A Little Boy Learns The Magic Of Christmas Morn

Isaac Gardner, 2, opens a brightly wrapped Christmas gift in a scene that was familiar throughout the land Tuesday as months of anticipation ended in the joy of discovery in gaily colored packages. In the series above, note the stuffed animal never leaves Isaac's lap as he rips, reaches and explores in finding his way through the gifts, finally ending with a book. The youngster is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gardner of Winterville. (Reflector Photo By Tommy Forrest)

VOA Signs Pacts To Expand Operations

NEW YORK (AP) — The Voice of America has signed agreements to expand or improve its operations in five countries as part of a $1.5 billion program to reach territories where its signal is jammed or nonexistent, The New York Times reported today.

The five- or six-year modernization program, approved by Congress in fiscal 1983, would increase the number and effectiveness of the transmitters and seek to expand the number of languages used in broadcasts from 42 to 60, The Times said, quoting Reagan administration officials it did not identify.

Officials of the U.S. Information Agency, which operates VOA, said agreements have been reached with Sri Lanka, Morocco, Thailand, Costa Rica and Belize, and secret negotiations are continuing with other countries.

the newspaper reported.

The United States also has asked permission to erect transmitters in Israel to overcome jamming of Voice of America programs to the Soviet Union, Israel Radio reported last week.

The agency currently has a network of transmitters throughout the United States aimed at Central America and the Caribbean, and other stations in Europe, Asia and Africa, but it is seeking to bolster its coverage.

Negotiations to renew the rights to use transmitters on the Greek island of Rhodes, which carry the primary signals for the agency's Soviet-bound broadcasts, have been ongoing since last summer, The Times said.

In the past several years, VOA has sent high-powered signals in local languages to the Soviet Central Asian republics of Uzbekistan and Kazakhstan, and to the Caucasian republics of Georgia, Armenia and Azerbaijan in response to reports of hostility to the Moscow government.

Union Carbide Has Bomb Hoax

A bomb threat telephoned in to Greenville's Union Carbide battery plant Christmas day turned out to be a hoax, according to local police.

"The security guard there got a call and she called us and ran out, but the fire department went out there and didn't find anything," Officer David Nichols of the Greenville Police Department reported.

Although a bomb was not found, police and the private security company that serves Union Carbide stepped up security, checking the company every hour.

Tinna Dail, the security guard at the plant, said she received the threatening call around 10:20 a.m.

She said company officials had warned personnel at the plant about the possibility of bomb threats in the aftermath of the Union Carbide chemical leak that killed thousands in Bhopal, India.

A Union Carbide official who asked not to be identified said anticipating bomb threats like the one received Tuesday is "normal course of action" and that the company routinely instructs employees on dealing with bomb scares.

The spokesman said the Christmas Day threat was the first the Greenville company has received to his knowledge.

Kuwaitis Say Oil Prices May Fall

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — Kuwait's oil minister, Sheik Ali Khalifa Al-Sabah, today warned of further declines in oil prices if OPEC fails to agree on a plan to enforce its price and production quotas.

The warning came on the eve of the resumption of the regular year-end meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, which was recessed last Friday to allow oil ministers to consult their heads of state about the enforcement proposal.

In an interview with the United Arab Emirates news agency WAM, Sheik Ali also warned Norway and Britain, which are not OPEC members, against further reductions in their oil prices. Such price-cutting, he said, would lead to consequences which the two North Sea oil producers "themselves would not be able to bear."

Sheik Ali and Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, were both in Abu Dhabi for consultations with officials of the United Arab Emirates before returning to Geneva, Switzerland, for the OPEC session.

Sheik Ali said he was confident that the 13-nation organization would agree to create a policing agency "to protect OPEC from itself" because the other options were unacceptable.

Without restoring credibility by sticking to its quotas, he said, OPEC member states would go for individual gains and unilateral production increases, leading to a collapse of prices on the market "which no amount of increased production will compensate."

OPEC has been trying to defend its official prices with a production cutback, but has been hindered by cheating on quotas from within its own ranks and by warmer-than-expected temperatures in the Northern Hemisphere.

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

Hotline gets things done. Write and tell us about the problem or issue into which you'd like for Hotline to look. Enclose photostatic copies of any pertinent information. Our address is The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27835. Because of the large numbers received, Hotline cannot answer or publish every item we receive, but we deal with all of those for which we have staff time. Names must be given, but only initials will be published.

PLEASE RETURN BOX

Shirley Newburg is using Hotline as a last resort to appeal for the return of a box lost Dec. 18 at or near her home, 105-C N. Summit St. The box, lost while she was moving, contains irreplaceable photograph albums and music books. Anyone who has the box or knows where it is is asked to call Ms. Newburg, 752-5796. She is offering a reward and will ask no questions, she said.

Uncle Sam's Annual Tax Greeting In Mail Today

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Uncle Sam's annual post-Christmas greetings will start on their way today with the mailing of more than 92 million income tax forms.

While it may seem Scrooge-like to get a reminder of one of life's two inevitables during the holiday season, the Internal Revenue Service says the period right after Christmas is the best time to mail out the forms.

In that way, the 92.4 million IRS packages don't get caught up in the mailing crush before Christmas. But the forms are still sent in time to give early-bird filers a head start on doing their 1984 returns.

Since about four-fifths of all taxpayers get a refund, there is a strong incentive to file well in advance of the April 15 deadline, the IRS points out.

The bundles of 1984 forms have been at mail distribution centers for several days, but the Postal Service had instructions not to begin delivering them until today.

"It's traditional that we mail them out the day after Christmas and generally most taxpayers get them some time in the week after Christmas," said Larry Batdorf, an IRS spokesman.

While proposals to scrap the current tax system in favor of a simplified tax with lower rates and fewer deductions will be hotly debated in the new year, none of the discussion will have any impact on taxes due this April.

In fact, taxpayers will notice few changes in the 1984 forms from those mailed last year. The one change with the biggest impact — the final stage of the 1981 tax cuts — won't be apparent from looking at the forms at all.

The cut, which averages about 5 percent below the 1983 tax rates, is already built into the tax tables and tax-rate schedules that taxpayers will use to calculate how much they owe.

One change that will be noticed involves Social Security recipients, who for the first time may have to pay taxes on part of their benefits.

In general, up to half of Social Security benefits will be taxable if total income exceeds $25,000 for a single person or $32,000 for a couple filing a joint return.

The IRS will be sending out about 53 million "long-form" 1040 tax packages and about 39.4 million packages that include both the 1040A "short form" and the shortest form, the 1040EZ.

Here's a breakdown:

— Form 1040 is used by more than 60 percent of all taxpayers. It is required for those who make $50,000 or more or who itemize deductions. Even more taxpayers will be using it this year since it will be required for Social Security recipients who find they owe taxes on their benefits.

— The two-page form 1040A can be used by married or single people whose taxable income is under $50,000. Those who file form 1040A will have to attach a Schedule 1 if they have more than $400 in interest income or dividend income.

— Form 1040EZ, the simplest of all the forms, contains just 11 lines. It can only be used by single people who make less than $50,000 with interest income of $400 or less.

The IRS said more than 15 million people used the 1040EZ last year, which requires taxpayers to write figures in printed boxes rather than filling in the usual blank lines. This is a boon to the IRS, since it allows the form to be checked by computers rather than people.

For new taxpayers and others who for some reason don't get their forms in the mail, the IRS will hand out tax forms and other publications at 600 IRS offices nationwide.

In addition, more than 40,000 banks and post offices also distribute copies of the major tax forms, schedules and instruction booklets.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

A hot lunch is provided for any citizen 60 years old or older. The lunches are served at the Senior Citizens Center in the Community Building at the corner of Fourth and Greene Streets.

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren
1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

Girlfriend Tires Of His Refusal To Sign

DEAR ABBY: I need your help. My boyfriend (26), a struggling attorney, and I (25), a secretary, have been dating for five years. I wanted to get married a year ago, but he wasn't ready, so I reluctantly agreed to let him move in with me because he insisted it would help him decide when he is ready for marriage.

He is no closer to a decision today than he was a year ago. He says he is not ready for the responsibilities of marriage yet, he's afraid of all the hassle involved in a divorce, and he wants to be absolutely sure our marriage will work before he commits to it.

He also says he doesn't "need" marriage, but he will marry me when he's ready because he knows that's what I want. Meanwhile he doesn't even want to become officially engaged because he says that's also a commitment he's not ready to make.

I love him and we have a comfortable life together, but for the first time I feel uncertain about where our relationship is going. I feel as though I am being taken advantage of and I'm on the verge of asking him to move out. Please help me decide.

UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: Don't just ask him to move—help him pack. I think he will be relieved and so will you. If you feel that you are being taken advantage of, you probably are.

DEAR ABBY: I've got herpes—the genital kind. Now what? The fellow who gave it to me never told me and I'm mad! Big deal. A lot of good that does me. So what should I do when I start a new relationship? Do I say, "Hi, nice to meet you, I've got herpes"—then watch the man run? Or do I date him for a while, and then just before we sleep together mention it—then watch him run?

I'm young and pretty and I am not promiscuous, but I'm not dead either. A lot of men are interested in me, but I don't for one minute forget that I have herpes. I really don't want to take a chance on giving it to anybody, but I don't want to be treated like a leper either.

What should I do? Rather than tell somebody I have herpes, I just don't date.

I wish you'd write an article about herpes, Abby. Is it possible to get it off a toilet seat?

THE GIRL NEXT DOOR

DEAR GIRL: Yes. The herpes virus can live as long as five hours in warm, moist areas, such as the tiles and plastic-coated benches that often surround a swimming pool, hot tub and the steam room of a health club. Though it's very unlikely that you'll pick up the germ from one of these places, "It's wise," says the American Medical Association, "to always sit on a clean towel to be on the safe side—especially if you're bare-bottomed."

You need not feel like a "leper." But never withhold the fact that you have herpes from anyone who risks contracting it from you.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for telling "Mother of Two" not to let her 16-year-old daughter and 15-year-old son share the same bedroom. I also had parents who thought there was no problem putting me and my brother in the same bedroom. They were wrong. I became pregnant by my 16-year-old brother when I was 13. I was too frightened and ashamed to tell my mother, so she didn't know it until she saw me getting bigger and bigger. I did a lot of dumb things to try to get rid of it, but a baby girl was born to me. She was blind and brain-damaged, and died before she was 3 months old.

I still love my parents, but have very little respect for their judgment. That terrible experience left me with emotional scars that took many years of therapy to heal.

Abby, please tell your readers that although incest is not openly discussed, it's not all that uncommon. Keep on telling parents that they have a responsibility to protect their children from this terrible experience. Thank you for letting me say this.

VICTIM IN TACOMA

DEAR VICTIM: Thanks for writing. Many others wrote to say that they, too, had been victims of incest—something they had never disclosed before. However, several readers wrote to tell me off in protest of my "ill-considered" warning. A sample:

DEAR ABBY: I wish you and your so-called sex experts would get your minds out of the gutter and realize that a brother and sister can share the same sleeping quarters without having it turn into incest.

My folks were poor. There were three boys and two girls in our family, and all us kids slept in one bed—the boys on one end and the girls on the other. I know for a fact there was no sex going on. I was 17 before I had a room by myself, and I had to have it because they thought I had TB.

It's my belief that the less you say about sex in the early years, the less stirred up the kids will get. Today everybody is sex-crazy. I am 80 now, and I am sick and tired of the subject.

Project Creates Barrier-Free Homes For Physically Disabled

NEW YORK (AP) — Only last year, Ethel Kass, 80, could hardly bathe without help — she couldn't hoist herself into her glass-enclosed bathtub — and her legs were so swollen that she could barely get around her own apartment.

"Still, I couldn't stand the thought of going to a nursing home," she says.

Millions of physically disabled Americans like Mrs. Kass, who has crippling arthritis, may be trapped within their own homes, according to Leo Hausman, president of United Cerebral Palsy of New York City. Unable to care for themselves, they face the prospect of institutionalization at staggering annual costs of close to $50,000 per person, he says.

For Mrs. Kass and for others like her, Project Open House (POH), a program that removes architectural barriers for a one-time program-funded expenditure of $1,200, allows them to remain with their families and function independently.

POH did extensive remodeling work in her bathroom and, with the help of a special walker, Mrs. Kass can now maneuver into her living room and sit comfortably in a chair that with the touch of a button can lift her up and onto her feet.

"It's a tremendous aid," she says. "because I don't need to rely so much on my legs or arms to get up and sit down. I never could have afforded anything like this; it's really like a miracle."

made us all more aware of the importance of building accessibility," Hausman says. "But once inside the privacy of his or her own home, a disabled individual lives with such intimate issues as how to get into a bathroom, how to prepare a meal, how to call for assistance and how to deal with a thousand and one household and personal tasks that most of us take for granted."

Adds Marcia Eppler, director of POH, "Institutionalization of mobility-impaired people is almost never necessary. By widening doorways, installing special fixtures such as a roll-in shower, wheelchair-adapted sink, faucet extension, hand-held shower, grab bars, folding work surfaces, stair lifts, ramps, emergency call systems, specially designed kitchen tools, etc., the disabled person can stay at home."

Since POH's inception in 1980, almost 500 existing apartments or houses have been renovated within New York City's five boroughs, Ms. Eppler says. At present there are more than 300 on the waiting list and an additional 1,800 city residents who are in desperate need of at-home modifications have been identified, she adds.

"The project is not only reaching those who need help, but is also paying its own way," Ms. Eppler says. "These alterations make it possible for the disabled to live independently at a nominal cost per dwelling, compared to the astronomical hospital, nursing home and institutional fees, which are often subsidized with taxpayers' dollars."

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

A lot of people consider the new pump dispenser for toothpaste the greatest boon to long marriages since shared custody of children.

Couples have been fighting the cap-left-off-the-toothpaste war since the early 1900s. You'd think in all that time Edison, Kettering or Bell or one of those inventor, geniuses could have come up with a solution to either stop the toothpaste from oozing out or figure out a way to force it back in. They never did.

Actually, leaving the toothpaste without a cap or squeezing it from the middle was never a big problem with me. I'm not one of those hysterical, knit-picking perfectionists who couldn't live with a messy bowl and a little dribble of toothpaste here and there. Those little personal habits just didn't bother me one bit. It's Minnie Mouse stuff that certainly shouldn't threaten a stable marriage.

I only concern myself with the big stuff... things that are intolerable in a relationship and nothing is ever done about them.

How come no one has ever come up with a towel that bounces? Do you know how many years I've forced open the bathroom door and stumbled my way through wall-to-wall towels?

And let's talk toilet seat lids. Is it too much to expect that some research could be done on a unisex toilet seat that picks up the sensory body heat of a male or female stumbling around in the dark and either flips up or down?

And while we're talking major, let's talk about those stupid pajamas with the drawstrings that men always lose in the waistband and can't wear until you force it through with a pin or a knitting needle. I could have gotten a law degree with the time I wasted on lost pajama cords.

And whose idea was it to come out with razor blades for men that snap into place so your fingers do not touch the blade? I've know more marriages that have faltered since women no longer have access to blades for scraping paint off windows, taking the hems out of things, and opening cardboard boxes than you can imagine.

And how can anyone expect longevity in a marriage where the man pulls out the sheets and blankets at the bottom of the bed that you've tucked in with such care to make the edges look neat?

They say marriages falter due to a lot of little things. I disagree. I think it's a lot of big things like hair on the soap, a car seat that is always backed up to the trunk, a newspaper that has been ravaged and a bathroom glass that smells like creme rinse.

I'm not too excited about the toothpaste pump. After all, I knew he gargled and spat when I married him. I never knew he was insensitive enough to leave the shower spigot on when he finished with it.

POH was pioneered by the New York City affiliate of United Cerebral Palsy Associations Inc. (UCP), a private non-profit agency with 222 affiliates across the country, and is designed to increase independence for mobility-impaired people, Hausman explains.

Dropouts

Education Secretary T.H. Bell's parting report on school dropouts and test scores is only modestly hopeful. The SAT results improved in 32 states and declined in 10. The dropout data (nationwide) indicated 73.9 percent of students who were freshmen four years earlier graduated in 1983 (up from 72.8 percent the previous year).

North Carolina's graduation rate — we subsequently learned — in 1983 was 69.3 percent, up from 68.4 percent in 1982. That is a hopeful signal, but it still is a matter of concern.

There is really not much school systems can do about their dropout rate, though Bell and President Reagan have urged states to set a goal of raising the high school graduation rate to 90 percent by 1990. Youngsters will not learn unless they want to.

Teachers can guide them to a certain degree. They have their students for only five or six hours of each school day. We know (locally) they must be doing something right because so many of their grads qualify for scholarships.

State governments can do just so much, too. Money is a factor, but does not represent the alpha-to-omega of education. North Carolina adopted a school attendance law; but it turned out to be a waste of good intentions.

Who else to blame?
Try parents.

Judging from the data included in the Bell report, parents of that near-30 percent dropout rate did not inculcate a craving for knowledge and skills among their children in their first six years when it was their responsibility. It may well have been the same parents who did not encourage and support their children during their school years (they had them in their care for most of each 24-hour day).

During their school years, teachers encouraged their young people to often read, observe, research, compute and write in their out-of-school hours. Some of it was homework. Again, a given number of parents failed to see their offspring did what was expected of them. They failed parenting. It shows in the dropout rates.

They produced instead a large number of future citizens locked into a world of limited horizons.

This space has often marveled at the burgeoning knowledge in all fields of human endeavor. The doors are closed to people who are unprepared. A high school diploma is just the first rung; most people continue to learn for the rest of their lives, and it began with parents who did their part.

Today's dropout ... unless he or she suddenly sees the light and seriously resumes the learning process ... has a very dim future.

Bargaining

The visit of senior Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev in London confirms a strong point for potential entry into nuclear arms talks.

Gorbachev in effect acknowledges the U.S. has a bargaining point with the proposed program to put arms in space. The price tag would be a severe strain on the American economy; but it is also true the Soviet Union would feel compelled to match the American effort with even smaller economic resources at its disposal. Their alternative is to exchange agreeing to discuss nuclear arms control for U.S. agreement to at least shelve the so-called "Star Wars" system.

This is an admittedly far cry from restraining the nuclear arms race and even further from restraining the conventional arms race. The bright side: it is a beginning.

As we all have learned, nuclear arms control talks are painfully slow and complex. Chances of definitive agreement are remote, but somewhere out there is at least a faint beacon of hope. Where there is hope, there is also cause to push on.

'Boll Weevils' Still Around

WASHINGTON (AP) — They've been sprayed with political pesticide, but the "boll weevils" are alive and squirming.

"We're going to be a force to be heard," says Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, who co-founded the Conservative Democratic Forum in 1980.

The group of congressmen was at its height in 1981 when it bucked the Democratic Party leadership to back President Reagan's economic proposals and earned its nickname. But membership dwindled from 46 to 33 during the last Congress.

"Of the 13 that we lost, three retired from office, three ran for other office, three switched parties, three were defeated and one just dropped out," Stenholm said.

"As a group, the Congress is right of center," says Rep. Buddy Roemer of Louisiana, another boll weevil. "But within the Democratic Party," he adds, "the numbers (of conservatives) are shrinking, not expanding." Nevertheless, the group expects to recoup its lost membership and make some gains in unofficial support during the upcoming Congress. Roemer estimates there will be a core of about 70 House members backing boll weevil positions.

"That's enough to win some votes in the House," he said. After fading for two years, the Conservative Democratic Forum was back in the headlines last month when, on behalf of conservative Democrats, Stenholm threatened to challenge House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts for the leadership role.

Stenholm dropped out of the race after he said O'Neill promised conservative Democrats "a place at the table." He says now it is up to them to get their share.

Roemer, who had set up the meeting between Stenholm and O'Neill, said he and Stenholm promised the speaker they would try to work within the party first before seeking Republican support for an alternative budget.

"We'll go where we think the best budget is," Roemer said. "We're open to other coalitions, but we will begin within the party."

Despite some talk about broadening the group's concerns to include defense and foreign policy issues, the main focus remains centered on the budget and the federal deficit.

Roemer said the conservative Democrats are advocating a reduction in federal spending, including defense.

"We're going to be a lot smarter than we were four years ago," said Stenholm. "We learned a lot in the budget process. We've learned a lot in the last two years about what's doable and what's not, about what a package has to look like if you're going to get votes."

The boll weevils say they have been forced into the role of maver-

More Than The Bargain

RALEIGH — Didn't Bob Jordan get more than he bargained for?

Three years ago, when Jordan set out to win the state's second highest elective post, the office of lieutenant governor, he knew he was seeking a job which most people think is rather easy. You get a full time salary but the only time you really put in a full work week is when the Legislature is in session, approximately seven months every two years.

But something happened to the job on Jordan's way to winning it. All of a sudden, Jordan has what looks to be the most difficult political job in the state. The poor guy is catching it from every direction.

Jordan's first problem has been apparent for more than two years now. House Speaker Liston Ramsey will become the first man to hold that office for three terms. He's consolidated a wealth of power and many people consider him the state's most powerful politician. When the Senate and House start pushing and shoving, freshman Jordan will be pitted against an experienced Ramsey.

But Jordan at least foresaw that problem. His other problem became apparent only on Election Day and afterwards. Jordan had to assume that the state would follow its tradition of electing a Democratic governor who would then be titular head of the Democratic Party.

