Reagan Tells Aides To Cut $34 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan was giving his Cabinet marching orders today for cutting about $34 billion from the government's domestic programs, but was still undecided on how much to trim the Pentagon's military buildup, according to administration officials.

"Domestic (spending) is wrapped up," a Reagan administration official said after Reagan concluded a one-hour meeting Tuesday with his senior budget advisers in preparation for a session today with the Cabinet.

Officials who asked not to be quoted by name said that so far, the president and his budget advisers have settled on about $34 billion in domestic spending savings.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said that budget director David A. Stockman was using the decisions Reagan has made so far on domestic spending as the basis for instructions on program cuts that were being delivered to the department secretaries today.

While final decisions are yet to be made on the Pentagon budget, a suggested target of $8 billion in reductions for the military would, along with the domestic spending cuts, achieve the president's goal of about $42 billion in savings for the next fiscal year.

Administration officials have said that most savings are to be achieved through a plan that would cap spending for some programs while cutting others.

White House officials have said the president wants to reduce planned spending in the 1986 fiscal year, which begins next Oct. 1, by $42 billion in order to hold total federal outlays to the current level.

The idea is to hold the deficit, now projected to reach more than $200 billion next year, to $170 billion.

Cabinet secretaries can appeal the reduction orders handed to them, but the president has been involved in a line-by-line examination of the budget and officials have indicated that the department chiefs will have to make strong cases if they hope to reverse the tentative decisions.

The final decisions will become part of the new budget Reagan sends to Congress early next year.

In previous years, Reagan resisted calls to trim the growth of military spending, but this year's round of budget cutting — conducted in an atmosphere of growing concern about deficits — apparently will extend to the Pentagon.

Pitt School Board Approves Request For Oversize Classes

By MARY C. SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Education has approved a request to the state to allow 86 classes in the county school system to exceed North Carolina's approved class size maximums.

All 86 classes surpass the maximum class size by three or fewer pupils, a number that is over the state's recommended guidelines but "not over the state approvable number," Associate Superintendent Leck Keeter of Pitt County schools said. The County Board of Education approved the classes at its monthly meeting Tuesday and the State Department of Public Instruction will now consider them.

Classes that exceed the recommended levels are not unusual in Pitt County or other systems across the state, Keeter said. "Students simply don't come in 26's or 29's," he said. "We did have some classes that exceeded the limits, but we whittled them down until they were within the approvable level, which is three or fewer students above the recommendation."

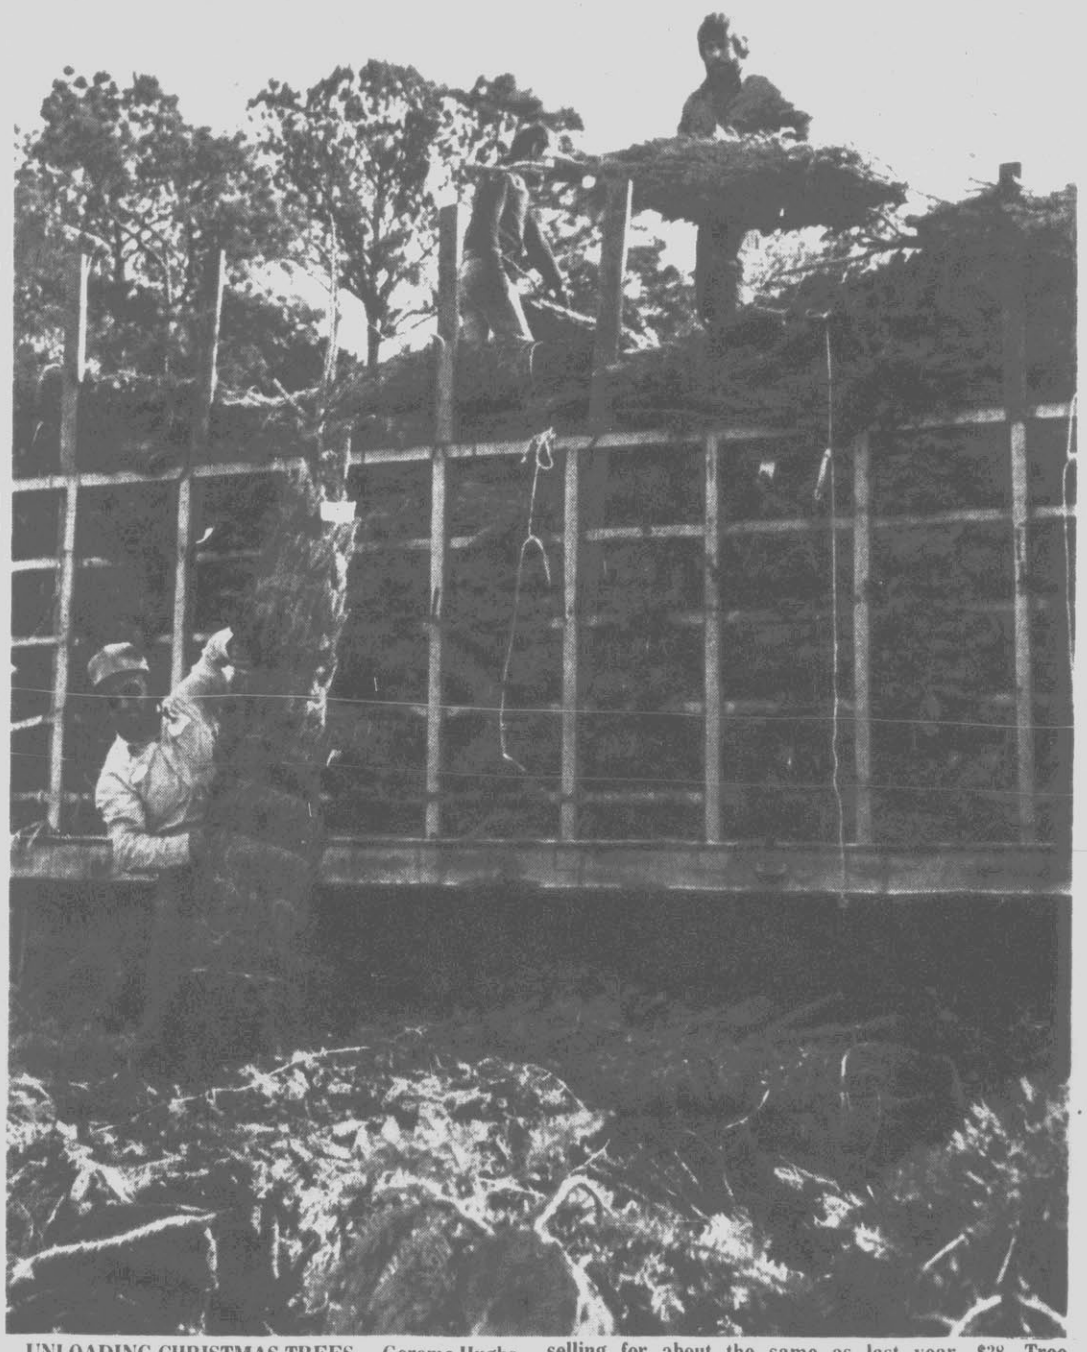

The number of 86 is "not a large number (of oversize classes) for Pitt County," Keeter said. "It is an average of what we've had in the past."

"On the other side of the coin, we have an equal or greater number (of classes) that are undersized or fit the guidelines," he said. North Carolina suggests a student class load of 26 pupils in grades kindergarten-6, 30 pupils in grades 6-8 and 31 pupils in high school classes.

Pitt County distributes teachers based on the state's allotment policies, Keeter said. "In our allotment formula we round them (teachers) off to the nearest half position, then round them off to the next whole position," he explained. Vocational, art, music and elementary physical education teachers are not included in this allotment.

The schools with oversize classes and the number of these classes are: Chicod, seven; Ayden Middle, nine; Grifton, 15; North Pitt, three; G.R. Whitfield, 12; Farmville Middle, one; Bethel, eight; A.G. Cox, three; Belvoir, two; Pactolus, four; W.H. Robinson, five; Stokes, two; Sam Bundy, six; Ayden Elementary, two; Wellcome Middle, four, and Falkland, three.

Board members approved a new supplemental salary schedule for teachers identical to the one used in the Greenville school system.

Regional Meeting For Alumni

UNC Puts Services On Display

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

Education, research and public service were the themes of the regional meeting of alumni of the University of North Carolina system Tuesday night on the East Carolina University campus.

A slide presentation shown in Wright Auditorium integrated the 16 constituent institutions, one of which is East Carolina University, and the services rendered by the system.

William C. Friday, president of the University of North Carolina system, said during a social hour at Mendenhall Student Center that the local regional meeting, the fifth in a series of seven, was the largest-attended meeting.

"The alumni of all institutions in a 15-county area were notified of this informational meeting," Friday said. "The reaction has been positive at this and the other meetings. This is the first time a meeting of this type has been held anywhere, and judging from the response, we will continue them."

Chancellor John Howell of ECU said the alumni response was so great the slide presentation had to be moved to Wright Auditorium, which has a larger seating capacity.

"The main people invited to this meeting were the alumni," Howell said. "This is an integrating activity. We (at ECU) talk to our own alumni. Now we have the opportunity to talk to the alumni of the entire system."

In a speech before the slide show, Howell noted that 25,000 alumni of the UNC system live in the 15-county eastern region; 12,000 of those alumni are graduates of East Carolina University.

William A. Dees Jr. of Goldsboro, a member of the UNC Board of Governors, said, "There are 350,000 living alumni (of the UNC system) making contributions to the nation. They are receiving great dividends from their investment in the 16 universities in the UNC system ... which is among the top four public systems in the nation.

"The (university) system reflects a deep commitment from the citizens of our state ... and the wisdom and vision of the government of our state," Dees added.

"The UNC system is owned by all the citizens of North Carolina," said speaker Jacob H. Froelich Jr., vice chairman of the UNC Board of Governors. "This is a report to the citizens of North Carolina."

Friday said the reason for the meeting and the slide show was to present information about new developments to university supporters.

"The university in great measure is the state's agency for solving the state's problems," he said. "There is a great partnership between this institution and the people of the state."

Friday said the university system has three purposes: "teaching the young people from the towns and cities of the state and helping them be gainfully employed ... carrying on extensive programs of research in this age of science ... and carrying on a range of public service that annually touches the lives of the people in North Carolina."

The 30-minute slide presentation, titled "A Report to the Citizens of North Carolina: Partnership for the Future," reiterated those themes. Each university contributed to the presentation, which was shown with the use of 12 projectors, a large screen and stereo sound.

Couple Celebrates 25th Anniversary

The Macedonia Missionary Baptist Church in Farmville was the setting for the 25th wedding anniversary of Oreba H. and Joseph R. Person. The Rev. Earl F. Jones officiated.

Walter Bolden and Denise Dupree were organists and pianists. Lillian D. Bradley sang "I Love You Truly" and "The Lord's Prayer." Nathan Cobb sang "With You I'm Born Again."

The bride was given in marrige by her brother, Livingston Hargrove. She wore a mauve pink peau de soie dress with a high neckline and long sleeves trimmed in pink satin. She wore a white laced corsage.

Charlotte Hargrove, niece of the bride, was honor attendant and wore a gray silk dress with a layered neckline. She wore a white corsage.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall. Tables were covered with white cloths and centered with floral arrangements. Hilda Faison served cake squares and Irene Dickens and Lillie S. Graham poured punch. Denise Hargrove distributed souvenirs and presided at the bridal registry. Tony and Denise Hargrove passed out programs.

The Rev. Person is pastor of Craven Corner Missionary Baptist Church in Havelock and Mrs. Person is a retired teacher.

Bessie J. Redden directed the anniversary assisted by Evella Bynum and Hilda Faison. Mary L. Wilks was in charge of the reception assisted by Louise Artis and Lillie Tyson. Evella Bynum greeted guests and said goodbyes.

Parents' Lack Of Will Gets In Way Of Children

DEAR ABBY: My brother, sisters and I are trying to deal with an issue I'm sure you hear about often: Our parents do not have a will.

I am 52 and the oldest of eight children. My father is 78 and in very poor health. My mother is 71, and she is also in poor health and failing fast.

Over the years when they were in better health, we tried to get them to draw up their wills, but they wouldn't even discuss it. Now that they're both ailing, it's even more difficult to get them to face reality. Two of my brothers tried to bring it up last Christmas, but Mom and Dad both pretended they didn't hear. My sister mentioned it again last August, but the folks refused to talk about it.

I know I'm not alone in this dilemma, but that doesn't help me. Do you, or any of your readers, have any suggestions?

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Perhaps if your parents' lawyer were to tell them what would happen to their estate should they die without leaving a will, they would make one. (Maybe not.)

I think you children have said enough. Quit nagging them about it, or they might call in a food taster.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My daughter (educated, attractive, poised, mid-20s) told me two years ago that she is gay. (I don't want to go into details for fear of detection.) "Mary" spoke to a therapist at my suggestion, who told her, "It's your life, you are over 21, and if you're happy, you don't have a problem."

I spoke to another therapist at the same time who told me, "Learn to accept it or lose your child."

My husband and I refuse to accept it. We love our daughter very much and have always been supportive of her, but this is too much. It is affecting everything we do.

Is there hope for a reversal? We can't get her to see another therapist. I guess I'm looking for a miracle. Is there a support group for parents? Will they send information in a "plain brown wrapper"? I have many unanswered questions. Please don't use my name or city, either.

DISTRAUGHT MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I can't give you any better advice than the therapist gave you. If your daughter is happy, she has no problem. If you can't accept her, then you have a problem. Don't look for a miracle and don't hope for a reversal.

Write to: Parents FLAG, P.O. Box 24565, Los Angeles, Calif. 90024 and ask for its enlightening literature. It's free. This is a non-profit organization, so please enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR ABBY: Do you know how "Kathleen in the Bronx" knew that the "ghost" in her house was Jewish?

Because it kept saying "NOO?" instead of "BOO!"

BERNIE SABER

DEAR ABBY: Back in 1958 you printed a confidential to "Cannot Be Consoled." It was a very comforting message to parents whose child had died. My wife kept that clipping all these years because we lost a daughter about that time. As you can see, it is now old and faded and falling apart. Please run it again. It may give comfort to others as it did to us. Thank you.

JOSEPH J. ATTARDO,
JEWETT CITY, CONN.

DEAR MR. ATTARDO: Here it is:

Losing a child is the most tragic experience a parent must bear. But one must believe that it is more than a coincidence that God and Good are similar words. Here is a little story one of my readers sent me:

There once was a procession of children marching in heaven. Each held a lighted candle, and as they marched, they sang. Their faces shone with happiness. But one little girl stood alone ...

"Why don't you join us, little girl?" one happy child asked.

"I can't," she replied. "Every time I light my candle, my mother puts it out with her tears."

To dry herbs in a hurry, spread the leaves on a cheesecloth-covered rack in an oven set at its lowest temperature. Leave the oven door open and stir leaves occasionally until they are crisp. They will be ready in a few minutes.

Selecting and Caring for Christmas Greens and Trees

— It is best to select a fresh tree.

— Select a tree that has flexible branches.

— Check the trees for needle loss by shaking it. Dry trees will shed their needles.

— A fresh green tree will have a fragrant odor.

— Wrap the tree before carrying it home (except for short distances.) Trees exposed to lots of wind will dry very quickly.

— When buying a pre-cut tree, cut and saw the base of the tree one-two inches (two inches is preferred) to remove the sealant which has been applied to retain its freshness. How much to cut will depend on the length of the tree base or the type of tree stand you will be using. Some stands will accept branches, others will not.

— Immediately immerse the tree base in water. Keep the water level high because the tree will begin to DRINK LOTS OF WATER. Keep the tree in this vessel for 12-24 hours.

— After securing the tree in its stand for decorating, keep plenty of water in the stand at all times. Most trees will drink one-four quarts of water daily. Don't let the water disappear. Trees will dry very quickly.

— A hydrated tree will not BURN! It may char but will not ignite.

— Do not place the tree or decorative greens near any heat source — fireplace, insert, radiators, heat vents, etc.

— WATER is the best and least expensive method in keeping your tree and greens fresh and safe. Floral preservatives can be used but can also be expensive.

— To fireproof Christmas greens and boughs, spray with the following mixture and allow time for the excess liquid to run off before taking it inside:

One gallon of warm water
Four tablespoons boric acid
One cup alum
Four tablespoons borax (powder)

BAKED HOMINY

Two 14½-ounce cans white hominy
1 cup hot white sauce (see Note)
1 cup milk
Salt to taste
2 tablespoons fine cracker crumbs
2 tablespoons butter
¼ cup grated cheddar cheese

Drain hominy and turn into a well-buttered 10 by 6 by 1¾-inch baking dish. Pour hot white sauce over hominy. Pour milk around edges. Sprinkle with salt and cracker crumbs; dot with butter; sprinkle with cheese. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until most of the liquid is absorbed and top is brown — about 50 minutes. Let stand 10 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Note: In a 1-quart saucepan melt 1 tablespoon butter; stir in 1 tablespoon flour until blended. Off heat gradually stir in 1 cup milk, keeping smooth. Cook over moderately low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and bubbly. Salt to taste.

SNACKTIME FARE
Tangerine Punch & Wafers

TANGERINE PUNCH

In an electric blender whirl together until smooth and frothy 1-3rd cup frozen tangerine juice concentrate, ½ cup milk, ½ cup water, ¼ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon vanilla and 5 ice cubes. Serve at once. Makes 4 servings. Given on request.

When serving sticky foods or messy shellfish don't forget the old-fashioned fingerbowl. Add a bit of lemon juice or leaves of scented geraniums, lemon verbena, one of the mints or other sweet herbs or flowers to the cool water.

Curry powder is a mixture of spices such as fenugreek, tumeric, cumin, mustard seed, cardamon, ginger and peppers ranging from hot to mild.

Busy Year

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners begins a new year with a new member and a new chairman.

The board was joined by Eugene James, a Bethel native, a farmer and retired teacher Monday. He replaces former chairman and soon-to-be state Rep. R.L. (Bob) Martin in representing Belvoir, Bethel, Pactolus and Carolina townships.

Kelly Barnhill of Greenville was named the new chairman of the board.

The County Commissioners will face many problems during the coming year, but for the most part they are problems that most counties would like to have. The county is growing in population and development. Much of the residential development accompanying the growth of the medical complex and industries is occurring in rural area, and that population has the need for water, sewer, garbage disposal, as well as adequate roads, just as town dwellers do.

The county is heavily involved in development of one of the most sophisticated medical compexes in the state. And the County Commissioners are very much a part of the planning for merger of Pitt and Greenville school systems and the corresponding financing of needed capital improvements.

It will be a busy year for the County Commissioners and we hope its members will approach problems with strong planning and bold new ideas for orderly growth. Pitt County can grow and still have the best of what a rural environment offers. We only have to avoid the mistakes other areas have made.

'Freeze'

There is a degree of reassurance in President Reagan's tentative decision to attack bulging federal deficits by seeking to hold spending at current levels. His plans are said to involve a virtual (though not "complete") freeze on programmed spending.

Reassuring? Yes. It is a major step in the direction of a balanced budget.

John G. Medlin, Jr., president of Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., addressed a manufacturers' meeting in California last Nov. 16, and in it opined individual and piecemeal spending cuts of the size needed probably are doomed to failure.

"Raising taxes," he said, "will not solve the problem but only reduce personal income, discourage business investment and depress the economy. A more politically realistic approach might be an across-the-board spending freeze, including defense and social programs. This simple action could reduce the deficit by one-third in a single year, avoid cuts for anyone, weaken accusations of inequity, and blunt attacks by special interest groups."

Medlin further observed that it is crucial to make a "pre-emptive strike" and quickly work some magic on the budget ... otherwise, the Federal Reserve would continue to have the lonely and impossible mission of simultaneously attempting to restrain inflation, moderate interest rates, and sustain growth.

Senator Robert Dole, the newly elected majority leader, agrees there is a feeling among Republicans ... indeed, a bipartisan attitude ... that a spending freeze of some kind is in order. So there is reason to hope.

The president remains strongly inclined toward more defense spending; but if he presses, moderate voices in Congress may insist that harsh monetary practicalities must be heeded. Our own impression is that the military pipeline by now must be so full of plans, money, goods and services that it is approaching capacity limits and already discourages thoughts of economizing.

A long period of fiscal uncertainty should be avoided because of the potential for damage. We hope that "pre-emptive strike" advised by Medlin can take shape within the early months of Mr. Reagan's second term. It would contribute mightily to economic stability and open doors to business growth, which is the ultimate answer to a lot of problems.

Sliding Back, Or Making Progress?

RALEIGH — There's a neighborhood argument. John's stereo is blasting and Joe is angry. Joe's wife enters the spat and when things really get heated, John pushes Joe and then pushes Joe's wife.

If things go no farther, John has committed simple assault against Joe — a misdemeanor punishable by up to 30 days jail. But, even though he was no more violent with Joe's wife, he committed assault on a female, a crime which carries a considerably tougher penalty — two years in prison.

Assault on a female is a statute written into North Carolina law so that women will have a little extra protection from men. Now, the legislature's Criminal Code Committee is proposing to expand that law to include assaults by women upon men. But critics say the change will destroy the current assault on a female statute and leave women much more vulnerable to domestic violence.

"I agree with them in theory, with what they're trying to do," says Evelyn Williams, a member of the Governor's Task Force on Domestic Violence and director of a Wake County domestic violence center. "But they (the committee) fail to recognize that there is a continuing pattern of violence against women who are involved in intimate relationships.

"What happens in practice," Ms. Williams said in an interview after addressing the committee, "is if an assault happens between married people or an unmarried couple living together, it is not taken seriously."

Judges take an assault on a female seriously, she said, but police and magistrates, "without a clear signal that an assault on a female is a crime and one which will be prosecuted, ... will tend to trivialize it," she said.

Rep. Dan Blue, D-Wake, committee co-chairman, said in an interview that assault on a female serves a "valid purpose" in helping fight domestic violence. A woman who is being beat up by her husband or live-in boyfriend can be better protected with this statute on the books. "We can get the woman out of the home (and into a domestic violence center) and have enough control to hold over the man. The judge says to him, if you do this again, you're going to serve two years."

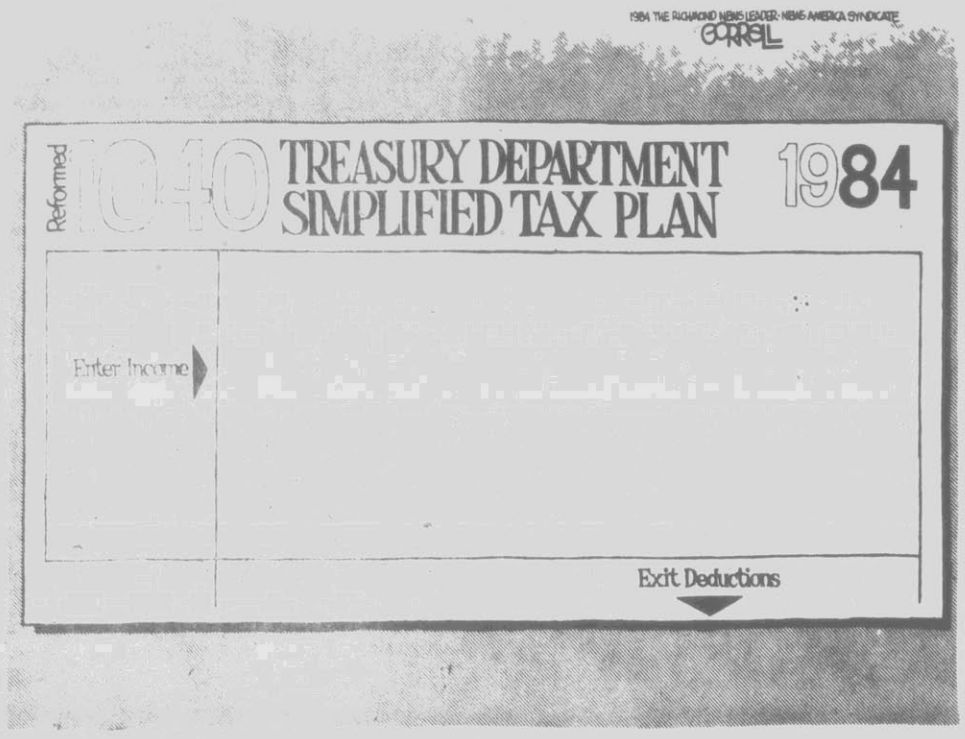

Where Blue and Ms. Williams disagree, however, is on the effect of the committee's recommendations.

