Winter Storm Smothers Plains States

By MARK BERNS
Associated Press Writer

An end-of-the-year outburst hurled snow today at the nation's midsection after slamming the Northwest with 2 feet of snow, sending tornadoes slashing across Texas, pushing the mercury to record heights in 16 states while at the same time chilling the northern Plains with sub-zero readings.

Flash flood warnings were in effect today for parts of Texas and New York state and up to 8 inches of snow was expected to fall in the mountains of Colorado before the New Year.

Snow and freezing rain turned roads to ribbons of ice early today in parts of Nebraska, Kansas, Montana, the Dakotas, Wisconsin and Michigan, the National Weather Service said. Winter storm watches were posted for today for northern Oklahoma and southern Kansas.

Parts of the East will remain unseasonably warm, but "otherwise (it will be) pretty much standard around-the-first-of-the-year" day, Harry Gordon, of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo., said early today.

Since Friday night, about 2 feet of snow has blanketed parts of northern Idaho, where the town of Mullan had 15 inches in a 24-hour period ending Sunday. West Yellowstone, Mont., had 11 inches, and Spokane, Wash., 8 inches.

Howling winds and snow in Washington state on Saturday made travel difficult and forced officials to close Interstate 90 over Snoqualmie Pass for about 2½ hours. Chains or snow tires were required on most mountain passes, and officials warned of avalanches below 7,000 feet.

In Nebraska, the State Patrol said Interstate 80 was mostly covered with ice Sunday from North Platte to Ogallala. A 65-year-old man was killed when the car he was riding in slid into an oncoming car about one mile west of Paxton, police said.

A cooling trend in the Northeast diminished snowmelt flooding, but not soon enough for 347 residents of Albion, N.Y., who were forced to flee their homes between the Salmon River reservoir and Lake Ontario. They returned Sunday, but flooding still was reported along the Black River at Booneville, Tonawanda Creek near Batavia and the Raquette River near Potsdam.

Five or more inches of rain Sunday afternoon and evening across south-central Texas also caused flooding in Uvalde, Kerr, Real and Bandera counties.

A cold front heading out of the Northwest stalled across Texas on Sunday, spawning several tornadoes that ripped roofs off of several houses, damaged billboards and uprooted trees in three counties northeast of San Antonio, authorities said. No injuries were reported.

A blizzard warning was posted early in the day for extreme northwest Washington state, but the harsh weather abated later in the day. A winter storm warning was in effect for mountain passes of northwest Montana, and travelers' advisories were issued for much of Idaho and Washington and the higher elevations of northern Utah.

A 30-mile stretch of Idaho Route 21 near Stanley, was closed when 10 inches of snow fell, state transportation officials said Sunday.

Bitter cold air continued to grip the northern Plains and Minnesota on Sunday. Lows dropped well below zero across much of the region, including a 25-below reading at Williston, N.D.

Williston was the coldest spot in the nation early today, with a reading of 24 below.

New Year Comes In On Warm Side

The new year may be on the horizon, but it will be more of the same in North Carolina and Pitt County as unseasonably warm temperatures continue across the state.

National Weather Service extended forecast reports indicate the warming trend will carry over into this week with highs ranging from the 50s to 70s.

Behind the unusually balmy temperatures is a high pressure system located off the east coast that has been pumping warm, moist Gulf air up through a southwest corridor. This pressure system, expected to dissipate later in the week, has brought more than warm temperatures to the state, however.

In Pitt County, local merchants are assigning both pluses and minuses to the unseasonable weather.

Sears representative George Avery said that, while warm weather has adversely affected coat and sweater sales, sales on light weight jogging suits and sweats have been unusually high. "The temperatures have definitely affected sales. We had to start markdowns on coats, sweaters, wool pants, gloves, and such — anything that's a seasonal type item — a bit earlier than usual."

"The offset of this, though, is if you're wise enough to get out some summer goods, you can sell a few items," Avery said. "Sales of active wear, light weight jogging suits and sweats have been a little more brisk than usual."

Avery added, however, that he's "afraid if it ever does get cold, there won't be many winter clothes for customers to choose from."

Hodges Sporting Goods retail manager Tom Grove said warm weather definitely had something to do with "great" before-Christmas sales. "Last year when it was so cold, people did very little shopping just before Christmas." But this year, the day before Christmas was the "biggest sales day of the year," he said.

While many are enjoying outdoor opportunities afforded by the warm weather, Grove said a lot of his customers will be glad when cold weather arrives.

"They're ready for snow skiing," he said.

Local canines are probably ready for freezing temperatures as well. According to a Raleigh animal reasearch laboratory, fleas are still prevalent and will continue to thrive until cold weather sets in. "Fleas are very resistant and anything less than consistent freezing temperatures won't harm them," a lab spokesman said.

Other pluses and minuses of the warm weather, according to a local extension agent and fuel oil company representatives, include an extended planting season and decreased heating oil sales.

According to Pitt County Agricultural Extension Agent Sam Uzzell, now until March would be an ideal time to plant shrubs and trees. But plants grown in containers can be planted almost any time of the year, he said.

"If planted properly, plants grown in containers can make it almost any

YOU WANT TO WHAT? — Evidently these two have different ideas about how a sunny, winter day should be spent. "Dam-mit" the cat apparently had envisioned a quiet day, reposing on a cushiony stack of woven place mats warmed by the sun. That was until "Toby," right, began to raise such a ruckus outside the sliding glass window, that Dam-mit was provoked into producing a brief, yet effectively quelling stare.

Quake Kills 20 In India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A major earthquake rocked northeastern India today, killing at least 20 people, injuring more than 100 others as hundreds of mud thatched huts collapsed and bridges and highways were damaged, official reports said.

Reports from the area said the quake knocked down electric poles, snapped communication lines and razed thatched huts.

The earthquake, measuring 6.0 on the Richter scale, shook Cachar district in remote Assam state early today, said P.K. Das, director general of the National Metereological Department. Its epicenter was placed at near the border between India and Bangladesh.

The exact number of injured people who were taken to a hospital was not immediately available, the United News of India news agency reported.

Senior police and state officials rushed to the area to assess the damage.

Cacher is a densely populated area 310 miles northeast of Calcutta.

The Richter scale is a gauge of the energy released by an earthquake, as measured by the ground motion recorded on a seismograph. A quake of magnitude 6.0 can cause severe damage in populated areas.

Vietnamese, Cambodians Fighting In Bases Near Thailand's Border

NONG SAMET, Thailand (AP) — Vietnamese occupation troops and Cambodian guerrillas fought at close range in the border resistance camp of Rithisen today, the seventh straight day of combat, Thai military sources said.

Vietnamese troops were holding firm inside Rithisen and fighting also was reported around at least five other guerrilla bases along the Thai-Cambodian border, Thai and guerrilla sources said.

The Thai officials, who were monitoring developments from the Thai-Cambodian border, said fighting resumed this morning after bloody weekend clashes that pitted the artillery-backed Vietnamese against anti-communist guerrillas who are trying to retake their largest camp.

Rithisen guerrilla commander Lia Ne told reporters in Nong Samet, a Thai border village near the scene of the battle, that the Vietnamese still controlled the center of the sprawling encampment as well as other sectors.

The fighting tapered off later in the day as the Khmer People's National Liberation Front rotated its exhausted forces after a bloody day Sunday. The anti-communist Liberation Front has found it difficult to advance under accurate fire from Vietnamese long-range howitzers.

Casualties in today's fighting were not immediately known, but the International Red Cross said more than 100 wounded guerrillas were carried into Thailand from the battlefield Sunday.

Rithisen was overrun by a tank-supported Vietnamese force on Christmas Day and fighting has raged in and around the camp since. The camp's 62,000 civilian inhabitants fled last week.

Liberation Front officers said three guerrillas were killed and nine wounded Rithisen today.

Thai military officers, who asked not to be identified, said they also had reports of fighting in the districts of Khao Din, Koke Sabaeng, Klong Haat and Ban Kruat, all controlled by communist Khmer Rouge guerrillas, as well as at Obok, which is held by the Khmer People's National Liberation Front.

The Liberation Front, which controlled Rithisen before the Vietnamese assault, is allied with the Khmer Rouge and with a non-communist resistance organization loyal to former Cambodian head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

The guerrilla war in Cambodia began in 1979 soon after Soviet-allied Vietnam invaded its neighbor and toppled the Chinese-backed Khmer Rouge regime, setting up a pro-Hanoi government led by President Heng Samrin.

Reporters today were able to enter the Liberation Front headquarters camp near the Thai border, Ampil, which defenders fear will the target of the next Vietnamese attack. Ampil was quiet today, with most of about 5,000 guerrilla defenders dug in along its perimeter.

Predictions From Those That Wait

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Walter Mondale, despite numerous "Hart attacks," will win the Democratic presidential nomination and will carry all but 49 states against President Reagan, who will outlaw Russia forever.

That's just one of the whimsical predictions for 1984 issued today by the Procrastinators' Club of America, whose forecasts have never been wrong, thanks to the 20-20 vision offered by hindsight.

Les Waas of Huntingdon Valley, who founded the club 28 years ago, admitted that the procrastinators "really don't take too many chances."

For the past 15 or so years, the club has issued its forecasts for each calendar year on the last day of that year, he said. "By making these predictions late, we have an edge."

Waas, who has been trying to give up the club's reins for years but hasn't gotten around to holding an election, said the group has about 4,800 card-carrying members around the world.

A half-million people believe in the club's motto — if it's worth doing, it's worth putting off — but haven't gotten around to signing up, he estimates.

About the only nations that have no members are Spain and Mexico, Waas said. "Because of their 'manana' (tomorrow) philosophy, they don't need the Procrastinators' Club."

Here are other Procrastinators' Club predictions for 1984:

— Mondale will select as his running mate a feisty woman whose persona, as the vice president's wife put it, "rhymes with rich."

— Just three days before the election, the Democratic contender will "smell victory in the air" — but it won't be his.

— "An old lady will become world-famous by merely questioning the whereabouts of some beef."

— "Yuppies" will read the Wall Street Journal, and "nerds" will gain long-awaited respect.

— A generous baboon will give its heart to a tiny baby.

— Mickey Mouse will go on strike.

— Miss America will be stripped of her title "for explicit reasons."

— People will pay to walk on hot coals in their bare feet.

In The Area

No Fire

Several courtrooms and offices at the Pitt County Court House were evacuated for a short time when a fire was reported in the building about 9:41 a.m. today.

However, Assistant Fire-Rescue Chief Don Mills said there was no fire and no damage resulted.

Mills said fire units were called after a malfunctioning heating system boiler was lighted, sending plumes of black smoke out the chimney.

Cars Collide

An estimated $300 damage resulted to each of two vehicles involved in an 8:55 p.m. collision Sunday on Reade Street south of the Fourth Street intersection.

Police identified the drivers of the cars involved as Howard William Burt of Route 8, Greenville, and Melissa Anne Littlefield, of 1303 Sonata St. Miss Littlefield was charged with failing to reduce her speed enough to avoid an accident.

Thefts Investigated

Greenville police are continuing their investigation of five thefts reported to the department over the weekend.

Officer L.E. White said a boat motor, valued at $250, was taken from 116 N. Eastern St. in an incident reported at 6:47 p.m. Saturday, while Officer J.G. Bridges said a telelvision set, weight set and weight bench, a clock radio, several rings, a cactus plant and pool stick were taken from 503½ E. Second St. in an incident reported at 7:25 p.m.

Bridges also said a coat, a telephone, 20 tapes, a cassette recorder, and a bicycle were taken from 1307 Forbes St. in a break-in reported at 3:55 p.m. Sunday, while a coat, valued at $130, and a gym bag were taken from a car parked at the Paddock Club off Dickinson Avenue in an incident reported at 11:15 p.m. Sunday.

According to Officer D.R. Wyrick, a bicycle valued at $225 was taken from 203 Harding St. in an incident reported at 12:49 p.m. Sunday.

Three Arrested

Greenville police arrested three people on larceny charges in connection with two separate incidents reported Saturday.

Officer J.M. Jones said Jerome Jenkins, 21, of 1809A Hopkins Drive was charged with larceny in connection with the theft of a pair of tennis shoes, valued at $30, from the K-Mart store about 10:53 a.m.

Curtis Ray Phillips, 16, of 1102 Farmville Boulevard, and Denineу Ray Brown, 18, of 306A Watauga Ave., were charged with larceny in connection with the theft of jogging suits from Bonds Sporting Goods on Arlington Boulevard, about 2:48 p.m., according to Officer E.M. Haddock.

Fire Investigated

Greenville police are continuing their investigation into a fire at 1111 S. Washington St. which was reported about 1:01 a.m. Sunday.

Officer J.E. Harris said an estimated $600 damage resulted when fires were set in a bedroom and on the rear poarch of the dwelling with the aid of a flamable liquid.

The officer noted that a flammable liquid had also been poured in other rooms of the house but had not been ignited.

Child Safety Seats

The Martin County Health Department is one of 19 community agencies across North Carolina that will receive child safety seats from the North Carolina Motor Carriers Association Jan. 3-4.

The seats, purchased by member companies, will be delivered to Martin and other agencies from Pisgah Forest to Swan Quarter by two tractor trailers from the North Carolina Truck Driver Training School, a division of Johnston Technical College at Smithfield. The seats are to be loaned for a small deposit to families with small children.

Concert Scheduled

The Rock Island Singers, The Edwards Singers and The Golden Jubilees will sing at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday at Union Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Farmville.

Watch Meeting

A watch meeting will be held at St. John Baptist Church in Falkland beginning at 10 p.m. today.

