Hospital Trustees Accept Brown's Apology

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees has accepted the apology of Fred Brown Jr., PCMH executive vice president, according to Reid Hooper, trustee chairman. Hooper said this morning that the matter of Brown's having written a letter of endorsement for Jesse Helms's re-election to the U.S. Senate with his signature over his PCMH executive vice president's title is closed.

A letter written by Brown was circulated at the meeting. It read: "I sincerely regret the adverse publicity, conflict, concern, and embarrassment that my letter caused members of the board of trustees and the administrative staff. It was my understanding that my letter was to go only to hospital administrators; that my title, any mention of Pitt County

Memorial Hospital, the word 'arrogantly,' and any reference to elected officials other than their proper titles would be removed from the letter. Because editing was done telephonically and because of limited time, this apparently did not take place.

"I am also sorry that because of military duty, I was not able to be here to personally explain. I hope that this incident will not dim the contributions I have made over the last two years to Pitt County Memorial Hospital and the patients it serves."

Approval was given for submission of certificates of need for more CAT scanning equipment and equipment for a heart catheterization lab.

A laundry contract with Servotex was approved. The new 3-year contract reflects a reduction in cost from 25.37 cents per pound to 20.5 cents per pound.

Dr. William Laupus said Dr. Ulrich Alsentzer will be here Jan. 1 to assume his duties as the medical director of the regional rehabilitation center of the hospital. He said the rehab center will be offering 17 new services by early next year.

Dr. Jack Wilkerson presented policies formulated by the medical staff on determination of brain death, when do-not resuscitate orders can be issued by physicians, and decision making for critically ill newborns.

Staff appointments recommended by the medical staff were approved. They are Dr. Carl J. Bentzel, active staff privileges; Dr. David J. Dabbs, active; Dr. Stefano P. Marquard, active; Dr. Thomas G. Irons, active; Dr. Roberta S. Gray, active; Dr. Frank C. Sheldon, consulting; Dr. David L. Shumway, consulting; Dr. Edwin B. Cooper, consulting; Dr. Ronald B. May, consulting.

Board Recommends Adding Rownetree

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission Tuesday voted to recommend the annexation of Rownetree Woods Subdivision by the city as well as a proposal to regulate the location of satellite dish antennae in areas under city jurisdiction.

In action on Rownetree Woods, commission members agreed to recommend to the city council requests by Collice Moore that Rownetree Woods, a 23-acre subdivision at the southwest corner of the intersection of N.C. 43 and Secondary Road 1204, be brought into the extra-territorial zoning jurisdiction of the city and be annexed.

Freeze Warning Covers The East

A high pressure unit over the Great Lakes area will continue to hold an icy grip on North Carolina for the next couple days, according to the National Weather Service.

Lows tonight should be some of the coldest this season with a freeze warning in effect as far east as the coast. Temperatures are expected to drop into the 20s, except along the Outer Banks where temperatures will be in the mid-30s. Fair weather will continue Thanksgiving Day, but if you want to take an afternoon stroll with your family, plan to wear a heavy sweater or coat as temperatures are not expected to move beyond the 40s.

Sam Uzzel of the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office reported this morning that the cold, dry weather is a bonus for area soybean farmers who are now in the process of harvesting this year's crop. He added that recent rains "posed no real problems for soybean farmers. It just kept them out of the field for a few days." Pitt County received .61 inches of rain Monday and Tuesday, according to a spokesman at the Greenville Utilities water plant.

At 7 a.m. today, Greenville Utilities recorded the temperature at 25 degrees Fahrenheit. The river level was recorded at 1.4 feet above sea level.

Inflation Slowing As Prices Edge Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices, driven by more expensive gasoline and food, rose a moderate 0.4 percent in October, the government said today. The 1.8 percent gasoline price hike was the steepest since May 1983.

With just two months left in 1984, however, inflation this year is running at 4.2 percent, slightly better than analysts' predictions of a 5 percent rise for the year.

As for last month, analysts laid fully half the blame for higher prices on the increases for gasoline and food. Food prices, which had fallen in September, rose 0.4 percent.

But those analysts said the news for consumers was not as bad as it might appear from the new figures. Virtually all the higher gasoline prices were recorded in the West, primarily in California, with the department's seasonal adjustment process accounting for much of the rest of the gain.

Gasoline prices had risen 1.1 percent in the previous month after declining throughout the summer.

Analysts still maintain that the surge in gasoline prices will be short-lived, as oil-rich nations struggle to cope with shrinking worldwide demand. For instance, those experts point out, the most recent wholesale price cuts forced on petroleum exporters have yet to work their way to the pump.

Nor should food prices continue to climb, said the analysts, who likewise said the seasonal adjustment mechanism produced higher prices than those consumers actually paid.

Because of that, said department analyst Patrick Jackman, "I don't

Soviet Overtures May Set Stage For Talks Next Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Expressions of Soviet interest in resuming arms control talks could lead to a meeting early next year between Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, according to informed sources here.

Based on a Soviet statement and a message late last week, the administration has notified Moscow it was prepared to arrange for a Shultz-Gromyko meeting if an agenda could be worked out, the sources said Tuesday.

Meanwhile, Australian Foreign Minister Bill Hayden said today that President Reagan and Gromyko had accepted a proposal for separate arms control and nuclear disarmament talks between Australian officials and high-level U.S. and Soviet officials also early next year.

The Australian government has been working on the proposal since March 1983, Hayden said. The names of the U.S. and Soviet officials who will attend the talks with Hayden and Prime Minister Bob Hawke in Australia have not been released.

The meeting in Moscow is seen as an icebreaker, designed to end the year-long suspension of negotiations to cut back U.S. and Soviet intermediate and long-range nuclear weapons. Moscow is a potential site, although a senior Soviet diplomat said last week that a neutral setting would be acceptable to his government.

The sources, speaking only on condition they not be identified, said the Soviets have been showing a growing interest in holding talks with the United States.

Soviet President Konstantin U. Chernenko last Friday urged a renewal of the spirit of detente from the 1970s and said Moscow was ready for arms control talks if Washington was. He issued no demands and listed no conditions.

Sharing

NEW YORK (AP) — The holiday season had filled Richard Brown with the spirit of giving. But finding someone in city government filled with the spirit of accepting was another story.

Brown, who owns a parking garage, decided after having a successful year in business that he would "give something back to this city" in the form of 70 frozen turkeys for the needy, according to today's New York Times.

But after several days of phone calls and being put on hold ... and on hold ... and on hold ... Brown became a little disgusted.

Officials in Manhattan finally told Brown they weren't interested; undaunted, he tried Brooklyn officials and received almost the same results. Brown pressed on in Brooklyn and after 10 days, finally received a list of four community groups where he could deliver the birds.

Brown did so quickly, "before someone changed his mind."

The experience did not sour the garage owner on giving, and he's gearing up for a Christmas effort involving 1,000 pounds of ham. "We will start early," he promised. "We will share!"

WORLD'S BIGGEST — The world's biggest uncut diamond during its first presentation to the public by Zale company in Frankfurt earlier this week. The stone, owners say it is invaluable, puts 890 carats on the scales and was found in Africa. Thorough studies for about 18 months will be made, before it will be cut with special machinery, hoped to become also the world's biggest cut diamond, superceding the 530.20 carats of the "Cullinan I," presently the world's biggest and part of the British crown jewels. KIBALE FOREST, Uganda (AP) — The female hornbill seals herself with mud into a tree cavity, lays her eggs, and remains inside until the young are ready to fly — about 90 days in all. Hornbills play a vital role in preserving one of the world's last remaining rain forests, the Kibale Forest here, according to Jan Kalina, an ecological researcher quoted in Animal Kingdom, official magazine of the New York Zoological Society.

America's Bounty Extends To Millions Of Households

DEAR READERS: By popular demand, here is my traditional Thanksgiving column: Tomorrow is Thanksgiving Day, so take a few minutes to think about what you have to be thankful for. How's your health? Not so good? Well, thank God you've lived this long. A lot of people haven't. You're hurting? Thousands—maybe millions—are hurting more. (Have you ever visited a veterans' hospital? Or a rehabilitation clinic for crippled children?)

If you awakened this morning and were able to hear the birds sing, use your vocal cords to utter human sounds, walk to the breakfast table on two good legs and read the newspaper with two good eyes, praise the Lord! A lot of people couldn't. How's your pocketbook? Thin? Well, most of the world is a lot poorer. No pensions. No welfare. No food stamps. No Social Security. In fact, one-third of the people in the world will go to bed hungry tonight. Are you lonely? The way to have a friend is to be one. If nobody calls you, call someone. Go out of your way to do something nice for somebody. It's a sure cure for the blues. Are you concerned about your country's future? Hooray! Our system has been saved by such concern. Concern for fair play under the law. Your country may not be a rose garden, but it also is not a patch of weeds. Freedom rings! Look and

Homemaker's Haven

The Consumer Product Safety Commission is again issuing a special safety alert concerning chimneys used with woodburning stoves and fireplaces. This alert is particularly aimed at consumers who have metal factory-built chimneys, although the commission is aware of house fires associated with both masonry and metal factory-built chimneys.

Thousands of house fires each year are associated with metal factory-built chimneys connected to wood and coal burning stoves. The CPSC urgently warns consumers to be aware of the potential fire hazard associated with these chimneys.

Now that the nation has entered the 1984-85 heating season, the commission urges you, if you have a stove or fireplace connected to a metal chimney, to check for any damage that may have occurred in the past heating season. Look for signs of structural failure such as deformation, cracks or holes. If it is difficult to examine the chimney, a local chimney repairman, chimney sweep or dealer can help. Have any damage repaired now.

Most fires in metal factory-built chimneys occur because of improper installation, use or maintenance. The commission staff has identified the following common causes:

— Improper chimney installation causing ignition of nearby wood framing.

— Structural damage to the chimney caused by burning creosote (a black tarlike substance which builds up inside the chimney).

— Buckling and collapsing of the inner line of the chimney. (This can result from too hot a fire, especially in high-efficiency stoves and in fireplace inserts or from a creosote fire.)

Many serious fires also occur in masonry chimneys usually from improper installation or when the tile inner liner and the surrounding brick or block structure crack and separate. Such cracks may be caused by the ignition of creosote. Smoke and heat can then escape and ignite material near the chimney. Even when the heating appliance is properly installed, people with both metal and masonry chimney systems should frequently check the chimney for creosote deposits, soot build-up or physical damage. This involves only a simple visual examination but it should be done as often as twice a month during heavy use. If you see heavy creosote built-up, suspect a problem or have had a chimney fire, a qualified chimney repairman or chimney sweep should perform a complete safety inspection. They can arrange for any necessary repairs or creosote removal, which must be done before the heating appliance is used again.

The commission advises owners of these chimneys to:

— Be sure that the chimney and stove pipe were installed correctly in accordance with the manufacturers' recommendations and local building codes. If there is any doubt, a building inspector or fireman can determine whether the system is properly installed.

— Have the chimney checked routinely by a chimney sweep at least once a year and more frequently if a stove is heavily used (for example, if it's used as a primary heat source for the home).

— Always operate your appliance within the manufacturers' recommended temperature limits. Too low a temperature increases creosote build-up and too high a temperature may lead to a fire. Chimney temperature monitors are available and should be used.

If you have a fire or other safety problem with your chimney please provided this information to the commission by calling the commission's toll-free hotline, 800-638-CPSC.

Approach To Bio-Tech Future Changes

Budget

East Carolina University will have much riding on how the 1985-87 state budget develops.

Included in the University of North Carolina system's request is more than $19 million in capital improvement funds.

The UNC Board of Governors recently approved a budget which for the first time exceeds $1 billion. It includes requested funds for operations of the universities which make up the system, improving programs and capital improvements.

Included in the recommendations for ECU are a $7,981,000 sports medical physical education facility. This facility is expected to be a part of a growing sports medical program, which could provide trainers for high school sports programs in the future.

There is also a $1,248,000 request for a free standing birthing center at the medical school. This is designed to provide more space for already crowded facilities.

Renovation requests included $3,771,000 for Memorial Gym, $1,334,000 for Graham Building, $1,245,000 for the North Tower of the biology facility and $595,000 for the old cafeteria.

There are also two facilities in the budget to be constructed without state appropriations — $1,877,000 for a biotechnology lab and a building to house the nuclear magnetic resonance equipment to cost over $1 million.

The facilities which the UNC Board of Governors has requested for ECU are very much needed. The requests must now go through the Advisory Budget Commission and on to the Legislature. It will be mid-1985 before the final budget is approved.

B RALEIGH — Legislators mapping the development of North Carolina's biotechnology effort appear ready to make the basic shift in course — one that should make farmers, businessmen and pragmatic thinkers all smile.

In meetings held since the June 1984 short session, the Study Committee of Biotechnology has concluded that its program must take a more practical approach to this new science. The committee now wants a two-pronged effort of pure academic research and research aimed at putting new bio-tech findings at work on North Carolina problems.

Biotechnology is the science of gene-splicing. It involves the transfer of a gene which does good work from one life form to another life form. In agriculture, for example, scientists hope to splice the genes of a plant which gets its nitrogen from the air onto the genetic code of a plant which must sip its nitrogen from the ground. That might save farmers a fortune in fertilizer costs.

As in all sciences, there are two levels of research which must be conducted. The first is pure research — simply finding out how to splice the genes together. The second is applied research — taking the altered plant and making it work in the real conditions of North Carolina, or wherever else someone would want to grow the plant.

In its early deliberations, the study committee saw North Carolina's biotechnology future best served by an effort in pure research alone. The committee theorized that if money and facilities were made available to the university system, then world class scientists could be recruited to do their work here. North Carolina would come to be known as a center of biotechnology research and corporate endeavors would begin migrating here.

Late in the spring, however, the committee asked a group of college professors and businessmen to analyze that line of thinking. If such an effort was undertaken, the group was asked, would the state's investment pay off in new and expanded industry and would that economic pay-off spread itself across the state?

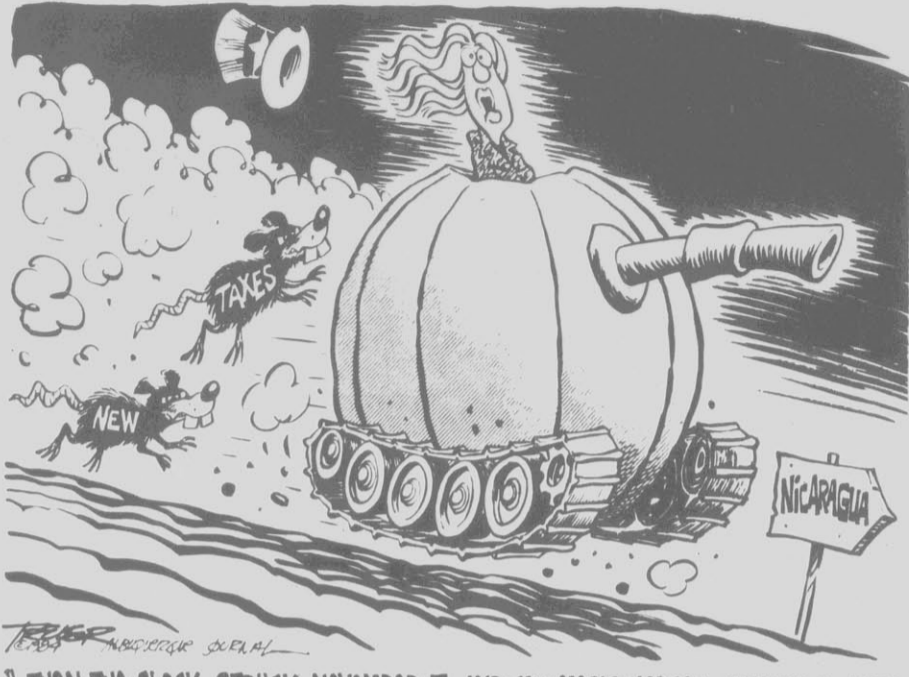

The study group said that an effort in pure research was certainly laudable, the kind of thing America needs to stay ahead of the world. But, if North Carolina wanted to benefit, it would need to put some of its efforts into applied research.

A draft report now being prepared by the legislative staff calls for the creation of a two-pronged effort. Over the next five years, the committee has tentatively decided, the state should spend $41.2 million trying to make North Carolina a mecca for pure research. The money would be spent on salaries and facilities.

But the report also calls for a $25 million effort over the same period in which the N.C. Biotechnology Center (BCBC) would select scientists to take on specific research projects aimed at putting bio-tech to work in North Carolina.

Steve Rose, committee counsel, said the applied research grants might be used, for example, to adapt recent crop developments to North Carolina soil types. Or, he noted that research is currently being conducted to use biotechnological advances in the fight against Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever, a significant health problem in the state.

Some of the money earmarked for NCBC would also be spent on telling the nation and the world that North Carolina is making this effort.

Unlikely

James H. Starkey, an officer of the Universal Leaf Co., tested the waters of public opinion on American taxpayers sharing the burden of the tobacco price support program.

Speaking in Richmond, Va., he reminded that no other grower pays for his support program.

Starkey pointed to the industry's large and varied problems in storage of surplus leaf, trying to sell it, seeking price supports at competitive levels, the whole gamut ... and said the financial burden is threatening to result in collapse.

He warned that growers are in an extremely vulnerable position unless the industry has help on its price problem.

He's right, of course; but we're far from confident tobacco-producing states can look outside their borders for help. Tobacco is under siege of health warnings, adoption of "non-smoking" areas and other such negative publicity and pressures.

It is very hard to visualize lawmakers from the many states that have no tobacco crop rallying to our need.

Elections Are A Learning Process

WASHINGTON — Feminist groups have taken a verbal beating for not "delivering" women voters to the Mondale-Ferraro ticket. Even some top Democrats have charged that women's groups are out of touch with their constituency. The Republicans are sanguine in having slain the Gender Gap.

Disappointment at virtually every electoral level has, in fact, prompted reassessment in the feminist ranks. But the outcome should be constructive. The 1984 elections served up some important lessons.

The feminist organizations NOW, the National Women's Political Caucus and other groups learned this year that gender doesn't dictate voting behavior. That was clearly the case at the presidential level. Meanwhile, women candidates lost to men in 10 Senate races and 43 of 65 House contests; of the 22 women representatives elected, 20 were incumbents.

Women's groups also discovered that perceived electoral power doesn't necessarily translate into party insider's influence. Feminist leaders complained about their lack of access to Mondale's inner circle. And in many of the losing congressional races, women candidates were running against well-entrenched male incumbents. Had more of them been chosen by party regulars to compete in marginal contests, the post-mortems might have had a more upbeat spin.

But despite Ronald Reagan's electoral success among women, he received it only after moderating his rhetoric on such issues as war and peace, day care and sex discrimination. The Gender Gap forced him to soften his image. Were it not for feminists groups' vigilance, American women might not have known how Reagan was working against their interests.

According to a Women's Political Caucus official, some feminist leaders believe that electoral influence lies at the state and local, rather than national, level. Democratic — not Republican — also seems the way to go.

But 1984 proved that women's groups, like most constituency organizations, perform better explaining the issues than playing kingmaker. Political influence needn't be measured in electoral wins alone.

Walter Mondale could have done a lot better against Ronald Reagan had he not tried to appeal to everyone. That is the judgment of Roy Spence, the Texas ad man who produced some of the Democrat's lackluster commercials. Spence believes that Mondale's "go for it all" strategy should have been shelved for a narrower appeal to traditional Democratic constituencies. "Our strategy was not to lose by 10 to 12 points; the idea was to win," Spence told Advertising Age.

