Barfield Executed

By DENNIS PATTERSON

Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Velma Barfield, convicted of feeding her boyfriend fatal doses of ant poison, died today in North Carolina's execution chamber after saying she was "sorry for all the hurt that I have caused."

Mrs. Barfield, 52, was declared dead at 2:15 a.m. at Central Prison, where a lethal injection of procainium bromide ended her life after six years of fruitless appeals in state and federal courts. She agreed to donate her organs for transplant.

Clad in her own pink, cotton pajamas with embroidery around the collar, Mrs. Barfield was wheeled on a gurney into the death chamber before 16 witnesses. Mrs. Barfield, a born-again Christian, celebrated communion before the execution in which she became the first woman executed in 22 years in the United States.

'Sorry For The Hurt'

"I want to say that I am sorry for all the hurt that I have caused," said Mrs. Barfield in her last statement. Convicted of one murder, she confessed to killing three other people — her mother and two elderly Lumberton residents who employed her as a live-in housekeeper.

"I know that everybody has gone through a lot of pain, all the families connected and I am sorry, and I am sorry and I want to thank everybody who have been supporting me all these six years," she said.

"I want to thank my family for standing with me through all this and my attorneys and all the support to me, everybody, the people with the Prison Department. I appreciate everything, their kindness and everything they have shown me during these six years."

As the deadly drug began to drip through tubes in her arms, Mrs. Barfield's mouth moved quickly as if she was saying something.

She lay still for several more minutes. About 2:08 a.m., her color changed from reddish to gray. At 2:15 a.m., a doctor pronounced her dead.

Families of Mrs. Barfield's victims went to a Lumberton motel to wait out the execution. One of them said they decided not to come to Raleigh because that was "like licking your chops after you eat."

Mrs. Barfield "... wanted to live very badly ... she never gave up hope until today," her tearful son, Ronnie Burke, said Thursday night.

When the execution began at 2 a.m., cheers erupted from pro-death penalty protesters also stood in a quiet vigil outside the prison, where prisoners banged on their cell bars about midnight.

Letter For Helms Upsets PCMH

By STUART SAVAGE

Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Memorial Hospital officials today expressed concern over a letter by Fred Brown, executive vice president at PCMH, which was apparently sent to a number of people across North Carolina by the Helms campaign committee.

The three-page letter, dated Oct. 30, endorses Helms' bid for reelection in Tuesday's balloting and, while not on PCMH stationary, is signed: "Fred T. Brown Jr." and identifies Brown as "Executive Vice-President, Pitt County Memorial Hospital."

Reid Hooper, chairman of the hospital's board of trustees, said this morning that "it's a very regrettable thing in my judgment. Fred has every right in the world to support anyone he chooses ... (to) write letters."

But Hooper said Brown's letter, by identifying him with PCMH, was "in poor taste." He said it was "not appropriate" for Brown "to sign as executive vice president" of the hospital.

"I'm very sorry he did that," Hooper said. "The hospital is not concerned with politics as an entity. We're concerned with the political process," but PCMH should not be brought into a campaign. "I'm sorry it happened."

Hooper said he had no idea how many of the letters were mailed. But he said, "I'm afraid they went all over the state."

According to Hooper, no disciplinary action against Brown is planned, but he said "I hope the executive committee will go along with me" at the November meeting and "pass a resolution forbidding any type of political activity. I feel they would back such a resolution."

Brown's letter, Hooper said, was "most inappropriate. If he'd just identified himself as a hospital administrator, or a member of the health care field, it would have been OK."

PCMH President Jack Richardson said "this is the first time the hospital has ever been involved in" (Please turn to page 16)

TOWER REPAIR

Why has the city of Greenville allowed the Fire Department drill tower on Skinner Street to deteriorate to the point that it is practically useless. The training facility was given to the city in the early 1940s by the Minges family — one of the first such facilities in North Carolina — and was used extensively for fire and rescue training until several years ago. But now, I'm told, the tower is in such need of repair that the top two floors are off-limits and when the tower is used, firemen cannot use water on the structure. I'm also told that city officials were told five or six years ago that the Minges family might be willing to help preserve the tower, but no one ever contacted them. If repaired, the tower could once again be a valuable training site, not only for Greenville's fire and rescue personnel, but for county fire and rescue departments as well. D.L.

Jack Minges confirmed for Hotline that his father did, indeed, donate the tower in the 1940s and that the family would like to see it preserved as a memorial to M.O. Minges. He said he has recently talked with the fire chief and been told that bringing the tower up to requirements will cost from $8,000 to $10,000. He, therefore, will match whatever the city spends for repairs up to $5,000, he said.

City Manager Gail Meeks said Minges' offer is a generous one, which the City Council has indicated it will gladly accept. She said an architect is now studying the tower to determine exactly what repairs and renovations need to be made. Based on a preliminary estimate, the council Thursday will consider appropriations for repairing the tower.

Jobs Keep Pace With Demand

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civilian unemployment stood still at 7.4 percent in October as economic growth created nearly 350,000 new jobs — just enough to keep pace with a strong demand, the government said today.

In the last major economic indicator before Tuesday's presidential election, the Labor Department said the stagnant civilian jobless rate left more than 8.4 million people unemployed, as the ranks of those officially categorized as jobless shrank by 29,000.

The total number of employed rose by 347,000, from 105,239,000 to 105,586,000.

The new rate was 0.1 percentage point below that when President Reagan took office in January 1981. The October rate was 0.3 percentage point higher the June rate, the best of Reagan's tenure.

An alternate unemployment rate, which includes the 1.7 million members of the armed forces stationed in the United States, was also unchanged.

Even though the number of Americans with jobs since Reagan was inaugurated has risen by more than 6 million, the president has said repeatedly that, while he was pleased at that, he won't be satisfied until "everyone who wants a job can find one."

In advance of today's report, the Democratic Policy Committee, headed by Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, issued a statement saying that

"today there are nearly 8.5 million people out of work. The administration cannot hide that."

The new rate, following more than 18 months of often dramatic declines after the 1981-82 recession, furnished the week's latest evidence of a general economic slowdown.

But private analysts have said that while joblessness has seemed in recent months to be stuck on a plateau, they do not expect unemployment surges of the sort that characterized the long business slump.

On Wednesday, the Commerce Department reported that the government's main economic forecasting gauge — the Index of Leading Economic Indicators — rose 0.4 percent in September.

Jones Says 'No Support'

First District Rep. Walter Jones, a Democrat, said today that he does not support U.S. Rep. Jim Martin, the Republican candidate for governor, and will vote a straight Democratic ticket in Tuesday's election.

Jones, responding to ads placed in several eastern North Carolina newspapers this week, said, "I regret very much the misunderstanding that has resulted from the Martin forces using materials indicating my support for Jim Martin. It is entirely erroneous. I have voted the straight Democratic ticket my entire life and intend to do so on Nov. 6."

Jones continued, "Anyone who questions this should have heard my remarks on behalf of Rufus Edmisten

(the Democratic candidate for governor) in Kinston, at the Democratic rally on Oct. 26. At that time, I reiterated my long friendship with Rufus Edmisten and my admiration for him."

The political ads are headed "Congressman Walter B. Jones Talks About Jim Martin."

They quote Jones as saying Martin was "a big help" in successfully lobbying Republican members of Congress to obtain a favorable House Interior Committee report on the Oregon Inlet jetty project, and say Jones "personally thanked Martin" for his efforts on an amendment which reduced the federal tobacco tax from 16 cents to 12 cents.

Science Comes Alive On TV Monitors

Pupils Get Close-Up View

By JANE WELBORN

Reflector Staff Writer

A Pitt County high school has found that students are more motivated in science when they watch television in the classroom.

Not just any television program fosters students' interest in biology, though. Science students at Ayden-Grifton High School have recently begun to watch amoebas and paramecium "live" on television.

The school purchased a microvideo system that Bill Dorey, chairman of the science department, says has helped the students become more motivated.

The students can see the live organism, magnified 40 times, moving around on the television screen. The science teacher can show the students the parts of the organism, and when students go into the science laboratory, they know what they are looking for under their microscope.

The microvideo system includes a Nikon clinical microscope, a color video camera that fits into the microscope, a video recorder so the organism can be captured on tape and a color television. Ayden-Grifton is one of the first high schools in North Carolina to have this system for use in the classroom, Dorey said.

"Through this system, the student can see living specimens on the television screen," Dorey said in an interview. "We live in an age when television is a motivator. Basic students are really stimulated and motivated by the system; these are the students you usually have trouble with. We are trying to motivate students toward science and I think this is going to do it."

"I think it makes a big difference when the students see what the organism looks like before they start looking for it themselves under the microscope," said science student teacher Vivian Martin. "Knowing what you are looking for cuts down on the search time in lab."

Ms. Martin said she also has noticed the students' attention span being longer when they were watching the organism on television. "They also ask a lot of 'why' and 'what' questions when they are watching the system," she said.

The students and the school began fund-raising projects for the purchase of the $9,000 microvideo system a year ago. Dorey said students and clubs sold candy and doughnuts and raked leaves to raise money. Donations from parents and from private industries located from Kinston to Greenville provided additional funds.

"Buying this system was a cooperative effort of a whole lot of people," Dorey said. "The community came together with the school. The students, even some students who don't go to high school yet, worked hard. And business and industry in the area gave us money and advice about what to buy."

Dorey said an advantage of the system is that a handicapped or parapelegic student can use this system without having to stand at a laboratory table. The system can also be used for science tests.

The goal of the science department is to use the machine to spark younger students' interest.

"We hope to carry this system down to the elementary school and middle school and show those students the organisms," Dorey said. "We want the high school students to go to the elementary schools and teach the younger students about science with this machine. We want the students to be motivated to take science classes."

Party Dressing By McFadden Unveiled

By MARJORIE ANDERS
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Torsos are in focus for spring, whether they be long and lean in the crinkle pleat dresses of designer Mary McFadden, or peeking out of an amusing, back-button version of the man-tailored shirt by Danny Noble.

Rib-hugging pleats outlined torsos, which were elongated by dropped waists and emphasized by puff sleeves and full skirts in many of Miss McFadden's party creations. Some of the tighter gowns, in vivid tri-colors, featured peek-a-boo cutouts at midriff that drew oohs and ahhs from preferred customers with reserved seats at her runway showing.

Miss McFadden's signature fabric, a polyester satin permanently crimped by a patented pleating process, was used horizontally from neck to hips to call attention to the slim silhouette and vertically for swiny skirts and wide pants. While attractive on statuesque mannequins, few women of ordinary proportions could get away with Miss McFadden's revealing rib cinchers.

More forgiving was a cocktail-length sheath dress in a beige linen-blend. A cutout stencil motif lined with see-through organza formed a loose band at the waist and edged the big puffed sleeves. The 65-piece collection, said to be inspired by the reign of the First Emperor of China, also featured bold geometrics in slim, squared-off quilt coats of black and white.

The coats, plain but for contrasting piping, were paired with slim linen-blend skirts with a single kick pleat in the back and a row of box pleats in the front. The coats also topped loose crinkle-pleat pants in vivid colors. The simple neckline was dressed up with huge wrist cuffs, collars and ear clips in gold-plated brass. The jazzy armor-inspired jewelry was designed by Lansing Moran. Gold also showed up in lurex lace, braid and macramé at cuffs, collars and dangling tie belts. Miss McFadden's collection, which ranges in cost from $1,600 to $4,000 per dress, also included several pastel beaded and sequined gowns in strapless, halter and single shoulder versions.

The finale was a vision in simplicity and unlike any other in the collection: a four-tiered gown in red organza with a straight neck and shoulder straps adorned by four flattering bows.

Feminine frivolity took another form in the all-cotton creations of Danny Noble, a fashion newcomer who unveiled his first collection last April.

Detachable collars and both front and back buttons gave Noble's version of the big shirt a new, fun look. French cuffs and covered buttons gave it polish.

The super-long, fly-away shirt tails trailed under vests and jackets, and revealed glimpses of bare backs over baggy awning striped pants. A touch of whimsy was added by tri-corner hats and polka dot bow ties hanging untied.

The shirt also showed up in peacock blue over a long white skirt with a high front slit.

A very exciting black and white paisley appeared in a double breasted jacket with raglan sleeves and padded shoulders and in big vests.

Another successful look featured a gray and white stripe shirt over a cotton T-shirt with a button back, knee-length skirt and a big dropped-shoulder jacket.

Belted trenchcoats appeared in traditional navy cotton twill and wild peacock nylon. Both looked sharp. Noble, with his wife Annette, moved to New York to design the sports collection for Albert Nipon, but started his own label in 1982.

The Nobles are a team. He designs the clothes. She makes the patterns and does the cutting. They both choose the fabrics and agree, "If Annette won't wear it, we won't make it."

McFADDEN FASHIONS...models wear long kick pleat skirts in linen teamed up with graceful tops by designer Mary McFadden at New York's Masonic Temple. The crinkle pleat polyester used for the tops is her signature fabric. Chinese knotted belts and gold plated wrist cuffs and collar complete the look. (AP Laserphoto)

PHARMACISTS AND ARTHRITIS
ATLANTA (AP) — People with arthritis spend some $690 million annually for prescription drugs plus $575 million on over-the-counter medications, reports the Arthritis Foundation.
Because pharmacists are often the health professionals seen most regularly, according to the foundation, they can play a key role in educating people about arthritis and medication.
"Pharmacists are qualified sources of information on the medications used to treat the different forms of arthritis," the organization comments in a statement. "Many are willing to keep patient profiles on their regular customers and to share tips about buying medications more economically."

PRUNE MUFFINS

- 1 cup stirred all-purpose flour
- 1 cup stirred whole wheat flour
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 large egg
- 1 cup milk
- 4 tablespoons butter, melted
- 1/4 cup pitted prunes, cut fine

On wax paper or in a small bowl, stir together flours, sugar, baking powder and salt. In a medium bowl, beat egg until foamy; add milk and butter and beat together. Add flour mixture and stir just until moistened. Sprinkle with prunes, stirring lightly as you do so. Fill buttered muffin-pan cups (each 2 1/2 inches across top and 1 inch deep) two-thirds full. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 25 minutes. With a small spatula loosen edges and remove; serve hot. Makes 12.

PINE NEEDLE BASKETS...will be exhibited in the show by Gail L. Modlin of Jamesville. (Photo by Williamston Enterprise)

Arts, Crafts Guild Fair Opens Nov. 10

The third annual Roanoke Arts and Crafts Guild Fair will be held Nov. 10-11 at the Williamston High School cafeteria. Horace Raper of Bailey, a member of the Coastal Plain Arts and Crafts Association, will be a special guest artist demonstrating India ink drawings.

The hours Saturday are 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. from 2-6 p.m. Sunday. The show is being sponsored by the Roanoke Arts and Crafts Guild and the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service.

Certified artists and craftsmen from Martin, Bertie, Pitt, Hertford, Halifax and Chowan counties will be demonstrating and selling their crafts. Included will be heritage and contemporary baskets, carving, pressed flowers, pine needle crafts, woodcrafts, quilting, fabric stitching, batik, oil and acrylic artwork and others.

Showing from Pitt County will be W.F. Pritchard of Greenville and Jane Harris of Grifton. Several craftsmen will exhibit in individual booths and there will be a variety of items in the Guild Gallery.

The Martin County Extension Homemakers Association will have a concession booth. Soups, sandwiches, plates and homebaked items will be available.

Area artists and craftsmen exhibiting in individual booths will be Mary and George Ayers, Ruby Peel, Jamie M. Griffin, Debbie Gray, Sue Wynn, Margaret Griffin, Bonita Harden, Bonnie Modlin, Caroline and Mildren Gaylord, Sam and Shirley Mobley, Gail Modlin, Joyce Griffin, Jackie Mobley, Doris and Natalie Beacham, Louise Speller, Mary Miller, Herman Davidson Jr., James Dewar Jr. and Rosalyn Thompson.

Participating through the gallery are Myra Bowen, Jill Whitfield, Margaret Pleasants, Faye Hardison, Kay Hoggard, Myrtle Adams, Terry and Carolyn Pratt and Mary Taylor.

A Mistress By Name Is A Mrs., Miss Or Ms.

DEAR ABBY: Margaret, an older widow who hates to be called "Mrs.," wants to know how "missus" could be abbreviated to "Mrs." since there is no "r" in "missus." For goodness sakes, there is no such word as "missus"—it's simply the sloppy pronunciation of "mistress," which is what they called the married lady of the house in the early days. "Mrs." is the abbreviation of "mistress"—which does contain an "r."

Since Margaret doesn't approve of titles, she would surely approve of the custom of the Society of Friends (Quakers) who address no one—not man, woman, doctor, king, general or mistress—by any title whatsoever.

When I was the director of a Quaker school, I was respectfully addressed by everyone—including the youngest child—as DOROTHY RUSSELL (who at 86 will answer to anything that feels comfortable to the addresser).

DEAR DOROTHY RUSSELL: Read on for more about how—and how not—to address a person:

DEAR ABBY: A male child is addressed as "master" until he reaches his teens, then he automatically becomes "mister." A female child is a "miss" until she marries; but if she remains unwed, she carries the juvenile form of address to her grave. That wrinkles my wrinkle! If a man can assume an adult title based solely on age, why shouldn't a woman do the same?

Since I am a woman with a name that can be either a man's or a woman's—and since it's been a while since I was either juvenile or married—there are times when that absurd "Ms." doesn't seem so absurd after all.

Shirred Silk Jersey Flatters

By MARJORIE ANDERS
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Start with a simple rayon jersey sheath, add shirring at the shoulder or hem, a hip wrap or a flounce at the derriere and you have an easy-to-wear dress in Mrs. Winter's spring and summer collections.

While Mrs. Winter showed her lines in her garment district workroom Thursday, Hanae Mori — who unveiled her sizzling collection in Paris — gave her only New York show at a benefit luncheon in a posh hotel.

Mrs. Winter, who narrated her show, invited viewers to feel the fabrics and answered questions during her presentation, a casual touch lacking at most runway openings.

Her most successful sheaths were solid colors, especially black, with broad shirred panels running down the sleeves or ringing hemlines.

Many of the sheaths had wide hip panels that could be worn either at the waist for a blouson effect or riding the hip for a sleeker, longer look.

One of the few multi-colored pieces in the collection was a silk and linen suit in a pale pastel plaid. A knee-skimming straight skirt and a deep V-neck jacket in aqua, peach and gray paired with an oyster gray jersey top.

Less subtle was a huge floral in orange, mustard and purple on a black ground that turned up in crop culottes, a wide skirt and a short sexy dress with rows of ruffles and a tie belt at the hip.

Mrs. Winter calls it her "love-hate" print, because "you either love it or hate it."

Another winning jacket of handwoven silk resembled a "rag rug" tweed. The jacket was unstructured but the material held its shape. A mid-calf skirt with yoke and dropped waist and tank top in black jersey completed the ensemble.