Meeting Scheduled

The American Legion Auxiliary of Pitt County, unit no. 39, will hold its first meeting of 1985 at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the American Legion Building on St. Andrews Drive, Greenville.

Council To Meet

The Pitt County Safety Council will hold its monthly meeting at 12:30 p.m. Thursday at the Greenville Golf and Country Club with Wayne Smith, plant engineer for the Brody Building, East Carolina University School of Medicine, as the speaker.

The meeting is open to the public.

Police Name First Woman As Detective

The Greenville Police Department will have it's first female detective when a promotion and several transfers announced by Chief Ted Holmes take effect Jan 6.

Holmes announced the promotion of Officer Karla P. Fuller to the rank of corporal and her assignment to the detective division recently, a move that will make her the first female detective in the department's history.

Officer Fuller attended high school in Morehead City and received a degree in correctional services from East Carolina University before joining the police department here in February 1977, where she has been a dispatcher and and officer assigned to the patrol division.

Holmes also announced that Cpl. W.A. Reid will be transferred to the detective division, while Detective N.L. Garrish will be transferred to the uniformed patrol division.

Reid, a graduate of Camden High School, joined the department in October 1973 and assigned to the patrol division. He was promoted to the rank of corporal in January 1984, and is currently enrolled in the police science program at Pitt Community College.

Garris, an Ocracoke native, was a deputy sheriff in Hyde County before joining the police department here in February 1979 as a uniformed officer. He has been a detective since August 1982.

Burger Wants 10th Justice To Supervise Court System

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger is calling for a 10th Supreme Court justice who would not hear cases but would help ease the high court's workload by administering the federal court system.

In an interview in the American Bar Association Journal, the 77-year-old Burger, who now administers the system, was quoted as saying the job never interferes with his study of cases but "interferes with my family life, hobbies, recreation and a lot of other things."

Burger said that the chief justice himself should be the one to choose the new justice from among sitting federal judges.

In a year-end report on the state of the judiciary, Burger pleaded Sunday for legislation to relieve the high court of the duty to grant full reviews to certain types of appeals. He also called anew for creation of a "temporary" tribunal to settle some conflicts among lower appellate courts.

In the ABA Journal, published Saturday, Burger said he "put in 80 hours a week of work," much of it in administration.

Burger said the 10th justice should be assigned solely to administrative work and would hear no cases. He said the new justice could serve as administrator for five years and then go back to regular judicial duties.

"Supreme Court justices must now work beyond any sound maximum limits," Burger wrote in his year-end report. "Absolutely no room remains for additional cases. More important, the precious time for reflection so necessary to a court that decides cases with far-reaching consequences has been reduced to, and possibly below, an absolute minimum."

Burger's report also criticized a lack of "meaningful employment" and vocational training in "our dismal prison systems." In Scandinavia, he said, most prisoners engage in productive work while in America the average is about 10 percent.

"Prisoners must be given the opportunity to learn marketable skills, both to repay the government some of the costs of confinement and to train them for life after release," Burger said. He quoted an unidentified Washington cab driver as telling him: "Right now, prisons are like putting a shirt in water with no soap. Putting it in and taking it out. It's getting wet, but you ain't getting no dirt out."

The chief justice's mainly grim assessment did cite a few pluses.

He commended Congress, for creating 24 new appeals court judgeships and 61 new district court judgeships, as well as resolving a deadlock over revamping bankruptcy procedures.

The new legislation includes authorization for the appointment of special bankruptcy judges as adjunct officers in the district courts.

At the start of 1984, Burger said, "the average judge had approximately a full year of work to do exclusive of any new cases filed." And "it must be made clear," he said, that the new positions created by Congress will help only "with accrued, existing needs, but not demands of the future." He said at least 47 more federal judges are already needed.

Burger pointed out that in his 15½ years as chief justice, the Supreme Court has gone from issuing 65 signed opinions to 151 per one-year term.

As relief, he asked Congress to absolve the court from mandatory full consideration of appeals arising from the federal system, such as disputes over the edicts of regulatory agencies.

Most cases reaching the high court, including those from state judicial systems, seek a "writ of certiorari" for review. The court can grant the writ and hear the case, or simply deny the writ and let the lower judgment stand.

But the court has little or no such discretion about hearing cases arising from within the federal system, such as conflicts between agencies or different lower courts.

Legislation to abolish mandatory appellate jurisdiction has been passed by either the House or the Senate in each of the last four Congresses.

The chief justice also revived his pitch for creation of a "temporary intercircuit tribunal" which could relieve his colleagues of the burden of settling conflicting opinions among the 13 circuit courts of appeal.

Lincolnton Bank Accepts Invitation

LINCOLNTON, N.C. (AP) — The Lincolnton High School, which spurned an invitation to be a route band in the 50th Inaugural Parade in Washington, has been enticed to participate in the celebration after all.

The 156-member band received a mistaken invitation from a state Republican official to march in the parade, and was told Dec. 20 it wouldn't actually be in the parade but would be a band along the parade route.

Band officials spurned the route band idea, saying it was an insult. But the same officials told the band Sunday to start practicing and to pack their bags for Washington.

The band also will march Saturday in the parade for Gov.-elect Jim Martin.

In all, the band will perform at three events in Washington:

- A 10-minute concert Jan. 18 at the Elipse.
- A serenade Jan. 20 at a reception for the North Carolina delegation to the inauguration.
- A choice spot on a corner in Reagan's inaugural parade, where the band will release 500 red-and-white balloons when the president passes.

Band director Donald Peach said the invitation to play for the state delegation was a bigger honor than playing in the parade. The invitation for that honor came from Rep. Jim Broyhill, R-N.C., and Rep.-elect Alex McMillan, R-N.C.

RESTORING CHIPPED TEETH

If any of your teeth have been chipped in a fall or accident, they can be restored to a completely natural look with the new bonding technique.

This is a great advantage, particularly where your front teeth are concerned. Any flaw there shows everything you smile. But it doesn't have to. No one is more aware than the smiler.

Only a minimum of tooth preparation is needed with the bonding technique. The dentist will use a small amount of a mild acid solution to make tiny openings in the tooth enamel on all sides of the chipped or fractured tooth. Then he'll use a special bonding material to seal off and rebuild the damaged area to make the tooth look "like new" again.

The acid used is so mild that there's no danger of injuring the healthy tooth enamel. And the restorative material used to repair and rebuild the tooth usually lasts for years.

Best of all, your teeth can look their best whenever you speak or flash a smile. Best of all, it can be done in one office visit.

Smith-Hardee Wedding Vows Are Solemnized

Tracie Charlene Hardee and Danny Ray Smith were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at three o'clock in a candlelight ceremony. The Rev. Frank Gentry performed the double ring ceremony in the Windy Ridge Club House.

Parents of the couple are Yvonne Bright Hardee and B.R. Hardee, both of Greenville, and Mr. and Mrs. Grover L. Smith of Grimesland.

Melinda Peaden and John Forlines sang "You and I" and "Wedding Prayer." A program of taped music was used.

Bonita Henderson of Simpson, sister of the bride, was honor attendant.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and Barry C. Henderson of Simpson, brother-in-law of the bride, was usher.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father.

The wedding ceremony was attended only by family and close friends.

The bride wore a gown of nylon organza and featured a stand-up neckline of alencon lace and seed pearl rosettes. The illusion yoke had matching lace appliques which formed a ladder effect to the fitted waistline. The full skirt, which ended in a chapel train, had a ruffle with multi-rows of lace. Lace appliques accented with seed pearls dotted the skirt. Her hat was covered with lace with seed pearl accents. The illusion trim was gathered at the back in an oversized bow and fell to fingertip length. Her cascade bouquet contained orchids, miniature carnations, pom pons and pink roses with pink and burgundy ribbons.

MRS. SMITH

The honor attendant wore a dress styled with a burgundy velvet bodice with a sweeetheart neckline and puff sleeves. The rose colored skirt of acetate taffeta had a flounced hemline and tie bow sash at the waist. She carried a nosegay of miniature carnations, pom pons and pink roses with pink and burgundy ribbons.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of dusty rose with a cymbidium orchid and the mother of the bridegroom selected a light blue formal gown with a cymbidium orchid.

Nila Bland directed the ceremony and Sherry Ross presided at the guest register. Programs were distributed by Scott and Robbie Cale, nephews of the bride and rice bags were given out by Emily and Kerri Beth Bright, nieces of the bride. Other favors were given out by Derek and Jason Smith, nephews of the bride.

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip.

The bride is a graduate of Greenville Christian Academy and is employed by Olsen Associates, Inc. in Greenville. The bridegroom attended Pitt County schools and is employed by D.D. Bright Electrical Contractor.

Mr. and Mrs. Dalton D. Bright Jr. greeted guests at the reception. Wedding cake was served by Nancy Williams of Raleigh and punch was poured by Mary Rouse of Grifton. Assisting in serving were Mary Dillard Mills and Barbara Sutton, both of Greenville.

A rehearsal dinner was given by parents of the bridegroom at Parker's Barbecue Restaurant for members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests.

The bride was also entertained at a lingerie shower given by Ms. Bland and Barbara Sutton and at a miscellaneous shower given by Vivian Godley, Geraldine Harris, Mary Rouse, Kathleen Hardee and Ella Rea Bright.

Couple Speaks Wedding Vows Sunday Afternoon

The wedding of Bonnie Sue Whitford and Carl Wayne Boggs, both of Broadway, was held Sunday at 5:30 p.m. The Rev. Harold Stone conducted the ceremony at Broadway Presbyterian Church.

The bride is the daughter Of Mildred C. Whitford of Broadway and the late Zeb O. Whitford Jr. She is a graduate of Lee County Senior High School and attended East Carolina University. She is now enrolled at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Billy B. Boggs of Broadway. He is a graduate of Lee County Senior High School and received a B.S.B.A. degree from ECU. He is employed with Carolina Farms.

The bride, escorted by her grandfather, Archie Cameron, wore a formal gown of white organza accented by alencon lace and seed pearls. The fitted bodice featured a ruffled Queen Anne neckline with Victorian sleeves. The tiered front lace appliqued skirt flowed into a multi-tiered chapel length train. Her veil was fingertip illusion appliqued with lace and seed pearls attached to a lace cap. She carried a classical cascade bouquet of silk white gardenias and stephanotis interspersed with burgundy sweetheart roses outlined with a lace ruffle.

Juliana Whitford, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The bridegroom's father served as best man.

Bridesmaids were Robin Whitford, sister of the bride, Karen Hardee and Cathy Wilkerson, cousins of the bride from Greenville, and Michelle Stone of Broadway.

The maid of honor and bridesmaids wore formal gowns of burgundy nylon over taffeta. The sweetheart necklines featured pleat trimmed bodices with puff sleeves gathered to the shoulder by fabric rosettes. The lower edges of the gowns were caught by fabric rosettes forming scallop hemlines. They carried lighted tapers with crystal globes encircled with silken flowers in burgundy and dusty rose.

Honorary bridesmaids were Michelle Garrett, Angie Thomas and Jan Thomas, cousin of the bridegroom. They wore formal gowns and carried a single, silk burgundy rose with streamers.

Groomsmen were Jay Baucom and Matthew Reece, both of Broadway, Mark Jones of Sanford, and Paul Pruett of Fayetteville.

Katherine Hunter, niece of the bride, served as flower girl. She was attired like the bridesmaids and carried a white basket with silk wine roses and white carnations.

MRS. BOGGS

Jerry S. Belk Jr. of Hickory served as ring bearer.

Jacqueline Belk, cousin of the bride, and Karla Thomas, cousin of the bridegroom, presented each guest with a wedding memento.

Wedding music was provided by Arleen Stone, vocalist, Ronnie Byrd, pianist, and Myrtle Sykes, organist.

Pat Shotwell directed the wedding.

A reception in the church fellowship hall followed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Nello Thomas welcomed the guests. Imogene Garrett and Pat Harbour served cake. Punch was poured by Gwen Belk and Ruth Stokes, aunts of the bride.

Double Ring Ceremony Performed On Sunday

The wedding ceremony of Mary Louise Little and George Fred Floyd III took place Sunday afternoon at three o'clock in The Memorial Baptist Church. The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. E.T. Vinson.

Frances Cain was organist for the ceremony and Mrs. Donald Baucom, cousin of the bride, sang "The Wedding Prayer" and "The Rose." Kelly Jones played the flute.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman F. Little of Greenville, the bride was given in marriage by her parents. Mr. and Mrs. George Fred Floyd Jr. of Machipongo, Va., are parents of the bridegroom.

Judy Little of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids included Jenny Mayhew of Nassawadox, Va., sister of the bridegroom, and Janie Matney of Greenville. The flower girl was Joy Little of Charlotte, cousin of the bride.

Lee Foster Nottingham Jr. of Machipongo, Va., was best man. Ushers included Wayne Little of Richmond, Va., brother of the bride, Wade Walker of Machiponga, Va., and Bert Turner of Eastville, Va.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Jack Cherry of Washington, N.C., aunt of the bride.

The bride wore a gown of nylon organza fashioned with a scalloped trimmed scooped neckline with full bishop sleeves with wide cuffs and empire waist accented with lace appliques. The skirt extended into a chapel train and had a lace border coming to a V in front with lace applique accents. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a band of lace flower petals accented with seed pearls. Her bridal bouquet was of white rosebuds and baby's breath with ribbon streamers.

The honor attendant wore a formal gown of huckleberry silk chiffon fashioned with a sleeveless bodice with a scoop neckline adorned with a double shawl collar and finished at the waist with a satin ribbon belt. The A-line skirt was highlighted with a draped panel in front. The attendants were dressed identically.