Law school enrollments dropped last year for the first time since 1968. Applications for this year's entering would kill them, not raise them." "Then how are you going to cut the deficit?"

"It says in the book we're going to add revenue enhancers."

"Isn't that the same as a tax?"

"Wait a minute," he said, leafing through the pages. "No, it's just the opposite. We are going to reform the code so that people will pay less instead of more taxes."

"How do you plan to do it?"

"Here it is on page 12. 'One way to keep the tax base from rising is to stop people from deducting their state and city income taxes from their federal tax.' By doing this the government should be able to make $30 billion on the deal."

"If people can't deduct state and city income taxes from their federal returns, they'll still be paying more than they did before."

"Yes, but they'll get mad at the state and city officials and not at us. They can't fault the president just because he wants to close a notorious tax loophole."

"I should hope not."

"It says here that one of the ways to win the hearts and minds of the people is to withhold revenue on unemployment insurance."

"You're going to tax unemployment insurance?"

"No, we're going to enhance it, so that people entitled to it will give a portion of it back to the government."

"It sounds like a tax to me."

"It will only affect those out of work. If you have a job it won't cost you anything."

"Do they have any other 'revenue enhancers' in the book?"

"Here's one we'll take a shot at. We are going to simplify everyone's taxes so even if they start spiraling up in the first five years, they will go down in the next six, providing inflation stays at 4 percent and the Gross National Product goes up to 7."

"Do you think you can get away with that?"

"We can't, but the president can. That's why the people elected him."

"What else is in the manual?"

"There is a chapter devoted to how to conduct covert lobbying operations behind congressional lines, as well as how to 'neutralize' anyone who accuses the president of raising taxes when he said he wouldn't."

"What exactly do you mean by 'neutralize'? You're not thinking of assassinating anyone who accuses President Reagan of going back on his campaign promises?"

"Are you crazy? We're not the CIA. When we say 'neutralize' we mean to reinforce our tax base so we won't be confronted with a fiscal window of vulnerability."

"So what's the bottom line?"

"The bottom line is that no matter how you cut it, the American people are going to have to pay more money to the government in '85 than they did in '84. In spite of that the people still won't get mad at Ronald Reagan."

"Why not?"

"Because everyone knows Ronald Reagan is a nice guy, and nice guys don't raise people's taxes."

Public Forum

To the editor:

It is with dismay that I read of the proposed reductions in coverage for health insurance for state employees. They are presently the only decent benefit we get here, and to reduce them is to make working here less desirable.

I have worked in state government offices in other states, including in education. When I came here to accept a faculty position at East Carolina University, I did so knowing that the benefits were not as good as they are in many other places, that we don't get sabbaticals like other university faculty do, that retirement was a choice of state policies or the transferrable TIAA-CREF, that we did get good health coverage. Our salaries are mediocre and are certainly not as high as in many other places. In spite of what everyone says, costs of living here are as high or higher than they are in many other parts of the country — including Los Angeles, where the rents and mortgages are higher, but where the utility costs are a fraction of the costs here.

So what? I have noticed that since I moved here, I have been less healthy. I have had a stuffy head and sniffles and sneezes often, something I had not had in quite some time before I moved here. I notice that there are mini-epidemics of stomach "bugs" and sore throats and other illnesses here, something I hadn't had to deal with much in the past. All this means that good health care benefits are critically important here.

To have to pay more for lower benefits when we already get so few other benefits, and salaries in this state are already in the middle range or lower, compared to other states, makes me wonder what North Carolina plans to use to entice quality employees into service here. Why work for a state employer if there are no special good benefits, when there are other states and private employers who do provide much more?

Strength For Today

Some years ago a prominent baseball manager started his career with most fans in his city disliking him. He received a resounding boo every time he stepped out on the diamond. It appeared that for all his skill he would end as a failure and have to be replaced.

One day this manager walked out to say something to the pitcher. As he came back the crowd met him with a loud boo. He raised his hat cheerfully, and as he did so a bird flew out. The bleachers roared with laughter. After that the manager's popularity began to rise and increased with the years.

Grudges of long standing have sometimes been eliminated because the two people who were feuding found something to laugh about together. Laughter has an important therapeutic value. One of the great differences between man and the lower animals is that man has the capacity to laugh.

Nancy Reagan Discloses She Is Anemic

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Nancy Reagan is acknowledging that she suffers from anemia and that President Reagan is estranged from his eldest son, Michael.

"I have always been a little anemic, nearly all my life," the first lady told her press secretary, Sheila Tate, in response to a question from The Associated Press.

"It's nothing new," Mrs. Reagan said Tuesday during a telephone conversation with Mrs. Tate from the presidential ranch atop the Santa Ynez Mountains.

Mrs. Reagan had alluded to her anemic condition in a recent interview with The Washington Times. She also disclosed in that interview the poor relationship between Reagan and Michael, whom the president adopted during his marriage to actress Jane Wyman.

"There is an estrangement and has been for three years," Mrs. Reagan conceded.

"And I really think we should now say this and get it all done with so we can put these questions behind us," she added.

"There is an estrangement. We are sorry about it. We hope that someday it will be solved. We do not believe and have never believed in discussing family problems in public."

Michael is the only one of Reagan's four children who was not listed among the guests expected at his father's ranch on Thursday for Thanksgiving dinner.

Usually absent from family functions, Michael was the only child who was not on hand to help Reagan celebrate his re-election victory Nov. 6. He also was absent from Reagan's second televised debate with Democratic challenger Walter F. Mondale.

Though Mrs. Reagan did not divulge the cause of the estrangement, it apparently began around the same time Michael became embroiled in a controversy over using his father's name in a business letter.

The controversy led Michael to resign from an executive sales position with an airplane manufacturer in May 1981.

The letter was addressed to officials at Tinker Air Force Base in Oklahoma and sought to put the company on an approved list of suppliers.

It said, "I know that with my father's leadership at the White House, this country's armed services are going to be rebuilt and strengthened..."

Shortly afterward, the first lady told an interviewer that Michael had made a mistake by using his father's name in a business letter.

Later, Michael and his wife criticized the first lady in a magazine article, saying she and the president should have taken time out to meet Reagan's new grandchild.

As for her health, Mrs. Reagan said she was fine, except that her doctor wanted her to build up her red blood count.

"The red count was down," she said. "You know it takes awhile to build your red count up. It really takes almost a year ... It's up from what it was."

As part of the regimen, Mrs. Reagan said she was eating "calves' liver, spinach, all those things to build up your blood."

Kennedy Awards Presented

WASHINGTON (AP) — To some, the Salvadoran Mother's Committee is a humanitarian organization that looks after orphans and other victims of El Salvador's political terror. To others, it is little more than a front group for leftist guerrillas.

For a brief moment Tuesday, the controversy was set aside as one committee member, Emelino Panameno de Garcia, stood before an audience of several hundred here and recounted how she had been tortured and raped by eight "death squad" members three years ago.

The occasion was an awards ceremony at which Mrs. de Garcia accepted a $30,000 prize from the Robert F. Kennedy Memorial Foundation on behalf of the Mother's Committee for its work in tending to the needs of the thousands of victims of El Salvador's political turmoil.

The group, founded in 1977, is officially known as the Committee of Mothers and Relatives, Disappeared and Murdered of El Salvador. Mrs. de Garcia has been a member of the committee since 1978.

The hush that fell over the gathering at Georgetown University was punctuated by occasional gasps as Mrs. de Garcia, dressed in a white shawl adorned with a red carnation, spoke in graphic terms of that day in 1981 when, she said, she was raped by eight thugs while two of her children looked on.

Mrs. de Garcia said one brother was killed that same year by Salvador's Treasury Police and that her mother, another brother and other family members have disappeared without a trace. Three of her sons, she said, fled to Mexico because of fear of political repression.

The award is to be given annually to the group that has performed exceptional service in the defense of human rights. The Mother's Committee, which numbers about 500, has given a "voice to the victims of violence" as well as "courage, energy and imagination" to the human rights cause in El Salvador, the panel of judges said.

Initially, five members of the Mother's Committee were to have been present to receive the award, but the State Department refused to give visas to four of Mrs. de Garcia's colleagues because of their "personal advocacy of violence and actual participation in terrorist activities."

In a secret cable that was shown to the Associated Press, the U.S. ambassador to El Salvador, Thomas Pickering, said he found it "unusual" that the Mother's Committee was awarded the prize when there are so many other worthy groups to choose from worldwide.

Rose Styron, chairwoman of the advisory council of Amnesty International, USA, ridiculed the State Department rejection of the four visa applications, saying that if the Salvadoran government believed the allegations, the four women "would all be dead by now."

At the State Department, spokesman John Hughes said the visa rejections were not based on "capricious or un-American" standards.

Asked whether the department's finding that the four had engaged in political violence might jeopardize their safety in El Salvador, Hughes said the decisions were made on the basis of thorough research and were consistent with U.S. law.

New Acid Rain Study Praised

WASHINGTON (AP) — An acid rain study sponsored by power companies is being hailed by environmentalists who say it demonstrates that smokestack emission controls would reduce pollutants that end up in lakes and streams.

The Electric Power Research Institute, which is financed by utilities, reported Tuesday on a massive seven-year study of three lakes in the Adirondack Mountains of upstate New York.

A computer model based on study findings said the most acidified lake of the three would experience a ten-fold reduction in acidity after three to five years if sulfate compounds falling on its watershed were cut in half.

This is not enough improvement to support a flourishing fish population, said Rene Males, the institute vice president who presented the results at a news conference. Males warned that it is still not known just how representative the study lakes are of all the nation's waterways vulnerable to acid rain — or even of all Adirondack lakes.

Males said he did not know whether he was passing ammunition to environmentalists, who have traditionally been the utilities' adversaries.

Largest U.S. Manhunt Nets 3,309 Fugitives

NEW YORK (AP) — Half the 3,309 felony fugitives captured in a $2.5 million manhunt billed as the nation's largest may return to the street, but Attorney General William French Smith declared "Americans are significantly safer" and predicted more arrests the next time.

Smith blamed "lenient judges" and "the weak court system" for the granting of bail to career criminals accused of murder, rape, robbery and other charges after they were apprehended during a two-month investigation by more than 50 law enforcement agencies along the Eastern Seaboard.

But the FIST manhunt — Fugitive Investigative Strike Teams — represents "the largest and most successful fugitive manhunt in law enforcement history," Smith said Tuesday at a news conference. "Today, Americans are significantly safer."

The FIST program was the seventh such joint federal-state-local effort sponsored by the U.S. Marshals Service since 1981. And while the number of fugitives captured is impressive, Smith said,

"that's not to say they won't be even larger next time."

Smith said the FIST effort would continue and that problems in the judicial system "will not interfere with or dampen our efforts."

The apprehended fugitives were the subjects of 5,080 felony warrants, ranging from first-degree murder and rape, to narcotics, weapons and robbery charges, said Marshals Service Director Stanley E. Morris.

Morris blamed "the revolving door of justice" for the granting of bail to many of the fugitives after their capture. But he said the role of law enforcement is to apprehend fugitives, not critique the court system.

Morris said that of 156 people arrested on federal charges, 82 have already been released. He said figures were not available for fugitives arrested on state and local warrants, but he said experience indicated half would quickly be freed.

While half of the federal fugitives were free again, Morris said, "half of them aren't."

Sixty-three of those arrested were wanted for murder, while 103 were sought for rape and 846 for robbery.

The fugitives had a composite criminal history of 12,440 felonies, with a per-fugitive average of 3.76 known prior convictions, according to Morris. He said 53 percent of the fugitives caught had been "considered armed and dangerous."

The investigation cost $2.5 million, about $778 per arrest. Smith said the figure was "much less" than it usually costs to apprehend a fugitive. "Let's call it a volume discount," he said.

To lure criminals that couldn't be flushed out through conventional surveillance techniques, authorities used four undercover sting operations.

The scams included offers of construction jobs for ex-offenders, free promotional gifts brought to fugitives by an agent posing as a delivery service driver, and offers of free limousine rides and concert tickets from a non-existent television station in Hartford, Conn.

"The FIST program reflects this administration's commitment to removing dangerous criminals from the streets," Smith said. "It is a vital part of our expanded cooperative efforts to assist state and local governments in fighting the worst kinds of crimes."

In addition to FIST efforts in New York City, there were satellite offices in the New York cities of Albany, Syracuse, Rochester and Buffalo; Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Scranton, Pa.; Boston; Baltimore; Newark, N.J.; Hartford, Conn.; Providence, R.I.; and New Castle, Del.

Other fugitives were arrested in California, Florida and Tennessee.

Jeane Kirkpatrick Says She's Planning To Leave U.N. Post

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — America's U.N. ambassador, Jeane J. Kirkpatrick, has dampened speculation she will take a new job in the Reagan administration after leaving her post, saying she hopes to "work out something that would allow me to return to private life."

"I both enjoy and miss the pleasures of private life," the former college professor told a news conference at the United Nations on Tuesday. "I am absolutely not coy about it."

There has been speculation that Mrs. Kirkpatrick will succeed the national security adviser, Robert C. McFarlane. The White House has denied McFarlane will be leaving the post.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, a conservative Democrat serving in a Republican administration, said in an interview with The Associated Press earlier this month that she planned to step down "sometime after the first of the year" and return to her job as a teacher of government at Georgetown University in Washington.

In her news conference, Mrs. Kirkpatrick said she was "endlessly bemused, bothered and bewildered in why people persist in making a mystery of something I have been perfectly straightforward about for ... more than a year."

She said she had long intended to leave after the current session of the U.N. General Assembly, which is scheduled to end Dec. 18.

She said she had sought to resign a year ago but was convinced by Reagan and others in the administration that, "in light of the upcoming election, I really ought to stay."

Marlin Fitzwater, a deputy White House press secretary with President Reagan in Santa Barbara, Calif., said the president "has the greatest confidence in her and values her services very much."

As for Mrs. Kirkpatrick leaving the administration, he said, "I have nothing to say on that. It's an issue for her to discuss with the president."

There has been speculation in Washington that Reagan might appoint Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., to the U.N. job. The chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee was defeated in a re-election bid two weeks ago.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick said the disadvantages of the job are "the famous ones: disagreements and tensions between the U.N. permanent representative and the secretary of state. Those are legend. They have existed from the beginning."

"I think that it's absolutely essential for the (chief U.S. delegate) to have a civilized working relationship with the secretary of state,"

Friction within an administration can be avoided, she suggested, by recognizing that, "with regard to the implementation of policy at the United Nations, it is the secretary of state and the president's decisions which must be implemented here."

While Gen. Alexander Haig was secretary of state, Mrs. Kirkpatrick clashed with him over U.S. responses here to the 1982 Falkland Islands war between Britain and Argentina and the 1981 Israeli bombing raid on an Iraqi nuclear reactor. Her relations with George P. Shultz, Haig's successor, have been smoother, although differences are known to have arisen over approaches to conflicts in Central America.

Whoever succeeds her in the "very difficult job," she said, should be prepared to stay at the United Nations for at least three years, should speak a foreign language and be familiar with the kind of "group politics" one finds in a legislature.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick is the first American U.N. envoy since Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. to serve a full four years. Lodge was U.N. ambassador for more than seven years under President Eisenhower.

Superfund Heads Agenda On Energy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation to renew the $1.6 billion "superfund" toxic waste cleanup program will dominate a "very limited" Reagan administration energy and environment agenda in Congress next year, a White House adviser says.

Randall Davis, the president's special assistant for policy development on energy and environmental issues, said Tuesday the toxic waste bill "will dominate our attention span, certainly over the next six to eight months."

The superfund is an energy issue as well as an environmental issue because the cleanup money is raised through taxes on the oil and petrochemical industries, Davis told an energy industry luncheon.

The current $1.6 billion cleanup program expires next Sept. 30. Legislation expanding the program to $10.2 billion passed the House this fall, but failed in the Senate because of opposition from the White House, which said it was premature.

But the administration also said during that debate a superfund expansion obviously would be needed and that it would seek more money for the program in 1985.

Davis also said that "there are going to have to be very high-level decisions made on some basic strategy calls" on environmental bills other than superfund.

Budget authorization for most major environmental laws, including the Clean Air Act and the Clean Water Act, have technically expired over the past few years, but their substantive terms remain in effect until Congress acts on them.

However, Davis said the administration still must decide what changes to seek in those laws and how hard to push for the changes.

He said the administration's legislative agenda on energy matters for the 99th Congress will be "very limited" except for superfund because there are few major immediate problems.

White House Says Cuts In Vets' Benefits Considered

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan's spokesman acknowledges that veterans' health benefits are being reviewed in the search for budget savings, but says it's too soon to say whether they would be cut.

Deputy White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Tuesday that it has not yet been decided whether the administration will seek reductions in veterans' health benefits as part of an effort to find $50 billion savings in the fiscal year 1986 budget.

He said the review of veterans' health programs is being conducted by the White House Office of Policy Development, which asked the Veterans Administration in July to project its work load if health benefits were limited to veterans with service-connected disabilities.

Currently, veterans are automatically eligible for medical care at the age of 65 if space is available in VA hospitals and nursing homes. This service is not based on financial need.

Fitzwater was responding to a report that the administration was considering a proposal to charge veterans at least a small fee for health services, to give benefits only to those with financial need, or to limit benefits to those with service-connected illnesses.

The request for information from the VA was part of an overall review of government health policy and not necessarily related to preparation of budget, now under way at the White House, according to Fitzwater.

However, other administration officials have acknowledged that veterans' programs will be looked at closely as the White House seeks ways to find budget savings to trim the massive federal deficit.

Another area of spending cuts under consideration is a major restructuring of the federal Civil Service retirement system.

The New York Times and The Washington Post reported in today's editions that the proposal would limit cost-of-living increases in benefits, reduce benefits of federal workers who retire before age 65 and increase an employee's pension contribution from 7 percent to 9 percent of pay. The Post reported the changes were intended to save $1.9 billion in the first year.

Fitzwater said the information from the health policy review could be used for what he described as possible second-term initiatives.

"This is part of a general process. It was not designed to come up with money (budget savings)," Fitzwater said of the review.

He said it was part of a general process of reviewing government programs that is being conducted by Counselor Edwin Meese and the Office of Policy Development.

"There are any number of options that they are looking at that won't be dealt with in the budget, but which you may see an administration initiative come spring or summer or later on," he said.

"What I'm trying to cast is to give this an academic aura at this point," he said.

The president, meanwhile, went horseback riding along trail at his secluded ranch atop the Santa Ynez Mountains on Tuesday under a brilliant blue sky.

Reagan is vacationing at his 688-acre spread until Sunday, when he returns to the White House to begin the task of deciding where to cut the federal budget.

The president and his wife, Nancy, will be joined on Thanksgiving by Reagan's brother, Neil, three of his four children and all of their spouses.

CIA Will Overturn Penalty

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of six mid-level CIA employees singled out for discipline over a controversial Nicaraguan rebel manual is being spared from punishment by CIA Director William J. Casey, intelligence sources say.

The sources, who insisted on anonymity, said Tuesday that Casey rejected the proposed suspension without pay of the chief of a special CIA task force that oversees the covert operation directed against Nicaragua's leftist government.

Casey overturned the suspension because, the sources said, the official had received an agency commendation in September 1983 for his oversight of the Nicaraguan program.

