Lenders Say Farm Loans Questionable

Spokesmen for local lending institutions suggested today that tobacco farmers might find it hard to secure financing for the 1985 crop because of uncertainties in the federal tobacco program.

Secretary of Agriculture John Block has already announced a 3.7 percent cut in the quota for 1985, while the Flue-Cured Tobacco Stabilization Corp. has proposed an increase of 18 cents a pound in the assessment — from the present 7 cents to 25 cents — to finance the Stabilization program next year. And farmers may face a reduction in the support price for tobacco.

"My New Year's wish is that it will all go away ... get back to normalcy again," Gene McCreary, a spokesman for the Production Credit Association office, said.

"We can't really pin anything down until we find out what changes will be made in the program," McCreary said, adding "I hope they are not as drastic as the first news releases suggest."

If the changes are as drastic as many fear they will be, "it will be a very difficult decision to make loans," he said.

"About where we stand," McCreary said, "we're sitting here trying to see what's going on."

Wachovia Bank spokesman Austin Britt said that with the decrease in allotments and the proposed increase in assessments and drop in support price, "the small unit farmer will have a tough time in the market place growing tobacco at a profit."

But Britt suggested "the good farmer will survive. The poor manager will not."

"The name of the game is 'cash flow' for farm lending, not collateral. Those who've got cash flow," will be able to get loans, Britt said, while others, who may have collateral but don't have cash flow, won't be able to get operating loans.

"It's all got to hinge on profitability," Charles Harvey, a spokesman for Peoples Bank and Trust Co. in Rocky Mount, said. "Until we know what price supports will be, what the assessment will be and so on, it will be very difficult to structure loan agreements for tobacco. There is no way commitments can be made until we know more than we know."

In Smoke-Filled Shaft

Miners Bodies Found

ORANGEVILLE, Utah (AP) — Searchers today found at least nine bodies in a smoke-filled coal mine where 27 people have been trapped for more than a day, a spokesman for the mining company said.

Rescue efforts were continuing in an effort to find the others, said Bob Henrie, a spokesman for Emery Mining Co., operator of the Wilberg Mine. He said the nine bodies found were not in the "safe retreat" chamber where oxygen was stockpiled.

"The bodies were all in the same general proximity, which indicates they were moving out in a group," Henrie said.

Three search teams were sent into the smoldering coal mine after firefighting crews finally contained a blaze that kept 27 miners trapped deep under the ground since Wednesday night.

There had been no contact with the trapped miners since the fire broke out.

Henrie said the search party ventured 150 yards beyond the point where the bodies were found, in the upper third of the tunnel, but found no trace of the others.

The bodies were discovered 200 feet from the fire, and officials believe the nine were trying to follow the same route taken by Kenneth Blake, who escaped the mine soon after the blaze was discovered.

"They were found in an area that would indicate that they were trying to evacuate themselves from the mine rather than retreat to a safe area," Henrie said.

Henrie said the search crews were continuing into the tunnel, and were about one hour away from the safe chamber, where they hope to find the remaining 18 people.

The bodies were being taken to Castlevue Hospital near Price, where they would be turned over to the state medical examiner for autopsies, he said.

Royal Tradition Broken With Christening Of Harry

WINDSOR, England (AP) — Prince Harry, the 3-month-old son of Prince Charles and Princess Diana, was christened today at Windsor Castle in a break with century-old tradition.

Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie baptized the infant prince, third in line to the British throne, in Windsor Castle's 15th-century St. George's Chapel, the burial place of 10 British monarchs.

It was the first royal christening in the chapel since Queen Victoria's grandson, Prince Leopold of Battemberg, was baptized there in 1889. Since then, most royal christenings have been held in the Music Room of Buckingham Palace.

Reporters were banned from the ceremony, and the palace called it a "private family occasion."

Harry, who was born Sept. 15, was baptized Henry Charles Albert David. His brother, Prince William, born on June 21, 1982, is second in the line of succession, and their father is first.

Crowds hoping for a glimpse of Harry and his parents gathered through the morning outside the castle, the 800-year-old royal fortress overlooking the River Thames 22 miles west of London. But Charles, Diana and their two sons spent the night at the castle and did not make a public appearance.

Victor Chapman, a palace spokesman, refused to deny or confirm reports that Harry's grandmother, Queen Elizabeth II, allowed a television crew to film the event for a Christmas showing.

"That's just speculation," Chapman said, adding that still photographs of the christening would be released on Dec. 27.

Gossip columnist Nigel Dempster reported in the London Daily Mail that the queen had secretly invited television personnel to the ceremony and planned to show scenes from the christening during her annual televised Christmas Day message to Britain and the Commonwealth on Dec. 25.

The British domestic news agency Press Association also said the queen was believed to be planning to show scenes from the ceremony in her Christmas Day message.

The Windsor Castle chapel was begun by King Edward IV in 1475. Among the British monarchs buried there were Charles I and Henry VIII. It is where the queen enfeoffs knights to the Order of the Garter, most prestigious of England's heraldic orders.

The godparents chosen by Charles and Diana were Bryan Organ, whose informal portrait of the princess broke with royal tradition; Carolyn Bartholomew, one of Diana's closest friends; Charles' younger brother, Prince Andrew; Lady Sarah Armstrong-Jones, daughter of Charles' divorced aunt, Princess Margaret, and family friends Lady Vestey and Gerald Ward.

The christening marks the start of the royal family's annual Christmas break at Windsor Castle.

Modern royal christenings are quiet affairs compared with some past celebrations. An account of one, the christening of another Prince Harry, son of King James VI of Scotland at Stirling Castle in 1594, was sent to Charles by the Stirling District Council as a gift.

father said this is the first year Brent has been old enough to enjoy the festivities. Brent is 19 months old. (Reflector Photo by Sue Hinson)

Soviet Defense Minister Dies; Gorbachev Returning Home

MOSCOW (UPI) — Defense Minister Dmitri Ustinov, who built up the Soviet armed forces in the last eight years, has died, it was officially announced today.

"We have had a tragic loss. The minister of defense, Dmitri Ustinov," said the Kremlin's second in command, Mikhail Gorbachev in Edinburgh, Scotland, before cutting short a visit to Britain to fly home to Moscow.

Speaking at a hastily convened news conference, a somber-looking Gorbachev said his presence as a leading member of the ruling Politburo was now required back in Moscow.

Earlier, a world chess championship being held in the building where high ranking Soviet officials traditionally lie in state was suddenly suspended, fueling speculation that it was being prepared for Ustinov's funeral.

Ustinov, 76-year-old Politburo member, had not been seen in public since Sept. 27 and was reported to have suffered a stroke.

Gorbachev, considered the heir apparent to Soviet President Konstantin Chernenko, was scheduled to leave Edinburgh Airport and fly direct to Moscow on his Aeroflot Tu-154 aircraft after a news conference.

Ustinov missed the traditional military parade in Red Square on Nov. 7 and the recent session of the Supreme Soviet, or parliament.

Gorbachev's announcement was the first official word the veteran Soviet military leader had died. It was heralded by the decision of Gorbachev and his delegation to fly home more than 24 hours earlier than scheduled.

Since the death of Brezhnev in November 1982, Ustinov had emerged as a political kingmaker, using his position as chief of the defense establishment and a senior Politburo member to help thrust both the late Andropov and current leader Konstantin Chernenko into the Kremlin's highest position.

Along with Chernenko and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, Ustinov was considered by Western diplomats to be one of the three men who formulated the Soviet Union's foreign and domestic policy since Andropov's death in February 1984.

Ustinov was one of the chief architects of the 1983 Soviet walkout from the Geneva talks on limiting nuclear weapons, saying at the time that deployment of U.S. missiles in Western Europe "upset the strategic military parity existing between the United States and the U.S.S.R."

Also, as the Soviet Union's top soldier, he was ultimately responsible for the invasion of Afghanistan in December 1979 — a military action that has become a prolonged quagmire — and the shooting down of a South Korean airliner in 1983, killing 269 people.

Ustinov was named defense minister in 1976 following the death of Marshal Andrei A. Grechko, capping Ustinov's 40 years of work in the defense industry.

Under the direction of Ustinov — a tough, driving and efficient manager — the Soviet Union has built the world's largest stock of missiles, the biggest tank force, the largest fleet of submarines and a massive navy.

U.S. 264 Contracts

The State Board of Transportation has approved contracts for widening a portion of U.S. 264 between Greenville and Washington.

Under the $3.62 million contract, 3.6 miles of U.S. 264 — between Secondary Road 1565 (River Road, between Grimesland and U.S. 264) in Pitt County and SR 1427 (Dixon Boulevard) west of Washington — will be widened to a four-lane divided highway with a grass median.

Construction on the project is set to begin in January and is scheduled for completion in July 1986.

The transportation board also approved construction of a bypass in Washington, which will link U.S. 264 and U.S. 17.

Construction of the .9-mile bypass — five lanes with curbs and gutters on new location — will cost $1.01 million and is scheduled to begin in January.

Two People Hurt As Cars Collide

Greenville police reported two people were injured and an estimated $10,300 damage resulted from four traffic collisions investigated Thursday afternoon.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 3:32 p.m. collision on Greenville Boulevard, 500 feet east of the Memorial Drive intersection, involving cars driven by William Scott Kirkland of Aulander and Shelley Pearl Bryant of 2705 Edwards St.

Police, who charged Ms. Bryant with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, set damage at $2,000 to the Kirkland car and $1,000 to the Bryant auto.

Damon Christopher Lapas of Kinston was charged with following to close following investigation of a 3:14 p.m. collision on Greenville Boulevard, 500 feet west of the Bismark Street intersection.

Damage to the Lapas car was set at $2,500, while damage to the second vehicle involved, a car driven by Simon Smith of Route 1, Winterville, was set at $300.

Investigators reported Norma Jean Cherry of Route 2, Williamston, and Robert Lee Moore of Route 1, Stokes, were injured when cars they were driving collided about 3:12 p.m. on Memorial Drive, 387 feet south of the Dexter Drive intersection.

Officers, who charged Ms. Cherry with failing to reduce her speed enough to avoid an accident and driving without a license, set damage at $1,500 to the Cherry car and $1,000 to the Moore vehicle.

Vehicles driven by Evelyn Edwards Roberts of Wilson, and Gloria Annette Mazingo of Farmville, collided about 4 p.m. on Greenville Boulevard, 175 feet west of the Laughinghouse Drive intersection, causing $500 damage to the Roberts car and $1,500 damage to the Mazingo vehicle.

Ms. Mazingo was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of the mishap.

Crosstown Chase

Linwood Earl Williams, 20, of Route 1, Fountain, was arrested by Greenville police early this morning following a car and foot chase by Greenville police.

Officer B.M. Highland said the chase started about 1:30 a.m. on Albemarle Avenue, after a radar unit indicated Williams' car was speeding. It continued west on Fifth Street and along Bancroft Avenue, Farmville Boulevard, North, West and South Village Drives, then along Memorial Drive back to Fifth Street.

Highland said the vehicle being pursued hit a curb on Fifth Street and stopped against a fence, where the driver left the car and ran from the scene on foot. Several officers joined the foot-chase and Williams was taken into custody in the yard of 410 Ford St., Highville reported.

Williams was charged with speeding 75 mph in a 45 mph zone, driving while impaired, driving while his license was revoked, failing to stop for a stop sign, hit and run driving, careless and reckless driving, failing to stop for a blue light and siren and speeding to elude arrest.

Officer B.W. Lewis said Williams was also charged with damage to personal property — a fence at 410 Ford St.

Handicapped Inmates Have Special Needs

By SUSAN CHICOINE
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Meeting the needs of the physically handicapped in Ohio prisons presents special non-security problems for corrections officers because there are so few of them.

Of the 18,000 men and women in state correctional facilities, about 20 are paraplegics and a few more are amputees, according to Lou Ann Smith, nursing director of the Limited Duty Unit at the Orient Correctional Institution, just outside Columbus.

"In a minimum- or maximum-security setting, the handicapped prisoner tends to get a lot of assistance from the well inmates, who seem to have a little sympathy for them and their problems. You don't get a lot of hostility from what I have observed," she said.

One problem, she said, is that paraplegics must be taught to be self-sufficient as possible. Another is that some prisons aren't equipped to accommodate the handicapped. "The community is much more in tune to their needs," she said.

Only a few paraplegics are housed in regular inmate facilities, she said.

At the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility, the state's maximum security prison near Lucasville, two paraplegics live in the infirmary because both need frequent medical care for circulatory problems, said Bonnie Hubbard, state corrections medical coordinator.

At the 150-bed Limited Duty Unit, Ms. Smith said, "We are trying to teach people with chronic illnesses and problems how to get through their daily activities in a prison setting in a comfortable way." The unit's shift from medical care to teaching self-sufficiency to handicapped inmates began about two years ago, she said.

Its medical staff includes a physical therapist who visits once a week and supervises a full-time physical therapy aide, a social worker and an activities therapist.

Beyond equipping the handicapped inmate with skills for living in a cell, "we'd like it not to be a shock to them when they are paroled," she said.

About half of these inmates require constant medical attention, she said. That includes paraplegic, cardiac, hypertension and respiratory patients, she said.

Ms. Smith said a pilot project was planned in which some handicapped inmates would be placed in minimum- or medium-security institutions, which would assess their adjustment and their needs from the facility, she said.

Man's Holiday Plans Make Widow Feel Out In The Cold

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow who has been going with a man for nearly a year. He's been divorced for seven years. He still delivers the alimony check to his "ex" every week and spends a few hours visiting with her. He says he has a right to see his children, who are grown but still living at home. He also spends some weekends making repairs on the house.

I say his children could meet him somewhere else, and all those adults should be able to take care of the house without his help. Also, I think he should mail the checks to his ex.

My friend announced that he always spends Christmas Eve with his children (at his ex's house, of course) and Christmas Day with his "lady." If he asked me, I would have preferred that he spend Christmas Day with his children and Christmas Eve with me, but he didn't ask me.

When my husband was living, there was no problem, but this Christmas Eve I will be all alone.