The mother of the bride wore a street length dress of rose brocade. The mother of the bridegroom selected a street dress of teal blue.

The flower girl wore a dress of orchid nylon organza with a ruffled lace neckline and long sleeves. She carried a white basket of white flowers and rose colored baby's breath.

A reception followed in the church fellowship hall and was given by the parents of the bride and family members. Mrs. Jim Davenport and Mrs. Grover Everette served wedding cake and Mrs. John Size, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Hugh McGowan poured punch. Goodbyes sere said by Mr. and Mrs. Maylon Little. Rice bags were presented to guests.

The couple will live in Machipongo, Va. after a wedding trip to Aspen, Colo.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University and teaches at Northhampton Middle School in Machipongo. The bridegroom graduated from the University of Florida at Gainsville, Fla., and attended Virginia Commonwelth University in Richmond, Va. The bridegroom is employed in the family farming business.

An after-rehearsal dinner party was given by the bridegroom's parents at the Ramada Inn in Greenville. A bridesmaids luncheon was held at the Colonial Inn in Farmville and was given by family and friends.

Other parties included miscellaneous showers, dinner parties, wine and cheese party and a reception in Machipongo, Va., given by the partents of the bridegroom.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Last New Year's Eve you published some New Year's resolutions. I cut that column out and taped it on my bathroom mirror where I could read it every morning. I want you to know that it has helped me to become a better person. I am not saying that I kept every one of those resolutions every day, but I kept most of them, and they have now become habits that have made a remarkable improvement in my personality and character.

I hope you will run it every New Year's Eve. I'm sure it will benefit many others as it has me.

NEVER TOO OLD

DEAR NEVER: The "resolutions" column has become an established annual tradition:

DEAR READERS: These New Year's resolutions are based on the original credo of Alcoholics Anonymous. I have taken the liberty of using that theme with some variations of my own:

Just for today I will live through this day only, and not set far-reaching goals to try to overcome all my problems at once. I know I can do something for 12 hours that would appall me if I felt that I had to keep it up for a lifetime.

Just for today I will be happy. Abraham Lincoln said, "Most folks are about as happy as they make up their minds to be." He was right. I will not dwell on thoughts that depress me. I will chase them out of my mind and replace them with happy thoughts.

Just for today I will adjust myself to what is. I will face reality. I will change those things that I can change and accept those things I cannot change.

Just for today I will improve my mind. I will not be a mental loafer. I will force myself to read something that requires effort, thought and concentration.

Just for today I will do something positive to improve my health. If I'm a smoker, I'll make an honest effort to cut down. If I'm overweight, I'll eat nothing I know is fattening. And I will force myself to exercise—even if it's only walking around the block or using the stairs instead of the elevator.

Efficient Survive

It is no secret that farming is in trouble these days and because of the cloudy picture for their product tobacco farmers are in more trouble than most.

Local lenders say that financing for tobacco farming is up in the air pending determinination of what changes will be made in the federal tobacco program. Changes already facing tobacco farmers are a 3.7 percent cut in the 1985 quota, and a Stabilization proposal to increase the tobacco marketing assessment from 7 cents per pound to 25 cents per pound. That amount is necessary to support Stabilization's activities next year. There is also a possibility of lower support prices for tobacco.

The uncertainty puts growers and lenders in a quandry, unable to plan on what they will plant and what they will need for next year. Hanging in the balance immediately is the price that will be paid for leasing acreage, an important matter to both the small acreage holders and the large growers who lease from them.

We can only hope that these matters will be resolved quickly so that the job of getting on with planning for the 1985 tobacco crop can proceed.

One banker suggested that the good farmer will survive, while the poor manager will not. The year 1985 will be difficult for tobacco farmers and superb management skills will be needed to make a profit.

Not For A Few

A current mystery is the appearance of a number of a number of barrels in the Tar River.

The barrels had contained a fumigant and, while they appear to be virtually empty, they raised fears of contamination of the Tar River waters. As a precaution Greenville Utilities ceased pumping water from the river until tests are completed.

It is likely that the small amount of fumigant left in the barrels will not cause any problem. Nevertheless the law requires that the barrels be washed and disposed of properly.

Who would dump the barrels in the river? Obviously an uncaring type. Even if the contamination of the Tar River waters is ruled out, the floating barrels are a danger to boats and people. Municipalities along the Tar have spent millions of dollars to treat sewage before it reaches the river. The idea is to have a clean river which will benefit all of us.

Now stringent laws are needed to control dumping by individuals who find the river a convenient place to get rid of their garbage. The river provides drinking water and recreation. It is not for the use of an unselfish and uncaring few.

No Change Expected For Advocates

RALEIGH — Which better serves the public: One advocate arguing for lower utility rates before the state Utilities Commission, or two advocates?

That question is emerging as the most pertinent to the general public as a debate opens regarding the future position of the Public Staff.

The Public Staff debate has the potential to become the 1985 General Assembly's "Big Yawn." Like the Separation of Powers Act in 1983, it's an issue with all kinds of arcane points and counter-points. Most of the arguments will be comprehensible only to the engineers, lawyers and lobbyists who watch the Utilities Commission closely.

The Public Staff was created by the Legislature in 1977 and located in the Commerce Department. It is designed to be an independent agency in its advocacy of the consuming public's position on rate hikes. Its 78 employees also do some administrative work for the Utilities Commission.

During the campaign, the next attorney general, Lacy Thornburg, said the Public Staff should be located in the Justice Department. So, in December, the Legislature's Utilities Review Committee started talking about that proposal. Thornburg says the Public Staff would be more independent if it was in his department. He also claims that the role of consumer advocacy would be better served by a single voice.

The attorney general currently has constitutional authority to represent the consuming public before the Utilities Commission when he sees fit. The Public Staff is required by law to represent the consuming public in every case. In some cases, therefore, the public is now being represented by both the Public Staff and the attorney general.

"The utilities always speak with a single voice," says John Simmons, Thornburg's press aide. "If we had two independent voices, then we'd have a weaker case. What if the two (consumer advocates) don't agree. How would you like to be represented in court by two attorneys who don't agree with each other?"

Appearing before the Utilities Review Committee, Robert Gruber, director of the Public Staff, argued for continuing the dual advocacy system. "Currently, the attorney general has only four attorneys (working on utility matters), so there is not a great expenditure of funds involved. But, we find it helpful that we have a bit of friendly competition in this public advocacy."

Jane Sharpe, an active consumer advocate, says she's been pleased by the dual system. "I feel much more fortunate with the two shots we have at present ... than we would have with only one. The Public Staff and the attorney general's office did reinforce each other and work well together."

Thornburg is also raising the question of independence. He says the Public Staff, because it does work for the Utilities Commission, is not independent of it. Therefore, the staff cannot take on the adversarial relationship to the utilities that consumer advocacy requires.

Gruber told the legislative committee that he enjoys all the independence he could hope for. He said the staff's eight-year record shows that it has been "an independent and vigorous advocate for the consumer."

While the staff is located within the Commerce Department, its budget proposals are presented to the General Assembly independent of Commerce review, Gruber said. Therefore, only the Legislature influences the staff's cash flow, he said.

Thornburg is probably swimming upstream on this issue. This battle was fought eight years ago and in the absence of a compelling argument, the Legislature is not likely to undo what it decided at that time.

Administration Caught Short On Arms Talks

WASHINGTON — British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's enthusiasm for Mikhail Gorbachev as a Soviet leader "we can do business with" was a shocker that uncovered the Reagan administration's lack of preparedness for nuclear arms talks and the simultaneous all-out Soviet propaganda campaign.

President Reagan fervently hoped that during their meeting at Camp David earlier this month, his straight-talking conservative ally from London would get off the gee-whiz kick about the Kremlin's personable heir apparent. He wanted a pledge from Thatcher to support the difficult bargaining position that Secretary of State George Shultz will take to Geneva for kickoff talks with Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko Jan. 7.

That position insists on real arms control concessions — the kind the Soviets have never made — as the price for abandoning Reagan's commitment to the Space Defense Initiative (SDI), labeled Star Wars by its critics. But whereas Mrs. Thatcher's support requires her deep understanding of Star Wars, the cozy reception for Gorbachev exposed far less than true understanding.

That softens up the West to be split by the new propaganda attack Gorbachev launched in London. Moreover, the failure to bring European allies around may reflect lack of enthusiasm for SDI by Reagan's own arms control policymakers in the State Department.

What shook White House insiders was the juxtaposition of Mrs. Thatcher's "can do business" pledge and Gorbachev's assertion that killing Star Wars is the precondition for serious arms control negotiations. Adding a surrealistic touch for these insiders was an unannounced Dec. 16 Soviet underground nuclear test of a warhead up to three times the Threshhold Ban limit. "That was Gorbachev's Christmas present to Mrs. Thatcher, but they forgot to tell her," one official told us.

The lack of preparedness now being felt so keenly in the White House can be corrected only by careful, sustained explanation of the Star Wars concept. Once that is done, public support should follow.

But Shultz and his top aides may not see Star Wars as Reagan does. Thus, if Star Wars does turn out to be the major pothole in the road toward new arms control agreements, skeptics in the State Department may be all too ready to jettison the president's strategic space-based defense in quest of a treaty at any price.

"The appeal of a Nobel Peace Prize looms a lot larger than the hard, nasty job of explaining and selling the president's commitment to Star Wars," one top Reagan official confided to us. Shultz himself is believed to have reservations about the concept of space-based directed-energy beams to defend against incoming Soviet nuclear missiles.

The Thatcher-Gorbachev love-in at least partially resulted from failure to make the case for Star Wars. There has been no sustained effort by the Defense Department to challenge critics who claim the concept cannot work because offensive weapons can be multiplied to whatever number is needed to overwhelm the defense.

Nor has the administration come to grips with critics who call Star Wars a technological mirage. No attempt has been made to draw lessons from recent history showing the unexpected wonders that can occur with the accelerating pace of technology or how wrong the highest U.S. officials sometimes have been about the nuclear arms race.

In December 1945, Dr. Vannevar Bush, the respected scientist who helped guide the United States through World War II, testified before a Senate committee that it would be "impossible" to build long-range ballistic missiles capable of traveling 3,000 miles. "I don't know anybody in the world who knows how to do such a thing," he said.

Robert McNamara, a vigorous opponent of Star Wars, told Congress in 1965 as secretary of defense that "the Soviets have decided that they have lost the quantitative (nuclear) arms race ... there is no indication that the Soviets are seeking to develop a strategic nuclear force as large as our own."

Close knowledge of recent history is vital to explain the president's commitment to Star Wars. It is also necessary in selling the concept to the American people, to skeptical officials within the administration and to U.S. allies coming under the new Soviet propaganda attack.

But time is short. The world's headlines from London recently were only a dim precursor of how the new Soviet propaganda line may split the United States from its allies and wreck Reagan's abiding commitment to strategic defense as the only way to stop the spiral of ever-increasing offensive arms. Gorbachev may have done Reagan a favor in sending him an unmistakable warning.

Giving A Helping Hand

I was driving down the highway the other day at a respectable 55 miles per hour when I got a call on my CB radio from the man in the car behind me.

"Come on, Chicken Little, speed it up. If you can't drive, get the hell off the road," he said.

"It might interest you to know that I am within the established speed limit as posted along this U.S. highway."

"No one pays any attention to the 55 miles-per-hour speed limit anymore," he said.

"That's where you're wrong. There are many God-fearing citizens who still observe the law of the land. It is people like you who are a menace to society."

"Get out of the left lane so I can pass you, you numbskill."

"If I did that, sir, you would only start speeding and I would become an accessory to a crime. Why are you in such a hurry to get to your destination anyway?" I asked him.

"What business is that of yours?"

"I'm curious to know what you're going to do with all the time you save going 20 miles an hour faster than I."

"I'm trying to get to Culpeper, Virginia, to have dinner with my mother."

"What kind of mother do you have who won't give you dinner if you arrive 12 minutes late?"

"It's not just me. My brother-in-law and sister and their kids are also coming."

"I'm glad they're going to be there," I told him.

"You don't even know my brother-in-law and sister."

"I'm just happy your mother won't be alone when they come for her, after you hit the wall at 80 miles per hour."

"How do you know I'm going to do 80 miles an hour?"

"From the make of your car. People don't buy sports cars unless they can do 80 miles per hour. I never trust anyone who drives an automobile with only two seats. He tends to be spoiled by his mother."

"What does my mother have to do with your hogging the left lane?"

"I'm not just thinking of your mother, but of all the mothers who will suffer because of your disregard for the speeding law. If it were only your life I wouldn't be concerned how fast you drive. But somewhere up ahead is an innocent family, probably going home for Christmas, and I want them to get there in one piece."

"It's not the people who drive fast, but idiots like you who cause accidents on the highways," he shouted.

"Statistics show that the 55-mile speed limit has lowered the death rate by over 15 percent."

Strength For Today

The word "inspiration" comes from a Latin word meaning "to breathe into." We are told that all Scripture is the product of inspiration. Good literature in every age has been inspired, but there is a difference between the world's best literature and the inspiration which we find in the Bible. Why the difference?

The reason is that the Bible deals with the spiritual destiny of the human race. But of course the Bible has certain intrinsic worth quite apart from its inspiration. It is the embodiment of good sense and wise consel. But the complete authority of the Bible abides in the fact that the great book is inspired.