"This won't change any of that," Blue says. "It merely makes the crime sex neutral." If a woman batters her husband — and that is happening with increasing frequency these days — then the husband could have the same protection that battered women now receive. Women will not lose any of their current protections, he says.

Ms. Williams argues that by making the law apply to all assaults by members of opposite sexes, the special nature of, and the special protections gained from, assault on a female will be lost.

In the committee, there was considerable debate before the change was approved on a tie-breaking vote from a wavering Rep. Bob Slaughter, D-Stanly. Sen. Dennis Winner, D-Buncombe, had argued that "to raise the situation where a female assaults a male to a two-year misdemeanor on a simple assault appears to me to be ridiculous." Rep. Tim McDowell, D-Alamance, argued that refusing to make the statute sex neutral amounted to "sliding back into the dark ages."

The committee's recommendation goes into a proposed criminal code which is already very controversial. The new code bill promises to be one of the most viforously scrutinized pieces of legislation that will come before the 1985 General Assembly.

Just A Talk In The Locker Room

The weary Santa Claus team was sitting on benches, staring at the floor in the Emporium Department Store locker room.

The manager was punching the walls. "You guys are stinking out the joint. We're down 10 percent in sales from last year. Not only is my job on the line, but if we don't win, the game is over for all of you. This second half is going to make all the difference. Now, so you can get it through your thick heads — one more time — who are we trying to beat?"

"A SLUGGISH ECONOMY," the team shouted in unison.

"Right," the manager said. "The most vicious kind of economy there is. And if we lose this game, what will happen to the economy?"

"WE'LL HAVE A DEPRESSION."

"Okay, let's get out there and perform." the manager said as he stood in front of the blackboard. "Remember, if we come out let that kid get by us without his mother purchasing anything in the store."

"I'm sorry, coach. I gave him a solid push toward the toy department, but somehow he slipped around me and ran down the escalator."

It's these kinds of mistakes that could ruin our Christmas. Let's review the plays on this blackboard. The line is here, a 50-pound kid comes up and sits on your lap. What do you do?"

"I ask him what he wants me to bring him," McMurtrie said.

"NO YOU DON'T. You ask him if he's been a good boy. If he says he has, then you tell him he deserves a new Schwinn bicycle, an Apple computer and a radio-controlled boat. He's not expecting that and neither are his parents. But if we're going to get sales points on the board we have to play hardball."

I gotcha, coach. Our game is to hit the high-priced items first. Suppose the kid says he just wants a hot wheel car instead?"

"Tell him hot wheels cars are for kids who have been bad. Those who are very, very good deserve to get something really, really nice. And remember this, you dumbbells. Make sure you tell the kids to repeat to their parents what you promised them BEFORE they get out of the store.

"Too Tall, you let a little girl run all over you. Why did you tell her she wouldn't get anything for Christmas?"

"Because I was trying to stop her from pulling on my beard."

"Well, that was a stupid play. You should have told her if she stopped pulling on your beard she'd get a $150 doll house."

"I never thought of that."

The manager was livid. "You call yourself a Santa Claus? If you fumble the ball once more you'll be playing for the Salvation Army next year. Matlowsky, your job is to block a mother who is dragging her kid away from the electric trains. Four mothers knocked you down and got to the parking lot on your side of the store. What happened?"

"I was crouching down, giving the kids peppermint sticks, and they blindsided me," Matlowsky said.

"So don't crouch. Make the kids reach up to you. We don't make anything on pepperment sticks."

The manager got tears in his eyes. "Men, I'm going to tell you a story. About 10 years ago I had a Santa Claus playing for me named Jack Ripper. Just before the 1974 Christmas Bowl, he got a hernia when a 250-pound kid sat on his lap. I went to the hospital, where he was in great pain. He said to me, 'Coach, someday when the team is down, and inventories are up, and the Barbie Dolls and pinball machines aren't moving, tell the guys to go out there on the floor and win just one for the Ripper.'"

"There wasn't a dry eye in the locker room.

The manager said, "NOW LET'S GO OUT AND MAKE THEM SPIT UP THEIR CREDIT CARDS."

The Santa Clauses grabbed their hats and beards and broke down the door as they ran out of the locker room for the final half.

A Hair-Raising Tale

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a world filled with such ughnesses as Mohawk haircuts, low-calorie diets, and the Christmas crush for Cabbage Patch dolls, it's good to learn that science is devoting time to a project of true importance: the search for a baldness cure.

Breathes there a man who ever found hair clinging to his comb — or thought he did — who would not rank baldness research above a cure for the common cold or the balancing of the budget?

If it produces a cure, the Upjohn Company, a pharmaceutical manufacturer, might find itself declared a national treasure. In fact, it might well own the national treasure.

Upjohn is sponsoring the research, based on a medication called minoxidil. This substance tends to produce unwanted hair when used to treat high blood pressure.

Someone at Upjohn, most likely a balding someone, realized there is no such thing as unwanted hair if grown in the right places.

The company converted pill to lotion and enlisted the testing services of scientists across the land, including Dr. Thomas Nigra, chairman of the dermatology department at the Washington Hospital Center. Nigra put out a call for volunteers and got 10,000 in 10 days. From many, 96 were chosen.

Nigra announced first-year results last week and proclaimed that 81 of the test subjects doubled their hair after applying minoxidil. He was too cautious to declare a cure — in fact, he went to pains to say any conclusions would be premature — but he said 27 patients showed "cosmetically acceptable" progress.

Cosmetically acceptable, indeed!

At the stage of baldness where it's no problem getting an actual count of hairs, a doubling of the crop may not seem significant. But to the afflicted one, that would be as joyful an experience as, say, finding a forgotten paycheck in a coat pocket.

The fact that medical science is taking baldness seriously — Dr. Nigra, bless him, says in young men it should be considered a disease — is in itself a step forward. He stated a sad truth: Unable to come up with a treatment, medical science has ceded the territory "to charlatans and quacks, and these people have preyed on the emotional needs and hopes of patients."

And no wonder. Throughout human history, hair has been considered the sign of virility in man. What did the Bible say of Samson's haircut? "His strength went from him."

There are the cliches — every bald man can recite them. Yes, Yul Brynner is the sexiest man in show business. Ha Ha, grass doesn't grow on a busy street. Ho, Ho, your forehead is getting larger, Chrome Dome. Heh heh, hair today, gone tomorrow.

"What he hath scanted men in hair, he hath given them in wit," said the skin-pated William Shakespeare, no doubt looking in a mirror. "God made just so many perfect heads, the rest He covered with hair," says a well-meaning sampler presented to many a father by many a doting daughter.

The truth is that no matter what a bald man says, he wishes he weren't. Otherwise, why does he rage at the son who's growing what comes naturally? Why does he pay good money for a bad hairpiece? Why do his fingers stealthily make exploratory trips, spider-like, across his thinning scalp?

The time a balding man spends in doing the most with what little is left is prodigious. He may be a dunce when it comes to art, but he becomes a genius at arranging an oasis on his bare landscape to hide the obvious. Gen. Douglas MacArthur is remembered almost as much for the lonely strand of hair that traversed his scalp as he is for his celebrated return to the Philippines.

The average human scalp has 100,000 hairs, but 25 percent of males are balding by age 25. The average hair grows .37 millimeters a day, but not for the half of males approaching age 50. The average hair grows four years and rests the fifth but it goes bye-bye for three quarters of all men by age 70.

In the name of science, man has conquered polio, walked on the moon, transferred organs, created telephones in the shape of Mickey Mouse. He has built cars that talk, robots that walk, lasers that shine and alarms that whine.

Isn't it time to declare a cure for baldness a national goal?

—Elisha Douglass—

Strength For Today

Someone commenting on a person whose life has been pretty much of a failure said, "He had many gifts, but he was always too lazy to unwrap them."

What would a friend think if you thanked him for a birthday or Christmas present and then never took the trouble to unwrap the present, but laid it away in a cupboard? The courteous thing to do when given a present is to unwrap it immediately and thank the giver. The right think to do with reference to God's gifts is to unwrap them, thank the giver and then use these gifts to some good end.

The dismal thing about people who fail is that for the most part they had all the gifts designed to make them successful. The stupid and inept do not fail nearly so often as do the lazy, proud and selfish people who have fine gifts.

You may be a genius for all you know. Start unwrapping your gifts.

Holiday Bus Plan

Greenville Transit Supervisor David Morris said the city's GREAT bus system will provide an additional shuttle service over the Christmas holiday. The shuttle service will run Monday through Friday from Dec. 10 to Dec. 31 and on Saturday, Dec. 22, to eight of Greenville's shopping areas.

According to Morris, the shuttle bus will leave Carolina East Mall every half hour beginning at 11 a.m. and will stop at Nichols at 11:02, at The Plaza at 11:06, at Rivergate Shopping Center at 11:14, at Greenville Square at 11:20, at Farm Fresh at 11:23, at South Park at 11:25, at Carolina East Center at 11:28, and will then return to Carolina East Mall at 11:30. The bus will then resume the schedule, making stops every 30 minutes until 4:30 p.m.

Morris said the holiday service will not disrupt the transit system's regular three route schedule.

A story on the holiday schedule in Sunday's Reflector listed erroneous times for the bus service.

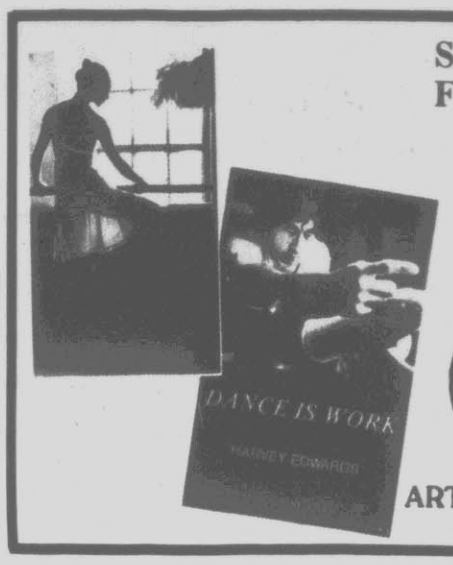

House Says No To Post

WILLIAMSTON — John House of Robersonville, a veteran of 25 years on the Martin County Board of Commissioners and for 18 years chairman of the board, has announced he would no longer accept a nomination for another term as chairman.

House's announcement came shortly after a swearing-in ceremony for other board members Monday. Joe B. Griffin was selected chairman of the board, which then bestowed on House the title "chairman emeritus."

In addition to House and Griffin, also sworn in was William H. Manson Jr. Former commissioner A. C. Bailey was honored for 12 years service on the board.

A budget amendment was adopted which covers more than $30,000 in salaries for local human service employees. Money to cover the increase was appropriated by the General Assembly last year.

PCMH Neonatal Unit Plans Family Party

More than 2,000 eastern North Carolina children and their parents have been invited to the fifth annual Neonatal Intensive Care Graduate Party at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

The party will be held in the hospital's physical therapy room from 2-5 p.m. Saturday and will feature a visit from Santa, his elves and Ronald McDonald. Party expenses are being covered by funds raised by the neonatal staff.

The celebration serves several purposes, according to Dr. Arthur E. Kopelman, director of the hospital's Neonatal Intensive Care Unit and professor of pediatrics at the ECU School of Medicine. "After having a baby in the neonatal unit, parents and staff establish strong relationships. The graduate party gives us a chance to renew those ties," Kopelman said, adding that the party gives staff an opportunity to see how well the babies have grown and developed since leaving the unit.

Kopelman said that the party also serves as a celebration of the babies' survival since eastern North Carolina traditionally has been plagued with a high rate of infant mortality. However, the level of care available today, he said, has helped to increase the number of children who survive the early critical stages of life. According to Kopelman, Pitt Memorial's neonatal unit plays a key role in that effort; in fiscal 1983-84, 91.9 percent of the 494 patients admitted to the unit survived.

Each child attending the party will be given a Christmas ornament, and information on Greenville's coming Ronald McDonald House will be provided for parents.

Invitations have been mailed to each former neonatal patient. In the event a child was accidentally missed, parents should call 757-4378 or write Neonatal ICU, Box 6028, Greenville, NC 27834.

Applicants Sought

The North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics in Durham has opened its 1984-85 nomination process by mailing information and application forms to high schools throughout the state. The school is looking for about 200 students to make up next fall's 11th grade.

Applications must be postmarked by Jan. 31. Applicants must take the SAT no later than the Jan. 26 testing date.

Interview Schedule

The schedule of interviews of youths between the ages of 16 and 21 for recruitment for job training at residential Job Corps centers has been announced for December.

The schedule of dates and interview sites in Pitt and Martin counties is:

- Dec. 12 — Social Services Department, Greenville, 758-2167 (with a second interview session on Dec. 20).
- Dec. 14 — Martin County, Social Services Department, Williamston, 792-2133.

Additional information on the Job Corps program can be obtained by calling the toll-free line 1-800-662-7030.

Growers To Meet

The North Carolina Fresh Vegetable Growers Association will hold its 1984 meeting Thursday at the Lenoir County extension office, located on N.C. 11 south of Kinston.

Clinic Applications

The East Carolina University afternoon reading clinic is accepting applications for the spring, 1985, clinic.

Children in grades two through 10 who need or want reading remediation and/or enrichment may apply. Each child accepted will be diagnosed and instructed on a one-to-one basis for the 10-week session. The clinic will meet at ECU from 3:30 to 4:30 two afternoons a week. The cost to each participant is $15. For more information, call the department of elementary education at ECU, 757-6833.

Service Planned

There will be a special appreciation service for W.F. Peed, retiring president, and other retiring members of the New Bern Eastern Missionary Baptist Sunday School and B.T.U. Association. The program will be held at Memorial Baptist Church, New Bern, Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Health Board

The Pitt County Board of Health will meet Thursday at 6:30 p.m. at the Beef Barn.

Meeting Cancelled

The St. John Missionary Baptist Church of Falkland will not have its quarterly conference meeting Friday. It has been rescheduled for Dec. 21 at the usual hour.

Cookbook Available

The new cookbook from the North Carolina Division of the American Cancer Society is now on sale. Call the American Cancer Society office at 752-2574 to obtain names of places in Greenville, Farmville, Ayden and Bethel where the cookbooks may be purchased for a donation of $6. Donations are used to help support cancer research, education and patient service.

Rabies Clinics

Quarterly rabies vaccination clinics will be held Saturday from 10 a.m. until noon at all local veterinarians' offices in Pitt County. In order for pet owners to comply with Pitt County ordinances, all dogs and cats four months and older must be vaccinated. The cost is $5 per animal.

FINGERPRINTED — Kindergarten through third-grade students at Grifton Elementary School were fingerprinted Tuesday by the Department of Correction in an effort by school officials to keep records for identification. Botanical Party

An invitation has been extended to the public by the Botanical Garden Foundation to attend the fifth annual Christmas party at The Totten Center, North Carolina Botanical Garden, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. The party will be Sunday from 3 to 5 p.m. The center will have a tree and wreath decorations.

More Performers

Another group has been added to the list of performers appearing at Carolina East Mall during the holiday season.

Seventy students of the Suzuki Violinists of Eastern North Carolina will perform a half-hour concert at the mall at 7 p.m. Friday. The group will be under the direction of Jo Anne Bath.

Parade Saturday

Over 600 people, including Santa Claus, are expected to participate in the Greenville Jaycees' annual Christmas parade, set for Saturday at noon.

Chapter spokesmen said 11 professional floats, five area high school bands, five or more church sponsored floats, beauty queens, various Boy Scout and Girl Scout troops, and approximately 40 other entries are scheduled for the event.

The parade will form at First and Reade Streets, progress on Reade to Dickinson Avenue, turn north on Dickinson to Washington Street, and then follow Washington back to First for termination.

Foundation Meeting

The Eastern Carolina chapter of the North Carolina Kidney Foundation will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Leslie-Gaskins building, located adjacent to Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Christmas Music

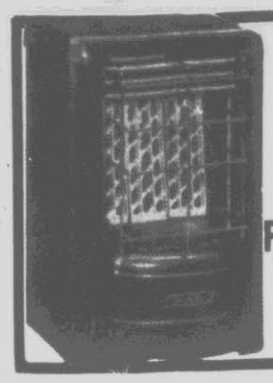

The chancel choir of Memorial Baptist Church will present a program of Christmas music featuring vocalist Daphne Dunston during the 11 a.m. service Sunday.

The choir is directed by Harold A. Jones and is accompanied by Jospeh Goodwin.

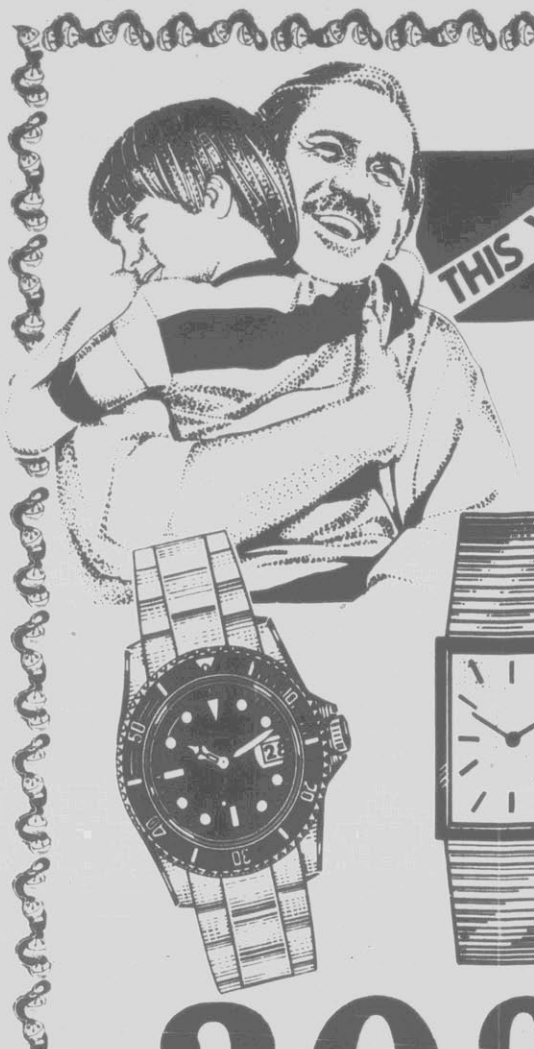

New Parade Date

The Bethel Christmas parade, which was scheduled for this afternoon at 4 p.m., will be held Monday at 4 p.m.

Interstate Road Funds Run Their Course In 43 States

WASHINGTON (AP) — As of today, 43 states are virtually out of federal interstate highway money and there will be no more interstate grants coming from Washington until Congress approves a formula for distributing $7.2 billion from the highway trust fund.

The Federal Highway Administration considers a state "virtually out" of interstate funding when its account falls under $10 million.

Colorado, for example, is down to $66,000. It is one of 10 or so key states with big projects stalled, including major sections of the interstate system in the Denver area and interchange work held up for years by local squabbles over locations.

As one of the states that has drawn all of its interstate funds from the federal government, Colorado state highway officials know they have about $116 million waiting, if only Congress could agree to release it.

The projects "were ready to build and now are really under the gun" to get started, according to Francis B. Francois, executive director of the American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials.

In Wisconsin, a statewide resurfacing project was shelved because the money ran out. Now weather-wrecked roads face another damaging winter.

Also stalled are I-90 in Washington state; New York City's Westway; major segments of interstate in Florida; rebuilding of the Atlanta beltway; a freeway near Phoenix, Ariz.; interstate highways near Minneapolis-St. Paul; several small jobs Maryland planned in the Baltimore and Washington areas and what Francois called "lots of pieces" of the Missouri interstates "that were ready to go to bid."

The money, collected at the pump as federal gasoline, diesel fuel and truck taxes, has been held up in a dispute between the Senate and the House over hometown highway projects, including $2.5 billion worth of tunnel and road projects in Boston which have the support of House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts.

The projects were added to a relatively routine bill designed to set a formula for dividing the trust funds for the last half of this year and all of next.

The House and Senate this year passed widely different versions of the distribution formula, called the Interstate Cost Estimate, and a conference between the two houses bogged down on the last day of the session.

In the end, the conferees could not agree on how large a share the federal government should pay for the Massachusetts project and a number of other so-called "demonstration projects" used to solve individual local highway problems.

The House bill, now dead, stipulated that the Boston project would be considered part of the interstate highway system and thus be eligible for 90 percent federal financing.

The plan includes a four-lane third tunnel under Boston Harbor and rebuilding an existing elevated roadway, moving it underground. The Federal Highway Administration wants to simply re-pave the existing elevated road and build a two-lane tunnel, instead of the four-lane version.

EPA Ready To Levy Tax On Polluters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Heavy trucks and engines that don't meet federal exhaust emission standards would be taxed under a pollution levy the government is ready to propose with the support of industry and environmental groups.

The pollution tax, based on a concept long advocated by economists but shunned until now by most environmentalists, was hammered out by the Environmental Protection Agency and representatives of 23 environmental, industry and trade groups.

All 23 participants agreed on a formula by which manufacturers will pay the government the costs they avoid by not bringing their trucks into compliance. The penalty would grow each year to provide an ever-increasing financial incentive to make the trucks comply. The most highly polluting products would still be banned.

David Doniger, a environmental lawyer who represented the Clean Air Coalition in the negotiations, estimated that in the first year, about 10 percent of new heavy trucks would be subject to the penalty, tailing to about 5 percent the second year and 2 percent the third.

The talks among environmentalists, officials from EPA and the Office of Management and Budget, trade associations, truck and engine manufacturers and some state officials were aimed at avoiding lawsuits that inevitably arise when a government agency issues a controversial regulation.

The formula still must be adopted in formal rulemaking, which could take several months. EPA has not announced results of the negotiations, but The Associated Press obtained a copy of the agreed-upon proposal.

Doniger said the talks could not have succeeded if the subject under discussion had been a "gut issue" like radiation standards.

"We're not arguing over how safe is safe."

Under the proposal, amounts of pollution above the maximum standard would grouped into tax brackets. For example, one to three grams of a pollutant over the standard might fall into one bracket and four to six grams into the next.

Each bracket would have its own tax rate, with the rate dropping as the amount of pollution increased. The standard, the brackets and the rates would be set later by the Environmental Protection Agency.

This, according to Doniger, was a key compromise in the discussions.

Manufacturers feared that they would be forced to pay "outrageous" penalties for emissions that were far above the standard.

"It was worth getting the first steep part, where we think most of the violations will be," Doniger said.

An EPA official who spoke on condition that he not be identified said, "If it works ... it could have a significant impact on how well and how fast we accomplish things."

Government Says Food Costs Will Climb

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food prices, whether at grocery stores, fast-food places or fancy restaurants, will rise moderately again next year, says the Agriculture Department.

Collectively, they'll go up in the range of 2 percent to 5 percent, compared with a 4 percent average gain in 1984, according to the department's first forecast for the new year.

