Economic Indicators Show 'Disappointing' Decline For October

By ROBERT FURLOW
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's main economic forecasting gauge declined 0.7 percent last month, marking the first time since the recession year of 1981 that it had dropped in as many as three out of five months, the Commerce Department reported today.

Similar series of declines have sometimes preceded recessions — as in fact happened in 1981 — but Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige has noted that long strings of falling indicators have also sometimes been followed by a mere slowing rather than a halt in economic growth.

Baldrige called today's report on the Index of Leading Economic Indicators "disappointing," but he also said he expected improvement next month and declared, "We are not heading into another recession."

He added, in a statement distributed by aides, that "with a pickup in consumer spending, we should see a faster pace of economic activity next quarter. The best medicine now is concerted action on the budget deficit and lower interest rates."

Today's report, a compilation of 10 separate forward-pointing economic measures, showed seven indicators declining in October, led by a big jump in jobless Americans' first-time claims for unemployment benefits — a possible indicator of rising overall unemployment figures before long.

First-time claims rose from a September average of 368,000 to 405,000 in October. However, new Labor Department figures released today showed initial claims falling since then, with 370,000 reported for the week ending Nov. 17, down from 398,000 the previous week.

Other negative indicators were the less favorable figures for the speed of business deliveries and the declines in contracts and orders for new plants and equipment, in the average work week, in stock prices, in building permits and in new orders for consumer goods and materials.

Keeping the index from falling even lower were higher prices for sensitive raw materials and increases for the money supply and the net formation of new businesses.

The report also revised earlier estimates, now saying that the leading indicators rose a slight 0.1 percent in August rather than declining by that amount and that they rose 0.6 percent rather than 0.4 percent in September. The index had declined 1 percent in June and 1.8 percent in July.

The actual index in October rose to 163.8 percent of its 1967 base.

Economists in general have said there could be small increases in the national unemployment rate in the next few months, especially with the economy expanding very slowly and with closely watched indicators suggesting no big immediate rebound. But before today's report.

Ruckelshaus Again Makes Abrupt Departure

By GUY DARST
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — William D. Ruckelshaus, who was the first head of the Environmental Protection Agency and then returned when it was foundering, is abruptly leaving again, contending "the ship called EPA is righted and is now steering a steady course."

Several important Democratic members of Congress said they weren't so sure it is a friendly departure, citing the simultaneous departure of Ruckelshaus' top aide and the prospects of potential EPA budget cuts by the Reagan administration.

But Ruckelshaus, interviewed on the NBC-TV "Today" show this morning, said his resignation was "very straight-forward" and had nothing to do with the agency's budget, with White House environmental priorities or with any desire on his part for another job in the administration.

Ruckelshaus said "I haven't decided what I'm going to do" and will ponder his future over the next several weeks.

Earlier, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said he expected Ruckelshaus' successor to be announced "in the next few days."

Speculation on a replacement began almost immediately and three people were said to be in the top tier: Henry Diamond, a Washington lawyer and former aide to New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller; Ann McLaughlin, deputy secretary of Interior, and Lee Thomas, a career federal employee who is the assistant EPA administrator in charge of the "superfund" toxic waste dump cleanup program.

Two sources, speaking on condition they not be identified, said Thomas was Ruckelshaus' candidate for the job.

Ruckelshaus, who was the first administrator at EPA from 1970 to 1973, had been back since May 1983, when he was summoned by President Reagan to set about rebuilding morale and getting staffers back to work amid unprecedented turmoil over the controversial policies of his predecessor, Anne Burford.

In his letter of resignation, Ruckelshaus said he was leaving with "both regret and a sense of accomplishment."

In accepting the resignation "with great regret," Reagan told Ruckelshaus, "You have made absolutely clear our commitment to wise stewardship of the environment" and added that Ruckelshaus had "justified fully the faith which I and so many Americans have in you."

Ruckelshaus said "the ship called EPA is righted and is now steering a steady course," with "first-rate presidential appointees" in place and momentum behind its programs.

A top agency official, who spoke on condition that he not be identified, said after learning of the decision, "This is not a Saturday night massacre," referring to Ruckelshaus' first resignation from the government in 1973.

On that occasion, Ruckelshaus resigned as deputy attorney general rather than fire special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Indeed, Ruckelshaus said in the "Today" interview that he had promised Reagan to stay through the election, that he had reviewed over the last three weeks whether to stay on and had "decided it's time to move on."

Asked if there were circumstances under which he would have stayed, the departing administrator said, "No, not really. It would have to be so different — both in terms of my own personal situation and in terms of what I thought in addition to what I have already accomplished that I could accomplish as well — that it's almost a never-never land."

He did not elaborate, but a friend who demanded anonymity said earlier that Ruckelshaus had told him college tuition for four children put the EPA head "$10,000 in the hole every year, and no man can keep that up for long."

One close associate of Ruckelshaus said Wednesday night, "He is not leaving with any sense of discontent or disillusionment. He really does feel good about it. He feels he's accomplished what he set out to do."

Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., a frequent critic of the administration on environmental issues, said he understood the Office of Management and Budget had presented Reagan figures Wednesday calling for a 30 percent cut in EPA's budget, and he believed that "prompted Bill to submit his second resignation of conscience."

An administration official familiar with the budget said it was not true that the figures called for a 30

BURNED

Greenville area native Carlton Ray Worthington has been burned over 96 percent of his body and is critically injured, according to his doctors on Long Island, N.Y. He was attempting to repair a home furnace when it exploded, burning down the house, critically injuring him and less seriously burning one of his children.

Hotline has worked with his sister, Patricia Worthington, to locate his father Fred Worthington Jr. in East Orange, N.J., and his brother Earl Worthington in Newark, N.J. His doctors had told Mrs. Worthington that male blood relatives were needed for tissue grafts. With the assistance of the Greenville Police Department and law enforcement agencies in both cities, contact was made. Whether the two men are suitable as donors has not yet been determined.

Escaped Murderer Is Hunted

BLAND, Va. (AP) — Police with bloodhounds combed dense woods in sub-freezing temperatures today for a convicted double murderer who walked past a guard and "out the front door of the institution to freedom," officials said.

Federal officials said the escapee, Bryce Matthew Tuller, was also involved in the 1972 hijacking of an airliner to Cuba for which his father and brother are now serving prison sentences.

The search for Tuller, who escaped Wednesday night, was concentrated near Bland Correctional Center, said Corrections Department spokesman Wayne Farrar.

Tuller, 31, was serving two life sentences for killing a bank manager and a policeman who walked in during a 1972 robbery attempt, Farrar said. The FBI says Tuller helped hijack a plane to Cuba four days after the holdup.

Tuller had taken a package to the basement of the prison administration building, Farrar said. "While the officer was weighing this package, somehow, and I can't tell you how now, the inmate was able to enter the package room and go up a flight of steps to the main floor of the administration building and out the front door of the institution to freedom.

"I don't think they've completed questioning this officer that was on duty in the package room."

Farrar said first reports indicated Tuller used a key or some other device to open the door to the package room. A door at the top of the stairs was left open, and the prison's front door usually is unlocked because workers frequently use it, he said.

Tuller and his father, former state Commerce Department executive Charles Andrew Tuller, were identified by the FBI as two of four men who hijacked a plane to Cuba in 1972.

An Eastern Airlines ticket agent was killed by gunfire and another man was wounded as the hijackers took control of the plane. A third Tuller, Jonathan, son of Charles Andrew Tuller, was identified as another of the hijackers.

The three Tullers were indicted by a federal grand jury in Houston for air piracy and kidnapping, Virginia, through the U.S. State Department, asked Cuba to extradite the men.

Farrar said he was not sure how Tuller returned to Virginia from Cuba, but said it seemed Cuba voluntarily sent him back.

Tuller's father had resigned from his $26,000-a-year job with the Commerce Department days before the bank robbery. He is in prison at the State Penitentiary in Richmond. Jonathan is at the Powhatan Correctional Center.

Farrar said an investigation into the escape would begin immediately.

Bland Correctional Center holds about 500 minimum-, medium- and maximum-security prisoners.

Last Thursday, five prisoners escaped from the Nottoway Correctional Center after cutting through two fences at the base of a guard tower. All five were captured within 26 hours.

The resignation of Virginia Corrections Director Robert M. Landon was announced Friday, although Landon and Gov. Charles S. Robb said the resignation letter had been submitted six days earlier.

Landon, in his resignation letter, mentioned a "summer of discontent," referring to the largest death row breakout in U.S. history on May 31, when six inmates escaped from the Mecklenburg Correctional Center. They all were recaptured within a month.

Jones Remarries

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congressman Walter Jones confirmed today that he married Elizabeth Fisher of Washington, D.C. earlier this month, following his re-election to the U.S. House of Representatives for a 10th term.

Jones said his bride is an editor for a publication reporting on maritime affairs. He said he and his wife will be living at Waterside Apartments in southwest Washington.

Jones, from Farmville, is chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee.

His first wife died Feb. 13.

A Victorian Christmas

AT CITY HALL — For the holiday season, the lobby of Greenville's City hall is decorated with pink poinsettias, white lights and pink velvet bows. The Victorian tree is decorated with ornament wreaths made of pretzels, lace net embroidery, grapevine wreaths, baby's breath tied with lace and ribbon and sachets made of net and popurri. The ornaments were made by Patsy Denson and Lucille Sumrell of the Recreation and Parks Department. Handmade baskets filled with pillows, patchwork cats and cloth dolls have been placed at the base of the tree as well as a porcelain doll, doll house and stuffed ducks. Poinsettias, angels made from paper plates with pink candles decorate other areas in the lobby. Office doors are highlighted with lace edged ribbon fans.

FHA Members Participate In 'Keep The Torch Lit'

The Future Homemakers of America Club at J.H. Rose School is participating in the "Keep The Torch Lit" project to help restore the Statue of Liberty Ellis Island.

The students are trying to save the area by collecting any kind of Kellogg cereal box top. If 5,000 box tops are collected then the Kellogg Co. will contribute $250 toward the restoration in the name of Rose High.

Area citizens are asked to save any Kellogg cereal box top and bring it to the high school home economics rooms or to the main office. Community support is necessary in order to make this a successful project.

said Elaine Tschetter, a home economics teacher at Rose. The club will be collecting the box tops through March 15. Advisors for the group are Mrs. Tschetter, Marion Wilkes and Renetta Smith.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

When a woman wearing a $200 suit and carrying an attache case boarded a plane last week, a man in the seat behind me observed, "They've sure come a long way."

As she strapped herself in the seat next to me, I looked at her closely... woman to woman. The white Erase under her eyes had been excessive and part of her nose had disappeared. Someone had crayoned on her boarding pass and she spit on her finger desperately trying to rub a coffee spot out of her skirt.

I knew her. She was the legendary woman of this decade. She was faster than aspirin racing to the bloodstream... more powerful than a detergent with built-in bleach, and was able to leap over three teenagers to get dinner to the table in 10 minutes. All you had to do was to rip off the buttons of her blouse to see the T-shirt with the big red S on it. She was Supermom! of the '80s!

It takes one to know one. I was a Supermom in the '60s and '70s. I starched collars, laundered shoestrings, beat carpets, ironed towels and vacuumed the bedsprings every April. I baked cakes from scratch, hosed out my garbage cans every week with bleach and drained the anti-freeze from my car and saved it from year to year. No one ever saw me with my blinds down or my toilet seats up.

I huffed and puffed and I did myself in. The Supermom sitting next to me is different. She has a career outside her home.

She buys birthday cakes and fast foods, but she takes them out of the cardboard box and buckets and arranges them on china plates. She buys polyester and irons the wrinkles out while she "relaxes" in front of the TV at 2 a.m.

To justify having a good time working eight hours a day, she goes to every school affair, volunteers on Saturday, and assumes the kids' chores.

She postponed her hysterectomy twice: once when the office had inventory and again when her family wanted to go to Disneyland.

She fights mold, wax build-up, ring-around-the-collar and guilt. Her children call her at the office every 15 minutes because their "dad is at work." She falls asleep during a root canal and wears damp pantyhose.

She lives by an out-of-sync timetable: making dinner in the mornings, lunches at night, shopping on Sundays and banking in the middle of the night.

persisted. "It all started when we gave 'em the right to vote."

To set the record straight, it started long before that. It started the first time the kids and a husband came home, stared right into our eyes and said, "Anybody home?"

We've been killing ourselves trying to materialize ever since.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

between us that I couldn't get over or through it. His foul mouth, vile temper and cheating ways are shown only in private.

He has never shown me one bit of tenderness or consideration. I am just a convenience for him, but I took a vow to stay with him till death do us part, and with God's help, I will.

I am starved for love, but I just get on my knees and ask the Lord to keep me strong enough to keep from killing him.

Abby, this man preaches the gospel of Christ! He sins all week and preaches on the Sabbath. He is well-respected in the community and is good at fooling people because he preaches the word of the Lord. How do I handle this mess? I'm 69 and he's 74.

ON MY KNEES
IN SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR ON: You seem able to handle "this mess" very well. If prayer and your faith in the Lord keep you strong, keep right on praying. Come Judgment Day, that gospel-preaching hypocrite will have to face his Creator and account for his actions.

***

DEAR ABBY: I have some advice that might help some parents. Don't push your children through school too fast. I did, and now I'm sorry. Our oldest son graduated from high school when he was barely 17. Now he's gone away to college and his room is empty. What was our rush?

He was always a fine student and way ahead of his classmates, but I'm afraid we encouraged him to skip grades because we were so proud of him. If I could turn back the clock, I would have kept him in classes with children his own age.

I don't expect to see this in print, Abby. I guess I just needed someone to hear my heartache.

DAVID'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Perhaps you shouldn't have sent him away to college at such an early age, but please don't regret not holding him back in school.

Children who are far ahead of their classmates intellectually become bored. To have kept him in classes with children his age wouldn't have been fair to him.

Beer Drinkers Can Be Alcoholics

DEAR ABBY: I think my husband is an alcoholic, but he says he can't be because he doesn't drink "hard liquor"—only beer. Abby, that man puts away from five to 10 cans of beer at one sitting. He's been drinking beer at that rate for the last 20 years, and I can see him changing before my eyes.

Please ask your experts if a person who drinks only beer can be an alcoholic. And put your answer in the paper because I'm sure there are a lot of people who think drinking beer is harmless.