Am I wrong to be hurt, and to wonder what my status would be if and when I should decide to marry this man?

SECOND BEST

DEAR SECOND: Are you wrong to feel hurt? Feelings are neither right nor wrong—they're honest reactions. Do I blame you for feeling hurt? No. And as for your status should you marry this man, you answered your own question in your signature.

DEAR ABBY: In your pre-Thanksgiving column you say: "Holiday time can be very depressing for people who are alone, so if you know someone who might be alone and lonely, give him or her the best gift of all: an invitation to spend the holidays with you and your family. Loneliness is the ultimate poverty." C'mon Abby. I can't imagine anything less stimulating than being

JAY ROSENWEIG,
LEXINGTON, KY.

DEAR JAY: It's your privilege to stay home with your dog if you'd rather, but isn't there some satisfaction in knowing at least you had a choice?

DEAR ABBY: We, like so many other couples, have a dog that we've treated as if she were our first child. For the last two years "Mimi" has been given only the best treatment, and all our attention.

We are now expecting our first "real" child, and we are concerned about Mimi. We know many people who have neglected their dogs after their baby is born. We understand that infants take up a great deal of time and our lives will change drastically.

What suggestions can you offer to prepare Mimi for the stiff competition awaiting her? We're really worried that she will be crushed.

NO BONES ABOUT IT

DEAR NO BONES: Handle it exactly the way parents handle bringing a little brother or sister home when there's a firstborn in the house.

Don't ignore "No. 1." Let him/her/it share in the joy and excitement of the new family member. Gradually No. 1 will become accustomed to the new arrival and feel less threatened. But don't turn your back on No. 1 until you're sure No. 2 can defend him/her/itself.

DEAR ABBY: My stomach makes a terrible growling noise whenever I kiss my girlfriend. She tells me it's all in my head, but my stomach tells me to write to you.

What do you say?

DEAR NOISEMAKER: Listen to your stomach. Calm down, and never kiss on an empty stomach. You're either hungry or nervous. Or both.

WALNUT CRESCENTS

- Two 1-quarter pound sticks butter, each cut in 8 equal pats
- 1/2 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
- 1 large egg yolk
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 1/2 cups finely chopped toasted walnuts

Beat together until blended butter, sugar, egg yolk, salt and vanilla. With a wooden spoon, gradually stir in flour, then walnuts. Cover and refrigerate. Using a pastrycloth and stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out one-quarter of the dough at a time about 1/4-inch thick. (Keep dough you are not rolling refrigerated.) Cut out cookies with a crescent-shape cookie cutter (3 inches long and 1 1/4 inches wide in center) flouring it if necessary. Place cookies about 1 inch apart on ungreased cookie sheets. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until lightly browned — about 10 minutes. Remove with a wide spatula to wire racks; cool completely; roll in extra confectioners' sugar. Store in airtight container. Makes about 3 dozen.

Charade

Controversy over secrecy violations on the upcoming launch of a spy satellite have the Pentagon and the nation's press in a tizzy ... or, so it seems. We think the Department of Defense is on thin ice.

True, the project was given a "secret" label, but the press was asked to withhold telling the story long after details were known to the news-gatherers. No espionage was required by reporters, the data was supplied from government sources who knew about the project and were willing (maybe even eager) to talk about it.

The uproar erupted in the same week a defense plant worker was about to "sell" billions of dollars worth of "stealth" bomber secrets to presumed Soviet agents.

It was the fifth major espionage case announced this year. Others have involved a former Army intelligence operative, a civil intelligence analyst for the Navy, an FBI agent charged with spying for a foreign government and an East German woman.

Bans on shipment of American-made high tech equipment and parts to certain countries are regularly violated on a large scale; congressmen can't keep their secrets (there's always "insiders" who want to tell all); White House secrets become national gossip with little time lost. Confidentiality and secrecy in government sometimes appear almost a joke.

We're sure in our own minds that enemy agents in this country have the softest job in the world. In the case of the space shuttle's military payload planned in January, if mere reporters could learn so many of the details (some were withheld by the news media) it follows that unfriendly intelligence agents could uncover much, much more.

Nor do we have many doubts that those agents may well know more about the communications spy satellite launch than Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

If anyone in government really feels the need for greater secrecy in sensitive fields they will have to set their own house in order. As it stands, Weinberger and friends are engaging in a charade.

Charitable

Two foundations are providing a remarkable Christmas gift that will last well beyond Christmas for the homeless street people of 18 U.S. cities.

Together they are giving $25 million for health care of street people. They refuse to think of those unfortunates as "simply winos or bag ladies".

Not many organizations can afford that kind of charitable gesture, but the Pew Memorial Trust and the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation exemplify something we've broached a number of times over the years about small private groups (clubs, churches, neighborhoods and even some individual families) giving attention to needs of people undergoing hardship in their own community.

Towns and small cities know little about "street people," only as they exist in large cities to which it seems they gravitate. They might be looked upon as the poorest of the poor.

Surely the foundations' gesture to perhaps 300,000 people in dire need is an example other such richly endowed organizations might well consider.

Mulling Over A Celebration

—Paul O'Connor—

RALEIGH — During the 1984 session of the General Assembly, the idea of celebrating the bicentennial of the American Constitution got a hearty endorsement — an endorsement to the tune of a $300,000 appropriation. Today, the bicentennial seems almost forgotten and the money hasn't even been touched.

A bill sponsored by Sen. Ken Royall, D-Durham, the chamber's most powerful member, created a special bicentennial commission with that hefty budget. The bill slid through the Senate with ease but got caught up in end-of-the-session inter-house politicking as adjournment neared. House members knew that the bill had originated in the offices of Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green and the rumor was that the commission was being created so Green could be hired to act as its director.

The bill was finally incorporated into a larger spending bill but only after restrictions were put on the commission. It could not go into operation until Dec. 1 and the hiring of staff was forbidden until the 1985 session convened. Dec. 1 has come and gone. The commission's 21 members have not been appointed.

House Speaker Liston Ramsey said in a recent interview that he doesn't have much interest in a big state-funded bicentennial celebration. (The bicentennial is slated for Sept. 17, 1987, and will commemorate the 200th birthday of the Constitution which was written after independence was won from England and after the country's first governing document, the Articles of Confederation, had proved inadequate.)

Ramsey said that, first of all, "no one seems much interested in the job." He said the director's job was widely believed to have been created for Green but that Green has now said he doesn't want the job.

But someone does want the job. Vernon Morton of Wilson, Green's press aide and the man who drafted the bill, says he'd like it. Morton, who loses his job on Jan. 5 when Green goes out of office, says he's been instrumental in getting such commissions going in a number of other states.

Ramsey, told of Morton's interest, said, "Well, I don't believe in creating jobs when you have people with little to do" already on the payroll. He was speaking of the lieutenant governor's office and his plan for the commission's staff. "I think it ought to be under the lieutenant governor's office," he said. "They can do it in the interim (between sessions) and it wouldn't cost nearly as much money."

But Bob Jordan, the lieutenant governor-elect, hasn't given one whip of thought to the bicentennial, said Brenda Summers, his press secretary. She could only chuckle at Ramsey's assertion that Jordan's staff had "little to do."

Morton, who has been lobbying both for the job and to get the commission going, said he was disappointed in Ramsey's attitude. "The other 12 states are enacting legislation. If he wants to be the outsider, he can be the outsider," Morton said.

Morton says he first got interested in the commission when the N.C. Veterans' Council called Green's office in 1984. Morton was answering the phones that day and agreed to listen to their ideas about a constitutional celebration. Since that time, he's adopted it as his own cause.

"We are a nation of constitutional illiterates," Morton said. "We should get under way a very serious educational program which would acquaint the people with the meaning of the Constitution."

Ramsey may agree. He just doesn't want to spend $300,000 a year in the process.

Taking A Firm Stance

"Send Secretary of Defense Weinberger in," President Reagan told his appointment secretary.

Two hefty Marines carried Weinberger horizontally into the Oval Office.

"Why can't he walk?" the president asked his aide.

"He heard you wanted to talk to him about cutting his budget, so last week he put his feet in cement."

The Marines placed Weinberger upright in front of the president's desk.

"Would you care to sit down, Cap?" the president asked.

Weinberger said, "I'll stand. It's more comfortable."

"Have you figured out yet where you can cut the defense budget?"

"It's impossible. We're down to a bare bones $330 billion. There isn't an ounce of fat in it."

"We're not asking you to cut anything, Cap. How about a slowdown in weapons procurement until we get our fiscal house in order?"

"I can't do it. Everything in the pipeline is absolutely necessary to guarantee the defense of this country."

"What about canceling a few of the multi-billion dollar weapons systems that don't work?" the president suggested. "We could make some savings there."

"We need the weapons that don't work as bargaining chips for the arms talks, so we don't have to give up our weapons that do work. I won't stop building lemons until we hammer out a deal in Geneva."

"I see your point," the president said. "Perhaps we could reexamine our defense contracts. Maybe we're paying too much for what we're getting."

"We've reduced the cost of an Air Force coffeepot from $7,900 to $4,500. I can't buy one for any less without endangering the nation's drip-grind capability."

"Cap, I don't want to drop the defense budget any more than you do. But Congress won't give us our cuts in human services if we don't come up with some slashes in Pentagon spending. Just throw $10 billion into the deficit pot to show good faith. You'll never miss it, and then we can justify doing away with all the school lunch programs."

"Mr. President, it's true I could possibly find $10 billion stuck away somewhere that I don't need. But if I agree to give it back I'd be setting a precedent. I don't want Congress coming to me every time they're looking for a few bucks to save a day-care program."

"I'm aware you're an easy target for the bleeding hearts, Cap. But you have to understand that if you don't come up with ways of trimming the defense budget, Congress will. We could lose the MX missile, the B-1, and the Star Wars program. Tell me this. If you won't go for cuts, will you go for a freeze?"

"A freeze of what?"

"Will you stay with what you've got now for a year?"

"I can't do that, Mr. President. Do you know what hammers and screwdrivers cost these days? The most I can agree to is an 11 percent increase over last year, and I'm doing this without checking with the Joint Chiefs of Staff."

"How can I okay an increase for you, when I'm asking everyone else in the country to take dramatic cuts?" the president said.

"That's your problem. My job is to see that this country is protected, and I can't do it if your budget people keep nickel and diming me to death."

"All right," the president said. "I'll have to make some deeper domestic cuts."

The president pushed a button and the two U.S. Marine guards came in and picked up Weinberger to carry him out. "I'd see you to the door, Cap, but I've got my feet in cement on raising taxes, so I can't move any better than you can."

OPEC Members Find Exclusivity Fleeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pity the 13 members of the exclusive club known as the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Eleven winters ago they had Americans shivering in their gas-guzzlers, trying to choose between a ride to Grandma's for the holidays and a trip to the supermarket for groceries.

Gasoline prices were climbing and lines at the service stations — those that could be found open — were growing.

It seems so long ago.

The club isn't all that exclusive anymore. Countries like Mexico, Britain and Norway don't have to be members in order to carve out a profitable share of the oil market. And the all-for-one and one-for-all spirit within the cartel that helped quintuple prices is running out.

Higher taxes have partly masked what otherwise would be a 30 percent drop in American pump prices since 1981. As it is, prices have been dropping steadily and soon may dip below $1 a gallon.

It's a surplus or buyer's market. The price of a barrel of oil is sliding as OPEC members undercut each other with premiums and by offering better-grade to their customers. Some are exceeding the production ceilings set seven weeks ago.

The aim was to maintain the benchmark price of $29 a barrel through quotas for each OPEC member. Overall production was supposed to be cut to 16 million barrels a day from 17.5 million barrels.

It hasn't worked.

John H. Lichtblau, of the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation in New York, says OPEC probably is exceeding its quota by 500,000 to 600,000 barrels a day.

Nigeria is partly responsible, also possibly Libya. And Iran is believed to be offering substantial discounts to its customers.

"I don't know what they'll do," Lichtblau said about the Geneva meeting. "They'll probably exhort each other to maintain discipline and warn the consumer countries that inventories are being drawn down too rapidly and that that can create a shortage later."

Milton Copulos, a senior policy analyst at the Heritage Foundation in Washington, said Iran is offering a $3-a-barrel discount, while Saudi Arabia has been mixing in higher grade crude, thereby effectively providing a $1 to $2 discount.

With a surplus also in the spot market, Copulos said, "the OPEC meeting is setting up for a disaster. There is no way they can agree on a price. Iran and some of the others will absolutely insist that they do. There will be enormous pressure on the Saudis and the others to cut production. They can't afford to."

Copulos said oil prices are down to $25 to $26 a barrel. "Nobody is paying $29 except for a few people who belong in a mental institution," he said.

Edward H. Murphy, director of statistics at the American Petroleum Institute, said Nigeria may be 300,000 barrels a day over its quota, and OPEC up to 1.3 million barrels.

"The price next year is going to be governed by OPEC's willingness and ability to maintain production substantially below their capability to produce," he said. "I don't know whether they can."

Murphy thinks the United States should produce as much oil as it can, and not make OPEC's job easier.

About one-third of the oil consumed here is imported. Of those imports, about 38 percent comes from the OPEC countries.

Domestic production is up about 1 percent since 1983, but imports have risen about 9 percent. "Our concern is to make sure we produce as much as we can so every blip in OPEC doesn't throw us off," Murphy said.

The State Department is watching developments with subdued optimism.

"Supply and demand, rather than a group, is setting the price of oil," said an official who keeps tabs on energy problems and spoke only on condition he not be identified.

"We believe today's official prices for oil are high, but by saying that we don't intend to talk the price down. The market does it."

"The market has a greater influence on prices than it has since 1973."

—Elisha Douglass

Strength For Today

Julian, the Apostate, has been one of the foremost villains in the history of the Christian church. He was a Roman emperor who first embraced Christianity and later denounced it.

The story is told that after he had given up his Christian faith, Julian one day encountered an old man whom he had known in his youth. The old man was a devout Christian. "By the way," said Julian cheerfully, "what has become of that carpenter of Nazareth?" And the old man replied, "The carpenter of Nazareth is very busy these days making a coffin for you and the Roman Empire."