Mrs. Winter also showed a dozen rain outfits of raw canvas dropcloth and "100 percent genuine plastic" — which, she guaranteed, was really waterproof. For fun there were black plastic pants and a plastic dress "perfect to wear to the ark." More servicable was a huge plastic raincoat with shirred stand-up collar that came in red, yellow and kelly green.

Above the knee, below the knee, mid-calf and floor length all were represented in four black silk chiffon dresses, at about $300 each, that closed the show. In various combinations, they showed off the best details of the collection: removable hip wraps, shirred shoulder seams, sassy posterior peplums, blousons and flounces.

While many similar devices are used by Madame Mori, they show up in expensive silks and satins and rich colors with matching prices, up to $15,000.

At a luncheon at the Pierre Hotel to benefit the Winston Churchill Memorial and Library at Westminster College in Fulton, Mo., Madame Mori showed her Hawaiian theme sportswear and navy suits for summer as well as her timeless gowns.

Muu-muus in bright florals of pineapple yellow, orchid pink, mango orange and aquamarine blue were shown with hip-wrap belts.

The same hot colors were shown in silk raglan sleeve shirts with satin collars and matching full skirts pulled together with matching satin hip belts. Butterflies skitter across the see-through backs.

But it was the navy blue series that really looked new for spring.

A shawl collar navy raincoat with piping stripes to the waist and pleated back led off a collection of jinen day suits and dresses. A short blouson jacket paired with cropped slacks.

Then came evening wear, Madame Mori's forte.

A strapless, midnight blue satin gown took its inspiration from a toga with gathers thrown over one shoulder and trailing down the back. However, the hem was so narrow as to hobble the long-legged model.

A vision in green satin had yards of fabric pulled across the hips and tied in front. The sleeves tucked into full-length black satin gloves.

The ubiquitous little black dress appeared in a sexy knee-length version with one shoulder bare and folds of fabric draped over the other. A big belt of black bugle beads cinched in the waist.

Even better was the big black dress with a low, off the shoulder neckline. A huge satin skirt flared out from an empire waist. But the bodice was hidden by a wide flounce of black and metallic lace. Puff sleeves and black gloved melded together.

A magnificent crepe satin wedding gown capped off the 100-piece show. A cutout pattern of white silk was used for the big shoulders, long sleeves and back panel. A discreet gather in satin crossed the rump. An updated bowtie in grosgrain ribbon and floor length tulle veil completed the vision.

When was the last compliment on your hair?

I am even occasionally addressed as "Miss"—with three children, 13 grandchildren and a great-grandchild! Considering that record, "Miss" is absurd. With no husband, "Mrs." is absurd. And "Ms." is the most absurd of all!
I also hate labels. When I die I want inscribed on my tombstone: Please don't call me "Miss" It has a phony ring. Although I never married I didn't miss a thing.

Warnings

It is a sad thing that federal prosecutors felt it necessary to warn Tar Heel voters against voter fraud and that it would be prosecuted "swiftly and sternly." Obviously the overpricing of elective office is not the only flaw in our established system.

The warnings were dispatched to county chairmen of each party as well as sheriffs and local election officials.

Under state law each party is allowed two observers at each polling place. The federal prosecutors say FBI personnel will also closely monitor the Nov. 6 election.

Jim Hunt says his campaign will send out its own volunteer observers amid charges that Republicans plan to intimidate voters or create long lines at the polls ... especially in heavily Democratic black precincts.

Jesse Helms says he fears "machine politicians" will stuff ballots and help Hunt in the Senate race. The suspicions, allegations and bitterness on both sides are very strong.

There's a variety of vote-cheating available to those who put their minds to it. Election fraud in any of its forms is a crime against all the citizenry regardless of party because: (a) it cheapens the process, (b) it casts doubts on the will of the electorate, and (c) it is a poison that can spread through the body politic with fatal results. The people are the losers.

People far from the scene (and perhaps some who live there) make jokes about corruption in Chicago's election process. To us it is no joke; and we doubt that city's people really find any but the bitterest humor in their city's reputation.

One federal attorney says that "because of the recent dimension of election fraud cases in North Carolina" the warnings to each county were necessary. At least 14 people, including some officials, have been convicted of voter fraud in two western N.C. counties in the last two years.

Those were the instances of fraud that could be seen and could be brought to trial, and then proven. It is beyond belief that all suspected cases reached the stages of trial, then conviction. So, yes, there is reason for those warnings issued in our state; and we're sorry it had to be that way.

Knowledge

A large part of the difficulty in discussing "Baby Fae" lies in the emotional reactions raised by some and the ignorance that besets us all.

Baby Fae is the dying newborn whose flawed heart was replaced by the heart of a baboon.

Often overlooked in arguing the pros and cons is that Baby Fae stopped dying. For how long, nobody knows. Each day she lives is a miracle, say her doctors.

The involved doctors say they took no time to search for a human infant heart donor because they are very rare and time was of the essence. "Most heart donors are accident victims, and most infants don't drive cars," one explained.

True, a 2-month-old baby's heart did become available on the actual day of the operation. The heart's size may have been an obstacle, but even if that could have been overcome the doctors lacked time to test whether the tissue was compatible.

Some "dust" was raised, too, over taking the life of an animal so that a human life could be saved. Those taking that position have different priorities than most.

The ignorance as to what doctors or parents of Baby Fae can expect for the tiny girl's future is due to a lack of experience. Such transplant attempts have been very rare. At least four animal-to-human heart transplants have been attempted in the past, all in adults. Just one survived more than a few hours. That was a 59-year-old man who lived 3 1/2 days. One or more might be around today if present knowledge had been available.

Nobody knows now if an animal heart transplant is a practical answer.

There is more, much more to learn; and the more we learn the broader become our horizons of ignorance.

Just Knowing Is What's Important

Art Buchwald

When the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory recently recommended that factory workers protect themselves from nuclear attack by jumping into large pools of water with "as much clothing as possible, and remaining four feet under, spending as little time as possible at the surface for air," almost everyone laughed.

I was one of few who didn't. At one time I was involved with nuclear civil defense, and believe me, it's not easy to come up with solutions that will satisfy everyone.

In 1962, after the Cuban missile crisis, I was elected by the PTA as civil defense co-ordinator of the Horace Mann Public School in Washington, D.C.

There were few guidelines in those days for an elected official of the PTA when it came to a nuclear attack, other than to have pupils crawl under their desks until the all-clear sounded.

So I had to start from scratch. I still have the memorandum I composed for dissemination to all the teachers.

"In the event of a pending nuclear attack on the Horace Mann Public School, every teacher will blow his or her whistle three times.

"All non-essential classes will be canceled as well as field trips to the White House and the Smithsonian Institution.

"Students will line up in the halls in an orderly fashion. Anyone who engages in horseplay will be immediately sent to the principal's office for punishment.

"Assuming there will be 20 minutes before a nuclear weapon reaches Washington, those pupils who wish to go to the bathroom may do so. Teachers will use their own judgment as to which ones really have to go and which ones are faking it.

"Since drinking water may be in short supply, students should be urged to use the fountains in the halls before the attack. I am now in touch with the civil defense authorities to see if Horace Mann is eligible for food rations that can be stored in the janitor's closet and be made available in case the children get hungry after hostilities cease.

"It will be the principal's job to listen to the radio and keep in touch with what is happening outside the school. When the missile is five minutes from target all pupils will be told to sit on the floor against a wall and place their heads between their legs. Once they are assured that their students have done this, the teachers may then sit on the floor as well and take the same position.

"In the event that Horace Mann is totally destroyed, the principal, at his own discretion, may order all the students to be bused to the closest school in the district that has been spared.

"The most important thing for teachers is to avoid panic and anxiety, which will only upset many children who have never been under a nuclear attack before.

"One way of doing this is to pretend it's just a game like 'Show and Tell.' Another might be to sing 'Row, Row, Row Your Boat.'

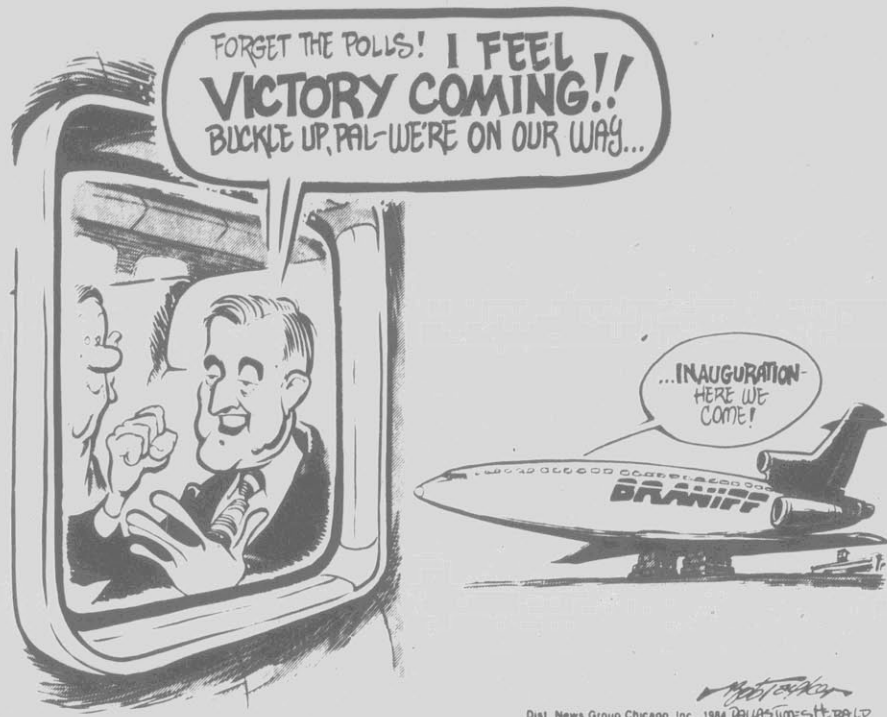

"After the attack is over, and the fallout ashes have settled, classes will be dismissed and students will be told to go directly home. It's quite possible that it will take several weeks to get the school repaired, in which case students will have to make up their classes during the summer vacation.

"All teachers will be expected to study this memorandum, as they will be questioned on it at the next PTA meeting."

Now I assume there are some people out there who may be skeptical of the extreme measures I recommended.

But I would like to remind them that in 1962 civil defense was in its infancy and quite primitive. No one knew then what the Livermore Laboratory knows now. And that is, in the event of a nuclear attack, you can save yourself by jumping into a large pool of water with all your clothes on.

Reader Cites 'Keeping Company' Adage

To the editor: Even though it must be acknowledged that Sen. Helms knows well the terrain of the low road, most thinking people would not attribute to him any direct association with the crazy rantings of "Doster," the anonymous pamphleteer, ghostly Helms supporter, who is so obsessed with thoughts of homosexuality that one wonders what deviations might plague his un-nomenclatured soul.

Nor would thinking people attribute to Sen. Helms condonance of the frenzied screams of Bob Windsor, the Chapel Hill editor who dipped his pen in vitriol and cast virulence abroad, thinking to aid Sen. Helms thereby.

To paraphrase a saying: People are known by the company that keeps them. "Doster" and Windsor keep Helms company. Nameless or named, they cling to him like a louse to a scalp. In their own pitiful way, they are battling for their champion. He is their help, their hope, their home, the haven for their hate.

So, Many good people who are for Helms find themselves in the company of kooks, religious fanatics, false accusers, death-squaders. They do not want to be in such company, do not even want to acknowledge such company, but there they are, in the company. Willy nilly, they are rubbing elbows with, brushing coattails of, breathing the same air as, that company. They are embarrassed by that company, but they are of it.

Do not say to them: A man is known by the company he keeps. They don't want to hear it. They don't want that company. But the company is in the room, with them and Sen. Helms, and the air is fetid. Bring in the perfumes of Araby. Bring in the fresh odor of righteousness. Bring in the sweet airs of sanctimony. The room goes on stinking. And that's too bad. For the good people.

Frances Palmer Greenville

To the editor:

I recently received a six-page fund-raising letter from Mrs. Jesse Helms. She states that the personal attacks against Jesse have become so vicious. She says that when they attack Jesse's character and integrity, and use vicious personal smears, she has to draw the line. She wants to know why they say such vicious things about him.

I wonder if she remembers that, just recently on the Senate floor, while debating the national holiday for Martin Luther King Jr. proposal, Sen. Helms screamed to Sen. Edward Kennedy: "Your argument is not with Dr. King, but with your dead brother who was attorney general and your other dead brother who was president." Vicious, Mrs. Helms? Does she know that Sen. Helms just several days ago stated before television cameras, "The governor is having a lot of trouble telling the truth late." Vicious?

She goes on to say that the liberals can turn to so many places for their millions — the union bosses, the radical feminists, etc. But Jesse has nowhere to turn but to dedicated Americans like you.

Here's one dedicated American whose mind will not be confused and swayed by the character assassinations, misstatements and distortions that I have had to endure during the past 18 months by the Helms camp.

Tax Argument Unsettled

RALEIGH — Repeal of the inventory and intangibles taxes has been a major topic of debate this year. Repeal advocates have argued that lower taxes will bring economic growth while repeal opponents have said the tax base must be preserved so public education can be improved.

That argument is far from settled and it won't be settled on election day, either. No matter who wins the governor's race — Republican Jim Martin who has actively sought repeal from the beginning of his campaign or Democrat Rufus Edmisten who has lately come to a belief in gradual repeal — both sides will have their day when the General Assembly meets in 1985.

Opponents of repeal have one strong card in their hand which has gotten little or no notice in the debate. It is the kind of trump card that scuttled repeal efforts in 1984 and could very possibly kill any repeal in 1985.

If these taxes are repealed, almost everyone agrees that local governments, which are the beneficiaries of both taxes, must be compensated for lost revenue. But when the legislature starts talking about how to compensate local governments, the coalition that supports repeal of the taxes begins to fall apart.

Let's look at the two most widely discussed options for replacing the lost revenue.

The first is a dollar for dollar compensation. If a county collects $10,000 a year in these taxes, then the state, after repeal, would pay that county $10,000 a year, plus a bit extra for inflation.

The second possibility is per capita compensation. Local governments now collect $280 million a year from the two taxes and there are 6 million North Carolinians. Divide the money by the people and give every county its share of cash based on population.

The difference between those two plans can mean a lot of money to an individual county. Enough money to change the way — either positively or negatively — some people may feel about repealing the taxes.

The dollar for dollar plan is generally favored by affluent, industrialized counties. These are counties which are already collecting these taxes and if they're repealed, they don't want to lose any money.

Proponents of the second plan say to enact the dollar for dollar plan would be like establishing a welfare program for rich counties that was paid for by poor counties. The state money which would flow to the affluent counties would come, in part, from sales and income tax collections made in the poor counties.

So the non-industrialized counties, those which are not now receiving a lot of this tax income, argue that state general funds ought to be distributed on a per capita basis. That way, everybody gets a fair share of a tax collection which everybody contributed to.

Of course, the industrialized counties come right back at this plan by arguing that they are the ones being hurt by the tax cut. The per capita replacement plan doesn't replace everything they've lost, so they'll have to raise property taxes, they argue.

On the sidelines, all the time, are those who oppose the cuts altogether.

Strength For Today

The word "worry" comes from an Anglo-Saxon word which means "to strangle."

We should always be concerned over financial matters, the welfare of our children, the state of our physical and mental health, and the conduct of our business. But it is quite another thing to carry these things in our minds in a context of fear and anxiety. We may in all good conscience aspire for a better job, a larger income, a secure old age. But if we worry about these matters, we are simply strangling ourselves.

There are people who live a life of continual strangulation. They are in agony from morning to night, and it would be hard for them even to set down on paper precisely what they are worrying about. They are simply strangling their lives.

Mondale Says GOP Win Could Bring 'Orgy'

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

Walter F. Mondale says a Republican victory on Tuesday could bring on an "orgy of intolerance" by the religious right, while President Reagan is warning his supporters against overconfidence even as his staff keeps talking about a 50-state sweep.

From the president's entourage to Republican campaign officials on Capitol Hill, the talk was of how big a victory Reagan would score on Tuesday and whether it would bolster GOP ranks in Congress.

"Things are breaking wide open for us," said Ed Goetz, campaign director for the House Republican campaign committee. He said the undecided vote is coming in solidly Republican.

Sen. Richard Lugar of Indiana, chairman of the GOP Senate campaign committee, said he would ask the president to add a Nebraska stop to his closing campaign swing to help Republican Nancy Hoch in her effort to upset Democratic Sen. James Exon.

Mondale drew the largest crowd of his campaign on Thursday, a throng estimated at 100,000 in the Garment District of New York City. He denounced the president for criticizing the Democrats for failing to condemn anti-Semitism in their party platform.

The Democratic challenger called the president's criticism made in a speech in New York last week "false and contemptible" and added: "The president has accused me of being soft on anti-Semitism. I resent it. It is despicable. I think it is inexcusable."

From the Garment District, Mondale went to a synagogue in Brooklyn where he warned of the influence of the Rev. Jerry Falwell and other conservative fundamentalist ministers.

"Some of his (Reagan's) friends threaten an orgy of intolerance in our land and I don't want them to have any influence," Mondale said.

Later, from the pulpit of a black Baptist church in Cleveland, Mondale said of Reagan: "When this crowd talks about independence, you know that they're saying in code, they're forgetting you. When they talk about bootstraps, it's code for budget cuts. And when they talk about the free market, it's code for discrimination."

Mondale was campaigning today in Ohio, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Michigan. Reagan's schedule included stops in Michigan, Ohio, Illinois and Arkansas.

In Michigan and Arkansas, Republican challengers are trying to upset Democratic senators, while in Illinois, GOP Sen. Charles Percy is challenged by Democratic Rep. Paul Simon in a race rated very close.

At every stop on Thursday, the president sounded the same theme: beware of confidence.

In Rochester, N.Y., Reagan said polls showing him way ahead of Mondale "are scaring me to death because I have a feeling that maybe some people are looking at them and saying, maybe we don't have to vote."

But on one of the press planes traveling with the president, campaign spokesman James Lake was saying "we would like to have a 50-state victory" and added that as of Thursday his polling data said Reagan was ahead in nearly every state and no worse than even in the others.

However, in an apparent attempt to temper such enthusiastic assessments, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said campaign strategists expect many Democrats to "begin to come home" and support Mondale. He said the Democratic nominee was "clearly picking up votes in Minnesota" his home state and elsewhere.

But in Purchase, N.Y., Vice President George Bush told employees at PepsiCo that "things are going very well ... The overnight tracking looks very, very strong all across the country, North, South, East and West."

Bush was to campaign today in Delaware and Connecticut.

Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro appeared with Mondale in New York City, then stopped in Iowa on her way to Los Angeles. She was campaigning today in California before heading East again.

With Ms. Ferraro at the Garment District rally was her mother, Antonetta, a former garment worker.

Ms. Ferraro described Mondale as "a reader who respects learning" and said Reagan's "idea of reading material is the comic strips. And his idea of an education program is sending a teacher into space."