A year ago, the USDA predicted that 1984 food prices would increase in the range of 4 percent to 7 percent. The latest estimate puts this year's increase at the lower end.

Food prices, which are measured by USDA as averages over an entire calendar year, rose 8.6 percent in 1980, 7.9 percent in 1981 and 4 percent in 1982 before easing back to 2.1 percent in 1983, the smallest annual increase in 16 years.

Ralph Parlett of the department's Economic Research Service was to tell an annual outlook conference today that virtually all of the 1985 increase will be from higher marketing and processing costs, while "little, if any, rise in farm prices is likely" next year.

Parlett said this year's 4 percent hike was the ninth year out of the last 10 that food prices have gone up less than the general U.S. inflation rate.

More than 70 percent of the average family's food bill occurs after grain, meat, milk and other raw products leave the nation's farms and enter the marketing pipeline for processing and shipment to retail shelves.

In other words, farmers get less than 30 cents of each dollar that consumers spend on food.

Last year, according to the department, consumers spent more than $315 billion on foods that originated on U.S. farms. Of the total, about $230.2 billion went into "marketing" costs while the farm value was about $84.9 billion.

Parlett said that about half of the marketing cost of food is for labor and that "with the decrease in the general inflation rate, increase in labor costs have been more moderate."

But packaging, transportation, fuel and power, and other marketing costs have risen more rapidly.

"In 1985, food marketing costs are expected to rise at near this year's rate" of 4 percent," Parlett said. "Many labor contracts of workers employed in food processing and retailing provide for wage increases in the range of 3 percent to 4 percent next year. There is no indication of a rise in the minimum wage for next year, which covers a large number of the workers in the food service industry."

Further, he said, the expected slower growth in the economy "will moderate the demand for packaging and transportation" in the food sector. Energy prices are not expected to increase significantly.

Looking at specific food categories, Parlett said the 1985 forecast included:

— Food eaten away from home, up 3 percent to 6 percent in 1985 and a 4.3 percent increase in 1984.

— Food eaten at home, up 2 percent to 5 percent in 1985 and 3.8 percent in 1984.

— Meat, up 3 percent to 7 percent, with pork rising more than beef, compared with an increase of 0.4 percent in 1984. This year, beef and veal prices rose 1.4 percent, while pork declined an average of 1.3 percent.

— Poultry, down 2 percent to 5 percent, compared with a 10.2 percent increase in 1984.

— Fish and seafood, up 2 percent to 5 percent, compared with a 3.5 percent rise this year.

— Eggs, down 14 percent to 17 percent, compared with a 10.4 percent increase this year.

— Dairy products, which includes milk and cheese, zero to 3 percent higher, compared with a gain of 1.4 percent in 1984.

— Fats and oils, up 3 percent to 6 percent, compared with a gain of 9.8 percent this year.

— Fruits and vegetables, zero to 3 percent higher, compared with an 8.7 percent increase this year.

— Sugar and sweets, up 3 percent to 6 percent, compared with a 4.1 percent increase this year.

— Cereals and bakery products, up 4 percent to 7 percent, compared with a 4.6 percent increase in 1984.

— Non-alcoholic beverages, up 3 percent to 6 percent, compared with 2.7 percent higher this year.

Giant Wedding

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Joyous shouts of "mazel tov" rang out from 25,000 Hasidic Jews who cheered the marriage of two grandchildren of their religious leader, then danced into the early morning hours sustained by more than four tons of food.

"I don't think anyone has ever seen anything like this before and I don't think we will ever see anything like it again," said Isaac Rosenberg of Brooklyn, where the bulk of the members of the Satmar sect in the United States is concentrated.

In a ceremony during which they never kissed or even touched, the bride and groom, both 18 and first cousins, embarked on their arranged marriage with the best wishes of sect members from all over North and South America and Europe.

The grand rabbi, Moses Teitelbaum, joined his grandson, Menachem Teitelbaum, and his granddaughter, Brucha Sima Meisels, in the traditional Hasidic service.

The bridal canopy flapped in the winds of a chilly night as shouts of 'tmazel tov!" — Hebrew for "good luck" — rose from the crowd and some 30 rabbis on the wedding platform chanted in Hebrew.

The celebration that followed included feasting on more than four tons of food and dancing until dawn to the music of a 26-piece orchestra.

Task Force Wants Info

NEW YORK (AP) — Members of a House task force on missing servicemen want to interview Robert Garwood, a former Marine private who claims to have seen American soldiers who were left behind in Vietnam, the panel's chairman says.

The Wall Street Journal on Tuesday reported Garwood claimed to know of at least 70 U.S. servicemen who were being held in Vietnam in the late 1970s.

"Garwood is of critical interest to our task force," said Rep. Benjamin Gilman, R-N.Y., who heads the House task force.

Garwood told the Journal he saw about 60 Americans at a Vietnamese prison camp in 1978 and concluded there were a total of at least 70 Americans being held in the country.

Garwood disappeared in Vietnam in 1965 and remained there until 1979, when he was allowed to return home. He had worked for the Vietnamese, fixing trucks and doing other repair jobs, according to the Journal.

In a 1981 court-martial, Garwood was convicted of collaboration with the enemy but acquitted of desertion.

The Journal said that Garwood refused U.S. government efforts to interview him about his Vietnam experiences, and did not mention prisoners of war still in Vietnam in his 1983 autobiography.

Hackers Seek Revenge For Story

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — On a secret computer bulletin board somewhere in the electronic underground, faceless accusers level charges against Newsweek reporter Richard Sandza.

His offense: posing as a hacker — a computer devotee who can spend hours every day exploring the nation's electronic byways — to write about how they steal information from official computer systems and share the goods through a clandestine network of computer bulletin boards.

Suggested sentences: "exile from the entire planet" and "kill the dude."

Since the Nov. 12, when Newsweek carried his account, Sandza, 38, has been placed on "teletrial" on computer bulletin boards, harassed with hundreds of phone calls and threatened with everything from cutting off his power to blowing up his house.

"I think the ones who are really ticked off feel threatened by this," Sandza said Tuesday. "Some said their parents read the article and shut down their bulletin boards. Others said they felt my reporting was not really fair because I was ripping them off because I wasn't a hacker."

Sandza, who had reported several Newsweek stories about young hackers, used the name "Montana Wildhack" and his knowledge of hacker lingo to infiltrate the system and report on what he found.

"Most of these people traffic in illegal information — credit card numbers, dial-up access numbers for long-distance phone service, how to do this or that, everything from picking locks to making nitroglycerin," Sandza said.

The story sent electronic reverberations crackling through the hacker underground. The calls started coming to Sandza's house, some friendly, some hostile.

"It was sort of a game," he said. "They were calling me up, I was talking to some and hanging up on others.

"Some realized disclosure about their methods and sources would only lead to public awareness and that should lead to somebody doing something about it."

In this week's Newsweek, Sandza said he was put on teletrial on a Gainesville, Texas, bulletin board known as Dragonfire, with a prosecutor called Unknown Warrior and a judge known as Ax Murderer. Accusers dialed up the board to press charges, while others, including the defendant, could call to rebut.

But Sandza was not amused when a friendly hacker tipped him that others had obtained his credit record by cracking the computer files of TRW, the nation's largest credit information operation, which has similar reports on 120 million Americans. Another said his VISA number was posted on Pirate 80, a bulletin board in Charleston, W.Va.

"That went right over the line," said Sandza, who has since changed his VISA number and taken steps to secure his phone number and credit report.

"Calling me up and harassing me is one thing. But going into my credit reports got my attention. That really ticked me off."

REPORTER — Newsweek correspodent Richard Sandza is shown in his San Francisco office recently with a computer and some dialogue he recently received from computer hackers after he cracked their secret network and wrote about their abuses. He has had his life threatened, his credit card numbers stolen and his career put on "teletrial" in recent days. (AP Laserphoto)

Blacked Out

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — The Mozambique capital of Maputo has been partially blacked out since Saturday after anti-communist rebels sabotaged key power lines close to the South African border, the official news agency AIM reported.

The agency quoted Fernando Juliao, head of the state electricity company, as saying a commando squad knocked out high-tension cables feeding power to Maputo from South Africa.

It was the third time this year that rebel saboteurs have cut power supplies to the capital of the former Portuguese colony. The news agency noted that the attacks on power lines had not occurred before the peace pact was signed.

NIH Will Take Look At Genetic Field Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Institutes of Health, conceding a legal challenge, has agreed to examine the effect on the environment of certain open-field tests of genetically altered organisms.

The NIH, in a brief filed with the U.S. Court of Appeals for a hearing to be held today, agreed to do the assessments demanded by a critic of genetic engineering for each open-air experiment it approves.

But the health research agency said it would continue to resist efforts to require it to do a more detailed environmental impact statement on all research efforts dealing with deliberate release of altered organisms outside the laboratory.

Dr. Bernard Talbot, an NIH official who deals with genetic research issues, said Tuesday that the agency will carry out the simpler of two environmental evaluations sought in lawsuits by critics.

"Our lawyers have persuaded us to do the assessments," Talbot said in an interview. "It involves a fair amount of extra work, but the bulk of the information we need for environmental assessments we already have in the data submitted by those wanting to do the experiments.

"It's mostly a matter of repackaging it as an environmental assessment and labeling it as such," he said.

Jeremy Rifkin, the writer and longtime foe of genetic engineering who initiated the court action, claimed the NIH decision as "a significant victory."

"This acknowledges that these organisms are subject to the same standards and safeguards that apply to other substances released into the environment," Rifkin said in an interview. "They've conceded the smaller half of the suit and not the bigger half, but it's still a step forward."

The NIH oversees genetic engineering research through safety guidelines drafted by its Recombinant DNA Advisory Committee. These guidelines, which are mandatory for government-sponsored research and have been accepted voluntarily by others doing the work, generally have been relaxed over past years as scientists learned more about the new field.

However, Rifkin and his public interest group, the Foundation on Economic Trends, filed suit last year when NIH approved a University of California at Berkeley project that would represent the first time genetically altered microbes were released into the open environment.

The experiment, which proponents say poses no threat, would involve spraying a new type of bacteria on a potato patch to see if they could prevent or delay frost formation.

The critics contend that NIH did not properly evaluate the ecological consequences of testing the modified organisms, and violated the National Environmental Policy Act by failing to conduct the required analyses.

Rifkin last spring obtained a temporary injunction from a lower court blocking the California experiment and two other similar ones approved by the NIH advisory committee until the environmental evaluation issues are resolved by the higher court.

Talbot, of NIH, said the agency's agreement to do environmental assessments did not close that part of the controversy. The University of California, which is part of the legal action, has said it will continue to argue against both the assessments and the more extensive impact statements still opposed by NIH.

"If the court rules against the assessments as well, then the NIH will re-evaluate doing them," Talbot said.

American Prof Draws Sentence

LONDON (AP) — A jury has convicted an American university professor of beating and strangling his wife in a London apartment. The prosecution charged the killer lay in bed with the body until the couple's daughters went to school.

Jerry L. Kasparek, 45, a Ball State University faculty member, was sentenced to three years in prison after the jury on Tuesday ruled 10-2 in favor of convicting him of manslaughter.

After an eight-day trial in Old Bailey Central Criminal Court, the jury rejected a charge that Kasparek murdered his wife, Carol Ann, 42.

Judge Richard Lowry delivered the sentence, which Kasparek was to begin serving immediately. It was not known if Kasparek would appeal.

"In my judgment, a sentence cannot be avoided despite your good character," Lowry said.

Kasparek and his family moved to London last year to run a series of programs for students of Ball State University, of Muncie, Ind.

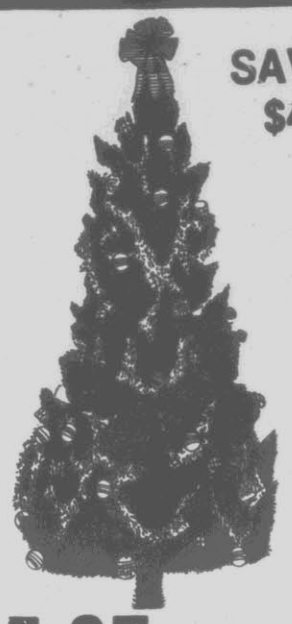

The prosecution contended Kasparek killed his wife while in a drunken rage, then lay in bed with her body until after the couple's two teen-age daughters left for school.

Doctors Warn Of Disease As Gas Leak Toll Rises

BHOPAL, India (AP) — Doctors today warned that disease could spread from the corpses of thousands of people and animals killed by a poison gas leak at a pesticide plant, and a newspaper reported that four previous accidents occurred at the facility.

Local officials said at least 1,200 people were killed, and more than 200,000 were affected by the leak early Monday. They said 20,000 may suffer serious aftereffects such as blindness.

Police and rescue workers searched house-to-house today for bodies and assisted in mass burials and cremations during the night that lit up the sky of Bhopal, a central Indian city of 900,000.

The United News of India said nearly 800 bodies were buried at the city's main Firdaus Manzil graveyard or cremated at the Chola Vishram Ghar cremation ground.

The government confirmed only 574 deaths, but doctors and officials at mourtuaries and cremation grounds in Bhopul said at least 1,200 bodies had been counted so far.

Most of the dead were children and old people whose small or frail bodies could not withstand the leak of methyl isocyanate from an underground tank and the U.S.-built Union Carbide facility.

Some died in their sleep and others while in flight from what officials are calling one of the world's worst industrial accidents.

A spokesman for the state's Information and Public Relations Department said today that officials were recording "one death every minute."

The gas leak forced a mass exodus of the city's residents, and most have not returned for fear of further leakage. The leaves on the trees were shriveled and yellow. Streets were littered with thousands of carcasses of animals.

Milk supplies to the city were likely to drop due to the death of an estimated 3,000 cattle and the closing of several of the city's dairies. Volunteers at the overflowing hospitals set up 100 booths to collect donations for victims.

A public works official, asked about removing the rotting carcasses of cattle, said: "You are asking about cattle, but we are having difficulty handling all the human bodies at this time.

The independent Indian Express newspaper reported today the Union Carbide plant had been hit by at least four accidents since December 1981 that killed one person and injured 30.

The newspaper said a plant operator died following a leakage of deadly phosgene gas in December 1981. Fifteen people were affected in a second unspecified accident that took place 15 days later.

Four plant workers were seriously affected when a pipeline burst in October 1982, prompting people in nearby localities to flee in panic and last year two laborers were stricken after exposure to gas, the newspaper added.

West Virginia Town Wants New Safety Plan Developed

By STRAT DOUTHAT
Associated Press Writer

INSTITUTE, W.Va. (AP) — Residents of this little college town want the nearby Union Carbide plant to devise an evacuation plan that would forestall a chemical disaster like the one that has been blamed for at least 1,000 deaths in India.

"We need a better system than ringing bells," said Charles White, president of the Institute-Dunbar Sub-Area Planning Committee, a neighborhood group. The plant has a system of whistles when something goes wrong.

"We need something that alarms us rather than lulls us to sleep," he said.

Institute's Union Carbide Corp. plant is the nation's only producer of methyl isocyanate, the pesticide ingredient that leaked from a company plant in Bhopal, India, on Sunday. Officials in India said many who inhaled the gas would be left blind or sterile.

About 30 Institute residents who met Tuesday night decided also to ask Carbide to include a representative of their group on the trip by company officials to India to investigate the accident. They were apparently unaware that the Carbide officials left this country Tuesday.

Institute resident Frank Walker said the community needs to know "what kind of precautions to take and what kind of evacuation program is in progress."

"Our intention is not to close Union Carbide down. I think our intention is to establish a relationship with Union Carbide," Walker said.

Carbide officials in Institute ceased manufacture of the chemical immediately after the Indian disaster. Company spokesman Dick Henderson said he did not know how much of the chemical is stored here.

A state official said he intends to inspect the local plant as soon as possible, however.

"As soon as we find out what caused the leak (in India), we will go through the (Institute) storage facility," said Bob Weser of the state Air Pollution Control Commission.

Inspectors for the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration have visited the plant nine times since 1980, but never in connection with methyl isocyanate, said Perry Jones, area director for the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

"I don't plan any additional action at the present time," Jones said.

But a submerged tank of the substance at the Union Carbide complex along the Kanawha River 10 miles west of Charleston "makes everybody nervous," said Rex Pleasant, who lives a few hundred yards away from it.

"Nobody around here would have a chance if that stuff got out," said Pleasant's friend, Reginald Willis, as the men — both in their 60s — drank coffee in a restaurant across the street from West Virginia State College.

Henderson said no reporters would be permitted to visit the plant, which employs 1,400 people, but said he was confident none of the chemical would escape. "After all, we've been making this stuff here for 17 years and it's never gotten away yet."

He said the chemical is stored in a double-walled underground tank with a venting system designed to neutralize any fumes that might escape.

November Car Sales Fall

DETROIT (AP) — U.S. car sales were dismal at the end of November, but market analysts and the carmakers themselves are far from declaring that a slowdown is at hand.

Sales reports released Tuesday put car deliveries just 1.7 percent ahead of last November and well below the strong sales trend that prevailed most of the year and kept 1984 sales 18.1 percent ahead of 1983.

Chrysler Corp. posted the strongest year-to-year gain for November with sales up 32.7 percent. Ford Motor Co. sales increased 14.5 percent.

But sales at industry leader General Motors Corp. fell 8.1 percent for the month, a slump GM attributed to the lingering effects of September and October strikes in the United States and Canada.

In the final industry reporting period of the month, Nov. 21-30, sales were off a dismal 14.2 percent from the comparable period a year ago. GM's sales in that period slid 22.9 percent.

"I think this has more to with fluctuations in supply by GM," said David Bloom, an automotive industry analyst at First Boston Corp. in New York. "If that's right, then we'll see good sales in December."

David Healy, an analyst for Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. in New York, said the poor showing was a reflection of GM's troubles.

"The manufacturers have increased their production schedules into next year, and I don't think they would be doing that if car sales were collapsing," Healy said.

U.S car sales for the month came to 600,692, up 1.7 percent from 590,527 in November 1983.

Sales by the 19 major importers — 11 European and eight Japanese — were 200,197, up 6 percent from 188,791 a year earlier.

That put combined U.S. sales of all cars at 800,889 for November, 2.8 percent better than 779,318 a year earlier.

Importers held 25 percent of the U.S. market.

The seasonally adjusted annual rates of sale were 7.1 million for domestic carmakers — lower than the trend for the year — and 2.7 percent for the importers.

For the Nov. 21-30 period, U.S. carmakers sold 186,721 autos, down 14.2 percent from 217,540 in the comparable period a year earlier. That produced a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 6.3 million, which was sluggish at best.

No comparable figure is available for the importers, who report sales only at month's end.

For the year through Nov. 30, U.S. car sales were running at an adjusted 18.1 percent ahead of last year at 7,390,851 vs. 6,235,878.

Imports for the year were 2,234,717 vs. 2,179,863, up an adjusted 1.8 percent.

Among the little three U.S. automakers, American Motors Corp. sales were off 19.9 percent for November, American Honda Motor Co. Inc. sales of U.S.-made cars were up 107 percent and Volkswagen of America Inc.'s were down 47.8 percent.

Appeals Court Bars Juror Rejection Based On Race

NEW YORK (AP) — A person's right to trial by a jury representative of the community outweighs the right to arbitrarily dismiss jury candidates, said an appeals court that ruled prosecutors can't reject potential jurors because of their race.

The 2-1 ruling Tuesday by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 2nd District came in the case of a black man convicted of robbery by an all-white jury from which prosecutors had rejected seven blacks and one Hispanic.

Peremptory challenges allow prosecution or defense attorneys to remove a certain number of prospective jurors without saying why. In New York criminal cases, each side has 15 peremptory challenges.

The first trial of Michael McCray, charged with robbing a white art student in 1978, ended in a deadlocked jury of nine whites and three blacks. A unanimous verdict was required.

In the second trial, in which an all-white jury convicted McCray, the assistant district attorney prosecuting the case exercised 11 peremptory challenges, eight of them against minorities.

The appeals court majority agreed with McCray's lawyers that the prosecution conduct appeared to violate his rights under the Sixth Amendment, which guarantees trial by a jury that is representative of the community.

The majority decision upheld the key findings of a 1983 decision by U.S. District Judge Eugene H. Nickerson, who agreed the prosecution conduct violated McCray's Sixth Amendment rights.

Nickerson had ordered prosecutors to either give McCray a new trial or set him free, but the appeals court said McCray's earlier conviction can stand if prosecutors demonstrate they were not motivated by race.

Only prosecutors, not defense attorneys, are affected by Tuesday's ruling.

The peremptory challenge "is an important right; it may be an invauable right in certain circumstances; but it is not a right of constitutional dimension," Circuit Judge Amalya Kearse wrote in a decision joined by Judge Edward Lumbard.

"When a defendant has made a prima facie showing that the prosecution's use of its peremptories conflicts with a fundamental right that is protected by the Sixth Amendment, it is the inscrutability of the peremptory challenge that must yield, not the constitutional right."

Dissenting Judge Thomas J. Meskill called the majority decision "unworkable" and said it "spells the end of the peremptory challenge as an effective jury selection tool."

"An attorney who uses her challenges to exclude from the jury members of the same race, religion, sex, occupation, class or ethnic background as her opponent's client is not invidiously discriminating against members of that group," Meskill wrote.

"Rather, the attorney is trying to ensure that her client faces a jury that at least will be unbiased and at best will be receptive to her view of the case."

Board Abolishes Tags For Autos

WILLIAMSTON — Members of the Williamston Town Board have voted unanimously to abolish the requirement to purchase and display city license tags. Instead, the $5 per car fee for the tags will now be added to tax notices of city residents.

Residents who wish to have a tag to display can pick them up after town taxes have been listed.

Town administrator J.B. Godwin told the board the town has been selling about 2,300 tags annually and that it was estimated that about 2,600 vehicles are subject to the $5 fee — so that under the new method of adding the fee to tax notices, more revenue than previously would be collected.

New Minister Requests U.S. To Keep Units On Grenada

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — Grenada's new prime minister, on his first day in office, wrote to President Reagan asking that U.S. troops remain on the island nation until its police force can take over security duties.

Herbert Blaize, a 66-year-old attorney who led Grenada in the 1960s while it was a British colony, was sworn in Tuesday after his moderate New National Party swept to power in elections Monday.

A national holiday was declared today to celebrate the installation of an elected government. It replaces an interim council established following the U.S.-led invasion of Grenada in October 1983, six days after Prime Minister Maurice Bishop was killed in a bloody power struggle within his leftist government.

HERBERT BLAIZE

The New National Party won 14 of Parliament's 15 seats, according to unnofficial results. The winner of the 15th seat said he would resign because of what he charged were electoral irregularities.

The Reagan adminstration, which was officially neutral, favored Blaize, as did U.S. investors and island businessmen.

Blaize, whose party won 59 percent of the vote nationwide, immediately wrote to Reagan about the approximately 250 U.S. soldiers who have been overseeing security on the island.

Blaize wants them to stay until Grenada's police force is fully trained, but he indicated the 350-member multinational Caribbean Peacekeeping Force might be withdrawn after a meeting of regional security officials in February.

"They should stay so the efforts of those who expended so much to rescue us should not be wasted," Blaize has said. He set no timetable for U.S. withdrawal.

He said the makeup of his Cabinet and administration will be determined within a month after he sees what changes are needed.

"No government here has ever taken over in a situation like this. We're starting from scratch," Blaize said.

"They (the voters) have done exactly what we hoped they would do — give the New National Party a clear mandate to put Grenada back together," said Blaize, after taking a plane flight from his home on the out-island of Carriacou. He arrived at Grenada's new international airport, which was largely built by Cuba and completed with U.S. aid.