Oops. The state elected a Republican, and a crafty one at that. Jim Martin comes into office with a great deal of popular support. Such support traditionally wears thin as a governor serves his time, but right now Jordan must be careful not to appear to be bucking the public will.

That's not so easy. As top Democrat, Jordan's party will look to Jordan to lead the opposition. "I'm in a position of assuring the public that the proposals upon which Gov. Martin campaigned will get a fair hearing while on the other hand, I find myself in a position of having to pick a new party chairman ... and deal with a segment of the party that thinks I should be more politically active, responding to anything that comes from the Republican Party," he said.

Jordan might like to run and hide from Martin's agenda but he, too, campaigned on issues this year and has a responsibility to live up to promises he made, even if they contradict Martin's stands.

The troubles don't end there for Jordan. Now enter Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, about to hand over the office to Jordan and go to work for Martin as an adviser on legislative matters. Green was a powerful lieutenant governor and despite a significant attrition of his closest circle due to retirement and election losses, he still has friends in high places in the Senate who might be persuaded to help Martin undermine Jordan.

New Senate President Pro Tem Sen. Monk Harrington, D-Bertie, says Green won't be able to do that. "I don't think it will help the new governor. If he (Green) comes over here, I think it will boomerrang." But Harrington admits that Green's knowledge of the Senate could be an invaluable tool if Green stays out of the building and tells Martin's legislative lobbyists how to move.

Then there's the Senate itself. There are now 12 GOP senators — not a great many but almost enough to form a blocking party. If they can get four Democratic deserters, they can block the Senate from suspending its rules, and that's an important procedural device. Jordan says he wants the Senate rules changed to require fewer votes to suspend the rules. (The number was raised several years ago in an attempt to doom the Equal Rights Amendment.)

Jordan's supporters say he'll be a great lieutenant governor. He's got his work cut out for him simply becoming an average performer in the job.

Season Of Intrigue For Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — 'Tis the season of intrigue around the Reagan administration, and neither the president nor his defense secretary is jolly about it.

First came the spate of stories about the infighting over next year's budget, with all those unnamed sources pegging Caspar Weinberger as a holdout against lowering the deficit. But what really set off the defense chief was the disclosure of the secret military mission of the next space shuttle.

Major leaks, the threat of investigations, and the claim, spurious or not, that national security is at stake are nothing new in the relationship between the media and the current administration. For that matter, every president in the modern era has been driven up the wall at one time or another by unauthorized news accounts.

Weinberger called it the "height of journalistic irresponsibility" when The Washington Post revealed that the shuttle Discovery would carry a spy satellite to be put in stationary orbit over the Soviet Union. Weinberger suggested the story caused "actual damage" to the nation's security.

Several other news organizations, including The Associated Press, had voluntarily withheld the story, at the Pentagon's request, but then published their own versions when it was broken by the Post.

A White House spokesman made clear that Reagan was unhappy about the disclosure, just as he was about the leaks over the budget debate — an annual rite as sure as Christmas itself.

Reagan once complained that he'd "had it up to my keister" over leaks. They continued, nonetheless.

As for the satellite story, Post executives said they published nothing that could help the Soviet Union or that wasn't already known to space experts. Earlier, an Air Force general had warned that any stories on the secret payload "may be investigated as a breach of national security."

One scholar who has studied the issue at length — and from a unique vantage point — says he agrees with Reagan's own assessment that leaks have "reached a new high" under his administration.

Stephen Hess, a senior fellow at the Brookings Institution, spent a year from 1981-82 inside the government's press offices, including those at the White House, the Pentagon and the State Department. His book, "The Government-Press Connection," was published this year by Brookings.

Hess, a former aide to Republican presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and Richard M. Nixon, relates a number of possible reasons for Reagan's rash of leaks, including "the number of undisciplined ideologues that Reagan brought to Washington" and the president's style of management. He cites the Wall Street Journal's contention that "If every policy is constantly up for a committee decision, you are constantly inviting contending parties to fight it out through leaks to the press."

In his book, Hess recounts many of the earlier leaks which anguished the chief executive, including several budget flaps — one of which led to an abortive clampdown on press relations and the use of lie detectors at the Pentagon in search of the leaker.

And he offers a typology of why leakers leak:

1. The Ego Leak — giving information primarily to satisfy a sense of self-importance; in effect "I am important because I can give you information that is important."
2. The Goodwill Leak — a play for a future favor.
3. The Policy Leak — a pitch for or against a proposal using some document or insiders' information as the lure to get more attention.

4. The Animus Leak — used to settle grudges.

5. The Trial-Balloon Leak — revealing a proposal under consideration in order to assess its assets and liabilities.

6. The Whistle-blower Leak — unlike the others, usually employed by career personnel. A last resort of frustrated civil servants.

7. The No-Purpose Leak. From politicians who talk because they love to talk.

The list goes on. Hess points out that an ego leak and a goodwill leak need not be exclusive; a policy leak could also work as an animus leak, "especially since people on each side of a grudge tend to divide along policy lines."

Hess cites one case of what he calls the "daring reverse leak," an authorized release of information apparently for one reason but actually accomplishing another. That was the Post story in early 1982 that then-Secretary of State Alexander Haig Jr. had privately called the British foreign secretary, Lord Carrington, a "duplicious bastard." Most initial reaction was that the disclosure came from someone out to get Haig.

But Hess said it has since been widely agreed that the quote was provided by a Haig loyalist who wanted to demonstrate that his boss was "of sound mind and in command."

In an interview, Hess said he had no idea who was behind the satellite story, but suggested it may have been in the "policy leak" category. "There can be a serious dispute between two agencies. There could be an element of that in this situation — using NASA for military purposes," he said.

Hess said he remains a "card-carrying Republican" sympathetic to the administration, but he parts company over its handling of the issue. "I tend to have a show-me attitude about the national security aspects of leaks," he said. "I could not find any among those I looked at. 'I'm willing to say 'Sure,' we do have real secrets,'" he said. "But I also think the government is very good at keeping its real secrets."

After all, a lot of the things called leaks are just the result of good journalists doing their work ... but it's easier to attack the reporter than to say we have people violating confidences."

Strength For Today

In heaven's name, get the trash man! One can hardly walk around this room with all the boxes and wrapping paper lying around. But what a wonderful day it was! There was kissing all around and everyone declared that the present he or she got was precisely the thing desired.

It's all very joyful, of course, but we should never allow anything to dim our mind to the realization that Christmas is a holy day. The gifts we give are commemorative of the great gift God gave us and continues to give in his salvation.

The lights on the Christmas tree were wonderful, but they are symbolic of the light which came to human reason because the Child was born into the world. Carols have been ringing through the night, and well they may, for true religion is a thing of joy, and the Babe of Bethlehem is the Symbol, the Savior, who makes this joy our precious possession.

Burglary Arrest

Greenville police have charged Sebastian Williams of 407 Deck St. with second degree burglary and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Officer J.A. Bartlett said Williams was arrested Tuesday in connection with a break-in at Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity house, 500 Elizabeth St. Bartlett said Williams was apprehended at the corner of West Fifth Street and Elizabeth Street at approximately 4:35 p.m. The officer said police confiscated a hypodermic syringe.

Drivers Charged

Greenville police charged Jeffrey Carrol Smith of Winterville with a stop light violation Sunday following a traffic accident at the intersection of Cotanche and West Fifth streets involving the Smith car and a vehicle driven by Edith May Boyd of 602 Vancroft Ave.

Damages were estimated at $300 to the Smith vehicle and $500 to the Boyd car.

Police cited Bridgett Renee Johnson of 207-B East Roundtree Drive for passing at an intersection Monday following a Bancroft Avenue accident involving the Johnson car and a car operated by Kevin Dewayne Michael of 1616 Lincoln Drive.

Damages were estimated at $1,500 to the Johnson car and $1,000 to the Michael's car.

Anthony George Newton of Farmville was charged with a safe movement violation Monday following an accident on South Memorial Drive. Police said the Newton car and a vehicle operated by Bobby Rodney Lassiter of Route 1, Winterville, collided, causing damages.

Leaves Extended

(CHARLOTTE AP) — Many textile manufacturers will extend workers' Christmas vacation by a week or more because of slow sales, manufacturers and trade group officials say.

"Probably a majority of the companies will be closed two weeks," said Charles Dunn, executive vice president of the North Carolina Textile Manufacturers Association. "Normally, many companies would be producing now for the spring season. Sales have been rather soft."

Many companies are keeping inventories low and blame their troubles on imports that soared 38 percent in the first 10 months in 1984.

"Last year, the most companies would shut down was a week," said Jim Conner, executive vice president of the American Yarn Spinners Association in Gastonia. "This year, it's typically 10 days to two weeks. Business is just not developing."

Feel free to call the Finance Director of the City of Greenville if you have any questions about the City's 1984-85 Budget.

estimated at $800 to the Newton car and $100 to the Lassiter vehicle.

Committee Post

Wayne Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Wilson of Winterville and a member of Winterville Free Will Baptist Church, was recently elected to Mount Olive College's publicity committee.

Gilmore Selected

Ron Gilmore has been selected as North Pitt High School's teacher of the year for 1984-85, school officials have announced.

Gilmore, an auto mechanics instructor, has been teaching five years at North Pitt. He received his bachelor's degree from East Carolina University and is scheduled to complete his master's degree from ECU in industrial and technical education next May. He serves as advisor of the North Pitt Vocational and Industrial Clubs of America chapter and is working on developing a Key Club at the school.

Johnston Scholar

Donna Ruth Beaty of Greenville has been named a James M. Johnston scholar at N.C. State University.

Miss Beaty is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Beaty of 100 Terry St. She is a graduate of D.H. Conley High School.

The Johnston scholar program provides funds each year for students enrolled in special programs at NCSU and the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Holiday Project

The Library Club of Ayden-Grifton High School visited Spruill's and McCotter's family care centers during the holidays to present fruit baskets and gifts to elderly residents.

The Christmas visit was the club's annual project.

Top Teacher

Charlotte Moore has been named

Farmville Middle School's teacher of the year for 1984-85, according to school officials.

Mrs. Moore teaches reading and math in the Chapter I program. She has been teaching in the county school system for six years.

Academia Takes First

The team "Academia" took first place for the second year in a row in the recent Farmville Middle School Quiz Bowl competition, school officials have announced.

Academia is composed of the eighth-graders Johnny Tugwell, Gary Joyner, Allen Lewis, Lance Parker and Jamie Cowan. Eight teams participated in the quiz bowl.

Program Scheduled

An appreciation program for Anession Brooks will be held at 6 p.m. Sunday by the music department of Philippi Church of Christ.

Loan Deadline

Monday is the deadline for small businesses in Pitt, Greene and other eastern North Carolina counties affected by the March 28 tornadoes to apply for Small Business Administration economic injury disaster loans.

The direct loans provide funds for businesses to meet current obligations and pay ordinary and necessary operating expenses during the period affected by the disaster. The loans carry a 4 percent interest rate and repayment terms are determined on a case-by-case basis with a maximum of 30 years.

The toll-free number for more information is 1-800-554-3455, with hours from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

More Vets Applying For Jobs

Don Anders, veterans employment representative for the Greenville Office of Employment Security Commission, said today the number of veterans registered for work with his office from July through October increased 21 percent over the same period in 1983.

Anders attributed the increase to a rise in the number of applicants from surrounding counties seeking employment with major industries in Pitt County.

Previously, veterans were encouraged to apply through their local county offices rather than register in several area offices simultaneously. However, due to recent changes in the method of evaluating each office individually, veterans are no longer discouraged from registering outside their service area.

Anders notes that although there are no problems with the new procedure, he still recommends that veterans seek assistance through their nearest employment office. The same basic services, he notes, are available and it saves the veteran time and travel expense.

Anders says that during the four-month period, the Greenville office found employment for 196 veterans — 39 percent — of the 504 new applicants.

Funds are still available to reimburse employers agreeing to train eligible Korean and Vietnam era veterans in new skills under the Emergency Veterans Job Training Act, he said.

Interested employers and veteran applicants can get detailed information by contacting Anders at 3101 Bismarck St., telephone 756-2686.

Man-Made Comet Set For Thursday

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Scientists will try again Thursday to create a comet-like phenomenon 70,160 miles over the Pacific Ocean after being stymied by poor weather that would have prevented them from observing it.

The so-called Christmas Comet was rescheduled for 4:32 a.m. PST Thursday, said West German scientist Gerhard Haerendel. It was to have been South America.

The "comet" would have been visible from much of the western United States, southwestern Canada, northern Mexico, Hawaii and Tahiti.

But Haerendel, directing the experiment from the Kitt Peak National Observatory in Arizona, scrubbed the release with 15 minutes to go when clouds moved over the White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico, making the site too marginal for telescope observations.

Clouds already covered the three other major observatories — Mauna Kea on Hawaii, Haleakala on Maui and Kitt Peak.

A secondary observatory on Fritz Peak near Boulder, Colo., was operating and an Argentine observation plane took off from Tahiti, but Haerendel didn't consider them adequate because fog kept a National Aeronautics and Space Administration observation jet on the ground at Mountain View, Calif.

The experiment is part of a $78 million U.S.-British-West German study of how Earth's magnetic field is affected by the solar wind.

Break-Ins Reported

Greenville Police are continuing investigation of a Monday break-in in which $2,250 worth of merchandise was stolen.

According to Officer C.A. Sharpe, a television, a box of jewelry and a stereo system were taken from the 312 E. 12th St. residence of Anne Haley. Two plastic bags containing marijuana were also confiscated when police investigated the scene of the crime.

Also under investigation is the Monday break-in of a Fast Fare on Evans Street. Officer T.V. Wollard reported that a portable television, cassette player and two radios were taken in the incident. Damages to the store and value of items taken totaled $1,153.

Officer T.G. Shane reported the theft of a motorized bicycle valued at $270 Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. from the residence of bike owner Macon Moye of N-4 Wilson Acres. Investigation is continuing.

Police are also investigating a Tuesday break-in at the home of Sandra Barrett, 610 Vanderbilt St. According to Officer J.E. Harris, two cassette players, a microphone, a ladies coat and assorted toys were taken.

Services Held For Miners Killed In Utah Fire

ORANGEVILLE, Utah (AP) — One of the three top-officials of the Mormon Church planned to lead a memorial service for 27 miners as the fire that killed them in the central Utah coal country continued to burn, officials say.

Gordon B. Hinkle, second counselor of the three-man First Presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, was to lead part of the service scheduled today for the 26 men and one woman, said spokesman Don LeFevre.

The miners, working toward a one-day, long-wall coal mining record, were trapped nearly a week ago in a fire that Emery Mining Co. officials say appears to have been caused by an overheated bearing in a conveyor.

The bodies of the victims remained within the Wilberg Mine today after a flare-up of the fire in the main tunnel and a methane gas scare forced a halt to firefighting efforts on Sunday.

Meanwhile, mine officials defended the mine's safety record and claimed it has improved steadily since 1979.

United Mine Workers president Richard Trumka had criticized the mine's accident rate and the production speed-up aimed at a new record. But John Ward, spokesman for Utah Power & Light Co., which owns the mine operated by the Emery Mining Corp., said the mine's safety record compared favorably with others in the area.

"On none of the comparisons that we've dug up are we worse than any other mines," Ward said. "We're either at average or better."

He said safety problems were numerous in the early 1980s because Emery had just taken over the mine's operation in 1979. He said the company was expanding its work force rapidly then, so many employees were inexperienced.

Since then, the number of injuries and citations has dropped, he said.

Earlier, Emery spokesman Robert Henrie said the company "doesn't have a perfect safety record, but it has a responsible safety record."

Henrie said company officials would take a close look at the cause of the Dec. 19 accident in an effort to learn what it could do to prevent future accidents.

"We would be very unwise if we didn't go back through this tragic experience and glean and learn everything we can and try to benefit as much as we can," he said.

The 420 workers in the Wilberg's sister mines, Little Dove and Deer Creek, will return to work Jan. 2. The company wanted to provide a "proper period for people to recover and pay respect to the victims' families," Henrie said.

Japanese Do Not Expect Controls On U.S. Imports

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone said today it would be unrealistic and ill-advised to set import targets for U.S.-manufactured goods as a means of reducing Japan's huge trade surplus with the United States.

In a meeting with American journalists prior to his Jan. 2 summit in Los Angeles with President Reagan, Nakasone also stressed the need for Western unity in arms talks with the Soviet Union and indicated he would not oppose Reagan's proposed "Star Wars" missile defense system.

The summit meeting will be the third between the two conservative leaders since Nakasone took office in November 1982. Nakasone traveled to Washington in January 1983 and Reagan visited Tokyo in November 1983.

As in their first two meetings, Nakasone and Reagan are expected to focus on the generally good relations between two countries and not the vexing trade and defense issues that divide them.

Asked in Washington last week whether he planned to pressure Nakasone on trade issues, Reagan replied, "How can I get tough with a very good friend?"

Nakasone said today he would discuss with Reagan the importance of fighting protectionism and keeping non-inflationary economic growth on track.

But when asked whether he might go along with the idea, suggested by some American officials, that Japan announce a target for increasing imports of U.S.-manufactured goods, he said, "Citing such specific figures is not realistic and not advisable. That concept is inclined toward managed trade, and as a free trader I don't think that is appropriate."

Japan's trade surplus with the United States in 1984 will be about $35 billion, about 30 percent of the entire U.S. trade deficit and up from $21 billion in 1983. U.S. officials say Japan has built up its advantage by exporting cars, steel and other manufactured goods while importing mainly food products and raw materials.

Nakasone said his government will "continue efforts to tackle" the problem of opening up Japan's markets to finished product imports. He called on U.S. businessmen to try harder to sell their goods in Japan.

The Japanese leader said the issue of "Star Wars," or deploying defensive weapons in space, may come up in his talks with Reagan "as part of arms control discussions."

But when asked whether Japan, which has strongly urged a resumption of disarmament talks, would take a stand on space weapons, he said that "in promoting arms control talks with the Soviet Union we will take due consideration we do not impair U.S. efforts."

Soft Drinks Found Laced With Poison

TOKYO (AP) — Four cans of soft drinks laced with insecticide have been found in vending machines, police said today, and a newspaper reported receiving a letter from a group threatening to poison the drinks of a major brewery.

A police official said cans of Kirin Brewery Co.'s Tsubu-Tsubu, a pulp-filled orange drink, were found over the weekend in the doors of four vending machines in Yokohama, 18 miles south of Tokyo.

The official, who would not give his name, said the drinks were poisoned with "a small amount" of insecticide, "not enough to be fatal."

He said police were investigating. The Yomiuri Shimbun, Japan's largest newspaper, said today it received a letter Sunday from a group calling itself only "a sect of a radical faction," which wrote, "for the sake of realizing a revolution, we are first targeting the top beer manufacturer, Kirin Brewery."

The letter said poisoned cans of juice had been placed in the area where the Tsubu-Tsubu was found in the vending machines. It also threatened to poison food served at Kirin factories.

A reporter at the newspaper's main office in Tokyo said the letter and the poisoned drinks might be a prank or an imitation of extortion attempts that began in March.

Beethoven Letter To His Only True 'Love' To Go On Auction In London

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — A letter from Ludwig van Beethoven to a woman believed to have been his one true love will be sold in London in May.

Sotheby's auctioneers said Tuesday that a portrait of the composer — which contemporaries said revealed his soul — also will be up for sale.

Beethoven, who never married, had a number of flirtations, but in his letters and diaries he occasionally referred to having loved only one woman. His biographers have argued ever since about her identity.

After his death, an unmailed love letter was found among Beethoven's papers. That letter — not the one up for sale — bore the date, Monday July 6, but without the year or the name of the addressee, whom he called "my Immortal Beloved."

Biographer Maynard Solomon argued in his 1978 book "Beethoven" that the letter must have been written in 1812 to Antonie Brentano, wife of a Frankfurt merchant. Her friendship with Beethoven was well known, but she was never previously identified as the woman he loved.

Mrs. Brentano, born Antonie von Birkenstock in Vienna, would have been 32 in 1812 and Beethoven 42. Her marriage at 18 was arranged and her husband, Franz, was 15 years her senior. They had four children.

Solomon said he found cryptic references in the letter to Beethoven's plan to elope with Antonie and to his final decision not to take her away from her family.

The letter being sold by Sotheby's was written in Vienna on Feb. 6, 1816. Its contents appeared in the 1961 "Beethoven Letters," edited by Emily Anderson, but the whereabouts of the letter itself was unknown. Sotheby's would not disclose the name of the seller.

"By the time this letter was written, passions had cooled but Beethoven was obviously still affected by the relationship," Sotheby's spokeswoman, D'Este Bond, told The Associated Press.

Beethoven wished Antonie and her husband "deep joys" and sent "kisses and embraces" to her children, but it was their mother whom he singled out for his "best greetings" and recalls the "unforgettable" hours they spent together.

The composer wrote that he enclosed an engraved portrait of himself, saying that "several people maintain that in this picture they can also discern my soul quite clearly; but I offer no opinion on that point..."

The print is inscribed in Beethoven's hand, "Greetings to Frau von Brentano..."

Beethoven died in 1827 at age 56. Mrs. Brentano lived to 1869, dying at age 89.

Sotheby's expect the letter and print to fetch between $23,400 and $35,100.