MRS. L. IN OLD BRIDGE, N.J.

DEAR MRS. L.: The alcoholic content of one 12-ounce can of beer (regular, not "light") is equal to the alcoholic content of one "shot" (1 1/2 ounces) of 80-proof whiskey—or 5 ounces of table wine.

So one who drinks a six-pack of beer has consumed as much alcohol as he would have had he drunk six drinks of bourbon or vodka—or six cocktails, meaning martinis, old-fashioned, margaritas or whatever.

And yes, a person who drinks only beer can be an alcoholic as surely as the person who drinks only whiskey.

DEAR ABBY: I was raised in a good Christian home. There was no drinking, no smoking, no cursing and no dirty talk. I was brought up to avoid people with bad habits, but the man I married had me fooled with his sweet talk and the God-fearing act he put on.

A year after we were wed, I learned that he was being unfaithful to me. I was already pregnant, so there was no leaving him. I forgave him and had four more children, and now, after 52 years of marriage, he is no better, he's worse. He drank a good bit, which put a stone wall so thick

Oregon Snow Storm Traps Hunters; Rains And Record Highs For East

By MARY MacVEAN
Associated Press Writer
Dozens of Oregon elk hunters remained trapped today after a storm packing 80 mph winds and nearly two-foot snowfalls littered mountainsides with downed trees, sent a roof somersaulting into parked cars in Colorado and closed schools in Washington and Idaho.

Forecasters said another storm was gathering strength in the Pacific and could bring more snow to the Northwest as early as tonight.

Meanwhile, rain bathed much of the East where the mercury hit record highs in some areas, while freezing rain turned highways to ice in north-central Iowa. Altoona, Pa., got 2 inches of snow during the night.

An avalanche closed an isolated Idaho highway while winds gusted to 40 mph in Salt Lake City and threw snow into drifts 2 feet high in the western Salt Lake Valley on Wednesday. Since Tuesday, 12 to 21 inches have fallen in on Nevada's northern mountains.

Strong westerly winds whistled through Colorado on Wednesday night, and officials in Denver advised homeowners to tie down yard equipment.

An 86-year-old woman was hospitalized with possible spinal injuries after she was blown down by a violent gust in Boulder, Colo.

But the Pacific storm that was blamed for four deaths on Tuesday was "losing its punch" today, said Paul Fike of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo.

"Quite frequently, storms dissipate over the mountains and then re-form on the lee side, but this storm was not really very well organized, and spent most of its fury over the mountains and then started to die out," Fike said.

Isolated snow showers were scattered over the northern Rockies this morning. Utah valleys got little more than an inch of snow, but the Alta ski resort got 9 inches of snow during the night, for a total of around 16 inches from the storm, and it was still snowing at daybreak.

Another storm lurked several hundred miles off the Pacific Coast, and it could bring snow to the Northwest again tonight or Friday, Fike said.

Rescue teams planned to return to the snowbound Blue Mountains northeast of La Grande, Ore., today, where dozens of elk hunters have been stranded since Tuesday. About 25 hunters left two camps Wednesday after loggers cleared snowdrifts and fallen trees.

"I've been here a lot and I've never seen it hit that hard and fast," said hunter Harry Smith. "It was like a whiteout, kind of takes the fun out of it."

About 80 hunters had been stranded, but they had shelter and food, said Colleen King, emergency services coordinator for Umatilla County. Many had contacted officials using citizens band radios.

Snow squalls developed over southeastern Utah on Wednesday night, and the Highway Patrol reported 6 inches of snow between Monticello and Moab.

In Utah's northern mountains, heavy snow was accompanied by strong winds and drifting snow Wednesday. Snowbird ski resort reported 6 inches of new snow and Park City resort reported 14 inches.

Schools were closed Wednesday in several districts in eastern Washington and Idaho.

Idaho Highway 21 in the central mountains between Lowman and Stanley, normally closed in winter, remained impassable after a 2-to-3-foot snowslide.

High wind whistled through parts of the northern Rockies on Wednesday with gusts up to 80 mph in Wyoming and Colorado, one day after 93-mph gusts lashed part of the Oregon coast. Ground blizzards were reported at several higher mountain passes of Colorado.

Police closed a half-mile of Colorado 119 near Longmont, Colo., because of blowing debris from a construction site. And the roof was whipped off a service station.

"The roof started somersaulting back and landed on three cars," said Mike Burgner, who operates the station. Damage was estimated at $5,000.

In the East, warm temperatures accompanied showers. Nearly 3 inches of soaked Highlands, N.C., and Williamsport, Pa., got 3.25 inches in 24 hours as of 7 a.m. today. Flooding was reported in low lying areas of central and north central Pennsylvania.

High-temperature records toppled in several cities. The 66 degrees reported at Albany, N.Y., and Allentown, Pa., beat records set in 1937 of 64 and 65, respectively. An 88-year-old record of 63 degrees fell when a temperature of 65 was recorded in Burlington, Vt.

Damages Heavy In Wrecks

An estimated $10,875 damage resulted from eight traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Wednesday.

Heaviest damage, officers said, resulted from a 5:35 p.m. collision on Memorial Drive, 350 feet south of the Country Club Road intersection involving cars driven by Craig Loyd Wright of Parmele and John Shields Melvin of 223 Country Club Drive.

Damage was estimated at $1,500 to the Wright car and $2,000 to the Melvin auto.

Vehicles driven by Mary Ryan Stephenson of 1733 Beaumont Drive and Charles Nelson Murphy Jr. of Ayden, collided about 3:36 p.m. at the intersection of Fifth and Cotanche Streets, resulting in an estimated $1,000 damage to the Stephenson car and $900 damage to the Murphy truck.

Murphy was charged by officers with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Police said vehicles driven by Ruth Whitehead Whitby of Winterville and Randall Louis Bryant of 109 Lee St., collided about 6 p.m. on Greenville Boulevard, 400 feet west of the Hooker Road intersection.

Damage from the collision was estimated at $500 to the Whitby car and $900 to the Bryant truck.

A 6:02 p.m. collision at the intersection of Tenth and Lawrence Streets involved cars driven by James Thomas Willoughby III of 113 Green Mill Run Apartments and Veteran Allen Merritt of Route 2, Grimesland, investigators said.

Police, who charged Willoughby with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, set damage to the Willoughby car at $500 and estimated damage to the Merritt vehicle at $800.

An estimated $400 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 10:52 p.m. collision at the intersection of Greene and Fifth Streets.

Police, who identified the drivers involved as Joseph Denver Godbey of Route 5, Greenville, and Walter Junior Barrett of 410B Cadillac St., charged Godbey with failing to stop for a stop light and charged Barrett with driving without a license.

Cars driven by Patricia Ann Hardy of Fountain and Pamela Glass Moore of 204 Terrace Court collided about 3:22 p.m. on Tenth Street east of the Fifth Street intersection, causing $150 damage to the Hardy car and $600 damage to the Moore vehicle.

Police said a 4:57 p.m. collision on Tenth Street, 500 feet east of the Cedar Lane intersection involved cars driven by John Roger Allen of 2816 Jackson Drive and Joe Mobley of Williamston.

Damage from the mishap was set at $500 to the Allen car and $200 to the Mobley car.

Joseph Green of Winterville, was charged with exceeding a safe speed following investigation of a 5:50 p.m. collision on Memorial Drive, 50 feet west of the Westhaven Drive intersection.

Officers said the Green car collided with an auto driven by Karen Lynn Martin of Evans Mobile Home Park, causing $500 damage to the Martin car and $25 damage to the Green vehicle.

Weinberger Statement Underlines Policy Differences With Shultz

By TIM AHERN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, in a policy statement that puts him at odds with Secretary of State George Shultz, says U.S. military force should be used only as a last resort and then only "with the clear intention of winning."
Weinberger, often described as one of the Reagan's administration most hawkish members because of his support for large Pentagon budget increases, laid out his views Wednesday in a speech to the National Press Club.
Weinberger's beliefs on the role of military force closely parallel lessons often cited by U.S. military leaders in the wake of the Vietnam War.
Those lessons include using force only when it is backed by public support, only in instances where the U.S. national interests are clear, and then only to clearly win.
Weinberger and Shultz have often differed in the past two years and Weinberger spelled out his beliefs again Wednesday, although he did not name Shultz.

"Employing our forces almost indiscriminately and as a regular and customary part of our diplomatic efforts would surely plunge us headlong into the sort of domestic turmoil we experienced during the Vietnam War, without accomplishing very little in the world," Weinberger said.
Shultz, in a speech last April to the Trilateral Commission, said "power and diplomacy are not alternatives. They must go together or we will accomplish very little in the world."
The two men differed on the question of sending U.S. Marines to Lebanon. Shultz, who has publicly admitted the split between he and Weinberger, supported the deployment while Weinberger opposed it.
"Recent history has proven that we cannot assume unilaterally the role of the world's defender,"

Weinberger said. "We have learned that there are limits to how much of our spirit and blood and treasure we can afford to forfeit in meeting our responsibility to keep peace and freedom."
"So while we may and should offer substantial amounts of economic and military assistance to our allies in their time of need, and help them maintain forces to deter attacks against them, usually we cannot substitute our troops or our will for theirs."
"We cannot assume for other sovereign nations the responsibility to defend their territory, without their strong invitation, when our own freedom is not threatened," Weinberger said.
He outlined a six-part test for deciding whether to use U.S. troops:
—The occasion should be "deemed vital to our national interest or that of our allies."
—The troops should go in "with the clear intention of winning."
—We should have clearly defined political and military objectives."

—More troops and equipment should be sent if needed to win.
—There must be a "reasonable assurance" of support from the American people and Congress.
—Finally, the commitment of U.S. forces to combat should be a last resort to be used only when other means have failed or have no prospect of succeeding."
Weinberger said there was increasing Soviet aid to leftists in Central America and said if it continues, "we will clearly need more economic and military assistance and training to help those who want democracy."
"The president will not allow our military forces to creep — or be drawn gradually — into a combat role in Central America or any other place in the world," he said.
Last April, Shultz, speaking to the Trilateral Commission about Central America, said, "those who shrink from engagement can always find an alibi for inaction."

Market Slumps, Despite Lower Rates

NEW YORK — The stock market suffered a broad slump even though most major banks settled on a 11.25 percent prime lending rate, a half-percentage point lower than at the beginning of the week and the lowest prime rate since March.
Declines in interest rates generally make stocks more attractive investments as interest-bearing vehicles, such as bonds, lose their advantage.
The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials tumbled 14.80 points Wednesday to 1,205.39, erasing its 7.84-point gain on Tuesday.
Declines led advances by more than 3 to 2 on the New York Stock Exchange, where volume slowed to 86.30 million shares from 95.47 million in the previous session.
Analysts said the prime rate reduction would be especially welcomed by small- to medium-size business borrowers, whose financing alternatives are more limited than those of their larger counterparts. A half-point reduction in interest charges means a savings of nearly $200 million a month for business borrowers.

The rate cut also could mean significant savings to financially strapped Third World nations, whose interest charges on commercial bank loans are tied in part to changes in the prime rate.
Eight of the 10 largest banks in the country, as well as many regional banks, joined No. 3 Chase Manhattan Bank on Wednesday at the 11.25 percent level. Chase had reduced its prime rate by a half percentage point from 11.75 percent on Tuesday.
Included among the banks making the latest move were Bank of America, the nation's largest bank, and No. 7 First National Bank of Chicago, which had reduced its prime rate to 11.5 percent on Monday from 11.75 percent.
The only major bank that remained above the 11.25 percent level was No. 2 Citibank, which had lowered its prime rate on Monday by a quarter percentage point to 11.5 percent.
The prime rate was 13 percent from late June until late September, when banks began lowering the rate as other interest rates sagged. The last time the prime was as low as the current level was when it was 11 percent in March.

In other economic developments Wednesday:
—The level of help-wanted advertising in the nation's major newspapers rebounded in October from a two-month slide, returning to levels attained in June and July, the Conference Board reported. The business-sponsored research organization's seasonally adjusted Help Wanted Index of help-wanted ads in 51 major newspapers rose to 136 in October from 129 in September, and was up sharply from its year-earlier level of 111.
—The value of contracts for new construction totaled $18.39 billion in October, the F.W. Dodge Division of the McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co. said in its monthly report on nationwide construction contracts. That compared with $16.76 billion in contracts in September, but after adjusting for seasonal variations the change amounted to only a 2 percent gain, Dodge said.
—President Reagan's steel advisory committee adopted recommendations dealing with taxation, mergers, trade and unemployment for the ailing steel industry. The scores of recommendations include more federally financed job retraining for displaced workers and vigorous enforcement of voluntary restraint agreements with steel importing nations.

—Exxon Corp., the world's largest industrial company, disclosed that it is negotiating a possible sale of its office-systems business. The other party or parties were not identified. The Washington Post has reported that Exxon was preparing to write off more than $1 billion in the enterprise.
—Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp. said it is laying off about 700 workers at its Monessen plant through the holiday season.
—The 20th Century Fox Film Corp. posted a $73.8 million loss in the latest quarter, and said it may have to sell some of its assets to reduce its debt. It cited a dismal showing of "Rhinestone," "The Adventures of Buckaroo Bonzai," "Dreamscape," and "Sixpack."

Coke Settles On Sweetener

ATLANTA (AP) — Coca-Cola USA announced today it will begin using NutraSweet as the only sweetener in diet Coke.
"Diet Coke was an outstanding success with 100 percent saccharin and an even greater success using a NutraSweet-saccharin blend," said Brian G. Dyson, senior vice president of the Coca-Cola Co. and president of Coca-Cola USA. "This move will continue to give this extraordinary product an ever-increasing competitive edge in the marketplace."
He said using 100 percent NutraSweet will cost more than blending with saccharin, and the extra cost "will be shared with our bottlers on an equitable basis."
Despite the switch to 100 percent NutraSweet in diet Coke, the company said it remains committed to the multi-sweetener concept for other soft drinks.
"For example, we have no plans to change the blend of NutraSweet and saccharin in Tab because consumers continue to show a preference for this combination which complements the crisp, dry taste of Tab," Dyson said.

Reagan Eyes Spending Cuts

By SALLY JACOBSEN
AP Economics Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is sifting through dozens of proposals to cut the federal deficit almost $100 billion in three years by trimming, or even eliminating, a variety of domestic and defense programs.