Leftists, who came to power in a March 1979 coup, ruled under Bishop until army officers revolted, prompting the 1983 invasion. Bishop, whose ties with Cuba and the Soviet Union concerned the Reagan adminstration, was executed.

Reagan had said the airport could have handled Soviet fighter planes.

The only election winner not in Blaize's party was Marcel Peters, a candidate from the United Labor Party of Sir Eric Gairy. It was Gairy, as prime minister, who initiated a crackdown on leftists that sparked the 1979 coup.

A new election will be held to fill the seat won by Peters, who said he was resigning to protest electoral irregularities.

Said Blaize, chuckling: "If he resigns, he resigns because he feels too damn lonely."

Gairy, who dominated Grenada politics for three decades, said the low support for his party proved the elections were unfair.

"The ballots were marked in advance, and when the ballots came in marked by the various parties with the chemical pencil, the chemical pen, the marks dissipated what was put into the ballot box and later on the other marks surfaced and showed themselves," he claimed.

"Science and technology today is so high that I have no reason to doubt this," said Gairy, who has a deep interest in unidentified flying objects.

The surviving Bishop loyalists, who took less than 5 percent of the vote, claimed the CIA and the presence of foreign troops influenced the results.

The United States and its Caribbean allies feared a Gairy victory would bring back the corruption, repression and strong leftist movement that characterized the latter years of his rule.

Gairy has contended that Blaize's party is filled with closet leftists and "communist moles."

New Bomb Tests Sought

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pentagon-funded earthquake experts are seeking better ways to measure the size of nuclear weapons tests to discourage cheating on future test ban treaties and help determine if the Russians are violating current limits.

"If a treaty were to be signed, we want to be able to verify it," said Bob Blandford, program manager for test ban verification research at the Pentagon's Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency, or DARPA.

"Even if we don't sign a treaty, it's good to be able to monitor the size of nuclear explosions," Blandford said.

Earthquake researchers who met Tuesday in San Francisco at an American Geophysical Union session on "nuclear seismology" presented highly technical papers on their efforts, which include:

—Making more accurate estimates of underground nuclear bomb explosion yields. Precise measurements could help settle debate on whether the Soviets are violating the informally recognized, unratified treaty limiting test detonations to 150 kilotons, said Tom Bache, Blandford's predecessor who is a consultant in San Diego.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices headed lower today, backing away from Tuesday's modest advance.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 3.09 to 1,181.98 in the first half hour.

Losers took a slight lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Phillips Petroleum, which rose 3⅜ Tuesday, was delayed in opening today.

A group led by T. Boone Pickens, chairman of Mesa Petroleum, said late Tuesday that it would offer $60 apiece for at least 15 million Phillips shares as a step toward gaining control of the company.

Othfr oil stocks were mixed in early activity. Chevron, which earlier this year acquired Gulf Oil in the largest takeover in U.S. business history, rose ⅛ to 33, and Texaco gained ⅛ to 33¾.

But Mobil dropped ½ to 28 and Standard Oil of Indiana was down ⅛ at 53⅜.

Analysts said the general market appeared to have steadied Tuesday after taking a sharp drop over the four previous sessions.

They added, however, that investors were still troubled by uncertainties about the economic outlook.

The Commerce Department reported Tuesday that new factory orders fell 2.5 percent in October, recording their third straight monthly decline.

Among today's early volume leaders, British Telecom slipped ⅛ to 10¾; Ford Motor lost ⅛ to 44⅝, and International Business Machines was unchanged at 120¼.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 2.65 to 1,185.07.

Advancing issues outpaced declines by about 8 to 7 on the NYSE, whose composite index rose .22 to 94.13.

Big Board volume totaled 81.25 million shares, against 95.30 million in the previous session.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .04 at 202.98.

National Election

SINGAPORE (AP) — Parliament was formally dissolved Tuesday to pave the way for a Dec. 22 national election. The People's Action Party of Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew has won every parliamentary seat in the last four general elections, and is again favored to win.

J.B. Jeyaretnam of the Worker's Party became the only opposition member of Parliament by winning a by-election in 1981.

Only the People's Action Party is running candidates in all 79 constituencies and it could capture many of them unopposed when nominations are filed on Dc. 12.

Town Will Buy Two Houses

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — Farmville Commissioners voted Tuesday night to buy two houses from James and John Darden, with future plans for demolishing them to provide parking space for businesses in the 300 block of South Main Street.

One of the houses is located directly behind S&H Cleaners and is now occupied. It is appraised at $14,500. The other is the former James Darden residence at 139 W. Pine St. It is vacant and is appraised at $21,450.

The Monk Brothers' petition to rezone a part of their property located at 308 N. Horne Ave. from light industrial to general business was approved. The rezoning will permit Fellowship Baptist Church to use the building at this address for Sunday School.

Following a public hearing, the zoning ordinance in the R-8 residential section was amended to add a density requirement. The minimum lot area would be 8000 square feet for single family dwellings, 12,000 square feet for duplexes, and 12,000 square feet plus 2500 square feet for each additional unit above one.

An amendment to the Supplemental Power Sales Agreement was adopted, after a discussion that continued from last month's meeting. The vote was 4-to-1 in favor, with Commissioner Moses Moye voting against.

Approval was given to the final plat of the MRM Group Townhouses being built on North Main Street. Commissioners Moye and Michael Dixon refrained from voting because both are principals in the company developing the townshouses.

The January meeting of the town board was rescheduled from Jan. 1 to Jan. 8 at 7:30 p.m.

A hearing was set for Jan. 8 on whether to annex the A.C. Monk Tobacco Company, as requested by the owners.

Approval was given by the purchase of two acres of land on the east side of Hollywood Cemetery from Mrs. Lila Davis for $15,000 an acre for use as additional cemetery space. Approval was also given for the acquisition of the Joyner Cemetery, located within Mrs. Davis' property. A Cemetery Perpetual Care Reserve Account was established. Revenue from the sales of graves will be dposited in it so this fund will eventually take care of all maintenance and other costs of the public cemeteries in Farmville.

An ordinance was adopted that changes the name of the Town Recreation Advisory Committee to the Town of Farmville Recreation Board, gives that board authority to make policy on specifically defined areas of use of town facilities, and make rules and regulations of operation for recreation facility. The ordinance also created a board position for a representative on the board from the Farmville Area School Advisory Committee.

Approval was given to requesting approval by the General Assembly of an amendment to the town charter that would allow an increase in the town's contribution to the annual operating costs of the Farmville Economic Council.

Frank Bradham, town administrator, was appointed an alternate commissioner to ElectriCities and was sworn in.

Drexel Holds Off ECU For 80-73 Win

Hacked

East Carolina's Sylvia Bragg (25) is fouled by Howard University's Darlene Beale (55) during action last night in Minges Coliseum. East Carolina romped to a 98-47 victory in the game, led by Bragg with 22 points. (Reflector Photo by Katie Zernhelt)

PHILADELPHIA — Charles Hickman and Michael Anderson combined for 45 points to lead the Drexel Dragons to an 80-73 victory over East Carolina Tuesday.

Chris O'Brien added 14 points for the Dragons, including six out of seven free throw attempts as the Dragons held the ball in the last three minutes of the game.

The Pirates connected on 31 of 62 field goal attempts — two more than the Dragons — but only shot 14 free throws, connecting on 11. Drexel hit on 22 out of 31 attempts from the stripe.

Hickman finished 25 points while Anderson had 20, but the Dragons outrebounded the Pirates throughout the contest finishing with a 36-33 edge.

"I thought they beat us to the ball, not the boards," ECU Coach Charlie Harrison said in reference the number of rebounds the Dragons grabbed off the floor. "It wasn't a game played around the rim. We should never have been outrebounded.

"We didn't come out with enough intensity in the first half on the defensive end of the floor. I was very disappointed in the way we came out. They took the game to us; they got it going, and they were penetrating on us.

"Hickman caused us some matching up, but their best basketball player didn't hurt us — (Walter) Fuller."

Guard Michael Anderson, although listed at only 6-0, led the Dragons with eight rebounds, while Casper Cooper had seven.

Curt Vanderhorst paced ECU with 18 points, while Keith Sledge added 14 and William Grady 12.

The Pirates never held the lead after the 6:29 mark of the first half, but Drexel was unable to establish consistent offense, as well. After trailing 38-32 at halftime, East Carolina trimmed the margin to 41-38 on a jumper by Derrick Battle with 17:23 on the clock. But Drexel outscored the Pirates 13-3 through the 12:56 mark of the second half to take a 54-41 lead. Anderson completed a three-point play and added a field goal during the stretch, while Hickman had a pair of jumpers. Meanwhile, East Carolina got a pair of free throws from Curt Vanderhorst and one from Jack Turnbill.

Chris O'Brien sank two free throws with 8:52 left to give Drexel its biggest margin of the night at 65-45.

After matching field goals for a 67-47 gap with 7:49 on the clock, the Pirates rattled off eight unanswered points to trim the margin to 67-55 with 4:27 left. Keith Sledge had a pair of field goals during the stretch, with center Leon Bass adding a follow-shot.

The Dragons elected to hold the ball in the final three minutes, and the ECU defense took advantage of the decision. Vanderhorst and freshman Herb Dixon turned steals into field goals as the Pirates cut the gap to 71-63 with 2:23 remaining.

The Pirates trimmed the margin to six twice — with Sledge connecting from outside on both — but were unable to come any closer as the Dragons iced the game with seven out of 10 free throws in the final 1:51.

"We were beaten to the basket," Harrison said. "We can't expect to show up and win — especially on the road.

"Offensively, we can score if we run. They were packed back in a zone, but we hit on eight out of 10 fast break attempts at one point in the first half."

The lead changed hands 10 times in the first half, with Drexel finally taking control on a pair of free throws by Hickman with 6:29 remaining. The Dragons took their biggest lead of the half at 31-24 on a goal tending call against Battle as he tried to block a inside shot by Casper Cooper.

Sledge connected on a pair of free throws and Grady added a jumper on a fast break to trim the margin to 31-28 with 2:24 remaining in the half, but Pirate turnovers thwarted several scoring attempts.

After a dunk by Hickman on a fast break, ECU's Peter Dam connected on a jumper keep the deficit at three points. But Stribling added a bucket from the corner with 24 seconds left and added a free throw after being fouled by Dam with one second remaining to give the Dragons a 38-32 halftime edge.

Hickman led all scorers in the first half with 16 points, while Anderson added seven for the Dragons.

Grady had eight and Battle seven for the Pirates in the opening half.

Lady Pirates Paste Howard

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University celebrated 50 years of women's basketball last night in Minges Coliseum, and with seven of those original Lady Pirates on the scene, the modern day Lady Pirates showed 'em how it is done these days.

East Carolina, playing its best game of the young season, routed Howard University, 98-47, in the contest, as Sylvia Bragg led the way with 22 points.

"This has been a great day for Lady Pirate basketball," Coach Emily Manwaring said. "We played a fine game, and we celebrated 50 years of the sport at East Carolina."

During those 50 years, things have changed quite a bit. No longer do the women play a game when there were six players per team on the court with three players for each team on each side of the center line and no one could cross, and only two dribbles were allowed before passing or shooting.

Nowadays, it's run, run, run, and that's what the Lady Pirates did.

Manwaring said prior to the game that while Howard enjoyed a slight height advantage over the Lady Pirates, she felt that they would succumb to the ECU press. And that's exactly what happened.

With the Pirates pressing, pressing, Howard was never able to get anything going. "They did manage to beat us a few times, but not often," Manwaring said. Only twice in the first half did the Bisonettes manage to put two baskets together. The first of those came after the Lady Pirates had forged a 37-10 lead, and the next came just before the end of the half, after ECU led, 47-18.

Only twice more, both in the second half, did Howard manage more than two points in a string. The first came after ECU held a 63-26 lead, and the next came at 96-44, when the Bisonettes scored three points on a free throw and a rebound after the miss of the second.

East Carolina, after shooting less than 30 percent on Saturday against UNC Charlotte, burned the nets for 55.1 percent against Howard, including a 65.5 performance in the second half. At the same time, they held Howard to only 28.8 percent.

"We needed that," Manwaring said. "I never expect anything to come easy, but we developed the killer instinct out there just going at 'em.

"I watched them warming up, and I saw some good shooters and jumpers. But I think the difference was that we were more organized. They should have been able to do something. I think everyone on our team had a good game."

Manwaring said that afterwards she had one of the shortest — if not the shortest — postgame meeting she'd ever had. "But that's what we're supposed to do. The great thing was our shooting percentage. Sixty-nine shots is a lot, but we filled the lanes, ran the transition well, set up when we had to. We played as we practiced and nothing bothered us."

With Bragg pumping in 17 first half points, the Lady Pirates had little trouble in building their lead. Bragg hit the first basket and Lisa Squirewell followed with another for a 4-0 lead. After the score reached 10-8, the Pirates ran off 13 straight points for a 23-8 edge. Annette Phillips started it with two free throws, and Loraine Foster hit a jumper, followed by one by Bragg. Bragg made two at the stripe and Foster hit two straight baskets, with Alma Bethea adding a basket and a free throw.

That spurt, over a six minute span, set the pace for the rest of the game.

From there on it was a horse-race for the Pirates, as their trapping, pressing defense turned in turnover-after-turnover and the lead ballooned out to 49-22 by halftime.

With Manwaring substituting freely in the second half — no one played more than 22 minutes — the Pirates continued to make a runaway of it, passing the 50-point level at 87-36 on two Phillips' free throws with 6:32 left in the game.

The question then arose as to whether the Lady Pirates would break 100 for the first time this year. Victoria Watras hit with 10 seconds left for the 98th points, and although the Pirates got the ball back on the sidelines with two seconds left, they failed to get a shot off.

"I didn't want them pressing to try and get 100," Manwaring said. "I didn't tell them to set up anything, but I never feel sorry for the other team. We work hard and do our homework. In three games this year, no one has felt sorry for us."

While Bragg hit 22 for the Lady Pirates, Bethea hit 17 off the bench, while Foster, also a non-starter, hit 15 and Watras had 11. No one scored in double figures for Howard.

Chargers Down Conley, 51-42

HOLLYWOOD — Ayden-Grifton roared through a 20-7 third period and gained a 51-42 non-conference basketball victory over D.H. Conley last night.

Conley's girls took a 36-32 win over the winless Lady Chargers, gaining their first victory of the season.

For Ayden-Grifton's boys, it was the second win in three outings, while Conley is still looking for its first win after three games. Conley's girls a 1-2 while Ayden-Grifton's lassies are 0-3.

Conley managed a slim 15-14 lead after one quarter of play in the boys' game, and added to that in the second frame. They outhit the Chargers, 12-10, and took a 27-24 lead into halftime.

But in the third quarter, the Chargers caught fire, pumping in 20 points while holding the Vikings to just seven. That allowed Ayden-Grifton to take a 44-34 lead with eight minutes left. In the final period, Conley outhit AG, 8-7, but it wasn't nearly enough.

Marvin Smith led the Chargers with 17 points while Danny West added 10. Conley was paced by Ricky Farros with 16 points.

Conley's girls outscored Ayden-Grifton, 10-8 in the first quarter, and managed to add one point to the lead in the second. That gave the Valkyries a slim 17-14 halftime lead.

In the third, Ayden-Grifton rallied, however, with an 11-6 margin, and took the lead, 25-23. Conley then rallied itself in the final frame, 13-7, to pull out the victory.

Lisa Mills led Conley with 19 points, while Cynthia Hicks had 14 points to pace Ayden-Grifton.

The Chargers play host to Havelock on Friday, while Conley travels to Greenville Rose.

North Pitt Tops Rose By 64-58

By DOUG JOHNSON
Reflector Sports Writer

Lavon Shaw poured in 23 points and Clifton Williams added 19 more to lead the North Pitt Panthers to a 64-58 victory over the Rose Rampants here Tuesday night. The Lady Panthers also took home a victory, defeating the Lady Rampants 43-42.

The Panthers controlled the tip to open play, but it was the Rampants who drew first blood on a Dwight Smith lay-up. The Panthers quickly struck back, and set a quick tempo that lasted throughout the game. Both teams played tough defense, and both teams shot effectively early on, keeping the score close. This type of play continued until midway through the period, when the Panthers ran off seven unanswered points to take a 17-10 lead.

North Pitt controlled the boards, and was getting two and three shots every time down. Rose, on the other hand, was getting only one shot, and it wasn't falling. The Panthers took a seven point 19-12 lead at the end of the first period.

North Pitt continued to play well in the second, and Rose started improving its shooting. Both teams played tough defense, but in spite of this, the Panthers extended their lead to ten, 26-16, on a Shaw jumper. Rose fought back, however, and cut the lead to five on two free throws by Tyrone Smith in the closing minutes of the period. North Pitt tailed on a last second shot, but still carried a 31-26 lead into the locker room.

Rose controlled the tip to open the second half, and Mike Hathaway scored on a lay-up to cut the deficit to three, 31-28, the closest they had been since the opening minutes of the game.

But North Pitt was able to slowly extend the lead, grinding out points against a tenacious Rose defense until midway through the period when Tyrone Smith turned a three point play and sank another bucket seconds later. This seemed to be the spark that Rose desperatly needed, and the momentum swung in the Rampants' favor.

Carlton Wilson and Jesse Pratt did the job at the line for the Rampants in these minutes, going four-for-four to cut the Panthers' lead to a slim two points, 43-41. But the Panthers hit two baskets in a row to go up by six, before Wilson hit a jumper at the buzzer to cut it back to four, 47-43, at the end of the third.

Both teams continued to play well, and it was nip-and-tuck throughout most of the final period, until Melvin Jenkins of Rose sank a basket that tied the game at 51-all. Then, with 3:30 left to play, Dwight Smith sank two free throws to put his team on top, the first time they had led since early in the first period.

With 2:17 remaining, Rose took a three point 58-55 lead on a Wilson jump shot and a Tyrone Smith free throw. Ashley Sheppard sank one for the Panthers, cutting the Rose lead to one.

The Rampants went into a stall at this point, but lost the ball with 45 seconds remaining. Shaw sank a basket to give North Pitt a narrow one point lead. Rose missed on their next shot, but Paul Streeter hit a jumper and Shaw, who had done it all night for the Panthers, hit a free throw with eleven seconds left to put the game on ice. Rose missed its last shot, and Clifton Williams went coast-to-coast for a slam at the buzzer.

Panther coach Cobby Deans was happy with the win, but thought his team still played rough in places. "I thought both teams played well," he said. "I think we did a good job on the boards in the first half, and a not-so-good-job in the second. I was disappointed in our amount of turnovers, too. I think Shaw played well, and we got a lot of help from the bench. I think that was probably the difference in the game."

The Lady Panthers eeked out a narrow 43-42 victory as they defeated the Ladies from Rose.

The game was close throughout the first half, with N.P. leading 20-16 at the half. The Rampettes held tough, and thanks to outstanding offensive and defensive play by Vicki Parrott, took the lead with two minutes remaining. It was short-lived as North Pitt regained it in the closing seconds, as Reginia Moore scored for a 43-42 lead.

The Rampants failed to sink a final basket, and the Panthers went home with the victory.

Parrott led Rose with 17 points, and Regina Cox led all scorers with 22 points.

Jaguars Nip Hawks, 57-56

WHEAT SWAMP — Farmville Central held off North Lenoir for a 57-56 basketball victory last night in a non-conference game. The Lady Jaguars also came away with a 44-33 victory in their outing.

The win evened the Farmville boys' at 1-1 on the young season, while the girls were recording their second straight win.

The boys' game was close all the way. Both teams pumped in 14 points in the opening quarter, but the Hawks managed to inch away in the second frame. They outscored the Jaguars, 15-11, and took a slim 29-25 lead into intermission.

In the third period, the Jaguars rallied, 14-10 and knotted it up at the end of the frame, 39-39. In the final quarter, Farmville moved back into the lead, holding a 57-54 lead in the closing seconds. North Lenoir scored with two seconds left, but couldn't pull it out.

Bobby Evans led Farmville to the win with 12 points, while Larry Johnson had 29 and John Johnson had 11 for North Lenoir.

In the girls game, Farmville jumped ahead early, building up a 14-8 lead in the first quarter. The Lady Jags added to the lead in the second period and took a 24-16 edge into the dressing rooms.

In neither of the remaining periods were the Lady Hawks able to cut anything from the lead. Farmville upped the lead to 34-25 in the third period and finished off the Hawks, 10-8, in the final quarter.

Lisa Lang led Farmville with 16 points while Stephanie Newton added 14. Heather Douchette paced the Lady Hawks with 14 while Jennifer Wooten had 10.

Farmville opens its home season on Friday, playing host to 4-A Beddingfield.

South Lenoir Nips Greene C.

DEEP RUN — Greene Central couldn't quite pull it all together in the final period of the game and hosting South Lenoir edged past the Rams, 65-60, last night in a non-conference basketball game.

Greene Central's girls rolledup a 64-35 victory in their contest with South Lenoir.

South Lenoir's boys rolled out to an early lead, building a 22-17 lead in the first period. But the Rams hung with them in the slower paced second frame, and trailed, 32-27, at the half.

The Rams rallied in the third period, 14-11, and tied it up at one point before trailing 43-41 going into the final quarter. In that, however, they were never able to pull even again, and the Blue Devils outscored them, 22-19, in the period to pull out the win.

Maurice Edwards led the Rams with 16, while Melvin Croom added 15 and Anthony Artis had 10. South Lenoir was led by Mike Isler with 17, while Tony Parker had 14. Jay Phipps had 11 and Luvy Outlaw had 10.

In the girls' contest, Greene Central had no trouble at all. By the end of the first period, the Lady Rams held a 15-4 lead, and they increased that to 32-10 by intermission. The third period saw the Rams build their lead to 48-22, and they polished off South Lenoir, 16-14, in the final frame.

Cyndi Hicks and Cyhthia Jones each had 14 points to lead the Lady Rams, while Angie Wilkes and Melody Bowen added 12. Teresa Williams had 15 to lead South Lenoir.

The win boosts the Lady Rams to 2-0, while the boys are now 1-1. Greene Central travels to North Lenoir on Friday for their next game.

Rose Rips Northern

RED OAK — Rose High School's wrestlers bounced back from a first-match loss last night to pin Northern Nash, 52-24, in a match that saw nearly ever weight class end with a pin.

Northern won four of the 13 weights, taking all four of them by pins. Rose won the remaining nine, winning seven on pins and the other two on major decisions.

The win boosted the Rampants to 1-1 overall and 1-0 against Big East Conference competition. The Rampants travel out of the league again on Friday, visiting Eastern Wayne.

Randolph's Half-Court Basket Sink Redskins

WASHINGTON — Washington's Earl Randolph hit a shot from just over the midcourt line to give the Pam Pack a 60-59 Northeastern Conference victory over Roanoke High School last night. It was the first league action for both teams.

Washington's girls also took a 42-38 victory over the Lady Redskins in their game.

Roanoke took a 14-10 lead after one period and pulled further away from the Pam Pack in the second quarter, 18-10. That gave the Redskins a 32-20 lead to take into the dressing room.

But in the third period, Washington began to put things together. They cut a point off the lead and trailed, 44-33. Then, in the final period, they blitzed the 'Skins, 27-15 to pull out the win.

With 20 seconds left, Roanoke was up by three with a chance to put it away at the foul line. But a miss resulted in a foul against Roanoke and Steve Austin hit both ends of the play to make it 59-58. Roanoke again was fouled and again missed on the shot, and Randolph launched his half-court shot just as the buzzer sounded, swishing it to give Washington the miracle victory.

Randolph and Austin each finished with 14 for Washington, while Frankie Warren added 10. Roanoke was led by Derrick Boyd with 19, while James Duggins had 14.