'Immortal'

These portraits of Ludwig van Beethoven's "Immortal Beloved" Antonie von Brentano and her husband Franz, with their children, will be put up for auction in London in May. Experts haven't predicted a price for the portraits, but a love letter and a print of the composer are expected bring as much as $35,000 at the same auction. (AP Laserphoto)

Vietnamese Troops Overrun Cambodian Resistance Camp

NONG SAMET, Thailand (AP) — Backed by artillery and mortar fire, Vietnamese troops and tank units swept into the largest Cambodian resistance camp today, setting it afire and battling a guerrilla counterattack. Thai military and guerrilla officials said.

The Thai Foreign Ministry spokesman, Sawant Kongsiri, described Vietnam's offensive — launched on the anniversary of its Dec. 25, 1978, invasion of Cambodia — as "cruel, savage and brutal." He said Hanoi's troops used artillery and tank guns against civilians, including children, at the Rithisen camp.

There were widely varying casualty figures. Thai military officers near the scene of the battle said 53 guerrillas had been killed and 47 wounded, while casualties among Rithisen's civilians were 63 killed and 87 wounded. Guerrilla leaders claimed far fewer casualties.

Some 61,000 Cambodian refugees who fled Rithisen on Tuesday watched from temporary shelters inside Thailand as huge columns of smoke rose today above their former homes.

Lia Ne, the camp guerrilla leader, said the Vietnamese had moved about 1,500 infantrymen into Rithisen, which had been defended by 3,500 to 4,000 front soldiers. The Vietnamese are backed by the Soviet Union; the guerrillas receive their arms from China.

Ne told newsmen the defenders of Rithisen had split up into groups of 20 to 30 soldiers and were counterattacking the Vietnamese, who moved at least five tanks into the camp.

Ne, who belongs to the anti-communist Khmer People's National Liberation Front, claimed the guerrillas had been able to retake a northern section of the sprawling camp which is set on a sparsely forested plain near the Thai frontier.

The Vietnamese launched their attack Tuesday, and Bun Soi, a minister of the Khmer People's National Liberation Front, said by telephone from near Rithisen: "The condition is tense and serious there."

Bun Soi claimed early today that 10 front guerrillas had been killed and 14 wounded since the fighting began.

The International Committee of the Red Cross, which runs emergency medical service at the frontier, said its doctors were treating wounded civilians from four camps. Aid officials could not reach the camps to report on casualties.

The Vietnamese also were reported attacking Ampil, another of the guerrilla group's camps, but as of today had not been able to breach its defenses.

There was only light shelling today at Ampil, where an Associated Press reporter found many families among the more than 20,000 inhabitants prepared to flee into Thailand at the first sign of serious trouble.

Rithisen and Ampil are located in the central section of the Thai-Cambodian border.

The Khmer People's National Liberation Front has been the major target of the current Vietnamese drive, but Thai military officers also reported the Vietnamese had effectively taken control of the Khmer Rouge camp at Prey Muan on Tuesday and today shelled Khmer Rouge positions south of the key Thai border town of Aranyaprathet.

Researchers Say Tubes May Replace Scalpel

LONDON (AP) — Researchers at London's Hammersmith Hospital today announced the successful development of what they say is a revolutionary new surgical technique that may make the scalpel unnecessary in many cases.

Professor David Allison, director of diagnostic radiology at the hospital's medical school, said the technique involves use of ultra-fine tubes equipped with a variety of tiny implements and guided along veins and arteries to the kidneys, liver, brain and other parts of the body.

It was developed by a medical team at the hospital led by Allison and involves the use of local anesthetics, so patients remain conscious throughout.

They can watch the progress of the operation on a screen as the tubes are used to seal arteries after stabblings and accidents or are used in the treatment of conditions such as ulcers, Allison said.

Kidney stones and gallstones can also be removed using the new technique, and blocked arteries in the limbs, kidneys and even the heart can be cleared, he said.

Doctors guide the tubes through a single minute skin puncture to the trouble spot with the help of a $468,000 computer-controlled X-ray machine.

"These tubes can be used to effect a cure in many conditions which were formerly untreatable or could be treated only by (conventional) surgery," Allison said.

The technique has been developed and perfected over several years and has already been employed successfully in several hundred cases, he said.

Allison said the tubes were "armed" with materials including tiny steel coils, plastic beads, inflatable balloons and even powerful "superglue."

He said these were released into the body through the tip of the tube to stop bleeding, cut the blood supply to an organ or to clear blocked arteries.

hospital last summer when he went into a coma several months after a kidney transplant. His mother, Jeanette Dibble, said that although the transplant was successful, an artery and a vein inside the kidney had subsequently joined up, sending her son's blood-pressure soaring upward.

ON REVIEW — Mother Teresa of Calcutta, who won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1979, embraces the bowed head of one of her Missionaries of Charity who has been working among Ethiopian famine victims. Mother

People suffering from bleeding from many causes including ulcers, penetrating injuries and weak-spots along the walls of arteries could be treated using the new technique, he said.

Many other patients who had not been able to walk for years because of poor circulation in one of their legs were leading normal lives as a result of the treatment, he added.

Patients quoted by the British domestic news agency Press Association paid tribute today to the new technique.

Margaret McCabe said she owed her life to the technique which had been used to stop severe internal bleeding after she underwent a gallstone operation at another hospital.

"I had six or seven operations in the space of six weeks to control the bleeding but they all failed. I had 130 pints of blood transfused to make up the loss of blood, my weight was down... and there seemed no hope for me," she said.

"Luckily, I was then transferred to Hammersmith Hospital and Professor Allison saved my life with the new method," she said.

Another patient, 11-year-old Anthony Dibble, was rushed to the Fires Kill 20 People In Seven States

By The Associated Press

At least 20 people were killed and 20 injured in holiday fires in seven states, including an inferno at an Illinois retirement home that claimed eight lives and three Christmas tree-spawned blazes in California and West Virginia, authorities said.

In other fires on Tuesday, two people died in a Baldwin, Mich., foster home; one person perished in a fire blamed on an electrical malfunction in West Virginia; two people were killed in a Tennessee house fire; two people lost their lives in a Minneapolis suburb house fire; and one man died in a rural Columbia, S.C., house fire.

The fire in the nine-story Karcher Retirement Hotel in Waukegan, Ill., that also left 21 people homeless, apparently was caused by an electrical problem in a tailor shop on the ground floor, authorities said.

"The cause of death for all appeared to be smoke inhalation."

Seven of the dead ranged in age from 67 to 86 years old, and an age was not available on the eighth, she said.

FOCUS

Shrub of Ages

A larger specimen of this evergreen plant, called the creosote bush, may be the oldest living plant on Earth. Scientists in California found a 70-by-25-foot patch of the shrub, believed to be 11,400 years old. Among California's other ancient plant species are the bristlecone pine and the giant sequoia. Giant sequoias don't bear their first flowers until they are 175 to 200 years old. Oddly, a 40-acre hemlock forest in New York City has been undisturbed since Indian times.

DO YOU KNOW — What is the world's tallest species of tree?

TUESDAY'S ANSWER — The Earth's gravitational pull on an object is called the object's "weight."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned downward today, settling back a bit after its pre-Christmas rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 2.65 to 1,207.49 in the first half hour.

Losers took a narrow lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said many investors were preoccupied with year-end maneuvering for tax purposes and, in the case of professional money managers, readying their portfolios for reports to customers and shareholders.

Other than that, Wall Streeters were expecting relatively little action through the last four sessions of the year, with a good many market participants taking extended holiday breaks.

Stock prices advanced on Monday in response to the Federal Reserve's lowering of its discount rate from 8 1/2 to 8 percent, and to hopes that other interest rates would continue to fall. However, rates rose moderately in the bond market in the early going today.

There is very little in the way of economic news on the calendar this week. On Friday, the government is scheduled to report on the index of leading economic indicators for November.

Advance estimates are that the index, which is designed to detect future economic trends, will show a healthy rebound from its decline in October.

Today's early volume leaders among Big Board issues included General Motors, down 1/8 at 77 1/2; Unocal, up 1/4 at 36 3/8; Caterpillar Tractor, down 1/8 at 30 1/4, and International Business Machines, unchanged at 124 1/4.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 11.16 to 1,210.14.

Advances outpaced declines by more than 2 to 1 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 55.55 million shares, against 101.27 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose 62 to 96.18. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .91 at 202.41.

Obituary Column

Basnight

Mr. Willie E. (Bill) Basnight, 78, died Monday at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. He was a resident of 1426 Greenville Blvd.

His funeral service was conducted today in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Revs. Malloy Owen and Wilson Rogers. Burial was in Pinewood Memorial Park.

Mr. Basnight, a native of Edenton, moved to Ayden in 1928 and to Greenville in 1943. He was owner and operator of Citizens Ice and Coal Co. until his retirement in 1969. He was a member of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church and the Grimesland Masonic Lodge No. 475, AF&AM.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Julia Wilson Basnight; one sister, Mrs. Lillian Rogers of Greenville, and one grandson.

In lieu of flowers, memorials may be made to the Grimesland United Methodist Church.

Hudgins

Mrs. Bertha Fitzgerald Hudgins, 86, died Tuesday in Greenville Villa.

Her funeral service will be conducted at 10:30 a.m. Friday in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. Caswell Shaw. Burial will be in Mountain View Cemetery in Danville, Va., at 3:30 p.m. Friday.

Mrs. Hudgins was a native of Danville, Va., and had made her home there before moving to Greenville in 1979. She was a member of Mosley Memorial United Methodist Church.

Surviving are her daughter, Mrs. Robert L. Ramey of Greenville, and two granddaughters.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7-9 p.m. Thursday. The family suggests that persons desiring to make memorial contributions consider the East Carolina University School of Medicine, Family Practice Center.

Galloway

Mr. Willie Galloway died Tuesday at his home in Greenville. He was the husband of Mrs. Annie E. Galloway. Funeral arrangements will be announced by Phillips Brothers Mortuary.

Jackson

Mrs. Jodie Banks Jackson of 604 Venters St., Ayden, died Friday at her home.

Her funeral service will be conducted Thursday at 1 p.m. at the United Holy Church Tabernacle, Gully St., Goldsboro, by Bishop J.A. Forbes. Interment will be in the Ayden Cemetery.

Mrs. Jackson was born in the Pleasant Plain community and had made her home in Ayden for more than 50 years. She was a member of Pleasant Plain Holy Church and served as president of the Home Mission and as a member of the Y.P.H.A., the Eastern District Union and the Southern Convocation of America.

Surviving are a foster son, William E. Jones of the home; a brother, Claude Banks of Camden, N.J.; a sister, Mrs. Sarah Hester of Kinston, and a granddaughter.

Viewing will be held tonight from 6:30 to 7:30 at Pleasant Plain Church on Route 1, Ayden. The family will meet at the Tabernacle in Goldsboro Thursday at 12:30 p.m.

Phillips

AYDEN — Ms. Mary Lee (Trinie) Phillips of 108 W. Second St., Ayden, died Sunday at her home.

Her funeral service was conducted today at Zion Chapel Free Will Baptist Church in Ayden by Bishop Stephen Jones. Interment was in the Ayden Cemetery.

Ms. Phillips was born and reared in the Winterville community and had made her home in the Ayden community for the past 40 years. She was a member of Zion Chapel Church.

Surviving are five brothers, Earnest and Wilbert Phillips, both of Ayden, William Earl (Baby Doll) Phillips of Greenville, Elbert (Pig) Phillips of New Haven, Conn., and Lafayette Pearsall of Winterville, and a sister, Mrs. Helen White of New Bern.

Manning

BETHEL — Mrs. Lydia Smith Manning, 83, died Sunday.

Her funeral service will be held at 2:30 p.m. Thursday at the Bethel Pentecostal Holiness Church by the Rev. Calvin S. Trueblood. Burial will be in the Bethel City Cemetery.

Mrs. Manning is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Earline Knox of Robersonville, Mrs. Jessie Mae Shepherd of Bethel, Mrs. Joye Leggett of Tarboro; two sons, James Carl Manning of Bethel and Leroy Manning of Danville, Va.; three sisters, Mrs. Pattie Everett of Robersonville, Mrs. Maggie Brown of Washington, and Mrs. Olivia Smith Bullock of Grifton; 11 grandchildren, 15 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

The family will receive friends from 7 to 9 tonight at the Ayres-Gray Funeral Home, Bethel.

Robinson

KERSHAW, S.C. — Mr. Vancy Cleveland Robinson, 86, died Sunday.

His funeral service was held today at Buffalo Baptist Church by the Revs. Donald Coppedge, Bobby Owens and Ray Robinson. Burial was in the Buffalo Church Cemetery.

A native of Lancaster County, S.C., Mr. Robinson was a member and deacon of Mission Baptist Church and a former Sunday school teacher and treasurer. He was instrumental in founding the Haile Gold Mine Baptist Church and the Mission Baptist Church.

He is survived by three sons, James H. Robinson of Rock Hill, E. Jack Robinson of Greenville, N.C., the Rev. Ray Robinson of Simpsonville; five daughters, Mrs. Neal (Katie) Thompson of Heath Springs, Mrs. William (Marcene) Fields of Hampton, Ga., Mrs. Charles (Margie) Ballard, Mrs. Guy (Mary) Hinson and Mrs. Gordon (Esther) Kennington, all of Kershaw, 24 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were handled by Cauthen Funeral Home.

Smith

GRIFTON — Mr. Herman Melvin Smith, 64, died Sunday.

His funeral service was held this morning in the First Baptist Church of Grifton by the Rev. Wilkins Winn. Burial was in Evergreen Memorial Estates, Grifton.

Mr. Smith was a World War II veteran and a former owner of the Red and White Grocery Store in Grifton.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Edith Smith of the home; two daughters, Miss Kim Smith of Winterville and Mrs. Jennifer Dilday of Grifton; his father and stepmother, Linwood and Elsie Smith of Colerain; two brothers, Henry Lawrence Smith of Windsor and Jason Smith of Ahoskie, and three sisters, Mrs. Reta Jones of Edenton, Mrs. Vina White of Ahoskie and Mrs. Arlene Thompson of Walkertown.

Memorial contributions may be made to the North Carolina Arthritis Foundation c/o Farmer Funeral Home, P.O. Box 456, Ayden, 28513.

Ward

Mr. James Henry Ward Jr., 42, died Monday at his home on Route 5, Greenville. He was the husband of Shirley Ward of the home and the son of James Henry Ward Sr. of Stokes. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at Hardee's Funeral Home.

Wilkinson

FALKLAND — Mr. Charlie J. Wilkinson, 74, died Monday in Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

His funeral service was conducted today in the Falkland Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Rod Pinder Jr. Burial was in the Queen Anne Cemetery, Fountain.

Mr. Wilkinson was a lifelong resident of the Falkland community and a retired farmer. He was a ruling elder of the Falkland Presbyterian Church and a charter member of the Falkland-Sharp Point Ruritan Club.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Leary Williams Wilkinson of the home; four sons, Charles, Wilbur, Glenn and Lester Earl Wilkinson, all of Falkland; a daughter, Mrs. Olive Morris of Cincinnati; two brothers, John M. Wilkinson of Farmville and Joseph Dalton Wilkinson of Norfolk, Va.; two sisters, Mrs. Adell Andrews of Farmville and Mrs. Nannie Deans of Southern Pines, and one grandchild.

The family suggests that memorial contributions be made to the Falkland Rescue Squad. Arrangements are by Community Funeral Home of Falkland.

Bill Schroeder Begins Second Month With Artificial Heart

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — After spending Christmas surrounded by members of his family, William Schroeder began his second month of life with an artificial heart looking forward to "little things that are coming up," his wife said.

About 20 relatives joined the 52-year-old from Jasper, Ind., at Humana Hospital Audubon for a private dinner and Christmas Mass doctors said he would not have lived to see without the mechanical heart.

"It went very well," said Larry Hastings, technical director of Humana Heart Institute International. "It was great for Mr. Schroeder."

It was another landmark in Schroeder's recovery from the Nov. 25 heart implant and from three small strokes Dec. 13 that left him sometimes disoriented, with memory lapses and difficulty in speaking.

"We're going to take it day by day, but we have little things that are coming up," Schroeder's wife Margaret said at a Christmas Eve news conference.

"We had Thanksgiving, we have Christmas," she said, adding that the scheduled March wedding of a son and the expected birth of a grandchild are among the "little things to look forward to."

Schroeder's first shower bath since the heart implant was planned today. Two people were to help, one in the shower and one outside to check on the portable air pump that drives the mechanical heart.

Doctors were encouraged to see Schroeder, who "would not have lasted the weekend alive" without the operation, "doing much, much better as far as the heart goes," said Dr. William C. DeVries.

DeVries said Monday the implant team is looking for new prospects, though no target date has been set for another operation.

He said Schroeder is in better health after one month than the first implant patient, Dr. Barney Clark, who lived 112 days with an artificial heart in Utah in 1982.

Clark had severe lung and kidney problems and was "a very, very sick medical patient," and "at this time Bill Schroeder is not a severe medical problem," he said. "His lungs are in very good shape, his kidneys are doing well and all these organs are working fine."

Nail Bomb Hurts Florida Youngster

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — An 11-year-old boy was critically injured when a homemade nail bomb attached to a coin-operated air compressor exploded as he tried to fill the tires of a bicycle, police said.

Paul E. Jewell, who turned 11 on Christmas Day, underwent surgery at Orlando Regional Medical Center after Tuesday's incident, said hospital spokeswoman Annette Dumas.

The boy suffered third-degree burns over 60 percent of his body. But reports that he had lost one leg in the explosion were not true, said Ms. Dumas.

"He had surgery during the night to repair severe damage to one leg," she said, adding that the leg wasn't amputated but it wasn't known if the child will lose use of it. He was in critical condition early today, she added.

Editor Freed

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Leftist guerrillas freed the managing editor of the government-owned newspaper La Nacion after holding him hostage for a week.

The editor, Sebastiano Bertolone, 38, was released unharmed Tuesday night in a Santiago suburb and walked to a nearby Roman Catholic church, he later told reporters.

The Manuel Rodriguez Patriotic Front, the Communist-led guerrilla group that had claimed responsibility for the kidnapping, said in a statement that it was freeing the editor in "deference" to Monsignor Juan Francisco Fresno, the Santiago archbishop who had appealed for Bertolone's release.

Another Upset

Mark Rodrigues of Chaminade sits on top of the basket after his team's 71-70 victory over SMU in the Western Airlines Chaminade Classic in Honolulu. Chaminade upset Louisville 67-65 Saturday on a last-second shot by Rodrigues. (AP Laserphoto)

Chaminade Continues To Upset NCAA Elite

HONOLULU (AP) — Chaminade Coach Merv Lopes compares his unlikely giant-killers to a song that, at least for the moment, is No. 1 on the hit parade.

"Not too many people believe in Chaminade, not year in and year out," Lopes said. "One upset and then they tend to forget you, you disappear from their memory. It's like a hit song. So we just want to keep on reminding them we are for real."

Chaminade, a tiny NAIA school, surfaced for the third Christmas in a row to make believers of major-college basketball. After an upset of then-12th ranked Louisville in the first round, the Silverswords won their own Western Airlines Chaminade Basketball Classic on Tuesday with a 71-70 stunner over fourth-ranked Southern Methodist.

"Every team is even when the game starts," Lopes said. "I don't let us put anybody on a pedestal. We start side by side."

In 1982, Chaminade shocked the basketball world with an upset of then top-ranked Virginia, then followed a year later with an upset of Louisville. But Lopes said the win over previously unbeaten SMU may have been the biggest victory yet.

"This was bigger than Virginia because each game we build on what happened the game before," he said. "Virginia built us up for Louisville, which built us up for SMU. But it all started with Virginia."

"We prepare mentally for each game. We had put the Louisville upset out of our minds at Sunday's practice and concentrated on SMU from then."

For a time Tuesday, it looked as if Chaminade's magic would finally fail. SMU held a 70-69 lead when Carl Wright blocked a shot by Chaminade's Mark Rodrigues with nine seconds to go.

After a scramble, Wright came up with the ball as the final second ticked off the clock. But Wright's foot was out of bounds and, because the buzzer hadn't sounded, the game officials gave Chaminade the opportunity to try a final shot.

That's all the chance Chaminade needed. As the buzzer sounded, Keith Whitney's 20-foot shot bounced on the rim and fell through for the winning points. It was the 11th victory in 15 games for the Silverswords.

"I let it go as soon as I touched it," said Whitney, who scored all but two of his 21 points in the second half. "I wanted to 'soft' it up to the basket ... I knew it was going in when it bounced and then everyone came running at me."

"Nice baseline shot," said SMU Coach Dave Bliss, whose club lost for the first time in 10 games. "The referees were right all the way. The buzzer must go off. You have to play until that buzzer goes off because you don't know how much time is left."

In the tournament's consolation game, All-American Wayman Tisdale scored 28 points to go over the 2,000-point career plateau in leading No. 17 Oklahoma to a 90-72 romp over 20th-ranked Louisville.

Whitney, Wright and Tisdale were named to the all-tournament team

Georgetown Rides Poll Lead

By The Associated Press
For the second consecutive week, Georgetown is the unanimous selection as the No. 1 team in the Associated Press Top Twenty basketball poll.