CIA spokesman George Lauder continued to refuse comment on the investigation into the manual, which advises rebels on the "selective use of violence" to "neutralize" Nicaraguan officials. The spy agency has never released the names of the CIA officials involved or provided any other details about the disciplining.

Administration and congressional officials, speaking anonymously, have said the CIA inspector general recommended that three mid-level officials receive letters of reprimand and two others be suspended without pay. The manual's author, known by the pseudonym John Kirkpatrick, agreed to resign from his CIA contract.

Several of the punished officials, however, refused to sign disciplinary letters being put in their personnel files, contending that they were being made "scapegoats" to protect higher-level CIA officials, the sources said.

In approving the inspector general's findings 10 days ago, President Reagan insisted that the manual's contents did not violate a longstanding presidential executive order barring U.S. involvement in assassinations.

Nicaragua's leftist government has charged that rebel forces have assassinated 854 civilians since fighting began in 1981. Last month, Edgar Chamorro, propaganda chief of the CIA-backed Nicaraguan Democratic Force, said it was the rebel group's "practice" to execute government officials deemed criminals — an assertion denied by other rebel leaders.

Besides the "neutralization" section, the 90-page manual, entitled "Psychological Operations in Guerrilla War," suggests hiring professional criminals for "selective jobs," arranging the death of a rebel supporter to create a "martyr" and coercing Nicaraguans into carrying out rebel assignments.

Southern Bell Given Increase

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Utilities Commission has awarded Southern Bell an increase it says is the minimum that could be granted and still have the company maintain good service, but that's half what the company had requested.

Southern Bell had requested an increase of 28.41 percent, or about $5.7 million, but the commission, after nine months of hearings across the state, approved only 14.85 percent of the request, or $50.4 million.

Blast Victims Buried In Common Grave

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Firemen working by the light of flashlights buried 275 unidentified victims of fiery gas explosions in a huge mass grave on a hillside northeast of the neighborhood where they died.

The victims buried late Tuesday night were among at least 324 people killed when explosions at a liquid petroleum gas storage and distribution center showered flames, debris and sections of tanks onto homes in the area at daybreak Monday. Red Cross officials said at least 500 other people were seriously injured.

The office of President Miguel de la Madrid, which issued the latest fatality figures late Tuesday, said the toll "is not expected to rise significantly because the injured are being attended efficiently by the health system."

Fire fighters on Tuesday night stacked the 275 unidentified victims' coffins, some metal and some wooden, in layers into a dusty grave dug by a bulldozer.

Guided by the headlights of a jeep and 10 flashlights held by policemen, the fire fighters quickly filled the grave.

Most of the bodies were burned beyond recognition. They had been removed from the neighborhood and held in a makeshift morgue while survivors filed by them Tuesday in an attempt to identify missing relatives.

However, Col. Eustongio Perez Becerril, deputy police director for the state of Mexico, said authorities decided to bury the unidentified victims after the stench in the morgue intensified.

"One stage of the accident has ended here," he said. "Tomorrow we will see what is to be done with the people who lost their homes."

The explosion and fire destroyed or seriously damaged homes in about 20 square blocks of the neighborhood of San Juan Ixhuatepec in Tlalneantla, a suburb on the northern edge of Mexico City. Hector Garcia Vasquez, a federal police spokesman, said more than 100,000 people were evacuated from the area.

Thousands of people began returning to their homes Tuesday near the area devastated by the gas tank explosions, some still wondering whether they would find relatives lost when they fled the early morning fire and many questioning whether they should continue to live in the area.

Dozens of residents pushed to the edge of an area that was still cordoned off, trying to convince officials to let them return to their homes in neighborhoods closest to the site where four tanks exploded and two others burned. But they were told the area was being fumigated to prevent disease and they would have to wait.

People in outlying residential areas that stretch across the flatland and up the hillsides from the tanks streamed back home, many carrying a few belongings in plaid plastic shopping bags commonly used for marketing.

Most of those homes were intact, although many worried about reports of looting. Mexico state police said 20 people were arrested for looting after people fled their homes.

Jesus Corona Lopez returned to a home that was little more than a pile of rubble. A huge section of a sausage-shaped tank, blown more than half a mile by the explosion, crushed his home and part of that of his next-door neighbor, Jose Aranda Olvera.

"It seemed like an aerial bombing," said Aranda Olvera, a laboratory technician, as he stood at the gate, looking at the twisted hulk of tank resting on the back of his eight-room home.

The 24 people who lived in the two houses escaped after the first explosion, before the blasts that hurled the tank section.

Aranda Olvera said continuing to live in the neighborhood near the storage facilities of the government oil monopoly Pemex and Unigas Co. where the explosions occurred was "something to think about. It would be living always in a powderkeg."

Amada Salomon fought back tears as she, her sister Maria Elena and brother-in-law told of a missing 20-year-old cousin who did not know their address or the neighborhood.

CLEARING RUBBLE — Rescue workers dig into a building in a Mexico City suburb that collapsed after a natural gas explosion Monday. The Mexican Red Cross said about 300 bodies have been found in a 20-square-block area that was flattened. The bodies that could not be identified were buried in a common grave. (AP Laserphoto)

Paper Says Hit Team Knew Police Were Aware Of Scheme

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — A four-man Libyan hit team sent to Egypt to kill a former Libyan prime minister went ahead with the mission although at least three of them knew their Egyptian collaborators were policemen, Egypt's leading newspaper reported today.

The report in the state-owned daily Al-Ahram came as investigators were questioning the four — two Britons and two Maltese — arrested last Saturday after police claimed they tricked the men into believing they had killed former Libyan Prime Minister Abdel-Hamid Bakoush.

Ragaa El-Araby, chief state security prosecutor, told The Associated Press no formal charges have been filed but investigators were considering charging them with "communication" with a foreign country, international bribery and criminal conspiracy to murder.

In Egyptian legal parlance, communication with a foreign country is tantamount to espionage.

Al-Ahram quoted the commander of the counterintelligence unit that tricked the four as saying he approached the Maltese members of the hit team when they arrived at Cairo Airport and told them he knew of their plans but was willing to cooperate for a price.

Al-Ahram quoted the commander, whose name was not used for security reasons, as saying he told the Maltese he and his men were working with a "highly placed" Egyptian intelligence officer who would help them in their mission.

The newspaper said the two Maltese fell for the ploy and summoned the alleged hit team leader, Anthony William Gill, 48, of London.

Al-Ahram quoted the commander as saying he told Gill he and his men were Egyptian security agents when Gill was embroiled in a dispute with the Libyans over earmarking more money for the operation.

"We disclosed to Anthony Gill ... that we were Egyptian security men and we knew everything, but we would cover up in return for $150,000. The terrorist was astounded, but he was now assured that it would be possible to carry out the operation quickly and that we would facilitate his exit from Egypt quickly," the commander said.

Al-Ahram said Gill sent for fellow Briton Godfrey Shiner, 47, who brought the money to Egypt.

Gill, Shiner and the two Maltese were arrested Saturday, one day after Libyan radio announced that the "stray dog" Bakoush had been "executed." Bakoush turned up Saturday night at a Cairo news conference, where Interior Minister Ahmed Rushdi revealed that the Egyptian policemen faked Bakoush's murder by using a movie makeup artist to help the Libyan exile feign death.

Al-Ahram said the four Egyptians allowed the Libyan agents only a quick glance at Bakoush's "body." The Egyptians smeared human blood over Bakoush in case Libyan intelligence used spectroscopy techniques on photographs of him to determine if the blood was real.

Although Egyptian newspapers have identified Gill as the hit team's leader, the British textile and spare parts dealer insists he was merely a "family man" caught up by the lure of money and adventure.

Israelis Fire On Students

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli troops fired today on West Bank Palestinian students demonstrating their support for beleaguered guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat, killing one student and wounding at least four, witnesses said.

One student at Bir Zeit University died at Ramallah Hospital of a gunshot wound, according to a man who identified himself as the hospital director but refused to give his name. He refused to give any other details.

A public relations officer at the university, Penny Johnson, also said one student had died of a gunshot wound after being taken to Ramallah Hospital. She said he was a fourth-year engineering student from the town of Khan Younis in the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip.

Neil Hicks, another public relations staffer, said: "I saw five students wounded. I saw them being hit by gunfire."

Janes Says MiGs Shipped To Libya

LONDON (AP) — A Soviet freighter unloaded a cargo believed to be MiG-21 jet fighters in Libya before crossing the Atlantic and docking in Nicaragua earlier this month, Jane's Defense Weekly said Wednesday.

U.S. news media had quoted Reagan administration sources as saying the Soviet freighter, Bakuriani, might be carrying MiGs that had been loaded at a Black Sea dock in October. The freighter arrived at Nicaragua's Pacific port of Corinto on Nov. 7, and U.S. intelligence sources indicated that warplanes were never unloaded.

Jane's Defense Weekly, quoting unnamed U.S. sources in Washington, said the Bakuriani had taken aboard the type of crates used for MiG fuselages. "They said it had been observed unloading similar crates for Libya before proceeding to Nicaragua," the report said.

The Libyan air force has several types of MiG aircraft, according to The Military Balance issued by the international Institute for Strategic Studies. It says Libya has 143 MiG-23s, 50 MiG-23s and 55 of the older MiG-21s in its interceptor squadrons.

Jane's, which has a reputation of authoritative defense matters, said the freighter was observed unloading helicopters, vehicles and munitions at the Nicaraguan port, but no crates that would contain jet fighter components.

President Reagan had said that Nicaraguan import of MiG-21s would be considered a threat to other Central American countries.

Grandmother Utilized Her Thumb To Catch Rides Across Country

By DON BISHOFF
The Register-Guard

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Grace Small is grounded these days, which is a shame. But she still can travel a long way on her memories.

Her tiny Danebo-area trailer home is crammed with 80 scrapbooks of newspaper clippings, photos and postcards, chronicling her days as Eugene's "Hitchhiking Grandmother." Whenever the travel yen struck her — which was often — Mrs. Small stuck out her thumb and went.

To every continental state, including Alaska. To Puerto Rico. To Europe. But don't ask how many miles she traveled on her thumb.

"Honey, I've been across the United States at least 10 times," she said. "You figure it out if you want to."

Mrs. Small kept hitchhiking until a few years ago — when she already was well into her 80s. She is 89 now.

But a series of small strokes that began last year put her in and out of hospitals and nursing homes for a time, and sapped her travel strength.

"I haven't any aches or pains or anything else," she said. "But when you get tired walking to the store for two blocks, you kinda think you ought to pull in your horns."

Mrs. Small first stuck out her horns — and her thumb — in the 1950s, when she was in her 50s and already a grandmother several times over. (The current count: "Four children, eight grandchildren, 16 great-grandchildren, and I don't know how many great-greats.")

What turned her into a senior citizen version of Jack Kerouac?

"Well, I wanted to go someplace, and it cost money." She wanted to visit her grown children and other relatives and friends scattered around the country.

Mrs. Small was born in a small town in Illinois and moved to Oregon — first Salem, then Eugene — after her divorce. She worked a variety of jobs, but never earned enough to finance her wanderlust by conventional travel means.

So she'd pack her tiny suitcase, don her little veiled hat, gloves, sensible shoes and jersey coat, and start cadging rides. "I tried to look just like a lady going to church," she said.

She stayed in YWCAs and hostels, and at the homes of people she'd met on previous trips. "You see, my address book is set up according to states," she said, holding up a worn little black book stuffed with pages. "Then, two or three times, the police have taken care of me — and I let 'em." But they always put her up in a hotel, never in jail, she added — and none ever gave her a ticket for illegal hitchhiking.

Mrs. Small said she never worried about troubles from the people who picked her up along the way.

"You have to know where to stand, who to ride with," she said. "I turned down as many rides as I took. The car told me what kind of people they were, and I was able to tell who was going to be interesting. If I didn't like their looks, I didn't get in. Only one or two times did I make a mistake."

One came, she said, as she was hitchhiking across a desolate stretch of New Mexico and was picked up by two men and a boy. When they stopped their car at a roadside tavern, one of the men took Mrs. Small aside and told her, "When we get back, you be gone. I don't like what Dad's planning."

What he was planning, Mrs. Small surmised, was to rob her and dump her in the desert. So she quickly took the hint. "I flagged me down a truck," she said. "That's one time in life when the Lord delivered me."

In 1966, when Mrs. Small was in her late 60s, she took a plane to Europe — after hitchhiking to New York to catch it. She had cashed in her life insurance policy to pay for the plane ticket and a Eurorail pass that took her through 12 countries.

"But when I got back to London, I was out of money," she said. "All I had was my return trip ticket." And the plane ticket was from Glasgow, Scotland. "I had to hitchhike across England to Glasgow to catch the plane. I had a wonderful time. Some boys from Iowa picked me up, and we walked on Hadrian's Wall and washed our hands in Loch Lomond. We had a ball."

Vegetarians Turning To Stuffed Pumpkin

By FREDERICK STANDISH
Associated Press Writer

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — While most folks are sitting down to stuffed turkey on Thanksgiving Day, others will be dining on stuffed pumpkin.

Vegetarians celebrate Thanksgiving, too.

At Gretchen Greer's home, her parents, two brothers, a sister and five nieces and nephews will enjoy a traditional Thanksgiving dinner. "I've got quite a troop coming this year," said Ms. Greer, a chemist for the Chessie System in Grand Rapids.

Ms. Greer, the only vegetarian in the bunch, will be eating something just as traditional but a bit less common than typical turkey day fare.

While her mother prepares turkey and the trimmings, Ms. Greer has been fixing stuffed pumpkin, which involves making garlic and potato peel broths days in advance, and filling the pumpkin with kidney beans and rice.

"It's sort of become a Thanksgiving thing, I suppose, like most people do with turkey," said Ms. Greer, a vegetarian for about 10 years.

For the past seven years, Buzz and Linda Wynbeek of Grand Rapids have shunned meat. They and their two children will be meeting four other turkey-eating adults at a relative's house for the holiday.

"We will be eating around the turkey," said Mrs. Wynbeek, who plans to bring some homemade bread and a vegetable dish such as broccoli and mushroom casserole.

Although her children have been raised as vegetarians, her oldest daughter, 6-year-old Anna, "is curious about meat occasionally." And the parents indulge that curiosity.

"If my daughter wants to have a piece of turkey she can," said Ms. Wynbeek, whose other daughter is an infant.

Daine Watt, owner of D.C. Watt's restaurant in Detroit, which caters mostly to vegetarians, said her business will be closed for Thanksgiving. "We haven't had enough calls to make it (opening) worthwhile," she said.

Director Doesn't Like Soundtrack

LONDON (AP) — The soundtrack to the movie "1984" by the rock group Eurythmics does an injustice to the world controlled by Big Brother, director Michael Radford says.

"The film which is currently playing in London is not the film I made," Radford said Sunday as his adaptation of George Orwell's novel was named best film of 1984 at The Evening Standard newspaper's film awards.

Radford said the score had been "foisted" onto the film to make the downbeat look at the future more commercial.

Robert Devereux, chairman of Virgin Films, said "Eurythmics 1984: For the Love of Big Brother," has jumped to No. 2 on the London charts.

Anything Possible

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Exercise guru Jack LaLanne celebrated his 70th birthday by swimming a mile with his hands and feet tied while towing 70 light rowboats with a person on each to demonstrate "that anything is possible through mind and body conditioning."

About 600 people turned out at Long Beach harbor on Tuesday to watch the veteran physical fitness instructor strut his stuff. LaLanne, who exercises 2½ hours a day, was honored by the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors as the "King of Fitness."

Building Activity Reported

Building permits valued at $3,241,346 were issued in Greenville during August, according to state Labor Commissioner John Brooks.

Greenville ranked 10th among 44 cities of more than 10,000 population in the value of August permits, Brooks said, and was one of 14 cities to go over the $2 million mark in construction activity.

The Greenville total included $1,016,500 for 30 single-family units, $573,528 for 16 nonresidential structures and $1,641,318 for 57 additions and alterations. A total of 103 units were authorized in Greenville during August.

Brooks said Pitt County issued permits amounting to $4,283,135 in August, including Greenville's construction figure. The Pitt total included $1,843,177 for 52 single-family units, $28,113 for two multifamily units, $753,506 for 20 nonresidential structures, and $1,658,339 for 64 additions and alterations.

Statewide, the 44 reporting cities authorized 3,859 construction units with an estimated value of $164,692,133 during the month.

Brooks said building activity in the 44 cities dropped 10.7 percent overall in August, compared to a year ago, including a 38.8 percent decline in multifamily units. Permits for single-family homes fell 1.4 percent, with a 5.1 percent increase recorded in nonresidential construction.

Compared to August 1983, the average construction cost for a single-family home increased 3.5 percent, to $47,589 from $45,984.

August permits in several eastern towns included: Elizabeth City, $383,300; Goldsboro, $732,417; Jacksonville, $2,695,614; Kinston, $720,000; New Bern, $822,660; Roanoke Rapids, $359,975; Rocky Mount, $2,526,105; Tarboro, $182,500; and Wilson, $2,497,797.

Wreck Knocks Out Electricity

WINTERVILLE — Residents in a large portion of Winterville were without electricity about 3:30 p.m. Tuesday after a motorist struck a utility pole.

According to Winterville Police Chief Keith Knox, a car driven by Jetta Dail Wingate, of Route 1, Winterville, jumped the curb and struck a power pole on Main Street, near the town hall, breaking the pole and knocking down a main power line. Knox said Mrs. Wingate was not injured, but power to much of the town was not restored until about 6:10 p.m.

The chief said a water pump motor on the town's well located behind the town hall was also damaged. Town Clerk Elwood Nobles said today the cost of the motor could run as high as $2,000 but water service to the town would not be affected.

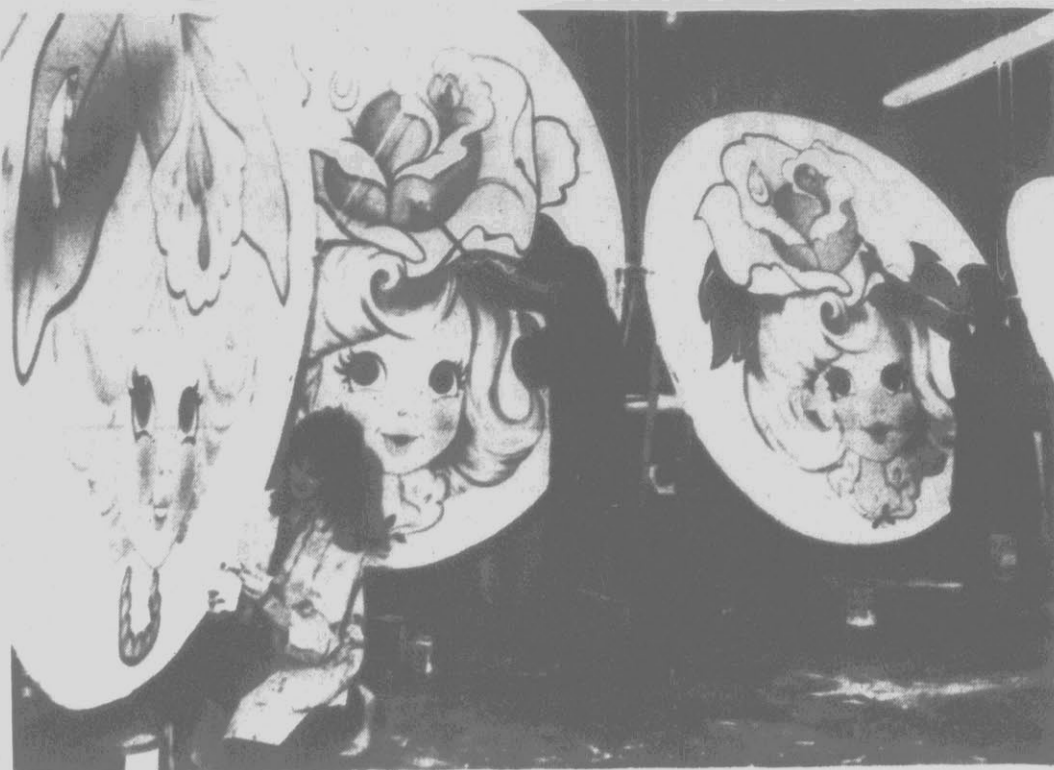

Damage to the car was estimated at about $500 and no charges were made.

