Sikh Guards Slay Indira Gandhi

Her Son Takes Top Spot

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi was assassinated today outside her home, mortally wounded in a barrage of bullets reportedly fired by her own Sikh bodyguards.

The slaying of the woman who dominated Indian political life for two decades threatened to plunge this troubled nation into new turmoil. Her son, Rajiv, was quickly sworn in to succeed her.

One or two of the gunmen were reported killed at the scene of the shooting, for which Sikh extremists claimed responsibility. "We have taken our revenge!" one militant proclaimed.

Mrs. Gandhi, 66, had been under heavy guard for months because of assassination threats from Sikhs angered by her crackdown on militant members of the sect in Punjab state.

She was shot after she emerged from her house at 9:20 a.m. (10:50 p.m. EST) to make a video recording.

"Suddenly, out of the blue, two persons carrying Sten guns — one uniformed and one in civilian clothes — shot at Mrs. Gandhi," the United News of India reported. "Eight to 10 bullets ... hit her." Informed sources said she was shot from just seven feet away, UNI reported.

Mrs. Gandhi, clad in an orange cotton sari, was rushed to the All-India Institute of Medical Sciences. Doctors said she died four hours later.

"She is no more," a member of her governing Congress Party announced to more than 100,000 people surrounding the hospital. Cries and sobs rose from the throng. Many prayed or beat their breasts.

Furious Hindus chanting "Kill the Sikhs! They have killed our mother!" attacked turban-wearing Sikhs in the vicinity with sticks and chains. At least 15 were reported injured.

Doctors said she was shot in the heart, abdomen and thigh. There were reports she had been shot possibly as many as 16 times.

"Despite the best efforts by a team of doctors ... she could not be

Sikh Sees Death As Political Act

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

The assassination of Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi early this morning by two Sikh members of her bodyguard should be viewed as a failure of democracy and not solely as a Sikh action, East Carolina University Socioligy Professor Avatr Singh said in a telephone interview today.

Singh is a Sikh and is a native of the Punjab state — the northwestern Indian state most heavily populated by Sikhs. A professor at ECU for the past 14 years, Singh has also been active in the Asian Studies Program for 10 years.

Preferring to call Mrs. Gandhi's past actions anti-democratic, Singh said that that comments labeling Mrs. Gandhi the "Indian Hitler" are extreme. "There are always those who will use such an extreme example such as Hitler and these

Martin Says Gap Closed In East

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

U.S. Rep. Jim Martin, at Pitt-Greenville Airport Tuesday afternoon for a news confrence, said his campaign for governor has "moved foward in every region of the state" and has "closed the gap in the east."

Citing a statewide Charlotte Observer poll released earlier Tuesday that gave Martin 47 percent and Democrat Rufus Edmisten 41 percent, with 11 percent undecided, the Republican candidate vowed to continue the "high road" campaign which he said was responsible for closing the gap.

Earlier polls have given Edmisten the lead, with an Observer poll conducted in early October giving Edmisten 50 percent to Martin's 37 percent.

But Martin stopped short of predicting victory in the Nov. 6 election. "The bad news is polls don't win the election for you."

Martin said he is "encouraged that there has been that continuing momentum that Edmisten so far has not been able to halt. I think that's because he's been trying to do it with

I would like to appeal through Hotline for participants in a research study on day care. Morehead Nominees Selected

Three Pitt County high school seniors, two from J. H. Rose High School and one from Ayden-Grifton High School, were selected Tuesday as nominees for the annual John Motley Morehead scholarships at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

Selected from Rose High School were Anne-Lynne Davis and Leigh Katherine Lanier, and from Ayden-Grifton, James David Wiggins. A six-member committee interviewed the 16 nominees to select the three who will now advance to the District 1 competition to be held in Williamston in early 1985. District I is comprised of 18 northeastern North Carolna counties. Seven nominees are selected from each of the state's 10 districts to compete at state level in the spring.

The selection committee is chaired by Dr. William S. Bost of Greenville. Other members are Gay Blocker of

Poles Mourn Priest

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Lech Walesa appealed for calm as stunned Poles today mourned a pro-Solidarity priest whose body was found in a river in northern Poland 11 days after his alleged abduction by three members of the secret police.

At St. Stanislaw Kostka church in Warsaw, where the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko's sermons defending Solidarity used to draw several thousand people, lights from hundreds of candles flickered before dawn today along the flower-strewn gates surrounding the building.

Polish authorities on Tuesday suggested the priest might have been abducted and slain as part of a broader conspiracy.

Before the announcement that police frogmen, braving the icy waters of a reservoir on the Vistula river, had found the body on Tuesday, the Communist government had said that three Interior Ministry officers — a captain and two lieutenants — would be charged with the Oct. 19 kidnapping.

Government spokesman Jerzy Urban said the three were members of the secret police.

At St. Stanislaw's a middle-aged worker from the Ursus tractor factory near Warsaw brushed away

GUC Adopts Rate Hike

Members of the Greenville Utilities Commission Tuesday night adopted new electric rate schedules which will raise rates, depending on the class of customer, from 2.62 percent to 9 percent. The new rates will take effect with bills rendered on or after Nov. 1.

The new electric rates are based on a recently completed cost-of-service rate study, and take into account a 5.2 percent increase in the wholesale cost of power which took effect Oct. 1, and a 2.7 percent wholesale hike on Jan. 1, 1984.

Under the new rates, the average residential customer using 1,000 killowatt-hours per month will see a $6.29 monthly increase in summer bills — from $71.50 to $77.79 — and a $7.07 per month increase in winter bills — from $67.86 to $74.93.

The increases, according to customer class, include: 9 percent for residential service, 8.06 percent for small and large general service, 2.62 percent for county, city or Housing Authority all-electric building service, 6.5 percent for seasonal general service, 4.49 percent for outdoor lighting service, 4.5 percent for county, city or housing authority outdoor lighting, and 4.48 percent for sports field lighting service.

Collection Kicks Off Spring Fashion Preview

By MARJORIE ANDERS
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Cool comfort in cotton bermudas, T-shirts and jumpsuits highlight the kicky couture of Willi Smith for spring 1985.

Williwear's ready to wear collection shown Monday features five groupings of mix and match separates, including all white, pale plaids and loud prints on black.

A swingy, front-button skirt was pinned open to reveal loose crop pants and topped with a mustard, waist-tied sleeveless shirt in Smith's "Sugar Cane" collection. The skirt, in subtle cocoa and cream pinstripes, also came paired with loose, sleeveless T-shirts, although the armholes were cut so low as to be risque.

For men, there were cropped pants in neutral plaids with untucked shirts and unbelted jumpsuits in sand and gray stripes. Bandana and gauze headbands complemented the field-hand look.

White-tasseled bucks with matching anklets and wide, white headbands set off the "Country Club" grouping, Smith's tribute to Long Island.

Gathered skirts in windowpane plaids of slate, daffodil and lime were topped with short, rolled-sleeve shirts, opened to reveal white T-shirts underneath.

White short-sleeve men's undershirts were rolled up over the sleeves of topping shirts for his version of the preppy look. Wide side-button skirts in apricot windowpane plaid were worn alone or over matching shorts or cropped pants.

In a slightly more formal vein was the "Metropolis" look, featuring sharp suits for men and knee-length skirts and oversized shirts for women.

Smith offered his version of the big shirt in both black and white worn over small button-up shirts in the opposite color. Straight skirts came in checked and striped versions of gray, brown and black or in a silvery, diamond-pattern stripe on a black ground.

Double woven blue and white cotton gave a flecked appearance to a royal blue suit with wide lapels and cuffed, pleated trousers. Worn with a white button-down shirt and a thin plaid tie of brown, red and purple, the suit could fit in any office.

The "Los Angeles" look was not so subtle.

Chartreuse, stop-light red and cobalt blue splotches on black or white backgrounds showed up as drawstring pants and shorts.

In one version, the fabric showed up as a white terry-lined beach robe with hood and sash over matching trunks.

Smith's summer whites came under the "Punch and Judy" rubric. Mannequins in high-top sneakers, gloves and floppy punchinello hats sported baggy collarless jumpsuits and bermudas with big tops - all white.

One more flattering version paired a short box-pleated shirt and plain shirt with a billowy duster coat with dolman sleeves and a tie belt.

SUNTANNING BOOTHS

"When the weather turns cool, many summertime sunworshipers turn to tanning booths to keep up their suntans. Yet, according to Dr. David Woodley, as assistant professor of dermatology with the University of North Carolina School of Medicine in Chapel Hill, excessive exposure to the ultraviolet radiation given off by lights in suntanning booths can result in premature aging, skin cancer and possible eye damage," says Dr. Robert Ehinger, health director, Pitt County Health Department.

This Priest Entitled To Have Lipstick On Collar

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday, while walking down the street hand in hand with my wife and two daughters, we noticed many hostile stares, and received nasty comments from some of the people who passed by.

Why? Because as a priest of an Eastern Orthodox Church, I wear the traditional black suit and white collar, but it is generally assumed that I am a Roman Catholic priest who has "strayed" and is flaunting it publicly.

Abby, you would be doing approximately 1,500 married Orthodox priests and thousands of Episcopalian priests in the United States a huge service if you would inform your readers that not all priests are Roman Catholic, which is the only church that forbids its priests to marry.

As for the rest of us, we are happily married husbands and fathers.

THE REV. FATHER
JOHN BARTKE,
ST. MICHAEL ORTHODOX CHURCH, VAN NUYS, CALIF.

DEAR FATHER BARTKE: Thank you for a letter that is sure to educate many, and I hope will still a gaggle of wagging tongues.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Mad in Dallas," who complained because her husband had to pay $330 a month in child support to his ex-wife who lives in a $100,000 condo:

First, "Mad," let me congratulate your husband. He is one of a minority. In 1982, about 8.4 million households should have been receiving child support. Of these, only 2.9 million actually received anything at all, and only 1.89 million received the full amount ordered!

One of the biggest problems in the child support program is the lack of standardization of awards. Let's hope one of the provisions of the new Federal Child Support Law will fix that. That law requires each state to develop standards for the child support awards by Oct. 1, 1987. These standards will almost certainly take into consideration the needs of the child and the resources available to both responsible parents.

Please encourage your husband to continue paying. The one who will most appreciate it in the long run is his child.

WILLIAM D. KIRBY,
DIRECTOR, VERMONT
CHILD SUPPORT PROGRAM

DEAR MR. KIRBY: Until I saw my mail concerning child support, I had no idea there were so many millions of people who were angry about it. Let's hope the new Federal Child Support Law will fix the injustices. But instead of a cure, let's consider a prevention.

Hello, young (and old) lovers, wherever you are, hear this: It's all right to fall in love with a person who has children by a previous marriage, but don't marry until you figure out how much will be left after the child support is paid.

Love may be lovelier the second time around, but the law says, "First families come first." It may not be fair, but who said life was fair?

CONFIDENTIAL TO SUFFERING A TERRIBLE LOSS IN VANCOUVER: My condolences, sir. The philosopher Arnold Toynbee put it this way: "There are two parties to the suffering that death inflicts, and in the apportionment of this suffering, the survivor takes the brunt."

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Since the 1950s, recipes for chicken salad to which grapes are added have abounded. Much less known is shrimp salad made with grapes.

I myself had never tasted the combination until recently, when I came on a recipe in which the shrimp and grapes are marinated, then served with lettuce, avocado and mayonnaise. Finely chopped scallion or fresh chives make a flavorful garnish. It's a recipe for two or three, but it can easily be doubled. My tasters liked it and so did I.

Two varieties of seedless grapes are excellent to use in this recipe: Thompson Seedless, which varies from light green to golden, is available through November. Ruby Seedless, brilliantly red and comparatively new in markets, is available through January.

SHRIMP AND GRAPE SALAD

- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 3 tablespoons white wine vinegar
- 2 teaspoons Dijon mustard
- Salt and pepper to taste
- ¾ pound medium shrimp (cooked, shelled and deveined)
- 1 cup halved seedless green or red grapes
- Lettuce
- Avocado slices
- Scallion or fresh chives, finely chopped
- Mayonnaise, preferably homemade

In a 3- to 4-cup shallow bowl, whisk together oil, vinegar, mustard, salt and pepper.

Cut each shrimp in half lengthwise; fold into oil-vinegar mixture with grapes. Cover tightly and refrigerate for about an hour.

At serving time, arrange lettuce on individual serving plates; add shrimp-grape mixture. Garnish with avocado and scallion. Pass mayonnaise.

Makes 2 to 3 servings.

Note: If you buy cooked shrimp, you will need 8 ounces.

Homemaker's Haven

By Evelyn Spangler
Pitt Home Agent

The Consumer Product Safety Commission recommends that the consumer observe these important basic safety suggestions when using a kerosene heater:

— Never use gasoline; even small quantities of gasoline in the heater tank can cause a fire. Only use 1-K kerosene. Kerosene should be purchased from a dealer who can certify that what is being sold is 1-K grade kerosene. Just because kerosene is "water clear" does not ensure that it is 1-K since 1-K and 2-K can appear clear.

— Keep children away from the heater and warn them against touching the heater. Do not allow children to operate or refuel a kerosene heater. Store kerosene out of the reach of children.

— Some people may be more susceptible than others to the gases given off by kerosene heaters and other sources of combustion in the home that are not vented to the outside. People who may be particularly susceptible to these toxic gases are those with asthma, respiratory disease or heart disease. Additionally some individuals may become more susceptible to cold or flu infections after prolonged exposure to these gases. If you are concerned that you may be sensitive to the pollutants produced by kerosene heaters consult your physician.

— Do not use a kerosene heater in a closed room. A well-ventilated area reduces the chances of the build-up of toxic gases. Provide adequate ventilation — as recommended by the manufacturer — when using a kerosene heater; for example always open the door to the room with the kerosene heater to provide air exchange with the rest of the house. If your home is tightly sealed and well insulated you should open a window slightly to provide fresh air while the heater is in use.

— Set the wick height according to the manufacturer's directions. It is especially important not to turn the wick below the manufacturer's recommended setting. If the room temperature becomes too hot, either turn off the heater for a while or increase ventilation by opening an additional door or window. The amount of heat produced by the heater should not be regulated by lowering the wick. A partial glow in the burner usuasly corresponds to a wick setting that is too low. This sometimes can cause very high internal heater temperatures which may pose a fire hazard and cause less complete combustion which may increase the discharge of toxic gases.

— Be certain the kerosene heater is operating properly. Maladjustment of the wick setting or inadequate ventilation can cause persons in the home to experience headaches, nausea, breathing difficulties or symptoms similar to a cold.

— In case flare-up or uncontrolled flaming occurs do not attempt to move or carry the heater. Do not attempt to extinguish a kerosene-heater fire with water or blankets. In most instances the safest procedure is to leave the area and immediately call the fire department. If your heater is equipped with a manual shut-off switch, activate the switch to turn off the heater.

— Do not leave the heater unattended when operating. Do not operate the heater while occupants are sleeping or confined to the bed.

— Do not attempt to move the heater, remove the fuel tank or refuel the heater when it is operating or still hot.

— Do not fill the tank past the point at which the guage indicates full even though the fuel tank will not be filled to the top. As the heater burns the kerosene warms up and expands. The air space in the fuel storage tank is designed to ensure safe operation while providing for the fuel expansion.

— Read and follow the manufacturer's operating instructions. A good practice is to read aloud the instructions and warning labels to all members of the household to be cewrtain that everyone understands how the heater is to be operated safely. Keep the owner's manual in a convenient place to refer to when needed.

Mondale

We have the chilling feeling there is a consensus in the nation that everything is all right — no inflation, no one making waves and the good times will roll.

We wish we could share the belief. Unfortunately the nation has problems — many old ones we have not yet solved and some new ones created by a rapidly changing world economy.

There are those who want us to believe that inflation is over, that the Reagan administration has applied some magical formula and ended inflation for the foreseeable future. Don't believe it for a moment. The raging inflation of a few years ago was due to the huge increases in oil prices which the oil interests decreed. That was reflected in higher interest rates and higher rates of inflation. Certainly what we have seen is only the first leg of the oil price increases. As demand increases, we will be told another shortage of oil is upon us and there will be an upward lurch in the price of gas and other fuels, with consequent higher inflation rates.

The Reagan administration appears not to be considering this or doing anything to get ready for it. The administration is also ignoring the huge deficits it is rolling up in each year of the Reagan presidency.

These are problems that must be addressed, and if not by this president then by someone else. Most of our social problems are traced back to poverty and the Reagan administration has few plans for improving the plight of the poor. Our foreign policy is in disarray and our international standing can become worse if the Soviets solve their own problems of weak leadership.

We must have a president who understands the crushing problems our nation faces, both domestically and in foreign affairs.

Walter F. Mondale offers that leadership. He is certainly well experienced in government. He exhibits an understanding of our needs as a nation and he offers comprehensive plans for attacking our problems. There has never been a time when the United States more needed new leadership and new thinking. We recommend Mondale for president.

Fun Night

There's more than ghosts, witches, goblins and assorted monsters out there on Halloween; there are real hazards posed for small trick-or-treaters. Adults bear the burden of responsibility for assuring children regain the safety of home after their annual "night out." (It would be smarter if their visitations were made before sundown.)

Because the welfare of children is a responsibility of grown-ups, we'll join those many other voices of precautionary reminders:

It is, of all nights, an occasion for driving slowly on city streets and on roads of populated areas. ... Some smallfry in dark clothing may assume they have the right of way and be struck down by a driver who also thinks their way is clear;

Children should be accompanied and not be out alone;

Adults-in-charge are often advised to see children remain within their own neighborhoods. We join that chorus;

The goodies given trick-or-treaters are usually safe; but because of an occasional "weirdo" out there we are reminded it is safer by far to restrain childish appetities until they are home when their guardian angel can verify the safety of their treasures.

Another point for extra care is sometimes overlooked — mask-wearers may require a larger field of vision than that provided by small holes in their masks. Check'em out. There's no point in stumbling over an unseen object and scrape elbows, knees and small chins.

Halloween should be a fun-night with happy memories. Keep it that way.

The Case Of A Missing Proofreader

There has been some slight consternation in Washington about a CIA manual written for rebel forces fighting the Sandinistas in Nicaragua. I called up my mole at the Central Intelligence Agency to find out how they were taking it.

"We're all cool," he said. "The problem is you just can't find good proofreaders any more."

I asked, "What was the purpose of the manual?"

"To help our freedom fighters overthrow the Marxist government of Nicaragua by kidnapping, assassination and blackmailing civilians," he said.

"What is the difference between a freedom fighter and a terrorist?"

"A freedom fighter is financed by the CIA. A terriorist is supported by the KGB, Qadaffi and Khomeini."

"But according to your manual the methods used in achieving the goals are the same."

"They might seem that way to the uninformed reader. While freedom fighting requires using tactics similar to terrorism, we part company with terrorists when it comes to which ends justify which means."

"I thought the United States was against all terrorism."

"The United States is, but the CIA isn't. That's why President Reagan has ordered an investigation to find out who put out the manual. He was shocked to hear we were making our freedeom fighters into terrorists."

"Why was he shocked?"

"Because he obviously didn't know about it."

"Why didn't the CIA tell him what it was doing?"

"If the president knew what we were doing he couldn't be shocked, could he?" The United States does not condone political assassinations nor the overthrow of a legitimate government by force."

"But the CIA does?"

"Somebody has to stand up for America."

"How can the United States protest acts of terrorism in Beirut and condone them in Nicaragua?"

"You have to differentiate between apples and oranges. In Beirut we see examples of wanton terrorism against innocent people, while in Nicaragua our freedom fighters use their skills against despots and dicatators."

"Every terrorist thinks of himself as a freedom fighter."

"That doesn't make him one in our eyes. He has to pass a test."

"What's the test?"

"Does the terrorist act he commits have the sanction, if not the financial support, of the CIA? If it does, the terrorist is officially certified as a freedom fighter."

"And then he is permitted to read the manual?"

"That's correct. It says right on the cover of the manual, 'For Freedom Fighters Only.'"

"Suppose it is read by a terrorist?"

"Then we'll pull is teeth out."

"Are any heads going to roll at the CIA for embarrassing the president? Will you do anything to the guy who wrote the manual?"

"Not at the moment. But when things quiet down, he'll probably get a medal and a promotion."

"How is Director Bill Casey taking it?"

"He was even more shocked than the president."

"Because of the contents of the manual?"

"No, because somebody in the agency leaked it. If there is one thing that sends the director up the wall, it's having a freedom-fighter textbook fall into the hands of a ruthless terrorist press."

Windfall Is Unlikely

WASHINGTON — Education Secretary Terrel H. Bell has taken the lead on a question that's bound to raise the anxieties of already self-consumed college students: Are four years sufficient time to earn a degree in computers and become a Renaissance man or women, too?