The defending national champion Hoyas received all 56 first-place votes and 1,120 points in nationwide voting by sportswriters and broadcasters. Georgetown easily outdistanced Duke, which remained second with 1,028 points.

Georgetown won two games last week and, for the first time in nine games this season, the victory margin was less than 20 points. Georgetown defeated New Mexico 69-61 in its first road game in the continental United States this season after winning a pair of games in Hawaii.

Duke extended its perfect record through seven games with defeats of Davidson and Northwestern. Memphis State, with 997 points, remained third after victories over Kent State and Iowa.

Southern Methodist jumped two notches to fourth, improving to 9-0 with three victories last week, including a nine-point decision over Oklahoma in Hawaii. The Mustangs had 968 points. St. John's, Syracuse and North Carolina each improved three places in the poll. The Redmen, eighth last week, received 777 points to take fifth place. St. John's won its only game of the week — an 88-59 nationally televised victory over UCLA — in improving to 6-1.

Syracuse, 6-0, and North Carolina, 7-0, received 743 and 722 points, respectively. The Orangemen won their only game last week, an 84-63 romp over Utica, while the Tar Heels ventured across the Pacific Ocean to Japan for victories over Arizona State and Wichita State and the Sunbury Ball title.

Illinois, with 708 points, fell from fourth to eighth after suffering its second loss in 13 games, a 63-62 decision to Loyola, Ill. DePaul, 7-2, suffered the same fate, falling from fifth to ninth with receiving 511 points. The Blue Demons fell to Western Michigan last week 65-64

Walker Recalls Fumbles

MIAMI (AP) — When the Seattle Seahawks run into the Orange Bowl for Saturday's National Football League playoff encounter with Miami, painful memories will course through the mind of the Dolphins' Fulton Walker.

In the Seahawks' 27-20 playoff victory over the Dolphins last year at the Orange Bowl, Walker fumbled two successive kickoffs late in the game. He hasn't been able to erase the memory.

"I can still remember it, seeing nothing but daylight after spinning off a guy, and then, from nowhere, somebody stripping it," he said Monday.

Walker wants a chance to redeem himself against the same team in a similar situation. Thus, he was pulling for the Seahawks in last week's AFC Wild Card game against the Los Angeles Raiders. He got his wish when Seattle won 13-7 to earn a return trip to Miami for the AFC semifinals.

Walker now looks forward to showing the Seahawks the real Fulton Walker, the one who led the NFL in kickoff returns in 1983 with a 26.7 average and not the fumbling impostor who showed up for the playoffs.

"I think most of the guys wanted to play Seattle more than the Raiders. Not for any reason other than to take away the memory of what happened last year," said Walker.

"I know for sure that I have something to prove," he added. "And I just have to wait until game day so I can do it to the fullest."

Tight Defense

Adkins' Jumper Leads Maryland

HONOLULU (AP) — Andre Morgan scored 16 points and three other players scored in double figures to lead Hawaii to a 66-58 victory over Cornell in first round action of the 21st Annual Rainbow Classic Basketball Tournament here.

In the tournament's first game Tuesday night, Jeff Adkins hit a 15-foot jump shot with one second to play in overtime to give Maryland a 70-68 victory win over Iowa.

The Rainbows, now 4-4, will meet Maryland in one semifinal game Thursday night. The other semifinal match will be decided after a Wednesday night game between the University of Washington and Iowa State. Wednesday's second scheduled game is between Georgia Tech and Arkansas.

Hawaii's Morgan broke open the game by hitting layup with 4:50 left to break a 52-all tie and followed with a driving layup to make it 56-52 10 seconds later.

Guard William Colston had 12 points, hit two foul shots on a technical foul against Cornell Coach Tom Miller and Ray Arthur hit the first of two foul shots to make it 59-52 with 3:02 left.

Anthony Jones completed the string with a jump shot to make it 61-52 with 2:18 to play and Cornell could not close the gap.

Arthur had 11 points and Jones 10 to round out a balanced scoring attack for the Rainbows. Ken Bantum led Cornell with 31 points.

In the first game, Len Bias, a 6-4 forward missed a shot with four seconds left and the ball then bounced to Adkins who put it through to give the Terrapins their ninth straight win after a season-opening defeat.

Andre Banks of Iowa tied the game at 68-all with 2:04 to go and Adkins had come up with a blocked shot off Jeff Moe to set the last scoring opportunity for the Terrapins.

Adrian Branch, a 6-8 forward guard tied up the game in regulation at 64-all on a jumper with with four seconds left. He finished the game with 21 points, while Bias led the team scoring with 24.

Greg Stokes led Iowa with 29 points followed by Gerry Wright with 19.

The loss dropped Iowa to 9-2.

Fletcher, Mays Head AP All-South Team

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Running backs James Fletcher and Jerry Mays, who scored a combined 79 touchdowns this season, top the 66th annual All-South high school all-star football team compiled by The Orlando Sentinel.

Fletcher, a 5-11, 225-pound bruiser from Somerset, Ky., romped for 46 touchdowns. Mays, a 5-8, 170-pound scatback from Thomson, Ga., crossed the goal line 33 times while rushing for 2,300 yards.

They are two of the elite Dixie Dozen, which represents the top players in each of the 12 states considered in The Sentinel's yearly survey of prep standouts released Christmas Day.

Fletcher and Mays aren't the only runners at the top of the list. Gene Jelks was the workhorse ball-carrier for unbeaten Emma Samson High in Gadsden, Ala., and James Rouse toted the ball for Parkview High in Little Rock, Ark.

A pair of quarterbacks — Todd Ellis of Greensboro, N.C., and Chris Osgood of Moss Point, Miss. — were honored. Ellis accounted for more than 2,000 yards this season and was named The Associated Press player of the year in the state, while Osgood passed for 19 touchdowns and ran for three more.

Hart Lee Dykes, of Bay City, Texas, earned his spot in the Dixie Dozen by snaring 42 passes for 1,200 yards and a 28.6 yard-per-catch performance. When the other team had the ball, Dykes switched to defensive back, intercepting eight passes and returning two for touchdowns.

Kerry Watkins of Pensacola, Fla., is a full-time defensive back, but he also displayed his speed on kick returns. Watkins scored touchdowns on kickoff returns in the semifinal and championship games to lead Woodham High to the Class AAAA state title and gain Florida's spot on the Dozen.

The other defensive back on the team is Lynwood Lumpkins of Hampton, Va., who averaged more than 10 tackles per game.

Lumpkins probably didn't run into many receivers as large as Oliver Lawrence, a 235-pound tight end. Lawrence, who caught more than 30 passes for Neville High in Monroe, La., is his state's representative on the team.

Eric Still, a 270-pound lineman from Germantown, Tenn., is the largest player in the Dozen, and the final final member is Dorian Marriable, a 6-3, 215-pound linebacker from Spartanburg, S.C.

All of the Dixie Dozen honorees are seniors.

The newspaper's entire 137-man All-South team included 65 backs and 14 receivers. The largest player on the list was Fred Childress of West Helena, Ark., a two-way tackle who was listed at 297 pounds. And the youngest was sophomore running back Emmitt Smith of Escambia High in Pensacola.

Noll, Steelers Respect Broncos

By The Associated Press

Nobody in pro football appreciates defense more than Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll, who assembled the Steel Curtain that produced four Steeler Super Bowl championships.

So Pittsburgh goes into Sunday's American Football Conference semifinal game with proper respect for the Denver Broncos, who allowed only 241 points all season, second lowest in the National Football League.

Noll was not surprised that the wild-card victories of the New York Giants and Seattle Seahawks were constructed by stifling defenses that simply shut down the Los Angeles Rams and Los Angeles Raiders.

"Defense has been important in championship football games as long as I can remember," Noll said. "Before you can win, you have to not lose."

Denver didn't lose very frequently, dropping only three games all season. And the opportunistic Bronco defenders scored eight touchdowns after forcing fumbles and picking off passes. Noll, a connoisseur of defense, was suitably impressed.

Bronco Coach Dan Reeves knows the Steelers' reputation for being stingy with yards and points and spent much of the last week drilling Denver on defending against the blitz. "The Steelers blitz a lot more than most people," Reeves said.

Nobody, however, blitzes more than the Chicago Bears, who led the league in rushing defense, total defense and set a record with 72 quarterback sacks. The Washington Redskins, hoping for a third straight trip to the Super Bowl, must control the Bear defenders as well as handle Walter Payton, the NFL's all-time rushing leader.

Redskin Coach Joe Gibbs, analysing the films, said Chicago's most frequent defensive set had produced blitzes almost three-quarters of the times they lined up in it. "What scares you offensively is that they force things," Gibbs said. "Their interior rushers, nobody can block."

Blitzing, of course, has its price. It leaves the defensive secondary in man-to-man coverage and against the Redskins that can mean trouble with receivers like Art Monk, who broke the NFL single season record with 106 catches this season.

The Bears thought they would be playing in San Francisco this weekend but the New York Giants changed those plans when they upset the Los Angeles Rams in the NFC wild-card game. That thrust the Giants into the NFC semifinal against the 49ers, whose 15-1 record was the best mark in the NFL this season.

"The 49ers are the best team in football right now," New York linebacker Lawrence Taylor said. "This will be our Super Bowl."

The game affords the Giants a chance at revenge for a midseason 31-10 loss which the 49ers administered to them in a Monday night game. The same kind of incentive helped them eliminate the Rams, who had embarrassed them 33-12 during the season. Coach Bill Parcells used the early-season loss to drive his team last week and promised to do the same this week.

The Giants stayed conservative, using a short-pass attack and aggressive defense to defeat the Rams. A day earlier, Seattle did the same thing against the Los Angeles Raiders with a throwback offense that included only 10 passes all day by Dave Krieg. Now the question is whether they'll stay with the ground game against Miami.

Coach Chuck Knox isn't saying which way he'll go but Don Shula, coach of the Dolphins figures it will be a mix, especially after Krieg threw for 32 touchdowns this season, second only to Miami's Dan Marino, who had a record-breaking 48.

"You have to think they're going to run against us," Shula said, "but you also know they're going to throw."

Lavette Runs For Records, Puts 'Tech On The Map'

ATLANTA (AP) — During four seasons at Georgia Tech, outgoing tailback Ramblin Robert Lavette rushed for more than three miles, a man for all purposes who rolled up 5,393 yards total offense and in the words of Coach Bill Curry "put Georgia Tech on the map."

"Visions of Ramblin Robert will always be in Tech people's minds as long as they live," quarterback John Dewberry told The Atlanta Constitution in a story published in today's editions. "In all the dim seasons and dreary weather, Robert was a ray of hope."

Lavette began his college career with two touchdowns in a 24-21 win over Alabama — "I can almost remember the entire game," he said — and scored one touchdown in his last game, a 35-18 win over Georgia.

His 6-foot, 192-pound body is compact, but his shoulders don't look wide enough to handle the burden of 914 career rushes, an average of 21 per game.

His legs, particularly the right one, are slightly bowed, which helps him cut and start and stop.

Lavette leaves a legacy of 19 school records, including most points scored in a career, 276, and most touchdowns in a career, 46. He is the top scorer, runner and receiver in Yellow Jackets history, ranks 17th on the NCAA all-time rushing list with his 4,066 yards and has rushed for at least 100 yards in 18 games.

"In terms of what he's done, he's put Georgia Tech on the map," Curry said. "We were nothing, a laughingstock. Now we're a respectable program, but we have a long way to go."

"He gave us credibility with his accomplishments and his name, more so than anyone else."

He never became an All-American and understood too well why he would never win the Heisman Trophy for which he was touted. "In order to have a chance, our team had to win big and go to a major bowl," Lavette said.

With Lavette in the backfield, the Yellow Jackets were 16-27-1 and never were invited to a bowl game.

He said he tries to forget the bad times, the losses. "I realized there's more to life than just playing football," he said. "Sometimes you win, sometimes you lose. Sooner or later the game is over and people remember you by what kind of person you were, not whether you won or lost."

Next month, Lavette will play in the Hula and the Senior bowls, small consolation before the pro draft, where he's expected to go in the first four rounds.

"There will always be the thought in my mind," said Dewberry, "if Robert was there, he would have caught that ball or made that first down. I'm going to miss him, God bless the kid, he was great for Georgia Tech and for me personally."

Rice, Lewis Repeat Division I-AA Honor

By The Associated Press

Wide receiver Jerry Rice of Mississippi Valley State and running back Paul Lewis of Boston University have been named to The Associated Press Division I-AA All-American football team for the second year in a row.

Rice was the nation's top receiver with 103 catches for 1,682 yards and 27 touchdowns while Lewis rushed for 1,165 yards and finished fourth nationally with an average of 116.5 yards a game.

They join two other repeaters — guard Mike Grantham of Northeast Louisiana and defensive tackle Chris Gunderman of Western Illinois, who made last year's team as a nose guard.

Also on the team named Tuesday is Mississippi Valley State's record-breaking quarterback, Willie Totten, who led Division I-AA both in total offense, averaging 457.2 yards a game, and in passing efficiency. He completed 324 of 518 passes for 4,557 yards and 56 touchdowns.

The other running back is Gene Lake of Delaware State, who topped the division with 1,722 yards. He averaged 7.2 yards a carry and scored 20 touchdowns.

The other wide receiver is Tom Stenglein of Colgate, who caught 62 passes for 1,184 yards and 11 touchdowns, while the tight end is Dewayne Harrison of Nicholls State, who set a school record with 51 receptions.

The rest of the offensive unit consists of tackles Roger Caron of Harvard and Bruce Collie of Texas-Arlington, guard Kevin Garvey of Holy Cross, center Scott Forester of Southwest Texas State and freshman placekicker Kirk Roach of Western Carolina, who converted all 24 of his extra-point attempts and 16 of 24 field goal tries. All his misses came from more than 45 yards out.

Gray Kicks Blue 33-6

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Tennessee's Faud Reveiz said his four field goals in the 47th annual Blue-Gray Classic shows he can kick like a pro, whether the pros want him or not.

Reveiz's footwork and two touchdown receptions by Mississippi Valley's Jerry Rice highlighted a 484-yard offensive showing that gave the South a 33-6 victory over the North Tuesday.

Reveiz kicked field goals of 41, 43, 52 and 30 yards without using a tee for the first time in his career.

Pro kickers aren't allowed to use a tee, and some college kickers were never able to make the adjustment. But Reveiz said his first try "really helped my confidence."

Reveiz has yet to hear anything from professional scouts, but after Tuesday's kicking performance, he said: "Even if I end up not being good enough, it won't be the end of my life."

Rice, the game's most valuable player and a member of The Associated Press Division I-AA All-America team, caught four passes for 101 yards, one a 60-yard touchdown throw from Alabama halfback Paul Ott Carruth.

The Gray, with Clemson's Mike

Eppley and Vanderbilt's Kurt Page directing the offense, pounded out 233 yards rushing and 251 yards passing, while the South defenders held the Blue offense to seven yards on the ground and 193 passing.

The game's leading rusher was Alabama's Ricky Moore, who picked up 113 yards in 13 carries. North Carolina State's Joe McIntosh, the workhorse of the South rushing attack with 22 carries, added 78 yards.

The South took charge after Brigham Young's Lee Johnson booted a 39-yard field goal to give the Blues a 3-0 lead with 6:34 left in the first quarter.

Following an exchange of punts, Memphis State's Derrick Burroughs intercepted a pass by Pacific's Paul Berner and returned it 54 yards for a touchdown. The extra point by Reveiz gave the Gray a 7-3 lead midway through the first quarter.

Johnson made it 7-6 with a 59-yard field goal with 7:57 left in the first half, but the South responded by moving 70 yards for its second touchdown. Page finished the 10-play drive with a 14-yard touchdown pass to Rice.

King Nets 60, Knicks Fall

By The Associated Press
 NEW YORK — For Bernard King, a career-high 60-point performance was nothing to be excited about.

"I'd rather have scored 10 and we had won the game," King said Tuesday night when, despite King's high-powered performance, the New York Knicks lost a 120-114 National Basketball Association decision to the New Jersey Nets.

The point total was not only a season high for the NBA this year, but was the highest since April 9, 1978, when Denver's David Thompson had 73 and San Antonio's George Gervin 63 in separate games. King's 60 points also broke the Knicks' club record of 57 set by Richie Guerin in 1959.

The previous NBA high this season was 59 by Golden State's Purvis Short, also against the Nets.

"We didn't win the game — and that's what counts," King said. "To lose a game that we had control of the whole way is very frustrating. It was a tough game to let get away from us."

In the other NBA action Tuesday night, Philadelphia edged Detroit 109-108, Portland beat Golden State 106-97 and Cleveland stopped Atlanta 109-106.

With King scoring 40 of his points in the first half, the Knicks twice held leads of 16 points before finishing with a 64-54 advantage at halftime. But Michael Ray Richardson, who scored 24 of his 36 points in the second half, rallied the Nets to their first road victory after eight straight losses.

Richardson gave the Nets their first lead of the game since the opening basket when he converted a three-point play to make it 106-105 with five minutes left in the game.

The Knicks reclaimed the lead, but then the Nets reeled off 12 straight points — four by Richardson — to put the game away.

"I just decided in the second half that it was going to be my turn," said Richardson. "It's a big win for us. It's Christmas, and it's nice because we've come so close and yet so far."

Richardson wasn't the only big gun for the Nets, who also got 27 points and 14 rebounds from Mike Gminski and 24 points from Kelvin Ransey.

"It was a valiant effort," said Nets Coach Stan Albeck after watching his injury-plagued team break a two-game losing streak and win for only the fourth time in 13 games.

"We just hitched up our pants and said, 'Let's go for it.' I looked at the halftime stats and Bernard had 40. Everybody else (on the Knicks) had two and three. So we just wanted to get the ball out of his hands in the second half."

While the Nets didn't entirely stop the Knick star in the second half, they did at least slow him down a bit, with the help of defensive specialist George Johnson, the fifth player to guard King. Johnson also helped the Nets with four blocked shots.

"George's long arms bothered him a little bit in the second half," Albeck said. "But it was a great individual achievement by Bernard."

Only two other Knick players were in double scoring figures — Pat Cummings and Rory Sparrow, both with 13.

"Bernard was sensational," Knicks Coach Hubie Brown said. "Unfortunately their guards took over in the second half. (And) George Johnson and Gminski took our guys to school."

76ers 109, Pistons 108
 Moses Malone scored 28 points and Andrew Toney made two free throws with 30 seconds remaining to lead Philadelphia over Detroit. The victory was the 76ers' 13th in their last 15 games and improved their record to 22-6.

The Sixers trailed only in the first two minutes of the game, but had to hold off the Pistons in the fourth quarter.

Trail Blazers 106, Warriors 97
 Clyde Drexler scored 26 points, collected 11 rebounds and eight assists as Portland ended a seven-game losing streak by beating Golden State.

The victory, Portland's 14th in 29 games, was costly as the Blazers lost all-star guard Jim Paxson in the first quarter with a dislocated finger on his left hand.

Cavaliers 109, Hawks 106
 Phil Hubbard scored 28 points to lead Cleveland over Atlanta. The Cavaliers have won four of their last five games, but still have the worst record in the league at 6-20. The Cavaliers, however, are 3-1 against the Hawks.

The Hawks rallied to lead 101-96 on Mike Glenn's jump shot with 6:36 remaining. But John Bagley then scored two baskets and Mel Turpin and Hubbard each added a basket to give the Cavaliers a 104-101 lead with 4:43 to go and they never trailed.

along with Louisville's Billy Thompson and Rodrigues, whose last-second shot beat Louisville in the opening round. SMU's Jon Koneak, who scored 24 points in the title game, was named most valuable player.

Tisdale, with 2,009 points, needs 107 points to surpass the Big Eight career record of 2,115 owned by Kansas State's Mike Evans.

Oklahoma was forced to go to what Coach Billy Tubbs called "a spread offense" when Tisdale fouled out in the second half.

"Wayman was having a great day," said Tubbs. "It's a shame he got two really picky fouls called on him that takes him out of the game. He's the most-abused-by-the-defense player in the country."

"I thought the key was going to the four corners when we got into foul trouble. We probably haven't spent 10 minutes practicing on that all year because you can't use it in the Big Eight because of the 45-second shot clock. But that was the thing that paid off."

Louisville Coach Denny Crum wasn't a bit surprised by that tactic.

"Three of our top four guards are out with injuries and when you've got three or four forwards out there playing, you've got to guard their people with inexperienced freshmen, sophomores and forwards. That's hard to do," he said.

Also Tuesday, the 21st Rainbow Classic opened with host Hawaii using 16 points by Andre Morgan to get by Cornell 66-58. In the other first-round game, Jeff Adkins' 15-foot jumper with one second left gave Maryland a 70-68 victory over Iowa.

The Rainbows, 4-4, will meet

Maryland, 9-1, in a semifinal game Thursday night. The other semifinal matchup will be decided Wednesday night when No. 11 Washington tangles with Iowa State and No. 10 Georgia Tech takes on Arkansas.

before rallying for a 61-56 victory over Northwestern.

Georgia Tech, 6-1, rounded out the Top Ten with 499 points. The Yellow Jackets had two easy victories during the week, a 38-point romp over North Carolina A&T and a 31-point decision over Augusta College.

The Second Ten is Washington, Kansas, Michigan, North Carolina State, Indiana, Virginia Tech, Oklahoma, Louisiana State, Louisiana Tech and Louisville.