Whether it was the shock of this rebuff no one knows, but within six months Julian plunged a sword into his own heart.

The Carpenter of Nazareth, through his teachings, his church, and his divine enterprises is still making coffins, and the vain and foolish of this world should never cease to remember it.

Schroeder Gets Flood Of Gifts

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — William Schroeder is being inundated with gifts from well-wishers across the country as he recuperates from strokes he suffered last week and his artificial heart implant nearly a month ago.

Presents and get-well messages have been arriving "in two bags full every day," Polly Brown, clinical director of Humana Heart Institute International, said Thursday.

"You've never seen so many cards and packages in your life," she said.

Schroeder, 52, showed further signs of recovery Thursday from the series of small strokes that set back his overall recuperation the week before.

He fed and shaved himself for the first time since the strokes and clowned with hospital staff who delivered an artificial tree to his room.

Earlier this week, doctors expressed concern that Schroeder had lost some his zest for living.

Ms. Brown said most of the Christmas gifts arriving at the hospital have been simple offerings, such as T-shirts, plants, cookies and blankets.

Among the more unusual gifts was a mattress the donor said simulates the rolling action of a water bed, Ms. Brown said.

Most of the presents and cards are stored in the hospital room where Schroeder's wife, Margaret, has been staying, but the load has spilled over into Ms. Brown's office, she said.

A huge bag containing more than 400 letters, cards and gifts arrived from Jasper, Ind., the Schroeders' hometown.

The daily newspaper, The Herald, sent along a special edition of its Thursday issue. The newspaper's front page was dominated by a photograph of Schroeder and the greeting: "Merry Christmas, Bill, To You and To Your Family."

Mrs. Schroeder and the couple's daughter, Cheryl, thumbed through the newspaper with him. It was signed by 6,329 Jasper-area residents.

Another well-wisher flew from New Jersey to personally deliver a watch at the hospital, Ms. Brown said. The man said he was a former heart patient and wanted to give Schroeder encouragement, she said.

Ms. Brown said she did not have permission to release the man's name.

Irvine said Schroeder "has the watch, enjoys it and can tell time from it" when asked.

Schroeder remained in serious condition but was making a "slow, steady recovery" from the strokes and the Nov. 25 heart implant, said Robert Irvine, spokesman for the Humana Inc. hospital group.

"His appetite is good and his recovery from the stroke has reached the point where he is able to feed himself without assistance once again," Irvine said.

"He has shaved himself for the first time (since the strokes) today — electric razor, able to do it with the right hand as well as the left, so his coordination has improved."

All Schroeder's vital signs were normal, but he remained under close observation in the coronary-care unit of Humana Hospital Audubon, which houses the heart institute.

New Movie Studio Set

YANCEYVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Canadian filmmaker Zale Magder will build a multimillion dollar motion picture studio in Caswell County, the third major movie studio in North Carolina, Gov. Jim Hunt said today.

"Its establishment dramatically illustrates North Carolina's rising reputation among the international filmmaking community," said Hunt, who appeared at a news conference with Magder.

Magder established his company, now known as Rose-Magwood Productions, six years ago. It has facilities in Canada, London, New York, Chicago and Los Angeles.

Magder has won Emmy Awards for his work on pictures for Avco Embassy, Talent Associated, Time Life and Rankin-Bass, Hunt said.

In 1977, Magder established Motion Picture Vico Corp. in Toronto. "As a high-technology, computerized film and video post-production company, the firm has built an international reputation as one of the most advanced companies of its type in the world," said Hunt.

Magder Studios in Toronto, a 70,000-square-foot complex, is the largest motion picture studio in Canada.

Among the films produced there have been "Phobia," "Kidnapping of the President," "Tribute," "The Family Man," and "Never Trust an Honest Thief." Actors who have starred in the films include William Shatner, Hal Holbrook, Jack Lemmon, Lee Remick, Ed Asner, Orson Wells and Michael Murphy.

Since 1980, more than 40 films have been made in North Carolina, along with "hundreds of national and international commercials and segments of national network and cable programs," said Hunt.

VFW Balking At Proposal To Check Financial Status Of Ailing Veterans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Veterans of Foreign Wars is vowing to do battle against a Reagan administration proposal to check the financial eligibility of veterans under age 65 seeking free medical care.

"I do not believe they're going to be able to carry it out by issuing regulations," Cooper T. Holt, executive director of the Washington office of the VFW, said Thursday. "They've got a long fight ahead of them. If they're going to cut veterans' programs, Reagan better be prepared to cut everybody."

The 2 million-member VFW endorsed President Reagan's reelection campaign.

John Scholzen, a Veterans Administration spokesman, said the agency is drafting new regulations that would establish a financial needs test for VA-financed health care for veterans under 65. "The levels of income that would be set are still under consideration," he said.

Scholzen said a 1980 law requires the VA to establish a means test for veterans under 65. But Holt maintained that "Congress just gave permission to look into it and come back with statistics."

Mack Fleming, chief counsel to the House Veterans Affairs Committee, said the 1980 legislation "gave the VA authority to establish a means test if the VA wanted to."

But Fleming said "it was never intended that the regulations be rigid. I hope the VA will write in some flexibility so determinations can be made on a case-by-case basis."

"This organization is not going to put up with it," Holt said. "If we agree to anything, it will be done after Congress debates it."

Under present regulations, veterans under 65 are required to sign a statement saying they are unable to pay for the medical care they seek. The government generally accepts this statement without investigating the applicant's means.

With the new regulations, Scholzen said, "you'd have the authority to go past the signature far enough to ascertain if the person doesn't have means beyond whatever level is set."

The test would not apply to service-connected disabilities or to veterans eligible for Medicaid, the government health insurance program for the poor, or to people receiving need-based veterans' pensions, Scholzen said.

A veterans hospital would not be prevented from providing emergency care under the regulations, he said. If investigation revealed the veteran who received emergency care had the means to pay for it, the VA would try to recoup the cost, he said.

Rep. David E. Bonior, D-Mich., founding chairman of Vietnam Veterans in Congress, "will almost certainly oppose the regulations," said his administrative aide, Steve Champlin.

"Most patients in the VA hospital system are already poor or have service-connected disabilities," Champlin said. "It's very difficult to understand the purpose of a means test in terms of weeding out massive cases of waste, fraud and abuse."

Farm Values Plunge

AMES, Iowa (AP) — As hundreds of farmers signed up for food stamps to protest the state of agriculture, a farm economist reported an "unmitigated disaster" — the largest one-year drop in farmland prices since the Great Depression.

Farmers, the economist and a banker who specializes in agriculture loans all said Thursday the 20 percent drop in land prices, from $1,691 per acre last year to $1,357 this year, was inevitable given declines in commodity prices.

"Everything else is bad. Grain prices are down and livestock prices are up and down like a yo-yo," said Wilbert Brandau, a Rudd farmer. "That's the way the price of land goes if people can't afford to buy."

According to an Iowa State University survey of 570 farm real estate brokers, the price of an acre of Iowa farmland dropped 20 percent from 1983, said economist Bob Jolly. It was the largest one-year drop since the Depression and the third consecutive yearly decline, reducing prices 37 percent from the 1981 peak of $2,147, Jolly said.

Caesarean Birth Rate On Increase

CHICAGO (AP) — The rate of birth by Caesarean section continues to spiral in the United States despite efforts to limit the procedure, which increases the risk of maternal death by up to four times that of normal birth, according to a study published today.

Dr. Norbert Gleicher, who reported the results of a study in the Journal of the American Medical Association, said women who undergo the operation face increased and sometimes needless health risks.

"Number one, there's a certain danger to a Caesarean. Any surgery has a potential risk," he said. "And the second issue we have to look at is cost containment. A C-section is definitely more expensive than a vaginal birth."

In a Caesarean section, a baby is delivered by cutting through the mother's abdominal and uterine walls.

Although Caesarean sections are no more dangerous than vaginal deliveries at sophisticated hospitals, Gleicher said, the risk of maternal death generally was two to four times greater nationwide in the surgical procedure.

His report says an increase of one percentage point in the rate of birth by Caesarean section adds $54 million to the cost of hospital care.

Gleicher, chairman of the department of obstetrics and gynecology at Mount Sinai Hospital Medical Center in Chicago and a professor at Rush Medical College, said in an interview that he was concerned about the high rate of Caesarean deliveries "because anything unnecessary in medicine is inherently bad."

He said recommendations by a national conference in 1980 aimed at curbing the rising rate of birth by Caesarean section have had little short-term impact.

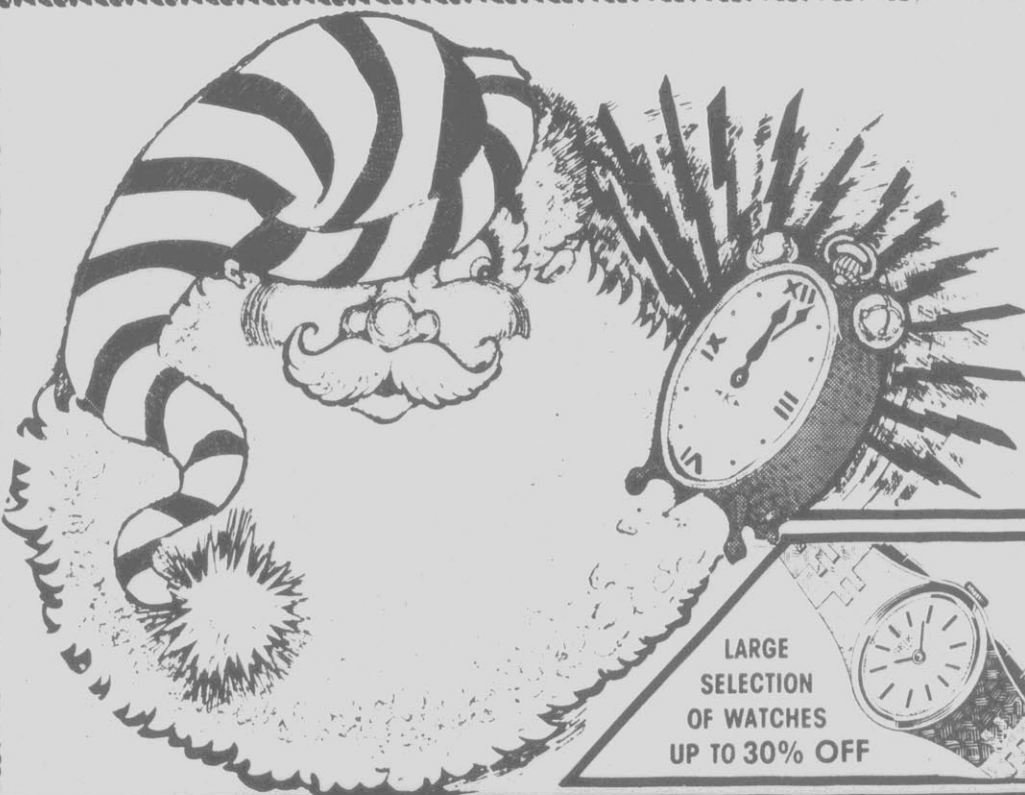

National figures indicated that Caesarean section rates tripled between 1968 and 1977, reaching 15.2 percent in 1978. And by 1981, the year after the conference, the national rate had increased to 17.9 percent, he said in the article.

Gleicher said he obtained 1981 statistics on 18 localities — either states, large cities or counties — and 1982 statistics from 11 areas. When he conducted the survey a year ago, Gleicher said 1983 statistics were largely unavailable.

"I think the important thing to note is that not one of the localities where we could get statistics showed a decrease" in 1982 after release of the conference recommendations, he said.

"Little progress seems to have been made ... and Caesarean section rates have continued to increase, rather than decrease," Gleicher wrote.

The 1980 recommendations were the result of a conference sponsored by the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development. Among them were suggestions that hospitals establish peer review committees to monitor decisions on making Caesarean deliveries and that doctors consider normal vaginal births for women who have had previous Caesarean deliveries.

Storms Usher In Winter To Northern U.S.

By The Associated Press
Winter was ushered in today by a series of storms that spread snow and freezing rain from Oregon to Maine after lacing parts of Idaho with knee-deep accumulations and ripping Montana with winds gusting to 70 mph.

Freezing rain was falling early today from the middle Missouri valley into Illinois while snow continued to pile up in the central Rockies, the National Weather Service said.

Winter storm watches were posted for later today from eastern Pennsylvania into Maine. In Florida, forecasters kept an eye on Hurricane Lili, only the fourth December hurricane in more than a century.

By early today, 2 inches of new snow was on the ground at Pendleton, Ore., and an inch was reported at Kalispell, Mont. By 1 a.m. today, the latest series of storms had brought 20 inches of snow to Mullan, Idaho, and 10 inches to Spokane, Wash., the weather service said.

"Up to 8 inches of snow could fall today in the Colorado mountains," Paul Fike of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo., said early today. "Later today we'll have to keep an eye on the Northeast where winter storm watches are in effect into tonight from the Middle Atlantic states to Maine."

Fike said that freezing rain was falling early today in parts of Pennsylvania and New York while light snow dusted Maine.

Winter officially arrives today at 11:23 a.m. EST, but it got a jump on the West Coast.

Schools closed Thursday as snow blasted Portland, Ore., and the town of Burns recorded a record low for the date — 15 degrees below zero.

Southern California, meanwhile, dug out from more than a foot of snow blamed for 10 highway deaths since Wednesday.

Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., the desert facility where space shuttle missions have landed when weather was poor in Florida, was reopened Thursday after being shut down by the snow, which accumulated up to 16 inches in some places.

Fierce winds whistled through the Rockies on Thursday. Gusts to 70 mph rattled East Glacier Mountain between Kalispell and Cut Bank, Mont., the weather service said.

The Coast Guard on Thursday called off its search for an 11-year-old girl who was swept away a day earlier by the 10 mph current of an engorged creek at Marina del Rey, Calif., as she walked along a bike path.

County lifeguard Capt. Steve Saylor said county patrols continued along the creek banks and from the air, but "basically it's a needle in a haystack. To the best of our knowledge she is missing and presumed dead."