The answer, Bell suggests, is no. Citing a new study, "Involvement in Learning: Realizing the Potential of American Higher Education," he says that a fifth year may be needed in certain undergraduate programs to arrest the "increasingly early encroachment of professionalism into liberal arts." While such a move might mean additional burdens on student finances, he adds, "We need to have broadly educated men and women" if the United States is to maintain its standing in the world.

But extra semesters offer no assurance that they'll be well-spent. As Bell well knows, it's quality — not quantity — that counts. Students are already confused about the value of liberal arts; if the five-year plan is to receive official sanction, educators will need to clarify the ambiguities.

Undergraduate America's gradual abandonment of the humanities is an open sore. As "Involvement in Learning" points out, the share of bachelor's degrees awarded in professional or vocational programs rose from about half to almost two-thirds between 1971 and 1982. Freshmen aren't even going for the life sciences as they used to; not coincidentally, degrees in business administration and engineering enjoy a healthy demand.

Computer science and electrical engineering, for example, are so hot at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology that the school may have to trim enrollment in both programs. One-fourth of MIT's undergraduate student body has signed on with the electrical engineering department.

Meanwhile, a mastery of the humanities — history, language, geography, literature, etc. — appears more needed than ever. According to "Involvement in Learning," scores in 11 of 15 categories of the Graduate Record Examinations declined between 1964 and 1982.

Every professor as his or her own horror story. But one of the more astounding comes from a geography prof at California State University at Fullerton, who recently found that three-fourth of his freshman class couldn't locate El Salvador. Fewer than half of his students even knew where Atlanta was; many confused Japan with New Zealand.

The seven authors of "Involvement in Learning" suggest that two full years of liberal arts education would help to alleviate such ignorance. One member of the panel, Zelda Gamson of the University of Michigan, adds another incentive: Since, on the average, people change jobs at least five times before their 40th birthday, "liberal arts provide (them) with a range of skills and attitudes that help them in all aspects of their lives."

Some students would hardly notice the shift. Several schools, in fact (among them Williams College and MIT), have jointly run professional programs of five or more years since the 1950s, according to President Mark Curtis of the American Association of Colleges.

But a five-year program in business administration, engineering and other professions would, if initiated at most colleges and universities, invite a predictably skeptical response. How, for example, do you assure an aspiring David Packard that an extra year of Kierkegaard and Hemingway will give him a reasonable rate of return on the $5,000 or more it will cost?

You can't — with much ease at least — stretch the economic benefits too far. While it's said that good writing and literary skills are at a premiun these days, the writers and readers still appear to be waiting tables. With some exceptions, tips don't make for early loan repayments.

But there is some economic allure to what might seem superfluous.

Public Forum

To the editor:

First, I would like to say that I am a registered Democrat and voted in the Democratic Primary. I was elected to serve three terms on the non-partisan Greenville City Council, but had to resign because of illness.

I am disturbed by the biased news coverage that we have been getting during this campaign, both on television and in the local papers. The Democrats' fund-raising meet down on the coast makes the front page; but when the president of the United States visits North Carolina, that is on page six.

Gov. Hunt has stressed education during his eight years, but teachers' pay dropped from 21st in the nation under Holshouser to 42nd under Hunt. The teachers' 15 percent pay raise looked good for him during this election year, but this was no pay raise, only a releasing of funds allocated by the Legislature four years earlier, which he had frozen for the past three years. I can understand why we might be facing a teacher shortage. I know a teacher who recently left for Georgia where he could earn $6,000 more per year.

What kind of coverage did Sen. Helms get when he came to town? Imagine the difference if Rooseyelt Grier had come supporting Hunt. And what about the comment on the editorial page, that you still respect Grier in spite of his endorsing Helms, as if he had committed an unpardonable sin? I am not questioning your right to make such a comment there, only your coverage of the event. The editorializing should be confined to the editorial page and not be so obvious in the news items.

I am a Democrat, but I base my vote on the person and what he stands for, not his party label.

Keep us informed with the facts, being fair and equal to both sides.

StrengthFor Today

There may be some decline. Certainly the modern home is different from the home of 75 years ago. But any objective observer would have to admit that the best homes today are better than any homes we have known in the past.

One thing is certain — the home is what we make it. When two people set themselves to build up a loving home in which unselfishness and high moral standards prevail, they practically always succeed. Of course, there are exceptions. Things happen in every area of life for which there can be no satisfactory explanation. But on the whole, our homes are what we make them.

If we address problems with devotion, the chances are that our homes will be a source of life's deepest happiness.

Split Ticket Voting Simplified

RALEIGH — A recent change in the procedures for ticket splitting when a voter "pulls the party lever" apparently has some people confused.

The political grapevine is full of horror stories about the new procedures. The stories always end up with a voter's ballot being invalidated.

"They are either totally irresponsible people or they totally misunderstand what the court did," Alex Brock, state elections director, said of the people spreading the rumors. His reference was to a 1982 court suit which led to the Legislature's changing the ticket splitting procedure. The procedure is simple, he said.

There are four kinds of ballots in North Carolina voting precincts. Brock explained the procedure for voting a straight party ticket and then crossing over and voting for a member of another party. Let's assume that the voter in these examples wants to vote a straight Democratic ticket but wants to vote for Republican Smith instead of Democrat Jones for the office of library commissioner.

On "mechanical machines," Brock says the voter would pull the Democratic lever but, before pushing it back, the voter would push up the individual lever assigned to Jones and flip down the lever for Republican Smith. In this way, the voter will have voted a straight Democratic ticket with the exception of the race for library commissioner. In that race, the voter would have supported Smith, the Republican.

At the top of paper ballots, there is a circle underneath the name of each party. To vote a straight party ticket, just fill in that circle. Then, if you want to support the Republican Smith, go to the box beside his name and check it. When the votes are tabulated, Smith will get your vote for library commissioner and Jones won't.

There are two other kinds of ballots, the sensi-mark and punch card. With both, the process is just like that for the paper ballot, Brock said.

"Every precinct will have a sample of the ballot on the wall or door. Anyone who is unsure should study it and if you have any questions, ask for help," he said.

Brock is expecting the largest turnout in state history. "We'll have a tremendous voter turnout and that is very gratifying because that is what everyone has been trying to accomplish."

But with such a large turnout, there will be lines at the polling places. Brock says a little planning can save the voter some time.

Generally, the shortest lines will be found in the morning, after the early morning rush that lasts from 6:30 to about 8:30. Anyone who can get free to vote before lunch, or after lunch but before the evening rush hour, will save time, he said.

There may be variations from this in individual precincts, Brock said, but every precinct is fairly consistent in its voting pattern. If you don't know a good time to vote in your precinct, he suggests you call your precinct judge and ask for advice.

One final note for those who have moved. A recent state law allows you to vote, even if you did not notify the elections board of your change of address. You should go to your old precinct and pick up a validation slip. Then, you go to the county board of elections where you'll be allowed to vote.

National Economy Shows Another Downward Trend

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said today its main economic forecasting gauge rose a modest 0.4 percent in September. But a revision in the August data showed the economy was headed down for a third straight month — a trend that has signaled previous recessions.

The Commerce Department reported that the September gain in the Index of Leading Economic Indicators followed a slight dip of 0.1 percent in August and steep drops of 1.7 percent in July and 0.9 percent in June.

The Reagan administration and many private economists have said the index is not infallible and has in the past signalled a recession when none came.

Optimists argue now that while the index may be signalling slower growth, no recession is on the horizon.

Other economists, however, contend that at the very least the country is on the verge of a "growth recession" — a period when the economy grows at such a sluggish pace that unemployment rises.

The last time the index fell for an extended period was from May through October 1981, when there were five monthly declines as the country slipped into the 1981-82 recession, the steepest downturn since World War II.

In another bit of gloomy news, the government reported today that the nation's foreign trade deficit soared to its second-highest monthly total on record. The $12.6 billion imbalance was 27 percent above the August figure of $9.9 billion but slightly below the $14.1 billion previous record of July.

The United States is on the way to its worst trading year in history. Through September, the trade deficits totaled $96.3 billion, well above the $69.4 billion deficit for all of 1983. The government is predicting the 1984 total will hit $130 billion as a strong U.S. dollar entices Americans to buy a flood of foreign goods while U.S. exporters find their goods are more expensive on overseas markets.

Eerie Feeling

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP) — James Petersen, who first took his "Playboy Advisor" column on the lecture circuit a year ago, says it gave him an eerie feeling he was reliving his campus life in the mid-1960s.

"The very first question I got at the very first lecture I did was, 'What do you think of premarital sex?' I couldn't believe anyone was still using the word 'premarital,'" Petersen said this week.

The Playboy magazine columnist said that "the level of conservatism on campus is astonishing," and that today's students are more straitlaced than those of 20 years ago, and worry more about grades and success.

"Quite frankly, the bottom line is if you are that afraid for your future, you don't have a present," he said.

Social Security Will Raise Some Benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two million Social Security beneficiaries who had earnings in 1982 will get benefit increases averaging $21 a month in December, plus retroactive payments averaging $480, the agency's acting commissioner says.

Some 500,000 others may eventually get higher monthly benefits when the agency finishes double-checking their earnings records from 1982, Martha M. McSteen said Tuesday.

These increases are in addition to the 3.5 percent benefit hike that will show up in all 36 million beneficiaries' checks in January.

When a beneficiary keeps working, the government automatically keeps tracks of earnings to see if he or she is entitled to higher benefits by replacing a year with low earnings. The beneficiaries do not have to request the readjustment.

On another topic, Mrs. McSteen said a moratorium on disability reviews is likely to last until April, by when she expects to have new regulations out dealing with reviews of mental impairments and setting new standards for medical improvement ordered by Congress.

A disability reform measure that President Reagan signed earlier this month put the agency on deadline to get those regulations out, and will require it to re-review "hundreds of thousands of cases," she said.

Panel Seeks Crackdown On Crime Money

NEW YORK (AP) — Calling banks and brokerage firms "part of the problem" of money laundering by organized crime, a federal commission has called on financial institutions to help crack down on people who disguise the origin of dirty money.

"The clearest way to put the mob out of business for good is to get at the mob's money," said James D. Harmon Jr., director of the President's Commission on Organized Crime. "For law enforcement to work, banks must deny the mob access to their financial institutions."

At a news conference on Tuesday, commission officials said the source of billions of dollars from criminal enterprises are concealed through money laundering devices.

In a typical money laundering scheme, cash from illicit operations is deposited with banks or brokerage houses. It is often wired overseas and returned in the form of "clean" transactions whose original source cannot be traced.

The commission charged that financial institutions aid such schemes — unwittingly in some cases, knowingly in others and through "deliberate indifference" in still others. It said the sums involved may reach $10 billion in narcotics money alone, two thirds of which moves through domestic financial institutions.

Dan Buser, spokesman for the American Bankers Association in Washington, said the proposals would create "the greatest witch hunt in this nation's history." He said the Bank Secrecy Act already requires banks to report all transactions involving more than $10,000, and charged federal agencies are failing to review those reports.

The commission contends banks are lax in complying with the Bank Secrecy Act.

"They're trying to make the banks the big brother system in America for policing the country. It just won't work," Buser said.

The panel proposed a federal law against laundering money earned through illegal enterprises associated with organized crime. Violators would face five years in jail and fines up to $250,000 or double the amount of the transaction.

Another proposal would amend the Right to Financial Privacy Act to permit financial institutions to give investigators specific information that might be relevant to a violation of federal law. It also would prevent falsely accused citizens from suing banks that acted in good faith.

The panel also suggested criminal obstruction-of-justice action against banks that notify their customers of federal inquiries, and said suspected banking violations should be sufficient grounds for the courts to authorize wiretaps.

"The commission's recommendations are designed to do no less that render unprofitable organized crime," said Judge Irving R. Kaufman, the commission chairman.

The 89-page report was delivered last week to President Reagan.

"Whether they know it or not, banks are part of the problem," said Harmon.

"We think the persons in the best position to know whether or not money is being laundered through banks or other financial institutions for criminal purposes is the banker himself," Harmon said. "It's the first rule of banking practice to know your customer."

He said by banks, he also meant "brokerage houses, exchange firms, and casinos."

The report is the first of several interim reports the commission is expected to issue before March 1986, when it must deliver its complete findings.

PTA Wants Records Rated

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The 5.4-million-member national PTA is waging a mail campaign urging that records be rated like movies to shield children from lyrics that are profane, sexually explicit, violent or vulgar.

A record industry representative said it is not the job of record companies to screen records, and suggested that parents be the first ones to listen to the albums their children bring home.

Recordings should be tagged with "something that could identify what some folks might find offensive and inappropriate for children," said Elaine Stienkemeyer, national PTA president.

"This is not censorship — that would be out of the question," she said. "It was the feeling of delegates the music be labeled for no other purpose than consumer protection."

'Devil's Night' In Detroit Sets Off Big Arson Spree

DETROIT (AP) — Firefighters scrambled to answer more than 250 calls and homeowners pitched in with garden hoses as the traditional Halloween Eve "Devil's Night" erupted in flames. Police said today 17 people were arrested on arson charges.

Fearing a repeat of last year, when more than 400 structures burned in a 24-hour period, Mayor Coleman Young launched what he called "an uprecedented" campaign to rewrite the history of Devil's Night, a traditional evening of pranks that in recent years has taken a destructive turn.

Young tripled the number of police on duty Tuesday night, put searchlight-equipped helicopters in the air and rearranged firefighters' schedules to increase by one-third the number available for duty.

He also mustered an army of 1,400 volunteers to patrol the streets from cars equipped with citizens band radios, and increased personnel in the 911 dispatching center.

About 250 calls were logged Tuesday night, including one to an apartment building, said Fire Commissioner Melvin Jefferson. However, the number of fires — most of which were in abandoned buildings or trash piles — could not be immediately determined because many were reported several times, said Deputy Police Chief James Bannon.

Seventeen people were arrested on arson charges, police said.

Three firefighters were injured slightly, but returned to duty after treatment, said firefighter Marvin Beatty. No details of their injuries were available, and no other injuries were reported.

Fire damage appeared to be less severe this year than in 1983, when firefighters were forced to pass by burning abandoned buildings with each new report of blazes in schools, businesses and residences, Jefferson said.

"The difference is we have things under control," he said.

Two firefighters were injured and one man killed last year.

Firefighters on Detroit's east side found themselves accompanied by an audience of as many as 100 people who trailed along to watch them battle fires that started in succession throughout their neighborhood.

"I don't understand it," said Darnell Griffith, one of several volunteers using garden hoses to fight neighborhood fires. "Ain't no jobs, no nothing, and you've got to come and put your own fire out. It's pitiful."

For the first time since the race riots of 1967, suburban fire departments were called in to assist city firefighters, said Young's press secretary, Robert Berg.

The city got an unplanned rehearsal for Devil's Night. Berg said more than 200 fire alarms were logged between midnight Sunday and 8 a.m. Tuesday. More than 100 of those were trash fires, 28 were at dwellings and another 28 were set in cars.

Normally, Detroit has 100 to 115 fire reports a day, he said.

Fire officials in the enclave of Highland Park said they responded to more than 30 fires — up from the usual four or five per night.

Explosions Rock Vessel, Leave Two Men Injured

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two explosions early today aboard a 660-foot merchant vessel off the northern California coast injured at least two men and sent flames shooting 100 feet in the air as the ship burned, the U.S. Coast Guard said.

Most of the 27 crew members were evacuated from the sinking ship, which was carrying a 20 percent load of petroleum products, said Coast Guard Seaman Paul Gardner.

The explosions at 3:25 a.m. aboard the ship called the Puerto Rican threw at least two crewmen into the water about 10 miles outside San Francisco Bay, Gardner said.

The cause of the explosions was not immediately known.

"There's a fire from bow to bridge," Gardner said. "The vessel is said to be listing heavily, and it's taking on water. It's very likely" that it will sink.

One injured crewman suffered severe burns in the blast, which tossed both him and another man into the icy sea, Gardner said. The injured were flown by helicopter to Crissy Field in San Francisco, where they were transported to Letterman Army Medical Center at the Presidio, Gardner said.

Details on the second man's injuries and the victims' conditions were not immediately available.

The pilot of an Coast Guard airplane, in the area on an unrelated mission, first spotted the fire, which he said sent flames shooting as high as 100 feet into the air, Gardner said.

A Coast Guard helicopter and several rescue craft, including firefighting vessels, were dispatched to the scene.

The ship was en route to Panama, Gardner said.

When Walter Jones Asks For Your Vote...

Walter Jones

Ask Him Why He Wants To Cut Defense.

Is it because he truly believes, as he has stated, that the best way to cut the deficits is to cut defense?

Or is it because he has voted consistently with Tip O'Neill and the House Liberals against the President's efforts to make America strong again?

The record is clear. Congressman Jones voted for a one-sided Nuclear Freeze ahead of the President's arms reduction negotiations.

He voted for placing the Nuclear Freeze ahead of replacing obsolete US weapons. He voted for reducing defense appropriations and against the President's MX missile program.

Though he publicly admits not knowing much about the space defense program, he has stated that he is "not inclined to support it." Congressman Jones should know that our tests have been so successful, the Soviets are racing to complete their space defenses and are so concerned about our technological potential they have expressed a willingness to negoiate space limitations...Congressman Jones, in effect, has given the Soviets veto power over our space defense program.

Congressman Jones voted against economic aid to stop Soviet, Cuban, PLO, and Lybian sponsored revolution in El Salvador. Against military aid to stop a communist takeover in El Salvador and against aid to contra freedom fighters in communist Nicaragua!

And, in a vote to help US labor unions, Congressman Jones voted against trade and tax preferences for the small Central American counties...aid which would help them develop economically.

As Herb Lee has said, "this is not a policy of enlightenment, it is a sell-out."

Is it any wonder Walter Jones refuses to debate the issues with Herb Lee?

Mondale Notes 'Something Happening'

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

Walter Mondale is disputing the polls before large, emotion-filled crowds, while a confident President Reagan suggests the election may bring a major political realignment and says it is no coincidence "the most blighted areas of the country" are heavily Democratic.

With less than a week left to try to close Reagan's huge lead in the polls, Mondale enjoyed huge receptions in his home state of Minnesota and in a candlelight parade through the streets of Chicago late Tuesday before thousands of people.

The Democratic nominee attacked the president as an enemy of Social Security and Medicare, and coupled with it in every appearance an insistence that the public opinion polls — which give Reagan leads of 17 to 24 percentage points — are wrong.

"Something on the street is happening that's just not in the polls," Mondale said.

"All over the country people are moving, people are thinking and they are cutting through the fog."

Reagan was at the same time cautious, warning supporters against over-confidence, and bold, saying his campaign could be the beginning of "a historic electoral realignment."

Reagan said his campaign is attracting Democrats and "people who have never voted for us before."

And he said many who have supported Democratic candidates have never seen their fortunes improve.

"It is no mere coincidence that the most blighted areas of the country — places of desperation — are areas that have been political strongholds of the other party for many years," Reagan said.

The president didn't elaborate, and spokesman Larry Speakes said, "I think I will leave that at the other end of the 10-foot pole."

Reagan was remaining in Washington again today, visiting the Reagan-Bush '84 campaign headquarters for a brief speech to the troops. He leaves Thursday on a trip that will take him across the country, ending in California on Tuesday, Election Day.

Mondale was in Chicago and heading to Louisville, Baltimore and Buffalo today.

The running mates, Vice President George Bush and Democrat Geraldine Ferraro, were out on the hustings, too, Ms. Ferraro in Philadelphia where she hurled Halloween barbs at the president.

"Throughout this campaign he has disguised himself as a believer in arms control and a friend of the great Democratic leaders of the past, John Kennedy and Harry Truman," she said. "Now I know it's almost Halloween, but anyone can see through that disguise."

After facing anti-abortion heckling, she responded with her strongest attack yet on the anti-abortion Reagan administration, citing its cutbacks on the "Food for Peace" program as thousands are starving in Ethiopia.

"It amazes me," she said, "that people who are allegedly pro-life don't care about the living."

Bush, campaigning for Republican congressional candidates in Illinois, returned fire at "Doonesbury" creator Garry Trudeau, whose comic strip has repeatedly lampooned the vice president.

Bush said the cartoonist was "carrying water for the opposition" and "coming out of deep left field." A spokeswoman for Trudeau said he would have no comment.

Among those Bush campaigned for was Rep. Dan Crane, R-Ill., censured last year for sexual misconduct.

"We need more Cranes and fewer (House Speaker Thomas P.) O'Neills in Congress," Bush told a rally.

Earlier in Mississippi, Bush recalled that Mondale's political mentor, the late Hubert Humphrey, was known as "the happy warrior," and said:

"Mr. Mondale in this campaign has been the unhappy warrior, and the American people are not going to buy that gloom and doom and pessimism of Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro."