Transition Team

RALEIGH (AP) — Eddie Knox, who lost the Democratic nomination for governor to Rufus Edmisten, will assist Republican Gov.-elect Jim Martin in putting together a new administration.

"I'm here trying to help," Knox said, who was not specific about the duties he is performing.

After his defeat in the June 5th primary, Knox, a life-long Democrat, became national co-chairman of Democrats for Reagan. His wife, Frances, and his brothers backed Martin for governor and endorsed the re-election of Republican Sen. Jesse Helms in his race against Gov. Jim Hunt.

Greenville Passes A Year Without Traffic Fatality

It has been over a year since the last traffic fatality was reported in the city of Greenville, according to Chief of Police Ted Holmes.

Holmes said the last fatal wreck occurred on Nov. 16, 1983, when a vehicle operated at a high rate of speed hit a tractor-trailer on Dickinson Avenue. The driver, a 25-year-old East Carolina University student, later died at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

"Our goal now is to finish 1984 without any fatal traffic accidents," Holmes said.

The last year no traffic deaths were reported was 1978. In 1979, two fatalities occurred; in 1980 there were four; in 1981, 11 people died; in 1982 there were five. In 1983, four deaths resulted from traffic accidents on city streets.

While citing luck and increased public awareness as contributing to the success so far in 1984, Holmes suggested that traffic law enforcement has also played a part. During the first nine months of 1984, he said, the number of traffic citations issued increased by 132 percent and arrests for driving while impaired (DWI) were up 122 percent over 1983 figures.

"The upcoming holiday season is the most critical period," Holmes said. "Problems associated with drinking and driving increase during the holidays. It is also during this period when a high number of fatal accidents take place."

"We plan to concentrate on traffic and DWI enforcement through the holiday season in hopes that no family's holidays are destroyed as the result of a traffic death in Greenville."

Holmes said "drivers will have to do their part. I would encourage every driver to refrain from driving after drinking and to obey the speed limits."

The chief also suggested that motorists traveling long distances plan for rest stops, and suggested that drivers, "whether on a short drive to the grocery store or during an extended trip," use their seat belts.

Students Man Telephones

ECU News Bureau
A total of 194 East Carolina University student volunteers have completed a major telephone fund-raising effort on behalf of ECU, gathering $82,397 in pledges from alumni in distant areas.

The students, volunteers for ECU's seventh annual National Telefund campaign, represented 28 campus organizations. Coordinating the campaign were Cynthia Kittrell, Annual Fund director at ECU, and student Kathy Marshburn of Jacksonville, Telefund Chairman of the ECU Ambassadors, a student service group.

Working with them were 12 "night captains," who supervised Telefund operations each evening. Student volunteers made calls from a telephone bank set up in ECU's Taylor-Slaughter Alumni Center.

Student volunteers from Pitt County included: GREENVILLE — John Henry, Susan Hudson, Sharon Dixon, Kim Allen, Tina Byrd, Teresa McLawhorn, Dawn Parsons, Martha West, Ken Scrubbs and Amy Smith. WINTERVILLE — Kimberly Joyner.

This year's pledge total exceeded the Telefund goal, which was $80,000. Nearly 2,700 alumni donors made pledges; of that number 568 were first-time donors.

Similar campaigns are conducted by ECU alumni chapters in their respective areas. Most of the funds raised are used for alumni honors scholarships, awarded by ECU each year to students with superior records of academic achievement, with portions allotted for student loans, faculty research projects and facilities development.

ECU Med School Visited By Team

A site survey team from the Liaison Committee on Medical Education visited the East Carolina University School of Medicine Nov. 13-16 to review the school's programs and progress.

The last LMCE survey visit was in November 1980. As a result of that review, the LCME awarded the school full accreditation for four years. The LCME can grant accreditation for as long as 10 years.

During its visit the four-member team met with Dean William E. Laupus and his administrative staff, department chairpersons, faculty, students and representatives from Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Before leaving Greenville the team presented an oral report of its findings to Laupus and Chancellor John M. Howell. The team's complete written report on the survey will be delivered to the LCME for its review and final recommendations on the length of accreditation. The LCME granted provisional accreditation to ECU's developing medical school in April 1977. Four months later the charter class enrolled, and a survey team visited the school every year until 1980 when the class was in its senior year.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was little changed today, bogging down after Tuesday's rally. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials edged up .44 to 1,195.56 in the first half hour.

Losers took a narrow lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the market didn't seem likely to launch any major moves over the next several days, with the Thanksgiving holiday limiting activity.

The markets, closed on Thursday, will be open Friday. But the session after Thanksgiving is usually one of the quietest of the year.

The upswing in stock prices Tuesday, although encouraged by a moderate decline in open market interest rates, was regarded as primarily a technical rally after a sustained decline since the election.

Today's economic news reinforced recent evidence of a slowing economy. The Commerce Department reported that orders for durable goods fell 4.1 percent last month.

Separately, the Labor Department said the consumer price index rose 0.4 percent in October, equally the increase recorded for the previous month.

Brokers said the inflation figure presented no cause for serious concern. However, some said it was a bit troubling to see it at that level at a time when business activity was slackening.

Among today's early volume leaders, American Express rose 1/2 to 36 3/4; Western Union added 1/4 to 13 1/2; Hewlett-Packard gained 1/4 to 32 3/4, and American Telephone & Telegraph was unchanged at 18 3/4.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 9.83 to 1,195.12.

Advances outpaced declines by about 6 to 5 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 83.24 million shares, against 69.73 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose .49 to 94.59. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .43 at 207.86.

Class Visits

Students from the second and fourth grades at St. Peter's School attended the recent production of "Ozma of Oz" at East Carolina University. The second grade class also visited Sheppard Memorial Library, where Mrs. Susanne Long, children's librarian, read a story, showed a film and taught the students how to use the library.

In conjunction with National Book Week, students in kindergarten through third grade dressed as their favorite storybook characters. Those from all grades recognized for reading 10 or more books during the week were: Chris Ball, Rob Barnes, Kara Bozik, Karen Carr, Christine Carter, Matthew Dellasega, Mindy Dellasega, Laura Glascoff, Christy Goodman, Tracy Haines, Amy Lane Helms, Michael Lambe, Teresa Lambe, Lyn Lincoln, Sean MacKenna, Jordan Markowski, Sandy Marucci, Danielle Meyer, Michelle Minges, Alex Orr, Graham Powell, Luchara Saules, Ben Smith, Marian Smith, Emmye Taft, Gloria Taft, Chris Taylor, Marianna Weigard and Kathryn Witort.

During November, the student body brought non-perishable food items to school, which were distributed to the needy in Pitt County for Thanksgiving.

Accidents Cause $9,500 In Damage

An estimated $9,500 in damage resulted from a series of four traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Tuesday.

Officers said cars driven by Darla Rhea Richards, 21 of 1415 Rondo Drive and Elizabeth Ann Ballenger of Evans Mobile Home Park, collided about 1:55 p.m. on Elm Street, 150 feet north of the Brookgreen Road intersection.

Police, who charged Ms. Richards with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, set damage at $1,000 to the Richards car and $2,500 to the Ballenger vehicle.

A 5:17 p.m. collision on Evans Street, 100 feet south of the Deck Street intersection, involved cars driven by Duane Curtis Grooms of Carriage House Apartments, Herbert Wood Hadley of 2607 Memorial Drive and Dandra Faye Smith of 110B Ridge Place.

Investigators said Grooms was charged with following too closely in connection with the collision, and estimated damage at $3,000 to the Grooms car, $400 to the Hadley car and $100 to the Smith vehicle.

Myrtle Ann Bennett of 613A Roosevelt Ave. was charged with failing to stop for a stop light in connection with a 5:08 p.m. collision at the intersection of Greene and First streets.

Officers said the Bennett car collided with a vehicle driven by Charles A. Pender of 1900 E. Fourth St., causing $1,500 damage to the Bennett car and $300 damage to the Pender auto.

Cars driven by Mary S. Cutter of 2308 E. Third St., and Tammy Louise Johnson of M6 Wilson Acres, collided about 3:30 p.m. at the intersection of Fourth and Ash streets, causing $650 damage to the Cutter car and $50 damage to the Johnson vehicle.

Police said Ms. Johnson was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

Commission members also recommended that about 16 acres of the tract be zoned as R-6, to allow development of multifamily dwellings, and the remaining portion of the property - which is in the floodway and unsuitable for development, be zoned RA-20.

Commission members also recommended the adoption of regulations which will permit the installation of any size satellite dish antenna in the rear yards and side yards of residential property, and on the roofs of houses in cases where the dish is 4-feet or less in diameter.

The proposed regulation would require that antennae placed in side yards be buffered from adjoining property and the street.

Present regulations permit the installation of any size dish antennae in rear yards and any size antenna on roofs, but prohibit installations in side or front yards.

A spokesman for Metcom, a Greenville firm which installs satellite dish antennae, suggested to commission members that by limiting roof-top installations to a 4-foot dish, the proposed regulation would, at present, serve to eliminate roof-top installations.

John Androsan said "a 4-foot dish is no good" for quality reception of television pictures. "A 10-foot dish is needed," he said. "The only reason to ever put a dish on a roof is there is no other place to put it."

Commission members also recommended the annexation of 7.05 acres located at the rear of the Executive Park Subdivision across Stantonburg Road from Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

The recommendations for the annexation and zoning of Rowntree Woods, the annexation of Executive Park property, and the new satellite dish regulations must be considered by the city council for final action.

In other business, commission members: approved a revised preliminary plat for Camelot Subdivision which calls for an existing drainage ditch at the rear of lots on Avalon Lane to be left open, rather than piped and filled as the previous preliminary plat called for; and approved the preliminary plat for Sedgfield Townes, a proposed 15-unit townhouse complex on 1.2 acres on the east side of St. Andrews Drive across from the Dexter Street intersection, provided a question about the need to install a fire hydrant be worked out between the developer and the fire-rescue department chief.

The consideration of a preliminary plat for Greystone Subdivision, located on Secondary Road 1708 adjacent to the N.C. Forestry Service fire tower, was tabled, while a request to consider a preliminary plat for Fort Storage, located at the end of Cheyenne Court adjacent to Wedgewood Arms Apartments, was withdrawn.

think the food increase is the start of a trend. The real key is that prices in the marketplace did not go up as much as we are reflecting" in today's report.

Indeed, while the department reported seasonally adjusted gains for all the major food components of the index, shelf prices were actually down across the board.

Seasonal adjustments are made every month to remove predictable, periodic factors from the price calculations. Last month, gasoline prices at the pump nationwide were up an average of just 0.7 percent. But, with seasonal adjustment, the increase became 1.8 percent because those prices normally fall 1.1 percent in October as demand tapers off from the peak summer driving season.

Despite the recent gasoline increases, prices are still 13.0 percent below their peak of March 1981.

In a separate report, the Commerce Department said factory orders for "big ticket" durable goods, usually expensive and designed to last at least three years, fell 4.1 percent last month. It was the steepest monthly decline since the spring.

If last month's 0.4 percent increase held steady for 12 straight months, the yearly advance would be 4.3 percent. The annual rate reported by the department is based on a more precise calculation of monthly prices than the figure made public.

In all, the Consumer Price Index stood at 315.3 in October, meaning that goods costing $10 in 1967 would have cost $31.53 last month.

Larceny Arrests

Two Greenville men have been arrested by Pitt County deputies following investigation of a break-in at the home of Dr. Michael Vernon, 111 Forest Acres in MacGregor Downs northwest of Greenville.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said David C. Gay of 1015 W. Fourth St. and Michael Joyner of 1017 W. Fourth St. were each charged with breaking, entering and larceny in connection with the incident.

Tyson said Vernon reported the theft of property valued at approximately $3,000, including jewelry, stereo equipment and other items. He said about $700 worth of stereo equipment was recovered.

Top Prep Star Dies In Shooting

CHICAGO (AP) — Ben Wilson, a highly recruited prep basketball star from one of the country's top-ranked teams, died early today after being shot in a confrontation near the school, authorities said.

Two 16-year-olds were charged with attempted murder and attempted armed robbery in connection with the shooting Tuesday during a lunch break at Simeon Vocational High School on the city's South Side, said Sgt. John Manos. Police were contemplating raising the charges to murder.

A third youth arrested was questioned and released, he said.

Wilson died at 6 a.m., a spokeswoman at St. Bernard's Hospital said.

The 22-caliber handgun used in the shooting was not recovered, said Sgt. Rutherford Wilson, no relation to Ben Wilson.

Wilson's chances of survival were "not very good" and he may have suffered brain and kidney damage, said Dr. Hong-Ming Lay, who was one of the surgeons who operated on the 17-year-old, 6-foot-8 basketball player in St. Bernard Hospital.

Two .22-caliber bullets, one of which entered the left chest and the other the groin area, were removed, said Lay who spoke to reporters in a blood-stained surgery gown.

"We opened his abdomen and the blood shot over my face," said Lay, who estimated that Wilson lost 10 liters of blood, including several liters of transfused blood. Wilson had no blood pressure when he arrived at the hospital's emergency room, the surgeon said.

Police Sgt. Joe Gorman said three young men "roughly 15 to 19," blocked the sidewalk as Wilson, walking with a female friend, attempted to pass.

Assistant Principal John Everett said the three "were guys from the neighborhood. He bumped into one of them."

"One guy pushed him, and he (Wilson) said, 'Excuse me.' But the guy said, 'No excuse me,' and another guy shot him."

"Ben slipped up his hat and the guy drew back and shot him. He was staggering and he hit the fences," said Louis McDaniels, 14, a witness who was a few feet from the scene.

Everett said when he reached the scene, Wilson was "delirious, but there wasn't a lot of bleeding."

"He was the victim of a senseless shooting," Everett said. "He's a hero."

"Why him, why did it have to be him. He's good at everything. He was the type of person who was friendly and got along with everybody," said Leonard Carr, 17, a Simeon student.

Wilson's father, Benjamin Sr., arrived at the hospital with tears streaming down his face. "I don't think he had an enemy in the world. Everybody loved him," he said.

Simeon Coach Bob Hambric, who described his relationship with Wilson as "father and son," said the team would go ahead and play Evanston in the Thanksgiving Holiday Tournament at Rockford tonight. Evanston is the school his Wolverines beat last spring to win the Class AA state championship — Wilson's last high school basketball game.

Asked if the team would play harder because of the shooting, Hambric said, "I'm sure of it."

Bids Are Shuffled After SEC Tells Gators: No Bowl

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Prospective bowl bids were shuffled today following the Southeastern Conference's decision to ban No. 4 Florida from postseason play for NCAA rule violations.

The SEC executive committee voted unanimously Tuesday to bar Florida from accepting the SEC champions' automatic berth in the Sugar Bowl or a spot in any other bowl.

The executive committee said it would await National Collegiate Athletic Association action on Florida's appeal before making a decision on whether to strip the Gators of their first-ever SEC crown.

Florida President Marshall Criser, who made a two-hour presentation to the committee, said he was disappointed by the SEC's decision, particularly with the delay on the conference title.

"We pressed to the limit our absolute conviction that the conference should acknowledge our right to the championship now — without qualification," said Criser, who left Birmingham to await the committee's decision in Gainesville, Fla. "We deeply regret that the SEC has imposed an additional penalty at this time."

"We share with our fans and with our coaches and players the great disappointment that this nationally ranked team will not participate in a bowl game this year," he said in a news conference.

In announcing the decision, Conference President James McComas said it was "necessary to reserve final judgment on the accuracy of some of the findings in this case and the appropriateness of penalties that have been imposed."

But he said it was "clear that the University of Florida had engaged in, or had failed to prevent, practices which — because of their number and nature — were of such gravity to warrant unprecedented corrective action" by Criser.

Mickey Holmes, executive director of the Sugar Bowl, said in an interview from his office in New Orleans that bowl officials accept the decision.

"We have had, in the past, and will have in the future a very good association with the SEC," said Holmes. "We know the decision was difficult. We accept it and we will proceed with our process regarding determination of the host team in the 1985 Sugar Bowl."

The SEC decision means Auburn could go to the Sugar Bowl if it defeats Alabama Dec. 1. If it loses, the Sugar Bowl bid would go to Louisiana State. If Auburn and Alabama tie, the Sugar Bowl would have its choice of either Auburn or LSU.

Florida is 5-0-1 in the SEC, followed by Auburn at 4-1 and LSU at 4-1-1. Florida, 8-1-1 overall, ends its season Dec. 1 at Florida State.

McComas, who is also president of Mississippi State, said the conference commended Criser for "prompt, decisive action" in the ousting of Coach Charley Pell after the NCAA charges were filed three games into the season.

But he said the violations that prompted Criser to act "call for parallel action by the conference."

There had been speculation that Florida might initiate a lawsuit against the SEC if the conference voted to strip the Gators of their title eligibility as well as a bowl berth. But Criser said no legal action is planned because the school acknowledges major violations of NCAA rules and litigation against the SEC would interfere with the appeal before the NCAA.

After a 22-month investigation, the NCAA cited Florida for 107 violations, but reduced the number to 59 after Florida responded. The NCAA charges included illegal inducements in the recruiting of players.

The NCAA placed Florida on three years probation, banning them from television or bowl appearances and reducing their total scholarships by 20 over a two-year period. The television and bowl sanctions may be cut to two years for good behavior.

But Florida appealed the NCAA verdict, delaying any of the NCAA sanctions until the appeal is reviewed.

Retton's Marketing Is Carefully Orchestrated

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

"One more, Mary Lou ... Over here, Mary Lou ... Smile, Mary Lou."

Doing what comes naturally, gymnast Mary Lou Retton smiled. It was not the first time. It will not be the last.

The post-Olympic marketing of Mary Lou continues under the careful orchestration of her business manager, John Traetta.

You want to see Mary Lou? You see Traetta first. You want Mary Lou to endorse your product? Here's Traetta's card.

Retton tumbles. Traetta negotiates.

"The demands on her have been enormous," the business manager said. "We're being very selective."

Among those selected were Wheaties — "It seems strange, watching myself on the TV commercial," she said — and McDonald's Corporation, which has arranged for her to ride on its float in Macy's Thanksgiving Day parade. "I love parades," Mary Lou said, smiling. "I'm really excited about that."

Since she was in New York for the parade, it was convenient for Retton to pick up Southland Corporation's Olympia Award, a Greek amphora presented to honor her competitiveness and contribution to gymnastics. Parades, breakfast cereal, hamburgers, amorphas. Sounds like a typical teen-ager's life. But Retton, 16, hardly fits the rest of the profile.

She is a junior in high school but does not attend classes. Her education is carried on strictly by correspondence courses arranged through the University of Missouri. She dates, but only as much as her training program allows. And training is what she does with most of her time.