If we seek life and light we shall find them in the Bible. In an age characterized by an eagerness to read, mankind should not neglect the greatest of books, namely, God's message to the needy heart of man.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JAN. 1, 1985

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Happy New Year! This is a fine first day of the new year to get into whatever down-to-earth interests you want to have in operation to your benefit during the whole oncoming year.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try to be with as many financially structured persons as you can and get good advice, even if it is a holiday.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You now understand what should be done to make yourself more charming and gain more of life's goodies.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make arrangements privately that can enhance the future for you. Some special thought for the one you love is wise.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Contact those persons you want to retain as friends far into the future and show affection for them.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Look into credit and community affairs today and be with persons who can assist you with such.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You get excellent ideas now so that your life will become richer and more pleasant for you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good day for making arrangements to handle all of your business affairs very wisely throughout the New Year.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A good day to find out what your true position is with a partner and find the best way to get along better in the future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Despite the holiday, it is well to do that work that is important and clear the slate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) An ideal day for fun with good friends and relatives. Also some special thought for your mate can bring you much more love.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Fine day for staying at home and pleasing those who live with you and planning for the future. Be cheertul.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A fine day for running around and seeing everyone you can. Take time to communicate with those who are at a distance.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have many practical abilities so send to the right schools that will best teach how to make a fortune by properly utilizing them. Be sure to give religious training early and teach the importance of being honest.

Italian Townspeople Vote 'No' To Early Release For Nazi Major

MARZABOTTO, Italy (AP) — After emotional appeals from survivors and relatives of victims, citizens of this mountain village voted 237-1 against freeing the jailed leader of a Nazi massacre which killed 1,830 people.

Giuseppe Lorenzini, who lost 14 relatives in the 1944 slaughter, pleaded to the gathering Sunday that Walter Reder, a former SS major, "must stay where he is."

Orfeo Cavazza, led by a friend to the microphone in a packed auditorium in town hall, said: "They gouged out my eyes...I say 'no' to Reder!"

The survivors and relatives then voted not to support calls for the 69-year-old Reder's early release from prison. The vote was to express Marzabotto's feelings in the matter and was not legally binding on the government, which will make the decision whether to free Reder before his term expires July 15, 1985.

One by one, 149 people, most in tears and many old and in failing health, came to the microphone to speak of the loss of loved ones in the massacre, carried out by the Nazis in retaliation for partisan raids in the area.

WALTER REDER

Corinna Fiori said the invaders killed 11 of her kin and burned their bodies.

"Never to Reder!" she shouted.

Most of the massacre victims were women and children.

"I lost my father, my mother and two brothers. They mined the corpses to kill anyone who went to recover the bodies," said Medardo Cioni.

Officials in Marzabotto, near Bologna, on Friday released a letter from Reder stating his "profound repentance" for the slayings.

Lucia Sabbioni, who cast the lone vote among those present in favor of a pardon, explained: "I wanted to show an act of generosity."

"At least he's served time, while others haven't," said Mrs. Sabbioni, who lost seven relatives in the massacre.

Officials said a final tally showed that among those present, the vote against releasing Reder was 237-1. Three others wrote letters calling for his release from a prison in Gaeta, midway between Naples and Rome.

In 1967, a similar citizens' committee also overwhelmingly rejected a call to free the Austrian from prison.

Reder was sentenced by an Italian court to life in prison in 1954. In 1980 an Italian military court shortened the sentence and said Reder could be set free July 15, 1985.

Italian courts have twice rejected recent appeals by Reder to be freed before his term ended.

Both the archbishop of Bologna, Giacomo Biffi, and the Jesuit-run Civilta Cattolica magazine have called for Reder's freedom.

Last month Reder sent a letter to Pope John Paul II asking for help in obtaining immediate release from prison. There has been no announcement of what the pope did with the appeal.

Reder is one of a few Nazi war criminals in Western Europe who have been continuously held in prison since the end of World War II.

Rudolph Hess, Adolf Hitler's former deputy, has been held in Berlin's Spandau prison since 1947 when he was sentenced to life imprisonment at Nuremberg.

Two Nazi war criminals have been imprisoned in the Netherlands since shortly after the war — Franz Fischer, in his early 80s, and Ferdinand aus der Funten, in his mid-70s. Both are in the prison at Breda, sentenced to life terms after having their original death sentences commuted.

Safety Group Seeks New Test For Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — An auto safety group says a 1980 agreement that averted a massive recall by Ford Motor Co. should be re-examined by the government because it failed to prevent deaths from an alleged transmission defect.

The Center for Auto Safety said Sunday that 77 people were killed in accidents in which the transmissions slipped unexpectedly from park to reverse. The accidents involved 1970 through 1979 model Ford, Mercury and Lincoln Continental cars and light trucks, the center said.

In a letter to Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole, the group disputed government claims that the death rate from such accidents has declined significantly since the agreement, which called for distribution of dashboard warning labels to owners of the more than 20 million vehicles.

The center, a group founded by Ralph Nader, charged that the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration "has concealed the alarming increase in deaths ... by manipulating fatality statistics and by refusing to investigate — and thus count — dozens of reported deaths."

Agency officials denied the auto safety group's allegations.

"Nobody's trying to do a two-step with the numbers," said NHTSA spokesman Richard Burdette. "The fact of the matter is that the (fatality) rate has decreased."

What happens to the economy in the remainder of the world could have a large bearing on the fortunes of U.S. soybeans producers in 1985.

What we need to see is an acceleration of the economic recovery in the middle income countries. This would spark demand for livestock products which in turn would lead to increased feed and meal usage.

Poor economic performance outside the United States and the resulting increase in the strength of the dollar have been given much of the blame for this year's slump in soybean prices. It will be difficult to determine until its over how much we lost in exports to the exchange rate, because two or three things happened simulaneously to affect the market.

Oil seed supplies have been ample, on one hand. On the other, the European community has been substituting domestic feed stocks for imported meal whenever possible, third, production has been relatively strong in South America.

Direct shipments of soybeans from the United States to the Soviet Union have been rare. Through their purchases of meal from the European community, the Soviets do have an impact on the U.S. market.

Their level of soybean imports will be very dependent on what they do with broilers over the months ahead.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture increased its estimates of Chinese exports by 300,000 metric tons as a result.

Countries like the Phillipines, Malaysa and Thailand are approaching middle income status, which generally means they will be introducing more meat into their diet.

The prices for early 1985 could encourage poultry production despite likely weaker poultry prices in 1985 due to larger supplies.

CAB Files Are Closed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board ended its 46-year reign over the nation's airline industry today and became the first major regulatory agency to be shut down by the federal government.

The CAB press office issued what spokesman Alan Pollock called "our last press release" over the weekend — a one-paragraph farewell with a black border.

The CAB was to hold a final, largely ceremonial, meeting today to formally terminate its existence.

The agency has been on regulatory death row since 1978 when Congress enacted the Airline Deregulation Act, which gradually removed the CAB's powers and ordered it closed down at the end of 1984.

In its heyday the CAB controlled fares, routes and virtually everything else involving the airline business. It decided what airlines should be allowed to operate.

Under airline deregulation, the air carriers can fly wherever they want domestically and may charge whatever the market allows. Almost anyone may start an airline as long as some indication of financial backing is produced and safety requirements are met.

First called the Civil Aviation Authority when it was formed in 1938, the CAB was set up to regulate an industry that aviation historians say was in chaos.

The CAB's mandate was to develop a sound aviation system and it did so by ensuring that only a limited number of airlines served a section of the country and that they were protected from outside competition. The government subsidized many of the airlines, but also set fares at a level to assure airline profits.

Mexico Hit By Political Protest

PIEDRAS NEGRAS, Mexico (AP) — Army troops controlled this border city early today and patrolled in three other cities after violent political protests here that killed at least one person, injured about 80 and destroyed the municipal building.

Both the new mayor, Carlos Juaristi Septien of the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI), and the opposition candidate who claimed he was robbed of victory said they want calm restored to this city of 100,000, across the border from Eagle Pass, Texas.

Juaristi Septien, who begins work Tuesday, pledged Sunday that "the PRI will try not to provoke a confrontation" with the opposition National Action Party.

The new mayor was sworn in Saturday in a ceremony that sparked nightlong rioting. The municipal building and the jail complex were burned.

At least one death was confirmed in the violence, that of a taxi driver who died after inhaling tear gas fired on the demonstrators. Nearly 80 people were injured, many of them by gunshot wounds.

A communique from the National Action Party (PAN), which also claimed victory in Ciudad Acuna, 56 miles to the north, and Monclova, 150 miles to the south, in Dec. 2 mayoral elections, said two people were killed, but the report could not be independently confirmed.

Fire Chief Juan Jose Briones said the burned-out municipal building appeared to be a total loss.

"We will run the administration from somewhere," Juaristi Septien said.

New PRI mayors were sworn in with no reported incidents Sunday in Ciudad Acuna, where National Action supporters had blocked the bridge to Del Rio, Texas, on Friday, and in Saltillo, where the small Authentic Party of the Mexican Revolution had protested the results.

Soldiers patrolled in both those cities and in Monclova, a city of 200,000 where a PRI mayoral candidate was to be sworn in today by state officials. The incumbent National Action mayor, Cesar Garcia Valdez, said he would swear in his party's candidate.

About 1,500 National Action sympathizers barricaded a four-square-block area around Monclova's city hall late Sunday and said they would stay through the night, local state police commander Arnulfo Villarreal said. Another 200 opposition sympathizers have occupied the municipal building since Thursday, he said.

In Piedras Negras, nearly 1,000 people gathered in the plaza Sunday to look at what was left of the three-story municipal building. By late evening most had left.

Eleazar Cobos, the National Action candidate, said the violence was a sign of public indignation over the election results, but added, "If I had been here I would have been the first to stop it."

He urged about 200 people gathered in the plaza Sunday evening to go home, saying: "Promise me to be calm because that is the way we are going to win." National Action, a centrist party whose stronghold is in the north, contended that the PRI, which has governed Mexico for more than 50 years, manipulated the vote in the key cities to make sure its candidates would win.

Nationwide, National Action has long run a distant second to the PRI but appeared to gain strength with mayoral victories in two state capitals and in Ciudad Juarez, the country's fifth largest city.

Juaristi Septien said Sunday the situation was due "more to an organized movement to destabilize the national institutions than to people's dissatisfaction."

But Briones, the fire chief, said, "It's a political affair. People became angry. There is some dissatisfaction with election results."

Jesus de la Pena Lopez, one of those gathered in the plaza, said the PRI and the government "started this thing. We want freedom. What good is it for people to go vote if the vote is not respected."

Transplant Patient Dies

BALTIMORE (AP) — An 11-year-old girl who received a bone marrow transplant from a British woman has died after putting up a "terrifically valiant" fight to survive a rare and deadly blood disease.

Nicole Cerchio, of Wilmington, Del., died at 5:46 p.m. Sunday of cardiac arrest, said Johns Hopkins Hospital spokeswoman Elaine Freeman. Nicole had suffered numerous complications since the Dec. 14 transplant.

She suffered from aplastic anemia, the unexplained failure of bone marrow to produce blood-clotting platelet cells, infection-fighting white blood cells and oxygen-carrying red blood cells.

"She did a terrifically valiant job," said the Rev. Arthur W. Archer, pastor of the Episcopal Church that the Cerchio family attends. "She was a source of comfort to people around her, even when she was ill."

The most effective cure for aplastic anemia is a bone marrow transplant, using a large needle to draw the marrow from an identical twin or tissue-matching sibling, but in Nicole's case there was neither.

After an experimental serum that has proven effective on some aplastic anemia patients failed on Nicole, doctors turned to England, which maintains a 50,000-name national registry of bone marrow donors.

Gandhi Wins Indian Election

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Rajiv Gandhi was sworn in as prime minister today after achieving the biggest election landslide in India's history, and pledged to lead a fight against poverty and corruption.

The 40-year-old former airline pilot was sworn in by President Zail Singh in the chandelier-lit hall of the Presidential Palace.

Prior to the ceremony, Delhi, Gandhi told Parliament members of his victorious Congress Party that he considered poverty the nation's No. 1 problem. He vowed to promote "clean and honest" government and to seek national unity in the face of religious and ethnic strife.

Gandhi also was preparing to appoint his Council of Ministers, or Cabinet. Political observers predicted he would drop many ministers who advised his assassinated mother Indira Gandhi and to inject considerable new talent, including woman and young professionals, in a new Cabinet of 30 to 35 members.

Gandhi was unanimously elected earlier in the day as leader of the Congress Party, a formality which automatically made him the prime minister because of the party's majority in the lower house of Parliament. The outgoing Parliament was dissolved, clearing the way for immediate formation of a new chamber.

The three-day national election last week gave the Congress Party a record number of seats, 398, in the 544-seat lower house — more than a three-fourths majority.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was little changed today in the closing session of an uninspiring year.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials edged up .45 to 1,204.62 in the first half hour.

Losers slightly outnumbered gainers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts noted that the market has been having trouble establishing any sort of trend through the holiday season.

They said a large number of traders have been preoccupied with yearend maneuvering for tax or portfolio-reporting purposes, while many others have been on vacation.

The recent indecisive pattern, they also observe, is a fitting way to wind up a year in which stock prices went nowhere for most of the time, managing only a few strong rallies that quickly sputtered out.

"This was a year in which neither the bulls nor the bears were fulfilled," said William LeFevre at Purcell, Graham & Co. "Moves — either way — tended to erupt quickly and then die out just as quickly.

Interest rates rose slightly in light activity in the credit markets this morning.

Among today's early volume leaders, Delta Air Lines rose ⅜ to 44⅛; International Business Machines gained ⅞ to 123⅞; American Cyanamid added ⅛ to 49½, and Mobil was off ¼ at 27⅞.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 1.65 to 1,204.17, finishing the week with a 5.19-point gain.