Robinson Recalls Loss

MONROE, La. (AP) — Former Kansas City Chiefs safety Johnny Robinson says he'll always remember Christmas Day 1971 because that's when defending Super Bowl champion Kansas City lost to Miami in the longest pro football playoff game in history.

It wasn't playing on Christmas, or even playing in an 82-minute game that made it so bad, Robinson said Tuesday.

"If we had won, it would have been one of the best Christmases I've ever had," he said.

"But because we lost, it turned out to be one of the worst."

"When you're in the playoffs, it supersedes everything else, even Christmas."

The Dolphins won 27-24 in second overtime on a field goal kicked by Garo Yepremian. Miami went on to win the Super Bowl a few weeks later.

The closest Kansas City came to winning the game was on a 31-yard field-goal attempt near the end of regulation play. But Jan Stenerud, now with Minnesota, missed.

"He was the best kicker in professional football, and out of all the field goals that guy's missed, that's the one he's remembered for," said Robinson.

Kosar Rose From Ranks

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Recruited as the quarterback who would succeed all-everthing Jim Kelly at the University of Miami, Bernie Kosar was just getting comfortable when Coach Howard Schnellenberger gave him the news that he would spend his freshman year as a redshirt.

Kosar had come to play, but the idea of sitting out a year sort of appealed to him. It would be an opportunity to adjust to college life without the week-to-week pressure of football. With Kelly there, he would not be playing anyway. So why not redshirt?

Then he found out the job description.

"Mostly, what you do is get beat up in practice," he said.

Quarterbacks are routinely off-limits to hits in workouts — unless they're posing as the opposition's passer. Then they are entirely available to ambitious defensive players.

"As you move up the ladder, you get less and less hits," Kosar said. "Down the ladder, the ladder gets kicked."

Kosar's situation deteriorated even more when Kelly was injured and backup Mark Richt was suspended. That left Miami with a couple of Kosar's underclass quarterback colleagues, Kyle Vanderweide and Vinny Testaverde, in the lineup while he sat.

"These were the two guys ahead of me, guys I would have to compete with, and they were playing in games," Kosar said. "There were some serious moments of doubts that year for me."

Still, Kosar had faith in Schnellenberger, who had promised him a fair shot to win the job in spring practice.

"There's a lot of lying and exaggeration in recruiting, but I can't think of one fact Coach Schnellenberger or his staff stretched or lied about to me. That's one reason I have so much respect for the man."

Schnellenberger kept his promise in spring practice and Kosar fulfilled his, leading Miami to the national championship the next season, beating Nebraska in the Orange Bowl last Jan. 1 to nail down the title.

The aftermath of that victory didn't last long, though. By June, Schnellenberger had quit in a dispute with the administration, and was replaced by Jimmy Johnson, who came over from Oklahoma State. The change was a jolt for the team, but the quarterback wasn't terribly surprised.

"The more I get to know Coach Schnellenberger, the more I understand him and his personality. He runs his team in a military manner. He has to have total control of a situation."

Johnson was hired June 5, giving him little time to prepare for the season. The team greeted the switch with understandable concern.

"At first, I was worried," Kosar said. "Anytime you lose a guy of Coach Schnellenberger's magnitude, it's got to be disappointing. It's part of life though. Changes happen. You've just got to make the best of it."

Miami did, posting an 8-4 record in a transition season. Now Kosar will be playing again on New Year's Day, facing UCLA in the Fiesta Bowl in a game that will be televised by NBC. It won't be for the national championship, but it will do. And anything like Miami's last two outings — a 42-40 loss to Maryland after the Hurricanes led 31-0 at halftime, and a 47-45 loss to Boston College in a Kosar-Doug Flutie shootout, would be memorable football.

To his credit, Johnson has maintained his sense of humor despite those last two games. The coach studied Miami's statistics and noted Kosar's school records for yards (1,114) and touchdowns (9) set this season.

"We've broken every offensive record at Miami this year," he noted, nodding at his quarterback.

"It's amazing what I can do with a guy in just a couple of months."

Finzer Finds NFL Mark

CHICAGO (AP) — Like a fine wine, Chicago Bears punter Dave Finzer needed time to mature and requires special attention to be appreciated.

A glance at the National Football League statistics showed Finzer ranked just 19th among punters this season in terms of average yards per kick. But a closer look shows the 25-year-old rookie ranked first in punts that landed inside an opponent's 20-yard line.

The latter statistic is important because such kicks bury opponents deep in their own territory.

Coach Mike Ditka says Finzer's kicking will be crucial in Chicago's National Football Conference playoff game Sunday against the Washington Redskins.

"The special teams take on added importance" in a playoff game, Ditka said.

Although Finzer averaged just 40.1 yards in his 83 kicks, 26 of those boots landed inside the 20. Ray Guy of the Los Angeles Raiders was second in this category with 25 punts inside the 20.

Stronger legs can blast the ball out of the end zone, but Finzer knows that accuracy and height are just as important as strength.

His towering punts are difficult to return, and opponents are averaging just 4.4 yards per return against him. The Bears average 8.7 yards per return.

Ditka said Finzer's accuracy is especially impressive because he kicks in tricky Soldier Field, where turbulent winds sweep in off adjacent Lake Michigan.

"The more he matures, he'll go on to be one of the better kickers in the league," Ditka said. "He's most effective from 34 to 35 yards away."

Finzer always had promise, but his path to NFL success was rocky.

He was a high school football and baseball star in suburban Wilmette and went to the University of Illinois on a football scholarship. But his grades weren't as good as his kicking, and he dropped out of school for six months.

After working as a landscaper in suburban Chicago, he decided to return to college at DePauw University, a Division III school in Greencastle, Ind.

After graduation, he was cut by the Bears in 1983, played a bit for the Chicago Blitz of the United States Football League, and then hooked up as a second-string punter with San Diego. He was traded to the Bears in August and beat out veteran Ray Stachowicz.

"Dave's the kind of kid you want on your football team," Ditka said. "He has good qualities. He's a good athlete and a hard-working kid."

Finzer said there was no secret in aiming punts, and his technique is the same no matter the distance he's trying to kick.

"I practice three days per week and kick about 20 punts into the corner. I was never a big distance punter," said the 6-foot, 195-pounder.

The soft-spoken Finzer expressed relief after the Bears' last regular-season game, against Detroit, when he kicked three punts inside the Lions' 20-yard line.

"It finally sunk in that I was a veteran," he said. "I've played 16 games."

Giants Earn Opportunity To Get Even With 49ers

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Casey Merrill says the best thing about beating the Los Angeles Rams is that it gives the New York Giants a chance to get even with the San Francisco 49ers.

The Giants, 9-7, will meet the 49ers, 15-1, for the second time this season on Saturday in a National Football Conference semifinal playoff game. San Francisco routed New York 31-10 in a nationally televised regular-season National Football League game earlier this year.

Parcells said he would continue to use starting linebacker Lawrence Taylor and safety Terry Kinard on the Giants special teams. The two were put on special teams for the game against the Rams.

"Against the Rams, our special teams were really good," said Parcells. "There were at least 10 stone-cold licks out there."

The Giants will work out this week at the University of California at Fresno.

Parcells said he would continue to use starting linebacker Lawrence Taylor and safety Terry Kinard on the Giants special teams. The two were put on special teams for the game against the Rams.

"Against the Rams, our special teams were really good," said Parcells. "There were at least 10 stone-cold licks out there."

The Giants will work out this week at the University of California at Fresno.

New York qualified for the rematch with the 49ers by defeating the Los Angeles Rams 16-13 in the NFC wild-card game on Sunday. The Rams had beaten the Giants 33-12 earlier in the season.

Pat Dye Plans To Use Young Tiger Players

"Those were the two worst games we played this season," said Merrill, a 260-pound defensive end. "We were in every other game. Now we have avenged one loss and we're looking to avenge the other."

A Las Vegas oddsmaker already has made the Giants a 10-point underdog.

"We have the kind of team that responds well to adversity," said Merrill. "We are the type of team that can beat anyone on any given day. All we have to do is hit and play with emotion."

Kenny Daniel, who has replaced injured All-Pro Mark Haynes at cornerback, said the Giants have won the big games this season when they had to win.

"It's funny," he said. "Whenever this team wants to do it, we do it. If you go back and look, we have won every game we absolutely had to win."

There is no second chance in the playoffs and the Giants must stop 49ers quarterback Joe Montana in order to advance to the conference title game against the winner of Sunday's Washington-Chicago game.

Montana threw three touchdown passes and Dana McLemore returned a punt 79 yards for another touchdown in the 49ers victory over the Giants on Oct. 8.

"They've got a great quarterback and they've got great speed in (Freddie) Solomon and (Renaldo) Nehemiah," said Giants Coach Bill MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Auburn football Coach Pat Dye says he plans to send as many players as he can into Thursday's Liberty Bowl matchup with Arkansas.

"We're not going to play anybody who can't play, but we're going to play a lot of people," Dye said Monday at a press conference.

"We've got a lot of kids that worked hard all year long... and our schedule has been so difficult... they haven't had a chance to play much. I think we're going to do it as a reward," he said.

And Dye, whose Tigers finished the regular season at 8-4, said he'll use the post season game to check out some newer members of his squad.

"We're going to play some of the young ones to just kind of see how they react to a game of this sort and try to get some kind of idea about them for next year," Dye said.

But he said the plan to try young players doesn't mean he expects easy going with the Razorbacks, who were 7-3-1 at the end of regular season play.

"Both Auburn and Arkansas are excellent football teams. The Liberty Bowl has got a heck of a matchup even though they've lost three games and we've lost four," he said.

Dye acknowledged, however, that he'd rather be ending the year in New Orleans at the Sugar Bowl.

Auburn was denied a Sugar Bowl spot because of a 17-15 loss to Alabama on Dec. 1.

"Naturally, we would like to be in the Sugar Bowl, that's our goal every year to be in the Sugar Bowl. You have some disappointment there, but we're excited about being in Memphis and playing Arkansas," he said.

Arkansas Coach Ken Hatfield said Auburn has some of the biggest and strongest players his team has faced all season.

"They have a rich tradition. They've been a national championship team. They have a national championship program," Hatfield said.

Although Auburn and Arkansas both use an offense based on the wishbone, their approaches to it are different, Hatfield said.

Texas, Iowa Prepare For Freedom Bowl

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Two teams that suffered through poor finishes in the regular football season are looking to the inaugural Freedom Bowl as an opportunity to erase some of the bad memories.

The Texas Longhorns, who lost their final two games to finish 7-4-1, meet the Iowa Hawkeyes, who went 1-2-1 in their final four games and ended up 7-3-1, meet tonight in the bowl game at Anaheim Stadium. Kickoff will be 5 p.m., PST.

Texas Coach Fred Akers wants his team to enjoy its trip to California.

"It's a reward for a football team," Akers said at a press conference. "I would be upset if all we did was come out and think about the game. We would miss a great deal of what a bowl really is."

"We're a bowl team. So you generally gave players who know how to turn on and turn off. They should know when business takes the place of pleasure."

Iowa Coach Hayden Fry has his team thinking the same way.

Helms Backs Reagan's S. African Policy

GREENSBORO (AP) — Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., reacting to criticism by conservatives of the Reagan administration's policy of quiet diplomacy for South Africa, says blacks there are better off than those on the rest of the continent.

"Blacks of South Africa are almost 100 times better off than blacks elsewhere in Africa," Helms said, alluding to their economic standing.

Helms said he didn't support apartheid but believes fellow conservatives in Congress are taking the wrong approach in harshly criticizing South Africa.

Helms, the second-ranking member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the Reagan administration's policy of quiet diplomacy or "constructive engagement" to bring about change in South Africa is working.

"The question of discrimination is something nobody likes," Helms said of South Africa's white-ruled government that denies blacks voting privileges and other basic rights. "(But) it is better to reason with anti-communist governments than to overthrow them."

Helms was reacting to letters sent to the president by 35 conservative representatives, most of them Republican, and two Republican senators, Richard Lugar of Indiana and Nancy Kassebaum of Kansas.

The House conservatives urged that the United States show "a demonstrated sense of urgency" toward ending apartheid in South Africa. If rapid change doesn't come, the United States should consider economic and diplomatic sanctions, the conservatives said.

The letter from Lugar and Kassebaum urged the United States to take a strong public stand against apartheid. Lugar is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The criticisms are part of a growing national movement against South Africa, where whites make up only 19 percent of the population yet dominate government and social interaction.

Demonstrations and arrests have taken place almost daily outside the South African embassy in Washington.

A group of blacks in Greensboro was unhappy that the new downtown Sheraton Hotel was offering a Krugerrand, a gold coin from South Africa, as a prize in a New Year's Eve promotion. They threatened to protest, but the Sheraton agreed to use another prize and promised to apologize to black groups in the area.

Anglican Bishop Desmond Tutu, the black South African who recently was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize, has called the Reagan policy of "constructive engagement" immoral and evil.

Helms said in a telephone interview from Raleigh earlier this month that the best way for those who want change in South Africa is to "work quietly without a lot of fanfare."

He said some people figure that if "they can get a good headline it will help them politically, but it doesn't help the problem."

"Foreign relations can't be done on the front page of the newspaper or on the TV screen. It has to be done quietly," Helms said.

Official Says China's Thaw Is For Real

By TOM MINEHART
AP Business Writer
CHARLOTTE (AP) — A state Commerce Department official back from a trade scouting trip to the Far East says the visit left him with the impression that North Carolina is missing out on one of the world's hottest growth areas.

Despite China's cyclical history of central control and relaxation, Gordon McRoberts, the department's director for international marketing, believes the thaw is here to stay.

"There's no assurance that the relaxation of import controls will be ongoing, but from a practical standpoint, it appears it will be long-range," he said. "What they need are success stories. If it works, if it increases production... I think it will stay open."

"It's in our best interest to help make it work. It's a billion people market, and if it helps stabilize their economy, it helps us in the long run because we are exporting."

McRoberts returned Dec. 15 from a three-week trip with state ports officials to Korea, Taiwan, Hong Kong, Singapore and mainland China.

"As the Chinese say, now is the propitious moment," McRoberts said. "The bamboo curtain is wide open."

He found the Chinese are mainly interested in products they can use to develop their economy.

"You're not going to sell toys and textiles to the Chinese," he said. "You're going to sell them textile machinery and machinery to make toys."

North Carolina companies have a good opportunity to export many types of manufacturing machinery, along with computers, software, computer supplies, telecommunications equipment and medical equipment.

"China is looking to the west for expertise, turnkey projects like grain storage technology, everything from A to Z..." he said.

But the most surprising thing, McRoberts discovered, was China's need for furniture.

"China is developing a hotel industry for western visitors — businessmen and tourists," he said. "They have a severe shortage of hardwoods. We have the hardwood and we also have the furniture."

Some North Carolina companies have already tapped this market.

McRoberts said some American businessmen were surprised to see the Thomasville label on their hotel chairs in Peking. Thomasville shipped some $1 million worth of furniture to China in 1984, he said.

Leader Says Aid Needed For Textiles

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's textile industry is taking all the right steps to improve business and it's up to legislators in Washington to help the industry fight imports that reached record levels in 1984, the president of the N.C. Textile Manufacturers Association said.

"The sad thing is that the industry is doing all the right things," Edward P. Schrum said Tuesday. "We are modernizing our plants — over $52 million was invested in North Carolina in fiscal 1984-84. We are the most efficient textile industry in the world and our quality is second to none. But obviously that is not enough when you are competing with government-controlled or subsidized industries or companies that violate trade agreements."

Imports of textiles and apparel in 1984 created a projected trade deficit for the United States of $16.7 billion — up 58 percent over the record 1983 deficit of $10.6 billion. Imports have been blamed for closings at 40 North Carolina textile plants this year and the loss of 10,000 jobs. The industry employs about 210,000 people in North Carolina.

Schrum said he hoped to see a rollback of imports to 1983 levels with import growth limited to market growth and a U.S.-controlled import licensing program.

"Surging imports, especially during the last quarter of 1984, have disrupted many North Carolina families, companies and communities and I expect this situation will continue into 1985," he said in a prepared statement. "I hope this crisis will soon pass, but that's up to Washington."

New First Lady Accustomed To Changes

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov.-elect Jim Martin learned the hard way that his wife meant it when she insisted that the family's interest be considered in his political decisions.

He recalls deciding to run for Mecklenburg County commissioner in 1966 without consulting her, and going home to announce the news.

A "friendly quarrel" followed, he said in an interview last week.

"I learned the value of making those decisions as a partnership rather than just singly and abruptly," Martin said. "She said, 'You don't just do this and let us wonder when we'll see you.'"

The next day he told Republican Party officials that he needed to suspend his decision.

He agreed with Dottie that, if he won, he'd give up a couple of outside activities — refereeing high school football and playing the tuba in the Charlotte Symphony. They decided that he could run.

"I think as a consequence of that it helped strengthen our family," Martin said.

But the role of the state's first lady that she takes over in January is one Mrs. Martin never anticipated.

As a student at Queen's College in Charlotte, Dorothy Ann McAulay "majored in Jim Martin." In 1957, she was a 20-year-old bride who thought she was marrying a man who would teach chemistry.

Martin did teach chemistry at Davidson College, but he gave it up 12 years ago to run for Congress.

Friends describe Mrs. Martin as a confident woman whose strength helps those around her.

"She is strong," Martin said. "You sometimes hear of relationships where one person is really the Rock of Gibraltar or the anchor. She is a good partner in everything that we do. She has early on taken more than her share of the family management responsibility."

Many friends and relatives believe Mrs. Martin, 47, will bring those qualities to her new role as First Lady.

"I never envisioned it (life) with the governor," she said during a recent interview with The Charlotte Observer in a hotel suite in Raleigh.

"I have to tell you that living in a small college town is a pretty euphoric life if you like the kinds of things we did," she said of the family's life in Davidson.

Mrs. Martin sat at a table with manila folders filled with lists and correspondence spread in front of her, talking easily about her past and future. She seemed relaxed, even as the phones rang. "That'll be for Jim," she said one time, letting the ring continue.

In the hallway outside, a State Bureau of Investigation agent guarded the door to the Martin suite, on the top floor of the Raleigh Hilton and accessible only with a special elevator key.

"Right now we have made a total change and we are committed to the political life, but that happened gradually," she said. "There was a lot of adjusting for all of us. But that's not bad although you might have a few tears here and there."

The changes, including his successful Congressional bid when she was pregnant with their third child and the decision to run for governor, interrupted two careers. She had been head of the Davidson College Presbyterian Church Kindergarten before moving to Washington. In Washington, she's been selling real estate.

Moving to Washington was perhaps the hardest change for Mrs. Martin. She had a 1-year-old child, Ben, who will be 13 in February, and two grade-school children, Emily, now 22, will go to work next year in the production department at Charlotte's WCCB-TV. Jim Jr., 25, is an aspiring actor who has had bit parts in three yet-to-be released Dino DeLaurentis films.

After Ben, the youngest, entered school, Mrs. Martin studied and earned a license to sell real estate, beginning work in 1977.

"She felt good about that and was good at it," said Sarah Lofton, a Washington friend and wife of Martin's administrative aide, Jim Lofton.

"I think she really wanted something that was hers. Being supportive is fine, but she wanted to contribute something," Lofton said.

She also was elected an elder at her Presbyterian church in Alexandria, Va., a rare post for a woman.

Then came the issue of whether Martin would run for governor.

"I sincerely thought he'd make the decision not to run," Mrs. Martin said. "Still I was ready to come back to North Carolina. I would have been happy if the decision had been no, but I couldn't throw up any obstacles."

But daughter Emily said that, during early family discussions about it, her mother "was not really into it because it would mean giving up her career."

The decision made, Mrs. Martin said she began looking forward to the campaign.

"I enjoyed it and that surprised me," she said. "I think I learned that I can make a difference in this administration and have something concrete, positive to do."

In the midst of preparations for the Jan. 5 inaugural, Mrs. Martin continues other roles. Friday, she and Martin attended daughter Emily's graduation from Miami of Ohio in Oxford, Ohio. Saturday, they packed Emily's car and the three of them drove home to Alexandria, Va.

The Alexandria house, now for sale, is where Mrs. Martin has prepared for a family Christmas.

She plans to start packing for Raleigh Wednesday. The move into the Executive Mansion on Raleigh's North Blount Street is set for Inauguration Day, Jan. 5.

IN THE STATE

Released

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Two Catawba County residents who suffered internal burns when they accidentally drank lye were released from North Carolina Baptist Hospital in time for Christmas after a month of treatment.

Doctors discharged Steven Estes, 17, of Conover and Russell Cooper, 24, of Newton each had part of their stomachs removed after the Nov. 24 incident in which nine county residents apparently mistook lye for wine.

Dwayne Brown, 19, is the only victim still hospitalized. Dr. Jesse Meredith said Brown is in satisfactory condition and should go home in another month. Brown, Cooper and Estes all face reconstructive surgery. Brown, who suffered the most severe burns, had his esophagus and stomach removed.

Miss Smith, 76, is walking with assistance about three blocks a day, and the physical activity seems to be rejuvenating her memory. Mrs. Steene said.

Charged

WADESBORO, N.C. (AP) — Paul "Dock" McCoy Jr., 61, has been charged with first-degree murder in the shooting death of Anson County Sheriff's Deputy William Kress Horne, officials say.