The recommendations from administration aides, likely to be considered by Reagan for a second day today, include cutbacks in Medicare, Civil Service retirement benefits, and the possible elimination of the Export-Import Bank and urban development action grants for cities.

The goal of the proposed spending cuts is to reduce the deficit to somewhere between $165 billion and $170 billion in the 1986 fiscal year and to slightly more than $100 billion by 1988.

The deficit for the 1985 fiscal year, which ends next Sept. 30, is projected at $206 billion, above the record $195.4 billion posted in 1983.

Reagan, meanwhile, was meeting today with Republican congressional leaders, his first session with them since his re-election. Congressional aides said the agenda will include the president's plans for reducing the deficit in the 1986 budget that he will submit to Congress early next year.

Members of Congress, including newly-elected Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kansas, have pressed the administration to submit a budget early next year that would make sharp cuts in the deficit in a way that would gain widespread backing.

Budget director David Stockman, in charge of the effort to put together a fiscal plan for 1986, on Wednesday gave the president a black, loose-leaf notebook outlining the budget-reduction suggestions drawn up by a high-level working group.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan met for about 90 minutes with Stockman and other aides and told them he wanted more time to consider their recommendations.

"It was his decision that he wanted to hear more," the spokesman said.

The president made no decisions and offered no guidance on his thinking, officials said. No details of the possible program changes were discussed, they said.

Reagan was expected to meet with his budget aides again, perhaps today, and give Stockman his thinking on the proposals, Speakes said. The decisions will then be relayed to Cabinet officers, possibly on Friday.

As in the past, the budget aides have drawn up plans to pare back spending on defense, a sensitive area because of Reagan's commitment to a military buildup.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger has strongly resisted efforts to trim the defense budget and he reportedly held to his stand again on Wednesday, according to officials, who asked not to be identified.

"It wasn't as if everyone was one big, happy family," said one official in describing the talks on Pentagon spending. Another official said Stockman and Weinberger offered the president their differing points of view on military spending.

According to other sources, Stockman would like to hold the increase in defense spending for 1986 to about 5.5 percent — 1 percent over the expected inflation rate of some 4.5 percent.

Weinberger, at a National Press Club luncheon, refused to say what he intends to recommend to Reagan in the new budget.

Defense Department officials have said their fiscal 1986 budget request will total about $333.7 billion, a 13.9 percent increase over the $292.9 billion which Congress approved for Pentagon spending this year.

In addition to trims in defense, the budget aides are eyeing cuts in a range of programs, including Medicare, farm subsidies, veterans health care, civil service retirement and student aid. They also reportedly want to scrap the Export-Import Bank, urban development action grants and community development block grants. Programs that benefit the poor have scarcely been touched, according to one official.

If all the budget cuts were ordered by Congress, they would save about $14 billion in interest costs on the deficit, officials said.

The Washington Post reported in today's editions that Reagan is considering putting all the domestic spending cuts into one sweeping bill. The Post said the White House would bundle the cuts together on the theory that they would be harder to vote down that way, and would put Democratic leaders in the role of obstructionists of deficit reduction if they refused to allow a vote on one big bill.

The dozen-member budget group drew up recommendations over the past few weeks, working around Reagan's injunction against a tax hike or cuts in Social Security.

Chart Controversy Surfaces In Search For Trawler Crew

HAMPTON, Va. (AP) — Outdated charts caused the Coast Guard to improperly measure the drift of rafts that would have been used by the missing crew of the trawler Amazing Grace, according to the owner of the patent on the rafts.

The chart the Coast Guard used was based on tests of a conventional raft from World War II, Jim Givens said.

"They're 250 percent off. The drift charts they are using at all their air, sea and rescue stations are from World War II," Givens said. His kind of raft has been available for about 10 years.

Coast Guard officials acknowledged Wednesday they have been using the outdated manual to project locations for searches in the first nine days of the search. Since Friday, after Givens contacted the Coast Guard and pointed out the problem, search planners have been taking into account the type of raft and its drift pattern.

Greg Creedon, a public affairs officer from the 3rd Coast Guard District in New York, said Wednesday Givens' drift rates are being used in both search planning and to backtrack to where the Amazing Grace might have sunk.

The 87-foot steel trawler was located off the coast of Cape May, N.J., Nov. 14 when its captain radioed another fishing boat that a wave had come over the bow. It wasn't until about 30 hours later that the fishing boat notified the Coast Guard it had lost radio contact with the Amazing Grace.

The service began searching that afternoon but has not been able to locate the $500,000 trawler owned by Wanchese Fishing Co. of Wanchese, N.C.

Schroeder Recovery Amazing; Can Leave Bed Soon

By PAUL RAEBURN
AP Science Editor
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — For William Schroeder, whose recovery since his heart was replaced with a mechanical pump has amazed the cardiologist who treated his disease, the next step is to get out of bed and sit in a chair.

Dr. Robert Goodin, director of cardiology at the Humana Heart Institute International, said Schroeder "feels he is no more uncomfortable" than he was after heart bypass surgery a year ago. "That's a bit remarkable," he said.

Goodin, who treated Schroeder's diseased heart for two years, said he was "amazed that he has this kind of strength and progress" so soon after surgery.

Doctors who have set up a series of increasingly strenuous activities for Schroeder plan to have the 52-year-old retired quality assurance specialist get out of bed and sit in a chair today. Schroeder sat up in bed Wednesday and dangled his feet over the side.

One of Schroeder's first requests when he was able to speak after surgery was for a can of beer.

Goodin said Schroeder — who ate his first solid food, warm porridge, and got a sip of non-alcoholic "near beer" on Wednesday — might get the real thing today.

At a briefing today, Dr. Allan M. Lansing, who assisted Dr. William DeVries during implantation of Schroeder's Jarvik-7 heart Sunday, said an examination of Schroeder's diseased heart produced a surprising finding.

"They did find something very unusual for which we have no explanation," he said. "Examination under the microscope with special stains showed many immune complexes" — formations that indicate Schroeder's body had begun to attack his own heart.

That may have contributed to his rapid deterioration last week, said Lansing. He speculated that penicillin given to Schroeder when he had six decaying teeth extracted Nov. 14 to reduce his risk of infection during the implant may have produced the so-called "auto-immune" reaction. Penicillin is known to produce such reactions occasionally.

Lansing also said one minor complication had arisen. The accumulation of mucus in Schroeder's lungs was producing a collapse of tiny areas in his lungs, a condition that "is being treated to prevent a more serious complication, that of pneumonia," Lansing said.

Schroeder is taking drugs to reduce the fluid build-up in his body that has added 14 pounds to his pre-surgery weight of 202 pounds, Goodin said.

He also is getting a small dose of heparin, a drug that inhibits blood clotting, said Lansing, chairman of the Humana Heart Institute International.

Lansing said Schroeder's kidneys and liver are gradually returning to normal after the disruption caused by the surgery. Doctors continue to watch for evidence of blood clotting and signs of infection — the other potential danger that Schroeder faces.

"At the moment, we have no indication of any threat," Goodin said.

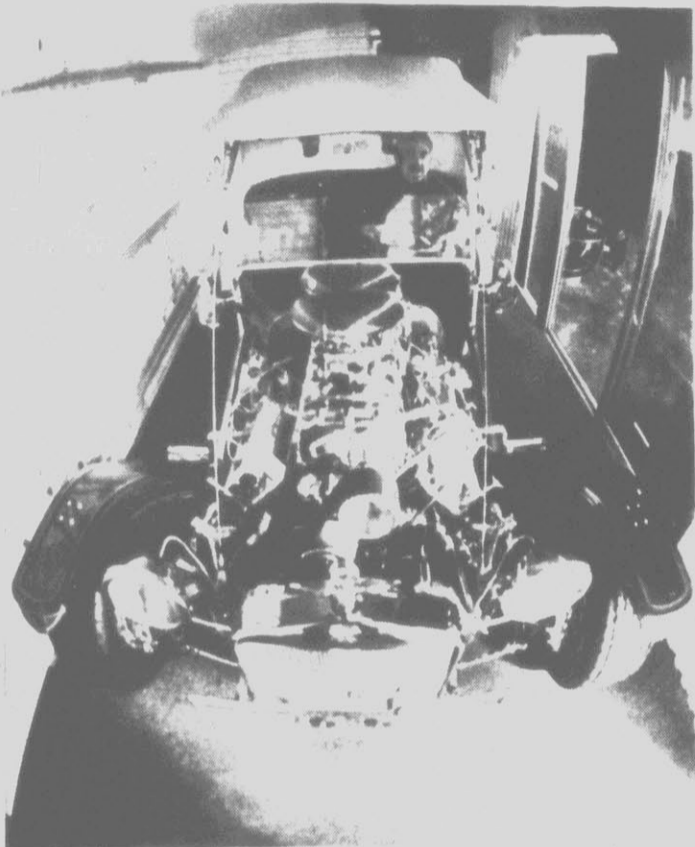

Schroeder's "positive mental attitude is a very important factor and a very strong factor in his favor as far as recovery is concerned," said Lansing. "He is alert and cooperative."

According to Goodin, Schroeder's wife, Margaret, said Wednesday that she thought her husband "was more comfortable today and in the past 24 hours than he had been for months prior to the surgery."

Doctors at Humana are evaluating a small number of candidates for the next artificial heart implantation, but have decided that a Minnesota man admitted to the hospital for screening this week is not ready for an artificial heart.

Ray A. Hagen told the Winona (Minn.) Daily News that he was, however, "still on the list" to be considered for an artificial heart in the future.

Ted Promises To Cut Weight

BOSTON (AP) — A newspaper columnist's jibes about Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's weight seem to have hit the Massachusetts Democrat in the gut: He wrote a letter back asking sympathy for his expanding waistline and announcing plans to get down to his "fighting weight" soon.

The letter, which appeared Wednesday under the heading "Senator weighs in with a request," responded to a Nov. 16 column by the Boston Globe's acerbic columnist Mike Barnicle.

Barnicle wrote that Kennedy "looks like the World Trade Center in a blue suit" and "isn't running for anything unless it's the take-out counter at Brigham's," an ice cream parlor.

"I am sure I have the sympathy of all those who have a similar problem, including some members of the Globe staff. But when I get down to my fighting weight, which I plan to do, I would hope the globe's policy of fairness will entitle me to the same expansive coverage," Kennedy wrote.

"Mike Barnicle and I, senator are good friends," he said. "He took the column as a joke."

Electrolux Closing Plant

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — Electrolux Corp., one of the nation's best-known vacuum manufacturers, will close its manufacturing plant in Greenwich and a tool room in Norwalk on May 31, 1985, with a loss of 830 jobs, a company official announced Wednesday.

Manufacturing operations at the two facilities will be transferred to other locations, said Roger Loeffelbein, group vice president for human resources. Loeffelbein said he expects about 100 manufacturing jobs to be available at the vacuum manufacturer's facilities in Bristol, Va., or Haw River, N.C.

Another 100 jobs in product development, technical engineering, purchasing, management information and quality assurance will be available in the Electrolux technical center, scheduled to open next spring in Trumbull.

The 51-year-old, two-story plant in Greenwich had an outdated design and was too old for renovations.

New Leadership Reflects More Liberal Stance

An AP News Analysis
By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Geography and personalities may have played as big a role as ideology in shaping the new leadership President Reagan faces in the Republican-controlled Senate.

Some members of the new team are notably less conservative than those they replace.

Sen. John Chafee of Rhode Island, for example, one of the more liberal GOP members, takes the place of Sen. James A. McClure of Idaho, one of its most conservative, as chairman of the Republican Conference.

But the new majority leader, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, is a generally middle-of-the-road Republican much like Sen. Howard Baker Jr. of Tennessee, whom he replaces.

"We have been pretty close to the political center of gravity in the Senate, and I think we will stay that way," said Sen. William Armstrong of Colorado, new chairman of the GOP Policy Committee.

Dole took the same line, saying, "I don't think there is any shift."

And Sen. John Warner of Virginia

said Wednesday's Senate GOP balloting "in no way can be interpreted, in my opinion, as a rejection of the strong conservative underpinnings of the Senate today."

Still, the results could have been more conservative than they were.

McClure, for instance, was the first candidate eliminated in the series of secret ballots that culminated in Dole's election as majority leader. Chafee turned back the conservative Sen. Jake Garn of Utah for the conference chairmanship.

Sen. Pete Wilson of California said the balloting was affected by "geography, philosophy and perhaps most of all, friendship."

"Geography played an important part," said Wilson, one of 20 Republican senators from the West, the largest bloc from any region.

Committee chairmanships were also affected by the balloting, with mixed results.

With Dole's elevation to the leadership, Sen. Bob Packwood of Oregon, sometimes an administration gadfly, takes over the Finance Committee that will consider changes in tax laws.

Sen. Richard Lugar of Indiana, unsuccessful in his bid for majority leader, becomes chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee. Lugar is not as conservative as Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, whom the leaders of the "New Right" wanted for the job, but he is still pretty conservative.

In fact, as Lugar pointed out at a post-election news conference, all five of the majority leader candidates had high ratings from organizations that grade lawmakers on their conservatism.

Asked what foreign policy initiatives of the Reagan administration he disagreed with, Lugar said, "I suppose if we went down a laundry list, I could find some."

But he said he expects to continue a strong administration supporter, as he has been in the past.

He said there would be some changes in the way the committee operates, although he didn't spell them out.

"Everything I have been involved in has been reorganized and rejuvenated and put on a different track, and this will be, too," Lugar said.

Helms agreed that the Foreign Relations panel "will be a different committee" under Lugar than it was under Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois, the outgoing chairman, who was defeated in the Nov. 6 election.

Dole also vowed to push for enactment of Reagan's legislative program. Asked whether past disagreements with Reagan about taxes would be a problem, he said, "I am not sure we were at odds. I don't see any problem."

Dole also promised changes, and like Lugar was vague about what they would be.

"I am a very active person," he said, and then added quizzically, "I don't know what that means."

Lighting Of National Tree Set For Dec. 13

WASHINGTON (AP) — Six dozen red and white lights will flicker from a white poinsettia-like ornament atop the national Christmas tree when President Reagan opens the annual Pageant of Peace next month.