Advances outpaced declines by about 5 to 4 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 77.07 million shares, against 70.10 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index gained .25 to 95.89. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .87 at 202.79.

Florida Man Is Held In Abortion Clinic Bombings

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — A 21-year-old construction worker charged with four bombings at clinics where abortions were performed was a regular churchgoer who was not active in right-to-life demonstrations, say people who know him.

Matthew J. Goldsby was arrested Sunday on charges of violating federal gun-control and explosives laws for three bombings on Christmas Day and one in June, federal authorities said.

Goldsby was scheduled for an initial court appearance and bond hearing today.

"He's an exceptionally fine Christian boy," said the mother of Goldsby's fiancee, who spoke on condition that she not be identified. "In fact, I don't ever remember him missing a church service. He's not just a Sunday Christian, he's an every day Christian. He and his family were there this morning."

Goldsby's mother, Rhonda Goldsby, picketed abortion facilities "once or twice," but her son did not join the picketing, said John Burt, a leader of protests against abortion and director of a home for unwed mothers.

John R. Goldsby, the suspect's father, said that he had not seen his son for two years but that he had a theory on the bombings.

"I think it was religious convictions taken to some sort of terrorist extreme," the elder Goldsby said. "To me, that is strictly what it is, and if he did it I don't condone it whatsoever."

Dan Conroy, head of the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms' Miami office, said the questions of whether others may have been involved and the motive are still under investigation.

Goldsby, of Cantonment, a rural area north of Pensacola, allegedly used "fairly sophisticated" black-powder pipe bombs to blow up offices of two doctors and The Ladies Center on Christmas Day, causing $375,000 in damage. Goldsby also was charged with a June 25 bombing at The Ladies Center, Conroy said.

One of the doctors, William Permenter, praised the work of the ATF agents, saying, "These guys have really worked hard."

Twenty-nine abortion-related facilities across the nation have been bombed or burned in the past three years, Conroy said. He indicated that Goldsby's arrest brought the number of cases apparently solved to 12.

In New York, FBI Chief William Webster said his agency would continue to let the ATF handle the investigation.

"We have a federal presence here, the highest priority that the ATF can give," Webster said Sunday on the CBS-TV program "Face the Nation" before the arrest was announced. "And we are here to help them."

The FBI said recently the bombings could be considered terrorist acts, and therefore the job of the FBI, if there were evidence they were the work of an organized group or conspiracy.

But Conroy said, "We have not developed any evidence that would be indicative of a national conspiracy."

Conroy refused to say what led investigators to suspect Goldsby, but he said the searches of his home and vehicle were productive. A $10,000 reward offered by the bureau failed to elicit any responses, he said.

Goldsby faces a maximum penalty of more than 100 years in prison, said Stephen E. Higgins, director of the ATF, in Washington. A final list of charges will await action by a federal grand jury on Jan. 15, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Susan Novotny.

The Christmas Day bombings occurred before dawn within 22 minutes of each other at the three clinics, investigators said.

Surgeon Seeks New Patient For Artificial Heart Implant

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Dr. William C. DeVries says there is "no reason not to go ahead now" with the implant of a third permanent artificial heart in view of the progress being made by William Schroeder.

Schroeder, 52, spent the weekend in his room at Humana Hospital Audubon watching football with his family, said spokesman Bob Irvine. The Jasper, Ind., man continued to make progress "slowly but steadily" and was in serious but stable condition Sunday as he entered his sixth week with the heart.

"We want our next patient to be almost identical to Bill Schroeder," said DeVries, who implanted Schroeder's Jarvik-7 mechanical pump on Nov. 25 and the first heart in Barney Clark in 1982.

Consenting to an artificial heart implant "takes a lot of courage," he said in an interview published Sunday in the Los Angeles Times. DeVries said he is seeking another "dynamic, forceful fighter, a guy like Mr. Schroeder who wants to live."

An evaluation team will begin interviewing several prospective implant patients this week at Humana Heart Institute, said DeVries, the only surgeon authorized by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to perform the operation.

DeVries said he is convinced that the artificial heart given to Schroeder five weeks ago has given him a better and longer life.

"To criticize the program is to criticize scientific endeavor and investigation," he said. "To say, 'We don't want you to look because we're afraid of what you'll find' is a very anti-intellectual feeling that would inhibit medical treatment the world over."

DeVries said he envisions a day when people who suffer heart attacks that destroy heart muscle would come to a hospital and "the doctors can take an artificial heart off the shelf and sew it in."

Doctors could conduct check-ups with "screwdrivers and wrenches and voltmeters," he added.

Peasants Killed

AYACUCHO, Peru (AP) — Police say Maoist guerrillas of the Shining Path movement killed 11 members of government-organized peasant patrols in the Andes in southeast Peru during weekend ambushes.

No Injuries

DUESSELDORF, West Germany (AP) — Two attacks against U.S. military installations in West Germany caused damage but no injuries, police said.

There were no immediate claims of responsibility for Sunday's attacks in which a U.S. Army liaison office caught fire at a British Army of the Rhine compound in northern Duesseldorf and a military communications tower was damaged by an explosion near Mannheim.

Infant Found In Can

NEW YORK (AP) — A dehydrated newborn baby found wrapped in the Sunday comics section and stuffed inside a garbage can was rescued by a woman emptying her trash less than an hour before the cans were picked up, authorities said.

The infant, a 6 lb. 3½ oz. boy estimated to be two to three days old, was taken to Coney Island Hospital where he was stable and alert early today, said hospital spokesman Kenneth Kiernan.

The abandoned baby boy was discovered Sunday morning when Camille Arena, 36, opened the family trash can and spotted what appeared to her to be the body of an animal. She said the cans were picked up 45 minutes later.

"At first I thought it was a cat," Ms. Arena said. "I kicked the pail to get out what I thought was the cat and then I saw two little feet."

Ms. Arena brought the baby, which had been wrapped in the comics section of a Sunday newspaper, into her house, cleaned it, fed it and named it — Joseph Anthony.

"Everybody was tickled pink," she said.

She later contacted police.

time of the year. It's been sort of dry so I would imagine most plants will need some additional watering," he added.

A local oil company spokesman reported that warm weather is "playing havoc" with heating oil sales. According to an FCX Fuel Oil Co. representative, FCX has experienced a similar decline in fuel sales satewide. "Demand is roughly down 20 percent from last December," he said. According to Greenville Utilities, temperatures ranged from lows in the teens to highs in the 40s during December 1983 and January 1984.

Dear Abby

Just for today I will be totally honest. If someone asks me something I don't know, I will not bluff; I'll simply say, "I don't know."

Just for today I'll do something I've been putting off for a long time. I'll finally write that letter, make that phone call, clean that closet or straighten out those dresser drawers.

Just for today, before I speak I will ask myself, "Is it true? Is it kind?" And if the answer to either of those questions is negative, I won't say it.

Just for today I will make a conscious effort to be agreeable. I will look as good as I can, dress becomingly, talk softly, act courteously and not interrupt when someone else is talking. Just for today I'll not improve anybody except myself.

Just for today I will have a program. I may not follow it exactly, but I will have it, thereby saving myself from two pests: hurry and indecision.

Just for today I will have a quiet half-hour to relax alone. During this time I will reflect on my behavior and will get a better perspective on my life.

Just for today I will be unafraid. I will gather the courage to do what is right and take the responsibility for my own actions. I will expect nothing from the world, but I will realize that as I give to the world, the world will give to me.

Have a happy, healthy New Year. And pray for peace!

LOVE, ABBY

P.S. If you're driving tonight, don't drink. And if you're drinking, don't drive.

Your Social Security Disability Benefits

BENEFITS DENIED?

Have you been denied benefits under Social Security's disability benefits programs? Do not be discouraged. That happens to most people who apply the first time.

Have you asked for reconsideration of your disability claim and been turned down a second time? Again, don't be discouraged or give up. That's the way the disability system works today.

Take your case one step further and go before a Social Security Administrative Law Judge for a hearing with a qualified representative to present your case. Then the chances of your winning benefits are somewhere between 70% and 80%. The Judge will see you and hear your personal description of your physical or mental illness, and your representative will present your case as it applies to the complex rules of the Social Security Act.

If you have a hearing requested or scheduled before an Administrative Law Judge, call now for an immediate conference. There is no fee for an initial conference to discuss your eligibility for disability.

SAFE DRIVING TIPS FOR PARTY GOERS

by Laurel Hill
Substance Abuse Coordinator

During our upcoming holiday season there will be an increase of our party going and thus a potential increase in the use of alcoholic beverages. Be smart, set yourself a specific plan on how to get home before you go to the party or begin drinking. Here are some suggestions:

1). Call a cab. Most cab companies have extended hours during the holiday and these people are very happy to drive you home.
2). Wait to drive after drinking to let the effects of the alcohol wear off. It takes approximately one hour for the body to burn up one drink. (One drink is defined as 1 oz. liquor or a 12 oz. beer or a 5 oz. glass of wine).
3). Identify someone in your car prior to going to the party that will not drink and will be responsible for driving home.
4). If you have been drinking, call a friend or relative to come and get you and carry you home.
5). Leave your car and ride home from the party with someone who has not been drinking.

Above all, be a responsible person and don't endanger the lives of others or yourself by driving after drinking. Set yourself a plan to avoid driving after drinking and have a safe and happy holiday!

To Face Miami Dolphins

Steelers Slip Past Broncos

DENVER (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers' game plan was to run the ball and keep pressure on Denver Bronco quarterback John Elway, and while the result wasn't exactly artistic, the efficiency with which they pulled it off was awe-inspiring.

Frank Pollard rushed for 99 yards and two touchdowns, and Walter Abercrombie added 75 yards. The Steeler defense sacked Elway four times and intercepted him twice, including safety Eric Williams' 28-yard return that set up Pollard's clinching score with 1:59 remaining to give the Steelers a 24-17 National Football League playoff victory.

Pittsburgh, which had the worst regular-season record of any division winner at 9-7, now advances to the American Conference championship game next week against the Miami Dolphins in the Orange Bowl. Denver had a 13-3 regular-season mark.

History is on the Steelers' side. Denver and Pittsburgh had met twice before in divisional playoff action, and both times the winner went on to play in the Super Bowl.

"Our run blocking was exceptional," Steeler Coach Chuck Noll said. "Against Miami, we'll have to run the ball just like we did today."

"The difference in the game was their ability to run the ball and our inability to run it," said Denver Coach Dan Reeves, whose team gained only 51 yards rushing compared to the Steelers' 169.

"Going in, we knew we had to get our running game going. We didn't do it. To get our passing game going, we had to handle the blitz, and we just didn't handle it. You have to give their defense credit. They did an excellent job."

Noll was pleased by his team's ability to bounce back from adversity. The Steelers recovered from two first-quarter fumbles deep in their own territory, from a blocked punt that gave Denver possession at the Steeler 4-yard line, and from a 17-10 third-quarter deficit.

"What happened to our team early could have knocked the pins out from under anybody," Noll said. "Our comeback shows what this team is made of."

Denver came into the game with the fifth-best rushing defense in the NFL, and had held opponents under 100 yards on the ground in its last five games.

"We didn't believe those stats," Noll said. "They play in the AFC West. They put the ball in the air a lot in that division, and they don't see many running plays."

Denver defensive end Rulon Jones called the Steelers ' the best running team we've faced all year. They kept us off-balance the entire second half."

Denver had two early opportunities at making the game a runaway. Steeler quarterback Mark Malone was sacked and fumbled, giving Denver possession at the Pittsburgh 23. But Rich Karlis missed a 39-yard field goal attempt.

On the next play from scrimmage, Malone fumbled the snap, and Denver recovered at the 22. Elway got Denver in the end zone, beating the blitz and hitting tight end James Wright on a 9-yard scoring pass.

Pittsburgh drew within 7-3 on a Gary Anderson field goal early in the second quarter, but Denver threatened again.

Gerald Willhite tossed a halfback pass to Steve Watson for a 52-yard gain, and Denver reached the Steeler 6, where Elway was intercepted on an attempted screen pass by nose tackle Gary Dunn.

The Steelers went ahead 10-7 late in the half with a 78-yard drive, keyed by Pollard runs of 23 and 14 yards and Malone's 19-yard pass to Bennie Cunningham. Pollard got the score on a 1-yard run.

Barely a minute into the second half, Denver's Roger Jackson blocked a punt, and the Broncos had the ball at the Steeler 4. But the Pittsburgh defense held, and Karlis kicked a 21-yard field goal for a 10-10 tie.

On the play before the kick, Elway was hit after releasing a pass by defensive end Keith Willis, and he came off the field limping with a groin injury. He stayed in the game, but the injury limited his mobility.

Elway injured his left knee in the fourth quarter when he was hit by Steelers linebacker Mike Merriweather while attempting a short sideline pass to Steve Watson.

After the game, Elway and his father, Stanford University Coach Jack Elway, said the quarterback would have to undergo arthscopic surgery for torn knee cartilage. Elway said it would be his second such surgery. "I've had surgery on that knee before when I was in high school.

"It's nothing serious," Elway said of the procedure, which usually requires two to three weeks of rehabilitation before a player can return to action.

Elway subseqently drove Denver 46 yards in six plays, firing a 20-yard dart to Steve Watson for the TD. Watson caught a Denver playoff-record 11 passes for 177 yards on the day.

The Steelers bounced right back to tie, however, as Malone passed to rookie Louis Lipps for 23, 17 and 10 yards — the final one for the score late in the third quarter.