Roanoke falls to 1-2 with the loss and while Washington is now 2-1.

The Washington girls eased in front after the first eight minutes of play, taking a 10-8 lead. They were able to extend that slightly in the second frame, outscoring Roanoke, 16-12, for a 26-20 halftime edge.

Washington boosted that to 34-26 at the end of the third period, then allowed Roanoke a 12-8 rally that fell short in the final frame.

Gloria Sherrod led Washington's balanced attack with 10 points, while Gloria Duggins had 26 to pace Roanoke.

The win leaves Washington's girls with a 3-0 record, while Roanoke falls to 2-1.

Lady...

The Lady Pirates also enjoyed a 54-40 rebounding edge, led by Phillips with eight, while Squirewell and Monique Pompili each had seven.

East Carolina forced 32 turnovers, committing 20 themselves. ECU counted 20 steals among those turnovers, six by Pompili.

And while the Pirates may have had it easy last night, they go to the opposite end of the scale on Friday when they entertain Number One ranked Old Dominion in Minges.

"After Saturday's loss (to UNCC), our confidence was low," Manwaring said. "This was a good confidence builder. Now we can say that we can do well. We needed a game like this to get ready for ODU, and we'll be up for it.

"I'm glad they're ranked number one, because I'd rather play them ranked first than second or third. We're just going to go for it."

Pistons 'Cool' Off Hot Celtics

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

The only way to cool off the red-hot Boston Celtics may be to cool them off, literally.

The Pontiac Silverdome, where the Detroit Pistons play their games, was so cold Tuesday night that most of the 19,413 fans kept their coats and gloves on.

The Celtics, who won two National Basketball Association Championship Series games last June in steamy, unairconditioned Boston Garden, didn't find the low temperature to their liking as Detroit ended the defending champions' 10-game winning streak with a 104-99 decision.

"Early, we missed many easy layups and wide open shots," Boston Coach K.C. Jones said. "Plus, it was a cold, cold building. Maybe if they'd pay the heating bill . . ."

Guards Vinnie Johnson and Isiah Thomas scored 24 and 23 points, respectively, for the Pistons, who handed the Celtics only their second loss in 17 games this season.

In other NBA games, it was Utah 107, Golden State 105; Portland 112, Phoenix 104; San Antonio 114, Atlanta 106; Los Angeles Clippers 116, Houston 100; Chicago 112, New Jersey 97; Los Angeles Lakers 116, Cleveland 112 and New York 100, Denver 98.

Johnson, who had only two points at halftime, scored 22 in the second half, while Thomas scored 11 of his 23 points in the crucial fourth quarter.

The Pistons held the chilly Celtics scoreless after a Robert Parish free throw put Boston ahead 99-98 with 2:50 remaining. The Pistons used Kent Benson to guard Larry Bird, who scored 23 points.

"Bird beat us both games (this season) in the last two minutes," Detroit Coach Chuck Daly said. "We went to Benson to guard him — it was just a hunch. Maybe it won't work next time.

"We were a little more physical. I don't know if we played great defense, but it was adequate enough to win."

"I think our defense was the key," Johnson said. "We switched off and rotated very well. I thought our guys played Bird well tonight, too."

Johnson hit a short jumper in the lane to put the Pistons ahead for good at 100-99 with 2:38 remaining. Thomas scored on a driving layup 22 seconds later, after a Bird miss. Bird was forced to foul Thomas with 11 seconds remaining and the All-Star guard canned both free throws to finish the scoring.

"It's a great feeling to beat Boston, but I get the same feeling beating Cleveland," said Thomas. "I just like to win. You have to feel that way. Otherwise, you'd gear up to play great against teams like Boston and maybe not play as hard against teams you should beat."

Lakers 116, Cavaliers 112

Los Angeles survived a 13-point deficit and a career-high 37 points from Phil Hubbard to beat Cleveland, which fell to 2-16.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who had 31 points and 13 rebounds, and Earvin "Magic" Johnson, who finished with 28 points and 14 assists, scored eight points each in the third quarter to lead a 31-18 Laker run in the period.

The Cavaliers trailed only 108-107 late in the game, but two hook shots by Abdul-Jabbar put the Lakers ahead by five with 2:18 left.

Trail Blazers 112, Suns 104

Portland stayed one game behind the Lakers in the Pacific Division as Kenny Carr had 22 points and 16 rebounds against Phoenix.

The Suns led 59-56 in the third period, but the Blazers scored eight straight points, four of them by Carr, to take the lead for good. Carr and Jim Paxson had 10 points each in the quarter.

Larry Nance had 26 points to lead Phoenix, while Kiki Vandeweghe had 23 points and Paxson 21 for Portland.

Knicks 100, Nuggets 98

New York rallied from a 33-18 deficit to overcome Denver, which had won 10 of its previous 11 games.

Darrell Walker, who scored nine of his 12 points in the fourth quarter, hit the game-winning basket from the baseline with three seconds left and led a Knicks defense that held the Nuggets to 16 points in the final period.

It was New York's first victory in five games with Bernard King, the NBA's leading scorer, out with injuries.

Jazz 107, Warriors 105

The comeback story of the night was at Oakland, where Utah fought back from a 65-42 deficit to defeat Golden State on Adrian Dantley's two free throws with one second left.

The Warriors still led 82-66 going into the final period, but the Jazz outscored Golden State 41-23 to pull ahead at the end. A three-point play by Purvis Short, who led the Warriors with 24 points, gave them a 105-104 lead with 31 seconds left, but Dantley tied the score with a free throw.

Larry Smith missed two free throws for the Warriors before Dantley, who led all scorers with 26 points, was fouled with a second to go.

Bulls 112, Nets 97

Orlando Woolridge scored 20 of his 37 points in the pivotal third quarter as Chicago rallied to whip New Jersey.

The Nets, who got 22 points from Micheal Ray Richardson, led 48-44 at halftime, but the Bulls outscored them 33-22 in the third period to pull ahead 77-70. Michael Jordan then scored 14 of his 20 points in the fourth quarter as Chicago extended its advantage.

Spurs 114, Hawks 106

Artis Gilmore had 24 points and 15 rebounds and George Gervin added 23 points for San Antonio against Atlanta.

The Hawks, who got 34 points from Dominique Wilkins, went without a field goal for an 11-point stretch in the second half to allow the Spurs to take the lead.

Soccer Champions

The Rowdies captured the championship of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Departments' Grades 4-6 League this year. Members of the team are, first row, left to right: Sean Scoopmire, Stephan Johnson, Joseph Taft, Matthew Cagle, Steven Alford, Ashley Branch, Will Pleasants, David Kelly; second row, Russell Williamson, Thomas Leahy, Edward Broaddus, Grant Harman, Reid Willismson, Brad Carter, Shea Harper and Coach David Chappell.

Wyatt, Walker Named To Second Team All-South

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — South Carolina's Del Wilkes and James Seawright, Miami of Florida's Eddie Brown and Virginia Tech's Bruce Smith today were named to The Associated Press All-South Independent football team for 1984, one day after each earned a berth on The AP's All-America team.

East Carolina University, after a dismal 2-9 season, landed only two players on the team, both second teamers. Chosen from the Pirates were Curtis Wyatt, a defensive end, and Kevin Walker, a defensive back.

Wilkes, an offensive guard, and Seawright, a linebacker, were two of the key performers in the most successful season in South Carolina history — a 10-1 record that earned the Gamecocks the No. 7 national ranking and a spot in the Gator Bowl.

Brown became the first Miami player in history to go over the 1,000-yard mark in receptions when the fleet wide receiver hauled in 59 passes for 1,114 yards.

Smith, one of four repeaters on the All-South team, completed a brilliant career at defensive tackle for VPI, where he had 71 tackles for losses totaling 504 yards, including 16 quarterback sacks and 9 other stops for losses in his senior season.

The Gamecocks also placed a pair of defensive backs on the team — Bryant Gilliard and Joe Brooks — and their coach, Joe Morrison, was a unanimous choice as the Coach of the Year in voting by a panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Greg Allen, Florida State's gifted tailback, was named to the team for the third year in a row and the other repeaters were Miami quarterback Bernie Kosar, a sophomore, and defensive end Tim Harris of Memphis State.

Miami had seven players on the team that covers 10 Division I-A independents in the South — Brown, Kosar, tight end Willie Smith, offensive tackle Dave Heffernan, running back Alonzo Highsmith, defensive tackle Kevin Fagan and linebacker Bruce Fleming.

Others named to the offensive unit were the Florida State trio of wide receiver Jessie Hester, guard Jamie Dukes and place kicker Derek Schmidt, Louisville center Greg Pianko and Memphis State's 307-pound tackle Tim Long.

The remainder of the defensive team consisted of end Richard Byrd of Southern Mississippi, linebacker Henry Taylor of FSU, backs Ashley Lee of Virginia Tech and Derrick Burroughs of Memphis State and punter Louis Berry of FSU.

Kosar completed 262 of 416 passes for 3,642 yards and 25 touchdowns, an effort that earned him the quarterback spot on the All-America second team behind Heisman Trophy winner Doug Flutie of Boston College.

Smith, the tight end, also served as one of Kosar's primary targets along with Brown. Smith caught 66 passes for 852 yards and FSU's Hester had 42 receptions for 832 yards.

Allen had a 7.3-yard average per carry, finishing his senior year with 971 yards and Highsmith had 906 yards and a 6.2 average per carry.

Schmidt, the only freshman named to the team, was the nation's No. 10 scorer with 93 points on 42 conversions and 17 field goals. Berry, a sophomore, averaged 42.3 yards per punt.

Mitchell Is All-ECAC

East Carolina center Tim Mitchell was the lone Pirate named the to all-ECAC football team, it has been announced. Mitchell, a 6-2, 247-pound senior, was a mainstay for the Pirates in the center of the line for the past two years, earning three varsity letters during his career.

After John Floyd went down with appendicitis last year, Mitchell stepped in as the starter and earned the Most Improved award for his play during the season.

Doug Flutie of Boston College was named quarterback for the team and also the Player of the Year — an honor he had earned in the past two seasons — after being named Rookie of the Year as a freshman.

Flutie, tight end Scott Gieselman of BC, offensive lineman Mark McDonald of BC, defensive lineman Mike Ruth of BC and defensive lineman Tim Green of Syracuse were the only repeat players from the 1983 squad.

Irish Upset Indiana By 74-63

By The Associated Press

Notre Dame, a team which for years has specialized in dealing out home-court misery to visiting basketball teams, has added Indiana to its list of victims.

The Fighting Irish dusted off the 11th-ranked Hoosiers 74-63 Tuesday night, using an 18-2 first-half run to take control and deny Indiana Coach Bobby Knight his 400th coaching victory.

"We got a spurt, we kept going," said Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps.

"The first half we were just careless, took bad shots and had too many turnovers," said Knight, whose team lost for the second time in three games.

Although Indiana was the only member of the Top Twenty to taste defeat, two others narrowly escaped. No. 8 Southern Methodist needed Butch Moore's short jumper with four seconds left to nip Kentucky 56-54 and No. 12 Syracuse was pressed into an overtime before subduing Canisius 52-48.

In more routine outings, No. 7 Illinois mauled Chico State 92-47 and No. 19 Kansas slipped by South Dakota State 85-72.

In other college action Tuesday night, it was Providence 84, Holy Cross 75 in two overtimes; Rutgers 54, Princeton 41; Florida 82, South Florida 68; Iowa State 54, Iowa 50; Marquette 74, Loyola of Illinois 67; Houston 93, Southwestern of Texas 81; Texas Christian 76, North Texas State 58; Arizona 82, Loyola Marymount 75; New Mexico State 67, New Mexico 64; Utah 65, Weber State 59 and Utah State 97, Brigham Young 93.

Indiana held a 22-16 first-half lead before the roof fell in. Notre Dame barrelled into a 34-24 lead and enjoyed a 45-30 cushion at the half.

Indiana cut the deficit to nine points on three occasions in the second half, but Notre Dame, 4-0, held firm.

"In the second half, we had three opportunities to go under 10 points, and that was our first objective," said Knight. "Our second objective was to go under five and take the lead. Obviously, we didn't do that."

Freshman guard David Rivers led the Notre Dame offense with 23 points while his sidekick, Scott Hicks, was the defensive standout by holding Indiana's Steve Alford to one field goal. Alford came into the game averaging 20.5 points a game.

"We worked on it all week, but I didn't think it would work as well as it did," Hicks said of the defensive plan for Indiana.

"Hicks did a fantastic job on Alford," Phelps added.

Southern Methodist, 2-0, led 31-25 in the first half against a Kentucky team depleted by graduation and injuries. But the Wildcats, 1-2, battled back and tied the game for the final time at 54-54 on Kenny Walker's free throw with 1:17 to go.

SMU then set up a final shot for Moore, who finished with 15 points. Carl Wright led the Mustangs with 17 points and Walker had 19 for Kentucky, which had a 23-game home-court winning streak snapped.

Heavily favored Syracuse was on the ropes early against Canisius, 2-2, which held leads of 13-4 and 25-19 in the first half and a 30-29 advantage early in the second half.

Syracuse, 2-0, led 42-36 with 10:06 to go, then endured the catcalls of their home crowd while freezing the ball for most of the last seven minutes.

Ray Hall, who led Canisius with 21 points, scored from under the basket as time expired to tie the game 44-44 and force the extra period.

Syracuse finally took the lead for good on two free throws by Andre Hawkins and Wendell Alexis finished things with two more free throws only nine seconds from the end.

Rafael Addison had 16 points for the Orangemen.

Chico State, a Division II school which absorbed a 77-37 drubbing at the hands of No. 2 DePaul on Monday, got another bitter taste of big-time basketball against Illinois.

Anthony Welch scored 25 points, center George Montgomery added 12 and Scott Meents 10 for the Illini, now 6-1.

Falls Road Rally Slips By Knights

Falls Road rallied from 11 points down at the half to pull out a 42-41 basketball victory over Greenville Christian Academy last night. GCA's Lady Knights rolled up a 38-29 victory in their game.

The Knights eased into a 10-8 lead after one period of the boys' game, and then pulled away in the second period. They outscored Falls Road, 19-10, to take a comfortable 29-18 edge at intermission.

But the Knights couldn't hold it together. They were outscored 10-7 in the third frame, cutting the lead back to 36-28. Then, in the final quarter, the Knights could manage but five points, while Falls Road pumped in 14. Trailing by one, Falls Road forced a turnover and Dan Griffin scored with six seconds left for the lead. The Knights called time out and set up a play, but turned the ball over again, ending their chances.

"We're a young team and we don't have the team play we need as yet," Coach Dale Thatcher said. "We had better players, but they had the better team. We missed a lot of chances to score and didn't do well on the line."

John Denson led Falls Road with 20 points, while Dan Andrews had 21 for GCA.

Greenville's girls pushed into an 11-6 lead in the first period and expanded it to 23-13 by halftime. Falls Road's girls also threatened a turnaround, outscoring the Lady Knights, 13-6, in the third period to trim the lead back to 29-26. But GCA held them off, 9-3, in the final period to pull it out.

Patti Carr led GCA with 11 points while Kim Faulker added 10. Amanda Perry had 11 to pace Falls Road.

"The girls played a good game defensively, and the rebounding was good," Thatcher said.

The split leaves the boys with a 2-2 record, while the girls are now 3-1. Greenville's next action comes Friday and Saturday when they travel to the Wilmington Christian Invitational Tournament.

Vikes Top Williamston

PLYMOUTH — Plymouth High School swept a pair of basketball games from Williamston last night. The Vikings took the boys' game, 77-63, and came away with a 47-37 win in the girls game.

It was the first Northeastern Conference action for both teams.

In the boys' game, Williamston fell behind early as Plymouth built up a 19-12 lead. The Vikes continued to pull away in the second period and by the half had built up a 39-26 lead.

Williamston put on a small rally in the third period, outhitting the Vikes, 16-12, to cut the lead back to 51-42. But Plymouth outraced the Tigers to the wire, 26-21, to gain the win.

Edison Ransome led Plymouth with 25 points while Sidney Franklin added 22 and Jeff Simpson hit 13. Williamston was led by Tony Doughty with 21, while Robert Slade had 11.

Plymouth's girls' eased ahead, 14-11, after one period, and then outscored Williamston, 14-9, in the second period for a 28-20 halftime margin. Williamston managed but three points in a slow third period and trailed 34-23 as the last period got underway. They managed a 14-13 performance over the Valkyries in that frame, to no avail.

Debra Norman led Plymouth with 25 points, while Sonya Purvis hit 16 for Williamston.

Williamston's boys are now 2-1 overall, 1-0 in league play, while the girls are 0-3, 0-1. The Tigers play host to Ahoskie on Friday.

Perkins Not Surprised By Year

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Alabama's first losing season in 27 years may have shocked some people. Ray Perkins isn't one of them.

"When I took this job, I knew there was a chance that the first three years, one of them would be a pretty tough year," said Perkins, who completed his second season as Alabama's coach Saturday as the Crimson Tide upset arch-rival Auburn 17-15.

It was indeed a pretty tough year. Alabama finished 5-6, its first losing season since 1957, and the critics came out in force.

Witness the latest bad joke:

Q. — What do Ray Perkins and Bear Bryant have in common?

A. — They both turned the Alabama program around in just two years.

Bryant, of course, set all sorts of coaching records after inheriting a team that had gone 0-10-0, 2-7-1, 2-7-1 in the three years before he arrived. "I couldn't have come into a better situation," he once said. "No matter what I did, it would be accepted."

You will have a tough time convincing the Bama faithful, who think winning is a birthright, that the Bear didn't leave the program in tip-top shape.

Perkins has hinted that such was not the case. But there are those who interpret anything he says as criticism of the legendary Bryant. And there are those who consider any criticism of the immortal Bear — justified or unjustified — as heresy.

"It's been tough," Perkins conceded, "but I've been through tougher. The first couple of years in New York (when he coached the Giants) were the toughest two years of my life. But it paid off in 1981 (the Giants made the playoffs for the first time in 18 years) and I think they're reaping some rewards now from the first two years my staff and I were there."

In New York, Perkins inherited a chronic loser. At Alabama, the goal is the national championship every year. Bryant made it that way.

"It's been very disappointing," Perkins said. "But at the same time, I've learned a lot. And quite a few kids grew up and matured through the course of the year in a way they wouldn't have if we were undefeated. I've learned lessons that will be beneficial in the future — and there's no question we've built a solid foundation for a very bright future. I'm excited about the future."

Despite rumors to the contrary, Perkins says that future will find him at Alabama and not with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers of the NFL. One report even went so far as to say he has scheduled a news conference Dec. 17 to make the announcement.

But he emphatically denied those rumors to Alabama President Dr. Joab Thomas last week — "I wanted to let you know I haven't met with (Tampa Bay owner Hugh) Culverhouse. I haven't signed a contract. I haven't been in Tampa and I haven't called a press conference for the 17th" — and again on his Sunday TV show.

"I'm where I'm going to be for a long, long time," he told the viewers. "That's on the University of Alabama campus."

Later, he said that "this time of the year is rumor time. The last 10 or 12 years, the rumor started around this time each year that Coach Bryant was going to retire."

But back to 1984, a year they don't want to remember but one which Alabama fans probably will never let Perkins forget. It was yet another drop for the Crimson Tide, which has slipped from 12-0 — and national champion — in 1979 to 10-2 in 1980 to 9-2-1 in 1981 to 8-4 in both 1982 (Bryant's last year) and 1983 (Perkins' first) to this year's embarrassment.

"I thought we could avoid it (an off-year) with the people we had," Perkins said. "But certain things happened that didn't let that come true. First of all, some things happened that you have to point to the top, so I'd have to say that in some areas I could have done a better job.

"Losing one of the best running backs in the country (Kerry Goode) in the first game didn't help, especially working with a very young offensive team and freshman quarterbacks. I felt if we could stay fairly injury-free and if some of the freshmen made early contributions, we'd be okay.

"But we had a big injury on offense and some of the young people didn't progress as quickly as I thought, nor did we have the same type of impact from the freshman group as we did the year before, partly due to injuries.

"Any time a team has an off-year like this there are a lot of contributing factors. I'll take most of it (the blame). There are several areas in which I could have done a better job — but I'd say that if we were undefeated."

What about 1985?

"I'm not going to kid myself, the players or anybody else — we've got a lot of work to do between now and when we line up against Texas A&M (on Sept. 14). But being the optimist that I am, I think we can have a very good year in 1985. It depends on a lot of things — how well we go about doing our work in the off-season program and spring practice and throughout next summer.

"The quarterback situation should be better because we'll have gone through an off-season with all of them (sophomore Mike Shula, freshman Vince Sutton — the first blue-chip quarterback to sign with Alabama since 1980 — and redshirt freshman Gene Newberry) and they'll be another year older.

"But our program right now is not where it should be. We're just now feeling the pinch of the 30-95 (scholarship limitation) rule. The last 2-3 years, this being the third, college football has begun to feel the real effect of the 30-95 rule. Too many teams have good players.

"Parity, if you want to call it that, has reached the point where if any top program ever goes two years in a row with subpar recruiting years it's going to fall behind and face the possibility of having a — or possibly two — off-years."

Had Bryant lived, he would have taken much of the heat off Perkins by accepting the blame for Alabama's deficiencies in recruiting during the latter years of his reign. Perkins cannot say that in so many words. What he can do is rate his own performance thus far.

"As athletic director, A-plus," he said. "As head coach, somewhere between C-plus and B-minus."

Appeals Are Turned Down

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — The board of directors of the North Carolina High School Athletic Association has finalized the realignment of the state's public high school conferences.

The board Tuesday rejected all seven appeals made by schools unhappy with their new conference assignments. The conference realignments become effective in the 1985-86 school year.

The board also on Tuesday refused to let two reporters to be present while it deliberated the appeals.

Richard Murphy, principal of Raleigh Sanderson High School, made a motion that the board go into executive session to consider the appeal, and the motion was passed overwhelmingly despite the protest of one of the reporters.

The reporters were later allowed to return and witness the voting.

The law defines public bodies as any "... board, commission, committee, council, or other body of the State, or of one or more counties, cities, school administrative units ..." composed of two or more members.

Under the law, public bodies in an official meeting, are open to reporters.

Hugh Stevens, general counsel to the North Carolina Press Association, said that the NCHSAA, a non-profit corporation that oversees high school athletics, was clearly a public body. All of its members represent public schools.

Still, NCHSAA legal counsel Bob Melott advised the board it could meet in executive session. Melott and Stevens discussed the issue later in a telephone conversation, and Stevens told The News and Observer of Raleigh that Melott argued the board could meet in executive session under an exemption in the Open Meetings Law that allowed for the private consideration of "the validity, settlement, or other disposition of a claim against ... the public body...."

Ty Cobb, Joe Medwick and Stan Musial share a singular record. They are the only players ever to lead their leagues in 12 batting departments in one year.

McCrory Is Still Champ

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Milton McCrory waged an early battle of jabs and then retained his World Boxing Council welterweight championship with a fourth-round knockout of Lloyd Taylor.

"For the first couple of rounds it was a battle of jabs," said McCrory, who improved his record to 24-0-1 with 20 knockouts after Tuesday night's scheduled 10-rounder.

"We both had our hands down ... In the second round, I put my hands up and started jabbing," he added. "I wanted him to jab with me, so I could lean to the right and go over the top with a right hand. If he was jabbing while I did that, he wasn't going to see it."

McCrory trapped Taylor along the ropes 56 seconds into the fourth and landed a right to the head. He followed with a left hook and another right to the head. Taylor dropped face-first on the canvas.

Referee Larry Hazzard stopped counting at "four" after Taylor made no effort to rise.

Taylor, of Washington, D.C., fell to 20-3.