A skier missing since Wednesday walked up to rescuers searching for him on Thursday in mountains about 30 miles northeast of Los Angeles. Authorities said he probably saved his life by spending the night on Waterman Mountain in a snow bank, which kept him sufficiently warm.

In Florida, forecasters kept watch on Hurricane Lili, which was moving slowly southward in the mid-Atlantic. The hurricane posed a threat to shipping, but Gil Clark of the National Hurricane Center said it was extremely unlikely that Lili would threaten land.

Only three other December hurricanes have been reported since forecasters began keeping such records in 1871, he said. The Atlantic hurricane season normally ends in November.

Reports from ships in the area indicated that winds near the center of Lili were near 75 mph. Gale force winds — 39 mph to 54 mph — extended 100 miles in all directions from the hurricane's center.

Astronomers Say Cosmic Jet May Have Formed Thousands Of Stars

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Astronomers say they have discovered thousands of hot young stars created by a cosmic jet of high-energy matter, the first evidence such jets can help form whole new galaxies.

"Lots of little things had been known," said University of California astronomer Wil van Breugel, who led the team that spotted the jet, known as a radio jet because it emits radio waves.

"There had been some of this activity detected at a nearby galaxy, Centaurus A, where a few blue regions and star formations were found," van Breugel said Thursday. "But the exciting thing is that this can go on in such a massive scale. It can trigger a real burst of star formations. A whole galaxy can be formed."

Van Breugel said the discovery came as researchers studied Minkowski's Object, a strange luminous region of space that has baffled scientists since Rudolph Minkowski first observed it in 1958.

The researchers found the beginnings of a new galaxy made up of thousands of fat, blue stars, some of them 100 times bigger than the sun and expected to lead brief cosmic lives of a few million years.

Van Breugel said the stars apparently were formed when the jet slammed into clouds of interstellar gas, compressing the clouds until their hydrogen fuel ignited into the heavy young stars.

The research team was able to detect the jet using the Very Large Array, a network of radio telescopes operated by the National Radio Astronomy Observatory in New Mexico.

The large cluster of galaxies is 240 million light years from Earth, with a light year equal to about 6 trillion miles. The jet is 60,000 light years long and about one-third that in width.

Astronomers know little about radio jets, first recognized about 15 years ago. But van Breugel theorized they might be formed when gas or stars are sucked into so-called "black holes."

"This discovery really points out that you can expect to find more active regions of star formations," he said. "We can now expect to find more of these."

Car Bomb Hits School

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A car bomb exploded at a school in a Druse town in Lebanon's central mountains today. The Druse-controlled radio said at least 25 people were killed or wounded, including school children.

A short time after the bomb went off in Ras el-Matn, 20 miles east of Beirut, two shells crashed into the capital's Christian sector, injuring two civilians, a Christian-operated radio station reported.

"Several parked cars were burned near the school building which suffered massive damage," said the Druse-run Voice of the Mountain radio station. It appealed for urgent blood donations.

The broadcast said the bomb-laden car was an olive-green Mercedes that went off inside the school courtyard. It gave no further details.

The Voice of Lebanon radio station of the rightist Christian Phalange Party said tall pillars of flames and smoke could be seen above Ras el-Matn from the capital.

The same station said two artillery shells struck the residential neighborhood of Ashrafieh in Christian east Beirut five minutes after the Ras el-Matn car bombing.

The radio said some civilians were wounded in Ashrafieh and urged motorists and pedestrians in the capital's Christian sector to watch out for further shelling.

This was the third anti-Druse car bombing in three weeks. The first on Nov. 29 killed seven civilians and wounded 17 outside the central post office in Aley, Lebanon's largest Druse town. The second killed three pedestrians and wounded seven in front of the Druse community religious center in mostly Moslem west Beirut's Verdun neighborhood.

A spokesman for Druse leader Walid Jumblatt's Progressive Socialist Party accused the Lebanese army's secret service of engineering the two previous bombings.

Liberty Flame To Head Parade

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ninety-eight years after it first glowed over the waters of New York Harbor, the flame from the Statue of Liberty's torch arrived in Southern California, bound for the top of the lead float in the Tournament of Roses Parade.

The 7½-foot tall, 850-pound glass and metal frame structure, surrounded by a transparent Plexiglas case, was taken from a specially fitted air freighter at Los Angeles International Airport and loaded on to the back of a flatbed truck on Thursday.

During the drive to Fiesta Floats in Temple City, about 25 miles northeast of the airport, the flame was guarded by U.S. Park Service rangers and escorted by police.

The structure "arrived in good shape," said Jean Ash of the Ellis Island Foundation Inc.

The torch will be attached to Hilton Hotels' "Sweet Land Of Liberty" float, which will lead the Jan. 1 Pasadena parade, whose theme this year is "The Spirit Of America."

Don Anderson, president of Fiesta Floats, said his workers will "treat the torch with utmost care," using a specially built reinforced frame to hold the it in place on the float.

U.S. Will Discuss 'Star Wars'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is ready to put its "Star Wars" program on the negotiating table in seeking an agreement with the Soviet Union to reduce nuclear weapons, says a senior Reagan administration official.

While defending the controversial $26 billion research project as essential in filling a gap in U.S. defenses, the official said it could be part of a trade-off that reduces Soviet nuclear might.

"Our research program and our intentions for it have to be on the table and a matter for discussion and agreement and negotiation between us," the official told reporters at the White House Thursday. "And they surely will be."

Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister

Andrei A. Gromyko will explore possibilities of reopening arms control talks at a Jan. 7-8 meeting in Geneva, Switzerland. Negotiations on both medium-range and intercontinental nuclear weapons have been suspended for a year.

Shultz and Gromyko also have agreed to discuss space weapons and satellite killers.

"We hope to come away with an agreed plan for formal negotiations and dialogue in each of these areas," said the senior official, who discussed U.S. objectives only on condition he not be identified.

President Reagan's controversial Strategic Defense Initiative, known as "Star Wars" because it involves laser beams and futuristic technology, has provoked criticism that it could extend the nuclear arms race into space.

But the official said "the notion that a country is better off when it is unable to defend itself is a little bit surreal."

The program grows out of the conviction within the administration that the Soviets are ahead of the United States in missile defenses and that a U.S. anti-missile shield could reduce the risk of nuclear attack.

FOCUS

Taxing Our Patience

President Reagan's plan to modify taxes has been greeted both with praise and alarm. Throughout history, lawmakers have excelled at devising unusual taxes. In the 18th Century, Britains paid a window tax and Russians paid a beard tax. Indiana still has a tax on ice if it is used to cool alcoholic drinks, but not if it's used to cool water or watermelons. In New York, you do not pay tax on salted or buttered popcorn, just the caramel-coated variety.

DO YOU KNOW — In what year was the federal withholding tax begun?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — The Washington Monument is 555 feet tall.

Presidential Votes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan amassed a landslide re-election margin of almost 16.9 million votes over Walter F. Mondale — double his 1980 lead and the second widest gap in U.S. history, according to official results from all 50 states.

The certified tallies, as gathered by Associated Press reporters in each state capital, showed Reagan with 54,450,603 votes to his Democratic rival's 37,573,671 — a difference of 16,876,932.

Reagan's re-election margin in the popular vote column was exceeded only by Richard M. Nixon's 18-million vote win over George McGovern 12 years ago.

Reagan carried every state except Mondale's home of Minnesota — which he lost by only 3,761 votes out of more than 2 million cast — and the District of Columbia. He captured 525 electoral votes to Mondale's 13.

That is the most electoral votes ever won, but Reagan's 59 percent to 41 percent popular vote margin ranks behind somewhat larger landslides by Lyndon B. Johnson in 1964, Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1936, Nixon in 1972 and Warren G. Harding in 1920.

Reagan ousted President Jimmy Carter in 1980 by a 51-41 margin, winning 43.9 million votes to Carter's 35.5 million.

Ferraro's Story To Be Published

WASHINGTON (AP) — Without a word committed to paper, Geraldine Ferraro will receive what publishing sources say is about $1 million for telling it all in a book about her historic vice presidential bid.

"Many of the circumstances were extraordinary," said Esther Newberg, a literary agent for International Creative Management in New York, who negotiated the contract.

The New York Democratic congresswoman, who became the first woman to run for vice president on a major party ticket, described her book Thursday as one "of feelings and reactions to the campaign, as the first woman."

She said of her ghostwriter, former Newsweek staffer Linda Bird Francke: "I'm talking to Linda, and she's going to clean up the way I talk. She'll be doing a lot of editing."

Ms. Ferraro and Ms. Francke will work with tapes, many of them made in the early-morning hours of the 1984 campaign. "And she's doing what a good reporter would do," Ms. Ferraro said, "prod me with questions, make sure I'm telling it all."

Ms. Ferraro is regarded as a likely candidate for the Senate in 1986, and some associates say her political ambitions may temper her candor when she writes the book.

In an interview, Ms. Ferraro said she had inclinations toward writing and reporting when she entered college, but changed her mind when "my mother said, 'You're never going to make any money.'"

Bantam Books, Inc. of New York announced Thursday that it had acquired worldwide hardback and paperback rights to Ms. Ferraro's book, yet untitled, and also book club, serialization, foreign and translation rights.

The money she will receive is an advance, the amount an author gets regardless of how well the book sells.

Bantam said the book will be published next fall.

"It was incredibly exciting," Ms. Newberg said of the negotiations. "It will be a historic book." She refused to discuss financial arrangements between Bantam and Ms. Ferraro.

However, one source said published reports that Ms. Ferraro received over a million dollar contract were exaggerated and that "just under a million" was more correct. Another source said "around a million" would be an accurate description of the advance.

U.S. Physicist Designed Device Used By Soviet Spacecraft

CHICAGO (AP) — A University of Chicago physicist whose cosmic dust analyzer will be delivered to a rendezvous with Halley's Comet by a Soviet spacecraft says the effort proves that U.S.-Soviet cooperation is possible.

"One of the reasons the effort succeeded is because they came directly to the university," said Dr. John Simpson, whose device is believed to be the first U.S. experiment carried aboard a Soviet spacecraft.

"I was surprised because I never proposed doing this project for them," Simpson said Thursday.

He agreed to the rare collaborative effort after delivering a paper on his new concept for measuring cosmic dust at a scientific meeting in Holland in September 1983.

Simpson then received an invitation from the Space Research Institute of the U.S.S.R. Academy of Sciences and agreed to the project after learning from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration that no U.S. space mission was planned to meet Halley's Comet.

Working with the Soviets' specifications and funds provided by NASA, Simpson designed two identical shoebox-sized instruments that will measure the mass and intensity of dust particles as two Soviet spacecraft pass near the comet in March 1986.

The first analyzer is aboard the Vega 1 spacecraft, which was launched Saturday. An identical instrument will be aboard the Vega 2 mission scheduled to be launched today.

"So far as I know, the Saturday launch was the first time the Soviets ever opened up and said they would launch a mission ... and allow photos of it to circulate," Simpson said. "We think that could be significant."

Data from the instruments will be shared by scientists worldwide and will enable them to determine the hazard of close approaches to the comet by later spacecraft sent up by the 11-nation European Space Agency and by Japan, he said.

"This will be the first time man can get close enough to the comet to get a good look at what we believe is primordial matter, matter that belongs to the formation of our solar system," he said. "That should give us some clues on how the Earth and the other planets were formed." Comets, made up mostly of dust and frozen gasses, travel in lengthy oblong orbits around the sun. A comet's brightly illuminated tail is caused by the boiling of those gasses as it nears the sun.

Halley's Comet was named after English astronomer Edward Halley, who determined that it could be seen from Earth approximately every 77 years as it swings closer to the sun.

A collaborative agreement signed by the United States and Soviet Union during the Nixon administration culminated in the historic hook-up of manned space flights during the U.S. Apollo and Soviet Soyuz missions in 1975.

The agreement lapsed in 1982 when the Reagan administration, stating its dissatisfaction with Soviet involvement in Poland, refused to renew the pact.

OPEC To Police Members

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — OPEC oil ministers agreed today to recommend to their heads of state the creation of a policing agency to prevent members from cheating on prices and production quotas.

Ending a three-day meeting, they declared their $29-a-barrel benchmark price would remain unchanged, despite world market pressures to cut the price.

The ministers said they would reconvene in Geneva Dec. 27 to vote on the proposed enforcement system that must first win approval by the members' heads of state.

Indonesian Oil Minister Subroto, who chaired the meeting, told reporters that no details of the proposal would be revealed this week. Most other ministers also declined to comment as the 1 1/2-hour meeting broke up.

Tam David-West, the oil minister of Nigeria, told reporters that not all details of the new system had been decided.

He suggested in brief comments to reporters as he left the hotel that all aspects of OPEC operations would be monitored by the enforcement group.

He insisted it was "nothing new," but also said that an undetermined number of OPEC members would comprise an expanded version of an existing four-nation monitoring panel that now has no policing powers.

The new system apparently would have no power to impose fines or other penalties, but would certify sales volumes and prices through the OPEC secretariat in Vienna, several conference sources said.

The purpose is to halt cheating on OPEC agreements and thereby restore credibility to an organization wracked by disarray and a weak oil market.

"This body will control policing, production, pricing," Subroto told reporters as he entered the meeting. Asked if it would control all aspects of the cartel's operations, he said, "That's right."

The strategy was announced late Thursday after the 13 ministers had reaffirmed an Oct. 31 agreement to limit their production to 16 million barrels daily. Industry analysts have said that production is running at near 17 million.

Former Nazi To Be Deported

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Nazi death camp guard Feodor Fedorenko, the sixth alleged war criminal ousted from the United States since 1978, was awaiting deportation to his native Soviet Union.

The Justice Department said Fedorenko was in government custody Thursday in New York City. From there, he was to fly to Moscow, via Helsinki, Finland. He missed a flight on Wednesday, Justice sources said.

Fedorenko's lawyer, Andrew Fylypovych of Philadelphia, said he was being held at INS headquarters in New York City.