Mondale's campaign, meanwhile, has begun airing a commercial featuring a mushroom-shaped cloud, children and nuclear missiles; it was reminiscent of the controversial 1964 commercial Lyndon Johnson used that showed a child picking daisies, then a nuclear blast.

The Mondale ad shows a group of children playing in a circle or looking through a window. Then, silently, a mushroom-shaped cloud appears and missiles are seen being fired from silos.

Said Reagan campaign spokesman John Buckley: "If that's the kind of campaign he wants to run, we're certainly not going to demand an apology like he does every eight minutes."

Papers Pull 'Doonesbury' Cartoon

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The St. Petersburg Times is hearing angry reaction from some readers after it decided not to run this week's "Doonesbury" comic strips poking fun at Vice President George Bush.

"I expected reaction. I got it," said Times Managing Editor Mike Foley.

The newspaper told readers it found the comic strip "offensive, lacking in taste, and, therefore, not suitable for publication."

In an article published Tuesday, Foley explained to readers that editors had labored over their decision for two days because the material "deals with George Bush's 'manhood' and continues with variations on that theme all week."

After a brief editors' note appeared in place of Gary Trudeau's work Monday, reaction was swift. Foley said he was called "arrogant ... a communist ... a fascist ... a liberal ... a god ... a demagogue and a dummy."

Some wanted to know "Why did you censor the comics? Why don't you let your readers decide?"

Foley also said some callers were pleased with the move by the newspaper, which has endorsed the Democratic presidential ticket.

Defending the decision not to use the comic strip this week, Foley said:

"It came down to this: Would we print a story by one of our writers that contained a double-meaning comment that we considered in bad taste? Our answer: No. So, why should we print such a double-meaning joke on the comics page?

"Our decision was strictly a matter of taste. It has nothing to do with politics... It is not our right to edit material — all the material — that appears in our newspaper. It is our duty."

Foley said "Doonesbury" will be back on Saturday.

Mondale Ad Features Mushroom Cloud

WASHINGTON (AP) — Walter Mondale's campaign is airing a commercial featuring a mushroom cloud, children and nuclear missiles, one of several ads an aide says are aimed at "shaking people up, unsettling them."

The advertisement, aired on network television in the final week of the campaign, is akin to a controversial commercial President Lyndon Johnson's campaign ran briefly in 1964.

All the while, a melodic song from the early 1970s, "Teach Your Children" by the group Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young, plays in the background.

President Reagan's campaign is not particularly bothered by the Democratic challenger's ad, said spokesman John Buckley.

"If that's the kind of campaign he wants to run, we're certainly not going to demand an apology like he does every eight minutes," Buckley said.

The spot is being run alone as a 30-second segment on network television, and as the lead-in to a five-minute Mondale ad.

The longer segment was played on all three networks at the same time Sunday — a so-called "roadblock" in which the candidate's message dominates commercial network television for a period.

The longer piece includes clips from a speech by John F. Kennedy urging arms control and criticism of President Reagan's plan to put weapons in space.

Viewers were urged to call a toll-free number if they wanted to volunteer their time. "The response has been overwhelming, incredible," said campaign spokesman Scott Widmeyer. He said more than 5,000 people had called.

Buckley said the Reagan campaign considered the five-minute piece "terrible" because it was "so disjointed," moving from section to section.

The children and mushroom cloud spot harked back to 1964 when Johnson, seeking re-election against Republican Barry Goldwater, had an ad showing a little girl plucking petals from a daisy while a clock ticked down to zero. The next scene was of a nuclear blast.

The commercial made no mention of Goldwater, but it was pulled off the air following Republican protests.

Two years ago, Edmund G. Brown Jr., then governor and running as a Democrat for the U.S. Senate in California, commissioned a spot that ended with a mushroom cloud and a child saying: "I want to go on living."

Jogger Saves Marine Whose Arm Was Severed By Train

CHICAGO (AP) — When Leo Elizondo heard screams as he jogged to work and saw a man bleeding on the railroad tracks, one arm severed, he knew from experience exactly what to do.

"I knew what kind of pain he was going through. A few years ago, I had a similar accident when my hand was cut off," Elizondo said Tuesday. "He had a jumping rope on his jacket, so I tied a tourniquet around his arm."

Vincent Rodriguez, 31, a lieutenant in the U.S. Marine Corps, survived the ordeal, but unlike Elizondo, could not have his limb reattached.

An avid runner, Elizondo, 36, normally jogs the 2½ miles to work at Flex-O-Glass Inc., and always takes the same path, which leads him under the bridge that supports the train tracks.

As he approached the tracks Tuesday morning, he said, he thought he heard a cry for help. He emerged from the viaduct amid the din of the rumbling freight train and he heard the sound again.He knew someone was in trouble.

He scrambled up the railroad embankment to find Rodriguez.

"He was screaming he didn't want to die and that he'd bleed to death."

After tying the tourniquet around the bleeding stump, Elizondo dragged the 160-pound Rodriguez down the embankment to the street where he tried to flag down passing cars."That is something I'll never forget. I was down there on the street for at least 10 minutes and the people never stopped," he said.

One motorist finally did stop and called police.

On the trip to St. Anne's Hospital, Elizondo held the tourniquet firmly in place, telling Rodriguez, "You're going to be OK."

Baby Sets Survival Record

LOMA LINDA, Calif. (AP) — As ethical questions accumulate about the case of Baby Fae, the longest-lived recipient of an animal-to-human heart transplant, the doctor who gave her a baboon's heart is avoiding the limelight, "totally absorbed in nursing this child."

The 2½-week-old infant, whose name and exact age are being withheld, completed her fourth full day with the baboon's heart at 11:35 a.m. Tuesday, surpassing the record set in 1979 by a South African accountant who lived 3½ days with a chimpanzee heart.

Baby Fae, weighing in at 5.7 pounds, remained in serious but stable condition, smiling occasionally, drinking from a bottle every three hours and sleeping intermittently under an oxygen tent, said Loma Linda University Medical Center spokeswoman Joyce McClintock.

Officials Tuesday released the first videotape and color photographs of the infant, and said she showed no signs of rejecting the heart. They said their initial report that the baby was breast feeding was incorrect.

Dr. Leonard L. Bailey, 41, who performed the transplant Friday, didn't attend a Tuesday news conference to hail Baby Fae's milestone.

Instead, other doctors responded to key ethical issues raised by critics: Whether a human heart transplant or experimental corrective surgery would have provided a less risky means to deal with Baby Fae's fatally underdeveloped heart and prolong her survival, and whether her parents were fully informed.

But Baby Fae's mother didn't think much of the critics.

"I was riding in an elevator with (Baby Fae's) mama, and somebody asked her about all this," said Dr. John Mace, pediatrics department chairman. "Her answer was: 'Bull. They don't know what they're talking about.'"

Bailey hasn't appeared at a news briefing since Sunday because "he is totally absorbed in nursing this child," said Dr. David Hinshaw, a surgeon. "He is not a publicity seeker and he is very sensitive about this."

Dr. Ted Mackett, the university's transplant services chief, added, "He's been camped out on the floor taking care of this patient hour by hour... Dr. Bailey feels like he would not like to sensationalize the issue."

Animal rights activists first criticized the operation for sacrificing the baboon and causing ultimately useless suffering to the child. Controversy among doctors began when the transplant team confirmed it had not sought a human organ donor.

The dispute over corrective surgery came up Tuesday.

However, Mackett said Tuesday the heart of a potential human donor, a 2-month-old baby, didn't become available until after the Friday morning baboon transplant — settling the issue raised Sunday night.

The director of the Southern California agency that procures donor organs for transplants had said the human heart was available the same day as the transplant. Until Tuesday's clarification — confirmed by the organ agency — Loma Linda doctors said there wasn't enough time to see if the heart was compatible with Baby Fae's body, then said it was too small.

Medical critics remained unsatisfied.

Nakasone To Get His Second Term

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone's Cabinet resigned today to permit the formation of a new government after legislators in his ruling Liberal Democratic Party unanimously endorsed him for a second term as party leader and prime minister.

Because the Liberal Democrats have a majority in the Diet, Japan's parliament, the party's president automatically becomes the prime minister. The party, which despite its name is basically conservative, has governed Japan since 1955.

Nakasone, 66, will be officially installed by Emperor Hirohito on Thursday, along with the rest of the new government. He becomes the first prime minister since 1972 to serve more than a single two-year term.

Nakasone is expected to continue his commitment to fiscal austerity, reform of the nation's railway and telecommunications corporations and, in foreign affairs, strong links to the United States and other Western democracies.

In a news conference after his re-election today to the top party post,, Nakasone said he would "accept with humility criticisms" of his first two years in office and "continue my policies of carrying out administrative, fiscal and educational reform."

Among key ministers expected to keep their posts in the new cabinet are Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe, Finance Minister Noboru Takeshita and Economic Planning Agency chief Toshio Komoto. Abe and Komoto, along with former Foreign Minister Kiichi Miyazawa, were considered Nakasone's chief rivals for the party leadership.

The ministers turned in their resignations at a special meeting this afternoon called by Nakasone for that purpose.

The official party selection came after several weeks of often-bitter debate among party elders and senior officials over Nakasone's leadership and his ties to former Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, who is now appealing his conviction for taking bribes to promote Lockheed Corp. aircraft in Japan.

Chilean Protestors Defy Police Curfew

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Demonstrators battled police early today, defying a curfew imposed to curb violence that took at least six lives during one of the largest protests in 11 years of military rule.

Residents in at least a dozen working and middle-class districts in Santiago reported that demonstrators erected flaming barricades and threw rocks at riot police deployed in the capital by President Augusto Pinochet's military regime.

Authorities said 38 people were injured, including 16 police officers, and 48 were arrested as a Marxist-called national strike crippled public transportation Tuesday and erupted in disorders in scores of Santiago neighborhoods.

All of the reported deaths occurred on Tuesday, the second straight day of protests calling for an end to military rule and a return to democracy. The showdown only seemed to harden Pinochet's resistance to moving Chile quickly toward democracy.

Pinochet threatened in a speech Monday to declare a state of siege if the situation got out of hand. He also ruled out prompt legalization of political parties or any change in the four-man junta's perogative to name Chile's president in 1989.

Police and military patrols moved through Santiago streets to enforce the 10 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew imposed by the Santiago military commander, Gen. Rene Vidal. At least three helicopters hovered above the city after the curfew started.

Despite the defiance of the off-the-streets curfew, reports indicated that the patrols did not move against the demonstrators but kept watch on some key areas and guarded strategic points such as power plants, government installations, subway stations and tracks.

The soldiers were only seen in the streets after the curfew began. Earlier during the protests, riot police confronted the angry demonstrators.

Several neighborhoods were blacked out, apparently by demonstrators who knocked down overhead power lines by throwing chains at them.

Martin ...

attacks on my record, which is a good, solid conservative voting record. And he's probably helping me to win as many supporters as he can cost me by that."

Martin voiced concern over a "mystery letter" produced by Edmisten at a news confrence last week allegedly sent to Martin supporters in Guilford County.

The letter, on stationary like that used during the summer by the Martin campaign, and dated Oct. 2, read in part: "You can't say everything in ads. You can't talk about his boozing and womanizing. You can't talk about sorry people around him. Gamblers and dopers. You've got to get the word out yourself."

The letter also mentioned Edmisten's divorce and repeated Martin charges about how Edmisten, as attorney general, failed to fully prosecute Southern Bell for a political slush fund and highway contract bid-riggers.

"That's something we've never done ... never would do and never will do," Martin emphasized.

Martin said "the truth" about the letter is "none of our people received it," and "so far as we know, only one page" exists. "None of our people distributed it or ever heard of it until the Edmisten news confrence."

Martin said several theories have been put foward to explain the origin of the letter, including one "very intreaging theory" by Raleigh radio station WPTF that "it's an old ploy that Mr. Edmisten may have used routinely in the past, as part of their bag of tricks.

A review of news clippings, Martin said, shows "an astonishing pattern of some similar anti-Edmisten controversy having been regularly disclosed by Rufus Edmisten and successfully exploited by him just two weeks before any close election."

But "regardless of how it originated," Martin said, "it's clear that they made a strategic decision to go very public with it," and "I've offered an apology of sorts," although "regardless of which theory you prefer ... the letter is a fake."

In addition to his "positive campaign approach" of citing reasons for voting "for Martin, not against my opponent," the candidate suggested another factor in his improved standing is his proposal to repeal state sales tax on food and drugs, to be done in stages, along with a staged repeal of inventory and intangibles taxes.

"I'll campaign hard as a Republican," Martin said, "to build strong two-party politics" in North Carolina. But he said, because of a "mutual respect" that exists between him and Democratic members of the General Assembly, "we'll work together after the election is over" for the betterment of North Carolina.

In addition to his stop in Greenville, Martin campaigned in Kinston and Wilmington before traveling to Asheville for a "Halloween Hapening" where "state employees have been told to put on their masks and come on out."

In the past, Martin has accused Edmisten of making state workers fear for their jobs if they support Martin in the campaign for governor.

Assassination Threatens New Turmoil For India

saved," said Dr. A.N. Safaya, the hospital's medical superintendent. He said she died at 2:30 p.m., correcting an earlier report putting the time of death at about 11:30 a.m.

The United News of India and a former foreign minister both said three security guards were involved in the attack, but UNI said only two fired on Mrs. Gandhi. There were conflicting reports as to whether one or two of the gunmen had been killed by other security guards.

The million-strong armed forces was placed on alert, and police sealed off New Delhi and surrounded Mrs. Gandhi's residence and the hospital, three miles away.

The Cabinet met in emergency session, and national legislators of the Congress Party unanimously chose Rajiv Gandhi, 40, as the new prime minister, a government spokesman reported. The former airline pilot, a member of Parliament, was then sworn in by President Zail Singh.

Unlike her predecessors, Mrs. Gandhi, prime minister for 15 of the past 18 years, had not designated a deputy prime minister or a Cabinet minister to succeed her.

It had been expected that her son might be sworn in as her temporary successor because he is effectively India's No. 2 leader as the first among five general secretaries of the Congress Party. National elections had been scheduled to be held late this year or early next year.

Rajiv rushed to New Delhi from the eastern state of West Bengal, where he was addressing a public meeting, after hearing his mother had been shot. He entered the hospital to view her body, security guards said.

In Washington, White House spokesman Anson Franklin said President Reagan has been notified of Mrs. Gandhi's death and "expressed deep personal sorrow." Secretary of State George P. Shultz called it a "despicable act."

A former foreign minister, Atal B. Vajpayee, head of the right-wing Indian People's Party, said government officials told him three of Mrs. Gandhi's security guards fired on her. He said all three were Sikhs and that two were shot dead by other security guards while the third was wounded and hospitalized.

United News of India reported three security guards were involved in the attack but only two opened fire.

The news agency said one, identified as police sub-inspector Beant Singh, aged above 40, was killed by other guards. Another, 26-year-old police constable Satwant Singh, was wounded. Singh, which means lion, is a name given to virtually all Sikhs. The report said the wounded guard was "out of danger" and would be interrogated.

In a later report, UNI quoted informed sources as saying Singh returned to Mrs. Gandhi's security detail three days ago after a leave of two months in Punjab.

Several hours after the shooting, an unidentified caller told The Associated Press office in New Delhi: "We have taken our revenge! Long live the Sikh religion!"

Asked who he was, the man said: "This is the action of the entire Sikh sect." Then he hung up.

Mrs. Gandhi has been bitterly condemned by Sikh leaders for her government's handling of recent violence in the northern state of Punjab. In June, Indian army troops besieged and then assaulted the Golden Temple, the Sikhs' holiest place of worship, in Amritsar.

Mrs. Gandhi said the action was necessary to root out Sikh terrorists who were waging a campaign for independence. The Sikhs, a breakaway Hindu sect, comprise 13 million of India's 740 million people. Almost 600 Sikhs and army troops were killed in the temple attack by official account, but military and police sources put the death toll at more than 1,200.

A Sikh exile in London threatened to kill Mrs. Gandhi shortly after the Golden Temple attack. The threat was made by the self-styled president of the Sikh movement for a separatist state to be known as Khalistan, and it was broadcast by the British Broadcasting Corp.

The prime minister, who had returned to New Delhi late Tuesday from a two-day election campaign tour in eastern Orissa state, spoke in a Tuesday night speech of the possibility of her death, referring to threats against her and saying, "I don't mind if my life goes in the service of the nation."

Despite the troubles with Sikh militants, Sikhs have remained in high and trusted positions in the Indian government — including important security posts. The government has said repeatedly the great majority of Sikhs are loyal and patriotic citizens.

Mrs. Gandhi was the daughter of Jawaharlal Nehru, who led India as prime minister for 17 years after independence from Britain in 1947. She would have been 67 on Nov. 19, and was elected prime minister four times, the last time in 1980.

She was not related to Mohandas K. Gandhi, considered the father of modern India, who was assassinated in 1948 by a Hindu fanatic opposed to his tolerance for India's Moslem minority.

Singh ...

kinds of things. (However,) her policies became more and more authoritarian and in that respect she had transgressed and violated some of the principles of democracy people — Muslim, Hindus, Christians, Sikhs — saw in her," he said.

"Their inital view of her ... (was as) a symbol of democracy and human rights and they had high hopes that she would uphold these principles. She has done certain things that are very commendable, but I think the failure was in her approach to democratic accomplishments ... that she used some anti-democratic methods to achieve her ends."

Mrs. Gandhi served as India's prime minister for 15 of the past 18 years and only in more recent years, the Associated Press reported, was she called a "dictator .... (who) knew little about politics...."

As prime minister, Mrs. Gandhi is credited with leading India in to the nuclear and space age, yet her governments made limited headway against India's timeless problems of hunger, poverty, caste, sanitation, population and religious strife between the majority Hindus, Moslems and other religious orders.

In 1975, after the Indian high court ruled that Mrs. Gandhi had illegally used government officials in her 1971 election campaign, Mrs. Gandhi, instead of reliquishing power, declared a national emergency and jailed a number of her opponents, curtailed civil rights and clamped rigid censorship measures on the country's press.

On June 6, 1984, the Gandhi government, in a measure to control violence in the Punjab state, dispatched Indian Army troops that sacked the Golden Temple, the Sikhs' holiest place of worship.

According to Singh, the violence in Punjab was generated by the government's rejection of Punjab leaders' requests for state jursidiction over four matters.

"About 2 percent of the Indian population, close to 14-15 million, are Sikhs. Most are consecreated in the state of Punjab where there is a slight majority of Sikhs, about 52 percent. So this is not a small sect within a certain church group. It is a religious group, and within that group there is a diversity of political points of view. What has been happening is that (officals and residents of) Punjab asked for certain state powers to deal with state affairs, not for a separate country, their demands were about some local matters, irrigation of water, holy status of the city where the Golden Temple is, readjustments with neighboring states." He said they also wanted the capital city to be put within state jurisdiction.

According to Singh, those requests were repeatedly denied so, before the actual storming of the Golden Temple, the Sikhs staged non-violent protests asking that the demands be considered. Over 150,000 Sikhs were arrested and jailed as a result.

Singh said the situation remained non-violent until the storming of the Golden Temple as well as 36 other Sikh temples in the Punjab area. "It is an open fact, reported in many newspapers, that 37 Sikh temples were attacked by the the Indian Army on the orders of the central government ... in which Mrs. Gandhi was certainly involved." All 37 temples, Singh said, were sacked in one day, June 6, 1984.

"Whatever the intentions (of the government), it (the action) gave the unmistakable impression that the Sikhs were some how considered to be different, (and) with all the history of mutal relationships ... this unfortunate incident created a juncture where the communal misunderstandings started. It radicalized the Sikhs, those who were involved in this.

"I think the assassination is unfortantue, but it's not surprising that in a tense situation such as this one that some take to extremes. I think this is precisely what has happened. Some radicals gunned her down. It is unfortunate but is not surprising," Singh said.

Singh said he does not think Mrs. Gandhi's assassination will throw India into chaos. "I firmly believe that the diversity and heterogenity of the Indian population is enough safeguard against any kind of total chaos. I think the Indian democratic tradition is strong enough to survive problems here and there (without any) large scale upheavals, say civil war, things like that. India survived many wars with China and Pakistan ... and should be able to get over this unfortunate incident ... which is not a questions of the Sikh alone ...it's a question of principles, a question of intolerance of any opposition (n the governments' part)."

Nurses Give Support To Tom Taft

The North Carolina Nurses Association's political action committee, at an afternoon press confrence Tuesday, announced its endorsement of Tom Taft for the N.C. State Senate from the 9th Senate District, which includes parts of Pitt, Beaufort and Martin Counties.