The three-dimensional ornament was placed atop the tree Wednesday by Barbara Bush, wife of the vice president. Reagan will light the tree in a ceremony Dec. 13.

All told, the 30-foot living Colorado Blue Spruce, planted on the Ellipse across from the White House, will be adorned with 3,300 red, white and green lights, according to Frank F. LaGiusa, who designed the display.

"Each year the challenge is to come up with a fresh look," said LaGiusa, a lighting engineer for General Electric Co. in Cleveland. "This year the theme was heritage, tradition. I thought of some traditional shape — the poinsettia."

The arrival of the flagship on Dec. 6 coincides with the airing of an interview by Barbara Walters with Prince Charles, patron of Operation Raleigh, which will be aired at 10 p.m. that day over the ABC network.

Open House Set

The Historic Hope Plantation near Windsor, the restored Federal-Georgian home of Gov. David Stone, will begin its 12th annual open house Sunday from 1-6 p.m. and will continue through Dec. 22.

The Bertie Senior High Chorus will sing at 3 and 4 p.m.

The open house is one of several fund-raising activities sponsored annually by Historic Hope Foundation Inc., a non-profit organization that maintains the plantation home, its exterior dependencies and two smaller mid-18th century restorations located on the 18-acre site.

Hope Plantation is located on N.C. 308, four miles west of Windsor. Admission is $2, 75 cents for students and free for pre-school children. For more information call 794-3140.

Graduates Honored

East Carolina University summer school and fall semester graduates will be honored Saturday at a 10 a.m. program at Mendenhall Student Center.

The program will be the first formal recognition of students completing degree work in summer and fall semesters. University officials estimate that approximately 1,500 students per year complete degree work in summer and fall semesters, many of whom are unable to return to campus for the traditional commencement in May.

"It is entirely appropriate that there be a program at which these students may be recognized and honored," program committee chairman C.C. Rowe said. He added, however, that the program "is not a graduation or commencement."

Chancellor John M. Howell and senior class president Mary Melinda Davis will be the featured speakers.

Jacksons Ending 55-Concert Tour

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michael Jackson and his brothers Marlon, Tito, Jermaine and Randy are sprinting toward the finish line in their remarkable Victory Tour. The 20-city, 55-concert extravaganza winds down this weekend with six performances in Dodger Stadium.

The Jackson got the show on the road in July and since then have criss-crossed the nation trailed by 375 tons of equipment and 1,500 employees. When it's all over tour organizers say more than 3 million people will have seen the show. This weekend's shows alone are expected to draw 300,000 fans.

No one is saying how much money the tour and the Jackson memorabilia concessions have grossed so far.

Separated Twins Doing Well; Might Be Home For Christmas

By SHARON HERBAUGH
Associated Press Writer
GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Twin girls born joined at the breastbone were doing very well as they recovered from surgery to separate them, and a doctor said the 3-day-old girls could be home for Christmas.

The newborns, identified only as Ashley and Alma, "have everything they need to do well," said Dr. Thom Lobe, chief of pediatric surgery at the University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston.

The girls were awake and being fed intravenously and were receiving medication for pain, Lobe said in a news conference Wednesday. They also were getting help in breathing from ventilation machines, he said.

The infants were in critical but stable condition Wednesday night, a day after the 18-hour surgery to separate them, said hospital spokesman Irvin Power.

"The babies are very well, as well as we can expect from a long and complicated operation," said Lobe, who has performed two similar operations. "If there are no complications from the different hookups we did, these babies ought to do very well."

Doctors had hoped to wait until January to separate the infants, but began planning the operation almost immediately after discovering a small part of the small intestine was exposed, increasing the risk of infection.

The operation, which began at 7:30 a.m. Tuesday, was more complicated than doctors expected. Lobe said doctors spent "a lot of time trying to sort out the anatomy."

"The operation went very smoothly. It was figuring out what operation to do that took most of the time," he said. "It was sort of like a puzzle, all jumbled into a tight little ball."

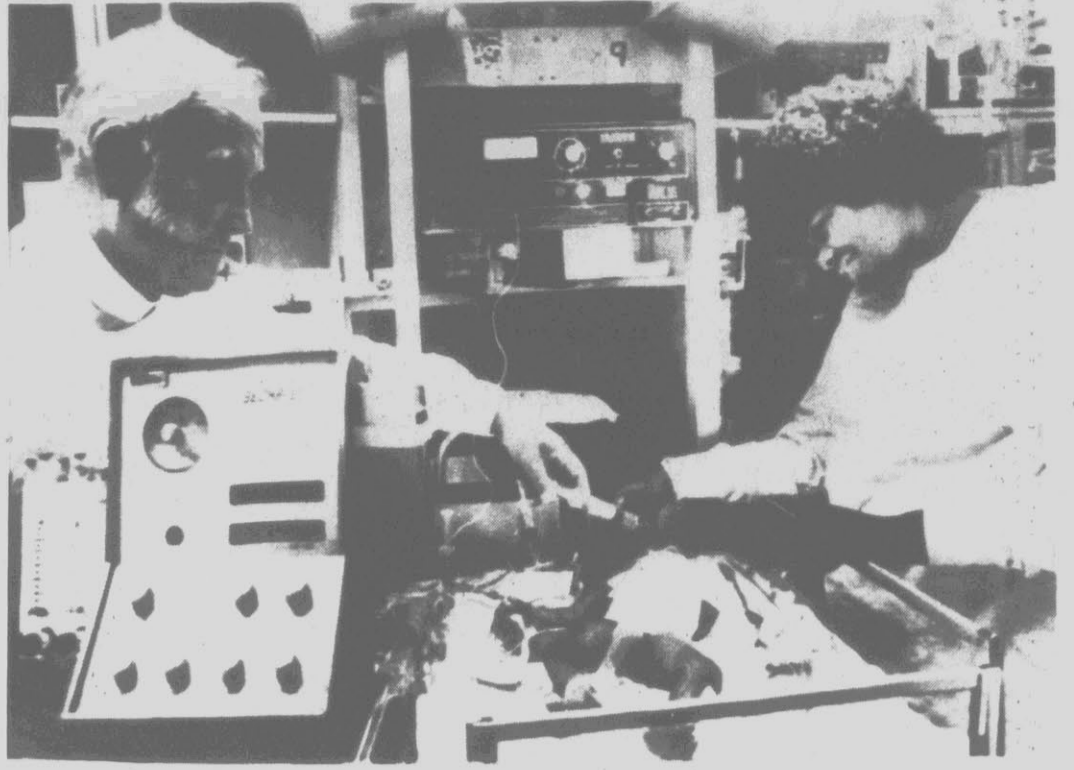

Two teams of surgeons divided the small intestine in half, removed both the girls' gall bladders and divided the larger-than-normal shared liver down the middle. They then split the diaphragm and chestbone and attached the diaphragms near the ribs, Lobe said.

Surgeons then reconstructed the chest and abdomen, using a plastic material to separate the organs from the skin and to help the girls breathe.

Lobe said the mother, whose name has been withheld, visited her daughters shortly after the operation.

"She was pretty happy," Lobe said. "And although she couldn't hold them, she put her hands on them, got to touch them, grab their feet, count their toes and make sure all the parts were there. She had a big smile on her face."

Wet, Warm Winter Forecast For East; Cold In The West

WASHINGTON (AP) — A winter reminiscent of many in the 1930s is being forecast by the National Weather Service, which predicts wet, warm weather in the East and cold temperatures in the West.

The 90-day forecast issued Wednesday calls for a return to a pattern not seen in a decade — but which was common a half-century ago — with sharply contrasting temperatures between the East and West.

"This pattern hasn't been common recently," said Donald L. Gilman, chief of the weather service's Predictions Branch. Similar winters occurred occasionally in the late 1940s and early 1950s, he said, the last one coming in 1974-75.

"There's never a perfect repeat, but the family resemblance is pretty good" to the usual pattern of the 1930s, said Gilman. He did not seek to explain why such a pattern, once common, would resume after being absent for a time. The forecast covers December, January and February.

Gilman said he expects a high pressure area over the Gulf of Alaska and a low over Siberia to combine to channel cold winds into Canada, where they will turn south carrying severe weather into the Rocky Mountains, the Sierra Nevada and the lands between.

The greatest chance of cold exists for Utah and portions of nearby states, including Idaho, Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona and Nevada. Nearby states could also be affected.

On the other hand, high pressure off the East Coast is likely to channel warm, wet air northward from the Gulf of Mexico, providing a relatively mild winter east of the Mississippi River, he said.

The East Coast from New Jersey to Florida has the highest probability of warmer than normal winter weather.

As for the West Coast and Midwest, Gilman said he was unable to make a firm temperature prediction.

But turning to precipitation, wet weather is likely for most of the nation, with local conditions affecting whether the moisture will arrive in the form of rain or snow.

The warm, wet air from the Gulf of Mexico will deflect storms north from their normal West to East pattern, said Gilman, and this likely will cause the greatest snow or rainfall to occur in Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Oklahoma and portions of adjacent states.

There is also a good likelihood of wetter than usual weather in Utah, extending through the southern Rocky Mountains and eastward through the Great Plains. The only place expected to be drier than normal is southern Florida.

In recent years, short-term forecasts covering a few days have grown increasingly accurate, but scientists continue to struggle with predictions in the so-called mid range of about 10 days.

And long-term forecasts covering 30 to 90 days continue to be nearly as much art as science, depending on the skill of meteorologists who try to anticipate the weather across the nation over the coming months. Gilman reports that his range of accuracy is generally in the area of 55 percent to 65 percent.

A year ago Gilman predicted warmer than normal winter temperatures in the East and South, and along the Appalachians.

That proved generally wrong, as temperatures along the East Coast were close to normal except in northern New England.

His prediction of warmer than normal winter weather in California and Arizona last winter was on track, however.

And his expectation of below normal temperatures in the Midwest more than came true, with cold ranging from the Rockies across the Great Plains to makelast year the sixth coldest winter on record nationwide.

Private School Students Study More, Study Shows

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Private school students, blacks and girls tend to spend the most time on homework, a new government study shows, with the typical student putting in just over an hour a day on these after-school chores.

Private high school students put in the most time on after-class studies, at 14.2 hours per week, or more than 2 hours 48 minutes each school day, the study by the Census Bureau showed.

By contrast, youngsters in public high schools put in 1 hour, 18 minutes a day, or 6.5 hours a week, according to the report released Thursday.

"Of course, private high schools in general promote academic, or pre-college curricula, while public schools tend to be more diverse, including some schools and curricula that are principally remedial or vocational," the report pointed out.

Actually, many public schools offer courses just as advanced as at private institutions, the report said.

It explained that the "greater diversity of public institutions and the implicit selectivity of private schools is a major reason why the median levels of homework in public and private high schools differ so greatly."

Students in private elementary schools also had more homework than their public school counterparts, although the difference was less sharp, at 5.5 hours to 4.9 hours per week.

For all American elementary and high school students, the median time spent on homework was 5.4 hours per week.

But girls topped that, doing 5.7 hours typically, while boys reported spending 5.2 hours weekly on homework. That's an extra half-hour for the females.

Blacks in general reported 5.6 hours week of homework, compared to 5.4 hours for whites and 5.3 hours for Hispanics.

The homework statistics were compiled from the bureau's annual survey of school enrollment, conducted last October. The survey found a total of 57,745,000 people aged 3 to 34 enrolled in classes ranging from nursery school to college.

The survey found 12.8 percent of students reported having no homework at all.

And it also noted that 58 percent said they received at least some help with their homework from an adult in their household. Students attending private schools were more likely to seek adult help, 61.8 percent to 57.4 percent for public school students.

The report also disclosed that nearly one-fourth of students aged 5 to 21 had changed schools in the previous year.

Of 43.4 million elementary and high school students in those ages, 10.6 million changed schools between October 1982 and October 1983, or 24.4 percent, the study found.

Of those changing, 9 million made the shift during the summer when school was not in session, and the biggest reason was that they had completed all grades in their former school. That was the reason given for 4.8 million school changes. Some 2.6 million said they changed schools because of a family move.

Of the 9 million changing schools between school years, the vast majority, 7.3 million, moved from one public school to another. But the flow from private schools to public ones was more than those going from public to private schools, 460,000 to 380,000.

Other findings of the study included:

—Nursery school enrollment is rising, with 31 percent of 3-to-4-year-olds enrolled last fall, compared to 18 percent in 1973. More than 70 percent of white nursery school children were in private schools compared to one-third of blacks.

—Enrollment in elementary schools is down 4.2 million over the past decade, with some increases expected in a few years as the newly arriving children of the Baby Boom generation reach school age.

—High school enrollment is down to 14 million and is expected to fall another million by 1990. It peaked at 15.8 million in 1977.

—College enrollment climbed from 8.2 million to 10.8 million from 1973 to 1983 and the proportion of women in college increased from 28 percent to 34 percent of females aged 18 to 21.

Space Monkey Said Ailing

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — America's first space traveler, a 27-year-old squirrel monkey named Miss Baker, is undergoing treatment for a potentially fatal kidney ailment that officials attribute to old age.

The 1-pound monkey, who made her trip into space 25 years ago, became ill Sunday night, said Scott Osborne, deputy director of the Alabama Space and Rocket Center. Miss Baker was diagnosed as suffering from kidney failure, Osborne said Wednesday.

The monkey is undergoing treatment at the small animal clinic at Auburn University, he said.

The kidney ailment appears to be the result of old age, he said. "She is extremely old. The average age that zoos work with is 9 or 10."

Initial prospects for her survival looked gloomy, but her condition improved Wednesday afternoon, Osborne said. "We are very optimistic she will be better and be able to return to the center soon."

Miss Baker, originally known simply as "Baker," went into space on May 28, 1959, with another monkey, Able, aboard a Jupiter rocket built in Huntsville. Able died shortly after the suborbital flight because of complications from an anesthetic.

Miss Baker has lived at the Space and Rocket Center for 13 years and has become a popular tourist attraction. "She still gets about 50 letters a week from school children," Osborne said.

Bullets, Rams Go For Titles

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

It's all on the line Friday night, and the people of Jamesville couldn't be more excited according to head football Coach Jerry Godley. The Bullets host Rosman, which defeated Cullowee 10-7 last week, to decide the North Carolina 1-A football championship. The Bullets come into the game with a record of 12-0, while Rosman is 9-3.