Fedorenko, a 77-year-old retired factory worker who had lived in the United States for 35 years, becomes the first alleged Nazi war criminal deported to the Soviet Union by the Office of Special Investigations, which has been assigned since 1978 to track down war criminals here.

U.S. officials said Fedorenko was born in the Ukrainian Republic and was drafted into the Soviet army in 1941.

NEW YORK AP — The stock market was little changed today, heading into a long holiday weekend.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials inched ahead .11 to 1,203.40 in the first half hour.

Losers held a 3-2 lead over gainers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The markets will be open Monday before the Christmas holiday on Tuesday. But Wall Streeters expected many traders to be absent. In fact, some planned to get an early start on the weekend today.

Given that situation, analysts were doubtful that stock prices were likely to do anything dramatic.

Among today's early volume leaders, General Electric rose 1/4 to 56 1/2; Mobil gained 1/4 to 26 1/2, and American Telephone & Telegraph slipped 1/8 to 19 1/2.

Emory Says He's Out $431,000

Ed Emory's attorney says he is out $431,000 as a result of his firing by East Carolina University as head football coach and unless some agreement is reached with the school, Emory would file suit.

Greenville attorney Marvin Blount said that the figures were derived by adding Emory's salary with money he says he would have received from his television and radio shows, summer camp, personal appearances, courtesy cars, and the like.

Emory and Blount met with university officials on Monday to discuss the resolution of the contract. Blount said this morning that he is disappointed that the university has not been back in contact with him.

We got them to them in five hours. But they haven't followed up. We left them on Monday with the understanding that we would meet again by Thursday, but I haven't heard from them."

Blount said that unless some agreement is met with the university, "in 10 days to two weeks," a lawsuit would be filed.

"It's not good for the university or the football program for this to drag out or to go to court," Blount added, pointing out that the recent suit between Jim Carlin and the University of South Carolina over the same issues cost that school $270,000. "That's a pretty big waste of taxpayers' money."

"This is not a demand figure,"

Blount said. "That is a figure they asked me to come up with. I told them we would be happy to negotiate on that figure."

While not saying what would be acceptable, Blount said that in any agreement, there is giving on both sides.

Emory has been quoted as saying he feels the figure is a very conservative one and does not include potential income from his football camp, which reportedly went to his assistants and staff, not to him.

Nor does it include "damage that they have done to me, my family, and my profession," Emory said.

ECU attorney David Stevens and Dr. John Howell, chancellor, were to meet this morning to discuss Emory's figures.

Dr. Howell told the Daily Reflector this morning that he would have no comment on the situation until it was resolved, saying the university would get back to Emory and Blount when they had fully evaluated the figures. He had no comment on Blount's time frame of 10 days to two weeks.

Blount said a paragraph in Emory's contract on resolving the contract was "invalid because it had to be mutual consent of the parties."

Blount said that the university had invoked the contract paragraph saying that it would continue to pay Emory's monthly salary until he was hired for another job, and should the pay for that position be less than he was receiving from East Carolina, the university would pay the difference. Emory was also given the option of taking a $50,000 cash settlement. That option was rejected.

According to Blount, Emory's contract ran through January of 1988. In the remaining three-plus years, Emory would have received $156,000 in salary at $50,000 per year (additional $6,000 is difference between firing date and end of contract year - Jan. 31, 1985); $48,000 per year for his television show; $2,600 per year from radio fees; $13,500 per year for the use of two automobiles (based on multiplying 50,000 miles per year at 27 cents a mile); $900 for club dues; $15,000 in state retirement; $5,220 per year for medical insurance; $4,650 per year in speaking engagements; $1,000 per year for contacts with Nike and Wilson sporting goods companies; and $886 per year for reimbursement for a coaching clinic Emory attended annually.

That totals $431,268 over the contract period. Blount said that he had documentation of each claim.

He also said that a university trustee had promised Emory a $25,000 a year salary increase, a $15,000 a year job for his wife, Nancy, as administrative assistant, and $80,000 payoff of the mortgage of his house. None of these promises has been kept, according to Blount.

Raiders, Giants Look For Momentum

By The Associated Press
The Los Angeles Raiders looked terrible last Sunday in losing to the Pittsburgh Steelers, a loss that cost them the home-field advantage to Seattle for Saturday's AFC wild-card game.

The New York Giants looked terrible last September in losing to the Los Angeles Rams, the team they play in Sunday's NFL wild-card game.

So are Coaches John Robinson of the Rams or Chuck Knox of Seattle chortling about their prospects? Hardly, particularly considering that like the Raiders and Giants, the Seahawks and Rams also lost their last game.

"The Raiders have been there," says Knox. "The dash for cash is on and those fellas have been there before."

"That certainly would be a tragedy," says Robinson, responding to suggestions that the Rams' 33-12 win over the Giants earlier this season might make them overconfident.

The game between the 12-4 Seahawks and the 11-5 Raiders will be their sixth in two years. Last year the Seahawks won the two regular-season contests, then lost to the Raiders 30-14 in the AFC championship; this season, the Raiders won 28-14 at home, then lost to the Seahawks 17-14 in Seattle.

Seattle is still recovering from a 34-14 loss at home to the Denver Broncos last Saturday that cost the AFC West championship and a first-round bye. It was their only loss at home this season.

They got a break Sunday when the Raiders' loss to the Steelers meant the wild-card game would be played in the Kingdome, but it's a break that doesn't mollify quarterback Dave Krieg, whose 32 touchdown passes were a new Seattle record.

"I knew we were going to play the Raiders either here or there," he says. "I'm happy it will be up here, but it doesn't wipe away what happened against Denver."

The defending Super Bowl champs, meanwhile, have made one switch which may be designed to offset the Kingdome crowd - inserting Jim Plunkett at quarterback in place of Marc Wilson.

"I feel Jim's experience is vital," Coach Tom Flores, says of Plunkett, who quarterbacked the team in its 1980 and 1983 Super Bowl victories. "I just feel, at this stage, he would be the best to go with even though he is still a little rusty."

The Giants go into Anaheim, Cal., off a game almost as bad as their loss to the Rams - a 10-3 defeat by New Orleans that they entered knowing it couldn't affect their playoff chances either way.

They also go in knowing that they've got a decent shot at beating the Rams if they control All-Pro running back Eric Dickerson.

"The guy is playing superhuman football," Giants Coach Bill Parcells says of the man who's 2,105 yards were a single-season rushing record.

Parcells, whose specialty is defense and who has figured out ways to stop John Riggins of Washington and Neil Lomax of St. Louis this year, says that against Dickerson, "we've got one little deal we're going to try."

But Bill Belichick, the Giants' linebacker coach, says: "Everybody's got to play defense. If one guy breaks down, Dickerson will find the crease."

The Rams, meanwhile, may look to exploit what may be the Giants' vulnerability - injuries to all-Pro cornerback Mark Haynes and guard Billy Ard that have forced some juggling in the secondary and offensive line.

William Roberts, a starter earlier this season, moves in at tackle, while Brad Benson moves to Ard's guard spot and Kenny Daniel, a United States Football League refugee, will replace Haynes.

But Robinson is taking nothing for granted, citing the Giants' two wins over Dallas and a 37-13 trouncing of NFC East champion Washington as examples of New York's resilience.

"The Giants over the course of the season have beaten some of the league's elite teams," he says. "Judging from what they did against their peers, they're better than Dallas. They did lose to some teams they shouldn't have."

Anderson Leads A-G

KINSTON - Doug Anderson pumped in 19 points as Ayden-Grifton held South Lenoir scoreless in overtime to take a 53-48 victory in the consolation game of the Tri-County Christmas Basketball Tournament Thursday at North Lenoir High School.

Danny West chipped in 13 points and Mike Dixon 10 for the Chargers. Luby Outlaw paced South Lenoir with 14 points, while Mike Isler added 10.

In the girls consolation game, Treva Hartsell tallied 13 points and Becky Thurman 10 to lead South Lenoir to a 42-32 win over the Lady Chargers. Cynthia Hicks led Ayden-Grifton with 13 points, and Karen Edmonds added 11. The Chargers trailed 38-37 going into the fourth quarter but outscored the Blue Devils 11-10 to send the game to overtime.

"I thought we played pretty good defense overall," Ayden-Grifton Coach Bob Murphrey said. "We did what we had to do, but I think we were kind of deflated after that loss (to North Lenoir) Wednesday night."

"We lost (center) Marvin Smith real early in third quarter; he got his fourth and fifth fouls before I could get him out. But I thought Doug Anderson came forward and picked up the slack."

The Chargers remain idle until opening their Eastern Carolina 3-A Conference slate at SouthWest Edgecombe Wednesday, Jan. 2.

Bear Grass Downs Belhaven, 60-52

BEAR GRASS - Bear Grass used a balanced scoring attack to hold off a rally by Belhaven and claim a 60-52 Tobacco Belt basketball victory last night.

The Belhaven girls, however, claimed a 34-32 overtime victory in their game.

Bear Grass eased out into an 8-7 lead in the first period of the boys game, then shot away from the Bulldogs in the second frame. The Bears outscored Belhaven, 24-12, and held a 32-19 lead at the half.

In the third period, both teams pushed through 11 points to leave Bear Grass up, 43-30. The Bulldogs tried to rally in the final period, 22-17, but fell short.

Billy Fulford led the Bears with 13 points, while Brian Coletrain had 11 and Lawrence Watson and Jimmy Williams each had 10. Ed Burrus led Belhaven with 14 points while Mike McCabe added 10.

In the girls' game, Bear Grass zoomed out to a 12-4 lead in the first period, but couldn't hold it. Belhaven came back, 9-6, and cut the lead to 18-13 at the half.

The Bears added a point to the lead in a slow third quarter and led 22-16 going into the final period. But in that, the Lady Bulldogs rallied, 14-8 and forced the overtime. Aquichia Whitley scored with 11 seconds left to knot it at 30-30 to send it into overtime.

In the extra period, both teams scored before Valencia Rodman hit with 22 seconds left to give Belhaven a 34-32 lead. The Lady Bears failed to knot it again, going down to the loss.

Rodman led Belhaven with 10 points, while Mary Rogerson had 13 to pace the Bears.

Bear Grass's boys play in the Washington Daily News Tournament starting next Friday when they face Rocky Mount in the first round.

ECU Mascot Renamed

East Carolina University has changed the name of the school mascot following months of consideration, Athletic Director Dr. Ken Karr said Friday.

"From this day forward, the mascot will be called The Pirate," Karr said. "After careful consideration of the situation and the circumstances surrounding it, the decision was reached to drop the name Pee Dee."

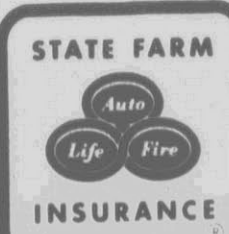

The mascot was unveiled at the 1983 ECU-N.C. State football game that was broadcast nationwide on WTBS-TV. The name "Pee Dee" was reached after a contest among area elementary schools.

The controversy over the name of the mascot began with editorials in the student newspaper, The East Carolinian, and resulted in a referendum on the students' fall election ballots. In that vote, the majority of the response was in favor of changing the name.

Karr added that logos and the physical appearance of the The Pirate will not be altered.

 It was easy for seventh-ranked Washington, which brushed Boise State aside, but for No. 12 Louisville, Hawaii-Hilo was a brush with disaster.
 "We survived, that's about it," Louisville Coach Denny Crum said Thursday night after the Cardinals were forced to hang on for an 80-75 college basketball victory. "We videotaped it. It will be a good horror session for us tomorrow."
 The Cardinals committed 38 turnovers and had to withstand a late Hawaii-Hilo rally after holding a comfortable 78-68 lead at the two-minute mark. Then Hawaii-Hilo's Gregory Scott hit a free throw, Clark Moore followed with a jumper and guard Rene Sanchez hit two straight layups off Cardinal turnovers to make it 78-75 with 32 seconds left.
 The Cardinals' Chris West sealed the victory with two fouls shots with 29 seconds left as Hawaii-Hilo missed three shots in the last 20 seconds.

 Louisville, 6-1, extended its winning streak to five games despite the turnovers. Billy Thompson led the way with 18 points, but the 6-7 forward-guard also committed 14 turnovers. Andy Ground had 16 points for Hawaii-Hilo, 3-5.
 The Cardinals had a 46-34 halftime lead, then stretched it to 68-52 with 8:49 to play before the Vulcans began their late rally.
 Sophomore center Chris Welp scored 19 of his game-high 23 points in the first half to pace Washington, 5-0, past Boise State 79-53.
 "I didn't think the starters played very well," said Washington Coach Marv Harshman, noting his team's big height advantage. "They could have gone to Chris every time."
 The Huskies took the lead for good at 8-6 on Welp's basket with 15:58 left in the first half. Welp had eight first-half rebounds Washington then pulled steadily away and led by as many as 30 points in the closing minutes.

 The taller Huskies, dominating the game inside, also got 19 points from senior forward Detlef Schrempf, the defending Pac 10 scoring champion.
 "They tried to keep the ball out of Detlef's hands," Welp said. "They made it very easy for me in the first half."
 Welp and Schrempf both are from West Germany and were the stars of that country's Olympic basketball team last summer.
 Sophomore forward Jeff Kelley had 12 points and senior center Bruce Bolden added 10 for the Broncos, 4-3.

 Senior guard Tim Mullen scored 16 points as Virginia snapped a two-game losing streak with a 69-53 decision over Randolph-Macon. But it was sophomore center Olden Polynice who drew most of the attention in the game at Charlottesville, Va.
 Polynice returned from a self-imposed leave of absence. He came off the bench to score 11 points for the Cavaliers, who improved their record to 5-3.
 The 6-foot-11 Polynice, a controversial figure after being acquitted of an honor code charge at the school, left the team following the acquittal and missed Virginia's game at Duke on Dec. 8.

 He entered the game with 12:51 remaining in the first half and was greeted with a loud ovation from the University Hall crowd. Polynice went on to play 19 minutes and finished with five rebounds and one steal. He was also called for a technical foul for hanging on the rim after he missed a slam dunk.
 "You just got to go with the flow and not think about this stuff," said Polynice, who had admitted turning in work done by another student. "I was still a little hesitant out there."
 Polynice said he planned to spend the Christmas holidays with his family in New York City and would work out at his old high school to get back into shape.