Judy Kuykendall of Greenville, representing the nurses association, said "Tom Taft has received the endorsement of nurses because of his deep and genuine commitment to improved health care of all the citizens of North Carolina, and particularly Pitt, Martin and Beaufort Counties.

Ms. Kuykendall continued by saying Taft "is sensitive to and respectful of the contribution being made by nurses throughout the medical care system. He has supported the establishment of the ECU (East Carolina University) School of Medicine and many of the outreach activities that are bringing quality medical care to eastern North Carolina."

Taft has a broad knowledge of health care issued, Ms. Kuykendall said, and "we believe his interest in and knowledge of health issues will serve the growing community of health professionals in the 9th Senatorial District."

Taft, a Democrat, and chairman of the State Ports Authority, faces Republican Maynard Waters of Beaufort County in the Nov. 6 election.

Pitt Jobless Rate Goes To 5.5 Percent

Employment Security Commission figures for September show Pitt County's unemployment rate at 5.5 percent.

This rate is higher than August's 5.4 unemployment rate.

According to the September report, 2,740 persons were unemployed out of a labor force of 49,860.

For September, Greene County's unemployment rate was 5.8, and Martin County's unemployment rate was 9.3.

In a separate report, James Hannan, manager of the Greenville office of the North Carolina Employment Security Commission (ESC), reports that 449 people found jobs with Job Service assistance during September. Many of the people began working with fast-food restaurants and construction companies.

Hannan stated that ESC encourages all employers to list any job opening with the local office. In addition to providing qualified applicants for job openings, the Job Service can screen for the Target Jobs Tax Credit and on-the-job training programs which offer employers financial benefits.

Also at ESC, Don Anders, local Veterans Employment representative, said that the Greenville office exceeded their goals of veteran placement by 34 percent during the months of July, August, and September. During the quarter, Job Service was able to find employment for 186 veterans or 40 percent of all veterans who registered for work since July.

Anders added that ESC, in cooperation with the Veteran's Administration, still has available funds to help train Korean era and Viet Nam era veterans in new skills under the Emergency Veteran Job Training Act. Employers agreeing to train eleigible yeterans will be reimbursed 50 percent of the wages paid during the training period.

Interested employers and veteran applicants may get further information by contacting the ESC at 3101 Bismarck Street in Greenville, telephone 756-2686.

OPEC OKs Production Cut

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The OPEC cartel today formally adopted a plan to cut production by nearly 9 percent to prop up oil prices. Saudi Arabia will shoulder nearly half the temporary reduction.

A communique issued at the close of the three-day emergency meeting said the cuts were designed to preserve the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' base price of $29 a barrel.

The communique said Saudi Arabia, the world's biggest oil exporter and the most powerful force in OPEC, would reduce its production quota by 647,000 barrels a day from the current 5 million-barrel-a-day level.

Saudi Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani said this week that his country's actual production in October has been about 4 million barrels a day. That means the cut in the Saudi quota will not mean an immediate reduction in its actual output.

tears as he spoke of Popieluszko's death.

"Father Popieluszko spoke the truth to us in those difficult moments for the nation after Solidarity was destroyed," said the worker. "But Solidarity still exists and will exist."

Walesa, who helped found the now-banned Solidarity as the Soviet bloc's first independent labor union, said after the news of the body's discovery:

"One wanted to kill, and he killed not only a man, not only a Pole, not only a priest — one wanted to kill the hope that it is possible to avoid violence in Poland in political life."

He offered to step down as head of the outlawed federation if it would ensure a peaceful dialogue between Poland's communist authorities and the people.

Parishioners wept when a Warsaw priest, the Rev. Andrzej Przekazinski, announced the news about Popieluszko's fate to several thousands worshipers attending Mass Tuesday evening for the priest.

Popieluszko's church was one of the few places where Solidarity supporters felt unafraid to manifest their support for the labor movement, which was surpressed under the government's imposition of martial law in 1981 and later banned.

Przekazinski, raising his voice over cries of grief, said: "We cannot fall into despair....Our pain is enormous. There are such moments in our lives that we simply stand completely stunned and say 'Oh, God.'"

There were no reports of disturbances following the announcement on state-run television's evening newscast that the 37-year-old priest had been murdered and his body pulled out of a reservoir not far from Torun, where Popieluszko, driving down a highway, was allegedly abducted.

At 3 a.m., several hundred people prayed in Popieluszko's parish church, St. Stanislaw Kostka. Among those who came to the church were several Solidarity leaders recently released from prison under July's amnesty.

Neither the Vatican nor the Roman Catholic church in Poland immediately commented on the news of the body's discovery. In Rome, Italian President Sandro Pertini said he sent his condolence to Pope John Paul II, a Pole who has supported Solidarity.

More than 90 percent of Poland's 37 million people are Roman Catholic.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market retreated today, giving back some of Tuesday's broad gain.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 5.85 to 1,211.46 in the first half hour.

Losers slightly outnumbered gainers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Tuesday's rally was attributed largely to falling interest rates in the credit markets. But rates turned mixed in early activity today.

The Commerce Department reported this morning that new factory orders fell 1.8 percent in September.

The same agency also said that the index of leading economic indicators rose 0.4 percent last month. However, the index, which is designed to detect future economic trends, was revised downward for August.

That meant that the indicators posted declines in three consecutive months — June, July and August — which is traditionally regarded as a warning signal of a possible economic slowdown.

But Malcolm Baldrige, secretary of commerce, argued that the September rise "should ease concerns that the economic expansion is coming to an end."

Among today's early volume leaders, AMR rose 1/8 to 31 7/8; Exxon was unchanged at 44; National Medicare Care slipped 1/8 to 177/8, and Digital Equipment dropped 1/8 to 104 3/8.

Exxon announced plans to close its refinery in Aruba early next year because of continuing operating losses at the facility.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 15.90 to 1,217.31.

Advances outpaced declines by more than 2 to 1 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 95.20 million shares, against 63.20 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index gained 1.05 to 96.11. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.27 at 209.05.

Applicant Sues

SMITHFIELD, N.C. (AP) — A Smithfield legal services lawyer who unsuccessfully sought the director's job in an Ahoskie legal services office has sued the Ahoskie organization and 14 employees for $830,000.

Phillip E. Wright charges in his lawsuit that employees of Legal Services of the Coastal Plains were prejudiced against him because he is a white male and circulated a letter criticizing him as "snobbish, klanish and obnoxious."

Wright, in the libel suit, said the letter was posted on a bulletin board and circulated to two of his supervisors. His suit calls the letter "malicious, false and defamatory," and says it has affected his professional prospects and opportunities for advancement.

ELECT THE WHOLE REAGAN TEAM NOV. 6th

President Ronald Reagan

Under President Reagan, America is back. Inflation is down from what it was during the Carter/Mondale Administration. Interest rates are down. Unemployment is down. The economy is in a sustained recovery. We have regained the respect of other nations abroad.

Our nation needs another four years of the Recovery of the Reagan/Bush administration, not a return to the "malaise" of the Carter/Mondale administration. But the president needs the other members of his team, if his efforts are to achieve the maximum benefits for our nation and its people.

U.S. SENATE AND CONGRESS

Senator Jesse Helms

Herb Lee
Candidate for Congress

President Reagan has had to depend on Republican control of the U.S. Senate to get his program through Congress. He needs Senator Jesse Helms in the U.S. Senate and as Chairman of the Agriculture Committee. A loss of control of the Senate would seriously damage the president's ability to get his program through Congress.

Tip O'Neill and Democratic control of the House of Representatives has been the major stumbling block to the President in getting his programs through. They have blocked or watered down some crucial programs. Last year, according to the authoritative Congressional Quarterly, Walter Jones voted with Tip O'Neill 70% of the time, but with President Reagan only 38% of the time.

Congressman Jim Martin
Candidate for Governor

Maynard Waters
For N.C. Senate, 9th Dist.

STATE GOVERNMENT

One of the major policy initiatives of the Reagan Administration is the "New Federalism" to shift responsibilities from the Federal Government to state and local government which is closer to the taxpayers than Federal Government.

As these responsibilities and programs are shifted to the states, it becomes more important than ever to have conservative leadership at the state government level. We need leaders in State Government who will reflect the President's philosophy of less government intrusion into people's lives. We don't need liberal leadership which will use state government as a partisan platform to snipe at Reagan recovery program—as Governor Jim Hunt has done, at least before he began his U.S. Senate Campaign.

PRESIDENT REAGAN IS GETTING AMERICA BACK ON IT'S FEET— LET'S GIVE HIM SOME HELP IN THE "SECOND HALF" BY SENDING IN THE WHOLE REAGAN TEAM.

Conley Goes For 1st Winning Year

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

While many of the traditional football powers around the area have long been eliminated from the state football playoff picture, the upstart D.H. Conley Vikings find themselves in the thick of the Coastal 3-A Conference race.

Since D.H. Conley started playing football in 1971, the Vikings have never had a winning season. Only in the 1974 and 1975 seasons have Conley teams managed a 5-5 record.

Under new head coach Donnie Bunn, Conley is already 5-3 with two games remaining. But the next obstacle for the Vikes is a road date against league-leading West Craven.

The Eagles are 3-0 in the Coastal Conference and 8-0 overall after edging White Oak 14-6 last Friday. Conley also had a close call, blanking Havelock 6-0 to pull even with White Oak at 2-1 in the conference.

"We're playing for something pretty big," Bunn said. "That's coming through to them. I'm tickled we're getting a chance to be successful this early.

"But this is all part of the program we're trying to build here."

The Vikings survived the defensive struggle against Havelock last week, rushing for just 45 yards while passing for 82. A 19-yard touchdown pass from Joel Cox to Steve Mills was the only point production of the game.

Conversely, the Conley defense limited the Rams to 145 yards on the ground without a pass completion.

"I knew their defense would be aggressive, and we came up with the big play on offense when we had to," Bunn said. "On our opening drive, we took the ball 80 yards and got on the board early.

"We had them scouted pretty well. They're not that big, but they're probably the quickest team we've played all year.

"Our biggest problem now is that we've got a lot of injuries."

Sewell Mills is out for the season, along with running back Ricky Farrow. Center Ricky Rice has a "jammed hand," and tackle Gerald Harper is hampered by a muscle strain.

"We'll keep an eye on Ricky Rice and Gerald Harper this week in practice," Bunn said. "If we bring them along slowly, they should be able to play. But we've got other bumps and bruises.

"Even so, I think we're playing West Craven at a good time. The kids are excited; if you're playing just to finish the season, it's an added burden to get your players ready emotionally. These kids have something to play for.

"West Craven is a big team; offensively, they try to blow you off the ball. Our defense will have to be quick off the ball.

"If we maintain our composure and play aggressively, I think we can be successful."

In other games around the area, Chocowinity visits Bath, Jamesville is at Mattamuskeet, Roanoke hosts Roanoke Rapids and Washington entertains Williamston.

CHARGERS-JAGUARS

The Farmville Central Jaguars and the Ayden-Grifton Chargers will meet each other Friday under unusual circumstances.

The Jaguars went to the Division II playoffs a year ago representing the Eastern Carolina Conference and knocked off Coastal Conference rep Havelock 6-0 in overtime.

But fortunes — as well as coaches — change from year to year. Now the Jags are 4-4 with the game against Ayden-Grifton pivotal if Farmville is to have a winning season. The Chargers are 5-3 coming into the contest.

It's a bit unusual when a head coach moves from one school to another within a conference, but that's also a factor in Friday's matchup.

"We'd both like to have winning seasons, and we'd both like to defeat a county rival," Farmville Coach Dixon Sauls said. "The fact that I coached there for eight years may be added incentive for both teams."

Both schools are coming off lopsided victories, although Ayden-Grifton didn't pull away for its 32-7 win over C.B. Aycock until the fourth quarter. Farmville Central trounced North Pitt 48-0 to increase its conference mark to 2-2.

"I didn't think we played as well as we could have or should have," Ayden-Grifton Coach Dwight Tart said. "We had three or four touchdowns called back by penalties. I just felt like we were kind of flat. If we don't get up for this game, we're going to get our cans whipped.

"The fact that our kids are playing against their old coach makes an unusual situation. It's just another ballgame, but I hope they'll get that little extra (motivation)."

The Jaguars victory over winless North Pitt gave Sauls a chance to give some of his younger players time on the field, but neither coach anticipates pulling his starters this week.

"We did what we had to in that type situation," Sauls said of the North Pitt game. "We had them out-manned, but I'd like to compliment North Pitt's players — they did not give up.

"(Ayden-Grifton) has a very quick and very consistent football team. I hope we can neutralize their quickness by establishing our running game.

"We'd like to find out what type of character our players have. We're just trying to win one game at a time and have a winning season.

"Defensively, we have to contain (running back Kelvin) Harris; he's a fine running back and one of the keys to their offense."

Jaguar flanker Eric Baker is listed as doubtful for the contest, and Dennis Tripp — who has shuffled at tight end and tackle the past couple of weeks — is also hampered by an injury.

Motivation is Tart's biggest concern going into the game.

"It's tough to tell a kid he's playing for pride when he can't see anything immediate from it such as the Division I or II playoffs," Tart said. "Morale is the big thing; keeping the kids up to want to play football."

NORTH PITT

Out of the frying pan and into the fire, or however the old saying goes.

North Pitt suffered through a 48-0 shutout at the hands of cross-county rival Farmville Central last week, and second-ranked SouthWest Edgecombe could expand the margin this Friday.

But first-year North Pitt Coach Larry Bolger has 'maintained a sense of humor through the Panthers' rough 0-8 start.

"(SouthWest Edgecombe) is big and they'll line up toe-to-toe to knock you off the line," Bolger said. "We could be in trouble, again.

"We're trying to devise a defense that will let us put 15 men on the field. If that doesn't work, we're going to steal one of their jerseys and put one of our players in their huddle," he quipped.

North Pitt managed just 75 yards total offense against Farmville, while the Jaguars rolled up 373 yards.

"We were over-manned from the start," Bolger said. "I think our kids realize that. We're still headed in the right direction. I think we faired pretty well overall.

"When people come right at us, we don't have the size to hold them off.

"Our fund raiser has gone well, and we're just waiting for the donations to come in to start on weight room. We hope to have that going by Christmas."

The Cougars bring their run-oriented offense into the game led by running back Jerome Staton, who averages 176 yards per game. The Cougars have tallied 28.5 points per game and 271 yards total offense.

"They're as big and I'm afraid a little quicker than Farmville Central," Bolger said. "They'll line up and go toe-to-toe and nose-to-nose with you.

"We're going to stick with fundamentals; we're going to have to stay low. On defense, we've got to continue to work on technique and reads. We can't stop a big offensive line."

The North Pitt offense has been centered around a pass attack which has totaled 582 yards on 45 completions this season. SouthWest has limited its opponents to 893 yards rushing but has yielded 552 yards passing.

"Our offensive line has improved greatly over the season," Bolger said. "There again, they haven t had a lot of success blocking for the running game. But our pass blocking has gotten much better at giving Calvin (Hunter) time to set up and throw.

"I can't really be disappointed the way we've played. Our youth (the Panthers have just two seniors) is a disadvantage right now, but over the next couple of seasons I think the experience they've gained will be an advantage."

Pirates Must Be Overachievers

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

Ed Emory is becoming more of a pragmatist; he has to after seeing his East Carolina football program which finished the 1983 season 8-3 with an Associated Press ranking transformed into a 2-7 team thus far in 1984 campaign.

Emory's squad ventured to Columbia last Saturday to take on then ninth-ranked South Carolina with a chance to return to glory and reverse one of the Pirates' most disturbing trends: losing on the road.

When the smoke cleared at Williams Brice Stadium, the 73,800 in attendance had witnessed a 42-20 rally by the Gamecocks which would propell them to the fifth slot in each of the wire service polls.

"We went down to South Carolina with one idea, and that's to beat the University of South Carolina," Emory said Tuesday at his weekly press luncheon. "Sometimes you handle defeat better at the moment; it's like when there's a death in the family. You're numb.

"It's hard to put it out of your mind when you know that if you had done some things better, you'd have had a chance to build an identity for East Carolina rather than boost South Carolina to fifth in the country."

There were many reasons, according to Emory, for the Pirates' loss to the Gamecocks. For example, seven of the 11 offensive linemen who traveled to Columbia missed part of the game with injuries. Emory said guard Rich Autry is likely to miss the final two games with a shoulder injury. Centers Tim Mitchell and Greg Thomas were sidelined forcing snapper Stuart Ward to handle the delicate position.

East Carolina's quarterbacks also threw four interceptions and turned over one of its two fumbles to kill drives.

But the 1984 Pirates are suffering from a more basic problem, according to Emory.

"We started coaching like we were one of the big dogs (of college football)," Emory said. "We're not a Florida or a Miami; we can't do that and win at this program.

"We have won in the past by being over-achievers. I don't think we have demanded as much discipline as we should have. We don't have the great, great athletes; we have to over-achieve.

"I promise you that won't happen again; we will do what it takes to win."

Gamecock quarterback Mike Hold came on in relief of Allen Mitchell and completed nine out of 16 passes for 210 yards and two touchdowns, including a 71-yard strike to Ira Hillary.

"Our free safety (Stefon Adams) got beat from the start," Emory said. "He was back-peddling, then he turned. After that I don't know what he was thinking, but he started back-peddling again. Then he turned and put on a burst of speed like I've never seen before and almost caught Hillary.

"They didn't have a drive without a big play. I thought if we had done what we should have, we would've been in the football game.

"We gave up four big bombs, and you don't give up four bombs to South Carolina or any other school."

Emory defended the play of the secondary when questioned about the amount of yardage it's yielded this season.

"Fifty-five percent of the passes thrown in Division I football last year were completed, so it's not just

Hernandez Wins AL's Cy Young

DETROIT (AP) — Now that Detroit relief ace Willie Hernandez has won the American League Cy Young Award, he and the Tigers' front office can get down to some serious bargaining on a new contract.

Hernandez, whose near-perfect relief pitching played a major role in the Tigers' drive to the World Series championship, was named Tuesday as winner of the award as the American League's best pitcher.

"This is an incredible award, not only for me, but for all of Puerto Rico," Hernandez said by telephone from his home in Aguada, P.R. "I feel like I won the award for all of the people."

Hernandez made it clear the day before the award was announced, however, that he intends to cash in on his brilliant 1984 season when he officially requested a trade.

The Tigers now must satisfy him financially or trade Hernandez by March 15. Otherwise, he can become a free agent.

"I was one of the keys to Detroit winning the world championship, and that's the reason I was involved in the Cy Young Award," said Hernandez, who just recently asked his former agent, Brian David of Chicago, to enter the bargaining.

The Tigers are believed to have made Hernandez a four-year offer worth $4.6 million. That would make him the highest-paid pitcher on the club, ahead of starters Jack Morris and Dan Petry who currently earn about $800,000 a year.

Hernandez is believed to be demanding $5 million, meaning that he and the Tigers are only $400,000 apart.

"I don't want to be traded," Hernandez said. "I'll negotiate to stay in Detroit. I don't believe winning the Cy Young Award will change my demands for a contract in any way. Everything is the same."

Jim Campbell, the Tigers' president, said he didn't expect to have to increase the offer to Hernandez because of the award.

"We figured he'd win the award all along," Campbell said. "We don't need the award to tell us what Willie Hernandez meant to the Detroit Tigers this season. He's had a whale of a year and we're trying to compensate him accordingly.

"I'm tickled to death for Willie. I predicted this all along. He deserves it. It's just unfortunate that at such a happy moment we have to discuss these contract questions."

Hernandez, who joined the Tigers in a trade with the Philadelphia Phillies just before the 1984 season, had 32 saves in 33 save opportunities, five more saves than he had in a mediocore seven-year career in the National League.

He combined that with a 9-3 won-lost record and a 1.92 earned run average as the Tigers coasted to the AL East crown, then went on to win the playoffs over Kansas City and World Series over San Diego. Hernandez saved the third and deciding game of the playoffs, then added two more saves in the World Series, in which he had a 1.69 ERA. The voting was based on regular-season performances.

"I think it's great," Tiger Manager Sparky Anderson said by telephone from El Paso, Texas, where he had a speaking engagement. "It's a credit to Willie. It's an award Willie accepts, but it's an award that he won with the help of our ballclub. He's done a great job, but the whole organization also has done a great job."

Hernandez, who will turn 30 on Nov. 14, edged another relief pitcher, Kansas City's Dan Quisenberry, in the balloting by two baseball writers from each of the 14 American League cities. Bert Blyleven, 19-7 for the Cleveland Indians, was third and Mike Boddicker of the Baltimore Orioles, the AL's only 20-game winner, was fourth.