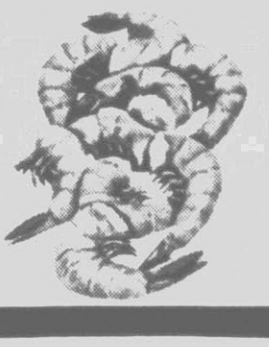

In an earlier bout, McCrory's brother, Olympic flyweight gold medalist Steve McCrory, of Detroit, kept his record unblemished with a six-round unanimous decision over Sonny Long of Cincinnati. McCrory, 3-0, won a battle of inside body punching early in the bout and had Long circling for survival in the final three rounds.

Court Upholds Portions Of DWI Law

IN THE STATE

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — State Attorney General Rufus Edmisten says he lost the battle to get a blanket ruling from the state Supreme Court on the constitutionality of the drunken driving law but won the war to save lives in rulings on individual cases.

The court Tuesday upheld several provisions of the driving while impaired law — that breath analysis machines are accurate enough to establish a 0.10 blood alcohol reading as automatic evidence of a crime; that using a chemical analyst's affidavit as evidence in District Court is constitutional; and that the chemical analysis need not be delayed more than 30 minutes while a defendant waits for his attorney to arrive.

But the court refused to make a blanket ruling sought by Edmisten and Gov. Jim Hunt, saying such opinions are reserved for cases where there is a controversy between two sides with opposing interests. The justices said the attorney general and lower court judges do not have opposing interests.

"I think that in effect we won a victory for the people of this state because the court did decide some very important issues," Edmisten said in an interview. "In the end, I think we really got what we wanted and it will be a tremendous benefit to those who do not want to be killed by a drunk driver."

Edmisten filed suit in May to consolidate appeals of seven judges' rulings striking down various portions of the Safe Roads Act and remove potential roadblocks to enforcement of the law. The suit was dismissed by a Wake County judge June 29 as procedurally inappropriate.

Still pending are two major constitutional questions — the automatic 10-day revocation of a driver's license for a blood alcohol content of 0.10 percent or more and the detention of an impaired driver for 24 hours, until he is sober or until a responsible, sober adult picks him up.

The most devisive issue with the court was whether prosecutors may submit sworn statements from chemical analysts in District Court.

The justices voted 4-3 to permit the examiner to submit an affidavit rather than appear in court, as he was required to do before the new law took effect Oct. 1, 1983.

Eileen M. Smith moved to suppress the affidavit as evidence in a Mecklenburg County case, saying it was unconstitutional to deny her the opportunity to face her accuser.

The Supreme Court determined that the Legislature enacted a constitutional procedure "attuned to scientific and technological advancements which have insured reliability in chemical testing..."

Associate Justice Burley Mitchell wrote in the opinion that the defendant still has the right to subpoena the examiner in District Court and to question the examiner face-to-face in a Superior Court trail.

Mitchell was joined in the opinion by Chief Justice Joseph Branch and Associate Justices William Copeland and Louis Meyer.

Associate Justices Harry Martin, James Exum and Henry Frye dissented. They said Mitchell's argument was "...simply a statement that constitutional rights are not guaranteed in the District Court..."

The three said that the constitutional questions would not be so critical if the Legislature had permitted the defendant to question the examiner in a hearing on the admissibility of the affidavit.

The Supreme Court rejected defendant Cynthia Wallace Shuping's argument that blood alcohol tests are subject to a .01 percent plus or minus margin of error, and therefore a 0.10 blood alcohol level should not be automatic evidence of a crime.

Ms. Shuping was convicted earlier this year in Moore County of driving while impaired.

The court said accuracy of chemical analysis machines can be tested before the defendant's blood alcohol content is measured.

The Supreme Court ruled that defendants are given ample time to get an attorney before they must submit to a blood-alcohol test. Defendants have 30 minutes to call an attorney and find a witness for the test. The court said further delay could jeopardize the test results.

The ruling came in the case of John B. Howren Jr., who was arrested for driving while impaired in Gaston County in October 1983.

In the case of Maxie Thomas Coker Jr., the court rejected arguments that the driving while impaired charges are unconstitutionally vague.

Coker was charged in Wake County in November 1983 with "unlawfully and willfully operating a motor vehicle on a street or highway while subject to an impairing substance."

Coker said the charges provided too little information to prepare his defense. But the court, in an opinion written by Branch, determined that the information sought by Coker amounted to evidence and said the charges were clear enough that the average person could understand them.

The Supreme Court ruled that it is constitutionally permissible to make a 0.10 blood alcohol content itself a criminal offense.

Anthony Wayne Rose, a Wake County defendant, said the average person could not understand from the law what conduct was being prohibited.

The statute says a driver is guilty if he has "at any relevant time after the driving, an alcohol content of 0.10 or more."

The Supreme Court concluded that the law "is not an unconstitutionally vague standard simply because a drinking driver does not know precisely when he has reached that level."

The court said that a person is presumed to know the law and if they drink and drive they take the risk that their blood alcohol content will exceed legal maximums.

"What they really said it is not a constitutional right to drink and drive," Edmisten said. "I have to call it a victory for the people of this state."

Restaurant Worker Will Get $300,000

RALEIGH (AP) — A McDonald's manager who's said to have spent five years trying to clear his name was awarded $300,000 by the North Carolina Supreme Court after being falsely accused of stealing $1.51 from his restaurant's cash register.

The court also ordered a new trial Tuesday for two brothers convicted in the rape and murder of an 88-year-old retired school teacher in Rutherford County.

Ray Livingston Jones was charged in 1979 with embezzling $1.51 and another unspecified amount from the McDonald's that he supervised in Fayetteville. The charges were later dropped because of insufficient evidence, and three days later, Jones sued for malicious prosecution.

The court's decision Tuesday upheld a 1981 jury verdict against the fast-food chain and Matt Gwynne, McDonald's regional security officer and a former State Bureau of Investigation agent who had investigated Jones.

Jones, 35, could not be reached for comment.

After Jones filed his civil lawsuit against the restaurant, the security officer and two cashiers who had accused him, the criminal charges were reinstated. He was indicted by the Cumberland County grand jury, accused of embezzling the $1.51 and two other amounts totaling $191.08.

At his trial, the district attorney said his evidence was strongest on the $1.51 charge. After hearing the evidence, the judge ordered that charge dropped, and the prosecutor dropped the others voluntarily.

The Supreme Court agreed that because of the prosecution, Jones was "humiliated and caused great grief ... and embarrassment."

Cameron To Head Budget

By The Associated Press

Republican Gov.-elect Jim Martin reached across party lines to name Charlotte bank executive C.C. Cameron the top budget officer in the new state government.

Cameron, 64, will be assistant to the governor for budget and management, a cabinet-level post. Cameron succeeds John A. Williams, a retired Raleigh businessman, who has served as budget director and executive assistant to outgoing Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt for the past eight years.

Last year, Hunt named Cameron, also a Democrat, to the state's powerful Advisory Budget Commission, which proposes the North Carolina budget to the General Assembly.

His selection Tuesday was the first of the high-level administration appointments to be filled in the next two weeks.

"I think it speaks to the tenor of what Jim Martin is going to do," said Eddie Knox, a former Charlotte mayor and Martin adviser, "and that is get very competent people to help run this state. You can't get people like that because they're usually too expensive."

Cameron, retiring chairman of First Union Corp., earned $543,333 in 1983. His new post comes with a salary of $59,356.

Democratic leaders reacted favorably to Cameron's appointment.

"If this is his first appointment, it tells me that he's starting off appointing good people," said House Speaker Liston Ramsey, D-Madison. Democratic Party Chairman David Price called the appointment "the kind of gesture that would make cooperation easier."

Martin suggested Cameron will play a key role and said the appointment sets the "standard of excellence for my administration."

"I'm delighted to have Cliff Cameron's agreement to serve in this significant capacity," Martin said. "He will bring to the job a record of demonstrated management skill, a rare combination of political and financial expertise and a well deserved reputation for strength of character."

Cameron, who was out of town and unavailable for comment Tuesday, steps down at the end of the year at First Union, which he's chaired for 18 years and built into the state's third largest bank holding company. Its assets are $6.4 billion.

The state budget Cameron will oversee is now $6.6 billion annually.

Cameron's chief duty will be preparation of the state's biennial budgets with the Advisory Budget Commission and Martin, who will submit the budgets to the Legislature.

As primary fiscal administrator for state government, he also will manage the General Assembly's budget appropriations.

Cameron will serve as Martin's liaison to the Council of State and Cabinet, advise the governor on matters of state, and represent him at special events Martin can't attend.

In an interview with The Observer last month, Cameron said he sees Martin "running the state probably more businesslike than any governor we've had since Luther Hodges (1954-61).

"I think probably he thinks like a lot of us do: that you either work for a business or you work for the government. I've never quite understood how some of our elected officials could be anti-business."

Known as one of North Carolina's top bankers, Cameron has been a major figure in the state's commerce.

Helms Says Farmers Need Courage To Change Prices

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Farmers are going out of business because farm policies have priced their products out of world markets, and Congress must create a new Farm Bill that takes new global economic conditions into account, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., says.

Because of this bill, 1985 will be the most crucial year farmers have faced since the U.S. Agriculture Department was created in 1862, Helms, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee said Tuesday.

"Circumstances have changed," he told about 800 delegates to the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation's 49th convention. "U.S. agriculture is now subject to global economic conditions. Our farm programs have become inefficient and disastrously costly."

Helms asked farmers for courage and sacrifice in revamping federal farm price support programs he said had become "ineffective and disastrously costly."

"It's gotten to the place where our farm policy is counterproductive," Helms said. "We need to reform agricultural policy, make it market-oriented, flexible and long-term in design."

Helms said he was committed to retaining the federal price support program for tobacco, which has come under increasing attack from critics in Congress. Delegates applauded when he said poundage quotas should continue but that they will require some fine-tuning.

"Mandatory production controls combined with prices set above market-clearing levels means quotas are inevitable," he said. "We've got to look at both. North Carolina farmers' tobacco quota has shrunk 33 percent in 10 years. It's impossible to achieve the efficiency of production they need to make a profit."

Lauding the free-enterprise system, Helms said "the times demand a return to these principles to correct the problems in the tobacco program and other farm programs."

He asked the Farm Bureau Federation for help in reforming farm policy and said the task would require the participation of every farmer affected as well as leaders and politicians of every party.

"It's going to take a little courage and a little sacrifice, but it will happen," he said.

Helms praised U.S. Trade Representative William Brock, who has said it may be time for the United States to retaliate against nations with trade restrictions.

"It's about time. ... Enough is enough," Helms said, adding that American farmers had been "sold down the river." He said Japanese officials have asked him for help on matters of foreign relations, but he said he would ask them for help first in increasing the U.S. share of the Japanese cigarette market.

Helms also said it's time to "get down to brass tacks" with U.S. cigarette companies that use up to 50 percent foreign tobacco in each cigarette.

"We need to ask them, 'Whose side are you on?'" he said.

CBS Sunday Blitz Tops TV Ratings

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS won a substantial victory in the fight for viewers last week as a special featuring Kenny Rogers and Dolly Parton propelled the network to a Sunday night blitz that dropped movies starring Paul Newman and Clint Eastwood into the bottom half of the ratings.

"If you give audiences fresh, new entertainment programming, they'll be there to watch," said Michael Eisenberg, CBS' director of audience measurement. "Theatrical movies have not been working because of their multiple exposures on cable TV."

For this reason the three networks have shifted money from movie acquisitions to their own TV-movie and miniseries development.

Last week, the CBS special, "Kenny & Dolly: A Christmas to Remember," was the top-rated program with a 27.5 rating, meaning more than 27 percent of the nation's 84.9 million TV homes were watching. Most of the viewers stayed tuned for the two-hour "Circus of the Stars," the week's No. 4-rated show, according to A.C. Nielsen Co. figures released Tuesday.

"Circus of the Stars" overpowered a repeat of Newman's "Fort Apache, the Bronx" on NBC and a repeat of Eastwood's "Escape from Alcatraz" on ABC. "Fort Apache" finished 38th out of 69 shows; "Escape from Alcatraz" was 39th.

For the week of Nov. 26-Dec. 2, CBS had an average 18.4 rating, the network's second best performance of the season. NBC continued to solidify its chances to escape third place for the first time in a decade with a 16.5 rating, while ABC remained in a tailspin with 14.7.

After 10 weeks of the prime-time season, which ends in mid-April, CBS has an average rating of 17.0 to NBC's 16.6 and ABC's 15.1.

The rest of the Top 10 included CBS' "Dallas," No. 2; ABC's "Dynasty," No. 3; CBS' "Simon & Simon," fifth; CBS' "60 Minutes," sixth; NBC's "The Cosby Show," seventh; NBC's "The A-Team," eighth; the runover of the Los Angeles Raiders-Miami football game on NBC, ninth; and CBS' "Magnum, P.I.," 10th.

In the evening news race, the "CBS Evening News" amassed its biggest lead since May with a 14.1 rating. The "NBC Nightly News" was No. 2 for the second consecutive week, posting an 11.5 rating. Despite a recent promotional push, ABC's "World News Tonight" finished last at 11.0.

Curt Block, an NBC vice president, said the improved "Nightly News" performance, its best since February, could be "based somewhat on the success of our prime-time schedule. People may be tuning in early."

CBS' Eisenberg disagreed. "A connection is not likely," he said.

FIRST AID — Actress Brooke Shields is tended to by Shirley Dorain Garber after the actress received a small cut on her foot while taping a broken-glass walk recently. The scene was for use recently on the CBS television special "The Ninth Annual Circus of the Stars" in Las Vegas. The cut was described as being minor. (AP Laserphoto)

Panel Says TV Improves Image

WASHINGTON (AP) — Television improved its portrayal of women in the 1984 season, with a majority of women characters shown holding jobs outside their home "like their real-life counterparts," the National Commission on Working Women said today.

And "Instead of being locked into aggressive roles, some male TV characters on the new fall shows actually care for their children, love their families and do so without being objects of ridicule," the commission noted, citing "The Cosby Show" as an example.

Television is getting away from the prevailing pattern of the past 12 years, when female TV characters were usually "white, single, beautiful women," the commission said. It is a private organization that campaigns on behalf of women who hold jobs.

Last year, the commission complained that TV portrayed too few minority women, not enough older women and hardly any working mothers.

But in a 12-page report, the organization said that all three types have become more visible on the screen and "There are more women characters, more minorities, new family structures, job diversity, new roles for men and a focus on issues of interest to women."

Ten years ago, men outnumbered women in TV roles 3-1, but in the 1984 season, of 143 new TV characters, 67 are women, the commission said. There were 10 black female characters in new shows, compared to only one last year.

The analysis found that 76 percent of all adult female TV characters in new shows have jobs outside the home.

NBC Stakes Ground As Family Network

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Once upon a time in the land of the network giants, the first hour of prime time was known as the family viewing hour. Yes, boys and girls, prime time used to begin without mayhem and machismo.

Although the family viewing hour is no longer an industrywide policy, as it was for a short time in the mid-1970s, NBC took out a three-page advertisement in several major newspapers last week to proclaim that families were still watching families on NBC.

The ad reflected the current strategy and philosophy of a network that is finally reaping some of the rewards of NBC Chairman Grant Tinker's patient guidance and his commitment to relevant, intelligent TV.

"Nine reasons why American families are spending more time together," said the ad, showing an all-smiles mother, father and three young kids. On the facing page, there were beaming portraits of the casts of nine NBC shows: eight comedies and "Highway to Heaven," the only 8 o'clock drama without helicopters.

The ad was not aimed at the public in general since it appeared only in The Wall Street Journal, The New York Times, The Washington Post, USA Today and The Los Angeles Times — important links to the business and advertising communities.

"What we're saying is that our schedule has a strong family feeling, and that it fits in with the kind of company that we are and want to be," said Bud Rukeyser, executive vice president of corporate communications and one of the ad's architects. "We're also saying that NBC has moved up a little bit (in the ratings), and we've done it with programming we're proud of."

The ad did not cite "Hill Street Blues," "Cheers" or "St. Elsewhere," the more adult series that have dominated the Emmy awards in recent years. Instead, the Peacock Network was boasting about shows that families can watch together, and have helped make NBC second in the ratings.

"NBC has become No. 2 (displacing ABC) by taking away ABC's franchise of kids and young adults," said Dave Poltrack, CBS' chief researcher. "All the shows (in the ad) appeal to kids, teens and young adults."

Poltrack said NBC had the top 10 shows watched by children and teen-agers. Breaking it down further, he said NBC had 15 of the top 20 shows for teen-agers and 8 of the top 10 for children aged 2-11.

The ad cited "The Cosby Show" and "Family Ties" — two of the few shows with the original mother and father raising their kids — and six other kiddie-corps comedies: "The Facts of Life," "It's Your Move," "Diff'rent Strokes," "Gimme A Break," "Silver Spoons" and "Punky Brewster."

"'Cosby' turned things around for NBC on Thursday night," said Bob Igiel, senior vice president of the NW Ayer ad agency. "That's the key element."

"'Cheers' and 'Hill Street Blues' (NBC's 9 and 10 o'clock shows on Thursday) used to be self-starters," said Poltrack. "Now 'Cosby' brings in the kids and their parents watch, too. Then the kids go to bed. The adults, who were brought to the set as a secondary audience, end up staying the night. The same thing happens on Tuesday night."

On Tuesday, "The A-Team" at 8 sets up "Riptide" and "Remington Steele" for NBC's most popular night.

"The A-Team" was not mentioned in NBC's ad, and it has been listed by violence-monitoring groups as one of TV's most offending shows. But it's an example of another ingredient in NBC's early evening success formula, the action-adventure shows, with "V" on Friday and "Knight Rider" on Sunday.

CBS' successful, but different, Thursday strategy is to hook adults with "Magnum, P.I." and keep them for "Simon & Simon" and "Knots Landing." "The Fall Guy" grabs adults and sets up ABC's winning night, Wednesday.

"The risk with the kids' strategy is that kids are fickle," said Igiel. "They grow up and change their taste. ABC is seeing that now."

Tinker came to NBC in 1981 thinking that every show could resemble "Mary Tyler Moore" or "Hill Street," shows produced by his former production company, MTM. Now, his goal is for a more "eclectic" schedule. He says he's made his peace with "The A-Team," which he considers a program that delivers what audiences expect — and want.

"I used to say MTM-quality a little too loudly," said Tinker. "Now, I'm no longer apologizing for shows that go after 35 and 40 share (percent of the viewing audience)."

Benefit Features Tar Heel Artist

NEW YORK — Entertainer Perry Como, columnist Sylvia Porter, and industrialist Dr. Armand Hammer will host a benefit opening of a one-man exhibition of 60 paintings and watercolors by artist Bob Timberlake on Sunday at Hammer Galleries, 33 W. 57th St., New York. Timberlake is a native of Lexington, N.C.

Donations of $100 per person will benefit children the children's cancer treatment programs at Duke University, Durham.

The exhibiton will open to the public on Monday and remain on view through Jan. 4.

During February the show will be included in a retrospective at the Frye Museum in Seattle.

For the past 11 years, Como has headed numerous fund-raising events for Duke University Medical Center. In 1983 a painting by Timberlake was donated to the fund, and to date over $300,000 has been raised through sale of reproductions of the painting.

Mayor Is Out Of Job

UNION, Ky. (AP) — The mayor and a city commissioner weren't run out of town — the town just moved away from them.

Mayor James Doll and commission member James Wilmhoff resigned following a vote by the residents of their subdivision in favor of "de-annexation" from this city near Cincinnati. Since they no longer live in town, the can no longer hold office.

The subdivision was part of a 2,500-acre area that residents voted out of the corporation in the November election.

"I guess I can get along without it," said Doll, who admitted he voted for secession, of his former job. "It was the people's choice to get out."

Doll, 42, said most of the area voted out of the city was farmland. He said such rural areas do not belong in the city.

Furniture Outlook Positive

HIGH POINT (AP) — Declining interest rates and an expected boom in housing starts are positive signs for strong furniture sales in 1985, an industry analyst says.

Furniture sales may seem slack in the first quarter because the same quarter in 1984 was so strong, but sales should take off after that, said Jerry Epperson, furniture industry analyst for Wheat First Securities in Richmond, Va.

"Within the next six months we'll probably have a housing recovery that's almost unbelievable in its vigor," Epperson said in his annual preview of the industry.

Nationally, housing sales hit a slump in August as interest rates approached 15 percent on conventional mortgages, but sales have started rebounding as rates have dropped to the 13 percent to 13½ percent range for fixed-rate, 30-year mortgages.

Epperson said one of the biggest problems facing furniture manufacturers is finding retail space to show their products. Between 1978 and 1983, with high interest rates and recession, the number of retail outlets in the nation declined by 30 percent to 40 percent, he said, while many of those remaining reduced their space.

The "gallery concept" being promoted by some major manufacturers, in which a retailer sets aside floor space in a glamorous setting, also has shrunk space available to smaller furniture makers, Epperson said.

Lady Dislikes Seat Belt Law

ELMIRA, N.Y. (AP) — Getting people into their seat belts is tough. But getting them out can be even tougher, one sheriff's deputy discovered the day after New York's mandatory seat belt law took effect.

A "rather large" woman who spent 20 minutes trapped in her seat belt in a supermarket parking lot told Chemung County sheriff's Deputy William Fitch "it was the first time she ever wore it and she would never wear it again."

Fitch answered a call of a "hysterical" woman trapped in a car Sunday. Braving a stream of verbal abuse, the deputy climbed in the passenger's side, jabbed the buckle's button a couple of times and managed to set the woman free.

"She was rather highly upset," Fitch said Tuesday. "She was very critical of the new law. I told her I didn't make the new law and I was just here to enforce it."

Fitch said "it took a little doing" for him to open the belt buckle because it apparently had never been used, even though the car appeared to be a 1972 or 1973 model.

Travel Film

The third in the Travel-Adventure Film Series of the season will be shown at 8 p.m. Thursday in Hendrix Theater, Mendenhall Student Center, on the East Carolina University campus.

Tickets, priced at $3.50 per person, will be available at the door. The series is presented by the University Unions Travel Committee.

Thursday's film is "Thailand Today — Old Siam" and covers different areas of that Asian kingdom.

Duke Launches $200 Million Drive For Funds

DURHAM (AP) — Duke University began a $200 million endowment campaign on Tuesday — the most ambitious fund-raising drive in its 60-year history, school officials announced.

The fund-raising drive is expected to benefit students and faculty, along with the university's libraries and its programs in the arts and sciences.

Terry Sanford, president of Duke, called the campaign "the most rigorous challenge we have ever confronted. But with the help of our many friends, we are confident we will be successful. ..."

Joel L. Fleishman, campaign chairman and Duke vice chancellor, said in a news release Tuesday that the drive is "the largest ... that is exclusively for endowment and exclusively for arts and sciences ever mounted by any university."

The drive, if successful, will mean about $90 million more for student aid, about $60 million for faculty support and about $50 million for libraries and programs in the arts and sciences.

For inspection of the property, information, and bid forms, contact Mr. Bert M. Hall, Acting County Supervisor, Farmers Home Administration, 115 Eastbrook Drive, Greenville, North Carolina 27834. Telephone: (919) 752-2035.

PLEASE NOTE THAT:

1. Bids will be accepted only in writing on Form FmHA 465-10, "Invitation, Bid and Acceptance." Any conditions of the bid proposed by the bidder which are not specified on Form FmHA 465-10 must be attached to Form FmHA 465-10.
2. If the bids received are for the same amount, preference will be given to the bid offering cash over the bid requiring financing by FmHA.
3. Bidders whose bids contain the condition that FmHA finance the sale on terms will submit, along with Form FmHA 465-10, a current financial statement and a pro forma statement indicating their repayment ability.