Meanwhile, in Washington, a nonpartisan group predicted Thursday a record turnout on Tuesday in excess of 95 million people or about 55 percent of adult Americans.

Four years ago, the total vote was 87 million for a turnout rate of 52.6 percent.

Curtis Gans, director of the Committee for the Study of the American Electorate, said, "A large number of people have strong feelings, either pro or con about the Reagan administration, but a perceived (Reagan) landslide could depress turnout."

Reagan May Get Majority Of Female Vote Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the first woman on a national party ticket, Geraldine Ferraro has brought excitement and unprecedented money-raising appeal to the Democrats, but it isn't clear whether she will be pulling in votes.

"We find people vote for the top of the ticket ..." says Ann Lewis, political director of the Democratic National Committee. "She influences volunteer activity more than voter behavior."

Recent public opinion polls show that despite Ms. Ferraro's presence as the Democratic vice presidential nominee, majorities of women favor President Reagan.

An ABC News poll released last week showed that women voters narrowly preferred Reagan over Walter F. Mondale, 51 percent to 46 percent. Last January, ABC figures said that women preferred Mondale over Reagan, 52-42.

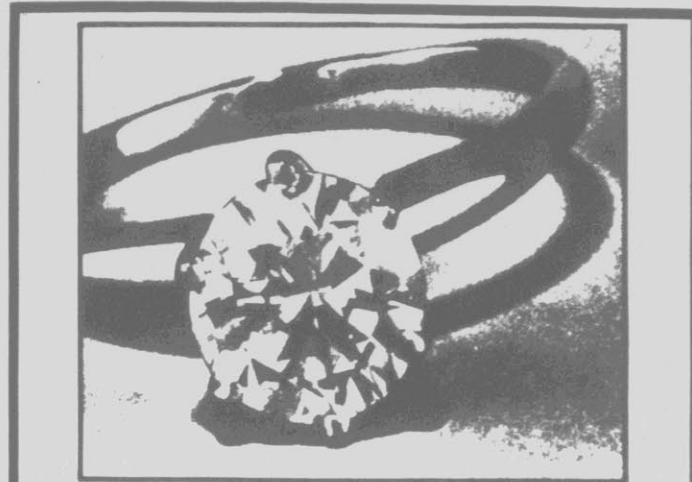

A CBS News poll last week said that women prefer Reagan over Mondale, 51 percent to 43 percent. By contrast, Reagan's lead among men is 62 percent to 34 percent.

The figures seem to contradict the campaign trail images. In city after city, tremendous crowds — predominantly women — turn out for Ms. Ferraro. The three-term New York congresswoman has proved to be a tireless campaigner, a prodigious fundraiser and a powerful symbol.

But Reagan felt so confident the so-called Ferraro Factor isn't hurting the Republicans that he told reporters this week her nomination "wasn't that big a move."

A recent NBC poll said Ms. Ferraro's presence on the ticket continues to represent a net loss of votes for the Democrats. Almost one-third — 31 percent — of the likely voters say they are less likely to support the Democrats because she is their vice-presidential nominee, while only 19 percent say they are more likely to vote Democratic.

And asked who would be better able to handle the duties of the presidency should events make it necessary, voters chose George Bush over Ms. Ferraro by a margin of 64 percent to 27 percent, the NBC poll said.

Stalin's Daughter Returns To Moscow

MOSCOW AP — Josef Stalin's daughter, Svetlana, has returned to Moscow and her Soviet citizenship has been restored, the official news agency Tass said today. She defected 17 years ago.

The presidium of the U.S.S.R. Supreme Soviet, in accordance with articles 19 and 21 of the U.S.S.R. law on citizenship, has considered and complied with a request made by S.I. Alliluyeva, who has returned to Moscow, for restoring her to the citizenship of the U.S.S.R. as well as for granting Soviet citizenship to Alliluyeva's daughter Olga," the Tass announcement said.

The brief dispatch did not say when Stalin's 58-year-old daughter returned to the Soviet Union. Olga is her daughter with her third husband, an American, William Peters.

Alliluyeva was Svetlana's mother's last name. Although she later used other names, she was once known as Svetlana Alliluyeva.

Svetlana defected in 1967 during a trip to New Delhi, India, and went to live in the United States. There, she married Peters, but they were divorced in 1973. Last year she moved from Princeton, N.J., to Cambridge, England.

John Woods, headmaster of her daughter Olga's school in Britain, said Thursday night that Svetlana told him in October she was taking her 13-year-old daughter, Olga, out of the Friends School in Saffron Waldon, Essex, England, because they were returning to Moscow.

A Western diplomat in Moscow said earlier today that Svetlana and her daughter were U.S. citizens.

Svetlana left a son and daughter in Moscow when she defected, the offspring of her first marriage to Soviet Grigory Morozov. After it was reported in Britain that Svetlana had returned to the Soviet Union, there was speculation that she was homesick and missed the children she left behind — Joseph Morozov and Yekaterina Morozova.

Her defection 17 years ago brought denunciations from her older children.

PRISON DISTURBANCE — A plume of tear gas rises from the yard outside a cell block at the Atlanta Federal Prison late Thursday night after it was thrown out of the cell by some of about 500 Cuban prisoners who rioted for eight hours to protest their confinement. Guards fired the gas into the cell after prisoners dangled burning bed sheets out the windows. Two guards suffered minor injuries. Officials said no prisoners were injured. (AP Laserphoto)

Walesa Criticizes Call For Strike

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Lech Walesa says he disagrees with a call by other Solidarity activists from his hometown for a one-hour strike Saturday to protest the murder of pro-Solidarity priest Jerzy Popieluszko.

The strike call, which urged workers to end their "passivity," was the first such appeal by prominent union activists since Nov. 10, 1982, when Solidarity's underground leadership unsuccessfully sought a nationwide strike to protest the banning of the independent trade union.

"I think the climate is unfavorable for such actions," said Walesa, contacted by telephone in the Baltic port of Gdansk. "It is not my point of view."

Walesa, who helped found Solidarity in 1980, said he was not consulted about Thursday's call for a one-hour strike and added that he "stands by" his earlier appeal for calm and restraint in the wake of Popieluszko's kidnap and murder.

Walesa said he planned to speak Saturday during an outdoor funeral service for Popieluszko at Warsaw's St. Stanislaw Kostka Church, which thousands of Solidarity supporters are expected to attend.

Popieluszko's coffin was to be brought to St. Stanislaw's today and will sit on the altar until the funeral, church officials said.

The strike call came two days after Popieluszko's body was pulled out of a reservoir in northern Poland. A secret police captain and two lieutenants have been arrested for the Oct. 19 abduction of the outspoken 37-year-old priest and face possible charges of murder.

The strike statement was signed by six Gdansk union activists, including Solidarity's former deputy chairman, Andrzej Gwiazda, who was once defeated by Walesa in a vote for the leadership of Solidarity. In the past, Gwiazda has criticized Walesa's moderate stance.

The statement said, "We have to put a stop to passivity as a method of struggle against evil."

The statement issued by the Gdansk Solidarity activists said the strike should be held from noon to 1 p.m. either on Saturday, the day of Popieluszko's funeral, or, if that is a free day from work, on Nov. 9.

The statement also urged Gdansk residents to take part in religious ceremonies for Popieluszko, wear black armbands, and place candles in their windows for 15 minutes every night.

In a related development, Warsaw Solidarity leaders issued a statement calling for three minutes of silence at all factories at noon Saturday. The statement was signed by several senior union figures released from prison under July's amnesty as well as the Warsaw underground leadership.

Poland's Roman Catholic primate, Cardinal Jozef Glemp, will preside at the funeral of the popular priest, who will be buried at St. Stanislaw's, where he served, church officials said.

A delegation of workers from the parish met with Glemp on Thursday and persuaded him to reverse a decision by the Warsaw Curia to bury Popieluszko in Warsaw's Powazki Cemetery following a funeral procession from St. Stanislaw's.

Honduran Plot

MIAMI AP — President Roberto Suazo of Honduras was reported to be under guard by 800 soldiers today after the FBI cracked a U.S.-based exile group and foiled what authorities said was a cocaine-financed plot to kill Suazo and overthrow his government.

Eight men were arrested here on Thursday and a warrant was issued for a ninth, Gen. Jose Bueso-Rosa, the Honduran military attache in Chile.

An FBI agent who infiltrated the plot was to be paid $300,000 to put together a team that would go to Honduras and kill Suazo, said Joseph V. Conroy, head of the Miami FBI office.

The exiles, who called themselves "staunch anti-communists," were going to finance the operation through the sale of more than $10 million in cocaine seized by authorities on Sunday, the FBI said. The group included a businessman who lost more than $7 million when his business was nationalized by the Honduran government, authorities said.

Barfield Arrest Sparked Little Attention

By DENNIS PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer

LUMBERTON, N.C. AP — Velma Barfield's surrender to sheriff's deputies the night of March 13, 1978, went virtually unnoticed, despite word from Robeson County sheriff's deputies that a big case was being resolved.

Mrs. Barfield, then 45 years old, had been charged with murder in the poisoning death of her boyfriend, St. Pauls farmer Stuart Taylor. But it wasn't known that she had also confessed to killing her mother and two elderly Lumberton residents who employed her as a live-in housekeeper and nurse.

In an area where violence was common, another murder arrest was not front-page news.

Six years later Velma Barfield would make international news as the first woman to be executed in the United States since 1962, and the first woman executed in 40 years in North Carolina.

Mrs. Barfield's 1978 arrest became out-of-the-ordinary within 24 hours after family members who had employed Mrs. Barfield began to question the deaths of their relatives.

Others recalled that both of Mrs. Barfield's husbands had died under unusual circumstances. Families with relatives in the nursing home where Mrs. Barfield worked at the time of her arrest wondered if their relatives were safe.

Mrs. Barfield, who poisoned Taylor's coffee and beer, had been involved in passing out juice and other beverages to patients, a spokesman at the nursing home confirmed the day after her arrest. But no poisoning deaths were reported at the nursing home.

(Dennis Patterson, then a reporter for the Fayetteville Times, was present when Velma Barfield was arrested in 1978. He has followed the case since 1978 and was a witness at her execution in Raleigh early today.)

A shock wave rolled through Robeson County, where everybody seemingly is related to everybody else through blood, marriage or employment.

A check of death certificates for Mrs. Barfield's husbands and elderly employers in Robeson and Cumberland counties turned up a common thread — gastroenteritis, a symptom of arsenic poisoning as well as other illnesses, was listed on most of them as a secondary cause of death. The shock lingered through the week following her arrest as story began to grow.

Families that had employed Mrs. Barfield were forced to relive the deaths of their relatives.

For those who knew Mrs. Barfield — fellow church members and workers — were stunned by the arrest.

Neighbors in the run-down Lumberton neighborhood where she lived said she was a "nice lady" that none of them knew well.

At the Pentecostal Holiness Church, she was known as a Christian woman who taught Bible classes and occasionally worked in the church office. She routinely told employers she had to be off Sundays and Wednesday nights to attend church services.

Sheriff's deputies confirmed within 48 hours of the arrest that at least three more deaths were under investigation. In the following weeks, the bodies of Mrs. Barfield's mother, her second husband and two former employers were exhumed.

But it was not until the trial in December 1978 that prosecutors revealed they were prepared to prove Mrs. Barfield killed at least five people, including Taylor and her second husband — Jennings Barfield — and the two former employers.

The written confession, which prosecutors had refused to confirm existed through the months awaiting trial, was made public for the first time as the state presented its evidence.

Mrs. Barfield, testifying in her own defense, confessed from the witness stand she had given ant or roach poison to Taylor and the other three victims, but said she did not believe she had poisoned Barfield, who died six months after the couple were married in 1971.

On the witness stand, she argued with District Attorney Joe Freeman Britt and Superior Court Judge Henry McKinnon, admitting she gave arsenic to the four victims, but denying the arsenic had caused their deaths.

She testified she only intended to make her victims sick.

Some Cheer, Some Bow Their Heads

RALEIGH AP — Death penalty opponents lit candles and sang hymns outside Central Prison to protest the execution of Velma Barfield, while supporters of capital punishment held signs reading "The law is the law" and cheered at the hour of her death.

About 300 demonstrators were outside the prison in southwest Raleigh when Mrs. Barfield was given a lethal injection. She was pronounced dead at 2:15 a.m. All but about 30 of the demonstrators opposed the execution.

Protesters stood on a grassy hill facing the prison, while execution supporters gathered farther away, across the street. The two groups paid little attention to each other.

At 2 a.m., cheers rang out from the pro-death penalty side, while opponents bowed their heads and put out their candles, then re-lit them. The 16 witnesses emerged at about 2:25 a.m. and described the execution.

About 100 death penalty opponents had marched about a mile to the prison after picketing the state Capitol downtown and attending a religious service in nearby Sacred Heart Cathedral. The crowd grew as the execution neared.

"I am a Christian, and I don't think Jesus Christ would have executed her," said Terry Pritchard, a minister from Scotland Neck. "He has showed us that an eye for an eye doesn't work."

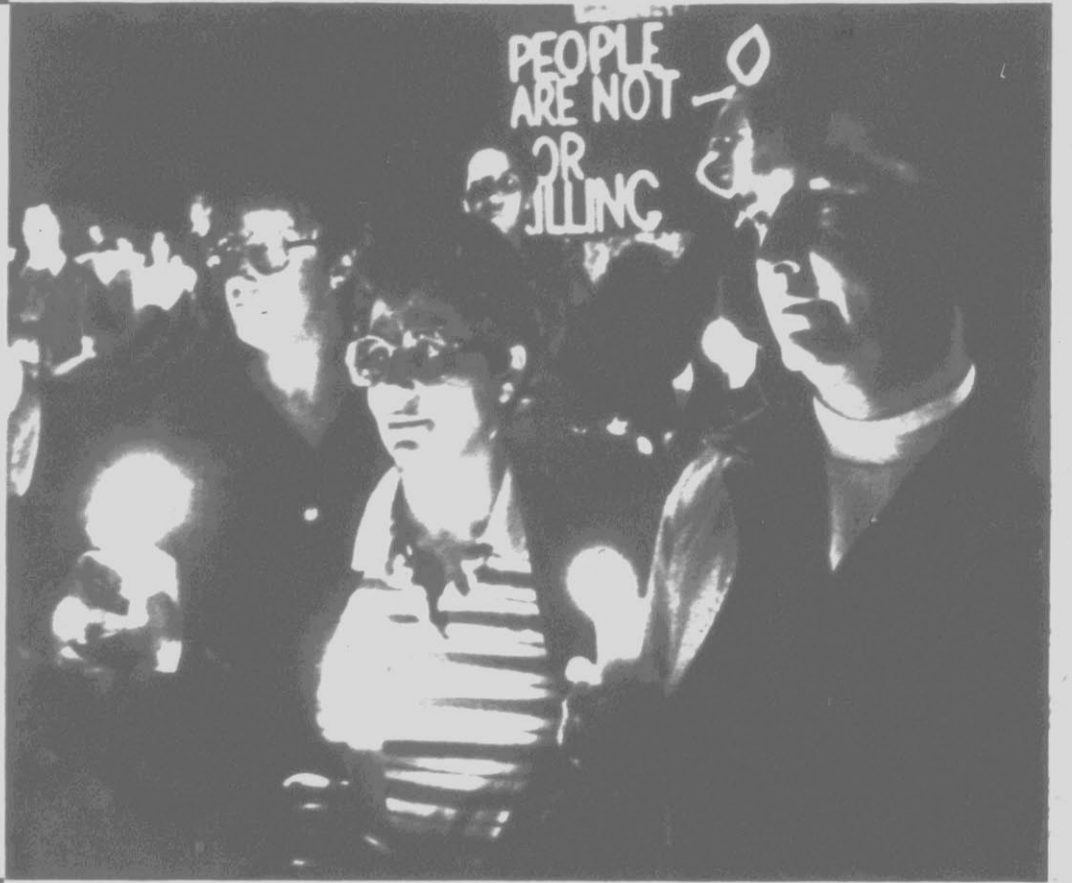

Gene Hudgins, of Cary, held a sign reading "The law is the law" in red lettering as a friend shined a flashlight.

"We live by the law or we go into a country of anarchism," said Hudgins. "If all the people decided they were going to disregard all laws on the books, there would just be chaos."

Several people held a wooden sign bearing light bulbs arranged to spell the word "hope." A gospel group called The Love Masters sang tunes with such titles as "When I Get In Glory" and "Amazing Grace" as listeners clapped in time.

Prison Vigil

Supporters and opponents of the death penalty waited outside Central Prison in Raleigh early today for the execution of Velma Barfield. When her death was announced, some supporters of capital punishment cheered; some of those who opposed executions extinguished their candles, but then relighted them. (AP Laserphoto)

From Darkness To Light ...

By DENNIS PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH AP — Inside the small, darkened room at North Carolina's Central Prison, 16 witnesses waited restlessly and stared through a heavy glass window into the chamber where convicted killer Velma Barfield's life ended early today.

Eight law enforcement officers sat at the front of the room, while James D. Little, Mrs. Barfield's attorney, Ann Lotz, the daughter of evangelist Billy Graham, and two corrections department officers stood behind them.

The only sound was the whirr of a ventilation system and the occasional scrape of a chair as one of the witnesses changed position.

At 1:48 a.m. the bolt on the door of the death chamber moved back, the door was opened and witnesses could see Mrs. Barfield lying on a hospital gurney in the hallway outside.

She flashed one quick look into the death chamber as the door opened, then turned her head away from the window and the witnesses.

A green sheet covered her to the neck, leaving only a small section of her pink pajama top with its embroidered trim exposed.

As two officers wheeled the gurney into the death chamber, her breathing was rapid and shallow. Her neck muscles tightened as she swallowed several times. Her eyes fluttered behind brown-rimmed glasses.

The gurney was placed against the window and two tan plastic shower curtains were pulled behind the gurney, separating it from the massive, worn oak chair used for executions by cyanide gas.

A minute later, the shower curtains fluttered as three executioners took their positions. Mrs. Barfield, her head still turned toward the curtain, began breathing rapidly and wet her lips with her tongue.

Over the next several minutes her breathing became deep and regular, the green sheet rising and falling with each breath.

At 1:54 a.m. Warden Nathan Rice entered the witness room and said he would make a phone call and then the execution would begin.

A minute later, three saline solution bottles connected to intravenous tubes stopped their steady drip, a sign that doses of sodium thiopental were being injected into both arms to put her into a deep sleep.

She began talking, her lips forming words, her tongue moving to wet her lips. Over several seconds, the lip movement became increasingly rapid and her tongue lashed out of her mouth.

The movement quickly stilled, and over the next 10 minutes her features gradually, but steadily relaxed.

Her complexion, which had been rosy when she was first brought into the chamber, turned to an ashen gray. As the seconds passed, the color darkened.

Ms. Lotz, who had held Little's hand through the execution, moved with Little to the other side of the witness room and sat down in a chair. Little, stoic and composed, stood behind her, his hands on her shoulders.