With Pollard and Abercrombie chewing up yardage in the final quarter, Pittsburgh moved into scoring position, but Anderson hooked a 26-yard field goal try wide. Two plays later, however, Williams picked off an Elway pass, setting up Pollard's second-effort score from the 2.

"I don't know what he (Elway) saw," said Williams. "I was doubling with Donnie Shell, just hanging around. I knew I was going to either catch it or drop it, but the receiver wasn't going to get it."

"The defensive back made a good play on the ball at the end," said Reeves. "They did the job.

Chicago Butchers Hogs, 23-19

WASHINGTON (AP) — They call Chicago the Hog Butcher to the world ... and today the nickname is entirely appropriate.

The Chicago Bears defense chopped up the Washington Redskins' famed "Hogs" offensive line on Sunday en route to downing the Redskins 23-19, setting up next Sunday's National Conference Championship showdown with the 49ers in San Francisco.

The Bears defense, which set a National Football League record for sacks with 72 during the regular season, made life miserable for quarterback Joe Theismann, sacking the Washington signal caller seven times while forcing him to run on five other occasions.

"We had a diet of fish, chicken and beef all week," said defensive tackle Dan Hampton, who registered 2½ sacks. "We were hungry for pork."

"The key to the game was pass protection and to keep the heat off Joe," said Redskin guard Russ Grimm. "We didn't do the job."

"It was kind of like being on the freeway at rush hour without a car," said Theismann, slowing peeling off tape from his body in the loser's dressing room.

"This is one heck of a football team we shut down today," Chicago Coach Mike Ditka said. "We played relentless football and when you play that relentless some good things have to happen to you."

On offense, the Central Division champs were giving the ball to their Mr. Everything, Walter Payton. The National Football League's career rushing leader, Payton ran for 104 yards and threw a 19-yard touchdown pass as the Bears handed the Redskins their first playoff loss ever at Robert F. Kennedy Stadium and ended their bid for a third straight trip to the Super Bowl.

"I feel lost," said Grimm. "I'm used to playing in the football in January, Now I know what it feels like to lose and have to stay home."

As well as Payton played, however, he needed help in bringing the Bears their first playoff victory in 21 years.

As they have all season, the Bears top-ranked defense rose to the occasion, beating back the opposition to preserve the victory.

With the game on the line in the fourth quarter and the Bears nursing a six-point lead, the Chicago defense held the Redskins to just three yards total offense. In the process, they intercepted a pass and sacked Theismann four times.

With their own offense suddenly ineffective, the Chicago defenders were called on three times in the final period to turn back Washington after the Redskins had taken over in Chicago territory.

The Redskins, who completed their season at 11-6, were unable to take advantage of the favorable field position.

Twice, the Redskins were forced to punt after being pushed back by the Chicago defense. A third drive, which netted just 21 yards, ended when Mark Moseley's 41-yard field goal was wide to the left.

"We just couldn't get a play (in the fourth quarter)," said Redskin Coach Joe Gibbs. "I felt we would at least get a field goal out of those. We had the opportunity but just couldn't get it."

Moseley staked the Redskins to a 3-0 lead as his 25-yard field goal capped a 56-yard scoring drive the first time the Redskins touched the ball.

"When we started off and marched down the field I thought this is our day. don't worry," Redskins linebacker Monte Coleman said. "But later, it just seemed to go sour."

In the second quarter, the Bears defense forced a turnover, leading to Chicago's first score. Safety Todd Bell's hit on Joe Washington forced a fumble, setting up a 34-yard Bob Thomas field goal.

The Bears scored the only touchdown of the half late in the second quarter with a halfback option that caught the Redskins flat-footed. Following a handoff, Payton rolled right and lofted a 19-yard touchdown pass to a wide open Pat Dunsmore.

The Bears extended their lead to 16-3 on their first possession of the second half after speedster Willie Gault took Steve Fuller's pass and shook off cornerback Darrell Green for a 75-yard touchdown. Thomas missed the point-after.

The Redskins cut the deficit to 16-10 on a 1-yard touchdown run by John Riggins.

But a roughing the kicker call against Ken Coffey kept a Chicago

Benson, Smith Top Net Field

John Benson and Joan Smith, both of Wilson, captured top honors in the fourth annual Mixed Doubles Tennis Tournament held Sunday by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department at the River Birch Tennis Center.

Eighteen teams competed in the round robin event, with prizes awarded to the top six teams.

Second place went to Allen Farfour and Catherine Land of Greenville, with Cecil Martin and Kerri Kolehma of Rocky Mount taking third. Danny Phillips and Jennifer Griffin took fourth with Tom and Anne Sayetta of Greenville finishing fifth. Sixth place went to Will Jones and Jeannie Trueblood of Washington.

The Toronto Huskies had an NBA franchise in the inaugural season, 1946-47, but gave it up after that year.

Heels Suffer Defeat

By The Associated Press

North Carolina basketball coach Dean Smith had little to say after the No. 7 Tar Heels dropped their first game in nine outings, losing the Hawaii Pacific College Invitational tournament championship to Missouri, 81-76.

"I told them to hurry up, they got a 6 o'clock flight," Smith said following the Sunday night game in Honolulu.

In Atlantic Coast Conference action Saturday, No. 14 North Carolina State fell 66-56 to fifth-ranked St. John's in the final of the Holiday Festival tournament in New York. Second-ranked Duke squeaked by Southern Cal 75-73 to capture the championship of the Trojan-Bud Light Tournament in Los Angeles, while Clemson beat Vanderbilt 81-74 to claim the Music City Tournament championship.

Jeff Strong scored 24 points and Malcolm Thomas added 23 for the 6-5 Tigers while Dan Bingenheimer made five of six foul shots in the final 24 seconds to seal the victory for Missouri.

Strong was named the tournament's most valuable player. He sank two free throws with 1:15 left in the first half to make the score 36-34 and lift Missouri to the lead it kept for the rest of game.

North Carolina pulled within 73-72 on a jump shot by Kenny Smith with 46 seconds left in the game, but the Tar Heels fell victim to Bingenheimer's free throws.

The game was played before the consolation match in order to accomodate the travel plans of the Tar Heels, who were on their way home after playing a tournament in Japan.

"You have to give them something," Missouri coach Norm Stewart said. "They're tired. They've been on the road a long time."

Smith and Brad Daugherty scored 14 points apiece for the Tar Heels, who beat Hawaii Pacific 88-69 in a first-round game.

In ACC action Saturday, guard play helped North Carolina State make it to the championship game of the Holiday Festival basketball tournament Saturday night, but the Wolfpack guards hit only 5 of 30 from the field in losing to St. John's.

On Thursday, the 14th-ranked Wolfpack used alley-oop passes from Anthony "Spud" Webb to Lorenzo Charles, combined with 30 points from Terry Gannon and Nate McMillan to beat Rutgers.

Wolfpack coach Jim Valvano used seven guards, including five point guards to try to find the right combination against St. John's Saturday. But McMillan and Gannon could manage only one of eight shots, while Webb missed all four of his attempts. Ernie Myers was one of six, Quentin Jackson was one of four and Vinny Del Negro had the best percentage at one of two.

N.C. State had to depend upon its inside crew for offense, with center Cozell McQueen scoring 15 points and Charles and Russell Pierre adding 13 each.

"It was really a case of them (Redmen) packing it in nice and tight," Valvano said, "and we couldn't throw it in the ocean.

"I didn't like anything about the game," Valvano said. "I thought it was a thorough beating. That 10 points is deceptive. The only positive thing is that we're going to get a nice Italian meal at my mother's."

Chris Mullen led the Redmen, who won their seventh Holiday Festival title, with 18 points. He was named the most valuable player, an award he received as a freshman.

Duke had to hold off a late rally by Southern Cal to win the Trojan-Bud Light tournament.

Duke held a 71-61 advantage with 1:41 left, but the Trojans pulled to 73-71 with 18 seconds left.

David Henderson came off the bench to lead the Duke scoring with 17 points. Johnny Dawkins, the tourney's most valuable player, and Mark Alarie added 16 points each for the Blue Devils, who raised their record to 9-0.

Vincent Hamilton paced five Clemson players in double figures with 18 points as the Tigers held off Vanderbilt 81-74 to win the Music City Invitational basketball tournament.

Tournament most valuable player Horace Grant, a 6-foot-9 sophomore, dominated the inside for Clemson during the first half, scoring all 12 of his points and grabbing seven rebounds.

Following Hamilton and Grant for the Tigers were forward Glenn Corbit with 11 points and Grayson Marshall and freshman Harvey Grant with 10 each.

Only Orange To Have Final Effect

By MIKE HARRIS
AP Sports Writer

Only one of the five major bowl games on New Year's Day, and neither of the bowls today, is likely to have a bearing on the college football national championship.

The one contest that will be in the glare of the national spotlight will have No. 2 Oklahoma and fourth-ranked Washington slugging it out in the Orange Bowl on Tuesday night, with both teams hoping to steal a national championship away from top-ranked and unbeaten Brigham Young.

Otherwise, the bowl teams will be playing to put a positive finishing touch on their 1984 seasons, for pride and for respect.

"This is our first time to a major bowl game in 40 years. We're still trying to earn respect," said Doug Flutie, the Heisman Trophy-winning quarterback who will lead Boston College against Houston in the Cotton Bowl (1:30 p.m. EST-CBS) at Dallas.

"We're hungry for a win. We want to win a bowl game, prove our point to the nation that we are a Top 10 team, that we should be ranked nationally and that we deserve to be where we are right now," Flutie noted.

Boston College, an independent, is ranked eighth with a 9-2 record, while Houston is unranked and comes into the game at Dallas with a 7-4 record. The Cougars had only the fifth-best overall record in the Southwest Conference, but got the Cotton Bowl bid by tying for the league title with a victory over Southern Methodist.

Dave Burke, a cornerback for No. 5 Nebraska, which meets No. 11 Louisiana State at New Orleans (8:10 p.m. EST-ABC) in the Sugar Bowl, feels much the same as Flutie.

"This year we're playing for pride and the Sugar Bowl championship, which is pretty important to us," Burke explained. "Obviously, we're not playing for the national championship ... but we're not taking this any lighter than any other game."

Another New Year's Day game will match No. 14 UCLA, 8-3, against No. 13 Miami, Fla., 8-4, in the Fiesta Bowl at Tempe, Ariz. (1:30 p.m. EST-NBC).

Miami Coach Jimmy Johnson, who took over when Howard Schnellenberger resigned after the Hurricanes won the national title last year, says his team has had an uphill climb all season.

"We had the most difficult schedule we've ever seen — seven road games, eight teams that went to bowl games, and Auburn, Florida, Michigan and Purdue, all in a 19-day span," Johnson said. "But we were the only team to beat (third-ranked) Florida all year, and we're where we wanted to be all along — in a New Year's Day bowl."

The 71st Rose Bowl game (5 p.m. EST-NBC) features sixth-ranked Ohio State, 9-2, against the No. 18 Trojans of Southern California, 8-3, at Pasadena, Calif., Tuesday.

"It will not be a finesse football game," said USC Coach Ted Tollner. "They'll be some passing, certainly, but it's going to be a matter of physical power by both teams."

The Trojans will have to contend with Ohio State running back Keith Byars, who led the nation in rushing and scoring and was second in the Heisman Trophy voting.

"I don't think you stop a Byars," Tollner said. "You try to contain him. You try to stop his big play."

Of Southern Cal, which relied heavily on the running of tailback Fred Crutcher, Buckeyes Coach Earle Bruce said, "Offensively, they're still good at running one play — student body right or left, the pitch to the tailback."

Oklahoma, 9-1-1, or Washington, 10-1, which meet in Miami (8 p.m. EST-NBC), hope the voters in the Associated Press poll can look past Brigham Young's 13-0 season and 24-17 victory over Michigan in the Holiday Bowl when they vote Wednesday.

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer said, "They (BYU) went 13-0 without beating anybody and while playing in the worst conference (Western Athletic) in the country. I guess if you're talking about records, then it's over with. But I don't believe it's over with."

Don James, Washington's coach, said, "I'm sure that everyone who is interested watched the Brigham Young-Michigan game. Then those same people will watch our game. The writers will vote and declare a national champion."

Today's games featured Purdue, 7-4, against Virginia, 7-2-2, in the Peach Bowl at Atlanta (3 p.m. EST-CBS), and Texas Christian, 8-3, against West Virginia, 7-4, in the Bluebonnet Bowl at Houston (8 p.m. EST-ESPN).

On Saturday, 10th-ranked Southern Methodist held off a late rally to beat No. 17 Notre Dame 27-20 in the Aloha Bowl in Honolulu, and Kentucky came back late in the game to trip No. 20 Wisconsin 20-19 in the Hall of Fame Bowl in Birmingham, Ala.

Jeff Atkins ran for 112 yards and one touchdown and Reggie Dupard gained 130 yards and scored another TD as SMU won its sixth straight game and finished the season at 10-2. That stopped Notre Dame's four-game winning string and sent the Irish home with a 7-5 mark.

Kentucky freshman Joe Worley kicked a 52-yard field goal and Steve Mazza intercepted a pass off a fake field goal to beat the Badgers. Kentucky finished 9-3, while Wisconsin was 7-4-1.

Friday night, ninth-ranked Oklahoma State beat No. 7 South Carolina 21-14 in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla. The victory came on tight end Barry Hanna's dramatic 25-yard touchdown play with 1:04 remaining after catching a short pass from Rusty Hilger. Both teams finished at 10-2.

Hawaii May Be Nice To Visit; But Not To Play

By The Associated Press

Hawaii is a nice place to visit, although many top-ranked college basketball teams would probably rather not play there.