Farmers Home Administration properties are sold without regard to race, sex, creed, color, or national origin.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS
ADDITION TO GARAGE BUILDING PITT COUNTY LANDFILLE PITT COUNTY

Sealed proposals will be received by the Pitt County Planning Department in the Commissioners' Conference Room on the First Floor of the County Office Building at 1717 West Fifth Street, Greenville, North Carolina 27834 on January 8, 1985 until 2:00 P.M. local time.

Bids for furnishing all materials, equipment, and labor for Solid Waste Container Sites will be opened and read immediately after the time specified above.

The WORK will consist of the following items of construction:

Construction of Metal Building

Plans and specifications are available in the office of the County Engineer at 1717 West Fifth Street, Greenville, North Carolina 27834 during normal working hours.

All items shall be bid on a lump sum basis and all prices shall include all materials, labor, and equipment whatsoever required to construct that item.

All CONTRACTORS are hereby notified that they must have all licenses required under state law for performing the WORK on this Project.

General CONTRACTORS are notified that "An act to regulate the practice of General Contracting" enacted by the General Assembly of North Carolina on March 1, 1925, and as subsequently amended will be observed in receiving bids and awarding Contracts.

The labor provisions of this contract shall in all respects conform to the Davis-Bacon Act of March 3, 1931 as subsequently amended. Wage determinations for the area shall be furnished by the U.S. Department of Labor and payroll records shall be kept in accordance with Department of Labor regulations.

Each proposal shall be accompanied by a five percent bid security. This security may be in cash, certified check or bid bond issued by Surety licensed to conduct business in North Carolina and named in the current list of "Surety Companies Acceptable on Federal Bonds" as published by the Audit Staff Bureau of Accountants, U.S. Treasury Department. The deposit may be retained by the OWNER as liquidated damages if the successful bidder fails to execute the Contract within fifteen (15) days after notice of award.

Performance and Payment bonds will be required in an amount equal to one hundred percent (100%) of the Contract Price.

The OWNER reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to accept any bid which appears to be in his best interest.

ENGINE TEST CONSISTS OF:

START: • Cranking Voltage • Cranking Coil Output • Cranking Vacuum

IDLE: • Idle Speed • Dwell • Initial Timing • Hydrocarbons P.P.M. • Carbon Monoxide • PCV Test • Manifold Vacuum

CRUISE: • Dwell Variation • Coil Polarity • Spark Plug Firing Voltage • Maximum Coil Output • Secondary Circuit Insulation • Secondary Circuit Condition • Coil and Condenser Condition • Breaker Point Condition • Cam Lobe Accuracy • Hydrocarbons P.P.M. • Carbon Monoxide Percent • Cylinder Power Balance

HIGH SPEED: • Timing Advance • Charging Voltage • Hydrocarbons P.P.M. • Carbon Monoxide Percent • Exhaust Restriction

Record RPM

ACCELERATION: • Spark Plugs Under Load • Accelerator Pump Action

This simple test gives a very good indication of how well you car uses gasoline. It is based on the type of test used by many state and local agencies to test for excessive exhaust emissions. Just as important, it tells whether or not your car is wasting gasoline.

Today is a holiday in Haiti — marking that island's discovery by Christopher Columbus in 1492. Columbus never saw or landed on any part of the present United States. It is known that he had white hair when he arrived in the New World, yet he was only 41 years old. Columbus visited Iceland in the 1480s. Before Spain financed his trip west, Columbus was turned down by England, France, and Portugal. Columbus died in 1506, completely unaware he had not reached China.

DO YOU KNOW — In what Italian city was Columbus born?

TUESDAY'S ANSWER — On average, men have more blood than women.

Underground Fuel Tank Leaks Could Prove Hazardous

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — In the boom years after World War II, when cars sold like hotcakes and gasoline was cheap, thousands of gasoline storage tanks were put into the ground to help fuel Americans' love affair with the automobile.

Unfortunately, little thought was given to what might happen when those tanks and their fittings began to corrode. Now, leaking underground tanks are the number one source of well water contamination in the state and a nationwide public health threat.

More sobering is the fact that contamination discovered so far is just the tip of the iceberg: upwards of 5 million tanks may be in the ground, according to one estimate. Of those, about 85 percent are made of steel, many or most with no corrosion protection.

While a groundwater system can absorb and purify certain amounts of organic wastes, a number of chemicals — including several in gasoline — are not biodegradable in soil or water. Once they get into an aquifer, they can remain for years, and cleanup is often impossible.

Donald Feliciano, an environmental policy analyst whose research on the tank problem earlier this year helped spur congressional action, says that an increasing number of underground tank leaks are contaminating groundwater nationwide.

"One of the main problems with regulating underground storage tanks is who owns the tanks," said Feliciano, who works for the Congressional Research Service. "The large oil companies think they own 25-35 percent of the tanks. The rest are owned by small oil companies. Beyond that, by farmers, delivery firms, and John Q. Homeowners. It gets real sticky."

This region has experienced more contamination cases than any other in North Carolina, officials say, mainly because it is more dependent on groundwater. Most notable have been the Cumberland Road-Boone Trail case and the contamination of 44 wells in Scotland County.

A total of 18 cases of contamination affecting 71 wells (44 of those in Scotland County) have been investigated by the state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development in this 11-county region since March 1983, according to information compiled by the regional Water Quality office of the NRCD.

Last March is when the number of reports began picking up, according to M.J. Noland, regional supervisor for the NRCD regional office of the Water Quality Section.

In most instances, Noland said, the source could be traced to a leaking underground tank or pipe at a service station or convenience store. The leaking tanks may be either active or abandoned. Often, the unused tanks have been forgotten.

Even when the owner knows of the leak, however, he may not correct it unless its's serious: New York State found that service station owners will let up to 25 gallons a day leak before replacing a tank. That means upwards of 9,000 gallons of gas a year from one tank.

Figures provided by the N.C. Service Station Association show there were 144,690 full-service gas stations in the country in 1982. A year later, 9,120 had closed.

In North Carolina, the same organization estimates about 140 of the state's 2,686 licensed service stations (there are a total of about 12,000 licensed and unlicensed) have closed since the first of this year alone.

Several of the major oil companies have begun tank replacement programs. But there are thousands of tanks in the ground that have been forgotten and records exist on few of them.

Because widespread awareness of the underground tank problem has come relatively recently, lawmakers are still struggling to catch up and put regulatory programs in place. Congress recently passed legislation authorizing the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to set up a leaking tank program, and North Carolina — which some believe has more tanks than most other states — is looking into its own program.

In the meantime, tanks keep going into the ground with no records, and gasoline keeps showing up in wells.

"I'm concerned because we have a problem with gasoline leaking already, and nobody's responsible for the tanks," said Jimmy Goodman, chief of the Bonnie Doone Fire District. "There's no control in Cumberland County; some department should be responsible for it. There's gas in those tanks. One day, it's going to start leaking."

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, DEC. 6, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to keep your feet on the ground and to look into and have your activity along those lines where you can gain practical benefits. After an early delay, have a good time.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Avoid taking up some monetary affair with another during the morning. Talk to a bigwig about any needs you may have.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You may feel upset about gaining a personal wish, but soon forget all about it and can have a good time at amusements.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You may get a late start because of another person's wishes, but later can see those individuals who can be of help to you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) A pal could keep you from getting an early start on that plan you have in mind. Later go right through with it.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You have career tasks to perform, so get right at them. Accomplish a good deal with less trouble than usual.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make sure you know what recreations will cost before you set up any appointments for same. Socialize this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan how to rid yourself of obligations you have assumed and start a more workable budget for yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Compromising with an associate who is stubborn can result in a fine agreement today. Study public happenings.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You may get a slow start at work, but will later organize it will and accomplish a good deal today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You may not be able to afford some pleasure you have in mind, so look for something less expensive to do.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get practical matters at home nicely handled and don't permit some financial affair to deter your progress at home.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study data you need so that you can make your routines operate more efficiently and profitably. See advisors who can help.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be highly magnetic and will be thinking of fame and fortune and should have a good education, but at schools where the finest tenets and principles will be taught. Teach early to be more broad-minded for greatest success during the lifetime.

Planned Parenthood Cuts Budget

LONDON (AP) — The Reagan administration's opposition to abortion has forced the International Planned Parenthood Federation to slash its 1985 budget, threatening birth control programs in Third World countries, the organization's director said Tuesday.

The London-based body, which funds programs run by affiliated associations in 120 nations, has reduced its $55 million budget by $17 million, fearing it will get no money from the United States. The United States government has been the federation's single biggest contributor.

The move follows a July announcement by President Reagan's administration that funds would be cut off to groups that perform or promote abortion, said the federation's director, Frances Dennis.

The U.S. Agency for International Development has not given any formal word on whether the federation's grant would be reduced for 1985, but the organization's governing council decided at a mid-November meeting to go ahead and cut the budget.

"We're still hoping there's room for negotiation with the Agency for International Development and we haven't been told officially or unofficially that we won't get a grant next year," said Ms. Dennis. "But it's December and we had to face the reality of what we might lose."

She said the U.S. announcement, made shortly before an international conference on population control held in Mexico City, was widely interpreted as meaning a cut would be made in funds to the International Planned Parenthood Federation. She estimated that less than 1 percent of the federation's budget is spent on abortions.

"We figure it is up to each country, not to up to us to decide on abortion policy," Ms. Dennis said in a telephone interview.

"Our member associations are autonomous bodies. It's not so much whether we are involved in abortion, but whether our member associations have a right to be autonomous."

In 1984, the United States gave the federation $15 million in cash and contraceptives, the largest contribution by any of 25 governments which make annual grants. Japan, the second biggest contributor, gave $9.9 million.

Ms. Dennis said the budget cut meant closing the Nepal Family Planning Association, scrapping plans to open one in Congo, West Africa, and threatened programs in other countries.

"Our most crucial programs are in countries where governments have not launched family planning programs or where health services are weak — mainly in Africa, Latin America and the Caribbean," she said. "This is going to mean a reduction in the availability of contraception.

Nuclear Power Plant Proposed

PEKING (AP) — Chinese and Hong Kong officials have reached basic agreement on a joint venture to build a nuclear power plant in Guangdong Province, Vice Premier Li Peng was quoted Tuesday as saying.

The multibillion-dollar plant on Daya Bay would serve southern China and Hong Kong, a British Colony that will revert to Chinese sovereignty when Britain's lease expires in 1997.

The plant is a joint venture between Hong Kong's China Light and Power Co., which will own 25 percent, and China's state-run Guangdong Nuclear Investment Inc., which will own 75 percent.

Negotiations have been held for more than a year and Li made the announcement in a conversation with British Energy Minister Alick Buchanan-Smith, as reported by the official news agency, Xinhua. "They have reached basic agreement on articles of the contract," Li was quoted as saying.

ELECTRIC CUSTOMERS:

Starting January you'll notice something different on your bill.

Beginning January 1985, your electric bill will include a line showing sales tax. The change is a result of legislation passed in 1984 by the N.C. General Assembly.

Q. Does this mean my electric bill is going up?

A. No. Taxes have always been included in the rates. However, now the sales tax will be shown separately. Your total bill will remain the same.

Q. Are my taxes going up?

A. No. This new procedure could help you reduce your federal income taxes. If you list sales taxes as a deduction on your federal return, you will now be able to include the sales tax from your electric bills.

Consumers Join In Asking For 'Overnight Delivery'

By COTTEN TIMBERLAKE
AP Business Writer

Sweating businessmen aren't the only people who absolutely, positively have to get their packages there overnight. A small but apparently growing number of consumers are deciding they have to, too.

At the same time, more retailers are offering overnight delivery of their products to customers.

"The demand is growing because you see all the advertising on TV and everybody begins to think about things going overnight," said Robert Sykes, a spokesman for Emery Worldwide in Wilton, Conn. "What has historically been business to business is spilling over in the consumer area now."

For example:

— L.L. Bean Inc., the outdoors outfitter in Freeport, Maine, will send purchases via Federal Express overnight for $15 to $30, depending on the package's weight.

— Lotus Development Corp. of Cambridge, Mass., has a program under which customers can exchange their "1-2-3" spread sheet software for the more sophisticated and expensive "Symphony" integrated software, via the Airborne Freight Corp. of Seattle at a cost of $200. The exchange program ends Jan. 31.

— Continental Airlines will deliver plane tickets to your home or office overnight by Federal Express.

"There's more and more the instant gratification of you want it right now," said Jack Kavanagh, an analyst at the investment firm of Merrill Lynch, Pierce Fenner & Smith Inc. in New York. "No doubt it will carry over to some extent to the public."

John Snyder, a spokesman for Airborne Freight, said: "There are a lot of other people who depend on the service besides the major corporation. As far we can tell, it certainly is a growing phenomenon."

No statistics are available to back up the assertion, and not everyone agrees with it.

James McCarthy, a spokesman for the Air Transport Association in Washington, D.C., said: "We do not have a breakdown between business and the individual, private user. I would have no way of putting a number on it."

However, he said, "My inclination is I feel that there is more" consumer use of overnight delivery.

John Pincavage, an analyst at Paine Webber Mitchell Hutchins in New York, for one, is not convinced. "It's an awfully expensive way of doing it (sending a package)," he said.

Overnight delivery of a two-pound pouch via courier generally costs $25. The U.S. Postal Service's Express Mail delivered overnight is cheaper — $9.35 for a package of less than two pounds. Second-day delivery is much cheaper.

The air transport association, which began compiling data last year on such shipments, said 114 million small packages were sent via overnight or second-day delivery by businesses and individuals in the first nine months of 1984. That was up 39 percent from 82 million packages in the same period a year ago.

"All the couriers are trying to figure out how they can increase their penetration with the infrequent user, what they call the retail market," said Paul Schlesinger, an analyst at Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette Securities Corp. in New York.

Kavanagh of Merrill Lynch said, "I think they are preparing for the day that they will be able to accept more work from the public by establishing various centers around the country and making it easier for people to use their services."

Consumers have many possible reasons to use overnight delivery.

"Of course, you get around the holiday season and people are sending gifts that they want to make sure get there," said Emery's Sykes.

How about the almost-forgotten birthday?

Schlesinger told this story: "I was vacationing. The day before my mother's 70th birthday, I decided we really ought to commemorate it in some fashion. We got some cards, recorded a message for her, and went to a Federal (Express) drop box and sent her the package."

Sykes noted other possibilities: "Parents send suitcases and stuff like that to their kids in college. Or you would very often use it on the document side. Let's say you're in Connecticut and you have to send it to Florida where you're selling a condominium.

"We send a lot of art works and stuff like that," he said.

Walter Ulrich, a Houston-based consultant to the courier industry, said, "You'll see business taking more advantages of that to send small items to consumers."

For consumers looking to use overnight delivery, are there big differences among the couriers?

Opening lead: Nine of ♡.

Two 25-year-olds, Eric Eisenberg and Francois Crozet, were the stars of France's come-from-behind win in the 1984 European Junior Championship. Here is Eisenberg at the helm of a three no trump contract.

In theory South's opening bid showed 21-22 points, but he decided his five-card suit and good intermediate cards more than compensated for any high-card shortage. North's raise to game was based on the hope his diamond suit would be a source of tricks.

The same contract was reached in both rooms of the France-Belgium match, and the lead by both Wests was the nine of hearts, ducked to declarer's ten. That gave declarer eight tricks. The Belgian South elected to play on clubs for his ninth trick. He cashed the ace of diamonds, overtook the queen with dummy's king and led club to the jack.

West won the queen and exited with a heart. Declarer won, cashed dummy's diamonds on which he sluffed two clubs, and led another club from the board. That enabled West to score three more club tricks, and the ace of spades completed a one-trick set. Unlucky.

Eisenberg found a simpler way to insure his contract. After winning the ten of hearts, he led the king of spades from hand. He could now set up a spade trick by force, and the contract could be defeated only if West started specifically with A-Q-10 of clubs and East with the ace-queen of spades. Since East had only a singleton club, declarer could not be prevented from making his contract and gaining 12 International Match Points.

Drug May Be Cause Of Cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) – More than 25,000 American women may have breast cancer because of a drug they took over two decades ago, and a public health activist says the government should be warning thousands more of the potential risk.

Dr. Sidney M. Wolfe, director of the activist Health Research Group, a project of the Ralph Nader group Public Citizen, said the government should help persuade physicians to track down women who received the synthetic hormone diethylstilbesterol, commonly known as DES, in the 1940s and 1950s.

An estimated 2 million women received DES while pregnant to prevent miscarriages, but research in recent years has found the drug to be dangerous. The most recent, an article published in the New England Journal of Medicine last week, indicated that women who took DES have a 41 percent higher risk of contracting breast cancer.

The research also suggested that the increased risk, which does not appear until more than 20 years after exposure, may increase as time passes.

Wolfe, in a letter to Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret Heckler, said the government should act to be certain women who received the substance are notified of their potential risk.

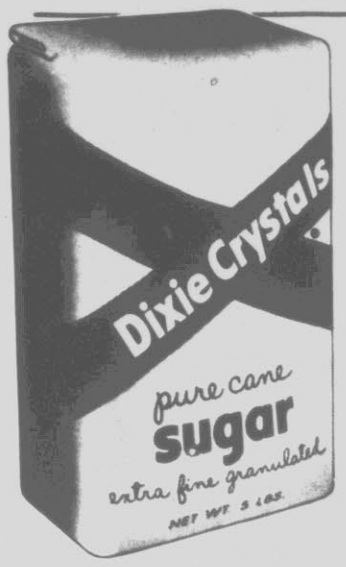

"The government should take all steps possible to ensure immediate notification of all women exposed to DES that they are at significantly greater risk of breast cancer so they can be examined ... more frequently than many might otherwise be inclined to do," Wolfe said.

"All doctors who have ever administered DES to women should search their files to identify all such women and immediately notify them," he said.

Last week's report found that of more than 6,000 women studied, women who took DES during pregnancy had a 41 percent greater chance of developing breast cancer.

The article said 4.4 percent of the women who had taken DES during pregnancy developed breast cancer, while only 3.12 percent of the women who did not take the synthetic hormone became victims of the disease.

New How To Read Program Successful

By ROBERT BYRD
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — The image is a familiar one — a benevolent volunteer tutor working patiently one-on-one, week after week, teaching a proud but illiterate adult how to read.

The problem, says an Atlanta literacy organization, is that too often, it doesn't work.

Those traditional adult literacy programs have a success rate of about 20 percent, said Lunette Hayes, vice president of Atlanta's Literacy Action. And with an estimated one out of four Southerners functionally illiterate, that's not enough to solve "an absolutely monumental problem."

To that end, Literacy Action, a non-profit group teaching adult Atlantans to read for 15 years, junked its traditional one-on-one volunteer program and substituted a new concept in group teaching.

"We've got a very innovative thing ... something very special," she said. "We may have a real solution."

Literacy Action can take a class of illiterate adults and, in less than a year of twice-a-week, 90-minute sessions, have 80 percent of them reading and writing at a 10th grade level, according to president Vern Pulling. The key is in the approach.

"Illiteracy among adults is not primarily a reading problem," he explained. "And the conventional approach of teaching traditional reading skills isn't going to solve the problem."

Rather, he said, the problem is that adults who cannot read have spent their whole lives thinking differently from the majority of the population.

"Our students do not process information like the rest of America does," Ms. Hayes said.

That "information processing" concept, a relatively new one in education, is "not as mysterious as it might sound," Pulling said.

The idea behind Literacy Action's program, based on studies by University of Georgia reading professor James Dinnan, is that illiterate people "have developed a whole language pattern slightly out of sync with standard language patterns," Pulling said.

For example, although a non-reading person knows very well what "hot" and "cold" mean when he hears them, he may "misfile" those words in his mind and never come to automatically associate them with words like "chilly," "tepid" and "scalding."

So from day one, Literacy Action tackles the problem of "information processing."

Before students are given anything to read, they work on their image. "Most of the people who have struggled with this have developed a pretty bad attitude about their ability to learn," Pulling said.

And then they talk about how language is used. From there, they move to words, sentences and paragraphs until they can write a coherent theme.

The system works quickly, Pulling said: "They're not lacking in thinking skills. Once they master this information processing, they discover they were thinking clearly all the time. They just can't communicate."

Many stereotypes about illiterate people have been exploded, Pulling said. They are not necessarily poor, backward, embarrassed people.

"Most of our students are employed, and most have at least latent ego strength — they wonder if they're stupid, but they don't really believe it," he said. "They are concerned about their kids, or concerned about their jobs."

And, he said, most of them already "read better than they think they do," having figured out their own language tricks to get by in society.

"That's one of the reasons the problem is so little understood — because an illiterate person is so good at hiding it," he said. "After all, it's not like they just have one leg; you can see that."

Literacy Action's students have taken well to the classroom setting. Under the old method, with tutors and pupils "supposedly meeting twice a week, no more than 50 or 60 percent ever took place," Ms. Hayes said.

The group still uses volunteer tutors — to help in the classroom — but there's now a trained professional teacher, and most of the students show up.

"The students tend to reinforce each other," Pulling said. "They help each other through the crises."

Literacy Action has been through crises of its own in the last two years, after its federal funding — 85 percent of its budget — was cut by the Reagan administration in 1982.

"Since then, we've got to get 85 percent from the private sector," Ms. Hayes said, noting that it costs $400 per student for teacher salaries and materials.

Literacy Action has spread its ideas to programs in other parts of Atlanta — and even a Methodist missionary project in Nairobi, Kenya. Back home, the group hopes to teach 1,000 Atlantans to read during this school year — preferably parents, since "illiteracy breeds illiteracy," she said.

Onetime College Exiles Hold Reunion

By BILL CRIDER
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Once upon a time, when Huey Long ran Louisiana like a kingdom, his opposition to a letter to a campus newspaper got seven students thrown out of Louisiana State University.

Fifty years ago, in the midst of the Great Depression, being expelled by a university was a kick in the teeth. It could ruin career hopes. This time it didn't turn out that way.

Instead, Long's animosity boosted the seven out of obscurity. He indirectly gave them reputation, presence, name, changed their lives.

"It opened doors that you couldn't have got opened before because they remembered your name," said Jesse Cutrer. "It had an almost magical effect. It was the greatest thing that ever happened to us."

Cutrer and the five others still living are getting together today to mark the 50th anniversary of what at the time seemed a very dark day.

"We will bring our wives and swap lies on what we have been doing for the last 50 years," said Sam Montague, now a Kansas City advertising man.

Cal Abraham will fly in from Santiago, Chile, a long way to come for a high class lunch.

The rest live in the area: L. Rea Godbold in Brookhaven, Miss.; Stan Shlosman of Monroe, La.; Carl Corbin, New Orleans, and Cutrer, of Bogalusa, La., where he spent a hectic four years as mayor back when it was a hotspot in the civil rights uproar.

Their long-ago fight was over censorship of the student newspaper, The Daily Reveille. Busted out for their sassy opposition, they became "The Reveille Seven."

At some other school it might have been a teapot tempest. But anything involving Huey Long, a shrewd and tough politician, made the kind of news stories that helped give Louisiana a reputation for political corruption.

Where else would you find a top political figure, then or now, who would say, of state legislators: "I buy 'em like a sack of potatoes, shuffle 'em like a pack of cards." His brother, Earl, who also became governor, later said buying legislators was too expensive, he just rented them.

At the time, Huey Long was a U.S. senator who kept control of the state and made no bones about it. He was no shrinking violet and had big ambitions. He was girding to run for president against Franklin Delano Roosevelt. His battle crys were "Every Man A King" and "A Chicken In Every Pot."

An ardent football fan, Long on occasion led the LSU band on the sidelines when the team was winning. He chewed out the coach when they lost, which was not too often.