"It's a big week for us; the whole town's excited," Godley said. "Some people can say we played some weaker teams during the season, but that's not the case once you get to the playoffs. We felt like we had a shot at state playoffs before the season started, but we never expected to go 10-0."

The Bullets advanced to the finals with a 28-14 victory over Rosewood last week, but linebacker Robbie Harris twisted an ankle in the first quarter and played sparingly the remainder of the contest.

Running back Tracy Peele rushed for 130 yards on 25 carries including a three-yard touchdown run. Harris had TD runs of one and six yards. Quarterback Richie Ange completed five of 10 passes for 79 yards.

"We did pretty much what we wanted to (against Rosewood)," Godley said. "We got conservative after we went ahead 21-7 and stuck to running the ball. The odds are in favor of an interception the more you pass, so we decided to run the football."

"Robbie Harris still has a bad ankle, and he's the key to our defense. He hasn't practiced with us this week. We've got people who can get the job done, but they lack the size and experience of Harris." Rosman is predominately a run-ing team according to the scouting report Godley said.

"They run the old Notre Dame box offense, sort of an inverted wishbone," Godley said. "That could make it difficult for our defense; we haven't seen that offense all year. But we're fairly solid against the run."

"They run a split-6 defense. They're real aggressive and bring a lot of linebackers. Our line's going to have to do a super job on them."

Lady Pirates Rip FSU, 72-60

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Freshmen Alma Bethea scored 14 points and Monique Pompili added 12 as East Carolina's Lady Pirates won their first game of the young basketball season last night, 72-60, over Fayetteville State.

The contest was the home opener for the Lady Pirates, who are now 1-2 on the year. FSU falls to 1-4.

The contest was not nearly as close as it would seem from the final score. The Lady Pirates, in full control of the game most of the way, blazed their way out into as much as a 23-point lead midway through the second half, after holding a 38-17 edge at halftime.

"In our first two games, we played well for 15 minutes or so, so it was nice to have a game where we played better more — and it was good to get a win. We needed that for confidence," new coach Emily Manwaring said.

But — the new coach was not happy with the shooting of the Lady Pirates, who hit only 39.7 percent from the floor — and missed on a number of layups. "We missed quite a few under the boards," Manwaring said. "We outrebounded them (51-38) and got a number of offensive rebounds (20), but we didn't score that much off them. We have a tendency to want to put the ball on the floor rather than take it back up and that costs us. Too, we took too many shots when we were covered."

Sylvia Bragg added 11 points for the Lady Pirates, but she was five of 14 from the floor and needs to improve on her percentage, Manwaring feels. "I think she needs more strength in her shots and better selection. But I feel that she could be scoring 20 points a game too."

The coach was pleased with the play of her three freshmen, Pompili, a 5-11 forward from Fayetteville; Alma Bethea, a 6-0 center from Goldsboro, and Victoria Watras, a 5-11 guard from Northeast Harbor, Maine.

"The three freshmen have a lot of potential basketball ability," she said. "Once they clear up their mistakes, especially on defense, they will be great players. Alma likes to get to the basket and Monique wants to get her hands on the ball."

Pompili, in addition to leading the scoring, led the Pirate rebounding with 10, including five offensive rebounds. She hit six of ten from the floor. Bethea hit on four of eight from the floor, six of ten at the line and had four rebounds. Watras made good on three of seven shots, and had five rebounds.

Anita Anderson put ECU into the initial lead, and the Lady Pirates never trailed in the contest. Fayetteville State tied it at 2-2, 4-4 and 6-6 before Lisa Squirewell hit the first of a two-shot foul and Annette Phillips added a layup for a 9-6 lead. Bragg followed with a jumper to up the lead to 11-6 and Watras hit another layup to make it 13-6, a seven-point bulge with 12:56 still left in the half.

The Lady Broncos rallied to within five at 18-13, but Pompili, Bragg and Loraine Foster each hit baskets to up the lead to 26-13 and it never fell below ten points again. The Lady Pirates hit the final 11 points of the half, to go from a 27-17 edge to a 38-17 margin at intermission, with Bethea hitting six of those 11.

Fayetteville State never got closer than 15 until the closing minutes of the contest, when they pulled within 12. ECU used its bench liberally, and no starter played more than 25 minutes, and only two played as much as 20 minutes.

"It's my coaching philosophy to

Washington Tops Conley By 64-54

WASHINGTON — Washington's Pam Pack rebounded from an opening game loss Tuesday to hand D.H. Conley a 64-54 setback in the opener for the Vikings last night.

Washington's Lady Pack also came away with a win, downing the Valkyries, 54-41, for their second straight win.

The current Northeastern team — set to move into the Coastal Conference next fall — went up against a Coastal foe for the second straight night as it was a better outing this time. The Vikings controlled the first period of the game, moving out to a 15-12 lead by the horn. But in the second period, Washington took control, outscoring Conley, 18-10. That provided the Pack with a 30-25 halftime edge.

Conley tried to struggle back but saw another point added to the deficit by the end of the third frame, 45-39. Washington outhit the Vikes, 19-15, in the dash to the finish to record the victory.

Earl Randolph poured in 28 points to lead Washington, while Adrian Dudley added 11 points. Conley was led by Jeffrey Wright with 16.

The win made Washington 1-1 and Conley drops to 0-1.

Washington's girls boosted their record to 2-0 with their win. The Lady Pack led by only one after one period, 15-14, but pushed that out to 28-23 with a 13-9 edge in the second quarter. That was stretched to 40-33 in the third period and the Lady Pack outscored Conley, 14-8, in the last quarter.

Sarah Gray led Washington with 17 points, while Tonja Holley added 13 and Gloria Sherrod had 16. Angela Smith had 14 to lead Conley.

The Valkyries are 0-1 and Washington is 2-0.

Conley plays host to Rose on Friday, while Washington travels to Plymouth on Tuesday for its first Northeastern Conference play.

Maxwell Paces Celts' 8th Straight

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

It was a Texas showdown between the defending champions and the young upstarts with the quick draw and a mean look.

"They were like the young gunslinger that comes to town and we were the sheriff," said Cedric Maxwell, who scored 19 points as the Boston Celtics won their eighth straight decision, a 110-100 defeat of the Houston Rockets in a National Basketball Association game Wednesday night. "They blasted some early shots and then we came in and shot them down."

The 1984 champion Celtics went into the game with an NBA-best 12-1 record, but the Rockets, who failed to make the playoffs last season, were 11-4 and unbeaten in eight games at home.

Houston looked ready to add another notch to their gun handles with several 12 and 13-point leads in the first half, but the Celtics cut the deficit to two by halftime and pulled away in the second half.

"You know there wasn't a ticket available here," Maxwell said of the sellout 16,916 Summit crowd. "We came in here wanting to disappoint a lot of people."

In other NBA games, it was New Jersey 111, New York 96; Philadelphia 122, Indiana 101; Atlanta 95, Milwaukee 83; Los Angeles Lakers 114, Utah 109 and Los Angeles Clippers 106, Seattle 90.

The Celtics trailed 48-35 with four minutes left in the first half, but they outscored Houston 23-12 before halftime to cut the deficit to 60-58.

Then, in the second half, the Rockets hit only 12 baskets and scored only 40 points as Boston pulled away.

"That run before halftime was very important," said Larry Bird, who had 10 of his 23 points for the Celtics in the decisive third quarter. "We played good defense in the third quarter (when Houston scored only 18 points) and the shots started falling. We clogged up the middle in the second half and they started missing."

The Rockets' Twin Towers, 7-foot-4 Ralph Sampson and 7-0 Akeem Olajuwon, combined to make only 14 of 37 field-goal attempts. Sampson finished with 26 points and 12 rebounds, while Olajuwon had 14 points and 18 rebounds.

"We played well in the first half, but we didn't play well at all in the second half," Sampson said. "They came out strong in the second half and we came out cold."

"A two-point halftime lead was not what we expected," Rockets Coach Bill Fitch said. "We made errors and bad passes. We had three guys in sync and the others wouldn't be. Experience is the factor."

Lakers 114, Jazz 109

Los Angeles lost a 17-point lead before rallying down the stretch to win at Utah.

The Lakers trailed 103-102 before Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who led all scorers with 24 points, hit two straight sky hooks to put them ahead 106-103 with 4:48 remaining. The Jazz, who got 23 points from Darrell Griffith and 22 from Bobby Hansen, didn't catch up again.

Earvin "Magic" Johnson had 20 points, 10 rebounds and 14 assists for Los Angeles.

Nets 111, Knicks 96

New Jersey, playing its first home game in 19 days, got 21 points each from guards Otis Birdsong and Micheal Ray Richardson to hand

New York its first loss in seven games.

The Knicks, playing without NBA scoring leader Bernard King because of an injury, trailed only 82-80 with 10 1/2 minutes left, but Darwin Cook scored six points to key a 12-2 streak that put the Nets in control.

Pat Cummings scored 24 points and Louis Orr 23 to lead New York.

76ers 122, Pacers 101

Philadelphia never trailed while beating Indiana for the 12th straight time as Moses Malone had 24 points and 12 rebounds.

Malone surpassed the 15,000-point total in the NBA in the first quarter as the 76ers outscored the Pacers 33-21 in the period.

Pistons 120, Trail Blazers 113

Vinnie Johnson scored 27 points and Isiah Thomas hit 11 of his 21 in the decisive third quarter for Detroit against Portland.

The Pistons hit 64 percent of their field goals in the third period to extend a six-point halftime lead to 92-79 going into the final 12 minutes.

The Trail Blazers, who got 29 points from Kiki Vandeweghe, got no closer than five points the rest of the way.

Hawks 95, Bucks 83

Atlanta took advantage of injuries to Terry Cummings and Sidney Moncrief to hold Milwaukee to 37 percent shooting.

The Hawks, who got 17 points from Dominique Wilkins, outscored the Bucks 33-19 in the third quarter to pull away from a 42-41 halftime lead.

The game was one of 12 "home" outings for the Hawks in New Orleans. Only 2,172 attended the contest.

Clippers 106, Sonics 90

Derek Smith scored 21 points and Los Angeles outscored Seattle 32-21 in the third quarter to take control of the game.

The Clippers, who lost by 29 points at Denver on Tuesday night, won by their biggest margin of the season.

Jack Sikma led the SuperSonics with 29 points, but his only teammate in double figures was Gerald Henderson with 10.

Syracuse Off To Slow Start

By The Associated Press

Syracuse, a fast-breaking team last season under the direction of flashy freshman guard Dwayne "Pearl" Washington, started its 1984-85 season somewhat slower than it had hoped. Still, the 14th-ranked Orangemen strolled away with a victory.

Andre Hawkins and Wendell Alexis scored 11 points each Wednesday night to help Syracuse beat Cornell 65-53 in college basketball. But the Orangemen could not cruise into their run-and-gun style and Washington was held to eight points, including 1-of-7 field goal shooting.

Cornell disrupted the Syracuse offense with a deliberate approach that controlled the pace.

"That got us off to a slow start," Syracuse Coach Jim Boeheim said.

Meanwhile, No. 16 Louisiana State opened its season with an unimpressive 102-96 triumph over Loyola, Ill. Other Top Twenty teams did not have as much trouble. Fourth-ranked Duke belted William & Mary 92-60 and No. 7 Illinois beat Chicago State 81-63.

While Washington was having his shooting troubles (he did have eight assists), his new backcourt partner, freshman Michael Brown, did just fine. Playing in his first collegiate game and watched by a home crowd of 20,439, Brown scored 10 points on 5-of-5 shooting.

Syracuse quickly fell behind 8-2 and led just 26-25 at halftime before outscoring Cornell 10-4 to open the second half.

"We did a good job defensively and that got us going," Boeheim said.

Dean Kartsonas, a 6-foot-6 forward, led Cornell with 18 points and helped the Big Red, 1-1, remain close.

"Coach (Tom Miller) stressed to us all week long that if we played our tempo and did a good job defensively, we could stay with them and maybe beat them," Kartsonas said.

Top Twenty

Duke finally found a way to handle William & Mary as Mark Alarie scored 25 points for the winning Blue Devils. The last two games between the schools had been decided by a basket, but host Duke raced to a 20-8 lead and was never headed. Alarie scored 14 of Duke's first 20 points.

Johnny Dawkins added 17 points for Duke, 2-0.

Doug Altenberger and George Montgomery each scored 14 points for host Illinois. The Fighting Illini, 4-1, took a 29-20 lead at halftime as Chicago State missed 11 straight field goal tries and went scoreless for nearly seven minutes. The Cougars managed to pull within 34-30 early in the second half before Illinois pulled away.

Louisiana State played sloppy basketball in its season opener but did well enough to beat Loyola.

LSU never trailed and held a 15-point lead with eight minutes to play. But Loyola pulled within 98-94 in the final 54 seconds and it was up to junior Derrick Taylor to make four free throws to preserve the victory.

Bullets, Rams Go For Titles...

"Richie Ange is pretty mobile at quarterback, that helps to have a quarterback who can scramble against a rush."

GREENECENTRAL

The Rams survived another scare last Friday with a 22-yard field goal by Kenneth Radford with 20 seconds left to provide a 24-22 victory over North Edgecombe.

But this week Greene Central (8-4) hosts Jamestown Ragsdale (8-4) in the Eastern finals of the Division II 3-A state playoffs.

The Rams are hampered by injuries, but Ragsdale hasn't quite suffered that misfortune.

"I've been very impressed with Ragsdale," Rams Coach Spence Grantham said. "They're a big school; they platoon on offense and defense — no one goes both ways.

"We're going to take our 15 healthy people out there and play their 40. We've played real well at home so far; it's sure better than having to go up there and play."

"It all boils down to toughness; we're going to have to stick it to them early. We'll have to play with a lot of heart and character."

Ragsdale will rely on sophomore quarterback Keith McCluskey to direct its offense, but running backs John Pratt (6-2, 192), Brad Severson (6-0, 170) and David Martin (5-8, 160) along with fullback Kelly Mackie (5-10, 171) provide a variety of offensive weapons.

"John Pratt is a big, strong back, and Severson has quick feet," Grantham said. "They have four who are a threat to break a big play any time."

"They're pretty much a running team, but they came out throwing against South Johnston. They run the Carolina offense with the sprint out. They'll run one tailback one series, then come back with another the next."