On Sunday, previously unbeaten No. 7 North Carolina became the latest team to lose on the island when it fell to Missouri 81-76 in the championship game of the Hawaii Pacific College Invitational tournament.

"Sometimes you come over here and can't even find yourself," Missouri Coach Norm Stewart after his 6-5 Tigers upset the Tar Heels in Honolulu.

The game was played before the consolation match in order to accomodate the travel plans of the Tar Heels, who were on their way home after playing a tournament in Japan.

"You have to give them something," Stewart said. "They're tired. They've been on the road a long time."

North Carolina Coach Dean Smith had little to say after his team dropped its first game in nine outings.

"I told them to hurry up, they got a 6 o'clock flight," Smith said.

In other Top 20 games during the weekend, No. 1 Georgetown defeated North Carolina A&T 61-56 in the Christmas Cup tournament at San Juan, Puerto Rico; No. 2 Duke won the Trojan-Bud Light event in Los Angeles by tipping Southern California 75-73; No. 5 St. John's won its Holiday Festival by halting No. 15 North Carolina State 66-56; and No. 6 Syracuse captured the Rochester Classic with a 75-60 triumph over Duquesne.

Also, No. 13 Michigan lost to Tennessee 81-77; No. 15 Indiana won its Hoosier Classic by downing Miami, Ohio, 77-72 and Florida 80-63 on Sunday; No. 16 Virginia Tech lost to Virginia Commonwealth 69-65 in the championship game of the Richmond Times-Dispatch tournament; Oklahoma won the All-College Tournament in Oklahoma City by beating Manhattan 121-74 and on Sunday topping No. 19 Louisiana Tech 84-72 (as Louisiana Tech stopped Oklahoma City 90-62 in the first round); No. 18 Louisiana State toppled Utah State 103-71 and Alabama 63-61 on Sunday; and No. 20 Louisville lost to Loyola, Ill., 93-81.

The tropical paradise of Hawaii has become a graveyard for several highly ranked teams in recent seasons.

Two years ago, No. 1 Virginia was shocked there by Chaminade, a small school on the island. Chaminade has knocked off Louisville teams ranked in the Top 20 the last two seasons, and also claimed then-No. 4 Southern Methodist a week ago.

This time, it was Missouri that lanced the Tar Heels in Hawaii.

Jeff Strong scored 24 points and Malcolm Thomas added 23 for the Tigers while Dan Bingenheimer made five of six foul shots in the final 24 seconds to seal the victory.

Missouri, 6-5, took the lead for good shortly before the end of the first half. North Carolina pulled within 73-72 on a jump shot by Kenny Smith with 46 seconds left in the game, but the Tar Heels fell victim to Bingenheimer's free throws.

Smith and Brad Daugherty scored 14 points apiece for North Carolina, which beat Hawaii Pacific 88-69 in a first-round game.

Georgetown, 11-0, struggled during what may have been a costly five-point victory over North Carolina A&T.

Reggie Williams scored 21 points to lead the Hoyas, who lost junior guard Michael Jackson with a shoulder injury midway through the first half. It was not known how serious the injury was.

Duke remained unbeaten at 9-0 by holding off a late charge by Southern California. The Blue Devils led 71-61 with 1:41 left and then hung on.

Johnny Dawkins scored 16 points for Duke and was named the tournament's most valuable player. Reserve David Henderson added 17 for the Blue Devils.

St. John's, 8-1, won a battle of the backcourt in halting North Carolina State at Madison Square Garden.

All-American guard Chris Mullin had 18 points, seven rebounds and five assists for the winning Redmen, while Wolfpack guards connected on just five of 30 field-goal attempts.

With that kind of poor shooting, "it's very hard to have a good outing," North Carolina State Coach Jim Valvano said.

Rafael Addison scored 21 points as Syracuse, 8-0, beat Duquesne. The Orangemen begin their Big East play this week against Villanova, and Coach Jim Boeheim isn't looking forward to that.

"We still haven't dominated anyone yet," Boeheim said. "We've been winning with defense."

Indiana raised its record to 8-2 as Hoosier Classic most valuable player Steve Alford scored 27 points in the victory over previously undefeated Florida.

Chicago...

drive alive and the Bears went on to score on a 16-yard pass from Fuller to Dennis McKinnon.

While the Redskins would close to 23-17 on Riggins' second 1-yard touchdown and to 23-19 in the fourth quarter when Fuller ran out of his own end for a safety that allowed the Bears to punt out of their own territory, the Redskins would never take the lead.

Riggins, who carried 20 times for 48 yards in the first three quarters and had rushed for at least 100 yards in six of his seven previous playoff games, was called on just once in the final period, for a two-yard gain.

"I just kept waiting for the call, waiting for them to give me the ball. You tell me what happened," said the 13-year veteran, shaking his head in disbelief.

"I didn't have confidence with John," admitted Gibbs. "We were not gaining much with John earlier and I felt our passing game was coming along. We had hit some quick shots in the third quarter and we had several audibles that called for the pass."

Riggins has hinted that he may retire after this injury-plagued season.

"I don't know what the difference was out there today," Ditka said. "Maybe it's like one coach said earlier in the week. It would come down to who wanted it more."

"It's like we said before the game, this team is hungry and ready to go somewhere," added Hampton.

Somewhere is San Francisco and a date with the 16-1, Western Division champion 49ers.

"We match up well with them. We will be ready to play them," vowed Ditka.

Cavaliers Hope To End Strong With Peach Win

ATLANTA (AP) — Virginia Coach George Welsh is hoping his Cavaliers can find themselves against Purdue in today's Peach Bowl after suffering a late-season letdown.

The Cavaliers, 7-2-2, were tied by North Carolina 24-24 and lost to Maryland 45-34 in their final two games to finish second in the Atlantic Coast Conference behind the Terrapins.

"I think we lost our edge against North Carolina, especially defensively, and we didn't get it back," Welsh said. "I hope we can find it again against Purdue."

North Carolina scored 10 points in the final five minutes to gain the tie. The following week against Maryland for the ACC title, Virginia took a 14-6 lead before the Terrapins exploded for 21 second-quarter points en route to the victory.

Welsh, however, said the Cavaliers would not change much defensively for Purdue, which primarily is a passing team behind the throwing of junior quarterback Jim Everett, who became the first member of the Boilermakers to throw for more than 3,000 yards and ranked fifth in the country in total offense.

"I don't think we'll throw any surprises at them. If we are to win, we'll do it with what we've done all year," Welsh said. "There won't be many changes."

Virginia is a three-point favorite over a 7-4 Purdue squad that finished second in the Big Ten Conference in the 3 p.m. EST nationally-televised contest at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium. A crowd of 52,000-55,000 is expected.

Virginia will make its first bowl appearance while Purdue will try to increase its unbeaten streak in bowl games to five. It will be the Boilermakers' first post-season appearance since 1980.

According to Purdue Coach Leon Burtnett, the Cavaliers have much in common with his own team.

"Offensively, they're an extremely explosive football team. They do a good job of throwing the football, although they don't throw it an awful lot... They're defense plays very similar to ours and our kicking games are very similar, too," he said.

"So on paper, it should be a very balanced game with maybe the offenses on both sides having the advantage," Burtnett said.

Virginia's balanced attack is led by sophomore quarterback Don Majkowski, who has passed for 1,235 yards and eight touchdowns while starting the final six games. He also has rushed for 305 yards and five TDs.

The Cavaliers' running game is headed by tailbacks Howard Petty and Barry Word, who ran for more than 1,400 yards and fullback Steve Morse and Antonio Rice, who added another 750 yards.

Milwaukee Growing Up On Court, Win 8th In Row

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Bucks are growing up a little faster than expected this season.

This is considered a rebuilding year for the perennial NBA Central Division champions because of the off-season retirement of Bob Lanier and trade of Marques Johnson to the Los Angeles Clippers for Terry Cummings.

But the Bucks proved their on-court maturity Sunday night in defeating the world champion Boston Celtics 114-98. After an 18-point lead evaported to three, the Bucks charged back to post their eighth straight National Basketball Association victory.

In the only other NBA game of the night, Phoenix beat the Clippers 117-109.

"You might expect a young team to crumble when a team like Boston cuts an 18-point lead down to only three," said Bucks guard Sidney Moncrief, who finished with a game-high 27 points and eight assists. "But we didn't. We kept executing our offense and playing hard."

Boston's Larry Bird hit two jumpers at the start of the fourth quarter to trim Milwaukee's lead to 82-79. Cummings then countered with a 12-footer and two three-point plays and Moncrief added a baseline jumper that expanded the Bucks' lead to 92-79 with 9:14 to go.

"The offense was directed at me and Sid," Cummings said of the 10-0 spurt. "It just happened that I got the ball in real good position. It got my rhythm going a little bit."

Boston, seeing its three-game winning streak come to an end, could get no closer than nine points the rest of the way.

The Bucks, improving to 22-11, also got 23 points apiece from Paul Pressey and Cummings.

Bird and Kevin McHale topped the Celtics, 26-6, with 24 points each and Dennis Johnson added 23.

"We really didn't execute our plays and rebound and didn't play physical," said Bird. "Against Milwaukee you've got to play physical and you got to take your shots at them. If you don't, they run their slow-paced game and stay right in it."

Milwaukee turned the ball over only seven times while the Celtics made 17 floor mistakes.

"That has to be a season low for us," Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson said of the turnovers. "That really helps when you're playing a great team like Boston."

Johnson hit three baskets in the first three minutes of the game as Boston took a 12-4 lead. The Bucks, with Cummings scoring five points and Lister four, reeled off nine straight to go up 13-12 with 6:12 remaining in the first quarter.

After Boston's Robert Parish hit a running hook shot to tie the game 22-22, the Bucks went on a 9-2 spree to lead 32-24 at the end of the first period. Pressey sank a mid-court shot just before the horn.

Milwaukee continued to pour it on in the second quarter, increasing its lead to 54-36 on Hodges' 20-footer at 3:59. The Celtics were able to trim the margin to 60-51 at the intermission as McHale scored 16 points in the second quarter.

The Bucks got strong inside play from center Alton Lister, who had 17 points and 15 rebounds. Bird and Parish had 14 rebounds apiece as Boston held a 55-47 edge on the boards.

Boston has played four games on the road in the past five days, and Celtics Coach K.C. Jones said his team is showing signs of fatigue.

Ringing in the New

Since ancient times, festivities and gift-giving have marked the arrival of the New Year. On the first day of January, ancient Romans honored Janus, god of beginnings and endings. Many brought gifts to the emperor to wish him good fortune. Persians gave their friends eggs, a symbol of new life. In the 16th century, devoted Britons gave Queen Elizabeth hundreds of pairs of fancy gloves. Later, British husbands gave their wives "pin money" for a year's supply of pins.

Television Networks Follow Tradition In Choice Of New Year's Eve Shows

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — If your New Year's Eve TV celebration is coming from Billy Bob's joint in Fort Worth, Texas, you can bet your boots it's on CBS.

You can tell a lot about a network by the late-night party it throws and who gets invited. CBS, favored by older and rural audiences, ushered in many happy new years with Guy Lombardo and continued to do so with his band and relatives after he died.

"CBS has done Guy Lombardo or the closest thing you can get, ABC has done rock 'n' roll shows and we've been somewhere in the middle," said Lee Currlin, NBC's senior vice president for East Coast programming.

Matching networks with their partying profiles is even easier to do with the more specialized channels. Tonight, nobody will confuse public television's live concert featuring Zubin Mehta and the New York Philharmonmic with MTV's "Fourth Annual Rock 'N' Roll Ball," starring Joan Jett & The Blackhearts, The Eurogliders and Frankie Goes to Hollywood.

Lombardo's legacy has been handed down to middle-of-the-road host Andy Williams and country-and-western's Charlie Daniels Band and Louise Mandrell on tonight's "CBS' Happy New Year America" show.

To broaden the audience, Lily Tomlin, Kool & The Gang and Chaka Khan also will be on CBS' late-night broadcast, which will have remotes from Billy Bob's nightclub, Disney World and Times Square.

ABC, the network that brought you "Happy Days" and "Mork & Mindy," has its own traditional bash: "Dick Clark's New Year's Rockin' Eve." Its guest list has an under-age look: co-hosts Priscilla Barnes and Adrian Zmed and musical artists Jermaine Jackson, Barry Manilow, Night Ranger and Scandal.

NBC is doing something different by running regular programming, a "Tonight Show" repeat, with Linda Ronstadt singing several songs, and then a "David Letterman" rerun.

On pay-cable, Showtime will start early with an Elton John concert then move to "Around the World in 80 Days" — "for those who want to sink their teeth into a three-hour movie," said Alan Zapakin, director of scheduling for Showtime-The Movie Channel. HBO, which used to have comedy specials, will broadcast a live concert with Willie Nelson.

Even more than most nights, TV becomes mere background music on New Year's Eve. "This is the only night when people look at their TVs to see what time it is," said Mike Gargiulo, executive producer and director of "CBS' Happy New Year America."

The CBS show strives for a party mood, highlighted by easy dance music. The songs can't go longer than three minutes, and monologues, comedy sketches and trumpet solos are out.

"One time an artist sang 'Stormy Weather.' But it was all wrong. You couldn't dance to it," said Gargiulo. "We show people dancing and kissing. Wherever we are, we encourage people to dress up and have a good time."

And if the party is not on the East Coast, those people may be cued to go wild well before midnight, their time. "It's not difficult to get people to celebrate if they're in the mood," Gargiulo said. "New Year's Eve is an ambiance, not a time on the clock."