At 2:15 a.m., Mrs. Barfield was declared dead.

Inside the witness room, the lights came on for the first time.

BECAUSE YOU LIVE IN AMERICA, YOU DON'T HAVE TO VOTE.

Did you know that in Australia, Belgium, Greece, Italy, and parts of Switzerland and Austria voting is mandatory? In Australia, for example, you'd be fined if you didn't vote. In Greece, you couldn't get a driver's license. In Italy, not voting could mean you wouldn't qualify for a government job.

In the Soviet Union, people aren't officially required to vote in that country's rigged and meaningless elections. But in the last election there, over 90 percent of those eligible were...encouraged to actually vote. In the equally meaningless elections in Communist Albania, usually fewer than a dozen out of two million eligible voters have the courage not to vote.

Here in America, you have the freedom not to vote. Unfortunately, in the last election about 74 million eligible Americans took advantage of that freedom. That's why the United States ranks 20th among 21 Western democracies in the percentage of those eligible who actually vote.

Because you live in America, you don't have to vote. But you should vote...because you live in America!

poisoning St. Pauls farmer, Stuart Taylor, who died Feb. 3, 1978. She also confessed to poisoning her mother and two elderly Lumberton residents who employed her as a live-in housekeeper. She repeated the confession on the witness stand while testifying at her December 1978 trial.

Mrs. Barfield became the third person executed in the United States this week and the 29th executed since the Supreme Court in 1976 allowed restoration of the death penalty. Convicted murderers were put to death early Tuesday in Louisiana and Texas.

The last woman executed in the United States was Elizabeth Ann Duncan, 54, who died in California's gas chamber in 1962 for arranging the death of her daughter-in-law.

Mrs. Barfield testified she put two doses of ant poison in beverages Taylor drank Jan. 31 1978.

Defense lawyer Jimmy Little said Mrs. Barfield dropped her appeal hoping "simply to die with as much dignity as the state of North Carolina will allow."

On her final day, Mrs. Barfield read a newspaper, 40 letters and religious literature — some sent by Ruth Graham, wife of evangelist Billy Graham — in her cell 18 steps from the execution chamber. Graham's daughter, Ann Lotz of Raleigh, was one of the witnesses.

Wade Holder, Mrs. Barfield's adopted brother, said she was "radiant" Thursday and told him to think of the execution "as my gateway to heaven."

Mrs. Barfield had a Coke and a package of Cheez Doodles for the prison canteen but no complete last meal, said Patty McQuillan, spokeswoman for the North Carolina Department of Correction. She changed from her brown prison dress at 1 a.m. and at 1:30 a.m. walked from her cell to a preparation room outside the death chamber.

There, she was strapped to a gurney and intravenous injections of saline solution were started in both arms. Leads for a cardiac monitor and stethoscope were attached to her chest.

Covered with a green sheet, she was wheeled into the death chamber. A curtain separated her from the three prison officials who acted as executioners. Witnesses watched from a glassed chamber.

Two tubes carrying the lethal injection were connected to the intravenous tubes and a third was connected to a bag underneath the gurney. The tubes were twined together to prevent determining which two administer the lethal injections.

Warden Nathan Rice signaled the start of the execution at 2 a.m., and two doses of sodium thiopental flowed into Mrs. Barfield's arms, causing a deep sleep. Two doses of procuronium bromide, a muscle relaxer, were injected, stopping her breathing.

Mrs. Barfield's appeals had been rejected three times by both the North Carolina Supreme Court and the United States Supreme Court. Her latest round of appeals started Monday and she rapidly was rejected in state and federal courts before dropping a planned appeal to the nation's high court.

Gov. Jim Hunt, who had rejected Mrs. Barfield's plea for clemency, stopped his Senate campaign against Republican Sen. Jesse Helms to return to Raleigh in case he was needed, said Hunt aide Don Hobart.

Israelis Facing Austere Program

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The government said today it had reached agreement with labor unions and manufacturers to freeze wages, prices and taxes for three months as part of an inflation-fighting austerity program.

"This agreement is an important step forward in the health of the economy," Prime Minister Shimon Peres declared in an announcement.

He added that further, unspecified steps would be taken.

The government has viewed such an agreement as essential in its battle to tame Israel's galloping inflation, estimated to be rising at an annual rate of 900 to 1,000 percent.

Yisrael Kessar, leader of the Histadrut trade union federation, which represents most of Israel's 1.4 million workers, said Histadrut's central committee would have to approve the terms of the accord.

Deputy Prime Minister David Levy emerged earlier from a meeting of government, labor and business leaders to announce agreement had been reached after more than three weeks of often bitter negotiations.

"It has been agreed to freeze wages and prices for three months without hurting low-income groups," Levy said.

He said an agreement expected to be signed shortly would provide for workers to give up one-third of their cost-of-living increases for October and November. But tax provisions of the accord would insure that workers would sacrifice a maximum of 5 percent of cost of living increases in November.

Details of the third month were not given.

Currently, wage-earners are reimbursed for 80 percent of the cost of living increases calculated by the government's Central Statistics Bureau. In September, the bureau reported inflation of 21.4 percent, a record.

Under the plan, manufacturers agreed to absorb two-thirds of the prices increase registered in the cost of living index, he said, adding the government would agree to freeze taxes.

The government has been negotiating daily with the Manufacturers' Association and Histadrut since Peres returned from a fund-raising visit to the United States on Oct. 14.

The first part of the economic austerity program was announced shortly after the bipartisan government took office Sept. 14 with a mandate to cure Israel's inflation-wracked economy. Peres announced a $1 billion cut in the $23 billion government budget.

Then on Oct. 2 it was announced that a six-month freeze had been imposed on the import of 54 luxury items ranging from Swiss chocolate to European cars. Prices were frozen on Israeli-made goods that competed with the banned imports.

Officials estimated that the measure would stem the drain of hard currency and reduce imports by $200 million. But other economic experts said the loss of revenue would spur inflation since the government would have to print money to cover a larger deficit.

The government also reduced the amount of hard currency Israelis were allowed to carry abroad from $2,000 to $1,000 per person. The use of credit cards abroad was banned effective Dec. 1.

These measures also were designed to reduce the drain of hard currency, especially the $1 billion a year Israelis are estimated to spend on foreign vacations.

The government also lowered subsidies on food and fuel and announced it would seek legislation to impose a one-time tax of 2 percent on planes, boats and cars.

Duarte Sees No 'Miracle Overnight'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — El Salvadoran President Jose Napoleon Duarte says he wants to continue peace talks with rebel leaders in his war-torn Central American nation, but promises no "miracle overnight."

Duarte, speaking at a news conference Thursday before addressing the Inter-American Press Association, mentioned the talks begun last month in La Palma, and assailed the rebels for attacking El Salvador's economy.

"They're damaging the people, not the government," he said. "This is perhaps the biggest historical mistake they are making, because they are not attacking" the oligarchy, imperialism and government they oppose.

"They're attacking the very root of the wills of the people. They're leaving the people without jobs. They're taking their children away. They're destroying the economy of the country," he charged. "There's no question that if they continue to destroy the economy of the country and destroy the country, there will be no country."

In his speech to the Press Association, Duarte said the La Palma meeting "has raised world expectations and has pointed out the clear hope that understanding and reason among men will prevail over violence."

"My government is convinced that to the enslaving concept of Marxism and the totalitarianism of extreme right, the alternative is the way of democratic revolution and the freedom of man," he said.

A group of human rights activists also held a news conference Thursday in Los Angeles, where the Rev. Farley Wheelwright charged that "the so-called Duarte peace initiative is a fraud."

But Duarte said at the news conference he is committed to peace and to banishing the human rights abuses by rightist death squads that have brought worldwide criticism of human rights violations in El Salvador.

"Little by little I am changing the realities of my country. Of course, I still have problems, but I am confronting them face to face," Duarte said.

Deng Says Change Too Slow

PEKING (AP) — China's senior leader Deng Xiaoping complained in reports published today that despite his military reforms, the armed forces remain plagued by aging generals, narrow-minded thinking, incompetence and overstaffing.

Deng also suggested the air force should share some of its aircraft and pilots with China's overburdened civil aviation industry, and that the navy should open a few military ports to commercial and passenger vessels.

His comments appeared to reflect growing impatience within China over the pace of change and modernization in the 4.2 million-member army, the world's largest fighting force.

Deng, 80, is chairman of the military commissions of both the government and the ruling Communist Party, in effect making him China's commander in chief.

"Although officers below the corps level have become younger in the past two years, the aging of top army leaders remains a problem," he was quoted as saying by the Liberation Army Daily. "Older officers must give way to younger and more competent leaders."

The newspaper is not available to foreigners, but excerpts were reported by Xinhua, the official news agency, and reported on the front page of other major newspapers. The accounts said Deng made the remarks at a Peking seminar sponsored by the government military commission Thursday.

"More outstanding young and middle-aged officers should be promoted to top posts in the Chinese People's Liberation Army," Deng was quoted as saying. "I hope to see more open-minded people in the army."

Citing his advanced age, Deng has recently resigned several of his posts.

Deng's remarks on China's aging senior functionaries coincided with a statement Thursday by his protege, party General Secretary Hu Yaobang, who told visiting Burmese President San Yu, "We are trying to solve the problem of senility among our cadres."

Promoting younger people, Deng was quoted as saying, is "equally as important as removing overlapping and overstaffed organizations in the army."

The military is considered a holdout against the reforms Deng has instituted since emerging as China's most powerful figure in 1978, two years after the death of Mao Tse-tung.

Engineer Earns $26,900 Grant

A $26,900 award from the North Carolina Technological Development Authority has made it possible for Greenville resident Jose Fagundo to open his own business.

The award was granted to enable Fagundo to design and develop a prototype for a centrifugal separator that will allow toxic materials or materials that must be kept sterile to be handled by machine and not by human hands.

"Opportunity. That's what it means to me," Fagundo said. "The chance to do something I've always wanted to do — go into business for myself."

Gagundo, a Cuban native and University of Houston chemical engineering graduate, said, "Of course, I feel like sooner or later I would have done it anyway. But the award gave me a chance to do it now rather than 10 or 12 years from now."

Fagundo came to Greenville in February 1980, and worked full time at Burroughs Wellcome until he received the grant, under the Small Business Innovative Research Fund program, in July.

In his spare time and on his own, he worked on various ideas for different devices.

He opened offices for his JMF Engineering Enterprises at 2719 E. 10th St. in August, and is now in the process of applying for a patent and feels that within a year or two he will have completed a workable prototype ready for production.

The award has given Fagundo time to devote to his ideas and their implementation. So far, his one major purchase has been a $1,300 drafting table.

What does it take to be a competitive award winner? "A really good workable idea," Fagundo said, "and confidence."

"You have to be willing to sacrifice and work hard. I'm going for it because I know I won't fail."

Study Says Waste Cleanup Delayed

WASHINGTON AP — The Pentagon has not completed toxic waste cleanups at a single military installation nine years after it began identifying dumps on bases that are polluting the environment, a congressional study says.

Two congressmen released a draft report by the General Accounting Office on Thursday, contending that the Pentagon's cleanup program, initiated in 1975, only now is beginning to be taken seriously.

"The military's progress to date has been painfully slow," said Rep. James J. Florio, D-N.J. "The report shows that the military is just beginning to come to grips with what must be recognized as one of the most pressing environmental problems of this decade."

Rep. Vic Fazio, D-Calif., said the report shows the need for a new "superfund" program to deal with military toxic waste. The current $1.6 billion superfund, which comes from chemical industry taxes, cannot be used to clean up federal facilities.

The Defense Department has estimated that it will need $1.6 billion through 1993 to clean up its bases, but the congressmen said that probably is far too low an estimate.

Because of the Pentagon's low site estimates, Fazio said, its $1.6 billion estimate is "probably not even in the ballpark."

No meaningful estimate is available "at least partially because DOD has only half-heartedly pursued its cleanup efforts," Fazio said.

But he noted that a cleanup operation at McClellan Air Force Base in California estimated in 1982 to cost $5 million has since ballooned to an estimated $81.9 million. A contractor on the base has unofficially pegged the cost at $106 million, Fazio said, and "even this figure will surely go higher."

Maj. Pete Wyro, a Defense Department spokesman, said the Pentagon could not comment on a draft GAO report until it had a chance to review the contents.

However, he added that the Pentagon is increasing the amount of money it devotes to toxic waste cleanup and is working closely with the Environmental Protection Agency to ensure that environmental threats are removed.

The draft GAO report, based on surveys by a team of 15 auditors, indicates that while the Pentagon began its program five years before the civilian superfund program was started, its progress already is lagging behind.

Of 463 military bases targeted as potential pollution sources because of the type of work done, 113 have not completed even a preliminary assessment of potential contamination, the GAO said. Preliminary assessments have not begun at 27 targeted bases, the auditors said.

Of 200 sites where the initial survey determined the need for more extensive testing for groundwater contamination, the Pentagon has completed testing at only 48. Only 70 sites have reached the stage of engineering plans or actual cleanup work, the GAO said. And only 22 of those have work under way — with none completed.

The auditing agency focused on 18 military installations, and said it found problems in the way the department coordinated with other agencies.

At McClellan, for example, the GAO said the Air Force at first refused repeated requests from state officials for information about possible contamination.

State officials were not given survey results until the Air Force had completed a study to determine the extent of underground contamination.

It was only then, said GAO, that state pollution officials discovered the Air Force had neglected to sample its sites to determine what contamination was present, a step GAO described as "an essential and required step to determine the appropriate control and cleanup approach."

The GAO noted, however, that the Air Force earlier this year changed its policy to improve coordination.

Quilters Guild

The Greenville Quilters Guild's 1984 quilt show, "A Piece In Time," in conjunction with the Tobacco Festival will be held Nov. 9 from 10 a.m.-9 p.m. and Nov. 10 from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. at the Willis Building.

Anyone that would like to enter any and all quilted items — quilts (large and small), pillows, wallhangings, clothes, etc. — is invited to submit their handiwork for judging as long as the items have not been seen at previous Guild shows. Ribbons will be awarded for the best entries.

Anyone desiring to submit items for display is asked to contact Grace Karnes at 756-6874.

Annual Tobacco Festival Contest

Cheerleaders To Compete Saturday

Cheerleading has come a long way from its beginnings. Look at the year 1964. Male cheerleaders had just been added to college squads across the country, and the women cheerleaders' skirts — once ankle- and then calf-length — were shortened to just above the knee.

In recent years, the art (or sport) of cheerleading has evolved even more. No longer does being cute and perky qualify you for the squad. Cheerleaders today are expected to jump higher, split wider and perform more difficult tumbling techniques than did their predecessors. The costumes have changed as well. Today, uniforms are necessarily brief and less confining than the long-sleeved sweaters and heavy pleated skirts popular in the 1950s and '60s to allow contemporary cheerleaders to perform increasingly intricate movements.

Those cheerleading movements, now called "dynamic execution" by spirit experts, will be one of the areas in which judges will rate squads participating in this year's Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival Cheerleading Contest. Approximately 20 squads will compete in the "Catch That Spirit" contest at Carolina East Mall Saturday at 1 p.m.

The contest, sponsored by the Pepsi Cola Bottling Co. and Carolina East Mall, has been part of the Tobacco Festival since its inception seven years ago.

According to contest coordinator Susan Roberts, junior high-middle school, junior varsity and varsity teams from Wayne, Pitt, Edgecombe, Craven, Martin, Lenoir and Nash counties will be participating. Squads will perform two cheers, a routine and a chant which will be rated by ECU cheerleaders for creativity, coordination, spirit and enthusiasm.

Board Meeting

The Greenville Housing Authority will hold its regular monthly meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the authority's Broad Street office.

MAYNARD WATERS A Balanced Voice For Education

MAYNARD WATERS is concerned about public education. He believes that teachers, parents and taxpayers opinions should all be considered in setting educational policy and in the final analysis, our schools belong to the parents and taxpayers. For this reason, he has neither sought nor received the endorsement of the teachers unions.

TOM TAFT...A Tool Of The Teachers Union

The opposition, Tom Taft, proudly boasts of his endorsement by the NCAE, the local affiliate of the NEA teachers union, and, in the campaign, he has been parroting the teachers union line on educational issues.

MAYNARD WATERS knows that one of the biggest dangers for public education is to have too many legislators in the pocket of the teachers unions. On education issues, MAYNARD WATERS will be free to think for himself and to represent parents and taxpayers independent of this special interest group.

MAYNARD WATERS CARES ABOUT TEACHERS

MAYNARD WATERS' independence from the teachers union does not mean he doesn't care about our teachers as individuals. He is concerned that under the Jim Hunt administration, teacher pay sank like a stone to 44th in the nation. He will support better pay for teachers so that our schools can attract and keep the best qualified teachers. Unlike Tom Taft and the teachers unions, MAYNARD supports merit pay for teachers.

Youngster Hit On City Street

One person was reported injured and an estimated $7,965 damage resulted from a series of five traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Thursday.

Officers said Jertavis Arrington, 6, of 306 Page Drive, received minor injuries when struck by a car on Fifth Street, 50 feet west of the Memorial Drive intersection about 3:45 p.m.

Investigators said the youngster walked between two vehicles and into the path of a car driven by Bert Smith of Route 1, Kinston.

No charges were made and no damage to the Smith car resulted.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted when cars driven by Mona Gayle Hardee of Route 8, Greenville, and Henry Smith Jr. of Route 3, Greenville collided about 5:07 p.m. on Greenville Boulevard, 225 feet west of the Memorial Drive intersection.

Damage from the collision was set at $2,000 to the Hardee car and $2,500 to the Smith vehicle.

Willie B. Jackson of 504C Watauga Ave., was charged with driving under the influence following investigation of a 6:45 p.m. mishap on Skinner Street, 75 feet south of the Smith Street intersection.

Police said the Jackson car collided with a truck driven by Linwood Ray Daniels of Route 6, Greenville, causing $1,100 damage to the truck and $500 damage to the car.

A 5:05 p.m. mishap on Albemarle Avenue, 30 feet north of the Alley Street intersection involved cars driven by Beverly Yarrell Clemons of 1311 N. Washington St., and Roosevelt Mackey Jr. of Williamston.

Investigators, who charged Ms. Clemons with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, set damage at $5 to the Clemons car and $1,000 to the Mackey vehicle.

Vehicles driven by Judy Lynne Rollins of Winterville, and Tony Allen Padgett of Route 2, Wallace, collided about 5:26 p.m. on Memorial Drive, 300 feet south of the Village Drive intersection, causing $850 damage to the Rollins car and $10 damage to the Padgett truck.

Business Seminar

A small business seminar, "How to Improve Customer Service and Acquire Repeat Business," will be presented Nov. 13 by Dr. Ed Wheatly, chairperson of the department of marketing at East Carolina University. The seminar will be conducted from 7-9:30 p.m. at the Willis Building.

The seminar is sponsored by the Small Business Council of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce. The fee is $15 for chamber members and $30 for non-members. Registration will be open until 5 p.m. Nov. 12.