"I had Rollie Fingers when he saved 37 games at San Diego, but he had some bad games," said Roger Craig, the former Padres' manager who now is the Tigers' pitching coach. "I never saw a guy who pitched so consistently well as Willie. Even the three games he lost, he pitched well. Willie really never pitched bad any time when the game was on the line.

"I've never seen anything like that in my life. It was incredible."

The left-handed Hernandez becomes only the third relief pitcher to win the award in the American League.

Fingers won it when he played for Milwaukee in 1981 and Sparky Lyle of the New York Yankees won in 1977. Bruce Sutter, when he was with the Chicago Cubs in 1979, and Mike Marshall as a Los Angeles Dodger in 1974 are the only NL relievers to win it.

Hosting Forbush will play Durham Jordan in the other semifinal game, set for approximately 4:30 p.m.

The championship game, between the two semifinal winners, will be held at 7 p.m.

West Henderson comes into the contest with a 21-0 record on the season. Conley is 23-0.

Forbush is located in Yadkin County, west of Winston-Salem.

Page, Brown, Randleman Atop Associated Press Poll

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

Greensboro Page maintained a firm grip on the No. 1 spot in the Associated Press 4-A high school football poll Tuesday, while Kannapolis Brown solidified its position in 3-A and Randleman returned to the top of the 2-A-1-A selections.

Page climbed to 8-0 with a 21-7 victory over Winston-Salem Reynolds and captured 20 first-place votes and 209 points from a statewide panel of prep sportswriters. Wilson Fike earned the other first-place vote and got 189 points.

Kannapolis Brown took a 28-7 triumph over Anson County and also climbed to 8-0, taking 17 first-place ballots and 215 points. SouthWest Edgecombe got three votes for first place and 183 points to hold the second spot, while West Henderson received 176 points with two votes for first place.

Jordan-Matthews was No. 1 in the 2-A-1-A ranks entering last weekend's action, but West Montgomery pulled off a 19-6 upset and sent the former leaders down to sixth place. Meanwhile, Randleman stopped Ledford 19-0 and moved up to the top spot. Fuquay-Varina got six first-place votes and 193 points for second place. Wallace-Rose Hill and Jamesville each received a first-place vote, but Wallace-Rose Hill took third place by a 172-124 margin.

West Montgomery's victory raised its record to 6-1-1 and helped the team earn ninth place in the 2-A-1-A poll.

Closing out the 4-A poll are Fayetteville 71st, Scotland County, Raleigh Millbrook, Northern Durham, East Burke, Gastonia Huss, Charlotte Garinger and Henderson Vance. Fayetteville Westover was sixth, but lost 22-20 to Lee County and fell from the poll. Richmond County lost to 71st by a 31-7 margin and was ousted from seventh place. Jacksonville dropped a 9-7 decision to Goldsboro and fell from ninth.

Along with the top three in the 3-A poll are South Point, Clinton, Waynesville Tuscola, Tarboro, Statesville, Shelby and East Wake. Tenth-place Oxford Webb fell from the poll after its 10-7 overtime loss to Dunn.

Here are the latest rankings of North Carolina's high school football teams as chosen by a panel of prep sportswriters from throughout the state.

Reflector Leaders Hold Positions

Greensboro Page, SouthWest Edgecombe and Jamesville continue in their leadership of their respective divisions in the Daily Reflector High School rankings. But the 2-A division again has a new leader — but an old familiar name.

Randleman, last year's 2-A champion and number one at the end of the last season, moved to the top of the 2-A rankings this week, thanks to an open date by last week's leader Tabor City and the defeat of number two Jordan-Matthews.

Page, 8-0, continues as the 4-A leader with a total of 66½ points. Wilson Fike, also 8-0, is ranked second with 60 points, while Fayetteville Seventy-First, 7-1, has moved from sixth to third with 56½ points.

SouthWest Edgecombe, despite having an open date this week, held onto first place in the 3-A standings with 60 points. The Cougars are currently 8-0. Kannapolis, also 8-0, maintained second place with 57½ points, just ahead of South Point, 8-0, with 57 points.

Randleman, 8-1, moved from third to first in the 2-A ranks with a total of 49 points. Central Davidson vaulted from eighth to second with 45½ and a 7-2 record. Wallace-Rose Hill, 8-0, moved from fourth to third with 45.

Jamesville, the lone unbeaten in the 1-A ranks, 8-0, held to first with 34 poits, while Rosewood, 6-2, is second with 27. Rosman, 6-3, is third with 26 points.

Points are awarded on the basis of each victory a team claims, plus additional points for each victory won by a victim during the season.

Joining Fike, SouthWest and Jamesville among area teams in the rankings are fifth ranked West Craven, eighth ranked Tarboro and tenth ranked Roanoke Rapids in the 3-A's.

Conley JV Games Are Cancelled

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley's junior varsity football games scheduled against West Craven Nov. 1 and North Lenoir Nov. 8 have been cancelled.

Injuries on the varsity squad forced many of the jayvees to be called up, and the decision was made to cancel the final junior games.

Ducks Unlimited Banquet Is Set

The annual dinner meeting of the Pitt County Area Chapter of Ducks Unlimited will be held Nov. 8 at 6 p.m. at the King & Queen North, according to co-chairmen Dick Daves and Chuck Clodfelter.

The spokesmen said the Greenville banquet last year was part of a nationwide fund raising effort that contributed over $38 million to the DU program aimed at waterfowl conservation and preservation. The local event, in conjunction with an overall membership program, raised over $57,000 in 1983.

Area sportsmen and others interested in the international program can purchase advance tickets for the banquet at $40 each, which includes a one-year Ducks Unlimited membership and a subscription to the organization's magazine. Tickets and information are available from John Farley at 752-7137.

In addition to the dinner, activities planned include the annual general auction of various items, among them the DU print of the year and a commemorative shotgun, a silent auction, sponsor program report, and awarding of door prizes.

Through Ducks Unlimited, over $237 million has been generated in the United States since 1937, with the bulk of the funds channeled to DU Canada to reserve approximately 3.3 million acres of prime waterfowl habitat encompassing over 2,400 wetland projects. About 70 percent of North America's waterfowl production occurs in Canada.

The international DU roster now stands at approximately 505,000 members.

Richmond Tabbed In Vote For ECAC-South Favorite

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — The University of Richmond, winner of both the regular season and tournament championship of the ECAC-South last year, has been picked to repeat by a poll of coaches and media for the 1984-85 season.

The ECAC-South held its annual media day yesterday, concluding with a supper and press conference.

The league is newly expanded from six to eight members this year. Joining Richmond, William & Mary, Navy, James Madison, East Carolina and George Mason are American Univerity and UNC-Wilmington this year.

The Spiders were selected as the top team in both the media and the coaches' polls. Richmond gained 5½ first place votes and a total of 60½ points in the coaches poll to nose out William & Mary, which had 1½ first place votes and 53½ total points. George Mason finished third with one first place vote and 50 points.

In the media poll, Richmond received 12 first place votes and a total of 115 points while William & Mary was second with one first place vote and 93 points. Mason also finished third in the media poll with 87 points. Navy, which finished fourth, had the two remaining media first place votes.

East Carolina was picked to finish tied for sixth in the coaches' poll and seventh in the media poll.

Richmond returns four starters off last year's 22-10 club which earned its first ever NCAA bid. Among those returning are last year's conference MVP John Newman.

William & Mary returns four of its starters from last season, a year that saw the Indians post a 14-14 record, but win nine of its final 13 games. Senior all-conference selection Keith Cieplicki leads the Indian attack for this year.

Mason, led by two all-conference performers, was 21-7 last year, its best ever record. Returning are Carlos Yates and Ricky Wilson, both selected to the all-star team at season's end.

The league plays a home-and-home double round robin schedule during the regular season, with its champion and NCAA automatic entrant chosen in post-season tournament play. The tournament this year will be played at Williamsburg's William & Mary Hall on March 7-9.

Horton Carries Burden

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — Senior tailback Ethan Horton carried the ball 39 times for a career-high 206 yards in North Carolina's 30-27 victory over Memphis State, and Coach Dick Crum says Horton seemed to be catching his second wind at game's end.

"After the game with the 39 carries, the thing that was amazing about him is he really wasn't all that tired," Crum said. "He probably could have played another quarter if he had to."

An ankle injury to sophomore William Humes leaves Horton as North Carolina's lone experienced tailback, but Crum thinks Horton can shoulder the burden.

Horton will lead the Tar Heels back into Atlantic Coast Conference action against Maryland, which is trying to earn its second straight league title.

"Horton has done some real nice things for us since he's been here," Crum said. "He certainly provided us with the momentum and the things we needed in order to win."

North Carolina was a preseason favorite to win the crown, but has stumbled along. However, the schedule gives the Tar Heels a chance at winning the championship. At 3-4 and 1-1 in the conference, North Carolina plays its three of its four remaining ACC games at home, starting with the Terrapins. Following are Virginia, Georgia Tech and the season finale against Duke in Durham.

"This, as always, will be a pretty good head-knocking ball game," Crum said. "Their offense has been doing well. They have a good running game tied in with a good passing game which always causes more defensive problems than you would like to have."

Hunt Rallies Past Rampant Booters

Wilson Hunt High School held off a Rose High School rally yesterday and blunted the Rampants' drive to the Big East soccer championship, 3-2.

The two teams battled through a scoreless first half before Hunt finally broke the ice five minutes into the second half. Jimmy Allen scored on a kick from 25 yards out to give the Bruins a 1-0 lead.

Hunt came back after 59 minutes of play to score its second goal, that by Roger Brown on a header. The third — and decisive — goal came with ten minutes left in the contest on a 30-yarder by Greg Adkins.

"A lot of teams would have given up then and accepted the shutout," Rose Coach Will Wiberg said. "But the kids showed a lot of guts by trying to pull it out."

Scott Davis scored from 20 yards out on an assist by Hutton Cobb with three minutes left in the game, and with one minute to go, Cobb scored on a set play assisted by Jordy Smith and Carl Wille.

"Time just ran out on us," Wiberg said. "The momentum had definitely shifted."

Wiberg cited the play of David Ely, who "played a super game." He also listed Lewis Robbins and Richard Haselrig for their defensive play and Travis King, Davis and Brian Wille for their offensive work.

The loss leaves Rose with a 9-2 conference record and a 12-3 overall mark. Hunt is now 8-4.

Rose travels to Northeastern, where the Rampants have yet to score, let along win, in their two previous trips there. A victory by the Rampants, however, would sew up the conference championship, while a loss would leave things unsettled, depending on the outcome of several other games.

The winner of the league will advance into the state playoffs, starting next week.

Pirates...

going on in Greenville," he said. "Our philosophy is bend but don't break. We've played pretty good by that over the last couple of years."

But Emory was equally quick to put the burden on the defense overall.

"We might be the world's worst tackling football team," he maligned. "We gave up 160 yards on missed tackles.

"Stefon Adams had the pitch man (on USC's 74-yard touchdown run) and made a great hit but didn't wrap him up. We should have had a drop end or corner pursue across the field to help out. That 74-yard run should have been a one-yard loss."

Emory did find one particularly satisfying aspect of traveling to Columbia.

"It feels good to be able to say, 'we'll see you in Greenville next year,' " Emory said referring to the 1985 contest slated for Ficklen Stadium.

The Pirates have just two games remaining this year: at Lafayette this week against Southwestern Louisiana and hosting Southern Mississippi Nov. 10. Ironically, the Ragin' Cajuns defeated Southern Miss 13-7 last Saturday.

The Cajuns bring a 4-4 record to the battle of southern independents. Although there is only one senior in the secondary, USL's pass defense is ranked seventh yielding 131.3 yards per game in its first seven outings.

"Southwestern Louisiana is a great deal like East Carolina," Emory said. "They want to be in the limelight and have started to play that kind of schedule. They've got a great offensive line back and depth in the backfield."

The Pirates are also facing another dubious milestone: no ECU team has gone winless on the road since 1960.

"We've got to go down there and play from our own pride. It important how you start, but it's more important how you finish. We need to finish on a positive note."

When Walter Jones Asks For Your Vote...

Walter Jones

Ask Him Why He Voted Against The President's MX Missile.

In spite of a bi-partisan recommendation for MX missile production...in spite of the fact we do not now have an ICBM that can penetrate Soviet missile defenses...in spite of the fact we do not have ICBM's that can knock out the Soviet's newly hardened missile silos...Congressman Jones has consistently voted with Tip O'Neill against the President's MX program.

In 1981 he missed a key MX vote. In 1982 he voted against procurement of only 5 missiles. In 1983 he voted to delete MX funding. In 1984 Congressman Jones' vote was decisive in delaying MX production for a year (198 to 197)!

"By a vote of 198 to 197, my liberal colleagues continued their unilateral arms control binge. They approved a Soviet veto power over the MX, the nuclear submarine launched cruise missile, and the anti-satellite (ASAT) program. As if this wasn't enough, the House went on to declare a moratorium on the MX, and they gave the Congress--not the President--the power to decide if the moratorium will be lifted a year from now." Congressman William Dickerson (R/Ala.), June 1, 1984

On a recent UNC-TV program, Walter Jones said he would "not be inclined to vote for it (MX) next year when it comes back up."

Lakers, Jazz Finally Win

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Lakers and Utah Jazz, division winners last season, finally found the winning combination after opening their National Basketball Association season with two consecutive losses.

Utah, which scored only 94 points in each of its first two outings, rallied in the fourth quarter to defeat the New York Knicks 117-111 Tuesday night.

"It was good to get the first win out of the way," Jazz Coach Frank Layden said. "When we were 0-2, I wondered if someday we might be 0-82."

The Lakers, who lost at San Antonio and Houston over the weekend, returned home Tuesday night and routed the winless Golden State Warriors 144-110.

"The incentive was there to win our first game," said center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who scored 17 point for the Lakers. "We didn't look good over the weekend, and it takes a while to get things going. But we will work things out."

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Detroit 124, Cleveland 107; Washington 119, Atlanta 104; Philadelphia 118, New Jersey 96; Houston 106, Dallas 84; Chicago 109, Kansas City 104; San Antonio 126, Denver 118; Phoenix 99, Los Angeles Clippers 96 and Portland 115, Seattle 83.

Guards Mike McGee and Byron Scott scored 26 points apiece to lead the Lakers. Scott had eight of his points in the third period, when Los Angeles pulled away by outscoring the Warriors 39-20.

"Tonight was our home opener and we had to work out the bugs," Lakers forward Jamaal Wilkes said. "We also needed a big win. In Texas, we were physically dominated. Tonight, we were happy with a win, but it wasn't a true test."

"Tonight we went out and played ball, instead of thinking too much," said Earvin "Magic" Johnson, who had 16 points, 12 rebounds and 10 assists. "I thought our team played real well."We've gotten off to bad starts before. It's nothing new to this team."

Jazz 117, Knicks 111

Darrell Griffith scored 30 points and center Mark Eaton had 19 rebounds and seven blocked shots, but Utah had to hold New York to 19 points in the fourth quarter to pull out the victory.

The Knicks, who got 24 points from Bernard King, led 100-92 with 9:50 remaining. The Jazz did not take the lead for good until Rickey Green made it 113-111 with 1:41 remaining.

"I don't think you saw the real Jazz in the first two games," Layden said. "I was happy with the various combinations we tried."

76ers 118, Nets 96

Philadelphia crushed New Jersey in the teams' first meeting since the Nets upset the 76ers in the first round of the playoffs last spring.

Julius Erving scored 22 points for the 76ers, while rookie Charles Barkley added 20 points and 10 rebounds. Andrew Toney scored 10 of his 19 points in the last 6:49 of the third quarter, helping Philadelphia pull ahead 97-75 after the Nets cut a 17-point halftime deficit to 10.

Mike Gminski led New Jersey with 21 points.

Rockets 106, Mavericks 84

Houston, which opened the season with a nationally televised defeat of Dallas, did it again despite subpar games from Twin Towers Ralph Sampson and Akeem Olajuwon.

Sampson made only four of 12 field goal attempts and Olajuwon five of 15, but Lewis Lloyd pitched in 23 points and Rodney McCray 16 points and 12 rebounds for the Rockets.

Dallas, which got 24 points from Mark Aguirre, led 50-46 at halftime, but Lloyd scored 11 points as the Rockets outscored the Mavericks 32-18 in the third period.

Blazers 115, Sonics 83

Portland, which won its opener by 21 points, easily improved its record to 2-0 with a rout of Seattle.

Kiki Vandeweghe, who scored 47 points in his first game, added 22 against the SuperSonics while playing less than three quarters. He led six Trail Blazers in double figures, while Tom Chambers topped Seattle with 20 points.

Suns 99, Clippers 96

Patchwork Phoenix improved its record to 3-0, beating Los Angeles as rookie Jay Humphries contributed key points down the stretch.

Humphries scored seven of his 11 points in the fourth quarter, including a jumper that put the Suns ahead to stay at 82-81 with 9:58 remaining.

James Edwards had 20 points to pace the Suns, who are playing without injured guards Kyle Macy and Walter Davis and holdout forward Maurice Lucas. The Clippers got 25 points from Marques Johnson.

Spurs 126, Nuggets 118

Reserve guard John Paxson scored 13 of his 15 points in the second half to help San Antonio defeat Denver.

The Nuggets had a 58-57 halftime lead, but Paxson and George Gervin led a Spurs rally that carried them to a 12-point lead in the third period. Gervin and Johnny Moore led seven San Antonio players in double figures with 18 points each, while Alex English had 27 points for Denver.

Bulls 109, Kings 104

Rookie Michael Jordan scored 25 points and Orlando Woolridge 21 as Chicago improved its record to 3-1 with a victory at Kansas City.

The Bulls never trailed after taking the lead midway through the first quarter, although the Kings cut a 13-point deficit to 105-102 in the final minute. Eddie Johnson led Kansas City with 24 points.

Pistons 124, Cavaliers 107

Detroit scored the first 12 points of the game and winless Cleveland never caught up.

Kelly Tripucka led the Pistons with 31 points, four of them during the early streak. Johnny Davis led all scorers with 33 points for the Cavaliers, 0-3, while World B. Free added 22.

Bullets 119, Hawks 104

Gus Williams scored 23 points and set a team record with nine steals to lead Washington over Atlanta.

Greg Ballard scored 16 of his 20 points in the first quarter to help Washington lead for most of the first half.

Auburn's Dye Undecided

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Coach Pat Dye said he has not decided yet if Pat Washington or Mike Mann will start at quarterback Saturday against Florida, and he said they may share the signal-calling duties.

Dye has relied on Mann, a senior, to lead the Tiger offense in the last few weeks while junior Pat Washington recovered from a shoulder injury and a pulled hamstring muscle.

But Washington could be ready to start against Florida in the game at Gainesville, Fla., Dye said Tuesday at his weekly news conference.

"I don't know who we're going to play at quarterback," he said. "Either one of them could start the game. We may play both of them."

Barfield Again Goes To Court

IN THE STATE

By DENNIS PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Condemned murderer Velma Barfield's latest appeal to prevent her execution Friday now rests with the United States District Court and is headed for the nation's highest court, her attorney says.

"From the time we filed, it was destined to go to the U.S. Supreme Court," Barfield attorney James Little said Tuesday. "Whichever side lost would appeal to the next highest court. We were on a set course and beginning Monday morning our aim was to go to as many courts as necessary to find someone who would deal with the issues."

The U.S. Supreme Court has reviewed Mrs. Barfield's case three times.

Mrs. Barfield's attorneys filed the appeal in U.S. District Court Tuesday night less than an hour after the North Carolina Supreme Court refused to review a lower court's order denying her a new hearing on an appeal or to grant her a stay of execution.

Mrs. Barfield is scheduled to die by lethal injection at 2 a.m. Friday for poisoning her boyfriend, St. Pauls farmer Stuart Taylor, in 1978. She has also confessed to killing three other people, including her mother, but has not been convicted in those slayings.

If the execution is not stayed, Mrs. Barfield would become the first woman executed in the United States in 22 years and the first in North Carolina in 40 years.

Rich Leonard, clerk of the U.S. District Court in Raleigh, said Little filed the appeal about 8:15 p.m. Tuesday.

"It is now filed," Leonard said, "and will be submitted to Judge (Franklin) Dupree at the beginning of business hours tomorrow."

The seven N.C. Supreme Court justices, meeting in a closed conference, deliberated for nearly two hours before upholding a ruling earlier Tuesday by Superior Court Judge B. Craig Ellis.

Ellis had denied Mrs. Barfield's petition for a hearing on a new appeal that claimed she was suffering from drug withdrawl and was incompetent to stand trial in 1978.

The court voted 5-2 to deny the review and a stay of her execution. Justices James. G. Exum Jr. and Harry C. Martin voted to allow her petition for a review and her motion for a stay of execution.