Those partying at home may have the TV on, and they may rally around it at midnight, but are they really absorbing the program and commercials?

"It's not a hot night to advertise," said Currlin. "Everybody does what they think works for them. But the commercials aren't always sold."

Jerry Dominus, CBS' vice president for sales, disagrees. Sales have been brisk, he said. Some sponsors include food products, aspirin (for hangovers) and over-the-counter remedies for upset stomachs.

Dominus estimates 11 percent of the nation's 84.9 million TV homes will be tuned to CBS. For a normal late-night movie on CBS, the network averages 7 percent of the homes.

"We get a nice buck, significantly more than a normal night," said Dominus. And, he says, don't forget the quiet folks out there watching TV alone.

"I like to tell the story about how the Du Pont Co. was asked to advertise in a big sports program on Sunday. They said TV sports on Sunday would never work; everybody's out playing polo.

"It's the same thing with New Year's Eve," added Dominus. "Not everybody goes out. Not everybody's playing polo."

Fans Visit Grave of 'Hoss Cartwright'

DeKALB, Texas (AP) — It is an unremarkable tombstone in a simple family plot, but the final resting place of the actor who played "Hoss Cartwright" on the TV western "Bonanza" has become a tourist attraction in this farm town of 2,100 in northeast Texas.

"I've had people from Maine and California stop in here looking for Hoss Cartwright," Orval Miller, owner of Miller's Grocery, said of the influx of fans of the long-running series in which Dan Blocker played the hulking cowboy.

Blocker died in 1974 at the age of 42 of blood clots in his lungs, after undergoing gall bladder surgery and his body was flown from California for burial in his birthplace.

He is buried in Woodman Cemetery beside his father, Shack, and sister, Virginia. His grave is covered with a sprinkling of clover.

Each year, hundreds come to visit the site. "They want to see where he's buried," said cafe owner Roy Blankenship.

"It's a simple tombstone, nothing big or outstanding," said Norene Bates, a close friend of the Blocker family.

But tourists keep coming. Blankenship says strangers who stop at Roy's Chicken Shack usually have one question: "It's Hoss Cartwright they ask for — not Dan Blocker."

"Most visitors come here in the summer months," said funeral director Robby Bates. "A lot of them are retired people pulling trailers."

Blocker's funeral was the biggest event in DeKalb history. Television networks and Time magazine covered the funeral.

"It was a nationwide shock," said Bates, who handled the burial arrangements. "A man of his size, his vitality — to die so suddenly like that."

County officials said Blocker at birth was the largest baby in Bowie County, weighing 14 pounds at birth. Blocker wore custom-made combat boots, size 14EEE, during the Korean War. His build helped him land a part in the TV series.

"If I had been an average-sized guy, I never would have stood a chance," Blocker once admitted. "There were only a few big guys around."

Blocker was very popular, residents said.

"Dan was the heart of Bonanza," Bates said. "Along with his brute strength, he had compassion. He could be roused to temper, but at the same time he could melt. That endeared him to a lot of people."

Saturday's Cryptoquip — AT VAMPIRES' SPOOKY POKER GAME THE STAKES ARE VERY HIGH.
Today's Cryptoquip clue: G equals W

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Hunt Aides Plan Change This Week

RALEIGH (AP) — A lot of boxes will be packed and nameplates will be changed this week as Gov. Jim Hunt ends his eight-year administration and department heads return to private enterprise.

Some members of the administration are staying in Raleigh while others are going as far away as Nepal. A few will remain to lobby the new General Assembly and Jim Martin, who will be inaugurated as governor on Saturday.

Hunt, who lost his bid to unseat Republican Sen. Jesse Helms in November, said he'll join a law firm and perhaps work with corporate clients.

He said it's possible that he would challenge GOP Sen. John East's re-election in 1986 but, "that's one (possibility) I'm not doing anything about."

Hunt's executive assistant, John A. Williams, will become budget adviser to Lt. Gov.-elect Bob Jordan. Williams, a former Raleigh accountant, has advised Hunt on a number of budget matters. Jordan said it is a new idea for the lieutenant governor to have a budget adviser too.

Meanwhile, Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green has been named chairman of a Government Relations Advisory Council appointed by Martin and he will serve as a legislative adviser to the new Republican governor.

Several Hunt administration faces may be lobbying in 1985. Hunt's legislative liaison, Zeb Alley, is practicing law and seeking lobbying clients while Attorney General Rufus Edmisten plans to open a law practice and may do some lobbying.

Jack Nichols, who has been legal counsel to the Department of Administration and helped lobby for Hunt, also may return to lobby as a private attorney.

Gary Pearce, co-director of Hunt's Senate campaign and a spokesman for the governor for eight years, is setting up his own firm called Pearce Research Associates Inc. He said he will write speeches, do direct mail and political consulting.

Another of those who will be staying in Raleigh is Hunt's former legal counsel, Jack Cozort. He will take a seat on the Court of Appeals.

Joe Pell, Hunt's patronage chief and special assistant, already has returned to Surry County. Pell, a businessman and nursing home owner, has helped organize political campaigns for Hunt since he ran for lieutenant governor in 1972.

Science and policy adviser to Hunt, Quentin Lindsey, is scheduled to leave for Nepal on Wednesday. He worked there as an economic adviser to the government there during the 1960s.

"I helped the Nepalese government initiate several programs," Lindsey said. "I will be going back at the invitation of the Nepalese government under a United Nations arrangement to help evaluate what happened in those new programs."

Wayne McDevitt, who ran the western governor's office in Asheville, is joining the administration at the University of North Carolina at Asheville.

A former spokesman for Hunt, Stephanie Bass, will be executive director of the North Carolina Center on Crime and Punishment. The group examines alternate punishments to imprisonment.

State's Jobless Level Up Slightly

RALEIGH (AP) — November unemployment rates increased in 67 counties, decreased in 30 and remained the same in three to give the state an unemployment rate of 7 percent, according to figures released today by the North Carolina Employment Security Commission.

North Carolina's rate of 7 percent, or 212,400 unemployed, compares with the national unadjusted rate of 6.9 percent, ESC Chairman Glenn Jernigan said.

"The November increase in unemployment was most strongly felt in the manufacturing sector," Jernigan said.

Seasonal layoffs of 2,600 tobacco processing workers contributed to the total decline of 2,800 workers in manufacturing, he said. By contrast, nonmanufacturing was up by 5,500 workers in November with trade with a gain of 21,300 employees and government with a gain of 11,900 employees showing the greatest increases, he said.

"Such gains and losses as experienced in both manufacturing and nonmanufacturing, many of which are seasonally influenced, account for North Carolina's unemployment rate holding relatively steady with an increase of only 0.2 of one percentage point from October to November," Jernigan said.

Counties with the highest unemployment rates in November were: Tyrell, 18.4 percent, 290 jobless, up from 13.2; Swain, 16.5 percent, 840 jobless, up from 10.1 percent; Graham, 15.6 percent, 570 jobless, up from 12.2 percent; Cherokee, 14.6 percent, 1,100 jobless, down from 21.9 percent; and Robeson, 13.3 percent, 6,510 jobless, up from 12.4 percent.

Counties with the lowest unemployment rates in November were: Orange, 3 percent, down from 3.1 percent in October; Wake, 3.5 percent, up from 3.4 percent; Pamlico, 4.3 percent; down from 4.6 percent; and Mecklenburg, 4.4 percent, down from 4.5 percent. Durham remained unchanged at 3.3 percent.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K106 ♡J82 ◇AJ76 ♣AK9
Partner opens the bidding with one notrump. What do you respond?
A.—Partner has 16-18 points and you have 16. If he has a maximum, you want to be in slam; if not, you want to stop in a safe game. The way to persuade partner to bid a slam with a maximum is to jump to four no trump. That is quantitive, not ace-asking. With a maximum, partner can accept by jumping to six no trump or probe for a 4-4 fit by bidding suits up-the-line at the five-level.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J10763 ♡KQJ ◇A10 ♣952
Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?
A.—You really don't want to jump to three spades on a balanced hand with a five-card suit headed by the jack. In our methods we use "forcing" Stayman; i.e., the bidding must stay open until either two no trump or three of responder's major has been reached. So ask for majors with two clubs. If opener shows hearts or denies a major, bid two spades. If he then raises spades, choose the suit game; if he signs off with two no trump, go on to three no trump.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AK10652 ♡A75 ◇72 ♣A3
Your right-hand opponent deals and opens one diamond. What do you bid now?
A.—You are too strong for a simple overcall and do not have the right hand for a jump overcall, unless you are using the intermediate variety. Even then you cannot be sure the hand should play in spades — if partner is short in spades and has long hearts, that could be the right suit. Double for takeout and then bid spades over any action by partner.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK8732 ♡A5 ◇QJ3 ♣Q5
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—You have a good hand and no convenient way to show it for the moment. A jump to three spades would promise a better suit, but you still want to advise partner of the length of your spades. Since his two-over-one response promises another bid, a simple rebid of two spades should suffice for the now.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠Q ♡KQJ8 ◇AKQ1093 ♣A5
Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one spade. What action do you take?
A.—We would be prepared to commit this hand to game. To get the message across to partner, start with a cue-bid of two spades. On a good day, partner will turn up with a four-card or longer heart suit. If not, you can bid and rebid diamonds — partner should let you off the hook at the four-level with no semblance of a trick.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AKQ ♡K106542 ◇AQ4 ♣7
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—A difficult problem. You have a very fine hand, but one that does not qualify for any jump rebid. Three hearts on such a porous suit is unappealing. And the trouble with three spades is that partner might proceed to game on a four-card suit — repeated club leads might then force you to ruff with high trumps and you could lose control of the hand. We favor the "clever" bid of two diamonds to see what partner does next. A new suit bid by opener always has the implication of possible extra values, and partner's rebid should point out the winning way.

Recuperating

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP) — Actress-model Margaux Hemingway is recuperating from surgery after she broke her pelvis while skiing, according to personnel at the Innsbruck University Clinic and the Austrian Press Agency.

The news agency said Miss Hemingway planned to leave the hospital around Jan. 10 for London, where she would "possibly" be bedridden for five to six weeks. Miss Hemingway, granddaughter of the late author Ernest Hemingway, sustained the injury near the Tyrolian ski resort of Gerlos.

Computers Have Big Role In Solving Crimes

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Someday FBI agents will carry computers in their cars and on their bodies along with their badge and gun so they can instantly check a fingerprint or license tag, says the FBI's top agent in North Carolina.

Eventually, computers with "artificial intelligence" will learn the way agents proceed on cases, then solve crimes and predict how they will occur, Robert Pence said.

"They tell us we're not going to be replaced," he said, chuckling.

All this is happening as the gumshoe and fingerprint duster are giving way to the computer and the psychoanalyst as the FBI applies the latest scientific techniques to the ancient problem of crime, Pence said.

"The FBI had the first crime lab, and our fingerprint lab in 1924 was the first anywhere," Pence said. "From the '30s to the '50s we were the leaders in scientific crime detection. Lately all you hear about is the stings and the undercover work. ... Now we're getting to the pinnacle of scientific advancement."

Pence said the development of the National Crime Information Center in 1967 was "the most dramatic development in law enforcement ever." About 60,000 police departments nationwide — including nearly all local police and sheriffs in North Carolina — can tap into the computer to match information on suspects they've seen with data on fugutives or missing people.

Two of the state's "Big Six" fugitives have been arrested on murder charges through the system.

Computers also handle the thousands of fingerprints the FBI must process each day, Pence said. While it normally takes about 30 days to check an unknown fingerprint against the files, the computer, with 80 million prints on file, has cut the time to 10 days.

The computer can "read" a print in five seconds and make 80 different comparisons out of a total of 250 possible, he said. Courts normally require seven to 10 points of comparison for a positive identification.

A computer also keeps track of fingerprints of people with criminal records, along with physical information like height, weight and tattoos.

Since 1978, laser technology has allowed agents to take prints from plastic bags, styrofoam cups and the inside of gloves, said Pence. Ordinarly, a print is dusted and lifted off with tape, but some prints can only be photographed under laser light that makes visible the chemicals left by skin. This technique also makes it possible to take prints from artworks and documents that would be harmed by the old method, he said.

Blood analysis may someday join fingerprinting as a prime method of identification, thanks to the recent discovery that blood enzymes may be unique even among individuals of the same blood type, he said.

Three other computer systems aid probes of organized crime, special cases and foreign espionage, said Pence. The Organized Crime Information System keeps track not only of Mafia figures but also of the motorcycle gangs and drug cartels operating in North Carolina, he said.

The Investigative Support Information System files the mountains of data gathered in special investigations, such as the Charlotte-based Dipscam probe of phony diploma mills. The Foreign Counterintelligence System keeps track of the movements and associates of suspected spies and terrorists.

"The next great revolution is going to be in psychological profiling," said Pence. Through interviews with notorious murderers like the Son of Sam and Charles Manson, FBI analysts have constructed a system that matches crime scene and autopsy data with the personality type of the perpetrator. Agents have had up to a 90 percent success rate in predicting the age, sex, marital status, education, arrest history, body type, occupation, height, weight, even family history of the murder suspects they tried the system on, said Pence.

Other new techniques include advances in hypnosis, the videotaping of crime scenes and psycholinguistics, in which kidnap notes or threatening calls are analyzed to determine what type of person made them, he said.

The names of uncharged people and places associated with criminals are listed on FBI computer systems that are open only to the FBI — and "hackers" can't crack these systems, Pence said.

"Other than that, there's been no criticism that we're becoming 'Big Brother,'" Pence said.