"By the fourth quarter, our running backs are getting a little leg weary — their's are just getting warmed up."

Ragsdale also runs "Carolina's split-50 defense," according to Grantham. "They have good personnel, good size — 220 pound down linemen."

The Rams lost linebacker Curtis Murray this week in practice with a dislocated finger, but he may return for the game following a doctor's examination Friday morning. Nonetheless, the Rams continue to battle in practice.

"They know we can't afford to have anybody go down in practice," Grantham said. "I hope we can patch things back up inside. We're going to have to go out and go after each other. If a dislocated finger happens, it happens."

Pitt Falls Short Against Trojans

WINTERVILLE — Pitt Community College's Paladins missed out on a chance to make a move in the late stages of the game last night and went down to a 105-88 loss at the hands of Mt. Olive Junior College. It was the home opener for the Paladins, who dropped their season record to 4-5.

The two schools played an even terms throughout much of the game. At the intermission, Pitt held a 48-46 lead over the Trojans, but with seven minutes left to go in the contest, Andrew Edwards, the leading scorer for the Paladins, fouled out.

"Fouls were a big problem for us (Mt. Olive made good on 29 of 40), and in the second half, our defense got real weak," Coach Charles Coburn said.

With just over two minutes to go, and Mt. Olive up by 92-88, the Paladins had a chance to cut the lead to four on a foul. At the same time, both Pitt's David Joyner and Mt. Olive's J. Blackwell were ejected from the game for fighting.

Pitt then missed on the first shot of the one-and-one and failed to hit on either of the two technical shots that followed. Mt. Olive made good on its two technicals on the double flagrant foul call, and then got the ball on the tip, scoring off that for a 96-88 lead, sealing the outcome.

L. Johnson led the Trojan scoring with 21 points, while T. Butler added 15, D. Edmondson and D. Carr each had 14, and A. Carroll had 11. Pitt was paced by Joyner with 19, Kevin Tyree with 18, Linwood Harris with 14, Edwards with 13 and Albert Brown with 11.

The Paladins return to action on Monday, traveling to Craven Community College for a non-conference game.

Divisional Leaders Hold But Many Changes Below

There were no changes among the leaders in the four high school divisions from last week, but there were quite a number of shakes-ups in the remaining nine.

Most teams below the leaders jumbled up after the second week of the playoffs, and more shakes-ups are expected after this week's games.

Greensboro Pace continues to lead the 4-A ranks with a total of 118 1/2 points. Seventy-First of Fayetteville moved from third to second with 103 1/2 points, while Scotland took over third with 101 1/2. Fike, second last week, fell to fourth with 97.

Only the top three, along with Charlotte Garinger, with 93 points, are still in action.

In the 3-A ranks, Kannapolis Brown held to first with 112 points. SouthWest Edgecombe, despite losing to Tarboro, held to second with 101, while West Henderson is now third with 97. Tarboro took over fourth with 95. Kannapolis, West Henderson, Tarboro and number seven Oxford Webb, are still playing.

Wallace-Rose Hill, the lone 2-A unbeaten, holds to first place in its division with 85 points, but is just a point ahead of Forest Hills with 84. Whiteville is third with 79 1/2. Those three, plus number five Swain, are still in the playoffs.

Jamesville continues to lead the 1-A's and is the only unbeaten in that division. The Bullets, 12-0, have 66 1/2 points. Rosewood is second with 49, while Rosman, which plays Jamesville for the title Friday night, is third with 45 1/2.

Points are awarded for each victory a team gains, and each win its victims record.

New Look For Greene Central

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

SNOW HILL — To call Greene Central's 1984-85 basketball team the "new-look" Rams would be accurate, as only one starter and one reserve return from the squad which posted a 10-2 Eastern Carolina Conference record while 19-7 overall.

Along with that, add a new head coach and you could have the formula for a long season of rebuilding.

But Coach Gregg Ashorn, a former East Carolina standout who coached at Chocowinity before accepting the post vacated by Lewis Godwin, hopes speed and enthusiasm will make up for the Rams' lack of size and experience.

"Maurice Edwards averaged about 11 points a game last year and Mike Warren sat the bench most of the time although he did play some as a reserve, but that's about all the experience we have," Ashorn said. "They've all been good about accepting a new coach. Sometimes the transition is slow, but we went straight to work — we had a lot to work on."

Warren (5-9) will start at point guard, while Edwards (6-0) is the Rams' swing man. Also at guard is Mike Cogdell (5-11), with Anthony Artis (6-1) and Harvey Dupree (6-0) on the inside. Artis is the lone junior among the starters.

"Warren is very quick, but right now he's having some trouble reading what's there," Ashorn said. "I think he'll be able to handle it with time, but right now he has a tendency to get down the floor and put up a shot."

"Artis played well in our scrimmage against Havelock. He's the kind of kid you want 15 of; he works hard in practice and listens to everything you say."

"Maurice Edwards may be small college material. He can sky, and he's a good defensive player; we may move him around on defense to use his quickness."

Desmond Sheppard is the top guard off the bench, with sophomore Melvin Croom (6-3) the first big inside reserve. Sophomore Alphonso Joiner and juniors Scott Jones and Mark Hall are fighting for time at point guard. Junior Steve Harrison and sophomore Olijuel Sheppard, both 6-3, are expected to help inside, but Harrison is the reserve quarterback on the Rams' football team which competes for the Division II Eastern title Friday night.

James Hill is sidelined with torn ankle ligaments but is expected to provide outside shooting when he returns in January.

Greene Central will miss the offensive production of Theodore Edwards, who finished second in the ECC standings with 17.3 points per game along with a league-leading 11.8 rebounds. Anthony Thompson, who transferred to Wilson Fike during the summer, was third in the conference with 8.5 rebounds per game.

Ashorn admits the Rams have to work on rebounding, but he adds Greene Central should have a solid defense.

"We haven't spent a lot of time on offense and shooting as a group," Ashorn said. "I've worked with each of them individually, but 85 percent of our practice time has been spent on defense. They've done a real good job of grasping what we hope to accomplish."

"I like to dictate the tempo of the game, and aggressive defense is one way. We'll use a variety of defenses; we never want to let the other team get too comfortable on offense. We've got to be prepared to try to run the ball on offense, then get back and play sagging defense."

"After three weeks of practice, I thought our defense looked pretty good (against Havelock), but we threw the ball away too much on offense. They weren't forced turnovers, just throwing it away."

North Pitt eliminated Greene Central in the Eastern Carolina Conference tournament semifinals last year, and Ashorn expects the Panthers to be tough again this season.

"I think it's going to be a good conference overall," Ashorn said. "I'd like to think we'll finish near the middle. We've got to get some experience early, but with opening against Wilson Beddingfield I think we'll get it fast."

"My goal for this team is to be able to beat any team on a given night by February."

LADY RAMS

It's a rare occasion when a high school basketball coach has seven top players returning from a squad that posted a 19-7 record.

It's rare, but it's a situation Greene Central Coach Brenda Dail is looking forward to.

"I think it's fantastic," Dail said enthusiastically. "I can go into coaching the finesse of the game and not have to worry about fundamentals. We can give them a little more difficult plays to run."

Cynthia Jones (5-9) will shift from center to point guard — a move needed to make room for 6-2 freshman post Cynthia Corbett.

Cyndi Hicks (5-9) led the Lady Rams 13.3 points per game a year ago, and Anntionette Wilkes (5-9) averaged 10.2. Melody Bowen (5-8) is the fourth senior among the projected starters, while Sharon Myatt is listed as a top reserve.

"Everybody will probably try to key on Cyndi and Anntionette early in the season," Dail said. "But I feel like in the long run, they'll have to play us as a complete team. Melody Bowen has particularly been putting the ball in the hoop more."

Point guard Dalen Herring, Jenny Hardison and center-forward Kim Rogers also return from the 1983-84 squad which finished second in the Eastern Carolina Conference regular season standing with a 10-2 mark. Freshmen Chanel Hooker, Joy Albritton, Sherry Williams and Sharon Croom round out the 1984-85 Lady Rams.

"I imagine most of the girls will get some playing time," Dail said. "But seven of the them are advanced because of the game time they've already got. They've been playing together since junior high ball."

The Lady Rams will try to take advantage of their speed and experience on offense, while using strength on defense for rebounding.

"I feel like we can run with the ball," Dail said. "We'll capitalize on fast break opportunities. I've been impressed with their ability to change a broken play into a good offensive play; they have a feel for the other players on the court."

"Defensively, we have some height this year with Cynthia Corbett in the middle, plus the majority of them have been in the weight program. They're physically strong; they can take any punishment a team wants to try."

Despite having two players out sick and others away from practice during a school trip, Dail said she "thought they would hustle a little more on defense."

"We just didn't look too sharp in our scrimmage," she said. "The entire group has only been together practicing about two weeks; that may have something to do with it."

While the Lady Rams have a bundle of talent, Dail thinks the Eastern Carolina title will come down to the final game of the season when Greene Central hosts SouthWest Edgecombe. The Lady Cougars won the conference crown last season with an 11-1 record, then went on to defeat North Pitt 43-41 in the tournament.

"North Pitt lost pretty much everything they had, so I expect they'll have a rebuilding year," Dail said. "Farmville Central has some real strong girls and will figure in there somewhere."

"SouthWest has such a winning tradition in women's basketball — it kind of evens out with our experience."

"It could all come down to the last game again this year, only this year it's at Greene Central instead of SouthWest Edgecombe."

TANK McNAMARA

by Jeff Millar & Bill Hinds

Running Back Ricky Bell Is Dead Of Heart Ailment

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — John McKay, who coached Ricky Bell at Southern Cal and made him the No. 1 pick in the 1977 NFL draft, says the running back was "one of the finest football players" he ever coached.

Bell, a standout running back at the University of Southern California from 1974-76 who later played six years in the National Football League, died Wednesday at Daniel Freeman Hospital after a two-year illness. He was 29.

"This is a helluva shock," said McKay. "He was one of the finest football players I've ever had the pleasure of coaching and even a finer man. I don't know anyone who didn't like Ricky Bell."

Reaction to Bell's death were a tribute to the memories he leaves behind.

"He was a great player," said Coach John Robinson of the Los Angeles Rams, who succeeded McKay as the head coach at Southern Cal in 1976, Bell's senior year. "He had two years where he was one of the best runners of all time."

"He was a very strong man being. He exuded strength. Probably the thing that was most memorable to me was that somehow he was a very aggressive football player and yet a very kind man."

"Everybody kind of loved him. He was just a marvelous leader for our first team at USC. It's just a terrible loss."

"We grieve along with the family," Bucs' owner Hugh Culverhouse from New York.

"USC has lost part of its heritage," said Mike McGee, the athletic director at Southern Cal. "Ricky Bell represents the best of what Trojan football is all about. He was a dedicated player whose first priority was always oriented to the best interests of the team. He was a truly outstanding representative of this institution."

McGee was the head coach at Duke in 1975 when the Trojans faced the Blue Devils. Bell set a school single-game rushing record that he later surpassed by gaining 256 yards to spark USC to a 35-7 victory.

Bell, who was the first player chosen in the 1977 NFL college draft, played for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, under McKay, and the San Diego Chargers in the NFL from 1977-82.

Bell played two games for the Chargers before the NFL players' strike in 1982. He came down with his illnesses during the strike and never played again.

Bell, who grew up in Houston before moving to Los Angeles at age 11, attended Fremont High and later earned All-America honors in his junior and senior seasons at Southern Cal.

As a junior, he led the nation in rushing with 1,875 yards and as a senior he was second to Tony Dorsett in the Heisman Trophy balloting.

His career totals at Southern Cal were 710 carries, 3,689 yards rushing and 28 touchdowns.

Bell gained 347 yards on 51 carries to set school records for yards gained and carries that still stand in Southern Cal's 23-14 victory over Washington State in 1976.

He had suffered from dermatomyositis, an inflammation of the skin and muscles, and a severe muscular disease of the heart called cardiomyopathy related to the dermatomyositis, according to his physician, Dr. Allan Metzger of Beverly Hills, who said cardiac arrest was a result of the diseases.

The hospital issued a statement Wednesday saying Bell had died of cardiac arrest at 11:06 a.m. PST.

Viewers To Vote For Number One

By HERSCHEL NISSESON
AP Sports Writer

Who's No. 1? Brigham Young says it is. So do the voters in The Associated Press poll. Oklahoma thinks it should be No. 1.

As a result, ABC-TV is going public with the dispute. You can vote during the network's double-header Auburn-Alabama, Florida-Florida State from noon-7 p.m. EST on Saturday by calling a special ABC Sports Hot Line.

If you think BYU deserves to be No. 1, the number is 1-900-720-0070. If you disagree, it's 1-900-720-0077. The results will be tallied electronically and the results will be reported at the end of the day by studio announcers Jim Lampley and Beano Cook. No, the call doesn't entitle you to talk to Jim or Beano.

Although BYU (12-0) and Oklahoma (9-1) have ended their regular seasons, the argument over No. 1 will linger through the bowls. There are, however, 11 games this weekend as the regular season comes to an end.

The only contest pairing members of The AP Top Twenty finds third-ranked Florida at No. 12 Florida State. The Gators won the Southeastern Conference championship for the first time but the SEC ruled them ineligible for a bowl game because of a pending NCAA probation.

They can, however, win the national championship. First of all, they are not yet on probation, pending an appeal of their three-year sentence. Secondly, teams on probation at Auburn in 1957, Oklahoma in 1974) have been voted No. 1 without going to a bowl.

This is Florida's bowl game and they are favored by three points. The pick is... Florida 38-31.

Last week's record was only 10 right, 11 wrong for a percentage of 476, although the Upset Special — Texas A&M over Texas Christian — came through: for the season, 428-172-14—713. Against the point spread, last week's score was 5-10—333; on the year, 185-184-4—501.

No. 11 Auburn (favored by 6) vs. Alabama at Birmingham: By winning, Auburn can represent the SEC in the Sugar Bowl. Otherwise LSU goes. Very little has gone right for the bowls this year, so why should this week be any different? Upset Special of the Week... Alabama 20-17.

Rice at Houston (by 21): A Houston victory sends the Cougars, four-time losers, to the Cotton Bowl. Believe it or not, that doesn't thrill the Cotton Bowl. Second Upset Special... Rice 27-24.