 Virginia Coach Terry Holland said Polynice "was in foul trouble in the first half, so it's really hard to evaluate his play. I think he played well in the second half. He was a factor in the game for us."
 The Yellow Jackets, a Division II team which fell to 5-4 and has only one victory in the 35-game series with Virginia, got 12 points apiece from Jesse Hellyer and Mike Boyer.
 Among other unranked teams in action Thursday night, Washington State, 4-0, hammered Cal-Santa Barbara 80-69 and, with Johnny Rogers pouring in 32 points, UC Irvine tipped Pepperdine 92-91.

Creswell Upends Roanoke, 56-51

PLYMOUTH — Danny Moore fired in 18 points and Tim Webb added 12 to lead Creswell to a 56-51 victory over Roanoke Thursday in the opening game of the Plymouth Invitational Christmas Tournament.
 Steven Rogers and Jason Holton added 10 points each for Creswell. Shawn Chance paced the Redskins with 12 points, while Derek Boyd chipped in 11 and James Duggins 10.
 Roanoke jumped out to a 17-11 advantage in the first quarter, but Creswell took a 28-25 lead at halftime.
 The Redskins pulled even at 42-42 going into the fourth quarter, but Creswell outscored Roanoke 14-9 in the final period.

"We just couldn't get the ball to fall for us," Roanoke Coach Clarence Atkinson said. "That was our problem, we just didn't play consistently."
 Roanoke faces Mattamuskeet tonight at 7 p.m. in the consolation game.

To The Sports Editor:

The recent dismissal of Coach Ed Emory has left our community in a state of shock and disbelief. Not only was Coach Emory an employee of East Carolina University, but he is also an Eastern Carolina community member. Ed and Nancy Emory have been very active as citizens of Greenville, and their mistreatment by University officials cannot be tolerated.
 Dr. Karr has repeatedly evaded the issue of "why," and he obviously feels he owes the public and Coach Emory nothing more. This behavior by Dr. Karr may be appropriate in San Diego, but it is not acceptable in Eastern North Carolina. We care about our neighbors, and when they are mistreated, so are we. As Pirate supporters, we demand an explanation.

To The Sports Editor:

Concerning a letter regarding Ed Emory from the "Friends of ECU" which occupied a full page of the Sunday, December 16 sports section: Notwithstanding the mawkish and awkward manner of their expression, I am not unsympathetic to the sentiments of the authors.

Why stop, though, with dismissing Drs. Karr and Howell and replacing the athletic committee. How about a celebratory feast over at Parkers (sic.) Barbeque...with Karr, Howell, etc. as the main course. A reinstated coach Ed and the Irates as the guests of honor could dine on animal protein from way, way up in the food chain, then convert it to muscle over at the ECU Strength Complex by lifting stacks of Daily Reflector sports sections made heavy by being saturated with tears.

I just don't see how we, as jerkwater Americans, can feel vindicated with a less significant gesture.

NCAA Probes Academics

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga. (AP) — The academic program offered University of Georgia football players is being scrutinized by the NCAA, according to a former Georgia player who has been questioned by NCAA investigators.

In a copyright story published Thursday, the Gwinnett Daily News reported that National Collegiate Athletic Association investigators interviewed Tyrone Sorrells in October about his recruitment and academic treatment at Georgia.

"They asked me a lot of stuff about recruiting violations, how I was treated, why I transferred," Sorrells said. "Once they found out I wasn't too involved in the material stuff, we mostly talked about academics."

"They said they might be getting back to me, but so far I haven't heard a thing from them," Sorrells said, adding that he was told by the investigator not to talk with the news media "about the specifics" of his interview.

NCAA officials, who also are investigating the Bulldogs' men's and women's basketball programs, contacted Georgia Tech in October seeking permission to talk to Sorrells, who transferred to Tech last summer.

The former tight end had entered Georgia on a football scholarship in 1982.

 Asked if he received extra money or other inducements to play football at Georgia, Sorrells said, "I cannot comment on any favors... I can't talk about anything gainful."

Sorrells said the academic program in which Georgia officials placed him was "an insult to my intelligence."

"I feel like I was very honest with the guy from the NCAA," he said. "I told him my bad points. I told him I wasn't a super student, but that I was willing to do the work. But I wasn't given a chance to do anything at Georgia. I was put at a level below my intelligence. My grades weren't bad, but my classes at Georgia were."

He transferred "because of the academics first," he said.

After he was contacted by the NCAA, but before he met with the investigator, Sorrells said he sought advice from Tech Coach Bill Curry and met with Tech academic adviser and legal counselor Scott Zolke.

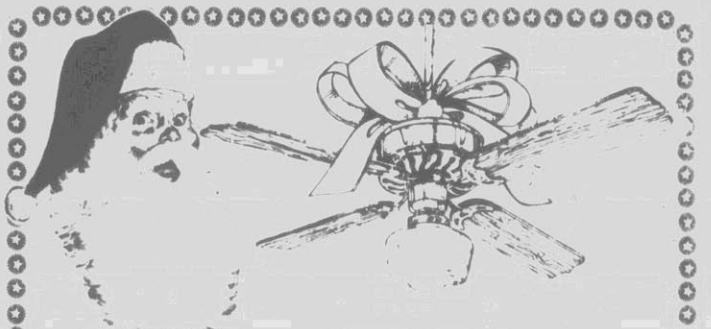

"Scott Zolke and I talked about it, and he sent me to Coach Curry," said Sorrells. "I really didn't expect him (Curry) to know anything about the situation. But he knew. I just stood there thinking he would ask me about all the stuff that happened at Georgia."

"But all he said was for me to tell them everything, to tell the truth, and that if I had any problems with the situation, I could come back and talk to him about it."

Curry confirmed that the NCAA had contacted Sorrells. And he denied any involvement by Georgia Tech in the investigation.

"The NCAA contacts every transfer of substance," Curry said. "We didn't contact them. As far as I know, the NCAA has not talked to anyone else at Tech about Georgia. And really, that's all I can say on the matter."

Gamecocks Get A Big Sendoff

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — The South Carolina Gamecocks left for the Gator Bowl Thursday on four chartered buses led by a highway patrol escort, but there was little other fanfare at their send-off.

The players arrived in Jacksonville, Fla., Thursday night for a week of practice before the Dec. 28 matchup against the Cowboys of Oklahoma State.

About 34 of the players and an assistant coach recovered from the flu just in time to leave for the bowl.

"They're the pale ones," student trainer Gene Fogle said as the players boarded the 43-seat charter buses.

Just a handful of fans and friends of players were at The Roost, the athletic dorm, to wave goodbye.

Most players brought headsets, magazines or books with them for the trip and none admitted to being nervous.

"I'm glad we're driving down, it gives us time to relax," said Dru Mims, an offensive tackle.

Center Leonard Burton, one of seven players hospitalized with the flu, said he planned to use the five-hour drive to catch up on his sleep.

"I thought I wasn't going to make it, that I'd have to fly down later," he said.

Fogle said about 34 players complained of fever, aches, nausea, diarrhea, dizziness or other flu-like symptoms.

Starting running back Raynard Brown, starting guard Bill Barnhill, starting wide receiver Eric Poole, David Poinsett, James Gatling, Mike Hooten and Burton were admitted Wednesday to Baptist Medical Center.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

A WOMAN OF UNDERSTANDING---BEAUTIFUL ABIGAIL!

ABIGAIL WAS THE WIFE OF NABAL, A WEALTHY OWNER OF SHEEP AND GOATS IN CARMEL. IF NABAL WAS A CHURLISH AND EVIL MAN, THEN ABIGAIL WAS THE COMPLETE OPPOSITE, BEING KNOWN FOR HER BEAUTY OF FACE AND INTELLIGENCE. WHEN DAVID'S MEN WERE TURNED DOWN BY NABAL, OVER A SIMPLE REQUEST FOR FOOD FOR HIS TROOPS, IT WAS ABIGAIL WHO PLACATED DAVID'S ANGER AND THUS SAVED NABAL'S LIFE. WHEN NABAL DIED, SHORTLY THEREAFTER, ABIGAIL BECAME ONE OF DAVID'S WIVES. AFTER THE AMALEKITES CAPTURED ZIKLAG THEY TOOK ABIGAIL CAPTIVE, WHILE DAVID AND HIS MEN WERE OUT CAMPAIGNING IN THE WILDERNESS. BUT SHE WAS SPEEDILY RESCUED BY DAVID WHEN HE ROUTED THE AMALEKITES. ABIGAIL BORE ONE SON TO DAVID AND NAMED HIM CHILEAB (2 SAMUEL 3:3).

IN THESE ANCIENT TIMES THE ONLY PLACE OF HONOR A WOMAN CAN HOLD IS AS A MAN'S WIFE -- TO BE UNMARRIED OR A WIDOW PLACES A WOMAN IN A LOWLY STATE OF LIFE; THUS DAVID'S ACT OF TAKING ABIGAIL AS HIS WIFE IS A VERY KIND AND REWARDING DEED, ALL OF WHICH IS RECORDED IN I SAMUEL, CHAP. 25

Lutheran And Episcopal Ministers Sharing Pulpit In Kinston Church

Lutheran Pastor Graham Nahouse of Greenville and Episcopal Rector George Abele of Moss Hill are sharing a moment of modern church history. Together, they serve the half-hundred or so active parishners of Prince of Peace Lutheran Church in Kinston.

The arrangement that joins the Lutheran and Episcopal clergymen is an extension of an ongoing national dialogue designed to resolve some of the differences between the church bodies and to move closer to the unity espoused by Christianity.

At Prince of Peace, a Lutheran Church in America congregation, the dialogue has gone a step farther, with an Episcopal priest actively sharing the pulpit and other pastoral duties — home and hospital visitation, counseling, and now even the administration of Holy Communion.

Abele, rector of Holy Innocents Episcopal Church near Moss Hill, began serving Prince of Peace in July after the small Lutheran congregation found itself unable to finance a full church program and full-time pastor. Founded in 1956, Prince of Peace saw its membership climb to about 150 and then tumble rapidly, starting with the closing of the Air Force facility at Kinston's Stallings Field in the 1960s. Today, the church seldom has more than 40 members in attendance.

Under an agreement between Bishop Sidney Sanders of Kinston, presiding bishop of the East Carolina Episcopal Diocese, and Bishop Michael McDaniel of Salisbury, who heads the LCA's North Carolina Synod, Abele was cleared initially for any pastoral functions except Holy Eucharist. To allow Abele to fulfill commitments at his own church as well as the Kinston church, Prince of Peace moved its Sunday worship service to 9 a.m.

The LCA assigned the Rev. Curtis Leins, then pastor of Good Shepherd Lutheran Church in Goldsboro, as its representative — with the title of vice pastor — to the Prince of Peace congregation. Starting in July and until he accepted a call to a Delaware church in late November, Leins preached and served Communion to the Prince of Peace congregation on the first Sunday of each month. Abele handled the services on all other Sundays.

Nahouse, pastor of Our Redeemer Lutheran Church in Greenville, succeeded Leins as vice pastor at Prince of Peace. The change prompted additional contacts between the Episcopal diocese and the Lutheran synod, and Abele now has been authorized to serve Communion at Prince of Peace — with or without a Lutheran pastor being present — using the Lutheran Book of Worship.

By way of celebration, Nahouse and Abele will share the Prince of Peace pulpit on first Sunday in January — Jan. 6 — and will jointly conduct a Communion service, a baptism and an installation ceremony for new members of the church council.

The cooperative agreement in Kinston is the first of its kind in modern history in North Carolina between the two Protestant denominations, although members of a Lutheran mission in Whiteville now attend services with an Episcopal congregation there.

In Kinston, the original agreement was for up to one year but both denominations have agreed that it can be extended if necessary.

John Heralded Work of Christmas Dream

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
Out of the wastelands, he came. Out herald of the offspring of Christmas, this man of the empty backlands, the dunes and cliffs, this dweller among the cactus, caves and sands, immersed in the long thoughts of silence and the stars. "Prepare the way of the Lord," he urged. "Make his paths straight."
John provided the public sequel to the Christmas story of the humble birth in a stable, the shepherds' awe, the adoration of the Magi. The desert mystic announced the entry of that child into his adult mission.
The prophet, wrapped in camel hide, a leather girdle about his waist, had survived alone on locusts and wild honey, finally bursting forth beside the Jordan with his astonishing news.
"Who are you?" demanded the crowd that gathered about him there on the river bank. "Are you Elijah? Are you the Christ?"
"No, I am not." His skin dark from the sun, his long, tangled hair and beard flying, he quoted the ancient biblical prophet Isaiah, declaring:
"I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness... The crooked shall be made straight, and the rough ways shall be made smooth; and all

Merged Cable Channels Offer Rival But Friendlier Competition On TV

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Since a merger brought Showtime and The Movie Channel into the same family, they've become friendlier rivals. But they still compete for audience affection, except now they do it with complementary rather than cut-throat counterprogramming.

"Each service has its own identity, and we're always looking for different appeals in our programming," said Jim Miller, Showtime-The Movie Channel's senior vice president of program planning. "It one schedules 'Yentl' (a serious film), the other will have 'Blame It on Rio' (a sex farce)."

The pay-cable services have shared ownership and a film-buying service since they combined in September 1983. Showtime has 5.4 million subscribers. The Movie Channel has 3.2 million. More than a million homes take both services.

To keep the two-service household happy, Showtime and The Movie Channel don't duplicate each other so much anymore. Before the merger, they averaged about 14 common films, often showing them at the same time. "Now, it's down to five to nine," said Miller.

With Showtime and The Movie Channel making joint programming decisions, they avoid showing the same film on the same night, and Miller says they have reduced the number of times a month that one movie will play on both services "without hurting the convenience factor."

This month, Mel Brooks' "To Be Or Not To Be" could be seen 12 times — six on each service, basically working out to every other day.