For more information, contact Holly Gilliam at the Chamber of Commerce office, 752-4101.

Lee Endorsed

Herb Lee, the Republican candidate for the 1st Congressional District seat in Tuesday's election, has received the endorsement of the American Federation of Small Businesses.

The federation supports a balance budget and tax limitation amendment to the Constitution, a federal right-to-work law, an anti-communist and anti-terrorist foreign policy, and a strong national defense.

Agenda Workshop

The Greenville City Council will hold an agenda workshop Monday at 5:30 p.m. in the first floor conference room of City Hall to discuss items that will be addressed at the Council's regular monthly meeting Thursday.

City Hall is located at the corner of Fifth and Washington streets.

Senior Citizens

The Southside Senior Citizens Club will meet Monday at 2 p.m. at the Greenville Recreation Center, corner of Skinner and Howell streets, with Officer James Tripp of the Greenville Police Department speaking and answering questions on crime prevention.

Sponsored by the Recreation and Parks Department of Greenville, the club is open to anyone 55 or older. For more information, call 752-4137, Ext. 253.

Heroin Charge

Teresa Jean Harris, 24, of 123 Oakdale Road, was arrested by Greenville police Thursday on possession of heroin charges.

Officer L.E. White said Ms. Harris was taken into custody in connection with an incident that occurred about 8:54 p.m. Wednesday in the 700 block of Fleming Street.

'Viewpoint' Airs

American Education Week will be discussed on this week's "Pitt County Schools' Viewpoint," a radio show aired on several local stations.

Host Barry Gaskins will interview Beverly Peaden, president of the North Carolina Association of Educators, Pitt County Unit.

JUST RELEASED FOR SALE

PRESIDENT JOHN F. KENNEDY GOV'T. SILVER

U.S. MINT STATE .900 FINE PURE SILVER

U.S. COIN RESERVE

United States Coin Reserve, a distributor of Government Currency is now releasing its last reserve of only 30,000 half dollars of the famous John F. Kennedy Government Silver. Chief Executive Officers have ordered the United States Coin Reserve to sell the only remaining stockpiles of the treasured John F. Kennedy Government Silver collection at the incredibly low price of only $18.90 each! Due to the urgency of the authorization, this price of only $18.90 is less than one half of our full market value and can be guaranteed for one week only. Orders received later may not be honored due to volatile fluctuations in the precious metals market, and checks may be returned uncashed.

UNIQUE RARITY

President Kennedy's mournful passing in 1963 marked the beginning and end of a special issue 90% pure silver half dollar which had a limited one year only minting. These half dollars are the only silver issue with the official presidential seal represented on the reverse. President Kennedy, being a coin collector himself, was very fond of the presidential seal and the mint engravers used this device in creating a coin that lives on where this great leader has passed away. No other silver coin in the entire history of the United States was minted with this feature, creating a coin of instant uniqueness and rarity. Also, our history records show that this is the only issue of U.S. coinage to have two famous designers and their respective monograms stamped on either side. These unique features along with a limited one year mintage are the essence of profit and excitement in coin investment.

GOVERNMENT SILVER RELEASED

Our release to the American Public of 30,000 Government Silver half dollars will only be through this notice! Government issued coins stored in guarded vaults are 20 years old and guaranteed to be brilliant uncirculated gems. U.S. Coin Reserve, a division of Verret Enterprises, a private corporation, has enjoined its professional coin analysts to grade and select only the coins that qualify to be Flawless M.S. 70 Uncirculated Gems. Also all Government Silver is fully guaranteed by the United States and is accompanied by a Certificate of Authenticity from the U.S. Coin Reserve. We can only guarantee this price for one week due to the volatility of the precious metals market.

STRICT LIMIT

Since our price of $18.90 is only half of our full market price we expect an avalanche of orders to come pouring in. Therefore, we advise you to get your order in early before the strictly limited supply at this price is sold. We offer a 4 day examination period for each order; orders returned within that time will receive a full refund. A limit of five hundred coins per order will be strictly adhered to! So, avoid disappointment. Act now!

AMERICAN HERO

Born in a large Irish Catholic family John F. Kennedy was the youngest elected president in American History. Even as a young man he showed great courage while on a torpedo mission in WWII by physically saving the lives of his crew when a destroyer annihilated his torpedo boat. Not only did he fight well but with his keen mind he authored two best selling history books, one of which won the Pulitzer Prize. After winning the office of the Presidency his accomplishments advanced man and mankind in every conceivable way. He put the first American in space, he increased wages for laborers, he fought for civil rights of minorities, he extended social security for the aged, and he reduced tariffs for businessmen. When the Russians threatened world peace with nuclear missiles in Cuba, he swiftly and strategically crushed them with a naval blockade. It is a sad fact that a man with the seeming powers of a god who touched the lives of everyone on this great planet had to suffer the fate of death by assassination. John F. Kennedy, perhaps the greatest leader in the history of the world died like a soldier — under fire.

REASONS TO BUY NOW

1. The Christmas investment of a lifetime.
2. Wall Street's Salomon Brothers as well as other National and World economists say rare coins are one of the best investments.
3. Many rare coin analysts have predicted that a single silver half dollar could be worth up to $380 in 5 years.
4. .900 Fine Silver (90%)
5. Not only an investment but a true piece of American History.
6. Gov't Silver coins, with permanent collector value are considered by many experts to be a much better investment than silver bullion with no collector value.
7. IN OUR OPINION, THESE COINS HAVE ONLY BEEN HANDLED BY BANKERS AND MINT PERSONNEL.
8. A LIMIT OF FIVE HUNDRED COINS PER ORDER WILL STRICTLY BE ADHERED TO! SO, AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT. ACT NOW!

 Opening lead: Five of ♠.

On occasion you have a choice of ways to achieve your end—power or guile. Some of us have a natural tendency toward deceit. However, given the option, it is usually wise to choose the power line. Consider this hand.

South needed no more than a sign of life from his partner to jump to game. As the cards lie, three no trump would have been a laydown, but we cannot attach blame to South for preferring the major-suit game.

Against four spades West led the top of his heart doubleton. Declarer won and drew trumps in two rounds, then cashed the remaining high hearts in hand. When West showed out on the third round, declarer could not afford to overtake with the table's ace.

Now declarer had to reach dummy to take a discard on the ace of hearts. He was unfortunate in that his spade spots were such that the trump suit did not provide a line of communication. (Incidentally, note that if the minor suits in either declarer's hand or dummy were reversed, the hand would have presented no problem.)

Declarer tried to be clever. He led a low diamond. Unfortunately, West worked out that, if his partner held the king, it made no difference which card he played; but if declarer held the king, the diamond honors on the board would provide an entry unless declarer held specifically a doubleton king. So West rose with the ace of diamonds and returned a diamond, and declarer eventually had to lose three club tricks for down one.

This was a hand for power. Since West was marked with the ace of diamonds for his vulnerable overcall, declarer should simply have led the king of diamonds. West is forced to hold up the ace. Now declarer continues with a diamond. West wins and, while he has succeeded in keeping dummy from obtaining an entry, he has end played himself. A diamond continuation presents declarer with a ruff-suff, and a club gives declarer a trick in the suit. Either way, the contract is home.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

DAVID'S DILEMMA!

WHEN DAVID WAS A REFUGEE FROM KING SAUL, AT ONE POINT, HE BROUGHT HIS LITTLE ARMY TO KING ACHISH, A PHILISTINE KING, AND ASKED FOR SHELTER. ACHISH GAVE DAVID THE TOWN OF ZIKLAG TO LIVE IN AND DAVID, IN RETURN, PROMISED TO PROTECT KING ACHISH'S LANDS. (1 SAM. 27:5,6) OF COURSE, DAVID DID NOT INTEND FIGHTING HIS OWN PEOPLE ON BEHALF OF THE PHILISTINE KING ACHISH BUT HE MADE A GREAT PRETENSE OF DOING SO! FOR MORE THAN A YEAR, DAVID REMAINED IN HIS REFUGEE HAVEN, FIGHTING OFF PARTIES OF BANDITS AND BRIGANDS. KING ACHISH WAS MORE THAN PLEASED WITH EVERYTHING THAT DAVID DID! HOWEVER, DAVID'S SUBTERFUGE FINALLY TRIPPED HIM UP, IN THAT THE KING SUMMONED DAVID, WITH HIS ARMY, TO JOIN WITH THE ARMIES OF THREE OTHER PHILISTINE KINGS TO GO TO WAR WITH KING SAUL AND THE ISRAELITES! DAVID KNEW THAT HE COULD NOT FIGHT AGAINST HIS OWN PEOPLE...BUT WHAT TO DO?! HOWEVER, DAVID'S DILEMMA WAS SOLVED BY THE PHILISTINES THEMSELVES! WHEN THE PHILISTINE KINGS SAW DAVID'S BATTLE-TESTED AND HARDENED TROOPS MARCHING AT THE REAR OF THE PHILISTINE TROOPS, WHEN THEY PASSED IN REVIEW, THE KINGS WERE DISMAYED AT THE THOUGHT THAT DAVID'S TROOPS MIGHT TURN ON THEM IN BATTLE TO AID THE ISRAELITES...DAVID AND HIS MEN WERE IMMEDIATELY EXCUSED FROM THE BATTLE!!

Rabbi Notes Intolerance Is Growing

NEW YORK (AP) — A "tragic rise in sectarian intolerance and strife" has accompanied a worldwide revival of religion, says the president of an American interfaith coalition dedicated to religious and human rights.

Rabbi Arthur Schneier, head of the Appeal of Conscience Foundation, told its annual dinner that "widespread renewal of commitment to various religious faiths has unfortunately been marred in some cases by fanaticism, intolerance and hostility toward others."

Declaring such religious antagonism has "provoked persecution, violence and killings in such troubled corners of the world as India, Ireland and the Middle East," he added:

"We must step up our efforts to convince people everywhere that religion does not serve God when it fans the flames of war and hate against men, women and children made in God's image."

Stock And Market Reports

By The Associated Press

HOGS - Trend is 75 cents to $1 higher at N.C. buying stations. Kinston, Spivey's Corner, Murfreesboro, Siler City and Robersonville 46.00. Chnton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Pine Level, Chadbourn, Ayden, Ladrinburg and Benson 45.75. Wilson 45.75. Rowland 44.50. Sows - 500 pounds up Wilson 41.00. Fayetteville 39.00. Whiteville unreported. Wallace 40.00. Spivey's Corner unreported. Rowland 40.00.

BROILERS - The North Carolina 1.0 b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 46.50 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pound birds. The final weighted average is 47.97 cents 1.0 b. dock or equivalent. The market is firm and the live supply is moderate for a good demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Friday was 1,771,000, compared to 2,460,000 last Friday.

HENS - Market steady. Supply very light. Demand moderate. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday slaughter was 30 cents.

GRAIN - No. 2 yellow shelled corn higher at mostly 2.74-2.85 in East and mostly 2.85-2.93 in the Piedmont. No. 1 yellow soybeans higher at mostly 6.12-6.42 in the east and mostly 6.22-6.25 in the Piedmont. Wheat mostly 3.32-3.42. New wheat 2.96-3.26.

NEW YORK - AP - The stock market was mixed today, pausing in the final session of a stop-and-go week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 2.43 to 1,214.66 in the first half hour.

Gainers held a 6-5 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Most analysts agree that the bond market has been calling the tune for stock prices all week.

When bond prices rose and interest rates fell on Tuesday and Thursday, stocks rallied. Conversely, when bonds bogged down, as they did in early trading today, the stock market has turned sluggish as well.

Despite the recent erratic behavior of both markets, however, many Wall Streeters are looking for some easing of Federal Reserve credit policy after the election next Tuesday.

Pirates Try To Avoid Road Shutout

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

It's been a long, long time since East Carolina University's football Pirates went through a season without a victory on the road.

But unless the Pirates pull off an upset Saturday against hosting Southwestern Louisiana in Lafayette, that's what will happen this year. Kickoff is set for 3 p.m. eastern time in the contest.

A check of the record book reveals that the Pirates won at least once in each season going back to 1960. The record books prior to that do not give sites for each game. A check of Daily Reflector microfilms of the seasons from 1956-59 — the Ed Emory playing days — also revealed that the Pirates did not go winless on the road, despite only one win in 1957 and two in 1956.

Further checks showed that the Pirates did win at least one game on the road between 1949 and 1955, too, leaving 1948's 0-9 team as the last one to go without a road victory.

Emory, who is now the head football coach at East Carolina, is suffering through a season similar to that of his freshman and sophomore year. The Pirates are but 2-7 right now with two games left. And after last year's 8-3 record and national ranking, the Pirate coach admits that he and his staff have made a coaching mistake this year.

"We haven't demanded enough of our players. We have to be over-achievers. We know how the Byrners, Longs, Stephensons, Robertson and the like overachieved in 1982 to earn their place in 1983," Emory said. "I think our staff has done a good job coaching, but we haven't demanded what we should."

"Our people have had too much left inside us when the game is over. We should be drained — have given our all. We haven't played with the enthusiasm and intensity and excitement that we have to be in the national limelight," Emory said.

"I hope to take 60 people to Southwestern who are believers in this type of attitude."

Emory wants to finish strong — to beat Southwestern and come home to defeat Southern Mississippi in the season finale next weekend. That will be a good springboard to the 1985 season. "We're going to Lafayette to win, but it won't be easy."

"Southwestern is a lot like East Carolina. They are trying to get into the national limelight, too. They're 4-4 right now, but they've won three of their last four games."

Southwestern opened the 1984 campaign with a 9-7 loss to Tennessee-Chattanooga, but nipped Louisiana Tech the following week, 17-16. Northeastern Louisiana inched past the Ragin' Cajuns the following week, 7-6 and that was followed by a 37-14 stomping under the heels of frustrated Alabama.

But the Ragin' Cajuns downed Wichita State, 31-3 the following week before losing to Memphis State, 20-7.

They upset San Jose State, 35-28, and then popped Southwestern Mississippi, 13-7, last weekend.

"They have a lot of experience on their team. They have most of their people back from last year on both the first and second units, and they haven't been through the injury situation that we have. The top two people at each position, with only one or two exceptions, are those they listed after spring practice this year."

Emory added that Southwestern is experienced at least two deep at every position except wide receiver, while on defense, they are the same way except for some of the secondary people.

Southwestern's defense, too, has been outstanding. They are sixth among Division I-A schools in pass defense, allowing 130.5 yards a contest. They are tenth overall, giving up 271.6 yards a game. They are 18th in scoring defense, allowing 15.9 per game and 34th against the rush, giving up 141.1 per game.

This will be the sixth meeting of the two teams, with ECU holding a 3-2 advantage over the Ragin' Cajuns. Ironically, until last year when the Pirates took a 21-18 win in Greenville, neither team had won on its own home turf. Both USL wins came in Greenville, and the two previous ECU wins came in Lafayette.

The USL attack is led by quarterback Don Wallace (6-0, 188, Sr.). He's completed 56 of 106 passes for 653 yards and three touchdowns. He also rushed for 169 yards on 92 carries.

Chief target for Wallace has been running back Dwayne Williams (5-9, 196, So.), who's pulled in 18 for 142 yards and one score. Three others have caught as many as ten passes. They include wide receiver Pierre Perkins (5-11, 185, Jr.) with 14 for 222; wide receiver Welton Morgan (6-1, 190, Jr.) with 13 for 201 yards, and running back Trimon Smith (5-8, 180, Sr.) with ten for 55 yards. A total of 13 different people have been the target of at least one Ragin' Cajun pass.

Smith, despite being not listed as a first-teamer, is the leading rusher for the Cajuns with 344 yards on 70 carries. Starter Williams has rushed 80 times for 270 yards, while Bertrand Green (5-8, 190, Jr.) an alternate starter at the other running back position, is next at 47 for 180 carries. Thomas Jackson (5-11, 210, Jr.) the other alternate, has rushed 51 times for 169 yards.

Kicker Patrick Broussard (5-7, 170, Fr.) is the leading scorer with 34 points with Wallace close behind with 30. Broussard hit on all 16 PAT tries and on six of 17 field goal attempts, the longest of which was 35 yards. All but one of his misses were of 37 or more yards.

The Cajuns are rushing for 150.4 yards a game and passing for 129.3. The leading tackler on the team is linebacker Steve Spinella (6-0, 225, Jr.) with 85. Next is defensive end Oliver Ford (5-11, 192, Sr.) with 58. USL has intercepted eight passes, two each by tackle Charles Bennet (6-5, 250, Sr.) and cornerback Renwick Tuck (5-10, 170, Sr.).

East Carolina, meanwhile, will counter with quarterback Darrell Speedwho has rushed for 168 yards and connected on 53 of 107 attempts for 691 yards and five touchdowns. He's had seven picked off — three last week against South Carolina.

Tony Baker is the leading rusher with 417 yards, while Reggie Branch has picked up 386.

But Bubba Bunn, switched lately from tailback to fullback, has rushed for 245 yards on just 35 carries, a hefty 7.0 per lug.

Ricky Nichols is by far the leading receiver with 21 catches for 395 yards and four touchdowns. Tight end Damon Pope is next with 13 for 133 yards while Henry Williams has 11 catches for 151 yards.

Kicker Jeff Heath is the leading scorer with 47 points on 17 of 17 PATs and 10 of 13 field goals, the longest of which is 52 yards. Jimmy Walden is next in scoring with 33 points while Nichols has 24 points.

Linebacker Tyrone Johnson is the leading tackler with 75, followed by defensive end Curtis Wyatt with 60 and defensive back Kevin Walker with 49.

Walker is also the leader in interceptions with four, as the Pirates have picked off nine so far this year.

The Pirates may also have an edge on the sidelines. ECU's offensive coordinator Don Murry held the same position at Southwestern last year, and should be able to provide the Pirates will some information on the Cajun attack. While Emory said that the ground game had been revamped, the passing game is roughly the same, and Murry is familiar with most of the personnel.

In 1957, in Wales, Teddy Barker of England knocked out Bob Roberts of Nigeria in 10 seconds of the first round.

Rose Falls To Eagles, But Claims League Title

ELIZABETH CITY — Rose High School's Rampants bowed to Elizabeth City Northeastern yesterday, 2-1, in their final Big East soccer match of the season, but still managed to return to Greenville with the league championship.

The Rampants went into the game with the shadow of a playoff game with Rocky Mount over their heads. The Gryphons, who had protested a season opening loss to Rose, won their protest because officials had used an improper method in resolving a tie that resulted at the end of the game. The conference ruled the game a tie, and, had Rocky Mount's matched Rose's two final losses with two wins, there would have been a playoff. However, Fike beat Rocky Mount in a shootout yesterday to end the Gryphon hopes.

Northeastern's Lee Mann scored 25 minutes into the first half to stake the Eagles to a 1-0 lead. Steve Bills added a second goal 12 minutes later.

Rose's only goal came 25 minutes into the second half as Mike Maxon scored off an assist by Jordy Smith.