Texas A&M at No. 13 Texas (by 10): If Houston loses to Rice, Texas can go to the Cotton Bowl by beating the Aggies. Third Upset Special... Texas A&M 21-19.

No. 10 Southern Methodist (no line) at Nevada-Las Vegas: If Houston and Texas both lose, SMU misses out on a trip to Hawaii (the Aloha Bowl) and goes to the Cotton Bowl, which is only a couple of miles from its campus. Fourth Upset Special... UNLV 28-21.

No. 8 Boston College (by 17) at Holy Cross: Doug Flutie won't need any miracles this week... Boston College 38-17.

As you may have gathered from the small hint running down the middle of this ad, something is happening to Isuzu's low prices. They're getting even lower. We call it our Lowest Price Truck Sale and if you look over on the right you'll find the truck that inspired it.

With its suggested retail price of only $5775; this rugged, four-speed, standard-bed Isuzu PUP already costs less than America's five best-selling compact pickups.

But now, thanks to generous factory incentives, you can pick up one for even less than that.

The nice part is you're not getting less of a truck. Isuzu PUPs have not only earned a world wide reputation for toughness, Four Wheeler Magazine has called them "a shining example of what quality control is all about."

Of course, this isn't the only price we're lowering in our Lowest Price Truck Sale. You can take your pick of a variety of different PUPs.

But don't take too long. The arrow won't be pointing this way forever.

Carter's Project Takes Aim At Cigarettes

By ROBERT BYRD
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Former President Carter and his new Emory University policy center have embarked on a mission to improve America's health, one that may involve head-on legal clashes with the nation's cigarette manufacturers.

Medical experts from across the country, meeting at the Carter Center's three-day Health Policy Project, hammered out a package of steps to reduce disease, improve auto and home safety, fight drug and alcohol abuse and prevent unwanted pregnancies.

One of those recommendations, from a task force on smoking, was for the Carter Center to serve as a "repository of resource material and legal data for use in litigation by victims of tobacco-related disease and death."

"That's one of the options we will consider," Carter said, adding that although he has not studied the recommendations, "I don't think there are any ... I would want to avoid."

Dr. Jesse Steinfeld, president of the Medical College of Georgia and a former U.S. surgeon general, said that if victims' lawsuits were successful, "the cigarette industry will follow the asbestos industry and find that they cannot produce cigarettes because the cost is too high in compensating the victims."

"Once the public realizes that the cigarette industry might be culpable for the death of someone, that would be a revolutionary change in public attitudes," Carter said.

He said his center will act on his

Hunt Set For UNC President

DURHAM (AP) — The University of North Carolina will officially begin Friday its search for a successor to William Friday, the first and only president of the 16-campus system.

Friday is scheduled to appear behind closed doors at a UNC Board of Governors meeting. He said in a telephone interview that he will attend for the sole purpose of answering questions and will not be involved in the selection of his successor.

He has said repeatedly that he wanted to keep his distance from the search in order to perform effectively as president until he steps down in July 1986. He announced his retirement two months ago.

Philip G. Carson, chairman of the Board of Governors, said Friday's meeting would be devoted solely to the presidency issue. On the agenda will be a discussion of the procedure for seeking Friday's successor and possible candidates whom board members might like to suggest, Carson said.

The meeting will be private because it's a personnel matter, which under state law qualifies it to be closed, Carson said.

Since this is the first time in the board's 12-year history that it has sought a new president, there are no precedents or concrete guidelines, Carson said. Friday has been the UNC system's president for 28 years.

Helms Says Will Keep Farm Post

By The Associated Press

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said he would stick by a campaign promise to remain chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, passing up a chance to lead the Foreign Relations Committee.

Helms said Wednesday his commitment to farmers in North Carolina, who he said helped elect him for the first time in 1972, was too strong.

"If I were to walk away ... my Lord," Helms said.

Meanwhile, aides to Helms and Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said Lugar will fill the vacant chairmanship of the Foreign Relations Committee.

"If there is one job in the Senate I would like to have it is Foreign Relations Committee chairman, and there it was; all I had to do was bend a principle," Helms said.

But he added, "If I can't keep my word, I don't belong around here."

Claude Allen, a Helms spokesman in Raleigh, said early on Wednesday that Helms "has said (in the past) that he is satisfied with Dick Lugar's chairmanship of Foreign Relations and that he will stay with Agriculture."

The Foreign Relations job remained the one potentially unsettled position after a closed-door Republican caucus Wednesday in which Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas was elected majority leader.

Dole defeated Ted Stevens of Alaska in the race to replace retiring Majority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee by a vote of 28-25.

IN THE STATE

experts' recommendations in several ways. He and his wife Rosalynn plan to write a book on the conference's findings, explaining "in peanut farmer terms ... what might be important for an American to know" about the individual's own health.

He also said he hopes to use the center's role as a site of negotiation, discussion and mediation to bring together both sides of issues affecting American health and life, such as reproductive issues and gun control.

Cigarette smoking, however, may not be an issue on which a consensus can be reached easily, Carter said.

If one side were bent on destroying the cigarette industry, and the other was committed to keeping the status quo in the tobacco business, discussions would be "kind of a hopeless case," Carter said.

Other recommendations coming out of the three-day conference included a ban or restriction on cigarette advertising, improved auto safety and a commitment to air bags and passive restraints, improved access to contraceptives for sexually active people of all ages and increased taxes on alcohol and cigarettes.

Carter said his center will do whatever it can to improve public health in America, but "I don't intend to get involved in lobbying efforts in Washington to raise taxes on cigarettes — that's not my role."

His role, he said, is bringing together people who can make a difference in bringing about the Health Policy Project's theme: "Closing the Gap" between what health care in this country, and the world, could be and what it is.

"As a former president ... I have access to almost anyone on earth, and with that access the ability to bring them together on complicated tasks," he said.

"This health emphasis is not an accident for me. It's not transient. This will be a permanent emphasis for the Carter Center, I hope transcending my own life span."

The Carter Center, an arm of Emory, plans to select at least four "health policy fellows" and endow a teaching chair on the faculty of Emory's medical school.

Also planned is more work on the findings hammered out in the three-day conference, which looked at 13 preventable health problems in the United States and six "generic" risk factors involved with many of them.

Of those risk factors, smoking was at the top of the list. A parade of scientists identified smoking as the cause of lung disease, heart disease, cancer, peptic ulcers and more than 1,000 premature deaths in the United States every day.

"Smoking is the greatest single health hazard in this country," Steinfeld said. About 33 million Americans have given up smoking since the surgeon general's first warning in 1964, about 53 million still smoke, he said.

The project's smoking task force recommended steps to "make nonsmoking the norm" in this country, including an end to glamorization of smoking in the media and advertising, restrictions on where cigarettes can be sold and restrictions on smoking in the workplace.

N.C. A&T Will Seek Doctoral Program

GREENSBORO (AP) — A $14 million, five-year development plan for North Carolina A&T State University includes a proposal that, if approved, would make the school the first historically black one in the University of North Carolina system to offer doctoral degrees.

The school's trustees unveiled the development plan — the school's first — Wednesday. They also established a process for handling complaints.

Among the proposals is that the school seek authority from the UNC Board of Governors to begin offering doctoral-level degrees. Doctoral studies are available now only at UNC-Chapel Hill, UNC-Greensboro, East Carolina University and N.C. State University in the 16-campus system.

The long-range plan, which A&T's administration hopes to use in guiding the school's development between now and 1989, includes suggestions that the university:

- Seek authority from the UNC Board of Governors to offer nearly 20 new bachelor's and master's degree programs, including a master's in social work that might be offered in conjunction with UNC-G and a master's in animal health and biotechnology.

- Improve faculty evaluation, create a faculty development fund, add faculty members and reassign other faculty positions from departments with declining enrollments to those where enrollments are growing.

- Improve intercollegiate athletics by reorganizing the booster club, increasing the budget for football scholarships and providing additional financial support for minor sports.

Nathan Simms, vice chancellor for academic affairs and chairman of the study committee, said that the plan "will help us to control and direct our growth, guide our program development and plan for our budget needs."

"Really, what we've done is take an inventory of all of our resources so the board will know not only what we have but what we want to do. We may not achieve it all, but it's something to shoot at," he said.

The trustees also recommended that the University of North Carolina Board of Governors authorize A&T to raise fees for dormitory room rents and the university meal plan by a total of $80 per student per year beginning next August.

The increase is necessary to keep the two programs from operating at a deficit, the trustees said. If approved, annual room rents would go from $774 to $814 and meal plans from $874 to $914.

At a work session before the regular board meeting, the trustees also developed their first procedure for taking, investigating and responding to complaints. The procedure will log and track every complaint and request for information from the time it is submitted until a final response is given.

The new procedure does not guarantee that every complaint will be heard by the board, but it does ensure that every question will get an answer. Chairman McArthur Newell said.

In the past year, Newell has received dozens of letters that have not been answered because the board did not have a process for reviewing them.

"This system ensures that when a person complains to the chairman, he gets an answer from the chairman," trustee Will Parker of Greensboro said. "The answer may be that it's an administrative matter and has been referred to the chancellor, but it will come from the chairman."

In other action, the trustees unanimously adopted a resolution that would increase student athletic fees from $65 to $90 a year per student, a move that eventually may lead to an increased number of football scholarships.

Of the increase, $20 would be applied to athletic programs and $5 to band activities.

The increase is contingent on approval from the Board of Governors, which is scheduled to meet in January.

Based on a student population of 5,000 undergraduates, which is about the school's enrollment, the $20 of the proposed increase that would apply to athletics could generate an additional $100,000.

A&T Athletic Director Orby Moss said much of the money realized from such an increase would be earmarked for additional football scholarships. A&T now offers the equivalent of 43 in-state scholarships while many of its opponents reach or approach the NCAA Division I-AA limit of 75.

Moss estimated a full scholarship to A&T — including in-state tuition, room and board, fees and textbooks — costs about $3,000 per year.

"Football has the most potential for generating money," Moss said. "In football, we can put 17,000 people in the stands. In basketball, although we're winning, probably only 4,000 people pay each night. The rest of the gym goes to students."

Klan Membership Dropping In N.C.

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Ku Klux Klan membership stayed the same or fell slightly in North Carolina this year, but activity designed to attract recruits increased, say law enforcement officials and private groups that monitor the Klan.

"The activity is up, but the numbers aren't," said Ira Gissen of Richmond, Va., regional director for the Anti-Detamation League of B'nai B'rith, a Jewish group. "Overall KKK membership in the entire state numbers no more than 250."

"A number of Klan groups in the real sense are competing with one another for members," he said. "Consequently they are looking for gimmicks to attract attention."

"There's been much more of a public focus," said Leah Wise of the Durham-based North Carolinians Against Racist and Religious Violence.

Ms. Wise, Gissen and law enforcement officials agreed that the most active of North Carolina's half-dozen Klan groups is the Confederate Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, formerly the Carolina Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, led by Glenn Miller of Angier.

"To suggest that the Klan is fading away is an insult to the intelligence of anyone who follows the Klan," said Miller, a former Green Beret who ran for governor this year. "I've never been more optimistic in my life."

Miller's group held several rallies in 1984, including a rally and cross-burning Nov. 17 in St. Paul's in Robeson County that attracted more than 200 people. Members carried guns and wore berets and military fatigues, rather than the traditional Klan hoods and robes. The organization also made headlines when it threatened to post guards in public schools and to monitor the polls during the election, said Ms. Wise.

"He Miller seems to be targeting certain areas of the state ... developing more chapters and increasing visible activity," she said.

Gissen said many people at the St. Paul's rally were drawn by an advertised "air show" involving two planes and by the memory of a 1958 Klan rally in the area that turned into a brawl.

Law enforcement officials estimate the group has 300 or 400 active participants with about 35 or 40 core members, but Miller said his group has 1,000 members.

"We're always trying to modernize our image," he said. "It's hard to compete with the image makers in the Jewish media. Klansmen are normally projected as 6th-grade dropouts in bib overalls, illiterate and violence-prone."

But Miller, who favors "equal rights for white people" and total separation of blacks in a black nation, said his group is attracting young working people and couples in their 20s. He said many are attracted by firearms training programs for self-defense in "this crime-ridden society."

Law enforcement officials say the other Klan groups in the state include:

- The White Knights of Liberty, led by Joe Grady of Winston-Salem. The group, with a core membership of 35 to 40, has had a low profile during the year.

- The Invisible Empire of the Ku Klux Klan, led by John Edwards of Rutherford County, with about 35 core members. Virgil Griffin, who was found innocent of murder and civil rights charges in the 1979 shooting deaths of five anti-Klan demonstrators in Greensboro, is a former leader.

- The United Klans of America. Officials believe they are the largest Klan group in the state, but they don't have any estimate of their members. Most are older people who avoid violence and like to meet in secret, ritualistic ceremonies, officials say.

Law enforcement officials say there are also a few splinter groups, including the Whiteville Knights, the Liberated Knights of Gastonia, the Jacksonville-based Rights of White People and other small local groups.

Miller said his group shuns violence and that it cooperates with the other Klans in leadership conferences and rallies.

Former Klansman Draws Sentence

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — The man accused of firing the first shot in the Nov. 3, 1979, shootings in Greensboro has become the only person sentenced for charges arising out of the deadly confrontation.

Calling the actions of Mark J. Sherer "the spark that set off the tragedy in Greensboro," U.S. District Court Judge Hiram Ward sentenced the former Ku Klux Klan member to six months in a community treatment center, suspended the remainder of a five-year term and placed him on five years probation.

Five anti-Klan demonstrators were killed at the 1979 rally.

Sherer, 24, of Cramerton, pleaded guilty to a conspiracy charge on March 24, 1983. He later tried to withdraw that plea.

Before sentencing Wednesday, Sherer once again tried to withdraw his guilty plea. But Ward, as he had done after a hearing on the subject last May, rejected Sherer's request and accepted the plea agreement worked out between Sherer's first attorney and Justice Department lawyers.

When it came time for sentencing, Ward indicated that the results of earlier trials made his job a difficult one.

Two long and costly trials arising out of the shootings ended in acquittals of the Klansmen and Nazis

You Get Much More Than Money Out of a First Federal Checking Account!

A checking account is a funny thing. We put our money in just so we can take it out. That's because checking is an easy way to pay for things without carrying a lot of cash.