"I want to continue to compete," she said. "I feel I still have it in me. I can't say if I'll do it four more years. I'm taking it one year at a time."

And, Traetta said, one offer at a time.

Next fall you can look for a line of clothing from Dobie Originals — "actionwear for young girls." Traetta called it — carrying Mary Lou's endorsement. She's also signed with Vidal Sassoon Cosmetics.

"We are trying not to oversaturate," Traetta explained. "We want to balance it with her training."

Mary Lou's winsome smile and diminutive size became something of a trademark for the Games. She was the stars and stripes all over. And she loved every moment of it.

"The patriotism throughout the country was incredible. I never saw so much red, white and blue in my life. The 1980 boycott hurt so bad and with the Games in this country, everybody was ready."

"I guess the fact that we had never had an American gymnast win an Olympic medal made it so much better."

Retton took home five of them including the gold in the all-around, clinching that with a perfect vault that earned her 10s from two of the judges.

That moment, as she stood anticipating the vault, is frozen in her mind's eye. That and the moment they hung the gold around her neck.

"I'll never forget that feeling," she said. "I'll always remember everything about it."

Mary Lou enjoys her celebrity status. "In public, people see me and ask for my autograph," she said. "I think it's pretty neat. At the 1981 National Sports Festival, Sugar Ray Leonard was there as a commentator and I asked him for his autograph. I still have it on my wall."

State Swimmers Defeat Pirates

RALEIGH — N.C. State's swimming teams rolled past East Carolina in a pair of meets yesterday. The Wolfpack downed the ECU men, 68-44, while the Lady Pack took the Pirates, 86-54.

The Wolfpack is considered one of the top teams in the Atlantic Coast Conference this year.

East Carolina's men were paced by freshman Pat Brennan, who was second in the 1,000 freestyle and second in the 200 breaststroke. Freshman Brucke Brockschmidt posted a first in the 200 butterfly and was third in the 200 individual medley. Co-Captain Chris Pitteli took third in the 200 freestyle and second in the 100 freestyle.

The Lady Pirates were led by freshman Chris Holman, who missed national cuts by a tenth of a second in two events, the 100 backstroke and 100 freestyle. In the latter, her time of 54.6 set a new ECU freshman record. Sophomore Caycee Poust took a first in the 200 backstroke and a second in the 100 butterfly.

The Pirates are now 1-1, while the Lady Pirates are 0-2. The teams travel to Annapolis, Md., on December 8 to face the U.S. Naval Academy. Shippensburg State will also be involved in the men's meet.

Panthers Hope To Be Contender

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

BETHEL — North Pitt Coach Cobby Deans is looking for improvement from the Panthers this year, and is hopeful of being a contender for the conference championship in the Eastern Carolina Conference basketball race.

The Panthers finished 6-6 in the league last year and 13-13 overall, but pushed their way into the ECC tournament finals, nearly coming home with the title. They bowed to SouthWest Edgecombe in those finals, 62-56, and then completed their year in the first round of district play, losing to West Carteret, 47-44.

Deans returns three starters to this year's team, along with two others who played a great deal. But a football injury caused some problems as he began putting combinations together for the season.

Back from last year's starting combo are Lavon Shaw, a 6-1 senior forward. Shaw averaged 8.2 points a game and about the same number of rebounds. "I expect him to carry the scoring and rebounding load for us this winter," Deans said.

Also back as a starter is 5-10 junior guard Lenny Langley, who hit 6.0 per game, and 6-2 senior center Paul Streeter, who hit 3.8 per contest.

The other two lettermen include

Gentry Sneed, a 5-11 guard with a 2.1 average last year and Alton Braxton, a 6-2 senior forward who played in only half of the games last year.

Deans brings up five members of the junior varsity team, 5-9 junior guard Link Little, 6-0 junior forward Clifton Williams, 6-0 junior forward Greg Whitaker, 6-0 junior forward Thomas Wright and 6-0 junior forward Jesse Daniels.

Then, the Panthers will also have six newcomers: Tracy Cherry, a 6-0 senior guard; Robert Cherry, a 6-2 junior center; Reggie Fleming, a 5-10 junior guard; Melvin Bradley, a 5-8 junior guard; Anthony Sheppard, a 6-3 freshman center, and Andre

Jones, a 5-10 junior guard.

The man not listed on the roster, however, may be among the most missed. He's Derrick Mullins, a 6-1 junior forward, who received an injury in the final football game of the season and will miss the entire year. "We were really counting on him heavily," Deans said. "Not having him has slowed us down somewhat in making adjustments to his absence."

While the Panthers obviously will be lacking in height, Deans hopes to make up for it with team quickness. "We've had a height problem so long that we don't even worry about it any more," he said. "But I do think we have great quickness this year and that can offset some of the lack of height.

"We also counting on our defense to be a strong point for us. We'll be running a combination of different defenses."

Deans said he thought some summer league play helped the Panthers this year, but he's still looking at SouthWest Edgecombe and Ayden-Grifton to be the teams to beat. "SouthWest has some experience back and Ayden-Grifton has outstanding balance."

"But I hope that we'll be right up there with them. I'm real excited about this year's team and the possibility of having a good team. We're looking well. It's just a question of getting the right combination on the floor and jelling."

toward starting the Moores, Cox, 5-8 sophomore forward Clemmie Harris and 5-3 sophomore guard Melody Harrington.

"We have 13 players on the team, some who played with us last year and some up from the junior varsity," Avery said. "Cox is probably our best player. And one thing I think will help us is that we will be quicker than last year."

Avery expects everyone to see a lot of playing time. Others on the team include 5-7 senior forward Tammy Howard, out for the first time; 5-6 senior forward Angie Bowen; 5-0 junior guard Peggy Jenkins; 5-1 junior guard Sandra Purvis; 6-0 junior center Penny Corey; 5-3 sophomore guard Tammy Beacham, and 5-3 sophomore guard Renee Everett.

"I think we're going to be able to get up and down the floor pretty well," the coach said. "But we're going to have trouble getting a lot of second shots. We're probably going to be shorter than nearly everyone we play. The girls have a good attitude; they're working hard and trying to do things right."

Avery said the team would make every effort to move the ball quickly. "We can't go inside like we could in the past, so we have to run the break as much as possible. We've got to play hard for eight minutes, grab that minute rest, and play hard for eight more."

Defensively, the Pant-HERS will be putting the pressure on their opponents in some way.

In the Eastern Carolina Conference, Avery looks to SouthWest Edgecombe and Greene Central to be strong again. "SouthWest has a good nucleus back and Greene Central has most of their people back too. But I still believe that by the time conference play rolls around we can be up there too."

Davis Is Top AL Rookie

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle Mariners, losers on the field and at the gate since the inception of the American League franchise in 1977, have a couple of winners in rookies Alvin Davis and Mark Langston.

On Tuesday, first baseman Davis was named American League Rookie of the Year by the Baseball Writers Association of America. Langston, a left-handed pitcher, was runner-up in the voting.

Davis received 25 of the 28 first-place votes and 134 points to beat Langston, who had the other three first-place votes and 82 points. Davis and Langston were the only players named on all 28 ballots.

"It's a dream come true," Davis said Tuesday in a telephone conference call to Seattle from his home in Riverside, Calif. "This is really an exclamation mark to a fantastic experience and a fantastic season."

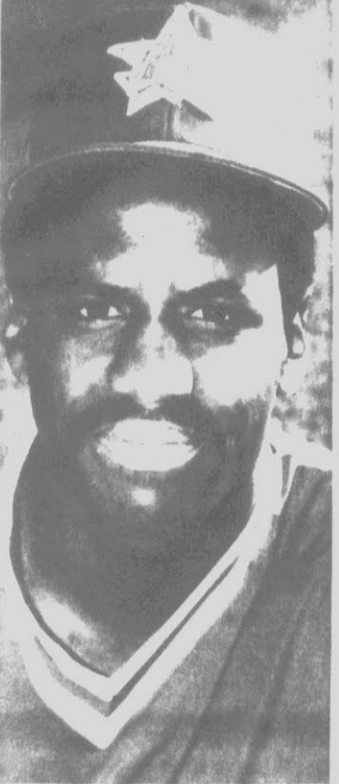

"It all adds up, and it comes to a focus at a particular point in time. Today just happened to be that point in my life."

Davis, who started the 1984 season with Salt Lake City of the Pacific Coast League, set a Mariners' record with 116 runs batted in while batting .284 and belting a club-high 27 home runs.

Davis pointed out that Langston, also 24, had an outstanding season. Langston set a club record with 17 victories and led the AL in strikeouts with 204. He had a 17-10 record and a 3.40 earned run average.

"I never took it for granted," Davis said. "I'm just grateful I was able to win. Mark had a fantastic season also, and it was probably a tough choice (for the writers to make). I hope it's good for the Seattle area to make it official that we do have the bright spots in the American League in the young players."

Mariners' General Manager Hal Keller said, "I think it's a tribute to the scouting staff, and a tribute to our minor league instructors."

Both Davis and Langston were signed by Mariners' scout Bob Harrison.

They helped the Mariners to a 74-88 record for a tie for fifth place in the AL West, second-best record in the club's dismal history. Despite their presence, the Mariners failed to draw a million fans in the Kingdome for the sixth time in their eight AL seasons.

Outfielder Kirby Puckett of Minnesota finished third with 23 points and second baseman Tim Lincecum of the Twins was fourth with five.

Also receiving votes were Baltimore outfielder Mike Young, 3; Boston pitcher Roger Clemens, 2; Kansas City pitcher Mark Gubicza, 1; Boston pitcher Al Nipper, 1; and California pitcher Ron Romanick, 1.

Davis was called up in the season's first week when Ken Phelps suffered a broken finger. By the time Phelps came off the disabled list, Davis was firmly entrenched at first base. Phelps spent the season as Seattle's designated hitter.

Davis represented Seattle in the All-Star Game and became the first Mariner to win a BBWAA award. He and Langston became the first teammates to finish 1-2 in the rookie vote since Fred Lynn and Jim Rice of Boston did it in 1975.

The rookie honor completed the BBWAA's postseason awards.

Pitcher Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets was named NL Rookie of the Year on Monday. Earlier, Detroit pitcher Willie Hernandez swept the American League Most Valuable Player and Cy Young awards. Chicago Cubs' teammates Rick Sutcliffe and Ryne Sandberg swept the National League Cy Young and MVP awards. Sparky Anderson of Detroit and Jim Frey of the Cubs were named AL and NL Managers of the Year.

Joining him is 6-6 junior guard Kylor Whitaker, who hit 10.0 points a game.

But perhaps the biggest reason for Evans' optimism for the coming year is sophomore center David Robinson, who's grown to 6-11, 210 pounds. "He's just an outstanding athlete," Evans said. Robinson didn't start a game, but played in all but three, averaging 7.6 points a game last year as a rookie. He set a single season record for field goal percentage at 62.3 percent, and was named the ECAC-South's Rookie of the Year for his performance.

The 24-victory season was not only the best for Navy, it was the best for any service academy team. It was Navy's first 20-game winner and only the fifth for any service academy.

And, accustomed to having at least one freshman help out, Evans is looking to rookie Cliff Rees, a 6-4 guard, to handle the point for the Middies. The other starting position is likely to be held by Tony Wells, a 6-7 forward, who saw the most action among the rest of the team, although freshman Rob Johnstone, a 6-7 forward, could also take over there.

Another possibility for the position could be sophomore Carey Manhart (6-7, 185), a leaper who appears to be a better defensive than offensive player. Junior James Reed (6-4, 185) and sophomore Warren Buller (6-6, 195) are also possibilities.

Senior guard Sly Mata (6-1, 175), will figure in the backcourt action, while sophomore Doug Wojcik (6-1, 176) had a fine year on the plebe team last season.

"I'd like to think we can go eight deep," Evans said. "How quickly our young kids develop will determine that. If we can start strong (Navy won its first eight last year) — we've got a couple of big games early on the road — I think we will be ready for the league. We better be — everyone else looks to be as good if not better than a year ago."

One thing visiting teams will have to do is crack the Halsey Field House jinx. The last two years, the Middies have bulled their way to a 26-2 record.

Being Good Is Not Going To Get You A Bowl Game

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Charlie McClendon sits in his office at the American Football Coaches Association's headquarters in Orlando, Fla., observing the annual scramble by the various bowl committees in search of teams.

And, he remembers what happened in 1969 when he was the coach at LSU.

LSU was left out of the bowl picture despite a 9-1 record. That may be hard to believe in these days when bowls drool over teams with 6-5 records.

"We all thought we were going to the Cotton Bowl," McClendon recalls. "The Gator Bowl representative even congratulated us on going to the Cotton Bowl. On Sunday, I was watching the films of our last game and something told me something was wrong. I called the Cotton Bowl and they told me they had decided to go with Notre Dame."

"I called a meeting of the players the next morning. I told them they weren't going to a bowl. Talk about complete silence. It was so silent it was deafening."

What happened was that Notre Dame decided to get back in the bowl picture after a lapse of 45 years. And Notre Dame being Notre Dame — well, Wilbur Evans, a former Cotton Bowl official, remembers that.

"Field Scovell, team selection chairman, and I were getting ready to go to see Penn State, which was unbeaten and a hot item, when we got word from a Notre Dame alumnus in Dallas that Notre Dame might be thinking about returning to post-season football. The Irish, by choice, had not been to a bowl in 45 years."

"We bumped into the Orange Bowl people at the motel in State College and they acted a little smug, so we figured Penn State had committed to them and before we left we learned that they were going to the Orange Bowl. We called our office on Sunday before we left State College and they suggested we call again when we got to the Pennsylvania Turnpike and again when we got to the airport in Pittsburgh."

"When we got to Pittsburgh, Notre Dame was looking mighty good, so we went to South Bend and invited them and they accepted. Getting Notre Dame was really quite unexpected."

These days, the bowls keep all their options open. Things have changed from when Bear Bryant usually kept everyone on hold and Field Scovell once told him, "Bearskin, you're the only son of a gun I know who's not only coach and athletic director but also chairman of all the bowls."

"We have a general list and we monitor each game from the start of the season," says Jim Brock, executive vice president of the Cotton Bowl. "But we really don't start taking a serious look until the middle of October and people start eliminating themselves."

"There are three things we've got to consider. One, we've got to monitor our own (Southwest Conference) race and how attractive the host team might be. Then we start looking at what teams we might have a little edge with, people we're really close to and developed a relationship with."

"Also, TV appeal and fan impact. If anybody's got a possible national championship game, they've got it made."

It's not true that bowl officials carry cyanide pellets for use in emergencies, but you would have thought so seeing the looks on the faces of the Orange Bowl representatives at Nebraska last Saturday after the No. 1 Cornhuskers lost to Oklahoma and runnerup South Carolina was beaten by Navy.

"You've got to watch your competition," says Brock. "The Fiesta Bowl is our main competition (same TV time slot). While I'm monitoring them, they're monitoring me. The Orange Bowl and Sugar Bowl are doing the same thing. That's the way the game is played. When we took Boston College, they (Fiesta Bowl) countered with Miami because they play on Friday and they think Miami's got a chance to beat them."

The bowls look at how many fans will a team bring with them to spend money and juice up a town's economy. The Orange Bowl invited Florida State in 1979 despite admonitions that FSU supporters would come to Miami with a $10-bill and the Ten Commandments and wouldn't break either one.

Among teams with a reputation for bringing large followings are Nebraska, Notre Dame, Tennessee, South Carolina, Iowa, Oklahoma and Clemson. At the other end are SMU, Washington, Maryland and Miami, but all will be in bowl games this year.

And, some teams have problems with image and lack of tradition. Like Rutgers, a surprising 7-3 but whose only bowl trip covered a distance of 50 miles or so to the now-defunct Garden State Bowl in 1978. Only Princeton has as much "tradition" as Rutgers since they played the first football in 1869, but that's not the kind of tradition the bowls are looking for.

"It does not matter what your record is," says Rutgers A.D. Fred Gruninger. "We're ranked No. 2 in the Lambert poll this week (behind Boston College) ahead of two people who are getting bowl bids (West Virginia and Army). In the future, it's going to take more hard work and great commitment on our part to produce an image that will transcend the images some committees focus in on."

Final examinations also come into play. "More schools are giving exams right before Christmas," says John Reid, executive director of the Dec. 21 Holiday Bowl.

Sad to say, bowl people have been known to prevaricate from time to time.

"I remember when I was associate athletic director at Iowa State and we were playing Oklahoma State one year," says Bob Marcum, now A.D. at South Carolina. "Lou McCullough (the Iowa State A.D.) and I were driving from Oklahoma City to Stillwater with a bowl representative who told us we'd be offered a bid win or lose."

Navy Has Solid Nucleus For Another Big Season

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of profiles of ECAC-South basketball teams for 1984-85)

Last year, one of the biggest surprises of the basketball season was the United States Naval Academy. The Middies won 24 games, finished second in the regular season in the ECACC-South with a 6-4 record, and a great many observers felt that Coach Paul Evans should have been the Coach of the Year in the conference.

This year, it will not be quite so easy for the Midshipmen to repeat that feat, mainly due to the loss of four seniors from the team, and the back-up point guard who dropped out of school due to family problems.

Of those four seniors, three were full-time starters, guard Rob Romaine, center Cliff Maurer and forward Mike Jones. The other losses include forward Gary Price, who played in all but three games and Willie Jett, who started in one game and played in all. Jett is the underclassman who had to leave school.

Romaine was the team's second leading scorer with a 13.7 average, while Maurer was number three at 12.7. He was also the number two rebounder with a 5.3 mark.

Jones hit 7.3 points a game, while Jett averaged 4.7 and Price, 3.0.

But while they are gone, two starters and the number five scorer, who played a big role in the team's success, return.

Key among the returning veterans is 6-7 Vernon Butler, a junior forward who was the team's leading scorer last year with an 18.7 average. He was also the leading rebounder, pulling 8.7 per contest and was selected to the all-conference team at season's end.

USFL Alignment Leaves Players Unemployed

NEW YORK (AP) — Its alignment for 1985 finally complete, the United States Football League is beginning to get to more mundane matters — like what to do with the extra players cut loose by the consolidation of an 18-team league to 14.

The USFL finally announced Tuesday its format for the 1985 season, its final one in the spring before it takes a year off before moving to the fall of 1986 in head-to-head competition with the NFL. There will be seven-team Eastern and Western Divisions with eight of the 14 teams qualifying for the playoffs.

Meanwhile, league officials are sitting down to work out the final arrangements for the dispersal draft of players from the merged franchises — Oakland and Michigan and Oklahoma and Arizona — and from the two franchises that have ceased operation, Chicago and Pittsburgh.

Under the tentative plans, which still have to be finalized in meetings with the USFL Players' association, a league-wide pool would be set up from which each of the 14 teams would draft players.

Oklahoma and Arizona, which have merged into one franchise to play in Phoenix, would be allowed to freezee between 30 and 35 players while the rest of the 100 or more on their rosters would go into the league-wide pool. The same would be true for Oakland and Michigan, a merged team that will play in Oakland.

Chicago, which owner Eddie Einhorn says he will reactivate when the league moves to a fall schedule in 1986, would put all of its players into the pool.

So would Pittsburgh except for three who had signed personal service contracts with owner Edward DeBartolo Sr., who is now a part owner of the league champion Stars, who have relocated from Philadelphia to Baltimore. Those three are running back Mike Rozier, the $1 million Heisman Trophy winner; quarterback Glen Carano, and defensive back Jerry Holmes.