"We had our chances," Coach Will Wiberg said. "But it was a game of missed opportunities." Rose outshot Northeastern, 13-7 in the contest.

David Ely, Lewis Robbins, Maxon and David Lee drew praise from the coach for their effort. He also said that the seniors had displayed good leadership in taking Rose to the title in only their third year of the sport.

The Rampants finished the regular season with an 11-4-1 overall record. They were 8-3-1 in the league, a half-game ahead of Northeastern and Hunt, which finished with 8-4 records. Rocky Mount was fourth with 7-4-1, followed by Kingston and Fike at 5-7 and Beddingfield, 0-12.

The Rampants move into the State Playoffs on Tuesday, hosting the Cap Eight Champion. That title is to be decided in the finals of the league's post-season tournament. Unbeaten Sanderson faces Broughton in the finals at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Sanderson, with the host team a prohibitive favorite.

"We're looking forward to another meeting with Sanderson," Wiberg said. Sanderson took a 7-0 victory over Rose in last year's first round of the state tournament. "We've been waiting a year for the chance, and they have to come to us for this one."

The site and time of the Tuesday matchup will be announced later.

Conley Ends In 3rd Place

FORBUSH — D.H. Conley's quest for a state volleyball championship came to an abrupt end yesterday at the hands of West Henderson yesterday.

The result, however, allowed the Valkyries to finish their season tied for third place in the state, their highest finish ever.

West Henderson took the Valkyries in two straight, hard-fought games. The first was won by West Henderson, 16-14, and the second, 15-10.

Durham Jordan downed hosting Forbush, 15-1, 15-3, in the other semifinal game, and then went on to down West Henderson, 15-13, 15-11.

Further details of the Conley match were not available this morning.

Elliott On Atlanta Pole

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — The grin splitting Bill Elliott's freckled face was as wide as a pumpkin left over from Halloween night.

The slim, red-haired driver from nearby Dawsonville, Ga., had just given the "hometown crowd" something to cheer about by winning the pole position for Sunday's Atlanta Journal 500 Grand National stock car race.

"I just couldn't be more excited," drawled Elliott, who is riding a hot streak that has seen him pick up two of his three victories this season in the last three races. "I really wanted to get this pole pretty bad."

"We always come here and run pretty good, but I really wanted to do it for the hometown crowd if I could."

And Elliott did it in style, shattering the Atlanta International Raceway qualifying record with a fast lap in his Coors-sponsored Ford Thunderbird, averaging 170.198 mph.

That was considerably better than the previous mark of 168.425, set in November of 1978 by Cale Yarborough.

Asked if records mean anything to him, the 29-year-old Elliott laughed and replied: "Yeah, I sure like to set 'em."

Terry Labonte, working hard to hold off Harry Gant in the fast-closing Winston Cup point chase, was a distant second to Elliott at 168.700 in a Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS.

Both Labonte and Geoff Bodine, who will start on the inside of the second row after qualifying a Monte Carlo at 168.440, also bettered the record by Yarborough, who was fourth Thursday at 168.110 in a Chevy.

"He (Elliott) ran faster than I thought anybody would," said Labonte. "But I'm happy just to be starting in the top four. About the only way I'll be comfortable going into the last race of the year is to have so many points that no one could catch us. And the only way I can do that is to do real well here."

Elliott, third in the point race, a distant 218 points behind Labonte, did move into a tie for the $25,000 Busch pole award, picking up his fourth of the season. That tied him with Darrell Waltrip, Yarborough and Ricky Rudd.

The top driver in the point standings among those tied will win the pole money if there is no clear winner after qualifying for the season finale Nov. 18 at Riverside, Calif.

Elliott figures he's got a far better chance at winning that contest than he does of catching Labonte and Gant.

"Let's face it, Labonte and Gant have to fall out of both races for me to have a chance," Elliott said. "That hasn't happened and I hope it doesn't. They've both been so good all year. I'd hate to see the season ruined for either one of them."

The top 20 spots in the 40-car field were locked in Thursday, with the rest of the starters to be decided in time trials today.

Among the first-day qualifiers, 15 posted laps faster than the 166.642 that put Buddy Baker on the pole for last Spring's Coca Cola 500.

"Goodyear has come up with new left-side tires, the conditions were nearly perfect — cool and cloudy — and everybody has had time since the spring to work things out on their cars," said Elliott, explaining the jump in speeds. "That's why we've been breaking a lot of records lately."

The top 20 qualifiers for Sunday's Atlanta Journal 500 Grand National stock car race, with type of car and qualifying speed in mph:

1. Bill Elliott, Ford Thunderbird, 170.198
2. Terry Labonte, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 168.700
3. Geoff Bodine, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 168.440
4. Cale Yarborough, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 168.110
5. Harry Gant, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 167.822
6. Jody Ridley, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 167.601
7. Darrell Waltrip, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 167.401
8. Buddy Baker, Ford Thunderbird, 167.350
9. Bobby Allison, Buick Regal, 167.340
10. Dale Earnhardt, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 167.243
11. Bobby Hill Jr., Buick Regal, 167.151
12. David Pearson, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 166.942
13. Ricky Rudd, Ford Thunderbird, 166.871
14. Tim Richmond, Pontiac Grand Prix, 166.769
15. Richard Petty, Pontiac Grand Prix, 166.723
16. Rusty Wallace, Pontiac Grand Prix, 166.627
17. Benny Parsons, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 166.582
18. Neil Bonnett, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 166.473
19. Dave Marcis, Pontiac Grand Prix, 166.334
20. Lake Speed, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 166.329

Rest of 40-car field will be filled in time trials Friday.

TV Money Pie To Be Key Issue

NEW YORK (AP) — Division of $1 billion in television revenue is expected to be among the issues when major league baseball and the player's union sit down Nov. 14 to begin negotiations on a new contract.

The old contract, which ended a two-month strike by players in 1981, expires Dec. 31.

In making the announcement Thursday, the Players Union and baseball's Player Relations Committee said that a second negotiating session would be held Nov. 20.

An impasse over free-agent compensation prompted the 1981 strike, but the issue this time figures to be the split of TV money which, incidentally, precipitated the 1982 National Football League strike.

Baseball's 1983 pact with ABC and NBC is worth an additional $6 million over five years for each team in baseball, but the union thinks the players should share in those proceeds.

The union negotiating team will be headed by Don Fehr, union counsel during the strike who took over as executive director when the players voted to fire Ken Moffett.

The owners' group will be led by Lee MacPhail, the former American League president, who succeeded Ray Grebey as the director of the PRC.

The strike occurred when Bowie Kuhn was commissioner. He was replaced Oct. 1 by Peter Ueberroth, who in his first week on the job, arbitrated an end to the strike-by umpires.

That move suggested that Ueberroth might take a more active role in negotiations than Kuhn, who stayed out of the 1981 contract talks. It was that aloofness, in fact, that was one of the concerns of the group of owners that voted Kuhn out of office.

Bureaucrats Get Grilling On Budd

LONDON (AP) — While Zola Budd's decision to remain in South Africa hasn't drawn criticism here, the bureaucrats who pushed through her application for a British passport are being grilled.

British sports officials said Thursday they were not surprised by Budd's decision to stay in her native South Africa instead of competing internationally as a British citizen. The British government declined to comment on reports in South Africa that Budd planned to renounce her British citizenship.

"As long as she is a citizen of this country, she has the right of settlement here," a Home Office spokesman said. "It would be wrong at this stage to take any view on what is a personal decision."

But opposition politicians blasted the Home Office — which quickly processed Budd's application for British citizenship so she could compete in the Los Angeles Olympics — and the Daily Mail newspaper, which had her under contract for exclusive rights to her story.

"It is Home Office ministers who stand in the dock for approving her application for citizenship in a record 10 days, with no proper inquiry as to whether she intended to stay here, and thus bringing the whole immigration scheme into disrepute by colluding with one of their Fleet Street friends," charged Donald Anderson, a Labor Party foreign affairs spokesman.

Except for the pack of four in the middle, the rest of this year's pick panel is getting to be a joke.

First of all, Tom Baines is making a mockery of the whole thing. The idea is for everyone to stick close together until the end of the season and the winner to be determined then.

But Baines is having no part of that. Another 9-2 week last time out boosted his lead to nine full games, and there would seem to be no way of catching up with him for the rest of us. Baines currently has a record to 70-34 for the season.

Then comes the logjam. Jimmy DuPree, Vickie Spivey and this writer are all deadlocked for second place with 61-43 records, while our guests are a game back at 61-44.

And then comes Joe Jenkins, as far behind as Baines is in front — no — further than that. Joe comes in with a 50-54 record, 10 behind the guests and 20 down from Baines.

"There's got to be some comic relief from all the pressure," Jenkins tells us. "I'm really keeping this show on the road. People follow just to see how wrong I can be."

Our guest of last week, WNCT-TV Carolina Today hostess Cindy Pleasants — a former East Carolinian sports editor — turned in a fine 8-3 record, best of the season so far among the guests. Right now, she's on line to return for the bowl games as the top guest picker.

Our guest this week is Greenville Traffic Engineer Tom Tysinger. "He did WHAT?" Tysinger responded when we told him Baines had recommended him. But he went along with it, making his picks and hoping for a chance to beat Cindy.

Our high school picks last week were 7-1, the only flaw the victory by Conley over Havelock. That brings us to 57-21 for the season.

It might be said that there are two big games for county teams this week. Ayden-Grifton and Farmville Central clash in their annual affair, while surprising Conley is at West Craven battling for a chance to win the Coastal Conference championship.

The Chargers and Jaguars are both having their problems this year. Neither has been able to do much in the Eastern Carolina Conference race but when this game comes around, everything goes out the window. It should be one heck of a battle, and we're really at a loss in this one. But we're going to go with Farmville to win by a slim score, 14-13.

Conley's visit to West Craven could result in one of the top upsets around if the Vikes can pull it off. They have a chance to make the playoffs — and have a winning season — for the first time ever. West, however, has a little too many horses for the Vikings this year. The Eagles fly with a 21-13 win.

North Pitt entertains SouthWest Edgecombe and we can see nothing good happening for the Panthers in this one. The Cougars are warming up for their meeting with Greene Central for the title next week. We look for SouthWest to win this one, 45-6.

In other area games, it'll be Bath over Chocowinity, Jamesville rolling over Mattamuskeet, Roanoke Rapids over Roanoke and Williamston over Washington.

The Rose High Rampants travel to Wilson Hunt tonight, still seeking their first conference victory and a break in their five-game losing tumble. Hunt has been up and down, but the Rampants are again without a regular as quarterback Battle Emory is sidelined with a shoulder separation. The panel picks Hunt, 4-2, and our own pick is the Warriors, 13-10.

East Carolina travels to Southwestern Louisiana seeking to win on the road for the first time this year. The Pirates haven't had a winless road schedule since 1948 — 36 years ago — but they're on the horns of that dilemma now. The panel is split down the middle, 3-3, calling it a toss-up. We're picking the Pirates, 24-21.

Our other consensus picks: Clemson over Wake Forest; Maryland over North Carolina; West Virginia over Virginia; Auburn over Florida; Boston College over Penn State; Georgia Tech over Duke; South Carolina over N.C. State; Alabama over Mississippi State; Michigan and Purdue, a toss-up; and Virginia Tech over Tulane.

'Baltimore' Stars Still Have Hurdles To Clear

BALTIMORE (AP) — They call themselves the Baltimore Stars, but that's only wishful thinking at this point.

Myles Tanenbaum, owner of the United States Football League franchise, says he's confident he can work out an agreement with the city to lease Memorial Stadium starting in 1986 when the league switches from a spring to a fall season.

In the meantime, the former Philadelphia Stars will defend their league title 40 miles away at the University of Maryland at College Park. The Stars will play next spring's nine home games and any home playoff games at the university's Byrd Stadium.

Tanenbaum sees the College Park schedule merely as a one-year stopover on the way from Philadelphia to Baltimore. "I have absolutely no doubt that we're going to be here (in Baltimore) indefinitely," he said Thursday at a press conference to announce the name change and the beginning of the $99 season ticket sales.

Mayor William Donald Schaefer said he was "very pleased with Myles Tanenbaum's enthusiasm for the city," but that the city would continue its litigation to reclaim the Colts of the National Football League through eminent domain.

"I liked him because he indicated he didn't want to leave Philadelphia, but they didn't have a stadium for him so he had to (move)," Schaefer said of Tanenbaum.

The Stars, who compiled a 35-6 record in the USFL's first two years, were forced to leave Philadelphia when USFL owners approved the switch to a fall schedule. The switch put the Stars in direct competition with the NFL's Philadelphia Eagles for the use of Veterans Stadium.

Schaefer, along with many local football fans, still is miffed with Colts owner Robert Irsay for packing up the team's equipment, leaving town in the dead of night March 28 and moving the Colts to Indianapolis.

The city responded to the unannounced move by filing a lawsuit March 30 seeking to condemn the Colts' assets, reimburse Irsay for the value of the franchise and force the team to return.

Tanenbaum, however, said he's not worried about the possibility of Baltimore's winning the lawsuit and winding up with two football teams.

"There's not a prayer that that's going to happen," he said. "I worry more about what I'm going to have for lunch than that."

Schaefer, who did not attend Tanenbaum's 10 a.m. press conference, held a news conference of his own at 11 a.m. to say he had met with Tanenbaum and was pleased with the commitment to Baltimore.

But Schaefer said he expects Tanenbaum to ask for a long-term commitment at Memorial Stadium, and that's not possible just yet.

"There are a whole lot of other things that have to be taken into account before we can discuss a long-term commitment," the mayor said, such as the fact the Orioles baseball team has exclusive use of city-owned Memorial Stadium during the spring.

"We'll have to wait and see what his (Tanenbaum's) proposal says," Schaefer said, "and presumably he'll get that to us in a couple of days."

Tanenbaum said club officials have not yet found a training facility in Maryland but hope to do so within several weeks. Asked if he might buy the Colts' complex in Owings Mills, Tanenbaum, a real estate developer, said, "We covet that facility, but there is a man who owns that facility who does not deserve top dollar," referring to Irsay and the way his team sneaked out of town in the middle of a snowy night.

Mass. To Collect Taxes From Non-Resident Athletes

BOSTON (AP) - Massachusetts has decided to make out-of-town athletes pay income tax on what they earn for appearing in contests in the Bay State, says the state Revenue Department.

Revenue Commissioner Ira A. Jackson said Thursday the tax idea has been around since 1955, but enforcement is new. California has begun similar levies.

The tax is based on a percentage of the players' salary in relation to the number of contests played in Massachusetts.

The plan is to divide an athlete's salary by the total number of games played. The tax is levied on the ones played in Massachusetts.

For example, a player making $160,000 a year playing 16 games would earn a total of $20,000 for two games played in Massachusetts. He would then be subject to Massachusetts' income tax, which is a flat rate of 5.375 percent for salaries, and be given a credit in his own state for the tax paid the Bay State.

those players appear in more different states.

"The situation gets significant with a player who makes $2 million a year," Steinberg said. "If he plays 160 games at $12,000 a game and he might play in Los Angeles, San Diego and San Francisco, it might start to get significant," he said.

Non-resident golfers and tennis players, boxers and various entertainers have been taxed for many years on prizes and other payments they receive in Massachusetts.

"All we're doing is calling the game and enforcing the rules according to the book," Jackson said in a statement released by the department. "We're not demanding anything more of that million-dollar quarterback on the field than we are of the loyal fans in the stands."

Jackson said no tax bills have been sent. Letters notifying players of back taxes for 1982 have been sent to players on National Basketball Association teams and the New York Jets and Miami Dolphins of the National Football League.

Boston sports attorney Bob Woolf, who represents Boston Celtics' star Larry Bird of the NBA, said he wasn't familiar with the plan, but that, "it sounds very oppressive" because players might one day be required to file tax returns in 50 states.

In California where there is a graduated income tax reaching 11 percent, sports attorney Leigh Steinberg predicted the practice could spread.

"It's always been there," said revenue spokesman Harry Durning of the athlete's tax. "We just didn't enforce it when athletes didn't make that much."

"With a humble salary, it's not worth it, but now when salaries are in the million-dollar category, we know it's there."

Shula's Playing Them One Game At A Time

By DAVE GOLDBERG, AP Sports Writer

When he's asked about the possibility of this year's Miami Dolphins enclaving his 1972 squad, the last National Football League team to go undefeated, Don Shula gives the standard answer about playing them one game at a time.

"If the Dolphins are still unbeaten after Sunday, the questions will get more frequent."

Miami's home game Saturday in the 1984 edition of the first of the meetings with the New York Jets, who opened and tied with New England three games back in the AFC East. If the Dolphins can do it, New York on the road, the only accomplishment not seen from the Los Angeles Raiders and Dallas Cowboys in 1972, those teams will have to wait.

But Shula says this week off from the Jets and their pass rush, he'll be back to play the Miami Dolphins and he'll be annoyed Dan Marino has been so good at times.

"As a coach, you can be sucked, you can be out of your head, who says the Jets are sucking. It's not a good thing to do. The right pressure is to play the Jets as a team."

But Shula says he'll be annoyed if the Dolphins are still unbeaten after Sunday. He'll be annoyed if the Dolphins are still unbeaten after Sunday. He'll be annoyed if the Dolphins are still unbeaten after Sunday.

Indianapolis, Tampa Bay at Minnesota, Cincinnati at San Francisco, Kansas City at Seattle, the Los Angeles Rams at St. Louis and New England at Denver.

Atlanta is at Washington Monday night.

The Jets' record has been built mostly against the NFL's lower echelons - they've lost twice to New England, which is also 6-3. That makes a win against the Dolphins even more important if the Jets are to have a good shot at the playoffs.

So while Shula worries about Gastineau, Jets Coach Joe Walton is concerned with Marino, who has already passed Bob Griese's Miami season record with 27 touchdown passes in nine games and seems almost certain to break the NFL mark of 36, held by George Blanda and Y.A. Tittle.

"He has uncanny ability," Walton says of Marino. "You can't outrun his arm. They are the classic example of a team using a pass to set up the run. You have to be so conscious of that, so it makes their running game better."

"It puts tremendous pressure on the linebackers. It keeps your secondary back so you don't get beat on bombs."

The Cardinals, who have won four straight, are 6-3 and tied with Dallas at the top of the NFC East. They've beaten three straight division rivals - Dallas, Washington and Philadelphia - but Coach Jim Hanifan says he has no fear of a letdown against the Rams, who were shutout 33-0 by San Francisco last weekend and at 5-4 are three games behind the 49ers in the NFC West.

"If we were playing St. Mary's of the Wasatch this would be a big game," Hanifan says.

The game in Chicago is a big one for the Super Bowl champion Raiders, who dropped a 22-19 overtime decision and fell out of a first place tie with the Raiders in the tough AFC West. Los Angeles is 7-2, with both losses to 8-1 Denver, meaning help is needed from outside if the Raiders are to win the division.

The Bears, 6-3, need no help - they lead the NFC Central by three games. But they're looking forward to the Raiders as a way to prove they belong with the NFL's big boys.