The Movie Channel, which ran "To Be Or Not To Be" as part of its "Mel Brooks Month," is a 24-hour film factory with a Hollywood bent. As monthly fixtures, it clumps movies according to theme (this month's feature subject was angels) or violence and gore (December's late-night "Drive-In Theater" showcased "Penitentiary" and "Mortuary").

Showtime is more like a commercial network, said Miller, offering two-thirds films and the rest series, concerts and special events.

This Sunday night, Showtime will have an Elton John concert, his Breaking Hearts Tour from Wembley Stadium in London. The Movie Channel will counter with an obscure PG-rated film, "The Escape Artist," starring Griffin O'Neal.

John's two-hour concert is an example of an exclusive Showtime property that The Movie Channel dare not sabotage with strong special programming of its own.

When Showtime broadcasts its exclusive film, "Terms of Endearment," starring Shirley MacLaine, next year, "we still have to appeal to those who don't have Showtime," said Miller. "We won't have something with similar audience appeal, like 'Ordinary People' or 'Kramer vs. Kramer.'"

He said the current thinking is for The Movie Channel to show a youthful film with high action-adventure content. "Something in the 'Road Warrior' mode," said Alan Zapikan, director of scheduling for Showtime-The Movie Channel. "Then we'll probably follow it with a horror movie," when Showtime also schedules a MacLaine concert and one of her old films.

Showtime programs more for families and older viewers than The Movie Channel, and it attempts to package similar-appeal shows back to back. "At The Movie Channel, we might show one type of movie at 8, then one with a completely different appeal at 10," said Zapikan. "You can do that with movies."

Time-Life Inc. also has its big brother-little sister services. Home Box Office, the largest pay-cable system with 13.5 million subscribers, offers a variety of movies, series, documentaries and sports, while Cinemax plays twice as many movies.

"Cinemax was designed for those who want more than one pay service," said Larry Carlson, Cinemax' senior vice president. "There are 3 million Cinemax subscribers and over 90 percent are in HBO homes. It was designed to complement HBO."

Carlson said Cinemax' programming approach is to reach the largest available audience. During the day, when more women are home, both HBO and Cinemax will try for female viewers. "We wouldn't schedule a heavy male film just because there was a female film on HBO," he said. "We'd want to give women two viable choices, say a 'Between Friends' on HBO and a 'Hanover Street' on Cinemax."

Despite all the strategy, viewers can watch only one show at a time. If they're watching one pay-cable channel, the other three are losers.

"You can't do everything for everybody," said Zapikan. "Programming is not a science."

Calls Of Concern Pour In For Ailing Peter Lawford

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Peter Lawford remained in a coma today at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, where telephone calls of concern for the British-born actor were coming in from his fans around the world, officials said.

Lawford, 61, has been comatose since early Wednesday with a critical illness that has not been disclosed at the request of his family, hospital spokesman Ron Wise said. But published reports have said the actor is suffering from kidney and liver ailments.

Early today, a hospital spokeswoman who would not give her name, said Lawford's condition remained critical.

"Nothing has changed," Wise said Thursday. "Everything is the same. The family continues to be very hopeful, yet at the same time they're prepared for the worst."

Before he fell into a coma, Lawford was visited for two hours Tuesday night by actress Elizabeth Taylor, Wise said.

Wise said the hospital had received numerous calls from fans and friends expressing concern, "from all over the world and particularly from Europe."

Immediate family members were the only visitors allowed at his bedside Thursday. They included his wife of five months, Patricia, 26, and four children from a previous marriage to Patricia Kennedy Lawford, sister of the late President John F. Kennedy.

Lawford was admitted to the hospital Sunday. Earlier this year, he underwent treatment at the Betty Ford Center for drug and alcohol rehabilitation in Rancho Mirage. He was in Cedars-Sinai in July for ulcer treatment and also stayed at the hospital several weeks ago.

The son of a British lord, Lawford made his film debut in Britain at age 7 and got his first Hollywood part at 15. A 1940s teen idol who matured into supporting film parts and a starring role in NBC-TV's "The Thin Man" series in the 1950s, Lawford became as famous for being the husband of a Kennedy sister as for his acting. He and Patricia Kennedy divorced in 1966.

Lawford's films include "Mrs. Miniver," "White Cliffs of Dover," "The Picture of Dorian Gray," "Exodus" and "Advise and Consent."

Illness Brings Change For Reynolds

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Burt Reynolds said a recent illness made him rethink his life and decide to take a break from moviemaking.

"I think a man who makes 2 1/2 movies a year for 11 years, there's something missing in his life," said the star of films such as "Deliverance," "Smokey and the Bandit," "Semi-Tough," "The End" and "City Heat."

Reynolds, 48, described the illness as "a virus that nobody could find a name for or a cure. I was sick, very sick, and I lost a lot of weight."

During the last of a five-part interview on NBC's "Today" show, scheduled for broadcast today, he said he won't make another movie until he finds one "that really makes me hungry again."

Chief Judge, Two New Judges Set For Appeals Court

RALEIGH (AP) — R.A. "Fred" Hedrick, a 15-year veteran of the North Carolina Court of Appeals, has been appointed as chief judge of the state appeals court.

The appointment was made by Chief Justice Joseph Branch of the state Supreme Court. In a separate action, Gov. Jim Hunt appointed two attorneys, Jack Cozort of Raleigh and Joslin Davis of Winston-Salem, to fill vacancies on the appeals court.

Hedrick, who was blinded by a wood sliver in a farm accident in Iredell County when he was 13 years old, was a district attorney in Iredell

County and later became a Superior Court judge. He was appointed to the state Court of Appeals in 1969 by Gov. Bob Scott.

"I have no problem, never have had a problem and never will," Hedrick said of his blindness.

As chief judge, Hedrick will be required to perform administrative duties in addition to the regular work of hearing cases and writing opinions. The administrative duties will include dividing the court's 12 judges into the three-judge panels that consider each case before the court, and designating a presiding judge for each panel.

The appeals court considers more than 300 cases a year.

"The lawyers are getting smarter," Hedrick said. "The cases are becoming more complex. That tests the mettle of every judge at every level."

Cozort, 34, will replace Judge Earl Vaughn and will serve until the general election of 1986, when he will be eligible to run for the remainder of Vaughn's term, which expires in 1992.

Ms. Davis, 33, replaces Judge Maurice Braswell and also will be eligible to run for election in 1986. Braswell's term will end in 1990.

"For eight years, Jack Cozort has held one of the most important and responsible legal positions in North Carolina as legal counsel to the governor," Hunt said in a prepared statement Thursday. "He has performed with the kind of wisdom, skill and even balance that will make him one of our very best judges."

Before becoming legal counsel to the governor, Cozort served as associate attorney general in the state Justice Department, representing the state in courts at all levels.

Ms. Davis, a graduate of the University of Georgia and Wake Forest School of Law, was legal assistant to the state attorney general for two years before becoming an assistant district attorney for the 12th Judicial District. After a year in that post, she became an assistant district attorney in Raleigh and joined the law firm of Cheshire and Davis in 1980. In 1981 she formed a partnership with her husband, Fred Harwell, in the firm of Davis and Harwell in Winston-Salem.

"Joslin will bring to the Court of Appeals a variety of legal experience and a keen awareness of the public's concerns," Hunt said. "She has served well in two different judicial districts and truly is a credit to her profession."

SBI Leader Will Resign In January

RALEIGH (AP) — State Bureau of Investigation Director Haywood Starling, who's resigning the same day Lacy Thornburg becomes attorney general, says he thinks the SBI will fare well with Thornburg in that position.

"He has a good image in law enforcement in North Carolina and he will have the support of all law enforcement," Starling said. "And there's no doubt in my mind that he has the best interest of the people at heart."

Starling's resignation is effective Jan. 5.

"I'm happy," Starling said in an interview Thursday. "I'm satisfied. I will continue to have an interest in the bureau because you know that has been my life."

Starling, who will be 62 on Jan. 3, said he told Thornburg he would stay on until the attorney-general-elect found a replacement. Starling said he had agreed to serve as an unpaid consultant as long as necessary during January to help his replacement.

"We had an understanding that as soon as he could get someone I would get out," Starling said. "I had originally thought, up until the last several weeks, that it would take longer, perhaps several months into his administration for him to find a suitable replacement for me. But it obviously hasn't taken as long as I had thought."

Thornburg was with his family in Big Ridge in Jackson County Thursday and could not be reached for comment. Spokesman John D. Simmons said no replacement has been chosen.

Starling became acting director of the SBI in October 1975, when Charles Dunn resigned, and was appointed director Jan. 8, 1976.

WRAL-FM in Raleigh quoted anonymous sources as saying the agency's morale under Starling's leadership had been "less than desirable" in the past year. But Starling said the number of agents had almost doubled since he became director.

"I hope it's in better shape than it was when I took over," he said. "The facts are we've got better of everything. We've got more agents and other personnel, better equipped, and we've accomplished the move into the much larger quarters."

While officials would not say who was being considered to replace Starling, possible successors mentioned by WRAL include Superior Court Judge Forrest Ferrell of Catawba County and Dunn, currently executive director of the North Carolina Textile Manufacturers Association.

Officer Charges Chief, Is Fired

MARS HILL, N.C. (AP) — A Mars Hill police officer who charged his chief with assaulting him a week ago during a late-night meeting has been fired.

Bill Lisenbee was notified of his termination Wednesday by the Mars Hill town manager, said a spokesman for the town board of aldermen who investigated a confrontation Dec. 13 between Lisenbee and Chief R. J. Cutshaw at the police station.

Cutshaw placed Lisenbee on indefinite suspension after the midnight scuffle in which Lisenbee said his neck was injured. Lisenbee swore out a complaint against Cutshaw and it was served on the police chief Dec. 14.

Lisenbee said he would meet with a lawyer later this month but did not say if he would fight to regain his job.

Because of Cutshaw's Jan. 3 court date, Mars Hill Mayor Bill Powell declined to comment on Lisenbee's termination, effective Dec. 13, but said Lisenbee's method of making security checks was a factor in his firing.

Cutshaw denied striking Lisenbee and said he planned to plead innocent to the assault charge.

Ramsey Elected Speaker

RALEIGH (AP) — Democrat Liston Ramsey of Madison County says he's pleased to be elected to an unprecedented third term as speaker at a time when the House is facing "unusual political circumstances."

Those circumstances include a Republican governor, a Democratic lieutenant governor and an overwhelmingly Democratic Legislature.

Meanwhile, several lawmakers said the election Thursday of a new speaker pro tem is not a real change in leadership.

Democrats in the state House voted Thursday to keep Ramsey as speaker for the unprecedented third term and to make Jack Hunt of Cleveland County the new speaker pro tem.

The 83 Democrats in the House caucused to nominate leaders for the 1985 session, which begins Feb. 5. The session is starting three weeks later than usual in an attempt to shorten its length.

Nomination for the positions is tantamount to election because there are only 36 Republicans in the House, too few to override a near unanimous Democratic choice.

"The responsibility for a sound program in the Legislature continues to rest on the shoulders of the Democratic Party," Ramsey said. "We continue to hold a substantial majority in both bodies. To that extent, the record of the 1985 General Assembly will be a record of the Democratic Party."

He also reminded House Democrats to strive to do the most good for the greatest number of people.

Ramsey is the first legislator to make the speaker's job a full-time, year-round position. He presides over the House sessions, coordinates study committee work, does research and performs a variety of more ceremonial duties.

The 65-year-old Ramsey ran unopposed for the job. He succeeded Carl Stewart, who served two terms as speaker.

"Our admiration for him has grown stronger with the passage of time," said Rep. Charles Beall, D-Haywood. "He is far-sighted, sure-footed, level-headed and even-handed."

Hunt defeated two-term Speaker Pro Tem Allen Barbee of Nash County in secret balloting. The results of the voting were not made public.

The unusual fight for the job as speaker pro tem pitted Hunt, a dentist and six-term legislator who chaired the powerful Rules Committee, against Barbee, a businessman and 12-term representative who unsuccessfully ran for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor in 1972 against Gov. Jim Hunt.

Ramsey did not take sides in the race.

"I don't see any particular change in the leadership of the House in this move," Hunt said. "I'm just in another position."

Rep. David Diamond, D-Surry, said, "Both are very well respected among the legislators. Absolutely nothing derogatory was said about either one."

Hunt said he would wait for Ramsey, one of his closest legislative friends, to decide what duties the speaker pro tem's job would include.

Rep. Vernon James, D-Pasquotank, recommended Hunt for the job because of his knowledge and ability to get along with Ramsey.

"No one in North Carolina knows the rules and regulations better than Jack Hunt," he said.

Republican legislators on Sunday elected Rep. Betsy Cochran of Davie County as minority leader and Rep. George Robinson of Caldwell County as minority whip in the House.

Democrats filled three other positions with people from outside the legislative ranks. Grace Collins was selected as principal clerk, Sam Burrow as reading clerk and Larry Eagles as sergeant at arms.

Eagles was the only one to face a challenge. He defeated Alcoholic Board of Control chairman Marvin Speight in a secret ballot.

One legislative seat remains undecided because of a 1981 classification suit which charged that House districts in Nash, Edgecombe and Wilson counties diluted black voting strength.

Rep. Jeanne Fenner, D-Wilson, faces Republican Larry Ethridge in a Jan. 29 race there.

Florida Group Backing Sanford

DURHAM (AP) — A small group of people who support Terry Sanford as chairman of the Democratic National Committee will work through the weekend to muster support for the Duke University president, the chairman of the Florida Democratic Party says.

Charles A. Whitehead declined in a telephone interview from Panama City, Fla., to identify members of the group that will work to build support for Sanford. But he told the News and Observer of Raleigh that it included state party chairmen, governors and members of the U.S. House and Senate.

Sanford, 67, said in a statement released by Duke Thursday that he was "not going to be a candidate." But supporters said that in a letter sent to them Wednesday, Sanford indicated he might take the job if he could gain support from 15 to 20 governors and at least 25 state chairmen.

North Carolina Democratic Party Chairman David Price, who received a copy of the letter, said that Sanford had "pulled himself out, but he's not closed the door."