He reacted sharply to opposition and wound up being assassinated at a marble hallway at the state capitol in 1935.

The Reveille affair started with what Long considered a joke, designed to ridicule a campaign ploy used by a Long foe who won some print by engineering a mass meeting to "elect" himself to Congress.

In mockery, Long arranged a mass meeting of students to "elect" LSU football hero Abe Mickal to the state Senate.

Mickal, now a New Orleans physician, was a flashy quarterback from Brookhaven, Miss., whose passing and kicking led LSU to a 23-3-3 record during his four years there.

Though duly "elected" while off playing a road game, Mickal and Coach Biff Jones put a quick end to the charade when they returned to the campus.

It would have ended there except for an idealistic student who fired off a humorless letter to the Reveille complaining about "a mockery of constitutional government and democracy."

"It was certainly not a very fiery letter, Huey Long was not even mentioned by name," recalled Corbin.

It didn't take much, however, to upset Long. Shown a printer's proof of the letter on the night before the paper went to press, he went up like a rocket.

Rousted out of bed and summoned to the telephone, LSU President James Monroe Smith got orders straight from the Kingfish to squelch the students or else.

Smith contacted Cutrer, student editor, and demanded that the letter be withdrawn. Since it was not written by the staff, Cutrer agreed. But it didn't end there.

Cutrer was called to Smith's office the next day and informed that henceforth a newly named member of the faculty would "advise" the newspaper staff.

It soon became clear that advice actually would be censorship control. The Reveille staff resigned. A sign was placed over the door to the printing shop: "Killed By Suppression."

When 26 journalism students signed a petition asking Smith to reinstate the staff without censorship, he temporarily suspended the 26.

Cutrer, Corbin, Abraham and the late David McGuire then swore out an affidavit outlining the clash and took it to a Baton Rouge newspaper. Wire services spread the story around the country.

The seven were expelled as a result and were glum at first. Fifty years ago, those thrown out of a university usually found that other schools would not admit them. Not in this case. The University of Missouri invited The Reveille Seven to enroll.

"Money was our problem but an anonymous group of New Orleans residents established a loan fund. So for the huge sum of $300 I got through my final year at Missouri," said Corbin.

"After I graduated it took me three years to pay it off working at The Times-Picayune for $22.50 a week," he added.

Corbin, the only one to pursue a newspaper career, wound up as editor of the New Orleans States-Item. He retired in 1965.

Legislators Back Claim By Indians

BOSTON (AP) — A proposal that would allow the Wampanoag Indians to reclaim some prime beachfront land on the resort island of Martha's Vineyard has been endorsed by the Massachusetts Senate.

The lawmakers approved a bill that would show the state's support for the settlement, which calls for the Town of Gay Head to give the tribe control of 238 acres — including prime beachfront and cliff sites in the resort community.

The settlement also calls for for the federal government to give the Indians up to $1 million to pay for the purchase of additional town land to increase their holding to 440 acres.

U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds, D-Mass., has filed legislation in Congress to complete the appropriation. He has said it would be helpful to have the state go on record in approving the deal, even though no state funds are needed.

The state bill now goes to the Massachusetts House for consideration.

The Wampanoag Tribal Council of Gay Head filed suit about 10 years ago to reclaim land they say was taken by the state a century ago in violation of federal statutes.

The litigation divided the tribal council, slowing any out-of-court settlement, and also clouded property rights in Gay Head, making bank mortgages hard to obtain.

In November 1983, a mediator appointed by Gov. Michael S. Dukakis reached agreement on the proposed setlement. Studds failed to win approval of the federal money this year and said he will try again in 1985.

Double The Fun

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — Double takes happen all the time at Corwin Middle School, where eight sets of twins keep students and teachers guessing about who's who.

But the twins don't seem to mind the confusion, in fact, some turn it to their advantage.

"When one gets in trouble, they blame it on the other 'cause you look alike," said Tad Salazar, who is hard to distinguish from brother Dominick.

Jerone Coca admits that he and his twin brother, Tyrone, sometimes even fool their parents.

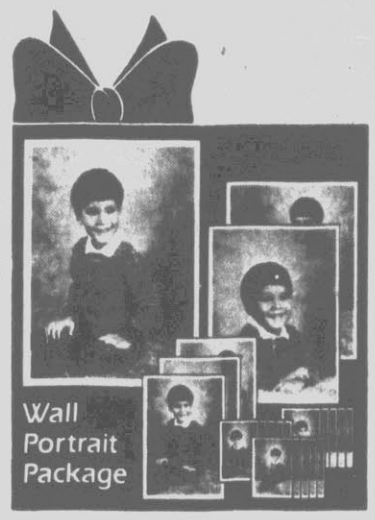

"Sometimes they'll say, 'Jerone, throw out the trash — it's your turn.' And I'll say, 'I'm Tyrone!'"

Marlene and Jolene Dela Cruz say they, too, find it hard to resist the temptation to play tricks with their looks.

"My mom used to buy me blue shoes and her red shoes — that was the only way she could tell us apart," Jolene recalled. Both confessed that they occasionally swapped shoes just for fun.

Professor Uses Lasers To Track Fingerprints

By JUDY GIANNETTINO
Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Dusting for fingerprints at a crime scene may one day be replaced by laser beam detection, predicts a Texas Tech University professor who has been researching the method for eight years.

"It's not a quick process, but it's been a long time since I've had a case where I didn't do better with the laser," said Roland Menzel, a Tech physics professor.

Menzel said the FBI and the Los Angeles Police Department were already using lasers to identify fingerprints.

"Quite often, you can pick up fingerprints (with the laser) that you couldn't get otherwise and I see the day when this will be the way to detect fingerprints," he said.

Menzel said his first success was in a case in Canada in 1977.

The only piece of evidence was a plastic bag containing drugs. Conventional methods couldn't pick up a print.

"Using the laser, I found the fingerprint on the tape that closed the bag. It was the only evidence in the case and after the discovery of the fingerprint, the suspect pleaded guilty," Menzel said.

"Getting prints off surfaces such as black electrical tape was always thought impossible. Now it can be done in some circumstances."

The 41-year-old professor said in a recent interview that he was working on methods to detect fingerprints on such difficult surfaces as wood, cardboard, cloth and skin.

On easier surfaces, fingerprints can be seen and photographed for later identification, Menzel said.

"On some surfaces, you simply illuminate it and the laser picks up the prints," he explained. "On other surfaces, you dust with fluorescent powder or mix the surface with chemicals and the laser can then pick up the prints."

Menzel works with three lasers — one he bought, one that was donated to his laboratory two years ago and a third portable machine, worth $30,000, on loan from a Florida company.

The portable laser is "so compact that you can just load it in the car and take it to the crime scene," Menzel said.

Menzel has used his laser fingerprint detection methods on several murder investigations. "I get casework from all over the place," he said.

But he said he preferred to concentrate on his research.

For cloth and skin detection, he said, enzymes are being tested to break down concentrations of inert matter in the fingerprint into amino acids, making the fingerprints visible to the laser.

"I have on occasion picked up prints on cloth or skin, but they are very rarely found," he said. "We need more research on the enzymes and the stabilization of the prints. But I think in due course we'll get the cloth."

Menzel also is researching the use of computer images in identifying fingerprints, he said.

"Too often, you get these prints that are good but not good enough to positively identify," he said.

"We're hoping to take the photograph of the print the laser has found and dump it into a computer and let it fool around to try to enhance the images," he said. "That way we should be able to identify it."

Menzel has been at Texas Tech since 1979. In 1982, he set up the university's Center for Forensic Studies. His courses on fingerprint detection methods are offered to law enforcement officers rather than Tech students.

"More and more, in law enforcement, we're turning away from the turn-of-the-century evidence methods," Menzel said. "As we do, and as we get into the more sophisticated evidence examining, there will be a need for people with technological backgrounds."

Actor Heads Drive To Assist Victims

NEW YORK (AP) — Indian actor Kabir Bedi, who appeared in the James Bond film "Octopussy," is playing a leading role in an aid drive for victims of Hindu and Sikh violence in his homeland.

Bedi told a news conference on Monday that the Sikh-Hindu Allied Relief Exchange Peace Fund would collect money for widows, orphans and the permanently disabled, with Hindu contributions going to Sikhs and Sikh donations to Hindus.

"Despite a few people indulging in acts of violence, most believe in good will," Bedi said. "This effort inspires people to go beyond themselves, beyond their group loyalties."

He said the group wants to attract 100,000 people as members. The membership fee of $10 would be a "vote for peace," he said.

Church Volunteers Run Bible Factory

OLIVER SPRINGS, Tenn. (AP) — Near the center of the big warehouse are 20,000 unbound copies of the King James Bible — printed in Russian.

Scattered around other parts of the building are more stacks of Bibles, some printed in English, some in Spanish, some in Portuguese.

There are even some in Marshallese, language of the Marshall Islands in the South Pacific.

Each year this expansive printing plant at Mt. Pisgah Baptist Church in Oliver Springs turns out 100,000 copies of multi-lingual Holy Scripture, everything from pocket-size New Testaments to copies of the Gospel of John.

Since the operation began in May 1975, the church has produced more than 390 tons of gospel material.

A good number of Bibles will make their way into troubled El Salvador and Nicaragua. Others will go to Canada or South America. Still more will slip across communist borders in eastern Europe.

The Mt. Pisgah printing plant is one of fewer than a dozen of its kind in the United States.

Despite enormous growth in the operation over the past few years, Bible publishing at the church remains a job for anyone who's willing to help.

On Monday nights and Tuesday mornings volunteer workers from the 450-member Mt. Pisgah church and other Baptist churches in the area congregate at the print shop to assemble the books.

On a good day 20 or 25 people will come with their sleeves rolled up and ready to work.

"I'm amazed at what is accomplished here with the number of people involved," said Jim Hoffman, who with H.B. Carney heads the printing operation.

"We want as many people involved with it as we can," he said. "If a church wants to come with their people and help put scriptures together, we are willing to do that."

When former Pastor Milford Ely first started the printing operation, the people at Mt. Pisgah worked in the church basement and produced whole Bibles with one tiny press.

Under the leadership of current Pastor Garvin Walls, the operation has moved into a large warehouse tucked up against a mountain behind the church. Inside is $450,000 worth of the latest in modern printing technology.

Most of the financing comes from the Mt. Pisgah congregation, which gives an average of $200 to $300 per week.

The rest comes primarily from 30 other Baptist churches that contribute money on a monthly basis. More comes from the hundreds of other churches that periodically donate money for paper or other supplies.

Still, there is never enough money, said Hoffman, 37, who has been in printing for 22 years.

To operate the printing plant costs an average of $150 per day, not including paper costs. A 1,300-pound roll of the thin, white paper the Bibles are printed on costs nearly $1,000.

Even though the demand for Bibles is tremendous, the church charges nothing for them.

"One of the things we try to emphasize is that the Bibles are not for sale," Hoffman said, sorting through a stack of letters.

There was one from Ghana and another from Liberia, two more from Kenya and Nigeria. Later Hoffman displayed a letter from Baptist missionaries in the Philippines asking for a million Bibles.

"I get three or four letters here everyday literally begging for copies of the Scriptures. We send it to them free, no questions asked," he said.

Once the Bibles are printed, the pages bound and the rough edges trimmed, they are boxed and hauled to the tiny Oliver Springs Post Office.

Resort Goes From Zilch To Boom Growth

By BILL KACZOR
Associated Press Writer

SANDESTIN, Fla. (AP) — The Sandestin Beach Resort is leading a coastal building boom in the Florida Panhandle 10 years after its original developers filed for bankruptcy.

Peter Bos, now sole owner of Sandestin, said sales of condominiums and other real estate at the 2,580-acre resort are averaging $1 million per week after peaking at $99 million for the 12-month period ending Oct. 31, 1983.

"This year we will be significantly below that because we ran out of stuff to sell," said Bos, president of the Bos Group, a Jacksonville-based real estate and development holding company with interests throughout the Southeast.

Bos claims the $99 million last year is a record for resorts. Half of those sales were in the 400-room Sandestin Hilton, a condominium hotel scheduled to open in early 1985.

Sandestin is wedged between the Gulf of Mexico and Choctawhatchee Bay about nine miles east of Destin. It takes its name from Destin and Santa Rosa Beach which is just to the east.

Eventually Bos plans to build 10,000 units. There are now 1,600 units and another 600 are presold or under construction.

In February, a second 18-hole golf course will open and eventually there will be 81 holes. The Sandestin tennis complex includes three grass courts and eventually will grow to 26 courts with seating for 7,000 at center court.

Bos hopes to begin holding tennis tournaments in 1986 and begin a golf tournament in the following two years.

Sandestin already has its own bank, also owned by Bos, and plans call for a shopping center, marina and more condominium units of all types, including another hotel, with prices ranging from $77,500 to $315,000.

The elements of success have always been present even though Sandestin fell into receivership in August 1974, said Bos, 38.

"Sandestin itself never failed," Bos said. "It never got a chance to."

A now-defunct Atlanta development firm bought 2,400 acres that became Sandestin between 1971 and 1973 when 186 low-rise condominum units and golf course were built.

But the firm's other interests had gone sour and a Chapter 11 petition was filed. While in receivership, Sandestin's growth stopped and undeveloped land was sold.

Only 435 acres remained when a Dutch investor purchased the resort in 1978 and hired Bos's real estate firm to manage the property. By 1981 Bos had purchased Sandestin and began reacquiring land sold during the bankruptcy.

For Bos it was the culmination of a dream dating to 1971 when he first saw the property.

"It had 41½ miles of shoreline facing due west" on a peninsula jutting into Choctawhatchee Bay, Bos said. "What sells real estate is sunsets over water. That's what sold California."

Sandestin also boasts glistening white sand beaches and emerald-green Gulf waters. It has a mild climate although too chilly in the winter for the Panhandle's traditional Southern visitors.

"It's just a matter of changing markets," said Bos, a native of East Aurora, N.Y. He said the Gulf at its coldest of about 65 degrees is still warmer than the Great Lakes ever get.

"A fellow in Birmingham (Ala.) isn't going to think much of this place in December and January, but in Oshkosh, Wis., it's great," Bos said.

However, success has taken more than sunsets, sand and balmy weather.

One key factor is a lack of competition. Sandestin is the only resort of its size and scope in the Panhandle.

Bos also credits a team of people — he has 2,500 employees — with the right combination of taste, aesthetics and fiscal responsibility.

Another success factor, Bos said, is that Sandestin has limited its market to families on the high end of the economic scale.

"We didn't try to be all things to all people," Bos said.

Bos claims Sandestin virtually sells itself with less than 15 percent of a $2 million promotional budget going for real estate advertising.

"Our real estate buyers are our guests," Bos said.

Chicago Begins New War On Black-On-Black Crime

By SHARON COHEN
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — A 17-year-old black youth is gunned down in broad daylight. It has happened dozens of times before and was rarely noticed. But this time it's different. The city is outraged.

His name was Ben Wilson. He was a high school basketball player, maybe the best in America. And he was killed near his South Side school after a scuffle during which police say two black youths tried to rob him.

Police called it a "random and senseless act." They have seen it all too often. This year, Wilson was the 669th murder victim in Chicago. Nearly 100 were in their teens.

And, as with Wilson, most victims and most killers have been black, though blacks account for only 40 percent of Chicago's population.

Last year, police records show that in 572 homicides listing offender and victim, 467 blacks killed 412 black people. In contrast, 41 whites killed 34 white people and there were 62 Hispanic homicide victims. The remaining were interracial or involved other minorities.

Nationally, the Justice Department says in about 75 percent of violent crimes, the victim and offender are believed to be the same race. Blacks are more than twice as likely to be robbed and more likely to be aggravated assault victims.

Black-on-black crime is a chilling fact of life in many of Chicago's black neighborhoods — as well as most other major cities across the nation.

Days after Wilson's death, there was more violence several miles away at the predominantly black Cabrini-Green public housing project, where former Mayor Jane Byrne lived briefly in 1981 to dramatize her determination to crack down on gangs.

The new outbreak involved gang shootings, snipings and more deaths. Amid rumors of a shootout, mothers pulled their children from school, fearful they would be caught in the crossfire.

Wilson's death two weeks ago and recent gang activities have stirred Chicago's black community, prompting many leaders to come together to try to find a way to stop the violence.

"We must erect a living memorial ... an end to the useless, senseless slaying of blacks by blacks," Alderman Anna Langford said at Wilson's funeral.

"It is clearly time to strike and eradicate this longstanding cancerous situation," Mayor Harold Washington said of the gang warfare.

On Monday, Washington announced his second program this year — aides said the first plan had "meager results" — to get tough with an estimated 10,000 gang members in Chicago. Police say many black gang members are not teen-agers — they are older and more sophistrevising an original budget plan to keep police ranks near 12,000. An earlier mayoral plan proposed letting the police force dwindle to 11,500.

Last week, some black leaders urged that the curfew age for teen-agers be raised, the curfew hour be lowered and major crimes be prosecuted within 45 days. Chicago Black United Communities, a local organization, announced it will pull together 1,000 black men to "serve as surrogate fathers and protect our young."

And a "Black On Black Love" campaign, which expanded across the nation after it was initiated nearly three years ago by a South Side businessman, has stepped up its efforts with clubs, arts programs and promotions.

"Let's replace some of this violence with self-respect," says Frances Williams, acting coordinator in Chicago.

Though approaches differ, most agree not enough has been done.

"The black leadership has not taken on this problem," said Lu Palmer, chairman of Chicago Black United Communities. "For many, many years we tried to close our eyes. We didn't want to admit it existed or we felt so frustrated ... it was allowed to drift. It's drifted into a real crisis."

Some criminologists speculate crime is higher in black communities as a "consequence of the frustration of being second-class citizens," said Alfred Blumstein, who teaches urban affairs at Carnegie-Mellon University. "There are those who argue it's part of the ghetto culture. I don't think anyone has a very powerful clue. We're all aware the differences are enormous."

Other criminologists point out blacks are victims of black crime because of proximity. "Because we still live in a predominantly residentially segregated urban community, the most frequent contacts we have are with members of the same social class," said Marvin Wolfgang, of the University of Pennsylvania. "We kill people we love. The same is true of aggravated assault."

But Palmer attributes black-on-black crime to a "psychological truth — oppressed people turn on themselves rather than on the oppressor."

However, Vernon Jarrett, a black columnist at the Chicago Sun-Times, says black leadership has made too many excuses, particularly for gangs.

"Instead of taking a stand against these strutting arrogant criminals, black leaders either adjusted to or tried to 'explain' black-on-black violence," he wrote. ... "No one could deny that poverty is a major contributor to crime, but no serious student of black culture can deny that blacks never before accepted poverty as an excuse for the poor to commit senseless, wanton violence."

Jarrett said that to assure light punishment, many young black criminals have lived by one rule: "Maim or kill only blacks, and let the word spread that you do not intend to harm whites."

But Palmer and other community leaders are optimistic that will change — even if it is a slow process.

"It's going to take years and years to solve this problem," he said. "But we're going to take the first step."

Prison Employees Develop Vineyard

CLANTON, Ala. (AP) — Almost hidden among the peach orchards for which Chilton County is famous, a tiny valley filled with another golden fruit is reaching for a place in the sun.

It's the native grape, or bronze scuppernong, a variety of the well-known muscadine. And it will be grown in a vineyard owned by two soon-to-retire career employees of the Alabama prison system.

Both Bill Gilmore and Ted Wilson plan to spend their sunset years in the wine and grape business.

"We have no high hopes of making a mint. Of course, all of us like to make money," said Gilmore, warden of the prison system's Red Eagle Honor Farm. "But we expect it to be a success financially."

The 55-year-old Gilmore plans to retire in February after 28 years in the system, and he hopes to expand the vineyard from its present five acres to about 20 acres in two or three years.

Wilson, his partner, is a guard lieutenant at Frank Lee Youth Center. He has a degree in chemistry from the University of Montevallo, has been a prison system employee about 12 years and says he will retire when the vineyard and a planned winery gets in full operation.

"The grapes will be a semi-avocation, but we hope it will be a moderate-sized, successful operation," said Gilmore.

"But I guess there's also sort of an ego trip in this. I'd like to make a (wine) product that is distinguishable as the best muscadine wine available anywhere," he said.

Wilson is furnishing the land and is constructing the trellises for the grapes to climb on.

He said he also is designing and building a grape picker, as well as a grape crusher from old stainless steel bank vault cylinders.

"What I'm looking forward to is the marketing. I still like the people business," said Gilmore.

Gilmore describes himself as "a back-slidden Baptist" whose religious teachings advise against alcoholic beverages of any kind, although, he said, he finds plenty of references to wine in the Bible.

Gilmore expects that many will insist on an alcohol-free grape product, and for those customers "we definitely want to go the (fresh) juice route, and we also will sell the fruit to little outlets as fresh fruits.

"We've been talking about this thing for about five years. Then one day, we said 'let's do it.' About three years ago we started putting out the vines."

Technical advice for the vineyard is coming from Mississippi State University, which has a wine industry department, Gilmore said.

Gilmore and Wilson have invested about $13,000 in the five acres of self-pollinating muscadines. Another $150,000 or so will be needed for the wine plant, which probably will be built in adjoining Autauga County, since Chilton County is a legally "dry" county forbidding the sale of alcoholic beverages, Wilson said.

Wilson said he is looking forward to the grape business since his job as a lieutenant in the prison system produces more stress than he wants in the years ahead.

Gilmore, who was the prison system's first statewide classification officer, said he again would seek a career in corrections — not the grape industry — if he had his life to live over.

CRYPTOQUIP 12-5

ORID AIDZAWNZ F SWNORN EYSR DRRZRZ I DRE ARIFR WD AYSR.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — THE TWO WORDS ART DEALERS WANT TO HEAR YOU SAYING LIBERALLY, "GOOD BUY!"

Today's Cryptoquip clue: A equals L

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Executive Accused Of Illegal Exports

NEW YORK (AP) — An electronics firm executive was charged in federal court with illegally exporting high technology equipment including an industrial laser to the Soviet Union and trying to send more to Romania.

Andre Buccolier, 55, of Ridgewood, Queens, pleaded innocent Monday before U.S. District Court Judge Mark A. Costantino in Brooklyn and was released in $250,000 bond.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert Stolz said Buccolier had bought a high-powered industrial laser and a computer-assisted design system that were shipped first to Milan, Italy and then diverted to the Soviet Union in 1982.

He said he had also tried to send a photorepeater system, used to manufacture semi-conductors, to Romania, but it was intercepted by Commerce Department agents before it got to Italy.

The three items were worth a total of about $1 million, Stolz said.

Buccolier was indicted Nov. 5 and seized Saturday at Kennedy Airport by U.S. Customs agents after he returned from Milan. The indictment was unsealed Monday.

If convicted, he could face up to five years in prison and both he and his firm, Buel Electronic Connectors, Inc., each could be fined $1.54 million. Buccolier is president of the Ridgewood firm.

Boat Attacked

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — A river boat carrying passengers and mail was attacked by guerrillas in southern Sudan, the Sudan News Agency reported.

The report quoted armed forces spokesman Babiker Abdul-Rahim as saying the rebels ambushed the boat Merreikh just after its departure from Bor, 650 miles south of Khartoum, and fired at it.

Writer Expelled

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The military government has expelled a Dutch freelance writer, the Dutch Embassy reports.

The writer, 25-year-old Gerrit Burgwal, was driven to Argentina. He had been arrested accused of inciting disorder during a two-day national protest against military rule.

Burgwal, who had lived in Santiago since October, was arrested along with two Roman Catholic priests, a deacon and a seminary student.

The priests and the deacon were released, and the seminary student was sent into internal exile.