Sheriff Tommy Allen said records with the Police Information Network in Raleigh show McCoy was convicted of murder in 1951 and had his death sentence commuted to life in prison in 1952. He was paroled in 1964, Allen said.

Horne was shot in the face when he responded to reports of a Saturday night disturbance. McCoy, who suffered a gunshot wound to the forehead in the exchange, is being held at Central Prison in Raleigh and also faces three assault charges, Allen said.

Mercury High

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Mercury levels in fish taken from two High Rock Lake tributaries remain high despite earlier indications that the streams might be recovering from industrial contamination, officials said.

Steve W. Tedder of the state Division of Environmental Management said mercury levels almost three times higher than the federal recommended levels were found in fish taken from Abbotts Creek. He said high levels were also found in fish taken from Leonard's Creek.

Parts of both streams have been posted with warning signs since mid-1981 when a Duracell battery plant was found to be discharging mercury into Leonard's Creek.

Tedder said the absence of mercury in recent monthly water tests suggests that the fish contain mercury that had settled on the bottom of the streams and worked into the food chain.

Singer Improves

RALEIGH (AP) — Kate Smith, a singer most remembered for her rendition of "God Bless America," is showing signs of recovery from a diabetic coma that left her wheelchair-bound for eight years, her sister said.

Miss Smith, who lives in Raleigh, heard a version of "White Christmas" that she had recorded in 1966 on the radio. She quickly recognized her voice and the tune, said Helena Smith Steene, Miss Smith's sister.

"That may sound trite to you, but it's really wonderful to us," Mrs. Steene said Monday.

RJR Plans World's Largest Cigarette Factory

By TOM MINEHART
AP Business Writer
TOBACCOVILLE, N.C. (AP) — R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. officials are so confident people will keep smoking that they are building the largest cigarette factory in the world.

"We are putting money where our faith is — in the future of tobacco," said Reynolds Tobacco chairman

E.A. Horrigan Jr.

"The industry has grown considerably and technology has improved immensely," he said. "Our older plants are no longer adequate to meet our production needs."

The plant is gargantuan — about 2 million square feet, or 26 acres, or the size of 17 football fields. It takes 12 minutes just to walk from one side to the other. Workers are dwarfed by the huge ducts and conduits running overhead.

When the $800 million plant 12 miles north of Winston-Salem is completed in 1987, it will be able to produce about 328 million cigarettes a day.

Company president Gerald H. Long said the massive factory is part of a 10-year, $2 billion modernization program designed to reduce costs and increase quality and productivity.

"Each cigarette making and packing unit in the facility will be able to turn out almost double the number of cigarettes of our current equipment," he said. "We will also have the flexibility to quickly move from production of one brand to another on the same machines as needed, something we cannot do in most locations now."

John Grantham, scheduling engineer for Morrison Knudsen, builder of the plant, said it is more than 60 percent complete — but about 8 percent behind schedule.

Right now the construction employs about 2,000 workers, some of whom moved the 3 million cubic yards of dirt that the building replaced and installed the 100,000 cubic yards of concrete in its walls and floor.

Going up beside the factory is a 50,000-square-foot coal-fired power plant with two 40-megawatt turbine generators and four boilers. It will provide all the power the factory will need, plus extra to be sold to Duke Power Co., said Grantham.

The $100 million power plant is being built from a plastic model that lies on movable tables inside its own 40-by-80-foot building. The model shows workers where to place the 20 miles of piping and other equipment in the actual plant.

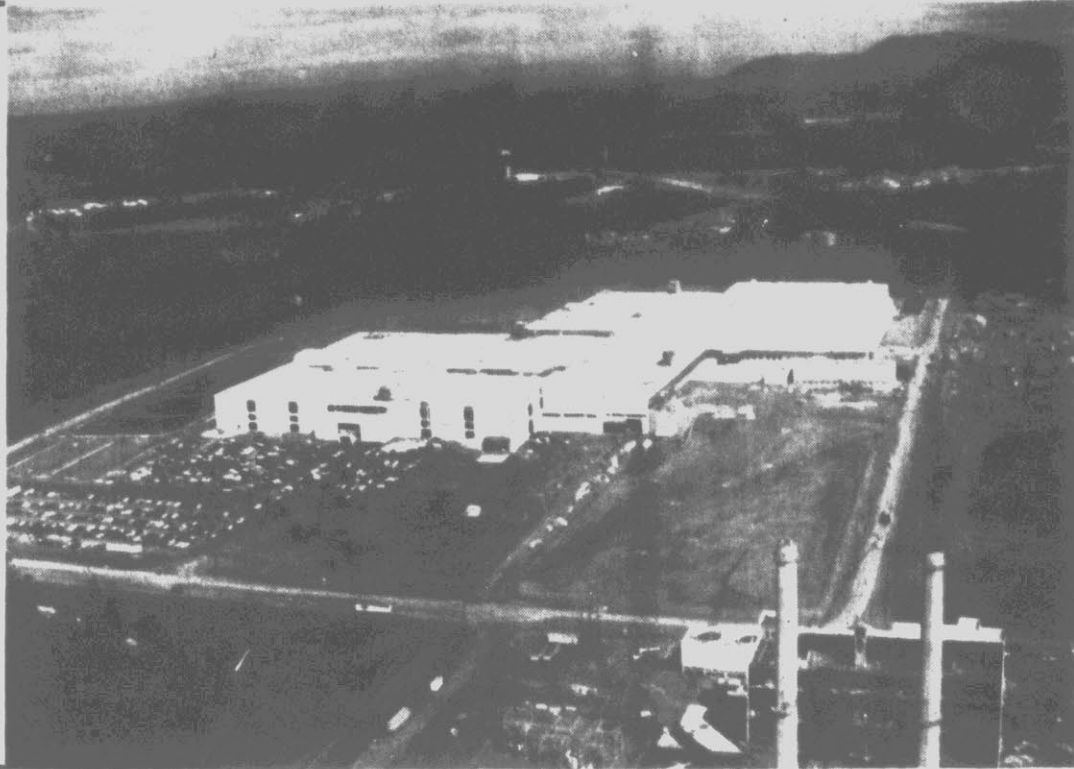

"It's kept us from putting up walls where they couldn't go to let the equipment in and kept us from painting ourselves in the corner," said Grantham.

Begun in October 1982, the factory will have used some 20,000 tons of steel, 85,000 gallons of paint, 492,000 square feet of ceiling panels and 333,000 square feet of parquet flooring when it's finished.

Long said he expects business will be so good in the next three years that the company will generate some $2 billion in excess cash — even with the costs of the new plant and modernization at other plants in and near Winston-Salem.

Factory

R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. is putting $800 million into construction of what will be the world's largest cigarette manufacturing plant, at Tobaccoville, 12 miles north of Winston-Salem. The plant covers about 2 million square feet, or 26 acres, or the size of 17 football fields. When it is completed in 1987, it will be able to produce about 328 million cigarettes a day. Former State 'Teacher Of Year' Is Now On Job Selling Houses

BURLINGTON, AP — Four years ago, Linda B. Lee was North Carolina's Teacher of the Year. Now she sells real estate.

The change came this year, after 19 years as a high school English teacher, most of them with the Burlington schools. Frustrated by the low salaries paid to public school teachers and the large number of students packed into the classrooms, Mrs. Lee, 43, of Burlington, chose to shut the textbooks and start selling houses.

"There were so many things that I wanted to fix and I couldn't fix them," Mrs. Lee said in a recent interview. "What really struck me was that with all the changes, all the reports, all the commissions and all the ink, we've done nothing to improve the lot of what's going on in the classroom."

"I really grew weary of fighting the battle."

One of the main reasons Mrs. Lee loved for leaving a profession she loved was the salary. After 19 years, she was earning $18,075 a year, or slightly more than $2,000 a month for the nine-month school year. So far this month, she has doubled that monthly figure in her new job.

"That's pitiful," Mrs. Lee said of the difference in salaries. "The salary at the entry level has to be competitive with other careers. And teachers need to know that if they continue in the profession that they can make a decent living somewhere down the line."

When she began teaching, Mrs. Lee said, there were too many children in the classroom for her to adequately help them. Despite the focus on elementary and secondary education in recent years, she said the situation was growing worse. Where she once had 30 students in a class, she had 35 students in some classes this year.

"It doesn't make any sense," she said. "In the public schools we've got an overwhelming number of students to deal with."

Mrs. Lee decided this summer to get her real estate license and try her hand at selling houses. When school began in the fall, she wasn't certain she was ready to leave teaching. Besides teaching, she had served as coordinator of the high school writing program for the past five years.

"I love teaching," she said. "It's in my blood and it probably always will be."

Despite that love, Mrs. Lee quit her job Oct. 15, saying she had lost too much of her enthusiasm for the profession.

"I had always told myself that if that ever happened, I would leave, that I wouldn't stay if I got burned out and tired of teaching," she said.

Mrs. Lee served on the North Carolina Commission on Education for Economic Growth assembled in late 1983 by Gov. Jim Hunt. It was then that her disenchantment began to grow, she said.

"There were business leaders on the commission who had the clout to get something done about education," she said. "But we came out with a report, another report. There is a lot of lip service paid to good schools."

A proposed career ladder plan expected to be considered by the N.C. General Assembly in 1985 will not improve the lot of teachers, she said. Instead, she said it will result in teachers who become quasi-administrators so they can earn more money.

"We're too far into it to make a change," she said. "It would cost the state too much money to bring class sizes to a teachable level. It's going to cost more money than they're (legislators) willing to pay."

Kinston, Wilson Motorists Among 12 Traffic Victims

By The Associated Press

The state Highway Patrol reported that 12 people were killed on North Carolina highways during the Christmas holidays, just three less than the North Carolina State Motor Club had predicted would die on the state's roads in the 102-hour period.

The Christmas holiday period officially began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended at midnight Christmas Day. The N.C. State Motor Club predicted that 15 people would die during the Christmas period.

The Tennessee Highway Patrol reported that an 83-year-old North Carolina woman died Tuesday in a two-vehicle collision in Polk County, Tennessee.

The victim was identified as Teenie Shepherd of Weaversville, N.C. She was killed when an east-bound vehicle on U.S. 64 lost control on wet pavement and struck the vehicle in which Ms. Shepherd was a passenger head-on, troopers said.

In North Carolina, a pedestrian, Calvin Ray Wilson, 25, of Kittrell, was killed at 9:20 p.m. Saturday when he walked into the path of an oncoming vehicle on U.S. 1 in Kittrell, troopers said.

Ten of the wreck victims in North Carolina died in single-car crashes.

Simone Howard, 12, of Roseboro, died around 9:45 a.m. Tuesday when the car in which she was riding overturned in a ditch in Sampson County.

Timothy Glenn Jenkins, 25, and Norman Ray Swinson, 21, both of Kinston, died at 11:55 p.m. Monday when the car driven by Jenkins sped off a curve, overturned and hit a tree in Lenoir County.

Michael Frederick Parker, 19, of Wilson, was killed Monday morning when his car, traveling at a high rate of speed, struck a culvert and overturned several times on a rural paved road west of Wilson. Parker was thrown from the vehicle.

William Dempsey Farmer, 35, of Greensboro, died when his car hit a bridge abutment about nine miles north of his hometown on U.S. 158 Monday at 4:55 p.m.

Elsie McKenzie Edwards, 48, of Peachland, was killed when her car was hit by another car Monday at 1 p.m. after she made a U-turn on a rural road in her hometown in Anson County.

Terry Lee Wilson, 26, of Charlotte, was killed at about 7:45 a.m. Sunday when the car he was driving hit a tree about 13 miles south of Concord.

Ronald Wesley McDaniel, 30, of Maxton, died when the car he was driving hit a tree on N.C. 130 about one mile south of his hometown at 4:45 p.m. Sunday.

John Wesley Dobson, 30, of Boonville, died early Sunday morning when the car in which he was riding ran off a rural paved road in Surry County, crossed the road again and overturned several times. Dobson was thrown from the vehicle.

Cheryl Lynn West, 19, of Waxhaw, died Friday around 7:30 p.m. when the car she was driving struck an embankment in Mecklenburg County south of Charlotte.

Jack Smith, 49, of Waynesville, was killed when the car in which he was riding hit another vehicle during an improper pass and both vehicles overturned about 5:50 p.m. Saturday in Haywood County.

Troopers said a 13th fatality was reported during the Christmas holiday but actually occurred Dec. 6.

The fatalities brought this year's death toll to 1,377, compared to 1,224 at the same time a year ago.

Susie Jones Dies At 92

GREENSBORO (AP) — Susie W. Jones, credited with integrating the Methodist meeting grounds at Lake Junaluska and an administrator at Bennett College in its early years as a women's school, died Sunday at her home. She was 92.

"I didn't allow myself to think about it," she once said of her work to integrate Lake Junaluska. "I knew it was such an important step, but you know you can just be terrified by what exists in human relations. But it turned out to be a lovely experience."

ELECTRIC CUSTOMERS:

Starting January you'll notice something different on your bill.

Beginning January 1985, all electric bills will include a line showing North Carolina sales tax. The change is a result of legislation passed in 1984 by the N.C. General Assembly. Here are a few things you should know about the change:

- A new tax has not been added to your bill. Your electric bill has always included the tax. However, now it will be shown separately.
- There is no increase in cost for your electric service.
- The amount of your bill would be the same even if the sales tax were not shown separately.
- If you list sales taxes as a deduction on your federal income tax return, you will now be able to include the sales tax shown on your electric bills.

Cuts Proposed In Federal Pension Plan

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Calling federal employee retirement "the Cadillac of pension plans," the Reagan administration is again proposing benefit cuts in a system that gives some people bigger pensions than they earned in salary.

The proposals are expected to generate strong opposition in Congress, despite administration claims that $5 billion could be saved in three years and $20 billion in five years.

Although budget-cutting fever could become contagious in the 99th Congress, many lawmakers believe federal workers are underpaid compared to those in the private sector.

"It's not going to happen," Rep. Frank R. Wolf, R-Va., said of the administration proposals. "My general feeling is Congress will give the recommendations the same treatment they gave to them in the past. They killed them." Wolf's district, a suburb of Washington, includes thousands of federal workers.

Although similar plans were rejected in the last Congress, Donald J. Devine, director of the Office of Personnel Management, said he expects "a whole different environment" in 1985.

"We had a thing called an election," said Devine, whose office drew up the proposed cutbacks that will be submitted to Congress. "I heard congressmen say they're going to do something to control the deficit."

In addition to battles over the cost of the current system, lawmakers also must devise a new retirement plan this year for federal employees hired after Jan. 1, 1984. This was made necessary by a recent law that brings new and future federal workers under Social Security for the first time.

Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, already has unveiled a detailed proposal that would include Social Security and two supplemental programs — one of them a deferred compensation plan similar to an individual retirement account.

The administration's budget-slashing program for those on the current system would not decrease checks for those already receiving them, but would force future retirees to accept much less than under current rules.

"They try to take whatever they can from retirees," said Rep. Mary Rose Oaker, D-Ohio, an administration critic who heads the House Post Office and Civil Service subcommittee on federal worker compensation.

"Federal employees are easy targets for them. The morale of these employees is at a terrible low point. What they're attempting to do is really criminal."

Mark Tapscott, an Office of Personnel Management spokesman, countered, "Because of the generosity of the system, the Cadillac of pension plans, it is the third largest entitlement program in the federal government" with a $21.9 billion expenditure in the 1984 fiscal year. Only Social Security ($178 billion) and Medicare ($62.5 billion) are bigger. He added:

— Of the approximately 1.4 million people who retired under the system since 1969, about 300,000 receive pensions greater than the salaries they earned while working. A main reason is the automatic annual increase that is 100 percent of the inflation rate.

— In fiscal 1984, the $21.9 billion paid to 1.9 million civilian federal retirees and survivors compares to $21.3 billion spent to service 21 million recipients of both food stamps and the largest welfare program — Aid To Families With Dependent Children.

— The average annual civil service pension is just over $12,400 a year, while the average Social Security benefit is just over $5,000. For about 60 percent of the population, Social Security is the only retirement benefit. For the remaining 40 percent, their private plans add an average of $4,000 a year.

PBS Makes Van Gogh's Life Interesting

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It's easy to know just a little bit about artists — Van Gogh is the one who painted sunflowers and cut off part of his ear. And television can make it fun to learn some more.

There are plenty of fascinating morsels about Vincent Van Gogh's life that viewers can pick up when public television broadcasts a special tonight about the artist's paintings.

Consider the one-hour show, "In a Brilliant Light: Van Gogh in Arles," a late Christmas present wrapped in bright colors. As narrator Edward Hermann, the actor, says, "To Van Gogh, color was everything."

It begins with a few of his early paintings in Holland and a few from Paris, where he went in 1886, and some TV film from Holland today, most surprisingly a cow chasing a rooster.

But the main thing is Van Gogh in Arles. Van Gogh decided to go south for warmth, light and color. He didn't exactly choose Arles, in southern France, but Arles had a train station and it's where he got off paintings.

There also are exterior shots around Arles, men on motorbikes, sunflower fields, the abbey that looks like it does in Van Gogh's paintings, spring orchards and one of his 14 orchard paintings.

Feb. 20, 1888. It wasn't warm; there was snow on the ground. So he painted a snow scene.

He was in Arles 444 days and did some 200 paintings, more than 100 drawings, and wrote nearly 300 letters.

Often, while the camera is panning over the details of a painting, the narrator reads from a Van Gogh letter about just that work. The camera work is excellent. Gene Searchinger was director and photographer.

There also are exterior shots around Arles, men on motorbikes, sunflower fields, the abbey that looks like it does in Van Gogh's paintings, spring orchards and one of his 14 orchard paintings.

Van Gogh, surprised that the harvest in southern France was in June, did 10 harvest paintings in 10 days. The TV show, which never overloads, concentrates on his favorite one.

He painted interiors, too, including "The Night Cafe" in Arles, portraits of a postman friend and the bedroom in his rented house. In the painting, the room tilts crazily, which some took to indicate the painter's madness. Instead, as the program makes clear, the walls of the room really do meet at odd angles. Van Gogh painted between, not during, his mad fits. His art reached its peak in Arles, and his outpouring of work is probably matched only by Picasso.

The program ends by explaining that Van Gogh left Arles for an asylum in nearby Saint-Remy. A scholar says, "He worried about losing his skills but he never did." There were three more big paintings, of wheat fields. Van Gogh shot himself fatally in 1890, at age 37.

The Metropolitan Museum in New York gathered 146 works for a "Van Gogh in Arles" show from Oct. 18 to Dec. 30. When WNET, the New York public TV station, showed "In a Brilliant Light" on Oct. 18, it got the highest audience rating for any documentary at the station.

Appreciation of Vincent Van Gogh is not just for highbrows. Singer-song writer Don McLean, after he didn't just write, "By, by, Miss American Pie." He also wrote "Vincent."

Train Bomber Sought

BOLOGNA, Italy (AP) — Police reportedly have searched more than 300 homes across Italy for clues to the terrorist train bombing which killed at least 15 people and injured 180.

The Italian news agency ANSA said the searches seemed to be concentrated in areas linked with right-wing terrorist activity but has produced no "revealing traces" in connection with the explosion aboard the Naples-to-Milan express as it passed an 11.6-mile rail tunnel Sunday.

Investigators said Tuesday that the death toll may rise because they have received reports of at least three missing people believed to have been on the train: a Swiss couple and an Italian woman.

Bologna police and ANSA said the death toll stood at 15 Tuesday. But state-run RAI radio reported without attribution that there were 16 dead.

Morgue workers were still piecing together some of the bodies, and three remained unidentified because they were blown apart.

Police were still looking for a man who was reportedly seen leaving the train in the Florence station 4 minutes before a powerful blast ripped through a second-class car inside the Apennine Tunnel.

However, ANSA quoted Bologna's anti-terrorist expert, Francesco Modica, as saying it was too early to consider the man a prime suspect. "Let's say we just want to find him and ask him some questions," Modica told the news agency.

ANSA said the residential searches were based on an updated police report on right-wing terrorist activities in Rome, Milan, Padua, Bologna and Naples, among other cities.

ANSA's report suggested authorities were focusing on right-wing extremists following a flurry of anonymous claims of responsibility for the bombing that ranged from a neo-fascist organizations, the leftist Red Brigades and an obscure "Islamic Guerrilla" group.

No official word has been released on the nature of the bomb.

Striking Welsh Miners See Bleak Christmas

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
FERNDALE, Wales (AP) — Five-year-old Neil Evans, whose father has been on strike for more than nine months, got secondhand toys this Christmas. His sister Amanda, 13, received a $6 gift certificate from the miners' union — and nothing from her mother.

With Britain's coal strike in its 41st week, bleakness permeates Christmas in the mining valleys of South Wales, the most militant region in the country.

"I kept telling my daughter, 'I haven't got you anything.' I was trying to get it into her brain so she won't be disappointed on Christmas Day," said Amanda's mother, Megan Evans. "I got the toy for Neil secondhand."

The living room in the Evans' two-story row house in this village is chilly and semi-dark in the winter afternoon. The central heating is off to save fuel.

"I can't say we've won anything," says Mrs. Evans, 34. "But at least we've shown ourselves and the country there are really times to get out and fight."

