statewide. Reagan's lead over Democrat Walter Mondale increased, and Jim Martin overtook Democrat Rufus Edmisten in the governor's race since the earlier poll Oct. 1-4.

The poll shows Martin leading Edmisten for the first time. Martin was the choice of 47 percent of those polled last week, while his Democratic challenger was the choice of 41 percent, according to the poll.

About 11 percent were undecided, the poll showed.

Reagan led Mondale 60 percent to 32 percent in the latest poll, with about 8 percent undecided.

In North Carolina, Reagan led Mondale by margins of up to 20 percentage points in Observer polls published in June, September and early October. But the new poll was the first time Reagan's support topped 55 percent in the state.

By contrast, Mondale fell from a high of 37 percent in a post-Labor Day poll to his lowest level of the year. Even his support among blacks and women, his strongest pockets of support earlier this year, has diminished.

"If you analyze it as of today, it looks like a Reagan victory," said former U.S. Sen. Robert Morgan of Lillington, Mondale's N.C. campaign chairman. "I'm not saying it's not winnable, but I'd certainly say the odds are against us."

Despite the comfortable lead, GOP strategists refused to predict victory for Reagan in North Carolina. But they expressed confidence.

"The only thing we worry about is apathy," said Nancy Teem, executive director of the N.C. Reagan-Bush campaign. "We're worried that people will see these polls and stay at home."

Behind the gains for the three Republicans was a sharp rise in the number of voters describing themselves as registered Republicans. That trend, reported by other pollsters elsewhere in the country, follows a Reagan visit to Charlotte Oct. 8, an improved performance by Reagan in his second debate with Mondale Oct. 20, and a jump in the president's re-election advertising.

In the Helms-Hunt race, 9 percent of the respondents said they were undecided or refused to state a preference, and 1 percent said they preferred other people.

The Observer Poll conducted Oct. 1-4 showed Hunt leading Helms 46 percent to 42 percent, with 11 percent undecided. A poll conducted just after Labor Day showed Helms ahead, 48 percent to 45 percent, with 5 percent undecided.

The polls' margin of error is plus or minus 3 percentage points at a 95 percent confidence level. That means the poll numbers will vary no more than 3 percentage points in 19 of 20 similar samples. That sampling error means Hunt could lead Helms 46 percent to 44 percent, or Helms could lead by as much as 50 percent to 40 percent.

In each poll, respondents were asked, "Now thinking about the U.S. Senate election in North Carolina, if the election for U.S. Senate were held today, would you vote for Democrat Jim Hunt or Republican Jesse Helms?" Interviewers alternated the order in which the candidates' names were read.

The results were weighted according to the respondents' intentions of voting and their voting history. Answers of respondents likely to vote/counted more than those less likely to vote.

Edmisten led the last Charlotte Observer poll, conducted Oct. 1-4, by a 50 percent to 37 percent margin.

Based on answers to the poll's questions, the survey results were adjusted so responses from people likely to vote counted more than responses from people who indicated they are less likely to vote.

However, part of Martin's gain may be attributed to a change in the way the poll was conducted. To minimize the "coattail" effect that one race might have on another, questions concerning choices for president, U.S. Senate and governor were rotated in this poll, the newspaper said.

The question on the governor's race was asked first about one-third of the time, second about one-third of the time and third about one-third of the time, the newspaper said. In the previous poll, all respondents were asked about the senate race first, governor's race second and presidential race third.

The newspaper said the change in the poll came because it is "constantly refining" its polling procedure. It also said that the latest poll produced a "probable electorate" that was larger than in the two previous polls done by the newspaper.

The newspaper said that the change, when applied to two earlier surveys, produced no significant differences in the results.