Stars president Carl Peterson, who outlined the suggested pool arrangement following the briefing to announce the USFL's changes, said he is most interested in keeping Holmes, who has also been talking to the New York Jets, the NFL team he left to sign with Pittsburgh.

He said Rozier, who has also been talking to the NFL, would be offered to other teams in the league and so would Carano. "It would be in the interest of competitive balance to do it that way," said Peterson, whose team went 19-2 last year in winning the league championship.

The USFL for 1985 will consist of two divisions.

The East will contain New Jersey, Baltimore, Orlando, Jacksonville, Tampa Bay, Birmingham and Memphis and the West will be Denver, Los Angeles, Houston, Portland, Arizona, Oakland and San Antonio. The two top teams in each division and four wild-card teams will make the playoffs.

In other developments at Tuesday's meetings:

•Einhorn, who is heading the search for a network contract in the fall, acknowledged that he has not obtained a contract but added: "I feel as confident as I ever have that we will have a one-or-two network deal for the fall of 1986."

The USFL has a one-year, $15 million deal with ABC for spring telecasts, but the network said it is not interested in the fall. ESPN cable has a $70 million deal with the league which will carry over into the fall.

•Roy Cohn, representing the USFL in its $1.32 billion antitrust suit against the NFL, said USFL owners "have received information the NFL is going into areas with USFL teams and telling them to get rid of USFL franchises with promises of NFL franchises in the future." Cohn gave no specifics, but said there were four instances of such activity. NFL spokesman Joe Browne called the allegations "utter nonsense."

Two USFL owners, Fred Bullard of Jacksonville and Ted Dietrich of Arizona, said later that NFL teams had made inquiries about moving to their areas. But Bullard said he had been assured by city officials that they would stand by his Gator Bowl lease even if the New Orleans Saints, who have been talking with the city, should move there. And, Dietrich would say only that Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt had told him that he preferred an NFL team to the USFL.

•Simmons, who has two years left on his contract as commissioner, said he has every intention of staying on despite reports that some owners are seeking to replace him. "I have a contract," he said "I am prepared to honor that contract. And, hopefully, the league is prepared to honor that contract."

Judge Sentences Gastineau To Teach Youth Football

NEW YORK (AP) — A judge who told Mark Gastineau "the people have nothing to fear from you" has sentenced the New York Jets all-pro defensive end to 90 hours of community service — teaching football to youths ages 16 to 20 who are awaiting trial.

"The only people who need to be afraid of you are opposing football players," Criminal Court Judge Alan Marrus told Gastineau Tuesday when sentencing him for assaulting a man during a brawl at Studio 54.

Marrus ordered Gastineau to conduct 90 hours of physical education classes and a football clinic. The service is to be performed two days a week, three hours a day, at the city's jail complex on Rikers Island.

"I'm sentencing you to Rikers Island, not as an inmate but as a teacher," Marrus said. "You will be doing community service for the benefit of young people who have such a high regard for you."

Gastineau said he was "very happy about the outcome. I am very happy that I will be able to help people who need my help." The conviction carried a maximum sentence of a year in jail.

The 6-foot-5, 280-pound Gastineau was convicted Sept. 12 of assaulting John Benson, a 22-year-old Manhattan waiter, and breaking his nose during a brawl at Studio 54 on Sept. 29, 1983.

Jets quarterback Ken O'Brien, who was also charged with assault in connection with the Studio 54 fracas, was acquitted during the same trial.

Benson, in court during the sentencing, said of the judge, "That's what he found correct and you have to abide by the law, by his decision. I have no other comment." Benson reportedly has filed a civil suit in the case.

Gastineau, who turned 28 Tuesday, told the judge before sentencing that he only regretted not taking the stand to testify for himself: "If I had gotten up there I'm sure the jury would have seen it my way."

Commenting on references that assistant district attorney Jeffrey Schlanger made about his size and strength, Gastineau said, "I am aware of my size and there is nobody more aware than I about what I could do to somebody, and it would be more than a broken nose."

He also said he believed that if he had been an ordinary citizen, there never would have been a trial.

After the grid star asked the judge to consider what the incident has cost him emotionally and financially, Marrus said he would not consider sending Gastineau to jail.

Welsh Named Top Coach

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Virginia's George Welsh was the overwhelming choice as the Atlantic Coast Conference football coach of the year, giving him the honor for the second straight year.

Welsh was chosen on 84 of 99 ballots cast by the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association. Maryland's Bobby Ross received 13 votes, with single votes going to Bill Curry of Georgia Tech and Clemson's Danny Ford.

Going into Saturday's game with Maryland, Welsh has led Virginia to a 7-1-2 mark this season. Welsh had a 2-9 record his first season with the Cavaliers and a 6-5 record in 1983, which was only the third winning season for Virginia in 31 years.

Einhorn Envious Of Rozelle's Rapport With TV Networks

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Sports Writer

Eddie Einhorn, the man on whom the United States Football League is depending to negotiate the television contract that might guarantee its continued existence, has a certain amount of admiration for the way NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle handles the networks.

And a certain amount of envy.

"He knows that they operate on fear, the fear of losing something," Einhorn says. "If you threaten to take something away from them, they're even more anxious to hold on to it. Why is Brent Musburger so valuable? Because ABC may want to take him away from CBS."

Einhorn, who bought into the USFL only last spring and whose franchise won't begin operation for about two years, has become the most important man in the league. Because, unless he can put Rozellian fear into the networks and walk away with a television contract for the fall of 1986, the league may be out of business before it gets there.

Two months from beginning its third season, the USFL finally told the world officially Tuesday what it will look like for 1985, its final season in the spring — 14 teams in two seven-team divisions. Then it goes away for a year, out of public consciousness, while Einhorn tries to squeeze out some network money.

It's been a curious year for the USFL, particularly since it voted last August to make the spring-to-fall switch.

Every time the owners get together to tell the world what they've done, we get a chorus of "all is wonderful, all is well, the NFL is about to self-destruct."

Then, they go back to their respective cities and do things that show the world that all isn't well — displace Michigan and Philadelphia, the only two champions they've ever had; merge (fold) franchises; talk about firing Commissioner Chet Simmons... and on and on.

Then, they resurface for another chorus of "all is well..."

On Tuesday, the forum was the Essex House Hotel in New York City, where the assembled media was treated to a slide show with narration by Simmons. At one point, a graphic showed that 48 percent of the fans surveyed said they would watch both the NFL and USFL in the fall.

"Does that mean that 52 percent wouldn't watch?" a reporter asked Simmons.

Meanwhile, all isn't that well. Since beginning its first year with franchises in nine of the nation's Top 10 markets, the USFL has moved out of Boston, Washington, Philadelphia, Detroit and — at least for this year — Chicago. It's also on shaky ground in Los Angeles, where Jay Roulrier, the Express' third owner in three years, must try to do what his predecessors couldn't — get the blasé southern California market interested in the USFL.

Some of the USFL's high-priced players, who are suddenly being told they're moving somewhere else, want out. Mike Rozier has been negotiating with the NFL all fall; Marcus Dupree squawked about moving from New Orleans to Portland, and Anthony Carter, upon being told that Michigan will play in Oakland, says he wants to play in Miami — the Dolphins hold his NFL rights.

Einhorn acknowledges that he has yet to find a television contract to go with the three-year ESPN cable deal that will transfer to New York. He says he's more confident than ever that the league will get one, but acknowledges:

"It isn't easy. I'm the odd man out in the negotiations. I have to create some economic leverage."

So what are the USFL's alternatives?

One is money — the pockets of USFL owners are deep ones.

The second is the $1.32 billion antitrust suit against the NFL. The USFL says it's confident of winning, although it has yet to come up with any specifics that go any farther than suggesting that the NFL has tried to protect its own interests.

And the third?

Simmons likes to talk about the "Foolish Club," which is what some old American Football League owners called themselves when they founded the AFL back in 1960.

"Maybe this is Foolish Club No. 2," suggests Carl Peterson, president of the Baltimore — nee Philadelphia — Stars and the man who put together the USFL's most successful on-field franchise.

"Maybe they're foolish, but they're gamers."

Miller Joins Players In Contract Talks

NEW YORK (AP) — Marvin Miller, retired executive director of the Major League Players Association, has joined the union bargaining team for talks with management seeking a new collective bargaining agreement.

And Don Fehr, acting executive director of the players association, said he was happy to have Miller for Tuesday's session.

"Marvin will attend as an advisor, consultant, member of the bargaining team — whatever it takes to get him there, that's what I'll do," Fehr said. "The players want him there and so do I."

Also on hand for Tuesday's talks were Don Baylor of the New York Yankees, the American League player representative and New York Met teammates George Foster and Keith Hernandez.

The two sides met for more than four hours, spending most of their time discussing free agency. "It was a frank and constructive session," Fehr said.

The players association has said it might seek changes in the free agent system under which baseball has operated since 1976.

"In essence, we approach free agency with the view that there should be more flexibility for the players and the clubs, a free market without restrictions," Fehr said. "The system doesn't always operate that way. We have to see what changes should be made."

Fehr said the union had made no proposals for changes yet. "But I could write something right now," he said.

Bob Fishel, executive vice president of the American League and spokesman for the Player Relations Committee, said Tuesday's discussions also covered salary arbitration, termination pay, major league service credit, expansion, inter-league scheduling and three-division play.

"They want to know how it would impact on the players and what would be needed to protect them," Fishel said.

Talks were recessed until after baseball's winter meetings at Houston and the Players Association Executive Board meetings at Las Vegas, both scheduled Dec. 3-7.

Duke's Performance Worries UNC's Crum

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — North Carolina coach Dick Crum says that Duke has played well the past two weeks, and that concerns him as his Tar Heels prepare to take on the Blue Devils in the season-finale for both teams.

"Duke (has) developed pretty good momentum over the last two weeks. They almost beat Wake Forest, and probably should have, and then they beat N.C. State (on Saturday)," Crum said. "So, we will go into Wallace Wade Stadium with them having a win under their belt."

Duke is 2-8 overall and 1-4 in the ACC after defeating N.C. State 16-13, while North Carolina is 4-5-1 and 2-2-1 after tying Virginia 24-24.

"I think any time Duke and Carolina get together you really can't pay too much attention to who has what record," Crum said Tuesday at his weekly news conference. "You just kind of ignore it and expect that it is going to be a good, tough football game."

Crum said he doesn't expect Duke to "do a lot of things differently."

"I think they are going to line up in that eight-man front and get after us," Crum said.

The Tar Heels, meanwhile, will look to throw the ball against Duke, Crum said.

"I think we're going to have to throw it a fair amount," he said. "They play an eight-man front and they are tough against the run."

Harry Stone, an American lightweight, fought three 20-round bouts within the space of one week in 1916 in Australia.

Theus, Thompson Lead Kansas City Past Jazz

By The Associated Press
Guard Reggie Theus said the Kansas City Kings were faster. Center LaSalle Thompson said they were looser.

But most important, the scoreboard said they were winners.

The Kings, who started the season 1-8 under Coach Jack McKinney, played their first game under new Coach Phil Johnson Tuesday night and scored 22 points more than their National Basketball Association season average to defeat the Utah Jazz 129-122.

"I didn't feel as if I had a monkey on my back," said Johnson, who quit his job as a Jazz assistant coach to take over for McKinney after he resigned Sunday. "I came in 0-0; these guys had a 1-8 record. We added some things and took some things out. I wanted the players fired up, I wanted hand-slapping and cheering. They really wanted the win."

Eddie Johnson scored 25 points, Larry Drew 21 and Theus 20 to lead the Kansas City attack against the Jazz.

In other NBA games, it was Washington 120, Philadelphia 105; New York 106, Golden State 101; Dallas 109, Milwaukee 108; Houston 123, Detroit 117; Los Angeles Lakers 130, Phoenix 108; Portland 117, New Jersey 107 in overtime and Denver 124, Seattle 114.

Theus, who had been openly critical of McKinney's slowdown style, was thrilled with Kansas City's point production.

"It felt good getting up and down the court," Theus said of the Kings' speedier attack. "We haven't done that before this year. At times it was ragged, but the break was effective. Our break may not look textbook at times, but it worked."

"I felt more loose than in our previous games," said Thompson, who had 15 points and 13 rebounds for the Kings. "Everyone played well because of a psychological lift the recent changes have made."

Johnson, who previously coached the Kings from the 1973-74 season until 1978, saw his new team score the last seven points of the game to win its first home game of the season.

The game was tied 122-122 before Mark Olberding gave Kansas City the lead for good with two free throws with 51 seconds remaining.

Earlier, the Kings outscored the Jazz 24-10 in the final 5:43 of the second quarter to take a 71-57 halftime lead.

Utah, which was playing without Adrian Dantley — out with a broken toe — got 22 points from Darrell Griffith and 12 points and 19 rebounds from center Mark Eaton.

"You can't give up 71 points in a half and 39 in a quarter and expect to win at home or on the road," Utah Coach Frank Layden said. "We didn't stop them. That's the story of the game."

On playing against Johnson, Layden said: "I'm happy he won. Phil will do a good job. He's got the nucleus of a good team, so he'll do real well."

Bullets 120, 76ers 105
Washington won its sixth straight decision by outscoring Philadelphia 48-28 in a 14-minute span of the second half.

The Bullets broke away from a 68-68 tie with 3½ minutes left in the third quarter to lead the 76ers 116-96 with 1:15 to go in the game.

Gus Williams and Cliff Robinson scored 24 points each and Jeff Ruland 22 for Washington, while Charles Barkley and Moses Malone paced Philadelphia with 17 apiece.

Lakers 130, Suns 108

Earvin "Magic" Johnson had 29 points and 10 assists as Los Angeles, which started the season 3-5, tied Phoenix for first place in the Pacific Division with its fifth straight victory.

The Lakers shot a season-high 67.8 percent from the field, hitting 59 of 87 shots. They got 10 points from Larry Spriggs in the first quarter to lead 30-23, then built their advantage to 70-51 at halftime and were never threatened in the second half.

Rockets 123, Pistons 117

Houston stayed in first place in the Midwest Division as Ralph Sampson had 28 points and 17 rebounds against Detroit.

Despite the Rockets' 65-47 rebounding advantage, the Pistons led 104-103 midway through the fourth period. But Sampson, who had 16 points in the fourth period, led Houston down the stretch.

The Pistons got 23 points from Bill

Laimbeer and 22 from Dan Roundfield.

The Rockets had 72 points and 45 rebounds on its starting front line as Akeem Olajuwon had 26 points and 16 rebounds and Rodney McCray added 18 points and 11 rebounds.

Nuggets 124, SuperSonics 114
Denver won its sixth straight game to stay one-half game behind Houston in the Midwest.

The Nuggets got 25 points from Alex English and 23 from Calvin Natt against the SuperSonics, who were led by Tom Chambers with 21.

English gave Denver the lead for good at 24-23 in the first quarter and he scored 12 points in the final nine minutes of the third quarter, hitting five of six field goals in that span.

Trail Blazers 117, Nets 107
Portland outscored New Jersey 15-5 in overtime to pull within a half-game of first place in the Pacific Division.

The Trail Blazers trailed 102-98 with 10 seconds left in regulation before Kiki Vandeweghe, who led all scorers with 28 points, hit a jump shot and Clyde Drexler stole the ball and hit two free throws to force the overtime. A 9-0 Portland streak settled the game in the extra period.

Otis Birdsong led the Nets with 20 points.

Mavericks 109, Bucks 108

Dallas led by 16 points on five occasions, but had to hold on at the end to beat Milwaukee.

The Mavericks, who got 24 points from Mark Aguirre, took the lead for good at 100-98 with 1:36 left on a basket by Rolando Blackman and built their advantage to 109-103 with nine seconds to go.

A three-point basket by Sidney Moncrief, who led all scorers with 33 points, and a layup by Mike Dunleavy finished the scoring.

Knicks 106, Warriors 101

Bernard King scored 28 points and New York got season-high totals from Butch Carter, Pat Cummings and Darrell Walker to outlast Golden State.

King is averaging nearly 30 points per game, while no one else on the team is netting more than 13. But Carter's 22 points, 21 by Cummings and 17 by Walker kept the Knicks in front of the Warriors.

Toll In Marine Helicopter Crash Climbs

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — It will take four to six months to determine what caused one of the Marines' newest and largest helicopters to burst into flames and crash, killing six servicemen and injuring 11 others, a Marine spokesman said.

Capt. Dave Winston, aviation safety officer for Marine Heavy Helicopter Squadron 464, said it would take four to six months to determine what caused the fire and crash of the CH-53E Super Stallion Monday afternoon.

Hunt Sees Education Hurting

By TOM MINEHART
AP Business Writer

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Government may soon be so occupied in reducing the federal deficit that business will have to take a larger role in aiding schools, Gov. Jim Hunt says.

"The years ahead may be more difficult," Hunt said when he bestowed the 1984 Governor's Business Awards in Mathematics and Science Education. "The national deficit must be dealt with, and that could make it far tougher for us to do our job at the state and local levels."

The awards, given to 11 businesses and 16 teachers, are sponsored by the North Carolina Business Committee for Math-Science Education. The teachers were recognized for outstanding classroom work and for developing new programs in science and math, while the businesses were honored for contributions of money, equipment and expertise to schools.

The committee, comprised of executives representing 63 businesses in North Carolina, was formed two years ago to encourage such aid. It has helped established 78 "partnerships" between businesses and schools around the state in the past year, sponsored workshops for math and science teachers and provided scholarships for students and teachers.

Hunt, who gave the awards Monday night, says businesses are actually helping themselves this way because they help train the skilled workers they need to prosper. And good schools are a prime factor in attracting more business to the state, he added.

"Business must do for public schools what business has been doing for colleges and universities for years," the governor said.

"Our children need broad, all encompassing education to live in a changing world," he said. "But math and science are the linchpins that hold it all together."

The businesses winning awards were:

— Barclays American Corp. of Charlotte, which has donated time, money, computers and software to schools. Its retired chairman, Bland W. Worley, is also chairman of the Business Committee for Math-Science Education.

— General Telephone Co. of the Southeast. The Durham-based company sponsored a $100,000 fellowship program to recognize 22 outstanding teachers of science and math.

— Data General Corp. of Clayton, which donated a $35,000 computer system, along with instruction and maintenance, to Clayton High School.

— Carolina Power & Light Co. of Raleigh, which gave more than $27,250 in 1984 for various math and science education projects.

— Texasgulf Chemicals Co. Phosphate Operations of Aurora, which contributes $6,000 a year to local schools for math and science.

— Burroughs Wellcome Co. of Research Triangle Park, which donated $150,000 to establish a chemistry laboratory at the North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics in Durham.

— Weyerhaeuser Co. of Plymouth, which has donated some $20,000 in 1984 for curriculum improvement.

— First Citizens Bank and Trust Co. of North Wilkesboro, which contributed $10,000 to the Wilkes Education Fund.

— Dover Textiles Inc., PPG Industries Inc. and Union Carbide Corp. of Shelby, which joined to form an Industry-Education Task Group active in local schools.

— International Business Machines of Charlotte. IBM has donated about $500,000 in cash, computers, software and time to the local school system.

— Intercraft Industries Corp. of Statesville, which donated $500 for computer equipment to a local elementary school and 1,080 hours of employee time for reading and math tutoring.

Seventeen soldiers were aboard the huge helicopter when it caught fire and hit the ground Monday afternoon while lifting a heavy artillery piece, a 155mm howitzer.