Sanford, who is retiring as Duke president in July, was considered a regional favorite for the DNC post prior to a meeting of Democratic governors and state party chairmen in Kansas City last weekend.

That meeting, however, ended with no recommendation for a new chairman.

"I had hoped that the elected leadership, primarily the governors, could come together to take charge of the revitalization of the party," said Sanford in a statement read by Don Seaver, the university's news director.

Plant Costs Increase

RALEIGH (AP) — Carolina Power & Light Co. says the cost of its Shearon Harris nuclear plant has jumped $500 million, and is now expected to cost more than $3 billion when completed. The announcement came after CP&L directors declared a smaller-than-expected dividend increase. The company's stock dropped from the 1984 high of $26 set Tuesday to $24 Wednesday. A CP&L spokesman declined to comment on how the increased costs would affect customer rates, except to say the company would file for a rate increase next year. The company blamed the increased plant costs on higher labor and engineering costs for final construction and inspections.

College Seeks President

DUBLIN, N.C. (AP) — The board of trustees of Bladen Technical College has decided to revive its search for a new president after the head of the community college system said he would not recommend their current nominee. Bob Scott, president of the system, said Thursday he would not recommend former trustee chairman Lynn King because "it was obvious" the trustees had not followed published procedures in nominating King. Acting board chairman Essie Williams said the trustees decided to accept new nominations.

Communication Director

RALEIGH (AP) — Republican Gov.-elect Jim Martin has named Karen G. Hayes as Director of Communication for his administration. Martin, in announcing the appointment, said Ms. Hayes will oversee all communication activities related to the governor's office and will act as a communications liaison with state agencies. Ms. Hayes joined the Martin staff in September as campaign press secretary and has continued that job on the transition team. Before joining the campaign, she served on the staff of U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block in Washington. Ms. Hayes holds a bachelor's degree from Mercer University in Georgia, a masters degree from Wake Forest University and a master of fine arts degree from the University of Florida.

Pair Remain Under Bond

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — The widow of a Marine found dead in a ditch and a man charged with conspiring to murder him remained under $200,000 bond each after an initial court appearance. Candie Rasmussen Long, 23, and Larry Allen Watson, 30, returned to the Craven County Jail after arraignment this week under the same bond originally set when they were charged with conspiracy in the death of Lance Cpl. Joel Dexter Long, 23, of Newport. Watson, of Havelock, and Long were stationed at Cherry Point Marine Air Corps Station. Long was found dead of suffocation in a ditch beside Nine Mile Road in Carteret County Oct. 9, one day after Candie Long reported him missing.

Farmers Sue Grace

CARTHAGE, N.C. (AP) — Ten Moore County farmers who say their tobacco was damaged last summer by contaminated fertilizer have filed lawsuits seeking $348,659 in damages against the fertilizer manufacturer and its insurance company. The suits were filed in Moore County Superior Court in Carthage against W.R. Grace Co. of New York City and its insurance carrier, Continental Casualty Co. The lawsuits allege that the companies failed to comply with terms of a payment formula agreed to by the farmers and Grace officials. Roy Burt, who owns the stores in Carthage and Cameron where about one-quarter of the fertilizer was sold, said he thought 40 more suits will be filed by Moore County farmers. After the growers decided to file suit, Burt agreed to pay their attorneys' fees, he said Thursday.

Letters For Congressman

GREEN CREEK, N.C. (AP) — Students in Mary Jane Giles' fourth-grade class wrote letters this week but instead of addressing them to Santa Claus, the letters went to the next congressman from the 11th District and asked him to keep nuclear waste sites out of North Carolina. "These kids are really serious about this," Ms. Giles said. After learning that 30 sites in North Carolina are being studied by the U.S. Department of Energy as possible locations for a nuclear waste repository, the 28 rural Polk County students "got fired up," she said. Ms. Giles urged them to write U.S. Rep.-elect Bill Hendon of Asheville and tell him they didn't want to grow up with nuclear waste. "I told them to express themselves as future voters," Ms. Giles said. "Our generation created the problem, now theirs will have to solve it." Not only did Hendon read the letters, but realizing he was dealing with "intelligent kids who know what's going on," he decided to visit the class at Green Creek Elementary School Thursday afternoon, he said. Hendon, a Republican, promised to fight any proposed North Carolina dump sites and said he will make the battle a top priority when he takes his seat Jan. 3. He said he planned to organize a commission to formulate an "argument policy plan to present to the (U.S.) Department of Energy to convince them not to put it here in these beautiful mountains."

Jazzed Up Garage

CHICAGO (AP) — Operators of a downtown parking garage have jazzed up the place so drivers need only hum a tune to find their cars.

Instead of memorizing the number of a parking slot, motorists have only to remember the name of a song and the city it extols. If that isn't enough, the elevator areas will be tiled in different colors.

On the first level, for example, Pearl Bailey's "April in Paris" will be piped in over the sound system. To make sure the message sinks in, the word "Paris" is painted on signs. The elevator area has blue tile.

The standard parking designations such as 3A or 5B "are real boring," says Myron Warshauer, owner of the 1,200-space musical garage managed by Standard Parking Service. The company runs 50 parking structures in the Chicago area.

Forgetting where they parked "is a constant problem for motorists," said Warshauer, 45, who admits to finding himself in that predicament on occasion.

He said he came up with the idea while hearing Frank Sinatra belt out "New York, New York" on his car radio.

Ol' Blue Eyes himself is now a fixture in Warshauer's garage, on the New York, or fifth, level, color-coded burgundy.

Weapons Found

PEKING (AP) — Nine old cannons and 121 stones once rolled down a hill to crush invading forces have been unearthed from a ditch near the Great Wall of China.

The official news agency Xinhua reported that the items, used in wars in the Ming Dynasty (1368-1644), were found along a stretch of the ancient stone barrier in Fuming County, Hebei Province.

Xinhua said the cannons, weighing about 650 pounds each, were filled with gunpowder and crushed rock. It said the stones, known in Chinese as "lei shi" — "rolling rocks" — weigh about 10 pounds each, and "were rolled downhill on to the enemy in ancient battles."

 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♣ Pass
 INT Pass 4 ♣ Pass
 Pass Pass
 Opening lead: Eight of ♠.

Perhaps the biggest difference between an expert and the average player is the ability of the expert to foresee danger. This hand is a typical example.

The auction is routine. When North describes a balanced minimum with his rebid of one no trump, South knows exactly where he wants to play the hand and gets there by the shortest route.

West leads the eight of diamonds, and the average player probably wouldn't even realize the contract is in jeopardy. Indeed, if the queen of spades is onside, he expects to make an overtrick. He would win the opening lead in dummy and take a trump finesse. West wins the queen and returns a diamond. Declarer would again win on the table and lead another trump.

On this trick East would seize the opportunity to show partner where his entry was by discarding the nine of hearts. West wins the ace of trumps, leads a heart to his partner's ace and scores a diamond ruff for down one.

The expert declarer sees that his contract is safe unless a defender scores a diamond ruff. To prevent that, he would win the opening lead in hand and immediately lead the jack of hearts. Assume East wins and returns a diamond. The threat of a ruff might still there, but declarer neutralizes the menace by cashing the king-queen of hearts, sluffing a diamond from hand.

Now declarer doesn't care how the trumps lie. Even if he loses two trump tricks, he will still make his contract. And he hasn't even sacrificed his chance of an overtrick should East have the queen of trumps.

In the trade, this method of cutting communications between the defenders is known as a "scissors coup."

Auto's Air Conditioner May Harm Allergies

BOSTON (AP) — People who turn on their auto air conditioners to ease respiratory allergies may actually make their symptoms worse if the cars' air vents harbor mold and other fungi, according to a study published Thursday.

"I'm not suggesting that everybody who rides in an air-conditioned car would get worse," said Dr. Prem Kumar, who directed the study. "I think a large majority of people do feel better. But there's a significant proportion of patients who do get worse, as shown by this study."

The research was based on a survey of 224 hay fever and asthma victims who travel in air-conditioned cars. Eighteen percent said they thought their breathing problems were worse when the air condition was running.

The researchers said their study may actually underestimate the prevalence of the problem because all the people surveyed were taking drugs for their maladies, which could have blunted the moldy air's effects.

Ordinarily, air conditioners are thought to filter out pollen and other contaminants. But the new research shows that sometimes they can have just the opposite effect.

When 13 of the people in the survey were tested in their own cars, they found that their breathing was impaired when the air conditioning was on.

The researchers also sampled the air vents in these vehicles and found mold and other fungi, and concluded that the growths were causing the problems.

Ocean Current May Hold Key To Mysteries

By PAUL LOONG
 VICTORIA, British Columbia (UPI) — An unusual current bucking the wind along the west coast of Canada's Vancouver Island could explain the mysteries of salmon runs and the missing bodies of sailors.

Coastal fishermen have long known about the steady current that always flows northward, but scientists had previously shrugged it off as mariners' tales.

Ocean currents were generally believed driven by the wind. The prevailing wind off the island in at least half the year — throughout the summer — is southward.

Scientists eventually stumbled on the Vancouver Island Coastal Current while studying other aspects of the ocean.

"We found that near the coast, 10 to 20 kilometers from the shore, there is this persistent northward flow," said Richard Thomson, an oceanographer at the Canadian government's Institute of Ocean Sciences near Victoria.

The surprising part is why is it there in the summer time when the wind is from the northwest," he said. "This current is bucking the winds."

Further off the coast, the current does flow with the wind, mainly toward the southeast during the summer, northwest in winter.

There aren't too many examples in the world of such a pronounced current," moving windward at about 1 knot (1.15 mph), Thomson said. Coastal currents off Florida and Norway "don't go against the wind."

The much larger Gulf Stream, 10 times wider than the Vancouver Island Coastal Current, is also driven by equatorial winds.

The unexpected coastal current has attracted sufficient interest to warrant a $2 million study now underway. About $200,000 of that came from the U.S. Office of Navy Research.

The project started in June, and involved experiments performed at sea by Thomson, Barbara Hicky of the University of Washington and Paul LeBlond of the University of British Columbia.

"We share instrumentation. The ship time is supplied by the institute here," Thomson said.

The scientists were measuring winds, currents, sea levels, depth, salinity, water temperature and other factors.

Thomson said he believed the current is "buoyancy-driven, which means there is a flux of fresh water that drives this thing."

The massive outflow of the Fraser and Columbia rivers, along with substantial winter runoffs along the entire coast, apparently generate the current.

"The only way it's going to go is northward, because of the Earth's rotation," he said.

The glacier-fed current is several degrees Celsius colder than waters farther offshore, partly responsible "for the damned fog along the coast," he said.

Thomson said fishery officials trying to maintain and predict fish stocks would benefit most from the study.

The annual salmon migration is intimately related to the current. "They move with it northward when they are leaving (their river spawning grounds), and they swim back against it when they are returning home," Thomson said.

The current could be a navigational channel for salmon that detect the difference in water quality and "smell their way home," he said. "It's something like a huge conveyor belt."

Thomson has also worked closely with the Canadian Coast Guard to help reduce the number of shipwrecked sailors never found.

The region's search and rescue coordination center says so far in 1984, the bodies of half a dozen people missing in maritime accidents off the west coast of Vancouver Island have not been found. The current could be one explanation, although bodies of drowning victims who took water into their lungs would also tend to sink.

Without knowing about the coastal current, searchers could be looking in the wrong direction. "You want to cut down on search time because you want to find these people as fast as you can before they die," Thomson noted.

The Coast Guard could eventually use the research data to design a computer program to narrow the search area according to the time of year, known weather and runoff conditions.

The study could show the coast is particularly susceptible to pollution and spills. Pollutants caught in the current "stay near the coast and would not move offshore," Thomson said.

Mechanic's Slow Pace Brings Joy

ALBANY, Ga. (AP) — Customers have to wait up to eight months while George Gill refurbishes their cars, but few complain because of the unique service he provides.

Gill, a mechanic for 45 years, specializes in restoring antique cars, especially Model A and Model T Fords, and the lot in front of his downtown garage is littered with rusting hulks awaiting his attention.

Often covered with a half-century of accumulated rust and dirt and missing vital parts, the vintage cars are towed on trailers to Gill's Carriage House Restorations, where he and his staff begin taking them apart bolt-by-bolt.

"I do it as I feel like it and I tell customers 'don't pressure me,'" said Gill, who has restored about 20 cars since he entered the business 15 years ago. "There's a lot of analytical work goes into one of these things. Everytime I start one I learn something else."

For a so-called "frame-off" restoration, which can take up to eight months and 600 to 800 man hours, Gill has to remove the body from the frame and reassemble the car after every piece has been restored to like-new condition and painted with original paint.

The meticulous work calls for a variety of skills — mechanical experience to rebuild old engines, sometimes with hand-poured, lead-alloy bearings; electrical knowledge to get the lights, ignition system and horn working again; sheet metal ability to remove dents and replace or repair rusted body panels; and a knowledge of upholstery to replace rotted seat covers and headliners with original or near-original fabric.

"I think the payoff is when you finish a project and see what's there," Gill observed. "You forget all the skinned knuckles."

Because of the difficulty in obtaining parts for some old cars, Gill usually keeps several projects going at once. This enables him to keep busy on one car while awaiting parts for another.

Serious auto collectors want their cars restored as close as possible to original factory specifications, Gill noted. This adds to the value of their antiques and gives them a better chance of winning prizes in car shows, where judging is critical.

Gill said the cars he restores qualify for judging under the original factory specifications.

Of all the work that goes into a restoration, body preparation — welding, dent removal, panel straightening and meticulous sanding — usually is the most demanding, Gill said. He performs these tasks, then turns the car over to a paint specialist.

According to Gill, nothing detracts from an antique car more than a poor paint job or inadequate body preparation.

Fords are his favorites because they were an important element in his Florida childhood and because he believes the company catered to the transportation needs of the "poor man."

"To me, Ford is like my grandmother," he recalled in an interview. "They've been around all my life. Throughout the early years of production Ford's philosophy was to maintain an adequate stock of parts. They felt like that if they could sell a customer a car and have an adequate supply of parts, they could keep him in their product. Ford was a poor man's auto producer."