But what happens to our checking money when we're not using it? Well, at First Federal it's earning interest... the highest allowed by Uncle Sam in Prestige Checking or money market rates in First Investors checking.

But earning interest isn't the total value in your checking account. We've added some extras we knew you'd like. A choice of three checking plans, for instance. Daily compounding of interest. No-fee travelers checks. Out-of-town emergency cash at more than 4000 locations nationwide with Prestige Card. Plus, access to our Prestige 24-Hour Teller, located next to our Boulevard Office.

So when people put their money in a First Federal checking account, they get much more than their money out of it. Come on in to First Federal... the Source of Financial Value.

Get The Jump On Uncle Sam.

By now, most people know about the tax advantages of an IRA. But you may not know about the big difference it can make when you're making all your IRA deposits as early in the year as possible.

For example, if you deposit $2000 in an IRA in early January instead of waiting until you file your tax return the next year, and keep doing that for the next 20 years, you'll come out with over $16,000* more interest.

For all the details, come see us. The time to start is now. The place is right in your neighborhood.

Member FDIC

*Assuming a fixed interest rate of 11%, the additional interest earned over 20 years on a $2000 IRA invested on January 1 each year compared to a $2000 IRA investment made just prior to filing your tax return a year later

PBS Starts New Series Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — There's no question who's the boss in "Agatha Christie's Partners in Crime," starting tonight on public television, although Tommy is the one posing as Mr. Blunt, owner of the International Detective Agency, and his wife, Tuppence, as his assistant, Miss Robinson.

"Agatha Christie's women are very bright, very together, very independent people," said Francesca Annis, who plays Tuppence Beresford in the five-part "Mystery!" series. "More often than not, they are equal to her men, and Tuppence manages to stay a step ahead of everyone else."

Miss Christie created Tommy and Tuppence Beresford for "The Secret Adversary," published in 1922, but credit the folks at London Weekend Television for teaming Miss Annis and James Warwick in the TV adaptation.

"The two appeared together in 'Lillie,' broadcast some time ago on 'Masterpiece Theatre,' and in another Christie dramatization on the syndicated Mobil Showcase Network, 'Why Didn't They Ask Evans?'"

"We do have a certain depth of relationship," Warwick said, "and I think it makes a difference in a series like 'Partners in Crime.' We can take shortcuts that you can't take when you're working with someone new."

"I think we complement each other quite nicely," said Miss Annis, "and there's a certain affection that comes from working together that you cannot pretend."

"That's important, because it's not clear at first who is dominant, Tommy or Tuppence, and Miss Christie, of course, won't say. But by the end of the second episode, there is no question: 'I was right, wasn't I, darling?' Tuppence asks Tommy after they have solved the crime. 'As always,' Tommy replies.

"Partners in Crime," not to be confused with the NBC show of the same name starring Lonnie Anderson and Lynda Carter, is based on a series of short stories written subsequent to "The Secret Adversary" (which, by the way, was the first Christie novel made into a movie, in Germany, in 1928).

"The Secret Adversary" features Lt. Thomas Beresford, at the time an officer in the British army, and his childhood sweetheart, Prudence Cowley, who is nicknamed Tuppence.

The stories in "Partners in Crime" are set in the period after World War I and are marvelous in their attention to period detail. They are, in a sense, satire on the British upper class. A proud and wealthy man, for instance, can die a violent death but maintain his rather peculiar dignity:

"Dennis, you know you are a bit of a rot," one victim-to-be is informed, to which he replies, in obvious shock, "Oh, I say!"

Tonight, in the first of the five self-contained installments, "The Affair of the Pink Pearl," Tommy and Tuppence are hired to determine which of the guests at a dinner party stole a valuable jewel.

TOUGH GUY — Arnold Schwarzenegger portrays the Terminator, a character in the movie of the same name. Such a film would ordinarily zip through the marketplace in a week, hurried along by the jeers of the critics. However, in three weeks' time, the film has sold $20 million in tickets. ## Sci-Fiction Movie Is Money-Winner

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — James Cameron, director of "The Terminator," remembers growing up as a movie nut on the Canadian side of Niagara Falls.

"I spent all of my allowance on film for my 8mm camera," he recalled. "When I graduated from high school, my father was transferred to Los Angeles. 'Isn't that near Hollywood?' I asked. That was all I cared about."

Today, Cameron has a hit with "The Terminator." Filmed for $6.5 million, the Orion Pictures release sold $20 million worth of tickets during three weeks. It's a science fiction adventure in post-nuclear Los Angeles with Arnold Schwarzenegger as a programmed killer.

Such a film ordinarily would zip through the marketplace in a week, hurried along by the jeers of the critics. But the usually tough Daily Variety called "The Terminator" a "blazing, cinematic comic book, full of virtuoso moviemaking." Newsweek reported that the film's climax "will melt the hinges of your jaws."

"The Terminator" was the top-grossing movie in its first week of release. A modest Jimmy Stewart type, Cameron commented: "The picture is a hit relative to its market, which is between the summer and the Christmas blockbusters. But it's better to be a big fish in a small pond than the other way around."

Cameron is the latest member of what he calls the "Corman College of Cinematic Knowledge" to make it in the bigtime. He refers to the legendary quickie producer Roger Corman, from whose operations have sprung such figures as Francis Coppola, Martin Scorsese, Jack Nicholson and Peter Bogdanovich.

A physics major at California State University at Fullerton, he drove a truck to support himself while writing movies. In 1981, he landed at Corman's New World

Springsteen Is 'Santa' On Tour

DALLAS (AP) — Rock singer Bruce Springsteen is known as the "Boss" to his fans, but the high-energy performer currently on his "Born in the USA" tour has been acting like Santa Claus.

Springsteen, 35, who has already given away thousands of dollars on the tour to help the unemployed, gave $10,000 to the North Texas Food Bank to help distribute food to needy families, a spokeswoman for the organization says.

Food Bank volunteers also collected $2,000 at Springsteen's two sold-out concerts Sunday and Monday at Reunion Arena, said Lori Palmer, executive director of the Food Bank. During his concerts, Springsteen urged fans to contribute to the food bank.

"He indicated to me one of the main reasons he wanted (to help) was that he wanted to feel connected to the communities that he plays," Ms. Palmer said Tuesday.

Author Says He's Convinced Of Guilt

ELON COLLEGE, N.C. (AP) — The author of a book about the slayings of Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald's wife and two young daughters says the former Green Beret doctor could have gotten away with murder if he had kept his mouth shut.

But MacDonald was like a criminal out of a Dostoyevski novel shouting "catch me, catch me," says Joe McGinniss, author of the best-selling novel "Fatal Vision" and consultant to last week's NBC mini-drama of the same name.

McGinniss said that for the past 10 years, MacDonald has told needless lies on network television shows, cursed a grand jury while testifying and continues to "crave publicity," even when it is contrary to his self-interest.

"All through the years he has done things that are self-destructive," said McGinniss, who held a news conference at Elon College Wednesday night and later spoke to a standing-room-only audience in the college auditorium.

McGinniss said that MacDonald, now serving a triple life sentence for the Feb. 17, 1979, murders of his wife and two daughters at Fort Bragg, lies not just about major facts regarding the crimes but even about small facts related to his life.

For instance, McGinniss said that his book includes a reference to MacDonald being named "most likely to succeed" in his high school class in Patchogue, Long Island, based on information from MacDonald.

But McGinniss said he got a letter recently from a former classmate of MacDonald's who had just finished reading "Fatal Vision." The man claimed he, not MacDonald, was voted this honor. The man furnished proof.

"That's just one more story that Jeffrey MacDonald was telling all these years that was not true," said McGinniss, who is also the author of the book "The Selling of the President," about the advertising that helped elect President Richard Nixon in 1968.

McGinniss lived with MacDonald, his lawyers and his family at the Kappa Alpha house on the North Carolina State University campus for seven weeks in the summer of 1979 when MacDonald was on trial in Raleigh.

MacDonald had invited McGinniss to write a book about the case in which MacDonald claims that a band of hippies broke into his Fort Bragg apartment and butchered his family.

McGinniss based his book, which concluded that MacDonald was guilty on grand jury transcripts, courtroom testimony, conversations with MacDonald and legwork by the writer.

Asked Wednesday night if there is any chance he may be wrong about MacDonald's guilt, McGinniss said, "I would put the percentage at zero in terms of MacDonald not having done this. The evidence is absolutely overwhelming."

He said the jury took "only six minutes" being out for lunch, to acquit MacDonald, was guilty of a crime beyond a reasonable doubt.

McGinniss predicted that if MacDonald is successful in a bid for a retrial, he could be convicted in a second retrial.

He questioned MacDonald's claims of new witnesses and evidence. He said the only possible new evidence that could arise would be "a signed confession from Jeffrey MacDonald and I don't think we are going to get that."

McGinniss said that as the long trial progressed he became increasingly disturbed by the emerging evidence and by MacDonald's inability to face reality.

He said even though he came to believe MacDonald guilty, it was nevertheless a painful experience the day after the trial seeing MacDonald locked up in the federal prison at Butner. "This guy had also become a friend," he said.

Cannon Mills Phasing Out Textile Plant

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — Cannon Mills Co. has announced that it will close its No. 6 textile plant, and a spokesman for the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union of America says he expects two more Cannon plants to shut down in the near future.

Cannon officials said the closing, which was announced Wednesday, would throw 375 people out of work and force another 434 to move to keep their jobs.

ACTWUA spokesman Robert Freeman predicted Wednesday at the union's newly opened Cabarrus County office that Cannon plants 9 and 10 would close in the near future and more than half of Cannon's workers would be unemployed within a year.

Freeman said he had expected plant 6 to close.

"I've been expecting it for a long time," said Freeman, a retired employee of ACTWUA and current adviser to the union.

"It's not a modern plant. (Cannon owner David) Murdock is only going to operate the modern ones," Freeman said.

He blamed modernization and imports by Cannon Mills for the closings.

In a prepared statement, Cannon officials said changes to be implemented over the next four months would result in a net loss of 375 positions.

"In keeping with past practice, the company will make every effort to relocate employees affected to similar jobs at other Cannon plants," the statement said.

"Over a period of many months Cannon has been closing or selling certain facilities, and consolidating other operations in order to strengthen the company's competitive position, especially against foreign imports.

"Cannon's restructuring is designed to enable the company to expand its position as the leading resource for bedroom, bathroom and kitchen textile products," the statement said. "The implementation of these changes will begin immediately and will be completed in the first quarter of 1985."

There are 751 hourly and production employees and 58 supervisors at Plant 6, a multi-operations facility which includes the manufacture of sheets, towels, upholstery fabrics, drapery fabrics, yarn and bedspreads.

Employees were told Wednesday that they would be first in line for jobs at Cannon's Westminster, S.C., plant, where the company's yarn manufacturing and bedspread weaving operations will be moved, and at the Kannapolis plant, new location of the terry weaving operation.

Operations at Plant 6 halted around 8:45 a.m. Wednesday, as company officials broke the news to workers. Supervisors had been notified in an earlier meeting.

In the official statement, Cannon said Plant 6 would "become a warehouse and distribution center for comforters, further increasing the company's competitiveness in this important product."

Cannon described the changes as "an expansion of (Cannon's) bedspread and comforter operation and the phase out and proposed sale of its decorative fabric equipment and business."

"These actions are the final step in the company's plan to restructure its manufacturing operations," the statement said.

This is the third major change at Cannon Mills announced during the past two weeks. Together, they have affected 1,600 employees.

Recently, it was learned that the cam loom operation at Plant 1 in Kannapolis was being phased out and moved to a South Carolina location. In Albemarle last week, several hundred employees learned that changes at the Wiscasset Mill would affect their future employment.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♦	Pass	3NT	Pass
4NT	Pass	5♦	Pass
6♦	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.

"Why are you so adamant about responder having specifically a 4-3-3-3 distribution for a jump to three no trump?" writes a reader from the Bronx. "What's the big deal if responder has a doubleton, especially if it is in opener's suit?"

There is a good reason why this stricture applies. When partner opens the bidding and you have 16-18 points, your side is in the slam zone. Add a point or two for distribution, and you certainly want to be in slam if your side has a fit. However, the three no trump response has consumed a lot of room, and you may not have the space to investigate possibilities accurately without risking getting overboard and turning a sure game into a minus score.

Perhaps the simplest way to highlight this question is to refer back to a hand that was dealt in a team match some years ago. At one table the bidding went as shown. After North's three no trump response, South feared the possibility that his partner had three spades without the queen. If that were so, the grand slam would, at best, be on a finesse or a 2-2 break, and you really want better odds than that. So he settled matters by checking for aces and then jumping to a small slam in spades. When the queen of spades failed to drop, he made only 12 tricks and he was delighted with his decision.

At the other table North decided that, because of his doubleton spade, his hand did not qualify for a three no trump response. Therefore, he made a waiting bid of two clubs—and you can imagine what that did for South. He leaped to four no trump and, when his partner showed three aces, he contracted for the grand slam in clubs. He knew that, AT WORST, it would be on a finesse or a 2-2 break in spades. However, North rated to be short in spades, in which case the grand slam would be a laydown. That was indeed the case.

Farm Bureau

RALEIGH (AP) — Delegates will consider proposed changes in the federal tobacco program at next month's annual convention of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation.

Voting delegates from all 100 North Carolina counties will be asked to vote on resolutions submitted by county farm bureaus at the meeting, set for Dec. 25 in Winston-Salem.

The policies they adopt will set the direction of the state's largest general farm organization.

Bureau officials said several proposals for altering the federal tobacco program will be considered by delegates. But they declined to comment on the specifics of the proposals, saying they were subject to change or deletion by the delegates.

Gov. Jim Hunt, Gov.-elect Jim Martin, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and North Carolina Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham are among those scheduled to speak at the convention.

Ugly Truck Contest

RALEIGH (AP) — Don't throw that old heap of a pickup into the garbage dump. Instead, drive it to Clinton for the first North Carolina Ugly Pickup Truck contest.

The contest, sponsored by the merchants of downtown Clinton, takes place Saturday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Pre-registration is required by Friday.

The contest, which has attracted 14 entries, will award $100 for first place, $50 for second and $25 for third, along with a trophy for all categories.

A trophy will also be awarded to the pickup that journeys the farthest to the contest.