Rescuers found three of the dead Monday and the other three Tuesday morning, said Capt. Norma Stewart of New River Air Station.

The burned and mangled wreckage was surrounded by guards Tuesday. The helicopter was broken in two, with the rear section twisted and one engine lying on the ground. The rotors were snapped off.

Bits of burned debris were scattered around the flat landing zone, and the howitzer the helicopter was lifting sat upright, but tilted.

Camp Lejeune spokesman Capt. Craig Fisher said some of the 11 injured suffered bruised internal organs, but "most are fractured bones, arms and legs. People are in serious condition, but the prognosis is good."

Five of the six dead were identified as Brian R. Jones, 32, of Harlan, Iowa; Lance Cpl. Scott A. McEneaney, 23, of Fairport, N.Y.;

Pfc. Kevin J. Kaiser, 19, of Kenmore, N.Y.; Cpl. Ricky C. Williams, 23, of Sumter, S.C.; and Lance Cpl. David D. Wells, 22, of Salem, Ind.

Fisher later said Williams and Wells were listed as presumed dead because no positive identification had been made.

Jones was identified as the helicopter pilot and McEneaney as a member of the flight crew. The others were members of B Battery, 1st Battalion, 10th Marine Regiment.

The injured Marines were taken to the U.S. Naval Hospital on base, Lt. S.B. Jack said.

Maj. Anthony Rothfork, a Marine spokesman in Washington, said the helicopter crashed. But Lance Cpl. Greg Fedorev of New River Air Station just south of Camp Lejeune said he could not confirm that.

"There was a fire on board ... but as far as I know it hasn't been confirmed that there was a crash," said Fedorev.

Jack said military officials were calling the accident a "hard landing," but that it was not clear if the helicopter crashed.

The fire broke out around 2:30 p.m. while the craft was over "Landing Zone Penguin" at Camp Lejeune, Fedorev said.

The helicopter was on a routine training mission in support of the 1st Battalion, 10th Marines, Jack said.

The occupants of another helicopter flying nearby radioed the air station about the fire, Ms. Stewart said.

Sgt. Ann Purcell of New River Air Station said the CH-53E, commissioned in 1981, was the Marines' newest and largest helicopter. Its capacity is 55 troops or 32,200 pounds, she said.

The injured, all members of B Battery, 1st Battalion, 10th Marine Regiment, and their conditions late Tuesday were:

Sgt. Randy Golden, 28, of Philadelphia, Pa., fair condition; Lance Cpl. Kenneth Jamison, 20, of Syracuse, N.Y., good; Lance Cpl. Michael Washington, 19, Tampa, Fla., good; Pfc. Robert Johnson, 19, of Clermont, Pa., good; Pfc. Anthony Pisani, 19, of Kingwood, Texas, good; Pfc. John Rees Jr., 19, of Accokeek, Md., fair; Pfc. Larry D. Hickman, 20, of Chattanooga, Tenn., good; Lance Cpl. Jeff Stidham, 20, of Wooster, Ohio, good; 1st Lt. Thomas Weber, 24, Denton, Md., good; and Lance Cpl. Jeff Ballard, 20, Conroe, Texas, fair.

The eleventh injured serviceman, whose name has not been released, is in fair, officials said.

WRECKAGE — Members of a Marine Corps crash team search the wreckage of a CH-53E helicopter that crashed on the base Monday. Three more bodies were found in the wreckage Tuesday, raising to six the number killed when the helicopter crashed. Eleven others were injured. (AP Laserphoto)

Appellate Court Says Parents May Sue In 'Wrongful' Births

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — In the first ruling of its kind in North Carolina, the state Court of Appeals has said that a child with a genetic disorder and his parents may file a medical malpractice suit for "wrongful birth."

The court ruled Tuesday that the child and his parents may sue doctors for allegedly failing to tell the mother about a pregnancy test which she said would have shown an abnormal fetus and led to an abortion.

It's the first time the court has determined whether North Carolina laws permit a "wrongful life" or "wrongful birth" as cause for a medical malpractice lawsuit, the opinion said.

"We are unwilling, and indeed unable to say as a matter of law that life, even with the most severe and debilitating of impairments, is always preferable to nonexistence," Judge Cecil Hill wrote in the Appeals Court ruling.

The ruling came in the case of 5-year-old Michael L. Azzolino, who has Down's Syndrome. The permanent genetic disorder is characterized by mental retardation and other physical abnormalities.

The child's mother, Jane Azzolino, said she received prenatal care from family nurse practitioner Jean Dowdy and Dr. James R. Dingfelder at the Haywood-Moncre Community Health Center in Chatham County, which is operated by Orange-Chatham Comprehensive Health Services Inc.

Dingfelder was on the staff of N.C. Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill but he spent one-half of one day a week at the Chatham County center.

In the "wrongful birth" claim, Mrs. Azzolino and her husband, Louis, charge that Ms. Dowdy and Dingfelder were negligent because they failed to advise Mrs. Azzolino about amniocentesis and available genetic counseling.

Amniocentesis is a surgical procedure in which a hollow needle is inserted through the abdominal wall into the uterus to extract fluid from the sac enclosing the embryo. The fluid is analyzed to determine the presence of disease or genetic defects.

The Azzolinos charged that proper advice would have prompted Mrs. Azzolino to have had amniocentesis and, when she learned the fetus had Down's Syndrome, she would have sought an abortion.

The "wrongful life" claim by Michael charges that as a result of the negligence of Ms. Dowdy and Dingfelder he was born and damaged "by the virtue of his very existence."

Michael's half-sister, Regina Mary Gallagher, and his half-brother, David John Azzolino, also alleged that they suffered because of Michael's birth.

The claims by Michael and his half-siblings were dismissed in Chatham Superior Court in December 1982 at least partly because they failed to state a claim for which relief could be granted.

The parents' claim went to trial but the judge ruled in favor of the defendants after presentation of evidence by the Azzolinos and before the case went to the jury.

The Appeals Court decision, written by Hill with Judge Gerald Arnold and Judge Hugh Wells concurring, partly upheld and partly reversed the lower court decision.

The Appeals Court ruled that the "wrongful life" claim by Michael should have been tried and that there was enough evidence to consider whether Dingfelder and Orange-Chatham Comprehensive Health Services, as operator of the clinic, were negligent in the parents' claim.

It ruled, however, that the lower court judge was correct in dismissing the half-siblings' claims because they had no legal stake in the proceedings and in dismissing negligence charges against Ms. Dowdy because Mrs. Azzolino said the nurse's advice did not change her mind about the need for amniocentesis.

Hill acknowledged in the opinion that many courts have not permitted "wrongful life" cases saying there was no legally recognized injury and no appropriate damages to be determined.

The court said the child, not the parents, should be awarded damages to cover the extraordinary cost of the child's care.

Senator Suggests Helms Worried Over Committee

By The Associated Press

Sen. Jesse Helms might reconsider a campaign promise to remain as Agriculture Committee chairman if that's necessary to block a liberal Republican from taking over the Foreign Relations Committee, says a senator whose fate is intertwined with Helms.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said Helms is "very worried" that the chairmanship of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee might fall to Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md.

Although Lugar said Monday that he was "reasonably confident" that he would become the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, he also is making a bid to become Senate majority leader. He said Helms is concerned about the chairmanship of the Foreign Relations Committee going to Mathias in that event.

Lugar told reporters Monday that he had talked with Helms last week by telephone.

"He just said we must keep in touch," Lugar said. "His feeling is that he wants to retain the agriculture chairmanship. He did say he was very worried about the foreign relations committee in the event that I am not the chairman of it."

"I think he was concerned about the succession of chairman after me (to Mathias) to the point that he would have to consider, I suppose, what his course of action would be," Lugar said.

Lugar said he was "reasonably confident," but not certain that Helms would remain as agriculture chairman.

Lugar also would be in line to become agriculture chairman if Helms relinquishes the post for foreign relations. If he took the agriculture chairmanship, Lugar said he would pursue "substantial changes" in federal farm programs, including the tobacco program, that would reduce or eliminate production controls and guaranteed prices for farmers. Lugar said he would not single out the tobacco program for changes.

Lugar is considered a main contender in the battle to succeed Sen. Howard Baker Jr., who retired as majority leader this year. The 53 Republican senators who control the chamber will vote by secret ballot to pick the new leader, and none of the five contenders appear to have a grip on the election.

Other contenders include Sens. James A. McClure, R-Idaho, Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kansas, Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., and Ted Stevens, R-Alaska.

Lugar and Helms' fate are intertwined by their mutual membership on the foreign relations and agriculture committees, the election defeat of current foreign relations chairman Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., and Helms' campaign promise to remain as agriculture chairman.

Helms is senior to Lugar on both committees and has the choice whether to keep the agriculture chairmanship or take the foreign relations post. As next in line, Lugar would be eligible for either committee chairmanship if he is not elected leader. The majority leader may not head a committee.

Missing Trawler Still Unreported

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — Authorities said they still had not made contact with the Amazing Grace as the Coast Guard's search for the Hampton-based Trawler reached its sixth day.

Two Coast Guard aircraft and two C-130s piloted by the Air National Guard were scanning a 20,000-square-mile stretch of sea Tuesday in search of the trawler, said Petty Officer 2nd Class Greg Creedon, a spokesman for the 3rd Coast Guard District in New York, which is conducting the search.

The Coast Guard Tuesday identified John Davis, Jimmy Bowers, James Rainer, Don Hancock, Darrio Perez and David Ruffin as crewmen of the Amazing Grace. Their addresses were not available, but all were believed to be from the Hampton area.

The boat's captain, Paul Robles, 30, of Arkansas Pass, Texas, was identified earlier.

The 87-foot trawler was last heard from off Cape May, N.J., one week ago.

The $500,000 trawler is owned by Wanchese Fish Co. of Wanchese, N.C., but it had been operating with a seven-man crew out of Hampton on recent scalloping trips.

"Most of the crew is from the Hampton area. They have been in this area for a while," said Tim Daniels, vice president of the fish company.

Creedon said no contact has been made with the vessel during the Coast Guard's six-day search, which began last Thursday.

The last communication from the Amazing Grace came Wednesday from Robles. The crew was scalloping 90 miles off the New Jersey coast when he radioed to his older brother that the vessel had been hit by heavy seas. The captain told Cecil Robles — master of the Atlantic Pride, another Wanchese Fish trawler — that some water had flooded the engine room of the Amazing Grace.

"We just don't know what happened after that," said Joey Daniels, the treasurer of Wanchese Fish Co., one of the largest seafood companies on the East Coast.

Creedon said the search for the steel-hulled trawler, built in Alabama in 1978, is being concentrated off the coasts of New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland.

The cutter Chilula and other Coast Guard vessels will continue to patrol the area, Creedon said. He said the Coast Guard would decide at sunset whether to extend the search into Wednesday.

"Our captains think the Amazing Grace is still afloat," said Joey Daniels, another Wanchese official. "We think the boat lost electrical power and communications. We also think the Amazing Grace may have been farther out in the Gulf Stream than we thought. And if this is the case, the boat may be much farther north."

Boyles Wants More Leeway For School Units

RALEIGH (AP) — There must be "substantial trimming" of a $691 million proposal to provide a basic education program throughout the state, state Treasurer Harlan Boyles said.

Boyles, chairman of the subcommittee of the N.C. Public Education Policy Council's finance committee, said the group will propose sweeping changes to allow local school boards more leeway in deciding how to spend more money.

The small group was appointed by the council to outline specific divisions of financial responsibility for schools and steps to phase in the basic education program.

"The concept we're advancing will require almost a complete re-evaluation of the mandates coming from the state," he said in an interview Tuesday following a subcommittee meeting.

But state Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, said it could take three years to put the program in place but said he didn't foresee major changes in it.

Hardison said it also became evident to the Council's Finance Committee in a two-day meeting that it will take years to implement the basic education program designed by the state Board of Education. It is estimated the proposal would add $691 million to the current $1.9 billion public education budget. School facility needs are estimated at another $2.2 billion.

The plan is set to be phased in with $90 million being spent in 1985-87.

"You can't do it in one year to save your life," Hardison said. "It will have to be phased in but you have got to have a basic program."

The recommendations made by the subcommittee Tuesday include doing away with requiring primary school teacher aides and allowing local school boards to increase class sizes, if they choose, in order to use money in other areas.

The state currently has about 12,337 teacher aides, costing nearly $117 million a year.

But the chairman of the state Board of Education said the board has opposed making teacher aides optional in kindergarten-to-third-grade classes.

"The board felt the K-3 program in our state is one of the best in the nation," board chairman C.D. Spangler said in an interview.

He said he questioned whether state legislators would support a proposal to allow local school systems to increase class sizes.

State legislators repeatedly have "recognized what the teachers tell them: that the class sizes are too large," Spangler said.

The subcommittee is scheduled to report to the full council next week. The council will then advise the General Assembly on how to design and pay for a statewide curriculum program designed to offer a uniform, basic education to all North Carolina public school students.

Ed Regan, fiscal analyst for the N.C. Association of County Commissioners, said his group's concern has been the lack of clarity as to who pays which educational bills. He said the basic education program and the definition of financial responsibility are "the single most important thing we've done for education since the 30s."

"Every child in the state deserves an opportunity for the same education and the only way ... is funding (for instructional programs) by the state," Regan said.

Regan said parents now are confused about who to turn to if their child is not receiving a proper education or if the school has a leaky roof.

"We (the state) would be concentrating our responsibility on educating the children," Hardison agreed.

Some groups have expressed concern, however, that such a plan does not take into account the differing ability of counties to pay for facilities. Regan said his group does not see an insurmountable problem. Hardison said there is no way to eliminate the differences.

Meanwhile, members of the Education Policy Council tentatively agreed to urge the 1985 General Assembly to let the state pay for school instructional programs and local governments pay for school buildings.

The division of responsibility follows the outline of the Education Reform Act passed by the General Assembly earlier this year and of proposals offered by the N.C. Association of County Commissioners.

NBC Denies MacDonald Claim That Film Will Hurt New Trial

By LYNNELBER
Associated Press Writer
SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — NBC, which scored a ratings triumph with a two-part dramatization of the Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald murder case, denied that the broadcast may hurt MacDonald's bid for a new trial.

MacDonald's attorney had termed the broadcast "inappropriate" and potentially harmful to his client's new trial motion, for which final arguments are to be presented Jan. 14 in a Raleigh, N.C., federal court.

"NBC believes that its broadcast of 'Fatal Vision' was entirely proper and appropriate and that the airing of the program will in no way prejudice the rights of Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald," NBC attorney Donald Zachary said Tuesday.

"'Fatal Vision' was based upon a well-documented book by Joe McGinniss, and every statement contained in the program could be fully substantiated," Zachary added.

MacDonald is serving three consecutive life terms for the murders of his pregnant wife and two young daughters in 1970, when he was a Green Beret captain at Fort Bragg near Raleigh.

MacDonald claimed a band of drug-crazed hippies committed the murders.

But McGinniss' book chronicled the author's transition from believing MacDonald innocent to being convinced of his guilt.

MacDonald's attorney, Brian O'Neill, said the MacDonald shown in the dramatization was "not even close" to the physician, who he said is "a real good man. The character in that book is not a real good man."

"NBC presented a movie which purported to be factual, but which excluded practically every piece of evidence consistent with Dr. MacDonald's innocence," O'Neill said in a telephone interview.

"More importantly, NBC presented this account knowing of the existence of newly discovered evidence, which invalidates the government's circumstantial theory of the case and demonstrates that four other people committed the crimes and later admitted doing so," he said.

Gary Cole, Karl Malden and Eva Marie Saint starred in the television show, which aired Sunday and Monday. Sunday's episode was the top-rated program in the A.C. Nielsen prime-time ratings for the week that ended Sunday night, and Nielsen overnight surveys of nine cities indicate that Monday's conclusion was seen in at least 60 million households.

Earlier Tuesday, on NBC's "Today Show," civil liberties attorney Floyd Abrams said he rejected O'Neill's argument that the TV movie might make it impossible to find an impartial jury if MacDonald wins a new trial.

There is no reason "to think that the people of Raleigh or North Carolina were so mesmerized by this program that all of them saw and all them are unable to put aside what they saw," Abrams said.

BRIAN O'NEILL
MacDonald Attorney

"The first part isn't true, because all of them didn't see it, and the second part is inconsistent with our history: John De Lorean was acquitted despite the most massive pretrial publicity showing him committing the crime, no less. I think you're exaggerating the risks here," Abrams said.

O'Neill countered that the situations were not analogous because De Lorean's trial took place in Los Angeles, a large community, while MacDonald would be tried in Raleigh, where the "man in the street" knows everything about the MacDonald case.

CP&L Rate Hike Less Than Half

RALEIGH (AP) — Some Carolina Power & Light Co. customers will see their power bill increase between $3 to $6, but others will see their rates drop under a ruling by the state Utilities Commission.

The commission, acting on a recommendation from a panel made up of three commission members, approved a 5.35 percent increase, or $64.3 million jump, for CP&L Tuesday. The electric company had originally requested a 12.6 percent increase that would have generated $151.6 million annually.

The commission estimates the bill of a typical residential customer using 1,000 kilowatts will increase from about $69.98 per month to about $72.42 per month from October through May and from $71.98 to $78.03 from June through September.

However, customers who were overbilled when CP&L put in an interim rate increase in September will actually see their monthly bill decline $1.41, to $72.42 from $73.83.

Health Educator Says Leaf Costly

By The Associated Press
The demise of tobacco may be inevitable when the increasing efforts of government and private industry to control health care costs are considered, a health educator says.

Lawrence W. Green, director of the Center for Health Research and Development at the University of Texas, said cigarettes have created "a tremendous bill for the care of cancer, heart disease, stroke, bronchitis and emphysema patients who are victims of cigarettes and smoking."

The emphasis in health care has shifted from acute communicable diseases to chronic illness, and from treatment to prevention, he said.

"Clearly, if you had to pick one behavior of the American public that could be changed that accounts for the largest proportion of preventable death, it would be smoking," Green said.

Green, speaking at a press conference before a lecture at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, said he realized that tobacco had enormous economic importance to North Carolina, which leads the nation in tobacco and cigarette manufacturing.

But Green urged the industry to tackle the issue head-on within their organizations and come "to a consensus about their goals and their obligations to the public in terms of tobacco and cigarettes."

Green said he once worked for former U.S. Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano, who "took his licks primarily because he tangled with North Carolina on tobacco."

"You have those who place a high value on health and feel the government subsidy of the tobacco industry is a gross hypocrisy, and others to whom tobacco is an economic and pleasure issue, who say live and let live."

Green said tobacco is becoming an inherent contradiction.

"It accounts for about 30 percent of all the cancer, about 50 percent of heart disease, almost all of the emphysema and a large portion of the deaths by fire," he said.

The death of Waldemar von Zedtwitz last month in Hawaii at the age of 88 brings to an end the era of the founders of contract bridge. He was the favorite partner of Harold S. Vanderbilt, the father of contract bridge, and a member of Ely Culbertson's teams as well as a contributor to the Culbertson system. He gave much to the game as a player, theoretician and administrator.

Perhaps his greatest triumph was winning the World Mixed Pairs title at the 1970 Olympiad in Stockholm. Then 74 years old and with failing eyesight that required the cards in dummy and each card that was played to be called out to him, he played excellent bridge through four strenuous sessions to win the title with Floridian Barbara Brier. This hand is from that event, and featured a clash with the pair that was to finish second.