"Besides the decision being disappointing, it was disappointing that the court in Robeson County dealt with it in such a summary fashion...and that the Supreme Court denied the review," Little said late Tuesday night.

Little said he had not talked with Mrs. Barfield about the denials of her motions.

While her lawyers fought for her life, Mrs. Barfield waited under a death watch in her cell 18 paces from Central Prison's death chamber.

The new appeal contends Mrs. Barfield was withdrawing from a 10-year addiction to prescription drugs and was legally incompetent to stand trial in 1978 or help in her own defense.

Prosecutors, in opposing Mrs. Barfield's new appeal, said all the issues raised had been considered and denied in earlier reviews of the case.

The prosecution response included an affidavit from Dr. Eugene Douglas, now the director for the Division of Mental Health of the state Department of Human Resources, who examined Mrs. Barfield as a private psychiatrist in May 1978.

Douglas said in his affidavit that he was aware of Mrs. Barfield's history of drug abuse, but "noted no remarkable affects of such drug use by Mrs. Barfield or symptoms of her withdrawl from such drugs."

Prosecutors also submitted affidavits from Robert Jacobson, Mrs. Barfield's trial lawyer, and trial judge Henry A. McKinnon saying Mrs. Barfield showed no signs of drug addiction or withdrawal during the trial and was responsive to questions.

Little had said Mrs. Barfield wanted no further appeals after Gov. Jim Hunt rejected her appeal for clemency Sept. 27.

But she agreed to the latest appeal Sunday night after meeting with her attorneys to discuss the drug withdrawal issue.

Mrs. Barfield, who was moved to Central Prison and put under death watch Sunday night, was active in a fundamentalist church at the time of the slayings, but now says she became a born-again Christian while awaiting her trial.

State Plan On Pay Sets Off Protest

By The Associated Press

Some landowners along the controversial Duck-to-Corolla road on the Outer Banks are upset because the state Department of Transportation has said it won't compensate them for right-of-way privileges, a spokesman says.

"They're saying the pavement has no value and will be more valuable when it becomes a public road" after the state acquires the 11-mile private stretch Thursday, Albert Killingsworth, president of the Ocean Sands Property Owners Association, said Tuesday. "But our property owners don't think so. Some have been saying maybe we ought to rip it up and see just what kind of value it has then."

Ocean Sands property owners pay an annual fee for road upkeep and to finance a guardhouse at the entrance of the privately owned road north of the Dare County line.

After years of debate, the state Board of Transportation voted Oct. 12 to add the road to the state's highway system, thus allowing the first public access from Dare County to the village of Corolla.

C.J. Baldwin, manager of DOT's Right of Way Branch, said some landowners have been told that the state won't offer any money in exchange for right-of-way privileges along the road because the state's takeover will relieve them of the maintenance cost and increase property value.

Antelope Is Killed

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — A rare African antelope, estimated to be worth $30,000, died early Sunday at the North Carolina Zoological Park from a broken neck after the animal apparently ran into a plate glass wall, zoo officials said.

The accident occurred Saturday after the newly opened African Pavilion closed to the public for the day, said Elise Gellman, public relations officer for the zoo.

The 53,000-square-foot indoor exhibit, covered by a Teflon-coated fiberglass roof, houses more than 200 African animals and 3,300 plants and was opened to the public for the first time Friday.

Gellman said a zookeeper heard a loud noise as though something had hit an exhibit wall and found the 2-year, 8-month-old female gerenuk, lying on the ground near the front of its glass-enclosed exhibit.

Zoo veterinarian Dr. Mike Loomis took the animal to the School of Veterinary Medicine at N.C. State University in Raleigh where it was found to have suffered a severed spinal column, which was beyond repair, Gellman said.

FmHA Says Will Go 'Extra Mile' To Stall Foreclosures

RALEIGH (AP) — A drop in the number of foreclosures on farmers with loans from the Farmers Home Administration can be partially credited to continued efforts by the agency to work with borrowers, officials say.

"The thing is, we just don't foreclose unless there's just no other alternative," said Larry W. Godwin, state FmHA director. The FmHA takes several steps to avoid foreclosure, including refinancing loans and rescheduling or deferring payments, he said.

"We go the extra mile with everyone in trying to work with them," Godwin said.

Agency figures show foreclosures on North Carolina farmers with FmHA loans dropped from 32 in fiscal 1983 to 12 in fiscal 1984.

"Foreclosure is the absolute last thing we want to do on any of our loans," said Nolan Kegley, an FmHA public affairs specialist in Washington.

More than 10,000 of North Carolina's farmers each year are financed through FmHA for loans ranging from a few thousand dollars to up to $1 million in emergencies, Godwin said. He estimated the average indebtedness at $70,000.

On Sept. 30, the end of fiscal 1984, the number of state farmers financed by the federal agency totaled 10,091, compared with 10,892 last year, Kegley said.

Nationally about 270,000 farmers borrow from the FmHA, he said.

Foreclosures nationally also were down, with 356 farm borrowers in 1984 compared with 615 in 1983, Kegley said Tuesday in a telephone interview.

The FmHA's help to financially troubled farmers has included pouring more money into the agency's farm operating loan program, which provides short-term money for such expenses as feed, seed, fertilizer and some equipment and livestock.

"We have poured just tons of money into this program this year," Kegley said, emphasizing that funding is at the highest ever at $1.9 million for 1984, compared with about $1.6 million in 1983.

Another factor affecting foreclosures was a federal court suit to change farm loan repayment and foreclosure proceedings. Foreclosure proceedings were interrupted during the case.

In February 1984, a permanent injunction was issued barring FmHA from foreclosing without giving farmers prior notice of their rights and options. FmHA now sends a warning letter to borrowers, a procedure that extends foreclosure proceedings by 30 days, Kegley said.

Gas Firms To Refund Overcharge

By The Associated Press

Two of North Carolina's major natural gas companies will reduce their residential customers' bills by an average of $15 to $22 in November because of overcharging that occurred a decade ago.

The N.C. Utilities Commission on Monday approved the refunds by Charlotte-based Piedmont Natural Gas Co. and Gastonia-based Public Service Co. of North Carolina. All current customers will receive refunds, including industrial and commercial customers.

The one-time refunds result from a battle over the way gas was allocated during shortage periods in 1974 and 1975, when residential customers received priority over industrial users for natural gas supplies.

The allocation plan mandated that companies serving primarily industrial users contribute to a fund to ensure a gas supply to residential customers. It enabled some utilities — mostly Northern companies with mostly residential customers — to obtain better rates than other companies on natural gas supplied by Houston-based Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corp., said Steve Conner, spokesman at Piedmont Natural Gas.

Under the proposed plan, Piedmont would refund $7.8 million to its N.C. customers, said Gene Curtis, an engineer in the commission's natural gas division. The average Piedmont customer would save $22.

Public Service Co. of Gastonia will receive $6.5 million, for a average $18 savings per residential customer, Curtis said.

Hong Kong Pact May Help Trade

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The agreement returning Hong Kong to Chinese sovereignty in 1997 shouldn't hurt North Carolina businesses, and it may even enhance trade with mainland China, a state Commerce Department official says.

"I am optimistic about Hong Kong's future role as far as North Carolina products are concerned," said Gordon McRoberts, the department's director of international marketing. "There's little doubt in our minds that the PRC (People's Republic of China) wouldn't close out Hong Kong as a business center."

In the agreement, made public Sept. 26, China pledges that "socialist policies shall not be practiced in Hong Kong" for 50 years after China regains control of the British colony and promises "a high degree of autonomy."

"We do ship there," McRoberts said in a telephone interview from Raleigh. "It's a fairly good market for some consumer goods — surprisingly, some furniture and luxury goods. We also ship textile machinery, microprocessing equipment and some high-tech items."

Other North Carolina products exported to Hong Kong include jewelry, decorative items, and "very high-end apparel," he said. The furniture is primarily traditional with some contemporary, but always very expensive.

McRoberts said China gets as much as one-third of its foreign currency through the trade gateway of Hong Kong, so its leaders are unlikely to jeopardize that income, he said.

"The gateway to the PRC is and will be Hong Kong," he said. "China is more opening up to western trade. They need our technology, and trade is a way to do it."

McRoberts said that as the Chinese become more involved in Hong Kong's affairs, they'll become more accustomed to Westerners. In addition, many agents helping North Carolina businessmen deal in Hong Kong also have connections in mainland China.

Other opportunities for North Carolina businessmen may arise in joint venture and licensing, he said. The Chinese want to upgrade their factories, and they'll need the equipment and the know-how Americans can provide.

Reagan Trip Is Ruled Out

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The political director of the Reagan-Bush campaign says President Reagan will not return to North Carolina this week, despite predictions he would make the trip to help Sen. Jesse Helms' bid for re-election.

Eddie Knox, co-director of Democrats for Reagan and an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, had said Reagan probably would return to the state this week.

But Lee Atwater said the campaign's travel schedule had been completed through the election and North Carolina is not included in Reagan's travel plans.

N.C. Candidate Ends Campaign

GREENSBORO (AP) — Presidential candidate Samuel Lee Graves' campaign drive has come to an abrupt end in New Jersey following his arrest on two counts of carrying dangerous weapons and one count of impeding traffic.

Graves, of Greensboro, was arrested Oct. 14 on the New Jersey Turnpike, where he was driving 40 mph, said Trooper William Toms of the New Jersey State Police. Toms said curious drivers were slowing down to look at Graves' car, which is covered with photographs and campaign bumper stickers, while Graves waved an American flag out the window.

Toms said he found a pellet gun, shotgun shells and numb-chucks, a martial arts weapon, in the car.

"I didn't consider him a strong candidate," Toms said of stopping a presidential contender. "I thought about it. But you see everything out here on the Turnpike."

Tourists Keep Traditions Alive In Old Danish Town Of Gingerbread Houses

By WILLIAM C. MANN
Associated Press Writer

RIBE, Denmark (AP) — "All we've got is the old town," said Ribe's town crier, "but that's enough."

Aage Grann, 63, knows better than most what Ribe has. Every summer for 10 years, wearing a navy cloak and hat and carrying an oil lantern and a spiked staff called a morning star, Grann has led flocks of tourists and locals on nightly treks over Ribe's cobblestones.

After one of his rounds, he sipped a beer in a centuries-old pub called Weis' Stue and chatted about the history his job has taught him.

"The whole town is a tradition," he said: its half-timbered gingerbread houses, its streets so narrow that a bicycle makes more sense than a car, Grann himself.

Grann is Ribe's natvaegter, or "night watchman," the last of a line of men who acted as policeman, fire inspector and authority figure, keeping the riffraff off the streets as Danish towns slept.

On his walks, Grann sings in his rich baritone the same "vaegter vers" that his predecessors did for 600 years on their 10 p.m. rounds: "Go to bed. Obey the Lord. Be careful with fire."

Traditionally, the natvaegters made 10 rounds a night, one each hour, singing a different song for each round. Grann's duty is a single round, at bedtime.

The only other difference between Grann and his predecessors is that, between chants, he conducts open-air classes: Here's the site of Scandinavia's first school; there's the house of the first Lutheran bishop of Ribe; over there is where Laurids Split was burned as a witch in 1641.

Despite its size — only 3,000 people in the old town — no town outside Copenhagen has so many houses protected by the Danish Culture Ministry as historical landmarks. Virtually every building has been restored to its appearance when it was new, which with many was 450 years ago or more, and the centerpiece is the city's 850-year-old cathedral.

The Culture Ministry erected signs across Denmark a few years ago to designate landmarks. Rather than mar Ribe's appearance by posting signs all over, the ministry put up one landmark sign outside the town, just giving its name.

Between 800,000 and 900,000 tourists come to Ribe every year, almost all day-trippers, said Heinz Lorenzen of the Ribe Tourist Association. Most are Britons, who drop in for a day after arriving on a North Sea ferry at Esbjerg to the north, or West Germans, who motor up for a day from Schlesvig-Holstein or from summer houses nearby. Thousands of Danes also drive in from summer houses.

Grann says "all we've got is the old town" because Ribe is not the place to go for excitement unless you're thrilled by what he calls "one of the finest collections of preserved, privately owned houses perhaps in the world."

In 1969, the private Ribe Tourist Association financed a study by Danish architect Hans Henrik Enquist of the inner city's buildings. His "Preservation Plan" became the basis of the citywide restoration effort, emphasizing details even down to the banning of neon signs.

"The main thing we have achieved is we have motivated the local population to do this," said the tourist association's Lorenzen. "The shopowners are interested because they want tourists, of course. But for most people it has nothing to do with tourism. They just want to live in such a place."

Alterations performed on the 117 buildings protected by the Culture Ministry and others covered by the town's own ordinances must be approved by the official Ribe Tourist Bureau. Unlike Lorenzen's association, the bureau is financed by the town council.

Interest-free loans that must be paid back only when the owner sells the building finance approved changes.

From torn-down old barns and dilapidated rural homes, the association stockpiles timbers, old bricks, roof tiles and other materials not otherwise available.

Hospitality House

WASHINGTON, N.C. — Hospitality House hostess Kay Currie will feature on her show this week four taped interviews with actors and actresses made on a recent trip to Los Angeles. The weekly magazine program this week will be aired from 1:30 to 2 p.m. Saturday over WITN-TV, channel 7, Washington.

The quartet interviewed are Joan Collins of "Dynasty" and David Hasselhoff of "Knight Rider," who will pair in "The Cartier Affair," a movie to be shown on NBC on Sunday.

Ms. Currie also interviews Adrian Zmed who will be seen on Nov. 12 in a NBC special, and Teri Copley, in the cast of "I Married A Centerfold," which airs Nov. 11.

On the local scene, Currie will talk to members of a musical, "The Gaslight Follies." Cast members, under the direction of Lucy Vaughan of Elizabeth City, will perform on Hospitality House with a version of the Charleston.

'Dynasty' Moves Into Top Spot In Television Ratings

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — ABC's "Dynasty" beat CBS' "Dallas" again for first place in the Nielsen ratings, and CBS, NBC and ABC finished in that order in the network race, making the week ended Oct. 28 look like a rerun of the week before.

The woes of the Carrington family are translanting into ratings points for "Dynasty," but ABC's troubles are keeping it in the Nielsen cellar. None of ABC's new shows has succeeded in the ratings, and such standbys as "The Love Boat," "Benson" and "Webster" have not made the top 20. The revamp of "Three's Company" into "Three's a Crowd" has fallen in the ratings.

CBS was first in the A.C. Nielsen Co. survey with a network average of 16.4. NBC was second with 16.0 and ABC third with 15.3. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute 16.4 percent of the nation's TV homes were tuned to CBS.

NBC remained ahead for the season to date, with CBS second and NBC third. The ratings: NBC 17.2, CBS 16.8, ABC 15.2. Part of that is due to NBC's coverage of the World Series, but even discounting baseball, its ratings are up 7 percent this season and the other networks are down.

NBC, unlike ABC, has at last found the right combination of programs and time periods and appears to have shaken its image as the third-place network. It has a new hit in "The Cosby Show," "The A-Team" is holding strong, and some of its returning shows have gained in the ratings.

Not everything was rosy for NBC, however. CBS' "Magnum, P.I." moved ahead of NBC's "The Cosby Show" for the first time this week, placing seventh to Cosby's eighth.

NBC's "V," the last fall show to make its debut, opened in 36th place. "We're delighted," Gene Walsh, a spokesman for NBC, said of the series about alien invaders from another planet. It was adapted from two highly popular miniseries telling the storty of earth's resistance fighters.

Walsh said, "The show got a 15.4 rating, which is half again better than we ever did in that time period last year." The premiere was second only to CBS' "Garfield" in the first half hour, but beat all other competition during its time period.

CBS had five shows in the top 10, NBC three and ABC two. The top 10: ABC's "Dynasty," first; CBS' "Dallas," second; NBC's "The A-Team," third; CBS' "Simon & Simon," fourth; CBS' "60 Minutes," fifth; NBC's "Riptide," sixth; CBS' "Magnum, P.I.," seventh; NBC's "The Cosby Show," eighth; CBS' "Knots Landing," ninth; and ABC's "Hotel," tenth.

Brooke Shields' TV movie debut in ABC's "Wet Gold" was 20th in the ratings. Sophia Loren's second TV starring role, NBC's "Aurora," was 25th.

CBS was first again in the evening news shows category. CBS had a rating of 12.8, ABC was second with 10.9 and NBC third with 10.3.

The lowest-rated show of the week was CBS' coverage of National Football League action that ran into prime time. The five bottom shows in descending order were: CBS' "Dreams," NBC's "Hot Pursuit," NBC's "Punky Brewster," NBC's "Silver Spoons" and the CBS NFL football.

Top Shows

Here are the week's 20 top shows:

1. "Dynasty," ABC, a rating of 26.3 or 22.3 million households.

6. "Riptide," NBC, 22.4 or 19.0 million.

9. "Knots Landing," CBS, 20.5 or 17.4 million.
10. "Hotel," ABC, 20.3 or 17.2 million.
11. Tie-"Family Ties, NBC, 20.2 or 17.1 million.
11. Tie-"The Fall Guy," ABC, 20.2 or 17.1 million.
13. "Falcon Crest," CBS, 19.9 or 16.9 million.

Hunt Says Spending Should Be Curbed

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Saying North Carolina should not have to go through another campaign like this year's U.S. Senate race, Gov. Jim Hunt said Congress should limit campaign spending and consider regulations on political advertising.

If elected, Hunt said he would "not rest until we've done everything in our power to see that North Carolina doesn't have another campaign like the one we are in this year."

Hunt told the annual convention of the N.C. League of Municipalities, which represents 467 cities and towns, Tuesday that his U.S. Senate race against Republican incumbent Jesse Helms had produced "too much mud slinging."

"The campaign has been too negative. It has not been good for our state," the Democratic governor said. "Our first task after Election Day must be to start healing the wounds. North Carolina should not be known around the nation as the home of negative, multi-million dollar campaigns."

Later, Hunt told reporters there should be a cap on spending and political donations — especially from out of state. He said he repeatedly had urged Helms to agree to such limits but that Helms refused.

Another possibility, Hunt said, is clamping down on the use of television ads.

"I'm not certain that the 32-second commercial is the best way for people to communicate," he said. "Maybe we ought to consider ... longer blocks of time — maybe 5 or even 10 minutes — instead of just throwing something up there which tends to be negative so it will get attention."

Helms has responded to Hunt's complaints about "negativism" by saying that Hunt sponsored the most negative ad of the campaign — a television spot showing victims of death squads in El Salvador and linking Helms to right-wing leader Roberto d'Aubuisson.

Hunt said Tuesday, however, that Helms was criticizing on the airwaves a full year before he began to hit back.

"Unfortunately, turning the other check in this business doesn't work," said Hunt.

Hunt's luncheon speech came midway through a hectic day that saw him hurry through shopping malls, libraries and restaurants in Raleigh, Research Triangle Park, Winston-Salem, Clemmons and Rural Hall. He was scheduled to end the day at a Democratic "unity rally" in Kernersville.

Hunt proclaimed the race "dead even" despite a Charlotte Observer poll published Tuesday that showed him trailing Helms by four percentage points. "We're tracking every night ... and it's a dead heat," said Hunt. "He's up one night, I'm up the next night. They just caught it on a night when he was ahead."

At a brief news conference in Clemmons, Hunt said he had "no idea" how a new appeal by convicted murderer Velma Barfield might affect the race.

Mrs. Barfield, scheduled for execution Friday, allowed her attorneys to seek a new trial this week. Hunt last month rejected her plea that her sentence be commuted to life imprisonment.

Hunt had criticized Helms' record on support of military veterans, which the incumbent defended on the campaign trail Tuesday. When Hunt learned the political action committee of the Veterans of Foreign Wars had withdrawn its endorsement of Helms, Hunt said: "That's exactly what he deserved. He's voted against the veterans every time he's turned around."

The VFW withdrew its endorsement Tuesday, saying it had been based on an error fed into a computer used to rate senators on national defense and veterans' entitlement issues.

Hunt's lunchtime speech to the Municipalities League was attended by most of his cabinet and the Council of State. Hunt praised the group for participating in the state's "phenomenal growth."

"North Carolina has become the No. 1 state in the nation in the recruitment of new industry, and that's something to be proud of," he said.

VFW Unit Recalls Helms Endorsement

RALEIGH (AP) — The political arm of the Veterans of Foreign Wars has withdrawn its endorsement of Sen. Jesse Helms, but a Helms' aide said the move would not affect the Republican's stand on veterans' issues.

Also Tuesday, Helms tried to oust a journalist from a Raleigh news conference when the man asked questions about the two-term senator's position on El Salvador. Helms charged the reporter was a disrupter planted by his opponent in the U.S. Senate race, Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt.