Like thousands of strikers' families, the Evanses are paying a heavy personal price in a dispute which counts losers on all sides, including working miners regularly harassed and intimidated.

Mrs. Evans' husband, Afon, 36, a fourth-generation miner, is an underground worker at Maerdy colliery, the last surviving mine in Wales' Rhondda Valley.

The family's savings are long gone. Weekly food parcels from the union and coal scavenged at a nearby mine dump supplement a weekly income, after mortgage payment, of $26.70 in welfare and from Mrs. Evans' job as a part-time sales clerk.

Last spring, all the talk in the Evans household and at the South Wales branch of the National Union of Mineworkers in nearby Pontypridd was of winning the confrontation with the state-owned National Coal Board over planned mine closures.

Now no one even tries to predict when, or if, the strike will force power cuts, which miners' leader Arthur Scargill has long predicted will eventually pressure Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservative government to yield.

"We try not to talk about the future at all," said Kim Howells, 38, research officer turned picket-organizer for the 22,000-member South Wales union.

"But we've achieved victories," he said. "We've created an alternative welfare state ... a population feeding itself and governing itself in the face of overwhelming hostility."

South Wales is the most solidly struck coal county in Britain. For eight months, not one Welshman broke the strike, which was ignored from the start by some 50,000 of the country's 189,000 miners.

A November return-to-work surge, triggered by the collapse of the last peace talks and lures of Christmas bonuses, has swelled to 69,000 the number of miners working in Britain.

But in South Wales, just 125 men have gone back; none of the 24 mines is producing.

Officially, the Welsh union has had no money since August when a High Court judge froze its $826,000 in assets as punishment for contempt of court. It refuses to pay a $59,000 fine for defying an injunction to stop pickets blocking trucks delivering coal and iron ore to a steel plant.

Like the national union, whose funds were sequestered last month in another contempt suit, the Welsh union legally can't even have a bank account.

But it carries on, spending some $82,600 a week. About half goes to the cost of sending pickets to mines, steel works and power plants across Wales and England, and the rest to welfare for strikers.

The union survives, Howells said, on money collected from other unions, at public meetings and from foreign labor movements and left-wing organizations.

The assistance includes distribution of 17,000 food parcels weekly, organized mainly by strikers' wives. At Christmas the union will give every striker's family in South Wales a turkey or a chicken.

And, despite the unpopularity of the strike and its accompanying picket line violence among Britons generally, a national Christmas appeal for strikers' families has raised nearly $354,000.

Oil billionaire John Paul Getty II donated $118,000 to the strikers' families and also gave nearly $142,000 for working miners.

Glens Kinnock, wife of Neil Kinnock, leader of the opposition Labor Party, headed the national Christmas appeal.

"We wanted every striking miner's child to have a toy for Christmas," she said. "It's difficult to tell young children that Father Christmas (Santa Claus) isn't coming this year."

Neil's disappointment is part of a huge toll.

The dispute has cost the nation about $2 billion, split the union, divided families, and sparked the worst picket line violence in British history. Hundreds of police and pickets have been injured and nearly 9,000 miners arrested.

4 WAYS TO SAY "CHARGE IT"

Firm Provides Public Relations Service On Emergency Basis

By DAN GEORGE
Associated Press Writer
CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — A chemical company is involved in an industrial accident that has the public alarmed and news reporters demanding an explanation.

A conglomerate wants to buy a modest manufacturing business, and employees are worried about what the acquisition will do to their jobs.

There's a wildcat strike at an electronics plant, and workers and company negotiators are busy firing charges and countercharges at each other.

What do you do to make sure that everyone involved gets the correct information about the crisis?

Rusty Criminger and Fred Gault Jr. think they have an innovative solution: emergency public relations service.

For an annual subscriber fee of $1,000, Criminger & Gault Inc. of Chattanooga provide 10 hours of public relations counseling for a company faced with a sudden disaster.

"It's a cheap insurance policy for people who don't have protection, either inside their organization or through outside counsel," said Gault, a 40-year-old former newspaper and television reporter.

He cited Union Carbide's enlistment of a crisis consultant following the Dec. 3 chemical leak that killed more than 2,000 people in Bhopal, India.

"We think of it as an inexpensive way to buy some professional response in a timely fashion," Gault said.

The emergency public relations service is designed for any business or organization that does not have a plan to deal with such problems as industrial accidents, strike, layoffs, lawsuits, company takeovers and plant closings.

The plan makes public relations consultation available to participating companies 24 hours a day, seven days a week. If more than 10 hours of work is needed, further service is available for $75 an hour.

"We recognize that sometimes a few hours are all that's needed to get a company safely past an emergency," Criminger said.

"Most companies don't have such a plan. Most people don't want to mess with it, and that's why we think this is going to work," said Gault, who believes his firm is the first in the South to offer such a service.

For $1,000, they can buy themselves a lot of organization without having us on their payroll. They don't have to worry about who they're going to call. They've got somebody."

Criminger and Gault have been in business only since mid-1983, but they already provide fulltime public relations advice to such organizations as Georgia Power Co., General Tire, Gilman Paint & Wallcovering and Hospital Corporation of America. They also handled the re-election campaign of U.S. Rep. Marilyn Lloyd, D-Tenn.

Criminger, also 40, is a former radio and television advertising salesman and ad agency executive. Gault, in addition to his news background, also spent 10 years as public relations director for Erlanger Medical Center in Chattanooga.

As public relations consultants, said Gault, their job is not only to make the public aware of what's happening but also to make sure company officials are conscious of the public's interest.

"Most guys out there running businesses know what they're doing in their business," said Gault. "But they don't know beans from banana bread when it comes to the field of communications, particularly when it's under a crisis situation."

Criminger conceded some people view public relations as a tool to gloss over a bad situation or even deceive the public about it.

"That's a reputation that our industry, our profession is attempting to live down. I'm sure it does happen," Criminger said. "But we look at ourselves as dealing with the flow of information, not only from the company but into the company, too."

Gault said he and his partner know that newspaper reporters have deadlines, that television reporters want pictures and that everybody wants to interview company officials in a corporate emergency.

"Inevitably, we become the grease that makes the wheel roll. And corporations and organizations in themselves simply do not have the fortitude to make those decisions without someone pushing them," said Gault. "Most of what we would do in crisis situations would probably not deal with the media," added Gault, noting that some cases, such as job layoffs or a company sale, would probably not be of much news interest. "But the truth of the matter is that the biggest fear at the executive level is dealing with the media. We can help overcome that fear."

Project Has Barrier-Free Dwellings

NEW YORK (AP) — Only last year, Ethel Kass, 80, could hardly bathe without help — she couldn't hoist herself into her glass-enclosed bathtub — and her legs were so swollen that she could barely get around her own apartment.

"Still, I couldn't stand the thought of going to a nursing home," she says.

Millions of physically disabled Americans like Mrs. Kass, who has crippling arthritis, may be trapped within their own homes, according to Leo Hausman, president of United Cerebral Palsy of New York City. Unable to care for themselves, they face the prospect of institutionalization at staggering annual costs of close to $50,000 per person, he says.

For Mrs. Kass and for others like her, Project Open House (POH), a program that removes architectural barriers for a one-time program-funded expenditure of $1,200, allows them to remain with their families and function independently.

POH did extensive remodeling work in her bathroom and, with the help of a special walker, Mrs. Kass can now maneuver into her living room and sit comfortably in a chair that with the touch of a button can lift her up and onto her feet.

"It's a tremendous aid," she says, "because I don't need to rely so much on my legs or arms to get up and sit down. I never could have afforded anything like this; it's really like a miracle."

POH was pioneered by the New York City affiliate of United Cerebral Palsy Associations Inc. (UCP), a private non-profit agency with 222 affiliates across the country, and is designed to increase independence for mobility-impaired people, Hausman explains.

"Increased public dialogue has made us all more aware of the importance of building accessibility," Hausman says. "But once inside the privacy of his or her own home, a disabled individual lives with such intimate issues as how to get into a bathroom, how to prepare a meal, how to call for assistance and how to deal with a thousand and one household and personal tasks that most of us take for granted."

New Fad: Insure Against Personal Lawsuits

By CHANGING TIMES
The Kiplinger Magazine

Americans are suing each other in sharply rising numbers, and some are hitting jackpots.

To minimize the risk, more and more people are buying personal liability insurance, or comprehensive catastrophic protection, with coverage of $1 million or more.

A number of financial authorities recommend the product, not only for the affluent, but also for people whose future income or possessions could be jeopardized.

Most states have homestead laws that make it difficult or impossible to seize a dwelling to satisfy a debt, and certain other assets could be beyond reach.

But a legal adversary could get your savings, investments, nonresidential real estate, personal property — everything that's attachable.

One widely available form of high-limit coverage is extended personal liability, or umbrella, insurance. Umbrellas pick up where the liability protection in motor-vehicle and residential insurance policies leaves off.

Only 35 claims were filed last year against the Travelers, which has over 40,000 umbrella policies in force. The average payment, however, was $93,000 — over and above the amounts paid by auto and residential insurance.

Umbrella policies also shield you against damages assessed for reasons beyond just physical injury. The list typically includes libel, slander, character defamation, shock, mental anguish, sickness or disease, false arrest, wrongful entry or eviction, and malicious prosecution.

You could be sued for misfortunes out of your control. A child could dart through your yard, trip over your garden hose, and fall on a rake. Your dog could bite somebody. A party guest could slip on a wet floor. (Most injuries occur in the home.)

Someone who is injured on your property, whether invited or not, may be able to collect damages if you are shown to be negligent in some way.

Last June, the New Jersey Supreme Court ruled that a person who directly serves liquor to a guest and lets him or her drive away intoxicated can be held liable for damages if the guest causes an accident in which people are injured. This applies only to New Jersey but could influence courts elsewhere.

If you don't drive, own motor vehicles or have responsibility for living quarters, your chances of being sued are probably negligible. You can buy a stand-alone policy called comprehensive personal liability. The premiums run from about $50 to $90 a year for $500,000 in coverage.

Your chances of being sued are greater if you have children who drive or possessions that could inflict injury, such as a boat or snowmobile, and especially a swimming pool.

These items not only can cause injury, but also can make you look like an easy and profitable target for people inclined to sue.

Umbrella terms are generally similar, although there are enough differences in price and particulars to make comparison shopping worthwhile.

Most property and casualty companies, including the big-name auto and residential insurers, sell umbrella policies. Premiums range from about $70 a year for $1 million in protection to $250 for $8 million.

To buy an umbrella, you must have auto (if you own a car) and homeowners or tenant liability insurance in amounts prescribed by the policy issuer.

The amounts vary somewhat among companies. State Farm told Changing Times magazine it requires $100,000 in residential and $300,000 in auto, plus $25,000 in auto property-damage liability. People who have their underlying coverage with State Farm get a 10 percent discount on umbrella policies.

When an award exceeds the limits of the auto or residential insurance, the umbrella pays the difference up to the policy limit. Thus, if you were ordered to pay $500,000 as a result of an auto accident, and you have $300,000 in auto liability insurance, the umbrella would pay the additional $200,000.

Umbrellas usually pay legal expenses and compensation for court appearance if the amounts exceed what is paid by the underlying coverage.

A company may charge low rates for umbrellas but require high limits of auto and residential insurance — or vice versa. If you'd have to increase your underlying insurance, factor the costs into your outlay.

Check into who or what a particular policy includes or excludes from coverage. Umbrellas typically protect you and family members living with you. Find out who constitutes family members and whether they would be covered while temporarily away from home, such as children away at school.

Occupational liability is excluded in most contracts. At least one company, Government Employees Insurance Co. (GEICO), specifically refuses to insure elected public officials, broadcasters, professional entertainers and athletes, and newspaper reporters, editors and publishers.

Other insurers accept all qualified applicants, but their policies exclude professional activities with above-average exposure.

An umbrella may also stop short of covering volunteer service on the board of a church, charity, civic group or condominium association. Be sure to find out whether the organization has a liability policy that would protect you.

Group as well as individual liability protection is available. Some employers buy it for upper-status employees.

For work-related activities, you may need a business insurance policy. Personal protection could be added with an endorsement. If you moonlight, inquire about a rider on your residential insurance.

ROUGH SAILING — Strong winds whipped the icy waters of Lake Tahoe, in California, into eight-foot waves that washed over piers at a lakeside resort area. Cold temperatures caused water to freeze in mid-wave as lows dipped below zero. The winds caused two sailboats tied to buoys to sink, others to break free from moorings, and a barge to crash into a nearby pier. (AP Laserphoto)

Civilian 'People's Power' Joins Salvadoran Leftists

By ARTHUR ALLEN
Associated Press Writer

OJOS DE AGUA, El Salvador (AP) — His shirt is torn, he's small in stature and has the leathery face of a peasant farmer, but Andres Mejia presides over "People's Power" in the guerrilla-controlled mountain areas of Chalatenango Province.

The organization is made up of civilians, called "masas," who opt to side with the leftist guerrillas in their war against El Salvador's government. They live and travel with the rebels, grow corn and beans, spy on the army, and buy food and supplies in nearby towns.

In return, the guerrillas pledge to protect them, when possible, from army attacks.

As president of "People's Power" since April, the 28-year-old Mejia has been in charge of the lives and welfare of more than 3,000 peasants, but he'll be turning the leadership over to an elected successor by the end of the year.

Mejia said in an interview that in five years of war in this area he has been bombed, strafed, shelled and shot at so many times that "I lost count a long time ago."

He also has led the community countless times in flight from encroaching army operations.

Nevertheless, Mejia claimed, the farmers in the rebel-occupied zone 70 miles northeast of San Salvador produced 1 million pounds of corn and 110,000 pounds of beans in 1984 to feed the guerrillas and themselves.

"We are a 'People's Power' in development," Mejia said in the interview outside this village close to the Honduran border. "We try to do what we can, with limited resources."

Mejia became involved with the opposition in 1977 when he joined a local peasant organization. He and other farmers from Las Vueltas, a town a few miles south of here, demanded loans and improved crop prices from the government.

Peasant demonstrations ended in violence, and soon the peasants linked up with the Popular Liberation Forces, the guerrilla group that has operated in this area since the early 1970s.

That group now is one of five guerrilla factions tied to the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front in the war against the government in San Salvador. Chalatenango has been a stronghold for the rebels since the start of the war, and the organization of civilians here has been more developed than elsewhere.

Mejia became president of the five-man junta that runs civilian affairs in rebel areas of Chalatenango as the choice of the guerrilla chiefs in an election held at about the same time centrist Jose Napoleon Duarte and his right-wing adversary, Roberto d'Aubuisson, were campaigning in a presidential runoff elsewhere in the country.

Duarte won and was inaugurated June 1 for a five-year term.

By the end of December, Mejia will turn the office over to Evaristo Lopez, another farmer.

On Dec. 2, the night of the voting to elect Lopez, the army began shelling the village where the election was held, and the vote had to be postponed.

Mejia said his responsibility included organizing civil defense as well as production in the rebel-occupied zone. "People's Power" also provides primitive health and literacy campaigns.

The organization is believed to be the only one of its kind in the country, although masas elsewhere get political training and are helped with basic services. "People's Power" is organized in seven of Chalatenango's 30 municipalities.

Mejia proudly showed a visitor a notebook full of production figures, but said the peasants in the zone badly need the equivalent of $13,000 to carry out next year's harvest.

"We don't have anyone to ask a loan from," Mejia said. "If we did, we couldn't guarantee it." He said about 40 percent of the crop annually is destroyed by bombs, or burned or uprooted by soldiers.

Mejia said the residents of the area have had to make three "guindas" — flights from the army — since September, when Lt. Col. Sigifredo Ochoa took command of the army garrison in charge of the area.

"Ochoa is kind of good," Mejia said. "He has kept us on the run."

Ochoa, interviewed at his headquarters in El Paraiso, 30 miles southwest of Ojos de Agua, said he plans to "clean the terrorists out of the towns they have traditionally occupied, and then repopulate the area."

"The people want to come back, but they are afraid," Mejia said. "They know that when Duarte's army comes, there is great destruction."

Foundry Gets New Life

VERMONT, Ill. (AP) — "Graveyard shift" has taken on new meaning — synonymous with life — for a foundry that nearly died two years ago in this small, southwestern Fulton County farming town.

In late-summer 1982, the Mark Controls Corp. of Evanston had about given up any hope of saving its Clayton-Mark Foundry, the largest employer in this rural village 17 miles southeast of Macomb.

Outdated equipment at the 45-year-old plant couldn't produce brass, bronze or aluminum casting at the profit needed to compete with foreign-made castings or less expensive plastic ones. Half the foundry's 100 employees were on indefinite layoff. Company officials termed the situation "critical."

Then came what village officials called a "long shot" application for an economic development grant from the state, a letter-writing campaign by many of the village's 950 residents, and an innovative switch that sent foundry employees to work at midnight instead of early in the morning.

General Manager Dick Hanson says the foundry has been brought back to life.

"Production and sales look good now," he said. "Not exciting, but stable, and today, that's something in itself."

"Our survival was questionable," Hanson said. "We're back up to 85 employees and no one is left on the layoff-recall list. I'd like to see employment back at 100 again and I think we will."

Village trustees, desperate to save the foundry and its jobs, in September 1982 competed with 250 cities and towns across Illinois for a share of $13 million in state grants aimed at creating or retaining jobs.

Joining Clubs Still The Right Thing To Do In Malaysia

By SUSAN ROBINSON
 KUALA LUMPUR, MALAYSIA (UPI) — Malaysia has discarded much of its British colonial heritage in the 27 years since independence, but one tradition steadfastly survives — membership in an exclusive social, drinking and sports club.

At latest count, each of Malaysia's 13 states had at least one such club, and in the capital of Kuala Lumpur there are four.

Perhaps the most prestigious and firmly established of them all is the Selangor Club, a survivor of war, flood, fire and economic depression that is also observing its 100th anniversary this year.

"I joined my first club the day I joined government service," said Justice Harun Hashim, president of the 4,500-member Selangor Club, tinkering with a gin in the club's leather-chaired salon.

"It was the accepted norm. It was expected of you to join. Now club life is a Malaysian way of life.

"In most other former British colonies clubs closed after independence. They were thought of as too exclusively English and a relic of colonialism."

The Selangor Club sits in tudor splendor on the edge of a lovingly tended emerald-green playing field — called the "Padang" — in the heart of downtown Kuala Lumpur.

In 1890, the Padang was the scene of the first cricket match ever played in the country.

Once a huge vegetable garden and orchard, the Padang was a favorite hunting spot at the turn of the century. Newspapers of the day tell of a colonial who shot a tiger near the playing field and left the slain beast on the club's porch while he celebrated inside.

Malaysian independence was declared from the Padang in 1957, and each national day, the Malaysian king still watches the anniversary parade from its green lawn.

In earlier times, the club was the frequent hangout of writer Rudyard Kipling. In 1922, the Duke of Windsor — before he became the Prince of Wales — came to call.

Today, the Selangor Club has neither the stuffiness of the typical English gentleman's club nor many of the amenities — a swimming pool, for instance, — taken for granted at an American country club.

"I think the most important role we play is getting people of all races together. They enjoy the facilities without regard to whether they're Malay, Chinese, Indian or European," Harun says proudly.

"The club is the melting pot of Malaysian society."

A more luxurious and expensive local club is the Raintree, which opened last year. A recent newspaper advertisement offered membership for $17,000 — but it does not have the exclusivity of the older spots.

The Selangor costs just $1,739 to join, but the waiting list is long and the membership committee has the right to blackball a candidate if he is determined not to have the "right stuff."

Women, once allowed to enter the club only as wives, have recently been accepted as full, fee-paying members, but they still have no voting rights.

The club's so-called "long bar" is also out of bounds to women, but they are permitted to drink on an airy veranda outside the male inner sanctum.

"Women have never been allowed in the long bar and it's always been like that for a very practical reason," said Harun. "Men after work or games want to come in, have a drink and be free with their language. It's not peculiar to the Selangor Club."

"It was probably brought about by the social norms of the old days when men had to act correctly at all times. They had to have a place they could be themselves."

Apart from women daring to enter the long bar or wearing trousers in the formal dining area, drunkenness and assaulting a fellow member are considered the worst offenses a member can commit.

"We have a rule that says a member can be expelled for conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman both inside and out of the club," Harun said, adding that he could recall only three members having been expelled.

The club's social life has changed little over its 100 years.

Sports, including squash, tennis, hockey, rugby, soccer and cricket, are played almost every day.

Cabarets or dinner dances have replaced the more sedate entertainment of the colonial period — locally cast operettas or classical music recitals that gave the club its old nickname, "the morgue."

Spicy local food has earned a popular place on what once was an exclusive menu of mainly stolid British fare.

Peking Bathhouses Double As Refuges Against Winter

PEKING (UPI) — Gritty with coal dust and nipped to the bone by icy Siberian winds, Li Fuyang peddled arduously toward his favorite after-work retreat — the public bathhouse.

Winter for Li, and for most Peking residents, means bicycling in the biting cold or shivering at crowded bus stops for at least an hour a day, just to get to work and then back to poorly heated homes.

But Peking's 51 public bathhouses — which double as hotels — offer a warm, steamy refuge from the harsh and sooty climes of this ancient, northern capital.

"In the past there was a big stove of hot coals under each basin," said Wang Zhongrui, 35, manager of a popular bathhouse hotel on Peking's northwestern Xijiekou street.