Sitting North, von Zedtwitz carefully painted a picture of his hand by first reversing and then supporting partner's suit. When partner still insisted on no trump, he yielded.

West led a spade to East's ace. The return of the jack was won in the closed hand, and the nine of clubs was finessed successfully. Declarer came to hand with the king of clubs, cashed her remaining spade honor, then got back to the table with a high heart to run clubs. She ended up with 11 tricks for 192 of 222 matchpoints.

On auctions such as these, declarer usually has a sound stopper in the unbid suit. The weakness is often the strong hand's second suit. Had West led a diamond, declarer would have been held to nine tricks and 115 matchpoints, and the first- and second-place finishers would have been reversed.

Wilmington Axes Sunday Blue Law

WILMINGTON (AP) — After more than a year of debate, the Wilmington City Council has voted unanimously to repeal the city's Sunday closing ordinance.

The vote takes effect Sunday, giving shoppers and merchants five extra shopping days before Christmas — all of them Sundays.

Mayor William Schwartz, who had consistently voted over the past year to retain the ordinance, said more than 10,000 voters signed petitions favoring repeal of the ordinance.

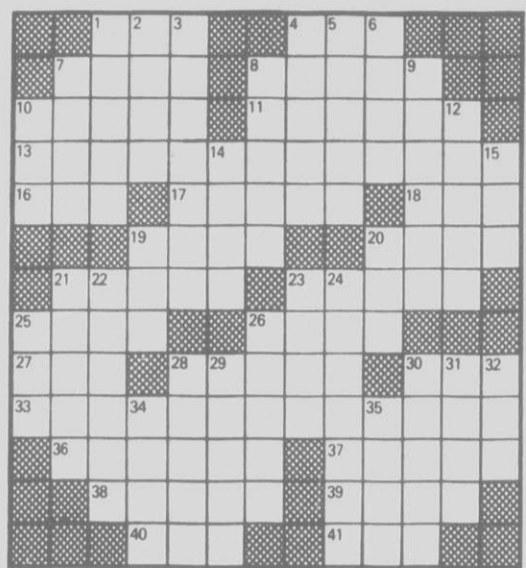

The action eliminates all regulation of Sunday sales, but Schwartz said he expects few businesses to open before 1 p.m. on Sunday.

Today's Cryptiquip clue: L equals W

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Charlotte Youth Get Tales Of War From Teen Visitors

By TOM MINEHART
 Associated Press Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Some of the young people at St. John's Baptist Church said the six teenagers from Northern Ireland, the Middle East, Central America and other embattled lands really brought the war home to them.

"I knew there were wars, but I didn't know about these killings of little 14-year-old kids," Ronnie Bozart, 16, said after Tuesday's "Children of War" forum. "It really touched me to know what's happening."

"I had no idea they put people in prison like that in Guatemala and Palestine," said David Greene, 16, who was also among the 75 spectators in the church basement. "They don't tell you about that in school."

The program was organized by the Brooklyn-based Religious Task Force-Mobilization for Survival. In groups of six, 36 teen-agers visited 36 U.S. cities during November. The group coming to Charlotte also went to Miami, Tampa, Orlando, Louisville, Birmingham and Atlanta. It was sponsored by the North Carolina Sane Education Fund — an anti-nuclear-war group — and other organizations including Physicians for Social Responsibility, Episcopal Peace Fellowship, Assumption Catholic Church and Clergy and Laity Concerned.

"I'm sure they have been coached some," said spectator Bill Tritt, 59. "But the underlying message is from the children themselves. ... It's just awesome that somehow ... these stories are not getting told."

"It makes me awfully sad, and proud of these young people who are trying to talk about peace," said Kathleen Stout, 54. "It's a shame us adults don't do more. ... It just made me feel more the horrorfulness of it all."

Donal Daly, 14, a Catholic from Northern Ireland, spoke of the violence between Protestants and Catholics there, but he said it was a political conflict, not religious. He said that in 1980, he saw his mother assassinated in their home, and that British soldiers "have killed children going to shops."

Marvyn Perez, 17, of Guatemala said he was arrested and tortured after becoming involved in a student movement in junior high school. He said police shot one of his friends in the head as he watched.

"The U.S. government sends arms and supplies to Guatemala," he said. "These arms are used to kill my people. Please ask the government to stop sending arms." Lieneke Boesak, 14, daughter of a black clergyman fighting racial segregation in South Africa, said she saw children killed and jailed for protesting apartheid.

"Peace and justice can be obtained if everyone works together," she said.

Each of the six groups included an American, and the one in Charlotte's group was Brianna Latham, 14, of Nashville, Tenn. Maysoun Abbad, a 15-year-old Palestinian girl from a refugee camp near Bethlehem, said one of her friends was kidnapped by Israeli authorities and that his body later turned up in a garbage dump. "She never said that before," said Yuval Shilon, 15, of Israel. "It's just not true. This is the last stop on our tour, and we have never had a fight."

Daly stopped the argument by grabbing the microphone and saying "Peace, brother," and the audience applauded. Later, Shilon and Miss Abbad hugged as a guitar-playing folk singer led spectators in "We Shall Overcome."

Mistrial Declared In Trial Of Cook

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — A mistrial has been declared in the murder trial of former Army cook Richard Dale Johnson, accused in the 1983 death of a department store executive.

Cumberland County Superior Court Judge Coy E. Brewer Jr. declared the mistrial Tuesday after the jury reported it could not reach the required unanimous decision in the case against Johnson, charged with the slaying of Belk-Tyler vice president Luther A. Bailey of Rocky Mount.

Suffocation

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — A worker at a feed mill suffocated Monday after he fell into a grain elevator containing 15 feet of wheat bran.

Joe McLendon, 38, was pronounced dead at the scene by a medical examiner at the W.A. Davis Milling Co. He had been a regular employee of the company since January, 1983, but had worked on and off at the mill for at least 15 years.

The eight-woman, four-man jury, which deliberated about seven hours Monday and Tuesday, was deadlocked 10-2 favoring conviction, jury foreman Dr. Richard Shereff said.

Johnson's case will be rescheduled for another trial within 120 days, Assistant District Attorney John Dickson said.

Meanwhile, Johnson, 37, is being held in the Cumberland County Jail where he has been without bond since May 1983.

Bailey, 56, who supervised 15 stores in the eastern part of the state, was found strangled in a motel room in February 1983.

According to police testimony, Johnson told officers he could not recall whether he killed Bailey and wanted to remember what happened when Bailey died.

The prosecution maintained that the individual pieces of evidence, taken together, pointed to Johnson's guilt. The defense argued that the evidence raised suspicion and conjecture but did not connect Johnson with the murder.

Workers Balk Over Changes

RALEIGH (AP) — State employees are concerned and irritated about a proposal to cut hospitalization plan benefits and increase premiums, the head of the State Employees Association of North Carolina says.

Durward F. "Butch" Gunnells said association officials will talk with the Board of Trustees of the Major Medical Plan before the board meets Dec. 12 to decide on the proposal.

The board is considering whether to reduce benefits Jan. 1, 1985, and increase premiums July 1, 1985, to offset a projected $48 million deficit in the plan.

Gunnells, whose group represents 47,000 state workers, said SEANC learned several months ago that changes might be coming but probably not before next summer.

"We had expected at least an opportunity to explore any and all alternatives to lessen the financial blow to our employees," he said.

About 85,000 state employees and their families are covered by the hospital plan.

CBS, NBC Share Top Ratings For Week

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — CBS was the top network and NBC's "Fatal Vision" the No. 1 show during a week in which the miniseries continued its proven popularity, while Bill Cosby and Tom Selleck landed a devastating one-two punch against an ABC boxing special.
The first installment of "Fatal Vision," the two-part drama about Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald, who was convicted of beating and stabbing to death his pregnant wife and their two children, posted a 29.5 rating, meaning nearly 30 percent of the nation's 84.9 million TV homes were watching.
NBC estimated "Fatal Vision" attracted 60 million viewers.

The week's other miniseries, CBS' "Ellis Island," also performed well. Part two finished ninth in the ratings, part three was 17th.
"Ellis Island," along with No. 2 "Dallas," No. 3 "60 Minutes" and No. 4 "Simon & Simon," propelled CBS to a first-place finish for the week of Nov. 12-18, according to figures released Tuesday by the A.C. Nielsen Co.
CBS averaged a 17.9 rating, NBC a 17.3 rating and ABC suffered its worst week during a November sweeps since 1968 with a 14.5 rating.
During the important sweeps months of November, February and May, ratings for local stations are measured and used to set future advertising rates.
For the season, CBS has averaged a 17.0 rating, NBC a 16.7 and ABC a 15.1.

ABC, which has broadcast the most popular miniseries of all time — "Roots," "The Thorn Birds" and "The Winds of War" — has no miniseries scheduled for 1984, but plans "Hollywood Wives" and "Lace II" for the winter and spring of 1985.
Marvin Mord, vice president for marketing and research, said ABC considered moving one of its 1985 miniseries to November, but "those kinds of series require a significant amount of lead time, and they just weren't available."
ABC, which has been successful in the past with prime-time sports broadcasts, fell flat with former Olympic boxers in their professional debuts. The two-hour boxing telecast was 65th out of 66 shows.

Except for the Olympics, "the only boxing that has ever done well in prime time is heavyweight boxing," said David Poltrack, CBS' vice president of research.
Mord said he was surprised by the low boxing ratings, which were even worse than the weak showings of ABC's regular Thursday night entertainment lineup. "There was no indication that the audience wouldn't treat this as a special event," he said.
In comparison, the network competition on Thursday night all finished in the top 25: CBS' "Simon & Simon" was fourth, NBC's "The Cosby Show" was sixth, NBC's "Family Ties" was seventh, Selleck's "Magnum, P.I." on CBS was eighth, NBC's "Cheers" was 14th and NBC's "Night Court" was 25th.
ABC's "Monday Night Football."

suffering the worst ratings in its 16-year history, had its best broadcast last week with the game between the Los Angeles Raiders and the Seattle Seahawks. The game drew a 19.4 rating, finishing 13th for the week.
ABC's one top 10 show was "Dynasty."

What's In A Name?

Did you know that "Candide" was written by Francois Marie Arouet? That was the real name of the French author and philosopher Voltaire, born on this day in 1694. Many performers know that a name can make all the difference. For instance, would "Annie Hall" have fallen for Allen Stewart Konigsberg (Woody Allen)? How could any parent object to Vincent Damon Furnier (Alice Cooper)? And who would remember Dale Evans and Leonard Slye (Roy Rogers)?

DO YOU KNOW — By what name does the world now know Frederick Austerlitz?

Ceremony Cut

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The roar of the crowd is nothing new to pop idol Michael Jackson, but even the silvery-gloved wonder had to cut to three minutes the ceremony to unveil his star on Hollywood Boulevard's Walk of Fame when 5,000 fans pushed to get a glimpse of him.

Several fans fainted and at least three were injured in Tuesday's ceremonies outside Mann's Chinese Theater, police said.

Student Prince

CAMBRIDGE, England (AP) — Prince Edward, acclaimed for his role as a judge in "The Crucible" a year ago, has turned to comedy, taking on "Sid the Swordseller," a green giant and a dragon in a new student play.

The youngest son of Queen Elizabeth II appears beginning Friday in "Captain Curious and His Incredible Quest," staged by students at Cambridge University, where he is studying history.

British TV Still Finds Fascination In Indian Setting

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Thirty-seven years after the British left India, they remain fascinated by the subcontinent. It shows these days in a blitz of TV series and movies about a land Queen Victoria called "the jewel in the crown."

Aptly, that's the title of a $7 million TV blockbuster about the last days of the Raj that's set to begin on public television's "Masterpiece Theatre" Dec. 16.

The 14-part production is based on Paul Scott's "Raj Quartet," an epic, labyrinthine narrative that depicts the love-hate relationship between imperial Britain and India.

"The Jewel in the Crown," like the acclaimed "Brideshead Revisited," was produced by Granada Television, a Manchester-based station in Britain's commercial network that has built a reputation for quality programs.

The series comes in the wake of Sir Richard Attenborough's Oscar-winning "Gandhi," James Ivory's movie of the Ruth Praver Jhabvala novel "Heat and Dust" and the HBO adaptation of M.M. Kaye's "The Far Pavilions."

And there's more to come. Director David Lean, 75, went to Bangalore to shoot a $16 million production of E.M. Forster's "A Passage To India," his first film in 14 years.

"Jewel" depicts the squalor and the brutality of India, with Indians playing Indians, unlike the sanitized "Pavilions" which starred Omar Sharif, Rossano Brazzi and Amy Irving, all playing Indians.

It opens in February 1942 when the advancing Japanese were knocking on the door and ends in 1947 on the eve of independence as sectarian massacres herald the partition of the subcontinent into predominantly Hindu India and Moslem Pakistan.

Sir Dennis Forman, Granada's chairman, fell under the spell of India when he was based there as an army officer in World War II.

To unravel Scott's tapestry of flashbacks and multilayered narrative, Forman put the story into chronological order on a 25-foot roll of paper that stretched around his office.

"I was obsessed with it," he said in an interview. "The Quartet is an epic story on the scale of 'War and Peace.'"

The characters are metaphors for their countries. The Quartet's doomed lovers are flawlessly played by two unsung actors, Art Malik, the British-educated son of an Indian eye surgeon, and Susan Wooldridge.

Malik is Hari Kumar, an Anglo-Indian, educated at English public schools who can't speak his native

Hindi and is shunned by both sides. Malik had a small part in "The Far Pavilions" and returned to India working with Lean on "A Passage To India."

Miss Wooldridge, in her first big part, plays the gawky English heroine Daphne Manners who is raped by Indians and dies giving birth.

"In this business, if you're lucky, you get one chance," she said. "This is my chance."

The main character of Merrick, the archetypal middle-class colonial cop, is played by Tim Piggott-Smith, known mainly for TV roles in Britain. He had read the books in 1975 and had wanted to play Merrick ever since.

The 60-member cast and crew spent four months in India and as much time shooting interiors in a warehouse in Manchester.

The Manchester warehouse caught fire in the final stages and squads of Granada researchers fanned out across Britain, checkbooks in hand, buying up lookalike period furniture and other props to finish the epic.

Scott, who became fascinated with India and the Raj when he was assigned there as an army officer in 1943, died of cancer in 1978, aged 62, just as his work was beginning to be recognized.

The Raj Quartet books barely broke even when they were published between 1964 and 1975. Ironically, a tie-in book based on "Jewel In The Crown" became a British best-seller this year.

Credit Council Says Farms Will Stay On Decline

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new study released by the Farm Credit Council says the number of farmers will continue to decline in the next 10 years, and those remaining will have to keep battling to stay on the land.

"On the whole, U.S. agriculture must continue to plan for a difficult future," the report said Tuesday. "Nevertheless, there will be ample profit opportunities for innovative and progressive operators in the years ahead."

"Indeed, some farmers may do well in this environment; they will learn to manage risk for their personal profit." But the total number of farms will decline about 1 percent a year in the coming decade, with the numbers of the largest units expected to increase at a growing rate, while those in the smallest sales class will decrease at a slowing rate.

Called Project 1995, the study was prepared over 18 months by bankers, economists and others for the Farm Credit System, which is made up by cooperative units such as federal land banks, production credit associations and banks for cooperatives.

Overall, the Farm Credit System provides more than one-third of the financial needs of U.S. farmers, ranchers and their co-ops, the report said.

The council, based in Washington, is a trade association representing members at the national level.

"In the years ahead, the agricultural sector will be increasingly influenced by domestic and international economic policies — including monetary policy, fiscal policy and foreign trade policy," the report said. "The domestic economy will experience generally steady but modest growth between now and 1995."

Real growth in the U.S. gross national product — the sum value of all goods and service produced — is expected to average about 3.2 percent a year, supported by increases in the labor force and productivity.

"Interest rates are expected to rise early in the forecast period because of a clash between public and private credit demands," the report said. "Rates will decline after the mid-1980s as a result of an easing of monetary policy and lower federal deficits."

Some weakness in the U.S. dollar is likely in the near future, which "will bolster agricultural exports," the report said. However, the export boom of the 1970s "will not be repeated in the 1980s or early 1990s."

"Thus, U.S. agriculture probably will not be characterized by shortages and full production, but rather by high stock levels and acreage controls," the report said.

"Potential surpluses domestically, together with serious debt and inadequate foreign exchange problems in several countries, will tend to keep U.S. farm income relatively low for the next few years."

EPA Considers Ban On Popular Farm Pesticide

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers are being told to take special precautions when applying the nation's most widely used pesticide while the government decides whether to ban the chemical because tests show it causes cancer in animals.

Some 600,000 farmers and farm workers should wear goggles, long trousers, long-sleeves shirts, rubber boots and gloves when applying the pesticide alachlor, the Environmental Protection Agency said Tuesday.

New tests show that alachlor causes cancer in animals, EPA says. Based on these tests, agency scientists estimate that farm workers regularly exposed to the chemical over 40 years could have a one in 10,000 chance of developing cancer.

Alachlor, the nation's most widely used agricultural pesticide, is made by Monsanto Co. and sold under four trade names: Lasso, Lazo, Alanex and CP-50144.

Ninety million to 100 million pounds are used each year on 30 percent of the nation's corn and soybeans to kill weeds before they poke above ground. Corn and soybeans account for 98 percent of alachlor use.

Monsanto, which says it is confident alachlor will be approved for continued use, has agreed to:

- Add warnings to alachlor labels.
- Monitor groundwater and surface water where alachlor is used.
- Conduct further animal tests.
- Try to find out how much alachlor is in the nation's diet, something no one knows.
- Stop selling alachlor for use on potatoes.
- Run training programs for farmers where alachlor is sold and hire an independent reviewer to report to EPA on the effectiveness of the training.

Though no human cancers have been attributed to alachlor, Steven Schatzow, head of pesticide programs for EPA, said the agency concluded that a farm worker using alachlor for up to 30 days every year for 40 years could have a one in 10,000 chances of getting cancer because of it.

This, he said, was a "significant risk." But during the two years it will take to decide on banning alachlor, Schatzow said, "We do not believe the risks ... will be significant."

"It's the long-term, chronic effects we're concerned about," he said.

If alachlor is present in the nation's diet at the legally permissible concentrations — concentrations set in 1969 at the limit of detection — then people eating an average diet could face a lifetime chance of cancer of one in a million, Schatzow said.

Most of the theoretical dietary exposure would come from meat and dairy products as a result of feeding corn to animals. Although only 2 percent of the potato crop is sprayed with alachlor, potatoes would account for 23 percent of the theoretical exposure.

At present, more than 400,000 people die of cancer each year out of about 2 million deaths reported in the United States.

Monsanto's Harold L. Harness, director of public and environmental affairs, noted that federal law requires EPA to balance risks against benefits in making pesticide decisions. "We're convinced the data base on both these factors will convince EPA" that alachlor should be permitted, he said.

Alachlor has been found in groundwater in Iowa and Nebraska and in surface water in Iowa, Ohio and Kansas, Schatzow said. Harness said such groundwater findings were in tiny concentrations at 10 to 15 locations.

Surface water findings were in the parts per billion range in the growing season, he said, adding, "We don't believe that's an unacceptable risk level but we want to find out more about it."

Harness said alachlor is Monsanto's best-selling or second best-selling product. Securities analysts estimate it accounted for 15 percent to 20 percent of Monsanto's $402 million profit in the last fiscal year, a proportion Harness declined to confirm or deny.