The VFW's original endorsement was based on an error fed into a computer used to rate senators on national defense and veterans' entitlement issues, said Charles F. Ball, treasurer of the VFW political action committee.

Ball said Tuesday Helms actually did not score well enough to warrant an endorsement from his organization.

Originally the committee said Helms had voted the "correct way" on all nine defense issues and the "wrong way" on the five veterans entitlement issues, giving him a rating on 64 percent.

But Ball said Helms actually disagreed with the VFW on one of the defense issues, as well as all five veterans issues. He said Helms' 1983 vote against an immigration bill gave him a rating of only 57 percent.

In Charlotte, Helms agreed the immigration bill vote cost him the endorsement. He said he opposed the bill because it would have granted amnesty to thousands of illegal immigrants already in the country.

Helms said the loss of the endorsement was predictable because the national VFW commander is a Hunt supporter.

Helms campaign spokesman Claude Allen said the withdrawal doesn't "change Sen. Helms' support for our veterans and the issues that affect them."

Campaigning in Winston-Salem, Hunt said, "That's exactly what he deserved. He's voted against the veterans every time he's turned around."

Before the announcement of the withdrawal, Helms brushed aside charges that he has worked against improving veterans' benefits and noted the VFW's endorsement.

Hunt said Helms has voted against all Veterans Appropriations bills since 1976, against restoring veterans' medical services to full funding in 1981, against emergency employment for Vietnam and disabled veterans in 1973 and against Veterans Administration training programs in 1973.

But Helms cited a vote to increase the GI Bill, a vote against cuts in veterans' health programs, to cut foreign aid and use that money for veterans' medical services, to offer counseling for Vietnam veterans and help for Agent Orange victims and to establish minimum benefits for disabled veterans.

Edmisten Says He's Confident

DURHAM (AP) — Attorney General Rufus Edmisten says he has never discussed polls in his campaigns and isn't going to start now that one shows Republican U.S. Rep. Jim Martin ahead in the governor's race.

"In all my campaigns I've never really discussed polls," Edmisten said Tuesday. "I've never released one since I've been running ... I always said this was going to be a close race. The difference is I have a proven track record of getting people out on Election Day and I feel very confident."

A Charlotte Observer poll published Tuesday showed Edmisten trailing Martin by about 6 percentage points, with about 11 percent of the voters undecided.

In an interview and in a speech to about 200 people at a Ruritan Club just outside Durham, the Democrat said there are stark differences between him and his Republican opponent.

"I will be emphasizing the real difference between the way we have prepared ourselves to be governor of this state. His is a record of jumping sky-high every time the big oil companies want something. ... As attorney general, I've looked out for everybody," Edmisten said.

Edmisten told voters who gathered Tuesday night to politick and eat barbecue chicken that their vote will mean a lot for children, the elderly and working people. He pushed them to go out and get as many people to the polls as possible next Tuesday.

Martin Says Polls Show Him Ahead

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — U.S. Rep. Jim Martin stopped short of predicting victory in the governor's race but said momentum was with him after polls showed him either slightly behind or slightly ahead of rival Rufus Edmisten.

Martin said he was "very much buoyed up" by the polls and vowed to continue the "high road" campaign he said was primarily responsible for his comeback.

The Charlotte Observer reported Tuesday that Martin, a Republican, was preferred by 47 percent of the people questioned in a statewide survey conducted Oct. 24-27.

Edmisten, the Democratic state attorney general, was the choice of 41 percent and 11 percent were undecided. The poll's margin of error was 3 percentage points.

Results from a poll conducted Oct. 23-25 by the Wilmington Star-News and WWAY-TV showed Edmisten ahead 47.4 percent to 46.8 percent with 5.9 percent undecided. The margin of error was 4.5 percent for that poll, which also was released Tuesday.

Virtually every earlier public opinion poll had shown Edmisten leading by comfortable margins. An Observer Poll conducted Oct. 1-4 had him ahead 50 percent to 37 percent.

"We're encouraged that there has been that continuing momentum that Edmisten so far has not been able to halt our growth in support," said Martin. "I think that's because he's been trying to do it with attacks on my record, which is a good, solid conservative voting record. And he's probably helping me to win as many supporters as he can cost me by that."

Ghost Hunter Finds Trade In Spook Tours

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Her house was the scene of a famous murder, but Nonie Fagett, professional ghost hunter, expects no visitation from the former tenant this Halloween.

"She certainly isn't here anymore; I'm sure of that," Ms. Fagett said of mystery writer Muriel Davidson, who was slain in the Benedict Canyon home little more than a year ago.

If other spirits drop by, they have only a ghost of a chance of finding Ms. Fagett (pronounced Fuh-get) at home. She's likely to be off leading packs of tourists on ghost hunts in some distant land.

Nonie Fagett, uniting her twin passions for travel and spooks, is doing a lively business these days in ghost tours — a travel oddity she invented just in time for the "Ghostbusters" phenomenon.

Ms. Fagett, an adviser on the popular film, says she can barely keep up with the demand for her ghost trips. She's currently leading one every month to England, home of legendary haunted castles and mansions.

"I've been traveling all my life and I know every spook in the world," said the bubbly Ms. Fagett. "So I put the two together. I know spirits and I know travel. I went to a travel agency and they liked the idea."

Her plan was to take tourists to places where ghosts had popped up before. No apparitions promised. But a highly sensitive person might feel a tingle down the spine, a cold draft, a "vibration."

"I don't say, 'Come with me and you will see an apparition,'" she said. "But every place I'm taking them has a current apparition, one that shows itself. I know because I've seen most of them personally."

Tourists get plenty of ghost stories and a "ghost walk" of historic haunted sites in every city they visit. Upcoming trips include a "mystery weekend" in which visitors try to solve a make-believe murder.

The 57-year-old Ms. Fagett, who worked for an airline for 17 years and has been a practicing psychic most of her life, has seen or felt the presence of ghosts on tours she's taken out in the past year, but her tourists didn't always share the experience.

"Ghosts haven't appeared so you can see them," she said. "They don't pop up and say, 'Boo!' But everybody feels something on these tours."

For instance, on a visit to the Duke of York Theater in London, Ms. Fagett said she saw "a fully materialized man in a brown suit standing in a corner." It was, she said, the legendary ghost of the former theater manager who returns periodically "because he likes to go to the theater."

Her upcoming British tours, which go under the names, "Chance of a Ghost" and "Ghostbusters," include visits to Hampton Court, where the ghost of Ann Bolyn is said to prowl, and Bisham's Abbey, where Ms. Fagett said she had met the ghost of Elizabeth Hobby, "a pal of Queen Elizabeth I who died 300 years ago."

The legend of the Hobby ghost, said Ms. Fagett, is that the woman shut her young son in a closet and he died. "It was a great tragedy and she's hung around ever since," she said. 'She's seen very often. You could never get rid of a ghost like this. She's in the bones of the building. I saw her once about a year and a half ago."

Asked to describe an encounter with a ghost, Ms. Fagett said. "You walk in a room and feel a little cold draft. The hair stands up on the back of your neck and you can sense the spirit. It's really not very difficult.

"The ghost is usually not aware it's dead," she added. "It usually committed suicide or was killed in an accident. Something happened and it got lost."

Ms. Fagett, who was born in New York but came to California as a child, said she had inherited her psychic powers from her parents who were "very spiritual people." Her mother, who was Jewish, practiced astrology; her father converted and became a Seventh-day Adventist minister.

Her affinity for ghosts led to Ms. Fagett's purchase of the Muriel Davidson house. A real estate agent, who was having trouble selling the property because of its owner's murder, approached Ms. Fagett.

"She said, 'Do I have a house for you,'" the ghost hunter recalled. Ms. Fagett spent some time in the vine-covered bungalow and decided it wasn't haunted.

"Fortunately for Muriel, she's not here," she said. "And she left a very good vibration in this house."

Although Ms. Fagett excorcizes spirits and does psychic healings, she refuses to conduct seances. "I don't whomp up ghosts," she said.

As for ghosts, Ms. Fagett said there were good and bad ones.

"As in life, there are positive and negative vibrations," she said. "There are so many crumb bums hanging around. But most of the time the apparition is reaching out to you with love and good vibrations."

Bats Delay Army Plans For Center

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Army's plans to use a deserted tract of land as a training center are on hold because of two rare types of bats that hibernate each year in a cool, dark cave in the rural section of central Tennessee.

The Tennessee Army National Guard is in the early stages of assessing the environmental impact if it succeeds with plans to obtain 114,000 acres between Fall Creek Falls State Park, Savage Gulf Natural Area and McMinnville.

The area, largely uninhabited, would be used for tank maneuvers, helicopter gunship runs and artillery practice. An additional 60,000 acres immediately west of the training center would be used for treetop-level flying.

But two bats on the government's endangered species list have put the plans on hold, at least temporarily.

"This is a critically important site to the survival of the gray bat and an important site for the Indiana bat," said Dr. Merlin D. Tuttle, curator of mammals at the Milwaukee Public Museum and a noted bat expert.

About 250,000 gray and Indiana bats come each fall to hibernate in the 40- to 50-degree temperatures of Hubbard's Cave.

"Bats are very sensitive to disturbance when they go into hibernation," said Linda Pearsall of the Tennessee Nature Conservancy, a land acquisition conservation group that owns Hubbard's Cave.

Bob Currie, a U.S. Fish and Wildlife biologist with the Endangered Species field office in Asheville, N.C., said development must wait until the Guard has complied with the Endangered Species Act, which says no federal agency will jeopardize the continued existence of an endangered species.

This Could Be Bad Year For Coattails

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Republican Sen. Roger Jepsen and Democratic challenger Rep. Tom Harkin, locked in one of the year's closest, nastiest Senate duels, both are enlisting heavy-duty outside help as Election Day approaches.

Eager to hop on President Reagan's coattails, Jepsen has been marching administration officials and GOP Senate colleagues though the state while Harkin has been bringing in movie stars.

Neither is sure the strategy will work. But in a race expected to go right down to the wire, both are pulling out all the stops.

Harkin concedes that appearances and endorsements by Margot Kidder, Mike Farrell, Debra Winger, Ed Asner, Tony Randall, Robert Redford and Sally Field "probably aren't going to swing any votes" his way.

And Jepsen may find Reagan's coattails awfully short — although he and other GOP candidates around the country clearly are vying for room on them.

Strategists of both parties characterize this as probably a bad year for presidential coattails — not only in Iowa but in many other Senate races around the nation.

Although Republican leaders still say a big Reagan re-election victory could usher GOP congressional candidates across the finish line in droves — as happened in 1980 — polls this year have yet to detect a major coattail effect, especially in Senate races.

In fact, in three of the year's most bitterly contested ones — Iowa, North Carolina and Illinois — a GOP incumbent is in trouble even as Reagan's lead remains substantial in the states.

Reagan's popularity "is a factor, but not so much in these high visibility races," said Ceci Cole, spokeswoman for the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee. "We'll see some impact, but not enough to make a difference."

In Iowa, as in the rest of the agricultural Midwest, Reagan remains personally popular while his farm policies do not — a fact not lost on farm-belt GOP candidates who had hoped for a coattail boost.

"If there's one political truth, it's that there are no coattails in Iowa," Harkin, 44, a 10-year House veteran, said in an interview.

Jepsen, a 55-year old white-haired conservative seeking a second term, says he hopes his opponent is wrong. "Everyone knows that if the head of your ticket runs strong, it can't help but be a plus," Jepsen said.

By his own count, Jepsen has brought more than 30 GOP luminaries into Iowa, ranging from Treasury Secretary Donald Regan and Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole to actor Charlton Heston and numerous Senate colleagues, including some whom don't share his conservative views — like liberal Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn.

"Weicker's campaigning for Roger Jepsen — that's like my campaigning for George Wallace," Harkin said.

Jepsen also has made the most of frequent visits to the state by Reagan and Vice President Bush.

He announced Monday that Reagan would be making another visit to Iowa on Saturday to campaign for Jepsen as well as GOP House candidates. This would be president's second visit to state of the fall campaign, and his third since Iowa's first-in-nation precinct caucuses last winter.

"Our goal has been to give the senator some exposure through the eyes of his colleagues, to show that Roger Jepsen is carrying Ronald Reagan's message to the U.S. Senate," said Jepsen campaign manager Tripp Howell. "We think we've been successful."

But Harkin's campaign manager, John Frew, insisted that "endorsement politics have been rejected in this state. Popularity doesn't transfer."

Harkin said: "The people that I've brought in are ones who feel very deeply about the arms race and want to have a nuclear freeze. They help raise a little money and put excitement in the campaign. That's how they help."

The race is the most expensive Senate race in Iowa history. With just one full week to go, Jepsen had spent $2.7 million and Harkin $2.3 million.

Although the Senate race has been back and forth, the latest Des Moines Register poll shows Harkin five points in front of Jepsen, but Reagan eight points ahead of Democratic opponent Walter F. Mondale.

Harkin and Mondale have made several recent joint appearances, but Harkin puts some distance between himself and his party's standard bearer — claiming Mondale hasn't concentrated enough on agricultural issues.

While claiming Iowa is still "winnable" for Mondale, Harkin declares: "Mondale will win or lose

No 'End In Sight' For African Famine

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — A U.N. report says there is "no end in sight," despite massive relief efforts, to the suffering of millions of Africans faced with starvation in a famine ranked as the continent's worst disaster in recent history.

The report, issued this week by the office of the U.N. Disaster Relief Coordinator, said more than 35 million people in several regions of Africa hit by drought, are desperately hungry.

Reporting on the situation in Ethiopia, one of the worst hit countries, International Red Cross officer Gill Whittington said the problem was largely due to the "poor response" to appeals for aid made earlier this year.

Now, she said: "we have the food, 1,000 tons just arrived by sea. We have the land transport to move it into (the stricken province of) Wollo. What we need now are pledges of aid that will keep a steady flow of food coming into the country throughout 1985."

In Rome, the head of the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization called for urgent food contributions to Ethiopia and other African countries.

The FAO's Edouard Saouma said that despite increases in world cereal production this year, food crises have worsened, especially in Africa. He cited reports of thousands of starving people seeking aid at relief camps in Ethiopia where food had run out.

U.N. officials said they had no estimates of the number of deaths caused by the drought and resulting famine. Much of Africa suffered drought almost continually for the past 15 years.

"Despite a massive relief effort by national governments and the international community, there is no end in sight for the silent suffering of what is undeniably the worst human disaster in the recent history of Africa," the U.N. report said.

The report said 27 African countries urgently need food aid, and that in 18 of the worst-suffering countries "over 35 million people are in desperate need of help."

Children under age 5 make up between 20 percent and 30 percent of the suffering populations, the report said.

The report said there were food shortages in all areas of Africa but that the problem was worst in east Africa, particularly Ethiopia and Somalia.

From around the world, more appeals and pledges of aid were made for Ethiopia, where some 6 million to 7 million people are estimated to be in risk of starvation.

The Red Cross said aid to Ethiopia will be doubled in November and quadrupled during 1985.

Public contributions poured in to relief agencies. In Scotland, Alec West and his family said they planned to contribute proceeds of an auction of their silverware, antiques and other household goods, as well as their old tractor and mobile home.

In Paris, the Ministry of Cooperation and Development said it was rushing 1,500 tons of cereal grains to Ethiopia. Earlier this year, two shipments totaling 7,400 tons were sent.

The Red Cross said that in Chad, where civil war compounds the suffering from the drought, the situation is "rapidly becoming intolerable."

Paul Dahan, a Red Cross officer who recently visisted Chad, said thousands of people have died there and 200,000 are "moving around the country in a desperate search for anything to eat."

"Parents are abandoning their children because they cannot feed them any longer," Dahan said.

Saouma saidsouthern Africa was hit by drought for the third consecutive year, Saouma said. "In East Africa, the principal harvest has again been severely affected by drought and the situation is dramatic, particularly in Kenya, Burundi, Rwanda and certain regions of the Sudan."

Just south of the Sahara, countries including Chad, Mali and Mauritania face food shortages, he said. Two years of drought are creating serious problems in Morocco, he said.

Saouma said recent allocations of $44 million in emergency food aid by the United States and 6,000 tons of food from Britain were not enough.

"The painful experience of certain African countries shows that it is also necessary to provide the means for the distribution of food aid, such as the purchase of trucks, fuel and other necessities," he said.

British government sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said Monday that after criticism by an Ethiopian official, Britain might send at least two aircraft to Ethiopia for three months to help distribute food.

The government last week offered two planes for one month, but Dawit Wolde Giorgis, head of Ethiopia's Relief and Rehabilitation Commission, said that help was insignificant.

Youth Are Turning To Ties As Part Of Modern Attire

NEW YORK (AP) — Only a few years ago, it was impossible to sell ties to school- and college-age men, but now the youth market is a growing part of the neckwear business, reports the Neckwear Association of America.

"You couldn't give a young man a tie," says Gerald Andersen, executive director of the association. "Ties had establishment identification and that was a no-no. Also, the whole trend in fashion was dress-down — jeans, T-shirts."

Now, he adds, with the growing competition for jobs and career opportunities, young men want in with the establishment. In addition, the dress-up look, fueled by nostalgia, is in full swing.

And ties are selling briskly, Andersen says. Young men's clothing retailers who have never carried ties before are coming to manufacturers for advice about fixtures and displays. Customers themselves, most of whom have never worn ties before, are seeking instruction in the mysteries of knotting.

Though no definite figures are available, the young men's tie business probably generates $50 million at retail annually and is growing, Andersen says. Most major neckwear manufacturers now have young men's divisions to serve the special styling requirements of that market.

"Like youth itself, the popular looks in ties are diverse and even contradictory," Andersen says. "Colors are bright and electric, or they're black and white and monochromatic. And while skinnies as narrow as 1¼ inches are the preferred width, a new look is also emerging, a full 4½ inches wide.

"However," he adds, "it has more in common with the wide ties of the late '40s and early '50s than those of the '70s. It is very narrow at the knot, and short."

While the mature market confines itself to traditional fabrics, anything that can be made into a tie probably will be for the younger set, Andersen notes. Leathers, knits, satins, sequins and even snakeskin are on the materials list.

Styling trends originally adopted by the more adventurous young folk are showing up around the necks of their older brothers, who shop designer lines and department-store neckwear racks.

How They Voted

Roll Call Report Service

WASHINGTON — Here's how area House members and senators were recorded on major roll call votes at the close of the 98th Congress.

House

DUTY — By a vote of 174 for and 233 against, the House rejected an amendment to end the preferential trade treatment the U.S. grants to South Korea, Taiwan and Hong Kong.

The vote occurred during debate on a catchall trade bill (HR 3398) that later became law.

To help "developing" countries, the U.S. waives duties on some 3,000 categories of products imported from about 140 countries and territories, including South Korea, Taiwan and Hong Kong.

Of the $26.5 billion worth of goods the three exported last year to the U.S., about $5.6 billion arrived duty free.

Sponsor Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., noted that South Korea, Taiwan and Hong Kong have robust economies and register trade surpluses in dealing with the U.S.

Opponent Thomas Bliley, R-Va., said removal of the three from the preferential trade list will weaken the Administration's power to negotiate issues such as dumping and the manufacture of counterfeit products.

Members voting yes wanted to end duty-free trade status for South Korea, Taiwan and Hong Kong.

Voting yes were Tom Valentine, D-2, Charles Britt, D-6, Charles Rose, D-7, Joanes Broyhill, R-10, and James Clarke, D-11.

Voting no were Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Stephen Neal, D-5, and W.G. Hefner, D-8.

Not voting were Walter Jones, D-1, and James Martin, R-9.

COMMITTEES — By a vote of 251 for and 158 against, the House tabled (killed) a recolution (H Res 603) to increase the number of Republican seats on House subcommittees.

Republicans represent about 38 percent of the 435 congressional districts. However, under rules set by Democrats, they are denied 38 percent of the seats on many key subcommittees and full committees.

For example, the GOP holds only 31 percent of the subcommittee seats on the Energy and Commerce Committee.

The deficiency tilts legislative decisions heavily in favor of Democrats. The GOP says it is unfairly weakened not only in subcommittee voting, but also on the staff level, where many key policy decisions are made in secrecy by unelected officials.

No Democrat spoke on the substance of the resolution.

Sponsor William Dannemeyer, R-Calif., called existing subcommittee ratios "a tyranny of the majority" that enables Democrats "to manipulate the democratic process."

Members voting yes were opposed to the resolution.

Voting yes were Walter Jones, Valentine, Whitley, Ike Andrews, Neal, Britt, Rose, Hefner and Clarke.

Broyhill voted no.

James Martin did not vote.

Senate

EMBASSIES — By a vote of 56 for and 42 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment requiring President Reagan to certify that Congress has appropriated enough money to secure U.S. embassies against the terrorist attack.