"If we can beat a team like the Raiders, it'll prove we can beat a team like that in the playoffs," says linebacker Al Harris, a member of the defense that dominates NFL defensive statistics.

Fullmer 2nd In Sectional

WILSON - Washington's Missy Fulmer might be excused if she felt a certain deja vu about the Northeastern Sectional tennis tournament. For the second straight year, she advanced to the finals only to lose to Goldsboro's Cathy Paparazo.

Fulmer, the only area netter to qualify for next week's Eastern Regionals at Goldsboro, opened the second day of the sectionals with a 7-6, 5-7, 6-4 victory over Eastern Wayne's Emily Houser. She followed that up with a win over Rachel Jones of Rocky Mount, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4.

That put Fulmer, seeded second in the field, into the finals against the top-seeded Paparazo for the second straight year. The result, however, was again the same, with Paparazo taking a 6-4, 6-1 win.

The result gave Goldsboro the team championship in the meet as the Lady Cougars finished with 33 points. Northeastern took second place with 29, while Washington was third with 27.

In the doubles, Washington's Jessica Moore and Kyle Stearns lost in the quarterfinals to Cindy Dawson and Susan Mattocks of Kinston, 6-4, 6-2, and thus did not qualify for further play this year.

Fulmer advances into the regionals at Goldsboro next Wednesday and Thursday. Top finishers there advanced to the following week's state tournament in Chapel Hill.

Aycock In Forfeit Win

WILSON - E.H. Aycock Junior High School, secured a forfeit victory from Wilson Hunt yesterday, remaining unbeaten on the 1984 football season.

Hunt's only players, told it could not field a representative team and forfeit the game to Aycock.

The Jaguars broke Aycock record to 6-0 for the year, covering the past two years and 1981 for the past three seasons.

The Jaguars close out the season next Wednesday, hosting Elizabeth City Northeastern.

Bethel-Wellcome 48
Ayden 0

BETHEL - Bethel Wellcome Middle School defeated Ayden, 48-0, yesterday in a junior high school football game.

Randy House scored once on an eight yard run and also passed to William Morning for 29 yards for another to lead the B-W team. Billy Hardison scored on a 29-yard run. Johnny Sherrard recovered a blocked punt in the end zone. Andre Perkins ran for 12 yards and Jeffrey Whitfield took a 70-yard pass from Darryl Moore to account for the touchdowns.

The defense also added two safeties.

The offensive line was led by Kevin Briley, Tony Hopkins, and Leroy Davenport, while the defense was led by Herbert Staton, William Ebron, Malcolm Wiggins, Jimmy Palma and Morning.

Issel's Play Sparks Nuggets' Win

By The Associated Press
When Dan Issel was younger, he was renowned for going full tilt for 48 minutes. At age 36, his playing time has been reduced but not his competitive spirit.

Issel came off the bench to score 25 points in 27 minutes Thursday night, boosting the Denver Nuggets to a 129-113 thumping of the Chicago Bulls.

"Dan Issel really got it going," said Denver Coach Doug Moe. "It's a good thing we didn't start him, or he might be dead now."

"Old Dan — and I mean old — really gave us a lift."

In other National Basketball Association games, it was Detroit 118, Atlanta 114; Houston 109, Kansas City 106; the Los Angeles Clippers 107, New York 105; San Antonio 123, Golden State 108; Seattle 105, the Los Angeles Lakers 103; and Phoenix 139, Portland 130 in three overtimes.

"I thought we had a terrific effort from a lot of players tonight," added Moe, and Chicago Coach Kevin Loughery could only agree.

"Denver is much more aggressive defensively than they've ever been in the past," he said. "We didn't deserve to win this game. Denver outplayed us and just beat us in every aspect of the game."

Calvin Natt scored 11 of his 31 points in the first five minutes of the fourth quarter to fuel Denver's romp.

The Nuggets led 96-91 early in the final quarter when Natt connected on a three-point play to ignite a 15-6 spurt by Denver. Natt went on to score eight in a row for the Nuggets, who established a 109-97 bulge with 7:27 to go. Denver led by as many as 19 down the stretch.

Quintin Dailey led the Bulls with 26 and Orlando Woolridge added 24.

Pistons 118, Hawks 114

Kelly Tripucka, who scored 25 points, hit a layup with 24 seconds to play to snap a 114-114 tie. After Atlanta's Dominique Wilkins was called for walking, Isiah Thomas iced the Detroit victory with a pair of free throws.

Detroit's Dan Roundfield, a former Hawk, led all scorers with 26, including 12 in the final period. Eddie Johnson paced the Hawks with 24 and Wilkins added 22.

Rockets 109, Kings 106

Rodney McCray canned a 20-foot jumper with 28 seconds left and Lewis Lloyd added a pair of free throws as Houston ran its season-opening unbeaten streak to three games. Kansas City, meanwhile, slipped to 0-3.

Reggie Theus scored seven straight points and Larry Drew sank two free throws to give the Kings a 102-100 lead. Houston center Ralph Sampson fouled out on the play.

Eddie Johnson, who led Kansas City with 26 points, gave the Kings a 106-105 lead with two free throws and a basket, the latter with 41 seconds left.

Akeem Olajuwon led the Rockets with 25 points.

Clippers 107, Knicks 105

Norm Nixon scored nine of his 21 points in final period as the Clippers made a successful debut in Los Angeles. The Clippers, who played in San Diego last season, led 106-103 after Nixon's 20-footer with 1:20 to play. Bernard King, who led the Knicks with 25 points, hit his final basket to cut the Los Angeles lead to one point. Rory White's free throw with two seconds to go completed the scoring.

Spurs 123, Warriors 108

Forward Mike Mitchell notched 33 points as San Antonio, winner of three straight, bombed mistake-prone Golden State. The Warriors, winless in four games, were guilty of 24 turnovers.

George Gervin added 16 points and Artis Gilmore 15 for the Spurs.

San Antonio led most of the way and took a 91-80 lead into the fourth period.

Sleepy Floyd had 23 points for Golden State.

Sonics 105, Lakers 103

Ricky Sobers' 18-foot jumper with seven seconds to play to give Seattle a two-point lead. Los Angeles missed a final chance to tie the game when Magic Johnson threw a bad inbounds pass as time expired.

Tom Chambers led Sonics scorers with 20 points and 15 rebounds and Al Wood added 19.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 24 points for the Lakers, who blew a 10-point first-half lead and a 103-101 advantage in the final minute.

Suns 139, Blazers 130

Larry Nance scored a career-high 44 points and Kyle Macy scored the go-ahead basket as Phoenix pulled away from Portland in the third extra period to remain unbeaten. The Suns' fourth consecutive victory was a franchise record for the start of a season. Macy, who scored 13 points, put the Suns ahead to stay at 129-127 on a layin with 3:01 left in the third overtime. He added two free throws with 10 seconds remaining for a 137-130 bulge and rookie Jay Humphries sank two free throws with two seconds to go to seal it.

Nance also had a career-high 17 rebounds and six blocked shots.

Portland, now 2-1, got 28 points from Jim Paxson and 24 from Kiki Vandeweghe.

Washington Coach Hopes Benching Avoids Letdown

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

The top-ranked Washington Huskies may have found the cure for looking ahead as they prepare for a Pacific-10 Conference meeting with California.

The Huskies, 8-0, could be thinking about No. 18 Southern California, the leader in the conference and 6-1 overall, whom they meet next week. But Coach Don James has made a move to ensure his 20^{1/2}-point favored team isn't forgetting about 2-6 Cal.

James has benched starting quarterback Hugh Millen in favor of fourth-year junior Paul Sicuro. Millen lost his job when he was intercepted three times and lost two fumbles in the first-half of a 28-12 victory against Arizona last weekend.

"I would certainly hope that we've been around long enough to not be that dumb," James said of the look-ahead theory.

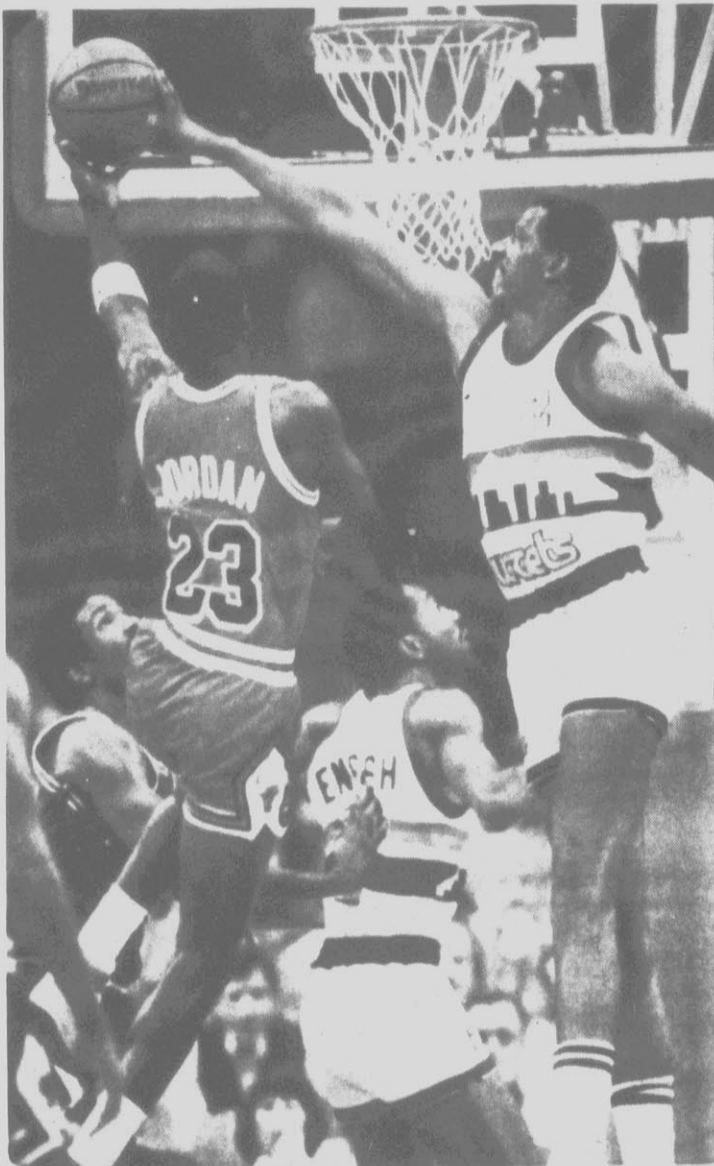

James used Sicuro in the second half against Arizona and opted for him to start this Saturday.

"The five turnovers," James said when asked why he was making the change.

"I can't dwell too much on how big a chance this is for me," said Sicuro. "I just have to realize I'd get a chance sometime and here it is. I can't let it get away."

"I'm a game player and I have to prove I can play in this league... prove to myself more than anything I can play. And also have some fun."

While Washington is making alterations, Cal gets back its No. 1 signal-caller, Gale Gilbert. Gilbert missed the Golden Bears' 31-7 loss to Southern Cal last week because of a severely sprained ankle. Sophomore Kevin Brown and freshman Brian Bedford were ineffective at quarterback against the Trojans.

Hunt, Helms Swap Charges

By The Associated Press

Gov. Jim Hunt attacked Sen. Jesse Helms for violating "a sacred contract between the nation and the armed forces," while Helms criticized Hunt for accepting contributions from labor unions that he said were tied to organized crime.

Meanwhile, Republican gubernatorial candidate Jim Martin defended his position on repeal the state's sales tax Thursday and his opponent, R. W. Edmisten, said the plan was unworkable in a largely Democratic legislature.

"I wonder how the governor can be proud of support from big unions like the Hotel Employees and Restaurant Employees International union which is tied to organized crime," Helms told about 200 people gathered in the Wilson Recreation Department gymnasium Thursday.

"The ties are direct," the Republican incumbent said, adding that a Senate subcommittee report raised questions about the union.

Hunt, touring the western part of the state, said there were no criminals behind his campaign contributions.

"I don't know what contributions I've gotten from the various labor organizations," Hunt, a Democrat, said. "But I'm proud to have received contributions from business interests as well as from organizations of working men and women. There's been a good balance in my case."

Hunt toured an Asheville high school where he said Helms had opposed "almost every crucial veterans funding bill. He supported defense, but he hasn't supported the men and women who ... have fought."

At a news conference, Hunt said his opponent accused him of misrepresenting Helms' record on veterans' benefits the same day the Veterans of Foreign Wars political action committee withdrew its endorsement of the incumbent.

Martin grabbed a baton and directed a high school band when he arrived at the Randolph County Courthouse during a stop in Asheboro.

Addressing about 75 supporters, Martin promised tax breaks and insisted that his plan for sales tax repeal will work. Martin said present taxes have provided the state with a surplus said. "If the state doesn't need it, give it back to the people of North Carolina."

Edmisten, meanwhile, said the annual $40 per person resulting from his Republican opponent's tax reduction plans would be better spent on education.

"My opponent has said that if all his tax reduction proposals were enacted, it would result in $40 per year in savings in the pocket of each North Carolinian," the attorney general told about 35 fellow Democrats at a news conference in Charlotte. "I'd rather have my $40 go to educate a kid than have $40 in my pocket to spend in 15 minutes."

Martin's press secretary, Karen Hayes, said the $40 quote was "a rough figure for some families."

Edmisten said Martin couldn't repeal the state's intangibles and inventory taxes or the sales tax on food or drugs even if he were elected governor because he would be working with an overwhelmingly Democratic General Assembly.

Officials in the Eastern District have received a letter from Assistant U.S. Attorney J. Douglas McCullough. The letter outlines practices "that are thought to be rather common" in the district in vote fraud.

The letter says payment in cash for "hauling voters to the polls" is illegal, specifying that campaign workers must be paid by check. It also says business-owned vehicles may not be loaned to a campaign to transport people to the polls, nor can federal, state or local agency vehicles be used.

In other political news, J. Phillip Carlton said in a Thursday news conference that a bill sponsored by Helms would outlaw certain forms of contraceptives.

"The Helms bill would declare the biological cell formed at conception to be a 'person,' thus providing it immediate constitutional protection under the Fourteenth Amendment," Carlton said. "The conclusion is therefore inescapable that the use of any form of birth control which operates after conception to prevent the fertilized egg from implanting in the womb could lead to a charge of first degree murder, or at the very least, to one of the lesser degrees of homicide."

Carlton said contraceptives which work after conception include the intra-uterine device and certain forms of birth control pills.

In other political news, U.S. Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., and his wife, Transportation Secretary Elizabeth H. Dole, held a news conference at the Raleigh-Durham Airport to campaign for Helms and 4th District Republican congressional candidate William W. Cobey Jr.

The Doles have been stumping across the United States this week, boosting GOP candidates locked in close races.

Dole extolled Helms' record on veterans issues and Social Security.

"I think the senator stands right where he should," Dole said. "He has a great deal of concern for veterans."

FEC Told To Act On Helms Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Election Commission has been ordered to act on a complaint against two political groups linked to Sen. Jesse Helms, but that action doesn't have to come until after the Republicans' hotly contested reelection battle.

U.S. District Court Judge Louis F. Oberdorfer ordered the FEC to act within 30 days on the two-year-old complaint by U.S. Rep. Charlie Rose, D.N.C., against the National Congressional Club and Jefferson Marketing Inc., both of Raleigh, N.C.

Rose's attorney, William Oldaker, hailed the ruling as "a major victory, a landmark-type decision." But he expressed disappointment that the FEC was not being forced to act before Tuesday's election, and said he would ask the appeals court to speed up the deadline.

On Oct. 24, a federal appeals court struck down an earlier order by Oberdorfer that would have forced the FEC to act before the election.

Oberdorfer's new order gives the agency 30 days from Oct. 31 to act. Oldaker said he will try to convince the appeals court that the 30 days should be counted from Oct. 4, when the judge initially put the FEC on a 15-day deadline. A three-judge appellate panel struck down that deadline.

The judge, in his new ruling, said the FEC's action on Rose's complaint "was unreasonably delayed contrary to law."

Brice M. Claggett, the lawyer for the club and Jefferson Marketing, said, "I don't think I have any comment" on Oberdorfer's new ruling. He refused to say whether he plans an appeal.

Are You Tired of Listening to TV and Radio Telling You HOW TO VOTE

Over 20 million dollars have been spent in this year's Senate Race...everybody from football players to movie stars are telling you HOW TO VOTE.

- NOT ONE OF THEM HAS EVER LIVED IN EASTERN NORTH CAROLINA!
- NOT ONE OF THEM HAS TALKED ABOUT OUR PROBLEMS!

Did you know that the small farmer has problems...

1. The value of his farmland has decreased steadily in the last 3 years.
(Ask any local realtor and he will tell you)
2. His net income has been going down each year for the last 4 years.
(Ask any lending institution)
3. Foreclosures of farms are steadily rising.
(Which farm will be sold next?)

The small farmer is not angry with anybody for this, and does not ask any special favors. He sees the handwriting on the wall...he wants to send to Washington as Senator

- A man who is POSITIVE, not negative
- A man who is USED to solving problems
- A man who will TAKE THE TIME, with Senators from other farm states, TO FIND SOLUTIONS!

Discount Variety Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A flue-cured tobacco variety known as Reams 266 would be designated as a discount variety under a proposed change in the price support program, the Agriculture Department said.

Since 1957 a discount variety of flue-cured tobacco being grown and tested for the market carries only 50 percent of the support rate that is available to fully acceptable varieties.

The commissioners of agriculture of the five major flue-cured states — Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia — petitioned the department to designate Reams 266 as a discount variety, effective in the 1985 crop year.

Everett Rank, head of the department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said Thursday the proposal will be open for public comment until Dec. 3. Those can be sent to: Director, Tobacco and Peanuts Division, ASCS-USDA, P.O. Box 2415, Washington, D.C. 20013.

Jury Convicts Father In Death

GREENSBORO (AP) — A North Carolina man who killed his pregnant daughter's boyfriend five years ago and used assumed identities, including that of an ordained minister, to avoid authorities has been convicted of first-degree murder and sentenced to life in prison.

Harvey H. Blake, 55, was convicted of killing auto repairman Louis Flores on Aug. 25, 1979. A Guilford County Superior Court jury deliberated one hour before returning its verdict late Thursday morning.

Blake, a brick mason, will be eligible for parole in 20 years. Two witnesses testified earlier this week they watched Blake put a pistol to Flores' head and pull the trigger. A third witness testified Blake fired a warning shot before telling Flores "the next shot will be for real."

Lorillard To Move Plant

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Lorillard, the fourth largest cigarette company in the United States, has announced it will shut down its Louisville cigarette making and consolidate that operation at its newer Greensboro, N.C., plant.

"Generally, our long-term projections suggest we do not need to continue two manufacturing plants in the area of cigarettes," said A.W. Spears, Lorillard's executive vice president of operations and research.

The phaseout over the next 12 to 18 months will take about 900 workers from the Louisville workforce and leave the city with a sole cigarette plant, Philip Morris Inc. Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. closed a plant in 1982, ending jobs for about 3,000 hourly workers.