"We still burn coal to heat the water," said the lanky, soft-spoken Wang from his second-story office above the baths.

Wang's bathhouse, or "yuchi," serves about 3,000 people a day, with separate quarters for men and women, and a slew of trills for the cracked, worn, or otherwise ailing bodies of Peking's stoic residents.

For only 26 ten (10 cents) bathers can soak in old-fashioned white porcelain tubs and then shuffle out to an adjoining changing room for a nap, or "xiuxi," in a private bed.

A few cents extra will buy a massage, haircut, or bathtub scrub-down with a rough towel to remove the dead skin so quickly acquired in Peking's arid, brittle climate.

Amateur podiatrists are on hand to treat common foot diseases and revive tired, gnarled feet "that have trouble fitting into shoes," according to one bathhouse client.

Wang's 93-strong staff will also wash, dry and iron clothing while clients bathe — a handy service for city dwellers with small wardrobes.

"The temperature of the bath shows whether the management is good or not. It's a real skill," said Wang, who keeps the water at about 70-79 degrees fahrenheit in winter and 69 degrees in summer, regulating it by the number of bathers. In the United States, a hot bath is in the high 90s.

On Chinese New Year, as many as 4,000 people come to wash in Wang's well-kept tubs. "You're not supposed to enter the new year with a dirty body," Wang said.

Students, workers from nearby factories and other Chinese who shun the crowded watering holes provided by their "danwei" (work units) — and dread cold sponge baths at home — flock regularly to Wang's.

"Most of the baths in the work units are very bare and simple," Wang said. "Here we have beds, and people can drink a little tea."

Public baths began prospering at the end of the Qing Dynasty (1644-1911) and early Republican period, and bathhouse hotels now serve every major Chinese town.

Peking municipality subsidizes the capital's 51 baths, holding entrance prices at only half the real cost. But this winter 14 of the baths closed to replace old coal boilers, causing rush-hour scuffles between chilly customers and bathhouse attendants.

At night, the bathhouses run makeshift hotels, catering mainly to Chinese peasants and travelers who bed down snugly in the humid changing rooms for only 30 cents — including a bath.

"It's cheap, it's warm, and you can take a bath," said Wang, who has room for 280 guests a night in somewhat soggy bath-stall beds and stark, dorm-like cubicles on the second floor.

Clients must wait until 8:30 p.m. to book into the no-frills lodgings, and are roused before 7 a.m. to make way for early-bird bathers.

But the changing-room digs are popular, since Peking hotels are often full and too expensive for most peasants.

Foreigners may wash at the bathhouses but are not permitted to stay in them overnight.

"According to the regulations by the higher levels, we don't have the duty of receiving foreigners," Wang said.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — THE LONE MAN WHO'S AFRAID OF CHRISTMAS: NOEL COWARD?
 Today's Cryptoquip clue: S equals O

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

'Angel Of Death' Nazi Is Targeted In Advertisement

By WILLIAM H. HEATH
Associated Press Writer

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP) — The face of an unsmiling, dark-haired man with a small, neatly clipped mustache stares grimly out of a full-page newspaper ad in this Paraguayan capital.

"Do you recognize this man?" the text says. "He is the world's most wanted murderer."
"He is responsible for the murder of 400,000 Jews in gas chambers during World War II," and for "having practiced countless experiments on human beings, submitting them to horribly physical torture," it goes on.

Anyone having information is urged to contact a Paris address and is offered a reward of 10 million guaranies ($26,500), equivalent to 22 years of labor at Paraguay's current minimum wage, if the contribution leads to an arrest.

The photo is allegedly that of Josef or "Jose" Mengele, the "Angel of Death," sought since 1962 by West Germany on charges of conducting human experiments on and ordering the deaths of thousands of Jewish prisoners at the Nazi concentration camp of Auschwitz.

A physician, Mengele, who would now be 73 years old, fled Germany to South America in the 1950s and, after living under his own name in Argentina, came to Paraguay, where he was granted citizenship in 1959. Under pressure, the Paraguayan government revoked his papers in 1979, saying he left the country in 1964 or 1965 and had not returned.

The ad was placed in the newspaper El Diario, which has links with Paraguay's right-wing government, on Dec. 10 by Nazi hunter Beate Klarsfeld, who visited Paraguay in February and again in November to meet officials. For the latter meeting she was accompanied by Elizabeth Holtzman, district attorney of Brooklyn, N.Y.; Roman Catholic Bishop Rene Valero, also of Brooklyn, and Menachem Rosensaft, director of an organization of survivors of the Nazi Holocaust.

Mrs. Klarsfeld's visits set off a new round of denials of Mengele's presence, stirred memories of a man many Paraguayans would prefer to forget, and fanned new speculation about his whereabouts.

Mrs. Klarsfeld, a West German who operates with her French husband a Paris-based organization searching for Nazi war criminals they believe remain at large, maintained there still are strong reasons to suspect that Mengele is living under protection in Paraguay and receives funds from a family-owned firm in Germany.

Interior Minister Sabino Montanaro, a top spokesman for the 30-year-old government of President Alfredo Stroessner, questioned Mrs. Klarsfeld's motives, suggesting her efforts were the latest in efforts by an "international communist conspiracy" to damage Paraguay's prestige.

Patria, the newspaper of Stroessner's Colorado Party, suggested that the reward should apply not just to Paraguay, but to "wherever Mengele may be, in Brazil, Bolivia, Tibet, Abyssinia or six feet underground in some forgotten graveyard."

Still others suggested that Mrs. Klarsfeld was merely seeking publicity for fund-raising purposes.

"The desire of the Paraguayan government is to find this man and bring him to justice," Criminal Court Judge Anselmo Aveiro, now in charge of the case, said in an interview, with The Associated Press at his office in Asuncion's white marble Justice Palace.

"An order for his arrest has existed for years and I renew it regularly, but the police have not found him and no one else has told me where he is," the 38-year-old judge added. "No one has come forward from the Jewish community or from the West German Embassy."

Mrs. Klarsfeld, he said, "did not speak with me, nor, as far as I know, did she offer any new facts to the Justice or Interior ministries. Those who say Mengele is being protected fail to say who is the protector or where the wanted man is hidden."

"This man Mengele has become a phantom," said a respected member of Asuncion's 1,200-member Jewish community, leaders of which declined to meet with Mrs. Klarsfeld. "It's a shame politics cannot be put aside and a dedicated effort made to find him." He spoke on condition that he not be identified.

Few people remain in Asuncion who knew Mengele, or will admit to knowing him.

"The Germans I know believe he left long ago," said Walter Schultz, Paraguayan-born son of German immigrants, members of a German-descended community estimated at about 100,000 which includes President Stroessner, son of a German father and Paraguayan mother.

"I signed his naturalization papers, but didn't even realize it until 1962, when I read in a Brazilian magazine that a man named Mengele was wanted for war crimes," said Eugenio Jimenez y Nuñez, 69, only living member of the three-man Supreme Court that approved citizenship requests. "No one was looking for him when he applied to become a Paraguayan."

"At the time Mengele's application came before us we were naturalizing about 60 people a day, many of them Germans who had founded the farming community of Nueva Germania (New Germany) north of Asuncion, years before the war," he said in an interview.

"I do remember thinking it odd to find a physician among so many farmers. I never saw him, though, because the swearing-in ceremony was handled by another judge."

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, DEC. 27, 1984

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The earliest part of the day is best for whatever is constructive in its nature, so utilize these hours to your advantage by reducing your goals to a successful plan of action.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be sensible in handling personal matters in the morning and later you can set a new course of action that can gain you your aims.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Morning is fine for a new campaign of action to gain you personal longings, but this soon changes and later you can do fine.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get busy at your work and be efficient at it, though a partner could prove annoying. You may be tired and tense in the evening.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You have new plans you want to get started, so do just that even if it means applying some extra effort.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You had better pay holiday bills now even if your mind is still on amusements, and be sensible about them.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Early handle some important association matter by first planning how to do it and then get in touch with those involved.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good day to get right to work even though your mind may be bent on having a good time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A good morning to plan amusements for the days ahead and then be inspired anew to go on with some special talents you have.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get your home better arranged so that you can work more efficiently there and make a better impression on others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Early morning talks with partners is wise so that you can plan the future more wisely. Rest up this evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A good day for handling practical affairs so get an early start and do so intelligently.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Think about your own wishes and how best to gain them with the assistance of a bigwig. Good friends will understand your needs.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be very sensitive and should early be taught to be more objective so as not to have the feelings hurt so easily. One who will easily understand the needs and woes of others and want to be helpful to them, so slant the education along such lines of humanitarian endeavor.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

White Man's Medicine Is Replacing Indian Cures For Florida's Seminoles

By JOHN PLATERO
Associated Press Writer

BRIGHTON RESERVATION, Fla. (AP) — Frank Shore slowly leans back into a well-worn sofa in his cement block house and shuts his eyes as he seemingly goes back in time.

After a pause he says with eyes still closed, "In the old days, it was just Indian medicine when the Indian lived alone. Now, Indians take white man's medicine."

Shore, at 84, has been a Seminole medicine man for almost 60 years. He continues to care for older residents among the 355 Indians living on this 45,000-acre reservation isolated on the northwest corner of Lake Okechobee.

Those who come to him for his special herbs and cures adhere to the "old ways" or believe modern medicine administered at the reservation's health clinic cannot cure all health problems.

He learned his profession from an uncle, Billie Smith, who, he says, taught him nature's secrets. It took seven years of apprenticeship to learn how to convert grasses, roots, leaves and myriad ingredients into salves, ointments and remedies. Hundreds of ceremonial songs and chants are needed for the process of making Indian medicine, he adds.

Medicine men not only treat aches, pains and illnesses, but also provide potions to resolve bad dreams and unrequited love. There are also medicine women in the Seminole tribe who help with female ailments, childbirth and personal problems women may have.

Medicine men and women have little authority in tribal government. However, it is the medicine man who reigns during the Green Corn Dance, a four-night ceremony similar to Thanksgiving.

It is a time when the Seminoles reacquire themselves with their heritage.

The annual celebration occurs in early summer and is a joyous occasion filled with folklore, storytelling and dancing. The tribe congregates at a secret site chosen by the medicine man and outsiders are rarely permitted.

No modern conveniences are used during the Green Corn Dance. The participants live in open-sided, thatch-roofed chickees, cook by open fire and wear traditional clothing.

Although this reservation, one of four in Florida, has limited contact with white people, Shore is gradually losing touch with his own people because of a language barrier. He speaks Creek with his wife, Lottie, family members and those who were taught the language of their ancestors while most of the residents use English.

Some also speak the language of the Miccosukees, another linguistic group of the Seminoles who have their reservation on Tamiami Trail southwest of Miami.

"The Indian children don't speak Creek anymore," Shore laments. "They learn English first." Partly because of the language barrier with the younger Seminole generation, Shore has no one to pass on his knowledge to.

"If someone would ask me, I'd teach them," he says through an interpreter.

Shore remembers hardships Indians once suffered because of discrimination and the scarcity of decent jobs, but he shows no bitterness.

"Some whites didn't care too much for Indians, but some were friendly."

"The white man is interested in the Seminole ways and is getting information from the older ones and putting it on paper," he adds. "The Indians aren't doing it."

Shore lives quietly with his wife and a married daughter, one of seven children the couple have. His favorite foods are fried fish and lemon pie. He seldom watches the black-and-white portable television in the house. "Too much talking," he explains.

Old friends like Frank Cypress still come by. Cypress will bring a jug filled with herbs for Shore to turn into medicine and the two will spend hours telling tales and singing songs.

Despite arthritis in his feet and failing eyesight, Shore still finds humor in life.

When Lottie recalls she's been married to Shore since 1937, Shore responds with a laugh, "It seems longer than that."

USDA Yearbook Offers Fodder For Trivia Game

By DON KENDALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department's new yearbook, "Animal Health," offers a fertile source in case someone wants to design a trivia game around animals on the farm, in the wild and around the house.

For example: The male bear is a boar, the female a sow. The same goes for male and female hogs. But the offspring of a bear is a cub, while that of a hog is a piglet or shoat. A group of bears is a sleuth. A group of hogs is a herd or drove. A bear giving birth is cubbing, while a hog giving birth is farrowing.

Get the idea? OK, in the same mode a male cat is a tom, a female is a pussy or queen. The offspring is a kitten, and group of cats is a clowder. When a cat gives birth, it is called queening.

The male sheep is a buck or ram, the female a ewe or dam. Their offspring is a lamb or lambskin. And the birth event is lambing. A group is a flock or huddle.

If a goat is kidding, it is giving birth to a kid. The male parent is a billy or buck, the mother a nanny. A group of goats is a trip.

"Humans, through the ages have developed a special bond with their animals," says a chapter in the yearbook. "In many instances, particular and separate names have evolved for each sex, the young, and for that most magical time of all — giving birth."

The chapter, "Common Names for All Animals," was written by Larry D. Mark of the department's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, and Edward D. Menning, executive vice president of the National Association of Federal Minister Relieved

MOSCOW (AP) — The government has relieved Education Minister Mikhail A. Prokofiev of his duties for health reasons and replaced him with the deputy chief of the Communist Party's education department, Tass reports.

Prokofiev, 74, was relieved at "his request for reasons of health," the official news agency said. It said the ruling Politburo thanked the minister for his "honest labor for the party and the people," indicating he was not removed in disgrace.

The new minister is Sergei G. Shcherbakov, who had been first deputy chief of the science and educational institutions department of the party Central Committee, Tass said.

Terrorist Arrest

ROME (AP) — Police say they have arrested a Lebanese woman suspected of leadership in a Middle East terrorist gang that has claimed responsibility for attacks on U.S. and Israeli targets.

Police officials, who asked not to be identified, said Josephine Abdo Sarkis, 26, was arrested at Leonardo da Vinci airport after she arrived from Jordan.

Ms. Sarkis allegedly is a leader of the Lebanese Armed Revolutionary Factions, according to Italian police. They said the group has claimed responsibility for several attacks on U.S. and Israeli installations in France.

The Italian news agency ANSA reported that Ms. Sarkis was being questioned about the assassination last February of Leamon Hunt. The American director-general of the Multinational Force and Observers that patrol the Sinai peninsula was gunned down outside his home in Rome.

 Opening lead: Six of ♣.

There was no question whom Lady Luck favored in the first-round clash between the U.S. and Great Britain at the recent Women's Team Olympiad in Seattle. This was the third board of their encounter.

Looking at the North-South cards, you would rather play seven hearts than four hearts. The grand slam depends only on reasonable breaks in the red suits. The British women bid to a small slam on the sequence shown. When South showed a red two-suiter, North cue-bid clubs and then invited slam by raising her partner's sign-off. South accepted by cue-bidding the ace of spades.

Against six hearts, Betty Ann Kennedy of Shreveport, La., found the best lead of a low spade. Declarer won the ace and cashed the ace-king of trumps to expose the unfortunate break. She entered her hand by leading the ten of diamonds to the ace, then led the ten of trumps. West and dummy both played low. Declarer crossed to the ace of clubs and ruffed a club. Now all she needed to make her contract was to get back to the table to draw the last trump. But when she tried to cross with a diamond, West ruffed and the defense took two black winners for a two-trick set.

In the other room, the American North-South pair lingered in four hearts, which was made with an overtrick. The U.S. gained a rather unexpected 13 International Match Points on the board.

Mexico Prohibits LP Gas In Cars

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Mexican government, attempting to prevent explosions and avert shortages for cooking and home heating, has prohibited the use of liquefied petroleum gas in cars.

The ban was announced Thursday in a news release issued by the national oil company, Pemex. On Nov. 19, an explosion and fire at a Pemex liquefied petroleum gas storage and distribution facility killed at least 490 people in a Mexico City suburb.

The Pemex news release said people whose cars burn liquefied petroleum gas have 30 days to convert their vehicles to gasoline. Failure to do so could bring fines up to $1,000, Pemex said.

Some Mexicans have converted their cars to liquefied petroleum gas in the past few years. The cars burn a mixture of butane and propane that is 20-30 percent cheaper than gasoline.

The Pemex news release said using liquefied petroleum gas in cars was dangerous, and the ban would prevent fuel shortages for home use. Since the devastating explosion, some consumers have complained they cannot get gas for cooking and heating.

New Roads

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Palestinian leaders say a plan to build 350 miles of roads in the occupied West Bank is a step toward Israel's annexation of the area it conquered from Jordan in 1967.

A group of prominent Palestinians elected by landowners to protest the proposal said it involves expropriation of 17,000 acres of private land in the West Bank of the Jordan River.

Israeli security experts have advocated building new roads that bypass Palestinian population centers in order to avoid attacks on Israeli vehicles by youths throwing stones and firebombs to protest the Israeli occupation.

Town Has Favorite Pothole

ARCHBALD, Pa. (AP) — This Lackawanna County town has a pothole no car would want to traverse. In fact, this pothole would swallow a car — not to mention a bus — whole.

The Archbald Pothole is a relic of the glacial period. It's not a pothole of the frame-crunching, tire-busting variety found on many city streets, and it attracts thousands of motorists annually.

A sign near its huge mouth states that the Archbald Pothole is the largest of its kind in the world.

The pothole is approximately 42 feet wide and 38 feet deep, and was formed at the foot of a glacial waterfall about 15,000 years ago during the Ice Age.

The big hole in the ground recently celebrated its 100th birthday as a public phenomenon.

Historical records show that in October 1884, a coal mining company managed by Edward Jones of Blakely was digging in the section of Archbald known as Eynon. After a considerable amount of blasting, miners re-entering the mines two days later were startled to see daylight coming through the roof of the mine chamber. That daylight led to the base of the pothole.

Jones, who was well-versed in geology, was the first to realize what had been uncovered.

Not long after the pothole was discovered, Col C.B. Hackley, who owned the land where the pothole is situated, donated the then-hefty sum of $500 to have a retaining wall and fence built around the natural wonder.

UP TO $1,000 INSTANT CREDIT!
CHOOSE FROM TWO PLANS.

Apply For Our Convenient Lowe's Credit Card.

Just present your Visa, American Express or MasterCard, and you may qualify for up to $1,000 instant credit on a new Lowe's Card. (Even without these cards, your application will be processed with a minimum delay.) Ask a Lowe's salesperson for complete details.

Finance Major Purchases Of Up To $5,000 On Our Low Payment Plan.

Our Low Payment Plan offers you an easier way to make those major home improvements and larger purchases. It's designed to let you finance purchases of $250 to $5,000 for up to five years at competitive rates. The result is a very low monthly payment that fits comfortably into your family budget and brings important home additions, from a new refrigerator to a new roof, within easy reach. Just look for the above symbol in future advertisements. And, where space is available, we'll also provide the specific credit details on selected items, to give you an idea of the relative size of monthly payments and Annual Percentage Rates.
Low Payment Credit Terms are outlined below. So apply today. You may qualify for up to $1,000 instant credit when you present your Visa, American Express, MasterCard, Sears or Lowe's card!

*Lowe's Low Payment Credit Terms: Your credit must be satisfactory. Our cash price does not include sales tax. The monthly payment price may be slightly lower, depending upon state law. The monthly payment price includes sales tax of 5%. If sales tax differs in your area, the monthly payment will vary slightly. Credit Life and Disability Insurance is available upon request. Delivery charges are excluded.

We Also Honor American Express, Visa & MasterCard.

Lowe's Raincheck Policy: If we sell out of an advertised item, we'll issue you a raincheck. When we restock, you'll be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price (except for products marked "Limited Quantities"). Our smaller stores may not stock all advertised items. But every item shown here can be ordered for you.

Lowe's Pricing Policy: Many items in this tabloid carry a reference retail price. The reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its full retail price based on prices at which it or similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference retail price does not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that our reference retail prices as described above represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this advertisement are listed at "regular" selling prices. The merchandise is offered at this price except during a special sale. The purpose of showing a reference retail price (or a regular price) is to assist you, our customer, in making a knowledgeable and better informed buying decision. We suggest that you also do comparative shopping and compare our prices. (Prices in this tabloid do not include delivery charges. Ask us about delivery rates.)

864 Sq.Ft. Heated Living Space; Garage Extra Land And Labor Are Extra (LH 100 Elevation c)

"The Provider" Features:

2 bedrooms, 1 bath, a living/dining combination, and a U-shaped kitchen; plus luxuries like a pantry, a linen closet, and big double closets. Expand on the basics with a 288 sq. ft. garage, a storage shed, or a deck; a dividing wall between kitchen and dining area is also optional. Choose from 3 exterior styles.

Our Total-Package System Takes The Hassle Out Of Home Building - And Saves You Money!

- For one low price, Lowe's will supply all the materials to build the energy-efficient "Provider" from the foundation plate up. The price is guaranteed for 90 days from the date the contract is signed.
- Once construction begins, we'll deliver materials to your lot in building sequence, so there's less chance of loss due to weather or theft. In other words, you won't get carpet when the roof's going up.
- Our home designs either meet or exceed normal energy-efficient standards. That's because they incorporate extra insulation, extensive caulking, insulated windows, attic ventilation system and more.
- "The Provider" is one of many Lowe's-designed homes. We offer you a wide selection of styles & sizes - from large, family homes to vacation cottages. Ask Lowe's for complete details and a free booklet.