This followed the recent bombing of the U.S. Embassy in Beirut. The certification was sought as a condition of Senate approval of a $366 million emergency appropriation or embassy security.

The vote occurred during debate on HJ Res 648, a fiscal 1985 appropriations bill that later became law.

Warren Rudman, R-N.H., called the amendment an attempt to fix blame on the president should another U.S. embassy be bombed.

Joseph Biden, D-Del., said the bombing of the U.S. embassy in Lebanon "had nothing to do ... with lack of money. Congress gave the president all he needed" for security.

Senators voting no favored the certification requirement.

John East, R, did not vote. Jesse Helms, R, voted yes.

TURKEY — By a vote of 51 for and 46 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment pressuring Turkey into withdrawing its troops from the Republic of Cyprus.

Turkey has occupied Cyprus since 1974, defying a United Nations declaration that Cyprus is a sovereign state. Last year it moved to establish a "Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus."

This amendment sought to withold $215 million in U.S. military aid to Turkey until after it withdrew from the Greek-Cyrpiot area of Famagusta-Varosha. It was proposed to HJ res 648 (above).

Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said the amendment would antagonize a valuable U.S. ally and "undermine the prospects for diplomatic progress on Cyprus."

Larry Pressler, R-S.D., said America "must use the only leverage we possess (foreign aid) to bring about an end to the decade-old Cyprus conflict."

Senators voting no favored witholding military aid to Turkey.

East did not vote. Helms voted yes.

SYNFUELS — The Senate rejected, 37 for and 60 against, an amendment to rescind $9 billion that had been obligated to the Synthetic Fuels Corp.

Later, the Senate approved a rescission of about $5 million. The latter figure scales down the "synfuels" program but keeps it alive against the wishes of President Reagan and other critics.

The corporation is funding several companies in their attempts to extract fuel at competitive prices from tar sands, oil shale, coal and other sources.

Sponsor Bill Bradley, D-N.J., said that "with deficits at $200 million annually we simply cannot afford to continue guaranteeing a few companies $60 to $90 a barrel of oil."

Opponent James McClure, R-Idaho, said the remaining synthetic fuels program "provides the bases for efficient private sector development ..."

Senators voting no wanted to retain the sizeable synthetic fuel program.

East did not vote. Helms voted yes.

Reactivation

ROME (AP) — Parliamentary representatives from seven NATO nations have endorsed reactivation of the Western European Union to promote closer European cooperation on disarmament and security matters.

The decision to reactivate the organization was announced after a weekend meeting of foreign and defense ministers of the union's seven member countries — Britain, France, West Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg.

On Monday, the organization's parliamentary assembly approved the decision after hearing reports from West German Foreign Minister Hans Dietrich-Genscher, Italian Foreign Minister Giulio Andreotti and Defense Minister Giovanni Spadolini.

The Western European Union was formed in 1948 to serve as a watchdog over West German rearmament, but it has been largely inactive for more than 20 years.

Bridge Tender Comes On A Hoot

By JOHN PLATERO
Associated Presss Writer

BELLE GLADE, Fla. (AP) — A funny thing happens going through the Intracoastal Waterway near here.

As a boat moves along the rim canal near the southeast corner of the 700-square-mile Lake Okeechobee, its way is blocked by a low wooden bridge spanning the gap between the mainland and Torry Island.

A closer look at the rickety looking structure will show a portion of the bridge is made of iron and obviously swivels to allow boats to pass.

However, no bridge tender is in sight.

Those who read their navigational charts know to sound their boat's horn. They give it a solid blast or two and watch.

In a few minutes, a burly man carrying a steel pole over his shoulder will appear from Slim's Fish Camp tucked next to the island side of the span and walk to the center of the bridge.

There, he'll stick the flat end of the 8-foot pole into a sprocket imbedded in the bridge's roadway, push on the other end as he walks in circles, and the only swivel bridge of its kind in Florida opens. After the waiting boat passes, the man turns the portable lever in the opposite direction, winding the bridge back to a closed position.

The man wielding the 50-pound lever is either Gordon or Charles Corbin. The brothers own the popular fish camp on small Torry Island and are the bridge tenders.

"The hardest part is carrying the pole," says the affable Gordon who, with his brother, is paid by the state Department of Transportation to operate the bridge seven days a week. The two take turns 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 7 a.m.-7 p.m. Friday through Sunday.

Gordon says he doesn't feel disturbed whenever a boat horn forces him to stop whatever he's doing and open the bridge. There's isn't that much traffic.

"It averages out over the year to about three times a day," he explains. In the heavy tourist season during the winter months, he and his brother sometimes have to open and close the span a dozen times daily.

Nuclear Free Zones Depend On Voters

By RICHARD T. PIENCIAK
Associated Press Writer

Election Day may bring widespread proliferation of nuclear-free zones when voters in California, Michigan, Oregon and Washington decide whether to ban atomic activities in their communities.

The number of counties and municipalities with nuclear-free zones would increase to more than 75 if all the measures pass, according to Albert Donnay, who directs an organization called Nuclear Free America in Baltimore.

In addition, two states have scheduled votes relating to disposal of nuclear wastes:

— An initiative in South Dakota would require voter approval before the state could allow a nuclear dump site within its borders or even join a regional waste disposal compact.

— Proposition B in Missouri would enact laws limiting the size of utility rate increases and prohibit utilities from charging consumers for nuclear power plants until federal and state governments establish a permanent disposal site for high-level nuclear wastes.

The measure could affect two nuclear plants, Union Electric Co.'s Callaway unit being built in central Missouri and the Wolf Creek plant being built in Kansas by several utilities, including Missouri's Kansas City Power and Light Co.

Initiatives on nuclear-free zones have captured the most ballot slots on atomic issues nationwide. The impetus for the nuclear-free zones comes both from the anti-nuclear power and the nuclear freeze movements.

Proposition TT on the Santa Monica, Calif., ballot is a charter amendment that would ban the development, testing, production, maintenance, storage, transportation or disposal of nuclear weapons or weapons components.

It also would ban applied nuclear research within city limits, a ban which would affect about 10 companies, including the prestigious Rand Corp. research institution.

Robert Myers, the city attorney, has issued an opinion that if the proposition passes it will likely be ruled unconstitutional because "it would be pre-empted by federal law ... by virtue of the foreign affairs national defense powers of the U.S. government."

Myers told council members, however, that they were obligated by law to put the measure on the ballot because its sponsors had gathered the required number of signatures.

About two-thirds of Rand's work is government-funded national security projects, but it is not known what portion would fall under the proposition, said company spokesman Paul Weeks.

Voters in Ann Arbor, Mich., home of the University of Michigan, will consider a charter amendment that would prohibit "the design, research, development, testing or production of nuclear weapons."

If approved, a public commission would be created to review all federal Defense and Energy Department research contracts.

"I don't know of any nuclear weapons research going on in the area, but I know there's a lot of military research going on," said Robert Vincent, chairman of a local trade council representing 170 high-tech companies.

"You just can't take a cookie cutter and remove Ann Arbor from the rest of the U.S. We feel this initiative would harm the high-tech future of the area," he said.

If the proposal passes, it also could harm research at the university's College of Engineering, according to Dean James Duderstadt. Hesaid the college is conducting federally funded research to develop less potent fuel for nuclear reactors.

"A poor guy working on a computer program may be a criminal," said Joe Clayton, spokesman for Citizens Against Research Bans. "We're concerned about the impact on our customers — the Air Force, the Navy, so on — who will be very concerned about having their projects looked at by a city commission."

But members of Nuclear Free Ann Arbor, the group leading the amendment drive, say a local law would send a tougher message to the federal government than the one sent by passage of nuclear freeze referendums across the country.

"The purpose of this proposal is to slow or stop the development of first-use or first-strike weapons, which makes nuclear war more likely," said University of Michigan biophysicist Dan Axelrod. "The opposition deliberately distorts it because they don't want to address the real issue."

The other major nuclear-free zone battles will be on the West Coast.

A citizens' initiative in Washington state's Whatcom County would prohibit the production of nuclear energy for commercial or military use and ban nuclear waste storage.

And in Oregon, voters in eight counties and two communities will decide whether to ban nuclear industries within their borders.

There also will be advisory votes cast on nuclear-free zone questions in three other communities.

Voters in the heart of California's wine country will decide whether to ask the Napa City Council to ban the "production, transportation, storage, processing, disposal or use" of nuclear materials in town.

Measure C is only an advisory measure, but strong approval by voters will almost certainly affect city council members who are expected to vote on the initiative if voters back it.

Washington state's Skagit County has an advisory vote, sought through the County Commission, on whether a nuclear-free zone should be adopted.

And a similar advisory question is on the ballot in Northampton, Mass., where voters will be asked whether their district's representative should ask Congress and the president to declare the community of 30,000 in the Berkshire Mountains a nuclear-free zone, "where no nuclear weapons may be produced, deployed or stored within the city limits."

Federal Law Has Buyer Protections

By COSMOPOLITAN
A Hearst magazine

Collection agencies that call consumers bums, threaten phony legal action or use the telephone as a weapon are breaking the law.

Federal law protects people from a wide range of abuses, according to an article in the November issue of Cosmopolitan, and knowing your rights can protect you from collection bullies.

"Some of the most extreme cases we see involve actual threats of violence," said Diane Conner, staff attorney for the Credit Practices Division of the Federal Trade Commission.

"Children have been told over the phone, 'Tell your parents they're going to jail tomorrow if we don't get the money.' We've also heard about collection agencies trying to add on illegal fees of up to 100 percent of the original debt."

Here are some guidelines to which collecting techniques are legal and which are not, but remember that calling off the collection agency does not cancel the debt.

— Telephone calls at unusual times or to unusual places. Repeated dunning calls during the same day or calls late at night without reason or permission are illegal under the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act.

— Calls at work. These are not considered harassment if work is the most convenient place for you to receive calls, attorney Conner said, but she added, "If the collection agent knows your employer does not allow you to receive personal calls at work, of if you've asked not to be contacted there, then it would be a violation."

— Calls to third parties. "We frequently hear a collection agent has called an employer, or perhaps a neighbor, and left an 'urgent message' that the consumer should call Such-and-Such Collection Agency regarding payment of a debt," said Bill McDonough, an FTC staff attorney.

"The only possible motive would be to embarrass the consumer into paying the debt quickly before more people know. That's not legitimate, and it's against the law."

— Abusive, obscene or threatening language. Name calling, threats and obscene language are illegal. If they occur in a telephone conversation, end the conversation immeidately.

— Misleading threats of legal action. It is illegal to make false threats of legal action or to use papers designed to look like official documents of a government agency or court of law.

— Other abusive behavior. Congress, aware of the infinite ingenuity of debt collectors, add to the debt collection law a prohibition against any "harassing, oppressive, and abusive conduct."

The first line of defense of victims of illegal debt collection practices would be to request in writing that all contact with the collection agency cease, reports the article in Cosmopolitan. If harassment continues, the next step would be to contact your state consumer protection agency. Finally, the victim can sue.

High Stakes Are Involved In Trial Over X-Car Brakes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A recent cartoon featuring a recalcitrant donkey locking his rear "brakes" and refusing to budge found perhaps its most appreciative audience in courtroom No. 2 of the federal courthouse in Washington.

It offered a rare moment of comic relief for lawyers representing General Motors Corp. and the government. The attorneys are pitted daily against one another in the trial of charges that GM sold more than a million 1980 X-cars with dangerous rear brakes that it knew could lock too quickly during routine stops.

According to the government, the alleged defect can cause 1980 models of the Chevrolet Citation, Buick Skylark, Pontiac Phoenix and Oldsmobile Omega to spin out of control. It has been linked to at least 3,563 complaints involving 1,108 accidents, 323 injuries and seven deaths.

The non-jury trial opened to a capacity crowd in federal district court last March, but the courtroom is nearly empty nowadays as time drags on, tempers wear thin and the government and GM wade through reams of technical data and thousands of documents.

The donkey cartoon, shared among the attorneys during a trial recess, was a rare item on which the two sides did not disagree.

Even U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson has privately chided both sides for dragging out the hard-fought case — which thus far has been at trial 65 days — and both sides now vow to be done before Christmas.

The lawsuit, filed by the Justice Department on behalf of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, asks Jackson to order all 1.1 million 1980 X-cars recalled and fixed, and GM fined $4 million.

The stakes actually are higher. The government sees the lawsuit as a chance to put all domestic carmakers on notice that they will be held to their duty to make safe cars; the world's largest automaker hopes to win vindication.

Neither side will disclose its legal costs to date.

"The reason this case is so important ... is it deals with the responsibility of manufacturers to act on their own (on safety problems) without the government ordering them to do so," says Justice Department attorney Lawrence Moloney. "If that doesn't happen, then the public isn't going to be protected very well, it's as simple as that."

Counters Thomas Gottschalk, GM's top litigator on the case: "What makes this case unique and always has is the slanderous attack by the government on GM in its decision to release the car ... You can never go back and undo the harm that's been done."

Moloney said the government's case is anchored in the reports of typical drivers who experienced unusual and unexpected skidding with their X-cars when they applied the brakes.

"The numbers of people and the complaint rates for the X-car make it stand out like a sore thumb," he said.

Twelve unhappy X-car owners took the stand at the trial's onset, after which the government introduced thousands of pages of internal GM documents which it says show that the automaker knew that the cars were unsafe but sold them anyway.

Gottschalk discounts the implications of the consumers' reports, the numbers of complaints linked to rear-wheel lockup, and the government's interpretation of company documents.

"They (consumers) undoubtedly are sincere in reporting a skidding incident, often a frightening incident that they had on a slick road or a wet road, but the fact that people skid ... in no way suggests that there's a defect in the car," Gottschalk said.

GM, midway through its defense, does not dispute that company records show that its own drivers experienced instances of rear-brake lockup on company tests prior to production of the cars. But the automaker has tried to convince the judge that the problems were caused by the severity of the tests and never foreshadowed a safety problem.

"The types of events ... that occurred in our durability schedules were directly due to the severity of those schedules," Gottschalk said. "Very competent engineering judgments were made that we would not see that type of experience in the hands of consumers, and that judgment has proven correct."

As the case progresses, GM hopes to show that the cars have safety records comparable to those of other cars.

FOCUS

Ghosties and Ghoulies

The costumed revels of children and adults are a fairly recent Halloween tradition. It is derived from the ancient Celtic belief that witches and ghosts walked the Earth on October 31, the last day on the Celtic calendar. To counteract the Celtic New Year celebrations, Christians moved the feast of All Saints from mid-May to November 1. But the Celtic beliefs stuck, and for many years, "All Hallows Eve" remained a night on which wise men feared to go outside.

DO YOU KNOW — What is the common name for the hollowed-out pumpkins displayed on Halloween?

TUESDAY'S ANSWER — Alpha Centauri is the closest star to Earth.

Specialist Checking 'Phobia'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy Department has hired a psychiatrist for $85,000 to find out if widespread opposition to nuclear power plants amounts to a phobia — a mental problem that might be dispelled.

The Energy Department's contract with Dr. Robert L. DuPont, president of the Phobia Society of America, calls for "a true scientific study done by a highly reputable researcher," department spokesman Jim Merna said Monday.

"He's Mr. Phobia," Merna said. The spokesman confirmed that DuPont came to the Energy Department with the research proposal and was awarded the non-competitive contract in March.

The Rockville, Md., psychiatrist argued in a New York Daily News article last year that the fear of atomic power "is widespread, irrational and aggressively exploited by the political opposition to nuclear electricity."

"Fear persists despite the remarkable safety record of the nuclear power industry," DuPont said in the article.

Calls to DuPont's telephone Monday night reached an answering machine.

In Tuesday editions of the Washington Post, however, DuPont was quoted as saying that the study is not aimed at opponents of nuclear power but seeks to determine whether the aversion to it "on anybody's part" is comparable to such phobias as the fear of flying.

The Post quoted DuPont as saying it was "a paradox" that nuclear power is more feared than cigarette smoking.

The Post said the grant was the second awarded to DuPont by the Energy Department. It said the first, for $16,000, was for an analysis of how the news media foster nuclear fears and how the government's public information officers could avert worsening the situation.

In the current study, DuPont gives questionnaires to 170 subjects, then provides them with a booklet about nuclear power that he wrote and finally interviews them again to determine if their views change.

Merna said the project does not amount to propaganda for the nuclear power industry. He added: "As Energy Secretary (Donald) Hodel often says, we have a duty to come up with a balanced supply of energy."

Tails ...

Iowa on his own. I will win Iowa on my own."

Like the other closely fought Senate races this year, the Iowa contest has deteriorated in its closing days into a barrage of personal attacks, negative campaign advertising and name-calling — producing a degree of mudslinging both candidates say they regret.

To Jepsen's attempts to paint Harkin as a big-spending liberal, Harkin fired back with television ads accusing Jepsen of being a big-spending conservative and voting consistently for "gold plated" defense projects.

One Harkin television ad uses the sound of hogs snorting and purports to show Jepsen asleep on the job.

Jepsen, building on Harkin's support of freedom of choice for abortions, has accused his opponent of advocating "cruel experiments on living, breathing, babies that survive abortions."

They've called each other "liars" in a series of four face-to-face debates, accused each other of trying to rob benefits from the elderly and even accused the other of misrepresenting his military record.

"It just turns a lot of people off," said Mike Atkins, a 42-year old tool maker and union official in hard-pressed Waterloo which, like many cities in the farm belt, is not sharing in the current economic recovery.

Atkins said he expects many members of his United Auto Workers local to split the ticket and vote for Reagan and Harkin, even though the union has endorsed both Mondale and Harkin.

Jepsen has had some political liabilities in this race, including the disclosure earlier this year of his membership in a Des Moines sex club that was later closed for prostitution. Jepsen confirmed he joined the club, but said he thought it was a "health spa," and that it was a personal mistake that happened before his "commitment to Christ."

There's no doubt, "Jepsen has picked up a lot of negative feeling" even among those of his own party, conceded Stephen W. Roberts, a Des Moines lawyer and past state GOP chairman.

"There are still Republicans who don't feel as comfortable with him as they do with Chuck Grassley," Iowa's junior senator. "They just have a different feeling about him. I don't think it relates to the health spa episode. Iowans are forgiving and understanding."

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

Some players are so intrigued by a bit of larceny that they falsecard at every opportunity. They rarely fool anyone—except perhaps partner. The successful falsecarder is the honest citizen who makes the play only when necessary.

South felt that his hand was too strong for one no trump because of his five-card major suit, so he opened one heart. He showed his good balanced hand by jumping in no trump over his partner's two club response, and that ended the auction.

West led the jack of spades. East signaled with the nine and declarer held up for one round. West continued with a low spade, declarer won and led a low club. Although he was an upright citizen in every respect and not known as a falsecarder, West on this occasion elected to contribute the jack.

If that were an honest card, and there was no reason to suppose it was not, East had a stopper in clubs and the suit could not be run. After considerable thought, declarer decided to duck the club. That assured him of five club tricks, and he could get his ninth trick either by playing East for the ace of hearts or by taking the diamond finesse. West now cleared the spades.

Declarer continued clubs, and when West turned up with a second club declarer had a premonition of what was going to happen. On the run of the clubs West blanked his king of diamonds early, then discarded two hearts. It was only fitting that declarer should try the diamond finesse and end up off two tricks.

Forgot Bride

NORRIS, Tenn. (AP) — Tom Wopat, known to television viewers as Luke on "The Dukes of Hazzard," almost got off on the wrong foot on his plans to have "a lot of little dukies," when he left the bride at home.

"They forgot to come get us," said Mary Allen, the mother of the bride, 24-year-old Vickie Allen. "We were pressing dresses and tying bows. ... We kept waiting and waiting."

When Wopat, 30, discovered the Saturday mix-up, he dispatched a motor home for the missing members of the wedding party.

The former Miss Allen worked for a physician in her home town of Lake City. She and Wopat met last year when he was in the area filming "The Burning Rage," a television movie.

No Inquiry

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher says there will be no formal inquiry in the case of Soviet defector Oleg Bitov, who surfaced in Moscow claiming he was kidnapped and tortured by British intelligence agents.

She said Monday the government believes the journalist made the charges "to restore his credit with Soviet authorities."

Her written statement responded to a request by opposition Labor Party legislator Harry Cohen for an investigation.

Bitov, 52, was foreign cultural editor of the Soviet weekly Literary Gazette when, British officials said, he defected while covering the Venice Film Festival in August 1983. He came to Britain and wrote articles criticizing life in the Soviet Union.

Lowe's Pricing Policy: Many items in this tabloid carry a reference retail price. The reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. Some items in this advertisement are listed at "regular" selling prices. The merchandise is offered at this price except during a special sale.