Several hundred workers affected by the consolidation may be eligible to transfer to the North Carolina plant, which was chosen because it was newer and more efficient, Spears said.

The Greensboro plant was built in 1956 and renovated two years ago, while the Louisville factory dates to the early part of this century, Spears said.

Duke Receives $650,000 Grant

DURHAM (AP) — Duke University Medical Center has received a $650,000 grant to support its clinical epidemiology program, university officials announced Friday.

The grant from The Andrews W. Mellon Foundation "will allow us to expand the program..." Dr. William G. Anlyan, chancellor for health affairs, said in a news release.

Dr. Seymour Grufferman, an associate professor of pediatrics at Duke, said clinical epidemiology "helps improve health care by collecting and analyzing information about the diagnosis and treatment of diseases in various groups of people."

Coastal Grants Proposed

RALEIGH (AP) — Some 13 North Carolina local coastal governments will get grants totaling $222,819 to establish 37 public access sites, according to a state official.

The sites will be located along the ocean and, for the first time, along sounds and tidal waters, said James A. Summers, secretary of the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development.

"The Public Beach Access Program is essential to ensuring that all North Carolinians are able to get to their beach," Summers said in a news release Monday.

The grants will be used by municipal and county governments to construct one regional beach accessway, 29 neighborhood accessways and seven local accessways.

Plant May Move To N.C.

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Workers at Colt Industries have been told their company is considering a move to New Bern, N.C., as one of four options for its M-16 assembly line.

Such a move would put more than 450 people at the Hartford plant out of work.

Phillip Wheeler, an official with United Auto Workers Union Local 376, said the options were listed in a letter Colt sent the union in September. He also speculated, based on discussions with company officials, that Colt might move operations now located in West Hartford to the Sunbelt town on North Carolina's eastern coast.

Wheeler said 500 to 600 union members work at the West Hartford plant.

City and state officials said they had been aware that Colt might leave Connecticut. But they expressed hope that, by offering the company an attractive financial package — including a 24-acre redevelopment parcel — they can persuade Colt to stay in Hartford.

Jazz Festival Set At Duke

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Duke University's director of jazz studies has decided that if his students can't attend a European jazz festival, he'll bring the festival to the campus for them.

Paul Jeffrey said the first "Umbria at Duke Jazz Festival" is scheduled for Nov. 2-4 and is the result of his work the past two summers at the Umbria Jazz Festival in Perugia, Italy.

This summer, Jeffrey spent two weeks with the festival as director of jazz clinics. Because of his involvement, Duke was listed as a collaborator for the first time. He returned home with a commitment from festival organizer Alberto Alberti and directors general Carlo Pagnotta and Virgilio Ambrogini to bring the festival overseas for its American premiere at Duke.

In conjunction with the festival, two special evenings of jazz will be held in Chapel Hill, featuring Italian jazz artists and top local musicians. The festival also includes two jazz clinics on Nov. 2 and a concert by Art Blakey Saturday evening.

Reynolds Announces New Venture

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — R.J. Reynolds Tobacco International announced Thursday the formation of a joint venture for cigarette sales promotion and merchandising with Mitsubishi Corp. of Japan.

R.J. Reynolds M.C. Tobacco Co. Ltd. has been formed to handle all sales promotion and merchandising for RJR cigarettes sold in Japan, officials said.

Mitsubishi has been the company's cigarette import agent in Japan since 1970. RJR is the fastest growing foreign cigarette company in Japan, marketing Camel, Salem, Winston and More.

The new company will be 70 percent owned by RJR Tobacco International (Asia-Pacific) Inc. and 30 percent by Mitsubishi.

Stunt Helicopter Pilot Says It's Safer Than Driving

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the most popular stars on television is a sleek hunk of power and muscle — the helicopter. Like many of Hollywood's high-priced celebrities, the chopper needs to be handled carefully, says the stunt pilot for CBS' "Airwolf" and "Magnum, P.I."

David Jones, a former Marine fighter pilot, has been flying helicopters for 23 years, the last 17 in the entertainment business. He says his own maturity and improved camera equipment and techniques have lessened the risks of flying for filming.

"We all learn as we get older, or we don't get older," he said.

The issue of safety above the set was raised in the filming of "The Twilight Zone" movie, when actor Vic Morrow and two children were killed by a helicopter crashing on them after a powerful special-effects explosion.

Involuntary manslaughter charges were filed against director John Landis and two other filmmakers. A hearing on a motion to dismiss the charges is scheduled for next week.

Jones would not comment about that case, but he knows how filmmakers can disregard safety in search of the more perfect shot.

"A director might say something ridiculous, like hover over a spot while bombs are exploding underneath," said the pilot, whose film credits include "Tora, Tora, Tora," "Apocalypse Now" and "The Planet of the Apes." "He doesn't realize that the explosion could blow you out of the air."

Jones says there's no need for macho risk-taking when there's optical hocus-pocus.

"By using a long (telephoto) lens, the camera makes it look like the helicopter is part of the explosion, when it's really not that close," said Jones. "At the exact second, the helicopter sneaks off. It's all really an illusion."

When he was breaking in to the business, Jones took some silly risks. "But after seeing enough film, I realized that you couldn't tell the difference between one inch and one foot, so why go over the bomb blast? Just let the camera do the work."

TV's now-standard shots of speeding helicopters landing in moving trucks also employ video trickery. First, the director takes a wide shot of the vehicles moving at breakneck speeds, then switches to a close-up of the helicopter. Meanwhile, it's imperceptible to the viewer, but both vehicles have slowed to the same snail's pace, making the moving truck an easy target.

Remember the commercial of the car sitting on top of a jagged mountain? How did it get there? Simple, if you have Jones' special helicopter, which he describes as "a crane that flies."

There are helicopters that get into the picture and helicopters that take the picture. Jones, who gets paid $500 to $5,000 for a day's work, flies both types. But he leaves hanging on the skids to his cameraman, Stan McClain.

"He's Mr. Steady Hands," said Jones. "I don't let him drink coffee." One problem in shooting scenes from a helicopter can be the wind kicked up by the rotor blades. Jones learned that lesson while zeroing in on Barbara Streisand for an overhead shot in "Hello Dolly."

"We blew her dress right up over her head," he said.

On "Airwolf," CBS' male-oriented Saturday night series about a high-tech helicopter, and on Tom Selleck's "Magnum, P.I." stuntmen, not actors, are the ones jumping from choppers into cars.

"Studios are cautious about that," said Jones. "If something happened to Tom Selleck, the series would be in trouble."

Jones, who says he's never been injured on the job, considers stunts safer in the sky than on the road.

"There's more room in the air, where you have three dimensions — left-right, forward and back, and up and down," he said. "On the ground, cars, no more than three feet apart, are passing each other at 60 miles per hour.

"Now that's what I call dangerous."

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — PORTER, FLAGGING, DOESN'T FEEL GOOD; HE HAS THE GRIPPE.
Today's Cryptoquip clue: B equals G
The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Poll Reflects Social Effect On Life

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Despite changes in society, a sociologist says a poll by the University of North Carolina School of Journalism shows blacks are still at a disadvantage.
Race, age, income and education influence the likelihood you will believe life will turn out the way you want, the poll concluded.
The Carolina Poll found that 49 percent of respondents said they have at times not been very sure their lives would work out the way they wanted, while 48 percent said they have been pretty sure things would work out. The remaining 3 percent were undecided.
Sociologist Robert Wilson said 49 percent of whites expressed a positive outlook compared with 41 percent of blacks.
"Despite all the wonderful changes in our society in the last 20 years, it's still a disadvantage to be black," Wilson concluded. "If one's life choices are constricted, one would be less likely to be content."
(While 54 percent of respondents more than 65 years old said they have been pretty sure of getting what they want, only 34 percent of the 18- to 24-year-olds agreed.

"Commonly, people's expectations may decrease with age," Wilson said. "If you're 21 and not company president yet, you may be frustrated. When you're 60, you may say, 'Hell with it, I didn't want to be company president anyway.' It could be that aging is associated with coming to terms with one's life circumstances."
Of respondents in households earning more than $20,000 a year, 59 percent said they have been pretty sure life would work out the way they wanted compared with 28 percent among those living in households with incomes of less than $20,000.
Among high school graduates, 47 percent said they were pretty sure about achieving their expectations compared with 39 percent of high school dropouts. However, 43 percent of respondents who never went to high school were confident their lives would work out as expected.
"Maybe these people at the very bottom are comparing themselves only to one another," Wilson said.

Wilmington Poll Shows Close Races

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Campaign spokesmen in the U.S. Senate race say getting out the vote may be the key to victory as a poll by the Wilmington Star-News and television station WWAY says the race is too close to call.
The poll of 470 people, taken across the state Oct. 23 and 25, shows Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt was favored by 48.8 percent and Republican incumbent Jesse Helms by 46.1 percent. It showed 5.1 percent undecided and, with a margin of error of 4.5 percentage points, no clear leader emerged.

A Charlotte Observer poll published Tuesday showed Hunt trailing Helms 47 percent to 43 percent. That poll, taken Oct. 24 through 27, had a margin of error of 3 percentage points, giving Helms a slight but tenuous lead.
"A horse race is what we're seeing here," Helms spokesman Mike Harrell said in Raleigh Wednesday. "In the last couple of weeks, it has turned into a very close race. I think both sides recognize that. What it boils down to is who gets the vote out on election day."
Hunt's press secretary, Will Marshall, echoed Harrell's remarks. "This confirms that the race is up for grabs," Marshall said. "It could well be decided by which side can turn out the vote. Governor Hunt feels confident that the strong grassroots organization that has supported him throughout the years will turn out to vote. Senator Helms may have the money, but he doesn't have the people."
Helms said he had no reaction, because he puts no stock in polls.
In the Star-News-WWAY poll, the percentages for each candidate include undecided voters who said they were leaning toward one candidate or the other. Of 40 people who said they had not decided between the two, 10 said they leaned toward Hunt, six toward Helms and 24 said they leaned toward neither.

The poll was conducted by telephone by students at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington under the direction of sociology professor Richard Dixon and political science professor Roger C. Lowery. Those polled included 374 whites and 94 non-whites; 238 women and 223 men; 134 Republicans, 313 Democrats and 23 people affiliated with other parties or unaffiliated.
Hunt drew the support of 83.7 percent of the nonwhites while 10.4 percent said they would vote for Helms and 5.9 percent were undecided. Helms drew 55.4 percent of whites polled while 39.9 percent supported Hunt and 4.7 percent were undecided.
Among women, Hunt was favored by 49.7 percent. Helms by 44.6 percent and 5.6 percent were undecided. Of the men polled, 46.6 percent went for Hunt, 48.6 percent for Helms and 4.8 percent were undecided.
Of those 56 or older, 53.2 percent were for Hunt, 39.1 percent favored Helms and 7.7 percent were undecided. In the 36 to 55 age group, 32.7 percent supported Helms, 43.5 percent supported Hunt and 3.7 percent were undecided. Among the 18 to 35 age group, 49.6 percent favored the governor, 47.2 percent favored the senator and 3.1 percent were undecided.

Facelift

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Plaza Garibaldi, one of this city's traditional night spots, is getting a facelift.
The government has poured over $800,000 into renovating the plaza, the traditional center stage for Mexico's mariachi bands, and city officials hope the improvements will attract foreign tourists and bring back Mexicans who have stopped frequenting the square.
Authorities in charge of the renovations say too many people had been driven away from the plaza in recent years because of the increasing presence of neighborhood gangs and prostitutes.
To give Garibaldi a new image, benches painted, floodlights installed. The San Camilito food market has been undergoing a complete overhaul.

Lapel Buttons Are Old-Timers

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — There's little new in politics, as Joe H. Baker's 300 campaign buttons from presidential campaigns as long ago as 1896 show.

Pious candidates aren't new. The socialist Bishop Tomlinson ran for office with a "mighty man under God" button in 1932.

Crossing party lines isn't new. Baker has buttons from Democrats for Nixon-Lodge in 1960 and "Dem-Ike-Crats" for Eisenhower in 1952.

And Harold Stassen isn't new. Stassen was a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination this year, but campaign buttons on his behalf were issued in 1948.

Like politics itself, the buttons can be witty or seamy, verbose or pointed, colorful or bland.

Political Mudslinging Isn't New, But It Is Cleaner

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Political mudslinging is still very much a part of the campaign game, it's just that the mud now is not as dirty as it used to be, according to an expert on curses.

Compared to what politicians used to call each other in earlier campaigns, this time is completely bland. It's very, very refined," said Dr. Reinhold Aman, publisher of "Maledicta, the International Journal of Verbal Aggression."

Aman noted that Ben Franklin was called "a crafty and lecherous old hypocrite" by an English journalist, and Ella Grasso, the late governor of Connecticut, was dubbed "a fat sort of a sweaty thing," by Lillian Carter.

But the verbal battle is less caustic now, says Aman.

"Americans have become extremely sensitive to name-calling and that includes ethnic slurs... Name-calling in America is pretty much taboo," he said.

Voters Face Morality Ban On Cable TV

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - A cable television decency measure on the Nov. 6 ballot has put Utah's powerful forces of Mormon morality and distaste for government interference on a collision course.

Few issues in recent years have caused such an internal conflict. Initiative A would make cable broadcasting of "obscene or indecent material" a crime.

The measure is considered too close to call in a state where about 70 percent of the 1.5 million residents are Mormon, and more than 100,000 households subscribe to cable television.

Similarly, voters in Vista, Calif., a community north of San Diego, will consider a measure on Election Day aimed at making it illegal to transmit indecent cable TV. The ballot measure is aimed primarily at The Playboy Channel. Accompanying the measure is an advisory vote on whether the city should earmark up to $300,000 in expected legal costs if the anti-porn measure passes.

"Utahns have long held freedom of choice as one of the very most fundamental liberties that should be desperately held onto," said Jim Bunnell, president of the Utah Cable Television Operators Association.

"It truly boils down to one basic question - who is the expert in deciding what is appropriate for me and my family to watch on television? Is it the state government, is it a citizens' group, or is it me?" Bunnell said.

Opponents have waged an aggressive television and radio advertising campaign, seeking to combat what Bunnell calls "a lot of word-of-mouth advertising" by the initiative's backers. Bunnell declined to estimate the cost.

Utah Initiative A would impose criminal sanctions on cable television operators or broadcasters who "knowingly distribute within this state any obscene or indecent material." Two convictions could bring suspension of a business license for a year.

Specifically, the proposed law would ban any depiction, representation or verbal description of "a human sexual or excretory organ or function," actual or simulated sexual intercourse, naked buttocks or female breasts, masturbation or sadomasochistic acts.

The Mormon Church-owned Deseret News, the city's 62,000-circulation afternoon daily, has backed the initiative. An editorial urged readers to look at the issue as one of "the rights of citizens to a decent environment," and argued, "It seems obvious that growing problems of immorality, rape and sexual abuse of children are tied to the insidious, but steady, rise in smut that has come to color so much of today's society."

Meanwhile, The Salt Lake Tribune, the city's 114,000-circulation morning paper, has editorialized against the measure, contending Initiative A "espouses increased policeman presence in every family's private dwelling, substituting government decree for judgments always previously granted the individual."

Noting that the Tribune's parent company, Kearns-Tribune Corp., is a co-founder of the corporation which owns most Utah cable systems, the editorial said voluntary restraints by the industry - as a "plain good business practice" - have limited objectionable cable material.

"Another factor in the debate is a statement on Oct. 7 by Elder David B. Haight of the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. At the church's semiannual general conference, he asked Mormons to support "reasonable and constitutional laws and regulations" to keep cable television free of obscenity.

Haight did not mention the initiative and the church maintains it is publicly neutral. But backers hope the statement will swing the Mormon vote behind Initiative A.

Eleanor L. McVea, president of the Utah Association of Women which led the petition drive that gathered more than 60,000 signatures to qualify Initiative A for the ballot, said church leaders have left "no doubt where the church stands. It's as strong as I think we have the right to say."

Officials Defend Child's Removal

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) - A black couple from whom an 11-year-old white girl was taken apparently never applied to become foster parents, according to state officials who say race had nothing to do with the child's removal.

Christina Mashburn was seized by police Tuesday as she got off a school bus near the home where she has lived with Louis and Barbara James since her mother was sent to jail on drug charges almost three years ago.

The mother, Pamela Mashburn is now living at the James' home after spending six months in jail and still faces two more years of probation.

"To be honest with you, I think race is definitely a factor here," said state Rep. Alphonse Jackson Jr., who is investigating the incident. "I really can't prove it. But I really believe it."

Jackson is black and heads the state House Health and Welfare Committee, which oversees the state agency responsible for removing the girl.

Department of Human Health and Resources officials defended the move, saying they had monitored the situation before removing the child.

"Race had absolutely nothing to do with it," said Melvin Meyers, assistant secretary in the office of human development. "Any parent can leave a child with anyone they want. The only time we get involved is when asked by the courts."

Human Health spokeswoman Sue Ellen Lewis said to the best of her agency's knowledge the Jameses had never applied to become foster parents.

"We have very strict standards for cleanliness, wholesomeness, and neither of the parents can have a criminal record," Ms. Lewis said. "For whatever reason, as best as we can determine, the James' never applied to become foster parents."

She added her department has placed children with foster parents of other races. Bossier City Judge Bill Ross Robinson signed the court order telling police to pick up the girl Tuesday. He refused to comment on the case.

SENATOR JESSE HELMS STANDS FOR:

- A STRONG NATIONAL DEFENSE ● A BALANCED FEDERAL BUDGET ● A SOUND SOCIAL SECURITY SYSTEM
- A FOREIGN POLICY FAVORABLE TO AMERICAN INTERESTS ● HALTING THE SPREAD OF COMMUNISM IN THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE ● A RETURN TO FUNDAMENTAL AMERICAN VALUES ● RETURN OF VOLUNTARY PRAYER TO THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS ● A REDUCTION IN FEDERAL SPENDING ● ELIMINATION OF FRAUD, WASTE AND ABUSE IN THE FOOD STAMP PROGRAM ● MORE CONTROL GIVEN STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENTS ● SOUND AGRICULTURAL POLICIES AND PRACTICES THAT ASSURE FARMERS A FAIR PROFIT
- AN END TO THE FORCED BUSING OF SCHOOL CHILDREN

What Jesse Helms Has Done for North Carolina's Farmers:

- Successfully guided the tobacco and peanut programs through the Senate every year.
- Stopped imports from foreign countries of quality shredded tobacco sold as "scrap tobacco."
- Instrumental in getting USDA to buy large quantities of yams for school lunch program. North Carolina is the country's largest yam producer.
- Supported legislation that virtually eliminates inheritance tax.
- Opposes summary withdrawal of meat inspection which protects meat and poultry processors from a broad and undefined bureaucracy.
- Worked with USDA to develop boll weevil eradication program in N.C.—a boon to N.C. cotton growers.
